5. Learned A.G.A. submitted that revisionists are named in the FIR and there are also allegations against them that they have actively participated in the incident. They assaulted the complainant and others. Five persons have received injuries in this incident. The statements recorded by I.O. under section 161 Cr.P.C. is sketchy, without details of the incident. It is further contended that complainant and injured witnesses examined during course of trial have fully supported the prosecution version and from their statements the complicity of the revisionists-accused is fully established. So there is no illegality in the impugned summoning order.

6. The Apex Court in the case of Hardeep Singh Vs. State of Punjab AIR 2014 Supreme Court page 1400 has prescribed the standard of evidence required for exercising powers under section 319 Cr.P.C. The relevant paras 98 and 99 are as follows:

"98. Power under Section 319, Cr.P.C. is a discretionary and an extraordinary power. It is to be exercised sparingly and only in those cases where the circumstances of the case so warrant. It is not to be exercised because the Magistrate or the Sessions Judge is of the opinion that some other person may also be guilty of committing that offence. Only where strong and cogent evidence occurs against a person from the evidence led before the court that such power should be exercised and not in a casual and cavalier manner.

99. Thus, we hold that though only a prima facie case is to be established from the evidence led before the court not necessarily tested on the anvil of cross-examination, it requires much stronger evidence than mere probability of his complicity, The test that has to be applied is one which is more than prima facie case as exercised at the time of framing of charge, but short of satisfaction to an extent that the evidence, if goes un rebutted, would lead to conviction. In the absence of such satisfaction, the court should refrain from exercising power under Section 319, Cr. P.C. In Section 319, Cr.P.C. the purpose of providing if 'it appears from the evidence that any person not being the accused has committed any offence is clear from the words "for which such person could be tried together with the accused." The words used are not 'for which such person could be convicted'. There is, therefore, no scope for the Court acting under Section 319, Cr.P.C, to form any opinion as to the guilt of the accused."

7. It is undisputed that revisionists-accused are named in the FIR and there are specific allegations against them that they along with other co-accused persons armed with lathi, danda and other weapons after entering into the house of the complainant assaulted the complainant and others. Five persons have received injuries in this incident. P.W. 1 Smt. Taravati is the complainant while P.W. 2 Shyam Sunder is the injured witness. Both the witnesses have fully corroborated the allegations of the FIR which shows the complicity of the revisionists in the incident. The evidence of an eye witness has greater evidentiary value and unless compelling reasons exist his statement is not to be discarded lightly. The Apex Court in the cases of State of M.P. Vs. Man Singh (2003) 10 SCC 414, Abdul Sayeed Vs. State of M.P. (2010) 10 SCC 259 and State of Uttar Pradesh Vs. Naresh (2011) 4 SCC 324 has laid-down the aforesaid proposition of law.

8. The statements recorded under section 161 Cr.P.C. of the witnesses is not proper. It is sketchy and has no details of the incident. It reflects that the I.O. just to benefit the accused has recorded the statements at his own in highly improper manner.

9. In the impugned order the learned trial court has narrated the entire facts, evidence and legal proposition and after analyzing all the material on record has recorded finding that there is sufficient evidence on record to summon the revisionists-accused. The evidence on record fulfill the standard prescribed for exercising powers under section 319 Cr.P.C. The learned trial court has rightly exercised the powers and on the basis of sufficient material has passed the summoning order. There is no illegality in the impugned summoning order.

10. The revision lacks merit and is hereby dismissed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Syed Aftab Husain Rizvi, J.)

1. Heard Sri Manish Tiwari, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Sri Aushim Luthra, learned counsel for the revisionists, Sri Udai Chandani, learned counsel for the O.P. No. 2 and learned A.G.A. for the State.

2. This criminal revision is directed against the order dated 6.9.2022 passed by Additional Sessions Judge/Special Judge (Gangster Act) F.T.C. (1st) Gautam Budh Nagar in S.T. No. 675 of 2015 under section 147, 148, 302/149, 307/149, 323/149, 504, 506 IPC (State of U.P. and another Vs. Gyani and others), P.S. Knowledge Park, District Gautam Budh Nagar. By the impugned order the learned trial court on application of prosecution under section 319 Cr.P.C. has summoned the revisionists-accused to face trial for offence under section 147, 148, 302/149, 307/149, 323/149, 504 and 506 IPC.

3. An FIR was lodged on 10.5.2015 at 15:20 hours by Mahesh Chandra against 16 named and several unnamed persons alleging therein that on 10.5.2015 the complainant with his brother Vijendra, uncle Ishwar Singh, Sonu @ Pushkar, Mahendra, Ramesh, Suresh, Karne @ Karam Singh, Naveen @ Kale, Sonu S/o Ramesh, Mintu @ Shyama Singh was ploughing his field situated at Hamlet Gulawali. At about 10:30 a.m. 50-60 persons in 15-16 vehicles and four tractors holding lathi, farsa, iron rod etc. came there and asked the complainant why they are working in their field. The complainant said that the field belongs to him. On this Lekhraj, Kanwar Singh, Shyam Singh, Anniraj, Komal, Nauraj, Ghanshyam, Jag Pravesh, Billoo, Gajraj, Malkhan, Pawan, Sukhpal, Mukesh Bindal and other unknown persons attacked the complainant and his companions with the weapons in their hands causing serious injuries to them. Ishwar Singh, uncle of the complainant was attacked by Lekhraj, Sonu and Babloo with iron rod and farsa on his head and thereafter run over by the tractor. Receiving injuries he fell down and died in the hospital. All the accused persons wielding the weapons and opening fire went away from the spot in vehicles and tractors. The complainant and all other injured were taken to the hospital where they are under treatment. After investigation charge-sheet was submitted exonerating the revisionists-accused. During course of trial three witnesses were examined by the prosecution. Thereafter, an application under section 319 Cr.P.C. was moved by the prosecution with averments that FIR was lodged by Mahesh Chandra against 16 accused persons including Babloo @ Dinesh Singh, Ghanshyam, Shyam Singh, Malkhan Singh, Pawan Kumar and Kanwar Singh. They are also involved in the incident but they are not being tried. The prosecution witness Mahesh, P.W. 1 and Mahendra Singh, P.W. 2 in their statements under section 161 Cr.P.C. and also in their deposition before the court have stated about the complicity of the aforesaid accused in the incident and there is sufficient evidence against them. A prayer was made to summon them under section 319 Cr.P.C. The learned trial court after hearing the parties by the impugned order has allowed the aforesaid application and has summoned the revisionists-accused.

4. Learned counsel for the revisionists contended that initially 16 accused persons were implicated by name in the FIR. During investigation the name of another accused Gyani was introduced as the main accused and the role of running over Ishwar Singh by tractor was assigned to him while in the FIR Gyani was not named and no role was assigned to him. No crush injury has been found on the body of Ishwar Singh in the postmortem. In the FIR it is alleged that Ishwar Singh was taken to hospital where he died but during investigation the prosecution changed this version and alleged that Ishwar Singh died on the spot which is major deviation, changing the place of occurrence. During trial the prosecution witnesses have omitted the name of co-accused Jag Prakash, Billoo, Navraj, Sukhpal and Mukesh while their names are specifically mentioned in the FIR as well as in the statements under section 161 Cr.P.C. of the witnesses and even the affidavits filed by them. Learned counsel submitted that the above facts show that prosecution has changed his version time to time and has come-forth with a pick and choose move. It also reflects that the entire prosecution case is nothing but a sham. It is further contended that the Investigating Officer has recorded the statements of number of independent eye witnesses and they have not implicated the revisionists-accused, rather they have stated about their false implication by the prosecution due to enmity and land dispute. Even the injured witnesses Dhan Singh and Karan Singh in their statements under section 161 Cr.P.C. have not supported the prosecution version in respect of the revisionists-accused. They have stated that they have not seen the revisionists-accused, they did not identify them, they have heard about their presence. On the basis of the statements as well as other material on record the Investigating Officer submitted the charge-sheet only against six accused persons namely Sonu, Lekhraj, Abhiraj, Komal, Gajraj and Gyani. The Investigating Officer came to conclusion that there is no conclusive evidence against the revisionists and exonerated them. However, investigation was transferred to the crime branch but no evidence whatsoever was brought forth against the revisionists in particular. It is further submitted that sufficient eye witness testimony has been collected by the Investigating Officer, which establishes that revisionists were not present at the place of occurrence and were not part of the alleged incident. Their names have been brought forth only due to rivalry and in order to wreck vengeance. The version of the FIR is highly improbable. The first informant himself has changed his version from time to time. P.W. 3 Investigating Officer has explained as to on what basis the revisionists were exonerated. After recording testimony of P.W. 2 the first informant with malafide intention to harass and humiliate the revisionists filed application U/s 319 Cr.P.C. The co-accused have filed a detailed objection against it. Learned trial court without considering the grounds of objection in perfunctory manner passed the impugned order. Learned counsel further submitted that the trial court has failed to consider the guidelines of the Apex Court while summoning an accused under section 319 Cr.P.C. as laid down in the case of Hardeep Singh Vs. State of Punjab AIR (1998) SC 3148, Brijendra Singh Vs. State of Rajasthan AIR (2019) SC 2839 and Periya Sami Vs. S. Nalla Samy (2019) 4 SCC 342 and has passed the impugned order in a very lackadaisical manner. The impugned order has been passed only on the basis of reiterated version of the statements under section 161 Cr.P.C. The learned trial court has failed to give reasons as to why exoneration by the Investigating Officer should be denied. The Apex Court has held that to summon an accused under section 319 Cr.P.C. the evidence which has been tested once during the course of investigation should not be the same. There need to be something more, and only then powers under section 319 Cr.P.C. should be exercised. Learned court below has failed to appreciate the settled legal position and in a cursory manner has summoned the revisionists even though no cogent evidence was available. The learned trial court has failed to record the degree of satisfaction required, rather it has observed that a prima facie case is made out which is against the settled principle of law. The impugned order is absolutely illegal. The learned counsel in addition also placed reliance on the following case laws:

2. S. Mohd. Ispahani Vs. Yogendra Chaudhary and others (2017) 16 SCC page 226

5. Learned counsel for the O.P. No. 2 and learned A.G.A. submitted that accused are named in the FIR. There are clear and specific allegations against them showing their complicity in the incident. One person has lost his life while 11 others have suffered injuries. The complainant himself is an injured. He and other injured witnesses have constantly in their statements under section 161 Cr.P.C. have implicated the revisionists accused describing their role in the incident. The Investigating Officer without any cogent reason has exonerated them only on the basis of statement of some so called independent witnesses. It is also contended that Investigating Officer has also collected mobile detail calls which further confirms the presence of the revisionists-accused at the place of occurrence at the relevant point of time but despite of this in collusion with the revisionists-accused the Investigating Officer exonerated them. The two witnesses Mahesh, P.W. 1 and Mahendra,

P.W. 2 produced before the trial court are injured witnesses. They have again corroborated the allegations of the FIR and previous statements recorded under section 161 Cr.P.C. They have stated that revisionists-accused were present at the place of occurrence and have participated in the incident. So there is strong and cogent evidence on record on the basis of which the learned trial court has passed the impugned order. Learned counsel also placed reliance on the following case laws:

(i) Manjeet Singh Vs. State of Haryana and others (2021) 0 AIR (SC) 4274

(ii) Kukhpal Singh Khaira Vs. State of Punjab in Criminal Appeal No. 885 of 2019 decided on 5.12.2022

(iii) Sambhaji and others Vs. State of Maharashtra and another 2008 Crl.L.J. 1123

(iv) Rajindra Singh Vs. State of U.P. and another AIR 2007 Supreme Court 2786

6. The Apex Court in the case of Hardeep Singh Vs. State of Punjab AIR 2014 Supreme Court page 1400 has prescribed the standard of evidence required for exercising powers under section 319 Cr.P.C. The relevant paras 98 and 99 are as follows:

"98. Power under Section 319, Cr.P.C. is a discretionary and an extraordinary power. It is to be exercised sparingly and only in those cases where the circumstances of the case so warrant. It is not to be exercised because the Magistrate or the Sessions Judge is of the opinion that some other person may also be guilty of committing that offence. Only where strong and cogent evidence occurs against a person from the evidence led before the court that such power should be exercised and not in a casual and cavalier manner."

"99. Thus, we hold that though only a prima facie case is to be established from the evidence led before the court not necessarily tested on the anvil of cross-examination, it requires much stronger evidence than mere probability of his complicity. The test that has to be applied is one which is more than prima facie case as exercised at the time of framing of charge, but short of satisfaction to an extent that the evidence, if goes un rebutted, would lead to conviction. In the absence of such satisfaction, the court should refrain from exercising power under Section 319, Cr.P.C. In Section 319, Cr.P.C. the purpose of providing if 'it appears from the evidence that any person not being the accused has committed any offence is clear from the words "for which such person could be tried together with the accused." The words used are not 'for which such person could be convicted'. There is, therefore, no scope for the Court acting under Section 319, Cr.P.C, to form any opinion as to the guilt of the accused."

7. In the case of Brijendra Singh and others Vs. State of Rajasthan (2017) 7 SCC page 706 the Apex Court has reiterated the principles laid down in Hardeep Singh's case. The relevant para no. 13 is quoted below:

"13. In order to answer the question, some of the principles enunciated in Hardeep Singh's case may be recapitulated: power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. can be exercised by the trial court at any stage during the trial, i.e., before the conclusion of trial, to summon any person as an accused and face the trial in the ongoing case, once the trial court finds that there is some 'evidence' against such a person on the basis of which evidence it can be gathered that he appears to be guilty of offence. The 'evidence' herein means the material that is brought before the Court during trial. Insofar as the material/evidence collected by the IO at the stage of inquiry is concerned, it can be utilised for corroboration and to support the evidence recorded by the Court to invoke the power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. No doubt, such evidence that has surfaced in examination-in-chief, without cross-examination of witnesses, can also be taken into consideration. However, since it is a discretionary power given to the Court under Section 319 Cr.P.C. and is also an extraordinary one, same has to be exercised sparingly and only in those cases where the circumstances of the case so warrants. The degree of satisfaction is more than the degree which is warranted at the time of framing of the charges against others in respect of whom charge-sheet was filed. Only where strong and cogent evidence occurs against a person from the evidence led before the Court that such power should be exercised. It is not to be exercised in a casual or a cavalier manner. The prima facie opinion which is to be formed requires stronger evidence than mere probability of his complicity."

8. It is undisputed that the revisionists are named in the FIR. There are specific allegations against them showing their complicity in the incident. One person has died while several others (11 in number) have received injuries in the incident. According to prosecution case the complainant is himself as an eye witness of the incident. He has corroborated the allegations of the FIR in his statement recorded by Investigating Officer during investigation. Injured witnesses have also corroborated the statement of complainant and allegations of FIR implicating the revisionists-accused. Three eye witnesses are also named in the FIR. They have also stated about the presence of revisionists-accused at the place of occurrence. The Investigating Officer has exonerated the revisionists-accused on the basis of statements of other eye witnesses. During trial the complainant and another injured witness have been examined. They have again corroborated the allegations of the FIR showing the complicity of the revisionists-accused in the incident. It is settled law that the testimony of an injured witness is on a high pedestal and can not be ignored or discarded lightly but for cogent reasons. Therefore, the statement of injured witness should be given due weightage in comparison to the statement of other independent eye witnesses recorded by the Investigating Officer and on the basis of which he has exonerated the revisionists-accused. So there is cogent evidence in form of testimony of injured witness. It is made clear that this observation will not influence the trial court in appreciation of evidence at final stage. The other arguments assailed by the learned counsel for the revisionists in respect of contradictions and discrepancies are matter of trial.

9. The test as laid down by the Apex Court for invoking powers under section 319 Cr.P.C. inter alia includes the principle that only when strong and cogent evidence occurs against a person the power under section 319 Cr.P.C. should be exercised. The test to be applied is one which is more than prima facie case, which is applied at the time of framing of charge.

10. In Rajesh and ors vs.State of Haryana, (2019) 6 SCC 368 wherein informant named 10 persons for attempt to murder of his son and another with specific allegations against all the accused. The Investigating Officer submitted his report U/s 173 (2) Cr.P.C. against four accused only, no challan filed against six accused (appellants). The trial proceeded against four accused only. During trial, P.W.-1 (complainant) and P.W.-2 (injured witness) specifically stated about the overacts by the accused appellants and role played by them. An application for proceeding against them under section 319 Cr.P.C. was allowed by the trial court. The High Court dismissed the revision. The Apex Court held that, "the appellants herein are also named in the FIR, in the deposition before court, P.W. 1 & 2 have specifically stated against appellants and specific roles attributed to them, on the basis of the same, the persons against whom, no charge-sheet is filed can be summoned to face the trial, no error has been committed by the courts below to summon the appellants therein to face the trial in exercise of power U/s 319 Cr.P.C.

11. So applying the test laid down by the Apex Court on the present set of facts, it is clear that there is strong evidence, than mere probability of the complicity of the accused in the form of testimony of injured witnesses and it pass the test as laid down by the Apex Court which is more than prima-facie case as exercised at the time of framing of charge but short of satisfaction to an extent that the evidence if goes un rebutted would led to conviction.

12. It is correct that the learned court below has used the words prima facie but that can not be a ground to set-aside the impugned order. The learned trial court may not have used the appropriate words but it is clear that it has analysed the evidence and other material on record. It has also considered the legal proposition and thereafter has exercised its power under section 319 Cr.P.C. This court has to judge the correctness, legality and propriety of the impugned order.

13. The learned trial court has narrated the entire facts, analysed all the materials. Being satisfied about the complicity of the revisionists has summoned them. There is no illegality or infirmity in the impugned order. it needs no interference.

14. Accordingly, the revision is devoid of merits and is hereby dismissed.

1. Heard Shri Vimlendu Tripathi, learned counsel for the petitioner; Shri Krishna Agarawal, learned counsel for respondent nos.1, 2 & 3 and also learned Additional Government Advocate for respondent nos.4 and 5. We have gone through the entire materials brought before us.

2. Pleadings have been exchanged between the parties and the matter is ripe for final submission by the respective learned counsels.

3. Instant Habeas Corpus Writ Petition by above named petitioner, who is invoking constitutional remedy under Article 226 of the Constitution of India, whereby the petitioner Shivbodh Kumar Mishra @ Shiv Bodh Mishra has sought the following prayer :-

“issue a Writ of Habeas Corpus commanding all the respondents to release the petitioner from his illegal detention in pursuance of the detention order dated 04.03.2022 (Annexure No.1) passed by respondent no.3 under section 3(1) of the PITNDPS Act, 1988 and to set the petitioner at liberty forthwith, and may further be pleased to quash the impugned order dated 04.03.2022 passed by the respondent no.3 of the writ petition.”

4. Thus, from the above prayer, it is clear that petitioner has sought a command and direction from this Court to release him from illegal detention pursuant to order passed by the respondent no.3 dated 04.03.2022 u/s 3(1) of “Prevention of Illegal Traffic in Narcotic Drug and Psychotropic Substance Act, 1988” (for the sake of brevity hereinafter referred to as ‘PITNDPS Act’) and the petitioner may be set at liberty forthwith after quashing the order impugned dated 04.03.2022.

FACTUAL BACKGROUND :-

5. Before entering into the merits of the case, it is imperative to have a bird’s eye view to the controversy involved and the alleged criminal antecedents of petitioner, which are as follows :-

(I) On 04.01.2016 the Zonal Director, NCB Lucknow after receiving a tip from his sources that 4-5 persons coming from Bihar on a truck, bearing registration No.HR-55-J-2062 and a Mahindra Scorpio car bearing registration No.BR-03-P-8311, are likely to deliver a consignment of illegal ‘Ganja’ to the petitioner near Nawabganj Bypass situated at Allahabad Lucknow Road around 01.00 in the day on 04.01.2016. On receiving this information, a team consisting of NCB officials intercepted the aforesaid vehicle and recovered 312.045 kgs of Ganja. In this operation total 8 persons were nabbed, though the petitioner was sitting in Mahindra Scorpio Car No.BR-03-P-8311. Accordingly, a criminal case was filed by NCB Lucknow having Criminal Case No.42 of 2016, u/s 8, 20, 29 of N.D.P.S. Act before the District & Session Judge, Allahabad on 29.6.2016.

It is contended by learned counsel for petitioner that after great deal and efforts, the petitioner was eventually let loose on bail by this Court vide order dated 05.03.2020 while allowing his Third Bail Application No.3604 of 2020 and thereafter the petitioner was bailed out after completing the necessary formalities, furnishing the bail bonds and sureties.

(II) After being released on bail, the petitioner started attending the court’s proceeding and co-operating with the trial of Crl. Case No.42 of 2016. On 25.10.2020 he was again apprehended along with three other persons while travelling on a Swift Desire car along with Surajpal Soni, Vijay Kesarwani and Sanjay Kesarwani. After being searched out, a total quantity of 170 kgs of Ganja was recovered. In respect of this incident, an FIR was lodged on 25.10.2020 as Case Crime No.177 of 2020, u/s 8 & 20 of NDPS Act, Police Station Mahewaghat, District Kaushambi.

It is interesting to mention here that, petitioner again preferred a Bail

Application No.83 of 2020 in aforesaid case crime which was allowed by the Additional Sessions Judge (POCSO Act), Kaushambi vide order dated 18.12.2020.

6. These aforementioned are only two cases in which the petitioner was arrested and later on was bailed out on 05.03.2020 and 18.12.2020 respectively. Except above mentioned two cases, there is no other cases to the credit of petitioner.

7. It has been strenuously argued by learned counsel for the petitioner that after being released on bail vide order dated 18.12.2020, the petitioner has never indulged into any offence, much less than the cases of NDPS Act, till he was bombarded by impugned detention order dated 04.03.2022, signed by Shri Ravi Pratap Singh, Joint Secretary, Government of India, Ministry of Finance, Department of Revenue (PITNDPS Unit) u/s 3(1) of the PITNDPS Act, 1988.

8. On this score, Shri Vimlendu Tripathi, learned counsel has hammered his submission by making a mention that except aforementioned two cases in which the petitioner was bailed out lastly on 18.12.2020 till the impugned order is passed on 04.03.2022, there was no material with respondent authorities which could justify their conduct for proceeding against the petitioner under the PITNDPS Act. It is further contended by learned counsel that the petitioner is rendering fullest cooperation before the trial court, but for the reasons best know to the respondent authorities, off late at unknown time and date they have proceeded in a clandestine fashion in order to book the petitioner under the aforesaid preventive Act. There is no justification on the part of respondent authorities to justify their instant action under PITNDPS Act.

9. In para-12 of the petition, it has been mentioned that on 25.4.2022 when the petitioner had gone to attend the date fixed in aforementioned case in District Court Allahabad, where he was illegally arrested from the District Court Allahabad itself. The police brought the petitioner to Police Station Saraiakil, District Kaushambi and thereafter admitted him to District Jail, Lucknow in the night of 27.4.2022.

10. On this factual background, learned counsel for the petitioner has contended that a person who is being arrested on 25.4.2022, was booked to District Jail, Lucknow in the night of 27.4.2022 after two days of his alleged arrest, that too at District Jail, Lucknow. This is a gross violation of Section-4 of PITNDPS Act, which speaks that a detention may be executed at any place in India in the manner provided for the execution of warrant of arrest under the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973. Thus, there is no justification coming forward about the delay of two days after the factual arrest of petitioner and not producing him before the concerned Magistrate within 24 hours and thereafter dumping him to the District Prison at Lucknow.

11. Yet another issue raised by learned counsel for the petitioner, is that the Joint Secretary, Government of India, specially empowered u/s 3(1) of PITNDPS Act, has passed the order for detaining the petitioner illegally on 4.3.2022 and keep him in District Jail, Lucknow. This order of detention is a blanket and baseless, without containing any ground of detention which was served upon the petitioner only after seven weeks i.e. on 27.4.2022 for the reasons best known to the authorities concerned.

12. As mentioned above, the arrest was effected pursuant to the order dated 4.3.2022 passed by the Joint Secretary, Government of India; but as late as on 27.4.2022 a copy of detention order along with the 'so-called' grounds of detention were served upon the petitioner. Submitted by counsel that this detention order dated 4.3.2022 came out of blue and petitioner remain clueless as to what went wrong after 18.12.2020, when he was bailed out. The petitioner could not think in his wildest dream that the authorities were preparing the papers/documents to book him under PITNDPS Act in a clandestine way.

13. As mentioned above, after the release of petitioner on bail on 18.12.2020, there is not a single case to the credit of petitioner. Thus, factually speaking, from the date when the petitioner was released on bail i.e. 18.12.2020 up to the date of passing of impugned detention order i.e. 04.03.2022, there is no material on record to justify the respondent authorities to initiate preventive proceeding under the PITNDPS Act, that too, after delay of almost one year and four months. On this premise, it has been argued by learned counsel for the petitioner that there is no near proximity or legal justification to initiate the present proceeding under the Act of 46 of 1988. It is further asserted by the learned counsel for the petitioner that after the lapse of considerable time, all of a sudden the respondent authorities woke up from slumber and on 4.3.2022 pasted the detention order u/s 3(1) of PITNDPS Act on the back of the petitioner.

14. Learned counsel for the petitioner has drawn attention of the Court to Ground

No.2, on that basis the detention order F.No.U-11011/05/2022-PITNDPS dated 4th March, 2022 has been issued against the petitioner. For ready reference ground no.2 of the detention order is being reproduced as under :

“2. There are intelligence inputs that you i.e. Shri Shivbodh Kumar Mishra @ Shiv Bodh Mishra are again indulging in trafficking of narcotics drugs after you were released from the jail. It clearly shows that you are a habitual offender and not going to mend your ways but continue to be in drug trafficking. You have deep involvement and have continued propensity for trafficking of narcotics and Psychotropic Substances.”

15. After a plain reading of aforementioned ground, learned counsel for the petitioner hammered his submission, that simply after referring to the previous credentials of two cases against the petitioner, the detention order has been passed. This ground contains a lot of gray areas which has been exploited against the petitioner for curtailing his rights of personal liberties and his freedom, guaranteed in Part-III of the Constitution of India. The ground that 'his deep involvement and continued propensity for trafficking of narcotics and Psychotropic Substances' goes haywire, when there is no criminal credentials of the petitioner, after his release on bail i.e. 18.12.2020. The provisions of Section 3(1) of PITNDPS Act are not only words but it carries deep rooted significance. The satisfaction of the authorities must be based on concrete and tangible grounds and his satisfaction must be subjective satisfaction. Only using the expression "satisfaction" in the detention order loses its significance, if it is not based on tangible evidence or there is no proximity or live link between the alleged offence of the petitioner and the preventive detention order.

16. It is next contended by learned counsel for the petitioner that this ground of detention is not accompanied by the alleged report of sponsoring authority i.e. NCB, Lucknow, which forms the very basis of the illegal detention of petitioner, which has been knitted and likely to go to shambles. Yet another significant aspect of the issue is the alleged ground of detention, it is supposed to be based on the complete material relied by detaining authority. If the very basis of detention is missing, relying upon which the sponsoring authority passed an order of detention and allegedly furnishes the 'so called' grounds of detention, then to expect that the petitioner would give an effective representation, is simply a dream and would be stark contrast of basic tenets of Natural Justice. However, after guessing the so-called grounds, a representation was got prepared by the petitioner relying upon the limited material in the shape of ground and same was placed on 13.5.2022 to the authority concerned. Interestingly, said representation of the petitioner was rejected by respondent no.2 and was duly communicated by means of a memorandum dated 3.6.2022, whereby the petitioner was informed that his representation dated 13.5.2022 was outrightly rejected by the detaining authority without assigning any good reason for the same.

17. On 5.6.2022, a copy of order dated 3.6.2022 issued by the subordinate of respondent no.1, informing the petitioner that his representation has been rejected by the detaining authority vide order dated 3.6.2022.

18. On 4.7.2022 the petitioner was informed that the date of hearing fixed before the Advisory Board pursuant to Section 9 (b) of PITNDPS Act was 7.7.2020 at 3.00 p.m., whereby the petitioner was produced and the matter was heard, but on 18.7.2022 he was informed that vide order dated 15.7.2022 the Advisory Board has opined to the effect that there is sufficient cause for detaining of the petitioner, and in fact the Advisory Board has confirmed the order of detention for a period of one year from the date of detention dated 27.4.2022.

19. By way of writ petition it was argued by learned counsel for the petitioner that sponsoring authority i.e. NCB Lucknow no report in that regard was enclosed with the grounds of detention, hence, the petitioner was complete at loss as how and when the detaining authority came into the knowledge of the fact in the case by which mode either orally or writing and the material provided by the sponsoring authority to the detaining authority to initiate a proceeding of preventive detention of petitioner under PITNDPS Act, 1988. The report of the sponsoring authority was never shared with the petitioner as to when and on what date the detaining authority took a decision of preventive detention of petitioner. All these are the grey areas which touches the root of the controversy in which the petitioner finds himself at complete loss and an effective opportunity of hearing to him. In addition to this, the applicant has unable to demonstrate that there is no live link between his two antecedents and the proposed/ impugned preventive detention.

20. The Court has an occasion to peruse the grounds of detention dated 4.3.2022 (Annexure-2 to the petition) in which it finds reference to an earlier credentials of the petitioner as shared by

NCB, Lucknow Zonal Unit and its pending proceedings. The relevant grounds mentioned in the grounds of detention dated 4.3.2022 are as under :

“2. There are intelligence inputs that you i.e. Shri Shivbodh Kumar Mishra @ Shiv Bodh Mishra are again indulging in trafficking of narcotics drugs after you were released from the jail. It clearly shows that you are a habitual offender and not going to mend your ways but continue to be in drug trafficking. You have deep involvement and have continued propensity for trafficking of narcotics and Psychotropic Substances.

3. In view of the facts mentioned above, I have no hesitation in arriving at the conclusion that you i.e. Shri Shivbodh Kumar Mishra @ Shiv Bodh Mishra through your above acts engaged yourself in prejudicial activities of illicit traffic of narcotics and psychotropic substances, which poses serious threat to the health and welfare not to the citizens of this country but to every citizen in the world, besides deleterious effect on the national economy. The offences committed by you i.e. Shri Shivbodh Kumar Mishra @ Shiv Bodh Mishra are so interlinked and continuous in character and are of such nature that these affect security and health of the nation. The grievous nature and gravity of offences committed by you i.e. Shri Shivbodh Kumar Mishra @ Shiv Bodh Mishra in well-planned manner clearly establishes your continued propensity and inclination to engage in such acts of prejudicial activities. Considering the facts of the present case mentioned in foregoing paras, I have no hesitation in arriving at the conclusion that there is ample opportunity for Shri Shivbodh Kumar Mishra @ Shiv Bodh Mishra i.e. you to repeat the above serious prejudicial acts.

Hence, I am satisfied that in the meantime you i.e. Shri Shivbodh Kumar Mishra @ Shiv Bodh Mishra should be immobilised and there is a need to prevent you i.e. Shri Shivbodh Kumar Mishra @ Shiv Bodh Mishra from engaging in such illicit traffic of narcotic drug and psychotropic substances in future by detention under Section 3(1) of the Prevention of Illicit Traffic in Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances (PITNDPS) Act, 1988.

4. In view of the overwhelming evidences discussed in foregoing paras, detailing how you i.e. Shri Shivbodh Kumar Mishra @ Shiv Bodh Mishra have indulged in organising the illicit trafficking of Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic substances as well as have a high propensity to engage in this illicit activity, it is conclusively felt that if you are not detained under section 3(1) of the PITNDPS Act, 1988, you i.e. Shri Shivbodh Kumar Mishra @ Shiv Bodh Mishra would continue to so engage yourself in possession, purchase, sale, transportation, storage, use of narcotics and psychotropic substances illegally and handling the above activities, organizing directly in the above activities and conspiring in furtherance of above activities which amount to illicit trafficking of psychotropic substances under section 2(e) of the Prevention of Illicit Traffic in Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances (PITNDPS) Act, 1988 in future also. I am, therefore, satisfied that there is full justification to detain you i.e. Shri Shivbodh Kumar Mishra @ Shiv Bodh Mishra under section 3(1) of the Prevention of Illicit Traffic in Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances Act, 1988 with a view to preventing you i.e. Shri Shiv Bodh Kumar Mishra @ Shiv Bodh Mishra from engaging in above illicit traffic of narcotics and psychotropic substances specified under scheduled to the NDPS Act, 1985.

5. Considering the magnitude of the operation, the chronicle sequence of events, the well-organized manner in which such pre-judicial activities have been carried on, the nature and gravity of the offence, the consequential extent of investigation involved including scanning/examination of papers, formation of grounds, I am satisfied that the nexus between the dates of incident and passing of the Detention Order as well as object of your detention has been well maintained.

6. I consider it to be against public interest to disclose the source of information at the relevant paragraphs of the grounds of detention above.”

21. On a careful perusal of these grounds, of which the sources kept in secret under the garb of “public interest”, it has been argued by the learned counsel for petitioner that when there is no criminal activities after his release on bail from 18.12.2022, then instant proceeding under PITNDPS Act, 1988 is nothing but a vague justification of an old proverb “give a dog bad name and hang him”. The only sin is that the petitioner is facing two criminal cases of NDPS Act and he is facing the trial for the same. The grounds, could be safely termed as using of hyperbolic expressions and high sounding words, there is virtually nothing against the petitioner to brand him habitual offender.

22. Per contra, Shri Krishna Agrawal, learned counsel for the respondent no.1, 2 and 3 has filed detailed counter affidavit, sworn by Shri Bhagwan Sahai Meena, Under Secretary, PITNDPS Devision, Department of Revenue, Ministry of Finance, Government of India, New Delhi. In paragraph 4 of the counter affidavit it is mentioned that the records pertaining to the present case and after consulting the Sponsoring Authority i.e. NCB Lucknow Zonal Unit this counter affidavit is being filed. Thus it is evident that the sponsoring authority and detaining authority were hand in glove with each other.

It clearly indicates that the deponent of this case was well aware of the proceedings initiated and at the end of NCB, Lucknow Zonal Unit it was further mentioned in paragraph 7 of the counter affidavit that the Detaining Authority has relied upon the documents/material evidences supplied by the sponsoring authority, after arriving at their subjective satisfaction on 4.3.2022 a letter was issued under Section 3(1) of PITNDPS Act by Ravi Pratap Singh, Joint Secretary, Government of India directing him to detain in the District Prison Lucknow U.P. in order to prevent the petitioner from engaging in illicit traffic in narcotic drugs and psychotropic substances. The aforesaid detention order along with grounds of detention, relied upon the documents and list of documents were served upon the petitioner physically within prescribed period on 27.4.2022 at District Prison Lucknow where petitioner was detained pursuant to the detention order passed by the competent authorities and its acknowledgment was received in the Ministry on 29.4.2022. On 5.5.2022 the U.P. Advisory Board (Detentions) have heard the petitioner in person, the Sponsoring Authority and the officers of the Ministry and had opined that “there is sufficient cause for the detention of the detenue”. Based on the opinion of the Advisory Board the Ministry confirmed the detention order vide order dated 15.7.2022 fixing the period of detention for one year from the date of detention w.e.f. 27.4.2022.

23. In paragraph 8 of the counter affidavit it was submitted that the petitioner was detained by P.S.- Mahewaghat on 25.4.2022 in respect of execution of detention order dated 4.3.2022. Thereafter, the aforesaid detention order along with grounds of detention were served physically to the petitioner on 27.4.2022.

This is the own admission of the deponent that after two days of his alleged illegal detention its material was furnished to petitioner. During this period, petitioner was not produced before any Magistrate as contemplated under Article 22(2) of the Constitution of India.

24. In paragraph 13 of the counter affidavit, the deponent of the counter affidavit states that the competent authorities on the basis of the material supplied by the sponsoring authority and applying mind and also recording the subjective satisfaction has passed the order for detaining the petitioner as a preventive measure. Since the petitioner was not available at his house and upon the knowledge of aforesaid order through his family members, he absconded and the local police arrested him and thereafter booked him to District Prison Lucknow in compliance of the detention order passed by respondent no.3.

25. In paragraph 17 of the counter affidavit it has been alleged that the petitioner is a habitual offender and is continuously involved in trafficking of Ganja and thus in order to protect the public at large from the said illegal trafficking in future the detention order was passed. However, in paragraph b & c of the counter affidavit, it has been mentioned that since the petitioner was not available at his home and he sneaked away, but eventually nabbed by P.S. Mahewaghat on 25.4.2022 and was served with the grounds of detention and other allied documents on 27.4.2022.

26. In paragraph (i) it has been clearly mentioned that the work schedule of Detaining Authority need not to be disclosed and it has been alleged that whatever time has been consumed was for the purposes of better verification, scrutiny and examination of material placed before the Detaining Authority to record his subjective satisfaction. The detaining authority acted promptly and vigilantly and issued order of detention after arriving at his subjective satisfaction.

27. On these pleadings, learned counsel for the petitioner submits that after being released on bail the petitioner was duly cooperating with the process of law and pursuing his family responsibilities while residing at his permanent place as mentioned above. He never sneaked away or absconded as alleged in the counter affidavit. As mentioned above, he was very much present during 4.3.2022 to 25.4.2022 at his residence, but the authorities were sleeping over the matter for seven good weeks and woke up and pasted the impugned detention order on 25.4.2022. On 25/4/2022 the petitioner visited District Court Allahabad for attending the date fixed in above noted case crime no.42 of 2016 and soon after attending the court proceeding he was arrested pursuant to the detention order under Section 3(1) of PITNDPS Act and was taken away to Police Station Saraiakil, District Kaushambi, where he was detained and thereafter he was transported to District Jail Lucknow in the night of order dated 26.4.2022. He was never produced before any competent Magistrate during this two days which is violation of the provisions provided for the execution of warrant of arrest under the Criminal Procedure Code.

At the cost of repetition it was argued that the detention order was never appended with or contained the alleged report of sponsoring authority i.e. NCB Lucknow or the material relied upon them for their alleged subjective satisfaction. Respondent no.3 in his point no.6 of the grounds, kept the source of information under his sleeves and did not disclose the same. On account of non supply of complete material the petitioner found himself unable to represent himself against the impugned detention order, however with limited means and anticipating those grounds, the petitioner got one representation prepared and submitted the same on 13.5.2022. This is the most crucial aspect of the issue that the petitioner is not in knowledge as to how and when detaining authority has come to knowledge of the material relied upon by the sponsoring authority and the material available on the record, by which the sponsoring allegedly formed their subjective satisfaction.

LEGAL DISCUSSION :

28. After hearing the submissions advanced by contesting parties and perusing the pleadings/grounds taken by them, the Court finds it proper and imperative to reproduce the ‘Statement of Object and Reasons’ for enactment of ‘The Prevention of Illegal Traffick in Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances Act, 1988’ which reads thus :

“In recent years, India has been facing a problem of transit traffic in illicit drugs. The spillover from such traffic has caused problems of abuse and addiction. This trend has created an illicit demand for drugs within the country which may result in the increase of illicit cultivation and manufacture of drugs. Although a number of legislative, administrative and other preventive measures, including the deterrent penal provisions in the Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances, Act, 1985, have been taken by the Government, the transit traffic in illicit drugs had not been completely eliminated. It was, therefore, felt that a preventive detention law should be enacted with a view to effectively immobilising the traffickers. The Conservation of Foreign Exchange and Prevention of Smuggling Activities Act, 1974 provides for preventive detention in relation to smuggling of drugs and psychotropic substances, but it cannot be invoked to deal with persons engaged in illicit traffic of drugs and psychotropic substances within the country. It was, therefore, felt that a separate legislation should be enacted for preventive detention of persons engaged in any kind of illicit traffic in narcotic drugs and psychotropic substances. Accordingly, the President promulgated the Prevention of Illicit Traffic in Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances Ordinance, 1988 on 4th July, 1988.”

The arguments of respective counsels have to be tested in the light of abovementioned object and reasons of enactment. Any action on the part of authorities namely sponsoring authority or detaining authority or Advisory Board has to be in consonance with the aforesaid objective and reasons and has to be strictly adhered because it relates to the individual’s own freedom, life and liberty, which cannot be negotiated.

29. Learned counsel for the petitioner in order to buttress his contentions has relied upon the Hon’ble Apex Court’s decision in Sushanta Kumar Banik vs. State of Tripura and others, 2022 LiveLaw (SC) 813, whereby the Hon’ble Apex Court have allowed the appeal on the following grounds :

(I) Delay in passing the order of detention from the date of proposal thereby snapping “live and proximate link” between the prejudicial activities and the purpose of detention and failure on the part of detaining authority in explaining such delay in any manner.

(II) The detaining authority remain oblivion of the fact that both the criminal cases relied upon by the sponsoring authority/detaining authority for the purposes of passing the order of detention the appellant-detainue was ordered to be released on bail by the special court. The detaining authority also remain oblivion as this material and vital fact of the detainue being released on bail in both the cases was suppressed, rather not brought on notice of detaining authority by the sponsoring authority at the time of proposal to pass appropriate order for preventive detention.

30. In this regard learned counsel for the petitioner submits that taking the strength from “live and proximate link between the prejudicial activities and purpose of detention” it has been contended by the counsel that there are only two cases to the credit of petitioner and in both of these cases he has been bailed out on 5.3.2020 and 18.12.2020 respectively. Since thereafter not a single case to the credit of the petitioner. The Court wonders that how the authorities would justify their detention order unless they would depict that there is ‘live and proximate link’ between the act done and passing of the alleged detention order. No doubt, the petitioner is facing prosecution in both the cases and the alleged detention order was passed on 4.3.2022 after lapse of about one year and 3-4 months. During this period, not a single case has been registered against the petitioner either in any offences of I.P.C. or NDPS Act has been registered against the petitioner. It is fuhrers submitted that there are only two cases against the petitioner for which he is facing prosecution and in the absence of any ‘live and proximate link’ between the alleged release of petitioner on bail in December, 2020 till passing of detention order on 4.3.2022, makes entire proceeding vitiated on this score. The sponsoring authority must justify that the petitioner is offender and as soon as he would come out in the affinity of his accomplices he would again indulge into the same activities. In the grounds of detention, except a bald averment that Shivbodh Kumar Mishra @ Shivbodh Mishra would again indulged into the trafficking of narcotics drugs if he would be released from jail, is nothing but a device crafted by the sponsoring authority to dump a person in jail for ever. It is further mentioned in the detention order the detaining authority has not whispered about the source of information in the light of public interest give a free hand to the sponsoring/ detaining authority to pass any order of detention. At the cost of repetition, no doubt the petitioner was indulged into the two cases is NDPS Act but this would not going to justify the pasting of preventive detention order in the backdrop of aforesaid two cases. There has to be a concrete tangible material on record so as to justify the aforesaid detention order.

31. In the instant case, the petitioner has not been provided any document relying upon the sponsoring authority has prepared his report or as to when the sponsoring authorities have started preparing the report for forwarding the same to the detaining authority. All these vital aspects of the issue remain under the carpet of secrecy which is prejudicial to the interest of petitioner. It is binding and statutory duty to share all documents material of which the sponsoring authority has formed opinion to proceed against the petitioner under the PITNDPS Act, without which the entire detention order gets vitiated.

32. As mentioned above, in Ashok Kumar vs. Delhi Administrative and ors, (1982) 2 SCC 403 the Hon'ble Supreme Court has observed that preventive detention is devised to afford protection to society. The object is not to punish a man for having done something but to intercept before he does it and to prevent him from doing.

33. In view of above object of the preventive detention, it becomes very imperative on the part of the detaining authority as well as the executing authorities to remain vigilant and keep their eyes skinned but not to turn a blind eye in passing the detention order at the earliest from the date of the proposal and executing the detention order because any indifferent attitude on the part of the detaining authority or executing authority would defeat the very purpose of the preventive action and turn the detention order as a dead letter and frustrate the entire proceedings.

34. The adverse effect of delay in arresting a detenu has been examined by this Court in a series of decisions and this Court has laid down the rule in clear terms that an unreasonable and unexplained delay in securing a detenu and detaining him vitiates the detention order. In the decisions we shall refer hereinafter, there was a delay in arresting the detenu after the date of passing of the order of detention. However, the same principles would apply even in the case of delay in passing the order of detention from the date of the proposal. The common underlying principle in both situations would be the "live & proximate link" between the grounds of detention & the avowed purpose of detention.

35. In the case of Sushanta Kumar Banik (supra) the Hon'ble Apex Court has also held as under :

"18. Chinnappa Reddy, J. speaking for the Bench in Bhanwarlal Ganeshmalji v. State of Tamil Nadu, (1979) 1 SCC 465, has explained as follow:

"It is further true that there must be a "live and proximate link" between the grounds of detention alleged by the detaining authority and the avowed purpose of detention namely the prevention of smuggling activities. We may in appropriate cases assume that the link is "snapped" if there is a long and unexplained delay between the date of the order of detention and the arrest of the detenu. In such a case, we may strike down an order of detention unless the grounds indicate a fresh application of the mind of the detaining authority to the new situation and the changed circumstances. But where the delay is not only adequately explained but is found to be the result of the recalcitrant or refractory conduct of the detenu in evading arrest, there is warrant to consider the "link" not snapped but strengthened."

19. Sabyasachi Mukharji, J. (as the learned Chief Justice then was) in Shafiq Ahmed v. District Magistrate, Meerut and Ors., (1989) 4 SCC 556, having regard to the fact that there was a delay of two and a half months in detaining the petitioner (detenu) therein, pursuant to the order of detention has concluded that "there was undue delay, delay not commensurate with the facts situation in that case and the conduct of the respondent authorities betrayed that there was no real and genuine apprehension that the detenu was likely to act in any manner prejudicial to public order. The order, therefore is bad and must go". However, the learned Judge observed that "whether the delay was unreasonable depends on the facts and circumstances of each case."

20. It is manifestly clear from a conspectus of the above decisions of this Court, that the underlying principle is that if there is unreasonable delay between the date of the order of detention & actual arrest of the detenu and in the same manner from the date of the proposal and passing of the order of detention, such delay unless satisfactorily explained throws a considerable doubt on the genuineness of the requisite subjective satisfaction of the detaining authority in passing the detention order and consequently render the detention order bad and invalid because the "live and proximate link" between the grounds of detention and the purpose of detention is snapped in arresting the detenu. A question whether the delay is unreasonable and stands unexplained depends on the facts and circumstances of each case."

36. In yet another case of Ahmedhussain Shaikhhussain @ Ahmed Kalio VS. Commissioner of Police, Ahmedabad and another, (1989) 4 Supreme Court Cases 751, the Hon'ble Apex Court has observed thus :

"10. We may now refer to two decisions of this Court under the present Act. In the case of Abdul Razak Abdul Wahib Sheikh vs. Shri S.N. Sinha, 'Commissioner of Police, Ahmedabad & Anr., (1989) 2 SCC 222; 1989 SCC (Cri) 326, it has been held that the detaining authority must disclose in a case where the detenu is already in jail that there is cogent and relevant material constituting fresh facts to necessitate making of an order of detention. In that case, as here, the detenu was in jail in connection with a criminal case and the order of detention was served on him in jail. The detenu's mere complicity in earlier incidents was not considered adequate and the detention under the Act was set aside. In the case of Ramesh v. State of Gujarat & Ors., (1989) 4 SCC 124, an order of detention under the Act was under challenge. The Court found that referring to incident which constituted the subject-matter of an earlier order of detention vitiated the impugned order.

(12) Disclosure of adequate facts to enable a full and adequate representation to the Preventive Detention Board is one of the positive guarantees within the scope of Article 22(5) of the Constitution. In A.K. Roy's case, [1982] 1 SCC 271 a Constitution Bench of this Court indicated that fullest disclosure of material should be made to enable the representation to be effective. In the present case the grounds which we have extracted show that the allegations are more or less vague and have the effect of making it difficult for the petitioner to make an adequate representation."

37. Thus, from the above discussion it is abundantly clear that on account of non supply of material by sponsoring authority the petitioner was not in a position to give effective representation. Secondly, there is no direct 'live and proximate link' between the action of petitioner and the detention order passed by the detaining authority. In the ground of detention order, not a single word has been whispered that the petitioner even after being bailed out was regularly in touch with his sources or mobilising them.

38. The petitioner was bailed out on 18.12.2020 and since then there is no criminal antecedents reported to his credit. He is already attending the proceedings of the court and cooperating with the trial in two cases before the trial court concerned and now whimsically the respondent authorities nabbed the petitioner under Section 3(1) of PITNDPS Act allegedly preventing him from the unknown unheard forthcoming offence which the petitioner is said to have been planning.

39. In this regard the Court has the occasion to lay its hands on a judgment of Calcutta High Court in the case of Heisnam Chaoba Singh vs. The Union of India and others in Criminal appeal No.1184 of 2022, 2021 SCC Online Cal 2691, whereby the Hon'ble Apex Court has held that preventive detention would normally regard as anathema to liberty. Personal liberty of an individual is precious, invaluable and to be jealously secured and protected. The word "preventive" is different from 'punitive' as said by Lord Finley in R.V. Haliday reported in 1917 AC 260. The law of preventive detention operate harshly on the accused and, therefore, it should be strictly construed and should not be used merely to clip the wings of the accused who has involved in the criminal prosecution. Freedom from arbitrary arrest is a basic human right recognised over the years. This right has been preserved and respected whenever there has been cases of preventive detention unless there were compelling necessity or reasons. The courts have upheld the sanctity of the personal liberty and placed it over all other rights. In cases of habeas corpus there is a principle which "is one of the pillars of liberty", that in English Law every imprisonment is prima facie unlawful and that it is for a person directing imprisonment to justify his act. It would be contextually useful to quote the following paragraphs of aforesaid judgment, herein below :

"28. It may appear to be strange that amongst the loudest critics who were members of the independent movement and might have suffered preventive detention in British India without even being tried or convicted, however, were in favour of inserting preventive detention in the Constitution and thereafter in various legislation authorising detention without trial. The sweeping power given to executive to arrest and detain a person for months together without even seeking the confirmation of the advisory board, however, has now been diluted due to various judicial pronouncements which uphold the constitutional rights of detenu notwithstanding the right of the detaining authority to issue order for preventive detention and similar legislation setting a time limit for such consideration.

29. Sardar Ballavbhai Patel, the first Home Minister of independent India moving the Bill which culminated in the preventive detention Act 1950 told parliament that it was directed against persons "whose avowed object is to create disruption, dislocation and tamper(ing) with communication, to suborn loyalty and make it impossible for normal Government based on law to function.

31. Justice Vivian Bose a crusader of personal liberty in his dissenting judgment in S. Krishnan Kothe v. State of Madras reported at AIR 1951 SC 301 in the context of the validity of the Preventive Detention (Amendment) Act 1951. observed:

"I cannot bring myself to believe that the framers of our Constitution intended that the liberties guaranteed should be illusory and meaningless or that they could be toyed with by this person or that. They did not bestow on the people of India a cold, lifeless, inert mass of malleable clay but created a living organism, breathed life into it and endowed it with purpose and vigour so that it should grow healthily and sturdily in the democratic way of life, which is the free way. In the circumstances, I prefer to decide in favour of the freedom of the subject. I am not speaking technically at the moment. I am viewing it broadly as the man in the street would. I am placing myself in the position of the detenu and looking at it through his eyes. The niceties of the law do not matter to him. He does not care about grammar. All that matters to him is that he is behind the bars and that Parliament has not fixed any limit in his kind of case and that local authorities tell him that they have the right to say how long he shall remain under detention. I cannot bring myself to think that this was intended by the Constitution".

33. The catena of decisions relied upon by the learned Counsel for the petitioner and Addl. Solicitor General would show that the courts have tried to balance between the personal liberty and the necessity for curtailment such freedom or liberty. One would argue that when a person has committed acts which are punishable as crime be detained under the garb of preventive detention. It is quite arguable that a detention can never be proper as the very object of the detention keeping the culprit behind bars can be achieved by any ordinary criminal court by convicting him for offence. However, the concept that emerged that while the object of a trial and a conviction is punitive the object of detention without trial is preventive.

39. Preventive detention is an exceptional mechanism compromising on the personal liberty of individuals. Therefore, the legal qualification of preventive detention laws ought to be interpreted strictly and preventive detention should not be permissible unless it absolutely qualifies all the necessary legal facets. The Hon'ble Courts have acknowledged the gravity and repercussions of preventive detention laws. Preventive detention is a tool in isolation which operates to curtail a person's personal liberty. Preventive detention is more excessive than normal measures of arrest, hence preventive detention cannot be misconstrued to be a direct alternative to the normative criminal prosecution. The Indian legal jurisprudence already has a set of pre-existing criminal law legislations which caters to the culpability of various modes of offences. Preventively detaining any person is an exclusive measure and operates separately than the Indian Penal Code or Code of Criminal Procedure. Therefore, preventive detention as a measure ideally should be utilised when the other existing criminal laws are inadequate and the preventive detention is squarely falling within the intention of the legislature to implement preventive detention. The Hon'ble Courts have looked down upon the practice of detaining a person under preventive detention when such person has been enlarged on bail in the same case. The intention with which courts have made such an observation is to ensure that preventive detention is not used as an added tool to curtail judicial decisions allowing bail of a person. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in Vijay Narain Singh v. State of Bihar (1984) 3 SCC 14 observed the following:

"It is not intended for the purpose of keeping a man under detention when under ordinary criminal law it may not be possible to resist the issue of orders of bail, unless the material available is such as would satisfy the requirements of the legal provisions authorising such detention. When a person is enlarged on bail by a competent criminal court, great caution should be exercised in scrutinising the validity of an order of preventive detention which is based on the very same charge which is to be tried by the criminal court."

40. The preventive detention laws in India are a colonial legacy and have a great potential to be abused and misused. Laws that have the ability to confer arbitrary powers to the state, must in all circumstances, be very critically examined, and must be used only in the rarest of care cases. In cases of preventive detention, where the detenue is held in arrest not for a crime he has committed, but for a potential crime he may commit, the courts must always give every benefit of doubt in favour of the detenue, and even the slightest of errors in procedural compliances must result in favour of the detenue.

41. After having gone through the aforementioned judgments of Hon'ble Apex Court and having considered the contentions raised by learned counsel for the respective parties, we have no hesitation to say that the impugned detention order dated 4.3.2022 and the grounds are de hors the provisions of law, and therefore, the impugned detention order dated 4.3.2022 and the grounds dated 04.03.2022 on which the detention order was passed, are hereby set aside and consequently the petitioner is set at liberty forthwith, if he is not wanted in any other case.

42. The instant Habeas Corpus Writ Petition stands ALLOWED. All the concerned parties shall be given a copy of this order as per rules.

43. We make it clear that the observations made in this order are only for the purpose of deciding the instant habeas corpus and shall not affect the trials pending against the petitioner before the court concerned. Trial courts are directed to proceed and decide the case on its own merits, unaffected by any observation made in this order.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Gajendra Kumar, J.)

1. Heard Shri Daya Shankar Mishra, learned Senior Advocate, assisted by Shri Chandrakesh Mishra and Shri Abhishek Mishra Advocates, learned counsel appearing for the petitioner, Shri Patanjali Mishra and Sri Satyendra Tiwari, learned Additional Government Advocate for the State-respondents (1) Superintendent, District Jail, Azamgarh, (2) District Magistrate, Azamgarh and (3) State of Uttar Pradesh and Mr. Kameshwar Singh, learned counsel representing Central Government.

2. Pleadings between the contesting parties were exchanged and the matter is ripe for final submissions.

3. After hearing the counsels for the contesting parties on the earlier occasion on 21.04.2023, the Court has allowed the petition, directing the authorities to release the petitioner forthwith, if not wanted in any other case, though detailed judgment would follow. The operative portion of our order reads thus :

"Heard Sri Daya Shankar Mishra, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Sri Chandrakesh Mishra and Sri Abhishek Kumar Mishra, learned counsels appearing for the petitioner, Sri Patanjali Mishra and Sri Satyendra Tiwari, learned A.G.A. representing State as well as Sri Sanjay Kumar Srivastava holding brief of Sri Kameshwar Singh, learned counsel representing Central Government.

The pleadings have been exchanged between the parties and the matter is ripe for final submissions.

We have heard the parties at length and after hearing the parties, we are of the considered opinion that the present petition is liable to be allowed and accordingly, stands allowed. The order impugned dated 25.07.2022 is hereby set-aside.

Reasons to be followed later on.

The petitioner-Rangesh Yadav is hereby set at liberty.

The Jail Superintendent, Azamgarh is directed to release the petitioner forthwith, if he is not wanted in some other cases."

4. By the instant judgement we are giving detailed judgement.

The instant Writ Petition under Article 226 of the Constitution of India has been filed by the petitioner- Rangesh Yadav, who is in custody in District Jail, Azamgarh, through his brother, seeking issuance of a Writ of Habeas Corpus challenging his detention under an order dated 25.07.2022 passed under Section 3

(2) of the National Security Act, 1980 and the entire consequential proceedings and continued detention as being illegal and unconstitutional and a prayer has been made to issue writ of Habeas Corpus under Article 226 of Constitution of India commanding the respondents to release the petitioner from their alleged illegal custody.

5. The detention order dated 25.07.2021 states that the District Magistrate, Azamgarh has been satisfied that it has become necessary to pass a detention order under Section 3 (2) of the N.S.A. Act, 1980 to prevent the petitioner from acting in any manner which would be prejudicial to the maintenance of 'public order'. The grounds of detention are contained in a separate communication of the same date issued by the District Magistrate, Azamgarh which narrates the incident which led to the passing of the detention order. A first information report dated 21.02.2022, being Case Crime No. 39 of 2022, under section 272, 273, 302, 34 I.P.C. & Section 60 (A) of U.P. Excise Act was lodged at P.S. Ahraula, District Azamgarh by Vijay Sonkar against the petitioner and other co-accused namely Suryabhan, Puneet Kumar Yadav, Rambhoj and Ashok Kumar Yadav with the allegation that his father Jhabbu Sonkar purchased country made liquor (देसी शराब) from the shop of the petitioner Rangesh Yadav on 20.02.2022 and after consuming it, his father has fallen ill and thereafter become blind and his condition started deteriorating. He was admitted in hospital but eventually he died on 21.02.2022, during the course of treatment. When the complainant returned to village with dead body of his father, he came to know that co-villager Ramkaran Bind has also died due to consumption of liquor purchased from the shop of the petitioner- Rangesh Yadav .

6. The second F.I.R. being Case Crime No. 40 of 2022, under section 272, 273 IPC & section 60 (A) of U.P. Excise Act was lodged by the Excise Inspector at P.S. Ahraula against the petitioner and other unknown accused, who were involved in the business of adulterated country made liquor (Hooch).

7. On the ground of the same incident, a third F.I.R. being Case Crime No. 60 of 2022, dated 22.02.2022, under section 272, 273, 34, 302 IPC & section 60 (A) of U.P. Excise Act was lodged by one Rajendra Prasad Yadav against the petitioner and co-accused namely Suryabhan, Puneet Kumar Yadav, Rambhoj and Ashok Yadav with the allegation that his brother become serious. He also became blind and for the purpose of treatment he was admitted in the hospital on 21.02.2022 but he died during the course of treatment.

8. An another F.I.R. under section 3(1) of Uttar Pradesh Gangsters and Anti-Social Activities (Prevention) Act, 1986 as Case Crime No. 97 of 2022 at P.S. Ahraula was lodged against the petitioner and other co-accused on 07.04.2022.

9. The impugned detention order dated 25.07.2022 was passed after three months mentioning that by virtue of exercising the power conferred under section 3(3) of National Security Act, 1980 (Act No.65/1980), Rangesh Yadav who is in Jail, as undertrial in Case Crime No.39 of 2022, under section 272, 273, 302, 34 IPC & section 60 (A) of U.P. Excise Act, P.S. Ahraula, District Azamgarh and Case Crime No. 97 of 2022, under section 3(1) of Uttar Pradesh Gangsters and Anti-Social Activities (Prevention) Act, 1986, P.S. Ahraula, District Azamgarh is retained in the custody of Superintendent, District Jail, Azamgarh as an ordinary prisoner. In grounds of detention it is stated that as a fallout of the alleged incident there is a sense of terror and anguish among the people and children were not being sent to schools, shops were being closed, additional police force has been deployed and tremendous publicity is being given in newspapers, general public has a perception that if people are fallen ill by consuming liquor from licensed shop and if petitioner is released from Jail he would indulge in some illegal acts, which would adversely impact on the normal tempo of general public. The offence committed by the petitioner, by virtue of involving in the business of adulterated country made liquor (Hooch), which resulted into death of seven people, the other people got afraid and panicky, the public order was disturbed and tranquility of the locality was disturbed. There is every likelihood that in the event the petitioner is bailed out, as his counsel and family members are trying hard, the petitioner after coming out of jail would have play in the society.

10. It has been averred in the writ petition that petitioner is a law-abiding citizen and has no criminal history to his credit. The District Magistrate of Azamgarh has mechanically and in an arbitrary manner signed the detention order dated 25.07.2022. The petitioner has been in District Jail, Azamgarh, since 23.02.2023. The petitioner has never done any act in violation of the maintenance of public order. On 25.07.2022 there was no possibility/probability of getting out on bail of the petitioner nor the subjective satisfaction of District Magistrate, Azamgarh, therefore, order dated 25.07.2022 is illegal and unconstitutional and liable to be set-aside. Case Crime No. 97 of 2022 under section 3(1) of Uttar Pradesh Gangsters and Anti-Social Activities (Prevention) Act, 1986 was registered against the petitioner on 07.04.2022 and bail application thereunder was rejected on 19.05.2022. No second bail application has been moved in the court nor was any bail application moved in Hon'ble High Court. The District Magistrate Azamgarh did not consider this aspect of the case thus the impugned detention order is a punitive one therefore liable to be quashed and set-aside.

11. There is no cogent and reliable evidence against the petitioner in Case Crime No. 39 of 2022, Case Crime No. 40 of 2022, Case Crime No. 60 of 2022 and Case Crime No. 97 of 2022, this important fact has not been considered at any level. In the bail applications in Case Crime No. 40 of 2022 and Case Crime No. 60 of 2022, defence plea was taken regarding false implication and non-complicity of the petitioner, but bail applications, affidavits and annexures have not been forwarded by the sponsoring authority as well as the recommending authority to the District Magistrate, Azamgarh, thus the District Magistrate, Azamgarh, has been deprived of considering the same for subjective satisfaction, nor the same was forwarded to the State Government as well as to the Central Government for the consideration. The petitioner has been provided only the copy of the index of the bail application in Case Crime No. 39 of 2022, bail application (first four pages) and letter dated 18.06.2022 of the office of Government Advocate of Hon'ble High Court along with detention order dated 25.07.2022. Affidavits and annexures with the bail applications have not been furnished to the petitioner nor have been sent to the State Government as well as Central Government for their perusal.

12. There is no evidence regarding the purchase of liquor from the licensed shop and the same was taken and was drunk by those persons who are alleged to have died, fallen ill and became blind. Shri Mishra, learned counsel submits that at least half a dozen deshi liquor shops in that area. Sponsoring authority and recommending authority have relied on news items in local newspapers which is not admissible in evidence. The petitioner has been deprived of effective representation as he has not been provided with important and relevant documents. A request has also been made through representation dated 06.08.2022 for the same.

13. Petitioner has also made request for the aid of legal friend and legal practitioner at the time of hearing but the same was not considered, while the sponsoring authority and recommending authority were represented by legal officers/practitioners, which is violation of Article 14 and 21 of the Constitution of India. Against the detention order dated 25.07.2022 through District Jail, Azamgarh representation dated 13.08.2022 was sent to the State Government, Central Government and Advisory Board, Lucknow but the same has been rejected in an arbitrary manner which is the violation of Constitutional Right and Procedural safeguards.

14. The representation dated 13.08.2022 of the petitioner was not expeditiously disposed off but decided with negligence and laches being violative of Article 22(5) of the Constitution of India. The second representation dated 25.08.2022 was sent through speed post to State Government as well as Central Government of which no information has been sent back to the petitioner. The provisions of sections 3(2), 3(3), 3(5), 8, 10, 12, 14 of National Security Act and Article 14, 19, 21, 22(5) of the Constitution of India have not been complied with. Thus the impugned detention order is liable to be quashed/ set-aside.

15. On behalf of Superintendent, District Jail, Azamgarh, counter affidavit has been filed by Sri Ranjit Kumar Singh stating that the petitioner was admitted in District Jail, Azamgarh on 23.02.2022. In pursuance of remand orders in Case Crime No. 39 of 2022, Case Crime No. 40 of 2022, Case Crime No. 60 of 2022 and remand order dated 15.04.2022 in Case Crime No. 97 of 2022. While the petitioner was in judicial custody in the aforesaid cases the said detention order dated 25.07.2022 along with grounds of the detention with all relevant materials was received in the office of the District Jail, Azamgarh on 25.07.2022 and the same was served on the petitioner on the same day. The petitioner was also informed to submit the representation at the earliest to the District Magistrate Azamgarh/detaining Authority within 12 days or before approval of the detention order whichever was earlier.

16. The aforesaid detention order was approved by the State Government on 02.08.2022, the communication of which was received on 03.08.2022 and the same was informed on the same day i.e. 03.08.2022. The petitioner submitted a first representation in two sets on 06.08.2022 which was sent to the Office of District Magistrate, Azamgarh on the same day. The aforesaid first representation was rejected on 09.08.2022, the communication of which was received on 10.08.2022 and the same was informed to the petitioner on the same day. The petitioner again submitted a second representation in four sets on 14.08.2022 as to the Advisory Board, Home Department, Government of India, New Delhi and Home department, Government of Uttar Pradesh, Lucknow. The aforesaid second representation dated 14.08.2022 was rejected by the State Government on 29.08.2022, communication of which was received on 30.08.2022 and the petitioner was informed on the same day. The aforesaid representation dated 14.08.2022 was also rejected by the Central Government on 24.08.2022 the communication of which was received on 26.08.2022 and the petitioner was informed on the same day. The petitioner submitted third representation in three sets on 26.08.2022 to the Home Department, Government of India, New Delhi and Home Department Government, of Uttar Pradesh, Lucknow. The aforesaid third representation was rejected by the State Government on 30.09.2022, the communication of which was received on 01.10.2022 and the petitioner was informed on the same day. The aforesaid third representation was rejected by the Central Government on 15.09.2022 and the communication of which was received on 15.09.2022 and the petitioner was informed on the same day.

17. The information regarding hearing before the Advisory Board, Lucknow was received on 17.08.2022 and the petitioner was informed with regard to the date, time and place fixed before the Advisory Board at Lucknow on the very same day. The petitioner was also informed regarding his right of hearing through next friend (non-advocate), but no such request was made. Hence, petitioner was transferred to Lucknow on 21.08.2022 to produce himself before Advisory Board, Lucknow on the date of hearing i.e. on 22.08.2022. After the report of Advisory Board, Lucknow the said detention order was confirmed on 02.09.2022 by the State Government initially for the period of three months from the date of detention i.e. from 25.07.2022. The communication of which received on 03.09.2022 and the petitioner was informed on the very same day. At present the petitioner is in custody in District Jail, Azamgarh under the National Security Act as well as in Case Crime No. 39 of 2022, Case Crime No. 40 of 2022, Case Crime No. 60 of 2022 and Case Crime No. 97 of 2022.

18. On behalf of District Magistrate, Azamgarh counter affidavit has been filed by Vishal Bhardwaj in which it is stated that the detention order and grounds of detention dated 25.07.2022 has been passed by the answering respondent while exercising power under 3(3) of National Security Act. A first information report dated 21.02.2022 in Case Crime No. 39 of 2022 registered by one Vijay Sonkar regarding the death of his father Jhabba Sonkar as a result of consumption of country made liquor purchased from the licensed shop of the petitioner and one other co-villager Ramkaran Bind has also died due to consumption of country made liquor purchased from the shop of the petitioner in which chargesheet has been filed. Another FIR in Case Crime No. 40 of 2022 was also filed for the involvement of the petitioner in the business of adulterated country made liquor in which chargesheet has been filed. Yet another FIR in Case Crime No. 60 of 2022 was filed against the petitioner and co-accused in which chargesheet has been filed. Bail application filed by the petitioner before the learned court below in Case Crime No. 39 of 2022 was rejected on 07.04.2022. The petitioner filed bail application before the Hon'ble High Court. Notice of which was given to the office of Government Advocate High Court of Allahabad on 18.06.2022. Yet another FIR was filed on 07.04.2022 against the petitioner and other co-accused under section 3(1) of UP Gangster and Anti-Social Activities (Prevention) Act 1986 in Case Crime No. 97 of 2022.

19. Due to offence committed by the petitioner public order was disturbed and tranquility of the locality of the petitioner was disturbed and there was immense possibility of release of the petitioner as his bail application was pending before the Hon'ble High Court, therefore, the Station House officer/ sponsoring authority submitted his report to the Superintendent of Police, Azamgarh, through concerned Circle Officer and recommended for initiating the proceedings against the petitioner under National Security Act. The Circle Officer forwarded the report to the Additional Superintendent of Police (rural), Azamgarh, on the same day who forwarded the same to the Superintendent of Police, Azamgarh, on 19.07.2022. The Superintendent of Police, Azamgarh, sent his report dated 21.07.2022 to the District Magistrate, Azamgarh. The answering respondent/detaining Authority after going through the entire material available on record, report of the sponsoring authority and recording his subjective satisfaction passed the detention order dated 25.07.2022 exercising power under section 3(3) of National Security Act. Thereafter, the detention order and grounds of detention dated 25.07.2022 along with relevant records were supplied to the petitioner through Jail, Authorities on 26.07.2022. The petitioner along with other co-accused one was involved in illegal business of adulterated country made liquor and by consuming it seven people died as such activities of the petitioner are prejudicial to the society. Information was given on 17.08.2022 to the petitioner with regard to the opportunity of hearing before UP Advisory Board, Lucknow. The appearance of the petitioner before UP Advisory Board, Lucknow was made for hearing on 22.08.2022.

20. On behalf of State Government of UP counter affidavit has been filed by Sabhapati Bind in which it is stated that detention order dated 25.07.2022, grounds of detention and all other relevant documents forwarded by the District Magistrate, Azamgarh vide order dated 25.07.2022 was received by the State Government on 28.07.2022. The State Government approved the order of detention on 01.08.2022 the same was communicated to the District Authorities on 02.08.2022 within 12 days from the date of detention order as required under section 3(4) of the Act. A copy of detention order, grounds of detention and all other relevant documents, received from the District Magistrate were also sent to the Central Government by the State Government as required under section 3(5) of the Act and provisions of the aforesaid sections of the Act have been fully complied with. A copy of petitioner's representation dated 06.08.2022 along with parawise comments was received on 11.08.2022, State Government sent a copy of the representation with parawise comments thereon to the Central Government, New Delhi through speed post and to the Advisory Board, Lucknow with separate letters both dated 11.08.2022. The State Government after due consideration rejected the representation finally on 23.08.2022 the information of which was sent to the District Authorities on 24.08.2022. Representation of the petitioner has been dealt with expeditiously at every stage of the Government. Copy of the petitioner's second representation dated 14.08.2022 along with parawise comments was received on 18.08.2022. The State Government sent copy of representation and parawise comments thereon to the Central Government and the same was finally rejected on 26.08.2022, informing the same was communicated by radiogram dated 29.08.2022, the representation has been dealt with expeditiously at every stage by the State Government. U.P. Advisory Board, Lucknow vide its letter dated 17.08.2022, informed by State Government that the case of the petitioner would be taken up for hearing on 22.08.2022 and directed that the petitioner be informed that if he desires to attend the hearing before U.P. Advisory Board, Lucknow, along with his next friend (non-Advocate), he could do so and be allowed to take his next friend (non-advocate) along with him. The fact was accordingly communicated to the petitioner through the District Authorities by the State Government. The petitioner appeared for personal hearing before the Advisory Board, Lucknow, on 22.08.2022 the date fixed. The UP and Advisory Board, Lucknow, on the said date fixed, heard the petitioner in person and submitted its report to the State Government that there is sufficient cause for the preventive detention of the petitioner under the National Security Act 1980. The aforesaid report was received well within seven weeks from the date of the detention of the petitioner as provided in section 11(1) of the Act. The copy of the petitioner's representation dated 30.08.2022 was sent to the Central Government with parawise comments and was examined and finally rejected by the State Government on 14.09.2022. The information of which was duly communicated to the petitioner and the representation of the petitioner has been dealt with expeditiously at every stage by the State Government.

21. A counter affidavit has been filed by Smt. Meena Sharma on behalf of the Union of India also stating that copy of the representation dated 06.08.2022 of the detainee was sent to the ministry by the State Government and the same was duly considered and not acceded by the Central Government. Accordingly, the detainee along with Authorities concerned were informed vide wireless message dated 24.08.2022. Details of the processing of the representation has also been given in the counter affidavit. Representation dated 13.08.2022 and 26.08.2022 were duly considered and the request regarding revocation of the detention order dated 25.07.2022 passed by the District Magistrate, Azamgarh was not acceded by the Central Government. The detainee along with Authorities concerned were informed vide wireless message dated 23.09.2022. Details of the processing of the representation has also been given in the counter affidavit. Due to absence of provisions in the Act for consideration of 2nd and 3rd representation, the Deputy Secretary was of the view not to entertain these representation for consideration of the Union Home Secretary, thereafter, with comments sent the file to the Joint Secretary on 07.09.2022. After due examination, representations dated 13.08.2022 and 26.08.2022 were rejected and sent the file back to the Joint Secretary on 22.09.2022 and the detainee and the Authorities concerned were informed vide wireless message dated 23.09.2022. Representations of the detainee were dealt with promptly and efforts were made to examine the matter with utmost care and caution with promptitude, hence, there was no wilful and deliberate delay in disposal of the representations on part of the answering respondent. Action of the respondent no.4 has been in accordance with the provisions of National Security Act, 1980 and no rights of the detainee have been infringed.

22. The detention order has been challenged by means of the instant writ petition mainly on several grounds. The first ground of challenge is that the alleged incident was an offence against individuals which affected "law and order", but it does not affect "public order" so as to attract the provisions of Section 3(2) of the NSA, 1980. The second ground of challenge is that the incident which took place on 20.02.2022 is a stale incident which has no proximity with the detention order and the invocation of the provisions of the NSA, 1980 after a long delay on 25.07.2022 was neither warranted nor justified. The third ground of challenge is that copies of the entire relevant material referred to and relied upon in the detention order have not been provided to the petitioner. The petitioner has been provided only the copy of the index of the bail application in Case Crime No. 39 of 2022, bail application (first four pages) and letter dated 18.06.2022 of the office of Government Advocate of Hon'ble High Court along with detention order dated 25.07.2022. Affidavits and annexures with the bail application have not been furnished to the petitioner nor they have been sent to the State Government as well as Central Government for their perusal. The copies of the report of the District Magistrate and that of the Advisory Board, Lucknow were not provided to the petitioner as also comments on the said applications have not been provided to the petitioner in violation of the principles of natural justice, which renders the detention order unsustainable in law. The fourth ground of challenge is that petitioner has not been given aid of legal friend/legal practitioner at the time of hearing despite a request made for the same. The fifth ground of the challenge is that State Government as well as Central Government have not dealt with representation made by the petitioner with expedition which is the violation of Constitutiona safeguards provided in favour of the petitioner. Lastly the detention order has been assailed on the ground that on 25.07.2022, i.e. on the date of passing of the detention order, the petitioner was already in custody and he had not even filed an application for bail in Case Crime No. 97 of 2022 under the U.P. Gangsters and Anti-Social Activities (Prevention) Act and there was no possibility of the petitioner acting in any manner prejudicial to the maintenance of public order and in these circumstances, the provisions of Section 3(2) of the NSA, 1980 are not attracted and the detention order is unsustainable in law.

23. In support of his submissions, Shri Daya Shankar Mishra, learned Senior Advocate has placed reliance on the judgments in the cases of Ichhu Devi Choraria Vs. 24. Opposing the writ petition, Shri Patanjali Mishra and Shri Satyendra Tiwari, learned A.G.A. have submitted that there is no thumb rule that the preventive detention can be ordered only if a bail application is pending. Its genesis lies under Article 22 of the Constitution of India. However, normally preventive detention is ordered only when a bail application is pending. As the petitioner was already in custody in several criminal cases, instant proceedings under the NSA, 1980 was invoked.

25. He has submitted that whether the case involves a threat to maintenance of "public order" or "law and order" depends upon the facts of each case and the order of preventive order has to be passed by the detaining Authority on the basis of his subjective satisfaction in this regard. Mr. Patanjali has submitted that the incident took place by which the public at large suffered the cons of consumption of adulterated liquor and resultantly several people lost their lives. Out of fear and terror caused by the anti-social activities of the petitioner and co-accused, the parents refrained from sending their kids to schools and nearby shops were closed, therefore, it involves breach of public order and not merely a law and order. He has submitted that the detention order under NSA, 1980 can be passed in any of the following conditions: (a) if the accused is not in custody or when he is in custody (b) the detaining authority is satisfied that he may be enlarged on bail (c) where no bail application is pending.

26. Sri Patanjali Mishra has further submitted that even if the Court comes to the conclusion that the relevant material was not provided to the petitioner, it would not affect the validity of the detention order because the detention order has been passed on many grounds and not on one. Section 5 A of the NSA, 1980 provides that the detention order shall not be deemed to be invalid or inoperative merely because one or some of the grounds for passing the detention order is vague, non-existent, not relevant, not connected or not proximately connected with such person or invalid for any other reason, whatsoever. There is a live and proximate link between the incident and the detention order passed after recording the subjective satisfaction based on the material collected and forwarded by the sponsoring Authority to the detaining Authority. The impugned order is valid, there is no illegality therein as the mandatory procedure as envisaged in the Constitution as well as N.S.A. Act has been complied with in letter and spirit.

27. Sri Patanjali Mishra has placed reliance on judgments rendered in Baby Devassy Chully alias Bobby Vs. Union of India and others, (2013) 4 SCC 531, Arun Ghosh Vs. West Bengal, 1970 SC 1228, Alijan Miya Vs. District Magistrate, 1983 SC 1130 and K.K. Saravana Vs. State of Tamil Nadu, (2008) 9 SCC 89 and Kamarunnissa Vs. Union of India and another, AIR 1991 SC 1640.

28. Shri Kameshwar Singh, learned counsel appearing for the Central Government has advanced his submissions opposing the writ petition and he has tried to justify the detention order. He has further submitted that representations submitted and forwarded on behalf of the detenu have decided and rejected without laches and negligence with expedition. He has placed reliance on Devesh Chourasia Vs. The District Magistrate, Jabalpur and Ors., WP No. 10177/2021 in The High Court of Madhya Pradesh (Indore Bench) Decided On: 24.08.2021 and Pankaj Vs. State of U.P. and others, 2016 1 Crimes (HC) 8.

29. The question of personal liberty of a person is sacrosanct and State Authority cannot be permitted to take it away without following the procedure prescribed by law, otherwise it would be violative of the fundamental rights guaranteed under Articles 21 and 22 of the Constitution of India.

Article 21 of The Constitution Of India 1949 is as follows :-

21. Protection of life and personal liberty- No person shall be deprived of his life or personal liberty except according to procedure established by law.

Article 22 of the Constitution provides specific protections to undertrials and detainees in India. The framers of the Constitution, who were also our freedom fighters, were conscious of founding a polity that secured civil and political freedoms to its citizens. Dr B. R. Ambedkar, while proposing the article, noted the necessity of retaining the concept of preventive detention "in the present circumstances of the country". However, the discontinuity from the colonial regime lay in the introduction of strict countervailing measures that ensured that "exigency of liberty of the individual is not placed above the interests of the State" in all cases.

The specific provisions relating to preventive detention under Article 22 were framed in the following terms:

(4) No law providing for preventive detention shall authorise the detention of a person for a longer period than three months unless --

(a) an Advisory Board consisting of persons who are, or have been, or are qualified to be appointed as, Judges of a High Court has reported before the expiration of the said period of three months that there is in its opinion sufficient cause for such detention:

Provided that nothing in this sub-clause shall authorise the detention of any person beyond the maximum period prescribed by any law made by Parliament under sub-clause (b) of clause (7); or

(b) such person is detained in accordance with the provisions of any law made by Parliament under sub-clauses (a) and (b) of clause (7).

(5) When any person is detained in pursuance of an order made under any law providing for preventive detention, the authority making the order shall, as soon as may be, communicate to such person the grounds on which the order has been made and shall afford him the earliest opportunity of making a representation against the order.

(6) Nothing in clause (5) shall require the authority making any such order as is referred to in that clause to disclose facts which such authority considers to be against the public interest to disclose.

(7) Parliament may by law prescribe--

(a) the circumstances under which, and the class or classes of cases in which, a person may be detained for a period longer than three months under any law providing for preventive detention without obtaining the opinion of an Advisory Board in accordance with the provisions of sub-clause (a) of clause (4);

(b) the maximum period for which any person may in any class or classes of cases be detained under any law providing for preventive detention; and

(c) the procedure to be followed by an Advisory Board in an inquiry under sub-clause (a) of clause (4)."

The text of Article 22 enshrines certain procedural safeguards, many of which are otherwise available in the Cr.P.C. In elevating these safeguards to a constitutional status, the framers imposed a specific "limitation upon the authority both of Parliament as well as State Legislature to not abrogate" rights that are fundamental to India's constitution. Dr Bakshi Tek Chand, a conscientious dissenter to preventive detention in peaceful times, proposed a further safeguard in the provision of a right to make representation to the detenu, which was eventually accepted by the Constituent Assembly as a reasonable compromise. Therefore, preventive detention in independent India is to be exercised with utmost regard to constitutional safeguards.

This history of the framing of Article 22 is critical for the judiciary's evaluation of a detenu's writ petition alleging, inter alia, a denial of the timely consideration of his representation. Therefore the failure of the Central Government and the State Government to consider his representation of the detenu in a timely manner is most relevant.

Article 22(5) of the Constitution mandates that (i) the authority making the order shall "as soon as may be" communicate the grounds on which the order has been made to the person detained; and (ii) the detaining authority shall afford to the person detained "the earliest opportunity of making a representation against the order" Clause 5 of Article 22 incorporates a dual requirement: first, of requiring the detaining authority to communicate the grounds of detention as soon as may be; and second, of affording to the detenu "an earliest opportunity" of making a representation. Both these procedural requirements are mutually reinforcing. The communication, as soon as may be, of the grounds of detention is intended to inform the detenu of the basis on which the order of detention has been made. The expression "as soon as may be" imports a requirement of immediacy.

The communication of the grounds is in aid of facilitating the right of the detenu to submit a representation against the order of detention. In the absence of the grounds being communicated, the detenu would be left in the dark in regard to the reasons which have led to the order of detention. The importance which the constitutional provision ascribes to the communication of the grounds as well as the affording of an opportunity to make a representation is evident from the use of the expression "as soon as may be" in the first part in relation to communicating the grounds and allowing the detenu "the earliest opportunity" of availing of the right to submit a representation. Article 22(5) reflects a keen awareness of the framers of the Constitution that preventive detention leads to the detention of a person without trial and hence, it incorporates procedural safeguards which mandate an immediacy in terms of time. The significance of Article 22 is that the representation which has been submitted by the detenu must be disposed of at an early date. The communication of the grounds of detention, as soon as may be, and the affording of the earliest opportunity to submit a representation against the order of detention will have no constitutional significance unless the detaining authority deals with the representation and communicates its decision with expedition.

30. As the detention order dated 25.07.2022 is passed under the provisions of National Security Act, the Objects and Reasons behind passing of the Act is also relevant for the purpose of scrutiny and examination of the impugned order, which reads as follows :

"The National Security Act, 1980 was enacted to provide for preventive detention in certain cases and for matters connected therewith. The statement of objects and reasons reflects the circumstances which prevailed upon the Parliament to enact the law. These were : "In the prevailing situation of communal disharmony, social tensions, extremist activities, industrial unrest and increasing tendency on the part of various interested parties to engineer agitation on different issues, it was considered necessary that the law and order situation in the country is tackled in a most determined and effective way. The anti-social and anti-national elements including secessionist, communal and pro-caste elements and also other elements who adversely influence and affect the services essential to the community pose a grave challenge to the lawful authority and sometimes even hold the society to ransom. Considering the complexity and nature of the problems, particularly in respect of defence, security, public order and services essential to the community, it is the considered view of the Government that the administration would be greatly handicapped in dealing effectively with the same in the absence of powers of preventive detention. The National Security Ordinance, 1980, was, therefore, promulgated by the President on September 22, 1980. Subject to a modification, the Bill seeks to replace the aforesaid ordinance. The modification relates to the composition of Advisory Boards and is for providing that the Chairman of an Advisory Board shall be a person who is, or has been, a Judge of a High Court and the other members of the Advisory Board may be persons who are, or have been, or are qualified to be appointed as Judges of a High Court."

31. The provisions of the NSA subscribe to the mandate of Article 22(5). Section 3(4) contains a requirement that once an order of detention has been made, the officer making the order must forthwith report the fact to the State Government, together with the grounds on which the order has been made and other particulars which have a bearing on the matter. No such order should remain in force for more than twelve days, unless it has been approved by the State Government. In the meantime, this period is subject to the proviso which stipulates that where the grounds of detention are communicated by the officer after five days (under Section 8) but not later than ten days from the date of the detention, sub-section (4) will apply as if the words fifteen days stands substituted for twelve days. Upon the State Government either making or approving the order under Section 3, it is under a mandate under Section 3(5) to report the fact to the Central Government within seven days, together with the grounds on which the order has been made and other necessary particulars.

32. Section 8 of the NSA contains statutory provisions governing the disclosure of the grounds of detention. Section 8 is in the following terms:

8. Grounds of order of detention to be disclosed to persons affected by the order.--(1) When a person is detained in pursuance of a detention order, the authority making the order shall, as soon as may be, but ordinarily not later than five days and in exceptional circumstances and for reasons to be recorded in writing, not later than [ten days] from the date of detention, communicate to him the grounds on which the order has been made and shall afford him the earliest opportunity of making a representation against the order to the appropriate Government. (2) Nothing in sub-section (1) shall require the authority to disclose facts which it considers to be against the public interest to disclose.

As noticed earlier, Article 22(5) of the Constitution provides for the communication of the grounds on which the order of detention has been made by the detaining authority "as soon as may be". Section 8(1) uses the expression "as soon as may be", qualifying it with the requirement that the communication of grounds should ordinarily not be later than five days and, in exceptional circumstances, for reasons to be recorded in writing not later than ten days from the date of detention. Section 8(1) also embodies the second requirement of Article 22(5) of affording to the detenu the earliest opportunity of making a representation against the order to the appropriate government.

Section 10 mandates a reference to the Advisory Board constituted under the provisions of Section 9:

10. Reference to Advisory Boards.--Save as otherwise expressly provided in this Act, in every case where a detention order has been made under this Act, the appropriate Government shall, within three weeks from the date of detention of a person under the order, place before the Advisory Board constituted by it under section 9, the grounds on which the order has been made and the representation, if any, made by the person affected by the order, and in case where the order has been made by an officer mentioned in sub-section (3) of section 3, also the report by such officer under sub-section (4) of that section." Under Section 10, the appropriate government has to place the grounds on which the order of detention has been made within three days from the date of detention of the person together with a representation, if any, made by the person affected by the order. The Advisory Board, under the provisions of Section 11, has to submit its report to the appropriate government within seven weeks from the date of detention order after considering the relevant materials. It may call for further information from the appropriate government, or any person, or even the person concerned if they desire an opportunity to be heard in person.

Action on the report of the Advisory Board falls within the ambit of Section 12:

12. Action upon the report of the Advisory Board.--

(1) In any case where the Advisory Board has reported that there is, in its opinion, sufficient cause for the detention of a person, the appropriate Government may confirm the detention order and continue the detention of the person concerned for such period as it thinks fit.

(2) In any case where the Advisory Board has reported that there is, in its opinion, no sufficient cause for the detention of a person, the appropriate Government shall revoke the detention order and cause the person concerned to be released forthwith.

When the Advisory Board has reported that in its opinion there is a sufficient cause for the detention of a person, the appropriate government may approve an order of detention and continue the detention of the person for such period as it thinks fit. On the other hand, where the Advisory Board reports that in its opinion there is insufficient cause for detention, the appropriate government shall revoke the detention order and cause the person to be released forthwith.

Section 14 provides for the revocation of detention orders in the following terms:

14. Revocation of detention orders.--

(1) Without prejudice to the provisions of section 21 of the General Clauses Act, 1897 (10 of 1897), a detention order may, at any time, be revoked or modified,--

(a) notwithstanding that the order has been made by an officer mentioned in sub-section (3) of section 3, by the State Government to which that officer is subordinate or by the Central Government;

(b) notwithstanding that the order has been made by a State Government, by the Central Government.

(2) The expiry or revocation of a detention order (hereafter in this sub-section referred to as the earlier detention order) shall not [whether such earlier detention order has been made before or after the commencement of the National Security (Second Amendment) Act, 1984 (60 of 1984) bar the making of another detention order (hereafter in this sub-section referred to as the subsequent detention order) under section 3 against the same person:

Provided that in a case where no fresh facts have arisen after the expiry or revocation of the earlier detention order made against such person, the maximum period for which such person may be detained in pursuance of the subsequent detention order shall, in no case, extend beyond the expiry of a period of twelve months from the date of detention under the earlier detention order.

In terms of clause (a) and (b) of sub-section (1) of Section 14, both the State Government and the Central Government have the power to revoke an order of detention.

33. We shall now proceed to analyse the facts of the present case. At the outset, we would like to note that our analysis is limited to the grounds of challenge made by the appellant and the detention order dated 25.07.2022 passed by the District Magistrate/ Detaining Authority, the extension orders passed and the rejection of the first representations made by the appellant.

In Ayya alias Ayub v. State of U.P. & Anr., AIR 1989 SC 364, this Court held that the law of preventive detention is based and could be described as a "jurisdiction of suspicion" and the compulsion of values of freedom of democratic society and of social order sometimes might compel a curtailment of individual's liberty.

Whether subjective satisfaction of the detinue authority and detention order can be subjected to the judicial scrutiny, it has been held by the Apex Court in Vijay Narain Singh Vs. State of Bihar (1984) 3 SCC 14, which is as follows :-

"the view that "those who are responsible for the national security or for the maintenance of public order must be the sole judges of what the national security or public order requires" It is too perilous a proposition. Our Constitution does not give a carte blanche to any organ of the State to be the sole arbiter in such matters. Preventive detention is considered so treacherous and such an anathema to civilised thought and democratic polity that safeguards against undue exercise of the power to detain without trial, have been built into the Constitution itself and incorporated as Fundamental Rights. There are two sentinels, one at either end. The Legislature is required to make the law circumscribing the limits within which persons may be preventively detained and providing for the safeguards prescribed by the Constitution and the courts are required to examine, when demanded, whether there has been any excessive detention, that is whether the limits set by the Constitution and the Legislature have been transgressed. Preventive detention is not beyond judicial scrutiny.

In Rekha v. State of T.N., (2011) 5 SCC 244, a three-Judge Bench of this Court spoke of the interplay between Articles 21 and 22 as follows:

"13. In our opinion, Article 22(3)(b) of the Constitution of India which permits preventive detention is only an exception to Article 21 of the Constitution. An exception is an exception, and cannot ordinarily nullify the full force of the main rule, which is the right to liberty in Article 21 of the Constitution. Fundamental rights are meant for protecting the civil liberties of the people, and not to put them in Jail, for a long period without recourse to a lawyer and without a trial.

"29. Preventive detention is, by nature, repugnant to democratic ideas and an anathema to the rule of law. No such law exists in the USA and in England (except during war time). Since, however, Article 22(3)(b) of the Constitution of India permits preventive detention, we cannot hold it illegal but we must confine the power of preventive detention within very narrow limits, otherwise we will be taking away the great right to liberty guaranteed by Article 21 of the Constitution of India which was won after long, arduous and historic struggles. It follows, therefore, that if the ordinary law of the land (the Penal Code and other penal statutes) can deal with a situation, recourse to a preventive detention law will be illegal."

30. Whenever an order under a preventive detention law is challenged one of the questions the court must ask in deciding its legality is: was the ordinary law of the land sufficient to deal with the situation? If the answer is in the affirmative, the detention order will be illegal. In the instant case the charge against the detainee is of selling adulterated country made liquor after consumption of which seven innocent people lost their lives. Surely, there are ample provisions in IPC as well as Exice Act etc. to deal with such a situation, hence, in the opinion of the Court the detention order in question is unsustainable in law.

20. Keeping in mind the aforesaid dictum of the Hon'ble Supreme Court, we proceed to examine the grounds of challenge to the validity of the detention order dated 25.07.2022. The first ground of challenge is that the alleged incident was an offence against individuals which affected "law and order", but it does not affect "public order" so as to attract the provisions of Section 3 (2) of the NSA, 1980.

34. Dr Ram Manohar Lohia v. State of Bihar (1966) 1 SCR 709 ; Pushkar Mukherjee v. State of W.B. WP No. 179 of 1968, decided on November 7, 1968 : (1969) 1 SCC 10 and Shyamal

Chakraborty v. Commissioner of Police, Calcutta WP No. 102 of 1969, decided on August 4, 1969 : (1969) 2 SCC 426. In Dr Ram Manohar Lohia case [(1966) 1 SCR 709] this Court pointed out the difference between maintenance of law and order and its disturbance and the maintenance of public order and its disturbance. Public order was said to embrace more of the community than law and order. Public order is the even tempo of the life of the community taking the country as a whole or even a specified locality. Disturbance of public order is to be distinguished from acts directed against individuals which do not disturb the society to the extent of causing a general disturbance of public tranquility. It is the degree of disturbance and its affect upon the life of the community in a locality which determines whether the disturbance amounts only to a breach of law and order. Take for instance, a man stabs another. People may be shocked and even disturbed, but the life of the community keeps moving at an even tempo, however much one may dislike the act.

It means therefore that the question whether a man has only committed a breach of law and order or has acted in a manner likely to cause a disturbance of the public order is a question of degree and the extent of the reach of the act upon the society.

In Dr Ram Manohar Lohia case examples were given by Sarkar and Hidayatullah, JJ. They show how similar acts in different contexts affect differently law and order on the one hand and public order on the other. It is always a question of degree of the harm and its affect upon the community. The question to ask is: Does it lead to disturbance of the current of life of the community so as to amount a disturbance of the public order or does it affect merely an individual leaving the tranquility of the society undisturbed? This question has to be faced in every case on facts. There is no formula by which one case can be distinguished from another."

35. The petitioner is alleged to have committed the offence by selling adulterated country made liquor, consuming the same seven people died. There is nothing on record to suggest that the petitioner had inclination or tendency to commit the same offence in future also. It is true that we cannot sit in appeal over the satisfaction of the detaining authority but the satisfaction of the detaining authority must be based on material on the basis of which a reasonable person could come to the same kind of satisfaction. The material which was taken into account by the detaining authority in the instant case relates to a single incident of sale of adulterated country made liquor. There was no material before the detaining authority, nor any such material has been placed before the Court to suggest that the petitioner if not detained would have indulged into similar activities of sale of adulterated country made liquor.

36. The law which has emerged from the precedents on this point is that public order is said to embrace more of the community than law and order. Public order is the even tempo of the life of the community taking the country as a whole or even a specified locality. The contravention of law always affects order but before it can be said to affect public order, it must affect the community or the public at large. Disturbance of public order is to be distinguished from acts directed against individuals which do not disturb the society to the extent of causing a general disturbance of public tranquility. It is the degree of disturbance and its effect upon the life of the community in a locality which determines whether the disturbance amounts only to a breach of law and order or a disturbance to public order. It means therefore that the question whether a person has only committed a breach of law and order or has acted in a manner likely to cause a disturbance of the public order is a question of degree and the extent of the reach of the act upon the society, which depends the facts of each particular case.

37. Applying the principles which emerge from the aforesaid precedents to the facts of the present case, we find that the allegation against the petitioner is that certain people purchased liquor from the license shop of the petitioner which was adulterated one, consuming the same seven people became blind and during treatment they died. Therefore, the offence was directed against individuals and not against the society. The alleged act directed against individuals was in violation of law, which obviously disturbed the order in the locality for some time. This conduct may be reprehensible and punishable, for which the petitioner is being prosecuted and tried in accordance with the penal statutes. But it does not add up to the situation where it may be said that the community at large was disturbed by the petitioner's act and there was a breach of public order or likelihood of a breach of public order.

38. Moreover, the detention order contains a bald averment that in case the petitioner comes out on bail, he may again indulge in crime but neither there is any reasonable basis to record this apprehension nor is there any averment that the apprehended activity would be prejudicial to public order and, therefore, it is necessary to detain him with a view to prevent him from acting in any manner prejudicial to the maintenance of public order. This power can be exercised only if the detaining authority on the basis of the past prejudicial conduct of the detenu is satisfied about the probability of the detenu acting similarly in future. This means that the past activity of the detenu on the basis of which such a prognosis is made must be reasonably suggestive of a repetitive tendency or inclination on the part of the detenu to act likewise in future, which is clearly missing in the present case.

39. Therefore, in our opinion, the act allegedly committed by the petitioner on 20.02.2022 did not cause a disturbance of public order as it did not disturb the society to the extent of causing a general disturbance of public tranquility and the single act of sale of adulterated country made liquor was not suggestive of a repetitive tendency or inclination on the part of the petitioner to act likewise in future so as to justify invocation of powers under Section 3 (2) of the NSA, 1980. The order of preventive detention passed under Section 3 (2) of the Act is unsustainable for this reason.

40. Now we proceed to examine the second ground of challenge, i.e. that the incident which took place on 20.02.2022 is a stale incident which is not proximate to the time when the detention order was passed on 25.07.2022 and there was no live link between the alleged prejudicial activity and the purpose of detention and for this reason, the invocation of the provisions of the NSA, 1980 after a long delay of about 5 months was neither warranted nor justified.

41. Sri. D. S. Misra, learned Senior Advocate appearing for the petitioner has placed reliance on the following dictum of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case Ali Jaan Miyan Vs. District Magistrate, Dhanbad: -

".....when there is undue and long delay between the prejudicial activities and the passing of detention order, the Court has to scrutinise whether the detaining authority has satisfactorily explained such a delay and afforded a tenable and reasonable explanation as to why such a delay has occasioned, when called upon to answer and further the court has to investigate whether the casual connection has been broken in the circumstances of each case."

42. In the instant case, the offence was committed on 20.02.2022 and the detention order was passed on 25.07.2022. No explanation is forthcoming in the return while the petitioner has been continuously in jail since 23.02.2022. In these circumstances, we are of the opinion that the live link between the alleged incident and the detention order is snapped and there is no proximity between the crime committed and the order of detention."

43. In Shalini Soni v. Union of India, the Hon'ble Supreme Court while examining the validity of a detention order held as follow:-

".....It is an unwritten rule of the law, constitutional and administrative, that whenever a decision making function is entrusted to the subjective satisfaction of a statutory functionary, there is an implicit obligation to apply his mind to pertinent and proximate matters only, eschewing the irrelevant and the remote....."

44. In the present case, the incident in question took place on 20.02.2022, the petitioner was arrested on 23.02.2022, he was lodged in Jail, on 23.02.2022 and he was continuing to be in custody till now, meaning thereby the petitioner was already in jail on the date on which the impugned order of prevention was passed. The incident which occurred on 20.02.2022, i.e. about 5 months prior to passing of the detention order, is certainly a stale incident which is not proximate to the time when the detention order dated 25.07.2022 was passed and there was no live link between the alleged prejudicial activity and the purpose of detention and the invocation of the provisions of the NSA, 1980 against the petitioner after a long delay of about five months was neither warranted nor justified.

45. The next ground of challenge to the detention order is that copies of the entire material referred to and relied upon for the detention order have not been provided to the petitioner. None of the affidavits and grounds of bail relating to Case Crime Nos. 40 of 2022 and 60 of 2022 which have been mentioned in the detention order coupled with grounds of detention order dated 25.07.2022 have not been provided to the petitioner. Petitioner has been provided with only the copy of the index of the bail application in Case Crime No.39 of 2022, bail application (4 pages) and letter dated 18.06.2022 of the office of Government Advocate of Hon'ble High Court along with detention order dated 25.07.2022. Affidavits and annexures with the bail application have not been furnished to the petitioner nor they have been sent to the State Government as well as Central Government for their perusal. The copies of the report of the District Magistrate and that of the Advisory Board, Lucknow were not provided to the petitioner as also comments on the said applications have not been provided to the petitioner, which vitiates the detention order.

46. An opportunity to make a representation against the order of detention necessarily implies that the detenu is informed of all that has been taken into account against him in arriving at the decision to detain him. It means that the detenu is to be informed not merely, of the inferences of fact but of all the factual material which have led to the inferences of fact. If the detenu is not to be so informed the opportunity so solemnly guaranteed by the Constitution becomes reduced to an exercise in futility. Whatever angle from which the question is looked at, it is clear that "grounds" in Article 22(5) do not mean mere factual inferences but mean factual inferences plus factual material which led to such factual inferences. The "grounds" must be self-sufficient and self-explanatory. In our view copies of documents to which reference is made in the "grounds" must be supplied to the detenu as part of the "grounds". It would not therefore be sufficient to communicate to the detenu a bare recital of the grounds of detention, but copies of the documents, statements and other materials relied upon in the grounds of detention must also be furnished to the detenu within the prescribed time subject of course to clause (6) of Article 22 in order to constitute compliance with clause (5) of Article 22. One of the primary objects of communicating the grounds of detention to the detenu is to enable the detenu, at the earliest opportunity, to make a representation against his detention and it is difficult to see how the detenu can possibly make an effective representation unless he is also furnished copies of the documents, statements and other materials relied upon in the grounds of detention. There can therefore be no doubt that on a proper construction of clause (5) of Article 22, it is necessary for the valid continuance of detention that subject to clause (6) of Article 22, copies of the documents, statements and other materials relied upon in the grounds of detention should be furnished to the detenu along with the grounds of detention or in any event not later than five days and in exceptional circumstances and for reasons to be recorded in writing, not later than fifteen days from the date of detention. If this requirement of clause (5) of Article 22 read with Section 3 sub-section (3) is not satisfied, the continued detention of the detenu would be illegal and void.

47. It is immaterial whether the detenu already knew about their contents or not. In Mehrunissa v. State of Maharashtra [(1981) 2 SCC 709] it was held that the fact that the detenu was aware of the contents of the documents not furnished was immaterial and non-furnishing of the copy of the seizure list was held to be fatal. To appreciate this point one has to bear in mind that the detenu is in Jail, and has no access to his own documents. In Mohd. Zakir v. Delhi Administration [(1982) 3 SCC 216], it was reiterated that it being a constitutional imperative for the detaining authority to give the documents relied on and referred to in the order of detention pari passu the grounds of detention, those should be furnished at the earliest so that the detenu could make an effective representation immediately instead of waiting for the documents to be supplied with. The question of demanding the documents was wholly irrelevant and the infirmity in that regard was violative of constitutional safeguards enshrined in Article 22(5).

48. In Khudiram Das v. State of West Bengal [(1975) 2 SCC 81] this Court held that where the liberty of the subject is involved it is the bounden duty of the court to satisfy itself that all the safeguards provided by the law have been scrupulously observed and that the subject is not deprived of his personal liberty otherwise than in accordance with law. The constitutional requirement of Article 22(5), is that all the basic facts and particulars which influenced the detaining authority in arriving at the requisite satisfaction leading to making the detention order must be communicated to the detenu so that the detenu may have an opportunity of making an effective representation against the order of detention:

49. It is, therefore, not only the right of the court, but also its duty as well, to examine what are the basic facts and materials which actually in fact weighed with the detaining authority in reaching the requisite satisfaction. The judicial scrutiny cannot be foreclosed by a mere statement of the detaining authority that it has taken into account only certain basic facts and materials and though other basic facts and materials were before it, it has not allowed them to influence its satisfaction. The court is entitled to examine the correctness of this statement and determine for itself whether there were any other basic facts or materials, apart from those admitted by it, which could have reasonably influenced the decision of the detaining authority and for that purpose, the court can certainly require the detaining authority to produce and make available to the court the entire record of the case which was before it. That is the least the court can do to ensure observance of the requirements of law by the detaining authority.

50. In the present case, the petitioner was arrested on 23.02.2022 and he was lodged in Jail, on the same date and he was continuing to be in custody till now, the date on which the impugned order of detention was passed he was already in custody. Although the detention order makes a reference to Case Crime No. 39 of 2022, Case Crime No. 40 of 2022, Case Crime No. 60 of 2022 and Case Crime No. 97 of 2022. But he has been supplied with only copy of index of bail application in Case Crime No. 39 of 2022, bail application (4 pages) and letter dated 18.06.2022 of the Office of Government Advocate of High Court along with detention order dated 25.08.2022. Other papers along with the affidavits and annexures of the bail application have not been supplied with. The Court has to bear in mind that the petitioner is in Jail, and has no access to his own documents. It is immaterial whether the petitioner knew about the facts of Case Crime Nos. and the contents of his bail application or not. The bail application contained the grounds for bail and it has been referred to by the detaining authority. Therefore, the Court is unable to accept the submission of Sri Patanjali Mishra that the aforesaid documents were not relevant material and non-supply of the same would not have any legal effect on the order of detention. Therefore, the non-supply of the vital and important documents to the petitioner, vitiates the detention order and its legal consequence is bound to follow.

51. The fourth ground of challenge is that despite the request made by the petitioner he is not being given the aid of legal friend/ legal practitioner. It has been specifically averred in the petition that he has made a request for legal friend and legal practitioner at the time of hearing before Advisory Board, Lucknow, but the same has not been considered. In the counter affidavit of District Magistrate/detaining Authority and the State Government there is no denial of the fact that they have not availed the facility of legal practitioner at the time of hearing before the Advisory Board, Lucknow, though there is no order of Advisory Board, Lucknow available on record which might have been placed by the State Government or by District Magistrate/ detaining Authority. In absence of the same it can convently be inferred that State Government and the District Magistrate/ detaining Authority availed the facilities of legal practitioners while the petitioner was deprived of the same despite specific request made for the same through the first representation made to the Authorities concerned. Thus, there is a violation Article 14 of the Constitution of India which vitiates the impugned detention order.

52. Fifth ground of the challenge of the detention order is that under the Constitution as well as NSA Act there are certain safeguards which have to be observed while dealing with the representation made by the petitioner on the part of the State Government and the Central Government. In the counter affidavit filed on behalf of the State Government mention that representation dated 06.08.2022 of the petitioner was received on 11.08.2022 and the same was rejected after consideration on 23.08.2022, second representation dated 24.08.2022 was rejected on 26.08.2022. The representation dated 30.08.2022 was examined and finally decided on 14.09.2022. In the counter affidavit of the Central Government it is stated that representation dated 06.08.2022 was not acceded and information of which was given on 24.08.2022. Representation dated 13.08.2022 and 26.08.2022 were duly considered and were rejected and information was sent vide wireless message dated 23.09.2022. From the aforesaid counter affidavit, there appears no plausible explanation of delay on the part of the Central Government of the period between 17.08.2022 to 24.08.2022. The representation of petitioner dated 06.08.2022 was rejected by the State Government on 23.08.2022 of which there is no plausible explanation available on record. Therefore, unexplained delay on the part of the Government in dealing with representation made by the petitioner is violative of Constitutional safeguards provided to the petitioner in this regard, and the detention order vitiates on this ground also.

53. Now we come to the last ground of challenge to the detention orders that on 25.07.2022, i.e. on the date of passing of the detention order, the petitioner was already in custody and he had not even filed an application for Bail in Case Crime No. 97 of 2022 under the U. P. Gangsters and Anti-Social Activities (Prevention) Act and there was no possibility of the petitioner acting in any manner prejudicial to the maintenance of public order and in these circumstances, the provisions of Section 3 (2) of the NSA, 1980 are not attracted and the detention order is unsustainable in law.

54. It is clear that if a person concerned is in custody and there is no imminent possibility of his being released, the rule is that the power of preventive detention should not be exercised. From a perusal of Apex Court's pronouncements, it is clear that even in the case of a person in custody a detention order can validly be passed (1) if the authority passing the order is aware of the fact that he is actually in custody; (2) if he has reason to believe on the basis of reliable material placed before him (a) that there is real possibility of his being released on bail and, and (b) that on being so released he would in all probability indulge in prejudicial activity; and (3) if it is felt essential to detain him to prevent him from so doing. If the authority passes an order after recording his satisfaction in his behalf, such an order cannot be struck down on the ground that the proper course for the authority was to oppose the bail and if bail is granted notwithstanding such opposition to question the same before a higher Court.

55. Keeping in view the fact that the petitioner was already in Jail, in a case under Sections 2/3 of the Uttar Pradesh Gangsters and Anti-Social Activities (Prevention) Act, 1986, that he had not filed an application for bail in the aforesaid case before the Hon'ble High Court and that even when he would file an application for bail, he would not be released on bail unless (a) the Public Prosecutor is given an opportunity to oppose the application for such release, and (b) the Court is satisfied that there are reasonable grounds for believing that he is not guilty of such offence and that he is not likely to commit any offence while on bail, it cannot be accepted that there was any material for recording the satisfaction of the detaining authority that with a view to preventing the petitioner from acting in any manner prejudicial to the maintenance of public order it was necessary to detain the petitioner under the NSA, 1980. The satisfaction that it is necessary to detain the petitioner for the purpose of preventing him from acting in a manner prejudicial to the maintenance of public order is thus, the basis of the order under section 3 (2) of the NSA, 1980 and this basis is clearly absent in the present case. Therefore, the detention order dated 25.07.2022 is unsustainable in law on this ground also.

56. In view of the aforesaid discussion, the present Writ Petition is allowed. The impugned order dated 25.07.2022 passed by the District Magistrate, Azamgarh ordering detention of the petitioner Rangesh Yadav under Section 3 (2) of the NSA, 1980 is hereby quashed. The Respondents are commanded to release the petitioner from detention under the aforesaid order dated 25.07.2022 forthwith if not wanted in any other case.

A. Civil Law - Code of Civil Procedure, 1908-Section 115 - Transfer of Property Act, 1882-Section 106- Uttar Pradesh Urban Buildings (Regulation of Letting, Rent and Eviction) Act, 1972-Section 21- Eviction-Maintainability of-Co-owner whether being a family member or not has full right to file suit for eviction in case not objected by other co-owners-Partition of property in dispute is not necessary requirement for filing a suit for eviction so far as tenant is concerned-It is only between co-owners and in the present case, co-owners are having no dissent on point of filing of suit for eviction nor having any dispute of partition-Only requirement for filing of suit for eviction is about relationship of landlord and tenant and service of notice- in the present case, undisputedly, till date, no partition has taken place in accordance with sale deed executed on 29.01.2019-In the sale deed, consent of co-owner is not recorded for filing of suit for eviction and nothing is mentioned about the tenancy-Suit for eviction is maintainable.(Para 1 to 44)

B. Ownership imports three essential rights, namely, right to possession, right to enjoy and right to dispose. If an owner is wrongly deprived of possession of his property he has a right to be put in possession thereof. All the three essentials are satisfied in the case of co-owner of a land. All coowners have equal rights and co-ordinate interest in the property, though their shares may be either fixed or indeterminate. Every co-owner has a right to enjoyment and possession equal to that of the other co-owner or co-owners. Each co-owner has, in theory interest in every infinitesimal portion of the subject matter and each has the right, irrespective of the quantity of his interest, to be in possession of every part and parcel of the property, jointly with others. (Delivered by Hon'ble Neeraj Tiwari, J.)

1. Heard Sri Rohan Gupta, learned counsel for the revisionist and Sri Prakhar Tondon, learned counsel for the opposite party.

Present revision has been filed with the following prayers:

"It is, therefore, Most respectfully prayed that this Hon'ble Court may graciously be pleased to allow the aforesaid revision and set aside the impugned order dated 07.02.2023 and the consequential decree dated 14.02.2023, passed by the Additional District Judge, Court No. 08, Kanpur Nagar in O.S. No. 73 of 2019; failing which the Revisionist shall suffer irreparable loss and injury."

It is also prayed that the Hon'ble Court may kindly be pleased to stay the effect and operation of the impugned order dated 07.02.2023 and the consequential decree dated 14.02.2023, passed by the Additional District Judge, Court No. 08, Kanpur Nagar in O.S. No. 73 of 2019."

2. Since, only legal question is involved in this matter, therefore, with the consent of parties without inviting for affidavits, the matter is being decided at the admission stage itself.

3. Learned counsel for the revisionist submitted that revisionist-defendant was a tenant of Sri Kailash Nath Agarwal and after the death of Sri Kailash Nath Agarwal, his property was inherited by his two sons, viz, Sri Pankaj Agarwal and Sri Rakesh Kumar Agarwal. Thereafter, the revisionist-defendant became tenant of Sri Pankaj Agarwal. Pankaj Agarwal has sold out half of the portion of the building, which was in his share to Smt. Usha Sharma, i.e. plaintiff-opposite party, who is not a family member of Sri Pankaj Agarwal.

4. He next submitted that after execution of sale deed dated 29.01.2019, plaintiff-opposite party has filed S.C.C. Suit for eviction of house in question after giving notice to revisionist-defendant under Section 106 of Transfer of Property Act, 1882(hereinafter, referred to as, 'Act of 1882').

5. He next submitted that after execution of sale deed dated 29.01.2019, partition of property in question has not taken place and without partition, it cannot be ascertained as to which part of the property, opposite party-co-owner is having right to enter upon, in case of being ranked outsider and not a family member. Plaintiff-opposite party is having no right to enter upon into the property in dispute without partition, therefore, for filing the suit for eviction, the first action required on the part of plaintiff-opposite party is to file a partition suit and obtain possession of property in question and then file a suit for eviction.

6. He next submitted that plaintiff-opposite party is a co-owner, but an outsider, therefore, she cannot file suit for eviction without consent of another co-owner, i.e. Rakesh Kumar Agarwal, who is co-owner and also in occupation of half portion of the property. He also submitted that without obtaining possession over the purchased part of the property, she cannot file suit for eviction and in the present case, undisputedly, till date, no partition has taken place in accordance with sale deed executed on 29.01.2019. In the sale deed, consent of co-owner, i.e. Rakesh Kumar Agarwal is not recorded for filing of suit for eviction and nothing is mentioned about the tenancy.

7. In support of his contention, Sri Rohan Gupta, learned counsel for the revisionist-defendant has placed reliance upon judgment of High Court of Bombay in the matter of Abdul Hamid Vs. Bhuwaneshwar Prasad: AIR 1950 Nagpur 18, judgment of High Court of Madhya Pradesh in B.P. Pathak, Vs. Dr. Ryazuddin: AIR 1976 Madhya Pradesh 55, followed by the Apex Court in the case of Nalakath Sainuddin Vs. Koorikadan Sulaiman: (2002) 6 SCC 1, judgment of Apex court in the matter of Kochkunju Nair Vs. Koshiy Alexander and Others: (1999) 3 SCC 482 and Ramdas Vs. Sitabai And Others: (2009) Supreme Court Cases 444.

8. He lastly reiterated that, once it is undisputed that plaintiff-opposite party-co-owner is not a family member, no consent of another co-owner for filing the suit for eviction, no explanation about the tenancy, no partition took place, therefore, no suit for eviction may be filed.

9. Per contra, Sri Prakhar Tondon, learned counsel for the opposite party has opposed the submission made by learned counsel for the revisionist and submitted that there is no dispute on the point that plaintiff-opposite party is a co-owner of the house in question. He also submitted that notice dated 12.07.2019 under Section 106 of the Act of 1988 has been served upon the revisionist-defendant with specific averment of ownership, which was not denied in its reply dated 16.07.2019 by revisionist-defendant.

10. He also submitted that even in the written submission, co-ownership has been very well accepted. Therefore, once the notice is sufficient, landlord-tenant relationship is accepted, suit is very well maintainable on behalf of co-owner.

11. In support of his contention, learned counsel for the opposite party placed reliance upon judgments of this Court in Civil Revision No. 500 of 2012 (Khalil Ahmad Vs. Anis Ahmad), Writ A No. 5091 of 2013 (Nizamuddin Vs. Smt. Bushara Khatoon and Others), Civil Revision No. 55 of 2013 (Subhash Chandra huf Thru karta And Anr. vs. Ajay Gupta) and S.C.C. Revision No. 544 of 2014 (U.P. State Handloom Corporation Ltd. And Anr. Vs. Smt. Rashmi Arora).

12. He next submitted that, so far as contention of learned counsel for the revisionist-defendant that co-owner, being the outsider cannot file suit for eviction is concerned, is having no substance as not based upon any Rule or law laid down by the Court.

13. He firmly submitted that co-owner has full right to file suit for eviction under the Act of 1882 and even after filing of suit, revisionist-defendant has never taken this objection in written statement and further co-owner, i.e. Sri Rakesh Kumar Agarwal has also never filed any impleadment opposing the suit for eviction filed by the plaintiff-opposite party. Once, revisionist-defendant has not taken this objection in his written statement and also not produced any evidence showing dissent of co-owner (Sri Rakesh Kumar Agarwal) from the plaintiff-respondent, this plea cannot be accepted.

14. In support of his contention, he placed reliance upon the judgment of Apex Court in Tmt. Kasthuri Radhakrishnan & Ors. Vs. M. Chinniyar & Anr.: 2016 0 Supreme(SC) 87 and submitted that in this case, Apex Court is of the firm view that the co-owner is having full right to file suit for eviction. Therefore, there is no illegality in the order impugned and revision is liable to be dismissed.

15. He also pointed out that in the sale deed dated 29.01.2019, it is clearly mentioned that lessor has given full right of mutation to plaintiff-opposite party in present as well as in future, therefore it includes right to file suit for eviction also. In light of that, the contention of learned counsel for the revisionist that in sale deed, nothing has been mentioned about the consent and tenancy, cannot be accepted.

16. I have considered rival submissions made by learned counsel for the parties and perused the record as well as judgments relied upon by the counsel for the parties.

17. Undisputed facts of case is that earlier revisionist-defendant was a tenant of Sri Kailash Nath Agarwal and after his death, his property was inherited by his two sons, viz, Sri Pankaj Agarwal and Sri Rakesh Kumar Agarwal. Pankaj Agarwal has sold out half of the property, which was in his share, to Smt. Usha Sharma, plaintiff-opposite party vide sale deed dated 29.01.2019. Smt. Usha Sharma, plaintiff-opposite party has, thereafter, filed S.C.C. Suit No. 73 of 2019 after giving notice to revisionist-defendant under Section 106 of Act of 1882. Sri Rakesh Kumar Agarwal, another son of Lt. Sri Kailash Nath Agarwal and co-owner of the property in dispute has never raised any objection for filing of suit for eviction by plaintiff-opposite party, who became a co-owner of the property in dispute after purchasing the share of Sri Pankaj Agarwal.

18. The main issue before the Court is to decide as to whether in case the plaintiff-opposite party is not a family member, she can file a suit for eviction without consent of another co-owner or not.

19. The first judgment relied upon by the learned counsel for the revisionist is Abdul Hamid (Supra), which says that in case of joint hindu family, a notice is sufficient by the Manager, but here the argument of learned counsel for the revisionist is that plaintiff-opposite party is not a family member, therefore she has no right to file a suit for eviction. Relevant paragraph of the said judgment is quoted hereinbelow:

"5. In a recent decision in - 'Vagha v. Manilal', AIR 1935 Bom. 262, Broomfield J. held that where the landlord's rights belong jointly to several persons, a suit to eject a tenant can only be brought by all the co-owners suing jointly as plaintiffs. In - 'Krishna Bhima v. Laxmibai', AIR 1938 Bom. 316 the question which arose for decision was whether a notice given by a manager of a joint Hindu family was sufficient to terminate the tenancy and there, while the decision in - 'Blaji Bhikaji v. Gopal', 3 Bom. 23 was relied on, it was said that such a notice was sufficient to terminate the tenancy. This case is different from the present because here it has not been alleged and shown that the notice given by the plaintiff was on behalf of himself and the heirs of Ghulam hussain. In the circumstances, I hold that the suit was rightly dismissed."

20. This judgment is not applicable in the case of the revisionist-defendant for the very simple reason that the issue before the Court was different in this case. The issue was as to whether a manager of joint hindu family can send a notice to terminate tenancy or not and here the case is as to whether a co-owner not being a family member can file a suit for eviction or not. Therefore, this judgment is of no use in the present controversy.

21. The Second judgment relied upon by the learned counsel for the revisionist is B.P. Pathak(Supra), a judgment of High Court of Madhya Pradesh, which has also been affirmed by the Apex court in the matter of Nalakath Sainuddin(Supra). Relevant paragraphs of the said judgment are quoted hereinbelow:

"23. In B.P. Pathak Vs. Dr. Riyazuddin & Ors., AIR 1976 MP 55, a Division Bench of the High Court of Madhya Pradesh consisting of Chief Justice P.K. Tare and Justice Shiv Dayal (later, Chief Justice), took the view on an illuminating survey of judicial opinion that a transferee of a part of leased property acquires "all the rights" of the lessor in respect of that part as if it alone had comprised the lease and a new relationship is created between the transferee and the lessee. The section creates a statutory attornment substituting, but retaining the same effect of, the contractual attornment. Title of the assignee is complete on execution of the deed of assignment and is not postponed till the notice of the assignment. The Division Bench repelled the submission that since the lessor could not have terminated the tenancy of a part of the demised premises by a notice to quit, he cannot transfer the premises in part and confer such a right on the transferee. The Division Bench held that the right of ejectment is inherent in ownership. Therefore, by virtue of Section 109 of T.P. Act such transferee is entitled to evict the tenant from the part transferred to him not only when the lease had been determined before the transfer but also if it is determined after the transfer in any of the circumstances mentioned in Section 111. Thus he can terminate by a quit notice the lease in respect of the property transferred to him.

24. The Division Bench decision came up for consideration by a Full Bench of the same High Court in Sardarilal Vs. Narayanlal, AIR 1980 MP 8. Chief Justice G.P. Singh, speaking for the Full Bench, approved the statement of law in B.P. Pathak's case and held that Section 109 of T.P. Act confers a right on the owner to effect a severance of a lease by his unilateral act and tenancy over a part of the property leased can be determined by the transferee."

22. From the perusal of the abovesaid judgment, it is apparently clear that at no point of time, right of co-owner has been questioned, so far as filing of suit for eviction is concerned rather the Court has held that right of ejectment is inherent in the ownership. Therefore, this judgment does not come in the rescue of revisionist-defendant, but favours the opposite party-plaintiff.

23. The third judgment relied upon by the learned counsel for revisionist-defendant is Kochkunju Nair (Supra). Relevant paragraph of the said judgment is quoted hereinbelow:

"9. Ownership imports three essential rights, namely, right to possession, right to enjoy and right to dispose. If an owner is wrongly deprived of possession of his property he has a right to be put in possession thereof. All the three essentials are satisfied in the case of co-owner of a land. All coowners have equal rights and co-ordinate interest in the property, though their shares may be either fixed or indeterminate. Every co-owner has a right to enjoyment and possession equal to that of the other co-owner or co-owners. Each co-owner has, in theory interest in every infinitesimal portion of the subject matter and each has the right, irrespective of the quantity of his interest, to be in possession of every part and parcel of the property, jointly with others. (vide Mitras Co-ownership and Partition, Seventh Edn.)"

24. From the perusal of above said paragraph of the judgment, it is clear that the above case deals with the essential rights of ownership and it has been held that other co-owner has a right to enjoyment of possession equal to that of other co-owner/co-owners. Here, the dispute is not between two co-owners, but between an undisputed co-owner and a tenant. Argument of learned counsel for the revisionist-defendant, that co-owner being an outsider cannot file a suit for eviction, is not getting any support from the above judgment rather it is helping the plaintiff-opposite party by holding that each co-owner has equal right to enjoyment of possession.

25. The fourth judgment relied upon by the learned counsel for the revisionist-defendant is Ramdas (Supra), which is of no use in the present case as it may occupy the filed in case there is dispute between two co-owners, but here is a dispute is between an undisputed co-owner and a tenant.

26. Learned counsel for the opposite party-plaintiff has placed reliance on the judgment of U.P. State Handloom Corporation Ltd (Supra). Relevant paragraph of the said judgment is quoted hereinbelow:

"In the case of Modh Haneef vs. Sunil Tuli AIR 2009 ALL (NOC) 2180, it has been held that where the relationship of landlord and tenant stand proved and the tenancy is determined under section 106 of the Transfer of Property Act, nothing more is required for decreeing the suit for eviction in respect of building which is not covered by the provisions of U.P. Act No. 13 of 1972 when the notice of determination of tenancy is valid and is duly served."

27. From the perusal of the above said judgment, it clearly transpires that that once landlord-tenant relationship stands proved and tenancy is determined under Section 106 of the Act of 1882, nothing more is required. In the present case, landlord-tenant relationship is not disputed neither service of notice is insufficient.

28. The same ratio of law was followed by this Court in Nizamuddin (Supra), Khalil Ahmad (Supra) and Subhash Chandra (Supra).

29. The another issue, which was argued by the learned counsel for the revisionist-defendant is that a co-owner being an outsider has no right to file a suit for eviction without the consent of other co-owner.

30. This matter was also for consideration before the Apex Court in Civil Appeal No. 1263 of 2006: Mohinder Prasad Jain Vs. Manohar Lal Jain. Relevant paragraph of the said judgment is quoted hereinbelow:

"7. Having heard the learned counsel for the parties we are satisfied that the appeals are liable to be dismissed. It is well settled that one of the co-owners can file a suit for eviction of a tenant in the property generally owned by the co-owners. (See Sri Ram Pasricha v. Jagannath [(1976) 4 SCC 184] and Dhannalal v. Kalawatibai [(2002) 6 SCC 16], SCC para 25.) This principle is based on the doctrine of agency. One co-owner filing a suit for eviction against the tenant does so on his own behalf in his own right and as an agent of the other co-owners. The consent of other co-owners is assumed as taken unless it is shown that the other co-owners were not agreeable to eject the tenant and the suit was filed in spite of their disagreement. In the present case, the suit was filed by both the co-owners. One of the co-owners cannot withdraw his consent midway the suit so as to prejudice the other co-owner. The suit once filed, the rights of the parties stand crystallised on the date of the suit and the entitlement of the coowners to seek ejectment must be adjudged by reference to the date of institution of the suit; the only exception being when by virtue of a subsequent event the entitlement of the body of co-owners to eject the tenant comes to an end by act of parties or by operation of law"

"8. A suit filed by a co-owner, thus, is maintainable in law. It is not necessary for the coowner to show before initiating the eviction proceeding before the Rent Controller that he had taken option or consent of the other co-owners. However, in the event, a co-owner objects thereto, the same may be a relevant fact. In the instant case, nothing has been brought on record to show that the co-owners of the respondent had objected to eviction proceedings initiated by the respondent herein. The submission of the learned counsel for the appellant to the effect that before initiating the proceedings, the appellant was required to show that he had experience in running the business in Ayurvedic medicine, has to be stated to be rejected. There is no law which provides for such a pre-condition. It may be so where a licence is required for running a business, a statute may prescribe certain qualifications or pre-conditions without fulfilment whereof the landlord may not be able to start a business, but for running a wholesale business in Ayurvedic medicine, no qualification is prescribed. Experience in the business is not a pre-condition under any statute. Even no experience therefor may be necessary. If the respondent has proved his bona fide requirement to evict the appellant herein for his own purpose, this Court may not, unless an appropriate case is made out, disturb the finding of fact arrived at by the Appellate Authority and affirmed by the High Court."

31. From the perusal of the said judgment, it is apparently clear that in this matter, the Court has taken a firm view that a co-owner has full right to file suit for eviction in case not objected by other co-owner.

32. This Court has again considered the same issue in the matter of Rajendra Prasad and others Vs. District Judge, Allahabad and others: 64 ALR 879 (ALL). Relevant paragraphs of the said judgment are quoted hereinbelow:

"6. The revision of the tenant has been allowed by the impugned judgment solely on the ground that one co-owner could not bring a suit against the tenant and therefore, it was not maintainable. This Court is of the view that the reason for which the revisional court has allowed the revision is clearly against the settled position of law. A suit for eviction of tenant can be brought by one of the co-owner. A co-owner is as much an owner of the property as any sole owner of a property is. The Hon'ble Supreme Court has held in the case of Sri Ram Pasricha Vs. Jagannath and others reported in (1976) 4, S.C.C. 184 as quoted hereunder :-

"Para 27. Jurisprudentially, it is not correct to say that a co-owner of a property is not its owner. He owns every part of the composite property along with others and it cannot be said that he is only a part-owner or a fractional owner of the property. The position will change only when partition takes place. It is, therefore, not possible to accept the submission that the plaintiff who is admittedly the landlord and co-owner of the premises is not the owner of the premises within the meaning of Section 13 (1) (f). It is not necessary to establish that the plaintiff is the only owner of the property for the purpose of Section 13 (1) (f) as long as he is a co-owner of the property being at the same time as the acknowledged landlord of the defendants."

7. The aforesaid case related to the provisions of the West Bengal Premises Tenancy Act 1956 wherein section 13 (1) (f) contained the words "if he is the owner" with respect to requirement of the premises by the landlord for his own occupation. In the case of M/s India Umbrella Manufacturing Co. (Supra) the Hon'ble Supreme Court while considering the situation where both the co-owners filed the suit and midway one of the co-owners withdrew his consent, it was held that one of the co-owners can file a suit for eviction of a tenant in the property generally owned by the co-owners. Paragraph no.6 of the judgment is quoted hereunder :

"Having heard the learned counsel for the parties we are satisfied that the appeals are liable to be dismissed. It is well settled that one of the co-owners can file a suit for eviction of a tenant in the property generally owned by the co-owners. (See Sri Ram Pasricha V. Jagannath and others, Dhannalal vs. Kalawatibai and others). This principal is based on the doctrine of agency. One co-owners filing a suit for eviction against the tenant does so on his own behalf in his own right and as an agent of the other co-owners. The consent of other co-owners is assumed as taken unless it is shown that the other co-owners were not agreeable to eject the tenant and suit was filed in spite of their disagreement. In the present case, the suit was filed by both the co-owners. One of the co-owners cannot withdraw his consent midway the suit so as to prejudice the other co-owners. The suit once filed, the rights of the parties stand crystallized on the date of the suit and the entitlement of the co-owners to seek ejectment must be adjudged by reference to the date of institution of the suit; the only exception being when by virtue of a subsequent even the entitlement of the body of co-owners to eject the tenant comes to an end by act of parties or by operation of law."

8. From the above it is clear that a co-owner can bring a suit for eviction of the tenant unless it was shown that the other co-owners were not agreeable to the ejectment of the tenant.

9. U.P. Act No. 13 of 1972 has not given the definition of owner but landlord has been defined in Section 3 (j) as quoted here under :-

"landlord" in relation to a building means a person to whom its rent is or if the building, were let would be, payable, and includes, except in clause (g), the agent or attorney, of such person."

10. Rule 15 of the U.P. Urban Building (Regulation of Letting, Rent and Eviction) Rules 1972 requires that an application for release of the premises should be signed by all the landlords. This question has since been settled by a decision of a Full Bench of this Court in the case of Gopal Dass and another Vs. Ist A.D.J. reported in (198) (1) ARC 281 wherein this Court held in paragraph 17 as quoted hereunder :-

"So far as the applicability of this Rule to the present case is concerned, there is no problem. Murlidhar Shah who has brought the action for eviction of the premises in question is undoubtedly the landlord. He has signed the application. He alone is competent to sign the application. However, we may point out that the requirement of Rule 15 (2) that an application for release of premises owned by co-owners should be signed by all co-owners would be invalid. One co-owner is competent to maintain an action for eviction of the tenant of the entire premises, since he can be considered as a landlord within the meaning of Section 3 (j) of the Act. One Co-owner alone would be competent to sign such an application.""

33. Considering various judgments, this Court is of the same view that a co-owner has full right to file suit for eviction, in case objection has not raised by other co-owner.

34. This issue was again before the Apex Court in the matter of FGP Limited Vs. Saleh Hooseini Doctor and Another: 2009 SCC Online SC 1643. Relevant paragraphs of the said judgment are quoted hereinbelow:

"37. It has been urged by the learned counsel for the appellant that in the Suit which has been filed by the respondents they have not asserted that they are filing it as coowners but they have claimed that they are filing it as executors/executrix. So they cannot now meet the challenge of maintainability of the Suit on the ground that it was filed by the respondents as coowners. It is not possible to accept the aforesaid contention in the facts of this case. This Court is of the opinion that if the status of the respondents as co-owners of the property transpires clearly from the admitted facts of the case, they cannot be denuded of the said status at the instance of some objections by the tenants. Normally, a tenant's right to question the title of a landlord is very limited in view of rule of law which is codified in Section 116 of the Indian Evidence Act.

44. The principles which have been affirmed in Mohinder Prasad Jain (supra) are that one co-owner filing a suit for eviction against the tenant does so on his own behalf in his own right and as an agent of the other coowners. In this matter, the consent of other co-owners is assumed as taken unless it is shown that the other co-owners were not agreeable to eject the tenant and the suit was filed in spite of their disagreement. (See para 10 page 727 of the report). It is nobody's case here that other co-owners are objecting to the filing of the suit in question."

35. In this case, the Apex Court is of the same view that a co-owner has full right for filing a suit for eviction unless objected for doing so by the other co-owner.

36. The same issue was also subject matter before this Court in Sheel Chand Jain Vs. Arun Kumar Tadiya and Others: (2014) 103 ALR 303. Relevant paragraphs of the said judgment are quoted herein below:

"9. However, one aspect left open for consideration, was a situation where some of the co-owners want to continue the tenant contrary to relief claimed by one co-owner, instituting proceeding.

10. Both the above decisions have been considered and followed in Pal Singh Vs. Sunder Singh and others, AIR 1989 SC 758. The Court, however, explained the situation and said other co-owner when did not object to eviction, one co-owner can maintain an action for eviction, even in absence of other co-owners. This is evident from para 10 of the judgment where the Court said:

"This in our opinion falls within the ratio of Kama Goel v. B.P. Pathak (supra) where this Court clearly held that when the other co-owner did not object to the eviction one co-owner could maintain an action for eviction even in the absence of other co-owner. Here also Smt. Sham Kaur and her heirs did not object to the claim for eviction made by the respondents herein. In that view of the matter and in the circumstances of this case, we are of the opinion that the ratio of the said case will apply and this suit will be maintainable even in the absence of all the owners to the eviction proceedings."

11. The dictum in Sri Ram Pasricha (supra) was followed in Subhendu Prosad Roy Choudhury and others Vs. Kamala Bala Roy Choudhury and others, AIR 1978 SC 835 in the context of quit notice given by one co-owner (landlord) to tenant and the Court said:

"Even assuming that notice was not given on behalf of one of the co-owner landlords, the decision of this Court is Sri Ram Pasricha v. Jagannath and Ors. Would show that yet the notice was good and valid."

12. A Division Bench of this Court followed the above dictum in Rang Nath Vs. State of U.P., 1984 ARC 642 and the correctness of aforesaid decision was considered by Full Bench in Gopal Das and another Vs. Ist Additional District Judge, Varanasi and others, AIR 1987 All 261. The Full Bench approved dictum laid down in Rang Nath (supra) by observing in para 11 as under:

"11. In view of these decisions, there can, therefore, be little doubt as to the maintainability of the action for eviction brought by one co-owner without impleading the other co-owners. The view taken in Devi Charan's case 1980 UPLT NOC 143 cannot be said to have laid down the correct law and it is overruled. The view taken in Ranga Nath's case (1984 All LJ 455 is correct and we reiterate the same."

13. It is also worthy to notice that Rule 15(2) of U.P. Urban Buildings

(Regulation of Letting, Rent and Eviction) Rules, 1972 (hereinafter referred to as the "Rules, 1972") provides, if there are more than one landlord, the application shall be signed by all the landlords. Construing the aforesaid provision in the context of co-owners, the Full Bench in para 16 of the judgment said, if this Rule is to be pressed in the case of co-owners, it shall be invalid since even one co-owner is competent to sign application and filed it. The relevant part of para 16 reads as under:

11. "However, we may point out that the requirement of Rule 15(2) that an application for release of premises owned by co-owners should be signed by all co-owners would be invalid. One co-owner is competent to maintain an action of eviction of the tenant of the entire premises, since he can be considered as a landlord within the meaning of Section 3(i) of the Act. One co-owner alone would be competent to sign such an application."

14. In other words when one comes to seek some relief, the law in presenti, is where the building has several co-owners, in absence of partition, even one co-owner can maintain proceedings for eviction of tenant(s) unless such eviction proceedings are objected to by other co-owners individually or collectively, as the case may be, expressing their intention to keep tenancy continue.

37. The Court after considering different judgments has clearly held that a co-owner has full right to maintain a suit for eviction unless other co-owner raise any objection for the same.

38. The another judgment relied upon by the learned counsel for the plaintiff-opposite party is Tmt. Kasthuri Radhakrishnan(Supra). Relevant paragraph of the said judgment is quoted hereinbelow:

"It is well settled by at least three decisions of this Court, namely, Sri Ram Pasricha v. Jagannath (1976) 4 SCC 184 Kanta Goel v. B.P. Pathak, (1977) 2 SCC 814 and Pal Singh v. Sunder Singh, (1989) 1 SCC 444 that one of the co-owners can alone and in his own right file a suit for ejectment of the tenant and it is no defence open to the tenant to question the maintainability of the suit on the ground that the other co-owners were not joined as parties to the suit. When the property forming the subject-matter of eviction proceedings is owned by several owners, every co-owner owns every part and every bit of the joint property along with others and it cannot be said that he is only a part-owner or a fractional owner of the property so long as the property has not been partitioned. He can alone maintain a suit for eviction of the tenant without joining the other co-owners if such other co-owners do not object. In Sri Ram Pasricha case reliance was placed by the tenant on the English rule that if two or more landlords institute a suit for possession on the ground that a dwelling house is required for occupation of one of them as a residence the suit would fail; the requirement must be of all the landlords. The Court noted that the English rule was not followed by the High Courts of Calcutta and Gujarat which High Courts have respectfully dissented from the rule of English law. This Court held that a decree could be passed in favour of the plaintiff though he was not the absolute and full owner of the premises because he required the premises for his own use and also satisfied the requirement of being "if he is the owner", the expression as employed by Section 13(1)(f) of the W.B. Premises Tenancy Act, 1956."

39. From the perusal of the above paragraph, it transpires that in this judgment, the Apex Court while considering many judgments, has clearly held that a co-owner has full right for filing a suit for eviction in case other co-owner/s do not object.

40. In the present case, co-owner Sri Rakesh Kumar Agarwal has never raised any objection for filing of suit for eviction by plaintiff-opposite party, Smt. Usha Sharma. Even after filing of suit, co-owner has never taken any objection and has never filed any impleadment application opposing the suit for eviction. Therefore, in light of law laid down by the Apex Court, though co-owner being an outsider, has full right for filing suit for eviction.

41. So far as argument of learned counsel for the revisionist-defendant about the co-owner not being a family member of other co-owner is concerned, in the eyes of law, though co-owners not being the family members, it does not make any difference and each co-owner has full right to file suit for eviction. There is no such Rule or law laid down by the Courts, which provides that in case of co-owners being family members have different better right than that of co-owners not being family members.

42. In light of discussion made herein above, this Court is of the firm view that once by the virtue of valid document, co-ownership is obtained, any co-owner can maintain suit for eviction equally as to whether he is a family member or not unless not objected by the other co-owner.

43. Another argument by learned counsel for the petitioner-defendant about the partition of property for filing suit for eviction is concerned, that is also having no force. Petitioner-defendant being a tenant has no concern with the partition of property in dispute and it is between the co-owners. Tenant has no business to raise such objection and it is only open for co-owners. Again this Court is of the firm view that tenant has no right to raise issue of partition in eviction suit.

44. Therefore, in light of facts and judgments discussed herein above, this Court is of the firm view that co-owner whether being a family member or not has full right to file suit for eviction in case not objected by other co-owners. Partition of property in dispute is not necessary requirement for filing a suit for eviction so far as tenant is concerned. It is only between the co-owners and in the present case, co-owners are having no dissent on the point of filing of suit for eviction nor having any dispute of partition. The only requirement for filing suit for eviction is about the relationship of landlord and tenant and service of notice, which is not disputed in the present case. Therefore this Court finds no good reason to interfere with the impugned order dated 07.02.2023.

45. Therefore, revision lacks merit and is accordingly dismissed.

46. No order as to costs.

3. By way of this transfer application under Section 24 of the Civil Procedure Code 1908, the following prayer has been made:-

“(a) Withdraw Civil Suit No.353 of 2022 from the Court of Civil Judge (Senior Division), Mathura to this Hon'ble Court for Trial in exercise of the powers under Section 24(1)(b) of Code of Civil Procedure, 1908;

(b) Direct to withdraw all suits of similar nature to this Hon'ble Court on the basis of list of cases which may be supplied by Ld. District Judge, Mathura to this Hon'ble Court;

(c) Pass such other order(s) as this Hon'ble Court may deem fit and proper under the facts and circumstances of the case.”

4. The application is supported by affidavit with details of facts of the suit (original suit no.353 of 2022) and for sake of convenience, it would be relevant that a brief sketch of chronological development up to this stage may be narrated.

5. Bare perusal of the record of this transfer application reflects and proceeds on line that the applicants filed civil suit for declaration, injunction and right to worship at the site of Shri Krishna Janmasthan and also removal of the present structure alleged to be Shahi Eidgah Mosque. The suit was registered as misc. case no.176 of 2020 in the court of the Civil Judge (Senior Division), Mathura.

6. It is worth mentioning that the filing of the aforesaid suit was under circumstances wherein by way of the suit some compromise decree passed earlier between parties, to that particular suit was challenged on ground of collusion between the parties of the suit by the present applicants and the alleged compromise dated 12.10.1968 and based upon that the decree passed was stated to be sham and fraud, thus the decree passed by way of aforesaid compromise was claimed to be null and void. It being so, the aforesaid suit was registered by the Civil Judge (Senior Division), Mathura as civil misc. case no.176 of 2020 on 25.09.2020. However, the aforesaid misc. proceeding / suit was dismissed by the learned Civil Judge (Senior Division), Mathura vide order dated 30.09.2020, holding that the worshipers had no right to file the suit, their number were in lakhs as worshipers of Lord Krishna and in case suit is entertained, a large number of cases may be filed / instituted, copy of the plaint has been brought on record (annexure no.1).

7. The applicant aggrieved by the aforesaid order dated 30.09.2020 of the Civil Judge (Senior Division), Mathura, preferred civil appeal no.17 of 2020 before the learned District Judge, Mathura, which was admitted by it vide order of the District Marthura, dated 16.10.2020. Later on this appeal was converted into civil revision no.2 of 2021. The parties were heard in the civil revision and vide judgment and order dated 19.05.2022, the revision was allowed and the matter was remanded to the trial court with direction to proceed in accordance with law. Consequently, the proceeding started afresh by the Civil Judge (Senior Division), Mathura, and the suit was numbered as civil suit no.353 of 2022.

8. However, in the meanwhile it so happened that the respondent nos.1 and 2 – U.P. Sunni Central Waqf Board and Trust Shahi Masjid Eidgah, challenged the aforesaid order of the District Judge, dated 19.05.2022 (passed in civil revision no.2 of 2021) filing the petition under Article 227 of the Constitution of India, Numbered 5967 of 2022 and 5348 of 2022, both the sides were heard by the coordinate Bench of this Court and the petition was disposed of vide order dated 01.05.2023, the last paragraph of which is extracted hereinbelow:-

“In the light of above, both the petitions are disposed by remanding the matter back to the Trial Court with directions to adjudicate the Civil Suit No.353 of 2022 after following due procedure as per law without being influenced by any observation or findings of the District Judge vide impugned order dated 19.05.2022. All the parties are free to raise all their contentions before the trial Court.”

9. In the light of above order, it is apparent that the order dated 19.05.2022 passed by the District Judge, Mathura, in civil revision no.2 of 2021 was sustained. However, the various findings recorded by the District Judge, Mathura touching upon the merit of the suit itself was set aside, for specific reason that any finding on merit can be recorded only after the written statement is filed, issues framed thereon, evidence adduced and after discussion of facts and law applicable, finding to be recorded by the trial court thereon.

10. While coming back to the averments elaborated in this transfer application, it proceeds with the import that the matter involved here has historical background and it involves interest and sentiments of public at large, requires interpretation of various statutes, laws, Acts and ARTICLES of the Constitution of India. The matter is highly sensitive and inter-alia relates to belief and faith of crores of devotees of Lord Krishna. The matter is of national importance and substantial questions of law involved in the suit. In fact, the complicated questions of law concerning a large section of society having its impact on the entire nation are required to be decided by the highest court of the State.

11. The aforesaid suit also involves, explicitly and by implication determination of questions relating to history, scriptures, interpretation of Hindu and Muslim law and it being so, the present suit (no.353 of 2022) is standing entirely on different footing unlike the normal civil suit as such of exceptional nature.

12. The averments contained in the transfer application proceed on to claim that the suit no.353 of 2022 was filed on

25.09.2020, thereafter, a number of suits have been filed and are pending in the court of the Civil Judge (Senior Division), Mathura. The applicant has furnished details of such suits in paragraph no.7 of this transfer application which comprises list of as many as nine cases, a brief reference of the same becomes relevant;

(i) Civil Suit 950 of 2020 Thakur Keshavji Maharaj Vs. Intizamiya Committee

(ii) Civil Suit 107 of 2021 Thakur Keshavji Maharaj Vs. Intizamiya Committee

(iii) Civil Suit 151 of 2021 Bhagwan Shri Krishna Virajmaan Vs. Sunni Central Waqf Board

(iv) Civil Suit 152 of 2021 Bhagwan Shri Krishna Virajmaan Vs. U.P. Sunni Central Waqf Board

(v) Civil Suit 252 of 2021 Thakur Keshavji Maharaj Vs. U.P. Sunni Central Waqf Board

(vi) Civil Suit 174 of 2021 Keshav Dev Ji Maharaj Vs. U.P. Sunni Central Waqf Board

(vii) Civil Suit 620 of 2021 Bhagwan Bal Shri Krishna Keshav Dev Virajmaan Vs. U.P. Sunni Central Waqf Board

(viii) Civil Suit 683 of 2021 Gopal Giri Maharaj Vs. U.P. Sunni Central Waqf Board,

All the aforesaid eight cases are stated to be pending in the court of the Additional Civil Judge (Senior Division), Mathura. However, the last case being ninth case described in the list of suits given in the transfer application is stated to have been pending in the court of the 3rd Additional Civil Judge (Senior Division) Mathura, with relevant detail:-

Bhagwan Bal Shri Krishna Virajman Vs.
Intezamia Masjid Shahi Masjid.

Janmbhoomi and the plaintiffs are claiming right to worship and removal of the present
Shahi Eidgah Masjid.

13. However, the gravity of the issue involved and the large and wide background of the case has been tried to be equated with the case of the Ram Janam Bhoomi pertaining to Ayodhya and specific plea has been raised that this Court vide order dated 10.07.1989 was pleased to transfer all suits pertaining to Ayodhya dispute consequent upon which, the suits (alike in nature) were tried by this Court (High Court) and decided vide judgment and order dated 30.09.2010. It proceeds further with claim that an appeal was preferred against the aforesaid order and the matter was finally adjudicated upon by the five Judges Bench of the Hon'ble Apex Court vide judgment and order dated 09.11.2019 [2020 (1) SCC 1].

14. Based upon aforesaid averments, specific plea is raised that in case the suit is decided by the trial court itself, it will take long time. However, the matter needs be decided expeditiously to save the time of the litigant parties and to serve the interest of justice.

15. In support of his claim, learned counsel for the applicants proceeds on to say that under prevailing facts and circumstances of this peculiar suit, the same may be conveniently withdrawn by virtue of provision under Section 24 of the Civil Procedure Code, 1908 which empowers the higher Courts to try the suit after withdrawing it from the lower court concerned. The suit requires consideration by higher court which admittedly has vision broad and wide.

16. The point in issue involved in the suit for adjudication relates to Shri Krishna

17. One of the grounds urged for exercise powers under Section 24 of the C.P.C. revolves around the axis to the ambit that the Civil Judge has not worked properly while the suit was initially preferred / instituted while exercising powers under Order 7 Rule 11 C.P.C. touching upon those issues which might not have been touched at this stage. While the applicants were pursuing remedy against outcome of order of the trial court dated 30.09.2020 as many as nine suits were filed and duly registered by the Civil Judge (Senior Division), Mathura and due to that, for the past three years the suit has not progressed any further.

18. Learned counsel for the applicants has explained the historical and religious nature of the suit and claimed that the history of 'Karagar' (jail) of Kans wherein Lord Krishna incarnated in human form, is sacred and divine for the Hindu devotees. It is a deity worshiped by the Hindu devotees. The 'Karagar' of 'Kans' at present is located beneath the alleged Shahi Eidgah Masjid and by explaining these aspects to some length, the learned counsel for the applicant has endeavoured to bring to the notice of this Court the various complicated questions which are involved and call for adjudication of the same in the present suit. Some of these complicated questions were stated to be interpretation, validity and applicability of places of worship Act 1991, interpretation / applicability of Waqf Act 1995, rights of Hindu deity under Hindu Law and under Article 25 of the Constitution of India and interpretation of Article 25, 26 and 300 A of the Constitution of India. Moreover, it involves adjudication on point of birth place – 'Asthan', as deity, the rights and duty of Shebait under Hindu Law and rights of Hindu devotees where Shebait has been negligent and the property of the deity has been alienated/transferred against the law, decree obtained by fraud and challenged by Hindu devotees, adjudication upon distinction between Waqf and Trust, and apart from all above point of applicability and interpretation of law of adverse possession.

19. Learned counsel has asserted that the aforesaid substantial questions would arise before the trial court. Therefore, the original trial may be conducted by this Court. After describing the factual background, the learned counsel claimed that sensitive / sentimental issues of national and public importance between and among people are involved which need be properly scrutinized and adjudicated upon.

20. At this juncture, it would be relevant to take note of objection raised by the respondents, however, before proceeding further, it would be desirable to state that respondent no.3 has no objection to the forum of litigation, he is interested only in expeditious disposal of the case / suit. Therefore, no special objection has been raised by the respondent no.3.

21. Noticeable that respondent no.1 while rebutting the plea of the applicant is specific to the point that the only reason assigned for ground of transfer of the trial has been enumerated in paragraph no.8 of the transfer application. Thereafter, the respondent no.1 proceeds on the line that claim has been raised by the applicants that the matter is expanding to the length and breadth of India and concerns crores of devotees of Lord Krishna would not serve the purpose of the applicants. Apart from aforesaid specific objection, there are ancillary objections of the nature that no prejudice is caused to the applicants and the relief sought to its core by way of the suit basically pertains to cancellation of the decree dated 20.07.1973 and 07.11.1974 passed in original suit no.43 of 1967. Thereafter, learned counsel proceeds further and has explained about the import and application of the Section 24 C.P.C. in the present context. Learned counsel continued that in case the transfer appeal is allowed it would be opening pandora box and in every case pertaining to religious places would be the voice of the concerned. Learned counsel in concluding rebuttal vehemently contended that in the matter of Kashi Vishwanath Temple dispute, the Hon'ble Apex Court vide its order dated 20.05.2022 transferred the proceeding of the original suit to the District Judge, Varanasi, he being an experienced judicial officer.

22. The respondent no.2 has virtually adopted the contention as raised by respondent no.1 with fresh addition that none of the applicant is resident of Mathura where the dispute property is situate. The plaintiffs are rich persons, whereas, the opposite party no.2 has no sufficient means and financial position is very weak. Convenience of the parties would be suitably adjusted if the suit is tried by the Civil Judge, Mathura. It would cause inconvenient to witnesses of both the sides to come over to Allahabad / Prayagraj from Mathura. Further claim has been raised that insofar as the nine cases enumerated in paragraph no.7 of the transfer application to be cases of similar nature are concerned, none of the parties to the suit so described has been made to this transfer application.

23. Similarly placed is the line of argument of the respondent no.4 more or less touching and urging upon the same issue as endeavoured by the respondent nos.1 and 2 while objecting to the prayer made in the transfer application, therefore, there is no need of repeating the same argument to the same import.

24. The intervenor-the proposed respondent no.5 Mahendra Pratap Singh, Advocate was allowed to state his case as he claimed himself to be one of the plaintiffs of the suit at the top of the list furnished by the applicants in paragraph no.7 of the transfer application. The learned counsel for the respondent no.5 has not brought any new theme rather his claim is based that the relief sought by the proposed respondent in his suit (950 of 2020) has got nothing to do with the relief sought in the suit instituted by the applicants. Therefore, the transfer application is claimed to be misconceived and misguided one. The court below is competent to decide the issue raised and can be properly adjudicated upon. However, the cases of the similar nature may be consolidated and brought together, may be decided by the court below and basing the leading suit to be suit no.950 of 2020.

25. Before proceeding further with the analysis of the entire claim, certain aspects need be observed. This transfer application is supported by an affidavit of one Rajesh Mani Tripathi wherein the aforesaid details have been provided in paragraph no.8 of the affidavit. Counter affidavit has been filed on behalf of the respondent no.1 and there is no denial of the assertions made in paragraph no.8 of the affidavit filed in support of this transfer application. This is evident from bare perusal of the paragraph no.10 of the counter affidavit filed by respondent. Likewise, in the counter affidavit of respondent no.2, assertions made in paragraph no.8 of the affidavit has been stated to be matter of record except for the fact that original suit no.151 of 2021 and original suit no. 152 of 2021 were dismissed for want of prosecution besides these two suits, some more suits are also pending before the court concerned. For ready reference, paragraph no.6 of the counter affidavit of respondent no.2 is extracted herein under:-

“That the contents of paragraph no.6, 7 and 8 of the affidavit are also the matter of record but two suits as CS No.151 of 2021 and CS No.152 of 2021 have been dismissed for non prosecution and some more suits are also pending besides the list in paragraph no.7.

26. Likewise counter affidavit filed by the respondent no.4 who has admitted contents of the paragraph no.8 of the affidavit filed in support of the transfer application and has given detail of one further suit being original suit no.12 of 2023 Sri Krishna Janambhoomi Mukti Nirman Trust Vs. Shahi Masjid Eidgah and others, which is stated to be pending before the court of the Civil Judge (Senior Division), Mathura.

27. From pleadings of the parties, it is more evident that at least, nine suits are pending consideration, inter-alia, involving the issue relating to the interpretation of various facets of statutes, constitutional law, elastical law, historical importance besides personal law and common law.

28. The detailed arguments were advanced by the parties and upon completion of the pleadings on several dates which is evident from the order-sheet, judgment was reserved on 03.05.2023.

Analysis

29. Section 24 of the Code of Civil Procedure (hereinafter referred as “the C.P.C.”) is a general power of transfer and withdrawal. This power can be exercised either on the application of the party or power can be exercised suo motu. Section 24 C.P.C. is extracted hereinbelow:-

24. General power of transfer and withdrawal.- (1) On the application of any of the parties and after notice to the parties and after hearing such of them as desired to be heard, or of its own motion without such notice, the High Court or the District Court may at any stage-

(a) transfer any suit, appeal or other proceeding pending before it for trial or disposal to any Court subordinate to it and competent to try or dispose of the same, or

(b) withdraw any suit, appeal or other proceeding pending in any Court subordinate to it, and

(i) try or dispose of the same; or

(ii) transfer the same for trial or disposal to any Court subordinate to it and competent to try or dispose of the same; or

(iii) retransfer the same for trial or disposal to the Court from which it was withdrawn.

(2) Where any suit or proceeding has been transferred or withdrawn under sub-section (1), the Court which [is thereafter to try or dispose of such suit or proceeding] may, subject to any special directions in the case of an order of transfer, either retry it or proceed from the point at which it was transferred or withdrawn.

2[(3) For the purposes of this section,

(a) Courts of Additional and Assistant Judges shall be deemed to be subordinate to the District Court;

(b) proceeding includes a proceeding for the execution of a decree or order].

(4) The Court trying any suit transferred or withdrawn under this section from a Court of Small Causes shall, for the purposes of such suit, be deemed to be a Court of Small Causes.

[(5) A suit or proceeding may be transferred under this section from a Court which has no jurisdiction to try it.]

30. Bare perusal of Section 24 (1)(b) CPC shows that suit can be withdrawn which is pending in the subordinate court to the Court to which the transfer application is made i.e. High Court. The High Court is competent to try or dispose of the same. The scope of Section 24 CPC is large enough encompass to try all issues by the High Court and exercise its power on civil court. There is no bar that the High Court cannot try suit, if it is withdrawn from the civil court where it is pending and is transferred to the High Court for disposal.

31. For the purpose of exercising jurisdiction under Section 24 C.P.C., the High Court has to circumspect all the facts in issue and all the consequences that it may have upon masses. It will be apt to refer the decision of Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Baselius Mar Thoma Mathews I and others Vs. Plaulose Mar Athanasius and others, (1980) 1 SCC 601. The facts in the aforecited case relates to the spiritual life affecting orthodox syrian christians, as many as 250 suits manifesting litigious syndrome are remaining pending in the several courts of Kerala. Even the court of the Additional District Judge that was nominated to dispose of eight suits, two sensitive suits did not work out to possible logical end to the entire litigation. In such backdrop, Hon'ble Apex Court proceeded to make observation as follows:-

“(7) It is indubitable that after the decision by the District Court appeals will inevitably be carried to the High Court. It is predictably reasonable to expect, from all that has been presented to us and all that we have been able to gather from the records, that the case involves questions of public moment and which are likely to spiral up to the Supreme Court on final appeal. In this jurisdiction, the approach has to be pragmatic, not theoretic, without whittling down the basics of law bearing on transfer of cases.

(8) We do not for a moment countenance the suggestion that the district Judge is not equal to the legal intricacies or factual challenges of these or other cases, the procedural law having vested him with unlimited jurisdiction and the High Court having committed these cases to his seisin. Hints of bias are also out of bounds, as we have indicated. If these suits at this stage of early arguments which have yet to begun effectively, are transferred to the High Court a spell of few years in the stressful life of the litigation will be saved. Taking copies of a bunch of decrees by the District Court, followed by preliminaries and filing of appeals, service of notices and other ripening processes, may consume considerable time and money. And then the High Court would begin de novo the entire arguments and appreciation of the whole range of facts and law as in first appeal it is bound to do in a case of this type. Where lakhs of people are excitedly affected by the ultimate decision and the fate of a few hundred suits and a thousand churches is to be settled by adjudication, the elimination of some years and duplication of hearings and full arguments, at the commanding height of the High Court is a wise measure, all things considered. The social savings of abbreviation of laws' delays are important to social justice.

(9) We do not tarry to dilate on the many dimensions to this transfer petition except to state that we feel the advancement of public justice will be promoted by the High Court itself at this stage, proceeding to hear the suits. We, therefore, direct that all the suits covered by the transfer petition be transferred to the High Court and tried from the present stage post-haste, since expeditious termination is the driving force behind this order for transfer.”

32. It has been admitted to the respondents that they will be losing right of available remedy on misc. application in revision before the District Judge, Mathura and their right of filing the appeal before the High Court but all procedures are merely handmade of the justice, the ultimate aim is to provide speedy justice. One of the arguments which was advanced from both the sides was with respect to the case of Ram Janambhoomi, which was transferred to the High Court from the subordinate courts. On the one hand, the applicants have to say that seminal issue of the public importance was involved in the said case of Ram Janambhoomi and the High Court transferred the matter from the subordinate court to itself. However, on the other hand, learned counsel for the respondents has to say that the transfer was not made, for the reason of the importance in issue but was made because of fact that the suit was already pending before the subordinate court for 40 years and could not reach a logical conclusion and even after transfer to the High Court, it took 30 years for the High Court to decide the suit.

33. In order to appreciate rival contentions, it will be appropriate to refer the decision of the division Bench of this Court in the case of the State of U.P. and others Vs. U.P. Sunni Central Board of Waqf and others, (1989) 15 ALR 696 by which the suit came to be transferred. In paragraph no.2 of the aforesaid decision, facts have been stated and contents of Section 24 C.P.C. and its application have been duly mentioned which are being reproduced herein under:-

“.....An application was again moved by the State in the month of February, 1989 on the administrative side praying that this application under section 24, C.P.C., may be listed for orders as early as possible. It was mentioned in the said application that the suits relate with inter se dispute between the members of two communities; one claiming it to be Ram Janam Bhoomi temple and the other as Babri Masjid and though the dispute is purely civil in nature but it assumes importance, time to time in the context as it some times excites religious sentiments and generates tension between the communities. It was further stated that the State Government is concerned to preserve amity and brotherly relations between the communities, but at time it assumes sensitive issue and sometimes creates possibility of discord and tension between otherwise peaceful population and the hearing and final disposal of suits in the civil court will take long time and hence the cases may be transferred to this court. On that application it was ordered that the case may be listed on February 23, 1989 and this is how proceedings started”

34. A perusal of the same, facts disclose that it was on account of religious sentiments, general of tensions between two communities and to preserve amity brotherly relations, the application was moved and not on account of fact that the matter was not decided for 40 years. Paragraph no.9 and 10 of the aforesaid decision of the division Bench of this Court are relevant and extracted herein under:-

9. Powers of the court under Section 24 of the C.P.C. are not to be rendered negatory because right of one or two appeals is lost. In suitable cases and situations like the present are the same has rather become necessary for advancing the cause of justice and putting an end to the litigation rotating round the same controversy.

10. Taking into consideration the facts of the case and the pendency of suits for several years and the issue in question which is creating tension between the members of two communities and developing division tendency, we are of the view that the application under Section 24, C.P.C. for withdrawal of suits and its trial and disposal by this court be allowed.

35. The apprehension that was expressed by the learned counsel for the respondent nos.1 and 2 to the effect that their right of appeal will be lost if the suit is transferred to the High Court does not merit consideration. The issue is no longer res integra and has been decided by the division Bench of this Court in the case of Swami Vasudevanand Saraswati Disciple of Swami Shanta Nand Saraswati Vs. Jagat Guru Shankaracharya Jyotishpeeth Peethadheshwar Shri Swami Swaroopa Nand Saraswati reported in 2016 SCC Online All 2956, paragraph nos.27, 28, 29 and 30 are extracted herein under:-

“27. Further argument that transfer of appeal from District Judge to High Court, if allowed, then a right of second appeal will be lost, has been negated by this Court in State of U.P. v. Sunni Central Board of Waqf. It is an order passed on application under Section 24, C.P.C. whereby suits pending in Court of Civil Judge / Munsif were transferred to this Court at Lucknow. A similar argument of loss of right of appeal was negated by observing as under:

“Powers of the Court under Section 24 of the C.P.C. are not to be rendered negatory because right of one of two appeals is lost. In suitable cases and situations like the present are the same has rather become necessary for advancing the cause of justice and putting an end to the litigation rotating round the same controversy”.

28. So far as circumstances when this Court would be justified in transferring a case pending in subordinate Court to High Court is concerned, in Baselius Mar Thoma Mathews I V. Paulose Mar Asthanasius, it has been held, where dispute may affect lot of people, who are excitedly affected by ultimate decision, and exercise of transfer would save some years and duplication of hearing, which is likely to take ample time, transfer of matter to High Court is a wise measure.

29. Here we do not propose to multiply this judgment by referring to catena of authorities on the question when exercise of jurisdiction under section 24, C.P.C. would be justified and suffice it to mention, where a matter is of importance of general public and parties also agree for early disposal, and more so that early disposal of matter has been found expedient even by Highest Court of law, an attempt should be made so that dispute is adjudicated at the earliest so as not to consume much more time and leave scope of dispute to prolong and take long time.

30. It cannot be doubted that office of Jagat Guru Shankaracharya at Jyotirmath Badrikashram is of high importance to majority of people and lakhs of people visit the Holy Math. Dispute of holder of office of such place, is a matter of wide importance and ought to be adjudicated at the earliest.”

36. The special leave petition filed against the aforesaid judgment was dismissed as such the aforesaid decision has attained finality. The office of Jagat Guru Shankaracharya has been held to be office of high importance as lakhs of people visit the Holy Math, therefore, it was decided to give expeditious disposal to the matter.

37. Having said so on the power to try the suit after withdrawing the same under Section 24 CPC., the next apprehension expressed by the learned counsel for the respondents is with regard to the presence of the witnesses to give evidence and inconvenience caused to the witnesses to come Prayagraj from Mathura for getting their statement recorded before the court concerned. The aforesaid argument, on the face of it, is ill-founded. The Order 18 Rule 4 CPC provides for recording evidence and it is for the Court to record evidence either itself or by commissioner appointed by it. With the advancement of the technology and impetus being provided to e-judiciary, physical presence of the witnesses can be done in the manner and mode as per discretion available with this Court trying the suit and it can be recorded through audio - video link. The reference in this regard may be made in the case reported in the case of Twentieth Century Fox Film Vs. NRI Film Production Pvt. Ltd AIR 2003 148 wherein following points have been observed by Karnataka High Court.

This can be done by providing link officer in the local court where witnesses can physically present, provide video link and cross examination can be done through audio - video mode. The relevant extract from paragraph no.7 is reproduced herein under:-

“7. Coming to the merits of the matter, let me see as to whether the Audio-Video Link in the matter of evidence is permissible in law or not ?

Order 18 of CPC provides for hearing of the suit and examination of witnesses. Order 18 Rule 3 provides for evidence where other issues are involved. Recording of evidence is provided under Order 18, Rule 4. The CPC is amended from time to time in the Interest of speedy disposal and to avoid cumbersome procedure in the matter of conducting civil trials. It is a matter of fact that civil proceedings in this country take a few years as experience reveals. To get over this normal procedural delay, the Government has thought it fit to amend the Act in the larger interest of speedy disposal. The statement of objects and reasons of CPC Amendment Act 1999 would show that the maximum time is consumed in recording evidence by the courts and it is proposed to reduce such delay by making provision for evidence by affidavit. The object refers to the report of the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Malimath, and the Law Commission Recommendations. The Act was amended in 1999 in terms of the Act 46/1999 it was subsequently amended in CPC amendment Act of 2002. Order 18, Rule 4 provides for examination in chief of a witness by way of an affidavit. Sub-rule (2) provides for cross-examination and re-examination of witnesses being done in attendance whose evidence by affidavit has been furnished to the Court is to be taken by the Court or the commissioner appointed by it. The Court may also take into consideration the relevant factors as it thinks fit in terms of the rule. The argument of Sri AYN Gupta, learned counsel is that the word "attendance" would mean physical attendance. The argument of Sri Udaya Holla, learned counsel is that the word "attendance" would not mean physical attendance. Audio-Video Link is a technology developed by electronic media to avoid the physical presence and to avoid the loss in time. It is a speedy method evolved for the purpose of speedy decision. Even in Audio-Video Link party is definitely present in person and his presence is reflected on the screen. The word 'in attendance' under Order 18, Rule 3(4)(2) is to be understood as the person being present and it need not be physical presence. The presence on the screen is as good as attendance for the purpose of Order 18, Rule 3(4) (2) of the Rules. After all law only requires the presence of the witness and it does not matter as to how he is present. Just because it is physically impossible for him to be present at Mysore, this method of Audio-Video Link is suggested by the party for speedy disposal. Insistence of personal attendance would defeat the very object of Order 18, Rule 3(4)(2) of the CPC. Moreover, the proviso also provides for taking into account such relevant factor as he thinks fit. Therefore, mere non-physical attendance by itself does not prohibit examination of a witness by way of Audio-Video Link. I must also notice at this stage that Order 18, Rule 3(4)(3) which provides for recording evidence either by writing or mechanically in the presence of a Judge. Audio-Video Link is a mechanical process where the party is present on the screen and there is a mechanical device recording the evidence. This also supports the contention of Mr. Udaya Holla. Therefore, I am firmly of the view that there cannot be any impediment in the given set of facts to record evidence through Audio-Video Link . There is no prohibition as such in term of Order 18, Rule 3(4) of the Code. On the other hand, the amendments would support the contention of such an interpretation. After all the present amendment has been effected for speedy trial and speedy disposal and that cannot be strangled by narrow interpretation. Technology development is taking place all over the Globe and Courts cannot lag behind in this regard. If law Courts do not permit technological development in Court proceedings, it would be lagging behind compared to other sectors. Law has to develop and if law is to develop, technology has to be made as a tool. Therefore, the objections in this regard is unsustainable. Learned trial Judge has taken a very narrow view. A reading of entire order of the learned Judge would show that the learned Judge had in his mind that time factor of this Court and also certain defects in the matter of procedure of recording evidence. Any implementation of new technology will have initial hiccups and these are to be removed by proper application of law with sufficient safeguards. Therefore, the learned Judge in my view is not right in rejecting recording of evidence by Audio-Video Link in the given set of facts.”

Argument on the constitutional aspect

38. Before dealing with the said argument, the High Court has to remain conscious of the fact that being the highest Court of the State, it is guardian of the people and being 3rd pillar of the Constitution, it safeguards interest of the people as a whole, the small sub-sects, tribe then bigger sub-sect community and full circle of the people, all fall within the protection of the Constitution. The people as a whole constitutes fraternity, unity and integrity of the nation coupled with dignity of the individual are the essential aim to be achieved as enshrined in the Preamble of the Constitution of India. To adjudge things from the said angle, this Court now appreciate as to what argument that was advanced on behalf of the applicant.

39. Learned counsel for the applicants has explained the historical and religious nature of the suit and claimed that the history of 'Karagar' (jail) of Kans wherein Lord Krishna incarnated in human form, is sacred and divine for the Hindu devotees. It is a deity worshiped by the Hindu devotees. The 'Karagar' of 'Kans' at present is located beneath the alleged Shahi Eidgah Masjid and by explaining these aspects to some length, the learned counsel for the applicant has endeavoured to bring to the notice of this Court the various complicated questions which are involved and call for adjudication of the same in the present suit. Some of these complicated questions were stated to be interpretation, validity and applicability of places of worship Act 1991, interpretation / applicability of Waqf Act 1995, rights of Hindu deity under Hindu Law and under Article 25 of the Constitution of India and interpretation of Article 25, 26 and 300 A of the Constitution of India. Moreover, it involves adjudication on point of birth place – 'Asthan', as deity, the rights and duty of Shebait under Hindu Law and rights of Hindu devotees where Shebait has been negligent and the property of the deity has been alienated/transferred against the law, decree obtained by fraud and challenged by Hindu devotees, adjudication upon distinction between Waqf and Trust, and apart from all above point of applicability and interpretation of law of adverse possession.

40. Learned counsel has asserted that the aforesaid substantial questions would arise before the trial court. Therefore, the original trial may be conducted by this Court. After describing the factual background, the learned counsel claimed that sensitive / sentimental issues of national and public importance between and among people are involved which need be properly scrutinized and adjudicated upon.

41. To the aforesaid arguments, it is interesting to note that learned counsel for the respondent nos.1 and 2 have not refuted that such issues and seminal importance would not be arising for adjudication of the suit. The only argument advanced is that the suit is of simple nature which is for setting aside the compromise decree and all questions are incidental which are dependent on fate of grant of the first relief. Candidly, learned counsel for the respondent nos.1 and 2 do not dispute consideration of the matter falling within the province of the Articles 25, 26 and 300A of the Constitution of India. Under the circumstances, the Court will be failing in its duty if it does not prima facie consider the scope of Article 25 of the Constitution of India. Article 25 (1) reads as follows:-

“25. Freedom of conscience and free profession, practice and propagation of religion.-(1) Subject to public order, morality and health and to the other provisions of this Part, all persons are equally entitled to freedom of conscience and the right freely to profess, practise and propagate religion.”

Similarly Article 26 of the Constitution of India reads as follows:-

“26. Freedom to manage religious affairs.- Subject to public order, morality and health, every religious denomination or any section thereof shall have the right

(a) to establish and maintain institutions for religious and charitable purposes;

(b) to manage its own affairs in matters of religion;

(c) to own and acquire movable and immovable property; and

(d) to administer such property in accordance with law.”

42. Bare perusal of the Articles 25 and 26 of the Constitution of India discloses that rights are subject to the public order and morality. The principle of constitutional morality, therefore, steps in and hence the rights under Articles 25 and 26 can be exercised when they are tested on the touchstone of the constitutional morality and the public order. Reference in this regard may be made to the very recent decision of the constitution Bench of Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Central Board Dawoodi Bohra Community and another Vs. State of Maharashtra and another reported in 2023 (4) SCC page 541. The Honble Apex Court has held the Constitution to be living instrument and considered changing need of the society. Paragraph nos. 26, 28, 32.1, 32.2, 32.3 and 34 are reproduced herein under:-

“26. Nariman, J in paragraph 176.7, stressed that the term ‘morality’ refers to that which is considered abhorrent to civilized society, given the mores of the time, by reason of harm caused by way, inter alia, of exploitation and degradation.

28. The question is whether the exclusionary practice which prevails in the Dawoodi Bohra community of excommunicating its members will stand the test of Constitutional morality? As observed by Das Gupta, J. in the case of Sardar Syedna1, the excommunication of a member of the community affects many of his civil rights. The Privy Council, in the case of *Hasanali & Ors. v. Mansoorali & Ors.*¹², in paragraph 4, has dealt with the effect of excommunication in Dawoodi Bohra community. Paragraph 4 reads thus:

“4. The appellants would limit the effect of excommunication, whatever steps might have been taken to bring it into being, to complete 12 1947 SCC OnLine PC 63 social ostracism. There is nothing, they say, to show that it excluded from rights of property or worship. Their Lordships do not find themselves able to accept this limitation. The Dai is a religious leader as well as being trustee of the property of the community, and in India exclusion from caste is well known.

