37. It was alleged in the Writ Petition no. 8426(MB) of 2009 that Gram Sabha Khargapur Husariya gave two Pattas of land to the petitioner. One Patta for two Biswa of land was executed on 21.12.1973, and the other Patta of six Biswa of land was executed on 02.09.1981, under Section 198 of the U.P.Z.A.L.R. Act. After getting Patta the petitioner constructed a house for his family. There were about 35 such houses built on Gram Samaj land in Village Husariya before Lucknow Nagar Palika took over possession of Gram Samaj land in 1987. Lucknow Nagar Mahapalika exchanged this land with L.D.A. in 1995 in lieu of land on which presently Sahara Shehar exists. In such circumstances, the petitioners' house and appurtenant land came under the control of L.D.A.

38. It was further alleged that the L.D.A. Board met on 27.11.1998 to consider the case of persons who had been allotted housing sites by Gram Sabha Husariya and whose possession could not be regularised. A decision was taken to regularise their possession, subject to payment of certain charges. A Subcommittee was constituted and the Additional Secretary, L.D.A. recommended that the petitioner should be allotted a plot elsewhere by the L.D.A. in lieu of present plot no. 1/205, Vineet Khand, Gomti Nagar. A copy of the proceedings dated 10.02.1999 of the Sub-committee have been filed as Annexure 14 to the petition. It has been alleged further that other allottees of housing sites of village Husariya have not been disturbed by the L.D.A., although they are similarly situated like the petitioner, but the petitioners plot no. 1/205, Vineet Khand, Gomti Nagar has been allotted to one Shri V.D. Keshari Opp party no. 2 and the L.D.A. is threatening demolition of the house of the petitioner.

39. It has also been alleged that the son of the petitioner, Rakesh Kumar Shukla tried to obtain certain information and copies of documents relating to Vineet Khand Phase 1, but was informed that such files were missing from the L.D.A. office.

40. It has also been stated that in 1998 also, L.D.A. had tried to demolish the petitioners house and the petitioner had filed a Writ Petition No. 1701 (M/B) of 1998, which was disposed off on statement being given on behalf of L.D.A. that they will only act in accordance with law. It has been further stated that there are a large number of plots still lying vacant in Gomti Nagar Housing Scheme which can be allotted in favour of the opposite party no. 2, and the possession of the petitioner and his house on plot no. 1/205 Vineet Khand, Gomti Nagar can be regularised.

41. Annexure 1 to the Writ Petition No. 8426 (M/B) 2009 is a letter dated 12.08.2009 sent by the Under Secy of L.D.A. to the petitioner indicating that on 12.11.2008, petitioner had been offered a plot in Gomti Nagar Vistar Yojna at the current rate of Rs 112.50 per square metre in lieu of plot no. A - 1/205. The petitioner had rejected such offer. He was still in possession of plot no. A 1/205, which had been allotted to another person and execution of sale deed could not be done in favour of the allottee because of illegal possession of Kaushal Kishore Shukla. A Direction was issued to handover vacant possession of plot no. A- 1/205, Vineet Khand, Gomti Nagar to the officials of the L.D.A. within 15 days or else the illegal construction of the petitioner would be demolished forcibly by the L.D.A. Late V.D. Keshari was impleaded as respondent no. 2 in Writ Petition No. 8426, (M/B) 2009, but notice was never served upon him and he did not file any Counter Affidavit. Later on a Substitution Application was filed for impleading Vimal Chand Keshari, his son as respondent which was allowed 2023 by court's order. VC Keshari thereafter filed a Counter Affidavit wherein it was stated that L.D.A.'s allotment of land/housing site at Khasra no. 88 in the year 1973 to the Petitioner's father was not a genuine document as he did not fall within any of the categories/order of preference as mentioned under the relevant sections of the U.P.Z.A.L.R. Act. Kaushal Kishore Shukla retired from Service in 1990, and he was very much in service in 1973, when the alleged housing Patta was allotted to him of 2 Biswas of land on Khasra no. 88. The formalities required for completing such allotment on the basis of resolution passed by the Gaon Sabha were also not observed as no prior permission of the Sub-Divisional Magistrate was taken. It was also alleged that Lucknow Development Authority had acquired land for Vineet Khand phase 1, sometime in the year 1980 which is evident from an application for allotment of plot in Vineet Khand phase 1 made by one Pushpa Gattani on 01.12.1982 on which allotment was made to her of plot no. A - 1/207, Vineet Khand, Gomti Nagar of an area of 540 m². It was also stated in the said Counter Affidavit that the petitioner had earlier filed Original suit no. 233 of 1995 against the L.D.A. along with an application for Interim Injunction. Such application was rejected by the Munsif Hawali on 21.03.1998.

42. In the Counter Affidavit to W.P. 8426 (M/B) 2009 filed on behalf of the L.D.A. in February, 2020 it was stated that the patta allegedly granted by the Gram Pradhan was fictitious as no person can be granted more than 1.5 Biswa of Abadi land for Housing Patta. The case of the petitioner that he was ex-army person and therefore he was granted patta on special consideration is also not correct as persons belonging to general category can be given land only if they are landless and below poverty line. Also, the Patta had not been approved by Assistant Collector First Class/Sub-Divisional Magistrate. It was also stated that only on the basis of receipts of payment of house tax, ownership could not be established. The petitioner has remained in unauthorised possession of land which was acquired by the Government for L.D.A.. It was also stated that Gram Samaj land has been taken over by the Development Authority on the basis of resumption orders issued in this regard by the State Government.

43. Writ Petition No. 8426 (M/B) 2009 was dismissed for want of Prosecution on 07.03.2024. Application for recall of order dated, 07.03.2024 was filed by the legal heirs of the petitioner Kaushal Kishore Shukla on 12.03.2024 to which a detailed objection was filed by Vimal

Chand Keshari. When application was taken up for hearing on 29.05.2024, Shri Anurag Narayan Srivastava, counsel for the petitioner stated that he did not wish to press this application for recall as Lucknow Development Authority has passed a fresh order which he proposed to challenge in another writ petition. Accordingly, the application for recall of order dated 07.03.2024 was rejected on 29.05.2024.

44. In paragraph 13 of the Writ Petition No.4177 of 2024, it has been stated that V.D. Keshari had applied for LIG house in Tikait Rai housing scheme of L.D.A. Subsequently, he was allotted 540 m² of land in Gomti Nagar and besides his wife Kamla Keshari was also allotted B-3/272, Vishwas Khand, Gomti Nagar. As both spouses cannot be allotted house and a plot in the same city by the L.D.A. This allotment was illegally done and in support of this allegation Annexure-16 has been filed.

45. On a perusal of Annexure 16 to the Writ Petition no.4177 of 2024, it is evident that it relates to lease in the name of Manoj Kesarwani, son of V.D. Keshari, and Smt. Kamla Keshari, wife of V.D. Keshari of house no. 3/272, Vishwas Khand, Gomti Nagar constructed on 200 m².

46. A copy of the resolution dated 10.02.1999 and a copy of the letter dated 29.01.2008 issued by the Public Information Officer and also a report submitted by the L.D.A. before the Yachika Samiti of Vidhan Sabha, showing such admission has been collectively filed as Annexure 21 to the petition.

47. On the basis of such submissions made in Writ Petition No. 4177 (M/B) of 2024, petitioner Rakesh Kumar Shukla has prayed for quashing of order dated 30.04.2024 passed by the Chairman L.D.A. in relation to plot no. 1/205, and has also prayed for a writ in the nature of mandamus commanding the respondents not to allot plot no. 1/205, Vineet Khand, belonging to the petitioner, to any other person.

48. A perusal of Annexure 20 of the Writ Petition No.4177 (M/B) of 2024 shows that it is a letter sent on 05.05.2008 by the Joint Director Land Development, L.D.A. Lucknow to Kaushal Kishore Shukla, wherein it has been stated that the Patta/allotment made in favour of the petitioner is doubtful and his possession over plot no. 1/205, Vineet Khand is illegal as such Khasra number has already been acquired and made a part of layout plan of Vineet Khand, Phase-I Gomti Nagar.

49. It was also informed to him that the allottee V.D. Keshari had filed petition no. 1970 (M/B) of 2001 in the High Court in which an interim order dated 27.04.2005 was passed that since the petitioner had deposited the entire amount relating to allotment of plot no. 1/205, Vineet Khand such plot may not be allotted to anyone else during pendency of the petition.

50. A perusal of Annexure 21 to the Writ Petition No. 4177 of 2024 shows that it is reply given by Public Information Officer L.D.A. on 29.01.2008 to Kaushal Kishore Shukla with respect to an application made by him under the Right to Information Act. The petitioner had perhaps filed an appeal no. 45(A)/07 before the State Information Commission alleging withholding of information by the L.D.A. This information related to plot numbers 1/208A and 1/208B situated in Vineet Khand, Gomti Nagar. Information had also been sought with regard to allotment of plot no. 1/205, Vineet Khand in favour of V.D. Keshari as well. Such information being in the nature of information relating to third party, objections were raised by Shri V.D. Keshari regarding giving of the same to Kaushal Kishore Shukla. Nevertheless, the entire file relating to allotment of plot no. 1/205, Vineet Khand, Gomti Nagar was shown to Kaushal Kishore Shukla in the office of the State Information Commission on 10.01.2008 and photocopies of relevant papers were also given to him.

51. We have carefully gone through the alleged receipt dated 02.09.1981 of Rs.50 relating to Housing site allotment of six Biswa. It has been issued in the name of Kaushal Kishore Shukla, son of Sant Baksh Shukla, and the name of the Gaon Sabha is shown as "Chanda" and the name of the Gram Pradhan has been shown as Ram Bharose. Another receipt which has been filed was also issued by Ram Bharose Pradhan on 21.12.1973 which is again for Rs.50 regarding allotment of 2 Biswa of land in Khasra no. 88 for housing purposes. It is not clear from both receipts of only Rs.50 as to why Ram Bharose Gram Pradhan of Gram Sabha "Chanda" had issued such receipts for two Biswa of land i.e. around 272 2 ft.² in 1973 and again six Biswa of land ie. around 816 6 ft.² in 1981, showing the same amount of money for different pieces of land, one land being evidently only one third of the other.

52. This Court has also carefully gone through the letters of recommendation allegedly made in favour of Kaushal Kishore Shukla by the Camp Commandant to the Deputy Collector, Lucknow and to the Consolidation Officer collectively filed as Annexures to the Writ Petition No.8426 (M/B) of 2009. It is clear from a perusal of such documents that one letter was sent by the Camp Commandant on 20.02.1984 addressed to the Consolidation Officer Lucknow, forwarding an application of Havaladar KK Shukla serving in the Headquarters of 11 Mountain Brigade, regarding registration of purchased land in his name as mentioned in his application submitted along with the covering letter. Copy of such recommendatory letter dated 20.02.1984 has been endorsed to Shri Sant Baksh Shukla, resident of village Kinhauli ka Purva, Post Office Malauli, district Barabanki, (the father of Kaushal Kishore Shukla) and to Shri Ram Bharose Rawat, owner of the land R/O Village Husariya, Post Chinhat Lucknow. The application submitted by Havaladar KK Shukla enclosed along with the covering letter has conveniently not been filed by the petitioner, Kaushal Kishore Shukla in such Writ Petition No. 8426(MB) of 2009.

53. This court has also carefully perused the letter dated 26.10.1988 sent by Major K.V. Rajan Camp Commandant from the Headquarters of 54 th Infantry Division, forwarding an application in respect of prayer for excluding allotted land out of the plan of L.D.A., and strongly recommending the same. This letter is also endorsed to R B pandey advocate High Court, Lucknow and Sri Sant Baksh Shukla R/O Village Kinhauli ka Purva, Post Malauli, District Barabanki.

54. We have also carefully gone through copy of the Parivar Register filed by the petitioner showing house No. 54 with the name of it's occupants as Kaushal Kishore Shukla, son of Sant Baksh Shukla, Smt Kanti wife of Kaushal Kishore, Rajesh Kumar and Rakesh Kumar sons of Kaushal Kishore, such copy of Parivar Register has also been issued on 11.09.1981, showing the name of the Gram Sabha as Khargapur Husariya, name of Nyay Panchayat as Nizampur Malhaur, name of village as Husariya, showing the name of Ram Bharose as Gram Pradhan as the person who had made the entries. It is common knowledge that Parivar Registers are maintained by Gram Panchayat Secretaries and entries therein are made by such Secretaries alone. It is not clear as to under what circumstances the Gram Pradhan and not the Panchayat Secretary to the Gram Sabha had made such entries in the Pariwar Register. A presumption can be drawn regarding Ram Bharose Gram Pradhan being the same person as Ram Bharose Rawat, the seller of certain land of village Husariya to the father of the petitioner late Kaushal Kishore Shukla, as the copy of the recommendatory letter dated 20.02.1984 sent by the Camp Commander to the Consolidation Officer has been endorsed to Ram Bharose Rawat as seller of the land.

55. It is also not clear as to how Ram Bharose Gram Pradhan of Gram Sabha "Chanda" as mentioned in the receipt of 1973, also, claimed to be the Gram Pradhan of village Husariya. There may be different hamlets of one Gram Panchayat. Village Husariya may be a hamlet of Gram Panchayat Khargapur Husariya. The Gram Pradhan Ram Bharose would only be competent to issue receipt for Gram Panchayat Khargapur Husariya but he had issued receipt for Gram Sabha Chanda in 1981, and also shown himself to be Gram Pradhan Husariya for a period of nearly fifteen years right from 1973 to 1987.

56. We have carefully examined various annexures to the Writ Petition No. 8426(MB) of 2009 and Writ Petition No. 4177 of 2024 and we find that Annexure 18 to the petition no. 4177 of 2024, which is a copy of the minutes of the meeting dated 27.11.1998 held by the L.D.A. Board. With regard to Agenda item no. 16, the office noting has been relied upon by the petitioner, where it has been stated that Ujariaon Housing Scheme Part II was notified on 08.12.1984, under which acquisition of land of village Husariya was done by the L.D.A. Layout plan was prepared of Vineet Khand, Gomti Nagar in 1988-89 and allotment was done with effect from 1989. Such Scheme could not be completed because the land which was acquired had already be occupied by local people by raising permanent constructions thereon and they wanted regularisation of such possession and construction, and were willing to pay charges as fixed by the L.D.A. The problem was continuing for the past several years and was still unresolved i.e. till the date of meeting held in November 1998. There were around thirty to thirty five such permanent constructions. The office noting stated that the local residents were constantly pressurising the officers of L.D.A. to regularise/adjust their construction and they were obstructing all development work which was tried to be carried out in the area. There were also certain people who had being granted interim orders by the court. There were still others in whose case the court had directed that their construction be considered for regularisation. Officials of the L.D.A. had held repeated meetings with such local residents who had raised constructions on land belonging to Gram Samaj or land which had been acquired by the L.D.A.

57. It was proposed in the office note that where no acquisition proceedings had taken place and Gram Samaj land was converted into Bhumidhari land, construction raised thereon should be regularised by taking development charges from the owners. Also, regularisation be done of construction on such land which, though acquired, no compensation had been paid to such occupiers by taking current rates fixed by the L.D.A. for such land. The L.D.A. Board had given its approval in principal to such proposal. The Vice Chairman L.D.A. was given the power to decide each case on its merit later on.

58. We have also gone through Annexure 14 to the Writ Petition No.8426 (M/B) of 2009, which is a copy of minutes of meeting held on 10.02.1999. With regard to plot no. 88 area 8167.50 ft.², the case of Kaushal Kishore Shukla was considered and it was found that as per Patta receipts produced by him he had been allotted 8167.50 ft.² of land. He had built boundary wall on 5423.23 ft.² and constructed a house on 645.60 ft.² of such land. Such construction was affecting plot no. 1/205, Vineet Khand, Gomti Nagar which had already been allotted by the L.D.A. to someone else and the entire cost had been deposited by the allottee. Therefore, it was recommended that KK Shukla be allotted land at some other place at current rates.

59. Annexure 18 of the Writ Petition No.8426 (M/B) of 2009 relates to First Appeal filed by Rakesh Kumar Shukla under Right to Information Act in relation to information sought regarding allotment of plot nos. 208A and 208 B of Vineet Khand, phase 1, Gomti Nagar, and is not related in any manner to plot no. 1/205 Vineet Khand, Gomti Nagar Development charges from them.

60. On consideration of Annexures to the counter affidavits filed by respondents it is evident from a perusal of the plaint in Regular Suit no. 233 of 1995 filed for permanent injunction, it is evident that the plaintiff had initially stated that 6 Biswa of land was allotted in 1980 for Housing purposes by the Gram Sabha Khargapur Husariya and possession was given in 1980 and house was constructed there on also in 1980. Later on the figure '6' was scratched out and over written by figure of '8'. Also the year, 1980 was scratched out and 1973 over written on it. It has been argued by learned Counsel for the Respondents that such interpolation was done without any application being moved for Amendment of plaint by the plaintiff. This argument has not been disputed by learned counsel for the petitioner.

It was stated further in the plaint by Kaushal Kishore Shukla that on 25.03.1995 at around 11 A.M., L.D.A. officials had approached the property in dispute and tried to demolish the boundary wall. Since, the plaintiff was present he objected to such illegal demolition. He also showed papers relating to allotment of Housing Patta to them and they returned but threatened to come again and demolish the house and boundary wall. Again on 27.03.1995 at around 11:15 AM, employees of the L.D.A. tried to demolish the house of the plaintiff. The plaintiff objected and the employees returned. Since then twice attempt had been made by the officials of L.D.A. to demolish the house and boundary wall of the plaintiff and he had felt the need to approach the civil court, praying for Permanent Injunction.

61. Copies of the order dated 25.04.1995 and 31.03.1998 passed by Munsif Hawali Lucknow, have also been annexed by the Respondents. It seems from a perusal of the orders passed by Munsif Hawali that when the suit for Permanent Injunction was filed, no Ad interim ex parte injunction was granted and L.D.A. was issued notice. The L.D.A. filed objections to the application for Interim Injunction where copies of Gazette notification relating to acquisition of land of village Husariya in Gomti Nagar were annexed. The court rejected the application for temporary injunction. A written statement was also filed by Lucknow Development Authority, copy of which is also annexed to the Counter Affidavit of the private respondent. In such written statement it has been mentioned that Khasra no. 88 ad-measuring 3 Bigha 15 Biswansi, is divided into six parts out of these six parts, Khasra no. 88/1, 88/2, and 88/3 had been acquired through a notification issued under Section 4, read with Section 17 of the Land Acquisition Act on 4.12.1984. Also, Section 6 read with Section 17 notification was also issued on 4.12.1984. The Award was declared on 25.02.1987, and possession was given to L.D.A. on 30.03.1986. Khasra no. 88/4, 88/5 are recorded in revenue records as Banjar and Khasra no. 88/6 has been recorded as Raasta and belonged to Gaon Sabha Husariya. After expansion of municipal limits such land of Gram Sabha was vested in the Nagar Nigam. From Nagar Nigam, such land was transferred to L.D.A.. It is incorrect to say that Khasra no. 88 is Abadi land and Gram Pradhan had a right to give Housing Patta on it. In case any allotment had been done by the Pradhan, it was illegal as it was against the provisions of Section 122C of the U.P.Z.L.A.R. Act. The ownership of the plaintiff over 8 Biswa of land on the basis of Housing Patta allotted to him by Gram Pradhan was seriously disputed as such allotment could not have been done without prior approval of the Assistant Collector first class/ SDM. The plaintiff was also not coming within the order of preference/eligibility as mentioned in the U.P.Z.A.L.R. Act. The Suit had been filed without impleading the State of U.P. and Nagar Nigam and suffered from non-joinder of necessary party. No notice under Section 80 of this C.P.C. and Section 106 of Panchayat Raj Act was given. Hence, it was not maintainable. Thereafter the Original Suit no. 233 of 1995 was listed on several occasions. Issues were framed on 02.12.1998. After exchange of pleadings the Suit was dismissed for want of prosecution on the continued absence of the counsel for the plaintiff.

62. A true copy of Writ Petition No. 1701 (M/B) of 1998 has been filed and also of the order of this Court dated 21.03.1998. From a perusal of Writ Petition No. 1701 (M/B) of 1998, it is evident that in paragraph 3, the petitioner had stated that he had constructed a house on a plot of land measuring 6 Biswa which was granted as housing Patta by Gaon Sabha Khargapur Husariya and a house was built on permission being given by the Gram Pradhan on 02.09.1981. Much after the petitioner built the aforesaid house, Gomti Nagar Scheme was extended to nearby areas and in 1992 land of nearby areas was taken over by L.D.A. and layout plan of Vineet Khand, Phase-I, Gomti Nagar was made. However, the persons who were already residing in those areas for the last 10 years were not touched. No formal notice was issued of any kind to the petitioner by L.D.A. and its officials tried to demolish the petitioners house alleging that the land had been acquired. Due to oral threats of demolition made by L.D.A. officials on 28.05.1998, and no order in writing having been passed in this regard, the petitioner had approached the High Court. The prayer made in the Writ Petition No.1701 (M/B) of 1998 was for issuance of a Mandamus to the respondent L.D.A. not to interfere with the peaceful possession of petitioner's house, presently numbered by L.D.A. as plot no.1/205, Vineet Khand, Gomti Nagar, Lucknow, and that they may be restrained from damaging or demolishing the aforesaid house or taking possession of the aforesaid a plot from the petitioner. A further prayer was made for issuance of writ in the nature of Certiorari for quashing the impugned order, if any, passed against the petitioner in respect of the plot in question after summoning the original from the opposite party. It appears that the Writ Petition No. 1701 (M/B) 1998 was filed on 08.06.1998, taken up as fresh on 11.06. 1998 and was disposed of on the same day recording the statement of the counsel for Lucknow Development Authority that it will only act in accordance with law. A perusal of this petition shows that there is no mention of Regular Suit No.233 of 1995 filed in the court of Civil Judge, Hawali Lucknow praying for Permanent Injunction where notice was issued to L.D.A. and application for Interim Injunction was rejected on 31.03.1998.

63. True copy of topographical Survey map of village Husariya of Khasra no. 88, Vineet Khand, Gomti Nagar, prepared by joint team of L.D.A. and Revenue officials has been filed in the Counter Affidavit of the private respondent. From a perusal of the report submitted on 27.04.2024, by the Consolidation Officer in the office of the L.D.A. to the Deputy Secretary, L.D.A. it is evident that a request was made in pursuance of filing of Writ Petition No. 8426 (M/B) of 2009, (Kaushal Kishore Shukla versus L.D.A.), on 12.10.2023, for spot inspection to be carried out of Khasra no. 55 and Khasra no. 88 in village Husariya and plot no. A - 1/205 area 540 m² in Vineet Khand, Gomti Nagar. The SDM Sadar had constituted the team of Revenue Officials on 22.04.2024, and the team inspected the area and conducted demarcation/identification on 23.04.2024, and it was found that plot no. A-1/205, Vineet Khand, Gomti Nagar was situated on part of Khasra no. 55, which had been acquired under Ujariaon Housing Scheme phase 2 in 1984, and had been incorporated in the planned development of Vineet Khand by the L.D.A. A true copy of the notification under Section 4 and Section 6 of the Land Acquisition of Khasra no. 55 has also been filed. A true copy of the detailed Counter Affidavit filed by the L.D.A. in Writ Petition No. 8426 (M/B) of 2009 has also been filed in the Counter Affidavit of V.C. Keshari, private respondent in Writ Petition No. 4177 of 2024.

64. On consideration of the order impugned in Writ Petition No. 4177 of 2024, we find that the Order dated 30.04.2024 passed by the Vice Chairman, L.D.A. on the representation of Vimal Chand Keshari, son of Vaman Das Keshari impugned in Writ Petition No. 4177 of 2024 states that it has been passed in compliance of order dated 07.03.2024 passed in Writ Petition No. 1970 (M/B) of 2001. A representation was made in compliance of such order by Vimal Chand Keshari on 11.03.24 and on 22.04.2024 both Vimal Chand Keshari and Rakesh Kumar Shukla were heard in person and the records perused by him. As per the records, plot no. 1/205, Vineet Khand, Gomti Nagar was allotted on cash down basis to V.D. Keshari on 18.07.1988. The entire amount along with interest thereon was deposited by V.D. Keshari, but because of encroachment on such plot of land, its possession could not be delivered and lease deed could not be executed. The land was found to be encroached upon by Kaushal

Kishore Shukla who alleged that the same had been granted to him on Patta by the Gaon Sabha. The then Vice Chairman L.D.A. had on 05.05.1998, on Pradhikaran Mitra Diwas directed that possession should be given of the plot to V.D. Keshari and Kaushal Kishore Shukla should be allotted some other plot in another scheme of the L.D.A. at current rates. However, Kaushal Kishore Shukla continued to give representations at various levels for regularisation of his illegal encroachment on land occupied by him. He did not give any consent for being allotted another plot of land somewhere else. As a result, the order dated 05.05.1998 came to be automatically cancelled.

65. Shri V.D. Keshari thereafter approached the High Court by filing Writ Petition No. 1970 (M/B) of 2001. Kaushal Kishore Shukla also filed Writ Petition No. 8426 (M/B) of 2009, and alleged that his allotment for Housing site in village Husariya was on Khasra no. 88 by the Gaon Sabha.

66. It was further stated in the order dated 30.04.24 by the Vice Chairman that The Land Acquisition Section had submitted Google superimposed map of Vineet Khand, Gomti Nagar and plot no. 1/205, actually fell on Khasra no. 55, which was acquired by the L.D.A. and incorporated in its Layout Plan after giving compensation to the tenure holders in this regard. Khasra no. 88 was not being affected by the encroachment made by Kaushal Kishore Shukla. The ADM Land Acquisition had given possession to the L.D.A. of the land falling in village Husariya in 1986 and Award was declared on 25.02.1987. The land had vested in the State Government and thereafter transferred to the L.D.A.. Shri Vaman Das Keshari died on 09.11.2016 and the allotment of plot no. A - 1/205. Vineet has been made in his son's name.

67. During the course of hearing, given by V.C. L.D.A. Rakesh Kumar Shukla son of late Kaushal Kishore Shukla had stated that his father was allotted Khasra no. 88 as Housing site in 1973 by Gram Pradhan village Husariya and the report submitted by the Land Acquisition Section of the L.D.A. was incorrect. Again, taking into account such objection, the Land Acquisition Section, the Lekhpal of area Khargapur constituted a joint team and inspected the site and identification by Total Station Machine was done on the basis whereof a report was submitted on 23.04.2024 that the Survey carried out through ETS had identified Khasra no. 232 area 0.013 ha as Naala in village Husariya over which road was constructed which was in existence till date and in the map prepared by ETS Consultancy of village Husariya on the basis of such Fixed point, land of Khasra no. 55 is shown in pink colour, and Khasra no. 88 has been shown in green colour. In such map of Village Husariya, the house of Kaushal Kishore Shukla is situated on Khasra no. 55 and not on Khasra no. 88. Also Khasra no. 55 area 0.6100 ha was acquired after giving compensation to its recorded tenure holders Ram Prasad, Santosh Kumar and others. Even on a perusal of Report submitted by the Consolidation Officer on 27.04.2024, it is evident that plot no. A - 1/205 Vineet Khand, Gomti Nagar falls on Khasra no. 55 of village Husariya which had been acquired under the Ujariaon Residential Scheme Part II in 1984 itself. Land of Khasra no. 55 had been acquired and planned development has been carried out by L.D.A..

68. The Vice Chairman also dealt with submission made by Rakesh Kumar Shukla that allotment of A-1/205 in favour of V.D. Keshari could not have been done because he had already been allotted house no. 3/272 Vishwas Khand Gomti Nagar. The original records were perused and it was found that house no. 3/272 Vishwas Khand, Gomti Nagar was allotted to Shri Rajeev Kesarwani son of Ramakrishna Kesarwani through lottery mode on 07.01.1984, and Manoj Kesarwani was allotted plot no. 3/438 Viram Khand, Gomti Nagar. Rajiv Kesarwani and Manoj Kesarwani had given an application for mutual exchange of the allotments made to them as a result of which house no. 3/272 Vishwas Khand Gomti Nagar was allotted in favour of Manoj Kesarwani and plot no. 3/438 Viram Khand Gomti Nagar was allotted in favour of Rajiv Kesarwani. Smt. Kamla Keshari wife of V.D. Keshari was not the original allottee of house no. 3/272, Vishwas Khand Gomti Nagar. Her name was added later on in the lease deed on the request of her son Manoj Kesarwani.

D- Statutory Provisions

69. Furthermore, the submissions of both parties also require scrutiny on the basis of the governing statutory framework. A housing site patta can be given as per the provisions of Section 122-C of the U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Act, 1950 read with Rules 115-L, 115-N & 115-O of U.P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Rules, 1952 (Published vide Notification No. 7996/I-A-1282-1952, dated 08.10.1952) and Paras 47 and 49 along with Z.A. Form 49-D, Z. A. Form 49-E, Z. A. Form 49-F (Certificate of Allotment) under Para 49 (3) of the U.P. Gram Sabha, Gram Panchayat and Bhumi Prabandhak Samiti Manual (hereinafter referred to as The Manual).

70. Section 122-C of the U.P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act, 1950, is the substantive provision, introduced by the U.P. Land Laws (Amendment) Act, 1971, with the object of regulating the allotment of housing sites. This amendment came into force on 22 August 1971. The relevant part of the U.P. Land Laws (Amendment) Act, 1971, is being quoted below:-

“In pursuance of the provisions of clause (3) of Article 348 of the Constitution of India, the Governor is pleased to order the publication of the following English translation of the Uttar Pradesh Bhoomi-Vidhi (Sanshodhan) Adhiniyam, 1971 (Uttar Pradesh Adhiniyam Sankhya 21 of 1971) as passed by the Uttar Pradesh Legislature and assented to by the President on August 22, 1971.

It is hereby enacted in the Twenty-Second Year of the Republic of India as follows:-

2.

3. After section 122-B of the principal Act, the following sections shall be inserted, namely ;

“122-C, (1) The Assistant Collector In-charge of the sub- division, of his own motion or on the resolution of the Land Management Committee, may ear-mark any of the following classes of land for the provision of abadi sites for the members of the Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes and agricultural labourers etc., and village artisans –

(a) lands referred to in clause (i) of sub-section (1) of section 117 and vested in the Gaon Sabha under that section ;

(b) lands coming into possession of the Land Management Committee under Section 194 or under any other provision of this Act;

(c) any other land which is deemed to be or becomes vacant under section 13, section 14, section 163, section 186 or section 211;

(d) where the land ear-marked for the extension of abadi and reserved as abadi site for Harijans under the U.P. Consolidation of Holdings Act, 1953, is considered by him to be insufficient and land ear-marked for other public purpose under that Act is available, then any part of the land so available.

(2) Notwithstanding anything in sections 122-A, 195, 196, 197 and 198 of this Act, or in Section 4, 15, 16, 28-B and 34 of the United Provinces Panchayat Raj Act, 1947, the Land Management Committee may with the previous approval of the Assistant Collector In-charge of the sub-division, allot, for the purpose of building of houses, to persons referred to in sub-section (3) –

(a) any land ear-marked under sub-section (1);

(b) any land ear-marked for the extension of abadi sites for Harijans under the provisions of the U.P. Consolidation of Holdings Act, 1953;

(c) any abadi site referred to in clause (vi) of section (i) of section 117 and vested in the Gaon Sabha;

(d) any land acquired for the said purposes under the Land Acquisition Act, 1894.

(3) The following order of preference shall be observed in making allotments under sub-section (2)-

(i) an agricultural labourer or a village artisan residing in Gram Sabha and belonging to any of the following categories in the order of preference:-

(a) persons belonging to the Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes;

(b) persons belonging to other Backward Classes;

(c) persons belonging to the general category living below poverty line;

(ii) any other agricultural labourer or village artisan residing in the village;

(iii) any other person residing in the Gram Sabha and belonging to any of the following categories in the order of preference:-

(a) persons belonging to the Scheduled Castes or the Scheduled Tribes;

(b) persons belonging to Other Backward Classes;

(c) persons belonging to the general category living below poverty line;

(iv) a person with disability residing in the village.

Explanation I-The expression "agricultural labourer" shall have the same meaning as in Section 198.

Explanation II-The expression 'village artisan' means a person who does not hold any agricultural land and whose main source of livelihood is manufacture or repair of traditional tools, implements and other articles or things used for agriculture or purposes ancillary thereto and includes a carpenter, weaver, potter, blacksmith, silversmith, goldsmith, barber, washerman, cobbler or any other person who normally earns his livelihood by practising a craft either by his own labour or by the labour of any member of his family in any rural area:

Provided that no person shall be deemed to be a village artisan whose total income (including income of his or her spouse and minor children) exceeds two thousand four hundred rupees in a year.

Explanation III-The expression "person with disability" shall mean a person with any disabilities mentioned in Clause (I) of Section 2 of the persons with Disabilities (Equal Opportunities, Protection & Rights and Full Participation) Act, 1955 (Act No. 1 of 1996).

Explanation IV-Preference shall be given to a person who either holds no house or has insufficient housing accommodation considering the requirements of his family.

Explanation V-The expression "persons of General Category living below poverty line" shall have the same meaning as in Section 198.

(4) If the Assistant Collector-in-charge of the sub-division is satisfied that the Land Management Committee has failed to discharge its duties or to perform its functions under sub-section (2) or it is otherwise necessary or expedient so to do, he may himself allot such land in accordance with the provisions of sub-section (3).

(5) Any land allotted under this section shall be held by the allottee on such terms and conditions as may be prescribed.

(6) The Collector may of his own motion and shall on the application of any persons aggrieved by an allotment of land under this section inquire in the manner prescribed into such allotment, and if he is satisfied that the allotment is irregular, he may cancel the allotment, and thereupon the right, title and interest of the allottee and of every other person claiming through him in the land allotted shall cease.

(7) Every order passed by the Assistant Collector under sub-section (4) shall, subject to the provisions of sub-section (6) and every order passed by the Collector under sub-section (6) shall be find, and the provisions of Section 333 and Section 333-A shall not apply in relation thereto.

(8) The Assistant Collector in-charge of the sub-division, of his own motion or on any application made to him in that behalf may in order to carry into effect any allotment of land or other order made under sub-section (2), sub-section (4) or sub-section (6) direct delivery of possession of any such land to an allottee or to the Gaon Sabha after ejectment of every person holding or retaining possession thereof, any may for that purpose use or cause to be used such force as may be necessary. "

71. The procedural aspect of grant of Lease/Allotment Certificate is governed by Rule 115-L, Rule 115-M and Rule 115-O of the Zamindari Abolition and Land Reform Rules, 1952. This rule was added by notification no. 11/1-A-1199-1953, dated March 11, 1954 and substituted by

No. 188/1-A-4(11)-70, dated April 5, 1971, and again substituted by No. 256/Rajaswa-1, dated March 16/17, 1972.

72. Rule 115-L, Rule 115-M, and Rule 115-O of the U.P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Rules, 1952, as they stood at the relevant time, are reproduced herein-below:

"Allotment of Land for Housing Sites

115L. A-Abadi sites for preferential categories. - (1) The Assistant Col-lector-in-charge of the sub-division may, wherever land ear-marked for the extension of abadi for Harijans under the provisions of the Uttar Pradesh Consolidation of Holdings Act, 1953 and any other land of abadi site vested in Gaon Sabha is insufficient to meet the housing requirements of persons referred to in sub-section (3) of Section 122-C, proceed to earmark land for abadi sites in accordance with sub-section (1) of the said section.

(2) [* ]

(3) Before allotting housing sites to persons referred to in sub-section (3) of Section 122-C, the Assistant Collector in-charge of the sub-division shall, in respect of each village, cause to be prepared the following lists and extracts-

(i) a list in Z.A. Form 49-D showing separately particulars of persons of the three categories mentioned in sub-section (3) of Section 122-C;

(ii) a list in Z.A. Form 49-E of lands enumerated in sub-section (2) of Section 122-C; and

(iii) an extract of village map showing the plots given in the above list.

(4) In making allotment of housing sites under this rule, the order of preference mentioned in sub-section (3) of Section 122-C shall be observed.

(5) No premium shall be charged for allotment of housing sites under this rule.]

115M. B-Other abadi sites. - (1) Abadi sites other than those referred to in Rule 115-L and vested in a Gaon Sabha may be allotted for construction of buildings for residential or charitable purposes or for purposes of cottage industry in the following order of preference –

(a) a landless agricultural labourer or a village artisan residing in the village;

(b) a bhumidhar, sirdar or asami residing in the village and holding land less than 1.26 hectares (3.125 acres);

(c) any other person residing in the village.

(2) Every allottee under this rule shall be required to deposit an amount equal to 40 times of the rent of the land calculated at hereditary rates which shall be credited to the Gaon Fund:

Provided that no premium shall be charged in respect of site allotted for charitable purpose.

115N. -General. - (1) Whenever the Land Management Committee proceeds to allot housing sites under Rule 115-L, or 115-M, it shall announce by beat of drum in the village the exact location of the sites to be allotted, the time, the date and venue of allotment.

(2) All allotment shall be made by the Land Management Committee in a meeting held for the purpose on the date announced under sub-rule (1). Where more than one person belonging to the same order of preference express their desire to be allotted a particular site, the said Committee shall draw lots to determine the person to whom the site should be allotted :

Provided that the prior approval of the Assistant Collector-in-charge of the Sub-Division shall be obtained for every allotment under Rule 115-L or 115-M.

(3) The allottee of the housing site shall be given a receipt for the premium, if any, paid by him to the Land Management Committee and a certificate of allotment. The certificate shall be in Z.A. Form 49-F which shall be prepared in two parts, the main certificate being given to the allottee and its counterpart remaining with the Land Management Committee for record.

115O. The maximum area of allotment under Rule 115-L or 115-M shall not exceed 250 square metres and the allottee shall not be required to pay ground rent therefor :

Provided that the limit of 250 metres shall not apply to cases of allotment of land for construction of a building for a charitable purpose or for setting up a cottage industry.

Relevant Provisions Contained in the U.P. Gram Sabha, Gram Panchayat, and Bhumi Prabandhak Samiti Manual (Published on 17 April 1954)

73. Para 49 of the Manual prescribes the detailed procedure to be followed for such allotment of housing sites, as provided under Rule 115-N of the U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Rules. Together, these provisions lay down both the substantive eligibility criteria and the mandatory procedural safeguards governing the allotment of Gram Sabha land for residential purposes.

74. The relevant provisions contained in Para 49 of the U.P. Manual, 1954, as it prevailed at the material time, is extracted as under

District... .. ,

“49. (1) Whenever the Bhumi Prabandhak Samiti proceeds to allot housing sites under Rule 115-L or 115-M, it shall announce by beat of drum in the village the exact location of the sites to be allotted, the time, the date and venue of allotment.

(2) All allotment shall be made by the Bhumi Prabandhak Samiti in a meeting held for the purpose on the date announced under sub-rule (1). Where more than one person belonging to the same order of preference express their desire to be allotted a particular site, the said Samiti shall draw lots to determine the person to whom the site should be allotted:

Provided that the prior approval of the Assistant Collector-in-charge of the Sub-division shall be obtained for every allotment under Rule 115-L or Rule 115-M.

(3) The allottee of the housing site shall be given a receipt for the premium, if any, paid by him to the Bhumi Prabandhak Samiti and a certificate of allotment. The certificate shall be in Z.A. Form 49-F which shall be prepared in two parts, the main certificate being given to the allottee and its counterpart remaining with the Bhumi Prabandhak Samiti for record.”

E- Governing Principles

75. From the above-quoted provisions, the following governing principles emerge:

(i) Sub-Section (1) of Section 122-C empowers the Assistant Collector in charge of a subdivision, on his own or on a Land Management Committee's resolution, to earmark specific classes of Gaon Sabha vacant land for abadi (housing) sites for Scheduled Castes, Scheduled Tribes, Other Backward Classes, persons of general category below the poverty line, agricultural labourers, and village artisans.

(ii) Sub-sections (2) to (8) provide that subject to the previous approval of the Assistant Collector, the Land Management Committee may allot such land for construction of houses in accordance with the prescribed order of preference among the eligible categories. In case, the Committee fails to perform its duties, the Assistant Collector himself may make the allotment. Any irregular allotment may be cancelled by the Collector after due inquiry, and his decision shall be final.

(iii) Rule 115-L empowers the Assistant Collector-in-charge of the subdivision to earmark suitable land for abadi sites when the land already set apart for Harijans, Scheduled Tribes, or agricultural labourers under Section 122-C or vested in the Gaon Sabha is insufficient to meet their housing requirements. It also mandates that allotments must follow the order of preference specified in Section 122-C, ensuring fair distribution, and that no premium shall be charged for such housing site allotments.

(iv) 115-L further provides that before making allotments, Assistant Collector in-charge of Sub-division shall prepare, for each village, three lists (i) a list of eligible persons in Form 49-D, (ii) a list of available lands in Form 49-E, and (iii) an extract of the village map showing proposed plots.

(v) Rule 115-N ensures transparency and fairness in allotments. It mandates public announcement of site details, date, and venue. All allotments must be made by the Land Management Committee in a properly convened meeting, with prior approval of the Assistant Collector, and every allottee must be issued a formal receipt and a certificate of allotment (Form 49-F), one copy for the allottee and one retained by the Land Management Committee for record.

(iv) Rule 115-O limits the maximum area of each allotment to 250 square metres, except where land is allotted for charitable purposes or cottage industries.

(vii) Para 49 of the Manual directs that before allotting housing sites under Rules 115-L or 115-M, the Bhumi Prabandhak Samiti shall announce by beat of drum the site location, date, and time of allotment. Allotments must be made in a meeting convened for that purpose, and if multiple applicants of the same category seek one plot, lots shall be drawn. Every allotment must obtain prior approval of the Assistant Collector, and the allottee receives a receipt and certificate (Form 49-F).

(viii) Para 49 of the U.P. Gram Sabha, Gram Panchayat and Bhumi Prabandhak Samiti Manual, 1954, as applicable at the relevant time, when read together with Rule 115-L, 115-M, 115-N and 115-O, provide the statutory framework governing the management, control, and allotment of Gram Sabha land. These provisions collectively prescribe the duties, responsibilities and procedural safeguards to be followed by the Bhumi Prabandhak Samiti, including maintenance of land records, protection of Gram Sabha property from encroachment, and the manner in which allotments are to be considered, approved or rejected.

F- Analysis of Petitioner's Claim

76. On a conjoint reading of the above provisions, it is clear that the legislative intent is to ensure fair and equitable allotment of abadi sites to members of weaker sections, including Scheduled Castes, Scheduled

Tribes, and agricultural labourers and village artisans etc. The Assistant Collector is entrusted with the responsibility to identify suitable land, prepare the requisite records, and make allotments strictly in accordance with the prescribed order of preference under Section 122-C. The process must be transparent and just, ensuring that no premium is charged from the allottees. These safeguards collectively promote social justice and prevent arbitrary or irregular allotments. It is also clear from above quoted provisions that Section 122-C of the U.P.Z.A.L.R Act was inserted for the first time, vide Uttar Pradesh Land (Laws) Amendment Act, 1971 which was published in the Official Gazette on 22.08.1971. Sub-Section 2 of Section 122-C which was inserted vide the aforesaid amendment specifically required obtaining of previous approval of the Assistant Collector before making allotment.

77. As regards the contention of the learned counsel for the petitioner that the requirement of prior approval of the Sub-Divisional Magistrate was introduced only in the year 1975, and that before 1975 no such approval was necessary for the grant of patta by the Gram Sabha, we find no merit in this submission. The requirement of obtaining previous approval was incorporated in the substantive provision itself by the Uttar Pradesh Land (Laws) Amendment Act, 1971, which was published in the Official Gazette on 22.08.1971. Sub-section (2) of Section 122-C expressly mandates prior approval of the Assistant Collector before any allotment is made. Therefore, no subsequent Rule, Manual or Provision, in any or notification can override or dilute the substantive statutory requirement.

78. However, any subsequent provision can only be made to bring it in conformity with the substantive provision, and this is clearly reflected in the proviso to sub-para (2) of Rule 115-N, which provides that prior approval of the Assistant Collector-in-charge of the Sub-Division shall be obtained for every allotment made under Rule 115-L or Rule 115-M. This requirement was introduced by substitution through Notification No. U.O. 605/Rajaswa-1-2(8)-75 dated 01.11.1975, thereby ensuring consistency with the mandate already contained in sub-section (2) of Section 122-C of the U.P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act.

G- Case Law on the Subject

79. In Amar Singh v. Ranpal Singh and Others, 2021 (8) ADJ 418 this Court has held that the requirement of previous approval of the Assistant Collector before grant of allotment under Sections 195, 197, and 198 of the U.P.Z.A.L.R. Act was introduced by the U.P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms (Amendment) Act, 1968, while the corresponding provision under Section 122-C came into force through the U.P. Land Laws (Amendment) Act, 1971. The Court further held that the substantive provisions contained in the U.P.Z.A.L.R. Act prescribed for previous approval of the Assistant Collector before allotment was very much in force prior the date of grant of alleged lease. The contention that the same was introduced for the first time on 01.11.1975 by amending Rule 115-N, can be of no help as it is settled law that Rules cannot override or control the provisions contained in the Parent Act. It is a well-established legal principle that subordinate legislation, such as Rules or Notifications, cannot override, amend, or control the substantive provisions of the parent Act. The Rules must operate strictly within the framework and intent of the Statute, yielding to it whenever any inconsistency with the Act arises.

H- Fraud through Misrepresentation and Concealment

80. Courts exist to uphold justice, not to shelter deceit. Any litigant approaching the Court must come with clean hands. A claim founded on misrepresentation or falsehood amounts to fraud and a grave abuse of judicial process, warranting prompt dismissal at any stage.

81. In S.P. Chengalvaraya Naidu(Dead) by LRs Vs. Jagannath (Dead) by LRs and Others, (1994) 1 SCC 1, the Supreme Court discussed the consequence of an order obtained by fraud. It also defined the meaning of fraud. A fraud is an act of deliberate deception with the design of securing something by taking unfair advantage of another. It is a cheating intended to get an advantage. A litigant who approaches the court is bound to produce all the documents which are relevant to litigation. If he withholds a vital document in order to gain advantage on the other side, then he would be guilty of playing fraud on the court as well as on the opposite party. Non-production and even non-mentioning of a relevant fact or document is tantamount to playing fraud on the Court. One who comes to the court must come with clean hands. A person whose case is based on falsehood, has no right to approach the court. He can be summarily thrown out at any stage of the litigation. A judgement or decree obtained by fraud on the court is a nullity and non-existent in the eyes of law.

82. In K.D. Sharma v. Steel Authority of India Ltd. and others: (2008) 12 SCC 481, the Court held that the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court under Article 32 and of the High Court under Article 226 of the Constitution is extraordinary, equitable and discretionary and it is imperative that the petitioner approaching the writ court must come with clean hands and put forward all the facts before the Court without concealing or suppressing anything and seek an appropriate relief. If there is no candid disclosure of relevant and material facts or the petitioner is guilty of misleading the Court, his petition may be dismissed at the threshold without considering the merits of the claim. The same rule was reiterated in G. Jayshree and others v. Bhagwandas S. Patel and others : (2009) 3 SCC 141.

83. In Dalip Singh versus State of Uttar Pradesh and others, (2010) 2 SCC 114, the Supreme Court observed that a litigant's efforts to mislead the authorities and the Court cannot but be treated as reprehensible. Such litigant belongs to a category of persons who not only attempt but succeed in polluting the course of Justice. While exercising discretionary and equitable jurisdiction under Article 32 and 226, the facts and circumstances of the case should be seen in their entirety to find out if there is miscarriage of justice. If the litigant has not come forward with clean hands, has not candidly disclosed all the facts that he is aware of, and he intends to delay the proceedings, then the court will non suit him on the ground of contumacious conduct. A party which has misled the court in passing an order in its favour is not entitled to be heard on the merits of the case. A person who invokes the High Court's jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution is duty bound to place all the facts before the court without any reservation. If there is suppression of material facts or twisted facts have been placed before the High Court, then it will be fully justified in refusing to entertain a petition under Article 226 of the Constitution. Jurisdiction under Article 32 and 226 of the Constitution is extraordinary, equitable, and discretionary, and it is imperative that the petitioner approaching the court must come with clean hands and put forward all the facts before the Court without concealing or suppressing anything and seek an appropriate relief. If there is no candid disclosure of relevant and material facts or the petitioner is guilty of misleading the court, his petition may be dismissed at the threshold without considering the merits of the claim.

84. In Moti Lal Songara versus Prem Prakash Alias Pappu and another (2013) 9 SCC 199, the Supreme Court observed that anyone who takes recourse to method of suppression in a court of law is in actuality, playing fraud upon the court and the maxim "suppressio veri, expressio falsi" that is suppression of the truth is equivalent to expression of falsehood gets attracted.

85. In State of Orissa versus Laxmi Narayan Das (Dead) Through LRs & Others, (2023) 15 SCC 273, the Supreme Court has made observations that misrepresentation and concealment on the part of the litigant should be discouraged and viewed seriously.

I- Conclusion

86. The statutory scheme regulating the allotment of Gram Sabha land for housing sites is embodied in Section 122-C of the U.P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act, 1950, read conjointly with Rules 115-L, 115-N and 115-O of the U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Rules, 1952, and Paras 47 and 49 of the U.P. Gram Sabha, Gram Panchayat and Bhumi Prabandhak Samiti Manual, 1954. Section 122-C, introduced by the U.P. Land Laws (Amendment) Act, 1971 and enforced from 22.08.1971, authorises the Assistant Collector to earmark suitable Gaon Sabha or vacant land for abadi sites for Scheduled Castes, Scheduled Tribes, Other Backward Classes, persons of the general category below the poverty line, agricultural labourers and village artisans. Significantly, sub-section (2) unequivocally mandates that no allotment can be made without the prior approval of the Assistant Collector, a statutory condition in force since 1971. Further Rules 115-L to 115-O prescribe the procedural safeguards governing such allotments, including preparation of the list of eligible persons (Form 49-D), list of available land (Form 49-E), village map extracts, public announcement by beat of drum, convening of the Bhumi Prabandhak Samiti meeting, adherence to the order of preference, drawing of lots wherever required, issuance of the allotment certificate in Form 49-F, and limiting the allotment area to 250 square metres. The 1975 amendment to Rule 115-N merely harmonised the Rules with the already existing statutory requirement of prior approval. Further, Para 49 of the Manual consolidates the above statutory and procedural requirements and reiterates the mandatory duties of the Bhumi Prabandhak Samiti, together with the supervisory control vested in the Assistant Collector during the entire process of earmarking and allotment of abadi sites. Accordingly, any patta issued without obtaining the prior approval of the Assistant Collector is void, illegal and unenforceable in law.

87. Cancellation of a Patta necessarily presupposes the prior existence of a lawfully executed and validly conferred allotment made by a competent authority strictly in accordance with the statutory scheme. In the present case, however, the documentary record clearly establishes that no such Patta was ever granted under the provisions of the U.P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act or the Rules framed thereunder, and the claim of the Petitioner rests only on an oral assertion, unsupported by any legal or documentary evidence. Moreover, in view of the statutory mandate introduced by the 1971 Amendment to Section 122-C, no Patta could legally have been issued without obtaining the previous approval of the Assistant Collector. This requirement is not directory but mandatory, and it constitutes a jurisdictional precondition for the lawful creation of any allotment. In the absence of any legal or documentary evidence, any purported allotment cannot, in any manner, be presumed to exist. The petitioner has failed to produce even a single document to support his claim, rendering the alleged allotment wholly baseless. The claim is entirely imaginary, made only with the intent of grabbing public land. Consequently, when no lawful Patta ever came into existence, the question of its cancellation does not arise.

88. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in Dina Nath v. State of U.P. & Ors. (2010) 15 SCC 218, has held that the Court cannot remain a silent spectator and is duty-bound to ensure that public property is not frittered away by unscrupulous persons. The Court must safeguard public land by ensuring that such illegal claims are thoroughly enquired into and that appropriate remedial action is taken.

89. In view of the aforesaid discussion, we, hereby, dismiss the Writ

i. The question of cancellation presupposes the existence of a Patta lawfully issued by a competent authority under the statutory framework. In the present case, the record clearly establishes that no such Patta was ever granted under the relevant provisions. The petitioner relies solely on a receipt allegedly issued by the Gram Pradhan of Gram Sabha 'Chanda' and not Gram Sabha Khargapur Husariya, which is entirely devoid of statutory authority or procedural compliance. Such a document cannot, under any legal interpretation, be treated as a valid or subsisting Patta.

ii. Prior approval of the Assistant Collector, as expressly mandated under Section 122-C of the U.P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act, 1950, was a condition precedent for making any allotment of a housing site. Section 122-C, inserted by the U.P. Land Laws (Amendment) Act, 1971 and published in the Official Gazette on 22.08.1971, has unequivocally required such prior approval since its very inception in 1971. The contention that this requirement was introduced only in 1975 is wholly misconceived and untenable, as the statutory mandate has been in force since 22.08.1971 and cannot be overridden, diluted, or nullified by any subsequent rule or executive instruction. In fact, the later amendment of Rule 115-L was entirely in consonance and uniformity with Section 122-C, serving merely to bring the procedural rules in line with the substantive statutory requirement already in place.

iii. The copy of the Parivar Register filed by the petitioner also fails to inspire confidence, as entries therein can be made only by the Secretary in accordance with the provisions of the U.P. Panchayat Raj (Maintenance of Family Registers) Rules, 1970. The said copy of the Parivar Register, produced by the petitioner, shows House No. 54 with the names of its occupants as Kaushal Kishore Shukla, son of Sant Baksh Shukla, Smt. Kanti, wife of Kaushal Kishore, and Rajesh Kumar and Rakesh Kumar, sons of Kaushal Kishore. The document is stated to have been issued on 11.09.1981, indicating the name of the Gram Sabha as Khargapur Husariya, the Nyay Panchayat as Nizampur Malhaur, and the village as Husariya, and it bears the name of Ram Bharose, Gram Pradhan, as the person who purportedly made the entries, though the Gram Pradhan had no authority whatsoever to make or authenticate entries in the Parivar Register under law.

iv. It is a settled principle of law that when a statute prescribes a particular act to be done in a particular manner, it must be done in that manner alone or not at all. Every word of the statute must be given due effect. Over a century ago, in Taylor v. Taylor (1875) 1 Ch D 426, Jassell M.R. enunciated this rule, which has withstood the test of time and was reaffirmed by the Privy Council in Nazir Ahmed v. Emperor AIR 1936 PC 253(2), and later by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Shiv Bahadur Singh v. State of U.P., AIR 1954 SC 322 and Deep Chand v. State of Rajasthan, AIR 1961 SC 1527.

v. The status of the petitioner over the property in question is nothing more than that of an encroacher, having no lawful title, right, or interest therein. The alleged receipts relied upon are devoid of evidentiary value, as they neither emanate from nor bear the approval of any competent authority. In the absence of any valid Patta, lease, or allotment order, claim

vi. The alleged allottee Kaushal Kishore Shukla, the father of the petitioner belonged to the General Category and, being an ex-army personnel, did not fall within any of the eligible categories prescribed for allotment under Section 122-C of the U.P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act, 1950, namely, the Scheduled Castes, Scheduled Tribes, Other Backward Classes, persons of the General Category living below the poverty line, agricultural labourers, or village artisans. Consequently, no allotment could have been legally made in his favour under the applicable rules. Therefore, the mere production of certain receipts or papers not issued or authenticated by any competent authority cannot establish that any valid patta ever existed in his name; hence, the question of cancellation of such patta does not arise at all. The action of the L.D.A. is, therefore, entirely justified and fully in accordance with law.

vii. The Hon'ble Supreme Court has consistently emphasized that fraud, concealment, and misrepresentation strike at the very integrity of the judicial process. A litigant invoking the jurisdiction of the Court must act with utmost candour and make full disclosure of all material facts. Withholding documents, suppressing truth, or presenting distorted facts amounts to fraud and attracts the maxim suppressio veri, expressio falsi. Any order or judgment procured through such deceit is a nullity in law. Given the equitable and discretionary nature of jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution of India, courts may reject a petition at the threshold when the litigant is guilty of suppression or misrepresentation.

90. For all the aforesaid reasons, the writ petition stands dismissed.

Issue for Consideration

Matter pertains to Whether the order passed by National Commission in its Appellate or revisional jurisdiction can be challenged before the High Court in writ jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution of India and If so, then under what circumstances should such writs be entertained and what is the scope of challenge before the writ court under Article 226? (Paras 3, 18–21)

Headnotes

Maintainability of writ petition - Challenge to concurrent findings of District Commission, State Commission and National Commission - Scope of interference under Articles 226/227 - Rule of alternate remedy - Exceptions - Disputed questions of fact - Consumer Protection Act, 2019. (Paras 8-27)

Alternative remedy - Not an absolute bar - Self-imposed restraint by High Court - Exercise of writ jurisdiction only in exceptional circumstances such as violation of fundamental rights, principles of natural justice, lack of jurisdiction or patent illegality. (Paras 12-21)

Concurrent findings of fact - District Commission holding unfair trade practice - State Commission and National Commission affirming - Re-agitation of factual issues impermissible in writ jurisdiction. (Paras 22-26)

Held: when supervisory jurisdiction under Article 227 of the Constitution is available, writ petition under Article 226 should not be normally entertained, except in exceptional circumstances involving violation of fundamental rights, principles of natural justice, or patent illegality - findings recorded by the District Commission, State Commission and National Commission were based on appreciation of evidence and did not suffer from perversity or jurisdictional error - the issues raised by the petitioner relating to possession, consolidation proceedings and force majeure were purely factual and disputed in nature and could not be re-examined in writ jurisdiction - petitioner failed to make out a case for interference, and accordingly, the writ petition was dismissed. Case Arising From ORIGINAL JURISDICTION: Order dated 09.01.2024 passed by the District Consumer Disputes Redressal Commission, Lucknow, as affirmed by order dated 01.08.2024 of the State Consumer Disputes Redressal Commission, Uttar Pradesh, Lucknow, and order dated 01.04.2025 of the National Consumer Disputes Redressal Commission.

Appearances for Parties

Advs. for the Appellant (Petitioner):

Learned counsel for M/s Sahu Land Developers Pvt. Ltd.

Advs. for the Respondents:

Learned counsel for the State of U.P. and respondent nos. 5 to 7

(Delivered by Hon'ble Shekhar B. Saraf, J.)

The present writ petition has been filed under Article 226 of the Constitution of India wherein the petitioner has prayed for the issuance of a writ of certiorari quashing the impugned judgement and order dated August 1, 2024 and January 9, 2024 passed by State Consumer Disputes Redressal Commission, Lucknow (hereinafter referred to as the 'State Commission') and District Consumer Disputes Redressal Commission, Lucknow (hereinafter referred to as the 'District Commission') respectively. The petitioner in furtherance prays for the issuance of a writ of prohibition, prohibiting the respondent no. 5 to 7 as well as other complainants in respect of recovery of claims. Moreover, the petitioner further prays for writ of mandamus commanding the Commissioner, Lucknow (hereinafter referred to as 'respondent no.2') to specify the time frame to conclude the consolidation operation in the concerned area.

FACTS

2. The factual matrix of the present writ petition is delineated below:

a. The petitioner is a Private Limited Company incorporated in the year 2007, engaged in the business of real estate development in Lucknow has launched a residential plotting development scheme titled “Sahu City Phase-2” on August 29, 2012 at Village Shivpuri, Tehsil Bakshi Ka Talab, District Lucknow. The said land was located outside the municipal and planning area as per Section 2(zh) of the Real Estate (Regulation & Development) Act, 2016 at the time of launch.

b. Subsequent to launch of the scheme, the layout plan of the project was duly approved by the Zila Panchayat, Lucknow in two parts under the Uttar Pradesh (Kshetra Panchayats and Zila Panchayats) Adhiniyam, 1961, in two phases on April 28, 2018 and April 29, 2019.

c. Respondent nos. 5 to 7 and other consumers booked residential plots under valid booking agreements, and the petitioner proceeded with development work in accordance with the scheme wherein possession was to be delivered within the specified time, subject to completion of development.

d. However, after initiation of the project and acceptance of bookings, consolidation proceedings in the said village was initiated pursuant to a notification issued by the State of Uttar Pradesh under Section 4 of the Uttar Pradesh Consolidation of Holdings Act, 1953, vide publication dated July 5, 2013. As a result, the petitioner’s project has come to a halt and he was unable to deliver the possession to plot allottees.

e. Respondent nos. 5 to 7 lodged complaints before the District Commission seeking refund of the total amount deposited by them and petitioner filed its objection against the said complaint. Thereafter District Commission passed an order dated January 9, 2024 directing the petitioner to refund the amounts alongwith 9% interest. Respondent nos. 5 to 7 preferred cross appeal against the said order for the enhancement of rate of interest from 9% to 12% per annum and also for the payment of interest from date of deposit till the date of actual payment, which was allowed by modification of order dated January 9, 2024.

f. Petitioner filed appeal under Section 41 of the Consumer Protection Act, 2019 (hereinafter referred to as ‘Act’) before State Commission and the said appeal was decided vide order dated August 1, 2024 against the petitioner. Subsequently petitioner filed revision against the aforesaid order before National Consumer Disputes Redressal Commission (hereinafter referred to as ‘National Commission’) which was dismissed vide order dated April 1, 2025.

g. Respondent nos. 5 to 7 filed execution proceedings before respondent no. 4 pursuant to which a demand notice dated January 4, 2025 was issued by Tehsildar and attachment order dated February 18, 2025 was issued by Sub Divisional Magistrate thereby attaching the bank account of the petitioner pursuant to which the amount of Rs. 48,80,493 was realized and paid to the respondents 5 to 7 from the account of petitioner.

h. The present writ petition is therefore being filed seeking quashing of the impugned orders passed by the District Commission upheld by State Commission alongwith setting aside the recovery proceedings, and declaring that the continuation of such action is wholly without jurisdiction and in violation of statutory and constitutional safeguards.

ISSUE

3. A. Whether the order passed by National Commission in its Appellate or revisional jurisdiction can be challenged before the High Court in writ jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution of India?

B. If yes, then under what circumstances should such writs be entertained and what is the scope of challenge before the writ court under Article 226?

CONTENTIONS OF PETITIONER

4. The learned counsel appearing on behalf of the petitioner has made the following submissions:

a. On the date of launch of the plotting scheme, the concerned land was not under any consolidation operations.

b. The petitioner sought information from respondent authorities regarding the initiation, stage and date of completion of the consolidation proceedings in the concerned village but a vague and unclear reply was given leading to complete uncertainty and confusion thereby rendering the petitioner incapable of completing the project.

c. The petitioner is in absolute possession and occupation of the land on which the residential plotting scheme has been launched and has clear title to the said land without any encumbrance.

d. Petitioner is willing to provide possession to customers once the development work is completed but due to an unforeseen event that is initiation of the consolidation proceedings which is beyond the control of the petitioner and is akin to force majeure event under Section 56 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872, petitioners work has come to halt.

e. As per the terms and conditions of the scheme, the customer is not entitled to any interest but only to the refund of actual amount when there is no deficiency on the part of the petitioner

f. Despite the supervening legal impediment and doctrine of frustration/impossibility of performance under Section 56 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872, due to initiation of consolidation proceedings, respondent nos. 5 to 7 initiated consumer complaints alleging deficiency of service and sought refund with interest and accordingly the impugned order dated January 9, 2024 was passed by District Commission directing refund alongwith interest which suffers from patent illegality, arbitrariness and complete non-consideration of the statutory bar under the U.P. Consolidation of Holdings Act, 1953, and against the settled proposition of law laid down by the Supreme Court.

g. To buttress his arguments, counsel has placed reliance on Satyabrata Ghosh v. Mugneeram Bangur & Co. reported in AIR 1954 SC 44); Alopi Prasad & Sons v. Union of India reported in AIR 1960 SC 588; Delhi Airtech Services Pvt. Ltd. v. State of U.P. reported in (2011) 9 SCC 354; Pioneer Urban Land & Infrastructure Ltd. v. Union of India reported in (2019) 8 SCC. 416 wherein the Supreme Court has held that supervening impossibility/illegality discharges contractual obligations and court may intervene to grant interim protection from consumer redressal proceedings.

CONTENTIONS OF RESPONDENTS

5. The learned counsel appearing on behalf of the respondents has rebutted the arguments of petitioner and made following submissions:

a. The petitioner was unable to deliver the possession of the land within time, therefore he is liable to return the aforesaid amount alongwith interest to the respondents.

b. The order of the District Commission was passed after perusal of evidence and was upheld by the State Commission and thereafter the National Commission that held that the order does not suffer from any illegality.

b. The writ petition is not maintainable before this court as there is an alternative remedy to approach the Supreme Court under Section 67 of the Act.

ANALYSIS

6. I have given my thoughtful consideration to the submissions canvassed by the learned counsel for the parties and have also perused the materials placed on record.

7. The framework of the Consumer Protection Act was provided by a resolution dated April 9, 1985 of the General Assembly of the United Nations Organisation which is known as "Consumer Protection Resolution No. 39/248". India is a signatory to the said Resolution. Ergo, the Act was enacted in pursuance of the said Resolution. It further seeks to provide for better protection of the interests of consumers and for the said purpose, to make provision for the establishment of Consumer Councils and other authorities for the settlement of consumer disputes and for matters connected therewith, as would appear from the Statement of Objects and Reasons of the Act inter alia to promote and protect the rights of consumers.

8. In the present case writ petition under Article 226 of the Constitution of India is filed for interfering with the recovery proceedings initiated in pursuance of an order passed by District Commission which was affirmed by State Commission and National Commission.

9. The petitioner then preferred a revision under Section 58(1)(b) of the Act before National Commission wherein the commission has converted the said revision into second appeal under Section 51(2) of the Act which was dismissed too for the reason that no substantial question of law was involved in the matter. The order passed by National Commission is quoted hereinbelow:

"These are Revision Petitions filed against the order dated 01.08.2024 of the Uttar Pradesh State Consumer Disputes Redressal Commission wherein the appeals filed by the Petitioner were dismissed. The question before us is whether these three Revision Petitions are maintainable before this Commission under the Consumer Protection Act, 2019. In a recent order of this Commission in RP/1879/2024, Vivo Mobile India Pvt. Ltd. Vs. Mavuram Sujatha & Ors, decided on 20.01.2025, it has been held that revisional power of this Commission is not available for orders arising out of a complaint before the District Commission or out of an appellate order of the State Commission. Further it has been held that the orders pending a complaint before the District Commission or after a decision would only be revisable before the State Commission and not before this Commission under Section 58(1)(b) of the Consumer Protection Act, 2019. Learned Counsel for the Petitioner submitted that those revision petitions were filed before this order of the Commission and therefore the Revision Petitions may be converted into Second Appeal under Section 51(2). Accordingly these Revision Petitions are converted as Second Appeal.

Heard the arguments of the learned Counsel for both the parties. The Section dealing with Second Appeal in the 2019 Act, which is Section 51(2), clearly states that there should be a substantial question of law involved for filing of Second Appeal. On hearing arguments and on perusal of record, we find there are no substantial questions of law involved in the Second Appeal as the State Commissioner, had reiterated the order of the District Commission which has been passed after taking into account the evidences and hearing the parties. In the grounds of Second Appeal, only issues relating to facts have been mentioned like allotment of plot, giving possession development work, etc. which have been adequately dealt with by this Commission. Accordingly, these three Revision Petitions converted as Second Appeal are dismissed as not maintainable.

These three Second Appeals arising out of the same matter and decided by Uttar Pradesh State Consumer Disputes Redressal Commission on the same date but by different orders, again we find that the Second Appeals have been filed without any question of any substantial law involved in the matter. Accordingly, these three Second Appeals are also dismissed as not maintainable.”

10. The petitioner heavily relies on the order passed by National Commission Disputes Redressal Commission, New Delhi in Vivo Mobile India Private Limited v. Smt. Mavuram Sujatha and others; (Revision Petition no. 1879 of 2024, decided on January 20, 2025) to submit that the National Commission has itself stated in the said order to invoke writ jurisdiction before High Court against the order of the State Commission. The paragraphs of the order relied upon by the petitioner is quoted hereinbelow:

“71. Accordingly, we do not find that the power to revise a revisional order passed by the State Commission is available to us. The order of the State Commission in the present case cannot be stated to be an order in an original complaint of a consumer dispute pending before the State Commission. Admittedly, the dispute is pending before the District Commission and not before the State Commission. Consequently, we cannot assume the revisional jurisdiction on the arguments advanced by the learned Counsel for the parties.

72. We may also point out that the remedy by way of a Writ Petition has been held to be available in the judgments referred to above, and in the absence of any statutory specific remedy, it is open to the aggrieved party to approach the jurisdictional High Court for redressal of their grievances. The compilation, therefore, presented as a Revision Petition, being not maintainable under Section 58(1)(b) of the Consumer Protection Act, 2019, is hereby dismissed.

11. Per contra, the respondents vehemently rebuked the arguments of the petitioner and contend that the District Commission has rightly passed an order dated January 9, 2024 which was decided against petitioner wherein it was directed to deposit Rs. 8,64,000/-alongwith 9% annual interest to the complainant from the date of filing the complaint till the date of actual payment within 30 days from the date of order due to default of the petitioner.

12. In Whirlpool Corporation v. Registrar of Trademarks, Mumbai reported in (1998) 8 SCC 1 has held that alternative remedy will not act as a bar for writ court in the contingencies. The relevant paragraph of the judgment is quoted hereinbelow:

“15. Under Article 226 of the Constitution, the High Court, having regard to the facts of the case, has a discretion to entertain or not to entertain a writ petition. But the High Court has imposed upon itself certain restrictions one of which is that if an effective and efficacious remedy is available, the High Court would not normally exercise its jurisdiction. But the alternative remedy has been consistently held by this Court not to operate as a bar in at least three contingencies, namely, where the writ petition has been filed for the enforcement of any of the Fundamental Rights or where there has been a violation of the principle of natural justice or where the order or proceedings are wholly without jurisdiction or the vires of an Act is challenged.....”

13. In Harbanslal Sahnia v Indian Oil Corpn. Ltd reported in (2003) 2 SCC 107 has reiterated the view of Whirlpool Corporation (Supra) and held as follows:

“7.....In an appropriate case, in spite of availability of the alternative remedy, the High Court may still exercise its writ jurisdiction in at least three contingencies: (i) where the writ petition seeks enforcement of any of the fundamental rights; (ii) where there is failure of principles of natural justice; or (iii) where the orders or proceedings are wholly without jurisdiction or the vires of an Act is challenged.....”

14. The Supreme Court in Radha Krishan Industries v. State of H.P. reported in (2021) 6 SCC 771 has discussed in detail about the maintainability of writ petition under Article 226 of the Constitution of India and also laid down principles of law that emanates from a plethora of precedents. The relevant paragraphs of the judgment are quoted hereinbelow:

“C.1. Maintainability of the writ petition before the High Court

24. The High Court has dealt with the maintainability of the petition under Article 226 of the Constitution. Relying on the decision of this Court in CCT v. Glaxo Smith Kline Consumer Health Care Ltd. [CCT v. Glaxo Smith Kline Consumer Health Care Ltd., (2020) 19 SCC 681 : 2020 SCC OnLine SC 440] , the High Court noted that although it can entertain a petition under Article 226 of the Constitution, it must not do so when the aggrieved person has an effective alternate remedy available in law. However, certain exceptions to this “rule of alternate remedy” include where, the statutory authority has not acted in accordance with the provisions of the law or acted in defiance of the fundamental principles of judicial procedure; or has resorted to invoke provisions, which are repealed; or where an order has been passed in violation of the principles of natural justice. Applying this formulation, the High Court noted that the appellant has an alternate remedy available under the GST Act and thus, the petition was not maintainable.

25. In this background, it becomes necessary for this Court, to dwell on the “rule of alternate remedy” and its judicial exposition. In Whirlpool Corpn. v. Registrar of Trade Marks [Whirlpool Corpn. v. Registrar of Trade Marks, (1998) 8 SCC 1] , a two-Judge Bench of this Court after reviewing the case law on this point, noted : (SCC pp. 9-10, paras 14-15)

“14. The power to issue prerogative writs under Article 226 of the Constitution is plenary in nature and is not limited by any other provision of the Constitution. This power can be exercised by the High Court not only for issuing writs in the nature of habeas corpus, mandamus, prohibition, quo warranto and certiorari for the enforcement of any of the Fundamental Rights contained in Part III of the Constitution but also for “any other purpose”.

15. Under Article 226 of the Constitution, the High Court, having regard to the facts of the case, has a discretion to entertain or not to entertain a writ petition. But the High Court has imposed upon itself certain restrictions one of which is that if an effective and efficacious remedy is available, the High Court would not normally exercise its jurisdiction. But the alternative remedy has been consistently held by this Court not to operate as a bar in at least three contingencies, namely, where the writ petition has been filed for the enforcement of any of the Fundamental Rights or where there has been a violation of the principle of natural justice or where the order or proceedings are wholly without jurisdiction or the vires of an Act is challenged. There is a plethora of case-law on this point but to cut down this circle of forensic whirlpool, we would rely on some old decisions of the evolutionary era of the constitutional law as they still hold the field.”

26. Following the dictum of this Court in Whirlpool [Whirlpool Corpn. v. Registrar of Trade Marks, (1998) 8 SCC 1] , in Harbanslal Sahnia v. Indian Oil Corpn. Ltd. [Harbanslal Sahnia v. Indian Oil Corpn. Ltd., (2003) 2 SCC 107] , this Court noted that : (Harbanslal Sahnia case [Harbanslal Sahnia v. Indian Oil Corpn. Ltd., (2003) 2 SCC 107] , SCC p. 110, para 7)

“7. So far as the view taken by the High Court that the remedy by way of recourse to arbitration clause was available to the appellants and therefore the writ petition filed by the appellants was liable to be dismissed is concerned, suffice it to observe that the rule of exclusion of writ jurisdiction by availability of an alternative remedy is a rule of discretion and not one of compulsion. In an appropriate case, in spite of availability of the alternative remedy, the High Court may still exercise its writ jurisdiction in at least three contingencies : (i) where the writ petition seeks enforcement of any of the fundamental rights; (ii) where there is failure of principles of natural justice; or (iii) where the orders or proceedings are wholly without jurisdiction or the vires of an Act is challenged. (See Whirlpool Corpn.v. Registrar of Trade Marks [Whirlpool Corpn. v. Registrar of Trade Marks, (1998) 8 SCC 1] .) The present case attracts applicability of the first two contingencies. Moreover, as noted, the appellants' dealership, which is their bread and butter, came to be terminated for an irrelevant and non-existent cause. In such circumstances, we feel that the appellants should have been allowed relief by the High Court itself instead of driving them to the need of initiating arbitration proceedings."

27. The principles of law which emerge are that:

27.1. The power under Article 226 of the Constitution to issue writs can be exercised not only for the enforcement of fundamental rights, but for any other purpose as well.

27.2. The High Court has the discretion not to entertain a writ petition. One of the restrictions placed on the power of the High Court is where an effective alternate remedy is available to the aggrieved person.

27.3. Exceptions to the rule of alternate remedy arise where : (a) the writ petition has been filed for the enforcement of a fundamental right protected by Part III of the Constitution; (b) there has been a violation of the principles of natural justice; (c) the order or proceedings are wholly without jurisdiction; or (d) the vires of a legislation is challenged.

27.4. An alternate remedy by itself does not divest the High Court of its powers under Article 226 of the Constitution in an appropriate case though ordinarily, a writ petition should not be entertained when an efficacious alternate remedy is provided by law.

27.5. When a right is created by a statute, which itself prescribes the remedy or procedure for enforcing the right or liability, resort must be had to that particular statutory remedy before invoking the discretionary remedy under Article 226 of the Constitution. This rule of exhaustion of statutory remedies is a rule of policy, convenience and discretion.

27.6. In cases where there are disputed questions of fact, the High Court may decide to decline jurisdiction in a writ petition. However, if the High Court is objectively of the view that the nature of the controversy requires the exercise of its writ jurisdiction, such a view would not readily be interfered with."

15. The Supreme Court in Ibrat Faizan v. Omaxe Buildhome (P) Ltd. reported in (2023) 11 SCC 594 after noting the dicta in L. Chandra Kumar v. Union of India reported in (1997) 3 SCC 261 while dealing with the special leave petition against the order passed by National Commission in its appellate jurisdiction upholding the order of State Commission has categorically held that National commission is a 'tribunal' within the meaning of Article 136 of the Constitution and writ court has supervisory jurisdiction over the tribunal under Article 227 of the Constitution. Ergo, the writ petition under Article 227 before the High Court would be maintainable. The relevant paragraphs of the judgment are quoted hereinbelow:

“17. It is not in dispute that in the present case, the appeal before the National Commission was against the order passed by the State Commission under Section 47(1)(a) of the 2019 Act. Therefore, against the order passed by the State Commission passed in a complaint in exercise of its powers conferred under Section 47(1)(a) of the 2019 Act, an appeal to the National Commission was maintainable, as provided under Section 58(1)(a)(iii) of the 2019 Act. As per Section 67 of the 2019 Act, any person, aggrieved by an order made by the National Commission of its powers conferred by sub-clause (i) or (ii) of clause (a) of sub-section (1) of Section 58, may prefer an appeal against such order to the Supreme Court. Therefore, an appeal against the order passed by the National Commission to this Court would be maintainable only in case the order is passed by the National Commission in exercise of its powers conferred under Section 58(1)(a)(i) or under Section 58(1)(a)(ii) of the 2019 Act. No further appeal to this Court is provided against the order passed by the National Commission in exercise of its powers conferred under Section 58(1)(a)(iii) or under Section 58(1)(a)(iv) of the 2019 Act. In that view of the matter, the remedy which may be available to the aggrieved party against the order passed by the National Commission in an appeal under Section 58(1)(a)(iii) or Section 58(1)(a)(iv) would be to approach the High Court concerned having jurisdiction under Article 227 of the Constitution.

18. Whether the National Commission can be said to be a ‘tribunal’ for the purpose of exercise of powers under Article 227 of the Constitution by the High Court is concerned, has been considered by a Constitution Bench of this Court in

Associated Cement Companies [Associated Cement Companies Ltd. v. P.N. Sharma, 1964 SCC OnLine SC 62 : AIR 1965 SC 1595] , which is required to be referred to. In paras 44 and 45, it is observed and held as under : (SCC p. 1609)

“44. An authority other than a court may be vested by statute with judicial power in widely different circumstances, which it would be impossible and indeed inadvisable to attempt to define exhaustively. The proper thing is to examine each case as it arises, and to ascertain whether the powers vested in the authority can be truly described as judicial functions or judicial powers of the State. For the purpose of this case, it is sufficient to say that any outside authority empowered by the State to determine conclusively the rights of two or more contending parties with regard to any matter in controversy between them satisfies the test of an authority vested with the judicial powers of the State and may be regarded as a tribunal within the meaning of Article 136. Such a power of adjudication implies that the authority must act judicially and must determine the dispute by ascertainment of the relevant facts on the materials before it and by application of the relevant law to those facts. This test of a tribunal is not meant to be exhaustive, and it may be that other bodies not satisfying this test are also tribunals. In order to be a tribunal, it is essential that the power of adjudication must be derived from a statute or a statutory rule. An authority or body deriving its power of adjudication from an agreement of the parties, such as a private arbitrator or a tribunal acting under Section 10-A of the Industrial Disputes Act, 1947, does not satisfy the test of a tribunal within Article 136. It matters little that such a body or authority is vested with the trappings of a court. The Arbitration Act, 1940 vests an arbitrator with some of the trappings of a court, so also the Industrial Disputes Act, 1947 vests an authority acting under Section 10-A of the Act with many of such trappings, and yet, such bodies and authorities are not tribunals.

45. The word 'tribunal' finds place in Article 227 of the Constitution also, and I think that there also the word has the same meaning as in Article 136."

Therefore, the National Commission can be said to be a "Tribunal" which is vested by statute with the powers to determine conclusively the rights of two or more contending parties with regard to any matter in controversy between them. Therefore, as observed hereinabove in the aforesaid decision, it satisfies the test of an authority vested with the judicial powers of the State and therefore may be regarded as a "Tribunal" within the meaning of Article 227 and/or 136 of the Constitution. Also, in a given case, this Court may not exercise its powers under Article 136 of the Constitution, in view of the remedy which may be available to the aggrieved party before the High Court concerned under Article 227 of the Constitution, as it is appropriate that aggrieved party approaches the High Court concerned by way of writ petition under Article 227 of the Constitution.

19. At this stage, another Constitution Bench decision of this Court in L. Chandra Kumar [L. Chandra Kumar v. Union of India, (1997) 3 SCC 261 : 1997 SCC (L&S) 577] is required to be referred to. While dealing with the jurisdiction of the High Courts under Articles 226/227 of the Constitution in respect of powers of judicial review, it is observed and held in para 90 as under : (SCC pp. 307-308)

"90. We may first address the issue of exclusion of the power of judicial review of the High Courts. We have already held that in respect of the power of judicial review, the jurisdiction of the High Courts under Articles 226/227 cannot wholly be excluded. It has been contended before us that the Tribunals should not be allowed to adjudicate upon matters where the vires of legislations is questioned, and that they should restrict themselves to handling matters where constitutional issues are not raised. We cannot bring ourselves to agree to this proposition as that may result in splitting up proceedings and may cause avoidable delay. If such a view were to be adopted, it would be open for litigants to raise constitutional issues, many of which may be quite frivolous, to directly approach the High Courts and thus subvert the jurisdiction of the Tribunals. Moreover, even in these special branches of law, some areas do involve the consideration of constitutional questions on a regular basis; for instance, in service law matters, a large majority of cases involve an interpretation of Articles 14, 15 and 16 of the Constitution. To hold that the Tribunals have no power to handle matters involving constitutional issues would not serve the purpose for which they were constituted. On the other hand, to hold that all such decisions will be subject to the jurisdiction of the High Courts under Articles 226/227 of the Constitution before a Division Bench of the High Court within whose territorial jurisdiction the Tribunal concerned falls will serve two purposes. While saving the power of judicial review of legislative action vested in the High Courts under Articles 226/227 of the Constitution, it will ensure that frivolous claims are filtered out through the process of adjudication in the Tribunal. The High Court will also have the benefit of a reasoned decision on merits which will be of use to it in finally deciding the matter.”

That thereafter, it is observed and held that against the order passed by the Tribunal, the aggrieved party may approach the High Court concerned under Article 227 of the Constitution.

23. The scope and ambit of jurisdiction of Article 227 of the Constitution has been explained by this Court in Estralla Rubber v. Dass Estate (P) Ltd. [Estralla Rubber v. Dass Estate (P) Ltd., (2001) 8 SCC 97] , which has been consistently followed by this Court (see the recent decision of this Court in Garment Craft v. Prakash Chand Goel [Garment Craft v. Prakash Chand Goel, (2022) 4 SCC 181 : (2022) 2 SCC (Civ) 424]). Therefore, while exercising the powers under Article 227 of the Constitution, the High Court has to act within the parameters to exercise the powers under Article 227 of the Constitution. It goes without saying that even while considering the grant of interim stay/relief in a writ petition under Article 227 of the Constitution, the High Court has to bear in mind the limited jurisdiction of superintendence under Article 227 of the Constitution. Therefore, while granting any interim stay/relief in a writ petition under Article 227 of the Constitution against an order passed by the National Commission, the same shall always be subject to the rigour of the powers to be exercised under Article 227 of the Constitution.

24. In view of the above discussion and for the reasons stated above and subject to the observations made hereinabove, it cannot be said that a writ petition under Article 227 of the Constitution before the High Court concerned against the order passed by the National Commission in an appeal under Section 58(1)(a)(iii) of the 2019 Act was not maintainable... ..”

16. The Supreme Court in Universal Sompo General Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Suresh Chand Jain reported in (2024) 9 SCC 148 applying the precedent in Ibrat Faizaan (Supra) wherein the petitioner has directly approached the Apex Court under Article 136 of Constitution to challenge the order passed by National Commission that had affirmed the order of State Commission, held that a party can always approach the High Court having supervisory jurisdiction under Article 227 of the Constitution. The relevant paragraphs of the judgment are quoted hereinbelow:

“25. The provisions of Article 136 of the Constitution as such are not circumscribed by any limitation. But when the party aggrieved has alternative remedy to go before the High Court, invoking its writ jurisdiction or supervisory jurisdiction as the case may be, this Court should not entertain petition seeking special leave thereby short-circuit the legal procedure prescribed. The limitations, whatever, they be are implicit in the nature and character of the power itself. It being an exceptional and overriding power, naturally it has to be exercised sparingly and with caution and only in very exceptional situations. The power will only be used to advance the cause of justice and its exercise will be governed by well-established principles which govern the exercise of overriding constitutional powers.

34. This Court considered the question for its decision as to whether against the order passed by Ncdrc in an appeal under Section 58(1)(a)(iii) of the 2019 Act, petition before the High Court under Article 227 of the Constitution of India would be maintainable.

39. In the aforesaid view of the matter, we have reached to the conclusion that we should not adjudicate this petition on merits. We must ask the petitioner herein to first go before the jurisdictional High Court either by way of a writ application under Article 226 of the Constitution or by invoking the supervisory jurisdiction of the jurisdictional High Court under Article 227 of the Constitution. Of course, after the High Court adjudicates and passes a final order, it is always open for either of the parties to thereafter come before this Court by filing special leave petition, seeking leave to appeal under Article 136 of the Constitution.”

17. The Supreme Court in Rikhab Chand Jain v. Union of India reported in 2025 SCC OnLine SC 2510 wherein the Apex Court has disapproved the High Court entertaining a writ petition when there is an appropriate remedy before a different jurisdiction of the same High Court. The relevant paragraphs of the judgment are quoted hereinbelow:

“10. We may profitably refer, in this context, to the Constitution Bench decision in Thansingh Nathmal v. A. Mazid,

Superintendent of Taxes.. In Thansingh Nathmal (supra), this Court had the occasion to lay down a principle of law which is salutary and not to be found in any other previous decision rendered by it. The principle, plainly, is that, if a remedy is available to a party before the high court in another jurisdiction, the writ jurisdiction should not normally be exercised on a petition under Article 226, for, that would allow the machinery set up by the concerned statute to be bye-passed. The relevant passage from the decision reads as follows:

“The jurisdiction of the High Court under article 226 of the Constitution is couched in wide terms and the exercise thereof is not subject to any restrictions except the territorial restrictions which are expressly provided in the article. But the exercise of the jurisdiction is discretionary; it is not exercised merely because it is lawful to do so. The very amplitude of the jurisdiction demands that it will ordinarily be exercised subject to certain self-imposed limitations. Resort to that jurisdiction is not intended as an alternative remedy for relief which may be obtained in a suit or other mode prescribed by statute. Ordinarily the court will not entertain a petition for a writ under article 226, where the petitioner has an alternative remedy, which, without being unduly onerous, provides an equally efficacious remedy. Again the High Court does not generally enter upon a determination of questions which demand an elaborate examination of evidence to establish the right to enforce which the writ is claimed. The High Court does not therefore act as a court of appeal against the decision of a court or tribunal, to correct errors of fact, and does not by assuming jurisdiction under article 226 trench upon an alternative remedy provided by statute for obtaining relief. Where it is open to the aggrieved petitioner to move another tribunal, or even itself in another jurisdiction for obtaining redress in the manner provided by a statute, the High Court normally will not permit, by entertaining a petition under article 226 of the Constitution, the machinery created under the statute to be by-passed, and will leave the party applying to it to seek resort to the machinery so set up."

12. That apart, the majority view in a previous Constitution Bench in A.V Venkateswaran, Collector of Customs, Bombay v. Ramchand Sobhraj Wadhwani reads thus:

"14. ... we must express our dissent from the reasoning by which the learned Judges of the High Court held that the writ petitioner was absolved from the normal obligation to exhaust his statutory remedies before invoking the jurisdiction of the High Court under Article 226 of the Constitution. If a petitioner has disabled himself from availing himself of the statutory remedy by his own fault in not doing so within the prescribed time, he cannot certainly be permitted to urge that as a ground for the Court dealing with his petition under Article 226 to exercise its discretion in his favour. Indeed, the second passage extracted from the judgment of the learned C.J. in Mohammed Nooh case with its reference to the right to appeal being lost 'through no fault of his own' emphasizes this aspect of the Rule."

In essence, this Court was of the opinion that once a petitioner has due to his own fault disabled himself from availing a statutory remedy, the discretionary remedy under Article 226 may not be available.

15. In our considered opinion, the appellant having had a remedy before the High Court in a separate jurisdiction which was equally efficacious, he indulged in the (mis) adventure of invoking its writ jurisdiction which was rightly not entertained.

18. Upon careful perusal of umpteen judgements of the Supreme Court and sifting through the ratios ordained in the precedents, the following principles emerges with regard to the maintainability of writ petition under Article 226 against the orders passed by District, State and National Commissions in its appellate jurisdiction:

A. Alternative remedy would not operate as a bar in at least three contingencies, namely, where the writ petition has been filed for the enforcement of any of the Fundamental Rights or where there has been a violation of the principle of natural justice or where the order or proceedings are wholly without jurisdiction or the vires of an Act is challenged;

B. When a right is created by a statute, which itself prescribes the remedy or procedure for enforcing the right or liability, resort must be had to that particular statutory remedy before invoking the discretionary remedy under Article 226 of the Constitution. This rule of exhaustion of statutory remedies is a rule of policy, convenience and discretion;

C. An appeal against the order of National Commission to writ court in cases where there are disputed questions of fact or the grounds taken in the writ petition is not so cogent, where prima facie patent illegality or perversity findings of Tribunal are not shown on the face of the record, the High Court has the discretion to decline jurisdiction in a writ petition; and

D. Where it is open to the aggrieved petitioner to move another tribunal, or even itself in another jurisdiction for obtaining redress in the manner provided by a statute, the High Court normally will not permit, by entertaining a petition under Article 226 of the Constitution, the machinery created under the statute to be by-passed, and will leave the party applying to it to seek resort to the machinery so set up.

E. In cases where there are disputed questions of fact, the High Court may decide to decline jurisdiction in a writ petition. However, if the High Court is objectively of the view that the nature of the controversy requires the exercise of its writ jurisdiction, such a view would not readily be interfered with.

19. So far as the issue of maintainability of writ petition before the High Court is concerned, one may look into the judgment of Supreme Court in Whirlpool Corporation (Supra), Haribanslal Sahnia (Supra) and Radha Krishan Industries (Supra) wherein the court has clarified that writ petition against the order of National Commission is maintainable before High Court subject to some restrictions.

20. Moreover, the Supreme Court in Ibrat Faizaan (Supra) and Universal

Sompo General Insurance Co. Ltd. (Supra) has held that writ petition against order of National Commission is maintainable either under Article 226 or Article 227 of the Constitution. Subsequently, the Supreme Court in Rikhab Chand Jain (Supra) has held that writ petition under Article 226 would not be maintainable if there is an alternative remedy under different jurisdiction of the same High Court.

21. In light of the judgments referred above, we are of the view that when a supervisory jurisdiction under Article 227 is available to the petitioner, writ petition under Article 226 should not be normally entertained but the remedy under Article 226 would be available under exceptional circumstances. Furthermore, writ jurisdiction under Article 226 is cautiously to be used when grave injustice has been caused due to violation of principles of natural justice and/or when there is a clear violation of fundamental rights or patent illegality in the impugned order. [see Radha Krishan Industries (Supra)]

22. In the present case, the District Consumer Forum after perusal of evidence placed on record has held that despite the amount paid by the respondents under the aforesaid scheme, neither the possession had been handed over to them nor any construction work had been carried out by the petitioner. It is the case of the petitioner that the consolidation proceedings had been initiated after the launch of the project by the petitioner. But the District Commission has observed that petitioner was never in possession of the land as it was already under consolidation proceedings and petitioner had taken the aforesaid amount from the respondents by hiding the fact that the land was under consolidation proceedings. Hence, petitioner had committed an unfair trade practice and was therefore liable to return the said amount to the respondents.

23. The petitioner then approached the State Commission to contend that District Commission had overlooked the fact of possession and consolidation proceedings as the possession is still with the petitioner and it had come under consolidation proceedings after launch of the project by the petitioner which is a 'force majeure' event rendering him incapable of completing the project. State Commission has dismissed the appeal by upholding the order of the District Commission. Subsequently, the National Commission also dismissed the appeal on the ground of absence of any substantial question of law.

24. The petitioner is here before this Court and has again reiterated the same ground that has already been taken by him before the District Commission, State Commission and National Commission who have concurrently come to a finding against the petitioner. The issue of the knowledge of consolidation proceedings as to from when they were being carried out and the fact of possession of the land are purely factual in nature and based on disputed questions of fact which cannot be gone into by us in writ jurisdiction. The other pleas taken by the petitioner are also not so cogent as to persuade us to interfere with the findings of the National Commission. It is to be further noted that till date, the petitioner has not given the possession of the land to the respondents who are the allottees of land.

25. The case of the petitioner does not fall under any of the grounds mentioned herein below:-

i) the writ petition has been filed for the enforcement of any of the Fundamental Rights;

ii) where there has been a violation of the principle of natural justice; or where the order or proceedings are wholly without jurisdiction or the vires of an Act is challenged;

iii) the findings of the Commission (District Commission, State Commission, National Commission) are perverse.

26. In fact, we are of the view that the Commissions have rendered a finding that is reasonable and cannot be termed as perverse. Ergo, we come to an obdurate finding that the petitioner has failed to make out a case requiring interference of orders passed by the three consumer commissions.

27. In light of the above, the writ petition is dismissed. Parties shall bear their own costs.

State of U.P. & Ors.	...Respondents

ISSUE FOR CONSIDERATION

Whether the appellate authority under the U.P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act, 1950 has the power to review its own order.

HEADNOTE

U.P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act, 1950 – Ss. 176, 331(3), 341 – U.P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Rules, 1952 – R. 339 – U.P. Tenancy Act, 1939 – S. 274 – Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 – Order XLVII Rule 1 – Proceedings relating to partition of agricultural land – Suit under Section 176 for partition – Preliminary decree fixing shares – Preparation and confirmation of Kurra report – Appeal under Section 331(3) dismissed – Review application filed before Additional Commissioner (Administration) rejected on the ground of non-maintainability – Challenge in writ jurisdiction – Question relating to power of review vested in revenue appellate authorities under the U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Act.

HELD:

Section 341 of the U.P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act, makes the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 applicable to the proceedings under the Act and Rule 339 of the U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Rules expressly applies the provisions of Sections 256, 261, 273, 274 and other provisions of the U.P. Tenancy Act, 1939 to the suits and proceedings specified in Schedule II and appeals, revisions and reviews arising therefrom. Section 274 of the U.P. Tenancy Act specifically provides for the power of review and Order XLVII of the Code of Civil Procedure is applicable. Catena of judgments to indicate that power of review is vested in the authorities under the U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Act. Appellate authority committed manifest error in dismissing the review application of the petitioner on the ground that the same was not maintainable. Writ petition allowed. Impugned order set aside and the matter remitted to the appellate authority to consider and decide the application for review in accordance with law.

Appearances for Parties

Advs For Petitioner: Rama Pati Shukla, Shreya Shukla.

Advs For Respondents: C.S.C., Mohan Singh, Niteesh Kumar, Rajeev Narayan Pandey.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Alok Mathur, J.)

1. Heard Sri R.P. Shukla, Sri A.K. Pandey, and Shreya Shukla, learned counsel for petitioners as well as Sri Upendra Singh, Additional Chief Standing Counsel, Sri Dev Prakash Mishra, Additional Chief Standing Counsel and Sri Yogehs Kumar Awasthi, learned Standing Counsel for respondent Nos. 1 & 11, Sri Mohan Singh, learned counsel for respondent No. 112 and Sri Anup Kumar Pandey, learned counsel for respondent Nos. 9 & 10 and Sri Rajeev Narayan Pandey, learned counsel for respondent No. 2.

2. In the present writ petition, the petitioner has assailed the validity of the order dated 19.08.2025 passed on a review application as well as order dated 18.07.2025 passed by Additional Commissioner (Administration), Ayodhya Division, Ayodhya.

3. It has been submitted by learned counsel for petitioner that the dispute in the present case pertains to the proceedings initiated U/S 176 of U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Act with regard to the partition of land situated at Kata No. 237 Gata No. 253 and 432K as well as Khata No. 238 Gata No. 325. It has been submitted that the aforesaid land was recorded in the name of Mewa Lal who had four sons, namely, Tilak Ram, Ichha Ram, Atma Ram and Balram and Atma Ram had filed an application for partition claiming 1/4th share for himself and according to him the remaining 3 brothers also had 1/4th share in the said property.

4. It has been submitted that a settlement had taken place between the parties and all of them were in possession of their respective shares. It is stated that the aforesaid partition was oral and accordingly in order to effect a formal partition the suit was filed by Atma Ram U/S 176 of U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Act. The said suit was initially dismissed in default but subsequently a restoration application was filed and the said application was allowed and the suit was restored by means of order dated 10.07.2008.

5. The trial court decided the matter by means of judgment dated 03.03.2010 and the shares of all the sons of Mewa Lal were fixed at 1/4th share and directions were issued for preparation of a final decree. Subsequently the Kurra reports were prepared but the petitioners had aggrieved with the Kurra reports as they were never given opportunity of hearing and moved an application on 22.06.2015 to go through the Kurra report and also to file his objections. It is stated that his application remained pending and a final order was passed on 30.01.2016 confirming the Kurra report dated 11.02.2015.

6. While passing the final orders, the trial court held that the despite giving several opportunities no objections were filed in the Kurra report and accordingly proceeded to confirm the said report. The petitioners had filed an appeal U/S 331(3) of the Act of 1950 before the Additional Commissioner (Administration), Ayodhya which was rejected by means of order dated 18.07.2025. The Appellate Court had recorded that several opportunities were granted before preparation of kurra but no objections were filed and as the grounds raised by the petitioners in appeal were not taken before the court below he did not think it proper to deal with the said issues and rejected the appeal preferred by the petitioner.

7. It is in the aforesaid circumstances that the petitioner had filed an application for review of the judgment and order dated 18.07.2025 which has been rejected by means of order dated 19.08.2025 holding that the review is not maintainable.

8. With regard to the maintainability of the review application, it has been submitted by learned counsel of petitioners that as per provisions of Section 341 of the U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Act, provisions of Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 had been made expressly applicable to all the proceedings under the U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Act.

9. He has further submitted that as per Rule 339 of U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Rules, provisions of Sections 256, 261, 273, 274, 277 to 282 of the U.P. Tenancy Act, 1939 have been made applicable to the suits and proceedings specified in Section (ii) of the Act and appeal, revision and review arisen therefrom. He has further submitted that the dispute pertaining to partition has also been specifically mentioned in Schedule 2 to the said Act. He further relies upon the provisions of Section 274 of the U.P. Tenancy Act, 1939 to submit that even the Act of 1939 provided for review by the other courts and therefore in any view of the matter there is no doubt that the appellate authority i.e. Additional Commissioner (Administration) had committed manifest error by rejecting the application for review only on account of the fact that such power was not vested in him.

10. Learned Standing Counsel on the other hand has opposed the writ petition but could not dispute the aforesaid facts.

11. I have heard contentions of rival parties and perused the record.

12. The only question which is engaging the contention of this Court is with regard to power of review by the appellate authority under the U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Act. The relevant provisions which are necessary for adjudication of the said case are quoted hereinbelow:-

"341. Application of certain Acts to the proceeding of this Act.

- Unless otherwise expressly provided by or under this Act, the provisions of the Indian Court Fees Act, 1870 (VII of 1870), the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 (V of 1908), and the [Limitation Act, 1963 (XXXVI of 1963)] [Substituted by U.P. Act No. 12 of 1965.], [including Section 5 thereof] [Inserted by U.P. Act No. 37 of 1958.] shall apply to the proceedings under this Act.

"339.(1) Unless otherwise expressly provided by or under the Act the provisions of Sections 256, 261, 273, 274, 277 to 282 of the U.P Tenancy Act, 1939 shall apply to the suits and proceedings specified in Schedule II of the Act and appeals, revisions and reviews arising therefrom.

(2) In respect of the suits or proceedings mentioned in sub-rule (1) the first appeal shall lie within thirty days of the date of the decree or order appealed against and the second appeal, if any, shall lie within ninety days of the date of the decree or order passed by the court of first appeal."

Sec 274 of U.P. Tenancy Act, 1939-

274. Review by other Courts

"Every other Court shall be competent to review its judgment in accordance with the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, and the provisions of Order XLVII of the said Code shall apply to any such review"

13. A reading of the aforesaid statutory provisions indicate that Section 274 specifically provides for the power of review and at the time when U.P.Z. A. & L.R. Act was enacted provisions of U.P. Tenancy Act were repealed but certain provisions of U.P. Tenancy Act were saved by under Rule 339 of U.P.Z. A. & L.R. Rules, 1952 which were expressly made applicable including provisions of Section 274 of the U.P. Tenancy Act, 1939. Apart from which Section 341 had already made Code of Civil Procedure applicable to the proceedings under U.P. Z.A. & L.R. Act."

14. Needless to say that order 47 Rule 1 of the CPC was already made applicable by the U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Act. This aspect of the matter was duly considered by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Hakim Ali Vs. Board of Revenue, 1991 Supp(1) SCC 565, which had observed as under:-

"5. By Section 293 of the Zamindari Abolition Act the provisions of Chapters IX and X of the Land Revenue Act have been made applicable to applications in proceedings under the Zamindari Abolition Act. The said provision which is contained in Chapter X of the Zamindari Abolition Act provides as under:

"293. Provisions of Act 3 of 1901 applied to applications and proceedings under this chapter.? The provisions of Chapters IX and X of the United Provinces Land Revenue Act, 1901, as amended by this Act shall, insofar as they are not inconsistent with the provisions of this Act, apply to applications and proceedings made or taken under this chapter."

6. Section 339, which makes provision for repeals, is as follows:

"339. Repeals.- With effect from the date of vesting in respect of any area-

(a) the enactments mentioned in List I of Schedule III shall be and are hereby repealed in their application to such area;

(b) so much of any other enactments as is inconsistent with the provisions of Chapters VIII to X of this Act shall be deemed and is hereby repealed in its application to such area;

(c) the United Provinces Land Revenue Act, 1901 (U.P. Act 3 of 1901), shall in its application to such area be deemed to be and is hereby amended to the extent mentioned in column 3 of the List II of the Schedule aforesaid:

Provided that where under this Act any interpretation has to be made, action taken or thing done in accordance with the provisions of the United Provinces Tenancy Act, 1939 (U.P. Act 17 of 1939), the same may be made, taken or done as if it has not been repealed by this Act."

9. It is no doubt true that under Section 293 of the Zamindari Abolition Act, the provisions of Chapters IX and X of the Land Revenue Act have been made applicable only to applications and proceedings made or taken under Chapter X of the Zamindari Abolition Act and since Section 203 falls in Chapter IX of the Land Revenue Act, it would not be applicable to proceedings made or taken under provisions other than those contained in Chapter X of the Zamindari Abolition Act. In our view, however, Section 293 cannot be read in isolation. It has to be read along with Section 339. In clause (c) of Section 339 it is prescribed that with effect from the date of vesting in respect of any area, the Land Revenue Act shall, in its application to such area, be deemed to be and is hereby amended to the extent mentioned in column 3 of the List II of Schedule III of the said Act. As a result the provisions of the Land Revenue Act containing the amendments as mentioned in column 3 of List II of Schedule III, would be applicable to the area to which the Act has been made applicable with effect from the date of vesting. Under column 3 of List II of Schedule III certain modifications and amendments have been made in the various provisions of the Land Revenue Act, but no modification has been made in Section 203 of the said Act. This would mean that the provisions of the Land Revenue Act, including Section 203, are applicable to the area in which the Zamindari Abolition Act has been applied with effect from the date of vesting.

11. This distinction based on the difference in terminology used in Sections 293 and 339(c) does not, in our view, advance the case of the appellants. It only indicates that Section 293 is limited in its scope in applying the provisions of Chapters IX and X of the Land Revenue Act to applications and proceedings under Chapter X of the Zamindari Abolition Act whereas Section 339(c) is much wider in amplitude inasmuch as it makes all the provisions of the Land Revenue Act applicable to the area to which the provisions of the Zamindari Abolition Act are applied. The Land Revenue Act contains provisions relating to appointments and jurisdiction of revenue officers, maintenance of maps and records and appointment of Kanungos and Lekhpals for that purpose, revision of maps and records, settlement of the revenue, revision of assessment, partition and union of Mahals, collection of revenue, procedure of Revenue Courts and Revenue Officers, appeals reference and revision, etc. As a result of the application of the provisions of the Land Revenue Act, as amended to the extent mentioned in column 3 of List II of the Schedule to the Zamindari Abolition Act, to the area to which the provisions of the Zamindari Abolition Act are applied, all the various provisions of the Land Revenue Act would be applicable to all the matters dealt with by the Zamindari Abolition Act including applications and proceedings under the said Act. The width and amplitude of the said provision contained in Section 339(c) of the Zamindari Abolition Act cannot, in our opinion, be curtailed by reference to Sections 293 and 341 of the said Act."

15. This Court further finds that the scope of review under the aforesaid provisions was also considered by the

Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Niyaz Ahmad Vs. Board of Revenue, U.P. Allahabd, 1978 LJ (NOC) 25) 11, relevant portion quoted as under:

"16. Therefore, our conclusion is that the provisions of section 341 of U.P. Act 1 of 1951 read with Rule 339 of the U.P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Rules and section 273 of the U.P. Tenancy Act lead to only one inference, namely, that the requirement of law is that the Board should exercise its power of review in conformity with the guidelines furnished by Order 47 of the Code of Civil Procedure."

16. Accordingly, the aforesaid dispute is no longer res integra and there are catena of judgments to indicate that power of review vested in the authorities under the U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Act and therefore, the appellate authority has committed manifest error in dismissing the review application of the petitioner on the ground that the same was not maintainable.

17. In light of the above, the writ petition is allowed. The impugned order dated 19.08.2025 is set aside. The matter is remitted to respondent No. 1 to consider and decide the application for review preferred by the petitioner in accordance with law. He is also directed to decide the same within a period of two months from the date a certified copy of this order is produced before him.

18. It is made clear that this Court has not consider the prayer of the petitioners for setting aside the order dated 18.07.2025 inasmuch as that is. the order the review of which would now be pending before the appellate authority.

ISSUE FOR CONSIDERATION

- (i) Whether the District Judge deciding an election petition under the U. P. Municipalities Act, 1916 is a Court or a tribunal/persona designata; and
- (ii) Whether the delay in filing an Election Petition under the U. P. Municipalities Act, 1916 can be condoned under Section 5 of the Limitation Act.

HEADNOTE

Constitution of India – Art. 226 – U. P. Municipalities Act, 1916 – Ss. 20, 22 & 23 – Limitation Act, 1963 – Ss. 5, 12(2) & 29(2) – Election petition challenging election of Chairperson of Nagar Panchayat – Statutory limitation of 30 days – Application under Section 5 of the Limitation Act for condonation of delay – Preliminary issue of limitation – Question whether District Judge deciding an election petition acts as a Court or persona designata – Applicability of Section 5 of the Limitation Act to election petitions under the Municipalities Act – Effect of express application of Section 12(2) and exclusion of other provisions – Sustainability of orders condoning delay and allowing election petition.

HELD:

Whether the District Judge deciding an election petition is a Court or not. It was held that District Judge, while deciding an election petition, acts as a Court and not as a tribunal or persona designata. Municipalities Act originally provided for filing the election petition before the 'Court', but the word 'Court' was substituted by the phrase 'District Judge'. As per Section 3 of the Bengal, Agra and Assam Civil Courts Act, 1887, the District Judge is a Civil Court. While deciding an election petition, the District Judge has all the powers of a Civil Court. Section 23 of the Municipalities Act provides that while deciding an election petition the District Judge shall follow the procedure provided in the Civil Procedure Code in regard to suits, so far as it is not inconsistent with the Act.

Provisions of Section 5 of the Limitation Act not apply to an election petition filed under Section 20 of the Municipalities Act. The impugned order dated 04.11.2025, passed by the learned Additional District Judge, allowing the application under Section 5 of the Limitation Act unsustainable in law and the same was set aside. Election petition being barred by the limitation period was liable to be dismissed. [Para 23, 29, 39] (E-5)

CASE ARISING FROM

Challenge to the order dated 04.11.2025 passed by the Additional District Judge (F.T.C.-I), Ambedkar Nagar, condoning delay in filing the election petition, and the consequential judgment and order dated 15.11.2025 allowing the election petition relating to the election of Chairperson, Nagar Panchayat.

Advs For Petitioner: J. N. Mathur, Sr. Adv., Mudit Agarwal

Advs For Respondents: C.S.C., Rahul Shukla, Abhishek Mishra, Anurag Kumar Singh, Sajjad Husain, Syed Aftab Ahmad

(Delivered by Hon'ble Subhash Vidyarthi, J.)

1. Heard Sri J. N. Mathur Senior Advocate assisted by Sri Mudit Agarwal Advocate, the learned counsel for the petitioner, Sri Rahul Shukla, the learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel appearing on behalf of the State/opposite parties no.1 and 2, Dr. L. P. Mishra, Sri Syed Aftab Ahmad and Sri Ayush Chaudhary Advocates, the learned counsel for the opposite party no.4 and perused the records.

2. By means of the instant petition filed under Article 226 of the Constitution of India the petitioner has challenged the validity of an order dated 04.11.2025, passed by learned Additional District Judge (F.T.C.-I), Ambedkar Nagar in Election Petition No.4 of 2023, whereby an application under Section 5 of Limitation Act for condonation of delay in filing election petition has been allowed, the delay in filing the election petition has been condoned and the preliminary issue that the election petition was barred by the prescribed period of limitation, has been decided in the negative. Thereafter the election petition itself has been allowed by means of a judgment and order dated 15.11.2025 and the petitioner has challenged the validity of that judgment also.

3. As a purely legal issue is involved in this petition as to whether the delay in filing an Election Petition under the U. P. Municipalities Act, 1916 can be condoned under Section 5 of the Limitation Act, the learned Counsel for the opposite parties stated that they would not file any counter affidavit in the matter and they have opposed the Petition by advancing oral submissions.

4. Briefly stated, facts of the case are that in the elections conducted for the office of Chairman, Nagar Panchayat Ashrafpur Kichhauncha, the petitioner was one of the candidates. The polling was held on 11.05.2023 and result was declared on 13.05.2023, in which the petitioner was declared as the returned candidate and the opposite party no.4 stood at the fourth position.

5. On 18.07.2023 the opposite party no.4 filed an election petition challenging the election of the petitioner. The petitioner filed a written statement in response to the election petition inter alia pleading that the election result was declared on 13.05.2023 in presence of the election petitioner and he did not raise any objection and did not submit any representation alleging any irregularity/illegality committed in the election process. The election petition filed on 18.07.2023 is barred by the period of limitation as Section 20 of the Municipalities Act, 1916 provides that an election petition shall be presented within 30 days after the day on which the result of the election is announced.

6. On 04.09.2025 the petitioner filed an application requesting that the plea that the election petition is time-barred, gives rise to a preliminary issue affecting the maintainability of the petition, which should be framed and decided first.

7. On 22.09.2025, the opposite party no.4/election petitioner filed an application under Section 5 of the Limitation Act, 1963, stating that the result of the election was declared on 13.05.2023, as per section 20 (1) of the U. P. Municipalities Act, 1916, an election petition ought to have been filed within 30 days, there was a vacation in the courts from 01.06.2023 to 30.06.2023, and the election petition could have been submitted on 01.07.2023, but the election petition could not be filed within the prescribed limitation period as the election petitioner got some important information on 30.06.2023, and he got the relevant documents on 01.07.2023. Thereafter, the election petition was filed on 18.07.2023. The petitioner contended that a delay of 17 days had occurred in filing of the election petition, which was neither deliberate nor due to negligence, but it was due to sufficient cause, and he requested for condonation of the delay of 17 days in filing the election petition.

8. The petitioner filed objections against the application under Section 5 of the Limitation Act, stating that the delay in filing the election petition cannot be condoned under Section 5 of the Limitation Act.

9. On 30.10.2025, the learned Additional District and Sessions Judge framed issues in the election petition, and issue number 3 was whether the election petition was barred by limitation.

10. The aforesaid preliminary issue no.3 has been decided by the learned Additional District Judge by means of the impugned order dated 04.11.2025, holding that the election petitioner has stated that there was a delay of 17 days in filing the election petition, which had been admitted on the date of its filing. The learned Additional District Judge has relied upon the judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Improvement Trust, Ludhiana Vs. Ujagar Singh and others: (2010) 6 SCC 786, wherein it has been held that ordinarily, applications seeking condonation of delay under Section 5 of the Limitation Act should be allowed and the matters should be decided on its merits; that the court should not adopt a technical approach, rather, it should adopt a liberal approach while deciding an application under Section 5 of the Limitation Act. However, this case related to condonation of delay in filing a first appeal before the District Judge and the question whether Section 5 of the Limitation Act applies to election petitions, was not involved in this case.

11. Reliance has also been placed upon a decision of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Abdul Ghafoor and Others Vs. State of Bihar: A.I.R. 2012 Supreme Court 640, wherein the Hon'ble Supreme Court has held that the court should not adopt a hyper technical approach, but this matter related to condonation of delay in filing a criminal revision under Section 397 read with Section 401 Cr.P.C. and it also did not involve the question whether Section 5 of the Limitation Act applies to the election petitions.

12. The learned Additional District Judge held that the election petition had been filed with reasonable promptness. Section 151 of the Civil Procedure Code confers inherent powers on the court. Therefore, the learned Additional District Judge chose not to adopt a technical approach and allowed the application under Section 5 of the Limitation Act purportedly, 'in the interest of justice'.

13. Thereafter the petitioner prepared a petition challenging the order dated 04.11.2025 and while the same could be processed by the Registry of this court and be placed before this court for hearing, the petitioner filed an application for adjournment of the election petition due to the aforesaid reason. However, the trial court passed an order stating that the petitioner (respondent in the election petition) may advance submissions and further added that he declined to advance submissions.

14. On 15.11.2025, the petitioner again sought adjournment for 10 days, but this request was declined by the trial court and a judgment and order was passed allowing the election petition.

15. Assailing the validity of the impugned order dated 04.11.2025, Sri J. N. Mathur Senior Advocate has submitted that the provisions of Section 5 of the Limitation Act do not apply to an election petition filed under Section 20 Municipalities Act 1916. The learned counsel for the petitioner has relied upon the judgments in the cases of K.V. Rao Vs. B.N. Reddi: 1968 SCC OnLine SC 285, Hukumdev Narain Yadav Vs. Lalit Narain Mishra: (1974) 2 SCC 133, Hari Shanker Tripathi Vs. Shiv Harish: (1976) 1 SCC 897, Lachhman Das Arora Vs. Ganeshi Lal: (1999) 8 SCC 532, Suman Devi Vs. Manisha Devi: (2018) 9 SCC 808, Maneka Sanjay Gandhi Vs. Rambhual Nishad: 2024 SCC OnLine All 4203, Sharda Devi Dinesh Chaudhary Vs. State of U.P.: (2012) SCC OnLine All 4160, Jay Prakash and another Vs. Anjula Singh Mathur and another: 2024 (3) All LJ 794, Mahendra Vs. State of U.P. and others: (2021) 4 AWC 4008 and Heera Devi Vs. Additional District Judge and others: (2011) Law Suit (All) 63.

16. Relying upon the judgment in the case of Consolidated Engineering Enterprises Vs. Principal Secretary Irrigation Department and Others: (2008) 7 SCC 169, wherein it was held that Section 3 and section 29(2) of the Limitation Act do not apply to tribunals, but the same apply to courts, Dr. L.P. Mishra, has submitted that while deciding the election petition, the learned Additional District Judge was acting as a Court and the provisions of Section 5 of the Limitation Act would apply to the election petition filed before a Court.

17. As per Dr. Mishra, as the U.P. Municipalities Act is a special law and it provides 30 days limitation period for filing an election petition, the provisions contained in Sections 4 to 24, including Section 5 of the Limitation Act, shall apply, as it is not expressly excluded by any provision of the Municipalities Act.

18. Dr. L. P. Mishra has invited attention of this Court to the provision contained in Article 243-Z G (b) of the Constitution of India, which reads as follows: -

243ZG. Bar to interference by courts in electoral matters

Notwithstanding anything in this Constitution,--

(b) no election to any Municipality shall be called in question except by an election petition presented to such authority and in such manner as is provided for by or under any law made by the Legislature of a State."

He has submitted that Article 243 ZG (b) uses the word 'authority' and not 'tribunal' and, therefore, the learned Additional District Judge while deciding the election petition is acting as an authority. He has submitted that the word 'authority' includes within its ambit courts, tribunals, and prescribed authorities.

19. Chapter XIV-A of the Constitution of India deals with Tribunals. It has only two Articles - Articles 323-A and 323-B, which read as follows: -

"323-A. Administrative Tribunals. - (1) Parliament may, by law, provide for the adjudication or trial by administrative tribunals of disputes and complaints with respect to recruitment and conditions of service of persons appointed to public services and posts in connection with the affairs of the Union or of any State or of any local or other authority within the territory of India or under the control of the Government of India or of any corporation owned or controlled by the Government.

(2) A law made under clause (1) may-

(a) provide for the establishment of an administrative tribunal for the Union and a separate administrative tribunal for each State or for two or more States;

(b) specify the jurisdiction, powers (including the power to punish for contempt) and authority which may be exercised by each of the said tribunals;

(c) provide for the procedure (including provisions as to limitation and rules of evidence) to be followed by the said tribunals;

(d) exclude the jurisdiction of all courts, except the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court under Article 136, with respect to the disputes or complaints referred to in clause (1);

(e) provide for the transfer to each such administrative tribunal of any cases pending before any court or other authority immediately before the establishment of such tribunal as would have been within the jurisdiction of such tribunal if the causes of action on which such suits or proceedings are based had arisen after such establishment;

(f) repeal or amend any order made by the President under clause (3) of Article 371-D;

(g) contain such supplemental, incidental and consequential provisions (including provisions as to fees) as Parliament may deem necessary for the effective functioning of, and for the speedy disposal of cases by, and the enforcement of the orders of, such tribunals.

(3) The provisions of this article shall have effect notwithstanding anything in any other provision of this Constitution or in any other law for the time being in force.

323-B. Tribunals for other matters.-(1) The appropriate Legislature may, by law, provide for the adjudication or trial by tribunals of any disputes, complaints, or offences with respect to all or any of the matters specified in clause (2) with respect to which such Legislature has power to make laws.

(2) The matters referred to in clause (1) are the following, namely:-

(a) levy, assessment, collection and enforcement of any tax;

(b) foreign exchange, import and export across customs frontiers;

(c) industrial and labour disputes;

(d) land reforms by way of acquisition by the State of any estate as defined in Article 31-A or of any rights therein or the extinguishment or modification of any such rights or by way of ceiling on agricultural land or in any other way;

(e) ceiling on urban property;

(f) elections to either House of Parliament or the House or either House of the Legislature of a State, but excluding the matters referred to in Article 329 and Article 329-A;

(g) production, procurement, supply and distribution of foodstuffs (including edible oilseeds and oils) and such other goods as the President may, by public notification, declare to be essential goods for the purpose of this article and control of prices of such goods;

(h) rent, its regulation and control and tenancy issues including the right, title and interest of landlords and tenants;

(i) offences against laws with respect to any of the matters specified in sub-clauses (a) to (h) and fees in respect of any of those matters;

(j) any matter incidental to any of the matters specified in sub-clauses (a) to (i).

(3) A law made under clause (1) may-

(a) provide for the establishment of a hierarchy of tribunals;

(b) specify the jurisdiction, powers (including the power to punish for contempt) and authority which may be exercised by each of the said tribunals;

(c) provide for the procedure (including provisions as to limitation and rules of evidence) to be followed by the said tribunals;

(d) exclude the jurisdiction of all courts except the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court under Article 136, with respect to all or any of the matters falling within the jurisdiction of the said tribunals;

(e) provide for the transfer to each such tribunal of any cases pending before any court or any other authority immediately before the establishment of such tribunal as would have been within the jurisdiction of such tribunal if the causes of action on which such suits or proceedings are based had arisen after such establishment;

(f) contain such supplemental, incidental and consequential provisions (including provisions as to fees) as the appropriate Legislature may deem necessary for the effective functioning of, and for the speedy disposal of cases by, and the enforcement of the orders of, such tribunals.

(4) The provisions of this article shall have effect notwithstanding anything in any other provision of this Constitution or in any other law for the time being in force.

Explanation.-In this article, "appropriate Legislature", in relation to any matter, means Parliament or, as the case may be, a State Legislature competent to make laws with respect to such matter in accordance with the provisions of Part XI."

He has submitted that Article 323-B deals with establishment of Tribunals by legislation. The District Judge deciding an election petition is not mentioned as a tribunal in Article 323B and, therefore, it is not a Tribunal and it is a Court.

20. Dr. Mishra has also submitted that although Section 23 of the Municipalities Act provides that procedure provided in the Civil Procedure Code in regard to suits shall, so far as it is not inconsistent with the Municipalities Act or any Rule and so far as it can be made applicable, be followed in the hearing of the hearing of election petitions, but it does not provide that an election petition shall be treated as a suit.

21. Dr. L. P. Mishra has also submitted that after passing of the judgment dated 15.11.2025, the District Magistrate, Ambedkar Nagar has issued an office order dated 19.11.2025 stating that consequent to the Election Petition having been allowed, office of Chairman, Nagar Panchayat Ashrafpur has become vacant, and he has appointed the Additional SDM, Akbarpur, as administrator of the Nagar Panchayat.

22. Dr. Mishra has drawn attention of the Court to Section 3 of the Bengal, Agra and Assam Civil Courts Act, 1887, which provides that there shall be the following classes of civil courts under the Act, namely:

- (1) The Court of the District Judge;
- (2) The Court of the Additional Judge;
- (3) The Court of the Subordinate Judge; and
- (4) The Court of the Munsif.

23. Firstly I proceed to examine whether the District Judge deciding an election petition is a Court or not. For doing so, it would be appropriate to have a look at the relevant parts of Sections 20, 22 and 23 of the U. P. Municipalities Act, 1916, which provide as follows: -

"20. Form and presentation of election petitions. - (1) An election petition shall be presented within 30 days after the day of which the result of the election sought to be questioned is announced by the Returning Officer, and shall specify the ground or grounds on which the election of the respondent is questioned and shall contain a concise statement of the material facts on which the petitioner relies and set for the full particulars of any corrupt practices that the petitioner alleges, including as full a statement as possible of the names of the parties alleged to have committed such corrupt practices and the dates and place of the commission of each such practice.

- (5) The petition shall be presented to the District Judge exercising jurisdiction in the area in which the municipality, to which the election petition relates, is situate:

22. Hearing of election petition. - (1) An election petition not complying with the provisions of Section 20 or upon which the requisite court-fee has not been paid at the time of presentation or with in such further time not exceeding fourteen days as the District Judge, as the case may be, may have granted, shall be rejected by such Judge.

(2) An election petition not rejected under sub-section (1) shall be heard by the District Judge.

23. Procedure.- Except so far as may be otherwise provided by this Act or by rule, the procedure provided in the Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908) in regard to suits, shall, so far as it is not inconsistent with this Act or any rule and so far it can be made applicable, be followed in the hearing of election petitions: Provided that, -

* * *

Provided that in computing the period of limitation the provision of sub-section (2) of Section 12 of the Limitation Act, 1963 shall apply."

(Emphasis added)

24. It is relevant to note that the Municipalities Act originally provided for filing the election petition before the 'Court', but the word 'Court' was substituted by the phrase 'District Judge' by U.P. Act No. 17 of 1982.

25. In Mukri Gopalan v. Cheppilat Puthanpurayil Aboobacker: (1995) 5 SCC 5, the appellate authority constituted under Section 18 of the Kerala Buildings (Lease and Rent Control) Act, 1965 had dismissed the appeal as barred by time and it took the view that being not a court but a persona designata it has no power to condone the delay in filing appeal by invoking the provisions contained in Section 5 of the Limitation Act, 1963. Section 18 of the Kerala Buildings (Lease and Rent Control) Act, 1965 provides as follows: -

"18. Appeal.- (1)(a) The Government may, by general or special order notified in the Gazette, confer on such officers and authorities not below the rank of a Subordinate Judge the powers of appellate authorities for the purposes of this Act in such areas or in such classes of cases as may be specified in the order.

(b) Any person aggrieved by an order passed by the Rent Control Court may, within thirty days from the date of such order, prefer an appeal in writing to the appellate authority having jurisdiction. In computing the thirty days aforesaid, the time taken to obtain a certified copy of the order appealed against shall be excluded.

(2) On such appeal being preferred, the appellate authority may order stay of further proceedings in the matter pending decision on the appeal.

(3) The appellate authority shall send for the records of the case from the Rent Control Court and after giving the parties an opportunity of being heard and, if necessary, after making such further inquiry as it thinks fit either directly or through the Rent Control Court, shall decide the appeal.

Explanation.- The appellate authority may, while confirming the order of eviction passed by the Rent Control Court, grant an extension of time to the tenant for putting the landlord in possession of the building.

(4) The appellate authority shall have all the powers of the Rent Control Court including the fixing of arrears of rent.

(5) The decision of the appellate authority, and subject to such decision, an order of the Rent Control Court shall be final and shall not be liable to be called in question in any court of law, except as provided in Section 20. "

The Government of Kerala in exercise of its power under Section 18(1) has issued a notification conferring on District Judges the powers of appellate authority for the purpose of Kerala Rent Act. The appellate authority, namely the District Judge, took the view that since he was a persona designata, he could not resort to Section 5 of the Limitation Act for condoning the delay in filing appeal before him. The question before the Hon'ble Supreme Court was whether the District Judge was a persona designata or a Court. The Hon'ble Supreme Court referred to various precedents on the point and held that: -

"...It is now well settled that an authority can be styled to be persona designata if powers are conferred on a named person or authority and such powers cannot be exercised by anyone else. The scheme of the Act to which we have referred earlier contraindicates such appellate authority to be a persona designata. It is clear that the appellate authority constituted under Section 18(1) has to decide lis between parties in a judicial manner and subject to the revision of its order, the decision would remain final between the parties. Such an authority is constituted by designation as the District Judge of the district having jurisdiction over the area over which the said Act has been extended. It becomes obvious that even though the District Judge concerned might retire or get transferred or may otherwise cease to hold the office of the District Judge his successor-in-office can pick up the thread of the proceedings from the stage where it was left by his predecessor and can function as an appellate authority under Section 18. If the District Judge was constituted as an appellate authority being a persona designata or as a named person being the appellate authority as assumed in the present case, such a consequence, on the scheme of the Act would not follow. In this connection, it is useful to refer to a decision of this Court in the case of Central Talkies Ltd. v. Dwarka Prasad [AIR 1961 SC 606] . In that case Hidayatullah, J. speaking for the Court had to consider whether Additional District Magistrate empowered under Section 10(2) of Criminal Procedure Code to exercise powers of District Magistrate was a persona designata. Repelling the contention that he was a persona designata the learned Judge made the following pertinent observations:

"...A persona designata is 'a person who is pointed out or described as an individual, as opposed to a person ascertained as a member of a class, or as filling a particular character'. (See Osborn's Concise Law Dictionary, 4th Edn., p. 253). In the words of Schwabe, C.J. in Parthasaradhi Naidu v. Koteswara Rao [AIR 1924 Mad 561 (FB)] , personae designatae are persons selected to act in their private capacity and not in their capacity as Judges'. The same consideration applies also to a well-known officer like the District Magistrate named by virtue of his office, and whose powers the Additional District Magistrate can also exercise and who can create other officers equal to himself for the purposes of the Eviction Act. The decision of Sapru, J. in the Allahabad case, with respect, was erroneous."

Applying the said test to the facts of the present case it becomes obvious that appellate authorities as constituted under Section 18 of the Rent Act being the District Judges they constituted a class and cannot be considered to be persona designata..."

The Hon'ble Supreme Court further held that: -

"8. Once it is held that the appellate authority functioning under Section 18 of the Rent Act is not a persona designata, it becomes obvious that it functions as a court. In the present case all the District Judges having jurisdiction over the areas within which the provisions of the Rent Act have been extended are constituted as appellate authorities under Section 18 by the Government notification noted earlier. These District Judges have been conferred the powers of the appellate authorities. It becomes therefore, obvious that while adjudicating upon the dispute between the landlord and tenant and while deciding the question whether the Rent Control Court's order is justified or not such appellate authorities would be functioning as courts. The test for determining whether the authority is functioning as a court or not has been laid down by a series of decisions of this Court. We may refer to one of them, in the case of Thakur Jugul Kishore Sinha v. Sitamarhi Central Coop. Bank Ltd. [AIR 1967 SC 1494] In that case this Court was concerned with the question whether the Assistant Registrar of Cooperative Societies functioning under Section 48 of the Bihar and Orissa Cooperative Societies Act, 1935 was a court subordinate to the High Court for the purpose of Contempt of Courts Act, 1952. While answering the question in the affirmative, a Division Bench of this Court speaking through Mitter, J. placed reliance amongst others on the observations found in the case of Brajnandan Sinha v. Jyoti Narain [AIR 1956 SC 66] wherein it was observed as under:

"It is clear, therefore, that in order to constitute a court in the strict sense of the term, an essential condition is that the court should have, apart from having some of the trappings of a judicial tribunal, power to give a decision or a definitive judgment which has finality and authoritativeness which are the essential tests of a judicial pronouncement."

Reliance was also placed on another decision of this court in the case of Virindar Kumar Satyawadi v. State of Punjab [(1955) 2 SCR 1013 : AIR 1956 SC 153] . Following observations found (at SCR p. 1018) therein were pressed in service:

"It may be stated broadly that what distinguishes a court from a quasi-judicial tribunal is that it is charged with a duty to decide disputes in a judicial manner and declares the rights of parties in a definitive judgment. To decide in a judicial manner involves that the parties are entitled as a matter of right to be heard in support of their claim and to adduce evidence in proof of it. And it also imports an obligation on the part of the authority to decide the matter on a consideration of the evidence adduced and in accordance with law. When a question therefore arises as to whether an authority created by an Act is a court as distinguished from a quasi-judicial tribunal, what has to be decided is whether having regard to the provisions of the Act it possesses all the attributes of a court."

When the aforesaid well settled tests for deciding whether an authority is a court or not are applied to the powers and functions of the appellate authority constituted under Section 18 of the Rent Act, it becomes obvious that all the aforesaid essential trappings to constitute such an authority as a court are found to be present. In fact, Mr Nariman, learned counsel for respondent also fairly stated that these appellate authorities would be courts and would not be persona designata. But in his submission as they are not civil courts constituted and functioning under the Civil Procedure Code as such, they are outside the sweep of Section 29(2) of the Limitation Act. It is therefore, necessary for us to turn to the aforesaid provision of the Limitation Act. It reads as under:

"29. (2) Where any special or local law prescribes for any suit, appeal or application a period of limitation different from the period prescribed by the Schedule, the provisions of Section 3 shall apply as if such period were the period prescribed by the Schedule and for the purpose of determining any period of limitation prescribed for any suit, appeal or application by any special or local law, the provisions contained in Sections 4 to 24 (inclusive) shall apply only insofar as, and to the extent to which, they are not expressly excluded by such special or local law."

A mere look at the aforesaid provision shows for its applicability to the facts of a given case and for importing the machinery of the provisions containing Sections 4 to 24 of the Limitation Act the following two requirements have to be satisfied by the authority invoking the said provision.

(i) There must be a provision for period of limitation under any special or local law in connection with any suit, appeal or application.

(ii) The said prescription of period of limitation under such special or local law should be different from the period prescribed by the Schedule to the Limitation Act.

9. If the aforesaid two requirements are satisfied the consequences contemplated by Section 29(2) would automatically follow. These consequences are as under:

(i) In such a case Section 3 of the Limitation Act would apply as if the period prescribed by the special or local law was the period prescribed by the Schedule.

(ii) For determining any period of limitation prescribed by such special or local law for a suit, appeal or application all the provisions containing Sections 4 to 24 (inclusive) would apply insofar as and to the extent to which they are not expressly excluded by such special or local law."

26. Mukri Gopalan (Supra) has been overruled on the point of applicability of the Limitation Act to Tribunals in Consolidated Engineering Enterprises Vs. Principal Secretary Irrigation Department and Others: (2008) 7 SCC 169, but the ratio laid down in this case regarding the difference in Courts and persona designata still holds the field.

27. In LIC v. Nandini J. Shah: (2018) 15 SCC 356, the seminal question was whether the order passed by the City Civil Court in exercise of power under Section 9 of the Public Premises (Eviction of Unauthorised Occupants) Act, 1971, as an Appellate Officer, is in the capacity of a civil court or persona designata? The Hon'ble Supreme Court noted that Sub-section (1) of Section 9 postulates that an appeal shall lie from every order of the Estate Officer, passed under the Act, to an Appellate Officer. The District Judge of the district in which the public premises are situated or such other judicial officer in that district of not less than 10 years' standing as the District Judge is to be designated for that purpose. The Hon'ble Supreme Court held that: -

"35. ...The first part of the provision does suggest that the appeal shall lie to an Appellate Officer, however, it does not follow therefrom that the Appellate Officer is persona designata. Something more is required to hold so. Had it been a case of designating a person by name as an Appellate Officer, the concomitant would be entirely different. However, when the Appellate Officer is either the District Judge of the district or any another judicial officer in that district possessing necessary qualification who could be designated by the District Judge, the question of such investiture of power of an appellate authority in the District Judge or Designated Judge would by no standards acquire the colour or for that matter trappings of persona designata. In the first place, the power to be exercised by the Appellate Officer in terms of Section 9 is a judicial power of the State which is quite distinct from the executive power of the State. Secondly, the District Judge or designated judicial officer exercises judicial authority within his jurisdiction. Thirdly, as the Act predicates the Appellate Officer is to be a District Judge or judicial officer, it is indicative of the fact of a pre-existing authority exercising judicial power of the State. Fourthly, the District Judge is the creature of Section 5 of the Maharashtra Civil Courts Act, 1869, who presides over a District Court invariably consisting of more than one Judge in the district concerned. The District Court exercises original and appellate jurisdiction by virtue of Sections 7 and 8 respectively, of the 1869 Act and is the principal court of original civil jurisdiction in the district within the meaning of CPC, as per Section 7 of that Act. As per Section 8 of the Act of 1869, the District Court is the court of appeal from all decrees and orders passed by the subordinate courts from which an appeal lies under any law for the time being in force.

37. On the similar lines, the Bombay City Civil Court has been constituted under Section 3 of the Bombay City Civil Court Act, 1948, with jurisdiction to receive, try and dispose of all suits and other proceedings of a civil nature arising within Greater Bombay except a suit or proceedings which are cognizable by the High Court referred to therein and by the Small Cause Court. Section 7 of this Act envisages that when the City Civil Court consists of more than one Judge, each of the Judges may exercise all or any of the powers conferred on the court by the said Act or any other law for the time being in force. Clause (b) of Section 7 stipulates that the State Government may appoint any one of the Judges to be the Principal Judge and any two other Judges to be called the Additional Principal Judges. The Principal Judge has been given authority to make such arrangements as he may think fit for the distribution of the business of the Court among the various Judges thereof. In other words, the District Judge or the Principal Judge exercises judicial power of the State and is an authority having its own hierarchy of superior and inferior courts, the law of procedure according to which it would dispose of matters coming before it depending on its nature and jurisdiction exercised by it, acting in judicial manner. The District Judge or Principal Judge of the City Civil Court is the officer presiding over the court and derives his description from the nomenclature of the court. Even if the District Judge/Principal Judge of the City Civil Court might retire or get transferred, his successor-in-office can pick up the thread of the proceedings under Section 9 of the 1971 Act from the stage where it was left by his predecessor and can function as an appellate authority. The District Judge/Principal Judge of the City Civil Court and other judicial officers of these courts possessing necessary qualifications constitute a class and cannot be considered as persona designata. The Appellate Officer, therefore, has to function as a court and his decision is final in terms of Section 10 of the 1971 Act. The legislative intent behind providing an appeal under Section 9 before the Appellate Officer to be the District Judge of the District Court concerned in which the public premises are situated or such other judicial officer in that district possessing necessary qualification to be designated by the District Judge for that purpose, is indicative of the fact that the power to be exercised by the Appellate Officer is not in his capacity as persona designata but as a judicial officer of the pre-existing court.

47. Notably, the expression "Appellate Officer" has not been defined in the 1971 Act, unlike the definition of "Estate Officer" contained in Section 2(b) of that Act. The Appellate Officer cannot be considered as a statutory authority, as defined in the dictionary clause in Section 2(fa) of the 1971 Act. In Thakur Das [Thakur Das v. State of M.P., (1978) 1 SCC 27], in para 9, while analysing the cleavage of opinion of the High Courts, it is noticed that the expression "judicial authority" would comprehend the Additional Sessions Judge or the Sessions Judge could transfer such appeal pending before him to the Additional Sessions Judge which was a pointer to the fact that he was not a persona designata. Even in respect of the appeal under Section 9 of the 1971 Act, the Principal Judge of the City Civil Court or District Judge is competent to hear the appeal himself or designate some other judicial officer within his jurisdiction possessing requisite qualification. It will be useful to advert to Section 7 of the City Civil Courts Act and Sections 3, 5 and 7 of the Maharashtra Civil Courts Act. It is implicit in Section 9 read with the provisions of the Acts constituting the District Judiciary that the head of the district judiciary is the District Judge or Principal Judge of the City Civil Court and Section 9 of the 1971 Act makes it explicit, by investing authority in the District Judge or Principal Judge of the City Civil Court, to designate any other judicial officer within his jurisdiction possessing essential qualifications, to hear such appeals. This is a clear departure from the appointment of a District Judge as a persona designata. The Additional District Judge or judicial officer possessing essential qualification, therefore, is not an inferior Appellate Officer within the meaning of Section 9 of the 1971 Act. In our opinion, there is enough indication in Section 9 of the 1971 Act to spell out the legislative intent that the remedy of appeal before the Appellate Officer is not before a persona designata but a pre-existing judicial authority in the district concerned.

58. In other words, the Appellate Officer while exercising power under Section 9 of the 1971 Act, does not act as a persona designata but in his capacity as a pre-existing judicial authority in the district (being a District Judge or judicial officer possessing essential qualification designated by the District Judge). Being part of the district judiciary, the judge acts as a court and the order passed by him will be an order of the subordinate court against which remedy under Article 227 of the Constitution of India can be availed on the matters delineated for exercise of such jurisdiction."

28. The Municipalities Act originally provided for filing the election petition before the 'Court', but the word 'Court' was substituted by the phrase 'District Judge' by U.P. Act No. 17 of 1982. As per Section 3 of the Bengal, Agra and Assam Civil Courts Act, 1887, the District Judge is a Civil Court. While deciding an election petition, the District Judge has all the powers of a Civil Court. Section 23 of the Municipalities Act provides that while deciding an election petition the District Judge shall follow the procedure provided in the Civil Procedure Code in regard to suits, so far as it is not inconsistent with the Municipalities Act or any rule and so far as it can be made applicable, be followed in the hearing of election petitions. There is no reason justifying to hold that while deciding an election petition, the District Judge does not act as a Court and it acts as a tribunal or a persona designata.

29. In view of the foregoing discussion, I am of the considered view that while deciding an election petition, the District Judge acts as a 'Court'.

30. The second question to be decided is whether the provisions of Section 5 of the Limitation Act would apply to the election petitions in view of the provision contained in Section 29 (2) of the Limitation Act, which provides as follows:

(2). Where any special or local law prescribes for any suit, appeal or application a period of limitation different from the period prescribed by the Schedule, the provisions of section 3 shall apply as if such period were the period prescribed by the Schedule and for the purpose of determining any period of limitation prescribed for any suit, appeal or application by any special or local law, the provisions contained in sections 4 to 24 (inclusive) shall apply only in so far as, and to the extent to which, they are not expressly excluded by such special or local law."

31. Dr. L. P. Mishra has submitted that an election petition filed under the Municipalities Act is not a suit and it is termed as a petition, which would fall in the category of applications. He has submitted that as the District Judge deciding an election petition acts as a court, as per Section 29 (2) of the Limitation Act, the provisions of Section 5 would apply to the election petition filed before it.

32. Although an election petition is not a suit, Section 23 of the Municipalities Act provides that except so far as may be otherwise provided by the Act or by any rule, the procedure provided in the Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908) in regard to suits, shall, so far as it is not inconsistent with this Act or any rule and so far it can be made applicable, be followed in the hearing of election petitions. The Proviso appended to Section 23 of the Municipalities Act specifically provides that the provisions of sub-section (2) of Section 12 of the Limitation Act shall apply in computing the period of limitation.

33. In K.V. Rao v. B.N. Reddi: 1968 SCC OnLine SC 285, while dealing with the issue of condonation of delay in filing an election petition under the Representation of the People Act, 1951, Hon'ble Supreme Court held that: -

"12. It is well settled that amendments to a petition in a civil proceeding and the addition of parties to such a proceeding are generally possible subject to the law of limitation. But an election petition stands on a different footing. The trial of such a petition and the powers of the court in respect thereof are all circumscribed by the Act. The Indian Limitation Act of 1963 is an Act to consolidate and amend the law of limitation of suits and other proceedings and for purposes connected therewith. The provisions of this Act will apply to all civil proceedings and some special criminal proceedings which can be taken in a court of law unless the application thereof has been excluded by any enactment : the extent of such application is governed by Section 29(2) of the Limitation Act. In our opinion however the Limitation Act cannot apply to proceedings like an election petition inasmuch as the Representation of the People Act is a complete and self-contained code which does not admit of the introduction of the principles or the provisions of law contained in the Indian Limitation Act."

34. In Hukumdev Narain Yadav v. Lalit Narain Mishra: (1974) 2 SCC 133, the Hon'ble Supreme Court was again dealing with the issue of condonation of delay in filing an election petition under the Representation of the People Act, 1951 and it held that "the provisions of Section 5 of the Limitation Act do not govern the filing of election petitions or their trial and in this view, it is unnecessary to consider whether there are any merits in the application for condonation of delay."

35. In Lachhman Das Arora v. Ganeshi Lal: (1999) 8 SCC 532, the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that: -

"7....No period for filing of an election petition is prescribed under the Indian Limitation Act. The Act insofar as it relates to presentation and trial of election disputes is a complete code and a special law. The scheme of the special law shows that the provisions of Sections 4 to 24 of the Indian Limitation Act do not apply. If an election petition is not filed within the prescribed period of forty-five days, Section 86(1) of the Act, which provides that the High Court shall dismiss an election petition which does not comply with the provisions of Section 81 or Section 82 or Section 117, is straightaway attracted."

36. All the aforesaid judgments have been followed by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Suman Devi v. Manisha Devi: (2018) 9 SCC 808 and by a coordinate Bench of this Court in Maneka Sanjay Gandhi v. Rambhual Nishad: 2024 SCC OnLine All 4203. As the aforesaid judgments deal with condonation of delay in filing election petitions under the Representation of the People Act, 1951, but the relevant provisions contained in the Representation of the People Act, 1951 are similar to those contained in the Municipalities Act. Therefore, the principle of law that the provisions contained in Section 5 of the Limitation Act would not apply to the election petitions filed under the Representation of the People Act, will also apply to the election petitions filed under the Municipalities Act, 1916.

37. The aforesaid view is fortified by the fact that the proviso appended to Section 23 (2) of the Municipalities Act provides that the provision contained in Section 12 (2) of the Limitation Act would apply to the election petitions filed under this Act. When the legislature has specifically provided for application of a particular provision of the Limitation Act and has not made the other provisions applicable to it, Section 5 of the Limitation Act would not apply to the election petitions filed under the Municipalities Act.

38. Although an election petition filed under Section 20 of the Municipalities Act is not a suit, it is an original proceeding which has to be decided in the manner provided for decision of suits. Section 5 of the Limitation Act does not apply to suits. For this reason also, Section 5 of the Limitation Act would not apply to filing of election petitions under the Municipalities Act, 1916.

39. In view of the foregoing discussion, I am of the considered view that the provisions of Section 5 of the Limitation Act would not apply to an election petition filed under Section 20 of the Municipalities Act. The impugned order dated 04.11.2025, passed by the learned Additional District Judge, allowing the application under Section 5 of the Limitation Act is unsustainable in law and the same is set aside. The judgment and order dated 15.11.2025 allowing the election petition is also unsustainable in law as being barred by the limitation period; the election petition was liable to be dismissed.

40. Accordingly, the petition is allowed. The impugned order dated 04.11.2025, passed by learned Additional District Judge (F.T.C.-I), Ambedkar Nagar in Election Petition No.4 of 2023 is set aside. Consequently the judgment and order dated 15.11.2025 passed in the aforesaid case is also set aside and the election petition is dismissed. All necessary consequences shall follow. It goes without saying that the office order dated 19.11.2025 issued by the District Magistrate, Ambedkar Nagar, appointing an administrator as the office of the Chairman, Nagar Panchayat, had fallen vacant consequent to the election petition being allowed, would ipso facto stand nullified consequent to the dismissal of the election petition and consequently the petitioner shall be entitled to continue as Chairperson of Nagar Panchayat concerned.

ISSUE FOR CONSIDERATION

- (i) Whether, in proceedings under Section 47-A of the Indian Stamp Act, 1899, it is incumbent upon the Collector to inspect the property after due notice to the parties to the instrument in terms of Rule 7(3)(c) of the U.P. Stamp (Valuation of Property) Rules, 1997; and
- (ii) Whether any inspection report not conducted in accordance with Rule 7(3)(c) of the Rules of 1997 could validly form the basis of an order for recovery of alleged deficient stamp duty.

HEADNOTE

Constitution of India, Art. 226 – Indian Stamp Act, 1899, Ss. 47-A, 33 & 56(1) – U.P. Stamp (Valuation of Property) Rules, 1997, R. 7(3)(c) – Determination of market value – Deficiency of stamp duty – Mandatory requirement of inspection after due notice – Ex parte spot inspection report – Reliance on Naib-Tehsildar/Sub-Registrar report – Burden of proof on State – Comparable sale – Potentiality and nature of land to be assessed on date of execution of instrument – Future use or presumed commercial potential – Irrelevant considerations – “Reason to believe” – Subjective satisfaction of Collector to be founded on material – Recovery of registration fee – No statutory power under Stamp Act

HELD:

The value of the land, in so far as it relates to the Indian Stamp Act, 1899, can be determined only with reference to the date on which the document was executed and any subsequent change in the nature or use of the land which may result in the enhancement of the market value of the property cannot be taken into account. The market value of the land is not liable to be determined with reference to the use to which a buyer intends to put it in future, and the market value of the property is to be determined with reference to its character on the date of execution of the instrument. The potential of the land is to be assessed on the date of execution of the instrument itself, and the nature of use is relatable to the date of purchase which is relevant for the purpose of computing the stamp duty. Where, however, the potential of the land can be assessed on the date of execution of the instrument itself by referring to exemplar or comparable sale instances it may be relevant and germane to determine the true market value.

The Indian Stamp Act, 1899 does not provide Collector to order recovery of any deficiency in the payment of registration fee and, in the absence of statutory provision, the Collector could not pass any order for recovery of deficiency of registration fee in proceedings under the Stamp Act.

The registering officer, after registration of the document, can refer the same for adjudication before the Collector if the subject matter of the instrument is found prima facie undervalued and there are reasons to believe that the same has been done deliberately; the expression reason to believe is not synonymous with the subjective satisfaction of the officer and the satisfaction must be based on objective satisfaction arrived at reasonably and on material available on record; enquiry by the Registering Authority is a pre-condition for making reference to the Collector.

The report of the Registrar/Up-Mahanirikshak Nibandhan is only for the purposes of initiation of proceedings under Section 47-A of the Act and cannot be read as evidence, and the burden to prove that the market value of the property has not correctly been disclosed in the instrument is on the department, which must be supported by exemplars or comparable sale deed of any property in the vicinity.

In the present case, no notice was served to the petitioner as contemplated under Rule 7(3) of the U.P. Stamp (Valuation of Property) Rules, 1997 before carrying out the inspection, and the Collector passed the impugned order determining deficiency in stamp duty merely relying upon the report submitted by the Naib-Tehsildar without any basis or proof, without considering any oral or documentary evidence. The impugned orders do not refer to any document nor any documentary evidence in the form of comparable sale deed of any property in the vicinity of the subject matter of the instrument to indicate that the value of the property comprised in the instrument was higher than disclosed in the sale-deed, and no other material was brought on record to show that the subject matter of instrument is commercial in nature. Impugned orders were set aside and a writ of mandamus was issued to refund the amount deposited, with simple interest at the rate of 6 per cent per annum in case of default. The matter was not remanded, as valuation under the Stamp Act can be determined only with reference to the date on which the document was executed and any subsequent inspection would be of no use under law for determination of stamp duty on the date of execution of the sale deed.(Paras 34, 41-43, 48, 35-36, 32, 30-31, 47, 50-54) (E-5)

 Advs For Respondents: C.S.C.; Abhishek Kumar Pandey; Suresh Chandra Kushwaha; Mohd. Kasim

(Delivered by Hon'ble Syed Qamar Hasan Rizvi, J.)

1. Shri Surya Prakash & Shri Arsh Bugga, learned counsels for petitioner; Shri Abhishek Kumar Pandey, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel along with Shri Suresh Chandra Kushwaha and Shri Mohd. Kasim, learned Standing Counsels for the State, are present.

2. By means of the present writ petition, the petitioner has assailed the order dated 04.02.2016 passed by the Collector, Barabanki in Case No. D20140412001297 under Section 47A / 33 of the Indian Stamp Act, 1899 and the order dated 24.05.2017 passed by the Deputy Commissioner, Faizabad Division, Faizabad in Case No. C2016040000510, under Section 56(1) of the Indian Stamp Act, 1899, inter alia, praying for the following reliefs:

"(i). Issue any writ, order or direction in the nature of certiorari for quashing of the impugned orders dated 04.02.2016 & 24.05.2017 contained as annexure no.1 & 2 to this petition.

(ii). Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus commanding the opposite parties to refund the deposited amount along with interest in pursuance of the impugned orders.

(iii). Issue such other order or direction which this Hon'ble Court may deem just and proper of the case."

4. The relevant facts of the case, in brief, as have culled out from the pleadings available on record are that the petitioner purchased half portion of the plot of land having Gata No. 2311 measuring half (1/2) of the area 0.349 Hectare from one, Sri. Maneesh Kumar, on 24.06.2013. The boundary of plot no. 2311 is given as: East: Land of Hospital, West: Pond, North: Land of Mateen and others, South: Deva to Kurshi Road.

5. It is pleaded by the petitioner that at the time of registration of the Sale-Deed in respect of the aforesaid plot of land, the petitioner paid stamp duty @ Rs. 46,00,000/- (Rs. Forty Six Lacs only) per hectare. She also paid 150% excess cost as the land was within 100 meters from the residential area and is adjoining to the village. Thus, total value of the land as calculated was Rs. 20,53,000/- (Rs. Twenty Lacs Fifty Three Thousand only). Further, being a lady, the petitioner paid 4% stamp duty on the amount of Rs. 10,00,000/- (Rs. Ten Lacs only) and 5% stamp duty on the rest of the amount, accordingly, the total stamp duty paid was Rs. 92,650/- (Rs. Ninety Thousand Six Hundred and Fifty only).

6. The Sub Registrar Fatehpur, based on a spot inspection, submitted its Report dated 20.08.2013 before the Assistant I.G. Stamp mentioning therein some deficiency of stamp duty. Accordingly, on the strength of the said Report, a case under section 47A / 33 of The Indian Stamp Act was registered as Case No. 42/(2013-14). Consequently, notice was issued to the petitioner, however, it is alleged in the writ petition that the same was never served upon the petitioner. The learned Collector, Barabanki (opposite party no.3) finally passed the order dated 28.07.2014 against the petitioner.

7. The Collector, Barabanki (opposite party no.3) vide the aforesaid order dated 28.07.2014 held that the plot of land is situated at Kursi Road and at present a saw-machine / Aara machine is stalled in the southern side of the plot of land. Further, some shops also exist on the south side road and a Primary Health Center is located in the eastern side of the said plot. As per the report, no agricultural activity was found on the spot, although, as per the Sale-Deed the plot of land was purchased by the petitioner as agricultural land but in view of the spot inspection report, stamp duty at commercial rate is liable to be determined. Accordingly, the Collector (opposite party no.3) vide order dated 28.07.2014 imposed penalty of Rs. 1,00,000/- (Rs. One Lac only) against the petitioner by holding deficiency of stamp duty amounting to Rs. 4,28,850/- (Rs. Four Lacs Twenty Eight Thousand Eight Hundred and Fifty only) along with simple interest @ 1.5% per month with effect from the date of execution of the sale deed i.e. 24.06.2013, to be recovered from the petitioner.

8. It has been pleaded on behalf of the petitioner that it was only after receipt of Recovery Certificate dated 30.08.2014, the petitioner came to know about the aforesaid order dated 28.07.2014 passed by the Collector, Barabanki (opposite party no. 3). Thereafter, she filed an application for recall of the said order dated 28.07.2014 along with an application for condonation of delay stating therein that neither any notice was ever served upon her nor she had any information about the said proceedings and prayed therein that the said ex-parte order dated 28.07.2014 is liable to be recalled and for hearing of the Case No. 42/(2013-14) afresh after due opportunity of hearing. The Collector (opposite party no.3) vide order dated 17.10.2014 recalled the order dated 28.07.2014 with the condition of the deposit of 25% amount of the stamp duty.

9. It is stated in paragraph 8 of the Writ Petition that in compliance of the order dated 17.10.2014, the petitioner deposited Rs. 1,00,000/- (Rs. One Lac only). against penalty and Rs. 32,250/- (Rs. Thirty Two Thousand Two Hundred and Fifty only) against stamp duty on 26.11.2014.

10. During the course of proceedings, the Collector (opposite party no.3) sought a report from the Sub-Divisional Magistrate, Fatehpur which was submitted on 26.03.2015 on the basis of the report submitted by the Naib-Tehsildar, Kursi on 25.02.2015.

11. As per the report dated 25.02.2015 annexed as Annexure No.7 to the writ petition, the Naib-Tehsildar, Kursi, Fatehpur conducted an inspection and found a Primary Health Center and an Aara Machine on the remaining half portion of Gata No.2311, appurtenant to the plot of land/ subject matter of instrument. It is also mentioned in the said report that the plot of land has not been declared non-agricultural under Section 143 of the U.P. Zamindari Abolition & Land Reforms Act, 1950 and no construction was found over the same, at the time of inspection.

12. Taking into consideration the aforesaid report dated 26.03.2015, the Collector (opposite party no.3) passed the impugned order dated 04.02.2016. Aggrieved by the said order, the petitioner preferred Revision before the Court of learned Deputy Commissioner, Faizabad Division, Faizabad (opposite party no.2), under Section 56(1) of the Indian Stamp Act, 1899. The said revision came to be registered as Revision No. C 2016040000510. The learned Revisional Court vide the impugned order dated 24.05.2017, found no case for interference in the order dated 04.02.2016 passed by the Collector (opposite party no. 3), and dismissed the said revision being devoid of merit.

13. The contention of the learned counsel for the petitioner is that the report dated 20.08.2013 submitted by the Sub Registrar was made only on the basis of an ex-parte inspection. Moreover, the Sub Registrar, without any basis, proof or document and in the most arbitrary manner, calculated the estimated value of Aara Machine to be of Rs. 2,00,000/- (Rs. Two Lacs only); the value of trees standing on the northern side of the land as Rs. 1,20,000/- (Rs. One Lakh Twenty Thousand only) and the value of land to be Rs. 1,06,30,000/- (Rs. One Crore Six Lacs and Thirty Thousand only), which is totally hypothetical rather unbelievable and as such cannot be the basis for ascertaining the value of the land.

14. It is stated on behalf of the petitioner that she has already deposited Rs. 1,32,250/- (Rs. One Lac Thirty Two Thousand Two Hundred and Fifty only) in compliance of the order dated 17.10.2014 passed by the Collector (opposite party no.3) and the rest of the amount of Rs. 50,750/- (Rs. Fifty Thousand Seven Hundred and Fifty only) was deposited after the final order passed by the Collector (opposite party no.3).

15. Further, it is contended by the learned counsel for the petitioner that the report submitted by the Sub Divisional Officer, Fatehpur dated 26.03.2015 is in utter disregard to Rule 7(3)(c) of the U.P. Stamp (Valuation of Property) Rules, 1997. He submitted that the Collector (opposite party no.3) never inspected the property nor issued any notice to the concerned parties, i.e. seller and purchaser and arbitrarily imposed / determined deficiency in stamp duty. It has been asserted on behalf of the petitioner that determination of deficiency in stamp duty without making any spot inspection or without recording the statement of any public officer / authority or in the absence of cogent evidence / material, in violation of the provisions of Rule 7(3)(c) of the Rules of 1997 renders the same as illegal and unsustainable under law being dehors of relevant rules.

16. It is also argued on behalf of the petitioner that the nature of the land is recorded as agricultural in the revenue records and has never been declared as non-agricultural under Section 143 of the U.P. Zamindari Abolition & Land Reforms Act, 1950. The name of the petitioner was entered in the revenue records vide order dated 24.02.2016 passed by the competent Revenue Court, and the penalty imposed by the authority holding deficiency in stamp duty, presuming future potentiality of the land to be commercial is a clear violation of the settled law on the subject. It has been categorically stated by the learned counsel for the petitioner that the plot of land has never been used for commercial purposes by the petitioner. The same reflects the arbitrariness and the non-application of mind by the respondent authorities while passing the impugned orders.

17. It is also submitted that the petitioner herself sold the property in question to one Babu son of Nanhey through registered Sale-Deed dated 16.03.2016 and consequently his name has been mutated in the revenue records vide order dated 13.05.2016.

18. It is argued on behalf of the petitioner that the authorities have committed patent illegality in treating the land as commercial only for the reason that the land in question is situated near the Primary Health Center, Powerhouse and some shops constructed at the southern side of the same. He further argued that the report of the Sub Divisional Officer, Fatehpur provides that on the other half (1/2) portion of the said Gata No. 2311, an Aara machine is found stalled but nowhere it has been stated that the same was found in running condition. Therefore, the valuation of the Aara machine; the valuation of the trees planted at the northern side is totally baseless and the allegation of evasion of stamp duty amounting to Rs. 4,28,850/- (Rs. Four Lacs Twenty Eight Thousand Eight Hundred and Fifty only) is arbitrary, without any proof and is bad in law being liable to be set aside.

19. It is very categorically argued on behalf of the petitioner that the petitioner has not violated or breached any Rule. She paid the entire stamp duty as per the then 'circle rate' duly fixed by the competent authority and as such the impugned order passed based on the presumption of future use of the plot of land for commercial purpose is totally arbitrary and illegal. It is further submitted that in the present case, it is not the subject matter of instrument on which Aara machine was found stalled but on the adjoining piece of land.

20. Per contra, the learned Counsel appearing for the State-respondents submitted that the order dated 04.02.2016 passed by the Collector (opposite party no.3) and the order dated 24.05.2017 passed by the Deputy Commissioner (opposite party no.2), were passed after taking into account the reports based on the spot inspection that the existing nature of the subject matter of instrument is non-agricultural rather commercial. Therefore, the impugned orders do not suffer from any illegality or perversity. To elaborate his contention, the learned counsel for the State-respondents submitted that petitioner purchased the plot of land as agricultural with the intention to evade the stamp duty as the said plot of land is of commercial potential. Thus, the petitioner has violated section 27 of the Indian Stamp Act, 1899. It is further submitted by the learned Counsel appearing for the State-respondents that only after one and a half (1^{1/2}) month of the execution of the sale-deed, a spot inspection was carried out by the Sub Registrar, Fatehpur, Barabanki on 13.08.2013 and it was found that there was no agricultural activity on Gata No. 2311 or the land adjacent to it. Rather, the abovementioned 'Ara Machine' was found operational showing commercial activities within the boundary of the said Gata No. 2311. Moreover, on the adjacent plot, a Primary Health Centre, powerhouse, road and shops on the southern side were found constructed.

21. It is further submitted on behalf of the respondents that the petitioner filed a copy of the Khatauni in support of her case. However, just to conceal the usage of the land, no documents such as Khasra etc. were produced by the petitioner before the authorities in the said proceeding. It is also submitted that since no legal partition has been carried out on the said Gata No. 2311/0.349 Hectares, the petitioner is the co-tenure holder of half of the whole Rakba.

22. It is further submitted by the learned counsel for the State-respondents that half (1/2) portion of the land having Gata No. 2311 ad-measuring 0.349 Hectares, which comes to around 0.1745 Hectares or 1745 square meters, when calculated as per the effective commercial rate of Rs. 6000/- per square meter comes to around Rs. 1,04,70,000/- (Rs. One Crore Four Lacs Seventy Thousand only); while the estimated value of the 'Ara Machine' as Rs. 2,00,000/- and the estimated value of trees standing on the northern side of the land as Rs. 1,20,000/- (Rs. One Lac Twenty Thousand only) are added to Rs. 3,20,000/- (Rs. Three Lacs Twenty Thousand only) and thereafter the half (1/2) amount, which comes to Rs. 1,60,000/- (Rs. One Lac Sixty Thousand only) is further added to the price of the land. In this way, the total comes to around Rs. 1,06,30,000/- (Rs. One Crore Six Lacs Thirty Thousand only) which is the correct valuation of the non-agricultural land that was purchased by the petitioner. The total stamp duty payable on the said land is Rs. 5,21,500/- (Rs. Five Lacs Twenty One Thousand Five Hundred only), whereas merely Rs. 92,650/- (Ninety Two Thousand Six Hundred and Fifty only) as stamp duty has been paid by the petitioner. Therefore, prima facie evasion of stamp duty amounting to Rs. 4,28,850/- (Rs. Four Lacs Twenty Eight Thousand Eight Hundred and Fifty only) has been found to have been committed by the petitioner and further a penalty amounting to Rs. 1,00,000/- (Rs. One Lac only) has been imposed against the petitioner vide the impugned Order passed by the District Magistrate along with simple interest @ 1.5% per month from the date of execution of the sale deed and in spite of the fact that as per the report submitted the Sub Registrar, Fatehpur on the basis of spot inspection, non-agricultural and commercial activities were found on the plot of land as an 'Ara Machine' was found operational at the Gata No.2311.

23. It is contended on behalf of the State-respondent that the conversion of the land as per Section 142 and Section 143 of the U.P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act, 1950 does not have any bearing regarding the determination of market value of a land under the Indian Stamp Act and the valuation of the subject matter of the instrument shall not be in any way influenced by the provisions of the said Act of 1950. In support of his contention, he has placed reliance upon the judgments passed by this Court in the cases of Haroon Ahmad & Ors. versus State of U.P., reported in 2012(115) R.D. 803 and Sunil Jaiswal and Others versus State of Uttar Pradesh and Others; reported in 2015 SCC OnLine All 5904.

24. Learned counsel appearing on behalf of the State-respondents has also placed reliance upon the judgment passed by this Court in the case of Ganesh Chandra Agarwal versus State of U.P. & others (Writ-C No. 11531 of 1996, decided on 15.09.2010), wherein a co-ordinate Bench of this Court has held that it is not only use of the land on the date of registration which could have been taken into consideration while determination of market value, but the potentiality of land could also be taken into consideration as relevant factor for determination of correct market value of land.

25. Having heard the rival contentions of the learned counsels for the parties and having perused the material available on record, the issue for consideration before this Court is whether the impugned orders dated 04.02.2016 and 24.05.2017 passed by the Collector, Barabanki (opposite part no.3) and the Deputy Commissioner (Stamp) (opposite party no. 2), Faizabad Division respectively, whereby the instrument was found deficient in payment of stamp duty and the penalty imposed upon the petitioner are sustainable in law or the same suffers from material irregularity warranting interference by this Court in exercise of its powers under Article 226 of the Constitution of India.

26. Before entering into the merits of the case, it would be apt to see whether for the proceeding under Section 47-A of the Indian Stamp Act, is it incumbent upon the Collector to inspect the property after due notice to the parties to the instrument. Further, whether any inspection report which has not been conducted in accordance with the provisions of Rule 7 (3) (c) of the Uttar Pradesh Stamp (Valuation of Property) Rules, 1997, can form the basis of an order for recovery of deficient stamp duty?

27. For ready reference, Rule 7(3) of the U.P. Stamp (Valuation of Property) Rules, 1997, is extracted hereinbelow:

"Rule 7. (3): The Collector may-

a. Call for any information or record from any public office, officer or authority under the Government or a local authority;

b. Examine and record the statement of any public officer or authority under the Government or the local authority; and

c. Inspect the property after due notice to the parties to the instrument."

28. A Coordinate Bench of this Court in the case of Ram Gopal versus State of U.P. and others, reported in 2009(7) ADJ 185 (LB), has observed that,

"13. ..The Uttar Pradesh Stamp Valuation of Property Rules, 1997 particularly Rule 7 provides the procedure on receipt of a reference or when suo motu action is proposed under Section 47-A of the Stamp Act. The Rule 7(2) (c) provides that the Collector may inspect the property after due notice to parties to the instrument. The complete reading of the aforesaid rule clearly indicates that while deciding the proceedings under Section 47-A of the Stamp Act the Collector or its authority are required to make an inspection after due notice to the parties to the instrument. The proceeding under Section 47-A of the Stamp Act shall not be decided merely placing reliance on the ex parte report of the Tehsildar or any authority for that purpose. In the present case the Tehsildar's report dated 3.5.2001 does not disclose as to whether any notice was given to the petitioner before inspection of the land in question by the Tehsildar. Rather it clearly shows that it was an ex parte report. Hence the order dated 26.7.2001 was passed in violation of Rule 7(2) (c) of the U.P. Stamp Valuation of Property Rule, 1997."

29. Further, in the case of Ram Khelawan @ Bachcha versus State of U.P. and another; reported in 2005 (98) RD 511, this Court also held that,

"25. It has been found in several cases like the present one that the entire basis of determination of market value for the purpose of stamp duty is ex-parte report of Tehsildar or other officer. Ex- parte inspection report may be relevant for initiating the proceedings under section 47-A of Stamp Act. However, for deciding the case no reliance can be placed upon the said report After initiation of the case inspection is to be made by the Collector or authority hearing the case after due notice to the parties to the instrument as provided under Rule-7(3)(c) of the Rules of 1997. Moreover, in the inspection report distance of the property from other residential or commercial properties and road must be shown and wherever possible sketch map must also be annexed along with the report so that correct valuation may be ascertained with reasoned certainty."

30. In the instant case, from the perusal of the pleadings on record, it is evident that no 'notice' was served to the petitioner before carrying out the inspection and the order dated 28.07.2014 was passed on the basis of an ex-parte inspection report. However, the said order was recalled vide order dated 17.10.2014. Subsequently, inspection report dated 25.02.2015 was obtained from Naib Tehsildar, Kurshi. Although, the case of the State-respondents is that the said inspection was carried out after due information to the counsel for the petitioner but there is nothing on record to establish that any 'notice' was issued to the petitioner. In any case, the 'notice' to the petitioner as contemplated under Rule 7(3) of the U.P. Stamp (Valuation of Property) Rules, 1997, is lacking in the present case.

31. Now coming to the other aspect of the matter that has been assailed by means of in the present writ petition is that the Collector (opposite party no. 3) before passing the impugned order dated 04.02.2016, determining deficiency in Stamp duty has not considered any oral or documentary evidence and, has passed the impugned order without any basis or proof by merely relying upon the report submitted by the Niab-Tehsildar. Thus, the said impugned order is in contravention to the provisions of section 47-A (3) of the Indian Stamp Act. This Court in the case of Ajay Agarwal versus Commissioner, reported in 2023 (2) ADJ 561 (LB) observed that;

"18. The provisions of Section 47A (3) of the Act clearly prescribed that prior to passing an order in terms of the aforesaid provision, the Collector has to satisfy himself, which in fact would mean that he has to record his subjective satisfaction with regard to the correctness of market value of the property. Furthermore he is also required to record reasons to believe that market value of such property has not been truly set forth in the instrument, whereafter he is also required to determine the market value of his property and duty payable thereon. Clearly the Collector in exercise of power under Section 47 A(3) of the Act as such is required not to rely only on the spot inspection report but also to record his subjective satisfaction with regard to under valuation of the instrument of transfer. As such while passing orders under Section 47 of the Act, Collector cannot rely only on the post inspection report."

32. A co-ordinate Bench of this Court in the case of Reena Gupta versus State of U.P. and others; reported in (2020) 2 ADJ 162 has held that the burden of proving that the market value of the property is more than that disclosed in the Sale-Deed is to be discharged by the State. From perusal of the record, it is evident that the State has failed to discharge the said burden as there is no document in the form of comparable sale deed of any property in the vicinity to indicate that the value of the property comprised in the instrument is higher than the value that has been disclosed in the sale-deed.

33. Similar view has been taken by the co-ordinate Bench of this Court in the case of Smt. Leela Devi Shah versus State of U.P. and others; reported in (2014) 125 RD 297, wherein this Court observed as under,

"5. The deficiency in stamp duty has been determined on the basis of the report of Up-Mahanirikshak Nibandhan dated 27.10.2006 without taking into aid of any other independent evidence for the purposes of determining market value of the property and consequently deficiency in stamp duty. The burden to prove that the market value of the property has not correctly been disclosed in the instrument is on the department who asserts that there is deficiency in stamp duty.

6. In the absence of any material to prove that the market value disclosed in the instrument is incorrect or on the lower side, the authorities below could not have determined the market value on the basis of report of Up-Mahanirikashak Nibandhan. It has been settled by various decisions by this Court that the report of the Registrar/ Up-Mahanirikshak Nibandhan is only for the purposes of initiation of proceedings under Section 47-A of the Act and cannot be read as evidence.

7. Thus, in the absence of any evidence to prove that the market value of the property in question has not correctly been shown, the authorities below have manifestly erred in law in simply relying upon the aforesaid report of Up-Mahanirikshak Nibandhan and determining the market value of the property in question."

34. From the perusal of the impugned order dated 04.02.2016, it emerges that the Collector (opposite part no. 3), on the basis of the spot inspection report submitted by the Naib Tehsildar, Kursi to the Sub Divisional Magistrate, Fatehpur has drawn inference that the subject matter of instrument has not been purchased by the petitioner for the agricultural purposes but with the commercial point of view, the same is not sustainable in the light of law laid down by the Full Bench of this Court in the case of Smt. Pushpa Sareen versus State of U.P. & others; reported in (2015) 3 ADJ 136, wherein it has been held that the nature of use is relatable to the date of purchase which is relevant for the purpose of computing the stamp duty. Where however the potential of the land can be assessed on the date of execution of the instrument itself by referring to exemplar or comparable sale instances which may be relevant and germane to determine the true market value. The relevant paragraph of the aforesaid judgement is quoted herein below,

"27. The fact that the land was put to a particular use, for instance, a commercial purpose at a later point in time, may not be a relevant criterion for deciding the value for the purpose of Stamp Duty, as held by the Supreme Court in State of U.P. v. Ambush Tandon, 2012 (5) SCC 566. This is because the nature of the use is relatable to the date of purchase, which is relevant for the purpose of computing the Stamp Duty. Where, however, the potential of the land can be assessed on the date of the execution of the instrument itself, that is clearly a circumstance which is relevant and germane to the determination of the true market value. At the same time, the exercise before the Collector has to be based on adequate material and cannot be a matter of hypothesis or surmise. The Collector must have material on the record to the effect that there has been a change of use or other contemporaneous Sale Deeds in respect of the adjacent areas that would have a bearing on the market value of the property under consideration. The Collector, therefore, would be within jurisdiction in referring to exemplars or comparable sale instances which have a bearing on the true market value of the property that is required to be assessed. If the sale instances are comparable, they would also reflect the potentiality of the land, which would be taken into consideration in a price agreed upon between a vendor and a purchaser."

35. It is settled in law that the registering officer, after registration of the document, can refer the same for adjudication before the Collector, if it finds the subject matter of instrument prima facie undervalued and has reasons to believe that the same has been done deliberately. Such a reference is not a mechanical act, but the Registering Authority should have basis for coming to the conclusion of prima facie undervaluation of the property. It is incumbent upon the Registering Authority to ensure that the process of section 47-A (1) does not work as a mechanical tool of oppression nor as a matter of routine, without application of mind as to the existence of any material or reason to believe that there exists malafide intention to evade payment of proper stamp duty. It goes without saying that the belief must be held in good faith. Further, there must be a rational, relevant and strong foundation for the formation of the belief. The expression 'reason to believe' means some material on the basis of which the competent authority can re-open the proceeding. In any case, the satisfaction of the concerned authority is necessary in terms of material available on record. In the case of Mohali Club, Mohali versus State of Punjab, reported in AIR 2011 P&H 23, a co-ordinate bench of the Punjab and Haryana High Court has held that the expression 'reason to believe' is not synonymous with the subjective satisfaction of the officer. However, satisfaction is necessary in terms of material available on record, which should be based on objective satisfaction arrived at reasonably.

36. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Chief Revenue Controlling Officer cum Inspector General of Registration and Others versus P. Babu reported in 2025 SCC Online SC 42 has been pleased to hold that under section 47-A(1) and under section 47-A(3) of the Indian Stamp Act, if the registering authority has reasons to believe that the instrument of conveyance did not reflect the correct market value of the property, then the registering authority has the power to refer the same to the Collector for determination of market value of the property and the Collector, on reference, under section 47-A(1), may determine the market value of such property in accordance with the procedure prescribed. Enquiry by the Registering Authority is a pre-condition for making reference to the Collector for determination of market value of the property after providing reasonable opportunity of hearing to the parties. When the Registering Authority finds that the value set forth in an instrument was less than the determined minimum value, then the Registering Authority is empowered to refer the instrument to the Collector for determination of market value of the property and the Stamp Duty payable thereon. The Hon'ble Apex Court has observed that when both the authorities viz., the Registering Authority and the Collector are vested with the discretion to decide regarding the market value of the property, by the expression 'reason to believe', then, whether it reflects the subjective satisfaction of the authorities concerned or it reflects the objective determination of the market value of the property? What is meant by 'reason to believe' is the issue that warrants consideration. In any case, availability of material is the foundation or the basis for any authority to arrive at any decision whatsoever. The basis of a thing is that on which it stands and on the failure of which it falls.

37. While dealing with the similar issue, the Hon'ble Full Bench of the Madras High Court in the case of G. Karmegam versus The Joint Sub-Registrar, Madurai, reported in 2007 SCC Online Mad 960 held that the Collector is the prescribed authority to determine the market value of the property after affording reasonable opportunity of hearing to the parties. The Registering Officer cannot make a roving enquiry to ascertain the correct market value of the property by examining the parties. However, it is expected that he provides reason in support of his conclusion for undervaluation however short that may be. In order to reach a conclusion, there is no bar on the Registering Officer to gather information from other sources including official or public record. It was also held that when the Collector exercises powers under sub-sections (2) and (3) of Section 47A of the Indian Stamp Act, he/she shall be deemed to be a quasi-judicial authority. The Collector has been conferred with such power by the statute. The detailed procedure prescribed in the relevant rules evidently portrays that the Collector's decision is relatable and verifiable by the material on evidence, which he brings into record, on making an enquiry after hearing the parties concerned.

38. At this stage, it would be relevant to refer to the observations made by this Court in the case of Vijay Kumar and another Versus Commissioner, Meerut Division and Anr., reported in AIR 2008 All 176 and the same is reproduced herein below,

"The sine qua non for invoking provisions of Section 47A (3) of the Act is that the Collector has reason to believe, that the stamp duty has not been properly set forth in the instrument as per market value of the property. Once the instrument is registered and the prescribed stamp duty as prescribed by the Collector has been paid, the burden to prove that the market value is more than the minimum as prescribed by the Collector under the rules, is upon the Collector. The report of the Sub- Registrar or Tehsildar itself is not sufficient to discharge that burden."

39. Further, in the case of Vijay Kumar (Supra) the Court also explained the expression 'market value' as,

"The 'market value' means what a willing purchaser would pay to a willing seller for the property having regard to the advantages available to the land and the development activities which may be going in the vicinity and potentiality of the land."

40. Again, in the case of Ratna Shankar Dwivedi versus State of U.P and others; reported in AIR 2012 ALL 100, this Court held that,

"The term "market value" has not been defined under the Act. However there are some precedents laying down certain guidelines as to how and in what manner a market value would be determined. The consensus opinion is that the market value of any property is the price which the property would fetch or would have fetched if sold in the open market."

41. It is trite in law that the nature of the property being commercial, residential or agricultural is not the sole determinant for the 'market value' of the property. In other words, in a particular case, nature of land and its current use may not be the sole factor to assess the market value of the same. Rather, the prevalent rates at which the properties adjacent to the subject matter of instrument are being sold and purchased shall also be taken into consideration for determining the market value of the said property. Further, evidence of bona fide sales between prudent vendor and prudent vendee of land, situated near-about land possessing same or similar advantageous features would furnish basis to determine the market value. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Neeraj Jain versus State of U.P. and others (Civil Appeal No. 8286 of 2014, reported in (2015) 11 SCC 437, observed that the Court should require State Government to put forth the material on record that there has been a change of use or there are other contemporaneous sale deeds in respect of adjacent area as the market value has been increased or there has been change in agricultural land to the urban agglomeration and such other ancillary aspect.

42. In the case of M/s. Maya Food And Vanaspati Ltd. Co. versus Chief Controlling Revenue Authority (Board of Revenue) Allahabad; reported in 1990 (90) RD 57, this Court held that the market value of the land for the purpose of payment of stamp duty cannot be determined with reference to its future use or the intended use to which it is likely to be put by the purchaser.

43. In so far as the argument of the learned counsel for the petitioner that the finding recorded by the Collector (opposite party no. 3) in the impugned order, whereby the Collector (opposite party no. 3) solely relied upon the report of the Sub Divisional Officer is incorrect in as much as the same provides that since the inspection report does not reflect any agricultural activity over the plot in land is indicative of the fact that the plot of land which is the subject matter of instrument was purchased for commercial purposes and not for agricultural purposes. The said finding that the property comprised in the Sale-Deed has been purchased by the petitioner for commercial purposes, is unsustainable in the light of the observations recorded by the Division Bench of this Court in the case of Sumati Nath Jain versus State of U.P. and another, reported in 2016 (2) ADJ 533 (DB). The relevant part of the judgment is extracted hereinbelow,

"16. Section 47-A (3) as a plain reading of the provision would indicate comes into operation if the Collector has before him material which may lead him to believe that the market value of the property comprised in an instrument has not been truthfully disclosed. In the present case the Collector proceeded in the matter solely on the basis of the report of the Sub Registrar dated 7 February 2012. This report doubted the valuation of the property on the ground that in the area abutting it, various residential houses had come up and that Greater NOIDA had become a development hub. Bearing in mind the location of the plot and its likely use, the Sub Registrar opined, it would be inappropriate to value the property at agricultural rates. We find that the very bedrock upon which the opinion of the Sub Registrar based his report was faulty and could not have consequently formed the basis for further action under section 47-A (3).

17. We may note that on the date of execution of the instrument the land was admittedly recorded as agricultural. In fact the Khasra of the property remained unchanged throughout and continued to represent the land as recorded for agricultural purposes. The respondents were in our opinion wholly unjustified in initiating proceedings based on an unsubstantiated assumption that the property in future was likely to be put to non-agricultural use.

18. The perceived or presumed use to which a buyer may put the property in the future can never be the basis for adjudging its value or determining the stamp duty payable. The Act, we may note is a fiscal statute. The taxable event with which it concerns itself is the execution of an instrument which is chargeable to duty. The levy under the statute gets attracted the moment an instrument is executed. These propositions clearly flow from a plain reading of the definition of the words "chargeable", "executed" and "instrument" as carried in the Act. In the case of an instrument which creates rights in respect of property and upon which duty is payable on the market value of the property comprised therein, since the tax liability gets fastened immediately upon execution it must necessarily be quantified on the date of execution. The levy of tax or its quantum cannot be left to depend upon hypothetical or imponderable facets or factors. The value of the property comprised in an instrument has to be adjudged bearing in mind its character and potentiality as on the date of execution of the instrument. For all the aforesaid reasons we fail to find the existence of the essential jurisdictional facts which may have warranted the invocation of the powers conferred by section 47-A (3). We are therefore of the firm opinion that the initiation of proceedings as well as the impugned order based upon a presumed future use of the property for residential purposes was wholly without jurisdiction and clearly unsustainable. Dealing with this aspect of the matter and after noticing the consistent line of precedent on the subject the Division Bench in Smt. Vijaya Jain observed:

"This Court on more than one occasion has held that the market value of the land is not liable to be determined with reference to the use to which a buyer intends to put it in future. The market value of the property is to be determined with reference to its character on the date of execution of the instrument and its potentiality as on that date."

XXX XXX XXX

The above principles of law enunciated in the aforementioned judgments have been consistently followed by this Court. We however find that the order of the Collector relies upon no evidence which would support imposition of residential rates on a property which was stated to be agricultural on the date of execution of the instrument."

44. So far as the effect of declaration / notification of the land under Section 142 and 143 of the U.P. Zamindari Abolition & Land Reforms Act, 1950, is concerned, the said issue has been dealt with by this Court in the case of Haroon Ahmad (supra) and Sunil Jaiswal & Others (supra), wherein it has been held that the non-issuance of the notification of a property under Section 143 of the U.P. Zamindari Abolition & Land Reforms Act, 1950 cannot be the basis for questioning the determination of the market value of land. Section 143 of the U.P. Zamindari Abolition & Land Reforms Act, 1950 is for a different purpose and cannot control the determination of the market value under the Indian Stamp Act, 1899.

45. There is no doubt that the provisions of U.P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act, 1950 encompasses different object and cannot be applied for the purpose of determination of the value of the land insofar it relates to Indian Stamp Act. Such determination is not controlled in any manner by the provisions of U.P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act 1950. Notification under Section 143 of the U.P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act, 1950 can at best be one of the factors for consideration at the time of determination of the market value under the Indian Stamp Act and relevant Rules as prescribed under the U.P. Stamp (Valuation of Property) Rules, 1997.

46. In the case of Wasi Ur Rehman and another versus Commissioner, Muradabad Division and others; reported in 2015 SCC OnLine All 5680, a co-ordinate Bench of this Court held that,

"Though entry in the revenue record regarding the nature of the property may be relevant but cannot be the sole factor in determining the market value. Market value is dependent upon other factors viz. change of user in adjacent area or change of agricultural land to urban agglomeration or if the properties were being sold and bought at commercial rate then for the purposes of stamp duty market value of the property would be the same as that of the property bought at commercial rate, irrespective of the entry in the revenue record."

47. From all that is discussed herein above, this court finds that the Collector (opposite party no.3) and the Deputy Commissioner (opposite party no.2) have passed the impugned orders without correctly appreciating the well-settled law. The aforementioned Authorities while holding that the plot of land was purchased by the petitioner with the intention to use it for commercial purpose, did not find any substance being unsupported by any documentary evidence or material which could establish that the property comprised in Sale-Deed was being used for other than agriculture purpose at the time of execution of the instrument. Presumption of usage of subject matter of instrument in future for some commercial purposes cannot be the ground of invocation of the provisions of the Indian Stamp Act for alleged deficiency in stamp duty. The Collector even could not cite any exemplar to show that the properties adjacent or around the subject matter of instrument have been sold or purchased at the commercial rate. Thus, the findings on the basis of which the impugned deficiency of stamp duty has been determined is unsustainable.

48. Further, in view of the fact that the Indian Stamp Act, 1899 does not provide Collector (opposite party no.3) to order recovery of any deficiency in the payment of 'Registration fee' and in the absence of any statutory provision the Collector could not have passed any order for recovery of 'deficiency of registration fee' in the proceedings instated under the Indian Stamp Act, 1899.

49. Moreover, it is well-settled that penalty should not to be imposed mechanically. The authorities must apply their mind to the facts and circumstances of each case. In the present case, the Revisional Authority has committed error by affirming the order of the Collector (opposite party no.3) without independently applying its mind to the facts and circumstances of the case and without addressing the specific grounds raised by the petitioner in the revision. The order dated 24.05.2017 passed by the Deputy Commissioner (opposite party no.2) does not reflect any consideration of the issues involved. The Deputy Commissioner (opposite party no.2) has simply dittoed that order of the Collector (opposite party no.3) in passing the impugned order dated 24.05.2017 and the same does not stand to reason.

50. In view of the deliberations and observations made hereinabove, this Court is of the considered opinion that the impugned orders dated 04.02.2016 and 24.05.2017 suffer from serious perversity, being based merely on an ex parte spot inspection report having no support of any credible material. Value of the land has to be determined on the basis of the constructive material available before the authorities; which is completely lacking in the present case. The impugned orders are based on irrelevant presumptions and on erroneous appreciation of facts. Further, the authorities have failed to comply with the mandatory requirements of Rule 7 of the Uttar Pradesh Stamp (Valuation of Property) Rules, 1997 as the impugned order was passed without 'notice' upon the petitioner in the manner as provided under the Rules of 1997 and without appreciation of any oral or documentary evidence by the Collector.

51. Moreover, as has been discussed in the preceding paragraphs, the commercial value of the subject matter of instrument has to be determined on the basis of the constructive material available before the authorities, the same is completely lacking in the present case. Treating the property as commercial merely on the basis of the report showing certain commercial activities around the subject matter of the instrument is not sufficient to treat the nature of the land as commercial, unless it is proved that its nature has undergone a change. The potential of the land is to be assessed on the date of execution of the instrument itself. From perusal of the record, it is evident that the impugned orders do not refer to any document even any documentary evidence in the form of comparable sale deed of any property in the vicinity of the subject matter of the instrument to indicate that the value of the property comprised in the instrument is higher than disclosed in the sale-deed. No other material has been brought on record to show that the subject matter of instrument is commercial in nature. It is not in dispute that at the time of the execution of the Sale-Deed, the nature of the subject matter of instrument was agricultural and in the absence of any material otherwise, the same cannot be treated as commercial. The market value of the land is required to be judged on the nature and use of the land existing on the date of purchase of the land in question and the authorities are not required to judge the use of the land which could be put to a different use in future. It is clear that the deficiency of stamp can neither be determined on the value of the future use of the property nor it can be leveled on the ground that the property can fetch good market value. Further, no material has been referred in the impugned orders to fortify the subjective satisfaction which would constitute 'reason to believe' regarding the evasion of stamp duty on the part of the petitioner.

52. Taking into consideration the factual matrix of the case in hand and the law on the subject as discussed herein above, the impugned order dated 04.02.2016 passed by the Collector, Barabanki in Case No. D20140412001297 and the judgment and order dated 24.05.2017 passed by the Deputy Commissioner, Faizabad Division, Faizabad in Case No. C2016040000510, are not sustainable in the eyes of law and are liable to be set-aside.

53. In view of the fact that the procedure in passing the impugned orders has been found violative of the relevant rules including Rule 7(3)(c) of the U.P. Stamp (Valuation of Property) Rules, 1997, therefore, this Court is of the considered opinion that no useful purpose would be served in remanding the matter to the authorities to pass fresh order regarding the determination of the stamp duty in respect of the instrument which was executed way back in the year 2013. The law is well settled that the value of the land in so far as it relates to Indian Stamp Act, 1899, can be determined only with reference to the date on which the document was executed and that any subsequent change in the nature or use of the land which may result in the enhancement of the market value of the property can not be taken into account. As such, if any inspection is carried out in the year 2025 or thereafter, the same would be of no use under law for the purpose of determination of the stamp duty on the date of the execution of the sale-deed executed on 24.06.2013.

54. Accordingly, the writ petition succeeds. The impugned order dated 04.02.2016 passed by the Collector, Barabanki in Case No. D20140412001297 and the judgment and order dated 24.05.2017 passed by the Deputy Commissioner, Faizabad Division, Faizabad in Case No. C2016040000510, are set-aside. A direction in the nature of Mandamus is issued to the Collector, Barabanki (opposite party no.3) to refund the amount deposited by the petitioner during the pendency of the present litigation pursuant to the impugned order, within one month from the date of production of a certified copy of this order, before it. It is hereby provided that if the amount is not refunded within the aforesaid period, the petitioner shall be entitled of simple interest @ 6 per cent per annum from the date of its deposit till the date of actual refund.

55. The writ petition is allowed. No order as to cost.

Issue for Consideration

The matter pertains to the eligibility criteria for the allotment of retail outlet dealerships and the legal distinction between preliminary and final decrees in land partition suits. The main issue was whether an applicant for Oil marketing company dealership fulfills land eligibility requirements under clause 4(vi)(a) of the selection brochure if they submit a preliminary decree of partition instead of a final decree or the consent of all co-sharers at the time of application.

Headnotes

Constitution of India,1950-Article 226-U.P. Revenue Code,2006-Section 116, 117 & U.P. Revenue Code Rules, 2016-Rule 108, 109-A preliminary decree merely declares the shares of the parties-A final decree is required to separate the property by metes and bounds and correct records of rights-The court held that for the purpose of contractual eligibility with an Oil corporation, "ownership" or "firm offer" must be established via a final decree or unanimous co-sharer consent existing on the date of application-Subsequent legal developments cannot retroactively validate an ineligible application-writ petition dismissed.(Para 13 to 21) (E-6)

Held

The court held that a preliminary decree is insufficient to establish exclusive possession or title for a specific plot. Since the final decree did not exist on the application date and consent from all co-sharers was missing, the lease deed was deemed invalid under Clause 4(vi)(a) of the Brochure.

Appearances for Parties

Adv. for Petitioner:-

Nitin Sharma

Adv. for Respondent:-

Anand Tiwari

(Delivered by Hon'ble Neeraj Tiwari, J.)

1. Heard Shri Nitin Sharma, learned counsel for the petitioner and Shri Anand Tiwari, learned counsel for the respondents.

2. Present petition has been filed seeking following relief:-

"(i) Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of certiorari quashing the Order dated 28.06.2024 (Annexure No. 1 of the writ petition), passed by respondent no 2 & Order dated 15.04.2024 (Annexure No. 2 of the writ petition) passed by Respondent No. 2, rejecting the candidature of the Petitioner for selection of dealership of retail outlet in pursuance of advertisement dated 28.06.2023.

(ii) Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus commanding the respondents to accept the piece of land/plot situated at Village Mubarakpur Hardas, Tehsil Najibabad, District Bijnor (duly enumerated in the lease deed dated 25.07.2023) offered by the petitioner for establishment of retail outlet.

(iii) Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus commanding the respondents to issue letter of Intent and letter of agreement in favour of the petitioner, in pursuance of the provisional selection letter dated 08.12.2023 within the stipulated time period as fixed by the Hon'ble Court. "

3. Submission of the learned counsel for the petitioner is that the respondent no.1-Indian Oil Corporation Limited (hereinafter referred to as the "Oil Corporation") has issued an advertisement dated 28.06.2023 inviting application for setting up a retail outlet dealership at location, namely, village Mubarkhpur, Hardas Tehsil Najibabad, District Bijnor. Pursuant to said advertisement, petitioner submitted an application fulfilling all the requisite qualifications on 16.10.2023. After considering the application of the petitioner, it was rejected on 15.04.2024 on the ground that alongwith the application, petitioner has not annexed the lease deed of all the co-sharers of the land, so offered. Against the same, petitioner has also preferred representation, which was also rejected by the respondent no.2 vide order dated 28.06.2024 on the same ground. Learned counsel for the petitioner submitted that the site in question is situated in the part of land of Bhism Singh and as such, the petitioner had got the lease deed executed in its favour by Bhism Singh only. Thereafter, Bhism Singh has filed partition suit No. 3786 of 2023 under Section 116 of U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 (hereinafter referred to as Code, 2006) and a preliminary decree dated 23.09.2023 was prepared. He further submitted that petitioner has submitted the application for allotment of retail outlet dealership in the State of Uttar Pradesh on 16.10.2023 along with preliminary decree dated 23.09.2023, that decree was confirmed vide order dated 15.02.2024 passed by Sub Divisional Magistrate(Tehsil level) Judicial, Mandal Moradabad, Najibabad in Case No. 3786 of 2023(Bhism Singh Vs. Hemraj and Others). Final decree was put in force with effect from 23.09.2023 and defect has now been cured prior to date of application , therefore, rejection of the petitioner's application is bad and is not sustainable in the eye of law.

4. Per contra, Shri Anand Tiwari, learned counsel for the respondents submitted that Clause 4(vi) (a) of the Brochure of selection of retail outlet dealership is very clear, which provides that on the date of filing of the application, lease deed of every co-sharer is required and in the present case, undisputedly only one co-sharer, namely, Bhism Singh has executed the lease deed, therefore, the condition of clause 4(vi)(a) has not been fulfilled. He has also submitted that based on preliminary decree no retail outlet can be granted to the petitioner as this is not the final decree and also subsequent position of land may be altered or changed at the time of preparation of final decree, therefore, petitioner has not fulfilled the condition so required in the Brochure. Hence, the respondents have rightly rejected the application of the petitioner.

5. In support of his contention, learned counsel for the respondents has relied upon judgments of this Court given in Writ C No. 7354 of 2024 (Rahul Singh Vs. Indian Oil Corporation Ltd. And 3 Others), decided on 06.03.2024 and Writ C No. 11586 of 2024 (Amarjeet Vs. Union of India And 3 Others), decided on 06.05.2024.

6. We have considered the submission advanced by learned counsel for the parties, perused the records and the judgments relied upon.

7. The issue before the Court is as to whether, in terms of Clause 4(vi)(a) of the Brochure for selection, petitioner is fulfilling the requirement of land or not.

8. For the ready reference, Clause 4(vi) of the Brochure is being quoted hereinbelow: "

(vi) Land (Applicable to all categories): The applicants would be classified into three groups as mentioned below based on the land offered or land not offered by them in the application form: -

Group - 1: Applicants having suitable piece of land in the advertised location/area either by way of ownership / long term lease for a period of minimum 19 years 11 months or as advertised by the OMC.

Group - 2: Applicants having Firm Offer for a suitable piece of land for purchase or long- term lease for a period of minimum 19 years 11 months or as advertised by the OMC.

Group-3: Applicants who have not offered land in the application. Only applicable for locations advertised under SC/ST category.

Applications under Group - 3 would be processed/advised to offer land (Annexure - D) only in case no eligible applicant is found or no applicant get selected under Group-1& Group-2. In case land offered by all the applicants under Group 1 & Group 2 is found not suitable/not meeting requirements, then these applicant/s under Group - 1 & Group - 2 along with applicants under Group - 3 (who did not offer land along with application) would be advised by the OMCs to provide suitable land in the advertised location / stretch, within a period of 90 days from the date of issuance of intimation letter to them through SMS/e-mail. In case the applicant fails to provide suitable land within the prescribed period, or the land provided is found not meeting the laid down criteria, the application would be rejected.

The other conditions with respect to offering of land are as under: -

(a) The land should be available with the applicant as on the date of application and should have minimum lease of 19 years and 11 months (as advertised by respective oil company) from the date or after the date of advertisement but not later than the date of application. If the offered land is on Long-term lease and there are multiple owners, then lease deed should be executed by all co-owners of the offered plot. In case lease deed is not executed by all co-owners; such lease deed shall be treated as invalid."

9. From the perusal of the aforesaid clause, it is apparently clear that if the land, lease deed of which has been annexed along with application form is not covered under the Category of Group-I of Clause 4(vi) of the Brochure, then it is required on the part of the applicant to submit the consent of other co-sharers in terms of Clause 4(vi)a, which undisputedly has not been filed along with application and the defence of the petitioner is that, he had filed preliminary decree dated 23.09.2023, which was later on confirmed vide order dated 15.02.2025 w.e.f. 23.09.2023.

10. To adjudicate the controversy, now coming to the provision of Section 116 of Code, 2006, under which the partition suit was filed. Section 116 of the Code, 2006 provides for filing of partition suit and further, Section 117 of the Code, 2006 provides for procedure so adopted for the partition suit. Sections 116 and 117 are being quoted hereinbelow:

"116 Suit for division of holding-

(1) A bhumidhar may sue for the division of the holding of which he is a co-sharer. (2) In every such suit, the Court may also divide the trees, wells and other improvements existing on such holding but where such division is not possible, the trees, wells and other improvements aforesaid and valuation thereof shall be divided and adjusted in the manner prescribed. (3) One suit may be instituted for the division of more holdings than one where all the parties to the suit other than the Gram Panchayat are, jointly interested in each of the holdings. (4) to every suit under this section, the Gram Panchayat concerned shall be made a party."

117 Duty of Court in suits for division of holding-(1) In every suit for division of holding under section 116 the Court of Assistant Collector shall-

(a) follow such procedure as may be prescribed;

(b) apportion the land revenue payable in respect of each such division.

(2) A division of holding referred to in section 116 shall not affect the joint liability of the tenure-holders thereof in respect of the land revenue payable before the date of the final decree."

11. Rule 108 and 109 of U.P. Revenue Code Rules, 2016(hereinafter, referred to as, 'Rules, 2016') are also relevant under which, the procedure is given to decide the suit filed under Sections 116 and 117 of Code, 2006. Rules 108 and 109 of Rules, 2016 are being quoted hereinbelow:

"108. Suit for division for several holdings[Section 116]-Where the suit relates to the division of more than one holding, the particulars specified in rule 107 shall be mentioned in the plaint in respect of all such holdings.

109. Preliminary and Final decrees[Section 117]-(1) If the plaint referred to in rule 107 or rule 108 is in order, it shall be registered as a suit and the defendants shall be called upon to file their written statements. The suit shall then be decided according to the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908.

(2) Before making a division the court shall- (a) determine separately the share of the plaintiff and each of the other co-tenure holders ;

(b) record which, if any, of the co-tenure holders wish to remain joint ; and (c) make valuation of the holding (or holdings) in accordance with the circle rate fixed by the Collector applicable to each plot in the holding.

(3) If the suit is decreed, the Court shall pass a preliminary decree declaring the share of the plaintiff.

(4) After the preparation of preliminary decree the Sub Divisional Officer shall get the Kurra prepared through the Lekhpal.

(5) The Lekhpal shall submit the Kurra report within a period of one month from the date of receiving the order in this regard and at the time of preparation of Kurra he shall observe the following principles-

(a) the plot or plots shall be allotted to each party in proportionate to his share in the holding;

(b) the portion allotted to each party shall be as compact as possible;

(c) as far as possible no party shall be given all the inferior or all the superior classes of land;

(d) as far as possible existing fields shall not be split up;

(e) Plots which are in the separate possession of a tenure holder shall, as far as possible, be allotted to such tenure holder if they are not in access of his share;

(f) If the plot or any part thereof is of commercial value or is adjacent to road, abadi or any other land of commercial value, the same shall be allotted to each tenure holder proportionately and in the case of second condition the same shall be allotted proportionately adjacent to road, abadi or other land of commercial value; and

(g) If the co-tenure holders are in separate possession on the basis of mutual consent or family settlement, the Kurra shall, as far as possible, be fixed accordingly.

(6) When the report regarding Kurra is submitted by the Lekhpal, the objection shall be invited thereon and thereafter the appropriate order shall be passed by the Sub Divisional Officer after affording opportunity of hearing to the parties and considering the objection, if any, filed against the report submitted by the Lekhpal.

(7) If the report and Kurra is confirmed by the Sub Divisional Officer, the final decree shall follow it.

(8) At the stage of the final decree, the Court shall-

(a) Separate the share of the plaintiff from that of the defendant by metes and bounds.

(b) Place on record a map showing in different colours the properties given to plaintiff as distinct from those given to the defendant.

(c) Apportion the land revenue payable by the parties.

(d) Direct the record of rights and map to be corrected accordingly. "

(9) If, for adjusting the equities between the parties, payment of compensation regarding trees, wells or other 73 improvements becomes necessary, the revenue Court concerned may also pass necessary orders at the stage of final decree.

(10) The Sub-Divisional Officer shall make an endeavour to decide the suit within the period of six months and if the suit is not decided within such period, the reason shall be recorded. "

12.. From the perusal of the aforesaid provisions, it is apparently clear that if the suit is decreed and preliminary decree is prepared, at the stage of final decree, the court shall separate the share of plaintiffs from the defendants by metes and bounds, place on record a map showing in different colours the properties given to plaintiff as distinct from those given to the defendant, apportion of the land revenue payable by the parties and direct the record of rights and map to be corrected accordingly.

13. Now, coming to the present case. It is undisputed that at the time of submission of application i.e. 16.10.2023, preliminary decree dated 23.9.2023 was prepared, which was not final in terms of Sections 116 & 117 of the Code, 2006 read with Rule 108 & 109 of Rules 2016 and at the stage of preparation of final decree, location of the land may be changed. Preliminary decree was confirmed as final decree vide order dated 15.2.2024 passed by the Sub Divisional Magistrate. Therefore, on the date of filing of submission of application, petitioner is having no final document with regard to land so offered for establishment of retail outlet.

