(A) Service law – Extra-ordinary pension – Entitlement of widow – The husband was crushed by a Maruti car, while discharging the duty as the Follower in State Civil Police, and was expired – Claim for extra-ordinary pension was rejected – Validity challenged – Applicability of the Rules, 1961 and Rules, 2009 felt into consideration: (E-1)

Held: Rule 3 of the Uttar Pradesh Police (Extraordinary Pension) Rules 1961 also provides for grant of extraordinary pension to permanent or temporary employees. Thus on the said count, it appears that the order dated 07.06.2002 proceeds on misconception of fact that the follower is not covered under the 1961 Rules. [Para 10]

Further held: Returning or going for preparing meal as a follower and confronted with an accident on road is not a incident or a factor to be considered for payment of extraordinary pension, particularly when Rule 5 itself creates a bar that no award is to be made in respect of the death caused by any reason covered under Rule 3. Since Rule 3 does not contemplate such an exigency, thus on this ground the writ petitioner is not entitled to relief. [Para 11]

Appearances for Parties

Advs. for the Appellant: Amar Nath Dubey, Asif Hasan

Advs. for the Respondents: Badrish Kumar Tripathi (S.C.)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Vikas Budhwar, J.)

1. Heard Sri Amar Nath Dubey, learned counsel for the writ petitioner and Sri Badrish Kumar Tripathi, learned Standing Counsel for the respondents.

2. The case of the writ petitioner is that the husband of the original writ petitioner, who happens to be the wife of Sri Heera Lal Shukla was working in State Civil Police since 14.10.1972 as a Follower. On 02.10.1999, being the fateful day, the petitioner's husband was required from his residence to prepare a meal for the additional force who were camping in connection with election duty. The writ petitioner left his house at 11:30 p.m. and when the petitioner's husband was going to attend the duty on his bicycle, he was crushed by a Maruti Car at 11:30 p.m. near the AMC Supply Depot on the way from Charbagh side to Kanpur. A first information report stood lodged by the brother of the husband of the deceased with respect to fatal accident being Case Crime no.179/99 under Sections 279, 304-A, 427 IPC at P.S. Alambagh, Lucknow on 03.10.1999. The husband of the writ petitioner expired and a criminal proceeding stood triggered. Post death of husband of the writ petitioner before his date of his retirement, the writ petitioner staked his claim for grant of extra-ordinary pension and the said claim came to be rejected on 07.06.2002 by the order of the State Government.

3. Though initially, the petition was preferred seeking mandamus to extend the extraordinary pension in terms of Uttar Pradesh Police (Extraordinary Pension) Rules 1961, but consequent to the rejection of the claim, amendment came to be filed, which was allowed.

4. Learned counsel for the writ petitioner has sought to argue that the consideration which weighed with the respondent is negating the claim of the writ petitioner that the husband of the writ petitioner happened to be a follower, who was called from his house for preparing meal and he met with an accident on account whereof he died, thus the original writ petitioner, who happens to be the widow, who also expired and now the legal heirs are entitled to extraordinary pension in terms of Uttar Pradesh Police (Extraordinary Pension) Rules 1961.

5. Submission is also to the extent that follower is a post, which is equivalent to cook /Kahar and as per Uttar Pradesh Police Group-D Employees Service Rules 2009, there are 7887 posts earmarked and sanctioned.

6. Contention is that the writ petitioner is entitled to be accorded extraordinary pension in that regard. Reliance has been placed upon a Division Bench judgment of this Court in Service Single No.40 of 2011, Krishna Murari vs. State of U.P. decided on 06.02.2009.

7. Learned Addl. Chief Standing Counsel on the other hand submitted that whatever might be, the issue is on a larger aspect relatable to the fact that even if it is treated that the writ petitioner is a regular employee, then too in view of the provisions contained under Rule 3 of the 1961 Rules, further read with Rule 5, none of the contingencies for grant of extraordinary pension stands extracted as it is not the case of death due to attack/fight with dacoits/criminals/foreign hostiles/extremists/ terrorists/naxalites, death due to attack by aggressive public, death due to accident, while undergoing important training/demonstration, death during rescue and relief operations undertaken during natural calamities like flood/earthquake/landslide/snow storm etc. or man made disasters like train accidents, tanker blast etc., death while extinguishing fire or helping in extinguishing fire in any area, death due to attack in an area under curfew; and death due to attack while escorting prisoner. Contention is that mere accident would not come within the beneficial provision in that regard.