There is at least one case in which it is recorded that certain persons applied to the King to intercede with the thirtythird Dai, complaining that in consequence of excommunication they were kept from the mosques and places where true believers met; and no instance has been cited where excommunicated persons freely exercised their religious rights. Indeed, the complaint in the cases brought to their Lordships' attention as regards which relief is claimed for the appellants or those whom they are said to represent is that they were wrongly excommunicated, not that if rightly excommunicated they were wrongly deprived of their religious rights. Excommunication, in their Lordships' view, if justified, necessarily involves exclusion from the exercise of religious rights in places under the trusteeship of the head of the community in which religious exercises are performed.” (emphasis added) A person who is excommunicated by the community, will not be entitled to use the common property of the community and the burial/cremation grounds of the community. In a sense, such a person will virtually become untouchable (being banished or ostracized) within the community. In a given case, it will result in his civil death. It can be argued that the concept of Constitutional morality which overrides the freedom conferred by clause (b) of Article 26, will not permit the civil rights of ex communicated persons which originate from the dignity and liberty of human beings to be taken away. The concepts of equality, liberty and fraternity are certainly part of our Constitutional morality. Basic ideas enshrined in our Constitution are part of Constitutional morality. The conscience of our Constitution is Constitutional morality. Hence, it is contended that excommunication or ostracisation is anathema to the concepts of liberty and equality. It is against the anti discriminatory ethos which forms a part of Constitutional morality. Therefore, the Constitutional Court ought not to tolerate anything which takes away the right and privilege of any person to live with dignity as the concept of Constitutional morality does not permit the Court to do so. Therefore, in our view, the protection under Article 26(b) granted by the decision in the case of Sardar Syedna1 to the power to excommunicate a member of the Dawoodi Bohra community, needs reconsideration as the said right is subject to morality which is understood as Constitutional morality. This issue will require examination by a larger Bench.

32. To conclude, prima facie, we find that the exercise of balancing the rights under Article 26(b) with other rights under Part III and in particular Article 21 was not undertaken by the Constitution Bench in the case of *Sardar Syedna*¹. This question is substantially in issue before the Bench of nine Judges in Sabrimala Temple Review 9JJ. Moreover, the question whether the protection can be given by Article 26(b) to the practice of ex-communication is to be tested on the touchstone of the concept of Constitutional morality as the said right is subject to morality. This is an important and emergent issue. These are the two main grounds on which the said decision may need reconsideration by a larger Bench decision was subjected to a review. This Court dealt with the review (Sabrimala Temple Review – 5JJ.7). The majority opinion contains questions formulated for referring it to a larger Bench. Question Nos. 5.1 to 5.3 are relevant which reads thus:

“5.1.(i) Regarding the interplay between the freedom of religion under Articles 25 and 26 of the Constitution and other provisions in Part III, particularly Article 14.

5.2.(ii) What is the sweep of expression “public order, morality and health” occurring in Article 25(1) of the Constitution.

5.3.(iii) The expression “morality” or “constitutional morality” has not been defined in the Constitution. Is it overarching morality in reference to Preamble or limited to religious beliefs or faith. There is need to delineate the contours of that expression, lest it becomes subjective.” Accordingly, the review petition was listed before a nine Judge Bench. By the order dated 10th February 2020, the Bench of nine Judges (Sabrimala Temple Review – 9 JJ.8) framed seven questions of law, out of which questions 3 and 4 are relevant for our purposes read thus:

“3. Whether the rights of a religious denomination under Article 26 of the Constitution of India are subject to other provisions of Part III of the Constitution of India apart from public order, morality and health?

4. What is the scope and extent of the word ‘morality’ under Articles 25 and 26 of the Constitution of India and whether it is meant to include Constitutional morality?”

43. Having said so and looking to the fact that as many as 10 suits are stated to be pending before the civil court and also there should be more suits that can be said to be pending and issue can be said to be seminal public importance affected the masses beyond tribe and beyond communities having not proceeded an inch further since their institution on merits for past two to three years, provides full justification for withdrawal of all the suits touching upon the issue involved in the suit from the civil court concerned to this Court under Section 24(1)(b) CPC while the prayer made for original suit no.353 of 2022 being withdrawn and transferred to this Court made by the applicant is allowed. For rest of the suits, this Court withdraws such suits of similar nature from the lower civil court concerned are transferred (them) to this Court exercising its suo motu powers for trial.

A. Service Law – Entertaining larger public interest issues in a writ petition - In case any petition is filed and the Bench comes to the conclusion that it involves some issues relating to Public Interest, the Bench may not entertain it as a PIL but the Court has its option to convert it into a public interest litigation and ask the Registry to place it before a Bench which has jurisdiction to entertain the PIL as per Rules. (Para 25)

In view of the aforesaid, Registry is directed to register the PIL as a separate case and place it before Hon'ble the Chief Justice for appropriate direction or before the appropriate PIL Bench. (Para 26)

Special appeal disposed of. (E-4)

Precedent followed:

1. Dinesh Kumar Singh @ Sonu Vs St. of U.P. & ors., Writ Petition No. 2599 (MB) of 2014, decided on 05.01.2017 (Para 10)

2. St. of U. P. & ors. Vs Neeraj Chaubey & ors., (2010) 10 SCC 320 (Para 25)

Present intra-Court appeal arises out of the proceedings drawn by the learned Single Judge in Writ-A No. 2474 of 2023 wherein two orders, namely, the order dated 17.05.2023 and the other order dated 27.03.2023 have been passed. By the order dated 17.05.2023, intervention application moved by the NCPCR has been allowed and the NCPCR has been permitted to intervene in the proceedings.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Devendra Kumar
Upadhyaya, J.
Hon'ble Om Prakash Shukla, J.)

1. Office has reported a delay of 28 days in filing the Special Appeal.

2. Having regard to the averments made in the affidavit filed in support of the application seeking condonation of delay in filing the Special Appeal and having heard learned counsel for the parties, we are satisfied that the delay has sufficiently been explained.

3. Accordingly, the application is allowed and the delay in preferring the Special Appeal is hereby condoned.

4. Heard Sri V. K. Singh, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Sri M. A. Ausaf, Sri Sankalp Narain, Sri G.S. Maurya, Sri Srivats Narain, Sri Adil Hussain, Sri B. P. Tiwari and Sri Ayush Tandon for the appellants, Ms. Swarupama Chaturvedi, learned counsel appearing for respondent No.1-National Commission for Protection of Child Rights (NCPCR), Sri R. C. Tiwari, learned Counsel representing the Union of India and learned State Counsel representing the State-respondents.

5. This intra-Court appeal arises out of the proceedings drawn by the learned

Single Judge in Writ-A No. 2474 of 2023 wherein two orders, namely, the order dated 17.05.2023 and the other order dated 27.03.2023 have been passed. By the order dated 17.05.2023, intervention application moved by the NCPCR has been allowed and the NCPCR has been permitted to intervene in the proceedings. The learned Single Judge has further observed in para - 4 of the said order that the matter is of wide ramification and some importance. Para - 4 of the said order dated 17.05.2023 is quoted as under:-

"4. The matter is of wide ramification and some importance and outcome of this case will effect the education system as well as the rights of the children studying in Madaras. Therefore, this Court appoints Sri S. M. Singh Raikwar, Advocate, as amicus curiae to assist the Court in the matter."

6. While passing the order dated 27.03.2023, learned Single Judge has directed the Central as well as State Governments to file their responses, in the following words:-

"Let the Central Government and State Government file their affidavits explaining that how on Government expense or the funding provided by the Government Exchequer religious education be imparted and whether this could be in violation of Articles 14, 25, 26, 29 and 30 of the Constitution of India."

7. The order dated 27.03.2023 further recites as under:-

"The affidavits of the Central Government from the Secretary, Ministry of Minority Affairs, Government of India and State Government from the Principal Secretary, Department of Minority Welfare and Waqf, Government of Uttar Pradesh should be filed answering the petition and aforesaid questions within a period of six weeks from today."

8. Submission of the learned Senior Advocate representing the appellants is that from a perusal of the two orders dated 27.03.2023 and 17.05.2023 passed by the learned Single Judge, it is apparent and more than clear that apart from considering the issue raised primarily in the writ petition, learned Single Judge also intends to consider the issues having wider ramification and some importance and that outcome of the writ petition will effect the education system as well as the rights of the children studying in Madarsas. His submission, thus, is that it is apparent that the learned Single Judge intends to clearly embark upon a journey to adjudicate the issue of larger public interest which has cropped up before him during the pendency of the case, having due regard to the nature of grievances raised by the writ petitioner and the prayers made therein.

9. Drawing our attention to the prayer clause of the writ petition, it has been stated by the learned Senior Advocate that the writ petition was filed by the writ petitioner seeking a direction to the respondents therein to release his withheld salary and to pay him regular salary as admissible to him under law. The prayers made in the writ petition are extracted here-in-below:-

"Wherefore, it is most respectfully prayed that this Hon'ble Court may graciously be pleased:

(A) to issue a Writ, Order or Direction in the nature of mandamus commanding the Opposite Parties to release the entire withheld salary to the Petitioner and to pay him regular salary as admissible to him under the law."

(B) to issue such other Writ, Order or Direction as this Hon'ble Court may deem just and proper in the facts and circumstances of the case.

(C) to award the cost of the Writ Petition."

10. Thus, it has been argued by the learned Senior Advocate that apart from considering the prayers made in the writ petition on the basis of pleadings made by the writ petitioner, if certain issues relating to larger public interest crops up, this Court either sitting singly or in division benches is not precluded from taking cognizance of such issues, however, in that eventuality the law laid down by Full Bench of this Court in the case of Dinesh Kumar Singh @ Sonu vs. State of U.P. & Ors. decided on 05.01.2017 [Writ Petition No. 2599 (MB) of 2014] has to be followed. According to learned Senior Advocate, in such a situation that part of the matter which touches upon or which needs to be addressed in larger public interest has to be referred to Hon'ble the Chief Justice for being referred to the Division Bench dealing with the Public Interest Litigation.

11. In this view, submission of learned Senior Advocate is that no party to the proceedings before the learned Single Judge may have any grievance, whatsoever, if the matters directly or tangentially touching the issues of general public interest are taken up, however, in such a situation recourse needs to be taken to the law laid down by the Full Bench in the case of Dinesh Kumar Singh @ Sonu (supra).

12. Learned State Counsel submits that the State Authorities have been directed to file counter affidavit in the proceedings of the writ petition which shall be filed once it is ready.

13. Learned Counsel representing the Union of India Sri R. C. Tiwari has submitted that counter affidavit on behalf of Union of India was prepared and it was to be filed as well, however, considering the order dated 17.05.2023 passed by the learned Single Judge, he has instructions to pray for more time for preparation of the counter affidavit. However, he does not deny that Public Interest elements in the matter have arisen as are apparent from a perusal of the orders dated 27.03.2023 and 17.05.2023 passed by the learned Single Judge.

14. Learned Counsel representing NCPCR Ms. Swarupama Chaturvedi has submitted that NCPCR has sought its intervention in the matter only on account of the fact that certain anomalies and discrepancies relating to rights of the children in Madarasas have been noticed by the NCPCR. She has categorically stated that NCPCR has nothing to do with the original lis amongst the writ petitioner, the management of the Madarasas and the State authorities though the NCPCR has been taking up the matter relating to children rights involved with the State Government as well.

15. Having submitted as above, learned counsel for NCPCR has also stated that learned Single Judge has yet to form its opinion as to whether the issues concerning larger public interest have cropped up or arisen in the matter pending before him or not, which will be better decided once the response from all the parties are filed before the writ Court.

16. It has also been stated that it is only on 17.05.2023 that the learned Single

Judge has appointed an amicus in the matter and as to whether the issue relating to larger public interest which has arisen needs to be referred to appropriate Bench of this Court in terms of the law laid down by the Full Bench of this Court in the case of Dinesh Kumar Singh @ Sonu (supra) may be decided by the learned Single Judge.

17. Learned amicus appointed in the proceedings of the writ petition has also submitted that in a matter like this, two courses are available before the Bench in a matter where apart from the regular lis between the parties some issues concerning general public interest also arise.

18. Leaned amicus thus has submitted that first course is to refer the Public Interest element arising in any matter straightaway in terms of the Full Bench decision in the case of Dinesh Kumar Singh @ Sonu (supra) and the second course is such a reference may be made after inviting the responses from the parties not only in relation to the issue raised originally in the writ petition but also in relation to the issues concerning the larger public interest. Thus, in his submission he has urged that a perusal of the order dated 27.03.2023 and 17.05.2023 passed by the learned Single Judge reveals that it is only a prima facie view which has been formed by the learned Single Judge that in the writ petition pending before him certain issues relating to larger public interest have arisen, however, learned Single Judge has yet to form his final opinion in the matter as to whether issues of general public interest have arisen before him or not. Accordingly, his submission is that the matter at this stage may be left to be decided by the learned Single Judge.

19. Ordinarily against interlocutory orders passed by learned Single Judge, intra-Court appeal under Chapter VIII Rule 5 of the Rules of the Court would not be maintainable, however, since in this case the issue raised by the appellants touches upon the very jurisdiction of the learned Single Judge, we have entertained this Special Appeal.

20. We completely agree with the order passed by the learned Single Judge where he has expressed his opinion that the matter at hand requires consideration not only from the point of view of the prayers made by the writ petitioner but also from the point of view as to whether the funding by the State Exchequer of the institutions imparting religious instructions is violative of Articles 14, 25, 26, 29 and 30 of the Constitution of India. It is in this context that we also agree with the learned Single Judge where NCPCR, which is a statutory commission incorporated primarily for overseeing protection of children rights, as intervenor. If any issue which has wide ramification concerning the education system as also the rights of children being imparted education and such institutions, there cannot be any quarrel that such issue does involve larger public interest and in this appropriate case if cognizance of such issue apart from the issues concerning the Writ Petitioner, has been taken up by the learned Single Judge, no one can have any objection to the same.

21. It is in this context only that we find that the learned Single Judge has rightly called upon the Central Government as also the State Government to file their responses not only to the issue raised by the writ petitioner but also to the issue relating to the larger public interest as is reflected from the orders dated 27.03.2023 and 17.05.2023. We have no doubt in our mind, whatsoever, that there is a clear intent in the proceedings of the writ petition that apart from the issue relating to the writ petitioner claiming payment of salary the issue of larger public interest has also to be considered and agitated.

22. However, the question is as to whether in such a situation the larger public interest issues can be entertained by the same Bench or the matter needs to be referred to the PIL Bench as per the law laid down by the Full Bench of this Court in the case of Dinesh Kumar Singh @ Sonu (supra).

23. Before the Full Bench in the case of Dinesh Kumar Singh @ Sonu (supra), the following question was formulated for its consideration:-

"Whether a Judge of Hon'ble High Court sitting alone or Judges sitting in a Division Bench hearing any matter in his/their determination assigned by Hon'ble the Chief Justice, can overstep into the determination of another Bench, if any issue or question arises in the matter including a question in public interest, which is not connected to the matter before him/them, and which in his/their opinion is necessary to be decided, and further in such case where in his/their discretion it is necessary to decide such question, what should be the procedure to be adopted."

24. The Full Bench has answered the said question in para - 15 which is also extracted hereunder:-

"15. In the circumstances, we hold that a Judge of the High Court sitting alone or Judges sitting in a Division Bench, hearing any matter in his/their determination assigned by the Chief Justice, cannot overstep into the determination of another Judge sitting alone or in a Division Bench. If any such issue or question arises in the matter including a question in public interest which is not connected with the matter before him/them and which in his/their opinion is necessary to be decided, in that situation the only option open to the learned Judge or the Division Bench is to direct the Registry to place the matter before the Chief Justice for appropriate directions or before the appropriate PIL Bench and, in any case, should not convert such a writ petition into a PIL. The question is, thus, answered accordingly in the negative."

25. We may also refer to a judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of State of Uttar Pradesh and others v. Neeraj Chaubey and others reported in [(2010) 10 SCC 320]. Paragraph 10 of the judgment in the said case, Hon'ble Supreme Court has observed that in case any petition is filed and the Bench comes to the conclusion that it involves some issues relating to Public Interest, the Bench may not entertain it as a Public Interest Litigation but the Court has its option to convert it into a public interest litigation and ask the Registry to place it before a Bench which has jurisdiction to entertain the PIL as per Rules. Para - 10 of the said judgment is extracted here-in-below:-

"10. In case an application is filed and the Bench comes to the conclusion that it involves some issues relating to Public Interest, the Bench may not entertain it as a Public Interest Litigation but the court has its option to convert it into a public interest litigation and ask the Registry to place it before a Bench which has jurisdiction to entertain the PIL as per the Rules, guidelines or by the roster fixed by the Chief Justice but the Bench cannot convert itself into a PIL and proceed with the matter itself."

26. In view of the aforesaid and having regard to the conclusion drawn by the Full Bench of this Court in the case of Dinesh Kumar Singh @ Sonu (supra), we direct the Registry to register the PIL as a separate case and place it before Hon'ble the Chief Justice for appropriate direction or before the appropriate PIL Bench.

27. The Special Appeal, thus, stands disposed of in the aforesaid terms.

2. St. Vs Pran Shankar, 1981, (2)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Saurabh Shyam Shamshery, J.)

1. The impugned order dated 03.08.1996 was passed by the Additional Collector, Kanpur Dehat whereby the allotment of Patta in favour of the petitioner was cancelled. The other impugned order dated 26.05.2003 was passed by Additional Commissioner, Kanpur Division, Kanpur whereby the Revision filed against the order dated 03.08.1996 was dismissed and the third impugned order is dated 13.11.2014 whereby the review application filed by the petitioner was also rejected by the Additional Commissioner, Kanpur Division, Kanpur.

2. Shri D.P. Singh, learned counsel appearing on behalf of the petitioner has submitted that plot No.183, measuring area of 0.41, hectare situated in village - Nadihakhurd, Tehsil - Bilhaur, District - Kanpur Nagar was allotted to the petitioner and her name has also been recorded in revenue records on 30.12.1994 as Bhumidhar with non transferable rights. On the basis of complaint filed by one Shravan Kumar for cancellation of Patta, a case was registered under Section 198(4) of the U.P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act, 1950 (hereinafter referred as "the Act of 1950") and a notice dated 06.12.1995 was issued to the petitioner. When the petitioner opted not to appear, the concerned District Collector considered the report of the Tehsildar wherein it was mentioned that before the allotment of Patta, permission of the concerned authority was not taken. Therefore, the Collector passed order dated 03.08.1996 cancelling the said patta.

3. The petitioner moved a Revision Petition No.272 of 2002, under Section 333 of the Act of 1950, however, the same was also dismissed by Additional Commissioner Kanpur Division, Kanpur on the ground that at the time of allotment of Patta, the father-in-law of the petitioner was holding the post of Pradhan of Gram Panchayat and in terms of Section 28 (C) of the Uttar Pradesh Panchayati Raj Act 1947 (hereinafter referred as "the Act of 1947") before granting Patta to any relative prior written permission of the concerned Collector was required. However, in the present case, no such permission was taken. The petitioner had also moved a recall application on 18.02.2019 to recall the order dated 26.05.2003 however, the same was rejected on the ground that order dated 26.05.2003 was passed after giving an opportunity of hearing to the petitioner. In these circumstances, the petitioner has approached this Court challenging the impugned orders. This Court, vide order dated 23.04.2015 passed the following order:-

"Heard Sri D.P. Singh, learned counsel for the petitioners, learned Standing Counsel appearing for the State-respondents and Sri Brij Kumar Yadav, learned counsel for the Gaon Sabha.

Issue notice.

Notices on behalf of respondent nos. 1 to 3 have been accepted by the office of learned Chief Standing Counsel, whereas Sri Brij Kumar Yadav has put in appearance on behalf of respondent no. 4. Therefore, notices need not be served again to the respondents.

Learned counsel for the respondents are granted six weeks time to file counter affidavit. Rejoinder affidavit, if any, may be filed two weeks thereafter. List thereafter.

As an interim measure, without prejudice to right and contention of the parties, till the next date of listing, no third party right shall be created by the parties over the land in dispute."

4. Learned counsel appearing on behalf of the petitioner has not denied the fact that petitioner's father-in-law was holding the post of Pradhan at the relevant time. However, learned counsel for the petitioner submitted that such relationship is not hit by Section 28 (C) of the Act of 1947 and for this purpose, learned counsel for the petitioner relied upon the judgment passed by this Court in Vidyawati versus Gaon Sabha (1982 Law Suit Allahabad 684), State Vs. Pran Shankar, 1981, (2) and the relevant part of the judgments are reproduced hereinafter:-

(i). Vidyawati versus Gaon Sabha:-

"(5) The learned Counsel argued that merely because the allottees were the son and the daughter of the Pradhan, it could not be said that the Pradhan acquired or attempted to acquire the lease for himself or through a partner or otherwise. I feel that he is right. If the allotment was in favour of the Pradhan even indirectly that would be covered by the Section. In this case the allotment was in favour of a widowed daughter who had ceased to be a member of the family of Pradhan and a major son who could not be said to be his appendage. Had he been a minor son or his wife or transaction would have been benami in some-body's name for the benefit of the Pradhan, only in that case the "permission required under the Section aforesaid should have been taken. In the instant case the courts below should have examined the provisions of section itself before presuming that the allotment in favour of the son or daughter of the Pradhan would be an allotment for the benefit of the Pradhan himself. I accordingly agree with the learned Counsel for the Appellant that in the present case the allotment was not hit by the provisions of Section 28-C of the U.P. Panchayat Raj Act."

(ii). State Vs. Pran Shankar:-

"Nowhere there is a provision in section 28-C of the Panchayat Raj Act that a relative of Member of the L.M.C. will not have any interest in the property of Gaon Sabha. The only prohibition was made against the Member acquiring any interest in L.M.C. property for himself either directly or through a partner or otherwise. If it is proved from the circumstances of any case that a Member of the L.M.C. has acquired for himself either directly or through his partner or through his relative an interest in any property belonging to the L.M.C. the said acquisition will be treated as void. But if the member does not acquire the property for himself either directly or through partner etc. the lease in respect of the L.M.C. property will not be cancelled as irregular. If the legislature had intended that relatives of Members of the L.M.C. could not acquire L.M.C. property there was no hitch for not enacting such a provision in Section 28-C Panchayat Raj Act. The absence of such a provision in Section 28-C Panchayat Raj Act shows that the legislature never intended that relatives of Members of the L.M.C. could not acquire L.M.C. property."

5. Learned Standing Counsel appearing on behalf of the respondent has opposed the submissions made by learned counsel for the petitioner and submitted that the petitioner's father-in-law was Gram Pradhan at the relevant time when the allotment of Patta was executed in favour of the petitioner. Therefore, it is barred under Section 28 (C) of the Act of 1947 as it is akin to acquire the interest. The scope of the Section 28 (C) of the Act of 1947 is very wide and the word "otherwise" has been mentioned which clearly include such relations. Hence, the impugned orders are legally correct and there is no infirmity in the impugned orders. Therefore, this petition is liable to be dismissed.

6. Considered the submissions made at Bar and perused the record. For reference, Section 28-C of "the Act of 1947" is reproduced hereinafter:-

"28-C. Members and officers not to acquire interest in contract etc., with Bhumi Prabandhak Samiti - (1) No member of office bearer of [Gram Panchayat] or Bhumi Prabandhak Samiti shall, otherwise than with the permission in writing of the Collector, knowingly acquire or attempt to acquire or stipulate for or agree to receive or continue to have himself or through a partner or otherwise any share or interest in any licence, lease, sale exchange, contract or employment with, by or on behalf of the Samiti concerned;

Provided that a person shall not be deemed to acquire or attempt to acquire or continue to have or stipulate for or agree to receive any share or interest in any contract or employment by reason only of his -

(a) having acquired any interest before he became a member or office bearer;

(b) having a share in a joint stock company which makes the contract; and

(c) having a share or interest in the occasional sale through the Samiti concerned of an article in which he regularly trades upto a value not exceeding Rs. 50 in any one year.

(2) No court or other authority shall enforce at the instance of any person a claim based upon a transaction in contravention of the provisions of subsection (1)."

7. There is no dispute that the allotment was made in favour of the petitioner on 30.12.1994 when the father-in-law of the petitioner was holding the post of Pradhan of the Gram Panchayat. The Patta was cancelled within a short period by the Additional District Magistrate Kanpur, on the ground that prior permission was not taken in terms of Section 28 (C) of the Act of 1947 on 3.8.1996. The said Patta was issued to the petitioner on the ground that petitioner is a landless agricultural labourer. However, the petitioner has failed to produce any document or evidence in support of this fact even there is no averments in the writ petition to show that how the petitioner falls under the category of landless agriculture labourer.

8. The contention of learned counsel for the petitioner is that the petitioner, who is the daughter-in-law of the Pradhan was living separately and his father-in-law has not created any interest in the said land as well as the relation of daughter-in-law is not barred by Section 28 (C) of the Act of 1947. It is further submitted that in the Vidyawati (supra) wherein it has been held that in case allotment to widow-daughter, son or daughter of Pradhan would not be treated as allotment of the benefit to himself then such allotment would not be hit by the provision of Section 28 (C) of the Act of 1947. In another case of Pran Shankar (supra) wherein it has been held that if a member of the Panchayat does not acquire property for himself either directly or through partner, it would not be considered as irregular.

9. Bare perusal of the Section 122 (C) of the Act of 1950 would show that the entire provision has been enacted in respect of allotment of land for housing site for the members of scheduled castes, scheduled tribes and agriculture labourer etc. The purpose of the said Section is to provide land for housing for person belonging to poor strata, and for that, entire scheme has been framed under the said Section. It is a piece of welfare legislation and first requirement to become eligible for such allotment is to fall under the categories mentioned in the said Section which include to live below the poverty line "and to be" an agriculture labourer. In the present case there is no evidence that the petitioner falls under any of the category mentioned above. The petitioner has failed to produce any document or evidence to show that she falls within any of the category mentioned under Section 122 (C) of the Act of 1950.

10. The bar under Section 28 (C) of the Act of 1947 is a further safeguard in order to avoid nepotism and to restrict members and officers of the Gram Panchayat to grant favour to their relatives by allotting Patta even though they are not eligible for the said Patta. It is further relevant to note that any Patta allotted to ineligible person would deprive rightful claim of an eligible person. In the judgment passed by this Court in the Vidyawati (supra) it has been held that even the allotment for father of the son or daughter of the Pradhan would not itself be barred without determination that interest has been created by the Pradhan for himself, however, matter was remanded in court below on the issue of process undertaken during allotment.

11. In the present case, the petitioner has not been able to produce any evidence that she is eligible for Patta under Section 122 (C) of the Act of 1950. Therefore, there is no need to enquire whether the allotment to the petitioner being daughter-in-law of Pradhan is illegal as it would be of no consequence. The allotment to the petitioner was not correct. At least for the sake of precaution before the allotment, a request ought to have been made to the Collector when the petitioner is being daughter-in-law of Pradhan at the time when the allotment was made so that an inquiry be conducted before such allotment as it is the Collector who is competent authority to grant permission in such cases. It is to take note that any illegal allotment would lead to deprivation of a right of landless labourer which is against the Scheme of Section 122 (C) of the Act of 1950.

12. In view of the above discussions, the benefit of the judgments relied upon by learned counsel for the petitioner cannot be granted to the petitioner as the petitioner has even failed to establish her eligibility for allotment of land under Section 122 (C) of the Act of 1950.

13. Accordingly, this writ petition is dismissed. Interim order, if any, stands vacated.

B. (Delivered by Hon'ble Kshitij Shailendra, J.)

1. The instant writ petition has been filed by the Life Insurance of India (herein-after referred to as "L.I.C."), challenging the impugned judgement and award dated 15.02.2016, whereby the Permanent Lok Adalat (herein-after referred to as "P.L.A.") has allowed the claim made by respondent No. 2 directing the L.I.C. to pay to the claimant-respondent a sum of Rs. 14,00,000/- (rupees fourteen lacs only) along with interest @ 9% per anum as covered by the Insurance Policy held by the insured, who was real brother of the claimant-respondent.

2. In short compass, the facts of the case, as pleaded in the writ petition, are that Thakur Prasad Singh, the brother of respondent No. 2, aged 47 years, was insured with the L.I.C. under Policy No. 297170129 dated 28-11-2011. Proposal of the said insured was accepted by the L.I.C. and Policy No. 297170129 dated 28-11-2011 was issued to him towards insurance of his life. Unfortunately, Thakur Prasad Singh died on 10-09-2012.

3. On receipt of information about the death of Thakur Prasad Singh, along with the claim papers, the L.I.C. made enquiries in the matter, whereupon, it stood revealed that prior to submitting the proposal for Policy No. 297170129 dated 28-11-2011, the assured was suffering from Enteric Fever and Urinary Tract Infection and was being treated for the same in Chitransh Hospital and Surgical Care Centre, Shivpur, Varanasi. Accordingly, the L.I.C., by its letter dated 28-11-2013, repudiated the claim of the respondent No.2.

4. After the claim was repudiated, respondent No.2 filed a Case No. 406 of 2014, (Kali Prasad Singh versus Life Insurance Corporation of India and others) before the Permanent Lok Adalat at Azamgarh for recovery of a sum of Rs.14,00,000/- (rupees fourteen lac only) towards death claim of Late Thakur Prasad Singh.

5. Having coming to know about the filing of complaint, the L.I.C. filed its reply in the matter denying the averments made by respondent No.2 in his application and stating therein that the Corporation had repudiated the claim of respondent No.2. on account of the wrong declaration made in the proposal form. It was further stated that the contract of insurance being one of utmost good faith (uberima-fide), repudiation was rightly done by the L.I.C. for breach of utmost good faith and payment of premium by the brother of respondent No.2 and revival of policies by the L.I.C. has no relevance qua the repudiation of policy. It was further stated that Section 45 of the Insurance Act authorizes the L.I.C. to repudiate the claim on the ground of fraud, misrepresentation or concealment of fact. Since the contract of insurance is a contract of utmost good faith, everything starts from submission of proposal form issued by the Insurance Company. The proposal form issued by the L.I.C. contains a declaration that the statements made in the form are true and correct to the best of the knowledge of the insured. Accordingly, the proposer/insured should not hide any fact in the proposal form. If the insured gives wrong information in the proposal form, the contract of insurance is vitiated. Further, on account of misstatement made by the deceased life-assured in reply to the questions in the proposal form with regard to his previous ailment, the life-assured had suppressed the facts, which were material for him to disclose. Accordingly, the contract of insurance became void and nothing was payable to the respondent No.2. It was further stated that the L.I.C. was not willing to settle the matter with the claimant.

6. After the parties led evidences in support of their respective claim and defence, the P.L.A., Azamgarh, by impugned judgment and award dated 15.02.2016, has allowed the claim and directed the L.I.C. to pay to the claimant-respondent a sum of Rs. 14,00,000/- (rupees fourteen lac only) along with 9% interest per anum as covered by Insurance Policy.

7. A counter affidavit has been filed by the claimant-respondent No. 2 stating that his brother was insured with the L.I.C. under Policy No. 297170129 dated 28-11-2011 and before the said policy was issued, respondent's brother, Thakur Prasad Singh was thoroughly examined by the Doctor of the Corporation on 23rd of November, 2011. It is further stated that after the claim papers were submitted before the L.I.C., it, instead of allowing the claim, directed to conduct an enquiry. The said enquiry is shown to have been made on 10-12-2013 and, to make out a ground for repudiating the claim, the Enquiry Officer mentioned that prior to submitting the proposal for Policy dated 28-11-2011, the deceased (life assured) was suffering from Enteric Fever and Urinary Tract Infection and he was being treated for some time in Chitransh Hospital and Surgical Care Centre, Shivpur, Varanasi. The illness cited in the report has nothing to do with the lawful claim for the reason that the brother of respondent No.2 was insured with the L.I.C. after thorough medical examination/check-ups conducted by the Doctors of L.I.C.

8. It is further stated in the counter affidavit that the basic object of the contract of insurance is to insure the life of the assured and the element of utmost good faith is equally applicable to the Corporation. Here, the Corporation, on its own, presumed that there was a breach of good faith, while there was no breach of good faith, and the fact of the matter is that the brother of the respondent No.2 was insured after thorough medical check-up and the death was not on account of any prolonged illness, therefore, the order repudiating the claim of respondent No.2 was wholly illegal.

9. It is further stated in the counter affidavit that the life assured did not give any misstatement. So far as previous ailments are concerned, the assured is not required to give details of all previous ailments, like Typhoid and Fever etc. The purpose of disclosure is to inform the serious disease, if any. Moreover, self-declaration of assured is not sufficient for insurance. The Corporation before issuing policy, conducts medical examination of the person seeking insurance. Here, in the given case, the brother of respondent No.2 was medically examined by the Doctors of L.I.C. on 23-11-2011 and taking into account the said medical report, policy was issued. There was no suppression by the life-assured. It is usually seen that Insurance Corporation, instead of allowing the claim of the life-assured, takes a number of objections. Here, in the given case also the Corporation illegally and arbitrarily repudiated the claim of respondent No.2 on the basis of the report of his officer, which was not at all accepted by the respondent No.2.

10. The petitioner has filed a rejoinder affidavit. Insofar as the pleadings contained in paragraph 5 of the counter affidavit to the effect that the insured was thoroughly examined by the Doctor of the Corporation on 23.11.2011, whose medical examination report is annexed as annexure No. CA-1 to the counter affidavit, are concerned, it has been stated in paragraph No. 7 of the rejoinder affidavit that the averments made in paragraph No. 5 of the counter affidavit are not admitted as they stand, and the respondent No. 2 is put to strict proof of the averments made therein. It is stated in paragraph No. 7 that the deceased life-assured was examined by the Doctor of the L.I.C., is of no help to respondent No. 2. However, pleadings contained in rejoinder affidavit are substantially reiteration of the contention raised through the writ petition.

11. I have heard Shri J. Nagar, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Shri Pratik J. Nagar, learned counsel for the petitioners and Shri J.P. Singh, learned counsel for respondent No. 2.

12. Shri J. Nagar, learned Senior Advocate has raised the following THREE ISSUES/CONTENTIONS for consideration by this Court in the present writ petition:

(1) The claim made by respondent No. 2 had a valuation of Rs.

14,00,000/- (rupees fourteen lac only) and, therefore, as per section 22C of the Legal Services Authorities Act, 1987, the P.L.A. had no jurisdiction to entertain and decide the case, because as per the second proviso to section 22 C (1) of the Act, the pecuniary limits of jurisdiction of the P.L.A. were confined to the matters, where the value of property in dispute was only Rs. 10,00,000/- (rupees ten lac only).

(2) The P.L.A. has failed to perform statutory duty cast upon it as per section 22 C (5) of the Legal Services Authorities Act, 1987, whereunder it was duty bound to hold conciliation proceedings before deciding the matter on merits.

(3) The claim of respondent No.2 was not entitled to be allowed as the deceased (insured) had, at the time of taking Insurance Policy, deliberately concealed his physical ailment, which subsequently stood revealed during the enquiry and, hence, the award of the P.L.A. is unsustainable.

13. This Court proceeds to deal with the aforesaid three contentions/issues as raised by Shri Nagar, learned Senior Advocate.

ISSUE/CONTENTION NO. 1 :-

14. Shri Nagar, learned Senior Advocate has, with reference to second proviso attached to section 22C (1) of the Legal Services Authorities Act, 1987, contended that the claim made before the P.L.A. was valued at Rs. 14,00,000/- (rupees fourteen lac only), whereas the pecuniary limits of jurisdiction of P.L.A. were restricted and confined upto claims of Rs. 10,00,000/- (rupees ten lac only) and, therefore, the impugned order is unsustainable.

15. To this argument of Shri Nagar, Shri J.P. Singh, learned counsel for respondent No. 2, has vehemently argued that the said contention cannot be allowed to be raised by the petitioner for two main reasons. First, as per section 21 of the Code of Civil Procedure (herein-after referred to as "C.P.C."), such objection to the pecuniary limits of jurisdiction of P.L.A. must have been taken before the court below itself at the earliest available opportunity, and once the same was not raised, either through any plea in the written statement or otherwise, the same cannot be allowed to be agitated before the writ court for the first time. Secondly, As per the Notification No. S.O. 803(E), dated 20.03.2015, issued by the Ministry of Law and Justice (Department of Justice), the pecuniary limits of jurisdiction of P.L.A. were enhanced from Rs. 10,00,000/- (ten lacs only) to Rs. 1,00,00,000/- (one crore only) with effect from the date of publication of the said Notification in the Official Gazette.

16. For a ready reference, section 21 of the Code of Civil Procedure and Notification No. S.O. 803(E), dated 20.03.2015 issued by the Ministry of Law and Justice (Department of Justice) are being respectively quoted herein-below:

"21. Objections to jurisdiction.-

(1) No objection as to the place of suing shall be allowed by any Appellate or Revisional Court unless such objection was taken in the Court of first instance at the earliest possible opportunity and in all cases where issues are settled at or before such settlement, and unless there has been a consequent failure of justice.

(2) No objection as to the competence of a Court with reference to the pecuniary limits of its jurisdiction shall be allowed by any Appellate or Revisional Court unless such objection was taken in the Court of first instance at the earliest possible opportunity, and, in all cases where issues are settled, at or before such settlement, and unless there has been a consequent failure of justice.

(3) No objection as to the competence of the executing Court with reference to the local limits of its jurisdiction shall be allowed by any Appellate or Revisional Court unless such objection was taken in the executing Court at the earliest possible opportunity, unless there has been a consequent failure of justice."

Notification No. S.O. 803(E), dated 20.03.2015

In exercise of the powers conferred by the third proviso to sub-section (1) of Section 22-C of the Legal Services Authorities Act, 1987 (39 of 1987) and in supersession of the Government of India, Ministry of Law and Justice (Department of Legal Affairs), Notification Number S.O. 2083(E), dated the 15th September, 2011, published in the Gazette of India, Extraordinary, Part II, Section 3, sub-section (i), dated the 15th September, 2011, the Central Government, in consultation with the Central Authority, hereby increases the limit of the value of the property in dispute for the purpose of determining the jurisdiction of Permanent Lok Adalat to "one crore rupees" with effect from the date of publication of this notification in the Official Gazette."

17. Shri Nagar, learned Senior Advocate has argued on behalf of the petitioner that since by virtue of section 22-D of the Legal Services Authorities Act, 1987, the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 shall not be applicable to the proceedings under the said Act, the contention of Shri J.P. Singh to the effect that objection to the pecuniary limits of jurisdiction, if not raised at the initial stage, shall be treated to have been waived, is not acceptable.

18. Before dealing with the said argument of Shri Nagar, it would be appropriate to refer to section 22-D of the Legal Services Authorities Act, 1987 which, for a ready reference, is reproduced as follows:

"22-D. Procedure of Permanent Lok Adalat.- The Permanent Lok Adalat shall, while conducting conciliation proceedings or deciding a dispute on merit under this Act, be guided by the principles of natural justice, objectivity, fair play, equity and other principles of justice, and shall not be bound by the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 (5 of 1908) and the Indian Evidence Act, 1872 (1 of 1872)."

19. The heading of the section 22-D speaks of "Procedure of Permanent Lok Adalat". The necessary implication of the words used in section 22 D of the Act, is that Permanent Lok Adalat will adopt its own procedure while dealing with the case and the procedure prescribed for trial of suits, as contained in the Code of Civil Procedure, would not be applicable.

20. However, it would be appropriate to mention that Code of Civil Procedure, though named as procedure, is divided into two parts, i.e. substantive part and the procedural part. The substantive part of the Code of Civil Procedure contains sections 1 to 158, whereas the procedural part is spread from Order I to Order LI. Section 21 of Code of Civil Procedure, as referred to herein above, regarding bar/stage of taking objections with regard to pecuniary limits of jurisdiction, finds place in the "substantive part" of the Code of Civil Procedure and not in the "procedural part". That is to say that section 22-D of the Legal Services Authorities Act, 1987 does not exclude applicability or significance of the substantive provisions of Code of Civil Procedure or their soul while considering any case, which is tried by Permanent Lok Adalat.

21. Even otherwise, section 22-D of the Act itself speaks that Permanent Lok Adalat shall be guided by the principles of Natural Justice, objectivity, fair play, equity and other principles of justice. In the opinion of this Court, words "natural justice, objectivity, fair play and equity" used in section 22-D of the Act, would mean that whatever objections are taken by any party to the litigation before the Permanent Lok Adalat, the rival parties must be aware of the same and must get an opportunity to rebut the same at appropriate stage. Meaning thereby, that a party cannot be taken by surprise and the objections, factual or legal, must be met during the course of the trial before the first court.

22. There is no dispute about the fact that the plea of alleged lack of pecuniary limits of jurisdiction of the P.L.A. was neither taken in the written statement nor was it otherwise raised on behalf of the petitioner, who was defendant in the proceedings before the P.L.A. Therefore, the effect of such omission would be fatal to the case of the petitioner, even if we ignore subsequent Notification dated 20th March, 2015, which was published in the Official Gazette on the same date as the argument of the learned Senior Advocate is to the effect that the case in reference was instituted prior to issuance of the said

Notification, and therefore, on the date of institution of proceedings, the P.L.A. was not competent to even register the case.

23. The Supreme Court, in the case of Om Prakash Agarwal (since deceased) through L.R. and others vs Vishan Dayal Rajpoot and another, reported in 2019 (14) SCC 526, has elaborately dealt with the effect of section 21 of C.P.C. upon proceedings with reference to the stage of objection to be raised in this regard. Paragraph Nos. 57, 58 and 59 of the said report are worth reproduction and, hence, are being reproduced as follows:

"57. The policy underlying Section 21 of Code of Civil Procedure is that when the case has been tried by a court on merits and the judgment rendered, it should not be liable to be reversed purely on technical grounds, unless it has resulted in failure of justice. The provisions akin to Section 21 are also contained in Section 11 of the Suit Valuation Act, 1887 and Section 99 of the Code of Civil Procedure. This Court had the occasion to consider the principle behind Section 21, Code of Civil Procedure and Section 11 of the Suit Valuation Act, 1887 in Kiran Singh v. Chaman Paswan AIR 1954 SC 340. In para 7 of the judgment following was laid down: (AIR p. 342)

"7.... The policy underlying Sections 21 and 99 of the Civil Procedure Code and Section 11 of the Suits Valuation Act is the same, namely, that when a case had been tried by a court on the merits and judgment rendered, it should not be liable to be reversed purely on technical grounds, unless it had resulted in failure of justice, and the policy of the legislature has been to treat objections to jurisdiction both territorial and pecuniary as technical and not open to consideration by an appellate court, unless there has been a prejudice on the merits. The contention of the appellants, therefore, that the decree and judgment of the District Court, Monghyr, should be treated as a nullity cannot be sustained under Section 11 of the Suits Valuation Act."

58. One more submission which was raised in the said appeal was considered by this Court. One of the submissions of the appellant who had instituted the suit in the subordinate court was that as per the revised valuation, the appeal against the decree of the subordinate Judge did not lie before the District Court but to the High Court, hence, the judgment of the District Judge in appeal should be ignored. The appeal in the High Court be treated as first appeal. It was contended that appellant has been prejudiced in the above manner. Rejecting the above submissions, this Court laid down following in paras 11 and 12: (Kiran Singh case, AIR p. 343)

"11. ... This argument proceeds on a misconception. The right of appeal is no doubt a substantive right, and its deprivation is a serious prejudice; but the appellants have not been deprived of the right of appeal against the judgment of the Subordinate Court. The law does provide an appeal against that judgment to the District Court, and the plaintiffs have exercised that right. Indeed, the undervaluation has enlarged the appellants' right of appeal, because while they would have had only a right of one appeal and that to the High Court if the suit had been correctly valued, by reason of the undervaluation they obtained right to two appeals, one to the District Court and another to the High Court. The complaint of the appellants really is not that they had been deprived of a right of appeal against the judgment of the subordinate court, which they have not been, but that an appeal on the facts against that judgment was heard by the District Court and not by the High Court. This objection therefore amounts to this that a change in the forum of appeal is by itself a matter of prejudice for the purpose of Section 11 of the Suits Valuation Act.

12. The question, therefore, is, can a decree passed on appeal by a court which had jurisdiction to entertain it only by reason of undervaluation, be set aside on the ground that on a true valuation that court was not competent to entertain the appeal? Three High Courts have considered the matter in Full Benches, and have come to the conclusion that mere change of forum is not a prejudice within the meaning of Section 11 of the Suits Valuation Act. Vide Kelu Achan v. Cheriya Parvathi Nethiar 1923 SCC Online Mad 356, Moolchand Motilal v. Ram Kishen 1933 SCC Online All 2, and Ramdeo v. Raj Narain 1948 SCC Online Pat 91. In our judgment, the opinion expressed in these decisions is correct."

59. The above principle has been reiterated by this Court in Hira Lal Patni v. Kali Nath AIR 1962 SC 199 and Bahreini Petroleum Co. Ltd. v. P.J. Pappu AIR 1966 SC 634."

24. Similar view has been taken by the Supreme Court in the case of Subhash Mahadevasa Habib vs Nemasa Ambasa Dharmadas (Dead) by LRs. and others, reported in 2007 (13) SCC 650, reference to paragraph No. 34 whereof can be made, which reads as follows:

"34. It may be noted that Section 21 provided that no objection as to place the suing can be allowed by even an appellate or revisional court unless such objection was taken in the court of first instance at the earliest possible opportunity and unless there has been a consequent failure of justice. In 1976, the existing Section was numbered as sub- Section (1) and sub-Section (2) was added relating to pecuniary jurisdiction by providing that no objection as to competence of a court with reference to the pecuniary limits of its jurisdiction shall be allowed by any appellate or revisional court unless such objection had been taken in the first instance at the earliest possible opportunity and unless there had been a consequent failure of justice. Section 21A also was introduced in 1976 with effect from 1.2.1977 creating a bar to the institution of any suit challenging the validity of a decree passed in a former suit between the same parties on any ground based on an objection as to the place of suing. The amendment by Act 104 of 1976 came into force only on 1.2.1977 when O.S. No. 4 of 1972 was pending. By virtue of Section 97(1)(c) of the Amendment Act, 1976, the said suit had to be tried and disposed of as if Section 21 of the Code had not been amended by adding sub-Section (2) thereof. Of course, by virtue of Section 97(3) if Section 21A had to be applied, if it has application. But then, Section 21A on its wording covers only what it calls a defect as to place of suing."

25. Reference to another decision of the Supreme Court in the case of R.S.D.V. Finance Co. Pvt. Ltd. Vs Shree Vallabh Glass Works Ltd, reported in 1993 (2) SCC 130 , can also be made with reference to concept of consequent failure of justice.

26. Learned counsel for respondent No. 2 has also relied upon the judgment of Madras High Court in the case of Appat Krishna Poduval vs Lakshmi Nathiar and others, reported in AIR (37) 1950 Madras 751, in which it was held as under:-

"8. The learned District Munsif has dealt with this aspect of the case elaborately and I do not think it necessary to reiterate the reasons which he has given for rejecting the contention relying on the following observations in Kumaran Nambiar v. Ramunni, 1988-1 M. D. J. 193: (A. I. R. (25) 1998 Mad. 257):

"To treat want of territorial or pecuniary jurisdiction as amounting to incompetency, seems incompatible with the idea underlying the two statutory provisions mentioned above (S. 11, Suita Valuation Act and S. 21, Civil P C.). These sections provide that even had the objection not been waived, that is to say, had been taken in the Court of first instance, the presence of a further element is essential, viz. that there has been consequent failure of justice. The principle that they appear to embody is that these defects of jurisdiction are not fundamental in character and are no more than irregularities in the exercise of jurisdiction."

9. In this case I do not see any justification for holding that there has been a failure of justice by reason of the claim not having been in respect of the entire amount due for all the three thavzahis but only in respect of two thavazhis represented by the plaintiffs and I do not see much substance in this point and especially when the petitioner who raised this point at the time of the trial but did not take it up in appeal."

27. Learned counsel for respondent No. 2 has also placed reliance upon the judgment of Supreme Court in the case of Kiran Singh and others vs. Chaman Paswan and others, reported in AIR 1954 SC 340 holding that-

 "With reference to objections relating to territorial jurisdiction, section 21 of the Civil Procedure Code enacts that no objection to the place of suing should be allowed by an appellate or revisional Court, unless there was a consequent failure of justice.

It is the same principle that has been adopted in section 11 of the Suits Valuation Act with reference to pecuniary jurisdiction. The policy underlying sections 21 and 99 of the Civil Procedure Code and section 11 of the Suits Valuation Act is the same, namely, that when a case had been tried by a Court on the merits and judgment rendered, it should not be liable to be reversed purely on technical grounds, unless it had resulted in failure of justice, and the policy of the Legislature has been to treat objections to jurisdiction both territorial and pecuniary as technical and not open to consideration by an appellate Court, unless there has been a prejudice on the merits. The contention of the appellants, therefore, that the decree and judgment of the District Court, Monghyr, should be treated as a nullity cannot be sustained under section 11 of the Suits Valuation Act."

28. Further reliance has been placed reliance upon the judgment of the Supreme Court in the case of Koopilan Uneen's daughter Pathumma and others vs Uneen's son Kuntalan Kutty (dead) by LRs and others, reported in AIR 1981 SC 1683 as well as the judgment of Supreme Court in the case of Harshad Chimani Lal Modi vs D.L.F. Universal Ltd. and another reported in AIR 2005 SC 4446 wherein same view has been taken. He has also placed reliance upon the judgment of Orissa High Court in the case of Surendra Mahanti vs Ghasiram Mahanti and others, reported in AIR 1996 Orissa 172 reiterating the same view in the light of miscarriage of justice and also upon the judgment of High Court of Himachal Pradesh in the case of Ajay Singh (deceased by Lrs.) and etc. vs Tikka Brijendra Singh and others etc. reported in AIR 2007 Himachal Pradesh 52, where the same proposition of law has been reiterated.

29. In this regard, concept of "Waiver" should also be reiterated which is an intentional relinquishment of a known legal right. In the present case, the petitioner had a legal right to raise objections regarding pecuniary limits of jurisdiction immediately after registration of the case, or even thereafter. However, for the reasons best known to it, the said objection was admittedly not raised, and therefore, the same shall be deemed to have been waived.

30. Reference to judgement of Supreme Court in the case of ARCE Polymers Private Limited vs Alphine Pharmaceuticals Private Limited and others reported in 2022 (2) SCC 221, can be made, paragraph Nos. 16 and 17 of which read as follows:

"16. Waiver is an intentional relinquishment of a known right. Waiver applies when a party knows the material facts and is cognizant of the legal rights in that matter, and yet for some consideration consciously abandons the existing legal right, advantage, benefit, claim or privilege. Waiver can be contractual or by express conduct in consideration of some compromise. However, a statutory right may also be waived by implied conduct, like, by wanting to take a chance of a favourable decision. The fact that the other side has acted on it, is sufficient consideration.

17. It is correct that waiver being an intentional relinquishment is not to be inferred by mere failure to take action, but the present case is of repeated positive acts post the notices under Sections 13(2) and (4) of the SARFAESI Act. Not only did the Borrower not question or object to the action of the Bank, but it by express and deliberate conduct had asked the Bank to compromise its position and alter the contractual terms. The Borrower wrote repeated request letters for restructuring of loans, which prayers were considered by the Bank by giving indulgence, time and opportunities. The Borrower, aware and conscious of its rights, chose to abandon the statutory claim and took its chance and even procured favourable decisions. Even if we are to assume that the Borrower did not waive the remedy, its conduct had put the Bank in a position where they have lost time, and suffered on account of delay and laches, which aspects are material. Action on the Subject Property was delayed by more than a year as at the behest of the Borrower, the Bank gave them a long rope to regularise the account. To ignore the conduct of the Borrower would not be reasonable to the Bank once third party rights have been created. In this background, the principle of equitable estoppel as a rule of evidence bars the Borrower from complaining of violation."

31. Shri J.P. Singh has further relied upon the judgment of Supreme Court in the case of Krishna Bahadur vs M/s Purna Theatre and others, reported in AIR 2004 SC 4282, paragraph Nos. 8 and 9 whereof are reproduced as under:

"8. The principle of waiver although is akin to the principle of estoppel; the difference between the two, however, is that whereas estoppel is not a cause of action; it is a rule of evidence; waiver is contractual and may constitute a cause of action; it is an agreement between the parties and a party fully knowing of its rights has agreed not to assert a right for a consideration.

9. A right can be waived by the party for whose benefit certain requirements or conditions had been provided for by a statute subject to the condition that no public interest is involved therein. Whenever waiver is pleaded it is for the party pleading the same to show that an agreement waiving the right in consideration of some compromise came into being. Statutory right, however, may also be waived by his conduct."

32. Learned counsel for the respondent No.2 has also placed reliance upon the judgment of Supreme Court in the case of M/s Power Control Appliance and others vs Sumeet Machines Pvt. Ltd. reported in 1994 (2) SCC 448. Paragraph No. 26 of the said judgement is reproduced as follows:

"26. Acquiescence is sitting by, when another is invading the rights and spending money on it. It is a course of conduct inconsistent with the claim for exclusive rights in a trade mark, trade name etc. It implies positive acts; not merely silence or inaction such as is involved in laches. In Harcourt v. White (1860)28 Beav 303, Sr. John Romilly said: "It is important to distinguish mere negligence and acquiescence." Therefore, acquiescence is one facet of delay. If the plaintiff stood by knowingly and let the defendants build up an important trade until it had become necessary to crush it, then the plaintiffs would be stopped by their acquiescence. If the acquiescence in the infringement amounts to consent, it will be a complete defence as was laid down in Mouson (J. G.) & Co. v. Boehm (1884) 26 Ch D 406. The acquiescence must be such as to lead to the inference of a licence sufficient to create a new right in the defendant as was laid down in Rodgers v. Nowill, (1847) 2 De GM &G 614."

33. Shri J.P. Singh has, apart from arguing that the objection to pecuniary limits of jurisdiction was not raised by the petitioner before the court below, submitted that even if, at the time of institution of proceedings, the P.L.A., financial limits were confined to Rs. 10,00,000/- only (rupees ten lac only), there would not be any consequent failure of justice, if the claim of Rs. 14,00,000/- (rupees fourteen lac) has been finally allowed by the P.L.A. particularly, when the financial limits had already been enhanced to Rs. 1,00,00,000/- (rupees one crore), vide Notification dated 20th March, 2015.

34. I deal with this aspect of the matter and find that insofar as the effect of Notification dated 20th March, 2015 is concerned, admittedly, the case in reference was decided by the P.L.A. in the year 2016. That is to say that it was entertained and judicial mind was applied on the facts and circumstances involved in the case at the time when the pecuniary limits of jurisdiction were already enhanced from Rs.10,00,000/- (rupees ten lac) to Rs.1,00,00,000/- (rupees one crore). Therefore, on the date of its decision, the P.L.A. had financial competence to adjudicate upon the claim of respondent No. 2, which has been accepted and allowed under the order impugned.

35. As per Black's Law Dictionary (7th Edition) by Bryan A. Garner, Editor in Chief, the word "Entertain" has been defined as "to bear in mind or consider, to give judicial consideration to". The New Lexicon Webster's Dictionary of the English Language defines the word "Entertain" as "to give thought or consideration to" and "to have in one's mind". The Chambers Dictionary (10th Edition) explains the word "Entertain" as "to keep or hold in the mind" and "to receive and take into consideration".

36. Expression "Institute" is not synonymous with the expression "Entertain", the Supreme Court in the case of Martin and Harris Limited vs Sixth Additional District Judge and others, reported in 1998 (1) SCC 732 interpreted the expression "Entertain" in section 21 (1) (a) of the U.P. Urban Buildings (Regulation of Letting, Rent and Eviction) Act, 1972, to mean entertaining the ground for consideration for the purpose of adjudication on merits and not on any stage prior throughout.

37. A Division Bench of Calcutta High Court, in the case of Tufan Chatterjee vs Rangan Dhar, reported in AIR 2016 Calcutta 213, has elaborately explained the meaning of word "Entertain". The decision of Tufan Chatterjee (supra) was considered by the Apex Court in a very recent decision in the case of ARCELOR Mittal Nippon Steel India Limited vs Essar Bulk Terminal Limited reported in 2022 (1) SCC 712, paragraph No. 38 whereof is worth reproduction, which reads as follows:

"38. Mr. Khambata referred to the meaning of "entertain" in Black's Law Dictionary (Bryan A. Garner, 8th edition, 2004), which is to "bear in mind or "to give judicial consideration to". Mr. Khambata also cited the judgment of a Division Bench of the Calcutta High Court in Tufan Chatterjee v. Rangan Dhar, 2016 SCC Online Cal 483, authored by one of us, (Indira Banerjee, J.). In Tufan Chatterjee (supra), the word "entertain" was interpreted to mean "considering an application on merits, even at the final stage". Mr. Khambata argued that the interpretation of the term "entertain" by the Gujarat High Court in the judgment and order impugned, is consistent with the interpretation of the expression in Tufan Chatterjee (supra)."

38. Once this Court finds that the plea of pecuniary limits of jurisdiction was neither taken in the written submission nor was argued before the P.L.A throughout the proceedings of the case in reference, this Court cannot allow the same to be raised for the first time in the present writ petition. The situation would have been different, had the issue been with respect to "inherent lack of jurisdiction" of the P.L.A. and not with respect to its pecuniary limits, inasmuch as, in the previous case, the decree/judgment/award would have become without jurisdiction, which is not the situation in a case where difficulty in jurisdiction is co-related to the pecuniary limits.

39. In view of above discussion, it is clear that in any case, on the date when the impugned judgment and award was passed by the P.L.A., the Court was well within its financial/pecuniary limits of power, competence and jurisdiction to adjudicate the same, and therefore, the argument on issue No. 1, as raised by Shri Nagar, learned Senior Advocate, cannot be accepted and is hereby discarded.

40. Shri J. Nagar, learned Senior Advocate has vehemently argued that the duty cast upon the P.L.A. under section 22-C (5), (6) and (7) of the Legal Services Authorities Act, 1987, to hold conciliation proceedings, has been avoided by the P.L.A., inasmuch as no conciliation proceedings were held before finally deciding the matter. In support of his submissions, learned Senior Advocate has placed reliance upon the following authorities:

- Bar Council of India vs Union of India, 2012 (8) SCC 243

- Madhya Pradesh State Legal Services Authority vs Prateek Jain and another, 2014(10) SCC 690

- Inter Globe Aviation Ltd. Vs N.Satchidanand, 2011 (7) SCC 463

- State Bank of India, Dhanbad vs State of Jharkhand and another, 2009(2) AIR Jhar R 970

- Mithoolal Nayak vs Life Insurance Corporation of India, AIR 1962 Supreme Court 814;

- Smt. Krishna Wanti Puri vs The Life Insurance Corporation of India, Divisional Officer, New Delhi and another, AIR 1975 Delhi 19;

- Canara Bank vs G.S. Jayarama, Aironline 2022 SC 835;

- Life Insurance Corporation of India vs Syed Zaigham Ali and another, (Writ-C No. 39879 of 2015 decided on 21.07.2015);

- Life Insurance Corporation of India (LIC) and another vs Permanent Lok Adalat and another, 2018 ADJ Online 0484;

- Nitin Kumar vs Oriental Insurance Company Limited and 3 others (Writ C No. 28999 of 2013 decided on 16.12.2021);

41. Per contra, Shri J.P. Singh, learned counsel for respondent No. 2 has argued that the P.L.A. has taken into consideration the stand taken by the petitioner in his written statement that right from the very beginning the defendant-petitioner had expressed its intention in clear words and conduct not to settle the matter and not to sit for any talks for conciliation. The pleadings contained in the written statement that "महोदय हम विपक्षी को कोई सुलह नहीं करना है।" are clear to this effect.

42. Shri J.P. Singh has further referred to paragraph No. 23 of the affidavit of Ram Kumar Singh, Manager (Law) of the Life Insurance Corporation, Regional Office, Gorakhpur filed in the proceedings before the P.L.A. stating on oath as follows:

"23. यह कि मैं, राम कुमार सिंह बहलफ बयान करता हूँ कि हम प्रतिवादीगण वादी से इस मामले में किसी प्रकार का समझौता करने हेतु तैयार नहीं हैं"

43. Shri Singh has also referred to the clear findings recorded by the P.L.A. that conciliation proceedings were held by the P.L.A. and sufficient opportunity of hearing was provided continuously to the parties, but on 10.04.2015, during the course of such conciliation proceedings, the defendant-petitioner had, in writing, given a statement that it did not want to compromise/conciliate the matter, and therefore, the matter was heard on merits. The said findings are extracted hereunder:

"जहाँ पर सुलह वार्ता के बिन्दु पर भी पत्रावली का अवलोकन किया गया तो पाया गया कि पक्षकारों को पर्याप्त अवसर दिया जाता रहा, परन्तु विपक्षीगण द्वारा दिनांक 10.4.2015 को सुलह वार्ता के बिन्दु पर विपक्षी ने लिखित में यह कथन किया है कि "महोदय हम विपक्षी को कोई सुलह नहीं करना है" इस प्रकार पक्षों के मध्य सुलह वार्ता असफल रही है और पक्षों ने गुणदोष के आधार पर उभयपक्षों को तर्क पूर्वक बहस सुनी गयी तथा पत्रावली में उपलब्ध साक्ष्यों के अवलोकन

करने के उपरांत स्थायी लोक अदालत की पीठ इस निष्कर्ष पर पहुंची है कि....."

44. This Court has also perused the contents of paragraph Nos. 23 and 24 of the present writ petition, which read as follows:

"23. That there is nothing on record to show that the Life Insurance Corporation of India ever agreed for settlement or negotiation of dispute through Permanent Lok Adalat, as provided under the Legal Services Authorities Act, 1987.

24. That the Permanent Lok Adalat cannot adopt the role of an Arbitrator or a Civil Court and proceed in the matter without consent of both the parties."

45. From the aforesaid, it is clear that not only in pleadings, but also in the affidavit of the Officer of L.I.C., and also, during the course of conciliation proceedings held by the P.L.A. and further before this writ court, consistent stand of the defendant-petitioner L.I.C. has been that it never wanted to settle or negotiate the dispute and that it even disputed the competence of P.L.A. to get the matter settled through negotiation.

46. There is no dispute about the proposition laid down in the Authorities cited by Shri Nagar as to the role of P.L.A. regarding conciliation, however, at the same time, the ratio laid down in the aforesaid Authorities has to be examined in the light of factual background of the present case, where this Court finds that written statement, affidavit, another written statement during the course of conciliation proceedings and also pleadings contained in paragraph Nos. 23 and 24 of the writ petition clearly infer that despite best efforts made by the respondent as well as by the P.L.A., the conciliation proceedings were not held due to stiff and stubborn attitude of the Corporation and its officials.

47. In this regard, importance of sub-sections (5) and (6) of Section 22-C of the Legal Services Authorities Act, 1987 cannot be ignored, which are reproduced for ready reference:

"(5) The Permanent Lok Adalat shall, during conduct of conciliation proceedings under sub-section (4), assist the parties in their attempt to reach an amicable settlement of the dispute in an independent and impartial manner.

(6) It shall be the duty of every party to the application to cooperate in good faith with the Permanent Lok Adalat in conciliation of the dispute relating to the application and to comply with the direction of the Permanent Lok Adalat to produce evidence and other related documents before it."

48. In view of aforesaid provisions of the Legal Services Authorities Act, 1987, the petitioner, before putting a blame on the P.L.A., should introspect itself in the light of pleadings and statements as referred to herein-above inasmuch as the words "assist the parties in their attempt to reach an amicable settlement" used in sub-section (5) of the Section 22C of the Act and the words "it shall be duty of every party to the application to cooperate in good faith with the Permanent Lok Adalat in conciliation of the dispute" make the legislative intent clear to the effect that conciliation proceedings can be held by the P.L.A. with the cooperation of the parties to the lis and in case, one of the parties is adamant not to enter into talks of compromise or conciliation, the P.L.A. cannot be expected to whip a party to conciliate the matter. Therefore, under such circumstances, the judgment of P.L.A. on merits after recording such refusal by the parties, cannot be faulted on the ground that it should not have been passed on merits in violation of provisions of "conciliation".

49. In view of above discussion, the issue/contention No. 2 raised by Shri Nagar, learned Senior Advocate is also hereby discarded.

ISSUE/CONTENTION NO. 3 :-

50. It is with respect to merits of the claim made by respondent No. 2 and the contention of Shri Nagar, learned Senior Advocate is that at the time of taking the Policy No. 297170129 dated 28.11.2011, the deceased (assured) was suffering from Enteric Fever and Urinary Tract Infection and was being treated at Chitransh Hospital and Surgical Care Centre, Shuddhipur, Shivpur, Varanasi, and therefore, the L.I.C. was justified in repudiating the claim in exercise of powers under section 45 of the Insurance Act as the deceased had made concealment of his physical ailment, which was a material fact. He has argued that the policy was issued on 28.11.2011 and the assured died on 10.09.2012 and since the death took place within two years from issuance of policy, the repudiation of the claim was according to law.

51. In support of his submission, Shri Nagar has relied upon the judgment of Supreme Court in the case of Mithoolal Nayak vs Life Insurance Corporation of India, reported in AIR 1962 Supreme Court 814, and has emphasised upon paragraph No. 7 of the report, which reads as follows:

"7. We shall presently consider the evidence, but it may be advantageous to read first Section 45 of the Insurance Act, 1938, as it stood at the relevant time. The section, so far as it is relevant for our purpose, is in these terms:

"No policy of life insurance effected before the commencement of this Act shall after the expiry of two years from the date of commencement of this Act and no policy of life insurance effected after the coming into force of this Act shall, after the expiry of two years from the date on which it was effected, be called in question by an insurer on the ground that a statement made in the proposal for insurance or in any report of a medical officer, or referee, or friend of the insured, or in any other document leading to the issue of the policy, was inaccurate or false, unless the insurer shows that such statement was on a material matter or suppressed facts which it was material to disclose and that it was fraudulently made by the policy-holder and that the policy-holder knew at the time of making it that the statement was false or that it suppressed facts which it was material to disclose.

It would be noticed that the operating part of S. 45 states in effect (so far as is relevant for our purpose) that no policy of life insurance effected after the coming into force of the Act shall, after the expiry of two years from the date on which it was effected, be called in question by an insurer on the ground that a statement made in the proposal for insurance or in any report of a medical officer, or referee, or friend of the insured, or in any other document leading to the issue of the policy, was inaccurate or false; the second part of the section is in the nature of a proviso which creates an exception. It says in effect that if the insurer shows that such statement was on a material matter or suppressed facts which it was material to disclose and that it was fraudulently made by the policyholder and that the policyholder knew at the time of making it that the statement was false or that it suppressed facts which it was material to disclose, then the insurer can call in question the policy effected as a result of such inaccurate or false statement. In the case before us the policy was issued on March 13, 1945, and it was to come into effect from January 15, 1945. The amount insured was payable after January 15, 1968, or at the death of the insured, if earlier. The respondent company repudiated the claim by its letter dated October 10, 1947. Obviously, therefore, two years had expired from the date on which the policy was effected. We are clearly of the opinion that S. 45 of the Insurance Act applies in the present case in view of the clear terms in which the section is worded, though learned counsel for the respondent company sought, at one stage, to argue that the revival of the policy some time in July, 1946, constituted in law a new contract between the parties and if two years were to be counted from July, 1946, then the period of two years had not expired from the date of the revival. Whether the revival of a lapsed policy constitutes a new contract or not for other purposes, it is clear from the wording of the operative part of S. 45 that the period of two years for the purpose of the section has to be calculated from the date on which the policy was originally effected; in the present case this can only mean the date on which the policy (Ex. P-2) was effected. From that date a period of two years had clearly expired when the respondent company repudiated the claim. As we think that S. 45 of the Insurance Act applies in the present case, we are relieved of the task of examining the legal position that would follow as a result of inaccurate statements made by the insured in the proposal form or the personal statement etc. in a case where S. 45 does not apply and where the averments made in the proposal form and in the personal statement are made the basis of the contract."

52. Shri Nagar has also relied upon a judgment of Delhi High Court in the case of Smt. Krishna Wanti Puri vs The Life Insurance Corporation of India, Divisional Officer, New Delhi and another, reported in AIR 1975 Delhi, 19 in support of his contention that even if the Doctor of the Corporation had reported medical condition of the assured as fit, the same would not be a decisive factor to allow the claim. He has referred to paragraph Nos. 42 and 43 of the said judgment, which are reproduced as follows:

"42. The plaintiff's Counsel lastly urged that before the deceased was insured he was examined by as many as three doctors of the Corporation Dr. Uppal, Dr. R. N. Rohatri and Dr. Kartar Singh. All these doctors: appeared in the witness on behalf of the Corporation. It is true that all of them deposed that in the opinion the deceased was fit to be insured at the time of their examination but their evidence does not advance the case of the plaintiff. The corporation did not know that there was a fraudulent suppression of facts by the deceased. The terms of the policy make it clear that the averments made as to the state of health of the insured in the Proposal form and the personal statement were the basis of contract between the parties and the circumstances that Dharam Pal Puri had taken Pains to conceal that he had ever been treated for this serious ailment by Dr (Miss) S. Padmavati when in fact he had been treated only a few months before he took out the first policy dated October 12, 1959, shows that the fraudulent suppression and concealment had an important bearing in obtaining the consent of the Corporation.

43. On the whole case my conclusion is that the declarations made by the deceased in the Personal statement were on a material matter and that he suppressed fraudulently facts which were material to disclose and that the deceased knew at the time of making the statement that it was false and that he suppressed facts which it was his duty to disclose."

53. Per contra, the contention of Shri J.P. Singh, learned counsel for respondent No.2 is that on merits, the grounds of repudiation cannot be sustained for the simple reason that admittedly, the cause of death of the policy-holder was not at all the disease cited in the order of repudiation. On the contrary, the cause of death was heart attack. Attention has been drawn to Supreme Court's judgment dated 05.10.2015 passed in Civil Appeal No. 8245 of 2015 (Arising out of S.L.P.(C) No. 13589 of 2015 (Sulbha Prakash Motegaonkar and others vs Life Insurance Corporation of India), where the Insurance Company had repudiated the claim of the policy holder on the ground that he was suffering from lumbar spondilitis with PID with sciatica. The Supreme Court held that element of the disease was not a life threatening disease and it could not be cause of death of the insured.

54. Shri J.P. Singh has argued that since in the present case also, the diseases cited in the order of repudiation were not life threatening disease, and admittedly, the death of the insured occurred due to heart attack, non-disclosure of the fact that the insured was hospitalized for few days in the hospital before taking the policy, could not be a valid ground for repudiating the claim. He has further argued that even otherwise, here the insured had not taken policy for the first time in 2011, rather he had taken first policy in 2004 and had been continuously depositing the installments of the policies and it is not the case that when the insured purchased the policy, he was bed ridden. On the contrary, before accepting the policy, the insured was medically examined by the Medical Examiner of L.I.C. and the confidential report of the Medical Examiner of L.I.C. dated 23-11-2011 has already been brought on record as Annexure CA-1, in which, there was nothing adverse to the insured, therefore, the order of repudiating the claim cannot be sustained.

55. This Court proceeds to consider the rival contentions made at the bar regarding merits of the claim of respondent No. 2.

56. A perusal of the impugned order dated 28.11.2011, whereby the L.I.C. had repudiated the claim of respondent No. 2, shows that it was on the ground that assured had remained hospitalized in Chitransh Hospital and Surgical Care Centre, Shivpur, Varanasi for the period w.e.f. 12.10.2011 to 17.10.2011 (five days), while he was suffering from Enteric Fever and Urinary Tract Infection. For a ready reference, the ground for rejection of claim by the L.I.C. is extracted herein-below:

"उपरोक्त पालिसी जो स्व० ठाकुर प्रसाद सिंह के जीवन पर जारी की गई थी, के सम्बन्ध में आप द्वारा प्रस्तुत मृत्यु दावा के अन्तर्गत हमने पालिसी के समस्त दायित्वों को निरस्त करने का निर्णय इस आधार पर लिया है कि स्व० पालिसीधारक पालिसी लेने के पूर्व दिनांक 12.10.2011 से 17.10.2011 तक Enteric Fever &

UTI यानि टाइफाइड एवं मूत्रीय पथ संक्रमण की बिमारी की इलाज हेतु चित्रांस हास्पिटल एवं सर्जिकल केयर सेन्टर शुद्धीपुर शिवपुर वाराणसी में भर्ती रहा। बीमाधारक बीमा प्रस्ताव पत्र दिनांकित 30.11.2011 भरते समय जान बूझकर इस महत्वपूर्ण तात्विक तथ्य को छिपाकर धोखे से बीमा संरक्षण प्राप्त कर लिया गया था।

हमारे पास यह मानने एवं प्रमाणित करने हेतु पर्याप्त साक्ष्य उपलब्ध है जिससे प्रमाणित होता है कि स्व० बीमाधारक पालिसी लेने के पूर्व से Enteric Fever & UTI यानि टाइफाइड एवं मूत्रीय पथ संक्रमण की बिमारी से पीड़ित था किन्तु बीमा प्रस्ताव भरते समय बीमारी सम्बन्धी तथ्य को छिपाकर धोखे से बीमा संरक्षण प्राप्त कर लिया था।"

57. I have perused the annexure C.A.-1 to the counter affidavit, which is a copy of medical examiner's confidential report dated 23.11.2011 and such examination was done by the Doctor of the Corporation itself, where everything regarding health of the assured was mentioned to be fine.

58. I have also perused the prescription/diagnosis made by the Chitransh Hospital and Surgical Care Centre, Shivpur, Varanasi forming part of Annexure No. 3 to the writ petition, which is a report/form filled up and prepared by the Investigating Official of the Corporation. A perusal of the said report reveals that the official visited the Hospital concerned on 10.10.2013, i.e. one year after the death of assured and, insofar as the cause of death as mentioned in the said report is concerned, the same has been described as heavy pain in the chest felt by assured on 10.09.2012 when he died during the course of treatment in Hospital of Dr. R.N. Dwivedi, situated in front of the house of the deceased. The said noting is found in answer to question No. 11 contained in the form in the following words:

"मृतक बीमेदार 10.09.2012 को सीने में तेज दर्द शुरू हुआ उनके घर वाले घर के सामने जाओ आरओ एनओ द्विवेदी के अस्पताल मे ले गये । इलाज के दौरान उनकी मृत्यु हो गई । आत्म हत्या की कोई सम्भावना नहीं है।"

59. Further, insofar as physical ailment of the assured w.e.f. 12.10.2011 to 17.10.2011 in Chitransh Hospital and Surgical Care Centre, Shivpur, Varanasi is concerned, a noting is found in the form as answer to question No. 12 in the following words:

"मृतक बीमेदार पालिसी लेने से पूर्व बुखार होने के कारण चित्रांश हस्पताल वाराणसी में 12.10.2011 से 17.10.2011 तक इलाज करवाया। प्रपत्र फाइल में संलग्न है।"

60. From perusal of the entire facts and material available on record regarding physical ailment of the assured, I find substance in the arguments of Shri J.P. Singh, learned counsel for respondent No. 2 that the sufferance of the deceased from fever in October, 2011 and five days' hospitalization due to the same at Chitransh Hospital and Surgical Care Centre, Shivpur, Varanasi, could not be taken as a ground for repudiating the claim of respondent No. 2 after the death of assured, which occurred after one year on 12.09.2012, particularly, when the Fever or Enteric Fever cannot be treated as a life threatening disease, moreso, when cause of death has been described by the Investigating Official of the Corporation itself, as sudden severe pain in the chest of the deceased on 10.09.2012, when he died the same day during treatment in a Hospital situated in front of his house.

61. Insofar as the judgement cited by Shri Nagar regarding period of death or the opinion of the Doctor, in the case of Mithoolal Nayak (supra) is concerned, there the Supreme Court was dealing with the matter and examining the provisions of section 45 of the Insurance Act, in the light of peculiar facts of that case, where challenge was made in respect of a lapsed policy with reference to two years period. The effect of concealment of material fact was also examined and repudiation of claim by the Life Insurance Corporation was found to be justified. However, with due respect the case of Mithoolal Nayak (supra) would be of no help to the petitioner as the case in hand is neither a case of lapsed policy nor in view of the aforesaid discussion, this Court finds that non-mentioning of sufferance of fever one year prior to death of the assured was a fact material to decide the claim. Therefore, section 45 of Insurance Act, cannot come in the way of respondent No. 2 to claim desired relief in the factual matrix of the present case.

62. Insofar as the judgment of Delhi High Court in the case of Krishna Wanti Puri (supra) is concerned, it was a case where three Doctors of the Corporation examined the assured and appeared in the witness box of the Corporation stating that the deceased was in a fit medical condition. The Corporation did not know that there was a fraudulent suppression of the facts by the deceased. The case before the Delhi High Court was where the assured was suffering from serious ailment i.e., Mitral Stenosis with Auricular Fibrillation, which was described as a type of rheumatic heart disease, which, according to the Insurance Corporation, in that case, was deliberately concealed by the assured. It was in the peculiar factual background of the said case that the Delhi High Court came to the conclusion that the said serious ailment was a material fact, which was deliberately and fraudulently suppressed by the assured at the time of taking the policy.

63. However, in the present case, it has elaborately been discussed that medical opinion furnished by the Doctor of the Corporation as contained in the certificate filed as annexure No. CA-1 to the counter affidavit, when compared to the subsequent report of the Investigating Official of the Corporation, clearly established that cause of death, which occurred on 10.09.2012, had absolutely no co-relation with the fever suffered by the assured one year ago, and therefore, non-disclosure of such a Fever/Enteric Fever/Urinary Tract Infection cannot be treated as suppression of a material fact while deciding the claim made by the respondent No. 2. Therefore, the facts of the case in the case of Mithoolal Nayak (supra) and Smt. Krishna Wanti Puri (supra) are distinguishable.

64. In view of above discussion, the issue/contention No. 3 raised by Shri Nagar, learned Senior Advocate also does not have any force and is hereby discarded.

65. While I am fully satisfied that grounds raised by the petitioner Life Insurance Corporation of India challenging the impugned award of Permanent Lok Adalat do not have any substance, the claim made by the respondent No.2 has rightly been allowed by the Permanent Lok Adalat under the order impugned.

66. In view of above discussion, I do not find any good ground to interfere with the impugned judgement and award of Permanent Lok Adalat dated 15.02.2016. Consequently, the writ petition fails and is accordingly dismissed, however, without imposing any costs.

67. In the present writ petition, an interim order was passed on 06.05.2016 staying the operation of the impugned award dated 15.02.2016 subject to condition of making deposit of the entire amount by the L.I.C. as awarded along with upto date interest with a further stipulation that the amount so deposited shall be kept in a fixed deposit with a nationalized Bank. Therefore, the amount deposited by the Life Insurance Corporation under the said interim order shall positively be released in favour of respondent No. 2 within a period of two months from the date a certified copy of this judgment and order is produced before the court below. The court below shall also ensure that nationalized Bank, in which the amount has been invested in pursuance of the interim order dated 06.05.2016, shall be directed and informed to release the same along with interest accrued upto date in favour of respondent No.2 within a period of two months.

Counsel for the Petitioners:

Counsel for the Respondents:

C.S.C., Sri Janmed Kumar

A. Civil Law - U.P. Industrial Disputes Act, 1947 - Section 6(4) , 4K, 6N-Reinstatement- once the Tribunal found termination of the services of the petitioner as contrary to the provisions of law, relief only in the form of compensation etc would be unjust and the Labour Court should have directed reinstatement of the petitioner in service with full or 50% back-wages. The Court does not find any cogent reasoning in the order of the Labour Court in so far as the denial of relief of reinstatement or back-wages is concerned- no reference made in the order impugned dated 15.09.2014 that any opportunity of hearing was provided to the parties before remitting the matter to the Labour Court. Therefore, remittance made by the Labour Commissioner under the order impugned dated 15.09.2014 is found to be in teeth of specific provisions of Section 6(4) of U.P. Act. (Para 1 to 42)

Writ-C No.23241 of 2016
(M/S Bureau Chief Rastriya Sahara And Another Vs. Labour Commissioner U.P. And 2 Others)

4. This writ petition has been filed challenging the award dated 09.11.2015 passed by the Labour Court (I), U.P. Kanpur in Adjudication Case No.275 of 1999, M/s Bureau Chief Rastriya Sahara Vs. Munraj Singh. The award was published on 15.03.2016. Another relief has been claimed for quashing of the order dated 15.09.2014 whereby the Labour Commissioner, U.P., Kanpur had, in purported exercise of powers conferred by Section 6(4) of U.P. Industrial Disputes Act, 1947 (for short U.P. Act), remitted the matter to the Presiding Officer of the Labour Court (I), U.P., Kanpur for reconsideration.

5. The facts of the case, as per the pleadings contained in the writ petition, are that the petitioners are engaged in the business of publication and distribution of newspaper under the name and style of "Rashtriya Sahara" and for the purpose of distribution of newspapers they incorporated regulations known as "Audit Bureau of Circulation" under which they appointed M/s. Rastriya News Agency and M/s. Awathi News Agency as news agents for distribution of news papers on commission basis; the respondent no 2 was appointed as hawker on commission basis for distribution of newspapers by the petitioners. After incorporation of regulations known as 'Audit Bureau of Circulation', after June 1996, the respondent no. 2 joined M/s. Rastriya News Agency and M/s. Awathi News Agency for distribution of news paper; the Deputy Labour Commissioner in exercise of powers under Section 4K of the U.P. Industrial Disputes Act, 1947, vide its order dated 27.01.2000 referred the matter of alleged termination to respondent no. 1. The contesting respondent set up his claim that he was appointed as Salesman w.e.f. 01.06.1992 on consolidated salary of Rs. 950/- but since the payment was less than minimum wages, a demand was raised that was not considered by the petitioners and in violation of Section 6N of the U.P. Industrial Disputes Act, 1947, his services were terminated and as such the respondent no. 2 prayed for reinstatement.

6. The petitioners filed written statement inter-alia on the ground that the contesting respondent was a hawker on commission basis upto June, 1996 and, thereafter, there remained no relationship between them and as such in absence of employer and employee relationship there can arise no question of termination of service in year 1998, as after June, 1996 he joined M/s. Rashtriya News Agency and M/s. Awathi News Agency and after enforcement of Regulations of 'Audit Bureau of Circulation'. It was also stated that contesting respondent was not given any appointment letter nor applied for and also there exists no post of Salesman.

7. The contesting respondent filed his rejoinder affidavit; the petitioner also filed rejoinder statement and again reiterated the facts that contesting respondent was appointed as Hawker and as such at no point of time there was any relationship of employer and employee. It was also stated that provisions of Section 6N will not be applicable as there remained no master and servant relationship.

8. In support of his case, the respondent no. 2 examined himself; in support of their case the petitioners examined Shri Ajai Tripathi and Shri Manoj Dubey; and the petitioners filed salary register to prove that there existed no relationship of employer and employee. It was also stated that no appointment letter was ever issued nor was any Provident Fund deduction or Employees State Insurance Contribution ever made. Since the contesting respondent was working on commission basis as hawker, as such no salary was ever paid to him; and without considering the material on record and ignoring the material facts and evidence, the respondent no.1 treated the contesting respondent as workman employed as Salesman and granted reinstatement with entire back wages.

9. It is contended that challenging the award dated 24.12.2007 published on 01.04.2008, the petitioners filed Civil Misc. Writ Petition No.25780 of 2008 before this Court, which was allowed by judgment and order dated 18.07.2011. Relevant portion of the said judgment is extracted herein below:-

"After having very carefully examined the submissions made by the learned counsel for the parties and perused the impugned award as well as the other materials brought on record, I find that there is force in the submissions made by learned counsel for the petitioners and the same are liable to be accepted. The respondent no. 2 moved the State Govt. under section 4K of the U.P. Act claiming himself to be working as salesman in the petitioners' establishment challenging the termination of his employment by the petitioners vide order dated 01.10.1998 on the ground that the same infringed the provisions of section 6N of the U.P. Act.

From perusal of the the written statement filed by the petitioners before the respondent no. 1 it transpires that the petitioners had challenged the jurisdiction of the respondent no. 1 to entertain and decide the adjudication case in view of section 3 of the Act 45 of 1955 which stipulates that the central government alone is competent to refer a dispute between the employers and the employees of a establishment to which the provisions of the Act 45 of 1955 apply and that to, to a tribunal constituted under the central Act. From the perusal of the written statement filed by the petitioners before the respondent no. 2 it appears that before the respondent no. 1 the petitioners had taken a specific plea that the respondent no. 2 was employed in their establishment as a hawker and not as a salesman. In support of their contention they had filed voluminous evidence which has been compositely annexed as annexure no. 2 to the writ petition.

I have very carefully gone through the impugned award and I do not find therein any adjudication by the respondent no. 1 on the preliminary objection raised before him by the petitioners regarding his lack of jurisdiction to entertain and decide the adjudication case on account of the reference made to him by the State Govt. under Section 4K of the U.P. Act being without jurisdiction in view of section 3 of the Act 45 of 1955 on account of respondent no. 2 being employed as a hawker in the petitioners' establishment. There is also no consideration in the impugned award of the evidence filed by the petitioners before the respondent no. 1 in support of their claim that the respondent no. 2 was employed in their establishment as a hawker and not as a salesman as alleged by him. This omission on the part of the respondent no. 2 has further vitiated the impugned award.

For the aforesaid reasons, I am of the view that the impugned award cannot be sustained and is liable to be set aside. The writ petition accordingly succeeds and is allowed. The award dated 24.12.2007 passed by the respondent no. 1 is hereby set aside and the matter is remitted back to the respondent no. 1 for passing a fresh award in the matter after considering the objections raised by the petitioners in their written statement and the evidence adduced by the parties in support of their respective claims, in accordance with law. Necessary exercise in this regard shall be completed by the respondent no. 1 within a period of six months from the date of production of certified copy of this order."

10. It is also contended that contesting respondent filed an application for amendment for reference before respondent no. 2 and the State Government sent a reference under Section 4k of U.P. Industrial Disputes Act, 1947 whereas the case is covered under the "The Working Journalist and other Newspaper Employees (Conditions of Service and Miscellaneous Provisions Act, 1955 (45 of 1955")", as such the reference could be sent under Section 10(1C) of the Industrial Disputes Act, 1947.

11. The petitioners filed objections and stated that the establishment of petitioner is covered under "The Working Journalist and another Newspaper Employees (Conditions of Service and Miscellaneous Provisions Act, 1955 (45 of 1955") as such reference can be made under Section 3(1) of the Act, 1955 by the Central Government and they had raised their preliminary objection before Labour Court but Award dated 24.12.2007 was passed without deciding the preliminary objection, as such this Court remanded the matter to decide the preliminary issue; the Labour Commissioner, U.P. (respondent no.1) vide its order dated 13.03.2013 decided the application of contesting respondent and held that the contesting respondent is non working journalist as such dispute between the parties is covered under Section 4k of U.P. Industrial Disputes Act, 1947.

12. In pursuance of the order of this Court passed in Writ-C No.25780 of 2008, a fresh award was passed on 12.07.2012 which was sent to the State Government for publication but for some reason, the award was not published. Pleadings to this effect are contained in paragraph 21 of the writ petition which states that by the award dated 12.07.2012, the Labour Court had rejected the claim of the workman and dismissed the adjudication case as not maintainable. However, copy of such award dated 12.07.2012 has not been brought on record by either of the parties in support of their pleadings.

13. The reference in this case was made to the Labour Court, Rampur for adjudication of the industrial dispute in the following terms:-

"क्या सेवायोजकों द्वारा श्रमिक श्री मुनराज सिंह पुत्र श्री महेश सिंह सेल्समैन, को दिनांक 1.10.98 से कार्य से पृथक / वंचित किया जाना उचित एवं वैधानिक है ? यदि नहीं, तो संबंधित श्रमिक हितलाभ/क्षतिपूर्ति पाने का अधिकारी है ? किस तिथि एवं अन्य किस विवरण के साथ?"

14. The Labour Commissioner, U.P., Kanpur by order impugned dated 15.09.2014 sent back/remitted the matter, in purported exercise of powers conferred under Section 6(4) of U.P. Act, before the respondent no.2 for the purpose of reconsideration.

15. Pursuant to the order impugned dated 15.09.2014, the Labour Court, by impugned award dated 09.11.2015, has found that termination of services of the workman with effect from 01.10.1998 is not according to law and, therefore, he is entitled for reinstatement with continuity in service along with 50% of back-wages. The award was published as per the provisions of the Act on 15.03.2016.

Contention of petitioners

16. Sri S.S. Nigam, learned Senior Counsel for the petitioner, while arguing the matter at length, has placed reliance upon the provisions of Sections 2(c), 2(dd) and 3 of the Working Journalists and Other Newspaper Employees (Condition of Service) and Misc. Provisions Act, 1955 (Act No.45 of 1955) (hereinafter referred to as the Act of 1955) and has submitted that in view of the said provisions, the respondent no.3 cannot be treated as an employee in the petitioner establishment and, even if he is treated to be a workman as per the provisions of U.P. Industrial Disputes Act, 1947 (U.P. Act) or the Industrial Disputes Act, 1947 (Central Act), it was the Central Government which was competent to make reference to the labour court and not the State Government. He has referred to the definition clause contained in Sections 2(c), 2(dd) and the provisions of Section 3 regarding applicability of the Central Act in relation to the employees who are covered by the Act of 1955. For a ready reference, Sections 2(c), 2(dd) and 3 of the Act of 1955 are being quoted herein below:-

"2. (c) "newspaper employee" means any working journalist, and includes any other person employed to do any work in, or in relation to, any newspaper establishment;

(dd) "non-journalist newspaper employee" means a person employed to do any work in, or in relation to, any newspaper establishment, but does not include any such person who-

- (i) is a working journalist, or*
- (ii) is employed mainly in a managerial or administrative capacity, or*
- (iii) being employed in a supervisory capacity, performs, either by the nature of the duties attached to his office or by reason of the powers vested in* him, functions mainly of a managerial nature;]

3. Act 14 of 1947 to apply to working journalists.—(1) The provisions of the Industrial Disputes Act, 1947 (14 of 1947), as in force for the time being, shall, subject to the modification specified in sub-section (2), apply to, or in relation to, working journalists as they apply to, or in relation to, workmen within the meaning of that Act.

(2) Section 25F of the aforesaid Act, in its application to working journalists, shall be construed as if in clause (a) thereof, for the period of notice referred to therein in relation to the retrenchment of a workman, the following periods of notice in relation to the retrenchment of a working journalist had been substituted, namely:-

(a) six months, in the case of an editor, and

(b) three months, in the case of any other working journalist."

17. Sri Nigam has further submitted that the Labour Commissioner, Kanpur had no authority, power or competence to remit/refer the matter for reconsideration/review to the Labour Court. In support of his submission, he has placed reliance upon the judgment of this court in the case Hindustan Aeronautics Ltd., Transport Aircraft Division, Chakeri, Kanpur Vs. State of U.P. and others: 2021 (168) FLR 338 and has specially referred to paragraph 18 of the said judgment, which is reproduced herein below:-

"18) A perusal of the impugned order shows that the Labour Commissioner, U.P., Kanpur has held a judicial order of the Labour Court to be flawed. He has sent back the matter to the Labour Court to decide the reference on merits. The Labour Commissioner has decided that the reference is competent. He has done so on the basis of an opinion of the District Government Counsel, Kanpur Nagar. The Labour Commissioner is not a Court. He exercises the powers of the State Government to make a reference that is not a judicial power of any kind. All that he can exercise is an administrative or executive power conferred on the Government. Now, if there were a delegation in his favour under Section 39, assuming that he had the necessary delegation, the delegation of powers under Section 39 of the Central Act made by the Central Government is to exercise the administrative power of making a reference to the competent Court. It is in no way a judicial authority of supervision over the Labour Court, conferred on the Commissioner. In case, any party was aggrieved by the order dated 17.09.2019 passed by the Presiding Officer, Labour Court (3), U.P., Kanpur in Adjudication Case No. 115 of 2010, it was open to that party to approach this Court under Article 226 or 227 of the Constitution, for those are the only remedies that are open, apart from Article 136 of the Constitution, to challenge a judicial determination of the Labour Court, be it an order or an award. There is no principle known to law which permits an administrative review of judicial action. The law envisages judicial review of administrative action, and in some cases, legislative action also. But there is no concept known to law that permits an administrative review. Judicial orders can be undone by invoking the appellate, revisional or supervisory procedures by approaching a higher judicial forum. It cannot be done by an executive or administrative action. The impugned order is also bad, for another reason. It has proceeded substantially, if not entirely, on the opinion of the District Government Counsel. Even if an opinion were sought by the Labour Commissioner, who is presumably a layman (as opposed to a legally trained mind) ought not have referred to the legal opinion received by him. In fact, he should not have acted on any legal opinion at all. This is so because an order founded on legal opinion is not one where the Authority making the order, has done an independent application of mind. Rather, he has gone by the opinion of another, may be a legal expert. This in itself would vitiate the impugned order. In any view of the matter, this Court is of clear opinion that the impugned order undoing a judicial order by an administrative determination is ultra vires and without jurisdiction. Though, Mr. Diptiman Singh sought to justify the order dated 17.07.2019 passed by the Presiding Officer, Labour Court (3), U.P., Kanpur in Adjudication Case No. 115 of 2010, this Court is not minded to examine that question in the absence of a challenge to the order dated 17.07.2019 by a party who is aggrieved. It is also made clear that if any party, including the fourth respondent, is aggrieved by the order dated 17.07.2019, it would be open to them to challenge the said order through competent proceedings, as advised."

18. Sri Nigam further submits that once the Labour Court had passed an award, which was not challenged before this Court, the Labour Commissioner had no jurisdiction to remit/refer the matter for reconsideration by the Labour Court as it would amount to administrative review of a judicial order which this Court, in the case of Hindustan Aeronautics Ltd. (supra), has deprecated. He further submits that even if the order of the Labour Commissioner dated 15.09.2014 is treated to be within jurisdiction, the power of making reference to the Labour Court could be exercised only when one or more of the contingencies mentioned under Section 6(4) of the U.P. Act were satisfied which, according to Sri Nigam, did not exist in the facts and circumstances of the present case. He has emphatically pressed upon the provisions of Section 6(4) of U.P. Act, which are reproduced herein below:-

"6(4) Before publication of an award of a Labour Court or Tribunal under sub-section (3), if the State Government if of the opinion that,-

(a) the adjudicating authority has unreasonably refused permission to any party to adduce evidence; or

(b) any party was prevented by any other sufficient cause from adducing evidence; or

(c) new and important material fact or evidence has come to notice, which after the exercise of due diligence, was not within the knowledge of, or could not be produced by, the party at the time when the award was made; or

(d) the award is likely to disturb the industrial peace; or

(e) the award is likely to affect prejudicially the national or State economy; or

(f) the award is likely to interfere with the principles of social justice; or

(g) the award has left undetermined any of the matters referred for adjudication, or where it determines any matter not referred for adjudication and such matter cannot be separated without affecting the determination of the matters referred; or

(h) the award is so indefinite as to be incapable of being enforced; or

(i) illegality of the award is apparent upon the face of it, it may, after *giving the parties reasonable opportunity of being heard, for reasons to be recorded, remit the award for reconsideration of the adjudicating authority, and that authority shall, after reconsideration, submit its award to the State Government, and the State Government shall publish the award in the manner provided in sub-section (3).1"

19. Sri Nigam has further placed reliance upon a judgment of Division Bench of Orissa High Court in the case of Pratap Chandra Mohanty Vs. General Manager, United News of India and another: 1991(2) OLR 326. Paragraphs 11 and 12 of the said judgment are being extracted herein below:-

"11. We have duly considered the aforesaid submission of Shri Mohanty and, according to us, it would be difficult to say that the benefit of the Industrial Disputes Act would not be available to newspaper employees other than working journalists even if they be workmen within the meaning of that Act. As to Section 3(1) of the Working Journalists Act, we would say that the provision in that section making the Industrial Disputes Act applicable to working journalists cannot be taken to be that the said Act would not apply to other newspaper employees. Section 3(1) might have been enacted to make it abundantly clear that the Industrial Disputes Act would apply to working journalists even if they may not satisfy the definition of 'workman' as given in the Industrial Disputes Act. It is worth pointing out in this connection that a working journalist as defined in Section 2(f) of the Working Journalists Act may not be a 'workman' if the definition of that expression as given in the Industrial Disputes Act were to apply to him. The legislature, however, wanted the benefits of the Industrial Disputes Act to be made available to working journalists and it is perhaps because of this that Section 3(1) was inserted in the Act. This apart, reference to Section 3(1) shows that certain modifications were made in the provisions of the Industrial Disputes Act in their application to working journalists. We do not think if we would be justified in denying the benefits of a statute as important as the Industrial Disputes Act to other categories of newspaper employees, if otherwise they be workmen within the meaning of that Act, because of what has been provided in Section 3(1) of the Working Journalists Act. 12. As to the application of the two specific Acts to newspaper employees because of what has been provided in Secs. 14 and 15 of the Working Journalists Act, we would say that these two sections were enacted to make the two Acts in question applicable to newspaper establishments because de hors these provisions, those Acts might not have applied to such establishments. The legislature, however, wanted to give the benefit of those Acts to all newspaper employees. It may be pointed out that Secs. 14 and 15 have referred to the application of the two Acts in question to "every newspaper establishment" and not to "newspaper employees". Of course, by making these two Acts applicable to all newspaper establishments, the benefits of the same were conferred on all newspaper employees. This does not mean that the legislature wanted to rob the newspaper employees of the benefits of other Acts. According to us, no such conclusion can be drawn on the basis of what has been provided in Secs. 14 and 15 of the Working Journalists Act."

20. Apart from the aforesaid, Sri Nigam has argued that the respondent no.3

was merely working as a Hawker for effecting distribution of newspapers and he was neither an employee nor a workman in the petitioners' establishment. He submits that voluminous evidence was led on behalf of the petitioners before the Labour Court to demonstrate that in none of the registers containing particulars and description of the workmen/employees, the name of the respondent no.3 found place. He has referred to various annexures to the writ petition to demonstrate that the respondent no.3 was never enrolled for the purposes of insurance which aspect is applicable for all the employees/workmen of petitioner-establishment. He submits that the respondent no.3 never led any evidence before the Labour Court to establish that any appointment letter was issued to him at any point in time. He also submits that no evidence was led by the respondent no.3 even to demonstrate that he worked continuously from 1992 to 1998 and therefore, in absence of evidence, the award of the Labour Court on merits is unsustainable. He further submits that in evidence only an identity card was filed by the respondent no.3 which was marked as Exhibit- W-3, containing the description of the respondent no.3 as "Salesman" and that such identity card could be issued to any hawker or anyone for the purposes of facilitating any task in the organization but in no circumstance such an identity card could be a cogent evidence to establish workmanship or an employment so as to justify passing of an award for reinstatement and back-wages.

21. Sri Nigam has also placed reliance upon the judgment of the Apex Court in the case of Madhya Bharat Gramin Bank Vs. Panchamlal Yadav: 2021 (171) FLR 8 and has contended that merely because there is some violation on the part of the employer which, in the present case, is not there according to Sri Nigam, reinstatement with back-wages is not automatic and relief depends upon the facts of every case.

Contention of respondent

22. Per contra, Sri Janmed Kumar, learned counsel for the respondent no.3, while referring to the counter affidavit filed by the said respondent, submits that the Labour Court has rightly passed the award by treating the services of the respondent no.3 as a "salesman". He submits that since salary of Rs.950/- per month was being paid by the petitioners to the respondent no.3 which was much less as per the provisions of Minimum Wages Act, the respondent no.3 agitated his claim for enhancing wages before the petitioners which ultimately resulted into termination of his services with effect from 01.10.1998 and the Labour Court, by considering the material placed before it, has rightly directed reinstatement with back-wages. He submits that pursuant to the award, the respondent no.3 has been reinstated but he is being paid only a sum of Rs.1,200/- per month and not the regular pay scale which is applicable for other workmen.

23. Rejoinder affidavit has been filed on behalf of the petitioner reiterating the version contained in the writ petition.

24. Since all the aforesaid writ petitions were heard together, in one of the matters reliance was placed on behalf of the respondent-workman on a judgment of this Court in the case of M/s Jagran Prakashan Ltd. and another Vs. Presiding Officer, Labour Court, U.P., Allahabad and others: 2020 (167) FLR 412, with special reference to paragraph 38 thereof, which is quoted herein below:-

"38. The workman in this case is, therefore, a workman, both under the Central Act and the State Act as he satisfies the definition of a workman under both the statutes, independent of the provisions of the Working Journalists Act. The employers here being not an industry carried on by or under the authority of the Central Government or one who fall under any of the specified categories or named establishment, authorities or bodies, mentioned under Section 2(a)(i) of the Central Act, the Appropriate Government would be the State Government in accordance of the provisions of Section 2(a) (ii) of the Act, last mentioned. Accordingly, reference of the dispute under Section 4-K of the State Act is valid and competent. Since the reference under Section 4-K of the State Act is competent, the further question, "Whether the Labour Court/ Industrial Tribunal constituted under the Central Act alone is competent to answer a reference in relation to the workman?" is not required to be answered."

25. Before proceeding to deal with submissions made, the interim order dated 19.05.2016 passed in the present writ petition is being referred to, whereby the operation of the impugned award dated 09.11.2015 was stayed subject to the condition that the petitioners deposit entire back-wages as awarded to the respondent no.3 and reinstate him in the same position as he was working at the time when his services were terminated.

26. Having heard the learned counsel for the parties, this Court proceeds to analyse the arguments advanced at the bar in the light of the statutory provisions contained under the Act of 1955, U.P. Act 1947 as well as Central Act, 1947.

Analysis of rival contentions

27. In so far as the definition of "newspaper employee" as contained in Section 2(c) as well as definition of "non journalist newspaper employee" as contained in Section 2(dd) of the Act, 1955 is concerned, this Court in view of the Division Bench judgment of Orissa High Court in the case of Pratap Chandra Mohanty (supra), as referred to and relied upon by this Court in its judgment in the case of Jagran Prakashan (supra) and in light of Section 3 of the Central Act, 1947, has extended the provisions of the Act of 1955 to the working of the respondent no.3 holding that he would fall in the inclusion clause contained under Section 2(c) which is apparent from the words "and includes any other person employed to do any work in, or in relation to, any newspaper establishment".

28. The other contention of Sri Nigam with reference to Section 3 that it was only the Central Government which was competent to make a reference in the matter, this Court finds that by virtue of Section 2(a) (ii) of the Central Act, 1947, it was the State Government which was fully competent to make a reference and Section 3 of the Act 1955 does not in any manner restrict power of the State Government to make a reference inasmuch as the power to make a reference by the State Government is implicit in the Central Act 1955 itself and keeping in view of the nature of the petitioner establishment, this Court finds that Section 2(a) (ii) of the Central Act, 1947 fully clothed to the State Government with power to make a reference to the Labour Court. The said provision is reproduced herein below:-

"2(a)(ii) in relation to any other industrial dispute, including the State *public sector undertaking, subsidiary companies set up by the principal undertaking and autonomous bodies owned or controlled by the State Government, the State Government:

29. In so far as Shri Nigam's contention with regard to the impugned order dated 15.09.2014 is concerned, the argument is that the Labour Commissioner had no power under the Act to make a reference to the Labour Court after the Labour Court had passed an award and such a remittance for reconsideration is in teeth of the provisions of Section 6(4) of the U.P. Act. He has placed strong reliance upon the judgment of this Court in Hindustan Aeronautics Ltd. (supra) and submits that this Court has already held that such a recourse is impermissible under the eyes of law.

30. This Court has carefully examined the judgment of this Court in the case of Hindustan Aeronautics Ltd. (supra) and finds that facts of the present case are different from the facts of the case of Hindustan Aeronautics Ltd. (supra). In the case of Hindustan Aeronautics Ltd. (supra), the Labour Commissioner had sought an opinion from the District Government Counsel (Civil), Kanpur after passing of the award and the said DGC submitted his opinion on 17.03.2020 advising the Labour Commissioner that adjudication case could be heard by a court constituted under the U.P. Industrial Disputes Act, 1947 and merely on the basis of such opinion, the Commissioner denounced the award and remitted the matter to the Labour Court for reconsideration. This Court, under such facts, found the action of the Labour Commissioner as unjustified. Further, the provisions of Section 6(4) of the U.P. Act were not considered in the judgment of Hindustan Aeronautics Ltd. (supra) nor were the delegated powers conferred by Section 11-A of the U.P. Act, 1947 touched, which reads as follows:-

"[11-A. Delegation of powers.-
The State Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, direct that any power exercisable by it under this Act or rules made thereunder shall, in relation to such matters and subject to such conditions if any, as may be specified, in the direction, be exercisable also by such officer or authority subordinate to the State Government as may be specified in the notification.]

NOTES

Delegation of power-Power of State Government.- It was held that the State Government is empowered under Section 11-A to delegate any power under the Act to any subordinate authority."

31. The judgment of Hindustan Aeronautics Ltd. (supra) touches the provisions of Section 39 of the Central Act and states that the delegated power could be exercised only for the purpose of making a reference but could not be exercised to examine the validity of an award passed by the Labour Court as the same would tantamount to administrative interference in a judicial adjudication.

32. Meeting all the aforesaid arguments of Sri S.S. Nigam, this Court finds that the power of Labour Commissioner to remit the award passed by the Labour Court for reconsideration by the said court itself, is contained under Section 6(4) of the U.P. Act, 1947 in the light of delegation made by the State Government in exercise of power under Section 11-A of the said Act. It has neither been pleaded nor argued nor has anything been placed on record that the State Government has not delegated its powers upon the Labour Commissioner by issuing any notification. Therefore, this Court cannot assume that there is no delegation made by the State Government in favour of the Labour Commissioner to exercise powers under Section 6(4) of the Act.

33. In so far as the contention of Sri Nigam with regard to existence/non existence of any of the contingencies enumerated under Section 6(4) of the U.P. Act so as to remit the award for reconsideration, Section 6(4)(i) is worth consideration. Though, in the present case, clauses (a) to (h) of Section 6(4) of U.P. Act, 1947 do not at all stand attracted, that is to say that in exercise of power of remittance, the conditions laid down in the said clauses are non-existent, this Court finds that such power of remittance can be exercised in case "illegality of the award is apparent upon the face of it", as per clause (i) of sub-section (4) of Section 6 of U.P. Act, 1947. For a ready reference, Section 6(4)(i) is reproduced herein below:-

"6(4)(i) illegality of the award is apparent upon the face of it, it may, after giving the parties reasonable opportunity of being heard, for reasons to be recorded, remit the award for reconsideration of the adjudicating authority, and that authority shall, after reconsideration, submit its award to the State Government, and the State Government shall publish the award in the manner provided in sub-section (3).]"

34. In the present case, it has been pleaded in paragraph no.21 of the writ petition that pursuant to the remand order passed by this Court in Writ-C No.25780 of 2008, a fresh award was passed by the Labour Court rejecting the claim of the respondent no.3 on 12.07.2012, however, on misc. application moved by the respondent no.3, the matter was reopened at the level of Labour Commissioner. As indicated above, the award dated 12.07.2012 has not been placed on record of the present case. However, when this Court examines the validity of the impugned order dated 15.09.2014 it finds that it does not contain any specific reason as to under which clause of sub-section (4) of Section 6 of U.P. Act, 1947 the case in hand fell. Even assuming that due to some narration regarding applicability of Act 1955 in the impugned order dated 15.09.2014, the Labour Commissioner was persuaded to remit the matter for reconsideration to the Labour Court, the case may fall under clause (i) of sub-section (4) of Section 6 and it may be a case where "illegality of the award was apparent upon the face of it", which, in fact, is not the finding/observation in the impugned order dated 15.09.2014.

35. Going to the extent of assuming that there was some illegality in the award dated 12.07.2012 which might have been apparent upon its very face so as to attract clause (i) of sub-section (4) of Section 6 of U.P. Act, 1947, there is nothing in the impugned order dated 15.09.2014 which could be said to be compliance of the specific provision of making remittance inasmuch as it is clearly provided after clause (i) ..... it may, after giving the parties reasonable opportunity of being heard, for reasons to be recorded, remit the award for reconsideration of the adjudicating authority, and that authority shall, after reconsideration, submit its award to the State Government, and the

36. There is no reference made in the order impugned dated 15.09.2014 that any opportunity of hearing was provided to the parties before remitting the matter to the Labour Court. Therefore, remittance made by the Labour Commissioner under the order impugned dated 15.09.2014 is found to be in teeth of specific provisions of Section 6(4) of U.P. Act.

37. In so far as the view taken by the learned Single Judge in the case of Hindustan Aeronautics Ltd. (supra) that delegated power cannot be exercised for remittance for the purpose of reconsideration, this Court finds that the said power is available under Section 6(4) of U.P. Act itself which provision did not fall for consideration of this Court in the case of Hindustan Aeronautics Ltd. (supra). Therefore the submission of Shri Nigam to the extent that the Labour Commissioner has no power to remit the award, is not acceptable, but in the facts of this case, exercise of such power is found to be contrary to law, as elaborately discussed hereinabove.

38. Sri Nigam has also argued that if the impugned order dated 15.09.2014 is held to be unsustainable, the award of the Labour Court which is consequential in nature shall also stand nullified. He alternatively submits that the Labour Court has not taken into consideration the specific case of the petitioners that the respondent no.3 utterly failed to lead any evidence establishing his workmanship/employment in the petitioner establishment, except one identity card which, for the purpose of making an award, cannot be treated as cogent evidence, particularly, in view of the voluminous documentary evidence led by the petitioners demonstrating no mention of the name of the respondent no.3 in the entire record which is maintained for all the workmen/employees. Further there is no evidence worth the name that the respondent no.3 completed 240 days of continuous service in one calendar year preceding termination of his services.

Conclusion

39. This Court has examined the matter in its entirety and finds that the order impugned dated 15.09.2014 not only being bereft of any cogent reasoning, suffers from violation of statutory mandate contained under Section 6(4) of U.P. Act, 1947. Therefore, the consequential award itself becomes bad. Apart from this, as against the voluminous evidence led by the petitioner, no evidence worth consideration was led by the respondent no.3 which could hold him an employee/workman in the petitioner establishment.

40. Considering the facts and circumstances of the case and the nature of the interim order dated 19.05.2016 whereby the petitioners were directed to deposit entire back-wages before the Labour Court and also the fact that the alleged services of the respondent no.3, as a hawker, were terminated in the year 1998; the award was passed in the year 2015 and the interim order was passed in the year 2016, whereafter the respondent no.3 has been allowed to work and was paid wages, this Court agrees with the contention of Sri Nigam that the order impugned dated 15.09.2014 as well as award dated 09.11.2015 is unsustainable for the reasons stated hereinabove.

41. The writ petition succeeds and is allowed. The impugned order dated 15.09.2014 passed by the Additional Labour Commissioner, U.P., Kanpur (respondent no.1) remitting the matter to the Labour Court as well as consequential impugned award dated 09.11.2015, published on 15.03.2016, passed by the Presiding Officer, Labour Court (First), U.P., Kanpur (respondent no.2) in Adjudication Case No.275 of 1999 (Bureau Chief, Rastriya Sahara Vs. Munraj) are hereby quashed.

42. It is for the petitioners to take or not to take work from the respondent no.3 as a hawker in future. However, in so far as the relief of reinstatement or 50% back-wages granted under the impugned award is concerned, the same is hereby refused and annulled. The amount deposited by the petitioners pursuant to interim order granted in this writ petition shall be refunded to the petitioners within two months.

Writ-C No.23786 of 2016 (M/S Bureau Chief Rastriya Sahara And Another Vs. Labour Commissioner And 2 Others)

43. The facts of the present case are exactly the same as to the facts of Writ-C No.23241 of 2016. The only change which this Court finds is that this writ petition is regarding a different workman who had agitated his claim exactly on the same lines and on the same facts and, ultimately, the adjudication case was registered as Case No.34 of 2000 (Bureau Chief, Rastriya Sahara Vs. Ravindra Kumar Mishra). The reasonings recorded in the award as well as order of remittance dated 15.09.2014, are exactly the same. Nature of claim and defence put by the parties is also the same.

Exactly identical arguments were advanced on behalf of both the parties in this writ petition also. Therefore repetition of facts or law would unnecessarily make this judgment further bulky.

44. For all the aforesaid reasons, this writ petition also succeeds and is allowed. The impugned order dated 15.09.2014 passed by the Additional Labour Commissioner, U.P., Kanpur (respondent no.1) remitting the matter to the Labour Court as well as consequential impugned award dated 09.11.2015, published on 15.03.2016, passed by the Presiding Officer, Labour Court (First), U.P., Kanpur (respondent no.2) in Adjudication Case No.34 of 2000 (Bureau Chief, Rastriya Sahara Vs. Ravindra Kumar Mishra) are hereby quashed.

45. It is for the petitioners to take or not to take work from the respondent no.3 as a hawker in future. However, in so far as the relief of reinstatement or 50% back-wages granted under the impugned award, the same is hereby set aside and annulled. The amount deposited by the petitioners pursuant to interim order passed in this writ petition shall be refunded to the petitioners within two months.

(M/S Jagran Prakashan Ltd. Vs.
Presiding Officer Industrial Tribunal
And Another)

46. This writ petition has been filed by M/s Jagran Prakashan Ltd., Meerut through its Manager challenging the impugned award dated 20.07.2015, published on 02.01.2016, passed by Presiding Officer, Industrial Tribunal (5), Meerut (respondent no.1) in Adjudication No.18 of 2002.

47. The facts of the present case, as per the pleadings contained in the writ petition, are that the petitioner is a newspaper company and publishes newspapers in the name of "Dainik Jagran" from various places including District Meerut.

48. It is pleaded by the petitioner that the respondent no.2 (Umesh Kumar) was never engaged by the petitioner establishment at any point of time and no relation of the employer and employee ever existed between the petitioner and the respondent no.2 and in fact one Muley Ram Singh, who was the relative of respondent no.2, was working in the petitioner establishment and the respondent no.2 used to come from time to time at the petitioner establishment to meet his said relative. It is stated that on 11.08.2001 the respondent no.2 came to meet Muley Ram Singh and without knowledge of the watchman, he entered into the premises of the establishment and took away certain papers of the petitioner establishment with some ulterior motive, which incident was reported by the establishment on 18.08.2001 to the police station concerned and a first information report concerning the same was registered as Case Crime No.334 of 2001, under Section 380 IPC at Police Station Civil Lines, Meerut. It is further stated that the respondent no.2 took away production report, register and other papers from the petitioner establishment and it appears that he prepared some documents in relation to his employment to get undue benefit stating that his services were illegally terminated with effect from 09.08.2001. It is further stated that the respondent no. 2 filed an application before the Deputy Labour Commissioner under section 2-A of the U.P. Industrial Disputes Act, 1947 and prayed that the matter may be referred to the Conciliation board and, on the said application, the Conciliation Officer, Meerut instead of constituting Conciliation board proceeded with the case for settlement and issued notice to the petitioner. It is further stated that there is no provision under the U.P. Industrial Disputes Act, 1947 and Rules framed thereunder that before constitution of the Conciliating board, the conciliation proceeding may be proceeded, however, without following the procedure as prescribed under the U.P. Industrial Disputes Act, 1947 in respect of Conciliation Bard; the State Government referred the matter to the Presiding Officer, Industrial Tribunal, respondent no. 1 for adjudication of the following alleged dispute where Adjudication Case No. 18 of 2002 was registered:

"क्या सेवायोजकों द्वारा अपने कर्मचारी श्री उमेश कुमार पुत्र भूडिया सिंह की सेवाएं दिनांक 09-08-2001 से समाप्त किया जाना उचित एवं वैधानिक है? यदि नहीं, तो संबंधित श्रमिक किस हितलाभ / अनुलोभ के पाने का अधिकारी है और अन्य किस विवरण के साथ ? "

49. Pursuant to the notice issued in the aforesaid case, the petitioner and the respondent no.2 filed respective replies before the Tribunal and whereas the contention of the respondent no.2 was to the effect that he was working in the petitioner establishment since 1996, his services were illegally terminated by an oral direction with effect from 09.08.2001, on the other hand, the defence of the petitioner establishment was that there never existed any relationship of employer and employee and that the respondent no.2 had never worked in the establishment, rather he manufactured some documents by committing theft in the organisation. Further defence of the petitioner was that there is no documentary evidence to establish that the petitioner was ever appointed in the organisation nor his name finds mention in relation to any scheme which is applicable for workmen. It is further contended by the petitioner in defence before the Tribunal that the order of reference was bad in law as the case was instituted under the provisions of Industrial Disputes Act, 1947 (Central Act), whereas the reference had been made under the provisions of U.P. Industrial Disputes Act, 1947 (State Act).

50. After holding proceedings where pleadings and affidavits were exchanged, the documentary evidence was filed and the witnesses were also examined and cross examined, the Presiding Officer (respondent no.1), by impugned award the dated 20.07.2015, held that before terminating the services of the respondent no.2, no notice was served upon him by the petitioner establishment and, therefore, the termination was bad and, consequently, the respondent no.2 was awarded one month's salary and compensation equivalent to 15 days' salary of every working year along with Rs.20,000/- as additional compensation and Rs.5,000/- as the cost of litigation.

51. A counter affidavit has been filed by the respondent no.2 stating that initially the respondent no.2 was appointed as Junior Clerk on 02.09.1996 in the establishment of petitioner. The respondent no. 2 used to bring news items from the editorial department and endorsed the same into register in his handwriting. Besides above, the respondent no. 2 also endorsed the day to day work done by the computer operators in the register under his handwriting. The said work is of permanent nature. The aforesaid register is lying with the employers. Further, the State Government has full jurisdiction and is competent to refer the matter for adjudication and, as such, the reference order was correctly made. Moreover, if the employers were aggrieved with the reference order, they ought to have challenged the same by means of writ petition immediately at that time when the reference was made on 4.06.2002.

52. It is further pleaded in the counter affidavit that the respondent no.2, with regard to proof of his working with the employer w.e.f. 2-9-1996 to 2-8-2001 and payment of wages by the employers for said period, filed one application dated 22-11-2003 paper no. 13-D supported by affidavit, paper no. 14-A, for producing the requisite documents from the employers before the court namely, (a) Production Register/Report w.e.f. 2-9-1996 to 2-8-2001, (b) Overtime detail and payment register w.e.f. 2-9-1996 to 2-8-2001 alongwith ledger of said period and overtime slip, (c) Leave Register alongwith Leave Application w.e.f. 2-9-1996 to 2-8-2001 and (d) Payment of Wages Register w.e.f. 2-9-1996 to 2-8-2001.

53. Further defence in the counter affidavit is that the employers did not produce the best evidence in this case. Shri Rajendra Kumar Supervisor of the petitioner took work from the respondent no.2 and granted leave etc. to him, but Shri Rajendra Kumar Supervisor was not produced by the employers for the examination although he was in service. Likewise, another employee Muley Ram was also not produced by the employers for examination, whereas the employers have taken the name of Muley Ram and setup their false case concerning him. Thus, the employers deliberately did not produce their best evidence and withheld it. In case the employers produced Shri Rajendra

Kumar and Shri Muley Ram, the said witnesses would have spoken the truth which might have gone against the case set up by the employers.

54. The petitioner has filed a rejoinder affidavit reiterating the version contained in the writ petition.

55. I have heard Sri Chandra Bhan Gupta, learned counsel for the petitioner, Sri Ajay Rajendra, learned counsel for the respondent no.2 and the learned Standing Counsel for respondent no.1.

56. This matter was heard along with Writ-C Nos.23241 of 2016 and 23786 of 2016 which were argued by S.S. Nigam, learned Senior Counsel and the arguments in relation to the validity of reference in the light of various provisions of the Working Journalists and Other Newspaper Employees (Conditions of Service) and Miscellaneous Provisions Act, 1955, Industrial Disputes Act, 1947 (Central Act) as well U.P. Industrial Disputes Act, 1947 (U.P. Act) were advanced.

57. When the present writ petition was argued, Sri Chandra Bhan Gupta, learned counsel for the petitioner, submitted that in the present case also, the reference was bad in the eyes of law and he adopts all the arguments advanced by Sri S.S. Nigam, learned Senior Counsel with regard to validity of reference as well as applicability of the provisions of Act, 1955, Central Act, 1947 as well as U.P. Act, 1947.

58. Now, I proceed to consider the rival submissions made at the bar on the merits of the case.

Rival contentions and their analysis

59. A perusal of the record reveals that both the parties in support of their respective claims and defence submitted various documents. Whereas the respondent no.2 filed 19 documents along with list 8-B2, the petitioner filed two documents along with list 12-B1. It was contended by the petitioner before the Tribunal that the documents filed by the respondent no.2 did not relate to his employment and since he had taken away the documents from the petitioner establishment concerning which FIR was also registered, he cannot get any advantage out of manufactured documents.

60. On the other hand, the contention of the respondent no.2 was to the effect that the theory of alleged theft has been falsely narrated and no action was taken by the police authorities pursuant to false FIR lodged against him.

61. This Court finds that on behalf of the petitioner, one Rajesh Kumar Bhardwaj was produced as a witness who made his statement and was also cross examined. In his cross examination, Sri Bhardwaj stated as follows:-

"मेरी नियुक्ति वरिष्ठ लिपिक के पद पर हुई थी और अब मेरा प्रोमोशन होकर मैं वर्ष 2005 के कार्मिक अधिकारी के पद पर कार्य कर रहा हूँ, कर्मचारियों के अभिलेखों के रख-रखाव का विभाग बना हुआ है, जिसका नाम कार्मिक विभाग है। कार्मिक विभाग में मेरे सहित तीन कर्मचारी कार्य करते हैं। इस विभाग में कर्मचारियों के उपस्थिति रजिस्टर, वेतन भुगतान रजिस्टर व व्यक्तिगत पत्रावलियों का रख-रखाव किया जाता है। अवकाश प्रार्थना पत्र फार्म संख्या-14 में तैयार किये जाते हैं। कर्मचारी जो अवकाश प्रार्थना पत्र देते हैं, उनकी पत्रावली भी रखी जाती है। पांच वर्ष की अवधि बीत जाने पर उन अभिलेखों को विनिष्ट (बीड) कर दिया जाता है। जो अभिलेख विनिष्ट किये जाते हैं, उनका कोई रजिस्टर अलग से नहीं रखा जाता है। नष्ट होने वाले कागजात की सूची भी तैयार नहीं की जाती है। मेरे अनुसार महत्वपूर्ण कागजात में कर्मचारियों की व्यक्तिगत पत्रावलियां व वेतन भुगतान संबंधी रजिस्टर तथा उपस्थिति रजिस्टर आते हैं। वेतन भुगतान से संबंधित ई०एस०आई० तथा पी०एस० संबंधी कागजात भी महत्वपूर्ण होते हैं। ओवर टाईम से संबंधित कागजात पांच वर्ष तक रखे जाते

महीने में एक-दो बार मूले राम से मिलने आता था और उससे मिलकर चला जाता था। मैं यह नहीं बता सकता कि मैंने पहली बार उमेश कुमार को किस सन् में और किस महीने में मूले राम के पास आते हुए देखा था। मैं यह भी नहीं बता सकता कि मैंने अन्तिम बार उमेश कुमार को कार्यालय में आते हुए कब देखा था। जागरण प्रकाशन लि० में जितने भी कर्मचारी सेवारत हैं, उन सब की उपस्थिति मुख्य गेट पर ही सिक्कोरिटी गार्ड के समक्ष दर्ज हो जाती है। मुख्य गेट पर प्रत्येक विभाग के अनुसार उपस्थिति शीट रखी रहती है, जिसमें प्रत्येक कर्मचारी अपना हस्ताक्षर करता है और उसके बाद अपने विभाग में ड्यूटी पर चला जाता है। उपस्थिति शीट के आधार पर ही कार्मिक विभाग में उपस्थिति रजिस्टर तैयार किया जाता है, जिसमें केवल "ए" और "पी" लिखकर उपस्थिति और अनुपस्थिति दर्शाई जाती है, उसी रजिस्टर में अवकाश और साप्ताहिक अवकाश इन्द्राज कार्मिक विभाग द्वारा किया जाता है। वर्ष 1996 के बाद की उपस्थिति शीट संभवतः इस केस में दाखिल नहीं की गई है। उपस्थिति शीट में जिन कर्मचारियों के नाम लिखे हैं और जिन्होंने अपने हस्ताक्षर किये हैं, वे जागरण प्रकाशन लि० के कर्मचारी होते हैं। कोई बाहरी व्यक्ति उपस्थिति शीट पर हस्ताक्षर नहीं बना सकता, जो कर्मचारी गेट पर रखी हुई उपस्थिति शीट पर हस्ताक्षर करते हैं, उन सभी के नाम कार्मिक विभाग में तैयार किये गये उपस्थिति रजिस्टर में कर्मचारी का पद भी लिख जाता है। कागज संख्या 6-ए० (सेवायोजक का लिखित कथन) देखकर साक्षी ने कहा कि इस पर श्री शरद टण्डन के हस्ताक्षर हैं, जो फैक्ट्री मैनेजर थे। सुरेश चन्द शर्मा भी फैक्ट्री मैनेजर थे, मैं उनके हस्ताक्षर भी पहचानता हूँ। यह कहना गलत है कि मैं सेवायोजकों के दबाव में सही बात नहीं बता रहा हूँ। यह कहना गलत है कि संबंधित श्रमिक उमेश कुमार ने दिनांक 02-9-1996 से लगातार सेवा समाप्ति तक जागरण प्रकाशन लि० की सेवा में रहा हो। यह कहना भी गलत है कि मैंने सेवायोजक के निर्देश और दबाव के कारण संबंधित श्रमिक का नाम कार्मिक विभाग के उपस्थिति रजिस्टर में न लिखा हो।"

62. As against the said oral evidence, the respondent no.2 produced himself as DW-1, one Hari Shanker as DW-2 and one Ravindra Kumar as DW-3.

63. DW-1 (respondent no.2) clearly stated that he was appointed on the post of junior clerk on 02.09.1996 but he was not issued any appointment letter and the petitioner used to take work from him for bringing newspaper from Editorial Section, submitting the same to the composite section, thereafter making entries in the production register after such composition, making further entries of main heading and length of the particular news items and, then, forwarding the same to other employees. He states that his duty was from 7.00 pm to 3.00 am; that he used to work for about 300 days in every 12 months; that when he fell ill on 02.08.2001, he remained under treatment of Dr. Sudarshan Kumar Verma till 08.08.2001 concerning which medical certificate issued by the said doctor was also submitted in the petitioner establishment but when he went to the petitioner establishment on 09.08.2001 with fitness certificate, the petitioner refused to take him on duty, whereafter, he proceeded with legal remedies through notices etc. In his cross examination, DW-1 Umesh Kumar (respondent no.2) further stated as follows:-

"मैं जागरण की नौकरी में दिनांक 02-9-1996 को आया था। प्रार्थना पत्र कोई नहीं दिया, केवल हाई स्कूल का प्रमाण पत्र दिया था। मेरी नौकरी श्री अजय मिश्रा जी ने लगाई थी। नियुक्ति के समय मैं श्री राजेन्द्र कुमार को नहीं जानता था। नियुक्ति के बाद श्री राजेन्द्र शुक्ला जी के सुपरविजन में काम करने के लिए श्री मूले राम नागर ने कहा था। मुलेराम नागर प्रोडक्शन क्लर्क के पद पर कार्य करते थे। ये बात नियुक्ति के एक डेढ़ महीने के बाद की है, उससे पहले मैं प्रोडक्शन विभाग से मौडम लाकर प्रोडक्शन विभाग में देता था। राजेन्द्र कुमार जी के सुपरविजन के अंदर में काम करने का कोई लिखित आदेश नहीं था। छुट्टी का मूल प्रार्थना पत्र टाईम आफिस के बाक्स में डाल दिया जाता है। उसकी प्राप्ति लेने का प्रश्न ही नहीं उठता था। जागरण में नौकरी करने से मैं श्री मूले राम नागर को जानता था। नौकरी में आने से पहले मैं उनसे मिलने कभी नहीं आया था, जो प्रलेख मैंने दाखिल किए हैं, वो कंपनी में जमा है। मेरे ज्ञान में मेरे ऊपर फौजदारी का कोई मुकदमा नहीं चल रहा है। मेरी जानकारी में ऐसा नहीं है कि कंपनी ने मेरे खिलाफ कंपनी का रिकार्ड चुरा ले जाने की रिपोर्ट लिखाई हो। मुझे फौजदारी का कोई सम्मन नहीं मिला और मैं कभी न्यायालय में उपस्थित नहीं हुआ। मैंने अपने सेवाकाल में ऐसी आपत्ति नहीं उठाई कि मुझे लिखित में जागरण में काम करने के लिए दिया जाए।

पर नहीं था। उसका नाम किस रजिस्टर पर होता था, मुझे नहीं पता। जो कर्मचारी जागरण में काम करते थे उनकी हाजिरी फार्म नं०-12 में लगती थी। मूल राम नागर परमानेंट कर्मचारी थे, उनकी हाजिरी कहां लगती थी। मुझे नहीं पता, जो प्रार्थना पत्र राजेन्द्र कुमार के हस्ताक्षर कराकर छुट्टी के लिए कराए थे, वो छपे-छपाए फार्म थे। छुट्टी का प्रार्थना पत्र राजेन्द्र कुमार जी शाम को हस्ताक्षर करके हमें देते थे और कह देते थे कि उसको कल डाल देना, तब मैं उसे घर ले जाकर फोटो कापी करा लेता थे और उसके बाद मैं संबंधित बक्से में डाल देता था। यही बात ओवर टाईम स्लिप के बारे में है। प्रार्थना पत्रों में तारीख भी डालते थे। मुझे छुट्टी सैंक्शन होने के बाद सूचना नहीं मिलती थी। हम तो प्रार्थना पत्र देकर छुट्टी कर लेते थे। दिनांक 12.02.2000 को मैंने टैक्सी से जाने के लिए प्रार्थना पत्र दिया था, उससे पहले कोई प्रार्थना पत्र नहीं दिया था। जब मैं कभी टैक्सी से जाता था, तो किराए देता था। इस प्रार्थना पत्र पर राजेन्द्र कुमार "के भी हस्ताक्षर हैं और उस पर तारीख भी पड़ी है। ओम प्रकाश सांगवाल को मैंने कई बार टैक्सी पर जाने के लिए पैसे दिए। ये परमिशन रात को ड्युटी से वापस जाते समय हुई थी। ढाई से तीन बजे तक की बात है। यह गलत है कि यह प्रार्थना पत्र मैंने राजेन्द्र कुमार के कहने से दिया हो। मेरे प्रार्थना पत्र पर संस्तुति करने से पूर्व राजेन्द्र कुमार जी ने तुरंत ही अपनी संस्तुति मेरे सामने लिख दी थी। टैक्सी में जाने की परमिशन के लिए मैंने प्रार्थना पत्र अपने हाथ से लिखकर दिया था। मैं अपने हस्ताक्षर सामान्यता: अंग्रेजी में करता हूँ। प्रदर्श डब्लू-11 पर मेरे हस्ताक्षर नहीं हैं पर प्रार्थना पत्र मेरे लेख में हैं। इस पर हस्ताक्षर न करने का कोई कारण नहीं है। सूची 8-बी(2) का पेपर नं०-7 प्रोडक्शन रिपोर्ट की छाया प्रति है, जो फरवरी 2000 की है। यह मेरे द्वारा बनाई गई है और इस पर मेरे हस्ताक्षर हैं। इस पर प्रतिष्ठान का नाम नहीं लिखा और न ही अधिकारी के हस्ताक्षर हैं। इस पर प्रोडक्शन में प्रतिदिन के हस्ताक्षर हैं। यह प्रोडक्शन कम्प्यूटर से निकाली जाती थी, फिर इसमें भरी जाती थी। कार्य प्रोडक्शन रजिस्टर में चढ़ता था। उस से मैं विवरण तैयार करता था। इस विवरण की मूल आफिस के कार्यालय में जमा कर दी थी। इसकी कोई रसीद नहीं है, जो तारीख इस विवरण की फोटो प्रति पर पड़ी है, उसी तारीख को आफिस में जमा कर देते थे। ये राजेन्द्र कुमार जी को मूल दे दी जाती थी। मुझे याद नहीं है कि मुझे छुट्टियों का वेतन मिला था अथवा नहीं। साल भर में कितनी छुट्टी बनती थी, मुझे नहीं पता। सैंक्शन तभी होती थी, जब छुट्टी ड्यू होती थी। ड्यू नहीं होती थी, तो तनख्वाह कट जाती थी। प्रतिष्ठान में ई०एस०आई० स्कीम लगती है। मुझे नहीं पता मेरे वेतन से नहीं कटती थी। उक्त सूची का पेपर नं०-15 यह छुट्टी का प्रार्थना पत्र है, इस पर राजेन्द्र कुमार के हस्ताक्षर नहीं हैं। ये फार्म पर भी नहीं हैं। बीमारी के प्रार्थना पत्र पर राजेन्द्र जी हस्ताक्षर करते थे यह नहीं पता। मैंने अपना प्रार्थना पत्र अपने दोस्त से भिजवाया था। मैंने प्रार्थना पत्र के साथ डाक्टरी का प्रमाण पत्र नहीं लगाया था। असल प्रमाण पत्र प्रार्थना पत्र के साथ भेज दिया था। प्रमाण पत्र फोटो प्रति मैं अपने पास नहीं रखता था। प्रोडक्शन विवरण की फोटो कापी के अतिरिक्त मैं अन्य कोई रिकार्ड मैटैन नहीं करता था। प्रदर्श डब्लू०-6 फिटनेस प्रमाण पत्र की फोटो प्रति है। इसी में चिकित्सा प्रमाण पत्र भी सम्मिलित है। इस पर मेरे कोई हस्ताक्षर नहीं हैं। फिर कहा इस पर मेरे हस्ताक्षर हैं। यह बात गलत है कि दवाई के पर्चे अलग डाक्टर के हैं और फिटनेस के अलग डाक्टर के हैं, जो प्रलेख मेरे नौकरी के संबंध में मेरे पास हैं, मैंने दाखिल कर दिया है

अन्य कोई और सबूत मेरे पास नहीं है। यह गलत है कि मैं जागरण प्रकाशन के नियोजन में कभी नहीं रहा और मेरे ऊपर अभिलेख चुराने का मुकदमा मेरे ज्ञान में चल रहा है।"

64. The other witnesses, namely, Hari Shanker and Ravindra Kumar (respectively DW-1 and DW-3) also supported the stand taken by DW-1 Umesh Kumar (respondent no.2). In so far as the documentary evidence is concerned, it has come on record as well as in the impugned award that the respondent no.2 filed six applications regarding medical leave, as papers no.3, 8, 9, 10, 11 and 13, certificates of overtime being paper nos.1 and 12, production report being paper nos.2, 4 and 5 as Exhibit W-7, W-8 and W-9 and another document paper no.6 (Exhibit W-11) whereby the respondent no.2, after completing his duty at 3.00 am, had sought permission from the manager for going through taxi which permission was accorded by the manager on 12.02.2000. With regard to the documentary evidence produced by the petitioner establishment, it has come in the award that only attendance register of August, 2001 and earned leave register of the year 1999 was produced by the petitioner mentioning and arguing that there is no entry of the name of the respondent no.2 in the said registers which reflects that he was not a workman in the establishment.

65. Sri Chandra Bhan Gupta, learned counsel for the petitioner, apart from adopting the arguments of Sri S.S. Nigam regarding the provisions of aforesaid Acts of 1955 and 1947, submits that even otherwise on merits, there was no evidence worth the name to establish employer and employee relationship between the petitioner the respondent no.2 and that the Tribunal wrongly arrived at a conclusion that the respondent no.2 had been engaged by the petitioner and that he had worked for more than 240 days in one year preceding termination of his services.

66. On the other hand, Sri Ajay Rajendra, learned counsel for the respondent no.2, has vehemently argued that in so far as the validity of reference is concerned, it has already been held by this Court in paragraph 38 of the judgment in the case of Jagran Prakashan (supra) as follows:-

"38. The workman in this case is, therefore, a workman, both under the Central Act and the State Act as he satisfies the definition of a workman under both the statutes, independent of the provisions of the Working Journalists Act. The employers here being not an industry carried on by or under the authority of the Central Government or one who fall under any of the specified categories or named establishment, authorities or bodies, mentioned under Section 2(a)(i) of the Central Act, the Appropriate Government would be the State Government in accordance of the provisions of Section 2(a) (ii) of the Act, last mentioned. Accordingly, reference of the dispute under Section 4-K of the State Act is valid and competent. Since the reference under Section 4-K of the State Act is competent, the further question, "Whether the Labour Court/ Industrial Tribunal constituted under the Central Act alone is competent to answer a reference in relation to the workman?" is not required to be answered."

67. Sri Ajay Rajendra further submits that voluminous documentary evidence was led by the workman before the Tribunal which was sufficiently proved through oral evidence establishing that the respondent no.2 was appointed as Junior Clerk in the year 1996, he worked continuously and his services were wrongly terminated without ensuring compliance of provisions of Section 6-N of U.P. Industrial Disputes Act, 1947. Sri Rajendra has referred to the documents on record as well as findings recorded in the award.

68. So far as the argument of Sri Chandra Bhan Gupta regarding validity of reference, this Court finds that the order of reference has neither been annexed along with the present writ petition, nor has it been challenged by making any prayer whatsoever. Further, it appears from perusal of the impugned award that during the course of arguments before the Tribunal, contention against the validity of reference was advanced, however the Tribunal, by examining the provisions of law and referring to various decisions, held that reference under the provisions of U.P. Act was valid. This Court, while discussing validity of reference made in the aforesaid writ petitions argued by Sri S.S. Nigam, has held that appropriate Government to make a reference to the Labour Court was State Government. No further deliberation is required on the said issue, particularly when, the reference order is not under challenge nor has it been annexed.

69. In so far as the contention of Sri Gupta to the effect that no evidence was led by the respondent no.2 establishing his workmanship in the petitioner establishment since 1996 onwards or otherwise, this Court finds that the argument has no substance and is contrary to the material on record. The Court has already noticed that the Tribunal has taken into consideration voluminous evidence produced by the respondent no.2 establishing his employment in the petitioner establishment and all the three witnesses produced by the workman established the same. No discrepancy is found either in oral testimony or in documentary evidence filed on behalf of the workman.

70. As regards the contention of Shri Gupta that the respondent no.2 had stolen away certain documents from the petitioner establishment and manufactured the same for establishing his employment, there is nothing on record as to what happened in pursuance of the FIR registered against the respondent no.2 nor has anything been argued to establish that the respondent no.2 was found guilty by any court of competent jurisdiction regarding commission of alleged theft.

71. The Tribunal also recorded a finding that the allegation of commission of theft did not stand established on record. Even otherwise, in so far as the allegation of manufacturing documents by the respondent no.2 is concerned, the Tribunal has rightly arrived at a conclusion by perusing the oral testimony of Sri Rajesh Kumar Bhardwaj that it was not stated by him that the documents had been fraudulently manufactured, rather by perusing the signature on the said documents, only this much was stated that it did not appear that the documents were signed by the officers Rajendra Kumar and Suresh Sharma. The Tribunal has rightly recorded that the witness produced by the petitioner did not specifically deny the signatures nor did he say that the signatures were not of any officers of the petitioner establishment.

72. Regarding the contention that the respondent no.2's relative Muley Ram Singh was working in the petitioner establishment and the respondent no.2 did not work in the establishment but he used to come to meet Muley Ram Singh, the Tribunal has rightly drawn adverse inference against the petitioner establishment on the ground that Muley Ram Singh was not produced as a witness by the petitioner side. Apart from him, adverse inference was rightly drawn for non production of Ajay Mishra who was an employee having made the signatures and Rajendra Kumar, the taxi driver.

73. Section 114 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872 contains the provisions where a court may presume existence of certain facts. For a ready reference, Section 114 of the Evidence Act, with special reference to illustration (g), is reproduced below:-

"114 Court may presume existence of certain facts.-- The Court may presume the existence of any fact which it thinks likely to have happened, regard being had to the common course of natural events, human conduct and public and private business, in their relation to the facts of the particular case.

Illustrations

The Court may presume--

(f)

(g) That evidence which could be and is not produced would, if produced, be unfavourable to the person who withholds it;

(h)

74. A perusal of Illustration (g) of Section 114 clearly shows that if the evidence which could be and is not produced, adverse inference can be drawn against the defaulting party presuming that the evidence, if produced, would be unfavourable to the person who withholds it. The said provision would apply to these proceedings by virtue of Section 5-C(3) of the U.P. Industrial Disputes Act, 1947.

Conclusion

75. In the present case, not only documentary evidence but also oral evidence produced by the petitioner side was thoroughly lacking as against the voluminous documentary and oral evidence produced by the workman and it is a clear case where on the issue of engagement of the workman in the petitioner establishment, adverse inference should be drawn and has rightly been drawn by the Tribunal against the petitioner establishment.

76. In the facts and circumstances of the present case, this Court finds that oral termination of services of the respondent no.2 was in teeth of provisions of Section 6-N of U.P. Industrial Disputes Act, which reads as follows:-

"6N. Conditions precedent to retrenchment of workmen. - No workman employed in any industry who has been in continuous service for not less than one year under an employer shall be retrenched by that employer until, -

(a) the workman has been given one month's notice in writing indicating the reasons for retrenchment and the period of notice has expired or the workman has been paid in lieu of such notice wages for the period of the notice;

Provided that no such notice shall be necessary if the retrenchment is under an agreement which specifies a date for the termination of service;

(b) the workman has been paid, at the time of retrenchment, compensation which shall be equivalent to fifteen days' average pay for every completed year of service or any part thereof in excess of six months; and

(c) notice in the prescribed manner is served on the State Government.]"

77. In so far as the award is concerned, reinstatement has not been ordered, rather compensation as described in the initial portion of this judgment has been awarded. I do not find any factual or legal error committed by the Tribunal in deciding the adjudication case and making the award in so far as findings on unlawful termination are concerned. However, the validity of award, to the extent it does not direct reinstatement of workman or award of back wages, shall be examined while dealing with Writ-C No.27687 of 2016, filed by workman Umesh Kumar, as both the employer and the workman have challenged the same award by their respective writ petitions clubbed together. The findings recorded in the impugned award regarding services of respondent no.2 and wrongful termination thereof are pure findings of fact and do not call for any interference in exercise of extraordinary jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution of India. The writ petition fails and is accordingly dismissed.

(Umesh Kumar Vs. The Presiding Officer Industrial Tribunal And Another)

78. This writ petition has been filed by the workman Umesh Kumar challenging the impugned award dated 20.07.2015, published on 02.01.2016, passed by Presiding Officer, Industrial Tribunal (5), Meerut (respondent no.1) in Adjudication No.18 of 2002.

79. Heard Sri Ajay Rajendra, learned counsel for the petitioner and Sri Chandra Bhan Gupta, learned counsel for the respondent no.2.

80. The validity of award on factual and legal grounds in so far as services of the workman and their wrongful termination, has been thoroughly discussed while writing judgment in Writ-C No.22872 of 2016. However, the Court proceeds to consider as to what relief the workman is entitled to and as to whether the award to that extent is good or bad.

Rival contentions and their analysis

81. In the present case, the contention of Sri Ajay Rajendra, learned counsel for the workman is to the effect that once the Tribunal had arrived at a conclusion that termination of services of workman was illegal, direction for reinstatement of the workman with continuity in service and back-wages should have been issued and, therefore, to this extent, the award is illegal.

82. Contrarily, Sri Chandra Bhan Gupta, learned counsel for the respondent no.2 submits that since award is illegal in toto for the reasons stated in Writ-C No.22872 of 2016, this writ petition deserves to be dismissed.

83. I have heard learned counsel for the parties and perused the record.

84. The impugned award has already been held to be lawful while deciding Writ-

C No.22872 of 2016 to the extent indicated above. In so far as the sole point pressed by Sri Ajay Rajendra regarding non reinstatement of the petitioner in services with continuity in services and payment of back-wages, law in this regard is well settled to the effect that reinstatement is not an automatic consequence in every case and it depends on the facts and circumstances of individual cases under which the Tribunal as well as the High Court is under discretionary power to direct or not to direct reinstatement or to award compensation in lieu thereof.

85. In this regard, the Apex Court in the case of M/s Hindustan Tin Works Pvt. Ltd. Vs. The Employees of M/s Hindustan Tin Works Pvt. Ltd and others: AIR 1979 SC 75, in paragraph 9, has held that "*it is no more open to debate that in the field of industrial jurisprudence a declaration can be given that the termination of service is bad and the workman continues to be in service. The spectre of common law doctrine that contract of personal service cannot be specifically enforced or the doctrine of mitigation of damages does not haunt in this branch of law. The relief of reinstatement with continuity of service can be granted where termination of service is found to be invalid. It would mean that the employer has taken away illegally the right to the work of the workman contrary to the relevant law or in breach of contract and simultaneously deprived deprived workman of his earnings. Thus the employer is found to be in the wrong as a result of which the workman is directed to be reinstated, the employer could not shirk his responsibility of paying the wages which the workman has been deprived of by the illegal or invalid action of the employer. Speaking realistically, where termination of service" is questioned as invalid or illegal and the workman has to go through the gamut of litigation, his capacity to sustain himself throughout the protracted litigation is itself such an awesome factor that he may not survive to see the day when relief is granted. More so in our system where the law's proverbial delay has become stupefying. If after such a protracted time and energy consuming litigation during which period the workman just sustains himself, ultimately he is to be told that though he will be reinstated, he will be denied the back wages which would be due to him, the workman would be subjected to a sort of penalty for no fault of his and it is wholly undeserved. Ordinarily, therefore, a workman whose service has been illegally terminated would be entitled to full back wages except to the extent he was gainfully employed during the enforced idleness. That is the normal rule. Any other view would be a premium on the unwarranted litigating activity of the employer. If the employer terminates the service illegally and the termination is motivated as in this case, viz., to resist the workman's demand for revision of wages, the termination may well amount to unfair labour practice. In such circumstances reinstatement being the normal rule, it should be followed with full back wages. Articles 41 and 43 of the Constitution would assist us in reaching a just conclusion in this respect. By a suitable legislation, to wit, the U.P. Industrial Disputes Act, 1947, the State has endeavored to secure work to the workmen. In breach of the statutory obligation the services were terminated and the termination is found to be invalid; the workmen though willing to do the assigned work and earn their livelihood, were kept away therefrom. On top of it they were forced to litigation upto the apex Court and now they are being told that something less than full back wages should be awarded to them. If the services were not terminated the workmen ordinarily would have continued to work and would have earned their wages. When it was held that the termination of services was neither proper nor justified, it would not only show that the workman were always willing to serve but if they rendered service they would legitimately be entitled to the wages for the same. If the workman were always ready to work but they were kept away therefrom on account of invalid act of the employer, there is no justification for not awarding them full back wages which were very legitimately due to them. A Division Bench of the Gujarat High Court in Dhari Gram Panchayat v. Safai Kamldar Mandal, and a Division Bench of the Allahabad High Court in Postal Seals Industrial Co-operative Society Ltd. v. Labour Court, Lucknow & ors., have taken this view and we are of the opinion that the view taken therein is correct."

"A reading of the impugned order shows that the learned Single Judge did not find any jurisdictional error in the award of the Labour Court. He also did not find that the award was vitiated by any error of law apparent on the face of the record or that there was violation of rules of natural justice. As a matter of fact, the learned Single Judge rejected the argument of the corporation that termination of the appellant's service falls within the ambit of Section 2(oo)(bb) of the Act, and expressed unequivocal agreement with the Labour Court that the action taken by the Managing Director of corporation was contrary to Section 25G of the Act which embodies the rule of last come first go. Notwithstanding this, the learned Single Judge substituted the award of reinstatement of the appellant with compensation of Rs.87,582/- by assuming that appellant was initially appointed without complying with the equality clause enshrined in Articles 14 and 16 of the Constitution of India and the relevant regulations. While doing so, the learned Single Judge failed to notice that in the reply filed on behalf of the corporation before the Labour Court, the appellant's claim for reinstatement with back wages was not resisted on the ground that his initial appointment was illegal or unconstitutional and that neither any evidence was produced nor any argument was advanced in that regard. Therefore, the Labour Court did not get any opportunity to consider the issue whether reinstatement should be denied to the appellant by applying the new jurisprudence developed by the superior courts in recent years that the court should not pass an award which may result in perpetuation of illegality. This being the position, the learned Single Judge was not at all justified in entertaining the new plea raised on behalf of the corporation for the first time during the course of arguments and over turn an otherwise well reasoned award passed by the Labour Court and deprive the appellant of what may be the only source of his own sustenance and that of his family."

87. Further, the Supreme Court, in the case of Deepali Gundu Surwase Vs. Kranti Junior Adhyapak and others: 2013 (139) FLR 541 elaborately discussed the very idea of restoring an employee to the position which he held before dismissal or removal or termination of his services and, in paragraph 17, the Supreme Court held that the very idea of restoring an employee to the position which he held before dismissal or removal or termination of service implies that the employee will be put in the same position in which he would have been but for the illegal action taken by the employer. The injury suffered by a person, who is dismissed or removed or is otherwise terminated from service cannot easily be measured in terms of money. With the passing of an order which has the effect of severing the employer employee relationship, the latter's source of income gets dried up. Not only the concerned employee, but his entire family suffers grave adversities. They are deprived of the source of sustenance. The children are deprived of nutritious food and all opportunities of education and advancement in life. At times, the family has to borrow from the relatives and other acquaintance to avoid starvation. These sufferings continue till the competent adjudicatory forum decides on the legality of the action taken by the employer. The reinstatement of such an employee, which is preceded by a finding of the competent judicial/quasi judicial body or Court that the action taken by the employer is ultra vires the relevant statutory provisions or the principles of natural justice, entitles the employee to claim full back wages. If the employer wants to deny back wages to the employee or contest his entitlement to get consequential benefits, then it is for him/her to specifically plead and prove that during the intervening period the employee was gainfully employed and was getting the same emoluments. Denial of back wages to an employee, who has suffered due to an illegal act of the employer would amount to indirectly punishing the concerned employee and rewarding the employer by relieving him of the obligation to pay back wages including the emoluments."

88. In the same report, with regard to award of back-wages, it was held that payment of back wages having a discretionary element involved in it has to be dealt with, in the facts and circumstances of each case and no straight-jacket formula can be evolved, though, however, there is statutory sanction to direct payment of back wages in its entirety. The Supreme Court further elaborately laid down various propositions, in paragraph 33 of its report stating that in case of wrongful termination of service, reinstatement with continuity of service and back-wages is the normal rule.

89. Reference of another decision of the Supreme Court in the case of Bhuvanesh Kumar Dwivedi Vs. M/s Hindalco Industries Ltd: 2014 (142) FLR 20 is also worth mention in which, while referring to the judgment in the case of Deepali Gundu Surwase (supra) the Apex Court has held that it would amount to grave injustice to an employee or workman if he is denied back wages simply because there is long lapse of time between the termination of his service and finality given to the order of reinstatement. The Courts should bear in mind that in most of these cases, the employer is in an advantageous position vis-à-vis the employee or workman. He can avail the services of best legal brain for prolonging the agony of the sufferer, i.e., the employee or workman, who can ill afford the luxury of spending money on a lawyer with certain amount of fame. Therefore, in such cases it would be prudent to adopt the course suggested in Hindustan Tin Works Private Limited v.

Employees of Hindustan Tin Works Private Limited (supra)....."

90. After discussing on the issue of reinstatement vis-a-vis back-wages, the Apex Court in the case of Mackinnon Mackenzie & Company Ltd. Vs. Mackinnon Employees' Union: 2015 (145) FLR 184, in paragraph 43, has held as follows:-

"43. Further, with regard to reinstatement of the concerned workmen and back- wages to be paid to them, the learned senior counsel on behalf of the workmen has rightly placed reliance upon the case of Anoop Sharma v. Executive Engineer 2010 (125) FLR 629 (SC), wherein it was held that since termination of employment is in breach or violation of the mandatory provisions of Chapter V-A or V-B of the I.D. Act is void ab initio in law and ineffective and suffers from nullity, in the eyes of law and in the absence of very strong and compelling circumstances in favour of the employer, the Court must grant a declaration that the termination was non est and therefore the employees should continue in service with full back wages and award all the consequential benefits. Further, with respect to payment of back wages and consequential benefits, reliance was rightly placed on the decisions of this Court in the cases of Deepali Gundu Surwase v. Adhyapak Mahavidyala (2013) 10 SCC 324 and Bhuvnesh Kumar Dwivedi v. Hindalco 2014 (142) FLR 20 (SC). This Court opined thus in the case of Deepali Gundu Surwase (supra):

"22. The very idea of restoring an employee to the position which he held before dismissal or removal or termination of service implies that the employee will be put in the same position in which he would have been but for the illegal action taken by the employer. The injury suffered by a person, who is dismissed or removed or is otherwise terminated from service cannot easily be measured in terms of money. With the passing of an order which has the effect of severing the employer employee relationship, the latter's source of income gets dried up. Not only the concerned employee, but his entire family suffers grave adversities. They are deprived of the source of sustenance. The children are deprived of nutritious food and all opportunities of education and advancement in life. At times, the family has to borrow from the relatives and other acquaintance to avoid starvation. These sufferings continue till the competent adjudicatory forum decides on the legality of the action taken by the employer. The reinstatement of such an employee, which is preceded by a finding of the competent judicial/quasi judicial body or Court that the action taken by the employer is ultra vires the relevant statutory provisions or the principles of natural justice, entitles the employee to claim full back wages. If the employer wants to deny back wages to the employee or contest his entitlement to get consequential benefits, then it is for him/her to specifically plead and prove that during the intervening period the employee was gainfully employed and was getting the same emoluments. Denial of back wages to an employee, who has suffered due to an illegal act of the employer would amount to indirectly punishing the concerned employee and rewarding the employer by relieving him of the obligation to pay back wages including the emoluments."

91. In a very recent decision in the case of Armed Forces Ex Officers Multi Services Co-operative Society Ltd. Vs.

Rashtriya Mazdoor Sangh (INTUC): 2022 (175) FLR 544, the Supreme Court rejected the contention of the employer to the effect that the Tribunal was not justified in directing continuity of service. In paragraph 16 it was held as under:-

"16. The further submission of the Appellant that the Tribunal is not justified in directing continuity of service, as in the case of retrenchment followed by re-employment, the workmen are not entitled to continuity of service needs to be answered. Even here, there is no quarrel with the principle of law that re-employment of retrenched workmen does not entitle them to claim continuity of service as held in Cement Corpn. of India Ltd. v. Presiding Officer Industrial Tribunal-cum-Labour Court and Anr., as well as the Maruti Udyog Ltd v. Ram Lal and Ors. However, the principle laid down in these judgments will only apply to cases where the retrenchment is bona fide. The Tribunal has held that the retrenchment of all the drivers followed by an offer of re-employment on new terms and conditions is not bona fide. Once the orders of retrenchment are set aside, the workmen will naturally be entitled to continuity of service with order of back wages as determined by a Tribunal or a Court of law."

92. The aforesaid view has been reiterated by the Supreme Court very recently in its judgment dated 23.09.2022 passed in Civil Appeal No.6890 of 2022 (Arising out of Special Leave Petition (Civil) No.8393 of 2022) Jeetubha Khansangji Jadeja Vs. Kutchh District Panchayat.

Conclusion

93. Following the law laid down in the aforesaid authorities and having considered the material on record, this Court is of the considered view that once the Tribunal found termination of the services of the petitioner as contrary to the provisions of law, relief only in the form of compensation etc would be unjust and the Labour Court should have directed reinstatement of the petitioner in service with full or 50% back-wages. The Court does not find any cogent reasoning in the order of the Labour Court in so far as the denial of relief of reinstatement or back-wages is concerned.

94. In view of the above, the writ petition succeeds and is allowed. The impugned award dated 20.07.2015, published on 02.01.2016, passed by the Presiding Officer, Labour Court (5), U.P., Meerut (respondent no.1) in Adjudication Case No.18 of 2002 (M/s Jagran Prakashan Ltd. Vs. Umesh Kumar) is hereby modified and it is directed that the petitioner (Umesh Kumar) shall be forthwith reinstated in his services. He shall also be entitled for back-wages to the extent of 50% from the date of his termination. All other consequential benefits of service are also awarded in favour of the petitioner (Umesh Kumar) which shall be released in accordance with law by the respondent-establishment without any delay.

95. Since the amount under the award was directed to be deposited under the interim order dated 20.05.2016 passed in Writ-C No.22872 of 2016 with a further direction that it shall be invested in a fixed deposit with a nationalized bank, it is hereby directed that on moving of an application by the workman (Umesh Kumar) before the Tribunal below, the Tribunal and the concerned bank shall facilitate release of the amount deposited in the nationalized bank through proper course to the petitioner (workman) not later than two months from the date a certified copy of this order is produced along with appropriate application. The said amount shall be adjusted towards financial benefits conferred upon the petitioner (workman) under this judgment.

End Result

Writ-C No.23241 of 2016 (M/s Bureau Chief Rastriya Sahara and another Vs. Labour Commissioner U.P. and 2 others) is allowed; Writ-C No.23786 of 2016 (M/s Bureau Chief Rastriya Sahara and another Vs. Labour Commissioner and 2 others) is allowed; Writ-C No.22872 of 2016 (M/S Jagran Prakashan Ltd. Vs. Presiding Officer, Industrial Tribunal and another) is dismissed; and Writ-C No.27687 of 2016 (Umesh Kumar Vs. The Presiding Officer, Industrial Tribunal and another) is allowed.

Facts :-

1. Punjab National Bank (respondent no.3 bank) has granted certain credit facilities to M/s Shamli Papers Mill Ltd. (respondent no.5/borrower company), however, it defaulted in payment.

2. The Bank accordingly initiated proceedings under the provisions of Securitization and Reconstruction of Financial Assets and Enforcement of Security Interest Act, 2002 (for short "SARFAESI") and mortgaged property was put for auction. At this stage, the borrower company filed a Securitization Application (S.A.) No. 160 of 2010 before Debt Recovery Tribunal at Lucknow (for short "DRT").

3. The DRT passed an interim order dated 19.07.2011, whereby the bank was

4. First sale notice was not materialized, therefore, bank issued fresh sale notice and ultimately auction was materialized on 17.02.2014. Petitioner (auction purchaser) deposited complete sale price and sale certificate was also issued on 03.03.2014 to auction purchaser.

5. Petitioner (auction purchaser) filed an application before DRT for impleadment and clarification of interim order dated 19.07.2011 passed by DRT.

6. On above referred application, the DRT passed an order dated 08.05.2014 whereby application was allowed and held that the auction dated 17.02.2014 to be illegal and quashed it and the bank was directed to refund the amount received from petitioner (auction purchaser) along with interest. Relevant part of order is mentioned hereinafter :-

"I have heard rival submissions and perused the record.

It reveals from the record that restrain order dated 19.07.11 was passed by my predecessor was with specific direction that the "the bank to proceed as per law but do not confirm the sale till further orders" and the said order was not vacated till date by this Tribunal. The Contention raised by the Ld. Counsel for the applicant that since no bid was received, therefore, auction was not materialized, thus the order dated 19.07.11 has no effect is not acceptable. A formal declaration of this Tribunal was necessary before proceeding further. The second limb of argument of the respondent-bank is that the order dated 19.07.2011 was for the sale notice dated 16.6.11 which pertains to auction sale of the factory, land and building only and the plant and machinery were not part of the said auction. Therefore, in any case the said restrain order is not applicable for the plant and machinery. The said contention of the respondent Bank is not sustainable as during the fourth impugned auction, the factory land and building were also put for auction along with plant and machinery, therefore, I do not find merit in the contention of the Ld. Counsel for the respondent- Bank and I am of the view that since without vacation of the restrain order the respondent-Bank proceeded further and sold the plant and machinery in the auction, the said act amounts disobedience of the interim order of this Tribunal, therefore, the Judgment of the Hon'ble High Court of judicature at Allahabad in case of Savitri Devi (supra) is rightly applicable in the present matter. Their Lordship in the said judgment has categorically held that :-

"9. Admittedly,... it is settled regal proposition that sale deeds so executed are a nullity as having been executed in disobedience of the interim order of the Court. In Mulraj V. Murti Raghunathji Maharaj, AIR 1967 SC 1386 the Hon'ble Supreme Court considered the effect of action taken subsequent to passing of an interim order in its disobedience and held that any action taken in disobedience of the order passed by the Court would be legal subsequent action would be nullity.

10. Similar view has been reiterated in Surjit Singh and others v Harbans Singh and others, 1995 (6) SSC 50 1995 SCFBRC $30, Govt. of A.P. Gudepu Salic and others, 200 (4) SSC 625, Hansraj Tirathram v. The Administrator, Municipality Jammu, AIR 1963 Kerala 18.

11. Therefore, there is no doubt that the alleged sale deeds are nullity meaning thereby no nest, unenforceable and in executable and deserve to be ignored."

Therefore, in the light of above-mentioned facts and legal proposition the clarification application is hereby allowed and since the auction dated 17.02.2014 is illegal and all subsequent action of the respondent-Bank is nullity, hence, the auction is hereby quashed and the respondent-bank is hereby directed to refund the amount received from the auction purchaser along with interest @11% from the date of deposit of full amount of the auction.

Applicant to take steps before the Registrar for Incorporation of auction purchaser in the array of parties before the Registrar by 15.5.14.

List on 8.7.14 for final hearing."

7. The above referred order dated 08.05.2014 was challenged by the bank before Debts Recovery Appellate Tribunal, Allahabad (for short "DRAT") by filing an Appeal No. R-65/2014.

8. Meanwhile, Securitization application filed by borrower was allowed to be withdrawn by order dated 25.06.2014. The order dated 25.06.2014 is mentioned hereinafter :-

"Ld. Counsel for the applicant submits that he has moved an application dated 7.6.14 for withdrawal of the SA.

At this stage Ld Counsel for the auction purchaser vehemently opposed the withdrawal of the SA stating that respondent Bank has not refunded back his money till date.

In reply, Ld Counsel for the respondent-Bank submits that possession of the factory premises was given to the auction purchaser for a period of one month to remove the movable assets which has already been removed by him. Therefore, he submits that auction purchaser has no ground to object in the matter. He further submits that he has no objection on withdrawal of the S.A.

In the light of submission made by the parties as well as application for withdrawal of the case available on record, the SA is dismissed as withdrawn.

However, the respondent-Bank is hereby directed to ensure the compliance of order dated 8.5.14 of this Tribunal."

9. Subsequently, the appeal filed by the bank (against order of DRT quashing auction) was allowed by DRAT by an order dated 23.12.2014 and impugned order dated 08.05.2014 and 25.06.2014 therein was set aside and liberty was granted to auction purchaser to challenge auction proceedings. Impleadment application filed by auction purchaser/petitioner was also rejected vide order dated 21.01.2015.

10. Auction purchaser/petitioner filed a Writ Petition No. 807 of 2015 before this Court and the same was disposed of by order dated 30.11.2018. Relevant part of order is quoted hereinbelow :-

"The Court further found that the only controversy which remained to be considered is to the effect that the moveable property, which was purchased by the petitioner in the auction is delivered or not and if not delivered, the money has been refunded back or not.

After going through all the facts and circumstances of the case, this Court is of the definite opinion that the appropriate forum for the respective parties including the auction purchaser, would be the Debt Recovery Tribunal for adjudication of some factual disputed question of law which has now crept in during pendency of the S.A proceedings before the Tribunal or before the Appellate Tribunal. The question of fact which has originated during litigation before the two Tribunals, can well be settled before them after hearing the rival claims of all the parties. This Court is also not in agreement with the views drawn by the Appellate Tribunal that in the given facts of the case the auction purchaser is now stranger and can seek his remedy elsewhere. In these view of the matter, this Court finds that the all the parties may be relegated before the Tribunal for final adjudication of their rights in the matter.

In view of the above, the petition succeeds and is allowed. The orders impugned dated 21.1.2015 and 23.12.2014 passed by the Debts Recovery Appellate Tribunal as well as order dated 25.06.2014 passed by Debts Recovery Tribunal to the extent of permitting the withdrawal of Securitisation Application No. 160 of 2010, are quashed. The matter is remanded back to the Tribunal for adjudication after hearing the parties including the auction purchaser afresh."

11. In compliance of above order, the DRT, Lucknow heard the parties and passed following order dated 29.07.2019 on an M.A. filed by auction purchaser and allowed securitization application and directed to refund the money to auction purchaser.

12. The DRT, Lucknow held that :-

"The Respondent bank has failed to explain that when the sale conducted in favour of auction purchaser was set aside vide Tribunal's order drd.08-05-2014 then there was no reason to hand over the movable assets to the auction purchaser on a subsequent date.

The Respondent bank has failed to produce before the Tribunal any inventory with the signature of auction purchaser in support of handing over the movable items to the auction purchaser.

The Respondent bank has filed affidavit of Shri Rajkumar Saxena as evidence in support of handing over the movable assets. The said affidavit was filed before the Hon'ble High Court. Even with the said affidavit, no inventory duly signed by the Auction purchaser is enclosed in support of handing over the movable goods to him. Hence, merely on the basis of averments of affidavit, it cannot be inferred that the movable assets were ever handed over to the auction purchaser. Since the movable assets were never handed to applicant/auction purchaser, hence over applicant/auction purchaser is entitled to get back the sale consideration deposited by him with the bank."

13. The bank challenged the above order before DRAT which was allowed by impugned order dated 19.10.2020 that DRT shall adjudicate it first in the light of direction by this Court in Writ Petition No. 807 of 2015 which are referred below -:

"21. It is obvious that the appellant-bank orally prayed on 19.06.2019 for grant of permission to file additional documents but the Tribunal below declined to accept the said prayer stating that the matter was to be decided on the basis of earlier evidences. The Tribunal below has misconstrued the direction dated 30.11.2018 of the Hon'ble High Court. Since the order dated 19.06.2019 was challenged by the appellant-bank in Appeal No. R-55/2019 though, the same became infructuous after passing of the final order on 29.07.2019 but the bank was free to raise that issue in the instant appeal as the interim order dated 19.06.2019 merged with the final order. The order dated 19.06.2019 is not sustainable hence, is liable to be quashed in the present appeal.

22. It is worthwhile to mention that on 05.07.2019, the appellant-bank filed an application before the Tribunal below with some documents and the respondent No. 2 auction purchaser filed its preliminary objection on 10.07.2019 against the same. The Tribunal below ought to have decided the application dated 05.07.2019 before passing the final order. But without doing so, the Tribunal below has made certain observations with regard to some documents whereas, no finding was recorded with regard to the photographs and other electronics evidences including the videography stated to have been prepared on 05.08.2014 and 23.08.2014 by the appellant-bank. Further, the consideration of such documents without affording an opportunity of hearing to the auction purchaser for rebuttal of the same was another fallacy in the order and was also contrary to the earlier order passed on 19.06.2019 declining to permit the additional evidence.

23. Moreover, it is the specific averment of the appellant- bank that the representative of auction purchaser was present at the time of taking over the possession on 12.06.2014 and also that the videography was conducted on 05.08.2014 and 23.08.2014 in which the presence of authorized representative of auction purchaser is claimed. The electronic evidence including videography and photographs are relevant to decide the real controversy between the parties. However, the same was not considered and have not been allowed to be taken on record. Since the matter was pending before the Hon'ble High Court since 2014, therefore, the Bank had no opportunity to file evidence/document earlier before the DRT, Lucknow to substantiate their claim of delivery of possession. Thus, the Bank is entitled to be provided an opportunity of furnishing evidences/documents available with them. Simultaneously, the auction purchaser is also entitled for adducing evidence/documents in support of its contention or for rebuttal of the documents filed by the Bank. Since, the finding is to be recorded for the first time by the trial court i.e. Tribunal below therefore, I deem it appropriate to remand the matter back to the DRT, Lucknow to adjudicate afresh after affording opportunity to the parties to adduce the documents/evidences as they may wish to file.

24. In view of the above, the appeal is allowed. The order dated 19.06.2019 and 29.07.2019 passed by the Tribunal below are set aside and the matter is remanded back to the DRT, Lucknow to adjudicate it afresh in the light of the directions given by the Hon'ble High Court in Writ Petition No. 807/2015 after affording opportunity of filing additional evidences/documents and providing right to rebuttal to the same to the parties and then to decide the issue in accordance with law."

14. The above order is impugned in present writ petition at the instance of auction purchaser.

Submissions of Petitioner/Auction purchaser :-

15. Sri Shashi Nandan, Senior Advocate assisted by Sri G.P. Srivastava, learned counsel for petitioner/auction purchaser has submitted that :-

(i) This Court by order dated 30.11.2018 has quashed the orders dated 21.01.2015, 23.12.2014 passed by DRT and order dated 25.06.2014 to the extent of permitting withdrawal of Securitization Application No. 160 of 2010 and matter was remanded back to DRT for adjudication after hearing the parties including the petitioner/auction purchaser afresh.

(ii) On remand, DRT heard the parties on a limited issue about handing over of movable assets and held that since sale conducted in favour of auction purchaser was set aside on 08.05.2014, then there was no reason for bank to handover the movable assets to auction purchaser and that no inventory was filed in support of handing over the movable property.

(iii) This Court has not directed to adduce any new evidence. It has directed only that parties be heard afresh.

(iv) Possession of auction property was never handed over to the petitioner.

(v) Sufficient opportunity was granted to the bank, but no evidence was submitted during proceedings before DRT.

(vi) That the respondent bank on one hand has taken a stand that they have delivered possession to the petitioner company, however, on other hand they made an averment that the possession of the unit was delivered to one Sri Aash Ahmad. The respondent bank has further issued a letter on 19.07.2014 to one of the Director of the applicant company that since the plant and machinery installed at factory premises are huge so Sri Aash Mohd., who has no concerned with the petitioner company had requested for further time of 1 to 1/2 month to remove the same.

(vii) The pendrive submitted by bank before this Court cannot be relied upon.

Submissions of Bank :-

16. Sri Sanjai Singh, learned counsel appearing for bank has submitted that :-

(i) There are sufficient evidence with the bank that possession of land along with machinery was handed over to auction purchaser, which essential to be looked into for proper adjudication of dispute, therefore, there was no illegality in impugned order whereby matter was remanded back for consideration with liberty to submit evidence.

(ii) High Court has directed the DRT to decide afresh after hearing the parties, therefore, it ought to have allowed the bank to submit evidence. In support of their submission that possession was duly handed over.

(iii) Opportunity to place evidence cannot prejudice the auction purchaser as he has been granted liberty is granted to rebut the evidence.

17. Heard learned counsel for parties and perused record.

18. Handing over possession of a auction property requires a procedure to be allowed. A possession memo duly signed by representative of bank, auction purchaser and witnesses has to be prepared. To handover possession cannot be an empty formality.

19. In present case, learned counsel for bank alleged that possession of plant and machinery was handed over to auction purchaser/petitioner in presence of authorized representative of auction purchaser on 12.06.2014 and it was videographed also.

20. A photocopy of above referred possession memo dated 12.06.2014 is annexed as Annexure SA-1 of supplementary affidavit filed by respondents No. 3 and 4. The said document is dated 12.06.2014. It is purportedly signed by authorized signatory without any name/designation as well as same has signed below word 'received', but it is dated 18.06.2014, though by an order dated 08.05.2014, the DRT has held that auction dated 17.02.2014 was illegal, therefore, there was no occasion for bank to handover possession.

21. For reference, alleged possession memo is pasted hereinafter :-

22. The above referred document by any legal acumen could not be considered to be a 'possession memo' as required by due procedure, therefore, any videography of such act would have no consequence. The bank has brought on best evidence in support of their claim that property was handed over to auction purchaser, however, as referred above, it cannot be construed to be a legal document for possession.

23. The above referred document is not signed by any officer of bank, bank seal is also absent. Name of authorized officer is also not disclosed. The alleged authorized representative of auction purchaser has also not disclosed his name. There is no document on record how he was appointed as authorized representative of auction purchaser as well as there are no witnesses to the process of handing over of auction property; as well as inventory has also not placed on record though it was mentioned in abovereferred letter that inventory was also enclosed, therefore, there is no need to remand the matter to DRT for fresh consideration after giving opportunity to parties to give evidence as the best evidence is before the Court but it could not be considered to be a legal document for handing over possession of property to auction purchaser.

24. Accordingly, writ petition is allowed and impugned order dated 19.10.2020 is hereby quashed.

The petitioners are entitled to retain the land and respondents are directed not to interfere in the possession of the above land. (Para 7 and 9)

Writ petition allowed. (E-1)

List of Cases cited:

1. St. of U.P. Vs Hari Ram; (2013) 4 SCC 280

(Delivered by Hon'ble Arun Kumar Singh Deshwal, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the petitioners and learned Standing Counsel for the State.

2. The present petition has been filed with the following prayers:-

"i) Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus declaring all the proceedings over the land in question measuring 2971.7566 sq. meter, situated in Village Dhandhupura Tajganj, Tehsil Sadar, District Agra belonging to the petitioners as abated in view of the provisions of Urban Land (Ceiling and Regulation) Repeal Act, 1999.

ii) issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of Mandamus commanding the respondents not to interfere in peaceful occupation and possession over the land in question of the petitioners measuring 2971.7566 sq. meter, situated in Village Dhandhupura Tajganj, Tehsil Sadar, District Agra."

3. The contention of the petitioners is that the ceiling proceeding under U.P. Urban Land (Ceiling and Regulation) Repeal Act, 1999 (hereinafter referred to as "Act, 1999") was initiated against their father Chiddan Singh by order dated 4.7.1979 passed u/s 8(4) of the Act, 1999 declaring 2971.7566 sq. meters as surplus land in Village Dhandhupura Tajganj, Tehsil Sadar, District Agra. Thereafter, proceeding u/s 10(1) and 10(5) of the Act, 1999 were also initiated, but actual and physical possession was not taken.

4. Aggrieved by the order dated 4.7.1979 of the competent authority, the tenure holder Chiddan Singh preferred an appeal before the appellate authority bearing Misc. Appeal No. 146 and the same was allowed and order dated 4.7.1979 of the competent authority was set aside by order dated 16.10.1986 and the matter was remanded back to the competent authority with direction for serving fresh draft statement u/s 8(3) of the Act, 1999. In pursuance of the order dated 16.10.1986, the competent authority again initiated proceedings against Chiddan Singh, declaring 2971.7566 sq. meters as surplus land. Thereafter notice u/s 10(1) was issued on 15.2.1993, notice u/s 10(3) was issued on 6.7.1993 and thereafter notice u/s 10(5) was issued on 17.2.1994.

5. It is further contended by learned counsel for the petitioners that though notice u/s 10(5) in fresh ceiling proceeding was issued on 17.2.1994 but possession was not taken from the petitioners and till day they are in possession of the aforesaid land which was declared as surplus land. It was also submitted that the father of the petitioners was the original tenure holder and he died on 15.4.2009.