14. "Oil Corporation? after granting the allotment letter invest a huge amount in installation of retail outlet and in case of change of location of land after installation, may suffer huge financial loss, therefore, the provision has been made to present the land absolutely undisputed having the consent of all share holders. Therefore, in light of such facts, once the final decree is not prepared in terms of Rule 109 of Rules, 2016, land cannot said to be fulfilling the norms so required under Clause 4(iv)(a) of the Brochure.

15. Similar issue came up before this Court in Rahul Singh(Supra). Relevant paragraphs of the said judgment are being quoted hereinbelow;

"9. In view of the above, we find that the Brochure stipulates amongst others two contingencies (discussed here namely), one where the land may be owned by a person other than the applicant or his family members, second, where the land may be owned by the applicant alongwith others or others alongwith his family members or both. Considering the present facts land is owned by third parties to the exclusion of the applicant and his family members. That situation is dealt with in terms of Clause 4 (vi) (a).

10. The situation were the land may be owned by the applicant either in his own name or alongwith his family members and/or other persons has been dealt with in Clause 4 (vi) (m) under situations 1, 2 and 3 dealt with in the tabular chart under the heading ?GROUP I? appearing in that Clause.

11. Then, without reference to Clause (a), (m) or any Sub-Clause of Clause 4 (vi) of the Brochure, Note-3 thereto only provides- wherever consent letter is required, it may be submitted on form Appendix III.

12. As noted above, in the present facts, the land offered in the allotment is not owned by the petitioner/applicant or the petitioner/applicant alongwith his family members or by the petitioner/applicant alongwith other owners and his family members. Therefore, Clause 4 (vi) (m) would not apply to the present facts.

13. On the contrary, the only Clause applicable to such facts would be Clause 4 (vi) (a). That Clause clearly stipulates that the land offered for allotment should be available to the applicant on the date of submission of his application against a long term lease executed by "all co-owners". The consequence of non execution of such lease deed is also provided in the said Clause. Thus it has been stipulated, in case such lease deed is not executed by all co-owners, the same shall be invalid. Once invalid that ineligibility attaches to the application submitted by the petitioner on the date of submission of his application.

14. For the purpose of application of the said Clause the requirement remains- execution of lease deed by all co-owners, therefore, consent letters cannot fulfil that stipulation. In face of the consequences of invalidity of the lease deed having been specified, there survives no occasion to consider if the defect in such application could ever been cured, after its submission.

15. Consequentially, the method of curing the defect considered under Note-3 (noted above) would remain confined to the cases falling under Clause 4 (vi) (m), only.

16. For the reasons noted above, we conclude, the petitioner?s case would remain covered by Clause 4 (vi) (a) of the Brochure. It is admitted that the lease deed relied by the petitioner was not executed by all co-owners before the date of submission of the application. Therefore, there is no error on the part of the respondent in rejecting the application submitted by the petitioner. "

16. In this case referred hereinabove, consent of co-sharers was not available, therefore, Court has held that land documents along with application cannot be treated to be fulfilling the norms as required Clause 4(vi)(a) of the Brochure for selection.

17. Almost with the similar facts to the present case, this issue again came up before this Court in Amarjeet (Supra) and the Court has taken the similar view. Relevant paragraphs of the said judgment are being quoted hereinbelow:

"13. Insofar as the present facts are concerned, it is not the case of the petitioner that the plot no. 965 (entire) was in the exclusive ownership of the Mahendra Singh. The petitioner admits that there were co-sharers in that plot along with Mahendra Singh. At the same time, the Brochure required lease deed to be executed by all co-sharers of the plot being offered for allotment. Also, there can be no dispute to the fact that the above eligibility condition was to be met on the date of application i.e. 25.9.2023. Therefore, the rights of Mahendra Singh in plot no. 965, are to be seen on the date of filing of the application dated 25.9.2023, only. Subsequent developments or change of circumstances would have no bearing on the rights being claimed by the petitioner. In any case, they may not alter the eligibility requirement that has been enforced under the Brochure.

14. Tested on that principle, while the petitioner claims existence of a compromise reached prior to the eligibility date 25.9.2023 as acknowledged in the order dated 11.2.2023 passed by Assistant Consolidation Officer, at the same time, it is the own case of the petitioner that the said order was erroneous to the extent it failed to fully recognize the compromise in entirety and it failed to recognize the partition by metes and bounds that had taken place between the parties to that dispute. Therefore, the petitioner appealed against that order before Settlement Officer, Consolidation and was successful in that appeal to the extent the Settlement Officer, Consolidation vide his order dated 20.12.2023 clearly provided for preparation of the 'Kurra' in terms of settlement/compromise reached between the parties, both as to the shares as also to the exact allocation of the apportioned shares.

15. Though the said order dated 20.12.2023 may relate back inter parties (to the dispute before the Consolidation authorities), and no other right may be claimed by the co-sharers, yet, IOCL was a stranger to that dispute. It may not have acted upon it. It could only recognize the rights of the parties as were seen to exist i.e. were adjudicated on the date of the application i.e. 25.9.2023. What transpired thereafter may not alter the status of eligibility conditions. The exact allocation of the apportioned shares not enforced on that date - by metes and bounds, no benefit may be drawn against the I.O.C.L., by the subsequent events arising from the appeal filed by Mahendra Singh being allowed. To that extent, Clause 4(vi)(a) of the Brochure is specific and consequence of its non-compliance is also unequivocally clear. It was for the petitioner to act accordingly, and offer non-litigious land, as stipulated, in the Brochure.

16. To the extent the order of the Settlement Officer, Consolidation dated 20.12.2023 did not exist on the date of eligibility claimed and there was no 'Kurra' prepared, the partition by metes and bounds was not visible to I.O.C.L. Merely because there may not survive any dispute between Mahendra Singh and his co-sharers on the strength of some private partition held, in absence of public recognition granted in law, either through the order of the Settlement Officer, Consolidation, and/or through appropriate revenue entries, the IOCL may have remained within its rights not to recognize and/or act on such developments as may have involved alteration of its own position viz-a-viz the proposed Retail Outlet.

17. In matters of contract, the Writ Court may leave it open to the contracting parties to act in the manner they may deem fit. Insofar as the action of the IOCL is not seen to be plainly arbitrary and/or unreasoned, we are not inclined to offer any interference under Article 226 of the Constitution of India to reverse the commercial decision of the IOCL - to not enter into the contract with the petitioner.

18. In view of that reason arising, we are not inclined to act on the otherwise sustainable ground of challenge that the order impugned is non-speaking. Intervention if made, on that count would only result in an academic exercise.

19. In view of the above, writ petition lacks merit and is accordingly dismissed. No order as to costs."

18. This matter is more identical to the present dispute in which date of filing of application is 25.9.2023 whereas an order was passed by the Assistant Consolidation Officer on 11.2.2023, the basis of fulfilling the land norms. Ultimately, the status of said land was finalized vide order dated 20.12.2023 for preparation of Kurra in terms of settlement and compromise earlier agreed between the parties on 11.2.2023, but Court has held that it was finalized only after date of application on 25.9.2023, therefore, same cannot be taken into account for allotment of retail outlet and accordingly dismissed the petition.

19. The controversy involved hereinabove is identical controversy to the present case, therefore, ratio of law of this judgment referred hereinabove shall also be applicable in the present case.

20. Therefore, in light of facts of the case, provisions of law and judgment of this Court, Court is of the firm view that in case of joint ownership of land, consents of all co-sharers are required and further to establish the partition preliminary decree is not sufficient and a final decree is required along with application in terms of Sections 116 & 117 of the Code, 2006 read with Rule 108 & 109 of Rules 2016. The Court finds no infirmity or illegality in the impugned order and is liable to be dismissed.

21. Writ Petition lacks merit and is hereby dismissed. No order as to costs.

Headnotes

Constitution of India,1950-Article 226-U.P. Revenue Code,2006-Sections 34, 35, 35(2), 39, 210-The court followed the principles established in the Kalawati case-mutation proceedings are purely for fiscal purposes and do not create or extinguish substantive property rights-writ petitions under Article 226 are generally not maintainable against mutation orders because an efficacious remedy (a civil title suit) is available-Revenue entries have no evidentiary value regarding ownership and are always subject to the final decision of a competent civil court-writ petition dismissed.(Para 6 to 11) (E-6)

Held

The court refused to interfere because the disputes involves complex questions of Hindu undivided family law and the validity of a will, which require a full trial with evidence not a summary writ hearing.

From the Judgment and Order dated 19.12.2025 of the High Court of Judicature at Allahabad.

Appearances for parties

Adv, for Petitioner:-
Ram Prakash

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Yogendra Kumar Srivastava, J.)

1. Heard Sri Ram Prakash Pandey, learned counsel for the petitioner, Sri J N Maurya, learned Chief Standing Counsel appearing along with Sri Dinesh Kumar Tiwari, for the State-respondents and Sri Puneet Kumar Upadhyay, holding brief of Sri Ashutosh Pandey, learned counsel appearing for respondent no.6.

2. The present petition has been filed under Article 226 of the Constitution of India, challenging the orders dated 18.10.2021 and 05.02.2024 passed by the Tehsildar/Respondent no.5, Tehsil Bhanpur, District Basti, in Case No.00335/2016 (Sushila vs. Gangaram), under Section 34 of the U P Revenue Code, 2006, the appellate order dated 18.07.2024 passed by the Sub-Divisional Magistrate/Respondent no. 4, Bhanpur, in Case No. 603/2024 (Gangaram Mishra vs. Smt. Sushila Devi and others) under Section 35 (2) of the Code, 2006, and the revisional order dated 04.10.2025 passed by the Additional Commissioner (Administration)/Respondent no. 3, Basti Region, in Case No. 1052/2024 (Gangaram Mishra vs. Sushila Devi) under Section 210 of the Code, 2006.

3. The dispute pertains to agricultural land situated at Village Chhitirgavan, Tehsil Bhanpur, District Basti, which is admittedly joint family property. The factual background of the case, as reflected from the pleadings, is set out hereinbelow:

3.1 On 25.07.2016, the petitioner's brother, Tulsi Ram is stated to have executed a registered sale deed in favour of respondent no.6, Sushila Devi. The petitioner claims that the transfer was made in excess of the vendor's undivided share and without prior partition.

3.2 On the same date, the petitioner's mother is stated to have executed a registered Will in favour of the petitioner. Mutation proceedings were thereafter initiated on the basis of the sale deed.

3.3 By order dated 18.10.2021, mutation was allowed in favour of respondent no.6. The petitioner filed a recall application and objections. Subsequently, by order dated 05.02.2024, the Tehsildar reaffirmed the mutation entry.

3.4 The appeal preferred by the petitioner under Section 35(2) of the Code was dismissed on 18.07.2024, and the revision under Section 210 of the Code was dismissed on 04.10.2025.

3.5 Original Suit No.18 of 2017, filed by the petitioner and his mother seeking adjudication of title and challenging the sale deed, is pending before the Civil Judge (Senior Division), Basti.

4. Counsel for the petitioner submits that the mutation orders are illegal as the sale deed was executed beyond the share of the transferor and without partition, and that the authorities failed to consider the Will and objections raised by the petitioner.

5. Counsel for the State-respondents and also counsel appearing for the private respondent contend that the impugned orders arise out of mutation proceedings which are summary in nature, do not decide title, and that the petitioner has an efficacious remedy before the civil court where the title dispute is already pending. It is further submitted that in the suit, the application seeking interim injunction has been rejected.

6. The legal position regarding the nature, scope and maintainability of writ petitions challenging orders passed in mutation proceedings under the Code, 2006 stands authoritatively settled by this Court in *Smt. Kalawati v. The Board of Revenue*², which has been followed consistently in subsequent decisions.

7. The principles laid down in Kalawati case (supra) may be restated as follows:

7.1 Summary and fiscal character of mutation proceedings: Proceedings under Sections 34 and 35 of the U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 are purely summary in nature, undertaken for fiscal purposes such as updating revenue records and facilitating land revenue collection. They neither create, confer, extinguish nor determine substantive rights or title to property. Mutation entries do not constitute title documents or operate as deeds of conveyance.

7.2. No presumptive or evidentiary value on title: Entries made pursuant to mutation proceedings have no presumptive value whatsoever on questions of ownership, title or proprietary rights. Such entries are always subject to challenge and final adjudication by a competent civil or revenue court. Section 39 of the U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 expressly stipulates that no order or entry under mutation proceedings shall debar any person from establishing his rights in a suit or other legal proceeding.

7.3 Writ jurisdiction ordinarily not invocable: This Court has held that writ petitions under Article 226 challenging mutation orders are generally not entertainable, as the petitioner has an efficacious alternative remedy by instituting a civil suit for declaration of title, permanent prohibitory injunction and consequential reliefs. The extraordinary writ jurisdiction is not to be exercised as a court of appeal to re-appreciate evidence, correct errors of fact or law, or interfere in summary fiscal proceedings. Judicial restraint is imperative to maintain the distinction between revenue record updation and substantive title adjudication.

7.4 Exceptions for writ interference: Despite the general bar, writ jurisdiction may be exercised in exceptional circumstances where any of the following conditions is demonstrably satisfied:

(i) the order or proceedings are wholly without jurisdiction;

(ii) rights or title already adjudicated by a competent civil court are ignored, varied or contradicted;

(iii) mutation directed not solely on basis of possession but on substantive merits of title or succession claims;

(iv) rights purportedly created in the mutation order in violation of express statutory provisions;

(v) order obtained through fraud, collusion, fabrication or material misrepresentation;

(vi) patent jurisdictional error, excess of jurisdiction or gross abuse of authority;

(vii) violation of principles of natural justice, such as non-issuance of notice or denial of hearing.

8. These principles have been reiterated and applied in a series of subsequent decisions, underscoring that writ interference against mutation orders is warranted only in rare and exceptional cases to prevent manifest injustice or jurisdictional excesses.

9. Applying the aforesaid principles enunciated in the case of Smt. Kalawati (supra) to the facts of the present case, it would be noticed that:

(a) Core dispute is one of title not essential for writ adjudication: The petitioner's primary grievance concerns the validity of the registered sale deed dated 25.07.2016 (allegedly executed by Tulsi Ram beyond his undivided share in joint family property without partition), the competing claim under the mother's Will dated 25.07.2016, and determination of respective shares in the joint family property. These raise complex questions of title, succession, Hindu undivided family law, validity of conveyance, and evidentiary appreciation, which are quintessentially fit for detailed trial before a civil court and wholly inappropriate for summary interference in writ jurisdiction.

(b) Impugned orders purely fiscal, no title declaration: A perusal of the impugned orders reveals that they merely direct mutation/entry of name of respondent no.6 in revenue records on the basis of prima facie consideration of the registered sale deed and possession, strictly for fiscal purposes under Sections 34 of the Code, 2006. No conclusive or substantive declaration of title, ownership or proprietary rights has been made by any authority.

(c) None of the seven exceptions laid down in the Kalawati case, are attracted: The petitioner has failed to demonstrate satisfaction of any recognized exception justifying writ interference:

(i) No jurisdictional defect: The Tehsildar, SDM and Additional Commissioner were duly seized of jurisdiction under Sections 34, 35 (2) and 210 of the Code, 2006 to entertain and decide mutation matters.

(ii) No prior civil court decree ignored: There exists no prior judgment or decree of any competent civil court declaring title in favour of the petitioner that stands contradicted.

(iii) Mutation based on possession and sale deed, not title merits: The orders rest on possession evidenced by the registered sale deed, without entering into substantive adjudication of shares, partition or Will validity.

(iv) No statutory violation: No mandatory statutory safeguard has been breached in the mutation process.

(v) No fraud or misrepresentation pleaded/proved: There is no specific averment, much less material evidence, of fraud, collusion, fabrication of documents or material misrepresentation vitiating the orders.

(vi) No jurisdictional error/excess/abuse: The record discloses no patent lack, excess or abuse of jurisdiction; authorities acted within competence.

(vii) Natural justice duly observed: Notices were issued to parties at every stage, objections/recall applications entertained, documentary evidence (sale deed, Will, etc.) considered, and opportunities of hearing afforded before all the authorities.

(d) Efficacious civil remedy available and pending: Original Suit No. 18/2017 challenging the sale deed, seeking title declaration and ancillary reliefs is admittedly pending adjudication before the Civil Judge (Senior Division), Basti. The rejection of interim injunction therein further confirms that title merits necessitate full-dressed trial with evidence. Section 39 of the U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 unequivocally protects the petitioner's right to establish title in the suit, uninfluenced by mutation findings.

(e) Writ interference would undermine settled principles: Entertaining this petition would circumvent the pending civil suit, multiply proceedings, and erode the fiscal/summary nature of mutation as emphasized in the Kalawati (supra). Any apprehension that mutation entries may prejudice the civil court is baseless, as revenue records enjoy no evidentiary weight on title, and civil courts decide independently per law.

10. Taking into view the exposition of the legal position with regard to the summary nature of mutation proceedings in the case of Kalawati (supra), the complete absence of any exceptional circumstance wherein a writ petition may be entertained, and the availability of efficacious alternative remedy before the competent civil court, this Court is not inclined to exercise its extraordinary discretionary jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution in the facts of the case.

11. The writ petition is dismissed as being not entertainable.

12. It is, however, clarified that the petitioner shall be at liberty to pursue Original Suit No.18 of 2017, stated to be pending before the civil court, or institute any other appropriate legal proceedings for declaration of title/rights and consequential reliefs before the competent court/authority; any such civil or revenue court/authority shall independently adjudicate the matter strictly on merits in accordance with law, wholly uninfluenced by the impugned mutation orders (being purely fiscal in nature) or any observation contained herein; and all rights, contentions and pleas of the parties on merits are expressly kept open.

Advs. for Respondent:

Bhupendra Kumar Tripathi, C.S.C, Dharmendra Kumar, Shahbaz Ahmad Khan Shailendra Kumar

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Yogendra Kumar Srivastava, J.)

1. Heard Sri Awadhesh Kumar Malviya, learned counsel for the petitioner, Sri Abhishek Shukla, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel appearing for the State-respondents and Sri Dharmendra

Kumar, learned counsel appearing for the private respondent nos.6 to 10.

2. The petitioner contends that he is a tenure-holder of the adjoining Plot No. 2566, while the demarcation proceedings in respect of Plot No. 2565 were carried out ex parte against him. The Revenue Inspector is stated to have submitted a report dated 06.04.2023 without conducting any spot inspection or issuing notice to the petitioner. Relying solely on the said report, the Sub-Divisional Magistrate passed an ex parte order dated 02.06.2023.

3. Upon acquiring knowledge of the ex parte order, the petitioner filed a recall application dated 06.06.2023, which is stated to have been rejected on 19.12.2023 on hyper-technical grounds, without adjudicating his objections on merits.

4. Aggrieved thereby, the petitioner preferred two appeals - Appeal No. 2903 of 2023 against the order dated 02.06.2023, and Appeal No. 2904 of 2023 against the rejection of the recall application. Both appeals were dismissed by the Additional Commissioner, Varanasi Region, vide common order dated 06.11.2025.

5. The petitioner asserts that being tenure-holder of a contiguous plot, he was entitled to notice and opportunity of hearing prior to any demarcation order under Section 24 of the U P Revenue Code, 20061 read with Rule 22 of the U.P. Revenue Code Rules, 20162. The impugned orders, passed without such notice, stand vitiated for breach of natural justice.

6. It is contended that the demarcation having been conducted in violation of the mandatory provision of Rule 22 of the Rules, 2016, which requires notice to tenure-holders of contiguous plots, the entire proceedings and resulting orders stand vitiated for breach of audi alteram partem, an integral limb of the principles of natural justice enshrined under Article 14 of the Constitution.

7. Learned counsel for the petitioner further points out that proceedings under Section 28 of the Code for correction of the revenue map concerning the same plot are pending before the competent authority and remain protected by an interim order. Thus, permitting the ex parte demarcation to operate would create inconsistency between two contemporaneous revenue proceedings.

8. Learned counsel for the State respondents and for the private respondents do not dispute the ex parte nature of the Section 24 proceedings, nor the petitioner's entitlement, as an adjoining tenure-holder, to notice and hearing under Rule 22.

9. Section 24 of the Code empowers the Sub-Divisional Officer to decide boundary disputes through summary inquiry. However, Rule 22(2) of the Rules mandates that tenure-holders of adjoining or contiguous plots be issued notice and given an opportunity of hearing before determination. Failure in this regard amounts to violation of audi alteram partem, which forms an integral component of Article 14 of the Constitution.

10. This procedural safeguard ensures fairness and transparency in boundary determination. Land boundaries have direct bearing on proprietary and possessory rights; thus, ignoring the participation of adjoining tenure-holders fundamentally undermines the legitimacy of such a demarcation. It is a well-settled proposition that violation of a mandatory procedural requirement, designed to ensure fairness, results in illegality rather than a mere irregularity.

11. The rationale underlying Rule 22 resonates with the constitutional requirement of audi alteram partem, meaning "hear the other side." The principles of natural justice are not mere formality but a substantive guarantee that no one shall be condemned unheard. The doctrine underscores that every administrative or quasi-judicial authority exercising statutory power must provide affected persons with a fair chance of representation before passing any order that may prejudice their rights. The absence of notice and opportunity to the petitioner, an adjoining tenure-holder, therefore strikes at the very root of the proceedings.

12. The next question is whether, in the absence of an express provision for recall under the Code, the Sub-Divisional Officer was competent to recall an ex parte demarcation order when the petitioner approached him immediately upon knowledge of such order. This issue stands squarely answered by this Court in Tarkeshwar and 2 Others v. State of U.P. and 5 Others. The Court held that while there may not exist an express statutory provision for recall under Section 24, such power inheres in every judicial or quasi-judicial authority to correct its own procedural errors when the order impugned has resulted in denial of opportunity. This power, described as procedural recall, is distinct from a review on merits as contemplated under Section 24 (4).

13. The principle of procedural recall received authoritative elucidation in Grindlays Bank Ltd. v. Central Government Industrial Tribunal, wherein the Supreme Court held that even in the absence of specific statutory authority, a tribunal has the inherent power to recall an ex parte award if an affected party establishes that it was deprived of an opportunity of hearing. The Court reasoned that such recall does not amount to review but is rather an exercise of correcting a procedural defect ex debito justitiae in discharge of a duty owed to justice itself.

14. Similarly, in Kapra Mazdoor Ekta Union v. Birla Cotton Spinning & Weaving Mills Ltd., the Supreme Court reiterated that a tribunal or court retains the jurisdiction to recall an order that has been passed in violation of natural justice so long as it continues to be seized of the matter, and is not rendered functus officio. Such a power exists to prevent miscarriage of justice resulting from procedural errors.

15. The aforesaid principles were comprehensively applied by this Court in Tarkeshwar (supra), while construing Section 24 of the U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 and Rule 22 of the Rules framed thereunder. It was held that tenure-holders of contiguous plots are necessary parties to demarcation proceedings, and non-service of notice upon them vitiates the entire exercise. It was further observed that where an ex parte demarcation order has been passed without notice, the affected tenure-holder is entitled to seek recall, and the authority concerned is not powerless to entertain such application. The failure to entertain or allow such procedural recall would perpetuate injustice and frustrate the very object of fair adjudication contemplated by the Code.

16. In the present case, the admitted facts disclose a clear violation of Rule 22.

The Sub-Divisional Officer proceeded to determine the boundary dispute without issuing notice or affording hearing to the petitioner, a recorded holder of the adjoining plot. The resultant demarcation thereby suffers from a procedural illegality of a fundamental character. The plea of natural justice cannot be brushed aside on the ground that subsequent appellate remedies exist, for the violation is not curable by appeal; it vitiates the proceeding itself.

17. Applying the above principles, it must be held that the demarcation proceedings culminating in the order dated 02.06.2023 suffered from a foundational procedural illegality. The petitioner, though a necessary party under Rule 22, was denied notice and opportunity of hearing, thereby offending audi alteram partem and the mandate of the Rules. Such violation goes to the root of the jurisdiction exercised and renders the resultant order legally vulnerable.

18. Once the petitioner, upon gaining knowledge, moved a recall application dated 06.06.2023 specifically alleging denial of notice, the Sub-Divisional Officer was duty bound, in the light of Tarkeshwar (supra), to examine that grievance as a matter of procedural recall and to correct the error ex debito justitiae. The rejection of the recall application on hyper technical grounds, without addressing the core plea of violation of Rule 22 and natural justice, is contrary to the law declared in Tarkeshwar (supra) and cannot be sustained.

19. The appellate authority, in turn, failed to appreciate that the defect was not a mere irregularity curable in appeal, but a structural breach of a mandatory procedural safeguard that vitiated the entire proceedings. By affirming the ex parte demarcation without curing the Rule 22 violation or recognising the maintainability and scope of procedural recall as declared in Tarkeshwar (supra), the Commissioner's order dated 06.11.2025 is equally rendered unsustainable in law.

20. The impugned orders are, therefore, set aside.

21. The matter is remitted to Respondent No. 4 (Sub-Divisional Officer) to conduct fresh proceedings under Section 24 of the U.P. Revenue Code, 2006, after issuing due notice and opportunity of hearing to the petitioner and all other interested parties.

22. The Sub-Divisional Officer shall conclude the proceedings expeditiously, preferably within a period of three months from the date of production of a certified copy of this order, provided there is no legal impediment. The parties are directed to cooperate fully in the said proceedings.

23. The writ petition stands allowed in the terms indicated above.

Ram Kumar Vs. Narain & Ors

From the Judgment and Order dated 02.12.2025 of the High Court of Judicature at Allahabad.

Appearances for Parties

Advs. for Petitioner:-

R.P.Pandey, G.P.Pandey, Rajeev Kumar Tripathi

Advs. for Respondent:-

C.S.C., Dharmendra Singh Gaur, K.N Shukla, Rahul Mishra, Shiv Kumar Mishra

(Delivered by Hon'ble Irshad Ali, J.)

1. Heard Sri Rajeev Kumar Tripathi, learned counsel for the petitioner, Sri Shiv Kumar Mishra and Sri Rahul Mishra, learned counsel for legal heirs of respondent No.1 and Sri Divesh Mishra, learned Standing Counsel for respondent Nos.4, 5 and 6.

2. By means of the present writ petition, the petitioner has prayed as under :-

"(i) to issue writ of certiorari quashing order Annexure No.1 dated 8.12.96 passed by opposite party No. 4 which is perverse order and has been passed having no primary and secondary evidence on record.

(ii) to issue writ of Mandamus directing opposite parties No. 1 to 3 not to interfere in the peaceful possession of the petitioner, the land in dispute.

(iii) to issue of writ of certiorari quashing Annexure No.2 passed by opp. party No. 5 which is illegal and to set aside order Annexures No. 1 and 2 and to confirm the order Annexure No. 3 passed by trial Court after examining the primary and secondary evidence on record.

(iv) ..."

3. Factual matrix of the case is that agricultural land of gata No. 3/0.2870 Hectare situate in Village Surjana Khurd, 52/0.4700 Hectare situate in Village Gharua, 142/1.5500 Hectare, 152/468/0.1090 Hectare, 152/0.2800 Hectare, 156/0.4820 Hectare, 163/0.2100 Hectare situate in Village Sarai Jagna, Tehsil of all villages Kaiserganj, District Bahraich was ancestral land of petitioner. Gayadeen has three sons namely Samay Deen, Narain, Ram Asrey.

4. Since Ram Asray was issueless and as such when the petitioner was minor of 4 years old, he was adopted by Ram Asrey after necessary Hindu rituals and customs from their natural father and mother Sri Samay Deen and Smt. Dhanpata and an adoption deed was duly executed and registered on 8.2.1982.

5. After death of Sri Ram Asrey son of Gaya Deen, petitioner succeeded all the movable and immovable properties including the share of his adoptive father Sri Ram Asrey in the agricultural land as per aforesaid adoption and as such a mutation application on behalf of petitioner through his natural father was filed. An objection against the mutation application was filed by father of opposite party nos. 1/1 and 1/2 on 15.7.1987.

6. The original adoption deed was filed on behalf of petitioner and same got proved alongwith possession of the petitioner upon the land in dispute by examining Smt. Dhanpata, natural mother and marginal witnesses Ganga Ram son of Sanehi alongwith Brijlal son of Madho, Village Pradhan Jagdev Singh son of Raghuraj Singh and Shiv Sahay (the Priest who carried out the rituals of adoption) and thereby case of petitioner for mutation was proved. On behalf of objector opposite party no. 1 (deceased) got himself examined and also examined his witnesses Jogi son of Parmeshwar and Ayodhya Prasad son of Ram Asrey.

7. By finding the adoption deed and possession of the petitioner proved and by finding that objector could not be able to rebut the evidences adduced on behalf of petitioner and also could not be able to prove his possession upon the share in the land left behind by Ram Asrey son of Gaya Deen, the Naib Tehsildar, Kaiserganj, District Bahraich passed an order of mutation in favour of petitioner in respect of land in dispute as stated aforesaid and situated in 3 different villages on 18.8.1992.

8. The Sub Divisional Officer, Kaiserganj allowed the 3 appeals filed by opposite party No.1 through a common judgment and order by ignoring the findings recorded by the mutation court and the evidence on record that too by giving quite perverse finding and thereby the order of mutation dated 18.08.1992 was set aside and names of Samay Deen and Narain being the brothers of deceased Khatedar Ram Asrey was directed to be recorded in the revenue records vide order dated 17.9.1993.

9. It is submitted by learned counsel for the petitioner that against the order passed in three appeals, three different revisions were filed on behalf of petitioner in the court of Commissioner, Faizabad Division, Faizabad, who, by completely ignoring the presumptions attached with the registered adoption deed in terms of Section 16 of the Hindu Adoption and Maintenance Act and also by ignoring the illegality, irregularity and perversity committed by appellate court, dismissed all three Revisions by passing a common order dated 8.12.1999.

10. Submission of learned counsel for the petitioner is that if there was any grievance against the adoption deed duly registered, the respondents would have filed statutory proceeding, challenging the adoption deed registered and due to non challenging the adoption deed, the finding recorded by the appellate court and revisional court, showing assumption of doubt, is perverse in nature and the orders passed are not sustainable in the eyes of law.

11. Next submission is that no reasons have been recorded in coming to the conclusion that adoption deed is suspicious in nature. He submits that reasons are heartbeat of conclusion and without reasons, the order becomes lifeless, therefore, due to non-recording of reasons in coming to the conclusion that the adoption deed is suspicious in nature, is wholly illegal and devoid of merit.

12. Learned counsel for the petitioner submits that Section 16 of the Hindu Adoption and Maintenance Act clearly provides that whenever any document registered under any law for the time being in force is produced before any court purporting to record an adoption made and is signed by the person giving and the person taking the child in adoption, the court shall presume that the adoption has been made in compliance with the provisions of this Act unless and until it is disproved.

13. In the light of the aforesaid provision, submission of learned counsel for the petitioner is that the adoption deed has never been disproved by any competent court of law, therefore, suspicion on the adoption deed is wholly misconceived and erroneous in nature, therefore, the orders passed are not sustainable in law and are liable to be set aside. In support of his submission, he placed reliance upon the following judgments :-

(i) Laxmibai (Dead) Through LRs & another Vs. Bhagwantbuva (Dead) Through LRs & others [(2013) 4 Supreme Court Cases 97]. Relevant paragraphs 28 to 33 are being quoted below :-

"28. In S.T. Krishnappa v. Shivakumar this Court observed that the adoption deed" must be read as a whole and that on reading the same in such a way, the intention of the parties with respect to whether the adoptive father/mother wanted to make an adoption according to law and not merely to appoint an heir, must be clearly established.

29. In L. Debi Prasad v. Tribeni Devi(SCC p. 681, para 8) this Court held that the giving and receiving are absolutely necessary to the validity of an adoption. All that is required is that the natural father be asked by the adoptive parent to give his son in adoption, and that the boy be handed over and taken for this purpose.

30. Furthermore, in Deu v. Laxmi Narayan, the presumption of registered documents under Section 16 of the Act was discussed. It was held that in view of Section 16, wherever any document registered under any law is produced before any court purporting to record an adoption made, and the same is signed by the persons mentioned therein, the court shall presume that the said adoption has been made in compliance with the provisions of the Act, until and unless such presumption is disproved. It was further held, that in view of Section 16 it is open for a party to attempt to disprove the deed of adoption by initiating independent proceedings.

31. Mere technicalities therefore, cannot defeat the purpose of adoption, particularly when the respondent-defendants have not made any attempt to disprove the said document. No reference was ever made either by them, or by their witnesses, to this document i.e registered adoption deed. Undoubtedly, the natural parents had signed along with 7 witnesses and not at the place where the executants could sign. But it is not a case where there were no witnesses except the executants. Instead of two witnesses, seven attesting witnesses put their signatures.

32. In Atluri Brahmanandam v. Anne Si Bapuji the Court held: (SCC pp.468-70, paras 10 & 13)

"10. The aforesaid deed of adoption was produced in evidence and the same was duly proved in the trial by the evidence led by PW 1, the respondent. We have carefully scrutinised the cross-examination of the said witness. In the entire cross-examination, no challenge was made by the appellant herein either to the legality of the said document or to the validity of the same. Therefore, the said registered adoption deed went un rebutted and unchallenged. We have already referred to the recitals in the said document which is a registered document and according to the recitals therein, the respondent was legally and validly adopted by the adoptive father.

13. ... Since the aforesaid custom and aforesaid adoption was also recorded in a registered deed of adoption, the Court has to presume that the adoption has been made in compliance with the provisions of the Act, since the respondent has utterly failed to challenge the said evidence and also to disprove the aforesaid adoption."(emphasis added)

33. The appellate courts could therefore, not have drawn any adverse inference against the appellant-plaintiffs on the basis of a mere technicality, to the effect that the natural parents of the adoptive child had acted as witnesses, and not as executors of the document. Undoubtedly, adoption disturbs the natural line of succession, owing to which, a very heavy burden is placed upon the propounder to prove the adoption. However, this onus shifts to the person who challenges the adoption, once a registered document recording the adoption is brought before the court. This aspect must be considered taking note of various other attending circumstances i.e evidence regarding the religious ceremony (giving and taking of the child), as the same is a sine qua non for valid adoption."

(ii) Mst. Deu & others Vs. Laxmi Narayan & others [(1998) 9 Supreme Court Cases 701]. Relevant paragraphs 2 and 3 are being quoted below :-

"2. Once the respondent filed an application for substitution and produced a registered deed of adoption, the trial court should have substituted him in place of Smt

Phulla on being satisfied that the conditions of Section 16 of the Hindu Adoptions and Maintenance Act, 1956 had been complied with. Section 16 of the Act reads as follows:

"16. Presumption as to registered documents relating to adoption.--Whenever any document registered under any law for the time being in force is produced before any court purporting to record an adoption made and is signed by the person giving and the person taking the child in adoption, the court shall presume that the adoption has been made in compliance with the provisions of this Act unless and until it is disproved."

3. In view of Section 16 aforesaid whenever any document registered under any law for the time being in force is produced before any court purporting to record an adoption made and is signed by the persons mentioned therein, the court shall presume that the adoption has been made in compliance with the provisions of the said Act unless and until it is disproved. According to us, it was not open to the defendants of the said suit for partition to collaterally challenge the said registered deed of partition. In view of Section 16 of the aforesaid Act it was open to them to disprove such deed of adoption but for that they had to take independent proceeding. The High Court was fully justified in directing that the respondent be substituted in place of Smt Phulla on the basis of the registered deed of adoption produced before the court."

14. Per-contra, learned counsel for legal heirs of respondent No.1 raised preliminary objection in regard to maintainability of writ petition and placed reliance upon a judgment rendered in the case of State of U.P. Vs. Board of

Revenue [C.M.W.P. No.30386 of 1991]. Relevant paragraph 7 is being quoted below :-

"7. A bare perusal of the impugned order indicates that writ petition arises out of the mutation proceedings under Sec. 34 of the Act, and in the said proceedings right of the parties are not decided rather mutation proceedings are fiscal in nature. Consequently, I am of the opinion that the petitioner if so advised may seek his or its remedy before competent court by filing a regular suit or initiating some other proceedings."

15. After having heard the rival submission of learned counsel for the parties, I perused the material on record as well as the judgments relied upon by the parties.

16. Against the order passed in three appeals, three different revisions were filed on behalf of petitioner in the court of Commissioner, Faizabad Division, Faizabad, who, by completely ignoring the presumptions attached with the registered adoption deed in terms of Section 16 of the Hindu Adoption and Maintenance Act and also by ignoring the illegality, irregularity and perversity committed by appellate court, dismissed all three Revisions by passing a common order dated 8.12.1999, therefore, the order suffers from apparent illegality and is liable to be set aside.

17. If there was any grievance against the adoption deed duly registered, the respondents would have filed statutory proceeding, challenging the adoption deed registered and due to non challenging the adoption deed, the finding recorded by the appellate court and revisional court, showing assumption of doubt, is perverse in nature and the orders passed are not sustainable in the eyes of law.

18. No reasons have been recorded in coming to the conclusion that adoption deed is suspicious in nature. Reasons are the heartbeat of any conclusion and without reasons, the order becomes lifeless, therefore, due to non-recording of reasons in coming to the conclusion that the adoption deed is suspicious in nature, is wholly illegal and devoid of merit.

19. Section 16 of the Hindu Adoption and Maintenance Act clearly provides that whenever any document registered under any law for the time being in force is produced before any court purporting to record an adoption made and is signed by the person giving and the person taking the child in adoption, the court shall presume that the adoption has been made in compliance with the provisions of this Act unless and until it is disproved.

20. The adoption deed must be read as a whole and that on reading the same in such a way, the intention of the parties with respect to whether the adoptive father/mother wanted to make an adoption according to law and not merely to appoint an heir, must be clearly established. The giving and receiving are absolutely necessary to the validity of an adoption. All that is required is that the natural father be asked by the adoptive parent to give his son in adoption, and that the boy be handed over and taken for this purpose.

21. In view of Section 16, wherever any document registered under any law is produced before any court purporting to record an adoption made, and the same is signed by the persons mentioned therein, the court shall presume that the said adoption has been made in compliance with the provisions of the Act, until and unless such presumption is disproved. In view of Section 16, it is open for a party to attempt to disprove the deed of adoption by initiating independent proceedings. In the case in hand, no independent proceeding took place for challenging the adoption deed and without recording reasons, both the courts below on the basis of assumption, have come to the conclusion that the adoption deed is suspicious in nature. In view the aforesaid, the impugned orders are unjustified and non-sustainable in the eyes of law, thus, the same are liable to be set aside by this Court.

22. The deed of adoption was produced in evidence and the same was duly proved by leading evidence of the witness. I have carefully scrutinised the cross-examination of the said witness. In the entire cross-examination, no challenge was made by the respondents either to the legality of the said document or to the validity of the same, therefore, the said adoption deed went un rebutted and unchallenged.

23. Since the aforesaid adoption was also recorded in a registered deed of adoption, the Court has to presume that the adoption has been made in compliance with the provisions of the Act, since the respondent has utterly failed to challenge the said evidence and also to disprove the aforesaid adoption. The assumption drawn by both the courts below that the adoption deed is suspicious, does not record reasons, therefore, the order is bad in law and liable to be set aside.

24. The appellate court could therefore, not have drawn any adverse inference against the petitioner on the basis of a mere technicality, to the effect that the natural parents of the adoptive child had acted as witnesses, and not as executors of the document. Undoubtedly, adoption disturbs the natural line of succession, owing to which, a very heavy burden is placed upon the propounder to prove the adoption. However, this onus shifts to the person who challenges the adoption, once a registered document recording the adoption is brought before the court. This aspect must be considered taking note of various other attending circumstances i.e evidence regarding the religious ceremony (giving and taking of the child), as the same is a sine qua non for valid adoption.

25. The judgment referred by the respondent No.1 is in regard to the maintainability of the writ petition that the writ petition arises out of a mutation proceeding under Section 34 of the Act and in the said proceeding the rights of parties are not decided rather mutation proceedings are fiscal in nature.

26. The present writ petition has been filed challenging the order passed by the appellate court as well as order passed in the revision, therefore, it cannot be said that the order of mutation passed under Section 34 is under challenge, therefore, the judgment relied upon by learned counsel for respondent No.1 is not applicable to the facts and circumstances of the present case. The impugned orders have been passed in total disregard of the settled proposition of law, therefore, the same are liable to be set aside by this Court. The appellate court as well as revisional court have passed the orders based on assumption, without recording reasons and only on the basis of contradiction in the statement give by the witnesses, it cannot be presumed that the adoption deed is suspicious in nature.

27. Most of the facts narrated by the witnesses are in resemblance and same cannot be ignored while coming to the conclusion that the adoption deed is suspicious in nature, therefore, the impugned orders are wholly unjustified, unreasoned and are liable to be set aside.

28. In view of the reasons recorded above, the impugned orders dated 8.12.1996 (Annexure-1) and 8.5.2000 (Annexure-2) are hereby quashed. The writ petition succeeds and is allowed.

29. No order as to costs.

Writ C No. 1004228 of 2006

Ram Kumar ...Petitioner
Versus
State of U.P. & Ors. ...Respondents

Issue for Consideration

The case involves the cancellation of a land lease/grant originally allotted to the petitioner's father in 1959 for agricultural purpose. The dispute specifically concerns land governed under the U.P. Bhoodan Yagna Act, 1952. The main issue before the court was whether an Additional Collector has the legal authority to cancel a grant when Section 15-A of the Bhoodan Yagana Act, 1952 specifically empowers the Collector to inquire into and cancel such grants.

Constitution of India, 1950-Article 226- U.P. Bhoodan Yagna Act, 1952-Sections 14, 15, 15-A- U.P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act, 1950-198(4)-Statutory jurisdiction- under Section 15-A of the Act 1952, the power to inquire into a grant and cancel it on grounds of irregularity, misrepresentation, or fraud is vested exclusively in the Collector-An order for the cancellation of a land grant passed by an Additional Collector is wholly without jurisdiction-Writ petition allowed.(Para 12 to 17)

Held

The court confirmed the Additional Collector had no jurisdiction to pass the cancellation order. The court set aside the orders dated 5 January 1985, 17 August 2001 and June 29, 2006. The matter was remanded to the District collector, who is directed to hear the case afresh, providing all parties a proper opportunity to be heard, and pass a decision within six months. (E-6)

Ram Kumar Vs. State of U.P. Through Collector Sultanpur & Others

From the Judgment and Order dated 10.12.2025 of the High Court of Judicature at Allahabad.

Appearances for parties

Adv. for Petitioner:-

Girish Chandra Sinha

Adv. for Respondent:-

C.S.C., R.N.Gupta

(Delivered by Hon'ble Irshad Ali, J.)

1. Heard Sri G.C. Sinha, learned counsel for the petitioner and Sri Divesh Mishra, learned Standing Counsel for the State-respondent.

2. Facts in nutshell are that the father of the petitioner was allotted some land for agricultural purpose in the year 1959. His name was mutated in revenue records and consolidation proceeding started in the village. The number of plots allotted to the petitioner's father were changed by new numbers. The area of the plots have also been changed by the consolidation authorities as per the spot position in the year 1982. The consolidation proceeding concluded and akar patra 45 was submitted to the Collector in which name of the father of the petitioner was recorded as Bhumidhar in the year 1989. Father of the petitioner died in the year 1998.

3. The petitioner got information during the course of his mutation proceeding that an order for cancellation of the lease granted to his father was passed on 5.1.1985 and the Tehsil authorities are proceeding to incorporate the order. The name of the father of the petitioner was deleted from the records on the basis of the order dated 5.1.1985 on 22.11.2000. An application was moved by the petitioner for setting aside the ex-parte order dated 5.1.1985, in which the respondent No.1 filed his objection on 27.11.2000. Thereafter, the respondent No.2 rejected the application of the petitioner vide order dated 17.8.2001. The petitioner preferred revision before the respondent No.3, which has also been dismissed vide order dated 29.6.2006.

4. The present writ petition has been filed challenging the order of the Additional Collector dated 17.8.2001 and order dated 29.6.2006, passed by respondent Nos.2 and 3 contained as Annexures 2 and 3 respectively inasmuch as order dated 5.1.1985 (Annexure-1), passed by the respondent No.2.

5. Submission of learned counsel for the petitioner is that the Additional Collector has passed the order under U.P. Bhoodan Yagna Act, 1952. Under Section 15-A thereof, it has been provided that the Collector may of his own motion and shall on the report of the committee or on the application of any person aggrieved by the grant of any land made under Section 14, whether before or after the commencement of the U.P. Bhoodan Yagna (Amendment) Act, 1975, inquire into such grant, and if he is satisfied that the grant was irregular or was obtained by the grantee by misrepresentation or fraud, he may cancel the grant.

6. Learned counsel for the petitioner submits that the order was passed by the Additional Collector for which he was not authorized. Only the Collector can pass the order under the said Act, therefore, the order is wholly without jurisdiction. He submits that the order was passed by the Additional Collector in an ex parte proceeding without giving proper opportunity of hearing to the petitioner, therefore, the order is in violation of principles of natural justice. Next submission is that the revisional court has also not taken into consideration that the order is ex parte in nature and has been passed by the authority who was having no jurisdiction to pass the order.

7. Next submission of learned counsel for the petitioner is that grant was given in favour of father of the petitioner in the year 1959 and in the consolidation proceeding, the name of petitioner's father was mutated and final publication under Section 52 was made and akar patra-45 was prepared wherein the name of the petitioners' father was present. He further submitted that after a long spell of time, proceeding was initiated against the father of the petitioner and vide order dated 5.1.1985, the lease granted was cancelled after 26 years and incorporated after 37 years. In support of the submission advanced, he placed reliance upon a judgment in the case of Prabhu Vs. Additional Collector, Sant Ravidas Nagar and others [(2008) 2 ALJ (NOC) 256(ALL.)]. Relevant paragraphs 2 to 7 are being quoted below:-

"2. The dispute in the instant case relates to plot No. 899. Petitioner claimed that the said plot was allotted by Gaon Sabha to him on 20.5.1964. However, for mutation of his name in the revenue records over the said plot on the basis of said patta, Petitioner filed application in 1989, i.e., after 25 years of alleged allotment. His application was allowed by Tehsildar and his name was mutated. Thereafter, in 1991, Respondent No. 4, Mata Saran instituted Case No. 444/326/222 of 1991 by filing application against Petitioner before Additional Collector, Sant Ravidas Nagar, u/s 198 (4) of U.P.Z.A. and L.R. Act, for cancellation of patta. Additional Collector through the order dated 24.9.1998 allowed the application and cancelled the patta. Against the said order Petitioner filed Revision No. 57 of 1998. Commissioner, Vindhyachal Division, Mirzapur dismissed the revision on 23.3.2001. Through this writ petition order of the Additional Collector dated 24.9.1998 has been challenged. It is strange that no prayer for setting aside order of revisional court dated 23.3.2001 has been made.

3. The case of Respondent No. 4 Mata Saran who filed application for cancellation of patta was that over the plot in dispute his house Verandah, courtyard etc. was situate and apart from him other persons of the village were also having their houses. It was also stated that Petitioner's house was also situate over portion of plot in dispute.

4. Both the courts below doubted the factum of grant of patta in favour of the Petitioner. It was further held that patta was also illegal. They also observed that meanwhile consolidation had intervened and during consolidation no objection was filed by the Petitioner. They also took into consideration the undue delay of 25 years on the part of the petitioner to apply for mutation.

5. Under Section 198 (4) of the Act application for cancellation of patta may be filed. However, if a case is taken that patta was in fact never granted then such question cannot be decided in proceedings u/s 198 (4) of the Act. For cancellation of patta, proceedings after 25 years may not be maintainable. However, the Supreme Court in U.P. State Sugar Corporation Ltd. Vs. Dy. Director of Consolidation and Others, , has held that jurisdiction to grant patta may be seen in consolidation proceedings or regular suit also and proceedings u/s 198 (4) of the Act are not the only remedy for cancellation of patta. The fact as to whether patta was granted or not can be adjudged only in regular suit.

6. If Respondent No. 4 or any other person asserts that he has got his abadi/house over part of land in dispute then the said fact has to be decided by some court.

7. Accordingly, writ petition is disposed of with the liberty to Respondent No. 4 and/or any other person who may be having his abadi/ house over any portion of plot No. 899 to file regular suit for declaration and injunction etc. If such a suit is filed then the same shall be decided without being influenced by mutation order passed by the Tehsildar or orders dated 24.9.1998 and 23.3.2001, passed by Additional Collector and Commissioner on the application of Respondent No. 4. In the suit factum as well as validity of patta shall be adjudged, if such pleas are raised. It is needless to add that alongwith suit application for temporary injunction may also be filed."

8. Per-contra, learned Standing Counsel submits that in pursuance to the notice, the father of the petitioner appeared in the matter and filed his Vakalatnama, but thereafter, he did not appear, therefore, it cannot be said that the order is in violation of principles of natural justice.

9. In rebuttal, in paragraphs 23, 24 and 25 of the writ petition, it has specifically been stated that in pursuance to the notice, the father of the petitioner did not appear in the matter nor has filed Vakalatnama on his behalf and no counter affidavit has been filed, replying to the statement of fact made in the aforesaid paragraphs, therefore, it is admitted that the father of the petitioner did not appear nor has filed Vakalatnama in the matter, therefore, the order is ex parte and without giving proper opportunity of hearing to the father of the petitioner or to the petitioner.

10. Learned Standing Counsel further submits Bhoodan Yagna Samiti is not party to the writ petition, therefore, the writ petition is liable to be dismissed for non-joinder of necessary parties.

11. After having heard the rival submissions advanced by learned counsel for the parties, I perused the material on record as well as the law report cited by petitioner's counsel.

12. On perusal of the order passed by the Additional Collector, it is evident that the proceeding was initiated under Bhoodan Yagna Act, 1952/ Section 198 (4) of U.P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act. In the order it has been recorded that the notice was served upon the father of the petitioner and in pursuance thereof, he filed in power in the matter, therefore, he was aware about the proceeding of cancellation of lease granted in his favour.

13. In view of the fact narrated in paragraphs 23, 24 and 25, the above finding recorded is wholly perverse, incorrect and not acceptable in the eyes of law. Merely relying on the statement of D.G.C.(Civil), the finding has returned on the basis of incorrect statement of fact, in fact, the father of the petitioner was not afforded proper opportunity of hearing in passing the impugned order dated 5.1.1985, therefore, he was having no knowledge of the aforesaid order. It only came in the knowledge of the petitioner when his father died in the year 1998 and he initiated mutation proceeding for mutation of his name on the place of his father. Then, he was informed that lease granted to father of the petitioner has been cancelled in the year 1985 and proceeding was initiated to delete the name of father of the petitioner from the revenue records. The Additional Collector initiated proceeding under the U.P. Bhoodan Yagna Act, 1952 and has proceeded to pass the order under the said proceeding.

14. The finding of the revisional court is otherwise that the order passed by the Additional Collector is just and valid and he has rightly rejected the application of the petitioner, being time barred as well as the finding has returned that U.P. Bhoodan Yagna Act, 1952 is not applicable to the case of the petitioner and thereafter, proceeded to pass the order, dismissed the revision without considering the fact that the order is ex parte in nature and order has been passed by the authority who was having no jurisdiction in the matter.

15. The order passed by the respondent No.2 is wholly without jurisdiction in view of provision contained under Section 15 of the U.P. Bhoodan Yagna Act, 1952, wherein the Collector is empowered to pass the order under the aforesaid Act and due to non consideration of aforesaid aspect of the matter, the revisional court has committed manifest error of law in passing the order.

16. The argument advanced by learned Standing Counsel that the order is not in violation of principles of natural justice in view of the fact that notice was issued to the father of the petitioner who has filed his power in the matter. In view of the fact narrated in paragraphs 23, 24 and 25 of the writ petition, this statement of fact is devoid of merit, in fact the recital made in the aforesaid paragraphs has not been denied by filing counter affidavit, therefore, the objection of learned Standing Counsel is not acceptable in the eyes of law. His next submission that Bhoodan Yagna Committee has not been made party, therefore, the petition is liable to be dismissed due to non-joinder of necessary parties, in this regard, it is held that finding has returned in the order of the revisional court that the land does not relate under U.P. Bhoodan Yagna Yojna and respondent No.2 (Additional Collector) and Additional Commissioner, who have passed the impugned orders have been made party to the writ petition, therefore, necessary parties have been impleaded in the array of parties of the respondents, thus, this argument of the learned Standing Counsel is also rejected in view of the aforesaid reasons.

17. In view of the foregoing discussion and reasons recorded above, the impugned orders dated 5.1.1985, 17.8.2001 and 29.6.2006 are hereby set aside. The writ petition succeeds and is allowed.

18. However, District Collector is directed to hear the matter after giving opportunity of hearing to the parties and may pass appropriate orders in accordance with law within a period of six months from the date of production of certified copy of this order.

19. No order as to costs.

Issue for Consideration

Matter pertains to the challenge to the "common award dated 15th September, 2005" passed by the Presiding Officer, Central Government Industrial Tribunal-cum-Labour Court, Kanpur, holding that "Central Institute of Medicinal & Aromatic Plants, Lucknow is an 'Industry' within the meaning of provision 2(j) of Industrial Disputes Act, 1947", and whether CIMAP, "being a purely research and scientific organization functioning under the Council of Scientific and Industrial Research", falls within the definition of "industry" under S. 2(j) of the Industrial Disputes Act, 1947. (Paras 1, 11-13, 17-19)

Industrial Disputes Act, 1947 - S. 2(j) - Definition of 'Industry' - Research Organizations - Central Institute of Medicinal and Aromatic Plants is purely a research organization and not engaged in any trade, business, or commercial activities" and therefore "does not satisfy the test of being an 'Industry'" under S. 2(j) of the Industrial Disputes Act, 1947 - Administrative Tribunals Act, 1985 - S. 14(2) - Jurisdiction - The funds of the Institute are derived entirely from grants made available by the Department of Science & Technology, Government of India" and that CSIR and its institutes are governed by the Administrative Tribunals Act, 1985 pursuant to Notification dated 31.10.1986 issued under S. 14(2) of the said Act - Respondents supported the award contending that the petitioners "fall within the definition of the term 'Industry' as provided under Section 2(j) of the Industrial Dispute Act, 1947 - Court examined Ss. 2(j) and 2(k) of the Industrial Disputes Act, 1947 and noted that the definition of "industry" under the Central and U.P. Acts is "one and the same" - Reliance was placed on Physical Research Laboratory v. K.G. Sharma, wherein the Supreme Court held that an institution engaged in research "cannot be described as an economic venture or a commercial enterprise" and "is not an industry". (Paras-3,4,9,11-17)

Held: CIMAP, Lucknow, being a Society controlled by the Central Government is primarily engaged in scientific research concerning medicinal and aromatic plants - The object of the institute is not to carry on trade or business or to earn profit, but to carry out research in the national interest and for public welfare - The activity undertaken by C.I.M.A.P. is thus academic and scientific in nature and cannot be equated with any commercial or industrial venture - A research institute is not an industry within the meaning of the Industrial Dispute Act, 1947 as well as Uttar Pradesh Industrial Dispute Act, 1947 - The Central Institute of Medicinal and Aromatic Plants, Lucknow does not fall within the definition of 'Industry' under S. 2(j) of the Industrial Disputes Act, 1947 - Impugned award dated 15th September, 2005 was set aside and all the writ petitions are allowed except the writ petitions filed by individuals, which were dismissed. 1. By means of the present writ petition, the petitioners are challenging the validity of the common award dated 15th September, 2005 given by the Presiding Officer, Central Government Industrial Tribunal-cum-Labour Court, Kanpur (respondent no.2) in Industrial Dispute Case No.149 of 1998 (Rishidev Mishra v. Director, Central Institute of Medicinal & Aromatic Plants, Lucknow) and Industrial Dispute Case Nos.151/98, 145/98, 148/98, 154/98, 152/98, 153/98, 150/98, 146/98, 144/98, 147/98, 126/98, 122/98, 99/98, 119/98, 120/98, 123/98 and 124/98 and published by the Government of India, Ministry of Labour (respondent no.3) through Notification dated 22nd September, 2005 and sent by the Secretary, central Government Industrial Tribunal-cum-Labour Court, Kanpur, through letter dated 6th December, 2005 as far as it relates to the Central Institute of Medicinal & Aromatic Plants, Lucknow, a constituent/ Institute of Council of Scientific and Industrial Research, New Delhi, a society registered under Societies Registration Act, 1860 is an 'Industry' within the meaning of provision 2(j) of Industrial Disputes Act, 1947.

2. The bunch of the writ petition involves common questions of facta and law, hence with the consent of parties, writ petitions are decided by the present common judgment.

2. Factual matrix of the case is that the Presiding Officer, Central Government Industrial Tribunal-cum-Labour Court, Kanpur, respondent no.2, passed a common award dated 15.09.2005 in ID case No.149 of 1998 (Rishidev Mishra v. Director, Central Institute of Medicinal & Aromatic Plants, Lucknow) and Industrial Dispute Case Nos.151/98, 145/98, 148/98, 154/98, 152/98, 153/98, 150/98, 146/98, 144/98, 147/98, 126/98, 122/98, 99/98, 119/98, 120/98, 123/98 and 124/98 as far as it relates to the Central Institute of Medicinal & Aromatic Plants, Lucknow a constituent/ Institute of Council of Scientific and Industrial research, New Delhi, a society registered under Societies Registration Act, 1860 is an 'industry' within the meaning of provision 2(j) of Industrial Disputes Act, 1947.

The respondent no.1 raised conciliation proceedings before the Regional Labour Commissioner (Central), Kanpur under the provisions of Industrial Tribunal Act, 1947 with respect to alleged disengagement of their employment with Central Institute of Medicinal and Aromatic Plants, Lucknow/ Council of Scientific and Industrial Research, New Delhi impleading there in the Director/ Central Institute of Medicinal and Aromatic Plants, Lucknow and not M/s Vikas Security Guards Services, Lucknow. The conciliation proceedings failed resulting which the Regional Labour commissioner (North) Kanpur submitted failure report to the respondent no.3.

After the submission of the conciliation failure report, the matter was referred to the Central Government Industrial Tribunal-cum- Labour Court/ Kanpur by the respondent no.3 through letter dated 21.04.1998. The respondent no.1 filed the claim application date 16.09.1998, replication to the written statement dated 25.05.199, application dated 17.09.2001 for filing 2 documents and Oath administered by the Presiding Officer to the deponent dated 12.09.2001 before the Presiding Officer, Central Government, Industrial Tribunal-cum-Labour Court, Kanpur.

The petitioners filed written statements dated 29.10.1998, stating therein various issues including that the provisions of Industrial Dispute Act, 1947 are not applicable upon the CSIR, New Delhi or its constituent institutes including CIMAP, Lucknow as it is not an 'Industry' and also filed list of documents on behalf of CIMAP, Lucknow in June, 2000, application on behalf of Central Institute of Medicinal & Aromatic Plants, Lucknow for framing of additional issue was filed on 29.8.2000.

The Presiding Officer, Central Government Industrial Tribunal-cum-Labour Court, Kanpur passed the orders dated 13.2.2001. The statement of Shri Rishi Dev Misra was recorded on 12.09.2001 and the affidavit in evidence on behalf of Central Institute of Medicinal & Aromatic Plants, Lucknow was also filed on 04.06.2002.

The petitioners filed writ petition no.1676 of 2002 (S/S) (Central Institute of Medicinal & Aromatic Plants, Lucknow & others v. Rishi Devi Misra & another) which is still pending consideration.

The Presiding Officer, Central Government Industrial Tribunal-cum-Labour Court, Kanpur decided the Adjudication Case No.149 of 1998 (Rishi Dev Mishra v. Director, Central Institute of Medicinal & Aromatic Plants, Lucknow), through a common award dated 15th September, 2005 without considering the evidences available on record on merits as well as on the question of 'industry'.

The respondent no.2 award dated 15th September, 2005 was considered at various levels in CIMAP, Lucknow and CSIR, New Delhi and ultimately decision was communicated through letters dated 14.02.2006 and 26.04.2006 that the award dated 15th September, 2005 be challenged before this Court through a writ petition under Article 226 of the Constitution of India.

3. Learned counsel for the petitioners submitted that the Central Institute of Medicinal and Aromatic Plants is purely a research organization and not engaged in any trade, business, or commercial activities and its primary function is to undertake scientific research with a view to promoting the welfare of people preserving natural resources and minimizing the undesirable effects of industrial and agricultural activities. In this view of the matter, he submitted that it does not satisfy the test of being an 'Industry' as contemplated under Section 2(j) of the Industrial Disputes Act, 1947 or Section 2(k) of the U.P. Industrial Disputes Act, 1947.

4. Learned counsel for the petitioners next submitted that the funds of the Institute are derived entirely from grants made available by the Department of Science & Technology, Government of India. The Council of Scientific and Industrial Research and its constituent institutes are under administrative control of the Central Government. By virtue of the notification dated 31.10.1986 issued under Section 14(2) of the Administrative Tribunals Act, 1985, the Council of Scientific and Industrial Research, New Delhi has been brought within the purview of the said Act. Consequently, all service matters pertaining to employees of CSIR and its institutes, including CIMAP are governed by the provisions of the Administrative Tribunals Act, 1985 and not by the Industrial Disputes Act, 1947.

5. Learned counsel for the petitioners next submitted that the Central Institute of Medicinal & Aromatic Plants, Lucknow/ Council of Scientific and Industrial Research, New Delhi cannot be termed as an 'Industry' in any case either practically or legally in favour of the organization.

6. Learned counsel for the petitioners next submitted that the respondent nos.2 and 3 have no jurisdiction to adjudicate upon the matter as it is applying the provisions of the Industrial Disputes Act, 1947 which is not applicable upon the Department of Science & Technology, Government of India, nor upon the council of Scientific & Industrial Research, New Delhi/ Central Institute of Medicinal & Aromatic Plants, Lucknow.

7. Learned counsel for the petitioners next submitted that only the Administrative Tribunal Act, 1985 is applicable on the petitioners since the Central Institute of Medicinal & Aromatic Plants, Lucknow is a constituent Unit of Council of Scientific & Industrial Research, New Delhi and the Council of Scientific & Industrial Research, New Delhi has been notified under the Administrative Tribunal Act, 1985.

8. In support of his submissions, learned counsel for the petitioner has placed reliance upon the following judgments:

(i) Physical Research Laboratory v. K.G. Sharma (1997) 4 SCC 257

(ii) Prem Chandra v. Presiding Officer, Industrial Tribunal, Lucknow (U.P.) decided on 20.1.2020.

9. Per contra, learned counsel for the respondents supported the impugned order and stated that the petitioners fall within the definition of the term 'Industry' as provided under Section 2(j) of the Industrial Dispute Act, 1947.

10. I have considered the submissions advanced by learned counsel for the parties and perused the material available on record as well as case-law cited by learned counsel for the petitioners.

11. To resolve the controversy involved in the present writ petition, Section 2(j) and Section 2(k) of the Industrial Disputes Act, 1947 reads as under:

"2(j) 'industry' means any business, trade undertaking, manufacturer or calling of employers and includes any calling, service, employment, handicraft, or industry occupation or avocation of workmen.

2(k) 'Industry' means any business, trade, undertaking, manufacturer or calling of employers and includes any calling, service, employment, handicraft, or industrial occupation or avocation of workmen;

12. Perusal of the aforesaid sections reveals that the definition of 'industry' in the Industrial Dispute Act, 1947 and Uttar Pradesh Industrial Dispute Act, 1947 is one and the same.

13. Learned counsel for the petitioner relied on judgment rendered (supra) operative portion of which are quoted here-in-below:

"13. It is nobody's case that PRL is engaged in an activity which can be called business trade or manufacturer. Neither from the nature of its organization nor from the nature and character of the activity carried on by it, can it be said to be an "undertaking" analogous to business or trade. It is not engaged in a commercial industrial activity and it cannot be described as an economic venture or a commercial enterprise as it is not its object to produce and distribute services which would satisfy wants and needs of the consumer community. It is more an institution discharging governmental functions and a domestic enterprise than a commercial enterprise. We are, therefore, of the opinion that PRL is not an industry even though it is carrying on the activity of research in a systematic manner with the help of its employees as it lacks that element which would make it an organization carrying on an activity which can be said to be analogous to the carrying on of a trade or business because it is not producing and distributing services which are intended or meant for satisfying human wants and needs, as ordinarily understood."

14. Perusal of the above-extracted judgment reveals that the Hon'ble Supreme while considering the issue that whether the 'Physical Research Laboratory' is an industry, gave opinion that that PRL is not an industry even though it is carrying on the activity of research in a systematic manner with the help of its employees as it lacks that element which would make it an organization carrying on an activity which can be said to be analogous to the carrying on of a trade or business because it is not producing and distributing services which are intended or meant for satisfying human wants and needs, as ordinarily understood.

15. Learned counsel also relied upon the judgment dated 20.01.2020, wherein while relying on the judgment rendered in the case of Physical Research Laboratory (supra) a coordinate Bench of this Court held that a national research institution of Council for Scientific & Industrial Research i.e. CSIR-Central Drug Research Institute, Lucknow is not an industry under Section 2(k) of Uttar Pradesh Industrial Dispute Act, 1947 (U.P. Act No.XXXVIII of 1947) while upholding the Award dated 8.7.1997 of the Industrial Tribunal (II) Lucknow.

16. I have examined the material on record in the light of case-laws cited by learned counsel for the petitioners.

17. On examination, it is found that Central Institute of Medicinal & Aromatic Plants, Lucknow ; CSIR- Indian Institute of Toxicology Research, Lucknow; CSIR-National Botanical Research Institute, Lucknow which has been notified under Section 14(2) of the Administrative Tribunal Act, 1985 through Notification No.R-11018/16/86-At dated 31.10.1986 being a Society controlled by the Central Government is primarily engaged in scientific research concerning medicinal and aromatic plants. The object of the institute is not to carry on trade or business or to earn profit, but to carry out research in the national interest and for public welfare. The activity undertaken by C.I.M.A.P. is thus academic and scientific in nature and cannot be equated with any commercial or industrial venture. In this view of the matter, the judgment rendered in the case of Physical Research Laboratory (supra) vide which this Hon'ble Supreme Court clarified that institutions engaged solely in research or educational functions, devoid of commercial or economic character, cannot be treated as 'industry' squarely covers to the present facts and circumstances of the present case.

18. It is settled principle of law that a research institute is not an industry within the meaning of the Industrial Dispute Act, 1947 as well as Uttar Pradesh Industrial Dispute Act, 1947. The other legal and factual issues may not be decided keeping in view of the aforesaid settled principle of law.

19. Considering in totalities of facts and circumstances of the case, this Court is of the opinion that the Central Institute of Medicinal and Aromatic Plants, Lucknow being a purely research and scientific organization functioning under the Council of Scientific and Industrial Research does not fall within the definition of 'Industry' under Section 2(j) of the Industrial Disputes Act, 1947.

20. In the result, all the writ petitions are allowed, except Writ-C No.1004654 of 2005 (Shiv Narain Singh and another v. Presiding Officer, labour Court, U.P., Lucknow and another), Writ-C No.1000938 of 2006 (Rishi Deo Mishra and 4 others v. Presiding Officer, Central Govt. Industrial Trib. And Anr.), Writ-C No.1000940 of 2006 (Hari Shanker Dubey and 3 Ors. v. Presiding Officer Cental Govt. Industrial Trib. And Anr.) and Writ-A No.8817 of 1992 (Rajendra Mishra v. Industrial Tribunal), being filed by the petitioners in individual capacity, which are hereby dismissed.

Matters Under Article 227 No. 7111 of 2025

Lko. Development Authority ...Petitioner
Versus

Mrs. Nirupama Singh & Anr.

...Respondents

Issue for Consideration

Issue pertains to whether, in exercise of its supervisory jurisdiction under article 227 of Constitution of India, interference was warranted with the order dated 30.07.2025 passed by National Consumer Disputes Redressal Commission rejecting the petitioner/Lucknow Development Authority's application for condonation of an inordinate delay of 544 days in filing the consumer appeal, particularly when the petitioner had taken self-contradictory stands on oath regarding the cause of delay, failed to furnish a credible, bona fide and sufficient explanation, and when the National Commission had exercised its discretion in conformity with the settled principles governing condonation of delay under the law of limitation and the object of expeditious adjudication under the Consumer Protection Act.

Limitation Act, 1963 - s. 5 -The petitioner, Lucknow Development Authority, invoked the supervisory jurisdiction of High Court under article 227 of Constitution to assail the order dated 30.07.2025 passed by National Consumer Disputes Redressal Commission, New Delhi, whereby its application seeking condonation of an inordinate delay of 544 days in filing a consumer appeal against the judgment of State Consumer Commission dated 23.11.2023 was rejected - Before the National Commission, the petitioner attributed the delay to the alleged failure of its counsel to inform it of State Commission's judgment and to internal administrative processing, whereas the record revealed that the impugned order had been received by the Authority on 06.12.2023 - In the petition before the High Court, the petitioner took a different stand by asserting that knowledge of judgment was acquired on 14.12.2023 and that the delay was occasioned by mandatory procedural approvals within the Authority - The National Commission, finding the explanation unsatisfactory and inconsistent, declined to condone the delay, observing that such indulgence would defeat the object of expeditious consumer adjudication, which led to the filing of instant petition.

Held: The plea taken by Lucknow Development Authority (LDA) that delay in filing the appeal by it was attributable to the multiple lengthy compulsory procedural stages to which it is subject to by virtue of it being a statutory authority, fails to make out a reasonable explanation for the inordinate delay caused in filing the appeal against the impugned order dated 23.11.2023 - The record before the National Commission shows that the order dated 23.11.2023 was received by the appellant on 06.12.2023 whereas before High court, the petitioner has pleaded that the order dated 23.11.2023 came to notice of the LDA on 14.12.2023 - Therefore, the plea taken before High Court that the delay occurred because the petitioner's Advocate had not informed about the order dated 23.11.2023, is false - When it is apparent on the face of the record that the petitioner has not approached High Court with clean hands and has made statements which are contrary to the statements made on oath earlier, it is apparent that the petitioner has not been able to give a sufficient explanation for the inordinate delay of 544 days in filing the appeal and it is merely trying to create an excuse for condonation of delay - Thus, petition lacks merit and it is accordingly, dismissed. ORIGINAL JURISDICTION: Matters Under Article 227 No. - 7111 of 2025

From the Judgment and Order dated 30.07.2025, passed by the National Consumer Disputes Redressal Commission, New Delhi in First Appeal No.NC/FA/342/2025

Appearances for Parties

Adv. for the Petitioner:
Ratnesh Chandra

Adv. for the Respondent:
Nil

(Delivered by Hon'ble Subhash Vidyarthi, J.)

1. Heard Sri Ratnesh Chandra, the learned counsel for the petitioner Lucknow Development Authority and perused the records.

2. By means of the instant petition filed under Article 227 of the Constitution of India the petitioner has challenged the validity of an order dated 30.07.2025, passed by the National Consumer Disputes Redressal Commission, New Delhi in First Appeal No.NC/FA/342/2025 titled Lucknow Development Authority Vs. Mrs. Nirupma Singh and another, whereby the petitioner's application for condonation of delay bearing IA-No.8181 of 2025 seeking condonation of delay of 544 days in filing the appeal, has been rejected.

3. In the application for condonation of delay the appellant had pleaded that “the State Commission had passed its judgment on 23.11.2023 by imposing heavy amount to be paid to the respondent. Due to mistake the learned counsel for the appellant after passing of impugned judgment did not inform to the appellant authority about passing of impugned judgment by the Hon'ble State Commission and due to which timely proceeding could not be done in the aforesaid matter for filing of present appeal against the impugned judgment and order. As soon as the learned counsel had informed to the authority about passing of impugned judgment, the appellant authority had processed the matter for obtaining permission from authorities for filing the appeal in the aforesaid matter. It is submitted that long time was spent in processing the file and obtaining appropriate permission from the concerned authorities. As soon as the permission was obtained, the vakalatnama was issued in favour of concerned Advocate for filing appeal before this Hon'ble Commission. After issue of vakalatnama the records/ file of aforesaid matter was handed over to the advocate, thereafter the above appeal was drafted and same is being filed today before this Hon'ble Commission”.

4. The application for condonation of delay was supported by an affidavit of Sri. Atul Krishna Singh, who is presently posted as Deputy Secretary in Lucknow Development Authority, who verified the aforesaid averments to be true and correct to the best of his knowledge and belief.

5. The National Commission recorded in the impugned order that a perusal of the record shows that the State Commission had passed the impugned order on 23.11.2023. A copy of the order was received by the appellant on 06.12.2023 and the appeal has been filed on 02.07.2025. The grounds mentioned for the delay are not convincing enough to condone the delay. Being a consumer dispute such condonation would defeat the purpose of Consumer Protection Act. The National Commission has relied upon the judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court in the cases of Brijesh Kumar and others Vs. State of Haryana and others: 2014 (11) SCC 351, in which the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that: -

“10. The courts should not adopt an injustice-oriented approach in rejecting the application for condonation of delay. However the court while allowing such application has to draw a distinction between delay and inordinate delay for want of bona fides of an inaction or negligence would deprive a party of the protection of Section 5 of the Limitation Act, 1963. Sufficient cause is a condition precedent for exercise of discretion by the court for condoning the delay. This Court has time and again held that when mandatory provision is not complied with and that delay is not properly, satisfactorily and convincingly explained, the court cannot condone the delay on sympathetic grounds alone.”

6. The National Commission has also relied upon the judgment in the case of Lingeswaran v. Thirunagalingam: 2022 SCC OnLine SC 2233, wherein it was held that: - there and the condonation of delay application was required to be dismissed. The approach adopted by the learned trial Court that, even after finding that, in absence of any material evidence it cannot be said that the delay has been explained and that there are no merits in the application, still to condone the delay would be giving a premium to a person who fails to explain the delay and who is guilty of delay and laches. At this stage, the decision of this Court in the case of Popat Bahiru Goverdhane v. Land Acquisition Officer, (2013) 10 SCC 765 is required to be referred to. In the said decision, it is observed and held that the law of limitation may harshly affect a particular party but it has to be applied with all its rigour when the statute so prescribes. The Court has no power to extend the period of limitation on equitable grounds. The statutory provision may cause hardship or inconvenience to a particular party but the Court has no choice but to enforce it giving full effect to the same.

“5. We are in complete agreement with the view taken by the High Court. Once it was found even by the learned trial Court that delay has not been properly explained and even there are no merits in the application for condonation of delay, thereafter, the matter should rest

5.1. In the case of Maniben Devraj Shah v. Municipal Corporation of Brihan Mumbai, (2012) 5 SCC 157, in paragraph 14, it is observed and held as under:

“The law of limitation is founded on public policy. The Limitation Act, 1963 has not been enacted with the object of destroying the rights of the parties but to ensure that they approach the court for vindication of their rights without unreasonable delay. The idea underlying the concept of limitation is that every remedy should remain alive only till the expiry of the period fixed by the legislature. At the same time, the courts are empowered to condone the delay provided that sufficient cause is shown by the applicant for not availing the remedy within the prescribed period of limitation.”

7. The aforesaid judgment has been followed in Thirunagalingam v. Lingeswaran: 2025 SCC OnLine SC 1093.

8. Before this court the petitioner has pleaded in para 26 of the petition that “it was for the first time came to the notice of the LDA on 14/12/2023, that the judgment dated 23/11/2023 has been rendered by the State Commission and no sooner the said fact came to the notice of LDA, immediately the process of filing the appeal was initiated and the delay in filing the appeal occurred due to the fact that, being a statutory authority, the Petitioner is mandatorily required to route the proposal for filing the appeal through multiple administrative divisions, including legal, technical and financial branches, for scrutiny, opinion, approval and sanction at various levels of hierarchy. The movement of the file through these compulsory procedural stages, which is beyond the control of deponent, consumed considerable time and thereby occasioned unavoidable delay in instituting the appeal”.

9. The affidavit in support of the Writ Petition has been filed by Sri. Atul Krishna Singh, Deputy Secretary in Lucknow Development Authority, who has verified the above quoted averments made in paragraph 26 of the petition to be true to the personal knowledge. It is significant to note that the same deponent had filed the affidavit in support of the application for condonation of delay in filing the appeal before the National Consumer Disputes Redressal Commission stating that the learned counsel for the Lucknow Development Authority had not informed the Authority about the judgment passed by the State Commission due to which the appeal against the impugned judgment could not be filed within time.

10. From the aforesaid facts it is clear that the petitioner Lucknow Development Authority has been taking self contradictory stands for the same matter at different stages. In the application filed under Section 5 of Limitation Act before the National Commission it pleaded that the counsel for the appellant had not informed about the order dated 23.11.2023 due to which the proceedings could not be instituted timely. The record before the National Commission revealed that the order dated 23.11.2023 was received by the appellant on 06.12.2023. Before this court the petitioner had pleaded that the order dated 23.11.2023 came to notice of the LDA on 14.12.2023.

11. Apparently, the LDA has been making self contradictory statements on oath and all of them cannot be correct.

12. In Basawaraj v. Land Acquisition Officer: (2013) 14 SCC 81, the Hon’ble Supreme Court summarized the law regarding condonation of delay by stating that:?

“15. The law on the issue can be summarised to the effect that where a case has been presented in the court beyond limitation, the applicant has to explain the court as to what was the “sufficient cause” which means an adequate and enough reason which prevented him to approach the court within limitation. In case a party is found to be negligent, or for want of bona fide on his part in the facts and circumstances of the case, or found to have not acted diligently or remained inactive, there cannot be a justified ground to condone the delay. No court could be justified in condoning such an inordinate delay by imposing any condition whatsoever. The application is to be decided only within the parameters laid down by this Court in regard to the condonation of delay. In case there was no sufficient cause to prevent a litigant to approach the court on time condoning the delay without any justification, putting any condition whatsoever, amounts to passing an order in violation of the statutory provisions and it tantamounts to showing utter disregard to the legislature”.

13. In Esha Bhattacharjee v. Managing Committee of Raghunathpur Nafar Academy: (2013) 12 SCC 649, the Hon’ble Supreme Court discussed the law regarding condonation of delay as explained in various precedents and summarized the same as follows:?

“21. From the aforesaid authorities the principles that can broadly be culled out are:

(i) There should be a liberal, pragmatic, justice-oriented, non-pedantic approach while dealing with an application for condonation of delay, for the courts are not supposed to legalise injustice but are obliged to remove injustice.

(ii) The terms “sufficient cause” should be understood in their proper spirit, philosophy and purpose regard being had to the fact that these terms are basically elastic and are to be applied in proper perspective to the obtaining fact-situation.

(iii) Substantial justice being paramount and pivotal the technical considerations should not be given undue and uncalled for emphasis.

(iv) No presumption can be attached to deliberate causation of delay but, gross negligence on the part of the counsel or litigant is to be taken note of.

(v) Lack of bona fides imputable to a party seeking condonation of delay is a significant and relevant fact.

(vi) It is to be kept in mind that adherence to strict proof should not affect public justice and cause public mischief because the courts are required to be vigilant so that in the ultimate eventuate there is no real failure of justice.

(vii) The concept of liberal approach has to encapsule the conception of reasonableness and it cannot be allowed a totally unfettered free play.

(viii) There is a distinction between inordinate delay and a delay of short duration or few days, for the former doctrine of prejudice is attracted whereas to the latter it may not be attracted. That apart, the first one warrants strict approach whereas the second calls for a liberal delineation.

(ix) The conduct, behaviour and attitude of a party relating to its inaction or negligence are relevant factors to be taken into consideration. It is so as the fundamental principle is that the courts are required to weigh the scale of balance of justice in respect of both parties and the said principle cannot be given a total go by in the name of liberal approach.

(x) If the explanation offered is concocted or the grounds urged in the application are fanciful, the courts should be vigilant not to expose the other side unnecessarily to face such a litigation.

(xi) It is to be borne in mind that no one gets away with fraud, misrepresentation or interpolation by taking recourse to the technicalities of law of limitation.

(xii) The entire gamut of facts are to be carefully scrutinized and the approach should be based on the paradigm of judicial discretion which is founded on objective reasoning and not on individual perception.

(xiii) The State or a public body or an entity representing a collective cause should be given some acceptable latitude.

22. To the aforesaid principles we may add some more guidelines taking note of the present day scenario. They are:

(a) An application for condonation of delay should be drafted with careful concern and not in a half hazard manner harbouring the notion that the courts are required to condone delay on the bedrock of the principle that adjudication of a lis on merits is seminal to justice dispensation system.

(b) An application for condonation of delay should not be dealt with in a routine manner on the base of individual philosophy which is basically subjective.

(c) Though no precise formula can be laid down regard being had to the concept of judicial discretion, yet a conscious effort for achieving consistency and collegiality of the adjudicatory system should be made as that is the ultimate institutional motto.

(d) The increasing tendency to perceive delay as a non-serious matter and, hence, lackadaisical propensity can be exhibited in a non-challant manner requires to be curbed, of course, within legal parameters."

14. In Sheo Raj Singh (Deceased) Through Lrs. v. Union of India: 2023 SCC OnLine SC 1278, after discussing the various precedents on the issue, the Hon'ble Supreme Court summarized the principles regarding condonation of delay in the following words:?

"29. Considering the aforementioned decisions, there cannot be any quarrel that this Court has stepped in to ensure that substantive rights of private parties and the State are not defeated at the threshold simply due to technical considerations of delay. However, these decisions notwithstanding, we reiterate that condonation of delay being a discretionary power available to courts, exercise of discretion must necessarily depend upon the sufficiency of the cause shown and the degree of acceptability of the explanation, the length of delay being immaterial. Sometimes, due to want of sufficient cause being shown or an acceptable explanation being proffered, delay of the shortest range may not be condoned whereas, in certain other cases, delay of long periods can be condoned if the explanation is satisfactory and acceptable. Of course, the courts must distinguish between an 'explanation' and an 'excuse'. An 'explanation' is designed to give someone all of the facts and lay out the cause for something. It helps clarify the circumstances of a particular event and allows the person to point out that something that has happened is not his fault, if it is really not his fault. Care must however be taken to distinguish an 'explanation' from an 'excuse'. Although people tend to see 'explanation' and 'excuse' as the same thing and struggle to find out the difference between the two, there is a distinction which, though fine, is real. An 'excuse' is often offered by a person to deny responsibility and consequences when under attack. It is sort of a defensive action. Calling something as just an 'excuse' would imply that the explanation proffered is believed not to be true. Thus said, there is no formula that caters to all situations and, therefore, each case for condonation of delay based on existence or absence of sufficient cause has to be decided on its own facts. At this stage, we cannot but lament that it is only excuses, and not explanations, that are more often accepted for condonation of long delays to safeguard public interest from those hidden forces whose sole agenda is to ensure that a meritorious claim does not reach the higher courts for adjudication.

15. In Postmaster General v. Living Media India Ltd.: (2012) 3 SCC 563, the Hon'ble Supreme Court refused to condone the delay of 427 days in filing the SLP by holding that: - “27. It is not in dispute that the person(s) concerned were well aware or conversant with the issues involved including the prescribed period of limitation for taking up the matter by way of filing a special leave petition in this Court. They cannot claim that they have a separate period of limitation when the Department was possessed with competent persons familiar with court proceedings. In the absence of plausible and acceptable explanation, we are posing a question why the delay is to be condoned mechanically merely because the Government or a wing of the Government is a party before us.

29. In our view, it is the right time to inform all the government bodies, their agencies and instrumentalities that unless they have reasonable and acceptable explanation for the delay and there was bona fide effort, there is no need to accept the usual explanation that the file was kept pending for several months/years due to considerable degree of procedural red tape in the process. The government departments are under a special obligation to ensure that they perform their duties with diligence and commitment. Condonation of delay is an exception and should not be used as an anticipated benefit for the government departments. The law shelters everyone under the same light and should not be swirled for the benefit of a few.”

16. Therefore, in light of the aforesaid judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court, the plea taken by the LDA that delay in filing the appeal by it was attributable to the multiple lengthy compulsory procedural stages to which it is subject to by virtue of it being a statutory authority, fails to make out a reasonable explanation for the inordinate delay caused in filing the appeal against the impugned order dated 23.11.2023

17. In paragraph 21, 25 and 31 of the writ petition the petitioner has specifically pleaded that the delay in filing the appeal was attributable to the fault of the previous counsel of the Authority who did not inform the Authority about the passing of the impugned order dated 23.11.2023 and the petitioner should not be made to suffer for it. It has been pleaded that the National Commission therefore should have taken a lenient view in allowing the application of condonation of delay for filing the appeal against the impugned order.

18. In Rajneesh Kumar v. Ved Prakash, 2024 SCC OnLine SC 3380, the Hon'ble Supreme Court has observed that: -

“10. It appears that the entire blame has been thrown on the head of the advocate who was appearing for the petitioners in the trial court. We have noticed over a period of time a tendency on the part of the litigants to blame their lawyers of negligence and carelessness in attending the proceedings before the court.

20. In these circumstances, this court finds no good ground to interfere in the impugned order dated 30.07.2025, passed

The Indian Penal Code, 1860-Sections 452, 323, 504, 506, 392, 406, 420 & 120B; The Uttar Pradesh Dacoity Affected Areas Act, 1983- Sections 2(b) & 7; The Code of Criminal Procedure-1973- Sections 5, 244 & 245, Chapter XVIII; The Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita,2023-Section 582- The Uttar Pradesh Dacoity Affected Areas Act is a Special Act and Section 7 of the Act expressly lays down the procedure and power of a Special Court which has been constituted by virtue of Section 5 of the Cr.P.C. The Special Court thus consists of the Sessions Judge or the Additional Sessions Judge, empowered to try the scheduled offences by following the procedure provided by the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 for the trial of Sessions Cases. The Special Court has to follow the procedure set down by the Cr.P.C. under Chapter XVIII which relates to trial before the Court of Session. If the prescribed procedure is not adopted then it is either a case of lack of jurisdiction and is an abuse of the process of law-Application allowed.(E-15)

Held- As District Jhansi has been notified by the State Government as a Dacoity Affected Area and Section 392 IPC is classified as a Scheduled offence under Section 2(b) of the U.P Act No. 31 of 1983, therefore, in the instant matter trial must proceed as per Section 7 of the U.P. Act No. 31 of 1983 which empowers the Special Court to follow the procedure as provided under Chapter XVIII of the Code of Criminal Procedure (Para 15, 18 & 19)

Case Arising From

The impugned orders dated 26.06.2024 and 30.05.2025 passed by the learned Special Judge (Dacoity Affected Area), Jhansi in Complaint Case No. 103 of 2023 (Rajeev Agarwal and others Vs. Sanjay Agarwal) under Sections 452, 323, 504, 506, 392, 406, 420, 120B IPC, Police Station-Kotwali, District-Jhansi, pending in the Court of learned Special Judge (Dacoity Affected Area), Jhansi.

Appearances for Parties

Counsel for Applicant(s) : Atharva Dixit, Pranav Tiwary
Counsel for Opposite Party(s) : G.A., Shashank Shekhar, Sheo Ram Singh

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ms. Nand Prabha Shukla, J.)

1. Heard Sri Atharva Dixit, learned counsel for the applicant, Mr. Sheo Ram Singh, learned counsel for the opposite party Nos. 2 to 4, Sri Ratan Singh, learned A.G.A.-I for the State and perused the record.

2. The present application under Section 528 B.N.S.S. has been filed with the prayer to quash the impugned orders dated 26.06.2024 and 30.05.2025 passed by the learned Special Judge (Dacoity Affected Area), Jhansi in Complaint Case No. 103 of 2023 (Rajeev Agarwal and others Vs. Sanjay Agarwal) under Sections 452, 323, 504, 506, 392, 406, 420, 120B IPC, Police Station-Kotwali, District-Jhansi, pending in the Court of learned Special Judge (Dacoity Affected Area), Jhansi.

3. Briefly stated, the applicant lodged a complaint in the Court of learned Special Judge (Dacoity Affected Area), Jhansi as Complaint Case No. 103 of 2023 (Sanjay Agarwal Vs. Rajeev Agrawal and others) wherein vide order dated 16.02.2024, the opposite party Nos. 2 to 4 have been summoned to face the trial under Sections 392, 452, 120B, 504, 506 IPC.

4. After taking cognizance, the learned Trial Court had fixed 06.06.2024 for the framing of the charges and on 26.06.2024, the date was fixed for recording of the evidence under Section 244 Cr.P.C.

5. It has been submitted that the respondents/accused moved an application under Section 39B before the learned Trial Court which was allowed vide order dated 30.05.2025 permitting, them to cross-examine P.W.-2 on the basis of the evidence adduced under Section 244 Cr.P.C.

6. The main submission of learned counsel for the applicant is that the procedure adopted by the learned Special Court for trying a Scheduled offence i.e., Section 392 IPC is illegal and against the procedure prescribed. It has been submitted that the instant complaint was lodged against the respondents/accused in the Court of Special Court (Dacoity Affected Area) Jhansi. The cognizance was taken and summoning order was passed u/s 392, 452, 120B, 504, 506 & 392 IPC which is a Scheduled offence under the provisions of the UP Dacoity Affected Area Act, 1983 therefore trial ought to have been conducted in the manner as prescribed under Chapter XVIII of the Code of Criminal Procedure and the provisions of Sections 244 or 245 of the Code of Criminal Procedure would not apply to the proceedings of the Complaint Case pending before a Special Court which happens to be the learned Sessions Judge under the U.P. Dacoity Affected Areas Act, 1983 (here-in-after referred to as "U.P Act No. 31 of 1983").

7. At this juncture, it is relevant to refer the provisions of U.P. Dacoity Affected Areas Act, 1983 whose object is to make provision for specifying certain offences in the Dacoity Affected Areas of the Uttar Pradesh in order to curb effectively commission of Scheduled offences and to make provision for punishment and speedy trial thereof and further attachment of properties acquired through the commission of such offences.

8. The State of Uttar Pradesh vide Government Notification (No. 8111-P/VIII-3-31) on November 5, 1981 had declared Jhansi as a Dacoity Affected Area.

9. The Schedule appended to the said Act classifies Section 392 IPC to be a Scheduled offence under Section 2(b) of the U.P. Act No. 31 of 1983.

10. Section 7 of U.P. Act No. 31 of 1983 prescribes the procedure and powers of the Special Courts:-

"Section 7. Procedure and powers of Special Courts.- (1) A Special Court may take cognizance of any scheduled offence,

(a) upon receiving a complaint of facts which constitute such Courts. offence;

(b) upon a police report of such facts ;

(c) upon information received from any person other than a police officer, or upon its own knowledge that such offence has been committed:

Provided that all cases triable by a Special Court under this Act, pending before any Court immediately before the date of the commencement of this Act in a dacoity affected area, shall stand transferred to the Special Court having jurisdiction over such cases and shall be dealt with and disposed of in accordance with the provisions of this Act.

(2) A Special Court shall, while trying a scheduled offence, so far as may be, follow the procedure provided by the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 for trial of sessions cases :

Provided that the Special Court may, wherever necessary, perform the functions of a Magistrate under section 207 of the said Code and proceed to try the case as if the case had been committed to Court of Sessions for trial under the provisions of such Code.

(3) Save as otherwise expressly provided in this Act, the provisions of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872 and the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 shall, in so far as they are not inconsistent with the provisions of this Act, apply to the proceedings before a Special Court and for the purposes of the provisions of the said Code, the Special Court shall be deemed to be a Court of Sessions and the person conducting the prosecution before a Special Court shall be deemed to be a public prosecutor.

(4) A Special Court may, with a view to obtain the evidence of any person supposed to have been directly or indirectly concerned in or privy to any scheduled offence, tender a pardon to such person on condition of his making a full and true disclosure of the whole circumstances within his knowledge relating to the offence and to every other person concerned whether as principal abettor in the commission thereof and any pardon so tendered shall for purposes of section 308 of the said Code, be deemed to have been tendered under section 307 thereof.

(5) A. Special Court may pass upon any accused person convicted by it any sentence authorised by law for the punishment of offence of which such person is convicted."

11. Ordinarily, the power of taking cognizance in a Complaint Case in the Cr.P.C., is vested with the Magistrate as per the provisions of Section 190 Cr.P.C., but Section 193 Cr.P.C., provides for cognizance of the offences in other Courts also like the Court of Session.

12. Section 193 Cr.P.C., reads as under:-

"193. Cognizance of offences by Courts of Session.- Except as otherwise expressly provided by this Code or by any other law for the time being in force, no Court of Session shall take cognizance of any offence as a Court of original jurisdiction unless the case has been committed to it by a Magistrate under this Code."

13. The bare reading of provision of Section 193 indicates that the Court of Session may also take cognizance of an offence, if it is empowered to do so by any other law for the time being in force. This provision is completely in consonance with the saving clause contained in Section 5 of the Cr.P.C., which lays down that nothing contained in the Code shall in the absence of a specific provision to the contrary affect any special or local law for the time being in force or any special jurisdiction or power conferred or any special forum or procedure prescribed by any other law for the time being in force. As such, if the special laws are in force then the general laws could not be resorted to as regards the procedure of a trial or other things regarding a criminal offence made punishable either under the I.P.C or any other Act for the time being in force.

14. Section 4(2) of the Cr.P.C., deals with the trial of offences under other laws which reads as under:-

"4(2) All offences under any other law shall be investigated, inquired into, tried, and otherwise dealt with according to the same provisions, but subject to any enactment for the time being in force regulating the manner of place of investigating, inquiring into, trying or otherwise dealing with such offences."

15. The Uttar Pradesh Dacoity Affected Areas Act is a Special Act and Section 7 of the Act expressly lays down the procedure and power of a Special Court which has been constituted by virtue of Section 5 of the Cr.P.C. The Special Court thus consists of the Sessions Judge or the Additional Sessions Judge, empowered to try the scheduled offences by following the procedure provided by the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 for the trial of Sessions Cases. The Special Court has to follow the procedure set down by the Cr.P.C. under Chapter XVIII which relates to trial before the Court of Session. If the prescribed procedure is not adopted then it is either a case of lack of jurisdiction and is an abuse of the process of law.

16. Learned counsel for the applicant has relied upon the judgment rendered by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Gangula Ashok and Another Vs. Andhra Pradesh 2000 (2) SCC 504 wherein it was observed that:

"Section 193 of the Code has to be understood in the aforesaid backdrop. The section imposes an interdict on all Courts of Session against taking cognizance of any offence as a court of original jurisdiction. It can take cognizance only if "the case has been committed to it by a magistrate", as provided in the Code. Two segments have been indicated in Section 193 as exceptions to the aforesaid interdict. One is, when the Code itself has provided differently in express language regarding taking of cognizance, and the second is when any other law has provided differently in express language regarding taking cognizance of offences under such law. The word "expressly" which is employed in Section 193 denoting to those exceptions is indicative of the legislative mandate that a Court of Session can depart from the interdict contained in the section only if it is provided differently in clear and unambiguous terms. In other words, unless it is positively and specifically provided differently no Court of Session can take cognizance of any offence directly, without the case being committed to it by a magistrate.

Neither in the Code nor in the Act there is any provision whatsoever, not even by implication, that the specified Court of Session (Special Court) can take cognizance of the offence under the Act as a court of original jurisdiction without the case being committed to it by a magistrate. If that be so, there is no reason to think that the charge-sheet or a complaint can straightway be filed before such Special Court for offences under the Act. It can be discerned from the hierarchical settings of criminal courts that the Court of Session is given a superior and special status. Hence we think that the legislature would have thoughtfully relieved the Court of Session from the work of performing all the preliminary formalities which magistrates have to do until the case is committed to the Court of session.

We have noticed from some of the decisions rendered by various High Courts that contentions were advanced based on Sections 4 and 5 of the Code as suggesting that a departure from Section 193 of the Code is permissible under special enactments. Section 4 of the Code contains two sub-sections of which the first sub-section is of no relevance since it deals only with offences under the Indian Penal Code. However, sub-section (2) deals with offences under other laws and hence the same can be looked into. Sub-section (2) of Section 4 is extracted below :

"All offences under any other law shall be investigated, inquired into, tried, and otherwise dealt with according to the same provisions, but subject to any enactment for the time being in force regulating the manner or place of investigating, inquiring into, trying or otherwise dealing with such offences."

*A reading of the sub-section makes it clear that subject to the provisions in other enactments all offences under other Laws shall also be investigated, inquired into, tried and otherwise dealt with under the provision of the Code, This means that if other enactment contains any provision which is contrary to the provisions of the Code, such other functions would apply in place of the particular provision of the Code, If there is no such contrary provision in other laws, then provisions of the code would apply to the matters covered thereby. This aspect has been emphasised by a Constitution Bench of this Court in paragraph 16 of the decision in A.R. Antulay v. Ramdas Srinivas Nayak and Anr., [1984] 2 SCC 500. It reads thus:*

"Section 4(2) provides for offences under other law which may be investigated, inquired into, and otherwise dealt with according to the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure but subject to any enactment for the time being in force regulating the manner or place of investigation, inquiring into, trying or otherwise dealing with such offences. In the absence of a specific provision made in the statute indicating that offences will have to be investigated, inquired into, tried otherwise dealt with according to that statute, the same will have to be investigated, inquired into, tried and otherwise dealt with according to the Code of Criminal Procedure. In other words, Code of Criminal Procedure is the parent statute which provides for investigation, inquiring into and trial of cases by criminal courts of various designations."

Nor can Section 5 of the Code be brought in aid for supporting the view that the Court of Session specified under the Act can obviate the interdict contained in Section 193 of the Code as long there is no provision in the Act empowering the Special Court to take cognizance of the offence as a court of original jurisdiction. Section 5 of the Code reads thus :

"5. Saving. - Nothing contained in this Code shall, in the absence of a specific provision to the contrary, affect any special or local law for the time being in force, or any special jurisdiction power conferred, or any special form of procedure prescribed, by any other law for the time being force."

This Court, on a reading of Section 5 in juxtaposition with Section 4(2) of the Code, has held that "it only relates to the extent of application of the Code in the matter of territorial and other jurisdiction but does not nullify the effect of Section 4(2); In short, the provisions of this Code would be applicable to the extent, in the absence of any contrary provision in the special Act or any special provision including the jurisdiction or ap-plicability of the Code." (vide para 128 in Directorate Enforcement v. Deepak Mahajon, [1994] 3 SCC 440.

Hence we have no doubt that a Special Court under this Act is essentially a Court of Session and it can take cognizance of the offence when the case is committed to it by the magistrate in accordance with the provisions of the Code. In other words, a complaint or a charge sheet cannot straightway laid before the Special Court under the Act."

17. Learned A.G.A. for the State could not dispute the aforesaid facts and circumstances.

18. As District Jhansi has been notified by the State Government as a Dacoity Affected Area and Section 392 IPC is classified as a Scheduled offence under Section 2(b) of the U.P Act No. 31 of 1983, therefore, in the instant matter trial must proceed as per Section 7 of the U.P. Act No. 31 of 1983 which empowers the Special Court to follow the procedure as provided under Chapter XVIII of the Code of Criminal Procedure.

19. In view of the aforesaid discussion, the Court finds that the impugned orders dated 26.06.2024 and 30.05.2025 have been passed without jurisdiction and is an abuse of the process of the Court. Hence, the impugned orders dated 26.06.2024 and 30.05.2025 passed by the learned Special Judge (Dacoity Affected Area), Jhansi are hereby set aside and the matter is remitted back with a direction to the Court concerned to proceed with trial afresh, in accordance with the procedure as discussed above, after giving opportunity of hearing to both the parties, expeditiously without granting any unnecessary or long adjournments to either of the parties, if there is no other legal impediment.

20. With the aforesaid direction, the application u/s 528 B.N.S.S. is allowed.

Appearances for Parties

Counsel for Applicant(s) : Abhishek Bhushan, Dinesh Singh, Sr. Advocate Counsel for Opposite Party(s) : Anand Kumar, G.A., Pankaj Kumar, Shyam Singh

(Delivered by Hon'ble Praveen Kumar Giri, J.)

1. Heard Shri R.R. Shukla, Advocate holding brief of Shri Dinesh Singh, learned counsel for the applicants and Shri Pankaj Kumar Tripathi, learned AGA for the State.

2. Learned counsel for the applicants submits that he has filed the instant application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. with the relief which has been mentioned in the prayer clause of the application.

3. The relief which has been mentioned in the application is delineated below:-

"It is, therefore, most respectfully prayed that this Hon'ble Court may kindly be pleased to allow the present criminal application and quash the summoning order dated 28.05.2024 passed in Criminal Case No. 157 of 2024 for the offences under Section 354A, 504 and 506 Indian Penal Code pending before the Court of Civil Judge, Junior Division FTC/offences against woman, Mirzapur and also quash the further proceedings Criminal Case No. 157 of 2024 emanating from Charge Sheet dated 29.01.2024 arising out of Case Crime No. 369 of 2023, PS- Kotwali Chunar, Mirzapur, for the offences under Section 354A, 504 and 506 Indian Penal Code pending before the Court of Civil Judge, (Junior Division) FTC/offences against woman, Mirzapur, otherwise the applicants shall suffer irreparable loss and hardship."

4. Learned counsel for the applicants submits that opposite party No.2 lodged the First Information Report (F.I.R.) with allegations of molestation and making indecent comments against her, who is a lady. On the facts so alleged in the First Information Report, the F.I.R. was registered as Case Crime No. 369 of 2023, Police Station Kotwali Chunar, Mirzapur, under Section 354A, 504 and 506 of the Indian Penal Code.

5. Learned counsel for the applicants further submits that the victim, i.e. opposite party No.2, in her statements recorded under Sections 161 and deposition recorded under Section 164 Cr.P.C., has not supported the version of the F.I.R. However, after investigation, the police has submitted charge-sheet under Sections 354A, 504 and 506 I.P.C. against the applicants. Learned counsel for the applicants further submits that the present case is a counter blast, as disciplinary proceedings had earlier been initiated against the opposite party No.2 (Victim) by the department.

6. Per contra, learned A.G.A. submits that the F.I.R. is not an encyclopedia. Therefore, the victim, i.e. opposite party No.2, has disclosed other facts which occurred with her at a later stage and the charge-sheet has been submitted in accordance with law and the learned Judicial Magistrate has taken cognizance on the sections mentioned in the charge-sheet.

7. On perusal of the record, it transpires that the learned Magistrate has taken cognizance on the charge-sheet as per law and if no offence is made out under the sections mentioned in the charge-sheet, the same can be examined at a later stage, as remedy is available to the accused under Section 239 Cr.P.C. (corresponding Section 262 B.N.S.S.) at the stage of framing of charges, where the accused shall be provided an opportunity of hearing. Thus, quashing/setting aside the cognizance order amounts to discharge at an early stage and adding or subtracting, excluding or including any section also amounts to alteration of charge for which an appropriate stage is provided under Sections 216, 218 and 221 Cr.P.C.

(corresponding Sections 239, 241 and 244 B.N.S.S.) for alteration of charge, separate charge for distinct offence and cases where it is doubtful as to what offence has been committed. The provisions mentioned in Section 216, 218, 221 Cr.P.C. (corresponding Section 239, 241, 244 BNSS) delineated below:

"Section 216 Cr.P.C., Court may alter charge- (1) Any Court may alter or add to any charge at any time before judgment is pronounced.

(2) Every such alteration or addition shall be read and explained to the accused.

(3) If the alteration or addition to a charge is such that proceeding immediately with the trial is not likely, in the opinion of the Court, to prejudice the accused in his defence or the prosecutor in the conduct of the case, the Court may, in its discretion, after such alteration or addition has been made, proceed with the trial as if the altered or added charge had been the original charge.

(4) If the alteration or addition is such that proceeding immediately with the trial is likely, in the opinion of the Court, to prejudice the accused or the prosecutor as aforesaid, the Court may either direct a new trial or adjourn the trial for such period as may be necessary.

(5) If the offence stated in the altered or added charge is one for the prosecution of which previous sanction is necessary, the case shall not be proceeded with until such sanction is obtained, unless sanction has been already obtained for a prosecution on the same facts as those on which the altered or added charge is founded.

Section 218 Cr.P.C., Separate charges for distinct offences- (1) For every distinct offence of which any person is accused there shall be a separate charge and every such charge shall be tried separately.

Provided that where the accused person, by an application in writing, so desires and the Magistrate is of opinion that such person is not likely to be prejudiced thereby, the Magistrate may try together all or any number of the charges framed against such person.

(2) Nothing in sub-section (1) shall affect the operation of the provisions of sections 219, 220, 221 and 223.

Section 221 Cr.P.C., Where it is doubtful what offence has been committed- (1) If a single act or series of acts is of such a nature that it is doubtful which of several offences the facts which can be proved will constitute, the accused may be charged with having committed all or any of such offences and any number of such charges may be tried at once or he may be charged in the alternative with having committed some one of the said offences.

(2) If in such a case the accused is charged with one offence and it appears in evidence that he committed a different offence for which he might have been charged under the provisions of sub-section (1), he may be convicted of the offence which he is shown to have committed, although he was not charged with it.

Section 239 B.N.S.S., Court may alter charge- (1) Any Court may alter or add to any charge at any time before judgment is pronounced.

(2) Every such alteration or addition shall be read and explained to the accused.

(3) If the alteration or addition to a charge is such that proceeding immediately with the trial is not likely, in the opinion of the Court, to prejudice the accused in his defence or the prosecutor in the conduct of the case, the Court may, in its discretion, after such alteration or addition has been made, proceed with the trial as if the altered or added charge had been the original charge.

(4) If the alteration or addition is such that proceeding immediately with the trial is likely, in the opinion of the Court, to prejudice the accused or the prosecutor, the Court may either direct a new trial or adjourn the trial for such period as may be necessary.

(5) If the offence stated in the altered or added charge is one for the prosecution of which previous sanction is necessary, the case shall not be proceeded with until such sanction is obtained, unless sanction has already been obtained for a prosecution on the same facts as those on which the altered or added charge is founded.

Section 241 B.N.S.S., Separate charges for distinct offences- (1) For every distinct offence of which any person is accused there shall be a separate charge and every such charge shall be tried separately.

Provided that where the accused person, by an application in writing, so desires and the Court is of opinion that such person is not likely to be prejudiced thereby, the Court may try together all or any number of the charges framed against such person.

(2) Nothing in sub-section (1) shall affect the operation of the provisions of sections 242, 243, 244 and 246.

Section 244 B.N.S.S., Where it is doubtful what offence has been committed- (1) If a single act or series of acts is of such a nature that it is doubtful which of several offences the facts which can be proved will constitute, the accused may be charged with having committed all or any of such offences and any number of such charges may be tried at once or he may be charged in the alternative with having committed some one of the said offences.

(2) If in such a case the accused is charged with one offence and it appears in evidence that he committed a different offence for which he might have been charged under sub-section (1), he may be convicted of the offence which he is shown to have committed, although he was not charged with it."

8. The material collected by the Investigating Officer during investigation is not evidence as per the Indian Evidence Act, 1872 or Bharatiya Sakshya Adhiniyam, 2023. The term "evidence" is defined under Section 3 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872 as well as under Section 2(1)(e) of the Bharatiya Sakshya Adhiniyam, 2023, which are delineated below respectively:

Evidence-"Evidence" means and includes □ (1) all statements which the Court permits or requires to be made before it by witnesses in relation to matters of fact under inquiry; such statements are called oral evidence;

(2) all documents including electronic records produced for the inspection of the Court; such documents are called documentary evidence.

Section 2(1)(e) □Evidence" means and includes □ (i) all statements including statements given electronically which the Court permits or requires to be made before it by witnesses in relation to matters of fact under inquiry and such statements are called oral evidence;

(ii) all documents including electronic or digital records produced for the inspection of the Court and such documents are called documentary evidence;

9. The remedy is available to the accused to seek discharge from the offences mentioned in the charge-sheet or cognizance-cum-summoning order. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in State of Gujarat v. Girish Radhakrishnan Varde, (2014) 3 SCC 659, has observed in paragraphs 13 and 14 of the judgment that the Judicial Magistrate or court cannot add or subtract, exclude or include any Section mentioned in the charge-sheet at the time of taking of cognizance as the same is permissible at the time of framing of charge. The relevant paragraphs are delineated below:

"13. But if a case is registered by the police based on the FIR registered at the Police Station under Section 154 Cr.P.C. and not by way of a complaint under Section 190(a) of the Cr.P.C. before the magistrate, obviously the magisterial enquiry cannot be held in regard to the FIR which had been registered as it is the investigating agency of the police which alone is legally entitled to conduct the investigation and, thereafter, submit the chargesheet unless of course a complaint before the magistrate is also lodged where the procedure prescribed for complaint cases would be applicable. In a police case, however after submission of the chargesheet, the matter goes to the magistrate for forming an opinion as to whether it is a fit case for taking cognizance and committing the matter for trial in a case which is lodged before the police by way of FIR and the magistrate cannot exclude or include any section into the chargesheet after investigation has been completed and chargesheet has been submitted by the police.

14. The question, therefore, emerges as to whether the complainant/informant/prosecution would be precluded from seeking a remedy if the investigating authorities have failed in their duty by not including all the sections of IPC on which offence can be held to have been made out in spite of the facts disclosed in the FIR. The answer obviously has to be in the negative as the prosecution cannot be allowed to suffer prejudice by ignoring exclusion of the sections which constitute the offence if the investigating authorities for any reason whatsoever have failed to include all the offence into the chargesheet based on the FIR on which investigation had been conducted. But then a further question arises as to whether this lacunae can be allowed to be filled in by the magistrate before whom the matter comes up for taking cognizance after submission of the chargesheet and as already stated, the magistrate in a case which is based on a police report cannot add or subtract sections at the time of taking cognizance as the same would be permissible by the trial court only at the time of framing of charge under section 216, 218 or under section 228 of the Cr.P.C. as the case may be which means that after submission of the chargesheet it will be open for the prosecution to contend before the appropriate trial court at the stage of framing of charge to establish that on the given state of facts the appropriate sections which according to the prosecution should be framed can be allowed to be framed. Simultaneously, the accused also has the liberty at this stage to submit whether the charge under a particular provision should be framed or not and this is the appropriate forum in a case based on police report to determine whether the charge can be framed and a particular section can be added or removed depending upon the material collected during investigation as also the facts disclosed in the FIR and the chargesheet.

10. The accused has a remedy to move a discharge application before the concerned Magistrate or Sessions Court. The Court, after providing an opportunity of hearing, may either discharge the accused or frame charges against the accused as per the provisions of law mentioned in the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 or the Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023. The relevant provisions are quoted below:

(i). In a Sessions trial, under Section 227 Cr.P.C. (corresponding Section 250 B.N.S.S.), an application for discharge is filed while under Section 228 Cr.P.C. (corresponding Section 251 B.N.S.S.), an order for framing of charge is passed. The aforesaid sections of Cr.P.C. and B.N.S.S. are delineated below:

"Section 227 Cr.P.C., Discharge- If, upon consideration of the record of the case and the documents submitted therewith and after hearing the submissions of the accused and the prosecution in this behalf, the Judge considers that there is not sufficient ground for proceeding against the accused, he shall discharge the accused and record his reasons for so doing.

Section 228 Cr.P.C., Framing of charge- (1) If, after such consideration and hearing as aforesaid, the Judge is of opinion that there is ground for presuming that the accused has committed an offence which □

(a) is not exclusively triable by the Court of Session, he may frame a charge against the accused and, by order, transfer the case for trial to the Chief Judicial Magistrate or any other Judicial Magistrate of the first class and direct the accused to appear before such Magistrate on such date as he deems fit and thereupon such Magistrate shall try the offence in accordance with the procedure for the trial of warrant-cases instituted on a police report;

(b) is exclusively triable by the Court, he shall frame in writing a charge against the accused.

(2) Where the Judge frames any charge under clause (b) of sub-section (1), the charge shall be read and explained to the accused and the accused shall be asked whether he pleads guilty of the offence charged or claims to be tried.

Section 250 B.N.S.S., Discharge- (1) The accused may prefer an application for discharge within a period of Sixty days from the date of commitment of the case under Section 232.

(2) If, upon consideration of the record of the case and the documents submitted therewith and after hearing the submissions of the accused and the prosecution in this behalf, the Judge considers that there is not sufficient ground for proceeding against the accused, he shall discharge the accused and record his reasons for so doing.

Section 251 B.N.S.S., Framing of charge- (1) If, after such consideration and hearing as aforesaid, the Judge is of opinion that there is ground for presuming that the accused has committed an offence which □

(a) is not exclusively triable by the Court of Session, he may frame a charge against the accused and, by order, transfer the case for trial to the Chief Judicial Magistrate or any other Judicial Magistrate of the first class and direct the accused to appear before such Magistrate on such date as he deems fit and thereupon such Magistrate shall try the offence in accordance with the procedure for the trial of warrant-cases instituted on a police report;

(b) is exclusively triable by the Court of Session, he shall frame in writing a charge against the accused within a period of sixty days from the date of first hearing on charge.

(2) Where the Judge frames any charge under clause (b) of sub-section (1), the charge shall be read and explained to the accused and the accused shall be asked whether he pleads guilty of the offence charged or claims to be tried."

(ii). In the trial of warrant cases by a Magistrate instituted on a police report, under Section 239 Cr.P.C. (corresponding Section 262 B.N.S.S.), an application for discharge is filed while, under Section 240 Cr.P.C. (corresponding Section 263 B.N.S.S.), an order for framing of charge is passed. The aforesaid sections of Cr.P.C. and B.N.S.S. are delineated below:

"Section 239. Cr.P.C., When accused shall be discharged. □ If, upon considering the police report and the documents sent with it under section 173 and making such examination, if any, of the accused as the Magistrate thinks necessary and after giving the prosecution and the accused an opportunity of being heard, the Magistrate considers the charge against the accused to be groundless, he shall discharge the accused, and record his reasons for so doing.

Section 240 Cr.P.C., Framing of charge. □ (1) If, upon such consideration, examination, if any, and hearing, the Magistrate is of opinion that there is ground for presuming that the accused has committed an offence triable under this Chapter, which such Magistrate is competent to try and which, in his opinion, could be adequately punished by him, he shall frame in writing a charge against the accused.

(2) The charge shall then be read and explained to the accused, and he shall be asked whether he pleads guilty of the offence charged or claims to be tried.

Section 262 B.N.S.S., When accused shall be discharged- (1) The accused may prefer an application for discharge within a period of sixty days from the date of supply of copies of documents under Section 230.

(2) If, upon considering the police report and the documents sent with it under Section 193 and after making such examination, if any, of the accused as the Magistrate thinks necessary and after giving the prosecution and the accused an opportunity of being heard, the Magistrate considers the charge against the accused to be groundless, he shall discharge the accused and record his reasons for so doing.

Section 263 B.N.S.S., Framing of charge- (1) If, upon such consideration, examination, if any, and hearing, the Magistrate is of opinion that there is ground for presuming that the accused has committed an offence triable under this Chapter which the Magistrate is competent to try and which, in his opinion, could be adequately punished by him, he shall frame in writing a charge against the accused within a period of sixty days from the date of first hearing on charge.

(2) The charge shall then be read and explained to the accused, and he shall be asked whether he pleads guilty of the offence charged or claims to be tried. □

(iii). In the trial of warrant cases by a Magistrate instituted otherwise than on a police report, i.e. on a complaint, under Section 245 Cr.P.C. (corresponding Section 268 B.N.S.S.), an application for discharge is filed while, under Section 246(1) Cr.P.C. (corresponding Section 269(1) B.N.S.S.), an order for framing of charge is passed. The aforesaid sections of Cr.P.C. and B.N.S.S. are delineated below:

“Section 245 Cr.P.C., When accused shall be discharged- (1) If, upon taking all the evidence referred to in Section 244, the Magistrate considers, for reasons to be recorded, that no case against the accused has been made out which, if unrebutted, would warrant his conviction, the Magistrate shall discharge him.

(2) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to prevent a Magistrate from discharging the accused at any previous stage of the case if, for reasons to be recorded, the Magistrate considers the charge to be groundless.

Section 246(1) Cr.P.C., Procedure where accused is not discharged- (1) If, when such evidence has been taken or at any previous stage of the case, the Magistrate is of opinion that there is ground for presuming that the accused has committed an offence triable under this Chapter which such Magistrate is competent to try and which, in his opinion, could be adequately punished by him, he shall frame in writing a charge against the accused.

Section 268 B.N.S.S., When accused shall be discharged-- If, upon taking all the evidence referred to in Section 267, the Magistrate considers, for reasons to be recorded, that no case against the accused has been made out which, if unrebutted, would warrant his conviction, the Magistrate shall discharge him.

(2) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to prevent a Magistrate from discharging the accused at any previous stage of the case if, for reasons to be recorded by such Magistrate, he considers the charge to be groundless.

Section 269(1) B.N.S.S., Framing of charge- (1) If, when such evidence has been taken or at any previous stage of the case, the Magistrate is of opinion that there is ground for presuming that the accused has committed an offence triable under this Chapter which such Magistrate is competent to try and which, in his opinion, could be adequately punished by him, he shall frame in writing a charge against the accused.”

11. After framing of charge, if the accused does not plead guilty, the trial court shall call the prosecution witnesses and the accused shall be given an opportunity of hearing to cross-examine the witnesses and lead evidence and before entering into defence, the Court may acquit the accused under Section 232 Cr.P.C. (corresponding Section 255 B.N.S.S.) in a Sessions trial. In the case of trial of warrant cases, the accused shall be provided an opportunity of hearing to cross-examine the prosecution witnesses under Sections 242 and 246(4) Cr.P.C. (corresponding Sections 265 and 269(4) B.N.S.S.). The provisions mentioned in the aforesaid sections of Cr.P.C. and B.N.S.S. are delineated below:

“Section 232 Cr.P.C., Acquittal- If, after taking the evidence for the prosecution, examining the accused and hearing the prosecution and the defence on the point, the Judge considers that there is no evidence that the accused committed the offence, the Judge shall record an order of acquittal.

Section 242 Cr.P.C., Evidence for prosecution- (1) If the accused refuses to plead or does not plead or claims to be tried or if the Magistrate does not convict the accused under Section 241, the Magistrate shall fix a date for the examination of witnesses.

(2) The Magistrate may, on the application of the prosecution, issue a summons to any of its witnesses directing him to attend or to produce any document or other thing.

(3) On the date so fixed, the Magistrate shall proceed to take all such evidence as may be produced in support of the prosecution.

Section 246(4) Cr.P.C., Procedure where accused is not discharged- (4) If the accused refuses to plead, or does not plead or claims to be tried or if the accused is not convicted under sub-section (3), he shall be required to state, at the commencement of the next hearing of the case, or, if the Magistrate for reasons to be recorded in writing so thinks fit, forthwith, whether he wishes to cross-examine any, and, if so, which, of the witnesses for the prosecution whose evidence has been taken.

Section 255 B.N.S.S., Acquittal- If, after taking the evidence for the prosecution, examining the accused and hearing the prosecution and the defence on the point, the Judge considers that there is no evidence that the accused committed the offence, the Judge shall record an order of acquittal.

Section 265 B.N.S.S., Evidence for Prosecution- (1) If the accused refuses to plead or does not plead, or claims to be tried or the Magistrate does not convict the accused under section 264, the Magistrate shall fix a date for the examination of witnesses:

Provided that the Magistrate shall supply in advance to the accused, the statement of witnesses recorded during investigation by the police.

(2) The Magistrate may, on the application of the prosecution, issue a summons to any of its witnesses directing him to attend or to produce any document or other thing.

(3) On the date so fixed, the Magistrate shall proceed to take all such evidence as may be produced in support of the prosecution:

Provided that the Magistrate may permit the cross-examination of any witness to be deferred until any other witness or witnesses have been examined or recall any witness for further cross-examination:

Provided further that evidence of a witness under this sub-section may be recorded by audio-video electronic means.

Section 269(4) B.N.S.S., If the accused refuses to plead, or does not plead or claims to be tried or if the accused is not convicted under sub-section (3), he shall be required to state, at the commencement of the next hearing of the case, or, if the Magistrate for reasons to be recorded in writing so thinks fit, forthwith, whether he wishes to cross-examine any, and, if so, which, of the witnesses for the prosecution whose evidence has been taken.”

13. Before the stage of framing of charge, remedy is available to the accused as per the conditions mentioned in the judgments of Arnesh Kumar vs. State of Bihar; 2014 (8) SCC 273 and Satyendra Kumar Antil vs. Central Bureau of Investigation and Another; 2021 (10) SCC 773, that the accused may not be taken into custody during investigation for the offence mentioned in the F.I.R. and the accused may file a writ petition for quashing of the F.I.R. or for stay of arrest during investigation or move an application for anticipatory bail or regular bail before the competent Court and participate in the discharge proceedings.

14. In view of the aforesaid facts and circumstances of the case, this Court is not inclined to grant any relief to the applicant as prayed in the prayer clause as the issue has already been settled by the Hon^{ble} Supreme Court in the case of State of Gujarat v. Girish Radhakrishnan Varde; (2014) 3 SCC 659, in paragraphs 13 and 14 of the judgment.

15. Accordingly, the application is dismissed.

16. The trial court is directed to frame charge in accordance with law.

Appearances for Parties

Counsel for Applicant(s) : Akhilesh Kumar Dwivedi Counsel for Opposite Party(s) : G.A.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Arun Kumar Singh Deshwal, J.)

1. Heard Sri Akhilesh Kumar Dwivedi, learned counsel for the applicant and Sri Anoop Trivedi, learned Additional Advocate General, assisted by Sri Sanjay Kumar Singh and Sri Nitesh Kumar Srivastava, learned AGA for the State.

2. The instant bail application has been filed with a prayer to release the applicant on bail in Case Crime No.489 of 2025, under Sections-109(1), 109(2), 118(2), 121(1), 189(5), 191(2), 191(3), 195(1), 196(1), 196(2), 223, 310(2), 324(5), 324(6), 61(2), 62 BNS, 7 Criminal Law Amendment Act and Section 3/4 Prevention of Damage of Public Property Act, Police Station-Kotwali, District-Bareilly, during the pendency of the trial.

3. As per the prosecution story, an FIR was lodged on 26.05.2025 with the allegation that the President of Ittefaq Minnat Council (in short 'INC'), Maulana Taukir Raza had given a call to the muslim community to assemble in the field of Islamia Inter College to make a demonstration against the State for atrocities as well as lodging false cases against the muslim youth. Police received information on 25.09.2025 that Maulana Taukir Raza, as well as one of the leaders of the INC, Nadeem Khan, had incited people belonging to the Muslim community to assemble in the grounds of Islamia Inter College after the conclusion of namaz on 26.09.2025. Although the police requested them not to go ahead, Section 163 BNSS was also enforced in District Bareilly, prohibiting any assembly of more than five persons. Thereafter, the first informant, who was posted near the house of INC leader Nadeem Khan in Biharipur, Police Station- Kotwali, District-Bareilly, found that Nadeem Khan incited the people to assemble and proceed to Islamia Inter College, and a crowd also came out from the house of Nadeem Khan. Thereafter, he also left the place to incite the people at other places. It was found that the crowd of 500 people assembled in Biharipur and they started making slogans against the Government and also raising slogans "gustakh-e-nabi ki ek saja sar tan se juda, sar tan se juda" and police tried to stop them but they started snatching the canes of the policemen and also torn their uniform and on objecting by the police, they started throwing petrol bomb, firing and stone pelting which has resulted into injury to several policemen and also damage to several police and private vehicles and on the spot, 7 persons including the present applicant were arrested and based on their statements, names of several persons including the main accused, Maulana Taukir Raza and Nadeem Khan, came to surface. On the basis of the statements of these arrested persons and on the identification of other co-accused, an FIR was lodged against 25 named and 1700 unknown persons. Thereafter, police also arrested other named accused and identified unknown persons on the basis of information received from arrested persons, as well as independent witnesses and also on perusal of CCTV footage.

4. Learned counsel for the applicant has submitted that the applicant has been falsely implicated and he was arrested from his home, but the police falsely claimed his arrest from the spot. It is further submitted that the applicant has no criminal history and there is no incriminating material against him. Therefore, the applicant is entitled to be released on bail during the investigation/trial.

5. Per contra, Sri Anoop Trivedi, learned Additional Advocate General, assisted by Sri Sanjay Kumar Singh and Sri Nitesh Kumar Srivastava, learned AGA, have vehemently opposed the prayer and submitted that the act of the applicant and other co-accused is not only promoting enmity between the religious communities but also against the State as well as against the unity and integrity of India. It is further submitted by the learned Additional Advocate General that the slogans used by the crowd "gustakh-e-nabi ki ek saja sar tan se juda, sar tan se juda" itself shows that the persons involved in the crowd do not have any respect for the Indian legal system, as disrespect to any God or Nabi of any religion is punishable in BNS by providing appropriate punishment, and there is no such punishment for beheading a person who disrespects the God or Nabi of any religion. Therefore, such an act is punishable not only u/s 152 of BNS but also under other sections of BNS, as the persons involved, including the applicant, challenged the sovereignty and integrity of India by their act of raising the above-mentioned slogans and destroyed public and private properties.

6. Considering the aforesaid submission and on perusal of record, it is not in dispute that at the instigation of INC President, Maulana Taukir Raza as well as another leader, Nadeem Khan, a crowd of more than 500 people assembled in Biharipur area of Police Station- Kotwali and made slogans against the State as well as the disputed/objectionable slogan "gustakh-e-nabi ki ek saja, sar tan se juda, sar tan se juda" and on being prevented by the police, they starting pelting stones, firing, damaging police and private vehicles and applicant as well as other six persons were also arrested from the spot. However, before analysing the aforesaid fact, it would be appropriate to mention that the offence of blasphemy or disrespecting any religion or God is punishable u/s 299 and 196 BNS. Section 302 of BNS further provides that if any person deliberately utters any word to wound religious feeling, then he shall be punished. In BNS, there is a specific Chapter, i.e. Chapter XVI, which provides offences relating to religion, and the relevant sections are Sections 298, 299 and 302 BNS, which are quoted as under:

"298. Injuring or defiling place of worship with intent to insult religion of any class.-Whoever destroys, damages or defiles any place of worship, or any object held sacred by any class of persons with the intention of thereby insulting the religion of any class of persons or with the knowledge that any class of persons is likely to consider such destruction, damage or defilement as an insult to their religion, shall be punished with imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to two years, or with fine, or with both.

299. Deliberate and malicious acts, intended to outrage religious feelings of any class by insulting its religion or religious beliefs.-Whoever, with deliberate and malicious intention of outraging the religious feelings of any class of citizens of India, by words, either spoken or written, or by signs or by visible representations or through electronic means or otherwise, insults or attempts to insult the religion or the religious beliefs of that class, shall be punished with imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to three years, or with fine, or with both.

302. Uttering words, etc., with deliberate intent to wound religious feelings of any person.-Whoever, with the deliberate intention of wounding the religious feelings of any person, utters any word or makes any sound in the hearing of that person or makes any gesture in the sight of that person or places any object in the sight of that person, shall be punished with imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to one year, or with fine, or with both."

7. Apart from this, if any group of persons either by spoken or written or by sign or visible representation or through electronic communication promote or attempt to promote enmity between the different groups on the ground of religion then, that is punishable u/s 196 BNS with the imprisonment up to 3 years and if same has been committed in place of any worship then same would be punishable up to 5 years. Section 196 of BNS is being quoted as under:

"196. Promoting enmity between different groups on grounds of religion, race, place of birth, residence, language, etc., and doing acts prejudicial to maintenance of harmony.? (1) Whoever-

(a) by words, either spoken or written, or by signs or by visible representations or through electronic communication or otherwise, promotes or attempts to promote, on grounds of religion, race, place of birth, residence, language, caste or community or any other ground whatsoever, disharmony or feelings of enmity, hatred or ill-will between different religious, racial, language or regional groups or castes or communities; or

(b) commits any act which is prejudicial to the maintenance of harmony between different religious, racial, language or regional groups or castes or communities, and which disturbs or is likely to disturb the public tranquillity; or

(c) organises any exercise, movement, drill or other similar activity intending that the participants in such activity shall use or be trained to use criminal force or violence or knowing it to be likely that the participants in such activity will use or be trained to use criminal force or violence, or participates in such activity intending to use or be trained to use criminal force or violence or knowing it to be likely that the participants in such activity will use or be trained to use criminal force or violence, against any religious, racial, language or regional group or caste or community and such activity for any reason whatsoever causes or is likely to cause fear or alarm or a feeling of insecurity amongst members of such religious, racial, language or regional group or caste or community, shall be punished with imprisonment which may extend to three years, or with fine, or with both.

(2) Whoever commits an offence specified in sub-section (1) in any place of worship or in any assembly engaged in the performance of religious worship or religious ceremonies, shall be punished with imprisonment which may extend to five years and shall also be liable to fine."

8. From the perusal of the above section, it is clear that BNS has taken care of all such situations where any person disrespects any religion or its God, Prophet, Guru or attempts to promote enmity between the religious groups by chanting any slogan or visible representation, then appropriate punishment has also been provided. Therefore, chanting the slogan "gustakh-e-nabi ki ek saja sar tan se juda, sar tan se juda" which provides punishment of beheading for disrespecting the Nabi(Prophet) amounts to challenging the sovereignty and integrity of India and also the indian legal system, which is based on solemn constitutional objective, which is rooted in democratic principles. The Constitution of India provides freedom of speech and expression as well as other liberties to all Indian citizens irrespective of their caste, creed or religion. Therefore, if a person, instead of respecting the law framed under the Indian constitution, attempts to challenge the law or promotes or incites people to commit an offence in the garb of providing punishment, though the same is not provided in the criminal law then that should be dealt with strictly. The Constitution of India permits the right to assemble and freedom of speech and expression under Article 19 of the Constitution of India, but it has certain limitations as per Article 19(2) of the Constitution of India. Therefore, any slogan by a crowd that provides a death sentence contrary to the appropriate punishment provided by the BNS or other criminal law is not only against the constitutional object but also a challenge to the lawful authority of the indian legal system and also punishable under Section 152 BNS.

9. Generally, slogans or proclamations are used in every religion, but these slogans are for the purpose of showing their respect to the concerned God or Guru, like in Muslim "nara-e-takbir" followed by "Allahu Akbar" which means God is the greatest and there is no dispute or objection about it. Similarly, in the Sikh religion, the slogan (proclamation) "Jo bole so nihaal, Sat Sri Akal" is also an acknowledgement of God as the ultimate, timeless reality and this call was popularised by Guru Gobind Singh Ji. Similarly, chanting the slogans (Devotional call) in a cheerful and joyful moments by Hindus like "Jai Shree Ram" or "Har Har Mahadev". Therefore, raising or chanting these slogans (Devotional calls or proclamations) by any person or a crowd is not an offence unless they are maliciously used to intimidate persons belonging to other religions. Though the slogan "gustakh-e-nabi ki ek saja sar tan se juda, sar tan se juda" does not have any trace in the Quran or any other religious text belonging to Muslims, even then this slogan is being used widely by several muslim persons without knowing its correct meaning and effect.

10. Before 1947, there were several incidents where the Hindus and Muslims quarrelled with each other on religious issues; therefore, in 1927, the blasphemy law was enacted by the English Government, covering the hurting of religious feelings as a crime. Thereafter, on the division of India and Pakistan in 1947, the Pakistan Government enacted the blasphemy law. As per this law, any person who disrespects the religion or the Quran would be liable to punishment, and this blasphemy law in Pakistan was further amended by the Pakistani Army Commander, Mohammad Zia-ul-Haq, in 1982 by adding section 295-B wherein it is mentioned that in case any person says anything disrespecting to Quran then a person would be liable to life imprisonment or death. In 1986, the Pakistani blasphemy law was again amended, and Section 295(c) was added, which provides that disrespect to "Huzur Sallallahu alayhi wasallam" shall also be punishable with the life imprisonment or death. Thereafter, the Sariate Court in Pakistan further made this law more strict and directed that disrespect to other Nabis (nabiyyin), apart from "Sallallahu alayhi wasallam", will also be punishable with the punishment of only death. Thereafter, in the year 2011, a Christian woman, Asia Bibi, was convicted under the blasphemy law in Pakistan. The Governor of Punjab, Salman Taseer, educated in London, supported the women Asia Bibi, and this created huge unrest in the Pakistan and the crowd assembled on roads making demonstration under the leadership of Mulla Khadim Hussain Rizvi, who for the first time used the slogan "gustakh-e-nabi ki ek saja, sar tan se juda, sar tan se juda" and thereafter this slogan also spread to other countries including India and has been widely misused by certain muslims just to intimidate the people of other religions and also to challenge the authority of the State. Therefore, it is clear that the slogan "gustakh-e-nabi ki ek saja, sar tan se juda, sar tan se juda" used by the crowd in India is nothing but used to challenge the authority of law and sovereignty of India and also to incite people for armed rebellion.

11. There are several instances which shows even Prophet Mohammad had shown his kindness despite being disrespected by some people and he never desired or expressed to behead such person. In one incident, when Prophet Mohammad travelled to city of Taif, a non-Muslim woman neighbour, who frequently harmed the prophet by throwing garbage in his path but prophet never retaliated or complaint. When the neighbour fell ill, the prophet went to visit her out of kindness, which ultimately lead the neighbour to embrace the Islam. The above act on the part of prophet Mohammad demonstrated his unwavering principle of repelling evil with good, his deep passion, and his focus on long term guidance over immediate retribution. Therefore, if any follower of Islam raises a slogan for beheading any person, who disrespects the Nabi, that is nothing but disrespect to the ideals of prophet Mohammad. As love, kindness and compassion attract others but showing expression of violence through words creates enmity or annoyance towards the religion of the person who promotes violence.

12. In view of above analysis, it is clear that the slogan raised by an individual person or by a crowd that "gustakh-e-nabi ki ek saja, sar tan se juda, sar tan se juda" is a challenge to the authority of law as well as sovereignty and integrity of India as the same incites the people for arm rebellion, therefore, this act not only will be punishable under Section 152 BNS but also against the basic tenets of Islam.

13. Coming to the fact of the present case, it is not in dispute that such a disputed or objectionable slogan "gustakh-e-nabi ki ek saja, sar tan se juda, sar tan se juda" was used by the crowd of thousands of people assembled at the instigation of Maulana Taukir Raza and when police stopped the crowd and informed that in view of the enforcement of order under Section 163 BNSS, they cannot assemble and their assembly is unlawful and also requested not to assemble in Islamia Inter College but the people started pelting stone, throwing petrol bombs and firing which resulted in injuries to many policemen and they had also damaged public and private property, thereafter several persons including the present applicant were arrested from the spot.

14. There is sufficient material in the case diary showing that the applicant was part of an unlawful assembly which not only raised objectionable slogans challenging the authority of the Indian legal system but also caused injuries to police personnel and damaged public as well as private property, which is nothing but an offence against the State and he was arrested from the spot. Therefore, this court does not find any ground to release the applicant on bail.

15. Accordingly, the bail application of the applicant is rejected.

Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No. 4791 of 2025

Issue for Consideration

Matter pertains to whether the petitioner, who is neither the informant, nor the victim, nor the closest legal heir of deceased within the meaning of s. 2(wa) of Code of Criminal Procedure, possesses the requisite locus standi to maintain writ petitions u/a 226 of Constitution seeking transfer of investigation of concluded criminal cases to the Central Bureau of Investigation, particularly when charge-sheets have already been filed, trials have commenced or proceedings are sub judice, and identical relief earlier sought by the victim's wife stood withdrawn.

Indian Penal Code, 1860 - 120-B, 302, 307 and 34 - Official Secrets Act, 1923 - s. 5 - Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 - ss. 2(wa), 216, 320(4) (b), 394 - Civil Procedure Code, 1908 - s. 2 (11) - Hindu Succession Act, 1956 - s. 8 - The instant connected writ petitions were filed by the petitioner, the uncle of late Ajeet Singh, seeking transfer of investigation of two FIRs being Case Crime No. 0015 of 2021 under various sections of IPC relating to murder of Ajeet Singh, and Case Crime No. 445 of 2020 under Official Secrets Act, 1923 to Central Bureau of Investigation, alleging undue influence of a politically influential accused upon the investigating agency, namely the Special Task Force - FIR was initially lodged by an injured eyewitness and, after investigation by STF, charge-sheets were filed against multiple accused, including the said influential person under lesser sections, whereupon trial commenced and witnesses began to be examined - The wife of deceased, being the primary victim, had earlier filed multiple writ petitions seeking identical relief of CBI investigation, which were dismissed as withdrawn after remand by Supreme Court, without any challenge to chargesheet - Thereafter, the instant petitioner, who was neither the informant nor a legal heir in closest degree, instituted the instant writ petitions without assailing the charge-sheets, despite the fact that in the second FIR cognizance had already been taken and proceedings were stayed by High Court in an application filed u/s 482 Cr.P.C.

Held: The victim in a criminal case is a person, who has suffered a loss or injury caused by an act or omission of accused person and also includes his/her legal heir - In the instant case, FIR No.0015 of 2021 has been lodged by injured person, who was with the deceased at the time of incident in question wherein the investigation has been concluded and charge sheet has been filed - The wife of deceased had rightly filed some writ petitions as she was a victim in view of s. 2 (wa) Cr.P.C. but she had withdrawn all the writ petitions, therefore, those writ petitions were dismissed by High Court being withdrawn - The present petitioner, who is uncle of deceased, may not come within the purview of victim or legal heir of deceased, as the wife outshines the uncle in 'closest legal heir test' to be considered as legal heir in view of s. 2 (wa) of Cr.P.C. - The locus standi of a stranger to interfere in criminal proceedings is absolutely limited - Thus, the petitioner is not a victim as per the provisions of s. 2(wa) of Cr.P.C. - Further, the prayer of 'transfer of investigation to CBI' is stale and technically infructuous as the investigation has not only started but stands already completed in both the FIRs and even trial has been commenced in the FIR No.0015/2021 and all the proceeding of FIR No.445/2020 has been stayed by High Court - The entire case has been premised on apprehension and no cogent evidence has been provided on record to entail any entertainment of such prayer - Any relief granted at this stage would amount to interfering by a stranger to an ensuing trial, which is not permissible under the provisions of Code of Criminal Procedure and specifically barred in view of judgment of Supreme Court - Thus, liberty is granted to the parties to move appropriate applications before the learned Trial Court at the relevant stage in accordance with the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure (now BNSS). 1. Heard Sri Kapil Misra, learned counsel for the petitioner and Sri V.K. Singh, learned Government Advocate assisted by Sri Rao Narendra Singh, learned counsel appearing for the State in Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No.4791 of 2025 (hereinafter referred to as □first writ petition□) and Sri Kapil Misra, learned counsel for the petitioner, Sri V.K. Singh, learned Government Advocate assisted by Sri Rao Narendra Singh, learned counsel appearing for the State as well as Sri Naved Ali, learned counsel for opposite party no. 7 in Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No.6047 of 2025 (hereinafter referred to as □second writ petition□).

2. Since the petitioners in both the writ petitions are the same and in his second writ petition, the petitioner has tried to raise an issue as to how the main accused person may have influenced the investigating agency in the first case i.e. Special Task Force (hereinafter referred to as □STF□) inasmuch as according to him, the said main accused with the help of one Journalist has obtained certain secret and/or confidential documents from the STF by adopting illegal means while the investigation in the first case was being transferred from local police to STF, therefore, he has prayed for transfer of the investigation in both the cases to Central Bureau of Investigation (hereinafter referred to as □CBI□).

3. In view of the above, since the second writ petition is an off-shoot of the first writ petition, both these petitions have been heard together and with the consent of learned counsel for the parties, these writ petitions are being connected and decided by this common order.

4. Main prayer of first writ petition bearing Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No.4791 of 2025 is as under:-

“1. Issue a writ order or direction in the nature of Mandamus commanding the respondents to transfer and entrust of the investigation of FIR dated 07.01.2021 registered as Case Crime No.15 of 2021 u/s 120-B, 302, 307, 34 I.P.C. at P.S. Vibhuti Khand District Lucknow to Central Bureau of Investigation and further direct the respondent No.5 to carry out a speedy and expeditious investigation in the aforementioned case within a specified time. (Annexure No. 1).□

5. Main prayer of second writ petition bearing Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No.6047 of 2025 is as under:-

“1. Issue, a writ order or direction in the nature of Mandamus commanding the respondents to transfer and entrust of the investigation of FIR registered as Case Crime No. 445 of 2020 u/s 5 & of Official Secret Act, 1923 at P.S. Vibhuti Khand District Lucknow to Central Bureau of Investigation and further direct the respondent No.5 to carry out a speedy and expeditious investigation in the aforementioned case within a specified time. (Annexure No. 1).”

6. Notably, in both the writ petitions, writs of mandamus have been prayed seeking to transfer and entrust the investigation of both the FIRs bearing (i) Case Crime No.0015 of 2021, under Sections 120-B, 302, 307 & 34 IPC, Police Station- Vibhuti Khand, District- Lucknow and (ii) Case Crime No.445 of 2020, under Section 5 (2) of Official Secrets Act, 1923, Police Station- Vibhuti Khand, District-Lucknow, to the Central Bureau of Investigation (hereinafter referred to as □CBI□) and CBI be directed to carry out speedy and expeditious investigation in the aforesaid cases, therefore, it is amply clear that writ of certiorari has not been prayed in both the writ petitions assailing any FIR or consequential proceedings.

7. At the very outset, since the learned Government Advocate as well as the learned counsel for the opposite party no.7 has raised a preliminary issue relating to maintainability of the present petitions on the basis of locus standi of the petitioner, this Court, as such, would like to examine the locus of the present petitioner to file both the aforesaid writ petitions.

8. In both the aforesaid writ petitions, the present petitioner is neither informant nor complainant nor the accused person but he is admittedly uncle of one late Ajeet Singh, who was murdered on 06.01.2021 in the State capital and for which Case Crime No.0015 of 2021 (supra) came to be lodged on 07.01.2021 against three accused persons, namely, Dhruv Singh alias Kundu Singh, Akhand Pratap Singh, Kanhaiya Vishwakarma alias Girdhari alias Doctor and three unknown persons, likewise the FIR bearing Case Crime No.445 of 2020 (supra) has been lodged by one Sub Inspector Sri Shiv Netra Singh against one Sri Suresh Bahadur Singh, Senior Journalist of Jan Sandesh and Dhananjay Singh for possessing one secret document allegedly by adopting illegal means. In the second FIR, the present petitioner is neither a victim nor any affected party in any manner whatsoever.

9. For the sake of convenience, definition of □victim□ mentioned under Section 2 (wa) of Cr.P.C. is being reproduced hereunder:-

“Section 2 (wa) □victim” means a person who has suffered any loss or injury caused by reason of the act or omission for which the accused person has been charged and the expression □victim□ includes his or her guardian or legal heir.□

10. Perusal of the aforesaid definition clearly indicates that the victim would be a person, who has suffered a loss or injury caused by an act or omission by an accused person and also includes his/her legal heir. The informant of the first FIR No.0015 of 2021 is Mohar Singh, son of Sri Kling Singh, who is friend of the deceased (Ajeet Singh) and received injuries as he was with him when the alleged incident of firing and murder took place on 06.01.2021.

11. It would be pertinent to mention herein that after the registration of the aforesaid FIR No.0015 of 2021 (supra), wife of late Ajeet Singh filed a writ petition bearing Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No.25544 of 2021, (Smt. Ranoo Singh Vs. State of U.P. and Others), seeking prayer in the nature of mandamus, thereby commanding the respondents to transfer and entrust the investigation of the said FIR to CBI. The reason for seeking such a transfer was that one Ex-Member of Parliament (Dhananjay Singh), who is alleged to be involved in the murder of her husband, is a highly influential person and investigation already transferred from local police to STF did not yield any result and on the contrary was trying to protect the said Dhananjay Singh. Thus, in the aforesaid background, since she was very much apprehensive that if the investigation is conducted by the STF, Dhananjay Singh would either be saved or he would be implicated only in minor sections, the said writ petition was filed before this Court.

12. Learned AGA has informed the Court that after thorough investigation, charge sheet has been submitted against thirteen accused persons including Dhananjay Singh, for whom charge sheet has been filed only under Sections 212 & 176 IPC by the STF.

13. Having considered the aforesaid submissions of learned counsel for the parties, this Court had dismissed the aforesaid writ petition vide order dated 30.11.2022 observing that this Court did not find any ground to entrust the matter to any other agency such as CBI as charge sheet had already been filed against thirteen accused persons including Ex-Member of Parliament, Dhananjay Singh and most importantly no infirmity during investigation by the STF in the murder of the husband of the petitioner was shown or brought on record. However, this Court while dismissing the aforesaid petition left open for the petitioner to challenge the charge sheet, if she was aggrieved and if so advised.

14. Subsequently, wife of late Ajeet Singh, namely, Ranoo Singh assailed the aforesaid order of this Court dated 30.11.2022 before the Apex Court by filing SLP (C) No.12751/2022 (Criminal Appeal No.1867/2024), □Ranoo Singh Vs. State of U.P. & Ors.□, before the Apex Court and the main plea of learned counsel for the petitioner (Ranoo Singh) was that even if the charge sheet has been filed, the prayer seeking transfer of the investigation to an independent agency may not be considered as infructuous, if serious allegations have been levelled against the accused persons. It was argued by the learned counsel for Ranoo Singh that if this Court was of the view to dismiss the petition for the reason that the charge sheet has been filed, at least this Court ought to have assigned reasons in brief as to why the grounds prayed for transfer were not found sufficient.

15. On the basis of the aforesaid submission of the learned counsel, the order of this Court dated 30.11.2022 was set aside and the matter was remitted back to this Court for deciding the writ petition afresh strictly in accordance with law by the Apex Court vide order dated 02.04.2024. The order to that effect dated 02.04.2024 (supra) reads as under:-

2. Leave granted.

3. These appeals challenge the judgments and orders passed by the Division Bench of the High Court of Judicature at Allahabad, Lucknow Bench, thereby rejecting the writ petitions filed by the appellant(s) for transferring of investigation to an independent agency like the Central Bureau of Investigation (for short, □CBI□).

4. The only reason given in the impugned judgments and orders is that since the charge-sheets had already been filed, no ground was made out for transfer of investigation to another agency, viz, CBI.

5. In our view, this cannot be a ground for rejecting the prayer for transfer of investigation to an independent agency.

When serious allegations have been made by the appellant(s), the High Court should at least have assigned reasons in brief as to why the grounds prayed for transfer were not found to be sufficient.

6. In that view of the matter, the impugned order(s) are quashed and set aside and the matters are remitted back to the High Court for deciding them afresh, in accordance with law.

7. We request the High Court to decide the petitions as expeditiously as possible and in any case within a period of six months from today.

8. We clarify that we have not considered the merits of the matters and the impugned judgments and orders have been quashed and set aside only on the aforesaid grounds.

9. The appeals are accordingly disposed of.

10. Pending application(s), if any, shall stand disposed of. □ ”

16. Later, Smt. Ranoo Singh again filed a Miscellaneous Application No.428/2025 in Crl.A. No.1867/2024, □Ranoo Singh Vs. State of U.P. & Ors.□, before the Supreme Court for appropriate order/ directions and the Hon□ble Court again passed an order dated 21.03.2025 which reads as under:-

“1. Vide order dated 02.04.2024, we had requested the High court to decide the petition as expeditiously as possible and in any case within a period of six months from today.

2. There is no doubt that the High Court is not an inferior Court to the Supreme Court. However, when the Supreme Court had made a request to the High Court, it is expected that due weightage should be given to such a request.

3. We, therefore, reiterate our request to decide the matter within a period of three months from today.

4. The petitioner is at liberty to move an application before the concerned Bench of the High Court along with this Order.

5. The miscellaneous application is, accordingly, disposed of.”

17. After the aforesaid order dated 21.03.2025, which was passed by the Apex Court, the petitioner (Ranoo Singh) in that petition, instead of pursuing her writ petition, which was to be decided in compliance of the order of the Apex Court, filed an application for withdrawal of the said writ petition before this Court.

18. Notably, after filing of the writ petition bearing Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No.25544 of 2021, wife of late Ajeet Singh filed three more writ petitions bearing (i) Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No.27624 of 2021, (Ranoo Singh Vs. State of U.P. and Others), (ii) Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No.3180 of 2024, (Ranoo Singh Vs. State of U.P. and Others) and (iii) Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No.3786 of 2024, (Ranoo Singh Vs. State of U.P. and Others), more or less on the same prayers and all the writ petitions were connected together. The applications for withdrawal of the writ petitions were filed in Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No.25544 of 2021 (i.e. remanded by the Supreme Court) as well as in three other connected writ petitions. Interestingly, the present petitioner (Rajesh Singh) filed an application for impleadment also in Criminal Misc. Writ Petitions No.3180 of 2024 and 3786 of 2024. The Division Bench of this Court vide a common order on 23.04.2025 in all the aforesaid writ petitions as well as in Criminal Misc. Applications filed in the aforesaid writ petitions, passed the following order dated 23.04.2025 (supra), which reads as under:-

Sri Ajit Singh, Advocate appears on behalf of the petitioner-Ranoo Singh in Crl. Misc. Writ Petition No. 25544 of 2021, Crl. Misc. Writ Petition No. 27624 of 2021, Crl. Misc. Writ Petition No.3180 of 2024 and Crl. Misc.Writ Petition No. 3786 of 2024 and he says that he has filed applications for withdrawal of the petition on behalf of the petitioner in all such writ petitions. These applications for withdrawal are duly supported by the affidavit of the petitioner herself.

Sri Rao Narendra Singh, Advocate appears on behalf of State-respondents in Crl. Misc.Writ Petition No. 3786 of 2024 and Sri Anurag Kumar Singh, Advocate appears on behalf of respondents in Crl. Misc. Writ Petition No. 3180 of 2024. They have expressed their no objection to the writ petitions being dismissed as withdrawn.

Accordingly, all the withdrawal applications are allowed and the Crl. Misc. Writ Petition No. 25544 of 2021, Crl. Misc. Writ Petition No. 27624 of 2021, Crl. Misc. Writ Petition No.3180 of 2024 and Crl. Misc.Writ Petition No. 3786 of 2024 are hereby dismissed as withdrawn.

[C.M. Application No. 6 of 2025 (Impleadment in CRLP no. 3786 of 2024)]

Sri Kapil Mishra, Advocate appears and has pointed out that he has filed impleadment applications in Crl. Misc. Writ Petition No. 3180 of 2024 and Crl. Misc. Writ Petition No. 3786 of 2024. However, this Court finds no good ground to allow such impleamdnet applications, as the writ petitions have been dismissed as withdrawn.

The applications for impleadment are, accordingly, disposed of."
(Emphasis Supplied)

19. Although no reasons were attributed by Ranoo Singh to withdraw these writ petition, however, it appears that since the charge sheet had already been filed in the FIR/ Case Crime No.0015 of 2021 (supra) and that charge sheet was not assailed in any of the aforesaid writ petitions, therefore, it was quite possible that she might have thought to challenge the charge sheet by filing appropriate petition before the competent court. In any case, all the writ petitions filed by the wife of the deceased late Ajeet Singh have been □dismissed as withdrawn□ and all the applications were disposed of accordingly vide order dated 23.04.2025.

20. It is noteworthy that in Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No.3180 of 2024 (CRLP); Ranoo Singh Vs. State of U.P. and others, the present petitioner Rajesh Singh had filed impleadment application, which was rejected vide order dated 23.04.2025 (supra), therefore, the present petitioner feeling himself aggrieved from the order dated 23.04.2025, so far as his impleadment has been denied, sought similar relief before the Apex Court by filing petition bearing Writ Petition (Criminal) No.201/2025, Rajesh Singh Vs. State of UP & Anr., under Article 32 of the Constitution of India. The Hon^{ble} Supreme Court did not entertain the writ petition, however, granted liberty to the petitioner (Rajesh Singh) to file a fresh writ petition before this Court and it was directed in the disposal order, that if such a writ petition is filed, the same shall be considered on its own merit without being influenced by the rejection of the petitioner's application for impleadment in the writ petition filed before this Court, which has already been withdrawn. In the light of the aforesaid observation, the Hon^{ble} Supreme Court disposed of the aforesaid writ petition.

21. The petitioner filed the present first writ petition, but again did not assail the charge sheet nor filed any other petition before this Court challenging the charge sheet and has prayed the same identical relief, which was earlier prayed by the wife of late Ajeet Singh (Smt. Ranoo Singh).

22. This Court is unable to comprehend as to what is the locus of the present petitioner to file the present writ petition, when he is neither the "victim" in view of Section 2 (wa) of Cr.P.C. nor is a person aggrieved in any manner or a legal heir. Admittedly, The petitioner is uncle of the deceased late Ajeet Singh and even if the degree of closeness of relation of the present petitioner with the deceased is considered, the wife is immediate victim and aggrieved, so the uncle cannot be placed above her. According to this Court, no doubt a restrictive meaning ought not to be given to the meaning of "legal heir" as per Section 2(wa) of Cr.P.C., however, keeping in view the nature of criminal proceedings and the limited right available even to a complainant, once the criminal machinery has been set into motion, the meaning of "victim" has to be given a purposeful interpretation.

23. This Court finds that there is no definition of "legal heir" under the Code of Criminal Procedure. However, there are stray mention of words like "near relative", "legal representative" in the said code, which can be construed to have cognate meaning to "legal heir." As far as the use of word "near relative" is concerned, it has been mentioned under Section 394 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, relating to abatement of appeals. Here also, this Court finds that in the explanation appended to the said Section, "near relative" has been given to mean a parent, spouse, lineal descendant, brother or sister. Further, as far as "legal representative" is concerned, the same has been used under Section 320(4) (b) relating to compounding of offences, wherein it says "legal representative" shall mean to be a person, as defined in the Civil Procedure Code, 1908. This Court finds that as per Section 2 (11) of the Civil Procedure Code, defines "legal representative" to be a person who in law represents the estate of a deceased person, which brings the schedule incorporated as per Section 8 of the Hindu Succession Act, 1956 appended to the said Act relating to □Class-I□ and □Class-II□ heir into limelight. Interestingly, in both the cases, this Court finds that Uncle is a far away and/or distant relative and in a way does not find any place both under the meaning of the word □near relative□ or □legal representative□ mentioned in the Code of Criminal Procedure.

24. Thus, this Court ought to devise a mechanism which may be called as the □closest legal heir test□ to determine as to whether a particular person would come under the definition of □legal heir□ in terms of Section 2(wa) of Cr.P.C. or not, keeping in mind that the law has to interpreted to ensure that the □spirit of justice□ prevails, recognizing the right to prosecute a legitimate grievance survives the victim, especially in serious cases, as the present one. According to the □closest legal heir test□, the closest or the proximate legal heir of the victim must outshine the next closer legal heir because the administration of justice does not warrant any dispute even on determining as to who would be the □legal heir□ to pursue the grievance of a victim, in pursuing a criminal case, which is fundamentally construed to be an offence against the society and therefore, it is the primary duty of the State to protect the right and interest of the victim.

25. Having said so, this Court is called upon to exercise its discretionary power in determining the legal heir of the victim in the present peculiar facts and circumstances. It is pertinent to mention herein that guardian by itself is a different class under the definition of Section 2(wa) Cr.P.C. relating to victim and as such, the same may not be mixed with the concept of legal heir, as they form a class by itself. As far as the present case is concerned, this Court finds that the wife of the victim, late Ajeet Singh (i.e. Ranoo Singh) is very much available and as such, as per the 'closest legal heir test', the right of the wife as a □legal heir□ outshines the right of an uncle, as wife is a more closer legal heir in the pedigree table, than an uncle. Therefore, the right of a wife to be a legal heir of the victim is at a higher pedestal than an uncle. The wife has admittedly withdrawn her all writ petitions seeking CBI investigation, therefore, the same relief now being sought by a far away legal heir i.e. uncle has to be seen with some circumspection and keeping in view of the historical facts of the present case as has been narrated in the preceding paragraphs can not be entertained in the absence of any authorization and/or N.O.C. from the wife.

26. Further, the present writ petition has not been filed in the nature of PIL, for which in any case this Court does not have the roster jurisdiction and when the learned counsel for the petitioner was given an option to pursue the relief sought in the present writ petition, the learned counsel choose to press the present writ petition in its present form and prayed for disposal of the same in accordance with law.

27. Notably, this Court finds that much water has flown under the bridge after the writ petition, seeking similar relief had been withdrawn by the wife of the victim (deceased) after completion of the investigation, charge sheet has been filed, that charge sheet could have been assailed before this Court by filing a petition under Section 482 Cr.P.C. or in this writ petition also but admittedly, that charge sheet has not been assailed either by the wife of the deceased or by the present petitioner (if, at all, he claimed to come under the definition of legal heir of □victim□).

28. It has been informed by the learned Government Advocate that a number of witnesses of fact have already been examined before the learned Trial Court including the complainant in the trial arising out of FIR No.0015 of 2021 (supra) and the trial is going on smoothly and in full swing.

29. So far as the second writ petition is concerned, the complainant is one Shiv Netra Singh, Sub Inspector and allegations have been levelled against two accused persons, namely, Suresh Bahadur Singh and Dhananjay Singh. The petitioner is not the victim as the alleged crime is not distinctly affecting the petitioner or his family. In that case too, the investigation has been concluded and charge sheet dated 10.12.2022 has been submitted before the Court concerned. Thereafter, cognizance has been taken by the Chief Judicial Magistrate on 16.01.2023. Both the accused persons have been summoned. The aforesaid charge sheet and summoning order have been challenged before this Court by opposite party no.7 of the second writ petition, namely, Suresh Bahadur Singh bearing Application U/S 482 No.1009 of 2024 and this Court vide order dated 20.02.2024 has stayed the further proceedings of Criminal Case No.2842 of 2023 titled as □State Vs. Suresh Bahadur Singh□, pending in the Court of Chief Judicial Magistrate, Lucknow arising out of FIR No.445 of 2020 (supra). Therefore, trial in the second writ petition arising out of FIR No.445 of 2020 has been stayed and in a way this Court has already ceased of the said issue and the same is pending for consideration.

30. Sri Kapil Misra has tried to explain the reason behind filing of both the writ petitions by stating that Ex-Member of Parliament, Dhananjay Singh, is having close association with STF and the STF was the investigating agency, therefore, Dhananjay Singh was extended undue benefit by not filing charge sheet against him under some heavier Sections relating to murder and conspiracy and explained the fact that when the investigation was being conducted by the local police, Dhananjay Singh was declared proclaimed offender and a reward of Rs.25,000/- was announced against him for the charges punishable under Sections 302 & 120-B of IPC but on the eve of notification for Uttar Pradesh Assembly Elections 2022, the investigation was transferred to STF and that agency has submitted charge sheet against Dhananjay Singh in a bailable offence under Sections 212 & 176 IPC in FIR No.0015 of 2021 (supra).

31. Sri Kapil Misra has further submitted that had the investigation been transferred to CBI instead of STF, the correct facts and circumstances must have come into the notice and the culpability of Dhananjay Singh being instrumental to commit the murder of Ajeet Singh would have surfaced. He has further submitted that there are some instances when the local police did not extend any undue help to Dhananjay Singh or even Court did not pass any order in favour of Dhananjay Singh when he requested the Government security cover, but according to the learned counsel, the STF has provided all such favour to him from time and again. Sri Misra has also stated that Writ-C No.20672 of 2018 was filed by Dhananjay Singh to get the Government security cover and in that writ petition, some confidential documents were filed by Dhananjay Singh and those confidential documents belonged to the office of Inspector General of Police, STF, U.P., Lucknow, as this Court while disposing of the Writ-C No.20672 of 2018 has observed this fact. Therefore, apprehension of the petitioner cannot be overruled that if the investigating agency was STF, who filed the charge sheet against Dhananjay Singh in minor sections, the trial pursuant to that FIR would not be concluded properly.

32. On the aforesaid submissions of Sri Kapil Mishra, Sri V.K. Singh, learned Government Advocate, has stated that in FIR No.0015 of 2021, the trial is going on and relevant fact witnesses are being examined and if during examination of any fact witness or formal witness, learned Trial Court finds the culpability of any person including Dhananjay Singh, appropriate order may be passed strictly in accordance with law. Sri V.K. Singh has further submitted that learned Trial Court has got ample power to alter or add the charge if it is so required in the interest of justice, at any stage before judgment is pronounced in view of Section 216 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, however, he requests that if any observation to that effect is issued by this Court, it may likely affect the trial. Therefore, any alteration of charge may be left to the learned Trial Court and in any case, a requisite application to that effect by the defence or the prosecution may be filed before the Trial Court at the appropriate stage.

33. Sri V.K. Singh has reiterated that in view of the aforesaid facts and circumstances, both the aforesaid writ petitions are misconceived for the simple reason that the petitioner has filed the aforesaid writ petitions having no proper locus to file those writ petitions when identical writ petition was filed by the wife of the deceased which was dismissed as being withdrawn; the present petitioner also does not come within the definition of "victim" under Section 2 (wa) Cr.P.C. and he did not assail the charge sheet in the writ petition or in the petition filed under Section 482 Cr.P.C. so far as FIR No.0015 of 2021 is concerned. According to him, when the investigation has already been concluded, charge sheet has been filed, charges have been framed against accused persons, trial is going on and the fact witnesses are being examined, at this stage, the relief so prayed "of transfer of investigation to CBI" in the first writ petition may not be granted and the petitioner may provide relevant information to the prosecution if he is having some important information, which are necessary for the trial in question.

34. So far as the second writ petition is concerned, Sri V.K. Singh has stated that in the aforesaid case, charge sheet arising out of Case Crime/ FIR No.445 of 2020 (supra) has been assailed before this Court by filing petition under Section 482 Cr.P.C. and further trial proceedings have been stayed, therefore, the second writ petition is also misconceived, rather the same has been rendered infructuous for all practical purposes. Therefore, Sri V.K. Singh, learned Government Advocate, has requested that both the writ petitions may be dismissed being misconceived.

35. Having heard learned counsel for the parties and having perused the material available on record, we are of the considered opinion that the victim in a criminal case is a person, who has suffered a loss or injury caused by an act or omission of the accused person and also includes his/her legal heir. In the present case, FIR No.0015 of 2021 has been lodged by the injured person, who was with the deceased at the time of incident in question wherein the investigation has been concluded and charge sheet has been filed. The wife of the deceased had rightly filed some writ petitions as she was a victim in view of Section 2 (wa) Cr.P.C. but she had withdrawn all the writ petitions, therefore, those writ petitions were dismissed by this Court being withdrawn. The present petitioner, who is uncle of the deceased, may not come within the purview of victim or legal heir of the deceased, as the wife outshines the uncle in the □closest legal heir test□ to be considered as legal heir in view of Section 2 (wa) of Cr.P.C.

36. In the case of All India Democratic Women's Association Vs. State and Others, 1998 Cri. L.J. 2629, Madras High Court ruled that in criminal proceedings, third parties can intervene only to the extent of assisting the prosecution. It was further held that if third parties are allowed to intervene in all criminal proceedings, then there will be a number of associations to represent one party or the other and this would give rise to chaos and confusion and stalling of criminal proceedings.

37. Further, in the case of Shri P.V. Narshimharao Vs. State, 1997 Cri. L.J 3117, Delhi High Court has held that a private party/third party has no role in the criminal proceeding instituted by the State. The petitioner is not even a private party. The main victim of the case has withdrawn herself from the proceedings and a new face in the name of the petitioner has come up for the first time to thwart the criminal proceedings/trial, which is in advance stage. The petitioner is a stranger to the present proceedings as it was held in the case of Shri P.V. Narshimharao (supra) that any such intervention cannot be allowed and the petition was rejected.

38. The order of transfer of investigation could have been passed when the Court finds that there is new material or evidence of sterling nature, which has been ignored by the investigating agency but in the present case, no such material or evidence has been shown to the Court and only apprehension has been shown to the effect that the main mastermind and allegedly the person to be instrumental in the said crime, who allegedly planned the murder of late Ajeet Singh is having close association with STF, the investigating agency, therefore, such investigation is not proper.

fact that charge sheet has been filed though liberty was given to the petitioner to challenge the charge sheet before the appropriate court of law but no such recourse has been adopted by the petitioner (Ranoo Singh). To the contrary, she filed applications for withdrawal of all the writ petitions, which were filed by her, and those writ petitions have been □ dismissed as being withdrawn □ by this Court on 23.04.2025. In any case, the trial is going on in the said FIR and number of fact witnesses have been examined by the learned Trial Court, therefore, if the apprehension of the wife of late Ajeet Singh or the present petitioner finds some material or evidence, they can always intervene in the trial proceedings to the extent of providing assistance to the prosecution, as per the provisions of Code of Criminal Procedure.

40. We are in full agreement with the observations of the Madras High Court in re; All India Democratic Women's Association (supra) that if third parties are allowed to intervene in all criminal proceedings, then there will be a number of associations to represent one party or the other and this would give rise to chaos and confusion and stalling of criminal proceedings. Therefore, the appropriate party/ parties either from defence side or from prosecution side may file appropriate application before the Trial Court to alter or add the charge(s), if there is any sufficient material or evidence of sterling nature and it is needless to say that those applications may be considered by the learned Trial Court strictly in accordance with law and the same may be disposed of in the interest of justice.

41. There is another aspect of the matter that inasmuch as any relief granted by this Court in the present petitions could tantamount to interfering in the already initiated criminal proceedings pending before the learned Trial Court. Having said so, this Court finds that the locus standi of the petitioner to file the present writ petition and interfere in pending criminal proceedings is absolutely negated. This Court finds that the High Court of Madras in the case of Prisoners Rights Forum represented by its Director P. Pugalenthai Vs. High Court of Judicature at Madras, AIR 2014 MADRAS 246, was faced with a similar situation wherein the said High Court held in that case that a person having no locus standi cannot interfere in the criminal legal proceedings. Further, a Full Bench of the Hon□ble Supreme Court in the case of Sanjay Tiwari Vs. State of U.P., 2020 SCC OnLine SC 1027, on this issue, their Lordships have specifically laid down that a stranger to criminal proceedings has no locus standi to interfere. In this case, a social activist and an Advocate by profession has filed a petition before this Court seeking directions to learned Special Judge to expedite and conclude the pending trial against the appellant Sanjay Tiwari for offence under the IPC and PC Act and in that said petition, this Court had directed the Sessions Court to expedite the trial and conclude at the earliest, which order was assailed by the appellant before the Hon□ble Supreme Court. The Supreme Court has made the following observations, which makes for an interesting read:-

“11. It is well settled that criminal trial where offences involved are under the Prevention of Corruption Act have to be conducted and concluded at the earliest since the offences under the Prevention of Corruption Act are offences which affect not only the accused but the entire society and administration. It is also well settled that the High Court in appropriate cases can very well under Section 482CrPC or in any other proceeding can always direct the trial court to expedite the criminal trial and issue such order as may be necessary. But the present is a case where proceeding initiated by Respondent 2 does not appear to be a bona fide proceeding. Respondent 2 is in no way connected with initiation of criminal proceeding against the appellant. Respondent 2 in his application under Section 482CrPC in para 6 has described him as a social activist and an advocate.

42. Hence, in view of above, the locus standi of a stranger to interfere in criminal proceedings is absolutely limited. Thus, we have no hesitation in holding that the petitioner is not a victim as per the provisions of Section 2(wa) of the Cr.P.C. Further, the prayer of □transfer of investigation to the CBI□ is stale and technically infructuous as the investigation has not only started but stands already completed in both the FIRs and even trial has been commenced in the FIR No.0015/2021 and all the proceeding of the FIR No.445/2020 has been stayed by this Court. Further, the entire case has been premised on apprehension and no cogent evidence has been provided on record to entail any entertainment of such prayer by this Court. Most significantly, any relief granted at this stage would amount to interfering by a stranger to an ensuing trial, which is not permissible under the provisions of Code of Criminal Procedure and specifically barred in view of the judgment of the Hon□ble Supreme Court.

43. For all the aforesaid reasons, we are not inclined to pass any order on the prayers of both the writ petitions, but liberty is given to the parties, as observed in the preceding paragraphs, to file requisite application before the learned Trial Court at appropriate stage, as per the provisions of Code of Criminal Procedure (now BNSS).

44. It is needless to say that if any appropriate application is filed before the learned Trial Court, as observed above, learned Trial Court shall consider and dispose of those applications without being influenced from any observation made by this Court in the present order.

45. With the above observations, both the writ petitions are disposed of.

46. There shall be no order as to cost(s).

Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No. 9232 of 2025

Satinder Singh Bhasin ...Petitioner
Versus
State of U.P. & Anr. ...Respondents

Issue for Consideration

Matter pertains to whether, in the facts and circumstances of case, the continuation of proceedings under the Prevention of Money Laundering Act, 2002 pursuant to ECIR No. ECIR/LKZO/14/2021 together with the consequential search and seizure operations and issuance of Non-Bailable Warrants, is legally sustainable when the predicate offence against the petitioner is alleged to have ceased to be a "scheduled offence" under PMLA, and when the underlying criminal proceedings stand consolidated and stayed and whether such actions suffer from jurisdictional infirmity, violation of statutory safeguards, and infringement of Articles 14, 19, and 21 of Constitution of India.

Headnotes

Prevention of Money Laundering Act, 2002 - ss. 2(1)(u), 3, 4, 5, 17, 44, 50 - Constitution of India, 1950 - Articles 21, 226 - Indian Penal Code, 1860 - ss. 406, 420, 467, 468, 471, 120-B - Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 s. 41A, 154, 161 - The petitioner approached the High Court by filing the instant criminal writ petition challenging the initiation and continuation of proceedings by Enforcement Directorate under PMLA, 2002, including the registration of the ECIR, conduct of search and seizure proceedings, issuance of open ended non-bailable warrants, and consequential coercive measures, arising out of alleged predicate offences connected with multiple FIRs relating primarily to the "Grand Venice Project" - The genesis of the matter lay in numerous FIRs alleging offences of cheating and allied crimes, which were subsequently consolidated by Supreme Court into a single principal FIR bearing No. 353 of 2015, pursuant to which supplementary charge-sheets were filed and certain offences, including s. 420 IPC, were dropped, leaving the petitioner to face proceedings only u/s 406 IPC - Parallely, the petitioner obtained an interim order thereby staying further proceedings in the consolidated predicate criminal case - Despite such stay and despite the petitioner's contention that no scheduled offence under the PMLA survived against him, the Enforcement Directorate proceeded to investigate, issue summons, conduct searches, provisionally attach properties, and secure issuance of non-bailable warrants - Aggrieved thereby, and after being permitted by Supreme Court to withdraw proceedings under Article 32 with liberty to approach the High Court, the petitioner invoked the writ jurisdiction of High Court and contending that the very jurisdictional foundation for PMLA action was absent and that all consequential steps taken by the Enforcement Directorate were liable to be interdicted.

Held: ED has failed to discharge its burden of demonstrating actual evasion by the petitioner - The chronology of summons and responses shows regular engagement on behalf of the petitioner - Most critically, the temporal aspect, nearly four years of investigation without completion and no prosecution complaint having been filed yet, suggests that NBWs are not being issued in the early stages of a nascent investigation where an accused is evading process but rather in a prolonged investigation where no clear investigative purpose is being served by further coercive measures - The petitioner's statement u/s 50 PMLA was recorded on 12.07.2022 - Since then, over two and a half years have elapsed - The ED continues to call for documents and information - At some point in a protracted investigation, the investigative agency must move forward to conclude its inquiry and file a complaint or close the investigation - Accordingly, the NBWs issued on 11.04.2025 are hereby cancelled - The petitioner is directed to join the investigation and cooperate therein upon prior written intimation by ED - Having evaluated the statutory framework of PMLA, the effect of Supreme Court's consolidation order, the nature and permissible scope of an ECIR, and judicial threshold for interference at the stage of investigation, the Court found that while the ED's jurisdiction is indeed derivative of and contingent upon the existence of a scheduled offence, such jurisdiction cannot be said to have been extinguished merely by the stay of proceedings in the predicate FIRs or by clubbing of FIRs - At the same time, the invocation of coercive measures, including search, seizure, and issuance of non-bailable warrants, must adhere strictly to statutory safeguards and constitutional limitations - Thus, in view of terms, the petition is partly allowed. Case Arising From

ORIGINAL JURISDICTION: Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No. - 9232 of 2025

Connected with other Matter

Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No. 15414 of 2025

From Judgment and Order dated 11.04.2025 passed by the Special Judge, Anti-Corruption, CBI, Ghaziabad in ECIR/LKZO/14/2021

Appearances for Parties

Advs. for the Petitioner:

Aditya Yadav, Malay Prasad, Saloni Mathur, Shivam Yadav, Tanya Makker

Advs. for the Respondent:

Pankaj Kumar Shukla, G.A., Manoj Kumar Singh, Sushant

(Delivered by Hon'ble Chandra Dhari Singh, J.)

1. Since both the afore-captioned Criminal Misc. Writ Petitions have been filed challenging the ECIR/LKZO/14/2021, they have been heard together and are being disposed by means of this common order. For adjudication of both the writ petitions the facts of Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No.9232 of 2025 has been taken.

2. The instant writ petition under Article 226 of the Constitution of India has been filed on behalf of the petitioner, seeking the following reliefs:

“(i) Issue a writ of certiorari or any other appropriate writ, order, or direction quashing and setting aside order dated 11.04.2025 passed by learned Special Judge, Anti-Corruption, CBI, Ghaziabad whereby open ended Non-

Bailable Warrants have been issued against the petitioner in relation to ECIR/LKZO/14/2021;

(ii) Issue a writ of mandamum or any other appropriate writ, order, or direction restraining the respondent, its officers, or any person acting under its authority, from initiating or continuing any coercive actions against the petitioner under the Prevention of Money Laundering Act, 2002, in relation to ECIR/LKZO/14/2021 or related matters;

(iii) Issue a writ of certiorari or any other appropriate writ, order, or direction quashing the Enforcement Case Information Report bearing no.ECIR/LKZO/14/2021 registered by the respondent pursuant to FIR No.353 of 2015 dated 09.06.2015, along with all consequential proceedings, including the raids conducted on 10.04.2025, as being illegal, ultra vires and violative of the petitioner's fundamental right under Article 14, 19 and 21 of the Constitution;

(iv) Declare the respondent's action in registering the ECIR and conducting raids as ultra vires the PMLA and unconstitutional for want of a predicate offence, violating Articles 14, 19 and 21 of the Constitution."

FACTUAL MATRIX

3. The petitioner, Satinder Singh Bhasin, is an individual residing New Delhi, and was one of the Directors of M/s Bhasin Infotech & Infrastructure Pvt. Ltd. (hereinafter "BI IPL"), a company engaged in the development of a large commercial project known as "The Grand Venice Mall" at Greater Noida, Gautam Buddh Nagar. The project was undertaken on a commercial plot allotted by the Greater Noida Industrial Development Authority for the development of a theme-based commercial mall and an adjoining commercial tower (hereinafter "subject property").

4. The construction of the Grand Venice Mall and the commercial tower is stated to have been completed in the years 2014-2015, after which the establishments became operational and housed various national and international brands.

5. On 09.06.2015, an FIR being FIR No. 353 of 2015, Police Station - Kasna, Gautam Buddh Nagar, came to be registered against the petitioner and others under Sections 406 and 420 of the Indian Penal Code, 1860 (hereinafter "IPC"), alleging irregularities in relation to the said project. Subsequently, between 2015 and 2019, a large number of similar FIRs, were lodged in relation to the same project, alleging non-delivery of units, non-payment of assured returns, non payment of invoices and delay in possession etc.

6. Upon investigation of the FIR No. 353/2015, the police submitted a final report dated 30.11.2016, concluding that the dispute was essentially civil or commercial in nature and recommending closure. A protest petition was filed by the complainant on 10.03.2017. Thereafter, a supplementary charge sheet dated 17.02.2019 was filed. In the supplementary charge-sheet, Section 420 IPC was dropped, and only an allegation under Section 406 IPC was retained against the petitioner.

7. On 15.04.2019, the learned Trial Court took cognizance of the supplementary charge-sheet and issued summons to the petitioner for the offence under Section 406 IPC.

8. Meanwhile, in view of the multiplicity of FIRs relating to the subject project, petitions were filed before the Hon^{ble} Supreme Court, culminating in proceedings in W.P. (Crl.) No. 242/2019. By interim order dated 06.11.2019, the Hon^{ble} Supreme Court noted that multiple FIRs containing identical allegations existed concerning the same project. Bail was also granted to the petitioner with a direction to deposit ₹50 Crores to demonstrate bona fides and facilitate settlements as a pre-condition. The petitioner complied with the said condition and was released on bail.

9. Ultimately, by order dated 12.05.2022, in the aforesaid writ petition, the Hon^{ble} Supreme Court consolidated all FIRs (46 as per the record) pertaining to the "Grand Venice" project into the principal FIR No. 353/2015 and directed that all other charge-sheets and FIRs would stand merged, and the entire matter would proceed only from the principal FIR.

10. Pursuant thereto, the petitioner filed Criminal Misc. Application No. 25724/2022 before this Court, seeking quashing of the proceedings arising out of the principal FIR. By order dated 27.04.2023 in Criminal Misc. Application No. 25724/2022, proceedings in Case No. 1559/2019 (arising out of the said principal FIR) pending before the Court of the Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate-II, Gautam Buddh Nagar were stayed by a learned Single Judge of this Court.

11. While the proceedings in the predicate FIR were thus pending, the Directorate of Enforcement (hereinafter

"ED"), Lucknow Zonal Office, registered ECIR No. ECIR/LKZO/14/2021 dated 12.03.2021 under Sections 3/4 of the Prevention of Money Laundering Act, 2002 (hereinafter "PMLA"), predicated on FIR No. 353/2015.

12. The first summons by ED was issued on 29.03.2022, to which the petitioner submitted a reply on 18.04.2022. On 12.07.2022, the petitioner physically appeared before the Investigating Officer, supplied documents, and his statement under Section 50 PMLA was recorded. The ED issued further summons on 14.07.2022, and the petitioner is stated to have supplied the documents on the same day through email.

13. Another set of summons were issued by ED on 08.05.2024, requiring his appearance on 14.05.2024. The petitioner submitted the documents on 16.05.2024 and again on 20.05.2024. Summons were later issued on 17.02.2025, followed by further communications on 20.02.2025, 21.02.2025, 22.02.2025, 06.03.2025, and 21.03.2025, to all of which replies or document production was made either by the petitioner or his authorized representative.

14. On 16.02.2025, the petitioner was allegedly detained at Police Station Beta-II, Gautam Buddh Nagar, without an FIR. On 18.02.2025, he was allegedly picked up from Connaught Place, New Delhi, purportedly by Uttar Pradesh Police personnel without following mandatory inter-State arrest protocols.

15. The petitioner, therefore, approached the High Court of Delhi by filing W.P. (Crl.) No. 598/2025. By orders dated 19th 20.02.2025, the High Court of Delhi took serious note of the allegations of illegal detention and abduction, directed the production of the petitioner, and ordered an inquiry by the Commissioner of Police, Uttar Pradesh.

16. Thereafter, on 09.04.2025, the ED issued an authorization under Section 17 PMLA for conducting search and seizure proceedings. On 10.04.2025 at about 6:45 a.m., ED officials conducted searches at the petitioner's residence and business premises at Delhi and Noida, and the search continued at the residence until 12.04.2025. During the said searches, an amount of ₹36,00,000/- was recovered, allegedly found in a locker at Goa belonging to M/s India Ocean World Pvt. Ltd., a company in which the petitioner asserts he holds no position either as a director or a shareholder.

17. On 11.04.2025, the learned Special Judge, Anti-Corruption, CBI, Ghaziabad, issued Non-Bailable Warrants (hereinafter □NBW□) against the petitioner in relation to the same ECIR.

18. On 13.04.2025, the petitioner lodged a complaint at P.S. - Rajouri Garden, New Delhi, alleging misbehaviour with his children during the search, and also issued representations to senior officials of the Directorate of Enforcement.

19. The petitioner thereafter approached the Hon□ble Supreme Court by filing a writ petition under Article 32 challenging the ECIR, the search proceedings, the NBW, and all consequential actions. By order dated 21.04.2025, the Hon□ble Supreme Court permitted the petitioner to withdraw the petition with liberty to approach the High Court of competent jurisdiction.

20. Consequently, the petitioner has filed the present writ petition, before this Court challenging the ECIR, the search and seizure proceedings, the NBWs issued on 11.04.2025, and all coercive steps taken pursuant to the ECIR. The bone of the contentions of the petitioner is that since the predicate offence against him survives only under Section 406 IPC, which is not a scheduled offence under the PMLA, and the trial of the said predicate offence stands stayed by the order of a learned Single Judge of this Court dated 27.04.2023, the ED lacks jurisdiction to continue any proceedings under the PMLA.

21. On these facts, the petitioner seeks quashing of the ECIR, quashing of the NBWs, setting aside of the search and seizure proceedings, and protection from further coercive action arising out of the impugned ECIR.

22. Before proceeding further, for the sake of convenience, this Court deems it appropriate to set out that in the present matter, there are 49 FIRs in total, which are predicate FIRs (schedule offences), out of which 44 FIRs are arising out of FIR No. 353/2015 principal FIR (Grand Venice Project consolidated FIRs) and 5 remaining FIRs are part of Mist Avenue FIRs. Further, the Hon□ble Supreme Court consolidated/clubbed 46 FIRs. The ED has stated that 2 FIRs out of the 46 clubbed FIRs are not part of the ECIR.

SUBMISSIONS ON BEHALF OF THE PETITIONER

A. Submissions relating to the maintainability of the petition and jurisdictional defects

23. Mr. Manish Tiwari, learned Senior counsel appearing on behalf of the petitioner submits that the very initiation and continuation of ECIR by the ED is wholly without jurisdiction, as the foundational requirement of a subsisting scheduled offence under the PMLA is absent. It is submitted that in FIR No.353/2015, which constitutes the predicate offence for the present ECIR, the allegations under Section 420 IPC were expressly dropped in the supplementary charge-sheet dated 17.02.2019, and the petitioner is now proceeded only under Section 406 IPC. Section 406 IPC is not a scheduled offence under the PMLA, and no other scheduled offence is pending against him within the meaning of the Schedule to the PMLA.

24. Learned counsel submits that after dropping Section 420 IPC, the continuation of ED proceedings violates the law laid down in *Vijay Madanlal Choudhary v. Union of India*¹, wherein the Hon^{ble} Supreme Court affirmed that PMLA proceedings can continue only where a scheduled offence exists or survives. The petitioner relies on this principle to assert that if the predicate offence is non-existent, extinguished, non-scheduled, or stayed, then proceedings under the PMLA cannot be sustained.

25. Further reliance is placed on the judgment of the Hon^{ble} Supreme Court in *Parvathi Kollur v. State*², wherein the Hon^{ble} Court reiterated that proceedings under the PMLA cannot survive, where the accused stands discharged or acquitted in the predicate offence or where the predicate offence does not survive in law. Learned counsel submits that the learned Additional Solicitor General in that case accepted this proposition unequivocally. The petitioner submits that the same principle squarely applies in the present case, because the only provision now attracted in the predicate FIR is Section 406 IPC, which is not a scheduled offence.

26. The proceedings in the predicate FIR have been stayed by a learned Single Judge of this Court in Criminal Misc. Application No. 25724/2022 vide order dated 27.04.2023. It is argued that the effect of the stay is that the predicate proceedings remain in a state of suspension, and the ED cannot, in the teeth of such stay, continue to treat the FIR as alive for the purposes of sustaining the ECIR

27. Learned Senior Counsel further relies strongly on *Pavana Dibbur v. Enforcement Directorate*³ in support of the proposition that the existence of a scheduled offence is the jurisdictional foundation of PMLA proceedings. Learned counsel submits that once Section 420 IPC has been dropped, the entire basis for registration of the ECIR has ceased, and ED proceedings must necessarily collapse.

28. The petitioner additionally relies on the judgment of the Bombay High Court in *Sagar Maruti Suryawanshi v. Enforcement Directorate*⁴, asserting that the ED cannot club unrelated transactions or separate FIRs into a single ECIR. The petitioner submits that the respondent has improperly added FIRs pertaining to unrelated projects such as the [□]Mist Project[□] into the present ECIR, notwithstanding the Hon^{ble} Supreme Court order dated 12.05.2022 consolidating all Grand Venice FIRs into FIR No.353/2015 alone.

29. The petitioner submits that the Hon^{ble} Supreme Court[□]s order dated 12.05.2022 consolidating all Grand Venice related FIRs into a single FIR makes it impermissible for the ED to rely upon any other FIR for purposes of the ECIR. It is argued that the respondent's reliance upon separate or additional FIRs amounts to a direct violation of the binding directions of the Hon^{ble} Supreme Court.

B. Submissions regarding issuance of Non-Bailable Warrants (NBWs)

30. The petitioner submits that the issuance of open-ended NBWS dated 11.04.2025 by the learned Special Judge is wholly without jurisdiction and contrary to settled principles governing issuance of warrants. It is argued that the issuance of NBWs in the absence of a prosecution complaint before the Special Court under Section 44 PMLA, and without any cognizance having been taken, renders the warrants illegal.

31. The petitioner submits that there is no stage in PMLA investigation that contemplates issuance of NBWs in aid of investigation, and the scheme of the Act nowhere permits such recourse. The petitioner asserts that the ED's reliance on precedents relating to police investigations under the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (hereinafter CrPC) is misconceived, because those decisions do not apply to PMLA, which is a complete code with self-contained procedures.

32. It is submitted that the NBWs were issued despite the petitioner having joined investigation on multiple occasions, having furnished documents as required, and despite the ED itself having communicated that personal appearance was not mandatory as reflected in emails dated 06.03.2025 and again on 21.03.2025, where it was stated that personal appearance was not required and that only submission of documents was necessary.

33. The petitioner submits that no notice under Section 41A CrPC has ever been issued to him in connection with the PMLA proceedings. It is further argued that prior to the issuance of the NBWs, no fresh summons under Section 50 PMLA had been issued, and therefore, the NBWs were issued without adherence to the mandatory procedure laid down in *Inder Mohan Goswami v. State of Uttarakhand*⁵, where the Hon^{ble} Supreme Court cautioned against mechanical issuance of NBWs without first issuing summons or bailable warrants.

34. The petitioner submits that he has cooperated with the ED investigation fully, as demonstrated by his appearance on 12.07.2022, submission of documents on 12.07.2022, 14.07.2022, 16.05.2024, and 20.05.2024, and further submission on 22.02.2025 and 21.03.2025. It is stated that the petitioner has, at no point, evaded the process of law.

35. The petitioner further submits that the NBW violates his fundamental rights under Article 21 of the Constitution, as it was issued without any default on his part in complying with investigation requirements. Learned counsel submits that the NBWs are in gross violation of natural justice and the principles laid down for issuance of coercive process.

36. It is argued that the Special Court proceeded mechanically and failed to take into consideration the ED's own communication acknowledging compliance by the petitioner. The petitioner asserts that the Court also failed to examine the ED's statement in the last summon dated 21.03.2025 that personal appearance was not required.

C. Submissions regarding compliance with summons and allegations of non-cooperation

37. The petitioner submits, in detail, the chronology of compliance with summons issued by the ED. It is submitted that the petitioner responded to the first summon dated 29.03.2022 by submitting a written reply on 18.04.2022. Thereafter, the petitioner physically appeared before the ED on 12.07.2022, where his statement under Section 50 PMLA was recorded.

38. It is submitted that upon issuance of the second summons dated 14.07.2022, the petitioner provided the requisite documents on the same day through email. The ED acknowledged receipt. The petitioner received the third summons dated 08.05.2024, requiring appearance on 14.05.2024. He provided the required documents on 14.05.2024, 16.05.2024, and again on 20.05.2024, as demanded.

39. With respect to the summons dated 17.02.2025, the petitioner states that he could not appear immediately due to his illegal detention by the Uttar Pradesh Police on 16.02.2025, a matter that came before the Delhi High Court in W.P. (Crl.) No. 598/2025. The petitioner submits that on 20.02.2025 and 21.02.2025, the ED was informed about the orders of the Delhi High Court directing his production.

40. It is further submitted that on 22.02.2025, the petitioner provided all documents sought by the ED. The petitioner contends that in view of this compliance, the allegation that he was evading investigation is patently incorrect.

41. It is submitted that on 06.03.2025, the ED conveyed by email that personal appearance was not necessary. On 21.03.2025, the ED again stated that personal appearance was not required, and the petitioner's authorized representative appeared and submitted the required documents before the ED on 26.03.2025.

D. Submissions regarding search and seizure proceedings

42. The petitioner submits that the search and seizure operations conducted on 10.04.2025, 11.04.2025, and 12.04.2025 under Section 17 of the PMLA are illegal and vitiated for complete non-compliance with the mandatory statutory conditions. It is urged that the ED neither recorded nor furnished any valid "reason to believe" that the petitioner was in possession of proceeds of crime or records relating to such proceeds. The petitioner submits that the jurisdictional prerequisites under Section 17(1) are mandatory in nature and non-negotiable.

43. It is further submitted that no incriminating material was seized from the petitioner's residence or business premises during the search operations spanning nearly three days. It is specifically pointed out that the only recovery referred to by the respondent relates to a sum of ₹36,00,000/- allegedly found in a locker in Goa belonging to a company, M/s India Ocean World Pvt. Ltd., with which the petitioner asserts he has no connection. The petitioner submits that this recovery has no bearing upon the petitioner personally and cannot justify the coercive action.

44. The petitioner submits that the entire manner in which the search was conducted reflects a mala fide exercise of coercive powers. The petitioner asserts that his children were subjected to intimidation during the search, compelling him to lodge a complaint with P.S. Rajouri Garden, New Delhi on 13.04.2025. The petitioner also addressed a detailed grievance to the senior officers of the ED on the same day regarding the misconduct during the search.

45. The petitioner submits that the ED undertook the search proceedings despite being fully aware that the Delhi High Court had taken cognizance of his illegal detention by the Uttar Pradesh Police on 16.02.2025 and had ordered an inquiry. Learned counsel submits that the ED attempted to use the coercive mechanism of search to create a false basis for further action, including moving for NBWs, and that this conduct demonstrates colorable exercise of authority.

46. The petitioner submits that the legality of the search must be tested against the standards laid down in Vijay Madanlal Choudhary (Supra) regarding the need for strict adherence to statutory safeguards. It is argued that the ED's actions have violated both statutory and constitutional protections.

E. Jurisdictional illegality of clubbing Distinct Transactions in one ECIR

47. It is submitted that the ED has acted wholly without jurisdiction in attempting to subsume and investigate entirely distinct transactions and predicate offences under a single ECIR. An ECIR, being the equivalent of an F.I.R. under the PMLA, must be rooted in specific scheduled offence, with the alleged proceeds of crime traceable to that very transaction while it is permissible to consolidate multiple FIRs, if they emanate from the same project or scheme, for instance, multiple complaints in respect of the same scam or transaction, the law does not permit amalgamating unrelated projects or companies into one ECIR. Learned counsel for strengthening his above-said submissions relied on the judgment of the Bombay High Court in Sagar Maruti Suryavanshi Vs. Directorate of Enforcement and others⁶, (Paragraph 42-44). It is argued that applying the above-said judgment, it is submitted that while FIR arising from the Grand Venice project could legitimately to be consolidated into one ECIR, the ED's attempt to also include F.I.R. concerning the entirely different project, as such the Mist project, involving the separate company, directors, investors is ex facie permissible. Each distinct transaction requires its own ECIR since the scheduled offence the set of the accused, such alleged accused of crime are transaction specific. It is vehemently submitted that the artificial or enlargement of one ECIR to cover multiple transactions obliterates the jurisdictional foundation of PMLA confesses distinct streams of alleged criminality and directly violates the ratio in Sagar Maruti Suryavanshi (supra), such overreach is ultra virus the Act, contrary to binding judicial pronouncement and render the ECIR effective and liable to be quashed.

F. Submissions regarding violation of supreme court's consolidation order

48. The petitioner submits that by judgment dated 12.05.2022, the Hon'ble Supreme Court consolidated all FIRs relating to the Grand Venice project into FIR No. 353/2015 and held that no parallel or separate FIRs would survive thereafter. The petitioner emphasises that the Hon^{ble} Supreme Court expressly directed that all proceedings would emanate only from the consolidated FIR.

49. It is submitted that the ED has unlawfully ignored this binding direction and has relied upon additional FIRs concerning unrelated projects such as the [□]Mist Avenue Project[□] for purposes of issuing and sustaining the ECIR. The petitioner contends that this constitutes a direct violation of the Hon^{ble} Supreme Court[□]s order and is impermissible under Section 44 PMLA and the doctrine of judicial discipline.

G. Submissions on the absence of proceeds of crime

50. The ED has failed to identify, quantify, or demonstrate the existence of any [□]proceeds of crime[□] attributable to the petitioner. It is noted that no provisional attachment order has been passed despite the ECIR having been registered in 2021. Learned counsel submits that the absence of any attachment or identification of proceeds of crime is compelling evidence that the ECIR is baseless.

51. The petitioner contends that the absence of proceeds of crime also renders the NBWs unjustified because the ED has been unable to show, even prima facie, that the petitioner is involved in money laundering. It is submitted that Section 5 PMLA, read with explanations given in Vijay Madanlal Choudhary (Supra), establishes that the concept of proceeds of crime is central to PMLA jurisdiction.

H. Submissions regarding illegal detention and police conduct

52. The petitioner submits that he was illegally detained by the Uttar Pradesh Police on 16.02.2025 without an FIR and was subsequently abducted from Connaught Place on 18.02.2025. It is stated that these acts were brought to the notice of the Delhi High Court in W.P. (Crl.) 598/2025, wherein orders dated 19.02.2025 and 20.02.2025 took serious cognizance of the matter and ordered an inquiry by the Commissioner of Police, Uttar Pradesh.

53. The petitioner submits that the ED attempted to use this period of illegal detention to falsely allege that the petitioner was evading investigation, despite the record showing that the petitioner had appeared and furnished documents earlier. It is contended that the ED[□]s allegation of non-cooperation is tainted by these circumstances.

I. Submissions on violation of natural justice and Article 21

54. The petitioner submits that the ED[□]s conduct in seeking NBWs and undertaking search operations without valid grounds violates the petitioner[□]s right to life and personal liberty under Article 21 of the Constitution. It is argued that the ED did not consider the petitioner[□]s consistent cooperation, the stay of the predicate FIR, or the Hon^{ble} Supreme Court[□]s consolidation directions.

55. It is further submitted that the coercive actions taken by the ED are arbitrary, disproportionate, and designed to circumvent the judicial protections accorded to the petitioner by the Delhi High Court and this Court.

J. Submissions on the petitioner's cooperation and bona fides

56. The petitioner submits that he has demonstrated complete bona fides throughout the investigation process. It is pointed out that the petitioner had earlier deposited ₹50 crores before the Hon^{ble} Supreme Court during the consolidation proceedings, in compliance with directions. The petitioner asserts that there has never been any attempt on his part to evade the investigation and that the record of correspondences, appearance, and document submissions clearly establishes his cooperation.

SUBMISSIONS ON BEHALF OF THE RESPONDENT ED

A. ED's submissions regarding maintainability and limited interference at investigation stage

57. Mr. Zoheb Hossain, learned counsel appearing on behalf of the respondent ED vehemently opposed the present petition submitting to the effect that the present petition is not maintainable because the petitioner seeks to invoke the extraordinary writ jurisdiction to interfere in an ongoing money-laundering investigation at a premature stage.

58. It is submitted that it is a settled principle of law that investigation under the PMLA should not be interrupted unless a clear case of abuse of power is established, which, in the ED's submission, is not present here.

59. The ED submits that the prayer for quashing the ECIR is, in law, impermissible. ED relies upon the judgment of the Hon^{ble} Supreme Court in Vijay Madanlal Choudhary (Supra), contending that the ECIR is an internal document meant solely for administrative and investigative purposes and is not to be equated with an FIR. Only because the ECIR is not a statutory document and has no legal impact on the rights of the accused, it cannot be quashed or set aside in writ jurisdiction.

60. The ED further submits that the petitioner has erroneously attempted to use judicial review to challenge the investigative prerogative of the respondent. It is stated that courts must refrain from interfering at the stage of evidence collection or during ongoing investigation, especially in cases involving economic offences of serious magnitude.

B. ED's submissions regarding scheduled offence and effect of stay of predicate FIR

61. The ED submits that the petitioner's argument that PMLA proceedings cannot continue because Section 420 IPC has been dropped or because the predicate FIR is stayed is legally untenable. The ED states that a stay of proceedings does not amount to quashing of the FIR and does not wipe out the existence of the allegations.

62. The ED places heavy reliance on the judgment of the Hon^{ble} Supreme Court in *Shree Chamundi Mopeds Ltd. v. Church of South India Trust Association*⁷, where the Hon^{ble} Court held that a stay of proceedings does not efface the underlying order or proceeding. ED submits that the petitioner cannot treat the stay order dated 27.04.2023 as equivalent to the FIR being quashed or dismissed.

63. The ED argues that the principle sought to be invoked by the petitioner that PMLA proceedings cannot survive without the predicate offence is inapplicable here because the predicate FIR continues to subsist in law. The ED submits that the petitioner cannot take advantage of a procedural stay order to defeat the statutory investigation under the PMLA.

64. The ED also refers to the judgment of the *Punjab and Haryana High Court in Surjeet Kumar Bansal v. Central Bureau of Investigation*⁸, where it was held that a stay of the scheduled offence does not automatically translate into a stay of PMLA proceedings. According to the ED, this principle fully applies to the present matter.

C. ED's submissions regarding the petitioner's alleged non-cooperation

65. The ED submits that the petitioner has repeatedly failed to join the investigation despite issuance of multiple summons. It is submitted that the petitioner has either not appeared or has avoided personal appearance.

66. While the petitioner may have furnished certain documents, he did not comply with summons requiring personal appearance. Mere filing of replies or sending documents does not amount to cooperation when the ED specifically requires the accused to appear for recording of statements.

67. The ED submits that the petitioner's conduct must be viewed in light of the magnitude of the offences under investigation, involving allegations of large-scale financial fraud and possible layering of funds. ED submits that ensuring personal presence of the petitioner is essential for effective investigation. The ED relies on *Subhash Popatlal Dave v. Union of India*⁹, submitting that an accused who does not comply with summons or evades process cannot claim equitable or discretionary relief.

68. The ED further submits that the petitioner's claim of "illegal detention" by the Uttar Pradesh Police is irrelevant to the present proceedings and does not excuse his non-appearance before the ED. The ED argues that the cumulative conduct of the petitioner demonstrates evasion, justifying coercive steps.

69. The ED submits that the issuance of NBWs by the Special Court on 11.04.2025 is lawful and justified. It is stated that when an accused fails to appear despite repeated summons, the investigating agency is entitled to move the Court for appropriate process, including NBWs.

70. According to the ED, the Special Court was fully justified in issuing NBWs after noting the petitioner's persistent failure to join the investigation. The ED submits that the Court's order cannot be interfered with in writ jurisdiction in the absent of any glaring error.

71. The ED relies on judicial precedents concerning the power of courts to issue warrants during investigation, including judgments such as State through CBI v. Dawood Ibrahim Kaskar,¹⁰ and *Ottavio Quattrocchi v. Central Bureau of Investigation*¹¹ and submits that these judgments establish the principle that courts may issue process during investigation when the accused is avoiding appearance.

72. The ED also relies on cases relating to absconding or non-cooperating accused, including Inder Mohan Goswami (Supra), where the Hon^{ble} Supreme Court held that warrants may be issued against persons who avoid process or evade appearance.

73. The ED submits that the petitioner's attempt to challenge NBWs in writ jurisdiction is contrary to law because the proper course is for the petitioner to appear before the Special Court and seek cancellation of the warrants. ED emphasises that NBWs cannot be cancelled in absentia.

E. ED's submissions regarding search proceedings

74. The ED submits that the search proceedings under Section 17 PMLA conducted on 10.04.2025 and thereafter were lawful, duly authorized, and carried out pursuant to statutory satisfaction recorded by the competent authority.

75. The petitioner's objections regarding reason to believe are misconceived because Section 17 PMLA does not require the ED to disclose such reasons to the party searched at the time of search. ED states that the correctness of the search can be examined by the Adjudicating Authority upon filing of the complaint under Section 17(4) PMLA, and therefore, the petitioner has an effective statutory remedy which he has chosen not to pursue.

76. Search results yielded materials relevant to the investigation, including discovery of cash amounting to ₹36 lakh, which forms part of the evidence. ED contends that the petitioner cannot pre-judge the evidentiary value of seized items at this stage.

F. ED's tabular chart submissions relating to multiple FIRs

77. ED submits that the ECIR was registered on 12.03.2021 on the basis of FIR No. 353/2015, which contained scheduled offences under the PMLA. ED further clarifies that the ECIR was not confined to a single FIR but was expanded by way of two addendums to incorporate all relevant predicate materials against the petitioner.

78. It is submitted that forty-nine FIRs in total form the basis of investigation under ECIR. Out of these forty-nine, forty-four FIRs were earlier consolidated by the Hon^{ble} Supreme Court into FIR No. 353/2015 (Grand Venice Project). ED submits that although consolidated for the purposes of police investigation, each one of those FIRs contained scheduled offences under Sections 420 IPC, 467 IPC, 468 IPC, 471 IPC, and 120-B IPC, and therefore continue to remain valid material for the purposes of PMLA.

79. ED states that in addition to the forty-four consolidated FIRs, there exist five independent FIRs, all registered in relation to M/s Mist Avenue Pvt. Ltd. (Mist Project), in which the petitioner is also an accused, as stated by the ED. These FIRs were never part of the Hon^{ble} Supreme Court consolidation order and are being investigated independently.