8. I have heard the submissions so made across the Bar and perused the record.

9. Before embarking an enquiry upon the rival submissions, it would apposite to extract the relevant statutory provisions:

"The Uttar Pradesh Police (Extraordinary Pension) Rules, 1961

3. These rules shall apply to all the Gazetted/Non-Gazetted Police, PAC or Fire Service personnel of Uttar Pradesh, whether employed in a permanent or temporary capacity under the rule making control of the Governor, whose death occur while on duty under the following circumstances:

(a) death due to attack/fight with dacoits/criminals/foreign hostiles/extremists/terrorists/naxalites etc.;

(b) death due to attack by aggressive public;

(c) death due to accident, while undergoing important training/demonstration;

(d) death during rescue and relief operations undertaken during natural calamities like flood/earthquake/landslide/snow storm etc. or man made disasters like train accidents, tanker blast etc.;

(e) death while extinguishing fire or helping in extinguishing fire in any area;

(f) death due to attack in an area under curfew; and

(g) death due to attack while escorting prisoner.

5. (5) No award shall be made in respect of death caused by any reason other than those covered under Rule 3."

"The Uttar Pradesh Police Group 'D' Employees Service Rules, 2009

4. Cadre of Service.—

(1) Number of posts in each category of posts therein shall be such as may be determined by the Government from time to time provided that the appointing authority may leave unfilled by the Governor may hold in abeyance any post or class of post without thereby entitling any person to compensation.

(2) The strength of service and of each category therein shall until orders varying the same are passed under sub-rule (1), be as given below:

Sl. No. 1, Name of the Post- Follower/ Cook/Kahar, Number of Posts - 7887"

10. Plainly and simply, the husband of the original writ petitioner and the predecessor in interest of the substituted petitioner was a follower, who met with an accident on the fateful day, when he was to attend the police station for cooking meal. Though at the time when the said incident took place and when the order impugned dated 07.06.2002 came to be passed. The Uttar Pradesh Police Group-D Employees Service Rules 2009 was not in existence, but in view of the provisions contained under Rule 4, further read with the chart so appended thereto, there happened to be 7887 posts of the follower /cook/kahar and the appointment in question as per the said Rule was substantive in nature. Further Rule 3 of the Uttar Pradesh Police (Extraordinary Pension) Rules 1961 also provides for grant of extraordinary pension to permanent or temporary employees. Thus on the said count, it appears that the order dated 07.06.2002 proceeds on misconception of fact that the follower is not covered under the 1961 Rules.

11. Now, a question arises whether in the wake of the provisions contained under Rule 3 read with Rule 5 of the 1961 Rules whether the writ petitioner is entitled to extraordinary pension or not. Notably, returning or going for preparing meal as a follower and confronted with an accident on road is not a incident or a factor to be considered for payment of extraordinary pension, particularly when Rule 5 itself creates a bar that no award is to be made in respect of the death caused by any reason covered under Rule 3. Since Rule 3 does not contemplate such an exigency, thus on this ground the writ petitioner is not entitled to relief.

12. Though this Court would have remanded the matter back to the authority to pass a fresh order, particularly in view of the fact that the follower also holds a post and as per Rule 3 of the 1961 Rules, temporary and permanent employees are covered, but since the writ petitioner does not come within the parameters or ambit of 1961 Rules for grant of benefits, thus it would be a futile exercise to remit the matter back. Accordingly, this Court is of the opinion that no good ground is made out to interfere in this regard, particularly while invoking Article 226 of the Constitution of India.

13. Resultantly, interference is declined. The writ petition stands disposed of leaving it open for the writ petitioner to avail other remedies which are available against the vehicle owner or the driver, as the case may be under the Motor Vehicles Act.

Issue for Consideration

- (1) Applicability of principle of natural justice in the matter of cancellation of appointment obtained on the strength of a forged mark-sheet.
- (2) Relevancy of verification reports in the matter of cancellation of an appointment obtained on the basis of a fictitious document.
- (3) High Court's power to impose exemplary costs.