6. On the other hand learned Standing Counsel stated that the possession of the surplus land was taken in the first round of ceiling proceeding on 29.4.1986. But this fact could not be disputed by the Standing Counsel that the possession was not taken after issuance of fresh notice u/s 10(5) dated 17.2.1994.

7. After hearing rival contentions of the parties and on perusal of the record, we are of the opinion that once the initial order of competent authority dated 4.7.1979 was set aside by the appellate court on 16.10.1986 then all consequential proceedings including the possession in first round of the proceeding lapsed and it is undisputed that in fresh round of ceiling proceeding, possession of the land in question was not taken despite the fact that notice u/s 10(5) was issued on 17.2.1994. Therefore, there is no material on record which demonstrates that the State has taken peaceful possession or forceful possession u/s 10(6) of the Act, 1999 in fresh ceiling proceeding in pursuance of the order dated 10.2.1993 of the competent authority. A detailed procedure has been provided under the U.P. Urban Land Ceiling (Taking of Possession, Payment of Amount and Allide Matters) Direction, 1983 for taking possession, but no such procedure, as prescribed in Direction, 1983, was followed.

8. Hon'ble Supreme Court, in State of U.P. vs. Hari Ram, reported in (2013) 4 SCC 280, has clearly observed that unless the actual possession is taken, the land will not be vested in the State and on the enforcement of Act, 1999 proceeding under the Ceiling Act will abate and the tenure holder is entitled to retain the land which was declared surplus.

9. In view of the above fact, we are of the considered view that the State has not brought on record any material to show that the actual possession was taken from the petitioner in pursuance of the fresh ceiling proceeding initiated on the basis of order dated 10.2.1993 of the competent authority, hence the ceiling proceeding regarding the land of the petitioners in Gata Nos. 1631, 1659, 1660 of total area 2971.7566 sq. meters in Village Dhandhupura Tajganj, Tehsil Sadar, District Agra has abated under the Act, 1999. The petitioners are entitled to retain the land and respondents are directed not to interfere in the possession of the above land.

10. With the aforesaid direction, the petition is allowed.

3. Saij Gram Panchayat Vs St. of Guj. & ors. , AIR 1999 SC 826

(Delivered by Hon'ble Manoj Kumar Gupta, J.)

1. The petitioner has challenged the constitutional validity of Section 10 of the U.P. Industrial Area Development Act, 1976 (for short "the Act"); the notification dated 18.12.2015, issued under the proviso to clause (1) of Article 243-Q of the Constitution of India; the notification dated 22.8.2001, issued by the State Government, under Section 2(d) of the Act and the order dated 29.8.2022, passed by the Competent Authority, Yamuna Expressway Industrial Development Authority, Gautam Budh Nagar (respondent no. 3 - for short "the Authority").

BACKGROUND

2. The petitioner claims to be co-owner of a residential plot in Khasra No. 422, area 561.86 square meters, Dankaur, Gautam Budh Nagar on basis of a sale deed dated 12.3.2021, executed in her favour by one Satish Goyal. The impugned order passed by respondent no. 3 dated 29.8.2022 records that an inspection was made by the officials of the Authority on 1.4.2022 and whereupon it transpired that the petitioner had sub-divided the plot and had raised illegal constructions over it. The same was prejudicially affecting the proper planning of the industrial development area and falls within the mischief of Section 10 of the Act. It was held to be violative of Section 9 of the Act and Regulation 1 and 3 of the Yamuna Expressway Development Authority (Construction and Demolition) Regulations, 2010, as no prior approval was taken from the Authority before raising the constructions. There is also a recordal to the effect that the area in question is part of the "industrial development area", so notified by notification dated 24.4.2001 and the notification issued on 18.12.2015, notifying eighty villages, including Village Dankaur as part of "industrial township" under the proviso to clause (1) of Article 243-Q of the Constitution of India. Consequently, the constructions raised were held to be illegal and have been directed to be removed within fifteen days, failing which, the Authority would remove it at the cost and expense of the petitioner.

CONTENTIONS

3. The basic ground of challenge is that the plot in respect of which the impugned order has been passed, is situated in Village Dankaur. The authority competent to grant approval to the constructions was Nagar Panchayat, Dankaur and the petitioner had applied before it on 2.11.2022 for grant of approval of the constructions. The said application is still pending. In these circumstances, the order passed by respondent no. 3 for demolition of the constructions on the ground that the petitioner had not taken permission from the Authority, is wholly illegal, as it amounts to usurpation of the powers of Nagar Panchayat, Dankaur. It is contended that the Act of 1976 and the U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916 under which Nagar Panchayat, Dankaur would be exercising its power, could not operate simultaneously. The notification issued under Article 243-Q results in divesting the Nagar Palika of its jurisdiction in the matter. It is also contended that Section 10 is violative of Articles 14, 21 and 31A of the Constitution of India, as it has the effect of permanently depriving a person of his/her right to use and enjoy the property or to raise constructions over it.

4. On the other hand, Sri Manish Goyal, learned Senior Counsel, assisted by Sri Suresh Singh, appearing for the respondent Authority, submitted that the vires of the notification dated 18.12.2015, issued under the proviso to clause (1) of Article 243-Q of the Constitution of India, has already been upheld by this Court in Writ - C No. 50154 of 2016 (Shri Niwaz Nagar and Another vs. State of U.P. and 5 Others), decided on 4.7.2017. It is urged that in the said judgment, this Court had considered the interplay between the constitutional scheme and the provisions of the Act and had held that the notification does not violate any provision of the Constitution. He has also placed reliance on another judgment of this Court in Writ - C No. 9899 of 2015 (Rakam Singh vs. State of U.P. and 6 Others), decided on 1.5.2015, wherein the validity of a similar notification dated 14.01.2015 was upheld. It is further contended that Section 10 is a provision which merely regulates the development and constructions in the area declared as 'industrial development area' and does not impose any permanent restriction in raising constructions. Therefore, the submission that the said provision offends any mandate of the Constitution, is not sustainable. It is also urged that the petitioner having admittedly raised constructions in an area declared as 'industrial development area', without prior approval of the Authority, there is no illegality in the impugned order and the writ petition deserves to be dismissed.

ANALYSIS

5. The impugned notification dated 18.12.2015 was issued in exercise of powers under Article 243-Q(1), which falls under Part IX-A of the Constitution, dealing with the Municipalities. It was inserted by the Constitution (Seventy-fourth Amendment Act), 1992 w.e.f. 1.6.1993. Article 243 (d) defines 'municipality' as an institution of self-government constituted under Article 243Q. Article 243Q envisages three different kinds of municipalities, namely, a Nagar Panchayat for a transitional area, that is to say, any area in transition from a rural area to an urban area; a Municipal Council for a smaller urban area; and a Municipal Corporation for a larger urban area. The proviso to clause (1) of Article 243Q empowers the Governor to constitute a municipality for any area or part thereof where having regard to the size of the area and the municipal services being provided or proposed to be provided by an industrial establishment in that area and such other factors as are deemed fit, by public notification, specify to be an industrial township. Article 243Q is extracted below for convenience of reference: -

243Q. Constitution of Municipalities. - (1) There shall be constituted in every State, -

(a) a Nagar Panchayat (by whatever name called) for a transitional area, that is to say, an area in transition from a rural area to an urban area;

(b) a Municipal Council for a smaller urban area; and

(c) a Municipal Corporation for a larger urban area, in accordance with the provisions of this Part:

Provided that a Municipality under this clause may not be constituted in such urban area or part thereof as the Governor may, having regard to the size of the area and the municipal services being provided or proposed to be provided by an industrial establishment in that area and such other factors as he may deem fit, by public notification, specify to be an industrial township.

(2) In this article, "a transitional area", "a smaller urban area" or "a larger urban area" means such area as the Governor may, having regard to the population of the area, the density of the population therein, the revenue generated for local administration, the percentage of employment in non-agricultural activities, the economic importance or such other factors as he may deem fit, specify by public notification for the purposes of this Part.

6. The proviso to clause (1) of Article 243Q is in nature of an exception to the main provision. Where the Governor specifies an area to be an "industrial township", having due regard to its size and the municipal services being provided or proposed to be provided by an industrial establishment in that area and such other factors as he may deem fit, a municipality need not be constituted in such area. As a corollary of the above, such an area would stand excluded from the municipal area. Any municipality already constituted for such an area, would cease to exist. Consequently, the municipal services, if any, being hitherto provided by the Municipality, would be provided by the industrial establishment.

7. The U.P. Industrial Area Development Act, 1976 provides for the constitution of an Authority for the development of certain areas in the State into industrial and urban township and for matters connected therewith. Section 2(b) defines "Authority" as that constituted under Section 3 of the Act. Thereunder, the "Authority" is a body corporate. Section 2(d) defines an "industrial area" as an area declared as such by the State Government by notification. Section 6 of the Act enjoins the Authority to secure planned development of the industrial development areas. Sub-section (2) of Section 6 enumerates some of the functions of the Authority to enable it to achieve its objectives. It includes preparation of plan for development of the industrial area; provide amenities, regulate erection of buildings, prescribe land usage, etc. On 22.3.2016, by U.P. Act No. 10 of 2016, sub-section (2) of Section 6 was amended and the function of providing "municipal service" by the Authority was specifically included. Sub-section (2) of Section 6, as amended, is extracted below: -

(2) Without prejudice to the generality of the objects of the Authority, the Authority shall perform the following functions :-

(a) to acquire land in the industrial development area, by agreement or through proceedings under the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 for the purposes of this Act;

(b) to prepare a plan for the development of the industrial development area;

(c) to demarcate and develop sites for industrial, commercial and residential purpose according to the plan;

(d) to provide infrastructure for industrial, commercial and residential purposes;

(e) to provide amenities and municipal services;

(f) to allocate and transfer either by way of sale or lease or otherwise plots of land for industrial, commercial or residential purposes and such other land uses as per master plan;

(g) to regulate the erection of buildings and setting up of industries and land uses as per master plan; and

(h) to lay down the purpose for which a particular site or plot of land shall be used, namely for industrial or commercial or residential purpose or any other specified purpose in such area as per the Master Plan.

8. Section 9 of the Act imposes ban on erection of buildings in contravention of Regulations and it reads as follows: -

9. Ban on erection of buildings in contravention of regulations. - (1) No person shall erect or occupy any building in the industrial development area in contravention of any building regulation made under sub-section (2).

(2) The Authority may by notification and with the prior approval of the State Government make regulations to regulate the erection of buildings and such regulations may provide for all or any of the following matters, namely -

(a) The materials to be used for external and partition walls, roofs, floors and other parts of a buildings and their position or location or the method of construction;

(b) Lay out plan of the building whether industrial, commercial or residential;

(c) the height and slope of the roofs and floors of any building which is intended to be used for residential or cooking purposes;

(d) the ventilation in, or the space to be left about any building or part thereof to secure circulation of air or for the prevention of fire;

(e) the number and height of the storeys of any building;

(f) the means to be provided for the ingress and egress to and from any building;

(g) the minimum dimensions of rooms intended for use as living rooms or sleeping rooms and the provision of ventilation;

(h) any other matter in furtherance of the proper regulation of erection, completion and occupation of buildings; and

(i) the certificates necessary and incidental to the submission of plans amended plans and completion reports.

(j) the time limit within which any building shall be required to be erected or repairs, additions, modifications is to be made in an existing building, shall be carried out and after completion thereof a notice of completion of construction of building or repairs, additions or modifications as the case may be, shall be lodged with the Authority and completion certificate obtained therefrom.

9. Section 10 is power of the Authority to ensure proper maintenance of site or building so that it does not prejudicially affect the planned industrial development of the area. Section 10 is extracted below: -

10. Power to require proper maintenance of site or building -

(1) If it appears to the Authority that the condition or use of any site or building is prejudicially affecting or is likely to affect the proper planning of or the amenities in any part of the industrial development area of the interests of the general public there, it may serve on the transferee or occupier of that site or building a notice requiring him to take such steps and within such period as may be specified in the notice and thereafter to maintain it in such manner as may be specified therein and in case such transferee or occupier fails to take such steps or to maintain it thereafter the Authority may itself take such steps or maintain it, and realize the cost incurred on it from such transferee or occupier.

(2) If the State Government considers it necessary or expedient in the public interest it may, by a general or special order, exempt wholly or partly - any such transferee or occupier or any class thereof from the taxes levied under sub-section (1).

10. It is noteworthy that Section 12-A and Section 12-B were inserted by U.P. Act No. 4 of 2001 and U.P. Act No. 10 of 2016, respectively and read as follows: -

12-A. No panchayat for industrial township. - Notwithstanding anything contained to the contrary in any Uttar Pradesh Act, where an industrial development area or an part thereof is specified to be an industrial township under the proviso to clause (1) of Article 243-Q of the Constitution, such industrial development area or part thereof, if included in a Panchayat area, shall, with effect from the date of notification made under the said proviso, stand excluded from such Panchayat area and no Panchayat shall be constituted for such industrial development area or part thereof under the United Provinces Panchayat Raj Act, 1947 or the Uttar Pradesh Kshettra Panchayats and Zila Panchayats Adhiniyam, 1961, as the case may be, and any Panchayat constituted for such industrial development area or part thereof before the date of such notification shall cease to exist.

12-B. (1) The Governor may, by notification, specify under Article 243-Q of the Constitution of India, the whole of Special Investment Region or the Industrial Development Area or any part thereof to be an Industrial Township.

(2) Notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in any Uttar Pradesh Act, where an special investment region or industrial development area or any part thereof is specified to be an Industrial Township under the proviso to clause (1) of Article 243Q of the Constitution of India, such industrial development area or part thereof, falling in a Municipality shall from the date of notification stand excluded from that Municipality area and all powers and functions performed with respect to such area shall be exercised or performed by the Authority.

These provisions make explicit the effect of any area being declared as "industrial township" under the provisions of Article 243-Q. If it was part of the panchayat, it shall stand excluded therefrom and any panchayat constituted for such area or part thereof shall cease to exist from the date of notification under Article 243-Q. The same consequences are to follow in case any area or part comprised in a Municipality is declared as "industrial township". It shall stand excluded from that Municipality from the date of notification and all powers and functions performed with respect to such area shall be exercised by the Authority.

11. Section 18 invests the State Government with the power to make rules for carrying out the purposes of the Act. Section 19 empowers the Authority to make regulations with the previous approval of the State Government, not inconsistent with the provisions of the Act or the Rules for proper administration of the affairs of the Authority. In exercise of the above powers, the 'Authority' has made 'the Yamuna Expressway Industrial Development Area Building Regulations, 2010 and the Yamuna Expressway Authority Demolition Regulations' containing specific provisions regulating the manner in which permission is to be obtained for raising constructions in the 'industrial development area' and the power of the Authority to demolish the constructions made without obtaining approval or contrary to the plans or usage prescribed. Chapter-II Regulation 4 of the Regulations, 2010 which prohibits construction activity in the 'industrial development area' without obtaining approval is extracted below: -

4.0 Building permit - No person shall erect any building or a boundary wall or fencing without obtaining a prior permit thereof, from the Chief Executive Officer or an Officer authorized by the Chief Executive Officer for this purpose.

Regulation 5(i) and (ii) of the Demolition Regulations which empowers the Authority to remove constructions made without permission, approval or sanction is as follows: -

5.(i) Where any development in an industrial development area has been commenced or continued in contravention of the plan without the permission, approval or sanction, referred to in regulation - 1 or in contravention of any condition subject to which such permission, approval or sanction has been granted then, without prejudice to the provisions of the regulation - 4 and section - 15 of the Act, the Competent Officer may make an order requiring the development to be discontinued from the date of service of the order, and such order shall be complied with accordingly.

(ii) Where such development is not discontinued in pursuance of the order under sub-regulation (I), Competent Officer may require force to remove the person by whom the development has been commenced and all his assistance and workmen from the place of development within such time as may be specified in the regulation.

12. The object and the scheme of the Act demonstrably is to give impetus to the development of industries in certain areas in the State. The State Government declares such areas as 'industrial development area' by issuing notification under Section 2(d) of the Act. The Industrial Development Authority constituted under Section 3 for such area gets invested with the power to carry out development of the said area. As noted above, one of the functions of the Authority is to ensure that the development which takes place in the area is such that it does not have adverse impact on the proper planning of or the amenities in any part of the industrial development area or the interests of the general public there. To achieve the said object, the Authority has also been given power, inter alia, to regulate the building activity in the area by framing regulations. The Regulations framed by the Authority inter alia, provides for the manner in which approval for raising constructions is to be obtained and empowers the 'Authority' to remove the same, if made without obtaining approval.

13. On 24.4.2001, by a notification, the State Government constituted an Authority in the name of "Taj Expressway Development Authority, in exercise of power under Section 3 of the Act. Eight revenue villages were notified as 'industrial development area', falling under its jurisdiction. On 24.8.2001, another notification was issued, notifying more villages as 'industrial development areas'. It included village Dankaur as well, with which we are presently concerned in the instant case. The said notification was issued under Section 2(d) of the Act. The result of the same was that the said area stood excluded from the panchayat area of Nagar Panchayat, Dankaur and the municipal services and building activity in the said area came to be regulated and controlled by the Taj Expressway Development Authority. On 11th July, 2008, by another notification, the name of the Authority was changed to Yamuna Expressway Industrial Development Authority. On 18th December, 2015, by the notification impugned, the Governor in exercise of powers under the proviso to clause (1) of Article 243Q of the Constitution, specified an area comprising of eighty villages, which had earlier been declared as 'industrial development area', as an 'industrial township' w.e.f. the date of publication of the notification. It superseded the earlier notification dated 30.6.2008.

14. In Rakam Singh (supra), the notification dated 14.1.2015 notifying certain area of a particular Gram Panchayat as an 'industrial township', was challenged on the ground that it would have the effect of dissolving the Gram Panchayat of that area, a consequence, which is against the spirit of Part IX of the Constitution, which contemplates the creation of Panchayats as institutions of self-government. The challenge was repelled and it was held as follows: -

What Article 243-Q (1) does, is to provide that a Municipality under clause (1) may not be constituted in respect of an area which has been specified as an industrial township having regard to the size of the area and the municipal services being provided or proposed to be provided by an industrial establishment. An industrial township is a subset of an urban area which fulfils the characteristics provided by the proviso to Article 243-Q (1). But for the proviso, a Municipality would have had to be constituted under the substantive part of Article 243-Q (1) in respect of an area which has been specified as an industrial ownership. An industrial township, however, is an area in which an industrial establishment has provided or proposes to provide municipal services and which is so specified by the Governor having regard to the size of the area. Where an industrial township has been specified, the requirement of constituting a Municipality stands lifted. If this constitutional scheme providing for Panchayats on one hand and Municipalities on the other is construed so as to effectuate the purpose and intent of the provisions of Part IX and Part IX-A, there can be no ambiguity about the position. Once a Municipality is constituted in respect of an area under Article 243-Q (1), it would be far fetched to contend that nonetheless, the very same area must necessarily fall within the jurisdiction of a village Panchayat that was constituted under Article 243-B. The whole object of constituting a Municipality is to provide an institution of local self-government in those areas which have ceased to be villages within Part-IX and which do not meet the description of a rural area. The constitution of an industrial township under the proviso to Article 243-Q (1) obviates the necessity of constituting a Municipality for that area. Once an industrial township is constituted, regulation of that township would take place under the enabling provision of state legislation governing such a township.

15. The constitutional validity of the notification dated 18th December, 2015 impugned herein, whereby the village in question along with other villages had been notified as 'industrial township', was specifically in issue in Shri Niwaz (supra). Also under challenge therein were the communication issued by the Government dated 10.9.2016 and 12.9.2016 whereby the Authorities decided not to hold election of panchayats in villages notified as 'industrial development areas'. A Co-ordinate Bench of this Court of which one of us (Manoj Kumar Gupta, J.) was a member, upheld the constitutional validity of the notification relying on the judgment in Rakam Singh (supra) and repelled the contention that provisions of the Constitution had been violated. It was observed as follows: -

It has been authoritatively held in Rakam Singh (Supra) that " (i) If the area is included in a Panchayat area, it would, with effect from the date of the notification made under the proviso, stand excluded from the Panchayat area; (ii) No Panchayat can be constituted for such an industrial development area or a part under the Act of 1947 or the Adhiniyam of 1961". The impugned orders passed by the Special Secretary dated 10 September 2016 and the Director, Panchayat Raj dated 12 September 2016 simply clarify the legal position which emerges on account of the area being declared as Industrial Township.

Even in the absence of these orders, the legal consequence flowing out of the notification dated 18 September 2015 was inevitable and could not have been avoided by the petitioners.

The validity of the notification is therefore no more res-integra, as rightly pointed out by Sri Manish Goyal, Senior Advocate, appearing on behalf of the Authority.

16. As regards challenge advanced to the notification dated 22.8.2001, the same was issued by the State Government in exercise of power under Section 2(d) of the Act. The vires of Section 2(d) is not in issue. As seen, the Constitution itself envisages development of certain areas as industrial townships and to achieve the said object, it also envisages a separate Authority for such area which would provide municipal services and develop it. The said object of the Constitution is being achieved under the enabling provisions of the State legislation under which initially notification dated 24.4.2001 was issued, notifying eight villages as 'industrial development area'. In sequel to the same, the impugned notification dated 22.8.2001 was issued. It merely includes some more areas within the ambit of the industrial development area falling under the jurisdiction of the Authority. The contention that the said notification is illegal or against the constitutional mandate, does not merit acceptance.

17. We also do not find any merit in the contention that the impugned notifications have the effect of bringing in conflict the provisions of the U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916/U.P. Panchayat Raj Act, 1947 with that of the U.P. Industrial Area Development Act, 1976. As already discussed, the effect of issuance of the notification under proviso to clause (1) of Article 243Q of the Constitution is that the area covered thereunder ceases to be under the control of the Panchayat or Municipality, as the case may be, and the municipal services and building activities therein gets regulated by the Authority constituted under the Act. The provisions of the U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916/U.P. Panchayat Raj Act, 1947 ceases to apply. Consequently, there is no question of any conflict. In a similar fact situation, the Supreme Court in Saij Gram Panchayat vs. State of Gujarat and Others repelled the contention while considering cognate provision of the two legislations in the State of Gujarat. It has been held that the objective of the two legislations is different and they operate in different fields and there is no question of any conflict. It was observed as follows: -

"16. The contention is based on a misconception about the relationship of the provisions of Parts IX and IXA of the Constitution with any legislation pertaining to industrial development. The Gujarat Industrial Development Act operates in a totally different sphere from Parts IX and IXA of the Constitution as well as the Gujarat Panchayats Act, 1961 and the Gujarat Municipalities Act, 1962 - the latter being provisions dealing with local self Government while the former being an Act for industrial development, and orderly establishment and organisation of industries in a State. The industrial areas which have been notified under Section 16 of the Gujarat Industrial Development Act on 7.9.1993 were notified as industrial areas under the Gujarat Industrial Development Act long back in the year 1972. These industrial areas have been developed by the Gujarat Industrial Development Corporation and they can hardly be looked upon as rural areas covered by Part IX of the Constitution. It is only such industrial areas which can be notified under Section 16 of the Gujarat Industrial Development Act, 1963. If by a notification issued under Section 16, these industrial areas are deemed to be notified areas under the Gujarat Municipalities Act and are equated with industrial township under the proviso to Clause (1) of Article 243-Q, the constitutional scheme is not violated. In fact, under Chapter 3 of the Gujarat Industrial Development Act, 1962, the Gujarat Industrial Development Corporation, has been given power, inter alia, to develop land for the purpose of facilitating the location of industries and commercial centers. It has also been given the power to provide amenities and common facilities in such areas including provision of roads, lighting, water supply, drainage facilities and so on. It may do this either jointly with Government or local authorities or on an agency basis in furtherance of the purposes for which the corporation is established. The industrial area thus has separate provision for municipal services being provided by the Industrial Development Corporation. Once such an area is a deemed notified area under the Gujarat Municipalities Act, 1964, it is equated with an industrial township under Part IXA of the Constitution, where municipal services may be provided by industries. We do not see any violation of a constitutional provision in this scheme."

18. A feeble attempt was made to challenge the said notification by contending that the provision of the Act shall also come in conflict with the U.P. Land Revenue Act, 1901, but without specifying how it would be so. It is pertinent to note that the U.P. Land

Revenue Act, 1901 deals with land revenue and the jurisdiction of Revenue Officers in the State. The Act does not regulate building activity. The Revenue Authorities are not concerned with planning or development. The contention is thus devoid of merit.

19. Counsel for the petitioner contended that Section 10 of the Act imposes unreasonable restriction on the right of a person to raise constructions over his land. According to him, it is violative of Articles 14, 21 and 31A of the Constitution. The contention does not appear to have any force. Section 10 is not a permanent clog on right of any person to raise construction in areas falling under the jurisdiction of the Authority constituted under the Act. The construction activity only gets regulated by the regulatory steps that are taken by the Authority to ensure proper planning of the area so that it does not predudicially affect the industrial development or interests of the general public there. The Regulations framed by the Authority in exercise of its power under Section 19 of the Act contains specific provisions as regards the manner in which permission for raising construction could be obtained. It does not ban the development or construction activity, but is only a power to regulate.

20. Article 31A is not at all attracted to the facts of the instant case. The contention that the impugned notification has the effect of acquiring the land of the petitioner without paying compensation, does not merit acceptance, inasmuch as, the impugned notification issued under Article 243-Q, notifying 'industrial township' and the limits of the lands included therein, does not have the effect of acquiring such lands or any building or structure standing over it, but only subjects the same to the regulatory measures prescribed by the Authority to achieve the objective of planned development of the area.

21. Concededly, the petitioner had raised constructions without obtaining previous approval of the Authority. The impugned order specifically records that the constructions raised were prejudicially affecting the planned development of the area. These findings of fact are not under challenge. Consequently, we find no merit in the writ petition.

22. Accordingly, the writ petition is dismissed. No order as to costs.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mahesh Chandra Tripathi, J.)

1. Heard Sri Fuzail Ahmad Ansari, learned counsel for the petitioner and Sri Sudarshan Singh, learned counsel for the respondents.

2. Pleadings have been exchanged and with consent of learned counsel for the parties, this writ petition is being finally disposed of under the Rules of the Court.

3. Present Writ Petition under Article 226 of the Constitution of India is preferred seeking following reliefs:-

"A. issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of certiorari to quash the impugned Modification Advice/Orders dated 12/13.09.2018 in respect of Purchase Order No.CORE/S/1271/5530/20478 dated 27.02.2018, Purchase Order No.CORE/S/1271/5226/20473 dated 12.01.2018 and Purchase Order No.CORE/S/1271/4054/20177 dated 13.09.2013 as well as quash the Demand Notice dated 26.09.2018 in respect of purchase order dated 13.09.2013.

B. issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus directing the respondent authorities to make the entire payments of the petitioner forthwith alongwith 18% interest from the actual date of dues of the petitioner.

C. issue a writ, order or direction which this Hon'ble Court may deem fit and proper under the circumstances of the case.

D. award the cost to the petitioner."

4. The brief facts of the case are that the petitioner is a partnership firm registered under the Partnership Act, 1932 and engaged in business of supply of specialized electrical equipments imported from Europe to the Indian Railways. The petitioner firm is an agent of Arthur Flury, Switzerland, which is an international company engaged in the business of manufacturing several specialized electrical equipments to be used worldwide in the electrification of railways as well as in other fields also. The petitioner firm inter alia procures "Short Neutral Section Assembly" also called "Phase Break", which is approved by the Research Design and Standard Organization (RDSO). This equipment is used to separate two different phases on 25 KV overhead traction of Railways. It is further stated that there is only one approved source for this item in RDSO approved list i.e. M/s Arthur Flury AG Switzerland, the original equipment manufacturer, which sells this product through its authorised Indian distributor i.e. the petitioner firm. The Central Organization for Railway Electrification is an organization established by Ministry of Railways, Government of India in the year 1979 for carrying out the railway electrification over the entire network of Indian Railways. In terms of Railway Board's letter bearing No.RE (S)14/11/82/0012Pt. dated 14.11.2017, SNS Assembly is a centralised procurement item of CORE, where demand of all Zonal Railways is consolidated and procured.

5. The CORE floated an online global tender on their website for supply of 28 sets of SNS Assembly (Phase Breaks). The petitioner firm also participated in the global tender floated by the CORE and submitted their quotation in Indian currency for the imported material from AF Switzerland. The petitioner quoted the price on the basis of its previous year purchase directly from AF Switzerland in foreign currency. The petitioner made an offer on fixed price basis, which means that any fluctuation on account of foreign currency or custom duty has to be borne by petitioner only. The petitioner also disclosed its price on the basis of calculation on the current Swiss Franc rates at the time of bidding and also submitted the proforma invoice from AF Switzerland, which is claimed to be same price on which the CORE bought the material directly from AF Switzerland some years back. It is also claimed that Arthur Flury Switzerland - AF prices remained same from the years 2011 till 2018 in foreign currency as it had a policy of fixed prices for final customer and re-seller gets the discount on these prices. The bid was opened on 18.10.2017 and the petitioner's offer was accepted by the Competent Authority. Consequently, legally bounded purchase order was given to the petitioner for supply of 28 sets of SNS Assembly (Phase Breaks) vide their purchase order dated 12.1.2018 with detailed terms and conditions for total value of Rs.2.31 crores. It is undisputed that full material was supplied by the petitioner firm. The copy of the challan-cum-tax invoice showing receipt of articles on 15.3.2018 has also been brought on record as Annexure No.7 to the writ petition.

6. Meanwhile, another global tender was advertised by the CORE on their official website and solicited online global bids, which were opened on 29.11.2017 for supply of 238 sets of SNS Assembly (Phase Breaks). The petitioner firm had again participated in the said global tender. Finally, the Members of the Tender Committee accepted the offer of the petitioner and recommended to procure 176 sets, out of total tender quantity of 238 sets. It is also claimed that the decision of the Tender Committee was accepted by the Higher level Purchase Officer i.e. Principal Chief Material Manager of CORE. Thereafter, the respondent issued the purchase order dated 27.2.2018 with detailed terms and conditions for supply of 170 sets for Rs.14.64 crores. It is not disputed that in response of the purchase order dated 27.2.2018, the petitioner supplied the entire articles through various Challan-cum-Tax Invoices dated 26.6.2018, which is appended as Annexure No.9 to the writ petition. After supply of the materials instead of clearing the outstanding amount to the petitioner firm, the second respondent sent a letter dated 17.05.2018 apprising the petitioner that they have invoked "Book Examination Clause" for the present order as well as the previous order of 2013, which has already attained finality and the payments have also been made to the petitioner in January, 2018 itself, as the respondents felt that the petitioner has made an abnormally high profit while importing the material from AF Switzerland. Thereafter, the CORE has issued impugned modification advice dated 12/13.9.2018, whereby, modification has been made in respect of purchase orders dated 27.2.2018, 12.1.2018 and 13.9.2013. Consequently, the impugned demand order dated 26.9.2018 has been issued, whereby the amendment has been issued by the CORE for lower rates after results of book examination due to discovery of new rates of customs bills of entry @ CHF 6400 for each set vide customs letter dated 22.6.2015 and the petitioner firm was required to deposit Rs.5,19,47,553.80 within 15 days. In case of default to deposit the said amount within stipulated time, the recovery would be made from the pending bills.

7. Record further reveals that in respect of the purchase order dated 13.9.2013, the bank guarantee which was given by the petitioner, was invoked by the CORE. Consequently, the matter was referred to the Arbitrator and finally, an award was given in favour of the petitioner firm directing the CORE to pay the bank guarantee amount to the petitioner within 30 days from the date of award i.e. 21.09.2017. It is not disputed that the said award has not been subjected to challenge by the CORE and the same has attained finality. Meanwhile, the respondents issued a notice to the petitioner on 17.5.2018 for producing books and records in tender under "Book Examination Clause-IRS 3300" qua the articles supplied by the petitioner in view of purchase order dated 13.09.2013 as well as purchase order dated 12.01.2018. Even though against the purchase order dated 13.09.2013 the respondents had already paid the amount and it was a closed contract. Said notice was responded by the petitioner through its response dated 30.05.2018. Thereafter, the respondents issued a letter to the petitioner on 14.06.2018 and reiterated the earlier demand of supplying the documents. In the notice dated 17.05.2018 the respondent had alleged that the petitioner is taking unreasonable higher profits. Consequently, the second respondent had preferred a complaint dated 12.06.2018 under Section 19 (1) (b) of the Competition Act, 2002 before the Secretary, Competition Commission of India alleging that the petitioner flouted the provisions of Sections 3 and 4 of the Act, 2002. The said complaint was treated as a Reference Case

No.05 of 2018 (Central Organisation for Railway Electrification Office of the Principal Chief Materials Manager 1, Nawab Yusuf Road, Civil Lines, Allahabd, U.P vs. M/s PPS International, Greater Noida, UP). Finally, the CCI by its judgment and order dated 27.8.2018 had proceeded to decide the reference holding that no case is made out against the petitioner.

8. The petitioner has preferred the present writ petition in the year 2018 seeking aforementioned reliefs. After filing the writ petition, a time barred Appeal dated 11.10.2019 was filed by the CORE before the National Company Law Appellate Tribunal, New Delhi under Section 53 (1) & (2) of the Act, 2002 against the judgment and order dated 27.8.2018 and the same was registered as Competition Appeal (AT) No.79/2019 (Central Organization for Railway Electrification vs. M/s PPS International). Notice was also issued to the petitioner, in which petitioner had filed its response/objection on 12.12.2019. Finally, the appeal was dismissed by the NCLAT by its judgment and order dated 23.1.2020. Against the said order, a review application was preferred by the CORE before the Appellate Tribunal, which was registered as Review Application No.01/2020 in Competition Appeal (AT) No.79/2019. The said review application was also rejected by the Appellate Tribunal on 13.4.2022.

9. Initially, present matter was taken up on 28.11.2018 and on the said date, a Division Bench of this Court had proceeded to pass an interim order in favour of the petitioner to the following effect:-

"Heard Sri Navin Sinha, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Sri Vivek

Kumar Singh, learned counsel appearing for the petitioner and Sri Rajnish Kumar Rai, learned counsel for the respondents.

By means of this writ petition, the petitioner has come to this Court raising a grievance that for the supply of material imported by the petitioner to the Railway, a contract was entered into between the petitioner and the Railways and rates were fixed. After contract was acted upon, materials were supplied and payments were also made by the Railway to the petitioner. But suddenly an order was passed issuing a show cause to the petitioner stating therein that petitioner is charging inflated rates, why rates should not be revised. Thereafter, the petitioner made a representation, which was not considered and the Railway straightway went before the Competition Commission of India as provided under the Competition Act, 2002. The said act has been enacted to provide, keeping in view of the economic development of the county, for the establishment of a Commission to prevent practices having adverse effect on competition, to promote and sustain competition in markets, to protect the interests of consumers and to ensure freedom to trade carried on by other participants in markets, in India, and for matters connected therewith.

The Competition Commission rejected the claim of the Railway by passing an order that no inflated rates have been presented by the petitioner for the Railway to revise the same.

It is to be noted that against the order of Competition Commission, the Railway had the freedom to approach the Tribunal constituted under the Act, which they chose not to and unilaterally revised the rates by passing an order dated 12/13.9.2018 and consequently, has issued a demand notice on 26.9.2018 for a sum of Rs.5,19,47,553.80/-.

It is to be further noted that once the Competition Commission already decided the claim of the Railway, prima facie, we are of the view that without filing an appeal, unilaterally rates could not have been revised.

The matter requires consideration.

Mr. Rajnish Kumar Rai, learned counsel for the respondents prays for and is allowed three weeks' time to file counter affidavit.

List this case after expiry of the aforesaid period.

Considering the aforesaid, no coercive steps shall be taken against the petitioner pursuant to the order dated 26.9.2018 (Annexure No.4 to the writ petition)."

10. Again on 23.1.2023 the Court had directed the parties to bring on record the reference filed by the CORE before the CCI and consequently, supplementary affidavit was filed on 29.1.2023 bringing on record the certified copy of the Reference Case No.05 of 2018 filed by the CORE and order passed in Review Application No.01/2020 as Annexure Nos.SA-4 & 5 to the supplementary affidavit.

11. In this backdrop, Sri F.A. Ansari, learned counsel for the petitioner vehemently contended that in the most arbitrary manner, the respondent had resorted to the "Book Examination Clause" contained in Indian Railway Standard Condition of Contract for procurement of materials and the same could not be invoked as it was not the part of tender condition. Unless the Railways specifically mention the "Book Examination Clause - Special Condition of Contract" and takes the consent of the bidders, they cannot invoke this "Book Examination Clause" at any point of time. The contracts were awarded after inviting online global tender from worldwide companies and settled after the rates and other terms and conditions were negotiated by the Tender Committee. Accordingly, with proper justification of the prices the same were approved by the Purchase Tender Committee. He submitted that admittedly, the petitioner's bid stood the lowest and technically suitable bid. The "Book Examination Clause" was not included in the earlier contract of the year 2013. Even though the same stood concluded with full and final payments in the month of January, 2018 after the arbitration award was passed by the arbitrator in favour of the petitioner on 21.9.2017. Thereafter, no other issues were ever raised by the CORE in respect of any exorbitant price or making any undue profits by the petitioner firm. The entire action of the respondent authorities was arbitrary with malafide reasons as they did not give any notice in respect of the purchase order dated 27.2.2018 and in most arbitrary manner, they had deducted the amount from the bills of the petitioner. The same is also in violation of principle of natural justice.

12. Sri F.A. Ansari further submitted that in the notice dated 17.05.2018 the respondent had alleged that the petitioner is taking unreasonable higher profits without there being any basis for the same. It is factually incorrect as the rates were finalized through proper negotiation between the parties and after due deliberations the price offered by the petitioner firm was duly accepted by the respondent authorities. Accordingly, the purchase order was issued in favour of the petitioner firm. Moreover, the second respondent had filed detailed complaint dated 12.06.2018 before the CCI, registered as Reference Case No.05/2018 under Section 19 (1) (b) of the Act, 2002, against the petitioner alleging contravention of provisions of Sections 3 and 4 of the Act, 2002. On the said complaint/reference the enquiry was made by the CCI on the basis of material filed by the respondent and passed an order on 27.8.2018 and rejected the complaint/reference. He submitted that while preferring the reference against the petitioner the CORE has alleged before the CCI, on the basis of purchase orders, to the effect that the petitioner's monopolistic position of single approved source has increased the rates in recent 12 years without any significant inflation in Switzerland. In support of his submission, he has placed reliance on the Reference Case No.05/2018, wherein the CORE had alleged the excessive pricing viz. "But later on it was revealed vide 'Custom's letter dated C. No.VIII/12/ACC-Import/Gr-VA/Misc./841/2013 dated 22.06.2015 that M/s PPS International has imported the material @ CHF 6400 and jacked up prices taking benefit of its monopoly situation.' Further, it has been stated in the last paragraph that 'From the above it becomes clear that M/s PPS International has misused its dominant position to jack up prices artificially. In the view of above it is requested that a case of misuse of its dominant position to artificially jack up prices may be registered upon M/s PPS International'".

13. Learned counsel for the petitioner has also drawn attention on the impugned Modification Advice/Orders dated 12/13.09.2018 in respect of (i) P.O. No.CORE/S/1271/5530/20478; (ii) P.O. No.CORE/S/1271/5226/20473 and (iii) P.O. No.CORE/S/1271/4054/20177 as well as Demand Order dated 26.09.2018 in respect of P.O. No.CORE/S/1271/4054/20177, which state that the amendment has been issued for lower rates after results of book examination due to discovery of new rates of customs bills of entry @ CHF 6400 for each set. The reference is also drawn on the chart supplied by the CORE to the CCI through reference case dated 12.06.2018, wherein the CORE has leveled the same allegation of excessive pricing on the basis of same material against the petitioner. The CORE had also alleged violation of Section 3 (3) (a), 4 (2) (a) (i) and 4 (2) (a) (ii) of the Act, 2002. He has also placed reliance on paras 17, 18 and 19 of the order passed by the CCI. He submitted that after filing the present writ petition and the observations of this Court in the interim order dated 28.11.2018, the CORE preferred a time barred Appeal before the NCLAT under Section 53 (1) and (2) of the Act, 2002 on 11.10.2019 against the order dated 27.08.2018 passed by the CCI. The aforesaid appeal filed by the CORE was dismissed by the NCLAT, New Delhi vide its judgment and order dated 23.01.2020 on the ground of delay as well as on merits also. Against the said order a Review Application was filed by the CORE and the same was also dismissed by the NCLAT on 13.4.2022. While dismissing the review application the NCLAT observed that it is open to the aggrieved party to prefer Civil Appeal before Hon'ble Supreme Court against the judgment dated 23.1.2020. He submitted that till date no appeal is filed and therefore, the order dated 27.1.2018 passed by the CCI has attained finality and findings therein are not amenable to scrutiny of this Court which has been upheld by the NCLAT vide order dated 23.1.2020 and 13.4.2022 (review order) which is not subjected to challenge before the Apex Court under Section 53-T of the Act, 2002. He submitted with utmost respect that once the remedy has not been availed by the CORE even at this belated stage then this Court does not inhere the power to sit in appeal or to interfere or upset the findings recorded by the CCI in its order dated 27.1.2018.

14. In support of his submission, learned counsel for the petitioner has placed reliance upon the judgment of Apex Court in Union of India vs. Tania Construction Pvt. Ltd. and ABL International Ltd. vs. Export Credit Guarantee Corporation of India Limited. He has also relied upon a Division Bench judgment of Madras High Court in M/s K.J. Hospital vs. M/s Technomed International and others.

15. On the other hand, Sri Sudarshan Singh, learned counsel for the respondents has vehemently opposed the writ petition and submitted that the petitioner firm is an agent of Arthur Flury, Switzerland since 1st May, 2008. The Arthur Flury, Switzerland (AF) is an international company, which is engaged in the business of manufacturing several specialized electrical equipment to be used worldwide in the electrification of Railway as well as in another field also. The CORE invited an international competitive bid for procurement of Neutral Phase Assembly Break for 347 sets. After opening of the tender in February, 2013 the petitioner's offer stood technically suitable lowest offer. Consequently, the CORE invited the petitioner firm for negotiation with the highest authority and after negotiation the petitioner's bid was accepted. Consequently, a Letter of Intent for the legally binding contract was issued by the Purchase Authority vide letter No.CORE/S/1271/4054 dated 20.08.2013 for supply of 282 sets out of total tendered quantity of 347 sets and issued a purchase order. Further, several tenders were opened; the company participated and regularly supplied the equipment. There is IRS condition in the contract between the parties, which is essential condition of contract and it manifestly provides that the contract will be governed by IRS General and Special Condition of the bid document. It is submitted that the Ministry of Railways issued Government order/letter No.82/F(F.Ex)24.1/CLW/11 New Delhi dated 16th November, 1982 imposing the condition on the commission payable to the Indian agents of foreign firms.

16. He further submitted that in IRS condition, books and account examination is part of the contract and after examining the books and account of the petitioner, the respondent found that the petitioner concealed the actual rate of the equipment and the petitioner firm had obtained purchase order by giving false documents regarding actual price of material to be supplied by M/s Arthur Flury, Switzerland. The alleged document submitted by the petitioner has been brought on record as Annexure CA-4 to the counter affidavit. Consequently, the recovery was made after the actual price of material imported from M/s Arthur Flury, Switzerland was found to be on much lower side as CHF 6400, CHF 7200 & CHF 7200 against the order rate CHF 8600, CHF 8580 & CHF 8580. The said recovery was done by invoking "Book Examination Clause" as mentioned in Para 3300 of IRS conditions of contract. He has placed reliance on Para-42 of the counter affidavit filed by the CORE, wherein it has been stated that in case of any dispute there is a provision of arbitration clause - 2900 IRS conditions as mentioned in the contract. After the amendment in Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 the condition clause 2900 was accordingly amended by the Railway Board and the same is applicable being statutory amendment.

17. It has been further submitted that while submitting the offer on behalf of M/s Arthur Flury, Switzerland, the petitioner has given proforma invoice in which higher CHF rate was quoted by the petitioner but at the time of supplying the material they have paid only CHF 6400, CHF 7200, CHF 7200 per unit respectively in purchase orders dated 13.9.2013, 12.1.2018 and 27.2.2018. Further the petitioner has declared in their calculation sheet submitted during the negotiation that they were claiming a profit of 2% over and above the offered prices in the tender i.e. CHF 8600, CHF 8590 and CHF 8590 in purchase orders dated 13.9.2013, 12.1.2018 and 27.2.2018 respectively, whereas the actual prices of these material were CHF 6400, CHF 7200 and CHF 7200. The petitioner had misrepresented the actual prices and on the basis of fraud, they have obtained the purchase order on high rate by concealing the material fact. Due to this difference of prices the Book Examination as per IRS-3300 has been conducted and modified advices have been issued for reduction in the rates of all three purchase orders and bills have been passed on reduced rates. Since for these three purchase orders, supply of material has already been completed and all bills have been paid, a recovery notice of Rs.5,19,47,553.80 has been served on the petitioner for depositing the said amount. The CORE had filed the case in CCI challenging the monopoly and abuse of dominant position of the petitioner under Sections 3 & 4 of the Act, 2002. It is not right to link CCI case with recovery made by invoking "Book Examination Clause", which is statutory in nature. Learned CCI has not considered the issue of difference of rates quoted by the petitioner in the tender and rates at which the material was actually imported by them. Therefore, both the cases i.e. invoking "Book Examination Clause" and complaint file at CCI are different and CCI case should not be linked with the present case. As mentioned in these purchase orders, this contract is governed by IRS conditions, General conditions & Special conditions of Contract. In para no.26 of General Condition of Contract as well as in Para 2900 of IRS Conditions, it is clearly mentioned that in the event of any question, dispute or differences arising the same shall be referred for approval of arbitrator by GM/CORE/Allahabad. Once the parties entered into the contract then they cannot go beyond the conditions of the contract in view of principles of judicial discipline. Therefore, the present writ petition is not maintainable for contractual dispute and the same is liable to be dismissed on this ground.

18. Heard rival submissions and perused the record.

20. So far as the "Book Examination Clause-IRS 3300" is concerned, the same is incorporated in the letter of the Railway Board dated 27.01.1983, which includes "Book Examination Clause - Special Conditions of Contract". The Book Examination Clause is reproduced hereinafter:-

"BOOK EXAMINATION CLAUSE

(i) The Contractor shall whenever called upon and requiring to produce or cause to be produced for examination by any Government Officer duly authorised in that behalf any cost or other account book of account, voucher, receipt, letter, memorandum, paper or writing or any copy of or extract from any such document and also, furnish information anywise relating to such transaction and produce before the duly authorised Government Officer returns verified in such manner as may be required relating in any way to the execution of this contract or relevant for verifying or ascertaining the cost of execution of this contract (the decision of such Government Officer on the question of relevancy of any document, information or return being final and binding on the parties).

The obligation imposed by this clause is without prejudice to the obligation of the Contractor under any statute, rules or orders shall be binding on the Contractor.

(ii) The Contractor shall, if the authorised Government Officer so requires (whether before or after the prices have been finally fixed), afford facilities to be Government Officer concerned to visit the Contractors works for the purpose of examining the processes of manufacturer and estimating or ascertaining the cost of production of the articles. Government Officer shall have the power to examine all the relevant book of such sub-contractor or any subsidiary or allied firm or company shall be open to his inspection as mentioned in clause (i).

(iii) If on such examination, it is established that the contract price is in excess of the actual cost plus reasonable margin of profit, the purchaser shall have the right to reduce the price and determine the amount to a reasonable level.

(iv) Whether a contract provided for book examination clause the Contractor or its agency bound to allow examination of its books within a period of 60 days from the date the notice is received by the Contractor, or its agencies calling for the production of documents as under clause (i) above. (emphasis supplied)

21. We have proceeded to examine the record in question and find that the CORE is an organization under the Ministry of Railways and is entrusted with the responsibility to carry out railway electrification over the entire network of the Indian Railways. The CORE inter alia procures SNS Assembly also called 'Phase Break' for various Railways Zones from M/s Arthur Flury AG Switzerland, which sells this product through its authorised Indian distributor (petitioner firm). In terms of Railway Board letter dated 14.11.2017, SNS Assembly is a centralised procurement item of CORE, where demand of all Zonal Railways is consolidated and procured. The petitioner entered into an agreement with M/s Arthur Flury AG. The CORE floated the online global tender on their website for supply of 28 sets of SNS Assembly (Phase Breaks). The petitioner firm also participated in the global tender. The bid was opened on 18.10.2017 and the petitioner's bid was accepted. Consequently, the purchase order was given to the petitioner on 12.1.2018 for supply of 28 sets of SNS Assembly (Phase Breaks) for Rs.2.31 crores. Admittedly, the said material was supplied by the petitioner firm. Meanwhile, another global tender was published by the CORE and the global bids were opened on 29.11.2017 for supply of 238 sets of SNS Assembly (Phase Breaks). The petitioner firm again participated in the said global tender and its bid was accepted for supply of 176 sets, out of total tender quantity of 238 sets. The decision of the Tender Committee was accepted by the Principal Chief Material Manager of CORE. Consequently, the respondent issued purchase order dated 27.2.2018 for supply of 170 sets for Rs.14.64 crores. Admittedly, in response of the purchase order dated 27.2.2018, the petitioner supplied the entire articles through various Challan-cum-Tax Invoices dated 26.6.2018 but instead of clearing the outstanding amount to the petitioner firm, the second respondent sent a letter dated 17.05.2018 stating that they have invoked "Book Examination Clause" for the present order as well as the previous order of 2013.

22. This much is also reflected from the record that the matter was referred to the Arbitrator and finally, the award was given in favour of the petitioner firm on 21.09.2017 directing the CORE to pay the bank guarantee amount to the petitioner within 30 days. It is not disputed that the said award has not been challenged by the CORE and the same has attained finality. Meanwhile, the respondents issued notice to the petitioner on 17.5.2018 for production of books and records under "Book Examination Clause - IRS 3300" qua the articles supplied by the petitioner against purchase order dated 13.09.2013 as well as purchase order dated 12.01.2018. Against the purchase order dated 13.09.2013 the respondents had already paid the amount and it was a closed contract. The petitioner submitted reply to the said notice on 30.05.2018. Thereafter, the second respondent preferred complaint dated 12.06.2018 under Section 19 (1) (b) of the Act, 2002 before the Secretary, CCI against the petitioner for flouting provisions of Sections 3 and 4 of the Act, 2002, registered as a Reference Case No.05 of 2018. Finally, the Commission has decided the reference on 27.8.2018. The operative portion of the judgment dated 27.8.2018 is reproduced hereinafter:-

"8. The Commission has perused the reference and the documents filed therewith and also considered the material available in public domain.

9. At the outset, the Commission notes that though the Informant has alleged contravention of the provisions of both Sections 3 and 4 of the Act, yet looking at the nature of allegations and the relationship of the OP with the OEM, the provisions of Section 3 (3) (a) of the Act are not applicable to the present case as the OP (distributor) and OEM (manufacturer) are operating at different levels of the production chain in different markets. Thus, prima facie the provisions of Section 3 (3) (a) of the Act are not attracted.

10. Next, for the purpose of examining the allegations of the Informant under the provisions of Section 4 of the Act, it is necessary to determine the relevant market at the first instance. Thereafter it is necessary to assess whether the OP enjoys a position of strength required to operate independently of the market forces in the relevant market. Only when such a position is established, the Commission is required to examine whether the impugned conduct amounts to abuse of dominance or not.

11. The Commission observes that the product involved in the instant case is SNS Assembly, which is used mainly by the Railways to isolate different phases of power supply in adjoining Over Head Equipment (OHE) fed by adjacent substations, which are normally connected to different phases of supply. Thus, it is used in overhead contact lines of the Railways to act as an insulator between different power lines (phases). In this regard, the Commission observes that SNS Assembly is a light weight contact wire insulator of composite type (Rasin bonded glass fibre core protected with wear resistance ceramic beads) with Poly Tetra Fluro Ethylene (PTFE). Thus, its physical characteristics indicate that it is a specialised equipment having a specific function. Moreover, SNS Assembly is a distinct product in itself having no close substitute. Accordingly, the relevant product market in the instant case is 'market for supply of SNS Assembly'.

12. In respect of the relevant geographical market, it may be noted that CORE is a centralised procurement agency for the SNS Assembly as it consolidates the demand of all Railway Zones and centrally procures them. This shows pan India nature of the demand by different Zones of Railways and its subsequent distribution. Thus, the relevant geographic market in this case would be 'India'.

13. Thus, the relevant market in the present case is the 'market for supply of SNS Assembly in India'.

14. On the issue of dominance of the OP in the aforesaid relevant market, the Commission notes that the OP is the sole authorised distributor of M/s Arthur Flury AG, Switzerland in India. Further, it is also observed that there is only one single approved source in the RDSO approved list i.e. M/s Arthur Flury AG and its Indian distributor. The requirement of the RDSO approved sources has also resulted in a situation of high dependence of the Indian Railways for the SNS Assembly on the OP. Thus, the Commission observes that the OP can be said to be dominant in the above defined relevant market.

15. In view of the above assessment, the Commission is of the view that the OP appears to be dominant in terms of the provisions of Section 4 of the Act.

16. To examine the alleged abuse of dominant position by the OP in the relevant market delineated supra, it is noted that the Informant has not specified any specific condition which can be examined within the framework of Section 4 (2) (a) (i) of the Act.

17. However, on a closer scrutiny of the information, it appears that the Informant is essentially aggrieved by the allegedly high prices charged by the OP for supply of SNS Assembly to CORE. The informant has claimed that the OP has increased the prices in last 12 years without any significant inflation in Switzerland. Thus, the informant has essentially raised the issue of excessive pricing. To support the allegations, it has been pointed out that in purchase order dated 13.09.2013, the OP had supplied 282 sets of SNS Assembly on behalf of M/s Arthur Flury AG on the basic price (excluding all taxes, duties, freight charges, insurance charges & other expenses) i.e. @ 8600 Swiss Franc (CHF) per set. But, later on, it was revealed to the informant that the OP had imported the same goods on the basic price of 6400 Swiss Franc per set. Similarly, the informant provided another evidence where the OP in response to the purchase order dated 12.01.2018 had supplied 28 SNS Assembly on the basic price of 8580 Swiss Franc but, later on, it was found through the invoice of M/s Arthur Flury AG & Bill of Entry that the OP had imported the same at 7200 Swiss Franc per set.

18. In order to appreciate the allegation of excessive pricing, the Commission deems it appropriate to examine the percentage increase in the prices of SNS Assembly over period of time i.e. from 2006 to 2018. The table beneath shows the percentage rise in prices of SNS Assembly between 2006-2018:

Table No.2: Percentage change in BSE price.

SN	Year	Basic Price (Quoted by OP in the Purchase Order)	Year on year percentage change in price
1	2006	6602.55 Swiss Franc	-
2	2008	6934.20 Swiss Franc	5.02%
3	2012	8600 Swiss Franc	24.00%
4	2013	8600 Swiss Franc	0.00%
5	2016	8580 Swiss Franc	-0.23%
6	2018	8580 Swiss Franc	0.00%

19. From the above table, it appears that there has not been a continuous trend of price increase over a period of time which could show excessive prices being charged by the OP. Also between 2013 and 2018, there was either no increase in the prices and rather in year 2016, prices even decreased. Thus, the price trend does not support the allegation of abuse of dominant position made by the informant by artificially determining the sale price in terms of the provisions contained in Section 4 (2) (a) (ii) of the Act.

20. In view of the above assessment, the Commission is of the view that the OP does not appear to have abused its dominant position in terms of the provisions of Section 4 of the Act.

21. Resultantly, the Commission is of the opinion that no case of contravention of the provisions of Section 4 of the Act is made out against the OP and the matter is ordered to be closed in terms of the provisions contained in Section 26 (2) of the Act.

22. The Secretary is directed to communicate to the informant, accordingly."

23. This much is also reflected from the record that against the said order, the Appeal (AT) No.79/2019 was filed by the CORE before the NCLAT and the same was dismissed by the NCLAT on 23.1.2020 with following observations:-

"After hearing learned counsel for the appellant, we find that there is no plausible explanation offered for inordinate delay of 330 days (wrongly described as 350 days) in preferring the appeal. Admittedly, the impugned order was passed by the Competition Commission of India based at New Delhi and it is inconceivable that the appellant was not aware of the appellate mechanism and the forum empowered to entertain the appeal. The ground sought to be projected for condonation of delay does not constitute a "sufficient cause" so as to warrant condonation as sought. Viewed in that context, we find that the huge delay of 330 days has not been explained satisfactorily and no sufficient cause has been assigned for such delay. The application for condonation of delay is accordingly dismissed.

That apart, on merit we find that the Commission has noticed the trend in decrease of price of the relevant product in 2016 and 2018 and in view of the same, no prima facie case for directing investigation by Director General was made out. We find no reason to disagree with the view taken by the Commission. There being no infirmity in the impugned order, we decline to intervene.

Appeal is accordingly dismissed."

24. Against the said order, the Review Application No.01/2020 in Competition Appeal (AT) No.79/2019 was preferred by the CORE and the same was also dismissed by the Appellate Tribunal vide its order dated 13.4.2022 with following observations:-

"There is no representation on the side of the review applicant at the time of calling the matter. It comes to be known that on 23.01.2020 this Tribunal has dismissed the application for condonation of delay. Likewise, this Tribunal had also not interfered with the impugned order passed by the concerned authorities.

There being no infirmity in the impugned order and accordingly dismissed the appeal. As such, this Tribunal is of the earnest opinion that as against the dismissal of the appeal in Competition Appeal (AT) No.79 of 2019 judgment dated 23.01.2020, it is open to the aggrieved party concerned to prefer Civil Appeal before the Hon'ble Supreme Court of India as against the judgment dated 23.01.2020 passed by this Tribunal.

The instant Review Application No.01 of 2020 in Competition Appeal (AT) No.79 of 2019 is perse not maintainable and the same is hereby dismissed. However, there is no order as to costs."

25. We further find that while deciding the aforesaid reference on 27.8.2018, the CCI found that there has not been a continuous trend of price increase over a period of time which could show excessive prices being charged by the petitioner between 2013 and 2018, and there were no increase in the prices rather prices were even decreased in year 2016. Thus, the price trend does not support the allegation of abuse of dominant position made by the informant by artificially determining the sale price in terms of the provisions contained in Section 4 (2) (a) (ii) of the Act, 2002. In view of the above assessment, the Commission was of the view that the petitioner does not appear to have abused its dominant position in terms of the provisions of Section 4 of the Act, 2002 and no case of contravention of the provisions of Section 4 of the Act, 2002 was made out against the petitioner, accordingly the matter was ordered to be closed in terms of the provisions contained in Section 26 (2) of the Act, 2002. The judgment of the CCI was challenged before the NCLAT in Appeal (AT) No.79 of 2019 and finally, the Appellate Tribunal had also dismissed the appeal on the ground that there was no plausible explanation offered for inordinate delay of 330 days in preferring the appeal and no sufficient reason or cause has been assigned for such delay. Consequently, the application for condonation of delay was accordingly dismissed. Further, on merit the NCLAT found that the Commission has noticed the trend in decrease of price of the relevant product in 2016 and 2018 and in view of the same, no prima facie case for directing investigation by Director General was made out. The NCLAT found no reason to disagree with the view taken by the Commission and declined to intervene. The review application was also dismissed by the NCLAT on 13.4.2022 as not maintainable, leaving it open to the aggrieved party to prefer Civil Appeal before the Hon'ble Supreme Court of India against the judgment dated 23.01.2020 passed by the Tribunal in Competition Appeal (AT) No.79 of 2019.

26. It is admitted that the observations and findings returned by the CCI in its order dated 27.8.2018 stood upheld by the NCLAT in its orders dated 23.1.2020 and 13.4.2022. The said orders could only be tested or upset by Hon'ble Apex Court under Section 53-T of the Act, 2002. Therefore, we do not find any justification to entertain the writ petition to sit in appeal or to upset the findings recorded by the CCI in its order dated 27.8.2018, which was affirmed by the NCLAT in the order dated 23.1.2020 and in the review order dated 13.4.2022. In response to the earlier order dated 23.1.2023 supplementary affidavit dated 30.1.2023 was filed by the petitioner bringing on record the certified copy of the Reference Case No.05/2018; memo of appeal (AT) No.79/2019 preferred before NCLAT. Even at that stage leave was available to the respondents to take a stand before us that they are inclined to prefer an appeal before the Hon'ble Apex Court as provided under Section 53T of the Act, 2002. However, they have filed the reply but there is no whisper that the respondents are inclined to challenge the aforesaid orders before Hon'ble Apex Court.

27. A Constitutional Bench of Hon'ble Supreme Court in L. Chandra Kumar vs. Union of India has held that the power vested in the High Courts to exercise judicial superintendence over the decisions of all courts and tribunals within their respective jurisdictions is also part of the basic structure of the Constitution and the decisions of Tribunals would be subject to the High Court's Writ jurisdiction under Article 226/227 of the Constitution before a Division Bench of the High Court within whose territorial jurisdiction the particular Tribunal falls. The Tribunals are competent to hear matters where the vires of statutory provisions are questioned. However, in discharging this duty, they cannot act as substitutes for the High Courts and the Supreme Court which have, under our constitutional set-up, been specifically entrusted with such an obligation. Their function in this respect is only supplementary and all such decisions of the Tribunals will be subject to scrutiny before a Division Bench of the respective High Courts. The Tribunals will consequently also have the power to test the vires of subordinate legislations and rules. Relevant paragraph nos.37, 79, 80, 87, 91, 92, and 93 of the judgment are reproduced hereinafter:-

"37. Certain problems have arisen in the functioning of these Tribunals especially in respect of the manner in which they exclude the jurisdiction of their respective High Courts. This aspect can be illustrated by briefly advertng to the broad facts of two of the matters before us. C.A. No. 1532-33 of 1993 arises as a result of conflicting orders issued by the West Bengal Taxation Tribunal and the Calcutta High Court. Certain petitioners had challenged the constitutional validity of some provisions in three legislations enacted by the West Bengal Legislature before the west Bengal Taxation Tribunal. After examining the matter and hearing the arguments advanced in response by the State of West Bengal, the West Bengal Taxation Tribunal, by this order dated 9.10.1991, upheld the constitutional validity of the impugned provisions. Thereafter, the constitutional validity of the same provisions was challenged in a Writ Petition before the Calcutta High Court. During the proceedings, the State of West Bengal raised the preliminary objection that by virtue of Section 14 of the West Bengal Taxation Tribunal Act, 1987, which excluded the jurisdiction of the High Court in all matters within the jurisdiction of the Taxation Tribunal, the Calcutta High Court had no jurisdiction to entertain the writ petition. However, the High Court proceeded with the case and, by its judgment dated 25.11.1992, declared the impugned provisions to be unconstitutional. These developments have resulted in an interesting situation, where the same provisions have alternately been held to be constitutional and unconstitutional by two different form, each of which considered itself to be empowered to exercise jurisdiction.

79. We also hold that the power vested in the High Courts to exercise judicial superintendence over the decisions of all Courts and Tribunals within their respective jurisdictions is also part of the basic structure of the Constitution. This is because a situation where the High Courts are divested of all other judicial functions apart from that of constitutional interpretation, is equally to be avoided.

80. However, it is important to emphasise that though the subordinate judiciary or Tribunals created under ordinary legislations cannot exercise the power of judicial review of legislative action to the exclusion of the High Courts and the Supreme Court, there is no constitutional prohibition against their performing a supplemental--as opposed to a substitution - role in this respect. That such a situation is contemplated within the constitutional scheme becomes evident when one analyses Clause (3) of Article 32 of the Constitution which reads as under:

32. Remedies for enforcement of rights conferred by this Part.--(1)..

(3) Without prejudice to the powers conferred on the Supreme Court by Clauses (1) and (2), Parliament may by law empower any other court to exercise within the local limits of its jurisdiction all or any of the powers exercisable by the Supreme Court under Clause (2).

87. It is important to realise that though the theory of alternative institutional mechanisms was propounded in Sampath Kumar's case in respect of the Administrative Tribunals, the concept itself--that of creating alternative modes of dispute resolution which would relieve High Courts of their burden while simultaneously providing specialised justice-is not new. In fact, the issue of having a specialised Tax Court has been discussed for several decades; though the Report of the High Court Arrears Committee (1972) dismissed it as "ill-conceived", the LCI, in its 115th Report (1986) revived the recommendation of setting up separate Central Tax Courts. Similarly, other Reports of the LCI have suggested the setting up of 'Gram Nyayalayas' (1986) LCI, 114th Report , Industrial/Labour Tribunals 1987 LCI, 122nd Report and Education Tribunals (1987) [LCI, 123rd Report .

91. We may first address the issue of exclusion of the power of judicial review of the High Courts. We have already held that in respect of the power of judicial review, the jurisdiction of the High Courts under Article 226/227 cannot wholly be excluded. It has been contended before us that the Tribunals should not be allowed to adjudicate upon matters where the vires of legislations is questioned, and that they should restrict themselves to handling matters where constitutional issues are not raised. We cannot bring ourselves to agree to this proposition as that may result in splitting up proceedings and may cause avoidable delay. If such a view were to be adopted, it would be open for litigants to raise constitutional issues, many of which may be quite frivolous, to directly approach the High Courts and thus subvert the jurisdiction of the Tribunals. Moreover, even in these special branches of law, some areas do involve the consideration of constitutional questions on a regular basis; for instance, in service law matters, a large majority of cases involve an interpretation of Articles 14, 15 and 16 of the Constitution. To hold that the Tribunals have no power to handle matters involving constitutional issues would not serve the purpose for which they were constituted. On the other hand, to hold that all such decisions will be subject to the jurisdiction of the High Courts under Articles 226/227 of the Constitution before a Division Bench of the High Court within whose territorial jurisdiction the Tribunal concerned falls will serve two purposes. While saving the power of judicial review of legislative action vested in the High Courts under Article 226/227 of the Constitution, it will ensure that frivolous claims are filtered out through the process of adjudication in the Tribunal. The High Court will also have the benefit of a reasoned decision on merits which will be of use to it in finally deciding the matter.

92. It has also been contended before us that even in dealing with cases which are properly before the Tribunals, the manner in which justice is dispensed by them leaves much to be desired. Moreover, the remedy provided in the parent statutes, by way of an appeal by special leave under Article 136 of the Constitution, is too costly and inaccessible for it to be real and effective. Furthermore, the result of providing such a remedy is that the docket of the Supreme Court is crowded with decisions of Tribunals that are challenged on relatively trivial grounds and it is forced to perform the role of a First Appellate Court. We have already emphasised the necessity for ensuring that the High Courts are able to exercise judicial superintendence over the decisions of Tribunals under Article 227 of the Constitution. In R.K. Jain's case, after taking note of these facts, it was suggested that the possibility of an appeal from the Tribunals on questions of law to a Division Bench of a High Court within whose territorial jurisdiction the Tribunal falls, be pursued. It appears that no follow-up action has been taken pursuant to the suggestion. Such a measure would have improved matters considerably. Having regard to both the afore-stated contentions, we hold that all decisions of Tribunals, whether created pursuant to Article 323A or Article 323B of the Constitution, will be subject to the High Court's writ jurisdiction under Articles 226/227 of the Constitution, before a Division Bench of the High Court within whose territorial jurisdiction the particular Tribunal falls.

93. We may add here that under the existing system, direct appeals have been provided from the decisions of all Tribunals to the Supreme Court under Article 136 of the Constitution. In view of our above-mentioned observations, this situation will also stand modified. In the view that we have taken, no appeal from the decision of a Tribunal will directly lie before the Supreme Court under Article 136 of the Constitution; but instead, the aggrieved party will be entitled to move the High Court under Articles 226/227 of the Constitution and from the decision of the Division Bench of the High Court the aggrieved party could move this Court under Article 136 of the Constitution."

28. In L. Chandra Kumar's case (supra) once a Constitution Bench of the Apex Court declared the law that "all decisions of Tribunals created under Article 323A and Article 323B of the Constitution will be subject to the scrutiny before a Division Bench of the High Court within whose jurisdiction the concerned Tribunal falls", then it is impermissible to make any further construction on the said issue. The expression "all decisions of these Tribunals" used by the Constitution Bench will cover and take within its sweep orders passed on applications or otherwise in the matter of transfer of Original Applications from one Bench of the Tribunal to another Bench of the Tribunal in exercise of the power under Section 25 of the Administrative Tribunals Act, 1985. In other words, any decision of such a Tribunal, including the one passed under Section 25 of the Act could be subjected to scrutiny only before a Division Bench of a High Court within whose jurisdiction the Tribunal concerned falls. This unambiguous exposition of law has to be followed scrupulously while deciding the jurisdictional High Court for the purpose of bringing in challenge against an order of transfer of an Original Application from one bench of Tribunal to another bench in the invocation of Section 25 of the Act.

29. A careful perusal of Section 53T of the Act, 2002 would show that an appeal to the Supreme Court is provided against "any order passed by the Appellate Tribunal". Therefore, the appropriate remedy for the respondent was to file an appeal against the judgment and order dated 23.01.2020 passed by the Tribunal before Hon'ble Supreme Court of India in terms of the aforesaid provisions of the Act, 2002 within the period of limitation prescribed therein. Admittedly, the respondent did not prefer any appeal before Hon'ble Supreme Court neither within the period of limitation nor even any delayed appeal was filed after expiry of the limitation period. Once the respondent had lost the Reference made on similar allegation of excessive pricing on the same materials on record before the CCI, which are referred in the impugned orders; thereafter, the Appeal and Review Application preferred by the CORE before the NCLAT have also been dismissed and the findings recorded by the CCI have attained finality then the issue involved in the present writ petition stood settled and covered by the CCI order dated 27.8.2018 and approved/affirmed by the NCLAT.

30. In M/s K.J. Hospital vs. M/s Technomed International and others

(supra) the Madras High Court had dismissed the writ petition on the ground that the petitioner has not given any explanation for not having availed the efficacious alternative remedy by way of appeal under Section 53-T of the Act, 2002 before the Hon'ble Supreme Court of India to challenge the order. Relevant paragraphs of the judgment are reproduced hereinafter:-

"6. Having due regard to this incontrovertible legal position, in the absence of any explanation from the Petitioner for not having availed the efficacious alternative remedy by way of appeal under Section 53-T of the Competition Act, 2002, before the Hon'ble Supreme Court of India to challenge the impugned order, we do not find any justification to entertain the present Writ Petition and accordingly, the same is dismissed. No costs."

31. In Union of India vs. Tantia Construction Pvt. Ltd. (supra) Hon'ble Supreme Court has dismissed the SLP on the ground that an alternative remedy is not an absolute bar to the invocation of the writ jurisdiction of the High Court or the Supreme Court and that without exhausting such alternative remedy, a writ petition would not be maintainable. Relevant portion of the judgment is reproduced herein below:-

"27. Apart from the above, even on the question of maintainability of the writ petition on account of the Arbitration Clause included in the agreement between the parties, it is now well-established that an alternative remedy is not an absolute bar to the invocation of the writ jurisdiction of the High Court or the Supreme Court and that without exhausting such alternative remedy, a writ petition would not be maintainable. The various decisions cited by Mr. Chakraborty would clearly indicate that the constitutional powers vested in the High Court or the Supreme Court cannot be fettered by any alternative remedy available to the authorities. Injustice, whenever and wherever it takes place, has to be struck down as an anathema to the rule of law and the provisions of the Constitution. We endorse the view of the High Court that notwithstanding the provisions relating to the Arbitration Clause contained in the agreement, the High Court was fully within its competence to entertain and dispose of the Writ Petition filed on behalf of the Respondent Company."

32. In the case of ABL International Ltd. vs. Export Credit Guarantee Corporation of India Limited (supra) the Supreme Court has considered the issue of maintainability of the writ petition involving disputed question of fact and grant of the monetary relief claimed by the petitioner. Relevant paragraph nos.28, 29, 53 and 54 of the judgment are reproduced hereinafter:-

"28. From the above discussion of ours, following legal principles emerge as to the maintainability of a writ petition :-

(a) In an appropriate case, a writ petition as against a State or an instrumentality of a State arising out of a contractual obligation is maintainable.

(b) Merely because some disputed questions of facts arise for consideration, same cannot be a ground to refuse to entertain a writ petition in all cases as a matter of rule.

(c) A writ petition involving a consequential relief of monetary claim is also maintainable.

29. However, while entertaining an objection as to the maintainability of a writ petition under Article 226 of the Constitution of India, the court should bear in mind the fact that the power to issue prerogative writs under Article 226 of the Constitution is plenary in nature and is not limited by any other provisions of the Constitution. The High Court having regard to the facts of the case, has a discretion to entertain or not to entertain a writ petition. The Court has imposed upon itself certain restrictions in the exercise of this power [See: Whirlpool Corporation vs. Registrar of Trade Marks, Mumbai & Ors. [1998 (8) SCC 1]. And this plenary right of the High Court to issue a prerogative writ will not normally be exercised by the Court to the exclusion of other available remedies unless such action of the State or its instrumentality is arbitrary and unreasonable so as to violate the constitutional mandate of Article 14 or for other valid and legitimate reasons, for which the court thinks it necessary to exercise the said jurisdiction.

53. On the basis of the above conclusion of ours, the question still remains why should we grant the reliefs sought for by the appellant in a writ petition when a suitable efficacious alternate remedy is available by way of a suit. The answer to this question in our opinion, lies squarely in the decision of this Court in the case of Shri Lekha Vidyarthi (supra) wherein this court held :

"The requirement of Article 14 should extend even in the sphere of contractual matters for regulating the conduct of the State activity. Applicability of Article 14 to all executive actions of the State being settled and for the same reason its applicability at the threshold to the making of a contract in exercise of the executive power being beyond dispute, the

State cannot thereafter cast off its personality and exercise unbridled power unfettered by the requirements of Article 14 in the sphere of contractual matters and claim to be governed therein only by private law principles applicable to private individuals whose rights flow only from the terms of the contract without anything more. The personality of the State, requiring regulation of its conduct in all spheres by requirement of Article 14, does not undergo such a radical change after the making of a contract merely because some contractual rights accrue to the other party in addition. It is not as if the requirement of Article 14 and contractual obligations are alien concepts, which cannot co-exist. The Constitution does not envisage or permit unfairness or unreasonableness in State actions in any sphere of its activity contrary to the professed ideals in the Preamble. Therefore, total exclusion of Article 14 - non-arbitrariness which is basic to rule of law - from State actions in contractual field is not justified. This is more so when the modern trend is also to examine the unreasonableness of a term in such contracts where the bargaining power is unequal so that these are not negotiated contracts but standard form contracts between unequals. xxx

Unlike the private parties the State while exercising its powers and discharging its functions, acts indubitably, as is expected of it, for public good and in public interest. The impact of every State action is also on public interest. It is really the nature of its personality as State which is significant and must characterize all its actions, in whatever field, and not the nature of function, contractual or otherwise, which is decisive of the nature of scrutiny permitted for examining the validity of its act. The requirement of Article 14 being the duty to act fairly, justly and reasonably, there is nothing which militates against the concept of requiring the State always to so act, even in contractual matters. This factor alone is sufficient to import at least the minimal requirements of public law obligations and impress with this character the contracts made by the State or its instrumentality. It is a different matter that the scope of judicial review in respect of disputes falling within the domain of contractual obligations may be more limited and in doubtful cases the parties may be relegated to adjudication of their rights by resort to remedies provided for adjudication of purely contractual disputes. However, to the extent, challenge is made on the ground of violation of Article 14 by alleging that the impugned act is arbitrary, unfair or unreasonable, the fact that the dispute also falls within the domain of contractual obligations would not relieve the State of its obligation to comply with the basic requirements of Article 14. To this extent, the obligation is of a public character invariably in every case irrespective of there being any other right or obligation in addition thereto. An additional contractual obligation cannot divest the claimant of the guarantee under Article 14 of non-arbitrariness at the hands of the State in any of its actions. x x x "

54. From the above, it is clear that when an instrumentality of the State acts contrary to public good and public interest, unfairly, unjustly and unreasonably, in its contractual, constitutional or statutory obligations, it really acts contrary to the constitutional guarantee found in Article 14 of the Constitution. Thus if we apply the above principle of applicability of Article 14 to the facts of this case, then we notice that the first respondent being an instrumentality of State and a monopoly body had to be approached by the appellants by compulsion to cover its export risk. The policy of insurance covering the risk of the appellants was issued by the first respondent after seeking all required information and after receiving huge sums of money as premium exceeding Rs.16 lacs. On facts we have found that the terms of the policy does not give room to any ambiguity as to the risk covered by the first respondent. We are also of the considered opinion that the liability of the first respondent under the policy arose when the default of the exporter occurred and thereafter when Kazakhstan Government failed to fulfil its guarantee. There is no allegation that the contracts in question were obtained either by fraud or by misrepresentation. In such factual situation, we are of the opinion, the facts of this case do not and should not inhibit the High Court or this Court from granting the relief sought for by the petitioner."

33. Once the respondent/CORE has lost the reference made on similar allegations of excessive pricing on the same material on record before the CCI, which are referred in the impugned orders, and the appeal and review preferred by the CORE before the NCLAT have also been dismissed, the findings arrived by the CCI has attained finality in the event of the order not challenged before Hon'ble Supreme Court in terms of Section 53T of Act, 2002, then the issue involved in the present writ petition stood settled and covered by the order passed by the CCI dated 27.08.2018.

34. In the aforesaid facts and circumstances, the writ petition deserves to be allowed and the impugned orders dated 12/13.9.2018 as well as demand notice dated 26.9.2018 are liable to be set aside.

35. Accordingly, the writ petition is allowed and the impugned orders dated 12/13.9.2018 as well as demand notice dated 26.9.2018 are set aside. The respondent authorities are directed to make the entire payments to the petitioner forthwith.

A. Civil Law - The Standard of Weights and Measures Act, 1976 /the Standard of Weights and Measures (Enforcement) Act, 1985 / "the Act, 2009")-Section 24 - Rule 17(3) of the U.P. Rules, 2011- the petitioners got their storage tanks calibrated. The notices were issued to the petitioners by the senior inspectors for reason that the petitioners did not get reverification even after expiry of the validity of the stamp-Therefore, for verification and stamping of weights or measures, the fees as provided under Sub Rule 1/sub Rule 2 of Rule 17 of the Rules 2011 was demanded-The storage tanks of the petitioners have been alleged to be merely receptional and except for storing petroleum products, it is not used for any other purpose-the respondents may levy stamp verification/re-verification fee only up to Rs.5,000/- for each storage tank once in 60 months. No additional fee in the form of penalty under Rule 17(3) can be levied since it is not permitted by the Principal Act. Therefore, the impugned orders are arbitrary and illegal and deserves to be quashed Section 16 of the Act, 2009 provides for forfeiture of unverified weight or measure. Section 33 provides for penalty to a maximum of Rs.5,000/- for use of unverified weight or measure. Thus, in absence of a substantive provision in the Act, 2009 providing for penalty of the nature and for amount as provided in Rule 17(3), the penal provision of Rule 17(3) of the U.P. Rules, 2011 being beyond rule making power, is ultra vires to the Principal Act, i.e. the Act, 2009. That apart, Rule 25 of the U.P. Rules, 2011 itself provides that wherever the Rules are in conflict with the provisions of the Act, the Act will prevail upon the Rules.(Para 1 to 35)

The writ petitions are allowed. (E-6)

FACTS:-

8. Since factual and legal position in this batch of writ petitions are similar, therefore, we proceed to note the facts of leading writ petition i.e. Writ C No.52674 of 2016, as under :

(a) The petitioners have storage tanks to store their petroleum products received from various refineries in the country by railway tank wagons/pipe lines. According to the petitioners, the railway tank wagons through which the products are received in the tank at the depot/terminal are duly calibrated by the competent authority and sales are executed by the corporation for supply of petroleum products through different retail outlets as well as the bulk consumers by tank mounted trucks (tankers) which are duly calibrated by the competent authorities of Weights and Measures departments. The storage tanks of the petitioners have been alleged to be merely receptational and except for storing petroleum products, it is not used for any other purpose i.e. neither for transaction nor for any measurement assistance. Therefore, calibration as defined in Section 2(a) of the Standard of Weights and Measures Act, 1976 (hereinafter referred to as "the Act, 1976") is not required. It has been alleged in the writ petition that these storage tanks are just receptational means for storage and are not under any provision of law required to be calibrated. Petroleum products received in the tanks are also sold through calibrated means. However, since various orders were passed by Senior Inspectors, legal metrology of various districts, therefore, the petitioners filed Writ Petition No.34383 of 1996 (IOCL Vs. State of U.P. and others) challenging the orders for compulsory calibration of storage tanks and to deposit the requisite fee.

(b) Initially interim orders were granted by a Division Bench of this Court on 31.10.1996 but ultimately the aforesaid writ petition was dismissed by judgment and order dated 12.04.2007 holding the Government Order dated 10.04.1996 to be valid. Against the aforesaid judgment and order, a SLP was preferred by the Indian Oil Corporation Ltd. before Hon'ble the Supreme Court being SLP(Civil) No.17393 of 2007.

(c) It appears that large number of writ petitions in various High Courts were filed by the petitioners herein. Subsequently the petitioners filed a Transfer Petition before Hon'ble Supreme Court being leading Transfer Petition (Civil) No.874 of 2004 (Indian Oil Corporation and another Vs. Inspector Legal Metrology and another). By order dated 10.03.2006, Hon'ble Supreme Court exercising the powers under Article 139 A(1) of the Constitution of India, transferred all the writ petitions pending in High Courts to Supreme Court for hearing. The aforesaid SLP (Civil) No.17393 of 2007 was also clubbed with the aforesaid Transfer Petitions. Ultimately, all the Transfer Petitions were dismissed by Hon'ble Supreme Court (leading Transfer Case (Civil) No.99 of 2006) by order dated 26.02.2013.

(d) Thus, the challenge of the petitioners to the action of the respondents for bringing the storage tanks within the purview of the Act 1976, ultimately failed. The aforesaid order of Hon'ble Supreme Court has attained finality.

(e) After dismissal of the aforesaid cases by Hon'ble Supreme Court, a letter was written to the Legal Metrology Department, Bihar, dated 21.03.2013 for calibration of storage tank situated in depots. The calibration was made by the Legal Metrology Inspector and the calibration fees @ of Rs.5000/- per tank per year was demanded from January 1992 to April 2013. Consequently, the petitioners filed I. As. before Hon'ble Supreme Court challenging the demand notices issued by the authorities of the State of Bihar. All the

I.As. were disposed of by Hon'ble Supreme Court by order dated 30.08.2013 as under :

"If the applicant-petitioner is aggrieved by the notice demanding fees and penalties for stamping 11 tanks amounting to Rs. 24.20 lakhs, then we feel that this has given rise to a fresh cause of action for which the petitioner may pursue appropriate legal remedy available to it in law. We, accordingly, observe that if the petitioner pursues remedy for redressal of grievance concerning above demand in appropriate forum, the same shall be considered in accordance with law. In that event, the orders passed by this Court shall have no bearing for the consideration of the matter.

I.As. stand disposed of accordingly."

(f) Thus, the Indian Oil Corporation Ltd. was relegated to avail statutory remedy against the orders creating demand of fees and late fees.

(g) The impugned notices were issued by the Office of the Senior Inspector, Legal Metrology Department of concerned districts and thereafter demands were created. Aggrieved, the petitioner filed Writ C No.8356 of 2014 (Deputy General Manager I.O.C. Ltd. & another Vs. State Of U.P. & 3 Others) which was dismissed on the ground of alternative remedy giving liberty to the petitioners to approach the appropriate appellate forum in terms of the provisions of Legal Metrology (General) Act, 2009 read with the Rules, 2011. The petitioners filed Appeal No.6 of 2014 before the Controller of Legal Metrology Department, Uttar Pradesh, Lucknow, which was dismissed by order dated 25.09.2014.

(h) Aggrieved with the aforesaid appellate order, the petitioners filed Writ - C No.50603 of 2014 which was allowed by this Court by judgment and order dated 03.12.2015 providing as under :

"Therefore, this writ petition is allowed to the extent and in the manner indicated above. The impugned order dated 14.08.2014 is set aside and Appeal No.6 of 2014 is restored for reconsideration of the Appellate Authority, strictly in accordance with law. The parties through their respective counsel shall stand at notice to appear before the Appellate Authority in the first place on 08.01.2016.

Having regard to the circumstances of the case, it is also provided in the interest of justice that until final decision by the Appellate Authority in Appeal No.6 of 2014, the interim order passed by this Court on 25.09.2014 shall remain in operation. It would, of course, be required of the Appellate Authority to take final decision in the appeal at the earliest, preferably within two months from the date of appearance of parties."

(i) Pursuant to the aforequoted judgment and order of this Court, the aforesaid appeal No.6 of 2014 was again decided by order dated 23.08.2016 and the appeal was dismissed holding that the petitioners are liable to pay the fees for calibration and also the late fees.

(j) Aggrieved with the aforesaid appellate order/demand notices, the petitioners have filed the present writ petition challenging the validity of Rules 17(3) of the Uttar Pradesh Legal Metrology (Enforcement) Rules, 2011 (hereinafter referred to as the U.P. Rules, 2011).

9. Learned counsel for the petitioners states that the Writ C No.33571 of 2018 has been filed merely against notices and the petitioners submit reply to it. In view of this statement, the Writ C No.33571 of 2018 deserves to be dismissed.

10. In rest of the writ petitions only the question of legality of the impugned demand notices/appellate orders and the validity of Rule 17(3) of the Rules 2011 remains to be tested.

11. The Standard of Weights and Measures Act, 1976 and the Standard of Weights and Measures (Enforcement) Act, 1985 (hereinafter referred to as "the Act, 1985") were repealed by Section 57 of the Legal Metrology Act, 2009 (hereinafter referred to as "the Act, 2009") with a saving clause. The Act 2009 came into force w.e.f. 1.4.2011.

12. From the impugned appellate order dated 23.08.2016 it is evident that earlier the petitioners got their storage tanks calibrated. The notices were issued to the petitioners by the senior inspectors for reason that the petitioners did not get reverification even after expiry of the validity of the stamp. Therefore, for verification and stamping of weights or measures, the fees as provided under Sub Rule 1/sub Rule 2 of Rule 17 of the Rules 2011 was demanded.

13. The appellate authority came to the conclusion that since calibration was not done within the prescribed time, therefore, the petitioners are liable to pay verification fees as well as late fees.

14. Hence, the petitioners have filed the present writ petitions.

15. In our order dated 19.01.2022 passed in the leading Writ C No.52674 of 2016 with the consent of the learned counsels for the parties, we have framed the following questions for determination in the present writ petitions except in Writ-C No.33571 of 2018, which is dismissed in view of the statement of learned counsel for the petitioners as noted in Paragraph-9 of the aforesaid order dated 19.11.2022. The questions as framed in the order dated 19.11.2022; are as under:

(i) Whether Rule 17(3) of the Rules 2011 is a valid piece of legislation ?

(ii) Whether the demand of fees, late fees or additional fees under the The Standard of Weights and Measures Act, 1976 / The Legal Metrology Act, 2009 read with the Uttar Pradesh Legal Metrology (Enforcement) Rules 2011, is a commercial dispute covered by office memorandum F.No.4(1)/2013-DPE(GM)/FTS-1835, Government of India Ministry of Heavy Industries & Public Enterprises, Department of Public Enterprises dated 22.05.2018 and Consequently the dispute of payment of late fees by the petitioners deserves to be resolved through permanent machinery of Arbitration mechanism (P.M.A. mechanism) ?

(iii) Whether the petitioners are liable to pay fees and late fees ?

Submissions:-

16. Sri Anil Kumar Sharma, learned Senior Advocate for the petitioners submits as under:-

(i) Fee for verification under the Act, 2009 and Rules framed thereunder cannot be charged over and above Rs.5,000/- for the specified period i.e., 60 months.

(ii) Since there is no provisions under the Act, 2009 for levy of additional fee or late fee, therefore, Rules 17(3) of the U.P. Rules, 2011 is ultra vires being beyond the power conferred under the Principal Act.

(iii) No fee can be recovered from the petitioners for the period prior to the coming into force of the Act, 2009 inasmuch as all proceedings under the repealed Act, 1976 have lapsed.

(iv) Fee for verification or reverification for the period covered by the Act, 1985 and the U.P. Rules, 1990 cannot be charged.

17. Sri M.C. Chaturvedi, learned Additional Advocate General for the State has carried us to various provisions of the Act, 1976, the Rules, 1985, the Act, 1985, the Rules, 1990, the Act, 2009, the General Rules, 2011, the Model Draft Legal Metrology (Enforcement) Rules, 2010 and the U.P. Rules, 2011. He specifically drawn our attention to the provisions of Section 52 and 53 of the Act, 2009 and the General Rules, 2011 and the U.P. Rules, 2011 and submits as under:

(i) There is no rider in the Principal Act with regard to the quantum of fee and the matter has been left for subordinate legislation. The scale of fee has been provided by subordinate legislation. The State Government in exercise of those powers, framed the U.P. Rules, 2011 adopting the scale of fee as prescribed under the General Rules, 2011 and the Model Rules for the State framed by the Central Government. It adopted the additional fee prescribed under the power conferred under the Act, 2009 which is inconsequence to the Model Rules framed by the Central Government i.e. Model Rules, 2010. Thus the Rules 17(3) of the Rules, 1990 is well within the legislative powers, conferred upon the State Government.

(ii) There is saving clause under the Act, 2011, and therefore, all the proceedings under the Act, 1976 stands saved, therefore, petitioners cannot deny the payment of verification fee or the additional fee.

(iii) The notices issued to the petitioners levying only Rs.5,000/- per each five years, is in accordance with provisions of the Central Rules 2011 and the U.P. Rules, 2011. The late fee was also re-framed, and late fee has been demanded in terms of the Model Rules, 2010 as adopted by the State Government being U.P. Rules, 2011, therefore, the petitioners are liable to pay the fee and the additional fee. The writ petition is frivolous and the impugned notices and orders are valid. Therefore, the writ petition deserves to be dismissed.

Liability under the Act, 1985 AND
The U.P. Rules, 1990:-

19. Section 24 (2) of the Act, 1985 provides that every weight or measure referred to in sub Section (1) shall be re-verified at such periodical intervals as may be prescribed. Third Proviso to Rule 14(1) of the U.P. Rules, 1990 prescribed for verification or re-verification and calibration or re-calibration of storage tanks and vats once in five years. Thus, storage tanks of the petitioners are required to be verified or re-verified or calibrated or re-calibrated once in five years under Section 24(2) of the Act, 1985 read with the Rules 14(1) of the U.P. Rules, 1990. Section 72 (1) of the Act, 1985 confers power upon the State Government to make rules after consultation with the Central Government. Clause (d) of Section 70 of the Act, 1985 provides that the State Government may levy such fee not exceeding Rs.5,000/-, on a graded scale, for the verification of the weight and measures, having regard to the time and labour which may be involved in making such verification. Thus the Principal Act, 1985 provides for levy of fee to a maximum amount of Rs.5,000/- and it does not provide for any additional fee. The U.P. Standards of Weights and Measures (Enforcement) Rules, 1990 has been framed in exercise of powers under Section 72 of the Act, 1985.

20. Section 72(2)(a) empowers the State Government to frame rules providing the amount of fees which may be levied and collected for each matters specified in Section 70. Clause (d) provides for maximum fees of Rs.5,000/-. Section 72(3) of the Act, 1985 empowers the State Government to frame Rules providing for maximum fine of Rs.1000/- for breach of any rule framed under Section 72 of the Act, 1985. Thus, Section 72 of the Principal Act, 1985 does not confer power upon the State Government to frame Rules to provide for any additional fee over and above the maximum amount of fees prescribed under Section 70 of the Act, 1985. Clause (2) of Schedule XII under Rules 17(1) of the U.P. Rules, 1990, prescribes fees for verification and stamping of weights and measures (capacity measure including storage tanks) subject to a maximum of Rs.5,000/-. However, sub-Rule (3) of Rule 17 of the U.P. Rules, 1990, beyond the rule making power; provides for additional fee at half of the rules specified in Schedule XII for every quarter of the year or part thereof where weight or measure is presented to the Inspector for re-verification after expiry of the validity of the stamp. Therefore, to save the sub-Rule (3) of Rule 17 of the U.P. Rules, 1990, this sub-Rule (3) has to be understood to mean that total fees including additional fee shall not exceed the maximum amount of fees provided under Section 70 of the Principal Act, 1985, which in the present set of facts is Rs.5000/- once in five years for each storage tank. Accordingly, the impugned orders levying fees including additional fees over and above Rs.5,000/- per storage tank once in five years, cannot be sustained and deserve to be quashed.

Fees and Additional Fee OR Penalty under the Act, 2009, the General Rules, 2011 AND the U.P. Rules, 2011:-

21. Section 24 read with sub-Section (v) and (w) of Section 2 of the Act, 2009 provides for verification and re-verification of weight or measure on payment of such fees as may be prescribed. Section 52(2)(c) empowers the Central Government to frame rules on certain subjects including "period of re-verification." Rule 27(2)(b) of the General Rules, 2011 provides for re-verification of storage tanks on the completion of a period of sixty months. Thus, the petitioner's storage tanks need to be re-verified under the Act, 2009 read with the General Rules, 2011, on completion of a period of sixty months.

22. Section 53(2)(d) of the Act, 2009 empowers State Government to make rules prescribing fee for verification and stamping of any weight or measure under sub-Section (1) of Section 24. Rule 17(1) of the U.P. Rules, 2011 provides fees payable for verification and stamping of weight or measure as specified in Schedule IX. Clause (2) of Schedule IX provides scale of fees for verification/ re-verification for capacity measures (storage tanks) subject to a maximum of Rs.5,000/-. Thus, the respondents may charge and realise verification or re-verification fees for each storage tanks once in sixty months as per scale of fees provided in clause (2) of Schedule IX to the U.P. Rules, 2011 subject to a maximum of Rs.5,000/- per storage tank and any amount of fees over and above it levied or recovered from the petitioners by the respondents is illegal and unauthorised.

Levy of Additional Fees under Rule 17(3) of the U.P. Rules, 2011:-

23. Thus, maximum amount of fees that can be levied for verification or re-verification of a storage tank is Rs.5,000/- once in sixty months. Verification or re-verification [reference: Section 2(v)] in relation to any weight or measure, is the process of comparing, checking, testing or adjusting such weight or measure with a view to ensure that such weight or measure conforms to the standards established under the Act, 2009. For rendering these services, fee is charged under Section 24 of the Act, 2009 at the rates prescribed by The U.P. Rules, 2011. Clause 4(f) of the Statement of Objects and Reasons of the Act, 2009 provides that levy of fee is for various services. Thus, fee for verification or re-verification and calibration under the Act, 2009 has a direct co-relation with the services defined in Section 2(v) read with Section 24 of the Act, 2009. Thus, an element of quid-pro-quo exists for fees chargeable for verification or re-verification of weights and measures under Section 24 of the Act, 2009 read with Rule 17(1) of the U.P. Rules, 2011.

24. Thus, the levy of fees under Section 24 read with Section 2(b) of the Act, 2009 and Rule 17(1) of the U.P. Rules, 2011 is in return of rendering of specified services. Fee for verification or re-verification is not a duty or tax. Whereas a tax is imposed for public purpose and requires no consideration to support it, fee is generally levied essentially for services rendered and there must be an element of quid-pro-quo between the person who pays it and the public authority that imposes it. In the case of Commissioner, Hindu Religious Endowments, Madras vs. Sri Lakshmindra Thirtha Swamiar of Sri Shirur Mutt., 1954 SCR 1005 : AIR 1954 SC 282 (Paras 46 and 47), a Constitution Bench of Hon'ble Supreme Court held that a 'fee' is generally defined to be charged for a special service rendered to individuals by some governmental agencies. In the case of State of Uttarkhand vs. Kumaon Stone Crusher, (2018) 14 SCC 537 (Paras-153, 154, 161 to 186), Hon'ble Supreme Court considered the concept of fee, difference between tax and fee and when a fee can be said to be confiscatory and thereafter held transit fees provided by the Vth Amendment Rules to be confiscatory.

25. In the case of Khemka and Co. (Agencies) (P.) Ltd. vs. State of Maharashtra, (1975) 2 SCC 22 (Paras-25, 31, 37 and 39), a Constitution Bench of Hon'ble Supreme Court held that the imposition of penalty gives rise to a substantive liability, which can be viewed either as an additional tax or as a fine for infringement of the law. The imposition of a pecuniary liability which takes form of a penalty or fine for a breach of a legal obligation, cannot be relegated to the region of mere procedure and machinery for realisation.

26. In the case of State of Uttar Pradesh vs. Sitapur Packing Wood Suppliers, (2002) 4 SCC 566 (Para-10), Hon'ble Supreme Court laid down the law that "The penalty cannot be beyond what is permissible in the Act."

27. The U.P. Rules, 2011 is a delegated legislation. It is settled law that no rule can be validly framed, which has the effect of either enlarging or restricting the rule making power conferred under the principal Act. Being subordinate legislation, the Rules cannot make any provision, which may have the effect of curtailing or enlarging the content and scope of the substantive provision. Reference in this regard may be had to the judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Mahachandra Prasad Singh (Dr.) vs. Chairmnan, Bihar Legislative Council, (2004) 8 SCC 747 (Paras-13 and 16).

28. In the case of V.V.S. Sugars vs. State of A.P. (1999) 4 SCC 192, Indian Carbon Ltd. vs. State of Assam, (1997) 6 SCC 479, J.K. Synthetic Ltd. vs. C.T.O., (1994) 4 SCC 276 and M/s Shree Steel Rolling Mills vs. Commissioner of Central Excise and another, (2016) 3 SCC 643 (Paras-30 and 31), Hon'ble Supreme Court laid down the law that interest can be levied and charged on delayed payment of tax only if the statute that levies and charges the tax, makes a substantive provision in this behalf. There being no substantive provision in the Act for the levy of interest on arrears of tax, no interest could be levied.

29. The aforesaid judgments have been followed by Hon'ble Supreme Court in a recent judgment in the case of Indian Oil Corporation Ltd. vs. State of U.P., (2019) 16 SCC 482 (Paras-60 and 61). It is settled principle of law that a legislative Act shall prevail over the subordinate legislation, vide Veena Kumari Tandon vs. Neelam Bhalla and others, (2007) 12 SCC 764 (Para-11). In Vimal Chandra Banerjee vs. State of M.P., (1970) 2 SCC 467 (Para-14), Hon'ble Supreme Court has held, as under:

"No tax can be imposed by any bye-law or rule or regulation unless the statute under which the subordinate legislation is made specially authorises the imposition even if it is assumed that the power to tax can be delegated to the executive. The basis of the statutory power conferred by the statute cannot be transgressed by the rule making authority. A rule making authority has no plenary power. It has to act within the limits of the power granted to it."

30. But Rule 17(3) of the U.P. Rules, 2011 provides for an additional fee at half the rate specified in Schedule IX to be payable for every quarter of the year or part thereof, if a weight or measure is presented to the Legal Metrology Officer for re-verification after expiry of the validity of the stamp. There is no element of quid-pro-quo in providing the aforesaid penal fee terming it as additional fee. Fee for five years is Rs.5,000/-, which comes to Rs.250/- per quarter. Additional fees per quarter for delay in verification would be Rs.2500/- per quarter or 1000% per quarter. Thus, the additional fee provided under Rule 17(3) of the U.P. Rules, 2011 being 1000% per quarter is, arbitrary, unreasonable, confiscatory and it being penal in nature is a penalty. Therefore, we hold that the fee provided under Rule 17(3) of the U.P. Rules, 2011 is a penalty for delay in presenting a weight or measure to the Legal Metrology Officer for re-verification after expiry of the validity of the stamp.

31. Sections 25 to 47 under Chapter V of the Act, 2009 provides for penalty. Section 33, which has been reproduced above; provides penalty for use of unverified weight or measure. Section 53 confers power upon State Government to make rules. Sub-Section (3) of Section 53 specifically provides that the State Government may provide that breach of the rules shall be punishable with fine which may extend to five thousand rupees. Therefore, for breach of any provision of the U.P. Rules, 2011, the State Government may provide by rules for imposition of fine which may extend to five thousand rupees.

32. Section 16 of the Act, 2009 provides for forfeiture of unverified weight or measure. Section 33 provides for penalty to a maximum of Rs.5,000/- for use of unverified weight or measure. Thus, in absence of a substantive provision in the Act, 2009 providing for penalty of the nature and for amount as provided in Rule 17(3), the penal provision of Rule 17(3) of the U.P. Rules, 2011 being beyond rule making power, is ultra vires to the Principal Act, i.e. the Act, 2009. That apart, Rule 25 of the U.P. Rules, 2011 itself provides that wherever the Rules are in conflict with the provisions of the Act, the Act will prevail upon the Rules.

33. For all the reasons aforesaid, we hold that the respondents may levy stamp verification/re-verification fee only up to Rs.5,000/- for each storage tank once in 60 months. No additional fee in the form of penalty under Rule 17(3) can be levied since it is not permitted by the Principal Act. Therefore, the impugned orders are arbitrary and illegal and deserves to be quashed. Consequently, all the impugned appellate orders dated 23.08.2016 and also other orders/notices impugned in all the abovenoted writ petitions, except Writ Petition No.33571 of 2018, are hereby quashed. Sub-rule (3) of Rule 17 of the Uttar Pradesh Legal Metrology (Enforcement) Rules, 2011 is declared ultra vires. WRIT - C No. - 52674 of 2016, WRIT - C No. - 54682 of 2016, WRIT - C No. - 54685 of 2016, WRIT - C No. - 54687 of 2016, WRIT -

C No. - 57179 of 2016, WRIT - C No. - 57180 of 2016, WRIT - C No. - 57203 of 2016, WRIT - C No. - 57208 of 2016, WRIT - C No. - 57210 of 2016, WRIT - C No. - 57766 of 2016, WRIT - C No. - 61624 of 2016, and WRIT - C No. - 32799 of 2018, are allowed.

34. Respondents are directed to determine fees payable by the petitioners under Rule 17(1) of the U.P. Rules, 2011 within three weeks from today in terms of this judgment and communicate it to the petitioners within next one week. Petitioners are directed to deposit the entire verification/reverification fees under Rule 17(1) of the U.P. Rules, 2011, within next one month and shall continue to get verified/reverified storage tanks in time as per provisions of the Act, 2009 and the U.P. Rules, 2011. Liberty is granted to the respondents for initiating action against the petitioners for penalty/fine for delayed verification/reverification of storage tanks in accordance with the relevant provisions of Chapter-V of the Act, 2009 and relevant provisions of the U.P. Rules, 2011.

35. The Writ Petition No.33571 of 2018 being merely against notice, is dismissed.

1. Heard Sri Manoj Kumar Singh, learned counsel for the applicant, Sri Abhishek Srivastava, learned counsel for the opposite party no.2 and Shri Vijai Prakash Dwivedi, learned AGA for the State as well as perused the material available on record.

2. The present application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. has been preferred against the impugned summoning order dated 31.5.2022 passed by/pending in the court of learned Additional Sessions Judge/Special Judge (POCSO Act) Bahraich in Complaint Case No. 97 of 2021 in Re:- Smt. Karima Vs. Aarif under Sections 452, 376 (AB), 323, 504, 506 I.P.C. and Section 5 (m)/6 of the Protection of Children from Sexual Offences Act (in short " the POCSO Act"), Police Station-Hardi, District- Bahraich as well as application under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. dated 26.8.2021 vide complaint no. 97 of 2021 and further proceedings of the case in pursuance thereof.

3. Brief facts of the case is that the opposite party no 2 filed an application under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. on 26.8.2021 in the court of learned Additional Sessions Judge/Special Judge (POCSO Act) Bahraich. The application under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. has been moved alleging that the opposite party no. 2 and the petitioner are relatives. Petitioner and his family members used to come at house of the opposite party no. 2. On 6.8.2021 at about 1:00 p.m. minor daughter of the opposite party no. 2, aged about 11 years was alone at the house. Petitioner entered into the house and started outraging modesty of her daughter, on objection, petitioner pushed her on earth, undressed her, and forcefully committed rape against her wishes and extended abuses and threat of life in case she told about the same to anywhere. When the opposite party no. 2 reached her house, then her daughter told the whole story to the opposite party no.2. Immediately, the opposite party no. 2 gave information at Police Station-Hardi on the same day but when no action was taken then on 11.8.2021 she gave an application to the Superintendent of Police, Bahraich through registered post, but till date no action has been taken. Then, the application under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. has been moved then the trial court treated the application under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. as a complaint case.

4. In the aforesaid complaint case, the statement of the complainant was recorded under Section 200 Cr.P.C. on 22.10.2021 (annexed as Annexure No. 4). The statement of the witnesses, namely, P.W.-1-Jakir and P.W.-2-Aarif were also got recorded under the provisions of Section 202 Cr.P.C. on 23.11.2021 and 17.12.2021 respectively. The statement of the P.W.-3 victim was also recorded under Section 202 Cr.P.C. on 5.4.2022. On the basis of the statement recorded under Section 200 and 202 Cr.P.C., the trial court passed the summoning order under Section 204 Cr.P.C. as aforesaid on 31.5.2022

5. Learned counsel for the applicant raises the preliminary objection that the POCSO Court has no jurisdiction to entertain the application under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. as a complaint case under Section 190 (1) (a) Cr.P.C., because the only option is available to the POCSO Court to direct the concerned police station to register and investigate the matter. He further submitted that the POCSO Court may pass the cognizance order and summoning order only on the basis of the investigation done by the Investigating Officer and the report submitted under Section 173 (2) Cr.P.C. He further submitted that in this regard in POCSO Act special procedure has also been mentioned under Section 19 of the POCSO Act. The procedure of Section 19 of the POCSO Act reads as under:-

"(1) Notwithstanding anything contained in the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (2 of 1974) any person (including the child), who has apprehension that an offence under this Act is likely to be committed or has knowledge that such an offence has been committed, he shall provide such information to,--

(a) the Special Juvenile Police Unit; or
(b) the local police.

(2) Every report given under subsection(1) shall be--

(a) ascribed an entry number and recorded in writing;
(b) be read over to the informant;
(c) shall be entered in a book to be kept by the Police Unit.

(3) Where the report under subsection(1) is given by a child, the same shall be recorded under subsection(2) in a simple language so that the child understands contents being recorded.

(4) In case contents are being recorded in the language not understood by the child or wherever it is deemed necessary, a translator or an interpreter, having such qualifications, experience and on payment of such fees as may be prescribed, shall be provided to the child if he fails to understand the same.

(5) Where the Special Juvenile Police Unit or local police is satisfied that the child against whom an offence has been committed is in need of care and protection, then, it shall, after recording the reasons in writing, make immediate arrangement to give him such care and protection including admitting the child into shelter home or to the nearest hospital within twenty-four hours of the report, as may be prescribed.

(6) The Special Juvenile Police Unit or local police shall, without unnecessary delay but within a period of twenty-four hours, report the matter to the Child Welfare Committee and the Special Court or where no Special Court has been designated, to the Court of Session, including need of the child for care and protection and steps taken in this regard.

(7) No person shall incur any liability, whether civil or criminal, for giving the information in good faith for the purpose of sub-section (1)."

6. To give the strengthen to his submissions for the procedure under Section 19 of the POCSO Act, learned counsel for the applicant drew the attention of the Court to the procedure of Section 21 (1) of the POCSO Act. The provision of Section 21 (1) of the POCSO Act reads as under :-

" Punishment for failure to report or record a case.-

(1) Any person, who fails to report the commission of an offence under sub-section (1) of section 19 or section 20 or who fails to record such offence under sub-section (2) of section 19 shall be punished with imprisonment of either description which may extend to six months or with fine or with both."

7. In support of his submission he relied upon a judgment and order dated 7.4.2022 of this Court passed in Application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. No. 12864 of 2021 (Soni Vs. State of U.P. and 10 others) in which this Court is of the view that in the case related to the Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act (in short " the S.C./S.T. Act"), if an application under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. is moved by the aggrieved party then it is bounden duty of the trial court to pass the order for register the case and to direct the police authority to investigate the matter, as apart from this the trial court has no other option. He further submitted that the POCSO Act is also an special Act and the provision of POCSO Act is also analogous to the S.C./S.T. Act. So, the trial court has no power to treat the application under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. as complaint case.

8. In support of his submission he also relied upon a judgment dated 19.5.2022 passed in Application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. No. 2804 of 2022 (Anand Vs. State of U.P. and another). The relevant paragraph of the said judgment is extracted below:-

"Learned counsel for the applicant has further submitted that as per the prosecution case, victim was doing the course of B.Pharm. She was a prudent girl and was in relation with the applicant on her own, and some dispute arose in between them, then the applicant was challaned under Sections 151/107/116

Cr.P.C. on 23.09.2020. He further submitted that the application of the prosecutrix under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. was treated as a complaint case and after recording the statement under Sections 200 & 202 Cr.P.C., summoning order was passed by the learned court below. He also drew attention of the court on the provision of Sections 19 & 21 of Chapter- V of the POCSO Act and submitted that Section 19 of the POCSO Act provides that in case any offence related to the provision of POCSO Act is reported to the local police, then the same shall be registered and Section 21 of the POCSO Act also provides that in case, complaint is not registered, then officer concerned shall be prosecuted meaning thereby that if any offence is alleged under the provision of POCSO Act, then registration of the F.I.R. is mandatory and no such case can be treated as a complaint case, as done by the learned court below. Therefore, the learned court below has committed error in treating the application of the prosecutrix as a complaint case. In such circumstances, kind indulgence of this Court is necessary."

9. In support of his submission, learned counsel for the applicant also relied upon a judgment dated 11.10.2022 of this court passed in Criminal Revision No. 1052 of 2022 (Ram Karan Vs. State of U.P. and 4 others). He submitted that in that revision the grievance of the revisionist was same as raised by the present applicant and in that revision, proceedings against the revisionist was stayed on the basis of the law laid down by this Court in Soni Vs. State of U.P. and 10 others (Supra) and Anand Vs. State of U.P. and another (Supra) and it was also observed that POCSO Court cannot take cognizance on the basis of complaint.

10. Lastly, learned counsel for the applicant submitted that only F.I.R. can be lodged against the applicant and complaint case cannot be lodged, therefore, only on this account the summoning order against the applicant may be quashed.

11. Learned A.G.A. and learned counsel for the respondent no. 2 in support of his submission relied upon the procedure of Section 33 (1) of the POCSO Act. As per Section 33 (1) of the POCSO Act a Special Court may take cognizance of any offence, without the accused being committed to it for trial, upon receiving a complaint of facts which constitute such offence, or upon a police report of such facts. Learned counsel for the respondent no. 2 relied upon the procedure of Section 33 (1) of the POCSO Act submitted that POCSO court exercising its power of complaint case can pass appropriate order. In support of his submission, learned counsel for the respondent no.2 relied upon the judgment of this Court passed in the case of Naresh Kumar Valmiki Vs. State of U.P. and others (2023) 241 AIC 946 in which this Court has held that that the submission that an application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. cannot be treated as a complaint case is incorrect. The court concerned while exercising its judicial discretion can treat the said application as a complaint case also and can pass appropriate order.

12. So far as question of lodging of the F.I.R. or filing of an application under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. in the case of sexual harassment/POCSO Act is concerned, I am of the view that specially in the case of sexual harassment and violence it is bounden duty of the police officer to lodge F.I.R. because in the case of sexual assault, the victim faces social stigma and she has already been traumatized, therefore, the court concerned should not be give further burden upon the complainant/victim and the court concerned/special court should direct the police authority concerned to investigate the matter fairly. The court should pass the order for investigation, because the documentary and other evidence are generally in the physical possession of the accused or other individual and on the basis of those evidences, the police should investigate the matter and retrieve its power under the Code of Criminal Procedure.

13. Under Section 154 Cr.P.C. the Police Officer cannot exercise any discretion when they receive a complaint which discloses the commission of cognizable offence- whether or not offence complained is made out is to be determined at the stage of investigation and/or trial. After conducting the investigation the police found that no offence is made out then they may submit final report under Section under Section 173 (2) Cr.P.C., however, it is not open to them to decline to register an F.I.R.

14. Considering the entire facts and circumstances of the case and considering the fact that although it is duty of the Magistrate as well as police officer concerned to pass the order for registration of F.I.R. but if it is not done so then it cannot be said that allegation against the applicant/accused is not maintainable, therefore, I am of the view that cognizance/summoning order may be passed against the applicant in complaint case.

15. So far as regards the contention of the learned counsel for the applicant is concerned that only to harass the applicant the present case has been lodged by the mother of the victim is concerned, I am of the view that it cannot be said that such type of offence cannot be committed by the applicant, therefore, such type of every defence cannot be entertained necessarily. Concludingly, I am of the view that the trial court has ample power to treat the application under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. as a complaint case, therefore, in the POCSO Act proceedings of complaint case can be launched, as in this regard a statutory provisions under Section 33 of the POCSO Act already exists. As per Section 33 of the POCSO Act, a Special Court may take cognizance of any offence, without the accused being committed to it for trial, upon receiving a complaint of facts which constitute such offence, or upon a police report of such facts. Thus, on the perusal of the entire provisions of POCSO Act it appears that there is no bar for prosecution and cognizance in the matter related to complaint under Section 190 (1) (a) Cr.P.C. Ultimately, I am of the view that the previous view of the courts that in POCSO Act cognizance cannot be taken is not a good law, as this question has already been settled that there is no bar for treating the application under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. as a complaint case under Section 190 (1) (a) Cr.P.C. Thus, the preliminary objection of the learned counsel for the applicant that in the POCSO Act proceedings of complaint case is not maintainable has no substance.

16. Before arguing the case on merits, learned counsel for the petitioners while pressing the present petition submits that the trial court while summoning the petitioner has materially erred and did not follow the dictum of law as propounded by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in various cases that summoning in criminal case is a serious matter and the trial court without dwelling into material and visualizing the case on the touch stone of probability should not summon accused person to face criminal trial. It is further submitted that the trial court has not taken into consideration the material placed before the trial court and, therefore, the trial court has materially erred in summoning the petitioner.

17. So far as quashing of entire proceedings is concerned, from the perusal of the material on record and looking into the facts of the case at this stage, it cannot be said that no offence is made out against the petitioners. All the submission made relates to the disputed question of fact, which cannot be adjudicated upon by this Court. At this stage, only prima facie case is to be seen in the light of the law laid down by Supreme Court in cases of R.P. Kapur Vs. State of Punjab, A.I.R. 1960 S.C. 866, State of Haryana Vs. Bhajan Lal, 1992 SCC (Cr.) 426, State of Bihar Vs. P.P.Sharma, 1992 SCC (Cr.) 192 and lastly Zandu Pharmaceutical Works Ltd. Vs. Mohd. Saraful Haq and another (Para-10) 2005 SCC (Cr.) 283. The disputed defence of the accused cannot be considered at this stage. Moreover, the petitioners have got a right of discharge according to the provisions prescribed in Cr.P.C., as the case may be, through a proper application for the said purpose and he is free to take all the submissions in the said discharge application before the trial court.

18. So far as the summoning order passed by the learned trial court is concerned, at the stage of taking cognizance, trial court can simply form an opinion as to whether the case is fit for taking and committing the matter for trial or not. In the present case, learned trial court clearly expressed his opinion that he perused all the record and clearly indicated that the material placed before him is sufficient to proceed the case. Thus, the cognizance order is not a proforma order. Every aspect is touched by learned trial court and petitioner failed to adduce any evidence which caused prejudiced to him. So, the cognizance and summoning order is perfectly valid and there is no occasion to quash the same.

19. The prayer for quashing the impugned summoning order as well as impugned proceedings is refused.

20. However, considering the facts and circumstances of the case, it is provided that if the applicant/petitioner appear before the trial court and apply for bail, then bail application shall be considered and decided in accordance with law propounded by the Apex Court in Satender Kumar Antil Vs. Central Bureau of Investigation and another (Special Leave to Appeal (Crl.) No.5191 of 2021, decided on 07.10.2021. In this case Hon'ble the Apex Court has already laid down guidelines for grant of bail, without fettering the discretion of the courts concerned and the statutory provisions governing consideration in grant of bail, no specific directions need be issued by this Court as it is expected that the court concerned will take into consideration the necessary guidelines already issued by the Apex Court.

21. Accordingly, the application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. is disposed of.

1. Heard Sri Salil Kumar Srivastava, learned counsel for the applicant, Sri Shiv Nath Tilhari, learned A.G.A. for the State and perused the entire record.

2. The instant application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. has been filed by the applicant for quashing the order dated 14.03.2023 passed by the learned Special Judge (NIA/ ATS)/ Additional Sessions Judge-V, Lucknow in S.T. No.13751 of 2021 titled as State vs. Salahuddin and others arising out of Case Crime No.09 of 2021, under Sections 417, 120-B, 153-A, 153-B, 295-A, 298, 121-A, 123 I.P.C. and Sections 3/5/8 of U.P. Prohibition of Unlawful Conversion of Religion Act, 2021, Police Station ATS, Gomti Nagar, pending in the court of learned Special Judge (ATS/ NIA Court)/ Additional Sessions Judge-V, Lucknow.

3. The brief facts giving rise to the instant application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. also is that the present applicant is standing trial for the offences under Sections 417, 120-B, 153-A, 153-B, 295-A, 298, 121-A, 123 I.P.C. and Sections 3/5/8 of U.P. Prohibition of Unlawful Conversion of Religion Act, 2021, which emanated from Case Crime No.09 of 2021. Vinod Kumar has been examined as prosecution witness-1 in the learned trial court. The learned trial court has passed the impugned order dated 14.03.2023 stating therein that examination-in-chief of P.W.-1, Vinod Kumar has been done and his cross-examination is yet to be completed. Due to his absence on 14.03.2023, the cross-examination of P.W.-1, Vinod Kumar was deferred. The learned trial court also observed in the impugned order dated 14.03.2023 that as there is a direction of this Court to get the trial expedited, therefore, the learned trial court directed that the examination in chief of all the prosecution witness would be recorded first. Admittedly, there are 73 witnesses listed in the charge sheet. Their cross-examination will stand deferred and once the examination-in-chief of all the prosecution witnesses has been done, they would be summoned for their cross-examination.

4. Aggrieved by the aforesaid impugned order dated 14.03.2023, the applicant has filed the instant application under Section 482 Cr.P.C.

5. Learned counsel for the applicant has submitted that the impugned order dated 14.03.2023 is patently illegal insofar as it is not reasoned and speaking order and the same does not disclose any reason for doing so.

6. His further submission is that the statutory scheme for examination of witnesses is contained in Sections 135 and 138 of Indian Evidence Act. The provisions contained in Section 231(1) Cr.P.C. is an exception to the general rule for examination and cross-examination of witnesses. Therefore, while passing such sweeping order in exercise of its discretionary power, the learned trial court ought to have acted with utmost circumspection and care, which is not reflected from the impugned order dated 14.03.2023.

7. In order to buttress his aforesaid submission, learned counsel for the applicant has placed reliance upon the judgments of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in State of Orissa vs. Dhaniram Luhar¹ and State of Kerala vs. Rasheed².

8. Learned counsel for the applicant has also submitted that the impugned order dated 14.03.2023 is also against the provisions contained in proviso to Section 309 Cr.P.C., therefore, the impugned order dated 14.03.2023 being patently illegal and an abuse of process of this Court, deserves to be quashed.

9. Per contra, learned A.G.A. for the State has vehemently opposed the prayer by submitting that the impugned order dated 14.03.2023 is a reasoned and speaking order, which has come to be passed in the peculiar facts and circumstances of this case where the prosecution has to examine as many as seventy three witnesses and the trial is to be concluded expeditiously, therefore, the same cannot be said to be arbitrary.

10. His further submission is that an application seeking recall of impugned order dated 14.03.2023 moved by the present applicant is pending disposal with the learned trial court. Therefore, also the present application is not maintainable and deserves to be dismissed.

11. In order to buttress his aforesaid submission, learned A.G.A. has placed reliance upon the judgment of this Court in Lal Harsh Deo Narain Singh and another vs. State of U.P. and others³.

12. Having heard the learned counsel for the applicant, learned A.G.A. for the State and upon perusal of record, it transpires that the present applicant is standing trial for the offences under Sections 417, 120-B, 153-A, 153-B, 295-A, 298, 121-A, 123 I.P.C. and Sections 3/5/8 of U.P. Prohibition of Unlawful Conversion of Religion Act, 2021, which emanated from Case Crime No.09 of 2021. Vinod Kumar has been examined as prosecution witness-1 in the learned trial court. The learned trial court has observed in the impugned order dated 14.03.2023 that examination-in-chief of P.W.-1, Vinod Kumar has been recorded and his cross-examination is yet to be completed. Due to his absence on 14.03.2023, the cross-examination of P.W.-1, Vinod Kumar was deferred. The learned trial court also observed by means of impugned order dated 14.03.2023 that as there is a direction of this Court to get the trial expedited, therefore, the learned trial court directed that the examination in chief of all the prosecution witness would be recorded first. Their cross-examination will stand deferred and once the examination-in-chief of all the prosecution witnesses has been recorded, they would be summoned for their cross-examination.

13. Being germane to the present controversy, Sections 135 and 138 of Indian Evidence Act are quoted herein below:-

"135. Order of production and examination of witnesses.—The order in which witnesses are produced and examined shall be regulated by the law and practice for the time being relating to civil and criminal procedure respectively, and, in the absence of any such law, by the discretion of the Court.

138. Order of examinations.—Witnesses shall be first examined-in chief then (if the adverse party so desires) cross-examined, then (if the party calling him so desires) re-examined.

The examination and cross-examination must relate to relevant facts but the cross-examination need not be confined to the facts to which the witness testified on his examination-in-chief."

14. The ambit of provision contained in Section 231(2) Cr.P.C. came to be considered by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in a judgment rendered in Rasheed's case (supra). Paragraph Nos.15, 17, 18, 19 and 23 of Rasheed's case (supra), being relevant, are quoted herein below:-

"15. Section 231 CrPC indicates that the Judge is given the discretion to defer cross-examination of a witness, until any other witness or witnesses have been examined. Section 231 is set out hereinbelow:

"231. Evidence for prosecution.—(1) On the date so fixed, the Judge shall proceed to take all such evidence as may be produced in support of the prosecution.

(2) The Judge may, in his discretion, permit the cross-examination of any witness to be deferred until any other witness or witnesses have been examined or recall any witness for further cross-examination." (emphasis supplied)

The phraseology of Section 231(2) mirrors Section 242(3) ["242. Evidence for prosecution.—(1)-(2) * * (3) On the date so fixed, the Magistrate shall proceed to take all such evidence as may be produced in support of the prosecution:Provided that the Magistrate may permit the cross-examination of any witness to be deferred until any other witness or witnesses have been examined or recall any witness for further cross-examination."]* CrPC which provides for a similar discretion to a Magistrate in the trial of a warrant case under Chapter XIX CrPC."

17. The Karnataka High Court in Shamoon Ahmed Sayed v. Intelligence Officer [Shamoon Ahmed Sayed v. Intelligence Officer, 2008 SCC OnLine Kar 371 : 2009 Cri LJ 1215 : ILR 2008 KAR 4378], delivered by Shantanagoudar, J. (as he then was), had observed that Section 231(2) as well as Section 242(3) CrPC must be interpreted in light of the legislative intent behind the enactment of Section 251-A of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898.

18. What follows from the discussion is that the norm in any criminal trial is for the examination-in-chief of witnesses to be carried out first, followed by cross-examination, and re-examination if required, in accordance with Section 138 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872. Section 231(2) CrPC, however, confers a discretion on the Judge to defer the cross-examination of any witness until any other witness or witnesses have been examined, or recall any witness for further cross-examination, in appropriate cases. Judicial discretion has to be exercised in consonance with the statutory framework and context while being aware of reasonably foreseeable consequences. [A Constitution Bench of this Court in Gurbaksh Singh Sibbia v. State of Punjab, (1980) 2 SCC 565 : 1980 SCC (Cri) 465 had elucidated upon the nature and manner of exercise of judicial discretion in para 21. The relevant extract has been reproduced hereunder : (SCC p. 584, para 21)“21. ... Every kind of judicial discretion, whatever may be the nature of the matter in regard to which it is required to be exercised, has to be used with due care and caution. In fact, an awareness of the context in which the discretion is required to be exercised and of the reasonably foreseeable consequences of its use, is the hallmark of a prudent exercise of judicial discretion.”(emphasis supplied)] The party seeking deferral under Section 231(2) CrPC must give sufficient reasons to invoke the exercise of discretion by the Judge, and deferral cannot be asserted as a matter of right.

19. Several High Courts have held that the discretion under Section 231(2) CrPC should be exercised only in “exceptional circumstances” [Sisir Debnath v. State of W.B., 2017 SCC OnLine Cal 21442; Shamoon Ahmed Sayed v. Intelligence Officer, 2008 SCC OnLine Kar 371 : 2009 Cri LJ 1215 : ILR 2008 KAR 4378], or when “a very strong case” [Amit Kumar Shaw v. State of W.B., 2010 SCC OnLine Cal 2632] has been made out. However, while it is for the parties to decide the order of production and examination of witnesses in accordance with the statutory scheme, a Judge has the latitude to exercise discretion under Section 231(2) CrPC if sufficient reasons are made out for deviating from the norm.

23. While deciding an application under Section 231(2) CrPC, a balance must be struck between the rights of the accused, and the prerogative of the prosecution to lead evidence. The following factors must be kept in consideration:

(i) possibility of undue influence on witness(es);

(ii) possibility of threats to witness(es);

(iii) possibility that non-deferral would enable subsequent witnesses giving evidence on similar facts to tailor their testimony to circumvent the defence strategy;

(iv) possibility of loss of memory of the witness(es) whose examination-in-chief has been completed;

(v) occurrence of delay in the trial, and the non-availability of witnesses, if deferral is allowed, in view of Section 309(1) CrPC [“309. Power to postpone or adjourn proceedings.—(1) In every inquiry or trial the proceedings shall be continued from day to day until all the witnesses in attendance have been examined, unless the court finds the adjournment of the same beyond the following day to be necessary for reasons to be recorded:”See also Vinod Kumar v. State of Punjab, (2015) 3 SCC 220 : (2015) 2 SCC (Cri) 226 : (2015) 1 SCC (L&S) 712; and S.J. Chaudhary v. State (UT of Delhi), (1984) 1 SCC 722 : 1984 SCC (Cri) 163.] .

These factors are illustrative for guiding the exercise of discretion by a Judge under Section 231(2) CrPC.

15. It is also useful to refer to a judgment rendered by the Hon’ble Supreme Court in Dhaniram Luhar’s case (supra). Paragraphs No.7 and 8, being relevant, are extracted herein below:-

“7. Reason is the heartbeat of every conclusion, and without the same it becomes lifeless. (See Raj Kishore Jha v. State of Bihar [(2003) 11 SCC 519 : 2004 SCC (Cri) 212 : (2003) 7 Supreme 152] .)

8. Even in respect of administrative orders Lord Denning, M.R. in Breen v. Amalgamated Engg. Union [(1971) 1 All ER 1148 : (1971) 2 QB 175 : (1971) 2 WLR 742 (CA)] observed: “The giving of reasons is one of the fundamentals of good administration.” In Alexander Machinery (Dudley) Ltd. v. Crabtree [1974 ICR 120 (NIRC)] it was observed: “Failure to give reasons amounts to denial of justice.” “Reasons are live links between the mind of the decision-taker to the controversy in question and the decision or conclusion arrived at.” Reasons substitute subjectivity by objectivity. The emphasis on recording reasons is that if the decision reveals the “inscrutable face of the sphinx”, it can, by its silence, render it virtually impossible for the courts to perform their appellate function or exercise the power of judicial review in adjudging the validity of the decision. Right to reason is an indispensable part of a sound judicial system; reasons at least sufficient to indicate an application of mind to the matter before court. Another rationale is that the affected party can know why the decision has gone against him. One of the salutary requirements of natural justice is spelling out reasons for the order made; in other words, a speaking-out. The “inscrutable face of the sphinx” is ordinarily incongruous with a judicial or quasi-judicial performance.”

16. Thus examined in the light of aforesaid settled legal position, it transpires that the impugned order dated 14.03.2023 is cryptic, by means of which, cross-examination of 73 prosecution witnesses has been deferred in bulk without recording existence of any such tenable ground as has come to be recognized by the Hon’ble Supreme Court in paragraph No.23 of Rasheed’s case (supra).

17. So far as the objection of learned A.G.A. for the State to the effect that the recall application is still pending with the learned trial court, therefore, the instant application cannot be maintained, is concerned, it is needless to mention that power under Section 482 Cr.P.C. is an extra-ordinary power vested with the High Courts in order to prevent abuse of process of the Court or failure of justice.

18. The ratio of a judgment rendered by the Hon’ble Supreme Court in Adalat

Prasad vs. Rooplal Jindal and others⁴ is that any criminal court does not have power to recall its own order, which is substantive in nature like order issuing summon. Therefore in the considered opinion of this Court, the law laid down by this Court in Lal Harsh Deo Narain Singh's case (supra) is distinguishable insofar as in the instant case, it cannot be said that the remedy seeking recall of impugned order dated 14.03.2023 is available to the applicant in view of restriction contained in Section 362 Cr.P.C.

19. It is needless to mention that the power vested with the learned trial court under Section 231(2) Cr.P.C. is a discretionary power, which should be exercised judiciously. Therefore, the learned trial court will always be at liberty to pass appropriate order, in accordance with law laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Rasheed's case (supra).

20. The upshot of aforesaid discussion is that the instant application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. deserves to be allowed and is, accordingly, allowed. Consequently, the impugned order dated 14.03.2023 passed by the learned Special Judge (NIA/ ATS)/ Additional Sessions Judge-V, Lucknow in S.T. No.13751 of 2021 titled as State vs. Salahuddin and others arising out of Case Crime No.09 of 2021, under Sections 417, 120-B, 153-A, 153-B, 295-A, 298, 121-A, 123 I.P.C. and Sections 3/5/8 of U.P. Prohibition of Unlawful Conversion of Religion Act, 2021, Police Station ATS, Gomti Nagar, is, hereby, set aside.

21. The learned trial court concerned is also directed to proceed with the trial of S.T. No.13751 of 2021 titled as State vs. Salahuddin and others expeditiously having regard to the provisions contained in Section 309 Cr.P.C.

A. Criminal Law – Criminal Procedure Code – Sections 320 (5) & 482 – Inherent power – Scope of interference – Conviction order was passed for non-compoundable offences – Complaints of wrongful deprivation of the corporate and commercial rights in the Company by certain acts of forgery was made – The disputes was of a civil nature – The wrongs did not amount to commission of offence against the society at large – Relevance – Settlement was taken place between the parties – Quashing of proceeding sought – How far, High Court can exercise inherent power – Held, the Trial Court cannot compound non-compoundable offences, but the High Court can quash proceedings of criminal case involving non-compoundable offences. Similarly, as the appellate Court could have compounded the offences even after conviction, had the offences been compoundable, applying the same analogy, this Court can quash the proceedings involving non-compoundable offences even after conviction by the trial Court, where the proceedings deserve to be quashed keeping in view the principles laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in this regard – High Court quashed the conviction order and the entire proceedings against the applicants by exercising inherent powers u/s 482 Cr.P.C. (Para 20, 21, 22 and 23)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Subhash Vidyarthi, J.)

1. Heard Sri I. B. Singh, Senior Advocate, assisted by Awinash Vishen Advocate, the learned counsel for the applicant and Sri Shiv P. Shukla, the learned counsel for the respondent- C.B.I and perused the record.

2. By means of an instant application filed under Section 482 Cr.P.C, the applicant has prayed for quashing of the judgment and order of conviction dated 06.06.2019, passed by learned Special Judicial Magistrate, C.B.I. Lucknow in Case No.4603 of 2009, arising out of F.I.R. registered as RC No.01(S)/2006/CBI/SCB/LKO dated 12.01.2006, under Sections 120-B, 420, 466, 467, 468, 471, 477-A I.P.C. and all the consequent proceedings, on the ground that the informant and the accused persons have entered into a settlement.

3. The aforesaid case was registered on the basis of a complaint lodged by the opposite party no. 2 - Arvind Mohan Jauhari, against the applicants alleging that some documents relating to annual returns of M/s Carlton Hotel Private Limited (hereinafter referred to as 'the Company') have been forged for the years 1997, 1998 and 1999. After carrying out a preliminary inquiry, the C.B.I. lodged an F.I.R on 12.01.2006, against one V. K. Gupta, F.C.A (applicant no. 3) and some unknown persons, alleging that in the annual returns made up to 30.09.1997, 29.09.1998 and 30.09.1999 filed by the Company, some papers were inserted or changed subsequently, evidencing forgery by the named accused V. K. Gupta, who had inspected the documents of the Company on 22.03.2001 and 10.04.2001.

4. The C.B.I. has submitted the charge-sheet stating that the applicant no. 1 Ajit Singh, was Managing Director of the Company and the applicant no. 2 Udaijit Singh, was its Joint Managing Director. They were the beneficiaries of the aforesaid act committed by the applicant no. 3, as they benefited by removal of the names of the complainants Anand Krishna Johari and Arvind Mohan Johari from the annual returns of the 1997, 1998 and 1999.

5. The trial court passed a judgment and order dated 06.06.2019 holding applicants guilty of commission of offences under Sections 120-B, 420, 466, 467, 468, 471, 477A of the Indian Penal Code and all of them were sentenced to undergo simple imprisonment for a period of one year and a fine of Rs.1000/- for offence under Section 120-B I.P.C., two years' simple imprisonment and a fine of Rs.2000/- for offence under Section 420 I.P.C., two years' simple imprisonment and a fine of Rs.2000/- for offence under Section 466 I.P.C., three years' simple imprisonment and a fine of Rs.4000/- for offence under Section 467 I.P.C., two years' simple imprisonment and a fine of Rs.1000/- for offence under Section 468 I.P.C., two years' simple imprisonment and a fine of Rs.1000/- for offence under Section 471 I.P.C. and two years' simple imprisonment and a fine of Rs.1000/- for offence under Section 477A I.P.C. The applicants have challenged an aforesaid judgment and order dated 06.06.2019 by filing Criminal Appeal No. 221 of 2019 in the court of Sessions Judge, Lucknow and the applicants have been granted bail during pendency of the Appeal.

6. During pendency of the Appeal, the complainants Arvind Mohan Johari, Anand Krishna Johari and Gyanendra Nath Johari have entered into a settlement with Ajit Singh, Udaijit Singh, Sona Singh, Rahul Jit Singh, Kamini Singh and Carlton Hotel Private Limited, stating that due to certain disputes between the Singh group and Johari group, the following litigations have been initiated between the parties: -

1) Company Petition No. 76/2002 before the Company Law Board New Delhi, titled 'Arvind Mohan Johari & Ors. vs. Carlton Hotels Pvt. Ltd. & Ors.';

2) Company Petition No. 11(ND)/111/2011 before the Company Law Board, New Delhi, titled 'Arvind Mohan Johari & Anr. vs. Carlton Hotels Pvt.Ltd. & Ors.';

3) Company Appeal No.1/2015 before the Hon'ble High Court of Judicature at Allahabad, Lucknow Bench titled 'Carlton Hotels Pvt. Ltd. & Ors. vs. Arvind Mohan Johari & Ors.';

4) Company Petition no. 354/2001 before the Hon'ble High Court of Delhi, titled 'Registrar of Companies vs. Cyberspace Ltd. & Ors.';

5) Criminal Case no. 4603/2009 before Special Judicial Magistrate CBI, Lucknow, titled 'State through CBI vs. Udaijit Singh & Ors.';

6) Criminal Appeal no. 220/2019 in the Court of District & Session Judge, Lucknow, titled 'Udaijit Singh vs. State of UP through CBI';

7) Criminal Appeal no. 221/2019 in the Court of Session Judge, Lucknow titled, 'Ajit Singh vs. State of UP through CBI'.

7. The settlement records that after various rounds of discussion, both the parties have settled their disputes in respect of Carlton Hotel to maintain peace and harmony and the terms of settlement have been recorded in the aforesaid memorandum of settlement. It is specifically mentioned in the memorandum of settlement that:-

"6. The Parties hereto had confirmed and declared that all the disputes and differences between them in respect of Carlton Hotel stood settled and that none of the parties has any further or other dispute, difference, dues, claims, demands, proceedings under arbitration or any proceedings pending in any Court of law including complaints / applications made to statutory authority inter se the Parties of any nature whatsoever against the other or others of them in that regard and if there is any, the same shall be unconditionally withdrawn and would deem to have been terminated between the parties."

8. On 03.09.2022, the applicant filed an application before the Special Judge C.B.I 5th Lucknow annexing therewith a copy of the memorandum of settlement and praying that the proceedings be terminated in terms of the compromise. However, no order has been passed on the application by the trial court and, therefore, the applicants have approached this Court seeking quashing of the criminal proceedings against them in view of the compromise entered into between the parties.

9. The offences involved in the present case are non-compoundable offences and, therefore, the Trial Court could not have compounded the same. Moreover, as the applicants already stand convicted by the trial Court and the parties have arrived at a settlement during pendency of an appeal against the conviction, there is no occasion for compounding of the offences by the trial Court.

10. Sri I. B. Singh, the learned Senior Advocate representing the applicants, has submitted that Section 320 (5) of the Criminal Procedure Code provides that “when the accused has been committed for trial or when he has been convicted and an appeal is pending, no composition for the offence shall be allowed without the leave of the Court to which he is committed, or, as the case may be, before which the appeal is to be heard.” Relying on the aforesaid provision, Sri. Singh, has submitted that there is no absolute prohibition against compounding of the offence even after conviction of the accused persons by the trial court. However, since some of the sections for which the applicants have been convicted, are non-compoundable, the Appellate Court would not quash the proceedings on the basis of the compromise.

11. The a law regarding quashing of criminal proceedings involving non-compoundable offences has been enunciated by the Hon’ble Supreme Court in various pronouncements, which are being referred hereinbelow.

12. In B. S. Joshi v. State of Haryana, (2003) 4 SCC 675, the Hon’ble Supreme Court held that if for the purpose of securing the ends of justice, quashing of FIR becomes necessary, Section 320 would not be a bar to the exercise of power of quashing.

13. In Nikhil Merchant versus Central Bureau of Investigation and Another, (2008) 9 SCC 677, the CBI had filed a charge-sheet against five accused persons, including three accused are officials of Andhra Bank, under Section 120-B read with Sections 420, 467, 468, 471 of the Penal Code, 1860 read with Sections 5(2) and 5(1)(d) of the Prevention of Corruption Act, 1947 and Section 13(2) read with Section 13(1)(d) of the Prevention of Corruption Act, 1988. The allegations under the charge-sheet indicated that the accused persons conspired with each other in fraudulently diverting the funds of Andhra Bank. Offences alleging forgery were also included in the charge-sheet. The Bank had filed a suit for recovery of money, in which the parties had entered into a compromise and the suit was decreed accordingly. Clause 11 of the compromise read as follows: -

“11. Agreed that save as aforesaid neither party has any claim against the other and parties do hereby withdraw all the allegations and counter-allegations made against each other.”

14. Consequent upon the compromise of the suit and having regard to the contents of Clause 11 of the consent terms, the appellant herein filed an application for discharge from the criminal complaint, in respect of which charge-sheet had been filed by CBI, but the application was rejected by the Trial Court. The Hon'ble Supreme Court held that: -

“30. In the instant case, the disputes between the Company and the Bank have been set at rest on the basis of the compromise arrived at by them whereunder the dues of the Bank have been cleared and the Bank does not appear to have any further claim against the Company. What, however, remains is the fact that certain documents were alleged to have been created by the appellant herein in order to avail of credit facilities beyond the limit to which the Company was entitled. The dispute involved herein has overtones of a civil dispute with certain criminal facets. The question which is required to be answered in this case is whether the power which independently lies with this Court to quash the criminal proceedings pursuant to the compromise arrived at, should at all be exercised?”

31. On an overall view of the facts as indicated hereinabove and keeping in mind the decision of this Court in B.S. Joshi case² and the compromise arrived at between the Company and the Bank as also Clause 11 of the consent terms filed in the suit filed by the Bank, we are satisfied that this is a fit case where technicality should not be allowed to stand in the way in the quashing of the criminal proceedings, since, in our view, the continuance of the same after the compromise arrived at between the parties would be a futile exercise.”

15. In Gian Singh v. State of Punjab, (2012) 10 SCC 303, the Hon'ble Supreme Court extensively discussed the judgments on this point, including B. S.

Joshi and Nikhil Merchant (Supra) and held that: -

“61. The position that emerges from the above discussion can be summarised thus : the power of the High Court in quashing a criminal proceeding or FIR or complaint in exercise of its inherent jurisdiction is distinct and different from the power given to a criminal court for compounding the offences under Section 320 of the Code. Inherent power is of wide plenitude with no statutory limitation but it has to be exercised in accord with the guideline engrafted in such power viz. : (i) to secure the ends of justice, or (ii) to prevent abuse of the process of any court. In what cases power to quash the criminal proceeding or complaint or FIR may be exercised where the offender and the victim have settled their dispute would depend on the facts and circumstances of each case and no category can be prescribed. However, before exercise of such power, the High Court must have due regard to the nature and gravity of the crime. Heinous and serious offences of mental depravity or offences like murder, rape, dacoity, etc. cannot be fittingly quashed even though the victim or victim's family and the offender have settled the dispute. Such offences are not private in nature and have a serious impact on society. Similarly, any compromise between the victim and the offender in relation to the offences under special statutes like the Prevention of Corruption Act or the offences committed by public servants while working in that capacity, etc.; cannot provide for any basis for quashing criminal proceedings involving such offences. But the criminal cases having overwhelmingly and predominatingly civil flavour stand on a different footing for the purposes of quashing, particularly the offences arising from commercial, financial, mercantile, civil, partnership or such like transactions or the offences arising out of matrimony relating to dowry, etc. or the family disputes where the wrong is basically private or personal in nature and the parties have resolved their entire dispute. In this category of cases, the High Court may quash the criminal proceedings if in its view, because of the compromise between the offender and the victim, the possibility of conviction is remote and bleak and continuation of the criminal case would put the accused to great oppression and prejudice and extreme injustice would be caused to him by not quashing the criminal case despite full and complete settlement and compromise with the victim. In other words, the High Court must consider whether it would be unfair or contrary to the interest of justice to continue with the criminal proceeding or continuation of the criminal proceeding would tantamount to abuse of process of law despite settlement and compromise between the victim and the wrongdoer and whether to secure the ends of justice, it is appropriate that the criminal case is put to an end and if the answer to the above question(s) is in the affirmative, the High Court shall be well within its jurisdiction to quash the criminal proceeding.

62. In view of the above, it cannot be said that B.S. Joshi, Nikhil Merchant and Manoj Sharma were not correctly decided. We answer the reference accordingly. Let these matters be now listed before the Bench(es) concerned.”

16. In Parbatbhai Aahir v. State of Gujarat, (2017) 9 SCC 641, the Hon'ble Supreme Court summarized the principles in this regard as follows: -

“16. The broad principles which emerge from the precedents on the subject, may be summarised in the following propositions:

16.1. Section 482 preserves the inherent powers of the High Court to prevent an abuse of the process of any court or to secure the ends of justice. The provision does not confer new powers. It only recognises and preserves powers which inhere in the High Court.

16.2. The invocation of the jurisdiction of the High Court to quash a first information report or a criminal proceeding on the ground that a settlement has been arrived at between the offender and the victim is not the same as the invocation of jurisdiction for the purpose of compounding an offence. While compounding an offence, the power of the court is governed by the provisions of Section 320 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973. The power to quash under Section 482 is attracted even if the offence is non-compoundable.

16.3. In forming an opinion whether a criminal proceeding or complaint should be quashed in exercise of its jurisdiction under Section 482, the High Court must evaluate whether the ends of justice would justify the exercise of the inherent power.

16.4. While the inherent power of the High Court has a wide ambit and plenitude it has to be exercised (i) to secure the ends of justice, or (ii) to prevent an abuse of the process of any court.

16.5. The decision as to whether a complaint or first information report should be quashed on the ground that the offender and victim have settled the dispute, revolves ultimately on the facts and circumstances of each case and no exhaustive elaboration of principles can be formulated.

16.6. In the exercise of the power under Section 482 and while dealing with a plea that the dispute has been settled, the High Court must have due regard to the nature and gravity of the offence. Heinous and serious offences involving mental depravity or offences such as murder, rape and dacoity cannot appropriately be quashed though the victim or the family of the victim have settled the dispute. Such offences are, truly speaking, not private in nature but have a serious impact upon society. The decision to continue with the trial in such cases is founded on the overriding element of public interest in punishing persons for serious offences.

16.7. As distinguished from serious offences, there may be criminal cases which have an overwhelming or predominant element of a civil dispute. They stand on a distinct footing insofar as the exercise of the inherent power to quash is concerned.

16.8. Criminal cases involving offences which arise from commercial, financial, mercantile, partnership or similar transactions with an essentially civil flavour may in appropriate situations fall for quashing where parties have settled the dispute.

16.9. In such a case, the High Court may quash the criminal proceeding if in view of the compromise between the disputants, the possibility of a conviction is remote and the continuation of a criminal proceeding would cause oppression and prejudice; and

16.10. There is yet an exception to the principle set out in propositions 16.8. and 16.9. above. Economic offences involving the financial and economic well-being of the State have implications which lie beyond the domain of a mere dispute between private disputants. The High Court would be justified in declining to quash where the offender is involved in an activity akin to a financial or economic fraud or misdemeanour. The consequences of the act complained of upon the financial or economic system will weigh in the balance.”

17. In the case of State of M. P. v. Laxmi Narayan, (2019) 5 SCC 688, the Hon’ble Supreme Court reiterated the law in this regard as follows: -

“15. Considering the law on the point and the other decisions of this Court on the point, referred to hereinabove, it is observed and held as under:

15.1. That the power conferred under Section 482 of the Code to quash the criminal proceedings for the non-compoundable offences under Section 320 of the Code can be exercised having overwhelmingly and predominantly the civil character, particularly those arising out of commercial transactions or arising out of matrimonial relationship or family disputes and when the parties have resolved the entire dispute amongst themselves;

15.2. Such power is not to be exercised in those prosecutions which involved heinous and serious offences of mental depravity or offences like murder, rape, dacoity, etc. Such offences are not private in nature and have a serious impact on society;

15.3. Similarly, such power is not to be exercised for the offences under the special statutes like the Prevention of Corruption Act or the offences committed by public servants while working in that capacity are not to be quashed merely on the basis of compromise between the victim and the offender;

15.4. Offences under Section 307 IPC and the Arms Act, etc. would fall in the category of heinous and serious offences and therefore are to be treated as crime against the society and not against the individual alone, and therefore, the criminal proceedings for the offence under Section 307 IPC and/or the Arms Act, etc. which have a serious impact on the society cannot be quashed in exercise of powers under Section 482 of the Code, on the ground that the parties have resolved their entire dispute amongst themselves. However, the High Court would not rest its decision merely because there is a mention of Section 307 IPC in the FIR or the charge is framed under this provision. It would be open to the High Court to examine as to whether incorporation of Section 307 IPC is there for the sake of it or the prosecution has collected sufficient evidence, which if proved, would lead to framing the charge under Section 307 IPC. For this purpose, it would be open to the High Court to go by the nature of injury sustained, whether such injury is inflicted on the vital/delicate parts of the body, nature of weapons used, etc. However, such an exercise by the High Court would be permissible only after the evidence is collected after investigation and the charge-sheet is filed/charge is framed and/or during the trial. Such exercise is not permissible when the matter is still under investigation. Therefore, the ultimate conclusion in paras 29.6 and 29.7 of the decision of this Court in Narinder Singh [Narinder Singh v. State of Punjab, (2014) 6 SCC 466 : (2014) 3 SCC (Cri) 54] should be read harmoniously and to be read as a whole and in the circumstances stated hereinabove;

15.5 [Ed.: Para 15.5 corrected vide Official Corrigendum No. F.3/Ed.B.J./22/2019 dated 3-4-2019.]
While exercising the power under Section 482 of the Code to quash the criminal proceedings in respect of non-compoundable offences, which are private in nature and do not have a serious impact on society, on the ground that there is a settlement/compromise between the victim and the offender, the High Court is required to consider the antecedents of the accused; the conduct of the accused, namely, whether the accused was absconding and why he was absconding, how he had managed with the complainant to enter into a compromise, etc.”

18. Per contra, Sri Shiv. P. Sukla, the learned counsel for the respondent - C.B.I has relied upon a decision of the Hon’ble Supreme Court in P. Dharamaraj Versus Shanmugam and Others 2022 SCC OnLine SC 1186, wherein the Hon’ble Supreme Court held that: -

“44. Thus it is clear from the march of law that the Court has to go slow even while exercising jurisdiction under Section 482 Cr.PC or Article 226 of the Constitution in the matter of quashing of criminal proceedings on the basis of a settlement reached between the parties, when the offences are capable of having an impact not merely on the complainant and the accused but also on others.

46. It is needless to point out that corruption by a public servant is an offence against the State and the Society at large. The Court cannot deal with cases involving abuse of official position and adoption of corrupt practices, like suits for specific performance, where the refund of the money paid may also satisfy the agreement holder. Therefore we hold that the High Court was completely in error in quashing the criminal complaint.”

19. The applicants are not public servants and, therefore, the law laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in P. Dharamaraj that (Supra) that corruption by a public servant is an offence against the State and the Society at large and when the offences are capable of having an impact not merely on the complainant and the accused but also on others, the Court has to go slow even while exercising jurisdiction under Section 482 Cr.P.C. for quashing of the proceedings, is not applicable to the facts of the present case.

20. Had the offences been compoundable, there would be no bar against the same being compounded by the appellate court even after conviction of the applicants in view of the provision contained in Section 320 (5) of the Criminal Procedure Code. However, in the present case, the appellate Court cannot compound the offences only because the offences are non-compoundable.

21. Because of the compromise between the parties, the possibility of conviction being upheld in appeal is remote and bleak and continuation of the criminal proceedings would put the applicants to great oppression and prejudice despite full and complete settlement and compromise with the victim. The Trial Court cannot compound non-compoundable offences, but this Court can quash proceedings of criminal case involving non-compoundable offences. Similarly, as the appellate Court could have compounded the offences even after conviction, had the offences been compoundable, applying the same analogy, this Court can quash the proceedings involving non-compoundable offences even after conviction by the trial Court, where the proceedings deserve to be quashed keeping in view the principles laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in this regard.

22. When we examine the facts of the present case in the light of the above referred law laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court, what we find is that the offences involved in the present case arise out of complaints made by private persons alleging a wrongful deprivation of their corporate and commercial rights in the Company by certain acts of forgery etc. committed by the applicant no. 3 for the benefit of the applicants no. 1 and 2. The complainants have already entered into a comprehensive settlement with the applicants for maintaining peace and harmony and the terms of settlement record that all the disputes and differences between them in respect of Carlton Hotel stood settled and that none of the parties has any further or other dispute, difference, dues, claims, demands, proceedings under arbitration or any proceedings pending in any Court of law including complaints / applications made to statutory authority inter se the Parties of any nature whatsoever against the other or others of them in that regard and if there is any, the same shall be unconditionally withdrawn and would deem to have been terminated between the parties. The disputes appear to be inherently of a civil nature with an overwhelmingly and predominately civil flavour. The wrongs alleged do not amount to commission of offence against the society at large.

23. Therefore, this Court is of the considered opinion that the conviction order and the entire proceedings against the applicants deserve to be quashed by this Court in exercise of its inherent powers under Section 482 of the Code, keeping in view the law laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the judgments referred to above.

24. In view of the aforesaid discussion, the application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. stands allowed.

25. The order of conviction dated 06.06.2019, passed by learned Special Judicial Magistrate, C.B.I. Lucknow in Case No.4603 of 2009, arising out of F.I.R. registered as RC No.01(S)/2006/CBI/SCB/LKO dated 12.01.2006, under Sections 120-B, 420, 466, 467, 468, 471, 477-A I.P.C. and all the subsequent proceedings from the aforesaid judgment are hereby quashed.

A. Criminal Law – Indian Penal Code – Sections 147, 452, 354-B, 323, 504 & 506 – In the criminal proceeding arising out of the FIR lodged on the application u/s 156(3) Cr.P.C., IO submitted Final Report, against which Protest petition was filed, which was treated as complaint – Summon issued – Validity challenged – Ground of delay of two months in filing of the application u/s 156(3) was taken – Effect – Defence of delay was taken that one family member of applicant, being in police service, influenced the local police authority to not to lodge FIR of opposite party and when by the order of the court, FIR was lodged, further influenced the IO to submit the final report – Effect – Held, an offence took place on the same date, time and place for which both the parties have initiated criminal proceedings. The truth would appear only after appraisal of the evidence. It does not appear that the impugned criminal proceeding initiated on behalf of opposite party no. 2 is an abuse of process of Court. The grounds taken by applicants are not sufficient to throw away the case of opposite party no. 2. (Para 17 and 19)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Umesh Chandra Sharma, J.)

1. This application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. Has been moved by the accused-applicants of Crl. Complaint Case No. 523 of 2019 (State Vs. Ravikant and Others) u/s 323, 354, 504 and 506 I.P.C. Police Station-Khurja Dehat, District- Bulandshahar.

2. In brief, facts of the case are that opposite party no. 2 Smt. Kripa Devi moved an application u/s 156(3) Cr.P.C. against the applicants regarding the incident dated 16.2.2017 to lodge the F.I.R. against the applicants which was allowed and an F.I.R. had been lodged at Crime No. 176 of 2017 under Section 147, 452, 354 B, 323, 504 and 506 I.P.C. P.S. Khurja Dehat, Bulandshahar, with the allegations that on 16.2.2017 at about 6:00 p.m. when the complainant went to the back side of her house for feeding to her cattle, the applicants entered her house, molested her and also assaulted her family members due to which they sustained injuries.

3. The police started investigation, recorded the statement of the informant and other witnesses such as Kallu, Triloki, Brahmpal, Bholaram, Ashok, Pushpa Devi and Devendra.

4. The I.O., Munna Lal Sagar, submitted final report concluding that the contents of the F.I.R. were not correct and the F.I.R. was lodged only to pressurize the applicants but the higher officials ordered for further investigation which was conducted by S.I. Awadhesh Kumar who again finding the allegations false, submitted final report before A.C.J.M. Khurja which was registered as F.R.No. 322 of 2017 on 27.5.2017.

5. The learned A.C.J.M. after perusal of the record accepted the final report on 20.11.2018 but the order of the learned A.C.J.M. was challenged by opposite party no.2 by filing Crl. Revision No. 436 of 2018 (Smt. Kripa Devi Vs. State of U.P. And 5 Others) which was allowed on 6.4.2019 by Additional Sessions Judge, Khurja, Bulandshahar, and the learned Magistrate was directed to decide the final report afresh in the light of the judgment of the revisional Court.

6. In compliance of the order of the revisional Court, the protest petition was treated as complaint case and opposite party no. 2, Smt. Kripa Devi, was examined under Section 202 Cr.P.C. and Anil Kumar and Jallu were examined as P.W.1 and P.W.2 under Section 202 Cr.P.C. Considering the evidence of the witnesses and allegations levelled against the applicants, they were summoned vide order dated 12/20.10.2021 as accused for appearance on 22.11.2021.

7. Being aggrieved, the impugned order dated 12/20.10.2021 has been challenged on the grounds that Manoj, husband of opposite party no.2 and his family members brutally assaulted applicant no.1, Ravikant and caused serious injuries to him for which applicant no. 4 Ratibhan, father of Ravikant, applicant no. 1 lodged F.I.R. against them at Crime No. 58 of 2017 under Section 147, 148, 149, 342, 308, 323 and 325 I.P.C. in which after submission of charge-sheet S.T. No. 219 of 2017 (State Vs. Manoj and Others) was started and the charges have been framed. In the aforesaid case, the applicants are witnesses. After that opposite party no.2 tried to initiate false and fabricated prosecution against the applicants by moving application u/s 156(3) Cr.P.C. with an unexplained delay of two months.

8. It is pertinent to mention that Dalchand, father-in-law of opposite party no.2 who is one of the accused of Crime

No. 58 of 2018, lodged an F.I.R. at Crime No. 353 of 2015 against the unknown persons in which final report has been submitted against which Dalchand moved protest petition on 9.7.2018 in which he first time said that the applicants Ravikant, Vijayveer and one Yashwant were involved in the said offence and the learned Magistrate summoned them as accused on 16.10.2018 under Section 308 and 506 I.P.C. which was challenged by the applicant Ravikant before the High Court in Criminal Misc. Application U.S 482 No. 21664 of 2019 and the proceeding of the impugned case was stayed which was extended time to time.

9. On the instigation of the family members of the opposite party no. 2, another case has been falsely lodged against the applicant Vijayveer alias Ankit at Crime No. 271 of 2018 on 5.10.2018 under Section 376 I.P.C. in which the High Court granted bail to him vide order dated 3.4.2019.

10. There was no material available on record to indicate that opposite party no.2 or her family members sustained any injury and in absence of any injury, it is clearly established that the applicants were falsely implicated in the present case. It is also pertinent to mention that in Case Crime No. 271 of 2018 u/s 376 I.P.C., the applicant Vijayveej has been acquitted vide judgment and order dated 25.11.2020. The applicants have no criminal antecedents, they have falsely been implicated in the present case for ulterior motive hence the entire proceeding and the impugned summoning order be quashed.

11. All the records referred in the application have been annexed with the Affidavit filed in support of the application.

12. Heard Sri Anoop Trivedi, learned Senior Counsel, assisted by Sri Vibhu Rai and Ankit Shukla, Advocates, for the applicants Sri Pandey Balkrishna learned counsel for opposite party no.2 and learned AGA for the State and perused the record.

13. It is case of opposite party no.2 that when she was feeding the cattle in the backyard of her house, accused persons committed the alleged occurrence and disrobed her and compelled her to be naked. It is noteworthy that in the F.I.R lodged by opposite party no.2, the applicant no.1 Ravikant is accused no.1. This point appears to be key point of both the cases as to how Ravikant was found in the Gher of opposite party no.2. According to opposite party no.2, when Ravikant alongwith other accused persons molested her and torn her clothes and when she called her family members, her husband and brother in-laws Mahesh and Bablu reached there. Seeing them except Ravikant, rest accused persons succeeded in escaping and Ravikant was caught hold by her husband, then accused person reached there with stick and lathi and started beating her husband and brother in-laws. Hearing the noise, villagers Anil and Jallu reached there and saved them.

14. Contrary to that it is allegation of the applicants that Ravikant was taken to the Gher of opposite party no.2 where he was severely assaulted by which several grievous and fatal injuries were caused to him.

15. It is nowhere mentioned in the F.I.R. lodged by the applicants that on which reason, the accused had taken Ravikant to their Gher. No motive or reason has been assigned by the applicants for it. At this point learned counsel for the opposite party no. 2 and learned A.G.A.

contended that if Ravikant would have been taken forcefully from his house to the Gher of opposite party no.2, the occurrence would have taken place at the house of Ravikant, not in the Gher of opposite party no.2. Ravikant was not a child, ill or sick person that he could be easily taken away by the family members of the opposite party no.2. Their argument is that virtually the facts of the F.I.R. of the applicants do not contain correct facts of the case as Ravikant with other accused persons committed the alleged crime against opposite party no.2 and when it came into the knowledge of the family members of opposite party no.2, they tried to save the dignity and honour of opposite party no.2 and in such a situation, seeing the nature and gravity of the alleged crime, family members of opposite party no. 2 also used force in their defence. Hence, some injuries would have been sustained by Ravikant. It does not mean that in the aforesaid circumstances, if the applicants side received more and severe injuries than the side of opposite party no.2, it can be said that the family members of opposite party no.2 were the assailants or they exceeded the limit of private defence. It could only be decided during the course of trial. It is also a matter of concern as to why only Ravikant was caught hold and rest are said to be escaped. In this regard, if fact of the case of opposite party no.2 is scrutinized, the fair picture appears that Ravikant had been caught hold by the family members of the victim, opposite party no.2 on account of the impugned alleged occurrence.

16. It is noteworthy that it is not a case where an F.I.R. about any past incident had been lodged from the side of opposite party no.2. Both the F.I.Rs. have been lodged about the offence alleged to have been occurred on the same date, place and time. In such a situation, it can only be decided after taking evidence during the trial as to which party was the aggressor and right culprit and which party acted in defence and which party started the commission of crime about which both the parties have lodged the F.I.R.

17. A very common but serious charge has been levelled from the side of opposite party no. 2 that since the brother of Vijayveer is in police service hence in spite of best efforts from the side of opposite party no.2, their F.I.R. could not be lodged and when the police was directed to lodge the F.I.R. under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C., both the I.O. tried to save the family members of the said police personnel and submitted final report. So far as this allegation is concerned, normally no evidence can be produced in this regard but it is again noteworthy that the applicants have not denied that brother of the applicant accused Vijayveer is not in police service. Since no adverse presumption can be drawn in accordance with law, hence, no such presumption is drawn by the Trial Court or this Court but it is open for the side of opposite party no.2 to adduce evidence that the denial from lodging the F.I.R. and submission of final report was the result of unfair practice.

18. Learned counsel for the applicants has relied on the following rulings'

(a) In Pepsi Food Ltd. And Other Vs. Special Judicial Magistrate and Others, (1998) 5 SCC 749, it has been held that summoning of an accused in a criminal case is a serious matter. The magistrate should examine the nature of allegations, the oral and documentary evidence. He should not act as silent spectator, he has to scrutinize the evidence carefully and may himself put question to the complainant and his witnesses to elicit answers to find out the truthfulness of the allegations and to examine as to whether any prima facie case of commission of crime by the accused is made out or not.

On the basis of above discussion this Court is of the view that the principles laid down in this precedent do not apply in favour of the applicants.

(b) Sunil Bharti Mittal Vs. C.B.I., (2015) 4 SCC 609; M/s G.H.C.L. Employees Stock Option Trust Vs. M/s India Infoline Ltd., AIR 2013 SC 1433; Lallan Kumar Singh Vs. State of Maharashtra, 2022 Livelaw (SC) 833. In first case the matter was remanded to the Magistrate and in all the cases it was held that Magistrate must duly apply his mind to form and record an opinion that there is sufficient basis for proceeding through the order though there is no need to pass a detailed order.

In first three above citations the matter was in respect of commission of economic offences.

(c) In Krishna Lal Chawla and Others Vs. State of U.P. And Others, Manu/SC/0161/2021, there was matrimonial dispute between the wife and the husband and F.I.R. had been lodged by both the parties against each other, both were living separately. The Apex Court was of the view that no useful purpose would be served by keeping the matter pending, hence the F.I.R. and the entire criminal proceedings were quashed. Here the facts are quite different. Hence the principles laid down in this precedent can not be applied in favour of the applicants.

(d) In Vineet Kumar and Others Vs. State of U.P. and Others, Manu/SC/0351/2017, the accused were summoned under Section 452, 376 D and 323 IPC and revision against the summoning order was dismissed, hence the appeal was preferred. On the basis of facts and circumstances of the case the appeal was allowed by the Apex Court considering the fact that there were financial transaction between the accused and the complainant, her husband and son, and on dishonourment of cheque issued by the complainant's husband and son, proceeding under Section 138 N.I. Act were already initiated by the accused. There was nothing on record except the bald allegation of the victim, hence the appeal was allowed and the entire criminal proceedings were quashed. The facts of this case are quite different even it is not denied by the applicants that any occurrence had not taken place on the alleged date, time and place.

(e) In Sundar Babu and Others Vs. State of Tamilnadu (2009) 14 SCC 244, the dispute was matrimonial in nature u/s 498-A and Section 4 D.P. Act, 1961, the Apex Court found that the proceedings were malafidy and it was maliciously instituted with an ulterior motive for wreaking vengeance on the accused and with a view to spite him due to private and personal grudge. In this case the facts and evidence are quite different, hence, this precedent is not applicable in favour of the applicants.

(f) In Ahmad Ali Quraishi and Another Vs. State of U.P. and Another, (2020) 13 SCC 435, the complaint was found to be malafide and animus in nature due to animosity arising out of partition of family properties. In this case facts are quite different and the principles laid down in this case do not apply in favour of the applicants.

(g) In M.N. Ojha and Others Vs. A.K. Srivastava and Another, (2009) 9 SCC 682, the complaint was found to be as counter blast to the action taken by the appellants in their official capacity for realizing the loan amount due against the complainant. Facts of this case are totally different from the facts of the cited case. Hence, due to difference of facts and circumstances of both the cases, this ruling can not be applied in favour of the applicants.

19. On the basis of above discussion, this Court is of the view that an offence took place on the same date, time and place for which both the parties have initiated criminal proceedings. The truth would appear only after appraisal of the evidence. It does not appear that the impugned criminal proceeding initiated on behalf of opposite party no.2 is an abuse of process of Court. The grounds taken by applicants are not sufficient to throw away the case of opposite party no.2. By quashing the impugned criminal proceedings, no useful purpose would be served. Let the truth prevail after completion of trial.

20. Thus this Court is of the view that the present application is devoid of merits and is not sustainable in the eye of law and is liable to be dismissed.

Order

The present Application U/S 482 Cr.P.C. is hereby dismissed without prejudice to the merit of the case.

1. Facts of the present case are disturbing which indicate that this case is of immoral child trafficking. Victim is a minor girl aged about 14 to 15 years and was working as an scavenger. According to F.I.R., lodged by father of victim, she was missing since 29.9.2020 and one of the co-accused Chhabinath was a suspected person that he has enticed the victim and kidnapped her from lawful guardianship.

2. It appears that victim returned on 25.2.2022 i.e. after 1 year 5 months. Statement of victim were recorded under Sections 161 and 164 Cr.P.C. wherein she narrated her entire ordeal of repeated sexual assault and how she was sold from one accused to another.

3. According to victim, her ordeal of immoral trafficking was commenced when co-accused Gaurav alias Sonu kept her for about 45 days in a house belonging to his brother where he repeatedly raped her and later on sold to present applicant for ₹ 60,000/-.

4. Thereafter, applicant solemnised marriage with victim and she stayed for about 1 year along with him and thereafter co-accused Gaurav again contacted her and sold to other co-accused viz., Surendra Kumar Singh @ Shani for Rs. 50,000/- where she again lived as his wife for about 3-4 months, however, he repeatedly assaulted her and on one day, victim slipped away from that place and when she met co-accused Rinku. The victim solemnised Court marriage with him and lived there as husband and wife and thereafter was traced from his house.

5. Sri Nagendra Kumar Singh, learned counsel for applicant has submitted that applicant has not purchased the victim on payment, rather they lived together as husband and wife after solemnizing marriage without any force and she left his company on her own will. In the statements also, victim has not stated that applicant has committed any cruelty with her or he assaulted her or entered into physical relationship against her will. He is not part of any child trafficking.

6. Learned counsel has also submitted that co-accused Surendra Kumar @ Shani, who has been alleged by victim that not only he married to her but he assaulted her also, has already been granted bail by co-ordinate Bench of this Court. Therefore, applicant who is in jail since 16.10.2022 may be released on bail.

7. Sri Sunil Srivastava, learned A.G.A. for State as well as Ms. Maimoona Fatima, learned counsel for High Court Legal Services Committee have opposed the bail and submitted that it was a case of child trafficking, wherein victim was sold to accused persons one after another and accused persons have solemnised marriage of convenience with victim and sexually assaulted the victim also. All accused persons were acting like a gang and one of the co-accused (Gaurav) was kingpin, who acted like a broker. The victim has narrated her ordeal in details in her statement recorded under Sections 161 and 164 Cr.P.C. Therefore, applicant may not be released on bail and this Court may deal with accused persons strictly.

8. Heard learned counsel for parties and perused the record.

9. LAW ON BAIL - A SUMMARY

(A) The basic rule may perhaps be tersely put as bail, not jail.

(B) Power to grant bail under Section 439 Cr.P.C., is of wide amplitude but not an unfettered discretion, which calls for exercise in a judicious manner and not as a matter of course or in whimsical manner.

(C) While passing an order on an application for grant of bail, there is no need to record elaborate details to give an impression that the case is one that would result in a conviction or, by contrast, in an acquittal. However, a Court cannot completely divorce its decision from material aspects of the case such as allegations made against accused; nature and gravity of accusation; having common object or intention; severity of punishment if allegations are proved beyond reasonable doubt and would result in a conviction; reasonable apprehension of witnesses being influenced by accused; tampering of evidence; character, behaviour, means, position and standing of accused; likelihood of offence being repeated; the frivolity in the case of prosecution; criminal antecedents of accused and a prima facie satisfaction of Court in support of charge against accused. The Court may also take note of participation or part of an unlawful assembly as well as that circumstantial evidence not being a ground to grant bail, if the evidence/ material collected establishes prima facie a complete chain of events. Parity may not be an only ground but remains a relevant factor for consideration of application for bail.

(D) Over crowding of jail and gross delay in disposal of cases when undertrials are forced to remain in jail (not due to their fault) may give rise to possible situations that may justify invocation of Article 21 of Constitution, may also be considered along with other factors.

SCC 501; and, Deepak Yadav vs. State of U.P. and Anr. (2022) 8 SCC 559)

10. The Court has taken note of apathy of the victim. The Court has summoned Chairperson, CWC, Shahjahanpur in order to verify whether the Committee has discharged all responsibilities towards victim diligently or not? It was informed that victim was communicated her rights and that she can avail facility of a support person by a written communication. However, the victim has denied. She has given statement before the members of C.W.C. and narrated same version as stated her statement recorded under Sections 161 and 164 Cr.P.C. and that she wants to live along with her mother.

11. This Court has passed certain directions in regard to working of C.W.C. in the judgement of Rajendra Agarwal Urf Bablu vs. State of U.P. and others, Bail Application No. 833 of 2023 and relevant parts thereof are mentioned hereinafter -:

"25. The above referred procedure of Committee and additional functions and responsibilities of Committee entrusted a great responsibility to Child Welfare Committee that it shall hold its sittings in the premises of a children's home or, at a place in proximity of children's home or, at a suitable premises in any institution run under the Act for children in need of care and protection. It further provides that it shall be ensured that no person or persons unconnected with case remains present in room when session is in progress and only those persons shall be allowed to remain present, in presence of whom child feels comfortable. Committee shall hold its sittings in a child friendly premises which shall not look like a Court Room in any manner. Committee has to review the Children's Suggestion Book atleast once in a month.

26. Concept of Child Welfare Committee has important factor in implementation of JJ Act, 2015 and JJ Rules, 2019. In the present case considering gravity of allegations, victim does require a very special and effective counselling by an experienced counsellor.

27. In the backdrop of above referred statutory provisions it is clear that Child Welfare Committee has a great responsibility when it is dealing with a case of minor girl victim, as the case in hand, who has suffered mental and physical trauma of repeated assault for many years. In such cases it would not be a mere formality of Child Welfare Committee to comply with above referred statutory provisions but it would require more cautious approach. In such cases victim should be dealt with extra care and responsibility and for that members of Child Welfare Committee required a trained support system, who can undertake counselling of such victims keeping in view their sufferings.

28. National Commission for Protection of Child Rights (NCPCR) has launched a training module for Child Welfare Committee. The module will be more beneficiary if it includes a requisite training to deal with minor victims of sexual assault.

29. Effect of act/ offence of rape is not momentary but it got pasted on mind, heart, body and soul of the victim and the object of Child Welfare Committee is to undertake such endeavours to erase such memories by counselling and it should be done by well trained counsellors who have experience of treating such minor victims under proper guidance.

30. In view of above, Ministry of Women and Child Development, Government of U.P., Lucknow through its Secretary is directed to ponder on above referred issue by initiating process of interaction with all stakeholders in order to make Child Welfare Committee and its Members more competent, more responsible, more generous and more compassionate to deal with such cases, as the case in hand.

31. While undertaking above exercise it shall also take note the provisions of Rule 35 of JJ Rules, 2019 which provides mental health for children at Child Care Institution. Sub-rule (5) thereof provides that every Institution shall have the services of trained counsellors or collaboration with external agencies such as child guidance centres, psychology and psychiatric departments or similar Government and non-Governmental agencies, for specialized and regular individual therapy for child.

32. The object of above exercise is to provide sincere and appropriate counselling to minor victim and exercise shall not be limited to above observations. It is up to the senior officers of Department to come up with a concrete plan in order to achieve the above referred observations of this Court."

12. Considering above referred factual aspects of this case as well as submission of learned counsel for rival parties and law as referred above, it transpires that in the present case, a minor girl has suffered a lot not only her body was ravished many times by number of persons but she has suffered mental trauma also. From the facts as referred above, it is evident that victim was sold to accused persons one after another and they solemnised marriage of convenience and sexually assaulted the victim and some accused persons have physically assaulted her also. There are evidence that victim was sold and purchased like a commodity. This act of selling the human being like a commodity was nothing but a dark huge black spot on society and accused persons including applicant are not only accused of the offence committed against victim but they are accused to the entire society as well.

13. The applicant and co-accused have treated a minor girl like a vegetable sold in an open market and not only entered a marriage of convenience but made physical relationship with her with or without consent which was illegal as the settled position of law is that consent, if any, of a minor girl for physical relationship is immaterial.

14. In the present case, the only relationship between accused persons including applicant and victim was a relationship with her body only. There was no relationship of mind or emotions.

15. Contention of learned counsel for applicant that victim had stayed along with him on her own will and he was not part of any child trafficking appears to be contrary to the evidence on record including the confessional statement as well as consistent statement of victim recorded under Sections 161 and 164 Cr.P.C.

16. It has also been brought on record that co-accused Surendra Kumar @ Shani has already been granted bail by co-ordinate Bench of this Court, however, reasons given therein do not appear to be in terms of judgement of Supreme Court in the cases of Manoj Kumar Khokhar vs. State of Rajasthan and Anr. (2022) 3 SCC 501 and Brijmani Devi vs. Pappu Kumar, (2022) 4 SCC 497 wherein

Supreme Court has held that while granting bail to accused persons, High Court should give specific findings/reasons in this regard. The reasons given by co-ordinate Bench in co-accused case are as follows :-

"After perusing the record in the light of the submissions made at the bar and after taking an overall view of all the facts and circumstances of this case, the nature of evidence and also the absence of any convincing material to indicate the possibility of tampering with the evidence, this Court is of the view that the applicant may be enlarged on bail."