80. These Mist Avenue FIRs include allegations under Sections 420, 467, 468, 471, 406, and 120-B IPC, all of which are schedule offences (except 406 IPC). ED submits that these FIRs are independent criminal transactions, have not been quashed, and therefore squarely fall within the definition of "scheduled offences" for Section 2(1)(u) PMLA. The ED relies heavily on these Mist Avenue FIRs to establish that scheduled offences continue to exist, and that consolidation of Grand Venice FIRs does not erase the existence of other predicate offences that independently sustain the ECIR against the petitioner.

81. ED submits that addendums to the ECIR were issued twice:

“(i) Addendum dated 10.03.2025, by which seven additional FIRs were included; and

(ii) Addendum dated 21.05.2025, by which fourteen more FIRs were included.”

82. ED argues that this procedure is legally permissible and fully supported by judicial precedent. ED places reliance on the principle that an ECIR is only an internal document, and additional material can be placed on record at any stage of investigation, so long as it relates to scheduled offences. It is urged that the addendums were issued because the original ECIR already pertained to FIR No. 353/2015 dated 09.06.2015, which contains allegations of cheating and fraud against the petitioner. Subsequent consolidation by the Hon^{ble} Supreme Court on 12.05.2022 did not quash those other FIRs nor extinguish their status as scheduled offences at the time of ECIR registration.

83. ED further submits that out of the forty-six FIRs consolidated by the Hon^{ble} Supreme Court, two FIRs were not added in the ECIR. One because it did not contain any scheduled offence and the other because ED could not obtain a copy. Therefore, the ECIR ultimately reflects forty-four consolidated FIRs and five Mist Avenue FIRs, totaling forty-nine.

84. ED submits that the petitioner's argument that only Section 406 IPC survives after submission of the chargesheet is fundamentally misconceived. ED argues that PMLA jurisdiction arises not at the stage of cognizance but at the time of commission of the scheduled offence and registration of the predicate FIR. Multiple FIRs still contain scheduled offences against the petitioner. ED argues that the Hon^{ble} Supreme Court order did not quash any FIR. It only directed consolidation and filing of a composite chargesheet. ED submits that consolidation does not amount to quashing, and therefore, the scheduled offences in those other FIRs continue to exist for PMLA purposes.

85. ED, stresses upon the contention that five FIRs relating to the Mist Project are separate criminal transactions that have not been consolidated by the Hon^{ble} Supreme Court order and have not been stayed by any High Court. These FIRs contain clear allegations of fraud, forgery, and cheating, all of which constitute scheduled offences. ED annexes the details of these FIRs in its note, which include FIR dated 19.07.2019 under Sections 420, 467, 468, 471, 120-B IPC FIR dated 10.05.2019 under Sections 420, 467, 468, 471 IPC FIR dated 24.12.2018 under Sections 420, 406, 120-B IPC and others relating to M/s Mist Avenue Pvt. Ltd. In each of these FIRs, the petitioner Satinder Singh Bhasin is a named accused. ED submits that even if, for the sake of argument, the petitioner was right that the consolidated Grand Venice FIR No. 353/2015 now only contains Section 406 IPC, the Mist Avenue FIRs independently sustain the ECIR. ED argues that PMLA is □transaction-based, not FIR-based,□ and therefore every scheduled offence, even one contained in an independent FIR, triggers PMLA jurisdiction.

86. ED submits that the Hon□ble Supreme Court order dated 12.05.2022 consolidated forty-four FIRs for the limited purpose of police investigation. It did not quash the FIRs, extinguish the underlying scheduled offences, or prohibit investigation by central agencies such as the ED. ED asserts that the PMLA proceedings do not depend on whether multiple FIRs are consolidated for police purposes. ED emphasises that every scheduled offence gives rise to a separate stream of proceeds of crime, and consolidation only affects procedural convenience.

87. The ED□s tabular chart sets out multiple FIRs relating to transactions involving Satinder Singh Bhasin and various companies associated with him, including BIPL, GVCTPL, and Grand Venezia Pvt. Ltd. and Mist Project. The multiplicity of FIRs indicates a wider pattern of fraudulent conduct across several projects.

88. The ED argues that the petitioner was named in numerous FIRs registered at P.S. Kasna, Gautam Budh Nagar, under serious offences including Sections 406, 420, 467, 468, 471, 504, 506, and 120B IPC. The ED contends that the scale and seriousness of the allegations demonstrate the need for a comprehensive money-laundering investigation.

89. The ED submits that various complainants have alleged diversion of funds, breach of trust, and cheating by the petitioner, forming the basis for tracing the proceeds of crime under the PMLA.

90. Sri Pankaj Kumar Shukla, learned counsel appearing on behalf of the intervener has made submissions on certain legal points, but mainly opted all arguments made by learned counsel appearing on behalf of the ED.

REJOINDER SUBMISSIONS ON BEHALF OF THE PETITIONER

91. The petitioner submits that the Hon□ble Supreme Court in Shree Chamundi Mopeds Ltd. (Supra) explained that while the distinction between stay and quashing exists for certain purposes, a stay nevertheless freezes the effect and operation of the order under challenge. The petitioner argues that the respondent cannot rely on this distinction to bypass the stay and continue coercive proceedings.

92. It is contended that the ED□s position that an ECIR is beyond judicial review is a misreading of Vijay Madanlal Choudhary (Supra). It is submitted that the said judgment held only that the ED is not required to furnish a copy of the ECIR to the accused, and it did not state that the ECIR is beyond scrutiny when the very initiation of PMLA proceedings suffers from lack of jurisdiction. The petitioner contends that judicial review is available where the ECIR is based on a non-scheduled offence, where the FIRs have been expressly consolidated or merged pursuant to Hon□ble Supreme Court orders, or where the ECIR has been registered in colorable exercise of power. In this context, the petitioner relies upon the decisions passed in *N. Dhanraj Kochar v. Enforcement Directorate*¹²; Order dated 02.09.2023 passed in Jitendra Nath Patnaik v. Enforcement Directorate, Bhubaneswar¹³ passed by the Orissa High Court at Cuttack and Order dated 10.04.2024 passed in Pawan Insa v. Directorate of Enforcement, Government of India, Chandigarh Zonal Office, Chandigarh¹⁴, which, according to the petitioner, clarify that although an ECIR is ordinarily not quashable at the initial stage, the High Court may intervene where manifest illegality or jurisdictional defect exists.

93. The petitioner submits that the reliance placed by the respondent on State through CBI v. Dawood Ibrahim Kaskar¹⁵ and Ottavio Quattrocchi v. Central Bureau of Investigation¹⁶ is misplaced, as those decisions were rendered in a completely different statutory context where the police had authority to seek NBWs during investigation. According to the petitioner, these authorities cannot be used to justify issuance of NBWs under PMLA prior to filing of a complaint.

94. The petitioner submits that the ED's allegation of evasion is thus contrary to the documentary record. Reliance placed by the ED on the judgment of Subhash Popatlal Dave v. Union of India¹⁷ is stated to be wholly inapplicable, because that decision concerns an absconding accused who did not respond to summons, whereas the present petitioner has fully complied. The petitioner further distinguishes Wave Hospitality Pvt. Ltd. v. Union of India¹⁸, submitting that the said case is related to provisional attachment proceedings and had no relevance to the present issue of alleged non-cooperation.

95. The petitioner submits that the ED's reliance on the decision in Ashok

Malik v. Soga Impex Pvt. Ltd.¹⁹ is fundamentally misplaced. It is argued that the principle that warrants cannot be cancelled in absentia applies only in situations where the warrants were issued after proper cognizance had been taken by the Court. The said decision arose from proceedings under Section 138 of the Negotiable Instruments Act, 1881 where cognizance had already been taken, and the accused had not appeared.

96. The petitioner asserts that in the present case, no complaint has been filed under Section 44 PMLA, and no cognizance exists at all. Therefore, the Special Court lacked jurisdiction to issue NBWs in the first place. It is submitted that where an order is wholly without jurisdiction, the High Court may quash it even if the accused has not physically appeared, because such an order is void ab initio and not a legitimate judicial process.

97. The petitioner reiterates the principle reaffirmed in Satender Kumar Antil v. CBI²⁰, that the graded procedure of summons, then bailable warrant and then non-bailable warrant applies only after cognizance. Therefore, in the absence of cognizance in any PMLA complaint, the issuance of NBWs is non-est and can be interdicted even without the petitioner's presence.

98. The petitioner submits that the ED's claim of non-cooperation or evasion is factually incorrect and contrary to the documentary record. It is stated that the petitioner has, from the very inception, complied with every lawful directive of the ED. The petitioner provides a detailed account of compliance:

“i. A written reply to the first summons was made on 18.04.2022.

ii. The petitioner physically appeared before the ED on 12.07.2022.

iii. Documents were furnished promptly on 14.07.2022.

iv. Upon receiving summons dated 08.05.2024, the petitioner supplied documents on 14.05.2024, 16.05.2024, and 20.05.2024.

v. Upon summons dated 17.02.2025, the petitioner could not appear due to being illegally detained by the Uttar Pradesh Police, a fact acknowledged by the Delhi High Court on 19.02.2025 and 20.02.2025.

vi. Nevertheless, the petitioner submitted documents on 21.02.2025 and 22.02.2025.

vii. On 26.03.2025, the petitioner’s authorized representative appeared before the ED and furnished all remaining documents.”

99. The petitioner submits that on 06.03.2025 and again on 21.03.2025, the ED itself communicated in writing that the petitioner’s personal appearance was “not mandatory,” and only documents were required. In such circumstances, the allegation that the petitioner was avoiding personal appearance is factually baseless.

100. The petitioner contends that Subhash Popatlal Dave (Supra) has no application to the present matter because in that case, the accused was a proclaimed offender who had deliberately avoided process. Here, the petitioner has always cooperated and complied, unless prevented by illegal detention by the state police.

101. The petitioner submits that the ED’s reliance on Wave Hospitality Pvt. Ltd. (Supra) is also misplaced because that case concerned provisional attachment proceedings under Section 5 PMLA and had no relation to compliance with summons.

102. The petitioner also relies on the Bombay High Court’s judgment in Sagar Maruti Suryawanshi (Supra), which held that the ED cannot combine unrelated FIRs to create a composite ECIR and must confine itself to the scheduled offence forming the basis of money-laundering. The petitioner argues that ED’s attempt to incorporate FIRs relating to the “Mist Project” into the present ECIR violates this principle.

103. The petitioner submits that the Hon’ble Supreme Court’s order in W.P. (Crl.) No. 242/2019 dated 12.05.2022 consolidated all FIRs relating to the Grand Venice project into one principal FIR No. 353/2015, directing that all other FIRs and charge-sheets be treated as statements under Section 161 CrPC. The petitioner submits that the ED has unlawfully relied upon multiple FIRs that no longer survive in law.

ANALYSIS AND FINDINGS

I. INTRODUCTION TO THE STATUTORY SCHEME

104. This Court has heard learned counsel for the petitioner and the Enforcement Directorate at length and has perused the material placed on record, including the writ petition, the tabular chart filed by the ED, the ED's written submissions, the petitioner's case-law compilations, the petitioner's rebuttal note, and the documents annexed thereto.

105. The primary challenge in the present proceedings is to the ECIR and NBWs issue vide order dated 11.04.2025.

106. Before examining the factual controversies and rival submissions, it is necessary to set out the relevant statutory concepts central to the adjudication i.e., ECIR, scheduled offence, predicate offence, and the scope of judicial review over an ECIR.

(A) Section 3 of the PMLA reads thus:

Offence of money-laundering. Whosoever directly or indirectly attempts to indulge or knowingly assists or knowingly is a party or is actually involved in any process or activity connected with the proceeds of crime including its concealment, possession, acquisition or use and projecting or claiming it as untainted property shall be guilty of offence of money-laundering.

Explanation. For the removal of doubts, it is hereby clarified that,

(i) a person shall be guilty of offence of money-laundering if such person is found to have directly or indirectly attempted to indulge or knowingly assisted or knowingly is a party or is actually involved in one or more of the following processes or activities connected with proceeds of crime, namely:

(a) concealment; or

(b) possession; or

(c) acquisition; or

(d) use; or

(e) projecting as untainted property; or

(f) claiming as untainted property, in any manner whatsoever;

(ii) the process or activity connected with proceeds of crime is a continuing activity and continues till such time a person is directly or indirectly enjoying the proceeds of crime by its concealment or possession or acquisition or use or projecting it as untainted property or claiming it as untainted property in any manner whatsoever. On a plain reading of Section 3, unless proceeds of crime exist, there cannot be any money laundering offence. Clause (u) of sub-section (1) of Section 2 of the PMLA defines "proceeds of crime", which reads thus:

Definition (1) In this Act, unless the context otherwise requires, "proceeds of crime" means

(u) "proceeds of crime" means any property derived or obtained, directly or indirectly, by any person as a result of criminal activity relating to a scheduled offence or the value of any such property or where such property is taken or held outside the country, then the property equivalent in value held within the country or abroad;

Explanation. For the removal of doubts, it is hereby clarified that "proceeds of crime" include property not only derived or obtained from the scheduled offence but also any property which may directly or indirectly be derived or obtained as a result of any criminal activity relatable to the scheduled offence. □

B. Clause (v) of sub Section (1) of Section 2 of the PMLA defines □property□ to mean any property or assets of every description, whether corporeal or incorporeal, movable or immovable, tangible or intangible. To constitute any property as proceeds of crime, it must be derived or obtained directly or indirectly by any person as a result of criminal activity relating to a scheduled offence. The explanation clarifies that the proceeds of crime include property, not only derived or obtained from scheduled offence but also any property which may directly or indirectly be derived or obtained as a result of any criminal activity relatable to the scheduled offence. Clause (u) also clarifies that even the value of any such property will also be the proceeds of crime. Thus, the existence of □proceeds of crime□ is sine qua non for the offence under Section 3 of the PMLA.

(C) Clause (x) of sub-Section (1) of Section 2 of the PMLA defines □schedule□. Clause (y) thereof defines □scheduled offence□, which reads thus:

(y) □scheduled offence□ means –

(i) the offences specified under Part A of the Schedule; or

(ii) the offences specified under Part B of the Schedule if the total value involved in such offences is one crore rupees or more; or

(iii) the offences specified under Part C of the Schedule.

5. Attachment of property involved in money-laundering.-

4[(1)Where the Director or any other officer not below the rank of Deputy Director authorised by the Director for the purposes of this section, has reason to believe (the reason for such belief to be recorded in writing), on the basis of material in his possession, that

(a) any person is in possession of any proceeds of crime; and

(b) such proceeds of crime are likely to be concealed, transferred or dealt with in any manner which may result in frustrating any proceedings relating to confiscation of such proceeds of crime under this Chapter, he may, by order in writing, provisionally attach such property for a period not exceeding one hundred and eighty days from the date of the order, in such manner as may be prescribed:

Provided that no such order of attachment shall be made unless, in relation to the scheduled offence, a report has been forwarded to a Magistrate under section 173 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (2 of 1974), or a complaint has been filed by a person authorised to investigate the offence mentioned in that Schedule, before a Magistrate or court for taking cognizance of the scheduled offence, as the case may be, or a similar report or complaint has been made or filed under the corresponding law of any other country:

Provided further that, notwithstanding anything contained in 1[first proviso], any property of any person may be attached under this section if the Director or any other officer not below the rank of Deputy Director authorised by him for the purposes of this section has reason to believe (the reasons for such belief to be recorded in writing), on the basis of material in his possession, that if such property involved in money-laundering is not attached immediately under this Chapter, the non-attachment of the property is likely to frustrate any proceeding under this Act.]

[Provided also that for the purposes of computing the period of one hundred and eighty days, the period during which the proceedings under this section is stayed by the High Court, shall be excluded and a further period not exceeding thirty days from the date of order of vacation of such stay order shall be counted.];

(2) The Director, or any other officer not below the rank of Deputy Director, shall, immediately after attachment under sub-section (1), forward a copy of the order, along with the material in his possession, referred to in that sub-section, to the Adjudicating Authority, in a sealed envelope, in the manner as may be prescribed and such Adjudicating Authority shall keep such order and material for such period as may be prescribed.

(3) Every order of attachment made under sub-section (1) shall cease to have effect after the expiry of the period specified in that sub-section or on the date of an order made under 3[subsection (3)] of section 8, whichever is earlier.

(4) Nothing in this section shall prevent the person interested in the enjoyment of the immovable property attached under sub-section (1) from such enjoyment.

Explanation. □ For the purposes of this sub-section, □ person interested □, in relation to any immovable property, includes all persons claiming or entitled to claim any interest in the property.

(5) The Director or any other officer who provisionally attaches any property under sub-section (1) shall, within a period of thirty days from such attachment, file a complaint stating the facts of such attachment before the Adjudicating Authority.

17. Search and seizure.-(1)
Where 1[the Director or any other officer not below the rank of Deputy Director authorised by him for the purposes of this section,] on the basis of information in his possession, has reason to believe (the reason for such belief to be recorded in writing) that any person □

(i) has committed any act which constitutes money-laundering, or

(ii) is in possession of any proceeds of crime involved in money-laundering, or

(iii) is in possession of any records relating to money-laundering, 1[or]

[(iv) is in possession of any property related to crime,]

then, subject to the rules made in this behalf, he may authorise any officer subordinate to him to □

(a) enter and search any building, place, vessel, vehicle or aircraft where he has reason to suspect that such records or proceeds of crime are kept;

(b) break open the lock of any door, box, locker, safe, almirah or other receptacle for exercising the powers conferred by clause (a) where the keys thereof are not available;

(c) seize any record or property found as a result of such search;

d) place marks of identification on such record or I[property, if required or] make or cause to be made extracts or copies therefrom;

(e) make a note or an inventory of such record or property;

(f) examine on oath any person, who is found to be in possession or control of any record or property, in respect of all matters relevant for the purposes of any investigation under this Act:

* * * * *

3[(1A) Where it is not practicable to seize such record or property, the officer authorised under sub-section (1), may make an order to freeze such property whereupon the property shall not be transferred or otherwise dealt with, except with the prior permission of the officer making such order, and a copy of such order shall be served on the person concerned:

Provided that if, at any time before its confiscation under sub-section (5) or sub-section (7) of section 8 or section 58B or sub-section (2A) of section 60, it becomes practical to seize a frozen property, the officer authorised under sub-section (1) may seize such property.]

(2) The authority, who has been authorised under sub-section (1) shall, immediately after search and seizure 3[or upon issuance of a freezing order], forward a copy of the reasons so recorded along with material in his possession, referred to in that sub-section, to the Adjudicating Authority in a sealed envelope, in the manner, as may be prescribed and such Adjudicating Authority shall keep such reasons and material for such period, as may be prescribed.

(3) Where an authority, upon information obtained during survey under section 16, is satisfied that any evidence shall be or is likely to be concealed or tampered with, he may, for reasons to be recorded in writing, enter and search the building or place where such evidence is located and seize that evidence:

Provided that no authorisation referred to in sub-section (1) shall be required for search under this sub-section.

4[(4) The authority seizing any record or property under sub-section (1) or freezing any record or property under sub-section (1A) shall, within a period of thirty days from such seizure or freezing, as the case may be, file an application, requesting for retention of such record or property seized under sub-section (1) or for continuation of the order of freezing served under sub-section (1A), before the Adjudicating Authority.]

44. Offences triable by Special Courts.-(1) Notwithstanding anything contained in the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (2 of 1974), □

1[(a) an offence punishable under section 4 and any scheduled offence connected to the offence under that section shall be triable by the Special Court constituted for the area in which the offence has been committed:

Provided that the Special Court, trying a scheduled offence before the commencement of this Act, shall continue to try such scheduled offence; or];

(b) a Special Court may, 2 upon a complaint made by an authority authorised in this behalf under this Act take 3[cognizance of offence under section 3, without the accused being committed to it for trial];

4[Provided that after conclusion of investigation, if no offence of money-laundering is made out requiring filing of such complaint, the said authority shall submit a closure report before the Special Court; or]

5[(c) if the court which has taken cognizance of the scheduled offence is other than the Special Court which has taken cognizance of the complaint of the offence of money-laundering under sub-clause (b), it shall, on an application by the authority authorised to file a complaint under this Act, commit the case relating to the scheduled offence to the Special Court and the Special Court shall, on receipt of such case proceed to deal with it from the stage at which it is committed.

(d) a Special Court while trying the scheduled offence or the offence of money-laundering shall hold trial in accordance with the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (2 of 1974) as it applies to a trial before a Court of Session.]

4[Explanation. □ For the removal of doubts, it is clarified that, □

(i) the jurisdiction of the Special Court while dealing with the offence under this Act, during investigation, enquiry or trial under this Act, shall not be dependent upon any orders passed in respect of the scheduled offence, and the trial of both sets of offences by the same court shall not be construed as joint trial;

(ii) the complaint shall be deemed to include any subsequent complaint in respect of further investigation that may be conducted to bring any further evidence, oral or documentary, against any accused person involved in respect of the offence, for which complaint has already been filed, whether named in the original complaint or not.]

(2) Nothing contained in this section shall be deemed to affect the special powers of the High Court regarding bail under section 439 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (2 of 1974) and the High Court may exercise such powers including the power under clause (b) of sub-section (1) of that section as if the reference to □Magistrate□ in that section includes also a reference to a □Special Court□ designated under section 43.

50. Powers of authorities regarding summons, production of documents and to give evidence, etc.-(1)

The Director shall, for the purposes of section 13, have the same powers as are vested in a civil court under the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 (5 of 1908) while trying a suit in respect of the following matters, namely: □

- (a) discovery and inspection;*
- (b) enforcing the attendance of any person, including any officer of a [reporting entity] and examining him on oath;*
- (c) compelling the production of records;*
- (d) receiving evidence on affidavits;*
- (e) issuing commissions for examination of witnesses and documents; and*
- (f) any other matter which may be prescribed.*

(2) The Director, Additional Director, Joint Director, Deputy Director or Assistant Director shall have power to summon any person whose attendance he considers necessary whether to give evidence or to produce any records during the course of any investigation or proceeding under this Act.

(3) All the persons so summoned shall be bound to attend in person or through authorised agents, as such officer may direct, and shall be bound to state the truth upon any subject respecting which they are examined or make statements, and produce such documents as may be required.

(4) Every proceeding under sub-sections (2) and (3) shall be deemed to be a judicial proceeding within the meaning of section 193 and section 228 of the Indian Penal Code (45 of 1860).

(5) Subject to any rules made in this behalf by the Central Government, any officer referred to in sub-section (2) may impound and retain in his custody for such period, as he thinks fit, any records produced before him in any proceedings under this Act:

Provided that an Assistant Director or a Deputy Director shall not □

(a) impound any records without recording his reasons for so doing; or

(b) retain in his custody any such records for a period exceeding three months, without obtaining the previous approval of the 2[Joint Director]. □

107. These expressions lie at the core of the PMLA framework and have been judicially examined at length by the Hon^{ble} Supreme Court in Vijay Madanlal Choudhary (Supra) and Pavana Dibbur (Supra) and by various High Courts, including this Court. For convenience, the relevant paragraphs of Vijay Madanlal Choudahry (Supra) are reproduced below for reference:

“100. We would now elaborate upon the meaning of □investigation□ in clause (na) of Section 2(1). It includes all proceedings under the Act conducted by the Director or an authority authorised by the Central Government under this Act for collection of evidence. The expression "all the proceedings under this Act" unquestionably refers to the action of attachment, adjudication and confiscation, as well as actions undertaken by the designated authorities mentioned in Chapter VIII PMLA, under Chapter V PMLA, and for facilitating the adjudication by the adjudicating authority referred to in Chapter III to adjudicate the matters in issue, including until the filing of the complaint by the authority authorised in that behalf before the Special Courts constituted under Chapter VII PMLA. The expression "proceedings", therefore, need not be given a narrow meaning only to limit it to proceedings before the court or before the adjudicating authority as is contended but must be understood contextually. This is reinforced from the scheme of the Act as it recognises that the statement recorded by the Director in the course of inquiry, to be deemed to be judicial proceedings in terms of Section 50(4) of the 2002 Act.

105. The other relevant definition is "proceeds of crime" in Section 2(1)(u) of the 2002 Act. This definition is common to all actions under the Act, namely, attachment, adjudication and confiscation being civil in nature as well as prosecution or criminal action. The original provision prior to amendment vide the Finance Act, 2015 and Finance (No. 2) Act, 2019, took within its sweep any property [mentioned in Section 2(1)(v) PMLA] derived or obtained, directly or indirectly, by any person "as a result of" criminal activity "relating to" a scheduled offence [mentioned in Section 2(1)(y) read with Schedule to the Act] or the value of any such property.

Vide the Finance Act, 2015, it further included such property (being proceeds of crime) which is taken or held outside the country, then the property equivalent in value held within the country and by further amendment vide Act 13 of 2018, it also added property which is abroad. By further amendment vide Finance (No. 2) Act, 2019, Explanation has been added which is obviously a clarificatory amendment. That is evident from the plain language of the inserted Explanation itself. The fact that it also includes any property which may, directly or indirectly, be derived as a result of any criminal activity relatable to scheduled offence does not transcend beyond the original provision. In that, the word "relating to" (associated with/has to do with) used in the main provision is a present participle of word "relate" and the word "relatable" is only an adjective. The thrust of the original provision itself is to indicate that any property is derived or obtained, directly or indirectly, as a result of criminal activity concerning the scheduled offence, the same be regarded as proceeds of crime. In other words, property in whatever form mentioned in Section 2(1)(v), is or can be linked to criminal activity relating to or relatable to scheduled offence, must be regarded as proceeds of crime for the purpose of the 2002 Act. It must follow that the Explanation inserted in 2019 is merely clarificatory and restatement of the position emerging from the principal provision [i.e. Section 2(1)(u)].

106. The "proceeds of crime" being the core of the ingredients constituting the offence of money laundering, that expression needs to be construed strictly. In that, all properties recovered or attached by the investigating agency in connection with the criminal activity relating to a scheduled offence under the general law cannot be regarded as proceeds of crime. There may be cases where the property involved in the commission of scheduled offence attached by the investigating agency dealing with that offence, cannot be wholly or partly regarded as proceeds of crime within the meaning of Section 2(1)(u) of the 2002 Act □ so long as the whole or some portion of the property has been derived or obtained by any person □as a result of□ criminal activity relating to the stated scheduled offence. To be proceeds of crime, therefore, the property must be derived or obtained, directly or indirectly, □as a result of□ criminal activity relating to a scheduled offence. To put it differently, the vehicle used in commission of scheduled offence may be attached as property in the case (crime) concerned, it may still not be proceeds of crime within the meaning of Section 2(1)(u) of the 2002 Act.

Similarly, possession of unaccounted property acquired by legal means may be actionable for tax violation and yet, will not be regarded as proceeds of crime unless the tax legislation concerned prescribes such violation as an offence and such offence is included in the Schedule to the 2002 Act. For being regarded as proceeds of crime, the property associated with the scheduled offence must have been derived or obtained by a person □as a result of□ criminal activity relating to the scheduled offence concerned. This distinction must be borne in mind while reckoning any property referred to in the scheduled offence as proceeds of crime for the purpose of the 2002 Act. Dealing with proceeds of crime by way of any process or

107. Be it noted that the definition clause includes any property derived or obtained □indirectly□ as well. This would include property derived or obtained from the sale proceeds or in a given case in lieu of or in exchange of the □property□ which had been directly derived or obtained as a result of criminal activity relating to a scheduled offence. In the context of the Explanation added in 2019 to the definition of the expression □proceeds of crime□, it would inevitably include other property which may not have been derived or obtained as a result of any criminal activity relatable to the scheduled offence. As noticed from the definition, it essentially refers to □any property□ including abroad derived or obtained directly or indirectly. The Explanation added in 2019 in no way travels beyond that intent of tracking and reaching up to the property derived or obtained directly or indirectly as a result of criminal activity relating to a scheduled offence. Therefore, the Explanation is in the nature of clarification and not to increase the width of the main definition of □proceeds of crime□. The definition of □property□ also contains Explanation which is for the removal of doubts and to clarify that the term property includes property of any kind used in the commission of an offence under the 2002 Act or any of the scheduled offences.

109. Tersely put, it is only such property which is derived or obtained, directly or indirectly, as a result of criminal activity relating to a scheduled offence that can be regarded as proceeds of crime. The authorities under the 2002 Act cannot resort to action against any person for money laundering on an assumption that the property recovered by them must be proceeds of crime and that a scheduled offence has been committed, unless the same is registered with the jurisdictional police or pending inquiry by way of complaint before the competent forum. For, the expression "derived or obtained" is indicative of criminal activity relating to a scheduled offence already accomplished. Similarly, in the event the person named in the criminal activity relating to a scheduled offence is finally absolved by a court of competent jurisdiction owing to an order of discharge, acquittal or because of quashing of the criminal case (scheduled offence) against him/her, there can be no action for money laundering against such a person or person claiming through him in relation to the property linked to the stated scheduled offence. This interpretation alone can be countenanced on the basis of the provisions of the 2002 Act, in particular Section 2(1)(u) read with Section 3. Taking any other view would be rewriting of these provisions and disregarding the express language of the definition clause "proceeds of crime", as it obtains as of now.

Section 3 of the 2002 Act

122. Coming to Section 3 of the 2002 Act, the same defines the offence of money laundering. The expression "money laundering", ordinarily, means the process or activity of placement, layering and finally integrating the tainted property in the formal economy of the country.

However, Section 3 has a wider reach. The offence, as defined, captures every process and activity in dealing with the proceeds of crime, directly or indirectly, and not limited to the happening of the final act of integration of tainted property in the formal economy to constitute an act of money laundering. This is amply clear from the original provision, which has been further clarified by insertion of the Explanation vide Finance (No. 2) Act, 2019.

147. We may also note that argument that removing the necessity of projection from the definition will render the predicate offence and money laundering indistinguishable. This, in our view, is ill founded and fallacious. This plea cannot hold water for the simple reason that the scheduled offences in the 2002 Act as it stands (amended up to date) are independent criminal acts. It is only when money is generated as a result of such acts that the 2002 Act steps in as soon as proceeds of crime are involved in any process or activity. Dealing with such proceeds of crime can be in any form "being process or activity. Thus, even assisting in the process or activity is a part of the crime of money laundering. We must keep in mind that for being liable to suffer legal consequences of one's action of indulging in the process or activity, is sufficient and not only upon projection of the ill-gotten money as untainted money. Many members of a crime syndicate could then simply keep the money with them for years to come, the hands of the law in such a situation cannot be bound and stopped from proceeding against such person, if information of such illegitimate monies is revealed even from an unknown source.

148. The next question is : Whether the offence under Section 3 is a stand-alone offence? Indeed, it is dependent on the wrongful and illegal gain of property as a result of criminal activity relating to a scheduled offence. Nevertheless, it is concerning the process or activity connected with such property, which constitutes offence of money laundering. The property must qualify the definition of "proceeds of crime" under Section 2(1)(u) of the 2002 Act.

149. As observed earlier, all or whole of the crime property linked to scheduled offence need not be regarded as proceeds of crime, but all properties qualifying the definition of "proceeds of crime" under Section 2(1)(u) will necessarily be crime properties. Indeed, in the event of acquittal of the person concerned or being absolved from allegation of criminal activity relating to scheduled offence, and if it is established in the court of law that the crime property in the case concerned has been rightfully owned and possessed by him, such a property by no stretch of imagination can be termed as crime property and ex consequenti proceeds of crime within the meaning of Section 2(1)(u) as it stands today. On the other hand, in the trial in connection with the scheduled offence, the court would be obliged to direct return of such property as belonging to him. It would be then paradoxical to still regard such property as proceeds of crime despite such adjudication by a court of competent jurisdiction. It is well within the jurisdiction of the court concerned trying the scheduled offence to pronounce on that matter.

150. Be it noted that the authority of the authorised officer under the 2002 Act to prosecute any person for offence of money laundering gets triggered only if there exist proceeds of crime within the meaning of Section 2(1)(u) of the 2002 Act and further it is involved in any process or activity. Not even in a case of existence of undisclosed income and irrespective of its volume, the definition of "proceeds of crime" under Section 2(1)(u) will get attracted, unless the property has been derived or obtained as a result of criminal activity relating to a scheduled offence.

151. It is possible that in a given case after the discovery of huge volume of undisclosed property, the authorised officer may be advised to send information to the jurisdictional police [under Section 66(2) of the 2002 Act] for registration of a scheduled offence contemporaneously, including for further investigation in a pending case, if any. On receipt of such information, the jurisdictional police would be obliged to register the case by way of FIR if it is a cognizable offence or as a non-cognizable offence (NC case), as the case may be. If the offence so reported is a scheduled offence, only in that eventuality, the property recovered by the authorised officer would partake the colour of proceeds of crime under Section 2(1)(u) of the 2002 Act, enabling him to take further action under the Act in that regard.

153. In other words, the authority under the 2002 Act is to prosecute a person for offence of money laundering only if it has reason to believe, which is required to be recorded in writing that the person is in possession of "proceeds of crime". Only if that belief is further supported by tangible and credible evidence indicative of involvement of the person concerned in any process or activity connected with the proceeds of crime, action under the Act can be taken forward for attachment and confiscation of proceeds of crime and until vesting thereof in the Central Government, such process initiated would be a stand-alone process.

162. As a matter of fact, prior to the amendment of 2015, the first proviso acted as an impediment for taking such urgent measure even by the authorised officer, who is no less than the rank of Deputy Director. We must hasten to add that the nuanced distinction must be kept in mind that to initiate □prosecution□ for offence under Section 3 PMLA registration of scheduled offence is a prerequisite, but for initiating action of □provisional attachment□ under Section 5 there need not be a pre-registered criminal case in connection with scheduled offence. This is because the machinery provisions cannot be construed in a manner which would eventually frustrate the proceedings under the 2002 Act. Such dispensation alone can secure the proceeds of crime including to prevent and regulate the commission of offence of money laundering. The authorised officer would, thus, be expected to and, also in a given case, justified in acting with utmost speed to ensure that the proceeds of crime/property is available for being proceeded with appropriately under the 2002 Act so as not to frustrate any proceedings envisaged by the 2002 Act.

212. The inquiry preceding filing of the complaint by the authorities under the 2002 Act, may have the semblance of an investigation conducted by them. However, it is essentially an inquiry to collect evidence to facilitate the adjudicating authority to decide on the confirmation of provisional attachment order, including to pass order of confiscation, as a result of which, the proceeds of crime would vest in the Central Government in terms of Section 9 of the 2002 Act. In other words, the role of the authorities appointed under Chapter VIII of the 2002 Act is such that they are tasked with dual role of conducting inquiry and collect evidence to facilitate adjudication proceedings before the adjudicating authority in exercise of powers conferred upon them under Chapters III and V of the 2002 Act and also to use the same materials to bolster the allegation against the person concerned by way of a formal complaint to be filed for offence of money laundering under the 2002 Act before the Special Court, if the fact situation so warrant. It is not as if after every inquiry prosecution is launched against all persons found to be involved in the commission of offence of money laundering. It is also not unusual to provide for arrest of a person during such inquiry before filing of a complaint for indulging in alleged criminal activity.

ECIR vis-□-vis FIR

366. As per the procedure prescribed by the 1973 Code, the officer in-charge of a police station is under an obligation to record the information relating to the commission of a cognizable offence, in terms of Section 154 of the 1973 Code [Lalita Kumari v. State of U.P., (2014) 2 SCC 1 : (2014) 1 SCC (Cri) 524] . There is no corresponding provision in the 2002 Act requiring registration of offence of money laundering. As noticed earlier, the mechanism for proceeding against the property being proceeds of crime predicated in the 2002 Act is a sui generis procedure. No comparison can be drawn between the mechanism regarding prevention, investigation or trial in connection with the scheduled offence governed by the provisions of the 1973 Code.

368. Considering the scheme of the 2002 Act, though the offence of money laundering is otherwise regarded as cognizable offence (cognizance whereof can be taken only by the authorities referred to in Section 48 of this Act and not by jurisdictional police) and punishable under Section 4 of the 2002 Act, special complaint procedure is prescribed by law. This procedure overrides the procedure prescribed under the 1973 Code to deal with other offences (other than money laundering offences) in the matter of registration of offence and inquiry/investigation thereof. This special procedure must prevail in terms of Section 71 of the 2002 Act and also keeping in mind Section 65 of the same Act. In other words, the offence of money laundering cannot be registered by the jurisdictional police who is governed by the regime under Chapter XII of the 1973 Code. The provisions of Chapter XII of the 1973 Code do not apply in all respects to deal with information derived relating to commission of money laundering offence much less investigation thereof. The dispensation regarding prevention of money laundering, attachment of proceeds of crime and inquiry/investigation of offence of money laundering up to filing of the complaint in respect of offence under Section 3 of the 2002 Act is fully governed by the provisions of the 2002 Act itself. To wit, regarding survey, searches, seizures, issuing summons, recording of statements of persons concerned and calling upon production of documents, inquiry/investigation, arrest of persons involved in the offence of money laundering including bail and attachment, confiscation and vesting of property being proceeds of crime. Indeed, after arrest, the manner of dealing with such offender involved in offence of money laundering would then be governed by the provisions of the 1973 Code □ as there are no inconsistent provisions in the 2002 Act in regard to production of the arrested person before the jurisdictional Magistrate within twenty-four hours and also filing of the complaint before the Special Court within the statutory period prescribed in the 1973 Code for filing of police report, if not released on bail before expiry thereof.

369. Suffice it to observe that being a special legislation providing for special mechanism regarding inquiry/investigation of offence of money laundering, analogy cannot be drawn from the provisions of the 1973 Code, in regard to registration of offence of money laundering and more so being a complaint procedure prescribed under the 2002 Act. Further, the authorities referred to in Section 48 of the 2002 Act alone are competent to file such complaint. It is a different matter that the materials/evidence collected by the same authorities for the purpose of civil action of attachment of proceeds of crime and confiscation thereof may be used to prosecute the person involved in the process or activity connected with the proceeds of crime for offence of money laundering. Considering the mechanism of inquiry/investigation for proceeding against the property (being proceeds of crime) under this Act by way of civil action (attachment and confiscation), there is no need to formally register an ECIR, unlike registration of an FIR by the jurisdictional police in respect of cognizable offence under the ordinary law.

370. There is force in the stand taken by the ED that ECIR is an internal document created by the department before initiating penal action or prosecution against the person involved with process or activity connected with proceeds of crime. Thus, ECIR is not a statutory document, nor there is any provision in the 2002 Act requiring authority referred to in Section 48 to record ECIR or to furnish copy thereof to the accused unlike Section 154 of the 1973 Code. The fact that such ECIR has not been recorded, does not come in the way of the authorities referred to in Section 48 of the 2002 Act to commence inquiry/investigation for initiating civil action of attachment of property being proceeds of crime by following prescribed procedure in that regard.

371. The next issue is : Whether it is necessary to furnish copy of ECIR to the person concerned apprehending arrest or at least after his arrest? Section 19(1) of the 2002 Act postulates that after arrest, as soon as may be, the person should be informed about the grounds for such arrest. This stipulation is compliant with the mandate of Article 22(1) of the Constitution. Being a special legislation and considering the complexity of the inquiry/investigation both for the purposes of initiating civil action as well as prosecution, non-supply of ECIR in a given case cannot be faulted. The ECIR may contain details of the material in possession of the authority and recording satisfaction of reason to believe that the person is guilty of money laundering offence, if revealed before the inquiry/investigation required to proceed against the property being proceeds of crime including to the person involved in the process or activity connected therewith, may have deleterious impact on the final outcome of the inquiry/investigation. So long as the person has been informed about grounds of his arrest that is sufficient compliance of mandate of Article 22(1) of the Constitution. Moreover, the arrested person before being produced before the Special Court within twenty-four hours or for that purposes of remand on each occasion, the court is free to look into the relevant records made available by the authority about the involvement of the arrested person in the offence of money laundering. In any case, upon filing of the complaint before the statutory period provided in the 1973 Code, after arrest, the person would get all relevant materials forming part of the complaint filed by the authority under Section 44(1)(b) of the 2002 Act before the Special Court.

372. Viewed thus, supply of ECIR in every case to the person concerned is not mandatory. From the submissions made across the Bar, it is noticed that in some cases ED has furnished copy of ECIR to the person before filing of the complaint. That does not mean that in every case same procedure must be followed. It is enough, if ED at the time of arrest, contemporaneously discloses the grounds of such arrest to such person. Suffice it to observe that ECIR cannot be equated with an FIR which is mandatorily required to be recorded and supplied to the accused as per the provisions of the 1973 Code. Revealing a copy of an ECIR, if made mandatory, may defeat the purpose sought to be achieved by the 2002 Act including frustrating the attachment of property (proceeds of crime). Non-supply of ECIR, which is essentially an internal document of ED, cannot be cited as violation of constitutional right. Concededly, the person arrested, in terms of Section 19 of the 2002 Act, is contemporaneously made aware about the grounds of his arrest. This is compliant with the mandate of Article 22(1) of the Constitution.

373. It is not unknown that at times FIR does not reveal all aspects of the offence in question. In several cases, even the names of persons actually involved in the commission of offence are not mentioned in the FIR and described as unknown accused. Even, the particulars as unfolded are not fully recorded in the FIR. Despite that, the accused named in any ordinary offence is able to apply for anticipatory bail or regular bail, in which proceeding, the police papers are normally perused by the court concerned. On the same analogy, the argument of prejudice pressed into service by the petitioners for non-supply of ECIR deserves to be answered against the petitioners. For, the arrested person for offence of money laundering is contemporaneously informed about the grounds of his arrest; and when produced before the Special Court, it is open to the Special Court to call upon the representative of ED to produce relevant record concerning the case of the accused before him and look into the same for answering the need for his continued detention. Taking any view of the matter, therefore, the argument under consideration does not take the matter any further.

382.8. The offence under Section 3 of the 2002 Act is dependent on illegal gain of property as a result of criminal activity relating to a scheduled offence. It is concerning the process or activity connected with such property, which constitutes the offence of money laundering. The authorities under the 2002 Act cannot prosecute any person on notional basis or on the assumption that a scheduled offence has been committed, unless it is so registered with the jurisdictional police and/or pending enquiry/trial including by way of criminal complaint before the competent forum. If the person is finally discharged/acquitted of the scheduled offence or the criminal case against him is quashed by the court of competent jurisdiction, there can be no offence of money laundering against him or any one claiming such property being the property linked to stated scheduled offence through him.

382.26. In view of special mechanism envisaged by the 2002 Act, ECIR cannot be equated with an FIR under the 1973 Code. ECIR is an internal document of the ED and the fact that FIR in respect of scheduled offence has not been recorded does not come in the way of the authorities referred to in Section 48 to commence inquiry/investigation for initiating □civil action□ of □provisional attachment□ of property being proceeds of crime.

382.27. Supply of a copy of ECIR in every case to the person concerned is not mandatory, it is enough if ED at the time of arrest, discloses the grounds of such arrest. □

Definition and Nature of ECIR

108. ECIR is a document generated by the ED under the PMLA, when they initiate an investigation into money laundering offences. The ECIR is akin to an FIR in criminal cases. It records the basis for the ED's investigation into suspected money laundering activities. It includes details of the predicate offence (scheduled offence under PMLA), the accused involved and the alleged proceeds of crime. The ED registers an ECIR basis on a schedule offence and proceeds to investigate money laundering links. It is treated as an internal document. Unlike FIR, the ED does not typically provide a copy of the ECIR to the accused.

109. Upon perusal of the aforementioned paragraphs of Vijay Madanlal Choudhary (Supra), it is drawn that an ECIR is an internal, administrative record maintained by the ED upon receipt of information relating to the commission of the offence of money laundering under Section 3 PMLA. The Hon'ble Supreme Court has clarified that an ECIR is not equivalent to an FIR, does not initiate criminal prosecution, and is not required to be furnished to the accused. The purpose of the ECIR is merely to record initiation of investigation by the ED.

110. However, while an ECIR is not a statutory instrument, its validity may be questioned on limited grounds where the initiation of investigation is vitiated by a jurisdictional defect, such as absence of a scheduled offence, or initiation on the basis of allegations/offences which no longer survive in law. What the Court cannot do is appraise evidence or monitor the investigation.

Scheduled Offence and Predicate Offence.

111. The PMLA is a derivative legislation. Proceedings under Section 3 PMLA are predicated upon the commission of a Scheduled Offence listed in the Schedule to the Act. A Scheduled Offence is therefore the Predicate Offence, whose proceeds constitute "proceeds of crime".

112. If the Scheduled Offence does not exist, PMLA proceedings may be affected but a mere stay or a dispute about cognizance does not extinguish the scheduled offence itself. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in Vijay Madanlal Choudhary (Supra) held that the PMLA proceedings cannot proceed in the absence of a subsisting scheduled offence, however, it did not hold that every interim order in the predicate offence stops PMLA investigation.

Scope of judicial review over ECIR

113. Courts have repeatedly held that the ECIR generally cannot be quashed, because it does not affect rights or liabilities. Nevertheless, judicial review lies where:

- (i) the ECIR is demonstrably without jurisdiction;
- (ii) the allegations do not disclose any scheduled offence, or
- (iii) where statutory safeguards are violated.

114. This Court therefore approaches the matter by examining only whether the threshold for interference is met, without venturing into factual inquiry reserved for the investigating agency or the Special Court.

II. ISSUE OF SEARCH AND SEIZURE UNDER SECTION 17 PMLA

115. The petitioner challenges the search conducted between 10.04.2025 and 12.04.2025 on the ground that there was no reason to believe. The ED's position is that authorization was duly recorded and the challenge is premature because the petitioner has a statutory remedy before the Adjudicating Authority.

116. This Court, regarding the said issue is inclined to agree with the respondent as per which the prayer seeking a declaration that the search action conducted by the ED is illegal, is a relief for which the petitioner has an efficacious alternate statutory remedy under the PMLA, before the Adjudicating Authority, to challenge or contest the validity of the search.

117. Hence, the relief sought in the present writ petition is rejected. Moreover, allegations of misconduct during search are disputed questions of fact not amenable to writ jurisdiction.

III. MULTIPLE FIRs, CLUBBING ORDER AND WHETHER ECIR CAN BE BASED ON ADDENDUMS, AND ITS VALIDITY.

118. The principles governing consolidation of criminal proceedings have been clarified in Amitbhai Anilchandra Shah v. CBI21. There, the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that multiple FIRs concerning the same transaction not to be investigated separately but also held that consolidation cannot operate to efface the existence of individual FIRs for all investigation purposes. The Hon'ble Court observed that consolidation is an administrative measure to avoid duplication, not a substantive extinguishment of offences.

119. The petitioner asserts that after the Hon'ble Supreme Court's order dated 12.05.2022 consolidating several Grand Venice project FIRs into FIR No. 353/2015, the ED could not rely upon other FIRs, especially FIRs relating to the Mist Project. The ED contends otherwise, relying on the tabular chart which shows that the ECIR originally included FIR No. 353/2015 and pursuant to addendums dated 10.03.2025 and 21.05.2025, included a total of 49 FIRs, of which 44 FIRs relate to the Grand Venice consolidation, and 5 FIRs relate independently to the Mist Project.

120. The petitioner's submissions concede that the Hon'ble Supreme Court's order consolidated the pending Grand Venice FIRs, but this Court observes that it did not direct that future FIRs on distinct facts could not be registered. This Court notes from the record that the consolidation order also required a composite chargesheet to be filed in FIR No. 353/2015 for the Grand Venice matters. It did not bar investigation by other statutory agencies into distinct projects or offences.

121. The question therefore is not whether multiple FIRs exist, but whether the ED has acted unlawfully in drawing them into the ECIR. The Hon'ble Supreme Court has not held that ED investigation is tied only to the predicate FIR. Section 3 PMLA applies wherever there are proceeds of crime relating to any scheduled offence. If multiple FIRs, by multiple complainants allege cheating, forgery, falsification of documents, and criminal conspiracy in different real estate projects, by the same party, they remain distinct scheduled offences for the purposes of PMLA.

122. The tabular chart filed by the ED contains FIR numbers, police stations, and the sections invoked, including Sections 406, 420, 467, 468, 471, and 120-B IPC, all of which are Scheduled Offences (Part A of the Schedule). The petitioner in his rejoinder does not dispute the authenticity of the chart and his objection relates only to the clubbing order.

123. The Hon^{ble} Supreme Court's consolidation order did not create an immunity from investigation under the PMLA, nor did it collapse distinct offences into non-existence. Consolidation for trial under CrPC is an administrative procedural direction and it does not extinguish the statutory ingredients of each scheduled offence for purposes of Section 3 PMLA.

124. The above stated reasoning of Amitbhai Anilchandra Shah (Supra) applies here. Even if several FIRs were directed to be merged for police investigation by the Hon^{ble} Supreme Court, their statutory character as independent allegations, particularly for purposes of special statutes such as PMLA, does not stand obliterated. The effect of consolidation is procedural, and it does not amount to quashing or discharge.

125. The petitioner argues that once the Hon^{ble} Supreme Court consolidated all 46 Grand Venice FIRs into FIR No. 353/2015, the ED could not have relied upon any other FIRs, nor could it have expanded the scope of the ECIR by way of addendums. The ED argues that addendums are a legitimate internal step reflecting expansion of investigation as new facts emerge. The question before this Court is whether such addendums are permissible.

126. It must be noted at the outset that the ECIR is not a statutory document but an internal administrative document. Its contours are not fixed by any provision of the PMLA. Unlike an FIR under Section 154 CrPC, which cannot be amended or supplemented except through prescribed procedures, an ECIR is not bound by procedural rigidity. The Hon^{ble} Supreme Court in Vijay Madanlal Choudhary (Supra) recognized that the ECIR merely records initiation of investigation and it is not a foundational jurisdictional document like an FIR.

127. Consequently, where ED receives material relating to new scheduled offences, or further transactions involving the same accused or entities controlled by them, it is entitled to incorporate that information into its investigative record through addendums. The petitioner has shown no legal bar on the ED issuing addendums. Nor has any judicial pronouncement to that effect has held that addendums to an ECIR are impermissible.

128. The petitioner's argument that addendums are impermissible because the original ECIR was based on FIR No. 353/2015 is fundamentally misconceived. Section 3 PMLA does not restrict offences arising from only one scheduled offence. The test is the existence of "proceeds of crime" connected with a scheduled offence, not the numerical identity of the predicate FIR. If the accused is alleged to have diverted or laundered funds arising from multiple transactions, each giving rise to distinct scheduled offences, those offences form independent predicates for PMLA jurisdiction.

129. The ED has placed on record two addendums; one dated 10.03.2025 adding seven FIRs, and another dated 21.05.2025 adding fourteen FIRs, bringing the total to forty-nine FIRs. The petitioner has not demonstrated that these additional FIRs do not contain scheduled offences. On the contrary, the tabular chart discloses that the added FIRs invoke Sections 406, 420, 467, 468, 471, and 120-B IPC. These sections are part of the Schedule to the PMLA.

130. Therefore, the argument that ECIR cannot be based on FIRs later added is unsustainable. Clubbing under CrPC occurs for administrative consolidation of trial. It does not erase the scheduled offences for purposes of Section 3 PMLA. Nor does it bar ED from investigating proceeds of crime arising from such offences. The ED is not investigating the procedural effect of the Supreme Court's clubbing order, instead it is investigating laundering of proceeds of crime arising from duly registered criminal cases giving rise to schedule offences.

131. The petitioner contends that the so-called "Mist Project" FIRs are unrelated to the Grand Venice FIRs and were erroneously included into the ECIR. The ED's submissions, including the tabular chart and their additional note, clearly state that five Mist Project FIRs exist and that the petitioner is named as an accused therein. The petitioner does not dispute being named in these FIRs, instead, he contends that these FIRs stand nullified because of the Hon'ble Supreme Court's consolidation order and that the same pertain to different transaction and not the Grand Venice Mall issue.

132. This contention is factually inaccurate, that the consolidation order dated 12.05.2022 applied only to Grand Venice FIRs and it did not extend to FIRs relating to other projects. There is not a single sentence in the Hon'ble Supreme Court order directing consolidation of the Mist Project FIRs or restraining their registration or investigation. The Mist Project FIRs concern a different project, different complainants, and allegations of separate fraudulent transactions. They are separate predicate offences, however, pertain to same set of individuals including the petitioner who is alleged to have played a key role in the entire set of allegations qua the schedule offences and the PMLA investigation considering that he was/is the director/promoter in the group companies.

133. Further, in Directorate of Enforcement v. Deepak Mahajan²², although it does not concern the PMLA or ECIRs, the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that investigations under special statutes are not circumscribed by the procedural rigidity applicable to police FIRs under the CrPC, and that investigation may evolve as further material surfaces. Relevant paragraphs of the same are as under:

"116. It should not be lost sight of the fact that a police officer making an investigation of an offence representing the State files a report under Section 173 of the Code and becomes the complainant whereas the prosecuting agency under the special Acts files a complaint as a complainant i.e. under Section 61(ii) in the case of FERA and under Section 137 of the Customs Act. To say differently, the police officer after consummation of the investigation files a report under Section 173 of the Code upon which the Magistrate may take cognizance of any offence disclosed in the report under Section 190(1)(b) of the Code whereas the empowered or authorised officer of the special Acts has to file only a complaint of facts constituting any offence under the provisions of the Act on the receipt of which the Magistrate may take cognizance of the said offence under Section 190(1)(a) of the Code. After taking cognizance of the offence either upon a police report or upon receiving a complaint of facts, the Magistrate has to proceed with the case as per the procedure prescribed under the Code or under the special procedure, if any, prescribed under the special Acts. Therefore, the word "investigation" cannot be limited only to police investigation but on the other hand, the said word is with wider connotation and flexible so as to include the investigation carried on by any agency whether he be a police officer or empowered or authorised officer or a person not being a police officer under the direction of a Magistrate to make an investigation vested with the power of investigation."

134. This principle that special-statute investigations are dynamic and not limited to the initial material available can subsequently be applied in PMLA jurisprudence to recognize that an ECIR, being an internal record, may be supplemented or updated by way of addendums as the investigation progresses. The permissibility of addendums thus flows from the broader doctrine in Deepak Mahajan (Supra).

135. The Mist Project FIRs invoke Sections 406, 420, 467, 468, 471, and 120-B IPC. These are scheduled offences. The petitioner is named as an accused. Therefore, these FIRs form independent and valid predicates enabling ED to investigate proceeds of crime connected to those offences.

136. The argument that all FIRs involving the petitioner must be treated as if they no longer exist because the Hon^{ble} Supreme Court consolidated only Grand Venice matters is untenable. The Hon^{ble} Supreme Court did not direct a freeze on future FIRs or a bar on FIRs relating to distinct projects. The direction to file a composite chargesheet in the Grand Venice cluster does not retroactively extinguish other transactions.

137. Consequently, the Mist Project FIRs constitute independent scheduled offences. Their inclusion through addendums in the ECIR is lawful, justified, and consistent with the scheme of the PMLA.

138. Since the ECIR has not been equated with an FIR and has been held to be an internal document, there cannot possibly be a restriction to bringing on record on any subsequent "scheduled offence" registered by way of an FIR alleged to have been committed in respect of the similar transaction which was the subject matter of such ECIR.

139. Accordingly, the ED was entitled to issue addendums to the ECIR, particularly because the investigation is ongoing and proceeds of crime may emerge from multiple transactions. There are separate predicate offences, however, all, upon prima facie basis, pertain to same set of individuals including the petitioner who is alleged to have played a key role in the entire set of allegations qua the schedule offences and the PMLA investigation considering that he was/is the director/promoter in the group companies. The petitioner's contention with respect to the instant issue are thus devoid of any merits and stand rejected.

IV. WHETHER STAY OF PREDICATE FIR HAS ANY EFFECT ON THE PMLA INVESTIGATION AND QUASHING OF ECIR

140. It is a settled proposition of law that proceedings under special statutes proceed independently of the outcome of the main criminal case, unless the special statute expressly incorporates any provision qua the fate of the predicate offence.

141. The petitioner places heavy reliance on the fact that criminal proceedings in FIR No. 353/2015 have been stayed by a learned Single Judge of this Court. He contends that once the predicate offence is stayed, ED cannot continue its investigation.

142. At the outset, it becomes necessary to understand the precise legal position that has emerged from the orders passed by the learned Single Judge of this Court and the Hon^{ble} Supreme Court regarding the predicate offences from which the ECIR has been derived.

143. The admitted position of facts of the present case reveals that on 12.05.2022, the Hon^{ble} Supreme Court in W.P. (Crl.) No. 242/2019, passed a consolidated order whereby 46 FIRs relating to the Grand Venice project were clubbed into one principal FIR, namely FIR No. 353/2015 dated 09.06.2015, registered at Police Station Kasna, Gautam Buddh Nagar, District Gautam Buddh Nagar, Uttar Pradesh. This consolidation was necessitated by the multiplicity of identical allegations arising from the same transaction, the non-delivery of commercial units and non-payment qua the Grand Venice Mall project. The Hon^{ble} Supreme Court, while consolidating these FIRs, directed that all proceedings would be governed by the principal FIR and that a composite chargesheet would be filed, if required.

144. Following the Hon^{ble} Supreme Court's consolidation order, this Court was moved by the petitioner in Criminal Misc. Application No.25724/2022 for quashing of proceedings arising out of the said principal FIR No. 353/2015 and the consolidated proceedings in Case No. 1559/2019 pending before the Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate-II, Gautam Buddh Nagar. By order dated 27.04.2023, the learned Single Judge granted an interim order staying all further proceedings in the said Case No. 1559/2019. This stay order assumes critical importance in the present context because it is the predicate offence, the criminal case arising from the consolidated FIRs, whose proceedings stand stayed, not merely a procedural protection but a substantive halt to the criminal machinery.

145. The stay order remains in operation, and the respondent has not placed any material on record showing that no challenge to this stay order has been filed by the State/investigating agency, nor has any application been made to vacate the stay. The admitted position, therefore, is that the consolidated proceedings remain stayed.

146. The significance of this factual position cannot be understated when viewed against the statutory requirements of the PMLA. Under the PMLA, the offence of money laundering under Section 3 is inherently dependent upon the existence of a scheduled offence, a predicate offence as defined under the Act. The Hon^{ble} Supreme Court in Vijay Madanlal Choudhary (Supra) examined in detail the scheme of the PMLA and held that the offence under Section 3 is dependent on illegal gain of property as a result of criminal activity relating to a scheduled offence. It is concerned with the process or activity connected with such property, which constitutes the offence of money-laundering. A person under the PMLA cannot be prosecuted on notional basis or on the assumption that a scheduled offence has been committed, unless it is so registered with the jurisdictional police and/or pending enquiry/trial including by way of criminal complaint before the competent forum. If the person is finally discharged/acquitted of the scheduled offence or the criminal case against him is quashed by the Court of competent jurisdiction, there can be no offence of money-laundering against him.

147. The legal principle enunciated above establishes a cardinal foundation for PMLA proceedings. The predicate scheduled offence must continue to exist and remain operative. While the Hon^{ble} Supreme Court in the aforesaid judgment did not explicitly address the situation where the predicate offence stands stayed, a state intermediate between continuing vibrancy and final quashing, the logical extension of the principle is that where judicial proceedings in the predicate offence are eclipsed by a stay order, the jurisdictional foundation of the PMLA investigation stands suspended. This proposition has been examined by other High Courts. The High Court of Karnataka in *Mantri Developers Pvt. Ltd. v. Directorate of Enforcement*²³, decided on 14.12.2022, applied the principle from Vijay Madanlal Choudhary (Supra) and held that the existence of a scheduled offence is a jurisdictional fact, a condition precedent for the exercise of investigative authority by the ED. In that case, similar facts were present, the predicate criminal proceedings had been stayed, and the PMLA proceedings continued. The Karnataka High Court, relying on the Supreme Hon^{ble} Supreme Court's pronouncement, held that PMLA investigation must also be stayed where the predicate offence is stayed. The relevant paragraphs of the same is as under:

“14. In these circumstances the offence alleged under the provisions of the PMLA cannot be sustained and cannot be permitted to be continued. Therefore, if the allegations in the predicate offences are considered to be the flesh, the offences under the PMLA is the blood. Therefore, if the predicate offence is not permitted to move forward, the impugned proceedings cannot. It would have been altogether different circumstance, if the petitioners were all acquitted of the offences under the IPC or any other predicate offence to which the offence under the PMLA is linked. The situation in the case at hand is not with regard to acquittal, however, the proceedings are stayed. Therefore, they are eclipsed and not extinguished. The Apex Court does not deal with a circumstance as to what should happen in a case, where it is eclipsed. The Apex Court only dealt with a situation where there is extinguishment of predicate offences. Therefore, it is necessary to consider taking cue from the findings of the Apex Court as to whether attachment order should be permitted to be confirmed or otherwise.

15. It cannot be disputed, that at a later point in time if the petitioners are acquitted, no proceeding under ECIR can continue. In the event they are convicted, it is always open to the Enforcement Directorate to pass any order of attachment or conviction as the case would be. If that be the right of the Enforcement Directorate, since there is no determination in Crime No.163 of 2020, in the light of the interim order being granted by this Court, so long as the interim order is in operation, the impugned proceedings of attachment, in the considered view of this Court, cannot be permitted to continue failing which, it would run completely counter to the findings of the Apex Court.

16. In somewhat similar circumstance, a Division Bench of the High Court of Madras in B. SHANMUGAM’s case (supra) considers this very point as to what is the effect of the stay order and has held as follows:

□What is the effect of a stay order?

A Division Bench of the High Court of Madras holds that in the light of the link between the two and the judgment of the Apex Court in VIJAY MADANLAL CHOUDARY (supra) further proceedings under the PMLA should not be permitted to be continued, till the disposal of the case pending before the competent Court in the predicate offence, where there is an interim order of stay operating. I am in respectful agreement with the order passed by the Division Bench of Madras, but only to the extent of challenge to the impugned proceedings. There is no challenge to the proceedings under the ECIR. What is called in question is the provisional attachment order. In the light of judgments quoted hereinabove, the order passed under sub-section (1) of Section by the Enforcement Directorate cannot be termed to be illegal, however, those proceedings cannot be permitted to be taken to its logical conclusion.

17. There are only three circumstances that the Court would indicate in VIJAY MADANLAL CHOUDARY’s case that in the event the accused in the predicate offence is discharged, acquitted or the proceedings against him are quashed in exercise of jurisdiction under Section 482 of the Cr.P.C., it is only then all the proceedings under the Act would become a nullity. That situation has not yet arrived. Therefore, if the proceedings under the predicate offences are eclipsed and not extinguished, the same would become applicable to the proceedings under the ECIR. The same will have to be eclipsed and cannot be extinguished.

18. In the event the submission of the learned counsel for the petitioners is accepted, it would defeat the very power of attachment under sub-section (1) of Section 5 of the PMLA and if the Enforcement Directorate is permitted to move on with the attachment by seeking a confirmation order or proceeding to sell the attached properties, it would defeat the very proceedings pending before this Court in the predicate offences and the judgment of the Apex Court in the case of VIJAY MADANLAL CHOUDARY (supra). Therefore, to keep the right of the petitioners and the respondent/Enforcement Directorate alive, I deem it appropriate to stall further proceedings in the impugned attachment order i.e., the provisional attachment order directing it not to be confirmed or it being taken any further, however, it would not mean that there can be release of the subjects of attachment in favour of the petitioners. If status quo has to be maintained in the proceedings under the IPC for the reason that there is an interim order; status quo has to be maintained in the proceedings of ECIR as well i.e., the impugned proceedings, all of which would mean that they are mutual to each other. The proceedings under the ECIR can continue once there is a determination by this Court in Writ Petition No.10258 of 2020 either in favour of the petitioners or against them. The impugned proceedings of attachment cannot continue as it would be subject to the final result of Writ Petition No.10258 of 2020. In the event the proceedings against the petitioners stand quashed, the attachment order or any other proceeding under the ECIR cannot continue. Till such time, the proceedings cannot be held to be illegal leading to its obliteration.

19. Insofar as the judgments relied on by the learned counsel appearing for the Enforcement Directorate particularly with reference to the case in J.SEKAR v. UNION OF INDIA - 2018 SCC OnLine Del 6523, rendered by the High Court of Delhi holding that the proceedings under the PMLA and the proceedings under the IPC or predicate offences are completely different and they can go hand in hand is concerned, there can be no qualm about the principles so laid down at the relevant point in time. With the judgment of the Apex Court in the case of VIJAY MADANLAL CHOUDARY (supra), the judgment in J.SEKAR would not become applicable to the facts of the case. The other judgments relied on would also follow suit in the light of the judgment of the Apex Court rendered in the case of VIJAY MADANLAL CHOUDARY (supra)."

148. The principle was also applied by the High Court of Karnataka in C.

Umma Reddy v. Directorate of Enforcement decided on 14.12.2022. In that case, the Court examined whether PMLA proceedings could continue where proceedings in the predicate offence stood stayed. The Karnataka High Court held that an order of stay, while not effecting permanent extinguishment, operates to eclipse the proceedings. The Court observed that the effect of an order of stay means that the operation of the impugned order is stayed or stands stalled as if the impugned order does not exist. This holding was grounded in the principle that a scheduled offence, after an FIR has been quashed, cannot exist and therefore, if there is no scheduled offence, there can be no offence of money laundering.

149. The principle and reasoning discussed in the preceding paragraphs may be applied to the present matter, for the reason that the stay order granted by the learned Single Judge of this Court in Criminal Misc. Application No. 25724/2022 operates to eclipse the predicate proceedings, thereby temporally suspending the jurisdictional foundation of the PMLA investigation qua the consolidated FIRs.

150. The ED, in its submissions, sought to distinguish between the effect of a stay order and the effect of quashing or acquittal. The ED contended that a stay order does not efface the existence of an FIR and relied upon the judgment of Shree Chamundi Mopeds Ltd. (Supra), wherein the Hon^{ble} Supreme Court held that a stay of operation of an order does not lead to such a result and that it only means that the order which has been stayed would not be operative from the date of the passing of the stay order and it does not mean that the said order has been wiped out from existence. This distinction is legally sound as a matter of technical jurisprudence. A stay order does not quash, instead it suspends. Quashing operates to wipe out proceedings as though they never existed. A stay, by contrast, operates to prevent further proceedings while leaving the underlying order or FIR intact in law.

151. While the ED is technically correct that a stay order does not extinguish the FIR, it is equally true that during the operation of a stay order, the machinery that would otherwise render judgment on the predicate offence is kept in abeyance as well due to stay order.

152. The petitioner cannot be tried, nor can the evidence be sifted, nor can guilt or innocence be determined at this stage with regard to the stay. The predicate offence, though technically existing in law, remains judicially inoperative.

153. In the context of the PMLA, a legislation expressly designed to address proceeds derived from the commission of criminal offences, the investigative authority cannot be permitted to unilaterally proceed with inquiry into proceeds of crime while the very question of whether a predicate offence was committed remains suspended in judicial abeyance.

154. The ED further relied upon judicial pronouncements from the High Court of Madras in *Vijayraj Surana v. Enforcement Directorate*²⁴, and other courts suggesting that once the ECIR is born, the umbilical cord that connects the ECIR with FIR loses its relevance and the ECIR becomes an independent document itself.

155. However, this principle, rightly understood, operates in the context where the predicate offence subsists and continues to generate proceeds of crime. The principle does not contemplate a scenario where the predicate criminal proceedings themselves are stayed by a competent court. To permit the ECIR to breathe independently while the predicate remains in judicial suspension would amount to circumventing the stay order, a proposition antithetical to the rule of law and the principle of judicial discipline. When a High Court stays proceedings in a predicate offence, the implicit corollary is that all collateral and derivative proceedings must also desist until the stay is lifted or the matter is finally adjudicated.

156. The ED's argument that protective orders in the predicate case cannot bear upon independent PMLA proceedings is misplaced because the protective order is not merely the bail order dated 06.11.2019 granted by the Hon'ble Supreme Court but extends to the comprehensive stay of proceedings granted by the learned Single Judge vide order dated 27.04.2023. This distinguishes the present matter from scenarios where only a protective order or bail condition is in operation.

157. The petitioner's assertion is not confined to a bail order but extends to the comprehensive stay of proceedings in Case No. 1559/2019. A stay of proceedings is not merely a protective measure, rather it is an affirmative judicial determination that the State machinery shall not advance until the stay is lifted or the matter is finally adjudicated. When a High Court stays proceedings, it does so to prevent prejudice to the accused, to preserve the status quo, or in response to compelling legal circumstances. A stay order thus carries greater judicial weight than a protective order. The ED's argument that PMLA investigations must continue despite the stay of predicate proceedings amounts, in substance, to circumventing the judicial order of stay, a course impermissible under the principle of subordination to superior court orders and the doctrine of judicial discipline.

158. Furthermore, the ED's reliance upon the judgments, asserting that stay on scheduled offence does not automatically translate to stay on PMLA proceedings, must be understood in their proper context. Those judgments were rendered in cases where the predicate offences continued to subsist, and no judicial stay had been granted. The principle enunciated therein that PMLA is an independent offence does not address the situation where the very predicate upon which PMLA investigation is based stands judicially suspended. The present case stands on materially different footing.

159. PMLA, as a special statute designed to combat money laundering, is premised upon the fundamental principle that proceeds of crime are only those derived from or obtained as a result of criminal activity relating to a scheduled offence. Section 2(1)(u) of the PMLA defines "proceeds of crime" as "any property derived or obtained, directly or indirectly, by any person as a result of criminal activity relating to a scheduled offence". The definition is not abstract or notional, and it requires a nexus between the property and a criminal activity relating to a scheduled offence. The scheduled offence must be concrete, not hypothetical.

160. In the present case, the ECIR was registered on 12.03.2021 and was predicated upon FIR No. 353/2015, which, at that time, contained allegations under Sections 406 and 420 IPC. However, in the supplementary chargesheet filed on 17.02.2019, the allegations under Section 420 IPC were dropped, and cognizance came to be taken only under Section 406 IPC. Section 406 IPC (criminal breach of trust) is not a scheduled offence under the PMLA. This Court notes that while the ECIR was registered before the supplementary chargesheet was filed, and thus technically at the time of ECIR registration there were scheduled offences (Section 420), the current legal position is that cognizance is taken only under a non-scheduled offence.

161. In the interregnum, The ED through addendums dated 10.03.2025 and 21.05.2025, added five other FIRs relating to the Mist Avenue project (Nos. 841/2019, 425/2019, 219/2019, 264/2018, 268/2018). The ED contended that these FIRs, which are not part of the Hon'ble Supreme Court's consolidation order, contain scheduled offences and thus sustain the ECIR. However, this Court must observe that these Mist Avenue FIRs stand on an entirely different footing from the consolidated Grand Venice FIRs. The Hon'ble Supreme Court's consolidation order of 12.05.2022 applied specifically to FIRs relating to the Grand Venice project. The Mist Avenue FIRs, relating to a different project and different investors, were not part of the consolidation order and remain separate predicate offences.

162. The fact remains that qua the consolidated FIRs, the principal focus of the present investigation and the matter sub-judice before this Court, cognizance has been taken only under Section 406 IPC, a non-scheduled offence. The legal position is thus that the consolidated FIRs no longer contain a scheduled offence, and proceedings therein stand stayed. Qua the independent Mist Avenue FIRs, scheduled offences do subsist, but these are separate transactions and not the subject of the present judicial stay.

163. This Court is acutely conscious of the principle that courts do not comment upon matters sub-judice before other benches or at other levels of the judicial hierarchy unless warranted in accordance with the law. The consolidated FIRs and proceedings arising therefrom remain sub-judice before the learned Single Judge in Criminal Misc. Application No. 25724/2022. The petitioner's application for quashing of those proceedings awaits adjudication. The learned Single Judge Court, in issuing the impugned stay order, formed a judicial opinion that circumstances warranted suspension of proceedings pending final determination. That opinion stands recorded in the order dated 27.04.2023.

164. This Court does not, in the present order, venture to revisit or reappraise the merits of the consolidated FIRs, the allegations contained therein, or the evidence available. Rather, this Court confines itself to the narrow but critical issue of whether investigative measures by the ED ought to proceed qua the consolidated FIRs while their predicate proceedings remain stayed and sub-judice.

165. The answer to this question flows not from a merits appraisal but from the jurisdictional requirement that the predicate scheduled offence must subsist and remain judicially operative.

166. The ED correctly points out that there exist FIRs which are not part of the consolidated Grand Venice FIRs. These independent FIRs, specifically the five Mist Avenue FIRs, contain allegations of scheduled offences (Sections 420, 467, 468, 471, 120B IPC).

167. The petitioner does not dispute these FIRs. The issue before this Court is not whether the ED may investigate all FIRs without exception but whether the ED may pursue investigation specifically qua the consolidated FIRs whose proceedings stand stayed and sub-judice. Thus, any investigative measure or coercive step that is referable to the consolidated Grand Venice FIRs or the principal FIR No. 353/2015 shall be stayed until final adjudication of Criminal Misc. Application No. 25724/2022.

168. Lastly, with regard to the petitioner's contention that no proceeds of crime have been identified, ED states that the investigation is at a nascent stage. Therefore, at this stage, this Court cannot determine whether proceeds of crime exist or not.

169. This Court clarifies that the direction to refrain from investigative measures applies only to those FIRs which form part of the consolidated Grand Venice Project, i.e., those FIRs which were consolidated by the Hon^{ble} Supreme Court in its order dated 12.05.2022 into the principal FIR No. 353/2015, and qua which proceedings in Case No. 1559/2019 remain stayed by this Court's order dated 27.04.2023.

170. It is relevant to state here that the petitioner has sought quashing of the ECIR. This Court is constrained to decline this prayer, but on narrow and specific grounds that must be clearly articulated. The reasons for non-quashment are: to rest upon alleged scheduled offences. These FIRs are unaffected by the stay order and constitute independent predicate offences. The ECIR cannot be quashed in its entirety when it addresses investigations into proceeds of crime arising from multiple FIRs, some of which remain operative.

B. The Hon^{ble} Supreme Court, in Vijay Madanlal Choudhary (Supra), held that an ECIR is an internal administrative document, not equivalent to an FIR. Unlike an FIR which must be formally registered and requires statutory compliance with CrPC/BNSS, an ECIR is an internal record maintained by the ED to document initiation of investigation. The jurisdiction to quash an internal administrative document in the preliminary stages of investigation is limited and should be exercised only where clear jurisdictional defects appear. While the ECIR qua consolidated FIRs lacks a subsisting and operative scheduled offence, it is not devoid of all predicate material (the Mist Avenue FIRs), and therefore outright quashment is not warranted at this stage.

C. The offence relating to the consolidated FIRs is sub-judice before the learned Single Judge in Criminal Misc. Application No. 25724/2022. This Court cannot, and ought not, to offer pronouncements on matters pending adjudication before another bench, even in the guise of quashing an ECIR. The proper course is to stay investigative measures qua those FIRs while leaving the ECIR itself intact, subject to the direction that investigation shall not proceed qua the stayed consolidated FIRs.

D. The Hon^{ble} Supreme Court in its order dated 12.05.2022 directed filing of a composite chargesheet in the consolidated proceedings. While the investigation is currently stayed, the Hon^{ble} Supreme Court has not closed the door to the possibility of a composite chargesheet being filed in the future. Complete quashment therefore at this stage would necessitate re-registration of the ECIR at a later date, creating procedural inefficiency. A stay of investigative measures qua consolidated FIRs is thus a more nuanced and efficient approach.”

171. In view of the foregoing, this Court is not inclined to quash the ECIR but suspends investigative measures qua the consolidated Grand Venice FIRs. The ECIR may be pursued qua other predicate FIRs, particularly the independent Mist Avenue FIRs.

V. ISSUE OF NON-BAILABLE WARRANT

172. The principles guiding issuance of NBWs have been discussed by the Hon^{ble} Supreme Court and many High Courts time and again. A court may issue a non-bailable warrant during investigation where summons have been ineffective, or where the presence of the accused is essential for the purposes of investigation. Investigating agency is not barred from approaching the court to compel appearance if the accused is demonstrably evading process.

173. Further, an accused has no vested right to demand that the investigating agency refrain from exercising statutory powers merely because the accused has furnished certain documents. Cooperation is not to be judged only by production of papers but also by timely compliance with summons and facilitating in investigation.

174. The NBW order dated 11.04.2025 has been examined. It records that the petitioner stands for the offence of money laundering and directs arrest. The NBW is open-ended. The petitioner argues that NBWs cannot be issued during investigation without cognizance, and the ED argues that NBWs are justified because the petitioner repeatedly evaded personal appearance.

175. The writ petition annexures show emails and documents transmitted by the petitioner. However, the ED's written submissions state that critical documents were not submitted and personal appearance was avoided. The investigation requires personal interrogation under Section 50, and merely sending papers does not satisfy the requirement.

176. The record placed before this Court demonstrates that the investigation under ECIR has been pending since 12.03.2021. Over four years have elapsed since the ECIR was registered. During this extended period, the petitioner has been summoned on multiple occasions, and the record shows the issuance of summons dated 29.03.2022, 14.07.2022, 08.05.2024, 17.02.2025, 06.03.2025 and 21.03.2025. Bailable warrants were not issued, and NBWs were issued thereafter.

177. The preceding paragraph discloses engagement on behalf of the petitioner with the investigative process over the period. The petitioner has appeared in person on initial occasions (12.07.2022 and 14.05.2024) and subsequently through authorized representatives.

178. The ED, in its submissions dated 11.04.2025 (after the NBW was issued on 11.04.2025), belatedly sought to characterize the petitioner's conduct as evasive, alleging that the petitioner fled from his premises in a clear and deliberate attempt to avoid any cooperation with the investigation during the search operations on 10.04.2025. However, the ED simultaneously acknowledged that the petitioner had been complying with summons and furnishing documents. In its chart of summons, the ED noted [] appeared[], [] submitted documents[], [] provided documents[], etc. The narrative of evasion sits uncomfortably with the record of sustained compliance on the face of it.

179. The temporal aspect is critical to the analysis. Four years have elapsed without completion of investigation. Summons continue to be issued, documents continue to be called for, and now, coercive measures in the form of NBWs have been resorted to. This Court must consider whether, after such a prolonged period, NBWs serve any legitimate investigative purpose or whether they represent a frustration of the investigative process rather than a facilitation thereof.

180. The power of issuance of NBWs is not unlimited but is hedged with important preconditions and principles. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in Inder Mohan Goswami (Supra) expounded the legal principles governing issuance of NBWs. The Hon'ble Supreme Court laid down comprehensive guidelines therein, as per which NBWs should be issued to bring a person to court when summons or bailable warrants would be unlikely to have the desired result. This could be when it is reasonable to believe that the person will not voluntarily appear in court or the police authorities are unable to find the person to serve him with a summon or it is considered that the person avoiding the process of court.

181. The Hon^{ble} Supreme Court emphasized that the purpose of NBWs is to secure the presence of an accused before court and not to punish. The Hon^{ble} Court further observed that issuance of NBWs should be done carefully and should not become a tool for punishment before conviction. Mechanical issuance of NBWs without consideration of the facts and circumstances is impermissible.

182. The Hon^{ble} Supreme Court reiterated this principle in Satender Kumar Antil (Supra), wherein it held that NBWs during investigation demand proper justification. The Hon^{ble} Court observed that in the absent of evasion proof or likelihood that the person would abscond, NBWs should not be issued during the investigative stage mechanically.

183. By contrast, in the present case, the petitioner's reasons for nonappearance in February 2025 were that he had been illegally detained by the Uttar Pradesh Police and was before the Delhi High Court in a related proceeding (W.P. Crl. No. 598/2025). These reasons were not frivolous, rather they were factual and had been placed before the ED in writing. The petitioner thereafter appeared through a representative and furnished documents, which was a form of compliance albeit not in the exact manner sought.

184. This Court has examined the record with care to determine whether there is material showing that the petitioner has been evading the investigative process. The ED's written submissions dated 11.04.2025 (the very date on which NBWs were issued) are sparse in factual detail regarding evasion. The ED alleged that the petitioner fled from his premises in a clear and deliberate attempt to avoid any cooperation with the investigation during the search operations on 10.04.2025 and that this act of fleeing has been captured on video, with CCTV. However, fleeing from a search operation is a distinct issue from evasion of summons or process. Fleeing from a search does not necessarily indicate prior intent to evade investigation, it may indicate a reaction to an unexpected and unannounced incursion at the residence. Moreover, the petitioner's legal position has been that the search itself was conducted without jurisdiction and in the absence of proper statutory satisfaction under Section 17 PMLA.

185. No affidavit or detailed material has been placed by the ED in support of the allegation of evasion. The bare assertions made in the written submissions, unsupported by documentary evidence of repeated failure to comply with summons or clear indicators of evasion, are insufficient to justify the issuance of NBWs, especially at the distance of nearly three years into the investigation.

186. The petitioner's counsel submitted in detail that the petitioner has consistently complied with summons, furnished documents as sought, and cooperated with the investigation. Counsel further submitted that the issuance of NBWs at such a late stage, after nearly three years, appears to be a colourable exercise of power designed to manufacture non-cooperation and justify coercive action. Learned counsel contended that the issuance of NBWs is in violation of the principles laid down in Inder Mohan Goswami (Supra) and Satender Kumar Antil (Supra), and that this Court is empowered to quash or cancel such warrants in writ jurisdiction where jurisdictional defects are apparent.

187. The ED's counsel submitted that the petitioner has been systematically evading investigation, has not appeared despite multiple summons, and that the ED was left with no option but to move for NBWs. Learned counsel further submitted that the fact that some documents were furnished does not constitute cooperation if personal appearance was specifically sought. Learned counsel argued that the petitioner fled during the search operations, which itself is indicative of consciousness of guilt and evasion.

188. This Court, having considered the submissions of both parties, the record, and the applicable legal principles, is of the view that the ED has failed to discharge its burden of demonstrating actual evasion by the petitioner. The chronology of summons and responses shows regular engagement on behalf of the petitioner. Most critically, the temporal aspect, nearly four years of investigation without completion and no prosecution complaint having been filed yet, suggests that NBWs are not being issued in the early stages of a nascent investigation where an accused is evading process but rather in a prolonged investigation where no clear investigative purpose is being served by further coercive measures.

189. The Hon^{ble} Supreme Court in Inder Mohan Goswami (Supra) was emphatic that NBWs are not instruments of punishment but tools to secure the presence of an accused in aid of investigation. If, after a prolonged investigation, no clear investigative result (such as completion of inquiry, confrontation of the accused with specific evidence, recording of statement under Section 50 PMLA, filing of prosecution complaint etc.) is in sight, then the issuance of NBWs becomes a hollow exercise, a coercive measure that frustrates rather than facilitates the investigative process.

190. In the present case, the petitioner's statement under Section 50 PMLA was recorded on 12.07.2022. Since then, over two and a half years have elapsed. The ED continues to call for documents and information. At some point in a protracted investigation, the investigative agency must move forward to conclude its inquiry and file a complaint or close the investigation.

191. This Court is mindful that it is not the function of the High Court to micromanage investigation or to prescribe investigative methodology to the ED. The ED possesses statutory authority and domain expertise in investigating money laundering offences. However, the issuance of NBWs, being a coercive measure that curtails personal liberty, attracts constitutional scrutiny. When an accused has substantially cooperated over a prolonged period, and the ED has failed to demonstrate evasion, the issuance of NBWs becomes arbitrary.

192. Having examined the record, considered the submissions of both parties, and applied the legal principles governing issuance and cancellation of NBWs, this Court is of the following view:

“A. The petitioner has not evaded the investigative process. The ED has failed to place material on record demonstrating evasion, noncompliance with summons, or persistent absence. The chronology of engagement by the petitioner shows sustained cooperation, including personal appearance and furnishing of documents in response to summons.

B. The investigation has been pending for over four years, and no clear investigative purpose is being served by the issuance of NBWs at this stage. The investigative agency has had ample opportunity to conclude its inquiry. The prolongation of investigation, punctuated by NBWs, frustrates rather than facilitates the investigative process.

C. The issuance of NBWs is not justified under the principles laid down in a catena of judgments. The judgments laying down the principle require clear demonstration of evasion or reasonable apprehension thereof, and mechanical issuance of NBWs is impermissible.”

193. Accordingly, the NBWs issued on 11.04.2025 are hereby cancelled. The petitioner is directed to join the investigation and cooperate therein upon prior written intimation by the ED.

CONCLUSION

194. In view of the foregoing discussions, and upon careful consideration of the rival submissions advanced on behalf of the parties, this Court is of the opinion that the issues arising for adjudication lie within a narrow compass. The petitioner has questioned the very initiation and continuation of proceedings under the PMLA on the ground that the foundational requirement of a subsisting scheduled offence is absent, and that the ECIR and consequential coercive measures have been pursued in colourable exercise of authority.

195. On the other hand, the ED contends that multiple FIRs containing scheduled offences continue to subsist in law, and that the ECIR, being an internal document, cannot be interfered with in writ jurisdiction.

196. Having evaluated the statutory framework of the PMLA, the effect of the Hon^{ble} Supreme Court's consolidation order, the nature and permissible scope of an ECIR, and the judicial threshold for interference at the stage of investigation, this Court finds that while the ED's jurisdiction is indeed derivative of and contingent upon the existence of a scheduled offence, such jurisdiction cannot be said to have been extinguished merely by the stay of proceedings in the predicate FIRs or by clubbing of FIRs.

197. At the same time, the invocation of coercive measures, including search, seizure, and the issuance of non-bailable warrants, must adhere strictly to statutory safeguards and constitutional limitations.

198. The cumulative assessment of facts and law, therefore, warrants the issuance of limited relief for ensuring that investigative powers are exercised within permissible bounds, without unduly obstructing the ED from conducting a lawful investigation into allegations that prima facie stem from multiple FIRs involving scheduled offences.

199. The conclusions hereinbelow strike a balance between the competing considerations of individual liberty and the need for an effective investigation into economic offences. Accordingly, the following directions are passed:

“A. The prayer for quashing of the ECIR is declined qua all the 49 FIRs, having regard to the settled legal position that the ECIR is an internal document of the ED and is ordinarily not amenable to quashing in exercise of writ jurisdiction, particularly when multiple FIRs containing scheduled offences continue to subsist in law and investigation is still at the nascent stage where not even the prosecution complaint is filed.

B. The respondent, ED, shall refrain from pursuing or continuing investigation, inquiry, summons, searches, seizures, attachment or any other coercive measures including warrants qua the offences and allegations arising out of the consolidated FIR including FIR No.353/2015 i.e. principal FIR (Grand Venice Project consolidated FIRs), till such time as:

“i. the final adjudication of Criminal Misc. Application No. 25724/2022 pending before the learned Single Judge of this Court; or

ii. the stage of framing of charges in Case No. 1559/2019.

iii. Any final order passed by the competent Court qua the said FIRs, whichever is the earliest.

C. The petitioner is directed to pursue Criminal Misc. Application No. 25724/2022.

D. The NBWs dated 11.04.2025 issued by the learned Special Judge are set aside, as the same were issued in a manner inconsistent with the procedural safeguards applicable at the pre-complaint stage under the PMLA.

E. Upon vacation of the stay order in Criminal Misc. Application No.

25724/2022, or upon final adjudication of the said application, the respondent shall be free to resume investigation process qua the FIR No. 353/2015 principal FIR (Grand Venice Project consolidated FIRs), in accordance with the law.”

200. In view of the aforementioned terms, the petition is partly allowed and stands disposed of.

201. All pending applications, if any, also stand disposed of.

202. It is made clear that the observations made by this Court in the preceding paragraphs shall not be construed as an expression on the merits of the case in any FIR/ECIR.

203. The judgment be uploaded on the website forthwith.

Issue for Consideration

Matter pertains to whether the FIRs registered against the petitioners in relation to Phensedyl cough syrup containing codeine were liable to be quashed in exercise of writ/inherent jurisdiction on the ground that the alleged acts were governed solely by the Drugs and Cosmetics Act, 1940 and not the NDPS Act, and consequently, whether continuation of investigation under the NDPS Act and allied penal provisions was legally sustainable at the pre-trial stage.

Headnotes

Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances Act, 1985 - ss. 2, 8, 21, 22, 25, 26, 26(D), 29, 37, 60, 80 - Bharatiya Nyaya Sanhita, 2023 - ss. 61(2), 132, 276, 277, 278, 318(4), 319(4) - 336(3), 319(2), 3(5), 338, 340(2), 206(b), 336(2) - Drugs and Cosmetics Act, 1940 - ss. 2, 32(3) - Drugs and Cosmetics Rules, 1945 - Rule 97 - The petitions arose out of multiple FIRs registered against the petitioners alleging illegal possession, transportation and trade of Phensedyl cough syrup containing codeine phosphate, wherein the police authorities, acting on specific information, seized substantial quantities of the said syrup and initiated proceedings under the provisions of the NDPS Act as well as allied penal statutes. The prosecution case, in substance, was that the petitioners were dealing with the contraband substance without valid authorization and in quantities exceeding the permissible limit, thereby attracting penal liability. The petitioners, on the other hand, contended that Phensedyl is a medicinal preparation governed by the Drugs and Cosmetics Act, 1940, that they were operating under valid licences, and that the essential ingredients for constituting an offence under the NDPS Act were absent. Aggrieved by the registration and continuation of criminal proceedings, the petitioners invoked the writ/inherent jurisdiction of the High Court seeking quashing of the FIRs and consequential reliefs.

Held: The transferring of Phensedyl cough syrup was being done from Jharkhand to the State of Uttar Pradesh by e-way bills which were not in the proper category of carrying of drugs but were for the purposes of carrying of snacks and namkeen - According to the FIRs, medicinal articles were brought from the State of Jharkhand after concealing them in various grains namely wheat and rice - Not only that, the persons who were dealing with those articles namely Phensedyl cough syrup were having fabricated citizenship cards, Aadhar cards etc. etc - If fabrication was there as is evident from the FIR then definitely cases of the petitioners would be covered under various other sections of BNS as well - The sub-stockists to whom the various main stockists were transferring the articles, were either not in existence or were such stockists who were not maintaining their stock registers etc. properly - As per s. 32(3) of Drugs and Cosmetics Act, the petitioners could be prosecuted under "any other law for any act or omission which constitutes an offence against this Chapter" - Also s. 80 of NDPS Act gives the liberty to prosecute under the NDPS Act along with the Drugs and Cosmetics Act - The enormity of the entire matter has to be investigated and, therefore, no question for interference in the FIRs arises, writ petitions dismissed. In the same district another FIR being FIR dated 19.11.2025 was lodged which had given rise to Case Crime No.0343 of 2025. This FIR was challenged by Shubham Jaiswal in Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No.29328 of 2025.

7. The FIR dated 28.11.2025 lodged in Sant Ravidas Nagar (Bhadohi) which had given rise to Case Crime No.187 of 2025 was challenged in Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No.29022 of 2025 and the FIR dated 22.11.2025 lodged in Basti and which had given rise to Case Crime No.0217 of 2025 was challenged in Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No.28730 of 2025.

8. Learned counsel who appeared for the petitioners in all the writ petitions were Sri Nipun Singh, Senior Advocate assisted by Sri Naman Agarwal, Ms. Sufia Saba, Sri Ashish Chitransh, Sri B.K.S. Raghuvanshi, Sri Shantanu, Sri Madhukar Maurya, Paritosh Joshi, Shashank Shekhar Misra, Abhijeet Mishra, Ghanshyam Yadav, Akshay Raghuvanshi and Sri Vivek Chaturvedi.

9. If we analyze the various FIRs then the allegations that can be gleaned out against the petitioners were as follows :

The FIR dated 18.10.2025 which was challenged in Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No.29173 of 2025 related to district Sonbhadra and was lodged under sections 319(2), 318(4) of BNS and sections 8 and 21 of NDPS Act. In it the first informant Sri Vinod Kumar Sav, Excise Inspector had alleged that when he, along with his team, in a Government Vehicle No.UP70AG1647 was keeping a vigil during the Dhanteras and Deepawali festival, then through some informer information had been received that two containers having intoxicating syrup bottles were coming from Hinduari and going to Shaktinagar. Upon getting this information, vehicles were checked. The containers registered as RJ11GC1710 and no.MH46AR6826 were intercepted. The drivers of these two containers along with their companions informed that they were carrying certain namkeen and chips packets and they were taking them from Ghaziabad to Jharkhand. When the police became strict and asked them as to what was actually contained in the containers then the drivers and their companions told that in the containers, in between the chips packets and the snacks packets, ESKUF Cough Syrup bottles were kept and were being taken to Jharkhand. Upon getting this information, the Excise Inspector informed Sri Rajesh Kumar Maurya, the Drug Inspector and from the containers 399 sacks were found having 4787 cartons and in total there were 119675 bottles of the medicines. The invoice which the vehicle drivers were having were of 'Hot Mix Namkeen'. Upon getting information that the drug ESKUF Cough Syrup had Codeine as an ingredient, the bottles of the cough syrup were sealed and accordingly action was taken vis.-a-vis. the NDPS Act and other concerned Acts. In the FIR itself it was stated that the articles were being taken from Ghaziabad to Jharkhand.

10. Thereafter the police got active and information was sent to the Ghaziabad police and it was informed that a vehicle had been apprehended in Sonbhadra and with regard to it a case had been registered which had given rise to Case Crime No.1054 of 2025.

11. The first informant in the Ghaziabad case, Inspector Anil Kumar Rajput had lodged the FIR on 4.11.2025 and that had given rise to Case Crime No.0691 of 2025 and upon various enquiries being made information was got from a Mukhbir (informer) that in the Machhali Godam the owner of Bareilly Gorakhpur Transport namely Santosh Bhadana along with his friend Saurabh Tyagi were dealing with the cough syrup bottles and he had informed that these bottles were loaded at the godown and after hiding them in wheat, rice and other articles, they were being smuggled to various places for being used as an intoxicant. Thereafter the Machhali Godam of Bareilly Gorakhpur Transport company was raided, where a 12 tyred truck and two tankers were found parked and in the vicinity in a Creta Car a person was seen sitting, who was supervising the loading and unloading of various cartons from the trucks. The person who was sitting in the Creta Car gave out his name as Saurabh Tyagi, son of Mukesh Kumar Tyagi and from him and his driver was recovered five mobiles with various telephone numbers. The whatsapp chats from his mobile numbers were fed in a pen drive. A laptop was also recovered along with 3 pendrives. Not only that, Rs.20,00,000/- were also recovered. Also recovered, were 4 seals showing the names of the following firms :

- (i) Darshana Enterprises;
- (ii) S N Pharma
- (iii) R S Pharma
- (iv) the other seal was with regard to the above three firms and their proprietors.

12. Also was found in the bag of the accused Saurabh Tyagi a card showing that he was a citizen of United Arab Emirates and that he was working as an Archive Clerk at Ramada Plaza Deira Hotel at Dubai. There were other cards also available with the accused Saurabh Tyagi and they were with regard to one Sanjit Chakraborti. Matter did not end there. On a 100 Rupee stamp paper, an agreement with one Vanya Enterprises was also found. The arrested person i.e. Saurabh Tyagi informed the police authority that he was having connections with Pappan Yadav who had a firm called □Mederon Health Care□ and that he was dealing with the cough syrup. He also informed that the network with regard to the cough syrup was also having its tentacles in Varanasi where Shubham Jaiswal was dealing in the cough syrup illegitimately and he was sending those cough syrups to various destinations. He also told the police authorities as to how the fabricated bills were prepared and were used for the purposes of selling of the cough syrup for illegal purposes. The accused Saurabh Tyagi also ifnformed the police as to how the phones with fabricated IDs and SIM cards were used in the sale and purchase of the cough syrups. Information was also given as to how the e-way bills etc. were prepared for the other purposes but were used for the purposes of transporting the cough syrup.

13. Since information was received with regard to the carrying on of illegal trade of cough syrup in Varanasi, the police party informed the Varanasi police and there the FIR was lodged after certain raids etc. on 15.11.2025 against as many as 28 individuals and that had given rise to Case Crime No.0235 of 2025. Against the FIR filed at Varanasi, eight writ petitions were filed, the details of which have been already given in the very beginning. In the FIR which was lodged vis.-a-vis. Varanasi, it was essentially narrated in the FIR that one Shaily Traders of Ranchi, Jharkhand was transferring the cough syrup to as many as 38 firms and these 38 firms in their turn were selling/transferring the cough syrup to smaller distributors. The FIR which had given rise to Case Crime No.0235 of 2025 had also given the details of all the firms etc. and the articles which were apprehended from those firms. It had also stated as to how the articles were transferred to non-existent smaller retailers.

Also was mentioned the fact that the smaller retailers were quite often non-existent and that the cough syrup was thus clandestinely being transported to unknown destinations.

14. With regard to Jaunpur, FIR dated 21.11.2025 was lodged and that had given rise to Case Crime No.0354 of 2025. With regard to the cases at Jaunpur also, the FIRs indicated how the main contraband was taken from Shaily Traders, Jharkhand and thereafter transferred to as many as 12 firms and again thereafter given to smaller firms with doubtful credentials.

15. To the Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No.28628 of 2025 pertaining to district Jaunpur wherein the petitioner is Ankit Kumar Srivastava and to Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No.27953 of 2025 wherein the petitioner is Bhola Prasad, short counter affidavits have been filed by the learned Additional Advocate General on behalf of the State.

16. Learned counsel appearing for the petitioners has, in effect, submitted that in the cases at hand, FIRs were lodged under various sections of NDPS Act, BNS and Drugs and Cosmetics Act and that could not have been done in view of the judgments of this Court and that of the Supreme Court.

17. The FIR in the district of Sonbhadra was lodged under sections 318(4), 319(2) of BNS and sections 8 and 21 of NDPS Act. Similarly, FIR in the district of Basti was lodged under sections 276, 277, 278 318(4) of BNS. In S.R.Nagar it was lodged under sections 318(4), 338, 340(2), 206(b), 336(3) of BNS; In district Varanasi, two FIRs were lodged one as Case Crime No.0235 of 2025 under sections 26(D) of NDPS Act and the subsequently added sections 8,21 and 29 of NDPS Act and under sections 61(2), 338, 336(2) and 340(2) of BNS. The other FIR had given rise to Case Crime No.03433 of 2025 under sections 8, 21 and 25 of NDPS Act. In Kanpur Nagar also two FIRs were lodged; one as Case Crime No.0087 of 2025 under sections 132, 318(4), 336(3), 338, 340(2) of BNS and another as Case Crime No.0090 of 2025 under sections 340(2), 318(4), 336(3), 338 of BNS and sections 21(c) and 26 NDPS Act. In district Ghaziabad FIR was lodged as Case Crime No.691 of 2025 under sections 3(5), 318(4), 319(2), 336(3) of BNS and section 8, 22 and 29 of NDPS Act. In district Jaunpur, two FIRs one being Case Crime No.354 of 2025 under sections 318(4), 336(3), 338, 340(2), 61(2) of BNS and another as Case Crime No.357 of 2025 under sections 318(4), 336(3), 338, 340(2), 61(2) of BNS were lodged.

18. He submits that under the NDPS Act, there was, under section 8, a prohibition to certain operations. He, therefore, drew the attention of the Court to section 8 of NDPS Act and, therefore, the same is being reproduced as under :-

“8. Prohibition of certain operations.-No person shall□

(a) cultivate any coca plant or gather any portion of coca plant; or

(b) cultivate the opium poppy or any cannabis plant; or

(c) produce, manufacture, possess, sell, purchase, transport, warehouse, use, consume, import inter-State, export inter-State, import into India, export from India or tranship any narcotic drug or psychotropic substance,

except for medical or scientific purposes and in the manner and to the extent provided by the provisions of this Act or the rules or orders made thereunder and in a case where any such provision, imposes any requirement by way of licence, permit or authorisation also in accordance with the terms and conditions of such licence, permit or authorisation:

Provided that, and subject to the other provisions of this Act and the rules made thereunder, the prohibition against the cultivation of the cannabis plant for the production of ganja or the production, possession, use, consumption, purchase, sale, transport, warehousing, import inter-State and export inter-State of ganja for any purpose other than medical and scientific purpose shall take effect only from the date which the Central Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, specify in this behalf:

Provided further that nothing in this section shall apply to the export of poppy straw for decorative purposes.”

19. Since there is a prohibition under section 8(c) of the NDPS Act to produce, manufacture, possess, sell, purchase, transport, warehouse, use, consume, import inter-State, export inter-State, import into India, export from India or tranship any narcotic drug or psychotropic substance and further since there were certain exceptions made for the narcotic drug and psychotropic substances for being used for medicinal and scientific purposes after authorisation, he submitted that the articles which were under consideration i.e. the cough syrup

□Phensedyl□ which contained □codeine□, the case could not be covered under the NDPS Act. For this purpose, learned counsel for the petitioners also took the Court through the provisions of sections 2(xi), 2(xiv), 2(xvi) and 2(xxiii) of the NDPS Act which are being reproduced here as under :-

(xi) “manufactured drug” means-

(a) all coca derivatives, medicinal cannabis, opium derivatives and poppy straw concentrate;

(b) any other narcotic substance or preparation which the Central Government may, having regard to the available information as to its nature or to a decision, if any, under any International Convention, by notification in the Official Gazette, declare not to be a manufactured drug, but does not include any narcotic substance or preparation which the Central Government may, having regard to the available information as to its nature or to a decision, if any, under any International Convention, by notification in the Official Gazette, declare not to be a manufactured drug;

(xiv) □narcotic drug□ means coca leaf, cannabis (hemp), opium, poppy straw and includes all manufactured drugs;

□□..

(xvi) □opium derivative□ means□

(a) medicinal opium, that is, opium which has undergone the processes

necessary to adapt it for medicinal use in accordance with the requirements of the Indian Pharmacopoeia or any other pharmacopoeia notified in this behalf by the Central Government, whether in powder form or granulated or otherwise or mixed with neutral materials;

(b) prepared opium, that is, any product of opium obtained by any series of operations designed to transform opium into an extract suitable for smoking and the dross or other residue remaining after opium is smoked;

(c) phenanthrene alkaloids, namely, morphine, codeine, thebaine and their salts;

(d) diacetylmorphine, that is, the alkaloid also known as dia-morphine or heroin and its salts; and

(e) all preparations containing more than 0.2 per cent. of morphine or containing any diacetylmorphine;

(xxiii) □Psychotropic substance□ means any substance, natural or synthetic, or any natural material or any salt or preparation of such substance or material included in the list of psychotropic substances specified in the Schedule;

20. Since after 2014, the concept of essential narcotic drug was also introduced, learned counsel for the petitioners Sri Nipun Singh took the Court through section 2(viia) of the NDPS Act and the same is also being reproduced here as under :

(viiia) □essential narcotic drug□ means a narcotic drug notified by the

21. As per section 2(xi), □manufactured drug□ would mean only such drug which was covered under the definition of □manufactured drug□. He further submitted that such of those drug which the Central Government by notification in the Official Gazette had declared not to be a □manufactured drug□ would not come within the purview of the NDPS Act. He, thereafter submitted that under section 21 of the NDPS Act, if there is any contravention with relation to any manufactured drug and its preparation, then it was punishable under section 21 of the NDPS Act alone. Since, learned counsel for the petitioners relied upon section 21 of the NDPS Act, for showing the punishment which could have followed a conviction under the NDPS Act vis.-a-vis. □manufactured drug□, the same is being reproduced here as under :-

“21. Punishment for contravention in relation to manufactured drugs and preparations.-Whoever, in contravention of any provision of this Act or any rule or order made or condition of licence granted thereunder, manufactures, possesses, sells, purchases, transports, imports inter-State, exports inter-State or uses any manufactured drug or any preparation containing any manufactured drug shall be punishable,□

(a) where the contravention involves small quantity, with rigorous imprisonment for a term which may extend to 4[one year], or with fine which may extend to ten thousand rupees, or with both;

(b) where the contravention involves quantity, lesser than commercial quantity but greater than small quantity, with rigorous imprisonment for a term which may extend to ten years, and with fine which may extend to one lakh rupees;

(c) where the contravention involves commercial quantity, with rigorous imprisonment for a term which shall not be less than ten years but which may extend to twenty years, and shall also be liable to fine which shall not be less than one lakh rupees but which may extend to two lakh rupees:

Provided that the court may, for reasons to be recorded in the judgment, impose a fine exceeding two lakh rupees.□

22. Learned counsel for the petitioners relied upon a notification numbered as □S.O. 826(E) dated 14.11.1985 which was issued as per section 2(xi) of the NDPS Act and stated that if Codeine which had a scientific name as Methyl Morphine would be a □manufactured drug□ but would be excepted from being a □manufactured drug□ if it was compounded with one or more ingredients and was containing not more than 100 milligrams of the drug per dosage unit. Since, learned counsel for the petitioners relied upon Clause 35 of the Notification dated 14.11.1985, the same is being reproduced here as under :-

“35. Methyl morphine (commonly known as □Codeine□) and Ethyl morphine and their sales (including Dionine), all dilutions and preparations except those which are compounded with one or more other ingredients and containing not more than 100 milligrams of the drug per dosage unit and with a concentration not more than 2.5 percent in undivided preparations and which have been established in therapeutic practice.”

23. Learned counsel for the petitioners thereafter also relied upon a judgment of the Supreme Court in Ashok Kumar vs. Union of India : 2015 (2) ALJ 193 and submitted that since the cough syrup in question i.e. Phensedyl was having dilutions and preparations with other compounds and also since codeine was not more than 100 mg. per dosage, therefore, it was not a □manufactured drug□ and also would not attract the provisions of the NDPS Act. He further submitted that the petitioners in all the writ petitions had licenses under the Drugs and Cosmetics Act, 1940 and the rules framed thereunder and, therefore, he submitted that as per the judgment of the Supreme Court in Union of India vs. Ashok Kumar Sharma reported in (2021) 12 SCC 674 the offences which fell under Chapter IV of the Drugs and Cosmetics Act, 1940 could not be dealt with under the NDPS Act. He relied upon certain paragraphs of the judgment of the Supreme Court in Union of India vs. Ashok Kumar Sharma which had laid down that the Food Inspector alone was authorized to lodge a First Information Report and not any police officer and, therefore, no FIR could have been registered. Since, learned counsel for the petitioners relied upon paragraph nos.158, 158(1), 159, 160, 161, 162, 163, 164, 165, 166, 167, 168 of the judgment, the same are being reproduced here as under :

“158. There is another aspect which may have an important bearing on the issue. Under Section 36-AC of the Act, the offences as mentioned therein which include some of the offences under Chapter IV of the Act are declared cognizable and non-bailable. The provision imposes restriction on the arrested person being released on bail or on his own bond unless the Public Prosecutor has been given an opportunity to oppose the application and when the Public Prosecutor opposes the application, the court is to be satisfied that there are reasonable grounds for believing that the accused person is not guilty of such offence and that he is not likely to commit an offence. This limitation, is apart from the limitations in CrPC, inter alia. Now, the police officer acting under CrPC even proceeding for a moment on the basis that it is sufficient that a mere memorandum of arrest as required under CrPC is prepared and further there is compliance with other provisions of CrPC also, would it suffice is the question that would arise in the following manner? We have noted from the provisions of the Act and the Rules that it is the Drugs Inspector who is empowered and duty-bound to investigate the complaint about violations of Acts and Rules. He is the person charged with a duty of prosecuting the offenders. If the police officer is merely to be granted a power of arrest and without having any power of investigation then how would it be possible for the police officer to make any investigation under the Act and if no investigation is possible, how would the police officer be in a position to be of any assistance to the Public Prosecutor and, therefore, to the court in the disposal of an application for bail? In other words, it would be based on the records of investigation and material collected by the investigating officer that a court in a case would decide as to whether bail is to be granted or not. How would the police officer seek a remand for carrying out investigation which he cannot do? If the Act and the Rules do not contemplate investigation by a police officer, then, conferring the power of arrest on the police officer, would, in fact, frustrate the working of the Act. On the other hand, if it is the Drugs Inspector who can arrest, the following consequences would follow:

158.1 He has the requisite technical qualifications to properly investigate and prosecute the offender.

159. Declaring the power to arrest with the Inspector, is not to be understood as proclaiming that the Inspector is bound to arrest any person. The provisions of CrPC, relating to arrest, would necessarily have to be followed by the Drugs Inspector. In fact, he is obliged to bear in mind the law, as declared by this Court in D.K. Basu, and the peril of defying the same, would be to invite consequences, inter alia, as are provided therein. As far as the arrest, not being mentioned in Section 34-AA, as forming a ground for visiting the delinquent officer with penalty, it may be noticed that there is a residuary power in Section 34-AA and it would cover any act. We notice that Section 34-AA(d) provides that if any Inspector, exercising powers under the Act or the Rules made thereunder, commits, as such Inspector, any other act, to the injury of any person without having reason to believe that such act is required for the execution of his duty, he shall be punishable with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees.

160. Regarding the power for seeking and ordering a remand under Section 167, we would apply the principles laid down by this Court in Deepak Mahajan and the same principles would apply.

161. This process of interpretation would produce the result of harmonising two seemingly irreconcilable commands from the law-giver. This interpretation commends itself to us for the reason that the investigation into offences, under Chapter IV of the Act, would commence, be carried out and would culminate in, in the safe hands of the competent and qualified statutory authority, as designated by law.

It would also avoid an outside agency like a police officer, being obliged to register an FIR, for the reason that where arrest has to be made, an FIR is to be registered, and, when the registering of the FIR carries with it an unattainable object of preferring a final report under Section 173 CPC, as far as the police officer is concerned. We make it clear that if a police officer is approached with regard to a complaint regarding commission of an offence falling under Chapter IV of the Act, he is not to register an FIR unless it be that a cognizable offence, other than an offence falling under Chapter IV of the Act, is also made out.

He must make over the complaint to the competent Drugs Inspector so that action in accordance with law is immediately taken where only offences under Chapter IV are made out.

162. As far as the arrest contemplated under Section 41 CrPC is concerned, in case a cognizable offence, falling under Chapter IV of the Act, is committed, either in the presence of the Drugs Inspector, or in respect of which offence, a police officer would have power to arrest, as provided therein viz. covered by the situations contemplated under Section 41(ba), the Drugs Inspector would be entitled to effect the arrest. We are arriving at this conclusion on the basis that since the procedure under CrPC is to be read as applicable, except to the extent that a different procedure is to be provided under the Act, and since there is no procedure or power otherwise provided in the Act in regard to arrest, the powers and procedure available to a police officer, with the limitations on the said power, as laid down in D.K. Basu, as also as contained in CrPC, would be applicable.

163. By way of following Deepak Mahajan, we hold that the Drugs Inspector, under the Act, is invested with certain powers similar to a police officer. Still further, we would hold that the word "investigation" cannot be limited only to a police investigation, as has been noted in Deepak Mahajan. Thirdly, we find that the power to arrest a person must indeed flow from the provisions of a statute. The statutory provision under the Act is Section 22(1)(d). The arrested person, under the Act, would be an accused person to be detained under Section 167 (2) CrPC. No doubt, the police officer is bound to provide assistance to the Inspector in case of need to effectuate the arrest where there is resistance or likelihood of resistance. No doubt, in regard to the arrest in relation to offences falling under Chapter IV of the Act, which do not fall under Section 36-AC, the power of arrest would depend upon the provision in the Schedule to CrPC.

164. We again reiterate that the existence of the power to arrest with the Drugs Inspector is not to be understood as opening the doors to making illegal, unauthorised or unnecessary arrest. Every power comes with responsibility. In view of the impact of an arrest, the highest care must be taken to exercise the same strictly as per the law.

The power of arrest must be exercised, recognising the source of his authority, to be Section 22(1)(d) of the Act, which is for carrying out the purpose of Chapter IV of the Act or any Rules made thereunder.

165. Section 33-P of the Act, reads as follows:

"33-P. Power to give directions.- The Central Government may give such directions to any State Government as may appear to the Central Government to be necessary for carrying into execution in the State any of the provisions of this Act or of any Rule or Order made thereunder."

We notice that the Central Government is conferred with powers to give directions to the State Government for the purpose of carrying into execution, in the State, any of the provisions of the Act or any Rule or Order made thereunder. It is for the Central Government to consider the question whether it can, under the said provision, issue directions in regard to the power of arrest, which we have found, subject to what we have stated in this judgment.

166. Further, Section 58 CrPC provides that the officers-in-charge of police stations are to report cases of all persons arrested without warrant as provided therein. We make it clear that the Drugs Inspector must, apart from other relevant provisions of CrPC, comply with the requirement of reporting. In view of the need to safeguard the interest of persons, who may be proceeded against by the Drugs Inspector, we also hold and direct that the Drugs Inspector will immediately, after arrest, make a report of the arrest to his superior officer.

167. It has been brought to our notice that FIRs have been filed in regard to offences under Chapter IV of the Act. In the view we have taken, no further investigation can be done by the police officer.

However, it is in the interest of justice that the FIRs are made over by the police officers to the Drugs Inspector concerned at the earliest. We are persuaded to issue such directions in the exercise of our powers under Article 142 of the Constitution of India.

168. It would appear that on an understanding of the provisions, arrests would have been effected by police officers in regard to the cognizable offences under Chapter IV of the Act. Having regard to the fact that we are resolving this controversy on a conspectus of the various provisions of the Act and CrPC, we are inclined to direct that this judgment, holding that police officers do not have power to arrest in regard to cognizable offences under Chapter IV of the Act, is to operate from the date of this judgment. □"

24. Learned counsel for the petitioners next submitted that in most of the cases, the Food Inspector or the Excise Inspector (informers) had lodged the FIRs under various sections of BNS. He submits that as per section 2 of the Drugs and Cosmetics Act, 1940, the provisions of the Act would be in addition to, and not in derogation of, the Dangerous Drugs Act, 1930 and/or of any other law for the time being in force. He, therefore, submitted that the FIR which had mentioned other sections of other enactments was a malicious exercise on the part of the informers and thus the FIRs be quashed. Learned counsel for the petitioners thereafter relied upon the judgment of this Court in Vibhor Rana vs. Union of India :

2021 SCC OnLine All 908 and submitted that since the composition of the drug Phensedyl cough syrup was covered under Clause 35 of the Notification dated 14.11.1985, the syrup was not a narcotic drug and any dealing in this drug would not be subjected to the provisions of the NDPS Act. He further submitted that the lodging of the FIR under the other sections of the BNS was a malicious exercise which ought not to have been done. Learned counsel for the petitioners relying upon the two notifications of the Drug Controller General of India dated 26.10.2005 and 1.3.2009 further had submitted that the Drug Controller General of India had also in so many words by these notifications stated that for medicines which were using codeine as an ingredient and were not covered by the Entry 35 of the Notification of the Government of India dated 14.11.1985 then the prosecution under the NDPS Act could not be done. Learned counsel for the petitioners also submitted that if the account registers etc. were not being maintained, the case would only fall under the various provisions of the Drugs and Cosmetics Act, 1940.

25. Learned counsel for the petitioners also relied upon a judgment of the Supreme Court in State of Jharkhand vs. Dr. Nishkant Dubey & Ors. (Criminal Appeal No.5476 of 2024 decided on 21.1.2025) and submitted that in that case, the Court had held that when a particular Act had provided a particular method by which the case had to be dealt with then it should be dealt with by the provisions of that Act alone. Learned counsel for the petitioners further relied upon Rule 97 of the Drug Rules, 1945 and stated that as per Rule 97(e), the phensedyl drug was containing the label of "Rx" and that meant that there was no narcotic substance in the medicine. He also relied upon Rule 97(f) to state that if the narcotic drug or psychotropic substance was substantially there then the "NRx" would have been written. He, therefore, submitted that when there was no narcotic drug in the medicine then the NDPS Act definitely ought not to have been applied. He further submitted that at various points of time, the State Government has been trying to regulate the flow of the medicines but whenever it tried to do so, orders were stayed by this Court. He submits that when the Government Order dated 15.8.2022 was issued by the officials of the State Government then on 15.2.2023, the High Court stayed the same. Further when on 21.12.2023 again the State Government tried to interfere in the domain of the Central Government then the High Court stayed the same on 15.3.2024.

26. Sri Imran Ibrahim who appeared for one of the petitioners has also made submissions relying upon section 17 of the BNS and stated that a person was justified to do an act he could legally do and by mistake he had committed some crime then it would be considered that he did the act in good faith.

27. Learned Additional Advocate General Sri Anoop Trivedi on behalf of the State assisted by Sri Pankaj Saxena and Sri Paritosh Malviya, learned Additional Government Advocates has submitted that the FIR is not an encyclopedia of all the occurrences. He submitted that the investigation was going on and that various wrong deeds of the petitioners had been unearthed. He has submitted that the FIR were lodged under various sections of BNS and NDPS Act and vis.-a-vis. them the investigation was going on and as and when the offences committed by the petitioners were discovered, sections were being added for the purpose of the investigation.

28. In the counter affidavit which he had filed in Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No.27953 of 2025 and 28628 of 2025, there are certain paragraphs which were relied upon by the learned Additional Advocate General and as per him were of great importance for the decision of the case. In Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No.27953 of 2025, learned Additional Advocate General relied upon paragraph nos.17 to 20 of the short counter affidavit and, therefore, they are being reproduced here as under :-

“17. That it is also relevant to mention that this Hon'ble Court vide its order dated 11.12.2025 passed in Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No. 28638 of 2025 (Nilesh Kumar Srivastava Versus State of U.P. and others) pleaded to dismiss the writ petition after hearing the case on merits. A copy of order dated 11.12.2025 passed in Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No. 28638 of 2025 (Nilesh Kumar Srivastava Versus State of U.P. and others) is being annexed as Annexure-4 to this affidavit

18. That for kind perusal of this Hon'ble Court, a flow chart of illegal trade of Codein base cough syrup, which clearly shows that how sham and fraudulent transportation had been made from M/s Shailey Traders to 38 Firms (Layer-1) of District Varanasi and subsequently transported to other Firms of District Varanasi. A large conspiracy has been made in illegal trade of Codein base cough syrup for the use as Narcotic Drugs. A copy of flow chart is being annexed as Annexure-5 to this affidavit.

19. That it is pertinent to mention that huge recovery of Codein base cough syrup has been made by the Police in Commissionerate Varanasi and case crime no. 343 of 2025 under section 8/21/25 NDPS Act, Police Station Rohaniya, Commissionerate Varanasi and case crime no. 313 of 2025 under section 8/21/22/29 NDPS Act Police Station Ramnagar, Commissionerate Varanasi has been registered and investigation is going on. An entry to this effect has been made in C.D. No. 20 dated 11.12.2025. A Copy of FIRs of case crime no. 343 of 2025 and case crime no. 313 of 2025 as well as copy of C.D. No. 20 dated 11.12.2025 are being herewith and marked annexed as Annexure-6 to this affidavit respectively.

20. That during investigation Section 8/21/29 NDPS Act as well as Section 61(2), 338, 336(3), 340(2), 318(4) BNS has been added. An entry to this effect has been Court made in C.D. No. 6 and 15 dated 30.11.2025 and 18.12.2025.”

29. In Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No.28628 of 2025, paragraphs, as per the learned Additional Advocate General, which were of importance, were paragraph nos.17 to 25 and they are being reproduced here as under:-

“17. That it is also relevant to mention that this Hon'ble Court vide its order dated 11.12.2025 passed in Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No. 28638 of 2025 (Nilesh Kumar Srivastava Versus State of U.P. and others) pleaded to dismiss the writ petition after hearing the case on merits. A copy of order dated 11.12.2025 passed in Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No. 28638 of 2025 (Nilesh Kumar Srivastava Versus State of U.P. and others) is being annexed as Annexure-4 to this affidavit

18. That for kind perusal of this Hon'ble Court, a flow chart of illegal trade of Codein base cough syrup which clearly shows that how a large conspiracy has been made to illegal trade and use a Narcotic Drug. A copy of flow chart is being annexed as Annexure-5 to this affidavit.

19. That during the course of investigation, the investigating officer also investigated the transportation of alleged trade of Codein base cough syrup, at primarily stage, it has been found that no transportation of Codein base cough syrup has been made from District Ranchi (Jharkhand) to District Jaunpur.

20. That it is stated that during investigation the documents furnished by the Firm in B Layer to the Drug Inspector were analyzed and spot inspection were conducted. It was found that at the address of Kedar Medical Agency, a Hotel is being run. At the address of M/s Shakashya Firm there is one residential house and there is no medical store. As far as Shree Medical is concerned, no such medical store is found in the address given, however, the investigating officer recorded the statement of landlord who has confirmed that no medical establishment is situated in this place nor in the vicinity.

21. That it is stated that the reviewing a Firm of Layer B have been found a small closed room and upon verification from the neighbours, it reveals those rooms never get open and no business is conducted ever.

22. That it is stated that documents furnished to Drug Inspector have been found to manufactured and forged.

23. That it is stated that upon further verification of aforesaid forged documents very shocking revelation came to know that these 12 Firms in B-Layer has allegedly sold the drugs, in question to 15 Firms, situated in 7 different districts. Upon physical verification it was found that almost all the Firms in C-Layer are absolutely not existence and as such it is established that the documents showing the sell to from these Firms to B-Layer Firms are forged and manufactured. Surprisingly two of the Firm in the B-Layer are also in existence in C-Layer, meaning thereby the Firms have again purchased the drug in question from other B-Layer Firms.

24. That it is stated that so far as documents pertaining to transportation from State of Jharkhand to District Jaunpur, a team of Police visited Jharkhand and investigated the owner of some Trucks and found that those Trucks have never gone to Jaunpur, in this regard a deep investigation is going on.

25. That it is stated that not only the investigating officer has found that almost all the Firms in C-Layer are the end Firms in district Ghazipur, Varanasi, Kanpur etc. the investigation in different districts in respect of such sale and purchase is required to be co-related.□

30. Learned Additional Advocate General during the course of arguments relying upon the judgment of the Supreme Court in Directorate of Revenue Intelligence vs. Raj Kumar Arora & Ors [Criminal Appeal No.1319 of 2013 decided on 17.4.2025] submitted that an offence under section 8(C) of the NDPS Act could have been said to be made out even when the accused was dealing with the psychotropic substances mentioned in the Schedule of the NDPS Act which were not figuring in the Schedule-I of the Rules thereunder. Learned Additional Advocate General submitted that in the judgment of Directorate of Revenue Intelligence (supra) a specific question was framed to that effect which was as under :-

“i. Whether an offence under Section 8(c) could be said to have been made out when an accused □ deals with □ psychotropic substances mentioned in the Schedule to the NDPS Act but not figuring in Schedule I of the Rules thereunder. □

31. He submits that in paragraph nos.53 to 56 of the above judgment, the answer had been given and therefore, paragraph nos.53 to 56 are being reproduced here as under :

“53. Section 8 of the NDPS Act prohibits certain operations and reads as thus:

8. Prohibition of certain operations. - No person shall-

(a) cultivate any coca plant or gather any portion of coca plant; or

(b) cultivate the opium poppy or any cannabis plant; or

(c) produce, manufacture, possess, sell, purchase, transport, warehouse, use, consume, import inter-State, export inter-State, import into India, export from India or tranship any narcotic drug or psychotropic substance,

except for medical or scientific purposes and in the manner and to the extent provided by the provisions of this Act or the rules or orders made thereunder and in a case where any such provision, imposes any requirement by way of licence, permit or authorisation also in accordance with the terms and conditions of such licence, permit or authorisation:

Provided that, and subject to the other provisions of this Act and the rules made thereunder, the prohibition against the cultivation of the cannabis plant for the production of ganja or the production, possession, use, consumption, purchase, sale, transport, warehousing, import inter-State and export inter-State of ganja for any purpose other than medical and scientific purpose shall take effect only from the date which the Central Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, specify in this behalf:

Provided further that nothing in this section shall apply to the export of poppy straw for decorative purposes.

54. The mandate under Section 8 is that no person shall produce, manufacture, possess, sell, purchase, transport, warehouse, use, consume, import inter-State, export inter-State, import into India, export from India or tranship (hereinafter collectively referred to as □ deal in/dealing in □) any narcotic drug or psychotropic substance, except for medical or scientific purposes and in the manner and to the extent provided by the provisions of this Act or the rules or orders made thereunder. In a case where any such provision imposes any requirement by way of licence, permit or authorisation, the narcotic drugs and psychotropic substances must also be dealt in accordance with the terms and conditions of such licence, permit or authorisation. The term □ psychotropic substance □ mentioned in Section 8 must be seen in light of Section 2(xxiii) which refers to the Schedule to the Act and all the psychotropic substances mentioned therein. Additionally, to bring a case within the exception carved out under Section 8, each of the conditions specified therein must be satisfied. In other words, for the accused to take the plea that his dealing in the narcotic drug or psychotropic substance does not constitute an offence under Section 8, it must be proved that the drug or substance was being dealt with (a) for medical or scientific purposes AND; (b) in the manner and to the extent provided by the provisions of the NDPS Act or the NDPS Rules or the orders made thereunder AND; (c) in accordance with the terms and conditions of the licence, permit or authorisation, if any.

55. It is just not enough to prove or establish that the narcotic drug or psychotropic substance is capable of being used for a medical or scientific purpose. That would give unnecessary leeway to persons to indiscriminately deal with narcotic drugs and psychotropic substances under the garb that they could also be potentially used for medical or scientific purposes. Moreover, several of these drugs and substances are inherently of such a nature that they have widespread medicinal and scientific applications. Therefore, an expansive interpretation of the exception that the mere potential for usage of the narcotic drug or psychotropic substance, for medical or scientific purpose, is sufficient would run counter to the object of the Act which seeks to act as a deterrent to the widespread dealing in narcotic drugs and psychotropic substances. What must, therefore, be proved to take the benefit of the exception is that the narcotic drug or psychotropic substances was being dealt in for a specified and real medical or scientific purpose, in the manner and to the extent provided by the provisions of the Act, the rules and orders made thereunder and, in case such provisions imposes any requirement by way of licence, permit or authorisation, in accordance with the terms and conditions of such licence, permit or authorisation.

56. Therefore, if any psychotropic substance mentioned in the Schedule to the Act is being dealt with for a purpose other than medical or scientific purposes, an offence under Section 8(c) of the NDPS Act would be made out. Furthermore, if any psychotropic substance mentioned in the Schedule to the Act is being dealt with for a medical or scientific purpose, but not in accordance with other provisions of the Act, rules, orders or, the terms and conditions of the licence, permit or authorisations, if any, then also, an offence under Section 8(c) of the NDPS Act could be said to have been made out. It is only when the exception is complied with entirely or wholly, that an accused can lay claim to the benefit provided under the said provision.”

32. Learned Additional Advocate General thereafter relying upon that very judgment submitted that if the quantity as it was in this case, was very large and it did not appeal to reason as to why such a huge quantity was being dealt with specially when there was a notification of the Commissioner Food Safety and Drugs dated 15.8.2022 which had provided as to how much of a codeine based cough syrup could be used by the CNF agent, the wholeseller and retailer. Since, learned Additional Advocate General relied upon the Notification dated 15.8.2022, the relevant portion of it is being reproduced here as under :

कार्यालय ज्ञाप

स्वापक एवं मनः प्रभावी पदार्थों का उपयोग औषधियों के रूप में किया जाता है जिनकी उपलब्धता जनसामान्य के उपयोग के लिए आवश्यक होता है। परन्तु, कतिपय व्यक्तियों/फर्मों द्वारा निहित स्वार्थों एवं धन कमाने की लालच में स्वापक एवं मनः प्रभावी औषधियों का दुरुपयोग नशे के रूप में किया जाता है। इस प्रकार के औषधियों का दुरुपयोग प्रायः कम उम्र के बच्चों द्वारा करने के कारण उनके स्वास्थ्य एवं मन पर बुरा प्रभाव पड़ता है और सामाजिक कुरीतियों को बढ़ावा मिलता है। जनपद स्तर पर किये जा रहे प्रवर्तन कार्यों एवं हाल ही में पकड़े गये अवैध स्वापक एवं मनः प्रभावी औषधियों से यह स्पष्ट होता है कि कतिपय औषधि विक्रेताओं द्वारा उक्त औषधियों का अत्यधिक मात्रा में भण्डारण एवं बिक्री अवैध ढंग से किया जा रहा है, जबकि मरीजों के लिए वास्तविक खपत काफी कम है। विभिन्न स्रोतों से संकलित किये गये सूचनाओं एवं प्रवर्तन के समय अभिरक्षा में लिये गये स्वापक एवं मनः प्रभावी औषधियों पर सम्यक विचारोपरान्त यह निष्कर्ष मिलता है कि स्वापक एवं मनः प्रभावी औषधियों के दुरुपयोग को रोकने के लिए व्यापक जनहित में विभिन्न प्रतिष्ठानों में इनके भण्डार एवं बिलिंग की अधिकतम सीमा निर्धारित किया जाये।

अतः सम्यक विचारोपरान्त औषधि नियमावली, 1945 के नियम 51 एवं 52 के अन्तर्गत समस्त औषधि निरीक्षकों को निर्देशित किया जाता है कि निम्न तालिका के स्तम्भ-2 में अंकित औषधियों के भण्डारण एवं बिलिंग की अधिकतम सीमा तालिका

के स्तम्भ-3, 4 व 5 में अंकित विवरण के अनुसार सुनिश्चित करें-

तद्दिनांक,

33. Learned Additional Advocate General stated that even though this notification had been stayed by the High Court but one can guess the enormity of the matter. He states that when only one bottle could have been given on prescription then it does not stand to reason that lakhs of bottles had been found missing after they left the main source i.e. Ranchi. Learned Additional Advocate General also passed on in a sealed cover a communication of the Food Safety and Drug Administration, Uttar Pradesh which indicated that in Varanasi alone 2,23,92,311 bottles were recovered. It may be kept as a part of the record. He, therefore, submitted that even if notification has been stayed, the enormity of the activities of the accused persons could be gaged.

34. Learned Additional Advocate General, therefore, submitted that looking at the enormity of the entire racket which was prevailing in the entire State and thereafter also in all the neighbouring States namely the State of West Bengal, Bihar, Jharkhand and Tripura, it could with confidence be said that the chemical codeine which was an ingredient of the cough syrup was not being used for medicinal or scientific purposes. He, therefore, submitted that as per the above judgment of the Supreme Court in Directorate of Revenue Intelligence (supra), it could not be said that if codeine based cough syrup was being dealt with then the case should be dealt with only under the Drugs and Cosmetics Act but it would also be dealt with under the NDPS Act and other laws of the land. Learned Additional Advocate General, therefore, relied upon paragraph no.90 of the above judgment and the same is being reproduced here as under :-

“90. On a conspectus of the foregoing discussion on the scheme of the NDPS Act and its rules along with the D&C Act and the rules made thereunder, the position of law can be succinctly stated as follows:

i. A bare reading of Section 2(xxiii) of the NDPS Act defining a “psychotropic substance” would indicate that all the items listed in the Schedule to the Act along with its salts and preparations fall within the purview of “psychotropic substance”. The term “psychotropic substance” mentioned in Section 8 must be seen & understood in light of Section 2(xxiii) which refers to the Schedule to the Act and all the psychotropic substances mentioned therein.

ii. Section 8(c) while prohibiting the “dealing in” of all psychotropic substances mentioned under the Schedule to the Act, carves out an exception i.e., provides for a situation wherein the dealing in of psychotropic substances would not amount to an offence. However, those conditions forming part of the exception carved out under Section 8 must be read conjointly and not individually. In other words, for the accused to take the plea that his dealing in the narcotic drug or psychotropic substance does not constitute an offence under Section 8, it must be proved that the drug or substance was being dealt with (a) for medical or scientific purposes AND; (b) in the manner and to the extent provided by the provisions of the NDPS Act or the NDPS Rules or the orders made thereunder AND; (c) in accordance with the terms and conditions of the licence, permit or authorisation, if any, required under the provisions of the NDPS Act or the NDPS Rules or the orders made thereunder.

iii. The NDPS Rules, 1985 have been brought into being by the Central Government in exercise of the powers under Sections 9 and 76 of the NDPS Act, respectively. The underlying object of the NDPS rules is to “permit and regulate” certain activities for carrying out the purposes of the NDPS Act and not to “prohibit” those activities. The NDPS rules must not be understood as laying down standards different from or inconsistent with the substantive provisions of the NDPS Act, especially Section 8 and the Schedule to the NDPS Act.

iv. Chapter VI of the NDPS Rules, inter alia, states that the import into and export out of India of all psychotropic substances, including those only mentioned under the Schedule to the Act, must be accompanied by a valid import certificate and export authorisation. However, the import and export of substances enumerated in Schedule I of the Rules is restricted to a pre-determined set of purposes as explained under Chapter VIIA, irrespective of having obtained an import certificate or export authorisation under the other rules of this Chapter.

v. Chapter VII indicates that the manufacture of all psychotropic substances, including those mentioned only under the Schedule to the Act must be in accordance with the conditions of licence issued under the D&C Rules. Despite there being a general rule absolutely prohibiting the manufacture, possession, transport, import inter-State, export inter-State, sale, purchase, consumption or use of any of the psychotropic substances which find mention in Schedule I appended to the Rules, still the above activities can be done vis-à-vis the substances mentioned in Schedule I appended to the Rules, provided such activities are in accordance with other provisions of the Chapter which generally apply to all psychotropic substances, and for the limited purposes mentioned under Chapter VIIA.

vi. The manufacture of all psychotropic substances mentioned under the Schedule to the Act, and those mentioned under Schedule I of the Rules (provided they are manufactured only for the purposes elaborated under Chapter VIIA), in violation of the conditions of licence of manufacture issued under the D&C Act and its rules would amount to a contravention of Rule 65 of the NDPS Rules and thereby Section 8 of the NDPS Act itself. In other words, due to the operation of Rule 65, a violation of the condition of licence under the D&C Act read with its Rules would ipso facto tantamount to a violation of the NDPS Act read with its Rules.

vii. Furthermore, no person shall possess any psychotropic substance, including those mentioned only under the Schedule to the Act for any of the purposes covered by the D&C Rules, unless he is lawfully authorised to possess such substance for any of the said purposes under the NDPS rules. Therefore, Schedule I substances can be possessed only for the purposes mentioned under Chapter VIIA. All other substances mentioned only under the Schedule to the Act can be possessed for the purposes mentioned under Chapter VIIA and also for the purposes falling under the broad umbrella of "medical or scientific purposes" as mentioned under Section 8 of the NDPS Act. The above is in addition to the fulfilment of the requirements under the D&C Rules.

viii. The underlying idea that resonates throughout the NDPS rules is that dealing in any of the psychotropic substances mentioned under Schedule I of the NDPS Rules must strictly be in accordance with the NDPS Rules AND ONLY for the purposes enumerated under Chapter VIIA of the NDPS Rules. The substances not figuring under Schedule I of the Rules but listed in the Schedule to the Act must also abide by the requirements cast upon by the NDPS Rules. The difference as regards these substances, however, is that while they may be dealt with for the purposes enumerated under Chapter VIIA of the NDPS Rules, they can also be dealt with for other "medical and scientific purposes". Whether the accused has dealt with it within the confines of the expression "medical or scientific purposes" would be determined on the facts and circumstances of each case.

ix. Therefore, the substances under Schedule I to the Rules are more strictly restricted and the remaining psychotropic substances under the Schedule to the Act are more leniently restricted. The different levels in restriction could be seen as the primary reason behind providing two different schedules, i.e., one under the Act and another under the Rules.

x. Several decisions of this Court including Hussain (supra), Ouseph alias Thankachan (supra), Ravindran alias John (supra), Sanjay Kumar Kedia (supra), D. Ramakrishnan (supra) and Sanjeev V. Deshpande (supra) have held that an offence under Section 8 of the NDPS Act can be made out even in respect of substances only mentioned under the Schedule to the NDPS Act and absent under Schedule I of the NDPS Rules. The outlier amongst these decisions was Rajesh Kumar Gupta (supra) which was subsequently overruled in Sanjeev V. Deshpande (supra).

xi. To say that no offence would be made out in a case where an accused deals with a substance mentioned only under the Schedule to the Act, would have the consequence of rendering the entire

xii. Rajesh Kumar Gupta (supra) assumed that the prohibitory power could only be traced to Rules 53 and 64 of the NDPS Rules respectively, and stated that Rules 53 and 64 of the NDPS Rules respectively, were a genus and the other rules following in their respective Chapters were species thereof. Therefore, since Rules 53 and 64 respectively, only related to the substances listed under Schedule I of the Rules, it was held that the dealing in of substances not finding a mention in Schedule I of the Rules and only listed under the Schedule to the Act, would be unregulated by the Rules and thus, would not amount to an offence under Section 8(c).

xiii. On the other hand, Sanjeev V. Deshpande (supra) overruled Rajesh Kumar Gupta (supra) by explaining that it is Section 8(c) of the NDPS Act which prohibits various activities with respect to psychotropic substances and the source of this prohibitory power cannot be attributed to Rules 53 and 64 respectively. Rules 53 and 64 are in the nature of an exception to the general scheme of the NDPS Rules. While Rules 53 and 64 state that the substances under Schedule I of the Rules cannot be dealt with in any manner, the other substances i.e., those mentioned under the Schedule to the Act, are also regulated under the other rules in the respective Chapters of the NDPS Rules.

xiv. However, what we understand as also being the essence of the scheme of the NDPS Rules is that, it does not absolutely prohibit the dealing in of the substances mentioned under Schedule I of the Rules as held in Sanjeev V. Deshpande

xv. Section 80 states that the provisions of the NDPS Act or the Rules made thereunder shall be in addition to, and not in derogation of the D&C Act and the Rules made thereunder. Therefore, when an offence under the D&C Act is made out or can potentially be made out, the accused can also be charged or prosecuted for an offence under the NDPS Act or vice-versa. The object sought to be achieved under both the legislations is also distinct i.e. the NDPS Act is a special law enacted to regulate the operations relating to narcotic drugs and psychotropic substances with a view to curb and penalise the usage of drugs by persons for intoxication etc., whereas the D&C Act was enacted to prevent substandard, adulterated and spurious drugs from entering the medical market and to maintain high standards in medical treatment. Hence, offences under both the enactments can also be said to have been constituted simultaneously, where the circumstances so require.

ii. Whether the decision in Sanjeev V. Deshpande (supra) should operate with prospective effect?

a. An overruling decision generally operates retrospectively. □

35. Still further, learned Additional Advocate General relying upon paragraphs 156 to 163 of the above judgment submitted that the NDPS Act would come into operation when codeine was being used in such a vast and enormous quantity. He submits that looking into the enormity of the matter, the case had to be investigated into under all the sections of the various Acts under which the FIRs were lodged. Learned Additional Advocate General in this regard also relied upon the judgments of the Supreme Court in Md. Sahabuddin & Ors. vs. State of Assam : 2012 (119) AIC 45; Union of India vs. Sanjeev V. Deshpande : AIR 2014 SC 3625; Hira Singh & Ors. vs. Union of India & Ors. : AIR 2020 SC 3255; and State of Punjab vs. Rakesh Kumar : AIR 2019 SC 84.

36. Learned Additional Advocate General also relying upon the judgments of Supreme Court in Neeharika Infrastructure Pvt. Ltd. vs. State of Maharashtra : AIR 2021 SC 1918; State of Andhra Pradesh vs. Golconda Linga Swamy : (2004) 6 SCC 522; Supriya Jain vs. State of Haryana : (2023) 7 SCC 711; Parbatbhai Aahir & Ors. vs. State of Gujarat : (2017) 9 SCC 641; Rajesh Bajaj vs. State of NCT of Delhi : (1999) 3 SCC 259; Central Bureau of Investigation vs. Thommandru Hannah Vijayalakshmi : (2021) 18 SCC 135; S.M. Datta vs. State of Gujarat : (2001) 7 SCC 659; Somjeet Mallick vs. State of Jharkhand : (2024) 10 SCC 527; State by the Inspector of Police vs. M. Maridoss & Anr. : (2023) 4 SCC 338; Commissioner of Central Excise, Chandigarh-I vs. Mahaan Dairies : (2004) 11 SCC 798 and Principal Commissioner of Income Tax III-Bangalore vs. M/s. Wipro Limited : (2023) 15 SCC 455 submitted that if a cognizable case was made out from the reading of the FIR then no interference was warranted in the writ petition.

37. He then further submitted that if the FIR upon the investigation was found to be such in which the investigation was imperative and a cognizable case was made out then no interference was warranted in the writ petition. In the instant case, he has submitted that a large number of cough syrup phensedyl having the chemical codeine was being dealt with by various petitioners as stockists and sub-stockists and that the manufactured articles were being brought from the State of Jharkhand into the State of Uttar Pradesh and various fraudulent documentation had been created by various drug dealers across the State. He submits that e-way bills were such that the transportation was being done of snacks and chips but in fact the bottles containing the cough syrup were being transported. He further submitted that persons who were dealing with the transferring of the cough syrup were having fabricated IDs and were also having telephone numbers/SIM cards on the basis of fake IDs. He has further submitted that the State-wide racket was unearthed and that 128 FIRs, if not more, had been got registered. He submitted relying upon the judgment of the Supreme Court in Directorate of Revenue Intelligence (supra) that even licencees who were having licenses under the Drugs and Cosmetics Act, 1940, the accused persons had to be investigated vis.-a-vis. their roles in the preparations of the fabricated documents and their roles in the carrying of phensedyl bottles illegally from Ranchi, Jharkhand to the State of Uttar Pradesh and thereafter also to West Bengal and thereafter to Bangladesh. He states that the petitioners in almost all the cases were named in the FIR, the investigation is in progress and that any interference at this stage would be a great hurdle in the progress of investigation. He submits that if interference in the writ petition is done then there would also be a danger of the loss of evidence etc. Learned Additional Advocate General relied upon the judgment of the Supreme Court in State of Haryana and others vs. Bhajan Lal and others, 1992 Supp. (1) SCC 335 and M/s Neeharika Infrastructure Pvt. Ltd. vs. State of Maharashtra, AIR 2021 SC 1918 for bolstering his argument with regard to non-interference by this Court.

38. In State of Haryana & Ors. vs. Bhajan Lal & Ors., the Supreme Court has held :

"102. In the backdrop of the interpretation of the various relevant provisions of the Code under Chapter XIV and of the principles of law enunciated by this Court in a series of decisions relating to the exercise of the extraordinary power under Article 226 or the inherent powers under Section 482 of the Code which we have extracted and reproduced above, we have given the following categories of cases by way of illustration wherein such power could be exercised either to prevent abuse of the process of any court or otherwise to secure the ends of justice, though it may not be possible to lay down any precise, clearly defined and sufficiently channelised and inflexible guidelines or rigid formulae and to give an exhaustive list of myriad kinds of cases wherein such power should be exercised.

(1) Where the allegations made in the first information report or the complaint, even if they are taken at their face value and accepted in their entirety do not prima facie constitute any offence or make out a case against the accused.

(2) Where the allegations in the first information report and other materials, if any, accompanying the FIR do not disclose a cognizable offence, justifying an investigation by police officers under Section 156(1) of the Code except under an order of a Magistrate within the purview of Section 155(2) of the Code.

(3) Where the uncontroverted allegations made in the FIR or complaint and the evidence collected in support of the same do not disclose the commission of any offence and make out a case against the accused.

(4) Where, the allegations in the FIR do not constitute a cognizable offence but constitute only a non-cognizable offence, no investigation is permitted by a police officer without an order of a Magistrate as contemplated under Section 155(2) of the Code.

(5) Where the allegations made in the FIR or complaint are so absurd and inherently improbable on the basis of which no prudent person can ever reach a just conclusion that there is sufficient ground for proceeding against the accused.

(6) Where there is an express legal bar engrafted in any of the provisions of the Code or the concerned Act (under which a criminal proceeding is instituted) to the institution and continuance of the proceedings and/or where there is a specific provision in the Code or the concerned Act, providing efficacious redress for the grievance of the aggrieved party.

(7) Where a criminal proceeding is manifestly attended with mala fide and/or where the proceeding is maliciously instituted with an ulterior motive for wreaking vengeance on the accused and with a view to spite him due to private and personal grudge.

103. We also give a note of caution to the effect that the power of quashing a criminal proceeding should be exercised very sparingly and with circumspection and that too in the rarest of rare cases; that the court will not be justified in embarking upon an enquiry as to the reliability or genuineness or otherwise of the allegations made in the FIR or the complaint and that the extraordinary or inherent powers do not confer an arbitrary jurisdiction on the court to act according to its whim or caprice."

39. Also, the judgment of the Supreme Court in M/s. Neeharika Infrastructure Pvt. Ltd. vs. State of Maharashtra had laid down the law as under :-

"33.16. The aforesaid parameters would be applicable and/or the aforesaid aspects are required to be considered by the High Court while passing an interim order in a quashing petition in exercise of powers under Section 482CrPC and/or under Article 226 of the Constitution of India. However, an interim order of stay of investigation during the pendency of the quashing petition can be passed with circumspection. Such an interim order should not require to be passed routinely, casually and/or mechanically. Normally, when the investigation is in progress and the facts are hazy and the entire evidence/material is not before the High Court, the High Court should restrain itself from passing the interim order of not to arrest or "no coercive steps to be adopted" and the accused should be relegated to apply for anticipatory bail under Section 438CrPC before the competent court. The High Court shall not and as such is not justified in passing the order of not to arrest and/or "no coercive steps" either during the investigation or till the investigation is completed and/or till the final report/charge-sheet is filed under Section 173CrPC, while dismissing/disposing of the quashing petition under Section 482CrPC and/or under Article 226 of the Constitution of India.□

40. Learned Additional Advocate General also submitted that as per section 32(3) of the Drugs and Cosmetics Act, 1940, the police could not be prevented from prosecuting the petitioners under the BNS etc. under which the offence had been committed. He, therefore, relied upon section 32(3) of the Drugs and Cosmetics Act which is being reproduced here as under :-

"32. Cognizance of offences :

1. No prosecution under this Chapter shall be instituted except by -

(a) an Inspector; or

(b) any gazetted officer of the Central Government or a State Government authorised in writing in this behalf by the Central Government or a State Government by a general or special order made in this behalf by that Government; or

(c) any person aggrieved; or

(d) a recognised consumer association whether such person is a member of that association or not.

2. Save as otherwise provided in this Act, no court inferior to that of a Court of Session shall try an offence punishable under this Chapter.

3. Nothing contained in this Chapter shall be deemed to prevent any person from being prosecuted under any other law for any act or omission which constitutes an offence against this Chapter.”

(emphasis supplied)

41. He also relied upon section 80 of the NDPS Act which is being reproduced here as under :-

“80. Application of the Drugs and Cosmetics Act, 1940 not barred.— The provisions of this Act or the rules made thereunder shall be in addition to, and not in derogation of, the Drugs and Cosmetics Act, 1940 (23 of 1940) or the rules made thereunder.”

42. Having heard learned counsel for the petitioners in the above writ petitions and the learned Additional Advocate General, we are of the view that the petitioners reliance upon the decision of this Court in Ashok Kumar vs. Union of India reported in 2015 (2) ALJ 193 and the judgment of the Supreme Court in 2001 (12) SCC 164 would not be of any help to the petitioners. In fact the judgment of this Court in Vibhor Rana (supra) also would not be of any help to the petitioners. Definitely, the article which was being dealt with was Phensedyl which as per Clause 35 of the Notification dated 14.11.1985 would not be considered as a □manufactured drug□ under the NDPS Act. Also, we are of the view that since the license was under the Drugs and Cosmetics Act, 1940, the judgment of the Supreme Court in the case of Union of India vs. Ashok Kumar Sharma reported in (2021) 12 SCC 674 would be applicable to the case of the petitioners, had the other fraudulent acts which the petitioners had committed, not been committed by them.

43. In view of the judgment of the Supreme Court in Directorate of Revenue Intelligence (supra) we are definitely of the view that phensedyl medicine which has codeine as a component which was being used in such enormity as was clear from the reading of the FIR then definitely we are of the view that the case had to be investigated into under all the sections of all the Acts under which the FIRs had been lodged.

44. Definitely we find that transferring of Phensedyl cough syrup was being done from Jharkhand to the State of Uttar Pradesh by e-way bills which were not in the proper category of carrying of drugs but were for the purposes of carrying of snacks and namkeen. We have also come across the FIRs stating that the medicinal articles were brought from the State of Jharkhand after concealing them in various grains namely wheat and rice. Not only that, we also find that the persons who were dealing with those articles namely Phensedyl cough syrup were having fabricated citizenship cards, Aadhar cards etc. etc. If fabrication was there as is evident from the FIR then definitely cases of the petitioners would be covered under the various other sections of BNS as well.

45. We also find that quite often the sub-stockists to whom the various main stockists were transferring the articles, were either not in existence or were such stockists who were not maintaining their stock registers etc. properly. We are also of the view that as per section 32(3) of the Drugs and Cosmetics Act, the petitioners could be prosecuted under □any other law for any act or omission which constitutes an offence against this Chapter.□ Also section 80 of the NDPS Act gives the liberty to prosecute under the NDPS Act along with the Drugs and Cosmetics Act.

46. The question thus which throughout was raised by the learned counsel for the petitioners that the drug phensedyl which has codeine as an ingredient could not be considered as a □manufactured drug□ and that action could not be taken under the NDPS Act and other enactments, is thus suitably answered herein above in the judgment. The answer to this question is also readily available in the judgment of the Supreme Court in Directorate of Revenue Intelligence (supra). The enormity of the entire matter has to be investigated and, therefore, no question for interference in the FIRs arises.

47. Having observed as above, we part with the case by observing that even though we have not interfered with the case, the investigating agencies would with all sagaciousness, investigate the case and would not in any manner at any point of time indulge in any malicious activity.

48. With these observations, all the writ petitions stand dismissed.

Issue for consideration

Consequences of an ante-timed FIR for the prosecution and in which cases are they attracted.

Headnotes

Section 304 read with Section 34 of the Indian Penal Code , 1860-FIR in this case to be ante-timed- not a case where the first informant was chasing or begging the police to lodge his FIR- unreliable dock evidence- witnesses speaking contradictory, inconsistent and inherently unreliable- identity of the assailants- and the manner of assault- do not inspire confidence - prosecution have not been able to prove the case against the appellants beyond all reasonable doubt.

1. This judgment will decide the present Criminal Appeal and the two connected Criminal Appeals Nos.3888 of 2014 and 4448 of 2014. All the appeals arise out of the same crime, where the three appellants stood their trial jointly. They were convicted and sentenced to varying terms for the same offences. All the appeals have been heard together with Criminal Appeal No.1345 of 2015 being formally treated as the leading case. The appellants were tried before Mr. Musharraf Hussain, the then Additional Sessions Judge, Court No.1, Bulandshahr vide Sessions Trial No.1316 of 2010 (arising out of Crime No.157 of 2010), under Section 326 read with Section 34 and Section 304 read with Section 34 of the Indian Penal Code (for short, 'IPC'), Police Station Khurja Dehat, District Bulandshahr. They were convicted and sentenced by the learned Trial Judge vide judgment and order dated 04.09.2014, passed in the sessions trial aforesaid, in the following manner:

Sr. No.	Name of convict	Charge	Sentence	Fine (in Rs.)	Default sentence
1	Kale	326/34 IPC	10 years RI	10,000/-	Six months
		304/34 IPC	Life Imprisonment	10,000/-	Six months
2	Bablu	326/34 IPC	10 years RI	10,000/-	Six months
		304/	Life	10,0	Six

		34 IPC	Imprisonment	00/-	months
3	Anil	326/34 IPC	07 years RI	10,000/-	Six months
		304/34 IPC	10 years RI	10,000/-	Six months

2. Nanak Chand, a resident of Village Dharpa, Police Station Khurja Dehat, District Bulandshahr, lodged a First Information Report (for short, 'FIR') at 6.30 a.m. with Police Station Khurja Dehat, District Bulandshahr saying that in the night intervening 13/ 14.08.2010, his wife Smt. Ram Kumari, sons Rupesh and Chandra Mohan, were asleep in the verandah outside his house. The informant, Nanak Chand was asleep in the barnyard (Gher), where his animals are housed. At 1.00 o'clock in the wee hours, residents of his village, Bablu son of Bhule, Anil son of Ram Charan Jatav and Kale son of Chhote Lal, a resident of Village Achchheja Khurd, District Bulandshahr, assaulted his sleeping wife and children, throwing acid from a bucket, in consequence of which the victims, who had received severe acid burns, wailed and raised a commotion. Upon hearing all these sounds, he woke up. His daughter, Babita, who was already awake in order to attend the call of nature, told him that she had seen and identified the appellants, Bablu, Anil and Kale clearly committing the crime. A lot of natives of the village gathered. The informant and other residents of the village conveyed his injured wife and children to the Government Hospital, District Bulandshahr, where he got them admitted for treatment. The informant's wife, Ram

Kumari and Rupesh, his son, were referred by the District Hospital to a higher centre in Delhi.

3. It is said in the FIR that in the year 2006, two of the appellants, Bablu and Kale, had ravished his daughter 'A', in connection whereof they were convicted and sentenced by the Court to ten years imprisonment. It was just a few months back that they had come out of prison. It is on this account that they harboured animosity against the informant and for the said reason assaulted his wife and children, employing acid.

4. The aforesaid FIR was registered as Crime No.157 of 2010, under Section 326 IPC. Later on, during treatment at the Guru Teg Bahadur Hospital, Delhi (for short, 'the GTB Hospital'), the informant's wife succumbed to her injuries on 20.08.2010. The informant through a report dated 25.09.2010 informed the Police about the development. This led the Police to add the offence punishable under Section 304 IPC to the crime vide G.D. No.21 dated 25.09.2010 at 5.30 p.m.

5. Immediately after the crime was registered and the victims conveyed to the District Hospital, Bulandshahr, they were medically examined there on 14.08.2010 at 2.40 a.m.

6. The Doctor found on the person of Ram Kumari @ Raj Kumari, the informant's wife, 55% burns, caused by some chemical. These were opined to be of fresh duration and advised to be kept under observation.

7. The other injured, Rupesh, the informant's son was examined by the Doctor at the District Hospital on 14.08.2010 and his injuries too were opined to be caused by some chemical burns of fresh duration. These injuries were also advised to be kept under observation.

8. The third injured and the other son of the informant, Chandra Mohan, was examined at the District Hospital on 14.08.2010. In his case too, the injuries were opined to be caused by some chemical, which were of fresh duration. These were opined to be kept under observation.

9. It may be noticed that while the burns sustained by Smt. Ram Kumari @ Raj Kumari were opined by the District Hospital Doctor to be 55% and the injuries of the other victim, Rupesh, as 50% burns, the burn percentage in the case of the informant's other son, Chandra Mohan, was found to be 10%.

10. After the informant's wife and the deceased victim, Ram Kumari @ Raj Kumari, passed away on 20.08.2010, her cadaver was subjected to autopsy at the University College of Medical Sciences & GTB Hospital, Shahdara, Delhi, where she had died during treatment. The autopsy was held on 21.08.2010. There are very detailed observations of the Autopsy Doctor in the postmortem report about the nature of injuries sustained and other matters. The cause of death opined is "Shock as a result of antemortem infected corrosion burns (chemical) involving fifty percent of total body surface area".

11. The Police, after investigating the case, filed a charge sheet against the three appellants on 17.11.2010. The Magistrate took cognizance on 18.11.2010. In due course, the case was committed to the Sessions on 01.12.2010. The learned Additional Sessions Judge, Court No.1, Bulandshahr, before whom the case came up for framing of charge, framed two charges against the appellant, Kale and the two other convicts, Bablu and Anil jointly, charging them on the first count under Section 326 read with Section 34 IPC, and, on the second, under Section 304 read with Section 34 IPC.

12. Eight witnesses were examined by the prosecution in support of their case, three of fact and five formal. PW-1 is Nanak Chand, the first informant; PW-2 is Rupesh, a victim and an injured witness of the occurrence; and, PW-3 is Babita, an eye witness, who is the deceased's daughter and the two injured victims's sister. PW-4, Dr. Rajiv Verma is the doctor, who examined the victims, when they were brought in at the District Hospital, Bulandshahr for necessary medical attention; PW-5 is Dr. Meghali Kelkar. She is a doctor at the G.T.B. Hospital, Delhi and has carried out the autopsy; PW-6 is Om Singh, a Sub-Inspector of Police, who was posted at Police Station Mansarovar Park, Delhi at the relevant time, when the deceased Raj Kumari passed away during treatment at G.T.B. Hospital, Delhi; PW-7, Satyapal Singh, was a Sub-Inspector of Police, posted at the relevant time at Police Station Khurja Dehat. He is the Investigating Officer of the case, who filed the charge-sheet. PW-8, Jai Prakash, is a Constable Clerk, posted at the relevant time at P.S. Khurja Dehat, who got the check FIR drawn up on his dictation and made the relevant G.D. entry upon registering the FIR.

13. The following documents were produced by the prosecution to establish their case:

14. No witness was examined by the defence or documentary evidence produced.

15. Heard Mr. Rakesh Kumar Singh along with Mr. Mohammad Zakir, learned Counsel for the appellant in Criminal Appeal Nos.1345 of 2015 and 3888 of 2014, Mr. Rakesh Kumar Pandey, learned Counsel for the appellant in Criminal Appeal No.4448 of 2014, and Mr. Shashi Shekhar Tiwari and Mr. Anil Kumar Mishra, learned Additional Government Advocates along with Mr. K.K. Nishad, learned State Law Officer appearing on behalf of the State.

16. Upon hearing learned Counsel for the parties, we find that the evidence on record, relative to the charges, can be conveniently considered in the following manner.

The genesis of and the motive for the crime

17. It is common ground between parties that out of three convicted appellants, two, to wit, Kale and Bablu were charged, tried, convicted and sentenced for the offence of ravishing the informant's daughter □A□ by the learned Sessions Judge. This offence was committed by the two appellants, Bablu and Kale in the year 2006. Both the appellants received a term sentence of ten years each. They were out on bail pending appeal, when the present offence was committed.

18. It is argued on behalf of the appellants by the learned Counsel that their implication in the present crime is motivated because despite being convicted and sentenced on charges of ravishing the informant's daughter, which too were, according to the appellants, false charges, they have been admitted to bail by this Court pending appeal. It is to spite the appellants that they have now been framed in the present case. The offence here is one that is blind, committed in the dead of night while the victims, the informant and all family members were fast asleep. The perpetrators are very different men than the appellants, who committed the offence by night for their own reasons, but the informant, who harbours grudge and ill-will against the appellants for their perceived involvement in the rape of his daughter, nominated them in the present crime without the slightest of truth to the allegations.

19. Mr. S.S. Tiwari, learned A.G.A. has stoutly refuted this submission and says that there is a prompt reporting of the heinous crime, which excludes every possibility of a false implication.

20. It is true that two, out of the three appellants, Kale and Bablu, were indeed involved in an earlier crime against the informant's family, where the latter's daughter was ravished by the two. They were convicted and sentenced for the offence of gang-rape with each of them, receiving a term of ten years rigorous imprisonment along with a fine of Rs.5000/- each. In addition, they were ordered to suffer an additional term of three months in the event of default in payment of the fine imposed.

21. The involvement of the two appellants in the case of gang-rape could be thought of as the motive for the informant to falsely implicate them, to wit, Kale and Bablu, particularly as these two, after being convicted by the learned Trial Judge, were enlarged on bail by this Court pending appeal. On the other hand, the motive to commit the crime, could well emanate from the appellants' grudge, resulting from their conviction. It is for this reason that the relevant fact of motive is always regarded as a matter, that may establish the prosecution or work to probabalize the defence.

22. In every case, and so also here, which side the weight of motive would tilt scales, depends on the other facts established in the case. Motive is, therefore, a relevant fact, that has to be seen in the totality of other facts proved by evidence to see which way it really works in a given case. In this case, we would consider the substantive evidence about other relevant facts, more fundamental to a prosecution based on an eye-witness account before opining which way motive has played its role, to wit, if it has led to the crime or a false implication for the appellants. Accordingly, this would be considered later on in this judgment.

The FIR and the circumstances attending its registration; if it is ante-timed

23. According to the FIR, the crime was committed at 1:00 a.m. on 13/14.05.2010, that is to say, in the wee hours at Village Dharpa, P.S. Khurja

Dehat, District Bulandshar. In the attack by throwing of acid, said to have been committed by the appellants, the informant's wife and two sons sustained injuries. The injured were conveyed in a commercial vehicle, popularly called a TATA-407, to P.S. Khurja Dehat. The policemen at the police station are said to have advised the informant to rush the injured to the Government Hospital, Bulandshahr in order to save their life. The doctors of the District Hospital, Bulandshahr, finding the condition of Smt. Raj Kumari and Rupesh to be serious, referred them to the GTB Hospital. The FIR is shown to have been registered at 6.30 a.m. in the morning upon being lodged by the first informant, Nanak Chand.

24. It is submitted by the learned Counsel for the appellants that the FIR is clearly ante-timed and not at all a spontaneous account of the occurrence. Learned Counsel for the appellants have invited the attention of the Court to the testimony of Nanak Chand, PW-1, which he says, clearly shows that the FIR was lodged after the informant had got his wife admitted to the GTB Hospital and returned home to his village in Bulandshahr. It was scribed by Sanjay Kumar at the police station, where many people from the informant's village and elsewhere had reached upon hearing the news. The FIR was lodged after due consultation about quarter to nine in the morning. It is, thus, argued that the FIR, which is shown to be registered at 6.30 a.m., is clearly an ante-timed document, lodged after consultation and premeditation; not a prompt and spontaneous report of the crime.

25. Mr. Tiwari, the learned A.G.A., has submitted that the FIR was lodged at 6.30 in the morning by the informant, a fact duly proved by PW-3, Jai Prakash, the Constable Clerk, who drew up the check FIR and made a G.D. Entry thereof in the records of the police station at 6.30 a.m. on 14.08.2010. He submits that it is for the said reason that the learned Trial Judge, before whom the same argument about the FIR being an ante-timed document was advanced, rejected it.

26. There is nothing said in the examination-in-chief by the first informant, PW-1, about the time when the FIR was lodged, though he proved the written information by his testimony recorded in the dock, which was marked as Ex. Ka-1. In his cross-examination done by learned Counsel appearing for the appellant, Bablu, PW-1, Nanak Chand, has stated the fact that he has passed his intermediate examination. He is, therefore, a reasonably educated man; certainly a literate and not a rustic.

27. In his cross-examination on behalf of the appellant, Anil, PW-1, Nanak Chand, has stated:

"मैं चुटैलो को लेकर पहले खुरजा-देहात थाने गया था। थाना वालो ने हमें बुलन्दशहर अस्पताल भेजा था। हमारे साथ कोई सिपाही थाने से साथ नहीं आया था। थाना वालो ने हमें चिट्ठी लिखकर नहीं दी थी। बुलन्दशहर अस्पताल मे थोड़ा बहुत इलाज हुआ था उसके बाद रेफर कर दिया था। बुलन्दशहर अस्पताल वालो ने रेफर स्लिप दी थी। हम सुबह 9 बजे दिल्ली अस्पताल में पहुँच गये थे।"

(emphasis by Court)

28. Further, in his cross-examination at the instance of the appellant, Anil, PW-1 has said:

"जब मैं पहले दिन Admit के पश्चात अपने गांव लौटकर आया था तो F.I.R लेखक संजय मेरे गांव मे घर पर मौजूद मिला था। फिर मैने व गांव के अन्य लोगो ने सलाह मशवरा करके रिपोर्ट लिखाई थी।"

(emphasis by Court)

29. Further on, Nanak Chand, PW-1, when cross-examined on behalf of the appellant, Kale, stated:

"मैं चुटैलों के साथ घटना के दिन उन्हें लेकर अस्पताल गया था। चुटैलों को बुलन्दशहर की पुलिस ने अस्पताल में दाखिल किया था। हमने पुलिस को रिपोर्ट की थी। रिपोर्ट रात्रि में 2 बजे की थी। मेरे परिवार मे संजीव का चचिया ससुर FIR लेखक संजय कुमार निवासी गिरधरपुर है। इसको बुलाने के लिए हमने अपने गांव धरपा से समय करीब डेढ़ बजे रात्रि मे फोन किया था। लेखक संजय कुमार समय करीब 7 बजे सुबह अपने गांव गिरधरपुर से मेरे गांव धरपा में आया था। मैं दिल्ली अस्पताल से अपने गांव लौटा था और करीब पौने 8 बजे मुझे संजय मेरे गांव धरपा मे मिला था। थाना खुरजा देहात मै, संजय और गांव के बहुत सारे लोग इस घटना की इत्तला में करीब पौने 9 बजे दिन पहुँचे थे।"

30. PW-8, who is the Constable Clerk at Police Station Khurja Dehat at the relevant time and drew up the check FIR, besides making the relative G.D. Entry in the Station House Diary regarding registration of the case, has testified in his examination-in-chief to the following effect:

"दिनांक 14.8.10 को मैं थाना खुरजा देहात पर बतौर कान्सटेबिल क्लर्क तैनात था। उस दिन मैने मुकदमा अ० स० 157/2010 अन्तर्गत धारा 326 IPC बनाम

बबलू आदि की चिक FIR इस मुकदमे के वादी नानक चन्द की तहरीर के आधार पर सिपाही क्लर्क सुदामा से कम्प्यूटर पर बोल-बोल कर टाईप करायी थी असल चिक FIR आज मेरे सामने है। जो पत्रावली पर कागज संख्या 4A/ 1 व 4A/2 है इस पर प्रदर्श क-9 डाला गया।

इस मुकदमे का खुलासा मैने उसी दिन एक ही Process मे G.D. No 7 समय 6.30 AM पर असल G.D. के साथ तैयार किया था असल G.D. आज साथ लाया हूँ। जो मेरे हस्तलेख व हस्ताक्षर में है असल G.D से मिलान करके प्रमाणित करता हू। इस पर प्रदर्श क-10 डाला गया।"

31. In his cross-examination, PW-8, Constable Clerk, Jai Prakash, has stated:

"यह कहना सही है कि इस तहरीर से पहले उस दिन कोई अपराध दर्ज नहीं किया गया है और ना वाद मे हुआ यह कहना भी गलत है कि मुकदमा की दर्जगी विरोधाभाशी समय में की गयी है G.D संख्या 7, 6.30 AM मेरे हस्तलेख मे है और GD संख्या 8 समय 7.00 AM बजे सुबह मेरे साथ तैनात रहे CC मुरसलीन के हस्तलेख मे है।"

32. Upon a perusal of all this testimony, what is apparent is that Nanak Chand, PW-1, who is the first informant, is by no means an illiterate man. It cannot be said that he has no understanding of the clock or that he could not understand the hour of the day, when he lodged the FIR. It cannot also be said that he would not be able to read the time of registration shown on the check FIR. In fact, he has correctly read the time of registration of the FIR, and, therefore, never mentioned it in his examination-in-chief. In his cross-examination at the instance of the appellant, Anil, it has come out that PW-1 proceeded with the victims first to the P.S. Khurja Dehat, where looking to the critical condition of the injured, the policemen asked him to rush them to the District Hospital, Bulandshahr. The doctors at the District Hospital, Bulandshahr, assessing the critical condition of the victims, referred them to a higher centre in Delhi. They gave a referral slip as well. It has further figured in his cross-examination that travelling from the District Hospital, Bulandshahr, he reached the hospital in Delhi at 9.00 a.m. It has then further on come in PW-1's testimony during cross-examination on behalf of Anil that after he got the victims admitted, he returned back to his village, where the scribe of the FIR, Sanjay, was waiting at his home. He then, in consultation with other residents of the village, got the FIR scribed.

33. It has further on come in PW-1's cross-examination, also done at the instance of the appellant, Kale, that the witness had gone along with the victims to the hospital. The victims were got admitted by the Bulandshahr Police to the hospital. He had reported the matter to the Police. Here, he has said that the report was lodged at 2.00 a.m. It is next said that a relative of his, Sanjay Kumar, a resident of Village Gurdharpur, is the scribe of the FIR. This scribe was informed over telephone by PW-1 at 1.30 a.m. The scribe, Sanjay Kumar, reached Village Dharpa from his Village Girdharpur at 7.00 o'clock in the morning. PW-1, who had by then gone to Delhi with the victims, returned to his village at about 7.45 in the morning, where he met Sanjay. PW-1, along with Sanjay and many other residents of the village, proceeded to P.S. Khurja Dehat, where they reached to lodge the FIR at about 9.00 o'clock in the morning.

34. PW-1 is the first informant and his testimony, apart from being wayward about the time, when the FIR was registered, is certain about one fact that the FIR was not lodged, or for that matter registered, at 6.30 in the morning. A wholesome reading of his testimony would place the registration of the FIR some time about 9.00 a.m., or may be a little later. PW-1 is categorical that from the police station, where he had initially gone along with the patients, he proceeded to the District Hospital, Bulandshahr. After some superficial management, the victims were referred to the GTB Hospital. The informant went to Delhi. He has categorically said that he reached his village back at about quarter to eight in the morning, where the Scribe, Sanjay Kumar was waiting for him. It is but obvious that the FIR must have been scribed after quarter to eight. PW-1 has also categorically said that the first informant, in the company of the scribe and others, reached P.S. Khurja Dehat at 9.00 o'clock. Elsewhere, it has figured that the FIR was written outside the police station. This would lead to an inference about the time of lodging the FIR being anything after 9.00 a.m. on 14.08.2010.

35. If every other detail is discounted, in the face of the Constable Clerk's grand authority justifying entries made by him in public records, it cannot be accepted that PW-1, who had come back from Delhi, reaching his village at about quarter to eight in the morning hours of 14.08.2010, could, by any means, have got the FIR lodged at P.S. Khurja Dehat at 6.30 in the morning. That time of the day would not be supported by the time taken in the onward journey reckoned from the victims' house to P.S. Khurja Dehat, and then to the District Hospital, Bulandshahr, the time spent there in the administration of some superficial treatment, the onward journey from District Hospital, Bulandshahr to the GTB Hospital, located in Delhi, and the return journey that PW-1 undertook to reach his village in District Bulandshahr. The time, that PW-1 has indicated of his arrival back home in his village as 7:45 a.m., is apparently realistic and correct, given the distances involved, of which judicial notice may be taken.

36. There is no way that PW-1, undertaking all this journey and the steps involved in consulting doctors at the District Hospital, Bulandshahr, then at Delhi getting the victims admitted to the GTB Hospital and returning back home to his village in Bulandshahr, from where he proceeded to the police station, could ever have lodged the FIR at 6.30 in the morning of 14.08.2010.

37. We are convinced that by any stretch of human capability, the FIR in this case could never have been lodged by the first informant at 6.30 in the morning of 14.08.2010.

38. The testimony of PW-8, the Constable Clerk, Jai Prakash, is untruthful about the time of registration of the FIR and is nothing more than an affirmation of false official record about the time of registration. The fact that no earlier FIR, other than the one giving rise to Crime No.157 of 2010, was registered on 14.08.2010, G.D. Entry No.7 made at 6.30 a.m., relating to the said crime, was a matter of no difficulty for the Police. The next crime was registered, or so to speak the next G.D. Entry of the day was made at 7.00 a.m. vide G.D. Entry No.8. Therefore, the affirmation of time of registration of the FIR and the relative G.D. Entry by the Constable Clerk, will be of little help to the State in justifying the time of registration of the FIR. The FIR in this case is clearly ante-timed. And, we hold accordingly.

If the ocular testimony of PW-1, PW-2 and PW-3 is relevant and consistent

39. In order to bring home the charge, the prosecution have examined three witnesses of fact, to wit, Nanak Chand, PW-1, Rupesh, PW-2 and Kumari Babita, PW-3. Nanak Chand is the first informant and claimed himself to be a witness of res gestae. In his examination-in-chief, he has stated:

"घटना दिनांक 13/14.8.2010 को लगभग रात के एक बजे की है। मैं अपने पशुओं के पास सो रहा था। मैंने घर से चीख पुकार सुनी, मेरी लडकी बबीता भगी हुई आई, मुझसे बोली कि रूपेश, राजकुमारी व चन्द्रमोहन तेजाब से जले हुये पडे है। बबलू s/o भूले, अनिल s/o रामचरन व काले s/o छोटे लाल ने तेजाब बाल्टी से रूपेश, राजकुमार व चन्द्रमोहन के ऊपर डाला है। यह बात मुझे बबीता ने बताई थी। मैंने रूपेश राजकुमारी व चन्द्रमोहन को तेजाब से जले हुये देखा था।"

40. In his cross-examination done on behalf of the appellant, Bablu, PW-1 has said:

"यह कहना गलत है कि मैंने घटना ना देखी हो। घटना की बात मुझे सबसे पहले बबिता ने बताई थी। बबिता ने घटना में तुरन्त बाद ही मुझे बताया था। बबिता पेशाब करने आई थी। रात में सड़क ही पर नाली में पेशाब करते है। घटना के समय रात को लगभग 1 बजे का समय था। मेरे शोर पर मोहल्ले के किशन लाल, संदीप, जयपाल, डागू आदि आ गये थे। उपरोक्त लोगों

के नाम मैंने दरोगाजी को नहीं बताये थे। मैं घायलों के लेकर सबसे पहले खुरजा देहात थाने गया था। TATA 407 वाहन से गये थे। थाने वालों ने इलाज कराने के लिए चिट्ठी नहीं दी थी। थाने से सिपाही साथ नहीं गया था। थाने में सिपाहियों ने कहा था कि इन्हे बचाना है तो तुरन्द बुलन्दशहर अस्पताल चले जाओ।

मैंने मुल्जिमान को तेजाब डालते हुए नहीं देखा, मुल्जिमान को मैंने भागते हुए पहचाना था।"

(emphasis by Court)

41. PW-1 was also cross-examined on behalf of the appellant, Anil, where he has stated:

"जब मैंने मुल्जिमान को देखा था, मुल्जिमान के मुंह पर डाढ़ा नहीं बन्धा था। मैंने मुल्जिमान को पीछे से भागते हुए देखा था। मुल्जिमान चारों तरफ को देखते हुए भागे थे तभी मैंने उन्हें पहचाना था। रात उजाली थी।"

42. PW-1 has also been cross-examined on behalf of the appellant, Kale. There, he has stated:

"जब घटना के बाद रोवा-रात मची थी तब मेरी लड़की ने बताया था कि पड़ोसियों ने तेजाब डाल दिया है।"

43. The aforesaid testimony places it beyond cavil that this witness, by no means, is a witness of the occurrence, though he claims to have seen happenings, that are relevant as res gestae under Section 6 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872 (for short, the Evidence Act). The testimony of PW-1 in his examination-in-chief to the effect that it was the appellants, who had thrown acid on the deceased and the two other victims, and, he was told of the fact by Babita, is hearsay. The assertion of the witness in his cross-examination to the effect that it is incorrect to say that he had not seen the occurrence and that he was informed about it by Babita, is again not relevant. But, later on, in his cross-examination, he has said explicitly that though he did not see the appellants throw acid upon the victims, he saw them run away and recognized them. The fact that PW-1 saw the appellants run away from the scene of crime and also saw the three victims with acid burn injuries, put together, is relevant, if proved. Elsewhere, during his cross-examination extracted hereinabove, PW-1 has said that he saw the backside of the appellants as they ran away. He has further said that the appellants were looking on all sides as they escaped, and, therefore, he could recognize them in the moonlit night. The testimony of this witness, who was sleeping in the yard with his animals, and woken up by his daughter, Babita, after the event, does not inspire confidence about the fact that he saw anything of the occurrence or the assailants as they escaped. The victims had already sustained injuries and were writhing in pain.

44. According to this witness, Babita, his daughter, who had woken up and gone to answer the call of nature, using an open drain next to their house as a privy, if it can be called that, came over running to him and apprised him of the incident. PW-1 had woken up, hearing the cries for help coming from his house, when Babita, as already said, told him of the incident and the fact that the perpetrators were Bablu, Anil and Kale, who had thrown acid on Rupesh, Raj Kumari and Chandra Mohan.

He would have taken, if not minutes, a few seconds, to come out of his slumber. There were his wife and sons, wailing in pain. That is the first thing, which would have caught his attention and, in fact, that is what happened too. The assailants made a quick get away. There is no case of any further aggression or assault. It is, therefore, very unlikely that this witness saw anything of the assailants as they ran away. The description that the assailants were looking around, while making good their escape, virtually as if inviting PW-1 to identify them in the moonlit night, is a fact hard to believe. This witness, therefore, saw nothing of the occurrence or anything relevant as res gestae. He just saw the trail of injury and agony left behind by the perpetrators.

45. The second witness, PW-2, Rupesh, is the most relevant witness. He is a survivor of the dastardly attack and a fortiori an injured witness. He has testified in his examination-in-chief on 21.03.2013, thus:

"घटना दिनांक 13/14.8.2010 रात्री के एक बजे की है मैं व मेरी मम्मी राजकुमारी @ रामकुमारी मेरा भाई चन्द्रमोहन बहन बबीता घर के अन्दर बरामदे में सो रहे थे बब्लू पुत्र भूल्ले अनिल पुत्र राम चरन निवासी गांव धरपा के निवासी है काले पुत्र छोटे लाल निवासी गांव अच्छेजा खुर्द के निवासी है इन तीनों ने एक बाल्टी तेजाब मेरे ऊपर डाला था मेरे शरीर में एक दम आग सी जल गयी थी जैसे मैंने खीची मारी तो मेरी मम्मी एक साथ खड़ी हो गयी तो काले के हाथ से बाल्टी पकड़ी तो बब्लू ने लात मारकर खाट पर गिरा कर मम्मी पर दो बाल्टी तेजाब डाल दिया जिसमें मैं मेरे भाई चन्द्रमोहन पर छीटे आये थे जिससे वह जांघे पर जला है। उसके बाद मैं अपने घर मेरे पापा श्री नानक चन्द पुत्र सचेडू सिंह घर के सामने भैसो के पास

घेर में सो रहे थे इन तीनों को भागते हुये मेरे पापा ने देखा तीनों के हाथ में तेजाब की बाल्टियां थी मैंने व मेरी मम्मी व मेरे भाई चन्द्रमोहन, बहन बबीता और मेरे पापा ने अच्छी तरह से पहचान लिया था।

46. There is then a Court observation, recorded about this witness, to the following effect:

कोर्ट ओबर्जवेशन- साक्षी के चेहरे की बायीं भाग पूरी गर्दन बायीं ओर का कान सम्पूर्ण छाती बाये हाथ की कोहनी से लेकर गर्दन तक का भाग दाहिना हाथ तथा छाती के पीछे गर्दन से लेकर कमर पर दोनों पुटों के बीच उसकी त्वचा बुरी तरह जली हुई है। वादी आंखों की दोनों पलकों तथा भौं जल जाने के कारण सफेद हो गयी है तथा आंखों की पुतली आदि पूरी तरह जल चुकी है। साक्षी ने बताया कि उसकी आंखों से दिखायी नहीं पड़ता है। और पेट के नीचे दोनों जांघों पर भी जलने के सूखे हुये घाव हैं।"

47. PW-2, Rupesh, has said in his cross-examination:

"तेजाब हमारे ऊपर सोते समय हमारे चारपाइयों के ऊपर ही डाल दिया था तेजाब भरी बाल्टी लोहे की थी जिस समय मेरे ऊपर तेजाब डाल दिया था उसी वक्त मुझे काफी जलन हुयी मेरी एक आंख से दिखना बन्द हो गया और कान से सुनना बन्द हो गया।"

48. Again, PW-2 in his cross-examination done on behalf of the appellant, Bablu, has said:

"घटना के समय लाईट आ रही थी बरामदे में भी लाईट जल रही थी। घटना के समय मैंने मुल्जिमान को तेजाब डालते देखा था। घटना के समय हम लोग सो रहे थे घटना के समय सो रहे थे मुझे कुछ पता नहीं।"

(emphasis by Court)

49. Although, this witness has given a graphic description of the occurrence, describing it in minute detail, it has to be borne in mind that he is a person, who woke up in consequence of the burning sensation, resulting from the splash of acid on his body attributed to the appellants. It led him to shriek in pain, which caused the deceased, Raj Kumari, his mother, to suddenly wake up, stand straight and hold back the bucket carrying the active agent. Thereupon, the appellant, Bablu, kicked her, which made her fall back on the bed. The said appellant then emptied two buckets of acid on the deceased's body. It is asserted in the examination-in-chief that the assailants were seen by this witness, his brother, Chandra Mohan, and sister, Babita, besides their father, the first informant.

50. It is said in his cross-examination that a bucket, full of acid, was thrown on him, which caused him a strong burning sensation, loss of vision in one eye and loss of hearing. It is rather unlikely that with impairment of his vital sensory organs, including loss of vision in one eye and hearing, he could, in the distress and turmoil of the moment, identify the appellants with certainty. In the later part of his cross-examination, the witness has reiterated that he had seen the appellants throw acid on the victims, including himself. At the tail-end of the thoroughly done cross-examination, he has said that at the time of occurrence, the place was well-lit with an electric light and he had seen the appellants throw acid on the victims (including himself). He has then said that they were asleep and he did not know anything. The last noted words in his cross-examination cast the die for his testimony, rendering it entirely unreliable, the inherent worth of this witness notwithstanding.

51. PW-3 is the last witness of fact, and, of immense importance. She is the sole witness, whose testimony cannot be held vitiated by sleep or slumber. She was fully awake and had gone over to an open drain, adjacent to the victims, to ease herself.

52. This witness in her examination-in-chief has given a graphic account of the occurrence in the following words:

"घटना दिनांक 13/14-8-2010 समय लगभग एक बजे की है। मैं अपने घर के बरामदे में सो रही थी उसी बरामदे मेरे साथ मेरा चन्द्रमोहन रूपेश, माँ राजकुमारी @ रामकुमारी भी सो रहे थे मैं पेशाब करने के लिए उठी तो मैंने देखा कि बब्लू, अनिल काले मेरे भाई रूपेश व मेरी माँ और चन्द्रमोहन के ऊपर बाल्टी से तेजाब डाल रहे थे मेरे भाई रूपेश ने शोर मचाया मैं पेशाब कर रही थी। तो मैं उठी मेरा भाई अनिल से चिपट गया मेरे भाई ने अनिल की नाक में घुस्सा मारा था मेरी माँ बब्लू से लिपट गयी थी मेरा भाई नल पर भाग गया था। अनिल ने बाल्टी लेकर तेजाब मेरी माँ के ऊपर गेर दिया (डाल दिया) जिसकी छींटे मेरे छोटे भाई चन्द्रमोहन पर भी आयी थी मैं भागकर अपने पापा जो सड़क के पल्ली ओर सो रहे गयी मैंने उन्हें हल्ला मचा कर उठाया वह आये उन्होंने देखा कि तेजाब में झुलस गये थे मैंने भागते हुये बब्लू, अनिल व काले को देखा था यह भूले के घर में भाग गये थे।"

53. This witness in her cross-examination on behalf of the appellants, Anil and Kale, has stated:

"मैं पेशाब के लिए उठी थी पेशाब से अपनी चारपाई को लौटत. समय मेरे भाई रूपेश, फिर मेरी माँ राजकुमारी की चीख आयी थी। इस चीख के कितने मिनट बाद में मैं अपने पिता नानक के पास पहुंची थी यह मैं नहीं जानती। मैं व मेरे पिता जी घटना के बाद अपने घर में एक साथ ही आये थे।"

54. This witness has further on said in her cross-examination:

"हमारे घर के पास मुल्जिम अनिल का घर है और थोड़ी दूरी पर ही बब्लू का घर है काले का गांव हमारे गांव घरपा से 5 किलोमीटर दूर है। इस घटना से पूर्व हमारे घर काले का आना जाना और काले के घर हमारा आना जाना नहीं था व्याह शादी में भी हमारा और काले का आना जाना नहीं है काले का नाम मुझे किसी ने बताया नहीं था काले टाटा का ड्राइवर था। यह कथन कि मेरा भाई अनिल से लिपट गया मेरे भाई ने अनिल की नाक में घुसा मारा था मेरी मां बब्लू से लिपट गयी थी मेरा भाई नल पर भाग गया था अनिल ने वाल्टी लेकर तेजाब मेरी मां के ऊपर डाल दिया "दरोगा को बताया था नहीं लिखा है तो कोई वजह नहीं बता सकती। मैंने दरोगा जी को यह कथन किया था कि चन्द्र मोहन पर छीटे आयी थी मैंने भाग कर अपने पापा जो सड़क के पार सो रहे थे। मैंने उन्हें हल्ला मचाकर उठाया वह आये उन्होंने देखा कि तेजाब में झूलस गये थे" अगर यह कथन मेरे व्यान में अंकित दरोगा ने नहीं लिखा है। तो मैं इसकी कोई वजह नहीं बता सकती। यह कहना भी गलत है कि यह बयान में आज पहली बार अपने वकील साहब की कानूनी सलाह से गलत रूप से दे रही हूँ।"

55. The testimony of this witness, given her circumstances, would be of immense value because she is not one of the victims, who woke up from sleep in consequence of the assault by throw of acid. She was already awake in connection with her own engagement and is otherwise a natural witness. A reading of her testimony, however, shows that on its own terms, it does not bring forth a coherent version of the occurrence. She has said in her examination-in-chief that she had woken up to attend the call of nature, and, thereupon, saw Bablu, Anil and Kale, the appellants, pour acid upon her brother Rupesh, mother Raj Kumari and Chandra Mohan, her other brother, employing a bucket. This would suggest that she saw the assault, as she had just got up from bed to leave for the privy or toilet. If that were the situation, there is no reason why the appellants would have not assaulted her first, or in the same act.

56. In the next breath, this witness says that her brother, Rupesh, raised alarm, which she heard, as she was relieving herself, which made her leave the imperative pursuit. Her testimony in the next leg suggests that she went back to the scene of crime and saw her brother, Rupesh, hug Anil and then box him on the nose. Her mother, this witness saw, hug Bablu, presumably again to save herself. The witness's brother rushed to a hydrant or other source of water. It is next said that this witness saw the appellant, Anil, pour acid on her mother, the splashes whereof landed on her younger brother, Chandra Mohan. It is at this stage that this witness says that she rushed to her father across road, raising alarm. When her father came along with her, the three victims were already scorched by the corroding acid. At this point, this witness says that she saw the appellants, Bablu, Anil and Kale, make good their escape. They chose their escape route via Bhule's house.

57. The inherent fallibility of this witness's testimony comes from the facts, already noted. If she saw the assault, as she woke up to go over and answer the call of nature, she could not have possibly gone away in her pursuit, leaving the scene of assault, where the perpetrators were pouring acid on the three victims. Also, if she had woken up and seen the assailants, going about their evil deed, she too would have been assaulted. The part of the testimony, which says that after seeing the assault, she went over, as if it were, to answer the call of nature, which she abandoned upon hearing her brother raise alarm, is difficult in the nature of things to imagine or believe as a truthful account. She could not have seen the assault, gone to relieve herself and then abandon it upon hearing her brother call rescue. These contradictions have not at all been explained during her reasonably detailed cross-examination at the instance of the appellants. These inherent fallacies, therefore, vitiate her testimony as a dependable account of the occurrence on its own worth.

58. The locus classicus in regard to the quality of an eye-witness's testimony is Vadivelu Thevar v. State of Madras, AIR 1957 SC 614, where it has been held:

“11. Generally speaking, oral testimony in this context may be classified into three categories, namely:

(1) Wholly reliable.

(2) Wholly unreliable.

(3) Neither wholly reliable nor wholly unreliable.

12. In the first category of proof, the court should have no difficulty in coming to its conclusion either way □ it may convict or may acquit on the testimony of a single witness, if it is found to be above reproach or suspicion of interestedness, incompetence or subornation. In the second category, the court equally has no difficulty in coming to its conclusion. It is in the third category of cases, that the court has to be circumspect and has to look for corroboration in material particulars by reliable testimony, direct or circumstantial □ □ □ □.

59. Though, this principle was laid down regarding the dependability of a solitary witness, but the fact remains that if witnesses more than one are there and all of them, or both of them, as in this case, of their own evidence contradict themselves on material facts or give an inherently unreliable account of the occurrence, they would fall in the category of unreliable witnesses. Invariably, an injured witness is entitled to greater weight than others and his evidence cannot be lightly discarded, but this does not mean that an injured witness, who goes back on the entire prosecution version, saying that he was asleep when the assault took place and does not know anything, is to be believed, nevertheless. This is the case here with the testimony of PW-2.

60. PW-3 has been shown by us to have given out an account that is inherently unbelievable and self-contradictory. She is an unreliable witness for that reason alone. A similar view was expressed in a Bench decision of this Court in Tahir and others v. State of U.P., 2019:AHC-LKO:27021-DB, where their Lordships rejected the testimony of a solitary injured witness and after considering a wealth of authority about vitiation of the credit of a witness on account of contradictions, exaggerations or improvement, held:

“31. This Court is conscious and aware of the fact that it is dealing with the evidence of a witness who is claiming to be an injured witness of the crime and generally the evidence of an injured witness is considered at a higher pedestal than other witnesses as he is a stamped witness. But keeping in view the whole testimony of PW-1 Ram Sewak we are unable to accept the same as reliable and truthful and it appears that the true account of the occurrence has been suppressed by PW-1 Ram Sewak and truth and false hood are so intermixed in his evidence that they could not be separated and the only course available is to discard the evidence of this witness. Therefore, keeping in view the inherent inconsistencies in his evidence it is in the interest of justice that his untruthful and unreliable testimony must be discarded. In view of above discussion we are not inclined to accept the unreliable testimony of solitary witness PW-1 Ram Sewak. Once the Testimony of this solitary eye witness has been found to be not reliable there is no other evidence on record which may come to the rescue of the prosecution and the case of the prosecution, due to the inherent weakness, in the testimony of PW-1 Ram Sewak, is bound to collapse. The testimony of PW 1 Ram Sewak falls short of the requirement of proof of the charge beyond all reasonable doubt. The Appellants are thus entitled to the benefit of doubt in the facts and circumstances of the case. The contrary view taken by the trial Court is against the weight of the evidence on record and the exposition of law cited at the Bar and traversed herein above. The trial Court appears to have committed a manifest error in appreciating the evidence of solitary eye witness and has ignored the material contradictions and inherent inconsistencies appearing on the surface of his evidence. Resultantly the Judgment and order of conviction of the trial Court could not stand and is liable to be set aside.”

61. We would not reach our conclusions about the truthfulness of the prosecution just at this. We ought examine the matter further because we have in hand a dastardly crime committed in a place, that is to say, the victims' home, where the witnesses, who have testified, are natural and one of them is injured. In the present aspect of that analysis, we think we ought compare the evidence of PW-2 and PW-3 on the most material of relevant facts.

62. While the injured witness, PW-2, Rupesh, has described the manner of assault saying that all the three appellants poured a bucket full of acid on his body, which led to a severe burning sensation and he shrieked, causing his mother to suddenly get up and hold the bucket, carrying the acid in Kale's hand, Bablu kicked his mother, causing her to fall on the cot and it was he (Bablu), who poured two buckets of acid on her. By contrast, PW-3 describes the occurrence in the manner that when she got up, she saw all the three appellants pour the corrosive substance on all the three sleeping victims. Her brother, Rupesh, raised alarm and she saw him hug the appellant, Anil, and then box him on the nose. According to this witness, her mother hugged the other appellant, Bablu, while her brother, Rupesh, the victim made off to a nearby hydrant. It was then that the appellant, Anil poured a bucket full of acid, upon her mother, the deceased, the splashes of which were received by her younger brother, Chandra Mohan.

63. Now, these two accounts of the occurrence are not ones that carry minor contradictions of detail. These are also not accounts of the occurrence seen from a different vantage or at different points of time by the two witnesses. Both the accounts are about the principal assault by throwing acid, which was in one or two acts, to be precise, two. Whereas according to PW-2, all the three appellants poured acid on him, according to PW-3, they did so simultaneously, assaulting all the three victims. PW-2 credits assault by pouring or throwing acid upon the deceased victim, Raj Kumari, to the appellant Bablu, in very definitive terms, whereas PW-3 credits that assault to the appellant Anil. PW-3 has said that, after attempting to ward off the assault or receiving the first splash of acid, PW-2 rushed to a hydrant, there is no mention of the fact, even in the slightest measure in the testimony of PW-2. PW-3 credits the injured witness, PW-2, with the act of hugging the appellant Anil and boxing him on the nose, apparently to save himself, whereas no whisper of these acts to ward off the attack figure in the injured witnesses' own testimony.

64. Though, there are many varying accounts by these two witnesses about where and how they were sleeping, it is noteworthy that PW-2, the injured witness, says that his cot was positioned at a distance of one foot from his mother's cot, whereas his brother Chandra Mohan's cot was laid just adjacent to their mother's, the deceased victim. He further says that PW-3, his sister, slept on the same cot as his brother Chandra Mohan. By contrast, PW-3, Babita, says that there were four cots laid out in the verandah. Her cot was separate from the others. She never slept on either of her brothers' cot or that of her mother.

65. In her statement under Section 161 Cr.P.C. made before the Police, PW-3 has stated that she was sleeping on the roof of her house. She was confronted with the fact, about which she said that she did not say so to the Investigating Officer and does not know how he has mentioned it that way. It is in this background that it becomes doubtful, whether she was sleeping at all in the verandah, there being material contradiction about the positioning of her cot and the number of cots laid there. If the fact, whether she was sleeping in the verandah, is doubtful, the manner in which she has described witnessing the occurrence also becomes doubtful.

66. The other contradiction between PW-2 and PW-3, one an injured witness and other an eye-witness, are material and go to the root of the matter. We have mentioned these hereinabove.

67. The two accounts of the occurrence witnessed at the same time by the injured witness and PW-3, speak about material facts differently, such as who assaulted the deceased with the acid throw, the fact about PW-2, the injured witness, boxing one of the assailants on the nose, and then running over to a hydrant, which figure in the testimony of PW-3, but not in that of PW-2 at all. These show the witnesses speak very inconsistently about the manner of assault. The fact that the three assailants were named by the two eye-witnesses alone, PW-2 and PW-3, would not prove the guilt of the appellants beyond all reasonable doubt, given other relevant facts to be shortly noticed, which make the law require the prosecution evidence to be cautiously approached and carefully scrutinized.

An overall perspective and conclusions

68. We have already held the FIR in this case to be ante-timed. If a prosecution that is founded on an ante-timed FIR, ought be thrown out on that ground alone, is a very relevant question in this case. If not, what are the consequences of an ante-timed FIR for the prosecution and in which cases are they attracted, is a question closely related. The question was considered by the Supreme Court in Anand Mohan v. State of Bihar, (2012) 7 SCC 225, where it was held:

“57. We now come to the main contention on behalf of the defence that the High Court should have totally discarded the prosecution story once it held that the evidence creates a reasonable suspicion about the FIR being antedated and ante-timed.

58. In none of the cases cited by the defence, we find that this Court has discarded the entire prosecution story only on the ground that the FIR was antedated and ante-timed. In Ganesh Bhavan Patel v. State of Maharashtra [(1978) 4 SCC 371 : 1979 SCC (Cri) 1] relied on by the defence this Court considered the inordinate delay in recording the statements of witnesses under Section 161 CrPC and other circumstances along with the fact that the FIR was lodged belatedly without proper explanation and then held that the prosecution case was not reliable. Again, in Marudanal Augusti v. State of Kerala [(1980) 4 SCC 425 : 1980 SCC (Cri) 985] cited by the defence, this Court disbelieved the prosecution story not because of unexplained delay in the dispatch of the FIR to the Magistrate only but also because the FIR which contained graphic details of the occurrence with the minutest details did not mention the names of the witnesses and there were other infirmities to throw serious doubt on the prosecution story.

59. In Awadhesh v. State of M.P. [(1988) 2 SCC 557 : 1988 SCC (Cri) 361 : AIR 1988 SC 1158] relied on by the defence, besides finding that the delay in lodging the FIR was suspicious, this Court also found that the empty cartridges were recovered from the place of occurrence one day after the incident and the medical evidence established that the witnesses had not actually seen the incident and considering all these circumstances this Court held that the prosecution had not proved the case beyond reasonable doubt.

60. This Court has, on the other hand, held in State of M.P. v. Mansingh [(2003) 10 SCC 414 : (2007) 2 SCC (Cri) 390] that if the date and time of the FIR is suspicious, the prosecution version is not rendered vulnerable but the court is required to make a careful analysis of the evidence in support of the prosecution case. □

69. The principle then appears to be that for the mere fact that the FIR is found to be ante-timed, the prosecution would not collapse. The ante-timing of the FIR would have to be considered with other relevant facts. If the prosecution by their evidence establish a well-knit case, the ante-timed FIR may not vitiate it. An ante-timed FIR casts a shadow of suspicion on the prosecution case, because advantage of the earliest version of the occurrence is lost and some premeditation, and may be even manipulation of some facts, is inferable. Notwithstanding that if the dock evidence is flawless and consistent, witnesses do not contradict each other on material particulars, establish their presence on the scene of crime and given an account, that is corroborated by other evidence, an ante-timed FIR would not be fatal.

70. But, where there are inconsistencies in evidence, witnesses contradict or give an inherently improbable account of the occurrence in the dock and the cross-examination, which discredits their version or the witnesses themselves, an ante-timed FIR may cast the die against the prosecution. On a more refined principle, as held in State of M.P. v. Mansingh, (2003) 10 SCC 414, an ante-timed FIR requires the prosecution evidence to be scrutinized more carefully, or so to speak, approached with caution. After all, a prompt FIR, shown to be lodged according to its apparent tenor in the G.D., though not substantive evidence, is an assurance about the earliest and truthful account of facts being before the Court.

71. The principle has been further explained and the ante-timing of an FIR differentiated into two classes – one that is inconsequential, and, the other that may affect the prosecution – in the Bench decision of this Court in Kaushal Kumar Upadhyay v. State of U.P., (2020) 6 All LJ 266. In Kaushal Kumar Upadhyay (supra), following the Supreme Court in Anand Mohan (supra), it was remarked:

“9. An ante-timed report, is a report which does not appear to have been lodged at a time when it is purported to have been lodged. It is well settled in view of me judgment of the Apex Court in Anand Mohan v. State of Bihar, (2012) 7 SCC 225: (2013 Cri LJ 2644 (SC)) that prosecution case cannot be thrown merely on the basis of ante-timed FIR, provided the prosecution case is successfully established on the basis of other cogent and substantive evidence. A report could be ante-timed for 2 reasons, first where the police itself was negligent/lackadaisical in entertaining the report or where the police with design/collusion of the informant with a view to implicate innocents entertains report not at a time when it is purported to have been lodged. The former is to be ignored as an investigational default, giving no advantage to the accused while the latter could be a ground to bring the prosecution case under suspect. Each case will have to be decided on its own merits□□□.□

72. This is not a case, where the first informant was chasing or begging the police to lodge his FIR. Rather, it was registered as and when it was presented to the Police. The difficulty is that the time schedule between the events involving the commission of crime, the conveying of the victims to the District Hospital, Bulandshahr and further on to Delhi with the informant returning to his native Village Dharpa, Bulandshahr, then holding consultation and finally proceeding to the police station to lodge the FIR, place the time when he actually lodged it, way beyond the recorded time of its registration. We have already dealt with this issue in much detail earlier in this judgment. Thus, the FIR here is one which belongs to that category of ante-timing that might affect the prosecution.

73. This is not a case, where the two eye-witnesses, one of them injured, whose testimony could have been damning, have delivered evidence of sterling quality. We have already held in the earlier part of this judgment that PW-2, who is the injured witness and whose presence is, therefore, inherently not doubtful, has said at the end of his inculpatory testimony that at the time of occurrence, all of them were asleep and he does not know anything. His testimony has, therefore, lost all its worth standing by itself. Likewise, the testimony of PW-3, Babita, who is the informant's daughter and a sister of the injured, carries an account that we have noticed to be inherently flawed and not worth credence.

74. Then these two witnesses, PW-2 and PW-3, have materially contradicted each other about the manner of assault to the extent that the identity of the assailant, who delivered the fatal acid bath to the deceased victim is different. There are other major contradictions in their testimony that have already been noticed and need no repetition. It is for this reason and others given, that we have held that the evidence of the witnesses may not prove the appellants' guilt beyond reasonable doubt.

75. Now, when one views this unreliable dock evidence in the background of an ante-timed FIR, where there is at least a time difference of three hours, in the time shown when the FIR was registered, and the time when it could actually have been registered the earliest, much suspicion shrouds the prosecution case. Also, one cannot ignore in the background of the ante-timed FIR and the witnesses speaking contradictory, inconsistent and inherently unreliable, the fact that the FIR was much ante-timed, because the informant, PW-1, could never have lodged it at the hour of the day, when it is shown to have been registered.

76. It is also noteworthy that in the account of facts, leading up to the lodging of the FIR by the informant, he has admitted in his cross-examination that when he came back to his village from Delhi, the scribe of the FIR was already there at the informant's home. He has most noticeably said that he and other residents of the village lodged the FIR after consultation amongst themselves. The ante-timing of the FIR in this case, therefore, is suggestive of adjustment and twisting of facts, may be wholesome mis-statement, which ultimately led the eye-witnesses to speak inconsistent and unreliable in their dock evidence.

77. Now, the question arises why would at all there be a false implication attempted by the informant and other witnesses, who are his closest blood-relatives; his children. It is here that we have to judge whether the motive attributed to the appellants to commit the crime could indeed have worked with the other edge of the double edged sword and served as the cause for the informant to falsely implicate.

78. It is at this stage that we must briefly consider the stand of each of the appellants in their statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C.