Headnotes

(A) Service law – Cancellation of appointment – Assistant Teacher – Forged mark-sheet was used to obtain the appointment – On the direction of writ court, the Secretary also found mark-sheet forged – Single Judge dismissed writ petition – Validity challenged – Ground was taken that the learned Single Judge relied upon the verification report without granting adequate opportunity to the petitioner to rebut the same – Further pleaded that no proper inquiry into the alleged forgery was conducted and that the report could not have been relied upon without affording an opportunity of hearing and action taken was violative of the principles of natural justice – Permissibility – Relevancy of verification reports felt into consideration:

Held: The principles of natural justice are intended to ensure fairness and cannot be invoked to protect a claim founded on a forged document – The contention that the learned Single Judge recorded findings on forgery without a regular trial also cannot be accepted in the facts of the present case. The writ court was not trying the appellant for an offence. It was examining whether the employer was justified in cancelling an appointment obtained on the basis of a document which stood verified to be fictitious. For that purpose, the verification reports from the competent authorities were sufficient material – It is trite that fraud vitiates every solemn act. An appointment secured on the basis of a forged educational certificate does not confer any enforceable right upon the appointee, and no equity can be claimed on the basis of long continuance in service. [Para 17, 18 and 19]

B. Allahabad High Court Rules, 1952 – Ch. XXII, Rule 9 – Cost – Exemplary cost – High Court's power to impose: (E-1)

Held: The appellant not only questioned the termination but persisted in asserting the genuineness of the very same mark-sheet and even brought on record a certificate in support thereof, which also failed to withstand verification. In such circumstances, the learned Single Judge cannot be said to have acted arbitrarily in imposing exemplary costs so as to deter abuse of the process of Court. The amount imposed also cannot be said to be so disproportionate as to warrant appellate interference. [Para 20]

Civil Misc. Delay Contonation Application No.64342 of 2011

1. There is delay of 66 days in filing the present special appeal.
2. For the reasons stated in the affidavit accompanying the delay condonation application, the delay in filing the special appeal is condoned.
3. The delay condonation application is allowed.

Appeal

4. The present appeal has been filed challenging the order dated 09.11.2010 passed by the learned Single Judge in Civil Misc. Writ Petition No. 34650 of 2010, whereby the writ petition filed by the petitioner?appellant was dismissed, and the order of termination passed by the District Basic Education Officer, Siddharth Nagar was upheld, and further directions were issued for lodging an FIR against the petitioner as well as for recovery, along with imposition of exemplary costs of Rs. 50,000/-.

5. Brief facts of the case are that the petitioner was appointed as an Assistant Teacher on 31.03.1995 by the District Basic Education Officer, Siddharth Nagar at Primary Pathshala, Balua. The petitioner claimed to have passed High School, Intermediate and B.T.C. examinations and to have submitted all relevant testimonials at the time of selection. On 06.12.2005, the petitioner was required to produce original mark-sheets and certificates, which were submitted. However, on 27.03.2010, a show cause notice was issued to the petitioner stating that, upon verification from the Principal of P.N. Intermediate College, Mardah, Ghazipur, it was found that Roll No. 335639, as mentioned in the petitioner's Intermediate mark-sheet, had not been allotted to any candidate, and thus the mark-sheet appeared to be fictitious. The petitioner was also called upon to explain as to why an FIR be not lodged against him.

6. When the petitioner failed to appear, a further notice dated 16.04.2010 was issued. The petitioner thereafter responded on 22.04.2010, enclosing a certificate purportedly issued by the Principal stating that he had passed the Intermediate examination in 1983 with the same roll number. Subsequently, by order dated 10.05.2010, the petitioner's appointment was cancelled with retrospective effect. Aggrieved, the petitioner filed the writ petition.

7. During the pendency of the writ petition, the appellant filed a supplementary affidavit annexing another copy of the Intermediate mark-sheet. Upon directions of the learned Single Judge, the said mark-sheet was verified, and the Secretary, Madhyamik Shiksha Parishad, U.P., Allahabad, vide report dated 08.11.2010, categorically stated that in the year 1983, no candidate in P.N. Intermediate College, Mardah, Ghazipur was allotted Roll No. 335639, and thus the mark-sheet relied upon by the petitioner was found forged.

8. The learned Single Judge recorded that learned counsel for the petitioner was unable to dispute these facts and concluded that the petitioner had secured appointment on the basis of a forged mark-sheet. In such circumstances, the writ petition was dismissed with exemplary costs of Rs. 50,000/- as a deterrent, the termination order was upheld, and a direction was issued to lodge an FIR against the petitioner in terms of the order dated 10.05.2010.