17. Considering the reasons given by co-ordinate Bench as well as law as held in Manoj Kumar Khokhar and Brijmani Devi (supras), it appears that certain relevant facts were not brought on record before co-ordinate Bench as well as that it was a case of child trafficking, therefore, this Court is declining prayer for bail on the ground of parity.

18. As discussed above and considering that applicant is part of child trafficking nexus and it is not only a crime against victim, a minor girl, but it is a crime against society and, therefore, the Court is of considered opinion that no case of bail is made out in favour of applicant in Case Crime No. 438 of 2020 under Sections 366, 120-B, 176, 372, 373, 376 AB I.P.C., Section 3/4 of POCSO Act and Section 5 of Immoral Traffic (Prevention) Act, 1956, Police Station- Nigohi, District- Shahjahanpur.

19. Before parting with this judgement, some reference is required to the menace of child trafficking in India.

20. The National Crime Record Bureau complies crime statistics reported by different States and Union Territories and same are published in its manual publication. In the report of 2022, it was reported that number of cases in which children below 18 years trafficked during 2018 to 2020 were 941, 883 and 750 respectively as well as number of children traffic below 18 years during 2018 to 2020 were 2772, 2863 and 2222 respectively. It also gives the profile of child below 18 years rescued in India from 2018 to 2020 were 2383, 2693 and 2135 respectively. All the above details are based on consolidated report from all the States.

21. If we look the anti trafficking laws in India, they are Article 21 of the Constitution of India which prohibits trafficking in human beings and beggar and other similar forms of forced labour and in contravention of this provision, there shall be a punishable offence in accordance with law. There is an Act viz., Immoral Traffic (Prevention) Act, 1956 which indicates that with the prior object to abolish the traffic as an organized means of living. There are other laws viz., Child Labour (Prohibition and Regulation) Act, 1986, etc.

22. The Government of India as well as a State Government are having dedicated Ministries as well as Commissions and there are number of Non Government Organisation who are actively trying to eradicate the trafficking of human being of child as well as to rescue the children from the web of illegal trafficking. Still a lot has to be done. The child trafficking is a crime against humanity and Society, therefore, each citizen of the country has to give some effort in order to check and to stop such trafficking and for that citizens have to kept their eyes open and in case of any suspected movement of children or otherwise is found, they have to report immediately to the concerned police station or NGO or any other appropriate place as well as we have to discourage child labour, child beggars to create a movement in the society so that nexus between web of child trafficking maybe cracked and innocent children may not be trapped in their web as well as we have to take care as the society to help the rescued child/children.

23. Accordingly, the outcome of above discussion is that bail application of applicant is rejected with above observations.

A. भा०द०सं०- धारा 302, 307 एवं धारा 27/30 आयुध अधिनियम-सूचनाकर्ता का चचेरा भाई जब खेत जोतकर अपना ट्रैक्टर लेकर गाँव आ रहा था, तो गाँव के ही आठ नामित अभियुक्त अंधाधुंध फायरिंग शुरू कर दी, जिसमें आठ लोग गम्भीर रूप से घायल हो गये जिसमें उसका एक पड़ोसी रूप सिंह भी था, जिसकी उपचार के दौरान मृत्यु हो गई-अपराध में वर्तमान आवेदक के पुत्र ने उसकी लाईसेंस बंदूक लाकर दी और जिससे उसने अंधाधुंध गोलियाँ बरसायीं और चोटिल गवाहों को भी

गोली लगी एवं मृतक की भी गोली लगने से ही मृत्यु हुई। शेष नामित अपराधियों के विरुद्ध आरोपपत्र नहीं दाखिला किया गया है व आरोप पत्र केवल वर्तमान आवेदक और उसके पुत्र के विरुद्ध ही दाखिल किया गया है-मृतक का सूचनाकर्ता से कोई भी सम्बन्ध नहीं है, जबकि वह आवेदक का जानकार है। वास्तव में सूचनाकर्ता के लोग आवेदक के लोगों के साथ मारपीट करने आए और फायरिंग की, जिससे मृतक की मृत्यु हो गई जो बीच बचाव करने आया था और इस सम्बन्ध में मृतक के भाई ने प्रथम सूचना रिपोर्ट भी दर्ज करायी थी, परन्तु उसमें अंतिम रिपोर्ट प्रेषित कर दी गई और वर्तमान में एक विरोध याचिका दाखिल की गई है, जिसपर अभी निर्णय आना शेष है-प्रथम सूचना रिपोर्ट एक कथित चक्षुदर्शी ने दर्ज करायी थी, जिसमें आठ लोगों को अपराधी के रूप में नामित किया गया था और शस्त्र भी नामित किये गये थे, परन्तु मात्र आवेदक और उसके पुत्र को छोड़कर बाकी सभी के विरुद्ध कोई साक्ष्य न मिलने के कारण कोई कार्यवाही नहीं की गई अतः सूचनाकर्ता द्वारा अभियोग पक्ष में अतिशयोक्ति की गई है, जिसका अर्थ यह है कि अभियोजन कथानक पूर्ण रूप से मिथ्या है- प्रारम्भ में आवेदक और उसके पुत्र के अतिरिक्त और लोग भी अपराधी के रूप में नामित किये गये थे, परन्तु अन्वेषण के दौरान साक्ष्य के बयानों के आधार पर आरोपपत्र केवल वर्तमान आवेदक और उसके पुत्र के विरुद्ध दाखिल किया गया और विशिष्ट रूप से यह आरोप लगाया गया कि आवेदक के पुत्र ने आवेदक को उसकी लाईसेंस बंदूक लाकर दी, जिससे आवेदक ने अंधाधुंध फायरिंग की, जिसके कारण एक व्यक्ति की मृत्यु हो गई और छह अन्य घायल हो गए। सभी को आग्नेयास्त्र की चोटें लगीं- केवल इस कारण कि प्रथम सूचना रिपोर्ट में ज्यादा व्यक्ति अपराधी के रूप में नामित किये गये हैं, सम्पूर्ण अभियोजन कथानक को झूठा नहीं करार दिया जा सकता। आवेदक के विद्वान अधिवक्ता का यह कथन कि वास्तविकता कुछ और अलग है, इस आधार पर विश्वसनीय नहीं मानी जा सकती क्योंकि मृतक के भाई द्वारा लिखायी गई प्रथम सूचना रिपोर्ट पर अन्वेषण के बाद अंतिम रिपोर्ट लगा दी गई है-अतः आवेदक का घटना स्थल पर उपस्थित होना

व उसके द्वारा अंधाधुन्ध गोली चलाना व जिसके कारण एक व्यक्ति की मृत्यु हो जाना एवं छह अन्य लोगों का घायल हो जाना को प्रथम दृष्टया असत्य मानने का कोई कारण नहीं है और यह देखते हुए कि यह एक संगीन अपराध है, अतः वाद के गुण-दोष को प्रभावित किये बगैर इस जमानत याचिका को निरस्त किया जाता है। (1 Is 12)

B. जमानत देने के लिये विचारात्मक कारक है, अपराध होने की परिस्थितियों की प्रकृति और गंभीरता ; पीड़ित और गवाहों के संदर्भ में आरोपी की स्थिति और हैसियत ; आरोपी के न्याय प्रक्रिया से भागने की संभावना ; अपराध दोहराने की संभावना ; मामले में संभावित सजा की कठोर संभावना के साथ अपने स्वयं के जीवन को खतरे में डालना ; गवाहों के साथ छेड़छाड़ ; मामले का इतिहास और साथ ही इसकी जांच और अन्य प्रासंगिक आधार, जो अन्य महत्वपूर्ण कारकों पर ध्यान करते हुए, व्यापक रूप से निर्धारित नहीं किये जा सकते हैं। प्रासंगिक कारक कौन से हो सकते हैं, इसका कोई निर्धारित नियम (स्ट्रेट जैकेट फॉर्मूला) कभी भी नियत नहीं किया जा सकता है, हालांकि, कुछ महत्वपूर्ण कारक जिन्हें अन्य कारकों के साथ हमेशा विचारणीय माना जाता है, वो हैं, प्रथम दृष्टया अभियुक्त की संलिप्तता, आरोप की प्रकृति और गंभीरता, सजा की कठोरता, आरोपी का चरित्र, स्थिति और उसकी अवस्थिति से संबंधित है। (10, 12) (E-6)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Saurabh Shyam Shamshery, J.)

1. आवेदक के विद्वान अधिवक्ता श्री पवन कुमार शुक्ला, ब्रीफ होल्डर श्री राम कुमार, सूचनाकर्ता की तरफ से विद्वान अधिवक्ता श्री ललित कुमार शुक्ला एवं राज्य की तरफ से विद्वान अपर शासकीय अधिवक्ता श्री ऋषि चड्ढा को ध्यानपूर्वक सुना गया तथा पत्रावली का अवलोकन किया गया।

2. वर्तमान आपराधिक प्रकीर्ण प्रथम जमानत याचिका आवेदक/अभियुक्त जगदीश द्वारा मु०अ०सं० 328, वर्ष 2021, अंतर्गत धारा 302, 307 भा०दं०सं० एवं धारा 27/30 आयुध अधिनियम, थाना बलदेव, जिला मथुरा के अंतर्गत न्यायालय सत्र न्यायाधीश, मथुरा द्वारा उसके जमानत प्रार्थनापत्र संख्या- 370, वर्ष 2022 को आदेश दिनांक 17.02.2022 के द्वारा निरस्त करने के उपरान्त इस न्यायालय के समक्ष दाखिल किया गया है।

3. प्रथम सूचना के तथ्य से विदित होता है कि सूचनाकर्ता का चचेरा भाई दिनांक 25.10.2021 को जब खेत जोतकर अपना ट्रैक्टर लेकर गाँव आ रहा था, तो गाँव के ही आठ नामित अभियुक्त जो अपने हाथ में लाईसेंस बंदूक, देशी अवैध बंदूक, अवैध पौना, देशी तमन्चा, देशी बंदूक लिये हुए थे, जिनमें से चार पुरुष और चार महिलाएं थीं, सभी उसके चचेरे भाई के पीछे दौड़ कर आए और जैसे ही वह ट्रैक्टर से उतर कर घर की तरफ भागा, उन्होंने अंधाधुंध फायरिंग शुरू कर दी, जिसमें आठ लोग गम्भीर रूप से घायल हो गये जिसमें उसका एक पड़ोसी रूप सिंह भी था, जिसकी उपचार के दौरान मृत्यु हो गई।

4. आवेदक के विद्वान अधिवक्ता श्री पवन कुमार शुक्ला ने प्रबलतापूर्वक आवेदन किया कि मजरूब गवाह के बयानों में भी केवल इतना बताया गया है कि अपराध में वर्तमान आवेदक के पुत्र ने उसकी लाईसेंस बंदूक लाकर दी और जिससे उसने अंधाधुन्ध गोलियाँ बरसायीं और चोटिल गवाहों को भी गोली लगी एवं मृतक की भी गोली लगने से ही मृत्यु हुई। शेष नामित अपराधियों के विरुद्ध आरोपपत्र नहीं दाखिला किया गया है व आरोप पत्र केवल वर्तमान आवेदक और उसके पुत्र के विरुद्ध ही दाखिल किया गया है।

5. आवेदक के विद्वान अधिवक्ता ने आगे कहा कि मृतक का सूचनाकर्ता से कोई भी सम्बन्ध नहीं है, जबकि वह आवेदक का जानकार है। वास्तव में सूचनाकर्ता के लोग आवेदक के लोगों के साथ मारपीट करने आए और फायरिंग की, जिससे मृतक की मृत्यु हो गई जो बीच बचाव करने आया था और इस सम्बन्ध में मृतक के भाई ने प्रथम सूचना रिपोर्ट भी दर्ज करायी थी, परन्तु उसमें अंतिम

रिपोर्ट प्रेषित कर दी गई और वर्तमान में एक विरोध याचिका दाखिल की गई है, जिसपर अभी निर्णय आना शेष है।

6. प्रथम सूचना रिपोर्ट एक कथित चक्षुदर्शी ने दर्ज करायी थी, जिसमें आठ लोगों को अपराधी के रूप में नामित किया गया था और शस्त्र भी नामित किये गये थे, परन्तु मात्र आवेदक और उसके पुत्र को छोड़कर बाकी सभी के विरुद्ध कोई साक्ष्य न मिलने के कारण कोई कार्यवाही नहीं की गई। अतः सूचनाकर्ता द्वारा अभियोग पक्ष में अतिशयोक्ति की गई है, जिसका अर्थ यह है कि अभियोजन कथानक पूर्ण रूप से मिथ्या है।

7. बहस का विरोध शासन की तरफ से विद्वान अपर शासकीय अधिवक्ता श्री ऋषि चड्ढा एवं श्री ललित कुमार शुक्ला ने किया कि सभी मजरूब साक्ष्यों ने पूर्ण रूप से अभियोजन कथानक का समर्थन किया है कि वर्तमान आवेदक घटनास्थल पर मौजूद था, उसी के बेटे ने घर से बंदूक लाकर उसको दी और बाद में उसके द्वारा अंधाधुन्ध फायरिंग की गई, जिसके कारण एक व्यक्ति की मृत्यु हो गई और छह अन्य लोग गोली लगने के कारण घायल हो गए। मृत्यु पश्चात शव विच्छेदन प्रपत्र व चोट प्रपत्र से प्रथम-दृष्टया यह विदित होता है कि सभी को आग्नेयास्त्र की चोट लगी थी। अतः आरोप की गम्भीरता व आवेदक का कृत्य देखते हुए यह याचिका निरस्त की जाए।

8.(क) सारगर्भित धारणा से संभवतः मूल नियम, जमानत है न कि कारागार (देखें : राजस्थान राज्य, जयपुर बनाम बलचंद @ बलिया (1977 एआईआर 2447, 1978 एससीआर (1) 535)।

भा.दं.सं. की धारा 439 के तहत जमानत देने की शक्ति के व्यापक आयाम हैं तथा न्यायालय को असीमित तो नहीं परन्तु पर्याप्त विवेकाधिकार प्रदान किये गये हैं, जिसका उपयोग न तो सामान्य रूप से और न ही मनमाने रूप से, परन्तु न्यायसंगत रूप से करने के लिए प्रस्तावित किया गया है। (देखें: राम गोविंद उपाध्याय बनाम सुदर्शन सिंह: (2002) 3 एससीसी 598 और नीरू यादव बनाम उत्तर प्रदेश शासन (2013) 15 एससीसी 422)।

(ख) जमानत देने के लिये विचारात्मक कारक है, अपराध होने की परिस्थितियों की प्रकृति और गंभीरता ; पीड़ित और गवाहों के संदर्भ में आरोपी की स्थिति और हैसियत ; आरोपी के न्याय प्रक्रिया से भागने की संभावना ; अपराध दोहराने की संभावना ; मामले में संभावित सजा की कठोर संभावना के साथ अपने स्वयं के जीवन को खतरे में डालना ; गवाहों के साथ छेड़छाड़ ; मामले का इतिहास और साथ ही इसकी जांच और अन्य प्रासंगिक आधार, जो अन्य महत्वपूर्ण कारकों पर ध्यान करते हुए, व्यापक रूप से निर्धारित नहीं किये जा सकते हैं। (देखें : गुरचरण सिंह बनाम राज्य (दिल्ली प्रशासन), (1978) 1 एससीसी 118)।

(ग) प्रासंगिक कारक कौन से हो सकते हैं, इसका कोई निर्धारित नियम (स्ट्रेट जैकेट फॉर्मूला) कभी भी नियत नहीं किया जा सकता है, हालांकि, कुछ महत्वपूर्ण कारक जिन्हें अन्य कारकों के साथ हमेशा विचारणीय माना जाता है, वो हैं, प्रथम दृष्टया अभियुक्त की संलिप्तता, आरोप की प्रकृति और गंभीरता, सजा की कठोरता, आरोपी का चरित्र, स्थिति और उसकी अवस्थिति से संबंधित है। (देखें: उत्तर प्रदेश शासन प्रति अमरमणि त्रिपाठी, (2005) 8 एससीसी 21)।

(घ) मन्नो लाल जायसवाल बनाम उत्तर प्रदेश शासन और अन्य: 2022 एससीसी ऑनलाइन

एससी 89 में उच्चतम न्यायालय ने कहा है कि, जब अभियुक्तों को भारतीय दंड संहिता की धारा 149 के तहत दंडनीय अपराधों के लिए आरोपित किया गया है और जब उनकी उपस्थिति स्थापित हो जाती है और यह कहा गया हो कि वो विधि विरुद्ध जमाव के सदस्य थे, तो उनकी व्यक्तिगत भूमिका और/या व्यक्तिगत आरोपी द्वारा किया गया अत्युक्ति महत्वपूर्ण और/या प्रासंगिक नहीं होती है।

(ङ) आशिम बनाम राष्ट्रीय जांच एजेंसी : (2022)

1 एससीसी 695 में उच्चतम न्यायालय ने कहा है कि एक बार जब यह स्पष्ट हो जाये कि समयोचित विचारण संभव नहीं हो पायेगा और आरोपी कारागार में एक दीर्घ अवधि व्यतीत कर चुका है, तो न्यायालय आम तौर पर उसे जमानत पर छोड़ने के लिए बाध्य हो जाते हैं।

(च) आरोपी को जमानत पर रिहा करने का आधार मात्र इसलिए कि अभियोजन का मामला, परिस्थितिजन्य साक्ष्य पर आधारित है, नहीं हो सकता है, अगर जांच के दौरान साक्ष्य/तथ्य एकत्र किये गये हों और प्रथम दृष्टया घटनाओं की पूरा श्रृंखला स्थापित हो गई है। (देखें: ईश्वरजी नागाजी माली बनाम गुजरात राज्य और अन्य, 2022 एससीसी ऑनलाइन एससी 55)।

(छ) यह भी ध्यान रखा जाना चाहिए कि जमानत देने के लिए विधायिका ने "साक्ष्य" के स्थान पर "विश्वास करने के लिए उचित आधार" शब्दों का प्रयोग किया है, जिसका अर्थ है कि जमानत देने से संबंधित न्यायालय केवल इतनी संतुष्टि कर सकता है कि क्या आरोपी के खिलाफ कोई वास्तविक मामला है और अभियोजन पक्ष आरोप के समर्थन में प्रथम दृष्टया साक्ष्य पेश करने में सक्षम होगा। (देखें: प्रहलाद सिंह भाटी बनाम एनसीटी आफ दिल्ली और अन्य:(2001) 4 एससीसी 280)।

(ज) मुक्त न्याय का एक मौलिक आधार है, जिसके लिए हमारी न्यायिक प्रणाली प्रतिबद्ध है, कि वो कारक

(झ) जमानत के आवेदन पर आदेश पारित करते समय विस्तृत विवरण का उल्लेख, इस धारणा के नाते नहीं किया जा सकता है कि मामला ऐसा है, जिसके परिणामस्वरूप दोषसिद्धि हो सकती है या इसके विपरीत, दोषमुक्ति हो सकती है। हालांकि, जमानत के आवेदन पर निर्णय लेने वाला न्यायालय मामले के भौतिक पहलुओं से अपने निर्णय को पूरी तरह से अलग नहीं कर सकता, जैसे आरोपी के खिलाफ लगाए गए आरोप ; अगर आरोप यथोचित संदेह से परे साबित होते हैं और इसके परिणामस्वरूप दोषसिद्धि होती है तो सजा की कठोरता ; अभियुक्त द्वारा गवाहों को प्रभावित करने की उचित आशंका ; साक्ष्यों से छेड़छाड़ ; अभियोजन के मामले में निराधारता ; आरोपी का आपराधिक पूर्ववृत्त ; और आरोपी के विरुद्ध आरोप के समर्थन में न्यायालय की प्रथम दृष्टया संतुष्टि। (देखें: मनोज कुमार खोखर बनाम राजस्थान राज्य और अन्य (2022)3 एससीसी 501, दीपक यादव प्रति उत्तर प्रदेश राज्य व एक अन्य (2022)8 एससीसी 559)।

9. उपरोक्त तथ्यों की पृष्ठभूमि में यह विदित होता है कि प्रारम्भ में आवेदक और उसके पुत्र के अतिरिक्त और लोग भी अपराधी के रूप में नामित किये गये थे, परन्तु अन्वेषण के दौरान साक्ष्य के बयानों के आधार पर आरोपपत्र केवल वर्तमान आवेदक और उसके पुत्र के

10. केवल इस कारण कि प्रथम सूचना रिपोर्ट में ज्यादा व्यक्ति अपराधी के रूप में नामित किये गये हैं, सम्पूर्ण अभियोजन कथानक को झूठा नहीं करार दिया जा सकता। आवेदक के विद्वान अधिवक्ता का यह कथन कि वास्तविकता कुछ और अलग है, इस आधार पर विश्वसनीय नहीं मानी जा सकती क्योंकि मृतक के भाई द्वारा लिखायी गई प्रथम सूचना रिपोर्ट पर अन्वेषण के बाद अंतिम रिपोर्ट लगा दी गई है।

11. अतः आवेदक का घटना स्थल पर उपस्थित होना व उसके द्वारा अंधाधुन्ध गोली चलाना व जिसके कारण एक व्यक्ति की मृत्यु हो जाना एवं छह अन्य लोगों का घायल हो जाना को प्रथम दृष्टया असत्य मानने का कोई कारण नहीं है और यह देखते हुए कि यह एक संगीन अपराध है, अतः वाद के गुण-दोष को प्रभावित किये बगैर इस जमानत याचिका को निरस्त किया जाता है।

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Kaushal Jayendra Thaker, J.)

1. Present criminal appeal challenges judgment and order dated 17.04.1979 passed by the VIth Additional Sessions Judge, Fatehpur, in Sessions Trial No.287 of 1978, whereby the learned VIth Additional Sessions Judge, Fatehpur has convicted the accused-appellant, Ganga Ram for commission of offence under Section 302 of Indian Penal Code, 1860 (for short 'IPC') and sentenced him to life imprisonment.

2. Heard Sri Radheshyam Yadav, learned counsel for the accused-appellant and learned A.G.A. for the State.

3. Brief facts of the case are that the deceased, Bhanna @ Manna Yadav was the resident of village Budhramau, Police Station Asothar, District Fatehpur. The accused Ganga Ram is the son of elder brother of the deceased and their houses are adjacent to each other. On 7.4.1978, there was a quarrel between the deceased and the accused because the goat of the accused had entered in the field of the deceased and grazed the crop. On 08.04.1978, in the evening, deceased Bhanna was milking the buffaloes at the door of his House. His daughter, Km. Meena, the complainant/informant (P.W.-1) was also standing in front of the hutment of Islam and was talking to Sheo Bhajan (P.W.-3). Bhulli (P.W.-2), the nephew of the deceased was also sitting at the door of the deceased. All of sudden, the accused armed with a Pharsa came from his house and started attacking the deceased. On receiving the first blow, the deceased fell down on the ground and was further attacked by the accused. When he was almost dead, the accused left and ran away towards south of the village. Bhanna immediately died and his dead body was placed on a cot inside the Chaupal.

4. The F.I.R. was lodged at Police Station Asothar at about 11.00 P.M. on the same day against the accused on the oral report of the informant/P.W.-1, which was scribed by Ram Sajivan Upadhya (P.W.-7) and the investigation was carried out. On investigation being put into motion, Sri Sadanand Roy, the Investigation Officer recorded the statements of Km. Meena (P.W.-1), complainant/informant and other witnesses Bhulli (P.W.-2), who had accompanied the complainant/informant. The Investigating Officer arrived at the place of occurrence on the same night and started further investigation on 9.4.1978 at 6:00 A.M. The inquest report (Exh. Ka-2) was prepared and the dead body was sealed and sent for postmortem. The blood stained and plain earth (Exh. 4 and 5) were also collected and sealed and recovery memo (fard) (Exh. Ka-8) was prepared. At that very time, an information was received that the accused Ganga Ram was hiding in a Matth towards south of the village. The Investigating Officer accompanied with Kedar Prasad @ Lakkar and Tej Narain went there and arrested the accused. On the pointing out of the accused the Pharsa with which he had committed the murder, was recovered of which recovery memo was prepared and marked as Exhibit-Ka/9. The statement of the witnesses were recorded. The accused alongwith the Pharsa was brought to the police station and the F.I.R. (Exh. Ka-11) under Section 25 of the Arms Act was lodged.

5. On 28.05.1978, the statement of other eye-witness Sheo Bhajan (P.W.-2) was recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C.

6. The Investigation was completed and the charge-sheet (Exh. Ka.-12) came to be submitted against the accused-appellant.

7. After submission of the charge-sheet the concerned Magistrate took cognizance and on 18.12.1978, the case was committed to the court of Sessions as the offence alleged to have been committed were triable by the Sessions Court. On 16.03.1978 the learned Sessions Judge has framed the charges against the accused under Section 302 I.P.C.

The accused pleaded not guilty to the charge and demanded trial.

8. The trial started and the prosecution has examined seven witnesses, who are as follows:-

1	Km. Meena, the complainant, daughter of	PW1 deceased.

2	Bhulli (eye witness of the incident)	PW2
3	Sheo Bhajan (eye witness of the incident)	PW3
4	Kedar Prasad (witness of the arrest of the accused)	PW
5	Sadanand Roy (Investigating Officer)	PW5
6	Dr. M.M.S.A. Khan, who has conducted the post mortem and prepared the post mortem report.	PW6
7	Ram Sajiwan Upadhya, who has recorded the F.I.R. and also registered the case under Section 302 I.P.C.	PW7

9. In support of ocular version following documents were filed and proved:

1	First Information Report dated 08.04.1978	Ex.Ka.-1
2	Recovery memo of blood stained and plain earth dated 09.04.1978	Ex.Ka.-8
3	Recovery memo of 'Farsa' dated 09.04.1978	Ex. Ka.-9
4	Panchayatnama dated 09.04.1978	Ex.Ka.-2
5	Site plan with index dated 09.04.1978	Ex.Ka.-7
6	Site plan with index dated 09.04.1978	Ex. Ka.-10
7	Post Mortem Report dated 10.04.1978	Ex. Ka.-13

8	Report of Chemical Examiner & Serologist	Ex.Ka.-17
9	Affidavit of Maqsood Arif, dated 03.04.1979	Ex. Ka-19
10	Affidavit of Shiv Ratan Lal, dated 03.04.1979	Ex. Ka-21
11	Affidavit of Shyam Lal Yadav, dated 04.04.1979	Ex. Ka-18
12	Affidavit of Ram Ashcharya Pandey, dated 04.04.1979	Ex. Ka-20

10. The accused in his statement recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C. has denied to have committed the alleged offence. He has stated that he had gone to his sister's place on the previous evening and when he returned to his house, he found the dead body of the deceased. At that time, the Investigating Officer was also present, who brought him to the police station and falsely implicated him at the instance of the Pradhan of the village.

11. The trial court on the basis of evidence so led by the prosecution has found the guilt of the accused-appellant to have been proved beyond reasonable doubt after recording its finding that the injuries received by the deceased were caused by the accused-appellant and has convicted the accused-appellant and sentenced him to undergo life imprisonment for the offence punishable under Section 302 I.P.C. In fact Ganga Ram was an under trial prisoner during the period of trial and that is how he was incarcerated for 15 years and some months.

His counsel did not appear before the court and that is why the Court issued non-bailable warrant against him and since 27.01.2020 he has been languishing in jail.

12. The incident occurred in the year 1978.

13. The submission of the counsel that the informant is the daughter of the deceased and they were inimical to the accused. The evidence of P.W.-5 also would go to show that the appellant has been roped in the offence. In the statement recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C., the accused-appellant has stated that he has not committed any offence. The informant/P.W.-1 is the daughter of deceased and she has named the accused Ganga Ram to be the assailant and author of the crime when as a matter of fact the deceased was looking after him and was nurturing him. The statements of the accused-appellant under Section 313 Cr.P.C. have totally been ignored by the trial court while returning the impugned judgment of conviction. Accused-appellant, Ganga Ram, is now again in jail since 27.01.2020 after he was granted bail by this Court pursuant to his conviction, he was arrested as none appeared for him.

14. It is further submitted that prosecution has not established any motive for the accused to commit the murder of the deceased and it creates a reasonable doubt about the version of the prosecution.

15. It is further submitted that conviction under Section 302 IPC is not made out as no overt act as per Section 300 I.P.C. is made out. In alternative, it is submitted that at the most, the death event is homicidal death it would not amount to murder and would be punishable under Section 304 II or Section 304 I of I.P.C. If the Court decides that the accused is guilty under Section 302 of IPC, then the accused may be granted fixed term punishment of incarceration as it is not a gruesome act on the part of the accused.

16. Learned counsel for the State has submitted that there is no reason for false implication of the accused and the complainant had no motive to falsely implicate the accused. There is reliable oral testimony supported by the recovery of the weapon of assault at the instance of the accused, thus the argument that absence of motive creates a doubt about the version of the prosecution, has no legs to stand. Evidence of other prosecution witnesses will not permit this Court to show any leniency in the matter. It is further submitted by learned A.G.A. that the ingredients of Section 300 of IPC are rightly held to be made out by the learned Sessions Judge who has applied the law to the facts in case.

17. The post-mortem of the dead body of deceased Bhanna @ Manna Yadav was conducted by Dr. M.M.S.A. Khan, Medical Officer, District Hospital, Fatehpur on 10.04.1978 at about 2:15 P.M. The postmortem report Exh. Ka-13 was prepared and the following ante-mortem injuries were found on the body of the deceased:-

1. Abraded contusion 7.5 cm x 5 cm bones underneath fractured present over the left temporal region. 5 cms. Above the left ear, tissue shows extension of blood.

2. Abraded contusion 7.5 cm x 2.5 cm present over the right side of forehead. 1.25 cm above the right eye brow. Bones underneath fractured.

3. Incised wound 6.5 cm x 1.5 cm x bone deep present obliquely over the left cheek extending from 1.25 cm above the left angle of mouth upto the middle of left cheek. Margins clean cut, bones underneath clean cut, wound gaping.

4. Incised wound 5 cm x 1.5 cm x bone deep present 2.5 cm below the injury no.3 over the left chin.

5. Abraded contusion 5 cm x 3.5 cm present over the right side of face and over the nose, bones underneath fracture.

6. Incised wound 5 cm x 0.8cm x skin deep present over the left side of chest 7.5 cm above the left nipple. Margin clean cut.

7. Incised wound 10 cm x 0.8 cm x skin deep present obliquely over the outer scapular region. Margins clean cut."

18. In the opinion of the doctor, the deceased was aged about 50 years and the duration of injuries was about two days. On external examination the doctor found the following injuries:-

The deceased was of average built body. Rigor mortis was absent. Eyes were closed and mouth were also closed. Abdomen was distended and greenish discolouration was present at the iliac fossae.

19. While considering the evidence of P.W.1 to P.W.7 in cumulative nature, the death can be said to be homicidal death. Postmortem report goes to show that the injuries on the body of the deceased would be the cause of death and that it was homicidal death.

20. We are convinced that it was homicidal death but, it would be seen whether it is homicidal death punishable under Section 302 or Section 304 Part I or Part II of IPC?

21. It would be relevant to refer to Section 299 of the Indian Penal Code, which read as under:

"299. Culpable homicide: Whoever causes death by doing an act with the intention of causing death, or with the intention of causing such bodily injury as is likely to cause death, or with the knowledge that he is likely by such act to cause death, commits the offence of culpable homicide."

22. The academic distinction between 'murder' and 'culpable homicide not amounting to murder' has always vexed the Courts. The confusion is caused, if Courts loose sight of the true scope and meaning of the terms used by the legislature in these sections, and allow themselves to be drawn into minute abstractions. The safest way of approach to the interpretation and application of these provisions seems to be is to keep in focus the keywords used in the various clauses of Section 299 and 300 of I.P.Code. The following comparative table will be helpful in appreciating the points of distinction between the two offences.

A person commits culpable homicide if the act by which the death is caused is done-	Subject to certain exceptions culpable homicide is murder if the act by which the death is caused is done.

INTENTION

(a) with the intention of causing death; or	(1) with the intention of causing death; or
(b) with the intention of causing such bodily injury as is likely to cause death; or	(2) with the intention of causing such bodily injury as the offender knows to be likely to cause the death of the person to whom the harm is caused;

KNOWLEDGE	KNOWLEDGE
(c) with the knowledge that the act is likely to cause death.	(4) with the knowledge that the act is so immediately dangerous that it must in all probability cause death or such bodily injury as is likely to cause death, and without any excuse for incurring the risk of causing death or such injury as is mentioned above.

23. In latest decision in Khokhan@ Khokhan Vishwas v. State of Chattisgarh, 2021 LawSuit (SC) 80, where the facts were similar to this case, the Apex Court has allowed the appeal of the accused appellant and altered the sentence. The decision of the Apex Court in the case of Anversinh v. State of Gujarat, (2021) 3 SCC 12 which was related to kidnapping from legal guardian, wherein it was established that the Court while respecting the concerns of both society and victim, propounded that the twin principle of deterrence and correction would be served by reducing the period of incarceration already undergone by the accused. In our case, this is not that gruesome matter where the accused cannot be dealt with in light of all these judgments. Decisions in Pravat Chandra Mohanty v. State of Odisha, (2021) 3 SCC 529 & Pardeshiram v. State of M.P., (2021) 3 SCC 238 will also enure for the benefit of the accused.

24. On overall scrutiny of the facts and circumstances of the present case coupled with the opinion of the Medical Officer and considering the principle laid down by the Apex Court in the Case of Tukaram and Ors Vs. State of Maharashtra, reported in (2011) 4 SCC 250 and in the case of B.N. Kavatakar and Another Vs. State of Karnataka, reported in 1994 SUPP (1) SCC 304, we are of the considered opinion that it was a case of homicidal death not amounting to murder.

25. From the upshot of the aforesaid discussions, it appears that the death caused by the accused was not premeditated, accused though had knowledge and intention that his act would cause bodily harm to the deceased but did not want to do away with the deceased. Hence the instant case falls under the Exceptions 1 and 4 to Section 300 of IPC. While considering Section 299 as reproduced herein above offence committed will fall under Section 304 Part-I as per the observations of the Apex Court in Veeran and others Vs. State of M.P. Decided, (2011) 5 SCR 300 which have to be also kept in mind.

26. We come to the definite conclusion that the death was not premeditated. The precedents discussed by us would permit us to uphold our finding which we conclusively hold that the offence is not punishable under Section 302 of I.P.C. but is culpable homicide not amounting to murder, punishable U/s 304 (Part I) of I.P.C.

27. This takes us to the alternative submission of learned counsel for the appellant that the quantum of sentence is too harsh and requires to be modified. In this regard, we have to analyse the theory of punishment prevailing in India.

28. In Mohd. Giasuddin Vs. State of AP, [AIR 1977 SC 1926], explaining rehabilitary & reformative aspects in sentencing it has been observed by the Supreme Court:

"Crime is a pathological aberration. The criminal can ordinarily be redeemed and the state has to rehabilitate rather than avenge. The sub-culture that leads to ante-social behaviour has to be countered not by undue cruelty but by reculturization. Therefore, the focus of interest in penology is in the individual and the goal is salvaging him for the society. The infliction of harsh and savage punishment is thus a relic of past and regressive times. The human today vies sentencing as a process of reshaping a person who has deteriorated into criminality and the modern community has a primary stake in the rehabilitation of the offender as a means of a social defence. Hence a therapeutic, rather than an 'in terrorem' outlook should prevail in our criminal courts, since brutal incarceration of the person merely produces laceration of his mind. If you are to punish a man retributively, you must injure him. If you are to reform him, you must improve him and, men are not improved by injuries."

29. 'Proper Sentence' was explained in Deo Narain Mandal Vs. State of UP [(2004) 7 SCC 257] by observing that Sentence should not be either excessively harsh or ridiculously low. While determining the quantum of sentence, the court should bear in mind the 'principle of proportionality'. Sentence should be based on facts of a given case. Gravity of offence, manner of commission of crime, age and sex of accused should be taken into account. Discretion of Court in awarding sentence cannot be exercised arbitrarily or whimsically.

30. In Ravada Sasikala vs. State of A.P. AIR 2017 SC 1166, the Supreme Court

referred the judgments in Jameel vs State of UP [(2010) 12 SCC 532], Guru Basavraj vs State of Karnatak, [(2012) 8 SCC 734], Sumer Singh vs Surajbhan Singh, [(2014) 7 SCC 323], State of Punjab vs Bawa Singh, [(2015) 3 SCC 441], and Raj Bala vs State of Haryana, [(2016) 1 SCC 463] and has reiterated that, in operating the sentencing system, law should adopt corrective machinery or deterrence based on factual matrix. Facts and given circumstances in each case, nature of crime, manner in which it was planned and committed, motive for commission of crime, conduct of accused, nature of weapons used and all other attending circumstances are relevant facts which would enter into area of consideration. Further, undue sympathy in sentencing would do more harm to justice dispensations and would undermine the public confidence in the efficacy of law. It is the duty of every court to award proper sentence having regard to nature of offence and manner of its commission. The supreme court further said that courts must not only keep in view the right of victim of crime but also society at large. While considering imposition of appropriate punishment, the impact of crime on the society as a whole and rule of law needs to be balanced. The judicial trend in the country has been towards striking a balance between reform and punishment. The protection of society and stamping out criminal proclivity must be the object of law which can be achieved by imposing appropriate sentence on criminals and wrongdoers. Law, as a tool to maintain order and peace, should effectively meet challenges confronting the society, as society could not long endure and develop under serious threats of crime and disharmony. It is therefore, necessary to avoid undue leniency in imposition of sentence. Thus, the criminal justice jurisprudence adopted in the country is not retributive but reformatory and corrective. At the same time, undue harshness should also be avoided keeping in view the reformatory approach underlying in our criminal justice system.

31. Keeping in view the facts and circumstances of the case and also keeping in view criminal jurisprudence in our country which is reformatory and corrective and not retributive, this Court considers that no accused person is incapable of being reformed and therefore, all measures should be applied to give them an opportunity of reformation in order to bring them in the social stream.

32. As discussed above, 'reformatory theory of punishment' is to be adopted and for that reason, it is necessary to impose punishment keeping in view the 'doctrine of proportionality'. It appears from perusal of impugned judgment that sentence awarded by learned trial court for life term is very harsh keeping in view the entirety of facts and circumstances of the case and gravity of offence. Hon'ble Apex Court, as discussed above, has held that undue harshness should be avoided taking into account the reformatory approach underlying in criminal justice system.

We may also record that while going through the factual scenario the appellant cannot be said to have a motive or intention to do away with the deceased who was his relative. The motive is not spelt out from any of the evidence.

33. Therefore, on totality of the facts and circumstance and the oral testimony of the eye-witnesses coupled with the medical evidence permit us to convert the conviction of the accused-appellant from 302 I.P.C. to Section 304 Part-I I.P.C. The fact that the accused-appellant was incarcerated post trial after passing of the impugned judgment for more than 2 years and some months before he was ordered to be enlarged on bail on 05.02.1993 and thereafter he has been incarcerated in jail since 27.01.2020 after issuance of non-bailable warrant, meaning thereby the total period of incarceration of the accused-appellant is approximately four years now without remission. The incident is of the year 1978, the fact that the accused-appellant is of 75 years of age, the sentence is reduced to the period already undergone by the accused-appellant i.e. approximately four years with remission. Fine of Rs. 5000/- to be deposited within four weeks of release from incarceration. If fine is not deposited within four weeks he shall be enlarged in jail to undergo default sentences of three months.

34. In view of the above, this criminal appeal is partly allowed. Record and proceedings be sent back to the Court below forthwith.

35. Sri Radheshyam Yadav, learned Amicus Curiae has ably assisted this Court and would be entitled to his fee for a sum of Rs. 10,000/- from the High Court Legal Services Committee.

G.A.

A. Criminal Law - Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 - Section 374(2) - U.P. Gangster and Anti-Social (Prevention of Activities) Act, 1986 - Section 18 - The appellant has been falsely implicated due to enmity and the case under the Gangster Act was imposed upon and the property of the appellant was attached by the District Magistrate u/s 14(1) of the Act-Only on the basis of the police report, the District Magistrate has attached the property-the prosecution has failed to establish that the provisions of Sections 2 and 3 of the Act are attracted in the case of appellant, the prosecution has also failed to establish that the property acquired and owned by the appellant has been earned from the income indulging in anti-social activities-the enquiry u/s 16 was not done in accordance with the Act, the provisions of Sections 14, 15, 17 were also not followed in accordance with the Act-thus, the entire proceeding initiated in pursuance thereof is vitiated-Order of attachment was passed in mechanical manner without application of mind and is arbitrary.(Para 1 to 25)

B. In order to proceed u/s 14 there must be materials for objective determination of the District Magistrate that the person is either a member, leader or organizer of a gang and has acquired any property in commission of any offence under the Act. There must be nexus between his criminal act and the property acquired by him. His mere involvement in any offence is not sufficient to attach his property. Initial burden was upon the State to satisfy the District Magistrate with necessary materials-The Act does not provide that aggrieved person seeking release of the properties from attachment must prove the source of income for acquisition thereof. (Para 18)

The appeal is allowed. (E-6)

1. Pleadings in the case have been exchanged between the parties.

2. Heard Shri Sushil Kumar Misra, learned counsel for the appellant, Mrs. Kiran Singh, learned Additional Government Advocate-1 for the State and perused the material available on record.

3. The present appeal under Section 18 of U.P. Gangster and Anti Social (Prevention of Activities) Act, 1986 (hereinafter referred to as the 'Gangster Act') has been preferred by the appellant, namely, Waseem Khan with a prayer to quash the judgment and order dated 13.4.2022 passed by the District Magistrate, Lucknow/opposite party no.2 in Case No. 2850 of 2021 Computerized Case No. D202110460002850 (State Vs. Waseem Khan) under section 14(1) of the Gangster Act , whereby the District Magistrate, Lucknow attached the following property of the appellant including a new house situated in village Tirgawan, Tehsil Malihabad, District Lucknow with the finding that the appellant has purchased the house in question and land (immovable property) between 2012 to 2021 from the income earned by involving in anti social activities and the appellant has purchased the following properties without taking loan whereas the appellant has purchased the Scorpio and Pulsar Motor Cycle by taking loan.

4. The appellant has also prayed for quashing of the impugned judgment and order dated 5.1.2023 passed by the Additional District and Sessions Judge, Court No. 08/Special Judge, Gangster Act, Lucknow in Criminal Appeal No. 84 of 2022, Waseem Khan Vs. State of Uttar Pradesh and another, whereby the appellate court dismissed the appeal and decided the Criminal Misc. Case No. 735 of 2022 finally and confirmed the impugned order dated 13.04.2022 passed by the District Magistrate, Lucknow.

5. In short, the facts of the case are that initially, more than ten years ago, a

First Information Report dated 15.08.2012 was lodged by one Shri Suleman Beg son of Sikandar Beg, resident of village Daulatpur Malihabad, District Lucknow, which was registered as case crime no. 342 of 2012 under sections 147,307,325,504,506 IPC against six persons including the appellant alleging therein that a construction work was being done by the appellant on government land and being Village Pradhan, Suleman Beg restrained the appellant from constructing him the same. Thereafter First Information Reports were lodged against the appellant bearing case crime no. 535 of 2017 under sections 147,148,452,504,506 IPC and case crime no. 81 of 2019, under sections 406,323,506 IPC and case crime no. 551 of 2019 under sections 420,468,471,506,120-B IPC and case crime no. 24 of 2019 under sections 419,420,467,468,471 IPC and case crime no. 173 of 2021 under section 2/3 U.P. Gangster Act.

6. Learned counsel for the appellant submits that the appellant has been implicated in the aforesaid cases due to enmity and the case under the Gangster Act was imposed upon the appellant in the year 2021 whereas the property of the appellant which was attached vide order dated 13.4.2022 passed by the District Magistrate, Lucknow under section 14 (1) of U.P. Gangster Act, was acquired by the appellant much earlier to the imposition of Gangster Act upon him being ancestral property.

7. Elaborating the submissions, learned counsel for the appellant has submitted that the attached property, the reference of which is given above, was in fact ancestral property of the appellant.

8. Learned Counsel of the appellant further submitted that in furtherance of the FIR bearing Case Crime No. 173/2021 under section 2/3 U.P. Gangster Act, the District Magistrate, Lucknow-opposite party no.2 proceeded to exercise its power under Section 14(1) of the Gangster Act and passed an order for attaching the properties of the appellant on 13.4.2022.

9. Being aggrieved by the aforesaid attachment order dated 13.04.2022 passed by District Magistrate, Lucknow-opposite party no.2, representation dated 14.9.2021 was preferred by the appellant before opposite party no.2 under Section 15 (1) of the Gangster Act seeking release of the appellant's properties from attachment. However, the aforesaid representation was dismissed in a cursory manner by the District Magistrate, Lucknow/opposite party no.2 vide order dated 13.04.2022. While passing the impugned order dated 13.4.2022 the District Magistrate, Lucknow/opposite party no.2 referred the case to the learned Gangsters Court under Section 16 (1) of the Gangster Act in respect of properties which were not released by him; and, the learned Gangsters Court, thereafter, proceeded to pass the impugned order dated 05.01.2023 in exercise of its powers under Section 17 of the Gangster Act.

10. Learned counsel for the appellant further submitted that the District Magistrate, Lucknow/opposite party no. 2 has wrongly and incorrectly attached the immovable property and the house of the appellant on the wrong presumption that the said properties have been acquired from the income earned by the appellant by involving in anti social activities, whereas the appellant is neither Gangster nor he has earned these properties from involving in anti social activities.

11. Clarifying the position, it has been urged by the learned counsel for the appellant that as a matter of fact the appellant was doing business at Mumbai from 1997 to 2008 and used to send the money to his parents and from that money as well as the income of his father, a house was constructed of which electrical energy connection was taken in the year 1998. In the year 2008, he came back from Mumbai and apart from looking after the agriculture and groves farms he started selling building material shop in the name and style "M/s Hira Traders" from where he was selling Morang, Sariya, Sand and Cement and for running this business, he had obtained Tin Number and used to give income tax. It has also been submitted that a tax raid was also conducted at his business establishment. It has also been indicated that land of Khata No. 447, Gata No. 95 area 0.062 acres situated in village Moazzamnagar is recorded in the name of his father which even today is recorded in his name. The land of other gatas is his ancestral property and are recorded in the name of his father and not in his name. It has also been submitted by the learned counsel for the appellant that the house in question was constructed in village Tirgawan by the appellant in the year 1999 on the abadi land from the income earned by the business run by himself before imposition of Gangster Act upon him. In this regard, the appellant has submitted voter list of the year 1999 before court below and also the copies of receipts of electricity connection of the House taken on 31.7.1999 issued by Uttar Pradesh State Electricity Corporation bearing no. 551075/97/GSPL, Receipt No. 43 of Rs. 600/-, electricity bill of Rs. 10244/- of the house of November, 2002 issued by the Uttar Pradesh Corporation Limited and telephone bills of the house of dated 11.7.2003 of Rs. 442/-, 11.5.2003 of

Rs. 115/-, 11.3.2003 of Rs. 153/-, 11.01.2003 of Rs. 115/-, 11.09.2002 of Rs. 290/-, 11.07.2002 of Rs. 230/-, 11.5.2002 of Rs. 155/- and Annual Tax Statement under section 203AA of the Income Tax Act, 1961 of the Assessment Year 2009-10 of his House. The copies of receipts of the same are annexed as Annexure no.3 to this appeal. The aforesaid receipts fortify the fact that the appellant had purchased/constructed his house much earlier even when no criminal case was registered against him and even before imposing the Gangster Act upon him. However, the concerned authorities without considering all these relevant facts and documentary evidence, passed the impugned orders on wrong premise with oblique motive.

12. Learned counsel for the appellant further submitted that the learned trial court while passing the impugned order dated 13.04.2022, without properly perusing the contents of application and documents annexed with the release application has wrongly and incorrectly rejected the same by presuming that the property in question has been acquired by the appellant from the income earned by indulging in anti social activities without going through documentary evidence filed on behalf of appellant and wrongly interpreting that appellant has not filed any document to prove that the property in question has not been acquired from the income earned by indulging in anti social activities. Thus the trial court erred in law while rejecting the application of appellant for release of property in question. The learned counsel submits that the appellant had given the complete detail of the immovable property including the house which has been attached vide order dated 13.4.2022 by the District Magistrate, Lucknow.

13. Learned counsel for the appellant further submits that the impugned order dated 13.4.2022 passed by the District Magistrate, Lucknow does not reveal that the District Magistrate, Lucknow had “reason of believe” that the property in question was acquired by the appellant as a commission of an offence under the Gangster Act rather the aforesaid order is passed on mere suspicion, surmises and conjectures and the appellate court has also passed the order dated 5.1.2023 in cursory manner without analysing the documents of the appellant. Thus both the impugned orders are not sustainable in the eye of law.

14. Per contra, Mrs. Kiran Singh, learned AGA-1, has argued that the learned appellate court has correctly appreciated the material on record before passing the impugned order. The District Magistrate, Lucknow has passed the impugned order dated 13.04.2022 after being fully satisfied that appellant has acquired the property in question by illegal means involving himself in anti social activities as defined under the Gangster Act, as such there is no illegality, infirmity or perversity in the impugned orders. Moreover, the competent authority has passed the order after considering the report of the Superintendent of Police (Rural Area) as also the report of Station House Officer, Mall and as such it is wrong to say that the impugned order of attachment passed by the competent authority suffers from infirmities.

15. Learned AGA-1 has further submitted that the learned trial court pointed out that the appellant was also not able to show the source of income from which the appellant has acquired the properties attached by the learned District Magistrate, Lucknow. The learned trial court also pointed out that when the vehicle of the appellant i.e., Scorpio Car and Pulsar Motorcycle were purchased by the appellant on loan then from what source of income has the appellant purchased the land without loan, which was seized by the District Magistrate. Thus the learned courts below after considering the entire material including the documentary evidence available on record have passed the impugned orders in correct perspectives and they need no interference.

16. I have heard learned counsel for the appellant, learned AGA-1 for the opposite parties and gone through the impugned orders passed by the courts below.

17. It seems to be just and expedient to refer to the relevant provisions of the Gangster Act which are as under :-

"2. Definitions- In this Act,- (a) "Code" means the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973;

18. The issue involved in the present case may be resolved with the help of the consideration of provisions of sections 14, 15 and 17 of the Gangsters Act, which read as under:

“14. Attachment of property.”-(1) If the District Magistrate has reason to believe that any property, whether movable or immovable, in possession of any person has been acquired by a gangster as a result of the commission of an offence triable under this Act, he may order attachment of such property whether or not cognizance of such offence has been taken by any Court.

(2) The provisions of the Code shall mutatis mutandis apply to every such attachment.

(3) Notwithstanding the provisions of the Code the District Magistrate may appoint an Administrator of any property attached under sub-section (1) and the Administrator shall have all the powers to administer such property in the best interest thereof.

(4) The District Magistrate may provide police help to the Administrator for proper and effective administration of such property.

15. Release of property .- (1) Where any property is attached under Section 14, the claimant thereof may, within three months from the date of knowledge of such attachment, make a representation to the District Magistrate showing the circumstances in and the sources by which such property was acquired by him.

(2) If the District Magistrate is satisfied about the genuineness of the claim made under sub-section (1) he shall forthwith release the property from attachment and thereupon such property shall be made over to the claimant.

16. Inquiry into the character of acquisition of property by court .-

(1) Where no representation is made within the period specified in sub-section

(1) of Section 15 or the District Magistrate does not release the property under sub-section (2) of Section 15 he shall refer the matter with his report to the Court having jurisdiction to try an offence under this Act.

(2) Where the District Magistrate has refused to attach any property under sub-section (1) of Section 14 or has ordered for release of any property under sub-section (2) of Section 15, the State Government or any person aggrieved by such refusal or release may make an application to the Court referred to in sub-section (1) for inquiry as to whether the property was acquired by or as a result of the commission of an offence triable under this Act. Such court may, if it considers necessary or expedient in the interest of justice so to do, order attachment of such property.

(3) (a) On receipt of the reference under sub-section (1) or an application under sub-section (2), the Court shall fix a date for inquiry and give notices thereof to the person making the application under sub-section (2) or, as the case may be, to the person making the representation under Section 15 and to the State Government, and also to any other person whose interest appears to be involved in the case.

(b) On the date so fixed or on any subsequent date to which the inquiry may be adjourned, the Court shall hear the parties, receive evidence produced by them, take such further evidence as it considers necessary, decide whether the property was acquired by a gangster as a result of the commission of an offence triable under this Act and shall pass such order under Section 17 as may be just and necessary in the circumstances of the case.

(4) For the purpose of inquiry under sub-section (3), the Court shall have the power of a Civil Court while trying a suit under the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 (Act No. V of 1908), in respect of the following matters, namely:

(a) summoning and enforcing the attendance of any person and examining him on oath ;

(b) requiring the discovery and production of documents;

(c) receiving evidence on affidavits;

(d) requisitioning any public record or copy thereof from any court or office ;

(e) issuing commission for examination of witnesses or documents;

(f) dismissing a reference for default or deciding it ex parte;

(g) setting aside an order of dismissal for default or ex parte decision.

(5) In any proceedings under this section, the burden of proving that the property in question or any part thereof was not acquired by a gangster as a result of the commission of any offence triable under this Act, shall be on the person claiming the property, anything to the contrary contained in the Indian Evidence Act, 1872 (Act No. 1 of 1872), notwithstanding.

17. Order after inquiry.- If upon such inquiry the Court finds that the property was not acquired by a gangster as a result of the commission of any offence triable under this Act it shall order for release of the property of the person from whose possession it was attached. In any other case the Court may make such order as it thinks fit for the disposal of the property by attachment, confiscation or delivery to any person entitled to the possession thereof, or otherwise."

19. It is now well settled that property being made subject matter of an attachment under Section 14 of the Act must have been acquired by a gangster and that too by commission of an offence triable under the Act. The District Magistrate has to record its satisfaction on this point. The satisfaction of the District Magistrate is not open to challenge in any appeal. Only a representation is provided for before the District Magistrate himself under Section 15 of the Act and in case he refuses to release the property on such representation, in that case the person aggrieved has to make a reference to the Court having jurisdiction to try an offence under the Act. The Court, while dealing with the reference made under sub-section (2) of Section 15 of the Act has to see whether the property was acquired by a gangster as a result of commission of an offence triable under the Act and has to enter into the question and record his own finding on the basis of the inquiry held by him under Section 16 of the Act. If the Court comes to the conclusion that the property was not acquired by the gangster as a result of commission of an offence triable under the Act, the Court shall order for release of the property in favour of the person from whose possession it was attached.

The object behind providing the power of judicial scrutiny under Section 16 of the Code is to check arbitrary exercise of power by the District

Magistrate in depriving a person of his property and to restore the rule of law, therefore a heavy duty lies upon the Court to hold a formal enquiry to find out the truth with regard to the question, whether the property was acquired by or as a result of the commission of an offence triable under the Act. The order to be passed under Section 17 of the Act must disclose reasons and the evidence in support of finding of the Court. The Court is not empowered to act as a post office or mouthpiece of the State or the District Magistrate. If a person has no criminal history during the period the property was acquired by him, how the property can be held to be a property acquired by or as a result of commission of an offence triable under the Act is a pivotal question which has to be answered by the Court. Besides, the aforesaid question, the other important question to be considered by the Court is whether the property which was acquired prior to the registration of the case against the accused under the Act or prior to the registration of the first case of the Gangster chart can be attached by District Magistrate under Section 14 of the Act.

The provisions of Section 14 of the Act, referred to above, empowers the District Magistrate to attach the property acquired by the Gangster as a result of commission of an offence triable under this Act. The District Magistrate may appoint an Administrator of any property attached, to administer such property in the best interest thereof but there must be reason to believe that any property whether moveable or immovable in possession of any person, has been acquired by a Gangster as a result of commission of an offence, triable under this Act but the District Magistrate in its order has not recorded his satisfaction having reason to believe with regard to the property attached that it was acquired by appellant as a result of commission of an offence triable under Gangster Act, even though while deciding the reference under Section 16 of the Act, the court below does not appreciate the evidence and in a mechanical manner passed the impugned order relying upon the observations made by the District Magistrate which is illegal and an unjustified approach.

20. A Coordinate Bench of this Court in the case of Smt. Maina Devi versus State of U.P. 2013(83) ACC 902 in paras-8, 9 and 10 has been pleased to held as under:-

“8. Considering the facts, circumstances of the case, submissions made by the learned Counsel for the appellant and the learned A.G.A. and from the perusal of the record it appears that the issue involved in the present case may be resolved with the help of the consideration of the provisions of section 14, 15 and 17 of the Gangsters Act, which read as under:

15. Release of property.—(1) Where any property is attached under section 14, the claimant thereof may within three months from the date of knowledge of such attachment make a representation to the District Magistrate showing the circumstances in and the sources by which such property was acquired by him.

(2) If the District Magistrate is satisfied about the genuineness of the claim made under sub-section (1) he shall forthwith release the property from attachment and thereupon such property shall be made over to the claimant.

17. Order after inquiry—If upon such inquiry the Court finds that the property was not acquired by a gangster as a result of the commission of any offence triable

under this Act it shall order for release of the property of the person from whose possession it was attached. In any other case the Court may make such order as it thinks fit for the disposal of the property by attachment, confiscation or delivery to any person entitled to the possession thereof, or otherwise.

9. In light of above mentioned provisions of the Gangster Act the District Magistrate is empowered to attach movable or immovable properties in possession of any person acquired by a gangster as a result of the commission of an offence triable under this Act. But for exercising such powers there must be the reason to believe to the District Magistrate that such property was acquired by a gangster as a result of the commission of an offence triable under this Act. The words reason to believe are stronger than the word "satisfied", it must be passed on reasons which are relevant and material. In the present case, from the perusal of the lower Court record it appears that only on the basis of the police report submitted by the officer incharge of P.S. Sarai Lak-hansi, District Mau, the District Magistrate, Mau has attached two houses of the appellant, no material was supplied to the District Magistrate to have a reason to believe that the property in question was acquired by the gangster Raj Bahadur Singh as a result of commission of an offence triable under this Act. It vitiates the subjective satisfaction of the District Magistrate also. The learned District Magistrate was having no material in support of the police report that both the houses of the appellant were acquired by his son Raj Bahadur Singh. The learned District Magistrate rejected the application under section 15 of the Gangsters Act moved by the appellant for releasing the attached houses. The application was moved well within the time, the application was a representation to the District Magistrate, Mau, it was having all the details disclosing the sources by which both the houses were acquired by the appellant. But learned District Magistrate did not consider the sources disclosed by the appellant and rejected the application vide order dated 29.12.2008. The explanation of all the sources by which the appellant acquired the houses has not been properly considered. Therefore, impugned order dated 29.12.2008 has become illegal. The learned Special Judge (Gangsters Act), Azamgarh rejected the application moved by the appellant under section 17 of the Gangsters Act without considering the provisions of the section 14 of the Gangsters Act and the 'relevancy of the reasons' recorded by the District Magistrate to believe that both the attached houses were acquired by a gangster Raj Bahadur Singh son of the appellant as a result of commission of an offence triable under this Act. The order dated 17.3.2009 passed by learned Special Judge (Gangsters Act)/Additional Sessions Judge, Azamgarh in Criminal Misc. Application No. 2 of 2009 is also illegal.

10. In view of the above discussion, the order passed by District Magistrate, Mau under section 14(1) of the Gangsters Act attaching two houses of the appellant the order dated 29.12.2008 passed by District Magistrate, Mau by which the application under section 15(1)(2) of the Gangster Act has been rejected and the order dated 17.3.2009 passed by learned Special Judge (Gangster Act), Additional Sessions Judge, Azamgarh in Criminal Misc. Application No. 2 of 2009 are illegal, the same are hereby set aside and the District Magistrate, Mau is hereby directed to release both the houses No. 204-D/8 and 205-D/9 situated in Mohalla Chandmari,

21. Further, another Coordinate Bench of this Court in the case of Smt. Shanti Devi wife of Sri Ram versus State of U.P. 2007(2) ALJ 483 (All) in paras-9, 10 and 11 has been pleased to held as under:-

“9. The conjoint reading of these sections shows that first it has to be proved that gangster or any person on his behalf is or has been in possession of the property, and such property has been acquired by the commission of any offence triable under this Act, only then the District Magistrate acquires jurisdiction to proceed in the matter and to attach the property. Only when the initial burden is discharged, the onus shifts to the gangster or such person, to account for the same satisfactorily. But if it is found that the concerned person was not a gangster and did not acquire the property in commission of any offence triable under this Act, it has to be released as provided in Section 17. In other words the initial burden is on the prosecution to show that the concerned person is a gangster and has acquired property on account of his criminal activity as triable under the Act.

10. Therefore, in order to proceed under section 14 there must be materials for objective determination of the District Magistrate that the person is either a member, leader or organiser of a gang and has acquired any property in commission of any offence under the Act. There must be a nexus between his criminal acts as enumerated therein and the property acquired by him. His mere involvement in any offence is not sufficient to attach his property. In other words what is necessary to find is whether, his acquisition of property was a result of commission of any offence enumerated in the Act being a member, leader or organiser of a gang. One might have committed several offences but if the property acquired by him was with the aid of his earning from legal resources no action under Section 14 of the Act can be taken against him.

11. In the case of Badan Singh alias Baddo v. State of U.P., 2002 Cri LJ 1392 : 2001 All LJ 2852 it has been held by this Court that Section 14 of the Act is a harsh provision that affects one's right to property, which is a fundamental right under the Constitution. Therefore, initial burden was upon the State to satisfy the District Magistrate with necessary materials that a gangster acquired the properties as a result of commission of any offence. It has also been held in this case that the Act does not provide that the aggrieved person seeking release of the properties from attachment must prove the source of income for acquisition thereof.”

22. Further, another Coordinate Bench of this Court in the case of Rajbir Singh Tyagi Vs State of U.P. and Others 2018 SCC Online AII 5986 in paras 16 and 18 has been pleased to held as under:-

“ 16. A conjoint reading of the aforesaid two definitions what appears is that for taking action under Section 14 against a person, there must be materials for objective determination of the District Magistrate that he either as a member, leader or organizer of a gang acquired any property as a result of commission of any offence under the Act. There must be nexus between his criminal act and the property acquired by him. His mere involvement in any offence is not sufficient to attach his property. In other words, what is necessary to find is whether his acquisition of property was as a result of commission of any offence enumerated in the Act being a member, leader or organizer of a gang. One might have committed several offences, but if the property acquired by him was with the aid of his earning from legal source, no action under Section 14 of the Act can be taken against him.

18. Section 14 of the Act is a harsh provision that affects one's right to property which is a constitutional right under the Constitution. Therefore, initial burden was upon the State to satisfy the District Magistrate with necessary materials that petitioner Rajbir Singh Tyagi being a gangster acquired the properties as a result of commission of any offence. That was however, not done. So, complaining the attachment order to be illegal, a move was made by the petitioners by filing a representation for release of the properties. The said prayer was rejected with the observation that the petitioners could not establish the source of income to build the house and acquire the movables. This approach of the District Magistrate, in my opinion, has no sanction under law. The Act does not provide that aggrieved person seeking release of the properties from attachment must prove the source of income for acquisition thereof. So, on a conspectus of the relevant provisions of the Act, I am of the considered opinion that the order of attachment passed by the District Magistrate, Muzaffar Nagar is illegal, arbitrary and against the weight of the materials on record."

23. Keeping in view the aforesaid settled proposition of law and the judgments rendered by this Court in the case of Smt. Maina Devi versus State of U.P. 2013(83) ACC 902 and Smt. Shanti Devi wife of Sri Ram versus State of U.P. 2007(2) ALJ 483 (All), and Rajbir Singh

Tyagi Vs State of U.P. and Others 2018 SCC Online AII 5986, this Court is of the view that the properties, which were attached, were acquired by the appellant with the aid of his earning from legal resources and not by commission of any offence triable under the Act as it is settled law that the properties being made subject matter of attachment under Section 14 of the Act must have been acquired by a gangster and that too by commission of an offence triable under the Act and also the impugned orders were not passed on reasons which are relevant and material. In the present case from the perusal of the impugned order dated 13.4.2022 and record it appears that only on the basis of the police report, the District Magistrate has attached the property in question, no material was supplied to the District Magistrate to have reasons to believe that the property in question was acquired by the gangster the present appellant as a result of commission of any offence triable under this Act. It vitiates the subjective satisfaction of the District Magistrate also from the record. It appears that the District Magistrate has no material in support of the police report that the property in question was acquired by the present appellant being gangster even though the proceedings were not followed as per the provisions of the Act. It appears that the appellant was having enough source of income from his business at Mumbai as well as at his native place, from which the appellant had acquired the properties and even the properties were acquired by the appellant much prior to the registration of criminal cases and imposition of Gangster Act, which was invoked in the year 2021 and the impugned order of attachment was passed in mechanical manner without application of mind and is arbitrary. Thus the impugned order dated 13.04.2022 passed by the District Magistrate, Lucknow and the impugned order dated 5.1.2023 passed by the Additional Session Judge, Court No.8/Special Judge, Gangsters Act, Lucknow are illegal and the same are liable to be quashed.

24. In view of above facts and circumstances of the case, the impugned orders passed by the courts below cannot be said to be passed in correct perspectives as they are not sustainable in the eye of law and require interference by this Court, the prosecution has failed to establish that the provisions of Sections 2 and 3 of the Gangster Act are attracted in the case of appellant, and further the appellant's property is also not attached in accordance with law, as the prosecution has failed to establish that the property in question acquired and owned by the appellant has been earned from the income indulging in anti social activities. The enquiry under Section 16 was not done in accordance with the Act, the provisions of Sections 14, 15 & 17 were also not followed in accordance with the Act, thus the entire proceeding initiated in pursuance thereof is vitiated.

25. Accordingly, the present appeal is allowed. The impugned order dated 13.04.2022 passed by the District Magistrate, Lucknow in Case No. 2850 of 2021 Computerized Case No. D202110460002850 (State Vs. Waseem Khan) under section 14(1) of Gangster Act and the impugned order dated 5.1.2023 passed by the Additional District and Sessions Judge/Special Judge, Court No. 8/Special Judge, Gangster Act, Lucknow in Criminal Appeal No. 84 of 2022 (Waseem Khan Vs. State of Uttar Pradesh and another) and Criminal Misc. Case No. 735 of 2022 (State of U.P. Vs. Waseem Khan) are hereby quashed.

The District Magistrate, Lucknow/opposite party no.2 is directed to release all the properties of the appellant attached vide order dated 13.04.2022 in favour of appellant, forthwith.

No order as to costs.

A. Criminal Law - The Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, 1989 - Section 14A(1) - Indian Penal Code, 1860 - Sections 147, 323, 326-A, 504 and 3(1)X SC/ST Act-Challenge to –summoning order u/s 3(1)X SC/ST Act-Apex Court held in very clear words that hurling abuses naming the caste in the public place or at the place of public view, would only constitute an offence under SC/ST Act unless it is established, the trial court has to judicially scrutinize the factum that whether the words spoken are in the public view or public place-In the instant case, on cry of the family members of the complainant , the village persons reached inside the house and they saw that the accused persons are beating and hurling abuses to the family members inside the house which is admittedly not a public place-

Thus, the learned trial court did not apply its judicial mind while issuing the summons against the applicants u/s 3(1)X of SC/ST Act-Resultantly, summoning order is set aside to the extent of issuance of summons u/s 3(1)X of the SC/ST Act.(Para 1 to 18)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Shree Prakash Singh, J.)

(1.) Heard Shri Sameer Singh, Advocate assisted by Shri Shashank Singh, learned Counsel for the appellants, Shri Anirudh Kumar Singh, learned A.G.A.-I for the State.

(2.) This criminal appeal under Section 14A(1) of the Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, 1989 has been filed with a prayer to quash the summoning order dated 04.02.2023 under Section 147, 323, 326-A, 504 of IPC and 3(1)X SC/ST Act, 1989 arising out of Complaint Case No. 118 of 2019 (Jagannath Vs. Sitaram & Ors.) pending before the learned Special Judge, SC/ST Act, Ambedkar Nagar and the entire criminal proceedings arising out of the aforementioned complaint case.

(3.) Learned Counsel appearing for the appellants submit that the appellants are innocent and have falsely been implicated in the instant matter. He submits that the First Information Report was lodged on 09.01.2017 and thereafter, the Investigating Officer conducted investigation and found no material against the appellant so far as the allegations leveled in the First Information Report is concerned and thus the final report was submitted on 05.07.2017. On such final report, the complainant filed the protest application on 06.06.2018 and the same was treated as a complaint case and the Magistrate and learned trial Court has recorded the statement of the complainant as well as the witnesses under Section 200 & 202 of the Cr.P.C. He has drawn attention of this Court towards the protest application, which reveals that the allegation is regarding the fact that the accused persons attacked over the injured as well as other family members and thereafter, they entered into the house of the complainant and have beaten and poured certain inflammable substance over the son of the complainant and as a result, he got burnt.

(4.) The contention of the Counsel for the complainant is that along with other sections of the IPC, the Magistrate has summoned the appellants under Section 3(1)X of the SC/ST Act. He has further drawn attention of this Court towards the statement of the complainant, which has been annexed on Page - 100 and has referred that the complainant himself has stated before the trial Court that the incident took place inside of the house and after hue and cry of the complainant, the village people came over there and the appellants were rescued. He further submits that the learned trial Court has ignored the fact that the incident did not take place in public view and therefore, the summons under Section 3(1)X of the SC/ST Act could not have been issued against the appellants.

(5.) In support of his contention, he has placed reliance on a judgment reported in (2020) 10 SCC 710; Hitesh Verma Vs. State of Uttarakhand & Anr.; and has referred Paragraphs 14, 17 & 18 of the said case. Paragraphs 14, 17 & 18 of the judgment are quoted hereunder:-

"14. Another key ingredient of the provision is insult or intimidation in 'any place within public view'. What is to be regarded as 'place in public view' had come up for consideration before this Court in the judgment reported as Swaran Singh V. State. The Court had drawn distinction between the expression 'public place' and 'in any place within public view'. It was held that if an offence is committed outside the building e.g. in a lawn outside a house, and the lawn can be seen by someone from the road or lane outside the boundary wall, then the lawn would certainly be a place within the public view. On the contrary, if the remark is made inside a building, but some members of the public are there (not merely relatives or friends) then it would not be an offence since it is not in the public view. The Court held as under:

"28. It has been alleged in the FIR that Vinod Nagar, the first informant, was insulted by Appellants 2 and 3 (by calling him a 'chamar') when he stood near the car which was parked at the gate of the premises. In our opinion, this was certainly a place within public view, since the gate of a house is certainly a place within public view, since the gate of a house is certainly a place within public view. It could have been a different matter had the alleged offence been committed inside a building, and also was not in the public view. However, if the offence is committed outside the building e.g. in a lawn outside a house, and the lawn can be seen by someone from the road or lane outside the boundary wall, the lawn would certainly be a place within the public view. Also, even if the remark is made inside a building, but some members of the public are there (not merely relatives or friends) then also it would be an offence since it is in the public view. We must, therefore, not confuse the expression 'place within public view' with the expression 'public place'. A place can be a private place but yet within the public view. On the other hand, a public place would ordinarily mean a place which is owned or leased by the Government or the municipality (or other local body) or gaon sabha or an instrumentality of the State, and not by private persons or private bodies."

17. In another judgment reported as Khuman Singh V. State of M.P., this Court held that in a case for applicability of Section 3(2)(v) of the Act, the fact that the deceased belonged to Scheduled Caste would not be enough to inflict enhanced punishment. This Court held that there was nothing to suggest that the offence was committed by the appellant only because the deceased belonged to Scheduled Caste. The Court held as under:-

"15. As held by the Supreme Court, the offence must be such so as to attract the offence under Section 3(2)(v) of the Act. The offence must have been committed against the person on the ground that such person is a member of Scheduled Caste and Scheduled Tribe. In the present case, the fact that the deceased was belonging to 'Khangar' Scheduled Caste is not disputed. There is no evidence to show that the offence was committed only on the ground that the victim was a member of the Scheduled Caste and therefore, the conviction of the appellant-accused under Section 3(2)(v) of the Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act is not sustainable." 18. Therefore, offence under the Act is not established merely on the fact that the informant is a member of Scheduled Caste unless there is an intention to humiliate a member of Scheduled Caste or Scheduled Tribe for the reason that the victim belongs to such caste. In the present case, the parties are litigating over possession of the land. The allegation of hurling abuses is against a person who claims title over the property. If such person happens to be a Scheduled Caste, the offence under Section 3(1)(r) of the Act is not made out.

(6.) Relying upon the aforesaid judgment, he submits that the Apex Court has drawn distinction between the expression "public place" "and in any place within public view" and it has been held that if an offence is committed outside the building etc. or in the lawn, outside a house and the lawn can be seen by someone from the road or a lane outside the boundary wall, then the lawn would certainly be a place within public view and thus it is borne out from the aforesaid ratio that so far as the offences under SC/ST Act is concerned, that is to be scrutinized on the aforesaid test.

(7.) He has also placed reliance on the judgment rendered in Writ Petition (Crl.) No. 1593 of 2006 & Criminal M.A. No. 6859 of 2006; Ashwani Kumar Vs. State & Anr.; and has referred paragraph 9 & 17 of the judgment. Paragraph 9 & 17 of the said judgment is quoted herein below:-

" 9. Proposition of law thus is clear. Simply because Section 3(1)X of SC/ST Act finds mention in the FIR by itself cannot be a ground to conclude that prima facie an offence under the along said Section of SC/ST Act has been made out. Judicial scrutiny of the documents in suchlike cases is permissible to evaluate whether the material relied upon by the prosecution revealed the existence of basic ingredients of the offence or not. For that limited purpose, the Court can sift and weigh the material placed before it, before examining the question whether on the allegations made in the FIR, prima facie any offence under Section 3(1)X of SC/ST Act is made out.

....17. Expression "public" is a polymorphous word which has different meanings, which is used as noun or as an adjective. As noun, "public" means a body of people at large; the community at large, without reference to the geographical limits of any corporation like a city, town or country, the people; the whole body politics, or all the citizens of the state. In other words, the word public does not mean all the people or most of the people nor very many of the people of a place, but so many of them as contradistinguishes them from a few. Therefore, public means inhabitants of a particular place, may be all or few or the people of the neighbourhood. As an adjective, 'public' would have meaning upon the subjects to which it is applied. SC/ST Act has been enacted with a view to protect a weaker section of the society from various kinds of atrocities that might be perpetrated against SC/STs which find enumeration in Section 3 of the SC/ST Act as constituting an offence. Court has to keep in mind that offence under the SC/ST Act are quite grave and provide stringent punishment and therefore, stronger proof is required. Court has to adopt an interpretation which suppresses or evades the mischief which might have been played and advances the object of the Act. Therefore, 'public view' appearing in Section 3(1)X of SC/ST Act has to be interpreted to mean the presence of the public persons, however small may be, and those persons are independent and impartial and not interested in any of the parties. In other words, persons having any kind of close relationship or association with the complainant have to be excluded from the definition of 'public view'."

(8.) Referring the aforesaid judgment, he added that simply because Section of SC/ST Act finds mention in the FIR, it cannot be a ground to reach at conclusion that, prima facie, an offence is made out but the judicial scrutiny of the documents in such like cases is required to evaluate, whether the material relied upon by the prosecution reveals the existence of the basic ingredients of the offence or not?

(9.) He also contends that bare reading of the order passed by the trial Court, which is impugned with this appeal, is evident that merely on the basis of the assertion and without scrutinizing the evidence, the same has been passed. The complainant himself has stated that certain people attacked over the house and after cry of the family members, the village persons came there and thus, the ingredients of Section 3(1)X do not attract. Concluding his arguments, he added that even the statement of the complainant is also evident that the incident has taken place inside of the house which is neither public place nor place with public view, and, therefore, the order dated 04.02.2023 is without the application of judicial mind and considering the law enunciated by the Apex Court, the same may be set aside.

(10.) On the other hand, learned Counsel appearing for the complainant has vehemently opposed the contentions aforesaid and submits that the statement has been recorded by the trial Court under Sections 200 & 202 of Cr.P.C. which clearly shows that the offence has been committed by the appellants and whereby, the trial Court considering the same has issued the summon under Section 3(1)X of SC/ST Act along with Sections 147, 323, 326A & 504 of IPC. He has drawn attention of this Court towards the impugned order and submits that the trial Court has considered the statement of the complainant as well as the witnesses under Sections 200 & 202 of Cr.P.C. respectively and also given its finding and thus, the summoning order, issued against the appellants, do not assail any infirmity and erroneous and, therefore, the instant appeal has no merit and is liable to be dismissed.

(11.) Per Contra, learned A.G.A. appearing for the State has also controverted the contention of Counsel for the appellants and added that after recording the statement of the complainant and the witnesses, the order has been passed thereby giving the reasonings and, thus, no interference is warranted.

(12.) Having heard learned Counsel for the parties and after perusal of the material placed on record, it transpires that initially the FIR was lodged on 09.01.2017 against the appellants and after investigation, when it was found by the investigating officer that there is no substantive material or evidence against the appellants, the final report was submitted and when the protest application was filed on 06.06.2018, the Magistrate, treating the same as a complaint case, has recorded the statements of the complainant as well as the witnesses and issued summons under Section 3(1)X of SC/ST Act including other sections of IPC.

(13.) When this Court examines the statement of the complainant, it reveals that the complainant himself had admitted that the incident had taken place inside of the house and it has been further stated that the accused persons came and attacked over the house and entered into the same and started beating and on the cry of family members, the village persons came over there and thus, prima facie, there seems to be no evidence with respect to the fact that certain other persons were there than the family members who have seen or heard the incident and thus, prima facie the alleged occurrence cannot said to be happened in public place or place within public view?

(14.) This Court has also considered the ratio of the judgment of Apex Court rendered in the case of Hitesh Verma (Supra), which clearly says that if the incident took place outside the area of the house or in the lawn but unless that access is within of the public, the same cannot be said to be happened at public view or public place. The reliance has also been placed on a judgment rendered in the case of Ashwani Kumar (Supra) wherein it has been held that only mentioning the sections of SC/ST Act cannot be a ground to conclude committal of an offence under the aforesaid Act, unless the judicial scrutiny is done.

(15.) After the aforesaid submissions and discussions, it emerges that Hon'ble the Apex Court has held in very clear words that hurling abuses naming the caste in the public place or at the place of public view, would only constitute an offence under SC/ST Act and unless it is established, no criminal proceeding can go on in such cases and for reaching on the conclusion, the trial Court has to judicially scrutinize the factum that whether the words spoken are in the public view or public place. So far as the present case is concerned, on cry of the family members of the complainant, the village persons reached and they saw that the accused persons are beating the family members though the abuses were hurled inside of the house, which is admittedly not a public place.

(16.) Considering the aforesaid submissions and discussions, it is decipherable that the learned trial Court did not apply its judicial mind while issuing the summons against the applicants under Section 3(1)X of the SC/ST Act. Resultantly, the summoning order dated 04.02.2023 is set aside to the extent of issuance of summons under Section 3(1)X of the SC/ST Act.

(17.) It is directed that the trial Court shall proceed accordingly.

(18.) The appeal is hereby partly allowed with the aforesaid observations.

Accused Gaurav Sharma @ Sonu and Gautam Sharma have also been sentenced to rigorous imprisonment for seven years alongwith fine of Rs.5,000/- each, coupled with a default sentence of six months, under Section 25 Arms Act. All the sentences are directed to run concurrently.

2. The prosecution case is based upon a written report (Ex.Ka.1) of the informant (PW-2), who happens to be the wife of the deceased, as per which, the maternal brother of her husband ,namely Gautam and Gaurav, sons of Parasuram Sharma, came to her house and talked to her husband for taking him to Surendra Nagar, near Awas Vikas, whereafter her husband informed that he is going with Gaurav and Gautam and would return soon. Amount running into lacs were due and payable to informant's husband by these two persons (Gaurav and Gautam). When the husband of PW-2 did not return, the informant got anxious and asked her brother-in-law (PW-1) to go to Surendra Nagar and look for him. PW-1, accordingly, left for Surendra Nagar where the accused Gautam, Gaurav and Uttam sons of Parasuram Sharma and Sandeep Bhardwaj and Ankit Bhardwaj, brother-in-law of Gaurav, were assaulting her husband with iron-rods. PW-1 raised an alarm, whereafter the aforesaid accused fired on her husband and fled. PW-1 had seen the assailants who killed her husband and, therefore, a report be lodged. On the basis of this information a first information report came to be lodged under Sections 147/148/149/302 as Case Crime No. 22 of 2013.

3. Investigating Officer proceeded to the spot and collected plain and bloodstained sand, grits, etc. which were kept in separate boxes and sealed vide recovery memo marked as Ex.Ka-4. The Investigating Officer also recovered a 315 bore empty and bloodstained flat bullet which were sealed vide recovery memo marked as Ex.Ka.5. The police also recovered from the spot the Scooty belonging to deceased bearing Registration No. UP-20 J-3492 and Glasses with golden frame, mobile, a receipt of water tax and silver anklet which were sealed vide recovery memo marked as Ex.Ka-6.

4. On the date of incident itself the accused Gautam was arrested. He confessed his guilt and took the police to the place where he had hidden the weapon of assault. He took out a 315 bore tamancha from the bushes on the Bairaj Road, nearly 40 steps from the bridge. The recovered firearm was opened and a 315 bore live cartridge was found in the barrel. A memo of recovery of tamancha was consequently prepared vide Ex.Ka.9. On the basis of such recovery of firearm another first information report (Ex.Ka.17) came to be lodged as Case Crime No. 142 of 2013, under Section 25 of the Arms Act at 15.30 pm on the date of incident.

5. Yet another FIR was lodged at Kotwali Sadar, Bijnor on 13.1.2013 at 18.05 PM in respect of the alleged incident of the same day at 4.15 PM, wherein on the pointing out of the accused Gaurav Sharma a firearm with empty stuck in the barrel was recovered from the shrubbery in a dry canal. Recovery memo has also been prepared of this 315 bore tamancha (Ex.Ka.7) which allegedly was used by the accused for firing on the deceased. Smell of gun powder in the barrel was found.

6. Inquest was conducted on 12.1.2013 (Ex.Ka-10), wherein the time for commencement of inquest proceeding contains an overwriting to make it 19.30. There is also a clear overwriting on the time of completion of panchayatnama to make it look 20.30 hours on 12.1.2013. 12. PW-1 is the sole eye-witness in this case, who happens to be the brother of the deceased. He knows all the accused out of whom Gaurav, Gautam and Uttam are his maternal brothers and accused Sandeep and Ankit are the brother-in-law of accused Gaurav. This witness claims that he had come to the shop of his brother at around 4.45 pm on the date of incident. The shop and the residence of the deceased is one and the same. While he was at the shop (situated on the ground floor) PW-2 came down stairs and informed him that the deceased had left alongwith accused Gaurav and Gautam at about 4.00 to Patel Nagar and have not returned so far. She asked him (PW-1) to go and see for him. PW-1 stated that he immediately came to Surendra Nagar and saw that his brother (deceased-Chandra Kant Atrey) was being assaulted by accused Uttam, Sandeep, Ankit, Gaurav and Gautam with iron-rod. The assault was in newly constructed house situated in Surendra Nagar. Sand, Grit, etc., were lying on the floor. PW-1 claims to have raised an alarm on which the accused Gautam and Gaurav fired on Chandra Kant Atrey due to which he fell and died instantly. The accused fled from Surendra Nagar towards Awas Vikas. PW-1 returned and informed of the incident to his sister-in-law, who lodged the report at the police station. As per PW-1 his brother had given money on loan. Huge amount was taken as loan. A house at Awas Vikas was given to live on which accused had their possession. For this reason PW-2 was fearful of going with the accused. The incident of murder has also been committed for this reason. This witness claims to have gone to the place of incident alongwith Investigating Officer from where he took bloodstained and plain sand and grits. Empty and a bloodstained flat bullet had been recovered from the place of occurrence. Signatures of PW-1 were obtained on the memos of recovery. Memo of recovery has also been prepared in respect of the recovered Activa, Glasses, etc. Accused Sandeep and Ankit claims to have absconded for long and had also extended threats to settle the matter or they too would be sent to the place of the deceased, in respect of which an NCR No. 71/2013 was got registered on 12.3.2013.

In the cross examination PW-1 has stated that his brother indulged in work of giving and taking loan. Business of the deceased included giving loans to public. 10-20 people were given loan and the witness did not know whether any security in the form of land or gold etc. were kept by the deceased for disbursing loans. He is not aware whether deceased had any fight with Dr. Prashant in respect of the shop situated in Civil Lines. PW-1 claims that he is not aware of litigation pending between the deceased with others. Deceased had a mobile but he does not remember his phone number. PW-2 also had a mobile on which PW-1 used to talk. Before leaving for Surendra Nagar, PW-1 did not inquire about the location of deceased on his phone number. He had also not asked PW-2 to contact him on phone. PW-1 was also not informed by PW-2 whether she had tried to contact her husband on phone. He has denied the suggestion that he was called later by PW-2 by calling on his mobile. The witness also claimed ignorance about the fact that the deceased had bought a house from accused Gaurav and the details of payments were maintained or not. PW-1 lives at a distance of 2 and half kilometer from the house of the deceased. The incident occurred at a distance of 2 kilometers. There is a police beat near the place of incident namely Bega Kala. There is also a police beat on the way from his house to the place of occurrence. He claims to have come straight to the police station but later said that he went via his home. He narrated the entire incident to PW-2. Statement of PW-1 was recorded by the Investigating Officer after fifteen days of the incident. It is stated that he saw all five accused assaulting the deceased with iron-rod (sariya). The entire incident occurred within 1-2 minutes and he neither tried to intervene nor tried to apprehend the accused. He had also not thrown grits at the accused. He also did not take his brother to the doctor since his skull had opened and he died on the spot. He also did not take the dead body with him. He did not touch the dead body and, therefore, question of blood clots appearing on his clothes did not arise. As per this witness two fires were shot. The road near the place of occurrence goes from the north to south. Towards the west which was the place of occurrence. Construction was going on in a house and mason and labours were working inside but none of them came out. He later stated that the house of incident was 5-7 steps away from the road. He further stated that the place of incident is the road which is nearby the house. This witness has been confronted with his previous statement under Section 161 Cr.P.C. wherein he had disclosed that the accused were assaulting the deceased with iron-rod in a new house and that if such facts have been written by the Investigating Officer then they are wrong. He also claims to have gone to the place of occurrence with the Investigating Officer. He had shown the place of occurrence on the west side of the road going north to south. He cannot explain if any other place is shown as the place of occurrence. His brother's scooter had fallen and he left the dead body in the contact of the persons who were present at the spot but he does not remember the name of any of those persons nor was he known to them. There is no independent witness of the incident from nearby the place of occurrence. He stated that the accused had placed the tamancha on the temple of deceased and fired from close range. Similarly the other fire was shot near the back of the deceased by placing the tamancha on the body of the deceased. This witness has admitted that there had been complaints but he is not aware of criminal case launched against his brother. However, he knew that he had remained in Jail for two months. There are various cases relating to landed property. The deceased had a shop of submersible pump which he used to open at 10.00 and then closed 3-4 pm. The witness later stated that he used to close the shop at 6.00 pm. There were servants in the shop but none of them had been sent to locate the deceased. His brother had left at about 4.00 whereas he had gone to locate him at quarter to 5.00. This witness has denied the suggestion that he had not seen the incident and that the dead body of the deceased was found later and a false case has been set up to implicate the accused.

13. PW-2 is the wife of the deceased. She has stated her husband called her that at 4.00 pm. House and shop of deceased is at one place. Shop is on the ground floor whereas the house is on the first floor. On hearing the call of the deceased she came on the balcony and saw that accused Gaurav and Gautam were standing with her husband. Husband of PW-2 (deceased) informed that he is going with Gaurav and Gautam to Awasthi Vikas Surendra Nagar. These persons are taking him to Surendra Nagar and that he is going with them. The deceased left alongwith the accused Gaurav and Gautam. PW-2 claims that she got engaged with domestic work. She was concerned and was loitering around in the balcony. She saw that her brother-in-law PW-1 was at the shop. PW-2 then came down the stairs to the shop and informed PW-1 that the deceased had gone with Gaurav and Gautam to Surendra Nagar and has not returned and, therefore, he may go in search of him. PW-1 left and later informed that her husband was shot dead by the accused. Written report of the incident was got scribed by her Nandoi Dhananjay Awasthi on which she signed.

The written report has accordingly been proved and she has explained the relationship. She has stated that there was outstanding loan of lacs of rupees of deceased on the accused Gaurav and Gautam and that is why they have killed her husband. Whenever her husband used to go with accused Gaurav and Gautam she used to fear of any fight and as the deceased has left with them, therefore, she was disturbed and had asked PW-1 to search him out. After the death of her husband she received a cheque dated 16.1.2013 of Rs. 5,60,000/- signed by Gaurav Bhardwaj payable at Axis Bank which has been produced during her cross examination and marked as Exhibit 1.

PW-2 has been cross examined. She has explained the location of her house and the shop. On the date of incident her husband had called her and when she came out her husband told that Gaurav and Gautam are with him and are taking him to Surendra Nagar. After saying this the deceased left with them. The deceased had not stated anything else. She denied the suggestion that there is no house above the shop. Behind the shop there is a godown above which is her house where she used to reside. There is a small balcony on the east. She has denied the suggestion that the shop is not visible from the balcony. Her husband had told her that he is going with the accused to Awas Vikas Surendra Nagar. In the report is mentioned as Awas Vikas near Surendra Nagar. The witness is not aware whether Awas Vikas and Surendra Nagar are two separate and distinct localities and there are residential houses between the two colonies. She has denied having bought any house from Gaurav in Shalini Enclave. She does not know anyone with the name Archana. Anita Sharma is her Nanad (husband's sister) and that she has not purchased any house with Anita from Gaurav, rather house was purchased from Abhijit. This house is in Shalini Enclave. She is not aware whether Shalini Enclave falls between Surendra Nagar and Awas Vikas. This witness has denied the suggestion that she had to pay some money to Gaurav and he has been implicated so as to avoid payment of balance amount.

There is no enmity between accused and her husband. Her husband was not involved in property business but from time to time used to purchase plots and in case of need used to sell them. Her husband was not involved in money lending business. On the date of incident her husband had gone at 4.00. She had not started his search till quarter to 5.00. She informed PW-1 that her husband has been taken by the accused and she fears of some fight between them and, therefore, he may visit him while going back home.

PW-2 in his further cross-examination has stated that on hearing news of murder she came first to police station and thereafter came to Surendra Nagar. PW-1 had informed at about 05.15 – 05.30 that her husband has been done to death. She had not asked PW-1 to scribe the report as he had seen the incident and that she may go to her husband. She also does not remember as to who brought Dhananjay. She had not gone near the dead body with police but came to stay with PW-1 by when the police already arrived. She has denied the suggestion that she had no gone to Surendra Nagar as the dead body was not there. She has also denied the suggestion that the first information to her was that of her husband's body was lying in the mortuary.

PW-2 has admitted that there were several litigations going on between her husband and other persons. These cases were in respect of agricultural land. She has agricultural land in village Rasoolpur. She has further not aware about cases pending with Kadwa son of Kisan. She was also not aware that there are 8-10 cases of deceased with Ramesh son of Buddha. She knew doctor Prashant who is neighbour and with whom case was pending for vacating the shop. He husband also had litigation for the last 27 years in respect of a house with a boy of Annapurna Hotel. She denied the suggestion that her husband had relations with other ladies and that the police visited her house in this connection. She denied that at the time of occurrence there was no PNT Landline number in her house and shop. PW-2 has further stated that she has no written proof of the fact that loan of lacs of rupees was due from the accused Gaurav and Gautam. She was also not aware of any witness of this transaction. She also denied the suggestion that the story of loan is narrated on legal advise. Cheque (paper no.37ka) was not filled in her presence. He husband died on 12.01.2013 and the date on the cheque is of 16.01.2013. She had not informed the police after receiving of cheque. She is not aware as to who had filled the cheque or who had signed it. This witness has denied the suggestion that on legal advise she has produced cheque with forged signatures. She was not aware about bank passbook and cheque book of Gaurav got lost in respect of which newspaper item was published on 20.06.2012. This witness has further admitted that there is a SRS Mall near his house. She has three daughters and a son. She has denied that she had gone to SRS Mall to watch a movie between 3 PM to 6 PM. She also denied the fact that the incident of murder of deceased was intimated to her while she was seeing the movie.

14. PW-3 is friend of the deceased. He has stated that while he was returning through Avas Vikas he met the five accused who were armed with country made pistol (tamancha) and iron rod and were in perplexed state and were running away by saying that they have finished the person. This witness enquired from them as to what happened on which the accused asked him to be concern with his own work. In the cross-examination PW-3 has admitted that he has no document to show that he is a contractor or that his version going to office was incorrect since 12.01.2013 was a second Saturday. PW-1 is his closest friend. He informed PW-1 of what he saw 15-16 days after the incident and that he had not disclosed him about it earlier. His statement was recorded after 18 days. This witness is an accused of a case under section 302 IPC. He has denied the suggestion that he had not seen anything but giving a false statement.

15. PW-4 has stated that on 21.01.2013 he was at Moradabad in the house of his brother-in-law (Sadu) where the accused came and confessed their offence. The accused also stated that he would vacate the house and would honestly return the amount.

16. PW-5 to PW-14 are the formal witnesses and, therefore, their statements shall be referred as and when require.

17. The prosecution relies upon following evidence to implicate the accused appellants:-

(i) The oral testimony of PW-1 as eye witness to the incident of assault and murder of the deceased;

(ii) Testimony of PW-2 who has lastly seen the deceased in the company of accused Gaurav and Gautam with whom the deceased left and later the news arrived of his brutal murder;

(iii) The recovery of two firearms and iron rod on the pointing out of the accused as well as the FSL report on the strength on which the prosecution alleges that implication of accused appellants in the matter is clearly established;

(iv) The testimony of PW-3 and PW-4 who have seen the accused in perplexed state soon after the incident and the alleged admission of the accused of their committed the offence so that the matter be amicably resolved.

18. The evidence on the above counts have been taken note of by the court below in order to return a finding of guilt against the accused appellants. The existence of motive; ocular testimony of PW-1; ocular testimony of last seen of first informant and the recovery of weapon of assault are primarily the circumstances which have been factored in by the court below in order to return a finding of guilt beyond reasonable doubt.

19. The judgment of conviction and sentence is challenged by the accused appellants, who contend that they are innocent and have been falsely implicated in the matter. The defence contends that in fact an unknown dead body was found and was deposited in the mortuary by Constable 1516 Amit Kumar, in respect of which relevant entries were made in the relevant registers and such information was also sent to concerned police station. It is alleged that these entries have subsequently been scored off and no other incident was reported around the same time. It is thus alleged that police papers were manipulated to give different colour to the incident in connivance with the prosecution witnesses so as to falsely implicate the accused appellants and that none has seen the incident and the unknown body found was that of the deceased. The defence has further setup a case that in fact PW-2 had gone with her children to see a movie and it was at the theater that information about murder of the deceased was received by her. Newspaper report dated 13.01.2013 has been brought on record in order to substantiate it. The defence has, therefore, questioned all facets of prosecution story in order to contend that the accused appellants have been falsely implicated.

20. Sri Vimlendu Tripathi, learned counsel for the accused appellants submits that PW-1 was neither present at the spot nor has he seen the incident. This contention relies upon the following circumstances: (a) statement of PW-1 was recorded after 15 days of the incident; (b) PW-1 has not lodged the report nor is he witness to the inquest and, therefore, his presence at the place of occurrence is highly doubtful; (c) the conduct of PW-1 in not making any attempts to save the deceased or to rush in hospital or even lodging a report are the circumstances which creates a doubt on his presence and; (d) there are numerous cuttings in the police papers as also the register to show that police papers were manipulated and the signatures on the recovery of empties from spot are fabricated. It is also pointed out that the FIR has been sent to magistrate after a week.

21. The second limb of argument essentially questions the testimony of PW-2, who is alleged to have lastly seen the two accused taking the deceased. It is urged that the shop of deceased was on the ground floor and was not visible from first floor of the house, which was situated after the open field behind the shop. It is urged that in fact PW-2 was at the SRS Mall seeing a movie and her presence in the house is not proved. The testimony of PW-2 is impeached on various other factual aspects also.

22. Countering the evidence relating to recovery of firearms and empties, it is urged that the flat bullet found at the place of occurrence has not matched with the recovered tamancha. It is also urged that there is no independent witness of recovery and the report of FSL cannot be read as a corroborative piece of evidence to implicate the accused appellants.

23. It is lastly urged on behalf of the accused appellants that the testimony of PW-3 and PW-4 are wholly unreliable and cannot constitute any basis for implication of the accused appellants in the matter. It is argued that the testimonies produced by the prosecution are of interested witnesses and though existence of independent persons at the place of occurrence is admitted, yet none of them is produced, which questions the prosecution story.

24. On behalf of the prosecution and the informant the contentions are strongly opposed and it urged by Sri V. M. Zaidi, learned Senior Counsel for the informant alongwith Sri Ambar Khanna and learned A.G.A. for the State that the prosecution evidence is trustworthy and reliable and, therefore, the court below has rightly convicted and sentenced the accused appellants. It is further argued that there is no reason to falsely implicate the maternal brother in the offence and, therefore, the appeal lacks merit.

25. We have heard learned counsel for the parties and perused the record of appeals as well as original records of court below.

26. Prosecution on the strength of testimonies of witnesses as also documentary evidences has attempted to establish that the deceased has been assaulted and shot dead by the accused appellants, in prosecution of their common object as members of unlawful assembly, since they owed huge amount of money to him which they wanted to avoid repaying. The court below has analysed the evidence on record to come to the conclusion that prosecution has established its case beyond reasonable doubt. We, therefore, are required to examine as to whether the prosecution has succeeded in proving its case beyond reasonable doubt and the conclusion of court below is sustainable or not? We are also required to examine as to whether sentence awarded by the court below to the accused appellants commensurates with the guilt established on their part?

27. The evidence on record goes to show that the deceased was assaulted and shot dead. The postmortem report dated 31.01.2013 has been proved by the Autopsy Surgeon Dr. Bhojraj Singh (PW-5). There is a gunshot wound of entry of 2cm x 2cm on the left side of skull with corners inverted with corresponding gunshot wound of exit of 6cm x 2cm, 12cm below the ear. The second gunshot wound of entry is on the left side of the waist of size 5cm x 2cm. In addition to the above two gunshot injury the injury nos.3 and 4 are lacerated wound and injury nos.5 and 6 are traumatic swelling. A flat bullet is recovered from the stomach of the deceased and his seventh and eighth ribs were found fractured. The left lung was also lacerated. The inquest report (panchayatnama- Ex.Ka.10) also shows that the body of deceased Chandra Kant Attrey was found on his activa scooty in front of an under-construction house. Gunshot injury was noticed on the head of the deceased as also on his back and his ribs were found fractured. The inquest witnesses opined that the deceased died on account of ante-mortem injuries sustained by him. The evidence on record, therefore, conclusively proves that the deceased died a homicidal death.

28. The prosecution evidence to implicate the accused appellants is primarily three fold. (i) Ocular testimony of PW-1, who allegedly has seen the incident; (ii) ocular testimony of the first informant (PW-2) who lastly saw the deceased going alongwith accused Gaurav and Gautam and soon thereafter the dead body was found and; (iii) the recovery of firearm on the pointing out of the accused Gaurav and Gautam as well as FSL report connecting empty cartridge found at the place of occurrence with the recovered firearm. We shall now take up the abovenoted prosecution evidence, one by one.

29. PW-1 is the sole eye witness of the occurrence. He is the real brother of the deceased and is thus a related witness. He claims to have come to the shop of deceased at about 04.45 PM on the date of occurrence and his sister-in-law (PW-2) came downstairs after seeing him at the shop and informed him that the accused Gaurav and Gautam had taken his brother to Patel Nagar at about 04.00 PM and has not returned. Informant, therefore, asked PW-1 to go and look for his brother. PW-1 claims that he immediately came to Surendra Nagar and saw the accused assaulting his brother with iron rods. In the examination-in-chief PW-1 has stated that his brother was being assaulted in an under-construction new house at Surendra Nagar. Grit, sand etc. were lying nearby. He claims that when he raised alarm the accused shot at his brother and he died. The accused then fled from Surendra Nagar to Avas Vikas Colony.

30. The testimony of PW-1 has been carefully examined by us and we find following aspects intriguing in it i.e. (a) PW-1 is the brother of deceased and although he was present at the place of occurrence but neither he tried to save his brother nor made any attempt to rush him to a hospital or a doctor. Though it is settled that there is no fixed norm of the manner in which the witness may react and people may react differently, in such circumstance, but some resistance is expected on part of PW-1 on seeing his brother being assaulted. Attempt to take the injured to the hospital or to a doctor is ordinarily expected even if chances of survival of injured are bleak; (b) PW-1 neither touched the body of his brother lying on his scooty nor called anyone for help and left the body on the spot in care of others present on the spot without even knowing their identity so as to ensure the safety of corpse; (c) interestingly, PW-1 admits that he crossed the police station and allegedly halted there but did not lodge any police report. Being the real brother of the deceased the least that was expected of PW-1 was that he would lodge a report with the police of the incident and not doing so renders his conduct open to suspicion; (d) PW-1 is not even a witness of inquest though he claims to have seen the incident and was available at the spot. The defence argument questioning the presence itself of PW-1, at the place of occurrence, finds some support from such omission of PW-1 in important events; (e) the presence of PW-1 at the place of occurrence is seriously questioned on the ground that though he is the solitary eye witness of the incident yet his statement was not recorded on the date of incident by the police or on the next day but was recorded by the Investigating Officer after 15 days of the occurrence. There is absolutely no justification put forth by the Investigator for such inordinate delay in recording of statement of PW-1 under section 161 Cr.P.C.; (f) PW-1 in his examination in chief has specified the place of occurrence as the under-construction house whereas in his cross-examination PW-1 has stated that the place of occurrence is towards the end of road on the western side. He has been specifically confronted on this aspect during cross and his explanation that he had not made such disclosure in the examination in chief is not convincing; (g) the place of occurrence disclosed to Investigating Officer as per PW-1 is on the west of north-south road whereas the site plan shows the incident on north side of east-west road. This also is a ground to generate suspicion on the veracity of the witness; (h) PW-1 has denied having stated in his examination-in-chief that he saw the accused assaulting his brother with iron rod inside the under-construction house. He has also denied knowing name of any of the person who arrived at the place of occurrence though he was familiar with them and; (i) PW-1 has categorically stated that the accused fired on the deceased by placing the firearm on his head and the other accused placed the firearm on his back. However, the postmortem report does not show any blackening or charring on the deceased, which is expected when one is shot from such close distance. The argument of Sri Zaidi and Sri Khanna that blackening did not occur as the deceased was wearing several layers of clothes does not appeal to us, as the clothes worn by the deceased were not on the head but even there also the blackening and charring was missing. We have our doubts whether blackening and charring could otherwise be extinguished on account of wearing of clothes. This aspect also raises a doubt on the presence of PW-1 at the place of occurrence or his having seen the incident.

Learned counsel for the parties have addressed us at length on the above aspects with reference to various case laws on the point. We have given our thoughtful consideration to the above aspects and we find substance in the argument of appellants' counsel Sri Vimlendu Tripathi that it would not be safe to place reliance upon the testimony of PW-1, particularly as he is an interested witness and his conduct is not found natural on many counts. This witness otherwise does not have clean antecedents as he had been to jail. He is facing various cases also. His testimony therefore requires a careful scrutiny. Viewed in the above background the delay of 15 days in recording of his statement, despite him being the sole eye witness is troubling. The fact that he neither lodged the FIR though being the closest male relative of the deceased nor is the witness of inquest and his statement that gunshots were fired by placing the firearm on the deceased without any blackening and charring shown in the postmortem report remains unexplained by the prosecution even before us. His conduct otherwise is not found natural on several counts, as noticed above. We are thus not persuaded to accept the testimony of PW-1 as being a credible and reliable evidence to implicate the accused appellants.

31. PW-2 is the first informant and is the wife of deceased. Her testimony shows that she was informed by the deceased that he is going with accused Gaurav and Gautam. It was in her presence that her husband left with the accused Gaurav and Gautam. She got concerned after her husband did not return for long and she was moving in the balcony awaiting arrival of her husband. She saw that PW-1 had come to the shop and she came downstairs and asked him to go and look for his brother. Her testimony is primarily challenged on two counts; (a) that she was not present as she had gone to see a movie in SRS Mall and; (b) her house is away from the shop and is not in line of sight such that it is not possible for anyone to see the front of shop or the persons standing or coming to the shop.

32. So far as the defence argument of PW-2 having gone to see a movie is concerned, reliance is placed upon a local newspaper which has been produced by the defence and is marked as paper no.Kha-107 This newspaper report does refer to the incident in question and records that information of the incident was given to PW-2 while she was in the movie theater. Law is settled that newspaper report cannot be used as a piece of primary evidence and the fact mentioned therein will have to be independently proved on the strength of evidence led by the parties. We have examined the evidence and except for some suggestions given to the PW-2 or hearsay information of Investigating Officer there is no evidence on record to show that either PW-1 was seen in the movie theater by anyone or any ticket etc. has been produced to prove that she was watching 3 pm to 6 pm show. We are, therefore, not impressed by the defence argument that PW-2 was not present at her house at around 4 pm and hence could not have seen the arrival of accused Gaurav and Gautam on her shop or the fact that her husband left with them to Surendra Nagar. The defence argument, in that regard, is thus rejected.

33. PW-2 has stated that there is an open area of 2-3 meter between her shop and the road. She claims that her husband called her and when she came out her husband told her that Gaurav and Gautam are standing with him and are taking him to Surendra Nagar. Her version is challenged on the ground that there is no house above the shop and that the front of shop is not visible from the balcony on the house situated on the first floor. PW-2 has been specifically confronted during her cross examination on this aspect and her testimony, in this regard, is reproduced hereinafter:-

“मेरी दुकान 21 फिट लम्बी व 8 फुट चौड़ी है। इस दुकान में मेरे पति समरसेबिल पम्प का काम करते थे इस दुकान के अन्दर भी बैठते थे और कभी धूप में बाहर बैठते थे।

दुकान के अन्दर का एक दरवाजा है। दुकान के पीछे खाली मैदान है। जहाँ सामान पड़ा रहता है। उसके पीछे गोदाम है उसमें एक तहखाना है। इस गोदाम के ऊपर मेरा रिहायशी मकान है जिसमें मैं उस समय रहती थी। इस मकान में एक छोटा सा छज्जा पूर्व की तरफ है और कोई छज्जा नहीं है।

यह कहना गलत है कि उस छज्जे से दुकान के बाहर न दिखायी देता हो और दुकान का मैन गेट दिखायी न देता हो।”

34. The above statement clearly goes to show that ,as per PW-2, the submersible pump shop of deceased was narrow i.e. 8 ft. wide and long i.e. 21 ft. This shop had a door inside after which there was an open field where goods were kept. There exists a godown thereafter, having a basement, above which is the residence of PW-2. There is a small balcony on the east of the house. As per PW-2 she saw the two accused with the deceased in front of the shop from her balcony and it from there only that her husband informed her that he is going with the two accused. It is from here that she also saw the arrival of PW-1 at the shop.

35. The question for our consideration is as to whether it was possible for PW-2 to have seen the deceased leaving with the two accused, from her balcony or the arrival of PW-1 at the shop etc.

36. PW-2 has admitted that her shop is 21 ft. long whereafter there exists open field to be followed with a godown above which exists her residence. There is no site plan prepared by the Investigating Officer of the shop or the godown or residence of PW-2. We are, therefore, required to visualize from the evidence on record as to whether PW-2 could have seen her husband standing with the two accused or leaving with them.

37. The residence of PW-2 is not above the shop. After the 21 ft. long shop there exists an open field. Size of this field is not specified but the use of expression 'open field' in normal parlance does suggest that it is not a very small area. It is after this open field that there exists a godown above which is the house of PW-2. The locality appears to be urbanized and structures around the shop are expected. It is not shown that the shop is not surrounded by any structures on either sides. The house on the first floor of godown situates after the open field after which situates the 21 ft. long shop. We find it difficult to accept that someone from the balcony of the house could see the front of the shop despite the obstructions in the form of constructed shop etc.

38. 4 PM in the month of January, in a market area, is generally a busy place. We do not find it convincing to believe that someone would shout from the front of his shop to inform his wife that he is standing with Gaurav and Gautam or that they are taking him to Surendra Nagar, particularly as we are not convinced that the balcony is in the straight line of sight from the front of shop.

39. PW-2 claims that her husband left at around 4 PM and did not return till 4.45 PM. This delay of 45 minutes is not unusually long. The deceased and PW-2 both had mobile phones on which PW-2 could have talked to her husband to ascertain his well being. However, PW-2 admits that she did not call her husband on the mobile. There were servants in the shop who are not produced and were also not sent to look for the deceased.

40. PW-2 similarly states that she saw PW-1 standing in front of the shop from the balcony. As we have already observed that balcony in the house on the first floor is not in straight line of sight from the front of shop as such the statement of PW-2 that she saw PW-1 arriving at the shop and so she came downstairs also does not appear to be convincing.

41. PW-2 although has claimed that the accused Gaurav and Gautam owed lacs of rupees to her husband but no details in that regard have been furnished during trial. PW-2 has also admitted that there is no witness to such monetary transactions. The only material to show the financial transaction is a cheque allegedly found in the shop, date 16.01.2013, of Rs.5,60,000/- signed by accused Gaurav Bhardwaj. It is not shown as to why and how a cheque of subsequent date would be issued by the accused or could reach the shop of the deceased. The ink used on the cheque is different and the cheque has also not been given to the police nor the Investigating Officer was informed about it. It is only at the stage of trial that this cheque has been produced for the first time. The manner in which this cheque has been produced raises more questions than what it answers.

42. PW-2 has also admitted that her husband was facing multiple litigation with regard to property disputes. Following passage from her statement is relevant and is extracted hereinafter:-

“मेरे पति व कुछ लोगों के बीच दीवानी के मुकदमें चल रहे हैं। यह मुकदमे मेरी खेती की जमीन की बावत चल रहे हैं। रसूलपुर गाँव में भी हमारी खेती की जमीन है। मुझे नहीं मालूम है कि कड़वा एस/ओ किशन से मुकदमा है या नहीं। मुझे जानकारी नहीं है कि रमेश एस/ओ बुद्ध से 8-10 मुकदमे हैं डा० प्रशान्त को जानती हूँ पड़ोस में रहते हैं। काफी समय प्रशान्त दुकान खाली कराने का मुकदमा चला था। अन्नापूर्ण होटल वाले के लडके से मेरे पति की मुकदमे बाजी 27 सालों की पुरानी है जो एक मकान को लेकर है। यह कहना बिल्कुल गलत है कि मेरे पति का औरतों से सम्बन्ध हो। यह कहना भी बिल्कुल गलत है कि पुलिस इस सम्बन्ध में मेरे घर आई हो।”

43. The testimony of PW-2 otherwise goes to show that the deceased had bought and sold various properties and disputes with different persons were pending at various forums. PW-2 has specifically stated that there is no enmity between the accused with the deceased. She although has stated that her husband was not in the business of selling or buying properties but from time to time he used to buy plots or sell them in case of need. The place of incident is also an under-construction colony where various houses were being constructed. It appears that the deceased had multiple disputes with various persons and apparently some of the properties had changed hands in recent past. PW-2 has admitted that her husband's sister Anita Sharma had bought a house in Shalini Enclave which situates between Surendra

Nagar and Avas Vikas Colony. A suggestion has also been given that some money was paid to Gaurav on account of which he has been falsely implicated after the deceased was shot dead due to some property dispute.

44. The close scrutiny of statement of PW-2 clearly reveals that she is not an eye witness of incident and is at best a witness of last seen. Her statement in that regard is not found reliable, particularly as we find it difficult to believe her statement that she could see the front of her shop from her balcony, which is at a distance behind the shop. We, therefore, do not find the testimony of PW-2 to be convincing and the evidence of last seen thus is also not worthy of acceptance.

45. We now come to the last limb of prosecution case i.e. the recovery of firearm as also the FSL report. The FSL report is on record as Ex.Ka.35/1 & Ex.Ka.35/2, which relates to the bloodstained and plain earth as well as clothes worn by the deceased. The report in respect of such recovery is contained in Ex.Ka.35/2 as per which human blood has been found on bloodstained earth as well as clothes worn by the deceased. However, the bloodstains were not capable of any classification and, therefore, this part of the FSL report is not of much relevance. It is the second part of FSL report contained in paper marked as Ex.Ka.35/3 and 35/4 which is relevant. A flat bullet has been taken out from the body of deceased which is marked as EB-1 and EB-2. This bullet has been compared with the two firearms recovered from the accused appellants Gaurav and Gautam, which are marked as item 1/14 and 2/14. The two firearms have been matched with the recovered bullet and as per the FSL report the recovered bullet lacks individual characteristics for being compared with the two recovered firearms. The bullet which has thus been recovered from the body of deceased has not matched with the firearm allegedly recovered from the accused appellants.

46. The two firearms recovered from the accused appellants are from open place and there are no independent witnesses to establish the recovery itself. The witnesses of recovery of firearm are only the police personnel.

47. The 315 bore firearms recovered from the accused appellants Gaurav had a cartridge stuck in its barrel. This has been marked as EC-1 and as per FSL report it has been fired from the tamancha marked as 1/14. Since the recovery of firearm itself is not reliable, we are not inclined to attach much importance to the FSL report as it is but natural that the cartridge in the barrel would be shown to be fired from such firearm.

48. The police has also recovered empty cartridge from the place of occurrence which is marked as EC-2 which has matched from the recovered firearm marked as 2/14 from the accused Gautam.

49. The fact that empty cartridge EC-2 has matched with the recovered firearm as 2/14 from the accused Gautam is prima facie a material produced by the prosecution to implicate the accused Gautam in this case. On behalf of the informant much reliance has been placed upon this aspect of the matter. On behalf of the defence, however, detailed argument has been advanced to discredit the recovery of EC-2 from the place of occurrence and the submissions in that regard needs to be noticed, at this stage.

50. There is also a recovery of iron rod vide Ex. Ka-32. As per the statement of accused Ankit Bhardwaj this iron rod was hidden next to a Bael tree and little below the soil. So far as this recovered iron rod is concerned, it is admitted to the prosecution that it neither had any bloodstains on it, nor there is any independent witness to this recovery. The recovery otherwise is from an open place.

51. The fairness of investigation is seriously questioned by the defence in this case on the ground that the dead body of the deceased was actually brought to mortuary as unknown and such receiving of unknown body was also proved from the records. As per such records an unknown dead body was brought by Constable 1516 Amit Kumar. The register maintained in the mortuary has been produced as per which such a dead body was received at 6.10 PM about which intimation was also sent to Station House Officer, Kotwali City. Later on this entry was deleted. There was no reference to this dead body anywhere else in the records. According to defence it was the deceased, whose dead body was initially brought as unknown person in the mortuary by Constable 1516 Amit Kumar and later, by interpolating the records the informant has come out with a new story only to settle the score with accused as the deceased had secured certain amount from the accused. Our attention has been invited to the testimony of Head Constable Indradev (PW-9), who has stated that Amit Kumar was posted in police beat at Awas Vikas and he had not returned to the police station prior to registration of this case. Following passage from the statement of PW-9 is relevant and is reproduced hereinafter:-

यह घटना है। इस मुकदमे के कायम होने से पहले कां० 1516 अमित कुमार की थाने में वापसी नहीं है। चिकित्सा अधिकारी जिला की रिपोर्ट के अनुसार कां० 1516 अमित कुमार ने दि० 12.1.13 को 6.10 पी०एम० पर अज्ञात शव अस्पताल में दाखिल किया जिसकी सूचना थानाध्यक्ष को०शहर को भेजी गई।

दि० 12.1.13 के रोजनामचे में सिर्फ एक ही पंचायतनाम भरणे का तस्करा है। यह कहना गलत है कि एफ०आई०अ०र० एन्टीटार्गम करके बाद में लिखी गई हो”

52. The original register of mortuary has been produced during trial, which clearly contains an endorsement, as per which an unknown dead body was brought to the mortuary by Constable 1516 Amit Kumar. The statement of Dr. Bhojraj Singh (PW-5) in that regard is reproduced hereinafter:-

“दिनांक 12.1.13 को 6.10 पी०एम० पर सी०पी० 1516 अमित कुमार एक अज्ञात व्यक्ति को लेकर आया जिसे अस्पताल में देखने के बाद (sic) डैथ कहा गया उसके शरीर को मोरचरी में रखकर पुलिस को सूचना की गई थी। असल रजिस्टर मेरे सामने है जिस पर दि० 12.1.13 की सम्बन्धित एन्ट्री श्री गजेन्द्र कुमार शर्मा की फोरमेसिस्ट की लिखी हुई है। दाखिल करता हूँ। फोरमेसिस्ट गजेन्द्र को मैने लिखते पढ़ते देखा है। मै गजेन्द्र कुमार शर्मा का लेख पहचानता हूँ फोटो काफी पर प्रदर्श ख-1 डाला गया।

उसी दिन इस अज्ञात शव की सूचना थाना को०शहर को दी गई अस्पताल की पुलिस इन्फोरमेशन बुक मेरे सामने है। जिस पर डाक्टर प्रेम प्रकाश के द्वारा सूचना भेजी गई जो थाने पर प्राप्त हुई जिस पर थाने की मोहर लगी है। डा० प्रेम प्रकाश को मैने लिखते पढ़ते देखा है इसकी फोटो प्रति दाखिल करता हूँ। इस पर प्रदर्श ख-2 डाला गया।”

PW-5, on his re-examination, has stated as under:-

“रजिस्टर ख-1 फार्मेसिस्ट भरता है जो अभी जीवित है। प्रदर्श ख-1 के मूल रजिस्टर में क्रम सं० 188 के पश्चात क्रम सं० 189 पर ब्रोड डेड अननोन लिखा गया तथा बाद में एन्ट्री नं० 189 को काट दिया गया यह मेरे सामने नहीं काटा गया किसने काटा मुझे पता नहीं न मै बता सकता। उसके बाद 189 पर दूसरी प्रवृष्टी है। प्रदर्श ख-2 में पेपर सं० ख-55/5 भी मेरे द्वारा जारी नहीं किया

गया है यह भी फोरमेसिस्ट के हस्ताक्षर में है जो नौकरी में है सूचना के पश्चात डेड बॉडी मोरचरी में रखने का प्रावधान है थाने को सूचना तभी दी जाती है जब डेड बॉडी को अस्पताल स्टाफ अपने कब्जे में ले लेता है।

प्रदर्श ख-2 के भाग 55/2 पर चिकित्सा अधिकारी के कालम में डा० प्रेम प्रकाश के हस्ताक्षर है। ख-55/5 पर भी डा० प्रेम प्रकाश के हस्ताक्षर है जो इसी अज्ञात से मुत्तिलक है”

53. The Investigating Officer Abdul Salam (PW-6) has admitted that no disclosure statement was made in this case, nor any separate recovery memo was prepared. Both the firearms had been recovered from open place. The statement of PW-6 in that regard is reproduced hereinafter:-

“प्रकृति कारण (Disclose statement) इस केस में नहीं लिखा गया न ही उसका कोई अलग से मेमो बना।

दोनों बरामदगिया खुले स्थान से हुई दोनों में कोई पब्लिक का गवाह नहीं था बरामदगी स्थल पर कोई भी आ जा सकता था दिल्ली पौडी रोड हाईवे है हर समय हर तरह की सवारी दिन भर चलती है रावली रोड पर भी आसपास गांव है उस पर भी सवारी चलती है रावली रोड पर भी आसपास गांव है उस पर भी सवारी चलती है किसी कर्मचारी को गवाह मुरतब करने हेतु नहीं भेजा। यह कहना गलत है कि दोनों तमंचे की बरामदगी फर्जी दिखाई हो। यह सही है कि तमंचे की बरामदगी होना महत्वपूर्ण साक्ष्य था।”

54. It is, therefore, apparent from the evidence on record that a dead body was brought in the mortuary at 6.10 PM as unknown, and later this entry was scored off. There is no corresponding explanation by the prosecution as to why such entry was scored off and what happened to this unknown dead body. Just beneath this entry is the entry relating to the body of the deceased having been brought to the mortuary. Absence of any explanation with regard to the dead body brought in the mortuary as unknown, and just thereafter the entry occurring in respect of dead body of deceased having been brought to the mortuary, does create a doubt in the prosecution case and the argument of defence that in fact it was the deceased's body which was brought as unknown, and later after his identity was established that the entire story has been developed cannot be lightly brushed aside. It is in this context that we find that there is a clear interpolation in the timing of holding the inquest in panchayatnama on which there is neither any initial nor the prosecution has explained as to why such interpolation became necessary. The FIR has also been sent to the Magistrate almost after a week. We also find from the statement of first Investigating Officer (PW-6) that while investigation remained with him (investigation of PW-6 was about 15 and odd days), none came forward to depose as an eye-witness of the incident. The statement of PW-6 in that regard assumes significance and is reproduced hereinafter:-

“जब तक तफतीश मेरे पास रही तब तक कोई चश्मदीद साक्षी मेरे सामने यह कहने नहीं आया कि मैंने घटना देखी। मैंने चश्मदीद साक्षी के बयान लेने चाहे पर किसी ने नहीं दिये यह कहना गलत है कि मेरे तफतीश रहने के दौरान तक कोई चश्मदीद साक्षी तैयार ही न हो”

55. What is also important to note that after the inquest was concluded the dead body of the deceased was handed over to Constable 1516 Amit Kumar and Constable Parvendra Singh (PW-10). In his cross-examination PW-10 has admitted that the dead body was handed over to him at 8.30 pm on 12.1.2013 but the dead body was brought to the mortuary at 7.30 in the morning. There is no clarity as to what happened to the body from 8.30 pm on 12.1.2013 to 7.30 am on 13.1.2013. The statement of PW-10 in that regard is reproduced hereinafter:-

“मैं सिर्फ लाश लाया हूँ मुझे लाश 12.1.13 को शाम 8.30 बजे मिली थी। लाश लाने वाले स्थान से पी०एम० हाऊस

करीब 1-1/4 KM दूर है। लाश लाने वाला स्थान शहर में है इस प्रकार की सवारी उपलब्ध है। लाश हमने 13.1.13 को सुबह 7.30 बजे लाकर दाखिल की। यह कहना गलत है कि लाश हमें 13.1.13 को मिली हो लाश सुबह 7.30 बजे दाखिल की थी तथा रपट आदि की नकल 11.30 बजे दिन लाकर दाखिल की थी मोटर साईकिल से अस्पताल थाने से आने व जाने में लगभग 10 मिनट का समय लगेगा। यह कहना गलत है कि मैं गलत ब्यानी कर रहा हूँ”

56. It is in the above background that when we examine the recovery of two firearms recovered from the accused without any disclosure statement; without any public witness and from the open place, we do not find it safe to rely upon the recovery of firearms or the recovered cartridge from the place of occurrence, so as to implicate the accused appellants in the offence.

57. The testimony of PW-3 and PW-4 also needs to be noticed hereinafter. PW-3 is a Contractor alongwith PW-1 and has studied with him from Class 6th to 10th. His statement that accused stated before him that they have finished the deceased while rushing towards Awas Vikas does not appear to be credible. His statement has been recorded 18 days after the incident. He states that this fact was disclosed by him to PW-1 after about 15-16 days at Bijnor. We do not find such statement to be credible, as it is unnatural to expect such important fact not to be informed to the family members or the Investigating Officer. The testimony of PW-3, therefore, is not of much help to the prosecution case.

58. So far as PW-4 is concerned, he too is a related witness and has stated that all the accused came and confessed having eliminated the deceased and assured that they will vacate the house of deceased, so that the matter may be settled between them. The statement of PW-4 has also been recorded after several days and there are material contradictions in his version, which remains unexplained. We are not inclined to give much weightage to the testimony of PW-4 nor can it constitute any material to implicate the accused appellants.

59. The court below has erred in accepting the prosecution case without subjecting the evidence on record to a careful scrutiny as there are anomalies found in the testimonies of witnesses and the evidence regarding recovery of firearms has also not been carefully examined. The judgment of the court below on material aspects is, therefore, found wanting. Since the available evidence on record has not been subjected to a careful scrutiny by the court below, therefore, the finding of guilt returned in the judgment cannot be sustained and is liable to be reversed.

60. For the discussions and deliberations held above, we find that the accused appellants are clearly entitled to benefit of doubt as the prosecution has not been able to prove their guilt beyond reasonable doubt.

61. Consequently, the present appeals succeed and are allowed. The impugned judgment and order dated dated 20.01.2017, passed by the learned Additional Sessions Judge Court No. 01, Bijnor is hereby set aside. The appellants, who are reported to be in jail for more than ten years, shall be released, forthwith and set free, if they are not wanted in any other case, subject to compliance of Section 437-A Cr.P.C.

Counsel for the Respondent:

A. Criminal Law - Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 - Section 374(2) - Indian Penal Code, 1860-Sections 147, 148, 302/149 & 307/149 -Challenge to Conviction-The prosecution on the commencement of trial has set out to prove the incident of shoot-out in question as per which it was the accused-appellants who indiscriminately fired on the jeep in which the deceased, three prosecution witnesses and one else were travelling and led to the brutal murder of six passengers travelling therein- According to the prosecution the incident is seen by three prosecution witnesses of fact i.e. P.W.-1, P.W.-2 and P.W.-3 who are said to have jumped out of the running jeep alongwith another from the back door and have further witnessed the occurrence-The evidence on record reveals that these witnesses of fact are highly interested witnesses and their credibility and reliability as well as their presence at the place of occurrence becomes doubtful on account of the facts and also their criminal antecedents-their presence at the time and place of occurrence being seriously doubtful, the medical evidence not corroborating the ocular version, the long pre-existing enmity in between the accused-appellants and the first informant PW-1-it seems doubtful that the four passengers of the jeep (including the three witnesses of fact, namely, P.W.-1, P.W.-2 and P.W.-3) could jump out of a running jeep and escape unhurt when ten armed men are indiscriminately firing at the jeep and hide themselves at a distance of 40 to 50 paces in a pigeon pea field (arahar) and witnessed the occurrence from there-it is unnatural that having spotted these four passengers, the assailants would allow them to leave and would not walk a few paces further to eliminate them, particularly when P.W.-1 was their prime suspect on account of their pre-existing enmity-therefore, the testimonies of the prosecution witnesses of fact are not trustworthy and reliable, particularly as they are highly interested witnesses and their very presence at the place of occurrence is doubtful and hence their testimonies are not worthy of trust-the very presence of the three prosecution witnesses of fact at the time and place of occurrence being not fully established- the ocular version of the occurrence not being corroborated by the medical evidence- Hence, the findings returned by the trial court for recording the guilt of accused-appellants are not only illegal but also perverse. (Para 1 to 191)

B. The sum and substance is that the evidence of a related or interested witness should be meticulously and carefully examined. In a case where the related and interested witness may have some enmity with the assailant, the bar would need to be raised and the evidence of the witness would have to be examined by applying a standard of discerning scrutiny. (Para 113)

The appeal is allowed. (E-6)

FINDINGS AND CONCLUSION OF THE TRIAL COURT

19. Court below on the basis of the evidence on record came to the conclusion that the prosecution has succeeded in establishing that the shootout was committed by the accused-appellants on account of previous enmity, they resorted to indiscriminate firing resulting in the death of six persons. Court below has come to the said conclusion on the basis of oral evidence to the effect that the incident was witnessed by the three prosecution witnesses of fact, namely, P.W.-1, P.W.-2 and P.W.-3 and their testimonies are natural and reliable. The ocular version of the occurrence as disclosed in the statements of aforesaid witnesses stands corroborated by the medical evidence as well as the forensic evidence. It has, thus, been held by court below that the prosecution has succeeded in establishing the guilt of the accused-appellants beyond doubt. On the plea of delay in the lodging of the FIR, trial court has recorded the finding that the charge against the accused-appellants under Section-147 I.P.C. does not require conviction as the accused-appellants were equipped with deadly firearms and they have committed 6 murders being members of an unlawful assembly, as such the accused-appellants are liable to be convicted under Sections 148, 307/149, 302/149 I.P.C. Accordingly, the trial court vide impugned judgment and order has convicted the accused-appellants and sentenced them to life imprisonment with fine.

APPELLANTS' CONTENTIONS

20. The broad spectrum of the arguments advanced on behalf of the accused-appellants can be summed up on following three counts:-

(i) the accused-appellants have been falsely implicated on account of previous enmity between the parties. Specific instances of enmity have been highlighted vis-a-vis the accused-appellants and the informant/ P.W.-1;

(ii) the prosecution witnesses were actually not present at the place of occurrence nor have they seen the incident and their depositions are neither credible nor reliable. Arguments at length have been advanced highlighting the evidence on record to doubt their presence at the place of occurrence as well as inherent improbability in their versions/ stands;

(iii) On behalf of the accused-appellants it has also been strenuously urged that the incident of shoot-out was carried out by Subhash Gang and evidence in that regard was also collected during the course of investigation. However, the investigation was not taken to its logical end. The same was deliberately left un-concluded on account of the influence of the informant's side to falsely implicate the accused-appellants due to previous enmity.

The individual submissions of the learned counsels for the accused-appellants shall be referred to, in detail, in the later part of this judgment.

21. Having examined the broad contentions urged in these appeals and upon perusal of record, the question that primarily arises for determination in these appeals is:- as to whether the conclusion of guilt of the accused-appellants, arrived at by the trial court, as also the sentence awarded to them is legal and sustainable in law. Vice versa the same does not suffer from any infirmity and perversity.

22. Before considering the merits of the submissions raised by the learned counsel for accused-appellants and the learned A.G.A., qua the impugned judgment and order of conviction and sentence passed by the court below, it is desirable to refer to the statements of the prosecution witnesses in detail in view of the question which arises for determination in the present appeals as formulated in paragraph no.21 of this judgment.

They fled to a distance of 50-55 paces into a pigeon pea (Arhar) field, from where they saw the incident. Accused also fired on those who escaped but he cannot remember the number of shots fired on them. He had disclosed to the inspector that many shots fired at all the four but none of them actually hit them. By taking the cover of

The name Devendra Singh has been mentioned in the First Information Report. In the inquest report Exhibit K-29, name of Devendra Singh was wrongly written, which was scored out and re-written as Ramkishan. On top of the first page of that inquest report, only the name of the deceased Ram Kishan is written, but the father's name is not written. He has also denied that he was not with Kaushlendra Pal Singh on 6th September, 1996. He has also denied having given any statement to Inspector C.B.C.I.D. that he was a gunner with Kaushlendra Pal Singh since 1st September, 1996.

D.W.-4 Sri S.C. Pal Retd. Deputy S.P., then Inspector of C.B.C.I.D., Agra (from 30.11.1996 to 28.01.1998)

84. This defence witness has stated that from perusal of the records of Police Station-Bawer, it was discovered that on 23rd May, 1996 a shoot-out allegedly took place between these two parties and in that regard Shiv Raj Singh P.T.I. brother of the informant/P.W.-1 had lodged the FIR which was registered as Case Crime No. 153 of 1996 under Sections 147, 149 and 302 I.P.C., Police Station -Bhogaon, District Mainpuri. In the aforesaid FIR Ramakant and 6 others along with his two gunners were nominated as accused. However, on 7th July, 1996 a police report (final report) was submitted. A cross case being Case Crime No. 153A under Sections 147, 148, 149, 307 and 302 I.P.C. was lodged by accused Jagannath Dixit against Shiv Singh, Updesh Singh, Surendra Singh @Mallu and Sushil Gupta in which charge-sheet was submitted on 7th July, 1996. He has further stated that Anand Dixit told him that his father Jagannath Dixit had gone to Delhi for his treatment and after his coming back statements of all could be recorded. Statements of named accused Rajbhushan Singh and Kaushalendra Pal Singh were recorded on 1.12.96. He has further stated that the higher officials had suggested the former investigating Officer Mr. Nand Kumar that there was possibility of involvement of Subhash Gang in the incident in question, therefore, information of sending the empties recovered in respect of Case Crime No. 539 of 1996, which was connected with Subhash Gang and empties recovered in the incident in question for forensic examination, was recorded by him on the statement of Mr. Mall. In his statement Mr. Mall did not state that there was possibility of involvement of Subhash Gang in the incident in question but when he inquired from Mr. Mall, he stated that on the orders of the S.S.P., some of the empties recovered in both the incidents have been sent for forensic examination. He has then stated that Constable Munshi Lal told him that on 6th September, 1996, the accused Jagannath was with them

He has then stated that the informant/P.W.-1 Surendra Singh also told him on 15.5.97 that he had gone to Mainpuri Kotwali and not to Bhogaon Kotwali because the Police of Bhogaon was under the influence of the accused.

86. D.W. 4 has then stated that he had inspected the place of incident on the telling of witness Devendra Singh. He has not prepared any site plan. The site plan prepared by the Civil Police has been confirmed by him. D.W.-4 has further stated that before starting the investigation, he examined the FIR. The informant Surendra Singh and the witnesses Devendra Singh and Santosh Gupta did not disclose that Naresh Dixit and the former Pradhan of Humayupur, namely, Ramkishan, met at Jail intersection, while returning from Odai Padariya and they were seated in the same jeep. The said three witnesses had disclosed that their jeep was overtaken by vehicles of accused which positioned itself in front of their jeep, on which their jeep driver tried to overtake after avoiding them due to which their jeep got disbalanced and collided with the Eucalyptus tree. It was not disclosed by any of the witnesses that the jeep collided with the Eucalyptus tree after the driver Hem Singh was shot. He has further stated that Devendra Singh had given his statement to him that all four of them had witnessed the whole incident by hiding in the mustard field but he had not disclosed that he had seen the incident by hiding in the pigeon pea (Arhar) field. It has also not been disclosed by any of the witnesses that the nick name of Ramkishan is Kishanpal. The informant Surendra has not disclosed him as to how and by what means he had reached Mainpuri Police Station Kotwali but on 15.5.97 he has disclosed that after incident occurred, leaving three survivors on the spot, he reached on the road by foot and thereafter travelled to Mainpuri on a three wheeler tempo.

In connection with such cattle fair, some persons deposit the requisite fee but do not get it organized. In the certificate marked as Exhibit Kha-3 the place of cattle fair has been mentioned as Rui and village Rui is 3 to 4 kilometres from Mainpuri- Bhogon road. He does not know whether any cattle fair was held in Rui on 6th September, 1996 or not?

D.W.-6 (Shri Mehak Singh, Retired Inspector C.B.C.I.D. Agra)

88. This witness has stated that he had conducted the investigation of the case from 18.2.2000 to 14.3.2000. He recorded the statements of many witnesses including Arvind Singh Tomar, who disclosed that he had heard that on 06.09.1996 on Bhogaon to Mainpuri road in front of railway crossing, Gajendra Singh @ Tillu, nephew of Shiv Raj Singh, resident of Bewer, along with his five companions, who were travelling in a jeep after meeting Updesh Singh and Shiv Raj Singh in Jail, were killed. Tomar also disclosed that Shivraj Singh and Updesh Singh (of Fata) were related to the Janta Party. He has further stated that Tomar did not disclose him that there was any other person in the jeep other than the six deceased.

89. D.W.-6 has further stated that Rambabu Kushwaha also reiterated the version of Arvind Tomar. Rambabu has also disclosed that he heard that Ramnand Dixit, Rajbhushan etc. were named accused in the incident in question and there was enmity due to party bandi between them. D.W.-6 has also stated that he had inspected the place of occurrence. At the time of inspection, he found a primary school on the south side of the place of occurrence. Thereafter he has described the place of occurrence with reference to its vicinity. He has also stated that at the time of his inspection, he found that the primary school was closed. Matadeen had disclosed him that when the police arrived at the place of occurrence he also reached there and saw that six persons were lying dead but he did not know as to who were the assailants and what was the quarrel and how many persons were there. A similar statement was also given by Mohan Lal but he did not disclose as to whether any person other than police was present at the place of occurrence or not?

90. D.W.-6 has further stated that during the course of investigation, he came to know that the accused was known to Subhash Pandey but after sometime, he has stated that only Anand Dixit knew the accused Subhash Pandey and was not related. He has further stated that during the investigation, Deputy Jailor Mr. Pathak had disclosed him that on 6.9.96 no one had met Updesh, Shivraj Singh who were detained in the District Jail. Witness Arvind Tomar had also not disclosed him that from whom he came to know about the incident during the course of investigation. He has also stated that he came to know that Subhash Pandey is not related to the Dixit family gang. Criminal history was also found against Subhash Pandey. 91. D.W.-6 has further stated that in the murder of Subedar, brother of Subhash Pandey, neither the informant, nor deceased nor the family members were named as accused. He has further stated that the witness Matadin had disclosed him that when the shots were fired, he saw that there are about 10 to 12 persons who were firing from the road due to which he got scared and went to the village and hid himself. Witness Mohan Lal has disclosed him that some persons, who were about 10 to 12 in number, were firing.

BEHALF OF THE ACCUSED-
APPELLANTS

92. On behalf of Accused-appellant-
Rama Kant Dixit

Mr. V.P. Srivastava, the learned Senior Counsel has made the following submissions:

(i) the FIR which was lodged on the basis of written report submitted by the first informant/P.W.-1 is ante-timed;

(ii) the prosecution witnesses were actually not present at the time and place of occurrence and the evidence to show their presence as such is manufactured;

(iii) the prosecution story that first informant/P.W.1 had gone to meet his maternal aunt (Mausi) along with nine others is a story full of concoction inasmuch as neither the informant/P.W.1 knew her name nor there was any reason to take seven persons (outside of his family) with him for the said purpose;

(iv) it is emphasized that if the purpose of such visiting was to see his maternal aunt, it was expected that some ladies of his family would also go, which is not the case here; justification that the male members accompanied informant/P.W.1 for his safety and security, is fallacious, since none of them carried any firearm/weapon;

(v) the alleged cause of shoot-out was the enmity of the accused-appellants with informant/P.W.-1 and it would be highly improbable that P.W.1 along with three others would be spared unharmed and uninjured while the six others were shot dead and that too when P.W.-1 was the primary target on account of enmity;

(vi) the prosecution story is contradictory as at one place it is alleged that the accused-appellants positioned their vehicles while the other version is that the driver sustained gun shot injuries on account of which the jeep in which the deceased and the prosecution witnesses of fact were travelling collided with the tree;

(vii) the prosecution version that four persons could jump out of running jeep without any injury and could flee unhurt is improbable;

(viii) the prosecution version that the prosecution witnesses could see the incident from pigeon pea (Arhar) field is highly improbable when the accused-appellants primarily wanted to alienate the first informant/PW-1 in the shoot-out;

(ix) the F.I.R. version of the prosecution story that first informant/P.W.-1 having gone to Police Station- Kotwali, District Mainpuri for lodging a report after travelling about 9-10 Kilometers even when the Bhogaon Police Station is situated much closer to the place of occurrence casts a serious doubt in the prosecution case. It was otherwise impossible for the first informant/P.W.-1 to have travelled such a long distance on foot while concealing himself and in a short span of less than an hour;

(x) the fact that the name of Devendra Singh Ex-Pradhan of Himayunpur is mentioned in the F.I.R. whereas his name is Ramkishan shows that the informant/P.W.-1 has not witnessed the occurrence;

(xi) the circumstance that Santosh Singh son of P.W.-1 (not produced in evidence) P.W.-2 and P.W.-3 were not examined by the Investigating Officer on the spot under Section 161 Cr.P.C. and they are also not the witnesses of inquests including P.W.-1, are circumstances indicating that these witnesses were not present at the spot when the incident occurred;

(xii) the first informant/P.W.-1 stated that other three persons were left at the spot and he alone come to Police Station

Kotwali, District Mainpuri for lodging the F.I.R. is contradicted by P.W.-2 and P.W.-3 who have stated that they accompanied P.W.-1 uptill railway crossing;

(xiii) in the F.I.R. the offending vehicles are mentioned as Gypsy and Maruti Van, whereas in the testimonies of the prosecution witnesses the vehicles have been described as Gypsy and Maruti Car, which too raises a doubt as to whether the prosecution witnesses have seen the incident and;

(ivx) as per prosecution witnesses, accused-appellants only had guns and riffles whereas the injured have sustained explosive injuries and also bullets fired from automatic and semi-automatic guns, which raises doubt as to whether the prosecution witnesses have seen the incident i.e. the medical evidence does not fully corroborate the ocular version of the occurrence.

On behalf of accused-appellants
Vipin Dixit, Chandrakant and Hari Om

93. Mr. Brijesh Sahai, the learned Senior Counsel for aforesaid appellants while adopting the arguments of Mr. V.P. Srivastava, the learned Senior Counsel has laid much emphasis in challenge to the prosecution case and submitted as under:

(i) the prosecution witnesses are not consistent inasmuch as the witnesses at one place claim to have seen the incident from pigeon pea (Arhar) field while at other place they claim to have seen the incident from mustard field;

(ii) the jeep in which the deceased along with P.W.-1, P.W.-2, P.W.-3 were travelling, was not recovered and its whereabouts was also not available;

(iii) the details of the manner of incident have not been disclosed and it is not clear as to how four persons who were also travelling in the same jeep were spared which included the primary target i.e. P.W.-1;

(iv) the story of stopping of the jeep after it collided with the tree has come up for the first time during the course of trial;

(v) the fact that out of four alleged to have been spared in the attack, it is the eldest who was the prime enemy and he came to lodge the F.I.R. leaving behind three young survivors renders the prosecution version of the occurrence improbable;

(vi) the inquest of the last deceased is shown to have been completed at 01:30 A.M. on 7.9.1996, whereas the prosecution witnesses disclosed its time as 02:30 A.M. on 7.9.1996. As such there is contradiction in the testimonies of P.W.-1 and P.W.-2;

(vii) it is also not established from the evidence brought on record by the prosecution as to when the dead bodies of the deceased were sealed and when the constables, who carried the dead bodies reached the mortuary for their autopsy as there is an issue as to at what time the dead bodies were sent to mortuary for post-mortem;

(viii) the investigation is wholly dishonest;

(ix) criminal background of the prosecution witnesses have also been emphasized:

(x) there are material improvements i.e. embellishment and contradictions in the depositions of the prosecution witnesses;

(xi) the manner of assault is contradicted by the autopsy reports of the deceased;

(xii) there are three distinct versions of the incident, namely,

(a) version as per prosecution witness;

(b) version as per Autopsy Surgeon; and

(c) version as per Investigating Officer.

all of three of which are mutually inconsistent; and (xiii) the prosecution witnesses have alleged that the accused-appellants fired from the front while the Investigating Officer claims that the empties were recovered from the right side of the jeep whereas the Autopsy Surgeon has proved that the injuries have been caused from the both sides of the jeep i.e. the left and right side and even from the front but none of the injuries have been caused from behind, which conclusively proves that the prosecution witnesses were neither present at the spot nor they have witnessed the occurrence.

On behalf of accused-appellant - Devendra

94. Mr. Rajiv Lochan Shukla, the learned counsel for the accused-appellant Devendra, while adopting the arguments of the aforementioned two Senior Advocates has highlighted the evidence on record to show the involvement of Subhash Gang in the shoot-out, which has been fully discarded by the prosecution.

95. It is also highlighted that in a different incident where Subhash Gang was involved in a shoot-out, certain empties were recovered. The said empties were matched with the empties recovered in the case in hand and it was established in forensic examination that the two sets of empties were fired from the same firearm. The original communication of Joint Director, Forensic Science Laboratory, U.P. Agra dated 31st October, 1996 in the case of State Vs. Ramanand & Others, was not produced in evidence and its photo alone was brought on record vide

Paper No. 131Aa/10 The then Investigating Officer of C.B.C.I.D. has proved the report which has also been incorporated in case diary of the investigation of the case in hand.

96. Mr. Shukla also submits as under:

(i) the above evidence clearly casts a doubt in the prosecution case in face of credible evidence suggesting involvement of Subhash Gang in the crime in question;

(ii) the informant/ P.W.-1 comes from a very influential family as his two brothers were M.L.As. (Members of Legislative Assembly);

(iii) the Jeep in which deceased were travelling was covered from the back side. Thus, it was impossible for P.W.-1 along with three others, who were sitting on the rear side of the jeep, to come out from the back door of the jeep easily, particularly when stepney was fixed on the back door of the jeep, which would act as an hurdle;

(iv) seeing the criminal antecedents of the prosecution witnesses,, their conduct is not natural and reliable;

(v) the statements of defence witnesses about the existence of Forensic Science Laboratory Report was not challenged nor the defence witnesses were controverted on this aspect and, therefore, the statements of defence witnesses remains intact; and

(vi) the photographs available on record would clearly show that the place of occurrence was such that it rendered impossible for someone to see the incident from pigeon pea (Arhar) from a distance of 40 to 50 paces.

On behalf of accused-appellant Kaushlendra

97. Mr. A. K. Shukla, the learned counsel for appellant Kaushlendra adopts the arguments advanced by Mr. V.P. Srivastava and Mr. Brijesh Sahai, learned Senior Advocates as well as Mr. Rajiv Lochan Shukla, Advocate.

Arguments advanced on behalf of State

98. Per contra, Mr. Arunendra Singh and Mr. Amit Sinha, the learned A.G.A. opposing the appeals submit as under:

(i) present case is a case of brutal shoot-out in which six persons have been shot dead on account of indiscriminate firing by accused-appellants;

(ii) the incident was reported to the Bhogaon-Police Station and as the information was circulated on wireless, the authorities responded and promptly rushed to the spot;

(iii) mere inadvertent omission would not discredit the prosecution case;

(iv) merely an error of punctuation i.e. a “comma” was left out in between Devendra and Ex-Pradhan of Humayunpur will not render the prosecution story unworthy of trust;

(v) there was no Ex Pradhan in the name of “Devendra” whereas his name is “Ramkishan” and that is why corrections were incorporated, wherever required including the inquest reports of the deceased;

(vi) in an incident of such a kind, it is but natural for anyone to rush to the Police Station situated in prime location of a city like Police Station Kotwali Mainpuri, rather than come to Police Station Bhogaon, which is situate outside the city. As such prosecution case cannot be disbelieved merely on the ground that the FIR was lodged at a police station which is situate far away even when another police station is already situated at a short distance.

(vii) no major inconsistency is shown in the prosecution case which may discredit the prosecution story;

(viii) in an incident of present kind where indiscriminate firing was made, it would be difficult to ascertain as to who had hit whom, from which side and these aspects cannot be decisive and the arguments that the manner of assault is inconsistent is misconceived; and

(ix) in an incident of firing one would rush in the safe direction available and it cannot be pin pointedly explained. As such the place of the injuries sustained by the deceased cannot be explained with precision.

FACTUAL ISSUES WHICH REQUIRE CONSIDERATION

99. The prosecution has come up with a specific case that accused-appellants are the persons who carried out the brutal shoot-out in which six persons have been done to death. The guilt of the accused-appellants is proposed to be established on the basis of documentary evidence filed before court below which we have already tabulated in the earlier part of this judgment as also the oral testimonies of witnesses of fact, namely, Surendra Singh (first informant/P.W.-1), who happens to be the father of the deceased, namely, Gajendra Singh; Devendra Singh (P.W.-2), who is the son of P.W.-1 and brother of the deceased Gajendra Singh; and Santosh Gupta (P.W.-3), who happens to be a close associate of P.W.-1/first informant.

100. In addition to above witnesses of fact, the prosecution has also adduced Dr. R.P.S. Chauhan (P.W.-4), who conducted the autopsy of the bodies of all the six deceased and proved the post-mortem reports. Other witnesses including the formal witnesses who have proved the police papers and the Investigating Officer, who had conducted the investigation have also produced.

101. With the above spectrum of these appeals in hand we now proceed to deal with each of the issues raised before us in support as well as in opposition to these appeals.

INIMICAL RELATIONSHIP BETWEEN THE PARTIES AND GENESIS

102. Before embarking upon the evaluation of evidence it would be worth noticing the inimical relations between the parties. According to the prosecution the shoot-out was a result of enmity between P.W.-1 and the accused party and the object of the shoot-out was to take revenge from P.W.-1. The aspect of enmity is also reflected in the statements of two other prosecution witnesses of fact i.e. P.W.-2 and P.W.-3.

103. P.W.-1 in his examination-in-chief has stated that there is an old enmity continuing with the accused. Prior to the incident in question earlier an incident had occurred at Lucknow in which the brother of P.W.-1, namely, Shiv Raj Singh was shot and he was injured. In the said case, Chhotey son of accused Jagannath and Hukum Chand father of accused Ramanand were accused. Whereafter another incident occurred in which the brother of P.W.-1 Shiv Raj Singh was again shot and he thus injured. His associate, namely Jai Govind Dixit was killed and Chhote son of Jagannath, Anand brother of Jagannath and accused Hariom son of Hukum Chand were implicated in the said case, which is said to be pending. The exact testimony of P.W.-1 in this regard is worth reference and is accordingly extracted hereinunder:-

"यह सही है कि वर्ष 1985 में मेरे भाई शिवराज सिंह पर बेवर में प्राणघातक हमला किया गया। वर्ष 1986 में उन्होंने पर लखनऊ में प्राणघातक हमला हुआ तथा सन् 1986 में मेरे भाई शिवराज सिंह व उपदेश सिंह आदि पर हमला किया गया। जिसमें हमारे साथी श्री जयगोविंद दीक्षित की हत्या हो गई थी। इसी संदर्भ में मैंने दरोगा जी को बताया था कि इन्हीं रंजिशों के कारण यह घटना हुई है।"

104. P.W.-1 in his cross-examination has admitted that in the murder of Ramesh Chandra Dixit, father of accused Vipin Dixit, names of P.W.-1, his son Devendra (since deceased), his brothers Shiv Raj Singh and Updesh Singh, Santosh Singh (P.W.-2) along with others surfaced. P.W.-2 in his cross-examination has also verified the said statement of P.W.-1 and admitted as under:

"रमेश दीक्षित की हत्या के मामले में उनके पिता श्री कृष्ण ने मेरे परिवार वालों के खिलाफ रिपोर्ट लिखाई थी। यह कहना गलत है कि रमेश दीक्षित की हत्या वाले मुकदमे में सभी गवाही होस्टाइल हुए थे इसलिए वह केस छूट गया था।"

105. P.W.-1 has further stated in his cross-examination that Hukum Chandra Dixit, father of accused Hariom and Ramanand was earlier shot dead in which the son of P.W.-1, namely, Munesh and his brother Updesh along with others were accused. He has again stated that he knew Chhotey @ Rajveer son of accused Jagannath and in whose murder, Updesh Singh, Shiv Raj Singh, his son Mallu were accused and name of Santosh Gupta (P.W.-3) has subsequently been included in the said case. The cousin brothers of Rajveer @ Chhotey are Ramakant Dixit (accused-appellant herein), Chandrakant and Billu.

Though in his cross-examination, P.W.-1 has stated that he does not remember as to whether any case was lodged by Jagannath and his family members against him but he has admitted that there is an ongoing enmity between Jagannath and him for the last ten years prior to this incident. The statement of PW-1 in this regard reads as under:

"जगन्नाथ के परिवार के इस मुकदमे में कुल चार लोग मुल्जिम हैं जगन्नाथ से इस घटना से दस वर्ष पहले से मेरी रंजिश चली आ रही है मुझे ध्यान नहीं है कि जगन्नाथ व उनके परिवार में अन्य मुल्जिमान ने मेरे विरुद्ध घटना के पूर्व कोई मुकदमा लिखाया है या नहीं। मैंने दरोगा जी को यह बता दिया था कि जगन्नाथ वगैरह ने मेरे परिवार वालों के खिलाफ कई झूठे मुकदमे दर्ज कराए थे। मैंने यह बयान सही दिया था। यह बात हम लोगों को बुरी लगी थी कि जब जगन्नाथ वगैरह ने हम लोगों के खिलाफ मुकदमे दर्ज कराए थे। यह कहना गलत है कि इसी रंजिश के कारण मैंने भी जगन्नाथ आदि के खिलाफ झूठी रिपोर्ट लिखाई हो।"

106. In his cross-examination, P.W.-1 has admitted that accused Kaushlendra had lodged a case of theft of stepney against the brothers of P.W.-1, namely, Shiv Raj Singh and Updesh Singh.

107. Lastly, P.W.-1 has stated in the cross-examination that there was enmity between the deceased Mahesh Fauji and the accused persons. He has denied the suggestion that he had more enmity with the accused than the deceased Mahesh Fauji.

108. P.W.-2 in his examination-in-chief has verified the said statement of P.W.-1 by stating that on the date of incident his uncles Shivraj Singh @ P.T.I., Updesh Singh, his brother Vijender @ Mallu were in jail in connection with the murder case of Chhote alias Rajveer. In his cross-examination, P.W.2 has stated that he had informed the Investigating Officer that his family is having enmity with the accused Jagannath since before ten years and that is why the accused Jagannath has committed this incident.

109. P.W.-2 in his examination-in-chief has stated that enmity between his family and the accused is going on since 1985. In between Devki Nandan, cousin of the accused Hariom, had lodged a report under Section 302 I.P.C., against him, his uncles Updesh Singh and Santosh Singh and his father (P.W.-1) and since they have been in jail for a month due to the said FIR, they were angry. P.W.-2 in his cross-examination regarding enmity with the accused Kaushlendra Pal, has stated as under:

"घटना के पहिले मेरे परिवार के लोग बी०एस०पी० एवं 1 बी०जे०पी० से सम्बन्धित थे मुल्जिम कौशलेन्द्र पाल सिंह सहित सभी मुल्जिम सपा से सम्बन्धित थे और आज भी है। यह सही है कि भिन्न 2 पार्टियों के होने के नाते मेरे परिवार से व मुल्जिम कौशलेन्द्र पाल से पार्टी को लेकर भी रंजिश हो।"

110. The aforesaid facts as born out from the testimonies of P.W.-1 and P.W.-2 are the genesis of enmity existing between the family of informant (P.W.-1) and the accused.

111. It is thus evident from the depositions of PW-1 and PW-2 that the main prosecution witnesses are not independent witnesses but are interested witnesses. P.W.-3 is a close associate of P.W.-1 and in the murder of Chhotey @ Rajveer son of accused Jagannath name of Santosh Gupta (P.W.-3) his name has subsequently surfaced along with brothers of P.W.-1, namely, Updesh Singh, Shiv Raj Singh and his son Mallu and therefore, he too would fall in the category of an interested witness.

112. In what manner should the statement of an interested witness be scrutinized by Court is not shrouded in obscurity but is now well settled that though it is admissible but is subject to critical scrutiny.

113. In Md. Jabbar Ali and others Vs. State of Assam, reported in 2022 SCC OnLine SC 1440, the Court has observed as under in paras 55 to 58 of the report:-

"55. It is noted that great weight has been attached to the testimonies of the witnesses in the instant case. Having regard to the aforesaid fact that this Court has examined the credibility of the witnesses to rule out any tainted evidence given in the court of Law. It was contended by learned counsel for the appellant that the prosecution failed to examine any independent witnesses in the present case and that the witnesses were related to each other. This Court in a number of cases has had the opportunity to consider the said aspect of related/interested/partisan witnesses and the credibility of such witnesses. This Court is conscious of the well-settled principle that just because the witnesses are related/interested/partisan witnesses, their testimonies cannot be disregarded, however, it is also true that when the witnesses are related/interested, their testimonies have to be scrutinized with greater care and circumspection. In the case of Gangadhar Behera and Ors. v. State of Orissa (2002) 8 SCC 381, this Court held that the testimony of such related witnesses should be analysed with caution for its credibility.

56. In Raju alias Balachandran and Ors. v. State of Tamil Nadu (2012) 12 SCC 701, this Court observed:

"29. The sum and substance is that the evidence of a related or interested witness should be meticulously and carefully examined. In a case where the related and interested witness may have some enmity with the assailant, the bar would need to be raised and the evidence of the witness would have to be examined by applying a standard of discerning scrutiny. However, this is only a rule of prudence and not one of law, as held in Dalip Singh [AIR 1953 SC 364] and pithily reiterated in Sarwan Singh [(1976) 4 SCC 369] in the following words: (Sarwan Singh case [(1976) 4 SCC 369, p. 376, para 10)

"10. ... The evidence of an interested witness does not suffer from any infirmity as such, but the courts require as a rule of prudence, not as a rule of law, that the evidence of such witnesses should be scrutinised with a little care. Once that approach is made and the court is satisfied that the evidence of interested witnesses have a ring of truth such evidence could be relied upon even without corroboration."

57. Further delving on the same issue, it is noted that in the case of Ganapathi and Anr. v. State of Tamil Nadu (2018) 5 SCC 549, this Court held that in several cases when only family members are present at the time of the incident and the case of the prosecution is based only on their evidence, Courts have to be cautious and meticulously evaluate the evidence in the process of trial.

58. It is thus settled that the evidence of the related witnesses have to be considered by applying discerning scrutiny.

Criminal antecedents to the credit of informant (P.W.-1) and his family including P.W.-2 and the deceased Devendra (son of P.W.-1)

114. In the cross-examination, the star witness i.e. P.W.-1 has stated that some cases have been filed against his brother Updesh Singh due to political rivalry, in some of which he has been acquitted whereas some are pending. He cannot say as to how many cases are pending against Updesh Singh. There are some criminal cases against his another brother Shivraj Singh. In some cases, Shivraj Singh has been acquitted while some are pending. He again cannot disclose as to how many cases are pending against Shivraj Singh. Some criminal cases are also pending against his son Mallu but he does not remember their numbers. There are some criminal cases against his son Munesh, whose number cannot be disclosed by him but in some cases he has been acquitted and only two are pending. There are some cases against his son Devendra (since deceased). He has further stated that some cases have also been filed against his brother Santosh but nearly in all cases he has been acquitted. This witness himself has stated that all the above cases are false and have been filed only due to political vendetta.

Criminal antecedents to the credit of P.W.-3

115. In his cross-examination P.W.-3 has admitted that he has been implicated in one or two cases along with the family of the informant (P.W.-1) and one of them is under Section 302 I.P.C., one under Section 307 I.P.C., one relates to robbery and one relates to kidnapping. After that he has admitted that he has been named as an accused in two kidnapping cases. He was facing total number of four-five criminal cases. When he was in Chilousa, no case was filed against him. He has then stated that he was also prosecuted in the cases under the Goonda Act and the Gangsters Act. This witness has also denied that there were twenty criminal cases against him from 1990 to 2004 at Police Station-Kotwali and Police Station-Bhogaon.

116. Though, testimony of a witness with criminal antecedents can be relied upon but such evidence has to be scrutinized very closely. In Murli & Another Vs. State of Rajasthan reported in (2009) 9 SCC 417 the Supreme Court has observed as under:

“There can be no doubt that the witness was of criminal character and that his statement was recorded later, but even then, if that caution is kept in mind while appreciating the evidence and if his evidence inspires confidence, it is not incorrect to accept such evidence. However, for that purpose, his evidence has to be scrutinized very closely.”

THE EVIDENCE TO QUESTION
THE PRESENCE OF WITNESSES OF FACT AT THE TIME AND PLACE OF OCCURRENCE

117. The testimony of the prosecution witnesses requires to be examined with caution and circumspection.

118. The first limb of the argument on behalf of appellants essentially questions the presence of the prosecution witnesses of fact at the time and place of occurrence and also discredits their testimony on this ground. There are different facets of this argument which need to be noticed and therefore referred to hereunder:-

I. First and foremost, it is commonly urged by the counsel for appellants that in a case of brutal shoot-out wherein six persons sitting in a Commander Jeep were shot dead, which incident occurred suddenly the passengers of the jeep had hardly any time to save themselves. The dead body of the driver Hem Singh was at the driver's seat with multiple gunshot wounds which appear to have been fired from different sides including from behind. The dead body of the passengers sitting next to the driver's seat was partly in the jeep and partly on the bonnet. Only two inmates could come out of the jeep from left and right sides but they were shot dead. It is, therefore, urged that the incident occurred suddenly and all the passengers of the jeep were shot dead. The possibility of the four passengers jumping out of the running jeep seems highly doubtful. The version of the prosecution witnesses that the accused-appellants had fired at them but did not chase them or cause any harm/hurt to them also seems improbable when the prime target for the accused-appellants would have been P.W.-1/first informant on account of the pre-existing enmity as noted in the earlier part of this judgment.

It is thus strenuously urged that the manner of shoot-out completely rules out the possibility of four passengers fleeing from the back of the Jeep and therefore, the prosecution version that the four persons escaped unhurt in the brutal shoot-out is a fanciful illustration and, therefore, not worthy of acceptance.

II. The accused-appellants have relied upon the testimony of the autopsy surgeon, who conducted the post-mortem of the bodies of all the deceased. As per the testimony of the autopsy surgeon the deceased were fired from left, right and behind without any shot having hit from the front. It is thus urged that the aforesaid clinching evidence clearly shows that there was no possibility of four persons coming out of the Jeep unhurt even when there was flow of bullets. This clearly belies the prosecution story.

III. Apart from above, another circumstance which has been raised to doubt the presence of prosecution witnesses at the time and place of occurrence is the alleged use of explosives in the crime in question. According to the learned counsel for accused-appellants, the prosecution witnesses have alleged use of fire arms in the incident (guns and rifles), alone whereas the Autopsy Surgeon has proved the presence of explosive injuries sustained by the deceased which remains unexplained and, therefore, creates a doubt in the prosecution case making it improbable. In short the medical evidence does not corroborate the ocular version.

IV. Inherent contradictions in the testimonies of the prosecution witnesses is highlighted with reference to the manner and direction in which P.W.-1 left the place of occurrence to lodge the FIR which also creates a doubt in the prosecution story.

V. It is then submitted that the prosecution witnesses claim to have seen the incident from a distance of 40 to 50 paces while shielding themselves in between the standing crops in a pigeon pea (Arhar) field. The place where the prosecution witnesses are said to have been hiding is a low/crater and it was therefore, difficult for anybody to have seen the incident from such a situation.

VI. The prosecution story that informant/P.W.1 had gone to meet his maternal aunt (Mausi) along with nine others is a story full of concoctions inasmuch as neither the informant/P.W.1 knows the name of her aunt, nor there was any reason to take seven persons (outside of his family) with him for the purpose; it is emphasized that if the purpose of visiting was to see his maternal aunt it was expected that some ladies of his family would also go, which is not the case here; justification that the male members accompanied informant/P.W.1 for his safety and security is fallacious, since none of them carried any firearm/weapon;

VII. The alleged cause of shoot-out is said to be the enmity of the accused-appellants with informant/P.W.-1. It would be highly improbable in such circumstance that P.W.1 along with three others would be spared while the six others would be shot dead;

VIII. The prosecution story is contradictory as at one place it is alleged that the accused-appellants parked their vehicles in front of the Commander Jeep in which the deceased and others were travelling while the other version is that the driver sustained gun shot injuries on account of which the jeep collided with the tree;

IX. The F.I.R. version of the prosecution story that informant/P.W.-1 had gone to Police Station- Kotwali, District Mainpuri for lodging an FIR after travelling about 9-10 Kilometers concealing himself on the way even when Bhogaon Police Station is situate at a much small distance casts a serious doubt in the prosecution case. It was otherwise impossible for the informant/P.W.-1 to have travelled such a long distance on foot while concealing himself in a short span of less than an hour;

X. The name of Devendra Singh Ex-Pradhan of Himayunpur is mentioned in the F.I.R. whereas his name is Ramkishan. This also is an additional circumstance to infer that informant/P.W.-1 has not seen the occurrence;

XI. The circumstances that P.W.-2 and P.W.-3 were not examined by the Investigating Officer on the spot under Section 161 Cr.P.C. and they are also not the witnesses of inquest, are such circumstances which go to indicate that these witnesses were not present at the spot when the incident occurred; the first informant/P.W.-1 stated that other three persons were left at the spot and he alone came to Police Station Kotwali, District Mainpuri for lodging the F.I.R. is contradicted by P.W.-2 and P.W.-3 who have stated that they accompanied P.W.-1 up-till railway crossing.

XII. In the F.I.R. the offending vehicles are Gypsy and Maruti Van, whereas in the testimonies of other prosecution witnesses of fact the vehicles are described as Gypsy and Maruti Car. This too raises a doubt as to whether the prosecution witnesses have seen the incident.

XIII. The prosecution witnesses are not consistent inasmuch as the witnesses at one place claim to have seen the incident from pigeon pea (Arhar) field while at other place they claim to have seen the incident from mustard field; the jeep in which the deceased along with P.W.-1, P.W.-2, P.W.-3 were travelling was not recovered and its whereabouts were also not available; the details of the incident have not been disclosed; the story of stopping of jeep after hitting the tree has come up for the first time during the course of trial. This is a departure from the basic prosecution case as unfolded in the FIR, for which no plausible explanation has been offered.

XIV. The inquest is shown to have been completed at 01:30 A.M. on 7.9.1996, whereas the prosecution witnesses disclosed its time as 02:30 A.M. on 7.9.1996; there is contradiction in the testimonies of P.W.-1 and P.W.-2; it is also not established from the evidence brought on record by the prosecution as to when the dead bodies of the deceased were sealed and when the constables, who carried the dead bodies for post-mortem reached the mortuary for their autopsy as there is an issue as to on what time the dead bodies were sent to mortuary.

XV. The investigation is wholly dishonest as no attempt has been made to fully investigate the involvement of Subhas Gang in the crime in question. The criminal background of the prosecution witnesses have also been emphasized to discredit them.

XVI. The prosecution witnesses have alleged that the accused-appellants fired from the front while the Investigating Officer claims that the empties were recovered from the right side of the jeep whereas the Autopsy Surgeon has proved that the injuries have been caused from both the sides of jeep i.e. the left and the right side and also from behind but none of the injuries have been caused from the front, which conclusively proves that the prosecution witnesses were neither present at the time and place of occurrence nor they have seen the occurrence.

XVII. PW-4 the autopsy surgeon has opined that none of the deceased sustained pellet injuries. However, PW-3 in his deposition before court below has stated that four of the accused had guns in their hands whereas the other six accused were armed with rifles.

119. On behalf of the accused-appellants it is also emphasized that the FIR is ante-timed and the prosecution version disclosed in the FIR about P.W.-1 travelling a distance of 8-9 kilometres on foot while concealing himself is highly improbable as it is impossible for anyone to cover such a long distance in half an hour. It is on account of above that material improvement was made in the testimony of P.W.-1 regarding use of Tempo from the Railway track to the police station. In short the submission is that the improvement made in the prosecution case during the course of trial is an unexplained embellishment which again creates a serious doubt regarding the probability of the prosecution case.

120. In addition to above, it is urged on behalf of the accused-appellants that the evidence on record clearly shows that P.W.-1 had enmity with Subash Pandey's Gang and its involvement was suspected during the course of investigation. Certain empties found from the place of occurrence were therefore, matched with the empties used in a distinct incident caused by Subash Pandey's Gang and it was conclusively established that the empties so recovered were fired from the same fire-arm, which thus proves the involvement of Subash Pandey's Gang in the commission of the crime in question, but this line of investigation was suddenly dropped which casts a serious doubt in the impartiality of the investigation as also the prosecution case.

121. It is in the light of above embellishment and contradiction in the prosecution story which the prosecution to set out to prove that this Court has to evaluate the evidence on record with great care and caution in order to arrive at a conclusive opinion before concluding that the alleged guilt of the accused appellants is proved beyond doubt or that the accused appellants are innocent.

122. The trial court came to the conclusion that the prosecution has succeeded in establishing the guilt of the accused-appellants on the basis of documentary and oral evidence led by the prosecution. The presence of the prosecution witnesses of fact i.e. PW-1, PW-2 and PW-3 at the time and place of occurrence has not been doubted. Resultantly their testimonies have been relied upon. The trial court has not found any major exaggeration, contradiction or embellishment in the testimonies of the prosecution witnesses of fact so as to make them unworthy of trust, and therefore they have been relied upon. As a consequence of above court below has returned a finding of guilt against the accused-appellants. It is this conclusion recorded by court below which requires to be considered by us in the light of the submissions urged by the counsel for the parties, and keeping in mind the reasoning given by the Supreme Court in Md. Jabbar Ali (supra).

CONSIDERATION

123. First and foremost, we would like to take up the argument raised by all the counsel for appellants questioning the presence of the prosecution witnesses of fact i.e. PW-1, PW-2 and PW-3 at the time and place of occurrence. The grounds on which the presence of aforesaid witnesses of fact are challenged, have already been referred to above. The argument is now being evaluated with reference to the evidence on record. The first circumstance for doubting the presence of aforesaid witnesses of fact at the time and place of occurrence is the absence of possibility of four persons to flee from a running Jeep when firing was taking place from all sides of the Jeep in which the deceased and the four persons who are said to have escaped unhurt were travelling.

124. P.W.-1 in his examination-in-chief has stated that he was returning after meeting his maternal aunt (Mausi). There were 10 occupants in the Jeep including P.W.-1. The Jeep belongs to PW-1. According to this witness, as they crossed the railway crossing, a Jeep and a Maruti Van overtook the Commander Jeep and positioned themselves ahead of it at about 04:30 p.m. The expression used by this witness to describe the same is as under:-

"समय लगभग 4.30 बजे दिन ,का० फटा) हमारी गाडी के सामने एक मारुति कार व दूसरी वेन ,का० फटा) जो हमारी गाडी को ओवर टेक करके हमारी गाडी के सामने लगा दी।"

125. In the FIR the two vehicles, which overtook the Jeep had been mentioned as Gypsy and Maruti Van, whereas in the testimony of P.W.-1 the two vehicles have been described as Maruti Car and Van. As per the testimony of P.W.-1, the accused-appellants were armed with Guns and Rifles when they came out of their vehicles and exhorted that all the passengers in the Commander Jeep be shot dead and thus take revenge.

125. P.W.-1 has stated that on seeing the armed accused-appellants coming out of the offending vehicles, he along with Santosh Singh (not produced), P.W.-2 and P.W.-3 jumped out from the back of the Jeep and rushed towards pigeon pea (Arhar) field. In his cross-examination P.W.-1 has stated that his jeep was surrounded by the two vehicles and later the Jeep collided with the Eucalyptus tree through the road side Patri. The testimony of P.W.-1 in that regard is as under:-

"हमारी गाडी को मुल्जिमान के दोनो गाडियों ने ओवर टेक करके घेरा था। हमारी गाडी को मेन रोड पर ही घेरा था बाद मे मेरी जीप पटरी से होकर पेड़ से टकराई थी। मेरी जीप बाई तरफ जा कर टकराई। सड़क से तीन चार कदम दूरी पर

पेड़ है वहाँ टकराई यूकेलिस्टिक व सीसम दोनो तरफ के पेड़ है मौके पर सड़क से खेत 10-12 कदम पर थे।

इस घटना में आगे वाली सीट पर बैठे तीनों लोगों की मृत्यु हो गई थी। दो लोग गाडी में मर गये थे एक व्यक्ति गाडी के पायदान के पास गिर कर मरा था। बीच वाली सीट के तीनों लोग मरे थे। एक गाडी के अन्दर व दो गाडी के बाहर गिरे थे।"

126. P.W.-1 in his examination-in-chief has stated that on account of firearm injuries sustained by the driver of the Jeep, namely, Hem Singh, he lost his balance and the vehicle stopped after colliding with the Eucalyptus tree. The statement of P.W.-1 regarding above reads as under:

"मुल्जिमान की दोनो गाडिया मेरी जीप के सामने खड़ी थी। सामने से गाडी घेर कर मुल्जिमानों ने ललकारा व फायरिंग शुरू कर दी। सभी मुल्जिमान मेरी गाडी आगे से घेरे थे मुल्जिमान द्वारा ललकारने पर पीछे बैठे हम चारो लोग पश्चिम की तरफ भागे थे। गाडी से लगभग 50, 55 कदम थे। माडी की दूरी पर अरहर के खेत में भाग गए थे वही से घटना देखी थी।"

127. Thus the statement of P.W.-1 clearly shows that the vehicle was in motion and had not been stopped by the accused-appellants. The Jeep was in motion when the driver sustained bullet injuries and resultantly the vehicle got uncontrolled. The vehicle ultimately stopped after it collided with the Eucalyptus tree.

128. As per testimony of P.W.-1, two vehicles surrounded his Jeep. As is clear from the testimony of P.W.-1, his jeep was intercepted on the main road and later the Jeep steered on the left and collided with the Eucalyptus tree. The question that arises is as to whether the Jeep actually stopped when the two vehicles overtook it from behind and stopped in front of it or the Jeep on being overtook from behind steered towards left and collided with the Eucalyptus tree. P.W.-1 is not specific in stating as to whether Jeep had fully stopped or whether the driver turned on the left of the road and thereby collided with the Eucalyptus tree after crossing the road side Pathway (Patri).

129. In the above conspectus it is apposite to ascertain whether the vehicle was in motion when it steered towards the left and collided with the Eucalyptus tree or it stopped on the road and then later the driver steered it left and collided with the Eucalyptus tree.