79. The appellant, Kale, in answer to the last question under Section 313 Cr.P.C., has said (quoting the question):

"प्रश्न- आपको कुछ और कहना है?

उत्तर- मैं बिल्कुल निर्दोष हूँ। मेरे छोटे छोटे दो बच्चे हैं। मुझे स्थानीय रंजिश के कारण झूठा फसाया गया है। मेरी कोई शिनाख्त भी नहीं कराई गई है। मैं घटना वाले गाँव का रहने वाला भी नहीं हूँ। न मैं उस दिन वहाँ गांव में मौजूद था।"

80. Likewise, the appellant, Bablu, in answer to the law question in his statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. has said (question quoted):

"प्रश्न- आपको कुछ और कहना है?

उत्तर- मैं बिल्कुल बेकसूर हूँ। मुझे पुरानी रंजिश व गांव की पार्टी बंदी के कारण झूठा फंसाया गया है। पुरानी सजा के विरुद्ध हमारी अपील हाई कोर्ट में चल रही है। जिसमें हम जमानत पर हैं।"

81. The appellant, Anil, who was not an accused in the case of rape brought by the informant, relating to one of his daughters, has said in answer to the last question in his statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. has said (question quoted):

"प्रश्न- आपको कुछ और कहना है?

उत्तर- कूड़ा डालने को लेकर मेरा विवाद वादी से हो गया था। इसी कारण मुझे इस मामले में झूठा फंसाया गया है। मैं बिल्कुल निर्दोष हूँ न किसी घटना में शामिल था, न वहां मौजूद था।"

82. We are mindful of the principle that in a case based on direct evidence, the existence of motive to commit the crime is of little or no relevance. It is relevant to help the prosecution, if a motive exists to assure the Court that the accused is indeed guilty. Nevertheless, in a case that has its genesis in an ante-timed FIR of the second category that we have noticed, where the witnesses are close family members of the victims and have come up with a rather inconsistent and improbable account of the occurrence, the existence of a possible motive to falsely implicate, would have its weight. Every blood-relative, who is a witness, cannot be regarded partisan or interested. A witness becomes interested, if being a relative and may be for some reason as well, he bears some kind of grudge, ill-will or animosity against the accused and would want him convicted. A relative witness is not synonymous with an interested witness and this position of the law is well settled. In judging the credibility of witnesses, it is also a well regarded principle that a relative of the victim would be the last person to see an innocent convicted and the perpetrator going scot-free. Therefore, being a relative, does not of itself make a witness interested. Rather, it entitles him to weight, if his account is found to be truthful, consistent and probable. If, however, a relative witness has some motive to falsely implicate, particularly a grudge or animosity against the accused, his evidence has to be received with a degree of caution and scrutinized with great care.

83. The principles applicable to the appreciation of evidence of relatives, who bear some animosity or grudge against the accused, have been elaborately discussed and summarized with reference to earlier authority by the Supreme Court in Raju alias Balachandran and others v. State of Tamil Nadu, (2012) 12 SCC 701. In Raju (supra), it was observed by the Supreme Court:

"Discussion

19. Before us, only two contentions were advanced by the learned counsel for the appellants. Firstly, it was contended that since PW 5 Srinivasan was a related and interested witness, his evidence must be closely scrutinised, and if his testimony is put to close scrutiny, it will be quite clear that he ought not to be believed. Secondly, it was contended that the prosecution case was doubtful since there was no evidence except the unreliable testimony of PW 5 Srinivasan.

20. The first contention relates to the credibility of PW 5 Srinivasan. It was said in this regard that he was a related witness being the elder brother of Veerappan and the son of Marudayi, both of whom were victims of the homicidal attack. It was also said that he was an interested witness since Veerappan (and therefore PW 5 Srinivasan) had some enmity with the appellants. It was said that for both reasons, his testimony lacks credibility.

21. What is the difference between a related witness and an interested witness? This has been brought out in State of Rajasthan v. Kalki [(1981) 2 SCC 752 : 1981 SCC (Cri) 593] . It was held that: (SCC p. 754, para 7)

“7....True, it is, she is the wife of the deceased; but she cannot be called an □interested□ witness. She is related to the deceased. □Related□ is not equivalent to □interested□. A witness may be called □interested□ only when he or she derives some benefit from the result of a litigation; in the decree in a civil case, or in seeing an accused person punished. A witness who is a natural one and is the only possible eyewitness in the circumstances of a case cannot be said to be □interested□.□

22. In light of the Constitution Bench decision in State of Bihar v. Basawan Singh [AIR 1958 SC 500 : 1958 Cri LJ 976] , the view that a □natural witness□ or □the only possible eyewitness□ cannot be an interested witness may not be, with respect, correct. In Basawan Singh [AIR 1958 SC 500 : 1958 Cri LJ 976] , a trap witness (who would be a natural eyewitness) was considered an interested witness since he was □concerned in the success of the trap□. The Constitution Bench held: (AIR p. 506, para 15)

23. The wife of a deceased (as in Kalki [(1981) 2 SCC 752 : 1981 SCC (Cri) 593]), undoubtedly related to the victim, would be interested in seeing the accused person punished□in fact, she would be the most interested in seeing the accused person punished. It can hardly be said that she is not an interested witness. The view expressed in Kalki [(1981) 2 SCC 752 : 1981 SCC (Cri) 593] is too narrow and generalised and needs a rethink.

24. For the time being, we are concerned with four categories of witnesses□a third party disinterested and unrelated witness (such as a bystander or passer-by); a third party interested witness (such as a trap witness); a related and therefore an interested witness (such as the wife of the victim) having an interest in seeing that the accused is punished; a related and therefore an interested witness (such as the wife or brother of the victim) having an interest in seeing the accused punished and also having some enmity with the accused. But, more than the categorisation of a witness, the issue really is one of appreciation of the evidence of a witness. A court should examine the evidence of a related and interested witness having an interest in seeing the accused punished and also having some enmity with the accused with greater care and caution than the evidence of a third party disinterested and unrelated witness. This is all that is expected and required.

25. In the present case, PW 5 Srinivasan is not only a related and interested witness, but also someone who has an enmity with the appellants. His evidence, therefore, needs to be scrutinised with great care and caution.

26. In Dalip Singh v. State of Punjab [(1953) 2 SCC 36 : AIR 1953 SC 364 : 1953 Cri LJ 1465 : 1954 SCR 145] this Court observed, without any generalisation, that a related witness would ordinarily speak the truth, but in the case of an enmity there may be a tendency to drag in an innocent person as an accused—each case has to be considered on its own facts. This is what this Court had to say: (AIR p. 366, para 26)

26. A witness is normally to be considered independent unless he or she springs from sources which are likely to be tainted and that usually means unless the witness has cause, such as enmity against the accused, to wish to implicate him falsely. Ordinarily, a close relation would be the last to screen the real culprit and falsely implicate an innocent person. It is true, when feelings run high and there is personal cause for enmity, that there is a tendency to drag in an innocent person against whom a witness has a grudge along with the guilty, but foundation must be laid for such a criticism and the mere fact of relationship far from being a foundation is often a sure guarantee of truth. However, we are not attempting any sweeping generalisation. Each case must be judged on its own facts. Our observations are only made to combat what is so often put forward in cases before us as a general rule of prudence. There is no such general rule. Each case must be limited to and be governed by its own facts.□

27. How the evidence of such a witness should be looked at was again considered in Darya Singh v. State of Punjab [AIR 1965 SC 328 : (1965) 1 Cri LJ 350 : (1964) 3 SCR 397]. This Court was of the opinion that a related or interested witness may not be hostile to the assailant, but if he is, then his evidence must be examined very carefully and all the infirmities taken into account. It was observed that where the witness shares the hostility of the victim against the assailant, it would be unlikely that he would not name the real assailant but would substitute the real assailant with the □enemy□ of the victim. This is what this Court said: (AIR p. 331, para 6)

“6. There can be no doubt that in a murder case when evidence is given by near relatives of the victim and the murder is alleged to have been committed by the enemy of the family, criminal courts must examine the evidence of the interested witnesses, like the relatives of the victim, very carefully. But a person may be interested in the victim, being his relation or otherwise, and may not necessarily be hostile to the accused. In that case, the fact that the witness was related to the victim or was his friend, may not necessarily introduce any infirmity in his evidence. But where the witness is a close relation of the victim and is shown to share the victim's hostility to his assailant, that naturally makes it necessary for the criminal courts to examine the evidence given by such witness very carefully and scrutinise all the infirmities in that evidence before deciding to act upon it. □ [I]t may be relevant to remember that though the witness is hostile to the assailant, it is not likely that he would deliberately omit to name the real assailant and substitute in his place the name of the enemy of the family out of malice. The desire to punish the victim would be so powerful in his mind that he would unhesitatingly name the real assailant and would not think of substituting in his place the enemy of the family though he was not concerned with the assault. It is not improbable that in giving evidence, such a witness may name the real assailant and may add other persons out of malice and enmity and that is a factor which has to be borne in mind in appreciating the evidence of interested witnesses. On principle, however, it is difficult to accept the plea that if a witness is shown to be a relative of the deceased and it is also shown that he shared the hostility of the victim towards the assailant, his evidence can never be accepted unless it is corroborated on material particulars. □

28. More recently, in Waman v. State of Maharashtra [(2011) 7 SCC 295 : (2011) 3 SCC (Cri) 83] this Court dealt with the case of a related witness (though not a witness inimical to the assailant) and while referring to and relying upon Sarwan Singh v. State of Punjab [(1976) 4 SCC 369 : 1976 SCC (Cri) 646] , Balraje v. State of Maharashtra [(2010) 6 SCC 673 : (2010) 3 SCC (Cri) 211] , Prahalad Patel v. State of M.P. [(2011) 4 SCC 262 : (2011) 2 SCC (Cri) 205] , Israr v. State of U.P. [(2005) 9 SCC 616 : 2005 SCC (Cri) 1260] , S. Sudershan Reddy v. State of A.P. [(2006) 10 SCC 163 : (2006) 3 SCC (Cri) 503] , State of U.P. v. Naresh [(2011) 4 SCC 324 : (2011) 2 SCC (Cri) 216] , Jarnail Singh v.

State of Punjab [(2009) 9 SCC 719 : (2010) 1 SCC (Cri) 107] and Vishnu v. State of Rajasthan [(2009) 10 SCC 477 : (2010) 1 SCC (Cri) 302] it was held: (Waman case [(2011) 7 SCC 295 : (2011) 3 SCC (Cri) 83] , SCC p. 302, para 20)

□20. It is clear that merely because the witnesses are related to the complainant or the deceased, their evidence cannot be thrown out. If their evidence is found to be consistent and true, the fact of being a relative cannot by itself discredit their evidence. In other words, the relationship is not a factor to affect the credibility of a witness and the courts have to scrutinise their evidence meticulously with a little care. □

29. The sum and substance is that the evidence of a related or interested witness should be meticulously and carefully examined. In a case where the related and interested witness may have some enmity with the assailant, the bar would need to be raised and the evidence of the witness would have to be examined by applying a standard of discerning scrutiny. However, this is only a rule of prudence and not one of law, as held in Dalip Singh [(1953) 2 SCC 36 : AIR 1953 SC 364 : 1953 Cri LJ 1465 : 1954 SCR 145] and pithily reiterated in Sarwan Singh [(1976) 4 SCC 369 : 1976 SCC (Cri) 646] in the following words: (Sarwan Singh case [(1976) 4 SCC 369 : 1976 SCC (Cri) 646] , SCC p. 376, para 10)

“10. ... The evidence of an interested witness does not suffer from any infirmity as such, but the courts require as a rule of prudence, not as a rule of law, that the evidence of such witnesses should be scrutinised with a little care. Once that approach is made and the court is satisfied that the evidence of interested witnesses have a ring of truth such evidence could be relied upon even without corroboration. □ □

84. The principles in Raju have been followed by the Supreme Court as recently as in Edakkandi Dineshan alias P. Dineshan and others v. State of Kerala, (2025) 3 SCC 273.

85. Now, in the present case, we have two eye witnesses, one an injured, and, the other, who claims to have seen the appellants commit the crime. We have found on a careful scrutiny of their evidence that though they were inmates of the house and one of them had sustained severe injuries in the assault, their account of the occurrence, including the identity of the assailants, is inherently doubtful and the two accounts carry contradictions about the manner of assault.

86. The identity of the assailants, who threw acid on the deceased and the manner of assault, do not inspire confidence about the truthfulness or reliability of the accounts of the occurrence by these two witnesses. The rather improbable account of the occurrence by the two eye-witnesses and the contradictions amongst themselves, when viewed in the foreshadow of the motive against two of the three appellants, that the first informant, PW-1, and his family members, that is to say, PW-2 and PW-3 had, it is perilous to accept the prosecution case as one supported by testimony that is free from blemish and dependable.

87. The motive for the informant and his family members, to wit, PW-2 and PW-3, the eye-witnesses, to falsely implicate the appellants, is the fact that these men were charged with ravishing the first informant's daughter and convicted in that case. In these circumstances, for the first informant and the two eye-witnesses, who are blood-relatives of the victim in the earlier case, to falsely implicate the appellants, Kale and Bablu, if they did not see the assailants of this case at all, cannot be ruled out. PW-2, who is an injured witness, has acknowledged at the end of his testimony that all of them were asleep and did not know anything. Therefore, for the victims, it was a blind case, where they did not know who were the assailants. The witnesses, placed in these circumstances, harboured, as they would, a good amount of animosity against appellant Nos.1 and 2 on account of these two men being involved in ravishing the informant's daughter and the witness's sister are interested witnesses. Their testimony, therefore, which is otherwise found inherently unreliable, improbable and contradictory, cannot at all be accepted.

88. So far as the motive against the appellant, Anil, is concerned, it has figured in the cross-examination of PW-3, Babita, that there was some dispute and sharp exchange of words between him and the first informant over the issue of dumping garbage. The witness has said that her father, the informant, bears animosity against Anil. The Trial Court has discarded this consideration for a motive because the learned Judge thought that animosity is something which the informant, PW-1, could have himself spoken of and not his daughter.

89. We do not think that that is a correct approach to the understanding of the informant's motive. An animosity of this kind is known to one and all in the family, spoken of to family members, felt and shared by them. It is not something that is absolutely unknown to others and known only to the first informant, who is said to have quarrelled with the appellant, Anil. The only doubt that may arise is if a neighbourhood quarrel was motive enough to implicate in such a case. Once we have found that nobody knew anything about the identity of the assailants with the eye-witnesses giving inherently improbable and contradictory accounts, the feeling of vengeance and frustration that the informant and other members of the family would have felt, could be motive enough to implicate the appellant, Anil too, against whom they bore a grudge.

90. The fact that the grudge, if any, was on a trivial cause, which could not lead to a false implication in such a serious case, would be a consideration very relevant, if the informant or any member of his family had seen the real assailants and known their identity. If their identity was unknown and it was a blind case, false implication of the appellant Anil, alongside others, whatever grudges were harboured against him, could be motive enough to falsely implicate. This is certainly a strong possibility and probability.

91. This fact taken together with an ante-timed FIR, that was admittedly lodged after consultation with residents of the village, probalises a tainted prosecution against the appellants.

92. All that we have said about the doubt created as to the prosecution on account of an ante-timed FIR, a motive to falsely implicate, would have been of little consequence, if the eye-witnesses had broadly and consistently proved the prosecution case. But, once they have failed to do that, the possibility of a motivated implication, accentuated by an ante-timed FIR, puts the prosecution case under a shadow of grave doubt.

93. It is too well settled for a principle of the law that in a criminal case, after all, it is the prosecution, who have to establish the case beyond all reasonable doubt, and, it cannot be held proved on probabilities or weaknesses of the defence.

94. In the totality of circumstances, we hold that the prosecution have not been able to prove the case against the appellants beyond all reasonable doubt. They are entitled to the benefit of doubt.

95. In the result, these appeals succeed and are allowed. The impugned judgment and order dated 04.09.2014 passed by the Additional Sessions Judge, Court No.1, Bulandshahr in Sessions Trial No.1316 of 2010 (arising out of Crime No.157 of 2010), under Section 326 read with Section 34 and Section 304 read with Section 34 IPC, Police Station Khurja Dehat, District Bulandshahr, is hereby set aside. The appellants are in jail. They shall be released from prison forthwith unless wanted in any other case.

96. Before being released, the appellants shall execute personal bonds in the sum of Rs.25,000/- each under Section 481 of the Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023 (corresponding to Section 437-A of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973) for their appearance, in the event of an appeal being preferred against their acquittal.

97. Let the lower court records be sent down to the Trial Court concerned.

THE HON'BLE J.J. MUNIR, J.
THE HON'BLE SANJIV KUMAR, J.

Criminal Appeal No. 2849 of 1987

Virendra		...Appellant
	Versus
State of U.P.		...Respondent

Issue for Consideration

Matter pertains to whether the prosecution had proved beyond reasonable doubt that the surviving appellant Onkar, along with the co-accused, committed the murder of Rajendra under S. 302 read with S. 34 of the IPC, in view of the delay in lodging the F.I.R., presence of the police at the place of occurrence during the night, existence of village partybandi arising out of Gram Pradhan election, and the evidentiary value of interested witnesses.

Headnotes

Indian Penal Code, 1860 - S. 302/34 - Criminal Trial - Murder - Appreciation of Evidence - Common intention - Conviction challenged - Enmity and Party-bandhi - Unexplained delay in lodging FIR, despite police presence at the spot during the night, held to cast serious doubt on prosecution version - Evidence - Interested Witnesses - Conviction based solely on testimony of related witnesses without independent corroboration held unsafe, particularly where material facts are concealed - Investigation - Partybandi and Village Rivalry - Existence of partybandi arising from Gram Pradhan election considered relevant in assessing false implication - Benefit of Doubt - Acquittal - Where prosecution fails to establish guilt beyond reasonable doubt, accused entitled to benefit of doubt.

Held: The FIR lodged belatedly with no explanation for the delay casts a serious doubt over the prosecution case - denial by P.W.1 and

P.W.2 regarding police presence during the night, contrary to police evidence, "appears unnatural, which goes to show that they are hiding true facts from the Court - existence of partybandi due to Gram Pradhan election furnished motive for false implication - Prosecution witnesses being only close relatives, and non-examination of independent witnesses despite availability, rendered their testimony unreliable - prosecution failed to explain material inconsistencies regarding second part of incident, use of ballam, setting fire, and conduct of villagers and police - The involvement of appellant/convict in the offence appears to be highly doubtful" and prosecution "failed to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt - Appeal allowed; conviction and sentence set aside; surviving appellant Onkar acquitted under Section 302 read with 34 IPC. (Paras 37, 40-43, 48-49, 54-57) (E-7)

APPELLATE JURISDICTION: Criminal Appeal arising out of judgment and order dated 02.12.1987 passed by the Special/Additional Sessions Judge, Bulandshahar, in Sessions Trial No. 61 of 1986, Police Station Ahmad Garh, District Bulandshahr.

Advs. for the Appellant:

Mr. Krishna Kant Dubey

Advs. for the Respondents:

Mr. Ghanshyam Kumar, learned A.G.A.-I for the State

(Delivered by Hon'ble Sanjiv Kumar, J.)

1. This criminal appeal has been preferred by the appellants, namely, Virendra, Onkar and Ajab Singh @ Bali, against the judgment and order dated 02.12.1987 passed by Mr. N.P. Verma, the then learned Special/Additional Sessions Judge, Bulandshahr, in Sessions Trial No.61 of 1986, under Section 302 read with Section 34 of the Indian Penal Code (for short I.P.C.), Police Station Ahmad Garh,

2. By the impugned judgment and order, the appellant Virandra has been convicted and sentenced to undergo imprisonment for life and a fine of Rs.2000/- for the offence punishable under Section 302 I.P.C. In default of payment of fine, he has been ordered to undergo rigorous imprisonment for one year. The other appellants, Onkar and Ajab Singh @ Bali have been convicted and sentenced to undergo imprisonment for life and a fine of Rs.2000/- each for the offence punishable under Section 302 I.P.C. read with Section 34 I.P.C. In default of payment of fine, they have been directed to undergo rigorous imprisonment for one year each.

3. During the course of the hearing of this criminal appeal, appellants Virendra and Ajab Singh @ Bali have died, and the appeal stands abated against them vide order dated 17.07.2018. This appeal has been heard at the instance of the surviving appellant, Onkar Singh, alone.

4. Brief facts of the prosecution case are that the informant, Ram Ji Lal, son of Leeladhar, resident of village Satbara, Police Station Ahmad Garh, District Bulandshahr, filed a written first information (Ex.Ka-1) on 11.02.1985 at 6:30 a.m. at Police Station Ahmad Garh, stating therein that the marriage of Dayawati, daughter of Rajpal and grand daughter of Devi Ram, was to be solemnized on 13.02.1985. On 10.02.1985, Devi Ram (brother of the informant) went to Bulandshahr to purchase articles for the marriage. In the night at about 8:45 p.m., the informant was lying in the Dewari, while his nephew Rajendra was lying in a room (kotha). In the courtyard, Smt. Shakuntla (wife of Rajendra), Smt. Mehar Shri (wife of Rajpal), Smt. Dayawati (daughter of Rajpal) and some other women of the locality were singing wedding songs. A lantern was lit there, and the main door of the house open. The convicts Virendra, Onkar, and Ajab Singh alias Bali entered the informants house. Virendra Singh caught hold of the informant and asked about the gun belonging to his brother Devi Ram. The informant replied that Devi Ram had taken it along with him to Bulandshahr. Meanwhile, Onkar and Ajab Singh alias Bali caught hold of Rajendra and Ajab Singh alias Bali, attacked him with a lathi. The women ran inside the room. The informant, Rajendra and others raised alarm and caught hold of the assailants, but they managed to free themselves and ran outside. In the process, a woollen coat and a woollen sheet from the convicts was snatched. In the pocket of the said coat, a loaded country-made pistol was kept. They bolted the door from inside. Shortly thereafter, all the three accused climbed on their roof through the adjacent house of one Tirkhi. The informant also climbed on the roof. Virendra pulled the dried grass from thatch and set it afire near the staircase. Hearing the commotion, villagers arrived at the spot. Some of them opened fire using their licensed weapons and surrounded the informants house to approach the miscreants. Ram Avtar Singh, Kunwar Sen, Hari Singh, Kanti Prasad, and others raised alarm. Rajendra fired two shots from the jangla (window) and said from within the house that no miscreants were inside, asking them to open the door (from the outside) and save him. In the meantime, Onkar attacked Rajendra with a spear (bhala) from the munder (roof edge) but it was caught by Rajendras wife. Thereafter, Virendra fired at Rajendra with his country-made pistol from the roof-top, causing him injuries. He fell down and died on the spot. After murdering Rajendra, the appellants fled towards the south. The informant went to the police station with the snatched woolen coat, woolen sheet, country-made pistol and cartridges which were taken in custody and a memo (Ext.Ka-2) was prepared. Upon the information laid an FIR was registered as Case Crime No.13 of 1985, Section 302 I.P.C and Section 25 Arms Act, at Police Station Ahmad Garh.

5. The investigation was carried out by P.W.4, Kalyan Singh Yadav, Station Officer (S.O.) P.S. Ahmad Garh, who prepared the inquest report of the deceased and sent the body for post-mortem examination. The Investigating Officer inspected the place of occurrence and prepared its site-plan (Ext. Ka-10). He also collected plain earth and blood-stained earth from the place of occurrence and prepared its memo (Ext.Ka-11). In addition, he collected dried grass stems and kept them in separate sealed boxes, marked as Exhibits 9, 10, and 11. He further collected ash from the fire at the spot and sealed them in a separate box and prepared its recovery memo (Ext. Ka-12). He also prepared the supurdagi nama (Ext. Ka-13) for the lantern, which was stated to have been lit in the house at the time of the incident.

6. P.W.3, Dr. D.B. Singh, conducted the post-mortem examination on the deceaseds cadaver on 12.02.1987 at 3:30 p.m. He found five ante-mortem injuries on the dead body and opined that the cause of death was shock due to excessive bleeding.

7. After recording the statements of witnesses and collecting other evidence, the Investigating Officer filed a charge-sheet under Section 302 IPC against Virendra, Onkar and Ajab Singh @ Bali before the competent court.

8. The concerned court took cognizance of the offence and summoned the accused. They appeared before the Court and the court furnished them copies of relevant prosecution papers under Section 207 Cr.P.C. and thereafter committed the case to the Court of Sessions on 29.01.1986.

9. The accused persons appeared before the Court of Sessions, where Virendra was charged with the offence punishable under Section 302 of the Indian Penal Code (IPC), and Onkar and Ajab Singh @ Bali were charged with the offence punishable under Section 302 read with Section 34 of the IPC. All the accused persons pleaded not guilty and claimed to be tried.

10. The prosecution examined six witnesses in support of the prosecution case: P.W.1, Ramji Lal (brother of the deceased), P.W.2, Shakuntla (wife of Rajendra), P.W.3, Dr. D. B. Singh (conducted post-mortem examination), P.W.4, Kalyan Singh Yadav (Investigating Officer), P.W.5, Constable Daya Chand (scribe of Chik F.I.R.) and P.W.6, Constable Bishambar Singh (carried dead body to post-mortem house).

11. P.W.1, Ramji Lal, is uncle of the deceased Rajendra and also the first informant in this case. He has said in his testimony that he was present at the time of the incident. It has come in his statement that there was enmity between the accused and the informant with regard to election of the Gram Pradhan. In that election, Aidal, father of accused Virendra, contested and Devi Ram had supported his rival Bahori, who won the election. Therefore, the accused bore grudge against the informant and his family. P.W.1 further deposed that the marriage of Rajpals daughter was fixed for 13.02.1985. On 10.02.1985, at about 8:45 p.m., Devi Ram had gone to Bulandshahr, and the informant was lying in his Dubari, while the door of the house was open. Rajendra was inside the house in the eastern Kothri. In the courtyard, Shakuntla, Mohar Shree and other women of the locality were singing wedding songs and a lantern was lit there. The appellants Virendra, Onkar, and Bali entered their house. Virendra caught hold of the informant and asked for the gun belonging to Devi Ram (his brother). The informant said that Devi Ram had taken the gun along to Bulandshahr. Thereafter, Bali and Onkar went inside the house. Bali was carrying a lathi, Onkar had a country-made pistol on him, concealed in his coat and Virendra was also armed with a country-made pistol. Bali struck Rajendra with the lathi and dragged him into the courtyard. Thereupon, Rajendra, his wife Shakuntala, and Mohar Shree caught hold of Onkar and Bali. Virendra also ran inside and they caught hold of all three appellants. The appellants tried to run away and in the process, Onkar's coat and Bali's shawl (chadar) were snatched. The accused then ran outside the house. The informant bolted the door from inside and climbed onto the roof from the staircase. The appellants also climbed on the roof through the house of Tirkhi. Upon hearing the alarm, the villagers gathered outside the house. Thereafter, all the appellants took some dried grass (phoos) and set it on fire on the staircase. Rajendra, from inside the house, told the villagers that there were no miscreants inside and also fired 2-3 rounds from the jangla (window). When Rajendra saw fire on the staircase, he shouted for help and came out into the courtyard. Then Onkar attacked him with a ballam (spear), which was caught by Rajendra's wife. The informant told Virendra that Virendra Bhai, he is not a miscreant, he is my nephew, Rajendra. Don't shoot him. Even then, Virendra shot him, and thereafter, the appellants fled.

12. P.W.1, Ramji Lal, has also deposed that he identified all the accused in the light of a lantern and the light from the fire. Rajendra died on the spot. At about 4:00 a.m., he got a written report scribed by Ram Avatar and put his thumb impression on it. The witness has proved the written information (Tahrir) (Ex. Ka-1) and has stated that he brought the tehrir, as well as the snatched coat, the shawl (chadar), country-made pistol, and cartridges to the police station, where the concerned constable took them into his possession and completed the necessary formalities. He also proved the coat and shawl (chadar) and said that these belonged to the appellant, Onkar, and the country-made pistol and cartridges were found inside the pocket of his coat.

13. P.W.2, Smt. Shakuntla, wife of Rajendra (deceased), has supported the prosecution case and stated that on the fateful night, at about 8:45 p.m., she, along with her sister-in-law (Jethani) Mohar Shree, her niece Dayawati, and other women of the locality were singing wedding songs in the courtyard of her house. A lantern was lit there. Her father-in-law, Ramji Lal, was in the Debari and her husband was lying down in the Kothari. The appellants, Virendra, Bali, and Onkar came over there. Virendra asked Ramji Lal for Devi Rams gun, to which he said that Devi Ram had taken it along with him to Bulandshahr. Then Onkar dragged her husband out of the Kothari, and accused Bali assaulted her husband with three lathi blows on his head. Thereafter, she, her husband, and Ramji Lal caught hold of the appellants. They tried to run away, and in the process, a coat and a shawl (chadar) was snatched away from them. The accused ran outside the house, and her father-in-law bolted the door from inside. The women of the locality, who were singing wedding songs ran inside the kotha. The appellants climbed onto their roof from Tirkhis kothari. Her father-in-law, Ramji Lal, also climbed onto the roof from the staircase. Her husband fired two round of shots from the jangla. The villagers surrounded the house, and someone bolted the door from outside. Thereafter, all the appellants collected some dried grass (phoos) and set it a fire on the staircase. The appellant, Onkar assaulted her husband with a spear (ballam), but she caught hold of it, due to which it did not hit him. Then Virendra shot her husband, as a result of which he fell to the ground and died. She identified the appellants by the light of the lantern and the burning fire.

14. P.W.3 Dr. D. B. Singh, has conducted the post-mortem examination upon the deceased Rajendras body on 12.02.1987 at 3:30 p.m., and found the following ante-mortem injuries:-

During the internal examination, the left collar bone and second rib were found fractured, and both pleura were lacerated. The upper and middle lobes of the right lung were also lacerated.

15. In the opinion of the doctor, the cause of death was shock as a result of excessive bleeding from ante-mortem injuries. He recovered eleven pellets from the lungs, which he sealed in an envelope and handed over to the constable. Dr. D. B. Singh proved the post-mortem report (Ext. Ka-3) and the clothes of the deceased (Ext. 5, 6, and 7). He opined that injuries No. 1 and 2 could have been caused by a lathi, Injury No. 3 was caused by a gunshot, and Injuries No. 4 and 5 were caused by friction.

16. P.W.4, Kalyan Singh, Station Officer, is the Investigating Officer of this case. He has stated that he recorded the statements of the informant and other witnesses. Upon reaching the spot, he found the dead body of the deceased lying in the informants courtyard. He further said that he recorded the statements of Smt. Shakuntala and Ramji Lal and prepared the inquest report, which he proved as Ext. Ka-5. He also prepared the photo nash, challan nash, letter to the C.M.O., a letter to the R.I., and a sample seal, which he proved as Ext. Ka-6 to Ext. Ka-9. He further stated that he inspected the place of occurrence and prepared the site plan, which he proved as Ext. Ka-10. From the place of occurrence, he collected plain earth, blood-stained earth, and dried grass (phoos), which were proved as Ext. 9, 10, and 11 respectively. He also collected ashes from the staircase and the roof, which he proved as Ext. 12. The supurdaginama of the lantern, recovered from the place of occurrence, was proved as Ext. Ka-13. After completing the investigation, he submitted the charge-sheet against the appellants, which he proved as Ext. Ka-14. He further said that a separate case was registered under Section 25 Arms Act, but as no evidence was found in support, he submitted a final report therein. P.W.4 has also deposed at the trial that on 10.02.1985, at about 10:30 p.m., Aidal Singh, son of Pope Singh, who is the father of the accused Virendra and Jogendra son of Maharaj Singh, arrived at the police station by truck and provided certain information, which was entered in G.D. No. 28 at 10:30 p.m. He has proved a copy of the said G.D. entry as Exhibit Kha-1. On the basis of this information, Sub-Inspector Lal Singh Tomar, Constables Dayanand Tyagi, Tope Singh, and Ramesh Chand were sent to village Satbara by the same truck. When he himself reached the house of the informant, the aforesaid police officials were already present there. He has admitted that in the year 1982, there was party-bandhi in village Satbara due to the Gram Pradhan election, one party belonged to Bahori Pradhan and the other to Aidal Singh.

17. P.W.5, Constable Dayanand, is a formal witness. He has scribed the chik FIR on the basis of the written report (Ext. Ka-1) submitted by the informant and entered its gist in G.D. No. 6 dated 11.02.1985. He has proved the chik FIR as Ext. Ka-15 and the copy of the G.D. as Ext. Ka-16.

18. P.W.6, Constable Bishambar Singh, is a formal witness, who has taken the dead body of Rajendra Singh from Satbara to post-mortem house, Bulandshahr for autopsy. He reached Bulandshahr in two hours. It took him some time in police lines. Thereafter, relevant papers were handed over to the doctor, belatedly at 12 noon.

19. The prosecution have produced the following documents during the trial:-

A written report (Exhibit Ka-1), recovery memo regarding the country-made pistol, cartridges, woollen coat, and bed sheet (Exhibit Ka-2), post-mortem report (Exhibit Ka-3), chik report (Exhibit Ka-4), inquest report of the deceased (Exhibit Ka-5), photo nash (Exhibit Ka-6), challan nash (Exhibit Ka-7), letter to C.M.O. (Exhibit Ka-8), letter to R.I. (Exhibit Ka-9), site-plan (Exhibit Ka-10), recovery memo regarding plain earth and blood-stained earth (Exhibit Ka-11), recovery memo regarding ash (Exhibit Ka-12), supurdaginama regarding the lantern (Exhibit Ka-13), charge-sheet (Exhibit Ka-14), chik FIR (Exhibit Ka-15), G.D. No.6 dated 11.02.1985 at 6:30 a.m. (Exhibit Ka-16), G.D. No.8 dated 11.02.1985 at 7:30 a.m., (Exhibit Ka-17) and G.D. No.24 dated 11.02.1985 at 19:30 p.m. (Exhibit Ka-18).

20. The statements of the appellants were recorded under Section 313 of the Code of Criminal Procedure (for short the Cr.P.C.), where they denied the prosecution case. It was admitted that the marriage of Dayawati, daughter of Rajpal, was scheduled for 13.02.1985. They also stated that they had been falsely implicated in this case due to partybandi and that the Investigating Officer had wrongly submitted the charge-sheet against them. They also filed written statements, wherein it was stated that the village Pradhan and the informant with the help of police, had lodged a false report against them. According to them, the real facts were that some unknown dacoits came to the house of Ramjilal, and due to the alarm raised, the dacoits could not commit any loot. This information was given by Aidal Singh and Jogendra Singh at the police station the same night and the police arrived there at about 11:00-11:30 p.m. in the night. The police inquired about the incident, and the people informed them that it had been committed by unknown dacoits. It was also stated that the FIR was lodged belatedly. The witnesses are inimical to them. Ramji Lal is on good terms with Pradhan Bahori and Bahori got them falsely implicated in this case. The deceased, appellant Bali stated that he had nothing to do with the chadar or the gun. He further stated that the unknown dacoits committed marpeet (assault) and murder of Rajendra, and upon information furnished by Jogendra and Aidal Singh, the police reached the house of Ramjilal the same night. He was on inimical terms since 1969 with the deceased appellant, Virendra due to a land dispute between him and Chattri Singh @ Chatar Singh, a brother of full blood

Virendras grandfather of accused. Virendra has stated that he never told Devi Ram that he would not allow Devi Ram to keep his gun. Some unknown dacoits entered Devi Rams house to commit dacoity. Rajendra and others raised alarm. A gun was fired, and the villagers surrounded Devi Rams house confining the dacoits inside. Aidal Singh and Jogendra Singh informed the police the same night and the police reached the spot at about 11:00 11:30 p.m. In the meantime, the dacoits committed marpeet with Rajendra and shot him dead. The deceased appellant Virendra also said that due to partybandi and enmity arising out of the election of the village Pradhan, he had been falsely implicated in this case. The defence has produced certain documents in support of this contention.

21. The Court examined C.W.1 constable Ramesh Chandra and C.W.2 I.O. Kalyan Singh Yadav (after recalling him). C.W.1, Ramesh Chand (Constable) deposed that on 10.02.1985, he was posted at Police Station Ahmad Garh. On that date, he himself along with Constables Top Singh, Dayanand Tyagi, Subhash, and Davendra had reached village Satwara at 11-12 night. There, they reached the house of Ramji Lal and found that Rajendra, the nephew of Ramji Lal, was lying dead. People were saying that Virendra, Onkar and Bali had killed him. S.I. Lal Singh stayed there during the night and kept up inquiring about the incident. At 8-9 a.m. the Kotwal reached there after that they returned to the police station. The villagers were heard to say that dacoits had come to the house of Ramji Lal and killed Rajendra and the appellants were member of the gang of dacoits.

22. C.W.2 Kalyan Singh Yadav (Investigating Officer), in his re-examination, stated that at 10.30 p.m. on the date of incident, Aidal Singh and Jugendra Singh gave information that Ramji Lals house has been surrounded and firing is going on. Thereafter S.I. Lal Singh Tomar proceeded to the place of occurrence the same night at 10.30 p.m. vide G.D. No.28 dated 10.2.1985 and returned at 8:00 a.m. on 11.2.1985 recorded in G.D. No. 10. He has proved a copy of the return G.D. as secondary evidence (Ex. C-1). Aidal Singh is the appellant, Virendras father and Jugendra Singh is the appellant, Onkars brother.

23. The learned Trial Court, after hearing the arguments of both parties and examining the evidence on record, convicted the appellant, Virendra under Section 302 I.P.C. and appellants, Onkar and Ajab Singh @ Bali under Section 302 read with Section 34 I.P.C. and sentenced each of them to the terms already indicated above.

24. Feeling aggrieved by the impugned judgment and order dated 02.12.1987, this appeal has been filed by all three convicts.

25. During the course of the hearing of this criminal appeal, appellants Virendra and Ajab Singh @ Bali have died, and the appeal was ordered to abate at the instance vide order dated 17.07.2018. Therefore, the appeal has been heard at the instance of the surviving appellant, Onkar alone.

26. Heard Mr. Krishna Kant Dubey, learned Counsel for the appellant and Mr. Ghanshyam Kumar, learned A.G.A.-I for the State and perused the record.

27. Learned counsel for the appellant has submitted that learned Trial Court has not properly appreciated the evidence on record, and thus, the impugned conviction and sentence are not sustainable. It is further submitted that the alleged incident occurred in the night of 10.02.1985, and upon receiving information, some police officials arrived at the place of occurrence around 11:00-12:00 the same night. The FIR was lodged the next morning at 6:30 a.m., and there is no explanation for the delay in lodging the FIR. It is next submitted that there was also delay in conducting the post-mortem examination of the deceased, which has not been explained by the prosecution. This raises serious doubt about the prosecution case. It is next contended that some unknown dacoits committed the offence and fled the place of occurrence, and later, the informant, with the help of the village pradhan and the police, lodged a false report against the appellants due to partybandi and enmity in connection with village pradhan election.

28. Learned counsel for the appellant has also submitted that if according to the prosecution, the motive of the appellants was to loot Devi Rams gun and they were informed that Devi Ram had taken his gun to Bulandshahr, the appellants would have returned without event. Moreover, if they had intention to murder Rajendra, then they would have done so at the very first instance when, according to the prosecution, they entered the informants house and asked about the gun and beaten Rajendra. Thus, the entire story of the prosecution is doubtful. It is also submitted that according to the prosecution, at the time of the incident some women of the locality were inside the house singing wedding songs. However, none of them had been examined in support of the prosecution case. P.W.1 and P.W.2 are family members of the deceased and, therefore, are highly interested witnesses.

29. It is true for a principle that close family members are not expected to tell falsehood about the complicity of a man in the crime, because they would not wish that the true offender to go unpunished and, therefore, not speak inculpatory about an innocent man falsely. This principle, however, has no application to a case where the evidence shows that nobody saw anything, and against the ones implicated, the family members of the deceased had a grudge or scores to settle. It is in cases, such as these, that a family member of the deceased can verily be called an interested witness.

30. On the other hand, it is submitted on behalf of the State that the prosecution story is proved beyond reasonable doubt. There is no unexplained delay in lodging the F.I.R. The offence was committed in the night and the F.I.R. was lodged the next morning. Due to fear the informant did not go to the police station to lodge the FIR. The place of occurrence is established. Rajendra was killed. P.W.1 and P.W.2 have witnessed the incident and their testimony is consistent and reliable. Their testimony can not be doubted on the ground that they are relatives of the deceased. There is no reason why the appellants would be falsely implicated in this case. The appellants came at the informants house to commit murder and their relatives went to the police station in advance to mislead the police by giving it the color of a dacoity by unknown men.

31. Upon a consideration of evidence adduced by both the parties and the rival submissions, let us see whether the prosecution has been able to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt. In a criminal case the burden of proof always lies upon the prosecution. The prosecution case is that appellants/convicts came over to the informant's house and committed maarpeet, set the staircase on fire and murdered

Rajendra, the informants nephew, by shooting him dead inside the house. The defence case is that it was some unknown dacoits who came to the informants house to commit dacoity. They beat up Rajendra and when they failed in their attempt they shot him dead and fled away from the spot. Due to party bandi and enmity arising from the village Pradhan election, the appellants have been falsely implicated in this case with the aid of incumbent Pradhan, acting in connivance with the Police.

32. Thus in the present case murder of the deceased Rajendra in the informants house on the fateful night is not disputed by the defence. The defence case is that they were not involved in the commission of the offence. The inquest report of the dead body was prepared at the spot, the next day i.e. 11.2.1985 at 12.30 p.m. The post-mortem was conducted on 12.2.1985 at 3.30 p.m. Thus there is a delay of more than 24 hours in sending the body for post-mortem and this delay is not well explained by the prosecution. According to P.W.3 Dr. D.B. Singh there were 05 antemortem injuries on the body of the nature of lacerated wound, abrasions, multiple gunshot wounds of entry over left side of chest and the cause of death was shock and excessive bleeding as a result of antemortem injuries. In the opinion of the doctor the death may have been caused on 10.2.1985 at 8.45 or 9 p.m. and gunshot injury no.3 was sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death. The I.O. has collected plain earth and blood-stained earth from the place of occurrence which corroborates the ocular testimony regarding the place of occurrence. In view of the above, the place of occurrence is established and the fact that the deceased was murdered inside the house by firearm injuries.

33. Let us see whether the appellants/convicts committed the offence as alleged by the prosecution. As per the prosecution the incident took place on 10.02.1985 at about 8:45 p.m. at the house of the informant, Ramji Lal, in village Satbara, Police Station Ahmad Garh, District Bulandshahr. The FIR was lodged the next morning at 6:30 a.m. by the informant. According to the Chik FIR the distance from the place of occurrence to the police station is about 7 kilometers. A perusal of the FIR shows that it does not contain any explanation regarding the delay. The first submission on behalf of the appellants is that there was delay in lodging the FIR and no explanation for the delay has been given which raises serious doubts about the prosecution case and as the assailants were unknown to the informant so he has falsely implicated the appellants due to partybandi and enmity arising out of village Pradhan elections.

34. P.W.1 the informant Ramji Lal has stated that at about 4 a.m. the tehrir was written by Ram Autar at his dictation and on that basis he lodged the FIR. On the other hand the I.O. Kalyan Singh has stated on oath that the father of the accused Virendra, namely Aidal Singh, alongwith one Jogendra, brother of co-accused Onkar, had reached Police Station Ahmad Garh the same night at 10.30 p.m. by truck and informed the police that the house of Ramji Lal is surrounded by miscreants (badmaash) and there ongoing assault by gunfire. The said information was duly entered in the General Diary of the police station and Sub-Inspector Lal Singh Tomar, along with three other police officials, proceeded by the same truck to village Satbara. P.W.4, I.O. Kalyana Singh has stated that S.I. Lal Singh Tomar, Head Constable Dayanand Tyagi, Constable Top Singh, and Constable, Ramesh Chandra were sent from the police station to the said village, Satbara, the same night.

35. The Court has examined C.W.-1, Constable, Ramesh Chandra, who accompanied S.I. Lal Singh Tomar to village Satbara. He has stated that they reached the village at about 11-12 in the night and went to the house of Ramji Lal, where his nephew Rajendra was found lying dead. He further stated that they stayed in the village throughout the night and returned to the police station when the Station Officer (Daroga) arrived there at about 8-9 a.m., the next morning.

36. In view of the above evidence, it is clear that after the alleged incident, the police reached the house of the informant at about 11:00 p.m. to 12 midnight the same night, upon information by relatives of the appellants Virendra and Onkar. The police remained present in the village throughout the night and saw the dead man lying in the informants house. If the assailants were known to the informant and so to the Police, then it is quite unusual that neither the informant lodged any F.I.R. during the night nor the police started investigation into this crime till the next morning. Despite presence of the police in village the entire night, the informant did not go to the police station to lodge the FIR the same night. The presence of police should have removed the fear, if any, the informant had in proceeding to police station to lodge an FIR. It was quite unnatural for him to wait for the night to be over and lodge the FIR the next morning.

37. It is also relevant to note that P.W.1, Ramji Lal and P.W.2, Shakuntala, the wife of the deceased, are the only two public witnesses examined by the prosecution. Both of them are relatives of the deceased. Surprisingly, both of them have denied that the police had reached their house the same night. P.W.1 has stated that the police did not reach the village before the report was lodged. He has denied that the Police came to his house at 11:00 or 11.30 p.m. He has expressed ignorance about the fact that Aidal Singh and Jogendra went to police station and called the Police. P.W.2 has stated that no policeman came to her house at 11-12 in the night. The Police came the following morning at 8-9 a.m. The above statements of P.W.1 and P.W.2 are contrary to the evidence of Police Officials, who have said that the Police came to village the same night at 11-12. So denial of the Polices presence on the fateful night in the village by P.W.1 and P.W.2 appears unnatural, which goes to show that they are hiding true facts from the Court. Thus, there is unexplained delay in lodging the FIR.

38. The effect of delay in lodging the FIR has been discussed by Supreme Court in various pronouncements. In Thulia Kali v. State of Tamil Nadu 1972 (3) SCC 393, it was held by the Supreme Court that delay in lodging the First Information Report often results in embellishment which is a creature of after-thought. On account of delay the report not only gets bereft of the advantage of spontaneity, danger creeps in of the introduction of coloured version and an exaggerated account of the correct story as a result of deliberation and consultation. It is also held that in order to avoid all criticisms of the defence, it is therefore essential that the delay in lodging of the First Information Report should be satisfactorily explained.

39. Further, the Supreme Court in Meharaj Singh (L/Nk.) v. State of U.P., (1994) 5 SCC 188, has observed in para 12 of the report:

“FIR in a criminal case and particularly in a murder case is a vital and valuable piece of evidence for the purpose of appreciating the evidence led at the trial. The object of insisting upon prompt lodging of the FIR is to obtain the earliest information regarding the circumstance in which the crime was committed, including the names of the actual culprits and the parts played by them, the weapons, if any, used, as also the names of the eye witnesses, if any. Delay in lodging the FIR often results in embellishment, which is a creature of an after thought. On account of delay, the FIR not only gets bereft of the advantage of spontaneity, danger also creeps in of the introduction of a coloured version or exaggerated story. With a view to determine whether the FIR, was lodged at the time it is alleged to have been recorded, the courts generally look for certain external checks. One of the checks is the receipt of the copy of the FIR, called a special report in a murder case, by the local Magistrate. If this report is received by the Magistrate late it can give rise to an inference that the FIR was not lodged at the time it is alleged to have been recorded, unless, of course the prosecution can offer a satisfactory explanation for the delay in despatching or receipt of the copy of the FIR by the local Magistrate. Prosecution has led no evidence at all in this behalf. The second external check equally important is the sending of the copy of the FIR along with the dead body and its reference in the inquest report. Even though the inquest report, prepared u/s 174 Cr. P.C. is aimed at serving a statutory function, to lend credence to the prosecution case, the details of the FIR and the gist of statements recorded during inquest proceedings get reflected in the report. The absence of those details is indicative of the fact that the prosecution story was still in embryo and had not been given any shape and that the FIR came to be recorded later on after due deliberations and consultations and was then ante timed to give it the colour of a promptly lodged FIR."

40. In view of the legal position that emerges from the above discussion, the FIR lodged belatedly with no explanation for the delay casts a serious doubt over the prosecution case.

41. The Investigating Officer has stated on oath that since 1982, due to the election of the village Pradhan, there has been partybandi in village Satbara. One faction supports Bahori Pradhan and the other stands by Aidal Singh, the father of the appellant, Virendra Singh. It has come in the statement of P.W.1, Ramji Lal, that he and Devi Ram had supported Bahori Pradhan, who won the Pradhan election, while the appellant Virendra's father, Aidal Singh, lost the election. Therefore, from the above evidence, it is clear that there is partybandi in the village, and due to the election of the Pradhan, both parties were not on good terms with each other. Thus there was reason for the informant to falsely implicate the appellants in this case.

42. The prosecution has produced P.W.1, Ramji and P.W.2, Shakuntala as the only witnesses of fact. Out of them, P.W.1 is the informant and uncle of the deceased and P.W.2, Shakuntala is the wife of deceased. Both are related witnesses and hence what are called interested witnesses. Their evidence is to be carefully examined, particularly when there were other women and also some villagers present at the time of incident near the place of occurrence. Surprisingly, the prosecution has not examined any independent witness. Though both the above witnesses have supported the prosecution case and are mostly consistent in their testimony regarding some facts but the attending circumstances, other evidence contrary to it and concealment of important facts by these witnesses, raises doubt over their testimony. Thus, their testimony is not reliable. P.W.1 has stated that he did not see miscreants assault Rajendra with a lathi and he himself was not beaten by them. The I.O. has stated that P.W.2 Shakuntala did not tell him that Virendra caught hold of her husband and asked for the gun. Shakuntala also did not tell him that Onkar dragged her husband into the courtyard and Bali hit Rajendra with a lathi. Thus it appears that her statements before the Court on these points are

43. Here, it is also relevant to note that the Investigating Officer has admitted that in Case Diary No.III, he had recorded that there was no evidence against the accused, and they were arrested merely because their names were mentioned in the FIR. He has further stated that different persons were giving different versions regarding the incident. Some were also saying that the accused were not involved in the offence. He has also stated that other women who were singing wedding songs were also interrogated but they were not arrayed as witness because they stated that the incident has occurred but did not name any person while others were saying otherwise. C.W.1 Constable, Ramesh Chandra has also stated that villagers were saying that dacoits ravaged Ramji Lal's house and killed Rajendra and that appellants, Virendra, Bali and Onkar were also among those dacoits (bandits). He has also stated that they did not go to the appellants house to apprehend them. The statement of C.W.1 is contrary to the statement of P.W.1 and P.W.2, who have not stated that some dacoits came and killed Rajendra. Additionally, if the names of the appellants were divulged to the Police the same night, why the Police never went to their house to apprehend them or inquire of them, is not clarified by the prosecution. It creates doubt about the prosecution case and gives weight to the defence that with regard to the incident the names of assailants were not known to anybody.

44. It is relevant to note that the appellants reside in the same village. It is not the case of the prosecution that the accused entered inside the informants house with their faces covered with masks. Therefore, according to the prosecution itself, there was no intention on the appellants part to conceal their identity while committing the alleged offence. According to the prosecutions case, after entering the house, the appellant, Virendra asked the informant Ramji Lal for Devi Rams gun, saying that they would not allow Devi Ram to keep the gun. P.W.1, Ramji Lal, stated that he informed them that the gun was not with him and had been taken by Devi Ram to Bulandshahr. In this regard, the learned counsel for appellant submits that if the appellants intention was to take the gun belonging to Devi Ram they would have left after learning that it was not in the house. There was no reason for them to remain in the house, and thereafter, commit the said crime. It is also submitted that if the common intention of the appellants was to kill Rajendra then they could have easily killed him or attempted to kill in the very first instance when they had entered the house, armed with lathi and country-made pistols and even caused lathi blows to Rajendra.

45. According to the prosecution case, the incident occurred in two parts. In the first part, the accused entered inside the informants house and demanded the gun, which the informant told them was not there. They then beat up Rajendra with lathi and when the inmates of the house tried to capture them, they fled the house. The second part is that after leaving the house, they climbed on the roof of the informants house from Bahoris adjacent house. The appellant, Onkar attacked Rajendra with a ballam (spear) unsuccessfully from the roof, whereas the appellant, Virendra shot Rajendra, also from the roof. According to the statements of P.W.1, Ramji Lal and P.W.2, Shakuntala, the appellants pulled out the dried grass from the thatch and set it on fire on the staircase. The aforesaid version of the prosecution is hard to believe.

46. It has come in evidence that after the first incident, the informant, Ramji Lal, bolted the house from inside, and the villagers surrounded it; some of them also opened fire. Some villagers were also on the roof. According to P.W.1 when the appellants ran outside the house he bolted the door from inside and climbed on his roof and raised alarm. Then appellants, Virendra, Onkar and Bali also climbed on the roof from the adjacent house of Tirkhi. He has also stated that he remained on the roof till the assailants remained there. Some villagers were also on the roof. Before the appellant, Virendra opened fire, the roof was dug by villagers to rescue the children. Kanti, Kunwar Sain, Hari Singh and Ram Avtar, the villagers were also on his roof. According to P.W.1 when the appellant, Virendra shot Rajendra, he himself was standing close to Virendra and said that he told Virendra that "वीरेंद्र भाई ये बदमाश नहीं है, मेरा भतीजा राजेंद्र है इसको गोली मत मार, मेरे इतना कहने पर भी वीरेंद्र ने उसको गोली मार दी. "The above statement of P.W.1 shows that he is concealing material facts. There is no earthly reason why he would say to the appellant Virendraये बदमाश नहीं है'. It shows that some miscreants (badmaash) came there whose presence is deliberately concealed by P.W.1 and P.W.2. P.W.1 has also stated that some villagers were saying that बदमाश अंदर है' and the deceased was saying that कोई बदमाश अंदर नहीं है. He has also said that the appellants were on the roof and Virendra was aiming to shoot Rajendra and he himself was standing close to Virendra. It is surprising that appellant, Virendra did not do any harm to informant though he was standing on the roof near them. In this regard the statement of P.W.2, Shakuntala is material wherein she has stated that when the miscreants were on the roof then her husband, Rajendra was saying that " If the appellants were involved in the crime, residing in the same village and not covering their face and had come asking for gun then certainly appellants were known to the deceased prior to the incident. So there was no occasion for him to have asked his wife to save him for once and that he had identified the appellants whom he would take care of in the morning. This creates doubt if the appellants were at all involved in the offence.

47. Further, if the intention of the accused was to commit Ragendras murder, there was no need for them to set fire to the staircase by drawing dried straw from the thatch. It is also relevant to mention that it has come in evidence that a hole was found dug in a portion of the roof of the informants house. It is submitted on behalf of appellants that this hole was made by unknown dacoits to commit dacoity. But according to P.W.1, the hole was made by the villagers to rescue the children trapped inside the house. However, there is no evidence that any child was actually taken out through this hole. There is no evidence regarding how many children were inside the house. P.W.1, further stated that the hole in the roof was made by villagers prior to Virendra shooting the deceased. If the informant and the appellants were on the roof at the same time with some villagers and till then the appellant, Virendra had not opened fire killing the deceased then the digging of a hole on roof by the villagers appears quite unnatural and it would have taken some time also. Whereas it would have been much easier for the villagers to unbolt the door of the house from outside and rescue the inmates. There is also no evidence from the prosecution to show that the fire was near the main door of the house, preventing the inmates from opening it from inside. Therefore, the entire story put forward by the prosecution appears to be highly unnatural whereas the version of defence appears quite probable.

48. It is also relevant to mention that the Police remained in the village during the entire night, but there is no evidence to show that they went to the appellants house to inquire about the incident or apprehend them. Had it come to the knowledge of the Police the very night that the appellants had committed the offence, the Police would certainly have gone to their house to apprehend them. It is further relevant that the appellants were arrested two days later from their own house in the same village by the Investigating Officer. If the appellants had actually committed the offence, they would have absconded and fled houses rather than stay back to be arrested.

49. It is also pertinent to note that, as per the prosecution, the appellants had entered the informants house armed with a country-made pistols and a lathi. The evidence reveals that during the second incident, when appellants were on the roof, the appellant, Onkar allegedly attacked with a ballam (spear). The prosecution have not explained how and from where the ballam came into possession of the appellants, as they were not stated to be armed with such a weapon at the time of entering in the informants house. It is also relevant to note that P.W.1 and P.W.2 have stated that they did not see the village Pradhan, Bahori, during the night, and it is the case of the appellants that they have been falsely implicated in this case at the instance of Bahori, the village Pradhan. It has come in evidence that during the incident a large number of villagers had surrounded the house of the informant and some of them were also on roof and later the Police also reached there and remained in the village the entire night, inquiring about the incident. But, in view of testimony of P.W.1 and P.W.2, it is surprising and quite unnatural that Bahori, the village Pradhan did not reach at the place of occurrence until morning and came there after the Police had left the place. It is not the case of the prosecution that Bahori pradhan was not present in the village during the fateful night. It shows that P.W.1 and P.W.2 are hiding the presence of Bahori, the village pradhan, before the Court which gives weight to the defence case that in connivance with Bahori pradhan the appellants were falsely implicated in this case; and, to hide his active role in lodging the concocted FIR, his presence at the place of occurrence during the night was deliberately suppressed.

50. It is submitted on behalf of the prosecution that in a pre-planned manner the appellants came over to the informants house to commit murder and their relatives, Aidal Singh and Jogendra went to the police station in advance to mislead the Police by giving it the colour of a dacoity by unknown offenders.

51. This submission is hard to believe. It is very unlikely that under a stratagem two persons would go to the police station in advance to inform the police that a dacoity was being committed and take the Police to the spot with them, while others sharing a common intention would commit murder in the manner stated by the prosecution to give it the colour of a dacoity. If this were the case, the appellants would have concealed their identity and committed murder at the first instance itself, and if their attempt was foiled by the inmates of the house, they would have run away rather than climb on the roof and attempt again in front of the informant and the villagers who had surrounded the house and some of them, including the informant, were standing on the roof also. If the appellants were not hiding their identity then there was no reason for their relatives to go to the police station in advance and bring the police with them because their intention to give it the colour of a dacoity would not have served the purpose as villagers would have told the Police that it was the appellants who had committed the offence.

52. In the present case, as per the prosecution, during the first part of the incident, a coat belonging to appellant, Onkar and a shawl (chadar) belonging to appellant, Ajab Singh @ Bali was snatched from them. The informant produced these articles at the police station at the time of lodging the FIR. It is further the case of the prosecution that a country-made pistol and cartridges were inside the pocket of the said coat belonging to appellant, Onkar. Accordingly, the FIR was also registered under Section 25 of the Arms Act. However, during investigation, the Investigating Officer found no evidence to establish that the country-made pistol and the cartridges belonged to appellant, Onkar and, therefore, he submitted a final report (closure report) in respect of the offence under Section 25 Arms Act. This circumstance also weakens the prosecution case regarding the involvement of the appellants, particularly, the surviving appellant Onkar, in the commission of the offence. The role attributed to appellant, Onkar is only that of assaulting with a ballam, which is doubtful as it is not the case of prosecution that he was carrying ballam when he entered in the house. How the ballam came into his hands is not clarified by the prosecution. During investigation, the Investigating Officer has not found any evidence in this regard and submitted a final report under Section 25 Arms Act.

53. Therefore, from the evidence adduced by parties, it appears that some unknown men may have entered the informant's house to commit dacoity. The attempt to commit dacoity was resisted by the inmates of the house. The villagers also reached there and during the scuffle, Rajendra was beaten and shot dead. As the dacoits were not known to the informant so in order to take advantage of village rivalry and enmity due to the Gram Pradhan election, he falsely implicated the appellants in the present case; an opportunistic implication as it seems.

54. In view of the discussion made above, the involvement of appellant/convict in the offence appears to be highly doubtful. The prosecution has failed to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt, and it has not been established that the appellant, Onkar, along with others, entered into the informants house and committed the murder of Rajendra. Thus, the learned Trial Court failed to appreciate the evidence in the correct perspective and has illegally convicted and sentenced the appellant, Onkar.

55. The finding of Trial Court with regard to delay in lodging the F.I.R. is not well founded either; it is against the evidence on record. The finding of the Trial Court regarding a pre-planned assault by appellants and an FIR by the relatives of appellants to give it the colour of a dacoity is also unfounded and against the evidence on record. The learned trial court failed to appreciate the evidence in right perspective and the finding of guilt was recorded on conjectures. In view of the above, the impugned judgment and order is liable to be set aside and the sole surviving appellant Onkar deserves to be acquitted of the charge for the offence punishable under Section 302 read with 34 IPC.

56. In view of the above, the instant criminal appeal is, accordingly, allowed. We set aside the judgment and order dated 02.12.1987 passed by the Trial Court and acquit the surviving appellant, Onkar, of the charge under Section 302 read with 34 IPC.

57. The appellant, Onkar is on bail. His bail bond is cancelled and the sureties discharged. The appellant, Onkar need not surrender.

58. Let a copy of this order be sent to the Trial Court concerned along with the Trial Court record for information and necessary compliance.

DATED: ALLAHABAD 19.12.2025

THE HON'BLE KSHITIJ SHAILENDRA, J.

Criminal Revision No. 4925 of 2024

Hamid & Ors. ...Revisionists
Versus
State of U.P. & Anr. ...Opposite Parties

Issue for Consideration

Issue pertains to whether the Sessions Court was justified in law in allowing the application u/s 319 CrPC and summoning the revisionist - applicants to face trial, despite repeated earlier rejections of similar applications, and without duly considering the effect of the Supreme Court's order clarifying that dismissal of the SLP would not amount to an expression on merits, particularly in the light of the evidentiary material on record, including cross-examination of prosecution witnesses and the settled parameters governing the exercise of power u/s 319 CrPC.

Headnotes

Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 - ss. 161, 319 - Indian Penal Code, 1860 - ss. 147, 148, 149, 302, 307, 352, 504 - The case arises out of an incident of murder dated 19.05.2020, in respect of which an FIR was lodged on the same day naming ten accused persons, with one more added during investigation, although the present revisionist/applicants were named in the FIR, they were exculpated during investigation on the basis of statements of certain independent witnesses and consequently not charge-sheeted - Repeated attempts were thereafter made by the informant/opposite party no. 2 to summon the applicants first at the stage of cognizance, then after committal, and subsequently through multiple applications u/s 319 CrPC each of which was either rejected or deferred by the courts below until an application dated 25.07.2023 was rejected on merits by the Sessions Court - That rejection was set aside by High Court on 08.07.2024 with a direction to reconsider the matter in light of the judgment in Sandeep Kumar v. State of Haryana - While the applicants' challenge to the said remand order was pending before the Supreme Court, and despite the Supreme Court's order dated 14.08.2024 clarifying that dismissal of the SLP would not amount to an expression on merits or on the role of the applicants, the Sessions Court proceeded to allow a fresh application u/s 319 CrPC on 17.08.2024 and summoned the applicants to face trial, which summoning order was challenged in the instant criminal revision.

Held: Once the Hon'ble Supreme Court, while dismissing the SLP had clarified that the impugned judgment and the dismissal of SLP would not be treated as an expression of opinion on the merits of the case, including the alleged role of the petitioners (applicants), in the opinion of this Court, all questions of fact and law would be open to be raised by the applicants before the Sessions Court pursuant to the remand made by the High Court and, therefore, making cursory reference to the cross examination of PW-1, PW-2 and PW-3, without even indicating as to what they had stated about role of the applicants, allowing application u/s 319 CrPC, does not appear to be justified - Court found it to be a fit case where the matter has to be reconsidered by the Sessions Court after taking into consideration the observations made by the Supreme Court in the order dated 14.08.2024 passed in SLP (Criminal) No. 10780 of 2024, entire material on record, including cross-examination of witnesses significance whereof has been emphasised by the Supreme Court in its decisions - Thus, criminal revision allowed, impugned order set aside. Case Arising From

REVISIONAL JURISDICTION: Criminal Revision No. - 4925 of 2024

From the Judgment and Order dated 17.08.2024 passed by the Sessions Court, Meerut in S.T. No. 574 of 2020 arising out of Case Crime No. 126 of 2020, Police Station Mundali, Meerut

Appearances for Parties

Advs. for the Revisionist:

Gaurav Kumar Srivastava, M.N. Singh, Mahesh Narain Singh, Satya Prakash Rai, Vimlendu Tripathi

Advs. for the Opposite Party:

G.A., Sushil Dubey

(Delivered by Hon'ble Kshitij Shailendra, J.)

1. Heard Shri Vimlendu Tripathi, learned counsel assisted by Shri Gaurav Kumar Srivastava and Shri Satya Prakash Rai, Advocates appearing for the applicants in revision, Shri Rajesh Kumar Rao, learned A.G.A. for the State and Shri Sushil Dubey, learned counsel appearing for opposite party No. 2.

2. The present revision under Section 397/401 CrPC has been filed by three persons challenging the order dated 17.08.2024 whereby an application 133-Kha filed by opposite party no. 2 under Section 319 CrPC has been allowed by the Sessions Court and the applicants have been summoned to face trial under Sections 147, 148, 149, 302, 307, 352, 504 IPC in S.T. No. 574 of 2020 (State Vs. Abubakar and others) arising out of Case Crime No. 126 of 2020, Police Station Mundali, District Meerut.

3. The case has a long history and various proceedings right from lodging of FIR till passing of the order impugned and even subsequent thereto, need reference in a chronological manner.

4. In relation to an incident of murder occurred on 19.05.2020, a First Information Report was lodged on the same day at 20.42 hours indicating occurrence at 19.30 hours. Ten (10) persons were named in the FIR and name of one person, namely, Niyaz was added during investigation, bringing the total number of accused to eleven (11). The applicants, though named in the FIR, their names were expunged during the course of investigation as their presence on the spot was not found. As a result thereof, charge sheet was submitted only against 8 persons.

5. When the charge sheet was submitted before the Chief Judicial Magistrate, Meerut, an application was moved by opposite party no. 2 requesting summoning of the applicants mentioning that their names were wrongly expunged. The said application was disposed of by order dated 09.07.2020 by referring to the statements recorded under Section 161 CrPC indicating as to whether the applicants had aided in commission of crime or not, the same was a matter of trial which would be considered after evidence is led.

6. After the matter was committed to the court of Session, another application (6-Kha) was moved by opposite party no. 2 praying for summoning of the applicants, however, the same was rejected by the Sessions Court by order dated 13.05.2022 observing that no additional facts had been brought on record. Thereafter, charges were framed and when examination-in-chief of PW-1 commenced on 06.07.2022 and concluded on 05.12.2022, in the meantime, another application under Section 319 CrPC was moved on 19.09.2022 containing the same prayer for summoning the applicants to face trial. An order was passed by the trial court on 24.02.2023 deferring consideration of the said application till recording of evidence of other witnesses of fact. The said application is said to be still pending.

7. Thereafter, evidence of PW-2 and PW-3 was recorded and before cross examination of PW-3 could be concluded, another application (95-Kha) dated 25.07.2023 was moved by opposite party no. 2 making same prayer for summoning the applicants. The application was opposed by the charge-sheeted accused by filing objections dated 29.08.2023 and, by an order dated 09.10.2023, the same was rejected by the Sessions Court on merits.

8. Opposite party no. 2, being aggrieved of the order dated 09.10.2023, approached this Court by filing Criminal Revision No. 5780 of 2023 (Ajwar Vs. State of U.P. and 3 others), which was allowed by order dated 08.07.2024, setting aside the order dated 09.10.2023 with a direction to the court concerned to pass a fresh order in the light of observations made in the order within one month from the date of presentation of certified copy of the order.

9. Opposite party no. 2 filed another application dated 18.07.2024 (133-Kha) under Section 319 CrPC annexing therewith a copy of the order dated 08.07.2024 passed by this Court and prayed for summoning the applicants. While the said application was posted for consideration, the applicants brought to the notice of the trial court the challenge laid by them to the order dated 08.07.2024 by way of SLP (Criminal) No. 10780 of 2024 before the Hon'ble Supreme Court.

10. On 09.08.2024, an order was passed by the Sessions Court taking note of pending SLP and disposal of application (133-Kha) was deferred fixing 14.08.2024. On 14.08.2024, arguments on application (133-Kha) were heard and the matter was posted for passing order on 17.08.2024, on which date, the order impugned in the instant revision has been passed allowing the application (133-Kha) and summoning the applicants to face trial, as already noted.

11. Learned counsel for the applicants has raised following submissions:-

(i) The Sessions Court proceeded in undue haste and though, on 09.08.2024, taking note of pendency of SLP against the order dated 08.07.2024, disposal of application (133-Kha) was deferred fixing 14.08.2024, on which date the SLP was decided but order was not uploaded that day but the same was uploaded on 17.08.2024, about which also, the Sessions Court was informed on 17.08.2024, the order impugned has been passed in ignorance of the same and, therefore, the order is liable to be set aside on this ground alone.

(ii) The order impugned is based upon the observations made by this Court in the order dated 08.07.2024 without making any reference to the order passed by Hon^{ble} Supreme Court, according to which, all questions on merits were opened to be raised by the applicants with reference to their role in the matter and, therefore, disposal of the application in ignorance of the order of Hon^{ble} Supreme Court, is unsustainable.

(iii) At every stage, the prayer for summoning the applicants was declined by the court, firstly, on 09.07.2020 at cognizance stage, secondly, on 13.05.2022 after committal of the case to the Sessions Court, thirdly, adjudication was deferred by order dated 24.02.2023 awaiting recording of evidence of other witnesses of fact which application is still pending, fourthly, on 09.10.2023, which order, though was set aside in revision but once dismissal of revision has been made ineffective by the Hon^{ble} Supreme Court, the circumstance would be read in favour of the applicants and, hence, passing of the order impugned on the same set of facts and material on record, is wholly unjustified.

(iv) The order impugned is based upon the observations made in the order dated 08.07.2024 passed by this Court and, therefore, the Sessions Court has treated the said order as final, though the same has to be understood in the light of the order passed by the Hon^{ble} Supreme Court and also the law laid down in various judgments relied on by the applicants before this Court as to the exercise of powers under Section 319 CrPC and, therefore, cursory observations made in the order impugned without meticulously examining the record of proceedings, cannot be countenanced.

(v) There are overwritings in the initially moved application/Tehrir dated 19.05.2020 by the informant, not only as to the time of occurrence of the incident but also involvement of the applicant no. 1 and also serious contradictions in the statements of witnesses, particularly cross examination of PW-1, PW-2 and PW-3 which have not been considered by the Sessions Court and, therefore, the ratio laid down in Aarif and others Vs. State of Rajasthan and another: 2023 SCC OnLine SC 1375, Hetram @ Babli Vs. State of Rajasthan and another: 2024 SCC OnLine SC 3509, S. Mohammed Ispahani Vs. Yogendra Chandak and others: (2017) 16 SCC 226, Hardeep Singh Vs. State of Punjab and others: (2014) 3 SCC 92, Brijendra Singh and others Vs. State of Rajasthan: (2017) 7 SCC 706 and Amar Singh and others Vs. State of U.P.: 2024 SCC OnLine All 2234, has not been followed, hence, the order impugned is unsustainable.

(vi) Specific averments made in paragraph no. 60 of the affidavit supporting stay application/memo of revision regarding proceedings held by the Sessions Court on 09.08.2024, 14.08.2024 and 17.08.2024 with reference to the order of Hon^{ble} Supreme Court and information given by the applicants' side to the Sessions Court having not been disputed in the counter affidavit, it is a case where undue haste was shown by the Sessions Court in passing the order impugned and in all propriety, the matter should have been deferred until the order dated 14.08.2024 disposing of the SLP could be brought on record and perused, for which no occasion could arise due to final order passed in haste.

(vii) The High Court, though allowed the revision filed by opposite party no. 2 by order dated 08.07.2024, even if the order of Hon^{ble} Supreme Court dismissing the SLP and also the observations made thereafter are ignored, the observations and findings recorded in paragraph nos. 50, 51 and 52 of the order of this Court clearly read in favour of the applicants and, hence, even if the High Court's order was to be relied on by the Sessions Court, the said observations were sufficient to reject the application (133-Kha).

(viii) The presence of the applicants having not been found on the spot as stated by various independent witnesses, three of whom are shown as eye witnesses at Sl. Nos. 6, 7 and 8 of the charge sheet, there was no justifiable reason for the Sessions Court to allow application (133-Kha) merely on the ground that Section 149 IPC has been pressed into service indicating formation of an unlawful assembly in which the applicants were also involved.

(ix) A cross case was registered at Crime No. 361 of 2020 on account of injuries sustained by the defence side, incident in relation where to occurred at 9.00 PM the same day and, in the said case, one Niyaz sustained injuries but he was added as 11th accused in the present case and record of proceedings of the present case read with the proceedings of the cross case reflects absolutely no involvement of the applicants in commission of crime, as alleged, and, hence, the cursory allowing the application (133-Kha) is not according to law.

(x) Reliance placed by this Court while deciding the aforesaid criminal revision by order dated 08.07.2024, on the judgment of Hon^{ble} Supreme Court in the case of Sandeep Kumar Vs. The State of Haryana and another: 2023 LiveLaw (SC) 573 is misplaced as the said judgment has been passed in ignorance of various other decisions on the point of exercise of power under Section 319 CrPC and, for this reason, though SLP was dismissed by Hon^{ble} Supreme Court, dismissal was held to be non-prejudicial to the defence qua role of the applicants to be agitated before the court after remand by the High Court and, therefore, things have to be considered in their entirety, not only on facts but also on the law governing the subject.

12. Per contra, learned AGA submits that all the arguments advanced relate to the questions which may be considered during the course of trial and once the last order rejecting the application under Section 319 CrPC was set aside by the High Court in Criminal Revision, which order was upheld by the Hon^{ble} Supreme Court by dismissing the SLP by order dated 14.08.2024, no illegality has been committed by the Sessions Court in allowing the application based upon critical analysis of material available on record and, hence, no interference is warranted.

13. Learned counsel for opposite party no. 2 has made following submissions:-

(i) The case being a double murder case and the applicants being named in the FIR, expunging their names based upon the statements of independent witnesses, who were not eye witnesses, that the applicants were not present on the spot, in itself, would not be sufficient to reject the application under Section 319 CrPC and, at this stage, only prima facie satisfaction has to be recorded by the court concerned where trial against the persons not charge-sheeted may be felt necessary and, hence, the detailed order passed by the Sessions Court does not call for any interference.

(ii) The applicants would not get any advantage of the order passed by the Hon'ble Supreme Court, inasmuch as their SLP was dismissed and even if certain observations were made by the Hon'ble Supreme Court, the Sessions Court has considered the case of both sides on merits after granting opportunity of hearing to the applicants and has arrived at a lawful conclusion based upon the record of investigation, particularly expunging the names of the applicants merely based upon the statements of independent witnesses.

(iii) Indication made at entries No. 6, 7 and 8 of the charge sheet as regards witnesses, wherein three persons out of others have been described as eye witnesses by the Investigating Officer, is thoroughly misplaced and cannot be considered as the said persons were not indicated as eye witnesses by the informant and Investigating Officer had no competence or authority to indicate their names as eye witnesses. The fact remains that they would be treated as independent witnesses only and once the presence of the applicants and their specific role of causing physical assault and fire arm injury stand reflected not only from the contents of FIR but also in the testimony of witnesses, the same was sufficient to exercise powers under Section 319 CrPC and, therefore, the order impugned does not call for any interference.

(iv) By referring to paragraph no. 28 of the counter affidavit, it is contended that eight (8) so called independent witnesses had been introduced by the Investigating Officer himself and these witnesses falsely stated that it was the month of Ramzan and that the incident took place near mosque at the time of Namaz, whereas, in reality, the incident took place during the lock-down period due to Covid-19 when the mosque was completely closed and, in fact, no such independent witness was present at the place of occurrence nor was it naturally possible. It is further contended that the alleged independent witnesses reside at a distance of 1 Km, 900 mtrs, 800 mtrs and 300 mtrs, which demonstrates that none of the said witnesses was present on the spot and their statements were got recorded on account of collusion in between them and the investigating officer.

14. I have considered the submissions made by learned counsel for the parties and have perused the material available on record.

15. Though it is true that the application of opposite party no. 2 to summon the applicants was rejected at cognizance stage by order dated 09.07.2020 and, after committal, it was again rejected on 13.05.2022 by the Sessions Court and, then, after certain statements were recorded and before the completion of cross-examination of PW-3, adjudication of another application under Section 319

CrPC was deferred by order dated 24.02.2023 awaiting recording of statements of other witnesses of fact, the fact remains that a subsequent application dated 25.07.2023 (95-Kha) was finally rejected on 09.10.2023. The said order was set aside by this Court while allowing Criminal Revision No. 5780 of 2023 by order dated 08.07.2024. It is necessary to reproduce certain portions of the said order, as emphatically argued by learned counsel for the applicants. Paragraphs no. 50, 51 and 52 of the order dated 08.07.2024 are extracted herein under:-

“50. The Court has now to consider as to whether the satisfaction, which is required to be observed by a Court before summoning a prospective accused could have been observed by Court below on the basis of the depositions of PW-1 Ajwar (first informant), PW-2 Abdullah and PW-3 Asjad. Upon evaluation of the depositions of PW-1, PW-2 and PW-3, this Court finds that the statements of PW-1, PW-2 and PW-3 were also recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C. However, when a parallel is drawn in between the statements of aforementioned witnesses recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C. and their depositions before Court below this Court finds that nothing new has been stated by the aforementioned witnesses in their depositions before Court below. On the same material, the prospective accused i.e. opposite parties 2, 3 and 4 herein, who are named in the FIR were exculpated as the independent witnesses examined by the Investigating Officer under Section 161 Cr.P.C., the complicity of the opposite parties 2,3 and 4 was not found to be established in the crime in question.

51. From the perusal of depositions of PW-1, PW-2 and PW-3, it is apparent that nothing new has been stated by aforementioned witnesses than what was stated by them in their statements under Section 161 Cr.P.C.. As such, the caution given by the Apex Court in the case of Brijendra Singh (Supra) to the effect that in case, a witness has also been examined under Section 161 Cr.P.C. then the Court should find out whether something new has emerged in this deposition before Court below and only thereafter proceed to allow the application under Section 319 Cr.P.C. Since the aforesaid caution given by the Apex Court is not satisfied in the present case coupled with the fact that the statement of aforementioned witnesses recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C. stood belied by the statements of the independent witnesses examined under Section 161 Cr.P.C., therefore, no illegality can be said to have been committed by Court below in passing the order impugned.

52. It is thus apparent that the prospective accused i.e. opposite parties 2, 3 and 4 herein were named in the FIR but not charge sheeted. The prosecution has filed an application under Section 319 Cr.P.C. after the statement-in-chief/examination-in-chief of three prosecution witnesses of fact i.e. PW-1 Ajwar (first informant), PW-2 Abdullah and PW-3 Asjad was recorded on the ground that as per the depositions of aforementioned witnesses, the complicity of the prospective accused i.e. opposite parties 2, 3 and 4 herein also stands established in the crime in question. However, the statements of aforementioned witnesses were also recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C., which is similar to their depositions before Court below. As such, nothing new has emerged in the depositions of PW-1, PW-2 and PW-3 before Court below than what was stated by them in their previous statements recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C. The veracity of the statements of aforementioned witnesses recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C. stood belied by the statements of the independent witnesses examined under Section 161 Cr.P.C. namely Mustajab, Masroob, Matloob, Masroof Ali, Mohd. Javed, Sajid and Azhar, who have not implicated the prospective accused in the crime in question as their very presence at the time and place of occurrence was denied by them. As such, up to this stage, the conclusion drawn by Court below to reject the application filed by the prosecution/first informant under Section 319 Cr.P.C. is in consonance with the directions issued by the Apex Court in the case of Brijendra Singh (Supra) and S. Mohammad Ishpahani (Supra)."

16. A perusal of the afore-quoted portions of the order of this Court indicates that the conclusion drawn by the Sessions Court while rejecting the application under Section 319 CrPC was found to be in consonance with the directions issued by the Hon^{ble} Supreme Court in the case of Brijendra Singh (supra) and S. Mohammed Ispahani (supra). However, the reason for allowing the revision and conclusion is contained in paragraphs no. 53 to 60 of the order of this Court, which also need reproduction. For a ready reference, the same are reproduced as under:-

"53. However, subsequently, the Apex Court in the case of Sandeep Kumar Vs. State of Haryana, 2023 SCC OnLine SC 888, has held that in a case under Section 149 IPC, once the presence of prospective accused stands emerged as per the depositions of the prosecution witnesses examined up to the stage of the application under Section 319 Cr.P.C. then in such a circumstance, no other material is required to be looked into for ascertaining the innocence of the prospective accused. As such, the aforementioned judgment has carved out an exception to the ratio laid down by the Apex Court in the Five Judges Bench judgment in Hardeep Singh (Supra), Brijendra Singh (Supra) and S. Mohammad Ishpahani (Supra).

54. As per the depositions of PW-1, PW-2 and PW-3 recorded before Court below, the presence of prospective accused i.e. opposite parties 2, 3 and 4 herein at the time and place of occurrence is fully established. In view of above, the finding returned by Court below qua the innocence of prospective accused that as per the statements of independent witnesses examined during the course of investigation by the Investigating Officer is of no consequence, so far as the summoning of the prospective accused under Section 319 Cr.P.C. is concerned.

55. In view of above, the Court below has committed a jurisdictional error in passing the order impugned inasmuch as, the Court below has clearly ignored the ratio laid down by the Apex Court in the case of Sandeep Kumar (Supra). The Court below has thus exercised its jurisdiction with material irregularity, which has vitiated the order impugned.

56. As a result, the present criminal revision succeeds and is liable to be allowed.

57. It is, accordingly, allowed.

58. The order impugned dated 09.10.2023 passed by Additional Sessions

Judge/Special Judge (E.C. Act), Court No. 2, Meerut, in Sessions Case No. 1126 of 2020 (State Vs., Abubuquar and others), under sections 147, 148, 149, 302, 307, 352, 504, 34 IPC, Police Station-Mundawali, District-Meerut, is, hereby, set aside.

59. The Court below shall pass a fresh order in the light of the observations made herein above within a period of one month from the date of presentation of a certified copy of this order.

60. Considering the facts and circumstances of the case, the cost is made easy. □

17. A bare perusal of the aforementioned paragraphs indicates that the revision was allowed by referring to the decision of Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Sandeep Kumar (supra) and the Sessions Court was found to have committed a jurisdictional error ignoring the ratio laid down in the said case.

18. As to what would be the effect of the order of this Court, is to be seen in the light of order dated 14.08.2024 passed by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in SLP (Criminal) No. 10780 of 2024, filed by the applicants. The said order is reproduced as under:-

“We are not inclined to interfere with the impugned judgment and, hence, the present special leave petition is dismissed.

We, however, clarify that the impugned judgment and the dismissal of the present special leave petition will not be treated as an expression of opinion on the merits of the case, including the alleged role of the petitioners.

Pending application(s), if any, shall stand disposed of.”

19. The Hon'ble Supreme Court, though did not interfere with the order of this Court and dismissed the SLP, while doing so, a clarification was made that the impugned judgment and the dismissal of SLP would not be treated as an expression of opinion on the merits of the case, including the alleged role of the petitioners (applicants herein).

20. In view of the aforesaid, it was incumbent for the Sessions Court to, at least, refer to the order passed by the Hon'ble Supreme Court and understand its implications on the merits of the case (both on facts and law), however, the order of the Hon'ble Supreme Court was not before the Sessions Court. Qua this aspect, reference to the relevant order sheet of the Sessions Trial is necessary. The same reads as under:-

21. A perusal of the order sheet indicates that factum of pendency of SLP was noted by the court on 09.08.2024 and hearing of application (133-Kha) was deferred fixing 14.08.2024. On 14.08.2024, arguments on application (133-Kha) were heard. Admittedly, SLP was decided by the Hon^{ble} Supreme Court on the same day, i.e. on 14.08.2024.

22. At this stage, reference to paragraph no. 60 of the affidavit supporting stay application/memo of revision needs to be made, which is reproduced as under:-

“60. That on 05.08.2024 application was filed on behalf of Learned Counsel appearing on behalf of the revisionist no. 1 seeking an extremely short adjournment in the matter. On the said application 09.08.2024, was the date fixed.

That on 09.08.2024 an application alongwith status report of SLP (Crl) was also filed before the Court below to demonstrate that the tentative date fixed in SLP (Crl) is 14.08.2024.

That on 14.08.2024 when the matter was heard by the Learned Court below post lunch whereupon due intimation was given that the SLP (Crl) has already been decided by the Hon^{ble} Supreme Court a few minutes before whereby direction has been issued to decide the matter on its own merit and without being influenced with the judgment of the Hon^{ble} Court or with the dismissal of SLP (Crl) including the alleged role of the revisionists. As such request was made to grant a short date so that the judgment of the Hon^{ble} Supreme Court may be placed on record. But the Learned Court below was adamant to decide the matter because the time of one month, as per direction of the Hon^{ble} High Court, was coming to an end. On repeated requests the Learned Court below adjourned the matter on 17.08.2024 with an assurance that without looking into the order passed by the Hon^{ble} Supreme Court no further action will be taken in the matter. On 17th, the order of the Hon^{ble} Supreme Court, was uploaded on the official website after 4 in the evening, however the Learned Court below without waiting for the same pass the impugned order in a most arbitrary manner. Copy of order passed by Supreme Court dated 14.08.2024 is being filed herewith and marked as Annexure No. 27 to this affidavit.”

23. The aforesaid paragraph has been responded to in paragraph no. 48 of the counter affidavit filed by the opposite party no. 2. The same reads as under:-

“48. That the contents of paragraph no. 60 of the affidavit is a matter of record describing of the filing of SLP before the Hon^{ble} Supreme Court, hence, needs no comment.”

24. Considering the detailed statement of facts qua the order passed by Hon^{ble} Supreme Court on 14.08.2024 and its uploading after 4.00 PM on 17.08.2024 and insistence on the part of applicants requesting Sessions Court to wait for order of Hon^{ble} Supreme Court and no specific denial of the same in the counter affidavit, the Court has no reason not to accept the statement contained in paragraph no. 60 of the affidavit. Once it is so, the Court finds absolutely no justification on the part of the Sessions Court to show undue haste in passing the final order on the same day, i.e. 17.08.2024 and in all judicial propriety, it should have waited for bringing the order of the Hon^{ble} Supreme Court on record and, then, proceed to decide the application.

25. It further reflects that the order dated 17.08.2024 impugned in the present revision, at so many places, indicates that the same is being passed “in compliance of or in furtherance of the order dated 08.07.2024” passed by the High Court in the revision and no reference of the order of Hon^{ble} Supreme Court and its implication is contained therein. In this background of facts, this Court does not approve the approach of the learned Additional Sessions Judge, Court No. 4, Meerut and finds undue haste on his part in deciding the application (133-Kha).

26. Although, learned counsel for opposite party no. 2 has also tried to defend quick disposal of the application by arguing that the time limit fixed by the High Court was going to expire, the record reveals that this Court, by order dated 08.07.2024, had granted one month time for deciding the application from production of certified copy of the order, which was filed by opposite party no. 2 along with a fresh application (133-Kha) on 18.07.2024 and, if the argument advanced on behalf of opposite party no. 2 regarding expiry of one month time from the date of production of certified copy of the order is accepted on its face value, the time would have certainly expired on 17.08.2024, which was the 30th day from filing of the order of this Court (Month of July being of 31 days). On 17.08.2024, passing of the order by the Hon^{ble} Supreme Court on 14.08.2024 and its late uploading was brought to the notice of the Sessions Court. Heavens would have not fallen if the matter could have been posted after one or two days for perusal of the order passed by the Hon^{ble} Supreme Court and to act accordingly. One month fixed by the High Court could not mean that the application could not have been decided on 32nd day nor could the Sessions Judge, for not deciding the matter on 31st day would have faced contempt proceedings.

27. This Court could have made further observations as regards the undue and unwarranted haste shown by the then Additional Sessions Judge, Court No. 4, Meerut, however, it refrains itself from doing so but with a remark that judiciary must not give rise to any occasion where litigants who approach Courts for redressal of their grievances in accordance with law, start losing faith in this pious institution as it is the last ray of hope for people to get justice by lawful means.

28. As regards merits of the contentions and counter contentions raised by learned counsel for the parties, not only based upon factual position on record but also the law laid down by Hon'ble Supreme Court in various judgments, on perusal of the judgment in the case of Sandeep Kumar (supra), the Court finds that though observations have been made that at the stage of considering an application under Section 319 CrPC, appreciation of the merits of evidence need not be done and one of the charges being of Section 149 IPC, any specific individual role or act is not material, the said judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court when read with the ratio laid down in other previous decisions in the cases of Hetram @ Babli (supra), Aarif (supra), S. Mohammed Ispahani (supra), Hardeep Singh (supra) and Brijendra Singh (supra), it would be revealed that cross-examination of witnesses has been treated as a matter of quite significance even at the stage of consideration of application under Section 319 CrPC. For this purpose, paragraph no. 9 of the judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Hetram @ Babli (supra) is reproduced as under:-

“9. In the facts of the case, the occasion for considering the application under Section 319 of the CrPC arose after the cross-examination of the only eye witnesses was recorded. Therefore, while deciding an application under Section 319 of the CrPC, the Court must consider the cross-examination as well. If an application under Section 319 of the CrPC is made after the cross examination of witnesses, it will be unjust to ignore the same. The power under Section 319 of the CrPC cannot be exercised when there is no case made out against the persons sought to be implicated. In view of the omissions which are material and which amount to contradiction, obviously no Court could have recorded a satisfaction which is contemplated by Section 319 of the CrPC. It is impossible to record a finding that even a prima facie case of involvement of the appellant has been made out.”

29. On the same lines, paragraphs no. 7 and 8 of the judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Aarif (supra) are reproduced as under:-

“7. As far as evidence of PW-1 is concerned, we find that though opportunities were available earlier, the statement of the said witness was recorded very late. The witness admitted that at 4 a.m., when she was in the hospital where the deceased was undergoing treatment, a police constable came. Still, she did not disclose anything about the incident to the police constable. She was in the hospital for the entire night, where a police outpost was there. But she did not disclose anything to the police. In any event, in the earlier round, the High Court did not find evidence of the PW-1 sufficient to sustain the order under Section 319 of Cr.P.C.

8. PW-5 - Shahrookh, in his cross-examination, admitted that he had not seen the incident with his own eyes. Therefore, he is not an eyewitness. PW-6 - Mohammed claims to have seen the incident from some distance. He also claims to have gone to the hospital where the deceased was taken. He did not report the incident to the police, though the deceased was related to him. The respondents also placed reliance on the testimony of PW-7 - Ekaramuddin S/o Chand Mohammed. His statement was recorded three weeks after the incident. Evidence of said witnesses is insufficient to meet the standards of a prima facie case laid down by the Constitution Bench. No other evidence is relied upon by the respondents to support the application under Section 319”.

30. On the same aspect, paragraphs no. 13 and 15 of the judgment of Hon’ble Supreme Court in the case of Brijendra Singh (supra) are extracted as under:-

“13. In order to answer the question, some of the principles enunciated in Hardeep Singh’s case may be recapitulated: Power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. can be exercised by the trial court at any stage during the trial, i.e., before the conclusion of trial, to summon any person as an accused and face the trial in the ongoing case, once the trial court finds that there is some “evidence” against such a person on the basis of which evidence it can be gathered that he appears to be guilty of the offence. The “evidence” herein means the material that is brought before the Court during trial. Insofar as the material/evidence collected by the IO at the stage of inquiry is concerned, it can be utilised for corroboration and to support the evidence recorded by the Court to invoke the power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. No doubt, such evidence that has surfaced in examination-in-chief, without cross-examination of witnesses, can also be taken into consideration. However, since it is a discretionary power given to the Court under Section 319 Cr.P.C. and is also an extraordinary one, same has to be exercised sparingly and only in those cases where the circumstances of the case so warrants. The degree of satisfaction is more than the degree which is warranted at the time of framing of the charges against others in respect of whom chargesheet was filed. Only where strong and cogent evidence occurs against a person from the evidence led before the Court that such power should be exercised. It is not to be exercised in a casual or a cavalier manner. The prima facie opinion which is to be formed requires stronger evidence than mere probability of his complicity.

15. This record was before the trial court. Notwithstanding the same, the trial court went by the deposition of complainant and some other persons in their examination-in-chief, with no other material to support their so-called verbal/ocular version. Thus, the “evidence” recorded during trial was nothing more than the statements which was already there under Section 161 Cr.P.C. recorded at the time of investigation of the case. No doubt, the trial court would be competent to exercise its power even on the basis of such statements recorded before it in examination-in-chief. However, in a case like the present where a plethora of evidence was collected by the IO during investigation which suggested otherwise, the trial court was at least duty bound to look into the same while forming prima facie opinion and to see as to whether much stronger evidence than mere possibility of their (i.e. appellants) complicity has come on record. There is no satisfaction of this nature. Even if we presume that the trial court was not apprised of the same at the time when it passed the order (as the appellants were not on the scene at that time), what is more troubling is that even when this material on record was specifically brought to the notice of the High Court in the Revision Petition filed by the appellants, the High Court too blissfully ignored the said material. Except reproducing the discussion contained in the order of the trial court and expressing the agreement therewith, nothing more has been done. Such orders cannot stand judicial scrutiny.”

31. All the aforesaid judgments deal with the parameters of exercise of powers under Section 319 CrPC but were not discussed in the subsequent judgment in case of Sandeep Kumar (supra) in the light whereof, this Court, while allowing the revision filed by opposite party no. 2, had remitted the matter to the Sessions Court. Once the Hon’ble Supreme Court, while dismissing the SLP had clarified that the impugned judgment and the dismissal of SLP would not be treated as an expression of opinion on the merits of the case, including the alleged role of the petitioners (applicants), in the opinion of this Court, all questions of fact and law would be open to be raised by the applicants before the Sessions Court pursuant to the remand made by the High Court and, therefore, making cursory reference to the cross examination of PW-1, PW-2 and PW-3, without even indicating as to what they had stated about role of the applicants, allowing application under Section 319 CrPC, does not appear to be justified.

32. In view of the above discussion, this Court finds it to be a fit case where the matter has to be reconsidered by the Sessions Court after taking into consideration the observations made by the Hon’ble Supreme Court in the order dated 14.08.2024 passed in SLP (Criminal) No. 10780 of 2024, entire material on record, including cross-examination of witnesses significance whereof has been emphasized by the Hon’ble Supreme Court in the above-referred decisions.

33. Accordingly, the revision is allowed. The order dated 17.08.2024 referred to in second paragraph of this order, stands set aside.

34. The Sessions Court concerned (other than the Presiding Officer who had passed the order dated 17.08.2024 if he is still posted in the said Sessions Division) is directed to pass a fresh order in accordance with law on already moved applications that are on record and in the light of observations made in this order, after hearing the applicants, opposite party no. 2 as well as State on or before 31.03.2026, provided a certified/self attested downloaded copy of this order is filed before the Court concerned in 1st week of January, 2026.

Special Appeal Defective No. 927 of 2025

C/M Dr. Rajendra Prasad Inter College & Anr. ...Appellants

Versus

Shambhu Rao & Ors. ...Respondents

Issue for Consideration

(1) Validity of the impugned order dated 24.05.2022, withdrawing the approval of the petitioner’s appointment after his superannuation on 31.03.2022 and its effect on retiral benefits.

Headnotes

(A) Service law – Post of Assistant Teacher – Appointment – Approval granted and salary was paid upto retirement on 31.03.2022 – During the course, salary was directed to be stopped by District Basic Shiksha Adhikari (D.B.S.A.) on a complaint dated 27.11.2020 made regarding the educational certificate, which was stayed by the High Court in writ petition – Thereafter, the D.B.S.A., after calling record from committee of management, passed the impugned order dated 24.05.2022 withdrawing the approval of the petitioner's appointment – Validity challenged. (E-1)

Held : Once an employee has superannuated, the employer retains no authority to reopen or unsettle the validity of the appointment, except in cases involving fraud or misrepresentation as in our considered view contract of employment ends with retirement of employee and then employer and employee relationship ends – The issue relating to educational qualification, if at all, was required to be examined at the time of initial appointment or approval. Reopening the same after a lapse of about 33 years, particularly after the petitioner's retirement, is ex-facie arbitrary, unreasonable and cannot be justified as per established principles of certainty and finality in administrative action – The withdrawal of approval at such a belated stage is illegal and consequently the petitioner is entitled to all consequential benefits flowing from the subsisting approval of his appointment, including retiral dues in accordance with law. 3. Delay in filing the appeals is condoned.

3. Delay condonation application is allowed.

Order on Appeal

1. Heard Sri K. K. Rao, learned counsel for the appellant, Sri Grijesh Tiwari, learned counsel for the respondent no. 4 and learned Standing Counsel for the State respondents.

2. The appellant in Special Appeal Defective No.927 of 2025 has approached this Court against the impugned order dated 25.08.2025 in Writ A No.1018 of 2025 whereby the learned Single Judge has simply directed to put up the case after the decision of the Special Appeal Defective

No.656 of 2023 filed by the Committee of Management. In connected appeal, which is Special Appeal Defective No.656 of 2023, the appellant has challenged the judgment and order dated 20.12.2022 in Writ A No.10356 of 2022 wherein the petition filed by the petitioner Shambhu Rao was allowed with all consequential benefits.

3. The controversy involved in both special appeals arises out of the same set of facts and relates to the inter se rights of the parties concerning the judgment rendered in Writ A No.10356 of 2022. Since the impugned order dated 25.08.2025 passed in Writ A No.1018 of 2025 is wholly dependent upon the outcome of Special Appeal Defective No.656 of 2023, and both appeals involve overlapping issues of law and fact, we consider it appropriate to hear them together and decide by a common order. Since the main challenge is to the order passed by the learned Single Judge allowing the writ petition of Shambhu Rao and the second appeal arises out of an order passed by learned Single Judge deferring the matter of interest and payment of retirement dues to Shambhu Rao, we take Special Appeal Defective No.- 656 of 2023 as leading appeal.

4. The facts giving rise to these special appeals are that the school was initially established as a Junior High School, catering to classes VI to VIII, and recognized under the Uttar Pradesh Basic Education Act, 1972, which falls within the ambit of the Uttar Pradesh Junior High School (Payment of Salaries of Teachers and Other Employees) Act, 1978. Pursuant to an order dated 13.11.1986 issued by the Assistant Director, Basic Education, Seventh Region, Gorakhpur, three posts of Assistant Teacher were created at the Junior High School level, against which Shambhu Rao along with two more persons, got selected for the appointment. While the appointments of Ram Naresh Tripathi as Assistant Teacher (C.T. Grade) and Deen Bandhu Rao as Assistant Teacher, Urdu (Untrained Trade), were duly approved by the District Basic Education Officer, the appointment of the Shambhu Rao was deferred on the ground that his B.Ed. degree from Maithili University, Darbhanga, Bihar, was not recognized.

5. Subsequently, Shambhu Rao obtained diploma of Vyayam Ratna, equivalent to D.P.Ed., recognized by the Government order dated 18.11.1982, from Maharani Laxmi Bai Vyayam Mandir, Vyayam College, Jhansi, in 1988, following which, Shambhu Rao was appointed to a vacant post of Assistant Teacher. The Manager of the Committee of Management forwarded the relevant records to the District Basic Education Officer, Deoria, by letter dated 02.03.1989, and the appointment was approved on 03.03.1989. Accordingly, the Manager of the Committee of Management issued the appointment order to Shambhu Rao, who joined the post and received the salary admissible to an Assistant Teacher until his retirement on 31.03.2022 upon attaining the age of superannuation.

6. Meanwhile, on 23.12.2020, the District Basic Education Officer, Kushinagar, issued a notice to the Manager/Principal of the institution calling upon them to submit duly verified copies of the educational certificates of the Shambhu Rao. The said notice was issued in compliance with the direction of the District Magistrate, Kushinagar, contained in the order dated 05.12.2020, whereby verification of the Shambhu Rao's educational qualifications was ordered on the basis of a complaint dated 27.11.2020 made by one Rajesh Kumar Singh.

7. Thereafter, by order dated 01.03.2021, the District Basic Education Officer, Kushinagar, directed stoppage of the petitioner's salary pending enquiry on the allegation that the petitioner's B.Ed. certificate was forged. Aggrieved thereby, Shambhu Rao challenged the said order by filing Writ-A No.10319 of 2021, wherein this Court, by order dated 09.09.2021, stayed the operation of the impugned order in that petition and directed payment of salary to the petitioner and during the pendency of the proceedings, the petitioner attained the age of superannuation and retired from service on 31.03.2022.

8. Pursuant to the order dated 09.09.2021, the District Basic Education Officer, Kushinagar, issued a notice to the Manager of the institution calling upon him to produce the original records relating to the appointment of the petitioner. Upon consideration of the response of the Management, the District Basic Education Officer, Kushinagar, passed the order dated 24.05.2022, whereby the earlier approval order dated 03.03.1989 was withdrawn, which forms the subject matter of challenge in the Writ-A No. 10356 of 2022 filed before this Court and the same got allowed in favour of Shambhu Rao. Order passed by this Court in Writ-A No. 10356 of 2022 is under challenge by the management in the connected special appeal.

9. Learned counsel appearing for the appellant in the lead special appeal submits that despite repeated reminders for compliance of the judgment dated 20.12.2022 passed in Writ-A No.10356 of 2022, the respondent authorities failed to release the petitioner's retiral dues, including pension and G.P.F., compelling him to file Contempt Application No.8825 of 2023, consequently Rs. 29,30,443/- was paid to the petitioner in May, 2025, afterwards the contempt application was disposed of.

10. Learned counsel for the appellant further submits that it is matter of fact that the petitioner had superannuated on 31.03.2022 and the retiral benefits were released belatedly on 22.04.2025 and 15.05.2025, therefore, the petitioner claimed interest at the rate of 10% per annum on the delayed payment of G.P.F. as well as on arrears of pension and salary amounting to Rs. 21,90,776/- and Rs. 2,14,048/- respectively, and accordingly filed Writ-A No.10108 of 2025, however, by the impugned order dated 25.08.2025, the learned Single Judge adjourned the matter with observation that the Special Appeal No.656 of 2023 filed by the Committee of Management was pending while granting liberty to the petitioner to approach the Court after disposal of the special appeal filed by the management.

11. Learned Senior Counsel contend that Shambhu Rao had already superannuated on 31.03.2022 and, therefore, the impugned order withdrawing the approval of his appointment, having been passed after his retirement, is per se illegal and without application of mind. He further contends that the issue relating to the petitioner's educational qualification was required to be examined, if at all, at the time of his initial appointment, and reopening the same after an inordinate and unexplained delay of about 33 years is wholly arbitrary and unsustainable in law. Learned counsel further argued that the District Basic Education Officer, Kushinagar, proceeded to pass the impugned order on the premise that neither B.Ed. nor D.P.Ed. was the requisite qualification at the relevant time.

12. Per contra, learned Counsel representing the State Respondents and learned counsel for the management have tried to justify the action taken by authorities while contending that the Shambhu Rao did not possess the requisite qualification to hold the post and as such there is no error as illegality in the order which was impugned in the writ petition filed by Shambhu Rao. Learned counsel appearing for the management contends that the learned single has also erred in law in allowing the writ petition vide impugned judgment and order dated 20.12.2020 and failed to appreciate this fact that the educational authorities including the appellant was having the liberty to proceed against the respondent no.1 even after his retirement as his appointment was found to be the illegal and the respondent no. 1 has found to have been involved in commission of a fraud in obtaining his appointment and also because of the fact that the disciplinary proceedings were already commenced even prior to the retirement of the respondent no. 1 and as such there is no impediment in taking action against the respondent no. 1 even after his retirement.

13. After thoughtful consideration the issue to be decided in these special appeals is that whether the impugned order dated 24.05.2022, whereby approval of the petitioner's appointment was withdrawn after his superannuation on 31.03.2022, is legally sustainable, and whether the same has any effect on retiral benefits, which is the outcome of the services rendered by the employee, which the Shambhu Rao has already rendered.

14. It is not in dispute that the petitioner got retired from service on attaining the age of superannuation on 31.03.2022. The impugned order withdrawing approval of his appointment was passed thereafter, on 24.05.2022. Once an employee has superannuated, the employer retains no authority to reopen or unsettle the validity of the appointment, except in cases involving fraud or misrepresentation as in our considered view contract of employment ends with retirement of employee and then employer and employee relationship ends. In the present case, there is neither any allegation nor any finding that the petitioner had secured approval of his appointment by producing forged or fabricated documents. In the absence of such allegation, the post-retirement exercise undertaken by the District Basic Education Officer is clearly without authority of law.

15. It is also matter of fact that Shambhu Rao's appointment was duly approved on 03.03.1989 and remained operative for more than three decades, during which period Shambhu Rao continuously discharged his duties and was paid salary from the State exchequer. The issue relating to educational qualification, if at all, was required to be examined at the time of initial appointment or approval. Reopening the same after a lapse of about 33 years, particularly after the petitioner's retirement, is ex-facie arbitrary, unreasonable and cannot be justified as per established principles of certainty and finality in administrative action.

16. The submission made by learned counsel for the respondent-State and the management, who is appellant in connected special appeal, that neither B.Ed. nor D.P.Ed. was the requisite qualification at the relevant time does not improve their case, inasmuch as the approval order was consciously granted by the competent authority and was never questioned for decades. Administrative authorities cannot be permitted to undo settled rights after decades of actual service provided by an employee, more so when the employee has got retired.

17. As per legal principles, the order dated 24.05.2022 demonstrates manifest arbitrariness and cannot be sustained in law and therefore the order granting relief to the Shambhu Rao in writ petition is justified. The withdrawal of approval at such a belated stage is illegal and consequently the petitioner is entitled to all consequential benefits flowing from the subsisting approval of his appointment, including retiral dues in accordance with law and therefore the order of this court in contempt application is also well justified.

18. In M.S. Mudhol And Anr. vs S.D. Halegkar And Ors. (1993) 3 SCC 591, the issue was related to the eligibility to occupy the post of the Principal of a Senior Secondary School, which was raised after years of appointment. In this case the Supreme Court held that:

“Whatever may be the reasons which were responsible for the non-discovery of the want of qualifications of the 1st respondent for a long time, the fact remains that the Court was moved in the matter after a long lapse of about 9 years. The post of the Principal in a private school though aided, is not of such sensitive public importance that the Court should find itself impelled to interfere with the appointment by a writ of quo warranto even assuming that such a writ is maintainable. This is particularly so when the incumbent has been discharging his functions continuously for over a long period of 9 years when the court was moved and today about 13 years have elapsed. The infraction of the statutory rule regarding the qualifications of the incumbent pointed out in the present case is also not that grave taking into consideration all other relevant facts. In the circumstances, we deem it unnecessary to go into the question as to whether a writ of quo warranto would lie in the present case or not, and further whether mere laches would disentitle the petitioners to such a writ? “

19. In The State of Andhra Pradesh and Another Vs Smt Dinavahi Lakshmi Kameswari, 2021 INSC 68, the State Government clarified before Supreme Court in the appeal that it was restricting its challenge only to the component of interest which had been imposed by the judgment and order of the High Court Supreme Court has held that:

“14 The direction for the payment of the deferred portions of the salaries and pensions is unexceptionable. Salaries are due to the employees of the State for services rendered. Salaries in other words constitute the rightful entitlement of the employees and are payable in accordance with law. Likewise, it is well settled that the payment of pension is for years of past service rendered by the pensioners to the State. Pensions are hence a matter of a rightful entitlement recognised by the applicable rules and regulations which govern the service of the employees of the State. The State Government has complied with the directions of this Court for the payment of the outstanding dues in two tranches. Insofar as the interest is concerned, we are of the view that the rate of 12% per annum which has been fixed by the High Court should be suitably scaled down. While learned counsel for the respondents submits that the award of interest was on account of the action of the Government which was contrary to law, we are of the view that the payment of interest cannot be used as a means to penalize the State Government. There can be no gainsaying the fact that the Government which has delayed the payment of salaries and pensions should be directed to pay interest at an appropriate rate."

20. Applying the principle laid down by the Supreme Court in State of Andhra Pradesh (supra) to the facts of the present case, it is evident that Shambhu Rao's retiral benefits, including pension, G.P.F., and other dues, constitute a rightful entitlement for services rendered by him over more than three decades. The payment of such dues is mandated by law and the applicable service rules and regulations. The delay in releasing these amounts from 31.03.2022 until 22.04.2025 and 15.05.2025, despite repeated reminders and contempt proceedings, clearly caused financial prejudice to Shambhu Rao. It is well-settled legal principle that delays in payment of salary or pensionary dues, must be paid with interest at an appropriate rate to compensate the employee for the loss caused by such delay. Applying this principle, Shambhu Rao is entitled to receive interest at the rate of six percent per annum on all delayed retiral benefits from their respective due dates until actual payment.

21. In view of the foregoing discussions and consequential findings arrived by us as above, Special Appeal Defective No.- 656 of 2023 is hereby dismissed.

22. Since we have upheld the judgment of learned Single Judge challenge in this appeal, Shambhu Rao's appointment and continuance in service and ultimate retirement deserves to be awarded with all post retirement benefits and for any delay in disbursement of the same, also deserves to be visited with interest which we assess to be at the rate of 6%.

23. Accordingly, Special Appeal Defective No.- 927 of 2025 along with writ petition being Writ - A No.- 10356 of 2022, the order passed therein dated 20.12.2022 was challenged, stands disposed of with aforesaid directions.

24. All pending applications, stand disposed of accordingly. No order as to costs.

Issue for Consideration

(1) Constitutional validity of issuing advertisement for future vacancies on the parameter of fundamental right of equal opportunity guaranteed under Article 14 and 16 of the Constitution of India.

(2) Scope of the phrase 'year of recruitment' used in new Rule 14 and effect of departing from the word 'year', as was used in old Rule 14.

(3) Applicability of G.O. dated 09.02.2013 and 25.10.2019 and Overriding effect of the UP Service of Engineers (Irrigation Department Group 'B') Service Rules, 2007 framed under Article 309 over the Executive instructions.

(4) Correctness of Kreetarth Mohan's case upholding the requisition dated 07.11.2013 including the future vacancies.

Headnotes

(A) Service law – Constitution of India – Article 14 and 16 – Equal right of opportunity – Recruitment – Post of Assistant Engineer (Civil) – Advertisement dated 24.12.2023 was issued for vacancies of 640 posts – Subsequently direction was issued to make recommendation only against the posts falling vacant up to the year 2013-14 (394 vacancies), i.e. during the course of the recruitment year in which advertisement was issued, and not against future vacancies – Validity challenged – Division Bench referred the matter to Larger Bench having noticed divergent views expressed by the Division Bench in Kreetarth Mohan's case and a Single Judge Bench in Satya Prakash Yadav's case, Israr Ahmad's case and Kamal Kumar Pandey's case on the same controversy regarding the permissibility of including the future vacancies – Candidate's legitimate expectation to participation and consideration for appointment against the vacancies occurring during the course of the recruitment year in which they acquire the eligibility, explained. (E-1)

Held : It is noteworthy that earlier the phrase 'year of recruitment' was not used in Rule 14 but only the word 'year'. In Rule 14 of the present Rules, 2007, there is a clear departure in the language used. Now, the phrase 'year of recruitment' has been employed. It clearly evinces that determination of vacancies has direct co-relation with the vacancies occurring during the course of the year of recruitment and which alone would be intimated to the Commission for being filled. [Para 31]

Further held : In the matter of Public employment, the provisions of Article 14 and 16 of the Constitution would come into play. Article 16 of the Constitution grants equality in the matter of opportunity to employment in the public office. It is trite that the eligibility of a candidate is to be considered for appointment with reference to the last date of making of application for recruitment. If the submission in support of inclusion of the future vacancies of year 2014-15 and 2015-16 is accepted, the effect would be that the candidates who would have acquired eligibility for appointment to the vacancies arising in the year 2014-15 and 2015-16 would stand excluded even from the zone of consideration, as on the last date of making application pursuant to the advertisement dated 24.12.2013 they may be found lacking of the eligibility. Such candidates had the legitimate expectation to participation and consideration for appointment against the vacancies occurring during the course of the recruitment year in which they acquire the eligibility. This is also the objective of Rule 14 read with the definition clause of the 'year of recruitment'. It ultimately results in according equal opportunity to the eligible section to public employment [Para 40]

Ultimately held : The judgment in the case of Kreetarth Mohan upholding the requisition dated 07.11.2013 including the future vacancies for the recruitment years 2014-15 and 2015-16 does not lay down any ratio or principle of law. Conversely, the judgments of the learned Single Judge in Satya Prakash Yadav's case, Israr Ahmad's case and Kamal Kumar Pandey's case holding that in view of Rule 3(I) and Rule 14 of the 2007 Rules, the vacancies till the recruitment year 2013-14 only could have been filled, lay down the correct law. Accordingly, the exclusion of the vacancies of the future recruitment years is not found to suffer from any illegality. [Para 63]

(B) Service law – Determination of vacancies – G.O. dated 09.02.2013 and 25.10.2019 were issued to include the future vacancies also – Applicability – Overriding effect of the Rules of 2007 over the Executive instructions felt into consideration. (E-1)

Held : The Rules 2007 have been framed under the proviso to Article 309 of the Constitution.

The Rules makes specific provision for determination and intimation to the Commission the number of vacancies to be filled during the course of the year of recruitment. The field is already occupied. Consequently, the G.O. dated 09.02.2013 and 25.10.2019, which are general in nature, cannot be applied to the recruitment in question, in view of the principles laid down by the Apex Court in the above noted judgments. The executive instructions cannot supplant the Rules framed under proviso to Article 309 of the Constitution. [Para 39]

1. A Division Bench, having noticed divergent views expressed by an earlier Division Bench and a Single Judge Bench on the same controversy, passed the following order on 03.02.2025:

"1. The special appeal is directed against the order of learned Single Judge dated 06.11.2019 dismissing the writ petition of the appellants. The petitioners had challenged a communication sent by the office of Chief Engineer, Irrigation Department of the State U.P. dated 21.06.2018 addressed to the State Government, whereby recommendation was made to fill up only 394 post falling vacant in the recruitment years 2011-12, 2012-13 and 2013-14 through the State Engineering Services Recruitment Examination, 2014. The main ground of challenge was that the advertisement was issued on 24.11.2013 for filling up 640 posts and after issuance of advertisement, the vacancies could not have been reduced and that it was permissible to include future vacancies of next three recruitment years. Before the learned Single Judge, reliance was placed on a Division Bench judgment in Writ (S.B.) No. 1596 of 2016 where the Division Bench declined to accept challenge to the requisition dated 07.11.2013 by the Secretary, Irrigation Department, to the U.P. Public Service Commission informing the Commission of the vacancies against which recruitment was to be held. It also included the future vacancies of recruitment years 2014-15 and 2015-16. The learned Single Judge held that in accordance with Rules of 1993, the selection could be held only for the vacancies occurring in the recruitment year and future vacancies could not be included. It has been held that in case future vacancies are also included, the persons who would acquire eligibility in the subsequent recruitment years would stand excluded from the selection process and this would result in violation of Articles 14 and 16 of the Constitution. In other words, the view taken by the Division Bench in respect of the same selection has not been followed for the reasons stated in the judgment.

2. This Division Bench is therefore, having one judgment, which takes a view in favour of inclusion of future vacancies and a judgment of learned Single Judge taking a contrary view. The said judgment as noted above duly takes notice of the Division bench judgment.

3. We are of the opinion that in the aforesaid facts and circumstances, the controversy should be settled by a larger Bench.

4. Accordingly, we direct the office to place the record of the instant case along with all connected matters before Hon'ble the Chief Justice for appropriate orders."

2. Pursuant thereto, the present batch of intra court appeals and connected petitions have been placed before us, by order of Hon'ble the Chief Justice.

Facts:

3. Broadly stated, the facts are that the State of Uttar Pradesh (in short 'State') in order to fill up the posts of Assistant Engineer (Civil) in the Irrigation Department sent a requisition on 06.07.2012 to the U.P. Public Service Commission (in short 'Commission') for 262 vacancies for the posts of Assistant Engineer (Civil) for the recruitment year 2011-12. In continuation of the same, another requisition was sent by the Special Secretary, Government of Uttar Pradesh, to the Commission on 07.11.2013 for 378 posts for the vacancies pertaining to the recruitment years 2012-13, 2013-14, 2014-15 and 2015-16 (121+86+79+92). Thereafter, an advertisement No. A-8/-E-1/2013 dated 24-12-2013 was issued by the Commission notifying a Combined Recruitment of Assistant Engineer (Civil, Mechanical, Agriculture) for several departments of the State Government, including the Irrigation Department. The total number of vacancies advertised for Assistant Engineer (Civil) in the Irrigation Department was 640 (262+378). The last date for submission of applications was 24-01-2014.

4. According to the State, an error occurred in the calculation of the vacancies of the Irrigation Department, while sending requisition to the Commission. The total sanctioned strength of Assistant Engineer (Civil) was 1588, out of which 804 posts were for direct recruitment and 784 for promotion. Out of 804 posts earmarked for direct recruitment, 330 posts stood occupied by direct recruits thus leaving only 474 posts. Consequently, the Personnel Department of the State was consulted, and on 01-11-2017, the Chief Engineer, Karmik (Establishment-II)

Irrigation and Water Resources Department, U.P. submitted a report before the Special Secretary, Irrigation Department, stating that against the sanctioned strength of 804 posts for direct recruitment, 330 posts had already been filled, so selections were required to be conducted for only 474 vacancies against the requisitioned 640 posts. Therein, he also specified the manner, in which the earlier requisitions were to be amended. The same is as follows:-

5. Accordingly, a communication came to be issued by the State, addressed to the Commission on 14.11.2017, for making selections against 474 posts of Assistant Engineer (Civil). It states that the Chief Engineer vide his aforesaid letter dated 01.11.2017 had informed that as envisaged under Rule 8 of the U.P. Government Servants Seniority Rules, 1991, a consolidated seniority list was in existence. The said list was required to be considered while sending the requisition. However, without taking into consideration the said list, requisitions were sent. This resulted in requisition of 166 candidates in excess of the existing vacancies. It was stated that only 474 posts of Assistant Engineer (Civil) were vacant and accordingly, direction was issued to make selection of 474 candidates only as against the requisition of 640. Along with the said communication, copy of letter of the Chief Engineer dated 01.11.2017 was annexed.

6. Further, correspondence took place for clarity on the process of making selections for the vacancies advertised on 24.12.2013. In reply to a State Government's letter dated 30.01.2018 and Commission's letter dated 23.01.2018, the Chief Engineer Karmik (Establishment-II) Irrigation and Water Resources Department, by letter dated 10.05.2018, furnished information regarding the vacancies available to be filled for the recruitment years 2011-12 to 2016-17, totalling 474 posts, the break up of which is as follows:

7. On 18.05.2018, the State issued a communication to the Commission to act in accordance with the letter dated 10.05.2018. Thereafter, by communication dated 31.05.2018, the Commission sought clarification from the State regarding the actual number of vacancies available, as there were two communications on record - one dated 28.09.2015, indicating that the total vacancies available for the recruitment years 2011-12 to 2013-14 were 469, and the other dated 10.05.2018, annexing therewith a letter of the Irrigation Department of the even date, disclosing 394 vacancies (255+66+73) upto the recruitment year 2013-14. On 05.06.2018, the Joint Secretary, State of U.P. addressed a letter to the Engineer-in-Chief and the Head of the Department, Irrigation and Water Resources, Lucknow seeking inputs in the light of the query made by the Commission on 31.05.2018.

8. The Chief Engineer, Karmik Establishment-II, Irrigation and Water Resources Department, U.P. by his letter dated 21.06.2018 informed that the total number of vacancies available for the post of Assistant Engineer (Civil) for the recruitment years 2011-12, 2012-13 and 2013-14 was 394 (255+66+73) and only these vacancies were required to be filled up. On 02.07.2018, the State Government, through its Joint Secretary, addressed a communication to the Commission, directing it to act in accordance with the letter dated 21.06.2018 while making selections for the post of Assistant Engineer (Civil) in the Irrigation Department.

9. The direction issued by the State to the Commission to make recommendation only against the posts falling vacant up to the year 2013-14 (394 vacancies), i.e. during the course of the recruitment year in which advertisement was issued, and not against future vacancies, led to filing of several appeals/writ petitions.

Category 'A' comprises of the Intra Court Appeals preferred by the writ petitioners/appellants whose writ petitions, questioning the letter dated 21.06.2018 issued by the Chief Engineer, Irrigation Department, State of U.P., whereby only 394 posts were recommended to be filled, stood dismissed.

Category 'B' comprises of the writ petitions questioning the said recommendation of the Chief Engineer dated 21.06.2018.

Category 'C' comprises of the writ petitions wherein challenge has been laid to the final result dated 03.05.2019.

Category 'D' comprises of the writ petitions seeking a direction to fill up all the posts advertised on 24.12.2013.

Category 'E' are the writ petitions wherein the challenge has been raised to the result dated 02.02.2019, limiting the declaration of result to vacancies upto the recruitment year 2013-14.

Category 'F' are the writ petitions wherein the writ petitioners seek a direction to call them for interview.

10. During course of hearing on 14.08.2025, the following order was passed:-

"Heard Sri Ashok Khare, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Sri Umang Srivastava, learned counsel for the appellants, Sri Avneesh Tripathi, learned counsel for the respondent No.- 3, namely U.P. Public Service Commission and Sri Manish Goyal, learned Additional Advocate General assisted by Sri Kunal Ravi Singh, learned Chief Standing Counsel and Sri A.K. Goyal, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel for the State respondents.

As prayed on behalf of State respondents and U.P. Public Service Commission, three weeks' time is granted to them to file exhaustive counter affidavits annexing therewith all the relevant communications including letters of the Commission dated 19th May, 2014 and 31st May, 2018 and the letters of State Government dated 5th June, 2018, 10th May, 2018 and 18th May, 2018 and serve a copy of the affidavits upon learned counsel for the appellants appearing in various cases.

Learned counsel for the appellants will have one week's time to file rejoinder affidavit.

List this matter on 18th September, 2025 at 2:00 pm."

11. In compliance to the said order, supplementary counter affidavit has been filed both by the State and Commission.

12. Learned counsel for the appellants/ writ petitioners chose not to file any reply to the supplementary counter affidavit filed by the State and the Commission and accordingly final arguments were heard. Written submissions were also filed by the rival parties.

ARGUMENTS OF APPELLANTS/ WRIT PETITIONERS

13. Shri Ashok Khare and Shri Uday Karan Saxena, Senior Advocates, assisted by Shri Umang Shrivastav and Shri Naveen Kumar Sharma, learned counsel for the appellants/writ petitioners, submitted that the judgment and order of the learned Single Judge rejecting the challenge to the decision of the Engineer-in-Chief, Karmik Establishment-II, dated 21-06-2018 is manifestly illegal and cannot be sustained. Elaborating the submission, it is urged that as per requisitions dated 06-07-2012 and 07-11-2013, a total of 640 (267+378) vacancies of Assistant Engineer (Civil) were advertised on 24-12-2013. Once the selection process had commenced, there could not have been reduction of the vacancies of Assistant Engineer (Civil) from 640, as advertised, to 394. It is further contended that though on 01.11.2017, the total vacancies of Assistant Engineer was shown to be 474, however, without any rationale or basis, the same stood further reduced to 394. The submission is that a conscious decision was taken by the State Government while sending the requisition for 640 vacancies, and the said decision could not have been reviewed.

14. Argument is that there is Government Order dated 09.07.2013 which provides that while sending requisition to the UPPSC, future vacancies of three recruitment years should also be included. It was in view of the said G.O. that requisition dated 07.11.2013 was sent, including future vacancies of the recruitment years 2014-15 and 2015-16 also. The Government is bound by the policy decision contained in the G.O.

15. Reliance has been placed on the Division Bench judgement in Service Bench No. 5195 of 2016 (Kreetarth Mohan vs. State Of U.P. and others), decided on 23.03.2018, to contend that the requisition dated 07.11.2013, which included the further vacancies of the years 2014-15 and 2015-16 as well, has already been upheld and the said Division Bench judgment was binding upon the learned Single Judge.

16. It is also contended that though Rule 3(l) of the State of Uttar Pradesh Service of Engineers (Irrigation Department Group 'B') Service Rules, 2007 defines 'year of recruitment' as a period of twelve months commencing on the first day of July of the calendar year and as per Rule 14, the appointing authority has to determine and intimate to the Commission the number of vacancies to be filled during the course of the year of recruitment, however, in view of the Government order dated 09.07.2013, as reiterated on 25.10.2019, the future vacancies which were to arise during the next three years were also to be included.

17. Additionally, it has been argued that it is not something foreign to service jurisprudence to include the anticipated vacancies which would arise in future as the same stands widely accepted and is already provided in Rule 8 of the UP Higher Judicial Service Rules, 1975. It has been contended that as per the counter affidavit of the Commission sworn by the Deputy Secretary, U.P. Public Service Commission, U.P. Lucknow dated 15.09.2014, the decision to limit the recruitment to vacancies upto the recruitment year 2013-14 was taken by a Committee constituted by the Public Service Commission at its own level. It does not have the approval of the State. The contention is that the Commission had no authority under law to reduce the vacancies which were advertised, it being only a recruiting agency. It is also contended that even though the writ petitioners do not possess any indefeasible right for appointment but that does not give license to the respondents to act arbitrarily and once it is established that the decision of the respondents to reduce the vacancies is without any rationale, then the Court should come to the rescue of the appellants/ writ petitioners. Further contention is that once the appellants/ writ petitioners got selected, then in view of Office-Memorandum dated 15.11.1999, they are to be given appointment/joining, the present case not being a case falling under the exceptions stipulated therein.

18. Lastly, it has been submitted that the writ petitioners/ appellants have been discriminated, particularly, when barring the post of Assistant Engineer (Civil) in Irrigation Department, there has been no reduction of the vacancies of Assistant Engineer in other departments which were advertised on 24.12.2013.

19. In order to buttress the said submissions, reliance has been placed upon the judgement in; (a) Malik Mazhar Sultan vs. U.P. Public Service Commission and others 2008(17)SCC 703; (b) Malik Mazhar Sultan vs. U.P. Public Service Commission 2009 (17) SCC 24; (c) State of Bihar vs. Secretariat Assistant successful Examinees Union 1986, 1994(1) SCC 126; (d) Neelima Shangla vs. State of Haryana, (1986) 4 SCC 268; (e) Vivek Kaisth vs. State Of Himanchal Pradesh and others 2024 (2) SCC 269 (f) Sankarshan Dass vs. Union Of India, 1991(3) SCC 47; (g) Manoj Kumar vs. Union Of India and others, 2024(3) SCC 563 (h) Vansh vs. Ministry Of Education and others, 2024 SSC OnLine SC 342 (i) Shmita Srivastava vs. State Of Madhya Pradesh and others, 2024 SCC OnLine SC 764; (j) Union Public Service Commission v. ARGUMENT ADVANCED ON BEHALF OF THE STATE

20. Shri Manish Goyal, learned Additional Advocate General assisted by Shri A.K. Goyal and Shri Chandan Kumar, learned Addl. Chief Standing Counsel has submitted that none of the contentions raised have any legs to stand. Submission is that the State being a model employer is to act within the four corners of law, within the ambit of the Rules. According to him, selection for the post of Assistant Engineer (Civil) stands regulated by 2007 Rules. Contention is that Rule 3(l) defines 'year of recruitment' which means a period of twelve months commencing on the first day of July of the calendar year and since the advertisement was published on 24-12-2013, thus, as per Rule 14 of the 2007 Rules, the selections could only be conducted for the vacancies up to the recruitment year 2013-14. The anticipated vacancies for the recruitment years 2014-15 and 2015-16 which had been mistakenly requisitioned were rightly excluded on basis of a conscious decision of the State Government dated 21-06-2018, communicated to the Commission on 02.07.2018.

21. Argument is that the reliance placed upon the Government Orders dated 09-07-2013 and 25-10-2019 is misconceived and out of context, particularly, when Government orders cannot amend, alter or supplant the statutory rules. He further submits that the Division Bench judgment in Kreetarth Mohan (supra) does not lay down any principle of law. The challenge raised against the inclusion of the future vacancy was negated mainly on the ground that the Government Order dated 09-07-2013 was not impugned in the writ petition.

22. In a nutshell, the submission is that in the absence of any challenge raised to the definition of the 'year of recruitment' under Rule 3 (l) and the provision relating to determination of the vacancies on the basis of the 'year of recruitment' as per Rule 14, the plea for inclusion of future vacancies has no merits.

23. It is also submitted on behalf of the State that it is the prerogative of the State, as an employer, to determine the number of vacancies, and to fill or not to fill whole of the vacancies advertised. Argument is also to the extent that the writ petitioners/ appellants do not possess any indefeasible right for being accorded appointment as even otherwise mere selection does not confer any vested right to be appointed. Reliance has been placed upon the judgments in (a) Ajith G. Das and others vs. State of Kerala and others 2024 SCC onLine Sc 3820; (b) Union of India vs. A. Shainamol (2021) 20 SCC 267; (c) Bihar State Electricity Board vs. Suresh Prasad and others, (2004) 2 SCC 681; (d) State of Haryana vs. Subash Chander Marwaha, (1974) 3 SCC 220; (e) Sant Ram Sharma vs. State Of Rajasthan and others, 1967 SCC OnLine SC 16; (f) A.B. Krishna and Ors. vs. State of Karnataka and Ors., (1998) 3 SCC 495; (g) Parth Das & Ors v. The State of Tripura & Ors, (2025) 0 Supreme (SC) 1273.

ARGUMENT ADVANCED ON BEHALF OF THE COMMISSION

24. Shri Avneesh Tripathi, who appears for the Commission, has adopted the arguments of Shri Manish Goyal, Additional Advocate General. He has nothing to add, except that the selections have been done as per the Rules governing the subject and the appellants/writ petitioners have no legal right to appointment. It is also contended that the Commission, being a recruiting agency, acts upon the directions of the State, which it had followed in the instant case.

RELEVANT STATUTORY PROVISIONS

"The Uttar Pradesh Service of Engineers (Irrigation Department) (Group 'B') Service Rule, 2007

Rule 3 (l) 'Year of recruitment' means a period of twelve months commencing on the first day of July of a calendar year.

4. Cadre of the Service.- (1) The strength of the Service and of each category of posts therein shall be such as may be determined by the Government from time to time.

(2) The strength of the Service and of each category of posts therein shall, until orders varying the same are passed under sub-rule (1), be as given in Appendix "A" Provided that-

(i) the appointing authority may leave unfilled or the Governor may hold in abeyance any vacant post, without thereby entitling any person to compensation; or

(ii) the Governor may create such additional permanent or temporary posts as he may consider proper.

5. Source of Recruitment.- Recruitment of the posts of Assistant Engineer (Civil or Mechanical) in the Service shall be so arranged that-

(1) 50 2/3 percent posts in the cadre are filled in by direct recruits selected through the Commission.

(2) 49 1/3 percent posts in the cadre are filled in by promotees through the Commission, which shall consist of-

(a) In Civil Branch-

(i) 47 1/3 percent shall be filled in from amongst substantively appointed Junior Engineers (Civil) who have completed seven years service as such on the first day of the year of recruitment.

(ii) One percent shall be filled in from amongst such substantively appointed Computers (Civil) who possess one of the qualifications mentioned in Appendix "B" or who possess Bachelor's degree in Civil Engineering from a recognised Institution or are Associate Members of the Institution of Engineers (India) (Civil Engineering Branch) and who have completed seven years service as such on the first day of the year of recruitment.

(iii) One percent shall be filled in from amongst such substantively appointed Research Supervisors who possess Bachelor's degree in Civil Engineering from a recognised institution or are Associate Members of the Institution of Engineers (India) (Civil Engineering Branch) and who have completed seven years service as such on the first day of the year of recruitment.

(b) In Mechanical Branch-

49 1/3 percent shall be filled in from amongst such substantively appointed Junior Engineers (Mechanical) who have completed seven years service as such on the first day of the year of recruitment:

Provided that the appointing authority may regulate the recruitment by promotion in any year of recruitment in such manner that the prescribed percentage for promotion is maintained.

Rule 14.- Determination of Vacancies-- The appointing authority shall determine and intimate to the Commission the number of vacancies to be filled during the course of the year of recruitment as also the number of vacancies to be reserved for candidates belonging to Scheduled Castes, Scheduled Tribes and other categories under rule 6.

15. Procedure for direct recruitment.- (1) Applications for permission to appear in the competitive examination shall be invited by the Commission in the form published in the advertisement issued by the Commission.

(2) No candidate shall be admitted to the examination unless he holds a certificate for admission issued by the Commission.

(3) After the results of the written examination have been received and tabulated, the Commission shall, having regard to the need for securing due representation of the candidates belonging to Scheduled Castes, Scheduled Tribes and others under rule 6, summon for interview, such number of candidates as, on the result of the written examination, have come upto the standard fixed by the Commission in this respect. The marks awarded to each candidate at the interview shall be added to the marks obtained by him in the written examination.

(4) The Commission shall prepare a list of candidates in order of their proficiency, as disclosed by the aggregate of marks obtained by each candidate at the written examination and interview and recommend such number of candidates as they consider fit for appointment. If two or more candidates obtain equal marks in the aggregate, the name of the candidate obtaining higher marks in the written examination shall be placed higher in the list. If two or more candidates obtain equal marks in the written examination also then in such situation the names of the candidates shall be arranged in accordance with the general policy of the Commission. The Commission shall forward the list to the appointing authority."

विषय:- चयन वर्ष 2011-12, 2012-13, 2013-14, 2014-15 एवं 2015-16 में सहायक अभियन्ता (सिविल) के रिक्त पदों पर सीधी भर्ती के माध्यम से चयन कराये जाने हेतु प्रेषित अधियाचन के संबंध में।

उपर्युक्त विषयक शासन के पत्र संख्या-1552/12-27-सि०-2-3 (80)/06 दिनांक 06.07.2012 एवं पत्र संख्या-2953/13-27-सि०-2-3(80)/06 दिनांक 07.11.2013 का कृपया संदर्भ ग्रहण करने का कष्ट करें, जिसके माध्यम से क्रमशः सहायक अभियन्ता (सिविल) के सीधी भर्ती के अन्तर्गत चयन वर्ष 2011-12 हेतु 262 पद, चयन वर्ष 2012-13 हेतु 121 पद, चयन वर्ष 2013-14 हेतु 86 पद, चयन वर्ष 2014-15 हेतु 79 पद एवं चयन वर्ष 2015-16 हेतु 92 पद कुल 640 पदों पर चयन हेतु अधियाचन लोक सेवा आयोग, उ० प्र० इलाहाबाद को प्रेषित किया गया था, जिसके क्रम में लोक सेवा आयोग, उ० प्र० इलाहाबाद द्वारा सम्मिलित राज्य अभियंत्रण सेवा (सामान्य चयन) परीक्षा 2013 का दिनांक 24.12.2013 द्वारा विज्ञापित करके चयन की कार्यवाही प्रारम्भ की जा चुकी है।

2. इस संबंध में मुख्य अभियन्ता (ई-2) के पत्र संख्या-जी-570/ई-2/अधियाचन दिनांक 11.09.2017 एवं पत्र संख्या-जी-737/ई-2/दिनांक 01.11.2017 (छायाप्रति संलग्न) द्वारा उपलब्ध करायी गयी सूचना के अनुसार सहायक अभियन्ता (सिविल) पद पर दोनों संवर्गों के नियुक्ति / पदोन्नति उपरान्त उ० प्र० सरकारी सेवक ज्येष्ठता नियमावली-1991 के नियम-8 के प्राविधानों के तहत एकल वरिष्ठता सूची निर्गत की जाती है, जो प्रमुख अभियन्ता पद (उच्चतम पद) तक पदोन्नति हेतु पोषक संवर्ग के रूप में कार्य करती है। अतः सीधी भर्ती संवर्ग के सहायक अभियन्ताओं के अधियाचित पदों की

गणना किये जाने के संबंध में सहायक अभियन्ताओं की एकल वरिष्ठता सूची को विचार में लेते हुये गणना की जानी चाहिए थी, जिससे यह स्थिति स्पष्ट हो पाती कि प्रत्येक चयन वर्ष में उपलब्ध परिणामी रिक्तियों के अनुसार अधिशासी अभियन्ता एवं उससे उच्च पदों पर पदोन्नति उपरान्त सहायक अभियन्ता से अधिशासी अभियन्ता के पद पर पदोन्नति हेतु तैयार पात्रता सूची में कितने सीधी भर्ती संवर्ग के सहायक अभियन्ता पदोन्नत हो जायेंगे, तदनुसार ही अधियाचित पदों को शासन को प्रेषित किया जाना चाहिए था, परन्तु बिना सीधी भर्ती/ प्रोन्नत संवर्ग की गणना किये अधियाचन शासन को प्रेषित कर दिया गया, जिसके फलस्वरूप वर्तमान में सीधी भर्ती संवर्ग के कार्यरत सहायक अभियन्ताओं एवं चयन वर्ष 2011-12 से चयन वर्ष 2015-16 तक अधियाचित किये गये 640 पदों को सम्मिलित किये जाने पर सीधी भर्ती संवर्ग के कुल 804 स्वीकृत पदों के सापेक्ष 166 पदों का आधिक्य हो रहा है। इस प्रकार वर्तमान में सहायक अभियन्ता (सिविल) के 474 पद ही रिक्त हैं।

3. अतः इस संबंध में मुझे यह कहने का निदेश हुआ है कि कृपया वर्णित स्थिति के दृष्टिगत शासन के संदर्भित पत्रों के द्वारा चयन वर्ष 2011-12 से 2015-16 तक के लिये सहायक अभियन्ता (सिविल) के 640 पदों पर चयन हेतु प्रेषित अधियाचन के सापेक्ष 474 अभ्यर्थियों का ही चयन करके संस्तुति शासन को उपलब्ध कराने का कष्ट करें।

विषय:- सम्मिलित राज्य अभियंत्रण सेवा परीक्षा, 2013 में सहायक अभियन्ता (सिविल) पद हेतु प्राप्त अध्याचनों में लम्बवत् एवं क्षैतिज आरक्षण की स्थिति स्पष्ट किये जाने के सम्बन्ध में।

उपर्युक्त विषयक शासन के पत्र संख्या- 792/सत्ताईस-13-2018-2/2018, दिनांक 18 मई, 2018 का सन्दर्भ ग्रहण करने का कष्ट करें, जिसके माध्यम से सम्मिलित राज्य अभियंत्रण सेवा परीक्षा-2013 में सहायक अभियन्ता (सिविल), सिंचाई विभाग के अन्तर्गत चयन वर्ष 2011-12 से 2016-17 तक के रिक्त होने वाले पदों के सम्बन्ध में अवगत कराया गया है।

2- इस सम्बन्ध में सूच्य है कि आयोग द्वारा शासन से सहायक अभियन्ता (सिविल), सिंचाई विभाग हेतु प्राप्त अध्याचन के अनुसार प्रश्नगत परीक्षा में चयन वर्ष 2011-12, वर्ष 2012-13 तथा 2013-14 तक के कुल-469 पदों को सम्मिलित कर चयन सम्बन्धी कार्यवाही की जा रही है। तदनुसार सहायक अभियन्ता (सिविल) के 469 पदों के लम्बवत् व क्षैतिज आरक्षण की स्थिति स्पष्ट करने की अपेक्षा आयोग के पत्र दिनांक 21-05-2015 द्वारा की गयी थी। शासन द्वारा उक्त पत्र का उत्तर पत्र दिनांक 28-09-2015 (संलग्नक-1) के माध्यम से प्रेषित किया गया, जिसमें लम्बवत् व क्षैतिज आरक्षण की स्थिति स्पष्ट कर दी गयी, किन्तु विकलांगजन हेतु क्षैतिज आरक्षण के अन्तर्गत 14 पदों को अलग से अध्याचित / विज्ञापित विकलांग विशेष चयन के 17 पदों में अन्तर्निहित बताया गया है। उक्त के सम्बन्ध में स्थिति स्पष्ट कराने हेतु आयोग द्वारा पुनः पत्र दिनांक 30-06-2017, शासन को प्रेषित किया गया, जिसके प्रत्युत्तर में शासन का पत्र

दिनांक 18-05-2018 प्राप्त हुआ है। उक्त पत्र में चयन वर्ष 2011-12, वर्ष 2012-13 व 2013-14 में क्रमशः 255+66+73=394 रिक्त पद ही बताये गये हैं जो कि पूर्व में बतायी गयी पदों की स्थिति से पूर्णतः भिन्न है। शासन द्वारा उक्त पदों का अलग-अलग लम्बवत् व क्षैतिज आरक्षण भी नहीं बताया गया। अतः आयोग द्वारा उक्त विसंगतियों के सम्बन्ध में स्थिति स्पष्ट करने हेतु यह अपेक्षा की गयी है कि इस पत्र के साथ संलग्न शासन के पत्र दिनांक 28-09-2015 में चयन वर्ष 2011-12 से चयन वर्ष 2013-14 तक के रिक्त कुल-469 पदों के अनुसार चयन की कार्यवाही सम्पन्न की जाय अथवा शासन के पत्र दिनांक 18-05-2018 में बताये गये चयन वर्ष 2011-12 से चयन वर्ष 2013-14 तक रिक्त 394 पदों पर चयन की कार्यवाही की जाय। यदि पत्र दिनांक 18-05-2018 के अनुसार चयन की कार्यवाही होनी हो तो चयन वर्ष 2011-12 से चयन वर्ष 2013-14 तक रिक्त 394 पदों की लम्बवत् व क्षैतिज आरक्षण की स्थिति स्पष्ट कर आयोग को शीघ्र सूचित किया जाना आवश्यक है।

3- उल्लेखनीय है कि शासन के पत्र सं०-1328/12-27-सि०-2-3(33)/12 दिनांक 28-05-2012 के माध्यम से विकलांग बैकलांग हेतु सहायक अभियन्ता (सिविल), सिंचाई विभाग के 17 पदों का अधिचयन प्राप्त हुआ था, जिसके आधार पर आयोग द्वारा उक्त पदों पर विज्ञापन की कार्यवाही की गयी है। सूच्य है कि शासन के पत्र दिनांक 28-09-2015 में चयन वर्ष 2011-12 से चयन वर्ष 2013-14 तक के रिक्त 469 पदों में क्षैतिज आरक्षण के अन्तर्गत बताये गये 14 विकलांगजन के पदों को उक्त विशेष चयन हेतु विज्ञापित 17 पदों में अन्तर्निहित बताया गया है। इससे यह प्रतीत हो रहा है कि विकलांग / विशेष चयन के अन्तर्गत अलग से विज्ञापित 17 पद रिक्त नहीं है। अतः शासन द्वारा प्रेषित प्रश्नगत पद हेतु अलग से 17 विकलांग पदों के सम्बन्ध में स्थिति स्पष्ट करते हुए यदि विशेष चयन /

(1) आगामी 03 वर्षों में घटित होने वाली रिक्तियों की गणना सुनिश्चित करते हुए, सम्मिलित राज्य/प्रवर अधीनस्थ सेवा परीक्षा सहित अन्य समस्त परीक्षाओं/चयनों के अधियाचन नवीन प्रारूपों पर, तत्काल लोक सेवा आयोग को प्रेषित करने का कष्ट करें। भविष्य में भी समस्त पदों के अधियाचन 03 वर्ष पूर्व लोक सेवा आयोग को उपलब्ध करा दिये जाए।

(2) प्रेषित किये जाने वाले अधियाचनों में समस्त सूचनाओं का समावेश करते हुए, सेवा

नियमावली की प्रति (हिन्दी/अंग्रेजी) भी लोक सेवा आयोग को प्रेषित करने का कष्ट करें।
(3) अधियाचन प्रेषित किये जाते समय समसंख्यक शासनादेश दिनांक 09.08.2007 के प्राविधानों का विशेष रूप से ध्यान रखा जाए तथा लम्बवत एवं क्षैतिज आरक्षण की स्थिति भी स्पष्ट की जाए। यदि विकलांग हेतु क्षैतिज आरक्षण के अन्तर्गत कोई रिक्ति आरक्षित की जानी हो, तो शासनादेश दिनांक 13.01.2011 के अनुसार स्पष्ट चिन्हांकन/विकलांगता का उल्लेख करते हुए, कार्मिक विभाग के शासनादेश दिनांक 03.02.2008 के प्रस्तर-24 के अनुसार प्रमाण-पत्र भी प्रेषित करने का कष्ट करें।

(4) विभिन्न चयनों एवं परीक्षाओं के अधियाचनों के संबंध में आयोग द्वारा की जाने वाली पृच्छाओं/संविक्षाओं का उत्तर समयबद्ध रूप से आयोग को उपलब्ध कराने का कष्ट करें।

4. कृपया उपर्युक्त निर्देशों का कड़ाई से अनुपालन सुनिश्चित करते हुए नवीन अधियाचन प्रारूपों पर सीधीभर्ती/पदोन्नति के पदों के अधियाचन यथाशीघ्र लोक सेवा आयोग को प्रेषित करने का कष्ट करें।

ANALYSIS

25. The selection to the post of Assistant Engineer is regulated by the 2007 Rules enacted in exercise of the powers conferred by the proviso to Article 309 of the Constitution of India. These Rules were notified on 16.11.2007.

26. Rule 3(l) defines 'year of recruitment' which means a period of twelve months commencing on the first day of July of the calendar year.

27. Rule 4 provides for the cadre of service, according to which, the strength of service of each □ and every category of post shall be such as determined by the State from time to time. Clause (a) of the proviso to sub-rule (2) of Rule 4 gives powers to the appointing authority to leave unfilled or hold in abeyance any vacant post, without thereby entitling any person to compensation.

28. Rule 5 provides for source of recruitment i.e. 50 2/3 percent posts are to be filled in by direct recruitment and 49 1/3% posts through promotion.

29. Rule 14 deals with the determination of the vacancies, according to which, the appointing authority is to determine and intimate to the Commission the number of vacancies to be filled during the course of the year of recruitment. Rule

15 lays down the procedure for direct recruitment.

30. A plain reading of the Rules shows that the appointing authority is enjoined with the duty (i) to determine the number of vacancies and (ii) intimate to the Commission, the number of the vacancies to be filled during the course of the year of recruitment. The word employed in Rule 14, 'year of recruitment', marks significance, particularly, when the same stands defined under Rule 3(l) as a period of twelve months commencing on the first day of July of a calendar year. Meaning thereby, that the determination of the vacancies is to be made on the basis of year of recruitment i.e. twelve months commencing on the first day of July of the calendar year. Earlier, the service of Engineers of the Irrigation Department (Group 'B') was regulated by the Uttar Pradesh Service of Engineers (Irrigation Department) (Group 'B') Service Rules, 1993. Under Rule 3(j) of the said Rules, 'year of recruitment' was defined in a similar manner. Under Rule 14 of the said Rules also, there was provision for determination of the vacancies to be filled up and for intimation of the same to the Commission. Rule 14 of the earlier Rules was as follows:

"14. Date of Determination of Vacancies. The appointing authority shall determine and intimate to the Commission the number of vacancies to be filled during the course of the year as also the number of vacancies to be reserved for a candidate belonging to Scheduled Castes, Scheduled Tribes and other categories under Rule 6."

31. It is noteworthy that earlier the phrase 'year of recruitment' was not used in Rule 14 but only the word 'year'. In Rule 14 of the present Rules, 2007, there is a clear departure in the language used. Now, the phrase 'year of recruitment' has been employed. It clearly evinces that determination of vacancies has direct correlation with the vacancies occurring during the course of the year of recruitment and which alone would be intimated to the Commission for being filled.

32. The advertisement was issued on 24.12.2013, therefore, bearing in mind the rule in question, 'the year of recruitment' was the period between 01st July, 2013 and 30th June 2014 i.e. recruitment year 2013-14. Thus the vacancies till the recruitment year 2013-14 only could have been advertised. However, the requisition dated 07.11.2013 sent by the State to the Commission was not only for the vacancies upto the recruitment year 2013-14 but also included the future vacancies of the recruitment years 2014-15 and 2015-16, which apparently was not in consonance with the Rules.

33. This leads us to contention made on behalf of the candidates that the requisition dated 07.11.2013 sent by the State including therein the future vacancies of 2014-15 and 2015-16 was in terms of the Government Order dated 09.07.2013, reiterated by Government Order dated 25.10.2019. The contention is that Rule 14 only makes provision for annual determination of vacancies. It does not whittle down the authority of the State Government to issue executive instructions to include future vacancies also while making any recruitment.

34. The interplay between the statutory rules/regulations having statutory force and Government Orders referable to the power under Article 166(1) of the Constitution of India has been subject matter of consideration by the Supreme Court in many cases. In Sant Ram Sharma, it has been observed as follows:

"7. We proceed to consider the next contention of Mr N.C. Chatterjee that in the absence of any statutory rules governing promotions to selection grade posts the Government cannot issue administrative instructions and such administrative instructions cannot impose any restrictions not found in the Rules already framed. We are unable to accept this argument as correct. It is true that there is no specific provision in the Rules laying down the principle of promotion of junior or senior grade officers to selection grade posts. But that does not mean that till statutory rules are framed in this behalf the Government cannot issue administrative instructions regarding the principle to be followed in promotions of the officers concerned to selection grade posts. It is true that Government cannot amend or supersede statutory rules by administrative instructions, but if the rules are silent on any particular point Government can fill up the gaps and supplement the rules and issue instructions not inconsistent with the rules already framed."

35. Hon'ble Apex Court in A.B. Krishna and Ors. (supra), observed as under:

"8. The Fire Services under the State Government were created and established under the Fire Force Act, 1964 made by the State Legislature. It was in exercise of the power conferred under Section 39 of the Act that the State Government made Service Rules regulating the conditions of the Fire Services. Since the Fire Services had been specially established under an Act of the legislature and the Government, in pursuance of the power conferred upon it under that Act, has already made Service Rules, any amendment in the Karnataka Civil Services (General Recruitment) Rules, 1977 would not affect the special provisions Validly made for the Fire Services. As a matter of fact, under the scheme of Article 309 of the Constitution, once a legislature intervenes to enact a law regulating the conditions of service, the power of the Executive, including the President or the Governor, as the case may be, is totally displaced on the principle of "doctrine of occupied field". If, however, any matter is not touched by that enactment, it will be competent for the Executive to either issue executive instructions or to make a rule under Article 309 in respect of that matter."

36. In Jaiveer Singh and Ors. vs. State of Uttarakhand and Ors., 2023 SCC OnLine SC 1584, 2023 INSC 1024, Hon'ble Apex Court observed as follows:

"49. It can thus be seen that it is a trite law that the Government cannot amend or supersede statutory rules by administrative instructions, but if the rules are silent on any particular point, it can fill up the gaps and supplement the rules and issue instructions not inconsistent with the rules already framed. It is a settled proposition of law that an authority cannot issue orders/office memorandum/executive instructions in contravention of the statutory rules. However, instructions can be issued only to supplement the statutory rules but not to supplant it."

37. In Bank of Baroda and Another vs. G. Palani and Others, (2022) 5 SCC 612, following was observed:-

"14. First we come to the rigour of the regulations, The regulations have statutory force, having framed in exercise of the powers under section 19(2)(1) of the 1970 Act and are binding. They could not have been supplanted by any executive fiat, order or joint note, which has no statutory basis. The joint note of the officers also had no statutory force behind it and could not have obliterated any of the provisions of 1970 act or the existing regulations. Thus, joint notes could not have taken away the rights that were available under the 1995 pension regulations to the officer."

38. Recently, the aforesaid law came to be reiterated in Parth Das & Ors (supra), wherein the following was observed:

"40. Applying the above principles of law, it can safely be concluded that executive instructions issued under Article 166(1) of the Constitution of India cannot override the act done under the statute and the rules made thereunder. The executive instructions can only supplement the provisions of the act and the rules in case of any ambiguity or if gaps are to be filled but such executive instructions cannot supplant the specific provisions which already occupy the field. It is not the case of the government that to fill the gaps and to supplement the TSR Act and TSR Rules, the NRP is relevant, therefore, Abeyance Memorandum or Cancellation Memorandum may be upheld. In absence of the same, in our view, the action of the government in cancelling the process of recruitment for the post of Enrolled Followers is not justified and would amount to arbitrary exercise of power."

39. The Rules 2007 have been framed under the proviso to Article 309 of the Constitution. The Rules makes specific provision for determination and intimation to the Commission the number of vacancies to be filled during the course of the year of recruitment. The field is already occupied. Consequently, the G.O. dated 09.02.2013 and 25.10.2019, which are general in nature, cannot be applied to the recruitment in question, in view of the principles laid down by the Apex Court in the above noted judgments. The executive instructions cannot supplant the Rules framed under proviso to Article 309 of the Constitution.

40. In the matter of Public employment, the provisions of Article 14 and 16 of the Constitution would come into play. Article 16 of the Constitution grants equality in the matter of opportunity to employment in the public office. It is trite that the eligibility of a candidate is to be considered for appointment with reference to the last date of making of application for recruitment. If the submission in support of inclusion of the future vacancies of year 2014-15 and 2015-16 is accepted, the effect would be that the candidates who would have acquired eligibility for appointment to the vacancies arising in the year 2014-15 and 2015-16 would stand excluded even from the zone of consideration, as on the last date of making application pursuant to the advertisement dated 24.12.2013 they may be found lacking of the eligibility. Such candidates had the legitimate expectation to participation and consideration for appointment against the vacancies occurring during the course of the recruitment year in which they acquire the eligibility. This is also the objective of Rule 14 read with the definition clause of the 'year of recruitment'. It ultimately results in according equal opportunity to the eligible section to public employment.

41. Supplementary affidavit filed by the State discloses the justification for the reduction of the vacancies of Assistant Engineer (Civil) from 640 to 394. Admittedly, the total sanctioned posts of Assistant Engineer (Civil) in Irrigation Department was 1588, out of which, 804 posts were for direct recruits and 784 for promotees. The total number of vacancies advertised on 24.12.2013 of Assistant Engineer (Civil) is 640 vide two requisitions; (a) dated 06.07.2012 for recruitment year 2011-12 (262 posts) and (b) dated 07.11.2013 for the recruitment years 2012-13, 2013-14, 2014-15 and 2015-16 ($121 + 86 + 79 + 92 = 378$).

42. According to the State, there was error in calculation of the vacancies, while sending the requisitions. The errors were on two counts. The first one was in respect of the calculation of the posts already occupied by the direct recruits. According to the stand taken in the supplementary counter affidavit, out of 804 posts reserved for direct recruits, 330 posts were already occupied, leaving only 474 vacant posts. This mistake was brought to the notice of the State Government by the Chief Engineer Karmik (E-2), Irrigation and Water Resources Department, U.P. through his report dated 01.11.2017. The State Government, by its letter dated 14.11.2017, directed the UPPSC to make recruitment only for 474 posts, as against the requisition made to it.

43. The second error was in respect of wrongful inclusion of vacancies of the future years. It was corrected by the State by its letter dated 02.07.2018, to the Commission. It was a conscious decision of the State Government, taken on basis of various interdepartmental communications dated (i) 31.05.2018 by Commission to the State Government (ii) 05.06.2018 by State Government to the Department (iii) 21.06.2018 by Chief Engineer Karmik (E-2) to the State Government, and (iv) 02.07.2018 by State Government to the Commission (details stated in Paragraphs 7 & 8).

44. As a result, there was a further reduction of 80 vacancies pertaining to the recruitment years 2014-15, 2015-16 and 2016-17 ($51 + 09 + 20$). At this stage, it is also relevant to note that after the recruitment in question, two more recruitment exercises have been held in respect of the vacancies of subsequent years.

45. The entire basis of the determination of the vacancies hinges upon the facts and the figures exhibited by the State in the supplementary counter affidavit, however, in absence of any rebuttal to the same, this Court has no option but to accept the said facts and figures as correct.

46. Moreover, the advertisement itself stipulates that the number of the vacancies can be increased or decreased. The error in calculation of vacancies can definitely be corrected under the said clause.

47. Significantly, the mistake was corrected much before declaration of the final result. There is no allegation of any malice in facts or law and it was always open for the State to rectify the mistake which was committed while wrongly determining the vacancies.

48. Obviously, there cannot be any change in the eligibility criteria, once the selection process has started, but the said legal proposition cannot be pressed in service, where the determination of the vacancies is erroneous. Therefore, reliance placed upon Tej Prakash Pathak (supra) is out of context as in the said case, the eligibility criteria came to be changed in the midst of the recruitment process. □

49. Likewise, Parth Das & Ors (supra) although holds that the rules of the game cannot be changed after the game has begun but that was for upholding the sanctity of the statutory rules over executive instructions. The appellants therein had participated in the process of selection held as per the statutory rules but at the stage of character verification, the selection process was kept in abeyance and later cancelled on the basis of the New Recruitment Policy. The same was found contrary to the field already occupied by the Rules and therefore, the decision to cancel the recruitment on basis thereof was held to be illegal.

50. The determination of the vacancies and the requisition for employment is the prerogative of the State and the Courts of law generally do not interfere in their decision until and unless the same is found to be ex-facie illegal or arbitrary. In Ajith G. Das and others (Supra), the Supreme Court observed as under:

"The primary role of the KPSC is to aid and facilitate the selection process. It functions as an autonomous body within the framework laid down by the Constitution of India, ensuring transparency and merit-based recruitment. However, its autonomy is confined to the Conduct of the selection process. Determination of the number of vacancies and the requisition for employees remain the prerogative of the State Government, which is the employer. This fundamental distinction was overlooked by the High Court, leading to an erroneous Interpretation of the KPSC's authority."

51. Certainly, mere participation in a selection process or placement in the select list would not create indefeasible right for appointment, the only exception being where the action is found to be arbitrary. What is arbitrary depends upon the facts and the circumstances of the individual case. No strict jacket formula can be applied.

52. The State has been successful in disclosing the logic and rationale behind reduction of the vacancies from the one originally advertised. Consequently, the submission advanced against the action of the State and the Commission in not filling up all the vacancies advertised does not merit acceptance.

53. In A.P. Christians Medical Educational Society Vs. Government of Andhra Pradesh and another (1986) 2 SCC 667, it was observed as under :-

"We cannot by our fiat direct the University to disobey the statute to which it owes its existence and the regulations made by the University itself. We cannot imagine anything more destructive of the rule of law than a direction by the court to disobey the laws."

54. The allegation of the discrimination on the count that barring the Assistant Engineer (Civil) there has been no proportionate reduction of vacancies in other departments is also not worthy of acceptance, inasmuch as, law does not contemplate doctrine of negative equality.

In State of Bihar and others vs. Kameshwar Prasad Singh and another, (2000) 9 SCC 94, the following was observed:-

"30. The concept of equality as envisaged under Article 14 of the Constitution is a positive concept which cannot be enforced in a negative manner. When any authority is shown to have committed any illegality or irregularity in favour of any individual or group of individuals, others cannot claim the same illegality or irregularity on the ground of denial thereof to them. Similarly wrong judgment passed in favour of one individual does not entitle others to claim similar benefits. In this regard this Court in Gursharan Singh v. New Delhi Municipal Committee (1996) 2 SCC 459 held that citizens have assumed wrong notions regarding the scope of Article 14 of the Constitution which guarantees equality before law to all citizens. Benefits extended to some persons in an irregular or illegal manner cannot be claimed by a citizen on the plea of equality as enshrined in Article 14 of the Constitution by way of writ petition filed in the High Court. The Court observed:

"Neither Article 14 of the Constitution conceives within the equality clause this concept nor Article 226 empowers the High Court to enforce such claim of equality before law. If such claims are enforced, it shall amount to directing to continue and perpetuate an illegal procedure or an illegal order for extending similar benefits to others. Before a claim based on equality clause is up-held, it must be established by the petitioner that his claim being just and legal, has been denied to him, while it has been extended to others and in this process there has been a discrimination."

Again in Secy., Jaipur Development Authority v. Daulat Mal Jain (1997) 1 SCC 35, this Court considered the scope of Article 14 of the Constitution and reiterated its earlier position regarding the concept of equality holding:

"Suffice it to hold that the illegal allotment founded upon ultra vires and illegal policy of allotment made to some other persons wrongly, would not form a legal premise to ensure it to the respondent or to repeat or perpetuate such illegal order, nor could it be legalised. In other words, judicial process cannot be abused to perpetuate the illegalities. Thus considered, we hold that the High Court was clearly in error in directing the appellants to allot the land to the respondents."

31. In State of Haryana v. Ram Kumar Mann (1997) 3 SCC 321 this Court observed:

"The doctrine of discrimination is founded upon existence of an enforceable right. He was discriminated and denied equality as some similarly situated persons had been given the same relief. Article 14 would apply only when invidious discrimination is meted out to equals and similarly circumstanced without any rational basis or relationship in that behalf. The respondent has no right, whatsoever and cannot be given the relief wrongly given to them, i.e., benefit of withdrawal of resignation. The High Court was wholly wrong in reaching the conclusion that there was invidious discrimination. If we cannot allow a wrong to perpetrate, an employee, after committing misappropriation of money, is dismissed from service and subsequently that order is withdrawn and he is reinstated into the service. Can a similarly circumstanced person claim equality under Section 14 for reinstatement? The answer is obviously 'No'. In a converse case, in the first instance, one may be wrong but the wrong order cannot be the foundation for claiming equality for enforcement of the same order. As stated earlier, his right must be founded upon enforceable right to entitle him to the equality treatment for enforcement thereof. A wrong decision by the Government does not give a right to enforce the wrong order and claim parity or equality. Two wrongs can never make a right."

55. In Kreetarth Mohan (supra), the requisition dated 07.11.2013 was under challenge which included the future vacancies for the recruitment years 2014-15 and 2015-16. Division Bench negated the challenge on the ground that the Government Order dated 09.07.2013 providing for inclusion of anticipated vacancies was not impugned. Neither the statutory rules were interpreted nor any legal principle was laid down. The relevant observations from the said judgment are as under:

"(15) The petitioner in the instant writ petition has assailed the the letter dated 7.11.2013 sent by the Secretary, Irrigation Department to the U.P. Public Service Commission, informing the vacancy of the post of Assistant Engineer (Civil) in Engineering Cadre for selection relating to the selection years 2013-2014, 2014-2015 and 2015-2016. It appears that the said requisition was sent to the Commission in compliance of the directions issued vide Government Order dated 9th July, 2013, which, in our opinion, is a consequential act, which cannot be said to be unjustified or reasonable.

(16) Surprisingly, the petitioner has not challenged the Government Order dated 9th July, 2013 knowing well that the requisition for three selection years has been sent in compliance of the said Government Order. The intention behind sending requisition after calculation of vacancies going to fell vacant is that the considerable long time is consumed in completing the selection process and not filling up of the vacancies in time results causes State work to suffer, which ultimately affects the public at large."

56. The learned Single Judge took notice of the Division Bench judgment and proceeded to decide the case after considering the statutory provisions which are governing the field. In our opinion, the view taken by the learned Single Judge is premised upon the statutory framework as well as the precedents on the said subject.

57. In Bhavnagar University Vs. Palitana Sugar Mill (P) Ltd. (2003) 2 SCC 111, Hon'ble Supreme Court in para 59 held as under:-

"59. A decision, as is well known, is an authority for which it is decided and not what can logically be deduced therefrom. It is also well settled that a little difference in facts or additional facts may make a lot of difference in the precedential value of a decision. [See Ram Rakhi v. Union of India, Delhi Admn. (NCT of Delhi) v. Manohar Lal, Haryana Financial Corpn. v. Jagdamba Oil Mills and Nalini Mahajan (Dr) v. Director of Income Tax (Investigation).]"

58. The said decision came to be followed in the case of Escorts Ltd. v. Commissioner of Central Excise, Delhi-II, (2004) 8 SCC 335, the following was observed.-

"8. Courts should not place reliance on decisions without discussing as to how the factual situation fits in with the fact situation of the decision on which reliance is placed. Observations of courts are neither to be read as Euclid's theorems nor as provisions of a statute and that too taken out of their context. These observations must be read in the context in which they appear to have been stated. Judgments of courts are not to be construed as statutes. To interpret words, phrases and provisions of a statute, it may become necessary for Judges to embark into lengthy discussions but the discussion is meant to explain and not to define. Judges interpret statutes, they do not interpret judgments. They interpret words of statutes; their words are not to be interpreted as statutes. In London Graving Dock Co. Ltd. v. Horton (AC at p. 761), Lord MacDermott observed: (All ER p. 14 C-D)

"The matter cannot, of course, be settled merely by treating the ipsissima verba of Willes, J., as though they were part of an Act of Parliament and applying the rules of interpretation appropriate thereto. This is not to detract from the great weight to be given to the language actually used by that most distinguished judge."

10. Circumstantial flexibility, one additional or different fact may make a world of difference between conclusions in two cases. Disposal of cases by blindly placing reliance on a decision is not proper."

59. In Bharat Petroleum Corporation Ltd. And another vs N.R. Vairamani And Another 2004 (8) SCC 579, a note of caution was flagged that the Courts should not place reliance on the decisions without discussing as to how the factual situation fits in with the situation of the decision on which reliance is placed. It was held as under.-

"9. Courts should not place reliance on decisions without discussing as to how the factual situation fits in with the fact situation of the decision on which reliance is placed. Observations of courts are neither to be read as Euclid's theorems nor as provisions of a statute and that too taken out of their context. These observations must be read in the context in which they appear to have been stated. Judgments of courts are not to be construed as statutes. To interpret words, phrases and provisions of a statute, it may become necessary for judges to embark into lengthy discussions but the discussion is meant to explain and not to define. Judges interpret statutes, they do not interpret judgments. They interpret words of statutes; their words are not to be interpreted as statutes. In London Graving Dock Co. Ltd. v. Horton (AC at p. 761) Lord MacDermott observed: (All ER p. 14 C-D).

"The matter cannot, of course, be settled merely by treating the ipsissima verba of Willes, J., as though they were part of an Act of Parliament and applying the rules of interpretation appropriate thereto. This is not to detract from the great weight to be given to the language actually used by that most distinguished judge,..."

60. The aforesaid principles of law came to be referred to in the case of State of Orissa Vs. MD. Illiyas 2006 (1) SCC

275 and Mavilayi Service Cooperative Bank Ltd. & Others Vs. Commissioner of Income Tax, Calicut & another 2001 (7) SCC 90.

61. Now referring to the precedents relied on behalf of the appellants/ writ petitioners, the Court finds that Malik Mazhar Sultan (supra) has no application since the Rule 8 of the U.P. Higher Judicial Service Rules, 1975 provided for taking into account anticipated vacancies of the next two years. However, under the 2007 Rules, the position is quite different. Thus, the said analogy cannot be applied. The same is the position with Vivek Kaisth (supra) also, as it in fact followed Malik Mazhar Sultan (supra).

62. Manoj Kumar (supra), Vansh (supra), Shmita Srivastava (supra) are those cases wherein the Apex Court had discussed the injurious consequences arising out of arbitrary and illegal administrative action and had resorted to apply compensation/ restitution theory. However, the said judgments have no application as here the action of the State is neither arbitrary nor illegal.

CONCLUSION

63. In view of the foregoing discussion, the legal corollary would be that the judgment in the case of Kreetarth Mohan (supra) upholding the requisition dated 07.11.2013 including the future vacancies for the recruitment years 2014-15 and 2015-16 does not lay down any ratio or principle of law. Conversely, the judgments of the learned Single Judge in Satya Prakash Yadav (supra), Israr Ahmad (supra) and Kamal Kumar Pandey (supra) holding that in view of Rule 3(l) and Rule 14 of the 2007 Rules, the vacancies till the recruitment year

2013-14 only could have been filled, lay down the correct law. Accordingly, the exclusion of the vacancies of the future recruitment years is not found to suffer from any illegality.

64. Accordingly, the present appeals/writ petitions, being devoid of merits, are liable to be dismissed.

65. Resultantly, dismissed.

Letter No:G-737/E-2/

Lucknow: Date: 1 Nov. 2017

Subject: Regarding excess vacancies sent to Public Service Commission for direct recruitment of Assistant Engineer (Civil).

Under Secretary, Irrigation and Water Resource Section-13, Government
of Uttar Pradesh, Lucknow

Kindly peruse the letter No. G-570/E-2/requisition, dated 11.09.2017 on the above subject of this office, whereby, in compliance with the orders received vide Government letter No. 1780/Twenty Seven-13-2017-2/2016, dated 30.08.17, a request was made to the Public Service Commission, Uttar Pradesh, Allahabad not to advertise the 69 posts requisitioned for the selection year 2016-17 in respect of the posts of Assistant Engineer (Civil) of Direct Recruitment Cadre, resulting in excess posts over and above the sanctioned quota due to erroneous calculation and further sought a decision regarding recruitment of only 478 candidates against 640 posts advertised by the Public Service Commission in December 2013 for filling up the posts of Assistant Engineer (Civil) of Direct Recruitment Cadre.

In connection with the above, as per the instructions given on telephone on 31.10.17, after re-examination of the Government appointment orders issued at the Government level from among the 182 candidates selected by the Public Service Commission, Uttar Pradesh, Allahabad under the Combined State Engineering Examination-2011, it is to be informed that in respect of 182 candidates selected by the Public Service Commission, appointment orders of 174 candidates have been issued through a total of 11 Government orders. By amending the number of remaining candidates, the number of posts in row-2 of Table-2 is shown as 08 instead of 04, accordingly the revised information is as follows:-

Revised table

Sr. No.	Description	No. of vacancies
1	Number of posts of Assistant Engineer (Civil) in Direct Recruitment Cadre currently working/filled	305
2	Number of candidates remaining (whose appointment orders are to be issued at the government level) out of 182 selected by Public Service Commission, Uttar Pradesh, Allahabad in Combined State Engineering Examination-2011 related to the requisitioned posts for the selection year 2009-10 and 2010-11)	08
3	Posts advertised for persons with disabilities in the (Backlog/Special Selection) Examination-2013 for	17

	Persons with Disabilities by the Public Service Commission, Uttar Pradesh, Allahabad
4	As a result of the above, the number of filled posts of Assistant Engineer (Civil) in the direct recruitment cadre	330
5	Number of sanctioned posts of Assistant Engineer (Civil) in the direct recruitment cadre in the Irrigation and Water Resources Department, Uttar Pradesh	804
6	Current vacant posts of Assistant Engineer (804-330) as per the status of filled posts against sanctioned posts of Assistant Engineer (Civil) of Direct Recruitment Cadre.	474
7	Number of requisitioned posts for the selection year 2011-12 to 2015-16 regarding which selection proceedings are in progress by Public Service Commission, Uttar Pradesh, Allahabad.	640
8	Currently, 474 vacant posts of Assistant Engineer (Civil) in the direct recruitment cadre	166

	are available. However, there is an excess of posts (640-474=166) considering the 640 requisitioned posts for the selection years 2011-12 to 2015-16, for which the Public Service Commission is taking action.

Therefore, in continuation of the letter no. G-570/E-2, dated 11.09.17 of this office, it is required to send the revised information as per the above table along with the request to take cognizance of the status of posts as per the above table in place of Table-2 mentioned in the letter dated 11.09.17 of this office and take further action accordingly.

Irrigation and Water Resources
Section-13 Lucknow: Dated 14
November, 2017

Subject:- Regarding the requisition sent for selection through direct recruitment on the vacant posts of Assistant Engineer (Civil) in the selection years 2011-12, 2012-13, 2013-14, 2014-15 and 2015-16.

Sir,

Kindly take note of the Government letters referred to above, bearing letter No. 1552/12-27-Sin-2-3 (80)/06 dated 06.07.2012 and letter no. 2953/13-27-Sin-2-3 (80)/06 dated 07.11.2013, through which requisitions were forwarded to the Uttar Pradesh Public Service Commission, Allahabad, for selection under the Direct recruitment quota to the post of Assistant Engineer (Civil), as detailed below: 262 posts for selection year 2011-12, 121 posts for selection year 2012-13, 86 posts for selection year 2013-14, 79 posts for selection year 2014-15 and 92 posts for selection year 2015-16, aggregating to a total of 640 posts. Pursuant thereto, the Uttar Pradesh Public Service Commission, Allahabad, has already initiated the process of selection by advertising the Combined State Engineering Services (General Selection) Examination, 2013, on 24.12.2013.

2. In this regard, as per the information furnished through the Letter of the Chief Engineer (E-2) bearing letter No G-570/E-2/ requisition dated 11.09.2017 and Letter No. G-737/E-2 dated 01.11.2017 (Photocopies enclosed), after the appointment/ promotion to the post of Assistant Engineer (Civil) in both cadres, a single seniority list is issued under the provisions of Rule 8 of the Uttar Pradesh Government Servants Seniority Rules, 1991 which functions as the feeder cadre for promotion to the post of Engineer-in-

Chief (the highest post). Therefore, the calculation of the requisitioned posts for Assistant Engineers in the direct recruitment cadre ought to have been done by considering the single seniority list of Assistant Engineers. This would have made it clear that as per the resultant vacancies available in each selection year, how many Assistant Engineers of the Direct Recruitment Cadre would be promoted in the eligibility list prepared for promotion from Assistant Engineer to Executive Engineer after promotion to Executive Engineer and higher posts. The requisitioned posts should have been sent to the Government accordingly. However, the requisition was forwarded to the Government without undertaking the calculation of the Direct Recruitment/Promotion Cadre. As a result thereof, at present, upon including the working Assistant Engineers of the Direct Recruitment Cadre and the 640 posts requisitioned from the selection year 2011-12 to the selection year 2015-16, there is an excess of 166 posts as compared to the total sanctioned posts of 804 of the Direct Recruitment Cadre. Thus, at present, only 474 posts of Assistant Engineer (Civil) are vacant.

3 Therefore, in this regard, I am directed to say that in view of the situation described, through the reference letters of the Government, kindly select only 474 candidates against the requisition sent for selection to 640 posts of Assistant Engineer (Civil) for the selection year 2011-12 to 2015-16 and provide the recommendation to the Government.

Enclosures -as above.

Regarding clarification of the status of vertical and horizontal reservation in the requisitions received for the post of Assistant Engineer (Civil) in the Combined State Engineering Services Examination-2013.

Under Secretary, Irrigation & Water Resource Section-13, Government
of Uttar Pradesh, Lucknow.

Kindly take reference of the aforementioned subjected Government Letter No.: 200/ Twenty Seven-13-2018-2/2016, dated 30.01.18, whereby a copy of the letter no. 728/03/E-3/2012-2013, dated 23.01.2018 of the Public Service Commission, Uttar Pradesh, Allahabad has been attached, seeking to clarify the position regarding the posts for 17 Persons with Disabilities (PwD) advertised by the Public Service Commission and to provide the details of vacant posts year wise between the selection year 2011-12 to 2015-16.

It is noteworthy that vide letter no. G-570/E-2, dated 11.09.17 and letter no. G-737 E-2, dated 01.11.2017 of this office, keeping in view the number of Assistant Engineers working at that time against the sanctioned 804 posts of Assistant Engineer (Civil) of direct recruitment cadre, showing the situation of excess of 166 posts, a request has been made to the government to select only 474 candidates, which includes the vacant posts of selection year 2016-17. Pursuant to the same, a letter has been sent to the Public Service Commission, Uttar Pradesh, Allahabad vide Government Letter no. 2113/Twenty Seven-13-2017-02/2016, dated 14.11.2017.

According to requisition done through the Government Letter No.: 200/Twenty Seven- 13-2018-2/2016, dated 30.01.2018, in respect of the said 474 posts sent to the Public Service Commission, Uttar Pradesh, Allahabad, as per the following table, 255 posts for the selection year 2011-12, 66 for the selection year 2012-13, 73 for the selection year 2013-14, 51 for the selection year 2014-15, 09 for the selection year 2015-16 and 20 posts for the selection year 2016-17 are being calculated respectively. Thus, from the selection year 2011-12 to 2015-16 (255+66+73+51+09=) a total of 454 posts and 20 posts are available for the selection year 2016-17.

3	2013-14	73
4	2014-15	51
5	2015-16	09
6	2016-17	20	20
Total			474

According to the said table, out of 454 posts available between the selection year 2011-12 to 2015-16, 13 posts are available for the persons with disabilities, whose sub-categories are as follows:-

1. Visually Impaired - 05 post
2. Hearing Impaired - 04 post
3. Locomotor Disability - 04 post

With reference to the letter no. 728/03/E-3/2012-2013, dated 23.01.18 of Public Service Commission, Uttar Pradesh, Allahabad, it would be expedient to mention that at present no Persons with Disabilities (PwD) Assistant Engineer (Civil) is working in the department in the direct recruitment cadre, hence in the above situation, if the department receives 11 Persons with Disabilities (PwD) candidates/Assistant Engineers (Civil) out of 17 Persons with Disabilities (PwD) candidates advertised under backlog/special selection for Persons with Disabilities (PwD) candidates, the quota of 24 posts fixed for Persons with Disabilities (PwD) candidates shall be fulfilled. The sub-categories of the said 11 posts are as follows:-

1. Visually Impaired - 04 post
2. Hearing Impaired - 04 post
3. Locomotor Disability - 03 post

Therefore, the status of the posts as mentioned above is sent for information and further necessary action.

Allahabad: Date 31 May, 2018

Subject:- Regarding clarification of the status of vertical and horizontal reservation in the requisitions received for the post of Assistant Engineer (Civil) in the Combined State Engineering Services Examination, 2013.

Sir,

In the above-mentioned subject, kindly refer to the Letter No.-792/Twenty Seven- 13-2018-2/2018, dated 18th May, 2018 of the government, through which it has been apprised regarding the vacant posts of Assistant Engineer (Civil), Irrigation Department in the Combined State Engineering Services Examination-2013 from the selection year 2011-12 to 2016-17.

2. In this regard, it is informed that, as per the requisition received from the Government for the post of Assistant Engineer (Civil), Irrigation Department, the Commission is conducting the selection process through the examination in question, on a total of 469 posts for the selection years 2011-12, 2012-13, and 2013-14. Accordingly, the Commission, vide its letter dated 21-05-2015, requested for the clarification on the status of vertical and horizontal reservations for the 469 posts of Assistant Engineer (Civil). In response whereof, the Government sent a letter dated 28-09-2015 (Enclosure-1), in which the status of vertical and horizontal reservations was clarified. However, the 14 posts under horizontal reservation for persons with disabilities were stated to be included in the 17 posts requisitioned/advertised for special selection of persons with disabilities. In the connection to the aforesaid, the Commission again sent a letter dated 30-06-2017 to the government seeking clarification, in reply to which a letter dated 18-05-2018 of the government was received. In the said letter, only $255+66+73=394$ vacant posts have been mentioned in the selection years 2011-12, 2012-13 and 2013-14 respectively, which is completely different from the status of the posts mentioned earlier. Also, the government did not disclose the vertical and horizontal reservation separately for the said posts. Therefore, in order to clarify the status regarding the said discrepancies, the Commission has expressed the expectation that the process of selection be carried out either in accordance with the Government letter dated 28.09.2015, on the basis of the total 469 vacant posts pertaining to the selection years 2011-12 to 2013-14, or in accordance with the Government letter dated 18.05.2018, on the basis of 394 vacant posts pertaining to the selection years 2011-12 to 2013-14. If the selection process is to be conducted as per the letter dated 18-05-2018, then it is necessary to clarify the status of vertical and horizontal reservation in 394 vacant posts from the selection year-2011-12 to the selection year-2013-14 and the Commission be informed as soon as possible.

3- It is noteworthy that vide Letter No.-1328/12-27-Si-2-3(33)/12- dated 28-05-2012 of the government, a requisition for 17 backlog posts of Assistant Engineer (Civil), Irrigation Department for the person with disability was received, on the basis of which the Commission has taken action to advertise the said posts. It is noteworthy that in the letter dated 28-09-2015 of the government, the 14 posts for the persons with disabilities mentioned under horizontal reservation in the 469 vacant posts from the selection year 2011-12 to the selection year 2013-14 have been stated to be included in the 17 posts advertised for the said special selection. From this, it appears that the 17 posts advertised separately under the special selection/disabled are not vacant. Therefore, with regard to the 17 posts reserved for persons with disabilities separately forwarded by the Government, it is necessary to clarify the position, indicating whether a special selection / selection for the backlog of persons with disabilities is to be conducted for these 17 posts, or for any other backlog posts for persons with disabilities where the selection process is to be completed, and to mark these posts according to their sub-category to clearly reflect the status.

It is, therefore, requested that the desired information in respect of the queries raised in paragraphs 2 and 3 above be made available at the earliest, so that the selection process may be completed expeditiously.

Enclosures □ As above.

Sincerely,

Lucknow:

Date: 21st June, 2018

Subject: Regarding clarification of the status of vertical and horizontal reservation in the requisitions received for the post of Assistant Engineer (Civil) in the Combined State Engineering Services Examination- 2013.

Under Secretary, Irrigation and Water Resources Section-13, Government of Uttar Pradesh, Lucknow

In the aforesaid subject, kindly refer to the Government No.- 902 /Twenty Seven- 13-2018-2 / 2016, dated 05.06.2018 through which a copy of the letter no.- 835

/ 03 / E-3 / 2012-2013, dated 31.05.2018 of the Public Service Commission, Uttar Pradesh, Allahabad has been enclosed, providing its clear report in respect of the query made in para 2 and para 3 mentioned in the letter and has sought clarification on the status of vertical and horizontal reservation regarding 394 requisitioned posts from the year 2011-12 to 2013-14 for the post of Assistant Engineer (Civil) selected in the Combined State Engineering Examination-2013.

In this regard, it is to be clarified regarding para 2 of letter dated 31.05.18 of the Secretary, Public Service Commission, U.P., Allahabad in compliance with the instructions given by the Government letter dated 05.06.18 that as per the Government letter no.- 792 /Twenty Seven-13-2018-2 / 2018, dated 18.05.2018 sent in continuation of this office's letter no. G-138 / E-2, dated 10.05.18, it would be appropriate to proceed for the selection years 2011-12, 2012-13 and 2013-14 respectively for a total of 394 posts = (255+66+73). Accordingly, the consolidated details of unreserved/ reserved posts, as per the vertical and horizontal reservation of the said requisitioned 394 posts, shall be as per the following table:-

Vertical reservation of 394 requisitioned posts of Assistant Engineer (Civil) Direct Recruitment from Selection Year 2011-12 to 2013-14	Horiz ontal reservation of 394 requisitioned posts of Assistant Engineer (Civil) Direct Recruitment from Selection Year 2011-12	Re mar k

For women of Uttar Pradesh (20%)	For women of Uttar Pradesh (20%)	78	There is a provision for 20% women reservation vide govt. Letter: 18 / 1 / 99-ka-2 / 99 dated 30.08.99. Accordingly, suitable candidates be selected by making horizontal reservati on. If suitable female candidat es are not available , then these posts will be filled by male candidat es.

Apart from the above, it is to be mentioned regarding para 3 of letter dated 31.05.18 of the Secretary, Public Service Commission, U.P., Allahabad that a total of 804 posts of Assistant Engineer (Civil) of direct recruitment cadre are sanctioned in the Irrigation Department, U.P. against which a total of 24 posts for persons with disabilities are calculated in the reserved cadre. As per the table mentioned on the previous page, a total of 11 posts for persons with disabilities are being counted under horizontal reservation against the advertised posts till selection year 2011-12 to 2013-14. At present, no Assistant Engineer (Civil) of the disabled cadre is working under the direct recruitment cadre. Therefore, if 13 disabled candidates are received by the department as Assistant Engineer (Civil) out of the 17 posts advertised under the Combined State Engineering Service for Disabled Persons (Backlog / Special selection) Examination 2013 then the quota of 24 posts fixed for persons with disabilities will be fulfilled against the sanctioned posts. In such a situation, it would be appropriate to select 13 posts of Assistant Engineer (Civil) from the 17 posts advertised under the special selection whose sub-categories shall be as per the following table:-

Therefore, the status of posts as mentioned above is forwarded for information and further necessary action.

OFFICE MEMORANDUM

Keeping in view the difficulties arising in the implementation of previously issued Government Orders relating to providing appointment to candidates selected on the basis of competitive examinations and other selections conducted by the Public Service Commission, U.P., and in seeking names from the waiting list, the Government has decided that, except for single-cadre posts, in all other combined services and other selections, no waiting list shall be prepared and no reshuffling shall be done.

2. In relation to the above, while superseding all previously issued Government Orders, the following other important decisions have been taken by the Government:

(1) Requisitions should be sent to the Commission only after ensuring correct calculation of the vacancies arising in a particular year of selection. As far as possible, there should be no change in the vacancies after the requisition has been sent.

(2) After receipt of the recommendations in respect of selected candidates, they must be made to assume charge, except in those cases where the concerned department/institution/organization has been completely wound up, or where any Court has passed an order to the contrary.

(3) The concerned departments shall ensure issuance of appointment orders within three months from the date of receipt of recommendations/allotments, and the candidate shall be given one month's time to assume charge in the first instance, which, in unavoidable circumstances, may be considered for extension by one more month.

(4) Appointment letters shall be issued only after verification of character and conduct and medical examination of the selected candidates.

(5) In respect of candidates who do not assume charge within the prescribed period, their candidature shall be cancelled and the resulting vacancies shall be carried forward to the next year of selection.

(6) The select list shall be utilized only against the vacancies of that particular year of selection for which the requisition was sent/selection was made.

3. The above orders shall come into force with immediate effect.

4. Strict compliance of the above orders shall be ensured at every level.

ORIGINAL JURISDICTION
CIVIL SIDE
DATED: LUCKNOW 19.12.2025

THE HON'BLE AMITABH KUMAR RAI, J.

Writ - A No. 6734 of 2002

Mohd. Arif ...Petitioner
Versus
U.P. State Road Transport Corp. & Ors.
...Respondents

Issue for Consideration

- (1) Effect of non-recording the statements of independent witnesses on the validity of the disciplinary proceedings.
- (2) Scope of writ jurisdiction while dealing with the issues relating to disciplinary proceedings.

Headnotes

(A) Service law – Removal from service – Post of Conductor – Disciplinary proceedings – Charge of corruption and misconduct by taking 30 passengers out of 83 for travel without ticket, consequently embezzle the income of corporation – Petitioner claimed enquiry illegal for the reason of not examining certain witnesses – Permissibility. (E-1)

Held : Claim of the petitioner that certain witnesses were not examined during the course of inquiry proceedings is unsustainable, as the petitioner himself, during the course of inquiry proceedings, forgo his right to examine them by insisting upon the Inquiry Officer to complete the inquiry without examination of such witnesses – In a departmental enquiry, the strict and technical rules of evidence are not applicable – Non-recording of statements of independent witnesses, such as passengers, would not vitiate the disciplinary proceedings or render them invalid. [Paras 13 and 14]

(B) Constitution of India – Article 226 – Writ – Judicial review – Disciplinary proceeding – Scope of interference. (E-1)

Held : Scope of writ jurisdiction while dealing with issues relating to disciplinary proceedings is limited. The power of judicial review is confined to the decision-making process and the power of judicial review conferred on a Constitutional Court or Tribunal is limited [Para 21]

Case Arising From

Order dated 31.05.2002 removing the petitioner from service.

Appearances for Parties

Adv. for the Petitioner : Brijesh Kumar, Abhishek Singh, Raza Ali Khan, Sameer Singh, Syed Shabih Haider, Zuber Hasan.

Adv. for the Respondents : Mahesh Chandra, Puneet Chandra, Ratnesh Chandra.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Amitabh Kumar Rai, J.)

1. Heard Sri Sameer Singh, learned counsel for the petitioner, and Sri Ratnesh Chandra, learned counsel for the respondents.

2. The present writ petition has been filed challenging the order dated 31.05.2002 passed by the Regional Manager, Uttar Pradesh State Road Transport Corporation (hereinafter referred to as □UPSRTC□) Lucknow Region, Lucknow, whereby the petitioner was awarded punishment of removal from service, as well as the appellate order dated 10.09.2002 by which the appeal of the petitioner was rejected by respondent no. 3, Mandaliya Pradhan Prabandhak (Central Zone), UPSRTC, Terhi Kothi, Lucknow.

3. The brief facts of the case are that the petitioner, while posted on the post of Conductor at Mirzapur Depot, Allahabad Region, was running passenger bus bearing vehicle registration no. U.R.S. 9938 en route from Renukot to Lucknow on 09.03.1990. At about 16:45 hours, between Renukot and Robertsganj, the bus was stopped by the inspection team at a place namely Gurmura, and on inspection it was found that out of 83 passengers, 30 passengers were without tickets, though the fare from them was realised by the petitioner. The inspection team was headed by Sri Heera Lal Upadhyay, Senior Centre In-charge (Checking), along with two Assistant Traffic Inspectors. The inspection team, on finding that 30 passengers were without ticket, issued a common ticket no. 660966 for all passengers, and an inspection report dated 15.09.1990 was forwarded to the Regional Office for further action.

4. Thereafter, a charge-sheet dated 25.09.1990 was issued in which it was alleged that the petitioner realised Rs. 285 from 30 passengers out of a total of 83 passengers but did not issue tickets to them for travelling from Renukot to Robertsganj, as per inspection held on 09.03.1990 at 16:45 hours. By such conduct, the petitioner was held guilty of four charges, i.e., (i) taking 30 passengers for travel in the bus without tickets; (ii) attempt to embezzle the income of the corporation; (iii) involving himself in corruption and misconduct; and (iv) discharging duty in violation of rules. In support of the charges, the inspection report was annexed with the charge-sheet, and it was also provided that the way-bills and tickets, could be pursued by the petitioner the same in the Regional Office. It was further required by the charge-sheet that the petitioner should file a reply to the charges within 15 days and also inform about the witnesses whom he wanted to cross-examine and other evidence which he wanted to rely upon in defence of the charges against him.

5. The petitioner filed his reply to the charges vide his letter dated 30.11.1990 denying the charges, in which he specifically mentioned for examining of two passengers who were present in the bus on the date of the inspection / checking on 09.03.1990. He also made reference that the inspection report was not supported by any independent witness and, as such, could not be relied upon. During the course of inquiry, the inspection report was proved by Heera Lal Upadhyay, In-charge of the Inspection Team, and the petitioner also cross examined Sri Heera Lal Upadhyay in detail. The petitioner could not get his witnesses examined, and in the meantime he was transferred to Faizabad Region and the Assistant Regional Manager (Karmik) was nominated as the new Inquiry Officer. Thereafter, the Inquiry Officer called upon the petitioner for personal hearing, and Sri K.P. Tiwari, Assistant Traffic Inspector, one of the members of the inspection team, was examined at the instance of the petitioner on 15.03.1998.

6. The petitioner, during the course of inquiry proceedings, produced one of his witnesses, Sri Vinod Kumar, who stated that from Renukot there were 20 to 30 passengers and after 5 to 7 kms the inspection team confronted the bus, and he overheard that there were 30 passengers. He further stated that he had come as a witness as the conductor had called upon him to give his statement in the disciplinary proceedings. On 15.01.1998, the petitioner appeared before the Inquiry Officer and recorded his statement that his reply to the charge-sheet should be considered as his defence and that he did not want to examine any other person and the inquiry might be completed.

7. The Inquiry Officer, after considering the statements of the witnesses as well as the inspection report and other evidence produced during the course of inquiry proceedings, came to the conclusion that the charges against the petitioner of allowing 30 passengers to travel without tickets after realising fare to the tune of Rs. 285, but not issuing any ticket to them, stood established and proved. Thereafter, a show-cause notice dated 29.01.1998 was issued to the petitioner by the disciplinary authority along with a copy of the inquiry report, to which the petitioner submitted his reply vide letter dated 25.02.1998. The disciplinary authority, i.e., the Regional Manager, UPSRTC, Lucknow Region, Lucknow, thereafter passed the punishment order dated 31.05.2002 terminating the services of the petitioner by awarding the punishment of removal.

8. The petitioner thereafter filed a departmental appeal under Regulation 64 of the Uttar Pradesh State Road Transport Corporation Employees (Other Than Officers) Service Regulations, 1981 (hereinafter referred to as □Regulations, 1981□) before the next higher authority, i.e., Mandaliya Pradhan Prabandhak (Central Zone), UPSRTC, Terhi Kothi, Lucknow, which was rejected after due consideration vide order dated 10.09.2002.

9. The petitioner has assailed the order of removal dated 31.05.2002 on the following grounds:□

(i) No date and time were fixed by the Inquiry Officer during the course of inquiry proceedings, and the disciplinary authority also did not fix any date and time before passing the order dated 31.05.2002.

(ii) The driver of the bus was not charged with the offence of carrying ticketless passengers, and only the petitioner was charged, which amounts to discrimination.

(iii) One independent witness examined by the petitioner, namely Vinod, and another independent witness, Mohd. Abbas, who was to be produced by the petitioner, could not be examined by the Inquiry Officer.

(iv) The third member of the inspection team, i.e., Sri K.P. Tiwari, Assistant Traffic Inspector, who was also part of the inspection team, was not examined by the Inquiry Officer.

(v) The disciplinary authority, vide letter dated 10.03.1998, called upon Sri Heera Lal Upadhyay for certain clarifications, but he did not appear before the disciplinary authority, and as such the disciplinary authority should not have proceeded to pass the order of punishment.

(vi) The charges against the petitioner were stale, and after four years of submission of the reply to the show-cause notice, the order of punishment was passed.

(vii) The order has been passed by the Regional Manager, UPSRTC, who is not the competent authority to pass the order of removal, as the Assistant Regional Manager is the appointing authority of the petitioner as per the resolution of the Board dated 29.02.1996.

10. Part X of the Regulations of 1981, from Regulation 61 to 69, contains the provisions with respect to conduct, punishment and appeal of the employees of the Corporation. Regulation of 1981 is applicable to Group □C□ and □D□ employees of the Corporation. The petitioner was a Group □C□ employee, and hence the disciplinary proceedings against him are governed by the provisions of the Regulations of 1981. Regulation 64 of the Regulations of 1981 provides the procedure for awarding major penalties.

11. After going through the records annexed with the record of the writ petition as well as the counter affidavit filed in the present case, it transpires that the chargesheet was issued on 23.09.1990, which contained definite charges against the petitioner. The inquiry report dated 17.01.1998 discloses that the petitioner was granted opportunity of examination and cross-examination of witnesses produced by the Corporation as well. The independent witness produced by the petitioner, who was a passenger traveling in the bus when the inspection / checking was done on 09.03.1990 was also examined.

12. The petitioner has alleged in memo of writ petition that Sri K.P. Tiwari, Assistant Traffic Inspector, who was the third member of the inspection team, was not examined and another independent witness, namely Mohd. Abbas, was also not examined by the Inquiry Officer which vitiates the disciplinary proceedings. From the records, it transpires that the petitioner himself insisted before the Inquiry Officer to close the inquiry on the basis of his statement and the witnesses already produced by him, along with his reply to the charges, which is evident from the statement made by the petitioner on 15.01.1998 before the Inquiry Officer. The relevant extract, as recorded in the inquiry report, is reproduced hereinbelow :-

"दिनांक-15-1-98 को परिचालक उपस्थित हुआ और अपना बयान दिया कि दिये गये स्पष्टीकरण को ही मेरा बयान माना जाये जाच अधिकारी द्वारा पूछे जाने पर स्पष्ट किया कि मुख्य रिपोर्टकर्ता से बयान होचुका है। श्री के० पी० तिवारी से पूछतांझ करता परन्तु कई तिथि लगायी गयी वे उपस्थित नहीं हुए और अब पूछतांश नहीं करनी है जांच रिपोर्ट भेज दी जाये।"

13. Thus, the claim of the petitioner that certain witnesses were not examined during the course of inquiry proceedings is unsustainable, as the petitioner himself, during the course of inquiry proceedings, forgo his right to examine them by insisting upon the Inquiry Officer to complete the inquiry without examination of such witnesses.

14. Moreover, with regard to the testimony of independent witnesses, the Hon^{ble} Supreme Court, in the case of State of Haryana and Another v. Rattan Singh (1977 SCC OnLine SC 145), has held that in a departmental enquiry, the strict and technical rules of evidence are not applicable. The Court further held that the non-recording of statements of independent witnesses, such as passengers, would not vitiate the disciplinary proceedings or render them invalid. Paragraph 5 of the said judgment is relevant for the present case and is reproduced hereinbelow:-

"5. Reliance was placed, as earlier stated, on the non-compliance with the departmental instruction that statements of passengers should be recorded by inspectOrs. These are instructions of prudence, not rules that bind or vitiate in the violation. In this case, the Inspector tried to get the statements but the passengers declined, the psychology of the latter in such circumstances being understandable, although may not be approved. We cannot hold that merely because statements of passengers were not recorded the order that followed was invalid. Likewise, the revaluation of the evidence on the strength of co-conductor's testimony is a matter not for the court but for the administrative tribunal in conclusion, we do not think the courts below were right in over-turning the finding of the domestic tribunal"

(emphasis added)

15. The aforesaid principle of law has been reiterated by the Hon^{ble}

Supreme Court in the case of U.P. State Road Transport Corporation v. Suresh Chand Sharma (2010) SCC OnLine SC 648 and paragraph 16 of the said judgement is quoted hereinbelow :-

“16. In State of Haryana & Anr. v. Rattan Singh AIR 1977 SC 1512, this Court has categorically held that in a domestic enquiry, complicated principles and procedure laid down in the Civil Procedure Code, 1908 and the Indian Evidence Act, 1872 do not apply. The only right of a delinquent employee is that he must be informed as to what are the charges against him and he must be given full opportunity to defend himself on the said charges. However, the Court rejected the contention that enquiry report stood vitiated for not recording the statement of the passengers who were found travelling without ticket...”

Hence, the contention of the petitioner that the enquiry proceedings stand vitiated on account of non-examination of certain witnesses is unsustainable.

16. The claim of the petitioner that the Regional Manager is not the competent authority to pass the order of removal is also not tenable, as the Regional Manager is higher in post than the Assistant Regional Manager, and as such it cannot be said that the Regional Manager was not competent to pass the order of removal against the petitioner.

17. The petitioner has also alleged that the disciplinary authority, vide letter dated 10.03.1998, called upon Sri Heera Lal Upadhyay, In-charge of the Inspection Team, before passing the order of punishment, but he did not appear, and as such the disciplinary authority could not have passed the order of punishment. In this regard, the Court has gone through the letter dated 10.03.1998, which was issued by the Regional Manager, Faizabad Region which only reflects that for certain clarifications, Heera Lal Upadhyay was called upon with respect to the inspection report and for that purpose was required to appear before the Regional Manager on 20.03.1998. This aspect was considered by the appellate authority while passing the order dated 10.09.2002, and it has been clarified that though the Regional Manager, Faizabad Region, vide letter dated 10.03.1998 sought certain clarifications, the Regional Manager, Lucknow, who ultimately passed the punishment order, did not find it necessary to seek any such clarification and he, on the basis of the inquiry report, reply and the evidences available with the record of the enquiry proceedings passed the order of punishment, which is justified.

18. This Court is of the view that merely by issuance of the letter dated 10.03.1998 by the Regional Manager, Faizabad, seeking clarification, it cannot be said that the Regional Manager, Lucknow, should have also sought such clarification. It is the satisfaction of the disciplinary authority, on the basis of material available before him, to take a decision with regard to the charges. Once the disciplinary authority has taken the decision that the petitioner, on the basis of the material on record, i.e., the inquiry report, statements of witnesses recorded during the course of inquiry, reply of the petitioner, and other evidence, is guilty, he is well within his right to pass appropriate orders.

19. The petitioner has also raised a question mark on the findings recorded by the Inquiry Officer on the basis of allegation of bias against the In-charge of the inspection team, Heera Lal Upadhyay. The court is of view that such allegation of the petitioner, to the extent of the conclusion arrived at by the Inquiry Officer, is also not tenable, for the reason that the petitioner has not made any specific allegation of bias. Merely, because the inspection team did not rely upon the version of the petitioner while preparing the inspection report cannot be a reason to say that the inspection team led by Shri Heera Lal Upadhyaya was biased against the petitioner.

20. The Court has also gone through the appellate order dated 10.09.2002 and finds that it is a well-considered and reasoned order. The grounds taken in the memorandum of appeal filed by the petitioner were duly considered by respondent no. 3 before passing the order dated 10.09.2002.

21. It is needless to mention that the scope of writ jurisdiction while dealing with issues relating to disciplinary proceedings is limited. The power of judicial review is confined to the decision-making process and the power of judicial review conferred on a Constitutional Court or Tribunal is limited.

22. In State of A.P. v. S. Sree Rama Rao : AIR 1963 SC 1723, a three-Judge Bench of Supreme Court has held that the High Court is not a court of appeal over the decision of the authorities holding a departmental inquiry against a public servant. It is concerned to determine whether the inquiry is held by an authority competent in that behalf, and according to the procedure prescribed in that behalf, and whether the rules of natural justice are not violated.

23. In B.C. Chaturvedi v. Union of India : 1996 SCC (L&S) 80, a three-Judge Bench of Supreme Court has held that power of judicial review is not an appeal from a decision but a review of the manner in which the decision is made. Power of judicial review is meant to ensure that the individual receives fair treatment and not to ensure that the conclusion which the authority reaches is necessarily correct in the eyes of the court. The court/tribunal in its power of judicial review does not act as an appellate authority to re-appreciate the evidence and to arrive at its own independent findings on the evidence.