130. On this aspect the testimony of P.W.-2 Devendra Singh is somewhat distinct. In his examination-in-chief, P.W.-2 has deposed as under:

“उस समय शाम लगभग साढ़े चार बजे शाम के होंगे कि एक नीले रंग की जिप्सी एक मारुती कार क्रीम कलर की थी जिनमे जिप्सी आगे थी इन दोनों गाड़ियों ने मेरी गाड़ी को ओवरटेक किया, इस बीच मेरे ड्रायवर हेम सिंह ने अपनी कुछ वाए करके ओवरटेक की कोशिश कि दोनों गाड़ियां मेरी गाड़ी के आगे बढ़कर रुक गई उस समय मेरी गाड़ी चल रही थी इसी बीच उन गाड़ियों से रामानंद, जगन्नाथ, हरिओम, आनन्द, देवेन्द्र, राजभूषण, कौशलेन्द्र, विपिन, विल्लू उर्फ चन्द्रकान्त व रमाकान्त कुल दस लोग उतरे और कहा कि इन सभी सालो को भून देंगे और वदला ले लेंगे वैसे ही मैं व मेरे पिताजी, सन्तोष गुप्ता व सन्तोष चाचा हम चार लोग अपनी गाड़ी से पीछे से कूद पड़े और खेत अरहर खेत की तरफ भागे अरहर के खेत से (sic) दिखाई दे रही थी रामानंद के पास बन्दूक, आनंद के पास राइफल, जगन्नाथ के पास बन्दूक, विपिन के पास व राजभूषण सिंह के पास बन्दूक थी और शेष पांचों के हाथों में रायफिले थी इन सभी लोगों ने फायरिंग की थी जिससे हेम सिंहए गजेन्द्र उर्फ टिल्लू, महेश फौजी, अशोक परिहार पूर्व प्रधान राम किशन सिंह व नरेश दीक्षित कुछ छह लोगो की मौके पर ही मृत्यु हो गई थी इनकी फायरिंग से ड्रायवर हेम सिंह यूकलिप्टस की मृत्यु हो गई थी इससे जीप असंतुलित होकर फुलिलिप्टस के पेड' से टकरा गई थी इन सभी दसो

मुल्जिमान से मेरे परिवार की पुरानी रंजिश है मुल्जिमान इस घटना के बाद अपनी दोनों गाड़ियों से मैनुपुरी की तरफ भाग गए।”

131. In his cross-examination, P.W.-2 has stated as under:

“जिस समय मुलजिमान की दोनो गाड़ियाँ मेरी गाड़ी को ओवरटेक किए उस समय मेरी गाड़ी की स्पीड प्रति घन्टा कितने कि०मी० थी नहीं बता सकता वैसे ठीक ठाक चल रही थी जिस समय हम लोग अपनी जीप से कूदे उस समय जीप चल रही थी हडवडाहट में जान बचाने के लिए कूदे थे और जान बचाने के हिसाब से ही खेत में भागे चले गए थे जब हम लोग भाग रहे थे तब हम लोगों का किसी ने पीछे नहीं किया था हम लोग भागते समय पीछे मुड़कर देख रहे थे जब हम लोग भाग रहे थे तो हम लोगों की जीप की तरफ फायर किये थे हम लोगों को लगे नहीं की चोट हम चार लोगों को इसलिए नहीं लगी थी फायर करने वालों एवं हम लोगों के बीच हमारी जीप थी हम चार लोगों के गाड़ी से कूदने के बाद हम लोगों की जीप करीब 10, 12 कदम चली होगी। ऐसा नहीं है कि किलिप्टस जब हम लोगों की जीप जब फुलिलिप्टस के पेड से टकरा गई तब हम मुलजिमान को अपनी गाड़ियों से निकलते देखा हो।”

(Emphasis supplied by us)

P.W.-2 has further stated as under:

“ऐसा नहीं है कि मेरी जीप का ड्रायवर जीप को मुलजिमान की गाड़ियों से आगे निकालने के प्रयास जीप असंतुलित होकर पेड से टकरा गई है।”

P.W.-2 has then stated as under:

“मैंने दरोगा जी को यह बयान नहीं दिया था कि हमारी जीप के ड्रायवर हेम सिंह यादव ने उनसे बचाकर जीप आगे निकालने चाही कि जीप असंतुलित होकर यूलिलिप्टस के पेड से टकराई बल्कि यह बयान दिया था कि ड्रायवर को गोली लगने के बाद जीप असंतुलित होकर पेड से टकराई थी यदि मेरा इस तरह का बयान नहीं लिखा है तो उसकी वजह नहीं बता सकता सी.वी.सी.आई.डी वालो को भी ड्रायवर के गोली लगने के बाद जीप के असंतुलित होने के बाद बताई थी यदि उन्होने मेरे बयान मे ऐसा न लिखा हो तो मैं इसकी भी कोई वजह नहीं बता सकता।

जब मुलजिमान गाड़ियों से निकले उससे पहिले मेरी जीप पेड से नहीं टकराई थी”

132. P.W.-2 was confronted by the defence with his previous statement under Section 161 Cr.P.C. wherein he admitted that the Jeep got dis-balanced and collided with the Eucalyptus tree, whereafter the accused persons alighted from their vehicle. They thereafter exhorted and fired. Statement of P.W.-2 in that regard is extracted herein under:

"मैंने दरोगा जी एवं सी.वी.सी.आई.डी वालो कोयह नही बताया था कि 'जीप असंतुलित होकर यूकीलिप्टस के पेड़ से टकराई कि एकदम जिप्सी व मारुति कार से उतर कर मुलजिमान रामानंद आदि अपने हाथो राइफल, बन्दूके निकलकर बढ़ते हुए यह कहकर बढ़े की सभी सालों को भून दें ऐंसा ब्यान उन्होंने कैसे लिख लिया उसकी वजह नहीं बता सकता किन मुलजिमान के हाथ में बन्दूके थी और किसके हाथ में साइकिले थी यह बात न तो दरोगा जी ने मुझसे पूछी और न सी.वी.सी.आई.डी वालो ने मुझसे पूछी और न मैने उन्हे बताई आज पहिली बार यह बात अदालत में बता रहा हूँ अपनी जीप से हम चारो लोग अरहर के खेत में पश्चिम तरफ भागे। जब हम जीप से उतरकर भागे उस समय हमारी जीप सडक की पटरी की ओर चल रही थी मुलजिमान की दोनो गाड़ियां पक्की सडक पर खड़ी थी मुलजिमान हम लोगो की जीप से पूरव की तरफ से फायर किए थे तावडतोड गोलियाँ चल रही थी"

In his further cross-examination by the accused Vipin, P.W.-2 has stated as under:

लगने वाले स्थान से वह पेड़ जिससे जीप टकराई लगभग 7,8 कदम की दूर होगा”

(Emphasis supplied by us)

He has also stated as follows:

“जिस समय हम चारो लोग जीप के पीछे से कूदे थे उस समय जीप धीमी रफ्तार मे चल रही थी। जीप के पीछे से हम चारो लोग वारी-2 से सेकंडो मे कूद गए थे जिस समय हम लोग जीप से कूदे थे जीप डाला बन्द था परन्तु हाल से जीप के ऊपर फेंककर कूदे थे।”

In his cross-examination P.W.-2 has stated as under:

"हम चारो लोग जो जीप के पीछे से कूदकर भागे थे उनमें से किसी को खरोच या अन्य कोई चोट नहीं आई थी अरहर के खेत हम चारो लोग 15 मिनट तक छुपे रहे मुलजिमान मे से कोई भी खेत के पास हम लोगो को मारने अथवा घेरने नहीं गया था।”

P.W.-2 was also cross-examined on the feasibility of a person to jump out of a running Jeep when the door of the back side of jeep is closed. In response to such question, P.W.-2 has stated as under:

“यह कहना गलत है कि जीप को पीछे वाला डाला यदि मय स्टेपनी के बद हो तो जीप से पीछे की तरफ कूदना कठिन होगा जीप मेरे चाचा ने बेंच दिया है।”

P.W.-2 has categorically stated that the accused fired on the vehicle when it was in motion and also at then (the four persons) when they were coming out of the Jeep. The following passage from the testimony of P.W.-2 is relevant and therefore extracted herein-below:

“मुलजिमान ने हमारी चलती हुई गाड़ी पर फायर किया था, सभी मुलजिमानों ने चलती हुई गाड़ी पर फायर किये थे। जिस समय हम चारों आदमी गाड़ी से कूदे उस समय मुलजिमान आठ-दस कदम

की दूरी पर थे. हम चारों के जीप के पीछे से कूदते समय हम लोगों पर भी जीप की तरफ मुल्जिमानों ने फायर किए थे।"

(Emphasis supplied by us)

133. P.W.-3 in his examination-in-chief has stated that the Gypsy as well as Maruti Car came from behind and stopped in front of the Jeep from which the accused persons came out armed with guns and rifles. On seeing them this witness along with three others jumped out of the Jeep and saw the accused firing leading to the death of the six inmates. In his cross-examination P.W.-3 has stated that the driver was hit while the Jeep was in motion on account of which the vehicle got dis-balanced and collided with Eucalyptus tree. His testimony in this regard reads as under:

“चलती हुई जीप में ड्राइवर को गोली लगी और जीप असंतुलित होकर पेड़ से टकराई यह बात मैंने दरोगा जी को बताई यदि यह बात मेरे ब्यान में नहीं लिखी गई।”

This witness when confronted with his own previous statement given to the Investigating Officer has stated as under:-

“मैंने दरोगा जी को यह ब्यान नहीं दिया था कि "दोनों गडियां जीप के आगे लगा दी यह देखकर हमारे जीप के ड्राइवर हेमसिंह यादव ने उनसे बचाकर जीप आगे निकालनी चाही कि जीप असंतुलित होकर युकेलिप्टस पेड़ से टकराई कि एक दम कहते जिप्सी व मारुति कार से उतरकर मुल्जिम यह कहते हुए कि आज बदला ले लेगे सभी को भून देंगे हमारी तरफ बढ़े कि मैं सुरेन्द्र सिंह व देवेन्द्र सिंह जीप से निकले" यदि दरोगा जी ने मेरे ब्यान में यह बातें लिखी तो मैं इसकी कोई वजह नहीं बता सकता.”

(Emphasis supplied by us)

This witness was also confronted with his own previous statement under Section 161 Cr.P.C. which is reflected from the following part of his statement:

"साढ़े चार बजे हमारी जीप ड्राइवर ने मुल्जिमान की दोनो गाड़ियो को बचाकर आगे निकलने की कोशिश की कि जीप असंतुलित होकर पेड़ से टकराई" यह ब्यान कैसे लिख लिया वजह नहीं बता सकता।"

P.W.-3 has further been confronted with his previous statement under Section 161 Cr.P.C. to the C.B.C.I.D. in which he has alleged that the driver sustained fire-arm injuries after the vehicle collided with the Eucalyptus tree. The exact testimony reads as under:

"मैंने C.B.C.I.D वालो को यह ब्यान नहीं दिया था कि जीप टकराने के बाद ड्राइवर को गोली लगी थी।"

134. From the evaluation of the testimonies of the prosecution witnesses, it is apparent that they have come out with distinct versions of the occurrence at the stage of investigation i.e. the police and C.B.C.I.D. and during the course of trial. While at the stage of investigation they have alleged that the two offending vehicles came from behind over took the jeep in which the deceased and the prosecution witnesses of fact and another person were travelling, and stopped in front of it on account of which the Jeep was steered leftward and collided with the Eucalyptus tree whereafter the accused-appellants came out, whereas during the course of trial, their version is to the effect that the prosecution witnesses of fact alongwith one another jumped out of the vehicle from behind, on seeing the accused persons. coming out of two vehicles with fire arms. This embellishment in the testimonies of the prosecution witnesses is to the effect that the four passengers of the jeep (survivor) jumped out after seeing the accused persons coming out of their vehicles with firearms. The vehicle as per the prosecution witnesses was in motion. It is not clear as to how four survivors could see the accused persons, who were alighting from their vehicles armed, from a running Jeep, particularly when the back door (Dala) of the Jeep was closed. The version of the prosecution witnesses that they could jump out of a running Jeep without sustaining even a scratch, on their bodies, creates a serious doubt regarding the reliability of their statements.

135. The second ground on which the presence of the prosecution witnesses of fact at the time and place of occurrence is doubted by the counsel for the appellants is the use of explosives in the incident as per the post-mortem report of the deceased/opinion of the Autopsy Surgeon who deposed before the court below as PW-4. However, in their depositions before court below no explanation has been offered by the prosecution witnesses of fact regarding the explosive injuries sustained by the deceased.

136. In his examination-in-chief, P.W.-4, while referring to the second ante-mortem injury of the deceased Ram Kishan, has stated that the brain matter was coming out. The exact statement reads as under:

“चोट नं0 2- एक फटा हुआ घाव (अग्नेयास्त्र की गोली के निकलने से सम्बन्धित) 18 cm x 8 cm, चेहरे के बाई ओर माथे तथा सिर पर था। मस्तिष्क (भेजा) घाव से बाहर निकल रहा था।”

While referring to the ante-mortem injuries of the deceased Mahesh, qua Injury nos. 1, 5 and 6, P.W.-4 has opined as under:

“1. Lacerated firearm wound 18 cm x 5 cm x brain deep on left side of forehead and head. Margins are blackened. Bone of left side skull are fractured. Brain matter coming out of bone.

5. Firearm lacerated wound over front of right knee joint 12 cm x 8 cm. Bones are fractured. Margins blackened.”

6. Firearm lacerated wound 11 cm x 4 cm x bone deep over left scapula of back.”

Insofar as ante-mortem injuries of the deceased Ashok Parihar is concerned, P.W.-4 has found lacerated wound 18 cm x 9 cm on lower part of buccal cavity (lower jaw which is missing) over lower part of the face and neck of the deceased.

In the cross examination, P.W.-4 has clearly stated that injury no.1 found on the body of the deceased Ashok Parihar was due to explosive. He has further stated in his cross-examination that metallic substance removed from the body of the deceased could have entered the body due to the blast of a hand grenade. The statement of the P.W.-4 in this regard is as under:

“जो धातु के टुकड़े शवों से निकाले गए हैं वे ऐसे टुकड़े भी हो सकते हैं हथगोला वगैरह ब्लास्ट होने पर शरीर में घुस सकते हैं। अशोक परिहार की चोट नं0 6 जोर से लाठी मारने से आना संभव है।”

With reference to the above statement of P.W.-4, it is strenuously urged by the learned counsel for appellants that explosives were used in the commission of the offence, which caused blast injuries and that non disclosure of the use of explosives in the testimonies of prosecution witnesses clearly suggests that the prosecution witnesses of fact have actually not seen the incident. Resultantly the prosecution witnesses of fact were not present at the time and place of occurrence.

137. Mr. Amit Sinha, the learned A.G.A., in opposition to the aforesaid submits that injuries referred to above could have been caused by use of hollow point bullets.

138. In support of this plea, he has referred to various authorities on Ballistic in order to emphasise the impossibility of the (above extracted injuries) being caused by the exit of a firearm bullet and in such circumstances the argument that explosives were used in the crime in question, cannot be accepted.

139. Countering the above submission urged by the learned AGA, learned counsel for some of the appellants namely Mr. Rajiv Lochan Shukla, submits that the argument advanced by the learned AGA regarding the possibility of use of hollow point bullets need not be entertained by this Court particularly as P.W.-4 has not been examined on this aspect with reference to the provisions of the Indian Evidence Act.

140. He further submits that in the event, the prosecution intended to impeach the testimony of P.W.-4 (Autopsy Surgeon) regarding the use of explosives in the crime in question on account of alleged use of hollow point bullets, then the Autopsy Surgeon (P.W.-4) ought to have been confronted with the above. It was only in the above situation that the accused would have an opportunity to counter the same during the course of trial. He therefore submits that the plea as urged by the learned AGA before this Court having not been taken before court below which plea is essentially a plea of fact this Court should not allow the same to be taken by the learned AGA at appellate stage.

141. We have carefully considered the contentions made by the learned counsel for the parties. We find substance in the argument advanced by Mr. Rajiv Lochan Shukla that the plea not raised during the course of trial on which the prosecution witness has not been confronted, cannot be allowed to be raised for the first time at the appellate stage. The manner of examination of witnesses is clearly specified in Section 138 of the Indian Evidence Act which provides a scheme for examination of witnesses on matters in issue. For ready reference Section 138 of the Indian Evidence Act is reproduced which reads as under:

“138. Order of examinations.—Witnesses shall be first examined-in-chief, then (if the adverse party so desires) cross-examined, then (if the party calling him so desires) re-examined. The examination and cross-examination must relate to relevant facts, but the cross-examination need not be confined to the facts to which the witness testified on his examination-in-chief. Direction of re-examination.—The re-examination shall be directed to the explanation of matters referred to in cross-examination; and, if new matter is, by permission of the Court, introduced in re-examination, the adverse party may further cross-examine upon that matter.”

142. It is true that some of the injuries sustained by the deceased resemble to explosive injuries. The Autopsy Surgeon (P.W.-4), who is a prosecution witness and a competent witness regarding above anomaly has been specifically confronted during the course of trial regarding the same. The Doctor (P.W.-4) has clearly opined that some of the injuries on the body of the deceased could have been caused due to explosives. The Autopsy Surgeon (P.W.-4) has not been got re-examined by the prosecution on the issue relating to use of hollow point bullet in the incident. No suggestion was made to the Autopsy Surgeon (P.W.-4) about use of specific bullet (hollow point bullet herein). It is, therefore, clear that the Autopsy Surgeon (P.W.-4) has not been confronted by the prosecution during the course of trial on the possibility of use of hollow point bullet in the incident and therefore, we are not inclined to accept the submission made by Mr. Amit Sinha, the learned A.G.A. that some of the injuries found on body of the deceased which have been opined as explosive injuries were actually caused on account of use of hollow point bullet.

143. An argument was also raised about some of the injuries on the deceased having been caused by hard and blunt object, which was not explained by the prosecution witnesses. This argument on behalf of the accused appellant does not impress us inasmuch as the possibility of such injuries being caused due to inmates colliding with iron rods fixed in the jeep, cannot be ruled out. It is, otherwise, the specific case of the prosecution that the Jeep was in motion when it collided with the Eucalyptus tree. The testimony of the prosecution witnesses cannot be questioned merely on the ground that the deceased were assaulted with hard and blunt objects and that non narration of such facts creates a doubt in the testimony of prosecution witnesses.

144. Mr. Brijesh Sahai, the learned Senior Counsel appearing for some of the accused-appellants has placed the testimony of the first informant/P.W.-1, as per which the accused-appellants started firing on the inmates of the jeep from the front. Incidentally, in his cross-examination, P.W.-1 has clearly stated as under:

"सामने से गाड़ी घेर कर मुल्जिमानों ने ललकारा व फायरिंग शुरू कर दी। सभी मुल्जिमान मेरी गाड़ी आगे से घेरे थे मुल्जिमान द्वारा ललकारने पर पीछे बैठे हम चारो लोग पश्चिम की तरफ भागे थे।"

145. The above statement shows that the accused-appellants positioned their vehicles in front of the Jeep; surrounded them; exhorted; and started firing. The accused-appellants were in front of the Jeep and that is how the four passengers could escape from the back door of the Jeep towards west.

146. This statement of PW-1 is sought to be impeached by the learned counsel for accused-appellants by placing reliance upon the testimony of P.W.-4, who has explained the direction from where the bullets had hit the inmates. The Autopsy Surgeon (P.W.-4), while explaining the injuries caused on deceased Ashok Parihar, has stated that the second injury was wound of entry and could have been caused on the deceased when bullet was shot from the left of the deceased. The exact statement of P.W.-4 is as under:

"अशोक परिहार की चोट नं० 1 Explosive थी/ चोट नं० 2 Entry Wound के रूप में थी जो कि मृतक के बाईं ओर से फायर करने वाले ने फायर किया होगा तब यह चोट आई होगी"

With regard to injury no.4 on the body of deceased Ashok Parihar, P.W.-4 has opined that the same could have been caused from the right side. For ready reference the exact statement of PW-4 regarding above is extracted herein under:

"चोट नं० 4- दाहिनी तरफ से पहुँचाना सम्भव है।"

Qua Injury no.1 on deceased Ram Kishan, P.W.-2 has opined that the same could have been caused from the right side, whereas injury no.3 could have been caused from left side. The exact statement is as under:

"मृतक रामकिशन के शव पर आई चोट नं० 1 दाहिनी तरफ से पहुंचाया जाना संभव है।

चोट नं० 3 बाई तरफ से पहुंचाई जाना संभव है।"

Similarly in respect of first injury on the body of deceased Naresh Dixit, P.W.-4 has opined that the same could have been caused from the left side. The exact opinion is as under:

"मृतक नरेश दीक्षित के शव पर आई चोट नं० 1 बाई तरफ से पहुंचाया जाना संभव है। चोट नं० 3 व 4 अग्नेयास्त्र से निकली हुई गोली के रगड़ से आ सकती है। यह चोट बाई तरफ से पहुंचाना संभव है।"

Similarly, first and third injuries on the body of deceased Hem Singh could have been caused from the right side, whereas the second injury could have been caused from behind. The exact opinion of P.W.-4 in that regard is as under:

"मृतक हेमसिंह के शव पर आई चोट नं० 1 दाहिनी तरफ से पहुंचाई जाना संभव है यह चोट अग्नेयास्त्र की गोली से आना संभव है। चोट नं० 2 पीछे की तरफ से पहुंचाई जा सकती है। चोट नं० 3 पीछे की तरफ से दाहिने से पहुंचाया जाना संभव है।"

The above opinion of the Autopsy Surgeon (P.W.-4) is clearly reflected in the statement of P.W.-1, which has already been quoted herein-above.

In respect of injury no.1 on the body of deceased Gajendra Singh, P.W.-4 has stated that the same could have been caused from the left side, whereas injury nos. 3, 4, and 5 could have been caused from the

"मृतक गजेन्द्र सिंह के शव पर आई चोट नं० 1 बाई तरफ से पहुंचाया जाना संभव है। चोट नं० 3 कुन्द आले से दाहिने तरफ से पहुंचाया जाना संभव है। चोट नं० 4 दाहिनी तरफ से अग्नेयास्त्र की गोली लगने से आना संभव है। चोट नं० 5 दाई तरफ पीछे की ओर से अग्नेयास्त्र की गोली से सामने से आना संभव है।"

Qua injury nos. 1, 6 and 7 on the body of deceased Mahesh, P.W.-4 has stated that same could have been caused from the left side, injury no. 2 could have been caused from the right side, whereas injury no.5 could have been caused from front right side. The exact statement of P.W.-4 reads as under:

"मृतक महेश के शव पर आई चोट नं० 1 बाई तरफ से सामने से गोली से पहुंचाया जाना संभव है। चोट नं० 2 सामने दाहिनी तरफ से पहुंचाना संभव है। चोट नं० 5 अग्नेयास्त्र की गोली से सामने दाहिनी तरफ से आना संभव है। चोट नं० 6 पीछे बाई तरफ से अग्नेयास्त्र की गोली से पहुंचाया जाना संभव है। चोट नं० 7 कुन्द आले से बायी तरफ से पहुंचाना संभव है।"

147. Much emphasis has been laid by Mr. Brijesh Sahai, the learned Senior Counsel appearing for some of the accused-appellants on the following part of the statement of P.W.-4 in his cross-examination:

"मृतक अशोक परिहार की सभी चोटे दाहिने, बाएं एवं पीछे से पहुंचाया जाना संभव है। मृतक रामकिशन की सभी चोटे दाहिने एवं बाएं से पहुंचाया जाना संभव है।

मृतक नरेश दीक्षित की सभी चोटे बायी तरफ से पहुंचाया जाना संभव है। मृतक हेमसिंह की सभी चोटे दाहिने एवं पीछे से पहुंचाया जाना संभव है।

मृतक गजेन्द्र सिंह की सभी चोटे दाहिनी एवं बायी ओर से पहुंचाया जाना संभव है।

मृतक महेश सिंह की सभी चोटे दायें एवं बाएँ से पहुंचायी जाना संभव है।

यह मैं नहीं बता सकता कि यदि मृतक किसी चलने वाले वाहन मसलन जीप में बैठे हो तो उनके ऊपर फायर करने वालों ने दाहिने एवं बाएँ से ही फायर किए हो।

मृतकों के चोटों में कोई चोटे छर्रे की नहीं है सभी अग्नेयास्त्र की गोली की है।"

148. On the above premise, it is urged that while star prosecution witness i.e. P.W.-1 alleges that the accused-appellants surrounded the jeep from the front and commenced firing but none of the injuries sustained by the deceased has been caused from gunshots fired from the front but rather from gunshots fired from the left, right and behind. It is further urged that some variation due to movement of inmates is possible but the direction of bullets when cumulatively assessed clearly reveals that the firing on the jeep was not from the front but from the left, right and from behind the jeep. It is also emphasized that the jeep driver got hit while sitting on the driver seat, where his dead body was found. The fact that the bullets were fired from the right and behind by the assailants, creates a doubt in the testimonies of the prosecution witnesses about the direction of firing by the accused persons, who surrounded the Jeep from the front. The same in turn further creates a doubt regarding the presence of the prosecution witness of fact on the spot.

149. On behalf of the accused-appellants it was also empathetically urged by the counsel for appellants that the existence of bullet injuries on the six deceased from the right, left and behind contradicts the testimony of P.W.-1 about firing on the passengers of the Jeep from the front, which also creates a serious doubt regarding the presence of P.W.-1 at the time and place of occurrence.

150. We now propose to examine the evidence in respect of the argument advanced on behalf of appellants that there are serious contradictions in the testimonies of the prosecution witnesses. P.W.1 has stated that the accused-appellants fired on them also, but the bullet did not hit them and in the cover of trees they could hide themselves at the distance of one furlong from the place of incident. He has stated that after the firing concluded and the accused-appellants left, they came out of the pigeon pee (Arhar) field and stopped at the place of occurrence for 2-3 minutes. All the accused-appellants had left towards Mainpuri. P.W.-1 claims to have come to the Railway Crossing and thereafter took a tempo to come to Mainpuri. This testimony of PW-1 in this regard reads as under:

"सभी मुल्जिमान मैनपुरी की तरफ भागे थे मौके से मैं रेलवे फाटक की तरफ आया और वहाँ से टैम्पो पकड़कर मैनपुरी आया। टैम्पो से मैनपुरी आने वाली बात तहरीर में नहीं लिखी है दरोगा जी ने न तो मुझसे पूछा था और नहीं मैंने टैम्पो से आने वाली बात बताई थी।"

151. P.W.-1 has been confronted with his written report wherein there is no reference of his coming on a tempo, rather he has stated that he came to the Kotwali Police Station, Mainpuri on foot concealing himself on the way. The recital in the written report/FIR is as under:

"मैं पैदल भागकर छुपते छुपाते रिपोर्ट लिखाने आया हूँ।"

152. P.W.-1 when confronted with the aforesaid anomaly has stated that in haste he forgot to mention the fact about his coming on a tempo to the Kotwali Police Station, Mainpuri. At this juncture we may reiterate the argument on behalf of the appellants that the subsequent plea of P.W.-1 coming in a tempo is an afterthought and exposes the fallacy in the prosecution case. The unexplained embellishment is an additional ground to infer that the prosecution story is false.

153. It is admitted to the prosecution that the distance between the place of occurrence and the Kotwali Police Station, Mainpuri is about 9-10 kilometres and the report itself was lodged just after about half an hour. The argument with regard to the anti-timing of FIR has been raised precisely on the ground that it was not possible for anyone to travel 9-10 kilometres on foot and get the FIR registered in half an hour. The argument of Mr. V.P. Srivastava, learned Senior Counsel appearing for some of the accused-appellants is that in-fact the incident of firing was reported by someone else at Police Station-Bhogaon.

154. Since the shoot-out and killing of six persons immediately got the attention of the residents, as such informant/P.W.-1 has cooked up a story on the basis of information received as he was in Mainpuri, where he had political influence (it is an admitted fact that the brothers of P.W.-1 were Ex-Members of Legislative Assembly from Mainpuri). It is thus argued that the initial version in the written report was that the cause of occurrence was the enmity with the accused persons and the aspect of travelling such a long distance on foot apparently escaped their attention. It is urged that when aforesaid anomalies were realized then improvement was made in the statements of the prosecution witnesses regarding the alleged use of a tempo. The same amounts to embellishment in the testimony of PW-1 which remains unexplained. When PW-1 was confronted with the above aspect, he gave the following explanation regarding the same:-

"तहरीर में छुपते छुपाते आने वाली बात लिखाई है टैम्पो से आने वाली बात नहीं लिखाई है इस सम्बन्ध में तहरीर में टैम्पो वाली बात हडबडाहट में लिखने से छूट गयी है इसलिए पैदल आने वाली बात लिखी है। मौके से रेलवे फाटक तक पैदल आया। जिसमें 10-12 मिनट लगे होंगे। रेलवे फाटक पर पहुंचने के एक दो मिनट बाद ही टैम्पो मिल गया था।"

155. In the examination-in-chief, P.W.-1 has stated that after the firing concluded, leaving the three survivors, who were with him, on the spot, first informant/P.W.-1 then came to Police Station-Kotwali. The exact testimony of P.W.-1 reads as under:

"मेरे साथ के तीन लोग वही मौके पर रह गए। मैं कोतवाली आया।"

In the cross-examination, P.W.-1 has stated that his brother Santosh (not produced) said to go and lodge a report and all three survivors would stay around the place of occurrence. The exact statement is as under:

"मेरे भाई सन्तोष ने कहा था कि आप जाकर रिपोर्ट लिखाओ हम तीनों यही आसपास हैं।"

156. As against the above testimony of P.W.1, P.W.-2 has stated that he accompanied his father (P.W.-1) upto the railway crossing and returned after he sat on a Tempo. P.W.-3 has stated that all the four survivors came upto railway crossing and returned only after P.W.-1 got seated in a tempo. This witness has also been confronted with his previous statement wherein this part is missing. He has explained the circumstance in the following manner:

"घटना के बाद हम चारो लोग रेलवे फाटक तक गए थे और वादी सुरेन्द्र सिंह को टैम्पो पर बैठाया था यह बात दरोगा जी को बताया था उन्होंने मेरे ब्यान में नहीं लिखी है तो मैं इसकी वजह नहीं बता सकता। मैंने दरोगा जी को यह ब्यान नहीं दिया था कि मुल्जिमान के जाने के बाद हम चारो लोग छिपकर मैनपुरी गए थे यह ब्यान कैसे लिख दिया वजह नहीं बता सकता।"

157. From the statements of prosecution witnesses referred to above, it transpires that the initial written report (Ext.Ka.1) was submitted by P.W.-1. This witness alleges to have come to Kotwali Mainpuri on foot whereas his version has been subsequently improved upon in his deposition before court below so as to bring a story of coming to the Police Station on a Tempo. P.W.-1 has alleged that the other three survivors stayed behind and he alone came to the railway crossing but P.W.-2 and P.W.-3 have taken a different stand about coming to the railway crossing with P.W.-1 and then they returned from there to the place of occurrence.

158. An argument has also been raised to doubt the veracity of the prosecution witnesses on the ground that it was impossible for the witnesses to have seen the incident from a distance of 40-50 paces while hiding in the standing crops (Pigeon pea - Arahara field). The place from where the prosecution witnesses are alleged to have seen the occurrence is a crater and, therefore, there was no possibility for the prosecution witnesses of fact to have witnessed the occurrence. Therefore, the statements of prosecution witnesses about witnessing the occurrence is highly improbable.

159. On behalf of the accused-appellants, it is also urged that the entire story of P.W.-1, having gone to see his maternal aunt (Mausi), as she was sick, is also doubtful on the ground that neither the name of maternal aunt is known to P.W.-1 nor the story sounds credible as a lady in the family would be expected to accompany other family members and her absence raises doubt in the prosecution case. Reason for taking 7 other persons including the outsiders was the alleged threat to P.W.-1. However, none of these persons had armed himself. According to the learned counsel for the accused-appellants this version in the prosecution story is not credible and the entire story set up by the prosecution is therefore not worthy of acceptance.

160. It is also urged on behalf of the accused appellants that P.W.-1 has himself admitted that Police Station-Bhogaon is at a distance of nearly 3 kilometres and it remains unexplained as to why P.W.-1 had chosen to go to Police Station Kotwali at Mainpuri which is at a distance of 9-10 kilometres, when the above mentioned Police Station is situated much nearer the place of occurrence. Apart from above, it is also impossible to understand as to why after the firing stopped and all the assailants proceeded towards Mainpuri, yet PW-1 choose to go in the same direction, when it is an admitted fact that there was pre-existing old enmity in between the assailants and PW-1 and he was the primary target.

161. The other circumstance to doubt the presence of prosecution witnesses of fact is that none of the four survivors including P.W.-1 to P.W.-3 were witnesses of inquest (panchayatnama) of the bodies of the six deceased, even when they allege to be present at the time and place of occurrence and also at the time when police arrived at the spot.

162. In the cross-examination, P.W.-8 (Investigating Officer) has stated that witnesses of the inquest/panchayatnama of the bodies of six deceased are residents of two different Police Stations. The exact statement is as under:

"मैं अपने काम में व्यस्त था। इसलिये बता नहीं सकता कि मौके निरीक्षण के समय घटना स्थल पर आस पास के लोग आए थे या नहीं लेकिन पंचायतनामों के गवाहान मौके पर थे। पंचायतनामों के गवाहान अलग-2 थाना क्षेत्रों में रहने वाले हैं।"

The testimony of P.W.-1 in that regard reads as under:

"दरोगा जी पंचायतनामा भरा था दो-ढाई बजे रात तक पंचायतनामा भरे गए थे। हम चारों में से किसी ने पंचायतनामा पर हस्ताक्षर नहीं किए थे।

प्रश्न:- क्या आपने पंचायतनामा भरने वाले अधिकारी (पुलिस कर्मियों) को यह बताया था कि मृतको को किस-2 व्यक्तियों ने मारा था ?

आपत्ति द्वारा अभियोजन पक्ष

चूंकि यह साक्षी पंचायतनामा का गवाह नहीं है इसलिए यह प्रश्न इस साक्षी से नहीं पूछा जा सकता।"

The statement of P.W.-2 in that regard is as under:

"लिखा पढ़ी के समय हम तीनों लोग अलग बैठे थे उस समय पुलिस वालों ने ना तो हम लोगों से कुछ पूछा था और न बताया हम चारो लोग पंचायतनामा के गवाह नहीं हैं।"

163. The presence of the prosecution witnesses of fact at the time and place of occurrence is also doubted by the learned counsel for accused appellants on the ground that the statement of P.W.-1 alone was recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C. by P.W.-8 on the date of incident, whereas the statements of other survivors were not recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C.

164. It is also urged that the Police of Police Station Bhogaon including P.W.8 arrived first at the place of occurrence and as per the prosecution case, three survivors (except P.W.-1) were present at the place of occurrence. In that eventuality it would be quite natural that Police of Police Station Bhagaon would enquire from these three survivors about the manner of incident and record their statements immediately under Section 161 Cr.P.C.

The testimony of P.W.-8 S.I. Ram Pal Singh in this regard is relevant and accordingly extracted herein-below:

"चार बजे सुबह तक मैं उक्त तीनों व्यक्तियों का ब्यान अंकित नहीं किया था। वादी का ब्यान मौके पर लिया था वादी के ब्यान से यह स्पष्ट हो गया था कि उक्त तीनों व्यक्ति घटना के चश्मदीद गवाह है समय की कमी के कारण उन तीनों व्यक्तियों का ब्यान मौके पर नहीं लिया। ऐसा नहीं है कि उक्त तीनों व्यक्ति मौके पर हमें न मिले हो और न मैंने उनसे पूछताछ की हो। मौके पर उक्त तीनों व्यक्तियों से पूछताछ का कोई उल्लेख C.D. पर नहीं है। ऐसा नहीं है कि अपने ब्यान खाश में हमने उक्त तीनों खाश व्यक्तियों की मौजूदगी व उनसे पूछताछ करना सिखाने पर बताया हो। मैंने केवल एक परचा इस घटना के सम्बन्ध में काटा है।"

165. The very fact that the statements of these three survivors were not recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C. raises a serious doubt regarding their presence at the time and place of occurrence.

166. The presence of prosecution witnesses of fact at the time and place of occurrence is further questioned on the ground that the description of the passengers of the Jeep was not correctly mentioned in the FIR and that the name of Ex-Pradhan of Humayunpur is mentioned as "Devendra Singh". The FIR while referring to the passengers of the jeep mentions the Ex-Pradhan of Humayunpur as Devendra Singh. Much emphasis has been laid by the counsel for the appellants on this aspect, as it has later been admitted by the prosecution witnesses that the correct name of Ex-Pradhan of Humayunpur is not Devendra Singh but Ram Kishan.

167. Mr. Arunendra Singh, the learned A.G.A., however, submits that in recording the contents of the FIR, a comma has been inadvertently omitted between the “Ex-Pradhan Humayunpur Devendra Singh”. He submits that one of the passengers of the jeep who got killed was “Devendra Singh”.

168. Our attention has been drawn to the statement of P.W.-1 who has stated that the name of Ex-Pradhan of Humayunpur was not immediately known, as such he was referred to as “Ex-Pradhan of Humayunpur” and Devendra Singh is not his son. This is clearly reflected in the following testimony of P.W.-1:

“हुमायूँ पुर के पूर्व प्रधान देवेन्द्र सिंह का नाम तहरीर में लिखा है स्वयं कहा हुमायूँ पुर के पूर्व प्रधान का नाम हमें उस समय ज्ञात नहीं था इस लिये पूर्व प्रधान के रूप में उन्हें इंगित किया, देवेन्द्र सिंह पूर्व प्रधान नहीं अपितु मेरा लड़का है। तहरीर में मैंने अपने दो पुत्रो देवेन्द्र सिंह व राजेन्द्र उर्फ टिल्लू का नाम लिखा है। प्रश्न- तहरीर प्रदर्श क-1 में अपने लड़के देवेन्द्र सिंह का नाम आपने नहीं लिखा है केवल एक लड़के गजेन्द्र उर्फ टिल्लू का नाम लिखा है?”

In response to the question posed in cross examination about Devendra Singh having not been referred to as son of P.W.-1, the witness (P.W.-1) has furnished the following explanation:

उत्तर:- मैंने तहरीर में दोनों लड़कों का नाम लिखा है। देवेन्द्र सिंह को अपना पुत्र नहीं लिखा है लेकिन वह मेरा पुत्र है।”

169. We have analysed the evidence on record pertaining to above in the light of the submissions urged before us and upon careful and cautious evaluation of the same, we find substance in the explanation furnished by Mr. Arunendra Singh, the learned A.G.A. that the Ex-Pradhan of Humayunpur and Devendra Singh are not one and the same person but are two different entities. Admittedly the name of Ex-Pradhan of Humayunpur is “Ram Kishan” and not “Devendra Singh”. Devendra Singh admittedly was one of the passengers, who got killed in the shoot-out. This anomaly apparently was the reason for some corrections in the inquest report also, where the name of Ram Kishan was mentioned after scoring out the previous description of the deceased.

170. In view of the specific and unambiguous explanation offered by the learned AGA, we are inclined to accept the argument of Mr. Arunendra Singh, the learned A.G.A. as per which the Ex-Pradhan of Humayunpur and Devendra Singh are two separate and distinct persons. The argument to the contrary raised on behalf of the appellants regarding above is therefore rejected.

171. The other limb of the argument pressed by the learned counsel for the appellants is regarding to the involvement of Subhash Pandey gang in the commission of the crime in question. The basis for such claim is the assertion reflected in the case diary regarding an incident of Police encounter in respect of which Case Crime No. 539 of 1996 under Section 307 I.P.C. was registered at Police Station Kotwali, District Mainpuri. In this incident certain empties were recovered by the Police from the place of occurrence. According to the learned counsel for appellants, the informant Surendra Singh (P.W.-1) has enmity with various persons and dozen of criminal cases are registered against his sons, namely, Mallu and Santosh relating to loot, robbery, dacoity, kidnapping, murder etc. Subhash Pandey allegedly is a criminal, who was operating a gang. Brother of Subhash Pandey, namely, Subedar Pandey was killed allegedly by Rakshpal Singh, who is the brother-in-law of informant's real brother Shiv Raj Singh. The real sister of Rakshpal Singh, namely, Kanti Devi was married to Shiv Raj Singh. It is further alleged that the informant (P.W.-1) with his real brothers, namely, Shiv Raj Singh and Updesh Singh used to actively help Rakshpal Singh with whom Subhash Pandey maintained enmity.

172. Soon after the incident of shoot-out in respect of which Case Crime No. 286 of 1996 was registered, the Superintendent of Police, Mainpuri and the Inspector of Police Station-Bhogaon as well as other police personnel apparently suspected the role of Subhash Pandey gang in the commission of the shoot-out. Pursuant to the order of the Superintendent of Police, Mainpuri and with the permission of the Chief Judicial Magistrate, Mainpuri, some of the empties recovered in the incident (Case Crime No. 286 of 1996) were sent to Forensic Science Laboratory, Agra for matching them with some of the empties recovered in the incident (Case Crime No. 539 of 1996) with regard to the Police encounter. The Scientific Officer of F.S.L. Agra submitted the report dated 31st October, 1996, which is on record as Paper No. 131A/10. After comparing the empties recovered from the aforementioned two incidents, the Scientific Officer opined as under in his FSL report:

अपराध सं० 539/96 थाना कोतवाली मैनपुरी के घटनास्थल से प्राप्त खोखे कारतूस चि० ईसी-32 व ईसी- 34 उसी आग्नेयास्त्र से चले हैं जिससे घटनास्थल से प्राप्त खोखे

कारतूस चि० ईसी-15, ईसी-17 व ईसी-19 तथा मारुति कार से प्राप्त खोखे कारतूस चि० ईसी-29 चले हैं।

अपराध सं० 539/96 थाना कोतवाली मैनपुरी के घटनास्थल से प्राप्त शेष दो कारतूस चि० ईसी-31 व ईसी-33 अन्य आग्नेयास्त्रों द्वारा चले हैं।"

173. This report has, however, not been produced by the prosecution but has been brought on record by the defence. According to the defence, the prosecution has not been fair and impartial in conducting the investigation in the present case and that is why the evidence relating to involvement of Subhash Pandey gang in the present incident has been deliberately excluded, as it would have demolished the entire prosecution case.

174. The arguments at length have been advanced from both sides with regard to the admissibility of the F.S.L. report Agra dated 31st October, 1996 (Paper No. 131A/10) as also the extent of reliability which could be placed upon such evidence. It therefore becomes imperative for us in such circumstances to address on the aspect relating to the evidence regarding involvement of Subhash Pandey gang in these two incidents.

175. The photo copy of the report of the F.S.L. Agra sent by the Joint Director, F.S.L. Agra dated 31st October, 1996 under the signatures of Ramesh Kumar Rawat, Scientific Officer vide office order no. /96168531/Agney/349 addressed to the Chief Judicial Magistrate, Mainpuri is on record. The defence, in addition to above, placed such photo copy on record, has produced the testimony of Rajesh Kumar Singh (D.W.-3) who was Inspector in C.B.C.I.D. Agra between July, 1997 to July, 1999. From 31st July, 1998 this witness had partly conducted the investigation in C.B. No. 420/98 arising out of Case Crime No. 286 of 1999. In his deposition, D.W.-3 has stated that the report of the F.S.L. Agra was incorporated in case diary on 1st May, 1999 and he had also recorded the statement of Ram Pal Singh, Officiating Inspector. In his examination-in-chief D.W.-3 has deposed as under:

".....एक्सपर्ट रिपोर्ट की मूल प्रति पत्रावली पर कागज सं० उपलब्ध है इस रिपोर्ट के परिणाम वाले कालम में अप०सं० 539 /96 थाना कोतवाली मैनपुरी के घटना स्थल से प्राप्त खोखे कारतूस चि० ई०सी०-32 व ई०सी०-34 उसी अमनेयाख से चले है जिससे घटना स्थल से प्राप्त खोखे कारतूस चि० ई०सी०- 15, ई०सी०- 17, ई०सी०-19 तथा मारुति कार से प्राप्त खोखा कारतूस चि० ई०सी०-29 चले है अप०सं० 539/96 थाना कोतवाली मैनपुरी के घटना स्थल से प्राप्त शेष दो कारतूस चि० ई०सी०-31 व ई०सी०-33 अमनेयाख द्वारा चले है। मैने इस केस की तफतीश दिनांक 31.7.98 से 13.5.99 तक की है। इसके बाद यह तफतीश श्री महक सिंह द्वारा की गई है दिनांक 5.2.99 को मैने रामपाल सिंह के बयान में अंकित किया है कि तलविदा विजय सिंह काजला, एच०सी० रघुनाथ सिंह सी०/ बनीसिंह मौके पर घटना स्थल पर आए थे। निरीक्षक रामपाल सिंह के बयान में गवाह सुरेन्द्र सिंह, देवेन्द्र सिंह, सन्तोष एवं सन्तोष गुप्ता के मौके पर पहुचने/मिलने का 161 सीआर०पी०सी० में उल्लेख नहीं है अपराध संख्या की विवेचना में पूर्व विवेचक द्वारा की गई कार्यवाही का संछिप्त कथन अंकित किया जाता है।"

176. This witness has also been cross-examined wherein he has stated that investigation could not be concluded by him and no supplementary report under Section 173 (2) Cr.P.C. was submitted by him. However, there is no challenge to the correctness of report of the F.S.L. Agra nor the report has even been questioned by the prosecution. No suggestion has even been given to this witness for doubting the report of the F.S.L. Agra. The conclusions drawn in the report of the F.S.L. have also not been questioned.

177. In addition to the testimony of D.W.-3, the defence has also produced S.C. Pal (D.W.-4), who was Inspector in C.B.C.I.D. Agra Division, Agra between 30th November, 1996 to 28th January, 1998. He has stated that between the same parties a previous shoot-out was carried out on 23rd May, 1996 in which a report was lodged against seven persons by Shiv Raj Singh, brother of the informant (P.W.-1) against Ramakant and others. This case was registered as Case Crime No. 153 of 1996 under Sections 147, 148 and 302 I.P.C. in which final report was submitted on 7th July, 1996. A cross case was also lodged from the side of the accused, wherein Jagannath Dixit was the informant, under Sections 147, 148, 149, 307 and 302 I.P.C. at Police Station-Bhgaon. In this cross case a charge-sheet was submitted against the informant of this case, namely, Surendra Singh (P.W.-1), his two brothers, namely, Shiv Raj Singh and Upedesh Singh, his son Mallu as well as one Sushil Gupta on 7th July, 1996. These materials were included in the case diary. This witness in his deposition has clearly stated that the higher authorities had suggested the previous Investigating Officer Mr. Nand Kishor Mall of involvement of Subhash Pandey gang in respect of which Case Crime No. 539 of 1996 was lodged. On interrogation, this witness was informed by one Mr. Mall that some of the empties recovered in two cases were sent on the direction of the Senior Superintendent of Police for forensic examination. This witness has also stated that the informant/P.W.-1 Surendra Singh had disclosed him on 15th May, 1997 that he had not gone to Bhogaon Police Station as the Police of Bhogaon Police Station was under the influence of the accused persons. In his further cross-examination he has stated that no further investigation about Subhash Pandey gang was made by him and the case diary only records as was informed to him by the Inspector Sri Nand Kishor Mall.

178. The defence had also produced Mahak Singh, retired Inspector, C.B.C.I.D. as D.W.-6, who had investigated this case between 18th February, 2000 to 14th March, 2000. This witness has stated that during investigation he found that in 1984 the elder brother of Subhash Pandey, namely, Subedar Pandey was killed in village Elahabas, Police Station Elow, wherein Tukpal Singh, Rakshapal Singh and few others were suspected to be accused and in respect of which Case Crime No. 183 of 1984 under Sections 302 and 394 I.P.C. was registered. He also found that sister of Rakshapal Singh, namely, Kanti Devi is married to Shiv Raj Singh on account of which enmity was going on between the informant's party and Subhash Pandey gang.

179. In his further cross-examination this witness stated that he came to know that the accused persons were also known to Subhash Pandey. He clarified his statement while stating that the accused Anand Dixit was known to Subhash Pandey gang. There is no relationship between them. He also discovered the criminal history of 9 cases against Subhash Pandey. He also stated that none of the witnesses in this case had disclosed to him about the involvement of Subhash Pandey gang in the commission of the offence.

180. The first and foremost since we have to consider is as to whether the F.S.L. report dated 31st October, 1996 i.e. Paper No. 131A/10 can be read in evidence in this case or not? This report is the photo copy and its original has not been produced. This document could be in possession of the prosecution and cannot be expected to be available with the defence. The reference of this document is clearly made in the case diary which we have perused.

181. The defence has tried to bring this document as secondary evidence since the original was not available and to prove the same. The defence has produced D.W.-3, D.W.-4 and D.W.-6 in this regard. All these defence witnesses had been Investigating Officers of the case while the investigation was with the C.B.C.I.D.

182. We are informed that the decision to transfer the investigation to C.B.C.I.D. was ultimately quashed but during the course of argument our attention has not been drawn to any such order. However, existence of such fact is not doubted even by the appellants. The mere fact that the investigation was restored to Civil Police would not mean that the material collected during the course of investigation by the C.B.C.I.D. cannot be looked into. The Investigating Officers of C.B.C.I.D. i.e. D.W.-3, D.W.-4 and D.W.-6 have specifically stated that the decision was taken by the higher authorities for recovered empties to be sent to F.S.L. Agra in order to explore the possibility of the involvement of Subhash Pandey gang in this shoot-out/incident. The F.S.L. report dated 31st October, 1996 has been taken note off by D.W.-3, D.W.-4 and D.W.-6 and the contents of the said report have been mentioned in the case diary. The scientific report is otherwise a report which need not be proved by producing the Scientific Officer/Forensic Expert by virtue of the exception carved out in Section 293 Cr.P.C. The defence has placed the photo copy of the scientific report and has also shown that the contents of this report were recorded in the case diary but the prosecution at no stage has either challenged the existence of this report or the incorporation of the contents of the report in the case diary. The prosecution has also not furnished any explanation as to why involvement of Subhash Pandey gang had not been investigated further, despite the F.S.L. report, as per which some of the empties recovered in the Case Crime Nos. 539 of 1996 and 286 of 1996 were fired from the same firearm.

182. The learned AGA has contradicted the argument raised by the learned counsel for accused appellants regarding involvement of Subhash Pandey gang in the present incident on the basis of F.S.L. report dated 31st October, 1996. It is urged by the learned AGA that no firearm was recovered from any of the two places of occurrence and in its absence it is not conclusively proved on the strength of the F.S.L. report alone that the some of the empties recovered in both the incidents were fired from the same firearm.

183. The above objection of Mr. Amit Sinha, the learned A.G.A. has been opposed by Mr. Rajiv Lochan Shukla, who by placing reliance upon the Literature regarding Forensic Science has endeavoured to show that even in the absence of firearm, it was possible to hold that the empties recovered from two different places of occurrence were fired from the same weapon.

184. Irrespective of the submissions urged on behalf of the parties regarding the admissibility of FSL Report, we do find that material in the form of FSL Report dated 31.10.1996 had surfaced on record during investigation suggesting possible involvement of Subhash Pandey Gang in the shoot-out in question. The investigation has neither probed this line of investigation nor has disclosed any reasons to give it up. The FSL Report has otherwise been suppressed. This unexplained act of the investigation does create a shadow of doubt upon the conduct of the investigating agency in not completing the investigation, in the light of the above FSL Report, to a logical conclusion.

CONCLUSIONS ON THE BASIS OF ANALYSIS

185. The prosecution on the commencement of trial has set out to prove the incident of shoot-out in question as per which it was the accused-appellants who indiscriminately fired on the jeep in which the deceased, three prosecution witnesses and one else were travelling and led to the brutal murder of six passengers travelling therein. According to the prosecution the incident is seen by three prosecution witnesses of fact i.e. P.W.-1, P.W.-2 and P.W.-3 who are said to have jumped out of the running jeep alongwith another from the back door and have further witnessed the occurrence. The evidence on record reveals that these witnesses of fact are highly interested witnesses and their credibility and reliability as well as their presence at the place of occurrence becomes doubtful on account of the facts noted hereinabove and also their criminal antecedents. We are, therefore, called upon to determine whether the prosecution witnesses of fact are credible and their statements are worthy of trust before returning a finding regarding the guilt of the accused appellants beyond doubt or their innocence.

186. We have already referred to the various anomalies in the prosecution case with reference to the credibility and reliability of the prosecution witnesses of fact, the various contradictions and embellishment in their statements, their presence at the time and place of occurrence being seriously doubtful, the medical evidence not corroborating the ocular version, the long pre-existing enmity in between the accused-appellants and the first informant PW-1. Upon evaluation of the entire material on record with caution and circumspection we however find it difficult to agree with the reasoning and the conclusion recorded by the trial court. Having gone through the record and upon critical appraisal and appreciation of the evidence on record in the light of the submissions urged for and against the appeals as noted above we are inclined to allow the appeals preferred by the accused-appellants, who are otherwise in custody and have undergone incarceration for more than 18 years for the following reasons:-

(I) it seems doubtful to us that the four passengers of the jeep (including the three witnesses of fact, namely, P.W.-1, P.W.-2 and P.W.-3) could jump out of a running jeep and escape unhurt when ten armed men are indiscriminately firing at the jeep. We further find it difficult to believe that in such a shoot-out, the prime suspect (P.W.-1) would be spared by the assailants, particularly when they (the four who escaped) were unarmed and in close range of the assailants and were also seeing the assailants. It is apparent from the nature of the crime that the assailants had no intentions to spare any of the passengers of the jeep. We have difficulty in accepting the explanation of the prosecution witnesses that they jumped out of the running jeep, without sustaining any injury, and hide themselves at a distance of 40 to 50 paces in a pigeon pea field (arahar) and witnessed the occurrence from there. We have already stated in the earlier part of this judgment that the place from where the three prosecution witnesses of fact are alleged to have witnessed the occurrence is a crater in a pigeon pea field (Arahar) and, therefore, it was virtually impossible for the prosecution witnesses of fact to have witnessed the occurrence. The witnesses of fact have alleged that they were fired upon by the accused but they escaped unhurt because the jeep came in between them and the assailants. Even if this was to be accepted, we find it unnatural that having spotted these four passengers, the assailants would allow them to leave and would not walk a few paces further to eliminate them, particularly when P.W.-1 was their prime suspect on account of their pre-existing enmity. We, therefore, do not find the testimonies of the prosecution witnesses of fact trustworthy and reliable, particularly as they are highly interested witnesses. Their very presence at the place of occurrence is doubtful and hence their testimonies are not worthy of trust.

Having given our anxious consideration and upon realistic assessment we find that it would not be safe us to rely upon the statements of the three eye witnesses in view of their incredible character for the reasons noted above.

187. We are further inclined to ignore the minor inconsistencies and contradictions in the testimonies of the prosecution witnesses. But even if we ignore them, yet, we find that it would not be prudent to rely upon the prosecution case as explained by the three prosecution witnesses of fact. In this regard we deem it appropriate to clarify that many of the issues pressed by the learned counsel for accused-appellants do not merit serious consideration like inconsistencies in the prosecution case about P.W.-1 going to meet his ailing maternal aunt (Mausi) or the fact that no ladies had accompanied them though several persons had gone with P.W.-1 to cater to his safety but none of them carried any firearm or weapon; the fact that the prosecution version is shaky on account of two inmates, namely, Naresh Dixit and Ram Kishan (former Pradhan) joining later on the Mainpuri jail crossing; whether the witnesses have seen the incident from pigeon pea (Arhar) field or mustered field; the contradiction in the timing when the autopsy was concluded; error in recording the name of Pradhan of Humayunpur, namely Ram Kishan etc. yet the prosecution does not succeed in establishing its case beyond doubt for the reasons set-forth above.

188. We also find some substance in the argument of the learned counsel for the appellants about the possibility of Subhash Pandey gang being responsible for carrying out the shoot-out with whom also the informant's side had inimical relations. As already noted above, the FSL Report submitted by the FSL Agra was incorporated in the case diary which clearly shows that the empties recovered from different incidents were fired from the same weapon. In spite of this the Investigating Officer has not taken the investigation to its logical end. Even if the FSL Report is not strictly read in evidence, yet, it being a material gathered during investigation was required to have been further probed to ascertain involvement of Subhash Pandey Gang in the shoot-out and the failure of investigation to do so has rendered the investigation questionable.

189. When the judgment of the trial court is examined in the light of the facts and circumstances of the case, the inherent fallacy in the prosecution story which the prosecution set out to prove and noticed by us in the previous part of this judgment coupled with the fact that the prosecution witnesses of fact are not credible, therefore, their testimonies are not worthy of trust, the very presence of the three prosecution witnesses of fact at the time and place of occurrence being not fully established, the ocular version of the occurrence not being corroborated by the medical evidence, we have no hesitation to hold that the findings returned by the trial court for recording the guilt of accused-appellants are not only illegal but also perverse.

190 Summing up our conclusions, we have no hesitation to hold that the prosecution has not been able to establish the very story which it set out to prove, on the basis of evidence adduced by the prosecution itself. Having said so, we disapprove the findings returned by court below and also the reasons assigned by court below for recording the guilt of the accused appellants. We, accordingly, disagree with the same.

191. In view of the discussions and deliberations made above, these appeals succeed and are liable to be allowed. They are accordingly allowed. The judgment and order dated 1st February, 2007 passed by the Sessions Judge, Mainpuri in Sessions Trial No. 97 of 2005 (State Vs. Jagannath and 5 Others) and Sessions Trial No. 104 of 2005 (State Vs. Hariom), arising out of Case Crime No. 286 of 1996, under Sections 147, 148, 302/149, 307/149 I.P.C., Police Station-Bhogaon, District-Mainpuri, against the accused-appellants, is hereby set aside.

Jayendra Thaker, J. & Hon'ble Umesh
Chandra Sharma, J.)

1. Heard Sri Jugal Kishor Khanna assisted by Sri Amit Khanna, learned counsel for the appellants in both these appeals and the learned AGA for the State in both these appeals.

2. These appeals challenge the judgment and order dated 19.02.2018 passed by Special Judge (SC/ST Act)/Additional Sessions Judge, Court No.2, Farrukhabad in Sessions Trial No.91 of 2014 (State Vs. Aslam Noor Khan and another) convicting accused-appellants under Sections 452, 304/34 of Indian Penal Code, 1860 (hereinafter referred to as 'IPC') and sentenced them to undergo imprisonment for life with fine of Rs.10,000/- under Section 304/34 of IPC and in default of fine further to undergo six months additional imprisonment each and they have been also convicted for three years rigorous imprisonment each under Section 452 IPC and fine of Rs.5,000/- and in case of default of payment of fine, further to undergo three months additional imprisonment each.

3. Factual scenario as culled out from the record and the judgment of the court below are that both the accused tried to do away with the wife of informant by setting her ablaze. The incident took place on 04.11.2013 at 06:00 p.m. in the evening when the deceased requested the accused to return/leave the land belonging to the deceased as they were hand to mouth. This request caused anger in mind of both accused. Aslam Noor Khan started using filthy language. The deceased went in her house, the two followed her and poured kerosene on her and set her ablaze.

4. The postmortem report shows that there were antemortem burn injuries on face, neck, chest, arms and both the legs. The death was due to septicemic shock as a result of antemortem burn injuries. The death occurred on 14.11.2023 namely after 10 days of the incident.

5. On investigation being put into motion, the investigating officer recorded the statements of all the witnesses and submitted the charge sheet to the learned Magistrate. The learned Magistrate summoned the accused and committed them to Court of Sessions as prima facie they were to be tried for offences committed under Sections 304, 452, 504 IPC read with Section 34 IPC.

6. On being summoned, the accused persons pleaded not guilty and wanted to be tried. The charges were framed for conviction of offences under Sections 452, 504, 304 read with Section 34 of IPC. The trial started and the prosecution examined 10 witnesses who are as follows:-

1	Shahnawaj Khan	PW-1
2	Yusuf Khan	PW-2
3	Ajit Pratap Singh	PW-3
4	Manish Kumar	PW-4
5	Dr. Kalka Prasad	PW-5
6	Khush Nawaj	PW-6
7	Rukhsar	PW-7
8	Virendra Kumar Yadav	PW-8
9	Mahendra Pal Singh Chauhan	PW-9
10	Rajendra Prasad Chaudhari	PW-10

7. In support of ocular version following documents were filed:-

1	FIR	Ex.Ka-2
2	Written Report	Ex.Ka-1
3	Dying Declaration	Ex.Ka-12
4	Postmortem Report	Ex.Ka-8
5	Panchayatnama	Ex.Ka-4
6	Charge Sheet	Ex.Ka-9
7	Site Plan	Ex.Ka-10

8. At the end of the trial and after recording the statement of the accused under Section 313 CrPC and hearing arguments on behalf of prosecution and the defence, the learned Sessions Judge convicted the appellants as mentioned above.

9. It is submitted by learned counsel for the appellants that the witnesses of facts have not supported the prosecution and therefore, the accused are entitled to be acquitted. In support of his submission learned counsel has relied on the decisions in G.V. Siddhramesh Vs. State of Karnataka, (2010) 3 SCC 152; Hari Om Vs. State of Haryana and another, 2014 0 Supreme (SC) 783; Ravi Pratap Singh Vs. State of UP, 2020 SCC OnLine All 841; Chhaganbhai Limjibhai Palas Vs. State of Gujarat, Criminal Appeal No.806 of 2011; Raju @ Rajeev Vs. State of UP, Criminal Appeal No.4701 of 2013; Shyam Mishra Vs. State of UP, 2022 (9) ADJ 322 (DB) and State of UP Vs. Madan Mohan and others, AIR 1989 SC 1519 and has contended that there is faulty charge. The learned counsel for the appellants has submitted that this is a case which does not go beyond Section 304 Part-I or Part-II of IPC. It is submitted that there was quarrel between accused and deceased, there was no intention on part of the accused to do away with the deceased. It is further submitted that the dying declaration should not have been relied by the learned Trial Judge, reason being, the officer who had noted the dying declaration was not examined on oath.

11. As against this, learned AGA for the State has contended that the dying declaration is believable. The learned Judge has not committed any error or there is no error which calls for interference by this Court in these appeals.

12. We have heard learned counsels for the parties. The fact that the dying declaration of the deceased was recorded on 05.11.2013 where the deceased categorically mentioned the name of accused appellants to have first beaten her and then set her ablaze.

13. Learned counsel for the appellants has submitted that the deceased died due to burn injuries which she sustained accidentally while cooking food. While going through the dying declaration and the postmortem report, we cannot accept the submission of counsel for the accused-appellants that it was an accidental death, the accused authored the offence.

14. Therefore, we are of the considered opinion that the learned Judge has not committed any mistake in relying on the dying declaration. In the light of the decision in Govindappa and others Vs. State of Karnataka, (2010) 6 SCC 533, there is no reason for us not to rely on the dying declaration. The evidentiary value under Section 32 of Evidence Act, 1872 fulfils the contours of acceptance of dying declaration. We are convinced that PW-1 has though declared hostile he has narrated the incident and, therefore, the contention of the counsel that it was an accidental death arising out of accidental burning during cooking in the house belies this fact. The totality of the evidence before us will have to be examined. The finding of fact by learned Additional Sessions Judge that it was a homicidal death and not accidental death is concurred by us and we hold that conviction under Section 304 Part-I IPC has been properly recorded and the terms laid down by courts are satisfied as discussed herein after.

15. The question which falls for our consideration is whether, on reappraisal of the peculiar facts and circumstances of the case, the conviction of the appellants under Section 302 of IPC should be upheld or the conviction deserves to be converted under Section 304 Part-I or Part-II of the Indian Penal Code. It would be relevant to refer Section 299 of the Indian Penal Code, which read as under:

"299. Culpable homicide: Whoever causes death by doing an act with the intention of causing death, or with the intention of causing such bodily injury as is likely to cause death, or with the knowledge that he is likely by such act to cause death, commits the offence of culpable homicide."

16. The academic distinction between "murder" and "culpable homicide not amounting to murder" has always vexed the Courts. The confusion is caused, if Courts losing sight of the true scope and meaning of the terms used by the legislature in these sections, allow themselves to be drawn into minute abstractions. The safest way of approach to the interpretation and application of these provisions seems to be to keep in focus the keywords used in the various clauses of Sections 299 and 300 IPC. The following comparative table will be helpful in appreciating the points of distinction between the two offences.

A person commits culpable homicide if the act by which the death is caused is done.	Subject to certain exceptions culpable homicide is murder if the act by which the death is caused is done.

INTENTION

(a) with the intention of causing death; or	(1) with the intention of causing death; or
(b) with the intention	(2) with the

of causing such bodily injury as is likely to cause death; or	intention of causing such bodily injury as the offender knows to be likely to cause the death of the person to whom the harm is caused;
KNOWLEDGE	KNOWLEDGE
(c) with the knowledge that the act is likely to cause death.	(4) with the knowledge that the act is so immediately dangerous that it must in all probability cause death or such bodily injury as is likely to cause death, and without any excuse for incurring the risk of causing death or such injury as is mentioned above.

17. In latest decision in Khokan@ Khokhan (Supra) where the facts were similar to this case, the Apex Court has allowed the appeal of the accused appellant. The decision of the Apex Court in the case of Anversinh Vs. State of Gujarat, (2021) 3 SCC 12 which was related to kidnapping from legal guardian, wherein it was established that the Court while respecting the concerns of both society and victim, propounded that the twin principle of deterrence and correction would be served by reducing the period of incarceration already undergone by the accused. In our case, this is not that gruesome matter where the accused cannot be dealt with in light of all these judgments.

Judgments in Pravat Chandra Mohanty Vs. State of Odisha, (2021) 3 SCC 529 & Pardeshiram Vs. State of M.P., (2021) 3 SCC 238 will also enure for the benefit of the accused.

18. From the dying declaration of the deceased and the depositions of the prosecution witnesses, it cannot be said that it was premeditated act of the accused. The injuries which were caused were burn injuries which show intention coupled with knowledge that man of prudence would know that if somebody is set ablaze, he/she would suffer severe injuries or death may also occur. The investigation were also carried under Section 304 of IPC and charge-sheet was also led under Section 304 of IPC. Unfortunately, the charges framed were for higher offence. Burn injuries were on vital parts of the body of the deceased and it was sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death but would fall in exceptions of Section 300 of IPC.

19. On overall scrutiny of the facts and circumstances of the present case coupled with the opinion of the Medical Officer and considering the principle laid down by the Apex Court in the Case of Tukaram and Ors Vs. State of Maharashtra, reported in (2011) 4 SCC 250 and in the case of B.N. Kavatakar and Another Vs. State of Karnataka, reported in 1994 SUPP (1) SCC 304, we are of the considered opinion that it was a case of homicidal death not amounting to murder and the offence is punishable under Section 304 Part I of I.P.C.

20. From the upshot of the aforesaid discussions, it appears that the death caused by the accused was not premeditated, accused though had knowledge and intention to cause bodily harm to the deceased but did not want to do away with the deceased. Hence the instant case falls under the Exceptions 1 and 4 to Section 300 of IPC. While considering Section 299 as reproduced herein above offence committed will fall under Section 304 Part-I as per the observations of the Apex Court in Veeran and others Vs. State of M.P. Decided, (2011) 5 SCR 300 which have to be also kept in mind.

21. However it is to be seen whether the quantum of sentence is too harsh and requires to be modified. In this regard, we have to analyse the theory of punishment prevailing in India.

22. In Mohd. Giasuddin Vs. State of AP, AIR 1977 SC 1926, explaining rehabilitary and reformatory aspects in sentencing it has been observed by the Supreme Court:

"Crime is a pathological aberration. The criminal can ordinarily be redeemed and the state has to rehabilitate rather than avenge. The sub-culture that leads to ante-social behaviour has to be countered not by undue cruelty but by reculturization. Therefore, the focus of interest in penology in the individual and the goal is salvaging him for the society. The infliction of harsh and savage punishment is thus a relic of past and regressive times. The human today vies sentencing as a process of reshaping a person who has deteriorated into criminality and the modern community has a primary stake in the rehabilitation of the offender as a means of a social defence. Hence a therapeutic, rather than an 'in terrorem' outlook should prevail in our criminal courts, since brutal incarceration of the person merely produces laceration of his mind. If you are to punish a man retributively, you must injure him. If you are to reform him, you must improve him and, men are not improved by injuries."

23. 'Proper Sentence' was explained in Deo Narain Mandal Vs. State of UP, (2004) 7 SCC 257 by observing that Sentence should not be either excessively harsh or ridiculously low. While determining the quantum of sentence, the court should bear in mind the 'principle of proportionality'. Sentence should be based on facts of a given case. Gravity of offence, manner of commission of crime, age and sex of accused should be taken into account. Discretion of Court in awarding sentence cannot be exercised arbitrarily or whimsically.

24. In Ravada Sasikala Vs. State of AP, AIR 2017 SC 1166, the Supreme Court referred the judgments in Jameel Vs. State of UP, (2010) 12 SCC 532, Guru Basavraj Vs. State of Karnatak, (2012) 8 SCC 734, Sumer Singh Vs. Surajbhan Singh, (2014) 7 SCC 323, State of Punjab Vs. Bawa Singh, (2015) 3 SCC 441 and Raj Bala Vs. State of Haryana, (2016) 1 SCC 463 and has reiterated that, in operating the sentencing system, law should adopt corrective machinery or deterrence based on factual matrix. Facts and given circumstances in each case, nature of crime, manner in which it was planned and committed, motive for commission of crime, conduct of accused, nature of weapons used and all other attending circumstances are relevant facts which would enter into area of consideration. Further, undue sympathy in sentencing would do more harm to justice dispensations and would undermine the public confidence in the efficacy of law. It is the duty of every court to award proper sentence having regard to nature of offence and manner of its commission. The supreme court further said that courts must not only keep in view the right of victim of crime but also society at large. While considering imposition of appropriate punishment, the impact of crime on the society as a whole and rule of law needs to be balanced. The judicial trend in the country has been towards striking a balance between reform and punishment. The protection of society and stamping out criminal proclivity must be the object of law which can be achieved by imposing appropriate sentence on criminals and wrongdoers. Law, as a tool to maintain order and peace, should effectively meet challenges confronting the society, as society could not long endure and develop under serious threats of crime and disharmony. It is therefore, necessary to avoid undue leniency in imposition of sentence. Thus, the criminal justice jurisprudence adopted in the country is not retributive but reformatory and corrective. At the same time, undue harshness should also be avoided keeping in view the reformatory approach underlying in our criminal justice system.

25. Keeping in view the facts and circumstances of the case and also keeping in view criminal jurisprudence in our country which is reformatory and corrective and not retributive, this Court considers that no accused person is incapable of being reformed and therefore, all measures should be applied to give them an opportunity of reformation in order to bring them in the social stream.

26. As discussed above, 'reformatory theory of punishment' is to be adopted and for that reason, it is necessary to impose punishment keeping in view the 'doctrine of proportionality'. It appears from perusal of impugned judgment that sentence awarded by learned trial court for life term is very harsh keeping in view the entirety of facts and circumstances of the case and gravity of offence. Hon'ble Apex Court, as discussed above, has held that undue harshness should be avoided taking into account the reformatory approach underlying in criminal justice system.

27. Therefore, we convert the sentence of 'life imprisonment' to period undergone for both accused appellants. Fine is reduced to Rs.5,000/- under Section 304 IPC and default sentences are maintained. The accused-appellants be set free if not wanted in any other case. However, if fine is not paid, the default sentence will run after the completion of 9th year.

28. In view of the above, both the appeals are partly allowed. Judgment and order passed by the learned Sessions Judge shall stand modified to the aforesaid extent. The records be transmitted to court below forthwith.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Kaushal Jayendra Thaker, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the appellants and learned A.G.A. for the state.

2. This appeal challenges the judgment and order dated 05.03.2011 passed by Addl. Sessions Judge/Special Judge (Anti-corruption), Bareilly in Session Trial No. 301 of 2001 (State v. Mohd. Azeem and others). All the appellants were charged for offences as defined under Section 304-B IPC and in addition and alternatively, the appellant Nos.3 & 4 were charged for commission of offence as defined in Section 302 IPC also. By the judgment & order dated 05.03.2011 passed by Additional Sessions Judge/Special Judge (Anti-corruption), Bareilly, the appellants have been convicted under Sections 304-B read with Section 34 IPC. The appellant nos.3 & 4 have also been convicted under Section 302 IPC but the punishment at the end except mentioning Section 302 IPC, the punishment of all appellants were convicted under Section 304B read with Section 34 of IPC. The appellant nos. 3 & 4 have been sentenced to life imprisonment whereas appellant nos. 2 & 3 have been sentenced to 10 years of rigorous imprisonment.

3. Brief facts as culled out from the record are that on 18.07.2000 at about 8:00 p.m. sister of the informant was burnt to death after pouring kerosene oil and by being set ablaze by the accused. The accused persons fled away with injured Shakira (deceased) from Bareilly and, lastly, when he came to the hospital, where his sister was lying in a burnt up condition, none of family members from the side of her in-laws were present. The informant finally raised the inference about the commission of the act perpetrated by accused persons in furtherance of their common object of doing away the deceased. The victim also told the informant that the appellants had burnt her by pouring kerosene oil.

4. The accused were summoned and charges were framed by learned Additional Sessions Judge on Mohmad Azeem and Mohmmad Idris whereas all four accused were charged with commission of offence under Sections 302, 304-B IPC read with Section of I.P.C.. The accused-persons pleaded not guilty and wanted to be tried. The offences for which accused were charged were triable by the Court of Sessions, hence, the accused-appellants were committed to the Court of Sessions.

5. The Trial started and the prosecution examined 10 witnesses who are as follows:

1	Jisan Khan	PW1
2	Dr. A.K. Agarwal	PW2
3	Mohd. Mobeen Khan	PW3
4	Dr. K.S. Gupta	PW4
5	Dr. S.K. Saxena	PW5
6	Raja Ram	PW6
7	Mohd. Siddique	PW7
8	Raghubanshi Lal	PW8
9	Bhupendra Singh	PW9
10	Dr. P.N. Pandey	PW10

6. In support of ocular version following documents were filed:

1	First Information Report	Ex.Ka.13
2	Written Report	Ex.Ka.1
3	Recovery momo of Kerosene Oil Lamp and half burn Sofa	Ex.Ka.17
4	Note of Dr. A.K. Agarwal	Ex.Ka.2
5	Statement of Smt. Shakira (dying declaration)	Ex. Ka.4
6	Note of Dr. A.K. Agarwal	Ex.Ka.3
7	Post mortem report	Ex. Ka.5
8	Site plan with index	Ex. Ka.16

7. Should a husband and brother-in-law always be held to have been guilty of demanding dowry and the punished even though there may not be any allegation leveled against them by the deceased wife in her dying declaration where husband was not present when incident occurred and took her to hospital to save her. The brother in-law's name nowhere figured in the dying declaration. A completely concocted story was made out by family members of deceased. This is a glaring case where there is not only miscarriage of justice, but there is overzeal of judge to see that the accused are punished. The learned Judge has devoted more than 80 pages when the matter could have been disposed of, in brevity on the basis of dying declaration of the injured who died after a period of 10 days, wherein a dying declaration, there was no mention that the husband or brother in had set her ablaze. In dying declaration it is mentioned that it was the husband, who had after the incident occurred rushed home from his shop between the women of the house and had taken her to the hospital and got her treated. The brother-in-law was unfortunately not even named in the dying declaration. The learned Judge had relied on the dying declaration even reproducing the same in the judgment and we are convinced that the learned Judge in his overzeal to record conviction has mislead himself into non-observing the tenants and contours of criminal jurisprudence for appreciating evidence when it was grossly pointed out before the learned Judge that the oral evidence by the brother of the deceased, who is involved in the several criminal crimes which has been brought on record. During his cross examination, who has disturbed married life, his testimony which is dimetrically opposite to dying declaration could have been accepted by the learned Judge. The dying declaration nowhere mentions that any amount was demanded either by the ladies of the family or the husband. The omnibus allegations by person whose credence is not worthy of credence has been elaborately discussed by the court below while holding that Section 304-B I.P.C is made out against all the accused.

8. The learned Additional Sessions Judge has convicted the accused-appellants as above.

9. Learned counsel for the appellants has relied on the decisions of the Division Bench of this Court passed in Criminal Appeal No. 1689 of 22017 (Pushpa Devi v. State of U.P.) decided on 05.07.2022 and in Criminal Appeal No.2218 of 2018 (Smt. Kiran and another v. State of U.P.) decided on 29.11.2022 and has contended that there is faulty charge and the charge could not have been re-framed after the examination of witnesses of prosecution side, who did not support the prosecution. This is the contention of the learned counsel for the appellant, and in the alternative, it is submitted that this is a case which does not go beyond Section 304 Part I or Part II of IPC. There was no intention of the accused to do away with the deceased. It is submitted that the death was due to septicemia after 10 days of incident as per the testimony of P.W.1 also that deceased died after 10 days of incident.

10. Learned counsel for the appellants has submitted that the deceased died due to burn injuries which she sustained accidentally while cooking food. While going through the dying declaration and the postmortem report, we cannot accept the submission of counsel for the accused-appellants that it was an accidental death.

11. As against this, learned A.G.A. for the State has contended that the dying declaration is believable and, therefore, the learned Judge has not committed any error or there is no error which calls for interference by this Court in this appeal. Moreover, looking to the gruesomeness of the offence and the evidence of prosecution witnesses, this Court should not show any leniency in the matter. It is further submitted by learned A.G.A. that ingredients of Section 304B of IPC are rightly held to be made out by the learned Sessions Judge who has applied the law to the facts in case.

12. We have considered the evidence of witnesses and the Postmortem report which states that the burn injuries on the body of the deceased developed into septicaemia and that was the cause of death and that it was homicidal death, we concur with the finding of the Court below that it was homicidal death.

13. The dying declaration mentions, the presence of the two women which developed which caused the death occurred due to septicaemia death and, therefore, homicidal death is established.

14. This takes us to the fact whether we can convict the two brothers, namely, Mohd. Azeem and Mohd. Idris. The accused even on basis of dying declaration presence is not established will have to be acquitted as there is no demand of dowry immediately prior to the commission of the incident. The dying declaration categorically states that the incident occurred on the spur of the moment when the deceased was being abused by mother-in-law and sister-in-law (jethani). The allegations required conviction under Section 304-B I.P.C. have been reiterated Girish Singh v. State of Uttarakhand, (2020) 18 SCC 423. The essential ingredients have again being reiterated in Satbir Singh v. State of Haryana, (2021) 6 SCC 1.

15. The prosecution, defence and guidelines prescribed in Satbir Singh (supra) have to be seen in our case. Section 133-B evidence could not have been invoked by learned Judge and pand under Section 106 Evidence Act could not have been invoked.

16. The learned Judge accepted the dying declaration which is silent about any overt act on part of the any of the accused. The accused cannot be convicted for Section 304-B I.P.C. on the oral testimony of the witnesses whose presence is not established. The deceased had remained in treatment for about 10 days, the dying declaration has been relied by the learned Judge by relying on catena of decisions.

17. Hence we cannot concur with the learned Judge as far as the dowry death is concerned, qua any of the accused. There is no evidence to prove that deceased was subjected by anyone to cruelty pursuant to demand of dowry ingredients of Section 304-B are absent. The presumption raised by learned Judge falls to the ground on the basis of the dying declaration, we are fortified in our view by the judgment of Girish Singh (supra)

18. We are of the considered opinion that the learned Judge has not committed any error in relying on the dying declaration. In the light of the decision in Govindappa and others Vs. State of Karnataka, (2010) 6 SCC 533, there is no reason for us not to accept the dying declaration. The evidentiary value of dying declaration under Section 32 of Evidence Act, 1872 is proved. The contention of the counsel that it was an accidental death arising out of accidental burning during cooking in the house has not been accepted by trial court and we have concurred with the same. We are of the view that it was a homicidal death and not accidental death.

19. On 18.07.2000, the brother of the deceased who is shown as PW1. In this case, on whose testimony the learned Judge has heavily relied on the ocular version is the contrary to the evidence on record. He has categorically mentioned that he went to the hospital at Bareilly and his sister was admitted in Hospital and the nurse was looking after her. The oral dying as declaration narrated by the brother is absolutely doubtful and is contrary to the written proved dying declaration of the deceased. Could the learned Judge have relied on this oral dying declaration which is admittedly absent in written dying declaration of the deceased. Even if the said evidence is accepted, it cannot be said that brother-in-law or the husband who were instrumental in causing the incident is accepted by this witness his cross examination. He has accepted that he has strained matrimonial life he was an accused in case involving smack which a contraband. We are not concerned with these facts but this shows the character of the witness who even does not know place where his sister was being treated.

20. This takes us to the next question whether it was a perpetrated murder with common object of doing away with deceased or would it fall within any of the exceptions to Section 300 of IPC?

21. Section 34 of Indian Penal Code reads as follows:

"Section 34 in The Indian Penal Code. [34. Acts done by several persons in furtherance of common intention. --When a criminal act is done by several persons in furtherance of the common intention of all,

each of such persons is liable for that act in the same manner as if it were done by him alone.]"

22. Can it be said that there was common object of doing away with the deceased. The husband and the brother-in-law were not present at the place of the said incident which leaves us with act of two ladies.

23. It cannot be said that there was any common object of doing away with the deceased. Therefore, the conviction with the aid of Section 34 is set aside. The principles to invoke Section 34 and Section 304-B of IPC have not been made out as per Judgment of Supreme Court in Veerla Satyanarayana v. State of Andhra Pradesh, (2009) 16 Supreme Court Cases 316.

24. It would be relevant to refer to Section 299 of the Indian Penal Code, which reads as under:

"299. Culpable homicide: Whoever causes death by doing an act with the intention of causing death, or with the intention of causing such bodily injury as is likely to cause death, or with the knowledge that he is likely by such act to cause death, commits the offence of culpable homicide."

25. The academic distinction between "murder" and "culpable homicide not amounting to murder" has always vexed the Courts. The confusion is caused, if Courts lose sight of the true scope and meaning of the terms used by the legislature in these sections, and allow themselves to be drawn into minute abstractions. The safest way of approach to the interpretation and application of these provisions seems to be is to keep in focus the keywords used in the various clauses of Section 299 and 300 of I.P.Code. The following comparative table will be helpful in appreciating the points of distinction between the two offences.

Section 299	Section 300
A person commits culpable homicide if the act by which the death is caused is done-	Subject to certain exceptions culpable homicide is murder if the act by which the death is caused is done.

INTENTION

(a) with the intention of causing death; or	(1) with the intention of causing death; or
(b) with the intention of causing such bodily injury as is likely to cause death; or	(2) with the intention of causing such bodily injury as the offender knows to be likely to cause the death of the person to whom the harm is caused;
KNOWLEDGE	KNOWLEDGE
(c) with the knowledge that the act is likely to cause death.	(4) with the knowledge that the act is so immediately dangerous that it must in all probability cause death or such bodily injury as is likely to cause death, and without any excuse for incurring the risk of causing death or such injury as is mentioned above.

26. It is an admitted position of fact that the death was due to septicemia and had occurred after 10 days of incident. The accused-appellants are husband, brother-in-law (jeth) and sister-in-law (jethani) of the deceased. The accused-appellants are in jail for more than 10 years and requesting for lesser sentence. Hence, on overall scrutiny of the facts and circumstances of the present case coupled with the opinion of the Medical Officer and considering the principles laid down by the Apex Court in the Case of Tukaram and Ors Vs. State of Maharashtra, reported in (2011) 4 SCC 250 and in the case of B.N. Kavatakar and Another Vs. State of Karnataka, reported in 1994 SUPP (1) SCC 304 & Veeran and others Vs. State of M.P. Decided, (2011) 5 SCR 300, we come to the definite conclusion that the death was not premeditated. The precedents discussed by us would permit us to uphold our finding which we conclusively hold that the offence is not punishable under Section 302 of I.P.C. but is culpable homicide not amounting to murder, punishable U/s 304 (Part II) of I.P.C. We are also fortified in our view by the decisions relied upon by learned Counsel for the appellants in Bengai Mandal alias Begai Mandal vs. State of Biha, Chirra Shivraj vs. State of Andhra Pradesh, Smt. Rama Devi alias Ramakanti vs. State of U.P. &b Smt. Kanti and Another vs. State of U.P. (Supra).

27. It is now to be seen as to what would be the quantum of sentence for the two ladies. In this regard, we have to analyse the theory of punishment prevailing in India.

28. In Mohd. Giasuddin Vs. State of AP, [AIR 1977 SC 1926], explaining rehabilitary & reformative aspects in sentencing it has been observed by the Supreme Court:

"Crime is a pathological aberration. The criminal can ordinarily be redeemed and the state has to rehabilitate rather than avenge. The sub-culture that leads to ante-social behaviour has to be countered not by undue cruelty but by reculturization. Therefore, the focus of interest in penology in the individual and the goal is salvaging him for the society. The infliction of harsh and savage punishment is thus a relic of past and regressive times. The human today vies sentencing as a process of reshaping a person who has deteriorated into criminality and the modern community has a primary stake in the rehabilitation of the offender as a means of a social defence. Hence a therapeutic, rather than an 'in terrorem' outlook should prevail in our criminal courts, since brutal incarceration of the person merely produces laceration of his mind. If you are to punish a man retributively, you must injure him. If you are to reform him, you must improve him and, men are not improved by injuries."

29. 'Proper Sentence' was explained in Deo Narain Mandal Vs. State of UP [(2004) 7 SCC 257] by observing that Sentence should not be either excessively harsh or ridiculously low. While determining the quantum of sentence, the court should bear in mind the 'principle of proportionality'. Sentence should be based on facts of a given case. Gravity of offence, manner of commission of crime, age and sex of accused should be taken into account. Discretion of Court in awarding sentence cannot be exercised arbitrarily or whimsically.

30. In Ravada Sasikala vs. State of A.P. AIR 2017 SC 1166, the Supreme Court

referred the judgments in Jameel vs State of UP [(2010) 12 SCC 532], Guru Basavraj vs State of Karnatak, [(2012) 8 SCC 734], Sumer Singh vs Surajbhan Singh, [(2014) 7 SCC 323], State of Punjab vs Bawa Singh, [(2015) 3 SCC 441], and Raj Bala vs State of Haryana, [(2016) 1 SCC 463] and has reiterated that, in operating the sentencing system, law should adopt corrective machinery or deterrence based on factual matrix. Facts and given circumstances in each case, nature of crime, manner in which it was planned and committed, motive for commission of crime, conduct of accused, nature of weapons used and all other attending circumstances are relevant facts which would enter into area of consideration. Further, undue sympathy in sentencing would do more harm to justice dispensations and would undermine the public confidence in the efficacy of law. It is the duty of every court to award proper sentence having regard to nature of offence and manner of its commission. The supreme court further said that courts must not only keep in view the right of victim of crime but also society at large. While considering imposition of appropriate punishment, the impact of crime on the society as a whole and rule of law needs to be balanced. The judicial trend in the country has been towards striking a balance between reform and punishment. The protection of society and stamping out criminal proclivity must be the object of law which can be achieved by imposing appropriate sentence on criminals and wrongdoers. Law, as a tool to maintain order and peace, should effectively meet challenges confronting the society, as society could not long endure and develop under serious threats of crime and disharmony. It is therefore, necessary to avoid undue leniency in imposition of sentence. Thus, the criminal justice jurisprudence adopted in the country is not retributive but reformatory and corrective. At the same time, undue harshness should also be avoided keeping in view the reformatory approach underlying in our criminal justice system.

31. Keeping in view the facts and circumstances of the case and also keeping in view criminal jurisprudence in our country which is reformatory and corrective and not retributive, this Court considers that no accused person is incapable of being reformed and therefore, all measures should be applied to give them an opportunity of reformation in order to bring them in the social stream.

32. As discussed above, 'reformatory theory of punishment' is to be adopted and for that reason, it is necessary to impose punishment keeping in view the 'doctrine of proportionality'. It appears from perusal of impugned judgment that sentence awarded by learned trial court for life term is very harsh keeping in view the entirety of facts and circumstances of the case and gravity of offence. Hon'ble Apex Court, as discussed above, has held that undue harshness should be avoided taking into account the reformatory approach underlying in criminal justice system.

33. Therefore, accused-persons are punished under Section 304 (Part II) of IPC. As far as the main culprits namely Smt. Azzo Bano & Ajaib Bano @ Jabbo and Smt. Razia Begum, are concerned, they have undergone 12 years of incarceration, hence, we hold that on completing 10 years, they would be freed. Fine not paid be adjusted towards default sentence which is 3 months starting after 10th year of incarceration. As far as the other two accused namely Mohd Azeem and Mohd Idris are concerned, their role in the above incident is not proved. The husband took deceased to Hospital. The brother in-law is not even named in dying declaration, they are acquitted. They need not surrender if released on bail pursuant to order not warranted in any other offence.

34. In view of the above, the appeal is partly allowed. Judgment and order passed by the learned Sessions Judge shall stand modified to the aforesaid extent. Record be sent back to the Trial Court forthwith.

35. The accused are ordered to be released on bail on 11.4.2023, they need not surrender, but if yet not released, they be released forthwith.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Kaushal Jayendra Thaker, J. & Hon'ble Arun Kumar Singh Deshwal, J.)

1. Heard Sri Prashant Kumar, learned counsel for the appellant in Criminal Appeal No. 2942 of 2012 and Sri Surendra Kumar Tiwari, learned counsel for the appellants in Criminal Appeal No. 7154 of 2011 and Sri Patanjali Mishra, learned A.G.A. for the State.

2. Present criminal appeals challenges judgment and order dated 19.11.2011 passed by the Additional District and Sessions Judge, Court No.8, Basti in Sessions Trial No. 24 of 2010 (State vs. Akram Ali and another) whereby the learned Additional Sessions Judge has convicted the accused-appellants for commission of offence under Section 304B of Indian Penal Code, 1860 (for short 'IPC') and sentenced them to undergo imprisonment for life. For commission of offence under Section 498A I.P.C they are sentenced to undergo rigorous imprisonment of two years six months with fine of Rs. 5000/- each and in case of default in payment of fine further to undergo nine months additional imprisonment. For commission of offence under Section 3/4 D.P. Act the court has sentenced accused to undergo rigorous imprisonment of six months each with fine of Rs.1000/- each and in case of default in payment of fine, further to undergo six months' additional imprisonment.

3. Brief facts as culled out from the record are that the accused-appellant Iliyas was married to the deceased two years prior to the incident, deceased was tortured and harassed by the in-laws for non fulfillment of demand of dowry one splendor motorcycle or Rs. 50,000/- cash. On 28.02.2009 at about 1:00 p.m father of deceased got information that accused-appellants Illiyas-husband of the deceased, Akram Ali-father-in-law of the deceased, mother-in-law of the deceased, Jabbar Ali, Mohd. Tayyab had done to death his daughter and set her ablaze.

4. On the basis of F.I.R., the investigation started and charge-sheet was laid. The learned Magistrate summoned the accused-appellants and committed the case to the Sessions Court as the offences alleged to have been committed were triable by the Sessions Court. The learned Sessions Judge framed charges alternate under Section 302 of I.P.C.

5. On being summoned, the accused pleaded not guilty and wanted to be tried.

6. The Trial started and the prosecution examined 12 witnesses who are as follows:

1	Deposition of Sayee Mohd.	PW1
2	" " Habibur-Rahman	PW2
3	" " Sahira Khatoon	PW3
4	" " Saiyed Ali	PW4

11	Charge-Sheet (Mool)	Ex.Ka.17
12	Charge-Sheet (Mool)	Ex.Ka.18
13	Charge-Sheet (Mool)	Ex.Ka.19

8. At the end of the trial, after recording the statements of the accused-appellants under section 313 of Cr.P.C., and hearing arguments on behalf of prosecution and the defence, the learned Sessions Judge convicted the accused-appellants as mentioned above.

9. It is submitted by Sri. S.K. Tiwari, learned counsel for the appellant that the accused have not been proved to have demanded any dowry and death was not due to demand of dowry but as the deceased herself was not happy with the life in the village and wanted to stay with her husband in Bombay, she set herself ablaze. It is further submitted that father-in-law and mother-in-law were staying separately from the husband and wife. The Marriage took place and they were living happily but due to poverty the accused-Iliyas who was working in Bombay could not take his wife there and there was altercation according to D.W.-1 who never went before the police till he was deposed before the court as done in hindi movies, he sprang into action only on 13.09.2011 when he was posed as defence witness, he never came before the police authorities to narrate his version, that act is not done by the accused, may that as it may be. Further it is submitted that conviction is based on presumption and is bad as the appellant has no intention to do away with the deceased. Learned counsel for the appellant has relied on the following authoritative judgments of the Apex Court:-

(i) Criminal Appeal No. 2038 of 2022 arising out of SLP (Crl.) No. 6537/2019 decided on 23.11.2022;

(ii) Criminal Appeal No. 530 of 2020 arising out of SLP (Crl.) No. 3842 of 2020 decided on 20.08.2020; to contend that this is case of clear acquittal/in the alternative if at all offence is made out it is under Section 304 (1) of I.P.C.

(iii) Criminal Appeal No. 1285 of 2018 arising out of SLP (Crl.) No. 8948/2018 decided on 12.10.2018.

10. Learned A.G.A. has submitted that the evidences of P.W-7 and P.W-8 clinches the issue, the death was due to setting ablaze or rather due to the burn injuries which are 100%. It is not the case of the accused that they were not present at the place of the offence and has conveyed to the Court that the trial court has not committed any error in convicting the accused. It is further submitted that in none of the defences it is shown that the accused were not present at the place of offence or they tried to save the deceased. Sri Patanjali Mishra, learned A.G.A further submitted that postmortem report goes to show that it was not a suicidal death but was first beaten and thereafter she was set ablaze. There was blood coming out of the nose. Postmortem report goes to reveal that there were:-

(i) superficial to deep burn all over the body except both sole (about 100%);

(ii) line of redness present at places;

(iii) blood coming out of both nostrils;

(iv) singeing of hair is there;

(v) The entire mass of the upper part of the right thigh is exposed, the femur bone is visible.

11. On hearing the arguments advanced by the learned counsel for the parties, two moot questions are to be addressed by us namely whether the death was homicidal death and whether the offence would be punishable under Section 302 or 304 Part I or Part II or Section 304 B of Indian Penal Code. Before sifting the evidence, it is relevant here to discuss the law pertaining to culpable homicide amounting to murder, culpable homicide not amounting to murder and the dowry death. Section 299 of the Indian Penal Code, which reads as under:

"299. Culpable homicide: Whoever causes death by doing an act with the intention of causing death, or with the intention of causing such bodily injury as is likely to cause death, or with the knowledge that he is likely by such act to cause death, commits the offence of culpable homicide."

12. The academic distinction between "murder" and "culpable homicide not amounting to murder" has always vexed the Courts. The confusion is caused, if Courts loose sight of the true scope and meaning of the terms used by the legislature in these sections, and allow themselves to be drawn into minute abstractions. The safest way of approach to the interpretation and application of these provisions seems to be is to keep in focus the keywords used in the various clauses of Section 299 and 300 of I.P.Code. The following comparative table will be helpful in appreciating the points of distinction between the two offences.

Section 299	Section 300
A person commits culpable homicide if the act by which the death is caused is done-	Subject to certain exceptions culpable homicide is murder if the act by which the death is caused is done.

INTENTION

(a) with the intention of causing death; or	(1) with the intention of causing death; or
(b) with the intention of causing such bodily injury as is likely to cause death; or	(2) with the intention of causing such bodily injury as the offender knows to be likely to cause the death of the person to whom the harm is caused;
KNOWLEDGE	KNOWLEDGE

	dangerous that it must in all probability cause death or such bodily injury as is likely to cause death, and without any excuse for incurring the risk of causing death or such injury as is mentioned above.

13. It is submitted by the learned Advocates for the accused-appellants that the case of the accused-appellant-Ilyas who was very young at the time of incident and has two aged parents would fall within the purview of Section 304(1) I.P.C and the punishment of life imprisonment is not commensurate with the offence and therefore this Court to consider the facts as there was no premeditation, the deceased died due to her wish of staying in a metropolitan city like Bombay which has resulted in her committing suicide. From the upshot of the facts, it appears that the death caused by the accused was not premeditated, accused though had knowledge and intention that their act would cause bodily harm to the deceased but did not want to do away with the deceased. It is submitted by learned counsel that the instant case falls under the Exceptions 1 and 4 to Section 300 of IPC. While considering Section 299 as reproduced herein above offence committed will fall under Section 304 Part-I as per the observations of the Apex Court in Veeran and others Vs. State of M.P. Decided, (2011) 5 SCR 300 which have to be also kept in mind.

14. This takes us to the alternative submission of learned counsel for the appellants that the quantum of sentence is too harsh and requires to be modified even if offence is believed to be committed as per Section 304B of I.P.C. and this Court concurs with the finding of Additional Sessions Judge.

15. In this regard, we have to analyse the theory of punishment prevailing in India.

16. In Mohd. Giasuddin Vs. State of AP, [AIR 1977 SC 1926], explaining rehabilitary & reformatory aspects in sentencing it has been observed by the Supreme Court:

"Crime is a pathological aberration. The criminal can ordinarily be redeemed and the state has to rehabilitate rather than avenge. The sub-culture that leads to antisocial behaviour has to be countered not by undue cruelty but by reculturization. Therefore, the focus of interest in penology in the individual and the goal is salvaging him for the society. The infliction of harsh and savage punishment is thus a relic of past and regressive times. The human today vies sentencing as a process of reshaping a person who has deteriorated into criminality and the modern community has a primary stake in the [11] rehabilitation of the offender as a means of a social defence. Hence a therapeutic, rather than an 'interrorem' outlook should prevail in our criminal courts, since brutal incarceration of the person merely produces laceration of his mind. If you are to punish a man retributively, you must injure him. If you are to reform him, you must improve him and, men are not improved by injuries."

17. 'Proper Sentence' was explained in Deo Narain Mandal Vs. State of UP

[(2004) 7 SCC 257] by observing that Sentence should not be either excessively harsh or ridiculously low. While determining the quantum of sentence, the court should bear in mind the 'principle of proportionality'. Sentence should be based on facts of a given case. Gravity of offence, manner of commission of crime, age and sex of accused should be taken into account. Discretion of Court in awarding sentence cannot be exercised arbitrarily or whimsically.

18. In Ravada Sasikala vs. State of A.P. AIR 2017 SC 1166, the Supreme Court referred the judgments in Jameel vs State of UP [(2010) 12 SCC 532], Guru Basavraj vs State of Karnatak, [(2012) 8 SCC 734], Sumer Singh vs Surajbhan Singh, [(2014) 7 SCC 323], State of Punjab vs Bawa Singh, [(2015) 3 SCC 441], and Raj Bala vs State of Haryana, [(2016) 1 SCC 463] and has reiterated that, in operating the sentencing system, law should adopt corrective machinery or deterrence based on factual matrix. Facts and given circumstances in each case, nature of crime, manner in which it was planned and committed, motive for commission of crime, conduct of accused, nature of weapons used and all other attending circumstances are relevant facts which would enter into area of consideration. Further, undue sympathy in sentencing would do more harm to justice dispensations and would undermine the public confidence in the efficacy of law. It is the duty of every court to award proper sentence having regard to nature of offence and manner of its commission. The supreme court further held that courts must not only keep in view the right of victim of crime but also society at large. While considering imposition of appropriate punishment, the impact of crime on the society as a whole and rule of law needs to be balanced. The judicial trend in the country has been towards striking a balance between reform and punishment. The protection of society and stamping out criminal proclivity must be the object of law which can be achieved by imposing appropriate sentence on criminals and wrongdoers. Law, as a tool to maintain order and peace, should effectively meet challenges confronting the society, as society could not long endure and develop under serious threats of crime and disharmony. It is therefore, necessary to avoid undue leniency in imposition of sentence. Thus, the criminal justice jurisprudence adopted in the country is not retributive but reformatory and corrective. At the same time, undue harshness should also be avoided keeping in view the reformatory approach underlying in our criminal justice system.

19. Keeping in view the facts and circumstances of the case and also keeping in view criminal jurisprudence in our country which is reformatory and corrective and not retributive, this Court considers that these accused person are not incapable of being reformed and therefore, all measures should be applied to give them an opportunity of reformation in order to bring them in the social stream looking to old age of two accused (father-in-law and mother-in-law).

20. As discussed above, 'reformatory theory of punishment' is to be adopted and for that reason, it is necessary to impose punishment keeping in view the 'doctrine of proportionality'. It appears from perusal of impugned judgment that sentence awarded by learned trial court for life term is very harsh keeping in view the entirety of facts and circumstances of the case and gravity of offence. Hon'ble Apex Court, as discussed above, has held that undue harshness should be avoided taking into account the reformatory approach underlying in criminal justice system.

21. Having given our anxious thought and going through medical evidence we are very clear that the deceased died due to what is known as homicidal death not suicide and punishable as per Section 304 B of I.P.C., it was the duty of the accused to show on preponderance of evidence that the act was not committed by them within the seven years of the marriage.

22. The facts goes to show that the culpable homicide was suicidal death, we concur with the learned Judge and invoke Section 106 of the Evidence Act for coming to the conclusion that the death was within 7 years of marriage.

23. The accused Illiyas has been incarcerated for 15 years of incarceration is enough punishment for a young person who was serving in Bombay, the parents were living separately from the children, however, the overt act has been proved by leading evidence and therefore also this Court concurs with the learned Judge, however, we will go by the theories of punishment. We are convinced that death occurred within the meaning of Section 304B of I.P.C. This takes us to the sentencing theories prevailing in India. The husband has been incarcerated for 15 years that period would be enough punishment, looking to the age of Akram Ali and the other accused would now be of 80 years and 70 years respectively, hence looking to their advanced age period undergone would be sufficient for them as punishment.

24. Both these appeals are partly allowed. The judgment and order by the learned Sessions Judge shall stand modified to the aforesaid extent. Record and proceedings be sent back to the Court below forthwith.

Criminal Appeal No. 4774 of 2016

Veerpal & Ors. ...Appellants
Versus
State of U.P. ...Respondent

Counsel for the Appellants:

Sri Rajiv Lochan Shukla, Sri Ankur Singh Kushwaha, Sri Bhishm Pal Singh, Sri J.B. Singh, Sri Jai Prakash Singh, Sri Rudra Pratap Mishra, Sri Ajay Kumar, Sri V.P. Srivastava(Sr. Advocate)

Counsel for the Respondent:

G.A., Sri Pradeep Kumar Bhardwaj

A. Criminal Law - Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973-Section 374(2) - Indian Penal Code, 1860- Sections 147 & 302/149-Challenge to-Conviction- the testimony of P.W.-1 has to be viewed in light of the testimony of eyewitness, P.W.-3 as well as all the other eyewitnesses, including the brother of the P.W.-1 (i.e., the P.W.-5) who all negated the case of the prosecution regarding the guilt of the accused-Though leading questions were put to the hostile witnesses regarding their testimony against the prosecution to the effect that due to threat or a compromise they were giving such a testimony, the witnesses denied the same-P.W.-5, the witness who turned hostile, was the real brother of the deceased and no such circumstance or motive has been demonstrated as proved by the prosecution that would lead to a finding that his testimony is unbelievable-The testimony made by the P.W.-3 and P.W.-8 as hostile witnesses that the deceased was found impaled on the knife like grille behind the shape of the deceased has not been explored by the trial court. The doctor conducting the post-mortem examination (PW-4) that the injuries of the deceased were not stab wounds to create a doubt as to the cause of the injuries- neither the P.W.-1 nor the P.W.-3 nor the P.W.-8 were present at the site when the accused allegedly reached the site of the incident on their vehicles.- It were only the independent witnesses who could have testified the factum of the accused reaching the site and advancing towards the deceased-The location of the P.W.-1 at the time of the incident is itself under cloud in view of the testimonies of P.W.-3 and P.W.-8. The P.W.-8 has testified the reason for the police directing their investigation against the accused that the police were angered by the behaviour of the accused towards them during an incident some days prior to the death of the deceased- the police had stated that since foreigners were involved, the case would be difficult to be proved-There is an important element with regard to lack of adequate lighting at the site and so it is doubtful that the P.W.-1 could have actually seen the faces of the accused from a distance of 67 steps on a winter night-Given the entire facts the circumstances, the accused persons are entitled to benefit of doubt-The case of the prosecution has not been proved beyond reasonable doubt.

The criminal appeal is allowed. (E-6)

To save his life, his brother ran towards the highway and Veer Pal and his brother Kalu @ Balraj, Pammi @ Ram Autar and Bhura, chased him to the open space near his shop and caught him and, they assaulted him with knives and belt, due to which his brother fell on the spot. On hearing shouts, the complainant and his brother Chetram, Devendra, Mahendra, Sahamal ran to save him, but seeing them approach, those people fled away on their Swift car and motorcycle. It was stated that his brother's corpse was lying at the site.

3. An inquest report (Exhibit Ka-3) was prepared on 17.11.2012 and a postmortem examination was conducted and a report (Exhibit Ka-4) was also prepared on the same day. The complainant P.W.- 1 proved his written complaint (Exhibit Ka-1). The FIR (Exhibit Ka-2) was proved by the P.W.-2, Balraj Singh, the FIR writer. of light at the site and in order to maintain law and order, as per directions of the Station House Officer, the corpse of the deceased was sent by a police vehicle to Kailash Hospital for the inquest. The opinion of the witnesses to the inquest was that the deceased-Ved Prakash was murdered by causing knives wounds and that a postmortem examination be conducted. Another recovery-cum-arrest memo dated 02.12.2012 (Exhibit Ka-10) reflects the arrest of one Om Kumar @ Omi, on whose pointing out a knife was recovered. Yet, another recovery memo dated 23.12.2012 (Exhibit Ka-15) reflects that on the pointing out of accused-Sumit @ Bhura, a knife was recovered. On 17.11.2012 from the site of the incident, bloodstained soil was taken and sealed. Normal soil of a nearby area was also taken in a different box and sealed. This recovery memo is Exhibit Ka-17. The aforesaid Exhibit Ka-8, Exhibit Ka-9 and Exhibit Ka-10 were proved by P.W.-6, Anang Pal Singh, Inspector, and Exhibit Ka-15 and Exhibit Ka-17 were proved by P.W.-9, Shyama Kant Tripathi, the Investigating Officer. A site plan dated 17.11.2012 (Exhibit Ka-11) was prepared by Shyama Kant Tripathi, Inspector-in-Charge, Kotwali, Kasna, District Gautam Budh Nagar who also prepared the site plans of the recovery of weapons used for murder bearing Exhibit Ka-12, Exhibit Ka-13, and Exhibit Ka-14, which were proved by him. On record is a report of the Forensic Science Laboratory, U.P., Agra dated 21.06.2014 (Exhibit Ka-19). After conducting the investigation, the Investigating Officer filed a charge-sheet dated 30.12.2012 (Exhibit Ka-18), which was proved by the P.W.-9, under Sections 147, 302 and 34 I.P.C, implicating the five accused, namely Veerpal, Kalu @ Balraj, Pammi @ Ram Autar, Bhura @ Sumit and Om Kumar @ Omi.

6. On 06.09.2013, the First Additional Sessions Judge, Gautam Budh Nagar charged four of the accused namely, (1) Veerpal, (2) Kalu @ Balraj, (3) Pammi @ Ram Autar, and (4) Om Kumar @ Omi under the provisions of Section 147 and 302/149 I.P.C. It appears that one of the accused namely, Bhura @ Sumit was tried by a Juvenile Court in separate proceedings.

7. The complainant/ eye-witness, Ved Pal (P.W.-1), testified on 20.11.2013 and again, pursuant to a recall application filed by the defense, on 17.01.2014. He supported the case of the prosecution as an eye-witness of the incident. P.W.-3, Mahendra, deposed on 09.01.2014 and on that day, he supported the case of the prosecution. However, when he again testified on 15.10.2015, he turned hostile and whereafter, he was cross-examined by the Additional District Government Counsel (Criminal).

8. On 24.02.2015, Chetram (P.W.-5), the brother of the deceased, gave his deposition and denied having witnessed the incident. Since he turned hostile, he was cross-examined by the ADGC (Criminal).

9. Another witness, Devendra (P.W.-7), deposed on 10.03.2015, turned hostile and was cross-examined by the ADGC (Criminal)

10. Another eye-witness, Shahmal, (P.W.-8), who deposed on 14.12.2015, also turned hostile and was cross-examined by the ADGC (Criminal).

11. Statements under Section 313 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 of all the four accused were recorded on 20.05.2016 wherein they denied their culpability and said that a false case was set up against them due to factions in the village and for exacting revenge.

12. After hearing the learned counsel for the prosecution and the defence, the assailed judgment dated 31.08.2016 was passed whereby the accused Omi @ Om Kumar was given the benefit of doubt and was acquitted. As far as the accused Veerpal, Kalu @ Balraj and Pammi @ Ram Autar are concerned, the charges against them were found to be proved beyond any doubt and they were sentenced to imprisonment and fine.

13. Shri V.P. Srivastava, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Shri J.P. Singh, learned counsel for the appellants, submitted that the prosecution has placed reliance on the testimonies of P.W.-1 and P.W.-3. It is submitted that all the accused were allegedly armed with knives who had given knife blows to the deceased. It is submitted that the P.W.-1 and P.W.-3 were not present at the time of incident and in any view of the matter, they were chance and partisan witnesses being relatives of the deceased and, therefore, their testimonies have to be seen very cautiously by the court. It is urged that as per the FIR, the deceased took his last breath at the site of the incident which is corroborated by the FIR, but the inquest was admittedly done at Kailash Hospital, Gautam Budh Nagar and the inquest memo was proved by the P.W.-6. It is submitted that in the inquest report, there is overwriting on the date of inquest and it is reflected therein that there was insufficient light on the spot and also to maintain law and order, under orders of the SHO, the P.W.-6 carried the dead body in a police vehicle to Kailash Hospital where the inquest was conducted. It is contended that there is no valid reason for conducting the inquest at a place other than the site of the incident. It is urged that as per the prosecution case itself, there was ample light at the site and as per Regulation 132 of Chapter-XII of the U.P. Police Regulations read with Section 174 Cr.P.C., the police was required to conduct the inquest at the site. The learned counsel has stated that the P.W.-6 has failed to specify the time of commencement of the inquest. It is stated that the only plausible reason for transfer of the deceased to Kailash Hospital was that the deceased was alive when the P.W.-6 visited the site and he rushed to him to the Hospital accordingly.

14. It is further urged by the learned counsel for the appellants that as revealed in the FIR, the deceased was also assaulted with a belt, but there is no allegation that belt was tied on the neck of the deceased. It is submitted that in the entire postmortem report, there is no injury that can be said to be caused by a belt. It is stated that Pammi @ Ram Autar was arrested on 20.11.2012 and a knife was recovered on his pointing out that was hidden underground. Om Kumar @ Omi was arrested on 02.12.2012 and a knife was recovered on his pointing out from a bush near the underpass. Bhura @ Sumit (who was a juvenile) was arrested on 20.03.2012 and on his pointing out, the knife was recovered from Zero Point from a bush. All these recovered knives were blood stained and blood on them was found disintegrated as reflected in the report of the Forensic Science Laboratory. The two other accused Veerpal and Kalu were arrested on 19.12.2012 and one knife each was recovered from near a shop and from a bush on which no bloodstains were found. These recoveries, it is submitted, have been made purportedly under Section 27 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872.

15. The learned counsel for the appellants has referred to the site plan (Exhibit Ka-11) and submitted that the Investigating Officer has not shown where the P.W.-1 and P.W.-3 and other witnesses were present at or during the incident. He states that even the FIR is silent as to where the witnesses were present. The postmortem report reflects six injuries of which, five wounds were found on the right side and one wound is on the left side of the deceased. While referring to the report of Serologist (Exhibit Ka-19), the learned counsel for the appellant has stated that the bloodstains that were found on the exhibit reflect that other than the item nos.1, 2, 3 and 4 (which are pant, shirt, underwear and handband [kalava]), none of the bloodstains found on the other item have been identified as human blood. It is contended that the consequence of this is in favour of the defence.

16. Learned counsel for the appellants has referred to the provisions of Sections 25, 26 and 27 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872 to contend that the word 'deposed' appearing in Section 27 denotes words "taken down in writing" which are the actual words spoken by accused in the presence of the two independent respectable witnesses who would sign on that deposition. It is stated that it is evident from the recovery memos of each of the alleged weapons of murder, namely knives, that it is not in accordance with the procedure prescribed for taking the deposition of the accused persons. Therefore, in the absence of such a deposition appearing in the recovery memos, no proof of the alleged confession is permissible. In support of his contentions, the learned counsel for the appellants has referred to the judgments of the Supreme Court in the case of Subramanya vs. State of Karnataka; Ramanand @ Nandlal Bharti vs. State of

U.P.3 and the judgment of the Privy Council in the case of Pulukuri Kottaya & Ors. vs. The King Emperor⁴.

17. On the issue of testing the veracity of the evidence of the P.W.-1 and P.W.-3, it is submitted by the learned counsel for the appellants that they are partisan and chance witnesses and their testimonies have to be strictly and carefully considered in view of the judgments of the Supreme Court in the case of Harjinder Singh @ Bhola vs. State of Punjab⁵ (Paras 6 and 14) and in the case of Ganapathi & Anr. vs. State of Tamil Nadu⁶. It is contended that in view of the facts and circumstances, the accused deserve to be acquitted.

18. On behalf of the State, it has been urged by Shri Rupak Chaubey, learned Additional Government Advocate that for proving the offence, the prosecution has to prove (i) the place of occurrence; (ii) time of incident; and (iii) the participation of the accused. It is submitted that subsequent events that do not directly affect the outcome of the investigation, may not be looked into by the courts.

19. It is submitted by the learned AGA that the General Diary entry and FIR were duly proved by the P.W.-2. With regard to the inquest report, it is submitted that the purpose of inquest is only to assess the apparent cause of death and for no other reason. Certain minor irregularities appearing in the inquest report would have no affect on the merit, where other aspects are proved. It is contended that the witnesses turned hostile for the first time only in the year 2015 whereas the deposition of the witnesses had started in the year 2013. It is urged that the P.W.-1 is not a partisan witness but he is a related witness. P.W.-1 is not a chance witness inasmuch as the usage of the road and time is regular for the P.W.-1. The village of the P.W.-1 is near the site of the incident and, therefore, it was natural for him to visit. It is contended that no adverse suggestion/leading question was put to the P.W.-1 by the defence. Learned AGA has referred to the testimony of P.W.-7 who was examined as a prosecution eyewitness who turned hostile later, to contend that this witness has testified having seen the dead body of the deceased at the site. It is contended that the postmortem report corroborates the testimony of the P.W.-1. It is submitted by the learned AGA that the FIR was promptly lodged and the accused persons were named. It is submitted that the time of incident took place in the winter season and, therefore, it is quite unlikely that belt injury marks would appear due to clothes worn by the deceased. It is urged that in any view of the matter, it is a minor contradiction which would have no bearing on the case of the prosecution. It is stated that there is no material discrepancy in the testimony of the P.W.-1. It is further stated that suggestion put to the witness regarding his presence would have no bearing as it does not affect the merit of the case.

20. It is further urged by the learned AGA that P.W.-3 is also a natural witness as he regularly passed that way. Two of the witnesses went to lodge the FIR. It is submitted that the benefit of Section 27 of the Indian Evidence Act may not be available to the prosecution but other facts that are material to ensure conviction of the accused have been duly proved. While referring to the provisions of Section 134 of the Evidence Act, the learned AGA has submitted that even one witness is sufficient to prove the case of the prosecution and the P.W.-1 has proved the case of the prosecution.

21. The point that arises for consideration is that whether the prosecution has been able to prove the guilt of the accused beyond reasonable doubt.

22. The prosecution case is primarily based on eye witnesses account. The FIR dated 16.11.2012 was lodged by the PW-1 as eye witness.

23. In his testimony (examination-in-chief) on 20.11.2013, the PW1-Vedpal supported the case of the prosecution. He has stated that near about the time of the crime, he had gone to the office of the under-construction building (Durga Green), for his business of supply of building materials. When he suddenly heard shouts, he came out of the building and he saw five people whom he could identify as Veerpal, Kalu, Pammi, Bhura and Om Prakash, who had caught hold of his brother, Ved Prakash, and were stabbing him with knives. During his testimony, the PW1 identified Veerpal, Kalu and Pammi who were present in Court and said that they were present at the time of incident. He further stated that two persons were not present in Court, one of whom Omi @ Omkar had his presence exempted and another Bhura @ Sumit was declared a juvenile. He stated that all five of them were stabbing his brother with knives and had held his neck with belt. He saw all of them in the light of electricity as at the site the work of building construction were going on and lights were on. He has stated that on hearing the shouts, his two brothers Chet Ram and Mahendra (Mahendra stated to be not his real brother but a family relation) came to the site and saw the incident as they were returning after selling bricks in Greater Noida. When the PW1 shouted in order to save his brother, the accused persons threatened him. Thereafter they ran away from the site in their Swift car and one Pulsar motor bike and thereafter his brother died at the spot after much agony. Thereafter PW1 came to the police station and lodged the report. He identified his report Exhibit Ka-1. The PW1 further stated that the police came along with him and took the corpse to Kailash Hospital in order to maintain law and order. The inquest report was prepared at the hospital in the presence of five witnesses. After seeing the record of the inquest, the PW1 said that it is the same inquest report which was prepared in the presence of five witnesses and the PW1 identified his signature thereon. Thereafter the police sealed the corpse and took it for post-mortem. The PW1 further stated that he had shown the site of incident to the police officer who had questioned him and he had told them the truth.

24. In his cross-examination, the PW-1 stated that he was sitting at a distance of 60 to 70 steps away from the site of incident in the office regarding supply of building material. In that office the door is situated outside and contains glass and the door was open at the time of incident. On the query made to him regarding non-mentioning of existence of light in the FIR, the PW1 stated that at the time of lodging of the FIR he was consumed with grief. He denied the suggestion that on the basis of legal advice he stated in his testimony regarding presence of electric light. With regard to non-mentioning in the FIR about the belt being used on the neck of the deceased, the PW-1 stated that at that point of time he was consumed with grief. He has stated that each of the five accused had knives. He stated that Pammi had stabbed his brother twice and others had stabbed his brother once each. He stated that other than his four brothers there were some other people also. The PW-1 denied the suggestion that he was not present at the site of the incident and that therefore he could not save his brother. He stated that at the time of making of the site plan by the Investigating Officer, he had pointed out the electricity lights that were lit at the time of the incident. The PW-1 has stated that there were three shops at a little distance from his brother's shop and people from Bihar and Bengal who were mostly labourers used to come and purchase items from his brother's shop.

He stated that he did not take his brother to the hospital because he had already died. He further stated that he had no hope and, therefore, he had not taken him to the hospital. He also stated that neither he nor any of his other brothers touched or held the deceased. However, later he stated that he had touched his brother to see whether he was breathing but his brother was not breathing.

He denied the suggestion that due to dispute regarding money transactions, people from Bihar and Bengal had murdered his brother. He further denied the suggestion that he had falsely implicated the accused on the basis of village partisan politics and enmity. The PW-1 stated that the belt was held by two persons namely Om Pal and Bhura in one hand each and in the other hand they held knives. He has stated that six injuries were inflicted on his brother. He stated that perhaps one knife injury was on the elbow, one on the upper arm, one of the abdomen and three to four knife wounds on the right side of his chest. He further stated that he could not see who stabbed his brother on the elbow as he was at a little distance. The PW1 has further stated that in his presence one knife was recovered from the site which had fallen as the accused were running away and one belt was also recovered. He identified Om Pal and Bhura as the accused who fled on the motor bike and the rest of the accused had fled by car.

25. On 17.1.2014, the PW1 was recalled as witness on an application made by the defense. The PW1 stated that he had two other brothers, Ved Prakash and Chet Ram. Chet Ram was a witness in the case. It was stated that the other witnesses of the case namely Devendra and Shahmal were the cousins of the PW1. The PW1 and the aforesaid two other witnesses stay in separate houses in the village and they work in different places. They do agricultural work. The PW1 works in the field of supply of building material. His father does agriculture work and dairy farming. The PW1 denied having any license for his work for supply of building material. The PW1 stated that his shop of building material is outside the village and is situated on his farm. The name of his shop is Jai Durga Material which is not registered. People engaged in construction used to purchase material from his shop. He denied the suggestion that at the time of the incident the PW1 had no work for supply of building material. He has stated that his shop is situated towards the highway at a distance of half to 3/4th kilometer. The PW1 further stated that from the site of the incident his brother's shop was about 20 to 30 steps away in which he used to run a grocery store. The shop was temporary, made from tin sheets. He further stated that the shop of the deceased would be about 40 to 50 steps away from the building of Durga Green and that building was on the same road on which the shop existed. The PW1 further stated that when he heard shouts, he was in the office. The office is along side the road in which there were one or two people. It was night time and other people had gone away. He stated that the person of the office with whom he had gone to meet was not present in the office but had gone to the work site. He stated that around 8 p.m. he had gone to that office in his vehicle A-Star which was parked outside the office. He had gone to the police station in that vehicle. He stated that when he had gone to the office he had seen his brother Ved Prakash in his shop, no conversation took place between them. One or two customers were standing in his shop. The PW1 admitted that in the FIR he had not mentioned that he had gone to the office of Green Durga to speak to the clerk. He stated that on 15.11.2023 there was an altercation between the accused Pammi and his brother Ved Prakash at the shop of Ved Prakash and the PW1 was not present at the spot when the altercation took place. He stated that Pammi had a business of illicit liquor at that place which was being objected to by his brother Ved Prakash. The PW1 had come to know about the altercation about one or two hours after the altercation. He stated that he did not mention about the altercation that occurred on 15.11.2012 because the matter was settled in the village. The PW1 stated that after hearing the shouts he had come out of the office and other people present in the office also came out. When he came out of the office, his brother was at the same spot where he was found dead. His brother was stabbed when he was standing and even after he fell down he was stabbed. His brother was being stabbed from the side and while standing he was being held from all four sides. After he fell down he was stabbed twice or thrice with knives. When his brother was being stabbed, the PW1 was standing outside the office of the Durga Green about 30 to 40 steps away.

When the accused was stabbing his brother the Swift car and the Pulsar motorbike were parked near the shop. The PW1 stated that he tried to save his brother but the accused persons threatened him with knives. He stated that he had shown the spot to the Investigating Officer where the Pulsar motorbike and the Swift car were parked. The PW1 had showed the Investigating Officer the site after preparation of the inquest report and the Investigating Officer had gone to see the site after the postmortem report. He stated that his mobile phone was discharged and therefore he did not attempt to dial no. 100 for informing the police. He stated that his servant was there at the site and he was sent home to inform about the incident and he alongwith his other brothers went to the police station to lodge a report. He stated that they had reached the police station around 9:30 to 10:00 at night and the report was written at the police station. The PW1 stated that the Investigation Officer had collected the soil etc. in the night itself after preparing the inquest report which inquest report bears the signatures of the PW1. The PW1 denied the suggestion that his brother (deceased) used to sell liquor. He further denied the suggestion that his brother was killed by unknown persons and he has filed a false report against the accused. He further denied the suggestion that he was not present at the spot.

26. The testimony of the PW2, Balraj Singh who was posted as a clerk on

He stated on the basis of hearsay that the Nigerian people had earlier

He further stated that there was a Government liquor shop in his village but these people did not purchase liquor from there as it was expensive and therefore they used to purchase liquor from the shop of Ved Prakash. He stated that there was once a fight and many people including the PW3 were called to the place by Ved Prakash, the deceased, and they had beaten the people who were creating nuisance. In the cross-examination of PW3 done by the ADGC (Criminal), the PW3 admitted that his testimony was recorded on 9.1.2014 in which he had also been cross-examined by the accused. Another knife was recovered on the pointing out by Kalu from the bushes on the other side of the shop. The accused admitted that they had murdered the deceased Ved Prakash using those knives. He said that he buried his knife near a tube-well room. Witness from the public was sought but was not found. Thereafter, Pammi asked the vehicle to be stopped at the location and walked to the rear side of the room of the tube-well and dug the soil with his hands and took out a knife which was stained with blood. The recovered knife was taken in possession and duly sealed. On the dictation of the SHO, the memo was prepared by the PW6 and thereafter it was read out to the accused Pammi and police personnel signed it. This recovery memo Ka-9 was proved by him. A copy of the recovery memo was given to the accused Pammi and he signed on it.

The PW6 further stated that on 2.12.2012 he and the SHO got information about a murder accused being near a temple in Kasna and around 10:15 AM, he was surrounded and apprehended. The accused identified himself as Om Kumar @ Omi. The accused admitted that he along with Pammi, Bhura, Veerpal and Kalu murdered Ved Prakash with knives and after murdering him they ran away. The PW6 identified the five knives which were recovered on the pointing out of the accused. All the recovered items were proved and exhibited.

He denied that the recovery memo and inquest report were not prepared at the spot but were prepared at the Police Station. He denied that the weapons of murder were not recovered from the accused and were from the Police Station, and that he had not prepared the memo at the site. Due to a crowd of people and being dark and for want of adequate light, the SHO got the corpse of the deceased sent from the site to Kailash Hospital Greater Noida where the inquest was prepared. He admitted that due to crowd and less light (darkness) the inquest proceedings could not be done at the site. The witnesses of the inquest reached the hospital directly from the village. Several people from the village had reached Kailash Hospital. He denied that the recovery of murder weapons and the inquest report and other proceedings were not done at the site but at the Police Station, and that they were wrongly done. He denied the suggestion that the recovery memos were not made by SHO but made by him.

33. On 10.3.2015, the testimony of PW7 Devendra s/o Buddhan Singh (eye witness) was also recorded who turned hostile. He identified the accused who were stated to be residents of his village. The complainant Vedpal was stated to be resident of same village. Deceased Ved Prakash was his cousin. He admitted having reached near Chuhadpur underpass on the date and time of the incident. He denied hearing Kalu's (alias of the deceased) shouts for help. Many people had congregated there. He denied having seen Veerpal, Kalu, Pammi alias Ram Autar, Bhura alias Sumit, or any other persons murder Ved Prakash with knives and belt on the vacant land near the shop.

He denied that there was any altercation in the village between the accused and the deceased. He, however, admitted having seen the dead body of the Ved Prakash covered in blood lying on the open land near Chuhadpur underpass.

In his cross-examination by the ADGC, the PW7 admitted that the deceased Ved Prakash is the son of his uncle (Chacha). He stated that the Veerpal and others (the accused) being members of the village were like brothers to him but they were separate from his family. He denied that while returning from his office he had stopped near Chuhadpur underpass on hearing shouts for help from Ved Prakash, and that the accused were stabbing Ved Prakash and beating him with belt. He denied that they killed Ved Prakash and ran away. He admitted having seen Ved Prakash covered with blood. He denied that on 15.11.2012 there was an altercation in the village between Ved Prakash and the sons of Veerpal. He stated that Mahendra (brother of complainant) is the son of his uncle. He denied having seen and recognized the accused persons in electric light. He admitted that the police personal had questioned him regarding the incident. With respect to the statement made under Section 161 Cr.P.C. before the police, the PW7 stated that he had not told the Investigating Officer that on the date of the incident he had seen accused assaulting the deceased Ved Prakash with knives and belt. He denied the suggestion of any covert agreement with the family members of the accused Veerpal and others. 34. On 14.12.2015, the PW8, Shahmal son of Bachan Singh, whose occupation was stated to be welding material work, testified that he knew Ved Prakash. He was murdered on 16.11.2012. He knew the accused who were residents of Chuhadpur. On 15.11.2012 there was no altercation between the deceased and the accused. On 16.11.2012 at night around 8:30 he had not heard the shouts of Ved Prakash. He denied having seen the accused assaulting the deceased with knives and belt and running away from the vacant land near the shop.

He was cross-examined by ADGC (Criminal). The statement under Section 161 Cr.P.C. was read out to the witness. He said that neither police took his statement nor did he give it. He denied the suggestion that on 16.11.2012 at 8:30 at night when Ved Prakash was murdered, he was present there. It is denied that he reached the site on hearing the cries for help from Ved Prakash. He denied having seen the accused assaulting Ved Prakash with knives and belt. He denied that at the site of the incident there were electricity lights and that in that light he had seen the accused present in court assault the deceased Ved Prakash with knives and belt and they ran away after committing the crime. He admitted having gone with Vedpal to the police station to lodge a report and the report was lodged in his presence. He admitted that the accused and he are of the same caste and village. He denied that the accused are of the same brotherhood, neighbours and under pressure of the panchayat held in the village, he was defending the accused. He admitted that the accused Veerpal and others were like brothers to him, being of the same village. It was denied that due to fear, pressure and allurement by the accused he was not telling the true facts.

In cross-examination by counsel of the accused, the PW8 stated that he has work of 'building material', his office is near Amrapali building from where he carries on business. His office is around 300 meters away from the incident site. The deceased Ved Prakash had a grocery shop where he sold country made liquor of Haryana. He also used to sell eggs, etc. Some Nigerians, Biharis and Bengalis used to live near the shop of the deceased Ved Prakash, and used to drink liquor at his shop which used to remain open till 11-12 at night. Ved Prakash used to have fights with them over liquor etc. About 4-5 days prior to the incident, there was a fight with Nigerians, Biharis and Bengalis in which 15-20 persons were called from the village of Ved Prakash to beat them up. At the time of that incident, the police had come to the shop. In that fight there was a lot of altercation between the police and Veerpal, Pammi and Balraj, who prevented Ved Prakash (the deceased) from being taken away by the police to the police station. 2-3 days after that incident Ved Prakash had told him that ever since the day of the fight, the Nigerians, Bengalis and Biharis were on the look-out to kill him and used to keep standing near to his shop till late. He stated that at the time of the incident, he reached the spot first. The deceased Ved Prakash was hanging from the top of the 2-3 feet high knife-like grille that was fixed in the open land near his shop and the knife-like grille was embedded in his side and arms. Then with the help of the people there, he had taken down the deceased from the railing and laid him down. By then Ved Prakash had died and there was no light at the spot. He stated that he had given information of the incident to Chetram, Mahendra, Devendra and Ved Pal. They reached the spot half an hour after the information. Thereafter, they informed the police. He stated that they had asked that the FIR be written against unknown persons but the police forced them to name Veerpal and others in the report because 2-3 days prior to the incident there was a lot of altercation between Veerpal and the police. They had told the police about the fight incident 3-4 days ago with Nigerians and others. However, they were told that these people are foreigners from outside so the case would be spoiled and therefore their names were not written and names of the villagers were written. He said that they were so horrified by the incident that they did not have mental balance. He stated that he had spoken to Ved Pal who had given the first testimony and had asked him how had he given such a testimony. Ved Pal said that under pressure from the police, he had given false testimony and if the court calls him again, he would tell the truth.

35. On 11.2.2016 the testimony of PW9, Shyama Kant Tripathi (Investigating Officer), took place who testified that on 16.11.2012 he was posted as Inspector Incharge P.S. Kasna.

An FIR was registered on that very night at 10:30 p.m. and after recording the statement of Vedpal, he reached the site of the murder alongwith police force. On 17.11.2012, the S.I. Anang Pal Singh was sent to Kailash Hospital for carrying out inquest of the body of the deceased. The statement of the eye-witnesses Devendra and Shahmal were recorded and thereafter a copy of the inquest report and the incident site were inspected. After copying the memo of recovery of blood-stained soil and plain soil, the accused were searched for and on 20.11.2012, the accused Pammi @ Ram Autar was arrested from near the bus stand Kasna. He was questioned and his statement was recorded in which he voluntarily confessed to the crime and, on whose pointing out, a murder weapon was recovered behind a water tank which was blood stained and which was taken in possession and a plan was prepared at the site. The recovery memo of the murder weapon was prepared at the site which is Exhibit Ka-9. He also proved the site plan of the murder which was in his own hand and signature and on which Exhibit Ka-11 was put. He also proved the site plan of the recovery of the murder weapon on the pointing out of Pammi as Exhibit Ka-12. He stated that the statement of the witness Chetram was recorded on 26.11.2012. On 02.12.2012, on information received from an informant, the accused Omi was arrested around 10:15 a.m. from near Kasna Bridge, who confessed his crime and also pointed out the murder weapon which was recovered from bushes in the green belt adjoining ATS near Chuhadpur underpass. The recovery memo was dictated to S.I. Anang Pal Singh. The murder weapon was sealed and the memo was proved as Exhibit Ka-10. The site plan of the recovery was proved as Exhibit Ka-13. The P.W.-9 further stated that the statement of another eye-witness Mahendra Singh was recorded on 05.12.2012 whereafter the statements of the witnesses to the inquest report were recorded alongwith the statement of witnesses to the memo. On 07.12.2012, surrender of accused Veerpal, Kalu @ Balraj took place. On 12.12.2012, the accused Bhura @ Sumit was arrested. The statements of the accused Veerpal, Kalu @ Balraj and Bhura @ Sumit were recorded in the District Jail, Ghazipur on 13.12.2012 after obtaining the permission of the court. On 19.12.2012, a murder weapon was recovered on the pointing out of the accused Veerpal from near a tyre puncture shop which was taken possession of and sealed. On the pointing out of the accused Kalu @ Balraj, another murder weapon was recovered. Both weapons of murder were taken possession of and the memo was dictated to the S.I. Anang Pal Singh. The accompanying police personnel signed on the memo as witnesses whereafter the accused were given a copy thereof and made to sign. The P.W.-9 also proved the recovery of knife on the pointing out of the accused Sumit @ Bhura on 23.12.2012 and the memo of recovery was dictated to the S.I. Anang Pal, a copy of which was given to the accused Sumit after obtaining his signature. The site plan of the recovery was also prepared which was proved and marked as Exhibit Ka-16. The statements of the witnesses and the recovery memo were also taken and a charge-sheet was filed against the accused on 30.12.2012. He stated that the recovered murder weapons and blood stained soil and ordinary soil were sent through a constable to the Forensic Laboratory, Agra which, as per the report dated 30.01.2014 made on the back side of the document 30Kha/2, was not received till then.

In his cross-examination, he denied having knowledge of the persons who had gone alongwith Vedpal to the police station to give information on 16.11.2012. The report was written in police station at 10:30 p.m. He stated that with regard to the incident on 15.11.2012 regarding an altercation, no complaint or information was given. From the police station, he left for the incident site at 11:00 p.m. and reached there at 11:30 p.m. which site was at a distance of 4 to 5 kms. from the police station. He had gone to the site in the government vehicle alongwith 4 to 5 people including the Sub-Inspector Anang Pal and Sub-Inspector Veer Singh. He stated that Vedpal and others had gone alongwith him in their own vehicle. He stated that when he reached the incident site, Ved Prakash had already died. He could not remember what all things were present at the site. He admitted that at the site of the incident, several people were present. He could not name any person present. He stated that at that point of time, there was a light from high-mast of the expressway and when he reached the site none of the shops nearby were open. He could not recollect in which direction the corpse of the deceased was aligned. He could not recollect that at the time of the incident, whether the dead body was lying facing up or down. He stated that at the site he met Shahmal and others. He had sent the dead body from the site to Kailash Hospital. Alongwith the corpse, the other police personnel had also gone. He further stated that when he reached the site of the incident, the shop of Ved Prakash was closed. The inquest was not done at the site but at the Hospital. The memo was prepared at the Hospital and not at the site. He stated that to maintain law and order, the corpse of the deceased was sent to the Hospital. Therefore, the inquest was prepared in the Hospital. He further stated that the eye-witnesses of the incident namely Vedpal, Devendra, Mahendra and others were also present. He denied having knowledge of names of people residing near the site of the incident. He admitted that many people stayed there. During the period of his posting in the area of Police Station, there were many incidents of murder. He denied having memory of any incident prior to the incident in question involving Nigerians, Bengalis, Biharis and others. When questioned about the motorcycle and the Swift car mentioned in the FIR, the P.W.-9 stated that he would have to look into the Case Diary in respect of their registration numbers. He denied the suggestion that the recovery made by him from the accused was made in a wrong manner and in the police station. He also denied the suggestion that the death of the deceased Ved Prakash occurred in the fight with Nigerians and others and that since they were foreigners, the P.W.-9 had set up a false case. He further denied the suggestion that the deceased Ved Prakash had a fight with Nigerians, Biharis and Bengalis 2-3 days prior to the incident and that he had knowledge of the incident. He also denied the suggestion that he did not take information at the site or from the people nearby. He further denied the suggestion that the wounds on the body of the deceased Ved Prakash occurred from the knifed shaped grille at the site.

36. In the statement made by the accused Veerpal under Section 313 Cr.P.C. on 20.05.2016, he denied having murdered the deceased and alleged that a false FIR was lodged against him and that a false testimony has given against him due to party politics and enmity in the village. The statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. was also given by Pammi @ Ram Autar on 20.05.2015 on the same lines, and also by Om Kumar @ Omi and Kalu @ Balraj.

37. The P.W.-1, the brother of the deceased, testified on 20.11.2013 and again on 17.01.2014, when he was recalled on an application filed by the defence. He has stated that all the people and his brothers had gone to the police station to lodge the FIR which took about one hour. The P.W.-1, who is the complainant and eye-witness of the alleged incident, has remained largely consistent in his testimony regarding the place and time of the incident and the participation of the accused. His presence near the site of the incident at the stated time, at first blush, appears to be natural as he states himself to be engaged in the business of supply of building material and he had gone to the office concerned in his car 'A-Star' to talk to the person in the office of the building under construction. However, the P.W.-3, Mahendra, in his testimony, held on 09.01.2014, though has supported the prosecution, but in his cross-examination, he states that it was he who had first seen the accused attacking the deceased and the complainant Vedpal and others had come later and he further states that Vedpal and others had come from the side of the village and that they were standing at a distance of 20-25 steps towards the village of the deceased. Thus, there is glaring inconsistency in the statement made by the P.W.-1 and P.W.-3 regarding who witnessed the incident first and the location of the P.W.-1 at the time of the incident.

On 15.10.2015 the P.W.-3 turned hostile and said that there were serious altercations and fights between the deceased and Bengalis, Biharis and Nigerians.

There is another aspect of the matter. The conduct of the PW 1 does not seem to be natural, but rather, awkward. In that FIR lodged by him, he states that the accused persons came and attacked his brother with knives and belts because of which his brother fell at the site. However, in his testimony before the court, he states that his brother died at the site in agony and thereafter he had gone to the police station to lodge a report. He further stated that he did not take his brother to the hospital because he was already dead and that he had no hopes left for his survival but neither he nor his brothers touched or held him thereafter. Subsequently, the PW-1 states that he touched his brother to see whether he was breathing but he was not breathing. He further states that there was a servant with him whom he sent home to inform about the incident then he and his brothers and others went to the police station to lodge a report. He states that nearly one hour was spent in the police station in writing the report. Under the circumstances, the unnatural conduct of the P.W.-1 is reflected in the fact that:

(a) In the FIR, he does not mention about the death of his brother despite the fact that quite some time was spent by him at the site of the incident and he gave orders to the servant to go home and inform the others and thereafter he went along with the brothers and others to the police station where he waited for an hour to lodge the report.

(b) Further, the fact that he left no one at the site, that is not even his servant, when evidently there were several people around that place is unnatural.

(c) The fact that he did not think of taking his brother to the hospital with the help of others despite having a car at his disposal is unnatural.

Recently, a three Judge Bench of the Supreme Court in the case of Narendrasinh Keshubhai Zala vs. State of Gujarat⁷ on the issue of unnatural conduct and unexplained circumstances being a ground for disbelieving the witness, observed as follows:-

'8. It is a settled principle of law that doubt cannot replace proof. Suspicion, howsoever great it may be, is no substitute of proof in criminal jurisprudence [Jagga Singh v. State of Punjab, 1994 Supp (3) SCC 463]. Only such evidence is admissible and acceptable as is permissible in accordance with law. In the case of a sole eye witness, the witness has to be reliable, trustworthy, his testimony worthy of credence and the case proven beyond reasonable doubt. Unnatural conduct and unexplained circumstances can be a ground for disbelieving the witness. This Court in the case of Anil Phukan v. State of Assam, (1993) 3 SCC 282 has held that:

“3. ... So long as the single eyewitness is a wholly reliable witness the courts have no difficulty in basing conviction on his testimony alone. However, where the single eyewitness is not found to be a wholly reliable witness, in the sense that there are some circumstances which may show that he could have an interest in the prosecution, then the courts generally insist upon some independent corroboration of his testimony, in material particulars, before recording conviction. It is only when the courts find that the single eyewitness is a wholly unreliable witness that his testimony is discarded in toto and no amount of corroboration can cure that defect...”

In that case, the Supreme Court further observed as follows:-

“11. Further, his credit stands impeached in the cross-examination part of his testimony. The witness is an adult, mature and worldly wise. He is aged 24 years and runs a grocery shop. He is not illiterate, yet he chose to not take any action, even to save the life of his friend. His explanation that he went home and slept is uninspiring in confidence for the incident took place in his presence and in close proximity of habitation, more specifically at a short distance i.e. just 3-4 minutes of walking distance from the Police Headquarters where constables are posted around the clock. He left his friend profusely bleeding on the spot but did not seek any help and immediately did not report the incident to the family members of the deceased whose house he visited only the following day at around 8:00 – 9:00AM. His conduct of going off to sleep, having seen his friend being murdered right before his eyes and then not visiting the hospital forthwith is quite unnatural. Also he did not inform the incident to his parents. It was only when the police interrogated him that he named the accused. His testimony is not free from embellishments, nor is not corroborated by any other evidence. Also, he admits not to have any information of any monetary transactions between the accused and the deceased.

12. This Court on multiple occasions has held that it is not the quantity but the quality of witnesses and evidence that can either make or break the case of the prosecution. It is the duty of the prosecution to prove that the testimonies of the witnesses that it seeks to rely upon are of sterling quality, i.e. fully trustworthy and absolutely free from any kind of blemish. [Prahlaad v. State of M.P. (supra); Amrik Singh v. State of Punjab, (2022) 9 SCC 402; Pramila v. State of U.P., (2021) 12 SCC 550; Krishan Kumar Malik v. State of Haryana, (2011) 7 SCC 130]”

38. On 25.02.2015, Chetram, the brother of the P.W.-1, who testified as

P.W.-5 turned hostile. However, he admits that Ved Prakash was murdered. No other details regarding any altercations with Nigerians, etc. have been disclosed by him.

39. In his testimony on 10.03.2015, the eye-witness, Devendra (P.W.-7) turned hostile but he admits that the deceased Ved Prakash was seen by him lying in the open land near Chuhadpur underpass covered with blood. He denied the suggestion in his cross-examination by the ADGC (Criminal) that he is not stating the correct facts, and that he was persuaded by some incentive offered on behalf of the accused. The P.W.-7 also did not disclose any previous altercation of the deceased with Nigerians and others.

40. As far as P.W.-8, Shahmal, is concerned, in his testimony on 14.12.2015, he turned hostile. In the cross-examination by the ADGC (Criminal), he however admitted that when he reached near the deceased, the deceased had already died and was covered with blood. He denied the suggestion that the accused being of the same village and brotherhood and neighbours, he is defending them due to pressure exerted by the Panchayat held in the village. He further denied the suggestion that he was giving his testimony out of fear, pressure or some incentive.

In his cross-examination on behalf of the defence, he refers to Bengalis, Biharis and Nigerians drinking liquor at the shop of the deceased Ved Prakash and the occasional altercation with the deceased. He stated that 4-5 days earlier, there was a serious fight in which several persons from his village were called, and that police had come and they had prevented the police from taking Ved Prakash (the deceased) to the police station and since then the Nigerians, Bengalis and Biharis were on the lookout for murdering the deceased. He claims to have reached the site of the incident first and that he had found the deceased hanging from the railing (grille) that was 2-3 feet high on which the knife-like railings had pierced a side of his body. He further states that with the help of others, he had removed the body of the deceased Ved Prakash from the railing and laid him down but till then Ved Prakash had died and thereafter he informed the complainant and Chetram, Mahendra and Devendra who reached the site after half an hour of the incident. He blamed the police for not naming the foreigners in the FIR.

41. It is important to note here that in his cross examination, the PW-4, who was the doctor who conducted the postmortem, denied the suggestion that he had not mentioned lacerated wound as far as the injury no.1 is concerned. He further admitted that the injuries of the deceased were not stab wounds. Therefore, this testimony of PW-4 in conjunction with the testimony of PW-8, who had stated that he had found the deceased hanging from the railing (grille), on which knife shape railing pierced a side of his body, does create a doubt as to the cause of injuries/wounds on the deceased.

42. It is pertinent to note that in the cross examination of the PW-1 on his recall, he stated that when he had gone to the office of Durga Green, he had seen his brother in his shop and one or two customers were standing in his shop. However, in his cross examination, the PW-9 who was the I.O. has stated that when he reached the site of the incident after lodging of the FIR, the shop of the deceased was closed. The time of the incident is 8.30 pm and the shop of the deceased was stated to remain open till 11 pm. Therefore, it cannot be denied that after the alleged time of the incident, the place around the site was apparently not untouched till the police arrived.

43. It is important to mention here that the Investigating Officer PW-9, Shyama Kant Tripathi testified that when he reached the site of incident after the FIR was lodged, the deceased Ved Prakash had already died. He admits that at the site of incident, there was a crowd of people present and there was some light from the high-mast on the expressway. He stated that keeping in view the law and order situation, the body of the deceased was sent to the Hospital where inquest report was made. As far as the alleged vehicle used by the accused, PW-9 stated that he could inform their registration numbers after seeing the case diary. However, there is no recovery memo of the two vehicles, that is a Swift car and a motor cycle, allegedly used by the accused for reaching and leaving the site of the crime. Further, there is no recovery shown of the belt and knife allegedly used for murder of the deceased near the site of the incident, which as stated by the PW-1, had fallen at the site of the incident as the accused were running away. Thus there is glaring inconsistency in the testimonies in this regard made by the PW-1 and the PW-9. PW-9 denied the suggestion that death of the deceased took place as a result of fight with Bengalis, Nigerians or Beharis and that they being foreigners, he had written a false case. He further denied the suggestion that 2-3 days prior to the incident, the deceased Ved Prakash had fight with the Nigerians, Bengalis or Beharis and that he had knowledge of the incident. He denied the suggestion that he did not make inquiry from the people nearby the incident. He further denied that the deceased died due to injuries caused as a result of knife shape grille present at the site.

44. With regard to the judgement cited by the learned counsel for the appellants regarding recovery of alleged weapons of murder on the pointing out of the accused are concerned, Section 27 of the Indian Evidence Act has been considered at length by the Supreme Court in the case of Ramanand @ Nandlal Bharti (supra), in which the Supreme Court observed as follows:

“53. If, it is say of the investigating officer that the accused appellant while in custody on his own free will and volition made a statement that he would lead t the place where he had hidden the weapon of offence along with his blood stained clothes then the first thing that the investigating officer should have done was to call for two independent witnesses at the police station itself. Once the two independent witnesses arrive at the police station thereafter in their presence the accused should be asked to make an appropriate statement as he may desire in regard to pointing out the place where he is said to have hidden the weapon of offence. When the accused while in custody makes such statement before the two independent witnesses (panch witnesses) the exact statement or rather the exact words uttered by the accused should be incorporated in the first part of the panchnama that the investigating officer may draw in accordance with law. This first part of the panchnama for the purpose of Section 27 of the Evidence Act is always drawn at the police station in the presence of the independent witnesses so as to lend credence that a particular statement was made by the accused expressing his willingness on his own free will and volition to point out the place where the weapon of offence or any other article used in the commission of the offence had been hidden. Once the first part of the panchnama is completed thereafter the police party along with the accused and the two independent witnesses (panch witnesses) would proceed to the particular place as may be led by the accused. If from that particular place anything like the weapon of offence or blood stained clothes or any other article is discovered then that part of the entire process would form the second part of the panchnama. This is how the law expects the investigating officer to draw the discovery panchnama as contemplated under Section 27 of the Evidence Act. If we read the entire oral evidence of the investigating officer then it is clear that the same is deficient in all the aforesaid relevant aspects of the matter.

56. The requirement of law that needs to be fulfilled before accepting the evidence of discovery is that by proving the contents of the panchnama. The investigating officer in his deposition is obliged in law to prove the contents of the panchnama and it is only if the investigating officer has successfully proved the contents of the discovery panchnama in accordance with law, then in that case the prosecution may be justified in relying upon such evidence and the trial court may also accept the evidence. In the present case, what we have noticed from the oral evidence of the investigating officer, PW-7, Yogendra Singh is that he has not proved the contents of the discovery panchnama and all that he has deposed is that as the accused expressed his willingness to point out the weapon of offence the same was discovered under a panchnama. We have minutely gone through this part of the evidence of the investigating officer and are convinced that by no stretch of imagination it could be said that the investigating officer has proved the contents of the discovery of panchnama (Exh.5). There is a reason why we are laying emphasis on proving the contents of the panchnama at the end of the investigating officer, more particularly when the independent panch witnesses though examined yet have not said a word about such discovery or turned hostile and have not supported the prosecution. In order to enable the Court to safely rely upon the evidence of the investigating officer, it is necessary that the exact words attributed to an accused, as statement made by him be brought on record and for this purpose the investigating officer is obliged to depose in his evidence the exact statement and not by merely saying that a discovery panchnama of weapon of offence was drawn as the accused was willing to take it out from a particular place.”

45. A perusal of the testimony of PW-9 and Anang Pal Singh PW-6 reveal that mandate of the Supreme Court in the aforesaid case of Ramanand alias Nandlal Bharti has not been complied with. No independent witnesses were called to the police station by the Investigating Officer prior to setting out of recovery of alleged weapons of murder. Moreover, in the testimony of PW-9, the words spoken by the accused leading to the recovery of weapon of murder have not been stated.

46. There are four recovery memos pertaining to alleged recovery of knives allegedly used for murder of the deceased. They are Exhibits Ka-8, Ka-9, Ka-10 and Ka-15. The Exhibit Ka-8 is the recovery memo dated 19.12.2012, which narrates that the SHO alongwith a Sub-Inspector, a Head Constable and three other Constables, went on the government vehicle to recover two murder weapons on the pointing out of the accused Veerpal and Kalu @ Balraj. The recovered knives were stated to be taken possession at 6:25 a.m. and 6: 30 a.m. which were sealed separately.

Exhibit Ka-9 is the recovery memo dated 20.11.2012, which reflects that the SHO alongwith a Sub-Inspector and three Constables, departed the police station at 5:45 a.m. for investigation during which they received information that one accused, namely, Pammi was preparing to leave and was standing in Kasna Bus Stand. On pointing out of the police informant, Pammi was arrested at 11:30 a.m.. On being questioned, he allegedly admitted his crime and said that he can recover the knife used for the murder. The memo records that members of the public were asked to witness the recovery but no one was prepared and thereafter on the pointing out of the accused the police went to the spot and the accused removed the soil with his hands at the spot and recovered a knife which was covered with blood and soil and the accused told that this was the knife used to kill Ved Prakash.

Exhibit Ka-10 is the recovery memo dated 02.12.2012 which reflects that the SHO alongwith a Senior Sub-Inspector of Police and a Sub-Inspector and two other Constables with a driver, departed on the police vehicle from the Police Station at 7:25 a.m. and they received information from a police informant that the accused Omi is standing near a temple near a small bridge in Kasna, who was arrested at 10:15 a.m. The accused Omi allegedly admitted his crime and stated that he could point out the place where the murder weapon had been thrown. It is recorded that the police asked the members of the public to witness the recovery but no one was prepared and, therefore, they went with the accused to the placed pointed out. The accused went ahead and allegedly recovered a knife which was taken possession of at 12:10 p.m.

Exhibit Ka-15 is the recovery memo dated 23.12.2012 which reflects that the SHO alongwith a Sub-Inspector and three other Constables, went in the police vehicle alongwith the accused Sumit @ Bhura from the police station at 13:05 hours. The accused got the vehicle stopped near Chuahadpur underpass and went ahead and allegedly recovered a knife from behind the bushes and said that this was the murder weapon. The knife was stated to be taken possession of at 13:30 hours and sealed.

Thus, it is evident that no independent witnesses accompanied the police and the accused for recovery of the alleged murder weapons.

47. It is pertinent to note that Exhibit Ka-11 is the site plan with Index prepared by the P.W.-9, the SHO, on 17.11.2012 which reflects the site of the incident and the alleged location of the eye witnesses as well as the site of murder and the direction in which the accused had fled after committing the crime. Exhibit Ka-12 is the site plan regarding the alleged recovery of the murder weapon on the pointing out of the accused Pammi that corresponds to Exhibit Ka-9, recovery memo.

Exhibit Ka-13 is the site plan of the recovery of the murder weapon on the pointing out of the accused Om Kumar @

Omi that corresponds to recovery memo, Exhibit Ka-10.

The site plan, Exhibit Ka-14, corresponds to the recovery memo, Exhibit Ka-8, which reflects the site of recovery of the alleged murder weapons on the pointing out of the accused Veerpal and Kalu @ Balraj.

Exhibit Ka-16, which is the site plan prepared by the P.W.-9, allegedly showing the site from which the murder weapon on the pointing out of the accused Sumit @ Bhura was recovered and this corresponds to Exhibit Ka-15, which is the recovery memo.

It is pertinent to mention here that Exhibits Ka-13, Ka-14 and Ka-16 reflect the sites of recovery of the alleged murder weapons from near Chuhadpur underpass.

The Chuhadpur underpass has been shown in the site plan, Exhibit Ka-11, as 72 steps south-east of the site of the murder. Thus, the recovery of knives are reflected in site plans Exhibits Ka-13, Ka-14 and Ka-16 from places near the site of murder, whereas the alleged escaped route of the accused being in the diagonally opposite direction renders the aforesaid three recoveries of weapons suspect. The above facts, coupled with the fact that the provisions of Section 27, as interpreted by the Supreme Court in its judgment in Ramanand (supra) have not been complied with, the recoveries of the alleged murder weapons are not proved.

48. As already referred to above, other than the testimony of the P.W.-1, all the other witnesses have turned hostile. One of the eye witnesses who has turned hostile is the brother (Chetram) of the P.W.-1 and the deceased. In their statement made under Section 313 Cr.P.C., the accused have stated that they have been falsely implicated due to village enmity. Therefore, the P.W.-1 could also be an interested witness.

49. At the site of the incident, even the Investigating Officer has admitted, there was a crowd of people. Yet, surprisingly, no independent witness has been examined. The P.W.-6, who is the Sub-Inspector of Police and the Investigating Officer, P.W.-9, have both testified that for conducting the inquest, the corpse of the deceased was taken to a hospital in order to maintain law and order. The PW-6 has stated that there was lack of adequate light at the site of the incident. The mandate of Section 174 Cr.P.C. read with Rule 132 of Chapter XII of the Police Regulation, is that the police is to conduct the inquest at the site. This is not supported by the site plan. However, the fact that there was inadequate light at the site of the incident is proved.

50. The place from where the P.W.-1 is stated to have witnessed the murder is shown in the site plan Ka-11 as 67 steps away to the south-west of the site of the incident. The accused persons are shown in that site plan to have fled north-west from the site of murder on foot to their parked vehicles and then northwards in their vehicles. The Investigating Officer, who went about proving the recovery of the murder weapons and other items and the entire investigation conducted by him with arrests, has failed to conduct any investigation with regard to the alleged vehicles used by the accused for reaching and leaving the site of the crime. In their entire testimony, neither the P.W.-6 nor the P.W.-9 have mentioned about the recovery of the vehicles used by the accused to reach and leave the site of the alleged incident. The P.W.-9 in his cross-examination could not recall that in which direction was the corpse of the deceased lying. He could not say whether the corpse was lying face up or face down.

51. Though, it may not have any bearing on the present case, it may be mentioned that in respect of one accused, namely Sunny @ Bhura, his trial was conducted separately by the juvenile court where the Case No. 6 of 2013 was registered. The P.W.-1 had also appeared in Case No. 6 of 2013 as P.W.-1 and his testimony was recorded on 10.6.2015 in which he turned hostile. (Paper No.55Kha/26)

52. Be that as it may, the law with regard to the hostile witnesses is that it is for the Court of fact to consider in each case whether as a result of such cross-examination and contradiction the witness stands discredited or can still be believed in regard to any part of his testimony. It is well within the powers of the court to make an assessment in respect of the testimony of a hostile witness and come to the correct conclusion. The evidence of a hostile witness cannot be discredited as whole and the relevant part thereof which are admissible in law can be used by the prosecution or by the defence.

53. Under the circumstances, the testimony of P.W.-1 has to be viewed in light of the testimony of the other eyewitness, P.W.-3 as well as all the other eyewitnesses, including the brother of the P.W.-1 (that is, the P.W.-5) who all negated the case of the prosecution regarding the guilt of the accused. Though leading questions were put to the hostile witnesses regarding their testimony against the prosecution to the effect that due to threat or a compromise they were giving such a testimony, the witnesses denied the same. Chetram (P.W.-5), the witness who turned hostile, was the real brother of the deceased and no such circumstance or motive has been demonstrated as proved by the prosecution that would lead to a finding that his testimony is unbelievable. The testimony made by the P.W.-3 and P.W.-8 as hostile witnesses that the deceased was found impaled on the knife like grille behind the shape of the deceased has not been explored by the trial court. The admission made by the doctor conducting the postmortem examination (PW-4) that the injuries of the deceased were not stab wounds do create a doubt as to the cause of the injuries on the deceased that are reflected in the postmortem report. Given, on one hand, the nature of the wounds primarily on one side of the body, while on the other hand, the fact that the P.W.-1 had testified that the deceased was being choked by a belt and held by two of the accused while the others were stabbing the deceased, creates a doubt as to the manner in which the wounds came to be inflicted on the deceased. Evidently, neither the P.W.-1 nor the P.W.-3 nor the P.W.-8 were present at the site when the accused allegedly reached the site of the incident on their vehicles. It were only the independent witnesses who could have testified the factum of the accused reaching the site and advancing towards the deceased. The location of the P.W.-1 at the time of the incident is itself under cloud in view of the testimonies of P.W.-3 and P.W.-8. The P.W.-8 has testified the reason for the police directing their investigation against the accused that the police were angered by the behaviour of the accused towards them during an incident some days prior to the death of the deceased. It was also mentioned that the police had stated that since foreigners were involved, the case would be difficult to be proved. In this regard, a suggestion was also made to the P.W.-9 who denied the same. There is an important element with regard to lack of adequate lighting at the site and so it is doubtful that the P.W.-1 could have actually seen the faces of the accused from a distance of 67 steps on a winter night. As narrated above, the conduct of the PW-1, after the incident, is itself unnatural. Given the entire facts the circumstances, as narrated above, the accused persons are entitled to benefit of doubt. The case of the prosecution has not been proved beyond reasonable doubt.

54. Under the circumstances, the present criminal appeal is allowed and the accused are acquitted giving them the benefit of doubt. The accused shall be released from jail as per law if their incarceration is not required in any other case after compliance of Section 437-A of the Cr.P.C.. Let a copy of this judgment be sent to the trial court forthwith.

A. Criminal Law - Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 - Section 374(2) - Indian Penal Code, 1860 - Sections 302, 307, 147, 148 & 149 - Challenge to-Conviction-accused/appellants committed offence on a spur of moment and in the heat of passion upon sudden quarrel between them which is evident from the testimony of PW-2 and PW-3-accused persons were already irrigating their field with the help of farming equipment like axe, spades, sickles etc when the deceased asked them to give water because it was his turn all the accused got annoyed and hit their spade on the neck of the deceased-Prosecution has succeeded to prove the guilt of the accused but the trial court is not justified in convicting and sentencing the accused as the incident occurred without premeditation or planning of attack, therefore, it would fall within Exception 4 to Section 300 IPC and the conviction of the accused would fall u/s 304 Part -I IPC and not under Section 302 IPC-The issue relating to quantum of sentence u/s 304 IPC depends on background facts of the case, antecedents of the accused, whether the assault was premeditated and pre-planned or not, etc.(Para 1 to 53)

1. These two criminal appeals have been preferred by the accused-appellants-Raghunath, Satendra, Pappan, Narendra and Pappi challenging the judgment and order dated 25th September, 2007 passed by the Special Judge (E.C. Act), Meerut in Sessions Trial No. 862 of 2002 (State Vs. Narendra & Others), arising out of Case Crime No. 135 of 2002, under Sections 147, 148, 307, 302 and 506 I.P.C., Police Station-Jani, District-Meerut, whereby the accused-appellants, namely, Narendra and Pappi have been convicted under Sections 302, 147, 148 and 149 I.P.C., whereas accused-appellants, namely, Raghunath, Satendra and Pappan have been convicted under Sections 307, 147, 148, 149 I.P.C. and sentenced (i) the accused-appellants, namely, Narendra and Pappi to undergo life imprisonment under Section 302 read with Section 149 I.P.C. with fine of Rs. 10,000/- and further to undergo one year rigorous imprisonment under Sections 147 and 148 I.P.C.; (ii) accused-appellants namely, Raghunath, Satendra and Pappan to undergo seven years rigorous imprisonment under Sections 307 read with Section 149 I.P.C. with fine of Rs.5,000/- and further to undergo one year rigorous imprisonment under Sections 147 and 148 I.P.C. with an observations that all sentences were to run concurrently and in default of payment of fine, all the accused-appellants are to further undergo one months additional imprisonment.

2. We have heard Mr. Noor Mohammad and Mr. Irshad Mohammad, learned counsel for the accused-appellants and Mr. N.K. Srivastava, learned A.G.A. for the State as also perused the material available on record.

3. Since the basic facts and legal question of issues are same in both these appeals, they have been clubbed and heard together and are being decided by means of this common judgment treating the Criminal Appeal No. 6870 of 2007 (Narendra & Another VS. State of U.P.) to be the leading case.

4. Records of the present criminal appeals reveal that on the written report (Exhibit-ka/4) dated 18th May, 2002 of the informant-P.W.-4, namely, Krishna Pal Singh, a first information report (Exhibit-ka/9) was registered as Case Crime No. 135 of 2002 under Sections 147, 148, 307, 302 and 506 I.P.C. on 18th May, 2002 at 12:30 p.m. against five accused persons, namely, Narendra @ Kallan, Satendra @ Billu, Pappi, Raghunath and Pappan alleging therein that his brothers Ravindra Kumar and Vinod went to their field on tractor at about 6:00 am. in the morning as it was their turn for irrigation. However, when they arrived at their field, they saw that Narendra @ Kallan, Satendra @ Billu, Pappi, Raghunath and Pappan resident of village Bafar, P.S.Jani, District Meerut, were already watering their field. Ravindra asked the accused-appellants to give water because it was his turn on which all accused persons got annoyed and exhorted to finish him as he often disputed for water for the purpose of irrigating his field. The accused-appellants Narendra @ Kallan and Pappi hit the neck of Ravindra Kumar with spades resulting into his instant death. The accused-appellants Raghunath and Satendra caught hold of another brother of the informant, namely, Vinod and the accused-appellant Pappan inflicted one spade injury on the neck of Vinod. This incident was seen by Sheeshpal and Brijpal, who were working on their fields along with other people, who were coming and going from there. This incident took place on 18/5/2002 at about 11:30 a.m.. The dead body of brother of the informant, namely, Ravindra was lying on the spot.

5. After lodging of the said first information report, the inquest (panchayatnama) (Exhibit-Ka/2) of the deceased Ravindra was conducted by P.W.-5 Sub-Inspector Sanjeev Singh Rathaur. In the opinion of the Panch (Inquest) witnesses, the death of the deceased was on account of injuries caused to the deceased on his body. Thereafter the dead body of the deceased was sealed and sent to Mortuary for post-mortem.

6. Dr. Ashok Kumar Dua (P.W.-1) conducted the post-mortem of the dead body of the deceased Ravindra on 19th May, 2002 at 02:30 p.m. and his report is on record as Exhibit-Ka-1 as per which the death of deceased was due to shock and hemorrhage as a result of following ante-mortem injuries:

2. Incised wound 5 cm x 2 cm x bone deep on the back of neck 4th cervical vertebrae cut spinal cord lacerated.”

7. Dr. Raj Kumar (P.W.-6) has conducted the medical examination of injured Vinod Kumar (P.W.-2) on 18th May, 2002 at 06:20 p.m. P.W.-6 has found following injuries on the persons of P.W.-2:

“1. Incised wound 6.0 cm x 0.7 cm x muscle on back of left side chest 6.5 cm behind and below of left ear lobule updown.

2. Abrasion 1.2 cm x 0.2 cm on right side neck, middle part.

3. Reddish contusion 2 cm x 1 cm on back of left side abdomen.

4. Complaint of pain in right side chest.

5. Complaint of pain in right upper arm.”

In medical examination report of P.W.-2, P.W.6 has opined that the injuries are fresh and simple in nature and injury no.1 was caused by sharp edged object, injury no.2 by friction and injury no.3 by blunt and hard object.

8. Investigation proceeded and P.W.-8/Investigating Officer, namely, Sub-Inspector R.N. Singh Yadav has recorded the statements of eye witness Sheeshpal and informant Krishna Pal Singh (P.W.-4). He inspected the place of occurrence along with the informant, he also prepared the site plan which was marked as Exhibit-ka-11 and again recorded the statements of the witnesses at the place of occurrence. He also collected the blood stained earth and plain earth and prepared recovery memo of them, whereafter upon conclusion of statutory investigation under Chapter XII Cr.P.C., charge-sheet came to be submitted against the accused appellants, namely, Raghunath, Satendra, Narendra, Pappi and Pappan under Sections 147, 148, 307, 302 and 506 I.P.C. by the Investigating Officer on 26th May, 2002.

9. On submission of charge-sheet, the concerned Magistrate took cognizance in the matter and committed the case to the Court of Sessions by whom the case was to be tried. On 13th September, 2002, the concerned Court framed charges under Sections 147, 307, 149 I.P.C. against the accused Raghunath and Satendra; under Sections 148, 302, 149 I.P.C. against the accused Narendra and Pappi; under Sections 148, 307, 302/149 I.P.C. against the accused Pappan. On 29th May, 2003, the concerned Court framed supplementary charges, under Sections 147, 307, 149 I.P.C. against the accused Narendra and Pappi; and under Sections 148, 302/149 I.P.C. against the accused Raghunath and Satendra and under Section 147 I.P.C. against the accused Pappan.

10. The charges were read out and explained in Hindi to the accused-appellant, who denied the accusation and demanded trial.

11. The prosecution in order to establish the charges levelled against the accused-appellant has relied upon following documentary evidence, which were duly proved and consequently marked as Exhibits:

“Exhibit-ka/1- Post Mortem report of deceased Ravindra Kumar;

Exhibit-ka/2- Panchayatnam of the body of deceased Ravindra Kumar;

Exhibit-ka/3 - Opinion of inquest witnesses qua deceased Ravindra Kumar;

Exhibit-ka/4 -Written Report given by the informant/P.W.4 Krishna Pal Singh;

Exhibit-ka/5- Police Form No. 13;

Exhibit-ka/6- Letter of Sanjiv Singh Rathor, S.I.P, S, Jani, address to R.I.Police Lines, for conducting Post-mortem of deceased;

Exhibit-ka/7-letter to Chief Medical Superintendent of P.L. Sharma Hospital, Meerut;

Exhibit-ka/8- Injury report of Vinod Kumar (P.W.-2);

Exhibit-ka/9- Chik FIR;

Exhibit-ka/10- copy of G.D. of P. S. Jani dt. 18/5/02;

Exhibit-ka/11- Site plan of place of the incident;

Exhibit-ka/12- Recovery memo regarding blood stained earth and plain earth;

Exhibit-ka/13-Recovery memo of spade;

Exhibit-ka/14-Site plan regarding recovery of Spade; and Exhibit-ka/16-Charge sheet.”

12. The prosecution has also adduced oral testimony of following witnesses:-

“P.W.1- Dr. Ashok Kumar Dua, who conducted the post-mortem of the body of the deceased Ravindra Kumar;

P.W.2 Vinod Kumar, brother of the informant/P.W.4 and deceased Ravindra Kumar, who claimed to be an injured and eyewitness of the incident;

P.W.3- Brijpal, who claims to be independent eye-witness of the incident;

P.W.4-Krishnapal Singh, informant, who happens to be the brother of the deceased Ravindra and injured Vinod Kumar (P.W.-2);

P.W.-5- Sub-Inspector Sanjeev Singh Rathor, who prepared the inquest (panchayatnama) of the deceased Ravindra Kumar;

P.W.6- Dr. Raj Kumar, who medically examined the injured Vinod Kumar (P.W.-2);

P.W.7 Constable-1198 Ranvir Singh, who prepared the chik FIR and proved the same; and

P.W.8 Sub-Inspector R.N. Singh Yadav, who has conducted the investigation and submitted the charge-sheet.”

13. After recording of the prosecution evidence, the incriminating evidence were put to the accused for recording his statement under section 313 Cr.PC. In their statements recorded U/s 313 Cr.P.C. the accused-appellants denied his involvement in the crime. Accused appellants specifically stated before the trial court that they have been falsely implicated in this case. They further stated that the present criminal case was instituted due to enmity between them. False report has been lodged and false charge sheet has been submitted against them. The alleged injured Vinod Kumar (P.W.-2) being the elder brother of deceased Ravindra, also is giving false evidence against them. Accused Raghunath has stated in his statement that he has purchased the land of Shodan son of Solhu and Vijalpal, who is the brother of Brijpal (P.W.-3). The informant Krishnapal Singh (P.W.-4) wanted to purchase the said land, due to which he harboured enmity. The informant (P.W.-4) has purchased the land of Brijpal (P.W.-3), which is adjacent to the land of accused persons but there is no road (Rasta). The complainant/informant wanted road (Rasta) through the said land but the same is chak road of accused persons which they had refused to give due to which the informant/P.W.-4 harboured enmity. They have developed a false case of watering the field on account of which a quarrel had taken place. It is further stated that the drain is private drain of the accused persons and there is no turn on this drain. The deceased Ravindra was of criminal nature. He was involved in several heinous offences like murder etc. He was fond of gambling and he had several other companions. He often used to enter into scuffle with his family members and he used to assault his wife also. P.W.-2 Vinod and the deceased Ravindra entered into conflict on the relevant date and both attacked on each other and incidently Ravindra had died in that attack. The informant/P.W.-1 Krishna Pal Singh is a teacher by profession. He has lodged false report against accused persons for the purposes of saving his own brother Vinod

Kumar. The defence did not examine any witness from its side.

14. On the basis of above evidence adduced during the course of trial, the court below has found the accused-appellants, namely, Narendra and Pappi guilty under Sections 302, 147, 148 and 149 I.P.C., whereas accused-appellants, namely, Raghunath, Satendra and Pappan have been found guilty under Sections 307, 147, 148, 149 I.P.C. beyond reasonable doubt after recording finding that the prosecution has produced clear, cogent and convincing evidence and proved that the accused Narendra and Pappi have caused the death of Ravindra through spades, hence the offence punishable under Section 302 read with Section 149 I.P.C. is made out against the accused Narendra and Pappi. The court below has further recorded that in the present case, the prosecution has proved that the accused Raghunath, Satendra, Narendra, Pappi and Pappan have formed an unlawful assembly in pursuance of common object which was to commit the offence like murder and attempt to commit murder. The accused persons arrived at the place of occurrence and the accused Narendra and Pappi have inflicted spades on the neck of victim Ravindra and caused his death. The accused Raghunath, Satendra caught hold of Vinod (P.W.-2) and Pappan inflicted one spade injury on his neck. They were the members of unlawful assembly, hence the offence under Section 147 I.P.C. is proved against them. They were armed with deadly weapons and used those weapons for commission of offence, hence they are found guilty under section 148 I.P.C.

15. In the impugned judgment of conviction, the trial court has recorded that the defence has stated in the statement u/s

313 Cr.P.C. that the victim Ravindra and injured Vinod grappled with each other. They caused injuries to each other and in the course of that quarrel Ravindra had died, but this entire statement of defence appears to be false and unbelievable. The defence has produced no witness in support of their defence version.

16. After recording aforesaid finding the trial court has come to the conclusion that the prosecution has well proved the guilt of accused persons Narendra and Pappi for causing the death of Ravindra through spades, hence the offence under section 302 read with Section 149 I.P.C. have been fully proved against accused Narendra and Pappi. The prosecution has produced clear, cogent and convincing evidence to prove that accused persons Raghunath, Satendra and Pappan have inflicted injuries on the neck of injured Vinod (P.W.-2) through spades with intention to cause the death of Vinod, hence the offence under Sections 307/149/147/148 I.P.C. is made out against these accused persons, namely, Raghunath, Satendra and Pappan.

17. Being aggrieved with the impugned judgment and order of conviction passed by the trial court, the accused-appellant has preferred the present jail appeal.

18. The submission of the learned counsel for the accused-appellants is that the accused-appellants are innocent and have been falsely implicated. Next submission is that the prosecution has not produced any independent eye witness. P.W.-2 Vinod Kumar and P.W.4 Krishna Pal Singh are the brothers of the deceased Ravindra. Their evidence cannot be relied upon. In the Panchayatnama of the deceased Ravindra, there is no mention of any injury of Vinod having been caused by spade. Post Mortem was conducted with delay of one day, which cast doubt in the prosecution story. There is great variance between the ocular testimony and medical evidence, which makes entire prosecution case doubtful. There is contradiction regarding the place of occurrence and the place where the dead body of Ravindra was found. No blood stained soil was collected from the place of occurrence. There is strong contradiction in their statements. The prosecution has suppressed the genesis of case. It is not proved as to how Vinod received injuries. There is no explanation of injuries having been caused to Vinod by blunt weapon. The injuries sustained by Vinod are simple in nature, which are not fatal, hence the case of Section 307 IPC is not made out. There is nothing on record which could show that there is Chak Road near the place of incident. The Investigating Officer has not seized/taken the tractor in his custody, which also renders prosecution case doubtful. Recovery of spade cannot not be taken as relevant because it was not sent for chemical examination. The accused persons are innocent and they are liable to be acquitted of the all the charges levelled against them.

19. The argument is that the accused-appellant has no criminal antecedents to his credit except the present one. Next submission is that looking to the oral as well as documentary evidence brought on record, the sentence awarded to the accused-appellants Narendra and Pappi under Section 302 I.P.C., is highly excessive. The maximum punishment which could be imposed upon the accused-appellants Narendra and Pappi is 10 years under Section 304 Part II I.P.C. The learned counsel for the accused-appellants lastly submits that since the incident in question occurred on a spur of moment and in the heat of passion upon sudden quarrel, the same would be covered under the 4th Exception to Section 300 I.P.C., which reads as under:

“Exception 4. —Culpable homicide is not murder if it is committed without premeditation in a sudden fight in the heat of passion upon a sudden quarrel and without the offender having taken undue advantage or acted in a cruel or unusual manner.”

20. In support of his plea, learned counsel for the accused-appellants placed reliance upon following judgments of Apex Court:

(I) Arjun & Another etc. etc. VS. State of Chhatisgarh reported in 2017 0 Supreme (SC) 152; and

(ii) Jandel Singh Vs. State of Madhya Pradesh dated 16th December, 2022 passed in Criminal Appeal NO. 2314 of 2022 [arising out of SLP (CRL.) No. 6633 of 2022].