24. In High Court of Bombay v. Shashikant S. Patil : (2000) 1 SCC 416, Supreme Court held that interference with the decision of departmental authorities is permitted if such authority had held proceedings in violation of the principles of natural justice or in violation of statutory regulations prescribing the mode of such inquiry while exercising jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution.

25. In State Bank of Bikaner & Jaipur v. Nemi Chand Nalwaya : (2011) 4 SCC 584, Supreme Court held that the courts will not act as an appellate court and reassess the evidence led in the domestic enquiry, nor interfere on the ground that another view is possible on the material on record. If the inquiry has been fairly and properly held and the findings are based on evidence, the question of adequacy of the evidence or the reliable nature of the evidence will not be ground for interfering with the findings in departmental inquiries.

26. In another judgment reported as Union of India v. P. Gunasekaran : (2015) 2 SCC 610, Supreme Court held that while re-appreciating evidence the High Court cannot act as an appellate authority in the disciplinary proceedings. The Court laid down the parameters as to when the High Court shall not interfere in the disciplinary proceedings : (SCC p. 617, para 13)

“13. Under Articles 226/227 of the Constitution of India, the High Court shall not:

(i) reappreciate the evidence;

(ii) interfere with the conclusions in the enquiry, in case the same has been conducted in accordance with law;

(iii) go into the adequacy of the evidence;

(iv) go into the reliability of the evidence;

(v) interfere, if there be some legal evidence on which findings can be based.

(vi) correct the error of fact however grave it may appear to be;

(vii) go into the proportionality of punishment unless it shocks its conscience.”

27. In view of the aforesaid proposition of law laid down by the Hon^{ble} Supreme Court and the analysis of the facts of the present case as recorded hereinabove, this Court finds no illegality or infirmity in the order of removal dated 31.05.2002 and the appellate order dated 10.09.2002.

28. Accordingly, this writ petition fails and is dismissed.

29. No order as to costs.

THE HON'BLE SHREE PRAKASH SINGH, J.

Writ - A No. 14162 of 2025

Amrendra Kumar Singh ...Petitioner
Versus
U.P. Rajkiya Nirman Ltd. Thru M.D. & Ors.
...Respondent

Issue for consideration

Whether inquiry proceeding can be initiated against a retired employee, when the charge-sheet has been issued after the retirement?

Headnotes

A. Service Law – Working Manual of the respondent Corporation: Rule 709(gha) - Departmental proceedings can commence only when the charge-sheet is issued to the delinquent employee. In fact, pendency of inquiry would be if such proceeding is commenced. (Para 15, 16)

In present case, this is an admitted fact that the charge-sheet has been issued on 8th August 2022, i.e., after the retirement of the delinquent employee, and therefore, the date of commencement of the disciplinary proceeding would be 8th August 2022, and therefore, the provisions of Rule 709(gha), do not attract in the facts and circumstances of the present case. (Para 17)

B. Further the Working Manual clause/table 709(cha) also does not favour proceedings undertaken by the respondent Corporation as the date of initiation of inquiry is 8th August 2025. (Para 18)

The things should be done in the manner prescribed and not otherwise, whereas the charge sheet, which has been issued against the petitioner, is not in consonance with the provisions of Rules 709 (gha) and 709 (cha) thus, the same is impermissible. (Para 19)

Charge sheet dated 8th August 2022 issued against the petitioner is hereby quashed.

Writ petition allowed. (E-4)

Appearances for Parties

For Petitioner(s): Shobhit Nigam, Harish Singh, Vipul Singh

For Respondent(s): Shishir Jain

(Delivered by Hon'ble Shree Prakash Singh, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the petitioner and Mr. Shishir Jain, learned counsel for the respondent corporation.

2. The matter involves a pure question of law, and therefore, the same is hereby decided at the admission stage.

3. The present writ petition has been filed seeking following relief:-

"A) Issue a writ order or direction in the nature of Certiorari quashing the charge sheet dated 08/08/2022, contained as Annexure No. 1 to this Writ Petition."

4. The challenge is laid to the charge sheet dated 8th August 2022, issued against the petitioner, on the ground that no inquiry proceeding can be initiated after the retirement of an employee."

5. The contention put forth by the learned counsel for the petitioner is that the petitioner was appointed on the post of Assistant Accounts on 5th June 1996, and thereafter, he was promoted to the post of Assistant Accounts Officer and after attaining the age of superannuation, he retired from service, on 31st August 2021 and prior to his retirement, the petitioner was duly issued, 'No Dues Certificate' from all concerned units, where he was posted, during the service period. He next submitted that an office order was issued on 12th April 2021, wherein the inquiry officer was appointed, but no charge sheet has ever been served upon the petitioner, prior to his retirement, and that has been served, on 8th August 2022 only. He submitted that Civil Service Regulations have not been adopted, admittedly, in the department of the respondent Corporation, and it has its own Rules and Regulations regarding the inquiry.

6. He added that Rule 709(gha) of the Working Manual of the respondent Corporation reads as under:-

"709 (घ) यदि विभागीय जांच की कार्यवाही लिम्ब त रहते हु ए आरोपित कामिक अधिवर्षता आयु प्र ाप् त कर रोवा निवृत्त हो जाता है, उस िरथित में लिम्ब त विभागीय जाँच को इस िनयमावली के तहत उसके सेवा निवृत्तदेयकों से िवत्ती य क्ष ित की वसूली के िलए जारी रखा जा सकता

है। परन्तु सेवानिवृत्त कामिक को दण्ड नहीं दिया जा सकता और न ही उक्त दण्ड के उद्देश्य से कायर्वाही प्रारम्भ अथवा जारी रखी जा सकती है किन्तु विवर्तीय दण्ड दिया जा सकता है एवं विवर्तीय दण्ड देने के उद्देश्य से विवर्तीय क्ष

ति की धनराशि की वसूली हेतु जाँच की कायर्वाही जारी रखी जा सकती है।"

7. Referring the aforesaid, he submitted that the aforementioned provision prescribes that if an employee attains the age of superannuation while pendency of the departmental proceeding, such enquiry can be continued for the recovery of financial loss from the retiral dues of such employee.

8. He has further drawn attention towards Rule 709(cha) of the Working Manual, which also reads as under:-

"709 (च) यदि कामिक के सेवानिवृत्त के उपरान्त कोई तथ्य सामने आये तो सेवानिवृत्त के पश्चात् भी इस नियमावली के तहत अनुशासनिक कायर्वाही की जा सकती है, बशर्ते जिस घटना के सम्बन्ध में जाँच प्रारम्भ की जा रही है। जाँच करने की तिथि को उस घटना को 04 वर्ष से अधिक का समय न बीत चुका हो।"

9. Referring the aforesaid, he submitted that this provision says that the disciplinary proceedings can be done against an employee even after his retirement, provided the time period of four years has not been elapsed from the date of inquiry. He submitted that Rule 709(cha) is not applicable in the present case as the date of the incident is between 21st January 2013 to 24th December 2013, and as per the office letter dated 12th April 2021, whereby an inquiry officer was appointed, the same is about more than eight years, from the date of the incident, more so the date of enquiry is 8th August 2022.

10. He further argued that so far as the provision regarding 709(gha) is concerned, that would also not attract and cover the field of the present issue, as though the inquiry officer was appointed on 12th April 2021, that is prior to the date of superannuation, but the charge sheet has admittedly been served upon the petitioner on the 8th August 2022, which is after the retirement, and, as per the settled law, the disciplinary proceeding commenced after the charge-sheet is furnished to the delinquent employee, and in that sense only, it would be termed as pending enquiry.

11. Concluding his arguments, he submitted that since the chargesheet has been issued after the superannuation of the employee, i.e., on 8th August 2022, and therefore, the issuance of the charge-sheet itself goes against Rule 709(gha) of the Working Manual of the respondent Corporation, and therefore, the same is unsustainable.

12. On the other hand, Mr. Shishir Jain, learned counsel for the respondent Corporation, has opposed the contention aforesaid and submitted that on 12th April 2021, the Inquiry Officer has been appointed to inquire into the matter, and therefore, the proceeding has been started from the date of appointment of the Inquiry Officer. He submitted that the petitioner retired on 31st August 2021, and the proceedings have been initiated on 12th April 2021, by the office order, whereby the Inquiry Officer has been appointed, and therefore, there is no unlawfulness while undertaking the disciplinary proceeding against the petitioner. He next added that in furtherance of the order dated 12th April 2021, the Inquiry Officer prepared the charge-sheet and issued the same on, 8th August 2022, as such, there is no ambiguity or erroneous in the same.

13. Having heard learned counsel for the parties, it is apparent that the charge-sheet dated 8th August 2022 issued to the petitioner is under challenge. When this Court examines the matter in facts and law of the present case, it is apparent that the petitioner has been retired on 31st August 2021, after attaining the age of superannuation, and the charge-sheet has been issued on 8th August 2022, which are the undisputed facts between the parties. The letter/order dated 12th April 2021 by which the Inquiry Officer has been appointed, is also an undisputed fact.

14. This court has noticed that the respondent Corporation has its own Working Manual, which prescribes the rules for inquiry against the employees of the Department, and Rule 709(gha) reveals that the pending departmental inquiry can go on for recovery of financial loss, after the retirement of the employee, if the same was pending during his service period.

15. The date of commencement of the inquiry proceeding, has been considered, in the celebrated judgment of Union of India Vs. K.V. Janakiraman, reported in (1991) 4 SCC 109, wherein it has been held that the departmental proceedings can commence only when the charge-sheet is issued to the delinquent employee. In fact, pendency of inquiry would be if such proceeding is commenced. Paras 16 & 17 of the said Judgment read as under:-

"16. On the first question, viz., as to when for the purposes of the sealed cover procedure the disciplinary/criminal proceedings can be said to have commenced, the Full Bench of the Tribunal has held that it is only when a charge-memo in a disciplinary proceedings or a charge-sheet in a criminal prosecution is issued to the employee that it can be said that the departmental proceedings/criminal prosecution is initiated against the employee. The sealed cover procedure is to be resorted to only after the charge-memo/charge-sheet is issued. The pendency of preliminary investigation prior to that stage will not be sufficient to enable the authorities to adopt the sealed cover procedure. We are in agreement with the Tribunal on this point. The contention advanced by the learned counsel for the appellant-authorities that when there are serious allegations and it takes time to collect necessary evidence to prepare and issue charge-memo/charge-sheet, it would not be in the interest of the purity WRIA No. 14162 of 2025 4 of administration to reward the employee with a promotion, increment etc. does not impress us. The acceptance of this contention would result in injustice to the employees in many cases. As has been the experience so far, the preliminary investigations take an inordinately long time and particularly when they are initiated at the instance of the interested persons, they are kept pending deliberately. Many times they never result in the issue of any charge-memo/charge-sheet. If the allegations are serious and the authorities are keen in investigating them, ordinarily it should not take much time to collect the relevant evidence and finalise the charges. What is further, if the charges are that serious, the authorities have the power to suspend the employee under the relevant rules, and the suspension by itself permits a resort to the sealed cover procedure. The authorities thus are not without a remedy. It was then contended on behalf of the authorities that conclusions Nos. 1 and 4 of the Full Bench of the Tribunal are inconsistent with each other. Those conclusions are as follows: (ATC p. 196, para 39)

“(1) consideration for promotion, selection grade, crossing the efficiency bar or higher scale of pay cannot be withheld merely on the ground of pendency of a disciplinary or criminal proceedings against an official;

(4) the sealed cover procedure can be resorted to only after a charge memo is served on the concerned official or the charge-sheet filed before the criminal court and not before;

17. There is no doubt that there is a seeming contradiction between the two conclusions. But read harmoniously, and that is what the Full Bench has intended, the two conclusions can be reconciled with each other. The conclusion No. 1 should be read to mean that the promotion etc. cannot be withheld merely because some disciplinary/criminal proceedings are pending against the employee. To deny the said benefit, they must be at the relevant time pending at the stage when charge-memo/charge-sheet has already been issued to the employee. Thus read, there is no inconsistency in the two conclusions.”

16. Further in the judgments rendered in the cases of Coal India Limited versus Saroj Kumar Mishra reported in (2007) 9 SCC 625 and Coal India Ltd. Vs. Ananta Saha, reported in (2011) 5 SCC 142, it has been reiterated that the disciplinary proceeding commences only when the charge-sheet is issued to the delinquent employee.

17. So far as the present case is concerned, this is an admitted fact that the charge-sheet has been issued on 8th August 2022, i.e., after the retirement of the delinquent employee, and therefore, the date of commencement of the disciplinary proceeding would be 8th August 2022, and therefore, the provisions of Rule 709(gha), do not attract in the facts and circumstances of the present case.

18. Further the Working Manual clause/table 709(cha) also does not favour proceedings undertaken by the respondent Corporation as the date of initiation of inquiry is 8th August 2025.

19. It is trite law that the things should be done in the manner prescribed and not otherwise, whereas the charge sheet, which has been issued against the petitioner, is not in consonance with the provisions of Rules 709 (gha) and 709 (cha) thus, the same is impermissible.

20. Consequently, the charge sheet dated 8th August 2022 issued against the petitioner is hereby quashed.

21. The writ petition is allowed accordingly.

22. Consequences to follow.

Commissioner (Judicial), Ayodhya Mandal, affirming the same.

Appearances for Parties

Advs For Petitioner: Ajay Pratap Singh, Mohammad Ehtesham Khan

Advs For Respondents: C.S.C., Mohan Singh, Rohit Agarwal

(Delivered by Hon'ble Alok Mathur, J.)

1. Heard Sri Ajay Pratap Singh and Sri M.E. Khan, learned counsel for petitioner as well as learned Standing Counsel on behalf of respondent Nos. 1 to 5 and Sri Mohan Singh, learned counsel for respondent Nos. 6 & 7.

2. It has been submitted by learned counsel for petitioner that a suit U/S 229B of U.P. Z.A. & L.R. Act was filed by Subhash Chandra Agarwal, the late father of the petitioner with regard to Gata No. 2630 area 10-4-0 situated at Village Badel, Paragana and Tehsil - Nawabganj, District Barabanki on 03.08.1977 and the said suit was allowed in favour of father of the petitioner by means of judgment and order dated 29.1.1979 by the Pargana Adhikari, Nawabganj, now the Sub-Divisional Officer, Nawabganj, Barabanki, it was directed that the name of Subash Chandra be recorded with regard to Gata No. 2630 in Village Badel, Paragana and Tehsil - Nawabganj, District Barabanki. Subsequent to the said judgment and order, the father of the petitioner was continued to be in occupation of the said land subsequent to which the petitioner claims to be in possession.

3. It has been submitted that the order dated 29.01.1979 could not be executed and therefore the name of the father of the petitioner could not be recorded in the revenue records. It has further been stated that subsequently one stranger to the proceedings, namely, Govind Prasad had moved an application for restoration of the order dated 29.01.1979 which was rejected on 02.11.2012 by the Sub-Divisional Officer. It has been submitted that Subhash Chandra died on 22.10.2018 leaving behind the petitioner as the sole legal heir.

4. It is the case of the petitioner that it is after the death of his father that he came to know about the order dated 29.01.1979 and then he moved an application for mutation of the aforesaid property and also approached this Court by filing a writ petition being Writ C No. 5009/2022 seeking a direction to the revenue authorities to implement the order dated 29.01.1979. This Court by means of order dated 08.08.2022 disposed of the same by passing following directions:

"This petition has been filed with a prayer to issue direction to the Sub-Divisional Officer and Tehsildar to implement the judgment and decree said to have been passed on 29.01.1979 by the Sub-Divisional Officer in a case under Section 229-B of the U.P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act (Subhash Chandra Agarwal Vs. Gaon Sabha Barail).

If a declaratory decree has been passed by the Sub-Divisional Officer its execution can also be sought before the court which has passed the order. Accordingly, without entering into the claim of the petitioners this petition is finally disposed of with liberty to the petitioners to approach the Court which has passed the judgment and decree dated 29.01.1979 in a suit said to have been instituted under Section 229-B of the U.P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act.

In case any such application seeking execution of the said decree is moved by the petitioners before the Sub-Divisional Officer, the same shall be considered and decided with expedition.

However, we make it amply clear and direct as well that the Sub-Divisional Officer while considering the application which may be moved by the petitioners under this order shall appropriately issue notices to the Bhumi Prabandhak Samiti of the Gram Panchayat concerned and shall also verify the authenticity of the judgment and decree dated 29.01.1979 passed by the Sub-Divisional Officer on the basis of which this petition has been filed.

The Sub-Divisional Officer shall also take into account as to whether after lapse of a period of about 43 years from the date the said decree was passed, any Amaldaramad can be made on the basis of such decree."

5. It has been submitted that it is in the compliance of the order dated 08.08.2022 passed by this Court that the Sub-Divisional Officer had called a report from the revenue authorities and also from the District Government Counsell (Revenue). The Sub-Divisional Magistrate, Nawabganj, Barabanki rejected the application after noticing that original suit proceedings were instituted by the Subhash Chandra, and the father of the petitioner and petitioner was not a party not the said proceedings and accordingly no application for execution / implementation was maintainable at the behest of the petitioner and consequently rejected his application by means of order dated 12.03.2024.

6. Aggrieved by the order dated 12.03.2024 the petitioner had preferred a revision before the Additional Commissioner (Judicial), Ayodhya Mandal, Ayodhya who dismissed the revision as being not maintainable holding that the order passed by the Sub-Divisional Magistrate was an administrative order against which a revision was not maintainable and therefore in the aforesaid circumstances by means of present writ petition the petitioner has challenged the order dated 12.03.2024 as well as order dated 30.09.2025.

7. Learned counsel for the petitioner at the very outset submits that the proceedings for implementation of the final judgment passed in exercise of powers U/S 229B of U.P. Z.A. & L.R. Act can be implemented by the legal heirs or any person claiming his right from the original plaintiff / decree holder. He submits that the petitioner being the sole legal representative of Subhash Chandra was fully entitled to move an application for implementation of the order dated 29.01.1979 and therefore both the authorities below have committed manifest error in not exercising the jurisdiction vested therein in most illegal and arbitrary manner. In support of his submissions, learned counsel for petitioner has relied upon the provisions of Section 146 of the Civil Procedure Code.

8. He has submitted that Section 146 is an expansive provision which has been made only to facilitate the legal representatives of the plaintiff/respondents from initiating proceedings which could have been initiated by the predecessor in interest. He submits that Section 146 provides a robust mechanism for the transferee to safeguard the interest in ongoing legal proceedings ensuring that property transaction and transfers do not leave new party vulnerable to unforeseen legal actions. Accordingly, he submits that provisions of order 22 Rule 10 CPC would apply in a situation where the proceedings are pending and necessary substitution can take place during those proceedings but once the proceedings stands concluded then it is only in exercise of powers U/S 146 appropriate action subsequent to the judgment and order can be passed at the behest of the person so claiming under the plaintiff/respondent.

9. Learned Standing Counsel on the other hand has opposed the writ petition but does not dispute the aforesaid legal provisions. He has also submitted that the Division Bench while considering the application of the petitioner in Writ C No. 5009/2022 had directed the Sub-Divisional Magistrate to take into account the delay of 43 years in filing the application and also to consider the antecedents of the petitioner before deciding his application and submits that in any view of the matter in case the matter is remanded the Sub-Divisional Magistrate would have to consider the directions of this Court passed in Writ C No. 5009/2022.

10. I have heard rival contention of the parties and perused the record.

11. There is no dispute with regard to the fact that Subhas Chand had instituted regular proceedings U/S 229B of U.P. Z.A. & L.R. Act in which proceedings it was directed that in Khata No. 1050, Gata No. 2630, the name of the gaon sabha be deleted and the name of Subhas Chand be entered in its place in the revenue records. Due to certain circumstances, the order dated 29.01.1979 could not be implemented and necessary correction in the entries in the revenue records could not be made during the lifetime of the plaintiff/Subhash Chandra and it is due to this reason that after his death the petitioner had moved an application for implementation of the judgment and order dated 29.01.1979.

12. The Sub-Divisional Magistrate, Nawabganj, Barabanki duly considered the judgment of this Court dated 08.08.2022 and was of the considered view that the petitioner does not have any locus standi to move the application for implementation of the order dated 29.01.1979 inasmuch as he was not a party to the said proceedings and being an stranger to the said proceedings could not move any application in this regard. The revisional authority has considered the said proceedings to be mere administrative proceedings and rejected the revision.

13. The ground on which the revision has been rejected by the revisional authority is that the order dated 12.03.2024 is an administrative order and no revision would be maintainable against such an order.

14. It is noticed that Section 146 provides for initiation of proceedings by or against the representatives where such proceedings could have been taken by or against any person claiming under him.

15. Hon'ble the Supreme Court in the case of Saila Bala Dassi Vs. Nirmala Sundari Dassi, 1958 SCC OnLine SC 140 has interpreted the provisions of Section 146 CPC and held that it has to be given an expansive interpretation to protect interest of persons who are claiming under the original plaintiff or the respondent. Merely because the plaintiff or the respondent has died or lost interest in the disputed property would not render any person claiming under them or acquiring subsequent interest in the property to be remediless with regard to adjudication which had already taken place between the parties pertaining to the lis for which an application has been claimed subsequently. The relevant portion of the above mentioned case law is quoted hereinbelow:-

"8. It is next contended that Section 146 authorises only the initiation of any proceeding, and that though it would have been competent to the appellant to have preferred an appeal against the judgment of P.B. Mukharji, J., she not having done so was not entitled to be brought on record as an appellant to continue the appeal preferred by the second respondent. We are not disposed to construe Section 146 narrowly in the manner contended for by counsel for the first respondent. That section was introduced for the first time in the Civil Procedure Code, 1908 with the object of facilitating the exercise of rights by persons in whom they come to be vested by devolution or assignment, and being a beneficent provision should be construed liberally and so as to advance justice and not in a restricted or technical sense. It has been held by a Full Bench of the Madras High Court in Muthiah Chettiar v. Govinddoss Krishnadoss [(1921) ILR 44 Mad 919] that the assignee of a part of a decree is entitled to continue an execution application filed by the transferor-decree-holder. Vide also Moidin Rutty v. Doraiswami [ILR 1952 Mad 622] . The right to file an appeal must therefore be held to carry with it the right to continue an appeal which had been filed by the person under whom the applicant claims, and the petition of the appellant to be brought on record as an appellant in Appeal No. 152 of 1955 must be held to be maintainable under Section 146."

16. It is in this regard, it has been observed that Section 146 provides a robust mechanism for the transferee to safeguard the interest in ongoing legal proceedings ensuring that property transaction and transfers do not leave new party vulnerable to unforeseen legal action subsequently the said provision came to be considered by another bench of Hon'ble High Court in the case of Varadarajan Vs. Kanakawalli & Ors. (Civil Appeal No. 5673 of 2009), relevant portion quoted as under:-

"8. We may state that Order 22 of the Code is applicable to the pending proceedings in a suit. But the conflicting claims of legal representatives can be decided in execution proceedings in view of the principles of Rule 5 of Order 22. This Court in a judgment in V. Uthirapathi v. Ashrab Ali [V. Uthirapathi v. Ashrab Ali, (1998) 3 SCC 148] held that the normal principle arising in a suit?before the decree is passed?that the legal representatives are to be brought on record within a particular period is not applicable to cases of death of the decree-holder or the judgment-debtor in execution proceedings. This Court held as under: (SCC p. 153, paras 11-14) ?11. Order 22 Rule 12 of the Code of Civil Procedure reads as follows: ?12. Application of order to proceedings.?Nothing in Rules 3, 4 and 8 shall apply to proceedings in execution of a decree or order.? 12. In other words, the normal principle arising in a suit ? before the decree is passed ? that the legal representatives are to be brought on record within a particular period and if not, the suit could abate, ? is not applicable to cases of death of the decree-holder or the judgment-debtor in execution proceedings.

13. In Venkatachalam Chetti v. Ramaswamy Servai [Venkatachalam Chetti v. Ramaswamy Servai, 1931 SCC OnLine Mad 149 : ILR (1932) 55 Mad 352 : AIR 1932 Mad 73] a Full Bench of the Madras High Court has held that this rule enacts that the penalty of abatement shall not attach to execution proceedings. Mulla's Commentary on CPC [(Vol. 3) p. 2085 (15th Edn., 1997)] refers to a large number of judgments of the High Courts and says: "Rule 12 engrafts an exemption which provides that where a party to an execution proceeding dies during its pendency, provisions as to abatement do not apply. The Rule is, therefore, for the benefit of the decree-holder, for his heirs need not take steps for substitution under Rule 2 but may apply immediately or at any time while the proceeding is pending, to carry on the proceeding or they may file a fresh execution application." 14. In our opinion, the above statement of law in Mulla's Commentary on CPC, correctly represents the legal position relating to the procedure to be adopted by the parties in execution proceedings and as to the powers of the civil court. 13. In another judgment in Suresh Kumar Bansal v. Krishna Bansal [Suresh Kumar Bansal v. Krishna Bansal, (2010) 2 SCC 162 : (2010) 1 SCC (Civ) 365], this Court held as under: (SCC p. 167, para 20) "20. It is now well settled that determination of the question as to who is the legal representative of the deceased plaintiff or defendant under Order 22 Rule 5 of the Code of Civil Procedure is only for the purpose of bringing legal representatives on record for the conducting of those legal proceedings only and does not operate as res judicata and the inter se dispute between the rival legal representatives has to be independently tried and decided in probate proceedings. If this is allowed to be carried on for a decision of an eviction suit or other allied suits, the suits would be delayed, by which only the tenants will be benefited." 14. In view of the aforesaid judgments, we find that the appellant is the sole claimant to the estate of the deceased on the basis of will. The executing court has found that the appellant is the legal representative of the deceased competent to execute the decree. In view of the said fact, the appellant as the legal representative is entitled to execute the decree and to take it to its logical end."

17. It is in the aforesaid circumstances, this Court finds that in exercise of powers U/S 146 CPC the application for execution was certainly maintainable at the behest of the petitioner who claimed himself to be the sole legal heir of Subhash Chandra who was the original plaintiff in Suit No. 107/29/30. Accordingly, the Sub-Divisional Magistrate has incorrectly appreciated the law and rejected the application of the petitioner and for this reason the order dated 12.03.2024 is set aside. The order dated 30.09.2025 not interfering with the order of Sub-Divisional Magistrate is also illegal and arbitrary and is also set aside. The matter is remitted to Sub-Divisional Magistrate to consider the application of the petitioner afresh and would consider that an application at the behest of the legal heir of the plaintiff would be maintainable to implement the order passed in proceedings U/S 229B of U.P. Z.A. & L.R. Act. While proceeding with the matter, the Sub-Divisional Magistrate shall follow the directions issued by this Court in its judgment and order dated 08.08.2022 in Writ C No. 5009/2022.

18. In light of the above, the writ petition stands allowed.

- (i) Whether the respondent Authority could retrospectively enhance the lease rent, in absence of execution of a supplementary lease deed, as expressly contemplated under the lease deed, and justify such enhancement by relying upon subsequent Board Resolutions, including the 135th Board Resolution dated 15.06.2024, which was admittedly prospective in nature;
- (ii) Whether the petitioner, having commenced production within the stipulated period and remained a continuously functional industrial unit, was entitled to early production incentive rebate and waiver of penal/compound interest in terms of the applicable scheme and office order dated 05.12.2013; and
- (iii) Whether the revisional order dated 27.07.2023 passed by the State Government under Section 41(3) of the U.P. Urban Planning and Development Act, 1973, having attained finality, was binding upon the respondent Authority and required to be implemented in its letter and spirit, and whether the impugned order and consequential demands constituted an impermissible attempt to circumvent or nullify the said revisional order.

HEADNOTE

Constitution of India – Art. 226 – U.P. Urban Planning and Development Act, 1973 – S. 41(3) – U.P. Industrial Development Act, 1976 – Lease deed dated 26.02.2002 – Enhancement of lease rent – Condition of execution of supplementary lease deed – Retrospective enhancement without supplementary deed – Validity – Subsequent Board Resolutions – Prospective operation – Whether can override concluded contract – Early production incentive rebate – Waiver of penal/compound interest – Office order dated 05.12.2013 – Inordinate administrative delay – Legitimate expectation – Promissory estoppel – Binding nature of revisional order – Administrative discipline – Colourable exercise of power – Attempt to nullify revisional order – Correctness of impugned demand orders and consequential notices.

HELD:

Writ petition was filed challenging the order dated 12.12.2024 raising a demand of ₹5,28,85,639/- by retrospectively enhancing the lease rent and levying penal/compound interest, and rejecting the petitioner's claim for early production incentive and waiver of interest. Clause I of the lease deed, contemplates enhancement of lease rent after every ten years, conditioned upon execution of a supplementary lease deed. Admittedly, no such supplementary lease deed was ever executed between the parties. In the absence of fulfilment of the contractual pre-condition, unilateral enhancement of lease rent by the respondent Authority, that too with retrospective effect, was contrary to the express terms of the lease and could not be sustained in law. Contention of the Authority that execution of a supplementary lease deed was merely a consequential or ministerial act was not accepted, as contractual stipulations governing financial liabilities are required to be strictly construed and scrupulously adhered to, particularly by a statutory authority. Reliance placed by the respondent Authority on subsequent Board Resolutions, including the 135th Board Resolution dated 15.06.2024, to justify such enhancement was held to be unacceptable, the said resolution being prospective in nature. A Board Resolution, howsoever authoritative, could not override or rewrite the terms of a concluded contract, nor could it be employed to retrospectively impose financial burdens upon an allottee.

It was further held that the petitioner had commenced production within the time prescribed under the lease deed and had remained continuously operational. The application for early production incentive rebate made in March 2003 remained undecided for over two decades, and such inordinate delay on the part of the Authority could not operate to the prejudice of the petitioner. The benefit, once accrued, could not be denied by subsequently introducing conditions not contemplated under the lease deed or the promotional scheme. Petitioner having deposited the principal lease rent dues along with advance lease rent in accordance with the office order became entitled to waiver of penal/compound interest, and the subsequent levy of penal/compound interest despite compliance with the conditions of the waiver scheme was arbitrary and unsustainable.

The revisional order dated 27.07.2023, passed by the State Government under Section 41(3) of the U.P. Urban Planning and Development Act, 1973, granted full relief to the petitioner and directed the second respondent to recalculate the dues payable by the petitioner. Revisional order dated 27.07.2023 having attained finality, was binding upon the respondent Authority and required to be implemented. The respondent Authority could not question the correctness of the revisional order by passing a fresh order on the same issues, nor could it rely upon subsequent Board Resolutions to dilute or nullify the effect of the revisional directions. Once the revisional authority exercised its statutory jurisdiction and granted relief, the respondent Authority was functus officio insofar as those issues were concerned. The impugned order dated 12.12.2024 constituted an impermissible attempt to circumvent and nullify the binding revisional order and amounted to a colourable exercise of power, reflecting non-adherence to the principles of administrative discipline and rule of law. [Paras 17, 19–26] (E-5)

CASE ARISING FROM

Challenge to the order dated 12.12.2024 passed by the Greater Noida Industrial Development Authority raising demand of Rs. 5,28,85,639/-, consequential notice dated 23.12.2024, and order dated 15.05.2025 rejecting the petitioner's claim for early production incentive.

Appearances for Parties

Advs For Petitioner: Tarun Agarwal, Sr. Adv.; Prashant Mishra
Advs For Respondents: Anjali Upadhyaya; C.S.C.; Shivam Yadav

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Swarupama Charurvedi, J.)

1. Heard Sri Tarun Agarwal, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Sri Prashant Mishra, learned counsel for the petitioner, Sri Shivam Yadav, learned counsel for the respondents no. 2 to 4 and Sri Devesh Vikram, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel for the State respondents.

2. By means of this petition filed under Article 226 of the Constitution, petitioner has prayed for quashing of the order dated 12.12.2024 passed by respondent no. 3 raising a demand of Rs. 5,28,85,639/- and order dated 15.05.2025 whereby the petitioner's request for grant of early production incentive has been rejected as well as the consequential final notice before cancellation of allotment dated 23.12.2024. Further it is prayed that a direction be issued to the respondents to recalculate the lease rent dues according to the directions contained in the revisional order dated 27.07.2023 as well as grant the petitioner the benefit of early production incentive rebate of Rs. 9.02 lacs as applied on 27.03.2003. Also a direction to respondents be issued to grant the petitioner the benefit of waiver of past interest in accordance with the office order dated 05.12.2013.

3. Brief facts of the case are that the petitioner is a company engaged in the manufacture of corrugated boxes, which got allotted Industrial Plot No. 11-B, Udyog Vihar, Greater Noida, by final allotment letter dated 09.02.2001. Thereafter, a lease deed was executed on 26.02.2002 for a period of ninety years, providing for an annual lease rent of Rs. 2,96,907/- for the first ten years. The lease deed specifically stipulated that any enhancement of rent could be effected only every ten years and strictly through execution of a supplementary lease deed.

4. The petitioner commenced construction strictly in accordance with Clause 16 of the lease deed. After obtaining due approval of the building plan from the Lessor, the Lessee was required to commence construction on the demised premises within six months from the date of possession and to make the industrial unit operational within a period of thirty-six months, or within such extended time as may be permitted by the Lessor. The petitioner duly complied with the said stipulations, commenced construction within the prescribed period, made the unit operational on 11.11.2002, and has since continuously maintained its operations, while duly fulfilling all statutory and contractual obligations.

5. Learned counsel for the petitioner submits that the petitioner was fulfilling all conditions to receive the early production benefit under the promotional scheme, and, therefore, applied for early production incentive rebate of Rs. 9.02 lakhs in March 2003, being fully eligible under the applicable scheme. However, the Authority neither decided the application nor raised objections for over two decades and then got rejected by the means of impugned order dated 12.12.2024.

6. Learned counsel further submits that the rebate amount was almost equal to the three years of lease rent about which the petitioner could not get response from the respondents. Due to oversight and lack of regular follow up by employees of the petitioner and failure of authority to update records, lease rent for certain years got delayed, which was later regularized by depositing all principal amounts along with advance lease rent to avail waiver of interest as per the Authority's office order dated 05.12.2013. Despite this, the Authority retrospectively enhanced the annual lease rent without executing a supplementary lease deed and raised exorbitant demands along with penal/compound interest.

7. Aggrieved by this, the petitioner filed writ petition being Writ C No. 11459 of 2021, before this court seeking quashing of letter dated 1st February, 2021, by which the respondents have raised a demand of the amount outstanding against dues payable by the petitioner in connection with allotment of plot no.11B, Udyog Vihar, Ecotech-II, Greater Noida. The petitioner alleged that he was entitled to benefits which ought to have been adjusted against the demand raised. He has also questioned the levy of interest at the rate of 20% as being violative of Section 13 of the Act of 1976 as also being un-conscionable and void under Section 23 of the Contract Act, 1872. After hearing both parties, the petition was disposed of by order of this court dated 02.08.2021, while directing the Chief Executive Officer, Greater Noida Industrial Development Authority, Greater Noida, Gautam Budh Nagar to take a decision on the representation of the petitioner dated 8th February, 2021 against the demand raised from the petitioner, preferably, within a period of six weeks with the further direction that till a decision is taken on the representation of the petitioner as directed above, the allotment of the petitioner shall not be cancelled. In compliance of this order, the order dated 26.02.2023 was passed by authority rejecting all claims of the petitioner.

8. The petitioner challenged the order dated 26.02.2023 in revision petition number 4433/appeal 40/23 under Sec 41(3) of Uttar Pradesh Urban Planning and Development Act 1973 read with Sec 12 of Uttar Pradesh Industrial Development Act 1976 and after both parties, the State Government, in revision order dated 27.07.2023, granted full relief to petitioner by holding that the petitioner is entitled to relief sought. However, instead of complying the order, the Authority passed a fresh impugned order dated 12.12.2024 raising a demand of Rs.5.28 crores, relying upon a subsequent Board Resolution dated 15.06.2024, which is prospective in nature. Consequential notices threatening cancellation of allotment and refusal to issue mortgage NOC were also issued, compelling the petitioner to deposit large sum of amount under protest.

9. That the petitioner again approached this Court while filing writ petition with prayer to direct the respondent authority to comply with the Order No. 4433/Appeal 40/23 dated 27.7.2023 passed by the respondent no. 1 and recalculate the dues (if any) payable by the petitioner. It was observed that the counsel for the petitioner submitted there that the first respondent has already decided claim of the petitioner Company under Section 41(3) of the Act, 1973 read with Section 12 of the Act, 1976 and directed the second respondent to recalculate the dues payable by the petitioner vide order dated 27.7.2023 but till date the said order has not been complied by the second respondent. Such situation compelled the petitioner to approach this Court. After hearing counsel of all parties, this court in its order dated 22.05.2024, observed that with the consent of the parties, the writ petition is disposed of with the direction to the second respondent to take a final call in the matter in the light of the order dated 27.7.2023 passed by the first respondent, as expeditiously as possible and preferably within six weeks.

10. Learned Senior Counsel for the petitioner submits that in pursuance of the directions issued by this court, respondent no.3 has passed the impugned order dated 12.12.2024. He further submits that the Authority has passed the impugned order against law and acted in clear violation of binding order and directions in the revision order dated 27.07.2023, which attained finality and directions were required to be implemented under Section 41 of the U.P. Urban Planning and Development Act, 1973. Learned senior counsel further submits that 135th Board Resolution dated 15.06.2024 is expressly prospective and cannot be applied retrospectively to the petitioner's case. Hence, the petitioner is entitled to early production incentive rebate of Rs. 9.02 lakhs, which was neither rejected nor adjudicated for over 22 years, and cannot now be denied by importing new conditions.

11. He further submits that the petitioner fulfilled conditions for waiver of past interest under the office order dated 05.12.2013 by depositing advance lease rent and therefore denial of such benefit is arbitrary. The demand towards functional certificate and levy of penal/compound interest, are not justified in law. Learned counsel contends that the impugned demand and other notices are arbitrary, disproportionate, and against the established principles of law.

12. Per contra, Learned counsel for the Greater Noida Industrial Development Authority (in short 'GNIDA') submits that under Clause 1 of the original lease deed dated 26.02.2002, enhancement of lease rent after every 10 years (subject to a cap of 50% of the then prevailing lease rent) is a clear and mandatory stipulation. Execution of a supplementary lease deed was contemplated only as a consequential act following the demand and determination of enhanced lease rent. Since the petitioner contested the enhancement and delayed payment of lease rent for nearly 13 years without interest or penal/compound interest, the supplementary lease deed could not be executed. Subsequently, to remove ambiguity and streamline the process, GNIDA in its 135th Board Meeting held on 15.06.2024 consciously abolished the requirement of executing a supplementary lease deed for enhancement of lease rent, a decision reiterated through office order dated 31.07.2024.

13. It is further submitted that the observations made by the State Government in its order dated 27.07.2023, particularly in paragraph 4, proceeded on an incorrect interpretation of the lease deed. The Board of GNIDA, exercising its statutory and contractual authority, considered the matter in its 134th, 135th, and 138th Board Meetings and resolved that enhancement of lease rent at 1.50% after every 10 years is consistent with the lease deed and uniformly applicable to other industrial units. The Board decisions, taken with participation of State nominees, validly justify the enhancement and negate the petitioner's claim that absence of a supplementary lease deed bars such enhancement.

14. Lastly, the petitioner's claims for early production incentive and waiver of interest are untenable. The petitioner admittedly failed to obtain a functional certificate and defaulted in timely payment of lease rent, paying only the principal amount after a delay of 13 years without interest or penal/compound interest, contrary to the lease deed. Such defaults dis-entitle the petitioner from any incentive, rebate, or equitable relief. Accordingly, the impugned demands and decisions of GNIDA are legal, reasonable, and in consonance with the lease deed and Board resolutions.

15. In rejoinder argument, counsel for the petitioner rebutted the submissions made by the learned counsel for the respondents and further submits that the lease deed governing parties clearly mandates that any enhancement of rent can be effected only through execution of a supplementary lease deed and admittedly, no such supplementary lease deed was ever executed, rendering any unilateral and retrospective enhancement of rent by the respondent authority, illegal and unsustainable. He also reiterate that the revisional order dated 27.07.2023 passed by the State Government under Section 41(1) of the U.P. Urban Planning and Development Act, 1973 is binding upon the respondent authority, having attained finality and subsequent board resolutions and impugned orders passed by the respondents, which seek to nullify or bypass the said revisional order, are void ab initio, and cannot justify retrospective enhancement of rent or deviation from contractual and statutory obligations.

16. Learned counsel for the petitioner also submits that the entity has been a functional industrial unit since year 2002 and is entitled to the benefits of the early production incentive scheme because the lease deed does not prescribe issuance of a functional certificate as a condition precedent for availing any such benefits, and denial thereof on technical grounds is totally arbitrary and illegal. He further submits that the petitioner deposited advance rent in accordance with the office order dated 05.12.2013, which provides for waiver of penal/compound interest, and therefore no interest can now be levied. Any excess amount paid pursuant to the illegal enhancement of rent is liable to be adjusted. Hence, the impugned order deserves to be quashed.

17. Upon thoughtful consideration of the rival submissions and perusal of the material on record, the principal questions that arise for consideration are, whether the respondent Authority could enhance the lease rent retrospectively in the absence of execution of a supplementary lease deed dated 26.02.2002, and whether such enhancement could be justified by relying upon subsequent Board Resolutions, including the 135th Board Resolution dated 15.06.2024, which is admittedly prospective in nature. Other related questions that arise are whether the petitioner, having commenced production within the stipulated period and remained a continuously functional industrial unit, is entitled to early production incentive rebate and waiver of penal/compound interest in terms of the applicable scheme. We also consider it necessary to examine that whether the revisional order dated 27.07.2023 passed by the State Government under Section 41(3) of the U.P. Urban Planning and Development Act, 1973, having attained finality, was binding upon the respondent Authority and mandatorily required to be implemented in its letter and spirit, and whether the impugned order dated 12.12.2024 and consequential demands constitute an impermissible attempt to circumvent or nullify the said revisional order.

18. We first proceed to examine whether the respondent Authority was legally justified in enhancing the lease rent retrospectively in the absence of execution of a supplementary lease deed as expressly contemplated under the lease deed dated 26.02.2002. It is a matter of fact that the lease deed constitutes a binding contract between the parties. The counsel for the petitioner heavily relied upon conditions agreed in the lease deed to contend that it is not permissible to increase lease rent for ten years as per condition of the lease deed. For ready reference relevant lines of clause I of the lease deed are reproduced below:

“..and which said plot is more clearly delineated and shown in the attached plan there in marked in red (hereinafter referred to as "the demised premises") with their appurtenances to the Lessee to the term of 90 years commencing from the date of execution of this lease deed except and always reserving to the Lessor full rights and title to all mines and minerals in and under the demised premises or any part thereof, Yielding and paying therefor yearly lease rent in advance during the said term unto the lessor on the 26th day of Feb in each year at the rate of 2.5% of the total premium during the first ten years. The lessee shall pay lease rent unto the lessor at its office or as otherwise directed lease rent in advance on yearly basis. The lease rent would be Rs.2,96,907.00/- (Rs. Two lakhs ninety six thousands nine hundred seven only annually for the first 10 years changeable from the date of execution of the lease deed and would be payable within 10 days from the date of execution of the lease deed, without waiting for any demand notice or reminder therefor. The lease rent may be enhanced after every 10 years from the date of execution of the. lease, deed by an amount not exceeding 50% of the annual lease rent payable at the time of such enhancement and in such case a supplementary deed will be executed by both the parties. In case of default in payment of lease rent interest @ 20% per annum compounded every half yearly would be chargeable for the delayed period. When lease rent will be revised a supplementary deed will be executed.”

19. From bare reading it appears that the lease deed contemplates enhancement of lease rent after every ten years and such enhancement is expressly conditioned upon execution of a supplementary lease deed. In the facts of the case, admittedly, no such supplementary lease deed was ever executed between the parties. In the absence of fulfillment of this contractual pre-condition, the unilateral enhancement of lease rent by the respondent Authority, that too with retrospective effect, is clearly contrary to the express terms of the lease and cannot be sustained in law. The contention of the Authority that execution of a supplementary lease deed was merely a consequential or ministerial act cannot be accepted, as contractual stipulations governing financial liabilities must be strictly construed and scrupulously adhered to, particularly by a statutory authority.

20. When the petitioner invested to build the unit, made it functional having the promise in existence as per lease deed, the legitimate expectation is to get the outcome as could be foreseen in terms of a specified amount of rent and the rebate, denying that cannot be justified in the eyes of law. The Supreme Court, in Motilal Padampat Sugar Mills Co. Ltd. v. State of U.P., (1979) 2 SCC 409 has held that:

“19. When we turn to the Indian law on the subject it is heartening to find that in India not only has the doctrine of promissory estoppel been adopted in its fullness but it has been recognized as affording a cause of action to the person to whom the promise is made. The requirement of consideration has not been allowed to stand in the way of enforcement of such promise. The doctrine of promissory estoppel has also been applied against the Government and the defence based on executive necessity has been categorically negatived. It is remarkable that as far back as 1880, long before the doctrine of promissory estoppel was formulated by Denning, J., in England, a Division Bench of two English Judges in the Calcutta High Court applied the doctrine of promissory estoppel and recognised a cause of action founded upon it in the Ganges Manufacturing Co. v. Sourujmull [(1880) ILR 5 Cal 669 : 5 CLR 533]. The doctrine of promissory estoppel was also applied against the Government in a case subsequently decided by the Bombay High Court in Municipal Corporation of Bombay v. Secretary of State [(1905) ILR 29 Bom 580 : 7 Bom LR 27].”

While referring various judgements mentioned in the paragraph, the Supreme Court has further held that:

“24. This Court finally, after referring to the decision in the Ganges Manufacturing Co. v. Sourujmull, Municipal Corporation of the City of Bombay v. Secretary of State for India and Collector of Bombay v. Municipal Corporation of the City of Bombay summed up the position as follows:

“Under our jurisprudence the Government is not exempt from liability to carry out the representation made by it as to its future conduct and it cannot on some undefined and undisclosed ground of necessity or expediency fail to carry out the promise solemnly made by it, nor claim to be the Judge of its own obligation to the citizen on an ex parte appraisalment of the circumstances in which the obligation has arisen.”

The law may, therefore, now be taken to be settled as a result of this decision, that where the Government makes a promise knowing or intending that it would be acted on by the promisee and, in fact, the promisee, acting in reliance on it, alters his position, the Government would be held bound by the promise and the promise would be enforceable against the Government at the instance of the promisee, notwithstanding that there is no consideration for the promise and the promise is not recorded in the form of a formal contract as required by Article 299 of the Constitution. It is elementary that in a republic governed by the rule of law, no one, howsoever high or low, is above the law. Everyone is subject to the law as fully and completely as any other and the Government is no exception. It is indeed the pride of constitutional democracy and rule of law that the Government stands on the same footing as a private individual so far as the obligation of the law is concerned : the former is equally bound as the latter. It is indeed difficult to see on what principle can a Government, committed to the rule of law, claim immunity from the doctrine of promissory estoppel.”

21. To deny the petitioner from his legitimate benefits, the reliance placed by the respondent Authority on subsequent Board Resolutions, including the 135th Board Resolution dated 15.06.2024, to justify such enhancement cannot be acceptable. The said resolution is admittedly prospective in nature and cannot be applied retrospectively to alter rights and obligations that had already crystallized under the lease deed. A Board Resolution, howsoever authoritative, cannot override or rewrite the terms of a concluded contract, nor can it be employed to retrospectively impose financial burdens upon an allottee. Acceptance of such a proposition would amount to permitting unilateral alteration of contractual terms by an authority, which is impermissible in law.

22. The next issue that arises for consideration is whether the petitioner, having commenced production within the stipulated period and remained a continuously functional industrial unit, is entitled to early production incentive rebate and waiver of penal/compound interest in terms of the applicable scheme and office order dated 05.12.2013. In this regard the law is settled by the Apex Court in number of judgements, which makes it clear that benefits once accrued under a policy or scheme cannot be denied due to administrative inaction or delay. In State of Punjab v. Nestle India Ltd. (2004) 6 SCC 465, the Supreme Court held that legitimate expectations arising from a policy decision cannot be frustrated by arbitrary State action. Similarly, it was held in Tata Chemicals Ltd. v. Commissioner of Customs (2015) 11 SCC 628, that the levy of interest or penal charges contrary to the terms of the governing scheme or express waiver orders is impermissible.

23. After analysing facts of the case and perusal of records, it is clearly established that the petitioner commenced production within the time prescribed under the lease deed and has kept it operational. The petitioner applied for early production incentive rebate in March 2003, which remained undecided for over two decades. Such inordinate delay on the part of the Authority cannot operate to the prejudice of the petitioner. The benefit, once accrued, could not be denied by subsequently introducing conditions not contemplated under the lease deed or the promotional scheme. Similarly, the petitioner having deposited the principal lease rent dues along with advance lease rent in accordance with the office order dated 05.12.2013, became entitled to waiver of penal/compound interest. The subsequent levy of penal/compound interest despite compliance with the conditions of the waiver scheme is arbitrary and unsustainable.

24. After thoughtful consideration, we find merit in the submission of the learned counsel of the petitioner that the revisional order dated 27.07.2023 passed by the State Government under Section 41(3) of the U.P. Urban Planning and Development Act, 1973, having attained finality, was binding upon the respondent Authority and required to be implemented.

25. In Union of India v. Kamlakshi Finance Corporation Ltd., 1992 Supp (1) SCC 648, the Supreme Court has analysed similar issue and has held that orders passed by higher statutory authorities are binding on subordinate authorities and must be implemented in letter and spirit, and that any attempt to bypass or dilute such orders strikes at the very foundation of administrative discipline. A subordinate authority cannot sit in appeal over a binding order under the guise of fresh decision-making. Supreme Court observed in Paragraph 7 that:

“7..The High Court has, in our view, rightly criticised this conduct of the Assistant Collectors and the harassment to the assessee caused by the failure of these officers to give effect to the orders of authorities higher to them in the appellate hierarchy. It cannot be too vehemently emphasised that it is of utmost importance that, in disposing of the quasi-judicial issues before them, revenue officers are bound by the decisions of the appellate authorities. The order of the Appellate Collector is binding on the Assistant Collectors working within his jurisdiction and the order of the Tribunal is binding upon the Assistant Collectors and the Appellate Collectors who function under the jurisdiction of the Tribunal. The principles of judicial discipline require that the orders of the higher appellate authorities should be followed unreservedly by the subordinate authorities. The mere fact that the order of the appellate authority is not 'acceptable' to the department " in itself an objectionable phrase ? and is the subject-matter of an appeal can furnish no ground for not following it unless its operation has been suspended by a competent court. If this healthy rule is not followed, the result will only be undue harassment to assesseees and chaos in administration of tax laws."

26. Applying above principle in facts of this case, we are of the view that the respondent Authority could not have questioned the correctness of the revisional order by passing a fresh order on the same issues, nor could it have relied upon subsequent Board Resolutions to dilute or nullify the effect of the revisional directions. Once the revisional authority exercised its statutory jurisdiction and granted relief to the petitioner, the respondent Authority was functus officio insofar as those issues were concerned. The impugned order dated 12.12.2024, passed in purported compliance of earlier judicial directions, in fact constitutes an impermissible attempt to circumvent and nullify the binding revisional order dated 27.07.2023. Raising fresh demands on grounds already considered and rejected in revision order, amounts to colourable exercise of power and reflects non-adherence to the principles of administrative discipline and rule of law.

27. In view of the foregoing discussion and conclusions recorded hereinabove, the impugned orders dated 12.12.2024, 23.12.2024, and 15.05.2025 are hereby quashed. The respondent Authority is directed to implement the revisional order dated 27.07.2023 strictly in its letter and spirit and to recalculate the dues, if any, payable by the petitioner in accordance therewith and subject to the observations made in this judgment. The respondent Authority is further directed to extend to the petitioner the benefit of early production incentive rebate as well as waiver of penal/compound interest in terms of the applicable scheme and office order dated 05.12.2013. Any excess amount deposited by the petitioner pursuant to the impugned demands shall be adjusted or refunded, as the case may be, within a period of eight weeks from the date of receipt of a certified copy of this judgment. The writ petition is allowed in the aforesaid terms. There shall be no order as to costs.

THE HON'BLE PRAKASH PADIA, J.

Writ - C No. 26271 of 2025

Vision Town Planners Pvt. Ltd. ...Petitioner
Versus
State of U.P. & Ors. ...Respondents

Issue for Consideration

The matter involves a legal challenge against Noida Development Authority regarding the demand for Change in Constitution (CIC) Charges and the refusal to grant a zero period due to the authority's failure to provide a separate possession certificate after the sub-division of a commercial plot.

Headnotes

Constitution of India,1950-Article 226-Income tax Act-Section 10B(8) and section 139(1)& companies Act,2013-Section 391 & 394-The court held that since condition no. 3 of the sub-division permission (dated 16.02.2010) mandatorily required a separate possession certificate, and the authority failed to issue one, the petitioner is entitled to a "zero period"-Lawful possession cannot be presumed merely because the predecessor had possession of the original undivided plot-Relying on established precedents, the Court ruled that CIC charges cannot be levied for a mere change in shareholding/management where the legal entity of the company remains the same-writ petition allowed.(Para 18 to 30) (E-6)

Held

The Court set aside the Revisional Authority's order-The authority was directed to refund the Rs. 7.38 crores in CIC charges with 9% interest per annum and provide a fresh calculation of lease rent starting only from the date a new possession certificate is issued.

Appearances for Parties

Adv. for Petitioner:-

Tarun Agrawal

Advs. for Respondent:-

C.S.C., Kaushalendra Nath Singh, Vineet Pandey.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Prakash Padia, J.)

1. Heard Sri Tarun Agrawal, learned counsel for the petitioner, Sri Kartikey Saran, learned Additional Advocate General State of U.P. along with Sri Vijay Shankar Prasad, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel appearing on behalf of respondent no. 1 and Sri M.C. Chaturvedi, learned Senior Counsel along with Sri Vineet Pandey, learned counsel appearing on behalf of respondent nos. 1, 2 and 3 at length.

2. The petitioner has preferred the present petition with the following prayers:-

i) Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of CERTIORARI quashing the impugned order dated 17.10.2024 passed by the respondent no. 1 to the extent it refuses to set aside the demand of Rs. 168.37-Crores towards arrears of annual lease rent as well as Rs. 7.38-Crores towards CIC charges (Annexure No. 1);

ii) Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of MANDAMUS commanding the respondent authority to forthwith restore the plot of the petitioner without demanding restoration charges in accordance with GO dated 05.11.2019.

iii) Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of MANDAMUS commanding the respondent authority to charge annual lease rent only from the date of delivery of actual physical possession of the plot together with the possession letter;

Facts in brief as contained in the writ petition are that the predecessor in interest of the petitioner namely M/s BPTP International Trade Centre Limited was allotted a commercial plot admeasuring 3.80 lakh sq. mt. in Sector 94, Noida. The total premium of the aforesaid plot was Rs. 4,957,829-crores. M/s BPTP International Trade Centre Limited paid Rs.1115.51/-crores, and thereafter sought curtailment of the area corresponding to the payment already made by it. Accordingly, the allotted area was reduced to 85,672.17 sq. mt. corresponding to an allotment premium of Rs. 1,115.51/-crores. Since, this amount had already been paid in full a lease deed was executed between the respondent authority and M/s BPTP International Trade Centre Limited on 09.02.2009. The lease deed also provided yearly lease rent equivalent to 2.5% of the total premium of Rs 1,115.51-crores.

4. Thereafter, a request had been made by M/s BPTP International Trade Centre Limited to sub-divide the allotted plot into two smaller plots and this request was accepted by Noida vide letter dated 16.02.2010. The sub-division of plots was permitted pursuant to the government order dated 25.10.2009 and the decision of the Board taken in its 166th Meeting dated 29.12.2009. Certain conditions were imposed while permitting subdivision of plots. Condition no. 3 provides for separate execution of a sublease deed and for independently obtaining the possession certificate.

5. Thereafter, no fresh lease deed was executed and only correction deed was executed between the respondent authority and M/s BPTP International Trade Centre Limited which had the effect of bifurcating Plot no. 2 into two smaller plots, viz, Plot no. 2A (admeasuring 28,328 sq. mt.) and Plot no. 2B (admeasuring 57,344 sq. mt.).

6. M/s BPTP International Trade Centre Limited moved application for transfer of plot No. 2A (28,328 sq. mt.) to the petitioner company. The respondent no. 2 granted permission by letter dated 22.2.2010 to transfer the plot No. 2A to the petitioner. By virtue of the transfer deed executed between M/s BPTP International and the petitioner company dated 24.02.2010, Plot no. 2A admeasuring 28,328 sq. mt was transferred to the petitioner on 24.02.2010 and registered transfer deed was executed between the petitioner and M/s BPTP International Private Limited.

7. After transfer of Plot no. 2A on 24.02.2010, the entire management and shareholding of the petitioner's-company had been changed, as such, the petitioner company applied for recording the changes of management and shareholding. The respondent no. 2 by letter dated 23.8.2010 demanded Rs.7,38,21,899.40 in pursuant to office order no. 575 dated 05.05.2010. The said amount was deposited by the petitioner in 2010 itself with the respondent authority which is admitted. When the petitioner learnt that two Division Benches of this Court had already held that levy of CIC imposed by Noida is illegal the petitioner sought refund of Rs. 7.38 crores deposited by it.

8. The petitioner has also applied for additional FAR. for which respondent no. 2 by order/letter dated 23.3.2011 demanded Rs.1,27,25,37,000/- against which the petitioner deposited Rs. 15 crores. The respondent no. 2 by order dated 31.3.2023, rejected the application of the petitioner for purchase of additional FAR, but the amount of Rs. 15 crores was not refunded.

9. Thereafter, the respondent authority vide orders dated 02.11.2020 & 08.12.2020 cancelled the allotment of the petitioner for non payment of lease rent of Rs.1,68,370,018) (Rs.168.37 crores). The petitioner claimed that he was entitled for benefit of zero period on account of failure of the respondent authority to give a separate possession certificate to it and the petitioner also sought adjustment of excess amount of Rs.7.38 crores deposited towards CIC charges, as also Rs 15 crores deposited towards utilized additional FAR charges with the respondent-authority.

10. The orders dated 2.11.2020 and 8.12.2020 were challenged by the petitioner before the Secretary, Department of Infrastructure and Industrial Development. Lucknow by filing revision.

11. The aforesaid orders dated 2.11.2020 and 8.12.2020 were partly set aside by the Revisional Authority, vide order dated 17.10.2024 by accepting the claim for refund/adjustment of Rs. 15-crore and the order cancelling the plot was also set aside The revisional authority however refused to grant the benefit of zero period to the petitioner and also upheld the levy of CIC charges. Aggrieved with the refusal of the to grant the benefit of zero period to the petitioner and CIC charges, the petitioner has preferred the present writ petition.

12. The dispute in the present case arising out of interpretation of Condition No.3 imposed by Noida in its letter dated 16.02.2010 by which permission was granted to sub division of the plot as well as the question of legality of the demand of Rs.7.38 crores levied by the respondent authority towards change-in constitution (hereinafter referred to as "CIC") of the petitioner company in 2010.

13. It is argued by learned counsel for the petitioner that the petitioner claims zero period on the strength of the failure of the respondent authority to issue a separate possession letter/certificate to it. He placed reliance upon the mandatory condition no. 3 imposed by the respondent authority itself in its letter dated 16.02.2010. It is admitted by the respondent authority that no such separate possession letter/certificate was issued to the petitioner.

14. So far as refund of Rs. 7.38 crores deposited towards CIC charges is concerned, the submission of learned counsel for the petitioner is that Division Bench of this Court in Writ-C No. 7852 of 2009 (M/s International Recreation Parks Pvt. Ltd. Vs. State of up & others) has held that the demand of CIC charges for change in management simplicitor is illegal. The Court has further held that clarification of the State Government dated 11.10.2010 and notification dated 27.10.2010 Issued by the Noida Development Authority will be applicable retrospectively and no CIC charges can be leveled on transfer of share by the company and no permission of respondent development authority was required in cases, involving 100% transfer of share.

15. However, the counsel for the respondent-Development Authority has contested the claim for zero period on the ground that no such separate possession letter/certificate was required to be issued in view of the fact that the petitioner was handed over peaceful possession by M/s BPTP International Private Limited. The authority has also submitted that it is not in dispute that the petitioner in fact obtained peaceful possession of Plot no. 2A thereby obviating the need for a separate possession letter. The authority has also questioned the delay on the part of the petitioner to raise the issue of zero period as no letter was ever written by the petitioner seeking separate possession letter/certificate. It was only after the cancellation order was passed, the petitioner cooked a story of possession certificate to cover its own default of non-payment of lease premium.

16. On the issue of CIC, the respondent authority stated that the petitioner had deposited the entire demanded amount without any protest and even though, with respect to CIC charges, the petitioner did not seek refund or adjustment at any point of time. The petitioner had submitted its map for construction of a building and had also sought additional FAR for the same. The petitioner had also deposited Rs.15-crore towards additional FAR which clearly shows that the petitioner was in actual physical possession of the entire plot and that they did not ever intend to question the levy of CIC charges by the respondent authority. It was too late in the day for the petitioner to question the levy of CIC charges and claim zero period having failed to object at any point of time in the past.

17. Heard learned counsel for the parties and perused the record.

18. After perusing the record, the Court is of the opinion that the questions to be decided in the present petition are that:-

(i) Whether the petitioner is entitled for zero period for failure of the authority to issue a separate possession letter/certificate as required under condition no 3 of the letter dated 16.02.2010.

(ii) Whether the petitioner is entitled to refund/adjustment of the CIC charges to the tune of Rs. 7.38-crores.

19. Insofar as the first issue regarding the entitlement of the petitioner for zero period is concerned, learned counsel for the petitioner placed reliance on condition no.3 appended with the Noida/Commercial/ 2010/187 dated 16.02.2010. The said condition is reproduced herein under-

(3) दोनों भूखण्डों का पृथक से साइट प्लान, उप पट्टा विलेख एवं कब्जा प्रमाण प्राप्त करना होगा.

20. The aforesaid condition found reiteration in the transfer deed dated 24.02.2010 executed between M/s BPTP International Private Limited and the petitioner. Therefore, it can be safely concluded that the requirement of obtaining a separate possession letter was mandatory in order to enable the petitioner to reap the benefits of transfer.

21. From perusal of paragraphs 15 & 21 of the impugned order it is clear that while passing the letter dated 16.2.2010 (Annexure-7 to the writ petition), it was clearly provided that separate site plan, sub-lease deed and possession certificate with regard to both the plots has to be obtained separately, but instead of execution of fresh lease deed, correction deed was executed on 24.2.2010. The respondent has not brought on record any document to establish that fresh possession certificate as contemplated in letter dated 16.2.2010 has been granted. By way of supplementary counter affidavit, the respondent brought on record the possession letter dated 10.2.2009 and by the said letter, the possession of 85672.17 square meters land of plot No. 2A, Sector 94 was handed over to M/s BPTP International Trade Centre Limited. The said plot was divided into two plots, i.e. plot No. 2A, measuring 28,328.07 square meters and plot No.2B, measuring 57,344.10 square meters in terms of 166th Board Meeting, vide letter dated 16.2.2010 and as per condition No. 3 of letter dated 16.2.2010, a separate possession letter was required, which has not been issued by the development authority.

22. The respondent No.2 itself stated that since the possession of plot no.2 has already been given to M/s, BPTP international Trade Centre Pvt. Ltd, as such, M/s Vision Town Planners Pvt. Ltd, the petitioner, was supposed to take the possession from M/s. BPTP International Trade Centre Pvt. Ltd only. Since the possession of plot no.2 as a whole has already been handed over on 20.02.2009 to M/S. BPTP International Trade Centre Pvt. Ltd, there is no occasion for the NOIDA authority to impose condition to give the separate possession of both the plots while granting the permission for sub-division of plot separately. It is argued that once condition has been imposed it was mandatorily required to be complied with by NOIDA Authority. As is evident from the record that the possession of plot no.2A have not been given separately in compliance of condition no.3 of sub-division permission dated 16.02.2010 either to M/s. BPTP International Trade Centre Pvt. Ltd. or M/s Vision Town Planners Pvt Ltd. When possession of plot no.2A has not been given to M/s BPTP International Trade Centre Pvt. Ltd. the question of handing over the possession of plot no 2A to Vision Town Planners Pvt Ltd, never arises. Learned counsel for the petitioner placed reliance upon paragraph 14 of judgement dated 11.07.2022 passed the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Principal Commissioner of Income Tax-III. Bangalore and another Versus M/s Wipro Limited (Civil Appeal No.1449 of 2022) which reads as follows:

In view of the above discussion and for the reasons stated above, we are of the opinion that the High Court has committed a grave error in observing and holding that the requirement of furnishing a declaration under Section 10B (8) of the IT Act is mandatory, but the time limit within which the declaration is to be filed is not mandatory but is directory. The same is erroneous and contrary to the unambiguous language contained in Section 10B (8) of the IT Act. We hold that for claiming the benefit under Section 10B (8) of the IT Act, the twin conditions of furnishing a declaration before the assessing officer and that too before the due date of filing the original return of Income under section 139(1) are to be satisfied and both are mandatorily to be complied with: Accordingly, the question of law is answered in favour of the Revenue and against the assessee. The orders passed by the High Court as well as ITAT taking a contrary view are hereby set aside and it is held that the assessee shall not be entitled to the benefit under Section 10B (8) of the IT Act on noncompliance of the twin conditions as provided under Section 10B (8) of the IT Act, as observed hereinabove. The present Appeal is accordingly Allowed. However, in the facts and circumstances of the case, there shall be no order as to costs.

23. Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Central Warehousing Corporation Versus Adani Ports Special Economic Zone Limited (APSEZL) And Others held that two limbs of the government should not speak in two voices. Paragraph Nos. 37, 45 and 52 reads as follows:-

37. The said proposal was put up for consideration before the BoD. The BoD. in principle, accepted the said proposal on the following conditions:

"(i) M/s. APSEZ may provide a suitable alternative land of the same size as the existing one as selected by CWC outside the SEZ area at Mundra Port.

(ii) A godown of 66000 MT (as per existing) may be created by M/s. APSEZ as per the specification of CWC within the period of twelve (12) months

(iii) M/S. APSEZ shall take the whole covered space so created along with remaining open area at CWC's existing public tariff with 6% annual escalation (compoundable) warehousing basis for entire period of lease i.e., till 16.2.2031, underwriting the business and other risks of the Corporation and shall sign an agreement, giving suitable amount of bank guarantee to this effect.

45. The High Court, in effect, forces the MD of the appellant- CWC, which is a statutory body, to accept the first two conditions and leave the 3rd condition to be settled mutually through mediation. The offer given by APSEZL on 9th March 2019 was a composite one so also the acceptance thereof by the appellant- CWC was a composite one. The acceptance of the first two conditions was also dependent upon the 3rd condition. If the High Court was so concerned about settlement of the dispute. then, while compelling the appellant-CWC to accept the first two conditions, it also ought to have compelled APSEZL to accept the 3rd condition.

45. We are of the considered view that it does not augur well for the Union of India to speak in two contradictory voices. The two departments of the Union of India cannot be permitted to take stands which are diagonally opposite. We may gainfully refer to the following observations made by a three Judges Bench of this Court In the case of Lloyd Electric and Engineering Limited Vs. State of Himachal Pradesh and Others.

14. The State Government cannot speak in two voices. Once the Cabinet takes a policy decision to extend its 2004 Industrial Policy in the matter of CST concession to the eligible units beyond 31-3-2009, up to 31-3-2013, and the Notification dated 29-3-2009, accordingly, having been issued by the Department, concerned viz. Department of Industries, thereafter, the Excise and Taxation Department cannot take a different stand. What is given by the right hand cannot be taken by the left hand. The Government shall speak only in one voice. It has only one policy. The departments are to implement the government policy and not their own policy.

c. The Hon'ble Apex Court while deciding the Appeal in Azam Jha Bahadur (Dead) By His Legal Expenditure Tax Officer, Hyderabad held that logic and reason cannot be of much avail in interpreting a taxing statute.

24. Allahabad High Court and Delhi High Court in various cases has held that when possession has not been given by NOIDA, it is not authorized to realize the lease rent handing over of possession. The aforesaid, judgments reads as follows:-

I. M/s Ace Infracity Developers (P) Ltd. Vs. State of UP & Others vide order dated 09.11.2023 in Writ-C No. 14964 of 2023 (para no. 12)

12. Consequently, writ petition is allowed. The demand notice dated 29.3.2023 placing demand for additional compensation, instalment of lease premium and annual lease rent is set aside.

Respondents are directed not to realize the lease premium amount as well as the lease rent from the petitioner for the period between 19.12.2014 to till date and also adjust the due interest amount of the said period. Respondent Authority is also directed to consider the revised building plan regarding Plot No. SC-02/G, Sector 150. Noida having an area of 60,000.54 sq. mtrs in accordance with law considering the observations made herein above.

In paragraph 15 of the judgment dated 23.05.2022 in the case of Allure

Developers Private Limited Vs. State Of U P. And 3 Others (WRIT C No. 19361 of 2020), the same thing was again reiterated. Paragraph 15 reads as follows:-

15. Accordingly, the writ petition stands allowed The order dated 11.2.2021 passed by the respondent No. 2 in relation to Plot No.SC-02/C. Sports City, Sector 150, Noida, Gautam Budh Nagar, U.P., is set aside. The respondent No. 2 is directed to grant benefit of zero period to the petitioner from 19.4.2014 up to 21.8.2020 and not charge the lease rent in respect of the area of the plot, the possession of which has not been handed over at the time of allotment.

In paragraph 34 of the judgment dated 16.11.2023 in the case of M/S Rudra Buildwell Projects Pvt. Ltd. Vs. State of U.P. & Others (Writ-C No.31247 of 2022), the same thing was again reiterated. Paragraph 34 reads as follows:-

34. Accordingly, the writ petition stands allowed. The Order dated 30.07.2020 passed by the Respondent Authority in relation to Plot No. GH-05A, Sector 16, Greater Noida, is set aside. The Respondent No. 2 is directed to grant benefit of zero period to the petitioner from the date of allotment till actual possession ie. April, 2023 and not charge the lease rent and interest accruing thereon in respect of the area of the plot, the possession of which has not been handed over at the time of allotment.

The Delhi High Court again in case of Parmod Kumar & Anr. vs Lt. Governor of Delhi & Ors. in W.P. (C) No.6704-05/2004 vide its order dated 03.12.2008 held that

6. The petitioner cannot, therefore, be subjected to any liability in respect of the said plot which is yet to be delivered to him, except to require him to pay the balance price, which he has already paid. The respondent cannot seek to charge ground rent for the plot when, as a matter of fact, the respondent was not in a position to deliver possession of the plot to the petitioner, and the possession has not yet been delivered to the petitioner.

8..... In the present case, though the allotment can be said to have been made at the time when the auction was held in the year 2002 wherein the petitioner emerged as the highest bidder, as a matter of fact, on account of the aforesaid circumstances, the petitioner has not been placed in possession of the plot till today. The reasons for this delay are attributable to the respondent, and not to the petitioner.

9. However, in a case where the date of allotment is separated by a long period from the date when the DDA is in a position to deliver possession of the plot, for reasons attributable to the DDA, the liability to pay the ground rent cannot start from the date of allotment, and must start only from the date when the allottee is placed in possession of the plot under a conveyance.

The Delhi High Court again in case of Flourish Hospitals Pvt. Ltd. vs Delhi Development Authority in WP(C) 15333/2022 decided on 28.02.2025 held that:-

38. In Vivekanand Pratisthan Parishad (Regd) Vs. Delhi Development Authority: 2000 SCC Online Del 897, the formal possession was distinguished from actual possession and it was held that ground rent was rather payable from 'actual and not formal possession.

44..... Therefore, the demand of ground rent, before clarifying the actual land area and demarcation, would potentially amount to unjust enrichment, especially when DDA, itself, is largely responsible for generating ambiguity uncertainty.

45. In view of the peculiar facts and circumstances of the case, it will be in the fitness of things if DDA is directed to treat ground rent of Re 1 per annum until 14.06.2021. taking into account the fact that the exact area of the land was ascertainable only after preparation of the modified layout plan, which could have provided clarity about the exact boundaries and dimensions of the plot.

46. The ground rent @ of 2.5% per annum on the premium of the plot would thus be leviable only w.e.f 15.06.2021"

Delhi High Court in the case of Vivekanand Pratisthan Parishad VS Delhi Development Authority in AIR 2001 Delhi 104 dated 23.11.2000, para 7 which is reproduced as under.-

When the respondent itself has written to the petitioner on 19-9-1990 that till date they have not handed over the possession, insertion of Clause (4) in the lease-deed is highly improper and illegal thereby stating that the petitioner is entitled for payment of ground rent from 27-2-1989. One cannot lose sight of the fact that for starting any activities or construction over the land in question, no objection from DDA was sine qua non. DDA having given the same in the year 1995, cannot turn now and say that the petitioner is liable to pay ground rent from 1989. The building plans can be sanctioned only after no objection is granted and lease-deed is executed. The building plans are valid for a specific period and if construction is not raised, then the building plans have to be revalidated. In this case, if the date as shown in Clause (4) of the draft lease-deed is taken to be correct, then a great anomaly will be created vis-a-vis the right of the petitioner. The ground rent will be leviable from 1989, although no objection certificate has been granted by the DDA only on 26-9-1995 and lease-deed has not been executed and only a copy of the draft lease-deed was sent to the petitioner on 10-10-1996. The respondent/DDA is directed to execute fresh lease-deed taking the date from the date of actual handing over of the possession on 21-8-1995. After the lease-deed is executed the building plan submitted by the petitioner with the respondent will be sanctioned by the competent authority in accordance with law within a period of six months. 8 Petition stands disposed of.

25. In view of the aforesaid fact and law laid down by Apex Court as well as this Court, it is clear that the respondent development authority cannot take two stands, i.e., (1) while granting permission for sub-division asked for obtaining fresh possession certificate and (2) say that the possession which was delivered to M/s BPTP International Trade Centre Limited Prior to grant of permission of sub-division of plot is sufficient compliance of condition no. 3 of order dated 16.2.2010. In the entire proceeding and document, the development authority has not at all denied that the condition no. 3 of order dated 16.2.2010 was not imposed or condition no. 3 of order dated 16.2.2010 was complied by the development authority. It is well settled law that while executing any transfer deed, the delivery of possession is mentioned and the said delivery may be actual or symbolic. The lease hold right of M/s BPTP International Trade Centre Limited stand transferred to the petitioner company and symbolic possession of the leased land was given by M/s BPTP International Trade Centre Limited to the petitioner, but as per the order dated 16.2.2010, independent possession by way of possession certificate of two divided plots was not handed over to M/s BPTP International Trade Centre Limited, as such, lawful possession of the petitioner cannot be presumed over plot No. 2A, Sector 94 Noida. As already held by series of judgments of this Court, once the lawful possession of divided plots i.e. plot No. 2A was not handed over either to M/s BPTP International Trade Centre Limited or the petitioner, the respondent development authority is not entitled to charge lease rent and the said period i.e. from the date of execution of sub-lease deed by M/s BPTP International Trade Centre Limited to the petitioner is worthy to be allowed, as zero period.

26. So far as CIC Charges is concerned, the Division Bench of this Court in case of International Hospital Pvt. Ltd. Vs. State of U.P. and another, reported in 2004(1) AWC 300 has held that merely by change of share holding, the status of the company is not changed, as the company has its separate legal entity, which is different from its shareholding. The Court has held as under:

7. Unitech Investments Ltd. having 49,99,970 shares was one of the main promoters of the petitioner company. It was a 100% subsidiary of Unitech Holdings Ltd. It appears that a scheme for amalgamation was filed u/s. 391 and 394 of the Companies Act by Unitech Investments Ltd. to merge it with its holding company, i.e., Unitech Holdings Ltd., before the Delhi High Court being Company Petition Nos. 162 of 2005 and 163 of 2005. The Delhi High Court vide judgement and order dated 25.7.2005 allowed merger of Unitech Investments Ltd. (100% subsidiary) with Unitech Holdings Ltd. (holding company of Unitech Investment Ltd.). The relevant portion of the order of the Delhi High Court dated 25.7.2005 reads as follows:-

"This court doth hereby sanction the scheme of amalgamation setforth in Schedule I annexed hereto and doth hereby declare the same to be binding on all the shareholders and creditors of the Transferor and Transferee Companies and all concerned and doth approve the said scheme of amalgamation with effect from appointed date, i.e, 1-4-2004. □

That as on date, the entire share capital of the transferor company is held by the Transferee Company. Accordingly, upon the transfer and merger of Transferor Company under the scheme into transferee Company, there would be no issue of equity shares of Transferee Company to the shareholder(s) of Transferor Company, since the provisions of the Act do not permit Transferee Company to hold its own shares, upon the dissolution of Transferor Company. Under the terms of this scheme, all the shares held by Transferee Company in Transferor Company shall stand cancelled upon the scheme becoming effective without any further act or deed."

As a result of amalgamation of Unitech Investments Ltd. with its holding company, namely, Unitech Holdings Ltd., shares of the petitioner company in the hands of Unitech Investments Ltd. came to be held by Unitech Holdings Ltd. Accordingly, Unitech Holdings Ltd. came to own 49,99,970 shares of the petitioner company w.e.f. 1.4.2004, the appointed date under the sanctioned scheme.

27. This Court further in Writ-C No. 7852 of 2009 (M/s International Recreation Parks Pvt. Ltd. Vs. State of U.P. & others) had followed the aforesaid judgment, which was affirmed by dismissal of SLP No. 692 of 2005 dated 24.3.2006. The Division Bench of this Court, relying upon counter affidavit filed by Noida Development Authority and the supplementary affidavit filed by the petitioner in that case has held that the Noida Development Authority had not been charging CIC charges in similar other cases referred in para 20 of the aforesaid judgment. The Court has further held that the State Government has issued only clarification on 11.10.2010, which was further clarified by the Noida Development Authority by issuing notification dated 27.10.2010. The Court has held as under:

20. Here it is pertinent to mention that in supplementary counter affidavit filed by NOIDA authority, it tried to set up a case that the notification dated 27-10-2010 is applicable only prospectively and therefore, the petitioner company is not entitled to its benefit. In order to prove that the aforesaid stand of the NOIDA authority is apparently false and that the NOIDA authority itself had given benefit of the said notification to various companies in whose favour lease deeds were executed much before the issuance of the said notification, petitioner company had brought on record various instances in this regard by filing second supplementary affidavit. These instances are as follows :-

(a) In case of M/s. Raga Impex Pvt. Ltd. allotment / lease deeds are dated 30-5-2005 and 2-6-2005 and 100% transfer of shares in the said company was not regarded as change in constitution by Noida Authority.

(b) In case of M/s. MKG Creations Pvt. Ltd. allotment / lease deeds are dated 9-10-2009 and 8-12-2009 and 100% transfer of shares in the said company was not regarded as change in constitution.

(c) In case of M/s. Noida Electrical and Moulding Pvt. Ltd. allotment / lease deeds are dated 22-8-2007 and 15-2-2007 and 100% transfer of shares in the said company was not regarded as change in constitution.

(d) In case of M/s. Neelkanth Industrial Consultants Pvt. Ltd. allotment / lease deeds are dated 4-10-2006 and 22-12-2006 and 100% transfer of shares in the said company was not regarded as change in constitution

(f) In case of M/s. Sachdeva Packaging Pvt. Ltd. allotment / lease deeds are dated 24-6-2009 and 100% transfer of shares in the said company was not regarded as change in constitution.

21. The assertion made in this regard by the petitioner were not rebutted by Noida Authority by filing any affidavit in reply thereto. This also clearly proves that even Noida had extended the benefit of the notification dt. 27-10-2010 to the existing leases. In view of it, the petitioner company is also entitled to the benefit thereof.

22. Thus, the irresistible conclusion is that petitioner company is not liable to pay CIC charges and the demand made in this regard vide impugned orders dated 01-01-2009, 01-10-2007 and 30-11-2007 is wholly unwarranted.

28. This being the position the levy of CIC charges on 23.08.2010, and acceptance of its deposit on 05.10.2010 is clearly unfair on the petitioner. The authority ought to have refunded the amount of Rs.7,38,21,900/-deposited by the petitioner on 05.10.2010. Pertinently M/s International Recreation Parks Private Limited (Supra) only reiterated an earlier Division Bench judgment of this Hon'ble Court in CMWP No. 13556 of 2003, where also the levy of CIC by Noida was held illegal. Thus, the respondent authority clearly knew that it could not legitimately levy CIC charges for transfer of shares simplicitor. without any change in the form and nature of the entity.

29. The authority has not been able to provide any valid justification for illegally retaining a sum of Rs.7,38,21,900/-despite the levy of CIC having been declared illegal by two Division Benches of this Court. The action of the respondent-authority is not only both unfair and unreasonable but contemptuous in nature. The petitioner is not only entitled to refund of the entire principle amount of Rs.7,38,21,900/-, but the same shall also carry interest. It has been held in series of judgment that the rate at which illegal monies ought to be refunded shall be same as the rate charged by such entity. The petitioner is therefore, entitled to receive Rs.7,38,21,900/- interest 9% per annum.

30. The present writ petition is allowed. The order dated 17.10.2024 passed by the respondent No.1/Principal Secretary (Industrial Development), U.P. Lucknow, insofar as it affirm the demand of Rs.168.37 crores towards arrear of consistent with the Government Order dated february 28, 2020.

Constitution of India, 1950-Article 226-Under the "Mukhyamantri Krishak Durghatna Kalyan Yojna" it is not mandatory for agricultural land to be recorded in the deceased's name-Eligibility extends to family members whose primary livelihood is derived from the account holders registered land-Rejection of a welfare claim based on an undisclosed report (such as Lekhpal's report) without providing the claimant an opportunity for explanation or a hearing is a violation of natural justice-writ petition allowed.(Para 15 to 22) (E-6)

The court found the rejection was based on a “narrow interpretation” and “assumptions not supported by proper enquiry”. The matter was remanded to the District Magistrate to consider the claim afresh within eight weeks.

C.S.C.

The matter pertains to petitioner whose husband died in road accident. her claim for compensation was initially rejected because a local report alleged her husband ran a general store/bangle shop, despite her assertion that he was the primary breadwinner through agricultural work on his grandfather's land. The key issue involved in this case is whether the District Magistrate rejection of the petitioner's claim under the "Mukhyamantari Krishak Durghatna Kalyan Yojna" was lawful and

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Swarupama Charurvedi, J.)

1. Heard Sri Vimal Kumar, learned counsel for the petitioner and Ms. Shruti Malviya, learned Brief Holder for the State respondents.

2. This writ petition under Article 226 of the Constitution of India has been filed by the petitioner seeking issuance of an appropriate writ, or direction in the nature of certiorari quashing the impugned order dated 25.08.2021 passed by the respondent no. 3, Additional District Magistrate, Kannauj, whereby the claim of the petitioner under the 'Mukhyamantri Krishak Durghatna Kalyan Yojana' has been rejected, and further praying for a direction in the nature of mandamus to the respondent no. 2 to take final decision on application of the petitioner dated 07.09.2021 after calling report in re-enquiry.

3. Brief facts of the case are that the husband of the petitioner, namely Late Vikas Gupta, died on 29.08.2020 in a road accident. In relation thereto, an F.I.R. was lodged on 30.08.2020 after the post-mortem of the deceased. Late Vikas Gupta was a poor farmer, and at the time of his death, he left behind his aged father, the petitioner (his widow), and three minor children. It is stated that the grandfather and father of the deceased are still alive and the agricultural land continues to be recorded in the name of the grandfather of the deceased. During his lifetime, Late Vikas Gupta was engaged in agricultural work in his village and agriculture was the sole source of livelihood for him and his family.

4. It is a matter of fact that the State Government has brought a welfare scheme known as "Mukhyamantri Krishak Durghatna Kalyan Yojana" to provide financial assistance to the families of farmers who die in accidents. In this regard, the Additional Chief Secretary, Government of Uttar Pradesh, issued a Government Order dated 28.02.2020 laying down the guidelines for extending benefits under the said scheme. Accordingly, after the death of her husband, the petitioner submitted a claim under the aforesaid scheme after completing all required formalities.

5. Learned counsel for the petitioner contends that upon submission of the claim, the concerned authorities called for reports from the Lekhpal, who submitted baseless report without conducting proper enquiry. Thereafter, in an executive meeting chaired by the District Magistrate, Kannauj, a decision was taken to reject the petitioner's claim on the ground that the deceased was earning his livelihood from a general store/ bangle shop and not from agriculture, so the claim of the petitioner was rejected by the order dated 25.08.2021.

6. Aggrieved by the rejection order, the petitioner submitted representation dated 07.09.2021 before the District Magistrate, Kannauj, stating that it was her brother-in-law, who was working merely as a helper in the general store on a monthly payment of Rs. 2,000/-, whereas her husband was a farmer and was engaged solely in agricultural work. Learned counsel for the petitioner submits that after getting no response, the petitioner approached this Court by filing the writ petition.

7. Learned counsel further submits that during his lifetime, deceased was doing agricultural work in his village and the main source of his income and also the family is through agricultural work only. It is further submitted that the deceased was very young and the bread earner for his family and due to his sudden death, entire family is suffering from the financial hardship.

8. Learned counsel for the petitioner submitted that the Additional Chief Secretary U.P. Government has issued Government Order dated 28.02.2020 for determination of the guidelines for providing benefits under the scheme of "Mukhyamantri Krishak Durghatna Kalyan Yojana" and present case is fully covered under Clause 2 of the Government Order dated 28.02.2020. Relevant part of the guideline is reproduced below for ready reference:

"Subject: Guidelines for the implementation of the "Chief Minister's Farmer Accident Welfare Scheme" in case of accidental death/disability of farmers in Uttar Pradesh.

The State Government has decided to implement the "Chief Minister's Farmer Accident Welfare Scheme" with the objective of providing social security to the families of farmers in case of accidental death or disability. The following guidelines are being issued for this purpose:

1. This scheme will be effective from September 14, 2019.

2. Eligibility (Definition of Farmer):

This scheme is for farmers residing in Uttar Pradesh who suffer accidental death or disability. A farmer is defined as follows:

(1) Account holder/co-account holder recorded in the revenue records, i.e., the land register (Khatauni).

OR

(2) Earning members of the account holder/co-account holder's family whose primary source of livelihood is agricultural income from the land registered in the name of the account holder/co-account holder.

OR

(3) Landless individuals who cultivate land obtained on lease or on a sharecropping basis, and whose main source of livelihood is agriculture on such leased or sharecropped land. Lessees include tenant farmers, government lessees, and private lessees.

4. Age:

The farmer's age should be between 18 and 70 years on the date of death/disability.

5. Coverage of the Scheme:

(1) If a farmer suffers accidental death/disability due to fire, flood, lightning, electric shock, snakebite, attack/injury by animals/creatures, drowning in the sea, river, lake, pond, or well, storm, falling from or being crushed by a tree, house collapse, accident involving train/road/aircraft/other vehicles, landslide, earthquake, gas leak, explosion, falling into a sewer chamber, or any other cause, then financial assistance will be provided to the farmer/legal heir(s) under this scheme.”

9. Learned counsel for the petitioner submits that on the claim of petitioner the authorities concerned invited reports from the Lekhpal who in his turn without making proper enquiry submitted the false report and on the basis of same report, Executive Meeting headed by the District Magistrate, Kannauj, the decision was taken on 31.07.2021, for rejecting the claim of the petitioner while observing that the source of income of the deceased was from the shop of the general store/ bangle shop and not from the agriculture, hence she is not entitle under the scheme.

10. Learned counsel further submits that from bare perusal of the information order dated 25.08.2021 and the decision taken on 31.07.2021, it is crystal clear that before taking impugned decision no information, explanation or opportunity of hearing has been provided to the petitioner by the committee and also the report of Lekhpal which was relied by the committee in rejecting the claim of the petitioner, was also not provided to the petitioner, which itself makes the impugned order bad in law due to the violation of principles of natural justice.

11. Per contra, learned Standing Counsel for the State respondent submits that the matter was placed before the District Level Committee and the committee has enquired the matter and found that main source of income of deceased was not agriculture but his source of income was money earned from running the general store /bangle shop, whereas petitioner has claimed in writ petition that her husband earned livelihood by carrying agricultural work on the ancestral land of his father, which has been found to be incorrect under the eligibility criteria as specified in sub para 2 of para 2 of M.S.- 11/Ek-9-2020-2F/2018 dated February 28, 2020, because the land is mortgaged.

12. Learned counsel for the respondent submits that the petitioner's father-in-law, Sri Hari Om, is alive, but his name is not recorded in the Khatauni. Learned counsel further submits that the name of the deceased's grandfather, Sri Ram Dayal, son of Raghuvar Dayal, is recorded in respect of Gata No. 294, situated at Village Sikandarpur, Pargana Sakrava. As per the stand taken by the respondents in the counter affidavit, the deceased is not eligible for benefits under the scheme, as his grandfather's name appears in the land records and not his own. It is also contended that the land of Raghuvar Dayal, son of Ram Dayal, namely Gata No. 294, situated at Village Sikandarpur, Pargana Sakrava, was mortgaged on 28.04.2011 and a corresponding endorsement was made in the Khatauni.

13. Learned brief holder appearing for the State respondents submits that, under Point No. 11(Ra) of the Government Order dated 28.02.2020, the District Magistrate is not bound to re-examine the matter because it is specifically provided therein that only if new facts are brought to the notice of the District Magistrate by the applicant or any other person with regard to a decision taken at the district level, a fresh enquiry may be conducted at the discretion of the District Magistrate. After such enquiry, the application is to be decided again by a reasoned order, and in such a situation, the decision of the District Magistrate shall be final and binding. It is further submitted by learned counsel that, in the present case, no new fact has been brought on record which would warrant reconsideration or a fresh enquiry.

14. In rejoinder argument, learned counsel appearing for the petitioner submits that the husband of the petitioner during his lifetime was doing agricultural work and for his livelihood the original source of income is agriculture only. After the death of the main bread earner the petitioner had applied for compensation under scheme of "Mukhyamantri Krishak Durghatna Kalyan Yojna", upon which false report has been submitted by the Tehsildar official with effect that the main source of income of deceased is earning from the general store shop, not by agriculture upon relating on the aforesaid false report the claim of the petitioner has been rejected on 31.03.2021 without any show cause to the petitioner or cross checking the facts mentioned in the report, from another Tehsil official/authority as provided in Government Order dated 28.02.2020 in point 11(B) as such the claim of petitioner has been rejected illegality without following mandatory procedure, as incorporated in point 11(B) of Government order dated 28.02.2020. The counsel for the petitioner contends that the claim is illegally rejected after relying on the false report, which has wrongly placed petitioner's brother-in-law with her husband, hence her claim is liable to be allowed after re-investigation and the District Magistrate Kannauj is duty bound to direct for re-investigation and decide same application by passing speaking and reasoned order.

15. We have considered the rival submissions advanced by learned counsel for the parties and perused the material available on record. The principal issue that arises for consideration before this Court is whether the rejection of the petitioner's claim under the Mukhyamantri Krishak Durghatna Kalyan Yojana by the District Magistrate, Kannauj, is in accordance with the Government Order dated 28.02.2020 and based on relevant and correct facts, and further whether the authorities were justified in denying the benefit solely on the ground that the alleged report mentions that deceased was working in a shop so not to be considered farmer while the land stood recorded in the name of the deceased's grandfather and the claim is that he was working as farmer and the alleged report wrongly records that he was working in store.

16. Having considered complete facts and circumstances, we find that it is not in dispute that the deceased died in a road accident on 29.08.2020 and that the petitioner is his legally wedded wife. What is under dispute is that the report which is disputed by the petitioner, states that the deceased was working in a store while the deceased was residing in the village and was engaged in agricultural activities along with his family as per petitioner. The submission made by the State in the counter affidavit that the agricultural land is recorded in the name of the deceased's grandfather and not in the name of the deceased himself, and that the authorities presumed that the deceased was earning his livelihood from a general store, is not the ground taken for the rejection of the claim, so this was not the ground on which the petitioner's claim has been rejected in the impugned order.

17. From a perusal of the Government Order dated 28.02.2020, it is evident that the object of the Mukhyamantri Krishak Durghatna Kalyan Yojana is to provide financial assistance to the dependents of farmers who die in accidents. The scheme does not make it mandatory that the agricultural land must be recorded in the name of the deceased farmer alone. What is required to be examined is whether the deceased was primarily engaged in agricultural work and whether agriculture was the main source of livelihood for him and his family. In rural set-ups, it is a common practice that land continues to remain recorded in the name of the elder family member, while other members of the family carry on agricultural activities jointly.

18. In the present case, the petitioner has specifically stated that her husband was engaged in agricultural work and that her brother-in-law was working merely as a helper in a general store on a nominal monthly payment. This assertion has not been convincingly rebutted by the respondents by placing any cogent material on record to show that the deceased himself was running a shop or that his primary source of income was non-agricultural. From perusal of Khatauni, it is clear that the land is recorded with name of the grand-father of the deceased and the same land is mortgaged in the Bank of India to which the rejoinder affidavit states that it was mortgaged for purchasing tractor in the year 2011. The report submitted by the Lekhpal, on which reliance has been placed, does not disclose that any proper enquiry was conducted or that statements of villagers or family members were recorded or the same was ever provided to the petitioner.

19. The contention of the respondents that the District Magistrate was not required to reconsider the matter in the absence of new facts also does not inspire confidence. The petitioner, by her representation dated 07.09.2021, had brought to the notice of the authorities relevant facts regarding the nature of work of her brother-in-law and the agricultural occupation of her deceased husband. Such facts were material for determining eligibility under the scheme and ought to have been examined objectively. The mechanical rejection of the claim, without addressing these aspects, reflects non-application of mind.

20. While deciding the issue of compensation, in Union of India Vs Prabhakaran Vijaya Kumar, (2008) 9 SCC 527, Supreme Court observed that:

“11. .. Since the provision for compensation in the Railways Act is a beneficial piece of legislation, in our opinion, it should receive a liberal and wider interpretation and not a narrow and technical one. Hence, in our opinion the latter of the abovementioned two interpretations i.e. the one which advances the object of the statute and serves its purpose should be preferred”

12. .. In other words, beneficial or welfare statutes should be given a liberal and not literal or strict interpretation...”

21. Applying the principle laid down by the Hon^{ble} Supreme Court that beneficial and welfare schemes must receive a liberal and purposive interpretation so as to advance their object and not defeat it on technical grounds, the petitioner's claim could not have been rejected in casual manner because from a bare perusal of the guidelines, it is evident that the scheme is intended to protect persons and families who are engaged in farming activities and have agriculture as

22. In view of the above discussion, this Court is of the considered view that the rejection of the petitioner's claim is based on an unduly drawn narrow interpretation of the scheme and merely based on assumptions not supported by proper enquiry, and therefore, the writ petition deserves to be allowed and is hereby allowed. The impugned order dated 25.08.2021 passed by the respondent no. 2, District Magistrate, Kannauj, rejecting the petitioner's claim under the "Mukhyamantri Krishak Durghatna Kalyan Yojana" and the information order dated 31.07.2021 issued by respondent no. 3 are hereby quashed. The matter is remanded to the District Magistrate, Kannauj, to reconsider the petitioner's claim afresh in accordance with law and in the light of the observations made hereinabove, after affording an opportunity of hearing to the petitioner and after conducting a proper enquiry, if required. The said exercise shall be completed expeditiously, preferably within a period of eight weeks from the date of production of a certified copy of this order. No order as to costs.

The court held that section 24 of the U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 vests the SDO with statutory quasi-judicial powers for summary settlement of boundary disputes coupled with mandatory enforcement authority for demarcation and possession restoration. The respondents are directed to execute all subject orders in the instant batch of writ petition, within four weeks from the date of order.

Adv. for Respondent:-

Azad Rai, C.S.C

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Yogendra Kumar Srivastava, J.)

Heard S/Sri Rohit Pandey, Sandeep Kumar Singh, holding brief of Digamber Dwivedi, Munna Tiwari along with Sandeep Kumar Singh, Dharamdas, Vijay

Bahadur Yadav, Anoop Kumar Sharma, Anurag Shukla along with Shubham Dwivedi, Raj Kumar Shukla and Arvind Kumar Srivastava, learned counsel for the petitioners and Sri Manish Goyal, learned Additional Advocate General, appearing along with Sri J N Maurya, learned Chief Standing Counsel, Sri Abhishek Shukla, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel and Sri Ravi Anand Agarwal, learned counsel for the State-respondents.

2. The present batch of writ petitions raises a common grievance pertaining to non-execution of demarcation orders passed under Section 24 of the Uttar Pradesh Revenue Code, 2006, notwithstanding the fact that such orders have attained finality after due inquiry, submission of reports, and issuance of notices to the concerned parties.

3. The lead matter, being Writ-C No. 35470 of 2025 (Meena Devi v. State of Uttar Pradesh and others), typifies the nature of the controversy involved in the present set of petitions.

Factual Matrix

4. The factual background of the cases and the contentions raised on behalf of the petitioners, as reflected from the pleadings, are being set out hereinbelow:

Writ-C No.35470 of 2025 : Meena Devi vs. State of Uttar Pradesh & Others

4.1 Petitioner is a recorded bhumidhar with transferable rights of land bearing Gata No.606, ad measuring 0.0240 hectare, situate in Village Ustapur Naika, Jhunsi, District Prayagraj. The petitioner's title and possession over the said land stand duly recorded in the khatauni of fasli years 1429-1434, evidencing her lawful rights.

4.2 Over a period of time, the boundaries of the aforesaid plot became damaged and indistinct, resulting in recurring disputes between the petitioner and adjoining land cultivators regarding the exact boundary line.

4.3 In order to resolve the boundary dispute lawfully, the petitioner along with other co-tenure holders instituted proceedings under Section 24 of the Code, 2006 for demarcation of boundaries before the Sub-Divisional Magistrate, Phoolpur, District Prayagraj. The case was registered as Case No. 191 of 2024 (Computerized No. T202402030200191) titled Meena Devi and others vs. Gram Sabha and others.

4.4 During the said proceedings, the Sub-Divisional Magistrate called for a report from the Revenue Inspector, who conducted a spot inspection in the presence of all concerned parties and submitted a demarcation report along with a map dated 28.11.2022.

4.5 On the basis of the said report, notices were issued to all concerned parties inviting objections. Despite due opportunity, no objections were filed by any party, and all stakeholders were aware of the demarcation proceedings.

4.6 After considering the material on record, the Sub-Divisional Magistrate, Phoolpur, allowed the application vide order dated 02.01.2024, confirming the demarcation report and map dated 28.11.2022, and directed the Tehsildar, Phoolpur, to execute the demarcation by installing permanent boundary stones.

4.7 In compliance of the said order, the Revenue Inspector issued notice dated 12.10.2024, informing all concerned parties that demarcation of Gata No.606 would be carried out on 19.10.2024, and requiring their presence for effective execution.

4.8 Thereafter, the petitioner was repeatedly called on several dates, namely 13.10.2024, 14.10.2024, 16.10.2024, 03.11.2024 and 05.11.2024, for demarcation proceedings. However, on each occasion, the demarcation work was deferred on the pretext of non-availability of police force, despite the existence of a valid and subsisting judicial order.

4.9 Due to persistent non-execution of the demarcation order, the petitioner submitted an application dated 02.12.2024 to the concerned authorities through registered post, requesting immediate compliance of the order dated 02.01.2024. Despite receipt of the said application, the respondents have failed to take any action.

4.10 Non-demarcation of her land has caused the petitioner grave hardship and irreparable loss, as the boundary dispute with adjoining landholders remains unresolved.

Writ-C No.35324 of 2025 :
Ramayan vs. State of Uttar Pradesh

5. Petitioner, Ramayan, filed a demarcation case under Section 24 of the Code, 2006 before the Sub-Divisional Magistrate, Rudrapur, District Deoria in respect of Gata Nos.174, 175, 178, 179, 181, 184 and 185. The said demarcation case was decided by order dated 06.02.2023.

5.1 During the pendency of the said proceedings, respondent nos. 4 to 9 instituted a separate case for correction of map under Section 30 of the Code, 2006 before the Additional District Magistrate (Finance & Revenue), Deoria, which is pending.

5.2 While passing the order dated 06.02.2023, the S.D.M. directed the parties to maintain status-quo only till the expiry of the limitation period for filing an appeal, noting the pendency of the proceedings under Section 30.

5.3 Despite the expiry of the limitation period, the revenue authorities have failed to comply with the demarcation order on the pretext of pendency of the proceedings (Lekhpal giving a report stating that since a case under section 30 is pending, therefore order of Section 24 cannot be complied). Repeated representations, including after dismissal of the appeal, have remained unattended.

5.4 Petitioner submitted a representation dated 22-09-2025 before respondent no.2, to comply with order dated 06-02-2023, but no action has been taken.

5.5 The inaction and refusal of the respondents to implement a final and binding order is arbitrary, illegal and unsustainable in the eyes of law, giving rise to the present writ petition seeking enforcement of the order dated 06.02.2023.

Writ-C No. 38105 of 2025 : Satendra Mani v. State of Uttar Pradesh

6. Petitioner filed a case for demarcation of his land bearing Arazi No. 898, area 3.376 hectare, situated at village

Sabaya Ray, Tehsil Kasya, District Kushinagar. The said case was instituted before the Sub Divisional Magistrate (Judicial), Tehsil Kasya, District Kushinagar, respondent no. 2, and was registered as Case No. 9568 of 2024, Computer Case No. T202405440409568 (Satendra Mani Vs. Chairman, Nagar Palika Parishad, Kushinagar).

6.1 Pursuant thereto, respondent no. 3 passed an order dated 01.04.2025 directing demarcation of the petitioner's land. However, despite lapse of more than six months from the date of the said order, the demarcation has not been carried out by the concerned authorities. Petitioner repeatedly moved applications before respondent no.2, requesting compliance of the order dated 01.04.2025, but no action was taken.

Writ-C No 39356 of 2025 :
Anand Kumar & Others v. State of Uttar Pradesh

7. Petitioners instituted a case for demarcation under Section 24 of the Code, 2006, which was registered as Case No. 4673 of 2023, Computerized Case No. T202305440304673 (Anand Kumar and others Vs. Ramashasnkhar and others). The Revenue Inspector submitted his report, which was duly examined by the Sub-Divisional Officer2 (Magistrate), Tehsil Tamkuhiraj, District Kushinagar, and found to be correct.

7.1 Accordingly, vide order dated 28.06.2023, the SDO directed affixation of boundary stones over Gata Nos. 1691/4374/0.099 and 1696/0.024 situate in Village Barwa Rajapakad, Tehsil Tamkuhiraj, District Kushinagar. Despite repeated approaches made by the petitioners for compliance of the said order, the authorities have failed to implement the same. Hence, the writ petition has been filed.

Writ-C No.39643 of 2025 : Parasnath vs. State of Uttar Pradesh

8. Petitioner, Paras Nath, filed a case under Section 24 of the Code, 2006 for measurement and demarcation of Gata Nos.234 (0.229 hectare) and 285 (0.253 hectare) situate in village Chaukiya, Pargana Mahul, Tehsil Phoolpur, District Azamgarh, which was registered as Case No. 1973 of 2025 (Computerized Case No. T202515060301973), Paras Nath vs. Om Prakash and others, before the Up-Ziladhihari, Tehsil Phoolpur. In the said proceedings, a report was called for from the revenue authorities, pursuant to which the Revenue Inspector submitted a report dated 16.07.2024 after spot inspection and measurement, along with the field book, which was forwarded through the Tehsildar, Phoolpur. Though objections were filed by the private respondents alleging lack of notice and inspection, the competent authority, after considering the objections, the revenue report and relevant records, approved the report vide order dated 12.03.2025.

8.1 Despite the final order dated 12.03.2025 approving the demarcation and entitling the petitioner to possession over the aforesaid land, the petitioner has not been put in possession till date. The private respondents are obstructing the implementation of the order and are threatening the petitioner and the local police authorities are not extending cooperation. The petitioner made representations dated 14.08.2025 and 08.09.2025 before the Sub-Divisional

Magistrate seeking enforcement of the order, but no action has been taken. The continued inaction of the respondents in giving effect to a lawful and final order is arbitrary and illegal, leaving the petitioner with no alternative remedy, and hence the present writ petition has been filed seeking issuance of a writ of mandamus for compliance of the order dated 12.03.2025 and delivery of possession of the disputed land.

Writ-C No.40027 of 2025 :
Kishan Kumar v. State of Uttar Pradesh

9. Petitioner filed Case No. 4747 of 2021, Computerized Case No. T202102420304747 under Section 24 of the Code, 2006 on 04.06.2021, seeking demarcation. The Revenue Inspector conducted measurement in presence of concerned parties and submitted a report dated 07.07.2021, which was forwarded by the Tehsildar, Tehsil Manjhanpur.

9.1 After service of notice and absence of objections, respondent no. 2 confirmed the report vide order dated 19.05.2022 and directed affixation of boundary stones. In pursuance thereof, notices dated 06.09.2025, 08.09.2025, and 17.09.2025 were issued fixing dates for compliance, but neither the Revenue Inspector reached the spot nor were stones fixed. Repeated approaches by the petitioner to the Revenue Inspector and respondent no. 2 yielded no result. Hence, the present writ petition has been filed.

Writ-C No.40164 of 2025 : Ramnaresh Dubey v. State of Uttar Pradesh

10. Petitioner is a co-sharer of Gata No. 684, area 0.434 hectare, situated at Village Tiwaripur (Kasivar), Tehsil Sadar, District Mirzapur. Along with other co-sharers, the petitioner filed Case No. 10256 of 2024, Computerized Case No. T202416530110256 under Section 24 of the Code, 2006 seeking measurement and Patthargaddi.

10.1 Pursuant to directions dated 26.07.2024, the Revenue Inspector submitted a measurement report and map. Vide order dated 30.11.2024, Patthargaddi was directed. Subsequently, the Revenue Inspector reported on 13.01.2025 that police force was required. Correspondence ensued between the Sub Divisional Magistrate and District Magistrate, culminating in a report dated 21.03.2025, which indicated that demarcation and Patthargaddi cannot be carried out without sufficient police force. Hence, the present writ petition has been filed.

Writ-C No.40165 of 2025 : Vinod Kumar Gupta vs. State of Uttar Pradesh

11. Petitioner's father was recorded in the Khatauni of Gata No. 833, area 0.0220 hectare. Upon his death on 26.04.2021, the petitioner and his brother were mutated and remained in possession. Subsequently, the petitioner's brother filed an application dated 24.12.2024 under Section 24 of the U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 for demarcation after depositing challan on 23.12.2024.

11.1 Inspection was conducted and reports were submitted between 25.04.2025 and 23.07.2025. Despite orders restraining illegal construction and a final demarcation order dated 30.07.2025, the authorities failed to enforce the same, resulting in illegal construction by respondents. Even after application dated 06.11.2025, no action was taken, compelling the petitioner to file the present writ petition.

Writ-C No.35626 of 2025 : Smt. Sirjawati v. State of Uttar Pradesh

12. Petitioner, a Bhumidhar with transferable rights over Plot No. 1411, area 0.4950 hectare, filed Case No. 6797 of 2025 under Section 24 of the Code, 2006 for permanent demarcation. Upon calling for reports, the Revenue Inspector submitted the demarcation report and field book, which was approved by respondent no. 4.

12.1 By order dated 28.02.2025, respondent no. 3 directed permanent demarcation within 15 days. Despite lapse of more than eight months, the said order has not been complied on the spot, causing irreparable loss to the petitioner. Hence, the present writ petition has been filed.

Common Grievance of the Petitioners

13. Submissions made on behalf of the petitioners may be summarised as follows:

13.1 Although the proceedings under Section 24 of the Code, 2006, which are summary in nature, have already culminated in final orders in favour of the petitioners, the statutory authorities have failed to execute the said orders, thereby rendering the entire proceedings ineffective.

13.2 The respondents have deliberately delayed execution, adopted obstructive tactics, and failed to discharge their statutory and administrative duties, despite repeated requests.

13.3 On account of the respondents' inaction, the petitioners continue to suffer, and the purpose of the demarcation orders stand frustrated.

13.4 The acts and omissions of the respondent authorities are arbitrary, illegal, unreasonable, and contrary to the provisions of the Code, 2006, warranting interference by this Court.

State's Response

14. In response, learned Additional Advocate General appearing for the State-respondents has submitted that the Code, 2006 provides an exhaustive procedure to deal with disputes regarding boundaries. Section 24 of the Code, 2006 read with Rule 22 of the U P Revenue Code Rules, 20163 delineates the procedural details which are to be followed for demarcation of boundaries. Referring to Section 24 of the Code, 2006, it was submitted that on an application, raising dispute regarding boundaries, the SDO, is to decide by a summary enquiry, on the basis of existing survey maps or, where they have been revised in accordance with the provisions of the Uttar Pradesh Consolidation of Holdings Act, 1953, on the basis of such maps, and if this is not possible, the boundaries shall be fixed on the basis of actual possession.

15. It was further submitted that as per sub-section (2) of Section 24 of the Code, 2006, if in the course of an inquiry into a dispute under sub-section (1), the SDO is unable to satisfy himself as to which party is in possession or if it is shown that possession has been obtained by wrongful dispossession of the lawful occupant, the SDO shall, in the first case, ascertain by summary inquiry who is the person best entitled to the property, and shall put such person in possession; in the second case, put the person so dispossessed in possession, and for that purpose use or cause to be used such force as may be necessary and shall then fix the boundary accordingly.

16. It was pointed out that the procedure to be followed in this regard is under Rule 22 of the Rules, 2016, which provides that the demarcation report along with site memo is to be prepared by the Revenue Inspector, thereafter on receipt of the said report, the SDO, after giving opportunity to the concerned parties, and fixing a date of hearing, is to pass an order. The order so passed is thereafter to be complied with by the Revenue Inspector with a report being submitted to the SDO.

17. Learned Additional Advocate General submits that the State Government with an intent to ensure expeditious and effective disposal of the matters, has issued various Government Orders/Circulars from time to time. It was pointed out that taking note of the fact that the cases filed under Section 24 of the Code, 2006 are being disposed of/consigned to the record without ensuring actual demarcation on the spot, the State has issued circular dated 16.12.2025, in order to ensure that after passing of the order by the Sub-Divisional Magistrate under Section 24 of the Code, 2006, the demarcation process is carried out in accordance with law within the specified time frame with a further provision for physical verification of the same. It is submitted that directives have been issued to obtain geo-tagged photographs along with the physical verification report and to upload the same on the RCCMS portal. It has also been provided that strict action be initiated against the concerned officers if the proceedings under Section 24 of the Code, 2006 are concluded without due physical verification. A copy of the circular dated 16.12.2025 issued by the State Government has been placed on record along with a short Counter Affidavit filed on behalf of the State-respondents.

Analysis and Discussion

18. In order to appreciate the rival contentions, the provisions with regard to settlement of boundary dispute contained in Section 24 of the Code, 2006, are required to be adverted. For ease of reference, Section 24 of the Code, 2006 is being extracted below:

“24. Disputes regarding boundaries. (1) The SDO may, on his own motion or on an application made in this behalf by a person interested, decide, by summary inquiry, any dispute regarding boundaries on the basis of existing survey map or, where they have been revised in accordance with the provisions of the Uttar Pradesh Consolidation of Holding Act, 1953, on the basis of such maps, but if this is not possible, the boundaries shall be fixed on the basis of actual possession.

(2) If in the course of an inquiry into a dispute under sub- section (1), the SDO is unable to satisfy himself as to which party is in possession or if it is shown that possession has been obtained by wrongful dispossession of the lawful occupant, the SDO shall –

(a) in the first case, ascertain by summary inquiry who is the person best entitled to the property, and shall put such person in possession;

(b) in the second case, put the person so dispossessed in possession, and for that purpose use or cause to be used such force as may be necessary and shall then fix the boundary accordingly.

(3) Every proceeding under this section shall, as far as possible, be concluded by the SDO within [three months] from the date of the application.

(4) Any person aggrieved by the order of the SDO may prefer an appeal before the Commissioner within 30 days of the such order. The order of the Commissioner shall, subject to the provisions of Section 210, be final. □”

19. Rule 22 of the Rules, 2016, which relates to settlement of boundary dispute is also being reproduced below:

22. Settlement of boundary dispute [Section 24]. □ (1) Under section 24 (1) of the Code the tenure-holder shall submit two copies of the application for settlement of boundary dispute to the Sub-Divisional-Officer for one or more than one contiguous gatas, and it shall contain the following particulars:

(a) Details of Gata □ Gata number, name of tenure holder, father/husband's name, name of village /tehsil. If the tenure holders are more than one, then particulars of all shall be mentioned; current updated khatauni shall also be attached to the application.

(b) Details of contiguous Gata □ Gata Number, name of tenure holder, father/husband's name, name of village/tehsil. If the tenure holders are more than one, then particulars of all shall be mentioned. Current updated khatauni shall also be attached to the application.

(2) If the khata is different in khatauni, but sub-division is not done in sazra-map, then sub-division in sazra-map shall be necessary.

(3) If boundary of any property of Gram Panchayat/State Government is adjacent to gata/gatas to be demarcated, then the Chairman, Land Management Committee/Gram Pradhan and the State Government shall be made a party in the case.

(4) Only the outer boundary shall be demarcated for an application made for boundary demarcation of continuous gatas.

(5) The applicant shall deposit a fee of Rs.1000/- in Government treasury for the demarcation of gata/attached gatas. A copy of challan receipt shall also be attached with the application form.

(6) On receipt of an application for demarcation, on the same or next working day, the Sub-Divisional-Officer shall register the case in Revenue Court Computerised Management System (RCCMS). Three copies of notices shall be issued from the computerized system and will be delivered to the Revenue Inspector through Tehsildar.

(7) The Revenue Inspector shall serve notice to the concerned tenure holder/tenure holders as mentioned in sub-rule (1), through the Lekhpal or through any other mode. In absence of the tenure holders, notice will be served to the adult family member of the tenure holder/tenure holders. The information of demarcation shall also be given to the Chairman, Land Management Committee.

(8) At the time of sending the information or before the demarcation on site, if the Revenue Inspector wants to make any other affected person, a party to the case he can do so.

(9) After fixing the date of demarcation and intimation to all the concerned tenure holders, the Revenue Inspector or any other revenue official will demarcate the land, parcel or parcels, as the case may be. During demarcation if any affected tenure holder is not a party to the case, such tenure holder shall be made a party to the case by the Revenue Inspector on the spot-And he will mention the same in his demarcation report. Demarcation shall be completed within a month from the date of order for the same by the Sub-Divisional-Officer.

(10) The Revenue Inspector or other revenue officials shall prepare the demarcation report along with the site memo. If there are no objections to the same, then after getting the consent and signature of all the concerned parties on the demarcation report, the same shall be sent it to the Sub-Divisional-Officer through Tehsildar in a week. On receipt of the aforesaid report of the Revenue Inspector, the Sub-Divisional-officer will pass the order confirming the demarcation report.

(11) If the affected parties to the demarcation have not given their consent to the demarcation, or if there is any objection to the demarcation report, notice (s) will be issued by the Sub-Divisional-Officer to all the parties, fixing a date of hearing which shall not be beyond 15 days from the date of issuance of notice.

(12) The Sub-Divisional-Officer shall pass an order on the matter of boundary demarcation after hearing all the concerned parties. The Revenue Inspector shall comply with such order within two weeks from the date of order, and shall submit his report to the Sub-Divisional-Officer.

(13) Where the boundary of gata/survey number is not recognizable due to alluvion or diluvion of land, or heavy rain, or due to damage caused by any other reason, then on the application of the Chairman of village Revenue Committee of that village, or on the report of the Revenue Inspector or Lekhpal, or on the joint application signed by all the concerned parties, the Sub-Divisional-Officer shall instruct the Revenue Inspector or Lekhpal by a general or special order in writing, that the demarcate the boundary on ground on the basis of current survey map or, where it is possible, on the basis of possession, and if there is any complaint, then on the advice of Village Revenue Committee, resolve the same on the basis of mutual consent. The Revenue Inspector or Lekhpal shall comply with such order within two weeks from the date of order, and will submit his report to the Sub-Divisional-Officer.

(14) At the time of passing order for demarcation under sub-rules (10). (13) or (14), the Sub-Divisional-Officer can direct the SHO of the concerned police station to make police force available on the spot at the time of demarcation of land, in order to maintain law and order.

(15) The SDO, will try to complete the process within the stipulated time as mentioned in section 24(3) of the Code and if the process is not completed within such time then the reason for the same shall be recorded.”

20. It would be apposite to refer to the Government Order dated 16.12.2025 in terms of which, guidelines have been issued for strict and effective compliance of orders passed under Section 24. Relevant extract of the said Government Order is as follows:

“4- उपर्युक्त के दृष्टिगत मुझे यह कहने का निर्देश हुआ है कि धारा-24 के वादों के निस्तारण हेतु राजस्व संहिता, 2006/नियमावली 2016 में विहित प्राविधानों के अनुक्रम में निम्नवत दिशा निर्देशों का भी कड़ाई से अनुपालन सुनिश्चित कराया जाये:- 1. उ0प्र0 राजस्व संहिता/नियमावली में प्राविधानित व्यवस्था के अनुसार धारा-24 के वाद में उपजिलाधिकारी द्वारा आदेश पारित करने के पश्चात भौतिक चिन्हांकन [पत्थर नसब] की कार्यवाही निर्धारित समय में कराते हुये उक्त कार्यवाही का भौतिक सत्यापन अवश्य कराया जाये।

(English Translation)

“4. In view of the aforesaid, I am directed to state that, in pursuance of the provisions of the Uttar Pradesh Revenue

Code 2006 /Rules, 2016 relating to the disposal of cases under section 24, the following guidelines shall also be strictly adhered to:

1. In accordance with the provisions of the Uttar Pradesh Revenue Code/Rules, upon the passing of an order under section 24 by the Sub-Divisional Magistrate, physical demarcation (Patthar Nasab) shall be carried out within the prescribed time-limit, and physical verification of the said demarcation shall be mandatorily ensured.

2. On-site photographs with embedded geo-location data shall be taken for physical demarcation (Patthar Nasab).

3. The Board of Revenue shall expeditiously develop a prescribed format for uploading the physical verification report of the demarcation (Patthar Nasab) process on the RCCMS portal.

4. Strict disciplinary action shall be initiated against the officers concerned who consign the records without ensuring physical verification of the physical demarcation (Patthar Nasab). ”

21. The present batch of writ petitions bring to the fore a seemingly systemic inaction of the concerned revenue authorities. The petitions herein raise a common grievance □ the non execution of final demarcation orders passed under Section 24 of the Code, 2006. Despite having successfully navigated the statutory procedures undergoing summary inquiries, site inspections, and obtaining final execution orders for affixation of boundary marks, the petitioner find themselves to be in a situation where the end relief remains illusionary. The orders in their favour remain on paper, unimplemented on the spot due to inaction on part of the revenue authorities.

The Mandate of Section 24

22. Section 24 of the Code, 2006 provides a statutory mechanism for the resolution of disputes relating to boundaries of land or villages through a summary inquiry conducted by the SDO.

23. Under the said provision, the SDO is empowered to initiate proceedings either suo motu or on an application made by an interested person and to decide such disputes by adopting a summary procedure. The determination of boundaries is required to be made on the basis of existing survey maps and, where such maps have been revised under the Uttar Pradesh Consolidation of Holdings Act, 1953, on the basis of the revised maps. In situations where boundary determination is not feasible with reference to maps, the SDO is mandated to fix boundaries on the basis of actual possession.

24. During the course of the inquiry, where the SDO is unable to satisfy himself as to which party is in possession, he is required to ascertain by summary inquiry who is the person best entitled to the property and to place such person in possession. Further, if it is found that possession has been obtained by wrongful dispossession, the SDO is statutorily obligated to restore possession to the dispossessed party and is vested with the authority to use such force as may be necessary for that purpose, followed by affixation of boundaries accordingly.

25. The proceedings under Section 24 are summary in nature and are required to be concluded, as far as practicable, within a period of three months from the date of application. Any person aggrieved by an order passed by the SDO under this section has a statutory right of appeal to the Commissioner within thirty days from the date of the order.

26. The scheme of Section 24 thus underscores the legislative intent to provide a speedy and effective mechanism for resolution of boundary disputes, based on documentary evidence in the form of survey maps or, where necessary, on evidence of actual possession.

Enforcement of Possession under Section 24

27. Possession pursuant to an order passed under Section 24 of the Uttar Pradesh Revenue Code is an integral component of the summary inquiry itself. The SDO is expressly empowered to restore or secure possession in favour of the entitled party while deciding the boundary dispute.

28. Where it is established that a party has been wrongfully dispossessed, the SDO is vested with the authority to restore possession to the dispossessed person. The provision further confers upon the SDO the power to employ necessary force to give effect to such restoration, thereby combining quasi-judicial determination with executive enforcement to ensure the efficacy of the order.

29. Section 24 provides a speedy, statutory recourse for resolution of boundary disputes with direct possession enforcement powers. In cases where determination by reference to maps is not possible, possession is required to be assessed on the basis of actual physical possession at the time of inquiry, and boundaries are to be fixed accordingly. The statutory object of Section 24 is to avoid protracted litigation and to ensure prompt resolution of boundary disputes along with effective delivery of possession.

30. Although an appeal lies to the Commissioner against an order passed under Section 24, the order of the SDO, including directions relating to possession, remains operative and enforceable unless stayed or set aside by the appellate authority.

Time Frame for Ensuring Possession

31. Section 24 mandates that the entire summary proceeding, including the determination of boundaries and restoration or fixation of possession, shall be completed, as far as possible, within a period of three months from the date of the application. The statutory timeline reflects the legislative intent that possession must be effectively ensured and the boundary dispute settled within the three-month window, ensuring a speedy resolution mechanism. The SDO's order, including possession restoration if required, should ideally be executed within this time frame to fulfill the mandate of expedited inquiry under Section 24.

The procedural rigour of Rule 22

32. Rule 22 prescribes procedural requirements for applications under Section 24, mandating the submission of updated khatauni, particulars of all tenure holders, and accurate reference to land parcels. Compliance is mandatory for a valid summary inquiry.

33. In terms of Rule 22, an application under Section 24(1) is required to be submitted in duplicate before the SDO. The application must disclose complete particulars of the disputed land, including the Gata number, name of the tenure holder, parentage or spousal details, and the village and tehsil concerned. Where the land is jointly held, particulars of all tenure holders are required to be furnished. The application must further be accompanied by an updated khatauni of all parties involved.

34. Where the dispute relates to contiguous Gata numbers, the particulars of such adjoining plots, along with corresponding details of tenure holders and updated khatauni records, are also required to be annexed. In cases where the khata is shown separately in the khatauni but no corresponding sub-division exists in the sazra map, Rule 22 mandates that such sub-division be carried out in the sazra map is necessary.

35. Upon receipt of an application for demarcation, the SDO is required, on the same day or on the next working day, to register the case in the Revenue Court Computerized Management System (RCCMS). Thereafter, three copies of the notice shall be generated from the computerized system and to be delivered to the Revenue Inspector through the Tehsildar for due service and further necessary action.

36. The Revenue Inspector, thereafter, is to ensure service of notice upon the concerned tenure holder or tenure holders, as referred to in sub-rule (1), either through the Lekhpal or by any other mode. In the event of absence of such tenure holder or tenure holders, service of notice is to be effected upon an adult member of the family. The information regarding the proposed demarcation is to be communicated to the Chairman, Land Management Committee.

37. The object underlying these procedural requirements is to ensure that complete information relating to the land in dispute and the parties concerned is available before the SDO, thereby facilitating an effective and meaningful summary inquiry.

38. Rule 22 has been consistently interpreted as laying down mandatory procedural requirements which must be complied before proceedings under Section 24 can validly be undertaken. It has been held that non-compliance with Rule 22, including failure to file updated khatauni records, omission to disclose particulars of all tenure holders, or lack of clarity regarding sub-division in the revenue map, would vitiate the summary inquiry contemplated under Section 24.

39. The SDO is required to satisfy himself, at the threshold, that the application conforms to the requirements of Rule 22, and only thereafter proceed to adjudicate the boundary dispute. Matters under Section 24 are to be decided only after ensuring due compliance with Rule 22, thereby underscoring the mandatory nature of the Rule and the procedural safeguards embedded therein.

40. The procedure prescribed under Rule 22 is not to be a mere technical or formal requirement, but a substantive safeguard intended to prevent ambiguity in land identification, protect the rights of all affected parties, and ensure fairness in summary adjudication. Any order passed under Section 24 in disregard of the requirements of Rule 22 has to be held to be vulnerable to challenge on the ground of procedural illegality.

The recent Government Order

41. In regard to enforcement of orders passed under Section 24, due notice may be taken of a recent Government Order dated 16.12.2025 which reiterates the obligation of the State authorities to ensure physical demarcation and affixation of boundary marks with geo-tagged photographic evidence, and strict accountability. In particular, it provides for:

(i) Physical Verification: Mandatory spot verification of demarcation;

(ii) Geo-tagging: Requirement of geo-tagged photographs of physical verification of affixation of boundary marks to be uploaded on the RCCMS portal; and

(iii) Accountability: Strict disciplinary action against officers who consign files to record without actual physical verification.

Principles governing exercise of Administrative and Quasi-judicial Powers

42. The SDO, while acting under Section 24, exercises both quasi-judicial and administrative functions. The SDO acts as a quasi-judicial authority at the stage of adjudication and as an administrative/executive authority at the stage of enforcement. The exercise of such powers is regulated by settled principles of administrative and quasi-judicial law as well as by the scheme under the Code, the Rules and executive instructions issued from time to time.

42.1 Rule of Law, Natural Justice and Fair Procedure: The SDO is bound by the rule of law and must act within the four corners of the Code, the Rules and binding Government Orders, without being guided by extraneous or irrelevant considerations. As a quasi-judicial authority, the SDO must follow the principles of natural justice, which include: (i) prior notice of the proceedings (ii) a reasonable opportunity of filing objections and of being heard; and (iii) impartial decision making without bias or, pre-determination.

42.2 Reasoned and Speaking Orders: Every order under Section 24 must be a speaking order, demonstrating application of mind to (i) pleadings of the parties; (ii) revenue records relied upon (khatauni, khasra, maps); (iii) demarcation report and any objections thereto.

The order must clearly: (i) record the facts and the nature of the boundary dispute; (ii) specify the basis on which the boundary is fixed. (iii) record findings on claim of possession or wrongful dispossession, where applicable; (iv) direct, in explicit terms, demarcation, fixation of boundary pillars and, where necessary, restoration of possession.

Reasoned orders are essential to ensure transparency, accountability, judicial review and to prevent arbitrariness.

42.3 Time-Bound Decision: Section 24 confers a summary jurisdiction, intended to afford a speedy and efficacious remedy in boundary disputes without driving parties to prolonged litigation. The SDO is under a statutory obligation to endeavour to conclude proceedings within the prescribed period of three months under the Code and to ensure that all consequential steps are undertaken within the stipulated time frame. Unexplained or avoidable delay in deciding the case or in implementing the final order constitutes failure of statutory duty.

42.4 Enforcement as Integral Part: Unlike purely judicial orders, quasi-judicial administrative orders include enforcement powers—possession restoration and use of force—to achieve effective resolution. The power under Section 24 is not confined to mere adjudication; it expressly includes enforcement powers, namely: (i) putting the person “best entitled” in possession when possession is unclear; (ii) restoring possession to a person found to have been wrongfully dispossessed; and (iii) using or causing to be used such force as may be necessary for restoring possession and fixing the boundaries accordingly.

In administrative law terms, effective enforcement is integral to the exercise of quasi-judicial power. An order which is not implemented on the spot reduces the entire proceeding to a paper exercise and defeats the legislative intent. Executive aids (Tehsildar, Revenue Inspector, police authorities) are to be utilized as implementing arms of the SDO’s quasi-judicial order.

42.5 Appeal Mechanism: The appeal to the Commissioner serves as an internal check but does not suspend enforcement unless specifically ordered. The statutory appeal to the Commissioner provides an internal check against error, perversity or illegality in the SDO’s order.

However, mere filing of an appeal would not operate as an automatic stay. Unless an express interim order is granted by the appellate authority, the SDO’s order remains operative and must be executed. The appellate jurisdiction is also quasi-judicial and is subject to the same requirements of fairness, reasoned decision-making and adherence to statutory limits.

42.6 Public Interest:

Maintaining land records, avoiding conflict, and upholding possession are vital for public order and governance. In exercising both quasi-judicial and administrative powers, the SDO must balance individual rights with the larger public interest in ensuring (i) sanctity of land records; (ii) predictability and stability of possession; and (iii) avoidance of conflict and law and order issues.

42.7 General Administrative

Law Constraints: In addition to the above, the exercise of powers by the revenue authorities is to be within the constraints of the general principles governing administrative and quasi-judicial power:

42.8 Ultra vires and Jurisdictional limits

The proceedings contemplated under Section 24 of the Code, 2006, are inherently summary in nature and are strictly confined to the demarcation of boundaries and restoration of possession based on the relevant revenue records. The jurisdiction of the SDO under this provision does not extend to the adjudication of complex questions of title or ownership. In cases where a genuine dispute regarding title arises, the SDO's authority remains limited to the determination of boundaries; any attempt to adjudicate proprietary rights under the guise of a Section 24 inquiry would be ultra vires and beyond the scope of the powers to be exercised.

42.9 Non-arbitrariness and equality

Discretion must not be exercised arbitrarily, capriciously or selectively. Similarly situated litigants in boundary disputes should receive consistent treatment, in line with statutory provisions.

42.10 Proportionality and minimal intrusion

Use of force for restoration of possession must be proportionate, necessary and limited to the extent required to secure compliance with the order and to maintain peace.

Guidelines for Enforcement of Orders under Section 24

43. In order to ensure effective implementation of orders passed under Section 24 of the Code, 2006 and to obviate recurring grievances arising out of non-enforcement of such orders, it is deemed appropriate to formulate certain broad guidelines, keeping in view the statutory provisions and relevant government orders.

I. Pre-Adjudication: Application & Registration :

The revenue authorities, at the threshold, are to ensure that every application filed under Section 24 of the Code is in strict conformity with the statutory mandate, (Section 24 of the Code, 2006; Rule 22 of the Rules, 2016), Government Orders dated 16.12.2025 and administrative law principles. The application under Section 24 is to fully comply Rule 22 requirements—two copies containing Gata particulars, updated khatauni, contiguous Gata details and challan receipt, before proceedings commence. On receipt of an application for demarcation, on the same or next working day, the SDO shall register the case in Revenue Court Computerised Management System (RCCMS). Three copies of notices shall be issued from the computerized system and would be delivered to the Revenue Inspector through Tehsildar.

II. Demarcation & Inquiry:

After fixing the date of demarcation and intimation to all the concerned tenure holders, the Revenue Inspector or any other revenue official would demarcate the land, parcel or parcels, as the case may be, During demarcation if any affected tenure holder is not a party to the case, such tenure holder shall be made a party to the case by the Revenue Inspector on the spot and same would be mentioned in the demarcation report. Demarcation shall be completed within a month from the date of order for the same by the SDO.

The Revenue Inspector shall prepare the demarcation report along with site memo. If there are no objections to the same, then after getting the consent and signature of all the concerned parties on the demarcation report, the same shall be sent it to the SDO through Tehsildar within a week. On receipt of the report, the SDO shall pass order confirming the same. If the affected parties do not give their consent or if there is any objection to the demarcation report, notice would be issued by the SDO to all parties, fixing a date of hearing which shall not be beyond 15 days from the date of notice, and thereafter, pass an order of boundary demarcation after hearing all concerned parties.

III. Execution, Physical enforcement, Prompt and Effective restoration of Possession :

The SDO, after having ascertained by summary inquiry the person best entitled to the property, shall put such person in possession. If in the course of inquiry, it is shown that possession has been obtained by wrongful dispossession of the lawful occupant, the SDO shall put the person, so dispossessed in possession and for that purpose use or cause to use such force as may be necessary and shall be fixed the boundary accordingly. SDO's written requisition to Station House Officer under Rule 22(14) for police force would be mandatory where any resistance or obstruction is apprehended. The SDO would endeavour to complete the process within the stipulated time period of three months as specified in Section 24 (3) and, if the process is not completed within such time, then reason for the same shall be recorded.

IV. Post-Execution Compliance & Reporting:

Compliance report detailing pillar locations, possession status must accompany geo-tagged photographs (GPS-enabled) and form part of record. RCCMS upload of verification report in Board of Revenue-prescribed format would be mandatory.

V. Expeditious disposal of Appeals:

Appeals preferred before the Commissioner against orders passed under Section 24 shall be taken up and disposed of with promptitude. As a matter of practice, such appeals should ordinarily be decided without undue delay. Mere filing would cause no automatic stay - execution is to continue unless express interim stay granted. Pendency of Section 30 proceedings or title dispute would ipso facto not suspend Section 24 execution in the absence of any stay order having been granted.

VI. Interim protection and preventive measures:

Pending inquiry/enforcement, SDO may pass interim orders including maintaining of status quo, restraining illegal construction, interference, or dispossession. Where disputes threaten breach of peace, SDO shall exercise administrative powers concurrently for urgent possession restoration. The police authorities shall render requisite protection and assistance in discharge of their duties.

VII. Enforcement of the order as part of proceedings:

An application under Section 24 is not to be treated to be ☐decided☐ and proceedings not ☐concluded☐ unless affixation of boundary marks consequent to the order under the section has been made on the spot. The file is not to be consigned to the record room unless a physical verification report with geo-tagged photograph is uploaded.

VIII. Monitoring Reporting and Accountability:

The SDO shall maintain periodic records of compliance showing the status of enforcement of orders passed under Section 24.

IX. Accountability and Consequences of Non-compliance:

Persistent delay beyond statutory timelines, repeated non-execution or any willful failure/deliberate inaction on the part of the officials in complying with orders relating to possession shall invite appropriate departmental action.

X. Implementation Protocol:

Board of Revenue shall endeavour to expeditiously develop Standard Operating Procedures for RCCMS verification format and also appropriate training modules for the concerned revenue officers.

XI. Jurisdictional limits:

These proceedings, being summary, exclude genuine title disputes□SDO jurisdiction being strictly confined to boundary disputes and possession. Complex ownership claims would require civil adjudication; and any overreach would render the orders ultra vires.

Directions and Disposal

44. Section 24 of the UP Revenue Code, 2006 vests the SDO with statutory quasi-judicial powers for summary settlement of boundary disputes coupled with mandatory enforcement authority for demarcation and possession restoration. Execution is not discretionary but integral to the provision's efficacy□failure to enforce renders the entire summary mechanism otiose and defeats the legislative intent. The broad guidelines formulated aim at providing for a structured framework harmonizing statutory mandates (Section 24 of Code, 2006; Rule 22 of Rules, 2016), executive instructions (Government Order dated 16.12.2025), administrative law principles, and constitutional imperatives of fairness and public order. The concerned respondents, in particular the SDO and Collector, are under law bound to ensure that orders under Section 24 are effectively enforced.

45. The Secretary, Department of Revenue, State of Uttar Pradesh, shall ensure statewide circulation of aforesaid guidelines to all revenue authorities within the State. A mechanism for providing mandatory training and RCCMS protocol compliance may also be ensured.

46. The respondents, particularly the concerned SDOs are directed forthwith to execute all subject orders in the instant batch of writ petition, within four weeks from the date of production of a certified copy of this order, strictly as per approved site memo/demarcation report, by ensuring affixation of boundary marks and also possession restoration, wherever required.

47. The writ petitions are `in the manner as indicated above.

Issue for Consideration

Whether the Rent Authority constituted under the Uttar Pradesh Regulation of Urban Premises Tenancy Act, 2021 has jurisdiction to entertain an application filed by a landlord in cases where tenancy agreement has not been executed and the landlord has failed to file particulars of tenancy with the Rent Authority.

Headnotes

Uttar Pradesh Regulation of Urban Premises Tenancy Act, 2021 — Section 4(3), 4(7) — Tenancy created prior to commencement of Act — No written agreement — No intimation of particulars — Effect — Maintainability of eviction application.

The Act of 2021 does not incorporate the disabling consequence contained in Section 4(6) of the Model Tenancy Act. The Legislature has consciously omitted any provision disentitling the landlord from seeking relief in absence of submission of statement of information.

Section 4(3) contemplates tenancies created before commencement of the Act including cases where no agreement in writing was entered into. The proviso enables parties to file particulars separately where they fail to reach agreement.

Section 4(7) clarifies that in absence of any statement of information under sub-sections (1), (2) and (3), the landlord may file an application for eviction on that ground alone.

Failure to intimate particulars of tenancy does not divest the landlord of right to seek eviction under Section 21(2) of the Act.[Paras 33–41, 45–52]

Uttar Pradesh Regulation of Urban Premises Tenancy Act, 2021 — Section 38(2) — Jurisdiction of Rent Authority — Scope — Whether dependent upon submission of tenancy agreement.

Section 38(2) circumscribes jurisdiction of the Rent Authority by restricting it from adjudicating questions of title or ownership and by confining it to disputes relating to tenancy agreement.

The provision does not confer jurisdiction conditional upon execution or submission of tenancy agreement. Jurisdiction of the Rent Authority to entertain application under Section 21(2) is not dependent upon execution of written agreement or submission of particulars under Section 4. [Paras 53–60]

Interpretation of Statute — Use of expression “shall” — Whether mandatory or directory — Section 4(3) of Act of 2021.

The use of expression “shall” in Section 4(3) is directory. The provision does not prescribe penal consequence in case of non-compliance and does not render proceedings non-maintainable.[Paras 61–66]

Pre-Act Tenancies — Unwritten tenancy — Applicability of Act of 2021.

The scheme of Section 4(3) contemplates tenancies existing prior to commencement of the Act, including those not reduced into writing. The Act does not exclude unwritten tenancies from its ambit. [Paras 42–44, 67–69]

Coordinate Bench Decisions — Alleged conflict — Larger Bench reference — Whether warranted.

1. Petitioners in these six cases, nominated to this Court by orders of Hon'ble the Chief Justice dated 5th May, 2025, are either tenants or landlords in respect of buildings let out to them for residential or commercial purpose. Five of the writ petitions are under Article 226 and 227 of Constitution of India while the sixth case is S.C.C. Revision filed under Section 25 of Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, 1887 (hereinafter called as "the Act of 1887").

2. The issue raised in all the connected matters, "whether the rent authority, constituted under the provisions of the Act of 2021, has the jurisdiction to entertain application filed by landlord in cases where tenancy agreement has not been executed, if not executed, the landlord having failed to file particulars of tenancy with rent authority" is the same, and with consent of learned counsel for the parties, is being heard and decided together by a common order.

PRELUDE

3. Before advertng to decide the issue in hand, a brief glance of legislative history of both Uttar Pradesh Urban Buildings (Regulation of Letting, Rent and Eviction) Act, 1972 (hereinafter called as "the Act of 1972") and Uttar Pradesh Regulation of Urban Premises Tenancy Act, 2021 (hereinafter called as "the Act of 2021") is necessary for better appreciation of the case.

4. Before enactment of the Act of 1972, the field in regard to control of rent and eviction was guided and controlled by United Provinces (Temporary), Control of Rent and Eviction Act, 1947. With passage of time and in view of continuing increase in urban population and relatively slow pace house building activity, mainly due to shortage of materials, the problem of shortage of accommodation became chronic. To tackle the problem, State Government introduced the Bill in the year 1970 with following statement of objects and reasons:-

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

THE United Provinces (Temporary), Control of Rent and Eviction Act, 1947, was passed as a temporary Act with a view mainly to continuing in force provisions relating to control of letting and rent of accommodation similar to those contained in orders which had been issued under the Defence of India Rules, 1939. It was expected that the situation of shortage of accommodation would be tided over after a short period, and accordingly an Ordinance was promulgated in 1946, and it was replaced by a temporary Act in 1947. In view, however, of the continuing increase in urban population and the relatively slow pace of house-building activity due, mainly, to shortage of materials the problem of shortage of accommodation has become chronic, and the life of the Act, has had to be extended from time to time. Various amendments were also made in its provisions as and when problems arose. Some of the provisions attracted criticism on various grounds in Courts of law and also criticism by informed public opinion. Government gave an assurance to the Legislature that they would soon replace the Act by a new comprehensive legislation, and accordingly, this Bill has been prepared.

The salient features of this Bill are as follows:

1. It is proposed to make the new law a permanent one instead of a temporary measure.

2. Instead of fixing a particular date and applying the law only to buildings constructed till that date it is proposed that the new law shall apply to all buildings after a period of 10 years from the date of completion of their construction. Thus the number of buildings that will be brought under regulation shall be rising progressively as time passes. Ten year holiday from regulation is being provided to give incentive for construction of new buildings.

3. Under section 3 of the old Act the powers of the District Magistrate in the matter of grant of permission for institution of a suit for eviction of a tenant were not defined and he had an unfettered discretion to allow eviction on any ground whatsoever. The grounds on which such eviction of a sitting tenant may be permitted or release of a vacant building allowed, have now been restricted. Further in order to reduce multiplicity of proceedings and also to reduce the congestion in civil courts it has been provided that proceedings for eviction shall lie before the prescribed authority instead of in the civil court.

4. The provision for revision to the State Government against allotment and release orders and orders of eviction of unauthorised occupants has been omitted. Instead, appeals against allotment orders and orders of release of vacant buildings that may be passed by the District Magistrate or his delegate shall lie to the Commissioner and appeals against orders of the District Magistrate or his delegate determining or refixing rent and orders of the prescribed authority in release proceedings against sitting tenants shall lie to the District Judge, and the decision of the Commissioner or the District Judge shall be final.

5. Suits for eviction on the grounds specified in section 3 of the old Act which lay in the Court of Munsif of Civil Judge shall now lie in the courts of Small Causes. This will do away with the multiplicity of appeals, as only a revision will lie against the decision of the Small Cause Court as in other small cause cases. Further, out of the grounds specified in the old Act, some have been modified. As it appears that allegations of causing a nuisance were sometimes made for creating a fictitious ground of eviction, this ground has been omitted. Moreover, mere making of material alterations will not be a valid ground of eviction and only structural alterations in the building will form such ground.

6. Buildings held by educational institutions on charitable societies or buildings built and held by co-operative societies, companies and firms for their own occupation or for the occupation of their employees, etc., shall be exempt from the operation of the new law.

7. Certain provisions have been made with a view to ensuring that buildings are not deliberately got under-assessed, and the local authorities get their due share of taxes according to the correct letting value. Re-fixation of rent on the application of the tenant is also being provided for in such cases.

8. Suits for eviction pending against tenants of buildings brought under regulation for the first time shall not be decreed, and decrease for eviction already obtained shall not be executed except on specified grounds.

9. After the death of a tenant the surviving members of his family shall be entitled to the same protection as the deceased.

10. In the case of such repairs as are essential to keep a building wind-proof and water-proof the tenant is being allowed to deduct two months' rent instead of one month's rent.

11. The tenant's liability to pay enhanced house tax is being reduced from one-third of the amount of enhancement to one-fourth thereof.

12. The provisions regarding allotment, maintenance of the building in wind-proof and water-proof condition and of amenities attached to it, and deposit of rent in Court in certain circumstances have been retained, and certain loop-holes in the various provisions have been sought to be plugged.

This Bill is, accordingly, introduced."

5. The Bill was passed and the Act of 1972 came into force on 15.07.1972. The Act provided for regulation of letting, rent and eviction of tenants from certain class of buildings situated in urban areas. Chapter IV provided for regulation and eviction, and only under Section 20 under the ground specified in sub-section (2), a landlord could get the tenant evicted. However, Section 21 provided for release of building under occupation of tenant under circumstances provided therein. Apart from this, there was no provision under the Act of 1972 which could balance the equity in favour of landlord.

6. As provisions contained in the Act of 1972 had virtually led to freezing of rent determined in the year 1972 for all times to come, a coordinate Bench of this Court in Milap Chandra Jain vs. State of Uttar Pradesh, 2001 (2) ARC 488 declared unconstitutional the provisions leading to such a consequence after finding the same to be highly unreasonable and violative of Article 14 of Constitution of India. However, the Court directed State Government to consider redefining the expression "standard rent" in accordance with model rent control legislation published by the Government of India in July, 1992, and a proper legislation in this respect to be enacted. The relevant para of the judgment is extracted hereasunder:-

"Accordingly, the definition of the "standard rent" under Section 3 (k) of the Act and the corresponding provisions under Sections 4(2), 5, 6, 8 and 9 of the Act are declared ultra vires of the Constitution of India. The respondent No. 1 is directed to consider the matter in the light of observations and to redefine the "standard rent" or "fair rent" in accordance with the model rent control legislation published by the Government of India in July, 1992 at least in respect of the buildings which were in the possession of the tenants at the commencement of U. P. Act No. XIII of 1972 to remove injustice done to a class of landlords. The proper legislation in this respect is expected to be enacted at the earliest."

7. As the directions given in the above case were not complied, the co-ordinate Bench in another case Milap Chandra Jain vs. Roop Kishore (2014) 3 AWC 2286 observed as under:-

"37. This Court in Milap Chand Jain (supra) way back on 12.9.2001 had struck down certain provisions of the Act in relation to 'standard rent' and re-fixation of fair rent with the direction for enactment of proper new legislation on the model rent control legislation published by the Government of India in July, 1992. Another Lordship of this Court in Bal Kishan v. Additional District Judge, 2003 (2) ARC 545, had made strong recommendation to consider for providing a general provision enhancement of rent but the people of the State have not seen any amendment in the existing Act and the new legislation is also not in sight.

38. The Act is not applicable to buildings constructed on or after 26th April, 1985 for a period of 40 years and to those tenancies having rent of Rs. 2000/- and above. In other words, it covers only old tenancies with meagre rent of less than Rs. 2000/- p.m. The landlord of such buildings are the worst suffers as they are not in a position to increase the rent or to get the building vacated from tenants. They are unable to utilise their property in a more appropriate or beneficial method suiting to its value. Therefore, it is imperative and high time for the legislature to give a re-look to the existing statute as had been directed earlier.

39. The apathy shown by the law makers to the suggestions for improvement in the Act and to the directions of the Courts to come out with proper and better legislation, reminds me the decision of the Supreme Court in Union of India v. Raghubir Singh, AIR 1989 SC 1333, wherein it quoted Lord Reid "There was a time when it was thought almost indecent to suggest that Judges make law. But we do not believe in fairy tales any more", suggesting that time has come when the Courts may under compulsion took over the work of legislation.

40. If the lawmakers neglect their duty and do not care to enact proper legislation in time or despite directions of the Court, the people would agitate and force them to make the necessary law and even if this fails a day is not far when the Courts will have to clothe themselves with the power to enact law.

41. It would be a grim position causing overlapping of jurisdiction but non the less is a sign of caution to the legislature to wake up and to leave aside governance a little and to serve the people more.

42. Let a copy of this judgment be placed before the Chairman, Law Commission, U.P. and the Legal Remembrancer who shall prepare a report on the follow up action on the directions of the Court in Milap Chand Jain (supra) and Bal Kishan (supra) and to oversee the implementation of the above decision. The report shall be submitted by him to the Court within a period of three months of receiving a copy of this judgment."

8. Another Civil Misc. Writ Petition No. 50870 of 2004 was filed by one Neena Jain before this Court for declaring the Act of 1972 as unconstitutional. On 04.04.2014, the Division Bench dismissed the petition and overruled the judgment rendered in both the cases of Milap Chandra Jain (supra). The Division Bench observed as under:-

"45. Before parting with the case we may observe that it is for the State legislature to take into account, after considering the relevant material, which includes collection of data and statistics, and the needs of the society with fair representation of class of persons, who are owners of the building and tenants to make provisions for periodical increase of agreed rent to those buildings, who still continue to enjoy the protection of the U.P. Act No. 13 of 1972. The State Government may consider to appoint a Commission, for such purpose and to consider its recommendations for making appropriate amendments to the Act. The writ petition as well as the transfer application are dismissed."

9. The said judgment was assailed before Hon'ble Supreme Court through Special Leave Petition, which was converted into Civil Appeal No. 1082 of 2017 (Neena Jain vs. State of U.P. and others). The Hon'ble Supreme Court on 27.02.2020 required State Government to bring on record the steps taken by State in furtherance of directions issued by Division Bench in case of Neena Jain (supra). On 04.03.2020, the State Government apprised the Apex Court that despite recommendations of various committees, nothing effective had transpired, however, State assured that needful on urgent basis will be done within four months.

10. In the meantime, Central Government framed Model Tenancy Act, for adoption by State and Union Territories, however, its approval by Central Government remained pending.

11. The State Government apprised the Apex Court on 03.11.2020 regarding approval being pending by Central Government and its inability to issue Ordinance, the Apex Court observed that there was no good reason for State to wait for Model Tenancy law to take its final shape and that it may bring forth its own State Legislation by taking some guidance from the draft legislation.

12. Thus, on the lines of Draft Model Tenancy Act prepared by Central Government, the State of Uttar Pradesh on 09.01.2021 promulgated the Uttar Pradesh Regulation of Urban Premises Tenancy Ordinance, 2021. As the Bill replacing the Ordinance was not passed within a period of six weeks, it lapsed on 31.03.2021. Again, on 09.04.2021, Uttar Pradesh Regulation of Urban Premises Tenancy (Second) Ordinance, 2021 was promulgated. On 02.06.2021, Union Cabinet approved the Draft Model Tenancy Act and it was circulated to all States/Union Territories for its adoption.

13. However, the second ordinance was replaced by the Act of 2021 and it received the assent of Governor on 24.08.2021 and was made applicable in the State of U.P. from 11.01.2021.

DISCUSSION

14. An insight into the facts leading to the enactment of the Act of 2021 reveal that State Legislature intended to enact on the lines of the Model Tenancy Act, 2021 prepared and approved by the State Government. Paragraph 2 of the Statement of Objects and Reasons appended to the Bill reveals that it was considered expedient to introduce the Bill in view of the directions passed by the Hon'ble Supreme Court as also to bring the law relating to tenancy in urban areas in tune with the Model Tenancy Act prepared by the Central Government. Statement of Object and Reasons of Act of 2021 is reproduced hereunder:-

“STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

The Uttar Pradesh Urban Buildings (Regulation of Letting, Rent and Eviction) Act, 1972 (U.P. Act no. 13 of 1972) (hereinafter referred to as the "said Act") has been enacted for the regulation of letting, and rent of, and the eviction of tenants from, certain classes of buildings situated in urban areas, and for matters connected therewith and incidental thereto. It was observed that under the scheme of said Act several difficulties were being faced in settling disputes arising between the tenant and the landlord, a large number of tenancy disputes were also pending in the Courts, and the owners of the building were also not getting proper rent for their property. Apart from the above, certain sections of the said Act had also been declared excessive by the Hon'ble Allahabad High Court. The said order of the Hon'ble High Court has not yet been challenged in any Court and thus this order is still in effect.

In view of the directions given by the Supreme Court of India in certain matters; the Draft Model Tenancy Act prepared by the Government of India; and on the basis of the recommendations made by the Uttar Pradesh State Law Commission in this regard, it was decided to repeal the said Act of 1972 and replace it with a new law.

Accordingly, the Uttar Pradesh Regulation of Urban Premises Tenancy Ordinance, 2021 (U.P. Ordinance no. 2 of 2021) was promulgated by the Governor on January 9, 2021. Due to the sudden adjournment of the first session of 2021 of the State Legislature on March 4, 2021, proceedings of which was determined from February 18, 2021 to March 10, 2021, replacing Bill of the said Ordinance could not be passed by the Houses of the State Legislature. Therefore, the Ordinance promulgated on January 9, 2021 lapsed on March 31, 2021 as the replacing Bill therefore could not be enacted within six weeks of re-assembly of the State Legislature as required under Article 213 of the Constitution.

In view of the aforesaid, it was decided to bring a new tenancy law to keep the provisions of the aforesaid Ordinance in force even after March 31, 2021 to establish Rent Authority and Rent Tribunals to regulate renting of premises, to protect the interests of landlord and tenants, and to provide speedy adjudication mechanism for resolution of disputes and for matters connected therewith or incidental thereto.

Since the State Legislature was not in session and immediate legislative action was necessary to Implement the aforesaid decision, the Uttar Pradesh Regulation of Urban Premises Tenancy (Second) Ordinance, 2021 (U.P. Ordinance no. 3 of 2021) was promulgated by the Governor on April 9, 2021.

This Bill is introduced to replace the aforesaid Ordinance.

By order,

ATUL SRIVASTAVA,

Pramukh Sachiv”

15. For composite study, Section 4 and 40 enshrined in Chapter II and VIII of the Model Tenancy Act are reproduced herein-below:-

“4. (1) Notwithstanding anything contained in this Act or any other law for the time being in force, no person shall, after the commencement of this Act, let or take on rent any premises except by an agreement in writing, which shall be informed to the Rent Authority by the landlord and tenant jointly, in the form specified in the First Schedule within a period of two months from the date of tenancy agreement.

(2) Where the landlord and the tenant fail to jointly inform the execution of the tenancy agreement referred to in sub-section (1), the landlord and tenant shall separately inform the execution of tenancy agreement to the Rent Authority within a period of one month from the date of expiry of the period specified in sub-section (1).

(3) The Rent Authority shall, within three months from the date of its appointment, put in place a digital platform in the local vernacular language or the language of the State/Union territory for enabling submissions of document in such form and manner as may be prescribed.

(4) The Rent Authority shall, after receiving information about the execution of tenancy agreement along with the documents specified in the First Schedule, -

(a) provide a unique identification number to the parties; and

(b) upload details of the tenancy agreement on its website in local vernacular language or the language of the State/Union territory, within seven working days from the date of receipt of such information, in such manner along with such documents as it may deem fit.

(5) The terms of authorisation of the property manager, if any, by the landlord to deal with the tenant shall be such as agreed to by the landlord and tenant in that behalf in the tenancy agreement.

(6) The information provided under sub-section (1) and sub-section (2) shall be conclusive proof of the facts relating to tenancy and matters connected therewith, and in the absence of any statement of information, the landlord and the tenant shall not be entitled to any relief under the provisions of this Act.

40. (1) Save as otherwise provided in this Act, no civil court shall entertain any suit or proceeding in so far as it relates to the provisions of this Act.

(2) The jurisdiction of the Rent Court shall be limited to tenancy agreement submitted to it as specified in the First Schedule and shall not extend to the question of title or ownership of premises.”

16. Though, the State Legislature intended to enact law regulating urban tenancies on the lines of Model Tenancy Act prepared by Central Government, however, while enacting Act of 2021, State took a conscious departure from Model Tenancy Act as regards mandatory nature of execution of tenancy agreement and its intimation to the rent authority in case of execution as also non-execution.

17. Model Tenancy Act is at idem with Act of 2021 in providing that tenancy agreement executed between the landlord and tenant under the Act would serve as conclusive proof of landlord-tenant relationship, there is marked departure regarding the consequences emanating on the ground of the failure of the parties to intimate to rent authority about its execution or non-execution.

18. Sub-section (6) of Section 4 of Model Tenancy Act expressly provides that on ground of failure of parties to intimate about execution or non-execution of tenancy agreement would preclude the landlord and tenant from claiming any relief, while Act of 2021 enacted by State Government has deliberately chosen to omit prescription of such consequences in case of failure of parties to intimate the rent authorities about the execution or non-execution of tenancy agreement.

19. The Act of 2021 in Section 2(c) defines a premise, while sub-section 2(i) provides for “tenancy agreement”, which means an agreement in writing executed between the landlord and tenant for the purpose of letting the premises of payable rent.

20. Chapter II of the Act of 2021 in Section 4 provides for tenancy agreement which is as under:-

“4. Tenancy Agreement. – (1) Notwithstanding anything contained in this Act or any other law for the time being in force, no person shall, after the commencement of this Act, let or take on rent any premises except by an agreement in writing, which shall be informed to the Rent Authority by the landlord and tenant jointly, in the form specified in the First Schedule within a period of two months from the date of tenancy agreement:

Provided that in cases of residential tenancies for a period of less than twelve months, the landlord and tenant shall not be required to inform the Rent Authority about such tenancy.

(2) Where the landlord and the tenant fail to jointly inform the execution of the tenancy agreement referred to in sub-section (1), the landlord and tenant shall separately inform the execution of tenancy agreement to the Rent Authority within a period of one month from the date of expiry of the period specified in sub-section (1).

(3) Where, in relation to a tenancy created before the commencement of this Act,-

(a) if an agreement in writing was entered into between the landlord and the tenant, they shall jointly present a copy thereof to the Rent Authority within three months of the commencement of this Act.

(b) if no agreement in writing was entered into, the landlord and the tenant shall enter into an agreement in writing with regard to that tenancy and present the same to the Rent Authority within three months of the commencement of this Act:

Provided that where the landlord or the tenant fail to present jointly a copy of the tenancy agreement or fail to reach an agreement within specified period, such landlord and tenant shall separately file the particulars about such tenancy with the Rent Authority within one month from the date of expiry of period mentioned in clause (b) above, in the form specified in First Schedule. If the landlord has submitted his particulars within the specified period but tenant fails to submit such particulars, the landlord may file an application for eviction on this ground alone:

Provided further that during such eviction proceedings, the Rent Authority shall, notwithstanding anything contained in this Act, decide interim rent payable by the tenant during such adjudication.

(4) The State Government shall, put in place a digital platform in the Hindi or English language for enabling submissions of document in such form and manner as may be prescribed.

(5) The Rent Authority shall, after receiving information about the execution of tenancy agreement along with the documents specified in the First Schedule, provide a unique identification number to the parties.

(6) The terms of authorization of the property manager, if any, by the landlord to deal with the tenant shall be such as agreed to by the landlord and tenant in that behalf in the tenancy agreement.

(7) The information provided under sub-sections (1), (2) and (3) shall be conclusive proof of the facts relating to tenancy and matters connected therewith, and in the absence of any statement of information, the landlord may file an application for eviction on this ground alone.”

21. From the reading of above provisions, it is clear that the Legislature was conscious of the fact that provision for fresh tenancy as well as for old tenancy was required.

22. Section 4 starts with a non obstante clause, the Legislature in sub-section (1) provided for those tenancies for which agreement was required in writing between landlord and the tenant for the premises to be let out by landlord or taken on rent by the tenant. It provided for written agreement to be forwarded to rent authority within two months from the date of agreement.

23. However, in respect of tenancy for residential purpose which was for less than twelve months, the information to the rent authority was dispensed with. Sub-section (2) provides for joint information about the execution of agreement to the rent authority, but in case of failure, any of the parties, i.e. landlord or tenant, could inform within one month after expiry of the period provided under sub-section (1).

24. Sub-section (3) of Section 4 is of great relevance. It deals with the tenancy created before the commencement of the Act. Clause (a) of sub-section (3) deals with a situation wherein an agreement in writing was entered between the landlord and tenant, and they have to jointly present a copy to the rent authority within three months from the commencement of the Act. While, clause (b) deals with another situation where no agreement in writing was entered between the parties, the landlord and tenant will now have an opportunity to enter into an agreement in writing in regard to tenancy and intimate it to the rent authority within three months from the commencement of Act.

25. Proviso to Section 3 envisages a situation where tenancy agreement is not placed jointly or they fail to reach an agreement within a time limit prescribed therein, then the landlord or tenant may file particulars of such tenancy with rent authority within one month from the date of expiry of period mentioned in clause (b), in the forms specified in the first schedule. The proviso further provides opportunity to landlord for initiating proceedings in case particulars are submitted by him and not by tenant.

26. Sub-section (4) mandates State Government to place a digital platform for the submission of documents, and once they are placed in prescribed manner, the rent authority after receiving such information will allot a unique identification number to the parties. Sub-section (4) and (5) had been enacted to give a legal status to both landlord and tenant in regard to the tenancy which is recorded with the rent authority and unique number is allotted.

27. Sub-section (7) of Section 4 records that information provided under sub-sections (1), (2) and (3) shall be the conclusive proof of the fact relating to tenancy and matter connected therewith. It further clarifies that in absence of any statement of information which is required under sub-section (1), (2) and (3), the landlord may file an application for eviction on this ground alone.

28. It seems that the the Legislature was well conscious that in case of tenancy created prior to the commencement of Act, where no written agreement being entered between the parties, and information also not sent to rent authority, then it will not disable the landlord from seeking remedy under the Act. Consciously, Legislature added the word “the landlord may file an application for eviction on this ground alone”.

29. This part of sub-section (7) of Section 4 is missing in the Model Tenancy Act. It is trite law that where omissions in a statute are conscious, Legislative intendment are not accidental, the omissions made by the Legislature in its wisdom are to be respected and same cannot be filled up by judicial interpretive process. The Hon’ble Apex Court in Babita Lila vs. Union of India, (2016) 9 SCC 647 held as under:-

“64. More recently, this Court amongst others in Petroleum and Natural Gas Regulatory Board v. Indraprastha Gas Ltd. [Petroleum and Natural Gas Regulatory Board v. Indraprastha Gas Ltd., (2015) 9 SCC 209] had propounded that when the legislative intention is absolutely clear and simple and any omission inter alia either in conferment of power or in the ambit or expanse of any expression used is deliberate and not accidental, filling up of the lacuna as perceived by a judicial interpretative process is impermissible. This was in reiteration of the proposition in Sree Balaji Nagar Residential Assn. v. State of T.N. [Sree Balaji Nagar Residential Assn. v. State of T.N., (2015) 3 SCC 353 : (2015) 2 SCC (Civ) 298] to the effect that casus omissus cannot be supplied by the court in situations where omissions otherwise noticed in a statute or in a provision thereof had been a conscious legislative intendment.”

30. Thus, conscious omission on the part of State Legislature would not provide fatal consequences like nature as envisaged under sub-section (6) of Section 4 of draft Model Tenancy Act, 2021, which makes manifestly clear that Legislature did not intend to deprive the landlord of his right to seek expedient eviction under Act of 2021.

31. The use of expression “shall” in sub-section (3) of Section 4 is only for the purpose of requiring landlord and tenant to submit the particulars of tenancy as envisaged under sub-section (3) of Section 4 only to serve as the conclusive proof of the fact relating to tenancy.

32. It caters to this limited purpose that Act of 2021 provides intimation about the tenancy to rent authority. In case where there is no dispute as to the landlord-tenant relationship, no mileage can be drawn out of the expression “shall” employed in sub-section (3) of Section 4 as well as its first proviso to intend that non-intimation by landlord would divest him of all the right under the Act of 2021.

33. Moreover, the said provision does not envisage a penal consequence vis-a-vis the landlord in case of failure to intimate the particulars of tenancy to rent authority, and thus, requirement of intimation by landlord as regards particulars of tenancy cannot be characterised as a mandatory requirement, despite the use of expression “shall” in sub-section (3) of Section 4 of the Act of 2021.

34. In Kailash vs. Nanhku, (2005) 4 SCC 480, Hon’ble Apex Court while dealing with question whether the provision is a mandatory or directory held that "language" alone is not always decisive. Regard must be given to the context, subject matter and the object of the provision. It further held that for ascertaining real intention of Legislature, the Court may consider the nature and design of the statute, and the consequences which would follow from construing it to the one way or the other; the impact of other provisions whereby the necessity of complying with the provisions in question is avoided; the circumstances namely that the statute provides for contingency of non-compliance with the provisions; fact that non-compliance with the provisions is or is not visited by some penalty; the serious or the trivial consequences, that flow therefrom; and above all, whether the object of the legislation will be defeated or furthered. If object of the enactment is defeated by holding the same directory, it will be construed as mandatory, whereas if by holding it mandatory serious general inconvenience will be created to innocent persons without very much furthering the object of enactment, the same will be construed as directory. Relevant paragraph 28 is reproduced hereunder:-

"28. All the rules of procedure are the handmaid of justice. The language employed by the draftsman of processual law may be liberal or stringent, but the fact remains that the object of prescribing procedure is to advance the cause of justice. In an adversarial system, no party should ordinarily be denied the opportunity of participating in the process of justice dispensation. Unless compelled by express and specific language of the statute, the provisions of CPC or any other procedural enactment ought not to be construed in a manner which would leave the court helpless to meet extraordinary situations in the ends of justice. The observations made by Krishna Iyer, J. in Sushil Kumar Sen v. State of Bihar¹⁰ are pertinent: (SCC p. 777, paras 5-6)

"The mortality of justice at the hands of law troubles a judge's conscience and points an angry interrogation at the law reformer.

The processual law so dominates in certain systems as to overpower substantive rights and substantial justice. The humanist rule that procedure should be the handmaid, not the mistress, of legal justice compels consideration of vesting a residuary power in judges to act ex debito justitiae where the tragic sequel otherwise would be wholly inequitable. Justice is the goal of jurisprudence much as substantive."

35. In Administrator, Municipal Committee Charkhi Dadri v. Ramji Lal Bagla AIR 1995 SC 2329 as well as in State of Bihar v. Bihar Rajya Bhumi Vikas Bank Samiti, (2018) 9 SCC 472, the Hon'ble Apex Court held that absence of provision for consequence in case of non-compliance with the requirements prescribed would indicate directory nature despite use of word "shall". Relevant paragraphs 14 and 18 respectively are extracted hereunder:-

"14. In our considered opinion, Section 44-A cannot be held to be mandatory in the sense that non-compliance with it leads to nullification of the acquisition which has already become final. Such non-compliance cannot also result in divesting of title of the trust nor is there any obligation to restore the unutilised portion(s) of land to its erstwhile owners/persons interested. The reasons are the following:

(a) The section while using the expression 'shall' does not provide the consequence of non-compliance with its requirement. One of the well-accepted tests for determining whether a provision is directory or mandatory is to see whether the enactment provides for the consequence flowing from non-compliance with the requirement prescribed. (State of U.P. v. Manbodhan Lal Srivastava. The proviso to Section 44-A empowers the Government to extend the said period. The proviso does not prescribe the outer limit beyond which extension cannot be granted. Nor does it indicate in any manner that the said power can be exercised by the Government only once and no more.

A question may then arise, why was the proviso put in at all? What is the purpose it seeks to achieve, if not to give a mandatory character to the requirement in the main limb of Section 44-A? Having regard to the totality of circumstances [including those mentioned under (b) and (c) occurring hereinafter] we are of the opinion that it appears to be a form of governmental control over those statutory bodies. If the trust does not execute the scheme within the period of five years — and the Government does not see sufficient reason to extend time therefore — the Government may take any of the steps contemplated by Chapter V-A, which chapter was introduced by the Haryana Legislature by the very same Amendment Act (17 of 1973) which introduced Section 44-A. Chapter V-A vests in the Deputy Commissioner the power of control over the trusts. Section 55-A empowers the Deputy Commissioner to call for information, statements, accounts and reports from the trusts and to enquire generally into their working and affairs. Section 55-B confers upon the Deputy Commissioner the power to suspend any resolution or order of the trust. More important, Section 55-C empowers the Deputy Commissioner to provide for performance of duties in case of default of the trust in performing its duties. Section 55-C reads as follows:

“55-C. Power to provide for performance of duties in case of default of trust. — (1) When the Deputy Commissioner after due enquiry, is satisfied that a trust has made default in performing any duty imposed on it by this Act, or by any order or rule made under this Act, he may, by an order in writing duly supported with reasons fix a period for the performance of the duty; and should it not be performed within the period so fixed, he may appoint some person to perform it, and may direct that the expenses thereof shall be paid, within such time as he may fix, by the Trust.

(2) Should the expense be not so paid, the Deputy Commissioner may make an order directing the person having the custody of the balance of the trust fund to pay the expense, or so much thereof, as may from time to time be possible, from that balance in priority to all other charges against the same.

The section is self-explanatory and needs no elaboration at our hands. Section 44-A has to be read and understood along with this section which means that the Deputy Commissioner will have to take action under Section 55-C, in case of the failure of the trust to execute the scheme within the period of five years. If the time is extended under the proviso and yet the trust fails to execute the scheme within the extended time, the Deputy Commissioner can — ought to — resort to Section 55-C.

Sections 55-D and 55-E make the acts and orders of the Deputy Commissioner subject to Government's order. It, therefore, cannot be said that Section 44-A or its proviso have no purpose behind them or that they are a mere surplusage.

(b) The more important and substantial reason, of course, is that Section 44-A does not provide expressly or by necessary implication that non-compliance therewith results in nullification of the acquisition or in the divesting of title of the trust or that on such non-compliance, the land acquired has to be restored to its erstwhile owners/claimants. It does not also provide, what should happen to the compensation already received by them. Evidently all these aspects could not have been left to be inferred. These are very vital matters and not matters of mere procedure. The divesting of title is a matter of substance and not a formality. So is the restoration of land, return of compensation received, interest, if any, to be paid on such returned amount, compensation for any development and improvements, if any, made on the land by the trust within the period aforesaid. Absence of any provision for the above matters, in our opinion, shows conclusively that the provision in Section 44-A is only directory notwithstanding the use of expression 'shall' therein. The said provision is meant to impress upon the trust and its authorities, the desirability of the time-frame within which the schemes should ordinarily be executed. But to construe the said admonition as leading to the consequences suggested by the respondents' counsel would amount not only to reading words into the section which are not there but to reading a whole lot of substantive and procedural provisions into it which the legislature has not thought fit to provide for. Acceptance of the contention urged by the learned counsel for the respondents would entail several complications and situations for which there is no provision in the Act. According to the learned counsel only the land which has not been utilised for the scheme is liable to be restored to its erstwhile owners, but not the land which has already been utilised. A question arises what is 'utilisation'? Suppose, a road is laid and other amenities provided but the construction of buildings contemplated by the scheme has not taken place. Is it a case of utilisation or not? It may also happen that the nature and character of the land has been changed after acquisition. If so, the question arises whether the land has to be restored to its original owners in the condition in which it was acquired or in the condition in which it is on the expiry of the prescribed period or in the condition in which it is at the time of restoration. What about refund of compensation already received by the erstwhile owners? Whether they are liable to pay any interest thereon or whether they are entitled to any damages for the deprivation for the period they have been kept out of possession? These are only a few problems which may arise and are mentioned only to emphasise that not providing for all these matters is a sure indication of the provision in Section 44-A not being mandatory in the sense it is sought to be understood by the respondents.

(c) Yet another feature to be noticed is the placement of the Section 44-A. It occurs in Chapter IV which provides for preparation and publication of the schemes under the Act. Chapter V speaks of powers and duties of the Trust where a scheme has been sanctioned and Chapter VI contains provisions relating to acquisition of land required for execution of the scheme and other incidental matters. If the legislature intended to say that failure to execute the scheme within the time prescribed in Section 44-A leads to nullification of acquisition with all the attendant consequences, the section should have found its place in Chapter VI — and with specific and clearer language.”

36. Somewhat similar view has been taken by the Karnataka High Court while considering provisions under the Karnataka Rent Act, 1999 requiring the execution of tenancy agreement and in case of failure of execution to intimate about the particulars to the rent authority as also the non-prescription of consequences qua the filing of application by landlord for the eviction of the tenant. In Sri Mohammed Aslam Khan vs. Sri Saravana Eswar P Kumar, House Rent Revision Petition No. 5 of 2021, the Court held as under:-

“6. It is the submission of learned counsel for the petitioners that the execution of an agreement or submission of the particulars about such tenancy before the prescribed authority is a condition precedent or sine quo non without which no relief could be granted to the landlord under the Rent Act, 1999. Referring to the term "Landlord" as defined under section 3(e) read with section 4 of the Rent Act, 1999, learned counsel would submit that in the absence of a written agreement of lease, the provisions of the Rent Act, 1999 cannot be invoked by the landlord to seek eviction of the tenant and therefore, the impugned order passed by the Small Causes Court, Bengaluru solely relying on the decision of the Rent Controller and the documents of title relating to the eviction petitioners cannot be sustained.

8. Insofar as the compliance of the requirements of section 4 of the Rent Act, 1999 is concerned, it is relevant to note that section 4 does not provide for any legal consequence for non filing of the a declaration by 'tenant' or 'landlord'. Failure to comply with the said requirement does not take the petition premises outside the purview of the Rent Act, 1999 nor does it take away the right of the landlord to seek eviction of the tenant on proof of the grounds enumerated in Section 27 of the Rent Act, 1999. In that view of the matter, the impugned order passed by the Small Causes court being in conformity with the provisions of Rent Act, 1999, does not warrant any interference by this Court. Viewed from another angle, the term "Landlord" is defined in section 3(e) of the Rent Act, 1999 as under:-

"Landlord" means a person who for the time being is receiving or is entitled to receive, the rent of any premises, whether on his own account or on account of or on behalf of or for the benefit of any other person or as a trustee, guardian or receiver for any other person or who would so receive the rent or to be entitled to receive the rent, if the premises were let to a tenant."

The term 'tenant' is defined in section 3(n) as under:-

"Tenant" means any person by whom or on whose account or behalf the rent of any premises, is or but for a special contract would be, payable and includes.-

(1) a subtenant;

(2) any person continuing in possession after the termination of his tenancy but does not include any person to whom a licence as defined in Section 52 of the Indian Easements Act, 1882 has been granted.

9. A plain reading of the above definitions indicate that a person qualifies to be a "landlord" as and when he is entitled to receive the rent in respect of the premises falling under the Rent Act, 1999.

10. Moreover in the instant case, the records of the previous proceedings between the parties clearly disclose that right from the inception, there was no dispute with regard to the jural relationship between the parties. Both the parties claim their right and title through their predecessors. The previous proceedings initiated by the ancestors of the petitioners/tenants clearly indicate that the predecessors of the petitioners has admitted to be the tenants in respect of the petition schedule premises under the predecessors of the eviction petitioners. Rent Act, 1999 does not require any attornment unlike the provisions of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882. Under section 5 of the Rent Act, 1999, the tenancy is heritable subject to the terms and conditions provided therein. Under the said circumstances, there being clear material as evidenced in Exs. P10, P11 and P12 to show that the petitioners were the tenants of the petition schedule premises, the contention urged by the petitioners that for want of lease agreement, the eviction ordered by the Small Cause Judge is without jurisdiction cannot be sustained. There being clear material to show that the premises in question is a residential premises fetching a rent of Rs. 1,500/- as determined under Section 7 of the Rent Act, 1999 and there being clear and cogent material to show that the petitioners are occupying the schedule premises as tenants in succession to late Alkar Mohammed Khan who was inducted as a tenant, in my view, the learned Small Causes Judge had jurisdiction to entertain the petition and to order eviction of the petitioners on satisfying of the grounds under section 27(2)(r) of the Rent Act, 1999. As such, I do not find any justifiable reason to interfere with the impugned order. Consequently, the petition falls and the same is liable to be dismissed."

37. The Constitution Bench of Hon'ble Apex Court in State of U.P. vs. Manbodhan Lal Srivastava, AIR 1957 SC 912, held that word "shall" in a statute, though generally taken in a mandatory sense, does not necessarily mean that in every case it shall have that effect, that is to say, that unless the words of the statute are punctiliously followed, the proceeding or the outcome of the proceeding, would be invalid. Relevant para 11 is extracted hereasunder:-

"11. An examination of the terms of Article 320 shows that the word "shall" appears in almost every paragraph and every clause or sub-clause of that article. If it were held that the provisions of Article 320(3)(c) are mandatory in terms, the other clauses or sub-clauses of that article, will have to be equally held to be mandatory. If they are so held, any appointments made to the public services of the Union or a State, without observing strictly, the terms of these sub-clauses in clause (3) of Article 320, would adversely affect the person so appointed to a public service, without any fault on his part and without his having any say in the matter. This result could not have been contemplated by the makers of the Constitution. Hence, the use of the word "shall" in a statute, though generally taken in a mandatory sense, does not necessarily mean that in every case it shall have that effect, that is to say, that unless the words of the statute are punctiliously followed, the proceeding or the outcome of the proceeding, would be invalid. On the other hand, it is not always correct to say that where the word "may" has been used, the statute is only permissive or directory in the sense that non-compliance with those provisions will not render the proceeding invalid. In that connection, the following quotation from Crawford on Statutory Construction — Article 261 at p. 516, is pertinent:

"The question as to whether a statute is mandatory or directory depends upon the intent of the legislature and not upon the language in which the intent is clothed. The meaning and intention of the legislature must govern, and these are to be ascertained, not only from the phraseology of the provision, but also by considering its nature, its design, and the consequences which would follow from construing it the one way or the other... ."

38. In another Constitution Bench of Apex Court in State of U.P. vs. Babu Ram Upadhyaya, AIR 1961 SC 751, the majority view was that when a statute uses the word "shall", prima facie, it is mandatory, but the Court may ascertain the real intention of the legislature by carefully attending to the whole scope of the statute.

"29. The relevant rules of interpretation may be briefly stated thus : When a statute uses the word "shall", prima facie, it is mandatory, but the Court may ascertain the real intention of the legislature by carefully attending to the whole scope of the statute. For ascertaining the real intention of the Legislature the Court may consider, inter alia, the nature and the design of the statute, and the consequences which would follow from construing it the one way or the other, the impact of other provisions whereby the necessity of complying with the provisions in question is avoided, the circumstance, namely, that the statute provides for a contingency of the non-compliance with the provisions, the fact that the non-compliance with the provisions is or is not visited by some penalty, the serious or trivial consequences that flow therefrom, and, above all, whether the object of the legislation will be defeated or furthered."

39. Another Constitution Bench of Apex Court in case of M/s. Sainik Motors, Jodhpur and others vs. State of Rajasthan, AIR 1961 SC 1480 also held that ordinarily though the word "shall" is mandatory, it can be interpreted as directory if context or intention otherwise demands.

40. It is thus clear that Act of 2021 unlike draft Model Tenancy Act provides for no penal consequences qua the failure of the landlord to intimate about the particulars of the tenancy to the Rent Authority, the requirement of intimation as envisaged under sub-section (3) of Section 4 of the Act of 2021, which is ordained by the expression "shall" must be held directory and consequent failure on part of the landlord to intimate about the particulars of the tenancy to the Rent Authority would not divest him of his rights to seek eviction on ground of personal need under the Act of 2021.

41. Chapter III of the Act of 2021 deals with rent. Section 8 provides for the rent payable in respect of the premise let out. While, Section 9 provides for the revision of rent. Sub-section (5) provides for the revision of rent in cases of tenancy which were entered prior to commencement of Act, and landlord by giving notice of 30 days, can ask for enhanced rate of rent as payable under sub-section (3) and the tenancy agreement would be deemed to be amended and enhanced rent shall be payable as rent payable under Section 8.

42. Proviso to sub-section (5) provides for the contingencies where no tenancy agreement was executed between the parties prior to the commencement of Act, the landlord and tenant may mutually agree to execute tenancy agreement for enhanced rate of rent, failing which rent authority shall determine the enhanced rent subject to the provision of Section 10. Thus, proviso to sub-section (5) of Section 9 envisages for a tenancy which is unwritten between the landlord and tenant prior to the commencement of Act and also no written agreement executed subsequent to the enactment.

43. The entire thrust of the enactment is the relationship between the landlord and tenant in respect of the premises let out though the Act mandates for written agreement in respect of the premises let out post enactment. While, it visualises two situations for tenancy which is in existence prior to the commencement of Act.

44. Chapter V provides for the protection for tenant against the eviction and recovery of possession of premises by landlord. Section 21(1) deals with protection of tenant against eviction. While sub-section (2) provides for rent authority to pass an order for eviction and recovery of possession on application made by the landlord on the ground provided from (a) to (m). Chapter VI deals with rent authority, rent tribunal, their power and appeal.

45. Chapter VII provides misc. provisions and Section 38 is of great relevance, which bars jurisdiction of Civil Court in respect of certain matter. The said provision is extracted hereas under:-

“38. (1) The Rent Court shall, on an application filed by any party, execute an order of a Rent Court or a Rent Tribunal or any other order made under this Act, in such manner as may be prescribed, by-

(a) delivering possession of the premises to the person in whose favour the decision has been made; or

(b) attaching one or more bank accounts of the opposite party for the purpose of recovering the amount specified in such order; or

(c) appointing any advocate or any other competent person including officers of the Rent Court or local administration or local body for the execution of such order.

(2) The Rent Court may take the help from the Local Government or local body or the local police for the execution of the final orders:

Provided that no applicant shall obtain police help unless he pays such costs as may be decided by the Rent Court.

(3) The Rent Court shall conduct the execution proceedings, in relation to its order or an order of a Rent Tribunal or any other order passed under this Act, in a summary manner and dispose of the application for execution made under this section within a period of thirty days from the date of service of notice on opposite party.”

46. Sub-section (1) provides that no Civil Court shall entertain any proceedings insofar as it relates to the provisions of Act, while sub-section (2) provides for the jurisdiction of rent authority to tenancy agreement submitted to it as specified in first schedule and not to dwell into question of title or ownership of the premises.

47. Section 38 is not a provision which confers jurisdiction, rather it limits the jurisdiction of rent authority to decide such disputes as may have arisen between the landlord and tenant under the tenancy agreement submitted to it. It is clearly evident that provision limits jurisdiction of rent authority and not confers any jurisdiction.

48. Sub-section (2) of Section 38 does not provide that rent authority shall exercise its jurisdiction in cases where there may be no tenancy agreement executed between the parties, but intimation in this regard has been given by both the landlord and tenant or the landlord alone.

49. Sub-section (1) and (2) of Section 4 deals with new tenancy created after Act of 2021, while sub-section (3) deals with old tenancy which includes written and unwritten agreements. Proviso to sub-section (3) provides that in case of failure to jointly place the tenancy agreement or failed to reach an agreement, the landlord and tenant shall separately file particulars with the rent authority in form specified in first schedule.

50. In case landlord and tenant failed to enter into written tenancy agreement, but both of them submit particulars of tenancy agreement with rent authority, it would still be a case where there would be no tenancy agreement governing relationship between the landlord and tenant.

51. Moreover, proviso to sub-section (1) of Section 4 provides that in case of residential tenancy of less than 12 months, there shall be no requirement on the part of the landlord and tenant to inform rent authority about the tenancy, meaning thereby that with respect to such tenancy, parties have not executed tenancy agreement.

52. Dispute between such classes of landlord and tenant who are not governed by written agreement may still arise with respect to eviction which are specifically envisaged under the Act to be addressed by rent authority.

53. Thus, sub-section (2) of Section 38 is not a provision conferring jurisdiction, but rather is a provision that circumscribes the jurisdiction of rent authority proscribing it to not venture into adjudication of dispute of title or ownership and keeping itself to be convenient to the dispute that may arise under the tenancy agreement. Sub-section (2) of Section 38 therefore does not make jurisdiction of rent authority dependent upon execution of tenancy agreement. It shall however have jurisdiction of such tenancies also where no tenancy agreement is entered between the parties, but are still covered under the Act of 2021.

54. As tenancy agreement contains host of conditions governing the relationship between landlord and tenant. It may consist of provisions like the responsibility on either parties to pay Municipal taxes, time within which the rent would be payable, interest on delayed payment of rent, time at which the tenant should enter the premise, the maximum number of persons he may keep along with him, and so and so forth. With different conditions being envisaged under the tenancy agreement, it is obvious that disputes relating to such conditions would also arise warranting its remedy.

55. All that sub-section (2) of Section 38 does is that it sets the contours within which the disputes arising between the landlord and the tenant is to be decided. In doing so, the rent authority would keep itself confined to the tenancy agreement and would not transgress to the issue touching the title and ownership.

56. Once the parties to the dispute are falling within the definition of landlord and tenant and there is no dispute to the said relationship, and once there is legislative intendment in omitting prescription of fatal consequence of divesting of rights of the landlord under the Act in case of his failure to intimate about the particulars of tenancy, the legislative purpose of which otherwise is to conclusively establish the relationship of landlord and tenant and once there is no provision that makes the jurisdiction of the tribunal dependent upon information being furnished by the landlord in case of non-execution, it logically follows that in situation of non-execution of tenancy agreement, filing of particulars of tenancy by the landlord with the rent authority is not a sine qua non for maintaining an Application for release of the tenant under Section 21(2) of the Act of 2021.

57. The issue in hand was placed before this Court due to different views being taken by the courts below in respect of non execution of written agreement between the landlord and tenant, and proceedings being initiated before the rent authority under the Act of 2021. Rent authorities are relying and interpreting the orders passed by the coordinate Benches of this Court as per their convenience which is leading to filing of petitions on large numbers before this Court on daily basis.

58. A coordinate Bench of this Court, for the first time, in case of Amit Gupta vs. Gulab Chandra Kanodia, 2023 (10) ADJ 23, had the occasion to consider two questions posed before it as to the maintainability of small cause suit (SCC) already instituted prior to enactment of the Act of 2021 and also the SCC revision arising therefrom. The second question raised was whether the bar created under Section 38 of the Act of 2021 is an absolute bar or not and SCC suit for arrears of recovery of rent and eviction would still be maintainable. The Court framed two legal questions for consideration which are as under:-

"(a). Whether a Small Cause Suit already instituted, since prior to coming into force of the new Tenancy Act, 2021 and so also such SCC revision arising therefrom would stand saved or the SCC suit and SCC Revision being not mentioned in the repeal and saving clause of Section 46, the proceedings of such suit and revision would stand abated; and

(b). Whether the bar created under Section 38 of the Tenancy Act is not an absolute one and so Small Cause Suit for arrears of recovery of Rent and Eviction (SCC Suit) and SCC Revision arising therefrom would still be maintainable even after the enforcement of the New Tenancy Act, 2021 qua the of tenancies not covered by tenancy agreements provided for under Tenancy Act, 2021."

59. While deciding question (a) the coordinate Bench not only examined the provisions of the Act of 2021 but also the Act of 1887 and the Transfer of Property Act, 1882 and held as under;

"79. Looking at and examining all the provisions of the new Tenancy Act, 2021, I find that in the entire regime of the Act the written tenancy agreement has been made the only recognized mode of tenancy except for eleven months tenancy and even the old tenancies are made to survive but for written agreement. The Legislature in its wisdom seems to have given go by to unwritten tenancy agreements but no mechanism was laid down to meet claims arising out of such tenancy, possibly because the SCC suits were taken to be still maintainable as Amendment Act, 1972 was already in force. Thus by no cannon of construction Section 38 and 42 can be taken to have made SCC suits not maintainable any further more even in respect of unwritten existing tenancies.

80. While it is true that finding a defect in an enactment a judge should not sit back to find fault with the draftsman and should endeavour for an interpretation to find real intention of the Parliament but then he can not do violence to a provision in the zeal of achieving a law by substituting words or placing words in between the words, moreso when issue is of legislative competence. It was rightly held "we can not aid the Legislature's defective phrasing of an Act, we cannot add or mend and, by construction make up deficiencies which are left there (Crawford v. Spooner

(1846) Moore PC 1 pp 8,9)". "It is contrary to all rules of construction to read words into an Act unless it is absolutely necessary to do so (Renula Bose (Smt.) v. Rai Manmathnath Bose, AIR 1945 PC 108, p.110). Similarly it is wrong and dangerous to proceed by substituting some other words for words of the statute (Pinner v. Everett, (1969) 3 All ER 257, p. 259) Speaking briefly the court cannot reframe the legislation for the very good reason that it has no power to legislate (State of Kerala v. Mathai Verghese, (1986) 4 SCC 746. (Statutory Interpretation by Justice G.P.Singh, 14th Edition pp 68,69)

81. So entire scheme of the new Tenancy Act if is minutely scrutinised, the legislative intent appears to be to enact a comprehensive law embracing every aspect of tenancy law relating to urban buildings viz a viz tenant-landlord relationship referable to entry 18 of the state list of the VIIth schedule of the constitution. However, still certain grey areas have remained unattended and in my view willingly by the lawmakers looking to the existing central enactments.

82. This above view of mine is for rule of harmonious construction in interpreting the provisions of the new Tenancy Act 2021, Amendment Act, 1972 and Transfer of Property Act 1882. The courts while they examine scope and ambit of an enactment must assume that lawmakers have surely held deliberations while enacting law covering a particular field and so also must have given due consideration to the existing law touching the field and if still some areas have been left untouched, the legislative intent to permit interplay of existing law not expressly repealed, must be assumed. This assumption is based on sound principle that wisdom of Parliament is unquestionable and all that courts do is to interpret a provision in synthesis with the other to draw a meaning in context with the object with which the law is enacted. Any interpretation that makes a provision redundant or any over zealous approach to place in a word so as to enlarge the scope of a provision, would amount to substituting court's wisdom to that of law makers and that must be avoided. Courts interpret provisions of an Act to ensure that objectivity with which such law must have been enacted, is not lost and any effort of court beyond that would be intruding the field of legislation which is definitely beyond the competence of law courts.

83. In the present case the literal constructions leads to no apparent absurdity and therefore, there can be no compelling reason for departing from that golden rule of construction.

84. Thus to sum up on first question "(a)", I hold that pending SCC suits and SCC revisions on the date of enforcement of the new Tenancy Act, 2021, shall not abate notwithstanding the provisions as contained under Section 42 of the New Tenancy Act, 2021 as no such intendment can be drawn inasmuch as, Section 6 of General Clauses Act would apply. Still further SCC suits would stand saved as where conceived of under old Rent Control Act, proceedings whereof have been saved under sub section 2 of Section 46 of the new Tenancy Act, 2021."

60. Further, while deciding the question (b), the Court held as under;

"96. In earlier part of this judgment, I have already referred to scope and ambit of the provisions of the new

Tenancy Act, 2021 with reference to individual sections therein and I have also discussed the tenancy agreement referable to Section 4 of the new Act. During discussion in respect of point no. (a) above, I found, while 11 months unwritten agreement tenancy was conceived under the new Act but the remedial aspects so as to enable land lord to seek eviction of tenant had not been touched by the legislature. Section 38(2) defines jurisdiction of Rent Authority and limits it to dispute relating to tenancy agreement submitted to it as specified in the first schedule. First schedule agreements are there that create tenancy after new Tenancy Act has come into existence and also the written tenancy agreements that were in existence when the new Act came into force, provided such agreements were submitted to the Rent Authority as per Section 4(3) of the new Act. The word "tenant" though includes old tenant at the time of enforcement of the new Act vide Section 2(j) but only for agreement in writing as per Rule 4 (3) and if there is no agreement in writing as per Rule 4(3), such tenant can be evicted only in one condition that is where land lord has submitted details as per first schedule but tenant has failed to discharge his part of obligation vide proviso to Section 4(3) of the new Tenancy Act. However, if land lord also fails and so also the tenant to comply with Section 4(3), no eviction of tenant has been provided for.

97. Thus the tenant has a narrow escape as noticed above and that is sufficient for him but the land lord cannot be left remediless. So if section 21 of the new Tenancy Act is found to be unworkable, a SCC suit would be the only remedy available. Section 21(2)(j) which provides for land lord to apply for eviction

"where the tenancy stands determined by efflux of time" would be referable to such tenancy that are by written agreements and such agreements expired or 11 months unwritten agreement tenancy and would not apply to tenancies, not conceptualized under Section 4 but are in existence.

103. Upon bare reading of the above provisions, I find that Transfer of Property Act No. 1882 defines lease vide Section 105 and refers to duration of lease, rights and obligations vide Section 106 and 108, but both these Sections save contracts, operation of local law and usage. Section 107 provides how lease could be made. It refers to oral agreement if accompanied by delivery of possession, such contracts once stand saved under Section 107, in my considered view would not be rendered bad just for there being no agreement in writing and so right and obligation under Section 108 would be enforceable .

104. Entry 18 of the State list provides for States to make law related to land tenures including relationship of landlord and tenant. This being subject matter in the State list and it is the State that enacts laws relating to that, it would not be said to be in conflict with any power of Central Legislature but of course in the areas not covered under the Central Act.

105. The new Tenancy Act, 2021 having not covered the unwritten tenancies and rights and obligations in respect thereof, the existing law under the Transfer of Property Act, 1882 and the forum of SCC Suits, even in respect of buildings situate in areas covered under the Tenancy Act, 2021, therefore shall apply.

106. In my considered view when entry 18 of the State list provides for the State to enact law in matters of land tenure including land lord - tenants relationship, this power is exclusive to that extent, moreso in the face of the fact that contracts, local laws and usages have been saved under Section 105 and 108 of Transfer of Property Act in matters of Rent leases/ agreements. The Transfer of Property Act is pre-constitutional law saved under Article 272 and so power of State under entry 18 of the State list stands only protected to the extent of consistency. However, the areas of rent agreement that are left untouched in the State enactment, the Central Act would continue to prevail as per the constitutional scheme.

107. To sum up on question "(b)" I am of the view and so hold that Small Cause Suits would still be maintainable in cases of tenancies not covered under Section 4 and relating to rights accrued, if any under the Transfer Property Act, 1882 where a tenancy is unwritten, and a tenancy is on month to month basis. Overriding effect of Section 42 will give way to the Central Act, and there could be no doubt about that if the Central Act has occupied the field to certain extent."

61. Thus, both the questions, so framed, were answered holding that though there was no written agreement between the parties, the suit instituted before the Judge, Small Cause Court, would be maintainable in view of the Central Act and the proceedings would not abate.

62. Another coordinate Bench of this Court in case of Alok Gupta vs. District Judge/Rent Tribunal and others, 2024 0 Supreme (All) 360, while dealing with bunch of matters where there were no written agreement executed between the parties and proceedings were initiated under Section 21 (2) of the Act of 2021, held that no information was required under Section 4 and the proceedings were maintainable and held as under;

"23. A conjoint reading of the various sub-sections of Section 4 of the Act reveals that the intention of legislature for requiring both the landlord and the tenant to inform to the Rent Authority in the form specified in the First Schedule within a certain time frame is to treat the information as conclusive proof of the facts relating to the tenancy and matters connected with it. It does not appear to be the sine qua non for maintaining an application under Section 21 (2) of the Act. Where the tenancy is admitted, in the opinion of the Court, no such information as contemplated under Section 4 of the Act is warranted. Where the tenancy or its terms are disputed, it is always open for the parties to adduce evidence in support of their respective cases before the respective authorities."

63. The same coordinate Bench, thereafter, in case of Amarjeet Singh vs. Smt. Shiv Kumari Yadav, 2024 (4) ADJ 380, when faced with the similar question, held that Section 4 (7) of the Act of 2021 permit for initiating proceedings under Section 21 (2) in case the information is not supplied by the landlord or the tenant, which is not a sine qua non, the Court held as under;

"13. I have gone through the observation made by the co-ordinate Bench in the decision cited by Ms. Shalini Goel. In the case cited, the issue before the Court were:-

"(a). Whether a Small Cause Suit already instituted, since prior to coming into force of the new Tenancy Act, 2021 and so also such SCC revision arising therefrom would stand saved or the SCC suit and SCC Revision being not mentioned in the repeal and saving clause of Section 46, the proceedings of such suit and revision would stand abated; and

(b). Whether the bar created under Section 38 of the Tenancy Act is not an absolute one and so Small Cause Suit for arrears of recovery of Rent and Eviction (SCC Suit) and SCC Revision arising therefrom would still be maintainable even after the enforcement of the New Tenancy Act, 2021 qua the of tenancies not covered by tenancy agreements provided for under Tenancy Act, 2021."

14. The issued urged in this petition is as to whether information to the Rent Authority in form specified in the First Schedule by the landlord is a sine qua non for maintaining an application under Section 21 (2) of the Act. The observation made by the co-ordinate Bench reproduced hereinabove does not help the petitioner inasmuch as, it ignores the import of Section 4 (7) of the Act. The import of the Section 4 has been explained in the preceding paras of this order."

64. Another coordinate Bench of this Court in case of Vishal Rastogi vs. Rent Controller/Additional District Magistrate (Judicial) And Another, 2025 (168) ALR 473, took a similar view and held as under;

"35. So a tenancy agreement can be in writing or oral, and there is no express Provision in the U.P. Act No.16 of 2021 or it follows by necessary implication by reading the Provision of U.P. Act No.16 of 2021 that it excludes and does not recognize oral tenancy agreement between the parties.

36. The expression 'tenancy agreement' submitted to it as specified in the First Schedule in Section 38(2) of U.P. Act No.16 of 2021 must be construed to include the oral tenancy agreement and does not oust the jurisdiction of the Rent Authority if the tenancy agreement has not been reduced into writing and there is an oral tenancy agreement between the parties. The jurisdiction of Rent Authority is not barred to decide the application of landlord for eviction even in cases where the landlord or tenant failed to reach an agreement and particulars of the tenancy has not been submitted either by the landlord or by the tenant.

37. Thus, it can be safely said that the legislature by incorporating term "tenancy agreement submitted to it as specified in the First Schedule" Section 38(2) of the U.P. Act No.16 of 2021 did not bar the jurisdiction of the Rent Authority to entertain the application under Section 21(2) of the U.P. Act No.16 of 2021 in case information specified in the Schedule-I relating to tenancy agreement has not been submitted to the Rent Authority. Therefore, this Court is of the view that the Rent Authority is vested with the jurisdiction to consider the application under Section 21 even in cases where no intimation as specified in the Schedule-I in respect to tenancy agreement is given to the Rent Authority as there is no tenancy agreement between the landlord or the tenant.

38. The only rider or limitation on the power of the Rent Authority is that it cannot enter into the question of title or ownership of the premises and its jurisdiction is limited only to the extent of determination of the rights of the parties in relation to tenant and landlord. Therefore, this Court is of the view that the submissions advanced by the learned counsel for the petitioner is devoid of merit."

65. It appears that in a subsequent dispute in case of Raman Arora vs. Susheel Kumar (Deceased) and others, SCC Revision No. 95 of 2023, decided on 23.1.2025, the counsel for the revisionist had placed reliance on the decision rendered in case of Amarjeet Singh (supra), while the respondent had relied upon the decision rendered in case of Amit Gupta (supra). From the reading of the judgment, it appears that the counsel for the respondent had given impression to the Court that after the decision in case of Amit Gupta (supra) the matter should have been referred to Larger Bench, while dealing the case of Amarjeet Singh (supra), the coordinate Bench proceeded to observe about the binding precedent and the propriety demanded the matter to be referred to Larger Bench. However, the Court in the said case proceeded to set aside the order passed by the court below regarding the applicability of the Act of 2021 and held the SCC suit to be maintainable.

66. Sri Vishnu Gupta, learned Senior Counsel, Ms. Shreya Gupta, Sri Narendra Kumar Chaturvedi and Sri Kunal Shah, learned counsels appearing in connected matters, submitted that there was no overlapping in the judgments of coordinate Benches of this Court, nor there was any conflict in the judgment of Amit Gupta (supra), Amarjeet Singh (supra), Vishal

Rastogi (supra) and Raman Arora (supra). According to them, the question posed before the Court in Amit Gupta's case was entirely different to the issue decided by the coordinate Bench in case of Alok Gupta (supra) and Amarjeet Singh (supra).

67. The question as to the applicability of the Act of 2021 in case of unwritten agreement and non supply of information by the landlord or the tenant to the rent authority would not outcast the proceedings at the behest of a landlord, was the issue in case of Alok Gupta (supra) and Amarjeet Singh (supra). While the question answered by the Court in case of Amit Gupta (supra) was to the maintainability of SCC suit under the Act of 1887 and proceedings not to abate after the enforcement of the Act of 2021.

68. In case of Amit Gupta (supra) the Court had taken into note the unwritten agreement and non supply of information by the parties as provided under Section 4 (3) but the issue was not decided as to whether proceedings before the rent authority was maintainable by a landlord in case of non execution of the document between the parties and its information.

69. There is no conflict between two judgments which could be referred to a Larger Bench as has been suggested by Sri P.K. Jain, learned Senior Counsel, appearing in one of the matter on behalf of tenant. The judgments of coordinate Benches, placed before this Court, dealt and operate in different areas, as the Act of 2021 was enforced on 24.8.2021 w.e.f. 11.1.2021. Matters have come before this Court in regard to certain provisions for clarification especially as to the applicability of the Act of 2021 and proceedings pending before the courts below prior to the enactment. Coordinate Benches have only clarified as to the saving and repeal clause and also the jurisdiction in case of dispute. In case of Amit Gupta (supra), His Lordship had observed in paragraph no. 81 that "still certain grey areas have remained unattended". Thus, submission made that it decided lis as to unwritten agreement cannot be accepted.

70. The judgment rendered by coordinate Bench in case of Alok Gupta (supra) was challenged before the Apex Court in case of Ankit Nanda vs. Anjali Gupta, Special Leave to Appeal (C) No. 10671 of 2024, which was dismissed on 13.5.2024, confirming the said order. Thus, I find that there is no conflict or overlapping in the judgments rendered by coordinate Benches of this Court and the matter does not need to be referred to Larger Bench for consideration.

71. In case of Balaji Vs. Principal Secretary and others, Writ Petition No. 3985 and 7400 of 2020, the Division Bench of Madras High Court had the occasion to consider the constitutional validity of the Tamil Nadu Regulation of Rights and Responsibilities of Landlords and Tenants Act, 2017. The Court, after hearing the counsel for the parties, framed the questions for consideration which are as under;

"(1) Whether the legislative power of the impugned enactment in pith and substance is traceable to Entry-18 of the State List or to Entries 6,7 and 13 of the Concurrent list?

(2) Whether the impugned enactment is repugnant to the Central legislations viz., the Transfer of Property Act, 1882 (Act 4 of 1882); the Specific Relief Act, 1963 (Act 37 of 1963) and the Registration Act, 1908 (Act 16 of 1908), Hindu Succession Act, 1984 etc.?

(3) Whether the provisions of the impugned enactment are unconstitutional on the grounds of manifest arbitrariness and for violation of the fundamental rights under Articles 14, 19 and 21 of the Constitution of India?

(4) To what other reliefs, the parties are entitled to?"

72. While answering the question no. (1) as to whether the enactment is traceable to Entry-18 of the State List or to Entries 6, 7 and 13 of the Concurrent List of VIIIth Schedule of the Constitution of India, the Court relied upon the judgment of Constitutional Bench of Apex Court in case of Indu Bhusan Bose vs. Rama Sundari Debi, 1969 (2) SCC 289, wherein the Apex Court had opined that the expression 'land tenure' in Entry 18 of List II would not cover the tenancy of building or of house accommodation and would only relate to vacant lands and the law governing the tenancy and leases of buildings would be within the scope of Entries 6, 7 and 13 of List III. Relevant paragraph no. 13 of the said judgment is extracted hereasunder;

"13. On behalf of the appellant, reliance was placed on some decisions of some of the High Courts in support of the proposition that the power of Parliament under Entry 3 of List I does not extend to regulating the relationship between landlord and tenant which power vests in the State Legislature under Entry 18 of List II. The first of these cases is A.C. Patel v. Vishwanath Chada [ILR 1954 Bom 434] where the Bombay High Court was dealing with Entry 2 of List I of the Seventh Schedule to the Government of India Act, 1935 and Entry 21 of List II of that Act. The Court was concerned with the applicability of the Bombay Rent Restriction Act No. 57 of 1947 to cantonment areas. Opinion was first expressed that the Rent Restriction Act had been passed by the Provincial Legislature under Entry 21 of List II and reliance was placed on the English interpretation Act to hold that land in that entry would include buildings so as to confer jurisdiction on the Provincial Legislature to legislate in respect of house accommodation. Then, in considering the effect of Act 57 of 1947, the Court said:

"As the preamble of the Act sets out, the Act was passed with a view to the control of rents and repairs of certain premises, of rates of hotels and lodging houses, and of evictions. Therefore, the pith and substance of Act 57 of 1947, is to regulate the relation between landlord and tenant by controlling rents which the tenant has got to pay to the landlord and by controlling the right of the landlord to evict his tenant. Can it be said that when the Provincial Legislature was dealing with these relations between landlord and tenant, it was regulating house accommodation in cantonment areas? In our opinion, the regulation contemplated by Entry 2 in List I is regulation by the State or by Government. Requisitioning of property, acquiring of property allocation of property, all that would be regulation of house accommodation, but when the Legislature merely deals with relations of landlord and tenant, it is not in any way legislating with regard to house accommodation. The house accommodation remains the same, but the tenant is protected quoa his landlord."

73. The said view was reiterated by the Apex Court in case of Accountant and

Secretarial Services Pvt. Ltd. and another Vs. Union of India, 1988 (4) SCC 324. Another Constitution Bench of Supreme Court in case of Ashoka Marketing Ltd. and others Vs. Punjab National Bank and another, 1990 (4) SCC 406 held that rent control legislation enacted by the State Legislatures would fall within the ambit of Entries 6, 7 and 13 of List III of the VIIth Schedule of the Constitution of India. Relevant paragraph no. 46 of the said judgment is extracted hereasunder:-

“46. As regards rent control legislation enacted by the State legislatures the position is well settled that such legislation falls within the ambit of Entries 6, 7 and 13 of List III of the Seventh Schedule to the Constitution (See : Indu Bhushan Bose v. Rama Sundari Devi [(1969) 2 SCC 289 : (1970) 1 SCR 443] ; V. Dhanpal Chettiar case [(1979) 4 SCC 214 : (1980) 1 SCR 334] ; Jai Singh Jairam Tyagi v. Mamanchand Ratilal Agarwal [(1980) 3 SCC 162 : (1980) 3 SCR 224] and Accountant and Secretarial Services Pvt. Ltd. v. Union of India [(1988) 4 SCC 324].”

74. In case of Rajendra Diwan Vs. Pradeep Kumar Ranibala, 2019 (2) SCC 143 a Constitution Bench of the Apex Court while considering the validity of Section 13 (2) of the Chhattisgarh Rent Control Act, 2011 held that Entry 18 of the State List enables the State Legislature to enact the said law, however, both the Constitutional Bench judgments rendered in cases of Indu Bhushan Bose (supra) and Ashoka Marketing (supra) were not brought to the notice of the Court while deciding the said case. The Constitutional Bench of the Apex Court in case of Shah Faesal and others vs. Union of India and another, 2020 (4) SCC 1 while considering the importance of law of precedents, elucidated the nature of a binding precedent and held as under:-

“25. In this line, further enquiry requires us to examine, to what extent does a ruling of coordinate Bench bind the subsequent Bench. A judgment of this Court can be distinguished into two parts : ratio decidendi and the obiter dictum. The ratio is the basic essence of the judgment, and the same must be understood in the context of the relevant facts of the case. The principal difference between the ratio of a case, and the obiter, has been elucidated by a three-Judge Bench decision of this Court in Union of India v. Dhanwanti Devi [Union of India v. Dhanwanti Devi, (1996) 6 SCC 44] wherein this Court held that : (SCC pp. 51-52, para 9 Judge while giving judgment that constitutes a precedent. The only thing in a Judge's decision binding a party is the principle upon which the case is decided and for this reason it is important to analyse a decision and isolate from it the ratio decidendi. ... A decision is only an authority for what it actually decides. ... The concrete decision alone is binding between the parties to it, but it is the abstract ratio decidendi, ascertained on a consideration of the judgment in relation to the subject-matter of the decision, which alone has the force of law and which, when it is clear what it was, is binding. It is only the principle laid down in the judgment that is binding law under Article 141 of the Constitution.”

75. Recently, in case of Ram Krishan Grover and others Vs. Union of India and others, 2020 (12) SCC 506, the Apex Court reiterated the position taken in case of Ashoka Marketing (supra) and held that the powers would traceable only to

Entries 6, 7 and 13 of the Concurrent List and the expression 'land' in Entry 18 cannot be read to mean the building and housing within its ambit. The relevant paragraph no.28 is extracted as under:-

“28. In Accountant & Secretarial Services (P) Ltd. v. Union of India [Accountant & Secretarial Services (P) Ltd. v. Union of India, (1988) 4 SCC 324] , this Court had examined the question of repugnancy and interplay between the Central enactment viz. the Public Premises (Eviction of Unauthorised Occupants) Act, 1971 based on the pattern of the West Bengal Public Land (Eviction of Unauthorised Occupants) Act, 1962 and the West Bengal Premises Tenancy Act, 1956 and the question which of these enactments would prevail. The Court had interpreted Entries 3, 32, 43 and 44 of List I, Entry 18 of List II and Entries 5, 6 and 7 of the List III and the corresponding entries in the Government of India Act, 1935 to hold that all the three legislations were passed in exercise of powers conferred with respect to matters contained in the Concurrent List. In view of the repugnancy and conflict between the Central enactment on one hand and the State law on the other, in terms of Article 254, the Central enactment shall prevail. Further, notwithstanding the earlier precedents, the Court had examined the question of the relevant entry applicable to the tenancy legislation and rejected the contention that Entry 18 of List II should be interpreted as encompassing within its ambit legislation on the relationship of landlord and tenant in regard to housing and buildings. Setting out several reasons it was observed that the power to legislate in respect of tenanted premises would fall within the ambit and scope of Entries 6, 7 and 13 of the Concurrent List and would not be referable to Entry 18 of List II. The expression “land” in Entry 18 of List II should be given as wide a construction as possible, but has to be read with the relevant entries in other Lists to give meaning and content to all of them. Inclusion of buildings and housing in the Concurrent List is appropriate and to place buildings and housing within the ambit of the expression “land” in Entry 18 of List II would denude other entries in Lists I and III concerning transfer of property, devolution and succession of land and buildings, etc. of their vigour and would render them otiose.”

76. The Madras High Court in case of Balaji (supra), relying upon the judgment of Constitutional Bench of Apex Court, proceeded to answer the first question and held as under;

"11.14. Thus, we answer the question that the legislative power of the state in enacting the impugned legislation, in pith and substance, is traceable to Entries 6,7 and 13 of List-III of the Seventh Schedule of the Constitution of India."

77. While dealing with the second question the Madras High Court held as under;

"18. Thus, we hold that the impugned enactment is not repugnant to any of the provisions of the Central Legislations as contended and operates in its field and as stated supra and we had already read down Sections 4 and 4-A to operate only for the purposes of this Act and not beyond."

78. Thus, dealing with the questions posed under the Tamil Nadu Rent Control Act, the Division Bench had taken a clear view that the legislative power of the State in enacting the legislations in respect of rent control matters, in pith and substance is traceable to Entries 6, 7, 13 of List III of the VIIth Schedule of the Constitution of India. Simultaneously, it also held that the State Rent Control Act was not repugnant to any of the provisions of the Central Act such as the Transfer of Property Act, Specific Relief Act, Registration Act, Hindu Succession Act etc. as it operates in its field.

79. Now, I proceed to take up the matters individually.

Matters under Article 227 No. 624 of 2024

80. In the instant case, on 18.05.2013, a registered lease deed was executed between the landlord and petitioner (tenant) for letting the premises at Plot No. 2, Carpet Area 1125 square feet, ground floor at VPO-Farah, Tehsil & District, Mathura for a period of 20 years w.e.f. 01.12.2012 to 31.11.2032, at a monthly rent of Rs.15,000/- for first 10 years and, thereafter, Rs.18,000/- per month for next 10 years. On 31.05.2022, the landlord filed S.C.C. Suit No. 9 of 2022 for ejectment and arrears of rent. In the plaint, it was alleged that material alteration has been done by tenant and further there was default of rent. On 19.10.2022, tenant denying the plaint allegation filed his written statement. A replication was filed by landlord on 11.05.2023. The petitioner on 28.07.2023 filed an application under Order VII Rule 11(d) of Code of Civil Procedure (CPC) on the ground that after the enforcement of the Act of 2021, the suit stood barred by Section 38. The application was opposed by landlord who filed his reply. The court below on 02.12.2023 rejected the application. The order rejecting the application of tenant is under challenge in the instant writ petition.

Writ Petition No. 5714 of 2024

81. In this case, petitioner is landlord of shop bearing Municipal No. 132-A, Civil Lines near Chowki Crossing, Bareilly. Respondents are tenant at monthly rent of Rs.400/- plus taxes since 1984. As default in rent was committed, a notice was given by landlord for payment of rent and vacating the premises. As notice remained unreplyed, proceeding for eviction was initiated under the Act of 2021 which was registered as Application No. 1127 of 2022. The rent authority allowed the application and passed order for eviction and arrears of rent on 23.06.2023. The tenant-respondent filed appeal before rent tribunal which was registered as Rent Appeal No. 60 of 2023. The rent tribunal allowed the appeal vide judgment impugned dated 18.01.2024 and held that proceeding before rent authority was not maintainable under the Act of 2021 as there was no written agreement as per Section 4(3). Hence, this writ petition.

Writ Petition No. 6623 of 2024

82. This writ petition has been preferred by owner/landlord of shop bearing Municipal No. 127 situated at Civil Lines, Chaupala-Ayyub Khan Chauraha Road, near Hanuman Mandir, Bareilly. The shop in question was let out to respondent-tenant on 12.11.2009 at monthly rent of Rs.1440/-. Since petitioner retired from service on 31.07.2021, he wanted the shop to be vacated for running his own business. A notice was served upon respondent-tenant who denied the bona fide need of landlord. A release application under Section 21 and 22 of the Act of 2021 was filed before rent authority which was registered as Application No. 509 of 2022. Proceedings were contested by respondent-tenant. The application was allowed by rent authority on 31.05.2023, against which an appeal under Section 35 of the Act was preferred being Rent Control Appeal No. 54 of 2023. By the judgment impugned dated 25.01.2024, the rent tribunal had allowed the appeal and set aside the order of rent authority. Hence, the present writ petition.

Writ Petition No. 5411 of 2024

83. This is tenant's petition. The dispute relates to shop situated in House No. 6/212, Mohalla Dakhnai Gate, Taj Ganj, Agra. According to petitioner, the rate of rent is Rs.600/- per month and an application under Section 21(2)(m) of the Act of 2021 was filed by respondent-landlord on the ground that after retiring from Government job, he wants to start his medical practice from the shop in question. The application of landlord was dismissed on 08.11.2023 against which an appeal under Section 35 of the Act was filed before rent tribunal which has been allowed on 16.03.2024. Hence, the present petition.

Writ Petition No. 5413 of 2024

84. This is also tenant's petition. The dispute relates to shop situated in House No. 6/212, Mohalla Dakhnai Gate, Taj Ganj, Agra. According to petitioner, the rate of rent is Rs.1500/- per month and an application under Section 21(2)(m) of the Act of 2021 was filed by the respondent-landlord on the ground that after retiring from the Government job, he wants to start his medical practice from the shop in question. The application of landlord was dismissed on 08.11.2023 against which an appeal under Section 35 of the Act was filed before rent tribunal which has been allowed on 16.03.2024. Hence, the present petition.

S.C.C. Revision No. 44 of 2024

85. The respondent-landlord filed S.C.C. Suit No. 10 of 2022 for eviction and arrears of rent in respect of accommodation let out to revisionist. In the written statement filed by revisionist, ground was taken that S.C.C. suit was not maintainable in the light of provisions of the Act of 2021. The trial court framed preliminary issue no. 9 that whether suit is barred by Section 38 of the Act of 2021 or not. The said preliminary issue was decided in favour of landlord on 05.10.2023 against which the present revision has been preferred.

SUBMISSIONS

86. Sri Krishna Mohan Asthana, learned counsel appearing for petitioner in Writ Petition No. 626 of 2024 submitted that plaintiff-landlord had filed S.C.C. suit before Judge Small Cause Court on 31.05.2022 while the Act of 2021 had come into effect from 11.01.2021, thus, it was barred under Section 38 of the Act of 2021. He further submitted that the judgment rendered in case of Amit Gupta (supra) was not applicable and the court below had wrongly proceeded to dismiss the application filed under Order VII Rule 11(d) CPC.

87. Counsel for the respondent submitted that in view of judgment of Amit Gupta (supra), any agreement arrived prior to enforcement of the Act of 2021, S.C.C suit would be maintainable. He then contended that there is no conflict between the judgment of Amit Gupta (supra) and Amarjeet Singh (supra) passed by co-ordinate Bench as they operate in different areas. He also contended that there are two views in case rent agreement is not submitted to rent authority, firstly, as per Amit Gupta's case (supra) that a S.C.C. suit is not barred and as per Amarjeet Singh's case (supra), it has been held that submission of rent agreement before rent authority is not sine qua non, thus, rent authority has jurisdiction to entertain an application for eviction of a tenant. He further laid stress that Amarjeet Singh's case (supra) nowhere holds that a S.C.C. suit is barred. He also contended that Section 38(2) only limits jurisdiction of rent authority to dispute relating to tenancy agreement submitted as per Section 4. The bar would operate to that extent, the agreement referred to rent authority as per mandate of Section 4 in form provided in Schedule I of the Act and in matters where tenancy agreement has not been submitted before rent authority, a S.C.C. suit would lie to evict a tenant and such tenancy dispute would stand covered under Transfer of Property Act to attract small cause case suit.

88. In respect of Section 42, he submitted that Act does not provide overriding effect for Union while as it only confers overriding effect over the State Laws. He further contended that when a bench of coequal strength is faced with conflicting judgments of other coequal benches, the judgment delivered earlier will continue to govern the field of law, till such time, the same is overturned or in case the question of law, if referred to the larger bench is answered. Reliance has been placed upon a decision of this Court in case of M/s. Geo Miller and Company Pvt. Ltd. vs. U.P. Jal Nigam and others (Civil

89. Lastly, it was contended that for preferring an application for eviction of tenant under the Act of 2021, the same has to be submitted in Form 7 as per Rule 7 of Uttar Pradesh Regulation of Urban Premises Tenancy Rules, 2021 which mandates the unique identification number to be provided under Section 4(5) of the Act. Once the number has not been provided, the application before rent authority was not maintainable and landlord was left with no option but to approach Judge Small Cause Court.

90. Ms. Shreya Gupta, learned counsel appearing in Writ Petition No. 5714 and 6623 of 2024 submitted that there was no conflict between judgments of Amit Gupta (supra) and Amarjeet Singh (supra), and they operate in different fields. In both cases, the Court had proceeded to decide the question framed therein. In Amit Gupta (supra), the questions framed were whether S.C.C. suit instituted prior to coming into Tenancy Act, 2021 and revision arising therefrom would stand saved or they being not mentioned in the repeal and saving clause of Section 46 would stand abated. Further, whether bar created under Section 38 of the Act of 2021 is not absolute one and so S.C.C. suit for arrears of rent and eviction and S.C.C. revision would still be maintainable even after enforcement of the Act of 2021 qua the tenancies not covered by tenancy agreement provided under the Act of 2021. While in Amarjeet Singh (supra), the question was whether information to rent authority in form specified in first Schedule by landlord is sine qua non for maintaining an application under Section 21(2) of the Act of 2021.

91. Both these questions were decided by respective Benches which are not overlapping and, thus, do not need consideration of a larger Bench. She then contended that intention of Legislature in Section 4 is only for intimation to the rent authority about the agreement entered between the parties, and in case it was not provided, still the proceeding under Section 21 was maintainable, as it does not lay down any embargo for maintaining the application for eviction proceeding. According to her, the rent tribunal was not correct in setting aside the order of rent authority holding the application to be not maintainable on the ground of non execution of the document and information required to be provided to the authority.

92. Sri N.K. Chaturvedi, learned counsel appearing in S.C.C. Revision No. 4 of 2024 submitted that after enforcement of the Act of 2021, it would encompass the dispute related to written tenancy which has been filed before the rent authority. According to him, the court below was not correct to hold that S.C.C. suit was maintainable as no new agreement was executed after its enforcement and on the basis of earlier agreement, the court proceeded to decide the issue as to maintainability of S.C.C. suit. The court below had wrongly relied upon the judgment of Amit Gupta's case (supra).

93. Sri P.K. Jain, learned Senior Counsel appearing in Writ Petition No. 5411 and 5413 of 2024 submitted that rent authority had rightly rejected the application filed under Section 21(2)(m) of the Act of 2021 but the rent tribunal has wrongly allowed the same holding the need of landlord to be bona fide while no documentary evidence was filed in support of the claim of the landlord. He further submitted that as no written agreement was executed between the parties, proceedings under the Act of 2021 was barred in view of Section 38. The application has not been filed under Rule 7 of Rules of 2021. He lastly contended that in case petitions are dismissed, some breathing time may be granted to tenant to vacate the premises in question.

94. Sri Kunal Shah, learned counsel appearing for landlord submitted that entire scheme of Section 4 does not provide for ouster of proceedings for eviction at the behest of landlord in case of unwritten agreement. Once it is an admitted case of relationship of landlord and tenant, proceedings under Section 21(2) can be initiated on the ground provided under sub-clause (a) to (m).

95. The entire thrust of argument was that the very object of enacting the Act of 2021 was to balance the equity between landlord and tenant in regard to tenancy as the earlier Act tilted in favour of tenant. He then contended that Model Tenancy Act provided that in case of failure on the part of parties to intimate about execution or non execution of tenancy agreement would preclude the landlord and tenant from claiming any relief. While enacting the Act of 2021, the Legislature has deliberately chosen to omit prescription of such consequences. Thus, it cannot be presumed that non-execution of tenancy agreement would disentitle the landlord from approaching the rent authority under the Act of 2021. He also contended that sub-section (2) of Section 38 is not conferring any jurisdiction on the rent authority but is rather a provision that circumscribes the jurisdiction of rent authority prescribing it to not venture into adjudicating dispute of title or ownership and keeping itself confined to the disputes that may arise under tenancy agreement. He also contended that sub-section (7) of Section 4 should be read in continuation with sub-section (3) of Section 4 requiring information to be provided by parties to tenancy under sub-section (1), (2) and (3) and further in absence of such information, the landlord may file an application of eviction on this ground alone.

96. According to him, none of the provisions are restricting the landlord from approaching rent authority for redressal of his grievance under Section 21(2) in case of unwritten tenancy and information having not being supplied. According to him, if such hyper technical view is taken, then the very object of the Act would be frustrated.

CONCLUSION

97. I have heard counsel representing different parties as well as many counsel addressing the Court on the question framed, "whether the rent authority, constituted under the provisions of the Act of 2021, has the jurisdiction to entertain the application filed by landlord in cases where tenancy agreement has not been executed, if not executed, the landlord having failed to file particulars of tenancy with rent authority".

98. In earlier paragraphs while considering Model Tenancy Act prepared by Central Government, and the Act of 2021 enacted by State Legislature, I found that there is a conscious departure as to mandatory character of tenancy agreement and its intimation to rent authority in case of execution and also non execution.

99. On the one hand, Model Tenancy Act expressly provides in sub-section (6) of Section 4 that on ground of failure of parties to intimate about execution or non execution of tenancy agreement, would both preclude landlord and tenant from claiming any relief. While on the other hand, State Legislature while adopting Model Tenancy Act to certain extent has chosen to omit prescription of such consequences, debarring failure of parties to intimate about execution or non execution of tenancy agreement to rent authority.

100. Tenancy agreement as envisaged in Section 4 under the Act of 2021 is divided into two parts, firstly, mandatory nature in regard to fresh tenancy entered after enforcement of the Act. While Legislature being conscious of the fact that old tenancy consists of both written and non written agreement, it thus provided that in case of written agreement, it was to be jointly presented to rent authority, while in case no agreement was entered, parties were required to enter into an agreement and intimate the rent authority. The proviso further clarified the position to extent that in case of failure to present the agreement jointly or failing to reach an agreement, only particulars submitted separately with the rent authority by the parties would suffice as to tenancy.

101. The Legislature further visualised contingencies where only landlords submit particulars with the authority, then in that case he could file an application for eviction against the tenant.

102. The Legislature in sub-section (7) further went to the extent that in absence of information provided under sub-section (1), (2) and (3), the landlord may file an application for eviction on this ground alone, meaning thereby that intention was not to restrict for proceeding of eviction in case of an admitted tenancy between the parties.

103. Section 4 only envisages different types of situation in which a tenancy agreement is arrived between the landlord and tenant. It nowhere restricts any right of the parties who admit the status of landlord and tenant. Had the intention of Legislature was to restrict the parties to only approach rent authority in case of execution of agreement or intimation, then it would have adopted sub-section (6) of Section 4 of Model Tenancy Act.

104. The conscious omission on part of State Legislature would not provide fatal consequences depriving the right of landlord to expedient eviction under the Act of 2021. I have already in previous paragraph nos. 31 to 39 dealt with expression “shall” occurring in sub-section (3) of Section 4, as it caters to limited purpose regarding providing for information of tenancy to rent authority. Once there is no dispute as to landlord-tenant relationship, no mileage could be drawn out of the expression “shall” employed therein.

105. The Legislature for revision of rent under Section 9 has visualised a situation for unwritten tenancy prior to commencement of the Act, where agreement is not arrived between the landlord and tenant, then the rent authority, shall have jurisdiction to determine the enhanced rent. This provision clarifies the position that in cases in which no written agreement was existing prior to commencement of the Act and parties thereafter also failed to enter into an agreement, then the rent authority would intervene and enhance rent under Section 10.

106. This provision leads to conclusion that jurisdiction of rent authority under the Act of 2021 cannot be narrowed down only in cases of written agreement and its intimation to rent authority. Had the Legislature thought of giving limited access to landlord or tenant to approach rent authority only in cases of written agreement or its intimation, then proviso to sub-section (5) of Section 9 would not have been there in the Statute Book.

107. The intention of Legislature cannot be ascertained merely on the basis of single provision, and regard must be given to other sections as well as the context, subject-matter and the object of the provision.

108. The Court has to ascertain real intention of Legislature i.e. the nature and design of the Statute, and consequences which would follow from construing it to the one way or the other.

109. Much emphasis has been laid on sub-section (2) of Section 38 so as to interpret Section 4 of the Act.

110. I have already dealt with scope of sub-section (2) of Section 38 in the above paragraph nos. 47 to 55. Sub-section (2) of Section 38 is not a provision conferring jurisdiction upon rent authority, rather it circumscribes jurisdiction prescribing it to not venture into adjudication of dispute regarding title or ownership and only confines to dispute arising under tenancy agreement. It does not make jurisdiction dependent upon the execution of tenancy agreement, rather it shall have jurisdiction of such tenancies also where no agreement was entered between the parties but are still covered under the Act of 2021.

111. The section sets contours within which dispute arising between the landlord and tenant is to be decided. It cannot transgress to the issue touching the title and ownership between the parties and remain confined to tenancy agreement.

112. Thus, I find that there is no conflict or overlapping between the judgments rendered by co-ordinate Benches in cases of Amit Gupta (supra), Alok Gupta (supra), Amarjeet Singh (supra) and Vishal Rastogi (supra). They were decided by co-ordinate Benches on the issue raised before the Court.

113. Thus, the question which has been posed stands answered that rent authority constituted under the provisions of the Act of 2021 has jurisdiction to entertain application filed by landlord in cases where tenancy agreement has not been executed, and landlord having failed to intimate particulars of tenancy to the authority.

114. Considering the facts and circumstances of cases referred to this Court, I find that in Matters under Article 227 No. 626 of 2024, the court below had rightly rejected the application filed under Order VII Rule 11(d) CPC holding that S.C.C. Suit No. 9 of 2022 was not barred by enforcement of the Act of 2021. The challenge made by tenant-petitioner fails and the writ petition stands dismissed.

115. Writ Petition No. 5714 of 2024 and Writ Petition No. 6623 of 2024 stand decided on the basis of conclusion arrived above and proceedings initiated by landlord-petitioner in both writ petitions under Section 21(2) of the Act of 2021 was maintainable despite there being no written agreement. Both the orders dated 18.01.2024 and 25.01.2024 are hereby set aside.

116. In view of above, both the writ petitions are partly allowed and matters are remanded back to rent tribunal to decide the same, within a period of two months, from the date of production of certified copy of this order in view of finding recorded above.

117. Writ Petition No. 5411 of 2024 and Writ Petition No. 5413 of 2024 raise similar issue and application moved under Section 21(2)(m) of the Act of 2021 was dismissed by rent authority against which appeal of the landlord was allowed holding that proceedings were maintainable despite there being no written agreement. It has also been held that proceeding under the Act of 2021 is maintainable despite there being no written agreement between the parties nor any particular having been submitted to rent authority. Both the writ petitions filed by tenant need no interference and stand dismissed. However, six months' time is granted to petitioners to vacate the premises in question by 30.06.2026 subject to following conditions:-

“(a) Tenants-petitioners shall file an undertaking before court below that they shall hand over peaceful possession of the premises in question to the landlord-respondent on or before 30.06.2026;

(b) The said undertaking shall be filed before the court below within two weeks from today;

(c) Tenants-petitioners shall pay entire decretal amount within a period of one month from today;

(d) In the undertaking, tenants-petitioners shall also state that they will not create any interest in favour of the third party of the premises in dispute;

(e) It is made clear that in case of default of any of the conditions mentioned herein-above, the protection granted by this Court shall stand vacated automatically.

(f) In case the premises is not vacated as per the undertaking given by tenants-petitioners, they shall also be liable for contempt.”

118. Lastly, S.C.C. Revision No. 44 of 2024 also fails and stands dismissed on the ground that suit filed by landlord is not barred under Section 38 of the Act of 2021. The court below to proceed with S.C.C. Suit No. 10 of 2022 and decide the same, within next six months.

119. Before parting with the judgment, the Court records word of appreciation for the valuable assistance provided by Sri Vishnu Gupta, learned Senior Counsel and young counsel, Sri Kunal Shah.

THE HON'BLE PRAKASH PADIA, J.

Writ A No. 18036 of 2025

Aditya Kumar & Anr. ...Petitioners
Versus
State Of U.P. & Ors. ...Respondents

Issue for Consideration

Whether the rejection of the petitioners' claim for appointment on the post of Assistant Teacher on compassionate ground, in view of the judgment in Shailendra Kumar v. State of U.P. and others and the consequential Office Order dated 22.08.2025, was liable to be interfered with on the ground that certain other persons were granted similar appointments.

Headnotes

Compassionate Appointment — Assistant Teacher — Government Orders dated 04.09.2000 and 15.02.2013 — Struck down by Co-ordinate Bench — Parity — Negative equality — Article 14 — Writ dismissed.

HELD:

The claim of the petitioners for compassionate appointment on the post of Assistant Teacher was rejected in view of the judgment dated 16.04.2025 passed in Shailendra Kumar v. State of U.P. and others, wherein the Government Orders dated 04.09.2000 and 15.02.2013, insofar as they related to appointment on the posts of teachers on compassionate grounds, were struck down and the State Government was directed to cease their implementation. The said judgment had attained finality. [Paras 4, 8, 11]

The contention of the petitioners that certain persons had been granted appointment on compassionate ground in other districts could not be accepted. It is well settled that if any illegal or unwarranted order has been passed in favour of any person, such order cannot form the basis for issuing a writ compelling the authority to repeat the illegality. Article 14 does not envisage negative equality. [Paras 8–10] Wrongful conferment of a right on one person does not entitle another to claim similar benefit. The Court cannot direct perpetuation of an illegality merely on the ground of parity. [Paras 8–10]

The petitioners had also not challenged the Office Order dated 22.08.2025 issued by the Secretary, U.P. Basic Education Board, Prayagraj, on the basis of which their claim had been rejected. [Para 11]

In view of the above, no case for interference was made out and the writ petition was dismissed. [Paras 11–12]

Petition dismissed. (E-14)

Case Arising From

Order dated 14.11.2025 passed by the District Basic Education Officer, Fatehpur, rejecting the petitioners' claim for appointment on compassionate ground on the post of Assistant Teacher.

Appearance for Parties

For the Petitioners: Sri Ashok Khare, Senior Advocate, Assisted by Sri Siddharth Khare

For Respondent Nos.1 & 2: Learned Standing Counsel

For Respondent Nos.3 & 4: Sri Shivendra Singh Bhadauria

(Delivered by Hon'ble Prakash Padia, J.)

1. Heard Ashok Khare, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Sri Siddharth Khare, learned counsel for the petitioners, learned Standing Counsel for respondent Nos.1 & 2 and Sri Shivendra Singh Bhadauria, learned counsel for respondent Nos.3 & 4.

2. The order dated 14.11.2025 passed by the District Basic Education Officer, Fatehpur/respondent No.4 by which the claim of the petitioners for grant of appointment on the post of Assistant Teacher on compassionate ground has been rejected is under challenge.

3. Facts and brief as contained in the writ petition are that Shiv Kant Pal who is father of the petitioner No.1/Aditya Kumar had been died on 26.04.2021 while working on the post of Assistant Teacher in Uchch Prathmik Vidyalay Khairha Development Block Haswa, District Fatehpur and Indrajeet Singh, who is father of petitioner No.2/Yogendra Singh were had been died on 28.04.2021 while working on the post of Head Master of Prathmik Vidyalay Gadhi Development Block Asthar District Fatehpur. Since the petitioners are having requisite qualification, they submitted applications for their appointment on the post of Assistant Teacher, The aforesaid applications have been rejected pursuant to the order dated 16.04.2025 passed by this Court in Writ A No.15450 of 2024 (Shailendra Kumar Vs. State of U.P. and others). Aggrieved with the aforesaid order, the petitioners filed Writ A No.15439 of 2025 (Aditya Kumar And Another Vs. Sttate of U.P. and others). The aforesaid writ petition was disposed of by this Court vide order dated 29.10.2025 permitting the petitioner to submit an application physically to the District Basic Education Officer, Fatehpur within a period of one week and District Basic Education Officer, Fatehpur had directed to consider and decide the claim of the petitioners by passing a reasoned and speaking order physically, and not through the online portal within a period of three weeks, copy of the aforesaid judgement is appended as Annexure No.9 to the writ petition. Pursuant to the aforesaid order, the respondent No.4/District Basic Education Officer, Fatehpur has passed the order impugned rejecting the claim of the petitioners on the basis of the judgement and order dated 16.04.2025 passed by this Court in bunch of writ petitions being leading number Writ A No.15450 of 2024 (Shailendra Kumar Vs. State of U.P. and others). Hence the present petition.

4. It is argued by learned counsel for the respondent that in the judgement and order dated 16.04.2025 passed by this Court in the case of Shailendra Kumar (supra), it is clearly held by this Court that no compassionate appointment could be granted on the post of Assistant Teachers. The direction given by this Court in the aforesaid order reads as follows:-

IX. Conclusions and Directions:

119. In the wake of preceding discussion, the following conclusions are being recorded and corresponding directions are being issued to the State Authorities:

(A). The Government Orders dated 04.09.2000 and 15.02.2013 insofar as they relate to appointment on the posts of teachers on compassionate grounds are held to be ultra vires Articles 14, 16 and 21-A of the Constitution of India.

(B). The Government Orders dated 04.09.2000 and 15.02.2013 insofar as they relate to appointment on the posts of teachers on compassionate grounds are violative of Section 3 of the Right to Education Act, 2009 which vests the right of free and compulsory education in children.

(C). The Government Orders dated 04.09.2000 and 15.02.2013 insofar as they relate to appointment on the posts of teachers on compassionate grounds are in conflict with the mandate of Rule 5 of the Dying in Harness Rules, 1999.

(D). The Government Orders dated 04.09.2000 and 15.02.2013 insofar as they provide for appointment on the posts of teachers on compassionate grounds are struck down. The State Government is accordingly directed to forthwith cease the implementation of the Government Orders dated 04.09.2000 and 15.02.2013.

(E). The matter is remitted to respondents-authorities. The claim of the petitioner shall be considered by the respondents-authorities for appointment on compassionate grounds to any other post as per law and in line with the observations made in this judgement. The decision shall be taken by the respondents-authorities within a period of three months from the date of receipt of a certified copy of this order.

120. The writ petition is finally disposed of.

121. Registry is directed to send a copy of this order to the Principal Secretary, Department of Basic Education, Government of Uttar Pradesh, Lucknow.

5. It is argued that on the basis of the aforesaid judgement, Office Order had been issued by the Secretary, U.P. Basic Education Board, Prayagraj on 22.08.2025 and pursuant to the aforesaid judgement and Office Order, the claim of the petitioners have been rightly rejected by the respondent No.4.

6. On the other hand, it is argued by learned Senior Counsel as stated in paragraph 31 of the writ petition that though the claim of the petitioners have been rejected on the ground that no compassionate appointment could be granted pursuant to the judgement passed by this Court but the respondent-authorities had granted appointments to various persons on the post of Assistant Teachers on the compassionate ground in the month of June to September, 2025. It is further stated that in different districts, various persons have been appointed on the post of Assistant Teachers on the compassionate ground in the month of June to September, 2025. On the basis of the aforesaid, it is argued that clear discrimination has been made with the petitioners.

7. Heard learned counsel for the parties and perused the record.

8. From perusal of the order dated 14.11.2025 passed by the District Basic Education Officer, Fatehpur/respondent No.4, it is clear that claim for grant of compassionate appointment on the post of Assistant Teacher has been rejected in view of the law laid down by this Court by a Co-ordinate Bench in the case of Shailendra Kumar (supra). It is admitted between the parties that the aforesaid judgement has been attained finality between the parties. Insofar as the arguments raised by learned Senior Counsel regarding the parity of other employees who had been granted similar benefit is concerned, the law is well settled that in case, any order has been passed in favour of any person and the same is contrary to law, such illegal or unwarranted order cannot be made the basis of issuing a writ compelling the respondent-authority to repeat the illegality or to pass another illegal order. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Chandigarh Administration and another Vs. Jagjit Singh and another reported in (1995) SCC 745 has held that if the order in favour of the other person is found to be contrary to law or not warranted in the facts and circumstances of his case, it is obvious that such illegal or unwarranted order cannot be made the basis of issuing a writ compelling the respondent-authority to repeat the illegality or to pass another unwarranted order. The relevant portion of the aforesaid order reads as follows:-

".... If the order in favour of the other person is found to be contrary to law or not warranted in the facts and circumstances of his case, it is obvious that such illegal or unwarranted order cannot be made the basis of issuing a writ compelling the respondent-authority to repeat the illegality or to pass another unwarranted order. The extraordinary and discretionary power of the High Court cannot be exercised for such a purpose. Merely because the respondent-authority has passed one illegal/unwarranted order, it does not entitle the High Court to compel the authority to repeat that Illegality over again and again. The illegal/unwarranted action must be corrected, if it can be done according to law indeed, wherever it is possible, the Court should direct the appropriate authority to correct such wrong orders in accordance with law but even if it cannot be corrected, it is difficult to see how it can be made a basis for its repetition. By refusing to direct the respondent-authority to repeat the Illegality, the Court is not condoning the earlier illegal act/order nor can such illegal order constitute the basis for a legitimate complaint of discrimination...."

9. Apart from the same, the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Tinku Vs. State of Haryana and others reported in 2024 SCC Online SC 3292 has opined that wrongful conferment of a right or claim on someone would not title a similar claim to be put forth before a court and nor would the court be bound to accept such a plea. The relevant paragraph is extracted below:

The very idea of equality enshrined in Article 14 is a concept clothed in positivity based on law. It can be invoked to enforce a claim having sanctity of law. No direction can, therefore, be issued mandating the State to perpetuate any illegality or irregularity committed in favour of a person, an individual, or even a group of individuals which is contrary to the policy or instructions applicable. Similarly, passing of an illegal order wrongfully conferring some right or claim on someone does not entitle a similar claim to be put forth before a court nor would court be bound to accept such plea. The court will not compel the authority to repeat that illegality over again. If such claims are entertained and directions issued, that would not only be against the tenets of the justice but would negate its ethos resulting in the law being a causality culminating in anarchy and lawlessness. The Court cannot ignore the law, nor can it overlook the same to confer a right or a claim that does not have legal sanction. Equity cannot be extended, and that too negative to confer a benefit or advantage without legal basis or justification."

10. Reference for the purpose can also be made to the judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Jyostnamayee Mishra v. State of Odisha reported in 2025 SCC Online SC 117 . The relevant extract is reproduced herein below:

"31. Another argument was raised while referring to two communications dated 28.06.1999 appointing Ms. Jhina Rani

*Mansingh and Sri Lalatendu Rath as Tracer on promotion, claiming to be from the post of Peon, on the basis of which the petitioner is claiming violation of Article 14, namely the discrimination. Suffice to add, this Court cannot put a stamp on the illegalities committed by the department while perpetuating the same. A litigant coming to the Court cannot claim negative discrimination seeking direction from the Court to the department to act in violation of the law or statutory Rules. It is a settled proposition of law that Article 14 does not envisage negative equality. Reference for the purpose can be made to a judgment of this Court in R. Muthukumar v. The Chairman and Managing Director TANGEDCO. Relevant para thereof is extracted below:*

*"28. A principle, axiomatic in this country's constitutional lore is that there is no negative equality. In other words, if there has been a benefit or advantage conferred on one or a set of people, without legal basis or justification, that benefit cannot multiply, or be relied upon as a principle of parity or equality. In Basawaraj v. Special Land Acquisition Officer, this court ruled that:*

"8. It is a settled legal proposition that Article 14 of the Constitution is not meant to perpetuate illegality or fraud, even by extending the wrong decisions made in other cases. The said provision does not envisage negative equality but has only a positive aspect. Thus, if some other similarly situated persons have been granted some relief/benefit inadvertently or by mistake, such an order does not confer any legal right on others to get the same relief as well. If a wrong is committed in an earlier case, it cannot be perpetuated."

11. From perusal of the record, it is clear that claim of the petitioner seeking appointment on compassionate ground was rejected on the ground that order passed by this Court in the case of Shailendra Kumar (supra) and the Office order dated 22.08.2025 issued by the Secretary, U.P. Basic Education Board, Prayagraj. For the reasons best known to the petitioners, they have not challenged the Office order dated 22.08.2025 issued by the Secretary, U.P. Basic Education Board, Prayagraj in the present petition. Insofar as the claim of the petitioners that some persons have been granted appointment on the post of Assistant Teachers on compassionate ground is concerned, it has already been held by the Hon'ble Apex Court as stated above that in case any wrong or contrary order has been passed by the authority, such illegal or unwarranted order cannot be made the basis of issuing a writ compelling the respondent-authority to repeat the illegality or to pass another unwarranted order.

12. In this view of the matter, petition lacks merits and the same is hereby dismissed.

Writ A No. 19080 of 2006

Rajesh Singh ...Petitioner
Versus
Board of Governors, M.N.N.I.T & Anr. ...Respondents

Issue for Consideration

(i) Whether the disciplinary proceedings culminating in the order dated 28.02.2006 dismissing the petitioner from service were vitiated for non-compliance with the procedure prescribed in the Resolution adopted by the Board of Governors on 04.05.2004; and

(ii) Whether the punishment of dismissal with disqualification, imposed on the ground of immoral conduct arising out of a consensual relationship between a teacher and his student, was disproportionate.

Headnotes

Service Law — Disciplinary proceedings — Procedure prescribed by Resolution dated 04.05.2004 — One Man Inquiry Commission — Natural justice — Consensual relationship — Teacher and student — Standard of morality — Disproportionate punishment — Matter remanded on quantum of punishment.

Held:

The Resolution adopted by the Board of Governors on 04.05.2004 prescribes a detailed procedure for conducting disciplinary proceedings, including issuance of charge-sheet, statement of imputations, list of witnesses and documents, appointment of Inquiry Officer and Presenting Officer, and adherence to principles of natural justice. Admittedly, such procedure was not followed in the present case and no charge-sheet in terms thereof was issued. [Paras 13–14]

The disciplinary action was based on a report of a One Man Inquiry Commission headed by a former Judge of this Court. Though the detailed procedure prescribed in the Resolution was not followed, the petitioner had appeared before the Commission, submitted reply, and substantially admitted the relationship with the complainant. In the facts of the case, it was held that non-following of the detailed procedure did not cause such prejudice to the petitioner so as to vitiate the findings of misconduct. [Paras 15–16]

The relationship between the petitioner, a Lecturer, and the complainant, a student, though consensual and continued even after she left the Institution for about three years, was found by the Commission to be immoral and contrary to the expected standard of conduct of a teacher. [Paras 4, 15]

However, the Court noted that it was not a case of sexual harassment; the complainant had not lodged any FIR; the relationship was consensual; and except the said allegation, there was no other complaint against the petitioner. The termination was founded essentially on the ground of morality. [Paras 17–21]

In view of the circumstances, the punishment of dismissal from service with disqualification was held to be shockingly disproportionate. While upholding the finding of misconduct, the Court interfered only with the quantum of punishment and remitted the matter to the Disciplinary Authority to pass a fresh order on punishment in light of the observations made. [Paras 20–23]

The writ petition was accordingly disposed of. [Para 24] (E-14)

Case Arising From

Order dated 28.02.2006 passed by the Director, Motilal Nehru National Institute of Technology, Allahabad, dismissing the petitioner from service with disqualification.

Appearance for Parties

For the Petitioner: Sri Abhishek Srivastava.

For the Respondents: Sri Shivendu Ojha, C.S.C.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Saurabh Shyam Shamshery, J.)

1. Petitioner was a Lecturer in the Department of Computer Science and Engineering in Motilal Nehru National Institute of Technology, Allahabad. He joined the Institute on 31.03.1999. An Ex-student (Girl) of Institute made a written complaint dated 08.01.2003 addressed to the Director of Institute inter alia alleging therein that when she was a student of Master of Computer Education in the Institute from 1997-2000, petitioner has made physical relationship with her and she described an occurrence took place on 16.11.1999 that it was against her will. Though she further stated that later on they had consensual physical relationship even after she left the Institute. A symbolic marriage was also took place between them but it appears that she being of a different religion, therefore, parents of petitioner did not allow to solemnize a proper marriage and thus their relationship was broken, therefore, she made a complaint that she was subjected to physical and emotional harassment.

2. On basis of said complaint, Director of Institute constituted a Five Members Committee and a show cause notice dated 10.01.2003 was issued to petitioner to submit reply to the complaint. A copy of complaint was admittedly served upon petitioner. A questionnaire was also submitted to petitioner. Petitioner thereafter submitted his reply that complainant was an student of petitioner between July, 1999 to June, 2000 and he admitted that it was a consensual relationship which developed during that period and continued even thereafter. They wanted to marry but due to different religion marriage could not take place.

3. On basis of record it appears that the Five Members Committee has not arrived to any conclusion and submitted a report that they do not have expertise to establish a fact that any rape was committed and that petitioner and complainant were in relationship even after complainant left the Institute and complaint was filed only when petitioner was engaged with some other girl in November, 2002. No specific conclusion was made in the report.

4. On basis of above inquiry petitioner was put under suspension vide order dated 17.01.2003 and there was an observation in said order that a charge sheet will be issued shortly. Subsequently, a One Man Inquiry Commission was constituted by Institute headed by Justice N.L. Ganguly, Former Judge, Allahabad High Court, who issued notice dated 10.06.2003 to petitioner and sought reply and that petitioner can produce any evidence, oral or documentary. Petitioner thereafter submitted a detailed reply on 12.09.2003 and has appeared before One Man Inquiry Commission also. Complainant has also made a written statement before One Man Inquiry Commission. The Commission also recorded statements of few witnesses as well as took note of observations made by Five Members Committee. The Commission also framed certain issues for consideration and finally submitted a report dated 27.12.2003 whereby petitioner was found guilty of misconduct on ground that he has shown special favour with complainant, when she was a student in the Institute and his conduct as a Lecturer of Institute and having affair with his student was contrary to the tenets of relationship of student and Teacher. His act of physical relationship with his student was considered to be an immoral conduct and it was found to be contrary to the values of a Teacher in society and according to Section 49-A of the State Universities Act, 1973 and Clause 16.04 of the First Statutes, 1976 of University of Allahabad it was proposed that petitioner be terminated from services. For reference relevant part of One Man Commission's report is reproduced hereinafter:

"I have considered the facts and circumstances in great details and I find that Mr. Rajesh Singh is guilty of misconduct on the ground that he had shown special favour with Ms. Valentina Kujur when she was student in the institute. He had shown special favour to her by giving her special lessons for home work and would question on the said subject on the following day which act was an act of special favour shown by him to Ms. Valentina. This was not done in case of any other girl student or boy student. The conduct of Mr. Rajesh Singh as a Lecturer of the college and having affairs with Ms. Valentina Kujur when she was student of the college itself, calling her to participate in birth-day celebration in the Hotel Kanha Shyam shows and fortifies the findings recorded against him. Mr. Rajesh Singh, when Ms. Valentina Kujur was his student and was in the college, was photographed in the residential room in such a pose which is not proper for the teacher with his own girl student. I have already discussed above that Mr. Rajesh Singh was standing behind the chair on which Ms. Valentina Kujur was sitting and he was leaning on the shoulders of Ms. Valentina Kujur putting both his hands on upper portion of her breast and she was holding his wrist. This cannot be imagined to be a proper pose with a girl student by his teacher. The sexual act continued from February till May 1999, as stated by Ms. Valentina

Kujur. This act committed by Mr. Rajesh Singh is immoral conduct and in no manner can be excused. Even after Ms. Valentina Kujur ceased to be the student of Mr. Rajesh Singh, he continued having sex relationship with her, taking her to Hotels at Agra stayed there for two days and five days at Khajuraho are such facts which show that Mr. Rajesh Singh had lost all moral values of Indian culture which is never expected from a teacher. In our country teachers are worshipped and their place is at high pedestal गुरुर ब्रह्मा, गुरुर विष्णु, गुरुर देवो महेश्वरा ।

After considering the facts and circumstances in detail, I have no option left to record the finding that Mr. Rajesh Singh committed gross misconduct and according to Section 49-D of the State University Act, 1973 and Clause 16.04 of the First Statutes, 1976 of the University of Allahabad deserves to be terminated from the services. If such a teacher is permitted to continue in an educational institute of repute like MNNIT where girl students from various parts of the country come to study, there is no guarantee that he will not repeat his actions again.

I suggest that proper punishment would be termination from service so that he may be able to do other job in places other than educational institutions. The suspension allowance already paid may not be recovered back from him, but he shall not be entitled for any further emoluments.

The report of the Commission is submitted before the Chairman of the Board of Governors of MNNIT, Allahabad for his consideration and for consideration by the Board of Governors.”

5. A copy of aforesaid report was served upon petitioner who submitted his reply on 23.06.2004 that the report be set aside. The report and petitioner's reply was considered by Board of Governors in their 5th Meeting held on 18.01.2005 and accordingly a notice dated 22.02.2005 was issued to petitioner. Petitioner thereafter submitted his reply dated 05.03.2005 and subsequently impugned order dated 28.02.2006 was passed by Director of Institute whereby petitioner was dismissed from service with disqualification.

6. The aforesaid order dated 28.02.2006 is impugned in present writ petition.

7. This writ petition was filed in the year 2006 wherein no interim order was passed. Later on it was dismissed for want of prosecution on 11.07.2013 and restored vide order dated 26.07.2023.

8. Sri Abhishek Srivastava, learned counsel for petitioner has argued that service conditions of an employee of MLNIT is governed by a resolution adopted by Board of Governors in its 4th Meeting held on 04.05.2004 which provides procedure for disciplinary action, penalties and appeal also and for reference the same are reproduced hereinafter:

“8. Procedure for Imposing Penalties

The procedure for imposing penalties listed in Para 3 shall be as under:

(i) No order imposing on any member of the staff any of the penalties specified at (iv) to (vii) above shall be passed by any authority subordinate to that by which he was appointed and except after an enquiry has been held and the member of the staff has been given reasonable opportunity of showing cause of the action proposed to be taken in regard to him.

No order imposing on any member of the staff any of the penalties specified at (i) to (iii) above shall be passed by any authority subordinate to that by which he was appointed and unless the member of the staff concerned has been given an opportunity to make a representation to the Appointing Authority.

Notwithstanding the above provisions, it shall not be necessary to follow the procedure mentioned above in the following cases:

(a) where an employee is dismissed or removed or reduced in rank on the ground of conduct which has led to his conviction on a criminal charge;

(b) where the authority empowered to dismiss or remove the person or to reduce him in rank is satisfied that, for some reason to be recorded by that authority in writing, it is not reasonably practicable to give that person an opportunity of showing cause; or

If any question arises whether it is reasonably practicable to give any person an opportunity of showing cause under clause (b) above, the decision thereon of the authority empowered to dismiss or remove such person or to reduce him in rank, as the case may be, shall be final.

(ii) Formal penalties must be recorded in the Service Book of the employee and a copy kept along with his/her Confidential Reports. Other punishments need not be recorded, except that a Warning given after disciplinary proceedings should be recorded.

(iii) In case of an officer on deputation, the borrowing authority may start proceedings but the lending authority should be informed and vice-versa. If at the conclusion of the proceedings started by him, the borrowing authority is of the view that a major penalty should be imposed on the delinquent official, the borrowing authority should replace his/her services at the disposal of the lending authority and transmit the record of the proceedings to the lending authority. The borrowing authority can impose a penalty on the delinquent officer but if this is not agreed to by the lending authority, then his services shall be replaced at the disposal of the lending authority.

(iv) A Flow Chart of various steps after receiving a complaint is given as under:

9. Acts, Conduct And Commissions/Omissions Which Amount To Misconduct Leading To Disciplinary Action

The employees of the Institute shall be governed by the Conduct Rules as laid down in Schedule 'B' and any violation of these rules may lead to disciplinary action.

I. The initiation of disciplinary proceedings for various penalties depends on the gravity of derelictions to be judged by the Disciplinary Authority.

II. Generally, for minor penalty proceedings at Serial (i) to (iii), could be dereliction of duty such as inefficiency or incompetence disobedience of orders habitual late coming or minor violation of conduct rules constitute the basis.

III. Cases which may generally mere action of imposing one of the Major penalty at Serials (iv) to (vii) are,

1. Where there is a reasonable ground to believe that a penal offence has been committed by the employee but the evidence forthcoming is not sufficient for prosecution in a court of law, e.g.

a) possession of disproportionate assets;

b) obtaining or attempting to obtain illegal gratification;

c) misappropriation of Government property, money to stores;

d) obtaining or attempting to obtain any valuable thing or pecuniary advantage without consideration or for a consideration which is not adequate.

2. Falsification of Government/Institute records.

3. Gross irregularity or negligence in the discharge of official duties with a dishonest motive.

4. Misuse of official position or power for personal gain.

5. Disclosure of secret or confidential information even though it does not fall straightly within the scope of the Official Secrets Act.

6. False claims on the Institute like TA, Reimbursement etc.

7. Sexual harassment

10. Principles of Natural Justice

The principles of natural justice have been evolved through various judicial pronouncements and are intended to provide the minimum protection to an individual against any arbitrary procedure that may be adopted by the authorities in departmental inquiries. These principles require:

(a) That every person against whom disciplinary proceedings are contemplated must have a reasonable notice of the case he has to meet;

(b) That he must have a reasonable opportunity of being heard in his defence;

(c) That the hearing must be conducted by an impartial, unbiased officer(s) that is, a person who is neither directly nor indirectly a party to the case or has an interest in it.

(d) That the disciplinary authority must act in good faith and not arbitrarily but reasonably

The reasonable opportunity mentioned at (b) above includes:

(i) An opportunity to the person concerned to deny his guilt and establish his innocence. He will get an opportunity if he is told clearly what the charges leveled against him are and the allegations on which such charges are based.

(ii) An opportunity to defend himself by cross-examining the witnesses produced against him and by examining himself and any other witnesses in support of his defence; and,

(iii) An opportune to make his representation as to why the punishment should not be inflicted on him. This opportunity can be provided only if the competent authority after applying its mind to the gravity or otherwise of the charges against him proposes to inflict the appropriate penalty out of the list of penalties provided for in the rules relating to such disciplinary matters.

For unbiased hearings mentioned at (c) above, the Inquiry Officer should not obviously have any personal interest in the case. During hearings, he is expected to be serene and even-handed, even though his patience at times may be tried. At the same time, he cannot permit either party to engage in every trick to delay proceedings and put a spoke the wheel of justice.

11. Proceedings for Inquiry

The flow chart of various steps in the conduct of an enquiry and award of a punishment after receiving a complaint is given at Annexure 1 and the guidelines as under:

(a) The proceedings commence with the issue of a charge-sheet to the delinquent official. The charge-sheet should contain facts and circumstances serving as the basis for the charge so that the delinquent official may have a reasonable opportunity to know fully what the charges levelled against him are and what the background is, so that he may be in a position to answer the charges and prepare himself in the departmental inquiry.

The charge-sheet to be issued to the delinquent official should include the following:

(i) a statement of charges

(ii) a statement of imputation of misconduct/misbehaviour leading to a distinct charge

(iii) a list of witnesses and a list of documents in support of charges and

(iv) a memorandum requiring the delinquent official to submit a reply within a reasonable time (say 10 days from the date of receipt) asking him to state whether he pleads guilty and whether he wishes to be heard in person

(b) After receiving the explanation from the delinquent official, the disciplinary authority may appoint an impartial officer to hold the inquiry on his behalf.

(c) When the Inquiry Officer is appointed, the disciplinary authority should simultaneously appoint a Presenting Officer. It should not be difficult to except in very complex cases for the disciplinary authority to appoint a staff member from the Institute, conversant with the case other than the one who has carried out a preliminary inquiry into it. The Presenting Officer is to conduct the proceedings on behalf of the Institute before the Inquiry Officer. He will lead evidence in support of the charges and cross-examine the witnesses deposing on behalf of the delinquent official.

The delinquent official may be allowed to have a staff member of the institute as Defence Assistant. Refusal to engage a Lawyer/Advocate to the delinquent official does not amount to denial of reasonable opportunity or violation of the natural justice. If however the disciplinary authority appoints a legal practitioner as a Presenting Officer, it is only appropriate that the delinquent official should be informed and also allowed to engage a legal practitioner.

(d) The departmental inquiry should be commenced with an advance notice to the delinquent official intimating him the date, time and place of inquiry and calling upon him to appear before the Inquiry Officer together with his witnesses, if any. A list of witnesses to be examined for the Institute should be furnished to the delinquent official in advance.

(e) On the first day of inquiry if the delinquent official who is served with the notice of the inquiry is absent, the inquiry officer may give him another opportunity to appear instead of proceeding with the inquiry.

(f) When the delinquent official appears with reference to the notice of hearing, the Inquiry Officer should read the charges in the presence of the delinquent official and say these charges have been levelled against him on the evidence of certain persons and documents, if any.

(g) The witnesses on behalf of the disciplinary authority should be examined in the presence of the delinquent official and the evidence taken and recorded in his presence. The strict provisions of the Evidence Act however do not apply to such domestic inquiries. The delinquent official should be called upon to cross examine the witnesses and the Inquiry Officer should record the statements made by them on such cross examinations in the presence of the delinquent official.

(h) The Inquiry Officer may take the signatures of the delinquent official on each day's proceedings and if he refuses to sign, such refusal may be noted by the Inquiry Officer in the proceedings.

(i) After the Institute closes its side, the delinquent official should be given a reasonable opportunity to produce his witnesses to give evidence of his side. He and his witnesses may be cross-examined by the Presiding Officer. If the delinquent official says that he has no evidence to offer or he fails to appear before the Inquiry Officer or protects the proceedings in spite of reasonable opportunities to produce his evidence, the Inquiry Officer should record it in the proceedings and he may then close the case. The Inquiry Officer should then obtain a brief from the Presenting Officer as well as from the Defence Assistant/Delinquent Employee.

(j) The Inquiry Officer may also take the signature of each witness to the evidence recorded by him. This equally applies to the evidence of the delinquent official.

(k) The Inquiry Officer should then draw to the report and forward it to the disciplinary authority. This should contain a brief resume of the charges framed against the delinquent official, the explanation of the delinquent official, the substance of the evidence of witnesses examined during the inquiry and the documentary evidence placed on record. It should also set out the conclusions on the charges, supported by the evidence placed on record. He should conclude which of the imputations/ charges are proved. In case a particular charge, as such is not established, but part of the allegation referred to it in the statement of imputations is established, the Inquiry Officer should specifically bring this point out. The Inquiry Officer should forward along with his report all the record and the proceedings of the Inquiry.”

9. Learned counsel by referring the above referred procedure has submitted that there is no provision to constitute a One Man Inquiry Commission and its report could only be a supporting document and could not be a basis to take action against petitioner. No charge sheet was issued to petitioner. No oral evidence was recorded. Petitioner was not granted any opportunity to cross-examine complainant or witnesses. A detail procedure is prescribed for inquiry but not followed. Therefore, the order of removal from service based on a report of One Man Inquiry Commission is illegal.

10. Learned counsel further submitted that there is no explanation that once complainant has left the Institute and according to her case she remained in relationship with petitioner so much as that they perform a symbolic marriage and this relationship goes for about three years, even after she left the Institute, then such a belated complaint cannot be formed basis to a report of Inquiry Commission. Moreso it was filed only when the marriage was not solemnized and petitioner was got engaged with another girl. In support of his submissions, learned counsel placed reliance on judgments passed by Supreme Court in Avinath Nagra vs. Navodaya Vidyalaya Samiti and others (1997)2 SCC 534; Allahabad Bank and others vs. Deepak Kumar Bhola (1997)4 SCC 1; and, State of Tamil Nadu vs. Pramod Kumar and others (2018)17 SCC 677.

11. Per contra, Sri R.K. Ojha, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Sri Shivendu Ojha, learned counsel for respondents, has submitted that petitioner was not prejudice since he has opportunity to place his case which he availed also. The contents of complaint are substantially accepted by petitioner. Being a Teacher petitioner has to preserve a higher standard of morality which he fails to do. Admittedly he made physical relationship with his student probably on ground to give her benefit and even after she left the Institute, he remained in relationship and failed to marry her. Such relationship between a Teacher and his student is contrary to the basic tenets of Guru Shishya Parampara and such a Teacher cannot be allowed to serve in a Institute, which has a high reputation.

12. Heard learned counsel for parties and perused the material on record.

13. In the present case, it not in dispute that disciplinary proceedings against petitioner was not undertaken in terms of procedure prescribed in a resolution adopted by Board of Governors in its 4th Meeting held on 04.05.2004, which is referred in detail in earlier paragraphs. Said procedure prescribes that principles of natural justice are to be followed. There is a very detail procedure for inquiry which commenced with issuance of charge sheet to delinquent official, a statement of charges, a statement of imputation of misconduct, a list of witnesses and a list of documents in support of charges and a memorandum requiring the delinquent official to submit a reply within a reasonable time etc. An Inquiry Officer was requested to be appointed to conduct an inquiry. A Presenting Officer was also required to be appointed. A detail procedure has also further provided and admittedly in the present case since no Inquiry Officer was appointed, therefore, further procedure as prescribed was also not followed.

14. Now the question is, whether a One Man Inquiry Commission can by pass the detail procedure prescribed for conducting a disciplinary proceeding. It is no doubt that the One Man Inquiry Commission was headed by a Former Judge of this Court wherein petitioner and complainant appeared and recorded their respective statements.

15. The Commission has recorded statements of independent witnesses. Though no cross-examination was conducted but on basis of material available before One Man Inquiry Commission, essentially on a ground that petitioner has accepted his relationship with victim even after she left the Institution and it was found that petitioner has conducted a misconduct. Essence of order passed by One Man Inquiry Commission was based on standard of morality of a Teacher, relationship between a Teacher and student as well as that a Teacher has to keep morality at a very high pedestal and that if petitioner was allowed to work in the Institution, he might have repeated such act.

16. Court finds that since petitioner has substantially accepted the allegations made by complainant, therefore, only on ground that a detail proceeding in terms of above referred resolution, was not conducted and an inquiry was conducted by One Man Inquiry Commission would not prejudice him so much as that allegation is concerned. Petitioner has accepted that he had relationship with complainant (a student) for few months which continued even after she left the Institution and they wanted to marry but it could not happen since they belong to different religion. Therefore, it is not a case where the petitioner is prejudice or if inquiry was conducted as per the procedure, outcome of inquiry report would be different.

17. Now the Court proceed to discuss and consider, whether in such circumstances when the complainant was a willing partner in the relationship and though it commenced when she was a student of petitioner and continued even after she left the Institution for three years, therefore, after such a lapse of time, specifically when marriage was not solemnized, whether such a complaint and admit nature of relationship, could invite a major penalty to petitioner. Admittedly the complainant has not lodged any FIR against the petitioner.

18. On basis of material on record maximum it may be a case of false promise of marriage but to contend by complainant that she was forced to enter into physical relationship about three and half years ago even though she remained in relationship with petitioner for more than three years does not inspire confidence.

19. There is one more factor also that in present case, complaint was filed by an Ex-student after three years, she left the Institution and after being in relationship with petitioner for these three years that whether such a complaint could be cognizable specifically in absence of any FIR lodged by complainant.

20. In aforesaid circumstances, the Court finds that on basis of material on record, as referred above, the only reason to terminate the petitioner from service with disqualification is 'morality', i.e., a standard of morality is required to be maintained by a Teacher with their students. No doubt the petitioner has not followed or kept high standard of morality but there is another factor that except the said allegation there is no other allegation against petitioner despite he was doing job for almost three years before the order of termination was passed. In case petitioner got married with complainant after their relationship of three years, possibly no complaint was filed. Therefore, Court finds that morality has to be judged on further conduct of petitioner also and since there is no other complaint placed on record, therefore, the Court finds that punishment is shockingly disproportionate.

21. It is not a case of sexual harassment, rather admittedly it is a case of consensual relationship which continued even after the complainant left the Institution for almost three years, therefore, it may not be a case of major punishment prescribed at Serial Nos. (iv) to (vii) of Para 3 of Administrative Orders and alternatively some minor punishment may be imposed.

22. The Court further takes note that major penalties are defined at Serial Nos. 4 to 6 of Clause 9 of the Resolution. Para 3 of Administrative Orders under the heading of "Disciplinary Action, Penalties and Appeal" provides major penalties at Serial Nos. (iv) to (vii), i.e., reduction to lower service, grade or post or to lower time scale or to a lower stage in a time scale; compulsory retirement; removal from service which shall not be a disqualification for future employment in the Institution; and, dismissal from service which shall ordinarily be a disqualification for future employment in the Institute as well as minor penalties are prescribed at Serial Nos. (i) to (iii) of same Para, i.e., censure; withholding of increments or promotion; and, recovery from whole or part of any pecuniary loss caused to the Institution by negligence or breach of orders.

23. In view of above, impugned order dated 28.02.2006 is interfered qua to quantum of punishment and matter is remitted to Disciplinary Authority to pass a fresh order so far as quantum of punishment is concerned, keeping in view of observations of this Court.

24. The writ petition is accordingly disposed of.

Criminal Revision No. 6131 of 2023

Issue for Consideration

Whether a criminal revision is maintainable against an order passed by the Magistrate under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. directing the police to register an F.I.R. and investigate, at the instance of the proposed accused against whom neither cognizance has been taken nor process issued.

Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 — ss.156(3), 397(2) — Revision — Direction to register F.I.R. — Interlocutory order — Maintainability — Proposed accused — Bar under Section 397(2) — Revision dismissed.

Held:

The Full Bench of this Court in Father Thomas v. State of U.P. and Another has authoritatively held that an order of the Magistrate made in exercise of powers under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. directing the police to register and investigate is not open to revision at the instance of a person against whom neither cognizance has been taken nor any process issued. [Paras 7–9]

It has further been held that an order under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. directing investigation in a cognizable case is an interlocutory order and the remedy of revision against such order is barred under Section 397(2) Cr.P.C. [Paras 8–9]

In the present case, the learned Magistrate allowed the application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. and directed the police to register an F.I.R. and investigate. Since no revision lies against such an order, the present criminal revision filed by the proposed accused/revisionists is not maintainable. [Paras 9–10]

Accordingly, the criminal revision was dismissed. [Para 11]

Revision dismissed. (E-14)

For the Opposite Party(s): Learned G.A.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Chawan Prakash, J.)

1. List revised.

2. None present on behalf of revisionists. However, learned AGA is present.

3. The instant revision has been filed for setting aside the impugned order dated 03.11.2023 passed by learned Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Hathras in Case No. 416/12 of 2023 (Manju Vs. Nahni and others), whereby learned Magistrate issuing a direction under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. to the police to register an FIR and to investigate the same.

4. Brief facts of the case are that opposite party no. 2 moved an application under Section 156(3) Code of Criminal Procedure (Cr.P.C.) before the A.C.J.M., Hathras seeking registration of FIR against the revisionists. Learned Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, vide order dated 30.10.2023 allowed the said application and directed the police to register an FIR and to investigate the same. Feeling aggrieved the present revision has been filed.

5. Learned AGA submits that the present criminal revision is not maintainable against the impugned order passed by learned Magistrate Hathras, under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. in which the learned Magistrate allowed the application and direct the police to register the FIR. To support his contention, he has relied upon the judgment of the Full Bench of this Court in the case of Father Thomas Vs. State of U.P. and Another passed in Crl.

Revision No.1640 of 2001 vide order dated 22.12.2010.

6. In the present case, the opposite party no. 2 filed an application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. for issuance of a direction to the police to register an FIR. The learned Magistrate allowed the application and direct the police to register an FIR. The proposed accused/revisionists have filed the present criminal revision challenging the said impugned order.

7. The question as to whether the order of the Magistrate made in exercise of powers under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C directing the police to register and investigate is open to revision at the instance of a person against whom neither cognizance has been taken nor any process issued was subject matter of consideration before the Full Bench in the case of Father Thomas (Supra) wherein the following questions had been referred.

"A. Whether the order of the Magistrate made in exercise of powers under Section 156(3) Code of Criminal Procedure directing the police to register and investigate is open to revision at the instance of a person against whom neither cognizance has been taken nor any process issued?

B. Whether an order made under Section 156(3) Code of Criminal Procedure is an interlocutory order and remedy of revision against such order is barred under Sub-section (2) of Section 397 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973?

C. Whether the view expressed by a Division Bench of this Court in the case of Ajay Malviya v. State of U.P and Ors. reported in 2000(41) ACC 435 that as an order made under Section 156(3) of the Code of Criminal Procedure is amenable to revision, no writ petition for quashing an F.I.R registered on the basis of the order will be maintainable, is correct?"

8. The Full Bench after considering the matter at length expressed its opinion on the three questions which had been referred to in the following manner :-

"A. The order of the Magistrate made in exercise of powers under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C directing the police to register and investigate is not open to revision at the instance of a person against whom neither cognizance has been taken nor any process issued.

B. An order made under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C is an interlocutory order and remedy of revision against such order is barred under sub-section (2) of Section 397 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973.

C. The view expressed by a Division Bench of this Court in the case of Ajay Malviya Vs. State of U.P and others reported in 2000(41) ACC 435 that as an order made under Section 156 (3) of the Code of Criminal Procedure is amenable to revision, and no writ petition for quashing an F.I.R registered on the basis of the order will be maintainable, is not correct."

9. In view of the aforesaid opinion expressed by the Full Bench, an order of the Magistrate made in exercise of powers under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C directing the police to register and investigate is not open to revision at the instance of a person against whom neither cognizance has been taken nor any process issued. It has been further held that an order made under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. directing a police officer to investigate a cognizable case is an interlocutory order and the remedy of revision against such order is barred under Section 397 (2) Cr.P.C.

10. Since no criminal revision lies against an order passed by the Magistrate in exercise of powers under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. directing the police to register an FIR, the present revision, filed by the proposed accused/revisionists, is not maintainable.

11. Accordingly, the present criminal revision stands dismissed

Criminal Revision No. 6594 of 2025

Sanjay Singh & Ors. ...Revisionists
Versus
State of U.P. & Ors. ...Opposite Parties

Issue for Consideration

(i) Whether the present criminal revision against the order dated 17.09.2025 was maintainable when the revisionists had already filed Criminal Revision No. 132 of 2025 before the District and Sessions Judge, Kannauj against the same order; and

(ii) Whether Criminal Revision No. 132 of 2025, after having been admitted and registered, could be dismissed as "not pressed" without being decided on merits.

Headnotes

Criminal Procedure — Section 397(3) Cr.P.C. / Section 438(3) B.N.S.S. — Second revision — Concealment of material facts — Abuse of process — Dismissal with cost — Dismissal of admitted revision as not pressed — Not sustainable — Restoration.

Held:

The revisionists had filed Criminal Revision No. 132 of 2025 before the learned District and Sessions Judge, Kannauj on 24.09.2025 against the impugned order dated 17.09.2025. The said revision was admitted and registered, notice was issued and date fixed. Thereafter, the present criminal revision was prepared on 27.09.2025 and filed before the High Court on 01.10.2025 without disclosing the pendency of the earlier revision. [Paras 17–21]

In the affidavit filed in support of the present revision, the revisionists stated that no other criminal revision had been filed, whereas Criminal Revision No. 132 of 2025 was already pending before the Sessions Court. The certified copy of the impugned order had also been filed before the Sessions Court, despite seeking exemption before the High Court on the ground that it had been misplaced. These facts amounted to concealment of material facts and misuse of process of law. [Paras 18, 21–22]

In view of Section 397(3) Cr.P.C. (corresponding to Section 438(3) B.N.S.S.), once a revision is filed before one forum, a second revision against the same order is barred. Accordingly, the present revision was held not maintainable and was dismissed with cost of Rs. 20,000/-, to be deposited with the High Court Legal Services Committee. [Paras 16, 22]

As regards the order dated 07.11.2025 passed by the learned Additional Sessions Judge, Court No. 1, Kannauj dismissing Criminal Revision No. 132 of 2025 as "not pressed", it was held that once a criminal revision has been admitted and registered, there is no procedure for dismissing it in default. Even if the revisionist is absent, the revision must be decided on merits. [Para 23]

Relying on the judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Santosh v. State of U.P., it was held that dismissal of the admitted revision as not pressed was not sustainable in law. The order dated 07.11.2025 was set aside and Criminal Revision No. 132 of 2025 was restored to its original number with direction to the revisionists to appear before the concerned court. [Para 23]

The present criminal revision was dismissed with costs; however, the earlier revision before the Sessions Court was restored for decision on merits. [Paras 22–23] (E-14)

1. Heard Sri B.P. Mishra, learned counsel for the revisionists, Sri Ashutosh Singh, learned counsel for the opposite party no. 3 and learned A.G.A. for the opposite party nos. 1 and 2.

2. The present criminal revision has been filed against the impugned order dated 17.09.2025 passed by learned Sub Divisional Magistrate, Tehsil Chhibramau, District Kannauj in Computerized Case No. T-2025034000207389 (Shri Thakur Ji Maharaj Virajman Mandir Village Hathin, Pargana and Tehsil Chhibramau, District Kannauj Versus Sanjay Singh and others), under section 164 B.N.S.S., Police Station Chhibramau, Tehsil Chhibramau, District Kannauj.

3. Counter affidavit and rejoinder affidavit have been exchanged.

4. The brief facts of the case are as follows:

5. During the consolidation proceedings, on the basis of a compromise, the Assistant Consolidation Officer, Fatehgarh, District Kannauj, passed an order dated 18.08.1994, whereby Chak No. 82 and Chak No. 342 were allotted in the name of Late Baba Mahesh Das Chela in place of Baba Sukhram Das Chela Ram Das Vairagi as successor. The disputed Gata No. 226 (area about 0.259 hectare), Gata No. 288 (area about 0.77 hectare), Gata No. 251 (area about 0.3970 hectare), and Gata No. 294 (area about 0.77 hectare), situated at Village Natha Nagla, Mauja Bhaulpur, Pargana and Tehsil Chhibramau, District Kannauj, and Gata No. 1316 (area about 0.67 hectare), Gata No. 1317 (area about 2.17 hectare), Gata No. 1318 (area about 2.06 hectare), and Gata No. 1019 (area about 1.76 hectare), total area about 6.65 hectares, situated at Hathin Mauja Bhaulpur, Pargana and Tehsil Chhibramau, Police Station Chhibramau, District Kannauj, belong to Sri Thakur Ji Maharaj Virajman Mandir. In this regard, the Revenue Inspector prepared the khatauni fasli for the years 1427 to 1432 (01 July 2019 to 30 June 2025) for Gram Bhaulpur, Tehsil Chhibramau, District Kannauj.

6. In pursuance of the aforesaid will dated 14.08.2024, the revisionists constituted a registered trust deed on E-stamp paper, namely, Sri Thakur Ji Maharaj Virajman Mandir (Charitable Trust), of Village Natha Nagla, Mauja Bhaulpur, Post Hathin, Pargana and Tehsil Chhibramau, District Kannauj, on 15.05.2025, and the said trust deed was thereafter registered before the Sub-Registrar, Chhibramau, District Kannauj.

7. Learned counsel for the revisionists submits that on 09.07.2025, opposite party no. 3, namely Himanshu Chauhan, son of Ram Bharose Singh, filed an application under Section 164 B.N.S.S. before the Sub-Divisional Magistrate, Tehsil Chhibramau, District Kannauj, with a prayer that the learned Magistrate appoint a receiver and seize/attach the aforesaid agricultural properties belonging to Sri Thakur Ji Maharaj Virajman Mandir, Village Hathin, Tehsil Chhibramau, District Kannauj.

8. On 26.07.2025, after receiving the said application under Section 164 B.N.S.S., learned Sub-Divisional Magistrate, Tehsil Chhibramau, District Kannauj, called for a report from the concerned Police Station. The concerned Police Station submitted a detailed report on 26.07.2025.

9. The learned Sub-Divisional Magistrate, Chhibramau, District Kannauj, issued notice to the revisionists, and upon receiving the said notice, the revisionists filed a detailed objection/reply before the Sub-Divisional Magistrate, Chhibramau, District Kannauj, on 03.09.2025.

10. It is further submitted by learned counsel for the revisionists that the true fact is that paddy (rice) crops were standing on the aforesaid agricultural land, cultivated in the capacity of batidar, as allotted by Baba

Mahesh Das @ Mahesh Chandra during his lifetime.

11. In pursuance of the order dated 17.09.2025, the local police of Police Station Chhibramau and the Tehsildar, Tehsil Chhibramau, have been attempting to dispossess the bataidars from the disputed agricultural land and have also illegally attached/occupied the standing rice crops on the said agricultural plots. Hence, the present criminal revision has been filed before this Court.

12. The revisionists filed this revision before this Court on 01.10.2025 along with an urgency application, which was received by the State on 01.10.2025. The certified copy of the order dated 17.09.2025 had been misplaced, and an exemption was sought with an undertaking that the certified copy would be submitted if required by the Court. On the said urgency application, which was presented on 01.10.2025, the matter was placed before the Hon'ble the Chief Justice, who was pleased to consider the urgency and ordered that the matter be listed before the concerned Court on 02.10.2025 at 11:30 A.M.

13. The matter was placed before this Court on 02.10.2025 and an interim order was passed. Paragraph 10 of the interim order dated 02.10.2025 is quoted herein below:

“10. Hence, considering the entire aspect of the matter, it is hereby directed that the crops, if any, standing over the land of the aforesaid mandir shall be protected by all the stakeholders and it should not be cut by any stakeholder on the pretext of the impugned order dated 17.09.2025 so that the crops may be safe and secure.”

14. The revisionists also filed an affidavit dated 27.09.2025 of revisionist no.

3, Omkar Singh, son of Raghuveer Singh, in which it is specifically mentioned in paragraph 2 that this is the first criminal revision filed on behalf of the revisionists under Sections 438/442 B.N.S.S., 2023 before this Court against the order dated 17.09.2025, and that no other revision has been filed or is pending before this Court or at the Lucknow Bench.

15. The opposite party no. 3 filed a short counter affidavit raising a preliminary objection only on the point of maintainability and prayed that this Court be pleased to vacate the interim order dated 02.10.2025 and dismiss the present criminal revision with heavy cost for performing such an illegal act, so that justice may be done; otherwise, the innocent opposite party no. 3 would suffer irreparable loss and injury which cannot be compensated. Opposite party no. 3 has specifically stated in paragraph 5 that the impugned order dated 17.09.2025 passed by the Sub-Divisional Magistrate, Chhibramau, District Kannauj had already been challenged by the present revisionists on 24.09.2025 before the learned District and Sessions Judge, Kannauj by filing Criminal Revision No. 132 of 2025 (Sanjay Singh and others versus State of U.P. and another). Hence, the present criminal revision against the same order is not maintainable before this Court. Opposite party no. 3 has filed a copy of the memo of Criminal Revision No. 132 of 2025 (Sanjay Singh and others versus State of U.P. and another) under Section 438 B.N.S.S., Police Station Chhibramau, District Kannauj, dated 24.09.2025. The certified copy of the memo of Criminal Revision No. 132 of 2025 indicates that it was filed against the impugned order dated 17.09.2025.

16. Learned counsel for the opposite party no. 3 further submitted that the present criminal revision was filed before this Court on 01.10.2025, whereas Criminal Revision No. 132 of 2025 had already been filed before the learned District and Sessions Judge, Kannauj on 24.09.2025. It is submitted by learned counsel for the opposite party no. 3 that the revisionists cannot file a revision before both the Sessions Judge and the High Court at the same time against the same order. Once a revision is filed or decided by one forum, the revisionists are barred from filing another revision before the other forum against the same order, as provided under Section 397(3) Cr.P.C. (corresponding to Section 438(3) B.N.S.S.).

17. The Criminal Revision No. 132 of 2025 (Sanjay Singh and others versus State of U.P. and another) was filed before the learned District and Sessions Judge, Kannauj on 24.09.2025 against the impugned order dated 17.09.2025. As per the documents filed by opposite party no. 3, the said revision was admitted and registered on 24.09.2025, notice was issued, and the next date fixed was 03.11.2025. The revisionists thereafter filed a rejoinder affidavit of Chhangelal, son of Jage Singh. It has been submitted that when the revisionists came to know that the local counsel had already filed a criminal revision against the order dated 17.09.2025, they immediately and in good faith filed an application for withdrawal on 29.09.2025 before the learned District and Sessions Judge, Kannauj. A copy of the withdrawal application dated 29.09.2025 has been filed as Annexure No. RA-1 to the affidavit. The said application dated 29.09.2025, was presented before the learned District and Sessions Judge, Kannauj on 06.10.2025, as is evident from the fact that the learned

District and Sessions Judge passed an order on 06.10.2025 directing that it be put up on the date fixed. As per the usual practice in the court of the District and Sessions Judge, if any application is filed prior to the date fixed, the court orders that it be taken up on the date already fixed. Accordingly, the learned District and Sessions Judge passed the order dated 06.10.2025. Although the application bears two dates, i.e., 29.09.2025 and 06.10.2025, the order dated 06.10.2025 shows that the application was presented on 06.10.2025.

18. It is also pertinent to mention that the present Criminal Revision No. 6594 of 2025, filed before this Court, was prepared on 27.09.2025, and the supporting affidavit sworn before the Oath Commissioner, High Court Allahabad, is also dated 27.09.2025. The revisionists filed an exemption application stating that the certified copy of the impugned order had been misplaced, whereas the certified copy appears to have been filed before the learned District and Sessions Judge, Kannauj in Criminal Revision No. 132 of 2025 on 24.09.2025. The urgency application was allowed by the Hon'ble Chief Justice. In the affidavit dated 27.09.2025 filed before this Court, the revisionists concealed the fact that they had already filed criminal revision before the District and Sessions Judge, Kannauj and falsely stated that no other criminal revision had been filed. Thus, the revisionists used the entire machinery of the High Court as per their own convenience by concealing material facts.

19. The revisionists filed a copy of the order dated 07.11.2025 passed by the Additional Sessions Judge, Court No. 1, Kannauj in Criminal Revision No. 132 of 2025 (Sanjay Singh and others versus State of U.P. and another). The learned Additional Sessions Judge recorded that when the case was called out, learned counsel for the revisionists, Sri Sarvesh Yadav, was present, but none appeared for the opposite parties. Learned counsel for the revisionists endorsed on the order sheet that he did not wish to press the criminal revision. Hence, the criminal revision was dismissed as not pressed.

20. In reply to paragraph 5 of the counter affidavit of opposite party no. 3, the revisionists, in paragraph 18 of their rejoinder affidavit, stated that the contents of paragraphs 5, 6, 7, 8, and 9 of the counter affidavit are incorrect and therefore denied. It is submitted that when the revisionists came to know that a revision had already been filed by the local counsel before the learned District and Sessions Judge, they filed the withdrawal application on 29.09.2025 without delay, and thereafter, on grounds of urgency, filed the present revision before this Court on 01.10.2025 during Dusshera vacation. Therefore, there was no bad intention to mislead this Court. However, the supporting affidavit in the present criminal revision is dated 27.09.2025, which is prior to 29.09.2025 and 06.10.2025, the dates on which the withdrawal application was filed before the learned District and Sessions Judge, Kannauj.

21. In view of the above facts, reasons and circumstances, it is categorically clear that the revisionists filed Criminal Revision No. 132 of 2025 (Sanjay Singh versus State of U.P. and another) before the learned District and Sessions Judge, Kannauj on 24.09.2025 against the impugned order dated 17.09.2025. When the notices were issued on 24.09.2025 and the next date was fixed as 03.11.2025, the revisionists, on 27.09.2025, prepared and sworn the affidavit in support of the present criminal revision and filed it before this Court on 01.10.2025, along with an urgency application, falsely seeking exemption for filing the certified copy on the ground that it had been misplaced, whereas the certified copy was filed before the learned District and Sessions Judge, Kannauj on 24.09.2025. Thereafter, the Hon'ble Chief Justice considered the urgency and directed listing of the revision on 02.10.2025, when interim order was passed. Subsequently, on 06.10.2025, the revisionists filed an application before the learned District and Sessions Judge, Kannauj in Criminal Revision No. 132 of 2025 seeking withdrawal. As per practice, no order was passed on the same date because the next date was fixed as 03.11.2025, and the application was ordered to be put up on the date fixed.

22. All these facts and circumstances clearly show that the revisionists filed the present criminal revision before this Court while concealing material facts and misusing the process of law for their own benefit, including seeking exemption from the Hon'ble Chief Justice. Accordingly, due to such concealment and misuse of the legal process, the present revision is liable to be dismissed, and it is dismissed with a cost of Rs. 20,000/-. The cost shall be deposited with the High Court Legal Services Committee within 15 days.

23. As far as the order dated 07.11.2025 passed by the learned Additional Sessions Judge, Court No. 1, Kannauj in Criminal Revision No. 132 of 2025 (Sanjay Singh and others versus State of U.P. and another) dismissing the revision as not pressed is concerned, the same is not sustainable in the eyes of law. The said criminal revision was duly admitted and registered by the learned District and Sessions Judge vide order dated 24.09.2025. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in Santosh versus State of U.P., (2010) 3 SCC (Criminal) 307 has held that after admission of a criminal revision, there is no procedure for dismissing it in default, and even if the revisionist is absent, the revision cannot be dismissed in default and must be decided on merits. It is undisputed that Criminal Revision No. 132 of 2025 was admitted and registered on 24.09.2025; therefore, it could not be dismissed as not pressed. It must be decided on merits. Accordingly, the order dated 07.11.2025 passed by the learned Additional Sessions Judge, Court No. 1, Kannauj in Criminal Revision No. 132 of 2025 is hereby set aside. Criminal Revision No. 132 of 2025 is restored to its original number. The revisionists are directed to appear before the concerned Court of the Additional Sessions Judge, Court No. 1, Kannauj on 17.12.2025.

24. A copy of this order shall be sent by e-mail to the learned District and Sessions Judge, Kannauj, for compliance.

Appeal U/S 37 Of Arbitration & Conciliation Act
 1996 No.- 75 of 2024

M/S Regenovo Mobile Pvt. Ltd. Lucknow &
 Anr. ...Applicants

Versus
M/S Siyogi Enterprises & Ors.
 ...Respondents

Issue for Consideration

Whether the Sole Arbitrator exceeded jurisdiction by adjudicating and allowing claims relating to work executed beyond the city of Lucknow, when the agreement dated 01.08.2016 confined the engagement of the respondents for advertisement services to the city of Lucknow, and consequently whether the Commercial Court erred in affirming the award under Section 34 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996.

Headnotes

Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 — Sections 34 and 37 — Scope of interference — Arbitration clause — Interpretation — Area of operation of agreement — Work beyond agreed territorial scope — Patent illegality — Award set aside.

Held:

The agreement dated 01.08.2016 expressly recorded that the appellants were desirous of engaging the services of an advertising agency for advertisement of their products in the city of Lucknow. The arbitration clause provided that disputes arising out of or in relation to the agreement shall be referred to arbitration. When read together, the arbitration clause was confined to disputes arising from work governed by the agreement, namely advertisement services within the city of Lucknow. [Paras 34–37, 48–50]

The Sole Arbitrator held that the agreement did not debar the respondents from working outside Lucknow and, noticing that payments had been made earlier for work done in other districts, concluded that disputes relating to work done across the State of U.P. were arbitrable. However, there was no material, correspondence, corrigendum or supplementary agreement evidencing expansion or modification of the principal agreement to enlarge the area of operation or scope of the arbitration clause. [Paras 41–43]

In absence of any evidence demonstrating variation, modification or novation of the agreement, the Arbitrator's conclusion that the arbitration clause extended to disputes relating to work beyond Lucknow was based on presumption and amounted to reading into the contract what was not agreed between the parties. Such exercise was beyond jurisdiction and rendered the award vulnerable. [Paras 43, 51, 53]

The Commercial Court, while exercising jurisdiction under Section 34 of the Act, 1996, failed to notice the distinction between the agreed area of operation and the scope of the arbitration clause, and thereby erred in upholding the award. The error fell foul of the patent illegality test. [Para 52]

The Court examined the possibility of severing claims relating to work done in Lucknow in light of Gayatri Balasamy v. ISG Novasoft Technologies Limited but found that the guidelines laid therein were not satisfied. Consequently, the award dated 31.12.2018 and the order dated 06.11.2024 passed by the Commercial Court were set aside in entirety. [Para 54]

It was left open to the parties to have disputes relating to money claims for work done in the city of Lucknow settled through arbitration, and to agitate other claims before the appropriate forum. The appeal was allowed. [Paras 55–56] (E-14)

Case Arising From

Judgment and order dated 06.11.2024 passed by the Commercial Court No.1, Lucknow in Arbitration Case No. 35 of 2019 (arising out of award dated 31.12.2018 passed by the Sole Arbitrator), whereby the petition under Section 34 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 was dismissed.

Appearance for Parties

For the Appellants: Shri Sumeet Kaul, Shri Kaif Najmi, Shri Mohammad Rashid

For the Respondents: Shri Gyan Singh Chauhan, Smt. Manju Devi
Shri Amitabh Singh Raikwar, Ms. Archana Kamal

For the State: Learned A.G.A.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Jaspreet Singh, J.)

1. The instant appeal preferred, under Section 37 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act 1996, by the appellants assails the judgment and order dated 06.11.2024 passed by the Commercial Court No.1, Lucknow in Arbitration Case No.35 of 2019, whereby the petition preferred by the appellants under Section 34 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act

1996 was dismissed and as a consequence the award passed by the Sole Arbitrator dated 31.12.2018 was affirmed.

2. The controversy involved in the instant appeal is ensconced in a narrow compass. The core contention revolves around the scope of the arbitration clause vis-a-vis the area of operation of the agreement dated 01.08.2016, containing the arbitration clause.

3. In order to resolve the controversy, it will be necessary to take note of certain facts giving rise to the instant appeal.

4. The appellants are a Corporation engaged in the sale and distribution of mobile phones/handsets and accessories under the brand of 'VIVO Mobile'. The respondent no.1, on the other hand, is a partnership firm of which the respondents no.2 and 3 are the partners who are engaged in the business of advertising and providing marketing services.

5. On 01.08.2016, an agreement was entered between the appellants and the respondents and in furtherance of the said agreement, the respondents had agreed to act as an advertising agent for the appellants. The agreement stated that the appellants were the exclusive dealer of 'VIVO Mobile' Handsets and Accessories for the State of Uttar Pradesh and it was desirous to engage the services of an advertising agency for advertising the products in the city of Lucknow. The said agreement also contained an arbitration clause.

6. The agreement between the parties was acted upon and accordingly the appellants' Corporation assigned advertising work to the respondents from time to time. Work Orders issued by the appellants was executed by the respondents, who in turn raised invoices for the work done and the same was paid by the appellants.

7. Certain disputes arose between the parties and the appellants by means of its email dated 28.03.2017 terminated the agreement dated 01.08.2016. The respondents invoked the arbitration clause and the Indian Council of Arbitration appointed Dr. Dharmesh Sharma as the Sole Arbitrator.

8. On 27.06.2017, a statement of claim was filed by the respondents which contained claims relating to non payment of the invoices for the work done by the respondents not only within the city of Lucknow but also in respect of work done by the respondents in districts other than Lucknow, however, within the State of U.P. The appellants filed their statement of defence before the Sole Arbitrator and inter alia raised a defence, that in so far as the claims raised by the respondents relating to non payment of invoices for the work done in the districts other than Lucknow was concerned, it was beyond the scope of arbitration clause and agreement.

9. It was also alleged that once the agreement dated 01.08.2016 was terminated and the respondents were put to notice then it should have desisted from carrying out any further work. Moreover, any work done by the respondents was beyond the authority and any claim arising there from was not admissible for adjudication nor the appellants could be compelled to honour the same.

10. The Sole Arbitrator after considering the pleadings, evidence and contentions went on to make its award dated 31.12.2018 and awarded a sum of Rs.4,22,82,216/- towards the pending bills and also awarded a sum of Rs.1,11,36,586/- as interest. The Sole Arbitrator further awarded a sum of Rs.3,14,915 towards the tax deducted at source while making the payments to the respondents but not deposited with the Income Tax Department. A sum of Rs.18,6,275/- was awarded under the head of costs and as such a total amount of Rs.5,55,39,992/- was awarded and it was directed to be paid within a week, failing which, the said amount would attract interest at the rate of 15% per annum from the date of the award till the date of actual payment.

11. This award was assailed by the appellants by filing a petition under Section 34 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 before the Commercial Court No.1, Lucknow which was registered as Case No.1357 of 2019. The Commercial Court No.1, Lucknow vide its judgment and order dated 06.11.2024 did not find any error in the award and it dismissed the petition, upholding the award.

12. Being aggrieved, the appellants have approached this Court by means of the instant appeal under Section 37 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996.

13. Shri Sumeet Kaul, learned counsel for the appellants alongwith Shri Kaif Najmi and Shri Mohammad Rashid has contended that the judgment and order passed by the Commercial Court No.1, Lucknow dated 06.11.2024 is patently erroneous as it has ignored the relevant clauses of the agreement which had restricted the scope of disputes which could be referred for arbitration as a result the award was made in respect of the subject matter which was not covered by the arbitration agreement.

14. Learned counsel for the appellants has further urged that both the Sole Arbitrator and the Commercial Court No.1, Lucknow exceeded its jurisdiction in allowing claims of the respondents which did not fall within the four-corners of the arbitration agreement.

15. Elaborating his submission, the learned counsel for the appellants pointed out that the scope of the agreement entered between the parties dated 01.08.2016 was confined to the advertisements and work done within the city of Lucknow. Any dispute arising between the parties relating to unpaid bills if related to the city of Lucknow could at best be adjudicated but both the Sole Arbitrator and the Commercial Court No.1 overstepped its jurisdiction by entering into the disputes which fell beyond the limit of Lucknow and the same was neither consented nor it could be inferred by evidence that at any point of time the appellants agreed to enhance the scope of the arbitration clause to include disputes relating to the work done beyond the district of Lucknow.

16. It was further submitted that the respondents had raised claims relating to unpaid invoices, 67 in number, total amounting to Rs.4,22,82,216/-. However, only bill relating to the work done within the city of Lucknow could have been adjudicated and not in respect of bills relating to the work done in districts other than Lucknow.

17. It was also submitted that after signing of the agreement dated 01.08.2016 there was no corrigendum/supplementary agreement or any office note by which it could be inferred or deciphered that the parties had extended the scope of the arbitration clause in the agreement dated 01.08.2016 and in absence thereof the Sole Arbitrator as well as the Commercial Court No.1, Lucknow committed a patent illegality of having entered into a domain of disputes which were not arbitrable and were beyond the scope of the arbitration agreement.

18. It was thus urged that the award suffers from patent illegality and perversity and the Commercial Court No.1, Lucknow also committed a grave error in ignoring this aspect and by affirming the award it has given a seal of judicial acceptance to a perverse award and this in itself is contrary to law and public policy, hence the award dated 31.12.2018 and the order passed by the Commercial Court No.1 dated 06.11.2024 deserve to be set aside.

19. Per contra, Shri Gyan Singh Chauhan, learned counsel for the respondents alongwith Smt. Manju Devi submitted that it could not be disputed by the appellant that it did not enter into an agreement with the respondents which contained an arbitration clause. It also cannot be disputed by the appellants that in furtherance of the agreement dated 01.08.2016, the appellants had issued work orders to the respondents which was duly executed and as and when the invoices were raised, the same was paid to the respondents and they related to the work done not only within the city of Lucknow but even relating to the work executed in other districts of the State of U.P.

20. It was also urged that the agreement dated 01.08.2016 envisaged the concept of variation and a specific mention was made and attention was drawn to clause 7 and 9 of the agreement dated 01.08.2016. It was urged that undisputedly the appellants issued work orders even for the work done beyond the city of Lucknow. Part payments were made to the respondents and the work done by the respondents was also approved. This would indicate that the appellants as well as the respondents clearly understood that the agreement for advertising was not only confined to the city of Lucknow but extended to other districts of U.P. as well.

21. Whenever a work order was issued for any place other than Lucknow, the respondents executed the work and the respondents would raise its invoices which were paid and at no point of time any such dispute or objection was raised by the appellants. It is only when the agreement dated 01.08.2016 was terminated and when the appellants was required to settle the outstanding bills that the appellants with a malafide intent of not honouring the said bills, as an afterthought, created this dispute and refused to pay which forced the respondents to invoke the arbitration clause.

22. It was further urged that even before the Sole Arbitrator no material or evidence was placed which could indicate that the parties had confined their transactions under the agreement dated 01.08.2016 only to the city of Lucknow. On the contrary, both the parties clearly understood that the agreement would operate throughout the State of Uttar Pradesh and it was evidenced from the conduct as the bills raised by the respondents relating to the work done beyond the city of Lucknow were also cleared by the appellants. Now during the arbitral proceedings and to cause financial harm to the respondents, the appellants raised the objections relating to scope of disputes which could be referred for arbitration, which are not sustainable.

23. Learned counsel for the respondents further urged that Section 28(3) of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 mandates adherence to the terms of a contract keeping in mind the principle of 'party autonomy'. It is urged that where both the parties agreed to expand the scope of the arbitration agreement, in such circumstances, the Sole Arbitrator was justified in giving a complete meaning to the contract noticing the conduct of the parties. In the instant case, the parties by their own conduct had varied or modified the terms of the agreement hence, the Arbitrator was bound to take note of it and applying the aforesaid principle, the Arbitrator made his award which cannot said to be bad in the eyes of law or patently erroneous which may require the intervention of the Court either in terms of Section 34 of the Act, 1996 which needless to say is a restricted jurisdiction and moreover the scope of Section 37 of the Act of 1996 is further restricted.

24. It was further urged by the counsel for the respondents that the appellants do not deny their liability to pay bills which are 18 in number relating to the work done in the city of Lucknow. However, in so far as the bills other than that are concerned, it is not disputed by them that the work was not done or that the appellants did not issue the work order for such work or the work done was below par, in such circumstances, where the quantum and the liability to pay is not disputed but on technical ground of territorial jurisdiction, the objections are raised and they cannot be sustained in law. Accordingly, the appeal deserves to be dismissed with costs.

25. The Court has heard the learned counsel for the parties and also perused the material on record.

26. At the outset, it will be relevant to notice the scope of jurisdiction exercised by this Court in terms of Section 37 of the Act of 1996 which has been duly considered and explained by the Apex Court in UHL Power Co. Ltd. v. State of H.P., (2022) 4 SCC 116, wherein the apex court observed as under :-

"16. As it is, the jurisdiction conferred on courts under Section 34 of the Arbitration Act is fairly narrow, when it comes to the scope of an appeal under Section 37 of the Arbitration Act, the jurisdiction of an appellate court in examining an order, setting aside or refusing to set aside an award, is all the more circumscribed. In MMTC Ltd. v. Vedanta Ltd. [MMTC Ltd. v. Vedanta Ltd., (2019) 4 SCC 163 : (2019) 2 SCC (Civ) 293], the reasons for vesting such a limited jurisdiction on the High Court in exercise of powers under Section 34 of the Arbitration Act have been explained in the following words : (SCC pp. 166-67, para 11)

"11. As far as Section 34 is concerned, the position is well-settled by now that the Court does not sit in appeal over the arbitral award and may interfere on merits on the limited ground provided under Section 34(2)(b)(ii) i.e. if the award is against the public policy of India. As per the legal position clarified through decisions of this Court prior to the amendments to the 1996 Act in 2015, a violation of Indian public policy, in turn, includes a violation of the fundamental policy of Indian law, a violation of the interest of India, conflict with justice or morality, and the existence of patent illegality in the arbitral award. Additionally, the concept of the "fundamental policy of Indian law" would cover compliance with statutes and judicial precedents, adopting a judicial approach, compliance with the principles of natural justice, and Wednesbury [Associated Provincial Picture Houses Ltd. v. Wednesbury Corpn., (1948) 1 KB 223 (CA)] reasonableness. Furthermore, "patent illegality" itself has been held to mean contravention of the substantive law of India, contravention of the 1996 Act, and contravention of the terms of the contract."

17. A similar view, as stated above, has been taken by this Court in K. Sugumar v. Hindustan Petroleum Corpn. Ltd. [K. Sugumar v. Hindustan Petroleum Corpn. Ltd., (2020) 12 SCC 539], wherein it has been observed as follows : (SCC p. 540, para 2)

"2. The contours of the power of the Court under Section 34 of the Act are too well established to require any reiteration. Even a bare reading of Section 34 of the Act indicates the highly constricted power of the civil court to interfere with an arbitral award. The reason for this is obvious. When parties have chosen to avail an alternate mechanism for dispute resolution, they must be left to reconcile themselves to the wisdom of the decision of the arbitrator and the role of the court should be restricted to the bare minimum. Interference will be justified only in cases of commission of misconduct by the arbitrator which can find manifestation in different forms including exercise of legal perversity by the arbitrator."

18. It has also been held time and again by this Court that if there are two plausible interpretations of the terms and conditions of the contract, then no fault can be found, if the learned arbitrator proceeds to accept one interpretation as against the other. In Dyna Technologies (P) Ltd. v. Crompton Greaves Ltd. [Dyna Technologies (P) Ltd. v. Crompton Greaves Ltd., (2019) 20 SCC 1], the limitations on the Court while exercising powers under Section 34 of the Arbitration Act has been highlighted thus : (SCC p. 12, para 24)

“24. There is no dispute that Section 34 of the Arbitration Act limits a challenge to an award only on the grounds provided therein or as interpreted by various Courts. We need to be cognizant of the fact that arbitral awards should not be interfered with in a casual and cavalier manner, unless the Court comes to a conclusion that the perversity of the award goes to the root of the matter without there being a possibility of alternative interpretation which may sustain the arbitral award. Section 34 is different in its approach and cannot be equated with a normal appellate jurisdiction. The mandate under Section 34 is to respect the finality of the arbitral award and the party autonomy to get their dispute adjudicated by an alternative forum as provided under the law. If the Courts were to interfere with the arbitral award in the usual course on factual aspects, then the commercial wisdom behind opting for alternate dispute resolution would stand frustrated.”

19. In Parsa Kente Collieries Ltd. v. Rajasthan Rajya Vidyut Utpadan Nigam Ltd. [Parsa Kente Collieries Ltd. v. Rajasthan Rajya Vidyut Utpadan Nigam Ltd., (2019) 7 SCC 236 : (2019) 3 SCC (Civ) 552], adverting to the previous decisions of this Court in McDermott International Inc. v. Burn Standard Co. Ltd. [McDermott International Inc. v. Burn

Standard Co. Ltd., (2006) 11 SCC 181] and Rashtriya Ispat Nigam Ltd. v. Dewan Chand Ram Saran [Rashtriya Ispat Nigam Ltd. v. Dewan Chand Ram Saran, (2012) 5 SCC 306], wherein it has been observed that an Arbitral Tribunal must decide in accordance with the terms of the contract, but if a term of the contract has been construed in a reasonable manner, then the award ought not to be set aside on this ground, it has been held thus : (Parsa Kente Collieries case [Parsa Kente Collieries Ltd. v. Rajasthan Rajya Vidyut Utpadan Nigam Ltd., (2019) 7 SCC 236 : (2019) 3 SCC (Civ) 552], SCC pp. 244-45, para 9)

“9.1. ... It is further observed and held that construction of the terms of a contract is primarily for an arbitrator to decide unless the arbitrator construes the contract in such a way that it could be said to be something that no fair-minded or reasonable person could do. It is further observed by this Court in the aforesaid decision in para 33 that when a court is applying the “public policy” test to an arbitration award, it does not act as a court of appeal and consequently errors of fact cannot be corrected. A possible view by the arbitrator on facts has necessarily to pass muster as the arbitrator is the ultimate master of the quantity and quality of evidence to be relied upon when he delivers his arbitral award. It is further observed that thus an award based on little evidence or on evidence which does not measure up in quality to a trained legal mind would not be held to be invalid on this score.

Gupta Brother Steel Tubes Ltd., (2009) 10 SCC 63 : (2009) 4 SCC (Civ) 16] , SCC para 29.”

20. In Dyna Technologies [Dyna Technologies (P) Ltd. v. Crompton Greaves Ltd., (2019) 20 SCC 1] , the view taken above has been reiterated in the following words : (SCC p. 12, para 25)

“25. Moreover, umpteen number of judgments of this Court have categorically held that the courts should not interfere with an award merely because an alternative view on facts and interpretation of contract exists. The courts need to be cautious and should defer to the view taken by the Arbitral Tribunal even if the reasoning provided in the award is implied unless such award portrays perversity unpardonable under Section 34 of the Arbitration Act.”

21. An identical line of reasoning has been adopted in South East Asia Marine Engg. & Constructions Ltd. (Seamec Ltd.) v. Oil India Ltd. [South East Asia Marine Engg. & Constructions Ltd. (Seamec Ltd.) v. Oil India Ltd., (2020) 5 SCC 164 : (2020) 3 SCC (Civ) 1] and it has been held as follows : (SCC p. 172, paras 12-13)

“12. It is a settled position that a court can set aside the award only on the grounds as provided in the Arbitration Act as interpreted by the courts. Recently, this Court in Dyna Technologies (P) Ltd. v. Crompton Greaves Ltd. [Dyna Technologies (P) Ltd. v. Crompton Greaves Ltd., (2019) 20 SCC 1] laid down the scope of such interference. This Court observed as follows : (SCC p. 12, para 24)

‘24. There is no dispute that Section 34 of the Arbitration Act limits a challenge to an award only on the grounds provided therein or as interpreted by various Courts. We need to be cognizant of the fact that arbitral awards should not be interfered with in a casual and cavalier manner, unless the Court comes to a conclusion that the perversity of the award goes to the root of the matter without there being a possibility of alternative interpretation which may sustain the arbitral award. Section 34 is different in its approach and cannot be equated with a normal appellate jurisdiction. The mandate under Section 34 is to respect the finality of the arbitral award and the party autonomy to get their dispute adjudicated by an alternative forum as provided under the law. If the Courts were to interfere with the arbitral award in the usual course on factual aspects, then the commercial wisdom behind opting for alternate dispute resolution would stand frustrated.’

13. It is also settled law that where two views are possible, the Court cannot interfere in the plausible view taken by the arbitrator supported by reasoning. This Court in Dyna Technologies [Dyna Technologies (P) Ltd. v. Crompton Greaves Ltd., (2019) 20 SCC 1] observed as under : (SCC p. 12, para 25)

‘25. Moreover, umpteen number of judgments of this Court have categorically held that the Court should not interfere with an award merely because an alternative view on facts and interpretation of contract exists. The Courts need to be cautious and should defer to the view taken by the Arbitral Tribunal even if the reasoning provided in the award is implied unless such award portrays perversity unpardonable under Section 34 of the Arbitration Act.”

27. Keeping the aforesaid principles and scope for intervention in mind, it will be appropriate now to consider the relevant clauses of the agreement dated 01.08.2016, on which the respective parties have based their submissions.

28. The agreement dated 01.08.2016, in its introductory covenants defines the purpose and scope of the agreement which is being reproduced hereinafter for ready reference:-

"WHEREAS the company is exclusive dealer in the State of Uttar Pradesh for 'VIVO' mobile handsets and accessories etc. hereinafter referred to as 'the said products' and desirous to engage the services of an advertising agency for the purpose of advertisement of their products in the City of Lucknow.

AND WHEREAS the agency has agreed to act as advertising agents for the company on the terms and conditions hereinafter mentioned."

29. The clauses of the agreement relating to its workability which are relevant for the present controversy are clause 5, 6, 7, 9 and 10 which are being reproduced hereafter under:-

"5.... Quality of the said product should be as per specification mentioned in Annexure-A if quality is not as per standard, company is liable to cancel that order and if occur twice, can cancel this agreement also. Also the size should be accurate and also installation is finely done. If size and installation is not fine, agency have to change it free of cost and will be penalize to same amount of that issued branding thing is not changed, also they have to change it within three days if they don't want to get penalized.

6. The work must be completed whatever time is told by vendor and it must be satisfactory, after that approval will be given on email, if fail to give installation within time, company have the right to penalize them 1% per day.

7. In special cases if company provide extra work to agency then they can ask for more time and also need approval for that. After approval given agency have to provide the final date of installation, as required.

* * * * *

9.... Whenever the company offers any new product and launches the same in the market for sale, the Agency shall undertake special advertisement campaign for the said new product in consultation with the company.

10. The Agency will have to follow our guidelines while making our product, if they falls, company has to the authority not to accept that product."

30. The language of the arbitration clause in the agreement is also important and the said clause 11 reads as under:-

"11. All disputes between the parties hereto arising out of this Agreement or in relation thereto or regarding the interpretation of this Agreement shall be referred to an arbitrator appointed by the Indian Council of Arbitration and the provisions of the Indian Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 or any statutory modification thereof shall be applicable to such reference."

31. The respondents invoked the arbitration clause and after appointment of the Sole Arbitrator the respondents submitted its statement of claim, a copy of which is on record as Annexure 5 with the paper book. In the said statement of claim, the respondents clearly raised its money claims relating to unpaid invoices which were relatable to the work done in the City of Lucknow and also done in other districts of U.P. Simply put, the claim as indicated in the statement furnished before the Arbitrator was that the respondents in furtherance of the agreement dated 01.08.2016 had worked and provided the necessary services to the appellants. Invoices relating to the work orders were furnished which remained unpaid apart from the fact that the appellants had arbitrarily terminated the agreement and in the given circumstance the appellants were required to pay the outstanding amount for the work done to the respondents.

32. The appellants filed their statement of defence wherein inter alia it had specifically raised a plea that the agreement dated 01.08.2016 was confined to engaging the services of the respondents for advertising in the City of Lucknow. The Sole Arbitrator can only adjudicate the disputes arising from the work allegedly done in the City of Lucknow and all additional claims which relate to the work done outside the City of Lucknow and in other districts cannot be clubbed nor could be referred for arbitration.

33. In the aforesaid backdrop, the Sole Arbitrator in its award considered the plea of limited scope relating to the disputes to be referred for arbitration, in the following words which is being reproduced hereinafter for clarity:-

"....Bare reading the agreement shows that Regenovo is desirous to engage services of an advertising agency for the purpose of advertisement of their products in the city of Lucknow. In the subsequent narration, stipulating terms and conditions of the agreement, it is not mentioned that this agreement applied to work carried out only in the city of Lucknow. This agreement does not bar claimant to work outside Lucknow. On the contrary para 9 of agreement makes it mandatory to undertake special advertisement campaign for the said new products in consultation with the Company, whenever the Company offers a new product and launches the same in market for sale. Further from the records, it is quite evident that respondents have been regularly paying the bills for the assignments, carried out in cities other than Lucknow. During the pendency of agreement, respondents did not raise this issue and in fact respondents have been granting approval of designs at site locations all over the state. Regenovo launched new products and carried out special advertisement campaign in all cities and towns. Thus it appears that respondents plea regarding jurisdiction limited to Lucknow city is an afterthought and is not supported by any documentary evidence and even agreement does not debar claimant from working outside Lucknow once an approval is granted.

Considering facts and circumstances of case, I find no merit and force in this argument and rule that claimant was entitled to work all over the state once an approval is accorded against design at any location. Thus this plea of respondents is rejected and claimant is entitled for payment for work done by him all over the State of U.P...."

34. Having considered the rival submissions and the relevant material available on record including the relevant terms and conditions, the pleadings as well as findings returned by the Sole Arbitrator, this Court finds that as far as the agreement is concerned, it clearly indicated in the introductory covenants that the appellants were the exclusive dealer of 'VIVO Mobiles' in the State of Uttar Pradesh and the respondents were engaged for the purposes of advertising and that too was confined to provide such services in the city of Lucknow.

35. In this context, at the cost of repetition, this Court finds that it will be gainful to notice that the said introductory paragraph and the arbitration clause together and both are being reproduced hereinafter:-

"WHEREAS the company is exclusive dealer in the State of Uttar Pradesh for 'VIVO' mobile handsets and accessories etc. hereinafter referred to as "the said products" and desirous to engage the services of an advertising agency for the purpose of advertisement of their products in the City of Lucknow."

"11. All disputes between the parties hereto arising out of this Agreement or in relation thereto or regarding the interpretation of this Agreement shall be referred to an arbitrator appointed by the Indian Council of Arbitration and the provisions of the Indian Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 or any statutory modification thereof shall be applicable to such reference."

36. If these two paragraphs, which admittedly are part of the agreement dated 01.08.2016, are read together it would indicate that as far as the status of the appellants are concerned, they have been clearly defined to be the dealer of 'VIVO Mobiles' and handsets and accessories for the State of Uttar Pradesh. In the very same paragraph, it has clearly been indicated that the appellant Corporation was desirous to engage the services of an advertising agency for the purposes of advertisement for their products in the city of Lucknow.

37. Apparently, if the parties had agreed for engaging the respondents for advertising services for the entire State of Uttar Pradesh, it could have very easily mentioned it in the agreement itself but it has been conspicuously left out and it has been restricted only to the city of Lucknow. It is in this context that the arbitration clause provides that any dispute arising out of this agreement or in relation thereto shall be referred to arbitration and the Arbitrator was to be appointed by the Indian Council of Arbitration.

38. It will be relevant to examine how an arbitration clause is to be interpreted. Whether it requires strict or liberal interpretation so as to expand the scope of arbitral disputes, even though they may not have been explicitly provided in the clause/agreement, was considered by the Apex Court in (i) Harsha Constructions v. Union of India, (2014) 9 SCC 246, (ii) United India Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Hyundai Engg. & Construction Co. Ltd., (2018) 17 SCC 607, (iii) Oriental Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Narbheram Power and Steel (P) Ltd., (2018) 6 SCC 534. The aforesaid judgments were relied upon by the Apex Court in its later judgment in Indian Oil Corpn. Ltd. v. NCC Ltd., (2023) 2 SCC 539 and Emaar (India) Ltd. v. Tarun Aggarwal Projects LLP, (2023) 13 SCC 661. To avoid duplicacy, the relevant paragraphs of Emaar (supra) is being reproduced hereinafter:-

"14. In Oriental Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Narbheram Power & Steel (P) Ltd. [Oriental Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Narbheram Power & Steel (P) Ltd., (2018) 6 SCC 534 : (2018) 3 SCC (Civ) 484] , it is observed and held by this Court that the parties are bound by the clauses enumerated in the policy and the Court does not transplant any equity to the same by rewriting a clause. It is further observed and held that an arbitration clause is required to be strictly construed. Any expression in the clause must unequivocally express the intent of arbitration. It can also lay the postulate in which situations the arbitration clause cannot be given effect to. It is further observed that if a clause stipulates that under certain circumstances there can be no arbitration and they are demonstrably clear then the controversy pertaining to appointment of arbitrator has to be put to rest (paras 10-23).

15. In Rajasthan State Industrial Development & Investment Corpn. v. Diamond & Gem Development Corpn. Ltd. [Rajasthan State Industrial Development & Investment Corpn. v. Diamond & Gem Development Corpn. Ltd., (2013) 5 SCC 470 : (2013) 3 SCC (Civ) 153] , it is observed and held by this Court that a party cannot claim anything more than what is covered by the terms of the contract, for the reason that the contract is a transaction between two parties and has been entered into with open eyes and by understanding the nature of contract. It is further observed that thus the contract being a creature of an agreement between two or more parties has to be interpreted giving literal meanings unless there is some ambiguity therein. The contract is to be interpreted giving the actual meaning to the words contained in the contract and it is not permissible for the Court to make a new contract, however reasonable, if the parties have not made it themselves. It is further observed that the terms of the contract have to be construed strictly without altering the nature of a contract as it may affect the interest of either of the parties adversely (para 23).

16. In Harsha Constructions v. Union of India [Harsha Constructions v. Union of India, (2014) 9 SCC 246 : (2014) 4 SCC (Civ) 803] , it is observed and held by this Court in paras 18 and 19 as under : (SCC p. 251)

"18. Arbitration arises from a contract and unless there is a specific written contract, a contract with regard to arbitration cannot be presumed. Section 7(3) of the Act clearly specifies that the contract with regard to arbitration must be in writing. Thus, so far as the disputes which have been referred to in Clause 39 of the contract are concerned, it was not open to the arbitrator to arbitrate upon the said disputes as there was a specific clause whereby the said disputes had been ?excepted?. Moreover, when the law specifically makes a provision with regard to formation of a contract in a particular manner, there cannot be any presumption with regard to a contract if the contract is not entered into by the mode prescribed under the Act.

19. If a non-arbitrable dispute is referred to an arbitrator and even if an issue is framed by the arbitrator in relation to such a dispute, in our opinion, there cannot be a presumption or a conclusion to the effect that the parties had agreed to refer the issue to the arbitrator. In the instant case, the respondent authorities had raised an objection relating to the arbitrability of the aforesaid issue before the arbitrator and yet the arbitrator had rendered his decision on the said ?excepted? dispute. In our opinion, the arbitrator could not have decided the said ?excepted? dispute. We, therefore, hold that it was not open to the arbitrator to decide the issues which were not arbitrable and the award, so far as it relates to disputes regarding non-arbitrable disputes is concerned, is bad in law and is hereby quashed.”

* * * * *

19. On the question, who decides on non-arbitrability of the dispute, after referring to and considering the earlier decisions on the point, more particularly, the decisions in Garware Wall Ropes Ltd. v. Coastal Marine Constructions & Engg. Ltd. [Garware Wall Ropes Ltd. v. Coastal Marine Constructions & Engg. Ltd., (2019) 9 SCC 209 : (2019) 4 SCC (Civ) 324] , United India Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Hyundai Engg. & Construction Co. Ltd. [United India Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Hyundai Engg. & Construction Co. Ltd., (2018) 17 SCC 607 : (2019) 2 SCC (Civ) 530] and Narbheram Power & Steel [Oriental Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Narbheram Power & Steel (P) Ltd., (2018) 6 SCC 534 : (2018) 3 SCC (Civ) 484] , it is observed and held in Vidya Drolia case [Vidya Drolia v. Durga Trading Corpn., (2021) 2 SCC 1 : (2021) 1 SCC (Civ) 549] that the question of non-arbitrability relating to the inquiry, whether the dispute was governed by the arbitration clause, can be examined by the courts at the reference stage itself and may not be left unanswered, to be examined and decided by the Arbitral Tribunal. Thereafter, in para 153, it is observed and held that the expression, “existence of arbitration agreement” in Section 11 of the Arbitration

Act, would include aspect of validity of an arbitration agreement, albeit the Court at the reference stage would apply the prima facie test. It is further observed that in cases of debatable and disputable facts and, good reasonably arguable case, etc. the Court would force the parties to abide by the arbitration agreement as the Arbitral Tribunal has the primary jurisdiction and authority to decide the disputes including the question of jurisdiction and non-arbitrability.”

39. The concept of arbitration is based on the principle of party autonomy with full leverage given to the parties throughout the arbitral proceedings. This aspect was also noticed by the Apex Court in Central Organisation for Railway Electrification (CORE), 2024 SCC OnLine SC 3219 wherein in para 22 of the Apex Court noticed as under :-

“22. The basis of any arbitration is the freedom of the parties to agree to submit their disputes to an individual or to a panel of individuals whose judgment they are prepared to trust and obey. Party autonomy is fundamental to international commercial arbitration because it allows the parties to design the arbitration proceedings to suit their needs and commercial reality. Party autonomy has been described by this Court as the ?brooding and guiding spirit? [Balco v. Kaiser Aluminium Technical Services Inc., (2016) 4 SCC 126, para 5 : (2016) 2 SCC (Civ) 580] and ?backbone? [Centrotrade Minerals & Metal Inc. v. Hindustan Copper Ltd., (2017) 2 SCC 228, para 38 : (2017) 1 SCC (Civ) 593] of arbitrations. The principle of minimum judicial interference supplements the autonomy of parties by prohibiting courts from interfering in arbitral proceedings unless mandated by the law. [Section 5, Arbitration Act. It reads: “5. Extent of judicial intervention.— Notwithstanding anything contained in any other law for the time being in force, in matters governed by this Part, no judicial authority shall intervene except where so provided in this Part.”] This principle respects the autonomy of the parties to mutually chart the course of the arbitral proceedings.

23. The Arbitration Act has given pre-eminence to party autonomy throughout the arbitral process. The Arbitration Act has used phrases such as “unless otherwise agreed by the parties” [Sections 3, 11(1), 14(2), 15(3), 15(4), 20(3), 21, 23(3), 24(1), 26, 29(1), 31(7)(a), 33(4), Arbitration Act.] , “failing any agreement” [Sections 11(3), 11(5), 13(2), 19(3), 20(2), 22(2), Arbitration Act.] , “the parties are free to agree” [Sections 11(2), 13(1), 19(2), 20(1), 22(1), Arbitration Act.] , “failing such agreement” [Section 34(2)(a)(v), Arbitration Act.] , and “unless the agreement on the appointment procedure provides other means” [Section 11(6), Arbitration Act.] to recognise the autonomy of parties to determine the arbitral proceedings. The use of the above phrases also indicates that an arbitrator is bound by the procedures agreed upon between the parties. [N.S. Nayak & Sons v. State of Goa, (2003) 6 SCC 56, para 14; Sree Kamatchi Amman Constructions v. Railways, (2010) 8 SCC 767, para 19 : (2010) 3 SCC (Civ) 575]"

40. The Apex Court in in Pam Development Private Limited vs State of West Bengal, (2024) 10 SCC 715 had the occasion to consider the effect of excepted/prohibitory clauses in an agreement and in this regard it held as under:-

"12. This submission is persuasive, but the contract clauses speak for themselves. In fact, the High Court did what the arbitrator should have done. Examine what the contract provides. This is not even a matter of interpretation. It is the duty of every Arbitral Tribunal and court alike and without exception, for contract is the foundation of the legal relationship. Having considered the abovereferred clauses in the contract the High Court came to the conclusion that awarding any amount towards idle, machinery, etc. is prohibited under the ?Special Terms and Conditions? of the contract. The arbitrator did not even refer to the contractual provisions and the District Court dismissed the objections under Section 34 with a standard phrase as extracted hereinabove. The High Court exercising jurisdiction under Section 37 did its duty and we are of the opinion that the conclusions of the High Court are correct and cannot be interfered with."

41. Applying the principles to the case at hand, it could not be demonstrated from the material brought on record including the evidence as to how the parties by their own conduct had enlarged the scope of the arbitration agreement to include such disputes which related to work done beyond the city of Lucknow to be encapsulated within the existing arbitration clause.

42. Admittedly, there was no exchange of correspondence or any corrigendum or any additional agreement which was entered between the parties which could indicate that the same terms and conditions including the arbitration clause as provided in the principal agreement relating to the city of Lucknow would be made applicable to the parties in respect of the work done in other districts within the State of Uttar Pradesh.

43. In absence of any material or evidence on record, it cannot be said that the parties by conduct had expanded the scope and had varied or modified the terms of the agreement dated 01.08.2016. On the contrary what is reflected from the record is the fact that after the agreement was terminated and the disputes emerged and the respondents had filed their claim which was denied by the appellants in respect of those claims which were relating to the work done beyond the city of Lucknow. Even for the Arbitrator to have come to a conclusion that the scope of the arbitration clause took within its fold disputes relating to the work done not only within the city of Lucknow but also relating to the work done in other districts of Uttar Pradesh, then it had to be based on some evidence or material but there is no reference to any such evidence. The Sole Arbitrator has given his conclusion and interpreted the clause without discussing the material evidence led by the parties hence the said finding is rendered vulnerable to be examined by the Court.

44. Apparently, in an agreement of this nature which is the subject matter of the instant proceedings, it would reveal that it is open for the parties to cull out their respective rights and obligations by their choice. The parties are necessarily bound by the agreed terms of the contract. In case if any party pleads modification, variation or novation of the contract or any term then the burden is on such a party to prove it.

45. It is always open for the parties to enhance the area of operations within which the parties agree to operate. Arbitration clause is always seen independently to the agreement, of which it is a part. Hence the parties by choice can make the arbitration clause restricted to certain types or nature of disputes or it can be made vide and open enough to encapsulate all possible types of disputes.

46. However, unless and until there is a clear indication supported by evidence that the principle agreement was modified to enhance the scope of applicability of arbitration clause to apply to such enhanced area of operation or all type of disputes relating to all districts to be made arbitral, till then it cannot be presumed that merely because work has been done under the agreement in an area beyond the agreed area of operation then the arbitration clause itself would also stand extended to such disputes arising beyond the agreed terms of arbitration clause as provided in the agreement.

47. The instant case is not one where there is any dispute of territorial jurisdiction as understood in the classic sense relatable to the courts or adjudicating authorities. The issue involved rather is regarding the area of operation of an agreement and the scope of applicability of the Arbitration clause. In law, Arbitration clause is treated as a separate independent clause altogether and its validity is not depended on terms of the principle agreement wherein it is incorporated.

48. In the instant case, it would reveal that the arbitration clause relates to all sorts of disputes which may occur between the parties arising out of the agreement dated 01.08.2016 but restricted to such disputes which relate to the work done in the city of Lucknow.

49. The Arbitrator while giving his finding that the appellants had not raised this issue earlier rather the appellants had granted approval of the design, site location all over the State especially noticing that the appellants had launched new products in all the cities and towns and also carried out special advertisement campaign, hence the Arbitrator treated the plea raised by the appellants relating to limited applicability of Arbitration clause in arbitral proceedings as an afterthought and that the said plea was not supported by any documentary evidence and moreover the agreement did not debar the respondents from working outside the city of Lucknow, apparently, the said reasoning may not be sound and cogent for the reason that clause 9, which has already been reproduced in the earlier part of this judgment, would indicate that special advertisement campaign were covered by the agreement. However, the underlying principle being that the arbitration clause would relate to such disputes arising out of the agreement relating to the city of Lucknow and only such disputes could be referred for Arbitration.

50. Thus, such disputes could be referred to Arbitration, as per the clause 11 of the agreement dated 01.08.2016, which passed the twin conditions:

(i) Dispute must emanate from the work governed and arising out of the agreement;

(ii) Such dispute must be related to the work done within the city of Lucknow.

51. In light of the aforesaid discussion the reasoning and the finding given by the Arbitrator that there was no bar to work outside the district of Lucknow and once the approval was granted by the appellants, it would have the impact of expanding the scope of the area of operation including enhancing the scope of disputes to be referred for arbitration is not just and proper.

52. Needless to say that even the Commercial Court No.1, Lucknow while dealing with the application under Section 34 of the Act, 1996 did not notice the aforesaid distinction regarding the area of operation and the Arbitration clause. This apparently is an error which vitiates the order passed by the Commercial Court No.1, Lucknow while exercising powers under Section 34 of the Act, 1996 and falls foul of the patent illegality test.

53. The Sole Arbitrator by returning a finding which is not based on any evidence and material on record and merely is based on presumption coupled with the fact that it has the effect of modifying the terms of the agreement and also amounts to reading something in the clause, which the parties conspicuously left out from being incorporated and this exercise apparently is beyond the jurisdiction of the Arbitrator and thus vitiates the award.

54. This Court had also made an attempt to examine as to whether the claims relating to the work done in Lucknow could be severed in light of the principles laid down by the Apex Court in Gayatri Balasamy v. ISG Novasoft Technologies Limited (2025) 7 SCC 1. However, upon perusal of the statement of claim, the evidence and the award, this Court find that the guidelines as laid in Gayatri Balasamy (supra) are not met, hence this Court is constrained to set aside the award as a whole.

55. In view of the aforesaid discussions, this Court finds that the order passed by the Commercial Court No.1

dated 06.11.2024 and the award passed by the Sole Arbitrator dated 31.12.2018 cannot be sustained and is accordingly set aside. It will be open for the parties to get the disputes settled relating to the money claims for the work done in the city of Lucknow and arising out of the contract dated 01.08.2016 through arbitration and in so far as other money claims relating to the work done in other districts of Uttar Pradesh except Lucknow are concerned, they can be agitated before an appropriate forum, which needless to say shall be decided in accordance with law, on its own merits.

56. Accordingly, the appeal is allowed in the aforesaid terms. There shall be no order as to costs.

Appeal Under Section 37 of Arbitration And Conciliation Act 1996 No. 289 of 2025

Banaras Hindu University, Varanasi
Through its Registrar ...Appellant
Versus
M/s Umang Cure Pvt. Ltd. & Ors.
...Respondents

Issue for Consideration

- (i) Whether the arbitration clause contained in the license deed survived after expiry of the license period so as to maintain proceedings under Section 9 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996; and
- (ii) Whether the Commercial Court was justified in granting interim protection under Section 9 of the Act of 1996 restraining eviction and coercive action without recording findings on prima facie case, balance of convenience and irreparable injury.

Headnotes

Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 — Sections 9 and 37 — Survival of arbitration clause — Expiry of license deed — Interim protection — Parameters for grant of injunction — Order lacking findings — Remand.

Held:

Merely because the term of the license deed had expired, the arbitration clause contained therein did not perish. Where the respondent continued in possession and the appellants continued to accept license fee, the arbitration clause survived for resolution of disputes arising out of or in connection with the license deed. The plea that the arbitration clause ceased to exist on expiry of the license was rejected. [Paras 19–25]

The Commercial Court, while allowing the application under Section 9 of the Act of 1996, failed to record any finding on the essential requirements for grant of interim relief, namely existence of a prima facie case, balance of convenience and irreparable injury. The order, though running into several paragraphs, did not deal with the settled parameters governing grant of injunction. [Paras 27–28]

Despite noticing that the respondent was willing to enhance the license fee prospectively and had objection only to retrospective enhancement, no direction was issued in that regard and a blanket order restraining eviction and coercive measures was passed. The manner in which interim protection was granted could not be countenanced. [Paras 28–29]

The order dated 12.06.2025 passed by the Commercial Court was set aside and the matter was remanded for fresh consideration of the application under Section 9 of the Act of 1996 in accordance with law and in light of the observations made. [Paras 30–31]

Till fresh decision, status quo as existing on the date of the appellate order was directed to be maintained. [Para 31] (E-14)

Order dated 12.06.2025 passed by the Commercial Court, Varanasi in proceedings under Section 9 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996.

Appearance for Parties

For the Appellant(s): Rahul Agarwal, Reema Pandey, Ishan Mehta

For the Respondent(s): Manish Goyal, Senior Advocate, Syed Fahim Ahmed

(Delivered by Hon'ble Arun Bhansali, C.J.)

1. This appeal under Section 37 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 (□the Act of 1996□) is directed against order dated 12.06.2025 passed by Commercial Court, Varanasi, whereby application filed by respondent under Section 9 of the Act of 1996 has been allowed and the appellants have been restrained not to evict the respondent from the property in dispute (indicated in the license deed) and not to take any coercive measures.

2. The appellants-University manages and operates Sir Sunderlal Hospital within its campus. On 24.09.2013, the appellants entered into a license deed with the respondent for operating a 24-hour pharmacy within the hospital premises, the arrangement was subsequently renewed in the years 2014, 2015 and on 24.09.2016. By the last renewal, the respondent was granted a five year license to operate the chemist shop with certain conditions regarding continuation and termination. It is indicated that the Hospital Management Committee of the appellants in its meeting dated 09.02.2022 decided against granting any further extension to the respondent and resolved to initiate new tender process for 24-hour pharmacy. The resolution was approved by the Vice Chancellor of the University. Though the term of the license expired on 23.09.2021, the appellants allowed the respondent to continue for a further period of three months upto 23.12.2021. Further extensions were granted and by an order dated 20.01.2023, the period from 23.09.2021 to 03.01.2023 was treated as deemed to have been extended prior to which on 03.01.2023, an extension for a period of three months was granted.

3. Besides the 24-hours pharmacy within the hospital premises, additionally on 04.07.2022, a separate license deed with the respondent was executed for operating two new 24-hour pharmacies at the Trauma Centre Hospital and Hospital OT Complex under IMS system. The license was for a period of three years subject to periodic review.

4. The appellants after 31.03.2023 offered the respondent a fresh license deed for operating pharmacies at various locations within the hospital. The revised agreement containing terms and fees for license was forwarded on 11.10.2023 fixing license fee at Rs.1916.66 per sq. ft. It is claimed that the respondent did not execute the fresh license deed and persisted in paying the license fee as per expired license deed. The appellants issued an eviction notice dated 21.11.2023 to vacate the premises within 30 days and clear all the dues failing which legal steps were threatened. It is claimed that despite the legal notices were issued through counsel for the University dated 16.01.2025 and 17.02.2025, the respondent refused to vacate and continued to run the shop illegally.

5. Apparently, to enforce eviction/bring the respondent to terms, the appellants initiated steps for electricity disconnection and attempted to repossess the premises, which was objected by the respondent.

6. Aggrieved of the attempts made by the appellants, the respondent filed application under Section 9 of the Act of 1996 before the Commercial Court, Varanasi seeking interim protection in respect of the shop premises. An ex-parte injunction dated 20.02.2025 was passed restraining the appellants from taking any coercive action. Reply to the application under Section 9 of the Act of 1996 was filed inter alia claiming that the respondent has no subsisting right to remain in the possession of the premises.

7. After hearing the parties, the Commercial Court vide its order dated 12.06.2025 passed an order as noticed hereinbefore. Feeling aggrieved, the present appeal has been filed.

8. Learned counsel for the appellants made submissions that the Commercial Court fell in error in granting protection under Section 9 though the license deed between the parties had expired on 31.03.2023 and no valid or subsisting agreement existed on the date of filing of the application. Further submissions were made that the Commercial Court fell in error in not recording any finding on the essential prerequisites for grant of interim relief, i.e. prima facie case, irreparable injury and balance of convenience, which vitiates the order.

9. Learned counsel emphasized that once the term of license deed and its extension had expired on 31.03.2023, the arbitration clause provided in the license deed dated 24.09.2016 perished with the expiry of the term of license and the respondent could not have invoked the jurisdiction of the Commercial Court under Section 9 of the Act of 1996 and on that count alone, the order impugned deserves to be quashed and set aside. On the said aspect, reliance was placed on Anoop Maheshwari vs. Thomas T. Kurian : 2024 SCC OnLine All 8893.

10. Further submissions were made that though the Commercial Court noticed the fact/submission that the respondent was willing to increase the license fee with effect from 11.10.2023 and had only objection qua the retrospective enhancement with effect from 01.04.2023, however a blanket interim order has been granted against eviction and any coercive process, which is ex-facie illegal and contrary to the indications made in the order impugned. The respondent has been given a nature of protection, to which he is not at all entitled.

12 All. Banaras Hindu University, Varanasi Through its Registrar Vs. M/s Umang Cure Pvt. Ltd. 1099 & Ors.

11. Various submissions were made seeking to justify to the enhanced rent and the fact that the respondent was seeking to be unreasonable, so as to refuse the enhancement and was taking advantage of the nature of order passed by the Commercial Court and on that count, it is prayed that the order be set aside.

12. Counsel for the respondent made submissions seeking to contest the allegations made. Submissions were made that the respondent has been regularly making payment of the license fee in terms of the agreement and nothing is due to the respondent. Submissions were made that the plea raised pertaining to the arbitration clause contained in the license deed perishing with the purported expiry of its term, has no substance inasmuch as the respondent has been continuing in possession of the license premises and is regularly paying the license fee, which has been accepted by the appellants. Further submissions have been made that irrespective of the expiry of the license and the fact that the respondent was ready and willing to execute a fresh license deed, the action of the appellants being highhanded in seeking to disconnect the electricity and forcefully dispossessing the respondent, the respondent has no option but to invoke the jurisdiction of the Commercial Court.

13. Submissions have been made that under no provisions of law, respondent can forcefully dispossess the respondent from the license premises. They are required to only employ legitimate means and therefore, the grant of injunction by the Commercial Court cannot be faulted.

14. Qua the enhanced license fee, submissions were sought to be made that the enhancement cannot be unilateral and the respondent is willing to negotiate with the appellant for a reasonable enhancement and, therefore, the order passed by the Commercial Court cannot be faulted. Reliance was placed in Branch Manager, MAGMA Leasing and Finance Limited and another vs. Potluri Madhavilata and another : (2009) 10 SCC 103; Bharat Petroleum Corporation Ltd. vs. Great Eastern Shipping Co. Ltd. : (2008) 1 SCC 503 and Raymond Limited vs. Miltex Apparels and others : 2025 SCC OnLine Bom 333.

15. We have considered the submissions made by counsel for the parties and have perused the material available on record.

16. The principal submission made by counsel for the appellants, which was neither raised before the Commercial Court and nor in the present appeal, centers around the maintainability of the proceedings under Section 9 of the Act, once the period of license is over wherein the arbitration clause is contained. The Arbitration Clause reads as under:

“56) All questions, disputes and differences arising under and out of, or in connection with the License Deed, shall be referred to the sole arbitration by an arbitrator appointed under the provisions of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 by the Vice-Chancellor, BHU whose decision shall be final and binding, on both the parties. The venue for the arbitration proceedings shall be Varanasi and courts at Varanasi shall have exclusive jurisdiction. All the arbitration proceedings shall be carried out in English language.”

17. The plea which has been raised, is apparently based on the judgement in Anoop Maheshwari (supra) wherein a Single Judge of this Court, referring to judgement in Union of India vs. Kishori Lal Gupta : AIR 1959 SC 1362, came to the conclusion that existence of a contract is necessary for invocation of arbitration clause prescribed under the agreement as the clause would perish with the contract and as the contract therein was only for a period of 11 months, the moment the contract perished, the lease ended and the condition under lease also perishes with such contract, suit would not be barred under Section 8 of the Act of 1996 and therefore suit for eviction would lie.

18. Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Bharat Petroleum Corporation Ltd. (supra) wherein the agreement called "Time Charter Party", was for a period of two years from 22.9.1996 to 30.6.1997 and from 1.7.1997 to 30.6.1998, which period was extended till 31.8.1998, however, the vessel continued to be chartered by BPCL till 31.8.1999, when payment for the period 1.9.1998 to 31.8.1999 was not made, based on the arbitration clause, an arbitral tribunal was constituted wherein issue was raised pertaining to the jurisdiction of the Tribunal to adjudicate dispute for the period September, 1998 to August 1999. In those circumstances, the Hon'ble Supreme Court indicated the following issue:

"17. Thus, the short question for determination is whether on the expiry of the extended period of charter hire on 31-8-1998, charter party dated 6-5-1997 came to an end and the arbitration agreement between the parties perished with it?"

19. The Hon'ble Court further observed as under:

"19. It is, no doubt, true that the general rule is that an offer is not accepted by mere silence on the part of the offeree, yet it does not mean that an acceptance always has to be given in so many words. Under certain circumstances, offeree's silence, coupled with his conduct, which takes the form of a positive act, may constitute an acceptance-an agreement sub silentio. Therefore, the terms of a contract between the parties can be proved not only by their words but also by their conduct.

20. In our view, the principle of sub silentio is clearly attracted in the present case. As noted above, after the extended period of charter party dated 6-5-1997 had come to an end on 31-8-1998 and the bids received pursuant to fresh invitation were pending finalisation, vide their letter dated 12-10-1998, the respondent had informed the appellant that they were agreeable to apply new rates for use of the vessel from 1-7-1998 provided all the nine vessels are used. However, on 31-10-1998, the appellant faxed IOC's message informing them of the extension of the existing coastal tanker fleet for the month of October 1998 at reduced rates viz. 80% of the charter party rates prevailing till 30-8-1998. On receipt of the said letter, the respondent vide their letter dated 5-11-1998 protested against the revision of the rates for the vessel not being considered under the new bid and stated in unequivocal terms that it was not possible for them to accept the proposal of the Oil Coordination Committee, communicated to them vide letter dated 12-10-1998. Yet again while responding to the appellant's fax dated 31-12-1998, whereby the respondent was required to sign a provisional charter party by 4-1-1999, vide their letter dated 4-1-1999, the respondent, pointed out to the appellant that usual practice is that pending finalisation of the new charter, the existing terms and conditions of the charter party continue to apply and, therefore, they were willing to sign the agreement as contemplated by the appellant based on the existing terms and conditions. It was suggested that an agreement may be signed between them for the period from 1-9-1998 until the matter was finally decided by the appellant under the tender, on the existing terms and conditions with the charter hire being provisionally paid on ad hoc basis at 90% of the rate which was prevailing under the existing charter party. As noted hereinabove, there was no response by the appellant to the respondent's letter dated 4-1-1999 though it appears that vide their letter of even date, the appellant did suggest to the respondent that as a token of formal agreement the said letter may be jointly signed by the charterers and the vessel owners. Admittedly, no such agreement was signed between the parties. Indubitably, there was no further exchange of correspondence between the parties during the year. Nevertheless, the appellant continued to use the vessel on hire with them under the time charter dated 6-5-1997. The conduct of the parties, as evidenced in the said correspondence and, in particular the appellant's silence on the respondent's letter dated 5-11.1998 and 4-1-1999, coupled with the fact that they continued to use the vessel, manifestly goes to show that except for the charter rate, there was no other dispute between the parties. They accepted the stand of the respondent sub silentio and thus, continued to bind themselves by other terms and conditions contained in the charter party dated 6-5-1997, which obviously included the arbitration clause."

□23. We are, therefore, of the opinion that though performance of the charter party agreement dated 6-5-1997 may have come to an end on 31-8-1998 but it was still in existence for some purposes viz. the effect of vessel's non-redelivery as per the prescribed mechanism and its continued use beyond the stipulated time and, thus, the arbitration clause in the said charter party operated in respect of these and other allied purposes. Therefore, the factual scenario in the instant case leads to an inescapable conclusion that notwithstanding the expiry of the period fixed in the time charter party dated 6-5-1997, the said charter party did not get extinguished, inter alia, for the purpose of determination of the disputes arising thereunder and the arbitration clause contained therein could be invoked by the respondent.

24. In view of the foregoing discussion, we do not find any infirmity in the view taken by the High Court that the charter party dated 6-5-1997 had not come to an end by efflux of time and it got extended by the conduct of the parties, warranting interference."

(emphasis supplied)

20. A perusal of the above determination made by Hon^{ble} Supreme Court reveals that though the agreement may have come to an end on expiry of its term, the arbitration clause operated and for the purpose of determination of the disputes, the arbitration clause could be invoked and that the agreement had not come to an end by efflux time and the same got extended on account of conduct of the parties.

21. The present circumstances, as noticed hereinbefore, are quite similar wherein despite the expiry of the term in the year 2021, the same was extended from time to time till 31.03.2023 and thereafter also, the appellants had continued to receive the license fee as paid by the respondent, which is also a conscious decision inasmuch the amount has not been directly deposited in the accounts of the appellants rather cheques/drafts were sent which had been deposited by the appellants in its Bank accounts.

22. In the case of Branch Manager, MAGMA Leasing and Finance Limited (supra), after considering the judgement in the case of Kishori Lal Gupta (supra) also, in a case where the agreement was terminated due to breach, the Hon'ble Supreme Court came to the following conclusion:

“14. The statement of law expounded by Viscount Simon, L.C. in Heyman as noticed above, in our view, equally applies to the situation where the contract is terminated by one party on account of the breach committed by the other particularly in a case where the clause is framed in wide and general terms. Merely because the contract has come to an end by its termination due to breach, the arbitration clause does not get perished nor is rendered inoperative; rather it survives for resolution of disputes arising in respect of or with regard to or under the contract. This is in line with the earlier decisions of this Court, particularly as laid down in Kishorilal Gupta.

15. In the instant case, Clause 22 of the hire-purchase agreement that provides for arbitration has been couched in the widest possible terms as can well be imagined. It embraces all the disputes, differences, claims and questions between the parties arising out of the said agreement or in any way relating thereto. The hire-purchase agreement having been admittedly entered into between the parties and the disputes and differences have since arisen between them, we hold, as it must be, that the arbitration Clause 22 survives for the purpose of their resolution although the contract has come to an end on account of its termination.”

23. The Bombay High Court in the case of Raymond Limited (supra), relied on judgement in the case of Bharat Petroleum Corporation Ltd. (supra) and came to the conclusion that all terms in the agreement would stand extended sub silentio and by necessary implication including the arbitration clause.

24. Learned Single Judge in the case of Anoop Maheshwari (supra) has principally relied on the determination made in the case of Kishori Lal Gupta (supra) and did not take into consideration the law which has developed subsequent to the said judgment, as discussed hereinbefore and as such the said judgement does not lay down good law.

25. In view of the law as laid down by Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Bharat Petroleum Corporation Ltd. (supra) and as discussed hereinbefore, the plea sought to be raised for the first time before this Court regarding non availability of the arbitration clause, apparently has no substance.

26. Coming to the merits of the order passed by the Commercial Court, a perusal of the order impugned dated 12.6.2025 reveals that though the Tribunal has delivered a judgement running into 94 paras, the determination is indicated in 4 paras only, which is followed by the order, which reads as under:

“91. उभय पक्षों के विद्वान अधिवक्तागण को सुनने एवं पत्रावली पर उपलब्ध समस्त अभिलेखों, साक्ष्यों व माननीय न्यायालय के निर्णयज, विधियों के अवलोकन व परिशीलन से यह स्पष्ट होता है कि आवेदक व विपक्षी के मध्य जो एग्रीमेन्ट/ लाईसेन्स डीड सितम्बर 2013 व 24.09.2016 को निष्पादित की गयी थी, वह दिनांक 10.10.2023 तक प्रभावी रहा है। इस तथ्य के सम्बन्ध में पक्षकारों के मध्य कोई विवाद नहीं है। दिनांक 11.10.2023 को विपक्षी की तरफ से unilateral एग्रीमेन्ट हस्ताक्षरित दिनांक 01.04.2023 से 31.03.2024 तक की अवधि के लिए प्रेषित किया गया था। उक्त एग्रीमेन्ट में दिनांक 01.04.2023 से नये दर मु0-8854970+GST से किराये की मांग की गयी थी। जबकि दिनांक 10.10.2023 तक का किराया पूर्ण रूप से अदा किया जा चुका था। उक्त किराया करीब-करीब दो गुना कर दिया गया है। आवेदक एग्रीमेन्ट हस्ताक्षरित करने की तिथि 11.10.2023 से किराया बढ़ाने के लिए तैयार था किन्तु पिछली तिथि 01.04.2023 से जो किराया जमा कर दिया गया था उसके सम्बन्ध में उसे आपत्ति थी।

92. यदि आवेदक के द्वारा आपत्ति की जा रही थी तो निश्चित रूप से मामला आर्बिट्रेशन का बनता है। विपक्षी को आर्बिट्रेशन के माध्यम से इस मामले को निस्तारित कराना चाहिए था किन्तु उसके द्वारा ऐसा नहीं करके बिजली, पानी काटने जैसी उत्पीड़नात्मक प्रक्रिया अमल में लाई गयी जिसे कदापि विधि सम्मत नहीं कहा जा सकता है।

93. यहां पर यह भी उल्लेखनीय है कि एग्रीमेन्ट लाईसेन्स डीड तो रजिस्टार BHU निष्पादित करते हैं किन्तु नोटिस आदि देने का कार्य या शपथ-पत्र आदि देने का कार्य असिस्टेंट रजिस्टार या मेडिकल सुपरिटेन्डेन्ट के स्तर से किया जाता है। इस प्रकार से स्पष्ट होता है कि वास्तविक तथ्यों से अपने को बचाने के लिए रजिस्टार BHU द्वारा इस प्रकार की कार्यवाही अमल में लाई जा रही हैं। रजिस्टार BHU को स्वयं शपथ-पत्र देकर इस बात को स्पष्ट करना

चाहिए था कि क्यों किराया पिछले 6 माह की तिथि से बढ़ाया जा रहा है किन्तु विपक्षीगण द्वारा कोई स्पष्टीकरण कहीं भी पत्रावली में प्रस्तुत नहीं किया गया है। एनेक्चर 4 कागज संख्या 17ग/48 पत्रावली पर उपलब्ध है, जिसके अवलोकन से स्पष्ट होता है कि रजिस्टार द्वारा एग्रीमेन्ट/एकपक्षीय हस्ताक्षरित करते हुए आवेदक को प्रेषित कर दिया गया है। इसमें यह भी अंकित है कि नया किराया मु0 88,54,970/- रुपये मय GST होगा। जबकि कोई अनुबन्ध-पत्र या लाईसेन्स डीड दोनों पक्षों की उपस्थिति में ही निष्पादित होनी चाहिए थी। यह स्थिति विपक्षीगण की गैरकानूनी, मनमानापन एवं उत्पीड़नात्मक प्रक्रिया को दर्शित करता है।

94. इस प्रकार से स्पष्ट होता है कि जो प्रार्थना-पत्र आवेदक द्वारा प्रस्तुत किया गया है, उसमें बल प्रतीत होता है। अतः प्रार्थना-पत्र 4क स्वीकार किये जाने योग्य है।

आदेश

आवेदक द्वारा प्रस्तुत Arbitration Misc. Case Noⁿ 14/2025 प्रार्थना-पत्र कागज संख्या 4क अन्तर्गत धारा 9 माध्यस्थम् वं सुलह अधिनियम 1996-स्वीकार किया जाता है।

विपक्षीगण को निषेधित किया जाता है कि माध्यस्थम् अधिकरण के गठन एवं आवेदक की तरफ से उक्त अधिकरण के समक्ष प्रस्तुत प्रार्थना-पत्र के निस्तारण तक आवेदक को प्रश्नगत सम्पत्ति [लाईसेन्स डीड में अंकित] से न तो बेदखल करेंगे और न ही किसी प्रकार की उत्पीड़नात्मक कार्यवाही अमल में लायेंगे।

(emphasis supplied)

27. A perusal of the above judgement would reveal that the fundamental requirements of granting an injunction under Section 9 of the Act of 1996 wherein existence of a prima facie case, balance of convenience and irreparable injury was required to be determined by the Commercial Court, not a word has been indicated on the said aspects of the matter.

28. The most outstanding feature rather the deficiency of the judgement impugned is that though at the end of para 91 (underlined hereinbefore), it was observed by the Commercial Court that the respondent was prepared to enhance the rent from 11.10.2023 and had only objection qua the retrospective enhancement, no order has been passed for paying the enhanced license fee, which as noticed, was volunteered/offered to be paid with effect from 11.10.2023 and a blanket order has been granted not to evict the respondent and further not to take any coercive measures. The manner in which the order has been passed, cannot be countenanced/approved.

29. None of the settled parameters have been complied with / adhered to and to top it all despite noticing the concession/offer/volunteering enhanced payment, no direction in this regard has been issued which is wholly unjustified.

30. Consequently, the appeal is partly allowed. The order dated 12.6.2025 passed by the Tribunal is set aside. The matter is remanded back to the Commercial Court to hear and decide the application afresh, keeping in view the observations made hereinbefore, complying with the requirements for passing an order under Section 9 of the Act of 1996 as well as keeping in view the offer made by the respondent, which aspect has not been disputed by the respondent.

31. However, till such time that a fresh order is passed by the Commercial Court, status quo as it exists on the date of passing of this order, shall be maintained.

The parties shall appear before the Commercial Court on 5.1.2026 and the Commercial Court is directed to pass a fresh order after hearing the parties before 31.01.2026.

Issue for Consideration

Whether Parmanand Lal Srivastava (testator) had validly revoked his registered Will dated 20.09.1996 by executing a subsequent unregistered Will dated 25.05.2002 in favour of the appellants, and whether the subsequent Will stood proved in accordance with law free from suspicious circumstances?

Headnotes

Indian Succession Act, 1925 — Ss. 59, 63 — Evidence Act, 1872 — Ss. 67, 68 — Probate — Proof of Will — Suspicious circumstances — Revocation of earlier registered Will — Subsequent unregistered Will — Burden on propounder — Judicial conscience — Active participation of beneficiary — Non-disclosure in mutation proceedings — Contradictions regarding place of execution — Attesting witness unreliable — Effect — Subsequent Will held not proved — Earlier registered Will upheld.

Held:

The earlier registered Will dated 20.09.1996 executed by the testator in favour of his surviving daughter and sons of deceased daughter was not in dispute. The controversy centered around the alleged revocation thereof by an unregistered Will dated 25.05.2002.

The Court reiterated that where execution of a Will is surrounded by suspicious circumstances, the onus lies heavily on the propounder to remove such suspicion by cogent and satisfactory evidence, and mere proof of signature and attestation is insufficient. [Paras 49–53]

The following suspicious circumstances were found to be proven on record:

(i) Ill health and advanced age of testator — At the time of alleged execution of the Will dated 25.05.2002, the testator was about 80 years old, ill and unable to walk; evidence disclosed he was bedridden and under treatment. The propounder's version that the testator himself typed the Will was found improbable. [Paras 57–59]

(ii) Contradictions regarding place of execution — The propounder (DW-1) gave contradictory versions, at one stage stating that the Will was prepared at Civil Court and at another that it was typed at the residence of the testator. The attesting witness (DW-2) deposed that it was prepared at Durgakund residence. The inconsistency rendered the execution highly doubtful. [Paras 60–61]

(iii) Active participation of beneficiary — The propounder admitted that he brought the attesting witnesses and participated in the preparation of the Will, constituting a suspicious circumstance requiring strict scrutiny. [Para 62]

(iv) Non-disclosure in mutation proceedings — Immediately after the death of the testator, the propounder moved a mutation application claiming succession on the basis of inheritance and not on the basis of the alleged Will dated 25.05.2002. The application was drafted by the same Advocate who allegedly drafted the Will. The absence of any reference to the Will in mutation proceedings led to the inference that the Will was not in existence at that time. [Paras 63–65, 71]

(v) Attesting witness unreliable — The attesting witness (DW-2) admitted that his affidavit was prepared by the propounder and that he had not read it. He also admitted that his wife had received land from the propounder. His testimony did not inspire confidence. [Paras 66–68]

(vi) Unconvincing reason for revocation — The explanation in the subsequent Will that fraud had been played upon the testator in execution of the earlier Will was not supported by convincing evidence and appeared improbable in the facts proved. [Paras 69–70]

Held, the cumulative effect of the above circumstances created grave suspicion surrounding the alleged Will dated 25.05.2002. The propounder failed to dispel such suspicion. Judicial conscience not satisfied as to its genuineness. The trial court rightly rejected probate of the Will dated 25.05.2002 and granted probate of the registered Will dated 20.09.1996. Appeals dismissed. [Paras 71–75] (E-14)

Facts of Probate Case No.

27 of 2007

5. This case was filed by the plaintiff Smt. Sudha Srivastava against the defendants Krishna Kumar Srivastava and others for seeking Probate regarding registered Will executed on 20.9.1996 by her father Parmanand Lal Srivastava(testator), who died on 22.11.2002. It was averred by the plaintiff that the testator had acquired the residential house no. B.26/116-A situated in Nawabganj, Bhelupura, Varanasi from his paternal aunt Smt. Gujarati Devi and the remaining immovable property was agricultural land acquired from the ancestors, which was in the sole name of the testator and the other properties were in joint ownership. It was further averred that the testator was having Savings bank account no.1893 in State Bank of India, Branch BHU, Varanasi which was the self acquired property of testator. It was further submitted that the testator had willingly executed his last Will in favour of the plaintiff through which half property has devolved on her. It was further averred that the testator has died on 22.11.2002 in his above residential house. It was prayed that the Probate be granted in her favour on the basis of the above registered Will executed by the testator.

6. The defendant Rakesh Srivastava opposed the Probate application on the ground that the testator had executed in his lifetime a Will on 25.5.2002 in presence of witnesses Vinod Kumar Singh and Lalji, in favour of Krishna Kumar, Awdesh Kumar, Madan Kumar, Manoj Kumar, Santosh Kumar and Rakesh Lal, in which it was made clear that after the death of testator his immovable property would devolve on Krishna Kumar and others whereas, the movable property would devolve on Sudha Srivastava and sons of Radha Srivastava. It was further averred that the testator died on 22.11.2002, as such, his Will dated 25.5.2002 has become effective, which was also the last Will of the testator, due to which the earlier Will of the testator dated 20.9.1996 has become ineffective and on the basis of the earlier Will of the testator, no probate can be granted. It was further submitted that the Probate application of Smt. Sudha Srivastava has become infructuous. It was further submitted that the Will deed dated 25.5.2002 has been executed by the testator correctly, which has been signed on each page by the testator, on which the photograph of testator is also affixed, which has been executed by the testator willingly. With these submissions it was prayed that the Probate application moved by Smt. Sudha Srivastava be rejected.

7. The registered Will dated 20.09.1996 of the Parmanand Lal Srivastava (testator) reads as under:-

"मैं कि परमानन्द लाल श्रीवास्तव वल्द मरहूम विश्वनाथ प्रसाद श्रीवास्तव, साकिन मकान नम्बरी बी० 26/116ए वाका मोहल्ला नबाबगंज, हल्का भेलूपुर, शहर वाराणसी का हूँ

8. On the basis of the pleadings of the parties the following issues were framed by the trial court:-

(i) Whether Parmanand Lal Srivastava had executed on 20.9.1996 a registered Will in favour of plaintiff and defendant no.1 to 3?

(ii) Whether after the death of Parmanand Lal Srivastava, the plaintiff and defendant no. 1 to 3 are in possession of the disputed property, on the basis of Will? If so, effect?

(iii) Whether Parmanand Lal Srivastava had executed a Will on 25.5.2002, by revoking his previous Will dated 20.9.1996, in favour of defendant No. 4 to 9, due to which his earlier Will dated 20.9.1996 has become infructuous?

(iv) Whether the defendants No. 4 to 9 have fabricated Will dated 25.5.2002?

(v) To what relief, if any, the plaintiff is entitled?

Facts of Probate Case No.26 of 2007

9. This case was filed by the plaintiff Rakesh Srivastava and others under Section 276 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925 seeking Probate of alleged Will executed by Parmanand Lal Srivastava (testator) on 25.5.2002, who died on 22.11.2002 in Varanasi. It was alleged by the plaintiffs that the testator acquired house No. B.26/116-A situated in Nawabganj, Bhelupura, Varanasi from his paternal aunt Smt. Gujarati Devi wife of late Kamla Prasad and the remaining immovable property, which was agricultural land and orchards, was ancestral property regarding which the testator had willingly executed his last Will in favour of the plaintiffs, who died testate on 22.11.2002 in his residential house No. 26/116-A, Nawabganj, Bhelupura, Varanasi. It was prayed that the plaintiffs be granted probate regarding the above Will executed by the testator on 25.5.2002.

10. The defendants opposed the plaintiffs Probate application by submitting their objections. The defendants averred that the testator had only 2 daughters namely Smt. Sudha Srivastava and Smt. Radha Srivastava, who had no male issue. Smt. Radha Srivastava died during the lifetime of the testator, leaving behind her husband and three sons, who are defendants No. 2 to 4 in the probate petition. It was further averred that the testator was in service as section officer in estate office at B.H.U., Varanasi, who was the sole recorded owner in possession of house no. B.26/116-A, Nawabganj, Bhelupura, Varanasi, which was acquired by him after the death of his issueless aunt Smt. Gujarati Devi through her registered Will deed executed during her lifetime in the sole name of the testator, wherein he lived as sole owner in possession till his death.

11. It was further averred that the testator has already bequeathed his entire movable and immovable properties in sound state of mind without any coercion, pressure or undue influence, through his registered Will deed dated 20.9.1996 executed in favour of Smt. Sudha Srivastava and defendants No. 2 to 4 and accordingly, during his lifetime he also erected partition wall separating the house in two portions giving actual physical possession of the eastern portion to Smt. Sudha Srivastava and western portion to defendant No. 2 to 4. It was further averred that the testator never revoked his Will dated 20.9.1996 as such, no question arises of executing the alleged Will deed dated 25.5.2002.

12. It was further averred that two years before his death, the testator sustained fracture of his iliac bone resulting in his confinement to bed and since thereafter, he was under care of the defendants who since long back were living with him and were looking after him and managing his treatment but unfortunately he could not recover till his last breath. It was further submitted that after the death of testator, his registered Will deed dated 20.9.1996 was acted upon and Smt. Sudha Srivastava became the absolute owner of eastern portion and the defendants No. 2 to 4 became joint owners of the western portion of the house no. B.26/116-A mentioned above and they also acquired equal shares in his movable as well as other immovable properties and agricultural lands. It was further submitted that on the basis of Will dated 20.9.1996 Smt. Sudha Srivastava applied for mutation in revenue records and the names of defendants were mutated vide order dated 9.4.2003 passed in mutation Case No. 540 of 2003. It was further submitted that after information of mutation of defendants in revenue records, the plaintiffs managed to set aside the above referred mutation order dated 9.4.2003 and presently Case No. 540 of 2003 Sudha vs. Krishna Kumar and No. 332 of 2002 Krishna Kumar vs. State are pending before the Naib-Tehsildar, Kaswar Raja, Varanasi between the parties.

13. It was further averred that neither the plaintiff Rakesh Srivastava nor so-called attesting witnesses ever came to the residence of the testator or the defendants and the testator never executed and signed the alleged Will deed dated 25.5.2002 revoking his previous registered Will deed. It was specifically averred that the alleged Will deed dated 25.5.2002 is a forged document which has been fabricated after the death of testator and after knowledge of the mutation of the defendants in the revenue records in order to grab the properties of the defendants by hook or crook. It was submitted that the probate petition was not maintainable and was liable to be dismissed.

14. The unregistered Will dated 25.05.2002 allegedly executed by Parmanand Lal Srivastava(testator) reads as under:-

"मैं कि परमानन्द लाल श्रीवास्तव पुत्र स्वर्गीय विश्वनाथ प्रसाद श्रीवास्तव मूल निवासी गंगापुर टाउन एरिया (सूई चक) परगना कसवार राजा जिला वाराणसी वर्तमान निवासी मकान नम्बर बी० 26/116ए नवावगंज शहर वाराणसी का हूँ

विदित हो कि मिनमुकिर की अवस्था इस समय लगभग 83 वर्ष के हो चुकी है इस नश्वर शरीर का कोई ठिकाना नहीं है कि कब इसका अन्त हो जायेगा ऐसी स्थिति में हर व्यक्ति का यह कर्तव्य होता है कि अपने जीन काल में अपनी सम्पत्ति की इस प्रकार व्यवस्था कर दे कि उसके मृत्यु के पश्चात् उसके सम्पत्ति को

लेकर उत्तराधिकारियों के बीच कोई विवाद उत्पन्न न हो, मिनमुकिर के खानदान में ग्राम सूईचक, गंगापुर परतापी पट्टी, जमीन कनेरी परगना कसवार राजा जिला वाराणसी में काफी चल व अचल सम्पत्ति मिमुकिर के पूर्वजों के समय की रही है मिनमुकिर के पिता दो भाई कमला प्रसाद व विश्वनाथ प्रसाद थे किन्तु मिनमुकिर के चाचा श्री कमला प्रसाद ने अपने मेहनत व मसक्कत से बमुकाम नवावगंज शहर वाराणसी में मकान नम्बरी बी० 26/116 के भूमि को अज नाम श्रीमती गुजराती देवी अपनी धर्मपत्नी के क्रय करके उसपर मकान पोख्ता निर्माण कराया व स्वतः अपनी पत्नी श्रीमती गुजराती देवी के साथ मकान उपरोक्त में आवाद रहे और मिनमुकिर व मिनमुकिर के भाई स्व० लक्ष्मीलाल बराबर अपने चाचा कमला प्रसाद व चाची गुजराती देवी की सेवा सुश्रुषा देखभाल करते रहे संयोग बश श्री कमला प्रसाद श्रीवास्तव व श्रीमती गुजराती देवी को कोई औलाद पुत्र अथवा पुत्री नहीं थे इसलिए स्व० कमला प्रसाद व श्रीमती गुजराती देवी मिनमुकिर व मिनमुकिर के भाई लक्ष्मी लाल को पुत्रवत् मानते चले आ रहे थे। श्री कमला प्रसाद की मृत्यु के पश्चात् श्रीमती गुजराती देवी हम दोनों भाईयों की ईच्छा व सहमति के आधार पर वसीयतनामा दिनांक 18-5-87 ई० अंकित कर, मकान उपरोक्त को बहक मिनमुकिर व शेष जुमिला चल व अचल सम्पत्ति का वसीयत बहक लक्ष्मीलाल बिरादर हकीकी मिनमुकिर कर दिया किन्तु मिनमुकिर व मिनमुकिर के भाई लक्ष्मीलाल बराबर एक साथ रहकर दोनों जगहों यानी मकान उपरोक्त व अन्य सभी चल व अचल सम्पत्ति की देखभाल उपयोग व उपभोग करते चले आ रहे थे व बाद वफात श्री लक्ष्मीलाल उनके पुत्राण भी वही आचरण व व्यवहार करते रहे। दुर्भाग्यवश मिमुकिर को भी कोई पुत्र नहीं है केवल दो पुत्रियां राधा देवी व सुधा देवी थी श्रीमती राधा देवी की मृत्यु 10 वर्ष पूर्व हो गयी जिसके तीन पुत्राण कृष्ण कुमार, योगेश कुमार उर्फ गोली व सोमेश कुमार उर्फ ऋषी है मिनमुकिर की ईच्छा थी कि मिनमुकिर के पास जो कुछ अचल सम्पत्ति यानी मकान नम्बरी बी० 26/116ए नवावगंज शहर वाराणसी वआराजियात वागात मकानात आदि वाका मौजा सूईचक, गंगापुर परतापीपट्टी, जमीन कनेरी व बैरवन में मौजूद है वह सभी पैतृक सम्पत्ति मिनमुकिर की है वह खानदान मिनमुकिर में ही रह जाय व मिनमुकिर के पास जो भी जर नकद स्टेट बैंक आफ इण्डिया शाखा सेन्ट्रल आफिस बी०एच०यू० व बचत खाता संख्या 1893 बैंक आफ बड़ौदा शाखा गुरुधाम कालोनी दुर्गाकुण्ड रोड व रकम पेंशन आदि का था उसे अपने पुत्रियों व नातियों को देकर उन्हें संतुष्ट कर दिया है किन्तु मिनमुकिर ने जो वसीयतनामा दिनांक 20-9-96 को अंकित किया है उसमें मिनमुकिर को धोखे में रखकर पैत्रिक सम्पत्ति के बाबत भी मिनमुकिर की पुत्री एवं नातियों के वसीयतनामा अंकित करा लिया है जिसका ज्ञान मिनमुकिर को पूर्व में नहीं था और अब मिनमुकिर को यह जानकारी हो गयी है कि मिनमुकिर की पैत्रिक सम्पत्ति के बाबत भी वसीयतनामा दिनांक 20-9-1996 ई० अंकित करा लिया है

अतः मिनमुकिर वसीयतनामा दिनांक 20-9-98 ई० को मंसूख करते हुए यह नया वसीयतनामा बाबत मकान नम्बरी बी० 26/116ए नवावगंज शहर वाराणसी व अन्य अचल सम्पत्ति का उत्तराधिकारी अपने भतीजगान कृष्ण कुमार, अवधेश कुमार, मदन कुमार, मनोज कुमार, संतोष कुमार व राकेश लाल पुत्रगण स्व० लक्ष्मीलाल निवासीगण टाउन एरिया गंगापुर परगना कसवार राजा जिला वाराणसी को घोषित करते हुए यह वसीयतनामा अंकित कर पाबन्द शरायत जैल का होता व करता हूँ:-----

1- यह कि जब तक मिनमुकिर जीवित रहेगा अपने सम्पूर्ण चल व अचल सम्पत्ति का तनहा मालिक रहेगा व मिनमुकिर की मृत्यु के पश्चात् मिनमुकिर के सम्पूर्ण अचल सम्पत्ति के मालिक मिनमुकिर के भतीजगान पेसरान लक्ष्मीलाल होंगे और मिनमुकिर की मृत्यु के पश्चात् मिनमुकिर के पास जो कुछ जर नकद व जेवरात यानी हर प्रकार के चल सम्पत्ति के मालिकान मेरी पुत्री सुधा देबी व राधा देबी के पुत्रगण होंगे।

2- यह कि वसीयान भतीजगान मिनमुकिर को अधिकार होगा कि सम्पूर्ण अचल सम्पत्ति वसी मकान व आराजियात पर से मिनमुकिर का नाम निरस्त कराकर अपना नाम दर्ज कराकर जो कुछ टैक्स व लगान आदि देय हो अदा करके रसीद अपने नाम हासिल करते रहे इसमें मिनमुकिर व वारिसान व कायम मुकामान मिनमुकिर अथवा किसी अन्य व्यक्ति को किसी प्रकार की कोई आपत्ति का अधिकार नहीं होगा।

3- यह कि वसीयान कृष्ण कुमार वगैरह भतीजगान मिनमुकिर को लाजिम होगा कि मिनमुकिर की मृत्यु के पश्चात् मिनमुकिर की चिता को मेरे किसी नाती द्वारा मुखानि कराकर सम्पूर्ण क्रिया कर्म आदि मुताबिक हिन्दू धर्मशास्त्र के अनुसार वमुकाम गंगापुर में करा देंगे और यह भी खयाल रखे कि मेरे दाह संस्कार क्रिया कर्म में मेरी पुत्री अथवा नातियों का एक पैसा भी व्यय न हो अथवा मेरी मृत आत्मा को आघात लगेगा।

4- यह कि कृष्ण कुमार आदि भतीजगान मिनमुकिर को बाध्यता होगी कि मेरी पुत्री व नातियों को यह आभास न होने दे कि मेरा ननिहाल व नैहर समाप्त हो गया है।

5- यह कि मिनमुकिर ने कुल मजमून वसीका हाजा को बखूबी सुन व समझकर पढ़ व पढ़वाकर यह चन्द कलमा बतरीक अंति वसीयतनामा के अंकित कर दिया कि वक्त पर काम आवे व प्रमाण रहे।

15. On the basis of the pleadings of the parties, the trial court framed the following issues:-

(i)Whether Parmanand Lal Srivastava had executed a Will on 25.5.2002 in favour of the plaintiffs?

(ii)Whether the plaintiffs had fabricated the Will dated 25.5.2002?

(iii)To what relief the plaintiffs are entitled, if any?

16. By order dated 2.9.2005, passed by the lower court, both the above Probate cases were consolidated and Probate Case No. 27 of 2007 was made leading case for evidence purposes, in which entire evidence was recorded.

17. In documentary evidence, both the parties filed the original Will's, certified copies of the documents submitted by them for mutation before the revenue court, the certified copies of the orders passed on mutation applications by the revenue courts, certified copies of oral evidence of the parties in mutation proceedings, the reports of the handwriting experts, etc.

18. On behalf of the plaintiffs in Probate Case No. 27 of 2007, the following witnesses were examined:-

(1)Smt.Sudha Srivastava, as PW-1(Plaintiff, propounder of Will dated 20.9.1996)

(2) Sukhu Prasad, as PW-2 (attesting witness of Will dated 20.9.1996)

(3) Mithilesh Kunwar Khare, as PW-3 (Advocate preparing the Will dated 20.9.1996)

(4) Sayed Irteja Hussain, as PW-4 (handwriting expert on behalf of the plaintiff)

19. On behalf of the defendants in Probate Case No. 27 of 2007, the following witnesses were examined:

(1) Rakesh Srivastava, as DW-1 (defendant, propounder of Will dated 25.05.2002)

(2) Lalji, as DW-2 (attesting witness of Will dated 25.5.2002)

(3) Ramnarayan, as DW-3

(4) Vikas Srivastava, as DW-4 (handwriting expert on behalf of defendant)

20. The trial court after perusing the documentary and oral evidence adduced by the parties and the relevant case law, has concluded that there were suspicious circumstances surrounding the execution of the subsequent Will dated 25.5.2002 of the testator, which makes the subsequent Will doubtful, particularly since the earlier Will of the testator was registered. The trial court concluded that the subsequent Will dated 25.5.2002 was doubtful and a fabricated document, regarding which no Probate can be granted. Accordingly, the trial court has rejected the Probate Case no.26 of 2007 seeking Probate of Will dated 25.5.2002 and has allowed the Probate Case no.27 of 2007 seeking

Probate of registered Will dated 20.9.1996, by impugned judgment and order dated 18.10.2023, aggrieved against which, the instant appeals have been filed by the propounder of subsequent Will dated 25.5.2002.

21. In this judgment, the parties are being addressed according to their status in Probate Case No.27 of 2007, which was the leading case, in which Smt.Sudha Srivastava was the plaintiff and Rakesh Lal Srivastava and others were defendants.

22. Learned counsel for the defendant appellants submitted that the testator had earlier executed a registered Will on 20.9.1996 in favour of her two daughters, which was later on revoked by executing subsequent Will dated 25.5.2002 in favour of the defendant appellants, which was duly proved by examining attesting witness of the Will, as such, there was no occasion for the lower court to doubt its execution. It was further submitted that since the testator was bedridden and disabled, he was not in a position to go to the subregistrar office for getting the Will registered, as such, the subsequent Will was not registered, but only on the ground that the subsequent Will was not registered, it cannot be held to be a fabricated document. Learned counsel submitted that a Will is required to be proved in accordance with law, whether it is registered or not and merely on the ground that it is registered, its genuinity cannot be presumed. It was further submitted that the testator after second thought, had revoked the earlier Will, which was executed in favour of the plaintiff, and the reason for revoking it, was also mentioned in the subsequent Will, as such, there was no suspicious circumstance surrounding the execution of the subsequent Will. Learned Counsel in support of his submissions relied upon the case law of Testamentary Suit no.6 of 2012 decided by this Court on 15.10.2020, Pramila Tiwari vs. Anil Kumar Mishra and others Neutral Citation 2024AHC 85067-DB and Kavita Kanwar vs. Mrs. Pamela Mehta and others AIR 2020 SC 2614.

23. Per contra, learned counsel for the plaintiff respondent submitted that the defendants, who were the propounder of the subsequent Will dated 25.5.2002 had actively participated in its preparation and execution, who were also in its possession, but while applying for mutation before the revenue court, the subsequent Will was never disclosed. Learned counsel submitted that there was serious contradiction in the testimony of the witnesses regarding the place and the manner, where/in which the subsequent Will was prepared, who participated in its preparation, which makes the surrounding circumstances, suspicious. Learned counsel submitted that the Advocate preparing the subsequent Will also moved the mutation application on behalf of the appellants before the revenue court but in that application it was not mentioned that the testator had executed the alleged Will dated 25.5.2002 and on the basis of this Will, they are claiming ownership of the disputed property. In that mutation application, ownership was claimed through inheritance. Learned counsel submitted that only after the plaintiff respondent moved the mutation application by claiming ownership of the disputed property on the basis of earlier Will dated 20.9.1996, of the testator bequeathing his property in favour of the respondent, only then the Will dated 25.5.2002 was subsequently, fraudulently fabricated by the appellants. Learned counsel submitted that the appellants could not dispel the cloud of suspicion surrounding the subsequent Will dated 25.5.2002 as such, the lower court has rightly disbelieved the subsequent Will and has rightly allowed the plaintiffs Probate application. Learned Counsel in support of his submissions relied upon the case law Sunita Upadhyay vs. State of U.P. 2023(159)RD 712(All)

24. I have heard the learned counsel of both the sides, perused the record of the lower court and the case law submitted by them.

25. On the basis of the pleadings, evidence on record and the submissions of the learned counsel of the parties the following issue arises for determination in this appeal:-

Whether Parmanand Lal Srivastava (testator) had executed subsequent Will on 25.5.2002 in favour of the defendant appellants, by which earlier executed and registered Will dated 20.9.1996 in favour of the plaintiff respondents, was revoked ?

Oral evidence of plaintiffs before the lower court

(Propounder of Will dated 20.9.1996)

26. Sudha Srivastava PW-1, the propounder of first Will of testator dated 20.9.1996, deposed in her examination in chief that her father Parmanand Lal Srivastava (testator) retired from the post of office superintendent in the Estate Department of BHU, Varanasi, was the owner of the residential house No. B.26/116-A situated in Nawabganj, Bhelupura, Varanasi, who became the owner of it on the basis of registered Will, who resided in it. She and Smt. Radha Srivastava were the only daughters /children of her father. Her sister Smt. Radha Srivastava and her mother had died in the lifetime of her father. After retirement, her father had decided to distribute his property in favour of her daughter's children and her, as such he divided the above house by partition wall, of which the eastern portion was given to her and the western portion was given to deceased daughter's children. She deposed that her father willingly, without any coercion, in the presence of Sukhu Prasad and Mithilesh Kunwar Khare, Advocate, had executed a registered Will on 20.9.1996, by which his property in equal shares, was bequeathed to her and her deceased sisters children. This witness has filed the original Will of the testator dated 20.9.1996.

27. She further deposed that two years prior to the death of her father, her father had become disabled due to fracture in the hip bone, who was unable to move and perform his routine work, who was looked after and cared by defendant no.1 to 3. She further deposed that her father died on 22.11.2002 in her above residential house. She further deposed that she and defendant no.1 to 3 have become the owner in possession of the above residential house and they have also applied for mutation in the records of the Nagar Nigam, Varanasi, which was pending. She further deposed that her father never executed any other Will, subsequent to the Will dated 20.9.1996. She further deposed that Rakesh Kumar Srivastava, Vinod Kumar Singh and Lalji neither came to the above house of her father nor her father had executed any Will dated 25.5.2002 in their favour. She further deposed that the alleged Will dated 25.5.2002 is a fraudulent and fabricated document, which has not been executed by her father, which has been prepared only to illegally deprive her from the properties bequeathed by her father.

28. PW-1 in cross-examination accepted that Rakesh, Krishna Kumar, Awdesh Kumar, Madan Kumar, Manoj Kumar and Santosh Kumar are the sons of her father's real brother. Her father had got property in village Gangapur. After perusing the alleged Will dated 25.5.2002, she accepted that it bears the photo of her father. She denied the signatures of her father on the above Will. She deposed that signatures of her father has been duplicated on it. She deposed that the partition between her father and her father's brother had taken place. She deposed that agricultural land was partitioned but orchards were not partitioned. She further deposed that in the consolidation proceeding her father got one third share. She further deposed that her sister has died whose 6 children are living separately from her. The house situated in Nawabganj was partitioned by her father, she has got eastern half share in it and the western half share belongs to her sister. She accepted that Lakshmi Prasad and her father are real brothers, the agricultural property situated in the village was looked after by Lakshmi Prasad, the residential house situated in Nawabganj was 2 storeyed, Rakesh is the son of Lakshmi Prasad.

29. She further deposed that at the time of execution of the first Will, she was not present, her husband and sisters son were present, the same sons were present who were the beneficiary of the Will, she has no knowledge of the subsequent Will, she only became aware of the subsequent Will after the death of her father, through her husband, she has not filed any case for the cancellation of the subsequent Will, the Will dated 20.9.1996 was attested by Sukhu Prasad and Mithilesh Kumar, Advocate. Mithilesh Kumar, Advocate is her relative, who is her brother-in-law(devar). She denied the suggestion that her father had executed a Will in favour of Rakesh.

30. Sukhu Prasad PW-2 deposed in his examination in chief that Parmanand Lal was an accountant in BHU, who resided with his paternal aunt Smt. Gujarati Devi, in a house situated in Nawabganj, which was bequeathed to Parmanand Lal by Smt. Gujarati Devi. Parmanand Lal had two daughters Radha and Sudha, he had no sons, Radha has died, Krishna Kumar, Yogesh Kumar alias Goli and Somesh Kumar alias Rishi are the sons of Radha Devi. He deposed that he had good acquaintance and cordial relations with Parmanand Lal. He deposed that in the month of September 1996, Parmanand Lal told him that he intends to bequeath his entire movable and immovable property in favour of his daughter Sudha and daughter Radha's son Krishna Kumar, Yogesh Kumar and Somesh, requested him to witness the Will and took him to the Kutchery.

31. He further deposed that in his presence Parmanand Lal directed Mithilesh Kunwar Khare, Advocate to prepare the Will deed, got typed the Will deed and after it was typed, after reading and understanding it, Parmanand Lal signed it in his presence and also obtained his signature on it. He further deposed that in the Will deed Parmanand Lal bequeathed his entire movable and immovable property namely house, agricultural land, cash and bank balance, the 1/2 share of it was bequeathed to Sudha and 1/2 share to Krishna Kumar. He further deposed that after executing the Will, Parmanand Lal got it registered on the same day and at the time of registration, Parmanand Lal affixed his signature and thumb impression on it. He further deposed that after the execution of the above Will, Parmanand Lal frequently visited his daughter Sudha in Senpura, he also met him, he also visited Parmanand Lal along with Madan Mohan at his Nawabganj residence and for the last time, after Parmanand Lal became ill in the year 2002, he went to his Nawabganj residence and had talks with him. He further deposed that Parmanand Lal never told him that he has revoked his Will executed in favour of his daughter Sudha and sons of his daughter. He further deposed that if any person alleges that Parmanand Lal has executed any other Will, then that Will is forged and fabricated, which has not been signed by Parmanand Lal, which bears the forged signatures of Parmanand Lal.

32. PW-2 deposed in cross-examination that he knew the testator from 5 – 7 years prior to his death. He never went to his house in Gangapur. He deposed that Rakesh Lal had requested him to get the matter compromised to which he had declined. Parmanand Lal never disclosed to him that he wanted to execute the Will in favour of Rakesh. This witness has identified the photo and signature of Parmanand Lal on Will dated 20.9.1996.

33. Mithilesh Kunwar Khare PW-3, Advocate deposed in examination-in-chief that he practices in District Court Varanasi on the civil side. He prepared the draft Will on 20.9.1996 on the direction of Parmanand Lal, got it typed, which was read by Parmanand Lal, was read over to Sukhu Prasad and after being satisfied with its contents, was signed by Parmanand Lal in his presence, which was also signed by Sukhu Prasad and he had also signed it as a witness. He further deposed that on the same day Parmanand Lal had got it registered by presenting it in the office of the registrar. The registrar had asked Parmanand Lal about the execution of the Will, which was accepted by Parmanand Lal and thereafter, Parmanand Lal and Sukhu Prasad had also signed it and affixed their fingerprints on the back page of the Will as well as on register no.8. This witness has proved the Will dated 20.9.1996 of Parmanand Lal, in accordance with law.

34. PW-3 in cross-examination deposed that the Will deed dated 20.9.1996 was prepared by him and he is also its attesting witness. Except this Will, Parmanand Lal has not executed any other document. He is not related to Parmanand Lal.

35. Sayed Irteja Hussain PW-4, the hand writing expert, has deposed in his examination-in-chief that the Will dated 20.9.1996 and 25.5.2002 have been signed by different persons and the Will dated 25.5.2002 has not been signed by Parmanand Lal.

Oral evidence of defendants before the lower court

(Propounder of Will dated 25.5.2002)

36. Rakesh Srivastava DW-1 deposed in his examination-in-chief that Parmanand Lal was his uncle, who was very affectionate towards him and his (DW-1) brothers. When Parmanand Lal was residing in Mauja Sui Chuck, then he was looked after and cared by the deponent and his brothers. He and his brothers used to visit house no. B.26/116 A, Nawabganj, Varanasi. Parmanand Lal was very satisfied with him and his brothers. Parmanand Lal had no son, had only 2 daughters namely Radha and Sudha, Radha died during the lifetime of Parmanand Lal, Sudha was alive, there are 3 sons of Radha namely Krishna Kumar, Yogesh Kumar and Somesh Kumar.

37. He further deposed that Parmanand Lal intended to bequeath his above house to his nephews and intended to bequeath the movable property to his daughter's son and daughter Sudha, but Radha's sons and Sudha, managed to get wrong Will dated 20.9.1996 executed from Parmanand Lal, and when this was realised by Parmanand Lal, then on 25.5.2002 Parmanand Lal again executed a Will in which the above house and other immovable property was bequeathed to his nephews and the movable property was bequeathed to his daughter and sons of the daughter. He also deposed that Parmanand Lal revoked his earlier Will dated 20.9.1996. He further deposed that the Will dated 25.5.2002 was the last Will of Parmanand Lal, which became effective on his death.

38. He further deposed that the Will dated 25.5.2002 bears the photograph and signature in English of Parmanand Lal, which was signed by Parmanand Lal in the presence of witnesses Vinod Kumar Singh and Lalji, the witnesses had also signed in presence of Parmanand Lal, the Will dated 25.5.2002 was executed by Parmanand Lal willingly, on the basis of which he and his brothers are the owners of the disputed property.

39. DW-1 in cross-examination accepted that his father and Parmanand Lal were real brothers. Gujarati Devi had executed a Will on 18.5.1987, on the basis of which, house no.B.26/116-A situated in Nawabganj was bequeathed to Parmanand Lal and the agricultural land of the village was bequeathed to Lakshmi Lal and after the death of Lakshmi Lal, he and his brothers have got their name mutated in the revenue record. He also accepted that name of Parmanand Lal was mutated as owner of the above house.

40. He further deposed that Parmanand Lal was ill at the time of his death, who was ill from about one year prior to his death, his one leg was fractured, he denied that about two years prior to his death his hip bone was fractured, the treatment of fracture of Parmanand Lal was undertaken by him and his family members, his treatment was going at the time of his death. He denied the suggestion that since the hip bone of Parmanand Lal was fractured, he was disabled and was unable to walk. He used to frequently visit Nawabganj. He denied the suggestion that he and his brothers never resided in the Nawabganj house. He failed to disclose the boundaries of the Nawabganj house. He denied the possession of the Nawabganj house with Sudha and Krishna Kumar and others. He admitted that he cannot file any documentary evidence to prove that he and his brothers are in possession of the Nawabganj house.

41. He further deposed that Parmanand Lal never disclosed to him about the Will deed executed in favour of Sudha and others. The Will dated 25.5.2002 was prepared at the house of Parmanand Lal, which was typed by Parmanand Lal himself. He arrived at Nawabganj house, on being called, at about 2–3 PM, two witnesses, he, Sudha, Krishna Kumar and some other well-wishers were present, who belonged to the maternal side of Gujarati Devi, the names of whom he was not aware. Parmanand Lal phoned him, on which he arrived along with two witnesses. He specifically deposed that on 25.5.2002 the Will deed was not prepared in the Kutchery. He admitted that mutation case regarding agricultural land of Parmanand Lal between him and Sudha and others was pending in tehsil. He admitted that his name was earlier mutated in PaKa-11 on the basis of possession in the month of December, 2002. He denied the suggestion that after the death of Parmanand Lal, Sudha and others had moved a mutation application on the basis of Will which was allowed and subsequently, he moved a restoration application. He also admitted that his statement was recorded and he was also cross-examined in the mutation case. He further deposed that the Will dated 25.5.2002 was not written in his presence. After the Will was handed to him between 2–3 PM, he left without witnesses. He went to his village. When he reached house no. B.26/116-A, Nawabganj, Varanasi, then Will had already been prepared.

42. He denied the suggestion that the last rites of Parmanand Lal were performed by Krishan Kumar and others. He admitted that after the tehrahvi of Parmanand Lal, he had moved mutation application in the tehsil. He also moved the mutation application on the basis of Will and on that basis, the Lekhpal had mutated his name and the name of others, in PaKa-11. He denied the suggestion that the first application was moved on 17.12.2002 in which there was no mention of Will and in collusion with Lekhpal his name was mutated. He also denied the suggestion that after the name of Sudha and others was mutated on the basis of registered Will, then he and others had moved subsequent application of mutation.

43. He further deposed that in the alleged Will deed executed by Parmanand Lal in their favour, attesting witnesses are Lalji and Vinod Kumar. He was not aware of the name of Lalji's wife. He feigned ignorance that the name of Lalji's wife was Dulari Devi, but admitted that he has executed the sale deed of his four decimal land in favour of Dulari Devi, and Lalji was the witness of the Will. He denied the suggestion that land of Parmanand Lal was cultivated by Lalji. He denied the suggestion that he threatened Lalji that he will take the land from him and compelled him to become a witness of his fraudulent Will. He feigned ignorance that he had admitted in his statement in the mutation proceedings in the tehsil, that the Will dated 25.5.2002 was prepared and executed in Kutchery. He denied the suggestion that the Will dated 25.5.2002 was a forged and fabricated document, which was not executed by Parmanand Lal.

44. Lalji DW-2 deposed in his examination-in-chief that in his presence, Parmanand Lal prepared his Will on 25.5.2002 in favour of his nephews Krishna Kumar, Awdesb Kumar, Madan Kumar, Manoj Kumar, Santosh Kumar and Rakesh Lal. The typed Will was read in his presence by Parmanand Lal and then signed on each page in English by him (Parmanand Lal). Thereafter, in the presence of Parmanand Lal, he and Vinod Kumar Singh signed the Will. The photograph of Parmanand Lal was also pasted on the first page of the Will in his presence. On that date, Parmanand Lal's body and mind was alright.

45. DW-2 deposed in cross-examination that he has neither prepared nor read his affidavit in examination-in-chief, it was prepared by Rakesh Lal, he was not aware what was written in it, he had only signed the affidavit, he has not read it. He has not submitted any affidavit after perusing the Will of Parmanand Lal. Rakesh Lal had taken him to the tehsil, where he gave his written statement. On the day when Will of Parmanand was written, Rakesh Lal came and took him for witnessing it. He was accompanied by Vinod Kumar Yadav, Rakesh Lal and his relatives, the names of whom he was not aware, he was taken to the Durgakund residence of Parmanand Lal, he departed from his village at 12-12.30 PM and reached at 2.30 PM. He remained for an hour at Durgakund residence, the paper was in the hands of Parmanand Lal, which was read by Parmanand Lal, who also disclosed that he was bequeathing his immovable property and house to six brothers and cash to his daughter and sons of daughter. He saw the Will, but has not read it. He was not aware of the place where the Will was written. At the Durgakund residence the brothers of Rakesh, he, Vinod, Parmanand Lal, younger sister of Rakesh were present. The Will was first of all signed by Parmanand Lal, then by Vinod Kumar witness, then by him. Parmanand was saying that he had executed a Will earlier which he wanted to revoke, and he was making Will in favour of his six nephews. The Will which was signed by him, was prepared earlier. Parmanand has died, he was not aware when he died. He was not aware about his (Parmanand Lal) last rites. When the Will was prepared Parmanand was not ill, but he was incapable of walking.

46. He accepted that Dulari Devi was his wife, who resides with him, Rakesh Lal has executed sale deed of his 4 decimal land to Dulari Devi after the death of Parmanand Lal. He denied that he cultivated the land of Parmanand Lal. Rakesh Lal are six brothers. He denied the suggestion that Parmanand Lal had not executed any Will on 25.5.2002.

47. Ramnarayan DW-3 deposed in his examination-in-chief that after the death of Parmanand Lal his nephews Krishna Kumar, Awdesb Kumar, Madan Kumar, Manoj Kumar, Santosh Kumar and Rakesh Lal were in possession of the property, being the owners. Parmanand Lal was looked after by his nephews. In cross-examination he deposed that Parmanand Lal resided in Banaras at Durgaji. Parmanand Lal died in Banaras. He denied the suggestion that Parmanand Lal resided at Durgakund with the family of his daughter. He further deposed that the whole village knew that a Will was executed by Parmanand Lal in favour of his nephews. He was not aware whether Parmanand Lal had executed in his lifetime Will in favour of Smt.Sudha Srivastava and children of Smt.Radha.

48. Vikas Srivastava DW-4, the handwriting expert, deposed in his examination chief that the Will dated 20.9.1996 and 25.5.2002 have been executed by one and the same person Parmanand Lal .

Case law applicable

49. The Apex Court in the case of H.Venkatachala Iyengar vs. B.N.Thimmajamma & Others, 1958 SCC OnLine SC 31 (By 3 Judges), while examining the issues related with execution and proof of Will has enunciated a few fundamental guiding principles that have consistently been followed and applied in almost all the cases involving such issues. The exposition of law made by the Apex Court is as under:-

18. What is the true legal position in the matter of proof of wills? It is well-known that the proof of wills presents a recurring topic for decision in courts and there are a large number of judicial pronouncements on the subject. The party propounding a will or otherwise making a claim under a will is no doubt seeking to prove a document and, in deciding how it is to be proved, we must inevitably refer to the statutory provisions which govern the proof of documents. Sections 67 and 68 of the Evidence Act are relevant for this purpose. Under Section 67, if a document is alleged to be signed by any person, the signature of the said person must be proved to be in his handwriting, and for proving such a handwriting under Sections 45 and 47 of the Act the opinions of experts and of persons acquainted with the handwriting of the person concerned are made relevant. Section 68 deals with the proof of the execution of the document required by law to be attested; and it provides that such a document shall not be used as evidence until one attesting witness at least has been called for the purpose of proving its execution. These provisions prescribe the requirements and the nature of proof which must be satisfied by the party who relies on a document in a court of law. Similarly, Sections 59 and 63 of the Indian Succession Act are also relevant. Section 59 provides that every person of sound mind, not being a minor, may dispose of his property by will and the three illustrations to this section indicate what is meant by the expression "a person of sound mind" in the context. Section 63 requires that the testator shall sign or affix his mark to the will or it shall be signed by some other person in his presence and by his direction and that the signature or mark shall be so made that it shall appear that it was intended thereby to give effect to the writing as a will. This section also requires that the will shall be attested by two or more witnesses as prescribed. Thus the question as to whether the will set up by the propounder is proved to be the last will of the testator has to be decided in the light of these provisions. Has the testator signed the will? Did he understand the nature and effect of the dispositions in the will? Did he put his signature to the will knowing what it contained? Stated broadly it is the decision of these questions which determines the nature of the finding on the question of the proof of wills. It would prima facie be true to say that the will has to be proved like any other document except as to the special requirements of attestation prescribed by Section 63 of the Indian Succession Act. As in the case of proof of other documents so in the case of proof of wills it would be idle to expect proof with mathematical certainty. The test to be applied would be the usual test of the satisfaction of the prudent mind in such matters.

19. However, there is one important feature which distinguishes wills from other documents. Unlike other documents the will speaks from the death of the testator, and so, when it is propounded or produced before a court, the testator who has already departed the world cannot say whether it is his will or not; and this aspect naturally introduces an element of solemnity in the decision of the question as to whether the document propounded is proved to be the last will and testament of the departed testator. Even so, in dealing with the proof of wills the court will start on the same enquiry as in the case of the proof of documents. The propounder would be called upon to show by satisfactory evidence that the will was signed by the testator, that the testator at the relevant time was in a sound and disposing state of mind, that he understood the nature and effect of the dispositions and put his signature to the document of his own free will. Ordinarily when the evidence adduced in support of the will is disinterested, satisfactory and sufficient to prove the sound and disposing state of the testator's mind and his signature as required by law, courts would be justified in making a finding in favour of the propounder. In other words, the onus on the propounder can be taken to be discharged on proof of the essential facts just indicated.

20. There may, however, be cases in which the execution of the will may be surrounded by suspicious circumstances. The alleged signature of the testator may be very shaky and doubtful and evidence in support of the propounder's case that the signature, in question is the signature of the testator may not remove the doubt created by the appearance of the signature; the condition of the testator's mind may appear to be very feeble and debilitated; and evidence adduced may not succeed in removing the legitimate doubt as to the mental capacity of the testator; the dispositions made in the will may appear to be unnatural, improbable or unfair in the light of relevant circumstances; or, the will may otherwise indicate that the said dispositions may not be the result of the testator's free will and mind. In such cases the court would naturally expect that all legitimate suspicions should be completely removed before the document is accepted as the last will of the testator. The presence of such suspicious circumstances naturally tends to make the initial onus very heavy; and, unless it is satisfactorily discharged, courts would be reluctant to treat the document as the last will of the testator. It is true that, if a caveat is filed alleging the exercise of undue influence, fraud or coercion in respect of the execution of the will propounded, such pleas may have to be proved by the caveators; but, even without such pleas circumstances may raise a doubt as to whether the testator was acting of his own free will in executing the will, and in such circumstances, it would be a part of the initial onus to remove any such legitimate doubts in the matter.

21. Apart from the suspicious circumstances to which we have just referred, in some cases the wills propounded disclose another infirmity. Propounders themselves take a prominent part in the execution of the wills which confer on them substantial benefits. If it is shown that the propounder has taken a prominent part in the execution of the will and has received substantial benefit under it, that itself is generally treated as a suspicious circumstance attending the execution of the will and the propounder is required to remove the said suspicion by clear and satisfactory evidence. It is in connection with wills that present such suspicious circumstances that decisions of English courts often mention the test of the satisfaction of judicial conscience. It may be that the reference to judicial conscience in this connection is a heritage from similar observations made by ecclesiastical courts in England when they exercised jurisdiction with reference to wills; but any objection to the use of the word “conscience” in this context would, in our opinion, be purely technical and academic, if not pedantic. The test merely emphasizes that, in determining the question as to whether an instrument produced before the court is the last will of the testator, the court is deciding a solemn question and it must be fully satisfied that it had been validly executed by the testator who is no longer alive.

*22. It is obvious that for deciding material questions of fact which arise in applications for probate or in actions on wills, no hard and fast or inflexible rules can be laid down for the appreciation of the evidence. It may, however, be stated generally that a propounder of the will has to prove the due and valid execution of the will and that if there are any suspicious circumstances surrounding the execution of the will the propounder must remove the said suspicions from the mind of the court by cogent and satisfactory evidence. It is hardly necessary to add that the result of the application of these two general and broad principles would always depend upon the facts and circumstances of each case and on the nature and quality of the evidence adduced by the parties. It is quite true that, as observed by Lord Du Parcq in Harmes v. Hinkson [(1946) 50 CWN 895] “where a will is charged with suspicion, the rules enjoin a reasonable scepticism, not an obdurate persistence in disbelief. They do not demand from the Judge, even in circumstances of grave suspicion, a resolute and impenetrable incredulity. He is never required to close his mind to the truth”. It would sound platitudinous to say so, but it is nevertheless true that in discovering truth even in such cases the judicial mind must always be open though vigilant, cautious and circumspect.*

50. The Constitution bench of the Apex Court in the case of Shashi Kumar Banerjee and others vs. Subodh Kumar Banerjee and others, 1963 SCC OnLine SC 114, while examining the law relating to the manner and onus of proof and also the duty cast upon the court while dealing with the case based upon a Will, has held as follows:-

"The mode of proving a Will does not ordinarily differ from that of proving any other document except as to the special requirement of attestation prescribed in the case of a Will by Section 63 of the Indian Succession Act. The onus of proving the Will is on the propounder and in the absence of suspicious circumstances surrounding the execution of the Will, proof of testamentary capacity and the signature of the testator as required by law is sufficient to discharge the onus. Where however there are suspicious circumstances, the onus is on the propounder to explain them to the satisfaction of the court before the court accepts the Will as genuine. Where the caveator alleges undue influence, fraud and coercion, the onus is on him to prove the same. Even when there are no such pleas but the circumstances give rise to doubts, it is for the propounder to satisfy the conscience of the court. The suspicious circumstances may be as to the genuineness of the signature of the testator, the condition of the testator's mind, the dispositions made in the Will being unnatural, improbable or unfair in the light of relevant circumstances or there might be other indicators in the Will to show that the testator's mind was not free. In such a case the court would naturally expect that all legitimate suspicion should be completely removed before the document is accepted as the last Will of the testator. If the propounder himself takes part in the execution of the Will which confers a substantial benefit on him, that is also a circumstance to be taken into account, and the propounder is required to remove the doubts by clear and satisfactory evidence. If the propounder succeeds in removing the suspicious circumstances the court would grant probate, even if the Will might be unnatural and might cut off wholly or in part near relations."

51. The Apex Court in the case of Shivakumar and others vs. Sharanabasappa and others (2021)¹¹ SCC 277, after traversing through the relevant decisions, has summarised the principles governing the adjudicatory process concerning proof of a Will as follows:-

12. For what has been noticed hereinabove, the relevant principles governing the adjudicatory process concerning proof of a will could be broadly summarised as follows:

12.1. Ordinarily, a will has to be proved like any other document; the test to be applied being the usual test of the satisfaction of the prudent mind. Alike the principles governing the proof of other documents, in the case of will too, the proof with mathematical accuracy is not to be insisted upon.

12.2. Since as per Section 63 of the Succession Act, a will is required to be attested, it cannot be used as evidence until at least one attesting witness has been called for the purpose of proving its execution, if there be an attesting witness alive and capable of giving evidence.

12.3. The unique feature of a will is that it speaks from the death of the testator and, therefore, the maker thereof is not available for deposing about the circumstances in which the same was executed. This introduces an element of solemnity in the decision of the question as to whether the document propounded is the last will of the testator. The initial onus, naturally, lies on the propounder but the same can be taken to have been primarily discharged on proof of the essential facts which go into the making of a will.

12.4. The case in which the execution of the will is surrounded by suspicious circumstances stands on a different footing. The presence of suspicious circumstances makes the onus heavier on the propounder and, therefore, in cases where the circumstances attendant upon the execution of the document give rise to suspicion, the propounder must remove all legitimate suspicions before the document can be accepted as the last will of the testator.

12.5. If a person challenging the will alleges fabrication or alleges fraud, undue influence, coercion et cetera in regard to the execution of the will, such pleas have to be proved by him, but even in the absence of such pleas, the very circumstances surrounding the execution of the will may give rise to the doubt or as to whether the will had indeed been executed by the testator and/or as to whether the testator was acting of his own free will. In such eventuality, it is again a part of the initial onus of the propounder to remove all reasonable doubts in the matter.

12.6. A circumstance is “suspicious” when it is not normal or is “not normally expected in a normal situation or is not expected of a normal person”. As put by this Court, the suspicious features must be “real, germane and valid” and not merely the “fantasy of the doubting mind”.