On the cumulative strength of the aforesaid, learned counsel appearing for the appellants submits that the sentence is excessive and ought not be sustained and the order of sentence must be modified taking lenient view in the matter.

21. Per contra, Mr. N.K. Sharma, learned A.G.A. for the State, supporting the judgment and order of conviction, submits that the first information report has been lodged promptly naming the accused person; there is clinching evidence to support the prosecution’s case; the incident in which the deceased is alleged to have been murdered by the accused-appellants Narendra and Pappi occurred at about 11:30 a.m. i.e. in broad day light; there are three eye witnesses of the alleged incident; the place of occurrence has not been disputed by the defence; and the accused-appellants have strong motive or intention and the same has also been explained by the evidence of prosecution. Therefore, the prosecution has proved the charge levelled against the accused-appellants beyond reasonable doubt.

22. To bolster the aforesaid submissions, learned A.G.A. has invited the attention of the Court to the latest judgment of the Apex Court in the case of Mekala Sivaiah vs. State of Andhara Pradesh reported in 2022 SCC Online SC 887, whereby the Apex Court in paragraph nos.25 and 26 has held as follows:

“25. The facts and evidence in present case has been squarely analyzed by both Trial Court as well the High Court and the same can be summarized as follows:

i. The prosecution has discharged its duties in proving the guilt of the appellant for the offence under Section 302 I.P.C. beyond reasonable doubt.

ii. When there is ample ocular evidence corroborated by medical evidence, mere non-recovery of weapon from the appellant would not materially affect the case of the prosecution.

iii. If the testimony of an eye witness is otherwise found trustworthy and reliable, the same cannot be disbelieved and rejected merely because certain insignificant, normal or natural contradictions have appeared into his testimony.

iv. The deceased has been attacked by the appellant in broad daylight and there is direct evidence available to prove the same and the motive behind the attack is also apparent considering there was previous enmity between the appellant and PW-1.

26. Having considered the aforesaid facts of the present case in juxtaposition with the judgments referred to above and upon appreciation of evidence of the eyewitnesses and other material adduced by the prosecution, the Trial Court as well as the High Court were right in convicting the appellant for the offence under Section 302 I.P.C. Therefore, we do not find any ground warranting interference with the findings of the Trial Court and the High Court.” (Emphasis added)

Mr. N.K. Sharma, learned A.G.A. for the State has also placed reliance upon the following judgments of the Apex Court and Patna High Court:

(a) Ram Kumar Madhusudan Pathak vs. State of Gujarat reported in 1998 0 Supreme (SC) 836;

(b) Arulvelu & Anr. Vs. State Rep. By the Public Prosecutor & Anr. Reported in 2009 0 Supreme (SC) 1628; and

(c) Ram Nath Nonia vs. State of Bihar reported in 1999 0 Supreme (Pat) 778.

On the cumulative strength of the aforesaid submissions, learned A.G.A. submits that as this is a case of direct evidence, the impugned judgment and order of conviction does not suffer from any illegality and infirmity so as to warrant any interference by this Court. As such the present jail appeal filed by the accused appellants who committed heinous crime by murdering the deceased is liable to be dismissed.

23. We have considered the submissions made by the learned counsel for the parties and have carefully examined the original records of the case as well as the impugned judgment and order of conviction challenged before us.

24. It is in the context of above submissions and materials placed on record before the Court that this Court is required to consider as to whether the prosecution has established the guilt of accused-appellants on the basis of above evidence beyond reasonable doubt?. For examining the same, it is important for us to record statements of the prosecution witnesses in brief.

25. P. W. 1/Autopsy Surgeon, Dr. Ashok Kumar Dua, who has conducted the post-mortem of the deceased Ravindra has stated in his examination-in-chief that death of the deceased was caused due to shock and haemorrhage as a result of ante-mortem injuries and it was caused before one day approximately.

26. This witness has also been cross-examined by the defence but no contradiction is found in his entire evidence. He has clearly stated in his cross-examination that two injuries found on the deceased were caused by sharp edged weapon, which could be spade. He has also opined that it could be any cutting weapon was like Gandasa, Pharsa, Kulhari and Sword. He has clearly opined that injury no.1 was fatal and due to this injury the injured could have died immediately and injury no.2 is also fatal and it could cause instant death also. In his cross-examination he has stated that injury no.1 could have been caused when the injured had fallen on the ground. It was quite natural that two accused persons Narendra and Pappi have caused the death of Ravindra through spade and in scuffle they have caused injury no.1

while the injured was lying on the ground and by single stroke they have caused injuries on his neck through spade resultantly he had done to death.

27. P.W.-2 Vinod Kumar, who is alleged to be injured and star eye witness of the incident in question, happens to be the real brother of deceased Ravindra. He has stated in his examination-in-chief that incident took place on 18th May, 2002. Since it was Saturday, they had turn for watering their field on that day. They were supposed to irrigate their field on 18th May, 2002 from 6 a.m. (morning) to next day i.e. 19th May, 2002 and they wanted to take water through the drain (Nali) by means of operating their tractor. On the date of incident, both brothers namely, P.W.-2 himself and the deceased Ravindra went to their field on tractor. The deceased Ravindra cleared the drain (Nali). Accused persons belong to the same village Bafar and were irrigating their field. In the trial court, P.W.-2 has fully identified the accused persons. This witness has further stated that at about 11 a.m. the deceased Ravindra had asked accused persons to put off the tube-well so that they could take water through the said drain (Nali). The accused persons made the plan to finish Ravindra saying that he often raised the controversy about irrigation of field. On this exhortation, the accused Narendra inflicted one spade injury on neck of Ravindra and accused Virendra, who was known as Pappi, also inflicted one spade injury on the neck of Ravindra, which resulted into his instant death. The accused Satandra and Raghunath pounced upon Vinod Kumar (P.W.2.) and caught hold of him, thereupon the accused Pappan inflicted one spade on him but he survived and raised alarm on which witnesses arrived there. Sheeshpal and Brijpal (P.W.-

3) also came there and they saw the incident. Thereafter he along with his brothers Manoj and Munesh proceeded to lodge the report to Police Station Jani and when they reached near Cooperative Bank, Jani, Krishnapal (informant/P.W.-4) met them on the way, who enquired about the incident on which P.W.-2 narrated the entire story to him. P.W.-4 Krishnapal had written the report on a paper and the same was given to Police Station-Jani. This witness has further stated that at Police Station Jani Krishnapal, Brijpal and Munesh were present. After that P.W.2 proceeded to Primary Health Centre, Jani for his medical examination, but Doctor was not present there. The Home- Guard, who accompanied him came to the place of the incident. The police was present there. Several persons of the village were also present there. Station House Officer, Police Station Jani has recorded the statements and inquest of deceased were prepared on which he signed and he has identified his signatures. This witness further stated that he was referred to P. L. Sharma Hospital, Meerut, where his injuries were medically examined by the Doctor. P.W.2 Vinod has clearly stated that Narendra was also known as Kallan, Satendra was also known as Billa and Virendra was known as Pappi.

28. This witness has been cross-examined by the defence at length but no major contradiction in his testimony was found. He has fully supported the prosecution case.

29. P.W.-3 Brijpal, who is alleged to be star independent eye witness, belonged to the same village where the accused and prosecution side resided. P.W.-3 knows accused persons Raghunath, Satendra, Narendra, Papi and Pappan. This witness has further stated that the incident in question occurred on 18th May, 2002 and at that time he was working in his field. Sheeshpal (not produced) was also present there. He had taken the field of Sheeshpal on Batai (rent). At about 11:00 a.m. the deceased Ravindra and P.W.-2 Vinod were present on their Tube-well. The deceased Ravindra asked accused persons to put of their Tube-well as accused were taking water to their field through the tractor. The deceased Ravindra asked that he had turn for irrigating his field on that day. Accused did not put off their Tube-well, which resulted in some altercation between them. Accused persons exhorted to each other that Ravindra always created controversy in irrigating the field, so he should have been finished, thereupon the accused Pappi and Kallan inflicted spade on the neck of Ravindra and he sustained serious injuries and died immediately. The accused Raghunath and Billu caught hold of Vinod (P.W.-2) and the accused Pappan inflicted one spade on his neck. This witness had seen the entire incident from 10 to 15 steps. He immediately reached there. After that the accused persons left the place and went to their house. P.W.-3 immediately went to call Krishnapal. Vinod and Sheeshpal advised him to inform Krishnapal Master, who was teaching in Shival High School, Sival Khas, Meerut. He immediately went to Krishnapal and informed him about the incident. Thereafter he and Krishnapal went to police station and in the mid way, Vinod and several persons of the village met them near Cooperative Bank, Jani. P.W.2 Vinod also narrated the entire incident to Krishnapal on which he had written the report, which was submitted to P. S. Jani.

30. P.W.-3 has also been cross-examined by the defence at length but no contradiction has been found in his testimony. In his cross-examination, this witness has clearly stated that the accused Raghunath and Billu had caught hold of Vinod (P.W.-2), thereupon the accused Pappan had inflicted one spade injury to Vinod and when he reached near the accused persons, they fled from there. This witness Brijpal is an independent eye-witness and he has fully proved the prosecution case.

31. Krishnapal i.e. informant, who happens to be the brother of the deceased Ravindra and injured Vinod Kumar (P.W.-2) has been produced as P.W.4. He has not claimed that he is the eye-witness of the incident. In his testimony, this witness has fairly stated that he has not seen the incident with his own eyes because at the time of incident, he was teaching in High School, Shival Khas, Meerut. and the information regarding this incident was given to him by Brijpal (P.W.-3). He has proved the written report (Exhibit-ka/4) which he has submitted before the Police Station-Jani.

32. Prosecution has produced Sub-Inspector Sanjeev Singh Rathor as P.W.5. In his examination-in-chief, he has stated that he has prepared/conducted the inquest of the body of the deceased Ravindra in the presence of Munesh, Vijai Pal, Brijpal, Vinod and Dharmendra, who were appointed as inquest witnesses according to them the death of Ravindra was caused due to the injuries sustained in criminal transaction. This witness has been cross-examined by defence counsel at length. He has proved all the papers like 'Panchayatnama, letter to R. I., Copy of Chik FIR, letter to C.M. S., specimen seal, Photo Lash and Challan Lash. There is no contradiction in his testimony.

33. Emergency Medical Officer P.L. Sharma has been produced as P.W.- 6, who has medically examined the injured Vinod Kumar (P.W.-2). In his examination-in-chief, this witness has stated that he found 5 injuries on the person of P.W.-2. He has opined that all injuries sustained by P.W.-2 were simple in nature and injury no.1 is incised wound and it was caused by some sharp edged weapon like spade and injuries no.2 and 3 were caused by hard and blunt weapon. He has proved the injury report, which was marked as Exhibit-ka/8. This witness has also been cross-examined by the defence and no contradiction has been found in his entire cross-examination.

34. Constable-1198 Ranvir Singh has been produced as P.W.-7. In his examination-in-chief he has stated that the FIR has been written by him in his own handwriting which was marked as Exhibit-Ka/9. He has proved the chik FIR.

35. P.W.-8 Sub-Inspector R.N. Singh Yadav, has conducted the investigation. In his examination-in-chief this witness has stated that he had conducted the investigation of the case himself, which was started at 12:40 p.m. on 18th May, 2002. He also recorded the statements of the informant Krishnapal and Sheeshpal, who was the eye witness of the case. He has prepared the site plan in his writing. He had collected blood stained earth and plain earth from the place of the occurrence where the dead body of Ravindra was lying. In his cross-examination this witness has stated that he had not sent the blood stained earth and spades for chemical examination on account of the fact that he was transferred, but he has submitted the charge sheet in this case. This witness has also been cross-examined by the defence but no contradiction or inconsistency or improvement has been found in his testimony. He has fully supported the prosecution case.

36. On deeper scrutiny and evaluation of the prosecution witnesses and other evidence, we find that there is two prosecution witnesses of fact, namely, P.W.2 Vinod Kumar, who happens to be the brother of the deceased but is an injured witness and Brijpal (P.W.-3), who is an independent eye witness. In their testimony, they have fully supported the prosecution case and these testimony are the direct evidence against the accused-appellants for commissioning of the offence of murder of the deceased Ravindra and causing injuries to the injured P.W.-2. Apart from the above, the medical evidence both the post-mortem report of the deceased Ravindra as well as medical examination report of injured Vinod Kumar (P.W.-2) as also the police papers have also fully supported the prosecution case.

37. We have examined the judgment and order of conviction passed by the trial court. While passing the impugned judgment the trial court has carefully noticed the prosecution version and other evidence led during the course of trial and has held that the prosecution has established guilt of the accused-appellants based on prosecution evidence. We have noticed hereinabove that there are minor material contradictions, inconsistencies and discrepancies in the statements of the prosecution witnesses specially in star prosecution witnesses i.e. P.W.-2 and P.W.-3, who are alleged to be eye-witnesses of the incident in question. Though the P.W.-2 is an interested witness but is an injured witness also, whereas P.W.-3 is an independent witness and both the witnesses of fact have been cross-examined by the defence at great length. Therefore, their testimony cannot be ruled out as there is some minor contradictions therein.

38. It is settled law that in all criminal cases, normal discrepancies are bound to occur in the depositions of witnesses due to normal errors of observation, namely, errors of memory due to lapse of time or due to mental disposition such as shock and horror at the time of occurrence. Where the omissions amount to a contradiction, creating a serious doubt about the truthfulness of the witness and other witnesses also make material improvement while deposing in the court, such evidence cannot be safe to rely upon. However, minor contradictions, inconsistencies, embellishments or improvements on trivial matters which do not affect the core of the prosecution case, should not be made a ground on which the evidence can be rejected in its entirety. The court has to form its opinion about the credibility of the witness and record a finding as to whether his deposition inspires confidence.

39. In various judgments, the Apex Court has held that the evidence of interested or inimical witnesses is to be scrutinized with care but can not be rejected merely on the ground of being a partisan evidence. If on a perusal of the evidence the Court is satisfied that the evidence is creditworthy there is no bar in relying on the said evidence. It is well settled that interested evidence is not necessarily unreliable evidence. All that is necessary is the evidence of interested witnesses should be subjected to careful scrutiny and accepted with caution. Thus, the evidence cannot be disbelieved merely on the ground that the witnesses are related to each other or to the deceased. In case the evidence has a ring of truth to it, is cogent, credible and trustworthy, it can, and certainly should, be relied upon.

40. In view of the above discussions and deliberations, we find that the trial court is justified in holding that the prosecution has succeeded to prove the guilt of the accused-appellants, namely, Narendra and Pappi for commissioning the offence of murder of the deceased Ravindra the guilt of accused-appellants, namely, Raghunath, Satendra, Pappan, in commission of offence by causing injuries to P.W.-2 Vinod Kumar, is proved beyond reasonable doubt. However, the trial court is not justified in convicting and sentencing accused-appellants Narendra and Pappi under Section 302 I.P.C. We find substance in the submission made by the learned counsel for the accused-appellants that the incident in question occurred on the spur of moment and in the heat of passion and without premeditation or planning of attack, therefore, it would fall within Exception-4 to Section 300 I.P.C. and the conviction of the accused-appellants Narendra and Pappi would fall under Section 304 Part-I I.P.C. and not under Section 302 I.P.C.

41. As per the testimony of prosecution witnesses, at the time and place of incident, the accused-persons were already irrigating their field with the help of farming equipment like Axe, Spades, Sickles etc and when the deceased Ravindra and Vinod Kumar P.W.-2 reached there and Ravindra protested and asked them to give water because it was his turn on which all accused persons got annoyed and exhorted to finish him as he always objected in taking water on which accused-appellants Narendra @ Kallan and Pappi hit their spade on the neck of Ravindra Kumar resulting into his instant death. The accused-appellants Raghunath and Satendra caught hold of another brother of the informant, namely, Vinod and the accused-appellant Pappan inflicted one spade injury on the neck of Vinod. From the said facts, it is apparently clear that the incident occurred on the spur of the moment without any premeditation as the accused-appellants were not the aggressor having weapons in their hands with an intention to commit such offence, when as a matter of fact, they were irrigating their fields with the help of farming equipment before the deceased and injured (P.W.-2) reached there, as such the accused-appellants, Narendra and Pappi could at best be punished under Section 304 I.P.C.

42. In Pulicherla Nagaraju [Pulicherla Nagaraju v. State of A.P., reported in (2006) 11 SCC 444 : (2007) 1 SCC (Cri) 500], the Apex had an occasion to consider the case of culpable homicide not amounting to murder and the intention to cause death. It was observed and held by this Court that the intention to cause death can be gathered generally from a combination of a few or several of the following, among other, circumstances:

- (i) nature of the weapon used;
- (ii) *whether the weapon was carried by the accused or was picked up from the spot;
- (iii) whether the blow is aimed at a vital part of the body;
- (iv) the amount of force employed in causing injury;
- (v) *whether the act was in the course of sudden quarrel or sudden fight or free-for-all fight;
- (vi) whether the incident occurs by chance or whether there was any premeditation;
- (vii) whether there was any prior enmity or whether the deceased was a stranger;
- (viii) *whether there was any grave and sudden provocation, and if so, the cause for such provocation;

(ix) whether it was in the heat of passion;

(x) whether the person inflicting the injury has taken undue advantage or has acted in a cruel and unusual manner;

(xi) whether the accused dealt a single blow or several blows."

43. On examination of the aforesaid judgment of the Apex Court we find that the circumstances nos. (ii), (v) and (viii) given the aforesaid judgment of the Apex Court would apply in the present case.

44. In paragraph-29 in the case of Pulicherla Nagaraju @ Nagaraja Reddy (Supra), the Apex Court has opined that the court should proceed to decide the pivotal question of intention, with care and caution, as that will decide whether the case falls under Section 302 or 304 Part 1 or 304 Part II. In many petty or insignificant matters, plucking of a fruit, straying of cattle, quarrel of children, utterance of a rude word or even an objectionable glance, may lead to altercations and group clashes culminating in deaths. Usual motives like revenge, greed jealousy or suspicion may be totally absent in such cases. There may be no intention. There may be no premeditation. In fact, there may not even be criminality. At the other end of the spectrum, there may be cases of murder where the accused attempts to avoid the penalty for murder by attempting to put forth a case that there was no intention to cause death. It is for the courts to ensure that the cases of murder punishable under Section 302, are not covered into offences punishable under Section 304 Part-I/II, or cases of culpable homicide not amounting to murder, are treated as murder punishable under Section 302.

45. On going through the entire evidence on record, we find that the necessary ingredients to attract 4th Exception to section 300 IPC are clearly present in the facts of the present case inasmuch as death is caused; there existed no pre-meditation; it was a sudden fight; the offender has not taken undue advantage or acted in a cruel or unusual manner, therefore, the case in hand clearly falls under fourth exception to section 300 IPC.

46. The issue relating to quantum of sentence under Section 304 I.P.C. depends on background facts of the case, antecedents of the accused, whether the assault was premeditated and pre-planned or not, etc. There are no straight jacket formulae for the determination of the same in law.

47. In the case of Arjun & Another Etc. Etc. Vs. State of Chhattishgarh reported in 2017 0 Supreme (SC) 152, heavily relied upon by the learned counsel for the accused-appellants, the Apex Court has held that injures/incised wound caused on head i.e. right parietal region and right temporal region and also occipital region, injuries indicate that the appellants had intention of knowledge to cause injuries and thus it would be case falling under Section 304 Part-I I.P.C. therefore, conviction of appellants under Section 302 read with Section 34 I.P.C. is modified under Section 304 Part-I I.P.C.

48. The relevant paragraphs of the judgment of the Apex Court in the case of Arjun & Another Etc.Etc. (Supra) are quoted herein under:

“19. The point falling for consideration is whether the conviction of the appellants under Section 302 IPC is sustainable. As discussed earlier, the evidence clearly establishes that while Ayodhya Prasad and other witnesses were cutting the trees, there was exchange of words which resulted in altercation and during the said altercation, the appellants attacked the deceased. Thus, the incident occurred due to a sudden fight which, in our view, falls under exception (4) of Section 300 IPC.

20. To invoke this exception (4), the requirements that are to be fulfilled have been laid down by this Court in Surinder Kumar Vs. Union Territory of Chandigarh (1989) 2 SCC 217, it has been explained as under:-

“7. To invoke this exception four requirements must be satisfied, namely, (i) it was a sudden fight; (ii) there was no premeditation; (iii) the act was done in a heat of passion; and (iv) the assailant had not taken any undue advantage or acted in a cruel manner. The cause of the quarrel is not relevant nor is it relevant who offered the provocation or started the assault. The number of wounds caused during the occurrence is not a decisive factor but what is important is that the occurrence must have been sudden and unpremeditated and the offender must have acted in a fit of anger. Of course, the offender must not have taken any undue advantage or acted in a cruel manner. Where, on a sudden quarrel, a person in the heat of the moment picks up a weapon which is handy and causes injuries, one of which proves fatal, he would be entitled to the benefit of this exception provided he has not acted cruelly.....”

21. Further in the case of Arumugam VS. State, Represented by Inspector of Police, Tamil Nadu, (2008) 15 SCC 590, in support of the proposition of law that under what circumstances exception (4) to Section

300 IPC can be invoked if death is caused, it has been explained as under:-

“9.“18. The help of Exception 4 can be invoked if death is caused (a) without premeditation; (b) in a sudden fight; (c) without the offender’s having taken undue advantage or acted in a cruel or unusual manner; and (d) the fight must have been with the person killed. To bring a case within Exception 4 all the ingredients mentioned in it must be found. It is to be noted that the ‘fight’ occurring in Exception 4 to Section 300 IPC is not defined in Indian Penal Code, 1860. It takes two to make a fight. Heat of passion requires that there must be no time for the passions to cool down and in this case, the parties had worked themselves into a fury on account of the verbal altercation in the beginning. A fight is a combat between two and more persons whether with or without weapons. It is not possible to enunciate any general rule as to what shall be deemed to be a sudden quarrel. It is a question of fact and whether a quarrel is sudden or not must necessarily depend upon the proved facts of each case. For the application of Exception 4, it is not sufficient to show that there was a sudden quarrel and there was no premeditation. It must further be shown that the offender has not taken undue advantage or acted in cruel or unusual manner. The expression ‘undue advantage’ as used in the provision means ‘unfair advantage’.”

22. The accused, as per the version of PW-6 and eye witness account of other witnesses, had weapons in their hands, but the sequence of events that have been narrated by the witnesses only show that the weapons were used during altercation in a sudden fight and there was no premeditation. Injuries as reflected in the post-mortem report also suggest that appellants have not taken “undue advantage” or acted in a cruel manner. Therefore, in the fact situation, exception (4) under Section 300 IPC is attracted. The incident took place in a sudden fight as such the appellants are entitled to the benefit under Section 300 exception (4) IPC.

23. When and if there is intent and knowledge, then the same would be a case of Section 304 Part I IPC and if it is only a case of knowledge and not the intention to cause murder and bodily injury, then the same would be a case of Section 304 Part II IPC. Injuries/incised wound caused on the head i.e. right parietal region and right temporal region and also occipital region, the injuries indicate that the appellants had intention and knowledge to cause the injuries and thus it would be a case falling under Section 304 Part I IPC. The conviction of the appellants under Section 302 read with Section 34 IPC is modified under Section 304 Part I IPC. As per the Jail Custody Certificates on record, the appellants have served 9 years 3 months and 13 days as on 2nd March, 2016, which means as on date the appellants have served 9 years 11 months. Taking into account the facts and circumstances in which the offence has been committed, for the modified conviction under Section 304 Part I IPC, the sentence is modified to that of the period already undergone.”

49. In the facts of the present case, the accused-appellants Narendra and Pappi caused injuries on the neck of the deceased by spades due to which he had done to death on the place of occurrence, these injuries indicates that both the accused-appellants had knowledge and intention to cause injuries, and thus it would be case falling under Section 304 Part-I I.P.C.

50. In view of the above discussions and deliberations, we are of the considered opinion that the said offence has been committed by the accused-appellants, namely, Narendra and Pappi on a spur of moment and in the heat of passion upon sudden quarrel between them and the deceased and P.W.-2, as is evident from the testimony of prosecution witnesses including the witnesses of fact i.e. P.W.-2 and P.W.-3. Seeing the aforesaid circumstances we are of the view that the quantum of sentence of the accused-appellants Narendra and Pappi to life imprisonment under Section 302 I.P.C. as awarded under the impugned order of sentence is too harsh in the facts of the present case. Attention of the Court has been invited to the fact that the accused-appellants are in jail since 25th September, 2007 and they have actually undergone nearly 16 years of incarceration without remission (15 years, 10 months and 17 days on 19th April, 2023 as per the custody certificate issued by the Senior Superintendent, Central Jail, Agra dated 19th April, 2023 and 20 years, 9 months and six days with remission).

51. Accordingly, conviction of the accused-appellants, namely, Narendra and Pappi under Section 302 I.P.C. is modified as conviction under Section 304 Part-I I.P.C. and the sentence is reduced to the period already undergone by them. Since the accused-appellants, Narendra and Pappi have undergone more than 15 years of incarceration without remission, the fine of Rs.10,000/- imposed upon the accused-appellants, namely, Narendra and Pappi each under Section 302 read with Section 149 I.P.C. under the impugned judgment is also discharged.

52. So far as the conviction of the accused-appellants, namely, Raghunath

(who is reported to be died) by Mr. Noor Mohd. Learned counsel for the accused-appellant), Satendra and Pappan under Section 307 I.P.C. is concerned, we may record that the first injury was certainly on a vital part of the injured Vinod Kumar (P.W.-2) and taking into account the injuries sustained by him on various parts of his body by accused-appellant Pappan, whereas the accused-appellants, namely, Raghunath (now died) and Satendra were assigned the role of catching hold of injured Vinod Kumar (P.W.-2), Section 307 I.P.C. has rightly been invoked by the trial court while passing the impugned judgment. However, taking into account the fact that the altercation took place between the accused-appellants and the deceased along with injured P.W.-2 at the time of watering field and there was no premeditation or planning of the attack, as well as considering the medical examination report of the injured P.W.-2 and the testimony of P.W.-6 who has medically examined him that though P.W.-6 has found 5 injuries on the person of P.W.-2 but he has also opined that all injuries sustained by P.W.-2 were simple in nature, meaning thereby that the blow of spade from which the injury no.1 i.e. Incised wound 6.0 cm x 0.7 cm x muscle on back of left side chest 6.5 cm behind and below of left ear lobule updown, was inflicted was not severe in nature but was on vital part i.e. neck of the Vinod Kumar, injured/P.W.-2, the custodial sentence undergone by the accused-appellants, namely Satendra and Pappan i.e. four and six months respectively would meet the ends of justice. It is ordered accordingly. The fine of Rs.5,000/- imposed upon the accused-appellants, namely, Satendra and Pappan each under Sections 307 read with Section 149 I.P.C. under the impugned judgment is also discharged

Judge/Fast Track Court, Court No. 3, Mainpuri, in Sessions Trial No.159 of 2006 (State Vs. Shishupal Singh) arising out of Case Crime No. 118 of 2006 under Sections 498-A, 304B I.P.C. and Sections 34 D.P. Act Police Station-Bewar, District-Mainpuri, whereby the learned Additional Sessions Judge/Fast Track Court, Court No. 3, Mainpuri has convicted the accused-appellant, Shishupal Singh for commission of offence under Section 302 of Indian Penal Code, 1860 (for short 'IPC') and sentenced him to undergo imprisonment for life with fine of Rs.5,000/- and in default thereof, to further undergo six months additional imprisonment.

2. Heard Sri Shashi Shekhar Mishra, learned Amicus Curiae for the accused-appellant and learned A.G.A. for the State.

3. Brief facts of the case is that the informant/P.W.1 Vidya Devi has given a written report (Exhibit-ka/1) on 4th March, 2006 to the Police Station-Bewar, District-Mainpuri alleging therein that the marriage of her daughter, namely, Laxmi Devi was solemnised with the accused-appellant Shishupal four years ago by giving a lot of dowry. Just after the marriage, the husband of her daughter Laxmi Devi i.e. the accused-appellant, her mother-in-law Gangadevi, father-in-law Subedar Singh and elder-brother-in-law (Jeth) used to harass, torture and beat her for additional demand of dowry, due to which the informant/P.W.-1 did not send her to her in-laws' place and she kept her at her place. It is further alleged that in-laws of her daughter wanted to solemnize the marriage of Shishupal at another place after killing her daughter. Nandoi of daughter of the informant (husband of her sister-in-law), namely, Grish Chandra along with Kishanpal came to her place 20 days ago, to take her daughter along with them to the place of her in-laws and both of them gave an assurance that nothing wrong would happen in future with her daughter and guaranteed her that if anything happens now, it would be their responsibility. On the said persuasion, the informant/P.W.-1 sent her daughter Laxmi Devi with them. Lakshmi herself was a student of B.A. and Lakshmi's husband used to work in P.A.C. On 03.03.2006 at around 8:00 a.m., neighbour of the informant, namely, Ram Kishan informed her that Lakshmi's health is bad, at that time she was at her second daughter Triveni's in-laws house. Neighbour of the informant, namely, Lal Ram and son of her brother-in-law (Jeth) along with his family went to the place of occurrence i.e. Bewar. When they came to know that the daughter of the informant i.e. Laxmi had gone to Government Hospital, Mainpuri, they went to Mainpuri. On reaching Mainpuri they saw the daughter of the informant in dead condition at Mortuary. At mortuary, apart from the neighbour of the informant, namely, Lal Ram and son of her brother-in-law (Jeth) along with his family, only the father-in-law of Laxmi was present from the side of her in-laws. After the post-mortem, neighbour of the informant, namely, Lal Ram and son of her brother-in-law (Jeth) along with his family requested the father-in-law of Laxmi to cremate her body after her mother would come but he refused to do the same. After some time, other people came from the side of Laxmi in-laws, who forcefully took her daughter's dead body by a Tempo. Thereafter the family members of the informant came directly to her village and after coming there, they called her from her second daughter in-laws' place and disclosed the entire incident to her. Then the informant has come to lodge the report. It is further alleged that the in-laws of her daughter Laxmi have not even allowed her to see her daughter's dead body. All the people of the daughter in-laws have locked their house and fled. The informant has also come to know that the statement of her daughter Laxmi was recorded in the hospital. After the daughter's marriage, it was revealed that the accused-appellant Shishupal had secretly married with another girl. In the murder of her daughter, all the above accused have conspired and killed her for the sake of dowry. It is further alleged that since the informant/P.W. -1 was helpless, she could not fulfil the demand of motorcycle of her in-laws and that's why all of them have burnt her daughter to death. On reaching the spot, the informant was informed by the neighbours of her daughter's in-laws that all the above accused were beating her daughter and after holding her by the other accused, the accused-appellant Shishupala had poured kerosene oil and set her on fire. 25 years ago the husband of the informant had died and thereafter somehow she solemnized the marriage of their daughters after giving dowries.

4. On the basis of the written report of informant/P.W.-1, F.I.R. was lodged at Police Station Bewar, District Mainpuri on the same day i.e. 3rd March, 2006 at 15:30 o'clock against the accused persons, namely, accused-appellant Shishupal, Ganga Devi, Gyanpal, Subedar, Grish Chandra and Kishanpal and the investigation was carried out. On investigation being put into motion, the Police recorded the statements of the witnesses and completed necessary formalities. On 3rd March, 2006, P.W.-7 the then Tehsildar Asha Ram under the order of the Sub-Divisional Magistrate Mainpuri, got the inquest of the body of the deceased Laxmi conducted at District Hospital, Mainpuri by the Police and also got the inquest report prepared (Exhibit-ka/8). He also appointed inquest witnesses. He also got the necessary papers prepared like police papers, letter to R.I., letter to C.M.O., Photo lash, chalan lash (Exhibit-ka/9 to Exhibit-ka/12). P.W.-7 also got the body of the deceased sealed and sent for post-mortem.

5. The post-mortem of the dead body of deceased Laxmi was conducted by Dr. K.C. Bhardwaj (P.W.-2), the then Medical Officer at District Hospital, Mainpuri on 3rd March, 2006 at 03:45 p.m. The postmortem report Exh. Ka-2 was prepared and in the opinion of the Autopsy Surgeon (P.W.-2), the death of the deceased Laxmi was due to shock as a result of following ante-mortem superficial burn deep injuries:-

7. Initially, the investigation was conducted by Circle Officer, Karhal, namely, Ram Chandra Guha (not produced) and thereafter the investigation has been conducted by Circle Officer Shrawan Kumar Singh (P.W.-6). After perusal of the investigation conducted by Ram Chandra Guha, he made entry in G.D. of inquest and thereafter recorded the statements of P.W.-2 Dr. K.C. Bhardwaj and P.W.-8 Dr.U.C. Chaturvedi. After that P.W.-6 has recorded the statements of witnesses and made entry in G.D. of dying declaration of the deceased Laxmi after obtaining permission from the C.J.M. On 23rd March, 2006 he recorded the statements of informant Vidya Devi and other witnesses. After conclusion of the statutory investigation under Chapter-XII Cr.P.C. P.W.-6 has submitted the charge-sheet against the accused-appellant Shishupal under Section 498-A, 304-B I.P.C. and Sections 3/4 D.P. Act, exonerating the other accused named in the F.I.R. before the Court of concerned Magistrate, who took cognizance thereon and the case was committed to the court of Sessions as the offence alleged to have been committed were triable by the Sessions Court. Initially on 17th July, 2007 the accused-appellant has been charged under Sections 498-A, 304 B I.P.C. and Section 4 D.P. Act but subsequently on 18th June, 2007, he has been charged under Sections 498-A I.P.C. 304-B and 302 I.P.C. and Section 4 D.P. Act.

8. The charges were read out to the accused-appellant, who denied the accusation and demanded trial.

9. The trial started and the prosecution has examined seven witnesses, who are as follows:-

1	Vidya Devi, informant/the complainant, mother of the deceased.	PW1
2	Dr. K.C. Bhardwaj, who conducted the autopsy of the body of the deceased	PW2
3	Ramendra Singh, Constable Clerk, who prepared the chik	PW3

	FIR and proved the same
4	Amar Singh, cousin brother of the deceased	PW4
5	Laxmi Narain, then Naib Tehsildar, who recorded the dying declaration of the deceased Laxmi at District Hospital, Mainpuri (Investigating Officer)	PW5
6	Circle Officer Shravan Kumar Singh, Investigating Officer	PW6
7	Asha Ram, the then Tehsildar, who got conducted the inquest of the body of the deceased at District Hospital, Mainpuri	PW7
8	Dr. U.C. Chaturvedi, who medically treated the deceased at District Hospital, Mainpuri and gave medical fitness certificate of the deceased before recording her dying declaration	PW8

10. The defence has also adduced Subedar Singh, father-in-law of the deceased as D.W.-1 and also named in the FIR but subsequently, his name was exonerated by the Investigating Officer in the charge-sheet. This witness has also informed the Police about the incident of burning occurred with her daughter-in-law i.e. the deceased .

11. The prosecution in order to establish the charges leveled against the accused-appellant has relied upon following documentary evidence, which were duly proved and consequently marked as Exhibits:

1	First Information Report	Ex.Ka

	dated 4th March, 2003	.-3
2	Written report dated 4th March, 2003	Ex.Ka .-1
3	Memo of dying declaration of the deceased dated 2nd March, 2003	Ex. Ka.-5
4	Application of Budear Singh (D.W.-1)	Ex.Kh a.-1
5	Post-mortem report of the deceased dated 3rd March, 2003	Ex.Ka .-2
6	Site plan with index dated 4th March, 2003	Ex. Ka.-7
7	Charge-sheet	Ex. Ka.-6

12. The accused in his statement recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C. has denied to have committed the alleged offence. Though he has accepted his marriage with the deceased 4 years ago but he has denied that he had demanded any motorcycle as dowry and because of non-fulfilment of said demand, he has beaten and tortured her. He has also denied that he killed the deceased by pouring kerosene oil and set her on fire. He has also stated that false report has been lodged at Police Station against him and after preparing false site plan, charge-sheet was submitted before the court concerned against him. He has further stated that the witnesses have given false statements against him. He has again stated that in P.A.C. Etah, a departmental proceedings were going on against him to having second wife apart from first wife and the statement given by the deceased Laxmi Devi against him in the said proceedings was altered by the people of his department due to which she was annoyed and she committed suicide by setting her on fire. He has also stated that at the time of incident, he was at his home for which he had to give evidence later.

13. The trial court on the basis of evidence so led by the prosecution has found the guilt of the accused-appellant to have been proved beyond reasonable doubt. The trial Court has found the witnesses to be reliable and the dying declaration has also been found credible and reliable which formed the basis for conviction of the accused. Accordingly, the trial court has held that, accused-appellant Shishupal Singh is liable to be acquitted for the offence under Sections 498A, 304B IPC and Section 3/4 Dowry Prohibition Act and is liable to be convicted/punished under Section 302 I.P.C. It is against this judgment that the present appeal has been preferred by the accused-appellant Shishupal.

14. The submission made by the counsel for the accused appellant is that the informant is the mother of the deceased and was inimical to the accused. In the statement recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C., the accused-appellant has stated that he has not committed any offence. It is further submitted that in the statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. the accused-appellant has stated that in P.A.C. Etah, a departmental proceedings were going on against him to having second wife apart from first wife and the statement given by the deceased Laxmi Devi against him in the said proceedings, got altered by the people of his department due to which she was annoyed and she committed suicide by setting her on fire. He further submits that the dying declaration is not reliable in the facts of the present case since the deceased was not in a position to give any statement. He next submits that no satisfaction is recorded by the Doctor about the deceased being in a fit mental state to give her statement. He also submits that the condition of the victim was critical and her trachea was blocked for which operation was proposed and, therefore, the victim otherwise was not in a position to speak or to get her dying declaration recorded.

15. Learned counsel, therefore, submits that this is a case of suicide not homicidal, as the deceased being a shot temper lady and she had not borne any child for four years during the marital life, she committed suicide by pouring kerosene oil on herself and set her on fire and the family members of the deceased have taken advantage of it to falsely implicate the accused and thereby settle their goal in garbing money from the accused-appellant. It is urged that the evidence on record has not been examined in correct perspective by the trial Court. It is also urged on behalf of the accused-appellant that the FIR is delay of two days which was lodged, as an after-thought for falsely implicating the accused-appellants on the basis of which the accused-appellant have been convicted.

16. Learned counsel for the State has submitted that there is no reason for false implication of the accused and the complainant had no motive to falsely implicate the accused. There is clinching evidence to support the prosecution's case; there is dying declaration of the deceased and the statements given by the deceased therein have been supported by the prosecution witnesses including P.W.-1, P.W.4, independent prosecution witness P.W.3; the prosecution version has also been supported by the medical evidence; the place of occurrence has not been disputed by the defence; and the accused-appellant has strong motive or intention as he had second wife and the same has also been explained by the evidence of prosecution. Therefore, the prosecution has proved the charge levelled against the accused-appellant beyond reasonable doubt. Evidence of prosecution witnesses will not permit this Court to show any leniency in the matter.

17. On the cumulative strength of the aforesaid submissions, learned A.G.A. submits that as this is a case of direct evidence, the impugned judgment and order of conviction does not suffer from any illegality and infirmity so as to warrant any interference by this Court. As such the present jail appeal filed by the accused appellants who committed heinous crime by murdering the deceased is liable to be dismissed.

18. We have considered the submissions made by the learned counsel for the parties and have carefully examined the original records of the case as well as the impugned judgment and order of conviction challenged before us.

19. We are in full agreement with the findings recorded by the trial court after relying upon the statements of P.W.-5, P.W.-8 and the dying declaration of the deceased itself that the circumstances in which the dying declaration of the deceased Lakshmidēvi has been recorded by P.W.5 is quite natural, which makes it clear that the deceased Lakshmidēvi was in her senses and in full consciousness while making the dying declaration. The dying declaration has been made of her own free will. He has further recorded that there was no scope for any pressure and manipulation because the dying declaration was made by Lakshmidēvi before her death, wherein she has only taken the name of her husband i.e. accused-appellant Shishupal Singh and she has told that her husband had beaten her first at 3 to 4 o'clock in the night, then poured kerosene oil on her and set her on fire with matches. The trial court has also recorded that in the dying declaration the deceased Lakshmidēvi has stated that her whole body was burnt due to fire at several places. Her marriage was solemnized 4 years ago of the incident. She did not have any child. Due to his second wife, the accused-appellant Shishupal had set the deceased on fire and no other in-laws has set her on fire. The deceased has further stated in her dying declaration that in this incident her husband is only responsible. Her mother-in-law and father-in-law were there, who admitted her to the hospital. Her husband escaped in the night itself. He didn't come along with them. She has also stated that her brother-in-law (Jeth), Nandoi, father-in-law had come to the hospital. There is no fault of anyone in this incident. This feat is of her husband only. The deceased made her statement in her senses. Apart from the above, she had nothing to tell. She has also stated that she did not set herself on fire.

20. On the basis of the aforesaid statement of the deceased in her dying declaration, the trial court has opined that on seriously reviewing the said dying declaration of deceased Lakshmidēvi, it is found to be creditworthy that if the deceased wanted, she could have taken the name of all family members of in-laws in her dying declaration as well, but she has told the name of her husband, who poured kerosene oil on her and set her on fire with matches. Apart from this, it is also very important that the dying declaration made by the deceased Lakshmidēvi was not given due to any pressure or any other reason because when the deceased Laxmidēvi was admitted to the District Hospital in a burnt condition, at that point of time no member of her family i.e. her mother and any other person were present and those who were present there in the hospital to take care of her was her in-laws only. Under these circumstances, the trial court has opined that there is valid reason to consider the verbal declaration of death made by the deceased. The trial court has also recorded that it is also clear from the dying declaration of Lakshmidevi that her husband Shishupal Singh was married to another woman and had a child from the said wedlock. This fact is undisputed because the defence witness (D.W.-1) i.e. her father-in-law has himself accepted this fact in his testimony. This statement of the deceased that her husband was already married has also been supported by her widow mother i.e. P.W.1/informant and her cousin brother (P.W.-4) in their testimony. Thus, on the basis of dying declaration of the deceased and statements of the prosecution witnesses i.e. P.W.-1, P.W.4, P.W.-5 and P.W.-8 and the evidence on record, the trial court has come to the conclusion that the prosecution has succeeded to prove the guilt of the accused-appellant that due to his second wife the accused-appellant used to beat and harass the deceased before the incident and after that he poured kerosene oil on her and set her on fire and the said criminal act of accused Shishupal Singh comes under the category of murder. On the basis of such finding, the trial court has come to the conclusion that this is not a case of murder of dowry, but is a direct murder case, which the prosecution has successfully proved.

21. While considering the evidence of P.W.1 to P.W.8 in cumulative nature, the death can be said to be homicidal death. Postmortem report goes to show that the superficial deep burn injuries on the body of the deceased would be the cause of death and that it was homicidal death. There is also dying declaration which was given by the deceased in her senses and not under any pressure as is evident from the statements of independent prosecution witnesses i.e. P.W.-5, who recorded the dying declaration after taking medical fitness certificate from P.W.-8, who was medically treating the deceased when she was admitted in the hospital and was alive. It is settled law that the dying declaration made by a person on the verge of his/her death has a special sanctity as at that solemn moment a person is unlikely to make any untrue statement.

22. In the case of Bijoy Das Versus State of West Bengal reported in (2008) 4 SCC 511, wherein in paragraph-11, the Apex Court has held as follows:

“11. As observed by this Court in Narain Singh v. State of Haryana AIR vide para 7: (SCC p. 267, para 7) A dying declaration made by a person on the verge of his death has a special sanctity as at that solemn moment a person is most unlikely to make any untrue statement. The shadow of impending death is by itself guarantee of the truth of the statement of the deceased regarding the circumstances leading to his death. But at the same time the dying declaration like any other evidence has to be tested on the touchstone of credibility to be acceptable. It is more so, as the accused does not get an opportunity of questioning veracity of the statement by cross-examination. The dying declaration if found reliable can form the base of conviction.

8. In Babulal v. State of M.P. (2003 (12) SCC 490) this Court observed vide in para 7 of the said decision as under: (SCC p.

494) A person who is facing imminent death, with even a shadow of continuing in this world practically non-existent, every motive of falsehood is obliterated. The mind gets altered by most powerful ethical reasons to speak only the truth. Great solemnity and sanctity is attached to the words of a dying person because a person on t as she had not borne any child for four years during the marital life he verge of death is not likely to tell lies or to concoct a case so as to implicate an innocent person. The maxim is a man will not meet his Maker with a lie in his mouth (nemo moriturus praesumitur mentiri). Mathew Arnold said, truth sits on the lips of a dying man. The general principle on which the species of evidence is admitted is that they are declarations made in extremity, when the party is at the point of death, and when every hope of this world is gone, when every motive to falsehood is silenced and mind induced by the most powerful consideration to speak the truth; situation so solemn that law considers the same as creating an obligation equal to that which is imposed by a positive oath administered in a court of justice.

9. In Ravi v. State of T.N. ((2004 (10) SCC 776) this Court observed that: (SCC p. 777, para 3) If the truthfulness of the dying declaration cannot be doubted, the same alone can form the basis of conviction of an accused and the same does not require any corroboration, whatsoever, in law.

(Emphasis supplied by us)

23. The death occurred because of the ante-mortem burn injuries. Learned counsel for the appellant has not been able to establish that the dying declaration is not natural dying declaration we concur with the learned Judge that the deceased died out of ante-mortem burn injuries. The contours for accepting the dying declaration are fulfilled in the facts of the case, therefore, we conclude that it was a homicidal death. The next question is whether the accused was the sole perpetrator of the offence. The dying declaration, which we have held to be fulfilled on contours of dying declaration goes to show that the deceased was in a full consciousness and has named only her husband and no other in-laws have been named in the dying declaration. The cause of the incident was that as she had not borne any child for four years during the marital life and that the appellant had some illicit relations prior to the marriage that was the cause behind killing the deceased by the accused-appellant.

24. Therefore, on totality of the facts and circumstances and the oral testimony of the prosecution witnesses specifically the dying declaration of the deceased coupled with the medical evidence, we find that the judgment and order impugned passed by the trial court in convicting the accused-appellant under Section 302 I.P.C. and sentenced him to life imprisonment with fine of Rs, 5,000/- cannot be said to be illegal or perverse.

25. However, considering the total period of incarceration undergone by the accused-appellant i.e. more than 15 years is just and proper. In the case of Vikash Yadav Vs. State of Uttar Pradesh & Others reported in (2016) 9 SCC 541, the Apex Court has opined that there was lack of uniformity in award of death sentences and life convicts got released after 14 years due to remission provisions mentioned in the Code of Criminal Procedure. Fixed term non-remittable imprisonment beyond 14 years barred the statutory remission (not constitutional remission under Articles 71 and 161. Fixed term non-remittable sentence came to rescue of court when death sentence fell short of rare-rest of rare category and court felt reluctant to endorse death sentence. Therefore, there is no bar to fix non-remittable term beyond the minimum of 14 years up to the end of one's life.

26. The relevant portion of the judgment of the Apex Court in the case of Vikash Yadav is read as under:

“To elaborate, though the power exercised under Article 71 and Article 161 of the Constitution is amenable to judicial review in a limited sense, yet the Court cannot exercise such power. As far as the statutory power under Section 433-A is concerned, it can be curtailed when the Court is of the considered opinion that the fact situation deserves a sentence of incarceration which be for a fixed term so that power of remission is not exercised. There are many an authority to support that there is imposition of fixed term sentence to curtail the power of remission and scuttle the application for consideration of remission by the convict. It is because in a particular fact situation, it becomes a penological necessity which is permissible within the concept of maximum and the minimum. There is no dispute over the maximum, that is, death sentence. However, as far as minimum is concerned the submission of the learned counsel for the appellants is courts can say “imprisonment for life” and nothing else. It cannot be kept in such a strait-jacket formula. The court, as in the case at hand, when dealing with an appeal for enhancement of sentence from imprisonment of life to death, can definitely say that the convict shall suffer actual incarceration for a specific period.

It is within the domain of judiciary and such an interpretation is permissible. Be it noted, the Court cannot grant a lesser punishment than the minimum but can impose a punishment which is lesser than the maximum. It is within the domain of sentencing and constitutionally permissible.”

27. The accused has been in jail for more than 15 years, he has already undergone sufficient incarceration for the incident occurred in 02.03.2006. We therefore, apply the fix term sentencing policy of 14 years at par with the judgment of the Apex Court in the case of Vikas Yadav (Supra). Accordingly, accused-appellant is liable to be released from jail.

28. The accused-appellant, namely, Sheeshu Pal Singh, who is reported to be in jail since 2007 shall be released on compliance of Section 437-A Cr.P.C., unless he is wanted in any other case forthwith.

29. This appeal stands disposed off subject to the observations/directions made herein above.

30. Let a copy of this judgment be sent to the Chief Judicial Magistrate, Mainpuri henceforth, who shall transmit the same to the concerned Jail Superintendent for release of the accused-appellants in terms of this judgment.

31. Sri Shashi Shekhar Mishra, learned Amicus Curiae for the sole appellant has ably assisted this Court and would be entitled to his fee for a sum of Rs. 15,000/- from the High Court Legal Services Authority.

3. Learned counsel for the revisionist submitted that the revisionist conflict with law is juvenile. In this matter, the alleged date of mentioned in the FIR as 26.2.2018. The Juvenile Justice Board arrived at a conclusion that as per the educational certificate of Class V marks sheet, scholar register and transfer certificate form, the date of birth of the revisionist is 6.3.2003. Thus the age of the revisionist on the alleged date of incident was 14 years 11 months and 20 days.

4. It is further submitted that the Juvenile Justice Board during inquiry CW-1 Amita Rana who is the sister of the revisionist was examined and CW-2 Sushila Rani who is the Head Master of Nehru Shishu Mandir Vidyalaya Gulam Alipura, Bahraich and she clearly stated that on the basis of scholar register the date of birth of the revisionist is 6.3.2003.

5. Learned counsel for the revisionist further submitted that on behalf of the first informant, PW-1 Laxman Prasad Gupta was examined who clearly stated that as per scholar register date of birth of the revisionist was mentioned as 16.7.2000. He further stated that this student has got admission in class III. At the time of admission, the father of the revisionist furnished the T.C. of Gaytri Shishu Mandir, Bahraich. On the basis of said T.C., date of birth of the revisionist was registered in the scholar register of Class IV passed by the student in his school.

6. On perusal of the judgement of the trial court as well as the revisional court, it reveals that PW-2 Usha Patak, Principal of Gaytri Shishu Mandir, Bahraich was also examined before the Juvenile Justice Board, but the statement of PW-2 Usha Patak has not been annexed by the revisionist's counsel. However, the conclusion of the trial court as well as revisional court is totally based on the statement of PW-2 Usha Pathak but the same is not annexed with this file. Therefore, without the statement of PW-2 Usha Pathak, the instant revision could not be decided. During course of dictation, this fact came into light.

7. Since for just decision of the case, statement of PW-2 Usha Pathak is inevitable, consequently, the learned counsel for the revisionist is directed to file statement of PW-2 Usha Pathak.

8. List on 16.5.2023 for further hearing."

2. In pursuance of earlier order dated 11.5.2023, the learned counsel for the revisionist filed the statement of the PW-2 Usha Pathak by way of supplementary affidavit which is taken on record.

3. In the statement of PW-2, Usha Pathak who is the Principal of the Gaytri Shishu Mandir, Bahraich, she clearly stated that Aman Gautam (revisionist) is never the student of her school. In her cross examination, she clearly stated that although there are two branches of the school. Another branch is looked after by the Assistant Principal. She further stated that the S.R. register of both the branches is same but attendance register is separate. She further stated that all the documents are kept in main branch.

4. On the basis of above statement of PW-2, Usha Pathak, the learned counsel for the revisionist submitted that learned Juvenile Justice Board has rightly arrived at a conclusion that the revisionist conflict with law is never the student of Gaytri Shishu Mandir. So, the statement of PW-1, Laxman Prasad Gupta is factually incorrect and thus, the revisionist is never the student of his school.

5. The main grievance of the learned counsel for the revisionist is that the appellate court quashed the order passed by the trial court on 6.3.2019 and arrived at a conclusion that since the birth certificate of the revisionist was issued on 4.7.2018 i.e. after 15 years of birth. So the appellate court doubted the date of birth of the revisionist i.e. 6.3.2003 and on this basis, the learned appellate court arrived at a conclusion that date of birth which is fixed by the Juvenile Justice Board is doubtful. The appellate court directed to get medical examination of the revisionist and determining the age by way of radiological age as per provision of section 94 of the Juvenile Justice (Care & Protection of Children) Act, 2015 (hereinafter referred to as "the Act").

6. In support of his submissions, the learned counsel for the revisionist has relied on the judgement of the Apex Court in the case of Ashwani Kumar Saxena vs. State of Madhya Pradesh (2012) 9 SCC 750. The relevant paragraphs of which are being reproduced hereunder:

"34. Age determination inquiry contemplated under the JJ Act and the 2007 Rules has nothing to do with an enquiry under other legislations, like entry in service, retirement, promotion, etc. There may be situations where the entry made in the matriculation or equivalent certificates, date of birth certificate from the school first attended and even the birth certificate given by a corporation or a municipal authority or a panchayat may not be correct. But court, Juvenile Justice Board or a committee functioning under the JJ Act is not expected to conduct such a roving enquiry and to go behind those certificates to examine the correctness of those documents, kept during the normal course of business. Only in cases where those documents or certificates are found to be fabricated or manipulated, the court, the Juvenile Justice Board or the committee need to go for medical report for age determination.

35. We have come across several cases in which the trial courts have examined a large number of witnesses on either side including the conduct of ossification test and calling for odontology report, even in cases, where matriculation or equivalent certificate, the date of birth certificate from the school last or first attended, the birth certificate given by a corporation or a municipal authority or a panchayat are made available. We have also come across cases where even the courts in the large number of cases express doubts over certificates produced and carry on detailed probe which is totally unwarranted.

43. We are of the view that admission register in the school in which the candidate first attended is a relevant piece of evidence of the date of birth. The reasoning that the parents could have entered a wrong date of birth in the admission register hence not a correct date of birth is equal to thinking that parents would do so in anticipation that child would commit a crime in future and, in that situation, they could successfully raise a claim of juvenility."

7. I have heard Shri Rakesh Kumar Tripathi, learned counsel for the revisionist, learned AGA for the State and perused the record.

8. Section 94 of the Act reads as under:

"94. Presumption and determination of age.-(1) Where, it is obvious to the Committee or the Board, based on the appearance of the person brought before it under any of the provisions of this Act (other than for the purpose of giving evidence) that the said person is a child, the Committee or the Board shall record such observation stating the age of the child as nearly as may be and proceed with the inquiry under section 14 or section 36, as the case may be, without waiting for further confirmation of the age.

(2) In case, the Committee or the Board has reasonable grounds for doubt regarding whether the person brought before it is a child or not, the Committee or the Board, as the case may be, shall undertake the process of age determination, by seeking evidence by obtaining—

(i) the date of birth certificate from the school, or the matriculation or equivalent certificate from the concerned examination Board, if available; and in the absence thereof;

(ii) the birth certificate given by a corporation or a municipal authority or a panchayat;

(iii) and only in the absence of (i) and (ii) above, age shall be determined by an ossification test or any other latest medical age determination test conducted on the orders of the Committee or the Board:

Provided such age determination test conducted on the order of the Committee or the Board shall be completed within fifteen days from the date of such order.

(3) The age recorded by the Committee or the Board to be the age of person so brought before it shall, for the purpose of this Act, be deemed to be the true age of that person."

9. Considering the entire facts and circumstances of the case and the law laid down by the apex court, I am of the view that the learned appellate court arrived at a conclusion that there is dispute in regard to date of birth of the revisionist. The conclusion of the Juvenile Justice Board is based on the family register which is annexed as Annexure-4 as well as the statement of PW-2 Usha Pathak in which she clearly denied stating that the revisionist never got admission in Gaytri Shishu Mandir. The statement of PW-1

Laxman Prasad Gupta is totally based on the basis of the T.C. of Gaytri Shishu Mandir, but this fact is established that the revisionist never studied in the Gaytri Shishu Mandir School. So the findings arrived by the learned appellate court that there is dispute in respect of date of birth of the revisionist. In the statement of CW-1 and CW-2 Sushila Rani, Head Master of Nehru Shishu Mandir Gulam Alipura, Bahraich, it is clearly established that the date of birth of the revisionist is 6.3.2003. Submission of the CW-1 and CW-2 is also supported with family register in which date of birth of the revisionist is mentioned as 6.3.2003.

10. Though no any mechanism developed to determine the radiological age of the juvenile at this stage. The juvenility as per radiological age is determinable only when the revisionist at the verge of majority. As per birth certificate and family register of the revisionist and statement of CW-1 and CW-2, presently revisionist conflict with law has already attained the majority i.e aged about 19-20 years. The radiological age could be determined on the basis of fusion of epiphysis generally which is started from age of 16 years and almost completed in age of 18 years. Further, if the finding of the appellate court is accepted as true, when any conflict arises regarding the age of the juvenile or child and on the basis of oral statement it could not be possible to determine the correct date of birth and age of the juvenile, then the medical opinion will be sought from the duly constituted medical board which will declare the age of the juvenile or child. In this case, the appellate court categorically arrived at a conclusion that there is conflict in the date of birth of the revisionist and directed the revisionist for radiological age.

11. Now the moot question arises in this matter whether after attaining majority the exact age could be determined or not. In this context, the Apex Court in the case of Mukarrab Etc vs State Of U.P [decided on 30 November, 2016 in Criminal Appeal Nos. 1119-1120 of 2016], has held as under:

"17. As already noted, by an order dated 18.02.2016, this Court had directed the concerned District and Sessions Judge to conduct an inquiry and submit a report as to the age of the appellants (Mukarrab and Arshad). As per the report submitted by the VIIIth Additional District and Sessions Judge, Moradabad both the appellants (Mukarrab and Arshad) were major on the date of the incident. After perusing the report of the District Judge, by order dated 06.04.2016, this Court has directed medical examination of the appellants (Mukarrab and Arshad) to be conducted by a duly constituted Medical Board of the AIIMS, New Delhi. Accordingly, the doctors of AIIMS have examined the appellants (Mukarrab and Arshad) and given their opinion as under:-

"Alleged history in Brief: On perusal of the documents submitted to AIIMS, it was revealed that the year of commission of crime was 1994 i.e. 22 years before today i.e. 02.05.2016.

The said accused Mukarrab alleged his date of birth to be 1st July, 1978.

The said accused Arshad has submitted the documentary proof of his age stating date of Birth as 5th February, 1979.

Examination Proceedings: Both the accused were examined after taking due informed consent along with signature and left thumb impression.

Their physical, dental and radiological examinations were carried out. X- ray examination of Skull (AP and lateral view), Sternum (AP and lateral view) and Sacrum (lateral view) were advised and performed. There was no indication for Dental X-rays since both accused were much beyond 25 years of age in any case.

Physical and Dental Examination: In both cases, general physical examination findings are consistent with findings of normal adult male. Dental examination shows presence of complete 8 sets of permanent teeth in all 4 quadrants.

Report of Radiological Examination-

Mukarrab Medical end of clavicle fused-age>more than 22 years Xiphoid process not fused with sternal body-age<40 years Manubrium not fused with sternal body-age<50 years Complete fusion of sacral bodies-age>32 years Saggital suture obliterated in posterior 1/3rd and coronal suture obliterated in lower ½-age<40 years.

Arshad Medical end of clavicle fused-age>more than 22 years Xiphoid process not fused with sternal body-age<40 years Manubrium not fused with sternal body-age<50 years Complete fusion of sacral bodies-age>32 years Saggital suture obliterated in posterior 1/3rd and coronal suture intact- age<40 years.

Opinion: Both accused have been brought for examination at AIIMS on 02.05.2016, 22 years after the alleged date of incidence. After going through the various findings of physical, dental and radiological examinations; medical board is of considered opinion that the age of accused viz. Mukarrab s/o Mr. Mulla Zafar as well as Arshad s/o Rashid is between 35-40 years on the date of examination i.e. 02.05.2016.

18. The question falling for consideration is whether the opinion of the Medical Board of AIIMS determining the age of the appellants between 35-40 years, can be accepted or not.

19. Learned Senior Counsel for the appellants contended that the general rule about age determination is that the age determined by the Medical Board vary plus or minus two years but the Medical Board in this case had fixed the age of the appellants at 35-40 years and going by the general rule, the age of the appellants is to be estimated as 38 years on the date of medical examination and giving additional benefit of one year in lowering the age in terms of Rule 12(3)(b), age of the appellants is to be determined as 37 years as on the date of medical examination on 02.05.2016. It was, therefore, submitted that taking the age of the appellants as 37 years as on 02.05.2016 which means that at the time of commission of the offence in 1994, the appellants would have been only aged about 15 years and, therefore, the benefit of Juvenile Justice Act to be extended to the appellants. Contending that the benefit of benevolent provisions of Juvenile Justice Act and the Rules must be extended to the appellants herein, learned Senior Counsel for the appellant relied upon Darga Ram alias Gunga v. State of Rajasthan (2015) 2 SCC 775 wherein it has been held as under:-

“16. The medical opinion given by the duly constituted Board comprising Professors of Anatomy, Radio diagnosis and Forensic Medicine has determined his age to be “about” 33 years on the date of the examination. The Board has not been able to give the exact age of the appellant on medical examination, no matter the advances made in that field. That being so, in terms of Rule 12(3)(b) the appellant may even be entitled to the benefit of fixing his age on the lower side within a margin of one year in case the Court considers it necessary to do so in the facts and circumstances of the case. The need for any such statutory concession may not however arise because even if the estimated age as determined by the Medical Board is taken as the correct/true age of the appellant he was just about 17 years and 2 months old on the date of the occurrence and thus a juvenile within the meaning of that expression as used in the Act aforementioned. Having said that we cannot help observing that we have not felt very comfortable with the Medical Board estimating the age of the appellant in a range of 30 to 36 years as on the date of the medical examination.

17. The general rule about age determination is that the age as determined can vary plus minus two years but the Board has in the case at hand spread over a period of six years and taken a mean to fix the age of the appellant at 33 years. We are not sure whether that is the correct way of estimating the age of the appellant. What reassures us about the estimate of age is the fact that the same is determined by a Medical Board comprising Professors of Anatomy, Radiodiagnosis and Forensic Medicine whose opinion must get the respect it deserves. That apart, even if the age of the appellant was determined by the upper extremity limit i.e. 36 years the same would have been subject to variation of plus minus 2 years meaning thereby that he could as well be 34 years on the date of the examination. Taking his age as 34 years on the date of the examination he would have been 18 years, 2 months and 7 days on the date of the occurrence but such an estimate would be only an estimate and the appellant may be entitled to additional benefit of one year in terms of lowering his age by one year in terms of Rule 12(3)(b) (supra) which would then bring him to be 17 years and 2 months old, therefore, a juvenile.”

22. It is well settled that it is neither feasible nor desirable to lay down an abstract formula to determine the age of a person. The date of birth is to be determined on the basis of material on record and on appreciation of evidence adduced by the parties. The medical evidence as to the age of a person, though a very useful guiding factor, is not conclusive and has to be considered along with other cogent evidence.

27. The benefit of the principle of benevolent legislation attached to the JJ Act would thus apply to only such cases wherein the accused is held to be a juvenile on the basis of at least prima facie evidence regarding his minority as the benefit of the possibilities of two views in regard to the age of the alleged accused who is involved in grave and serious offence which he committed and gave effect to it in a well-planned manner reflecting his maturity of mind rather than innocence indicating that his plea of juvenility is more in the nature of a shield to dodge or dupe the arms of law, cannot be allowed to come to his rescue.” [Emphasis added] From the above decision, it is clear that the purpose of Juvenile Justice Act, 2000 is not to give shelter to the accused of grave and heinous offences.”

12. Since in this matter the proper inquiry has been done by the Juvenile Justice Board and the Juvenile Justice Board has rightly concluded that the date of birth of the revisionist is 6.3.2003. Presently as per conclusion of the Juvenile Justice Board, age of the revisionist is more than 20 years. If the statement of PW-1 is accepted as true, then the age of the revisionist is 23 years.

13. Keeping in view the above ruling of the Apex Court in Mukarrab Etc (supra) that when the revisionist has attained majority, then at this stage exact age could not be determined. So the learned Juvenile Justice Board determined the age considering the material facts and circumstances. Even at this stage, the medical board could not determine the exact age of the revisionist conflict with law. So in this matter, there is no reason to disbelieve the conclusion arrived by the Juvenile Justice Board. Thus, the conclusion arrived by the appellate court is erroneous.

14. Consequently, the present revision is hereby allowed and the impugned order dated 31.7.2019 passed by the appellate court is hereby set aside.

A. Criminal Law - Criminal Procedure Code, 1973 - Section 407 - Indian Penal Code, 1860-Sections 498-A, 323, 504, 506, 307, 120-B - Section 3/4 Dowry Prohibition Act –the marriage of applicant and opposite party was solemnized two years ago and the allegations are that the applicant used to beat the opposite party for money- the dispute is of between husband and wife-The opposite party along with her daughter had gone to her parents' house and was living there.-She had given a written letter stating therein that she was not being physically hurt that is why she did not go for her medical examination, therefore, it appears that neither applicant nor opposite party received any injury- Thus, the applicant failed to show any sufficient cause for transferring the Sessions Trial- mere allegations that there is apprehension that justice will not be done in a given case does not suffice- Mere suspicion by the party that he will not get justice would not justify transfer.-There must be a reasonable apprehension to that effect- A judicial order made by a Judge legitimately cannot be made foundation for a transfer of case-Mere presumption of possible apprehension should not and ought not be the basis of transfer of any case from one case to another-It is only in very special circumstances, when such grounds are taken, the Court must find reasons exist to transfer a case, not otherwise.(Para 1 to 16)

B. For a transfer of a criminal case, there must be a reasonable apprehension on the part of the party to a case that justice will not be done. It is one of the principles of administration of justice that justice should not only be done but it should be seen to be done. On the other hand, mere allegations that there is apprehension that justice will not be done in a given case does not suffice. In other words, the court has further to see whether apprehension alleged is a reasonable or not. The apprehension must not only be entertained but must appear to the court to be a reasonable apprehension. Seeking transfer at the drop of a hat is inconceivable. An order of transfer is not to be passed as a matter of routine or merely because an interested party has expressed some apprehension about proper conduct of the trial. The power has to be exercised cautiously and in exceptional situations, where it becomes necessary to do so to provide credibility to the trial. There has to be a real apprehension that there would be miscarriage of justice. (Para 13)

The transfer application is rejected. (E-6)

11. The instant transfer application has been moved by applicant Sahib Bansal under Section 407 Cr.P.C., which deals with transfer of criminal cases by High Court from one district to other district or from one court to another court in the same district. A resume of Section 407 Cr.P.C. may be mentioned as under:-

12. Here it is apposite to mention that in view of sub-section (1) of Section 407 Cr.P.C. a case can be transferred, whenever it is made to appear to High Court-

407. Power of High Court to transfer cases and appeals.

(1) Whenever it is made to appear to the High Court-

(a) that a fair and impartial inquiry or trial cannot be had in any Criminal Court subordinate thereto, or

(b) that some question of law of unusual difficulty is likely to arise, or

(c) that an order under this section is required by any provision of this Code, or will tend to the general convenience of the parties or witnesses, or is expedient for the ends of justice,

It may order-

(i) that any offence be inquired into or tried by any Court not qualified under sections 177 to 185 (both inclusive), but in other respects competent to inquire into or try such offence;

(ii) that any particular case or appeal, or class of cases or appeals, be transferred from a Criminal Court subordinate to its authority to any other such Criminal Court of equal or superior jurisdiction;

(iii) that any particular case be committed for trial to a Court of Session; or

(iv) that any particular case or appeal be transferred to and tried before itself.

(v) The High Court may act either on the report of the lower Court, or on the application of a party interested, or on its own initiative: Provided that no application shall lie to the High Court for transferring a case from one Criminal Court to another Criminal Court in the same sessions division, unless an application for such transfer has been made to the Sessions Judge and rejected by him.

(3) Every application for an order under sub- section (1) shall be made by motion, which shall, except when the applicant is the Advocate- General of the State, be supported by affidavit or affirmation.

(4) When such application is made by an accused person, the High Court may direct him to execute a bond, with or without sureties, for the payment of any compensation which the High Court may award under sub- section (7).

(5) Every accused person making such application shall give to the Public Prosecutor notice in writing of the application, together with copy of the grounds on which it is made; and no order shall be made on of the merits of the application unless at least twenty- four hours have elapsed between the giving of such notice and the hearing of the application.

(6) Where the application is for the transfer of a case or appeal from any subordinate Court, the High Court may, if it is satisfied that it is necessary so to do in the interests of justice, order that, pending the disposal of the application, the proceedings in the subordinate Court shall be stayed, on such terms as the High Court may think fit to impose: Provided that such stay shall not affect the subordinate Court's power of remand under section 309.

(7) Where an application for an order under sub-section (1) is dismissed, the High Court may, if it is of opinion that the application was frivolous or vexatious, order the applicant to pay by way of compensation to any person who has opposed the application such sum not exceeding one thousand rupees as it may consider proper in the circumstances of the case.

(8) When the High Court orders under sub-section (1) that a case be transferred from any Court for trial before itself, it shall observe in such trial the same procedure which that Court would have observed if the case had not been so transferred.

(9) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to affect any order of Government under section 197.

13. There is plethora of cases wherein the Apex court has on several occasions considered the issue of transfer of cases, in different circumstances and after elaborate discussion with reference to the circumstances of each case laid down guidelines in this behalf, which are cited as under:-

"2. Assurance of a fair trial is the first imperative of the dispensation of justice and the central criterion for the court to consider when a motion for transfer is made is not the hypersensitivity or relative convenience of a party or easy availability of legal services or like mini-grievances. Something more substantial, more compelling, more imperilling, from the point of view of public justice and its attendant environment, is necessitous if the Court is to exercise its power of transfer. This is the cardinal principle although the circumstances may be myriad and vary from case to case. We have to test the petitioner's grounds on this touchstone bearing in mind the rule that normally the complainant has the right to choose any court having jurisdiction and the accused cannot dictate where the case against him should be tried. Even so, the process of justice should not harass the parties and from that angle the court may weigh the circumstances."

(ii) In the case of Vijay Pal and others (Supra), the Apex Court has held that in absence of any justified reason, it is not proper and legal to exercise power under Section 407 Cr.P.C.

(iii) In the cases of Anjali Ashok Sadhwani (Supra) and Fatema Vs. Jafri Syed Husain @ Syed Parvez Jafferri (Supra), it is held in matrimonial cases the convenience of wife and in particular that she has no one in her family escort her to undertake a long journey, is a good ground for transfer of cases.

(iv) In Gurcharan Dass Chadha (Supra), the Apex Court held:-

"13. A case is transferred if there is a reasonable apprehension on the part of a party to a case that justice will not be done. A petitioner is not required to demonstrate that justice will inevitably fail. He is entitled to a transfer if he shows circumstances from which it can be inferred that he entertains an apprehension and that it is reasonable in the circumstances alleged. It is one of the principles of the administration of justice that justice should not only be done but it should be seen to be done. However, a mere allegation that there is apprehension that justice will not be done in a given case does not suffice. The Court has further to see whether the apprehension is reasonable or not. To judge the reasonableness of the apprehension the State of the mind of the person who entertains the apprehension is no doubt relevant but that is not all. The apprehension must not only be entertained but must appear to the Court to be a reasonable apprehension."

(v) In Abdul Nazar Madani (Supra), the Apex Court observed as follows:-

"7. The purpose of the criminal trial is to dispense fair and impartial justice uninfluenced by extraneous considerations. When it is shown that public confidence in the fairness of a trial would be seriously undermined, any party can seek the transfer of a case within the State under Section 407 and anywhere in the country under Section 406 of the Cr.P.C. The apprehension of not getting a fair and impartial inquiry or trial is required to be reasonable and not imaginary, based upon conjectures and surmises. If it appears that the dispensation of criminal justice is not possible impartially and objectively and without any bias, before any Court on even at any place, the appropriate Court may transfer the case to another Court where it feels that holding of fair and proper trial is conducive. No universal or hard and fast rules can be prescribed for deciding a transfer petition which has always to be decided on the basis of the facts of each case. Convenience of the parties including the witnesses to be produced at the trial is also a relevant consideration for deciding the transfer petition. The convenience of the parties does not necessarily mean the convenience of the petitioners alone who approached the Court on misconceived notions of apprehension. Convenience for the purposes of transfer means the convenience of the prosecution, other accused, the witnesses and the larger interest of the society."

(vi) In K.P. Tiwari (Supra) Apex court has held :-

"4....It has also to be remembered that the lower judicial officers mostly work under a charged atmosphere and are constantly under a psychological pressure with all the contestants and their lawyers almost breathing down their necks - more correctly up to their nostrils. They do not have the benefit of a detached atmosphere of the higher courts to think coolly and decide patiently. Every error, however gross it may look, should not, therefore, be attributed to improper motive."

(vii) In K. Anbazhagan (Supra), the Apex Court had held as follows:-

"30. Free and fair trial is sine qua non of Article 21 of the Constitution. It is trite law that justice should not only be done but it should be seen to have been done. If the criminal trial is not free and fair and not free from bias, judicial fairness and the criminal justice system would be at stake shaking the confidence of the public in the system and woe would be the rule of law. It is important to note that in such a case the question is not whether the petitioner is actually biased but the question is whether the circumstances are such that there is a reasonable apprehension in the mind of the petitioner."

(viii) In Zahira Habibulla H. Sheikh (Supra), the Apex court propounded that fair trial obviously would mean a trial before an impartial judge, a fair prosecutor and atmosphere of judicial calm. Fair trial means a trial in which bias or prejudice for or against the accused, the witnesses, or the cause which is being tried is eliminated.

(ix) In the case of Captain Amarinder Singh (Supra), the Apex Court while dealing with two transfer applications preferred under section 406 of the Code, on the ground that with the change in State Government, the trial was suffering setback due to the influence of the new Chief Minister as also the lack of interest by the Public Prosecutor, has observed in paras 18, 19 and 20 as follows:-

"18. For a transfer of a criminal case, there must be a reasonable apprehension on the part of the party to a case that justice will not be done. It is one of the principles of administration of justice that justice should not only be done but it should be seen to be done. On the other hand, mere allegations that there is apprehension that justice will not be done in a given case does not suffice. In other words, the court has further to see whether apprehension alleged is a reasonable or not. The apprehension must not only be entertained but must appear to the court to be a reasonable apprehension."

19. Assurance of a fair trial is the first imperative of the dispensation of justice. The purpose of the criminal trial is to dispense fair and impartial justice uninfluenced by extraneous considerations. When it is shown that the public confidence in the fairness of a trial would be seriously undermined, the aggrieved party can seek the transfer of a case within the State under Section 407 and anywhere in the country under Section 406 Cr.P.C."

20. However, the apprehension of not getting a fair and impartial inquiry or trial is required to be reasonable and not imaginary. Free and fair trial is sine qua non of Article 21 of the Constitution. If the criminal trial is not free and fair and if it is biased, judicial fairness and the criminal justice system would be at stake, shaking the confidence of the public in the system. The apprehension must appear to the Court to be a reasonable one."

(x) In the case of Nahar Singh Yadav and another (Supra), the Apex Court has observed as follows:-

"Thus, although no rigid and inflexible rule or test could be laid down to decide whether or not power under Section 406

of the Cr.P.C. should be exercised, it is manifest from a bare reading of sub-sections (2) and (3) of the said Section and on an analysis of the decisions of this Court that an order of transfer of trial is not to be passed as a matter of routine or merely because an interested party has expressed some apprehension about the proper conduct of a trial. This power has to be exercised cautiously and in exceptional situations, where it becomes necessary to do so to provide credibility to the trial. Some of the broad factors which could be kept in mind while considering an application for transfer of the trial are:-

(i) when it appears that the State machinery or prosecution is acting hand in glove with the accused, and there is likelihood of miscarriage of justice due to the lackadaisical attitude of the prosecution;

(ii) when there is material to show that the accused may influence the prosecution witnesses or cause physical harm to the complainant;

(iii) comparative inconvenience and hardships likely to be caused to the accused, the complainant/the prosecution and the witnesses, besides the burden to be borne by the State Exchequer in making payment of travelling and other expenses of the official and non-official witnesses;

(iv) a communally surcharged atmosphere, indicating some proof of inability of holding fair and impartial trial because of the accusations made and the nature of the crime committed by the accused; and

(v) existence of some material from which it can be inferred that the some persons are so hostile that they are interfering or are likely to interfere either directly or indirectly with the course of justice."

(xi) In Lalu Prasad (Supra), Apex court has observed as under:-"20. Independence of judiciary is the basic feature of the Constitution. It demands that a Judge who presides over the trial, the Public Prosecutor who presents the case on behalf of the State and the lawyer vis-a-vis amicus curiae who represents the accused must work together in harmony in the public interest of justice uninfluenced by the personality of the accused or those managing the affairs of the State. They must ensure that their working does not lead to creation of conflict between justice and jurisprudence. A person whether he is a judicial officer or a Public Prosecutor or a lawyer defending the accused should always uphold the dignity of their high office with a full sense of responsibility and see that its value in no circumstance gets devalued. The public interest demands that the trial should be conducted in a fair manner and the administration of justice would be fair and independent."

(xii) This Court in case of Amit Agarwal (Supra), considering the scope of transfer in such a matter has held that:-

*"24. Mere suspicion by the party that he will not get justice would not justify transfer. There must be a reasonable apprehension to that effect. A judicial order made by a Judge legitimately cannot be made foundation for a transfer of case. Mere presumption of possible apprehension should not and ought not be the basis of transfer of any case from one case to another. It is only in very special circumstances, when such grounds are taken, the Court must find reasons exist to transfer a case, not otherwise. (Rajkot Cancer Society vs. Municipal Corporation, Rajkot, AIR 1988 Gujarat 63; Pasupala Fakruddin and Anr. vs. Jamia Masque and

Anr., AIR 2003 AP 448; and, Nandini Chatterjee vs. Arup Hari Chatterjee, AIR 2001 Calcutta 26)

25. Where a transfer is sought making allegations regarding integrity or influence etc. in respect of the Presiding Officer of the Court, this Court has to be very careful before passing any order of transfer.

26. In the matters where reckless false allegations are attempted to be made to seek some favourable order, either in a transfer application, or otherwise, the approach of Court must be strict and cautious to find out whether the allegations are bona fide, and, if treated to be true on their face, in the entirety of circumstances, can be believed to be correct, by any person of ordinary prudence in those circumstances. If the allegations are apparently false, strict approach is the call of the day so as to maintain not only discipline in the courts of law but also to protect judicial officers and maintain their self esteem, confidence and above all the majesty of institution of justice."

(xiii) The Apex Court in case of Usmangani Adambhai Vahora (Supra), considering the previous judgments of the Supreme Court has held:-

"Seeking transfer at the drop of a hat is inconceivable. An order of transfer is not to be passed as a matter of routine or merely because an interested party has expressed some apprehension about proper conduct of the trial. The power has to be exercised cautiously and in exceptional situations, where it becomes necessary to do so to provide credibility to the trial. There has to be a real apprehension that there would be miscarriage of justice."

14. On the basis of the law enunciated and guidelines laid down by the Apex Court in various decisions, the legal scenario emerges may be summarized as under:- A free and fair trial sine qua non of Article 21 of the Constitution. It is also established principle of law in dispensation of justice is that justice should not only be done but it should be seen to have been done. If criminal trial is not free and fair, criminal justice system would be at stake shaking the confidence of the public in the system and rule of law. A fair trial means a trial before an impartial judge, a fair prosecutor and atmosphere of the judicial calm. Fair trial also means in which bias or prejudice for or against the party or witness.

15. Upon hearing learned counsel for the parties and perusal of record, I find that the applicant has failed to show any sufficient cause for transferring the Sessions Trial No.19 of 2020 (State Vs. Manju Bansal and others), arising out of Case Crime No.567 of 2018, under Sections 498A, 504, 506, 307, 120B I.P.C. and Section 3/4 of Dowry Prohibition Act, Police Station- Pilakhuva, District Hapur, pending in the court of Additional District & Sessions Judge/Fast Track Court, Court No.1, Hapur. The application is frivolous, vexatious and deserves to be rejected.

16. The present transfer application is accordingly, rejected.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mohd. Azhar Husain Idrisi, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the revisionist and learned A.G.A. for the State.

2. As per office report dated 16.01.2023, notice issued by this Court vide order dated 13.12.2022 has been served upon opposite party no. 2 but despite service of notice, no one has appeared on his behalf. Therefore, the Court is proceeding to decide the case on merits.

3. The present transfer application has been moved under Section 407 Cr.P.C. against the opposite party no. 2 Rakesh Rai with prayer to transfer the entire proceedings of Case No. 173 of 2020 (Sonam Rai Vs. Rakesh Rai), under Section 128 Cr.P.C., Police Station Tahabarpur, District Azamgarh, pending before the learned Principal Judge, Family Court, Azamgarh to the court of competent jurisdiction at District Mau.

4. Succinctly, the applicant case is that applicant has filed an application under Section 125 Cr.P.C. against the opposite party no. 2 for providing Rs. 25,000/- per month to her and her minor daughter Ruchi as maintenance allowance. This application is registered as Case. No. 442 of 2019 (Sonam Rai and others Vs. Rakesh Rai) in the court of Principal Judge, Family Court, Azamgarh.

5. Notices were issued to opposite party but none appeared in the trial court to file objection in the aforesaid proceedings. Ultimately, after considering all the material evidence available on record, learned Principal Judge, Family Court, Azamgarh has allowed the aforesaid application exparte vide order dated 09.12.2020, directing the opposite party to pay Rs. 4,000/- per month to the applicant from the date of institution of application. In compliance of the aforesaid order dated 09.12.2020, the opposite party no. 2 has not paid any maintenance allowance till December, 2020 and total amount of Rs. 74,000/- is remained to be paid. Thereafter, the applicant filed an application under Section 128 Cr.P.C. on 16.12.2020 before the court concerned for recovery of balance amount of Rs.74,000/- from the opposite party no. 2, which is still pending. After filing the aforesaid application under Section 128 Cr.P.C., the same was registered as Case No. 173 of 2020 in which the objections of opposite party no. 2 were invited. Later on, recovery warrant has been issued on 17.03.2021. In compliance of the impugned order dated 17.03.2021, the opposite party no. 2 has paid an amount of Rs.25,000/- in the account of the applicant, therefore, recovery warrant was cancelled by learned trial court vide its order dated 18.03.2021. Thereafter the opposite party no. 2 (husband) prayed to pay remaining amount till date. Again recovery warrant was issued against the opposite party no. 2 on 05.08.2022. The applicant is poor lady and she has no source of income and depends upon the income of her father, who also bears the liability of other family members. The applicant has one minor daughter aged about 4 years with her and she cannot attend the court proceedings at District Azamgarh on each and every date so she wants to transfer the entire proceedings at District Mau. Father of the applicant is an old person, who is unable to attend the court on every date with the applicant and in absence of him, the opposite party no. 2 was regularly threatened her when she goes to attend the court proceeding alone. In that circumstances, the life of the applicant is not safe seeing the previous conduct of the opposite party no. 2. She is ready to face trial if the case is transferred to any court at District Mau. Due to fear of the opposite party no. 2 as well as his family members, she do not want to face the trial at District Azamgarh. The opposite party no. 2 has good relation with the anti social elements and he is waiting an occasion to take revenge from the applicant if she goes to Azamgarh for doing pairvi of the case in question. The applicant has no source of income and she is not in a position to bear the expenses for doing pairvi of the case pending before the learned Principal Judge, Family Court, Azamgarh. In these circumstances, the entire proceedings of the case pending in the court of Principal Judge, Family Court, Azamgarh may be transferred to the competent court at District Mau for fair trial.

6. The applicant is originally resident of village Kothiyar, Police Station Tahabarpur, District Azamgarh. Presently she is resident of Hakikatpura, Police Station Dakshin Tola, Tehsil Maunath Bhanjan, District Mau while the opposite party no. 2 (husband) is resident of village Kothiyar, Police Station Tahabarpur, District Azamgarh.

7. Learned A.G.A. vehemently opposed the submissions made by learned counsel for the applicant, but could not dispute the aforesaid facts.

8. The instant transfer application has been moved by applicant Sonam Rai under Section 407 Cr.P.C., which deals with transfer of criminal cases by High Court from one district to other district or from one court to another court in the same district. A resume of Section 407 Cr.P.C. may be mentioned as under:-

9. Here it is apposite to mention that in view of sub-section (1) of Section 407 Cr.P.C. a case can be transferred, whenever it is made to appear to High Court-

407. Power of High Court to transfer cases and appeals.

(1) Whenever it is made to appear to the High Court-

(a) that a fair and impartial inquiry or trial cannot be had in any Criminal Court subordinate thereto, or

(b) that some question of law of unusual difficulty is likely to arise, or

(c) that an order under this section is required by any provision of this Code, or will tend to the general convenience of the parties or witnesses, or is expedient for the ends of justice,

It may order-

(i) that any offence be inquired into or tried by any Court not qualified under sections 177 to 185 (both inclusive), but in other respects competent to inquire into or try such offence;

(ii) that any particular case or appeal, or class of cases or appeals, be transferred from a Criminal Court subordinate to its authority to any other such Criminal Court of equal or superior jurisdiction;

(iii) that any particular case be committed for trial to a Court of Session; or

(iv) that any particular case or appeal be transferred to and tried before itself.

(2) The High Court may act either on the report of the lower Court, or on the application of a party interested, or on its own initiative: Provided that no application shall lie to the High Court for transferring a case from one Criminal Court to another Criminal Court in the same sessions division, unless an application for such transfer has been made to the Sessions Judge and rejected by him.

(3) Every application for an order under sub-section (1) shall be made by motion, which shall, except when the applicant is the Advocate- General of the State, be supported by affidavit or affirmation.

(4) When such application is made by an accused person, the High Court may direct him to execute a bond, with or without sureties, for the payment of any compensation which the High Court may award under sub-section (7).

(5) Every accused person making such application shall give to the Public Prosecutor notice in writing of the application, together with copy of the grounds on which it is made; and no order shall be made on of the merits of the application unless at least twenty-four hours have elapsed between the giving of such notice and the hearing of the application.

(6) Where the application is for the transfer of a case or appeal from any subordinate Court, the High Court may, if it is satisfied that it is necessary so to do in the interests of justice, order that, pending the disposal of the application, the proceedings in the subordinate Court shall be stayed, on such terms as the High Court may think fit to impose: Provided that such stay shall not affect the subordinate Court's power of remand under section 309.

(7) Where an application for an order under sub-section (1) is dismissed, the High Court may, if it is of opinion that the application was frivolous or vexatious, order the applicant to pay by way of compensation to any person who has opposed the application such sum not exceeding one thousand rupees as it may consider proper in the circumstances of the case.

(8) When the High Court orders under sub-section (1) that a case be transferred from any Court for trial before itself, it shall observe in such trial the same procedure which that Court would have observed if the case had not been so transferred.

(9) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to affect any order of Government under section 197.

10. There is plethora of cases wherein the Apex court has on several occasions considered the issue of transfer of cases, in different circumstances and after elaborate discussion with reference to the circumstances of each case laid down guidelines in this behalf, which are cited as under:-

(i) Gurcharan Dass Chadha Vs. State of Rajasthan AIR 1966 SC 1418, (ii) Vijay Pal and others Vs. State of Haryana and another, 1999 (9) SCC 67, (iii) Anjali Ashok Sadhwani Vs. Ashok Kishinchand Sadhwani, AIR 2009 SC 1374, (iv) Fatema Vs. Jafri Syed Husain @ Syed Parvez Jafferi, AIR 2009 SC 1773, (iv) Maneka Sanjay Gandhi Vs. Rani Jethmalani (1979) 4 SCC 167, (vi) Abdul Nazar Madani Vs. State of Tamil Nadu (2000) 6 SCC 204, (vii) K.P. Tiwari Vs. State of M.P. 1994 SCC (Cri) 712, (viii) K. Anbazhagan Vs. State of Jharkhand (2013) 8 SCC 593, (xiii) Amit Agarwal Vs. Atul Gupta 2014 (11) ADJ 414 (All.) and (xiv) Usmangani Adambhai Vahora Vs. State of Gujarat and another (2016) 3 SCC 370.

(i) In Maneka Sanjay Gandhi (Supra), the Apex Court has observed as under:-

"2. Assurance of a fair trial is the first imperative of the dispensation of justice and the central criterion for the court to consider when a motion for transfer is made is not the hypersensitivity or relative convenience of a party or easy availability of legal services or like mini-grievances. Something more substantial, more compelling, more imperilling, from the point of view of public justice and its attendant environment, is necessitous if the Court is to exercise its power of transfer. This is the cardinal principle although the circumstances may be myriad and vary from case to case. We have to test the petitioner's grounds on this touchstone bearing in mind the rule that normally the complainant has the right to choose any court having jurisdiction and the accused cannot dictate where the case against him should be tried. Even so, the process of justice should not harass the parties and from that angle the court may weigh the circumstances."

(ii) In the case of Vijay Pal and others (Supra), the Apex Court has held that in absence of any justified reason, it is not proper and legal to exercise power under Section 407 Cr.P.C.

(iii) In the cases of Anjali Ashok Sadhwani (Supra) and Fatema Vs. Jafri Syed Husain @ Syed Parvez Jafferi (Supra), it is held in matrimonial cases the convenience of wife and in particular that she has no one in her family escort her to undertake a long journey, is a good ground for transfer of cases.

(iv) In Gurcharan Dass Chadha (Supra), the Apex Court held:-

"13. A case is transferred if there is a reasonable apprehension on the part of a party to a case that justice will not be done. A petitioner is not required to demonstrate that justice will inevitably fail. He is entitled to a transfer if he shows circumstances from which it can be inferred that he entertains an apprehension and that it is reasonable in the circumstances alleged. It is one of the principles of the administration of justice that justice should not only be done but it should be seen to be done. However, a mere allegation that there is apprehension that justice will not be done in a given case does not suffice. The Court has further to see whether the apprehension is reasonable or not. To judge the reasonableness of the apprehension the State of the mind of the person who entertains the apprehension is no doubt relevant but that is not all. The apprehension must not only be entertained but must appear to the Court to be a reasonable apprehension."

(v) In Abdul Nazar Madani (Supra), the Apex Court observed as follows:-

"7. The purpose of the criminal trial is to dispense fair and impartial justice uninfluenced by extraneous considerations. When it is shown that public confidence in the fairness of a trial would be seriously undermined, any party can seek the transfer of a case within the State under Section 407 and anywhere in the country under Section 406 of the Cr.P.C. The apprehension of not getting a fair and impartial inquiry or trial is required to be reasonable and not imaginary, based upon conjectures and surmises. If it appears that the dispensation of criminal justice is not possible impartially and objectively and without any bias, before any Court or even at any place, the appropriate Court may transfer the case to another Court where it feels that holding of fair and proper trial is conducive. No universal or hard and fast rules can be prescribed for deciding a transfer petition which has always to be decided on the basis of the facts of each case. Convenience of the parties including the witnesses to be produced at the trial is also a relevant consideration for deciding the transfer petition. The convenience of the parties does not necessarily mean the convenience of the petitioners alone who approached the Court on misconceived notions of apprehension. Convenience for the purposes of transfer means the convenience of the prosecution, other accused, the witnesses and the larger interest of the society."

(vi) In K.P. Tiwari (Supra) Apex court has held :-

"4....It has also to be remembered that the lower judicial officers mostly work under a charged atmosphere and are constantly under a psychological pressure with all the contestants and their lawyers almost breathing down their necks - more correctly up to their nostrils. They do not have the benefit of a detached atmosphere of the higher courts to think coolly and decide patiently. Every error, however gross it may look, should not, therefore, be attributed to improper motive."

(vii) In K. Anbazhagan (Supra), the Apex Court had held as follows:-

"30. Free and fair trial is sine qua non of Article 21 of the Constitution. It is trite law that justice should not only be done but it should be seen to have been done. If the criminal trial is not free and fair and not free from bias, judicial fairness and the criminal justice system would be at stake shaking the confidence of the public in the system and woe would be the rule of law. It is important to note that in such a case the question is not whether the petitioner is actually biased but the question is whether the circumstances are such that there is a reasonable apprehension in the mind of the petitioner."

(viii) In Zahira Habibulla H. Sheikh (Supra), the Apex court propounded that fair trial obviously would mean a trial before an impartial judge, a fair prosecutor and atmosphere of judicial calm. Fair trial means a trial in which bias or prejudice for or against the accused, the witnesses, or the cause which is being tried is eliminated.

(ix) In the case of Captain Amarinder Singh (Supra), the Apex Court while dealing with two transfer applications preferred under section 406 of the Code, on the ground that with the change in State Government, the trial was suffering setback due to the influence of the new Chief Minister as also the lack of interest by the Public Prosecutor, has observed in paras 18, 19 and 20 as follows:-

"18. For a transfer of a criminal case, there must be a reasonable apprehension on the part of the party to a case that justice will not be done. It is one of the principles of administration of justice that justice should not only be done but it should be seen to be done. On the other hand, mere allegations that there is apprehension that justice will not be done in a given case does not suffice. In other words, the court has further to see whether apprehension alleged is a reasonable or not. The apprehension must not only be entertained but must appear to the court to be a reasonable apprehension.

19. Assurance of a fair trial is the first imperative of the dispensation of justice. The purpose of the criminal trial is to dispense fair and impartial justice uninfluenced by extraneous considerations. When it is shown that the public confidence in the fairness of a trial would be seriously undermined, the aggrieved party can seek the transfer of a case within the State under Section 407 and anywhere in the country under Section 406 Cr.P.C.

20. However, the apprehension of not getting a fair and impartial inquiry or trial is required to be reasonable and not imaginary. Free and fair trial is sine qua non of Article 21 of the Constitution. If the criminal trial is not free and fair and if it is biased, judicial fairness and the criminal justice system would be at stake, shaking the confidence of the public in the system. The apprehension must appear to the Court to be a reasonable one."

(x) In the case of Nahar Singh Yadav and another (Supra), the Apex Court has observed as follows:-

"Thus, although no rigid and inflexible rule or test could be laid down to decide whether or not power under Section 406 of the Cr.P.C. should be exercised, it is manifest from a bare reading of sub-sections (2) and (3) of the said Section and on an analysis of the decisions of this Court that an order of transfer of trial is not to be passed as a matter of routine or merely because an interested party has expressed some apprehension about the proper conduct of a trial. This power has to be exercised cautiously and in exceptional situations, where it becomes necessary to do so to provide credibility to the trial. Some of the broad factors which could be kept in mind while considering an application for transfer of the trial are:-

(i) when it appears that the State machinery or prosecution is acting hand in glove with the accused, and there is likelihood of miscarriage of justice due to the lackadaisical attitude of the prosecution;

(ii) when there is material to show that the accused may influence the prosecution witnesses or cause physical harm to the complainant;

(iii) comparative inconvenience and hardships likely to be caused to the accused, the complainant/the prosecution and the witnesses, besides the burden to be borne by the State Exchequer in making payment of travelling and other expenses of the official and non-official witnesses;

(iv) a communally surcharged atmosphere, indicating some proof of inability of holding fair and impartial trial because of the accusations made and the nature of the crime committed by the accused; and

(v) existence of some material from which it can be inferred that some persons are so hostile that they are interfering or are likely to interfere either directly or indirectly with the course of justice."

(xi) In Lalu Prasad (Supra), Apex court has observed as under:-

"20. Independence of judiciary is the basic feature of the Constitution. It demands that a Judge who presides over the trial, the Public Prosecutor who presents the case on behalf of the State and the lawyer vis-a-vis amicus curiae who represents the accused must work together in harmony in the public interest of justice uninfluenced by the personality of the accused or those managing the affairs of the State. They must ensure that their working does not lead to creation of conflict between justice and jurisprudence. A person whether he is a judicial officer or a Public Prosecutor or a lawyer defending the accused should always uphold the dignity of their high office with a full sense of responsibility and see that its value in no circumstance gets devalued. The public interest demands that the trial should be conducted in a fair manner and the administration of justice would be fair and independent."

(xii) This Court in case of Amit Agarwal (Supra), considering the scope of transfer in such a matter has held that:-

"24. Mere suspicion by the party that he will not get justice would not justify transfer. There must be a reasonable apprehension to that effect. A judicial order made by a Judge legitimately cannot be made foundation for a transfer of case. Mere presumption of possible apprehension should not and ought not be the basis of transfer of any case from one case to another. It is only in very special circumstances, when such grounds are taken, the Court must find reasons exist to transfer a case, not otherwise. (Rajkot Cancer Society vs. Municipal Corporation, Rajkot, AIR 1988 Gujarat 63; Pasupala Fakruddin and Anr. vs. Jamia Masque and Anr., AIR 2003 AP 448; and, Nandini Chatterjee vs. Arup Hari Chatterjee, AIR 2001 Calcutta 26)

25. Where a transfer is sought making allegations regarding integrity or influence etc. in respect of the Presiding Officer of the Court, this Court has to be very careful before passing any order of transfer.

26. In the matters where reckless false allegations are attempted to be made to seek some favourable order, either in a transfer application, or otherwise, the approach of Court must be strict and cautious to find out whether the allegations are bona fide, and, if treated to be true on their face, in the entirety of circumstances, can be believed to be correct, by any person of ordinary prudence in those circumstances. If the allegations are apparently false, strict approach is the call of the day so as to maintain not only discipline in the courts of law but also to protect judicial officers and maintain their self esteem, confidence and above all the majesty of institution of justice."

(xiii) The Apex Court in case of Usmangani Adambhai Vahora (Supra), considering the previous judgments of the Supreme Court has held:-

"Seeking transfer at the drop of a hat is inconceivable. An order of transfer is not to be passed as a matter of routine or merely because an interested party has expressed some apprehension about proper conduct of the trial. The power has to be exercised cautiously and in exceptional situations, where it becomes necessary to do so to provide credibility to the trial. There has to be a real apprehension that there would be miscarriage of justice."

11. On the basis of the law enunciated and guidelines laid down by the Apex Court in various decisions, the legal scenario emerges may be summarized as under:- A free and fair trial sine qua non of Article 21 of the Constitution. It is also established principle of law in dispensation of justice is that justice should not only be done but it should be seen to have been done. If criminal trial is not free and fair, criminal justice system would be at stake shaking the confidence of the public in the system and rule of law. A fair trial means a trial before an impartial judge, a fair prosecutor and atmosphere of the judicial calm. Fair trial also means in which bias or prejudice for or against the party or witness.

12. Under Section 407 Cr.P.C. when it is shown that public confidence in the fairness of the trial would be undermined any party can seek transfer of the case within the State. Thus, the court may transfer the case to another court where it feels that fair and proper trial is conducive for deciding a transfer petition, the court has also to see convenience of the parties and witnesses to be adduced at trial if also relevant consideration. The convenience of the parties is a misconceived motion of apprehension where the convenience of not only of prosecution, the accused and witness in the larger interest of the society. The apprehension that the applicant will not meet the ends of justice and convenience and availability of legal services, the court may exercise its power of transfer. This is cardinal principle of jurisprudence that although circumstances may be myriad and may vary case to case. The court has to test petitioner's ground for transfer on the touchstone bearing in the mind the rule that normally complainant has right to choose any court having jurisdiction even so the process of justice should not harass the parties and from that angle the court may weigh. The apprehension not receiving justice must be reasonable apprehension based on strong material and not hypothetical merely making vague allegation that there is apprehension in the mind of the applicant that justice will not be given in a given case and not lame excuse or for delaying tactics.

13. To analyse the grounds, facts and circumstances, submissions of learned counsel for the parties and guidelines laid down by the Apex Court, it emerges that at present the applicant is residing in District Mau while the opposite party no. 2 (husband) is resident of District Azamgarh. It is not disputed that both the cases, filed by applicant are pending in the District Azamgarh.

14. Learned counsel for the applicant submits that she is a poor lady having no source of income and depends upon the income of her father, who also bears the liability of other family members. The applicant herself has a minor daughter aged about four years. The father of the applicant is an old person who is unable to attend the court on every date with the applicant and in absence of him, the opposite party no. 2 regularly threatened her, when she goes to attend the court alone. Thus, life of the applicant is not safe in view of the previous conduct of the opposite party no. 2. Due to fear of opposite party no. 2 as well as his family members, she could not face the trial in District Azamgarh. In these circumstances, there is apprehension to her life keeping in view the previous conduct of opposite party no. 2. The opposite party no. 2 has good relation with anti social elements and he is waiting the occasion to take revenge from the applicant if she goes to Azamgarh for doing pairvi of the case in question. She is also not able to bear the expenses of pairvi of the case and opposite party is not paying the awarded maintenance allowance to her.

15. Considering the facts and circumstances of the case and submissions of learned counsel for the parties in the light of guidelines laid down by the Apex court, I find that applicant has filed a maintenance petitioner before the Principal Judge, Family Court, Azamgarh wherein she was granted maintenance allowance. Now she has instituted an application under Section 128 Cr.P.C. for recovery of maintenance allowance. Applicant has no source of income independently. She has a baby of four years who is also dependent upon her. She is totally dependent in all respect on her father who is living presently at District Mau. Although she did not disclose the income of her father nevertheless it is the duty of the opposite party no. 2 maintain the applicant and her child. It has been argued that opposite party no. 2 has paid only Rs. 25,000/- and Rs. 74,000/- is still in arrears towards maintenance. In these circumstances, it is clear that the applicant has no sufficient income to maintain herself, her minor daughter and meet expenses of the litigation. It is axiomatic that in the present days of high inflammation, it is difficult to lead a life without sufficient income. There is another case which has been instituted at District Azamgarh by the applicant under Sections 498-A, 323, 504, 506, 120-B IPC and Section 3/4 Dowry Prohibition Act. Thus, she is living in her parental home due to this matrimonial dispute between both the parties. She has to attend the proceedings at Azamgarh in both the cases. It has been submitted that the father is to look her and her daughter after only. It is also submitted that he is an old man and unable to company her on the each and every date fixed at Azamgarh. This compels the applicant to go the court at Azamgarh. Seizing the opportunity of her loneliness in the court, the opposite party no. 2 may mishandle and cause injuries and he even intimidate her life. Although there is no any other proof to substantiate these grounds nevertheless in the affidavit filed in support of transfer application confirm these allegations. Moreover, District Mau and Azamgarh are situated nearby each other. So the cases may conveniently be attended at Mau. Thus, in the opinion of this court apprehension expressed by the applicant is reasonable. In view of the above facts and legal scenario, I am of the view that it is in the interest of justice that the instant transfer application should be allowed.

16. Resultantly, the transfer application is allowed. Let the Case No.

173 of 2020 (Sonam Rai Vs. Rakesh Rai), under Section 128 Cr.P.C., Police Station Tahabarpur, District Azamgarh, pending before the learned Principal Judge, Family Court, Azamgarh be transferred to the Principal Judge, Family Court, Mau for disposal in accordance with law within three months.

17. Let the copy of the order be sent to the Principal Judge, Family Court, Mau for necessary action and compliance.

8. The instant transfer application has been moved by applicant Sonam Rai under Section 407 Cr.P.C., which deals with transfer of criminal cases by High Court from one district to other district or from one court to another court in the same district. A resume of Section 407 Cr.P.C. may be mentioned as under:-

9. Here it is apposite to mention that in view of sub-section (1) of Section 407 Cr.P.C. a case can be transferred, whenever it is made to appear to High Court-

407. Power of High Court to transfer cases and appeals.

(1) Whenever it is made to appear to the High Court-

(a) that a fair and impartial inquiry or trial cannot be had in any Criminal Court subordinate thereto, or

(b) that some question of law of unusual difficulty is likely to arise, or

(c) that an order under this section is required by any provision of this Code, or will tend to the general convenience of the parties or witnesses, or is expedient for the ends of justice,

It may order-

(i) that any offence be inquired into or tried by any Court not qualified under sections 177 to 185 (both inclusive), but in other respects competent to inquire into or try such offence;

(ii) that any particular case or appeal, or class of cases or appeals, be transferred from a Criminal Court subordinate to its authority to any other such Criminal Court of equal or superior jurisdiction;

(iii) that any particular case be committed for trial to a Court of Session; or

(iv) that any particular case or appeal be transferred to and tried before itself.

(2)The High Court may act either on the report of the lower Court, or on the application of a party interested, or on its own initiative: Provided that no application shall lie to the High Court for transferring a case from one Criminal Court to another Criminal Court in the same sessions division, unless an application for such transfer has been made to the Sessions Judge and rejected by him.

(3)Every application for an order under sub- section (1) shall be made by motion, which shall, except when the applicant is the Advocate- General of the State, be supported by affidavit or affirmation.

(4)When such application is made by an accused person, the High Court may direct him to execute a bond, with or without sureties, for the payment of any compensation which the High Court may award under sub- section (7).

(5)Every accused person making such application shall give to the Public Prosecutor notice in writing of the application, together with copy of the grounds on which it is made; and no order shall be made on of the merits of the application unless at least twenty- four hours have elapsed between the giving of such notice and the hearing of the application.

(6)Where the application is for the transfer of a case or appeal from any subordinate Court, the High Court may, if it is satisfied that it is necessary so to do in the interests of justice, order that, pending the disposal of the application, the proceedings in the subordinate Court shall be stayed, on such terms as the High Court may think fit to impose: Provided that such stay shall not affect the subordinate Court's power of remand under section 309.

(7)Where an application for an order under sub- section (1) is dismissed, the High Court may, if it is of opinion that the application was frivolous or vexatious, order the applicant to pay by way of compensation to any person who has opposed the application such sum not exceeding one thousand rupees as it may consider proper in the circumstances of the case.

(8)When the High Court orders under sub- section (1) that a case be transferred from any Court for trial before itself, it shall observe in such trial the same procedure which that Court would have observed if the case had not been so transferred.

(9)Nothing in this section shall be deemed to affect any order of Government under section 197.

10. There is plethora of cases wherein the Apex court has on several occasions considered the issue of transfer of cases, in different circumstances and after elaborate discussion with reference to the circumstances of each case laid down guidelines in this behalf, which are cited as under:-

(i) Gurcharan Dass Chadha Vs. State of Rajasthan AIR 1966 SC 1418, (ii) Vijay Pal and others Vs. State of Haryana and another, 1999 (9) SCC 67, (iii) Anjali Ashok Sadhwani Vs. Ashok Kishinchand Sadhwani, AIR 2009 SC 1374, (iv) Fatema Vs. Jafri Syed Husain @ Syed Parvez Jafferi, AIR 2009 SC 1773, (iv) Maneka Sanjay Gandhi Vs. Rani Jethmalani (1979) 4 SCC 167, (vi) Abdul Nazar Madani Vs. State of Tamil Nadu (2000) 6 SCC 204, (vii) K.P. Tiwari Vs. State of M.P. 1994 SCC (Cri) 712, (viii) K. Anbazhagan Vs. Singh Badal and others (2009) 6 SCC 260, (xi) Nahar Singh Yadav and another Vs. Union of India and others JT 2010 (12) 641, (xii) Lalu Prasad Vs. State of Jharkhand (2013) 8 SCC 593, (xiii) Amit Agarwal Vs. Atul Gupta 2014 (11) ADJ 414 (All.) and (xiv) Usmangani Adambhai Vahora Vs. State of Gujarat and another (2016) 3 SCC 370.

(I) In Maneka Sanjay Gandhi (Supra), the Apex Court has observed as under:-

"2. Assurance of a fair trial is the first imperative of the dispensation of justice and the central criterion for the court to consider when a motion for transfer is made is not the hypersensitivity or relative convenience of a party or easy availability of legal services or like mini-grievances. Something more substantial, more compelling, more imperilling, from the point of view of public justice and its attendant environment, is necessitous if the Court is to exercise its power of transfer. This is the cardinal principle although the circumstances may be myriad and vary from case to case. We have to test the petitioner's grounds on this touchstone bearing in mind the rule that normally the complainant has the right to choose any court having jurisdiction and the accused cannot dictate where the case against him should be tried. Even so, the process of justice should not harass the parties and from that angle the court may weigh the circumstances."

(ii) In the case of Vijay Pal and others (Supra), the Apex Court has held that in absence of any justified reason, it is not proper and legal to exercise power under Section 407 Cr.P.C.

(iii) In the cases of Anjali Ashok Sadhwani (Supra) and Fatema Vs. Jafri

Syed Husain @ Syed Parvez Jafferi (Supra), it is held in matrimonial cases the convenience of wife and in particular that she has no one in her family escort her to undertake a long journey, is a good ground for transfer of cases.

(iv) In Gurcharan Dass Chadha (Supra), the Apex Court held:-

"13. A case is transferred if there is a reasonable apprehension on the part of a party to a case that justice will not be done. A petitioner is not required to demonstrate that justice will inevitably fail. He is entitled to a transfer if he shows circumstances from which it can be inferred that he entertains an apprehension and that it is reasonable in the circumstances alleged. It is one of the principles of the administration of justice that justice should not only be done but it should be seen to be done. However, a mere allegation that there is apprehension that justice will not be done in a given case does not suffice. The Court has further to see whether the apprehension is reasonable or not. To judge the reasonableness of the apprehension the State of the mind of the person who entertains the apprehension is no doubt relevant but that is not all. The apprehension must not only be entertained but must appear to the Court to be a reasonable apprehension."

(v) In Abdul Nazar Madani (Supra), the Apex Court observed as follows:-

"7. The purpose of the criminal trial is to dispense fair and impartial justice uninfluenced by extraneous considerations. When it is shown that public confidence in the fairness of a trial would be seriously undermined, any party can seek the transfer of a case within the State under Section 407 and anywhere in the country under Section 406 of the Cr.P.C. The apprehension of not getting a fair and impartial inquiry or trial is required to be reasonable and not imaginary, based upon conjectures and surmises. If it appears that the dispensation of criminal justice is not possible impartially and objectively and without any bias, before any Court on even at any place, the appropriate Court may transfer the case to another Court where it feels that holding of fair and proper trial is conducive. No universal or hard and fast rules can be prescribed for deciding a transfer petition which has always to be decided on the basis of the facts of each case. Convenience of the parties including the witnesses to be produced at the trial is also a relevant consideration for deciding the transfer petition. The convenience of the parties does not necessarily mean the convenience of the petitioners alone who approached the Court on misconceived notions of apprehension. Convenience for the purposes of transfer means the convenience of the prosecution, other accused, the witnesses and the larger interest of the society."

(vi) In K.P. Tiwari (Supra) Apex court has held :-

"4....It has also to be remembered that the lower judicial officers mostly work under a charged atmosphere and are constantly under a psychological pressure with all the contestants and their lawyers almost breathing down their necks - more correctly up to their nostrils. They do not have the benefit of a detached atmosphere of the higher courts to think coolly and decide patiently. Every error, however gross it may look, should not, therefore, be attributed to improper motive."

(vii) In K. Anbazhagan (Supra), the Apex Court had held as follows:-

"30. Free and fair trial is sine qua non of Article 21 of the Constitution. It is trite law that justice should not only be done but it should be seen to have been done. If the criminal trial is not free and fair and not free from bias, judicial fairness and the criminal justice system would be at stake shaking the confidence of the public in the system and woe would be the rule of law. It is important to note that in such a case the question is not whether the petitioner is actually biased but the question is whether the circumstances are such that there is a reasonable apprehension in the mind of the petitioner."

(viii) In Zahira Habibulla H. Sheikh (Supra), the Apex court propounded that fair trial obviously would mean a trial before an impartial judge, a fair prosecutor and atmosphere of judicial calm. Fair trial means a trial in which bias or prejudice for or against the accused, the witnesses, or the cause which is being tried is eliminated.

(ix) In the case of Captain Amarinder Singh (Supra), the Apex Court while dealing with two transfer applications preferred under section 406 of the Code, on the ground that with the change in State Government, the trial was suffering setback due to the influence of the new Chief Minister as also the lack of interest by the Public Prosecutor, has observed in paras 18, 19 and 20 as follows:-

"18. For a transfer of a criminal case, there must be a reasonable apprehension on the part of the party to a case that justice will not be done. It is one of the principles of administration of justice that justice should not only be done but it should be seen to be done. On the other hand, mere allegations that there is apprehension that justice will not be done in a given case does not suffice. In other words, the court has further to see whether apprehension alleged is a reasonable or not. The apprehension must not only be entertained but must appear to the court to be a reasonable apprehension.

19. Assurance of a fair trial is the first imperative of the dispensation of justice.

The purpose of the criminal trial is to dispense fair and impartial justice uninfluenced by extraneous considerations. When it is shown that the public confidence in the fairness of a trial would be seriously undermined, the aggrieved party can seek the transfer of a case within the State under Section 407 and anywhere in the country under Section 406 Cr.P.C.

20. However, the apprehension of not getting a fair and impartial inquiry or trial is required to be reasonable and not imaginary. Free and fair trial is sine qua non of Article 21 of the Constitution. If the criminal trial is not free and fair and if it is biased, judicial fairness and the criminal justice system would be at stake, shaking the confidence of the public in the system. The apprehension must appear to the Court to be a reasonable one."

(x) In the case of Nahar Singh Yadav and another (Supra), the Apex Court has observed as follows:-

"Thus, although no rigid and inflexible rule or test could be laid down to decide whether or not power under Section 406 of the Cr.P.C. should be exercised, it is manifest from a bare reading of sub-sections (2) and (3) of the said Section and on an analysis of the decisions of this Court that an order of transfer of trial is not to be passed as a matter of routine or merely because an interested party has expressed some apprehension about the proper conduct of a trial. This power has to be exercised cautiously and in exceptional situations, where it becomes necessary to do so to provide credibility to the trial. Some of the broad factors which could be kept in mind while considering an application for transfer of the trial are:-

(i) when it appears that the State machinery or prosecution is acting hand in glove with the accused, and there is likelihood of miscarriage of justice due to the lackadaisical attitude of the prosecution;

(ii) when there is material to show that the accused may influence the prosecution witnesses or cause physical harm to the complainant;

(iii) comparative inconvenience and hardships likely to be caused to the accused, the complainant/the prosecution and the witnesses, besides the burden to be borne by the State Exchequer in making payment of travelling and other expenses of the official and non-official witnesses;

(iv) a communally surcharged atmosphere, indicating some proof of inability of holding fair and impartial trial because of the accusations made and the nature of the crime committed by the accused; and

(v) existence of some material from which it can be inferred that the some persons are so hostile that they are interfering or are likely to interfere either directly or indirectly with the course of justice."

(xi) In Lalu Prasad (Supra), Apex court has observed as under:-

"20. Independence of judiciary is the basic feature of the Constitution. It demands that a Judge who presides over the trial, the Public Prosecutor who presents the case on behalf of the State and the lawyer vis-a-vis amicus curiae who represents the accused must work together in harmony in the public interest of justice uninfluenced by the personality of the accused or those managing the affairs of the State. They must ensure that their working does not lead to creation of conflict between justice and jurisprudence. A person whether he is a judicial officer or a Public Prosecutor or a lawyer defending the accused should always uphold the dignity of their high office with a full sense of responsibility and see that its value in no circumstance gets devalued. The public interest demands that the trial should be conducted in a fair manner and the administration of justice would be fair and independent."

(xii) This Court in case of Amit Agarwal (Supra), considering the scope of transfer in such a matter has held that:-

"24. Mere suspicion by the party that he will not get justice would not justify transfer. There must be a reasonable apprehension to that effect. A judicial order made by a Judge legitimately cannot be made foundation for a transfer of case. Mere presumption of possible apprehension should not and ought not be the basis of transfer of any case from one case to another. It is only in very special circumstances, when such grounds are taken, the Court must find reasons exist to transfer a case, not otherwise. (Rajkot Cancer Society vs. Municipal Corporation, Rajkot, AIR 1988 Gujarat 63; Pasupala Fakruddin and Anr. vs. Jamia Masque and Anr., AIR 2003 AP 448; and, Nandini Chatterjee vs. Arup Hari Chatterjee, AIR 2001 Calcutta 26)

25. Where a transfer is sought making allegations regarding integrity or influence etc. in respect of the Presiding Officer of the Court, this Court has to be very careful before passing any order of transfer.

26. In the matters where reckless false allegations are attempted to be made to seek some favourable order, either in a transfer application, or otherwise, the approach of Court must be strict and cautious to find out whether the allegations are bona fide, and, if treated to be true on their face, in the entirety of circumstances, can be believed to be correct, by any person of ordinary prudence in those circumstances. If the allegations are apparently false, strict approach is the call of the day so as to maintain not only discipline in the courts of law but also to protect judicial officers and maintain their self esteem, confidence and above all the majesty of institution of justice."

(xiii) The Apex Court in case of Usmangani Adambhai Vahora (Supra), considering the previous judgments of the Supreme Court has held:-

"Seeking transfer at the drop of a hat is inconceivable. An order of transfer is not to be passed as a matter of routine or merely because an interested party has expressed some apprehension about proper conduct of the trial. The power has to be exercised cautiously and in exceptional situations, where it becomes necessary to do so to provide credibility to the trial. There has to be a real apprehension that there would be miscarriage of justice."

11. On the basis of the law enunciated and guidelines laid down by the Apex Court in various decisions, the legal scenario emerges may be summarized as under:- A free and fair trial sine qua non of Article 21 of the Constitution. It is also established principle of law in dispensation of justice is that justice should not only be done but it should be seen to have been done. If criminal trial is not free and fair, criminal justice system would be at stake shaking the confidence of the public in the system and rule of law. A fair trial means a trial before an impartial judge, a fair prosecutor and atmosphere of the judicial calm. Fair trial also means in which bias or prejudice for or against the party or witness.

12. Under Section 407 Cr.P.C. when it is shown that public confidence in the fairness of the trial would be undermined any party can seek transfer of the case within the State. Thus, the court may transfer the case to another court where it feels that fair and proper trial is conducive for deciding a transfer petition, the court has also to see convenience of the parties and witnesses to be adduced at trial if also relevant consideration. The convenience of the parties is a misconceived motion of apprehension where the convenience of not only of prosecution, the accused and witness in the larger interest of the society. The apprehension that the applicant will not meet the ends of justice and convenience and availability of legal services, the court may exercise its power of transfer. This is cardinal principle of jurisprudence that although circumstances may be myriad and may vary case to case. The court has to test petitioner's ground for transfer on the touchstone bearing in the mind the rule that normally complainant has right to choose any court having jurisdiction even so the process of justice should not harass the parties and from that angle the court may weigh. The apprehension not receiving justice must be reasonable apprehension based on strong material and not hypothetical merely making vague allegation that there is apprehension in the mind of the applicant that justice will not be given in a given case and not lame excuse or for delaying tactics.

13. To analyse the grounds, facts and circumstances, submissions of learned counsel for the parties and guidelines laid down by the Apex Court, it emerges that at present the applicant is residing in District Mau while the opposite party no. 2 (husband) is resident of District Azamgarh. It is not disputed that both the cases, filed by applicant are pending in the District Azamgarh.

14. Learned counsel for the applicant submits that she is a poor lady having no source of income and depends upon the income of her father, who also bears the liability of other family members. The applicant herself has a minor daughter aged about four years. The father of the applicant is an old person who is unable to attend the court on every date with the applicant and in absence of him, the opposite party nos. 2 to 6 regularly threatened her, when she goes to attend the court alone. Thus, life of the applicant is not safe in view of the previous conduct of the opposite party nos. 2 to 6. Due to fear of opposite party nos. 2 to 6 as well as their family members, she could not face the trial in District Azamgarh. In these circumstances, there is apprehension to her life keeping in view the previous conduct of opposite party nos. 2 to 6. The opposite party nos. 2 to 6 have good relation with anti social elements and they are waiting the occasion to take revenge from the applicant if she goes to Azamgarh for doing pairvi of the case in question. She is also not able to bear the expenses of pairvi of the case.

15. Considering the facts and circumstances of the case and submissions of learned counsel for the parties in the light of guidelines laid down by the Apex court, I find that applicant has filed a complaint under Sections 498-A, 323, 504, 506, 120-B IPC and Section 3/4 Dowry Prohibition Act, Police Station Tahabarpur, District Azamgarh before the Judicial Magistrate, Azamgarh wherein opposite party nos. 2 to 6 were summoned. Now she has also instituted an application under Section 128 Cr.P.C. for recovery of maintenance allowance. Applicant has no source of income independently. She has a baby of four years who is also dependent upon her. She is totally dependent in all respect on her father who is living presently at District Mau. Although she did not disclose the income of her father nevertheless it is the duty of the opposite party no. 2 maintain the applicant and her child. It has been argued that opposite party no. 2 has paid only Rs. 25,000/- and Rs. 74,000/- is still in arrears towards maintenance. In these circumstances, it is clear that the applicant has no sufficient income to maintain herself, her minor daughter and meet expenses of the litigation. It is axiomatic that in the present days of high inflammation, it is difficult to lead a life without sufficient income. Thus, she is living in her parental home due to this matrimonial dispute between both the parties. She has to attend the proceedings at Azamgarh in both the cases. It has been submitted that the father is to look her and her daughter after only. It is also submitted that he is an old man and unable to company her on the each and every date fixed at Azamgarh. This compels the applicant to go the court at Azamgarh. Seizing the opportunity of her loneliness in the court, the opposite party no. 2 may mishandle and cause injuries and he even intimidate her life. Although there is no any other proof to substantiate these grounds nevertheless in the affidavit filed in support of transfer application confirm these allegations. Moreover, District Mau and Azamgarh are situated nearby each other. So the cases may conveniently be attended at Mau. Thus, in the opinion of this court apprehension expressed by the applicant is reasonable. In view of the above facts and legal scenario, I am of the view that it is in the interest of justice that the instant transfer application should be allowed.

16. Resultantly, the transfer application is allowed. Let the Case No.

2554 of 2019 (Sonam Rai Vs. Rakesh Rai & others), under Sections 498-A, 323, 504, 506, 120-B IPC and Section 3/4 Dowry Prohibition Act, Police Station Tahabarpur, District Azamgarh be transferred from Judicial Magistrate, Azamgarh to the competent court at District Mau for disposal in accordance with law within three months.

17. Let the copy of the order be sent to the Judicial Magistrate, Azamgarh for necessary action and compliance.

8. Learned counsel for the petitioner submitted that petitioner is renowned person of the society and also he was the then Gram Pradhan of village Dhanghata. The reputation of the petitioner is good and clear in the society and also his wife is the present Gram Pradhan. It is further submitted that prior to 16.5.2022 no complaint or First Information Report was registered against the petitioner. It is next submitted that the land grabbers (Bhumafiya), namely, Shri Bhal Chand Pathak, Shivbrat Pathak, Akhilesh Pathak, Rakesh Pathak, Sintu @ Piyush Pathak and Subhas Pathak, who are the resident of village Dhanghata, Police Station Dhanghata, District Sant Kabir Nagar, have made encroachment on public utility land Gata No. 177 & 178 belongs to the Khalihan and Khadgaddha of the Revenue, Village Mithana, Sithana, Police Station Dhanghata, District Sant Kabir Nagar, which is adjoining village of Dhanghata and by playing fraud they have got entry on the aforesaid public utility land as Sankramaniya Bhumidhar, which is not permissible under the U.P. 2006. In this regard the petitioner made several complaints before the concerned authorities as well as Chief Minister Portal against the land grabbers (Bhumafiya), namely, Shri Bhal Chand Pathak, Shivbrat Pathak, Akhilesh Pathak, Rakesh Pathak, Sintu @ Piyush Pathak and Subhas Pathak, who are the resident of village Dhanghata, Police Station Dhanghata, District Sant Kabir Nagar praying therein to evict the aforesaid persons from Gata No. 177 area 0.251 hectare and 178 area 0.051 hectare situated in Revenue, Village Mithana, Sithana, Police Station Dhanghata, District Sant Kabir Nagar, which is adjoining village of Dhanghata and restore the aforesaid public utility land of the said Gaon Sabha as was earlier recorded in the revenue record.

9. Learned counsel has further submitted that in compliance of the aforesaid complaint made by the petitioner, the respondent authorities have initiated enquiry against the alleged land grabbers in the aforesaid matter and in pursuance of that the revenue official has submitted report on 9.6.2022, 30.6.2022, 12.7.2022 and 19.7.2022, on the basis of Akarpartar 45 and stating therein that the aforesaid land belongs to the public utility land, therefore, made recommendation to delete the name of the said Degree College and recorded as Khalian and Khadgaddha. Subsequently, the said land grabbers have annoyed with the petitioner and being aggrieved with the said enquiry the land grabbers only to harass the petitioner has lodged the First Information Reports against him including his son and other friends on the false and concocted story. The following two cases have been registered against the petitioner which are given below:

(i) Case Crime No. 193 of 2022, under Sections 147, 323, 352, 506 IPC, Police Station Dhanghata, District Sant Kabir Nagar, in which the petitioner has been granted bail by the court concerned;

(ii) Case Crime No. 200 of 2022, under Sections 147, 341, 504, 506 IPC, Police Station Dhanghata, District Sant Kabir Nagar, in which the petitioner has also been released on bail by the court concerned.

10. Learned counsel for petitioner further submitted that District Magistrate, Sant Kabir Nagar while passing the order of externment has not considered the objection of the petitioner that he is not habitual to commit crime and he does not come under the meaning of 'Goondas'. The District Magistrate in a routine manner has passed the order of externment. It is next submitted that Commissioner, Basti Division, Basti also had not applied its judicial mind and has dismissed the appeal preferred by petitioner. Both the authorities have failed to consider that petitioner is not habitual in committing crime and he does not come under the meaning of 'Goondas'. It is further submitted that District Magistrate has failed to consider that there was only two cases registered against the petitioner which were lodged by the land grabbers only to harass the petitioner on account of said complaint made by the petitioner. The petitioner on the basis of only two cases cannot be held to be a Goonda within the meaning of Section 3 of the Act. The findings recorded by both the authorities i.e. District Magistrate as well as Commissioner to the effect that petitioner is a Goonda, is illegal and are liable to be quashed.

11. Learned A.G.A. submitted that petitioner is a Goonda and a habitual offender. Nobody dares to come forward to depose in the cases related to the petitioner and there is terror in the area of petitioner. Hence the petition is liable to be dismissed.

12. The externment order has been passed by the District Magistrate under Section 3 of the Act. The Section 3 of the Act is reproduced as under:-

"3. Externment, etc. of Goondas. - (1) Where it appears to the District Magistrate.-

(a) that any person is a Goonda; and

(b) (i) that his movements or acts in the district or any part thereof are causing, or are calculated to cause alarm, danger or harm to persons or property; or

[(ii) that there are reasonable grounds for believing that he is engaged or about to engage, in the district or any part thereof, in the commission of an offence referred to in sub clauses (i) to (iii) of clause (b) of Section 2, or in the abetment of any such offence; and]

(c) that witnesses not willing to come forward to give evidence against him by reason of apprehension on their part as regards the safety of their person or property.

The District Magistrate shall by notice in writing, inform him of the general nature of the materials allegations against him in respect of clauses (a), (b) and (c) and give him a reasonable opportunity of tendering an explanation regarding them.

(2) The person against whom an order under this Section is proposed to be made shall have the right to consult and be defended by a Counsel of his choice and shall be given a reasonable opportunity of examining himself, if he so desires, and also of examining any other witness that he may wish to produce in support of his explanation, unless for reasons to be recorded in writing the District Magistrate is of opinion that the request is made for the purpose of vexation or delay.

(3) Thereupon the District Magistrate on being satisfied that the conditions specified in clauses (a), (b) and (c) of sub-section (1) exist may by order in writing-

[(a) direct him to remove himself outside the area within the limits of his local jurisdiction or such area and any district or districts or any part thereof, contiguous thereto, by such route, if any, and within such time as may be specified in the order and to desist from entering the said area and such contiguous district or districts or part thereof, as the case may be, from which he was directed to remove himself until the expiry of such period not exceeding six months as may be specified in the said order.]

(b)(i) require such person to notify his movements, or to report himself, or to do both, in such manner at such time and to such authority or person as may be specified in the order;

(ii) prohibit or restrict possession or use by him or any such article as may be specified in the order;

(iii) direct him otherwise to conduct himself in such manner as may be specified in the order, until the expiration of such period, not exceeding six months as may be specified in the order."

13. Section 3 of the Act empowered the District Magistrate to pass the order of externment if he is satisfied that any person is engaged or about to engage in the district or any part thereof in the commission of offence referred to in sub clause (i) to (iii) of clause b of Section 2.

14. The word 'Goonda' is defined in sub clause b of Section 2 of the Act which is reproduced as under:-

"2(b) "Goonda" means a person who-

(i) either by himself or as a member or leader of a gang, habitually commits or attempts to commit, or abets the commission of an offence punishable under Section 153 or Section 153-B or Section 294 of the Indian Penal Code or Chapter XV, or Chapter XVI, Chapter XVII or Chapter XXII of the said Code; or

(ii) has been convicted for an offence punishable under the Suppression of Immoral Traffic in Women and Girls Act, 1956; or

(iii) has been convicted not less than thrice for an offence punishable under the U.P. Excise Act, 1910 or the Public Gambling Act, 1867 or Section 25, Section 27 or Section 29 of the Arms Act, 1959; or

(iv) is generally reputed to be a person who is desperate and dangerous to the community; or

(v) has been habitually passing indecent remarks or teasing women or girls; or

(vi) is a tout;"

15. A perusal of Section 2(b) of the Act reveals that Goonda means a person who is either by himself or is a member or leader of a gang, habitually commits or attempts to commit, or abets the commission of an offence punishable under Section 153 or Section 153-B or Section 294 of IPC or Chapter XV, or Chapter XVI, Chapter XVII or Chapter XXII of the Indian Panel Code.

16. From perusal of impugned orders it is apparent that externment order has been passed only on the basis of two cases whereas the word habitual is used in the definition of word 'Goonda'. There was no evidence or material before the District Magistrate that the petitioner was habitual to commit crimes or was member or leader of any gang which involved in criminal activities. The word habitual means that by habit he was involved in commission of such offences. On the basis of one or two offences the petitioner cannot be treated as Goonda. The word 'Goonda' has been considered by the Division Bench of this Court in the case of Imran alias Abdul Quddus Khan Vs. State of U.P. and others, Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No.7111 of 1999. The words 'Goonda' and 'habitual' have been considered. The relevant paragraphs 13, 14, 15 of the said judgment are quoted hereunder:-

"13. Ex facie, a person is termed as a 'goonda' if he is a habitual criminal. The provisions of Section 2(b) of the Act are almost akin to the expression 'anti social element' occurring in Section 2(d) of Bihar Prevention of Crimes Act, 1981. In the context of the expression 'anti social element' the connotation 'habitually commits' came to be interpreted by the apex Court in the case of Vijay Narain Singh v. State of Bihar and others, (1984) 3 SCC-14 : AIR 1984 SC 1334. The meaning put to the aforesaid expression by the apex court would squarely apply to the expression used in the Act, in question. The majority view was that the word 'habitually' means 'repeatedly' or 'persistently'. It implies a thread of continuity stringing together similar repetitive acts. Repeated, persistent and similar but not isolated, individual and dissimilar acts are necessary to justify an inference of habit. It connotes frequent commission of acts or omissions of the same kind referred to in each of the said sub-clauses or an aggregate of similar acts or omissions. Even the minority view which was taken in Vijay Narain's case (supra) was that the word 'habitually' means 'by force of habit'. It is the force of habit inherent or latent in an individual with a criminal instinct with a criminal disposition of mind, that makes a person accustomed to lead a life of crime posing danger to the society in general. If a person with criminal tendencies consistently or persistently or repeatedly commits or attempts to commit or abets the commission of offences punishable under the specified chapters of the Code, he should be considered to be an 'anti social element'. There are thus two views with regard to the expression 'habitually' flowing from the decision of Vijay Narain's case (supra). The majority was inclined to give a restricted meaning to the word 'habitually' as denoting 'repetitive' and that on the basis of a single act cannot be said to be forming the habit of the person. That is to say, the act complained of must be repeated more than once and be inherent in his nature. The minority view is that a person in habitual criminal who by force of habit or inward disposition inherent or latent in him has grown accustomed to lead a life of crime. In simple language, the minority view was expressed that the word 'habitually' means 'by force of habit'. The minority view is based on the meaning given in Stroud's Judicial Dictionary, Fourth Ed. Vol. II-1204 - habitually requires a continuance and permanence of some tendency, something that has developed into a propensity, that is, present from day to day. Thus, the word 'habitual' connotes some degree of frequency and continuity.

14. The word 'habit' has a clear well understood meaning being nearly the same as 'accustomed' and cannot be applied to single act. When we speak of habit of a person, we prefer to his customary conduct to pursue, which he has acquired a tendency from frequent repetitions. In B.N. Singh v. State of U.P., AIR 1960 All 754 it was observed that it would be incorrect to say that a person has a habit of anything from a single act. In the Law Lexicon - Encyclopedic Law Dictionary, 1997 Ed. by P. Ramanatha Aiyer, the expression 'habitual' has been defined to mean as constant, customary and addicted to a specified habit; formed or acquired by or resulting from habit; frequent use or custom formed by repeated impressions. The term 'habitual criminal', it is stated may be applied to any one, who has been previously more than twice convicted of crime, sentenced and committed to prison. The word 'habit' means persistence in doing an act, a fact, which is capable of proof by adducing evidence of the commission of a number of similar acts. 'Habitually' must be taken to mean repeatedly or persistently. It does not refer to frequency of the occasions but rather to the invariability of the practice.

15. The expression 'habitual criminal' is the same thing as the 'habitual offender' within the meaning of Section 110 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973. This preventive Section deals for requiring security for good behaviour from 'habitual offenders'. The expression 'habitually' in the aforesaid section has been used in the sense of depravity of character as evidenced by frequent repetition or commission of offence. It means repetition or persistency in doing an act and not an inclination by nature, that is, commission of same acts in the past and readiness to commit them again where there is an opportunity."

17. The sole purpose of the Act, 1970 is to protect the citizens from the habitual criminals and to secure future of the citizens but it should be used very sparingly and in very clear cases of public disorder or for maintenance of public order and so this Act should not be used against innocent people.

18. It is well settled law that before passing the order of externment the District Magistrate should be satisfied that the person against whom the externment order has been passed, is habitual to commit crimes and there are several materials before him to the effect that there was terror in the public and no one has come forward to give evidence against that person.

19. From perusal of impugned order passed by District Magistrate it is apparent that only on the basis of two criminal cases, the externment order for six months has been passed by the District Magistrate. The Commissioner has also failed to consider the grounds taken by the petitioner in his appeal and in a routine manner has dismissed the appeal preferred by the petitioner.

20. On an overall conspectus of the aforesaid, this Court finds that since there was no sufficient material before the District Magistrate in holding that the petitioner is Goondas and is habitual to commit crimes, the impugned orders dated 19.1.2023 passed by the respondent no.2/ Commissioner, Basti Division, Basti and dated 11.11.2022 passed by the respondent no. 3/District Magistrate, Sant Kabir Nagar are bad in law and deserve to be quashed and the writ petition is liable to be allowed.

21. Accordingly, the writ petition is allowed.

22. The impugned orders dated 19.1.2023 passed by the respondent no.2/ Commissioner, Basti Division, Basti and dated 11.11.2022 passed by the respondent no. 3/District Magistrate, District-Sant Kabir Nagar are quashed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Vivek Kumar Birla, J., & Hon'ble Surendra Singh-I, J.)

1. Counter affidavit filed on behalf of the State, is taken on record.

2. Heard Sri Bipin Kumar Tripathi, learned counsel for the petitioner and Sri Ratan Singh, learned AGA for the State and perused the records.

3. Present petition has been filed with a prayer for quashing the F.I.R. dated 17.12.2022, registered as Case Crime No. 660 of 2022, under Section 3(i) U.P. Gangster and Anti Social Activities (Prevention) Act, 1986 (hereinafter referred to as the Gangster Act), Police Station Chiluatal, District Gorakhpur with a further prayer not to arrest the petitioner in pursuance of the impugned F.I.R.

4. Submission of the learned counsel for the petitioner is that in the gang chart details of only one case have been mentioned, however, simultaneously it is mentioned that two cases are registered against the petitioner. So far as the case referred in the gang chart bearing Case Crime no.7 of 2021 is concerned, it is submitted by the learned counsel for the petitioner that initially F.I.R. was lodged only under Sections 279, 504, 307 IPC against two unknown bike riders wherein during investigation in C.D. No.11 dated 24.01.2021 Mukhbir disclosed the name of the co-accused Manoj Chauhan and Monoj Sahani, who are notorious criminals having no concerned with the petitioner and in correspondence to that Mukhbir information co-accused Manoj Sahani, Manoj Chauhan, Sunil Chauhan and Vikas Pathak were arrested on 31.01.2021 in C.D. No.12 and they have made confession before police and disclosed the name of the petitioner. It is further submitted that except aforesaid manner of complicity disclosed by co-accused persons there is no other material evidence collected by investigating officer against the petitioner and as such the investigating officer with addition of section 120B IPC charge-sheeted the accused person. It is next submitted that similarly in another case bearing Case Crime no.255 of 2022, under section 392 IPC, Police Station Cantt, District Gorakhpur the petitioner was not named in the FIR and during the course of investigation those co-accused persons arrested and disclosed the name of the petitioner as one of the participants of the alleged incident dated 04.04.2022. However, the petitioner was granted bail by the learned Sessions Judge, Gorakhpur vide order dated 20.09.2022.

5. Arguing the case on merits, submission of the learned counsel for the petitioner is that only on the basis of single case as mentioned in the gang chart the provisions of Gangster Act has been imposed against the petitioner and that there is a clear violation of Rule 5 clause (2) and (3) of the Rules framed under the Gangster Act. By placing reliance upon a Division Bench Judgment of this Court in the case of Ram Rahees and Another vs. State of U.P. and Others reported in 2011 (1) JIC 440 it is submitted that the District Magistrate at no point of time has recorded subjective satisfaction before imposition of provisions of Gangster Act. It is further submitted that on the basis of another first information report, Gangster Act has been imposed, copy whereof has been annexed as Annexure-2 to the supplementary affidavit. It is next submitted that the petitioner is a businessman and has no concern with the offence as alleged. Therefore, the impugned first information report under the Gangster Act is nothing but an abuse of process of law and is liable to be quashed.

6. Per contra, learned AGA submits that chargesheet has already been submitted in the base first information report. By drawing attention to the gang chart it is submitted by the learned AGA that the satisfaction has categorically been recorded by the District Magistrate and endorsement dated 17.12.2022 to that effect has been made. It is next submitted that it has already been decided by Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Shraddha Gupta vs The State Of Uttar Pradesh reported in 2022 SCC OnLine SC 514 that even on the basis of a single case Gangsters Act can be imposed.

7. In the case of Ambuj Parag Dubey and 2 Others vs. State of U.P. and 2 Others reported in 2022 (4) ACR 3878, this court has considered the entire scheme of the Gangster Act and held that in a case, on the materials, the competent authority is convinced and prima facie satisfied that a case for prosecution is made out he may approve the gang chart bypassing discussion with the police officials. But in a case where the competent authority is not convinced or in two mind, on the material placed by the police authorities, the competent authority may necessarily decide to call for a discussion to prima facie satisfy himself that prosecution is warranted. The F.I.R. that follows the approval of the gang chart cannot be faulted or quashed merely for want of discussion. Relevant paragraphs 32, 33, 34, 35,36,37 and 41 of the said judgment are quoted as under:-

"32. Satisfaction of the competent authority only means that the competent authority must be in fact satisfy and not a dishonest satisfaction, which will be no satisfaction at all. The satisfaction contemplated by the Gangster Rule is satisfaction in point of fact on the materials placed before the competent authority. The satisfaction of the competent authority referred to under the Rule is not with respect to the allegations levelled against the gangster but the satisfaction is confined to those allegations that the accused can be prosecuted under the Gangster Act. Whatever may be the nature of charge against the accused, the satisfaction of the competent authority should be with regard to that the materials placed before him and the nature of the accused indulging in community antisocial activities. It is expedient to sanction prosecution under the Gangster Act.

*33. The expression satisfied is much narrower than "application of mind". The competent authority is not to apply his mind and satisfy himself as to whether the material placed before him would be sufficient for convicting the accused under the Gangster Act. The satisfaction is confined within a narrow domain based on the materials placed before the competent authority, the authorities forwarding the gang chart is satisfied that the accused should be prosecuted under the Gangster Act. The expression satisfaction is not satisfaction on evidence but a prima facie satisfaction based on the representations of the nodal authority and the district police that the accused should be prosecuted under the Gangster Act.*

34. Rule 17 mandates that the competent authority is bound to exercise its own independent mind while forwarding the gang chart and should not be on a pre-printed rubber seal gang chart. Rule 17 reads thus:

17 (1) the Competent Authority shall be bound to exercise its own independent mind while forwarding the gang-chart.

(2) A pre-printed rubber seal gang-chart should not be signed by the Competent Authority; otherwise the same shall tantamount to the fact that the Competent Authority has not exercised its free mind.

35. Rule 18 provides that gang chart shall be sent only in the manner as given in Form No. 1 of these rules.

36. Rule 17 and 18 would have to be read together. Gang chart has to be sent in the prescribed Form No. 1. The endorsement to be made by each of the authorities have also been specified in Rule 16. The rule itself prescribes and mandates a printed Form. Rule 17 merely mandates that the competent authority while approving the gang chart should not be swayed by the recommendation of the police authorities mechanically but should satisfy himself independently that the grounds for prosecution is made out. The satisfaction at that stage is subjective and does not rest upon any evidence. The competent authority has to satisfy that the materials placed with the gang chart calls for prosecution. The stage of collecting evidence follows thereafter. The scope of judicial review is miniscule, the accused cannot challenge the FIR without challenging the gang chart. The question as to whether the antisocial activities of the proposed accused is that of a gang or gangster is a matter of investigation.

37. Rule 22 clarifies and specifies that a single act/omission will also constitute an offence under the Act and a first information report must be registered on the basis of a single case. Rule 22(1) reads thus:

41. The submission of the learned counsel for the petitioners that there was no 'discussion' by the competent authority with the police officers before approving the gang chart would not be fatal to the prosecution of the petitioners. The expression 'discussion' has to be followed mandatorily by the competent authority in every case does not follow from reading of the Rule, though the rule employs the word 'shall'. The Gangster Rule nowhere mandates the consequence of not following 'discussion' by the competent authority. In our opinion the rule mandating discussion is directory. It is left to the discretion of the competent authority, having regard to the material placed before him for approval of the gang chart. In a case, on the materials, the competent authority is convinced and prima facie satisfied that a case for prosecution is made out he may approve the gang chart bypassing discussion with the police officials. But in a case where the competent authority is not convinced or in two mind, on the material placed by the police authorities, the competent authority may necessarily decide to call for a discussion to prima facie satisfy himself that prosecution is warranted. The FIR that follows the approval of the gang chart cannot be faulted or quashed merely for want of discussion."

8. It may also be noted that Uttar Pradesh Gangster and Anti-Social Activities (Prevention) Rules, 2021 (hereinafter referred to as the Gangster Rules, 2021), were framed in 2021, which were not available at the time of decision in Ram Rahees (supra). Needless to say that Gangster Rules, 2021 have been considered in great detail in Ambuj Parag Dubey (supra) and the manner in which satisfaction is to be recorded has been laid down. Hence Ram Rahess (supra) is clearly distinguishable and is of no help to the petitioner.

9. Therefore, in view of the judgment of Ambuj Parag Dubey (supra) we find that in the present case satisfaction has been recorded as per the Gangster Rules, 2021 and Form-I of the Gangster Act, which provides the format of the gang chart. Rule 5(3)(d) of the Gangster Act also provides that those cases shall not be mentioned in the gang chart, on the basis whereof action has already been taken once under this Act. We, therefore, find that satisfaction recorded by the District Magistrate in the manner in which it has been done in the present case is in compliance of the Rules and it cannot be said that satisfaction is not recorded.

10. In para 37 of Shraddha Gupta (supra) it has been held by the Hon'ble Apex Court that even on the basis of a single case Gangster Act can be imposed, which is quoted as under:-

"37. Now so far as the main submission on behalf of the accused that for a single offence/FIR/charge sheet with respect to any of the anti- social activities, such an accused cannot be prosecuted under the Gangsters Act, 1986 is concerned, on a fair reading of the definitions of 'Gang' and 'Gangster' under the Gangsters Act, 1986, it can be seen that a 'Gang' is a group of one or more persons who commit/s the crimes mentioned in the definition clause for the motive of earning undue advantage, whether pecuniary, material or otherwise. Even a single crime committed by a 'Gang' is sufficient to implant Gangsters Act on such members of the 'Gang'. The definition clause does not engulf plurality of offence before the Gangsters Act is invoked."

11. In view of the discussions made herein above, we do not find force in the argument of the learned counsel for the petitioner.

12. The petition is devoid of merit and is accordingly, dismissed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Suneet Kumar, J. & Hon'ble Syed Waiz Mian, J.)

1. Heard Shri Anurag Khanna, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Shri Ravi Prakash Srivastava, learned counsel for the petitioners and learned A.G.A. appearing for the State.

2. Petitions are being decided by a common judgment and order as they arise from the same facts and incident on the consent of the parties.

3. Despite notice, counsel appearing for the fourth respondent has not filed counter affidavit, nor, has he put in appearance.

4. Petitioners in the bunch of petitions are the officials of the HDFC Bank Ltd., which include, Managing Director, Additional Managing Director, Company Secretary, Chief Finance Officer and the Branch Manager of the Branch. The complainant is the customer of HDFC bank, having a saving bank account.

5. For the sake of convenience, the facts setforth in the Writ Petition No. 9842 of 2020 (Piyush Prabhakar and another vs. State of U.P. and 3 Others) is being referred to.

6. HDFC bank is engaged in the business of banking and financial services, duly registered with the Reserve Bank of India, having its registered office at Mumbai (Maharashtra). The bank has various branch all over India, including, the branch at Agra. The complainant/respondent No. 4 is customer of bank having account (Saving Account No. # 01211000207684) at the Agra Branch.

7. First petitioner is the Branch Manager, HDFC Bank Ltd. at Agra, since 29.04.2019. It is submitted that the petitioner was not posted at the branch at the relevant point of time i.e. January 2018, during the period when the alleged debit took place from the bank account of the informant.

8. The informant had earlier lodged FIR being Case Crime No. 0083 of 2018, dated 03.02.2018, at Police Station Hariparwat, Agra, against the bank officials and one Dharmendra Singh. It is alleged that the informant in his bank account was having balance at Rs.1,00,69,633/- as on 17.01.2018. It is alleged that on an enquiry of his bank account on 02.02.2018, it transpired that informant was having balance at Rs.1,99,574.41 paisa only, thereby, a sum at Rs.98,70,000/- was fraudulently in connivance with the bank officials was transferred in the account of Dharmendra Singh of the same branch. It is further alleged that the account of the informant was attached by the Income Tax officials, therefore, it was alleged that the amount could not have been withdrawn from the account without connivance of the bank officials. It is informed that the Investigating Officer in the said case crime has filed charge-sheet against six persons on 25.04.2018 under Sections 420, 467, 468, 471, 120-B, 419 & 411 IPC., including bank officials.

9. The impugned FIR was subsequently lodged by the informant on the same allegations and arising from the same incident, but the only fact that was further alleged is that the saving bank account of the informant was subsequently released by the Chief Judicial Magistrate, vide order dated 18.10.2021, but the bank withheld the amount and has not released it to the informant.

10. In this backdrop, it is submitted by learned counsel for the petitioners that lodging of the second FIR arising from the same facts and incident is gross misuse of process of the court and would be barred in view of the mandate of T.T. Antony vs. State of Kerala and others¹, which has subsequently been followed in Vijay Kumar Ghai and others v. State of West Bengal and others² and Tarak Dash Mukharjee & others v. State of U.P. & others³.

11. It is further submitted that the entire amount that was due and admissible to the informant has already been released in due course by the bank and a sum at Rs.1,00,000/- was deducted towards policy excess (Insurance) which the informant is not entitled. It is urged that for this reason the cause to pursue the complainant no longer survives for the complainant.

12. The only question that arises is whether the second FIR arising from the same allegations would be maintainable or not.

13. Supreme Court in Krishna Lal Chawla & Ors. Vs. State of U.P. & another⁴ observed that multiple complaints by the same party against the same accused in respect of the same incident is impermissible. Permitting multiple complaints by the same party in respect of the same incident, whether it involves a cognizable or private complaint offence, will lead to the accused being entangled in numerous criminal proceedings. As such he would be forced to keep surrendering his liberty and precious time before the police and the courts, as and when required in each case.

14. The legality of the second FIR was extensively discussed by Supreme Court in T.T. Antony (supra). It was held that there can be no second FIR where the information concerns the same cognizable offence alleged in the first FIR or the same occurrence or incident which gives rise to one or more cognizable offences. It was further held that once an FIR postulated by the provisions of Section 154 of Cr.P.C has been recorded, any information received after the commencement of investigation cannot form the basis of a second FIR as doing so would fail to comport with the scheme of the Cr.P.C. The Court further held that barring situations in which a counter- case is filed, a fresh investigation or a second FIR on the basis of the same or connected cognizable offence would constitute an "abuse of the statutory power of investigation" and may be a fit case for the exercise of power either under Section 482 of Cr.P.C or Articles 226/227 of the Constitution of India.

15. If multiple First Information Reports by the same person against the same accused are permitted to be registered in respect of the same set of facts and allegations, it will result in the accused getting entangled in multiple criminal proceedings for the same alleged offence, the registration of such multiple FIRs is nothing but abuse of process of law.

16. The same principle was reiterated in Vijay Kumar Ghai and others v. State of West Bengal and others⁵, and Tarak Dash Mukharjee & others v. State of Uttar Pradesh & others⁶.

17. The impugned FIR is reproduction of the allegations made by the complainant in his earlier FIR alleging that the officials of the bank in connivance with one Dharmendra Singh, a customer of the bank at Agra branch, transferred a substantial amount of money from the saving bank account of the complainant, at a time when the saving bank account of the complainant was attached by the Income Tax Department. The further additional allegation made in the impugned FIR by the complainant is that the bank withheld/delayed the release of the money to the complainant upon release of the saving bank account by the order of the competent court.

18. The allegation of the complainant that the money of his saving bank account was withheld and not paid to the complainant promptly; even on taking the allegation on face value it would not constitute an offence. The purpose of the second FIR appears to have been lodged with an ulterior motive to coerce the officials of the branch to permit the complainant to operate the saving bank account and withdraw his money. It is also a case of malicious prosecution.

19. In State of Haryana & Ors. Vs. Bhajan Lal & Ors.⁷ considered in detail the scope of the High Court powers under Section 482 Cr.P.C. and/or Article 226 of the Constitution of India to quash the FIR and referred to several judicial precedents and held that the High Court should not embark upon an inquiry into the merits and demerits of the allegations and quash the proceedings without allowing the investigating agency to complete its task. The Court, inter alia, identified the following cases in which FIR/complaint can be quashed:

"102. (1) Where the allegations made in the first information report or the complaint, even if they are taken at their face value and accepted in their entirety do not prima facie constitute any offence or make out a case against the accused.

(7) Where a criminal proceeding is manifestly attended with mala fide and/or where the proceeding is maliciously instituted with an ulterior motive for wreaking vengeance on the accused and with a view to spite him due to private and personal grudge."

20. Having regard to the undisputed facts as noted hereinabove, the impugned FIR being second FIR for the same cause and incident, registration of such multiple FIR is nothing but abuse of process of law.

21. In view of the above, writ petitions are allowed.

22. Accordingly the impugned FIR dated 16.08.2020, registered as Case Crime No. 0326 of 2018, under Sections 409 IPC at Police Station Hari Parvat, District Agra, is quashed.

List of Cases cited:

T.T. Antony Vs St. of Kerala & ors. reported in (2002) 6 SCC 181

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ms. Nand Prabha Shukla, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the petitioners, learned A.G.A. for the State and perused the record.

2. In the instant writ petition the petitioners seek to challenge the First Information Report dated 30.01.2022 arising out of Case Crime No. 0025 of 2022, under Sections 147, 148, 307, 308, 325, 395, 452, 506, 120-B IPC, Police Station-Sikrara, District-Jaunpur.

3. The main contention of learned counsel for the petitioners is that there are two FIRs registered for the same incident. Petitioners are named accused in the impugned FIR and are, therefore, aggrieved.

4. Per contra, learned A.G.A. for the State pointed out that for the same occurrence two FIRs have been registered; (i) the first FIR dated 22.08.2020, arising out of Case Crime No. 0170 of 2020, under Sections 323, 504, 506 IPC, Police Station Sikrara, District Jaunpur was lodged by Suraj Kumar (son of respondent no.3) against four persons (ii) another FIR dated 30.01.2022, arising out of Case Crime No. 0025 of 2022, under Sections 147, 148, 307, 308, 325, 395, 452, 506, 120B IPC, Police Station Sikrara, District Jaunpur was lodged by respondent no.3 against 14 named accused persons on the basis of an application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. moved on 18.09.2020 by respondent No.3, wherein the Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Jaunpur directed vide order dated 10.01.2022 to the concerned police station to register the crime.

5. Upon having heard both the counsel for the parties as well as upon perusal of the record, it is admittedly true that for the same occurrence which took place on 21.08.2020, two separate FIRs have been registered. The first FIR was lodged by Suraj Kumar (son of the respondent no.3) under Sections 323, 504 and 506 IPC in which the investigation has been concluded and the charge sheet dated 04.09.2022 was filed in the Court against four named accused persons as well as against the petitioner no.1, Raj Kumar under Sections 323, 325, 504, 506, 147 and 188 IPC, thereafter, cognizance was taken on 13.06.2022. However, at the later stage on the directions of the concerned Circle Officer, a Supplementary charge sheet was filed on 07.12.2022 against petitioner nos.2 to 11, under Sections 147, 148, 308, 325, 324, 504 and 506 IPC and the name of the petitioner no.12 was exonerated.

6. From the perusal of the record, we find that after an application dated 18.09.2020, under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. was moved by the respondent no.3 before the concerned Magistrate, a report was sought from the concerned police station regarding the incident. The concerned police station forwarded the report with a noting that, no FIR has been registered in the instant case. Considering this fact the concerned Magistrate, vide order dated 10.01.2022, directed the concerned police station to register the impugned FIR. Thus, relying on the said report, the concerned Magistrate directed for registration of the impugned FIR. In case, the correct information would have been furnished by the concerned police station the impugned FIR would not have come into existence. As a second/subsequent FIR has been registered on the basis of wrong and misleading information forwarded by the concerned police station, therefore, it cannot be sustained and is liable to be quashed.

7. It has been well settled by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of T.T. Antony vs State of Kerala & Others reported in (2002) 6 SCC 181, that after registering the FIR and commencing investigation, registering the second FIR or successive FIR in respect of the same incident and crime and making of fresh investigation pursuant thereto would be irregular which calls for interference by the Court under Articles 226/227 of the Constitution of India or Section 482 Cr.P.C. and interference by the Supreme Court under Article 136 with a fresh investigation to prevent abuse of a statutory power of investigation or otherwise to secure the ends of justice.

8. After considering the aforesaid facts and circumstances and the settled position of law as laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court, the impugned FIR dated 30.01.2022, arising out of Case Crime No. 0025 of 2022 under Sections 147, 148, 307, 308, 325, 395, 452, 506, 120-B IPC, Police Station-Sikrara, District-Jaunpur is hereby quashed.

9. The writ petition is allowed.

 First Appeal from Order No. 162 of 2023

Sanjay Kumar Modi & Anr. ...Appellants
Versus
Udairaj & Anr. ...Respondents

Counsel for the Appellants:

Satish Gulati, Sarvesh Kumar Tiwari, Sudeep Kumar

Counsel for the Respondents:

Shyam Mohan Pradhan, Brijesh Kumar

A. Civil Law – Scope of remand – Code of Civil Procedure: Order 41 Rule 23 - The power of remand is not to be exercised casually or it cannot be a ground to merely shirk from the responsibility of deciding the matter on merits since the powers of the Lower Appellate Court u/s 96 C.P.C. is wide and akin to that of the Trial Court and in any case being the Court of first appeal, it is legally obliged to consider points of fact and law afresh. (Para 25)

B. Unless and until, there was any handicap faced by the Appellate Court which fell within the parameters of Order-41 Rule 23- A, till then in absence of any such cogent reason, the order of remand is not justified. (Para 14)

In the present case, the Lower Appellate Court has not exercised the powers of remand in its correct perspective. The reasoning given by the Lower Appellate Court does not reflect conscious application of judicial principles as required to be applied before a remand order is passed. (Para 22)

From the perusal of the impugned order, it only reveals that the Lower Appellate Court made reference to certain sections such as Ss. 52 and 53 of the Transfer of Property Act and Section 101 and 102 of the Indian Evidence Act, however, what the Lower Appellate Court has failed to notice as to how the aforesaid sections would create any handicap for the Appellate Court to have decided the matter. The parties have led their entire evidence and there is no reference made by the Lower Appellate Court that on any particular issue or on any particular aspect of the matter, the parties have not been able to lead evidence which was imperative which leads the Lower Appellate Court to remand the matter. This is to be kept in mind especially in context of the fact that the Court cannot permit the parties to fill up the lacunae in their case by passing an order of remand. (Para 23)

If only the effect of the aforesaid legal provisions (provisions of Sections 52 and 53 of the Transfer of Property Act and Sections 102 and 103 of the Indian Evidence Act) were to be seen, then the Lower Appellate Court being the final court of fact and law was legally empowered and obliged to have considered the effect of the aforesaid sections on its own, without remanding the matter. Appeals allowed. (E-4)

Present F.A.F.O. assails the judgment and decree dated 11.04.2023, passed by the Lower Appellate Court whereby two civil appeals bearing No. 10 of 2022 and 11 of 2022 have been allowed and the matter has been remanded to the Trial Court for decision afresh.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Jaspreet Singh, J.)

1. Heard Heard Sri Sudeep Kumar, learned counsel for the appellants and Sri Brijesh Kumar Saxena, learned counsel who has put in appearance on behalf of the respondent no. 1 in F.A.F.O.No. 158 of 2023 and F.A.F.O. No. 162 of 2023. The learned counsel for the appellant submits that another appeal bearing F.A.F.O. No. 162 of 2023 which is connected also arises from the same judgment of remand and as such both the appeals can be considered and decided together.

2. The instant F.A.F.O. has been preferred under Order 43 Rule (1) (u) C.P.C. assailing the order of remand. The learned counsel for the appellants in both the cases is assailing the judgment and decree passed by the Lower Appellate Court dated 18.04.2023 whereby two civil appeals bearing No. 10 of 2022 and 11 of 2022 have been allowed and the matter has been remanded to the Trial Court for decision afresh.

3. Sri B.K. Saxena, learned counsel appearing for the respondent no.1-Udairaj in both the appeals submits that since the only legal issue regarding sufficiency of grounds for remand is involved, accordingly, the matter can be heard at the admission stage itself. It is in this view of the matter that the Court has heard the learned counsel for the parties at the admission stage and with the consent of learned counsel for the parties disposes of the both the appeals by this common judgment.

4. Certain facts which are relevant for a proper adjudication of the aforesaid appeals are being noticed hereinafter:-

5. The property in question which is the subject matter of the dispute is a three storied house situate in Govind Bagh, Balrampur, Pargana, Tehsil and District Balrampur. The said property was initially recorded in the name of Smt. Sushila Devi wife of Durga Prasad. The appellant no. 1 namely Sanjay Kumar was the tenant of the said premises since the time of Smt. Sushila Devi. On 25.06.2001, Smt. Sushila Devi executed a registered sale deed in respect of the entire property in favour of Reshu Gupta who was a minor through his guardian and father Ram Shankar Gupta (respondent no. 2 in the connected F.A.F.O. No. 162 of 2023 but is not a party in F.A.F.O. No. 158 of 2023).

6. At this stage, the Court found that Reshu Gupta is not a party in F.A.F.O. No. 158 of 2023 and thus the Court required the learned counsel for the appellant to implead Sri Reshu Gupta who was the appellant-vendor as a party in F.A.F.O. No. 158 of 2023 and he is permitted to carry out the necessary amendment in the memo of appeal of Appeal No. 158 of 2023. This has been necessitated on account of the fact that Reshu Gupta and Ram Shankar Gupta are already parties in F.A.F.O. No. 162 of 2023, accordingly, in order to avoid any future complications as well to correct the array of parties and to do substantial justice between the parties. The Court has permitted the learned counsel for the parties to do so during the course of the day.

7. As the Court has permitted the appellants to implead Sri Reshu as a party to the proceedings. The appellants shall also be at liberty of moving an application before the Lower Appellate Court to correct the array of parties in the memo of first appeal including by seeking an amendment in the plaint for impleading Sri Reshu Gupta. In case if any such application is moved, the same be considered appropriately in light of the fact that Sri Reshu Gupta has already been permitted to be impleaded in this appeal.

8. The facts would indicate that the originally the property belonged to Smt. Suhsila Gupta who had sold the same to Reshu Gupta who was a minor at the relevant time by means of sale deed dated 25.06.2001. Subsequently, Reshu Gupta sold the property to the present appellants-Sanjay Kumar Modi and Rashmi Modi by means of registered sale deed dated 06.01.2006. This sale deed of the year 2006 was also executed by the minor Reshu Gupta through his guardian and father Ram Shanker Gupta.

9. The record would further indicate that Smt. Sushila Gupta is said to have instituted a suit for cancellation of the sale deed dated 06.01.2006 against Reshu Gupta and Ram Shankar Gupta which was registered as Regular Suit No. 123 of 2005, however, during the pendency of the said suit, the said property came to be purchased by the present appellants who were not parties to the suit. During pendency of the suit, upon the death of Smt. Suhshila Gupta, one Sri Uday Raj had moved an application seeking his substitution in place of Smt. Sushila Gutpa on the basis of a will executed by Smt. Sushila in his favour. Later, upon consideration on merits, the aforesaid suit came to be decreed by means of judgment and decree dated 20.04.2014.

10. It is the case of the appellants herein that Sri Uday Raj informed the present appellants regarding the judgment and decree dated 20.04.2014 and thereafter the appellants herein instituted a suit bearing No. 134 of 2015 seeking cancellation of the judgment and decree dated 20.04.2014. The appellants instituted another suit seeking declaration of their rights bearing Regular Suit No. 163 of 2015. Since the two suits related to the same property in between the parties in question but they were not consolidated, though, they were tried simultaneously.

11. Both the suits filed by the appellants bearing R.S. No. 134 of 2015 and R.S. No. 163 of 2014 both were decreed by means of judgment and decree dated 09.05.2022. Being aggrieved against the judgment and decree dated 09.05.2022 passed in the two suits separately, Sri Uday Raj Preferred two separate Civil Appeals under Section 96 C.P.C. before the District Judge, Balrampur which was registered as Civil Appeal No. 10 of 2022 which emanated from Regular Suit No. 134 of 2022 whereas the other appeal which was registered as Civil Appeal No. 11 of 22 related to the judgment and decree passed in Regular Suit No. 163 of 2014.

12. Both the appeals have been decided by a common judgment dated 11.04.2023 which is under challenge in the two respective appeals before this Court.

13. Sri Sudeep Kumar, learned counsel for the appellant has primarily attacked the judgment on the point that once the Appellate Court had applied its mind to the controversy and had formulated the points for determination as indicated in the Order 41 Rule 31 C.P.C. and the entire evidence was already on record, then there was no occasion for the Appellate Court to have remanded the matter by means of the impugned judgment.

14. It is submitted that unless and until, there was any handicap faced by the Appellate Court which fell within the parameters of Order-41 Rule 23-A till then in absence of any such cogent reason, the order of remand is not justified. The learned Counsel for the appellant has relied upon a decision of the Apex Court in Shivakumar and others Vs. Sharanabasappa and Others; (2021) 11 SCC 277.

16. Per contra, Sri B.K. Saxena, learned counsel for the respondents submits that in so far as the legal submissions regarding the power of remand is concerned, he submits that it is now well settled that an endeavour should be made by the Appellate Court to consider and decide the matter on merits as far as possible where the parties have already led the entire evidence.

15. He also submits that the issue which was to be considered was duly covered in light of the evidence which was already available on record and to that extent, he does not support the impugned judgment. He very fairly submits that ends of justice can be met in case if the impugned orders are set aside, however, while requiring the Lower Appellate Court to decide the matter afresh, some time frame may be fixed so that the longstanding controversy can be put to an end.

16. He further submits that in light of the contentions which have been raised by the parties and as noticed by the Lower Appellate Court but only two points for determination have been framed, however, they do not encapsulate the entire controversy comprehensively. He submits that it should be open for the parties to raise their plea whichever is available and fresh points for determination may be framed by the Lower Appellate Court to which the learned counsel for the appellant also has no objection.

17. The Court has heard the learned counsel for the parties and also perused the material on record.

18. Before advertng to the respective submissions, it will be apposite to notice the scope of remand in terms of Order 41 Rule 23 and Order 41 Rule 23-A C.P.C. and for ready reference, the same is being reproduced hereinafter:-

"23. Remand of case by Appellate Court.-Where the Court from whose decree an appeal is preferred has disposed of the suit upon a preliminary point and the decree is reversed in appeal, the Appellate court may, if it thinks fit, by order remand the case, and may further direct what issue or issues shall be tried in the case so remanded, and shall send a copy of its judgment and order to the Court from whose decree the appeal is preferred, which directions to re-admit the suit under its original number in the register of civil suits, and proceed to determine the suit; and the evidence (if any) recorded during the original trial shall, subject to all just exceptions, be evidence during the trial after remand.

23.-A Remand in other Cases.-Where the Court from whose decree an appeal is preferred has disposed of the case otherwise than on a preliminary point, and the decree is reversed in appeal and a re-trial is considered necessary, the Appellate Court shall have the same powers as it has under rule 23."

19. The Apex Court in Shiv Kumar (supra) is in detail considered the scope of remand in paragraph nos. 26 to 26.6 of the said report after noticing the relevant provisions for remand contained in Order 41 Rule 23, Rule 23-A, Rule 24 and Rule 25 in paragraphs 26.3 to 26.6 held has under:-

“26.3. A comprehension of the scheme of the provisions for remand as contained in Rules 23 and 23-A of Order 41 is not complete without reference to the provision contained in Rule 24 of Order 41 that enables the appellate court to dispose of a case finally without a remand if the evidence on record is sufficient; notwithstanding that the appellate court proceeds on a ground entirely different from that on which the trial court had proceeded.

26.4. A conjoint reading of Rules 23, 23-A and 24 of Order 41 brings forth the scope as also contours of the powers of remand that when the available evidence is sufficient to dispose of the matter, the proper course for an appellate court is to follow the mandate of Rule 24 of Order 41 CPC and to determine the suit finally. It is only in such cases where the decree in challenge is reversed in appeal and a retrial is considered necessary that the appellate court shall adopt the course of remanding the case. It remains trite that order of remand is not to be passed in a routine manner because an unwarranted order of remand merely elongates the life of the litigation without serving the cause of justice. An order of remand only on the ground that the points touching the appreciation of evidence were not dealt with by the trial court may not be considered proper in a given case because the first appellate court itself is possessed of jurisdiction to enter into facts and appreciate the evidence. There could, of course, be several eventualities which may justify an order of remand or where remand would be rather necessary depending on the facts and the given set of circumstances of a case.

26.5. It gets perforce reiterated that the occasion for remand would arise only when the factual findings of the trial court are reversed and a retrial is considered necessary by the appellate court.

26.6. The present case had clearly been the one where the parties had adduced all their evidence, whatever they wished to; and it had not been the case of the appellant-plaintiffs that they were denied any opportunity to produce any particular evidence or if the trial was vitiated because of any alike reason. As noticed, there had been several suspicious circumstances surrounding the will in question, some of which were noticed by the trial court but were brushed aside by it on untenable reasons. The High Court has meticulously examined the same evidence and the same circumstances and has come to a different conclusion that appears to be sound and plausible, and does not appear suffering from any infirmity. There was no reason or occasion for the High Court to consider remanding the case to the trial court. The contention in this regard is required to be, and is, rejected.”

20. This Court in Sanjay Kumar Vs. Amar Nath Shukla in F.A.F.O. No. 431 of 2003 decided on 14.01.2020 also had the occasion to consider the scope of remand wherein this Court had relied upon the decision of the Apex Court in Jegannathan vs. Raju Sigamani & Anr., reported in (2012) 5 SCC Page 540, and J. Balaji Singh vs. Diwaker Cole & Ors., reported in (2017) 14 SCC 207.

21. Having noticed the scope of remand and applying the aforesaid principles to the facts of the case, it would indicate that the Lower Appellate Court has not exercised the powers of remand in its correct perspective. The reasoning given by the Lower Appellate Court in paragraphs 9 to 11 of the impugned judgment does not reflect conscious application of judicial principles as required to be applied before a remand order is passed.

22. From the perusal of the impugned order, it only reveals that the Lower Appellate Court made reference to certain sections such as Sections 52 and 53 of the Transfer of Property Act and Section 101 and 102 of the Indian Evidence Act, however, what the Lower Appellate Court has failed to notice as to how the aforesaid sections would create any handicap for the Appellate Court to have decided the matter. In the instant case, this Court finds that the parties have led their entire evidence and there is no reference made by the Lower Appellate Court that any particular issue or on any particular aspect of the matter, the parties have not been able to lead evidence which was imperative which leads the Lower Appellate Court to remand the matter. This is to be kept in mind especially in context of the fact that the Court cannot permit the parties to fill the up the lacunae in their case by passing an order of remand.

23. It is also to be seen that the Lower Appellate Court has not given any reason whatsoever as to why the remand has been necessiated except that the provisions of Sections 52 and 53 of the Transfer of Property Act and Sections 102 and 103 of the Indian Evidence Act have not been considered. If only the effect of the aforesaid legal provisions were to be seen, then the Lower Appellate Court being the final court of fact and law was legally empowered and obliged to have considered the effect of the aforesaid sections on its own, without remanding the matter.

24. It is also to be noticed that the power of remand is not to be exercised casually or it cannot be a ground to merely shirk from the responsibility of deciding the matter on merits since the powers of the Lower Appellate Court under Section 96 C.P.C. is wide and akin to that of the Trial Court and in any case being the Court of first appeal, it is legally obliged to consider points of fact and law afresh and under the aforesaid circumstances, there was no justification for the Lower Appellate Court to have remanded the matter.

25. In view of the aforesaid, this Court finds that there is no appropriate reason nor any justifiable cause mentioned in the impugned order which can support the order of remand, accordingly, the impugned judgment and decree orders dated 11.04.2023 passed in the two appeals are liable to be set aside.

26. In view of the aforesaid, the two appeals bearing F.A.F.O. No. 158 of 2023 and F.A.F.O. No. 162 of 2023 shall stand allowed. The judgment and decree passed by the Lower Appellate Court dated 11.04.2023 passed in First Appeal No. 10 of 2022 and 11 of 2022 is set aside. The appeals shall stand restored on the Board of the District Judge, Balrampur. The parties shall appear before the District Judge, Balrampur on 10.07.2023. The Lower Appellate Court shall after affording full opportunity of hearing to the parties, including permitting them to raise all their contentions, shall decide the appeals afresh on merits preferably within a period of three months from the date the parties appear before the Lower Appellate Court. In the facts and circumstances, there shall be no order as to costs.

XV R. 5 of CPC - no illegality & infirmity in the impugned order, found - accordingly, revision lacks merit and is dismissed.

Revision Dismissed. (E-11)

List of Cases cited:

1. Radhe Shyam Chaurasiya & anr. Vs Smt. Babita, 2022 ADJ 272,

2. Asha Rani Gupta Vs Sri Vineet Kumar, (2022)
0 Supreme (SC) 594

(Delivered by Hon'ble Neeraj Tiwari, J.)

1. Supplementary affidavit filed today is taken on record.

2. Heard learned counsel for the revisionist and Sri Ashish Kumar Singh, learned counsel for the opposite party.

3. Present Revision has been filed challenging the order dated 20.01.2023 as well as Decree dated 25.01.2023, passed by the Additional District & Session Judge, Ghaziabad in Suit No. 42 of 2016.

4. Learned counsel for the revisionist-defendant submitted that Suit No. 42 of 2016 was filed by the plaintiff-opposite party. He next submitted that plaintiff-opposite party has filed application dated 09.02.2022 under Order XV, Rule 5, C.P.C. to strike off the defence of the revisionist-defendant, which is dully replied by revisionist-defendant by reply dated 18.04.2022. He next submitted that, while passing the impugned order dated 20.01.2023 reply of revisionist-defendant has not been properly considered. In the reply dated 18.04.2022, revisionist-defendant has stated that filing of Suit No. 42 of 2016 was itself defective, as it has been filed before 30 days from the date of notice sent by the counsel for the plaintiff. He also submitted that as the rent agreement was extended for 11 months w.e.f. 01.02.2016 and he had paid the entire dues, therefore, nothing was due on the petitioner-defendant to pay, therefore, impugned order is bad and is liable to be set aside.

5. Learned counsel for the revisionist-defendant submitted that Order XV Rule 5 is having two parts, first part says that on or before the first hearing of suit, revisionist-defendant was required to deposit the entire admitted amount and, thereafter, rent on month to month basis. In the present case, the application dated 09.02.2022 has been allowed on the ground that revisionist-defendant has not paid a single penny on month to month basis as rent after first hearing of the suit initiated in 2016, which has also not been denied in the reply dated 18.04.2022 filed by revisionist-defendant, rather this has been accepted.

6. He next submitted that application of revisionist-defendant was allowed only on the ground that he has not deposited any rent after initiation of suit and after first date of hearing. In support of his contention, learned counsel for the plaintiff-opposite party has placed reliance on the judgment of this Court in the case of Radhe Shyam Chaurasiya and Another Vs. Smt. Babita: 2022 ADJ 272 and judgment of Apex Court Asha Rani Gupta Vs. Sri Vineet Kumar: (2022) 0 Supreme(SC) 594.

7. Being confronted by the court, even before Bar, Sri Pandey, learned counsel for the revisionist-defendant fairly accepted that no rent has been deposited and monthly rent has been deposited after initiation of suit proceeding and after first date of hearing of the case.

8. I have considered submissions made by learned counsel for the parties and perused the record as well as judgments so relied upon. The fact of the case, so far it relates to non deposit of monthly rent is undisputed.

9. From the perusal of Order XV Rule 5, it is apparently clear that revisionistdefendant had no option, but to deposit rent on month to month basis whether admitted or not admitted by him.

10. This issue was before this Court in the matter of Radhe Shyam Chaurasiya(Supra) and this Court after considering different judgments has held that it is mandatory to deposit rent on month to month basis before the court, where the suit has been instituted. Relevant paragraphs of the said judgment are quoted hereinbelow:

"5. Striking of defence for failure to deposit admitted rent, etc. In any suit by a lessor for the eviction of a lessee after the determination of his lease and for the recovery from him of rent or compensation for use and occupation, the defendant shall, at or before the first hearing of the suit, deposit the entire amount admitted by him to be due together with interest thereon at the rate of nine per centum per annum and whether or not he admits any amount to be due, he shall throughout the continuation of the suit regularly deposit the monthly amount due within a week from the date of its accrual, and in the event of any default in making the deposit of entire amount admitted by him to be due or the monthly amount due as aforesaid, the Court may, subject to the provisions of sub-rule (2), strike off his defence.

Explanation 1. The expression 'first hearing' means the date for filing written statement for hearing mentioned in the summons or where more than one of such dates are mentioned, the last of the dates mentioned.

Explanation 2. The expression 'entire amount admitted by him to be due' means the entire gross amount, whether as rent or compensation for use and occupation, calculated at the admitted rate of rent for the admitted period of arrears after making no other deduction except the taxes, if any, paid to a local authority in respect of the building on lessor's account and the amount, if any, paid to the lessor acknowledged by the lessor in writing signed by him and the amount, if any, deposited in any Court under Section 30 of the U.P. Urban Buildings (Regulation of Letting, Rent and Eviction) Act, 1972.

Explanation 3. (1) The expression 'monthly amount due' means the amount due every month, whether as rent or compensation for use and occupation at the admitted rate of rent, after making no other deduction except the taxes, if any, paid to a local authority, in respect of the building on lessor's account.

(2) Before making any order for striking off defence, the Court may consider any representation made by the defendant in that behalf provided such representation is made within 10 days, of the first hearing or, of the expiry of the week referred to in sub-section (1), as the case may be.

(3) The amount deposited under this Rule may at any time be withdrawn by the plaintiff:

Provided that such withdrawal shall not have the effect of prejudicing any claim by the plaintiff disputing the correctness of the amount deposited:

Provided further that if the amount deposited includes any sums claimed by the depositor to be deductible on any account, the Court may require the plaintiff to furnish the security for such sum before he is allowed to withdraw the same."

The first part deals with the deposit of the 'entire amount admitted by him to be due' together with interest at or before the first hearing of the suit. The second part deals with the deposit of 'monthly amount due' which has to be made throughout the continuation of the suit. So far as any amount deposited prior to institution of the suit, may be adjusted against the arrears, if any such application is filed. Whereas second part is concerned, it is mandatory requirement to deposit the rent before the Court concerned, where the suit is instituted. In the objection dated 2.2.2021 filed to the application under Order XV Rule 5 of C.P.C as well as affidavit filed before the Court, it is accepted by the revisionist no.2 that no rent has been paid by her before the Court concerned after first hearing of the suit.

This Court in the matter of Maya Devi (Supra) has taken specific view that in case of denial of tenancy, he may not be required to deposit the amount admitted to be due at or before the first hearing of the suit but he would still be required to deposit the monthly amount due within a week. Relevant paragraph of the said judgment is being quoted hereinbelow:-

"In the aforesaid case it was held that where the defendant denies the existence of landlord and tenant relationship, he may not be required to deposit the amount admitted to be due at or before the first hearing of the suit but he would still be required to deposit the monthly amount due within a week from the date of its accrual throughout the continuation of the suit because such deposit has to be made in spite of the fact he admits any amount to be due or not."

In the matter of Gaya Prasad (Supra), Court has taken the view that rent is required to be deposited in compliance of provisions of Order XV Rule 5 of C.P.C. Relevant paragraph of the said judgment is being quoted hereinbelow:-

"Default in payment of rent is admitted and stands proved on record inasmuch as according to own case of the defendant-petitioner he has not paid rent after 04.08.1999. It is also not disputed that the rent has not been deposited in compliance to the provisions of Order XV Rule 5 C.P.C. Consequently, his defense was also struck off. The order striking off the defense, therefore, also does not suffer from any manifest error of law."

In the matter of State Bank of India, City Branch Pandey Hata (Supra), Court has again taken the same view that rent is not deposited by the tenant, therefore, there is no illegality in striking off the defence. Relevant paragraph of the said judgment is being quoted hereinbelow:-

"Considering the admitted facts of the case that the defendants-petitioners have neither disputed the arrears of rent on the first date of hearing nor paid monthly rent and as such protection of order XV Rule 5 C.P.C. was not available to him. Consequently, the court below has not committed any error of law in allowing the application 37Ga and striking off the defence of the defendants-petitioners/tenants. So far as the rejection of application 50Ga is concerned, I find that as per statement made by learned counsel for the plaintiffs-respondents before this Court and not disputed by learned counsel for the defendants-petitioners, the date 8.2.2018 is fixed before the court below for arguments. Therefore, I find it appropriate to request the court below to decide the aforesaid SCC Suit No.05 of 2016 (Ram Niwas Verma and others Vs. State Bank of India and another) in accordance with law, expeditiously, preferably within eight weeks from the date of presentation of a certified copy of this order, without granting any unnecessary adjournment to either of the parties."

"11. From perusal of Order XV Rule 5 of C.P.C., it is apparently clear that any deposit made prior to first appearance in SCC suit may be adjusted for arrears of rent due upon filing an application, but after institution of suit, it is mandatory requirement to deposit rent before the Court, where the suit is instituted. Once it is not disputed that rent has not been deposited before the Court concerned, where the suit is instituted, there is no option before the Court to struck off the defence as provided under the provisions of Order XV Rule 5 of C.P.C.

12. So far as present case is concerned, there is admission on the part of revisionist no.2 that she has paid rent from time to time and she is tenant. She also admitted that she has never paid rent before the Court concerned after first hearing of the suit as required under Order 5 Rule 15 of C.P.C.

13. Therefore, in light of facts of the case as well as law laid down by this Court from time to time, there is no illegality or irregularity and Court has rightly struck off the defence of revisionists. Revision lacks merit and is, accordingly, dismissed. No order as to costs."

11. Again the Apex Court has considered the same issue in the matter of Asha Rani Gupta Vs. Sri Vineet Kumar: (2022) 0 Supreme(SC) 594 and has taken the very firm view that once the rent on month to month basis has not been deposited, Court has no power of discretion to exercise its power in favour of defendant-respondent. Relevant paragraphs of the said judgment are quoted hereinbelow:

"13. In a suit of the present nature, where the defendant otherwise has not denied his status as being the lessee, it was rather imperative for him to have scrupulously complied with the requirements of law and to have deposited the arrears of rent due together with interest on or before the first date of hearing and in any case, as per the second part of sub-rule(1) of Rule 5 of Order XV CPC, he was under the specific obligation to make regular deposit of the monthly amount due, whether he was admitting any such dues or not.

16. In the totality of facts and circumstances, we are clearly of the view that there was absolutely no reason for the High Court to have interfered in the present case, where the Trial Court had struck off the defence after finding that there was no evidence on record to show the payment or deposit of rent in favour of the plaintiff by the defendant-respondent. The Revisional Court had also approved the order of the Trial Court on relevant considerations. Even the High Court did not find the pleas taken by the defendant-respondent to be of bonafide character, particularly when survey number of the shop let out to him was clearly stated in the sale deed executed in favour of the plaintiff. We find it rather intriguing that, despite having not found any cogent reason for which discretion under Rule 5 of Order XV CPC could have been exercised in favour of the defendant-respondent, the High Court, in the last line of paragraph 45 of the order impugned, abruptly stated its conclusion that: 'yet the defendant/tenant deserves some indulgence'.

12. Undisputedly, so far as the present case is concerned, facts are again the same. There is no dispute on the point that after first hearing of the case, petitioner-defendant has not deposited any amount as rent, required to be paid on month to month basis. Once, it is undisputed that rent has not been deposited before the court concerned there is no provision in law to grant any relief, but the only option is to strike off the defence as provided in Order XV Rule 5 of CPC.

13. In view of facts and law laid down by the Court, I found no illegality & infirmity in the impugned orders dated 20.01.2023 & 25.01.2023. Accordingly, revision lacks merit and is dismissed.

14. No order as to costs.

A. Tax Law – Cancellation of license – Search and Seizure - U.P. Excise Act: Section 74 - Uttar Pradesh Excise Settlement of Licenses for Retail Sale of Foreign Liquor (Excluding Beer) (Seventeenth Amendment) Rules, 2019-Rule 18(1); The Uttar Pradesh Excise (Settlement of Licenses for Retail Sale of Beer) Rules, 2001 - It is well settled that the show-cause notice is issued to put the assessee/licensee on guard and to enable him to file a reply to the allegations contained in the show-cause notice and infractions, which are alleged against the licensee in the said show-cause notice. (Para 28)

A show-cause notice invoking a particular provision must specifically allege in the show-cause notice and in the absence of such averments, the said show-cause notice is not sustainable. (Para 31)

The show cause notice must put the assessee to notice which of the various omissions or commissions stated in the proviso is committed to extend the period from six months to five years. That unless the assessee is put to notice the assessee would have no opportunity to meet the case of the Department. (Para 32)

The show-cause notice served upon the petitioner, refers to the search carried out at the licensed premises and the recovery of the liquor from the said premises, and after recording the summary of the search carried out at the premises proceeds to allege against the petitioner that the said averments were in violation of Condition Nos. 5, 6 & 7 and has caused a loss of special fees of excise duty; the said grounds were alleged for proposing the cancellation of the license and for confiscation of the license fees. (Para 27)

The petitioner in the show-cause notice in question, alleges infraction of Condition Nos. 5, 6 & 7. In the cancellation order, the appellate order and the revisional order, there is no finding to the effect that there was any violation of Condition Nos. 5 & 6, the only finding is in respect of Condition No. 7, thus, it could not be presumed that while giving a reply to the show-cause notice, the petitioner had to presume that any infraction as contained in Rule 18(1)(a) to (i) were also alleged against the petitioner. In the event, respondents were of the view that the action is proposed to be taken for violation of conditions specified in Rule 18(1)(a) to (i), it ought to have been specifically stated. (Para 34)

B. If the intent of the legislature while framing the rules was to compound the offences referred to in Rule 18(1)(a) to (g), the same ought to have been mentioned in the list as has been done in respect of the infractions mentioned in the table attached to Rule 18(5). Clearly the infractions referred to in Rule 18(1)(a) to (i) are not mentioned in the infractions which are said to be specified in the table annexed to Rule 18(5) and the same are different. The argument of petitioner in respect of infractions referred to at Serial No. 15 in the list attached to Rule 18(5) cannot be accepted as the infractions mentioned in Rule 18(1)(a) to (i) are in substance different and appear to be more rigorous infractions compared to infractions referred to in the table in Rule 18(5). Therefore, the infractions referred to in Rule 18(1)(a) to (i) are not compoundable. (Para 36)

C. Allegations were levelled against the petitioner w.r.t. opening of the shop on the days which were prohibited and as contained in Condition No. 7 to the license. Although, in the seizure memo, there is no averment that the liquor was being sold on the day of prohibition, however, while passing the cancellation order and in the show-cause notice, it was alleged and found that the petitioner was selling liquor on the day of prohibition, however, the said infraction clearly finds mentioned at Serial No. 10 in the list attached to Rule 18(5) and thus, in terms of Rule 18(5), the said infraction falls within the compoundable offence and thus, it was incumbent upon the authorities to have passed an order in respect of compounding of the said offence as prayed by the petitioner, which has not been done in the present case. (Para 37)

D. It is essential to notice that the special fees is chargeable for sale of liquor and beer at the restaurants, however, the said special fees or its loss can be caused only if the sale is effected. Merely by recovery of the liquor allegedly belonging to another shop and there being no finding in respect of the sale of such liquor, there is no basis whatsoever to record that loss of special fees was being caused and thus, to that extent, the finding recorded is wholly perverse. (Para 39)

This Court finds that the infractions in respect of Condition Nos. 5 & 6 of the license which were alleged in the show-cause notice are not established and proved against the petitioner. The infractions specified in Rule 18(1)(a) to (i) were not alleged in the show-cause notice, as such, the same are not established against the petitioner. The infractions w.r.t. violation of Condition No. 7 of the license stands partially justified, however, the same is compoundable at the rate of Rs. 30,000/-in terms of the table u/Rule 18(5). (Para 40, 41)

It is directed that the respondents authorities shall pass a fresh order for compounding of the offence in respect of the infractions of Condition No. 7 of the license at the rates specified in the table to Rule 18(5) (Serial No. 10 of the list) by passing a fresh order within a period of one month from today. (Para 44)

Writ petition partly allowed. (E-4)

Kuldeep Agarwal Vs State of U.P. and Ors. (04.04.2023 - ALLHC) : MANU/ UP/ 1317/ 2023

(Delivered by Hon'ble Pankaj Bhatia, J.)

1. Heard Shri Neeraj Sharma, learned counsel for the petitioner and Sri A.C. Tripathi, counsel for the respondents.

2. Present petition has been filed challenging the order dated 06.10.2021, 03.01.2020 and 27.10.2019 passed by the respondent no.1, 2 and 3.

3. Facts, in brief, are that the petitioner was granted a bar license of Hotel Ganesh Garden & Restaurant at Khaier, District Aligarh in the year 2012 under Rule 8(ii) of the Rules relating for vending foreign liquor read with Notification No.25535 and Notification No.10759; license fees is said to have been paid up to the year 2019 - 20.

4. It is alleged against the petitioner that an inspection was carried out at the bar of the petitioner on 02.10.2019 and in the said inspection, certain irregularities were found. From the inspection report it transpires that certain bottles of liquor which were of different shops were found in the bar of the petitioner for which the license was granted. It was also found that the bar was running on the date of prohibition through salesman. In terms of the search and seizure carried out, spot memo was prepared and an FIR was lodged on 03.10.2019 against the licensee and the salesman on the same allegations as recorded in the search and seizure memo.

5. In terms of the said inspection, several irregularities were found in the licensed premises; the petitioner was served with a show cause notice on 03.10.2019 (Annexure - 2). The infractions recorded in the search and seizure memo were stated in the show cause notice and it was stated that on the basis of the infractions, it transpires that the petitioner had violated Condition No.5, 6 and 7 of the license and further loss of revenue was caused as there was a provision for charging a special fees for serving liquor at the bar.

6. In the light of the infractions and on the allegations that prima-facie, the licensee was breaching Condition Nos.5, 6 & 7 of the license and was evading the payment of special fees, the petitioner was called upon to show-cause as to why the steps may not be taken for cancellation of the license. The petitioner was required to submit a reply within a period of seven days. Simultaneously, alongwith the said show-cause notice, a suspension order was also passed against the petitioner.

7. The petitioner submitted a reply to the said show-cause notice on 12.10.2019 before Respondent No.3 (Annexure - 3) denying the allegations as levelled in the show-cause notice on all grounds and in addition to the said denial, made a request that the case of the petitioner be considered for compounding in terms of the mandate of Section 74 of the U.P. Excise Act (hereinafter referred to as 'the Act').

8. After considering the reply filed by the petitioner, an order came to be passed on 27.10.2019 (Annexure - 4) whereby in exercise of powers conferred by virtue of Rule 18(1) of The Uttar Pradesh Excise Settlement of Licenses for Retail Sale of Foreign Liquor (Excluding Beer) (Seventeenth Amendment) Rules, 2019 and The Uttar Pradesh Excise (Settlement of Licences for Retail Sale of Beer) Rules, 2001 as amended in the year 2019 (hereinafter referred to as "the Rules, 2019"), license of the petitioner was cancelled.

9. The petitioner approached this Court by filing a writ petition challenging the order of cancellation dated 27.10.2019. The said petition was dismissed on the ground of availability of alternative remedy of appeal under Section 11(1) of the Act. The petitioner preferred an appeal under Section 11(1) of the Act, which too was dismissed vide order dated 03.01.2020. The petitioner once again filed a writ petition challenging the appellate order. The said writ petition was dismissed on the ground of availability of remedy of revision before the State Government. The petitioner preferred a revision under Section 11(2) of the Act before the State Government. The revision also came to be dismissed on 06.10.2021. All the said three orders are under challenge in the present writ petition.

10. Shri Neeraj Sharma, learned counsel for the petitioner argues that the grant of license is governed by the U.P. Excise Act and the Rules framed thereunder. He draws my attention to the specific Rules of 2019 framed with regard to sale of beer as well as the sale of wine and liquor other than beer.

11. He argues that in terms of the said Rules, a specific power with regard to cancellation of license is prescribed under Rule 18. He argues that power to cancel license under Rule 18 can be invoked by the licensing authority in the event of any of the conditions specified in Clause (a) to (i) of Rule 18(1). He argues that Rule 18(5) prescribes for compounding breaches pertaining to the retail licenses on terms indicated in the table as contained in Rule 18(5). He further argues that in any event, the power to compound the infractions is contained in Section 74 of the Act, which power has not been exercised by the authorities despite there being a request in the objections filed in the show-cause notice.

12. He further argues that the show-cause notice had alleged infractions/violation of Condition Nos.5, 6 & 7 of the license granted to the petitioner as well as the allegation that there was an evasion of special fees by the petitioner, thus, the petitioner could have been expected to give reply only to the allegations levelled against him. He argues that there was no averment in the show-cause notice with regard to any breach/conditions prescribed under Rule 18(1)(a) to (i) of the 2019 Rules and in that regard, he submits that the authorities have exceeded in passing the order in excess of the allegations levelled in the show-cause notice.

13. He further argues that the allegations as levelled in the search and seizure memo are that the liquor was meant for the shop situate at Lodha and foreign liquor shop Khaier Aada (of which the petitioner and his wife are licensees) and subsequently, in respect of the shop at Lodha, the respondents have themselves proceeded to compound the offences and have regularized the license and, it was incumbent upon the respondents to have compounded the infractions.

14. In respect of the allegations levelled against the petitioner in the show-cause notice, he draws my attention to the specific allegation that the bar was found open on the date the sale is prohibited i.e. 2nd October and with regard to the said allegation, he argues that Rule 18(5) and the table annexed thereto specifically provides for compounding of the said infraction on payment of fees as prescribed. He argues that in terms of the power conferred under Section 34 of the Act and the Rule, the word used is "may" and not "shall", and thus, a wide discretion vests in the licensing authority to cancel or not to cancel the license, however, the said discretion should be exercised in terms of the mandate of the Rules and not in an arbitrary manner. He, thus, argues that the orders impugned passed against the petitioner are liable to be quashed as being arbitrary and in violation of the spirit of the Act and the Rules framed thereunder.

15. Shri A.C. Tripathi, learned counsel appearing for the respondents vehemently opposed the writ petition and argues that the infractions alleged in the show-cause notice and found during the search and seizure operation were serious in nature and no error has been done in cancelling the license through impugned order.

16. Controverting the argument of learned counsel for the petitioner, Shri A.C. Tripathi argues that Rule 18 has been framed in terms of the power conferred by Section 41 of the Act. On a plain reading of provisions of Rule 18(1), infractions contained in Clause (a) to (i) provide for grounds for suspension or cancellation. He argues that argument of Shri Neeraj Sharma that all the offenses are compoundable as provided under Rule 18(5) is incorrect for the simple reason that the infractions contained in Rule 18(1) are not mentioned in the table specified in Rule 18(5) and thus, both the two Rules being Rule 18(1) and Rule 18(5) operate in different spheres and on that count, argument of counsel for the petitioner is liable to be rejected.

17. He further argues that another argument of counsel for the petitioner with regard to Section 74 of the Act is also liable to be rejected as Section 74 is itself divided into two parts; one pertaining to the infractions and the power flowing from Section 34, and the other in respect of offences which are punishable under Section 64 and Section 68. He argues that both can be compounded separately in terms of the powers conferred, however, in the present case, the cancellation proceedings have not emanated from Section 34 and in fact, have emanated from Rule 18(1) and thus, the powers of compounding provided for under Section 74 cannot be availed of.

18. He, thus, argues that once that power was not available, the licensing authority has not made any error in not considering the request for compounding as prayed in the reply to the show-cause notice.

19. He further argues that although in the show-cause notice, there is a reference to violation of Condition Nos.5, 6 & 7 of the license, however, on the composite reading of the show-cause notice, various allegations which are traceable to infractions contained in Rule 18(1)(a) to (i) can be traced and thus, the submission of counsel for the petitioner on that count that the show-cause notice was vague is liable to the rejected.

20. In the light of the submissions made by the parties, following questions emerge for determination:

i. Whether the show-cause notice, which alleges violation of Condition Nos.5, 6 & 7 of the license is enough to take action for cancellation by taking recourse to Rule 18(1)(a) to (i) of the Rules, 2019 ?

ii. Whether the offences under Rule 18(1)(a) to (i) of the Rules, 2019 are compoundable under Rule 18(5) ?

iii. Whether the allegation of opening of the shop/restaurant on the day of prohibition is a compoundable offence in terms of the mandate of Rule 18(5) ?

21. To decide the said issues as framed above, it is essential to see the scheme of the Act and the Rules framed therein.

22. It is well settled that there is no right of license and it is only a privilege granted by the State Government as held by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Nashirwar & Ors. v. State of Madhya Pradesh & Ors.; (1975) 1 SCC 29.

23. The U.P. Excise Act makes a special provision empowering the State Government to grant license for the sale of liquor and the other intoxicant and for charging excise duty on the same. The said Act also empowers the licensing authority to take action for cancellation or suspension of the license so granted in terms of the powers under Section 34 of the Act. Section 34 reads as under:

"34. Power to cancel or suspend licenses, etc.- (1) Subject to such restrictions as the State Government may prescribe, the authority granting any license, permit or pass under this Act may cancel or suspend it --

(a) if any duty or fee payable by the holder thereof be not duly paid; or

(b) in the event of any breach by the holder of such license, permit or pass or by his servants, or by any one acting on his behalf with his express or implied permission of any of the terms or conditions of such license, permit or pass; or

(c) if the holder thereof is convicted of any offence punishable under this Act or any other law for the time being in force relating to revenue, or of any cognizable and non-bailable offence, or of any offence punishable under the Dangerous Drugs Act, 1930, or under the Merchandise Marks Act, 1889, or of any offence punishable under sections 482 to 489 (both inclusive) of the Indian Penal Code; or

(d) where a license, permit or pass has been granted on the application of the grantee of an exclusive privilege under this Act, on the requisition in writing of such grantee; or

(e) if the conditions of the license or permit provide for such cancellations or suspension at will.

(2) When a license, permit or pass held by any person is cancelled under clause (a), (b) or (c) of sub-section (1), the authority aforesaid may cancel any other license, permit or pass granted to such person by, or by the authority of the State Government under this Act or under any other law for the time being in force relating to excise revenue or under the Opium Act, 1878.

(3) No Compensation or refund claimable for cancellation or suspension of license, etc. under this section.- The holder shall not be entitled to any compensation for the cancellation or suspension of his license, permit or pass under this section nor to refund of any fee paid or deposit made in respect thereof."

24. In addition to the powers conferred under Section 34 of the Act, further powers have been conferred under Section 35 of the Act.

25. It is interesting that Section 40 and Section 41 of the Act empowers the State Government and Excise Commissioner to make rules for enforcing and regulating the provisions of the Act. Section 40 and Section 41 are quoted herein below:

"40. Power of State government to make Rules.- (1) The State Government may make rules for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of this Act or other law for the time being in force relating to excise revenue:

26. In terms of the rule making power conferred under Section 41 of the Act, the State Government has made Rules known as "Uttar Pradesh Excise Settlement of Licenses for Retail Sale of Foreign Liquor (Excluding Beer) (Seventeenth Amendment) Rules, 2019. Rule 18(1) to (5) thereof provide for suspension/cancellation and compounding of the license and penalties, which are quoted herein below:

27. To decide the first issue as recorded above, the show-cause notice served upon the petitioner and as contained in Annexure - 2, refers to the search carried out at the licensed premises and the recovery of the liquor from the said premises, and after recording the summary of the search carried out at the premises proceeds to allege against the petitioner that the said averments were in violation of Condition Nos.5, 6 & 7 and has caused a loss of special fees of excise duty; the said grounds were alleged for proposing the cancellation of the license and for confiscation of the license fees. Condition Nos.5, 6 & 7 of the license granted to the petitioner are as under:

"5- शराब केवल पैगों, पैग बराबर 50 मि०ली० में) बेचा जायेगा। कोई बिकी मुहर बन्द बोतलों में नहीं की जायेगी।

6- लाइसेंस धारी एल०एल० - 2 से केवल 750 मि०ली० क्वार्टर्स में सम्भारण प्राप्त करने के हकदार होंगे। उन्हें अपने स्टॉक में निपस और पिन्ट्स रखने की अनुज्ञा नहीं होगी।

7- बार का 14 अप्रैल (अम्बेडकर जयन्ती), 15 अगस्त (स्वतन्त्रता दिवस), 02 अक्टूबर (गाँधी जयन्ती), 26 जनवरी (गणतन्त्र दिवस) को अवकाश रहेगा। "

28. It is well settled that the show-cause notice is issued to put the assessee/licensee on guard and to enable him to file a reply to the allegations contained in the show-cause notice and infractions, which are alleged against the licensee in the said show-cause notice.

29. It is gainful to note the judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Kaur & Singh v. Collector of Central Excise, New Delhi; 1997 (94) E.L.T. 289 wherein the Supreme Court following the earlier two judgments in the case of Collector v. H.M.M. Ltd.; 1995 (76) E.L.T. 497 and Raj Bahadur Narayan Singh Sugar Mills Ltd. v. U.O.I.; 1996 (88) E.L.T. 24 recorded in Para - 3 as under:

"3. This Court has held that the party to whom a show cause notice of this kind is issued must be made aware of the allegation against it. This is a requirement of natural justice. Unless the assessee is put to such notice, he has no opportunity to meet the case against him. This is all the more so when a larger period of limitation can be invoked on a variety of grounds. Which ground is alleged against the assessee must be made known to him, and there is no scope for assuming that the ground is implicit in the issuance of the show cause notice. [See Collector of Central Excise v. H.M.M. Limited, 1995 (76) E.L.T. 497 and Raj Bahadur Narayan Singh Sugar Mills Limited v. Union of India, 1996 (88) E.L.T. 24]."

30. The Hon'ble Supreme Court further had the occasion to consider the need for issuance of a show-cause notice and the requirements in the show-cause notice to satisfy the test of fairness in the case of Oryx Fisheries Private Limited v. Union of India; 2011 (266) E.L.T. 422 wherein the Supreme Court recorded as under:

"24. It is well settled that a quasi-judicial authority, while acting in exercise of its statutory power must act fairly and must act with an open mind while initiating a show cause proceeding. A show cause proceeding is meant to give the person proceeded against a reasonable opportunity of making his objection against the proposed charges indicated in the notice.

25. Expressions like "a reasonable opportunity of making objection" or "a reasonable opportunity of defence" have come up for consideration before this Court in the context of several statutes.

26. A Constitution Bench of this Court in Khem Chand v. Union of India and Others, reported in AIR 1958 SC 300, of course in the context of service jurisprudence, reiterated certain principles which are applicable in the present case also.

27. Chief Justice S.R. Das speaking for the unanimous Constitution Bench in Khem Chand (supra) held that the concept of "reasonable opportunity" includes various safeguards and one of them, in the words of the learned Chief Justice, is:

"(a) An opportunity to deny his guilt and establish his innocence, which he can only do if he is told what the charges leveled against him are and the allegations on which such charges are based,"

28. It is no doubt true that at the stage of show cause, the person proceeded against must be told the charges against him so that he can take his defence and prove his innocence. It is obvious that at that stage the authority issuing the charge-sheet, cannot, instead of telling him the charges, confront him with definite conclusions of his alleged guilt. If that is done, as has been done in this instant case, the entire proceeding initiated by the show cause notice gets vitiated by unfairness and bias and the subsequent proceeding become an idle ceremony."

31. The Hon'ble Supreme Court further had the occasion to consider the scope of a show-cause notice and its intent in the case of Collector of Central Excise v. H.M.M. Limited; 1995 (76) E.L.T. 497 and held that a show-cause notice invoking a particular provision must specifically allege in the show-cause notice and in the absence of such averments, the said show-cause notice is not sustainable.

32. The Hon'ble Supreme Court once again had the occasion to consider the scope of show-cause notice issued under the Customs Act in the case of Aban Loyd Chiles Offshore Ltd. v. Commr. Of Cus., Maharashtra; 2006 (200) E.L.t. 370, wherein the Supreme Court recorded as under:

"20. The proviso to Section 28 can be invoked where the payment of duty has escaped by reason of collusion or any willful misstatement or suppression of facts. So far as 'misstatement or suppression of facts' are concerned, they are qualified by the word "willful". The word "willful" preceding the words "misstatement or suppression of facts" clearly spells out that there has to be an intention on the part of the assessee to evade the duty.

21. This Court while interpreting Section 11A of the Customs Act in Collector of Central Excise v. H.M.M. Ltd. (supra) has observed that in order to attract the proviso to Section 11A(1) it must be shown that the excise duty escaped by reason of fraud, collusion or willful mis-statement of suppression of fact with intent to evade the payment of duty. It has been observed:

"... Therefore, in order to attract the proviso to Section 11A(1) it must be alleged in the show-cause notice that the duty of excise had not been levied or paid by reason of fraud, collusion or willful mis-statement or suppression of fact on the part of the assessee or by reason of contravention of any of the provisions of the Act or of the Rules made thereunder with intent to evade payment of duties by such person or his agent. There is no such averment to be found in the show cause notice. There is no averment that the duty of excise had been intentionally evaded or that fraud or collusion had been practiced or that the assessee was guilty of willful misstatement or suppression of fact. In the absence of any such averments in the show-cause notice it is difficult to understand how the Revenue could sustain the notice under the proviso to Section 11-A(1) of the Act."

22. It was held that the show cause notice must put the assessee to notice which of the various omissions or commissions stated in the proviso is committed to extend the period from six months to five years. That unless the assessee is put to notice the assessee would have no opportunity to meet the case of the Department. It was held:

"...There is considerable force in this contention. If the department proposes to invoke the proviso to Section 11A(1), the show-cause notice must put the assessee to notice which of the various commissions or omissions stated in the proviso is committed to extend the period from six months to 5 years. Unless the assessee is put to notice, the assessee would have no opportunity to meet the case of the department. The defaults enumerated in the proviso to the said sub-section are more than one and if the Excise Department places reliance on the proviso it must be specifically stated in the show-cause notice which is the allegation against the assessee falling within the four corners of the said proviso...."

23. In the present case we find that in the show cause notice it is not alleged that duty of custom could not been levied or paid by reason of collusion or willful misstatement or willful suppression of facts. The appellants were not put to notice which of the various omissions or commissions stated in the proviso were committed by them to extend the period of limitation from six months to five years. The appellants having not been put to notice did not have the opportunity to meet the case of the Department."

33. The Supreme Court also had the occasion to consider the scope of a show-cause notice in the case of Collector of Central Excise, Bangalore v. Gammon Far Chems Ltd.; (2003) 11 SCC 693 wherein the Supreme Court held as under:

"5. This para precludes a person from availing the benefit of exemption under the notification if clause (a) or clause (b) applies. Had the Revenue proceeded on the basis of facts which make out a case under para 2 of the notification, extracted above, it would have been valid for the Tribunal (sic Collector) to have recorded the finding which it did. The show-cause notice, as noted above, did not proceed on the footing that the assessee did not disclose the fact of production of goods in two factories by the same manufacturer or in a factory by more manufacturers than one. The simple case of the Revenue was that by not disclosing the fact that M/s Freyssinet Prestressed Concrete Co. Ltd. is a subsidiary of M/s Gammon India Ltd. of which the assessee is a division, there has been a suppression of fact which entitled the Collector to invoke the proviso to Section 11-A of the Central Excise Act. On this aspect, the finding recorded by the Tribunal (sic a Collector) is not in accord with the case of the Revenue. We are, therefore, of the view that it is not open to the Revenue to make out a new case for invoking the proviso to Section 11-A of the Central Excise Act."

34. The petitioner in the show-cause notice in question, alleges infraction of Condition Nos. 5, 6 & 7 referred to above. In the cancellation order, the appellate order and the revisional order, there is no finding to the effect that there was any violation of Condition Nos. 5 & 6, the only finding is in respect of Condition No.7, thus, it could not be presumed that while giving a reply to the show-cause notice, the petitioner had to presume that any infraction as contained in Rule 18(1)(a) to (i) were also alleged against the petitioner. In the event, respondents were of the view that the action is proposed to be taken for violation of conditions specified in Rule 18(1)(a) to (i), it ought to have been specifically stated.

35. To that extent, the submission of Shri A.C. Tripathi that the violations referred to in Rule 18(1)(a) to (i) were implicit in the show-cause notice, deserves to be rejected.

36. Coming to the second point of determination as to whether the infractions referred to in Rule 18(1)(a) to (i) are compoundable? Clearly the infractions referred to in Rule 18(1)(a) to (i) are not mentioned in the infractions which are said to be specified in the table annexed to Rule

18(5) and the same are different and thus, to that extent, the submission of Shri A.C. Tripathi deserves to be accepted and the arguments of Shri Neeraj Sharma are liable to be rejected on that count. If the intent of the legislature while framing the rules was to compound the offences referred to in Rule 18(1)(a) to (g), the same ought to have been mentioned in the list as has been done in respect of the infractions mentioned in the table attached to Rule 18(5). The argument of Shri Neeraj Sharma in respect of infractions referred to at Serial No.15 in the list attached to Rule 18(5) cannot be accepted as the infractions mentioned in Rule 18(1)(a) to (i) are in substance different and appear to be more rigorous infractions compared to infractions referred to in the table in Rule 18(5).

37. Coming to the third point of determination in respect of allegations levelled against the petitioner with regard to opening of the shop on the days which were prohibited and as contained in Condition No.7 to the license. Although, in the seizure memo, there is no averment that the liquor was being sold on the day of prohibition, however, while passing the cancellation order and in the show-cause notice, it was alleged and found that the petitioner was selling liquor on the day of prohibition, however, the said infraction clearly finds mentioned at Serial No.10 in the list attached to Rule 18(5) and thus, in terms of Rule 18(5), the said infraction falls within the compoundable offence and thus, it was incumbent upon the authorities to have passed an order in respect of compounding of the said offence as prayed by the petitioner, which has not been done in the present case.

38. Coming to the allegation levelled against the petitioner in respect of loss of special fees in the form of revenue on account of sale, the order passed by the Licensing Authority in its finding, after referring to the submissions, records the reason that on the basis of the above referred submissions, in the licensed premises on the date of prohibition (Gandhi Jayanti), foreign liquor of a different shop and beer of a different shop were recovered for which an FIR was lodged; on the basis of the said finding, the authority proceeded to record that on the basis of the illegal keeping of foreign liquor and beer, there was a loss of special fees to the State.

39. It is essential to notice that the special fees is chargeable for sale of liquor and beer at the restaurants, however, the said special fees or its loss can be caused only if the sale is effected. Merely by recovery of the liquor allegedly belonging to another shop and there being no finding in respect of the sale of such liquor, there is no basis whatsoever to record that loss of special fees was being caused and thus, to that extent, the finding recorded is wholly perverse.

40. On the basis of the findings as recorded above, this Court finds that the infractions in respect of Condition Nos.5 & 6 of the license which were alleged in the show-cause notice are not established and proved against the petitioner. The infractions specified in Rule 18(1)(a) to (i) were not alleged in the show-cause notice, as such, the same are not established against the petitioner.

41. The infractions with regard to violation of Condition No.7 of the license stands partially justified, however, the same is compoundable at the rate of Rs.30,000/- in terms of the table under Rule 18(5).

42. The allegation with regard to loss of special fees is not sustainable.

43. The writ petition stands partly allowed.

44. It is directed that the respondents authorities shall pass a fresh order for compounding of the offence in respect of the infractions of Condition No.7 of the license at the rates specified in the table to Rule 18(5) (Serial No.10 of the list) by passing a fresh order within a period of one month from today.

45. The orders impugned in the present writ petition except to the extent as indicated above, are quashed.

46. Necessary consequences to follow.

Special Appeal No. 215 of 2023

Urmila Devi Pal ...Appellant
Versus
State of U.P. & Ors. ...Respondents

Counsel for the Appellant:
Om Prakash Mani Tripathi

Counsel for the Respondents:
C.S.C.

A. Service Law – Salary - Normally, a belated service related claim will be rejected on the ground of delay and laches (where remedy is sought by filing a writ petition). One of the exceptions to the said rule is cases relating to a continuing wrong, with reference to the date on which the continuing wrong commenced, if such continuing wrong creates a continuing source of injury. But there is an exception to the exception. If the grievance is in respect of any order or administrative decision which related to or affected several others also, and if the reopening of the issue would affect the settled rights of third parties, then the claim will not be entertained. (Para 21)

The Writ Petition was filed claiming certain arrears of salary, which was not paid on the ground of the petitioner's unauthorised absence and it is not a continuing cause of action. (Para 22)

B. It is settled law that although there is no limitation prescribed for filing a writ petition, the same should necessarily be filed with reasonable promptitude and merely by making repetitive representations, the conduct of the appellant in not approaching the Court for redressal of her grievance for a very long period, which in the present case is more than two decades, cannot be justified and making repetitive representations would not dilute the effect of undue delay in filing the writ petition and will not create any fresh cause of action. (Para 24)

The appellant had approached this court on two occasions earlier by filing two writ petitions i.e. WP No. 4664 (S/S) of 2005 and WP No. 4848 (S/S) of 2014 but she chose not to raise her grievances of non-payment of salary for some period between the years 1998 to 2001, which was raised by her in Writ A No. 6123 of 2022, although cause of action for the same had already accrued to her. The writ petition filed for the reliefs which could have been claimed by the appellant while filing the earlier writ petitions and which were not claimed by her, would be clearly hit by the principles contained in Order II Rule 2 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908. (Para 27)

C. It is clear as crystal that even if the court or tribunal directs for consideration of representations relating to a stale claim or dead grievance it does not give rise to a fresh cause of action. The dead cause of action cannot rise like a phoenix. Similarly, a mere submission of representation to the competent authority does not arrest time. (Para 25)

Even at the time of hearing of the aforesaid writ petition, the learned counsel for the appellant chose not to press for the reliefs claimed in the writ petition and he confined his prayer for a direction for decision of the appellant's representation. The representation has accordingly been decided by a reasoned and speaking order. This court would not substitute the reasoning given by the Director in the impugned order. (Para 28)

Special appeal dismissed. (E-4)

Present appeal challenges judgment and order dated 19.04.2023, passed by an Hon'ble Single Judge dismissing the writ petition, which was filed by the appellant-petitioner for quashing of the order dated 13.01.2023 passed by Director, Bal Vikas Seva Evam Pushtahar, rejecting her representation dated 29.09.2022.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Subhash Vidyarthi, J.)

1. Heard Sri Om Prakash Mani Tripathi Advocate, the learned counsel for the appellant and Sri V. P. Nag, the learned Standing Counsel appearing on behalf of the State.

2. By instituting the instant Special Appeal filed under Chapter VIII, Rule 5 of the Allahabad High Court Rules, 1952, the appellant -petitioner has challenged the judgment and order dated 19.04.2023, passed by an Hon'ble Single Judge dismissing the Writ-A No. 2924 of 2023, which was filed by the appellant-petitioner for quashing of the order dated 13.01.2023 passed by Director, Bal Vikas Seva Evam Pushtahar, rejecting her representation dated 29.09.2022.

3. Briefly stated, facts of the case, as pleaded in the writ petition, are that the petitioner was appointed on the post of Mukhya Sevika on 31.05.1995 and she joined her duties on 25.04.1996.

4. On 15.06.2005, the petitioner was transferred to Sultanpur. The petitioner challenged this transfer order by filing Writ Petition No. 4664 (S/S) of 2005 and on 25.07.2005 an interim order was passed in the aforesaid writ petition that the petitioner shall not be relieved in pursuance of the transfer order. The writ petition was finally disposed of by means of a judgment and order dated 30.09.2005, directing that if the petitioner makes any representation within a period of ten days for change of the place of posting in accordance with the Government Order dated 13.07.2000, she will be accommodated in any of the blocks in District Lucknow, except the home block, or in any block in any adjoining district and till then no coercive measure shall be taken against her. In furtherance of the aforesaid judgment and order dated 30.09.2005, the petitioner was given posting in District Lucknow.

5. The petitioner filed another writ petition, bearing Writ Petition No. 4848 (S/S) of 2014, raising her grievance of non-payment of some dues of salary, medical leave and benefit of 6th Pay Commission recommendations, which was disposed off by means of a judgment and order dated 04.09.2014 directing that the Director, Child Development and Nutrition, Lucknow should take a decision on the petitioner's representation.

6. On 27.3.2015, the Director passed an order in compliance of the aforesaid order dated 04.09.2014, passed by this Court in Writ Petition No.4849 (S/S) of 2014, stating that as per the report submitted by the District Program Officer, Lucknow, medical leave for the period 03.08.2007 to 20.08.2007 (18 days), 03.07.2008 to 17.07.2008 (15 days), 04.06.2009 and 26.06.2009 to 27.06.2009 (3 days), 01.02.2011 to 28.02.2011 (28 days) and 01.07.2013 to 31.08.2013 had already been sanctioned and no leave application was available for two days' absence in September, 2012 and three days' absence in May, 2013. It was further stated in the order that the benefit of the 6th Pay Commission's recommendations had already been given to the petitioner.

7. The petitioner thereafter filed Writ-A No.6123 of 2022 claiming salary for the period 02.03.2001 to 31.10.2001, salary and other allowances for the period 16.05.1998 to 01.03.2001, assured carrier progression for the year 2003 and some other dues. However, after advancing submissions at some length in support of the writ petition, the learned counsel for the petitioner confined his prayer for issuance of a direction to the Director, Bal Vikas Seva Evam Pushtahar to consider and decide the petitioner's representation dated 10.08.2022. The Hon'ble Single Judge disposed off the writ petition without entering into the merits of the case by directing the Director, Bal Vikas Seva Evam Pushtahar to consider and decide the petitioner's representation dated 10.08.2022 with a reasoned and speaking order, in accordance with law.

8. In compliance of the aforesaid order, the Director, Bal Vikas Seva Evam Pushtahar decided the petitioner's representation by a detailed and reasoned order dated 13.01.2023.

9. Regarding the petitioner's claim for payment of salary for the period 20.06.2005 to 26.10.2006, it has been stated that by means of a letter dated 24.04.2007 sent by the Directorate, the petitioner had been informed that in case she submits a leave application for the period of her absence, the same will be considered in accordance with the rules but the petitioner did not submit any leave application and, therefore, she was not entitled to receive salary of the period of her absence without leave.

10. Regarding petitioner's claim for payment of salary for the period 02.03.2001 to 31.10.2001, it has been stated that Rs.17,120/- had been paid to the petitioner for the dates on which she had attended her duties during the period between March, 2001 to August, 2001, as against her claim for payment of salary for 8 days in March, 2001, 7 days in April, 2001, 29 days in March, 2001, 2 days in June, 2001, 9 days in July, 2001 and 26 days in August, 2001 and for the rest of the days, when she was unauthorizedly absent without any prior information / leave application, she was not entitled to receive payment of salary.

11. Regarding the petitioner's claim for payment of salary for the period of her suspension, the Director has stated that as per a letter dated 04.01.2023 sent by the District Program Officer, Barabanki, the arrears of salary for the period of suspension (16.05.1998 to 09.02.2001) has been paid to the petitioner by Child Development Project, Pure Dalai, Barabanki.

12. In respect of the petitioner's claim for payment of salary of two days in September, 2012 and three days in May, 2013 it has been stated that the petitioner was absent without any information on the aforesaid days and therefore her claim for payment of salary was not found to be proper.

13. Regarding the petitioner's claim for payment of arrears of increment in salary it was stated in the order that Rs.6,39,057/- only has been paid to her through Token No.464142024 dated 10.01.2023 and the salary for the days on which the petitioner remained absent without leave, was not paid to her.

14. After the aforesaid detailed discussion, the order states that the petitioner remained unauthorizedly absent for 23 days between 01.03.2001 to 23.03.2001, for 61 days in the year 2001-02, for 276 days in the year 2005-06, for 209 days in the financial year 2006-07, for two days in the financial year 2012-13 and for 30 days in financial year 2013-14. Thus, the petitioner remained unauthorizedly absent from her duties for a total of 665 days in her service tenure, without obtaining any kind of leave and, therefore, her service was not continuous and she is not entitled to claim the Assured Carrier Progression (ACP) benefit.

15. The aforesaid order dated 13.01.2023 was challenged by the petitioner by filing Writ A No. 2924 of 2023. The Hon'ble Single Judge dismissed the writ petition by means of a judgment and order dated 19.04.2023, which is under challenge in this special appeal. The Hon'ble Single Judge held that the order passed by the Director narrates the facts and circumstances of the case and reasons for non-payment of salary etc. and this court would not substitute the reasoning given in the impugned order, which takes notice of the fact that the petitioner had remained unauthorizedly absent from duty for 665 days.

16. The Hon'ble Single Judge held that earlier the petitioner had filed multiple writ petitions and the subsequent writ petition filed by the petitioner suffers from gross delay and laches, as it had been filed 27 years after accrual of the alleged cause of action. The Hon'ble Single Judge further held that the writ petition had been filed in respect of the stale claim which the petitioner chose not to raise while approaching this court on two earlier occasions by filing two writ petitions. The Hon'ble Single Judge held that the writ petition had been filed raising monetary claims and such a writ petition could not be entertained 27 years after accrual of the cause of action. The Hon'ble Single Judge observed that the writ petition was liable to be dismissed with exemplary cost but the court refrained from imposing cost, keeping in view the fact that the petitioner is a Class III employee, who is on the verge of retirement.

17. Sri O. P. M. Tripathi, the learned counsel for the appellant has submitted that non-payment of service related dues is a continuing cause of action and, therefore, the writ petition did not suffer from any delay or laches. He has relied upon two judgments of Hon'ble the Supreme Court in the cases of Tukaram Kana Joshi and others Vs. M.I.D.C.: (2013) 1 SCC 353 & Sukh Dutt Ratra and another Vs. State of Himachal Pradesh and others: (2022) 7 SCC 508.

18. In Sukh Dutt Ratra v. State of H.P. (Supra), the petitioners' land was utilized by the respondent State for construction of a Road in the year 1972-1973, without any land acquisition proceedings and without payment of any compensation. Pursuant to a judgment by the Himachal Pradesh High Court in Devender Singh v. State of H.P., CWP No. 816 of 1992 directing the State to initiate land acquisition proceedings, a Notification under Section 4 of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 was issued on 16-10-2001 and the award was passed on 20-12-2001. Proceedings under Section 18 of the Act for enhancement of compensation were initiated by ten neighbouring land owners, whose lands were similarly utilised for the construction of the same road and an award dated 4-10-2005 was passed by the Reference Court in their favour. This led the appellants to file a writ petition before the High Court in 2011, seeking compensation for the subject land or initiation of acquisition proceedings. The High Court held that the matter involved disputed questions of law and fact for determination on the starting point of limitation, which could not be adjudicated in writ proceedings. The writ petition was disposed of, with liberty to file a civil suit in accordance with law. In the aforesaid background, the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that: -

“19.The facts of the present case reveal that the State has, in a clandestine and arbitrary manner, actively tried to limit disbursement of compensation as required by law, only to those for which it was specifically prodded by the courts, rather than to all those who are entitled. This arbitrary action, which is also violative of the appellants' prevailing Article 31 right (at the time of cause of action), undoubtedly warranted consideration, and intervention by the High Court, under its Article 226 jurisdiction.”

19. The Hon'ble Supreme Court referred to the following passage from Tukaram Kana Joshi v. Maharashtra Industrial Development Corpn. (MIDC), (Supra), wherein the Court was dealing with a similar fact situation: -

“11. There are authorities which state that delay and laches extinguish the right to put forth a claim. Most of these authorities pertain to service jurisprudence, grant of compensation for a wrong done to them decades ago, recovery of statutory dues, claim for educational facilities and other categories of similar cases, etc. Though, it is true that there are a few authorities that lay down that delay and laches debar a citizen from seeking remedy, even if his fundamental right has been violated, under Article 32 or 226 of the Constitution, the case at hand deals with a different scenario altogether. The functionaries of the State took over possession of the land belonging to the appellants without any sanction of law.

The appellants had asked repeatedly for grant of the benefit of compensation. The State must either comply with the procedure laid down for acquisition, or requisition, or any other permissible statutory mode.”

(Emphasis supplied)

20. The aforesaid observations were made keeping in view the facts of the cases that government had utilized the land of the petitioners without payment of compensation. The right to property is a constitutional right protected by Article 300-A of the Constitution of India and, therefore, the Hon'ble Supreme Court had held that the State could not deprive a citizen of his property without sanction of law and in such circumstances, the delay in initiating the litigation would not be an absolute impediment. However, the Hon'ble Supreme Court explicitly observed that there are authorities pertaining to service jurisprudence which state that delay and laches extinguish the right to put forth a claim.

21. In Union of India v. Tarsem Singh, (2008) 8 SCC 648, the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that: -

“7.To summarise, normally, a belated service related claim will be rejected on the ground of delay and laches (where remedy is sought by filing a writ petition) or limitation (where remedy is sought by an application to the Administrative Tribunal). One of the exceptions to the said rule is cases relating to a continuing wrong. Where a service related claim is based on a continuing wrong, relief can be granted even if there is a long delay in seeking remedy, with reference to the date on which the continuing wrong commenced, if such continuing wrong creates a continuing source of injury. But there is an exception to the exception. If the grievance is in respect of any order or administrative decision which related to or affected several others also, and if the reopening of the issue would affect the settled rights of third parties, then the claim will not be entertained. For example, if the issue relates to payment or refixation of pay or pension, relief may be granted in spite of delay as it does not affect the rights of third parties. But if the claim involved issues relating to seniority or promotion, etc., affecting others, delay would render the claim stale and doctrine of laches/limitation will be applied. Insofar as the consequential relief of recovery of arrears for a past period is concerned, the principles relating to recurring/successive wrongs will apply. As a consequence, the High Courts will restrict the consequential relief relating to arrears normally to a period of three years prior to the date of filing of the writ petition."

(Emphasis supplied)

22. The learned Counsel for the appellant has submitted that the Writ Petition was filed in respect of a continuing cause of action and, therefore, it could not have been dismissed on the ground of delay. However, as has already been noted above, the Writ Petition was filed claiming certain arrears of salary, which was not paid on the ground of the petitioner's unauthorised absence and it is not a continuing cause of action and we do not find merit in the aforesaid submission of the learned Counsel for the petitioner.

23. Sri O. P. M. Tripathi, the learned counsel for the appellant has next submitted that she had made several representations for payment of salary and as she had been pursuing her grievances with the authorities by making representations, it cannot be said that the writ petition suffers from delay and laches. He has further submitted that as by means of the order dated 22.09.2022, passed in Writ-A No.6123 of 2022, this court had directed the Director, Bal Vikas Seva Evam Pushtahar to consider and decide her representation dated 10.08.2022, the subsequent writ petition filed by her challenging the order of rejection of her representation and claiming payment of salary is not barred by delay.

24. The aforesaid submission also does not have any merit because it is settled law that although there is no limitation prescribed for filing a writ petition, the same should necessarily be filed with reasonable promptitude and merely by making repetitive representations, the conduct of the appellant in not approaching the Court for redressal of her grievance for a very long period, which in the present case is more than two decades, cannot be justified and making repetitive representations would not dilute the effect of undue delay in filing the writ petition and will not create any fresh cause of action.

25. In the case of State of Uttarakhand and another Vs. Sri Shiv Charan Singh Bhandari and others: 2013 (12) SCC 179 the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that "it is clear as crystal that even if the court or tribunal directs for consideration of representations relating to a stale claim or dead grievance it does not give rise to a fresh cause of action. The dead cause of action cannot rise like a phoenix. Similarly, a mere submission of representation to the competent authority does not arrest time."

26. The aforesaid decision has been relied upon by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in a recent judgment in the case of The State of West Bengal Vs. Debabrata Tiwari and others: 2023 SCC OnLine 219, where after submitting an application in the year 2005-06 the petitioners did nothing further to pursue the matter for a period of ten years. The Hon'ble Supreme Court held that such prolonged delay in approaching the High Court may be regarded as a waiver of a remedy and such a delay would disentitle the writ petitioners to the discretionary relief under Article 226 of the Constitution of India.

27. In the present case, the appellant had approached this court on two occasions earlier by filing two writ petitions i.e. Writ Petition No. 4664 (S/S) of 2005 and Writ Petition No. 4848 (S/S) of 2014 but she chose not to raise her grievances of non-payment of salary for some period between the years 1998 to 2001, which was raised by her in Writ A No. 6123 of 2022, although cause of action for the same had already accrued to her. The writ petition filed for the reliefs which could have been claimed by the appellant while filing the earlier writ petitions and which were not claimed by her, would be clearly hit by the principles contained in Order II Rule 2 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908.

28. Even at the time of hearing of the aforesaid writ petition, the learned counsel for the appellant chose not to press for the reliefs claimed in the writ petition and he confined his prayer for a direction for decision of the appellant's representation. The representation has accordingly been decided by a reasoned and speaking order. We find ourselves in complete agreement with the view taken by the Hon'ble Single Judge that this court would not substitute the reasoning given by the Director in the impugned order.

29. We are also in agreement with the reason given by Hon'ble Single Judge for dismissing the writ petition that it had been filed with gross delay and as such it was liable to be dismissed for this reason also.

30. Therefore, we are not persuaded to take any view other than the view taken by Hon'ble Single Judge that the writ petition filed by the petitioner in the year 2003 regarding her grievances against non-payment of salary for various intermittent periods starting from the period 1998, suffers from gross delay and laches and also that the order under challenge in the writ petition was a well reasoned order and this court would not substitute the reasoning given by the Director in the order.

31. In view of the aforesaid discussions, we are of the considered opinion that the special appeal lacks merit which is accordingly dismissed. However, there will be no order as to the costs.

Counsel for the Petitioners:

Counsel for the Respondents:

A. Service Law – Regularization – Seniority - Uttar Pradesh Regularization of Daily Wages (Appointment on Group D Posts) Rules, 2001 - Rule 4(1)(a) - U.P. Recruitment of Dependents of Government Servants Dying in Harness Rules, 1974 - It is no longer res integra that any regularization should be given effect prospectively. Right of regularization is conferred vide Rule 4(1)(a) of Rules 2001, only against such vacancies as were available on the date of commencement of Rules, 2001 and not against any vacancy occurring subsequently as it is not a perennial source of recruitment so as to induct a person, as and when vacancies are available, either due to creation of post or otherwise on any date, subsequent to 20.12.2001. (Para 35)

Regularization Rules were framed with intent to regularize the persons engaged prior to 29.06.1991 through back door entry, as a one time measure, keeping in mind that such engagement is not illegal as concept of regularization of service is a means to condone and procedural irregularity and is meant to cure only such defects, which are attributable to notions followed while making appointments. (Para 34)

It is also relevant to take note of the fact that supernumerary posts 80+27 were created vide Government Orders dated 25.06.2013 and 26.06.2013. Regularization of the petitioners could have been only against those posts. If there was no post, their regularization would come only from the date of creation of post and not from the retrospective date. (Para 44)

B. Rule 4 mandates that for the purposes of Regularization under Rules, 2001, eligibility list would be prepared in order of seniority. On the basis of this eligibility list prepared as per the seniority, the select committee would consider the cases of the candidates for regularization. It is further provided that seniority of the persons regularized under the Rules, 2001 would be counted from the date of order of regularization. (Para 39)

Regularization of the petitioners was subject to final outcome of the Writ Petition No.4302(SS) of 2003 in which an order was passed on 20.08.2015 to prepare the fresh seniority list as per law. Earlier, seniority list dated 20.06.2003 had several anomalies and the Government had cancelled the said seniority list dated 20.06.2003 vide order dated 05.07.2003. The petitioners on the strength of the interim order dated 24.07.2003 passed in WP No.4302(SS) of 2003 continued as regular employees. (Para 37, 40)

C. Having regard to the principle of Actus curiae Neminem Gravabit (the act of the Court shall prejudice no one) when the statutory/constitutional right of a person has been infringed by an order of the Court, the Court will not hesitate to withdraw or review such order. (Para 41)

Interim order would not confer any indefeasible right on the petitioners to draw the benefits of the order dated 20.06.2003, which was cancelled by the order dated 05.07.2003. After dismissal of the WP No.4302(SS) of 2003 vide order dated 15.02.2023, order dated 05.07.2003 got revived and, therefore, there could not have been any bar to draw the fresh seniority list in accordance with law as directed by this Court vide order dated 20.08.2015 passed in WP No.4302(SS) of 2003 and even without any order of the Court as the order dated 05.07.2003 got revived. (Para 42)

D. Regularization cannot be given effect to retrospectively. It is ordinarily be prospective so that seniority of all those, who are in regular service, should not be disturbed or affected. If the ad hoc service is regularized from the back date in this manner, it will disturb the seniority of regularly appointed employees in the cadre and, therefore, ordinarily the regularization must take effect prospectively and not retrospectively. Ad hoc appointees, casual labour and daily-rated persons are not subject to strict discipline of service, and it is a matter of common experience that their attendance is very often not regular and at times they do not even meet the qualification for appointment since they are taken on ad hoc basis. These deficiencies are overlooked by way of granting relaxation and, therefore, care must be taken to see that they do not upset the seniority of regular appointees. (Para 43)

E. Regularization is not a mode of appointment. If appointment is made without following the Rules, the same being a nullity, the question of confirmation of an employee upon the expiry of the purported period of probation would not arise. (Para 44)

Any appointment made in violation of the Recruitment Rules as also in violation of Articles 14 and 16 of the Constitution would be a nullity. (Para 45)

Regular recruitment should be insisted upon and only in a contingency can an ad hoc appointment be made in a permanent vacancy, but the same should soon be followed by a regular recruitment and that appointments to non-available posts should not be taken note of for regularisation. The cases directing regularisation have mainly proceeded on the basis that having permitted the employee to work for some period, he should be absorbed, without really laying down any law to that effect, after discussing the constitutional scheme for public employment. (Para 45)

F. The State does not enjoy a power to make appointments in terms of Article 162 of the Constitution.

The appointment to any post under the State can only be made after a proper advertisement has been made inviting applications from eligible candidates and holding of selection by a body of experts or a specially constituted committee whose members are fair and impartial through a written examination or interview or some other rational criteria for judging the inter se merit of candidates who have applied in response to the advertisement made. A regular appointment to a post under the State or Union cannot be made without issuing advertisement in the prescribed manner which may in some cases include inviting applications from the employment exchange where eligible candidates get their names registered. Any regular appointment made on a post under the State or Union without issuing advertisement inviting applications from eligible candidates and without holding a proper selection where all eligible candidates get a fair chance to compete would violate the guarantee enshrined u/Article 16 of the Constitution. (Para 45)

G. The High Courts in exercise of jurisdiction u/Article 226 of the Constitution of India should not ordinarily issue directions for absorption, regularization, or permanent continuance unless the recruitment itself was made regularly and in terms of the constitutional scheme. (Para 46)

Since some of the petitioners are retired or they are on the verge of retirement, taking away the benefit which has been conferred on them because of the interim order dated 24.07.2003 would not be justified and, therefore, it is provided that while implementing the impugned orders Government should ensure that the benefit already conferred on the petitioners or similarly situated persons should not be withdrawn except that they should be treated to have been regularized w.e.f. the respective dates as per impugned order dated 11/12.10.2018. (Para 47)

Writ petitions dismissed. (E-4)

Present writ petitions challenge the order dated 11.10.2018/12.10.2018, passed by the Executive Engineer, Provisional Division, Public Works Department, Lucknow, whereby the petitioners' regularization orders dated 25.06.2013 regularizing their services w.e.f. 02.07.2003 have been made ineffective and the order of regularization has been revisited as per fresh seniority list dated 21.04.2018. Also challenged order dated 12.10.2018, for the reason that the petitioners' date of regularization has been altered/changed from 02.07.2003 to the year of 2011.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dinesh Kumar Singh, J.)

1. This bunch of writ petition leading one being Writ Petition No.4476(SS) of 2019 has been preferred assailing the order dated 11.10.2018/12.10.2018 passed by the Executive Engineer, Provisional Division, Public Works Department, Lucknow (Annexure 1 to the writ petition), whereby the petitioners' regularization orders dated 25.06.2013 regularizing their services with effect from 02.07.2003 have been made ineffective and the order of regularization has been revisited as per fresh seniority list dated 21.04.2018.

The petitioners have also challenged the order dated 12.10.2018 whereby the petitioners' date of regularization has been altered/changed from 02.07.2003 to the year of 2011.

The petitioners in Writ Petition No.34756 of 2018 have also prayed for a direction in the nature of mandamus commanding the respondents to prepare a fresh seniority list taking into consideration the Government Order dated 17.04.2003 inasmuch as the State Government, in the meantime, had framed regularization rules namely Uttar Pradesh Regularization of Daily Wages (Appointment on Group D Posts) Rules, 2001.

2. The petitioners were initially engaged as Daily Wagers from time to time considering the exigency of work on the posts of Wireman, Electrician, Helper, Mate, Fire Alarm Operator, A.C. Operator etc., in the Department of Public Works Department. Some of the petitioners preferred a Writ Petition No.1427(SS) of 1997: Ram Swaroop & Anr versus State of UP with a prayer to grant them regular pay scale of Class IV post and consider them for regularization. This Court passed an interim order dated 21.02.1997 whereby direction was given for payment of minimum of pay scale to which regular employees of the category of the petitioners were being paid salary, subject to verification of length of service of the petitioners in the writ petition.

3. The State Government, in the meantime, framed rules namely Uttar Pradesh Regularization of Daily Wages (Appointment on Group D Posts) Rules 2001 (hereinafter referred to as Rules, 2001). Rule 4 of the Rules, 2001 provides that any person, who was appointed on daily wage basis prior to 29.06.1991 and is continuing in service, as such on the date of commencement of rules i.e. 21.12.2001 and possess requisite qualifications shall be considered for regularization.

4. In pursuance to the promulgation of the said rules, the State Government took a policy decision vide Government Order dated 17.04.2003 to regularize all such persons, who had been engaged prior to 29.06.1991, as daily wages/ work charge agents by preparing a combined seniority list as per the availability of the vacancies.

5. Another Government Order dated 11.06.2003 was issued in continuation of the earlier Government Order for proceeding with the intent of regularization process. Thereafter, an office memorandum dated 20.06.2003 was issued whereby combined seniority list of daily wagers, working in Public Works Department was issued.

6. A decision was taken on 02.07.2003 to regularize 54 persons from the seniority list dated 20.06.2003 trade-wise. Thereafter, vide order dated 05.07.2003, a decision was taken to cancel the seniority list dated 20.06.2003. 54 persons, who got regularized on 02.07.2003, as per the seniority list dated 20.06.2003, being aggrieved by the cancellation of the seniority list and order dated 06.07.2003 cancelling their regularization, preferred a Writ Petition No.4302(SS) of 2003: Bharat Singh & Ors vs State of U.P. & Ors before this Court. This Court vide order dated 24.07.2003 stayed the order dated 06.07.2003. On the strength of the said interim order dated 24.07.2003, aforesaid employees continued in employment as regular employees.

7. In the meantime, Writ Petition No.1427(SS) of 1997 preferred by Ram Swaroop & Ors was disposed of finally on 13.11.2003 with a direction to the respondents to consider their cases for regularization in accordance with the existing rules with effect from the date, their juniors were regularized. When no decision was taken, as directed by this Court in order dated 13.11.2003 passed in Writ Petition No.1427 (SS) of 1997, the petitioners therein preferred a contempt petition being Contempt No.1687 of 2006, and in pursuance of directions issued in the contempt petition, a decision was taken vide order dated 12.04.2007 specifically saying that no juniors to the petitioners had been regularized. Some further orders came to be passed in the contempt proceedings on 15.07.2011. In compliance thereof a decision was taken by the respondents vide order dated 28.03.2011, in pursuance to the Government Order dated 21.02.2011 and all the petitioners were regularized, however, effect of the said order was prospective in nature, thereafter, the contempt petition was dismissed vide order dated 13.01.2014.

8. The petitioners had preferred a representation before the competent authority for regularizing their services with effect from 02.07.2003, when allegedly juniors to them were allegedly regularized.

9. A decision was taken vide Government order dated 25.06.2013 to regularize the petitioners with effect from the date, juniors were regularized and the said order was a conditional order subject to outcome of the Writ Petition No.4302(SS) of 2003, and in pursuance to the same, earlier order was modified and petitioners were given benefit of the regularization retrospectively.

10. Another writ petition being Writ Petition No.2412(SS) of 2009 was filed by Mohsin Ali & Ors for considering their cases for regularization from the date, their juniors were regularized and said writ petition was jointly heard with the Writ Petition No.4302(SS) of 2003. This court passed the order dated 20.08.2015 directing for preparation of a seniority list as per law. Order dated 20.08.2015 passed in Writ Petition No.4302(SS) of 2003 would read as under:-

"Heard learned Counsel for the petitioner and learned Standing Counsel for the respondents.

These two writ petitions are inter-connected. The dispute relates to the consequential seniority as a result of regularization of work charge and daily wage employees in service under the Regularization of Daily Wages Rules, 2001 being carried out without determination of their comparative seniority prior to regularization.

The statutory rules provide for consideration as per seniority of the daily wage employees drawn on the basis of length of service. So far as the present case is concerned, the employees working as work charge or on daily wage basis belong to different trades and their regularization has been considered against the respective trades on the basis of disputed seniority. Necessarily, the seniority of the employees on the basis of total length of service is liable to be drawn not for the purpose of regularization but also for the purpose of determination of inter-se seniority, which is a consequence of regularization in service for other service benefits.

Learned Standing Counsel has submitted that the final seniority list could not be finalized on account of an interim order passed by this court in writ petition no. 4302(SS) of 2003 on 24.07.2003 which reads and under:-

"Notice on behalf of opposite parties has been accepted by the learned Chief Standing Counsel.

Let counter affidavit be filed within a period of four weeks. Rejoinder affidavit, if any, may be filed within three weeks.

List thereafter.

Till the date of next listing, the operation of the order dated 05.07.2003 as contained in Annexure No.1 shall remain stayed."

Having heard the parties in both the writ petitions at some length and with the consent of parties, it is provided that final seniority (combined) may be drawn and issued by the department in accordance with the rules and government orders applicable in relation to work charge/daily wage employees without disturbing their present status.

This exercises shall be completed by respondents within a period of three months from the date a certified copy of this order is filed before the competent authority. The final seniority list shall be placed on record and circulate to all concerned, in the meantime. An affidavit shall be positively filed by the concerned authority explaining the finalization of process before the next date of listing.

The promotional benefits arising out of seniority shall be open to be granted only after the seniority is finalized in accordance with law.

List immediately after three months immediately."

11. In compliance of the order dated 20.08.2015, a decision was taken on 09.01.2015 to prepare a fresh seniority list from the muster roll of all the daily wagers engaged in the department, and for the said purpose, a Committee was constituted vide order dated 27.12.2017. After inviting objections, a final seniority list dated 21.04.2018 was issued in accordance with law.

12. Writ petition filed by Shri Mohsin Ali and others being Writ Petition No.2412(SS) of 2009 was finally disposed of vide judgment and order dated 10.11.2017 with a direction to decide the representation of the petitioners in accordance with law. Representation of the petitioners of the said writ petition was duly considered and decided vide order dated 01.02.2019. Said order has been placed on record as Annexure-1 to the counter affidavit filed on behalf of the State which was passed after taking note of the several orders and judgments passed in several writ petitions preferred by the daily wagers. It was said that vide order dated 12.10.2018 question of regularizing services of the petitioner with effect from 02.07.2003 had been already decided and the workmen had been regularized as per their eligibility on the basis of their seniority list. In view thereof representation of Mohsin Ali & Ors as directed by this Court was also decided. After finalization of the seniority list dated 21.04.2018, final orders have been issued as per the seniority.

13. Anomalies in regularization orders have been rectified and fresh orders have been passed as per seniority list, which are impugned in the batch of the present writ petitions.

14. It would be important to take note of the fact that all the employees in the batch of petitions, were regularized; most of them have retired and some of them have also died.

15. Shri Amarendra Nath Tripathi and Shri Ashutosh Sahi learned counsel appearing for the petitioners have submitted that once the petitioners were regularized with effect from 02.07.2003 vide orders dated 01.07.2013 and 04.07.2013 issued in furtherance of the Government Order dated 25.06.2013 and all the benefits were granted to them, vide impugned order dated 11.10.2018 read with 12.10.2018, vested rights accrued in favour of the petitioners could not have been taken away by the impugned orders without affording an opportunity of hearing to the petitioners. The impugned orders are in violation of the principle of natural justice, and they are also arbitrary and illegal amounting to violation of the fundamental rights guaranteed under Articles 14 and 16 of the Constitution of India and, therefore, same are liable to be set aside.

16. Learned counsel appearing for the petitioners have further submitted that act of changing/altering date of regularization from 02.07.2003 to the year 2011 vide impugned order dated 12.10.2018 without affording any opportunity of hearing is an infraction of Article 14 of the Constitution of India, therefore, is liable to be set aside.

17. Learned counsel appearing for the petitioners has further submitted that impugned orders dated 11.10.2018 and 12.10.2018 have annulled the order dated 01.07.2013 and 04.07.2013, which were passed in pursuance to the decision of the State Government dated 25.06.2013. Said decision was taken in compliance of the directions issued by this Court in the writ petition, and on the basis of which, the contempt proceedings were dropped and, therefore, orders dated 1.07.2013 and 04.07.2013 had attained finality, which could not have been revisited by the impugned orders and, therefore, the impugned orders are liable to be quashed.

18. Effect of the impugned order dated 11.10.2018 is reopening of the issue of regularization of the petitioners, which was set at rest in earlier round of litigation, and, therefore, impugned orders amount to overriding the various judgments and orders passed by this Court in earlier writ petitions.

19. It has been further submitted by the learned counsel appearing for the petitioners that the impugned orders have been passed on the basis of the impugned seniority list dated 20.04.2018. Seniority list dated 20.04.2018 is against Rule 4(4) of the Rules, 2001, which contemplates preparation of eligibility list for the purpose of regularization in accordance with the date of initial engagement. It is settled proposition of law that where a Statute requires a particular act to be done in a particular manner, the act has to be done in that manner.

20. Sri Amarendra Nath Tripathi has further submitted that impugned seniority list has been allegedly prepared in furtherance of the interim direction of this Court dated 20.08.2015 passed in Writ Petition No.2412(SS) of 2009, however, in the said interim order, this Court had specifically provided for drawing of seniority list "without disturbing their present status." Said interim order dated 20.08.2015 stood merged with the final judgment and order dated 10.11.2017, and, therefore, interim order dated 20.08.2015 had lost its enforceability.

21. It has been further submitted that no opportunity of hearing was given to the petitioners before finalization of the seniority list, and, therefore, even on this ground the seniority list is bad in law.

22. Sri Amarendra Nath Tripathi, learned counsel appearing for the petitioners has further submitted that respondents had given benefit of regularization to the writ petitioners in Writ Petition No.2073(SS) of 1997 namely Late Ramesh Chandra and Mool Chandra by not challenging their date of regularization with effect from 02.07.2003 and gave appointment to their wards under The U.P. Recruitment of Dependents of Government Servants Dying in Harness Rules, 1974 by treating late Ramesh Chandra and Moolchand as regular employees, who died on 10.04.2008 and 5.03.2011 respectively whereas petitioners' date of regularization has been changed by the impugned order, which amounts to hostile discrimination.

23. Sri Shyam Mohan Pradhan, learned counsel appearing for the petitioners in Writ Petition No.34756(SS) of 2018 has submitted that vide Government Order dated 17.04.2003 read with Rules, 2001, it was provided that eligibility list of daily wagers employees working in the Public Works Department of the Government of Uttar Pradesh would be prepared from the date of initial appointment and Rule 4(4) of 2001, Rules, also prescribes that the appointing authority shall prepare the eligibility list of candidates in order of seniority as determined from the date of order of appointment on daily wage basis, and after the eligibility list would be prepared, the selection committee shall consider the case of the workmen in order of seniority for regularization from the eligibility list so prepared.

24. It has been submitted by Sri Shyam Mohan Pradhan, learned counsel that seniority list has not been prepared from the date of order of appointment or engagement on daily wage basis or from the date of appointment in the trade. Eligibility list for the purpose of regularization is required to be prepared from the date of initial appointment and when the seniority list dated 20.06.2003 was issued considering the date of order of appointment in the cadre/trade and not from the date of initial appointment on daily wage basis, the petitioners filed their objections and the State Government vide order dated 05.07.2003 cancelled the seniority list after examining the same on the ground that it had not been prepared from the date of initial appointment on daily wage basis. The Government also took the view that the candidates, who had been appointment on daily wage basis on 29.06.1991, were also included though they were not eligible for regularization under the rules. There were other discrepancies regarding some of the employees' date of initial appointment. The Government cancelled the said seniority list vide order dated 05.07.2003, which was stayed by this Court vide order dated 24.07.2003 passed in Writ Petition No.4302(SS) of 2003. The said writ petition got dismissed. Government order dated 16.07.2003 provided for the preparation of eligibility cum seniority list for the purpose of regularization from the date of initial appointment on daily wage basis.

25. It has been further submitted that interim order dated 20.08.2015 passed in Writ Petition No.4302(SS) of 2003 provided that necessarily seniority list of the employees was to be prepared on the basis of total length of service not only for the purpose of regularization but also for the purpose of determination of inter se seniority. Impugned seniority list dated 20.04.2018 had been prepared not on the basis of initial date of appointment on daily wage basis but again from the date of entry in the cadre in a trade. Initial appointment of petitioner No.2 in the in Writ Petition No.34756(SS) of 2018 has been shown in the seniority as 28.03.1997 instead of 01.04.1994 though same was mentioned in Government Order dated 05.04.2003 while cancelling the earlier seniority list.

26. It has been further submitted that prior to the year 1997 all persons appointed on Daily Wage/Work Charge establishment were not appointed against any post but were given employment as Helper, and all were getting Rs.437/- per month salary. It is only on 18.03.1997, an order was passed by this Court for minimum of pay scale to such daily wager/work charge employee. The said writ petition was decided on 13.11.2003 with a direction for regularization in accordance with Rules from the date their juniors and similarly situated daily wagers were regularized. It has been, therefore, submitted that impugned seniority list dated 20.04.2018 is illegal and liable to be quashed.

27. Sri Prafulla Kumar Yadav, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel appearing for the State has submitted that regularizing the petitioners with retrospective effect with effect from 02.07.2003 was not done by the competent authority. This Court had stayed the order dated 05.07.2003 vide an interim order dated 24.07.2003 passed in Writ Petition No.4302(SS) of 2003. At that time exercise for regularization the Daily Wager of different trades was under process as per the seniority list dated 20.06.2003. However, in the meantime, the State Government took a policy decision for creation of supernumerary posts for regularization of those employees, who were engaged on 29.06.1991 or before and were not regularized due to non availability of the sanctioned posts. Hence, vide Government Order dated 21.02.2011, 9189 supernumerary posts were sanctioned in different trades for regularization of the workmen, who were appointed on or before 29.06.1991, and, thereafter, services of those employees who were engaged on 20.06.1991 or before and were working on the date of promulgation of the rules were regularized. These supernumerary posts were created subject to adjustment in future regular vacancies.

28. Sunder Lal & Ors had filed Writ Petition No.2073(SS) of 1997 and this Court allowed the writ petition vide order dated 13.11.2003. In compliance of the order dated 13.11.2003 passed in Writ Petition No.2073(SS) of 1997, Executive Engineer, Provisional Division Lucknow took a decision on the representation of the petitioners vide order dated 12.04.2007, and accordingly compliance affidavit was submitted in the contempt petition. During the pendency of the said contempt petition, the Government issued an order dated 26.06.2013 by means of which 87 more supernumerary posts were created subject to final decision of the Writ Petition No.4302(SS) of 2003 (Bharat Singh & Ors vs State of U.P.) and against the supernumerary posts, services of the petitioners of Writ Petition No.2073(SS) of 1997 were regularized and G.P.F., Time Scale and consequential benefits were provided with effect from 02.07.2003 though no juniors to the petitioners were regularized with effect from 02.07.2003.

29. As mentioned above that Ram Swaroop & Ors filed Writ Petition No.1427(SS) of 1997 before this Court, and this Court passed the order dated 13.11.2003 in favour of the petitioners and the said writ petitioners filed a contempt petition being Criminal Misc. Case No.1687(C) of 2006: Bhawani Prasad & Ors vs Satish Chandra Agarwal, Principal Secretary & Ors.

30. During the pendency of the aforesaid contempt petition, the Government issued an order dated 25.06.2013 by means of which 27 more supernumerary posts were created subject to final decision of the Writ Petition No.4302(SS) of 2002, and against the supernumerary posts, services of the writ petitioners of Writ Petition No.1427(SS) of 1997 were regularized with effect from 02.07.2003 and other benefits like G.P.F., Time Scale and consequential benefits were provided from the date of their juniors but actually no junior to the petitioners was regularized.

31. Sri Prafulla Yadav, learned Standing Counsel has further submitted that in both orders dated 25.06.2013 and 26.06.2013, the date of creation of post was 02.07.2003 on the basis of holding the post of work agent. In such a situation only Sri Pawan Kumar Pandey and Sri Tez Bahadur Singh, who were Senior Work Agents were entitled for regularization from the date but without considering this aspects, against the sanctioned supernumerary posts $27 + 87 = 114$ posts, the services of the writ petitioners were regularized in their respective divisions by the Executive Engineers at their own level. Aforesaid regularization was not done on the basis of seniority and eligibility, however, same had been done under the pain of the contempt proceedings.

32. Sri Prafulla Yadav, learned Standing Counsel has further submitted that power of regularization is vested in State Government. State Government has taken a decision for regularizing those employees who were engaged in the Department on or before 29.06.1991 as per the provisions of Regularization Rules but some employees have filed Writ Petitions before this Court claiming that juniors employees were regularized and they were entitled for regularization from the date on which their juniors were regularized.

33. After finalizing of the seniority list on 21.04.2018, final orders have been passed as per seniority list, and the anomalies have been rectified and fresh orders have been passed in accordance with law, which are impugned in the present writ petition. Writ Petition No.4302(SS) of 2003 has been dismissed on 15.02.2023. Earlier orders of regularization were conditional subject to outcome of the Writ Petition No.4302(SS) of 2003 by which order dated 05.07.2003 was stayed and after dismissal of the writ petition order dated 05.07.2003 got revived by which earlier seniority list dated 20.06.2003 was cancelled. Present seniority list has been issued strictly in compliance of the order dated 20.08.2015, which does not require any interference by this Court.

34. Regularization Rules were framed after the judgment in the case of State of U.P. & Ors. Vs. Putti Lal, [(1998) 1 UPLBEC 313] with intent to regularize the persons engaged prior to 29.06.1991 through back door entry, as a one time measure, keeping in mind that such engagement is not illegal as concept of regularization of service is a means to condone and procedural irregularity and is meant to cure only such defects, which are attributable to notions followed while making appointments and the concept has been duly clarified in a landmark judgment namely Secretary, State of Karnataka & Ors. Vs. Uma Devi (3) & Ors., (2006) 4 SCC 1.

35. Right of regularization is conferred vide Rule 4(1)(a) of Rules 2001, only against such vacancies as were available on the date of commencement of Rules, 2001 and not against any vacancy occurring subsequently as it is not a perennial source of recruitment so as to induct a person, as and when vacancies are available, either due to creation of post or otherwise on any date, subsequent to 20.12.2001. It is no longer res integra that any regularization should be given effect prospectively as held in the case of Registrar General of India vs V.Thippa Setty : 1998(8) SCC 690.

36. The question which falls for consideration is that whether the petitioners, who were regularized vide order dated 20.06.2003 on the basis of the seniority list, which was cancelled vide order dated 05.07.2003, had perfected their right inasmuch as the order dated 05.07.2003 whereby the seniority list dated 20.06.2003 was stayed by this Court vide order dated 20.06.2003 passed in Writ Petition No.4302(SS) of 2003 stands vacated as the said writ petition has been dismissed.

37. Regularization of the petitioners was subject to final outcome of the Writ Petition No.4302(SS) of 2003 in which an order was passed on 20.08.2015 to prepare the fresh seniority list as per law.

38. It would be apt to reproduce relevant provisions of Rules, 2001 under which the petitioners are claiming benefit and their regularization orders were passed as under:-

"4. Regularisation of daily wages appointments on Group 'D' posts.-(1) Any person who -

(a) was directly appointed on daily wage basis on a Group 'D' post in the Government service before June 29, 1991 and is continuing in service as such on the date of commencement of these rules; and

(b) possessed requisite qualifications prescribed for regular appointment for that post at the time of such appointment on daily wage basis under the relevant service rules, shall be considered for regular appointment in permanent or temporary vacancy, as may be available in Group 'D' post, on the date of commencement of these rules on the basis of his record and suitability before any regular appointment is made in such vacancy in accordance with the relevant service rules or orders.

2. In making regular appointments under these rules, reservations for the candidates belonging to the Scheduled Castes, Scheduled Tribes, Other Backward Classes of citizens and other categories shall be made in accordance with the Uttar Pradesh Public Services (Reservation for Scheduled Castes, Scheduled Tribes and Other Backward Classes) Act, 1994, and the Uttar Pradesh Public Service (Reservation for Physically Handicapped, Dependents of Freedom Fighters and Ex-Servicemen) Act, 1993 as amended from time to time and the orders of the Government in force at the time of regularisation under these rules.

3. For the purpose of sub-rule (1) the appointing authority shall constitute a Selection Committee in accordance with the relevant provisions of the service rules.

4. The appointing authority shall, having regard to the provisions of sub-rule (1), prepare an eligibility list of the candidates, arranged in order of seniority as determined from the date of order of appointment on daily wage basis and if two or more persons were appointed together, from the order in which their names are arranged in the said appointment order. The list shall be placed before the Selection Committee along with such relevant records pertaining to the candidates, as may be considered necessary, to assess their suitability.

5. The Selection Committee shall consider the cases of the candidates on the basis of their records referred to in sub-rule

(4), and if it considers necessary, it may interview the candidates also.

6. The Selection Committee shall prepare a list of selected candidates in order of seniority, and forward the same to the appointing authority."

5. The appointing authority shall, subject to the provisions of sub-rule (2) of Rule 4, make appointments from the list prepared under sub-rule (6) of the said rule in the order in which their names stand in the list.

7. (1) A person appointed under these rules shall be entitled to seniority only from the date of order of appointment after selection for regularisation in accordance with these rules and shall, in all cases, be placed below the persons appointed in accordance with the relevant service rules, or as the case may be, the regular prescribed procedure prior to the appointment of such persons under these rules:

(2) If two or more persons are appointed together, their seniority inter se shall be determined in the order mentioned in the order of appointment."

39. Rule 4 mandates that for the purposes of Regularization under Rules, 2001, eligibility list would be prepared in order of seniority. On the basis of this eligibility list prepared as per the seniority, the select committee would consider the cases of the candidates for regularization. It is further provided that seniority of the persons regularized under the Rules, 2001 would be counted from the date of order of regularization.

40. Earlier, seniority list dated 20.06.2003 had several anomalies and the Government had cancelled the said seniority list dated 20.06.2003 vide order dated 05.07.2003. The petitioners on the strength of the interim order dated 24.07.2003 passed in Writ Petition No.4302(SS) of 2003 continued as regular employees.

41. Having regard to the principle of Actus curiae Neminem Gravabit (the act of the Court shall prejudice no one) when the statutory/constitutional right of a person has been infringed by an order of the Court, the Court will not hesitate to withdraw or review such order.

42. Interim order would not confer any indefeasible right on the petitioners to draw the benefits of the order dated 20.06.2003, which was cancelled by the order dated 05.07.2003. After dismissal of the Writ Petition No.4302(SS) of 2003 vide order dated 15.02.2023, order dated 05.07.2003 got revived and, therefore, there could not have been any bar to draw the fresh seniority list in accordance with law as directed by this Court vide order dated 20.08.2015 passed in Writ Petition No.4302(SS) of 2003 and even without any order of the Court as the order dated 05.07.2003 got revived.

43. Regularization cannot be given effect to retrospectively. It is ordinarily be prospective so that seniority of all those, who are in regular service, should not be disturbed or affected. The Supreme Court in the case of Registrar General of India vs V.Thippa Setty : (1998) 8 SCC 690 has held that if the ad hoc service is regularized from the back date in this manner, it will disturb the seniority of regularly appointed employees in the cadre and, therefore, ordinarily the regularization must take effect prospectively and not retrospectively. Ad hoc appointees, casual labour and daily-rated persons are not subject to strict discipline of service, and it is a matter of common experience that their attendance is very often not regular and at times they do not even meet the qualification for appointment since they are taken on ad hoc basis. These deficiencies are overlooked by way of granting relaxation and, therefore, care must be taken to see that they do not upset the seniority of regular appointees.

44. It is also relevant to take note of the fact that supernumerary posts 80+27 were created vide Government Orders dated 25.06.2013 and 26.06.2013. Regularization of the petitioners could have been only against those posts. If there was no post, their regularization would come only from the date of creation of post and not from the retrospective date. The Supreme Court in the case of National Fertilizers Ltd., & Ors. vs Somvir Singh: (2006) 5 SCC 493 has held that regularization is not a mode of appointment. If appointment is made without following the Rules, the same being a nullity, the question of confirmation of an employee upon the expiry of the purported period of probation would not arise.

45. Paras 20 to 22 and 26 of the aforesaid judgment is extracted hereinbelow:-

"20. The Constitution Bench opined that any appointment made in violation of the Recruitment Rules as also in violation of Articles 14 and 16 of the Constitution would be a nullity. The contention raised on behalf of the employees that those temporary or ad hoc employees who had continued for a fairly long spell, the authorities must consider their cases for regularisation was answered, thus: [Umadevi (3) case [(2006) 4 SCC 1 : (2006) 4 Scale 197] , SCC p. 29, para 26]

“26. With respect, why should the State be allowed to depart from the normal rule and indulge in temporary employment in permanent posts? This Court, in our view, is bound to insist on the State making regular and proper recruitments and is bound not to encourage or shut its eyes to the persistent transgression of the rules of regular recruitment. The direction to make permanent—the distinction between regularisation and making permanent, was not emphasised here—can only encourage the State, the model employer, to flout its own rules and would confer undue benefits on a few at the cost of many waiting to compete. With respect, the direction made in para 50 (of SCC) of Piara Singh [(1992) 4 SCC 118 : 1992 SCC (L&S) 825 : (1992) 21 ATC 403] is to some extent inconsistent with the conclusion in para 45 (of SCC) therein. With great respect, it appears to us that the last of the directions clearly runs counter to the constitutional scheme of employment recognised in the earlier part of the decision. Really, it cannot be said that this decision has laid down the law that all ad hoc, temporary or casual employees engaged without following the regular recruitment procedure should be made permanent.”

21. It was furthermore opined: [Umadevi (3) case [(2006) 4 SCC 1 : (2006) 4 Scale 197] , SCC p. 32, para 33]

“33. It is not necessary to notice all the decisions of this Court on this aspect. By and large what emerges is that regular recruitment should be insisted upon, only in a contingency can an ad hoc appointment be made in a permanent vacancy, but the same should soon be followed by a regular recruitment and that appointments to non-available posts should not be taken note of for regularisation. The cases directing regularisation have mainly proceeded on the basis that having permitted the employee to work for some period, he should be absorbed, without really laying down any law to that effect, after discussing the constitutional scheme for public employment.”

22. Taking note of some recent decisions of this Court, it was held that the State does not enjoy a power to make appointments in terms of Article 162 of the Constitution. It further quoted [Umadevi (3) case, SCC pp. 33-34, para 38] with approval a decision of this Court in Union Public Service Commission v. Girish Jayanti Lal Vaghela [(2006) 2 SCC 482 : 2006 SCC (L&S) 339 : (2006) 2 Scale 115] in the following terms: (SCC p. 490, para 12)

“The appointment to any post under the State can only be made after a proper advertisement has been made inviting applications from eligible candidates and holding of selection by a body of experts or a specially constituted committee whose members are fair and impartial through a written examination or interview or some other rational criteria for judging the inter se merit of candidates who have applied in response to the advertisement made. A regular appointment to a post under the State or Union cannot be made without issuing advertisement in the prescribed manner which may in some cases include inviting applications from the employment exchange where eligible candidates get their names registered. Any regular appointment made on a post under the State or Union without issuing advertisement inviting applications from eligible candidates and without holding a proper selection where all eligible candidates get a fair chance to compete would violate the guarantee enshrined under Article 16 of the Constitution.”

It was clearly held: [Umadevi (3) case [(2006) 4 SCC 1 : (2006) 4 Scale 197] , SCC p. 35, para 41] Constitution is a must in the process of public employment.”

26. It is true that the respondents had been working for a long time. It may also be true that they had not been paid wages on a regular scale of pay. But, they did not hold any post. They were, therefore, not entitled to be paid salary on a regular scale of pay. Furthermore, only because the respondents have worked for some time, the same by itself would not be a ground for directing regularisation of their services in view of the decision of this Court in Umadevi (3) [(2006) 4 SCC 1 : (2006) 4 Scale 197] .

46. The Supreme Court in the case of Secretary, State of Karnataka vs Umadevi : (2006) 4 SCC 1 it has been specifically observed that the High Courts in exercise of jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution of India should not ordinarily issue directions for absorption, regularization, or permanent continuance unless the recruitment itself was made regularly and in terms of the constitutional scheme.

47. Thus, I find that the impugned orders do not violate in any manner the statutory prescription or any judgment of this Court or the Supreme Court. So far as challenge to the impugned orders is concerned, I find no merit in the present writ petitions, which are hereby dismissed. However, since some of the petitioners are retired or they are on the verge of retirement, taking away the benefit which has been conferred on them because of the interim order dated 24.07.2003 would not be justified and, therefore, it is provided that while implementing the impugned orders Government should ensure that the benefit already conferred on the petitioners or similarly situated persons should not be withdrawn except that they should be treated to have been regularized with effect from the respective dates as per impugned order dated 11/12.10.2018.

DATED: LUCKNOW 23.05.2023

THE HON'BLE DINESH KUMAR SINGH, J.

Writ-A No. 7888 of 2022

Anjali Chaurasia ...Petitioner
Versus
State of U.P. & Ors. ...Respondents

Counsel for the Petitioner:
Avinash Chandra

Counsel for the Respondents:
C.S.C.

A. Service Law – misconduct and malafide exercise of power - Departmental proceedings – Salary - Uttar Pradesh Government Servant (Discipline and Appeal) Rules, 1999 Rule-7 Integrated Goods and Service Tax Act, 2017 - Section 20 r/w Central Goods and Services Tax Act, 2017 - Section 129(1) - If a complaint is received against an employee for grave misconduct without affidavit, the said complaint would not debar the Department to look at the allegation independently and conduct a preliminary inquiry with respect to the same.

In the present case, the technical report as well as preliminary inquiry report would suggest the grave misconduct by the petitioner. It is not the case of the petitioner that except for anonymous complaint, there is no evidence against the petitioner. The petitioner was fully associated with during conduct of preliminary inquiry, and the Three Members Committee has submitted a report regarding gross misconduct of the petitioner. Therefore, there is no violation of the Government Orders dated 09.05.1997 and 01.08.1997 (mentioned below). The disciplinary proceedings have been initiated against the petitioner on the basis of the departmental preliminary inquiry report, and not on the basis of the complaint and, therefore, there is no illegality in initiation of the departmental proceedings against the petitioner. (Para 20)

Government Orders dated 09.05.1997 and 01.08.1997 - Government had issued Orders dated 09.05.1997 and 01.08.1997 that anonymous complaint should not be entertained. However, if the complaint is received from some important person then it should be ensured that whether it was actually sent by the said important person. If anonymous complaint is received from any other source, the affidavit of the complainant should be sought and, he should be directed to provide evidence in that regard. The Government issued again Order on 19.04.2012 that the earlier orders issued by it on 09.05.1997 and 01.08.1997 should be strictly complied with. (Para 15)

B. If a Government servant, exercising quasi-judicial function, passes an order, which is illegal, with malafide intention, for extraneous purposes, and where there is corruption involved, the Department is not precluded to proceed with the disciplinary proceedings against such an employee, if the order has not been challenged in revision/appeal. (Para 20)

The petitioner has been placed under suspension vide impugned order dated 21.04.2022. The suspension does not amount to punishment but an employee is placed under suspension to hold disciplinary inquiry against such an employee in a free, fair and impartial manner. When allegations against the delinquent employee are serious regarding his/her misconduct, the suspension order cannot be said to be invalid. Under Rule-7 of Rules, 1999, there is power of placing an employee under suspension, which has been exercised correctly for valid and cogent reasons for placing the petitioner under suspension. (Para 21)

Writ petition dismissed. (E-4)

Present petition challenges order dated 21.04.2022, by which petitioner has been placed under suspension.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dinesh Kumar Singh, J.)

1. The present petition, under Article 226 of the Constitution of India has been preferred by the petitioner, who is at present Assistant Commissioner, Commercial Tax, Government of Uttar Pradesh, for the following reliefs:-

"I) Issue an appropriate writ, order or direction in the nature of certiorari quashing the order dated 21.04.2022 annexed a Annexure No. 1;

II) Issue an appropriate writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus directing the respondent to allow the petitioner to work on the post Assistant Commissioner, State Tax Department and pay her regular salary;

III) Issue ad-interim direction to the aforesaid effect.

III) to issue a writ, order or direction which the Hon'ble court may deem fit and proper in the interest of justice looking to the fact and circumstances of the case; and

IV) Issue order or direction commanding the opposite parties to pay the cost in favour of the petitioner."

2. The petitioner, after selection, was appointed on the post of Assistant Commissioner, Commercial Tax in the year 2014. On transfer of Mr. Sandeep Tiwari, Assistant Commissioner, Commercial Tax, Mobile Squad, Barabanki to Range-5 Ayodhya on 03.09.2020, the petitioner took charge of the post of Assistant Commissioner, Mobile Squad, Barabanki on 07.09.2020.

3. The Joint Commissioner, Special Investigation Branch (for short "SIB"), State Tax, Ayodhya Region-B, Ayodhya on 10.09.2020 issued a direction that the petitioner should be accompanied with her subordinate officer, Commercial Tax Officer, during inspection/checks.

4. On 19.11.2020, the petitioner intercepted vehicle bearing registration no.HR38AA-6286 at Safedabad, Barabanki. Mobile Squad Unit Barabanki consists of one Assistant Commissioner and two Commercial Tax Officers, along with driver, peon and police staff. The work of the Mobile Squad is integrated team work. The Joint Commissioner, SIB, State Tax, Ayodhya Range-B, Ayodhya had issued written instructions dated 10.09.2020 that the petitioner should conduct road inspections with complete team.

5. The e-way bill, produced by the driver of the vehicle no. HR38 AA - 6286, was dated 18.11.2020. The gross weight of the vehicle no. HR38AA-6286 was found to be 15170 kilograms, whereas the bare weight of the vehicle was 5570 kilograms. Thus, the net weight of the goods/material in the vehicle was approximately 9.500 tons, contrary to the weight (7.500 tons) mentioned in the relevant documents for transporting the material in the vehicle.

6. According to the petitioner, the driver of the vehicle again produced the second invoice, mentioning 2505 kilograms of old metal scrap in the vehicle, without any e-way bill for the said material. When certain discrepancies were found in the documents, a detailed physical verification along with complete videography was required to have been done as per the settled enforcement norms. The petitioner had shown that the plastic scrap was 7.00 tons and metal scrap was only to the extent of 2.500 tons. The petitioner passed detention order under Section 20 of the Integrated Goods and Service Tax, 2017 read with Section 129(1) of The Central Goods and Services Tax Act, 2017. It is said that on 21.11.2020 itself a demand notice was issued by the petitioner. The owner of the goods, Mrs. Sweetie Goyal accepted the liability and paid the tax and penalty to the tune of Rs.90,250/- on the same day, just after one minute of physical verification.

7. A complaint was received from one Mr. Raj Kumar, Patna, Bihar against the petitioner in respect of interception of the vehicle no. HR38AA-6286 on 19.11.2021-. The Additional Commissioner, SIB, Commercial Tax, Ayodhya Region, Ayodhya vide Office Letter No. 624 dated 11.02.2021 directed the Joint Commissioner, SIB to conduct a preliminary inquiry in respect of the allegation made by said Mr. Raj Kumar, Patna, Bihar after requiring from the said complainant an affidavit in respect of the allegation and giving opportunity of hearing.

8. As the complainant had not given his complete address, mobile number, e-mail id etc, notice sent to him was returned back and no contact could be established from the complainant, Mr. Raj Kumar. However, the owner of Shri Raj Dharmkanta, where the vehicle was weighted after it got loaded, told that the vehicle no. HR38AA-6286 was weighted on 16.11.2020, without any load on it. The allegations made in the complaint were independently enquired into.

9. The driver of the vehicle no. HR38AA-6286 was Mr. Nagendra Kumar, who was carrying the material of Khatoo Shyam Traders. He produced invoice issued by Khatoo Shyam Traders to Mr. Mukesh Kumar, Delhi dated 18.11.2020 after the vehicle was intercepted. During the preliminary inquiry, the petitioner was issued show-cause-notice to which she submitted her reply. Thereafter, the preliminary inquiry report dated 29.10.2021 was submitted.

10. The finding of the preliminary technical inquiry report would disclose that no physical verification of the vehicle in question was conducted and, no entry was made regarding physical inspection of vehicle no. HR38AA-6286. The petitioner submitted fabricated evidence in respect of the physical verification of the vehicle, mentioning wrong facts. The CD in which videos were made by the petitioner would disclose that there was no plastic scrap in the vehicle no. HR38AA-6286, which was a container and the plastic scrap of 7.00 tons would not have been loaded in the said container. Whole material was metal scrap.

It was further noticed in the technical inspection report that according to the report generated by the petitioner, the physical inspection of the vehicle was conducted on 21.11.2020 at around 5.1 p.m. and soon thereafter, within one minute i.e. at 5.2 p.m., the owner of the goods made payment of the tax and penalty. Notice and order was passed within 28 minutes after physical inspection got done. After technical inquiry report was received, a Three Members Inquiry Committee was constituted. The Three Members Inquiry Committee report dated 28.12.2021 would disclose the following findings recorded in it:-

"(1) Physical verification is not done on the scheduled date.

(2) No record of physical verification is found in prescribed physical verification register.

(3) In complete and manipulated partial physical verification as well as incomplete videography is done by the petitioner for the purpose of tax evasion.

(4) No claim for payment for physical verification.

(5) The so-called incomplete videography of physical verification does not show any traces or evidence of plastic scrap.

(6) The show called incomplete videography shows exclusively the evidence of metal scrap.

(7) The owner of loaded truck deposited the exact amount of tax and penalty just after one minute of manipulated physical verification, even before issuing of show-cause-notice/final assessment order.

(8) The seized truck was a container vehicle (MCV) in which 7.00 ton plastic scrap (in bags or jhall) cannot be loaded because of its huge expanded volume.

(9) Audio clip recorded in mobile regarding conversation between the related parties and departmental officers are also against the petitioner's integrity."

11. In the preliminary inquiry, it was concluded that the seized truck/container no. HR38AA-6286 was loaded with 9.500 tons metal scrap, but the petitioner conspired with the truck owner and converted it into 7.500 tons plastic crap and 2.500 tons metal scrap on which the tax and penalty was imposed and the same was paid by the owner to the extent of Rs. 90,250/- within one minute of the physical inspection, however, the show-cause-notice and final order was passed subsequently.

12. Considering the said two reports i.e. technical and preliminary, the petitioner was placed under suspension by the competent authority vide the impugned order dated 21.04.2022 to secure the proper evidence and fair and impartial disciplinary inquiry against her.

13. As the vehicle in question was carrying 9.500 tons metal scrap, the tax and penalty would have been to the extent of Rs. 10 Lakhs, however, it is alleged that with the collusion and for extraneous reason/consideration, the petitioner had shown 2.500 tons plastic scrap for which the owner paid the tax and penalty within one minute after the inspection. Though the inquiry was set up after receiving the complaint from said Mr. Raj Kumar, but the subsequent technical inquiry report and preliminary inquiry report would disclose that all the relevant materials and evidence have been taken into account, including the reply submitted by the petitioner, before come to the preliminary findings against the petitioner.

14. Heard Mr. Vivek Raj Singh, learned Senior Advocate, assisted by Mr.

Avinash Chandra, representing the petitioner, as well as Mr. Sandeep Sharma, learned Standing Counsel, representing the respondents-State Authorities, and gone through the entire record.

15. On behalf of the petitioner, Mr. Vivek Raj Singh, learned Senior Advocate, submits that no preliminary inquiry could have been instituted on complaint of Mr. Raj Kumar, as the same was not supported by an affidavit, and his whereabouts and details could not be known later on, therefore, the said complaint was anonymous one. It is stated that the Government had issued Orders dated 09.05.1997 and 01.08.1997 that anonymous complaint should not be entertained. However, if the complaint is received from some important person then it should be ensured that whether it was actually sent by the said important person. If anonymous complaint is received from any other source, the affidavit of the complainant should be sought and, he should be directed to provide evidence in that regard. The Government issued again Order on 19.04.2012 that the earlier orders issued by it on 09.05.1997 and 01.08.1997 should be strictly complied with. It is, therefore, submitted that since the complaint was anonymous one, without being accompanied by an affidavit, the preliminary inquiry ought not to have been set up, and further action, taken pursuant to the preliminary inquiry, including placing the petitioner under suspension and setting up the departmental inquiry, are to be quashed.

16. The next submission made on behalf of the petitioner by the learned Senior Advocate is that the petitioner passed order imposing tax and penalty of Rs.90,250/- in exercise of quasi-judicial power. The said order has not been challenged in the revision or appeal and the same has attained finality, therefore, the departmental proceedings cannot be set in motion on the basis of the said quasi-judicial order dated 21.11.2020. The learned Senior Advocate, appearing for the petitioner, places reliance upon the following cases:-

1. (1993) 2 SCC 56 (Union of India and others Vs. K.K. Dhawan);

2. (1999) 7 SCC 409 (Zunjarrao Bhikaji Nagarkar Vs. Union of India and others);

17. On the other hand, Mr. Sandeep Sharma, learned Standing Counsel, submits that the suspension order dated 21.04.2023 as well as disciplinary proceedings initiated are based on preliminary inquiry report and substantial evidence collected regarding misconduct and malafide exercise of power by the petitioner. If some complaint is received regarding misconduct of a Government servant though it is not supported by an affidavit, the Department is not barred to independently enquire into the matter of grave misconduct such as committed by the petitioner. It is submitted that the Government Orders dated 09.05.1997 and 01.08.1997 define general guidelines and norms related to general complaint disposal mechanism. If the allegations have been independently enquired into, and it has been found that the Government servant prima facie has committed grave misconduct, the Department is not barred from initiating the departmental proceedings for such misconduct against a Government servant. It is further stated that if a Government servant, functioning as quasi-judicial authority, passes an order in malafide exercise of the power, for extraneous consideration, and such allegations have been prima facie found to be correct in the preliminary inquiry, the departmental proceedings are to be instituted against such an employee, and he/she cannot get away by saying that the order was passed by him/her in exercise of quasi-judicial power, and since the same has not been challenged in revision or appeal, no disciplinary proceedings can be instituted against him/her.

18. I have considered the submissions advanced by the learned Senior Advocate, on behalf of the petitioner, as well as learned Standing Counsel, on behalf of the respondents.

19. Before proceeding with the merit of the case, some developments, which have taken place in the present case, are required to be taken note of, which are as follows:-

(i) When this writ petition was instituted, the coordinate Bench passed an interim order on 28.11.2022 to the extent that till the next date of listing, operation and effect of the impugned order dated 21.04.2022 would remain stayed. However, the respondents were given liberty to proceed with the disciplinary proceedings, without being influenced by the findings recorded in the interim order dated 28.11.2022. The respondents were also given liberty to post the petitioner at any place, considering the fact that disciplinary proceedings are pending against her.

(ii) The petitioner challenged the said interim order by filing intra-Court Special Appeal Defective No. 40 of 2023, which was allowed by the Division Bench vide judgment and order dated 01.02.2023, setting-aside the interim order dated 28.11.2022 whereby the coordinate Bench had given liberty to the respondents to proceed with the disciplinary proceedings, without being influenced by the findings recorded in the interim order dated 28.11.2022 as well as the liberty to the respondents to post the petitioner at any place, considering the fact that the disciplinary proceedings were pending against her. Paras 26, 27, 28 and 29 of the judgment and order dated 01.02.2023 passed by the Division Bench in intra-Court Special Appeal Defective No. 40 of 2023 are extracted herein below:-

"(26) The disciplinary proceedings against the appellant have been initiated merely because the assessee has deposited the penalty within a very short span of time which raised a suspicion with regard to the penalty order passed by the appellant. In Zunjarrao Bhikaji Nagarkar (Supra), the Hon'ble Supreme Court has categorically held that the disciplinary proceedings against an officer cannot take place on information, which is vague and indefinite and suspicion has no role to play in such matters when the department has taken a conscious decision not to challenge the order passed by the appellant and has allowed the same to attain finality. Prima facie, it appears at this stage that the disciplinary proceedings cannot be drawn against the appellant to punish her for having passed the aforesaid order.

(27) In view of the aforesaid discussion, we are of the view that the respondents ought not to have been given liberty to proceed with the disciplinary proceedings against the appellant and to post her anywhere considering the facts that the disciplinary proceedings are pending against her.

(28) Accordingly, the instant special appeal is allowed. The order dated 28.11.2022 passed by the Hon'ble Single Judge in Writ-A No. 7888 of 2022 : Anjali Chaurasia Vs. State of U.P. and 5 others, so far as it provides that "Respondents are at liberty to proceed with the disciplinary proceedings, without being influenced by the findings recorded in this order. The respondents are also at liberty to post the petitioner at any place, considering the fact that disciplinary proceedings are pending against her" is hereby set-aside.

(29) It is clarified that while deciding the case on merits, Hon'ble Single Judge shall not be guided or influence by any observations made hereinabove, which have been made only for the purposes of disposal of the instant appeal.

(iii) The State Government had challenged the said order before the Supreme Court by filing Special Leave to Appeal No.9042 of 2023, and the Supreme Court has passed the following order on 18.05.2023 :-

"Issue notice.

Mr. Pankaj Singh, learned counsel appearing on caveat accepts notice on behalf of the sole respondent.

Respondent may file counter affidavit within six weeks. Petitioner will have two weeks' time thereafter to file rejoinder affidavit.

As an interim measure, it is provided that the disciplinary proceedings against the respondent may continue, however, no final decision would be taken without leave of this Court.

We further request the learned Single Judge of the High Court to decide the writ petition expeditiously, subject to other matters on Board.

It goes without saying that parties shall co-operate in the hearing of the writ petition.

List the matter after expiry of ten weeks."

(iv) The petitioner has been issued the charge-sheet on 06.07.2022. The petitioner, with the purposes of delaying the enquiry against her, had been demanding documents which have not been cited in the charge-sheet as evidence. The petitioner has written various letters and all the evidence and material, relied on by the Department in support of the charge-sheet, have been supplied to the petitioner. The petitioner had made inspection of the documents, which were permitted to her, but the facts, as narrated in the writ petition itself, would disclose that every time effort was made by the petitioner, to delay the proceedings, and in the meantime, she could secure the interim order dated 28.11.2022, and the order dated 01.02.2023 passed by the Division Bench.

20. If a complaint is received against an employee for grave misconduct without affidavit, the said complaint would not debar the Department to look at the allegation independently and conduct a preliminary inquiry with respect to the same. In the present case, the technical report as well as preliminary inquiry report would suggest the grave misconduct by the petitioner, as pointed out above. It is not the case of the petitioner that except for anonymous complaint, there is no evidence against the petitioner. The petitioner was fully associated with during conduct of preliminary inquiry, and the Three Members Committee has submitted a report regarding gross misconduct of the petitioner. Therefore, I am of the view that there is no violation of the Government Orders dated 09.05.1997 and 01.08.1997, as contended by the learned Senior Advocate on behalf of the petitioner. The disciplinary proceedings have been initiated against the petitioner on the basis of the departmental preliminary inquiry report, and not on the basis of the complaint and, therefore, there is no illegality in initiation of the departmental proceedings against the petitioner. If a Government servant, exercising quasi-judicial function, passes an order, which is illegal, with malafide intention, for extraneous purposes, and where there is corruption involved, the Department is not precluded to proceed with the disciplinary proceedings against such an employee, if the order has not been challenged in revision/appeal. The judgments, cited by the learned Senior Advocate on behalf of the petitioner, are in respect of judicial officers where no such finding in the preliminary inquiry regarding extraneous consideration was recorded and, therefore, those judgments have no bearing in the facts of the present case.

21. The petitioner has been placed under suspension vide impugned order dated 21.04.2022. The suspension does not amount to punishment but an employee is placed under suspension to hold disciplinary inquiry against such an employee in a free, fair and impartial manner. When allegation against the delinquent employee are serious regarding his/her misconduct, the suspension order cannot be said to be invalid. Under Rule-7 of the Uttar Pradesh Government Servant

(Discipline and Appeal) Rules, 1999, there is power of placing an employee under suspension, and I am of the view that the power has been exercised correctly for valid and cogent reasons for placing the petitioner under suspension.

22. In view thereof, I find no merit and substance in the present petition, which is hereby dismissed. It is, however, provided that the Department should proceed with the departmental inquiry expeditiously and conclude the same, preferably within a period of four months, subject to full cooperation by the petitioner. Any observation, made herein above, would not influence the inquiry officer, who should conduct the inquiry independently and record his finding based on the evidence.

2. The order impugned in this petition dated 23.03.2023 passed by the respondent

No. 1/Deputy Director of Consolidation, Ayodhya in Revision No. 1864/2020530423000014 (Bajrang Pratap Singh and others vs. Jagdamba Singh) is an order of remand, whereby, the respondent No. 1 after interfering in the order dated 22.06.2019 passed by the Settlement Officer of Consolidation as also the orders dated 29.06.2016 and 11.07.2016 passed by the Consolidation Officer remanded the matter back to the Court of Consolidation Officer, Sadar, Ayodhya for deciding the matter afresh. The relevant portion of the order impugned dated 23.03.2023 on reproduction reads as under:-

3. A perusal of relevant observation, quoted above, as also the recitals of the order impugned dated 23.03.2023, this Court finds that the parties to the litigation after remand were not required to adduce evidence in support of their case. Despite this, the respondent No. 1 vide order impugned dated 23.03.2023 remanded the matter back to Consolidation Officer for decision afresh on merits.

4. Sri Khan, learned Senior Advocate while assailing the order impugned dated 23.03.2023 stated that the respondent No. 1 in the given facts and circumstances of the case ought not to have remanded the matter back to the Consolidation Officer for deciding the case afresh on merits as he himself is empowered to decide it on merits in view of settled legal proposition. In support of his submission, Sri Khan has placed reliance on the judgment dated 10.02.2023 passed by this Court in WRIT-B No. 108 of 2023 (Angad Pratap Singh And Others vs. Deputy Director Consolidation/ Addl. District Magistrate (F/R), Lakhimpur Kheri And Others).

5. He further submitted that the Revisional Court/Authority under the Act of 1953 is having wide powers. Power under this section of the Act of 1953 includes power to examine any finding whether it is of fact or law. D.D.C. while hearing revision under this section is fully empowered to reassess the evidence and record its own findings of fact by virtue of Section 48 Explanation 3. Under this section of the Act of 1953, the D.D.C. has power to reassess the findings of subordinate consolidation Authorities. Reference has also been made to the judgment of this Court Prabhu Dayal v. D.D.C./Additional District Magistrate (Administration) Manipuri and Another, 2018 (140) RD 460 (All.); Musuttu vs. D.D.C. and others, 2018 (140) RD 505 (All.); Dhooram vs. Deputy Director of Consolidation, Bagpat, 2006 (100) RD 505 (H.C.).

6. Sri Khan further submitted that in the dispute between the parties, the Consolidation Officer passed the order on 10.10.1957. Thereafter, an order on 18.02.1958 was passed by the Settlement Officer of Consolidation and thereafter the Deputy Director of Consolidation passed the order on 09.08.1958. Being aggrieved, a Writ Petition No. 3389 of 1958 was filed by Smt. Lekhrabi, which was dismissed as abated. The dispute between the parties regarding rights over the land, in issue, could not be settled. To adjudicate the issue involved, a suit for declaration was filed under Section 229-B/209 of U.P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act, 1950 (in short "Act of 1950"), which was registered as Case No. 1168. Another suit was also filed in the same provisions, which was registered as Case No. 1099/75-519/1102. During pendency of the said suits, second operation of consolidation was started on 15.11.1980 and since then, the dispute between the parties has not been decided. The matter has again been remanded back to the Consolidation Officer concerned for decision afresh. This remand order has been passed after lapse of about 43 years from initiation of second consolidation proceedings. He says that in view of settled principle of law, the respondent No. 1 ought to have decided the issues involved in the case including the issue of maintainability after taking note of Section 11-A and 49 of U.P. Consolidation of Holdings Act, 1953 (in short "Act of 1953"). Thus, interference of this Court is required in the matter. The prayer is to allow this petition and remand the matter back to respondent No. 1 to consider and decide the issues involved in the case after giving proper opportunity of hearings to the parties to the litigation.

7. Sri R.S. Pandey, learned Senior Advocate has opposed the present petition. He stated that in view of the facts of the case, the order of remand impugned in this petition dated 23.03.2023 is reasonable and justifiable and the same is not liable to be interfered with by this Court, as several issues, which were framed by the Consolidation Officer, ought to have been decided, however, the said issues were not dealt with as required under the law.

8. He submitted that in the similar facts and circumstances, this Court declined to interfere in the order of remand. In support of his submissions, Sri Pandey has placed reliance on the judgment of this Court dated 22.12.2022 passed in the case of Smt. Anju Rajpal and others vs. State of U.P. and others reported in [2023 (41) LCD 626]. However, on being asked, Sri Pandey could not dispute the power of Deputy Director of Consolidation, as observed in various judgments of this Court and that of Hon'ble Apex Court.

9. Considered the submission of learned counsel for the parties and perused the record.

10. This Court is not entering into the factual aspect of the case, as it is dealing with the order of remand in the light of submissions advanced by the learned Counsel for the respective parties.

11. From the facts, in brief, indicated above, as also on record, it is apparent that second consolidation proceedings, in which the order impugned dated 23.03.2023 has been passed, were initiated on 15.11.1980 and the Consolidation Officer has decided the case on 29.06.2016. Thereafter, the Settlement Officer of Consolidation/Appellate Authority has decided the appeal No. 1031/2016540423000069 (Ram Prakash Singh vs. Jagdamba Singh) filed under Section 11(1) of the Act of 1953 on 22.06.2019 and the order impugned has been passed by the respondent No. 1 on 23.03.2023. From these facts, it is apparent that this order of remand has been passed after lapse of about 43 years.

12. It is undisputed that the respondent No. 1 under the Act of 1953 particularly in view of language couched under Section 48 of the Act of 1953 is having wide power, as observed in the judgment(s), referred above.

13. From the judgment relied upon by Sri Pandey passed in the case of Smt. Anju Rajpal (supra), it reflects that this Court after considering the facts of the case and taking note of the provisions of Indian Partnership Act, 1932, in para 41 and 46, observed as under:-

"41. In order to arrive at a correct conclusion, the provisions contained in the Partnership Act i.e. Sections 5, 6, 14, 37, 42 to 49 have to be taken note in context with the evidence relating to the different partnership firms constituted from time to time and their respective dissolution. Since none of the two authorities i.e.

Consolidation Officer and the Settlement Officer of Consolidation had taken a look at the problem with the correct lens of the legal provisions and this aspect has attracted the attention of the DDC who after noticing the same found that the matter required a re-look and for the said purpose it has remanded the matter.

46. It may be true that the DDC is the final Court of fact and law in but in the present case where the matter has proceeded upon a tangent and ignoring the principles as attracted to the dispute in question de-hors the provisions of the Partnership Act and the parties have also not brought on record the requisite evidence which could support the respective contentions, hence, this Court is of the clear view that it cannot be said that the order of remand is bad in the given circumstance."

14. From the above quoted paragraphs of the judgment passed in the case of Smt. Anju Rajpal (supra), it is apparent that on the ground of requirement of evidence for deciding the dispute between the parties, the remand order was not interfered. Thus, the judgment relied upon by Sri Pandey is distinguishable on facts and would not apply in the instant case.

15. The Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Bechan Pandey and others vs. Dulhin Janki Devi reported in AIR 1976 SC 866, on the plea of remand of case, after considering Rule 23 of Order 41 CPC as also the age of litigation between the parties, in paragraph 9, made some observation, which on reproduction reads as under:-

"9. Prayer has also been made by Mr Sarjoo Prasad for the remand of the case to the trial court as the plaintiff-appellants were labouring under the impression that the defendant-respondents had not disputed that the land in dispute was the same as had been purchased by Maina Kuer. It is urged that because of that impression, material which could have clearly proved that the land in dispute was the same as had been purchased by Maina Kuer could not be brought on the record. We find it difficult to accede to this prayer. As already pointed out above, the contesting defendants clearly stated in their written statements that Maina Kuer was not the auction purchaser of the land in dispute. In view of that unequivocal averment, there was no valid basis for the assumption or the impression under which plaintiff-appellants are stated to have laboured. Apart from that, we find that the suit out of which the present appeal has arisen was filed as long ago as January 1950. From the title of the appeal we find that many of the original plaintiffs and defendants have during this period of more than a quarter of century departed and are no more in the land of the living, having bowed as it were to the inexorable law of nature. They are now represented by their legal representatives. To remand the suit to the trial court would necessarily have the effect of keeping alive the strife between the parties and prolonging this longdrawn litigation by another round of legal battle in the trial court and thereafter in appeal. It is time, in our opinion, that we draw the final curtain and put an end to this long meandering course of litigation between the parties. If the passage of time and the laws of nature bring to an end the lives of men and women, it would perhaps be the demand of reason and dictate of prudence not to keep alive after so many years the strife and conflict started by the dead. To do so would in effect be defying the laws of nature and offering a futile resistance to the ravage of time. If human life has a short span, it would be irrational to entertain a taller claim for disputes and conflicts which are a manifestation of human frailty. The courts should be loth to entertain a plea in a case like the present which would have the effect of condemning succeeding generation of families to spend major part of their lives in protracted litigation. It may be appropriate in the above context to reproduce what was said in the case of Sant Naroin Mathurv.Rama Krishna Mission[(1974) 2 SCC 730] : (p. 737, para 15)

“It is time, in our opinion, that we draw the final curtain on this long drawn litigation and not allow its embers to smoulder for a further length of time, more so when the principal contestants have all departed bowing as it were to the inexorable law of nature. One is tempted in this context to refer to the observations of Chief Justice Crewe in a case concerning peerage claim made after the death without issue of the Earl of Oxford. Said the learned Chief Justice:

‘Time hath its revolutions; there must be a period and an end to all temporal things — an end of names, and dignities and whatsoever is terne, and why not of De Vere? For where is Bohun? Where is Mowbray? Where is Mortimer? Why, which is more and most of all, where is Plantagenet? They are all entombed in the urns and sepulchres of mortality. What was said about the inevitable end of all mortal beings, however eminent they may be, is equally true of the affairs of mortal beings, their disputes and conflicts, their ventures in the field of love and sport, their achievements and failures for essentially they all have a stamp of mortality on them.’

One feels tempted to add that if life like a dome of many-coloured glass stains the white radiance of eternity, so do the doings and conflicts of mortal beings till death tramples them down."

16. In the case of Arvind Kumar Jaiswal (Dead) through L.R. vs. Devendra Prasad Jaiswal reported in 2023 SCC OnLine SC 146, after considering the relevant provisions of order 41 CPC viz. Rule 23, 23A, 24 and 25, on the issue of remand of a case, observed as under:-

"3.An order of remand prolongs and delays the litigation and hence, should not be passed unless the appellate court finds that a re-trial is required, or the evidence on record is not sufficient to dispose of the matter for reasons like lack of adequate opportunity of leading evidence to a party, where there had been no real trial of the dispute or there is no complete or effectual adjudication of the proceedings, and the party complaining has suffered material prejudice on that account. (See:Shivakumarv.Sharanabasappa, (2021) 11 SCC 277; andBachahan Deviv.Nagar Nigam, Gorakhpur,(2008) 12 SCC 372)Where evidence has already been adduced and a decision can be rendered on appreciation of such evidence, an order of remand should not be passed remitting the matter to the lower court, even if the lower court has omitted to frame issue(s) and/or has failed to determine any question of fact, which, in the opinion of the appellate court, is essential. The first appellate court, if required, can also direct the trial court to record evidence and finding on a particular aspect/issue in terms of Rule 25 to Order XLI, which then can be taken on record for deciding the case by the appellate court.

4.In the present case, the High Court, as the first appellate court, which is also a court of fact and law, has passed an order of remand observing that the judgment of the trial court was, in its opinion, not written as per the mandate of Section 33 and Rule 4(2) and 5 of Order XX of the Code, as the discussion and reasoning on certain aspects was not detailed and elaborate."

17. Considering the power of DDC under Section 48 of the Act of 1953, this Court is of the view that the observations made by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the judgments passed in the case of Bechan Pandey (supra) and Arvind Kumar Jaiswal (supra) are liable to be taken note of.

18. In the instant case regarding the dispute between the parties, the first order was passed by the Consolidation Officer on 10.10.1957 and dispute continued between them and on 15.11.1980, the second consolidation proceedings were started and the order dated 23.03.2023, an order of remand, has been passed by DDC after about 43 years from initiation of second consolidation proceedings. Moreover, the parties to the litigation in the instant case are not required to adduce evidence, as appears from the impugned order. The DDC has not observed that the evidence on record is not sufficient to dispose of the matter or re-trial is required.

19. Taking note of the aforesaid including the power of DDC and the age of litigation between the parties, this Court is of the view that interference in the impugned order dated 23.03.2023 is required. Accordingly, the order impugned dated 23.03.2023 is hereby set-aside. The matter is remanded back to the Deputy Director of Consolidation to consider and decide all the issues including the issue(s) related to applicability of Section 11-A and 49 of the Act of 1953, after affording proper opportunity of hearing to the parties to the litigation preferably within a period of six months from the date of production of certified copy of this order, if there is no other legal impediment in this regard. While conducting the proceedings, the Authority concerned is directed to avoid unnecessary adjournments to either party.

20. The writ petition is allowed in above terms.

A. Constitution of India – Article 226 – Writ – Maintainability – Mutation proceeding – Scope of interference – Held, orders of mutation are passed on the basis of possession and since no substantive rights of the parties are decided, ordinarily a writ petition would not be entertainable against such orders unless the same are found to be wholly without jurisdiction or have the effect of rendering findings which are contrary to title already decided by a competent court. (Para 35)

B. Revenue Law – UP Land Revenue Act, 1901 – Sections 33, 39 & 225 – Mutation – Nature and Scope – Held, mutation proceedings is summary in nature – It does not have the effect of creating or extinguishing the title nor has any presumptive value on title and it only enables the person concerned to pay land revenue – Mutation orders would not debar institution of any suit by any person having right in the holding in a competent court. (Para 36, 41 and 46)

C. Interpretation of Statute – General Clauses Act, 1897 – Section 2(42) – Word 'Person' – Whether St. include in it or not – Held, The definition of "person" is not exclusive but inclusive and considering the language used in the Statute with reference to the proceedings giving rise to the present case, in the opinion of the Court, the 'St.' would fall in the definition of 'person'. (Delivered by Hon'ble Kshitij Shailendra, J.)

1. Heard Shri Brahmanand Pandey, the petitioner who has appeared in-person, learned Standing Counsel for the State-respondents and Shri Anand Prakash Srivastava, learned counsel for the respondent no.5-private respondent.

2. This writ petition has been filed by one Brahmanand Pandey S/o Rajmani Pandey, R/o Village-Sasna Vishwanathpur, Police Station-Maharajganj, Pargana Gopalpur, Tehsil-Sagadi, District-Azamgarh who has appeared in-person before this Court.

3 The reliefs claimed in the present writ petition are for quashing of the order dated 25.10.2017 passed by the Collector/District Magistrate-Azamgarh as well as the order dated 21.10.2020 passed by the Commissioner, Azamgarh, Division-Azamgarh.

4. The Collector/District Magistrate, Azamgarh has rejected the case filed by the petitioner under Sections 33/39/225 of U.P. Land Revenue Act-1901 (hereinafter referred to as "the Act-1901") (Brahmanand Pandey v. State of U.P.) vide impugned order dated 25.10.2017 whereas vide impugned order dated 21.10.2020, the Commissioner, Azamgarh, Division Azamgarh has dismissed the revisions filed under Section 219 of the Act-1901.

5. A perusal of record shows that the petitioner filed a case under Sections 33/39/225 of the Act-1901 against the State of U.P. before the Collector/District Magistrate-Azamgarh alleging therein that certain land covered by Gata No.1149 (renumbered as Gata Nos.329 and 330) is recorded in the names of Ram Prakash, Rajpat Pandey and Hari Mohan as their 'bhumidhari' land. The allegations made in the memo of the said application/case are to the effect that various private persons (including the aforesaid) were obstructing the public passage and have succeeded to get wrongful entries made in their names contrary to the revenue/consolidation records. Three prayers were made in the said application/case:-

- (1). The Gata Nos.329 and 330 be declared as "parti/Government land";
- (2). Any other relief which may be found appropriate in favour of the petitioner be passed;
- (3). The cost of litigation be awarded to the petitioner from the opposite party (State).

6. The order of Collector dated 25.10.2017 shows that for the purposes of disposal of the case, reports from Sub Divisional Officer-Sagadi and Settlement Officer of Consolidation were called for and that the Settlement Officer of Consolidation, in his report dated 26.11.2015, has mentioned that land covered by Gata No.330 area 0.030 Kari has been recorded in the names of Rajpati and Radhika, heirs of Sadanand vide order dated 12.11.1971 passed by the Consolidation Officer in Case No.10459 whereas in respect of Gata No.329 measuring 0.015, the aforesaid two names were continuing in the Khatauni since before. The order further indicates that the State and opposite parties were heard whereas nobody was present to argue the matter on behalf of the petitioner and, therefore, the allegations levelled by the petitioner were not proved and there were contrary reports in favour of the opposite parties, consequently, the case was dismissed.

7. Challenging the order of Collector/District Magistrate-Azamgarh dated 25.10.2017, the petitioner filed revision before the Commissioner, Azamgarh, Division-Azamgarh which was also dismissed vide order dated 20.10.2020.

8. The contention of the petitioner is to the effect that the aforesaid land continued to be recorded in the consolidation record as "Government land", however, the respondent no.5 and various other persons succeeded to get their names recorded in the revenue records and, therefore, the said fraudulent entries are liable to be expunged and the land should be declared as belonging to the "Government". The petitioner has referred to various revenue records and has tried to impress the Court that the private persons have usurped the Government land.

9. Per contra, learned Standing Counsel submits that the orders impugned are perfectly in accordance with law, based upon documentary evidence available with the courts below and, therefore, they do not require any interference.

10. Shri A.P. Srivastava, who has put in appearance on behalf of respondent no.5, has argued that the writ petition arising out of the proceedings under Sections 33/39/225 of the Act-1901 is not maintainable as the same are 'summary in nature' and even otherwise, it has come on record that the names of the private persons including the respondent no.5 were recorded in the consolidation as well as revenue records on the basis of order dated 12.11.1971 passed by the Consolidation Officer in Case No.10459. Shri Srivastava has further argued that the petitioner has no locus in the matter as neither in his case under Sections 33/39/225 of the Act-1901 nor in the writ petition he has disclosed as to how he is affected by conferring of "Bhumidhari" rights on the contesting respondents and other persons. He further submits that this is not a writ petition in the nature of public interest where anybody can agitate any issue nor is there involvement of element of any public interest. Shri Srivastava further submits that pure findings of fact have been recorded by the revisional court in its order and, in any case, if the petitioner or other person is aggrieved by the entries in the revenue records which are based upon the decision by the competent court of law in statutory proceedings, he has a right to get his grievance redressed in appropriate proceedings of declaration of rights and Sections 33/39 of the Act -1901 is a provision which is meant only for correction of records, in which, the entries have been recorded by clerical mistake or omissions, which is not the case here. He further submits that the beneficiaries including the respondent no.5 continue in actual and physical possession over the land in dispute and the petitioner is trying to harass the "bhumidhars" and, hence, this writ petition is nothing but an abuse of the process of law.

11. Before this Court proceeds to examine this case either on the ground of maintainability or on merits, it would be appropriate to reproduce Sections 33, 39 and 225 of the Act-1901, which are extracted as under :-

"33. The annual registers. - (1) The Collector shall maintain the record-of-rights, and for that purpose shall annually, or at such longer intervals as the [State Government] may prescribe, cause to be prepared an amended [register mentioned in Section 32.]

The [register] so prepared shall be called the annual register.

[(2) The Collector shall cause to be recorded in the annual register -

(a) all successions and transfers in accordance with the provisions of Section 35; or

(b) other changes that may take place in respect of any land ; and shall also correct all errors and omissions in accordance with the provisions of Section 39 :

Provided that the power to record a change under clause (b) shall not be construed to include the power to decide a dispute involving any question of title.]

(3) [No such change or transaction shall be recorded without the order of the Collector or as hereinafter provided, of the Tahsildar or [the Kanungo].]

[(4) The Collector shall cause to be prepared and supplied to every person recorded as bhumidhar, whether with or without transferable rights, assami or Government Lessee a Kisan Bahi (Pass book) which shall contain -

(a) such extract from the annual register prepared under sub-section (1) relating to all holdings of which he is so recorded (either solely or jointly with others);

(b) details of grants sanctioned to him; and

(c) such other particulars as may be prescribed :

Provided that in the case of joint holdings it shall be sufficient for the purpose of this sub-section of Kisan Bahi (Pass book) is supplied to such one or more of the recorded co-sharers as may be prescribed.

(4-A) The Kisan Bahi (Pass book) referred to in sub-section (4) shall be prepared in such manner and on payment of such fee, which shall be realisable as arrears of land revenue, as may be prescribed.

(5) Every such person shall be entitled, without payment of any extra fee, to get any amendment made in the annual register under sub-section (2) incorporated in his Kisan bahi (Pass book.)]

(6) The State Government may make rules to carry out the purposes of this section, including, in particular, rules, prescribing the mode of reception in evidence, and of proof in judicial proceedings, of entries in the [Kisan Bahi (Pass Book)], and the mode of its revision and authentication up-to-date and for issue of duplicate copies thereof, and the fees, if any, to be charged for any of the said purposes.

(7) In this section, 'prescribed' means prescribed by rules made by the State Government.

(8) Nothing in sub-sections (4) to (7) shall apply in relation to any area which is either under consolidation operations or under record operations."

39. Correction of mistakes in the annual register. - (1) An application for correction of any error or omission in the annual register shall be made to the Tahsildar.

(2) On receiving an application under sub-section (1) or any error or omission in the annual register coming to his knowledge otherwise, the Tahsildar shall make such inquiry as appears necessary and then refer the case to the Collector, who shall dispose it of, after deciding the dispute in accordance with the provisions of Section 40.

[Provided that nothing in this sub-section shall be construed to empower the Collector to decide a dispute involving any question of title.]

(3) The provisions of sub-sections (1) and (2) shall prevail, notwithstanding anything contained in the U.P. Panchayat Raj Act, 1947.

225. Collector to have all powers of an Assistant Collector. - The Collector may exercise all or any of the powers of an Assistant Collector under this or any other Act for tire time being in force."

12. A bare perusal of aforesaid Sections makes it clear that under Section 33 of the Act-1901, entries on the basis of succession and transfer in accordance with Section 35 can be made and also correction of all errors and omissions can be made by the Collector. Section 39 is a provision for correction of mistakes in the actual register whereas Section 225 has nothing to do with the controversy involved in the present case, rather, it only speaks that "Collector may exercise all or any of the powers of an Assistant Collector under the Act".

13. Keeping in view the aforesaid provisions, averments made in the original case under Sections 33/39/225 of the Act-1901 would show that a declaration was sought from the Collector to the effect that land covered by Gata Nos.329 and 330 be declared as "parti/Government land", therefore, from the bare perusal of the memo of the case, it is found that it was not a case for correction of records rather the petitioner had sought a declaration in favour of State Government and that is why he arrayed only 'State Government' as a 'party', though allegations upon private persons including the predecessors-in-interest of the private respondent no.5 were also levelled.

14. I find from the perusal of the record that during the pendency of the aforesaid case, the Collector-Azamgarh passed an order dated 19.10.2015 after taking into consideration the reports of Sub Divisional Officer and Settlement Officer of Consolidation concerned that in the revenue records, the names of Radhika, Ram Prakash, Santosh Kumar and Jhinka were recorded as "bhumidhar with transferable rights" and, therefore, the said persons shall be "affected parties" and hence, their impleadment in the proceedings is necessary. Accordingly, the Collector directed impleadment of the aforesaid persons and issued notices to them.

15. The Court finds that two revisions bearing nos.47/A C-205015000000037 of 2019-20 (Brahmanand Pandey v. District Magistrate, Azamgarh & Anr.) and Revision No.50/A C-201715001297 of 2017-20 (State of U.P. through District Magistrate-Azamgarh v. Ram Prakash & Ors.) were filed against the order dated 25.10.2017 passed by the Collector/District Magistrate-Azamgarh. From perusal of the aforesaid, it is clear that even the 'State of U.P.' was aggrieved by the order dated 25.10.2017 passed by the Collector/District Magistrate-Azamgarh.

16. The petitioner has drawn attention of the Court to the order passed by this Court in Writ C No.18613 of 2019 (Brahmanand Pandey v. State of U.P. & 4 Ors.) which was filed and decided at the stage when, vide order dated 23.01.2019, the Commissioner had decided the revision filed by the petitioner but did not decide the revision filed by the State, though both the revisions were filed against the order 25.10.2017. Under the said circumstances, the writ petition was allowed by this Court vide order dated 02.07.2019 with the following directions:-

"Accordingly, the petition is allowed, the impugned order dated 23.01.2019, is set-aside to the extent it dismisses petitioners revision as, not maintainable. It is directed that petitioners revision be connected with, and be decided along with Revision No.306/A, State of U.P. Vs. Ram Prakash & others."

17. In pursuance of the aforesaid order of this Court dated 02.07.2019, both the revisions were clubbed and decided together by the Commissioner vide impugned order dated 21.10.2020.

18. During the course of arguments, a query was raised by the Court from the petitioner, Shri Srivastava and learned Standing Counsel as to whether against the impugned order dated 25.10.2020 passed by the Commissioner, the State has filed any writ petition or not. Answer to the said query was that nobody was aware about the filing of the writ petition by the State.

19. Under such circumstances, the Court has examined the counter affidavit 27.08.2021 filed by the State, the deponent whereof is one Vasudev Ji, the then Consolidation Officer, Azamgarh. Certain relevant paragraphs of the said counter affidavit are reproduced hereinbelow:-

"11. That the contents of paragraph 4 of the writ petition are not admitted as stated, hence denied. In reply thereto it is submitted that the Respondent No. 1, Commissioner, Azamgarh Division, Azamgarh after affording due opportunity of hearing to the parties as well as after scrutinizing entire material available on record has passed the order dated 21.10.2020, which is perfectly just, legal and valid order and there is no illegality in it.

12. That the contents of paragraph 5 of the writ petition are not admitted as stated, hence denied. In reply thereto it is submitted that, in the enquiry report submitted before the District Magistrate, Azamgarh it has been mentioned that Gata No.329 Area 0.015 hectares had been registered in the name of Rajapati and Radhika sons Sadanand from the previous year Khatauni and on the basis of the same the District Magistrate and Commissioner Azamgarh Division, Azamgarh has also mentioned the same in their orders.

13. That the contents of paragraph 6 of the writ petition are not admitted as stated, hence denied. In reply thereto it is submitted that, in CH Form 41 Gata No. 329 area 0.015 hectare was carved out from Old Gata No. 1149/2 area 0.015 hectare. The names of Rajpati and Radhika sons of Sadanand were recorded in Khata No.78 of CH Form 45 which was excluded from the Consolidation proceedings, therefore, on that basis the same was recorded as "Parti/Rakba" in the Special Column. In view of above it is clear that, the aforesaid land belongs to tenure holder and is not the land of Gram Samaj or Parti account.

14. That the contents of paragraphs 7 and 8 of the writ petition are not admitted as stated, hence denied. In reply thereto it is submitted that, by means of order dated 12.11.1971 passed in the Case No. 10459 passed by the Consolidation Officer the name of Sabhapati Panchanan was expunged and the name of Radhika and Rajpati sons of Sadanand were recorded over New Gata No. 330 area 0.030 Kari of Old Gata No. 1149/3 which is evident from the enquiry/inspection report dated 26.11.2015.

15. That the contents of paragraph 9 of the writ petition are not admitted as stated, hence denied. In reply thereto it is submitted that the orders passed by the authority concerned is perfectly just, legal and valid order and there is no illegality in it.

16. That the contents of paragraphs 10 and 11 of the writ petition are not admitted as stated, hence denied. In reply thereto it is submitted that the order passed by District Magistrate dated 25.10.2017 as well as by Commissioner, Azamgarh Division, Azamgarh dated 21.10.2020 perfectly, just, legal and valid order and there is no illegality or infirmity in it.

18. That the contents of paragraphs 17 to 19 of the writ petition need no comments being related to passing of the order in Civil Appeal No. 9996/2018 and passing of the orders by District Magistrate, Azamgarh as well as Commissioner, Azamgarh Division, Azamgarh which are perfectly just, legal and valid orders and requires no interference by this Hon'ble Court.

20. That the grounds taken in paragraph 21 of the writ petition are not sustainable in the eyes of law as such the writ petition as framed and filed by the petitioner being devoid of merit is liable to be dismissed."

20. Therefore, in view of the clear stand taken by the State in the counter affidavit which was filed on behalf of respondent nos.1 to 4 to the effect that the orders impugned have been passed on the basis of record of Arazis validly settled in favour of the private respondents and other persons and that the impugned orders are perfectly in accordance with law, not calling for any interference, necessary inference can be drawn to the effect that the "State" is not aggrieved by the dismissal of its revision by the Commissioner vide order dated 21.10.2020. The consequence of such stand taken before this Court on oath is that the State, Commissioner, the Collector, the Settlement Officer of Consolidation as well as the Sub Divisional Officer consider the entire records in favour of the private persons who have been arrayed in a very strange capacity in the writ petition as "Hari Mohan Pandey (beneficiary and representatives of many other beneficiaries)".

21. In view of the above, once the original relief claimed in the proceedings under Sections 33/39/225 of the Act-1901 was to make a declaration of the land covered by Gata Nos.329 and 330 as "Government Land" and the Government has acquiesced to the merits of the impugned orders passed by the Commissioner, on the one hand by not challenging the same despite dismissal of its revision and, on the other hand, by taking a clear stand in the counter affidavit that the orders impugned are perfectly in accordance with law which do not call for any interference and that the rights in the aforesaid land have been settled in favour of the private persons on the basis of judicial/statutory proceedings, the Court does not find any good ground to entertain the claim made by stranger (petitioner), particularly, when absolutely no disclosure about the petitioner's personal grievance has been made either in the entire writ petition or in the pleadings exchanged between the parties.

22. The petitioner has tried to refer to the objections filed by the private respondents in the court of Commissioner and has submitted that "what was not stated before the Collector was not open to be stated before the Commissioner". He has also argued that Commissioner was not competent to reappreciate the evidence. He has further argued that the documents filed by the private respondents were not sufficient for holding their rights as valid. In support of his submissions, the petitioner has placed reliance upon the judgement of Supreme Court in the case of Rukmini Amma Saradamma v. Kallyani Sulochana & Ors. reported in (1993) 1 S.C.C. 499 with special reference to "paragraph 20" which is quoted hereinbelow:-

"20. We are afraid this approach of the High Court is wrong. Even the wider language of Section 20 of the Act cannot enable the High Court to act as a first or a second court of appeal. Otherwise the distinction between appellate and revisional jurisdiction will get obliterated. Hence, the High Court was not right in re-appreciating the entire evidence both oral or documentary in the light of the Commissioner's report (Exts. C-1 and C-2 mahazar). In our considered view, the High Court had travelled far beyond the revisional jurisdiction. Even by the presence of the word "propriety" it cannot mean that there could be a re-appreciation of evidence. Of course, the revisional court can come to a different conclusion but not on a re-appreciation of evidence; on the contrary, by confining itself to legality, regularity and propriety of the order impugned before it. Therefore, we are unable to agree with the reasoning of the High Court with reference to the exercise of revisional jurisdiction. "

23. He has also placed reliance upon another judgment of Supreme Court in the case of Hiya Associates & Ors. v. Nakshatra Properties Private Limited reported in (2018) 18 S.C.C. 358 with special reference to "paragraph 19' which is quoted as below:-

"19. In our opinion, the documents sought to be filed by the defendants (revision petitioners) were neither relevant nor material for deciding the legality and correctness of the order impugned in the revision could be decided one way or the other without the aid of any additional document but on the basis of material already on record keeping in view the law laid down by this Court in several decided cases on the issue in question. Indeed, if the executing court could decide the issue finally at its level, the Revisional Court too could do the same at it level"

24. This Court is not inclined to give any benefit of the aforesaid decisions to the petitioner as the judgment in the case of Rukmini (supra) had been delivered in a case arising out of Kerala Buildings (Lease and Rent Control) Act -1965 where the Supreme Court was examining the scope of interference by the High Court in exercise of revisional jurisdiction with reference to "re-appreciation of evidence". Similarly in the case of Hiya Associates & Ors. (supra), the Supreme Court was dealing with an issue as to whether a revisional court can decide the matter by taking additional evidence.

25. In the present case, a perusal of the impugned order dated 25.10.2017 passed by the Collector/District Magistrate-Azamgarh shows that the report dated 26.11.2015 submitted by the Settlement Officer of Consolidation was relied upon by the Collector before deciding the matter. Similarly, the Commissioner has also placed reliance upon the same report. The findings recorded by the Collector in the impugned order dated 25.10.2017 to the aforesaid effect are as follows:-

"प्रकरण के न्यायसंगत निस्तारण हेतु उप जिलाधिकारी सगडी एवं बन्दोबस्त अधिकारी चकबन्दी से आख्या प्राप्त की गयी। बन्दोबस्त अधिकारी चकबन्दी की आख्या दिनांक 26.11.2015 में यह उल्लेख किया गया है कि गाटा सं० 330 क्षेत्र 0.030 कडी चकबन्दी अधिकारी के मु०न० 10459 आदेश दिनांक 12.11.1971 द्वारा सभापति ए पंचानन्द का नाम खारिज करके राजपति ए राधिका पुत्रगण सदानन्द का नाम आया है व गाटा सं० 329 क्षेत्र 0.015 पूर्व में राजपति ए राधिका पुत्रगण सदानन्द का नाम पूर्व खतौनी के आधार पर ही चला आ रहा है।"

26. The findings recorded by the Commissioner in its impugned order dated 21.10.2020 are as follows:-

"8- अवर न्यायालय की पत्रावली पर उपलब्ध बन्दोबस्त अधिकारी चकबन्दी की आख्या दिनांक 26.11.2015 के अवलोकन से स्पष्ट है कि आकार पत्र-11 के खाता सं० 154 सभापति, पंचानन्द पुत्रगण गजाधर के नाम अन्य गाटों के साथ 1149/3 रकबा/ 0.030 अंकित है। खाते पर चकबन्दी अधिकारी के मु०न० 10459 निर्णय दिनांक 12.11.1971 द्वारा गाटा सं० 1149/3 रकबा 0.030 से सभापति ए पंचानन्द का नाम खारिज करके राजपति ए राधिका पुत्रगण सदानन्द का नाम दर्ज होने का आदेश अंकित है। गाटा सं० 1149/3 रकबा 0.030 का नया नम्बर 330/0.030 हे० बन्दोबस्त बनाते समय कायम किया गया है एवं आकार पत्र.11 के खाता सं०.129 राजपति, राधिका पुत्रगण सदानन्द के नाम अन्य गाटों के साथ 1149/2 रकबा 0.020 हे० अंकित है बन्दोबस्त बनाते समय 1149/2 रकबा 0.020 का नया नम्बर 329/0.015 कायम किया गया है। इस प्रकार गाटा सं०. 330/0.030 चकबन्दी अधिकारी के मु०न०. 10459 निर्णय दिनांक 12.11.1971 द्वारा सभापति ए पंचानन्द का नाम खारिज करके राजपति, राधिका पुत्रगण सदानन्द का नाम आया है एवं गाटा सं० 329/0.015 में राजपति राधिका पुत्रगण

28. Therefore, the Court finds that the entire record conferring "bhumidhari rights" upon private persons including the respondent no.5 is in their favour and, merely, because the petitioner, having no locus in the matter is trying to agitate the issue, which even otherwise, does not fall within the "zone of consideration" under Sections 33/39 of the Act-1901, the reliefs claimed cannot be granted.

29. Before arriving at the conclusion, it would be necessary to refer certain provisions of law as well as the authorities dealing with powers of the court in the matters arising out of proceedings for correction of revenue records.

30. Section 40-A of the Act-1901 provides for filing of suit in a competent court for relief on the basis of a right in a holding and the orders passed under Sections 33, 35, 39, 40, 41 and 54 of the Act-1901 would not create any bar in any such suit. Section 40-A is extracted as under:-

"[40A. Saving as to title suits. - No order passed under Section 33, Section 35, Section 39, Section 40, Section 41 or Section 54 shall bar any suit in a competent Court for relief on the basis of a right in a holding.]"

31. Since as of now, the provisions of U.P. Revenue Code-2006 have also come into operation, identical provision is found under Section 39 of the Code-2006 reads as follow:-

"39. Certain orders of revenue officers not to debar a suit. -No order passed by a Revenue Inspector under section 33, or by a Tahsildar under sub-section (1) of Section 35 or by a Sub-Divisional Officer under sub-section (3) of section 38 or by a Commissioner under sub-Section (4) of Section 38 shall debar any person from establishing his rights to the land by means of a suit under section 144."

32. The question of the maintainability of a writ petition against orders passed in mutation proceedings has come up before this Court earlier and it has consistently been held that normally the High Court in exercise of its discretionary jurisdiction does not entertain writ petitions against such orders which arise out of summary proceedings. In the case of Jaipal Vs. Board of Revenue, U.P., Allahabad & Ors., Air 1957 ALL 205, notice was taken of the consistent practice of this Court not to interfere with the orders made by the Board of Revenue in cases in which the only question at issue was whether the name of the petitioner should be entered in the record of rights. The observations made in the judgment in this regard are as follows:-

"3. ...It has however been the consistent practice of this Court not to interfere with orders made by the Board of Revenue in cases in which the only question at issue is whether the name of the petitioner should be entered in the record of rights.

That record is primarily maintained for revenue purposes and an entry therein has reference only to possession. Such an entry does not ordinarily confer upon the person in whose favour it is made any title to the property in question..."

33. The question with regard to the maintainability of a writ petition arising out of mutation proceedings fell for consideration in the case of Sri Lal Bachan Vs. Board of Revenue, U.P., Lucknow & Ors.2 2002 (93) RD 6 and it was held that the High Court does not entertain a writ petition under Article 226 of the Constitution of India for the reason that mutation proceedings are only summarily drawn on the basis of possession and the parties have a right to get the title adjudicated by regular suit. The observations made in the judgment are extracted below:-

"11. This Court has consistently taken the view as is apparent from the decisions of this Court referred above that writ petition challenging the orders passed in mutation proceedings are not to be entertained. To my mind, apart from there being remedy of getting the title adjudicated in regular suit, there is one more reason for not entertaining such writ petition. The orders passed under Section 34 of the Act are only based on possession which do not determine the title of the parties. Even if this Court entertains the writ petition and decides the writ petition on merits, the orders passed in mutation proceedings will remain orders in summary proceedings and the orders passed in the proceedings will not finally determine the title of the parties."

34. Reiterating a similar view in the case of Bindeshwari Vs. Board of Revenue & Ors., 2002 (1) AWC 498, it was stated that mutation proceedings do not adjudicate the rights of parties and orders passed in the said proceedings are always subject to adjudication by the competent Court and therefore a writ petition against an order in mutation proceedings would not be entertainable. It was observed as follows:-

"11. ...The present writ petition arising out of the summary proceeding of mutation under Section 34 of U.P. Land Revenue Act, cannot be entertained under Article 226 of the Constitution of India. The mutation proceedings do not adjudicate the rights of the parties and orders passed in the mutation are always subject to adjudication by the competent Court."

35. The settled legal position that orders of mutation are passed on the basis of possession and since no substantive rights of the parties are decided, ordinarily a writ petition would not be entertainable against such orders unless the same are found to be wholly without jurisdiction or have the effect of rendering findings which are contrary to title already decided by a competent court, was reiterated in the case of Vinod Kumar Rajbhar Vs. State of U.P. and others, 2021 (1) ADJ 792.

36. Taking note of the nature and scope of mutation proceedings which are summary in nature and also the fact that orders in such proceedings are passed on the basis of possession of the parties and no substantive rights are decided, this Court in Buddh Pal Singh Vs. State of U.P. & Ors. reported in 2012 (5) ADJ 266, restated the principle that ordinarily a writ petition in respect of orders passed in mutation proceedings is not maintainable. It was observed as follows:-

"7. It is equally settled that the orders for mutation are passed on the basis of the possession of the parties and since no substantive rights of the parties are decided in mutation proceedings, ordinarily a writ petition is not maintainable in respect of orders passed in mutation proceedings unless found to be totally without jurisdiction or contrary to the title already decided by the competent Court. The parties are always free to get their rights in respect of the disputed land adjudicated by competent Court."

37. The proposition that mutation entries in revenue records do not create or extinguish title over land nor such entries have any presumptive value on title has been restated in a recent decision in the case of Bhimabai Mahadeo Kambekar Vs. Arthur Import and Export Company & Ors. (2019) 3 SCC 191, placing reliance upon earlier decisions in Balwant Singh Vs. Daulat Singh (1997) 7 SCC 137 and Narasamma Vs. State of Karnataka (209) 5 SCC 591. The observations made in the judgment are as follows:-

"6. This Court has consistently held that mutation of a land in the revenue records does not create or extinguish the title over such land nor has it any presumptive value on the title. It only enables the person in whose favour mutation is ordered to pay the land revenue in question. (See Sawarni v. Inder Kaur, Balwant Singh v. Daulat Singh and Narasamma v. State of Karnataka)."

38. Reference may also be had to the judgment in Faqruddeen Vs. Tajuddin (2008) 8 SCC 12, wherein it was held that the revenue authorities cannot decide questions of title and that mutation takes place only for certain purposes. The observations made in this regard are as follows:-

"45. Revenue authorities of the State are concerned with revenue. Mutation takes place only for certain purposes. The statutory rules must be held to be operating in a limited sense... It is well-settled that an entry in the revenue records is not a document of title. Revenue authorities cannot decide a question of title."

39. A similar observation was made in Narain Prasad Aggarwal Vs. State of Madhya Pradesh, (2007) 11 SCC 736 wherein it was held as follows:-

"19. Record-of-right is not a document of title. Entries made therein in terms of Section 35 of the Evidence Act although are admissible as a relevant piece of evidence and although the same may also carry a presumption of correctness, but it is beyond any doubt or dispute that such a presumption is rebuttable..."

40. In Union of India and others Vs. Vasavi Cooperative Housing Society Limited & Ors. (2014) 2 SCC 269, the principle that entries in revenue records do not confer any title was reiterated and referring to the previous decisions in Corpn. Of the City of Bangalore v. M. Papaiah, (1989) 3 SCC 612; Guru Amarjit Singh v. Rattan Chand (1993) 4 SCC 349 and H.P. v. Keshav Ram (1996) 11 SCC 257, it was stated thus :-

"21. This Court in several judgments has held that the revenue records do not confer title. In Corpn. Of the City of Bangalore v. M. Papaiah this Court held that: (SCC p. 615, para 5)

"5. ...It is firmly established that the revenue records are not documents of title, and the question of interpretation of a document not being a document of title is not a question of law."

In Guru Amarjit Singh v. Rattan Chand this Court has held that: (SCC p. 352, para 2) '

'2. ...that entries in the Jamabandi are not proof of title.

" In State of H.P. v. Keshav Ram this Court held that: (SCC p. 259, para 5)

"5. ...an entry in the revenue papers by no stretch of imagination can form the basis for declaration of title in favour of the plaintiffs."

41. A similar view was taken in the case of Sawarni (Smt.) Vs. Inder Kaur (Smt.) and others, (1996) 6 SCC 223 and it was observed that the mutation of name in the revenue records does not have the effect of creating or extinguishing the title nor has any presumptive value on title and it only enables the person concerned to pay land revenue. It was stated thus :-

"7...Mutation of a property in the revenue record does not create or extinguish title nor has it any presumptive value on title. It only enables the person in whose favour mutation is ordered to pay the land revenue in question..."

42. The principle that an entry in revenue records is only for fiscal purpose and does not confer title on a person whose name appears in record-of-rights and title to the property can only be decided by a competent Civil Court was reiterated in the decision of Suraj Bhan and others Vs. Financial Commissioner and others (2007) 6 SCC 186 and it was stated as follows :-

"9...It is well settled that an entry in revenue records does not confer title on a person whose name appears in record-of-rights. It is settled law that entries in the revenue records or jamabandi have only "fiscal purpose" i.e. payment of land revenue, and no ownership is conferred on the basis of such entries. So far as title to the property is concerned, it can only be decided by a competent Civil Court..."

43. The legal position that entries in revenue records do not confer any title has been considered and discussed in a recent decisions of this Court in Harish Chandra Vs. Union of India & Ors., 2019 (5) ADJ 212 (DB) and Mahesh Kumar Juneja and another Vs. Additional Commissioner Judicial Moradabad Division and others, 2020 (3) ADJ 104 and it was restated that ordinarily orders passed by mutation courts are not to be interfered in writ jurisdiction as they are summary proceedings, and as such subject to a regular suit.

44. The settled legal position that an entry in revenue records does not confer title on a person whose name appears in record-of-rights and that such entries are only for "fiscal purpose" and no ownership is conferred on the basis thereof and further that the question of title of a property can only be decided by a competent Civil Court has again been restated in a recent decision of the Supreme Court in Jitendra Singh Vs. State of Madhya Pradesh and others, 2021 SCC OnLine SC 802; wherein after referring to the previous authorities on the point in Suraj Bhan Vs. Financial Commissioner, (2007) 6 SCC 186, Suman Verma Vs. Union of India, (2004) 12 SCC 58, Faqrudin Vs. Tajuddin (2008) 8 SCC 12, Rajinder Singh Vs. State of J & K, (2008) 9 SCC 368, Municipal Corporation, Aurangabad Vs. State of Maharashtra, (2015) 16 SCC 689, T Ravi

Vs. B. Chinna Narasimha, (2017) 7 SCC 342, Bhimabai Mahadeo Kambekar Vs. Arthur Import & Export Co.(2019) 3 SCC 191; Prahlad Pradhar Vs. Sonu Kumhar, (2019) 10 SCC 259 and Ajit Kaur Vs. Darshan Singh (2019) 13 SCC 70, it was observed thus :-

"8. In the case of Suraj Bhan v. Financial Commissioner (2007) 6 SCC 186, it is observed and held by this Court that an entry in revenue records does not confer title on a person whose name appears in record-of-rights. Entries in the revenue records or jamabandi have only "fiscal purpose", i.e., payment of land revenue, and no ownership is conferred on the basis of such entries. It is further observed that so far as the title of the property is concerned, it can only be decided by a competent Civil Court. Similar view has been expressed in the cases of Suman Verma v. Union of India (2004) 12 SCC 58; Faqrudin v. Tajuddin (2008) 8 SCC 12; Rajinder Singh v. State of J&K, (2008) 9 SCC 368; Municipal Corporation v. State of Maharashtra, (2015) 16 SCC 689; T. Ravi v. B. Chinna Narasimha (2017) 7 SCC 342; Bhimabai Mahadeo Kambekar v. Arthur Import & Export Co. (2019) 3 SCC 191; Prahlad Pradhan v. Sonu Kumhar, (2019) 10 SCC 259; and Ajit Kaur v. Darshan Singh, (2019) 13 SCC 70."

45 The aforesaid proposition of law has recently been reiterated by this Court in the case of Smt. Kalawati v. Board of Revenue & Ors. reported in 2022 (4) ADJ 578. Similar view has been taken in another recent decision of this Court in the case of Alladin v. State of U.P. & Ors. reported in 2023 (3) ADJ 41.

46. Therefore, the orders impugned in the present writ petition would not debar institution of any suit by any person having right in the holding in a competent court. The person can be private, individual or even the State. Here reference to the definition of "person" contained in the General Clauses Act-1897 can also be made. Section 2(42) of the said Act defines "person" in the following terms:-

"2(42)- 'Person' shall include any company or association or body of individuals, whether incorporated or not."

47. The definition of "person" is not exclusive but inclusive and considering the language used in the Statute with reference to the proceedings giving rise to the present case, in the opinion of the Court, the "State" would fall in the definition of "person" who having failed to challenge the impugned orders by means of writ petition, on one hand, and accepting the same as valid as aforesaid, before this Court by means of the counter affidavit and advancing arguments, the challenge made to the impugned orders at the behest of a stranger (petitioner) having no concern with the property in dispute is liable to be discarded.

48. This Court is of the considered view that this is not a fit case where any of the exceptions stands attracted requiring interference in exercise of powers under Article 226 of the Constitution of India, particularly, when the main party to be aggrieved by the impugned orders or by the nature of relief claimed in the original proceedings under Sections 33/39 of the Act-1901 is the "State of U.P." which, on the one hand, has not challenged the impugned orders and, on the other hand, has acquiesced to the orders impugned by terming them as based upon documentary evidence and perfectly, in accordance with law.

49. The petitioner, apart from having no locus in the matter and even otherwise, having failed to make a case for interference in view of the record of "bhumidhari rights" settled in favour of the private respondents and other beneficiaries and further in the light of law laid down by the Apex Court and this Court, I am not inclined to interfere in the orders impugned.

50. The writ petition is, accordingly, dismissed. No order as to costs.

Civil Law – Registration Act, 1908 – Section 38 – UP Jail Manual, 2022 – Para 654 – Execution and registration of sale-deed – Vender, who want to sell the land, is in jail – Mandamus sought – High Court directed the Registrar/Sub-Registrar to act in accordance with Section 38 of the Registration Act, 1908 and himself go to Jail in which the convict is confined and take appropriate steps for registration of the said sale deed. (Para 11)

Writ petition disposed of. (E-1)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Rajan Roy, J. & Hon'ble Manish Kumar, J.)

1. Let the Sub-Registrar, Malihabad, Lucknow be impleaded as an opposite party during course of the day.

2. Petitioner is the mother of Budhi Lal, who has been convicted of the offence under Section 302 read with 34 I.P.C. in Sessions Trial No. 471 of 2010 (Case Crime No. 577 of 2009), Police Station Malihabad, District Lucknow and is in prison.

3. Petition has been filed seeking following relief:-

"i) Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of Mandamus thereby commanding and directing the opposite party no. 2 i.e. District Magistrate, Lucknow to decide the representation of the petitioner dated 29.08.2022 and permit to the petitioner to get execution of registered power of attorney from her son namely Budha Lal @ Budhi Lal in the interest of justice."

4. We had heard this matter at length on earlier date i.e. 06.4.2023 and passed the following order :-

"This petition has been filed seeking following main prayer:-

"(i) Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus thereby commanding and directing the opposite party No.2 i.e. District Magistrate, Lucknow to decide the representation of the petitioner dated 29.08.2022 and permit to the petitioner to get execution of registered power of attorney from her son namely Budha Lal @ Budhi Lal in the interest of justice."

Petitioner is mother of Budha Lal @ Budhi Lal, who has been convicted in S.T. No.471 of 2010 arising out of Case Crime No.577 of 2009, under Section 302 read with 34 IPC, Police Station- Malihabad, District- Lucknow and has been sentenced to death subject to its confirmation by the High Court. On account of which, he is in jail. Son of the petitioner, who is convict as of now, owns some land and he has not been able to challenge his conviction before the High Court on account of paucity of funds. The petitioner-mother says that if a Power of Attorney is executed by her son in her favour for selling of his land, then sale consideration can be used for contesting the judgement before the High Court. In these circumstances, this petition has been filed.

Learned counsel for the petitioner relies on Section 38 of the Registration Act, 1908, which reads as under:-

"38. Persons exempt from appearance at registration-office.?(1) (a) A person who by reason of bodily infirmity is unable without risk or serious inconvenience to appear at the registration-office, or

(b) a person in jail under civil or criminal process, or

(c) person exempt by law from personal appearance in Court, and who would but for the provisions next hereinafter contained be required to appear in person at the registration-office, shall not be required so to appear.

(2) In the case of every such person the registering officer shall either himself go to the house of such person, or to the jail in which he is confined, and examine him or issue a commission for his examination."

According to the said provisions, a person who by reason of bodily infirmity is unable without risk or serious inconvenience to appear at the registration-office or a person in jail under civil or criminal process, shall not be required so to appear, i.e., the appearance referred in Section 36 & 37 of the said Act, 1908 for the purposes of registration.

The contention is that Sub-Registrar may visit the son of the petitioner in jail for registration of the Power of Attorney. We are of the opinion that it is the son who has to decide as to whether he wants to execute a Power of Attorney in favour of his mother for the purpose preferred in the petition or not and if he does, then a power of attorney will have to be executed and will have to be signed by the son of the petitioner and such other persons as may be required in law. We find that exemption from appearance at the registration office is only for the purpose of registration but unless the Power of Attorney is executed as per the desire of the petitioner's son, who is in jail, there is no question of Sub-Registrar visiting the son in jail for the aforesaid purpose of registration. We find that as per Para 654 of U.P. Jail Manual, 2022 there is a provision, according to which every prisoner may at the discretion of the Superintendent be permitted to sign and attest a Power of Attorney or other statements, conveyances concerning his properties. If the said provision is operative, then, the Superintendent of Jail where the son of the petitioner is lodged should ask him as to whether he wants to execute any Power of Attorney and if he does, then, the opposite parties shall arrange for execution of such Power of Attorney and its signature by the son of the petitioner and thereafter, the Sub-Registrar with whom Power of Attorney is to be registered will have to be intimated by the petitioner and the Jail Authorities concerned whereupon he shall exercise his powers under Section 38 of the Registration Act, 1908. Let this exercise be done and the Court be informed about the result on the next date.

Having said so we find that the reason for execution of Power of Attorney as noticed hereinabove is quite disturbing. If the son of the petitioner is in jail and he does not have requisite finances to file an appeal or to engage a private counsel, then, an appeal can be preferred from Jail itself and the Superintendent of Jail and other Authorities can give him proper advice in the matter.

We accordingly, direct that the District Legal Aid Services Authority and its Secretary at Lucknow shall look into the matter and do the needful in this regard. The District Judge, Lucknow is directed to verify facts in light of averments made in the writ petition and do the needful so far as provision of legal aid to the convict is concerned. The details of the criminal case in respect to which he is lodged in Jail, have been mentioned in this order and also in the memo of writ petition. The Superintendent of Jail where the son of the petitioner is lodged shall also do the needful and inform the Court accordingly.

The Senior Registrar of this Court at Lucknow to communicate this order to the District Judge, Lucknow and also Secretary, District Legal Aid Services Authority along with photo copy of this writ petition only for the aforesaid purpose.

Name of Shri Pracheesh Pandey, learned A.G.A. shall be printed whenever the case is next listed along with learned Chief Standing Counsel and he shall also apprise the Court about the result of the aforesaid exercise on the next date and communicate this order to the Jail Superintendent concerned for compliance.

Put up this case on 26th April, 2023."

5. Learned Standing Counsel does not have instructions as to what steps have been taken by the Secretary, District Legal Aid Services Authority and the District Judge, as was ordered.

6. As regards the other issue of registration of sale deed, petitioner counsel says that sale deed has been prepared and now it is to be signed by the son of the petitioner, who is in prison.

7. Record reveals that the Senior Registrar of this Court has communicated our order dated 06.04.2023 to Secretary, District Legal Aid Services Authority and District Judge, Lucknow, however, it is not clear as to what steps have been taken by them in this regard.

8. In view of our earlier order, the District Legal Aid Services Authority shall provide proper advise to the convict referred hereinabove as also assistance, if necessary, for filing an appeal against his conviction through an Advocate on the panel of said authority, unless off-course the convict wants to engage a private lawyer. If he is agreeable to file an appeal through a panel lawyer, then the Jail Superintendent shall inquire from him as to whether he still wants to sell his land for the purposes of filing the appeal, if he does not, then off-course, the matter shall rest and execution & registration of the sale deed, as suggested by the petitioner would not be required, however, if he says that he wants to sell the land, if it is recorded in his name, then, further action would be required. In this context, we find that there is a provision in para 654 in U.P. Jail Manual, 2022, which reads as under:-

" Permission to sign documents:-
Every prisoner may at the discretion of the Superintendent be permitted to sign and attest a power of attorney or other statements, conveyances concerning his properties."

9. Learned Standing Counsel says that the Jail Manual, 2022 is in operation.

10. We may also refer, in this regard, to the provisions of Section 38 of the Registration Act, 1908, which reads as under:-

"38. Persons exempt from appearance at registration-office:-

(1) (a) A person who by reason of bodily infirmity is unable without risk or serious inconvenience to appear at the registration-office, or

(b) a person in jail under civil or criminal process, or

(c) person exempt by law from personal appearance in Court, and who would but for the provisions next hereinafter contained be required to appear in person at the registration-office, shall not be required so to appear.

(2) In the case of every such person the registering officer shall either himself go to the house of such person, or to the jail in which he is confined, and examine him or issue a commission for his examination."

11. After the Jail authorities facilitate the execution & signing of the document of the sale deed as per para 654 of U.P. Jail Manual, 2022, the Jail Superintendent and the petitioner shall inform the Registrar/Sub Registrar for appropriate steps under Section 38 of the Registration Act, 1908 and the said Registrar/Sub-Registrar would act in accordance with Section 38 of the Registration Act, 1908 and shall himself go to Jail in which the convict is confined and take appropriate steps for registration of the said sale deed.

12. Let the exercise of execution and signing of sale deed be completed within fifteen days of receipt of certified copy of this order, if the occasion so arises and, thereafter, for the purposes of registration of the said document, the Sub Registrar, Malihabad, Lucknow or whosoever is the the Sub Registrar having jurisdiction over the matter would visit the District Jail, Lucknow, where the son of the petitioner is said to be lodged within fifteen days so that the sale deed is registered in terms of the aforesaid provisions unless there is any legal impediment in this regard in which case, he shall inform the Jail Superintendent in writing, who in turn shall inform the son of the petitioner.

13. Ms. Shagun Srivastava, Holding Brief appearing for the State shall communicate this order to concerned for compliance.

14. The Senior Registrar of this Court at Lucknow shall communicate this order to the District Judge, Lucknow and Secretary, District Legal Aid Services Authority, Lucknow for compliance.

15. Petition is disposed of in the aforesaid terms.

A. Civil Law - U.P. Urban Planning & Development Act-1973 - Section 41(3)-Once the Commissioner, in his order dated 02.05.1994, held the constructions raised by the respondent no.5 as unauthorized, illegal and contrary to law and the said order, though challenged by means of writ petition, but the challenge failed in terms of dismissal of the petition on 16.12.2005 and then order dated 30.01.2006 passed by the Commisisoner on review was further set aside by this Court on 14.05.2012 and was not interferred with by the Supreme Court while dismissing Special Leave Petition on 09.11.2012, there is nothing on record to show or establish that the constructions raised by the respondent no.5 were lawful. The effect of these orders cannot be ignored whether the order impugned is an order on merit or simply an order of remand-The dispute travelled from a personal tussle in between the private persons on the spot to the District Adminstration, then Police Authorities, then Development Authority, then Commissioner of the Division, then this Court in various writ petitions, then again the Commissioner, followed by another intervention by this Court, then Supreme Court and, thereafter, revision before the State Government giving rise to the present writ petition. Once, the land became disputed in this manner, then, even as per the Development Authority, compounding is not permissible-Insofar as the direction of remand is concerned, certainly the Development Authority, being sub-ordinate to the State Government, as per the Scheme of 1973, would take up the matter of compounding of constructions and would deal with the same in one or the other way and such a decision would give rise to further rounds of litigation by either side-At this juncture, the legal maxim "interest republicae ut sit finis litium" which means that it is in the interest of State that there must be an end to the litigation-litigation once finalized, leaves no doubt that compounding is not permissible in the present case and, therefore, the impugned order remanding the matter to the Development Authority for deciding the compounding issue is unsustainable and contrary to factual and legal position well established on record.

The writ petition is allowed. (E-6)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Kshitij Shailendra, J.)

1. This writ petition has been filed challenging the order dated 07.01.2016 whereby the State Government, in exercise of powers under Section 41(3) of the U.P. Urban Planning & Development Act-1973 (hereinafter referred to as 'the Act-1973'), has decided a Revision No.33/12 (Smt.

Lakshmi Singh v. Allahabad Development Authority & Ors.) remanding the matter to the Allahabad Development Authority with a direction to dispose off the compounding map submitted by the revisionist (Lakshmi Singh) in 2005, after providing opportunity of hearing to all the parties and in the light of Rules, Bye-laws and Government Orders relating to compounding.

2. The petitioner has also claimed quashing of all proceedings pursuant to the application filed by the respondent no.5 for compounding of unauthorized constructions with a further prayer to direct the Development Authority to demolish the unauthorized constructions allegedly raised by the respondent no.5 allegedly over the petitioner's plot.

Facts of the case.

3. The Secretary of Anant Avas Sahkari Samiti Limited (in short 'Society') purchased free-hold land covered Arazi Nos. 91, 92, 93, 125 and 126/1, Mauja Muirabad, Allahabad from one Mr. Theodere Hughes, vide registered sale deeds dated 22.10.1986 and 28.01.1987. The petitioner purchased a plot bearing No.12-A over Arazi Nos.91 and 126/1 measuring 25' x 70', vide registered sale deed 16.07.1987 from the Society. It is stated that Mr. Shiva Mohan Singh Advocate, husband of respondent no.5 (Lakshmi Devi), committed a criminal trespass over the petitioner's plot on 12.01.1990 and, thereafter, again on 14.04.1990 in association with one Mr. Rama Shanker Misra, although the said persons neither had any contract for sale in their favour nor any sale deed executed by the Society. Description of various plots transferred by the Society in favour of other persons has also been given in the writ petition. It is pleaded that name of the petitioner was mutated in the revenue records pursuant to the sale deed dated 16.07.1987 and that it was only in the year 1996 that the Allahabad Development Authority included the aforesaid land under the master plan for construction of residential houses.

4. It is pleaded that land of Arazi No.126-अ belonging to one Minhazuddin was 19 Biswa since 1913 A.D. onwards and his rights, after his death, were succeeded by Smt. Shaiyma Begum, Smt. Asma Bibi and Mr. Shamim Ahmad and, thereafter, the said persons, in collusion with the concerned Lekhpal of Tehsil Sadar, Chail, Allahabad, tempered the revenue records in the year 1982 and illegally got the area of Plot No.126-अ increased from 19 Biswa to 33 Biswa. It is pleaded that Arazi No.126-अ is adjacent to the land covered by Arazi Nos.126/1 and 91. It is further pleaded that husband of respondent no.5 and Mr. Rama Shankar Mishra committed criminal trespass over the petitioner's land on 12.01.1990 at the strength of muscle power and dug foundation with an intent to usurp the petitioner's land alongwith the adjoining land belonging to other plot-holders and this act of the aforesaid persons led the petitioner to move complaints before the District Magistrate as well as police authorities who, by order dated 12.01.1990 stopped the act of encroachment and digging exercise. It is pleaded that second time criminal trespass over the petitioner's land was committed on 14.04.1990 which was also complained of to the district authorities and because of their intervention, the act of trespass could be restrained. Necessary documentary evidence regarding the aforesaid acts has been annexed alongwith the writ petition. It is further pleaded that later on, a contract for sale was got executed in respect of two plots having dimensions 20' X 57' and 50' X 57' on 29.05.1990 and 16.06.1990 in favour of Smt. Mangla Mishra D/o Mr. Rama Shanker Mishra and the respondent no.5 showing the land covered by the said agreements to be situated in Arazi No.126-अ. It is pleaded that on the dates of trespass i.e. 12.01.1990 and 14.04.1990, the said persons did not had any legal deed/agreement in their favour.

5. It is further pleaded that on 27.06.1990, the petitioner approached the Vice-Chairman of the Allahabad Development Authority requesting demolition of unauthorized constructions raised by the aforesaid persons and, consequently, the Development Authority issued a demolition notice dated 25.09.1990 under Section 27(1) of the Act-1973. Apprehending demolition, two sale deeds were executed respectively in favour of Mangla Mishra and respondent no.5 on 29.05.1990 and 16.06.1990. Various proceedings on administrative side have been referred by the petitioner in the writ petition, however, since the matter relates to validity of constructions raised by respondent no.5 vis-a-vis an issue of compounding of the said constructions, I would deal with only those aspects which are relevant for pronouncing the judgement on the said issue.