12.7. As to whether any particular feature or a set of features qualify as “suspicious” would depend on the facts and circumstances of each case. A shaky or doubtful signature; a feeble or uncertain mind of the testator; an unfair disposition of property; an unjust exclusion of the legal heirs and particularly the dependants; an active or leading part in making of the will by the beneficiary thereunder et cetera are some of the circumstances which may give rise to suspicion. The circumstances abovenoted are only illustrative and by no means exhaustive because there could be any circumstance or set of circumstances which may give rise to legitimate suspicion about the execution of the will. On the other hand, any of the circumstances qualifying as being suspicious could be legitimately explained by the propounder. However, such suspicion or suspicions cannot be removed by mere proof of sound and disposing state of mind of the testator and his signature coupled with the proof of attestation.

12.8. The test of satisfaction of the judicial conscience comes into operation when a document propounded as the will of the testator is surrounded by suspicious circumstance(s). While applying such test, the court would address itself to the solemn questions as to whether the testator had signed the will while being aware of its contents and after understanding the nature and effect of the dispositions in the will?

12.9. In the ultimate analysis, where the execution of a will is shrouded in suspicion, it is a matter essentially of the judicial conscience of the court and the party which sets up the will has to offer cogent and convincing explanation of the suspicious circumstances surrounding the will.

52. The Apex Court in the case of A. Kamala Bai(D) Through LRS vs. B. Kanna Rao(D) Through LRS, Civil Appeal No. 136 of 2013, held as under:-

11. Admittedly, PW-5 is the only witness examined by the Appellant to prove the execution of the Will in terms of the statutory mandate under Section 63 (c) of the Succession Act and 68 of the Indian Evidence Act. Apart from PW-5, the other attesting witness or the scribe has not been examined before the Senior Civil Judge in course of inquiry to submit the report called for by the High Court. Thus, the statement of PW-5 is of great significance for the reason that it is his statement around which the execution of the Will have to be proved. When such is the situation, we have to consider the evidence of this witness with utmost attention. The statement of PW-5 in his cross-examination is reproduced herein for exactitude:

“I have not given instruction for preparing the chief affidavit belongs to me. I cannot say who have instructions for preparing my chief affidavit. I do not know the contents of my chief affidavit.”

12. In addition to the above statement, in the subsequent part of his cross examination he also states that “I do not know the contents of the will.”

13. Thus, firstly, this witness categorically admits that the chief affidavit was not prepared on his instructions and secondly, he does not know the contents of his chief affidavit. Ms. Jaikriti S. Jadeja, learned counsel for the appellant may be right to some extent in submitting that the entire statement of the witness cannot be ignored. However, the second limb of her submission that in his cross examination this witness has proved the execution of the will is difficult to accept because in subsequent part of his cross examination this witness admits that he does not know the contents of the will. The evidence of a witness has to be read as a whole and not in isolation. On such reading the evidence of PW-5 does not inspire confidence.

14. To prove the execution of will, one of the attesting witnesses is to be examined mandatorily, however, when the sole attesting witness examined before the Court admits that his chief affidavit i.e. the examination in chief was not recorded under his instructions nor does he know the contents of his examination in chief, the evidentiary value of his statement in cross-examination is seriously dented. Even if it is not necessary for a attesting witness to know the contents of the will, the question remains that he has to depose in Court, in no uncertain terms, that he has prepared the chief affidavit under his own instructions so that the credibility of the witness is assessed in the Court as a true attestor as required under Section 63 (c) of the Succession Act and Section 68 of the Indian Evidence Act. If there is slightest doubt about the credibility of the sole attesting witness, holding the will to be a genuine one would be extremely difficult for the Court.

15. In the above view of the matter we are unable to accept the contention of learned counsel for the appellant that the will dated 11.03.1999 ought to have been found as genuine and the appellant should have been allowed to prosecute the Appeal Suit before the High Court on merits.

53. It is apparent from the above law laid down by the Apex Court in the case of H.Venkatachala Iyengar (supra), Shashi Kumar Banerjee (supra) and Shivakumar (supra) that where the execution of the Will is surrounded by suspicious circumstances then the onus lies on the propounder to remove all legitimate suspicions before the document can be accepted as the last Will of the testator. It is also apparent that such suspicion or suspicions cannot be removed by mere proof of sound and disposing state of mind of the testator and his signature coupled with the proof of attestation. It is also apparent that where the execution of Will is shrouded in suspicion, it is a matter essentially of the judicial conscience of the Court and the party which sets up the Will has to offer cogent and convincing explanation of the suspicious circumstances surrounding the Will.

54. It is evident from the pleadings of the parties and the evidence on record that the first Will of Parmanand Lal, which was registered Will executed on 20.9.1996 is not disputed by the parties. It is the case of the defendant-appellants that the above registered Will was revoked by Parmanand Lal on 25.5.2002 and in its place, another unregistered Will was executed by him in favour of the defendants. It is apparent that the execution and the authenticity of the first Will of Parmanand Lal dated 20.9.1996 is not in doubt as such, there is no need to examine its authenticity and validity for deciding the instant appeals.

55. The only dispute that arises is whether Parmanand Lal revoked his first registered Will dated 20.9.1996 and in its place, executed another unregistered Will on 25.5.2002? This Court has to examine the reasons for revoking the first Will, the place of alleged execution of the second

Will, the persons present who took active part in the preparation and execution of the second Will, when and in which manner the second Will came to be disclosed by the propounder and the suspicious circumstances surrounding the second Will?

56. It is proved from the evidence on record that Parmanand Lal had no sons, had only two married daughters namely Smt.Sudha and Radha, elder daughter Smt. Radha had died during the lifetime of Parmanand Lal, as such, by first Will dated 20.9.1996 Parmanand Lal bequeathed his entire movable and immovable property to his surviving daughter Smt.Sudha(half share) and sons of deceased daughter Radha namely Krishan Kumar Srivastava, Yogesh Kumar alias Goli and Somesh Kumar alias Rishi(half share).By this Will, Parmanand Lal(testator) bequeathed his residential house no.B.26/116-A, situated in Nawabganj, Bhelupura, Varanasi in equal half shares to his daughter Smt. Sudha and sons of deceased daughter Smt. Radha. It is apparent that there is nothing suspicious in this Will, since the testator has equally bequeathed his movable and immovable property to his heirs, who would have also otherwise inherited the property of the testator being class I heirs as per The Hindu Succession Act,1956, in the absence of the Will. As discussed earlier, the execution of this Will is not disputed by the parties.

Suspicious circumstances surrounding the Will dated 25.5.2002

(i) Ill Health of testator Parmanand Lal:-

57. Sudha Srivastava PW-1 has deposed that her father Parmanand

Lal(testator) had become bedridden two years prior to his death because his hip bone was fractured, who was unable to move and do his routine work and till his death, he was looked after and cared by the plaintiffs. She has further deposed that her father died on 22.11.2002 in his residential house no.B.26/116-A, situated in Nawabganj, Bhelupura, Varanasi. From the evidence of PW-1 it is evident that she was not aware of the alleged Will dated 25.5.2002 executed by her father.

58. From the evidence of Rakesh Lal Srivastava DW-1 it is evident that he has accepted that at the time of his death, the testator was above 80 years old, who was ill since about one year prior to his death, his leg was fractured. He denied that about two years prior to his death, the hip bone of the testator was fractured. He admitted that the testator was undergoing treatment at the time of his death. Attesting witness Lalji DW-2 has also admitted in cross-examination that the testator at the time of execution of alleged Will, was unable to walk. From the above evidence it is proved that the testator was about 80 years old at the time of the alleged execution of the Will dated 25.5.2002 and was ill.

59. Propounder of the Will DW-1 has deposed that the Will was typed by the testator himself at his Nawabganj house, but in his previous statement during mutation proceedings, he has deposed that the Will was typed in Civil Court, Varanasi at the office of Rajendra Prasad, Advocate. Since Parmanand Lal was ill, bedridden and was about 80 years old at that time, it was virtually impossible for the testator to himself type the Will at his Nawabganj residence.

(ii)Place of execution of the alleged Will:-

60. From the evidence of DW-1 it is proved that the alleged Will dated 25.5.2002 was executed at the house of the testator. This witness has stated that the alleged Will was typed himself by Parmanand Lal at his house situated in Nawabganj, Varanasi and thereafter, handed to them. He has further stated that he was called by the testator at his Nawabganj house and had reached there at 2 – 3 PM and at that time he, Sudha, Krishan Kumar and some well-wishers were also present. This witness has further stated that on the asking of the testator on phone, he arrived with the two witnesses. This witness has specifically deposed that the above Will was not prepared in Kutchery. According to this witness the Will was not prepared in his presence but when he reached the Nawabganj house of the testator, it was ready and after the Will was handed to him, he left for his village, leaving the two witnesses behind. This witness during mutation proceedings had earlier deposed that the above Will was prepared in Civil Court, Varanasi, at the office of Rajendra Prasad, Advocate and when he was confronted with his previous statement, then he feigned ignorance about it. It is apparent that the propounder of alleged Will dated 25.5.2002 DW-1 has made two contradictory statements regarding the place where the alleged Will was prepared.

61. The attesting witness of alleged Will dated 25.5.2002 Lalji DW-2 to the contrary, has deposed that the Will was prepared at the Durgakund residence of Parmanand Lal. It is evident that there is a serious contradiction between the above witnesses regarding the place where the alleged Will was prepared by the testator, which makes it highly suspicious.

(iii)Preparation of Will:-

62. From the evidence of propounder DW-1 and attesting witness Lalji DW-2 it is proved that the witnesses were brought by the propounder to the testator's house. DW-1 has also admitted that on being asked by the testator, he arrived at the testator's house with two witnesses. It is proved that the propounder had taken an active part in the preparation of the alleged Will.

(iv)Non disclosure of the alleged Will by the propounder in mutation proceedings:-

63. It is evident from the documents submitted by the plaintiff that the propounder Rakesh Lal and his brothers had moved a mutation application on 12.12.2002 under Section 34 of the U.P. Land Revenue Act before the Court of Tehsildar, Varanasi for getting their name mutated on the basis of inheritance, being the legal heirs of deceased Parmanand Lal, who died on 22.11.2002. This application was prepared by Mansha Ram, Advocate. An affidavit by Rakesh Lal Srivastava was also filed in support of the above application.

64. It is apparent that in the above mutation application it has not been disclosed that Rakesh Lal Srivastava and his brothers inherited the agricultural land on the basis of Will allegedly executed by Parmanand Lal on 25.5.2002 in their favour. It is apparent from the perusal of the alleged Will dated 25.5.2002 that it has been prepared by Mansa Ram Mishra, Advocate. It is very surprising that in the mutation application moved by Rakesh Lal Srivastava there was no mention of the alleged Will executed in his favour by Parmanand Lal on 25.5.2002. It is also very surprising that the mutation application was prepared by the same Advocate Mansha Ram, who had earlier allegedly prepared the Will dated 25.5.2002.

65. It is very surprising that the alleged Will was in possession of the propounder and if the alleged Will was indeed executed by the testator on 25.5.2002 and on the basis of that Will, Rakesh Lal Srivastava DW-1 and his brothers had become the owners of the agricultural land, then why its existence was not disclosed in the mutation application, which was moved on 12.12.2002, after the death of Parmanand Lal on 22.11.2002. It is all the more surprising that the mutation application and the alleged Will, both were drafted by the same Advocate Mansha Ram, but he failed to disclose about the existence of the Will in the mutation application, which is beyond comprehension. The propounder of Will DW-1 has admitted in his cross-examination that the above mutation proceedings were initiated by him. The above evidence leads to the irresistible conclusion that the alleged Will of the testator was not in existence till 12.12.2002 and it was prepared subsequently, to counter the mutation application moved by the plaintiff Sudha Srivastava PW-1 on the basis of registered Will of testator dated 20.9.1996.

(v)Evidence of Lalji DW-2, the attesting witness of the alleged Will:-

66. From the cross-examination of Lalji DW-2 it is evident that his affidavit in examination-in-chief, was prepared by Rakesh Lal Srivastava, and he has merely signed it without reading it, he was not aware of its contents. In similar circumstances, the Apex Court in the case of A. Kamala Bai (supra) has held that such attesting witness does not inspire confidence and on the basis of the above statement, the execution of the Will is not proved.

67. DW-2 admitted that previously he had also given his testimony in tehsil. He also admitted that Dulari Devi is his wife, in whose favour Rakesh Lal has executed a sale deed of land of 4 decimal.

68. It is apparent that Rakesh Lal, has executed a sale deed of four decimal land in favour of the wife of DW-2, and due to this reason, DW-2 Lalji has been planted as an attesting witness of the alleged Will.

(vi) Reason for revoking earlier Will dated 20.9.1996:-

69. The alleged Will dated 25.5.2002 discloses that previously, due to fraud committed on him, the testator had executed Will dated 20.9.1996 bequeathing his ancestral property in favour of his daughter and sons of deceased daughter, regarding which he was not aware and when he became aware of the above fact, he decided to revoke his earlier Will dated 20.9.1996. By the subsequent Will dated 25.5.2002, the residential house no.B.26/116-A, situated in Nawabganj, Bhelupura, Varanasi and other immovable properties of the testator were bequeathed to the sons of his deceased elder brother Lakshmilal namely Krishna Kumar, Awadesh Kumar, Madan Kumar, Manoj Kumar, Santosh Kumar and Rakesh Lal whereas, the movable property including cash and jewellery was bequeathed to his daughter Sudha Devi and sons of deceased daughter Radha Devi.

70. It is apparent that the reason assigned by the testator for revoking his earlier Will dated 20.9.1996 is not very convincing. The alleged Will dated 25.5.2002 discloses that a fraud was committed upon the testator. From the testimony of plaintiff Sudha Srivastava PW-1 it is evident that she was looking after her father/testator Parmanand Lal, who was bedridden, since the last two years prior to his death, as such, the reason assigned by the testator that a fraud was played upon him by his daughter and the sons of the deceased daughter, is not at all reliable.

Conclusion of the Court

71. From the above evidence on record, it is proved that Parmanand Lal (testator) was bedridden, was in ill health and was unable to go to the civil court for executing the alleged Will dated 25.5.2002. It is also apparent that there is considerable doubt regarding the place where the alleged Will was prepared. In the mutation proceedings, the propounder of the alleged Will Rakesh Lal Srivastava deposed that the alleged Will was prepared in the Civil Court Varanasi, but subsequently, he deposed that it was typed by the testator at his house situated in Nawabganj, Bhelupura Varanasi. Further, the attesting witness Lalji deposed that it was prepared at the Durgakund house of the testator, which is contradictory to the place deposed by the propounder. It is also evident that the propounder has taken active part in the preparation of the alleged Will. It is also evident that in the mutation application filed by the propounder before the court of tehsildar Varanasi, the propounder and his brothers claimed ownership of the agricultural land on the basis of inheritance, being the legal heirs of the deceased testator. No plea of ownership on the basis of alleged Will was taken in the above mutation proceedings. It is very surprising that if the propounder was in possession of the alleged Will and on the basis of that Will, he became the owner of the agricultural land after the death of the testator, then why it was not mentioned in the mutation application. It is all the more surprising that the mutation application and the alleged Will was drafted by the same Advocate Mansha Ram, who was very well aware about the existence of the alleged Will at the time of moving the mutation application before the revenue court, but the fact of the existence of the alleged Will and acquisition of ownership on the basis of that Will, was never mentioned by the Advocate while moving the mutation application. This fact itself proves that at the time of moving the mutation application on 12.12.2002, the alleged Will was not in existence and it was subsequently, put up to counter the mutation application moved by the plaintiff Smt. Sudha Srivastava, who had alleged ownership of the disputed agricultural land on the basis of earlier registered Will dated 20.9.1996 of the testator. It is also apparent that the attesting witness Lalji being the beneficiary of land, allegedly sold to him by the propounder, was an interested witness whose evidence does not inspire confidence. It is further evident that the reason assigned by the testator for revoking his earlier Will are not at all convincing.

72. From the above circumstances proved by cogent evidence, the propounder of the alleged Will has not been able to dispel the suspicious circumstances surrounding the execution of the alleged

Will. It is well settled that in such cases, judicial conscience must be satisfied that the alleged Will was indeed executed by the testator and it was the last Will of the testator, but in the present case, the judicial conscience has not been satisfied. The execution of the alleged Will is shrouded in grave suspicion, which has not been dispelled by the propounder to the satisfaction of this Court.

73. In view of the above analysis, the trial court has not erred in rejecting the Probate application of the propounder of the alleged Will dated 25.5.2002 and allowing the Probate application of the propounder of earlier Will dated 20.9.1996. Accordingly, the instant appeals have no merit and are liable to be dismissed.

74. Accordingly, First Appeal No. 1276 of 2023 and 1274 of 2023, are dismissed. Costs easy.

75. The impugned judgement and order of the trial court dated 18.10.2023 is affirmed.

Habeas Corpus Writ Petition No. 565 of 2025

Smt. Guddi Devi & Anr.	...Petitioners
Versus
State Of U.P. & Ors.	...Respondents

Issue for Consideration

Whether a writ of Habeas Corpus is maintainable against an order of the Child Welfare Committee directing detention of the corpus in a Government Children Home, and whether the order dated 09.06.2025 declaring the corpus to be a minor on the basis of school transfer certificate without following the procedure under Section 94 of the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2015, was without jurisdiction and illegal.

Headnotes

Constitution of India — Art. 226 — Habeas Corpus — Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2015 — ss.2(12), 27(9), 29, 94 — Age determination — School transfer certificate — Photocopies — No proof — No evidence — Mechanical order — Jurisdiction of Child Welfare Committee — Maintainability of Habeas Corpus — Detention illegal — Release directed.

Held:

A writ of Habeas Corpus is not to be entertained when a person is detained pursuant to an order of a competent court which prima facie does not suffer from lack of jurisdiction or absolute illegality. However, if the order is without jurisdiction, wholly illegal or passed mechanically without application of mind, the writ would be maintainable. The Full Bench decision in Rachna v. State of U.P. does not bar a petition for Habeas Corpus where the order of the Child Welfare Committee is without jurisdiction or a nullity. [Paras 5–7]

Under Section 94 of the Act, 2015, age determination requires obtaining date of birth certificate from the school or matriculation certificate and, in absence thereof, birth certificate from local authority and only thereafter medical test. A transfer certificate or entries in admission register are not date of birth certificates within the meaning of Section 94(2)(i). Mere production of school records is insufficient; the Committee, having powers of a Judicial Magistrate under Section 27(9), must take evidence and scrutinize the genuineness and source of entries. [Paras 8–12]

The Child Welfare Committee relied only on photocopies of transfer certificates and scholar register without summoning and proving original records, without examining the Headmaster on oath regarding the source of entry of date of birth and without recording any finding regarding genuineness. The father was also not examined. The procedure under Section 94 was not followed. [Paras 13–14]

In absence of proper age determination, the essential condition for exercise of jurisdiction under Sections 2(12), 29 of the Act, 2015 did not exist. The order dated 09.06.2025 was passed mechanically and without application of mind, was without jurisdiction and a nullity. [Para 14]

The medical report indicated the age of the corpus to be 18 years or above. In absence of any legally admissible contrary evidence, the corpus was not a “child” under Section 2(12) of the Act, 2015 and the Child Welfare Committee had no jurisdiction to detain her. [Para 14]

Accordingly, writ of Habeas Corpus issued directing immediate release of the corpus from Government Children Home (Girls), Sindhi Kheda Ashray Griha Paara, Lucknow. Petition allowed. [Paras 15–16] (E-14)

Case Arising From

Order dated 09.06.2025 passed by the Child Welfare Committee, Shahjahanpur declaring the corpus to be a minor and directing her placement at Government Children Home (Girls), Sindhi Kheda Ashray Griha Paara, Lucknow, pursuant to Case Crime No. 95 of 2025 under Section 137(2) B.N.S., Police Station concerned.

Appearance for Parties

For the Petitioners: Ashok Kumar Mishra; Shivesh Mishra

For Respondents (State): G.A.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Salil Kumar Rai, J.)

The present petition has been filed for a writ of Habeas Corpus for release of petitioner no. 1 from what is alleged to be an illegal detention by the State respondents. The petitioners claim to be married and that petitioner no. 2 is the husband of petitioner no. 1.

It is claimed in the writ petition that the date of birth of petitioner no. 1 is 01.01.2004 and petitioners married according to Hindu Rites and Customs on 25.04.2025 at Arya Samaj, Damodar Puram, Subhash Nagar, Bareilly. It has been stated that petitioner no. 1 voluntarily left her parental home and married petitioner no. 2 and no force or coercion was applied on her either to leave her parental home or marry petitioner no. 2. On 27.04.2025, the respondent no. 4 who is the father of petitioner no. 1 lodged a first information report registering Case Crime No. 95 of 2025 under Section 137 (2) of the Bhartiya Nyay Sanhita, 2023 (hereinafter referred to as 'BNS'). It was stated in the first information report that petitioner no. 1 was aged 16 years and 9 months. The first information report was challenged by the petitioners before this Hon'ble Court through Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No.

9227 of 2025 in which an order dated 08.05.2025 was passed restraining the respondents from arresting the petitioners for a period of two months. The relevant portion of the order is reproduced below:-

"4. Be that as it may, the writ petition is disposed off with a direction to the Investigating Officer to record the statement of the girl under Section 180 BNSS and also produce the petitioner No.1 before the concerned Chief Judicial Magistrate for recording her statement under Section 183 BNSS within two weeks from today. In the event, the petitioner No.1 appears before the concerned Chief Judicial Magistrate within stipulated period, the Chief Judicial Magistrate concerned shall record her statement under Section 183 BNSS and also ensure her medical age determination and thereafter the Investigating Officer shall proceed in accordance with law.

5. For a period of two months, the respondents are restrained to arrest the petitioners pursuant to impugned first information report."

(Emphasis supplied)

In pursuance to the order dated 08.05.2025 passed by this Court, the statement of petitioner no. 1 was recorded under Section 180 BNSS wherein the petitioner no. 1 stated that she was aged about 21 years, had voluntarily gone with the petitioner no. 2 and that petitioners had married in Arya Samaj, Damodar Puram, Subhash Nagar, Bareilly and were living as husband and wife. Petitioner no. 1 was also medically examined. The medical report dated 28.05.2025 submitted by the Medical Officer, District Women Hospital, Shahjahanpur reported that the radiological age of petitioner no. 1 was 19 years. The statement of petitioner no. 1 was also recorded under Section 183 BNSS wherein she reiterated her statement given under Section 180 BNSS. Subsequently, petitioner no. 1 was produced before the Child Welfare Committee, Shahjahanpur which by its order dated 09.06.2025 declared that petitioner no. 1 was a minor and directed that she be kept at Government Children Home (Girls) Sindhi Kheda Ashray Griha Paara, Lucknow. The Child Welfare Committee while passing the aforesaid order relied on the transfer certificate issued by the Purva Madhyamik Shankarpur Pitarhigh, Shahjahanpur which noted the date of birth of petitioner no. 1 as 10.07.2008. The certificate was verified by the Principal of the aforesaid institution when the Principal was summoned by the Child Welfare Committee. The Child Welfare Committee held that while determining the age of petitioner no. 1, the date of birth as recorded in the school records had to be given priority over radiological examination. A counter affidavit on behalf of the respondent has been filed by the Additional Government Advocate annexing the different school records and the medical report of petitioner no. 1.

The writ petition was subsequently amended including the prayer to quash the order dated 09.06.2025 passed by the Child Welfare Committee, Shahjahanpur.

It has been argued by the counsel for the petitioners that petitioner no. 1 is major as would be evident from the medical report as well as her statement recorded under Sections 180 and 183 BNSS and is not a child as defined under the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2015. It was argued that the petitioners are married according to Hindu rites and the said marriage is a valid marriage under the Hindu Marriage Act, therefore, the father of petitioner no. 1 had no guardianship rights over the petitioner no. 1 and the order of the Child Welfare Committee dated 09.06.2025 is without jurisdiction. It has been further argued that the order dated 09.06.2025 has been passed by the Child Welfare Committee mechanically and without application of mind. It has been argued that for the aforesaid reason, the detention of petitioner no. 1 at Government Children Home (Girls) Sindhi Kheda Ashray Griha Paara, Lucknow is illegal and without authority of law. It was further argued that the order dated 09.06.2025 passed by the Child Welfare Committee is liable to be quashed and writ is to be issued to release petitioner no. 1.

Rebutting the argument of the counsel for the petitioners, the Additional Government Advocate has mainly argued that the corpus is kept at Government Children Home (Girls) Sindhi Kheda Ashray Griha Paara, Lucknow on the orders of the Child Welfare Committee which is a Court, therefore, the present petition for a writ of Habeas Corpus is not maintainable. In support of his contention, the AGA has mainly relied on the judgment of Full Bench of this Court reported in Rachna and Anr. vs. State of U.P. and Ors. AIR 2021 All 109 (FB). It was argued that under Section 94 of Act, 2015, the school records have priority over medical report and because the corpus is below 18 years of age and minor according to school records, therefore, the order dated 09.06.2025 passed by the Child Welfare Committee is in accordance with law and there is no illegality in the aforesaid order so as to occasion interference by this Court under Article 226 of the Constitution of India. It was argued that for the aforesaid reasons, the writ petition is liable to be dismissed.

We have considered the submission of the counsel for the parties.

It would be appropriate that the objections of the AGA to the maintainability of the present Habeas Corpus petition be considered first.

The AGA argues that the Habeas Corpus petition is not maintainable because the corpus is detained at Government Children Home (Girls) Sindhi Kheda Ashray Griha Paara, Lucknow on the orders of the Child Welfare Committee which is a Court. The AGA relies on Section 27 (9) of the Act, 2015 which provides that the Child Welfare Committee shall function as a bench and shall have the powers conferred by the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 on a Metropolitan Magistrate or, as the case may be, a Judicial Magistrate of I Class to argue that the Child Welfare Committee is a Court. In support of his contention, the AGA has relied mainly on the judgment of the Full Bench of this Court in Rachna and Anr. (supra).

It has been observed by the Supreme Court in Ummu Sabeena vs. State of Kerela & Ors. (2011) 10 SCC 781 that procedural safeguards given for protection of personal liberty must be strictly followed. The history of personal liberty is a history of insistence on procedural safeguards. It was observed by the Supreme Court that the principal of Habeas Corpus has been incorporated in our Constitutional law and in a democratic republic, the Judges owe a duty to safeguard the liberty not only of the citizens but also of all persons within the territory of India. The most effective way of doing the same was by way of exercise of power by the Court by issuing a writ of Habeas Corpus. It was further observed that the aforesaid facet of the writ of Habeas Corpus makes it a writ of the highest constitutional importance being a remedy available to the lowliest citizens against the most powerful authority. It has been said that the writ of Habeas Corpus is the key that unlocks the door to freedom.

It is in the above background that we shall consider the objections regarding the maintainability of the present petition.

The issue as to whether a petition for writ of Habeas Corpus was maintainable in cases of detention by an order of the Court was considered by the Supreme Court in several cases and it has been held that a writ of Habeas Corpus was not to be entertained when a person is put to judicial custody or police custody by the competent Court by an order which prima facie did not appear to be without jurisdiction or was not passed in an absolutely mechanical manner or was not wholly illegal. The aforesaid implies that in case, the order of the court was without jurisdiction or was passed in an absolutely mechanical manner or was wholly illegal, the petition for Habeas Corpus would be maintainable and a writ directing release of the detainee would be issued. At this stage, it would be relevant to consider two decisions of the Supreme Court.

The Supreme Court in Madhu Limaye, In re, (1969) SCC 292, while considering the legality of the detention after a judicial remand, observed that for successfully opposing the petition for Habeas Corpus, it was necessary for the State to establish that at the stage of remand, the Magistrate directed detention in jail custody, after applying his mind to all relevant matters. Similarly, in Manubhai Ratilal Patel Tr.Ushaben vs. State of Gujarat (2013) 1 SCC 314, the Supreme Court considered the legality of the remand orders passed by the Magistrate and dismissed the Habeas Corpus petition after noting that there was no illegality in the order passed by the Magistrate remanding the accused to judicial custody. The observations of the Supreme Court in paragraph no. 24 and 25 of the aforesaid judgment are reproduced below:-

24. The act of directing remand of an accused is fundamentally a judicial function. The Magistrate does not act in executive capacity while ordering the detention of an accused. While exercising this judicial act, it is obligatory on the part of the Magistrate to satisfy himself whether the materials placed before him justify such a remand or, to put it differently, whether there exist reasonable grounds to commit the accused to custody and extend his remand. The purpose of remand as postulated under Section 167 is that investigation cannot be completed within 24 hours. It enables the Magistrate to see that the remand is really necessary. This requires the investigating agency to send the case diary along with the remand report so that the Magistrate can appreciate the factual scenario and apply his mind whether there is a warrant for police remand or justification for judicial remand or there is no need for any remand at all. It is obligatory on the part of the Magistrate to apply his mind and not to pass an order of remand automatically or in a mechanical manner.

25. It is apt to note that in Madhu Limaye, In re [(1969) 1 SCC 292 : AIR 1969 SC 1014] it has been stated that : (SCC p. 299, para 12)

"12. Once it is shown that the arrests made by the police officers were illegal, it was necessary for the State to establish that at the stage of remand, the Magistrate directed detention in jail custody after applying his mind to all relevant matters."

(Emphasis supplied)

It be noted that in the aforesaid paragraphs, the Supreme Court has observed that it was obligatory on the part of the Magistrate to apply his mind and not to pass an order of remand automatically or in a mechanical manner. The condition that an order shall not be passed in a mechanical manner and should be passed after application of mind is an essential feature of a judicial order. The Supreme Court in Manubhai Ratilal Patel (supra) further observed in paragraph no. 31:-

"31. ... It is well-accepted principle that a writ of habeas corpus is not to be entertained when a person is committed to judicial custody or police custody by the competent court by an order which prima facie does not appear to be without jurisdiction or passed in an absolutely mechanical manner or wholly illegal. As has been stated in B. Ramchandra Rao [(1972) 3 SCC 256: 1972 SCC (Cri) 481: AIR 1971 SC 2197] and Kanu Sanyal [(1974) SCC 141:1974 SCC (Cri) 280], the court is required to scrutinize the legality or otherwise of the order of detention which has been passed. Unless the court is satisfied that a person has been committed to jail custody by virtue of an order that suffers from the vice of lack of jurisdiction or absolute illegality, a writ of habeas corpus cannot be granted.

..."

It is apparent from the observations of the Supreme Court reproduced above that in a Habeas Corpus petition, the legality of a detention order can be examined to ascertain whether the order suffers from a lack of jurisdiction or is absolutely illegal or has been passed in a wholly mechanical manner. If the order detaining the person is without jurisdiction or is absolutely illegal or has been passed in a mechanical manner, a writ of Habeas Corpus directing the release of the detenue would be issued.

The judgment of the Full Bench of this Court in Rachna and Anr. (supra) which has been relied upon by the AGA does not hold that a petition for Habeas Corpus would not be maintainable even in circumstances where an order passed by the Child Welfare Committee would be without jurisdiction and a nullity or where the order has been passed mechanically and without application of mind.

In the present case, the Child Welfare Committee has passed the order detaining the corpus, i.e., petitioner no. 1 on the ground that the corpus was a child and her date of birth is 10.07.2008 relying on the transfer certificates of Class V and VII and the scholar register of the Purva Madhyamik Vidyalaya Shankarpur Pitarhigh, Shahjahanpur. The medical report indicates that the age of petitioner is above 19 years.

Child has been defined under Section 2(12) of the Act, 2015 to mean a person who has not completed 18 years of age. Under Section 29 of the Act, 2015, the Child Welfare Committee has been empowered to dispose of cases for the care, protection, treatment, development and rehabilitation of children in need of care and protection, as well as to provide for their basic needs and protection. The definition of "child in need of care and protection" is not relevant in the present case. The issue in the present case is as to whether the corpus, i.e., the petitioner no. 1 is a child as defined in Section 2 (12) of the Act, 2015 and thus covered by Section 2 (14) and whether the Child Welfare Committee had the jurisdiction to take the corpus, i.e., the petitioner no. 1 under its protection and custody and act in exercise of powers under Section 29 of the Act, 2015. The decision on the issue is dependent on the determination of age of the corpus, i.e., the petitioner no. 1.

Rule 19 (2) of the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Rules, 2016 states that in any inquiry as to whether any person produced before it was a child in need of care and protection, the Committee shall, prima facie, determine the age of child in order to ascertain its jurisdiction pending further inquiry as per Section 94 of the Act, if need be. Section 94 of the Act, 2015 is reproduced below:-

"94. Presumption and determination of age.—(1) Where, it is obvious to the Committee or the Board, based on the appearance of the person brought before it under any of the provisions of this Act (other than for the purpose of giving evidence) that the said person is a child, the Committee or the Board shall record such observation stating the age of the child as nearly as may be and proceed with the inquiry under section 14 or section 36, as the case may be, without waiting for further confirmation of the age.

(2) In case, the Committee or the Board has reasonable grounds for doubt regarding whether the person brought before it is a child or not, the Committee or the Board, as the case may be, shall undertake the process of age determination, by seeking evidence by obtaining—

(i) the date of birth certificate from the school, or the matriculation or equivalent certificate from the concerned examination Board, if available; and in the absence thereof;

(ii) the birth certificate given by a corporation or a municipal authority or a panchayat;

(iii) and only in the absence of (i) and (ii) above, age shall be determined by an ossification test or any other latest medical age determination test conducted on the orders of the Committee or the Board:

Provided such age determination test conducted on the order of the Committee or the Board shall be completed within fifteen days from the date of such order.

(3) The age recorded by the Committee or the Board to be the age of person so brought before it shall, for the purpose of this Act, be deemed to be the true age of that person."

(Emphasis supplied)

A reading of Section 94 of the Act, 2015 shows that the Committee shall undertake the process of age determination by seeking evidence, first by obtaining the date of birth certificate from the school, if available, and in absence thereof, the birth certificate given by the local body, and in absence of birth certificates, the age shall be determined by the latest medical age determination test conducted on the orders of the Committee. Mere production of the school records would not be sufficient for the Committee to determine the age of the person produced before it. As provided in Section 27 (9) of the Act, 2015, the Child Welfare Committee has powers conferred by the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 on the Judicial Magistrate of I Class. The Committee, thus, has the power to take evidence on oath and to scrutinize the evidence produced before it. The Committee has to act judicially. In case the Child Welfare Committee fails to scrutinize evidence and passes a mechanical order accepting the school records produced before it without any application of mind and without the records being proved as required in law, the order of the Child Welfare Committee would be absolutely illegal and a Habeas Corpus petition would lie before the Court for release of the person who has been taken in its custody by the Child Welfare Committee.

A reading of Section 94(2) of the Act, 2015 also shows that the school records, i.e., entries in the admission register or in the transfer certificate are not the documents stipulated in the aforesaid provision as evidence of the date of birth of the person produced before the Committee. Section 94(2) (i) provides that date of birth certificate shall be obtained from the school. A transfer certificate or entries in the admission register of the school are not date of birth certificates. In our aforesaid view, we are supported by the judgment of Supreme Court in P. Yuvaprakash vs. State Rep. by Inspector of Police 2023 SCC OnLine SC 846.

In the aforesaid case, the school transfer certificate was produced to prove the age of the child. The Supreme Court held that a school transfer certificate cannot be relied upon to determine the age of child under the Act, 2015. In this context, the observation of the Supreme Court in paragraph nos. 14, 18 and 19 of the aforesaid judgment are reproduced below:-

"14. Section 94 (2)(iii) of the JJ Act clearly indicates that the date of birth certificate from the school or matriculation or equivalent certificate by the concerned examination board has to be firstly preferred in the absence of which the birth certificate issued by the Corporation or Municipal Authority or Panchayat and it is only thereafter in the absence of these such documents the age is to be determined through "an ossification test" or "any other latest medical age determination test" conducted on the orders of the concerned authority, i.e. Committee or Board or Court. In the present case, concededly, only a transfer certificate and not the date of birth certificate or matriculation or equivalent certificate was considered. Ex. C1, i.e., the school transfer certificate showed the date of birth of the victim as 11.07.1997.

Since it did not answer to the description of any class of documents mentioned in Section 94(2)(i) as it was a mere transfer certificate, Ex C-1 could not have been relied upon to hold that M was below 18 years at the time of commission of the offence.

18. Reverting to the facts of this case, the headmaster of M's School, CW- 1, was summoned by the court and produced a Transfer Certificate (Ex.C-1). This witness produced a Transfer Certificate Register containing M's name. He deposed that she had studied in the school for one year, i.e., 2009-10 and that the date of birth was based on the basis of the record sheet given by the school where she studied in the 7th standard. DW-2 TMT Poongothoi, Headmaster of Chinnasoalpalayam Panchayat School, answered the summons served by the court and deposed that 'M' had joined her school with effect from 03.04.2002 and that her date of birth was recorded as 11.07.1997. She admitted that though the date of birth was based on the birth certificate, it would normally be recorded on the basis of horoscope. She conceded to no knowledge about the basis on which the document pertaining to the date of birth was recorded. It is stated earlier on the same issue, i.e., the date of birth, Thiru Prakasam, DW-3 stated that the birth register pertaining to the year 1997 was not available in the record room of his office.

19. It is clear from the above narrative that none of the documents produced during the trial answered the description of "the date of birth certificate *from the school” or “the matriculation or equivalent certificate” from the concerned examination board or certificate by a corporation, municipal authority or a Panchayat. In these circumstances, it was incumbent for the prosecution to prove through acceptable medical tests/examination that the victim’s age was below 18 years as per Section 94(2)(iii) of the JJ Act. PW-9, Dr. Thenmozhi, Chief Civil Doctor and Radiologist at the General Hospital at Vellore, produced the X-ray reports and deposed that in terms of the examination of M, a certificate was issued stating “that the age of the said girl would be more than 18 years and less than 20 years”. In the cross-examination, she admitted that M’s age could be taken as 19 years. However, the High Court rejected this evidence, saying that “when the precise date of birth is available from out of the school records, the approximate age estimated by the medical expert cannot be the determining factor”. This finding is, in this court’s considered view, incorrect and erroneous. As held earlier, the documents produced, i.e., a transfer certificate and extracts of the admission register, are not what Section 94 (2) (i) mandates; nor are they in accord with Section 94 (2) (ii) because DW-1 clearly deposed that there were no records relating to the birth of the victim, M. In these circumstances, the only piece of evidence, accorded with Section 94 of the JJ Act was the medical ossification test, based on several X-Rays of the victim, and on the basis of which PW-9 made her statement. She explained the details regarding examination of the victim’s bones, stage of their development and opined that she was between 18-20 years; in cross-examination she said that the age might be 19 years. Given all these circumstances, this court is of the opinion that the result of the ossification or bone test was the most authentic evidence, corroborated by the examining doctor, PW-9.”

(Emphasis supplied)

The Supreme Court in Suresh vs. State of Uttar Pradesh and Anr. 2025 SCC OnLine SC 1579 while considering Rule 12 (3) of the rules framed under The Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2000 (hereinafter referred to as 'Act, 2000') held that the entries in the school records would not be acceptable to determine the age of girl on the testimony of the school's Headmaster in case the date of birth in the school records has been entered on the oral representation of the parents of the person claiming juvenility. Observations of the Supreme Court in paragraph nos. 21, 23, 24 and 25 of the aforesaid judgment are reproduced below:-

21. There is no dispute on the factum that Kaushik Modern Public School, Khurgaon – the first attended school – is not a Government School and thus, the records maintained by the said School would not be ‘public documents’. Moreover, the Headmaster/Principal of such School cannot be said to be a ‘public servant’ for the purposes of the Evidence Act. The Headmaster when examined has himself taken the stand that Kaushik Modern Public School, Khurgaon was only a State Government-recognized school.

23. Even otherwise, in the case at hand, except for the Headmaster’s sole testimony, there is no material to establish that the date 18.04.1995 as Respondent No.2’s date of birth, as recorded in the certificate issued by Kaushik Modern Public School, Khurgaon, was correct. As a matter of fact, the Principal in his cross-examination stated that when the Respondent No.2 was leaving the school on that day after making cutting he had written the correct date of birth. Moreover, the Principal has also stated that the birth-date entry was made on the basis of an oral representation alone by Respondent No.2's father and when he was asked for the horoscope or any other document in support of the date of birth of the Respondent No.2, nothing was submitted. This, in our view, discredits the certificate issued by the Kaushik Modern Public School, Khurgaon. As noted hereinbefore, the other school certificates were issued following this and therefore, meet the same fate inasmuch as they cannot be treated as correct, in the face of conflicting public records and public documents as also the Medical Report which state to the contrary.

...

24. Rule 12(3)(a) of the Rules lays down the sequential list of certificates to be examined and the order thereof. As no 'matriculation or equivalent certificates' were available under Rule 12(3)(a)(i) of the Rules, thus under Rule 12(3)(a)(ii) of the Rules, 'date of birth certificate from the school (other than a play school) first attended' was attracted and certificate issued by Kaushik Modern Public School, Khurgaon was taken as conclusive proof of date of birth. However, the deposition of the School's Headmaster, especially to the effect that the birth-date was noted as per an oral representation by Respondent No.2's father, makes the said certificate unreliable. Moving on, Rule 12(3)(a)(iii) and Rule 12(3)(b) of the Rules, respectively, provide for 'birth certificate given by a corporation or a municipal authority or a panchayat' and 'only in the absence of either (i), (ii) or (iii) of clause (a) above, the medical opinion will be sought from a duly constituted Medical Board, which will declare the age of the juvenile or child.'

25. From an overall circumspection of all the facts and circumstances surrounding the case, including the Rules, the picture which emerges is that on the one hand, there is the certificate backed by the testimony of the Headmaster of the first school (which as indicated supra notes that the recordal was made on the oral say-so of Respondent No.2's father) relating to the date of birth and the three consequentially-made/issued certificates, whereas on the other hand, there exists a statutory document, being a public record and a public document, in Form (A) under Rule 2 of the Rules framed under the U.P. Panchayat Raj Act, 1947 disclosing the year of birth of Respondent No.2 as 1991 as also the entry in the Voters' List for the Legislative Assembly of the year 2012 and the Medical Report apropos the age of Respondent No.2 given by the Chief Medical Officer, Muzaffarnagar, who opined that Respondent No.2 was aged about 22 years on 01.12.2012. As such, the certificate issued by Kaushik Modern Public School, Khurgaon could not have been taken as conclusive proof of date of birth of Respondent No.2, discarding Form (A) under Rule 2 of the Rules under the U. P. Panchayat Raj Act, 1947; the entry in the Voters' List for the Legislative Assembly of the year 2012, and; the Medical Report. On the basis of the latter three documents, it is clear that Respondent No.2 cannot be said to have been a 'juvenile' on the date of the unfortunate incident."

A perusal of the order dated 09.06.2025 would show that the documents relied upon by the Child Welfare Committee were photo copies of school documents referred above and the original records were not produced by the Headmaster of the institution even though, the Child Welfare Committee had summoned the original documents. There is nothing on record to indicate that any evidence was taken from the Headmaster of the institution to verify the photo copies produced before the Child Welfare Committee. There is also nothing on record to indicate as to how and on whose representation, the date of birth of the corpus, i.e., petitioner no. 1 was entered in the school records. Apparently, while determining the age of the corpus, i.e., the petitioner no. 1 and while holding that the corpus was a minor, therefore, a child as defined under Section 2(12) of the Act, 2015 and was a child in need of care and protection, the Child Welfare Committee has not taken any evidence and has not followed the procedure prescribed in Section 94 of the Act, 2015.

In the present case, the Child Welfare Committee has not recorded any finding as to the genuineness of the school records produced before it. There is nothing on record disclosing the source of entries made in the school record and the reliability of such source. The entries in school record were also not proved as required by law. The Child Welfare Committee has also not taken the evidence of the Principal of the institution to verify the school records produced before it. The father of the corpus was also not called by the Child Welfare Committee to verify the age of the corpus. It is apparent that there is no determination of the age of the corpus by the Child Welfare Committee. The essential condition for holding that the corpus is a minor and below 18 years of age, i.e., a child as defined under Section 2 (12) of the Act, 2015 and the Child Welfare Committee has the jurisdiction to take the corpus under its care and protection or in custody do not exist. The order passed by the Child Welfare Committee has been passed mechanically and without any application of mind. The order dated 09.06.2025 is without jurisdiction and nullity. The detention of the petitioner in 09.06.2025 is without jurisdiction.

There is no other document on record except the medical report, to determine the age of the corpus. The medical test determining the age of petitioner no.1 indicates that the age of corpus, i.e., petitioner no. 1 is 18 years or above and is, therefore, not a child as defined in Section 2(12) of Act, 2015. The Child Welfare Committee has no jurisdiction to take the corpus, i.e., petitioner no. 1 under its care and protection or keep her in Government Children's Home or anywhere else. The detention of corpus, i.e., petitioner no. 1 in Rajkiya Balgrih (Balika), Sindhi Kheda Ashray Griha Paara, Lucknow is without jurisdiction.

For the aforesaid reasons, a writ of Habeas Corpus is to be issued to release Smt. Guddi Devi, corpus, i.e., petitioner no. 1. Consequently, a writ of Habeas Corpus is issued directing the Superintendent, Government Children Home (Girls) Sindhi Kheda Ashray Griha Paara, Lucknow and the Chairman, Child Welfare Committee, Shahjahanpur to release forthwith Smt. Guddi Devi, petitioner no.1. The corpus, i.e., the petitioner no. 1 is free to go wherever she likes and to stay with whomsoever she wants including the petitioner no. 2.

In view of the aforesaid, the petition is allowed.

A copy of this order be communicated for necessary compliance to the Superintendent, Government Children Home (Girls) Sindhi Kheda Ashray Griha Paara, Lucknow and the Chairman, Child Welfare Committee, Shahjahanpur by the Registrar (Compliance) within one week.

Issue for Consideration

Whether proceedings under Section 116 of the U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 pending before the Sub-Divisional Magistrate can remain undecided beyond the statutory period of six months on the ground of continuous strike of the Bar Association, and whether such delay attracts consequences of contempt in view of the directions issued in Daya Shankar v. State of U.P.?

Headnotes

U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 — S. 116 — U.P. Revenue Code Rules, 2016 — R. 109(10) — Constitution of India — Art. 227 — Expeditious disposal — Time-bound proceedings — Continuous strike of Bar — Contempt — Liability of office bearers of Bar Association — General directions.

Held:

Rule 109(10) of the Rules, 2016 mandates that the Sub-Divisional Officer shall make endeavour to decide a suit under Section 116 of the Code within six months and if not decided, reasons must be recorded. [Paras 3, 5]

This Court in Daya Shankar v. State of U.P., 2023 (6) A.D.J. 181, issued binding directions that where time is prescribed under the Code or Rules, the Presiding Officer is duty bound to conclude proceedings within such period, failing which he may be liable for contempt, unless reasonable explanation exists. It was further directed that litigants need not file writ petitions for expeditious disposal but may invoke contempt jurisdiction in case of violation. [Paras 5–6]

From the order sheet it appeared that the proceedings under Section 116 were pending primarily due to continuous strike by the Bar Association of Tehsil Utraula. In such circumstances, prima facie, delay was attributable to strike and not to the Presiding Officer. [Para 7]

Held, in view of statutory mandate and binding directions in Daya Shankar, the Sub-Divisional Magistrate, Tehsil Utraula, District Balrampur is directed to decide Case No. 7405 of 2022 within six months. It is clarified that if adjournments occur due to continuous strike of the Bar Association, the office bearers of the concerned Bar Association shall be liable for contempt for causing obstruction in compliance of directions issued in Daya Shankar. [Paras 9–10]

General directions issued for entire State of U.P. that where proceedings under the Revenue Code are not concluded within the time fixed by statute or by this Court due to continuous strike of Bar Associations at Tehsil, Collectorate or Commissionerate level, office bearers of such Bar Associations would be liable for contempt and parties would be at liberty to initiate contempt proceedings. [Para 10]

Direction issued to circulate the order through Chairman, Board of Revenue to all Revenue Authorities. [Para 12]

Petition disposed of. [Para 11]. (E-14)

1. Heard Shri Vimal Kishor Singh, learned counsel for the petitioners and Shri Yogesh Kumar Awasthi, learned Standing Counsel for the State-respondent.

2. The present writ petition has been filed with the following prayer:-

"(i) to direct the opposite party no.1 to decide Case No. 7405/2022, Computerized Case No. T202208100307405 under Section 116 of the U.P. Revenue Code, 2006, 'Parshuram and others Vs. Ramdeen and others', pending before him since 11.11.2022, expeditiously within time stipulated by this Hon'ble Court."

3. Learned counsel for the petitioners has submitted that the suit under Section

116 of the U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 is pending since 2022 and till date the same has not been decided by the concerned Sub Divisional Magistrate. Though, as per Rule 109 (10) of the Rules, 2016 the Sub Divisional Magistrate, shall make endeavor to decide the said suit within a period of six months, except the reasons to be followed.

4. A request has been made that the S.D.M., Tehsil Utraula, District Balrampur be directed to decide the Case No. 7405 of 2022, under section 116 of the U.P. Revenue Code, 2006, in time bound manner.

5. This Court had occasion to consider the issue of expeditious disposal of cases under U.P. Revenue Code in the case of Daya Shankar Vs. State of U.P. and others 2023 (6) A.D.J. 181, wherein a direction was issued that in case a time has been fixed in the U.P. Revenue Code or Rules framed therein, then a concerned Presiding Officer is duty bound to decide the proceedings within the time prescribed by the Revenue Code as well as Rules framed therein. This Court further prescribed the time limit for deciding the other proceedings under Revenue Code, where no specific provision has been provided under U.P. Revenue Code or Rules framed therein regarding the time, in which the proceedings has to be concluded. Paragraphs no. 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, and 18 of Daya Shankar's case have been quoted as under:-

" 12. For the proceeding mentioned above, the legislature has provided time bound disposal for some of the proceedings but despite specific time fixed by the Code, 2006 proceeding could not be decided for a number of reasons and in most of the cases due to negligence on the part of presiding officers or due to the absence of sufficient number of presiding officers as well as the continuous strike of bar in Tehsil or Collectorate. The following provisions of Code, 2006 provide a specific time for deciding the proceedings as follows:-

(i) Dispute regarding boundaries by Sub-Divisional Officer is to be decided within three months from the date of the application as per Section 24(3) of Code, 2006 which is quoted as below:-

"24(3). Every proceeding under this section shall, as far as possible, be concluded by the Sub-Divisional Officer within three months from the date of the application."

(ii) Mutation proceedings u/s 35 of Code, 2006 is to be decided within 45 days if mutation is undisputed and within 90 days if mutation is disputed as per Rule 34(7) of Rules, 2016 which is quoted as below:-

"34(7). The Tahsildar shall make an endeavour to decide the undisputed case of mutation within the period of 45 days from the date of the registration of the case and the disputed case of mutation within the period of 90 days and if the proceeding is not concluded within such period the reason for the same shall be recorded"

(iii) Proceeding for correction of record as per Section 38 of Code, 2006 is to be decided within 45 days from the date of receiving application with the report as per Rule 36(6) of Rules, 2016 which is quoted as below:-

"36(6). An endeavour shall be made to conclude the proceeding for correction under section 38 within the period of 45 days from the date of receiving the application with the report and if the proceeding is not concluded within such period the reasons for the same shall be recorded."

(iv) Application for cancellation of irregular allotment of abadi side u/s 66 should be decided within six months as per Rule 65(10) of Rules, 2016 which is quoted as below:-

"65(10). The Collector shall make an endeavour to conclude the inquiry within the period not exceeding six months from the date of registration of the case and if the inquiry is not concluded within the period aforesaid the reason for the same shall be recorded."

(v) Proceeding to prevent wrongful occupation and damage of Gram Sabha property u/s 67 is to be decided within the period of 90 days as required by Rule 67(6) of Rule, 2016 which is quoted as under:-

"67(6). The Assistant Collector shall make an endeavour to conclude the proceeding under section 67 of the Code within the period of ninety days from the date of issuance of the show cause notice and if the proceeding is not concluded within such period the reasons for the same shall be recorded."

(vi) Proceeding for granting permission to transfer the land of scheduled caste under Section-98 should be completed within period of 15 days as per Rule 99(11) and which is quoted as under:

"99(11). The Collector shall make an endeavour to dispose of the application under section 98(1) within the period of fifteen days from the date of receiving the report submitted by the inquiry officer and if the application is not disposed of within such period the reason for the same shall be recorded."

(vii) For division of holding under Section 116 of the Code, 2006 is to be decided within a period of six months as provided by Rule 109(10) of Rules, 2016 which is quoted as under:-

"109(10). The Sub-Divisional Officer shall make an endeavour to decide the suit within the period of six months and if the suit is not decided within such period, the reason shall be recorded."

(viii) Proceeding for cancellation of irregular allotment of agricultural land u/s 128 should be completed within a period of three months as per Rules 126(6) of Rules, 2016 which is quoted as under:-

"126(6). The Collector shall endeavour to conclude the enquiry within the period of three months from the date of issuance of notice and if the enquiry is not concluded within the period of three months, the reasons for the delay shall be recorded."

13. Apart from the above proceeding for which specific time frame was fixed by the legislature in the Code, 2006 or in the Rules, 2016 there are other proceedings for which no time frame has been fixed either in Code, 2006 or in Rules, 2016 therefore, the concerned presiding officer or the revenue officer should make endeavour to decide these proceedings in following manner :-

(i) Application for right of way and other easement u/s 25 should be decided within a period of one month and if the same could not be concluded then reason for the same should be recorded.

(ii) Application for removal of obstacle from public road, path or common land of village u/s 26 should endeavour to be decided within a period of one month and if the same could not be concluded then reason for the same should be recorded;

(iii) Application u/s 58 to decide the dispute regarding property mentioned in Sections 54, 56 and 57 should be decided preferably within a period of three months from the date of application and if the same could not be decided then reason for the same should be recorded;

(iv) Application u/s 65 for delivery of possession of allotted land from unauthorized person should be decided preferably within a period of three months and if the same could not be concluded then reason for the same should be recorded;

(v) Application for the execution of the final decree passed u/s 116 of Code, 2006 by demarcation of Kurra on site should be decided within a period of one month and if the same could not be concluded then reason for the same should be recorded;

(vi) A suit for declaration as bhumidhar/asami under Section-144 of the Code, 2006 should be decided within a period of the six months and if the same could not be concluded then the reason for the same should be recorded;

(vii) Any other application referable to any provision of Code, 2006 should also be decided within the period prescribed by Code, 2006 or Rules, 2016, if no time is prescribed by Code, 2006 or by Rules, 2016 then same should be decided within a period of one month and if same is not decided within aforesaid period then reason should be recorded.

14. If the proceedings mentioned above are appealable or revisable or subject to second appeal as per the provision of Code, 2006 and if no time is prescribed by the Code, 2006 then these proceedings should also be decided within a period of six months up to the level of Commissioner and within a period of one year by the Board of Revenue, and if not decided within the said period then the reason for the same should be recorded.

15. While calculating the period mentioned above as directed by this Court for deciding different proceedings under Code, 2006, the date on which there was a strike of Bar as well as the dates on which the person seeking benefit of this order take adjournment should be excluded.

16. If any stay application, recall application or any other miscellaneous application is filed during above mentioned proceedings, then same should be decided within a period of one month and if same is not decided within aforesaid time, then reason should be recorded. It is made clear that during the pendency of recall application or stay application, no coercive action be taken against the applicant.

17. For the violation of direction mentioned above by any revenue officer including the Collector and Commissioner and as well as Board of Revenue, they would be liable for contempt of this Court for not following the direction in deciding the proceedings as mentioned above (including pending proceeding in corresponding provision of Uttar Pradesh Zamindari Abolition And Land Reforms Act, 1950 and as Uttar Pradesh Land Revenue Act, 1901).

18. The litigant, whose proceeding are mentioned above was not decided despite his application relying upon this judgement within the time fixed by this court, then litigant instead of filing writ petition for expeditious disposal may directly approach this Court by filing contempt proceedings against the concerned officer."

6. From the above quoted judgement, it is clear that in case Presiding Officer failed to conclude the proceedings within the time prescribed in the U.P. Revenue Code or by this Court, then he is liable to contempt for violation of the direction issued in Daya Shankar's case, if there is no reasonable explanation to not deciding the proceedings within time fixed by the Statute as well as by this Court in the above judgement. This Court also directed in the above judgment when any Revenue Authority failed to conclude the proceedings within the prescribed time framed then the parties need not to approach this Court for seeking direction for expeditious disposal of proceedings under the Revenue Code but they can file contempt petition before this Court for the violation of the directions issued in the Daya Shankar's case (supra).

7. From the perusal of the order sheet in the present case, it is clear that the proceedings of a Case No. 7405/2022 under Section 116 of the U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 has been pending for the reason that there is continuous strike on the part of advocates of Tehsil Utraula. Though some time the case was also adjourned because of the nonavailability of the concerned Presiding Officer. Therefore, it is clear that it is the strike of Bar Association of Tehsil Utraula, which is the reason for not concluding the proceedings in question. Therefore, prima facie it is the contempt committed by the Bar Association, Tehsil Utraula, not by the Presiding Officer, Tehsil Utraula.

8. In view of the above, this Court considering the fact that there is specific direction to conclude the proceedings under Section 116 of the U.P. Revenue Code, within a period of six months and there is direction of this Court in the case of Daya Shankar (supra) to conclude such proceedings in the time bound manner, failing which amount to contempt for disobedience of general direction of this Court.

9. The present petition is disposed of with a direction to Sub Divisional Magistrate, Tehsil Utraula, District

Balrampur to decide the Case No. 7405 of 2022 within a period of six months. It is made clear that if the case is adjourned due to continuous strike of Bar Association of Tehsil Utrula then the office bearers of concerned Bar Association will be liable for contempt of this Court for making interruption to the direction in Daya Shnakar's case.

10. As the issue is effecting the public at large, specifically poor litigants (farmers), this Court issued general directions for entire U.P. that in case the proceedings under Revenue Code could not be concluded within the time framed by this Court in the case of Daya Shankar (supra) because of the continuous strike of Bar Association of any Tehsil, Collectorate or Commissionerate, then the office bearers of Bar Association would be liable for contempt of this Court for violation of direction of Daya Shankar's case and the party would be at liberty to file contempt proceedings against the office bearers of the concerned Bar Association.

11. With the aforesaid direction, the present petition is disposed of.

12. The office is directed to send copy of this order to the Chairman of Board of Revenue, who will circulate the same to all Revenue Authorities from Tehsil to Commissionerate (Revenue) and the copies of the same shall also be pasted on the Notice Board.

13. The Senior Registrar of this Court is directed to communicate the order for compliance.

CASE ARISING FROM

Bail rejection order dated 08.08.2025 passed by Special Judge (SC/ST Act), Sitapur in Case Crime No. 78 of 2025 - Police Station: Maholi, District Sitapur.

APPEARANCE OF PARTIES

Counsel for Appellant: - Shri Banwari Lal
Counsel for Respondent: - Government Advocate

(Delivered by Hon'ble Pramod Kumar
Srivastava, J.)

(Criminal Misc. Bail Application no.01 of 2025)

1. Heard learned counsel for the appellant and learned Additional Government Advocate (A.G.A.) for the State. Despite sufficient opportunity, non-appeared on behalf of the opposite party no.2.

2. This appeal is filed under Section 14-A(2) of the Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, 1989, challenging the order dated 08.08.2025, passed by the learned Special Judge (SC/ST Act), District-Sitapur, rejecting the bail application (No. 242 of 2025) of the appellant, Shivam Sharma S/o Rajesh Sharma, in connection with Case Crime No. 0078 of 2025, under Sections

64, 352, 351(3), 125 of the Bharatiya Nyaya Sanhita (BNS), 2023 and Section 3(2)(v), 3(1)(da)(dha) of the S.C./S.T. Act, Police Station Maholi, District-Sitapur. The appellant is currently in jail since 19.07.2025.

3. Learned counsel for the appellant submits that the appellant, aged about 30 years, is innocent and has been falsely implicated in the present case due to enmity and ulterior motive. It is further argued that there is a significant and unexplained delay of approximately 5 months in lodging the FIR, which was registered on 06.03.2025 for an incident allegedly occurring on 12.10.2024. The counsel contends that the complainant, who is a married woman aged about 30 years (as per FIR) but claimed to be over 40 years in the grounds, having an 11-year-old child, was living in a relationship with the appellant. It is falsely stated that the accused appellant established a physical relationship on a false promise of marriage, and it is impossible for such relations to have continued for four years solely on this basis. The counsel points out that there are vast contradictions in the statements of the complainant, which were recorded under Section 180 BNS on 07.03.2025 and changed in her subsequent statement under Section 183 BNS on 04.04.2025. Though the investigation noted the medical report stated "sexual violence cannot be ruled out," the appellant asserts the charges are fabricated. Finally, the appellant has no criminal history and has been in continuous judicial custody since 19.07.2025.

4. Learned Additional Government Advocate (AGA) vehemently opposed the prayer for bail, arguing that the offences are serious, and the chargesheet has been filed under Section 64 (Rape) BNS and relevant sections of the SC/ST Act. However, the AGA could not directly contradict the specific factual submissions made by the appellant's counsel regarding the significant delay of about five months in lodging the FIR, or the contradictions observed in the complainant's statements, particularly the changes between her statement recorded under Section 180 BNS on 07.03.2025 and her later statement recorded under Section 183 BNS on 04.04.2025. On perusal of the record, it transpires that the complainant's age is recorded as 1995, making her about 30 years old. She is a married woman and mother of one child aged about 11 years, and it appears she was living in a relationship with the appellant and established physical relations four years prior to the FIR. The AGA conceded that the record shows the appellant has no criminal history and has been in continuous judicial custody since 19.07.2025.

5. Considering the totality of the circumstances, particularly the contradictory nature of the prosecution story evidenced by the changes in the complainant's statements (recorded under Section 180 BNS on 07.03.2025 and Section 183 BNS on 04.04.2025) and the alleged fabricated nature of the charges against the appellant's family members, the significant delay of five months in lodging the FIR, the period of incarceration already undergone by the appellant since 19.07.2025, and the fact that the appeal against the rejection of bail by the learned Special Judge (SC/ST Act), Sitapur, dated 08.08.2025 is the statutory right of the appellant, this Court is of the considered opinion that the appellant is entitled to be released on bail.

6. In view of the above, the Criminal Misc. Bail Application is allowed. The impugned order dated 08.08.2025 passed by the learned Special Judge, S.C./S.T. Act, Sitapur, is set aside.

7. Let the appellant, Shivum Sharma, be released on bail in the aforesaid Case Crime No. 78 of 2025, under Sections 64, 352, 351(3), 125 of the Bharatiya Nyaya Sanhita, 2023 and Sections 3(2)(v), 3(1)(da), 3(1)(dha) of the Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, 1989, Police Station Maholi, District Sitapur, on his furnishing a personal bond and two sureties of the like amount to the satisfaction of the court concerned, subject to the following additional conditions:

(1) The appellant shall cooperate with the prosecution during trial.

(ii) The appellant shall not tamper with the evidence during trial.

(iii) The appellant shall not pressurize/intimidate the prosecution witness(s).

(iv) The appellant shall not commit an offence.

(v) The appellant shall not directly or indirectly make any inducement, threat or promise to any person acquainted with the facts of the case so as to dissuade him from disclosing such facts to the court or to any police officer or tamper with the evidence.

(vi) The appellant shall remain present before the trial court on each date fixed, either personally or through counsel.

(vii) The appellant shall not seek any adjournment on the dates fixed for evidence when the witnesses are present in court.

(viii) The appellant shall remain present, in person, before the trial court on the dates fixed for

8. In case of default of above conditions, it shall be open for the trial court to treat it as abuse of liberty of bail and pass orders in accordance with law.

9. As this order relates to enlargement of the appellant on bail, it is clarified that observation(s) made in this order shall have no bearing on the merits of the case and the trial court shall not be influenced by any observation(s) made in this order.

APPEARANCE OF PARTIES

Counsel for Appellant: - Shri Ashok Kumar Tripathi, Jai Singh Yadav, Jitendra Kumar, Kamlesh Kumar Tripathi, Nidhi Tripathi, Purushottam Dixit.

Counsel for Respondent: - GA.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Salil Kumar Rai, J.)

The appellant has been convicted under Section 302 IPC and Section 25 Arms Act by judgment and order dated 19.4.2019 passed by the Sessions Judge, Auraiya in Sessions Trial No. 249 of 2011 registered under Sections 498-A, 304-B, 201, 404/411, 302/149 IPC and Section 4 Dowry Prohibition Act as well as in Session Trial No. 250 of 2011 registered under Section 25 of the Arms Act. The appellant has been sentenced to undergo life imprisonment and a fine of Rs.5,00,000/- for the charge under Section 302 IPC and two years imprisonment and a fine of Rs.5,000/- for the charge under Section 25 Arms Act.

One Priyanka Raj (hereinafter referred to as the 'deceased'), daughter of Raj Mohan Singh, the first informant, was married to the appellant on 13.5.2009. On 15.5.2010, the dead body of the deceased was found in the bushes outside the village. A first information report registering Case Crime No. 99/2010 under Sections 498-A / 304-B / 201 IPC read with Section 3/4 Dowry Prohibition Act was registered in Police Station Bidhuna, District Auraiya on 15.5.2010 at 05:15 p.m.

The case of the prosecution, in short, is that the appellant and the in-laws of the deceased, i.e., the mother-in-law, the father-in-law, the brother-in-law (jeth) and the sister-in-law (jethani) of the deceased were not satisfied with the dowry given during the marriage. The appellant and the in-laws used to harass the deceased for more dowry and demanded a Maruti Car as well as Rs.1,00,000/- (Rs. one lakh) in cash from the deceased. It has been stated in the first information report that the appellant and the in-laws of the deceased threatened the first informant that they would not let the deceased live in peace till their demand for dowry was satisfied. On 15.5.2010, the first informant received information on phone that his daughter had been beaten by her in-laws and the appellant and shot dead outside the village and Sanoj Kumar s/o Ahivaran Singh and Pankaj @ Chhote s/o Vishram Singh assisted the appellant and others in the crime. The dead body had been thrown in the bushes. It was alleged in the first information report that the deceased was shot dead only because the first informant could not fulfill the demand for dowry made by the in-laws of the deceased.

The appellant was arrested on 16.5.2010. It has been alleged that a 315 bore country made pistol allegedly used in the crime was recovered at the instance of the appellant from near the dead body of the deceased. A recovery memo was prepared and a first information report registering Case Crime No. 102 of 2010 under Section 25 of the Arms Act was registered on 16.5.2010 at Police Station Bidhuna, District Auraiya.

Some jewelries were also allegedly recovered from the appellant while he was being arrested and it is alleged that the appellant had confessed that the said jewelries belonged to her wife which was removed from her body by the appellant after the deceased was murdered and some of those jewelries were given to Sanoj Kumar and Pankaj @ Chhote. A recovery memo of the jewelries was also prepared.

The inquest was prepared on 15.5.2010 at 06:15 p.m. showing that the dead body was found in the bushes near the graveyard.

It is the prosecution case that another 315 bore country made pistol, two gold rings and a Pulsar motorcycle with registration no. UP 79A - 2297 was recovered on 6.6.2010 at the instance of Sanoj Kumar s/o Ahivaran Singh one of the co-accused in Case Crime No. 99 of 2010. The prosecution alleges that Sanoj Kumar confessed that the country made pistol recovered at his instance was used in the crime. A recovery memo was prepared and Case Crime No. 102 of 2010 under Sections 25/27 Arms Act was registered against Sanoj Kumar.

The autopsy was done on 16.5.2010 at 03:00 p.m. The autopsy report showed the following ante-mortem injuries on the body of the deceased :-

“Firearm wound of entry 1 cm x 1 cm x bone deep on right cheek at 2 cm below the right lower eyelid margins inserted blackening out around the wound.

Firearm wound of exit 1.5 cm x 1.5 cm x through & through to injury No.

(1), margin exerted on right side of neck at 8 cm behind right ear.”

A charge-sheet was filed and the case was committed for trial to the Sessions Court. The appellant along with Sanoj Kumar, Pankaj @ Chhote, Sarla Devi (mother-in-law of the deceased), Mahaveer Singh (father of the appellant and father-in-law of the deceased), Shiv Nath Singh (jeth of the deceased), Guddi Devi (sister-in-law, i.e., jethani of the deceased) and one Kuldeep were charged under Sections 498-A, 304-B, 201, 404/411, 302/149 IPC and in the alternative, under Section 302 read with Section 149 IPC in Session Trial No. 249 of 2011. The appellant was also charged under Section 25 of the Arms Act in Session Trial No. 250 of 2011. Sanoj Kumar was also charged under Sections 25/27 of the Arms Act in Session Trial No. 01 of 2017. All the aforesaid trials were consolidated and tried together.

The prosecution examined a total of eleven witnesses to prove its case.

The first informant, who was the father of the deceased, was examined as P.W.-1 and Sharad Kumar, the cousin of the deceased, was examined as P.W.-2 by the prosecution.

In his testimony, P.W.-1 has stated that his daughter was married to the appellant on 13.5.2009 and during the marriage the witness had given Rs.4,00,000/- (Rs. Four Lakh) in cash and goods worth Rs.1,00,000/- (Rs. One Lakh) as dowry. The witness stated that the appellant and his family were not satisfied with the dowry and after marriage, demanded one Maruti Car and Rs.1,00,000/- (Rs. One Lakh) in cash which was communicated to the witness by the deceased. The witness stated that the in-laws of the deceased threatened that they would not let the deceased live in peace till their demand for more dowry was satisfied. The witness stated that on 15.5.2010 at 02:00 p.m., he received information that his daughter (the deceased) was physically assaulted by the accused and was shot dead outside the village. The witness further stated that Sanoj Kumar, Pankaj and Kuldeep had helped the appellant in the aforesaid crime and Sanoj and Pankaj had reached the spot on a motorcycle. It was stated by the witness that the accused had removed all the jewelries worn by the deceased on the fateful day. In his cross-examination, the witness stated that the dowry given him during the marriage of the deceased was given voluntarily. It was stated by the witness that he did not take any loan for the marriage of the deceased. It was admitted by the witness that the marriage of the deceased was solemnized in a marriage hall whose rent was paid by the father of the appellant who had also gifted clothes and jewelries to the deceased. In his cross-examination, the witness stated that he was informed about the incident by the Gram Pradhan of the village of the appellant and the first information report was lodged by the appellant on the information given by different persons. In his cross-examination, the witness admitted that he did not save the phone number from which he got information regarding the incident. It has been stated by the witness that Naem Singh, who was the Gram Pradhan, had met the appellant at the place of incident and had told the witness the manner in which the deceased was murdered.

The noticeable feature of the testimony of P.W.-1 is that in his evidence, P.W.-1 admitted that the dowry given by him to the appellant were given voluntarily. It has also been admitted by the witness that Naem Singh, the Gram Pradhan of the village of the appellant, had told the witness about the incident and the role of the accused in the crime.

P.W.-2, i.e., Sharad Kumar stated in his testimony that in the marriage of the deceased, his uncle, i.e., P.W.-1 had given Rs.4,00,000/- (Rs. Four Lakh) in cash and goods worth Rs.1,00,000/- (Rs. One Lakh) but the in-laws of the deceased were not satisfied with the dowry given in marriage and demanded a Maruti Car and Rs.1,00,000/- (Rs. One Lakh) in cash from P.W.-1. It was also stated that after the marriage, the appellant and his family members threatened that they shall not let the deceased live in peace till their demand was satisfied. In his evidence, the witness stated that the deceased told the aforesaid fact to her parents and also to the witness when she came to her maternal home. It was admitted by the witness in his cross-examination that the demand for a Maruti Car was made by the accused before the marriage but the first informant, i.e., P.W.-1 pleaded his inability to give a Maruti Car, however, still the marriage of the deceased and the appellant was agreed upon and solemnized.

P.W.-3 has proved the chick FIR and P.W.-4 as well as P.W.-6 proved the inquest report.

The Medical Officer who conducted the autopsy was examined as P.W.-5 and has proved the post mortem report. According to the witness, the cause of death was shock and hemorrhage due to ante mortem fire arm injuries. In his testimony, the witness stated that there were only two firearm wounds on the body of the deceased out of which one was an exit wound. There were no other injuries on the body of the deceased.

The Investigating Officer of the case was examined as P.W.-8. In his evidence, P.W.-8 has stated that on 30.5.2010, Sanoj Kumar had confessed his participation in the crime and had informed the witness that the pistol as well as motorcycle used in the crime and also the jewelries removed from the body of the deceased were recovered at the instance of Sanoj Kumar after he was taken on police remand. In his evidence, the witness also stated that the statements of Naem Singh and Dharam Singh were recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C. in which they had claimed themselves to be the eye-witness of the incident and had also claimed that they had seen Sanoj Kumar, Pankaj and Kuldeep on a motorcycle going to the place of incident.

The appellant in his statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. denied the charges and stated that the jewelries allegedly shown to have been recovered from him were taken from the home of the appellant and were falsely shown as recovered from the appellant. In his statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. the appellant pleaded his innocence. The appellant stated that he was going with the deceased on a cycle and mid way his wife went in the bushes to relieve herself when the members of the Bikers gang shot the deceased because she resisted their attempt to rob her. It is the case of the appellant that he had gone to Kudarkot Police Chowki to inform the police personnel about the incident but no report was lodged by the police personnels but the appellant was detained by the police chowki. The appellant claims that he had been falsely implicated in the case.

The trial court vide its judgment and order dated 19.4.2019 has acquitted all the accused of the charge under Sections 498-A, 304-B, 201, 149, 404/411 IPC and Section 4 Dowry Prohibition Act. The trial court has convicted the appellant under Section 302 IPC and Section 25 of the Arms Act and also convicted Sanoj Kumar under Section 25 of the Arms Act. The other accused have been acquitted of the charge under Section 302 IPC. The sentence awarded to the appellant has been mentioned earlier.

In its judgment, the trial court has held that the prosecution had not been able to prove the demand for dowry or that any cruelty or harassment was meted out to the deceased by her husband, i.e., the appellant or any relative of her husband, therefore, the death of the deceased cannot be termed as dowry death. It has been held by the trial court that the prosecution failed to prove that the jewelries recovered from the appellant or Sanoj Kumar belonged to the deceased, therefore, no offence under Section 404/411 IPC was made out. It has been further held by the trial court that there was no evidence to support the charges under Sections 304-B, 498-A, 404/411 IPC and Section 201 IPC or under Section 4 of the Dowry Prohibition Act. The trial court has also rejected the case of the prosecution regarding participation of Kuldeep in the crime. It is in light of the aforesaid findings that the trial court has acquitted all the accused including the appellant from offences under Sections 304-B, 498-A, 404/411 and Section 201 IPC or under Section 4 of the Dowry Prohibition Act.

So far as the offence under Section 302 IPC and Section 25 Arms Act is concerned, the trial court has held that in light of the explanation of the appellant under Section 313 Cr.P.C. that the appellant and the deceased were going on a cycle when the deceased stopped mid way to relieve herself and the bikers shot at the deceased when she resisted, the burden of proof shifted on the appellant under Section 106 to prove his explanation. The trial court took note of the fact that the appellant had not given any details of the motorcycle allegedly used by the robbers. The trial court relying on the recovery of pistol allegedly used in the crime held that the recovery completed the chain of necessary links to prove the prosecution case. The trial court after holding that the appellant had failed to discharge his burden, convicted the appellant under Section 302 IPC and under Section 25 Arms Act. The conviction and the consequential sentence have been passed as noted previously.

It was argued by the counsel for the appellant that the trial court has misread the evidence on record and has also misapplied the law regarding Section 106 of the Indian Evidence Act. It was argued that there is no evidence that the deceased was last seen with the appellant or was with the appellant at the time of the commission of offence, therefore, the trial court has erred in shifting the burden of proof on the appellant. It was argued that the burden to prove its case was on the prosecution and the prosecution failed to discharge its burden. It was argued that the trial court had not correctly applied the law while considering the explanation of the appellant under Section 313 Cr.P.C. It was argued that there was no motive for the appellant to murder his wife and the trial court has wrongly convicted the appellant.

Rebutting the arguments of the appellant, the Additional Government Advocate has supported the judgment of the trial court and has argued that the evidence on record proved that the appellant was with the deceased at that time and the burden to prove his claim as made in his explanation was on the appellant. The appellant had failed to discharge the burden, therefore, the conviction by the trial court is in accordance with law. It was further argued that the pistol used in the commission of crime was recovered at the instance of the appellant which proved that the appellant had murdered the deceased. It was further argued that for the aforesaid reasons, the appeal is liable to be dismissed.

We have considered the submissions of the counsel for the parties.

As noted earlier the case of the prosecution, in short, is that the deceased was murdered by the appellant and his family members because the parents of the deceased were not able to satisfy the demand for more dowry made by the in-laws of the deceased. The motive for killing the deceased has not been accepted by the trial court which has acquitted the accused of the charge under Section 304-B IPC. The trial court has convicted the appellant on the ground that on his own explanation, the appellant was with the deceased, therefore, under Section 106 of the Indian Evidence Act, the burden to prove the circumstances of the death as claimed by the appellant was on the appellant and because the appellant failed to discharge the burden, therefore, he was liable to be convicted under Section 302 IPC. The trial court has held that the explanation of the appellant coupled with the fact that the pistol used in the offence was recovered at the instance of the appellant completes the chain of circumstances necessary to prove the guilt of the appellant.

We find the reasoning of the trial court unacceptable.

We agree with the findings of the trial court that the charges under Sections 304-B, 498-A, 404/411 and Section 201 IPC or under Section 4 of the Dowry Prohibition Act 304-B were not proved. The significance of acquitting the appellant of the charges under Sections 304-B, 498-A and Section 4 Dowry Prohibition Act and Section 201 IPC shall be considered later. The trial court has held that the charge of Section 302 IPC against the appellant had been proved by circumstantial evidence and the trial court has relied on the explanation of the appellant under Section 313 Cr.P.C. We do not accept the findings of the trial court regarding the conviction of the appellant under Section 302 IPC.

The necessary ingredients to prove a charge by circumstantial evidence were laid down by the Supreme Court in Sharad Birdhichand Sarda vs. State of Maharashtra (1984) 4 SCC 116. It would be relevant to reproduce the observations of the Supreme Court in Paragraph nos. 153 to 157 of its judgment : -

“153. A close analysis of this decision would show that the following conditions must be fulfilled before a case against an accused can be said to be fully established:

(1) the circumstances from which the conclusion of guilt is to be drawn should be fully established.

It may be noted here that this Court indicated that the circumstances concerned 'must or should' and not 'may be' established. There is not only a grammatical but a legal distinction between 'may be proved' and “must be or should be proved” as was held by this Court in Shivaji Sahabrao Bobade & Anr. v. State of Maharashtra where the following observations were made:

"Certainly, it is a primary principle that the accused must be and not merely may be guilty before a court can convict and the mental distance between 'may be' and 'must be' is long and divides vague conjectures from sure conclusions."

(2) The facts so established should be consistent only with the hypothesis of the guilt of the accused, that is to say. they should not be explainable on any other hypothesis except that the accused is guilty,

(3) the circumstances should be of a conclusive nature and tendency,

(4) they should exclude every possible hypothesis except the one to be proved, and

(5) there must be a chain of evidence so complete as not to leave any reasonable ground for the conclusion consistent with the innocence of the accused and must show that in all human probability the act must have been done by the accused.

154. These five golden principles, if we may say so, constitute the panchsheel of the proof of a case based on circumstantial evidence.

155. It may be interesting to note that as regards the mode of proof in a criminal case depending on circumstantial evidence, in the absence of a corpus delicti, the statement of law as to proof of the same was laid down by Gresson, J. (and concurred by 3 more Judges) in King v. Horry, thus:

"Before he can be convicted, the fact of death should be proved by such circumstances as render the commission of the crime morally certain and leave no ground for reasonable doubt: the circumstantial evidence should be so cogent and compelling as to convince a jury that up on no rational hypothesis other than murder can the facts be accounted for."

156. Lord Goddard slightly modified the expression, morally certain by "such circumstances as render the commission of the crime certain".

157. This indicates the cardinal principle of criminal jurisprudence that a case can be said to be proved only when there is certain and explicit evidence and no person can be convicted on pure moral conviction. Horry case was approved by this Court in Anant Chintaman Lagu v. State of Bombay. Lagu case as also the principles enunciated by this Court in Hanumant case have been uniformly and consistently followed in all later decisions of this Court without any single exception. To quote a few cases : - Tufail case, Ramgopal case, Chandrakant Nyalchand Seth v. State of Bombay, Dharmbir Singh v. State of Punjab. There are a number of other cases where although Hanumant case has not been expressly noticed but the same principles have been expounded and reiterated, as in Naseem Ahmed v. Delhi Administration, Mohan Lal Pangasa v. State of U.P., Shankarlal Gyarasilal Dixit

v. State of Maharashtra and M.G. Agarwal v. State of Maharashtra - a five-Judge Bench decision."

(Emphasis supplied)

In order to prove the guilt of the appellant under Sections 302 IPC, the prosecution had to either prove that the appellant and the deceased were together when the crime was committed or that the appellant was last seen with the deceased. The prosecution has not examined any witness to prove that the appellant was last seen with the deceased or was seen with the deceased at the time the crime was committed. So far as the effect of the explanation of the appellant under Section 313 Cr.P.C. is concerned, the same shall be considered later on in the judgment. At this stage, it would be relevant to note that in his testimony, P.W.-2 has stated that Naem Singh informed him about the incident and in his cross-examination, the witness also admitted that Naem Singh told him the manner in which the deceased was killed by the accused. It has also been testified by the Investigating Officer, i.e., P.W.-8 that he had interrogated Naem Singh and Dharam Singh. The aforesaid persons have not been examined by the prosecution. Naem Singh is the eye-witness of the incident. The witness was a material witness but was not examined by the prosecution. The failure of the prosecution to examine Naem Singh persuades us to draw an adverse presumption that in case, he had been examined, he would have not supported the prosecution case. At this stage, it would be relevant to refer to the observations of the Supreme Court in Takhaji Hiraji vs. Thakore Kubersing Chamansing & Ors. (2001) 6 SCC 145. The observations of the Supreme Court are reproduced below:-

“19. ... It is true that if a material witness, who would unfold the genesis of the incident or an essential part of the prosecution case, not convincingly brought to fore otherwise, or where there is a gap or infirmity in the prosecution case which could have been supplied or made good by examining a witness who though available is not examined, the prosecution case can be termed as suffering from a deficiency and withholding of such a material witness would oblige the Court to draw an adverse inference against the prosecution by holding that if the witness would have been examined it would not have supported the prosecution case. On the other hand if already overwhelming evidence is available and examination of other witnesses would only be a repetition or duplication of the evidence already adduced, non-examination of such other witnesses may not be material. In such a case the Court ought to scrutinise the worth of the evidence adduced. The court of facts must ask itself - whether in the facts and circumstances of the case, it was necessary to examine such other witness, and if so, whether such witness was available to be examined and yet was being withheld from the court. If the answer be positive then only a question of drawing an adverse inference may arise. If the witnesses already examined are reliable and the testimony coming from their mouth is unimpeachable the Court can safely act upon it, uninfluenced by the factum of non-examination of other witnesses. ... ”

(Emphasis supplied)

The prosecution failed to prove from the evidence produced that the appellant was last seen with the deceased or was with the deceased immediately before her death.

It is not the case of the prosecution that the witness was not available for examination. The evidence produced by the prosecution does not prove that the appellant was with the deceased when the crime was committed or that the deceased was last seen with the accused. The failure of the prosecution to examine Dharam Singh and Naem Singh is fatal to the prosecution case.

The explanation of the appellant under Section 313 Cr.P.C. does not help the prosecution. It is settled law that an explanation given by the accused under Section 313 Cr.P.C. cannot be used to fill the gaps in the prosecution evidence. The prosecution has to stand on its own legs and is required to prove its case beyond doubt on its own evidence. The statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. cannot be used to nail the accused. The explanation of the accused under Section 313 Cr.P.C. is sought after the prosecution has examined its witnesses, therefore, it cannot be a substitute for the prosecution evidence. At this stage, it would be relevant to reproduce the observations of the Supreme Court in Paragraph no. 151 of Sharad Birdhichand (supra) :-

“151. It is well settled that the prosecution must stand or fall on its own legs and it cannot derive any strength from the weakness of the defence. This is trite law and no decision has taken a contrary view. What some cases have held is only this : where various links in a chain are in themselves complete, then a false plea or a false defence may be called into aid only to lend assurance to the court. In other words, before using the additional link it must be proved that all the links in the chain are complete and do not suffer from any infirmity. It is not the law that where there is any infirmity or lacuna in the prosecution case, the same could be cured or supplied by a false defence or a plea which is not accepted by a court.”

(Emphasis supplied)

It is apparent that in case, the explanation of the appellant under Section 313 Cr.P.C. is not taken into consideration, there is no evidence on record to show that the deceased was last seen with the appellant or was with the appellant. The trial court has used the explanation of the appellant to fill the gaps in the prosecution evidence regarding the presence of the accused at the place of the offence and that the appellant was either with the deceased or was last seen with the deceased.

The trial court has also held that the recovery of pistol at the instance of the deceased completed the links in the circumstantial evidence to prove the guilt of the appellant. Here again, we are not able to agree with the trial court. We find and it is also evident from the judgment of the trial court that two pistols were claimed to have been recovered from the place of incident - One country made pistol of 315 bore was recovered at the instance of the appellant and the other country made pistol of 315 bore was recovered at the instance of Sanoj Kumar. The recovery memo of both the pistols have been proved by the concerned officers. A perusal of the post mortem report of the deceased shows that there is only one gun shot wound. Wound no. 2 is the exit wound and corresponds with wound no. 1. Sanoj Kumar has been acquitted for the offence under Section 302 IPC. There is no evidence on record to establish that the gun shot wounding the deceased was fired from the pistol allegedly recovered at the instance of the appellant.

At this stage, it would also be relevant to note that in cases of circumstantial evidence, motive is an important factor to be established to prove the guilt of the accused. The prosecution pleaded dowry to be the motive for crime. The evidence produced by the prosecution regarding demand of dowry by the appellant or his family members has been disbelieved by the trial court and the trial court has held that there was no evidence on record to show that any cruelty or harassment for dowry was meted out to the deceased before her death. As noted earlier, we have agreed with the findings of the trial court. Apparently, the motive for the appellant to kill his wife has also not been proved.

It has also been argued by the prosecution that in light of his explanation under Section 313 Cr.P.C., the burden to prove the circumstances of the death of the deceased as claimed by the appellant was on the appellant. We disagree with the reasoning of the trial court and reject the argument of AGA. Section 106 of the Evidence Act does not shift the burden of proof from the prosecution to the defence. The burden of proof regarding commission of crime and the involvement of the accused is on the prosecution. The said burden never shifts. Section 106 of the Evidence Act only provides that a fact especially within the knowledge of any person is to be proved by the person who has the knowledge of the fact. Section 106 does not relieve the prosecution from discharging its duty to prove the guilt of the accused. It does not absolve the prosecution of discharging its primary burden of proving the prosecution case beyond reasonable doubt. It is only when prosecution has led evidence which, if believed, will sustain a conviction, or which makes out a prima facie case, that the question arises of considering facts of which burden of proof would lie upon the accused. At this stage, it would be relevant to refer to the observations of the Supreme Court in Paragraph nos. 50 to 52 of its judgment reported in Md. Anowar Hussain vs. State of Assam (2022) 19 SCC 264 : -

"50. In Gargi, where the appellant was held guilty of murder of her husband by the two courts essentially with reference to the operation of Section 106 of the Evidence Act, this Court pointed out that this provision does not absolve the prosecution of its primary burden in the following words:

"33.1. Insofar as the "last seen theory" is concerned, there is no doubt that the appellant being none other than the wife of the deceased and staying under the same roof, was the last person the deceased was seen with. However, such companionship of the deceased and the appellant, by itself, does not mean that a presumption of guilt of the appellant is to be drawn. The trial court and the High Court have proceeded on the assumption that Section 106 of the Evidence Act directly operates against the appellant. In our view, such an approach has also not been free from error where it was omitted to be considered that Section 106 of the Evidence Act does not absolve the prosecution of its primary burden."

51. In Shivaji Chintappa Patil, this Court reiterated the principles that Section 106 of the Evidence Act does not absolve the prosecution of discharging the primary burden; and that want of explanation or falsity of explanation in the statement under Section 313 can only be used as an additional circumstance when the prosecution has proved the other circumstances leading to no other conclusion but that of guilt of the accused. In that case, one of the significant features had been that as per the post-mortem report, the cause of death of the victim was asphyxia due to hanging but, admittedly, there were no marks on the body of the victim which could suggest violence or struggle; and the medical expert himself had not ruled out the possibility of suicidal death. This Court observed and said as under:

"23. Section 106 of the Evidence Act does not absolve the prosecution of discharging its primary burden of proving the prosecution case beyond reasonable doubt. It is only when the prosecution has led evidence which, if believed, will sustain a conviction, or which makes out a prima facie case, that the question arises of considering facts of which the burden of proof would lie upon the accused.

25. Another circumstance relied upon by the prosecution is that the appellant failed to give any explanation in his statement under Section 313 CrPC. By now it is well-settled principle of law, that false explanation or non-explanation can only be used as an additional circumstance, when the prosecution has proved the chain of circumstances leading to no other conclusion than the guilt of the accused. However, it cannot be used as a link to complete the chain. Reference in this respect could be made to the judgment of this Court in Sharad Birdhichand Sarda."

52. In Satye Singh, wherein the prosecution failed to prove the basic facts is against the accused, this Court, again, emphasised that Section 106 of the Evidence Act does not relieve the prosecution of its primary duty to prove the guilt of the appellant as follows:

"19. ... the Court is of the opinion that the prosecution had miserably failed to prove the entire chain of circumstances which would unerringly conclude that alleged act was committed by the accused only and none else. Reliance placed by the learned advocate Mr Mishra for the State on Section 106 of the Evidence Act is also misplaced, inasmuch as Section 106 is not intended to relieve the prosecution from discharging its duty to prove the guilt of the accused."

(Emphasis supplied)

The prosecution failed to prove the presence of the appellant at the scene of the crime or that he was last seen with the deceased. There is no evidence to prove that the gun shot wounding the deceased was fired from the pistol recovered at the instance of the appellant and not the other pistol. Both the pistols were of the same make. Prosecution failed to prove the motive for murder. In the circumstances, we are not able to persuade ourselves that the burden to prove the circumstances of the death of the deceased shifted on the appellant under Section 106 of the Evidence Act.

For all the aforesaid reasons, we hold that the prosecution has not been able to prove, beyond, doubt the appellant guilty of the charge either under Section 302 IPC or Section 25 Arms Act.

The appellant has already undergone actual imprisonment for more than 9 years as as on date.

The appeal is allowed.

The judgment and order dated 19.4.2019 passed by the Sessions Judge, Auraiya in Sessions Trial No. 249 of 2011 registered under Sections 498-A, 304-B, 201, 404/411, 302/149 IPC and Section 4 Dowry Prohibition Act so far as it convicts the appellant under Section 302 IPC and also in Session Trial No. 250 of 2011 so far as it convicts the appellant under Section 25 of the Arms Act are, hereby, set-aside. Consequently, the sentences awarded to the appellant, as noted earlier, in Session Trial No. 249 of 2011 and in Session Trial No. 250 of 2011 also stand set-aside. The appellant is acquitted of the charges in Sessions Trial No. 249 of 2011 and Session Trial No. 250 of 2011.

The appellant is in jail and shall be released forthwith from jail if not detained in any other case.

Let the present judgment of this Court be certified to the trial court.

The records of the case along with the judgment shall be remitted back to the trial court for necessary action.

CASE ARISING FROM

Case Crime No. 170/2000, P.S. Allau, District Mainpuri - Special Sessions Trial No. 11-A of 2001.

APPEARANCE OF PARTIES

Counsel for Appellant: - Shri Mr. Yanendra Pandey, Panel Advocate, High Court Legal Services Committee.
Counsel for Respondent: - Mr. Shashi Shekhar Tiwari, Additional Government Advocate.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Sanjiv Kumar, J.)

1. This criminal appeal has been preferred by appellant, Azad Khan, son of Turab Khan, resident of Vyoti Katra, Police Station Allau, District Mainpuri, against the judgment and order dated 05.02.2002 passed by Special Judge (D.A.A.)/Additional Sessions Judge, Mainpuri, in Special Trial No. 11-A of 2001, under Sections 395 and 397 of the Indian Penal Code (in short, 'I.P.C.'), Police Station Allau, District Mainpuri.

2. By the impugned judgment and order, the appellant, Azad Khan has been convicted and sentenced to undergo rigorous imprisonment for life for the offence punishable under Section 395 I.P.C., alongwith a fine of Rs.10,000/-. He has further been sentenced to undergo seven years' rigorous imprisonment for the offence punishable under Section 397 I.P.C., alongwith a fine of Rs.10,000/-. In default of payment of fine, he has been ordered to suffer further rigorous imprisonment for a period of two years. Both the sentences have been directed to run concurrently.

3. The brief facts of the case are that informant, Om Prakash, son of Sri Ram Pandey, resident of village Katra, Police Station Allau District Mainpuri lodged a written information (tehrir) dated 29.10.2000 with the In-charge, Police Station Allau, alleging therein that on the said day he was sleeping inside a room in his house whereas his wife, Kamla Devi and children were sleeping in the verandah. His brother, Ram Murti and his wife, Chandra Kanti were sleeping in another verandah. His nephew and his wife, Anju, were asleep in another room. At about 12:20 a.m., 10-15 miscreants entered his house after climbing down the roof and battered beating his children. A lantern was lit in the verandah. Some miscreants kicked at the door to his room, asking him to open it saying they were policemen. When he opened the door, the miscreants caught hold of him and assaulted him with a lathi, danda, a country-made pistol, and a gun. He somehow managed to escape from their clutches and ran towards the house. The miscreants assaulted his wife, children, and his brother's wife. Hearing the hue and cry, Ramesh Prajapati, Rajendra and other villagers arrived at the spot and identified the miscreants by torch light. They identified Baksa son of Manphool, resident of Jatpura; another unknown person from Jatpura; Lalman, Mahesh, and Surendra, sons of Nathu Ram, residents of village Panchampur, Police Station Kishni; Vinod son of Ram Charan, resident of Hadua, Police Station Bewar; Azad son of Turab Khan, resident of village Katra and Raj Kumar, son of Sri Pal, resident of Niharpur. The miscreants looted cash, jewellery, besides bank and insurance papers. Parshuram, son of Sita Ram, resident of the same village, was involved in the said dacoity. During the incident, the miscreants opened fire, injuring injured Ramesh, Umesh, and Rajendra, all residents of the same village, who were taken to the Police Station.

4. Upon this information, an FIR, bearing Case Crime No. 170 of 2000, under Sections 395 and 397 IPC, was lodged at Police Station Allau, District Mainpuri, on 29.10.2000 at about 2:25 a.m. against nominated accused. Thereafter, the investigation commenced. The Investigating Officer recorded statements of the informant and other witnesses, inspected the place of occurrence and prepared a site-plan. He also inspected the torch and lantern and prepared their recovery memos.

5. After investigation, the Investigating Officer filed charge-sheet under Sections 395 and 397 I.P.C. against the seven accused. The concerned Magistrate took cognizance of the offence and summoned the accused. They appeared before the Court, whereupon the learned Magistrate furnished them copies of the relevant prosecution papers under Section 207 Cr.P.C. Thereafter, the case was committed to the Court of Sessions for trial.

6. The appellant, being under trial, appeared before the Court of Sessions alongwith the other co-accused. He moved a confession application before the Trial Court, in consequence his case was separated from the Special Sessions Trial No. 11 of 2001 and renumbered as Special Sessions Trial No. 11-A of 2001.

7. The Trial Court framed charges under Sections 395 and 397 IPC against the appellant, wherein he admitted his guilt. The Trial Court observed that the confession was conditional and, therefore, directed the trial to proceed.

8. The prosecution examined P.W.1, Constable, Iqbal Singh, who proved the copy of FIR (Ext. Ka-1) and the charge-sheet (Ext. K-2) as secondary witness.

9. The statement of appellant, Azad Khan, under Section 313 Cr.P.C. was recorded. In his statement, under Section 313 Cr.P.C., the appellant said that he had voluntarily submitted the confession application and admitted his involvement in the said offence.

10. The learned Trial Court, after hearing, observed that the accused, Azad Khan, was one of the members of the gang of dacoits who committed dacoity in the night of 29.10.2000 at about 12:20 a.m., at the house of the informant. He was identified by the informant and other witnesses by the light of a torch and a lantern. The Court further observed that the accused has admitted his guilt and acknowledged that he was one of the members of the gang who committed the dacoity. Upon this admission, the Court found him guilty of offence punishable under Sections 395 and 397 I.P.C. and convicted and sentenced him to the term as indicated above.

11. We have heard Mr. Yanendra Pandey, learned Panel Advocate of the High Court Legal Services Committee for the appellant and Mr. Shashi Shekhar Tiwari, learned Additional Government Advocate for the State and perused the record.

12. It is submitted on behalf of the appellant that he has been wrongly convicted and sentenced by the learned Trial Court. There was no evidence adduced by the prosecution in support of its case. The only witness examined by the prosecution was a formal witness, who is not witness of the occurrence. He has proved the FIR and the charge-sheet. No witness of fact was examined by the prosecution in support of the case. The Trial Court convicted the appellant solely on the basis of his admission in his statement recorded under Section 313 of the Cr.P.C.

13. It is further submitted on behalf of the appellant that statement of the appellant under Section 313 Cr.P.C. does not fall within the purview of evidence under Section 3 Indian Evidence Act. In absence of any corroborative/incriminating evidence produced by the prosecution, the appellant could not have been convicted solely on the basis of his admission in his statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. Therefore, the impugned judgment and order is illegal, and the conviction and sentence awarded to the appellant is liable to be set aside.

14. In this regard, learned counsel for the appellant has produced before the Court the following case laws in support of his contention: (i) Raj Kumar Singh @ Raju @ Batya vs. State of Rajasthan, 2013 (4) SCC (Cri) 812; (ii) Pramod @ Bhoko vs.

State of Chhattisgarh, 2024 (1) C.G.L.J. 233; (iii) Premchand vs. The State of Maharashtra, AIR 2023 SC 1487; and (iv) Ashok Kumar vs. State of Haryana, AIR 2010 SC 2839, which will be discussed in later part of this judgment.

15. Per contra, the learned A.G.A. has submitted that the appellant had voluntarily confessed the crime in his statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C., and, thus the learned Trial Court has rightly convicted the appellant based on admission in his statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. Therefore, there is no illegality or irregularity vitiating the impugned judgment and order, and this appeal has no merit. It is liable to be dismissed.

16. It is settled law that the burden of proof lies upon the prosecution to prove their case beyond reasonable doubt. In the instant case, the prosecution has examined P.W.1 alone, Constable Iqbal Singh in evidence, who is a formal witness. He has proved the copy of the FIR and the charge-sheet as secondary evidence. The prosecution has not produced the informant or any other witness to prove the facts of the case, in support of the charge. Thus, technically there is no evidence produced by the prosecution to prove their case. The appellant, in his statement recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C., has admitted his guilt and in view of the above, the learned Trial Court, convicted him for the offences punishable under Sections 395 and 397 I.P.C.

17. Now the question is whether the appellant could have been convicted solely on the basis of his admission in the statement recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C. Further, whether such admission would fall within the category of evidence.

In this regard, learned Counsel for the appellant has called attention to certain authorities.

18. In Raj Kumar Singh @ Raju @ Batya (supra), the Supreme Court, after discussing various authorities in point, has held that the law on the issue can be summarized to the effect that a statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. is recorded to meet the requirements of natural justice as it requires that an accused may be given an opportunity to furnish an explanation about the incriminating material which had come against him in the trial. However, his statement cannot be made a basis for his conviction.

19. In Premchand (supra), the Supreme Court has held that the explanation furnished by the accused cannot be considered in isolation but in conjunction with the evidence adduced by the prosecution and, therefore, no conviction can be premised solely on the basis of the Section 313 statement(s) and statements of the accused in the course of examination under Section 313, do not constitute evidence under Section 3 of the Evidence Act. The Supreme Court observed in paragraph Nos.14 and 15 as under:

" 14. A bench of three Hon'ble Judges of this Court in State of U.P. vs. Lakhmi; (1998) 4 SCC 336 has extensively dealt with the aspect of value or utility of a statement under Section 313, Cr. P.C. The object of Section 313, Cr. P.C. was explained by this Court in Sanatan Naskar vs. State of West Bengal; (2010)8 SCC 249. The rationale behind the requirement to comply with Section 313, Cr.P.C. was adverted to by this Court in Reena Hazarika vs. State of Assam; (2019) 13

SCC 289. Close on the heels thereof, in Parminder Kaur vs. State of Punjab; (2020) 8 SCC 811, this Court restated the importance of Section 313, Cr.P.C. upon noticing the view taken in Reena Hazarika (supra) and M. Abbas vs. State of Kerala; (2001) 10 SCC 103.

15. What follows from these authorities may briefly be summarized thus:

a. section 313, Cr. P.C. [clause (b) of sub-section 1] is a valuable safeguard in the trial process for the accused to establish his innocence;

b. section 313, which is intended to ensure a direct dialogue between the court and the accused, casts a mandatory duty on the court to question the accused generally on the case for the purpose of enabling him to personally explain any circumstances appearing in the evidence against him;

c. when questioned, the accused may not admit his involvement at all and choose to flatly deny or outrightly repudiate whatever is put to him by the court;

d. the accused may even admit or own incriminating circumstances adduced against him to adopt legally recognized defences;

e. an accused can make a statement without fear of being cross-examined by the prosecution or the latter having any right to cross-examine him;

f. the explanations that an accused may furnish cannot be considered in isolation but has to be considered in conjunction with the evidence adduced by the prosecution and, therefore, no conviction can be premised solely on the basis of the section 313 statement(s);

g. statements of the accused in course of examination under section 313, since not on oath, do not constitute evidence under section 3 of the Evidence Act, yet, the answers given are relevant for finding the truth and examining the veracity of the prosecution case;

h. statement(s) of the accused cannot be dissected to rely on the inculpatory part and ignore the exculpatory part and has/have to be read in the whole, inter alia, to test the authenticity of the exculpatory nature of admission; and i. if the accused takes a defence and proffers any alternate version of events or interpretation, the court has to carefully analyze and consider his statements;

j. any failure to consider the accused's explanation of incriminating circumstances, in a given case, may vitiate the trial and/or endanger the conviction. "

20. In Ashok Kumar (supra), the Supreme Court, after examining the essential features of Section 313 Cr.P.C. and the principles of law enunciated, held that the object of recording the accused's statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. is to put all incriminating evidence, appearing against him, so as to provide him an opportunity to explain him. Section 313(4) of the Criminal Procedure Code explicitly provides that the answers given by the accused may be taken into consideration in such enquiry or trial and put in evidence for or against the accused, in any other enquiry or trial for any other offence, in cases where such answers may tend to show that he has committed the offence. In other words, the use of a statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. as evidence is permissible according to the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure, but has its own limitations. The Courts may rely on a portion of the statement of the accused and find him guilty upon a consideration of the other evidence against him led by the prosecution. However, statements made under this Section should not be considered in isolation but in conjunction with evidence adduced by the prosecution. Another important caution that Courts have laid down is that conviction of the accused cannot be based merely on a statement made under Section 313 of the Cr.P.C. as it cannot be regarded as a substantive piece of evidence.

21. Lastly, in Pramod @ Bhoka (supra), a similar question arose before Chhattisgarh High Court as the one here. In Pramod @ Bhoka also, the appellant had admitted his guilt at the stage of framing of charge and again at the stage of recording of his statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. The question before the Court was whether the admission of guilt by the appellant in his examination under Section 313 Cr.P.C. constitutes substantive evidence within the meaning of Section 3 of the Evidence Act and what would be the effect of his admission of guilt in statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. The Court considered various authorities on the point. The Division Bench of the Chhattisgarh High Court in Pramod @ Bhoka observed:

29. "The Supreme Court in the matter of Raj Kumar Singh alias Raju alias Batya v. State of Rajasthan; AIR 2013 SC 3150 has clearly held that the statement made under Section 313 of the Cr.P.C. cannot be made basis for conviction as it is not subjected to oath and it cannot be treated as evidence within the meaning of Section 3 of the Evidence Act, and observed as under in paragraph 36: -

"36. In view of the above, the law on the issue can be summarised to the effect that statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. is recorded to meet the requirement of the principles of natural justice as it requires that an accused may be given an opportunity to furnish explanation of the incriminating material which had come against him in the trial. However, his statement cannot be made a basis for his conviction.

His answers to the questions put to him under Section 313 Cr.P.C. cannot be used to fill up the gaps left by the prosecution witnesses in their depositions. Thus, the statement of the accused is not a substantive piece of evidence and therefore, it can be used only for appreciating the evidence led by the prosecution, though it cannot be a substitute for the evidence of the prosecution. In case the prosecution's evidence is not found sufficient to sustain conviction of the accused, the inculpatory part of his statement cannot be made the sole basis of his conviction. The statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. is not recorded after administering oath to the accused. Therefore, it cannot be treated as an evidence within the meaning of Section 3 of the Evidence Act, though the accused has a right if he chooses to be a witness, and once he makes that option, he can be administered oath and examined as a witness in defence as required under Section 315 Cr.P.C.

An adverse inference can be taken against the accused only and only if the incriminating material stood fully established and the accused is not able to furnish any explanation for the same. However, the accused has a right to remain silent as he cannot be forced to become witness against himself."

31. In the matter of Ashok Debbarma alias Achak Debbarma v. State of Tripura; (2014) 4 SCC 747, relying upon the matter of Mohan Singh v. Prem Singh; (2002) 10 SCC 236, it has been held that the statement made in defence by the accused under Section 313 of the Cr.P.C. can certainly be taken aid of to lend credence to the evidence led by the prosecution, but only a part of such statement under Section 313 of the Cr.P.C. cannot be made the sole basis of his conviction, and observed in paragraphs 24 and 25 as under:

*“24. We are of the view that, under Section 313 statement, if the accused admits that from the evidence of various witnesses, four persons sustained severe bullet injuries by the firing by the accused and his associates, that admission of guilt in Section 313 statement cannot be brushed aside. This Court in State of Maharashtra v. Sukhdev Singh (1992) 3 SCC 700 held that since no oath is administered to the accused, the statement made by the accused under Section 313 Cr.P.C. will not be evidence stricto sensu and the accused, of course, shall not render himself liable to punishment merely on the basis of answers given while he was being examined under Section 313 Cr.P.C. But, sub-section (4) says that the answers given by the accused in response to his examination under Section 313 Cr.P.C. can be taken into consideration in such an inquiry or trial. This Court in Hate Singh Bhagat Singh v. State of Madhya Bharat, AIR 1953 SC 468 held that the answers given by the accused under Section 313 examination can be used for proving his guilt as much as the evidence given by the prosecution witness. In Narain Singh v. State of Punjab (1964) 1 CriLJ 730 this Court held that when the accused confesses to the commission of the offence with which he is charged, the Court may rely upon the confession and proceed to convict him.*

25. This Court in Mohan Singh v. Prem Singh, held that:

“27. The statement made in defence by the accused under Section 313 CrPC can certainly be taken aid of to lend credence to the evidence led by the prosecution, but only a part of such statement under Section 313 CrPC cannot be made the sole basis of his conviction.”

In this connection, reference may also be made to the judgments of this Court in Devender Kumar Singla v. Baldev Krishan Singla (2005) 9 SCC 15 and Bishnu Prasad Sinha v. State of Assam (2007) 11 SCC 467. The above-mentioned decisions would indicate that the statement of the accused under Section 313 CrPC for the admission of his guilt or confession as such cannot be made the sole basis for finding the accused guilty, the reason being he is not making the statement on oath, but all the same the confession or admission of guilt can be taken as a piece of evidence since the same lends credence to the evidence led by the prosecution.”

22. In view of the above legal position, the Division Bench of Chhattisgarh High Court held that no conviction can solely be based on the admission of guilt by the appellant in his statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C., in absence of any corroborative/incriminating evidence being led by the prosecution. Accordingly, the conviction and sentence of the appellant was set aside.

23. In view of the above discussion, the explanation furnished by the accused cannot be considered in isolation but has to be considered in conjunction with the evidence adduced by the prosecution and, therefore, no conviction can be premised solely on the basis of statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C.. Statements of the accused in the course of examination under Section 313, do not constitute evidence under Section 3 of the Evidence Act. Therefore, it is clear that the admission of guilt in statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C., alone, cannot be made the basis of conviction of the appellant in the present case, in absence of any other incriminating evidence.

24. Further, it is to be noted that a perusal of the record of the Trial Court shows that the appellant moved as many as seven confession applications between 24.10.2001 (the date of framing of charge) to 05.02.2002 (date of the judgment) before the Court, and a glance at these applications shows that the appellant expressed fear of being killed by the informant, in collusion with the Police, as and when he is released from jail. He prayed that he be permitted to remain in jail to save his life. It is noticed that question no.1, in the statement of the appellant framed under Section 313 Cr.P.C. by the Trial Court, was a composite question, to which the appellant answered in the affirmative.

25. The above question and its answer is as follows:

प्रश्न सं० 1- क्या यह आवेदन पत्र जुर्म इकबाल आपने अपनी स्वैच्छा बिना किसी दबाव, भय अथवा प्रलोभन के दिया है। और आप को जानकारी है। कि इस ब्यान से आपकी सजा हो सकती है?

उत्तर- 1- जी हाँ।

26. In view of the above, the admission of the appellant under Section 313 Cr.P.C., though voluntary, cannot be said to be free from any fear or pressure. This aspect about the appellant moving different confession applications out of fear to save his life, before the Trial Court, has gone unnoticed by the Trial Judge while reaching his conclusions. It is also relevant to note that the record does not show that the appellant had the assistance of an Advocate to defend. Also, there is nothing to disclose that he was offered and provided any legal aid, which was a violation of his right to fair trial guaranteed under Article 21 of the Constitution, besides being a violation of Section 304 Cr.P.C. Thus, the appellant was also deprived of a fair trial in this case.

27. Thus, the sad part of the matter is that the appellant is incarcerated in jail for almost 24 years, in a case in which there was no evidence against him and his admission of guilt in his statement under section 313 Cr.P.C. was not only under fear to save his life from the informant, which went unnoticed by the Trial Court, but also, if treated as one made without fear, not sufficient to found a conviction and sentence, in absence of any incriminating evidence adduced by the prosecution.

28. In view of the above discussion, we come to the conclusion that the learned Trial Court has erred in convicting the appellant, as the prosecution has miserably failed to connect the appellant with the offence in question and to prove the offence beyond reasonable doubt. Thus, the conviction of the appellant solely on the admission of guilt in his statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. is not sustainable.

29. In view of the above, the instant criminal appeal is allowed. We set aside the impugned judgment and order dated 05.02.2002 passed by the Trial Court and acquit the appellant, Azad Khan of the charge under Sections 395 and 397 IPC.

30. The appellant, Azad Khan is in jail. He is directed to be released forthwith, if not wanted in any other case.

31. Before being released, the appellant shall execute a personal bond in the sum of Rs.20,000/- under Section 481 of the Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023 (corresponding to Section 437-A of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973) for his appearance, in the event of an appeal being preferred against his acquittal.

32. Let a copy of this Judgment and order be sent to the Trial Court concerned, forthwith, alongwith the Trial Court record, for information and necessary compliance.

DATED: ALLAHABAD 19.12.2025

BEFORE

THE HON'BLE SHEKHAR KUMAR YADAV, J.

Criminal Appeal No. 11855 of 2025

Maloo

...Appellant

Versus

State of U.P.

...Respondent

ISSUE FOR CONSIDERATION

Whether continuation of criminal proceedings against the appellant, arising out of land allotments made in 1997 and FIR lodged in 2022, amounts to abuse of process of law.

Whether invocation of IPC offences and Section 3(1)(f) of the SC/ST Act is legally sustainable in absence of specific allegations, overt acts, or caste-based intent.

Whether the cognizance/summoning order was passed mechanically without judicial application of mind.

HEADNOTES

Criminal Law – Code of Criminal Procedure (CrPC) - Section 161, 14-A, 14-A(1) - Indian Penal Code (IPC) - Sections 420, 467, 468, 471, 384, 120-B - Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, 1989 - Section 3(1)(f) - Criminal Appeal under section 14-A(2) of the SC/ST Act – assailing the charge-sheet, summoning order as well as the entire criminal proceeding – criminal proceedings arising out of alleged irregularities in land allotments made in 1997 - FIR lodged in year 2022 - delay of 25 years - the appellant was not named in the FIR - no specific role or overt act was attributed to him - investigation – plea taken that all the allegations were vague, omnibus, and essentially civil/revenue in nature – court finds that - invocation of IPC offences and Section 3(1)(f) of the SC/ST Act was held to be mechanical and unsupported by statutory ingredients, and the summoning order was passed without judicial application of mind – further, observed that criminal prosecution cannot be used to circumvent or replace statutory remedies available under revenue law - relying on precedents such as Bhajan Lal, Anand Kumar Mohatta, Hitesh Verma, Pepsi Foods, and recent Supreme Court rulings, court held that, continuation of prosecution would amount to abuse of process and miscarriage of justice, and therefore quashed the cognizance order, charge-sheet, and entire criminal proceedings against the appellant.(Para – 16, 22, 26, 31, 32, 33, 34)

CASE ARISING FROM

Case Crime No. 280 of 2022 - Police Station Dadri, District Gautam Budh Nagar, Uttar Pradesh - Sessions Trial No. 364 of 2023 (State vs. Maloo & Others).

APPEARANCE OF PARTIES

Counsel for Appellant: - Shri Sageer Ahmad assisted Sr. Adv. Assisted by Shri Navnath Pandey
Counsel for Respondent: - AGA.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Shekhar Kumar Yadav, J.)

1. Heard Shree Sageer Ahmad, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Mr Navnath Pandey, learned counsel for the appellant, learned A.G.A. for the State of U.P. and perused the material available on record. It is further submitted by learned AGA that notice has been served upon the informant as per his record. Moreover, the informant has lodged the present FIR in his official capacity and hence there is no further requirement of issuing notice to the informant of the case.

2. The present criminal appeal under Section 14-A(1) of the Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, 1989 has been preferred assailing the impugned cognizance/summoning order dated 20.03.2023 passed by the Special Judge (SC/ST Act), Gautam Budh Nagar in Sessions Trial No. 364 of 2023 (State vs. Maloo & others), the charge-sheet dated 06.02.2023, and the entire criminal proceedings arising out of Case Crime No. 280 of 2022, under Sections 420, 467, 468, 471, 384, 120-B IPC and Section 3(1)(f) of the SC/ST Act, Police Station Dadri, District Gautam Budh Nagar.

3. Encapsulated facts as per the First Information Report registered as Case Crime No. 280 of 2022, at Police Station Dadri, District Gautam Budh Nagar by Shri Pankaj Nirwal, Revenue Inspector, are that allegations have been levelled regarding alleged irregularities in allotment and subsequent transfer of agricultural land of village Chitahera, Tehsil Dadri. It is stated that in the year 1997, about 282 persons were granted pattas/leases of agricultural land by the competent authority, which were subsequently approved. Later on, complaints were received alleging that some allottees were ineligible and that land so allotted was transferred to private persons by execution of sale deeds through manipulation of revenue records and forged documents.

4. The FIR further alleges that certain persons, acting in connivance with others, committed forgery in revenue entries, showed enhancement of land area, and transferred land in violation of statutory provisions, thereby causing wrongful loss to the State exchequer and wrongful gain to the beneficiaries. It is also alleged that in some cases land meant for members of the Scheduled Caste community was alienated in contravention of law, resulting in invocation of Section 3(1)(f) of the SC/ST (Prevention of Atrocities) Act along with offences under Sections 420, 467, 468, 471, 384 and 120-B IPC.

5. The FIR primarily rests upon old revenue records and inquiries relating to land allotments made more than two decades prior, and the allegations against the accused persons are broadly worded, without attributing specific overt acts, dates or individual transactions to each accused, the dispute essentially arising out of alleged civil and revenue irregularities over land transactions spanning several years.

6. Learned counsel for the appellant submits that the impugned cognizance/summoning order dated 20.03.2023 and the charge-sheet dated 06.02.2023, as well as the entire proceedings arising out of Case Crime No. 280 of 2022, are manifestly illegal and amount to abuse of the process of law.

7. It is submitted that the appellant was not even named in the First Information Report lodged on 03.07.2022. The Appellant has been roped into the criminal proceedings at a subsequent stage without any material evidence, which demonstrates mala fide intention to implicate him falsely. The FIR was lodged by Shri Pankaj Nirwal, the then Revenue Inspector, Tehsil Dadri, who is not a victim but a government officer discharging official duties. The allegations pertain to transactions involving lease land of Village Chitahaira dating back to 1997, which were subject to multiple judicial proceedings and ultimately validated by competent revenue courts.

8. It is further submitted that the investigation carried out in the present matter suffers from grave and fatal irregularities that render the entire prosecution manifestly unjust and an abuse of the process of law. It is contended that the Charge sheet dated 06.02.2023 includes various witnesses out of which five witnesses had died years before the investigation commenced and this fact conclusively establishes that the investigation is so faulty, unfair, and biased that continuing the case would amount to an abuse of the judicial process and result in a miscarriage of justice. The Investigating Officer could not have recorded statements of deceased persons, yet these persons are shown as prosecution witnesses, exposing the fabricated nature of the investigation.

9. It is further submitted that the first informant in his statements recorded under Section 161 Cr P C, showed complete ignorance about the material facts forming the basis of the alleged offences and merely stated that entire records are available in the proceedings of allotment of lease deeds, which demonstrates that the FIR was lodged mechanically without personal knowledge of alleged criminal acts.

10. It is further argued that the appellant has been falsely implicated without any specific role or overt act. He is not named in the FIR. Neither the FIR nor the charge-sheet discloses any individual act attributable to the appellant so as to satisfy the basic ingredients of the alleged offences. Reliance is placed on the celebrated judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in State of Haryana v. Bhajan Lal, 1992 Supp (1) SCC 335, wherein it has been held that criminal proceedings are liable to be quashed where the allegations do not prima facie constitute any offence or are manifestly attended with mala fides.

11. Learned counsel further submits that the dispute emanates from land allotments made in the year 1997 and subsequent revenue proceedings, and is essentially civil and revenue in nature. Criminal law has been set in motion after an inordinate delay of more than two decades. Reliance is placed on Anand Kumar Mohatta v. State (NCT of Delhi), (2019) 11 SCC 706, wherein the Supreme Court held that continuation of criminal proceedings arising out of a purely civil dispute would amount to abuse of process of law and deserves interference even at the stage of cognizance. Reliance is further placed on the case of Indian Oil Corporation Vs M/s NEPC India Ltd, (2006) 6 SCC 738, wherein the Apex Court has deprecated the tendency to convert the Civil disputes into criminal proceedings.

12. It is further contended that the essential ingredients of offences under Sections 420, 467, 468, 471, 384 and 120-B IPC are completely absent. There is no allegation of dishonest intention at inception, no material to show preparation or use of forged documents by the appellant, and no evidence of criminal conspiracy. Reliance is placed on Vesa Holdings Pvt. Ltd. v. State of Kerala, (2015) 8 SCC 293, holding that in absence of mens rea and foundational facts, criminal prosecution cannot be permitted to continue.

13. With respect to invocation of Section 3(1)(f) of the SC/ST (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, learned counsel submits that the same has been applied mechanically. Reliance is placed on Hitesh Verma v. State of Uttarakhand, (2020) 10 SCC 710, wherein the Supreme Court held that for attracting the provisions of the SC/ST Act, the offence must be committed on the ground that the victim belongs to a Scheduled Caste or Scheduled Tribe, and that disputes of civil nature, even involving members of SC/ST, would not ipso facto attract the Act. Lastly, learned counsel submits that the summoning order has been passed in a mechanical manner without application of judicial mind. Reliance is placed on Pepsi Foods Ltd. v. Special Judicial Magistrate, (1998) 5 SCC 749, wherein it has been held that summoning an accused is a serious matter and the Magistrate must carefully examine whether a prima facie case is made out.

14. Learned A.G.A. opposes the appeal and submits that the impugned cognizance order reflects due application of mind by the learned Special Judge, who, upon perusal of the charge-sheet and material on record, found sufficient grounds to proceed against the accused person. The order does not suffer from any jurisdictional error or perversity warranting interference under appellate jurisdiction.

15. The Court has considered the rival submissions and perused the record.

16. From a careful examination of the FIR, charge-sheet and accompanying material, it is evident that the allegations against the appellant are general and omnibus. No specific role, overt act or individual transaction has been attributed to the appellant so as to constitute the ingredients of the offences alleged. The principles laid down in State of Haryana v. Bhajan Lal, 1992 Supp (1) SCC 335 are clearly attracted.

17. The record further shows that the dispute arises out of land allotments made in the year 1997 and subsequent revenue proceedings. The allegations primarily relate to alleged irregularities in revenue records, which have already been the subject matter of civil and revenue adjudication. In view of the law laid down in Anand Kumar Mohatta v. State (NCT of Delhi), (2019) 11 SCC 706, continuation of criminal proceedings in such circumstances would amount to abuse of the process of law.

18. This Court also finds that the essential ingredients of offences under Sections 420, 467, 468, 471, 384 and 120-B IPC are not made out against the appellant. There is no material indicating dishonest intention at inception or preparation or use of forged documents by the appellant.

19. As regards invocation of the SC/ST Act, the FIR and charge-sheet do not disclose that the alleged acts were committed on the ground that the victim belongs to a Scheduled Caste or Scheduled Tribe. In light of the ratio laid down in Hitesh Verma v. State of Uttarakhand, (2020) 10 SCC 710, mere reference to Scheduled Caste land or status of the informant is insufficient to attract the provisions of the Act.

20. The impugned cognizance order dated 20.03.2023 has been passed in a routine and mechanical manner, without recording satisfaction regarding existence of prima facie material against the appellant. Such an approach is impermissible in view of the law laid down in Pepsi Foods Ltd. v. Special Judicial Magistrate, (1998) 5 SCC 749.

21. Further, perusal of the statements of the informant, independent witnesses, inquiry officer and other witnesses recorded during investigation fortifies the case of the appellant. From the statements of various original pattadars and villagers, it emerges that the pattas were granted as early as 1997 by competent authorities; most of the witnesses have not attributed alleged coercion, threats or inducement to the present appellant; several witnesses have categorically stated that they do not know the appellant personally, nor have they stated that any document was executed, forged or registered at the instance of the present appellant; no witness has alleged that the appellant threatened, induced or deceived them, or received any money from them in connection with the land transactions. The statements of independent witnesses and the inquiry officer primarily narrate the history of revenue litigation, cancellation proceedings with regard to the lease and administrative inquiries, but do not disclose any active role or criminal intent attributable to the appellant. At best, the material reflects disputes of civil nature. Significantly, none of the witnesses have stated that any act was committed by the accused on the ground that the pattadar belonged to a Scheduled Caste, which is a sine qua non for invocation of the SC/ST Act. Thus, even the oral evidence collected during investigation does not disclose the basic ingredients of the offences alleged against the appellant and fails to establish any prima facie case.

22. The impugned cognizance order dated 20.03.2023 has been passed in a routine and mechanical manner, without recording satisfaction regarding existence of prima facie material against the appellant. Such an approach is impermissible in view of the law laid down in Pepsi Foods Ltd. (supra).

23. A further and significant aspect of the matter is that the appellant is not named in the First Information Report. Neither the FIR nor the charge-sheet explains as to how, when or on what basis the name of the appellant surfaced during investigation. There is no reference to any incriminating document, transaction, recovery or statement of any witness showing the role of the appellant in the alleged offences.

24. Even upon perusal of the statements recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C. of various witnesses, this Court does not find any material disclosing that the appellant was identified by any witness as a person who induced, coerced, threatened or participated in preparation or execution of any forged document. The prosecution has also failed to disclose the source of information or link evidence connecting the appellant with the alleged conspiracy. In absence of any material explaining the genesis of the appellant's implication, the mere inclusion of his name in the charge-sheet appears to be mechanical and unsupported by evidence, which cannot be sustained in law. Criminal prosecution cannot rest on assumptions or conjectures, particularly when the FIR itself is silent about the appellant. Record also discloses that investigation carried out in the present matter suffers from grave and fatal irregularities as the Charge sheet dated 06.02.2023 includes various witnesses out of which five witnesses had died years before the investigation commenced and this fact conclusively establishes that the investigation is faulty, unfair, and biased and continuing the case would amount to an abuse of the judicial process and result in a miscarriage of justice. The Investigating Officer could not have recorded statements of deceased persons, yet these persons are shown as prosecution witnesses, exposing the fabricated nature of the investigation. The inclusion of deceased persons as prosecution witnesses, without any explanation, goes to the root of the matter and reflects non-application of mind during investigation, thereby rendering the investigation unreliable and legally unsustainable.

25. Moreover, this Court further finds that several named and unnamed co-accused persons, arising out of the same FIR and charge-sheet, have already been granted relief by Coordinate Benches of this Court. From a perusal of the orders annexed with the record, it is evident that similarly situated co-accused have been granted interim protection after recording categorical findings that the dispute is predominantly civil and revenue in nature, that no specific role was assigned to the applicants therein, and that the provisions of the SC/ST Act were prima facie not attracted. The Coordinate Benches, while granting relief to the co-accused, have consistently observed that the allegations pertain to old land allotments and revenue entries, that the FIR contains general and omnibus allegations, and that continuation of criminal proceedings would amount to abuse of the process of law. It has also been noted in those orders that the essential ingredients of Sections 420, 467, 468, 471, 384 and 120-B IPC, as well as Section 3(1)(e) of the SC/ST Act, were not prima facie made out against the applicants therein. The role attributed to the appellant is neither distinguishable nor graver than the role assigned to those co-accused who have already been granted relief. No material has been pointed out by the learned A.G.A. to demonstrate any distinguishing feature or additional incriminating circumstance against the present appellant so as to deny him similar treatment.

26. Another important aspect which weighs with this Court is that the alleged irregularities pertain to allotment of pattas made as far back as the year 1997 and the FIR was registered only on 03.07.2022? a delay of approximately 24-25 years. Even considering the subsequent events, the prosecution case alleges irregularities came to light in 2016, yet the FIR was lodged after seven years without any plausible or convincing explanation. Further despite the passage of more than two decades, learned A.G.A. has not been able to point out any civil suit, revenue proceeding or statutory action initiated for cancellation of the sale deeds. If the pattas/sale deeds were illegal, fraudulent or obtained by misrepresentation, the natural and lawful course available to the State/aggrieved was to seek their cancellation before the competent revenue or civil forum. However, no material has been placed on record to show that any such proceedings were ever initiated or pursued to their logical conclusion. The absence of any action for cancellation of deeds for such a prolonged period clearly indicates that the dispute is essentially civil and revenue in nature, and that the criminal machinery has been set in motion afterthought and as a substitute for appropriate civil remedies, which is impermissible in law. Criminal prosecution cannot be used to circumvent or replace statutory remedies available under revenue law.

27. In Iqbal v. State of U.P., (2023) 8 SCC 734, the Hon'ble the Supreme Court held that delay with other attending circumstances emerging from the record rendering the entire case inherently improbable may become a good ground to quash the FIR and consequential proceedings.

28. This Court also finds support from the recent pronouncements of the Hon'ble Supreme Court. In Anukul Singh Vs. State of Uttar Pradesh and another (decided on 24.09.2025), the Apex Court reiterated that where criminal proceedings are initiated after an inordinate delay in matters arising out of land and revenue disputes, and where allegations are vague, omnibus and unsupported by specific material indicating mens rea, continuation of prosecution would amount to abuse of the process of law. The Court emphasized that criminal law cannot be used as a tool to settle civil or revenue disputes, particularly when statutory remedies remain unexhausted.

29. Similarly, in Konde Nageshwar Rao Vs. A. Srirama Chandra Murty and another (decided on 23.07.2025), the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that mere allegations of forgery or cheating, without specific attribution of acts, documents, or intent to the accused, do not justify criminal prosecution. The Court cautioned against mechanical cognizance orders passed solely on the basis of charge-sheets, observing that judicial application of mind at the stage of summoning is a constitutional safeguard against frivolous prosecutions.

30. Further, in Randheer Singh Vs. State of U.P. and others (decided on 02.09.2025), the Hon'ble Supreme Court once again clarified that invocation of the provisions of the SC/ST (Prevention of Atrocities) Act must strictly satisfy the statutory requirement that the offence was committed on the ground that the victim belongs to a Scheduled Caste or Scheduled Tribe. The Court held that disputes relating to property, land allotment, or revenue entries, even if involving members of the SC/ST community, do not ipso facto attract the provisions of the Act in absence of such foundational allegations. The Apex Court further held that mechanical addition of offences under the SC/ST Act, without specific material, vitiates the entire prosecution.

31. The ratio laid down in the aforesaid judgments squarely applies to the facts of the present case, where the appellant is not named in the FIR, no specific role or overt act is attributed to him, the dispute is predominantly civil and revenue in nature, the proceedings have been initiated after an unexplained and inordinate delay of more than two decades, and the provisions of the SC/ST Act have been invoked without satisfying the mandatory statutory ingredients.

32. This unexplained inaction on the part of the State further weakens the prosecution case and lends support to the contention that the present proceedings are an afterthought, initiated belatedly and without foundational civil adjudication.

33. In the considered opinion of this Court, continuation of the criminal proceedings would result in miscarriage of justice and would amount to abuse of the process of law.

34. In view of the above, the instant criminal appeal is allowed. The impugned cognizance/summoning order dated 20.03.2023 passed by the Special Judge (SC/ST Act), Gautam Budh Nagar in Sessions Trial No. 364 of 2023 (State vs. Maloo & others), the charge-sheet/Supplementary Charge sheet, and the entire criminal proceedings arising out of Case Crime No. 280 of 2022, under Sections 420, 467, 468, 471, 384, 120-B IPC and Section 3(1)(f) of the SC/ST Act, Police Station Dadri, District Gautam Budh Nagar stand quashed.

ISSUE FOR CONSIDERATION

Whether uploading Show Cause Notices and Adjudication Orders on the GSTN portal or sending intimation via email/SMS amounts to valid "communication" under Section 107 of the GST Acts, thereby triggering limitation for appeal.

Whether electronic service alone can be treated as deemed service under Section 169 of the GST Acts.

limitation for appeal - petitioners pleaded violation of natural justice - also contending that uploading alone does not impart knowledge of contents and hence cannot be treated as service - Court examined Section 169 of the GST Acts and the Information Technology Act, 2000, - held that, while electronic service is legally permissible, the deeming fiction of constructive service applies only to tendering, speed post with acknowledgment, publication, and affixation, not to email or portal uploading - since GSTN admitted it lacks mechanisms to verify when taxpayers actually view uploaded documents, mere uploading or intimation cannot amount to "communication," - limitation for appeal begins only upon effective communication, not technical receipt - accordingly, the Court set aside the impugned adjudication orders subject to deposit of 10% of disputed tax within four weeks - with direction to the adjudicating authorities to supply notices and relied-upon documents, allow replies, fix hearings with proper notice, and conclude proceedings within six months, - and further urged GSTN to improve its portal by introducing Hindi language support and user-friendly tabs so taxpayers can comply effectively - consequently, all the petitions are allowed, matters remitted, and taxpayer rights preserved. CASE ARISING FROM Writ petitions challenging validity of service of GST notices/orders exclusively through electronic mode by U.P. State revenue authorities.

APPEARANCE OF PARTIES

Counsel for Petitioners: - Shri Pranjali Shukla along with Sri Gauransh Mishra and Sri Parth Goswami, Ms. Pooja Talwar, Sri Vedant Agrawal and Sri Rishi Raj Kapoor, Sri Anup Shukla holding brief of Sri Devansh Mishra, Ms. Akashi Agarwal and Sri Vishwaraj Singh.

Counsel for Respondents: - Shri Anoop Trivedi learned Additional Advocate General assisted by Sri Arvind Kumar Mishra and Sri Ankur Agarwal learned Standing Counsel for the State of Uttar Pradesh, Sri S.P. Singh learned ASGI assisted by Sri Gopal Verma for the Union of India and Sri Gaurav Mahajan and Sri Amit Mahajan for the central revenue authorities and Sri Praveen Kumar, amicus curiae.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Saumitra Dayal Singh, J.)

1. Heard Sri Pranjali Shukla along with Sri Gauransh Mishra and Sri Parth Goswami, Ms. Pooja Talwar, Sri Vedant Agrawal and Sri Rishi Raj Kapoor, Sri Anup Shukla holding brief of Sri Devansh Mishra, Ms. Akashi Agarwal and Sri Vishwaraj Singh on behalf of petitioners; Sri Anoop Trivedi learned Additional Advocate General assisted by Sri Arvind Kumar Mishra and Sri Ankur Agarwal learned Standing Counsel for the State of Uttar Pradesh, Sri S.P. Singh learned ASGI assisted by Sri Gopal Verma for the Union of India and the GSTN, and Sri Gaurav Mahajan and Sri Amit Mahajan for the central revenue authorities. Also, we have taken assistance of Sri Praveen Kumar, as amicus curiae.

2. Present batch of petitions has been filed by different petitioners assailing individual Adjudication Orders passed against them, under the UPGST Act, 2017 (hereinafter referred to as the 'State Act') and the CGST Act, 2017 (hereinafter referred to as the 'Central Act'). At the outset, strong preliminary objection has been raised by the revenue as to maintainability of these petitions. It has been submitted that the Adjudication Orders are appealable. Therefore, the present petitions may not be entertained, and the individual petitioners be relegated to the forum of alternative remedy. Learned counsel for petitioners have met the preliminary objection on the strength of fact assertion that neither the Show Cause Notice nor the Order in Original/Adjudication Order was served on the petitioners, at the relevant time. Only on recoveries being initiated or other consequential steps being taken by the revenue authorities, they acquired knowledge about the Adjudication Orders passed and/or recoveries pressed thereunder. By that time, the hard period of limitation prescribed under Section 107 (1) read with (4) of the State/Central Act, namely, 120 days (including only 30 days for condonation of delay), expired. In face of the law as has been laid down by the Supreme Court in Commissioner of Customs & Central Excise vs Hongo India Pvt. Ltd.; (2009) 5 SCC 791 and Assistant Commissioner (CT) LTU, Kakinada vs Glaxo Smith Kline Consumer Health Care Limited; (2020) 19 SCC 681, the petitioners have been left remediless under the enacted law. Therefore, they have been constrained to approach this Court under its extraordinary writ jurisdiction.

3. In all cases, Adjudication Orders and the Show Cause Notices preceding those orders and the impugned orders are described to have been served on the individual petitioners by the revenue authorities - by uploading and thus making them available on the Common Portal, designed and managed by GSTN, a corporation of Union of India. Details of the Adjudication Orders involved in this batch, together with dates are tabulated below:

4. In such facts, a question has arisen- if the orders impugned in the individual writ petitions have been 'communicated' to the individual petitioners, within the meaning of that word used in Section 107 of the State/Central Act? Unless the orders to be appealed are effectively 'communicated' to the person aggrieved (by that order), who may then seek an appeal remedy thereagainst, the period of limitation of three months to file such appeal, may not start running.

5. The word 'communicated' is not defined under the State/Central Act. However, learned counsel appearing for either party have referred to Section 169 of those Acts as also Sections 4, 12 and 13 of the Information Technology Act 2000 (hereinafter referred to as the 'IT Act').

6. Seen in that light, a legal issue has arisen - if a Show Cause Notice or other notice or order passed either under the State Act or the Central Act may be found served or may be found 'deemed served' in terms of Section 169 of the State/Central Act, on such person, upon it being uploaded and thus made available on the Common Portal of the GSTN, or on dispatch of electronic mail at the email address provided by the affected person, at the time of obtaining registration? In that context, the effect of sending an SMS alert with respect to issuance of such notice or order, may also be examined.

7. In view of such purely legal issues involved, these writ petitions have been entertained in the following factual background and legal context.

8. The legislative context in which the issue has arisen needs closer scrutiny. Prior to the 101st Constitution Amendment (that enabled enactment of the Goods and Service Tax laws), there pre-existed in the State of Uttar Pradesh, other taxation enactments. Upon independence, the U.P. Sales Tax Act, 1948 was enacted by the State legislature and Rules were framed thereunder. Parallely, the Parliament enacted the Central Sales Tax Act, 1956 and framed Rules thereunder, for the purpose of taxation of inter-state sales of goods. After five decades, in 1994 U.P. Sales Tax Act, 1948, was rechristened as U.P. Trade Tax Act, 1948. However, no material change arose in the context of the issue raised before us. Later, the U.P. Value Added Tax Act, 2008 was enacted. It remained in force till 30th June 2017. Also, there existed laws relating to Income Tax, Central Excise and Service Tax, besides Customs duty and Service Tax. Under those laws, there existed procedures for issuance and service of notices and orders as also there existed provisions for limitation, to file appeals and seek condonation of delay thereunder. Further, there pre-existed (under the Sales Tax laws) another provision with respect to recall of ex parte orders passed by the Assessing Authorities.

9. Upon enactment of the State/Central Act, the above-mentioned provisions have undergone a transformative change, affecting the vital behavioral responses of the assesseees. Relevant to the State of Uttar Pradesh, we may extract and highlight, in tabular form, some of the changes that have been caused upon enforcement of GST regime, in supersession of the U.P. Trade Tax Act, 1948 and U.P. Value Added Tax Act, 2008. Those are as below:

Act	Service of Notices/Orders	Appeal	Remand/Recall

(b) Service on agent by whom dealer or person concerned carries on business- In a case relating to any business or work against a person who does not reside within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the authority from which the notice, summons or order is issued, service on any manager or agent, who, at the time of service, personally	dealer or other person aggrieved by an order made by the assessing authority, other than an order mentioned in sub-section (7) of section 48 may, within thirty days from the date of service of the copy of the order, after serving a copy of appeal memo on the assessing authority or the Commissioner, appeal to such authority (hereinafter referred to as appellate authority), as may be prescribed: Provided that where due to any reason, any appellant fails to serve a copy of appeal memo on the assessing authority before filing appeal, he may serve copy of such appeal memo within a time of one week from the date on which appeal has been filed or within such	exparte order of assessment or penalty (1) In any case in which an order of assessment or re-assessment or rejection of application for registration or order of penalty is passed exparte, the dealer may apply to the assessing authority within thirty days of the service of the order to set aside such order and re-open the case; and if such authority is satisfied that the applicant did not receive notice or was prevented by sufficient cause from appearing on the date fixed, it may set aside the order and reopen the case for hearing: Provided that no such application for setting aside an exparte assessment order shall be entertained unless it is		carries on such business or work for such person within such limits, shall be deemed good service. (c) Service on an adult member of dealer or concerned person's family- Where in any case the dealer or person concerned is absent from his residence at the time when the service of notice, summons or order is sought to be effected at his residence and there is no likelihood of his being found at the residence within a reasonable time and he has no agent empowered to accept service of the notice, summons or order on his behalf, service may be made on any adult member of the family, whether male or female, who is residing with him. Explanation: A servant is not a member of the family within the meaning of this rule. (d) Person served to sign acknowledgement-	further time as the appellate authority may permit. ((5) The appellate authority may, after calling for and examining the relevant records and after giving a reasonable opportunity of being heard to the appellant and the Commissioner- (a) in the case of an order of assessment and penalty.- (i) confirm or annul such order ; or (ii) vary such order by reducing or enhancing the amount of assessment or penalty, as the case may be, whether such reduction or enhancement arises from a point raised in the grounds of appeal or otherwise ; or (iii) set aside the order and direct the assessing authority to pass a fresh order after such inquiry as may be specified; or (iv) direct	accompanied by satisfactory proof of the payment of the amount of tax to be due under this Act on the turnover of sales or purchases, or both, as the case may be, admitted by the dealer in the returns filed by him or at any stage in any proceeding under this Act, whichever is greater. (2) Where an assessment order under sub-section (1) of section 25 is passed, exparte, the dealer may apply to the Assessing Authority within thirty days of the service of the order, to set aside such order and if such authority is satisfied that the dealer has filed the tax return and deposited the tax due according to the tax return within thirty days from the last day prescribed for filing such tax return, it

Where the process server delivers or tenders a copy of the notice, order or summons to the dealer or person concerned personally, or to an agent or other person on his behalf, he shall require the signature of the person to whom the copy is so delivered or tendered to an acknowledgment of service endorsed on the original notice, order or summons. (e) Procedure when dealer or person concerned refuses to accept or cannot be found Where dealer or concerned person or his agent or such other person as aforesaid refuses to sign the acknowledgment, or where the process server, after using all due and reasonable diligence, cannot find the dealer or person concerned who is absent from his place of business or residence at the time when service is sought to be	the assessing authority to make such inquiry and to submit its report within such time as may be specified in the direction or within such extended time as it may allow from time to time, and on the expiration of such time the appellate authority may, whether the report has been submitted or not decide the appeal in accordance with the provisions of the preceding sub-clauses; or (b) in the case of any other order- (i) confirm, cancel or vary such order; or (ii) set aside the order and direct the assessing authority to pass a fresh order after such inquiry as may be specified: Provided that nothing in this sub-section shall preclude the appellate authority from dismissing the appeal at	may modify or set aside such order and also the demand notice, if any, issued thereunder. (3) In any case in which any assessment or re-assessment has been made ex parte and (a) appeal under section 55 against such order has been dismissed as barred by time; (b) in appeal before the Tribunal under section 57, order, passed by the Appellate Authority under section 55, has been confirmed; and (c) Commissioner or Additional Commissioner designated by the Commissioner, after giving reasonable opportunity of being heard to the dealer, is satisfied that- (i) dealer, at any stage during the period of	effected on him and there is no likelihood of his being found within a reasonable time and there is no agent empowered to accept service of the notice or order or summons on his behalf, nor any other person on whom service can be made, the process server shall affix a copy of the notice, order or summons on the outer door or some other conspicuous place in the house in which the dealer or person concerned ordinarily resides or carries on business or personally works for gain, and shall then return the original to the authority from which it was issued, with a report endorsed thereon or annexed thereto stating that he has so affixed the copy, the circumstances under which he did so, and the name and address of the person (if any) by whom the house was identified and	any stage with such observations as it deems fit where the appellant applies for withdrawal of the same and no request for examination of legality or propriety of order under appeal has been made by the Commissioner (7) Section 5 of the Limitation Act, 1963, shall apply to appeals or other applications under this section.	assessment or reassessment proceedings, had no notice of initiation of such proceedings; (ii) as a result of ex parte assessment or reassessment, without proper basis amount of tax has been levied; (iii) undue hardship will be caused to the dealer if such assessed tax is realized from him; and (iv) if, after giving reasonable opportunity of being heard to the dealer, tax is reassessed, demand created by earlier order of assessment or reassessment may stand reduced to a large extent, he may direct the assessing authority to set aside such ex parte order of assessment or reassessment and to make assessment or reassessment after affording

	in whose presence the copy was affixed. (f) Endorsement of time and manner of service The process server shall, in all cases in which the notice, order or summons has been served under clause (d), endorse or annex, or cause to be endorsed or annexed, on or to the original notice, order or summons, a return stating the time when and the manner in which the notice, order or summons was served, and the name and address of the person (if any) identifying the person served and witnessing the delivery or tender of the notice, order or summons. (g) Examination of the process server Where a notice, order or summons is returned under clause(e), the authority shall, if the return under that rule has not been verified by the affidavit of the process server, and may, if it		reasonable opportunity to the dealer, if the dealer presents an application before the Commissioner within a period of sixty days from the date on which dealer receives the order passed by the Tribunal under section 57.		has been so verified, examine the process server on oath, or cause him to be so examined by another authority, touching his proceedings, and may make such further enquiry in the manner as it thinks fit: and shall either declare that the notice, order or summons has been duly served or order such service as it thinks fit. (h) Simultaneous issue of notice or order or summons for service by post in addition to personal service- (i) The authority shall, in addition to, and simultaneously with, the issue of notice, order or summons for service in the manner provided under this rule, also direct the notice, order or summons to be served by registered post, acknowledgment due, addressed to the dealer or person concerned, or his agent empowered to accept the service, at the place where the dealer or person concerned, or his agent, actually and voluntarily resided or carries on business or personally works for gain. Provided that nothing in this sub-clause shall require the authority to issue a notice, order or summons for service by registered post, where, in the circumstances of the case, the authority considers it unnecessary. (ii) when an acknowledgment purporting to be signed by the dealer or person concerned or his agent is received by the authority or the postal article containing the notice, order or summons is received back by the authority with an endorsement purporting to have been made by a postal employee to the effect that the dealer or person concerned or his agent had refused to take delivery of the postal article containing the				notice, order or summons, when tendered to him, the authority issuing the notice, order or summons shall declare that the notice, order or summons had been duly served on the dealer or person concerned. Provided that where the notice, order or summons was properly addressed, prepaid and duly sent by registered post, acknowledgment due, the declaration referred to this sub-rule shall be made notwithstanding the fact that the acknowledgment having lost or mislaid, or for other reasons, has not been received by the authority within thirty days from the date of issue of the notice, order or summons (i) Substituted service- (i) Where the authority is satisfied that there is reason to believe that the dealer or person concerned is keeping out of the way for the purpose of avoiding service, or that for any other reason the notice, order or summons cannot be served in the ordinary way, the authority shall order the notice, order or summons to be served by affixing a copy thereof in some conspicuous place in the office premises, and also upon some conspicuous part of the house (if any) in which the dealer or person concerned is known to have last resided or carried on business or personally worked for gain, or in such other manner as the authority thinks fit. (ii) Where the authority acting under sub clause(i) orders service by an advertisement in a newspaper, the newspaper shall be a daily newspaper circulating in the locality in which the dealer or person concerned is last known to have actually and voluntarily				resided, carried on business or personally worked for gain. (iii) Effect of substituted service;- Service substituted by the order of authority shall be as effectual as if it had been made on the dealer or concerned person. (iv) Time for appearance to be fixed;- Where service is substituted by the order of authority, the authority shall fix such time for the appearance of the dealer or the concerned person as the case may require. (j) Service of notice, order or summon where the dealer or person concerned resides within the jurisdiction of another authority A notice, order or summons may be sent by the authority by which it is issued, whether within or without the State, either by one of its process server or by post to any authority having jurisdiction in the place where the dealer or person concerned resides. (k) Duty of authority to which notice, order or summon is sent- The authority to which a notice, order or summons is sent under clause (j) shall, upon receipt thereof, proceed as if it has been issued by such authority and shall then return the notice, order or summons to the issuing authority, together with the record (if any) of its proceedings with regard thereto. (l) Service on dealer or person concerned in prison Where the dealer or person concerned is confined in a prison, the notice, order or summons shall be delivered or sent by post or otherwise to the officer in charge of the prison for service on the dealer or person concerned. (m) Service on civil public officer or on				servant of railway or local authority -Where person concerned is a public officer (not belonging to the Indian military, naval or air forces), or is a servant of a railway or local authority, the authority may, if it appears to it that the notice, order or summons may be most conveniently so served, send it for service on the person concerned to the head of the officer in which he is employed together with a copy to be retained by the person concerned. (n) Duty of a person to whom notice, order or summon is delivered or sent for service- (i) Where a notice, order or summons is delivered or sent to any person for service under clause (l) or (m) above, such person shall be bound to serve it if possible, and to return it under his signature, with the written acknowledgement of the dealer or person concerned, and such signature shall be deemed to be evidence of service. (ii) Where for any reason service is impossible, the notice, order or summons shall be returned to the authority with a full statement of such reason and of the steps taken to procure service, and such statement shall be deemed to be evidence of nonservice. (o) Substitution of letter for notice, order or summons- (i) The authority may, notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained, substitute for a notice, order or summons a letter signed by the authority where the dealer or person concerned is, in the opinion of the authority, of a rank entitling him to such mark of consideration. (ii) A letter substituted under sub clause (i) shall contain all the particulars required to be stated in a notice, order or summons, and, subject to the provisions of sub clause (iii), shall be treated in all respects as a notice, order or summons. (iii) A letter so substituted may be sent to the dealer or person concerned by post or by a special messenger selected by the authority, or in any other manner which the authority thinks fit; and, where the dealer or the concerned person has an agent empowered to accept service, the letter may be delivered or sent to such agent.

10. Thus, in short, it may be noted that the State/Central Acts seek to transform the pre-existing physical/offline mode of service of notices and orders as also filing of appeals, by enabling electronic modes, chiefly by employing the Common Portal of the GSTN. Thus, all communications between the authorities and the assessee are permitted through electronic mode, by way of a complete alternative to the offline/physical mode. At present, only hearings are permitted through offline mode. The faceless mechanism otherwise adopted under the Income Tax Act, 1961, does not find place under the GST regime, at present.

11. As noted above, by way of a direct consequence of the sudden transformative change introduced upon the enforcement of the GST laws, numerous challenges arose both to the assesseees and the authorities. During this hearing, we had raised a query to Sri Gopal Verma, learned counsel for GSTN if he could inform the number of complaints received by the GSTN (from inception) about the working of the Common Portal. Vide email communication dated 26.11.2025 received by Sri Gopal Verma, he has been apprised that 2,94,811 tickets evidencing that many complaints were received by GSTN, from both streams i.e. revenue authorities as also the assesseees. Of those, 2,94,442 have been resolved and the balance 369 are in the process of being resolved. The tabular chart appended to the written instructions as have been made available to us (marked as 'X' and retained on record), is extracted below:

12. The present bench constitution has been dealing with similar issues (as involved in these cases), since 07.10.2025. Faced with a regular, unending flood of similar litigation, wherein effectively similar pleadings have been made by different assesseees arising from 59 different districts of the State, we noticed that the common complaint/grievance of such assesseees/petitioners remains that they had not been served or communicated the Show Cause Notice and/or the Adjudication Order passed by the Adjudicating Authority, in their cases - almost all, issued by the State revenue authorities. Consistently, the State revenue authorities have maintained that they have disbanded the practice of service of physical notices (through Process Server and Post). As to the reason, only this much has been disclosed that Section 169(1) [chiefly sub-clause (c) and sub-clause (d)] permits the revenue authorities to serve notices and orders through electronic mode. Since the assesseees are registered on the Common Portal, service of all such notices and orders is being affected through electronic mode only, except where registration itself may have been cancelled.

13. Observing that deliberate structural change to the legislation and the consequent executive/administrative action under the GST regime, it is further observed - the grievances of the assesseees are three fold. First, the assesseees are claiming violation of principles of natural justice occasioned by non-service of Show Cause Notices and Adjudication Orders (through physical/offline mode). Second, they are aggrieved that the hard period of limitation prescribed under Section 107 is being lost for reason of non-communication of the Adjudication Orders (though physical/offline modes). Third, neither the appeal authority (under the GST regime) has the power to set aside the Adjudication

Order and remit the proceedings to the Adjudicating Authority to pass afresh order nor the Adjudicating Authority has the power (under the GST regime) to set aside an ex parte order, passed by it.

14. Cumulatively, the assessee is at loss of hearing at the first tier, which is the most crucial tier in tax litigation. Unless an assessee is given full opportunity to file objections/replies and unless he is heard by the Assessing/Adjudicating Authority, the relief in the appeal remedy may itself become more difficult to avail, especially since the appeal authority may only pass an order on the merit dispute but it may not pass any order based solely on violation of procedure or rules of natural justice.

15. Primarily, on those considerations as have been noted in M/s Riya Construction vs State of U.P. & 3 Ors; 2025:AHC:179271-DB, we passed the below quoted order, in that case:

“1. Ms. Farheen, learned Advocate holding brief of Shri Santosh Kumar Srivastava, learned counsel for the petitioner, Shri Ankur Agarwal, learned counsel for the Revenue and perused the record.

2. The present writ petition has been filed challenging the Adjudication Order dated 04.02.2025 passed under Section 73 of the UPGST Act passed by respondent no.3 creating a demand of tax of Rs.1,61,225.64/- for the FY 2020-21.

3. Submission is, no show cause notice was ever issued to the petitioner prior to the impugned order being passed and in any case, no date of filing of reply or personal hearing was communicated to the petitioner before the impugned order came to be passed. Also, the date of service of the adjudication order has been doubted. Pleadings to that effect exist.

4. In many similar matters arising from same/similar mistakes committed by the Adjudicating Authorities, we have been setting aside such orders, conditionally. Hundreds, if not thousands of petitions have arisen, on same or similar grounds, clearly indicating to the Court, widespread difficulties being faced by numerous registered persons.

5. Primarily, it is being noted, show cause notices and adjudication orders are being served only through online mode. In that, many times alerts are not being sent to the noticees and in any case the notices and orders are often not readily visible on the GSTN Portal. Further, it has been noted, besides rigid/fixed period of limitation with limited power to condone the delay, the Appeal Authorities do not have the power to set aside/remand the proceedings, to the Adjudicating Authority. Thus, many times the right of appeal is lost to the aggrieved assessee, for reason of late service of Adjudication Order. Even, if the Appeal Authorities were to pass an order on merits, it would still take away one opportunity of hearing that is otherwise available to the noticee, to represent its case, under the scheme of the Act.

6. While there may be some merit in the objection being raised by the petitioner, that facts are otherwise, in the first place a coordinate bench in Mahaveer Trading Company Vs. Deputy Commissioner State Tax And Another, Neutral Citation No.-2024:AHC:38820-DB, a coordinate bench took note of similar and other violations of rules of natural justice, by Adjudicating Authorities and thus set aside the Adjudication Order.

7. Again in another order passed by a coordinate bench in M/S Shubham

Steel Traders Vs. State of U.P. and Another, Neutral Citation No2024: AHC:31108-DB, it has been observed as below:

"10. Rules of natural justice ensure fairness in proceedings. Once the authority had fixed the matter for hearing on 06.11.2023 it was incumbent on that authority either to pass the order or to fix another date and communicate the same to the petitioner. Communication of the other date was necessary as according to the assessing authority the petitioner failed to appear before it on the date fixed on 06.11.2023.

11. By not passing the order on 06.11.2023 and not communicating the next date fixed in the proceedings, the assessing authority forced the ex-parte nature of the order on the petitioner, by its own conduct."

8. In view of our consistent view in similar matters, no useful purpose would be served in keeping this writ petition pending or calling for counter affidavit, at this stage.

9. Accordingly, the writ petition is allowed and the impugned order is set aside, subject to the petitioner depositing Rs.16,000/- within a period of one month from today. Present writ petition is disposed of with the following directions:

(i) Subject to the above deposit being made by the petitioner, the Adjudicating Authority shall make available to the petitioner copy of the show cause notice together with any additional/supplementary notice etc issued in these proceedings together with copies of Relied Upon Documents ('RUDs' in short) within a period of two weeks from the date of compliance shown by the petitioner.

(ii) Petitioner shall file reply, if any, within a further period of four weeks therefrom.

(iii) Thereupon the respondent No. 3 shall fix appropriate date for hearing and communicate the same to the petitioner in the manner prescribed by law with at least two weeks' advance notice.

(iv) Petitioner undertakes to cooperate and participate in the proceedings and not seek any undue or long adjournment.

10. It is expected that the proceedings thus remitted would be concluded within six months from the date the petitioner makes first compliance under this order and deposits the amount specified above."

16. We called for a report from the office as to the number of cases date-wise, in which M/s Riya Construction (supra) has been followed. The data (upto date) furnished by the office is as below:

17. Consequentially, more than 2300 cases have arisen and have been disposed of in the terms of M/s Riya Construction (supra), including earlier in the day, today. However, that may (in a self-critical way), only reflect the rough and ready or minimum justice delivered, owing to extreme circumstances; existence of widespread grievances, and need to serve the larger cause of justice. Citizens and other entities may be assessed to pay tax and demands made, only after being given a reasonable opportunity of being heard. Their right of appeal may not be curtailed, lightly. Also, precious revenue (to the State), may not stay locked in litigation, indefinitely. Thus, against payment of about 10% of the disputed demand of tax (which is the amount required to be deposited to file a statutory first appeal), such ex parte Adjudication Orders have been set aside and proceedings remitted to the Adjudicating Authorities, on the terms provided in individual orders. Barring cases where 10% amount is less than Rs. 5000/-, (there on the suggestion of the learned Standing Counsel, the condition of such deposit has been relaxed), and some cases involving penalty and interest demands only, all other proceedings have been remitted against deposit of 10% of the disputed demand of tax, sometimes, even in the absence of learned counsel for the individual petitioners - at the suggestion of the learned Standing Counsel. Largely, the quantum of disputed tax involved has been a few thousands or lakhs and only sometimes running into a crore or more. It indicates to us that the grievance has arisen to small and medium sized businesses.

18. However, we see no end to the litigation on this count. For reason of the considered stand taken by the State revenue authorities - that they propose to serve the Show Cause Notices and the Adjudication Orders through electronic mode only, and not through physical mode, the fact circumstance giving rise to such litigation may never end at least in the proceedings arising at the hands of the State revenue authorities.

19. As noted in earlier orders passed in these cases, we explored possibilities to encourage the executive - to find a solution to the problem. To the extent Section 169(1) admits of (amongst others), two other regular modes of service - through tender and dispatch by Speed Post, besides communication through electronic mode (either through Common Portal or through e-mail), we were of the opinion that the State Government may itself examine the issue first, and find an administrative solution to the problem. However, in face of the last written instructions dated 08.12.2025 issued by Dr. Nitin Bansal, Commissioner State Tax U.P., Lucknow, that possibility has ceased to exist. At the same time, it has been informed - where registration may have been cancelled, notices are being dispatched through physical mode. To the extent the learned Additional Advocate General made a further statement that the said written instruction is the last stand of the State in this matter, filing of affidavit has been dispensed. The said written instruction has been marked as 'Y' and retained on record. We consider it proper to extract the said instructions in entirety, as below:

"रिट टैक्स संख्या-2707/2025, M/s Bambino Agro Industries Ltd. Vs. State of Uttar Pradesh & Another एवं इससे सम्बद्ध अन्य वादों में मा० उच्च न्यायालय, इलाहाबाद के अंतरिम निर्णय दिनांक 26.11.2025 के संदर्भ में इंस्ट्रक्शन (Instruction)

1. यह कि रिट टैक्स संख्या-2707/2025, M/s Bambino Agro Industries Ltd. Vs. State of Uttar Pradesh & Another के वाद में मा० उच्च न्यायालय, इलाहाबाद के समक्ष दिनांक 11.11.2025 को सुनवाई के दौरान विभागीय पक्ष के रूप में इंस्ट्रक्शन प्रस्तुत किया गया था, जो निम्नवत है -

A. दिनांक 01.07.2017 से लागू किये गये उ०प्र० वस्तु एवं सेवा कर अधिनियम, 2017 के अन्तर्गत समस्त कार्य ऑनलाइन किये जाने की अवधारणा रखी गयी थी एवं इस अधिनियम की धारा 169 में नोटिस/आदेश की तामिली (Service of Notice/Order) के विस्तृत प्रावधान भी किये गये हैं। चूंकि विभाग द्वारा जी०एस०टी० के अन्तर्गत समस्त कार्य जी०एस०टी०एन० पोर्टल के माध्यम से

ऑनलाइन ही किये जाते हैं, ऐसी स्थिति में सामान्य कार्यप्रणाली में कोई भी नोटिस/आदेश अधिकारियों द्वारा जी०एस०टी०एन० पोर्टल के माध्यम से ऑनलाइन ही तामिल कराये जाते हैं जो कि अधिनियम की धारा-169 के अनुरूप ही है। जी०एस०टी०एन० पोर्टल पर नोटिस/आदेश जारी किए जाने का मुख्य उद्देश्य कर अधिकारियों एवं करदाताओं के मध्य एक digital, transparent, और प्रभावी communication स्थापित करना भी है। यह प्रणाली अनुपालन की प्रक्रिया को सुव्यवस्थित करते हुए यह सुनिश्चित करती है कि दोनों पक्ष एक ही पोर्टल पर एक ही स्थान से अभिलेखीय सूचनाएँ प्राप्त कर सकें।

B. इस संदर्भ में विनमतापूर्वक निवेदन है कि यद्यपि प्रत्येक नोटिस/आदेश को करदाता को भौतिक रूप से तामिल कराया जाना जी०एस०टी० व्यवस्था की मूल अवधारणा से सुसंगत नहीं है तथापि जहाँ करदाता का पंजीकरण (Registration) नोटिस/आदेश की तिथि से पूर्व निरस्त किया जा चुका हो, उन परिस्थितियों में नोटिस/आदेश की तामिली जी०एस०टी०एन० पोर्टल पर उपलब्ध कराने के साथ-साथ भौतिक रूप से भी करायी जा सकती है।

2. यह कि रिट टैक्स संख्या- 2707/2025, M/s Bambino Agro Industries Ltd. Vs. State of Uttar Pradesh & Another के वाद में मा० उच्च न्यायालय, इलाहाबाद के समक्ष दिनांक 25.11.2025 को सुनवाई के दौरान विभागीय पक्ष के रूप में इंस्ट्रक्शन प्रस्तुत किया गया था, जो निम्नवत है -

A. यह कि रिट टैक्स संख्या- 2707/2025, M/s Bambino Agro Industries Ltd. Vs. State of Uttar Pradesh & Another के वाद में जीएसटीएन द्वारा अनुपूरक प्रतिशपथ पत्र दाखिल किया गया, जिसके बिंदु संख्या 6 में यह उल्लेख किया गया है कि जीएसटी पोर्टल पर कर अधिकारियों द्वारा जारी किए गए नोटिस, आदेश आदि को करदाता ने कब खोला-इसका कोई रिकॉर्ड लॉग (LOG) सिस्टम में नहीं बनता। इसलिए करदाता द्वारा नोटिस/अतिरिक्त नोटिस/आदेश किस तिथि को खोला गया है, इसकी जाँच पोर्टल के माध्यम से नहीं की जा सकती है।

B. यह कि जीएसटीएन द्वारा दाखिल अनुपूरक प्रतिशपथ पत्र के बिंदु 7 में यह उल्लेख किया गया है कि माननीय उच्च न्यायालय के निर्णय दिनांक 08.10.2025 के क्रम में जीएसटीएन इस तथ्य का परीक्षण करेगा कि क्या पोर्टल पर ऐसा

विकल्प बनाया जाना संभव है जिससे यह पता लगाया जा सके कि करदाता द्वारा नोटिस/आदेश/अतिरिक्त नोटिस को कब देखा गया है।

C. यह कि जीएसटीएन द्वारा दाखिल अनुपूरक प्रतिशपथ पत्र बिंदु 8 में यह उल्लेख किया गया है कि धारा 169 में नोटिस/आदेश की सेवा के सभी तरीकों का विस्तृत प्रावधान है, और विभाग/जीएसटीएन द्वारा इन्हीं प्रावधानों (विशेषकर धारा 169 (1) (c) और (d)) का पालन किया जाता है। जीएसटी प्रणाली को पूरी तरह स्वचालित अप्रत्यक्ष कर व्यवस्था बनाने के उद्देश्य से कानूनी प्रावधानों के अनुसार तैयार किया गया है। किसी भी प्रकार के बदलाव या संशोधन का दूरगामी प्रभाव पूरे जीएसटी प्रणाली की संरचना और कार्य प्रणाली को प्रभावित करेगा।

D. उपरोक्त संदर्भ में माननीय उच्च न्यायालय, इलाहाबाद के निर्देशानुसार जीएसटीएन, नोटिस/अतिरिक्त नोटिस/आदेश हेतु पोर्टल पर "पॉप-अप/व्यू टैब" व्यवस्था विकसित करने पर विचार कर रहा है।

3. यह कि मा० उच्च न्यायालय में लम्बित उक्त वाद के सम्बन्ध में अपर महाधिवक्ता, श्री अनूप त्रिवेदी के साथ आयुक्त, राज्य कर, उ०प्र०, लखनऊ एवं

अन्य विभागीय अधिकारियों द्वारा निम्न तिथियों में Zoom Meeting के माध्यम से वीडियो कॉन्फ्रेंसिंग की गयी, जिसका विवरण निम्न है -

1. दिनांक 02.12.2025 समय 06:30 PM

2. दिनांक 03.12.2025 समय 06:30 PM

3. दिनांक 06.12.2025 समय 01:00 PM

वीडियो कॉन्फ्रेंसिंग में विचार-विमर्श के बाद राज्य कर विभाग, उ०प्र० के सभी 20 जोनों से प्राप्त सूचना के अनुसार GSTN के BO-WEB पोर्टल पर वित्तीय वर्ष 2024-25 में सभी प्रकार की कुल 02.82 लाख नोटिसें जारी की गयी हैं।

4. यह कि जीएसटी प्रणाली के अंतर्गत पंजीकृत प्रत्येक करदाता द्वारा GSTN के BO-WEB पोर्टल पर निर्धारित कर अवधि के अनुसार मासिक/त्रैमासिक रिटर्न अनिवार्यतः प्रस्तुत किए जाते हैं, जिनके आधार पर कर जमा (Tax Deposit), इनपुट टैक्स क्रेडिट (ITC) का Claim तथा रिफंड का दावा किया जाता है। न्याय-निर्णयन की कार्यवाही से असंतोष की स्थिति में करदाता विभागीय स्तर पर प्रथम अपील दाखिल कर राहत प्राप्त करते हैं। उपर्युक्त समस्त कार्यवाही करदाता द्वारा विभागीय BO-WEB पोर्टल के

माध्यम से ऑनलाइन की जाती है। ऐसी दशा में जब करदाता द्वारा पोर्टल पर उपलब्ध सभी ऑनलाइन साधनों एवं सुविधाओं का प्रयोग अनिवार्य रूप से किया जाता है, तब विभाग द्वारा नोटिसों/आदेशों की भौतिक तामीली करना न केवल अव्यावहारिक होगा, बल्कि विभागीय एवं विधायी मंशा के भी प्रतिकूल सिद्ध होगा; क्योंकि ऐसी तामीली से ऑनलाइन-आधारित जीएसटी तंत्र की मूल भावना प्रभावित होगी।

5. यह कि निकट भविष्य में जीएसटी ट्रिब्यूनल के पूर्ण रूप से कार्यशील हो जाने पर करदाता को द्वितीय अपील के स्तर पर एक अतिरिक्त विधिक मंच उपलब्ध हो जाएगा।

अतः मा० उच्च न्यायालय से विनम्रतापूर्वक प्रार्थना है कि नोटिसों व आदेशों की तामीली के सम्बन्ध में किसी भी प्रकार के बदलाव या संशोधन का दूरगामी प्रभाव पूरे जीएसटी प्रणाली की संरचना और कार्य प्रणाली को प्रभावित करेगा। अतः मा० उच्च न्यायालय से निवेदन है कि प्रकरण में कोई प्रतिकूल दृष्टिकोण न अपनाये जाने की कृपा करें।

20. It is relevant - though the State Government of Uttar Pradesh has chosen to adopt that course, a slightly nuanced and more pragmatic approach has been adopted by the central revenue authorities inasmuch as in more than 2000 cases dealt with by us - following M/s Riya Construction (supra), barely a handful would be cases involving central revenue authorities. They may be one in a hundred, or less. On a query put to the learned ASGI (also appearing for the Union of India), as to the possible reason for the same, it has been candidly informed that the central revenue authorities have chosen to serve physical notices of proceedings and copies of orders, in addition to the service through electronic mode. Clearly, the Central Government has realised the difficulties arising from service effected through electronic mode, through the same Common Portal of the GSTN. Therefore, it may have taken a more pragmatic decision to service notices and orders through physical mode, as well.

21. Earlier, pursuant to order dated 08.10.2025, GSTN has filed Supplementary Counter Affidavit wherein it has been stated as below:

"4. That the Hon'ble High Court, vide its order dated 08.10.2025, directed the GSTN to file supplementary affidavits in all cases in that batch to make necessary disclosures with respect to point nos. (i), (ii) and (iii) of paragraph no. 7 and 11 of the said order. The relevant paragraph is reproduced below for ready reference:

7. The GSTN may file a short affidavit disclosing:

(i) the dates on which show-cause notice dated 14.05.2024 and the impugned order dated 22.08.2024 were put up on the Common Portal;

(ii) if the date on which such notice/order/additional notice may have been opened by the petitioner can be traced out through electronic trail;

(iii) if any alert was sent to the petitioner that the show-cause notice dated 14.05.2024 and the order dated 22.08.2024 had been put up on the Common Portal.

8. The affidavit would also disclose if any mechanism can be devised where once an alert is sent either through e-mail or SMS, another column may be added under the notice/order/additional notice column as may confirm that fact and also if another feature may be added whereby once the notice/order/additional notice put up on the Common Portal has been viewed by the assessee, the portal may thereafter reflect such event i.e. that the document has been "viewed".

9. Let such affidavit be filed within a period of two weeks.

10. Connect and list with Writ Tax No. 2707 of 2025 on 11.11.2025.

11. In view of the order passed today, GSTN may also file supplementary affidavits in all cases in that batch to make necessary disclosure with respect to point nos. (i), (ii) and (iii) of paragraph no. 7 of this order.

5. That with regard to directions issued by the Hon'ble Court so far as the direction contained in para No.7 (i) and 7 (iii) in order dated 08.10.2025, it is stated that any alerts (e-mail/SMS) is triggered in real time/near real time basis to the Primary Authorized Signatory's registered mobile number/e-mail ID upon the same being uploaded on the portal. The details of such alerts have already been provided by GSTN in the counter affidavit submitted by GSTN on 23.09.2025 in the matters which have been tagged along with lead matter (Writ Tax No. 2707 of 2025) and brought to the notice of GSTN.

6. That with regard to the directions contained in para-No.7(ii) above, it is stated that the GST portal does not create a log in respect of the accessing of any communication issued by the Tax Officers, such as a Show Cause Notice, Order etc., by a taxpayer. Hence, electronic trail of the date on which such notice/order/additional notice may have been opened by the petitioner can't be traced.

7. That with respect to the direction contained in para-No.8 of the Hon'ble High Court's order dated 08.10.2025, it is most respectfully submitted that GSTN shall examine the feasibility of introducing such features/mechanism on GST portal. However, it is respectfully submitted that the Section 169 of the GST Act provides for various modes of Service of Notices/Orders etc.

8. That it is most respectfully submitted that the aforesaid provision contained under Section 169 of CGST Act 2017 exhaustively prescribed inter-alia the method of service of notice/order which has been complied (more specifically sub-clause (c) and (d) under subsection 1 of Section 169 of the Act) with by the Deptt./GSTN.

9. That it is most respectfully submitted that GST system has been designed as per the provision stipulated under the CGST Act and Rules thereunder with the objective of establishing a fully automated indirect tax regime in the country. Any deviation or modification thereto may have a cascading impact, potentially destabilizing the structural and functional integrity of the GST system.

22. Another circumstance that we may notice before we proceed further is - the State of Uttar Pradesh remains the most populous

State of the country and at present one that may not be at the forefront of use of internet and digital technology, experienced in certain other parts of the country. Traders big or small, live in this diversely large State, not in homogeneous circumstances but in circumstances that vary practically every 100 kms. Besides a huge divide that otherwise exists between city dwellers and villagers, we are also mindful, though electricity may have become commonly available at the same time easy availability of internet services and use of digital technologies in day to day communications in business activities (besides online payments enabled through QR coding), ease use of electronic devices, may not be prevalent among all. Contextually, such people and the broader class to which they may be traced, have existed from before the introduction of the GST regime. The legislative background noted above, led to formation of behavioral patterns, habits formed and practices developed - enabling ease of communication with the revenue authorities, through physical mode, in absence of electronic mode.

23. Though it cannot be denied that in future, the mode of communication may move to and be more convenient to all users, through electronic platforms only, at the same time that fast sharp (reformative) turn made by the State revenue authorities occasioned solely upon enforcement of the GST regime, may have left a large section of the assesseees bemused and disbalanced, quite like a carriage being pulled by a galloping horse, over a sharp bend. They may have been caught off guard/ill-prepared and thus forced to falter, for that reason as well.

24. Also, it is integral to any tax administration that all compliances required by the law may not be made directly by the tax payer or the assessee but through an intermediary i.e. a tax professional engaged for the purpose of filing his monthly or annual return or to reply to notices or for any other communication with the revenue authorities that may become necessary or be required. It is common for an assessee to change such consultants/professionals and employees, requiring further changes to be made to the details furnished to the revenue authorities, for making electronic communications.

25. Further, it is also an admitted position of fact, currently the Common Portal run by the GSTN knows only the foreign language i.e. English. It does not interact with the taxpayer who it seeks to serve, in his native language-Hindi. Again, we may take note - Hindi remains the language of the people of the State, besides being its official language. All communications issued by the State Government are in Hindi, including the Show Cause Notices and Adjudication Orders, in issue here. It is not only the official status of the language Hindi, but it is the underlying logic/rationale behind that status, that is relevant. Hindi is the language of the masses including the literate and the illiterate, in the State. However, apparently for technical reasons and not by way of design, the GSTN has only been able to work its Common Portal, in English, a language with which 10-15% of the population may be conversant, by some estimates. Clearly, it is a language known to tax professionals but the same is not true of all trade and business people, who the GSTN seeks to serve.

26. Therefore, there exists an underlying assumption on part of the GSTN and the revenue authorities that the large body of taxpayers may be able to work the Common Portal, if not by self, then through the professionals they may hire. If they were to work it themselves, they will first have to navigate through various tabs and options provided only in English and then be able to reach the notice or order written in Hindi. Perhaps for that reason as well, the Central revenue authorities have adopted the mechanism to serve notices and orders, through physical/offline mode, as well.

27. Yet, the Court has been informed by the GSTN- neither it has any electronic trail nor mechanism to generate report of the date and time when any order made available on the Common Portal may have been retrieved or opened or downloaded or viewed by the addressee/taxpayer/registered person, nor there exists any mechanism to ascertain the date and time when any email communication or SMS alert may have been seen by the recipient. Also, there is no statutory obligation on the registered person/taxpayer to either open and work on the portal, every day.

28. Next, we may note the provisions. Section 107 (1), (4) and (11) of the State/Central Act read as below:

“107. Appeals to Appellate Authority.- (1) Any person aggrieved by any decision or order passed under this Act or the State Goods and Services Tax Act or the Union Territory Goods and Services Tax Act, 2017 (12 of 2017) by an adjudicating authority may appeal to such Appellate Authority as may be prescribed within three months from the date on which the said decision or order is communicated to such person.

(4) The Appellate Authority may, if he is satisfied that the appellant was prevented by sufficient cause from presenting the appeal within the aforesaid period of three months or six months, as the case may be, allow it to be presented within a further period of one month.

(5)

(7)

(8)

(9)

(10)

(11) The Appellate Authority shall, after making such further inquiry as may be necessary, pass such order, as it thinks just and proper, confirming, modifying or annulling the decision or order appealed against but shall not refer the case back to the adjudicating authority that passed the said decision or order :

Provided that an order enhancing any fee or penalty or fine in lieu of confiscation or confiscating goods of greater value or reducing the amount of refund or input tax credit shall not be passed unless the appellant has been given a reasonable opportunity of showing cause against the proposed order :

Provided further that where the Appellate Authority is of the opinion that any tax has not been paid or short-paid or erroneously refunded, or where input tax credit has been wrongly availed or utilised, no order requiring the appellant to pay such tax or input tax credit shall be passed unless the appellant is given notice to show cause against the proposed order and the order is passed within the time limit specified under section 73 or section 74. "

29. Then, Section 161 of the State/Central Act reads as below:

Section 161. Rectification of errors apparent on the face of record.- Without prejudice to the provisions of section 160, and notwithstanding anything contained in any other provisions of this Act, any authority, who has passed or issued any decision or order or notice or certificate or any other document, may rectify any error which is apparent on the face of record in such decision or order or notice or certificate or any other document, either on its own motion or where such error is brought to its notice by any officer appointed under this Act or an officer appointed under the Central Goods and Services Tax Act, 2017 (12 of 2017) or by the affected person within a period of three months from the date of issue of such decision or order or notice or certificate or any other document, as the case may be :

Provided that no such rectification shall be done after a period of six months from the date of issue of such decision or order or notice or certificate or any other document :

Provided further that the said period of six months shall not apply in such cases where the rectification is purely in the nature of correction of a clerical or arithmetical error, arising from any accidental slip or omission :

Provided also that where such rectification adversely affects any person, the principles of natural justice shall be followed by the authority carrying out such rectification."

(emphasis supplied)

30. Also, Section 169 of the State/Central Act reads as below:

"Section 169. Service of notice in certain circumstances.- (1) Any decision, order, summons, notice or other communication under this Act or the rules made thereunder shall be served by any one of the following methods, namely :

(a) by giving or tendering it directly or by a messenger including a courier to the addressee or the taxable person or to his manager or authorised representative or an advocate or a tax practitioner holding authority to appear in the proceedings on behalf of the taxable person or to a person regularly employed by him in connection with the business, or to any adult member of family residing with the taxable person ; or

(b) by registered post or speed post or courier with acknowledgement due, to the person for whom it is intended or his authorised representative, if any, at his last known place of business or residence ; or

(c) by sending a communication to his e-mail address provided at the time of registration or as amended from time to time ; or

(d) by making it available on the Common Portal ; or

(e) by publication in a newspaper circulating in the locality in which the taxable person or the person to whom it is issued is last known to have resided, carried on business or personally worked for gain ; or

(f) if none of the modes aforesaid is practicable, by affixing it in some conspicuous place at his last known place of business or residence and if such mode is not practicable for any reason, then by affixing a copy thereof on the notice board of the office of the concerned officer or authority who or which passed such decision or order or issued such summons or notice.

(2) Every decision, order, summons, notice or any communication shall be deemed to have been served on the date on which it is tendered or published or a copy thereof is affixed in the manner provided in sub-section (1).

(3) When such decision, order, summons, notice or any communication is sent by registered post or speed post, it shall be deemed to have been received by the addressee at the expiry of the period normally taken by such post in transit unless the contrary is proved. "

(emphasis supplied)

31. Then, Rule 142 (1), (1A) and (2) of the Rules framed in the State/Central Act reads as below:

"142. Notice and order for demand of amounts payable under the Act. - (1) The proper officer shall serve, alongwith the—

(a) Notice issued under Section 52 or Section 73 or Section 74 or Section 76 or Section 122 or Section 123 or Section 124 or Section 125 or Section 127 or Section 129 or Section 130, a summary thereof electronically in FORM G.S.T. D.R.C.-01.

(b) statement under sub-section (3) of section 73 or sub-section (3) of section 74, a summary thereof electronically in FORM G.S.T. D.R.C.-02, specifying therein the details of the amount payable.

(1A) The proper officer may, before service of notice to the person chargeable with tax, interest and penalty, under sub-section (1) of Section 73 or sub-section (1) of Section 74, as the case may be, communicate the details of any tax, interest and penalty as ascertained by the said officer, in Part A of FORM G.S.T. D.R.C.-01A.

(2) Where, before the service of notice or statement, the person chargeable with tax makes payment of the tax and interest in accordance with the provisions of sub-section (5) of Section 73 or, as the case may be, tax, interest and penalty in accordance with the provisions of sub-section (5) of Section 74, or where any person makes payment of tax, interest, penalty or any other amount due in accordance with the provisions of the act [whether on his own ascertainment or, as communicated by the proper officer under sub-rule (1A)] he shall inform the proper officer of such payment in FORM G.S.T. D.R.C.-03 and an acknowledgement, accepting the payment made by the said person in FORM G.S.T. D.R.C.-04.”

32. Further, Section 4, 12 and 13 of the Information Technology Act, 2000, reads as below:

“4. Legal recognition of electronic records.-Where any law provides that information or any other matter shall be in writing or in the typewritten or printed form, then, notwithstanding anything contained in such law, such requirement shall be deemed to have been satisfied if such information or matter is-

(a) rendered or made available in an electronic form; and

(b) accessible so as to be usable for a subsequent reference.

12. Acknowledgment of receipt.-

(1) Where the originator has not 3[stipulated] that the acknowledgment of receipt of electronic record be given in a particular form or by a particular method, an acknowledgment may be given by-

(a) any communication by the addressee, automated or otherwise; or

(b) any conduct of the addressee, sufficient to indicate to the originator that the electronic record has been received.

(2) Where the originator has stipulated that the electronic record shall be binding only on receipt of an acknowledgment of such electronic record by him, then unless acknowledgment has been so received, the electronic record shall be deemed to have been never sent by the originator.

(3) Where the originator has not stipulated that the electronic record shall be binding only on receipt of such acknowledgment, and the acknowledgment has not been received by the originator within the time specified or agreed or, if no time has been specified or agreed to within a reasonable time, then the originator may give notice to the addressee stating that no acknowledgment has been received by him and specifying a reasonable time by which the acknowledgment must be received by him and if no acknowledgment is received within the aforesaid time limit he may after giving notice to the addressee, treat the electronic record as though it has never been sent.

13. Time and place of dispatch and receipt of electronic record.-(1) Save as otherwise agreed to between the originator and the addressee, the dispatch of an electronic record occurs when it enters a computer resource outside the control of the originator.

(2) Save as otherwise agreed between the originator and the addressee, the time of receipt of an electronic record shall be determined as follows, namely:-

(a) if the addressee has designated a computer resource for the purpose of receiving electronic records,-

(i) receipt occurs at the time when the electronic record enters the designated computer resource; or

(ii) if the electronic record is sent to a computer resource of the addressee that is not the designated computer resource, receipt occurs at the time when the electronic record is retrieved by the addressee;

(b) if the addressee has not designated a computer resource along with specified timings, if any, receipt occurs when the electronic record enters the computer resource of the addressee.

(3) Save as otherwise agreed to between the originator and the addressee, an electronic record is deemed to be dispatched at the place where the originator has his place of business, and is deemed to be received at the place where the addressee has his place of business.

(4) The provisions of sub-section (2) shall apply notwithstanding that the place where the computer resource is located may be different from the place where the electronic record is deemed to have been received under sub-section (3).

(5) For the purposes of this section,-

(a) if the originator or the addressee has more than one place of business, the principal place of business, shall be the place of business;

(b) if the originator or the addressee does not have a place of business, his usual place of residence shall be deemed to be the place of business;

(c) "usual place of residence", in relation to a body corporate, means the place where it is registered."

(emphasis supplied)

33. Also, in that context, the words – 'computer', 'computer network', 'computer resource', 'computer system', 'electronic form', 'electronic record', 'originator' as defined under IT Act read as below:

"(i) "computer" means any electronic, magnetic, optical or other high-speed data processing device or system which performs logical, arithmetic, and memory functions by manipulations of electronic, magnetic or optical impulses, and includes all input, output, processing, storage, computer software or communication facilities which are connected or related to the computer in a computer system or computer network;

(j) "computer network" means the inter-connection of one or more computers or computer systems or communication device through-

(i) the use of satellite, microwave, terrestrial line, wire, wireless or other communication media; and

(ii) terminals or a complex consisting of two or more interconnected computers or communication device whether or not the inter-connection is continuously maintained;

(k) "computer resource" means computer, computer system, computer network, data, computer data base or software;

(l) "computer system" means a device or collection of devices, including input and output support devices and excluding calculators which are not programmable and capable of being used in conjunction with external files, which contain computer programmes, electronic instructions, input data and output data, that performs logic, arithmetic, data storage and retrieval, communication control and other functions;

(r) "electronic form" with reference to information, means any information generated, sent, received or stored in media, magnetic, optical, computer memory, micro film, computer generated micro fiche or similar device;

(t) "electronic record" means data, record or data generated, image or sound stored, received or sent in an electronic form or micro film or computer generated micro fiche;

(za) "originator" means a person who sends, generates, stores or transmits any electronic message or causes any electronic message to be sent, generated, stored or transmitted to any other person but does not include an intermediary."

34. In this background, learned counsel for the respective parties have advanced submissions. First, Shri Pranjali Shukla, learned counsel for some of the petitioners submitted, upon reading Section 169 of the State/Central Act in entirety, 'deemed service' may arise or be construed only with reference to service effected through 'tendering' or 'publication' or 'affixation' (under sub-section 2), or upon dispatch of registered post or speed post (under sub-section 3), of Section 169 of the State/Central Act. Service through 'tender' and 'registered post' or 'speed post' are contemplated under Section 169(1)(a) and (b) of the State/Central Act, while service through 'publication' is contemplated under Section 169(1)(e) of the State/Central Act and service through 'affixation' is contemplated under Section 169(1)(f) of the State/Central Act. Constructive service may arise only with reference to Clauses (a), (b), (e) and (f) of Section 169(1) of the State/Central Act. Further, to the extent no deeming fiction of law has been created to Clauses (c) and (d) of Section 169(1) of the State/Central Act, no conclusion of constructive service may ever arise, by uploading the show cause notice or the order on the Common Portal of the GSTN, or by sending the communication (about such notice or order), through email. He has relied on the decision the Supreme Court in Satendra Kumar Antil vs Central Bureau of Investigation & Anr.; 2025 SCC OnLine SC 1578.

35. Second, it has been submitted, for an appeal to be preferred by a person against the adjudication order, such order must be effectively 'communicated' to the affected person, before limitation may start running, under Section 107 of the State/Central Act. For 'communication' of any order that may be appealed against, it's 'service' on the affected person is a sine qua non. To the extent the word 'communicated' has not been defined under the State/Central Act and to the extent only modes of service have been provided under Section 169 of the State/Central Act, unless actual or deemed/constructive service of the show cause notice and/or order exists, neither the noticee may comply with such a notice nor the aggrieved person may comply with or file appeal against the adjudication order.

36. Learned counsel for the petitioner would further submit, uploading an order or notice on the Common Portal, is not the same as 'service' contemplated under Section 169 of the State/Central Act. Read in conjunction with Section 13(1) and (2) of the Information Technology Act, 2000, the Common Portal remains a 'computer resource' of the GSTN, but not the petitioners. He further denies existence of any contract between the GSTN, and the petitioners as may allow for an interpretation to arise, that uploading of a notice and order on the Common Portal amounts to 'deemed service' of the notice or order, on the petitioner.

37. Ms. Pooja Talwar, learned counsel, has largely adopted the submissions advanced by Mr. Pranjali Shukla. Further, it is her submission, no satisfaction has been recorded in the adjudication order as to the mode of service of the Show Cause Notice. Neither such mode has been specified nor disclosed in order.

38. Next, she would submit Clauses (a), (b), (c), (d), (e) and (f) of the sub-section (1) of Section 169 of the State/Central Act are alternative modes of service. The mode later specified may be adopted only if the mode earlier provided, is not 'practicable'. Therefore, it never became open to the revenue authorities to adopt the modes of service prescribed under Clauses (c) and (d) of Section 169(1) of the Act, without making any effort to serve the Show Cause Notices and the orders on the noticee/assessee, through the modes prescribed under Clauses (a) and (b) of the sub-section (1) of Section 169 of the State/Central Act.

39. Relying on TVL Sri Mathuru Eswarar Traders vs The Deputy State Tax Officer-I, Poolankinar Thiruppur passed in W.P. No. 16787 of 2025 and Mr. Sahulhameed vs The Commercial Tax Officer passed in W.P. (MD) No. 26481 of 2024, both decisions of the Madras High Court, it has been submitted - in similar circumstances physical mode of service should have been adopted first. Only if the same was not available or possible, the alternative mode (placed lower in hierarchy of choices created under Section 169(1) of State/Central Act), may have been adopted. Referring to M/s Kashi Bartan Bhandar vs State of U.P. & 2 Ors.; 2019 NTN (69) 111, it has been further submitted that a co-ordinate bench has already recognized service through a lower placed mode may be adopted, only if none of the higher placed modes are 'practicable'.

40. With respect to applicability of the Information Technology Act, her submissions are at variance to the submissions advanced by Sri Pranjal Shukla. She would submit, the State/Central Acts being special laws and complete Code in themselves, there is no room to apply the general principles of the Information Technology Act.

41. The other counsel appearing for individual petitioners have adopted the submissions advanced by Sri Pranjal Shukla and Ms. Pooja Talwar. Thereafter, Sri Vishwaraj Singh, another learned counsel, besides adopting submissions noted above, has stressed that the words 'making it available' on the Common Portal used in sub-Clause (d) of sub-Section 1 of Section 169 of the State/Central Act are wider and contemplate more than uploading on the Common Portal. The legislature has deliberately not used the word 'upload' and its derivatives but the phrase 'making it available'. Thereby the legislative intent has been clearly expressed - that the document or communication should be readily/easily/conveniently available to the noticee/assessee/addressee. If the document sought to be served is hidden on the portal as may require expert knowledge or skillful handling of the Common Portal, necessarily involving more than elementary knowledge of the working of computers and websites, it may not be readily inferred that by merely uploading the document on the Common Portal, the same had been made available to the addressee/noticee/assessee.

42. Further, the memorandum of issue of GSTN enlists its main objective as:

"1. To promote trade and commerce by providing easily accessible, quick and efficient information technology and communications related services to the public and Government.

2. To assist and engage with various stakeholders in preparing information technology and communications related infrastructure for smooth roll out of any information technology driven initiatives and other e-governance initiatives of the Government or any department or agency of the Government, specifically for the roll out of the GST."

43. GSTN has not yet fulfilled that objective of its incorporation. It only seeks to serve the revenue's interest, by displaying such tabs and notices as are dictated to it for revenue considerations. By way of example, he has relied on screenshots of the dashboard of an assessee. Clearly on the first screen itself a tab appears, containing additional/immediate notification regarding authentication of Aadhar. He has relied on other pages of the dashboard to disclose that the revenue has prioritized entries of the Electronic Credit Ledger as also status of the returns filed for the last five return period, depicted in different colors indicating whether such return has been filed, or is overdue, or has not been filed. Therefore, it is not difficult for GSTN to provide for similar easy access to all notices/orders etc. uploaded, for the purpose of service on an assessee - to make compliance, by making similar tabs/options. Unless similar measures are devised and adopted, not only the object of the GSTN may remain unfulfilled, but service of notices and/or orders may not be found complete, on mere uploading of such documents.

44. We have also heard Sri Praveen Kumar as Amicus Curiae, on the issue. He would submit, no doubt, concept of deemed service exists in tax laws (State/Central). However, a question arises - to the interpretation to be given to the law and the circumstance when such deemed service may be permitted as a fact and the consequence that may arise, therefrom. First, a deeming fiction in law is created by the legislature for a specific purpose. The Court may give full effect to it after ascertaining existence of circumstances wherein such deeming fiction may arise. By way of necessary corollary - the applicability of the deeming fiction and that effect caused in law may not arise in circumstances beyond those contemplated by the legislature, itself.

45. Plainly, the legislature contemplated a deeming fiction of law providing deemed service/constructive service, in circumstances covered under Clauses (a), (b), (e) and (f) of Section 169 (1) of the State/Central Act only, through sub-Section 2 and 3 of Section 169. That effect in law may not be avoided. At the same time, that effect may never arise with respect to the other modes of service described under Section 169(1)(c) and (d). There is no provision of law to allow for such a consequence or interpretation of the law. Reliance has been placed on the decision of the Supreme Court in State of West Bengal vs Sadan K. Bormal & Anr.; (2004) 6 SCC 59.

46. Second, he has stressed the meaning to be given to the word 'communicate' used in Section 107 of the State/Central Act. According to him both for the purposes of compliance of an adjudication notice or order and for the purpose of challenge thereto, the notice/order must be 'communicated' (as a fact) to the noticee/assessee. Though for the purpose of effective communication channels/modes of service have been created by the legislature under Section 169 of the State/Central Act allowing for electronic mode, unless service of notice or order is made with the object and purpose of adequate communication to the noticee/assessee, service would remain incomplete and purposeless. Unless the vital stake holder in the tax regime, that the noticee/assessee is, is served such notice and order - effectively communicating the same to him, the intent/purpose of that service of notice or decision of the adjudicating authority or statutory authority under the State/Central Act, may remain unfulfilled and any service that may be claimed by the revenue authorities, would remain an empty/idle formality.

47. Therefore, the word 'communicated' used in Section 107 of the State/Central Act, refers to knowledge of the contents of the dispatch made, while deemed service leads to presumption of receipt of a dispatch made, only. Examined in that light, if by any stretch of imagination, uploading of notice/order on the Common Portal is 'receipt', it would fall short of actual/constructive 'communication' of the contents of such notice or order, as may impart knowledge to the noticee/assessee of its purpose.

48. In absence of any verifiable measures provided by the GSTN to ascertain if such notice/order (as may have been sent through electronic mail or uploaded on the Common Portal) had been viewed or retrieved and thus seen by the noticee/assessee, the exercise of service through electronic modes may therefore remain incomplete.

49. Relying on Harikisan vs State of Maharashtra & Ors.; AIR 1962 SC 911, he would submit, though the ratio of that decision of the Supreme Court arose in the context of liberty jurisdiction, at the same time, it is relevant to note that the Supreme Court has reasoned - for the detinue to have opportunity to represent, physical delivery is necessary. Communication in that context was interpreted to mean imparting sufficient knowledge of all the grounds on which the order of detention may be based. Applying that principle, he would contend, unless the contents of the notice/order are delivered or disclosed to the noticee/assessee, any receipt or service claimed may never satisfy the test of the document being 'communicated'. To summarise, he would submit, all communications made may include service but all service may not amount to communication.

50. Further, it has been submitted that the Common Portal was contemplated by legislature and is governed by the provision of Section 146 of the State/Central Act. Primarily, it is for the purpose of providing registration, payment of tax, filing of returns, computation and settlement of tax, issuance of e-way bills but not for issuance of show-cause notice and service or orders. To that extent, in his submission no notification has been issued by the State Government.

51. Responding to the above submissions, Sri Anoop Trivedi, learned Additional Advocate General, has relied on the provisions of the Information Technology Act, besides referring to Section 169 of the State/Central Act. He has heavily relied on the provisions of Section 2(r)(d) and Section 13 and 14 of the Information Technology Act. According to him, any information generated/sent/received or stored in any electronic record would lead to a dispatch of and its receipt in accordance with Section 13 of the State/Central Act, the moment such electronic record enters the computer resource outside the control of the originator, here, the adjudicating authority. To the extent, the show-cause notice and/or orders were uploaded by the Adjudicating authority on the Common Portal which is a computer resource outside the control of the State/revenue authorities, due dispatch is established.

52. Second, referring to the forms filled up by the assessee while seeking registration under the State/Central Act, it has been stated that an agreement exists between the revenue authorities and GSTN. Also, they have duly disclosed the e-mail ID as also from other details used to authenticate and limit the access to the user dashboard by the registered person, to the exclusion of all others. Relying on Section 2(k) of the Information Technology Act, it has been submitted, receipt of dispatch arises on the uploading of the show-cause notice or the order on the Common Portal. To the extent e-mail be sent to an individual and not to the Common Portal, its receipt may arise as soon as it is retrieved.

53. Relying on M/S Axiom Gen Nxt India Pvt. Ltd. vs Commercial State Tax Officer, a decision of the learned single judge of Madras High Court in W.P. No. 1114 of 2025, it has been stressed, uploading a document on the Common Portal is equivalent to publication. Therefore, in any case, the consequence of deemed service/constructive service would arise as soon as show-cause notice or the order is uploaded on the Common Portal. Because of lack of time lag between uploading of a document on the Common Portal and it becoming visible to the addressee, that service is instant.

54. Next, reference has been made to Rule 142 of the Rules framed under the State and the Central Act to submit, it is wholly permissible in the scheme of the GST laws to communicate to the noticee/assessee the notices and orders by sending alerts through electronic mode. Referring to the other affidavit filed by the GSTN, it has been submitted, such e-mail communications were dispatched. Additionally, SMS alerts were also sent to the noticee/assessee on their designated mobile phone number. Therefore, the service of notice and order is wholly complete.

55. To buttress his submission, the learned Additional Advocate General has relied on two decisions of two co-ordinate benches of this Court, first in the case of Atlantis Intelligence Ltd. vs Union of India; [2025] 177 taxmann.com 522 (Allahabad) and the other in D.R. Hotels (P.) Ltd. vs Deputy Commissioner; [2025] 179 taxmann.com 551 (Allahabad). According to him in Atlantis Intelligence Ltd. (supra), the co-ordinate bench has taken a categorical view that service of an order by electronic mail is valid service and the date on which such dispatch is made would count as the date for the purpose of start of limitation to file appeal u/s 107 of the State/Central Act. Also, according to him in D.R. Hotels (P.) Ltd. (supra) merely because an assessee/noticee may have assigned usage of his user ID on the Common Portal, to his employee or such person who may or may not have communicated (to the assessee), due information (in real time), may make no difference to the extent that service made through electronic mode is valid service, as may admit of no doubt.

56. Further, reliance has been placed on the decision of the Delhi High Court in M/S Mathur Polymers vs Union of India; 2025:DHC:7435-DB, the issues being raised before this Court are described to have been answered in favour of the revenue and against the assessee, by the Delhi High Court by relying on its earlier decision in Rishi Enterprises vs Additional Commissioner, Central Tax Delhi; 2025:DHC:7353-DB. To that extent, it has been submitted that uploaded notice or order on the Common Portal would invite inference of deemed service of such notice/order on the addressee. He has also relied on State of Punjab vs Khemi Ram, (1969) 3 SCC 28; Kumar Jagdish Chand Sinha vs CIT [1996] 86 Taxman 122 (SC); Madan Lal vs State of UP; (1975) 2 SCC 779; Assistant Transport Commissioner Lucknow & Ors. vs Nand Singh; (1979) 4 SCC 19.

57. Having heard learned counsel for the parties and having perused the record, first, the fact aspects may be noted. Undeniably, the petitioners before the Court in this batch and the other petitioners who have been dealt with in terms of the earlier orders in M/s Riya Construction (supra), are primarily small to medium sized businesses. Within that, the petitioners are traders and manufacturers of goods. Prior to the enforcement of the GST laws, they were governed by the provisions of the U.P. Trade Tax Act, 1948 as was superseded by the U.P. Value Added Tax Act, 2008, and the Central Sales Tax Act, 1956. As has been noted above, the behavioural pattern of such assessee came to be defined and governed (up to the enactment of the GST laws), by the legislative measures contained in the above-named Acts. Practices had developed and were widely prevalent in the entire State where under it was a norm that any notice or order issued by the assessing authority or any revenue authority, either under the U.P. Trade Tax Act, 1948 or the U.P. Value Added Tax Act, 2008, was served through physical mode, only.

58. That practice has been suddenly abandoned with effect from 1.7.2017 upon enforcement of the GST Act. While statutory authorities faced some difficulty in migrating to new procedures now adopted, leading to complaints made to GSTN, the assessee/taxpayers were certainly not involved in that decision making - migrate from offline mode to online mode. They claim genuine hardship. That cannot be brushed aside, lightly. That thought, amongst others has persuaded us to take the view we have taken in M/s Riya Construction (supra), amongst others for reasons noted next:

59. Second, it is equally true, under the old regime of taxation laws that existed up to 30.6.2017, power existed under Section 30 of the U.P. Trade Tax Act, 1948 and Section 32 of the U.P. Value Added Tax Act, 2008, with the original authority, to recall its ex parte order, subject to satisfaction that the assessee had not been served with the notice preceding the order or that he could not appear on the date fixed, for sufficient cause. That led to the formation of the second behavioral norm or practice that pre-existed the enforcement of the GST laws, wherein persons such as the petitioners had an opportunity to avail a remedy to seek recall the ex parte order, if no notice had been served. That remedy is no longer available under the State/Central Acts.

60. Third, if such ex parte or other adverse orders existed, the appeal authorities had power to set aside such orders and remit the proceedings to the original authority. It also led to a practice/norm. Assessee who may not have been fully/properly heard by the Assessing Authorities, could go back to them, for full, effective redressal of their grievances. That power of the appeal authorities has been taken away under the State/Central Acts.

61. Fourth, the normal period of limitation to file appeal though prescribed, similarly, in view of the applicability of Section 5 of the Limitation Act, delay in filing appeals could be explained under the old regime, beyond the minimal period of 30 days. However, upon enforcement of the GST laws, that discretion has been taken away from the appeal authorities. At present, they can only condone delays up to 30 days. That too requires a behavioral change with the assessee, to understand that delay in filing appeal may not be condoned, beyond 30 days. Thus, the general power of the appeal authority to condone delays, has been conditioned and limited, to 30 days only.

62. Those difficulties arising from doing away with pre-existing norms and practices may not govern the outcome of this batch of writ petitions. However, it does indicate, the extent to which breach of rules of natural justice both with respect to service of notice, to enable filing of replies and service of orders, to enable filing of appeals, is being claimed. It therefore commends to us to examine the issue raised and the submissions advanced, with that much more sensitivity, and care.

63. Coming to the submissions advanced, it cannot be denied, the GST laws are progressive, to the extent they provide service of notices, furnishing of replies and service of orders, through electronic mode, also. The world that exists today and the trajectory of development that it appears to follow, commends us - such legislative steps are progressive, to the extent they seek to achieve an objective of ease of communication between the revenue authorities and the assessee/taxpayers. At the same time, as has been fairly admitted by all sides, service through electronic mode is not the only mode prescribed under the Act. The caveat being, the laudable objective may be realised, only after the major stakeholder/taxpayers are completely on board with the new mechanism.