6. It is further pleaded that apprehending demolition, a sale deed was executed in favour of respondent no.5 on 18.01.1991 through Attorney Aftab Ahmad and that the State filed a case under Sections 33/39 of the U.P. Land Revenue Act-1901 against the aforesaid legal heirs Smt. Shaiyma Begum, Smt. Asma Bibi and Shamim Ahmad, in which, the Sub Divisional Officer, Sadar, Chail, Allahabad by order dated 12.03.1991 restored back the area of Arazi No.126-अ to its original figure i.e. 19 Biswas which was entered into the revenue records. It is further pleaded that since the sale deed dated 18.01.1991 executed through the attorney was in relation to the 22 biswas, pursuant to the order dated 12.03.1991, the power of attorney executed in the year 1989, the contracts for sale executed in the year 1990 and the sale deed executed in the year 1991 rendered non-est in the eyes of law. It is further pleaded that pursuant to the demolition notice issued by the Development Authority, partial constructions raised by the respondent no.5 were demolished on 18.03.1991 and 21.03.1991 and against demolition orders two appeals were filed before respondent no.2, being Appeal Nos.19/1991 and 24/1991.

7. The aforesaid appeals were dismissed by the Commissioner, Allahabad, Division-Allahabad vide order dated 02.05.1994 and the following conclusion was drawn:-

“विद्वान अधिवक्ताओं की बहस को सुनने तथा पत्रावली पर उपलब्ध कागजातों को देखने के बाद में इस निष्कर्ष पर पहुँचता हूँ कि अपीलकर्ता द्वारा प्रस्तुत मानचित्र अस्वीकृत कर दिया गया था तथा उसके द्वारा बिना मानचित्र स्वीकृत कराये हुए अनाधिकृत निर्माण किया गया था जिसका आंशिक रूप ध्वस्तकरण कर दिया गया था। उसके पश्चात उसके द्वारा प्रस्तुत अपील पर इस न्यायालय द्वारा स्थानादेश दिया गया था। अपीलकर्ता के विद्वान अधिवक्ता यह सिद्ध करने में असमर्थ रहे कि एतद् कार्यवाही विकास प्राधिकरण द्वारा की गयी है। अपीलकर्ता के पति पर बाकायदा नोटिस तामील है क्योंकि उन्हीं के द्वारा मकान का निर्माण कार्य कराया जा रहा था। नियमों में भी ऐसे व्यक्ति पर नोटिस तामील मान्य है। अपीलकर्ता द्वारा कराया गया निर्माण कार्य अनाधिकृत सिद्ध हो चुका है। अतः संयुक्त सचिव द्वारा पारित आदेश दिनांक 25.9.90 तथा 21.3.91 में कोई अनियमितता या अवैधानिकता नहीं है। दोनो अपीलें बलहीन हैं जिसे एतद्वारा निरस्त किया जाता है।”

8. The Commissioner, as such, held that the demolition orders passed on 25.09.1990 and 21.03.1991 were in accordance with law and that the constructions raised by the respondent no.5 had proven to be unauthorized.

9. Challenging the order dated 02.05.1994, the respondent no.5 filed writ petitions being Writ C Nos.21024 of 1994 and 21025 of 1994, in which, an interim order was passed on 06.07.1994 but despite the said interim order, the respondent no.5 raised constructions of three-storeyed building on the spot. The aforesaid writ petitions remained pending and the petitioner being person aggrieved by the unauthorized raising of constructions over his plot, filed an impleadment application as well as certain affidavits. However, the respondent no.5 being petitioner in the aforesaid writ petitions, got the same dismissed as withdrawn on 16.12.2005.

10. After withdrawing the aforesaid writ petitions, the respondent no.5 filed a review application before the Commissioner who, by order dated 30.01.2006, directed that the matter of compounding of constructions be examined by the Development Authority in accordance with law at the rates which were applicable in 2005-2006. Even in the said order, it was clearly recorded that unauthorized constructions were raised by the respondent no.5 and her husband-Shiv Mohan Singh.

11. The petitioner challenged the order dated 30.01.2006 by filing Writ C No.22184 of 2006 (D.B. Kauser & Anr. v. Shiv Mohan Singh & Ors.). This Court, by order dated 14.05.2012, allowed the writ petition and quashed the order dated 30.01.2006 by observing that the compounding map submitted by the respondent no.5 was rejected in the year 1991, against which two appeals were filed before the Commissioner, which were dismissed on 02.05.1994 and, thereafter, writ petition filed against the said order was dismissed as withdrawn on 16.12.2005. The Court further observed that Commissioner had no power to review his previous order and, consequently, it was held that the order dated 30.01.2006 was wholly without jurisdiction.

12. The dismissal order dated 14.05.2012 was challenged by the petitioner of the said writ petition before the Supreme Court by filing Special Leave Petition which was dismissed on 09.11.2012.

13. Thereafter, the respondent no.5 preferred a Revision No.33 of 2012 (Smt. Lakshmi Singh v. Allahabad Development Authority & Ors.) on 21.06.2012 under Section 41(3) of the Act-1973 challenging the order dated 02.05.1994 passed in Appeal Nos.19/1991 and 24/1991. The said revision has been decided by order dated 07.01.2016 which has been impugned in the present writ petition. There is no dispute about the fact that the petitioner was initially not impleaded in the revision, however, impleadment was allowed by the State Government by order dated 15.07.2015 and, consequently, the petitioner was heard by the State Government.

Foundation of the writ petition.

14. The petitioner has assailed the order impugned by taking various factual and legal grounds which shall be dealt with while discussing the rival contentions of the parties. In sum and substance, the writ petition is founded on the premise that once the Development Authority and, thereafter the Commissioner held the constructions raised by the respondent no.5 as illegal and unauthorized and the compounding map was also rejected, against which writ petition was filed which was dismissed as withdrawn and, thereafter, a review application was allowed by the Commissioner but the said order was quashed in petitioner's writ petition by order dated 14.05.2012 which was further affirmed by the Supreme Court, nothing remained to be decided at the level of State Government and it was a simple case where no direction for consideration of compounding issue could be issued by the State Government.

Counter affidavits

15. A counter affidavit has been filed by the respondent no.5 making averments regarding her title pursuant to the Agreement for sale of 1990 and sale deed of 1991 and it is pleaded that dispute regarding ownership of the land cannot be decided by the Development Authority but by civil or revenue court. The allegations of trespass have been denied in the counter affidavit and the order impugned has been supported.

16. A counter affidavit has been filed on behalf of the Allahabad Development Authority as well as its Zonal Officer, stating that the order impugned is an order of remand and the title of the property would be looked into at the time of deciding the issue relating to compounding. Compounding Byelaws of 2009 which came into force w.e.f. 14.01.2010 have been annexed alongwith the said counter affidavit.

17. Various affidavits have been exchanged in the matter, however, I find that their contents are repetitive in nature. Nevertheless, it is necessary to refer to an affidavit dated 08.12.2021 filed by the petitioner alongwith which a report dated 15.09.2021 of Lekhpal, Tehsil-Sadar, Prayagraj has been annexed which reads as follows:-

Contention of the petitioner

18. The contention of the petitioner is that the order impugned has given unbridled license to the Development Authority to act recklessly, capriciously and arbitrarily at its will to compound constructions raised by the law-breakers in defiance of the provisions of the Act-1973; the order impugned ignores the order dated 02.05.1994, passed by the Commissioner, Allahabad, Division-Allahabad, orders dated 16.12.2005 and 14.05.2012 passed by this Court, order dated 09.11.2012 passed by the Supreme Court and has been passed in ignorance of the fact which is established on record that at the time of raising of unauthorized constructions, the respondent no.5 was not having any title over the land and, even otherwise, it stands established that the constructions have been raised during the pendency of the writ petition filed in the year 1994 and over the land of the petitioner which has been fraudulently usurped by the violaters of law. Further argument is that once the constructions have already been found to be illegal and said orders have attained finality, compounding is not permissible. It has been further argued that matter has been unnecessarily remanded to the Development Authority, reopening a closed chapter. The petitioner has referred to various documents to the Court which include the action taken at the level of district administration, police authorities as well as revenue authorities to establish that the respondent no.5 has not only grabbed the petitioner's plot but also raised unauthorized constructions over the land of the petitioner which are contrary to the provisions of the Act-1973.

Contention of the respondent no.5

19. It has been argued on behalf of respondent no.5 that the petitioner is raising a title dispute which is beyond the jurisdiction of the Development Authority and since by the order impugned, the matter of compounding of constructions is yet to be examined, the order impugned needs no interference and, insofar as, title issue is concerned, the petitioner is at liberty to approach civil/revenue court.

Contention of respondent-Development Authority

20. Shri Nisheeth Yadav, learned counsel has vehemently argued that as on today, no decision has been taken by the Development Authority compounding the constructions of respondent no.5 and pursuant to the order of remand, the said aspect would be examined. Shri Yadav has, by referring to Clause 3.2 of the Compounding Byelaws of 2009, argued that no compounding of constructions raised over the disputed plot is permitted and, therefore, while considering the compounding issue, this aspect would also be examined. For a ready reference, relevant portion of Clause 3.2 of the Compounding Byelaws is reproduced hereinbelow:-

“3.2 निम्नलिखित अपराध शमनीय नहीं होंगे:-

3.2.1 सार्वजनिक व अर्ध – सार्वजनिक सुविधायों, सेवाओं एवं उपयोगिताओं यथा – सड़क, रेलवे लाइन, पार्क, ग्रीनवर्ज आदि हेतु आरक्षित अथवा उनसे सम्बन्धित भूमि पर किया गया निर्माण।

3.2.2. महायोजना या जोनल डेवलपमेन्ट प्लान या ले-आउट प्लान या लीज में निर्धारित भू-उपयोग के विपरीत किया गया निर्माण।

3.2.3 अवैध भू-उपविभाजन जिसका नियमितीकरण नहीं हुआ है, के अन्तर्गत स्थित भूखण्ड पर अथवा भवन में किया गया निर्माण।

3.2.4 सरकारी या सार्वजनिक भूमि पर बिना सम्बन्धित विभाग की अनुमति से किया गया निर्माण।

3.2.5 विवादित भूमि पर किया गया निर्माण।”

Contention of learned Standing Counsel

21. It has been argued on behalf of the State that the order impugned is non-injurious to all the parties as the State Government has directed consideration of matter of compounding with a clear stipulation that all the parties shall be provided opportunity of hearing and that an order would be passed by the Development Authority in the light of the relevant Rules, Regulations, Bye-laws and Government Orders.

22. I have heard Ms. Rollie Kausar, petitioner in person who has been substituted after death of her father, i.e. the sole petitioner, Shri C.B. Singh, learned Standing Counsel appearing on behalf of respondent nos.1 and 2, Shri Nisheeth Yadav, learned counsel appearing on behalf of A.D.A. i.e. respondent nos.3 and 4, Shri Prakash Chandra Srivastava, learned counsel appearing on behalf of respondent no.5 and perused the records.

23. Since the issue involved in the writ petition is as to whether the compounding of constructions raised by the respondent no.5 can be considered pursuant to the order of remand and as to whether order of remand is in accordance with law, I would deal with basic concept of compounding of constructions in the light of judicial pronouncements and the provisions contained in the Act-1973.

24. The Act of 1973 does not contain any provision for compounding of constructions. However, there is a provision for composition of offences under Section 32 of the Act 1973 which reads as follows:-

“32. Composition of Offences.- (1)
Any offence made punishable by or under this Act may either before or after the institution of proceedings, be compounded- by ¹[the Vice-Chairman (or any officer authorised by him in that behalf by General or Special order)] on such terms, including any terms as regards payment of a composition fee, as ²[the Vice-Chairman] (or such officer) may think fit.

(2) Where an offence has been compounded, the offender, if in custody, shall be discharged and no further proceedings shall be taken against him in respect of the offence compounded.”

25. The offences arising out of unlawful or unauthorized constructions are described in Section 26 of the Act-1973 which reads as follows:-

“26. Penalties.- (1) Any person who whether at his own instance or at the instance of any other person or any body (including a department of Government) undertakes or carries out development of any land, in contravention of the Master Plan or Zonal Development Plan or without the permission, approval or sanction referred to in Section 14 or in contravention of any condition subject to which such permission approval or sanction has been granted, shall be punishable with fine which may extend to ¹[Fifty thousand rupees], and in the case of a continuing offence, with further fine which may extend to ²[Two thousand five hundred rupees] for every day during which such offence continues after conviction for the first commission of the offence.

(2) Any person who uses any land or building in contravention of the provisions of Section 16 or in contravention of any terms and conditions prescribed by regulations under the proviso to that section shall be punishable with fine which may extend to ³[twenty-five thousand rupees] and in the case of a continuing offence, with further fine which may extend to ⁴[One thousand, two hundred and fifty rupees] for every day during which such offence continues after conviction for the first commission of the offence.

(3) Any person who obstructs the entry of a person authorised under Section 25 to enter into or upon any land or building or molests such person after such entry shall be punishable with imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months, or with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees, or with both.”

26. Further there is a provision of realisation of fine as per Section 31 of the Act-1973 which reads as follows:-

“31. Fines when realised to be paid to the Authority.-All fines realised in connection with prosecutions under this Act shall be paid to the Authority.”

27. Therefore, the offences which can be compounded are the offences of prosecution/fine and there is no provision, under which, unauthorized constructions can be compounded at least under the Act. However, at the same time, the effect of Compounding Bye-laws would also be examined but one thing is clear that even in the Bye-laws of 2009 relied upon by the Development Authority as quoted hereinabove, the word “constructions” has not been mentioned, rather the word “अपराध” (“offence”) has been used, meaning thereby, that even the Bye-laws speak of composition of “offences” and not compounding of “constructions”.

28. This Court finds that there is no provision under the Act, 1973 which entitles the Authority to go for profiteering on an illegal act of encroachment or unauthorized construction in the name of compounding. The compounding contemplated in Section 32 is certainly in respect to offences punishable under the Act. It nowhere provides that once an offence is compounded, an act, which is in violation of Plan, shall also stand regularized or become valid. The effect of compounding is provided in Sub-section (2) of Section 32 that an offender, if in custody, shall be discharged and no further proceedings shall be taken against him in respect to the "offence" compounded. This is with regard to the criminal liability fastened upon the person for committing an offence under the Act, 1973. But the prohibition contained in the Act and statutory obligation upon Authorities to set right a person who has faulted/breached such provision by taking appropriate action, e.g. demolition of building by exercising power under Section 27 has not been made un-operated when an offence is compounded. The proceeding prevented as a result of compounding an "offence" relates to offence and illegality/irregularity so prohibited/controlled under another provision. It may also be noticed that by U.P. Act No. 3 of 1997 (hereinafter referred to as "Act, 1997"), certain other offences have been provided vide Sections 26D and 28A. However, removal of any construction raised in contravention of Plan and removal of encroachment etc. are governed by a different procedure and steps which would remain unaffected by such compounding. In other words, the compounding under the Act, 1973 is to avoid the criminal liability and punishment on conviction but not to regularize a construction prohibited under the Act for which no relaxation is permissible except when the plan is amended in accordance with Section 13 of the Act.

29. In Dhananjaya Reddy v. State of Karnataka 2001 (4) SCC 9 in para 23 of the judgment, the Supreme Court held :-

"It is a settled principle of law that where a power is given to do a certain thing in a certain manner, the thing must be done in that way or not at all."

30. In Commissioner of Income Tax, Mumbai v. Anjum M.H. Ghaswala 2002 (1) SCC 633, it was held :-

"It is a normal rule of construction that when a statute vests certain power in an authority to be exercised in a particular manner then the said authority has to exercise it only in the manner provided in the statute itself."

31. The judgments in Anjum M.H. Ghaswala (supra) and Dhananjaya Reddy (supra) laying down the aforesaid principle have been followed in Captain Sube Singh & Ors. v. Lt. Governor of Delhi & Ors., 2004 (6) SCC 440.

32. In Competent Authority v. Barangore Jute Factory & Ors., 2005 (13) SCC 477, it was held :-

"It is settled law that where a statute requires a particular act to be done in a particular manner, the act has to be done in that manner alone. Every word of the statute has to be given its due meaning."

33. In State of Jharkhand & others v. Ambay Cements & another, 2005 (1) SCC 368 in para 26 of the judgment, Supreme Court held : -

"It is the cardinal rule of interpretation that where a statute provides that a particular thing should be done, it should be done in the manner prescribed and not in any other way."

34. This Court in the case of Dr. Santosh Dixit & Anr. v. State of U.P. & Ors. 2017 (3) ADJ 401 (DB) has elaborately dealt with the issue of compounding of unauthorized constructions and it has been held that the violators of law cannot be benefitted under the garb of something which the law does not permit. It has been held that a deviation or violation from a Scheme or Plan cannot be made a means of profiteering by collecting huge amount from offenders/ violators and permitting them to continue to enjoy such deviation. If this stand is sustained, it would mean that the Statute is being read in a manner so as to confer an immunity upon the resourceful people to violate law and permit them to continue to enjoy such violation for all times to come by paying some amount to the Authority. These violators basically come from elite class. They find it easier vis-a-vis their status to part away any amount of money so as to retain the information of plan. It adds to their status also. Most of the builders have made it a part of their business. Simultaneously, the Development Authority also stands financially (officially and privately) benefited in allowing contravention of plan and violation of a statutory embargo without exercising its power of restoration by taking action of demolition etc. If such an interpretation is upheld, it would not only encourage corruption and element of extraneous consideration but would also create two classes; one those who are bound to suffer in their efforts of making any deviation from Master Plan since they lack financial resources to pay the so called compounding fees for continuing to enjoy the illegal and unlawful deviation; and, those who are rich, resourceful and capable to do so.

35. While making certain observations in respect to corruption prevailing in the Society, this Court in Smt. Mithilesh Kumari v. State of U.P. and others, 2011(1) ADJ 40 has observed that such creation and classification which encourages corruption, is discriminatory and also against human rights. The Court observed that in the last 60 years of independence, if there is one field we can boast of a national allround development and that too multifold, it is the field of corruption. It has various shades. It is not confined to only one field of bribery, cash and kind, but has different colours and nuances.

36. It has further been observed that though in a civilised society, corruption has always been viewed with particular distaste to be condemned and criticised by everybody but still one loves to engage himself in it if finds opportunity, ordinarily, since it is difficult to resist temptation. It is often, a kind, parallel to the word ""bribery"", meaning whereof in the context of the politicians or bureaucrats, induced to become corrupt.

37. The Greek Philosopher Plato, in 4th Century BC said, "in the Republic that only politicians who gain no personal advantage from the policies they pursued would be fit to govern. This is recognised also in the aphorism that those who want to hold power are most likely those least fit to do so.

38. While giving speech before the House of Lords William Pitt in the later half of 18th Century said, "Unlimited power is apt to corrupt the minds of those who possess it." Lord Acton in his letter addressed to Bishop Creighton is now one of the famous quotation, "Power tends to corrupt and absolute power corrupts absolutely.

39. Corruption is a term known to all of us. Precise meaning is illegal, immoral or unauthorized act done in due course of employment but literally it means "inducement (as of a public official) by improper means (as bribery) to violate duty (as by committing a felony)." It is an specially pernicious form of discrimination. Apparently its purpose is to seek favourable, privileged treatment from those who are in authority. No one would indulge in corruption at all if those who are in authority, discharge their service by treating all equally.

40. Corruption violates human rights. It discriminates against the poor by denying them access to public services and preventing from exercising their political rights on account of their incapability of indulging in corruption, of course on account of poverty and other similar related factors. Corruption is, therefore, divisive and makes a significant contribution to social inequality and conflict. It undermines respect for authority and increases cynicism. It discourages participation of individuals in civilised society and elevates self interest as a guide to conduct. In social terms we can say that corruption develops a range bound field of behaviour, attitude and beliefs. Corruption is antithesis of good governance and democratic politics. It is said, that when corruption is pervasive, it permeates every aspect of people's lives. It can affect the air they breathe, the water they drink and the food they eat. If we go further, we can give some terminology also to different shades of corruption like, financial corruption, cultural corruption, moral corruption, ideological corruption etc. The fact remains that from whatever angle we look into it, the ultimate result borne out is that, and the real impact of corruption is, the poor suffers most, the poverty groves darker, and rich become richer."

41. Further this Court in the case of Mr. G.S.J. Shapoorjee v. Allahabad Development Authority & Ors., 2016 11 ADJ 524 has held in paragraph 45, 46, 56, 57 and 58 as under:-

45. Mere fact that map was sanctioned and thereafter constructions were raised, would make no difference for the reason that all transactions were void ab initio. The petitioners had no right over land, they were unauthorised occupants, hence question of making construction by getting a map sanctioned by ADA does not arise at all. Any act of ADA would not create any legal right in favour of petitioners which otherwise they also do not possess.

46..... A trespasser is not entitled to get sanction and raise constructions on a land over which it has no right,so as to create right over land. The entire things are illegal and void ab initio.

56. There is another contention that since compounding charges have been paid and therefore, construction whatsoever raised by petitioners must be taken to be valid construction, also has no force for the same reason that petitioners have no right over the land at all. Even otherwise, we are of the view that unauthorized construction would not stand regularized on payment of compounding charges, since concept of compounding charges is not to regularize unauthorized construction but to compound an offence so that otherwise punishment in the Court of law in a trial may not be inflicted.

57. We may also admit to consider another limb of argument that during pendency of writ petition in continuation of interim order, petitioners have further completed constructions and ADA be directed to regularise same by accepting payment of compounding fee. In our view, neither any such direction can be issued nor such relief can be granted and the entire argument in respect of alleged compounding and regularization is thoroughly misconceived.

58. We find from the Statute that compounding a building is permissible in the Statute under Uttar Pradesh Urban Planning & Development Act, 1973(hereinafter referred to as "Act, 1973") but if an illegal or unauthorized construction has been raised, Development Authority is not empowered to continue such illegal unauthorized constructions by realizing some amount.

42. In view of the above discussion, I find that once the Commissioner, in his order dated 02.05.1994, held the constructions raised by the respondent no.5 as unauthorized, illegal and contrary to law and the said order, though challenged by means of writ petition, but the challenge failed in terms of dismissal of the petition on 16.12.2005 and then order dated 30.01.2006 passed by the Commisisoner on review was further set aside by this Court on 14.05.2012 and was not interferred with by the Supreme Court while dismissing Special Leave Petition on 09.11.2012, there is nothing on record to show or establish that the constructions raised by the respondent no.5 were lawful. The effect of these orders cannot be ignored whether the order impugned is an order on merit or simply an order of remand.

43. Insofar as, the contention of State as well as Development Authority to the effect that the compounding has not been ordered but it will be considered and that the constructions raised on the disputed land would not be compounded, this Court finds that the said stand supporting the order impugned is liable to be discarded.

There are various reasons behind forming this opinion. First of all, as explained hereinabove, the Bye-laws of 2009 speak of compounding of "offence" and not "constructions". Secondly, if the same are stretched to compounding of constructions, though I do not find any justification for this, it would be a case where, according to the Development Authority, the matter would be examined in reference to the constructions which were raised on a disputed land.

44. Shri Nisheeth Yadav, learned counsel for the Development Authority has vehemently argued that there is no title dispute in between the petitioner and respondent no.5 and, therefore, the land over which, the constructions have been raised is not "विवादित" (disputed). The insistence of learned counsel for the respondent-Authority is that, insofar as, the title dispute is concerned, the same should be left to be decided by civil/revenue court and such adjudication would have no bearing upon the merits/demerits of compounding of the constructions.

45. I am not in a position to accept the said argument. It appears that word "विवादित" (disputed) is being understood by the respondents as the one which is a subject matter of civil or revenue litigation. However, considering the entire Scheme of the Act 1973 and even Bye-laws of 2009, I am of the opinion that word "विवादित " (disputed) has to be understood as per its soul and intent and not to be misunderstood by the one which is engaging the attention of civil/revenue court or which may become a subject matter of such litigation.

46. As per Black's Law Dictionary, the word "dispute" has been defined as a "conflict or controversy" and as per the

New Lexicon Webster's Dictionary, word "dispute" has been defined as "to quarrel, to argue, to question the truth, to fight hard, a controversy."

47. The record of the writ petition narrates that right from the first action of taking possession or raising constructions on the spot in January 1990, the land became disputed in between the petitioner, respondent no.5, her husband and other associates, description whereof is contained in the initial portion of this judgment. The dispute travelled from a personal tussle in between the private persons on the spot to the District Administration, then Police Authorities, then Development Authority, then Commissioner of the Division, then this Court in various writ petitions, then again the Commissioner, followed by another intervention by this Court, then Supreme Court and, thereafter, revision before the State Government giving rise to the present writ petition. Once, the land became disputed in this manner, then, even as per the Development Authority, compounding is not permissible.

48. Insofar as, the order impugned is concerned, State Government has observed that the contention raised by the petitioner relates to title dispute which can be decided only by the civil/revenue court and the petitioner may institute a suit before such court. I find that in view of the above discussion, in a matter relating to compounding of constructions, this finding is not based upon critical analysis of the material available on record which was very much there before the State Government also while deciding the revision nor is it according to the very concept of compounding of constructions/offences, as elaborately discussed hereinabove.

49. Insofar as the direction of remand is concerned, certainly the Development Authority, being sub-ordinate to the State Government, as per the Scheme of 1973, would take up the matter of compounding of constructions and would deal with the same in one or the other way and such a decision would give rise to further rounds of litigation by either side. At this juncture, I want to refer to the legal maxim "interest reipublicae ut sit finis litium" which means that it is in the interest of State that there must be an end to the litigation. This Court and the Supreme Court has also, time and again, held that judicial/quasi judicial authorities should avoid unnecessary remand, therefore, whenever it is found that remand is factually and/or legally unlawful and illegal, the same should be interfered with.

50. During the course of arguments, this Court also got a clear picture in its mind, as also argued from both sides that the petitioner's plot purchased by a registered sale deed dated 16.07.1987 is not in her possession because of the constructions raised by respondent no.5 on the spot in the aforesaid manner.

51. The old British concept that a "Judge" is a neutral passive umpire has undergone a perceptible change. In S.P. Gupta v. Union of India, 1981 Suppl. S.C.C. 87, His Lordship, P.N. Bhagwati J. found that the British approach shall not be suited to Indian conditions and held that the judiciary cannot be a mere by-stander or spectator but it must become an active participant in the judicial process ready to use law in the service of social justice through a 'pro-active goal-oriented approach'.

52. In view of the above discussion, I am satisfied that the litigation once finalized, leaves no doubt in my mind that compounding is not permissible in the present case and, therefore, the impugned order remanding the matter to the Development Authority for deciding the compounding issue is unsustainable and contrary to factual and legal position well established on record.

53. The writ petition, therefore, succeeds and is allowed.

54. The order impugned dated 07.01.2016 passed by the State Government in Revision No.33 of 2012 (Smt. Lakshmi Singh v. Allahabad Development Authority & Ors.) is hereby quashed.

55. Necessary consequences pursuant to the quashing of the said order would follow.

1. Heard Sri Ajay Pandey, learned counsel for the petitioners, Sri Rajiv Gupta, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel for the respondent Nos. 1 & 3 and Sri Narendra Kumar Tiwari, learned counsel for the respondent no.2.

2. This writ petition has been filed praying for the following relief :

"(I) Issue, a writ order or direction in the nature of mandamus and commanding the respondent no.2 to remove the electricity cable of 33 K.V. feeder from the houses of the petitioners situate at Manjhanpur District Kaushambi in compliance of order dated 18.07.2018 passed by respondent no.2."

3. On 06.04.2023, this court passed a detailed order and directed the respondent no.2 to file a counter affidavit by means of his personal affidavit. The respondent no.2 was further directed to answer specifically the following questions:

(i) Whether any compensation was paid to land owners while erecting the electric line in question?

(ii) If answer to the question no.(i) is in affirmative, then the amount of compensation paid, be disclosed.

(iii) Under what authority of law, the respondent no.2 has demanded a sum of Rs.35,78,595/- as a shifting charge to shift 33 KV Electric line in question?

4. Despite time granted the respondent nos. 1 & 3 have neither filed counter affidavit nor prayed for further time.

5. In compliance to the aforesaid order dated 06.04.2023, the respondent no.2 has filed today the counter affidavit by means of his personal affidavit dated 12.04.2023, which is taken on record.

Facts :

6. Briefly stated undisputed facts of the present case are that the petitioners are the owner of the land over which a 33 KV electric line was installed by the respondent no.2. As per own case of the respondents, total 81 persons including the petitioners are affected by the aforesaid 33 KV electric line which according to the respondent no.2 was installed in the year 1995, without payment of any compensation in terms of the provisions of Section 164 of the Electricity Act, 2003 read with Sections 10 and 16 of the Indian Telegraph Act, 1885 (hereinafter referred to as "the Act, 1885"). Grievance of the petitioners is that the aforesaid electricity line running between Osha Crossing and District Hospital, is passing over the land/houses of 81 persons including the petitioners causing serious threat to life and property. The petitioners and other affected persons have moved an application before the respondents for shifting of the line. An order dated 18.07.2018 was passed by the respondent no.3 on the basis of estimate of Rs.29,77,847/- as shifting charges for shifting of the aforesaid electricity line. However, by order dated 26.05.2022 the respondent no.2 i.e. Executive Engineer revised the estimate and required deposit of Rs.35,78,595/- for shifting of the aforesaid electric line. The petitioners and two other affected persons under compulsion, deposited the proportionate amount while remaining persons did not deposit the amount. Under the circumstances, the aforesaid electric line has not been shifted due to non deposit of shifting charges.

7. Aggrieved, the petitioners have filed the present writ petition praying for the relief aforequoted.

Submissions :

8. Learned counsel for the petitioners submits that the petitioners are not liable to deposit any amount, as no compensation was paid to the land owners while erecting the electric line in question. He submits that once the respondents have themselves passed the order for shifting of the line, they can not delay shifting of electric line until the demand of charges for shifting of electric line is paid by all the affected persons. He submits that action of the respondents is in breach of the provisions of the Electricity Act, 2003 read with the Indian Telegraph Act, 1885.

9. Sri Narendra Kumar Tiwari, learned counsel for the respondent no.2 submits that the respondents are ready to shift the electric line provided all affected persons deposit the demanded amount of Rs.35,78,595/-. He submits that in the event petitioners are aggrieved, they have an alternative remedy to challenge the order of the District Magistrate, dated 18.07.2018 read with communication of the Executive Engineer, dated 26.05.2022, under Rule 3(3) of the Works of Licensees Rules, 2006.

10. We have carefully considered the submissions of learned counsels for the parties and perused the record of the writ petition and counter affidavit by means of personal affidavit filed today by the respondent no.2. In paragraphs 4 to 9 of the counter affidavit, the respondent no.2 has stated as under :

*"4. That, before giving parawise reply it is pertinent to point out certain facts that the 33 KV Electricity line has been installed in year 1995. No compensation has been paid to the land owners in respect to installation of Electricity overhead lines.

*5. That, the Electricity line has been installed and poles were erected upon the land of bhumidhars. The survey of installation was done but no objection was raised by any of the land owners. The licensee has exercised the power conferred under section 164 of the Electricity Act, 2003 read with the provisions of Indian Telegraph Act, 1885 to install the overhead Electricity line. The Copy of The

Indian Telegraph Act, 1885 is being filed herewith and marked as ANNEXURE NO.CA-1 to this affidavit.

6. That, no objection has been filed by any of the land owners against installation of electricity line and erecting of poles since 1995. The section 3 (1) of the Works and licensing Rules 2006 provides that in case of objection of any of the land owner/occupier during survey or carrying out of work of installation of Electricity line, the licensee will take permission in writing from District Magistrate subject of payment of compensation or rent as the case may be. In present case prayer of shifting of 33 KV Electricity line has been requested. It is under jurisdiction of the district magistrate to consider such request. The Copy of the Works and licensing Rules 2006 is being filed herewith and marked as ANNEXURE NO.CA-2 to this affidavit.

7. That, answering respondent has not demanded any amount from any of residents but communicated to them in pursuance to the order dated 18-07-2018 passed by the district Magistrate while considering their representation. None of the residents has challenged the legality of the aforesaid order of the District Magistrate. The houses have been constructed in recent years while electricity line was installed in year 1995.

8. That, the District Magistrate Kaushambi passed speaking order on 18-07-2018 directing answering respondent to prepare list of residents and direct them to deposit estimated cost in proportion to remove the 33 KV Electricity line. The list of residents was jointly prepared by the Tehsildar and Junior Engineer of the Corporation jointly on 10-05-2022.

9. That, the order of District Magistrate could not be complied as the proportional amount directed to deposit has not been deposited in the joint account of Tehsildar and answering respondent.

The District Magistrate has directed by speaking order on 18-07-2018 that list of affected person be prepared and further directed such residents to proportionally deposit the estimated cost of shifting."

11. From perusal of the own stand taken by the respondent no.2, it is undisputed that 33 KV electricity line was installed in the year, 1995 without payment of any compensation to the land owners. It has also been admitted by the respondent no.2 that the licensee has exercised the powers conferred under Section 164 of the Electricity Act, 2003 read with the provisions of the Indian Telegraphic Act, 1885 to install the overhead electric line in question. Averment made in paragraph 7 of the counter affidavit filed by the respondent no.2 that he has not demanded any amount but communicated them in pursuance of the order dated 18.07.2018, passed by the District Magistrate, Kaushambi, is incorrect and contrary to own stand taken by the respondent no.3 that the residents have deposited process fees of Rs.1,000/- on 21.03.2017 and thereafter the Executive Engineer vide letter no.3686, dated 11.08.2017 apprised them that for shifting of the electric line in question, as per rules and conditions, a sum of Rs.29,77,848/- be deposited with the department so that shifting work may be completed.

12. The aforesaid facts are incorporated in the order of the District Magistrate dated 18.07.2018. That apart, it has also been mentioned in the aforesaid order of the District Magistrate that the electric line in question is liable to be shifted in public interest, otherwise, it may cause loss of life at any time. The order dated 18.07.2018, passed by the District Magistrate, Kaushambi, is reproduced below :

"उपरोक्त के सम्बन्ध में आपको अवगत कराना है कि तहसील दिवस मंझनपुर में दिनांक 16.4.2022 को प्रस्तुत प्रार्थना पत्र में अधोहस्ताक्षरी को निर्देशित किया गया था कि दिनांक 18.07.2018 को मा० न्यायालय जिलाधिकारी कौशाम्बी के आदेश के अनुपालन में प्राक्कलन आख्या में प्रस्तावित धनराशि

14. Compelled with the situation, each of the petitioners have deposited the proportionate sum of Rs.44200/- with the respondent no.2 on 15.06.2022 and 24.08.2022 respectively. However, electric line could not be shifted for the reason that some of the residents have not deposited the amount.

15. On the admitted facts of the case and in the light of the relevant provisions of law, grievance of the petitioners need to be examined. Therefore, for ready reference the provisions of Section 164 of the Electricity Act, 2003 and Section 17 of the Indian Telegraph Act, 1885 are reproduced below :

Electric Act, 2003

"164. Exercise of powers of Telegraph Authority in certain cases.-The Appropriate Government may, by order in writing, for the placing of electric lines or electrical plant for the transmission of electricity or for the purpose of telephonic or telegraphic communications necessary for the proper co-ordination of works, confer upon any public officer, licensee or any other person engaged in the business of supplying electricity under this Act, subject to such conditions and restrictions, if any, as the Appropriate Government may think fit to impose and to the provisions of the Indian Telegraph Act, 1885, any of the powers which the telegraph authority possesses under the Act with respect to the placing of telegraph lines and posts for the purposes of a telegraph established or maintained, by the Government or to be so established or maintained."

Indian Telegraph Act, 1885

17. Removal or alteration of telegraph line or post on property other than that of a local authority.-(1) When, under the foregoing provisions of this Act, a telegraph line or post has been placed by the telegraph authority under, over, along, across, in or upon any property, not being property vested in or under the control or management of a local authority, and any person entitled to do so desires to deal with that property in such a manner as to render it necessary or convenient that the telegraph line or post should be removed to another part thereof or to a higher or lower level or altered in form, he may require the telegraph authority to remove or alter the line or post accordingly:

Provided that, if compensation has been paid under section 10, clause (d), he shall, when making the requisition, tender to the telegraph authority the amount requisite to defray the expense of the removal or alteration, or half of the amount paid as compensation, whichever may be the smaller sum.

(2) If the telegraph authority omits to comply with the requisition, the person making it may apply to the District Magistrate within whose jurisdiction the property is situate to order the removal or alteration.

(3) A District Magistrate receiving an application under sub-section (2) may, in his discretion, reject the same or make an order, absolutely or subject to conditions, for the removal of the telegraph line or post to any other part of the property or to a higher or lower level or for the alteration of its form; and the order so made shall be final."

16. In paragraph 4 of the counter affidavit, the respondent No.2 has specifically admitted that no compensation was paid to the land owners in respect of the installation of 33 KV overhead electric line. Thus, it is admitted to the respondents that while installing the electric line in question, no compensation was paid to the owners. It is also admitted to the respondents that the aforesaid electric line was installed in exercise of powers conferred under Section 164 of the Electricity Act, 2003 read with the Act, 1885. Section 17 of the Act, 1885 provides for removal or alteration of telegraph line or post on property other than that of a local authority. Sub section (1) of Section 17 of the Act, 1885 specifically provides that under the provisions of the Act, 1885 a telegraph line or post has been placed by the telegraph authority under, over, along, across, in or upon any property, not being property vested in or under the control or management of a local authority, and any person entitled to do so desires to deal with that property in such a manner as to render it necessary or convenient that the telegraph line or post should be removed to another part thereof or to a higher or lower level or altered in form, he may require the telegraph authority to remove or alter the line or post accordingly.

17. Thus, while making requisition for the removal of the electricity line in question, the petitioners were required to deposit the requisite amount to defray the expenses of the removal or alteration or half of the amount paid as compensation, whichever may be the smaller sum. Since, as per admitted case of the respondent no.2, no compensation was paid to the owners of the land for installation of the electric line in question, therefore, no amount was required to be deposited by the petitioners or other affected persons in terms of Section 17 of the Act, 1885 for removal of the electricity line in question. Under the circumstances, the demand of Rs.29,77,848/- or revised demand of Rs.3578595/- issued by the respondent no.2 for removal of the electricity line in question, was without authority of law.

18. Under the circumstances, the order of the District Magistrate, dated 18.07.2018 to the extent enforcing the demand of Rs.29,77,848/- by the respondent no.2 for removal of the electric line in question, was wholly without authority of law.

19. The submissions of learned counsel for the respondent no.2 that the petitioners have an alternative remedy under Rule 3 of the Works of Lincensees Rules, 2006, has no substance inasmuch as the demand made by the respondents of Rs.29,77,848/- or the revised demand of Rs.35,78,595/- for removal of the electricity line in question is without authority of law. The jurisdiction of this Court under Article 226 of the Constitution of India is not barred merely on account of availability of an alternative remedy. The law in this regard is well settled. Suffice is to refer a judgment of this Court dated 10.09.2015 in Civil Misc. Writ Petition (Tax) No. 255 of 2012 (M/s Shree Bhawani Paper Mills Ltd. Vs. State Of U.P. and Another).

20. Article 226 of the Constitution of India confers very wide powers on High Court to issue writs but this power is discretionary and the High Court may refuse to exercise the discretion, if it is satisfied that the aggrieved person has adequate or suitable remedy elsewhere. It is a rule of discretion and not rule of compulsion or the rule of law. Even though, there may be an alternative remedy, yet the High Court may entertain a writ petition depending upon the facts of each case. It is neither possible nor desirable to lay down inflexible rule to be applied rigidly for entertaining a writ petition. Some exceptions to the rule of alternative remedy, as settled by the Hon'ble Supreme Court; are as under:-

(i) Where there is complete lack of jurisdiction in the officer or authority to take the action or to pass the order impugned.

(ii) Where vires of an Act, Rules, Notification or any of its provisions has been challenged.

(iii) Where an order prejudicial to the writ petitioner has been passed in violation of principles of natural justice.

(iv) Where enforcement of any fundamental right is sought by the petitioner.

(v) Where procedure required for decision has not been adopted.

(vi) Where Tax is levied without authority of law.

(vii) Where decision is an abuse of process of law.

(viii) Where palpable injustice shall be caused to the petitioner, if he is forced to adopt remedies under the statute for enforcement of any fundamental rights guaranteed under the Constitution of India.

(ix) Where a decision or policy decision has already been taken by the Government rendering the remedy of appeal to be an empty formality or futile attempt.

(x) Where there is no factual dispute but merely a pure question of law or interpretation is involved.

21. The above principles are supported by law laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Himmatlal Harilal Mehta v. State of Madhya Pradesh, AIR 1954 SC 403, Collector of Customs v. Ramchand Sobhraj Wadhwani, AIR 1961 SC 1506, Collector Of Customs & Excise ,Cochin & Ors. vs A. S. Bava, AIR 1968 SC 13, Dr. Smt. Kuntesh Gupta vs Management Of Hindu Kanya Mahavidyalaya, L.K. Verma v. HMT Ltd. and anr., (2006) 2 SCC 269, Paras 13 and 20, M.P. State Agro Industries Development Corpn. Ltd. & Anr. vs. Jahan Khan (2007) 10 SCC 88 para 12, Dhampur Sugar Mills Ltd. v. State of U.P. and others (2007) 8 SCC 338, BCPP Mazdoor Sangh Vs. NTPC (2007) 14 SCC 234 (para 19), Rajasthan State Electricity Board v. Union of India, (2008) 5 SCC 632 (para 3), Mumtaz Post Graduate Degree College Vs. University of Lucknow, (2009) 2 SCC 630 (para 22 and 23), Godrej Sara Lee Limited v. Assistant Commissioner (AA), (2009) 14 SCC 338. 14, Union of India v. Mangal Textile Mills (I) (P) Ltd., (2010) 14 SCC 553 (paras 6,7,10 and 12), Union of India v. Tania Construction (P) Ltd., (2011) 5 SCC 697, Southern Electricity Supply Co. of Orissa Ltd. v. Sri Seetaram Rice Mill, (2012) 2 SCC 108 (paras 79,80,81,82,86,87 and 88), State of M.P. Vs. Sanjay Nagaich (2013) 7 SCC 25 (para 34,35,38,39), State of H.P. vs. Gujarat Ambuja Cement Ltd., (2005) 6 SCC 499 (para 11 to 19), Star Paper Mills Ltd. Vs. State of U.P. and others, JT (2006) 12 SC 92, State of Tripura vs. Manoranjan Chakraborty, (2001) 10 SCC 740 para 4; Paradip Port Trust vs

Sales Tax Officer and Ors. (1998) 4 SCC 90, Feldohf Auto & Gas Industries Ltd. Vs. Union of India (1998) 9 SCC 710; Isha Beebi Vs. Tax Recovery Officer (1976) 1 SCC 70 (para 5); Whirlpool Corporation Vs. Registrar of Trademarks (1998) 8 SCC 1; Guruvayur Devasworn Managing Committee Vs C.K. Rajan (2003) 7 SCC 546 (para 67,68) .

22. In the case of Union of India & others Vs. Major General Shri Kant Sharma, (2015) 6 SCC 773 Hon'ble Supreme Court has held that it is a settled canon of law that the High Court should not normally interfere in exercise of its jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution of India where statutory alternative remedy is available but it is equally settled that this canon of law is not free of exceptions. The Courts, including the Supreme Court, have taken the view that statutory remedy, if provided under a specific law, would impliedly oust the jurisdiction of the civil courts. The High Court in exercise of its extraordinary jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution of India can entertain writ or appropriate proceedings despite availability of an alternative remedy. This jurisdiction, the High Court would exercise with some circumspection in exceptional cases, particularly, where the cases involve a pure question of law or vires of an Act are challenged.

23. In view of the settled law, as discussed above, we do not find any substance in the preliminary objection raised by learned counsel for the respondent no.2 regarding the availability of alternative remedy and, consequently, the objection raised by learned counsel for the respondent no.2 is rejected.

24. Respondent no.2 is directed to remove the electricity line in question pursuant to their own decision, expeditiously, preferably within three months from the date of production of a certified copy of this order, without demanding any amount from the petitioners or other affected persons towards removal/shifting charges of the electricity line in question. Liberty is granted to the petitioners to apply before the respondent No.3 for refund of the amount in terms of this judgment.

25. With the aforesaid directions, the writ petition is allowed to the extent indicated above.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Pankaj Bhatia, J.)

1. After hearing the matter, this Court had called for the records of Writ-C

No.23212 of 2021. As the issue raised in both the writ petitions is common, both the writ petitions are being decided by means of this common order. For the sake of brevity, Writ-C No.10149 of 2023 is being decided as a leading case.

2. The present petition has been filed challenging the orders dated 11.10.2022, 07.11.2022 and 04.01.2023 whereby total of 57 references have been consolidated and decided.

3. The facts, in brief, are that the petitioner is a newspaper establishment as defined under section 2(d) of the Working Journalists and Other Newspaper Employees (Condition of Service) and Miscellaneous Provisions Act, 1955 (herein after referred to as 'WJ Act'). The petitioner is situated at Noida and is engaged in the business of printing of newspaper in the name and style of 'Dainik Jagran'. In addition to the said, the petitioner is also engaged in the news through electronic media and website etc.

4. It is claimed that the respondent no.1 of Writ Petition No.10419 of 2023 was appointed on the post of Dispatcher on probation basis w.e.f. 01.11.2007 with the petitioner. Similarly the other claimants in the fifty six references were also employed in a similar capacity.

5. It is argued that the Central Government in compliance of the mandate of the 'WJ Act', constituted two Wage Boards for journalist and non-journalist employees under section 9 and 13-C of the 'WJ Act'. The said wage boards gave its recommendations which were notified by the Central Government on 11.11.2011. It is argued that the recommendations so made by the Majithia Wage Board

(hereinafter referred to as 'Wage Board') were challenged along with the vires of the Act of 1955, which was decided by the Supreme Court vide order dated 07.02.2014. It is argued that in terms of the recommendations made by the Wage Board, para 20-J of the said recommendations specifically provided as under :

20(J) The revised pay scales shall become applicable to all employees with effect from the 1st of July 2010. However, if an employee within three weeks from the date of publication of the Government Notification u/s 12 of the Act enforcing these recommendations exercises his / her option for retaining his existing pay scales and existing emoluments, he/she shall be entitled to retain his / her existing scales and such emoluments".

6. It is argued that as no alternation was made by the Central Government to the recommendations of the Wage Board, as such the provision of Clause 20(J) also stood notified. It is argued that in terms of the mandate of para 20(J) of the recommendations as notified by the Central Government, the respondent no.1 along with other persons, who are covered in the awards, gave an option to retain the existing wages and existing emoluments through a voluntary undertaking. It is argued that despite giving an undertaking in terms of the clause 20(J) of the Wage Board, the respondent no.1 with a group of 198 persons filed a claim under section 17(1) of the Act before the office of the Deputy Labour Commissioner, New Delhi. As the issue of jurisdiction arose finally, in terms of the order of the High Court, Delhi passed in Writ Petition No.5606 of 2016, the matters were relegated to be agitated before the authorities at Noida and thereafter a fresh applications under section 17(1) were filed before the Deputy Labour Commissioner, Noida on 01.02.2018 claiming an amount of Rs.36,28,430/- in respect of the respondent no.1 (Annexure no.7). Similar applications were filed by the other employees also. The petitioner filed their reply / objection to the said applications under section 17(1) on 17.04.2018 (in respect of opposite party no.1).

7. The petitioners filed their objection to the application filed by the employees and denied their liability to pay any amounts mainly on the foundation of clause 20 (j) of the Wage Board read with voluntary undertaking by the employees. It was also objected that without decision on dispute as provided under Section 17(2) no orders could be passed under Section 17.

8. It is argued that the Assistant Labour Commissioner (Noida) made a reference dated 07.08.2018 by framing two issues (Annexure no.10). In response to the summons from the Labour Court, the petitioner put in appearance and the matter was adjourned to 01.11.2018 on which date, the petitioners filed their preliminary submissions and both the parties have exchanged their pleadings. It is on record that on 26.08.2019, two issues were framed with regard to the maintainability and the jurisdiction to the following effect :

i. Whether this Hon'ble Court has jurisdiction to adjudicate the present issues of Industrial Dispute, particularly in context of issue No.2 if so, its effect ?

ii. Whether the claimant had exercised his option to retain existing pay scale and existing emoluments and has given his undertaking under para 20(J) of the Majithia Wage Board Recommendations, notified vide notification No. SO532, dated 11.11.2011 of Central Government, as alleged. If so, its effect ?

9. It is argued that on the next date fixed in the matter i.e. 06.07.2021, all the similar matters were consolidated. The petitioner filed an application seeking recall of the order of consolidation mainly on the ground that all the claims were different on facts and could not be consolidated. It is on record that the Labour Court had earlier decided the issue of jurisdiction in a leading case being ADJ Case No.584 of 2018 on 02.03.2021 and vide order dated 16.07.2021 decided the issue no.1 framed by the Labour Court on jurisdiction and followed the order dated 02.03.2021. It is argued that in all 62 cases were consolidated and in the leading case being case no 584 of 2018, an order was passed on 01.07.2021. The petitioners challenged the order dated 02.03.2021 whereby the preliminary issue was decided in ADJ Case No.584 of 2018 by filing a Writ Petition No.23212 of 2021. This court vide order dated 17.09.2021 stayed the proceedings of Case No.584 of 2018 mainly placing the reliance on the judgment of the Supreme Court in the Case of Kasturi and Sons (Private) Ltd. v. Salivateswaran, AIR 1958 SC 507. As the cases were consolidated by the Assistant Labour Commissioner, the petitioner moved an application bringing on record the said order passed by this court and requested that the other cases which were consolidated with the leading case no.584 of 2018 may also be adjourned, as the issue was subjudice before the High Court. The said adjournment application was rejected with a cost of Rs.10,000/- (Ten Thousand) vide order dated 06.06.2022 and proceeded to hear the matter. The Assistant Labour Commissioner vide order dated 11.10.2022 decided all the fifty seven pending cases. Challenging the said order, the present writ petition has been filed.

10. Heard Sri Sanjay Kaushal, Senior Advocate, assisted by Sri Chandra Bhan Gupta, learned counsel for the petitioner, Sri Man Mohan Singh and Sri Nikhil Agarwal the counsel for the respondents.

11. The counsel for the petitioner argues that the order impugned in the present writ petition is bad in law for the reasons more than one. He firstly argues that in view of an order passed by this court in the leading case, the labour court has erred in deciding the cases when the preliminary issue was subjudice before the court. He next argues that the employees/respondent no.1 had given an undertaking accepting the option of retaining the existing pay-scale and existing emoluments in terms of the mandate of Clause 20(J) of the Wage Board and thus, they could not have raised a claim by filing an application under section 17 of the Act.

12. The learned Senior Advocate argues that benefits of service is much broader concept and includes within its sweep a whole array of benefits which are other than wages and emoluments, for example, the benefits of working in a particular area, etc.

13. During the course of arguments, learned Senior Advocate has taken me through the statements given by the management witnesses and cross examination to argue that it was well established that the respondents and the other similarly placed persons had voluntarily accepted for retaining the existing pay-scale, existing emoluments and benefits of service under Clause 20(J) of the Wage Board and thus, in view of the overwhelming evidence on record, the labour court has erred in granting the relief by means of the impugned order. He further argues that after the decision in respect of the challenge before the Supreme Court, a contempt petition was filed before the Supreme Court and in the said contempt petition, a status report was forwarded, which indicated that most of the persons had accepted the existing emoluments in furtherance of Clause 20(J) of the Wage Board.

14. The counsel for the petitioner draws my attention to the option exercised by the respondents including the respondent no.1. He further argues that along with the claim made by the respondent no.1, they also claimed the benefits of interim wages in terms of the mandate of Section 13-A for the period prior to the recommendations made by the Wage Board without clarifying and quantifying the claims. He draws my attention to the mandatory provisions of the Act and in particular relies on Section 17 to argue that the claim under section 17 can be made by filing an appropriate application, however, if any dispute arise, the same is to be referred to by the labour court under section 17(2) of the Act, which is to decide, being an issue of fact, after following the process of law and after looking into the evidence and the gist of the cross examination, which according to the petitioner, has not been done in the manner in which the labour court has decided the issue. He argues that the issue with regard to undertaking in terms of mandatory clause contained in Clause 20(J) is sacrosanct and binding in between the party and once the said option has been exercised, it is not open to the employee to take recourse to Section 17 of the Act.

15. The counsel for the petitioner further argues that the labour court has erred in treating the newspaper establishment, which is specifically defined under section 2(d) of the Act, as the company and based upon the documents downloaded from the internet with regard to financial position of the company, it has treated the financial data of the company to be that of the newspaper establishment and thus, has erred in passing the order treating the newspaper establishment in category-I solely based upon the gross revenue of the company and ignoring the revenue of the newspaper establishment which is a separate and distinct from the Company. He argues that although the newspaper establishment i.e. the petitioner works under one umbrella company, there is a distinction between the company and the establishment.

16. Sri Nikhil Agarawal appearing on behalf of the respondents, on the other hand, argues that this Court while passing the order in Writ Petition had only stayed the further proceedings of ADJ Case No.584 of 2018 and thus, no error of law has been committed by the Assistant Labour Commissioner in deciding the other cases. He argues after the rejection of the adjournment application, the petitioner had the right to approach this Court for extending the scope of the stay order dated 17.09.2021 to the other cases also, which, for the reasons best known to the petitioner was not done. He argues that the issue with regard to the applicability of Clause 20(J) of the Wage Board, should be interpreted by this Court by keeping in view the provisions of the Act and specifically Section 16 of the Act. He argues that once the challenge to the award in Writ Petition filed under Article 32 of the Constitution of India was dismissed on 07.12.2014 in Abp

Private Limited vs. Union of Indian and others; (2014) 3 SCC 327, the scope and intent of the Act had to be made applicable. He further argues that while dismissing the writ petition, the Supreme Court itself directed that the wages as revised/determined shall be payable from 11.11.2021, the date when the recommendations of the Board were notified along with the arrears up to March 2014 in four equal instalments within a period of one year, whereas the respondents failed to do so.

17. He next argues that the reliance made in respect of the observations in the contempt petition (Avishek Raja vs Sanjay Gupta (2017) 8 SCC 435), can be of no avail to the petitioner as the Supreme Court itself records in paragraph no.24 that the issue is not being decided.

18. In reply to the contention of the counsel for the petitioner with regard to definition of newspaper establishment, he argues that in terms of the definition of section 2(d) and clarified under clause 11 of the Wage Board read with the schedule to the Act, the arguments of the counsel for the petitioner deserves to be rejected. He further argues that in any event, the labour court has not erred in downloading the revenue of the company as the petitioner never submitted any papers to be contrary before the labour court. He further argues that in case, the argument of the petitioner are accepted, the whole purpose of the enactment of the Act would stand frustrated. He argues that clause 20(J) of the Wage Board Act has to be read harmoniously with Section 13 and 16 of the Act, which specifically bars that in no situation, the wages of the newspaper employee could be lesser than Board recommendation as approved by the Central Government in terms of the Section 12 of the Act. He further argues that the argument of the counsel for the petitioner in respect of the power under section 17(1) and 17(2) of the Act are liable to be rejected inasmuch as the Supreme Court itself had clarified that the non-implementation of the recommendations of the wage board have to be dealt with in terms of the mandate of Section 17 of the Act. In support of the said submissions, he places reliance on the judgment of the Madhya Pradesh High Court in Writ Petition No.18372 of 2018 .

19. In view of the submissions made and recorded above between the parties, what emerges is that the sheet anchor of the argument of the petitioner is that once Clause 20(J) of the Wage Board is in existence and has been notified as such, any claim over and above the undertaking given by the employees would not be maintainable. I propose to decide this issue prior to going into the other issues in respect of the manner of decision making, as argued by the counsel for the petitioner.

20. The 1955 Act, although now repealed by virtue of the Occupational Safety, Health and Working Conditions Code, 2020 by virtue of Section 143(2) of the Code, 2020 would continue to deal with the obligations flowing from the said Act. Brief legislative history of the WJ Act is that the said Act was enacted in the year 1955 being Act No.45 of 1955 on 20th December, 1955 with the object of providing benefits to the working journalists working with the newspaper establishment. The benefit as contemplated under the Act included the benefits as specified under Sections 4 to 13 and 13-A. Subsequently, the Act was amended by virtue of Amending Act No.70 of 1974 whereby for the first time, the Central Government amended the Act to bring within its fold the benefit that could flow in favour of the non-working journalists employee of a newspaper establishment. The amending Act did not extend all the benefits which were provided for in the 1955 Act in respect of the working journalists under the newspaper establishment and confined the benefits which could flow in favour of the non-working journalists to the extent as specified under Chapter-2A. Thus, a clear cleavage in the Act exists in between the benefits that flow in favour of the working journalists and ones that flow in favour of the non journalists employees of the newspapers establishment. A reading of Chapter-2-A clearly demonstrates that the benefits extended for the non-working journalists include the benefit of fixation or revision of rate of wages through the constitution of a Board for determining the wages in respect of the non journalists newspaper employee. The other benefits such as the ones enumerated under Sections 4, 5, 5A, 6 and 7 to 9 were not extended to the non-journalists newspaper employees.

21. Section 2-A defines the Board to mean a Board constituted under section 9 in relation to working journalist and Wage Board constituted under section 13-C in respect of employees who are working as non-journalist newspaper employees. In the present case, we are concerned with the recommendations of the Wage Board in respect of the non-journalist newspaper employees.

22. Section 2(d) defines 'newspaper establishment' as under :

"(d) "newspaper establishment" means an establishment under the control of any person or body of persons, whether incorporated or not, for the production or publication of one or more newspapers or for conducting any news agency or syndicate; 4[and includes newspaper establishments specified as one establishment under the Schedule. Explanation. For the purposes of this clause,-

(a) different departments, branches and centres of newspaper establishments shall be treated as parts thereof;

(b) a printing press shall be deemed to be a newspaper establishment if the principal business thereof is to print newspaper;

The schedule to the Act further clarifies as to how the 'newspaper establishment' under the common control are to be treated as 'newspaper establishment' defined under the Act.

23. Section 2(eee) defines 'wages' as under :

(eee) "wages" means all remuneration capable of being expressed in terms of money, which would, if the terms of employment, expressed or implied, were fulfilled, be payable to a newspaper employee in respect of his employment or of work done in such employment, and includes-

(i) such allowances (including dearness allowance) as the newspaper employee is for the time being entitled to;

(ii) the value of any house accommodation, or of supply of light, water, medical attendance or other amenity or of any service or of any concessional supply of food-grains or other articles;

(iii) any travelling concession,

but does not include-

(a) any bonus;

(b) any contribution paid or payable by the employer to any pension fund or provident fund or for the benefit of the newspaper employee under any law for the time being in force;

(c) any gratuity payable on the termination of his service.

Explanation. In this clause, the term "wages" shall also include new allowances, if any, of any description fixed from time to time."

24. Section 13-C, mandates for constitution of the Wage Board in respect of non-journalist newspaper employees by the Central Government comprising of the persons specified under section 13-C. By virtue of Section 13-D, the provisions of Section 10 to Section 13-A have been made applicable to and in relation to, the Board constituted under section 13-C. Section 12 confers the power on the Central Government to enforce the recommendations of a Wage Board constituted under section 13-C of the Act. Section 13, of the Act which is applicable to the non-journalist newspaper employees by virtue of Section 13-D, provides as under :

13. Working journalists entitled to wages at rates not less than those specified in the order - On the coming into operation of an order of the Central Government under Section 12, every working journalist shall be entitled to be paid by his employer wages at the rate which shall in no case be less than the rate of wages specified in the order.

25. Section 13-A, which is also applicable to the non-journalist newspaper employees confers the power on the Government to fix the interim wages till the recommendations of the Wage Board are notified under section 12 of the Act.

26. It is essential to note that Section 16 of the Act further clarifies the situation in respect of laws and agreements inconsistent with this Act. Section 16 is quoted herein below :

16. Effect of laws and agreements inconsistent with this Act-(1) The provisions of this Act shall have effect notwithstanding anything inconsistent therewith contained in any other law or in the terms of any award, agreement or contract of service, whether made before or after the commencement of this Act:

Provided that where under any such award, agreement, contract of service or otherwise, a newspaper employee is entitled to benefits in respect of any matter which are more favourable to him than those to which he would be entitled under this Act the newspaper employee shall continue to be entitled to the more favourable benefits in respect of that matter, notwithstanding that he receives benefits in respect of other matters under this Act.

(2) Nothing contained in this Act shall be construed to preclude any newspaper employee from entering into an agreement with an employer for granting him rights or privileges in respect of any matter which are more favourable to him than those to which he would be entitled under this Act.

27. It is essential to note as to what benefits flow in favour of non-journalist newspaper employees, by virtue of the Act, they are 'wages' alone as Chapter II-A inserted by amending Act no.60 of 1974 only gives the protection of wages, the other benefits which flow from section 4, 5, 6 and 7 in favour of working journalists have not been extended to non-journalist newspaper employees.

28. On a conjoint reading of Section 13 and 16 of the Act, it is clear that any agreement or contract of service, inconsistent with the provisions of law will not govern the rights in between the parties. In fact, the proviso to Section 16(1) specifically clarifies that the terms and conditions which are more favourable, would continue to govern the entitlement of the employees of the newspaper establishment. The intent is further clarified by virtue of Section 16(2) which confers a power on the employee to enter into an agreement for granting him rights or privileges in respect of any matter which are more favourable to the employee than the one as prescribed under the Act.

29. On a harmonious consideration of the two provisions of Section 13 and 16 of the Act, in respect of non journalist employees, the inescapable conclusion is that the benefits that flow from the Act, namely 'wages' as defined under the Act, can be modified by an agreement only if the same are better than the one prescribed under the Act and in no case, any agreement which prescribes the benefits of wages or emoluments less than the one notified and prescribed by the Board is barred by virtue of Section 13 of the Act. In fact the provisions of the Majithia Wage Board itself clarified the meaning of a word 'existing emoluments' in the explanation to Clause 20, which reads as under :

j. The revised pay-scales shall become applicable to all employees with effect from 1st July 2010. However, if an employee within three weeks from the date of publication of Government Notification under Section 12 of the Act enforcing these recommendations exercises his option for retaining his existing pay scale and "existing emoluments", he shall be entitled to retain his existing scale and such emoluments.

Explanation :

(1) The "existing emoluments of an employee shall mean his basic pay, variable dearness allowance at the All India average Consumer Price Index Number for Industrial Workers (Base 2001-100) at 167 during the period July 2009 to June 2010, convertible to CPI-IW (Base 1982-100) by the conversion factor of 4.53, and interim relief of 30% of basic pay sanctioned vide notifications 5.0, No. 2524 (E) and 2525 (E) dated 25 August 2008 as applicable for working journalists and non-journalists newspaper employee respectively.

(2) The additional emoluments" of an employee shall mean emoluments other than the "existing emoluments" described in Clause (1) granted by newspaper establishments, as a result of collective bargaining, agreement or award, as increase in basic wage, dearness allowance or interim relief.

(3) The "additional allowances" of an employee shall mean any monthly payments, by whatever name called, not related to a specific purpose nor agreed to be adjusted against any revision of pay or dearness allowance."

30. The argument of the counsel for the petitioner is that once the respondents have accepted the wages, emoluments and benefits as were existing by giving an undertaking, they are precluded from raising a claim under section 17 of the Act, merits rejection for the sole reason that the Clause 20(J) of the Wage Board has to be read in context with the explanation under Clause 20(J) read with Section 13 and Section 16 of the Act.

31. It is well settled that the Act , a piece of socio beneficial legislation enacted with a view to give reasonable working conditions to the employees of the newspaper establishment, needs to be interpreted in a manner, which leads to achieve the purpose for which the Act was enacted. The provisions of Clause 20(J) read with Section 13 and 16 have to be interpreted harmoniously to ensure that none of the provisions are rendered otiose.

32. The rule of harmonious construction, considered by the Supreme Court in the leading case of Commissioner Of Income Tax vs M/S. Hindustan Bulk Carriers; (2003) 3 SCC 57 laid down the principles as under :

14. A construction which reduces the statute to a futility has to be avoided. A statute or any enacting provision therein must be so construed as to make it effective and operative on the principle expressed in the maxim ut res magis valeat quam pereat i.e. a liberal construction should be put upon written instruments, so as to uphold them, if possible, and carry into effect the intention of the parties.

15. A statute is designed to be workable and the interpretation thereof by a court should be to secure that object unless crucial omission or clear direction makes that end unattainable.

16. The courts will have to reject that construction which will defeat the plain intention of the legislature even though there may be some inexactitude in the language used.

17. If the choice is between two interpretations, the narrower of which would fail to achieve the manifest purpose of the legislation, we should avoid a construction which would reduce the legislation to futility, and should rather accept the bolder construction, based on the view that Parliament would legislate only for the purpose of bringing about an effective result.

18. The statute must be read as a whole and one provision of the Act should be construed with reference to other provisions in the same Act so as to make a consistent enactment of the whole statute.

19. The court must ascertain the intention of the legislature by directing its attention not merely to the clauses to be construed but to the entire statute; it must compare the clause with other parts of the law and the setting in which the clause to be interpreted occurs. (See R.S. Raghunath v. State of Karnataka [(1992) 1 SCC 335 : 1992 SCC (L&S) 286 : (1992) 19 ATC 507 : AIR 1992 SC 81] .) Such a construction has the merit of avoiding any inconsistency or repugnancy either within a section or between two different sections or provisions of the same statute. It is the duty of the court to avoid a head-on clash between two sections of the same Act.

20. Whenever it is possible to do so, it must be done to construe the provisions which appear to conflict so that they harmonise. It should not be lightly assumed that Parliament had given with one hand what it took away with the other.

21. The provisions of one section of the statute cannot be used to defeat those of another unless it is impossible to effect reconciliation between them. Thus a construction that reduces one of the provisions to a "useless lumber" or "dead letter" is not a harmonised construction. To harmonise is not to destroy."

33. The argument of the counsel for the petitioner in the light of the provisions of Clause 20(J), if accepted, would render the entire Act inapplicable and if the said argument is accepted, the same would be in clear violation of the mandate of Section 12, 13, 13-C, 13-D and Section 16 of the Act.

34. In the present case the grievances raised under Section 17 by the employees could be referred for adjudication under Section 17(2) only in respect of disputes of quantum of benefits as prescribed by the wage board. The defence of the petitioner that the undertaking given by the employees would override the recommendations of wage board could be entertained only if it could be demonstrated prima facie that the 'wages and emoluments' (alone) being paid in terms of undertaking, to the employees, were more than the one prescribed and payable under the notified recommendations of the wage board. No such defence appears to be taken by the Petitioners.

35. It is further inconceivable as to why the employee would agitate for wages and emoluments by instituting proceedings under Section 17 if he was getting more amounts than what was prescribed by the wage board, it is equally inconceivable as to why any news paper establishment would contest such proceedings if they felt that the wages and emoluments paid to an employee under an agreement are more than the recommendations of the board.

36. The only issue of dispute in between the parties that is conceivable is that if the category of the newspaper establishment as prescribed by the wage board, if wrongly determined, can lead to adverse financial effect. In the present case the definition of news paper establishment under the Act read with the explanation and schedule to the Act leaves no room for interpretation that it is the Petitioner Company which is the 'newspaper establishment' for the purposes of this matter. As there is no dispute that the revenues of the petitioner company are more than rupees one thousand crores, the petitioner as 'newspaper establishment' would fall under Clause-I of the classification criteria provided under Clause 6 of the Wage Board.

37. In view of the interpretation of the provisions as recorded above and the facts as narrated, I do not find any error in the order passed by the authority being the order dated 04.01.2023, both the writ petitions lack merit and are dismissed. Further steps shall be taken in respect of claims which is subject matter in W.P. No.23212 of 2021 expeditiously.

38. The cost of litigation as incurred by the respondent, to be paid by the petitioner is assessed at Rs.25,000/- (Twenty Five Thousand), which shall be paid by the petitioner company to the respondent no.1 of Writ-C No.10419 of 2023.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Sunita Agarwal, J.)

1. Heard Sri Raj Narayan Tiwari learned counsel for petitioners and Sri Ambarish Shukla learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel appearing for the State-respondent. Shri Alok Mishra, learned Advocate has received notices on behalf of the respondent-NOIDA.

2. By means of the present writ petition, the petitioners herein, who are heirs and legal representatives of Raghunath Rai Sharma son of Sri Munshiram Sharma, resident of 85 Model New Colony, Filmistan, New Delhi, the original tenure holder of Khasra No. 39M. area 0-14-0 Bigha situated in revenue Village Gejha Tilpatabad, Pargana and Tehsil Dadari, District Gautam Budh Nagar, the acquired land under the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 vide notifications dated 13.1.1995 and 21.9.1995 under Sections 4 and 6 of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894; respectively, seek the following relief:-

"(i) a writ, order or direction in the nature of MANDAMUS commanding and directing the respondents authorities to make payment of compensation award for the acquired land in the year 1995 bearing Khasra No. 39M Area-0-14-0 bigha situated in Village Gejha Tilpatabad, Pargana, Tehsil Dadari, District Gautam Budh Nagar belonging to petitioner's ancestors namely Raghunath Rai Sharma as per the prevailing market rate in the light of Section - 24 (1) (a) of the Right to Fair Compensation and Transparency in Land Acquisition, Rehabilitation and Resettlement Act, 2013 within stipulated period otherwise to vacate the land in question forthwith along with suitable damages compensation.

(ii) a writ, order or direction in the nature of MANDAMUS commanding and directing the respondent no. 2 to consider and decide the pending representation dated 18.2.2021 within stipulated period.

(iii) Issue any other writ, order or direction, which this Hon'ble Court may deem, just and proper in the circumstances of the case.

(iv) Issue the award cost of this petition petitioner."

3. The assertions in the writ petition are that the symbolic possession of an area 44.312 acres of the acquired land was taken on 6.2.1998, however, possession of the remaining area of 76.848 acres could not be taken on account of the pendency of the writ petitions filed by one Maharshi Ved Vigyan Vidyapeeth and other tenure holders wherein interim order was granted by this Court. The writ petitions were dismissed on 7.4.2004 and Special Leave Petition Nos. 21130/2004 and 21143/2004 were dismissed on 21.4.2006. After dismissal of the Special Leave Petitions, the possession memo of 76.848 acres of acquired land was prepared on 31.5.2006, whereunder the possession of Khasra No. 39 area 2-9-0 Bigha had been taken. A copy of the possession memo is appended as Annexure "4" to the writ petition.

4. It is stated in the writ petition that Khasra No. 39 area 1-15-0 Bigha (0.4430 hectares) was recorded in the name of Maharshi Ved Vigyan Vidyapeeth and Khasra No. 39M. area 0-14-0 Bigha was recorded in the name of Raghunath Rai Sharma, the predecessor-in-interest of the petitioners herein. The copy of the revenue record of Khasra No. 39, being in the name of Maharshi Ved Vigyan Vidyapeeth is appended as Annexure "5" to the writ petition. However, the record of entry of Khasra No. 39M. in the name of predecessor-in-interest of the petitioners namely Raghunath Rai Sharma has not been appended with the writ petition.

5. Be that as it may, the dispute raised in the present writ petition is with regard to the determination of compensation of Khasra No. 39M. area 0-14-0, i.e. 0.1771 hectares.

6. On the presentation of the writ petition, on the written instructions provided by the learned Standing Counsel dated 17.12.2022 under the signature of the Additional District Magistrate (Land Acquisition), Gautam Budh Nagar addressed to the learned Chief Standing Counsel, High Court, Allahabad, taking note of the stand of the respondent-State therein, the order dated 10.1.2023 had been passed by this Court. The contents of the written instructions has been extracted in the order dated 10.1.2023, which reads as under:-

"In the written instructions supplied by the Additional District Magistrate (Land Acquisition), Gautam Buddh Nagar, it is indicated that total area 2-9-0 Bigha of Khasra no. 39 was acquired by acquisition notifications dated 13.1.1995 and 21.9.1995 under Sections 4 and 6 of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894; respectively. It is sought to be submitted that the possession of the acquired land has been handed over to NOIDA on 31.5.2006. At the time of acquisition, over the area 1-15-0 of Khasra No. 39, Khata No. 306, the name of Maharishi Ved Vigyan Peeth Maharishi Ghaziabad was recorded in the revenue records whereas over the remaining area 0-14-0 of Khasra No. 39, Khata No.372 name of Raghunath Rai Sharma son of Munshi Ram Sharma, resident of 85 Model Nai Basti Philmistan, New Delhi was recorded. It is further recorded that compensation has not been received by the landowners. The award under the 'Karar Niyamawali' has been declared for those landowners who have given their consent. However, for the remaining area, there is no award. The contention is that proceeding for declaration of award to pay compensation under Right to Fair Compensation and Transparency in Land Acquisition, Rehabilitation and Resettlement Act, 2013(in short "Act, 2013") is under way."

It may be noted that in the written instructions submitted on behalf the State, it was admitted that the name of Sri Raghunath Rai Sharma, the predecessor-in-interest of the petitioners herein was recorded over Khasra No. 39 area 0-14-0. It was also admitted that the tenure holders of Gata No. 39 in two Khata Nos. 306 and 372 did not receive compensation. It was also stated that the possession of the acquired land was handed over to the acquiring body namely NOIDA on 31.5.2006. The award for the acquired land under "Karar Niyamawali" had been passed, but for the remaining area, no award had been declared and the proceedings for declaration of the award under Right to Fair Compensation and Transparency in Land Acquisition, Rehabilitation and Resettlement Act, 2013 (in short "the RFCTLARR Act, 2013") was underway.

Pursuant to the directions issued by this Court in the order dated 10.1.2023, an affidavit dated 6.2.2023 has been filed wherein a copy of the award dated 4.2.2023 declared by the Deputy Collector, Land Acquisition Department/the Additional District Magistrate (Land Acquisition), Gautam Budh Nagar under Section 11(1) of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 has been placed on record. The said award dated 4.2.2023 has been made with respect to Gata No. 39M. area 0-14-0 bigha or 0.1771 hectares, purportedly under the order dated 10.1.2023 passed by this Court.

7. It may further be noted that the possession memo dated 31.5.2006 appended as Annexure '4' to the writ petition, noted above, shows that the possession of an area 2-9-0 of Gata No. 39, shown as Park, had been handed over to NOIDA on 31.5.2006. It is noted in the possession memo itself that the acquisition of total area 121.16 acres of revenue Village Gejha Tilpatabad, Pargana and Tehsil Dadari, District Gautam Budh Nagar had been made by the acquisition notifications mentioned above. The possession of 44.312 acres was handed over to the Development Authority on 6.2.1998 and for the remaining area of 76.848 acres, the proceedings for delivery of possession could not be drawn on account of the pendency of the writ petitions, noted therein. After decision of this Court and the Apex Court dated 7.4.2004 and 21.4.2006; respectively, in the aforesaid challenge, the possession memo of 76.848 acres was drawn and possession was handed over to the Development Authority on 31.5.2006.

8. It is an admitted fact of the matter that Khasra No. 39 was recorded in the name of two persons namely Maharshi Ved Vigyan Vidyapeeth on an area of 1-15-0 Bigha (0.4430 hectares) and Khasra No. 39M. area 0-14-0 bigha, 0.1771 hectares in the name of Raghunath Rai Sharma, the predecessor-in-interest of the petitioners. It is, thus, evident that the total area of plot no. 39, which comes to 2-9-0, was handed over to the Development Authority after the decision of this Court in the challenge to the acquisition proceedings. It is also an admitted fact of the matter that award for the remaining area, compensation of which was not accepted by the tenure holders had not been declared and the only award under the "Karar Niyamawali" of the acquired land had been declared.

The award dated 4.2.2023 declared under the order dated 10.1.2023 of Khasra No. 39 area 0-14-0 bigha (0.1771 hectares) further indicates that for determination of the market value of the plot in question, the cut-off date has been determined as the date of Section 4(1) notification under the Land Acquisition Act, 1894, in view of a Government Order dated 1st June, 2015, reference of which finds place in the award itself. The copy of the Government Order dated 1st June, 2015 has been provided by the learned counsel for the petitioners in the compilation supplied by them.

9. A perusal thereof indicates that it was issued with reference to a communication dated 18th March, 2015 of the Commissioner and Director, Land Acquisition Directorate, Board of Revenue, U.P., Lucknow, seeking clarification with reference to the determination of cut-off date for determination of market value, in such matters where acquisition notification under Section 4(1) of the Act, 1894 had been issued prior to 1.1.2014. It was clarified therein that the cut-off date for determination of market value in such matters would be treated as the date of publication of the notification under Section 4(1), under the Act, 1894.

10. Learned counsel for the petitioners, however, relied on a notification dated 26th October, 2015 issued by the Government of India, Department of Land Resources, Ministry of Rural Development under Section 113 of the RFCTLARR Act, 2013.

11. The submission is that the said notification clarifies doubt and settles the dispute relating to the reference date for calculation of market value under Section 24(1)(a) of the RFCTLARR Act, 2013 and provides that 1.1.2014 shall be the date for calculation of market value in view of Section 24(1)(a) of the RFCTLARR Act, 2013. The dispute, thus, pertains to the cut-off date under the RFCTLARR Act, 2013 for applying the provisions of Section 24(1)(a) of the RFCTLARR Act, 2013.

12. In the rival submissions, both the counsels for the petitioners and the State Government and NOIDA, relied upon the above noted notifications issued by the Central Government and the State of U.P., to assert their stand with regard to the date of determination of date for computation of market value in cases where the award is made after enforcement of the RFCTLARR Act, 2013 though proceedings for acquisition had been commenced under the Land Acquisition Act, 1894.

13. To appreciate the arguments of the learned counsel for the parties, we are first required to go through the object and purpose of the RFCTLARR Act, 2013 and the relevant provisions thereof.

The Right to Fair Compensation and Transparency in Land Acquisition, Rehabilitation and Resettlement Act, 2013 had been enacted with the objective to provide fair compensation to those whose land is taken away, to bring transparency to the process of acquisition of land for infrastructural projects, to set up factories or buildings and to assure rehabilitation of those affected. In the statement of objects and reasons of the RFCTLARR Act, 2013, it was noted that the provisions of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894, relating to acquisition of land for public purpose and also for companies and for determining the amount of compensation to be made on account of such acquisition, have been found to be inadequate in addressing certain issues relating to the exercise of the statutory powers of the State for involuntary acquisition of private land and property, the issues of rehabilitation and resettlement to the affected persons and, their families. In order to provide a unified legislation dealing with acquisition of land, to provide for just and fair compensation and to make adequate provisions for rehabilitation and resettlement mechanism for the affected persons and their families, the bill for repealing and replacing the Land Acquisition Act, 1894, to seek the above objectives, had been introduced in the Lok Sabha on 7th September, 2011 and received assent of the President in 2013. The RFCTLARR Act, 2013 was passed by both the Houses of Parliament, received assent of President on 27th September, 2013 and has been brought into force on 1.1.2014. Section 24 of the RFCTLARR Act, 2013 relevant for our purposes is noted hereunder:-

"Section 24. Land acquisition process under Act No. 1 of 1984 shall be deemed to have lapsed in certain cases.

(1) Notwithstanding anything contained in this Act, in any case of land acquisition proceedings initiated under the Land Acquisition Act, 1894,--

(a) where no award under section 11 of the said Land Acquisition Act has been made, then, all provisions of this Act relating to the determination of compensation shall apply; or

(b) where an award under said section 11 has been made, then such proceedings shall continue under the provisions of the said Land Acquisition Act, as if the said Act has not been repealed.

(2) Notwithstanding anything contained in sub-section (1), in case of land acquisition proceedings initiated under the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 (1 of 1894), where an award under the said section 11 has been made five years or more prior to the commencement of this Act but the physical possession of the land has not been taken or the compensation has not been paid the said proceedings shall be deemed to have lapsed and the appropriate Government, if it so chooses, shall initiate the proceedings of such land acquisition afresh in accordance with the provisions of this Act:

Provided that where an award has been made and compensation in respect of a majority of land holdings has not been deposited in the account of the beneficiaries, then, all beneficiaries specified in the notification for acquisition under section 4 of the said Land Acquisition Act, shall be entitled to compensation in accordance with the provisions of this Act."

Section 113 and Section 114 of the RFCTLARR Act, 2013 are also relevant to be noted hereunder:-

"Section 113. Power to remove difficulties.

(1) If any difficulty arises in giving effect to the provisions of this Part, the Central Government may, by order, make such provisions or give such directions not inconsistent with the provisions of this Act as may appear to it to be necessary or expedient for the removal of the difficulty:

(2) Every order made under this section shall be laid, as soon as may be after it is made, before each House of Parliament.

Section 114. Repeal and saving.

(1) The Land Acquisition Act, 1894 (1 of 1894) is hereby repealed.

(2) Save as otherwise provided in this Act the repeal under sub-section (1) shall not be held to prejudice or affect the general application of section 6 of the General Clauses Act, 1897 (10 of 1897) with regard to the effect of repeals."

A conjoint reading of the above noted provisions indicates that with the coming into force of the RFCTLARR Act, 2013 w.e.f. 1.1.2014, the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 stood repealed.

14. Section 24(1), however, deals with certain situations which arose on account of repeal of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894.

15. It starts with a non-obstante clause and sub-section (1) of Section 24 provides certain contingencies in which the land acquisition proceedings initiated under the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 were to be continued. Clause (a) of sub-section (1) deals with the contingencies where award under Section 11 of the Act, 1894 had not been made in the proceedings initiated under the Act, 1894 and states that all provisions of the RFCTLARR Act, 2013 relating to the determination of compensation shall apply.

We may further note that clause (b) of sub-section (1) of Section 24 saves the entire proceedings of acquisition of land initiated under the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 where award under Section 11 of the said Act had already been made. It is provided therein that the such proceedings shall continue under the Land Acquisition Act, 1894, as if the said Act has not been repealed.

Sub-section (2) of Section 24 deals with the situation where neither the compensation had been paid nor the possession of the acquired land under 1894 Act had been taken. The interpretation of sub-section (2) of Section 24 has been made by the Apex Court in the case of Indore Development Authority vs. Manoharlal and others¹ and the dispute pertaining to the interpretation of the said provision, from various angles has been set at rest. For the issues raised herein, the provisions of sub-section (1)(a) of Section 24 are relevant.

16. The question is as to where no award has been made under Section 11 of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894, while making an award by applying the provisions of the RFCTLARR Act, 2013 relating to the determination of compensation, what would be the date for determination of market value, whether it would be the date of enforcement of the RFCTLARR Act, 2013, i.e. 1.1.2014 or the date of publication of the notification under Section 4(1) of the Act, 1894 as provided in Section 23(1) of the Act, 1894.

17. From the provisions of Section 24 read with section 114 of the RFCTLARR Act, 2013, it can be discerned that the provisions pertaining to determination of compensation under Section 23 of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894, providing for determination of amount of compensation to be awarded for land acquired under the Act, 1894, stood repealed. The provision as contained in sub-section (1) of Section 23, for determination of the market value of the land at the date of publication of the notification under Section 4(1) of the Act, 1894, therefore, cannot be applied. The only saving to the land acquisition proceedings initiated under the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 is under clauses (a) and (b) of sub-section (1) of Section 24 of 2013 Act. The general application of sub-section (6) of the General Clauses Act, 1894 with regard to the effect of repeals, as provided in sub-section (2) of Section 114 of the RFCTLARR Act, 2013 is not applicable to the proceedings for determination of compensation in the land acquisition proceedings initiated under the Land Acquisition Act, 1894.

The result is that as per clause (a) of sub-section (1) of Section 24, when no award has been made under Section 11 of the Act, 1894, all the provisions of the RFCTLARR Act, 2013 relating to the determination of compensation shall apply.

In a case where award under Section 11 had been made before commencement of the RFCTLARR Act, 2013, all subsequent proceedings shall continue under the provisions of the Act, 1894 as if the Act has not been repealed.

18. Now the question remains as to what would be the procedure applicable for determination of compensation under the provisions of the RFCTLARR Act, 2013.

19. We may note the provisions of Section 26 of the RFCTLARR Act, 2013, which provides the criteria to be adopted by the Collector in assessing and determining the market value of the land, the relevant clauses (a), (b) and (c) and the proviso to sub-section (1) of Section 26 are extracted hereunder:-

"26. Determination of market value of land by Collector.-

(1) The Collector shall adopt the following criteria in assessing and determining the market value of the land, namely:--

(a) the market value, if any, specified in the Indian Stamp Act, 1899 (2 of 1899) for the registration of sale deeds or agreements to sell, as the case may be, in the area, where the land is situated; or

(b) the average sale price for similar type of land situated in the nearest village or nearest vicinity area; or

(c) consented amount of compensation as agreed upon under sub-section (2) of section 2 in case of acquisition of lands for private companies or for public private partnership projects, whichever is higher:

Provided that the date for determination of market value shall be the date on which the notification has been issued under section 11."

As per the proviso to sub-section (1), the date of determination of market value for acquisitions under the RFCTLARR Act, 2013 is the date on which the notification has been issued under Section 11 of the RFCTLARR Act, 2013, which provides for publication of preliminary notification, notifying the intention of the appropriate Government to acquire land in any area for any public purpose. Section 11 of 2013 Act is pari materia to Section 4 of the Act, 1894 in the matter of issuance of declaration of preliminary notification of proposal of acquisition. Thus, in a case where acquisition is made after enforcement of the RFCTLARR Act, 2013, i.e. on or after 1.1.2014, there cannot be a dispute about the date of determination of market value for the purposes of computation of compensation. However, there remained an ambiguity with regard to the transitional phase on the applicability of Section 24(1)(a) of the RFCTLARR Act, 2013.

20. On the ambiguity of the date of determination of market value in the land acquisition proceedings initiated under the Land Acquisition Act, 1894, where no award had been made under Section 11 of the Act, 1894 before enforcement of the RFCTLARR Act, 2013, the Central Government had issued a notification dated 26th October, 2015, on the similar issue raised by the Government of Maharashtra. In the D.O. No.13013/01/2014-LRD(Pt), dated 26.10.2015 issued by the Joint Secretary (LR), Government of India, Department of Land Resources, Ministry of Rural Development, copy of which was forwarded to all Principal Secretaries of the States/UTs for information and necessary action, the issues raised by the Government of Maharashtra for calculation of market value under Section 24(1)(a) has been resolved as under:-

S.No.	Issues raised by the Government of Maharashtra	Opinion of the DoLR			htra Governm ent.
1.	While determining the amount of compensation under Section 27 of the RFCTLA R&R Act, 2013 of Hon'ble Supreme Court's orders are followed or cost of assets have to be separately computed in addition to cost of land?	Under Section 26 of the RFCTLA R&R Act, 2013 market value of land is determined while under section 27, value of all assets attached to the land is added to the market value to determine the amount of compensation. Thus, it is not contradictory to the Supreme Court's orders quoted in the letter of Maharas	2.	Under Section 24(1), the reference date for calculating 12% interest should be date of preliminary notification under Land Acquisition Act, 1894.	Under section 24(1), the reference date for calculating 12% interest should be date of preliminary notification under Land Acquisition Act, 1894. Department of Land Resources agrees to this, as there is no other reference date, that can be treated as equivalent to date of SIA notification under the RFCTLA R&R Act, 2013.
			3.	For calculation of market value, under	The reference

	Section 24(1)(a), reference date should be 01.01.2014 (commencement of RFCTLA R&R Act, 2013) or date of issuing preliminary notification under Land Acquisition Act, 1894?	date for calculation of market value, under Section 24(1)(a) should be 01.01.2014 (commencement of RFCTLA R&R Act, 2013), as the Section reads "in any case of land acquisition proceedings initiated under the Land Acquisition Act, 1894, where no award under section 11 of the said Land Acquisition Act has been made, then, all provisions of this Act			relating to the determination of compensation shall apply. Under section 26 reference date is date of preliminary notification, but section 24 is a special case of application of the Act in retrospective cases, and a later date of determination of market value is suggested (i.e. 01.01.2014) with a view to ensure that the land owners/farmers/affected families

		get enhanced compensation under the provisions of the RFCTLA R&R Act, 2013 (as also recommended by Standing Committee in its 31st report).

21. From a perusal of the D.O. letter dated 26th October, 2015, issued by the concerned Ministry of the Central Government forwarded to the Principal Secretary of the State of U.P., for information and necessary action, it is evident that the said direction was made in order to remove difficulty arose in giving effect to the provisions of the RFCTLARR Act, 2013, in the matter of calculation of market value under Section 24(1)(a), in the land acquisition proceedings initiated under the Act, 1894. The said directions issued by the Central Government being in exercise of the power under Section 113 of the RFCTLARR Act, 2013 have statutory force and are binding on all the State Government being in view of the power conferred on the Central Government to make such provision or give such directions which are not inconsistent with the provisions of the RFCTLARR Act, 2013, for removal of any difficulty arising in giving effect to the provisions of the RFCTLARR Act, 2013.

22. In view of the statutory character of the D.O. letter dated 26th October, 2015, it is evident that the reference date for calculation of market value under Section 24(1)(a) should be 1.1.2014, the date of commencement of the Right to Fair Compensation and Transparency in Land Acquisition, Rehabilitation and Resettlement Act, 2013. The said D.O. letter dated further clarifies that under Section 26 of the RFCTLARR Act, 2013 though the reference date is the date of preliminary notification but Section 24 is the special case of application of the Act, 2013 in retrospective cases and a later date of determination of market value, i.e. 1.1.2014 is suggested with a view to ensure that the land owners/farmers/affected families get enhanced compensation under the provisions of the RFCTLARR Act, 2013, in terms of the recommendation of the Standing Committee in its 31st report.

23. In view of the directions contained in the D.O. letter dated 26th October, 2015 issued by the concerned Ministry of Central Government, the reliance placed on the notification dated 1st June, 2015 issued by the Government of U.P. is wholly misplaced.

24. In any case, the said notification of the State Government lost its efficacy with the clarification given by the Central Government by issuing directions under Section 113 of the RFCTLARR Act, 2013 by means of D.O. letter dated 26th October, 2015. This aspect of the matter has not been looked into while making computation of compensation by the Collector in the award made on 4.2.2023, wherein the date of determination of market value had been treated as 13.1.1995, the date of publication of the notification under Section 4/17 of the Act, 1894, in accordance with the provisions of Section 11 of the Act, 1894 read with Section 26(1) of the RFCTLARR Act, 2013. The direction issued by the Central Government under Section 113 of the RFCTLARR Act, 2013 has been completely ignored.

25. We may further note the decisions of the Division Benches of this Court in Hori Lal vs. State of U.P. and 3 others²; Prahlad Singh and 6 others vs. State of U.P. and 2 others³; Krishna Autar and 5 others vs. State of U.P. and 3 others⁴ and Ishan International Educational Society Thru' Director vs. State of U.P. & 3 others⁵ which have taken the same view by considering the directions contained in D.O. letter dated 26th October, 2015 under Section 113 of 2013 Act, noted above, in holding that the date of determination of the market value of the land in the matters falling under Section 24(1)(a) shall be treated as 1.1.2014 in terms of the directions issued by the Central Government. The Special Land Acquisition Officer had been directed therein to redetermine the market value of the land in question as on 1.1.2014 by making fresh award.

26. The Special Leave to Appeal (C) No(s). 17660 of 2017 (Ghaziabad Development Authority vs. Ishan International Educational Society & others) challenging the judgment and order dated 9.5.2017 in Ishan International Educational Society (supra) has been dismissed on 19.7.2017 by the Apex Court holding that there was no legal and valid ground for interference. Similar is the position with regard to the decision of this Court in the case of Krishna Autar (supra) where Special Leave Petition (Civil) Diary No(s). 26271 of 2017

(Moradabad Development Authority vs. Krishna Autar & Ors) had been dismissed on 14.11.2017. The review petition filed in Special Leave Petition (Civil) No. 17660 of 2017 [in the matter of Ishan International Educational Society (supra)] had also been dismissed on 5th December, 2017.

In Hori Lal (supra), the issue raised before the Division Bench of this Court was about the date of determination of compensation in the land acquisition proceedings initiated under the Act, 1894. It was argued on behalf of the writ petitioners therein that the date for determination of the market value of the land should be the date on which awards were made by the Special Land Acquisition Officer in the year 2015-16 and it cannot be 1.1.2014, which was turned down by the Division Bench relying on the D.O. letter dated 26.10.2015 issued under Section 113 of the RFCTLARR Act, 2013 and the provisions of 2013 Act in the matter of determination of compensation. The judgment and order dated 9.3.2017 of the Division Bench in Hori Lal (supra) was challenged in Special Leave Petition (C) No. 14820 of 2017 by the writ petitioner therein. On conversion into Civil Appeal No. 1462 of 2019, with the grant of leave, the appeal had been dismissed by the Apex Court vide judgment and order dated 5th February, 2019.

27. A perusal of the judgment of the Apex Court in Civil Appeal No. 1462 of 2019 (Hori Lal vs. State of U.P. and others), makes it evident that the challenge before the Apex Court was with regard to the date for determining the compensation and it was contended that it should be the date on which the Land Acquisition Officer had passed the award. The Apex Court has rejected the said arguments in the following manner:-

"20. We, therefore, find no good ground to accept the submission of the learned counsel for the appellant when he contended that the date for determining the compensation should be the date on which the Land Acquisition Officer passed the award. This argument does not have any basis and is, therefore, not acceptable for the simple reason that such date is not provided either in the old Act, 1894 or in the Act, 2013.

21. Indeed, how the compensation is required to be determined and with reference to what date, is provided under the Act and admittedly the date suggested by the learned counsel is not the date prescribed either in the old Act or the new Act. This submission has, therefore, no merit and deserves to be rejected. It is accordingly rejected.

22. We, therefore, find no good ground to take a different view than what was taken by the High Court in the impugned order"

The view taken by the Division Bench in Hori Lal (supra) with respect to the date of determination of compensation being 1.1.2014, in land acquisition proceedings initiated under the Act, 1894 after commencement of the RFCTLARR Act, 2013 has, thus, been affirmed.

28. In another decision dated 12th February, 2019, in Civil Appeal No. 4821 of 2016, in Interlocutory Application No. 4 of 2016 (Aligarh Development Authority vs. Megh Singh and others), the Apex Court has held that the date of determination of market value should be recorded as 1.1.2014 in view of the Central Government orders under Section 113 of the Act. The above noted decision in the case of Hori Lal (supra), the judgment of this Court dated 9.5.2017 in Ishan International Educational Society (supra) have been relied upon to issue direction to the Special Land Acquisition Officer, Aligarh therein to redetermine the compensation as per the market value as on 1.1.2014, by setting aside the award dated 5.11.2016 therein.

Various other orders of the Apex Court in the review applications filed in the above noted cases have been placed before us in the compilation supplied by the counsel for the petitioners to assert that the issue relating to determination of market value as on 1.1.2014 in a case falling under Section 24(1)(a) of the RFCTLARR Act, 2013 is no longer res integra.

29. In view of the above discussion, the award dated 4.2.2023 passed by the Additional District Magistrate (Land Acquisition), Gautam Budh Nagar is found to be contrary to the legal position stated above and, hence, it cannot be given effect to. The concerned officer namely the Additional District Magistrate (Land Acquisition), Gautam Budh Nagar is directed to make a fresh award by determining the market value of the land in Gata No. 39M. area 0-14-0 or 0.1771 hectares, by considering the market value of the land in question as on 1.1.2014. It would be open for the petitioners herein/land owners to place the exemplars before the Additional District Magistrate (Land Acquisition), Gautam Budh Nagar/Special Land Acquisition Officer to determine the market value. The officer concerned shall be under obligation to determine just and fair market value of the land in question and compute compensation by including all elements of compensation, strictly in accordance with the provisions of determination of compensation under the RFCTLARR Act, 2013, as expeditiously as possible, preferably, within a period of six weeks from the date of receipt of copy of this order.

The amount of compensation determined under the award shall be released by the competent authority within a further period of two weeks, thereafter, in favour of the tenure holders/persons interested after due determination of their share of entitlement and verification of their identity.

With the above directions, the writ petition is allowed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Rajnish Kumar, J.)

1. Heard Sri Avadhesh Kumar, learned counsel for the petitioner and Sri S.K. Khare, learned Standing Counsel.

2. The petitioner Preetam Singh has approached this Court, by means of the present petition, challenging the order dated 11.04.1997 passed by the Prescribed Authority(Ceiling/Upper Collector, Kheri) contained in Annexure No.2 to the petition and the order dated 12.01.1999 passed by the Additional Commissioner (Administration), Lucknow Division, Lucknow, contained in Annexure No.4 to the petition.

3. The brief facts of the case, for adjudication of the present case, are that in respect of the land in dispute, the petitioner was served with a notice as per Section 29 of the UTTAR PRADESH IMPOSITION OF CEILING ON LAND HOLDINGS ACT, 1960(hereinafter referred to as the Act of 1960) proposing 19.682 acres irrigated land as surplus giving benefit of 18.03 acres irrigated land to the petitioner. In response thereof, the petitioner submitted the objections dated 06.03.1995 on the ground that the notice is barred by res-judicata and it is time barred. The petitioner also took an objection that the land of the petitioner is un-irrigated and he is entitled for the maximum benefit. A plea was also taken that holdings have wrongly been shown. On the basis of the pleadings, the following 7 issues were framed:

4. The oral evidence of Area Lekhpal Sri Hussain Ali, Sri Awdhesh Kumar, Lekhpal who prepared the file and Assistant Registrar Kanoongo Sri Krishna were produced in oral evidence on behalf of the State and CH Form 45 and three Intekhab Khatauni of the 1399-1404 Fasli and Intekhab Khasra of 1402 Fasli were filed. The petitioner produced the oral evidence of Sri Himachal son of Moti Lal and himself. In documentary evidence, petitioner filed the mutation State versus Preetam Singh under Section 10(2) and copy of the order dated 18.07.1985 passed by the Additional District Judge, Kheri in Appeal 36 of 1985; Preetam Singh versus State of U.P.

5. After hearing learned counsel for the parties and considering the material and evidence on record, the prescribed authority declared 19.682 acres irrigated land as surplus as no choice was given by the petitioner and the benefit of 18.03 acres was given to the petitioner. The details of the land declared surplus is given below:-

विवरण भूमि
जिला	तहसील	परगना	ग्राम	गा०सं०	क्षेत्रफल
खीरी	निघासन	पलिया	बालपुर	117 10-69	एकड़ सिंचित

6. The petitioner preferred an appeal No. 253 of 1996-97 against the order passed by the prescribed authority, which has been rejected by means of the order dated 12.01.1999 after considering the grounds raised by the petitioner. Hence the present petition has been filed by the petitioner challenging the aforesaid orders.

7. Learned counsel for the petitioner submitted that in the consolidation proceedings, two sons of the petitioner, who had become major were allotted separate chaks but no notice was given to them, whereas the notice was required to be given to them being the tenure holder under Section 3(17) of the Act of 1960. He further submitted that the notice under Section 10(2) of the Act of 1960 was given to the petitioner beyond the prescribed period of 2 years, which was in violation of Section 13A of the Act of 1960 which is to be read together with Section 29 of the Act of 1960. He also submitted that the notice was barred by res judicata because earlier twice notices were given and when second time notice was given, though the prescribed authority had declared certain area as surplus but the said order was set aside in appeal by the District Judge. Lastly, learned counsel for the petitioner submitted that the impugned orders have been passed on the basis of presumption and assumption without any proof by the State and considering the provisions of Section 4A of the Act of 1960, while declaring the land of the petitioner as surplus as irrigated. Therefore the impugned orders are not tenable in the eyes of law and liable to be quashed by this Court.

8. Learned counsel for the petitioner relied on State of U.P. versus Mukh Ram Singh and another; 1991(9)LCD 232, Badi Bahu versus State of U.P. and others; 1997(15) LCD 1265, Vibhuti Kumar Bajpai Versus State of U.P. and others; 2008(26) LCD 832, Bal Krishna versus State of U.P. and others; 1984 LCD 115, Ram Sagar versus Civil Judge, Bahraich and others; 1984(2) LCD 300, S Ram Chandra Rao versus Nagabhushana Rao and others; 2023 (41) LCD 1, Bhagwan Singh and another versus State of U.P. and others; 1996(14) LCD 387, Raj Bahadur versus State of U.P. and others; 1996(14) LCD 248, Raja Mahipal Singh versus State of Uttar Pradesh and others; 2007(25) LCD 1196, Kaushlender Bahadur Singh versus State of U.P.; 2022(40) LCD 765, Adi Kumar Jain versus Additional Commissioner(Admn)

Faizabad and others; 2016(34) LCD 699, Smt. Binda Gupta and others versus State of Uttar Pradesh and others; 2003(21) LCD 511, Rajendra Prasad Tiwari versus State of U.P. and others; 2022 (40) LCD 1836, Kunwar Bahadur Singh versus Prescribed Authority/A.D.M. Ceiling, Unnao and another; 2022(40) LCD 891 and Shantanu Kumar versus State of U.P. and others; 1979 AWC(F.B.) 585.

9. Per contra, learned Standing Counsel submitted that the notice was given to the petitioner on the basis of Section 29 of the Act of 1960 in view of the unirrigated land became irrigated land therefore the contention of learned counsel for the petitioner regarding bar of res-judicata and limitation does not arise and is misconceived and not tenable. He further submitted that the petitioner had never taken a plea either before the prescribed authority or before the appellate court or this Court in the petition that the sons of petitioner have become major and they have been allotted separate chaks in the consolidation proceedings, therefore it is not tenable. Even otherwise, it appears that the sons of the petitioner have been recorded as tenure holders after passing of the orders, and during lifetime of petitioner therefore the petitioner is not entitled for any benefit on this ground. He further submitted that on the basis of the oral as well as documentary evidence adduced before the prescribed authority, the prescribed authority found that there is tube well in the land in dispute by which all the land is being irrigated. The crops such as wheat and sugar cane etc. are being sown, which are not possible without water. The land is also domat aaval and capable of two crops and of higher quality. The petitioner has failed to contradict the findings recorded by the prescribed authority, which are recorded on the basis of material available on record. He also submitted that before the appellate authority or this Court also the petitioner has failed to show that his land is unirrigated.

10. On the basis of above, learned Standing Counsel submitted that the impugned orders have rightly been passed in accordance with law. There is no illegality or error in the impugned orders. The writ petition has been filed on misconceived and baseless grounds which is liable to be dismissed with cost. Learned Standing Counsel relied on State of U.P. versus The Additional Commissioner Judicial and Ors.; MANU/UP/2168/2022.

11. I have considered the submissions of learned counsel for the parties and perused the records.

12. The notice was given to the petitioner in the year 1995 on the basis of Section 29 of the Act of 1960 proposing 19.682 acres irrigated land as surplus giving benefit of 18.03 acres irrigated land to the petitioner. The petitioner submitted a reply dated 06.03.1995. After submission of reply by the petitioner, the evidence was adduced by the parties. After affording opportunity of hearing to the parties, the prescribed authority passed the order dated 11.04.1997, considering the evidence and material on record and declared 19.682 acres of land of the petitioner as surplus in irrigated terms and 18.038 acres of land has been given to the petitioner for use. The petitioner challenged the said order in appeal, which has been dismissed. Hence the present petition has been filed.

13. The first contention of learned counsel for the petitioner is that the notice issued in the year 1995 is barred by limitation under Section 13 A of the Act of 1960 as well as res-judicata. Section 29 of Act of 1960, on the basis of which, the notice was issued provides that where after the date of enforcement of the Uttar Pradesh Imposition of Ceiling on Land Holdings (Amendment) Act, 1972 any unirrigated land becomes irrigated land as a result of irrigation from a State irrigation work or any grove-land loses its character as grove-land or any land exempted under this Act ceases to fall under any of the categories exempted, the ceiling area shall be liable to be redetermined and accordingly the provisions of this Act, except Section 16, shall mutatis mutandis apply. Section 29 is extracted here-in-below:-

29. Subsequent declaration of further land as surplus land- Where after the date of enforcement of the Uttar Pradesh Imposition of Ceiling on Land Holdings (Amendment) Act, 1972-

(a) one land has come to be held by a tenure-holder under a decree or order of any Court, or as a result of succession or transfer, or by prescription in consequence of adverse possession, and such land together with the land already held by him exceeds the ceiling area applicable to him; or

(b) any unirrigated land becomes irrigated land as a result of irrigation from a State irrigation work or any grove-land loses its character as grove-land or any land exempted under this Act ceases to fall under any of the categories exempted, the ceiling area shall be liable to be redetermined [and accordingly the provisions of this Act, except Section 16, shall mutatis mutandis apply].

14. In view of above, where after the date of enforcement of the Uttar Pradesh Imposition of Ceiling on Land Holdings (Amendment) Act, 1972, the unirrigated land becomes irrigated land or any grove-land loses its character as grove-land or any land exempted under this Act ceases to fall under any of the categories exempted, the ceiling area was liable to be re-determined and for the said purpose all the provisions of the Act, except Section 16 were applicable mutatis mutandis. Therefore the contention of learned counsel for the petitioner, on the basis of earlier proceedings against the petitioner that it is barred by res judicata is mis- conceived and not tenable and liable to be rejected because in case the unirrigated land became irrigated the proceedings could have been held as per Section 29 of the Act of 1960.

15. The Hon'ble Supreme Court, in the case of S.Ramchandra Rao versus S. Nagabhushana Rao and others(supra), has held that the doctrine of res judicata, having a very ancient history, embodies a rule of universal law and is a sum total of public policy reflected in various maxims like "res-judicata pro veritate occipitur", which means that a judicial decision must be accepted as correct and "nemo debet bis vexari pro una et eadem causa", which means that no man should be vexed twice for the same cause. This case is not applicable in the present case because in the present case the action has been taken under statutory provision on the basis of changed circumstances, under Section 29 of the Act of 1960 therefore it is not barred by res-judicata.

16. So far as the plea of limitation in view of Section 13A is concerned, the said provision is for rectifying any mistake apparent on the face of the record within a period of two years from the date of notification under sub-section (4) of Section 14. Section 13-A and Section 14(4) of the Act of 1960 are extracted below:-

[13A. Redetermination of surplus land in certain cases. -(1) The Prescribed Authority may, at any time, within a period of two years from the date of the notification under[sub-section (4) of Section 14], rectify any mistake apparent on the face of the record :

Providing that no such rectification which has the effect of increasing the surplus land shall be made, unless the Prescribed Authority has given notice to the tenure-holder of its intention to do so and has given him a reasonable opportunity of being heard.

(2) The provisions of Sections 10, 11, 12, 12-A, 13, 14, [15 and 16]shall mutatis mutandis apply in relation to any proceeding under sub-section (1), and for purposes of application of Section 10, the notice under the proviso to sub-section (1), shall be deemed to be a notice under Section 9.]

14(4) The Prescribed Authority shall, as soon as may be after the date mentioned in clause (a), clause (b) or clause (c), as the case may be, of sub-section (1), notify in the Official Gazette every surplus land determined under this Act, or under Section 9 of the Uttar Pradesh Imposition of Ceiling on Land Holdings (Amendment) Act, 1974 or under Section 31 of the Uttar Pradesh Imposition of Ceiling on Land Holdings (Amendment) Act, 1976.

17. In view of above also, the action taken under Section 29 of the Act of 1960 cannot be said to be barred by res-judicata or beyond limitation in view of Section 13A of the Act of 1960 because both the provisions are for different situations/contingencies.

18. The next contention of learned counsel for the petitioner is that the sons of the petitioner had become major and after consolidation proceedings, they were allotted separate holdings, therefore notice was required to be given to them also but the notice was not given to them, therefore the impugned order is not tenable. Perusal of the objection filed by the petitioner on 06.03.1995 against the notice indicates that no such plea was taken by the petitioner. Even in the appeal filed by the petitioner against the order passed by the prescribed authority before the appellate authority on 11.04.1997, this plea was not taken. Even in this petition and the rejoinder affidavit, the petitioner has not taken this plea. For the first time in the supplementary affidavit filed on 23.11.2022, it has been stated that both the sons of the petitioner have got separate chaks, they are major and separate tenure holders and are entitled to get 7.30 hectare each under the Ceiling Act. This plea has been taken without disclosing as to when they became major and got separate chaks and how during lifetime of petitioner. Form 45 filed by the petitioner, though indicates the name of the sons of the petitioner, namely Gurmeet Singh and Paramjeet Singh having their separate chaks but it does not indicate as to when these have been prepared, whereas these have been got issued on 18.10.2022. On a specific query being put to learned counsel for the petitioner, as to when the consolidation proceedings had taken place and the name of the sons of the petitioners were recorded separately, he had stated that the consolidation had taken place in the year 1998 and the name of sons of the petitioner were recorded separately. The prescribed authority had decided the case by means of the order dated 11.04.1997. Therefore it is apparent that at the time of start of proceedings as per Section 29 of the Act of 1960 or even by the time of passing of the order by the prescribed authority, the name of the sons of the petitioner were not recorded separately. Therefore the plea that the sons of the petitioner were separate tenure holder in terms of Section 3(17) of the Act of 1960 and required separate notice was not taken, therefore now at this stage it cannot be taken, even otherwise it is mis- conceived and not tenable. A query was also put to the learned counsel for the petitioner as to how during life time of the petitioner, the name of the sons of the petitioner have been recorded separately, learned counsel for the petitioner failed to give any answer to it.

19. The next contention of learned counsel for the petitioner is that the land of the petitioner has not been declared irrigated in accordance with Section 4 A of the Act of 1960. The prescribed authority without any evidence has held the land in dispute to be irrigated whereas it was unirrigated. Section 4 A of the Act of 1960 is extracted here-in-below:-

[4A. Determination of irrigated land.

-The prescribed authority shall examine the relevant Khasras for the years 1378 Fasli, 1379 Fasli and 1380 Fasli, the latest village map and such other records as it may consider necessary, and may also make local inspection where it considers necessary and thereupon if the prescribed authority is of opinion :-

firstly, (a) that, irrigation facility was available for any land in respect of any crop in any one of the aforesaid years; by-3

(i) any canal included in Schedule No. 1 of irrigation rates notified in Notification No. 1579-W/XXIII-62-W-1946, dated March 31, 1953, as amended from time to time; or

(ii) any lift irrigation canal; or

(iii) any State tube-well or a private irrigation work; and

(b) that at least two crops were grown in such land in any one of the aforesaid years; or secondly, that irrigation facility became available to any land by a State Irrigation Work coming into operation subsequent to the enforcement of the Uttar Pradesh Imposition of Ceiling on Land Holdings (Amendment) Act 1972 and at least two crops were grown in such land in any agricultural year between the date of such work coming into operation and the date of issue of notice under Section 10; or thirdly, (a) that any land is situated within the effective command area of a lift irrigation canal or a State tube-well or a private irrigation work; and

(b) that the class and composition of its soil is such that it is capable of growing at least two crops in an agricultural year; then the Prescribed Authority shall determine such land to be irrigated land for the purposes of this Act.

Explanation I-For the purposes of this section the expression "effective command area" means of an area, the farthest field whereof in any direction was irrigated-

(a) in any of the years 1378 Fasli, 1379 Falsi and 1380 Fasli or,

(b) in any agricultural year referred to in the clause "secondly"

Explanation II-The ownership and location of a private irrigation work shall not be relevant for the purposes of this Section.

Explanation III- Where sugarcane crop was grown on any land in any of the year of 1378 Falsi, 1379 Fasli and 1380 Falsi, it shall be deemed that two crops were grown on it any of these years, and that the land is capable of growing two crops in an agricultural year."

20. The aforesaid Section 4A of the Act of 1960 contemplates the situations in which the land can be said to be irrigated. Firstly irrigation facility and growing of two crops in any of the three years. Secondly where irrigation facility became available to any land after coming into enforcement of the Amendment Act of 1972 and at least two crops were grown in such land in any agricultural year between the date of such work coming into operation and the date of issue of notice under Section 10. Lastly land should be situated within effective command area of lift irrigation canal, tubewell, a private irrigation work and class and composition of soil may be such that it may be capable of growing two crops. Rule 3 of the U.P. Imposition of Land Holdings Rules 1961, as amended by means of the notification dated 18.09.1975 w.e.f. 19.09.1975, provides; "In areas where due to consolidation operations or record operations or for any other reason no Khasras were prepared during the years mentioned in Section 4-A, the Prescribed Authority while examining other records may also examine available Khasras for the three latest years preceding the year in which the Khasra was not prepared'.

21. The prescribed authority decided the issues nos. 2,3 and 4 together. The prescribed authority after considering the evidence and material on record and considering the Khatauni of the 1399-1404 Fasli and Khasra 1402 Fasli and CH Form 45 and 41 and oral evidence, which proved the same, recorded a categorical finding that there are provisions of irrigation in all the plots and wheat and sugar cane etc. are being sown which is not possible without the facility of water. A specific finding has also been recorded that in Gata No.115 of the petitioner there is a tube well from which all the gatas of the petitioners are being irrigated. It has been proved by the Khasra of 1402 Fasli i.e. the relevant year in which notice was issued and evidence of Lekhpal and Assitant Registrar Kanoongo. CH Form 41 also shows that the land is of the high quality, the soil is Domut Auval and there are tube well in many of other gatas also. Accordingly recorded a finding that leaving the abadi and grove land of petitioner all is irrigated land and capable of growing two crops. These findings have not been challenged by the petitioner either before the appellate authority or before this Court and filed any cogent evidence to controvert these findings.

22. This Court, in the case of State of U.P. versus Mukh Ram Singh and another(supra), has held that the prescribed authority has not specifically recorded the finding that the class and composition of the soil is such that it is capable of growing at least two crops in an agricultural year. Therefore simply because there are two tube wells near the disputed plot, it cannot be held in view Section 4-A, and clause thirdly of that Section, that it is an irrigated plot. Moreover a finding of fact recorded on the basis of appreciation of evidence including Khasra cannot be interfered.

23. This Court, in the case of Badi Bahu versus State of U.P. and others(supra), has held that so far as consideration of the agricultural character of the land, it is also significant to note that the notice was issued in 1982 then it was the duty of the competent authority to see as to whether the irrigation facilities were available in the relevant year as provided under Section 4-A.

24. This Court in the case of Vibhuti Kumar Bajpai versus State of U.P.(supra) has held that question as to what extent the land is covered under water and is submerged in water and no cultivation is taking place on the same, has not been taken into consideration by the prescribed authority.

25. This Court, in the case of Bal Krishna versus State of U.P. and others(supra), has held that in Kallu Vs. State (1979 ALJ 1113), while interpreting sub-cl.(a) of section 4-A of the U.P. Imposition of Ceiling on Land Holdings Act it was observed that if irrigation facilities of the nature mentioned in sub-cl.(a) of cl. "firstly" of S.4-A are available only to a part of the total area of which a plot is comprised, it cannot be held that irrigation facilities were available for the entire plot, meaning thereby that other plot is not unirrigated.

26. This Court, in the case of Ram Sagar versus Civil Judge, Bahraich and others(supra), has held that it is well settled that while computing the irrigated area, the prescribed authority has to consider Khasra and relevant revenue records in order to find out whether irrigation facilities were available to any land in respect of any crop. It has further been held that it is also equally well settled that the onus lies on the state to establish that the land which is mentioned in the notice is irrigated land.

27. This Court, in the case of Bhagwan Singh versus State of U.P. and others(supra), has considered the scope of Section 4A of the Act of 1960. The relevant portion of paragraph 5 is extracted hereinbelow:

"Section 4 A provides for determining a land to be irrigated under 3 conditions mentioned therein as firstly, secondly and thirdly. While enacting said provision the legislature was aware about the difference between soil capacity of growing at least two crops in one agricultural year and actual growing of two crops. In cases firstly and secondly of said section the language used is at least two crops were grown whereas under thirdly the test which has been provided is that the composition of soil is such that it is capable of growing at least two crops. The legislature having been conscious about the difference between the two and providing different test under different condition has been specific in providing for actual growing of two crops under Section 4 A secondly. For the aforesaid reasons it is to be held that under S. 4-A secondly unless two crops are actually grown after the date of enforcement of Amending Act and date of issuing of notice under Section 29(b), the land cannot be treated as irrigated....."

28. This Court, in the case of Raj Bahadur versus State of U.P. and others(supra), has held that the land can be declared as surplus if the land was covered by the test laid down under Section 4-A. The test laid down under Section 4-A of the Act has to be followed in all cases where ceiling area is to be re-determined after coming into operation of U.P. Imposition of Ceiling on Land Holdings (Amendment) Act 1972.

29. This Court, in the case of Raja Mahipal Singh versus State of U.P. and others(supra), has observed that the Prescribed Authority is required to consider the date of mutation in favour of the transferees and the question regarding nature of some plot being irrigated or not or being grove or not and if there is reduction in valuation of land due to change of plots in consolidation proceedings.

30. This Court, in the case of Kaushlendra Bahadur Singh versus State of U.P.(supra), has observed that it is apparent from the reading of Section 4-A of Act of 1960 that it is the statutory mandate that the prescribed authority is first required to examine the relevant khasras and local inspection as such is meant merely to be corroborative and cannot form the basis for determination of irrigated land keeping in view the specific provisions of Section 4 A of the Act of 1960.

31. This Court, in the case of Adi Kumar Jain versus Additional Commissioner and others (supra), Rajendra Prasad Tiwari versus State of U.P. and others(supra) AND Smt. Binda Gupta versus State of U.P. and others (supra) have also taken the similar view.

32. This Court, in the case of Kunwar Bahadur Singh and others versus Prescribed Authority and another(supra), has held that for issuance of a fresh notice under Section 10(2) of the Act of 1960, the conditions stipulated under Section 29 are required to be fulfilled. The relevant paragraphs 14 and 15 are extracted hereinbelow:

"14. For the purposes of a fresh notice under Section 10(2) of Act of 1960 pertaining to subsequent declaration of further land as surplus land after the enforcement of Amendment Act of 1972, it is imperative that the land has come to be held by a tenure holder under a decree or order of any Court, or as a result of succession or transfer, or by prescription in consequence of an adverse possession, and such land together with the land already held by him exceeds the ceiling area applicable to him or that any other unirrigated land becomes irrigated land as a result of irrigation under certain conditions.

15. Once the said conditions of Section 29 are fulfilled, the provisions of Section 30 of the Act become applicable. From a perusal of aforesaid proceedings, it is clear that for issuance of a fresh notice under Section 10(2) of Act of 1960, the conditions stipulated under section 29 of Act of 1960 are compulsorily required to be fulfilled."

33. A Full Bench of this Court, in the case of Shantanu Kumar versus State of U.P. and others(supra), has held that the existence of another remedy under the Act cannot validate the proceedings which are void for lack of jurisdiction and which have resulted in the delcaration as surplus land of an area which a person other than the tenure holder who has been heard claims.

34. A Coordinate Bench of this Court in the case of State of U.P. versus The Additional Commissioner Judicial and others(supra), has observed that in Explanation (III) of Section 4A, where sugar cane crop has been recorded on Khasra in any of the fasli years, it shall be deemed that two crops are grown on it and that land is capable of growing two crops in an agricultural year. It has further been observed that so far as the private tube well is concerned, the petitioner did not raise any objection with regard to the boring tube well before the prescribed authority. The entries in one fasli year is sufficient to substantiate regarding irrigation work and crops on the land in question. The oral statement of lekhpal of area can be treated as a good evidence if it is supported by documentary evidence. The respondent has also failed to submit any proof either before the prescribed authority or the appellate authority to show the reason to disbelieve the statement of Area Lekhpal. In the present case also, the findings have been recorded on the basis of the Khasra of the relevant year i.e. 1402 Fasli and supported by the evidence of Area Lekhpal, Lekhpal who prepared the file and the Assistant Registrar, Kanoongo, which have not been controverted by the petitioner at any stage by any cogent evidence.

35. Coming back to the facts of the case in hand and considering the same in the light of the law and the case laws, referred above, it is apparent that the notice was rightly issued to the petitioner in accordance with law and as per Section 29 of the Act of 1960. The plea of limitation and res-judicata taken by the petitioner are not tenable as discussed above. The plea that notice was required to be given to the sons of the petitioner is also not tenable because it was never taken except in the supplementary affidavit filed in November 2022, therefore since it was not taken before the Prescribed Authority or Appellate Authority and even in this petition upto the stage of rejoinder affidavit it is not considerable, even otherwise the petitioner has failed to give the relevant details in this regard and as admitted by learned counsel for the petitioner, the separate chaks were allotted in 1998 i.e. after passing of the order by the Prescribed Authority. All the land of the petitioner, except abadi and grove land of petitioner has been found irrigated on the basis of Khasra of the relevant year, material and evidence on record, and the factual finding recorded by the prescribed authority is unchallenged and no material contrary to it has been produced, therefore the factual finding cannot be interfered by this Court.

Thus, this Court is of the view that the impugned orders have rightly been passed in accordance with law and after affording sufficient opportunity to the petitioner. The writ petition has been filed on mis conceived and baseless grounds, therefore it lacks merit and liable to be dismissed.

36. The writ petition is, accordingly, dismissed. No order as to costs.

A. Criminal/Banking Law – Negotiable Instruments Act, 1881: Section 138 - Handing over of the cheques by way of security per se would not extricate the accused from the discharge of liability arising from such cheques. (Para 8, 18)

In the present case, whether the account of which said cheque was drawn, was having sufficient balance to pay the amount gathered by said cheque worth Rs. 90,000,00/- drawn in favour of respondent, whether petitioner was having some other account apart from the account which was blocked as said above on which cheque would be drawn in favour of the respondents in discharge of certain debt and liability as claimed by her, whether the petitioner indeed intended to get the cheque encashed, all these questions are to be decided during trial and the grounds taken in present petition can be raised by the petitioner at the stage of leading defence. The petitioner has claimed that said cheque was issued in favour of the respondent No. 2 as security cheque, as huge amount was outstanding to the respondent No. 2 and for that reason after completing all formalities of disassociation from firm the cheque was to be encashed, is dispelled by the proposition of law laid down by Hon'ble Apex Court.

The impugned orders are in accordance with law and no illegality or irregularity is found therein. In that view of the matter, trial court is required to record evidence of the parties and arrive at an independent conclusion as to whether an offence is made out u/s 138 of N.I. Act or not. Revision No. 361 of 2022.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ram Manohar Narayan Mishra, J.)

1. Instant petition under Article 227 of the Constitution of India has been filed with following prayer:-

(i) Issue an order or direction of suitable nature setting aside the entire proceedings of Criminal Complaint Case No. 496 of 2022 (Smt. Shashi Sharma Vs. M/s Naveen Autos & Another, under Section 138 N.I. Negotiable Instruments Act, P.S. Kotwali Nagar District Bulandshahar, pending before the Court of Ld. Additional Civil Judge, (J.D.)/Judicial Magistrate, Court No. 9, Bulandshahar as well as the impugned summoning order dated 13.10.2022 passed by the Court of Ld. Additional Civil Judge (Junior Division)/Judicial Magistrate, Court No. 9, Bulandshahar in CrI. Complaint Case No. 496 of 2022 (Smt. Shashi Sharma Vs. M/s Naveen Auto and Another) under Section 138 of N.I. Act, P.S. Kotwali Nagar, District Bulandshahar (Annexure No. 6 to this petition) and impugned judgment and order dated 13.12.2022 passed by Court of Ld. Additional Sessions Judge/Fast Track Court, Court No. 2, Bulandshahar in CrI. Revision No. 361 of 2022.

(ii) Issue any other order or direction in the like nature, which this

Hon'ble Court may deem fit and proper in the circumstances of the case.

2. I have heard learned counsel for the petitioner, learned counsel for the respondent no. 2 and learned A.G.A. for the State and perused the record.

3. Factual matrix of the case in brief are that respondent no. 2 filed a complaint which is registered as Case No. 496 of 2022 (Smt. Shashi Sharma Vs. M/s Naveen Auto and Another), under Section 138 of N.I. Act, P.S. Kotwali Nagar, District Bulandshahar with averment that complainant and respondent no. 2 are working in a partnership firm in the name of M/s Naveen Auto at Raje Babu road, Bulandshahar. Complainant and respondent no. 2, both are partners in the firm. This firm deals in business of TVS bike spare parts and repairing etc. In the profits of firm, share of complainant is 30%, share of wife of respondent no. 2 is 30%, share of respondent no. 2 is 20% and share of Uma Sharma is 20 %.. The respondent no. 2 has been directed to transact the business on behalf of the firm, however, for last three years no profit was given to the complainant and she was avoided by respondent no. 2 in respect of affairs of the firm. When she negotiated with respondent no. 2, he asked her to terminate her relations with the firm and this was agreed between the complainant and partners of the firm that Rs. 3,00,000, 00/- will be given to the complainant in lieu of her 30% share and profits. This was also agreed between partners that until Rs. 3,00,000,00/- is paid to the complainant, she would keep on receiving the profits and on that count a cheque of Rs. 90,00,000/- was issued by the firm in favour of the complainant dated 15.6.2022 which was signed by respondent no. 2 as authorized signatory of the firm. This cheque was drawn on Canara Bank account of the firm. The complainant presented the cheque on same day at his Bank PNB, Yamunaparm Branch Bulandshahar on her bank account, however, the same was dishonoured and returned on 20.7.2022 with endorsement "account blocked", thus consequently the cheque got bounced. When she asked about this to respondent no. 2, he could not give any satisfactory answer and misbehaved with her. She sent a demand notice on 25.7.2022 at his address which was received by him on 28.7.2022, however, its wrong reply was sent by them on 2.8.2022, therefore, complainant had no option but to file present complaint for prosecution of the firm and respondent no. 2 for charge under Section 138 of N.I. Act.

4. Learned Magistrate recorded statement of complainant under Section 200 Cr.P.C. and her witnesses under Section 202 Cr.P.C. and passed impugned summoning order whereby the present petitioners were summoned to face trial for charge under Section 138 of N.I. Act.

5. Feeling aggrieved by the impugned summoning order dated 13.10.2022 passed by learned Additional Civil Judge, (Junior Division), Court No. 9, Bulandshahar, the present petitioners/accused in the case filed a Criminal Revision No. 361 of 2022, Naveen Kumar Sharma and Another Vs. Shashi Sharma and another, before Court of Session Judge, Bulandshahar, however, the said revision was dismissed by learned Additional Session Judge/FTC, Court No. 2, Bulandshahar vide order dated 13.12.2022. The impugned order passed by learned magistrate was affirmed therein. The ground taken in said revision was that the share of partners was decided by firm which is shown in the complaint which is admitted and accordingly Smt. Shashi Sharma, complainant was allotted 30% share in the firm, whereas accused Naveen and his wife was allotted 20%, 30% share respectively and Uma Sharma was allotted 20% share in the firm. The disputed Cheque No. 149610 for amount of Rs. 90,00,000/- was given to the complainant as it was agreed between the partners that she will complete all the formalities of disassociating from the firm herself and till completion of the formalities and accounting, she will keep the cheque safely with her. As per balance sheet of the firm Rs. 1,53, 34,470/- was outstanding against Shashi Sharma to the firm. After receiving the said cheque complainant Shashi Sharma with mala fide intention wrote a letter to bank officers on 10.11.2021 to block and seize the Account No. 2154261011432 of the firm and she also wrote to regional office of the bank that as there was conflict among partners of the firm, therefore, the said account of the firm be seized and blocked and on account of the said letter dated 30.11.2021 of the complainant, account of the firm was blocked since 1.12.2021.

6. Learned counsel for the petitioners submitted that specific grounds were taken by the revisionist/accused persons in criminal revision before the court of session that said cheque was given to the complainant/respondent no. 2 as security in pursuance of an understanding reached between the partners and she had to keep the cheque safely but she presented the same immediately to embarrass and coerce the petitioners. This fact also brought to the notice of the revisional court that the said cheque was not dishonoured on the ground of insufficiency of funds or amount not arranged for, which are enumerated as ground for prosecution under Section 138 of N.I. Act but on ground that account was blocked and this ground is not covered under Section 138 of N.I. Act, therefore, in view of dishonour of cheque on the ground that account was blocked, the petitioners cannot be prosecuted for charge under Section 138 of N.I. Act, inasmuch as the account was blocked at the instance of complainant herself by issuing letters to the concerned bank to block and seize the account of firm due to conflict between partners of the firm, therefore, both the orders of court below are not sustainable and are liable to be set aside and proceedings drawn against the petitioners before the trial court deserve to be quashed otherwise the petitioners will face irreparable loss without any legal basis.

7. Per contra, learned counsel for the respondent no. 2 submitted that there is no illegality, irregularity or any proprietary in the impugned order passed by court below. The complaint filed by the respondent no. 2 under Section 138 of N.I. Act is based on just a legal grounds and grounds taken by the petitioners in present petition under Article 227 of the Constitution of India were considered by learned revisional court and after passing a detailed order or considering the points involved in the matter. Learned Additional Sessions Judge dismissed criminal revision filed by the petitioners against summoning order dated 13.10.2022 passed by learned magistrate.

8. Learned counsel for the respondent cited a judgment of Hon'ble Apex Court in Womb Laboratories Pvt. Ltd. Vs. Vijay Ahuja and Ors., 2019 Legal Eagle (SC) 1447, wherein Hon'ble Apex Court in paragraph nos. 5 and 6 has held as follows:-

"5. In our opinion, the High Court has muddled the entire issue. The avermert in the complaint does indicate that the signed cheques were handed over by the accused to the complainant. The cheques were given by way of security, is a matter of defence. Further, it was not for the discharge of any debt or any liability is also a matter of defence. The relevant facts to countenance the defence will have to be proved - that such security could not be treated as debt or other liability of the accused. That would be a triable issue. We say so because, handing over of the cheques by way of security per se would not extricate the accused from the discharge of liability arising from such cheques.

6. Suffice it to observe, the impugned judgment of the High Court cannot stand the test of judicial scrutiny. The same is, therefore, set aside."

9. Provisions of Section 138 of N.I. Act are reproduced as under:-

"138 Dishonour of cheque for insufficiency, etc., of funds in the account. -
-Where any cheque drawn by a person on an account maintained by him with a banker for payment of any amount of money to another person from out of that account for the discharge, in whole or in part, of any debt or other liability, is returned by the bank unpaid, either because of the amount of money standing to the credit of that account is insufficient to honour the cheque or that it exceeds the amount arranged to be paid from that account by an agreement made with that bank, such person shall be deemed to have committed an offence and shall, without prejudice to any other provisions of this Act, be punished with imprisonment for 1 [a term which may be extended to two years], or with fine which may extend to twice the amount of the cheque, or with both: Provided that nothing contained in this section shall apply unless--

(a) the cheque has been presented to the bank within a period of six months from the date on which it is drawn or within the period of its validity, whichever is earlier;

(b) the payee or the holder in due course of the cheque, as the case may be, makes a demand for the payment of the said amount of money by giving a notice in writing, to the drawer of the cheque, 20[within thirty days] of the receipt of information by him from the bank regarding the return of the cheque as unpaid; and

(c) the drawer of such cheque fails to make the payment of the said amount of money to the payee or, as the case may be, to the holder in due course of the cheque, within fifteen days of the receipt of the said notice.

10. Learned counsel for the petitioner placed reliance on a judgment of Delhi High Court in M/s Ceasefire Industries Ltd. Vs. State & Ors. On 1 May, 2017, wherein petitioner had instituted two complaint under Section 138 of N.I. Act against the respondent accused in question of dishonor of two cheques issued by the respondent with Okhla Industries area, New Delhi, however, the said cheques were returned by the bank with memo indicating reasons for returned to be "account blocked". The complainant after return of the said cheques unpaid by the bank issued legal demand notice calling upon the respondents to pay and upon default in payment on their part a complaint was instituted. Learned magistrate summoned the 2nd to fourth respondents after holding enquiry under Section 200 and 202 Cr.P.C., however, learned magistrate after conducting trial acquitted the respondent of charge under Section 138 of N.I. Act. Delhi High Court while affirming the verdict of acquittal of respondent passed by learned magistrate observed that bank, which has returned cheques unpaid which had made it clear that account has been blocked. It is clear that complainant itself was aware that account has been frozen in terms of directions of some statutory authority. In these circumstances the reason for return of the cheques unpaid being not what is envisaged in Section 138 of the N.I. Act, these petitions are devoid of merit and are dismissed.

11. In another judgment cited by learned counsel for the petitioner in Rajesh Meena Vs. State of Haryana and Others, High Court held that in given facts, this Court has no hesitation in holding that on the date when cheques were presented by the complainant to the drawee bank, the account holder was not maintaining the said account. Resultantly, in the absence of this material condition, it cannot be said that offence punishable under Section 138 of the N.I. Act would be made out.

12. From perusal of record it appears that petitioner Naveen Kumar had also filed a complaint against respondent no. 2 before the court of Additional Civil judge (Junior Division)/Judicial Magistrate, Court No. 9, Bulandshahar, with allegation of misuse of a security cheque worth Rs. 90,00,000/- given to her by the victim as security and writing to the bank where account of firm was being maintained to block the same and on her instance, the said account was blocked. In that complaint, learned magistrate summoned the respondent no. 2 Smt. Shashi Sharma and her husband for charge under Section 417, 406, 420, 504, 506 IPC vide order dated 17.11.2022, however, the said opposite parties in said complaint Naveen Kumar Sharma and Smt. Shashi Sharma filed a petition under Section 482 Cr.P.C. No. 40041 of 2022 before this Court for quashing the proceedings of said complaint case in which this Court vide order dated 5.12.2022 stayed proceedings of said complaint case for a period of six weeks.

13. From perusal of record it appears that two complaint under Section 138 of N.I. Act are filed, one by present respondent no. 2 and one by her husband for dishonor of cheque issued by the firm amount to Rs. 90,00,000/- and Rs. 12,50,000/- respectively.

14. The information has been given by Canara Bank by public Information Officer/Divisional Manager, Canara Bank, on application of present petitioner under Right to Information Act on 12.10.2022 wherein it is stated that Account No. 2154261011432 of M/s Naveen Auto Raje Babu, Bulandshahar, is lying with concerned branch of Canara Bank, however, its operation has been blocked on 1.12.2021 as per information received from Bulandshahar branch. Its operation was suo moto stopped due to expiry of O.D. time limit and in addition to this, on document for renewal of said O.D. limit, one partner Smt. Shashi Sharma has not signed the document and had also requested for blocking of all sort of withdrawal from the bank due to mutual dispute with other partner.

15. Learned counsel for the respondent submitted that the petitioner had deliberately drawn a cheque on account which was blocked. He did not intend to pay the amount gathered in the cheque which was got dishonoured by the bank. The petitioner himself took the case that said cheque was given as security in his reply to demand notice given by the respondent after dishonour of said cheque. All the issues have been addressed by revisional court while dismissing the revision petition filed by the present petitioner and no interference is warranted in impugned orders passed by learned court below in present petition under Article 227 of the Constitution of India which is an extraordinary remedy.

16. Karnataka High Court in Criminal Petition No. 2726 of 2014, M/S Go Go International Pvt.Ltd. vs M/S Lilliput Kidswear, considering the judgment of Delhi High Court in M/S. Ceasefire Industries Ltd. vs State & Ors. (supra) vide order dated 24.1.2019 held that when cheque is dishonoured for the reason account blocked, the same constitutes an offence under Section 138 of the N.I. Act, therefore there is divergence of opinion on this issue amongst High Courts.

17. In D.P. Gulati Manager Accounts M/s. Jetking Infotrain Ltd. vs. State of Uttar Pradesh & Anr., Hon'ble Apex Court in judgment dated 31.3.2015 in Crl. Appeal No. 1550 of 2014 set aside the order passed by High Court of Judicature at Allahabad in Crl. Misc. Application u/s 482 Cr.P.C. No. 6667 of 2014 filed under Sections 420, 467, 468 IPC by accused persons, whereby the said court disposed of the petition and declined to quash the proceedings of Criminal Complaint Case no. 1446 of 2013 and complaint under Section 138 of N.I. Act filed by appellants before Hon'ble Apex Court on the ground that it was a clear case of abuse of process of law on the part of respondent no. 2.

18. Whether the account of which the said cheque was drawn, was having sufficient balance to pay the amount gathered by said cheque worth Rs. 90,000,00/- drawn in favour of respondent, whether petitioner was having some other account apart from the account which was blocked as said above on which cheque would be drawn in favour of the respondents in discharge of certain debt and liability as claimed by her, whether the petitioner indeed intended to get the cheque encashed, all these questions are to be decided during trial and the grounds taken in present petition can be raised by the petitioner at the stage of leading defence. The petitioner has claimed that said cheque was issued in favour of the respondent no. 2 as security cheque, as huge amount was outstanding to the respondent no. 2 and for that reason after completing all formalities of disassociation from firm the cheque was to be encashed, is dispelled by the aforesaid proposition of law laid down by Hon'ble Apex Court in Om Laboratory Pvt. Ltd., wherein it was held that handing over of cheque by way of security per se, would not absolve the accused from discharge of liability arising from said cheque, therefore, in the light of foregoing discussion, this Court finds no good ground to interfere in impugned orders passed by court below which are under challenged in present petition. The impugned orders are in accordance with law and no illegality or irregularity is found therein. In that view of the matter, trial court is required to record evidence of the parties and arrive at an independent conclusion as to whether an offence is made out under Section 138 of N.I. Act or not.

18. In the result the petition stands dismissed. The summoning order passed by learned magistrate is affirmed. The trial court shall proceed to record the evidence of parties after appearance of the accused petitioner and recording therein statements on charge and decide the questions with reference to Section 138 of N.I. Act in accordance with law.

19. The interim order stands discharged.

A. Civil Law – Injunction – Status quo - Where any property is held by several co-owners, each co-owner has interest in every part of the property, but such an interest is qualified by similar interest of other co-owners, and therefore, to that extent, no damage or waste to the property or illegitimate use of the property can be permitted by one of the co-owner to the disadvantage of other co-owners. (Para 28, 29)

Ownership imports three essential rights, namely, right to possession, right to enjoy and right to dispose. If an owner is wrongly deprived of possession of his property he has a right to be put in possession thereof. All the three essentials are satisfied in the case of co-owner of a land. All co-owners have equal rights and co-ordinate interest in the property, though their shares may be either fixed or indeterminate. Every co-owner has a right to enjoyment and possession equal to that of the other co-owner or co-owners. Each co-owner has, in theory interest in every infinitesimal portion of the subject matter and each has the right, irrespective of the quantity of his interest, to be in possession of every part and parcel of the property, jointly with others. (Para 30)

Jurisprudentially it is not correct to say that a co-owner of a property is not its owner. He owns every part of the composite property along with others and it cannot be said that he is only a part- owner or a fractional owner of the property. The position will change only when partition takes place. (Para 30)

B. If one co-sharer is being enjoined from using and enjoying the land which falls in his share also by virtue of being co-sharer, such an aggrieved co-sharer can maintain a suit for injunction. (Para 31)

In the plaint, the general pleading is w.r.t. undivided shares and the only exception is para-9 wherein allegations have been made that there was a threat by the co-sharers namely the respondents to change the nature of the land. (Para 32)

The injunction could not have been maintained and instead petitioner ought to have either amended the relief clause in the plaint demanding for partition or should have filed a fresh suit for partition. Since the defendants have taken the plea that they were not raising any new construction activity and only some repair work was going on in the old existing construction where the defendants are residing, such an act would not amount any destruction or damage to the joint property, nor would result in appropriation by the defendants of any part of land in name of raising construction. In these circumstances, the judgment passed by the District Judge does not suffer from any manifest error of law and facts. (Para 33, 34)

It is left open for the petitioner to either seek amendment in the suit to add a relief for partition or to file a fresh suit for partition and also maintain an application of injunction afresh in the event any new construction activity is undertaken upon a joint land. (Para 35)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ajit Kumar, J.)

1. Heard Sri Nipun Singh, learned counsel for the petitioner and Shri Syed Ali Imam, learned counsel appearing for the respondents.

2. Petitioner before this Court is the plaintiff in the suit instituted for permanent prohibitory injunction being O.S. No. 106 of 2020. In the suit, he moved a temporary injunction application being paper no. 6C along with an affidavit. After the written statement was filed and so also the objection to the pending 6C application by the defendant-respondents, the said application was finally granted by the trial court in favour of the petitioner with a direction to the parties to maintain status quo in respect of the suit property vide order dated 16.3.2021.

3. However, upon a miscellaneous appeal being filed under Order XLIII Rule 1(r) by the defendant-respondents, the said appeal came to be allowed by the District Judge, Gautam Buddha Nagar vide order dated 24.11.2022 setting aside the order of the status quo passed by the trial court.

4. The petitioner pleads that even in case no partition of the suit property has taken place in metes and bounds amongst co-sharers, the Court in order to protect the suit property and from being damaged by raising any construction in any manner or demolition exercise, direct the parties to maintain status quo. Reliance has been placed upon various judgements of this Court : Awadh Narain v. Additional District Judge-IVth, Jaunpur and others; 2001 ALLJ 2551, Radhay Shyam and other v. Uma Shankar and others; 1997 ALLCJ 9, Ram Prasad Tiwari v. Shakur Tiwari, Manu / U.P. / 0282/1964 (2003) 5 SCC page 150, T, Lakshmi Pati and others v. T. Reddy and others and Girdhari Lal v. Ram Lal; SCC Online J & K 693 : AIR 2019 J & K Page 1.

5. Learned counsel for the petitioner submits that it is because the defendant-respondents started raising construction upon a joint land that the necessity arose to institute the suit for permanent injunction. He submits that the plaintiff would have instituted the suit for partition, but he instituted the suit for permanent injunction, instead to ward off an eminent danger of a part of land being appropriated by a co-sharer.

6. Per contra, it is argued by the learned counsel appearing for the contesting respondents that the petitioner having admitted the property to be the joint property, the suit for injunction simpliciter was not maintainable and the proper cause for the plaintiff was to institute suit for partition in which he would have claimed injunction also. It is submitted that no injunction can be granted against another co-sharer because possession of one is possession of all the co-sharers in equal measure and any injunction order if passed would amount to direct interference in the enjoyment of the property by the other co-sharers.

7. Learned counsel for the respondent has relied upon the judgement of this Court in the case of Virendra Kumar v. Additional District Judge, Kannauj and others; 2014 (3) Current Civil Cases, page 43, Full Bench of this Court in the case of Chhedi Lal v. Chhote Lal, AIR 1951 ALL 199 and a judgement of Madras High Court in the case of K.P.M. Aboobucker v. K. Kunhamoo and others; 1958 AIR Madras 287.

8. Before I proceed to deal with the rival submissions made by the respective parties, it is necessary to refer to certain basic facts pleaded in the plaint and in the written statement filed by the respondents. The suit property is relating to khasra/plot no. 112, in which the heirs except one Kripal from the branch of Kanhaiya Lal (the second son of Udai Singh) are impleaded as defendant first set and heirs from the branch of Natthu Singh (the first son of Udai Singh) and one Kripal son of Kanhaiya Lal have been impleaded as defendant second set. In the plaint case while seeking a decree of permanent prohibitory injunction, a pedigree is given of all the parties to the suit and the common ancestor being Uday Singh. The plaintiff-petitioner is also the son of Kanhaiya Lal.

9. The suit property is stated to have devolved upon the heirs of the Nathu Singh and Kanhaiya Lal in equal measure i.e. 1/2 share. The dispute arose after the acquisition of an area measuring 1.138 hectares out of total area 1.846 hectares from plot no. 112 by the State for New Okhla Development Authority (NOIDA) and thus only 0.7080 hectares land was left with the parties. It is stated vide paragraph-8, that parties to the suit are jointly enjoying the property measuring 0.7080 hectares of plot no. 112 which is now a minjumla number i.e. 112m.

10. Now the grievance raised is that the defendants first set started deliberately construction activity and thereby taking possession of a specific piece of land in the remaining area of 0.7080 hectares of plot no. 112m. The petitioner, therefore, has pleaded that in the absence of any partition on such a unilateral act on the part of the respondents to change the nature of the land on spot and to take possession of a particular piece of that land by raising constructions was not permissible and hence the suit.

11. When the suit was instituted, the trial court considering the urgency granted injunction order of status quo. The defendants thereafter appeared in the suit and filed written statement. In the written statement, it has been pleaded that the defendants were entitled to 1/2 share in the land and of which mutual partition had taken place some 30 years ago by way of family arrangement and ever since then the parties had made permanent construction of their respective houses and were in possession thereof. It is stated vide-paragraph-6 of the written statement that every share holder had got separate share and had fortified his land falling in his share. But what is interesting to note is that the area in plot no. 112m is being disputed vide para-9 and the defendants seem to be claiming larger area than what exactly stated in the plaint case. The pleadings of both the parties if are tested on the revenue records, I find that in plot no. 112 minjumla the total area shown is 0.7080 hectares in which names of the parties have continued in the revenue record as on 1428 fasli and the New Okhla Development Authority is also shown to be in possession of plot no. 112 minjumla 1.1380 hectares. The pleadings in paragraph-7 of the plaint show total area to be 1.846 hectares as against the area shown in plot no. 112m to be 1.1380 hectares. Nowhere it is pleaded either in the plaint or in the written statement as to what is the exact total area of plot no. 112m. If the parties had agreed to the mutual understanding for family arrangement preciously at some point of time then at least there should not have been dispute regarding the area that was left with the tenure holders after the part of the land stood acquired for the New Okhla Development Authority.

12. In view of the above, prima facie it appears that no partition in metes and bounds has taken place. However, it would be a matter of evidence when the suit is tried. The raising of construction upon a joint land in the absence of partition, would certainly be disturbing the nature of the suit land and, therefore, with this plea, the plaintiff sought injunction in the suit.

13. This Court as early as in the year 1950 had already held that ordinarily an injunction should not be granted to a co-owner against other co-owner.

14. The Full Bench decision in the case of Chhedi Lal (supra) delivered on 16.11.1950 has not been overruled till date. The Full Bench held that while it was not an absolute rule to deny injunction to one co-owner against another co-owner but it can be granted when an exclusively co-owner uses a unpartitioned property to the exclusion of right of others co-sharers. In other words, the Full Bench accepted right enjoyment of property by co-sharers inter se, i.e. an interest and right of a co-sharer in a property with those others is absolute, but this rightly stands qualified by the interest of other co-owners. The Full Bench referred to the judgement of the Judicial Committee in Robert Watson and Co. v.

Ram Chand Dutt and others; (1989-90) L.R. 17 I.A. 110, which runs as under :

"It appears to their Lordships that, in a case like the present, an injunction is not the proper remedy. In India a large proportion of the lands, including many very large estates, is held in un-divided shares, and if one shareholder can restrain another from cultivating a portion of the estate in a proper and husbandlike manner, the whole estate may, by means of cross-injunctions, have to remain altogether without cultivation until all the shareholders can agree upon a mode of cultivation to be adopted, or until a partition by metes and bounds can be effected-a work which, in ordinary course, in large estates would probably occupy & period including many seasons. In such a case, in a climate like that of India, land which had been brought into cultivation would probably become waste or jungle, and greatly deteriorated in value. In Bengal the courts of justice, in cases where no specific rule exists, are to act according to justice, equity and good conscience, and if, in a case of shareholders holding lands in common, it should be found that one shareholder is in the act of cultivating a portion of the lands which is not being actually used by another, it would scarcely be consistent with the rule above indicated to restrain him from proceeding with his work, or to allow any other shareholder to appropriate to himself the fruits of the other's labour or capital."

15 . The Bench also quoted the observations made in the case of Midnapur Zamindary Company Limited v. Nares Narayan Roy and others; (1923-24) L.R. 51 I.A. 293 :

"Where lands in India are so held in common by co-sharers, each co-sharer is entitled to cultivate in his own interests in a proper and husband like manner any part of the lands which is not being cultivated by another of his co-sharers, but he is liable to pay to his co-sharers compensation in respect of such exclusive use of the lands. Such an exclusive use of lands held in common by a co-sharer is not an ouster of his co-sharers from their proprietary rights as co-sharers in the lands. When co-sharers cannot agree how any lands held by them in common may be used, the remedy of any co-sharer who objects to the exclusive use by another co-sharer of lands held in common is to obtain a partition of the lands. No co-sharer can as against his co-sharers, obtain any jote right, a right of permanent occupancy, in the lands held in common nor can he create by letting the lands to cultivators as his tenants any right of occupancy of the lands in them."

14. Referring to the judgment of Mahmood, J in Paras Ram v. Sherjit (1887) ILR 9 All 661, the Full Bench observed :

"The cases of the Allahabad High Court on the point are far more numerous. Paras Ram v. Sherjit (1887) ILR 9 All 661 is a decision by Mahmood, J. in a case where a co-owner sought demolition of a building constructed by a joint owner in spite of his protest. The learned Judge observed that as a pure question of law as distinguished from the rules of equity the plaintiffs may be entitled to the decree but courts in India exercise the combined jurisdiction of law and equity and cannot disregard equitable doctrines in enforcing remedies. He distinguished cases in which a building is erected by a rank trespasser upon a land of another and cases in which the building is erected by a joint proprietor on joint land without the permission of his joint owners or in spite of their protest."

15. On the question of demolition of structure if raised upon a joint land by a co-sharer with the consent of the other co-sharers, the Full Bench first referred to the judgment in Lala Bishwambhar Lal v. Raja Ram (1869) 3 Beng. L.R. Appendix 67 and then Full Bench judgment of 5 Judges in Shadi v. Anup Singh (1890) ILR 12 All 430, and observed thus :

"Sir Barnes Peacock in Lala Bishwambhar Lal v. Raja Ram (1869) 3 Beng. L.R. Appendix 67 and concludes that when a joint owner of land, without obtaining the permission of his co-owners, builds upon such land, such buildings should not be demolished at the instance of such co-owners, unless they prove that the action of their joint owner in building upon joint land has caused them a material and substantial injury such as cannot be remedied by partition of the joint land. This case was considered by a Full Bench of five Judges including Mahmood, J. in Shadi v. Anup Singh (1890) ILR 12 All 430. The suit was brought for an injunction within three or four days of the defendant commencing a construction upon joint land. The defendant asserted exclusive right to the land. The plaintiff obtained an interim injunction but the District Judge on appeal, in view of the ruling in Paras Ram (supra), went into the question as to whether the plaintiff could be compensated by the defendant at partition. He found that the defendant was building upon land which was in excess of the share which would come to him on partition and the plaintiff could not therefore, be adequately compensated. Sir John Edge, C.J., held that the District Judge was wrong in going into the question whether the excess land had been appropriated and that on the finding of fact given by him the injunction should have been granted. It is obvious from a reading of the judgment in Paras Ram (supra) that it did not justify an investigation into the question whether more land than belonged to the co-sharer was appropriated. The learned Chief Justice observed that the defendant, instead of going to the partition court, proceeded to appropriate to himself lands in which each of his co-sharers had an interest and thus he proposed to exclude them from all use and enjoyment of a portion of common land. He went on to say. "We need not in this case consider" what a civil court should do if the defendant has erected "at great expense buildings which a court of equity might hesitate to order him to pull down." This observation clearly saves the power of the court under section 55 of the Specific Relief Act as a court of equity to regulate its discretion in accordance with the provisions of that section in granting or withholding injunction."

16. The Full Bench then proceeded to further refer two decisions of Division Bench of this Court in the case of Ram Lal v. Jagan Nath; 1950 AWR 336 and Lala Sheo Nath v. Lala Shiam Behari in Second Appeal No. 445 of 1942, decided on 23rd December, 1948.

"So far we have referred to the decisions of the Allahabad High Court before the amalgamation but two cases of the new Court after the amalgamation need to be noticed. One of these is reported in Ram Lal v. Jagan Nath 1950 AWR 336 and is a decision by the present Chief Justice. The other is a Bench decision, unreported, in Lala Sheo Nath v. Lala Shiam Behari in Second Appeal No. 445 of 1942, decided on 23rd December, 1948 by the present Chief Justice sitting with our brother Chandiramani, J. In the former case the learned Chief Justice enunciated the principle that a co-sharer in exclusive possession of joint land is not entitled to so can change the character of possession as to effect a complete ouster of the other co-sharers. By adding more constructions to those already existing a co-sharer cannot be said to change the nature of his possession or putting the land to use for which it was not meant and the other co-sharers are not entitled to have the constructions removed. Such cases are to be decided on a balance of convenience and the courts have to see whether the acts complained of are such that they were detrimental to the interest of the co-sharers and some thing to which they had not already acquiesced before. The learned Chief Justice also refers to a large number, of Allahabad decisions and to the unreported case. This view is in full accord with the older Avadh decisions to which we have referred."

17. Then having discussed the law as above Full Bench finally held as under :

"As a result of the foregoing discussion, it appears to us that the question of the right of co-sharers in respect of joint land should be kept separate and distinct from the question as to what relief should be granted to co-sharer, whose right in respect of joint land has been invaded by the other co-sharers either by exclusively appropriating and cultivating land or by raising constructions thereon. The conflict in some of the decisions has apparently risen from the confusion of the distinct matters. entitled to object to While therefore a co-sharer is another co-sharer exclusively appropriating land to himself to the detriment of other co-sharers, the question as to what relief should be granted to the plaintiff in the event of the invasion of his rights will depend upon the circumstances of each case. The right to the relief for demolition and injunction will be granted or withheld by the court according as the circumstances established in the case justify. The court may feel persuaded to grant both the reliefs if the evidence establishes that the plain till cannot be adequately compensated at the time of the partition and that greater injury will result to him by the refusal of the relief than by granting it. On the contrary if material and substantial injury will be caused to the defendant by the granting of the relief, the court will no doubt be exercising proper discretion in withholding such relief. As has been pointed out in some of the cases, each case will be decided upon its own peculiar facts and it will be left to the court to exercise its discretion upon proof of circumstances showing which side the balance of convenience lies. That the court in the exercise of its discretion will be guided by considerations of justice, equity and good conscience cannot be overlooked and it is not possible for the court to lay down an inflexible rule as to the circumstances in which the relief for demolition injunction should be granted or refused."

18. In view of, the above exposition of principle of law on grant of injunction to a co-sharer, entire discretion to grant injunction to other co-sharer is held to be dependant upon the facts of each case and the testing point is, as to whether one co-sharer is trying to appropriate unpartitioned land by raising construction to the disadvantage of the other co-sharer.

19. In the case of Sant Ram Nagina Ram (supra), Punjab and Haryana High Court held that in the absence of any suit for partition in respect to joint holding while it is true that one co-sharer cannot be permitted to usurp the best piece of land without the consent of the other co-sharer. The Court summarized the legal proposition regarding joint possession of the property vide paragraph-14 thus :

"14. The Weight of the authorities and the principles which have been discussed propositions:

(1) A co-owner has an interest in the whole property and also in every parcel of it.

(2) Possession of the joint property one co-owner is in the eye of law, possession of all even if all but one are actually out of possession.

(3) A mere occupation of a larger portion or even of an entire joint property does not necessarily amount to ouster as the possession of one is deemed to be on behalf of all.

(4) The above rule admits of an exception when there is ouster of a co-owner by another. But in order to negative the presumption of joint possession on behalf of all, on the ground of ouster, the possession of a co-owner must not only be exclusive but also hostile to the knowledge of the other, as, when a co-owner openly asserts his own title and de- nies that of the other

(5) Passage of time does not extinguish the right of co-owner who has been out of possession of the joint property except in the event of ouster or abandonment.

(6) Every co-owner has a right to use the joint property in a husband like manner not inconsistent with similar rights of other co-owners.

(7) Where a co-owner is in possession of separate parcels under an arrangement consented to by the other co-owners, it is not open to any one to disturb the arrangement without the consent of others except by filing a suit for partition.

(8) The remedy of a co-owner not in possession, or not in possession of a share of the joint property, is by way of a suit for partition or for actual joint possession, but not for ejectment. Same is the case where a co-owner sets up an exclusive title in himself.

(9) Where a portion of the joint property is, by common consent of the co-owners, reserved for a particular common purpose, it cannot be diverted to an inconsistent user by a co-owner; if he does so, he is liable to be ejected and the particular parcel will be liable to be restored to its original condition. It is not necessary in such a case to show that special damage has been suffered."

20. In the case of Awadh Narain (supra), this Court had held that if one of the co-sharers intended to raise construction without there being any partition between the co-sharers in metes and bounds, i.e. demarcating exclusively their rights shares in the property, then injunction should not be denied to a co-sharer against the other merely on a premise that construction would be raised at the risk of the person concerned and it would be pulled down at the time the decree is passed. The Court, therefore, held that if any co-sharer is raising construction on an undivided and unpartitioned land, he can be enjoined from doing so.

21. In the case of Radhey Shyam (supra), the Court referred to the judgment of Justice Watch H AIR 1960 ALL 322, that injunction cannot be granted against a co-sharer for a wrongful use of a joint land so the issue decided by the Division Bench was that the joint owner had no right to deal with the joint property without consent of the other joint owner. In turn, the learned Judge relied upon a Division Bench of this Court, ILR 18 ALL 115 and then the Court referred to the judgement of the Punjab & Haryana High Court (supra).

22. In the case of T. Lakshmipathi & others (supra), it was held that one co-owner cannot be permitted take exclusive possession of the property nor can be permitted to commit waste or do illegitimate use of a joint property. A right of the co-sharer to enjoy the property jointly and exclusively has been recognized and to that extent right to protect possession has also been recognized. The interest in the property of one stands fortified by another co-sharer and to that extent nobody can be permitted to take exclusive possession of a particular area by way of illegitimate use thereof or may be changing the nature of the land.

23. In this above case, the controversy had arisen from a decree passed by the Court for eviction under the ANDHRA PRADESH BUILDINGS (LEASE, RENT AND. EVICTION) CONTROL ACT, 1960. The rent controller in that case had directed for eviction of the tenant namely respondent nos. 2 and 3. In the SLP and hence the persons inducted to be in possession were held to be liable for eviction. The appeal was dismissed against the said decree by the Principal Senior Civil Judge affirming the order of the rent controller. In the revision that was filed before the High Court, though it got wrongly recorded as unregistered sale deed in favour of applicant nos. 3 to 5 in the SLP and then applicant nos. 1 and 2 and so there was no effect of transferring title to that, but the counsel appearing for the respective parties agreed before the Supreme Court that those sale deeds were registered one. Thus, it was pleaded before the High Court that the appellant being transferee in possession by virtue of the sale deed also acquired status of the co-owner and so they could not be the tenant of respondent no. 1 who was just one of the other co-owners and so it was also pleaded that the landlord and tenant relationship was found fundamentally misconceived and the suit deserved to be dismissed. It is in that background that a plea was taken before the High Court and the Supreme Court that remedy of a co-owner was to file a suit for partition against another co-owner in possession.

24. The rival submissions before the Court in the above case where :

"A. If the appellants were held to be co-owners in possession of the property, so the suit for eviction would not lie; and on behalf of the decree holder:

B. Since appellants were inducted by the tenant in the suit property without his consent, they deserved eviction."

25. It is in this above background of legal plea that question in that case was considered about the injunction inter se parties. Vide paragraph-25 held thus :

"In the facts and circumstances of the case, no defence or shelter is available to the appellants behind the plea that they have acquired interest of some of the co-owners. The law as to co-owners is well settled. Where any property is held by several co-owners, each co-owner has interest in every inch of the common property, but his interest is qualified and limited by similar interest of the other co-owners. One co-owner cannot take exclusive possession of the property nor commit an act of waste, ouster or illegitimate use, and if he does so he may be restrained by an injunction. A co-owner may, by an arrangement, expressed or implied, with his other co-owners, possess and enjoy any property exclusively. Such a co-owner can also protect his possession against the other co-owners and if he is dispossessed by the latter, he can recover exclusive possession. (See Jahuri Sah & Ors. v. Dwarika Prasad Jhunjunwala & Ors., (1966) Supp SCR 280). It is beyond any controversy that on the death of late P. Narayana Reddy, his rights devolved upon the several heirs including respondent no.1. The respondent no.1 is the only male person in the body of the co-owners, all others being women. It may be for this reason, or otherwise, that the respondent no.1 was in possession of the property, through tenants, realizing the rent peacefully and with the consent, expressed or implied, of other co- heirs of late P. Nithyananda Reddy. So far as the respondents no.2 and 3 are concerned, by operation of Section 116 of the Evidence Act, they were estopped from challenging or denying the ownership of the respondent no.1 and his rights in the tenancy premises. As held in Vasudeo v. Balkishan, (2002) 2 SCC 50, the rule of estoppel between landlord and tenant continues to operate so long as the tenancy continues and unless the tenant has surrendered possession to the landlord. The estoppel would cease to operate only on the tenant openly restoring possession by surrender to the landlord. Neither the respondents no. 2 and 3 nor their successors in interest or the persons claiming under them could have denied the title of the respondent no.1 during the continuance of the tenancy and even thereafter unless they had restored possession over the tenancy premises to the respondent No.1. Looking at the status of the appellants whether as co-owners or as persons inducted in possession by the tenants they have no legs to stand on. If other co-owners could not have dispossessed the respondent no.1 or demolished the property without the consent of respondent no. 1, it is difficult to conceive how their transferees could have demolished the tenancy premises and raised their own construction over the land on which the tenancy premises stood earlier."

26. In the case of Girdhari Lal (supra), the Court was faced with the legal issue as to whether a co-sharer can seek injunction raising other co-sharer from using joint property or raising construction thereon without seeking relief of partition. The Court after referring to the facts and discussing various judgement has referred to the judgement in the case of Abhai Singh v. Gyan Singh 1971 JKLR page 326 in which the Court had observed that one co-sharer cannot be permitted to raise construction upon a joint land without the consent of other may be such a construction may not cause direct loss to other joint owners. The learned Judge also referred to the judgement of the Rajasthan High Court in Chagan Lal v. State Of Rajasthan: 2022 Latest Caselaw 9493 Raj and also Division Bench of the Punjab and Haryana in Sant Ram Nagina Ram v. Daya Ram Nagina Ram and others; AIR

1961 P H 528. The Court thus ultimately held that if the property was found to be a joint property and that encroachment was being made upon the defendants then the trial court ought to have decreed the suit for injunction.

27. Considering the judgement in the aforesaid cases, while I find there to be no dispute that where any property is held by several co-owners, each co-owner has interest in every part of the property, but such an interest is qualified by similar interest of other co-owners, and therefore, to that extent, no damage or waste to the property or illegitimate use of the property can be permitted by one of the co-owner to the disadvantage of other co-owners.

28. A co-ordinate Bench of this Court in the case of Virendra Kumar (supra) was confronted with this law point as to whether suit simpliciter for permanent injunction would be maintainable and entertainable if instituted by one co-sharer against the other co-sharer and the interim injunction in that case was granted by the trial court to maintain status quo. The order of the trial court was set aside by the Court in appeal and hence the co-sharer plaintiff came to the High Court. The controversy in that case was that though the property was joint but the one brother had sold out a part of the property for consideration of Rs. 40,000/- in favour of the respondent nos. 2 and 3 and so the grievance was that such transfer of the property by sale without there being partition thereof was not permissible. It also transpired that in the said case that no suit was filed questioning the sale deed and, therefore, the purchaser also claimed to be a co-sharer. The Court therefore held that without a suit for partition injunction could not have been granted, relying upon a judgement of the Supreme Court in the case of Kochkunju Nair v. Koshy Alexander and others; AIR 1999 SC 2272. Supreme Court in the case of Kochkunju Nair (supra) was dealing with a right of Kudikidappukaran claimed by one of the co-owner. Kudikidappukaran is a right to build dwelling house. Interpreting the rights of the co-owners in respect of the joint property vide paragraph-9, 10 & 11, the Court had held thus :

"9. Ownership imports three essential rights, namely, right to possession, right to enjoy and right to dispose. If an owner is wrongly deprived of possession of his property he has a right to be put in possession thereof. All the three essentials are satisfied in the case of co-owner of a land. All co-owners have equal rights and co-ordinate interest in the property, though their shares may be either fixed or indeterminate. Every co-owner has a right to enjoyment and possession equal to that of the other co-owner or co-owners. Each co-owner has, in theory interest in every infinitesimal portion of the subject matter and each has the right, irrespective of the quantity of his interest, to be in possession of every part and parcel of the property, jointly with others (vide Mitra's Co-ownership and Partition, Seventh Edn.).

10. A three-Judge Bench of this Court has held in Sri Ram Pasricha v. Jagannath, AIR 1976 SC 2335 that a co-owner owns every part of the composite property along with others. Following statement of law has been made by their Lordships (Para 29):

"Jurisprudentially it is not correct to say that a co-owner of a property is not its owner. He owns every part of the composite property along with others and it cannot be said that he is only a part-owner or a fractional owner of the property. exist". The position will change only when partition takes place."

11. To hold that a co-owner is not an owner and his possession is not the possession envisaged in Section 2(25) of the Act is in conflict with the correct legal position. If a co-owner wants to erect homestead on the land he is free to do so. When a division of the co-ownership property takes place the co-owner who put up the homestead can claim that the said portion may be allotted to his share. Courts would ordinarily grant such equitable relief when claimed. [vide Nutbehari Das v. Nanilal Das, AIR 1937 PC 611] If the other co-owner objects to the construction of a homestead he can get the co-ownership property divided by partition, and if the other party is not readily willing to that course it is open to him to get it partitioned through suit. These are various remedies available to the co-owner in respect of his land. Merely because he has to re-sort to such steps it cannot be said that a co-owner cannot erect a homestead on his land."

29. In the case of Ram Prasad Tiwari (supra), a co-ordinate Bench of this Court has held that if one co-sharer is being enjoined from using and enjoying the land which falls in his share also by virtue of being co-sharer, such an aggrieved co-sharer can maintain a suit for injunction.

30. In the light of the authorities discussed, and applying the above principle to the facts of the case, I find that in the plaint, the general pleading is with regard to undivided shares and the only exception is paragraph-9 wherein allegations have been made that there was a threat by the co-sharers namely the respondents to change the nature of the land.

31. In the background of these pleadings, I find that there is no pleading with regard to any construction activity initiated by the defendants-respondents in the suit and the Relief-A in the Final Relief Clause is to the effect that without partition the respondents be restrained not to change the nature of land. The Court without least application of mind directed for an ad-interim injunction on 10.6.2020. However, thereafter, the written statement was filed in which the basic plea was taken that there was already mutual partition of the property amongst the co-owners and that there was no construction work going on but only some repair work was being undertaken given the old constructions upon land land that fell into their shares. In these circumstances, the basic prayer ought to have been for partition if the plaintiff was claiming that the property had not been partitioned in metes and bounds. The trial court after the objections were filed though noticed the objections of the defendants taken in the suit as well as to the 6C application but proceeded to assume that the property was undivided as the tenure holders continued to be recorded in a joint khata.

32. In the background of the pleadings that have been discussed above an injunction order was totally uncalled for. The principles that have been finally discussed above for consideration of injunction suit, on those parameters, the injunction could not have been maintained and instead petitioner ought to have either amended the relief clause in the plaint demanding for partition or should have filed a fresh suit for partition. Since the defendants have taken the plea that they were not raising any new construction activity and only some repair work was going on in the old existing construction where the defendants are residing, such an act would not amount any destruction or damage to the joint property, nor would result in appropriation by the defendants of any part of land in name of raising construction. In these circumstances, I do not find, the judgment passed by the District Judge suffering from any manifest error of law and facts.

33. However, it is left open for the petitioner to either seek amendment in the suit to add a relief for partition or to file a fresh suit for partition and also maintain an application of injunction afresh in the event any new construction activity is undertaken upon a joint land.

34. With liberty aforesaid, this petition stands disposed of.

35. Cost made easy.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Umesh Chandra Sharma, J.)

1. Heard Sri Syed Imran Ibrahim, learned counsel for the applicants, Sri Pankaj Kumar Tripathi, learned A.G.A for the State and perused the record.

2. This application under Section 482 Cr.P.C has been moved to quash the summoning order dated 10.11.2022 arising out of Special Case No. 70 of 2019 - (Amar Singh Vs. Rakesh Mishra and others) under Sections 323, 427, 504, 506 I.P.C & Section 3 (1) X, of the Scheduled Caste and the Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, 1989, Police Station Highway, district Mathura as well as all consequential proceedings of Case No. 70 of 2019, pending in the Court of Special Judge, SC/ST At, Mathura.

3. In brief, the facts of the case are that opposite party no. 2, Amar Singh, the complainant moved an application under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C to lodge an F.I.R under the aforesaid Sections against the applicants in respect of commission of crime at 09:00 a.m on 28.07.2019 with the allegations that the applicant and four five other persons armed with Lathi, sticks and other weapons reached at his land, broke the boundary wall through a J.C.B Machine and caused a loss of Rs.50,000/-. When they were prevented they abused, saying the applicant and his brother to be Chamar Dherh and assaulted the complainant and his brother.

4. The complainant ranged up 100 number and when police reached on the spot, they scrapped giving threatening to their life. The 100 number police carried the complainant and his brother Kundan Singh, Kedar Singh at the P.S. where the complainant presented a written complaint, but the Highway P.S. did not take any action in the matter. The accused persons are the Gunda and miscreants, who want to occupy the complainant's land by dint of his muscle power. The applicant also moved a complaint to S.S.P, Mathura on 31st July, 2019, and again sent an application on 13.08.2019 to S.S.P, Mathura and other superior authorities but no action was taken , hence application u/s 156 (3) Cr.P.C was moved.

5. The aforesaid application was converted into complaint. The statement of the complainant was recorded under Section 200 Cr.P.C. The statements of P.W. 1 Kundan Singh, P.W. 2 Kedar Singh and P.W 3 Vinod Kumar were recorded under Section 202 Cr.P.C. On 10.11.2022, the learned Special Judge (SC/ST Act) Mathura, summoned the applicants under Sections 323, 504, 506, 427 I.P.C and Section 3 (1) Da Dha of the S.C/S.T Act, for their appearance on 16.12.2022.

6. Being aggrieved, the accused applicants have preferred this Application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. At the time of hearing, the learned A.G.A raised an objection that in view of the Full Bench Judgement of this Court passed in Gulam Rasool Khan & Ors. Vs. State of U.P. & Ors. Criminal Appeal No. 1000 of 2018 on 28.07.2022, (appeal can be preferred u/s Section 14-A of the S.C. / S.T Act), this petition is not maintainable. By this application basically the summoning order has been challenged, which is appealable.

7. Contrary to that the learned counsel for the applicant relying on several judgments, which are discussed herein argued that the application under Section 482 Cr.P.C is maintainable against the order passed by the learned Special Judge (SC/ST Act) even in cases wherein an order has been passed under the S.C. S.T Act.

8. It would be proper to mention Section 14-A of the SC ST Act, which is here in below :-

"14A. (1) Notwithstanding anything contained in the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973, an appeal shall lie, from any judgment, sentence or order, not being an interlocutory order, of a Special Court or an Exclusive Special Court, to the High Court both on facts and on law.

(2) Notwithstanding anything contained in sub-section (3) of section 378 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973, an appeal shall lie to the High Court against an order of the Special Court or the Exclusive Special Court granting or refusing bail.

(3) Notwithstanding anything contained in any other law for the time being in force, every appeal under this section shall be preferred within a period of ninety days from the date of the judgment, sentence or order appealed from:

Provided that the High Court may entertain an appeal after the expiry of the said period of ninety days if it is satisfied that the appellant had sufficient cause for not preferring the appeal within the period of ninety days:

Provided further that no appeal shall be entertained after the expiry of the period of one hundred and eighty days.

(4) Every appeal preferred under sub-section (1) shall, as far as possible, be disposed of within a period of three months from the date of admission of the appeal."

9. The judicial precedent referred by the learned counsel for the applicant are categorically discussed herein below.

a) Prithvi Raj Chauhan Vs. Union of India & Ors. (2020) 4 SCC 727, this was the case, in which an anticipatory bail under Section 438 Cr.P.C had been preferred, Hon'ble the Apex Court held that the grant of anticipatory bail under Section 438 Cr.P.C is barred in respect of offences under the S.C S.T Act of 1989 however, where the prima-facie case are not made out, anticipatory bail can be granted in appropriate circumstances, with exercising the of power u/s 482 Cr.P.C.

b). It has also been held that preliminary inquiry before the registration of F.I.R in respect of occurrence under the Act of 1989 can only be in circumstances enumerated in Lalita Kumari, (2014) 2 SCC 1.

c). In para 12 of the judgment it has been held that in exceptional circumstances and strictly in parameter laid down in the judgment, quashment to proceedings under the Act of 1989 can be prayed under Section 482 Cr.P.C for preventing the misuse of law.

d). Para 12 of the judgment is reproduced herein below:-

"12) Dr. Ashok Dhamija, learned counsel for the CBI, submitted that the use of the word "shall" under Section 154(1) of the Code clearly mandates that if the information given to a police officer relates to the commission of a cognizable offence, then it is mandatory for him to register the offence. According to learned counsel, in such circumstances, there is no option or discretion given to the police. He further contended that the word "shall" clearly implies a mandate and is unmistakably indicative of the statutory intent. What is necessary, according to him, is only that the information given to the police must disclose commission of a cognizable offence. He also contended that Section 154 of the Code uses the word "information" simpliciter and does not use the qualified words such as "credible information" or "reasonable complaint". Thus, the intention of the Parliament is unequivocally clear from the language employed that a mere information relating to commission of a cognizable offence is sufficient to register an FIR. He also relied on Bhajan Lal (supra), Ramesh Kumari (supra), Aleque Padamsee (supra), Lallan Chaudhary (supra), Superintendent of Police, CBI vs. Tapan Kumar Singh (2003) 6 SCC 175, M/s Hiralal Rattanlal (supra), B. Premanand (supra), Khub Chand vs. State of Rajasthan AIR 1967 SC 1074, P. Sirajuddin (supra), Rajinder Singh Katoch (supra), Bhagwant Kishore Joshi (supra), State of West Bengal vs. Committee for

Protection of Democratic Rights, West Bengal (2010) 3 SCC

571. He also pointed out various safeguards provided in the Code against filing a false case. In the end, he concluded by reiterating that the registration of FIR is mandatory under Section 154 of the Code, if the information discloses commission of a cognizable offence and no preliminary inquiry is permissible in such a situation. Further, he also clarified that the preliminary inquiry conducted by the CBI, under certain situations, as provided under the CBI Crime Manual, stands on a different footing due to the special provisions relating to the CBI contained in the Delhi Special Police Establishment Act, 1946, which is saved under Sections 4(2) and 5 of the Code.

e). From the above, it is very much clear that only in exceptional cases the High Court can exercise its power under Section 482 Cr.P.C in case of any order passed under the S.C. S.T Act. Here no such exceptional circumstances are into existence, hence this Court is of the view that in the present case the aforesaid precedent does not apply.