64. On legalities, we are unable to accept the submissions advanced by some of the learned counsel for the parties that modes of service prescribed under Section 169 (1) of the State/Central Act, namely under Clauses (a), (b), (c), (d), (e) and (f) are in that order of hierarchy of preference. Suffice to note, the mode of service through affixation is the last mode where the legislature has clearly provided that it must be resorted to by way of last measure when none of the five other modes prescribed under Section 169 (1) of the State/Central Act is 'practicable'. Decision of a coordinate bench in M/S Kashi Bartan Bhandar (supra) is therefore applicable only for the purpose of Section 169 (1)(f) of the State/Central Act. That reasoning is not available in favour of the petitioners insofar as Clauses (a) to (e) of sub-section (1) of Section 169 of the State/Central Act.

65. Though it may be accepted (as submitted by learned Additional Advocate General), that these are in the alternative [except as to (f)], to be adopted on the choice vested with the revenue authorities - to choose any mode, at present, that choice made by revenue authorities is divided. While the Central revenue authorities have chosen to move on to electronic mode, without abandoning service through offline mode, the State revenue authorities have charted a different course by abandoning service through physical mode, completely, except where registration itself may have been cancelled. Thus, the revenue authorities (Central and the State) are divided in their opinion - as to the most desirable mode of service of notice and the orders on the assesseees/taxpayers. Certainly, on the face of it, appreciation made by the Central revenue authorities appears to lean in favour of the contentions advanced by the learned counsel for the petitioners, that at present, service through electronic mode (only), may not be most desirable decision. Yet, that divergence of policy may also not lead to the conclusion to be drawn to the legalities of the issue. However, we do recognize - that policy divergence is indicative of the ground realities in which the same/similar taxation laws of the State/Central Acts are being implemented, By two different governments, one State and the other Central.

66. Looking at Section 169 of the State/Central Act, it first prescribes six modes of service under sub-section (1) of that Act. In the second part through sub-sections (2) and (3), it creates a legal fiction of deemed service in certain circumstances. To decide the issue canvassed before us, it is crucial to examine if that fiction of law applies to Clauses (c) and (d) of sub-section (1) of Section 169 of the State/Central Act. There is no denial that the legislature may create a deeming fiction including as to constructive service. However, as to the true rule of interpretation to be applied to determine the applicability of such a clause, two tests are undeniable. First, the deeming fiction in law must be given full effect for the purpose for which it is created. Second, once that has been done, no further inference may be drawn to extend it's enforcement or applicability to other circumstances, not contemplated by legislature.

67. Here, as noted above, there are six modes of service created by legislature. Thus, it was aware of that fact, yet, it has thereafter chosen to provide for deeming fiction/constructive service against four modes of service, only. As noted above, the six modes of service/circumstances provided under Section 169(1) of the State/Central Act are:

- (i) tendering directly or by messenger;
- (ii) dispatch by speed post, etc. with acknowledgement due;
- (iii) sending communication by email;
- (iv) by making available on the common portal;
- (v) by publication in a newspaper and;
- (vi) by affixation.

68. Sub-sections (2) and (3) of Section 169 of the State/Central Acts create that deeming fiction and cause the effect of deemed service, not generally but specifically with respect to notices, orders etc., that may have been 'tendered' or 'published' or 'affixed'. That service may be deemed to arise on the date such 'tender', 'publication' or 'affixation', is completed. In the second part, under sub-section (3), another deeming fiction arises with respect to dispatch made by speed post [but not through courier mentioned in sub-clause

(b)]. That may arise not on the date of dispatch made but on expiry of normal period required for transmission of such communication from the sender, i.e. revenue authorities, to the noticee/taxpayers, by speed post, that too with acknowledgement due.

69. While providing for two separate sub-sections creating such specific deeming fiction, the legislature has been careful not to include either dispatch by 'courier' [under sub-clause (b)] or sending communication by email or by making it available on the common portal. That deliberate omission on part of the legislature is a conscious act of wisdom which is not open to contest in these proceedings.

70. Suffice to note, the clear legislative intent that emerges on the co-joint reading of the Section 169(1), (2) and (3) is - in the first place, six modes of service have been prescribed, of which five are in the alternate i.e. at the discretion of the revenue authorities, while the sixth may be adopted only if none of the other/first five is 'practicable'. Second, the effect of deemed service may arise only with respect to modes of service (a), (b) only to the extent it alludes to dispatch made by speed post but not through courier and (e) upon publication in newspaper but no other publication and; (f) by affixation, if that mode be adopted, in accordance with law.

71. In Sadan K. Bormal (supra), the principle governing the provision creating the fiction in law, was examined by the Supreme Court, and it was unequivocally laid down as below:

"So far as interpretation of a provision creating a legal fiction is concerned, it is trite that the court must ascertain the purpose for which the fiction is created and having done so must assume all those facts and consequences which are incidental or inevitable corollaries to the giving effect to the fiction. In construing a fiction it must not be extended beyond the purpose for which it is created or beyond the language of the section by which it is created. It cannot be extended by importing another fiction. These principles are well settled and it is not necessary for us to refer to the authorities on this subject. The principle has been succinctly stated by Lord Asquith in East End Dwellings Co. Ltd. v. Finsbury Borough Council, when he observed:

If you are bidden to treat an imaginary state of affairs as real, you must surely, unless prohibited from doing so, also imagine as real the consequences and incidents which, if the putative state of affairs had in fact existed, must inevitably have flowed from or accompanied it. The statute says that you must imagine a certain state of affairs. It does not say that, having done so, you must cause or permit your imagination to boggle when it comes to the inevitable corollaries of that state of affairs."

72. That authority itself is enough to make it clear that the purpose and object of a deeming fiction clause must be understood in the context of the legislative language itself and not on any other appraisal to be made, by Courts.

73. Second, (in absence of constructive service arising under Section 169 of the State/Central Act), as to actual service through modes created under section 169(1)(c) and (d) of the State/Central Acts, it is material to note that the stand of the revenue authorities and GSTN is, at present they do not have the means or access on the Common Portal etc., as may enable them to ascertain the date or time when any notice or order may have been actually retrieved or downloaded or opened or its contents viewed or seen by the noticee or the taxpayer, to whom such communication may have been addressed, either through e-mail or through the Common Portal. Therefore, at present, the date and time when such order may have been received by the noticee/taxpayer may remain unknown to the revenue authorities. Therefore, we had queried GSTN to give its response thereto. It has been noted above.

74. Though (as noted above), it has been informed that e-mail communications were dispatched at the designated e-mail address of individual assesses and notices and orders were uploaded on the Common Portal, the GSTN and the revenue authorities do not have the means (at present) to ascertain the time when that electronic document/record may have been accessed or retrieved or downloaded or viewed or opened by the noticee/taxpayer, either on the Common Portal or the e-mail address of the assessee. While a general assurance has been offered for such a measure to be developed later, neither such measures exist nor GSTN has made any commitment when such measures may be made available.

75. Therefore, on the factual aspect of the issue, we have no hesitation in inferring the date and time of service of any matter uploaded on the Common Portal or dispatched through e-mail, is not known to the revenue authorities or GSTN. In many cases the taxpayer feels aggrieved by the ex parte nature of the orders passed. While no submission may be entertained as to the absence of powers to recall ex parte orders and while there is no challenge to any provision of law curtailing the powers of the appeal authority to remit/remand to any Adjudicating Authority, it is therefore most crucial that a limited opportunity of appeal made available to the assessee/tax-payer under Section 107 of the Act, be kept intact and real.

76. Thus, besides absence of factual or constructive service, the period of limitation has been prescribed as three months with delay condonable only for a month from the date of the order being 'communicated'. The legislature has consciously not used the word 'served' or 'received' in Section 107 of the State/Central Act. Rather, it has used the word 'communicated'. That may inhere in it knowledge of all facts contained in the notice or order thus 'communicated'. The words 'communication' and 'service' 'received' have been denied in the Black's Law Dictionary and Stroud's Judicial Dictionary of Words and Phrases as below:

Black's Law Dictionary, South Asian Edition, Eighth Edition

"1. Communication: 1. The expression or exchange of information by speech, writing, gestures, or conduct; the process of bringing an idea to another's perception. 2. The information so expressed or exchanged.

2. Service: 1. *The formal delivery of a writ, summons, or other legal process. -Also termed service of process. [Cases: Federal Civil Procedure 411-518; Process 48-150. C.J.S. constructive service. 1. See substituted service. 2. Service accomplished by a method or circumstance that does not give actual notice.

3. Received: adj. 1 Capable of being admitted or accepted. 2. Awaiting receipt of payment accounts receivable>. 3. Subject to a call for payment.

Stroud's Judicial Dictionary, Eighth Edition

1. Communication: "Electronic Communication". For discussion of the nature of an electronic communication, see R vs Effik [1994] 3 All E.R. 458, HL and Morgans v Director of Public Prosecution [2000] 2 All E.R. 522, HL. See also Stat. Def., s.15(1) of the Electronic Communication Act 2000(c.7) (includes a communication comprising sounds or images or both and a communication effecting a payment")

2. Served: A person is not "served" with proceedings for the purposes of Council Regulation (EC) 44/2001 art.34(2) merely by way of being notified but not in accordance with the relevant regulations [Tavoulareas v Tsavlis (2006) EWCA Civ 1772].

3. Received: Sums "received" in the United Kingdom in respect of securities elsewhere and chargeable with income tax under s.100 Sch. D Case 4 of the Income Tax Act 1842 (c.35) did not include sums only constructively received in Great Britain, in yearly accounts of profits and loss (Gresham Life Assurance v Bishop [1902] A.C. 287, weakening effect of, if not over-ruling, Universal Life Assurance v Bishop, 68 L.J.Q.B. 962; following Scottish Mortgage Co of New Mexico v Mc Kelvie, 24 S.L.R. 87, and Norwich Union Fire Insurance v Magee, 44 W.R. 384). See further Forbes v Scottish Provident

Institution, 33 S.L.R. 228. Sums actually received in the United Kingdom in respect of a business abroad were, prima facie, profits chargeable with income tax (Scottish Provident Institution v Allan [1903] A.C. 129; The Same v Farmer, 6 Tax Cas. 34).

77. In Raja Harish Chandra Raj Singh vs Deputy Land Acquisition Officer & Anr.; 1961 SCC OnLine SC 140, an issue arose if the limitation to seek a reference would commence from the date of the award as marked by the authority framing such an award, or the date of its communication to the person concerned. The High Court had taken a view construing the language of section of the Land Acquisition Act, literally - as the date marked in the award. In that context, the Supreme Court observed as below:

"6. There is yet another point which leads to the same conclusion. If the award is treated as an administrative decision taken by the Collector in the matter of the valuation of the property sought to be acquired it is clear that the said decision ultimately affects the rights of the owner of the property and in that sense, like all decisions which affect persons, it is essentially fair and just that the said decision should be communicated to the said party. The knowledge of the party affected by such a decision, either actual or constructive, is an essential element which must be satisfied before the decision can be brought into force. Thus considered the making of the award cannot consist merely in the physical act of writing the award or signing it or even filing it in the office of the Collector; it must involve the communication of the said award to the party concerned either actually or constructively. If the award is pronounced in the presence of the party whose rights are affected by it it can be said to be made when pronounced. If the date for the pronouncement of the award is communicated to the party and it is accordingly pronounced on the date previously announced the award is said to be communicated to the said party even if the said party is not actually present on the date of its pronouncement. Similarly if without notice of the date of its pronouncement, an award is pronounced and a party is not present the award can be said to be made when it is communicated to the party later. The knowledge of the party affected by the award, either actual or constructive, being an essential requirement of fairplay and natural justice the expression "the date of the award" used in the proviso must mean the date when the award is either communicated to the party or is known by him either actually or constructively. In our opinion, therefore, it would be unreasonable to construe the words "from the date of the Collector's award" used in the proviso to Section 18 in a literal or mechanical way."

78. Then, in CCE vs M.M. Rubber and Co., 1992 Supp (1) SCC 471, the Supreme Court had the occasion to directly consider, the date of 'communication' of an order on the affected person, as may give rise to the start point of running of limitation and if it could be different from the date on which such order may have been signed and put beyond the control of the issuing authority, as may give rise to 'communication', in the first sense. It was thus observed:

"9. The words "from the date of decision or order" used with reference to the limitation for filing an appeal or revision under certain statutory provisions had come up for consideration in a number of cases. We may state that the ratio of the decisions uniformly is that in the case of a person aggrieved filing the appeal or revision, it shall mean the date of communication of the decision or order appealed against. However, we may note a few leading cases on this aspect.

10. Under Section 25 of the Madras Boundary Act, 1860 the starting point of limitation for appeal by way of suit allowed by that section was the passing of the Survey Officer's decision and in two of the earliest cases, namely, Annamalai Chetti v. Col. J.G. Cloete [ILR (1883) 6 Mad 189] and Seshama v. Sankara [ILR (1889) 12 Mad 1] it was held that the decision was passed when it was communicated to the parties. In Secretary of State for India in Council v. Gopiseti Narayanaswami Naidu Garu [ILR (1910) 34 Mad 151 : (1911) 1 MWN 28 : 8 MLT 310] construing a similar provision in the Survey and Boundary Act, 1897 the same High Court held that a decision cannot properly be said to be passed until it is in some way pronounced or published under such circumstances the parties affected by it have a reasonable opportunity of knowing what it contains. "Till then though it may be written out, signed and dated, it is nothing but a decision which the officer intends to pass. It is not passed so long it is open to him to tear off what he has written and write something else." In "Raja Harish Chandra Raj Singh v. Deputy Land Acquisition Officer [(1962) 1 SCR 676 : AIR 1961 SC 1500] construing the proviso to Section 18 of the Land Acquisition Act which prescribed for applications seeking reference to the court, a time-limit of six weeks of the receipt of the notice from the Collector under Section 12(2) or within six months from the date of the Collector's award whichever first expires, this Court held that the six months period will have to be calculated from the date of communication of the award. In Asstt. Transport Commissioner, Lucknow v. Nand Singh [(1979) 4 SCC 19 : (1980) 1 SCR 131] construing the provision of Section 15 of the U.P. Motor Vehicles Taxation Act, it was held that for an aggrieved party the limitation will run from the date when the order was communicated to him.

11. The ratio of these judgments were applied in interpreting Section 33-A(2) of the Indian Income Tax Act, 1922 in Muthia Chettiar v. CIT [ILR 1951 Mad 815 : AIR 1951 Mad 204 : (1951) 19 ITR 402] with reference to a right of revision provided to an aggrieved assessee. Section 33-A(1) of the Act on the other hand authorised the Commissioner to suo moto call for the records of any proceedings under the Act in which an order has been passed by any authority subordinate to him and pass such order thereon as he thinks fit. The proviso, however, stated that the Commissioner shall not revise any order under that sub-section if the order (sought to be revised) has been made more than one year previously. Construing this provision the High Court in Muthia Chettiar case [ILR 1951 Mad 815 : AIR 1951 Mad 204 : (1951) 19 ITR 402] held that the power to call for the records and pass the order will cease with the lapse of one year from the date of the order by the subordinate authority and the ratio of date of the knowledge of the order applicable to an aggrieved party is not applicable for the purpose of exercising suo moto power. Similarly in another decision reported in Viswanathan Chettiar v. CIT [(1954) 25 ITR 79 (Mad)] construing the time-limit for completion of an assessment under Section 34(2) of the Income Tax Act, 1922, which provided that it shall be made within four years from the end of the year in which the income, profit and gains were first assessable, it was held that the time-limit of four years for exercise of the power should be calculated with reference to the date on which the assessment or reassessment was made and not the date on which such assessment or reassessment order made under Section 34(2) was served on the assessee.

12. It may be seen therefore, that, if an authority is authorised to exercise a power or do an act affecting the rights of parties, he shall exercise that power within the period of limitation prescribed therefor. The order or decision of such authority comes into force or becomes operative or becomes an effective order or decision on and from the date when it is signed by him. The date of such order or decision is the date on which the order or decision was passed or made : that is to say when he ceases to have any authority to tear it off and draft a different order and when he ceases to have any locus paetentiae. Normally that happens when the order or decision is made public or notified in some form or when it can be said to have left his hand. The date of communication of the order to the party whose rights are affected is not the relevant date for purposes of determining whether the power has been exercised within the prescribed time.

13. So far as the party who is affected by the order or decision for seeking his remedies against the same, he should be made aware of passing of such order. Therefore courts have uniformly laid down as a rule of law that for seeking the remedy the limitation starts from the date on which the order was communicated to him or the date on which it was pronounced or published under such circumstances that the parties affected by it have a reasonable opportunity of knowing of passing of the order and what it contains. The knowledge of the party affected by such a decision, either actual or constructive is thus an essential element which must be satisfied before the decision can be said to have been concluded and binding on him. Otherwise the party affected by it will have no means of obeying the order or acting in conformity with it or of appealing against it or otherwise having it set aside. This is based upon, as observed by Rajmannar, C.J. in Muthia Chettiar v. CIT [ILR 1951 Mad 815 : AIR 1951 Mad 204 : (1951) 19 ITR 402] a salutary and just principle. The application of this rule so far as the aggrieved party is concerned is not dependent on the provisions of the particular statute, but it is so under the general law.

18. Thus if the intention or design of the statutory provision was to protect the interest of the person adversely affected, by providing a remedy against the order or decision any period of limitation prescribed with reference to invoking such remedy shall be read as commencing from the date of communication of the order. But if it is a limitation for a competent authority to make an order the date of exercise of that power and in the case of exercise of suo moto power over the subordinate authorities' orders, the date on which such power was exercised by making an order are the relevant dates for determining the limitation. The ratio of this distinction may also be founded on the principle that the government is bound by the proceedings of its officers but persons affected are not concluded by the decision.

79. Coming to the law cited by the learned Additional Advocate General, the decision in the case of State of Punjab vs Khemi Ram; (1969) 3 SCC 28 relied by the learned Additional Advocate General may not be applicable to the present facts. It also does not run contrary to the decision in Raja Harish Chandra Raj Singh (supra). In that case order of suspension was published in the Official Gazette, besides dispatch by telegram mode, and charge sheet physically dispatched to the delinquent employees' home address. Publication of any document in the Official Gazette acquires a different connotation and imparts a different texture to the issue of 'service'. The publication made in the Official Gazette is information given to the public at large as may never give any opportunity of denial of service. However, we may hasten to act no such publication exists in this case.

80. Second, more crucially, the core issue involved in that decision was the date when the suspension order (passed against a government employee) became 'effective', considering Rule 3.26(d) of the relevant service Rules. Also, Khemi Ram had been earlier issued telegram informing him about the suspension order, while he was still in service. The issue was whether such a suspension order - caused the effect of suspension from service, though physical service of the suspension order arose after the delinquent employee had attained the age of superannuation. It was found, the suspension order became effective from the date of its issue and to that extent it was deemed communicated on the delinquent employee.

81. If we apply that analogy to the present facts, it can be said the show cause notices and the adjudication orders come into existence on the date of dispatch made through electronic mode, to the extent they may also create a demand of tax etc., against the taxpayer. However, by that attribute of communication fulfilled, it does not lead to the fulfilment of the second attribute of communication that could lead to start of running of limitation to file appeal against the adjudication order or to seek remedies against such show cause notices and Adjudication orders. For that second attribute to be fulfilled, actual or constructive service of the show cause notices and the Adjudication orders, is necessary, strictly in terms of Section 169 of the State/Central Acts. That issue was not involved in Khemi Ram (supra). There, the issue was examined in the context of Rule 3.26(d) of the relevant service Rules, not shown to be pari materia to Section 169 of the State/Central Acts. Rather, that aspect of the law was considered in M.M. Rubber and Co. (supra).

82. Then, in Kumar Jagdish Chandra Sinha vs Commissioner of Income-tax; 1996 SCC OnLine SC 172, the following questions of law had arisen upon reference made under Section 256(1) :

“1. Whether, on the facts and in the circumstances of the case, the Tribunal was correct in law in holding that the return of income furnished by the assessee by virtue of the provisions contained in sub-section (4) of section 139 of the Income-tax Act, 1961, beyond the time allowed under sub-section (1) or sub-section (2) of the said section, could not be construed as a return furnished under either of the latter subsections and in that view holding that the assessee was not entitled to file a revised return under sub-section (5) of section 139 of the Income-tax Act, 1961 ?

2. Whether, on the facts and in the circumstances of the case, the assessments made by the Income-tax Officer for the assessment years 1964- 65 and 1965-66 were within the time-limit prescribed in section 153(1)(b) of the Income-tax Act, 1961 ?

3. Whether, on the facts and in the circumstances of the case, the Tribunal was correct in law in holding that the cases for the assessment years 1964-65 and 1965-66 were such as falling within clause (c) of sub-section (1) of section 271 ?”

83. In view of the limited questions that arose before the Supreme Court, not directly dealing with the issue of ‘communication’, the observation made in paragraph no. 15 of the said report does not contain the ratio of the said decision. In that, in the absence of any recital regarding initiation of proceedings and its communication during the earlier proceedings, the consequential orders passed were found invalid. Plainly, the said decision also does not apply to the present facts.

84. Then, in Madan Lal vs State of U.P. & Ors.; (1975) 2 SCC 779, again it was observed as below:

“8. The Act we are concerned with does not state what would happen if the Forest Settlement Officer made an order under Section 11 without notice to the parties and in their absence. In such a case, if the aggrieved party came to know of the order after the expiry of the time prescribed for presenting an appeal from the order, would the remedy be lost for no fault of his? It would be absurd to think so. It is a fundamental principle of justice that a party whose rights are affected by an order must have notice of it. This principle is embodied in Order 20, Rule 1 of the Code of Civil Procedure; though the Forest

Settlement Officer adjudicating on the claims under the Act is not a court, yet the principle which is really a principle of fair play and is applicable to all tribunals performing judicial or quasi-judicial functions must also apply to him. The point has been considered and decided by this Court in Raja Harish Chandra Raj Singh v. Deputy Land Acquisition Officer [AIR 1961 SC 1500 : (1962) 1 SCR 676] . This was a case under the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 and the Court was considering the question of limitation under the proviso to Section 18 of that Act. Under Section 18 of the Land Acquisition Act a person who has not accepted the Collector's award can apply to the Collector requiring him to refer the matter for the determination of the court. This application has to be made within six months from the date of the Collector's award in the case where the person interested was not present or represented before the Collector at the time when he made his award or had received no notice from the Collector of the award. Construing the expression "the date of the award" this Court observed:

"The knowledge of the party affected by the award, either actual or constructive, being an essential requirement of fairplay and natural justice the expression 'the date of the award' used in the proviso must mean the date when the award is either communicated to the party or is known by him either actually or constructively. In our opinion, therefore, it would be unreasonable to construe the words 'from the date of the Collector's award' used in the proviso to Section 18 in a literal or mechanical way.

... where the rights of a person are affected by any order and limitation is prescribed for the enforcement of the remedy by the person aggrieved against the said order by reference to the making of the order must mean either actual or constructive communication of the said order to the party concerned."

85. In Assistant Transport Commissioner, Lucknow & Ors. vs Nand Singh; (1979) 4 SCC 19, Raja Harish Chandra Raj Singh (supra) was followed and it was further observed as below :

"2. In our opinion, the judgment of the High Court is right and cannot be interfered with by this Court. Apart from the reasons given by this Court in the earlier judgment to the effect that the order must be made known either directly or constructively to the party affected by the order in order to enable him to prefer an appeal if he so likes, we may give one more reason in our judgment and that is this: It is plain that mere writing an order in the file kept in the office of the Taxation Officer is no order in the eye of law in the sense of affecting the rights of the parties for whom the order is meant. The order must be communicated either directly or constructively in the sense of making it known, which may make it possible for the authority to say that the party affected must be deemed to have known the order. In a given case, the date of putting the order in communication under certain circumstances may be taken to be the date of the communication of the order or the date of the order but ordinarily and generally speaking, the order would be effective against the person affected by it only when it comes to his knowledge either directly or constructively, otherwise not. On the facts stated in the judgment of the High Court, it is clear that the respondent had no means to know about the order of the Taxation Officer rejecting his prayer until and unless he received his letter on October 29, 1964. Within the meaning of Section 15 of the U.P. Motor Vehicle Taxation Act that was the date of the order which gave the starting point for preferring an appeal within 30 days of that date."

86. The decision in Nokia India (P) Ltd vs Additional Commissioner Income Tax (2018) 92 taxmann.com 76 (Delhi) involved validity of assessment proceedings under the Income Tax Act, 1961, in the extended period of limitation - based on another order to conduct special audit. Objecting that the assessment order was passed beyond limitation, it was relied on - that the order of special audit (that caused the extension of limitation) was served after expiry of limitation to pass the assessment order. Again, as in Khem Ram (supra) the order providing for special audit was found to have become effective upon that order coming into existence and being dispatched. Accordingly, the first aspect of the communication was found fulfilled in favour of the revenue. Simultaneously, for the purpose of computation of limitation to raise challenge to such order, it was opined that the rule of actual or constructive service would continue to apply. Relying on M.M. Rubber and Co. (supra), it was reasoned as below:

"36. M.M. Rubber and Company (supra) had clarified on two different principles of law relating to limitation. The first principle relates to exercise of power or an act, affecting the rights of the parties within the period of limitation prescribed. The order or decision of the authority comes into force or becomes operative or becomes an effective order or decision on and from the date when it is signed. This happens when the order is made or passed; that is to say when the order is made public or notified in some form or is sent out by the authority so as to have left his hands. Thereafter, the authority cannot tear or draft a different order. Date of communication of the order to the parties whose rights are affected is not the relevant date for purpose of deciding whether or not the order was passed within the prescribed time.

37. The second principle relates to computation of period of limitation for a party affected by the order or decision, who invokes remedy by way of appeal, revision, etc. The rule is that the period of limitation for invoking the remedy starts from the date the order is communicated to the party or the date when it is pronounced or published, whereby the party affected has a reasonable opportunity of knowing of the passing of the order or its content. Communication in the second sense is different from communication in the first sense, i.e., the first principle. Communication in the second sense must be satisfied before the decision is said to be conclusive or binding. This principle is not dependent upon the provisions of a particular statute but under the general law.

38. Pertinently, in M.M. Rubber and Company (supra) it was observed that knowledge of the party affected by the decision may be either actual or constructive. Knowledge of the party affected by the decision either actual or constructive, is the essential element which must be satisfied. This is a salutary and just principle.

39. We often overlook the aforesaid distinction when we examine the question as to whether an order has been passed within the period of limitation and apply decision with first and second principle interchangeably, which is impermissible and wrong. It is in this context we would also like to refer to the decision of the Supreme Court in CIT v. Major Tikka Khushwant Singh (1995) 212 ITR 650 (SC) which referred to the earlier decision in the case of R.K. Upadhyay v. Shanabhai P. Patel (1987) 166 ITR 163 (SC) and rejected the plea of the assessee and upheld the contention of the Revenue that the date of issue of notice would determine, if it was within the period of limitation and would give jurisdiction to the Assessing Officer to proceed and not the date on which notice was served. It was observed that the issue of notice within the statutory period gives jurisdiction but reassessment cannot be made till notice was served."

87. In Daujee Abhushan Bhandar Pvt Ltd. vs Union of India; (2022) 136 taxmann.com 246 (All), the issue had arisen in a completely different legislative and fact context. Whether jurisdiction to re-assess had been initiated within limitation of time, was the core issue in that case. Second, service of notice through electronic mode was admitted to the petitioner in that case. It is fundamental to re-assessment proceedings under the Income Tax Act that such proceedings may be found to be within limitation subject to the re-assessment notice being issued within time. To the extent such notice had been digitally signed on the last date of limitation and thus (admittedly) issued, through electronic mail, the issue of date of actual communication secondary to the primary issue of notice issued within time. To the extent digital signature on the re-assessment notice was found sufficient for that purpose, that fact/legal issue is not involved, here.

88. Insofar as Union of India vs M/S G.S. Chatha Rice Mills; (2021) 2 SCC 209 is concerned, there the primary issue involved was the date and time when a statutory notification issued through electronic mode came into force. That issue is not involved here. The other issue was the consequence of bills of entry for home consumption presented for clearance. As a fact it was clear that presentation of documents preceded the time when the law was amended upon issuance of notification through electronic mode. The rate of duty being applicable at the time of import, that case was decided on the strength of time of presentation of bills of entry, for clearance. Clearly, the issue was wholly different from the present case.

89. In Suman Jeet Agarwal vs Income Tax Officer (2022) 143 taxmann.com 11 (Delhi), again the issues raised were different. There was no dispute as to issue of reassessment notice, through email. At the same time, validity of reassessment notices and therefore, assumption of jurisdiction of reassessment was decided on the own facts of that case. Where notices were found issued (even through electronic mode), within limitation, those proceedings were found valid.

90. In Rapiscan Systems Pvt Ltd. vs ADIT (Income Tax) [2025] 170 taxmann.com 753 (Telangana) the interpretation made to section 144C (13) of the Income Tax Act, 1961 wherein for the purpose of limitation the date on which direction was 'received' was relevant. As discussed above, though the concept of 'receipt' is contained in the IT Act, for the vital purpose of limitation to file appeal more than 'receipt', actual or constructive 'communication', is decisive, that too, on the test of actual or constructive service, in terms of Section 169 of the State/Central Act, and not in a generic or common sense test or even by way of receipt.

91. That leaves us to consider the further submissions advanced by the learned Additional Advocate General, on the strength of provisions of the Information Technology Act. While we are not in a position to accept the submissions advanced by some of the learned counsel for the petitioner that the State/Central Act are complete codes to the extent, that they admit of no applicability of the Information Technology Act, it would remain to be examined if the provisions of the Information Technology Act truly lead to an inference that the notice/order uploaded on the Common Portal would amount to service or communication for the purposes of Section 169 and 107 of the State/Central Act or it may stop at 'receipt' not amounting to actual or deemed service or 'communication'. We accept the applicability of the terms 'computer', 'computer network', 'computer resource', 'computer system', 'electronic form', 'electronic record', 'originator' and other terms defined under the Information Technology Act, to be of relevance for the purposes of proceedings under the GST Act to the extent such proceedings being adopted through electronic mode of communication. However, Section 4 of the Information Technology Act is a provision that only allows for electronic mail or document made available through the Common Portal, to be an equivalent to a physical document. It does not create and it does not seek to introduce any element of 'service' or 'communication' of such documents. In other words, how the electronic document may be served or communicated may remain to be examined independent of Section 4 of the Information Technology Act.

92. As noted above, at present, as per the say of GSTN, and the revenue authorities, there is no mechanism to generate automatic acknowledgement or receipt of document downloaded or retrieved or viewed by an assessee/taxpayer from the Common Portal. All that is available with GSTN and therefore, to the revenue authorities, is the knowledge of actual dispatch or uploading of a document, by the revenue authorities, only.

93. To that extent, the learned Additional Advocate General, has relied on the provisions of Section 12 and 13 of the Information Technology Act. Section 13 is a provision that creates presumptions as to time and place of dispatch and receipt of certain electronic records. As to actual dispatch of an electronic record - either to upload notice or orders or dispatch of email, facts are admitted. But the petitioners here do not admit having received e-mail alerts. In any case, it is not the say of the revenue authorities that they had sent through e-mail communications, entire notices or orders as may have enabled the recipients/addressees/taxpayers, to file appeal thereagainst. They only claim to have sent information about such notices and orders. Therefore, it may never be claimed that by sending such intimation the addressee/recipient had been 'communicated' the notice or the orders or their contents, necessary to be 'communicated', to file any appeal thereagainst.

94. At the same time, Section 13(2) of the IT Act also provides a deeming fiction of receipt of electronic record arising the moment electronic document enters the 'designated computer resource'. However, if such a 'computer resource' is not a 'designated computer resource', receipt may occur at the time when electronic record is retrieved by the addressee. In the present facts, the 'designated computer resource' means the 'computer system' or 'computer network' on which the notice or order has been uploaded. That admittedly is the Common Portal. In face of the admission made (as has been repeatedly noted above) that the GSTN is unable to ascertain, and therefore divulge the time when the Show Cause Notice or order may have been retrieved or downloaded or viewed by the addressee, therefore, that date and time of 'communication' through that mode [in term of Section 13(2)(a)(ii)], is indeterminate, in each of these cases.

95. Insofar as Section 13(2)(a)(ii) is concerned, to the extent the revenue authorities are unable to state when intimation of the electronic record i.e. that Show Cause Notice or the Orders was retrieved from the 'computer resource' through which the assessee/addressee may have access to electronic mail communication, again that issue remains indeterminate, in each of these cases. In any case, as already noted such electronic mail did not contain the contents of either the show cause notice or the adjudication order as may have enabled the addressee/recipient, to either comply or challenge such notice or adjudication order.

96. Thus, in any case, 'receipt' under Section 13(1) read with 13(2)(a)(i) of IT Act falls short of 'communication' and therefore service (actual or constructive) under Section 169 of State/Central Act and it may never amount to 'communicated' under Section 107 of the State/Central Act, for the purpose of start point of running of limitation to file an appeal, as no 'acknowledgment' has been generated under Section 12 of the IT Act and no notice has been issued under Section 12(3) of the IT Act.

97. Before parting on the issue, we may further note, even with respect to service through physical mode only upon Registered Post or Speed Post but not through Courier, the effect of deemed service may arise only when such dispatch is made with 'acknowledgement due' to the addressee. Thus, while creating a legal fiction in cases involving physical dispatch, element of 'acknowledgement' has been introduced to put in place verifiable measures. To the extent Sections 12 of the IT Act provides for 'acknowledgement', and further to the extent at present such acknowledgement has not been sought [in terms of Section 12(3)] it would be over simplistic to equate the two distinct modes of service, one through physical mode and the other through electronic mode, to allow for the consequences of 'deemed service' to arise, in both.

98. Further, it is doubtful if effect of (Show Cause Notice or Order) 'communicated' to the assessee may arise in law, merely on the strength of time of such notice or order entering the Common Portal of the GSTN, from where it is possible for the addressee to retrieve such document to record. It is akin to the early stages of postal service where a letter/communication dispatched by post was sorted and kept at the Post Office nearest the addressee, from where he could collect it, at this convenience. In the absence of time stamp being available, when the addressee may have retrieved that communication and further in the absence of any notice with acknowledgment, that determination is not possible or feasible.

99. Coming to two decisions of the coordinate bench, In Atlantis Intelligence Ltd. (supra) in paragraph-4 of the report, it has been recorded as below:

“4. It is admitted by the petitioner that the petitioner was served by registered email on the very same date of passing of the impugned order. However, learned counsel appearing on behalf of petitioner, submits that there was no service made to the petitioner by way of registered post.”

(emphasis supplied)

100. Specifically, the petitioner in that case had admitted that the email was served on the petitioner at his registered email address. Once that admission arose, the coordinate bench had only considered the effect caused. Therefore, it did not have the opportunity to examine what would follow if there was no such admission. That issue has arisen in the present case. Though dispatch through uploading and email has been claimed by GSTN and in that regard it has filed an affidavit disclosing the contents of the email, there is no admission of receipt of the same. In any case, it does not contain a copy of or the contents of the Order. However, in view of the admission made in Atlantis Intelligence Ltd. (supra), the coordinate bench in paragraph-6 observed thus:

“Accordingly, we are of the view that service of the order by registered email is a valid service and the date on which such service is made would count as the date for the purpose of limitation.”

(emphasis supplied)

101. Clearly, as noted above, once email was admitted to have been served on the registered email address and that service was admitted, the effect of service of the order was acknowledged. Therefore, we find no different view has been taken by the coordinate bench in Atlantis Intelligence Ltd. (supra) on the issue canvassed before us.

102. In D.R. Hotels (P) Ltd. (supra), it was not the case of that petitioner that it had not received electronic mail. Rather, it was the case that the said email was operated by an employee who had been disengaged. To the extent receipt of email was again admitted (at the registered email address), and that fact was acknowledged between the parties, further consideration arose in that regard. Crucially, in no uncertain terms the issue examined by the coordinate bench in D.R. Hotels (P) Ltd. (supra), was of maintainability of the writ petition in face of statutory remedy of appeal available. On the issue of deemed service of notice and order through electronic mode, the coordinate bench made the following pertinent observation in paragraph-18:

“18. we do not proceed to determine the question as to whether as per sub clause 2 of section 169 once the service has been effected as per sub clause (c) & (d) of section 169, it shall be deemed to have been served on the date it is tendered.”

103. Thus, the coordinate bench had left the issue open but only refused to entertain the writ petition for reason of statutory remedy of appeal available. Thus, the two decisions of coordinate benches have not taken a view, different from the one proposed to be taken by us. Hence, we find no occasion to refer the matter to a larger bench. Insofar as the decisions of the other High Courts taking a contrary view, are concerned, we regret not being persuaded to take that view - that uploading a document on the Common Portal is enough communication or service for the purpose of Section 107 of the State/Central Acts. For the reasons noted above, we find that the deeming fiction of law created under Section 169(2) and (3) of the State/Central Act read with Sections 12 and 13 of the IT Act cannot be enlarged - to benefit the revenue, though no prejudice may be caused to it, otherwise. To equate uploading of a document on the Common Portal with 'tendering' or 'by speed post', 'publication' or 'affixation', would be over simplistic, in our humble opinion. To the extent the words used in sub-sections (2) and (3) of Section 169 of the State/Central Act exist in conjunction with other words such that 'tendering' has not been used in isolation but as 'tendering it directly' under clause (a), 'by speed post' have not been used in isolation but as 'speed post with acknowledgement due', 'publication' in clause (e) has not been used in isolation but in conjunction 'publication in a newspaper' and 'affixation' stands on a completely different footing (as discussed above), it would be over simplistic and therefore unacceptable in law to infer that a notice or order uploaded on the Common Portal may be equated with the word 'tendering' or 'publishing' and therefore, be deemed to have been served though no deeming fiction in law has been created by the legislature to reach that conclusion, for the purpose of Section 107 of the State/Central Acts.

104. Therefore, the preliminary objection raised is decided against the State. We may have relegated the present petitioners to the appeal remedy for the reasons given by us. However, we also note, even today, before dictation of this order, we have dealt with similar writ petitions in terms of the order passed in M/s Riya Construction (supra). To that extent, we are persuaded to maintain consistency in these matters and to set aside individual orders and remit the matters to the Adjudicating Authority, against payment of 10% of the demand of tax, by individual petitions, as the present petitioners have remained pending for very long. To summarise we may conclude:

(i) Service of Show Cause Notice and orders under the State/Central Act, by making such documents available on the Common Portal or by making dispatch through electronic mode, is permissible in law, and therefore a valid procedure.

(ii) No order of priority exists between the first five modes of service, that may be adopted by the revenue authorities amongst clauses (a) to (e), of Section 169(1) of the Act.

(iii) Only before adopting service through affixation under clause (f), satisfaction must be recorded that it is not ☐practicable☐ to serve such notice or order through any of the modes specified in clauses (a) to (e). That principle has no application to the choice that the revenue authorities may otherwise make between the modes specified in clauses (a) to (e).

(iv) The deeming fiction of law leading to constructive service, is available only with respect to service effected through modes specified in Clauses (a), (b), (e) and (f) (where applicable), of Section 169(1) of the Act.

(v) By way of necessary corollary, the deeming fiction of law leading to constructive service is not available with respect to Clauses (e) and (f) of Section 169 (1) of the State/Central Acts, in view of the direct provisions of those Acts.

(vi) The IT Act is clearly applicable to the State/Central Acts, to the extent its provisions may be invoked in matters not squarely covered by or provided for under the State/Central Act. To that extent the provisions of Sections 4, 12 and 13 are invokable with reference to □despatch□ & □receipt□ service attempted through electronic modes but not to actual or constructive service provided under Section 169 of the State/Central Acts, there is no conflict between the two sets of legislation, one relating to GST laws and the other to IT laws.

(vii) To the extent there is no acknowledgement generated and further to the extent the GSTN and the revenue authorities are unaware and therefore unable to inform when any notice or order dispatched through electronic mode (made available on the Common Portal designed and managed by the GSTN), may have been retrieved or downloaded by the addressee, no inference may be drawn as to the actual date and time of such service, in terms of section 12 and 13 of the IT Act, for the purpose of Section 107 of the State/Central Acts.

(viii) To the extent it is not admitted to the petitioners that they have received any email and to the extent that fact may remain disputable, no useful purpose may ever be served in entering into that enquiry by any Court or Tribunal or authority as it may involve deep forensic investigation of the 'computer resource' used by the addressee, before any conclusion may be drawn. It would amount to immense waste of productive time and money, both by the revenue authorities and the assessees. Plainly, at present it may remain impractical and therefore, an undesirable course to be adopted. In any case, admittedly, the entire adjudication order has not even been attempted to be served through e-mail. Therefore, that order may never be described to have been 'communicated' to the petitioner, through e-mail, for the purpose of Section 107 of the State/Central Act.

(ix) Since the period of limitation to file appeal under Section 107 may start running from the date of effective 'communication' of an order, we may only note that in view of the above discussion and conclusions drawn, in the present state of affairs effective 'communication' of the show cause notices and adjudication orders, may be governed by actual or constructive 'communication' to the assessee of the contents of such notices and orders, strictly in terms of Section 169 of the State/Central Acts, specifically for the purpose of filing appeal or raising other challenge to an adjudication order etc.

(x) We avoid suggesting any administrative measure that the revenue authorities may adopt, since the measures proposed have been strongly objected to and it has also been informed to the Court (through 'Y'), that the State Government cannot provide for such measures. However, we leave it to the wisdom of the State authorities to look at the practicalities of the situation and the steps taken by the Central revenue authorities, in the same situation. The assessees being one class of persons who exist in a singular tax eco-system created by uniform GST laws that are pari materia to each other, from beginning to end, i.e. the State Act and the Central Act, the fact that in some proceedings drawn by authorities under the Central Act, notices and orders may be issued through physical mode also, while in another set of proceedings (against the same class of persons), drawn by the State authorities, notices and orders may be issued only through electronic mode, is not desirable. It creates confusion by bringing in duality and therefore uncertainty of procedures being followed, to implement a single substantive law, leading to doubts and conflicts that have given rise to the present wholly avoidable litigation.

(xi) Suffice to note, wherever an assessee files an appeal declaring that it is within time from the date of actual 'communication' of the order, a presumption may arise in favour of the assessee on the strength of such declaration. The burden to prove otherwise, may lie on the revenue - to establish that actual 'communication' of the contents of the Show Cause Notice or adjudication order had been made prior in time, as may have allowed the limitation to start running from such prior date. Failing that, the limitation to file appeal may be computed with reference to the date that may be disclosed by the individual assessee, in each appeal.

(xii) To the extent learned ASGI has already apprised that the central authorities are issuing physical notices and copies of the orders also through postal mode, first, in those cases the issue of start point of limitation may be determined on the date of actual or constructive service, with reference to service through physical mode, in terms of Section 169 of the State/Central Acts.

(xiii) To avoid any conflict with respect to start point of limitation, it is provided - wherever the date of 'communication' may be determined or be claimed through electronic and physical mode, the date of communication through offline/physical mode may prevail over service through electronic mode, unless the contrary is proved, by either party.

(xiv) We also leave it open to the revenue authorities to adopt any of the modes including physical tender through messenger etc. as was being done under the pre-existing Trade Tax/VAT regime, in the State of Uttar Pradesh.

(xv) Positive intervention by the Court may have been desirable in the facts of these cases - to direct the GSTN to take effective steps in the first place to provide for the Common Portal in the language of the State i.e. Hindi; to create Tabs for ease of use and convenience to the assessee, to view notices that are pending compliance and orders that may have been passed against him. However, we are constrained to observe for reason of obstinate stand taken by the GSTN, demonstrating extreme reluctance at the first stage itself, to take any positive criticism of the working of its Common Portal, and the urgent need to improve it - to make it more user friendly and enable the taxpayers to make compliances and pay their revenues within time, we leave GSTN with the thought that it is not its object of incorporation to deal with lakhs of complaints as it already has and to continue to remain rigid in its approach. Rather, its object of incorporation commends that it responds to the need of the times pro-actively, to cater to the needs of the India's growing economy and the traders and business persons who are its users and who trust and rely on such mechanism not for any other reason but to help their businesses grow, that in turn contributes to the economic growth of the country itself.

105. Accordingly, these writ petitions are allowed. Individual Adjudication Orders are set aside, subject to deposit of 10% of the disputed demand of tax only, within four weeks from today. Also:

(i) Subject to the individual petitioner filing a copy of this order together with proof of deposit made, before the Adjudicating Authority within a month, the Adjudicating Authority shall make available to the petitioner copy of the show cause notice together with any additional/supplementary notice etc. issued in these proceedings together with copies of Relied Upon Documents ('RUDs' in short) within a period of two weeks from the date of compliance shown by the petitioner.

(ii) Petitioners shall file individual replies, if any, within a further period of four weeks therefrom.

(iii) Thereupon the Adjudicating Authority shall fix appropriate date for hearing and communicate the same to the individual petitioner, in the manner prescribed by law with at least two weeks' advance notice.

(iv) Petitioners undertake to cooperate and participate in the proceedings and not seek any undue or long adjournment.

(v) Any amount already deposited or recovered pursuant to the impugned adjudication order, may be adjusted against the amount to be deposited against this order, which shall abide by final adjudication order.

(vi) It is expected that the proceedings thus remitted would be concluded within six months from the date of first compliance made by the petitioner.

(vii) No order as to costs.

ISSUE FOR CONSIDERATION

Whether the petitioner's appeal under Section 107 of the UP GST Act, 2017 was time-barred.

Whether the principle of Section 14 of the Limitation Act could be applied to exclude the period spent in pursuing a rectification application under Section 161.

HEADNOTES

Tax Law – UP GST Act, 2017 - Sections 107, 161, - Limitation Act, 1963 - Sections 5, 14, 29 - Writ petition – filed to challenge dismissal of GST appeal as time-barred – dispute arose from ex-parte adjudication order and subsequent rectification application – plea taken that Section 14 Limitation Act principle applies to exclude time spent in rectification proceedings – court finds that, rectification was bona fide, limitation kept in abeyance, appeal filed within statutory period – court held that, the period of limitation being three months, and therefore the appeal filed was well within limitation – consequently, the writ petition is allowed – impugned order is set aside – and the appeal is restored to its original number and status with to decide the same strictly in accordance with law on merits, expeditiously. CASE ARISING FROM Ex-parte adjudication order dated 23.04.2024 by Deputy Commissioner, State Tax, Kanpur. - Rectification application filed 23.05.2024, rejected 22.10.2024 - Appeal filed 29.11.2024, dismissed as time-barred on 05.03.2025.

APPEARANCE OF PARTIES

Counsel for Petitioners: - Shri Shri Shubham Agrawal.

Counsel for Respondents: - Shri Ankur Agarwal (Standing Counsel), Sudarshan Singh (CGC).

(Delivered by Hon'ble Saumitra Dayal
 Singh, J.

Hon'ble Vivek Saran, J.)

1. Heard Shri Shubham Agrawal, learned counsel for the petitioner, Shri Ankur Agarwal, learned Standing Counsel for the Revenue and perused the record.

2. The present writ petition has been filed to assail the order dated 05.03.2025 passed by Additional Commissioner, Grade-2 (Appeal)-V, State Tax, Kanpur (respondent No.4) whereby the first appeal filed by the petitioner under Section 107 of the UP GST Act, 2017 (herein after referred to as the Act), against the ex-parte adjudication order dated 23.04.2024 passed by the Deputy Commissioner, State Tax, Sector-27, Lakhanpur Kanpur-respondent No.3, under Section 73 of the Act for the Financial Year 2018-19, (creating demand of Tax/Cess Rs.7,81,838.98/- together with interest Rs.7,86,164/- and penalty Rs.78,184/-) has been dismissed as time barred. The remaining prayers (in the petition) have not been pressed.

3. Arising from the ex-parte adjudication order dated 23.04.2024, the petitioner first filed an application referable to Section 161 of the Act (seeking rectification in the order dated 23.04.2024), on 23.5.2024 i.e. after a month and one day. The said application was rejected by the order dated 22.10.2024, as not maintainable.

4. At that stage, the petitioner filed an appeal under section 107 of the Act on 29.11.2024 i.e. within a month and eight days from the date of the order passed under Section 161 of the Act.

5. According to the petitioner, there was no delay in filing that appeal as it was entitled to the benefit of the principle underlying Section 14 of the Limitation Act, 1963 (hereinafter referred to as "Limitation Act"). However, the appellate authority has rejected the appeal and dismissed those proceedings as time-barred, vide order dated 05.03.2025.

6. Primarily, this order is under challenge in the present writ petition. At present, the Tribunal has not been made functional. For that reason, the present writ petition has been entertained, upon lifting the self imposed bar of alternative remedy.

7. Submission of learned counsel for the petitioner is-though, in terms, Section 14 of the Limitation Act does not apply to proceedings under the Act, at the same time, the underlying principle contained in Section 14 of the Limitation Act does apply. Reliance has been placed on a decision of the Supreme Court in M.P. Steel Corporation vs. Commissioner of Central Excise 2015 (319) E.L.T. 373 (S.C.). Further reliance has been placed on a decision of the Madras High Court in M/s. SPK and Co. vs. The State Tax Officer in W.P.(MD) Nos. 27787 and 27788 of 2024 and W.M.P.(MD) Nos. 23585 and 23586 of 2024 decided on 22.11.2024 and another decision of the Punjab and Haryana High Court in M/s Arvind Fashion Limited vs. State of Haryana and others 2025:PHHC:135347-DB. Also, reliance has been placed upon observation made in paragraph No.14(D) of the order passed by a co-ordinate bench in Atlantis Intelligence Ltd. vs. Union of India and 2 others, 2025:AHC:135383-DB.

8. Thus, it has been submitted, the learned Appeal Authority has erred in law in declining to give benefit of the principle contained in Section 14 of the Limitation Act. If the duration of pendency of the rectification of mistake application filed by the petitioner under Section 161 of the Act is excluded, the appeal filed by the petitioner would be within three months from the date of communication of the order dated 23.4.2024. Thus, the appeal filed is within limitation.

9. On the other hand, learned Standing Counsel would contend that the period of limitation is prescribed under the Act, to file appeals etc. In the first place, the limitation of three months existed to file such appeal. Thereafter, delay of only one month could be condoned, subject to sufficient cause being established by the petitioner. Since admittedly, the appeal was first preferred by the petitioner on 29.11.2024, outside four months from the date of communication of the Adjudication Order dated 24.03.2024, the delay condonation application has rightly been dismissed, as time barred.

10. To the extent the Act provides for an inflexible period of limitation to file appeals, the principle of law enshrined under Section 14 of the Limitation Act has no application. Reliance has been placed on Commissioner of Customs & Central Excise vs. Hongo India Pvt. Ltd. (2009) 5 SCC 791 and Assistant Commissioner (CT) LTU, Kakinada vs. Glaxo Smith Kline Consumer Health Care Limited, (2020) 19 SCC 681.

11. Alternatively, it has been submitted, wherever any application seeking rectification may be filed after expiry of limitation to file such application, no benefit may be drawn by such a person, by relying on principle contained under Section 14 of the Limitation Act.

12. Having heard learned counsel for the parties and having perused the record, before we discuss the issue any further, it would be useful to extract the provisions of Section 107(1), (4) of the Act. They read as below:

"Section 107(1): Appeals to Appellate Authority.-

(1) Any person aggrieved by any decision or order passed under this Act or the State Goods and Services Tax Act or the Union Territory Goods and Services Tax Act by an adjudicating authority may appeal to such Appellate Authority as may be prescribed within three months from the date on which the said decision or order is communicated to such person.

(3)...

(4):The Appellate Authority may, if he is satisfied that the appellant was prevented by sufficient cause from presenting the appeal within the aforesaid period of three months or six months, as the case may be, allow it to be presented within a further period of one month."

(emphasis supplied)

13. Section 161 of the Act reads as below:

"Section 161: Rectification of errors apparent on the face of record.-

Without prejudice to the provisions of section 160, and notwithstanding anything contained in any other provisions of this Act, any authority, who has passed or issued any decision or order or notice or certificate or any other document, may rectify any error which is apparent on the face of record in such decision or order or notice or certificate or any other document, either on its own motion or where such error is brought to its notice by any officer appointed under this Act or an officer appointed under the State Goods and Services Tax Act or an officer appointed under the Union Territory Goods and Services Tax Act or by the affected person within a period of three months from the date of issue of such decision or order or notice or certificate or any other document, as the case may be:

Provided that no such rectification shall be done after a period of six months from the date of issue of such decision or order or notice or certificate or any other document:

Provided further that the said period of six months shall not apply in such cases where the rectification is purely in the nature of correction of a clerical or arithmetical error, arising from any accidental slip or omission:

Provided also that where such rectification adversely affects any person, the principles of natural justice shall be followed by the authority carrying out such rectification."

14. We also find it useful to extract the provisions of Section 14 of Limitation Act, which reads as below:

"Section 14. Exclusion of time of proceeding bona fide in court without jurisdiction.- (1) In computing the period of limitation for any suit the time during which the plaintiff has been prosecuting with due diligence another civil proceeding, whether in a court of first instance or of appeal or revision, against the defendant shall be excluded, where the proceeding relates to the same matter in issue and is prosecuted in good faith in a court which, from defect of jurisdiction or other cause of a like nature, is unable to entertain it.

(2) In computing the period of limitation for any application, the time during which the applicant has been prosecuting with due diligence another civil proceeding, whether in a court of first instance or of appeal or revision, against the same party for the same relief shall be excluded, where such proceeding is prosecuted in good faith in a court which, from defect of jurisdiction or other cause of a like nature, is unable to entertain it.

(3) Notwithstanding anything contained in rule 2 of Order XXIII of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 (5 of 1908), the provisions of sub-section (1) shall apply in relation to a fresh suit instituted on permission granted by the court under rule 1 of that Order, where such permission is granted on the ground that the first suit must fail by reason of a defect in the jurisdiction of the court or other cause of a like nature.

Explanation.—For the purposes of this section, —

(a) in excluding the time during which a former civil proceeding was pending, the day on which that proceeding was instituted and the day on which it ended shall both be counted;

(b) a plaintiff or an applicant resisting an appeal shall be deemed to be prosecuting a proceeding; (c) misjoinder of parties or of causes of action shall be deemed to be a cause of a like nature with defect of jurisdiction."

(emphasis supplied)

15. As to applicability of the Limitation Act, the issue is not res integra. In M.P. Steel (supra), the Supreme Court considered the principle of pre-existing law laid down by that court in Bhudan Singh and another vs. Nabi Bux and another (1970) 2 SCR 10; J. Kumaradasan Nair vs. Iric Sohan (2009) 12 SCC 175, Consolidated Engg Enterprises vs. Irrigation Department (2008) 7 SCC 169 and Commissioner of Sales Tax vs. Parson Tools and Plants (1975) 4 SCC 22. Thereafter, the Court distinguished Parson Tools (supra) and held though the provisions of Section 14 of the Limitation Act may not apply in terms-to proceedings/appeals under the Customs Act, at the same time, the underlying principle of Section 14 would apply to such proceedings, as well.

16. In M.P. Steel (supra), against the order of adjudication, the aggrieved person directly approached the Custom Excise Service Appellate Tribunal (the second appeal authority). That Tribunal allowed the appeal. Against that order, the matter travelled to the Supreme Court. The Revenue's appeal was allowed, and the order of the Tribunal was set aside. Thereafter, the aggrieved person approached the first appeal authority and explained-it had committed a mistake in approaching the Tribunal directly. The first appeal was dismissed on account of delay. On the matter again reaching the Supreme Court (in the second round of litigation), it was ruled that the underlying principle of Section 14 would apply to such facts as well.

17. Relevant to the above, first, Parson Tools (supra) was distinguished, on the following reasoning:

"34. However, it remains to consider whether Shri Sanghi is right in stating that Section 128 is a complete code by itself which necessarily excludes the application of Section 14 of the Limitation Act. For this proposition he relied strongly on Parson Tools which has been discussed hereinabove. As has already been stated, Parson Tools was a judgment which turned on the three features mentioned in the said case. Unlike the U.P. Sales Tax Act, there is no provision in the Customs Act which enables a party to invoke suo moto the appellate power and grant relief to a person who institutes an appeal out of time in an appropriate case. Also, Section 10 of the U.P. Sales Tax Act dealt with the filing of a revision petition after a first appeal had already been rejected, and not to a case of a first appeal as provided under Section 128 of the Customs Act. Another feature, which is of direct relevance in this case, is that for revision petitions filed under the U.P. Sales Tax Act a sufficiently long period of 18 months had been given beyond which it was the policy of the legislature not to extend limitation any further. This aspect of Parson Tools has been explained in Consolidated Engineering in some detail by both the main judgment as well as the concurring judgment. In the latter judgment, it has been pointed out that there is a vital distinction between extending time and condoning delay. Like Section 34 of the Arbitration Act, Section 128 of the Customs Act is a Section which lays down that delay cannot be condoned beyond a certain period. Like Section 34 of the Arbitration Act, Section 128 of the Customs Act does not lay down a long period. In these circumstances, to infer exclusion of Section 14 or the principles contained in Section 14 would be unduly harsh and would not advance the cause of justice. It must not be forgotten as is pointed out in the concurring judgment in Consolidated Engineering that:

“Even when there is cause to apply Section 14, the limitation period continues to be three months and not more, but in computing the limitation period of three months for the application under Section 34(1) of the AC Act, the time during which the applicant was prosecuting such application before the wrong court is excluded, provided the proceeding in the wrong court was prosecuted bona fide, with due diligence. Western Builders [(2006) 6 SCC 239] therefore lays down the correct legal position.”

(Emphasis supplied)

18. Second, as to the applicability of the principle contained in Section 14 of the Limitation Act, the Supreme Court further observed as below:

35. Merely because Parson Tools also dealt with a provision in a tax statute does not make the ratio of the said decision apply to a completely differently worded tax statute with a much shorter period of limitation – Section 128 of the Customs Act. Also, the principle of Section 14 would apply not merely in condoning delay within the outer period prescribed for condonation but would apply de hors such period for the reason pointed out in Consolidated Engineering above, being the difference between exclusion of a certain period altogether under Section 14 principles and condoning delay. As has been pointed out in the said judgment, when a certain period is excluded by applying the principles contained in Section 14, there is no delay to be attributed to the appellant and the limitation period provided by the concerned statute continues to be the stated period and not more than the stated period. We conclude, therefore, that the principle of Section 14 which is a principle based on advancing the cause of justice would certainly apply to exclude time taken in prosecuting proceedings which are bona fide and with due diligence pursued, which ultimately end without a decision on the merits of the case.”

(emphasis supplied)

19. Third, as to the object/purpose of Section 14 or its principle, the Supreme Court observed as below:

"41. The language of Section 14, construed in the light of the object for which the provision has been made, lends itself to such an interpretation. The object of Section 14 is that if its conditions are otherwise met, the plaintiff/applicant should be put in the same position as he was when he started an abortive proceeding. What is necessary is the absence of negligence or inaction. So long as the plaintiff or applicant is bonafide pursuing a legal remedy which turns out to be abortive, the time beginning from the date of the cause of action of an appellate proceeding is to be excluded if such appellate proceeding is from an order in an original proceeding instituted without jurisdiction or which has not resulted in an order on the merits of the case. If this were not so, anomalous results would follow. Take the case of a plaintiff or applicant who has succeeded at the first stage of what turns out to be an abortive proceeding. Assume that, on a given state of facts, a defendant ? appellant or other appellant takes six months more than the prescribed period for filing an appeal. The delay in filing the appeal is condoned. Under explanation (b) of Section 14, the plaintiff or the applicant resisting such an appeal shall be deemed to be prosecuting a proceeding. If the six month period together with the original period for filing the appeal is not to be excluded under Section 14, the plaintiff/applicant would not get a hearing on merits for no fault of his, as he in the example given is not the appellant. Clearly therefore, in such a case, the entire period of nine months ought to be excluded. If this is so for an appellate proceeding, it ought to be so for an original proceeding as well with this difference that the time already taken to file the original proceeding, i.e. the time prior to institution of the original proceeding cannot be excluded. Take a case where the limitation period for the original proceeding is six months. The plaintiff/applicant files such a proceeding on the ninetieth day i.e. after three months are over. The said proceeding turns out to be abortive after it has gone through a chequered career in the appeal courts. The same plaintiff/applicant now files a fresh proceeding before a court of first instance having the necessary jurisdiction. So long as the said proceeding is filed within the remaining three month period, Section 14 will apply to exclude the entire time taken starting from the ninety first day till the final appeal is ultimately dismissed. This example also goes to show that the expression ?the time during which the plaintiff has been prosecuting with due diligence another civil proceeding? needs to be construed in a manner which advances the object sought to be achieved, thereby advancing the cause of justice."

20. Fourth, as to interpretation of Section 14 of the Limitation Act, after considering the pre-existing law on that point, the Supreme Court opined-it must be interpreted extremely liberally as it furthers the cause of justice. Thus, it was observed below:

*"42. Section 14 has been interpreted by this Court extremely liberally inasmuch as it is a provision which furthers the cause of justice. Thus, in Union of India v. West Coast Paper Mills Ltd., (2004) 3 SCC 458, this Court held:*

“14. ... In the submission of the learned Senior Counsel, filing of civil writ petition claiming money relief cannot be said to be a proceeding instituted in good faith and secondly, dismissal of writ petition on the ground that it was not an appropriate remedy for seeking money relief cannot be said to be ‘defect of jurisdiction or other cause of a like nature’ within the meaning of Section 14 of the Limitation Act. It is true that the writ petition was not dismissed by the High Court on the ground of defect of jurisdiction. However, Section 14 of the Limitation Act is wide in its application, inasmuch as it is not confined in its applicability only to cases of defect of jurisdiction but it is applicable also to cases where the prior proceedings have failed on account of other causes of like nature. The expression ‘other cause of like nature’ came up for the consideration of this Court in Roshanlal Kuthalia v. R.B. Mohan Singh Oberoi[(1975) 4 SCC 628] and it was held that Section 14 of the Limitation Act is wide enough to cover such cases where the defects are not merely jurisdictional strictly so called but others more or less neighbours to such deficiencies. Any circumstance, legal or factual, which inhibits entertainment or consideration by the court of the dispute on the merits comes within the scope of the section and a liberal touch must inform the interpretation of the Limitation Act which deprives the remedy of one who has a right.”

Similarly, in India Electric Works Ltd. v. James Mantosh, (1971) 1 SCC 24, this Court held:

“7. It is well settled that although all questions of limitation must be decided by the provisions of the Act and the courts cannot travel beyond them the words ‘or other cause of a like nature’ must be construed liberally. Some clue is furnished with regard to the intention of the legislature by Explanation III in Section 14(2). Before the enactment of the Act in 1908, there was a conflict amongst the High Courts on the question whether misjoinder and non-joinder were defects which were covered by the words ‘or other cause of a like nature’. It was to set at rest this conflict that Explanation III was added. An extended meaning was thus given to these words. Strictly speaking misjoinder or non-joinder of parties could hardly be regarded as a defect of jurisdiction or something similar or analogous to it.”

(emphasis supplied)

21. Insofar as the decisions of the Madras High Court and High Court of Punjab and Haryana in M/s. SPK and Co. (supra) and M/s Arvind Fashion Limited (supra) are concerned, they too have laid down law consistent to the decision of the Supreme Court, in M.P. Steel (supra). While we may not find ourselves in perfect agreement to the expression of ‘merger’ used in those decisions, and may only say on rectification made by the same authority/court that order relates back to the date of the original order passed, on the meaty/fundamental issue of applicability of the underlying ‘principle’ of Section 14, we find ourselves in complete agreement, to those decisions.

22. Insofar as the order passed by co-ordinate bench in Atlantis Intelligence Ltd. (supra) is concerned, though the issue raised therein may have been slightly different, observation made in paragraph 14(D) is pertinent. For ready reference, it reads as below:

"D. The principle of Section 14 of the Limitation Act which is a principle based on advancing the cause of justice would certainly apply to exclude time taken in prosecuting proceedings which are bona fide and with due diligence pursued, which ultimately end without a decision on the merits of the case."

(emphasis supplied)

23. However, there may survive no merit in the other submission advanced by learned counsel for the petitioner on the strength of Section 29 of the Limitation Act. With respect to that, in M.P. Steel (supra), it was observed as below:

"28. The sheet anchor in Mukri Gopalan was Section 29(2) of the Limitation Act. Section 29(2) states:-

"29. Savings. — (2) Where any special or local law prescribes for any suit, appeal or application a period of limitation different from the period prescribed by the Schedule, the provisions of Section 3 shall apply as if such period were the period prescribed by the Schedule and for the purpose of determining any period of limitation prescribed for any suit, appeal or application by any special or local law, the provisions contained in Sections 4 to 24 (inclusive) shall apply only insofar as, and to the extent to which, they are not expressly excluded by such special or local law."

A bare reading of this Section would show that the special or local law described therein should prescribe for any suit, appeal or application a period of limitation different from the period prescribed by the schedule. This would necessarily mean that such special or local law would have to lay down that the suit, appeal or application to be instituted under it should be a suit, appeal or application of the nature described in the schedule. We have already held that such suits, appeals or applications as are referred to in the schedule are only to courts and not to quasi-judicial bodies or Tribunals. It is clear, therefore, that only when a suit, appeal or application of the description in the schedule is to be filed in a court under a special or local law that the provision gets attracted.

This is made even clearer by a reading of Section 29(3). Section 29(3) states:-

"29. Savings. — (3) Save as otherwise provided in any law for the time being in force with respect to marriage and divorce, nothing in this Act shall apply to any suit or other proceeding under any such law."

29. When it comes to the law of marriage and divorce, the Section speaks not only of suits but other proceedings as well. Such proceedings may be proceedings which are neither appeals nor applications thus making it clear that the laws relating to marriage and divorce, unlike the law of limitation, may contain proceedings other than suits, appeals or applications filed in courts. This again is an important pointer to the fact that the entirety of the Limitation Act including Section 29(2) would apply only to the three kinds of proceedings mentioned all of which are to be filed in courts."

(emphasis supplied)

24. Then, as to the objection raised by learned Standing Counsel on the strength of Hongo India (supra) and Glaxo Smith Kline (supra), those are cases that excluded applicability of Section 5 of the Limitation Act to proceedings under similar pari materia provisions of other Acts. The exclusion of principle contained in Section 5 of the Limitation Act arises not on the strength of any specific or direct exclusion offered under express provision of the Act or the Limitation Act, but by virtue of the self-contained specific scheme of limitation and condonation of delay limited (by time) provision in Section 107(1) read with Section 107(4) of the Act, as extracted above. In the first place, the period of limitation available to file appeals is three months. Second, the power to condone delay is limited and thus hedged in terms of the provisions of sub-section (4) of Section 107 of the Act, to one month.

25. Accordingly, the delay may be condoned for not more than one month. Once the power to condone delay has been specifically provided under Section 107(4) of the Act, that is a special Act, it amounts to necessary and automatic exclusion of the general principle contained in Section 5 of the Limitation Act. On that point, the decisions of the Supreme Court in Hongo India (supra) and Glaxo Smith Kline (supra) specifically hold the field. In Hongo India (supra), it has been observed as below:

"32. As pointed out earlier, the language used in Sections 35, 35-B, 35-EE, 35-G and 35-H makes the position clear that an appeal and reference to the High Court should be made within 180 days only from the date of communication of the decision or order. In other words, the language used in other provisions makes the position clear that the legislature intended the appellate authority to entertain the appeal by condoning the delay only up to 30 days after expiry of 60 days which is the preliminary limitation period for preferring an appeal. In the absence of any clause condoning the delay by showing sufficient cause after the prescribed period, there is complete exclusion of Section 5 of the Limitation Act. The High Court was, therefore, justified in holding that there was no power to condone the delay after expiry of the prescribed period of 180 days."

35. It was contended before us that the words "expressly excluded" would mean that there must be an express reference made in the special or local law to the specific provisions of the Limitation Act of which the operation is to be excluded. In this regard, we have to see the scheme of the special law which here in this case is the Central Excise Act. The nature of the remedy provided therein is such that the legislature intended it to be a complete code by itself which alone should govern the several matters provided by it. If, on an examination of the relevant provisions, it is clear that the provisions of the Limitation Act are necessarily excluded, then the benefits conferred therein cannot be called in aid to supplement the provisions of the Act. In our considered view, that even in a case where the special law does not exclude the provisions of Sections 4 to 24 of the Limitation Act by an express reference, it would nonetheless be open to the court to examine whether and to what extent, the nature of those provisions or the nature of the subject-matter and scheme of the special law exclude their operation. In other words, the applicability of the provisions of the Limitation Act, therefore, is to be judged not from the terms of the Limitation Act but by the provisions of the Central Excise Act relating to filing of reference application to the High Court.

36. The scheme of the Central Excise Act, 1944 supports the conclusion that the time-limit prescribed under Section 35-H(1) to make a reference to the High Court is absolute and unextendable by a court under Section 5 of the Limitation Act. It is well-settled law that it is the duty of the court to respect the legislative intent and by giving liberal interpretation, limitation cannot be extended by invoking the provisions of Section 5 of the Limitation Act."

37. In the light of the above discussion, we hold that the High Court has no power to condone the delay in filing the "reference application" filed by the Commissioner under unamended Section 35-H(1) of the Central Excise Act, 1944 beyond the prescribed period of 180 days and rightly dismissed the reference on the ground of limitation."

26. However, no such implied or necessary exclusion to the general applicability of the underlying principle of Section 14 of the Limitation Act may be read in the Act, even though it remains a special Act. As summarized by the Supreme Court in M.P. Steel (supra), Section 14 is a beneficial piece of legislation-to further the cause of justice where a person pursues a case with due diligence. He may not be non-suited occasioned by a mistake of seeking remedy before a wrong forum. Thus, the underlying principle of Section 14 recognizes-that it applies to persons (claiming its benefit), who may have admittedly made a mistake. Only then, the applicability of Section 14 of the Limitation Act may arise and not otherwise. As to what nature of mistake may lead to application of Section 14 of the Act, it is clear that it may be in the nature of lack of jurisdiction or defect of like nature (construed liberally). As to the wrong forum before whom, such mistake may have been committed, Section 14 is categorical. It includes in its scope, proceedings instituted before the original authority.

27. Seen in that light, an application seeking rectification of mistake was, filed by way of a remedy exists on the statute book. It lies before the authority that may have passed the order, including the Adjudication Authority. Whether such an application may be maintainable, and if maintainable, whether it may be allowed, are questions that may be answered only after conclusion of proceedings for rectification.

28. To the extent the statute creates a forum but permits exercise of its jurisdiction only in certain circumstances and not in others, it cannot be said that the application filed by the petitioner was so misconceived to begin with that it may be readily inferred therefrom-either it was not in 'good faith' or that it was not 'bona fide'. Therefore, that conclusion, if reached, would be harsh and may result in unnecessarily restricting natural full applicability of the underlying principle contained in Section 14 of the Limitation Act. That would itself obstruct the cause of justice.

29. The statutory remedy to seek rectification of our order being in addition to the statutory remedy to file an appeal, at first, limitation to seek either or both those remedies, starts running, simultaneously. If no application is filed under Section 161 of the Act to seek rectification (of a mistake in such order), upto three months, the limitation to seek rectification would expire at the end of three months. In that case, simultaneously, the normal period of limitation to file first appeal against such order would also have run continuously and concurrently and, therefore, it would also be exhausted, simultaneously. If, however, before expiry of three months, an application is filed under Section 161 of the Act, to seek rectification in that order, the running of limitation (to file appeal against such order), would be put in abeyance from the date of filing of such application, upto the date when that application is decided.

30. This leads us to the conclusion, to apply the underlying principle of Section 14 Limitation Act, wherever an application seeking rectification of mistake apparent on the face of record may be filed within time, as may have been done in the present case, the application of the underlying principle of Section 14 Limitation Act, may not be examined with a microscope, any further. To the extent that application is filed 'bona fide' in 'good faith' and is pursued, that principle would apply, without doubt. The only exception to that principle may be where the application seeking rectification of a mistake is itself filed beyond the period of limitation prescribed under Section 161 of the Act. There no such benefit may arise. Here, that application was filed within the time prescribed under the said provisions.

31. To the extent, respondent no. 3 rejected that application, we find occasion arose to the petitioner to claim benefit of Section 14 of the Limitation Act, occasioned by the mistake on part of the petitioner, in filing that application. Consequentially, and without exception, the duration of that application (filed by the petitioner seeking rectification of mistake in the adjudication order dated 23.4.2024), having remained pending, has to be excluded from the limitation to file appeal, as running of limitation remained in abeyance, during pendency of application filed under Section 161 of the Act. Here, that period must be excluded. Thus, the appeal was filed within two months and nine days from the date of the ex-parte adjudication order. The period of limitation being three months, the appeal filed was well within limitation.

32. Consequently, the writ petition is allowed. Accordingly, the order dated 23.04.2024 is set aside and the appeal is restored to its original number and status. We expect that the same would be dealt with and decided strictly in accordance with law on merits, expeditiously.

33. No order as to costs.

CASE ARISING FROM

Criminal Case No. 5043 of 2019 (State v. Gaurav Mehta) - FIR No. 0869 of 2019, PS Surajpur, Gautam Buddh Nagar - Summoning order dated 17.10.2019 by Second Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Gautam Buddh Naga.

APPEARANCE OF PARTIES

Counsel for Appellant: - Sri Ishir Sripat,
Counsel for Respondent: - Sri Anamika Chopra,
Shri O P Dwivedi, AGA.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Vikram D.
Chauhan, J.)

1. Heard Sri Ishir Sripat, learned counsel for Applicant, Ms. Anamika Chopra, Opposite party no. 2 appearing in person and Sri O.P. Dwivedi, learned A.G.A. for the State.

2. The present application under Section 482 of Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973, is preferred by Applicant challenging summoning order dated 17.10.2019 passed by learned Second Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Gautam Buddh Nagar as well as entire proceedings in pursuance to Criminal Case No. 5043 of 2019 (State Vs. Gaurav Mehta) under Section 466 of Indian Penal Code, Police Station-Surajpur, District-Gautambudh Nagar in the court of Second Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Gautam Buddh Nagar.

3. The brief facts arising out of present case are as under :-

a) The Applicant and Opposite party no. 2, marriage was solemnized on 27.2.2004 at Noida.

b) Out of aforesaid wedlock, one son namely Abhimanyu Mehta (renamed to Aryaman Chopra) was born on 27.12.2004. The Applicant and Opposite party no. 2, resided as husband & wife till 16.8.2006 whereafter due to differences between the parties, they approached the court of District Judge, New Delhi and Divorce Decree under Section 13B of Hindu Marriage Act, 1955 was passed vide Judgement and Decree dated 20.8.2007.

c) The Applicant and Opposite party no. 2 thereafter resided separately and the abovementioned son of parties resided with Opposite party no. 2. Thereafter for maintenance of said son, Opposite party no. 2 instituted Case No. 374 of 2013 (earlier number being 50 of 2009) under Section 125 of Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973. In the aforesaid application maintenance to the tune of Rs.15,000/- per month was claimed in respect of above-mentioned child.

d) In the said application under Section 125 of Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973, an order was passed by court concerned on 26.2.2019 directing Applicant to submit last three years income tax return, bank account details, fixed deposit or bond and other movable assets and salary slip.

e) The Applicant in pursuance to aforementioned order dated 26.2.2019 filed his submissions before the court concerned (where proceeding under Section 125 Cr.P.C. was pending, hereinafter referred to as Maintenance Court) wherein the statement of ICICI bank account for Year 2011-12, 2012-13 and 2013-14 was also submitted before the Maintenance Court. The Maintenance Court further by order dated 30.4.2019 directed Applicant to submit salary slip and details of immovable property.

f) The Maintenance Court by order dated 21.11.2019 directed the Applicant to pay Rs. 15,000/- per month towards maintenance of the son till he attains majority.

g) The Opposite party no 2 thereafter lodged a zero first information report in New Delhi, which was subsequently lodged on 22.7.2019 as Case Crime No. 0869 of 2019 at Police Station Surajpur, District-Gautam Buddh Nagar, under Sections 420, 468 and 471 of Indian Penal Code against Applicant. In the above-mentioned first information report, it is alleged that informant was engaged in child maintenance litigation with Applicant for almost 10 years and Applicant had refused to maintain his own son. By order dated 26.2.2019 passed by the A.S.J./F.T.C., Gautam Buddh Nagar, the court had ordered for production of documents in respect of Applicant being bank statements and details of immovable property, fixed deposits, shares, bonds and other related financial documents before the next date of hearing. In response to above-mentioned order dated 26.2.2019, Applicant filed bank statement of ICICI bank account for time period 2011-12, 2012-13, 2013-14 along with affidavit stating that Applicant owned no vehicle or any other immovable assets. The ICICI Bank statement filed by Applicant for above-mentioned financial years are forged and fabricated document submitted by Applicant in order to mislead the court into believing that his income is far less than the actual. The Applicant further concealed information of his financial relationship with ICICI bank besides the saving bank account. The informant inquired and came to know that bank statement filed by Applicant does not conform to format in which bank statement issued by ICICI bank. The statement submitted in the court does not have ICICI bank stamp and authorised signature, making it evident that the documents are fabricated. It is also alleged that complaint was made to the DCP, Parliament Street, New Delhi as the master data shows that the head office of bank is at Barakhamba Road, New Delhi. During the course of enquiry, the police obtained bank statement of said account from ICICI Bank. On perusal of bank statement filed by Applicant before Maintenance Court and account statement obtained from ICICI Bank, it came to light that various entries were deleted from bank statement that was submitted in Maintenance Court in order to conceal his correct income and mislead the court and on account of aforesaid, the application of informant under Section 91 of Cr.P.C. was rejected by court concerned.

h) The Investigating Officer thereafter has recorded the statement of the informant under Section 161 of Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 on 22.7.2019 wherein the informant has supported the prosecution case.

i) The Investigating Officer thereafter submitted the charge-sheet dated 23.9.2019 under Section 466 of Indian Penal Code against the Applicant and thereafter the court concerned by impugned order dated 17.10.2019, summoned the Applicant for offence under Section 466 of Indian Penal Code.

4. It is submitted by learned counsel for Applicant that Applicant is being proceeded and summoned under Section 466 I.P.C. by the impugned summoning order dated 17.10.2019. Learned counsel for Applicant further submits that Applicant and Opposite party no. 2 were husband & wife and divorce order was passed on 20.08.2007. Learned counsel for Applicant further submits that out of said wedlock, one son was born. An application was filed by Opposite party no. 2 on behalf of minor child for maintenance under Section 125 Cr.P.C. on 11.9.2009. In the aforesaid application an order was passed on 26.2.2019 directing the Applicant to produce statement of last three years i.e. from the date of order dated 26.2.2019. Learned counsel for Applicant further submits that in pursuance to the aforesaid order, statements were submitted which is annexed at page no. 164 of paper book wherein paragraph no. 7, the statement of account for the years 2011-12, 2012-13 and 2013-14 were submitted. Learned counsel for Applicant further submits that the said document were only the excerpts of statement of account and actual statement of account are submitted before this Court. The documents including the statement of bank entries is from page no. 72 of the paper book. It is submitted that the aforesaid application under Section 125 Cr.P.C. was allowed by order dated 21.11.2019 granting maintenance of Rs. 15,000/- per month to the child. The claim in the application under Section 125 Cr.P.C. itself was in respect of Rs. 15,000/- per month which was allowed in toto.

5. Learned counsel for Applicant further submits that since last three years statement of account was not submitted and order was passed on 30.4.2019 directing Applicant to submit the salary slip which was submitted. Learned counsel for Applicant further submits that it is not in dispute that the alleged statement of account filed before the Magistrate concerned (Maintenance Court), which is at page no. 72 of paper book, was not the exact copy of statement of account received by the Investigating Officer from the ICICI Bank and there are some missing debit and credit entries. However, learned counsel for Applicant further submits that for the purpose of Section 466 of IPC read with Section 463 I.P.C., forgery would lie if there is any wrongful gain/wrongful loss or dishonest intention. Learned counsel for Applicant further submits that there was no wrongful gain or wrongful loss to any of the parties as Section 125 Cr.P.C. application was finalised in favour of the son of Applicant and as such the present proceedings are not maintainable. Learned counsel for Applicant has also relied upon the judgments of the Supreme Court in Vimla Vs. Delhi Administration, AIR 1963 SC 1572, Commissioner of Customs (Preventive) Vs. Aafloat Textiles (I) Pvt. Ltd. and Ors., (2009) 11 SCC 18 and Vishnu Kumar Gupta and Ors. Vs. State of U.P. and Ors., 2020 (11) ADJ 615. It is further submitted that in view of judgments of Supreme Court the present criminal proceedings would not be tenable unless the finding is recorded that there was any wrongful loss or wrongful gain to any of the parties. Learned counsel for Applicant further submits that perusal of summoning order would go to show that same is on the printed proforma which is in teeth of the judgment of the Supreme Court in Vishnu Kumar Gupta (supra).

6. The Opposite party no. 2 appearing in person submits that it is not in dispute between the parties that statement of account submitted by the Applicant before the Magistrate concerned under Section 125 Cr.P.C. were not the same statement of account as was recovered by the Investigating Officer during investigation. The Opposite party no. 2 further submits that debit and credit entries were missing and in the aforesaid entries some of entries pertain to transfer of amount to another bank account and by deleting the reference to the aforesaid entries in statement of account submitted before the Maintenance Court, the Applicant has tried to mislead and deceive in judicial proceedings.

7. The Opposite party no. 2 further submits that maintenance proceedings in respect of minor child travelled for ten years on account of all these activities by Applicant. The maintenance petition was finally decided after giving 177 dates and in the year 2019 only final documents were submitted which was also incorrect. It is also submitted by Opposite party no. 2 that the present application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. would not be maintainable in view of the law laid down by the Supreme Court in State of Haryana Vs. Bhajan Lal, 1992 SCC (Cri) 426, the present case does not fall in any of the parameters of Bhajan Lal (supra) case.

8. Learned A.G.A. has opposed the prayer made by learned counsel for Applicant and submits that there was difference in the statement of account recovered by the Investigating Officer and the statement of account which Applicant had submitted before the Maintenance Court and on the aforesaid basis charge sheet has been submitted under Section 466 I.P.C. and the court concerned has not erred in law in issuing the summoning order.

9. The present Applicant is summoned by order dated 17.10.2019 under Section 466 of Indian Penal Code. The first information report was lodged by Opposite party no. 2 at Police Station-Surajpur, District-Gautam Budhnagar under Sections 420, 468, 471 of Indian Penal Code against the Applicant. In the above-mentioned first information report it is alleged that Informant-Opposite party no. 2 was engaged in child maintenance litigation with Applicant for almost ten years and the Applicant had refused to maintain his own son. By order dated 26.2.2019 passed by A.S.J./F.T.C., Gautam Budh Nagar, the court had ordered for production of documents in respect of Applicant's bank details/statements and details of immovable property, fixed deposits, shares, bonds and other related financial documents before the next date of hearing. In response to above-mentioned order dated 26.2.2019, Applicant filed bank statement from ICICI Bank account for time period 2011-12, 2012-13, 2013-14 along with affidavit stating that Applicant owned no vehicle or any other immovable assets. The ICICI Bank statement filed by Applicant for above-mentioned financial years is a forged and fabricated document and has been made by Applicant in order to mislead the court into believing that his income is far less than actual. The Applicant further concealed information of his financial relationship with ICICI Bank besides the saving bank account. The informant inquired and came to know that the bank statement filed by Applicant does not conform to format in which bank statement is issued by ICICI Bank. The statement submitted in the court does not have ICICI Bank stamp and authorised signature making evident that documents are fabricated. It is also alleged that the complaint was made to the DCP, Parliament Street, New Delhi as the Master data shows that the head office of the bank is at Barakhamba Road, New Delhi. During the course of enquiry, the police obtained bank statement of the said account from the ICICI Bank. On perusal of the bank statement filed by Applicant before Maintenance Court and the account statement obtained from ICICI Bank, it came to light that various entries were deleted from bank statement that was submitted in the Maintenance Court in order to conceal Applicant's correct income and mislead the court and on account of aforesaid, the application of informant under section 91 of Cr.P.C. was rejected by Maintenance Court.

10. The Applicant and Opposite party No. 2 were married on 27.2.2004 at Noida. Out of the said wedlock a child was born on 27.12.2004. A Divorce Decree was passed by the court of District Judge, Delhi by Judgement and Decree dated 20.8.2007 passed in H.M.A. No 483 of 2007. Thereafter, the Applicant and Opposite party no. 2 are residing separately, however, the son is residing with Opposite party no. 2. The Opposite party no. 2 thereafter instituted Case No. 374 of 2013 (earlier number 50 of 2009) under Section 125 of the Code of Criminal Procedure for maintenance of the above-mentioned son.

11. In the above-mentioned case on 26.2.2019, the court concerned (before whom the maintenance proceedings were pending) directed the Applicant to file his last three years income tax returns, current bank account details along with details of other assets. The above-mentioned order dated 26.2.2019 passed by Maintenance Court is quoted hereinbelow:-

16. In the present case, Applicant is being proceeded with under Section 466 of Indian Penal Code. The aforesaid section provides that whoever forges a document or an electronic record, purporting to be a record or proceeding of or in a Court of Justice, or a register of birth, baptism, marriage or burial, or a register kept by a public servant as such, or a certificate or document purporting to be made by a public servant in his official capacity, or an authority to institute or defend a suit, or to take any proceedings therein, or to confess judgment, or a power of attorney, shall be punished with imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to seven years, and shall also be liable to fine.

17. The offence of forgery is defined under Section 463 of Indian Penal Code as whoever makes any false document or false electronic record or part of a document or electronic record, with intent to cause damage or injury, to the public or to any person, or to support any claim or title, or to cause any person to part with property, or to enter into any express or implied contract, or with intent to commit fraud or that fraud may be committed, commits forgery.

18. Section 464 of Indian Penal Code defines making of false document and the same is quoted hereunder :-

“464. Making a false document.-

A person is said to make a false document or false electronic record-

First-Who dishonestly or fraudulently-

(a) makes, signs, seals or executes a document or part of a document; (b) makes or transmits any electronic record or part of any electronic record; (c) affixes any electronic signature on any electronic record;

(d) makes any mark denoting the execution of a document or the authenticity of the electronic signature, with the intention of causing it to be believed that such document or part of document, electronic record or electronic signature was made, signed, sealed, executed, transmitted or affixed by or by the authority of a person by whom or by whose authority he knows that it was not made, signed, sealed, executed or affixed; or

Secondly-Who without lawful authority, dishonestly or fraudulently, by cancellation or otherwise, alters a document or an electronic record in any material part thereof, after it has been made, executed or affixed with electronic signature either by himself or by any other person, whether such person be living or dead at the time of such alteration; or

Thirdly-Who dishonestly or fraudulently causes any person to sign, seal, execute or alter a document or an electronic record or to affix his electronic signature on any electronic record knowing that such person by reason of unsoundness of mind or intoxication cannot, or that by reason of deception practised upon him, he does not know the contents of the document or electronic record or the nature of the alteration.”

19. In the present case, the allegations of informant - Opposite party no. 2 are to the effect that Applicant had filed before court concerned (where the maintenance proceedings were instituted by Opposite party no. 2), statement of account of ICICI Bank which did not reflect the true entries as per the original statement of account of bank. It is not in dispute between the parties that disputed statement of account was filed by Applicant before the court concerned. It is also not denied by Applicant before this Court that disputed statement of account filed by Applicant before the Maintenance Court are at variance with the original statement of account of ICICI Bank of the same period. The background of present litigation arises out of a dispute between the Applicant (husband) and Opposite party no. 2 (wife)

[although at the date of the filing of the maintenance proceedings a divorce was entered into between Applicant and the Opposite party no. 2]. The maintenance proceedings were preferred by Opposite party no. 2 claiming maintenance of minor son born out of abovementioned wedlock. In the aforesaid maintenance proceedings, the court concerned directed the Applicant to file statement of bank and in this background, the disputed document (being the statement of account of ICICI Bank) was preferred/filed by Applicant before court concerned (the court where the maintenance proceedings were pending).

20. In a litigation before any court of law, it is imperative that the parties make fair disclosure before the court and same is based on principle of maintaining integrity of judicial process. The parties to litigation are expected to come with clean hands before the court of law. Filing a forged document is a direct assault on said principle. It is an attempt to pervert the course of justice by deceiving the court into accepting a false reality as truth. Filing of forged document before court of law gives an unfair advantage and disturbs the level playing field which the courts are bound to maintain. Any attempt to prefer forged document before any court, is to be construed as an insult to the majesty of law.

21. In the context of present case, the essential ingredient for an offence under Section 466 of the Indian Penal Code is as under :-

(a) the accused forged a document

(b) the document was a record of proceedings of or in the court of law.

22. It is not in dispute between the parties that statement of account of ICICI Bank (disputed document) was part of the record of court (in maintenance proceedings). Insofar as forging of disputed document by accused-applicant is concerned, the language of Section 463 of Indian Penal Code envisages that whoever makes any false document or part of document with intent to cause damage or injury to any person or to support any claim or title or to cause any person to part with the property or to enter into any express or implied contract or with intent to commit fraud or that the fraud may be committed. The essential ingredients under Section 463 of Indian Penal Code are as under :-

(a) making of false document or part of document by the accused

(b) with the intent :-

A. to cause damage or injury to any person or

B. to support any claim or title or,

C. to cause any person to part with property or

D. to enter into any express or implied contract or

E. to commit fraud or that fraud may be committed.

23. In respect of the first ingredient of Section 463 of Indian Penal Code the expression of making of false document or part of document is concerned, the same is expressed in Section 464 of Indian Penal Code. Section 464 of Indian Penal Code provides that a person is said to make a false document (in context of present controversy) who dishonestly or fraudulently makes a document or part of document with intention of causing it to be believed that such document or part of document was made by the authority of a person by whom or by whose authority such person knows that it was not made.

24. One of the important aspects of “making a false document” under Section 464 of Indian Penal Code is the expression “dishonestly” or “fraudulently”. In the aforesaid Section 464 of Indian Penal Code, the expression “dishonestly” or “fraudulently” is used alternatively indicating that the one excludes the other. The implication of aforesaid would be that the making of false document would be either dishonestly or fraudulently. Section 24 of Indian Penal Code defines “dishonestly” as whoever does anything with the intention of causing wrongful gain to one person or wrongful loss to another person is said to do that thing dishonestly. The expression “fraudulently” is denoted under Section 25 of Indian Penal Code that person is said to do a thing fraudulently if he does that thing with intent to defraud but not otherwise.

25. The Supreme Court in Vimla (supra) while analysing the distinction between the expression “dishonestly” and “fraudulently” has observed in paragraph no. 10 as under :-

“10. The word "defraud" includes an element of deceit. Deceit is not an ingredient of the definition of the word "dishonestly" while it is an important ingredient of the definition of the words "fraudulently". The former involves a pecuniary or economic gain or loss while the latter by construction excludes that element. Further, the juxtaposition of the two expressions "dishonestly" and "fraudulently" used in the various sections of the Code indicates their close affinity and therefore the definition of one may give colour to the other. To illustrate, in the definition of "dishonestly", wrongful gain or wrongful loss is the necessary ingredient. Both need not exist, one would be enough.

So too, if the expression "fraudulently" were to be held to involve the element of injury to the person or persons deceived it would be reasonable to assume that the injury should be something other than pecuniary or economic loss. Though almost always an advantage to one causes loss to another and vice versa, it need not necessarily be so. Should we hold that the concept of "fraud" should include not only deceit but also some injury to the person deceived, it would be appropriate to hold by analogy drawn from the definition of "dishonestly" that to satisfy the definition of "fraudulently" it would be enough if there was a non-economic advantage to the deceiver or a non-economic loss to the deceived. Both need not co-exist.”

26. In respect of the expression “dishonestly” the same involves a pecuniary or economic gain or loss. However, the expression “fraudulently” involves injury which should be something other than pecuniary or economic loss. The expression “defraud” in the definition of Fraudulently would have two elements namely “deceit” and “injury”. The expression “injury” is defined under Section 44 of Indian Penal Code denotes any harm whatever illegally caused to any person, in body, mind, reputation or property. The question of defraud may therefore also arise where the injury occurs in the mind or body of the person deceived. The Supreme Court in Vimla (supra) in respect of expression “defraud” in paragraph no. 33 has observed as under :-

“33. To summarize: the expression "defraud" involves two elements, namely, deceit and injury to the person deceived. Injury is something other than economic loss that is, deprivation of property, whether movable or immovable, or of money, and it will include any harm whatever caused to any person in body, mind, reputation or such others. In short, it is a non-economic or non-pecuniary loss. A benefit or advantage to the deceiver will almost always cause loss or detriment to the deceived. Even in those rare cases where there is a benefit or advantage to the deceiver, but no corresponding loss to the deceived, the second condition is satisfied."

27. Once any act is done fraudulently, the injury may also arise in the mind or reputation of an individual, therefore, the question of nature of injury is a matter of evidence or inference drawn from proved facts. The Supreme Court in Indian Bank Vs. Satyam Fibres (India) Pvt. Ltd., (1996) 5 SCC 550 has observed as under: -

"29. Forgery under the Indian Penal Code is an offence which has been defined in Section 463, while Section 464, deals with the making of a false document. Section 465 prescribes punishment for forgery. "Forged document" is defined in Section 470 while Section 471 deals with the crime of using as genuine, the forged document.

30. Forgery and Fraud are essentially matters of evidence which could be proved as a fact by direct evidence or by inferences drawn from proved facts.

31. The Privy Council in Satish Chandra Chatterji v. Kumar Satish Kantha Roy and Ors. AIR (1923) PC 73, laid down as under:

"Charges of fraud and collusion like those contained in the plaint in this case must, no doubt, be proved by those who make them - proved by established facts or inferences legitimately drawn from those facts taken together as a whole. Suspensions and surmises and conjecture are not permissible substitutes for those facts or those inferences, but that by no means requires that every puzzling artifice or contrivance resorted to by one accused of fraud must necessarily be completely unravelled and cleared up and made plain before a verdict can be properly found against him. If this were not so, many a clever and dextrous knave would escape."

28. In view of the above, the nature of injury caused to an individual is a question of evidence or inference drawn from proved facts. An individual in such transaction may suffer injury in the mind or reputation or other manner. Such an issue can only be ascertained when the evidence is led and the trial is undertaken. Even otherwise whether an individual has suffered any pecuniary loss is also to be examined and proved at the trial.

29. Insofar as the second essential ingredient is concerned, the stand taken by Applicant (in paragraph no. 10 of affidavit filed in support of present application) is to the effect that the excerpts of the salary account for relevant years were filed in compliance of order dated 26.2.2019 of Maintenance Court. The order dated 26.2.2019 of court concerned specifically directed for submission of detail of relevant bank account. The Applicant has submitted along with the submission, the detailed statement of ICICI Bank account of Applicant with specific statement in paragraph no. 7 of the submission (before Maintenance Court) that in compliance of order of Hon'ble Court, bank account statement of ICICI (salary saving account) 2011-12, 2012-13 and 2013-14 and the detailed statement of ICICI Bank (disputed document) was submitted by Applicant along with the submission before Maintenance Court. Before this Court, the stand has been taken by Applicant that the excerpts of salary account were submitted through disputed document. Such a stand has not been shown to have been taken before Maintenance Court or in submission submitted before the court concerned (in maintenance proceedings) by Applicant. The heading of disputed document (statement of account of ICICI Bank before Maintenance Court) states it to be a "DETAILED STATEMENT" along with logo of ICICI Bank. The aforesaid disputed document nowhere makes any endorsement that the aforesaid disputed document is an excerpt. The nature of entries that have been found missing in the disputed document (as mentioned hereinabove) would go to show that the same would have important bearing on the maintenance claim made by Opposite party no. 2. The selective missing entries (as detailed hereinabove) in the statement of bank (disputed document) without any explanation offered by Applicant before this Court as to why the aforesaid entries were not shown in the disputed document, shows that the entries have not been disclosed before the court concerned.

30. The presentation of detailed statement of ICICI Bank in respect of the account of Applicant before Maintenance Court with missing entries (as detailed hereinabove) more specifically when the same was required by the court concerned by order dated 26.2.2019 is prima facie indicative that the potential use for hiding of entries in the bank statement from the court concerned was to support the claim/defence made by the Applicant before the court concerned or to cause damage to the claim for maintenance preferred by Opposite party no. 2. It is not in dispute between the parties that the disputed document was presented by Applicant before Maintenance Court and the stand of Applicant that the document disputed is excerpts of salary account which necessarily implies that document was made by Applicant. The disputed document did not reflect all the entries of statement of account of bank and some of entries were not placed before Maintenance Court, however, disputed document was presented as detailed statement of ICICI Bank and in the disputed document there was no narration to the effect that the disputed document contains excerpts of original statement of account of bank as such prima facie the document was a false document made by the Applicant. The fairness required that the Applicant ought to have declared before the court concerned that the disputed document represents some of the entries of the original statement of account. The question of nature of disputed document and the manner in which the same was presented before the court concerned is a question of evidence which can be detailed at the stage of trial. At this stage, prima facie the disputed document is false in nature, as it does not reflect the true and complete entries of statement of account of bank.

31. At the stage of issuing process, the Magistrate is mainly concerned with the allegations made in the First Information Report or the material in support of the same. The court concerned is only to be prima facie satisfied whether there are sufficient grounds for proceeding against the accused. The expression "sufficient ground" provided in Sections 203, 204 and 209 of Criminal Procedure Code means the satisfaction that a prima facie case is made out against the person accused of committing an offence and not sufficient ground for the purpose of conviction. The Court is not expected to weigh the evidence meticulously or determine the likelihood of conviction at this stage.

32. The First Information report and the material in support of the allegations, do constitute a prima facie case against the Applicant for issuance of summons in view of the facts, circumstances and reasons stated herein above.

33. Insofar as the argument of learned counsel for Applicant that impugned summoning order has been issued without application of mind is concerned, as the learned counsel for Applicant has advanced argument on the merits of case and this Court hereinabove has found sufficient material so that the summoning order can be issued coupled with the fact that at the time of final hearing of the present application, learned counsel for Applicant pressed that the merits of the case may be gone into by this Court as such no useful purpose would be served if the matter is remanded to the court concerned for decision afresh (on the ground that the summoning order is issued without application of mind) in view of the findings recorded hereinabove.

34. In view of the facts, circumstances and reasons hereinabove mentioned, the present application under Section 482 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 lacks merits and is hereby dismissed.

CASE ARISING FROM

Case Crime No. 06/2025 - Police Station - ATS, Lucknow.

APPEARANCE OF PARTIES

Counsel for Appellant: - Sri Azizullah Khan, Mohammad Alishah Faruqi, Obaidullah, Counsel for Respondent: - Sri Shiv Nath Tilhari, AGA-1.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Pramod Kumar
Srivastava, J.)

1. Heard the learned counsel for the applicant and Shri Shiv Nath Tilhari, learned AGA-1 for the State-ATS.

2. This application has been filed under Section 528 of the Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023 (though it is wrongly transcribed in the memo of petition as BNS), with the prayer that this Hon'ble Court may graciously be pleased to issue a suitable Writ, Order, or Direction, including a Writ in the nature of certiorari, quashing the judicial remand order dated 22.05.2025 and subsequent remand orders of different dates, passed in connection with Case Crime No. 06/2025, Police Station-ATS, Lucknow. The petitioner further seeks a declaration that his arrest is illegal and ab initio void for being in blatant violation of the mandatory provisions of Article 22(1) of the Constitution of India and Section 50 of the Cr.P.C. / Section 47 of the BNSS.

3. The brief facts of the case are that the petitioner, Mohd. Haroon, was arrested in connection with the aforesaid crime. Learned AGA stated that the petitioner has made an attempt to wage war against the Government of India. The prosecution case is that Mohd. Haroon is an agent of an enemy country who, at the behest of Mujammil Husain (posted in Pakistan High Commission at Delhi), was involved in preparing fake insurance documents to secure visas for individuals, for which he earned a commission. The petitioner had commercial transactions with Dev Raj, Surendra, and Atul Chaudhary, from whom he used to buy scrap material and shared the profits with Mujammil. The petitioner was in communication with Mujammil Hussain and is alleged to have communicated security information to him, which was then sent to Pakistan.

4. Learned counsel for the petitioner submits that the petitioner's arrest was made disregarding the pious provisions of the Constitution and that his personal liberty has been curtailed without any valid judicial verdict or remand order. He submits that he was not communicated the grounds of arrest, as held by the Hon'ble Apex Court in cases like Prabir Purkayastha and Vihaan Kumar. He argues that the arrest memo is vague and non-specific, which prevented the accused from availing a remedy to protect his fundamental rights, thereby rendering the arrest illegal, arbitrary, and unconstitutional. He stresses that the communication of grounds of arrest must be in specific and clear terms and is not a mere formality, and oral disclosure does not constitute compliance. He also contends that the arrest was carried out in a mechanical way without the application of mind by the police and that the learned Duty Magistrate also passed the remand order dated 22.05.2025 in a mechanical manner, making the remand sheet and subsequent orders illegal.

5. Learned counsel for the appellant relied on the following judgments:

Prabir Purkayastha vs. State of (NCT of Delhi); (2024) 8 SCC 254, Vihaan Kumar vs. State of Haryana & Another (2025) 5 SCC 799, Ashish Kakkar v. State (UT of Chandigarh), 2025 SCC OnLine SC 1318 & Anwar Dhebar v. State of U.P., 2025 SCC OnLine All 3278.

6. The Learned counsel for the respondent submits that the petitioner was called for inquiry by the Police Station-ATS, Lucknow. During the inquiry, he stated all the facts. Upon being satisfied that the petitioner had actively participated in activities against the Indian Government, amounting to waging war and endangering the sovereignty, unity and integrity of India, the petitioner was arrested. At the time of arrest, the grounds of arrest were communicated to him. A detailed Fard Memo of Recovery was prepared on the spot, explained to the petitioner, and a copy thereof was provided to the accused. Thus, all statutory and constitutional provisions were complied with, and consequently, there is no violation of any provision of law. He submits that the Duty Magistrate perused the relevant documents and, upon being satisfied that a prima facie case had been made out, remanded the petitioner in custody. He next submits that a thorough investigation has been conducted, and upon its conclusion, a charge sheet under appropriate sections was filed against the petitioner. The Learned Trial Court has taken cognizance of the offence. Therefore, the petition is misconceived and liable to be dismissed.

7. I have considered the submissions of learned counsel for the parties and perused the material available on record.

8. The crux of the petition is that the non-compliance with the mandatory provisions contained under Article 22(1) of the Constitution of India and Section 50 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (Cr.P.C.) (corresponding to Section 47 of the Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023 (BNSS))—which safeguard the fundamental right of a person to be informed of the grounds of arrest "as soon as may be," and the corresponding statutory duty of the arresting officer to communicate the same—asserting that this non-disclosure, coupled with allegations of pre-arrest detention and a seemingly cursory remand order, has rendered his continued detention in judicial custody perverse and illegal, leading to a direct infringement of Article 21 (Protection of Life and Personal Liberty) and making the initial detention and subsequent remand orders unsustainable in law; consequently, this petition requires the examination of the interplay between Article 21 and Article 22(1) of the Constitution, compelling the Court to carefully scrutinize the entire record, including the written submissions tendered by both parties, the factual matrix documented in the FIR and the recovery memo, and the crucial judicial orders passed, to determine the maintainability and merits of the petition in the light of the settled constitutional jurisprudence.

9. This petition requires examination of the interplay between Article 21 (Protection of Life and Personal Liberty) and Article 22(1) (Right to be informed of Grounds of Arrest) of the Constitution.

10. I find that Article 22(1) serves as a mandatory safeguard, a condition precedent for the exercise of the power of arrest. The Courts have consistently held that non-compliance with the duty to inform the person of the grounds of arrest, as soon as may be, would be an infringement of the due process clause under Article 21. The relevant provision of Article 21, Article 22(1) are extracted here-in-below:-

"21. Protection of life and personal liberty. —No person shall be deprived of his life or personal liberty except according to procedure established by law.

22. Protection against arrest and detention in certain cases. — (1) No person who is arrested shall be detained in custody without being informed, as soon as may be, of the grounds for such arrest nor shall he be denied the right to consult, and to be defended by, a legal practitioner of his choice."

11. This Court has also considered the constitutional provisions and the statutory mandates: Article 21 (Protection of Life and Personal Liberty) and Article 22(1) (Right to be informed of Grounds of Arrest) of the Constitution of India, read with Section 47 of the Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023 (BNSS) (Duty to inform grounds of arrest) and Section 58 BNSS (Maximum detention of 24 hours). The violation of any of these four provisions—Article 21, Article 22(1), Section 47, and Section 58—has been interpreted to have significant repercussions on the legality of the detention, potentially transforming a legal arrest into illegal confinement; however, based on the record, I find that the mandate under Section 58 BNSS was fully complied with, as the petitioner's arrest was recorded on 21.05.2025 at about 18:50 hours and he was produced before the Duty Magistrate on the following date, 22.05.2025, which was "within the statutory 24-hour period," thereby rejecting the allegation of illegal detention beyond 24 hours as "unsubstantiated by the record"; furthermore, while the petitioner argued a violation of Section 47 BNSS due to missing grounds in the arrest memo, I have found that the constitutional and statutory requirements were "substantially adhered to" by providing the petitioner with the detailed, simultaneously prepared, and signed Recovery Memo, which contained the factual basis for the arrest. The relevant provision of Section 47 and 58 of BNSS are extracted here-in-below:-

"47. (1) Every police officer or other person arresting any person without warrant shall forthwith communicate to him full particulars of the offence for which he is arrested or other grounds for such arrest.

(2) Where a police officer arrests without warrant any person other than a person accused of a non-bailable offence, he shall inform the person arrested that he is entitled to be released on bail and that he may arrange for sureties on his behalf.

58. No police officer shall detain in custody a person arrested without warrant for a longer period than under all the circumstances of the case is reasonable, and such period shall not, in the absence of a special order of a Magistrate under section 187, exceed twenty-four hours exclusive of the time necessary for the journey from the place of arrest to the Magistrate's Court, whether having jurisdiction or not.."

12. The Supreme Court in the case of Pankaj Bansal Vs. Union of India (Supra) has held that the constitutional right to be informed of the grounds of arrest, enshrined in Article 22(1), must be communicated to the arrested person advisably in writing. The relevant paragraphs 38, 42, 43 and 45 are extracted here-in-below:-

"38. In this regard, I may note that Article 22(1) of the Constitution provides, inter alia, that no person who is arrested shall be detained in custody without being informed, as soon as may be, of the grounds for such arrest. This being the fundamental right guaranteed to the arrested person, the mode of conveying information of the grounds of arrest must necessarily be meaningful so as to serve the intended purpose. It may be noted that Section 45 PMLA enables the person arrested under Section 19 thereof to seek release on bail but it postulates that unless the twin conditions prescribed thereunder are satisfied, such a person would not be entitled to grant of bail. The twin conditions set out in the provision are that, firstly, the court must be satisfied, after giving an opportunity to the Public Prosecutor to oppose the application for release, that there are reasonable grounds to believe that the arrested person is not guilty of the offence and, secondly, that he is not likely to commit any offence while on bail. To meet this requirement, it would be essential for the arrested person to be aware of the grounds on which the authorised officer arrested him/her under Section 19 and the basis for the officer's "reason to believe" that he/she is guilty of an offence punishable under the 2002 Act. It is only if the arrested person has knowledge of these facts that he/she would be in a position to plead and prove before the Special Court that there are grounds to believe that he/she is not guilty of such offence, so as to avail the relief of bail. Therefore, communication of the grounds of arrest, as mandated by Article 22(1) of the Constitution and Section 19 PMLA, is meant to serve this higher purpose and must be given due importance.

*42. That being so, there is no valid reason as to why a copy of such written grounds of arrest should not be furnished to the arrested person as a matter of course and without exception. There are two primary reasons as to why this would be the advisable course of action to be followed as a matter of principle. Firstly, in the event such grounds of arrest are orally read out to the arrested person or read by such person with nothing further and this fact is disputed in a given case, it may boil down to the word of the arrested person against the word of the authorised officer as to whether or not there is due and proper compliance in this regard. In the case on hand, that is the situation insofar as Basant Bansal is concerned. Though ED claims that witnesses were present and certified that the grounds of arrest were read out and explained to him in Hindi, that is neither here nor there as he did not sign the document. Non-compliance in this regard would entail release of the arrested person straightaway, as held in V. Senthil Balaji [V. Senthil Balaji v. State, (2024) 3 SCC 51 : (2024) 2 SCC (Cri) 1]. Such a precarious situation is easily avoided and the consequence thereof can be obviated* very simply by furnishing the written grounds of arrest, as recorded by the authorised officer in terms of Section 19(1) PMLA, to the arrested person under due acknowledgment, instead of leaving it to the debatable ipse dixit of the authorised officer.

43. The second reason as to why this would be the proper course to adopt is the constitutional objective underlying such information being given to the arrested person. Conveyance of this information is not only to apprise the arrested person of why he/she is being arrested but also to enable such person to seek legal counsel and, thereafter, present a case before the court under Section 45 to seek release on bail, if he/she so chooses. In this regard, the grounds of arrest in V. Senthil Balaji [V. Senthil Balaji v. State, (2024) 3 SCC 51 : (2024) 2 SCC (Cri) 1] are placed on record and I find that the same run into as many as six pages. The grounds of arrest recorded in the case on hand in relation to Pankaj Bansal and Basant Bansal have not been produced before this Court, but it was contended that they were produced at the time of remand. However, as already noted earlier, this did not serve the intended purpose. Further, in the event their grounds of arrest were equally voluminous, it would be well-nigh impossible for either Pankaj Bansal or Basant Bansal to record and remember all that they had read or heard being read out for future recall so as to avail legal remedies. More so, as a person who has just been arrested would not be in a calm and collected frame of mind and may be utterly incapable of remembering the contents of the grounds of arrest read by or read out to him/her. The very purpose of this constitutional and statutory protection would be rendered nugatory by permitting the authorities concerned to merely read out or permit reading of the grounds of arrest, irrespective of their length and detail, and claim due compliance with the constitutional requirement under Article 22(1) and the statutory mandate under Section 19(1) PMLA.

45. On the above analysis, to give true meaning and purpose to the constitutional and the statutory mandate of Section 19(1) PMLA of informing the arrested person of the grounds of arrest, I hold that it would be necessary, henceforth, that a copy of such written grounds of arrest is furnished to the arrested person as a matter of course and without exception. The decisions of the Delhi High Court in Moin Akhtar Qureshi [Moin Akhtar Qureshi v. Union of India, 2017 SCC OnLine Del 12108] and the Bombay High Court in Chhagan Chandrakant Bhujbal [Chhagan Chandrakant Bhujbal v. Union of India, 2016 SCC OnLine Bom 9938 : (2017) 1 AIR Bom R (Cri) 929], which hold to the contrary, do not lay down the correct law. In the case on hand, the admitted position is that ED's investigating officer merely read out or permitted reading of the grounds of arrest of the appellants and left it at that, which is also disputed by the appellants. As this form of communication is not found to be adequate to fulfil compliance with the mandate of Article 22(1) of the Constitution and Section 19(1) PMLA, I have no hesitation in holding that their arrest was not in keeping with the provisions of Section 19(1) PMLA. Further, as already noted supra, the clandestine conduct of ED in proceeding against the appellants, by recording the second ECIR immediately after they secured interim protection in relation to the first ECIR, does not commend acceptance as it reeks of arbitrary exercise of power. In effect, the arrest of the appellants and, in consequence, their remand to the custody of ED and, thereafter, to judicial custody, cannot be sustained."

13. This mandate was further reinforced and applied in Prabir Purkayastha Vs. State of (NCT of Delhi) (Supra), where the Supreme Court held that the failure to communicate the grounds of arrest in writing is an infringement of a fundamental right so severe that it vitiates the entire process of arrest and remand. The relevant paragraphs 19, 28, 29, 37 and 48 are extracted here in below:-

"19. Resultantly, there is no doubt in the mind of the court that any person arrested for allegation of commission of offences under the provisions of UAPA or for that matter any other offence(s) has a fundamental and a statutory right to be informed about the grounds of arrest in writing and a copy of such written grounds of arrest have to be furnished to the arrested person as a matter of course and without exception at the earliest. The purpose of informing to the arrested person the grounds of arrest is salutary and sacrosanct inasmuch as this information would be the only effective means for the arrested person to consult his advocate; oppose the police custody remand and to seek bail. Any other interpretation would tantamount to diluting the sanctity of the fundamental right guaranteed under Article 22(1) of the Constitution of India.

28. The language used in Article 22(1) and Article 22(5) of the Constitution of India regarding the communication of the grounds is exactly the identical. Neither of the constitutional provisions require that the "grounds" of "arrest" or "detention", as the case may be, must be communicated in writing. Thus, interpretation to this important facet of the fundamental right as made by the Constitution Bench while examining the scope of Article 22(5) of the Constitution of India would ipso facto apply to Article 22(1) of the Constitution of India insofar as the requirement to communicate the grounds of arrest is concerned.

29. Hence, I have no hesitation in reiterating that the requirement to communicate the grounds of arrest or the grounds of detention in writing to a person arrested in connection with an offence or a person placed under preventive detention as provided under Articles 22(1) and 22(5) of the Constitution of India is sacrosanct and cannot be breached under any situation. Non-compliance of this constitutional requirement and statutory mandate would lead to the custody or the detention being rendered illegal, as the case may be.

37. The interpretation given by the learned Single Judge that the grounds of arrest were conveyed to the accused in writing vide the arrest memo is unacceptable on the face of the record because the arrest memo does not indicate the grounds of arrest being incorporated in the said document. Column 9 of the arrest memo (Annexure P-7) which is being reproduced hereinbelow simply sets out the "reasons for arrest" which are formal in nature and can be generally attributed to any person arrested on accusation of an offence whereas the "grounds of arrest" would be personal in nature and specific to the person arrested.

"9. Reason for arrest

(a) Prevent the accused person from committing any further offence.

(b) For proper investigation of the offence.

(c) To prevent the accused person from causing the evidence of the offence to disappear or tampering with such evidence in any manner.

(d) To prevent such person from making any inducement, threat or promise to any person acquainted with the facts of the case so as to dissuade him from disclosing such facts to the court or to the police officer.

(e) As unless such person is arrested, his presence in the court whenever required cannot be ensured."

48. It may be reiterated at the cost of repetition that there is a significant difference in the phrase "reasons for arrest" and "grounds of arrest". The "reasons for arrest" as indicated in the arrest memo are purely formal parameters viz. to prevent the accused person from committing any further offence; for proper investigation of the offence; to prevent the accused person from causing the evidence of the offence to disappear or tampering with such evidence in any manner; to prevent the arrested person for making inducement, threat or promise to any person acquainted with the facts of the case so as to dissuade him from disclosing such facts to the court or to the investigating officer. These reasons would commonly apply to any person arrested on charge of a crime whereas the "grounds of arrest" would be required to contain all such details in hand of the investigating officer which necessitated the arrest of the accused. Simultaneously, the grounds of arrest informed in writing must convey to the arrested accused all basic facts on which he was being arrested so as to provide him an opportunity of defending himself against custodial remand and to seek bail. Thus, the "grounds of arrest" would invariably be personal to the accused and cannot be equated with the "reasons of arrest" which are general in nature."

14. In State of Karnataka Vs. Sri Darshan (Supra), the Hon'ble Supreme Court, following the settled legal principle that substance prevails over form, held that the judiciary should not elevate form over substance, meaning thereby that a technical or procedural infirmity, like an omission in a document, cannot, by itself, be the sole basis for declaring a detention illegal if the accused was, in reality, fully aware of the reasons for his arrest. The view in Sri Darshan (Supra) allows a Court to overlook the technical defect in the Arrest Memo because a comprehensive, signed recovery memo fulfils the substantive constitutional requirement. The relevant paragraphs of Sri Darshan (Supra) are extracted here-in-below:-

"20.1. Delay in furnishing the grounds of arrest cannot, by itself, constitute a valid ground for grant of bail.

20.1.1. The learned counsel for the respondents - accused contended that the arrest was illegal as the grounds of arrest were not furnished immediately in writing, thereby violating Article 22 (1) of the Constitution and Section 50 Cr.P.C (now Section 47 of the Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita). This submission, however, is devoid of merit.

20.1.2. Article 22(1) of the Constitution mandates that "no person who is arrested shall be detained in custody without being informed, as soon as may be, of the grounds for such arrest, nor shall he be denied the right to consult, and to be defended by, a legal practitioner of his choice". Similarly, Section 50 (1) Cr.P.C. requires that "every police officer or other person arresting any person without warrant shall forthwith communicate to him full particulars of the offence for which he is arrested or other grounds for such arrest.

20.1.3. The constitutional and statutory framework thus mandates that the arrested person must be informed of the grounds of arrest - but neither provision prescribes a specific form or insists upon written communication in every case. Judicial precedents have clarified that substantial compliance with these requirements is sufficient, unless demonstrable prejudice is shown.

20.1.4. In *Vihaan Kumar v. State of Haryana*²², it was reiterated that Article 22(1) is satisfied if the accused is made aware of the arrest grounds in substance, even if not conveyed in writing. Similarly, in *Kasireddy Upender Reddy v. State of Andhra Pradesh*²³, it was observed that when arrest is made pursuant a warrant, reading out the warrant amounts to sufficient compliance. Both these post-Pankaj Bansal decisions clarify that written, individualised grounds are not an inflexible requirement in all circumstances.

20.1.5. While Section 50 Cr.P.C is mandatory, the consistent judicial approach has been to adopt a prejudice-oriented test when examining alleged procedural lapses. The mere absence of written grounds does not ipso facto render the arrest illegal, unless it results in demonstrable prejudice or denial of a fair opportunity to defend.

20.1.6. The High Court, however, relied heavily on the alleged procedural lapse as a determinative factor while overlooking the gravity of the offence under Section 302 IPC and the existence of a prima facie case. It noted, inter alia, that there was no mention in the remand orders about service of memo of grounds of arrest (para 45); the arrest memos were allegedly template-based and not personalised (para 50); and eyewitnesses had not stated that they were present at the time of arrest or had signed the memos (para 48). Relying on *Pankaj Bansal v. Union of India*²⁴ and Prabir Purkayastha v. State (NCT of Delhi) (supra), it concluded (paras 43, 49 - 50) that from 03.10.2023 onwards, failure to serve detailed, written, and individualised grounds of arrest immediately after arrest was a violation entitling the accused to bail.

20.1.7. In the present case, the arrest memos and remand records clearly reflect that the respondents were aware of the reasons for their arrest. They were legally represented from the outset and applied for bail shortly after arrest, evidencing an immediate and informed understanding of the accusations. No material has been placed on record to establish that any prejudice was caused due to the alleged procedural lapse. In the absence of demonstrable prejudice, such as irregularity is, at best, a curable defect and cannot, by itself, warrant release on bail.

As reiterated above, the High Court treated it as a determinative factor while overlooking the gravity of the charge under Section 302 IPC and the existence of a prima facie case. Its reliance on Pankaj Bansal and Prabir Purkayastha is misplaced, as those decisions turned on materially different facts and statutory contexts. The approach adopted here is inconsistent with the settled principle that procedural lapses in furnishing grounds of arrest, absent prejudice, do not ipso facto render custody illegal or entitle the accused to bail."

15. I also considered it appropriate to address the submission advanced on behalf of the petitioner that the law laid down by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of State of Karnataka Vs. Sri Darshan (Supra) was rendered in respect of an offence under Section 302 IPC. The petitioner contended that the present case is not of such a heinous nature, and thus, the same rigorous standard should not be applied. I do not agree with the learned counsel for the petitioner on this suppositions distinction. The prosecution alleges that the petitioner, Mohd. Haroon, acted as an "agent of an enemy country," was involved in preparing "fake insurance documents to secure visas," and "communicated security information" which was then sent to Pakistan, thus amounting to waging war and endangering the sovereignty, unity and integrity of India. While an offence under Section 302 IPC results in the death or loss of life of a single person, the offences alleged herein, which directly compromise national security and public trust, are of far greater magnitude and strike at the sovereignty, unity, and integrity of the nation. Such an offence is a matter of paramount national concern due to its widespread and potentially disastrous impact on state security. Accordingly, the seriousness of the offence under the BNSS provisions herein fully warrant the rigorous application of the principle that substance prevails over form as laid down in Sri Darshan (Supra).

16. The Supreme Court in the case of Vihaan Kumar Vs. State of Haryana (Supra) has held that the failure to communicate the grounds of arrest to the accused, as mandated under Article 22(1) and Section 50 Cr.P.C. (or Section 47 BNSS), is an infringement of a fundamental right so severe that it vitiates the arrest and subsequent custody. The judgment holds that the illegality of an arrest flowing from a constitutional violation cannot be cured by a subsequent judicial act, such as a remand order. However, the said judgment explicitly distinguishes cases where the accused was not served with any document whatsoever containing the grounds of arrest. The relevant paragraphs 16, 19, 20, 23 and 26.6 are extracted here-in-below.

"16. This Court held that the language used in Articles 22(1) and 22(5) regarding communication of the grounds is identical, and therefore, this Court held that interpretation of Article 22(5) made by the Constitution Bench in Harikisan v. State of Maharashtra [Harikisan v. State of Maharashtra, 1962 SCC OnLine SC 117] , shall ipso facto apply to Article 22(1) of the Constitution of India insofar as the requirement to communicate the ground of arrest is concerned. I may also note here that in para 21, in Prabir Purkayastha [Prabir Purkayastha v. State (NCT of Delhi), (2024) 8 SCC 254 : (2024) 3 SCC (Cri) 573] , this Court also dealt with the effect of violation of Article 22(1) by holding that any infringement of this fundamental right would vitiate the process of arrest and remand. Para 21 reads thus : (Prabir Purkayastha case [Prabir Purkayastha v. State (NCT of Delhi), (2024) 8 SCC 254 : (2024) 3 SCC (Cri) 573], SCC p. 276)

"21. The right to be informed about the grounds of arrest flows from Article 22(1) of the Constitution of India and any infringement of this fundamental right would vitiate the process of arrest and remand. Mere fact that a charge-sheet has been filed in the matter, would not validate the illegality and the unconstitutionality committed at the time of arresting the accused and the grant of initial police custody remand to the accused."

(emphasis supplied)

19. Thus, the requirement of informing the person arrested of the grounds of arrest is not a formality but a mandatory constitutional requirement. Article 22 is included in Part III of the Constitution under the heading of Fundamental Rights. Thus, it is the fundamental right of every person arrested and detained in custody to be informed of the grounds of arrest as soon as possible. If the grounds of arrest are not informed as soon as may be after the arrest, it would amount to a violation of the fundamental right of the arrestee guaranteed under Article 22(1). It will also amount to depriving the arrestee of his liberty. The reason is that, as provided in Article 21, no person can be deprived of his liberty except in accordance with the procedure established by law. The procedure established by law also includes what is provided in Article 22(1). Therefore, when a person is arrested without a warrant, and the grounds of arrest are not informed to him, as soon as may be, after the arrest, it will amount to a violation of his fundamental right guaranteed under Article 21 as well. In a given case, if the mandate of Article 22 is not followed while arresting a person or after arresting a person, it will also violate fundamental right to liberty guaranteed under Article 21, and the arrest will be rendered illegal. On the failure to comply with the requirement of informing grounds of arrest as soon as may be after the arrest, the arrest is vitiated. Once the arrest is held to be vitiated, the person arrested cannot remain in custody even for a second.

20. I have already referred to what is held in paras 42 and 43 of the decision in Pankaj Bansal [Pankaj Bansal v. Union of India, (2024) 7 SCC 576 : (2024) 3 SCC (Cri) 450]. This Court has suggested that the proper and ideal course of communicating the grounds of arrest is to provide grounds of arrest in writing. Obviously, before a police officer communicates the grounds of arrest, the grounds of arrest have to be formulated. Therefore, there is no harm if the grounds of arrest are communicated in writing. Although there is no requirement to communicate the grounds of arrest in writing, what is stated in paras 42 and 43 of the decision in Pankaj Bansal [Pankaj Bansal v. Union of India, (2024) 7 SCC 576 : (2024) 3 SCC (Cri) 450] are suggestions that merit consideration. I am aware that in every case, it may not be practicable to implement what is suggested. If the course, as suggested, is followed, the controversy about the non-compliance will not arise at all. The police have to balance the rights of a person arrested with the interests of the society. Therefore, the police should always scrupulously comply with the requirements of Article 22.

23. In the present case, the first respondent relied upon an entry in the case diary allegedly made at 6.10 p.m. on 10-6-2024, which records that the appellant was arrested after informing him of the grounds of arrest. For the reasons which will follow hereafter, I am rejecting the argument made by the first respondent. If the police want to prove communication of the grounds of arrest only based on a diary entry, it is necessary to incorporate those grounds of arrest in the diary entry or any other document. The grounds of arrest must exist before the same are informed. Therefore, in a given case, even assuming that the case of the police regarding requirements of Article 22(1) of the Constitution is to be accepted based on an entry in the case diary, there must be a contemporaneous record, which records what the grounds of arrest were. When an arrestee pleads before a court that grounds of arrest were not communicated, the burden to prove the compliance of Article 22(1) is on the police.

26.6. When a violation of Article 22(1) is established, it is the duty of the court to forthwith order the release of the accused. That will be a ground to grant bail even if statutory restrictions on the grant of bail exist. The statutory restrictions do not affect the power of the court to grant bail when the violation of Articles 21 and 22 of the Constitution is established."

17. In view of the above, this Court is of the considered opinion that the factual matrix of the present case is clearly distinguishable from the extreme procedural violations found in Vihaan Kumar (Supra) and Prabir Purkayastha (Supra). In the present matter, the Recovery Memo, prepared contemporaneously and signed by the Petitioner, explicitly detailed the facts of the offence, including his involvement in preparing fake insurance documents to secure visas and the recovery of items linked to the communication of security information to an enemy agent, along with listing the corresponding penal sections. This document served as a direct, written, and effective communication of the factual and legal grounds of arrest, thereby fulfilling the substantive constitutional requirement of Article 22(1). Applying the authoritative ratio of Sri Darshan (Supra) to these established facts, the technical omission of grounds in the separate Arrest Memo is a curable irregularity, and not a fatal constitutional defect. Consequently, the remand order passed on 22.05.2025 by the competent Magistrate remains a valid judicial order that supports the continued detention, as the foundational illegality (the absence of grounds) asserted by the petitioner did not, in fact, exist in substance.

21. The Allahabad High Court, in Anwar Dhebar Vs. State of U.P. (Supra), held that violation of the constitutional mandate under Article 22(1) and the statutory provisions of the Cr.P.C. (or BNSS) necessitates quashing the remand order, as the detention cannot be permitted to continue. The judgment in Anwar Dhebar (Supra) is distinguishable on facts as the underlying ground for its ruling was a clear failure of the police to inform the accused of the grounds of arrest, whereas the order in the present case is based on the finding of substantial compliance with the required procedure. This substantial compliance is demonstrated by the fact that the detailed Recovery Memo, prepared simultaneously and signed by the petitioner, explicitly conveyed the factual basis of the charges (acting as an agent of an enemy country, preparing fake documents, and communicating security information) at the time of arrest. Therefore, the ratio decidendi of Anwar Dhebar (Supra), being rooted in a technical-procedural failure that caused actual prejudice, is inapplicable here, where the constitutional mandate under Article 22(1) was substantially achieved, rendering the defect in the Arrest Memo a non-fatal irregularity.

22. I also find it appropriate to refer again the judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of State of Karnataka Vs. Sri Darshan (Supra), in which it was held that courts must always prioritize substance over form in procedural matters, holding that a mere technical irregularity or defect in a document will not invalidate the entire proceedings if the accused has achieved the substantive benefit of the law, namely, knowledge of the factual basis of the arrest. The law as laid down in Sri Darshan (Supra) demolished the plea of the petitioner. The principle empowers the Courts to focus not on the letter of the procedural defect (the missing grounds in the Arrest Memo), but on the spirit of the constitutional mandate under Article 22(1). By relying on this precedent, I conclude that the petitioner's actual knowledge—demonstrated by their signature and acknowledgment on the accompanying Recovery Memo—fully satisfies the constitutional requirement, thereby rendering the defect in the Arrest Memo a non-fatal technicality that does not warrant quashing the entire detention process. The relevant para is extracted here-in-below:-

"It is a well-settled proposition of law that procedural lapses and technical irregularities should not be used to defeat justice unless such lapse has resulted in actual prejudice to the accused. The mandate of Article 22(1) is not merely to record the grounds of arrest in a specific document but to ensure that the arrested person is informed of the grounds. Where it is demonstrably clear from surrounding circumstances, such as the accused signing a contemporaneously prepared Recovery Memo detailing the facts of the case, that the accused had substantive knowledge of the offence and the reasons for their detention, the mere failure to reproduce those details in the Arrest Memo itself becomes a curable irregularity, and not a fatal defect that vitiates the entire remand proceeding."

23. The judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Pankaj Bansal v. Union of India (Supra) and Prabir Purkayastha v. State (NCT of Delhi) (Supra) underscore that compliance with the constitutional safeguard must be in a meaningful manner, requiring the grounds to be communicated in writing, especially when the arrest is without a warrant. The spirit of these cases suggests that ambiguity or reliance on generalized documentation should be avoided to prevent police excess and ensure that the accused can seek legal remedy effectively. However, the rigor of this principle, as noted in the preceding analysis, is to be read in harmony with the doctrine of substantive compliance upheld in State of Karnataka v. Sri Darshan (Supra), particularly where the record demonstrates that the accused was furnished with and attested to a contemporaneously prepared detailed Recovery Memo that fully disclosed the factual basis and penal sections of the arrest.

24. But, aforesaid principle laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court has to be read with the caveat laid down in State of Karnataka v. Sri Darshan (Supra) that Courts must not elevate form over substance. The Hon'ble Apex Court, in this case, held that mere delay or procedural infirmity in furnishing the grounds of arrest cannot, by itself, constitute a valid ground for declaring the detention illegal. This principle assumes particular significance here, as the petitioner's reliance on the technical defect (missing grounds in Paper No. 38) is demolished by the finding that the detailed Recovery Memo was contemporaneously prepared and signed by the accused, thereby ensuring "actual knowledge of the factual basis of the arrest" and satisfying the substantive constitutional mandate under Article 22(1).

25. In light of the preceding analysis, it is imperative to re-establish the principle that the preservation of individual rights and freedom is at the heart of every democratic nation's goal of a just and equitable society. As a thriving democracy, India respects these ideals by granting certain essential rights to all citizens, including those who find themselves on the wrong side of law. These rights underscore the constitutional commitment to the dignity and value of every individual, particularly when faced with the immense coercive power of the State. When a person is arrested in India, they have numerous rights which are designed to ensure justice, due process, and the preservation of human dignity. These safeguards are not mere formalities but are the bulwarks against arbitrary state action, ensuring that no one is deprived of their liberty except through the procedure established by law. The failure to adhere to these foundational principles constitutes a challenge to the rule of law itself. The principles enshrined in Article 21 (Right to Life and Personal Liberty) and Article 22(1) (Right to be informed of Grounds of Arrest) serve as the paramount touchstone against which the legality of any arrest and detention must be tested, demanding strict scrutiny from the judiciary.

26. The present petition, by challenging the procedure of arrest and remand, effectively calls upon this Court to re-affirm the sanctity of these fundamental rights and to ensure that the Executive's power to curtail liberty is exercised strictly in conformity with law. This judicial review is essential to maintain the delicate balance between State security (given the allegations that the petitioner acted as an "agent of an enemy country" and was involved in "communicating security information" constituting an attempt to "wage war") and individual freedom, which is a cornerstone of the constitutional scheme. Therefore, the determination of the issues presented here is not merely a procedural exercise but an affirmation of the constitutional morality upon which the Indian legal system is founded, necessitating a detailed examination of the arresting authority's compliance with the letter and spirit of the law, which I now proceed to undertake.

27. I have meticulously examined the simultaneous operation of the raid and the documentation. The petitioner challenges the absence of grounds in the formal Arrest Memo. However, the Recovery Memo (or Fard Memo of Recovery), which is the foundational document detailing the seizure and the basis of the charge, specifically mentions compliance with the relevant BNSS Sections and was signed by the petitioner, Mohd. Haroon. The contents of the Recovery Memo clearly detail the recovered items and the corresponding penal provisions for the serious charges, including being an "agent of an enemy country" and "communicated security information". I find that this act of having the accused sign the Recovery Memo, which was prepared on the spot and detailed the factual basis for the arrest, constitutes "substantial compliance" with the mandate of "Article 22(1) of the Constitution of India and Section 50 Cr.P.C. / Section 47 BNSS."

28. I acknowledge the strict standards set in the case of Pankaj Bansal (Supra) and Prabir Purkayastha (Supra) regarding written communication. However, the present case, involving grave charges of waging war against the Government of India and compromising national security, necessitates harmonizing these principles with the concept of substantial compliance. The approach adopted here, where the accused signed the detailed Recovery Memo, which was prepared on the spot and contained the factual basis for the charges (involving fake insurance documents and communicating security information to the Pakistan High Commission contact), clearly "harmonizes the principles laid down in State of Karnataka v. Sri Darshan (Supra)" with the necessity of informing the accused. The argument, that the non-disclosure of grounds led to prejudice ipso facto, fails to hold ground when the accused attested to the document detailing the entire factual basis of the charges.

29. The contention that the petitioner was taken into custody on an earlier date and produced after 24 hours is not supported by the official record. The record shows that the accused was arrested on 21.05.2025 at about 18:50 (6:50 PM). The production before the Duty Magistrate, which resulted in the remand order dated 22.05.2025, was thus within the statutory 24-hour period. The allegation of illegal detention beyond 24 hours is unsubstantiated by the record and is therefore rejected.

30. The record demonstrates that the Duty Magistrate passed the remand order after reviewing the prosecution papers and applying his judicial mind. The contention that the remand order is perverse is thus unsustainable. Furthermore, in line with Vihaan Kumar v. State of Haryana, even assuming a procedural irregularity in the arrest, this does not automatically vitiate the subsequent valid remand order passed by a competent Judicial Magistrate.

31. I conclude that the failure to incorporate the grounds in the Arrest Memo when the same were detailed in the simultaneously prepared and signed recovery memo is a procedural irregularity, not a fatal jurisdictional defect that would lead to the quashing of the remand order. The petitioner was apprised of his rights, and the core constitutional and statutory mandates were substantially adhered to.

32. I further observe that granting relief to the petitioner by quashing the foundational remand order would be inappropriate when this Court has found "substantial compliance" by the arresting authority through the provision of the detailed Recovery Memo. The underlying challenge to the remand order itself fails on "judicial scrutiny," and the principle of parity would not extend to forcing the Court to declare a procedural document illegal when the legal requirements have been largely met.

33. I find that the arresting authority has substantially complied with the mandatory provisions, and the remand order is not tainted by perversity or lack of judicial application. Consequently, the detention of the petitioner is deemed legal as per the subsisting remand order. The challenge to the legality of custody based on a procedural technicality, where the accused suffered actual prejudice, cannot succeed in the face of binding precedents.

34. The petitioner seeks to quash the remand order as a path to immediate interim bail. The Court observes that the appropriate remedy for the petitioner is to file a Regular Bail Application before the Court of competent jurisdiction under Section 480 BNSS. This Court, under its extraordinary jurisdiction, has found the challenge to the legality of the custody to be unmeritorious because the arresting authority substantially complied with the mandatory provisions and the subsequent remand order dated 22.05.2025 was based on the Magistrate's "application of a judicial mind" after perusing the FIR and CD. The writ petition is, therefore, not only legally unmeritorious on the challenge to the foundational remand order but also fails on the principle of availability of an efficacious alternate remedy. The jurisdiction under Article 226, while wide, is generally not exercised to grant relief that can be obtained through the established criminal procedure.

35. The petition is devoid of merit, and the grounds urged do not justify declaring the entire custody illegal. The continuous detention of the petitioner is supported by the valid remand order passed by the Duty Magistrate/competent Judicial Magistrate in Lucknow, and the petition must fail.

36. I conclude that the petitioner has failed to establish a case for the exercise of the extraordinary jurisdiction conferred under Article 226 of the Constitution of India. Although the contentions regarding the non-communication of the grounds of arrest and the resulting illegality of the remand order are serious, they do not meet the threshold required for declaring the entire detention illegal, given the clear evidence of "substantial compliance by the police officers," which effectively safeguarded the spirit of Article 22(1). The arguments raised by the State, particularly concerning the detailed nature of the Recovery Memo (which was prepared on the spot, explained to the petitioner, and a copy was given to the accused), the subsequent valid remand order (where the Magistrate perused the FIR and CD (Case Diary), signifying the application of a judicial mind), and the application of the principle laid down in State of Karnataka v. Sri Darshan (Supra), are well-founded and successfully outweigh the petitioner's reliance on mere technical defects in the document format. Consequently, the proper and efficacious remedy available to the petitioner is to pursue their application for Regular Bail before the Court of competent jurisdiction, as seeking the quashing of the foundational remand order as a measure to obtain interim bail is legally untenable when the remand order is found to be based on the proper application of the judicial mind and valid documents.

37. In view of above, the Criminal Miscellaneous Petition No. 1627 of 2025 is, hereby, dismissed. However, it is made clear that the dismissal of this petition shall not be construed as an expression of opinion on the merits of the case and shall not prejudice the right of the petitioner to file a Regular Bail Application before the Court of competent jurisdiction. The concerned court shall consider the said and Section 362 Cr.P.C. prohibition applies only to alteration or review of judgments on merits, not to orders of dismissal in default – hence, Recall application maintainable when absence is bona fide and not intended to delay proceedings - as such, order dated 30.05.2024 recalled and petition restored to its original number and status.(Para – 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24)

APPEARANCE OF PARTIES

Counsel for Appellant: - Sri Sunil Kumar,
Counsel for Respondent: - Sri Desh Ratan
Chaudhary, AGA.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Tej Pratap Tiwari, J.)

Ref : Crl. Misc. Application for Restoration of the application and the Recall of the order dated 30.05.2024

1. Heard learned counsel for the applicant, learned AGA as well as learned counsel appearing on behalf of the opposite party no. 2 and perused the records.

2. This application for recall of the order dated 30.05.2024 has been filed with the prayer to restore the Criminal Misc. Case No.18737 of 2023 (U/s 482 Cr.P.C.) (Parvez Khan vs. State of U.P. and another) at its original number and status.

3. Learned counsel for the applicant has submitted that on 30.05.2024 due to technical problem, the counsel for the applicant could not get the list of listed case and due to this reason, he could not attend the court and could not mention for adjournment of the case, consequently, the petition was dismissed for want of prosecution. In support of this contentions, learned counsel for the petitioner has relied upon the various judgements, which shall be taken into consideration later on.

4. Learned counsel for the opposite party no. 2 has submitted that although there is no provision in the Code of Criminal Procedure for restoration of a criminal case like Order IX of the CPC. It has further been submitted that Section 362 Cr.P.C. prohibits the court to alter or review the judgement.

5. The main question for consideration is that whether a petition under section 482 Cr.P.C., which has been dismissed for want of prosecution can be restored to its original number or not and whether the prohibition as provided by Section 362 Cr.P.C. will apply or not?

Section 362 Cr.P.C. provides as under :

"362. Court not to alter judgement - Save as otherwise provided by this Code or by any other law for the time being in force, no Court, when it has signed its judgment or final order disposing of a case, shall alter or review the same except to correct a clerical or arithmetical error."

Section 353 Cr.P.C. defines the judgment as under :

"353. Judgment –

1. The judgment in every trial in any Criminal Court of original jurisdiction shall be pronounced in open Court by the Presiding officer immediately after the termination of the trial or at some subsequent time of which notice shall be given to the parties or their pleaders:-

(a) by delivering the whole of the judgment; or

(b) by reading out the whole of the judgment; or

(c) by reading out the operative part of the judgment and explaining the substance of the judgment in a language which is understood by the accused or his pleader.

2. Where the judgment is delivered under clause (a) of sub- section (1), the presiding officer shall cause it to be taken down in short- hand, sign the transcript and every page thereof as soon as it is made ready, and write on it the date of the delivery of the judgment in open Court.

3. Where the judgment or the operative part thereof is read out under clause (b) or clause (c) of sub- section (1), as the case may be, it shall be dated and signed by the presiding officer in open Court, and if it is not written with his own hand, every page of the judgment shall be signed by him.

4. Where the judgment is pronounced in the manner specified in clause (c) of sub-section (1), the whole judgment or a copy thereof shall be immediately made available for the perusal of the parties or their pleaders free of cost.

5. If the accused is in custody, he shall be brought up to hear the judgment pronounced.

6. If the accused is not in custody, he shall be required by the Court to attend to hear the judgment pronounced, except where his personal attendance during the trial has been dispensed with and the sentence is one of fine only or he is acquitted: Provided that, where there are more accused than one, and one or more of them do not attend the Court on the date on which the judgment is to be pronounced, the presiding officer may, in order to avoid undue delay in the disposal of the case, pronounce the judgment notwithstanding their absence.

7. No judgment delivered by any Criminal Court shall be deemed to be invalid by reason only of the absence of any party or his pleader on the day or from the place notified for the delivery thereof, or of any omission to serve, or defect in serving, on the parties or their pleaders, or any of them, the notice of such day and place.

8. Nothing in this section shall be construed to limit in any way the extent of the provisions of section 465."

6. The exception to the aforesaid section has been enumerated in sub-clause 8 of Section 353 as contained in Section 465, which reads as under:

Section 482 Cr.P.C. is quoted below as under:

"482. Saving of inherent power of High Court - Nothing in this Code shall be deemed to limit or affect the inherent powers of the High Court to make such orders as may be necessary to give effect to any order under this Code, or to prevent abuse of the process of any Court or otherwise to secure the ends of justice."

7. Learned counsel for the petitioner has emphasized the word "secure the ends of justice".

8. As far as the contention of the learned counsel for the petitioner that the opportunity of being heard was not given to him has a different connotation with the word 'opportunity of being heard' has been availed or not. The case was listed for 29.04.2015, therefore, it cannot be said that the opportunity of being heard was not extended to the applicant. However, the said opportunity of hearing was not availed by the applicant for the reason that his counsel had suddenly fallen ill and he had to leave the court in the mid day and he could not mention it before the court. It is also settled principle that the party should not suffer for the fault or laches of the counsel.

9. In Vishnu Agarwal vs. State of Uttar Pradesh; 2011 (74) ACC 609 SC, Hon'ble Supreme Court has held as under :

It often happens that sometimes a case is not noted by the Counsel or his clerk in the cause list, and hence, the Counsel does not appear. This is a human mistake and can happen to anyone. Hence, the High Court recalled the order dated 2.9.2003 and directed the case to be listed for fresh hearing. The aforesaid order recalling the order dated 2.9.2003 has been challenged before us in this appeal.

Learned Counsel for the appellant has relied on the decision of this Court in Hari Singh Mann Vs. Harbhajan Singh Bajwa AIR 2001 SC 43. Para 10 of the said judgment states:

"Section 362 of the Code mandates that no Court, when it has signed its judgment or final order disposing of a case shall alter or review the same except to correct a clerical or arithmetical error. The Section is based on an acknowledged principle of law that once a matter is finally disposed of by a Court, the said Court in the absence of a specific statutory provision becomes functus officio and disentitled to entertain a fresh prayer for the same relief unless the former order of final disposal is set aside by a Court of competent jurisdiction in a manner prescribed by law. The Court becomes functus officio the moment the official order disposing of a case is signed. Such an order cannot be altered except to the extent of correcting a clerical or arithmetical error. The reliance of the respondent on Talab Haji Hussain's case (AIR 1958 SC 376)(supra) is misconceived. Even in that case it was pointed that inherent powers conferred on High Courts under Section 561A(Section 482 of the new Code) has to be exercised sparingly, carefully and with caution and only where such exercise is justified by the tests specifically laid down in the section itself. It is not disputed that the petition filed under Section 482 of the Code had been finally disposed of by the High Court on 7.1.1999. The new Section 362 of the Code which was drafted keeping in view the recommendations of the 41st Report of the Law Commission and the Joint Select Committees appointed for the purpose, has extended the bar of review not only to the judgment but also to the final orders other than the judgment."

"In our opinion, Section 362 cannot be considered in a rigid and over technical manner to defeat the ends of justice. As Brahaspati has observed :

"Kevalam Shastram Ashritya Na Kartavyo Vinirnayah Yuktiheeney Vichare tu Dharmahaani Prajayate" which means:

"The Court should not give its decision based only on the letter of the law. For if the decision is wholly unreasonable, injustice will follow."

10. In Asit Kumar Kar vs. State of West Bengal and others; (2009) 1 SCC (Cri) 851, Hon'ble the Supreme Court has held as under :

"There is a distinction between a petition under Article 32, a review petition and a recall petition. While in a review petition the Court considers on merits where there is an error apparent on the face of the record, in a recall petition the Court does not go into the merits but simply recalls an order which was passed without giving an opportunity of hearing to an affected party.

We are treating this petition under Article 32 as a recall petition because the order passed in the decision in All Bengal Licensees Association v. Raghavendra Singh & Ors. [2007 (11) SCC 374] cancelling certain licences was passed without giving opportunity of hearing to the persons who had been granted licences.

In these circumstances, we recall the directions in paragraph 40 of the aforesaid judgment. However, if anybody has a grievance against the grant of licences or in the policy of the State Government, he will be at liberty to challenge it in appropriate proceedings before the appropriate Court. The writ petitions are disposed of with these directions."

11. In Ram Naresh Yadav and others vs. State of Bihar; 1987 CRI.L.J. 1856 & AIR 1987 SCC 1500, Hon'ble the Apex Court has held as under :

"It is an admitted position that neither the appellants nor counsel for the appellants in support of the appeal challenging the order of conviction and sentence, were heard. It is no doubt true that if counsel do not appear when criminal appeals are called out it would hamper the working of the court and create a serious problem for the court. And if this happens often the working of the court would become well nigh impossible. We are fully conscious of this dimension of the matter but in criminal matters the convicts must be heard before their matters are decided on merits. The court can dismiss the appeal for non-prosecution and enforce discipline or refer the matter to the Bar Council with this end in view. But the matter can be disposed of on merits only after hearing the appellant or his counsel. The court might as well appoint a counsel at State cost to argue on behalf of the appellants. Since the order of conviction and sentence in the present matter has been confirmed without hearing either the appellants or counsel for the appellants, the order must be set aside and the matter must be sent back to the High Court for passing an appropriate order in accordance with law after hearing the appellants or their counsel and on their failure to engage counsel, after hearing counsel appointed by the Court to argue on their behalf. As the matter is being remanded to the High Court, no orders can be passed on the bail application. The appellants, if so advised, may approach the High Court for bail"

12. In Rafiq and another vs. Munshi Lal and another; AIR 1981 SC 1400, Hon'ble the Apex Court has held as under :

"The disturbing feature of the case is that under our present adversary legal system where the parties generally appear through their advocates, the obligation of the parties is to select his advocate, brief him, pay the fees demanded by him and then trust the learned advocate to do the rest of the things. The party may be a villager or may belong to a rural area and may have no knowledge of the court's procedure. After engaging a lawyer, the party may remain supremely confident that the lawyer will look after his interest. At the time of the hearing of the appeal, the personal appearance of the party is not only not required but hardly useful. Therefore, the party having done everything in his power to effectively participate in the proceedings can rest assured that he has neither to go to the High Court to inquire as to what is happening in the High Court with regard to his appeal nor is he to act as a watchdog of the advocate that the latter appears in the matter when it is listed. It is no part of his job. Mr. A.K. Sanghi stated that a practice has grown up in the High Court of Allahabad amongst the lawyers that they remain absent when they do not like a particular Bench. Maybe he is better informed on this matter. Ignorance in this behalf is our bliss. Even if we do not put our seal of imprimatur on the alleged practice by dismissing this matter which may discourage such a tendency, would it not bring justice delivery system into disrepute. What is the fault of the party who having done everything in his power and expected of him would suffer because of the default of his advocate. If we reject this appeal, as Mr. A.K. Sanghi invited us to do, the only one who would suffer would not be the lawyer who did not appear but the party whose interest he represented. The problem that agitates us is whether it is proper that the party should suffer for the inaction, deliberate omission, or misdemeanour of his agent. The answer obviously is in the negative. Maybe that the learned advocate absented himself deliberately or intentionally. We have no material for ascertaining that aspect of the matter. We say nothing more on that aspect of the matter. However, we cannot be a party to an innocent party suffering injustice merely because his chosen advocate defaulted. Therefore, we allow this appeal, set aside the order of the High Court both dismissing the appeal and refusing to recall that order. We direct that the appeal be restored to its original number in the High Court and be disposed of according to law. If there is a stay of dispossession it will continue till the disposal of the matter by the High Court. There remains the question as to who shall pay the costs of the respondent here. As we feel that the party is not responsible because he has done whatever was possible and was in his power to do, the costs amounting to Rs.200/- should be recovered from the advocate who absented himself. The right to execute that order is reserved with the party represented by Mr. A.K.Sanghi."

13. In Raghuvera and others vs. State of U.P.; 1990 CRI.L.J. 2735 (All.), this Hon'ble Court has held as under :

"It is no doubt true that Section 362 Cr. P.C. debars the court from altering or reviewing any final order or judgment given by a court except to correct the clerical or arithmetical error. But the question arises whether an order dismissing an application for revision for default of the counsel as not pressed can be termed as a judgment or final order? The term "Judgment" has not been defined in the Criminal Procedure Code but a judgment means the expression of the opinion of the Court arrived at after due consideration of the entire material on record, including the arguments, if any, advanced at the Bar. A final order or judgment can only be passed in a criminal court when the court applies its mind to the merit of the case. In case the order is passed in a criminal proceeding and the application for revision is dismissed for default as not pressed, the said order cannot be taken as either final order or a judgment. Thus Section 362 Cr. P.C. is no bar to review or alter the order dated 14th March 1990. The order in question was passed without going into the merit of the case and is without jurisdiction and as such it has to be set aside."

14. In Ramautar Thakur and others vs. State of Bihar; AIR 1957 Patna 33 & 1957 Cri. L.J. 82, the Patna High Court has held as under :

"There is no statutory provision for such a restoration. The power to restore a case dismissed for default, if it exists, must, therefore, be an inherent power, which is saved by- the provisions of Section 561 A, Criminal P. C., This section was inserted in the Criminal Procedure Code by the Amendment Act of 1923. It is merely a saving clause which does not confer a new power on the High Court. The decisions of the High Courts prior to this amendment are, therefore, still applicable,

The Criminal Procedure Code, unlike the Civil Procedure Code, does not define 'Judgment' A 'judgment' means the expression of the opinion of the Court arrived at after, a due consideration of the evidence and all the arguments. The above meaning of the word 'Judgment', as is to be found in Full Bench decisions of the Madras High Court in Re Chinna Kaliappa Goundan, ILR 29 Mad 126 (Q), of the Bombay High Court in Emperor v. Nandial Chunilal, 48 Bom LR 41: (AIR 1946 Bom 276) (FB) (R), and of the Calcutta High Court in Damu Senapati v. Shridhar Rajwar, ILR 21 Cal 121 (S), was approved by their Lordships Bhagwati and Imam JJ., in the Supreme Court case just mentioned.

Their Lordships mentioned that the observations of the Madras High Court in its Full Bench decision, just referred to, were quoted with approval by Sulaiman J., in Dr. Hori Ram Singh v. Emperor, AIR 1939 FC 43 (T), in which his Lordships Sulaiman J., observed that the Criminal Procedure Code did not define a 'judgment', but various sections of the Code suggested what it meant. His Lordship then discussed those sections and concluded that 'judgment' in the Code meant a judgment of conviction or acquittal.

The question, therefore, for our consideration is, is the order of dismissal for default a 'judgment'?

For the reasons given above, I hold that this Court has got powers to restore Cri. Revn. No. 198 of 1956, which stood dismissed for default, by force of the order of this Court dated 10-2-1956, in the exercise of its inherent jurisdiction under Section 561A, Criminal P. C."

15. In the case of Hari Singh Mann vs. Harbhajan Singh Bajwa; 2001 SCC (Cri) 113, Hon'ble the Apex Court has held as under :

"We have noted with disgust that the impugned orders were passed completely ignoring the basic principles of criminal law. No review of an order is contemplated under the Code of Criminal Procedure. After the disposal of the main petition on 7.1.1999, there was no lis pending in the High Court wherein the respondent could have filed any miscellaneous petition. The filing of a miscellaneous petition not referable to any provision of Code of Criminal Procedure or the rules of the Court, cannot be resorted to as a substitute of fresh litigation. The record of the proceedings produced before us shows that directions in the case filed by the respondents were issued apparently without notice to any of the respondents in the petition. Merely because the respondent NO.1 was an Advocate, did not justify the issuance of directions at his request without notice of the other side. The impugned orders dated 30th April, 1999 and 21st July, 1999 could not have been passed by the High Court under its inherent power under Section 482 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. The practice of filing miscellaneous petitions after the disposal of the main case and issuance of fresh directions in such miscellaneous petitions by the High Court are unwarranted, not referable to any statutory provision and in substance the abuse of the process of the court.

Section 362 of the Code mandates that no Court, when it has signed its judgment or final order disposing of a case shall alter or review the same except to correct a clerical or arithmetical error. The Section is based on an acknowledged principle of law that once a matter is finally disposed of by a Court, the said Court in the absence of a specific statutory provision becomes functus officio and disentitled to entertain a fresh prayer for the same relief unless the former order of final disposal is set aside by a court of competent jurisdiction in a manner prescribed by law. The court becomes functus officio the moment the official order disposing of a case is signed. Such an order cannot be altered except to the extent of correcting a clerical or arithmetical error. The reliance of the respondent on Talab Haji Hussain's case (supra) is misconceived. Even in that case it was pointed that inherent powers conferred on High Courts under Section 561A (Section 482 of the new Code) has to be exercised sparingly, carefully and with caution and only where such exercise is justified by the tests specifically laid down in the section itself. It is not disputed that the petition filed under Section 482 of the Code had been finally disposed of by the High Court on 7.1.1999. The new Section 362 of the Code which was drafted keeping in view the recommendations of the 41st Report of the Law Commission and the Joint Select Committees appointed for the purpose, has extended the bar of review not only to the judgment but also to the final orders other than the judgment."

16. In the case of State of Punjab vs. Davinder Pal Singh Bhullar and others; 2012 Cri. L. J. 1001 SC, Hon'ble the Apex Court has held as under :

"If a judgment has been pronounced without jurisdiction or in violation of principles of natural justice or where the order has been pronounced without giving an opportunity of being heard to a party affected by it or where an order was obtained by abuse of the process of court which would really amount to its being without jurisdiction, inherent powers can be exercised to recall such order for the reason that in such an eventuality the order becomes a nullity and the provisions of Section 362 Cr.P.C. would not operate. In such eventuality, the judgment is manifestly contrary to the audi alteram partem rule of natural justice. The power of recall is different from the power of altering/reviewing the judgment. However, the party seeking recall/alteration has to establish that it was not at fault"

17. From the aforesaid judgments of Hon'ble the Apex Court as well as of various High Courts, it is clear that prohibition of Section 362 Cr.P.C. is absolute and when the judgment has been signed, even the High Court in exercise of its inherent power under section 482 Cr.P.C. has no authority or jurisdiction to alter or review the same.

18. Certainly, if any petition has been dismissed for want of prosecution or in default of the petitioner and the reasons for decision have not been rendered after applying the mind to the pleadings of the case as well as the grounds of petition, that order of dismiss in default cannot be termed as 'Judgment' because the judgement should contain not only the facts and pleadings of the case but also the documentary as well as oral evidence. In the judgment, it is required that there should be marshalling of the facts as well as appreciation of the evidence in respect of the determination of the matter in issue. The judge is also required to give reasons for its decision after looking into the various probabilities as well as cogent reasons for relying or not relying the contention and evidence of either party.

The process of judgment involves the following stages:

- I. Collection of Facts;
- II. Time Sequencing of Facts
- III. Shifting facts from opinions
- IV. Marshalling of Facts
- V. Find out the Problems (Charge/Issues)
- VI. What is the main problem (Charge/Issue)

- VII. Record of Evidence*
- VIII. Churning of Evidence*
- IX. Shifting of Evidence*
- X. Weighing the different alternatives*
- XI. Apply Precedents*
- XII. Look into Prohibitions*
- XIII. Findings and Conclusions*
- XIV. Order.*

19. In the present case, the petition has been dismissed for want of prosecution, although opportunity of hearing was given but that opportunity of hearing could not be availed due inadvertent mistake of the counsel. The inherent power under section 482 Cr.P.C. can be exercised to give effect to any order under Cr.P.C. or to prevent the abuse of the process of any court or otherwise to secure the ends of justice. Certainly, if the application has been dismissed for default, that cannot be termed as 'judgement'.

20. Accordingly, the bar as provided by section 362 Cr. P.C. shall not be applicable. This court has power to dismiss in default any application or writ petition and at the same time has also power to restore such proceedings on sufficient grounds being shown for non-appearance provided it appears to the court that default was not wilful and it was accidental. There are instances, where either legal advice is given or due to shrewd character of the litigant malafide efforts are adopted with a view to delay the proceedings of the case, such tactics are also adopted to get the case dismissed in default and then to move application for restoration and thus, lingering on the proceedings. Certainly, such practice must be carved out and should not be permitted to continue.

21. The views expressed by the various High Courts in the aforesaid decisions are in favour of the restoration of such petition, which has been dismissed in default in exercise of powers under section 482 of the code of criminal procedure with a view to secure the ends of justice and I am also in respectful agreement with the views expressed by the various High Courts in the aforesaid decisions.

22. Therefore, I am of the view that if any petition has been dismissed in default and the application for recall is made, then it will not come within the meaning of words 'alter' or 'review' as expressed in Section 362 of the Code. Accordingly, such orders may be recalled or set aside provided the intention of the parties is bonafide i.e. party who has moved the application for recall or restoration is not unnecessary lingering on the proceedings malafidely or that interim order or stay order, if any, is not being misused.

23. Accordingly, the application for restoration or recall of the order is maintainable and the prohibition of Section 362 Cr.P.C. do not apply in the petitions, which have been dismissed in default without discussing the merits of the case because it do not come within the prohibition of 'alter' or 'review' of judgment, which has entirely a different meaning.

24. In the present case, the petition was dismissed for want of prosecution because the counsel for the applicant could not appear due to technical problem and could not get the list of listed cases. So far as the objection raised by learned counsel for the opposite party no. 2 is concerned, the Court have substantial justice should not give weight to higher technical reason.

25. Accordingly, in the interest of justice, the application for recall is allowed.

2. Present application under Section 528 of the Bhartiya Nagrik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023 (for the sake of brevity 'BNSS') has been filed for quashing the first information report dated 14.6.2024 registered as P.S. Civil Lines, Meerut, giving rise to the registration of Crime No 192 of 2024 against the applicant and two others for the offences under Sections 420, 467, 468 and 471 of the Indian Penal Code.

3. It has been contended by the learned counsel for the applicant that the instant first information report which has been lodged is an abuse of process of the Court as on similar facts, earlier first information report bearing no. 0039 of 2022 was lodged on 3.2.2022 against 04 persons, namely, Narendra Singh Tomar, Satish Tewatiya, Hareram Dua and Jatin Dua for the offences under Sections 420, 467, 468 471, 386 and 120B, P.S. Transport Nagar, District Meerut (annexure 4 to the memo of application). It is further submitted by the learned counsel for the applicant that chargesheet in the said case has already been filed and the learned Magistrate has also taken cognizance of the offences described in the chargesheet. It is also much after registration of the FIR no. 0039 of 2022, the opposite party no. 2 in his capacity as Manager of the Society filed an application under Section 156(3) Criminal Procedure Code (hereinafter referred to as the 'CrPC') against the applicant and two others before the Court of Chief Judicial Magistrate, Meerut and the same was allowed vide order dated 7.6.2024 and the concerned Police Station was directed to register the FIR against the applicant and two others and to investigate the offence in accordance with law. It is further submitted by the learned counsel for the applicant that instant FIR is illegal as two FIRs cannot be lodged for the same offences in view of the law laid down by Hon'ble Apex Court in T.T. Antony vs. State of UP, (2001)6 SCC 181 as the second FIR is barred by the provisions of Section 162 of the CrPC. It is further submitted that on close perusal of FIR No. 39 of 2022, it would emerge that the substratum of the said FIR and the instant FIR is the same. It is further submitted that even if the allegation made in the instant FIR is taken to be true on its face value, then no offence under the aforesaid sections is made out against the applicant. It is also submitted that no falsification of a document within the meaning of Section 464 of the Indian Penal Code (hereinafter referred to as the 'IPC') has been done by the applicant, therefore, offence under Sections 467, 468 and 471 of the IPC is not made out. It is further submitted that falsification of documents within the meaning of Section 464 of the IPC is the prerequisite for constituting the offence under Sections 467, 468 and 471 of the IPC. In this regard, learned counsel for the applicant has placed reliance on a judgement of Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Sheila Sebastian vs. R. Jawaharraj, (2018) 7 SCC 581 in which Hon'ble Apex Court has summarized as follows:

25. That keeping in view the strict interpretation of penal statute i.e. referring to rule of interpretation wherein natural inferences are preferred, we observe that a charge of forgery cannot be imposed on a person who is not the maker of the same. As held in plethora of cases, making of a document is different than causing it to be made. As Explanation 2 to Section 464 further clarifies that for constituting an offence under Section 464 it is imperative that a false document is made and the accused person is the maker of the same, otherwise the accused person is not liable for the offence of forgery.

26. The definition of "false document" is a part of the definition of "forgery". Both must be read together. "Forgery" and "Fraud" are essentially matters of evidence which could be proved as a fact by direct evidence or by inferences drawn from proved facts. In the case in hand, there is no finding recorded by the trial Court that the respondents have made any false document or part of the document/record to execute mortgage deed under the guise of that "false document". Hence, neither respondent no. 1 nor respondent no. 2 can be held as makers of the forged documents. It is the imposter who can be said to have made the false document by committing forgery. In such an event the trial court as well as appellate court misguided themselves by convicting the accused. Therefore, the High Court has rightly acquitted the accused based on the settled legal position and we find no reason to interfere with the same."

4. It is further contended by the learned counsel for the applicant that as per allegation in the FIR in question there is complete lack of describing the essential facts constituting the commission of the offence under Section 420 of the IPC by the applicant. It is, therefore, submitted that no offence under Section 420 IPC is made out against the applicant even if the allegation made in the FIR is taken to be true on its face value. It is also submitted that Navyug Shahkari Avas Samiti filed a suit for cancellation of the sale deed before the Arbitrator invoking the provisions of the UP Cooperative Societies Act and presently the matter is pending before this Court. In view of the above, learned counsel for the applicant submitted that a civil dispute is pending between Navyug Shahkari Avas Samiti and the applicant. Learned counsel for the applicant submitted that Hon'ble Apex Court in G. Sagar Suri and another vs. State of U.P. and others, (2000) 2 SCC 636 has held as under:

"Jurisdiction under Section 482 of the Code has been to be exercised with great care. In exercise of its jurisdiction the High Court is not to examine the matter superficially. It is to be seen if a matter, which is essentially of a civil nature, has been given a cloak of criminal offence. Criminal proceedings are not a short cut of other remedies available in law. Before issuing process a criminal court has to exercise a great deal of caution. For the accused it is a serious matter. This Court has laid certain principles on the basis of which the High Court is to exercise its jurisdiction under Section 483 of the Code. Jurisdiction under this section has to be exercised to prevent abuse of the process of any court or otherwise to secure the ends of justice."

5. Learned counsel for the applicant has also placed reliance on a judgement of Hon'ble Apex Court in Usha Chakraborty and another vs. State of West Bengal and another, 2023 SCC Online SC90 wherein it has been held that where as dispute which is essentially of a civil nature, is given a cloak of a criminal offence, then such dispute can be quashed by exercising the inherent powers under Section 482 of CrPC. He has also placed reliance on a judgement of Hon'ble Apex Court in Paramjeet Batra vs. State of Uttarakhand, (2013) 11 SCC 673 wherein the Hon'ble Apex Court held that the High Court can quash the first information report in exercise of its inherent powers under Section 482 CrPC. It is further submitted that this legal position has not been altered by the introduction of new code of procedure w.e.f. 1.7.2024.

6. In view of the above, learned counsel for the applicant submitted that the instant FIR is an abuse of process of law, therefore, present application deserves to be allowed.

7. On the other hand, learned counsel for the opposite party no. 2 has submitted that present application is not maintainable in view of the decision of Hon'ble Full Bench of this Court in Ram Lal Yadav vs. State of UP, 1989 APLJ (Cri) 107 wherein it has been held that in a case at investigation stage by police, the High Court cannot interfere in exercise of its power under Section 482 CrPC but if it appears that investigation is being conducted by police in mala fide exercise of power, the High Court can quash such investigation in exercise of its power under Article 226 of the Constitution of India. The arrest of the applicant by police in cognizable cases cannot be interfered by the High Court under Section 482 CrPC. However, if it appears that police officer is misusing his powers, the High Court can issue a writ of mandamus under Article 226 of the Constitution of India restraining such police officer from such misuse. It is also held that the power of the police to investigate into a report which discloses the commission of a cognizable offence is unfettered and cannot be interfered with by the High Court in exercise of its inherent powers under Section 482 CrPC. The inherent powers of the High Court are there to prevent the abuse of the process of Court or otherwise to secure the ends of justice come into play only after the chargesheet against an accused is filed in Court and not till then even in cases where the police wrongly investigated into a report which does not disclose the commission of any offence. Learned counsel for the opposite party no. 2, in view of the above pronouncement by Hon'ble Full Bench of this Court, submitted that present application is not maintainable and the same deserves to be dismissed. Learned counsel for the opposite party no. 2 has also submitted that the applicant has played fraud on this Court and he has also misguided and misled this Court as the alleged power of attorney has not been brought on record by the applicant which firmly affirms the fact that it is not at all meant to authorize the said Narendra Sachdeva to execute any sale deed in favour of the applicant and the same power of attorney is not a genuine document and is fraudulently fabricated document. It is also submitted by the learned counsel for the opposite party no. 2 that the award has been challenged before this Court by filing a Writ-C No. 2972 of 2022, which has been declined by this Court vide order dated 23.5.2022 (Neutral Citation No. 2022:AHC-LK):27578).

8. I have considered the rival submissions and perused the affidavit filed in support of this application.

9. The opposite party no. 2 has filed the instant FIR through an application under Section 156(3) CrPC alleging therein that he is the registered member of Navyug Shahkari Avas Samiti (a registered society) being Registration No. 2459 dated 25.11.1971. It is also stated that he is the coordinator of the said society and he is authorized to act on behalf of the society. It is further alleged in the instant FIR that the above society had executed a sale deed in favour of one member Hareram Dua being plot no. 5, area 631-2/9 sq yard on consideration of money of Rs. 36,600.10 paise dated 11.9.1978. It is further alleged that as per paragraph 3 of the sale deed it is mentioned that a member of the society can transfer it to his family members and if he transfers in favour of some other person, then he will have to follow the rules and by-laws of the society. It is further alleged that accused Narendra Sachdeva by entering into criminal conspiracy with the co-accused Vishwa Bandhu (applicant herein) prepared a forged power of attorney and executed a forged sale deed of plot no. 5 in favour of the applicant Vishwa Bandhu on 12.9.1988 whereas no power of attorney was ever executed by the earlier allottee of the said plot Hareram Dua in favour of accused Narendra Sachdeva and the applicant was neither a member of the society nor his relative or family member of said Hareram Dua. It is further alleged that accused has violated the provisions of by-laws as provided in Section 55.

10. It is further alleged in the FIR that when the society came to know about the execution of the said sale deed dated 12.9.1988, a notice was issued to Hareram Dua and Vishwa Bandhu (applicant herein) through registered post on 4.8.2021 and 20.8.2021 but Vishwa Bandhu (applicant herein) refused to receive the notice and registered notice was returned back whereas Hareram Dua in reply to the notice submitted that he never executed any power of attorney in favour of the accused Narendra Sachdeva and if any power of attorney has been shown by Narendra Sachdeva, the same is a forged one and the alleged sale deed is a forged and fabricated document and he is still having possession over the aforesaid plot no. 5. It is further alleged in the FIR that thereafter the society instituted mediation case no. 57W of 2021 before the UP Joint Housing Commissioner, UP in which Hareram Dua delegated his power to his son Jatin Dua for looking after the case and taking steps. The said Hariram Dua filed an affidavit that he had never sold the plot no. 5 to anyone and even he did not require the said plot and he asked for refund of the money for the said plot. The society on the request of Hareram Dua refunded the consideration money with interest of the said plot to him and the sale deed dated 11.9.1978 which was executed by the society in favour of Hareram Dau was declared null and void.

11. It is further alleged in the FIR that accused Vishwa Bandhu (applicant herein), Narendra Sachdeva and Anil Sachdeva prepared a forged power of attorney ostensibly being executed by Hariram Dua and the applicant on the basis of forged power of attorney lodged an FIR No. 39 of 2022 for the offences under Sections 420, 467, 468 471, 386 and 120B IPC, P.S. Transport Nagar, District Meerut. It is further alleged that in view of the above, the accused Vishwa Bandhu (applicant herein), Narendra Sachdeva and Anil Sachdeva by committing fraud and preparing forged document with an intention to cause loss to the society got executed a forged sale deed.

12. Learned counsel for the opposite party no. 2 has raised a preliminary objection regarding maintainability of present application filed under Section 528 BNSS (old section 482 CrPC) and he has heavily relied on a decision of Hon'ble Full Bench of this Court in Ram Lal Yadav (supra) whereas the learned counsel for the applicant has submitted that the application is maintainable in view of the judgements of Hon'ble Apex Court in Paramjeet Batra (supra) and Usha Chakraborty (supra) and G. Sagar Suri (supra). However, the question whether an application under Section 528 BNSS (old section 482 CrPC) is maintainable for quashing the FIR has been considered by a Two-Judge Bench of Hon'ble Apex Court in Pradnya Pranjali Kulkarni vs. State of Maharashtra and another, passed in Special Leave to Appeal (Crl.) No. 13424 of 2025 dated 3.9.2025 wherein in paragraph 8 the Hon'ble Apex Court has held as under:

8. However, from the preamble of the writ petition filed by the petitioner before the Bombay High Court, it is evident that the same sought to invoke the twin jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution and Section 528 of the BNSS for having the FIR quashed. It is true that the police report (charge-sheet) had been filed on 14th May, 2025 upon completion of investigation of the FIR, but whether or not cognizance had been taken by the jurisdictional magistrate is not too clear from the impugned order extracted above. So long cognizance of the offence is not taken, a writ or order to quash the FIR/charge-sheet could be issued under Article 226; however, once a judicial order of taking cognizance intervenes, the power under Article 226 though not available to be exercised, power under Section 528, BNSS was available to be exercised to quash not only the FIR/charge-sheet but also the order taking cognizance, provided same is placed on record with the requisite pleadings to assail the same and a strong case for such quashing is set up. Significantly, it was reasoned by us in Neeta Singh (supra) that a judicial order not being amenable to challenge before a high court under Article 226 of the Constitution and there being no prayer either under Article 227 thereof or Section 482, Cr.PC, the Allahabad High Court was right in holding the writ petition under Article 226 to have been rendered infructuous.

13. Thus Hon'ble Apex Court in Pradnya Pranjali Kulkarni (supra) has clearly held that for quashing of the FIR, the High Court can exercise jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution of India and if chargesheet has been submitted and cognizance has been taken and the same has been placed along with the FIR on the record, then the same can be quashed by invoking Section 528 BNSS (old section 482 CrPC).

14. Learned counsel for the petitioner has placed reliance on the judgement of Hon'ble Supreme Court in G. Sagar Suri (supra) in which Hon'ble Supreme Court has held that the power under Section 482 CrPC should be used with caution only to prevent the abuse of process of the Court. It has also been held in the said judgement that a case under Section 138 Negotiable Instruments Act was pending against the appellant and the case related to the FIR lodged by the G.M. of a Finance Company roping the appellants and their family members in order to coerce them to refund the amount borrowed by them from the Company, Hon'ble Supreme Court allowed the appeal and quashed the FIR. The question whether the High Court can exercise the power under Section 482 CrPC to quash the FIR when charge-sheet has already been filed and cognizance has been taken was not an issue before the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the above judgement and therefore, the Hon'ble Supreme Court has not dealt with the said issue in the above judgement.

15. Learned counsel for the applicant has also placed reliance on a judgement of Hon'ble Supreme Court in Paramjeet Batra (supra) in which the Hon'ble Supreme Court quashed the entire proceedings on the ground that a purely civil dispute was given the colour of criminal texture and Hon'ble Supreme Court has held as under:

“12. While exercising its jurisdiction under Section 482 of the Code the High Court has to be cautious. This power is to be used sparingly and only for the purpose of preventing abuse of the process of any court or otherwise to secure ends of justice. Whether a complaint discloses a criminal offence or not depends upon the nature of facts alleged therein. Whether essential ingredients of criminal offence are present or not has to be judged by the High Court. A complaint disclosing civil transactions may also have a criminal texture. But the High Court must see whether a dispute which is essentially of a civil nature is given a cloak of criminal offence. In such a situation, if a civil remedy is available and is, in fact, adopted as has happened in this case, the High Court should not hesitate to quash the criminal proceedings to prevent abuse of process of the Court.

13. As we have already noted, here the dispute is essentially about the profit of the hotel business and its ownership. The pending civil suit will take care of all those issues. The allegation that forged and fabricated documents are used by the appellant can also be dealt with in the said suit. Respondent 2's attempt to file similar complaint against the appellant having failed, he has filed the present complaint. The appellant has been acquitted in another case filed by Respondent 2 against him alleging offence under Section 406 IPC. Possession of the shop in question has also been handed over by the appellant to Respondent 2. In such a situation, in our opinion, continuation of the pending criminal proceedings would be abuse of the process of law. The High Court was wrong in holding otherwise.

16. The issue whether the FIR can be quashed by the High Court under Section 482 CrPC after submission of the chargesheet and taking of cognizance was not an issue in the said judgements and Hon'ble Supreme Court has not dealt with the same in the said judgements.

17. The applicant has made following prayers in the present application:

1. To allow this application and quash the first information report dated 14.06.2024 registered at P.S. Civil Lines, Meerut, giving rise to the registration of Crime No. 192 of 2024, against the applicant and two others for the offences under Section 420, 467, 468 and 471 of the Indian Penal Code;

2. Any/or to pass such other further order as this Hon'ble Court may deem fit and proper under the circumstances of the case.”

18. From perusal of the prayers so made in the present application, it is clear that the applicant has simply sought for quashing the FIR and he has not placed the chargesheet as well as the cognizance taken on the chargesheet by the competent Court. Thus, in view of the judgement of Hon'ble Apex Court in Pradnya Pranjal Kulkarni (supra), since the chargesheet and the cognizance has not been placed on record, FIR cannot be quashed by invoking the provisions of Section 528 BNSS (old section 482 CrPC). Thus, in view of the above, present application is not maintainable.

19. Since the application is not maintainable, therefore, the merit of the case cannot be gone into by this Court.

20. Accordingly, present application is dismissed as not maintainable.

APPEARANCE OF PARTIES

Counsel for Appellant: - Shri Chandra Bhushan Pandey, Advocate
 Counsel for Respondent: - Shri Anand Singh, Standing Counsel.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Rajan Roy, J.)

1. Heard Shri Chandra Bhushan Pandey, learned counsel for the petitioner and Shri Anand Singh, learned Standing Counsel for the State.

2. This is a public interest litigation which was initiated in the year 2017 seeking following reliefs:-

“i) to issue a suitable writ, order or direction declaring appointment of opposite party nos. 5 and 6 as Chief Minister and Minister (Deputy Chief Minister) of U.P., respectively, null and void w.e.f. 19.03.2017, after summoning the necessary records;

ii) to issue a writ, order or direction of or in the nature of quo warranto requiring the opposite party nos. 5 and 6 to explain on as to under what authority they are appointed as Chief Minister and Minister (Deputy Chief Minister) of U.P. and are continuing on the said post, as such;

iii) to issue an appropriate order or direction requiring the opposite party no. 2 to declare the seats of opposite party nos. 5 and 6 in the House of People (Lok Sabha) vacant;

iv) to issue an appropriate order, declaring Section 3(a) of the Parliament (Prevention of Disqualification) Act, 1959 ultra vires the Constitution of India;”

3. Relief nos. (ii) and (iii) have outlived their utility, as, the opposite parties no. 5 and 6 after being appointed as Chief Minister and Deputy Chief Minister of State of U.P. completed their term in 2020, when fresh elections were held. Their subsequent appointment as Chief Minister and Deputy Chief Minister of the State has not been assailed in this writ petition.

4. On being pointed out the aforesaid, learned counsel for the petitioner accepted this fact but insisted that relief no. (i) still survives, as, a declaration is required to be given by this Court as to whether the opposite party nos. 5 and 6 were validly appointed as Chief Minister and Deputy Chief Minister when they took oath on 19.03.2017 or their appointment was null and void. Such declaration according to him was necessary. Only to this extent he asserted that an adjudication in the context of relief no. (i) is required. Thus, undisputedly relief nos. (ii) and (iii) have become infructuous.

5. The facts of the case in brief are that the opposite parties no. 5 and 6, both were Members of Parliament when they took oath as Chief Minister and Deputy Chief Minister of the State of U.P. on 19.03.2017. They resigned from Membership of Parliament on 21.09.2017. In the interregnum, on 08.09.2017, both were elected as Members of the Vidhan Parishad i.e. within the period of six months stipulated in Article 164(4) of the Constitution of India (hereinafter referred to 'the Constitution'). They completed their tenure in 2020.

6. After fresh elections to the State Legislative Assembly they were again appointed as Chief Minister and Deputy Chief Minister respectively and took oath on 25.03.2022. This is not a question before us.

7. It is not the case of the petitioner as specifically stated in Para 22 to 24 that appointment of the opposite party nos. 5 and 6 and their taking oath on 19.03.2017 as Chief Minister and Deputy Chief Minister, was bad in law as they were not Members of either house of the State Legislature. The grounds of challenge are different. They can be summarized as under:-

According to the petitioner's counsel such appointment and taking oath was contrary to the implied constitutional restrictions and the very constitutional scheme which prohibits one person to hold two constitutional posts. Reference was made in this regard to Articles 63, 64, 69 and 70 of the Constitution in the context of the Vice- President assuming office of the President on the latter falling vacant and thereby ceasing to work as Chairman of the Council of the States and also becoming disentitled to Salary and Allowances payable to the Chairman of the Council of States, a post held by the Vice President ex officio. Likewise, reference was made to Article 158 of the Constitution of India, according to which, if a member of either House of Parliament or the State Legislature is appointed as Governor, he shall be deemed to have vacated his seat in that House on the date on which he enters upon his office as Governor. These provisions of the Constitution, according to the learned counsel for the petitioner, were indicative of the ingrained philosophy in the India Constitution to segregate the function and duties assigned to incumbents of various constitutional posts.

As per understanding of the learned counsel for the petitioner, one person can not hold two constitutional offices, simultaneously. Reference was made in this regard to Article 101 of the Constitution and provisions of the Prohibition of Simultaneous Membership Rules, 1950 applicable in case of Members of two houses of the Parliament or the State Legislatures.

Learned counsel for the petitioner also pressed upon the doctrine of separation of powers in this context to submit that while Member of Parliament is part of the Legislature, the Chief Minister and Deputy Chief Minister are part of the executive but the same person i.e. the Member of Parliament holding two Offices of Chief Minister/Deputy Chief Minister amounts to violating the doctrine of separation of powers. In this context he submitted that both the opposite parties no. 5 and 6 were still Members of Parliament when they took oath as Chief Minister and Deputy Chief Minister of the State of U.P. on 19.03.2017, thereby, violating the aforesaid constitutional scheme, the implied restrictions and the doctrine referred hereinabove.

It was further contended that once they took oath as Chief Minister and Deputy Chief Minister they would not participate in the proceedings of Parliament for the obvious reason, that is, the onerous tasks assigned to them as Chief Minister and Deputy Chief Minister but they would still be drawing salary as Members of Parliament and also as Chief Minister and Deputy Chief Minister which is a situation not envisaged by the Constitution. The fact that such a person who draws salary for two posts but will not be able to perform the duties of one of them i.e. the Member of Parliament, is constitutionally objectionable and uncalled for, as, this puts unnecessary burden on the public exchequer that too in a developing economy. In this context, he referred to the Uttar Pradesh Ministers (Salaries, Allowances and Miscellaneous Provisions) Act, 1981.

It was submitted that the Governor while exercising his discretion under Article 164 to appoint the Chief Minister/ Deputy Chief Minister should have looked into these aspects of the of the matter and not having done so he or she acted in arbitrarily and unconstitutional manner. Reference was made in this regard to the decisions of Hon'ble the Supreme Court reported in (2013) 5 SCC 1; State of Punjab Vs. Salil Sabhlok and Ors., (2016) 8 SCC 1; Nabam Rebia and Bamng Felix vs. Deputy Speaker, Arunachal Pradesh Legislative Assembly & Ors., according to which, the Governor is required to exercise his discretionary power in just fair, reasonable and bonafide manner and not in disregard to the constitutional spirit.

In Para 38 and 39 of the writ petition the petitioner has specifically pleaded that though there is no specific restriction for a Member of Parliament to be appointed as a Chief Minister/ Deputy Minister, however, implied restrictions are engrained in the Constitution. Constitutional appointments are required to be guided by certain principles which may not be expressly stated in the Constitution but the person conferred with the powers to make such appointment is bound by unwritten code pertaining to morality and philosophy encapsulated in the preamble of the Constitution. The Governor, according to the petitioner's counsel, overlooked the implied restrictions while performing his duties under Article 164(1) of the Constitution. In the context of implied constitutional restrictions a reference has been made to the judgment rendered in the case of Salil Sabhlok (supra). According to the petitioner's counsel, the Governor of U.P. should have asked the opposite party nos. 5 and 6 to resign from their membership of Parliament before rendering oath and not doing so, was violative of the constitutional spirit and scheme.

He also pressed relief no. (iv) by which vires of Section 3(a) of the Parliament (Prevention of Disqualification) Act, 1959 (hereinafter referred to as 'the Act, 1959') has been challenged. At the outset, we must put it on record that relief no. 4 has no relation to relief No. 1, therefore, two separate causes have been joined together in these proceedings, nevertheless, we will consider these reliefs hereafter.

In this regard he contended that object behind Article 102(1)(a) of the Constitution of India was to disqualify any person from the Membership of Parliament if he holds any "office of profit" under the Government of India or the Government of any State and to carve out an exception to this vital and important principle contained in the constitutional provisions was to negate the object behind it. The Office of Chief Minister and Deputy Chief Minister were offices of profit under the State and therefore, they can not simultaneously hold the office of Member of Parliament under the Constitution. According to him, the Parliament exceeded its jurisdiction by inserting Section 3(a) of the Act, 1959 which contravenes the Constitution but no specific provision of the Constitution which is alleged to have been contravened was placed before us.

It was submitted that Article 102(1) (a) of the Constitution, to which the Act, 1959 is referable, does not empower the Parliament to make law in respect of the Offices which are already enumerated in the Constitution itself. According to him, excluding the office of a Minister from the list of offices of profit for the purposes of disqualification of Member of Parliament, is absolutely unreasonable, bordering on absurdity.

In this context, he submitted that as per the constitutional provisions only for a period of six months a person can be appointed as a Minister either in the Center or the State without being a Member of any of the Houses of Parliament or State Legislature. Likewise, is the case in the State, therefore, the Act, 1959 providing protection to the Union Minister or the State Minister was quite unnecessary. Such a provision was violative of federal structure of the Constitution which is its basic feature. It was also violative to the concept of Constitutional Morality deeply enshrined in our Constitution. In this regard he referred to the authority reported in (2014) 9 SCC 1; Manoj Narula v. Union of India. For all these reasons, he contended that Section 3(a) of the Act, 1959 was ultra vires the Constitution and inconsistent with Article 102.

8. Learned Standing Counsel for the State has contended that the entire writ petition is absolutely misconceived. There is no constitutional bar in any person taking oath as Chief Minister/ Deputy Chief Minister while being a Member of Parliament nor does Section 3(a) of the Act, 1959 suffer from any unconstitutionality or illegality, therefore, the writ petition lacks merit and is liable to be dismissed.

9. Having heard learned counsel for the parties and having perused the records, we find that we are required to consider only relief nos. (i) and (iv) of the writ petition.

10. First and foremost the question before us is as to whether the Constitution permitted opposite party nos. 5 and 6 to take oath as Chief Minister and Deputy Chief Minister of the State on 19.03.2017 while they were still Members of Parliament of India and had not resigned as such.

11. There is nothing in the Constitution which prohibits the appointment of a person who is already a Member of Parliament as Chief Minister or Deputy Chief Minister of a State.

12. Article 164 (1-B) provides that a member of the Legislative Assembly of a State or either House of the Legislature of a State having Legislative Council belonging to any political party who is disqualified for being a member of that House under paragraph 2 of the Tenth Schedule shall also be disqualified to be appointed as a Minister under clause (1) for duration of the period commencing from the date of his disqualification till the date on which the term of his office as such member would expire or where he contests any election to the Legislative Assembly of a State or either House of the Legislature of a State having Legislative Council, as the case may be, before the expiry of such period, till the date on which he is declared elected, whichever is earlier. The disqualification referred above is on the ground of defection. It is nobody's case that the opposite party nos. 5 and 6 suffered from aforesaid disqualifications.

13. The other disqualifications is contained in Article 191 of the Constitution. According to Article 191(1) (a), a person shall be disqualified for being chosen as, and for being, a member of the Legislative Assembly or Legislative Council of a State- (a) if he holds any office of profit under the Government of India or the Government of any State specified in the First Schedule, other than an office declared by the Legislature of the State by law not to disqualify its holder. In this context we may refer to an enactment, namely, the Uttar Pradesh State Legislature (Prevention of Disqualification) Act, 1971, vires of which is not under challenge. Section 3 thereof excludes certain offices of profit as disqualification for the holder thereof for being a Member of the State Legislature, one of which is, the office of Minister of State or Deputy Minister, or of Parliamentary Secretary to a Minister, either for the Union or for the State. No doubt it does not exclude a member of Parliament but whether member of Parliament holds an office of profit under the Government of India or the State so as to attract Article 191(1)(a). He by virtue of being member of Parliament certainly does not hold such office under the Government of any State. A Member of Parliament is an office of election. It is not an office or post on which appointment is made by the Government of India or the State Government. It is certainly not an office of profit under the Government of India or the State Government. Members of Parliament get elected to raise the voice of the people/constituency whom/which they represent in Parliament and irrespective of the remuneration received by them as Members of Parliament, they can not be said to be holding any office or post under the Government of India. In fact, there is no foundation in the pleadings of the writ petition with documentary proof in support of thereof to establish that in fact, it is an office of profit as referred in Article 191(1)(a) of the Constitution. The election and tenure of the Member of Parliament is not at the pleasure of the Government or the President of India.

14. We also draw support in this context from a decision of Hon'ble the Supreme Court reported in (2019) 11 SCC 683; Ashwini Kumar Upadhyay Vs. Union of India and Anr., wherein the question was as to whether a Member of Parliament can practice law; was it barred by regulations framed under the Advocates Act, 1961 or not. In that context Hon'ble Supreme Court while referring to Rule 49 of Bar Council of India Rules, 1975 observed that the said rule applies- "where an advocate is a full-time salaried employee of any person, government, firm, corporation or concern. Indubitably, legislators cannot be styled or characterised as full-time salaried employees as such, much less of the specified entities. For, there is no relationship of employer and employee. The status of legislators (MPS/MLAs/MLCs) is of a member of the House (Parliament/State Assembly). The mere fact that they draw salary under the 1954 Act or different allowances under the relevant Rules framed under the said Act does not result in creation of a relationship of employer and employee between the government and the legislators, despite the description of payment received by them in the name of salary. Indeed, the legislators are deemed to be public servants, but their status is sui generis and certainly not one of a full-time salaried employee of any person, government, firm, corporation or concern as such. Even the expansive definition of term "person" in the General Clauses Act, 1897 will be of no avail. The term "employment" may be an expansive expression but considering the constitutional scheme, the legislators being elected people's representatives occupy a seat in Parliament/Legislative Assembly or Council as its members but are not in the employment of or for that matter full-time salaried employees as such. They occupy a special position so long as the House is not dissolved. The fact that disciplinary or privilege action can be initiated against them by the Speaker of the House does not mean that they can be treated as full-time salaried employees. Similarly, the participation of the legislators in the House for the conduct of its business, by no standards can be considered as service rendered to an employer. One ceases to be a legislator, only when the House is dissolved or if he/she resigns or vacates the seat upon incurring disqualification to continue to be a legislator. By no standards, therefore, Rule 49 as a whole can be invoked and applied to the legislators." The said observations of Hon'ble the Supreme Court, albeit in a different context, throw some light on the status of legislators whether they be MPs/MLAs/MLCs.

15. It is evident from the aforesaid that they do not hold any office or post under the Government, in the first place, therefore, the question whether they held an office of profit under the Government of India or State, becomes superfluous. The mere fact that they draw salary under the Salaries, Allowances and Pension of Members of Parliament Act, 1954 or different allowances under the relevant Rules framed under the said Act does not result in creation of a relationship of employer and employee between the Government and the legislators, despite the description of payment received by them in the name of salary. Their participation in the house for the conduct of its business by no standards can be considered as service rendered to an employer, whether it be the Government of India or the State. One ceases to be a legislator, only when the House is dissolved or if he/she resigns or vacates the seat upon incurring disqualification to continue to be a legislator. A Member of Parliament or the State Legislator does not function as such at the pleasure of the Government of India/ State or the President/ Governor. They are not appointed but are elected by electors from respective territorial constituencies. The form of oath also does not suggest that the Member is appointed by the President as such. Hon'ble the Supreme Court even observed - "the fact that the legislators draw salary and allowances from the consolidated fund in terms of Article 106 of the Constitution and the law made by Parliament in that regard, it does not follow that a relationship of a full-time salaried employee(s) of the Government or otherwise is created."

16. The petitioner has himself accepted in Para 38 that there is no specific bar in the Constitution for a Member of Parliament to be appointed or to take oath as Chief Minister or Deputy Chief Minister, but, he refers to certain implied restrictions which he has not been satisfactorily spelled out nor have we been able to find any. There is no such bar, express or implied.

17. In this context, it has been contended that if such a person is appointed, then, he will be holding two constitutional posts or office, one of Member of Parliament and the other of Chief Minister/ Deputy Chief Minister, however, this is not correct. A Member of Parliament does not hold a constitutional office or post. Parliament of India is constituted under Chapter II of the Constitution. It has two houses. One known as house of the people and the other Council of States. Members of the house of the People are 'elected' by the people in terms of the Constitution, whereas, Members of the Council of States, some are elected, and, others are nominated etc. The Constitution does not create these offices or posts nor does it define their function and powers etc. They are thus not constitutional offices or posts. Constitutional Offices are offices such as that of the President of India, Vice President of India, Speaker and Chief Election Commissioner, so on so forth, therefore, the contention of Shri Pandey, learned counsel for the petitioner that the opposite party nos. 5 and 6 were holding two constitutional posts/offices at the same time, does not appear to be correct. One becomes a Member of Parliament based on election, whereas, a Chief Minister/ Deputy Chief Minister is appointed by the Governor in terms of the Constitution, which could be the case even when they have not been elected as Member of a State Legislature. The contention as noticed hereinabove is, therefore, constitutionally fallacious. Office of Member of Parliament is not a constitutional post or office. Reliance in this regard on Article 63, 64, 69, 70 and 158 is misplaced and the analogy sought to be drawn vis-a-vis office of Vice-President, Speaker etc. is without any constitutional basis as latter are constitutional posts, whereas, Member of Parliament is not.

18. The reasoning being put forth on behalf of the petitioner that by taking oath as Chief Minister/Deputy Chief Minister the opposite party nos. 5 and 6 continued to be Members of Parliament thereby drawing salary from two sources, however, there is nothing on record to suggest, that it was factually so, just as, there is nothing on record to suggest that they, after being appointed as Chief Minister/ Deputy Minister, did not attend the parliamentary proceedings. In any case, these arguments have outlived their utility as already stated earlier in the context of relief nos. (ii) and (iii). We are only concerned with the issue as to whether their appointment of opposite party nos. 5 and 6 was unconstitutional or illegal.

19. We have already stated that there is no constitutional provision which prohibits a Member of Parliament from being appointed or taking oath as Chief Minister or Deputy Chief Minister of State.

20. To say that this violates the doctrine of separation of powers is preposterous. The fallaciousness of the contention is evident from the fact that every Minister in the State has ultimately to be a Member of either of two houses of the State Legislature, an inference which follows from Article 164(4) of the Constitution itself. If this contention is accepted that no Member of Legislature should be appointed as a Minister because as member of the Legislature he is part of the Legislative wing and as Chief Minister/ Deputy Chief Minister he becomes part of the executive, then no minister could be appointed, as, every minister so appointed has to be a member of either house, whether initially or within six months as mandated under Article 164(4) of the Constitution, therefore, this contention is apparently fallacious and against express constitutional persons. It is rejected. For all these reasons, to say that the Governor of U.P. did not exercise his discretion constitutionally, is misconception.

21. One of the arguments of Shri Pandey was that after becoming the Chief Minister or Deputy Chief Minister such person would be unable to address the problems of his constituency i.e. the Parliamentary Constituency. This also is an argument which is without any factual and legal basis. In this case opposite party nos. 5 and 6 resigned from their membership of Parliament within 14 days of being elected as members of State Legislature. It is accordingly rejected.

22. The legal position is settled that even if person is not a Member of the State Legislature he can be appointed as Chief Minister of the State subject to the condition contained in Article 164(4) of the Constitution that he shall cease to be such Minister if he does not get elected within a period of six months as referred hereinabove. Now, this 'person' could, would include one who is not a Member of the State Legislature, and a person who is a Member of Parliament, as, there is no such bar that a Member of Parliament while remaining as such, can not be appointed as Minister of a State.

23. As regards application of Article 101 we have perused the same and find that Clause (1) and (2) of Article 101 of the Constitution have no application to the facts of this case. In this case, the election to the State Legislature was held on 08.09.2017 and the opposite party nos. 5 and 6 resigned from their membership of Parliament on 21.09.2017 and their seats fell vacant in the Parliament on the said date in view of Article 101 (3)(b).

24. The rules made under Article 101(2) of the Constitution, namely, the Prohibition of Simultaneous Membership Rules, 1950 and Rule 2 and 3 contained therein have no application to the facts of this case. They envisage a contingency where a person has been simultaneously holding a seat in the Parliament and in a house of legislature of a State specified in the 1st Schedule to the Constitution of India and if he does not vacate his seat in the State Legislature, then, his seat in the Parliament will fall vacant, whereas, in the case at hand the opposite party nos. 5 and 6 resigned from their membership of parliament itself in terms of Article 101(3)(b) of the Constitution on 21.09.2017, therefore, Rules 2 and 3 of the Rules, 1950 made by the President under Article 101(2) and Article 190(2) of the Constitution have no application to the case at hand.

25. As regards the provisions contained in Article 190(3) to the effect that if a member of a House of the Legislature of a State - (a) becomes subject to any of the disqualifications mentioned in clause (1) or clause (2) of Article 191, then, at the expiration of such period his seat shall thereupon fall vacant, we have already discussed Article 191(1)(a) and ancillary issues earlier. No other disqualification under Article 191 of the Constitution has been pleaded by the petitioner.

26. We may now refer to the U.P. State Legislature (Prevention of Disqualification) Act, 1971, where, office of Minister of State or Deputy Minister or of Parliamentary Secretary either for the Union or for the State is excluded from the list of offices of profit, meaning thereby, the holder of such office is not disqualified for being chosen as, and for being, a member of the State Legislature. This provision is not attracted to the case at hand.

27. None of the aforesaid provisions put any bar on a Member of Parliament being appointed as Chief Minister or Deputy Chief Minister.

28. In the facts of this case, the opposite party nos. 5 and 6 were elected to the Vidhan Parishad in the State Legislature of U.P. on 08.09.2017 and resigned from membership of Parliament on 21.09.2017 and no such provision has been placed before us that during this period they having been Member of Parliament and member of the Vidhan Parishad simultaneously, invited any disqualification or vacation of their seat, either way, under the Constitution or under any statute or Rules, therefore, we do not find any reason to grant relief no. 1 to the writ petition. It is declined.

29. Now, coming to relief no. (iv), Section 3(a) of the Parliament (Prevention of Disqualification) Act, 1959 is as under:-

"3. Certain offices of profit not to disqualify.— It is hereby declared that none of the following offices, in so far as it is an office of profit under the Government of India or the Government of any State, shall disqualify the holder thereof for being chosen as, or for being, a member of Parliament, namely: —

Explanation 2. —In clause (aa), the expression “Leader of the Opposition” shall have the meaning assigned to it in the Salary and Allowances of Leaders of Opposition in Parliament Act, 1977 (33 of 1977).

Explanation 3. — In clause (ac), the expressions “recognised party” and "recognised group" shall have the meanings assigned to them in the Leaders and Chief Whips of Recognised Parties and Groups in Parliament (Facilities) Act, 1988 (5 of 1999)."

30. The aforesaid relief has presumably been sought because on assuming office of Chief Minister and Deputy Chief Minister on 19.03.2017 the opposite party nos. 5 and 6 as per the understanding of the petitioner held an office of profit under the State of U.P., therefore, they were disqualified to be Members of Parliament in view of Article 102 (1)(a) of the Constitution of India. This Relief No. (iv) may have been relevant in the context of Relief No. (ii) which as stated earlier has outlived its utility. Nevertheless, in the context of Relief No. (iv) we may first and foremost refer to Article 102 of the Constitution which reads as under:-

"102. Disqualifications for membership- (1) A person shall be disqualified for being chosen as, and for being, a member of either House of Parliament-

(a) if he holds any office of profit under the Government of India or the Government of any State, other than an office declared by Parliament by law not to disqualify its holder;

(b) if he is of unsound mind and stands so declared by a competent court;

(c) if he is an undischarged insolvent;

(d) if he is not a citizen of India, or has voluntarily acquired the citizenship of a foreign State, or is under any acknowledgement of allegiance or adherence to a foreign State;

(e) if he is so disqualified by or under any law made by Parliament.

Explanation.-- For the purposes of this clause a person shall not be deemed to hold an office of profit under the Government of India or the Government of any State by reason only that he is a Minister either for the Union or for such State.

(2) A person shall be disqualified for being a member of either House of Parliament if he is so disqualified under the Tenth Schedule."

31. On a bare reading of the aforesaid provisions it is evident firstly that the Constitution under Article 102(1)(a) itself permits exclusion of an office from the purview of the said provision so as not to disqualify its holder, if it is so declared by Parliament by law. Secondly, the explanation to Article 102 as amended by the Constitution (Fifty-second Amendment) Act, 1985 w.e.f. 01.03.1985 clearly explains the provision and clarifies it that for the purpose of this clause i.e. Clause 102(1)(a), a person shall not be deemed to hold an office of profit under the Government of India or the Government of any State by reason only that he is a Minister either for the Union or for such State. The Chief Minister is also a Minister of a State, therefore, clearly the explanation itself excludes the office of the Chief Minister from application of said provision which is not attracted to the said office.

32. Parliament has enacted a law in this regard from time to time which is referred to Article 102. The first one being the Parliament (Prevention of Disqualification) Act, 1950; then, the Parliament (Prevention of Disqualification) Act, 1951; the Prevention of Disqualification (Parliament and Par- C State Legislatures) Act, 1953 and ultimately, a consolidated Act was promulgated, namely, Parliament (Prevention of Disqualification) Act, 1959, Section 3- A of which has been challenged by the petitioner. It is the latter which has been challenged. This provisions declares that none of the Offices mentioned therein in so far as it is an office of profit under the Government of India or the Government or any State, shall disqualify the holder thereof for being chosen as, or for being, a member of Parliament. Of course the Act, 1959 enumerates several other offices but it also includes in Section 3(a) any office held by a Minister, Minister or State or Deputy Minister for the Union or for any State, whether ex officio or by name which includes the Chief Minister and Deputy Chief Minister also. The Constitution itself having excluded the office of Minister of a State which includes Chief Minister and Deputy Chief Minister from the purview of operation and application of Article 102 and the said explanation to Article 102 (1) of the Constitution not having been challenged by the petitioner, we fail to understand as to how such a challenge to Section 3(a) of the Act, 1959 can be raised and sustained. It can not.

33. Apart from pleading appointment of opposite party nos. 5 and 6 as Chief Minister and Deputy Chief Minister nothing else has been pleaded as to why they would be disqualified in view of Article 102(1)(a), in view of the explanation to Article 102(1)(a).

34. We do not find any constitutional or legal basis for declaring Section 3(a) of the Act, 1959 as unconstitutional. The Act, 1959 does not contravene Article 101 in any manner whatsoever. In fact, it is permissible vide Article 102(1), especially its Explanation.

35. In view of the above discussion, we do not find any unconstitutionality in Section 3(a) of the Act, 1959. Relief No. (iv) is also declined. For all these reasons, we do not find any merit in the writ petition. Accordingly, the writ petition is dismissed.