9. Aggrieved, the present appeal has been filed, primarily on the ground that the learned Single Judge relied upon the verification report without granting adequate opportunity to the petitioner to rebut the same. It is further submitted that no proper inquiry into the alleged forgery was conducted and that the report could not have been relied upon without affording an opportunity of hearing. It is also contended that the petitioner neither committed forgery nor misused any document, and that the action taken is violative of the principles of natural justice. The imposition of exemplary costs is also challenged on the ground that no opportunity was afforded to explain his conduct.

10. It has further been submitted that the learned Single Judge exceeded the scope of writ jurisdiction by directing lodging of an FIR against the petitioner and ordering recovery of salary received by him as an Assistant Teacher. It is contended that the impugned order is non-speaking and unreasoned, and therefore liable to be set aside.

11. Per contra, learned Standing Counsel for the State submits that the appellant was rightly terminated by order dated 10.05.2010, as the Intermediate mark-sheet relied upon by him was found to be forged and fictitious. It is submitted that no such roll number was ever allotted to any student in the concerned institution. It is further contended that the appellant has failed to establish his bona fides and has, in fact, produced a false certificate before the Court. The District Basic Education Officer, therefore, rightly directed lodging of an FIR and recovery of the salary paid to the petitioner.

12. We have considered the submissions advanced by learned counsel for the parties and have perused the record.

13. From the record, it is evident that the appellant had obtained appointment as Assistant Teacher on the strength of educational qualifications which included the Intermediate examination. A specific doubt having arisen with regard to the genuineness of the Intermediate mark-sheet submitted by him, the matter was verified from the concerned institution as well as from the competent examining authority. The consistent position emerging from such verification is that Roll No. 335639, which forms the basis of the appellant's claim, was not allotted to any candidate of P.N. Intermediate College, Mardah, Ghazipur in the relevant year. The appellant, despite opportunity, failed to produce any credible material of unimpeachable character to dislodge the said finding.

14. The submission that no inquiry was held in accordance with law also does not merit acceptance. The present is not a case of misconduct committed during service requiring a full-fledged departmental inquiry into disputed conduct in the ordinary course. The very foundation of appointment was under scrutiny. Where an appointment is obtained on the basis of a forged or fictitious educational certificate, the employer is entitled to verify the authenticity of such document, and once the document is found to be false, the appointment itself becomes voidable at the instance of the employer, being founded on misrepresentation and fraud. In such a case, verification of the certificate by the competent authority is sufficient, and the appellant was afforded an opportunity to explain.

15. The record further shows that a show cause notice dated 27.03.2010 was issued to the appellant specifically informing him that the Intermediate mark-sheet produced by him was found doubtful and fictitious, and he was also called upon to explain why an FIR be not lodged. When he did not initially appear, a further notice dated 16.04.2010 was issued. The appellant thereafter responded on 22.04.2010 and sought to support his stand by filing a certificate allegedly issued by the Principal. Thus, it cannot be said that the order of cancellation was passed behind his back or without notice. Adequate opportunity was afforded to the appellant to explain the genuineness of the document relied upon by him.

16. Even before the learned Single Judge, the appellant was given further latitude, inasmuch as the mark-sheet annexed along with the supplementary affidavit was got independently verified pursuant to directions of the Court. The report submitted by the Secretary, Madhyamik Shiksha Parishad, U.P., Allahabad clearly negated the appellant's claim. The learned Single Judge has recorded that learned counsel appearing for the petitioner was unable to dispute the said factual position. In such circumstances, the contention that the report was relied upon without opportunity is not borne out from the record.

17. The plea of violation of principles of natural justice is, therefore, without merit. The principles of natural justice are intended to ensure fairness and cannot be invoked to protect a claim founded on a forged document. In the present case, the appellant was informed of the allegation and was given an opportunity to respond. The matter was also independently verified from the competent statutory authority. In such circumstances, no prejudice can be said to have been caused. Mere invocation of natural justice, in the absence of any credible rebuttal to the verification report, does not advance the case of the appellant.

18. The contention that the learned Single Judge recorded findings on forgery without a regular trial also cannot be accepted in the facts of the present case. The writ court was not trying the appellant for an offence. It was examining whether the employer was justified in cancelling an appointment obtained on the basis of a document which stood verified to be fictitious. For that purpose, the verification reports from the competent authorities were sufficient material. The learned Single Judge was fully justified in testing the validity of the appellant's continuance in service on the basis of such record.

19. It is trite that fraud vitiates every solemn act. An appointment secured on the basis of a forged educational certificate does not confer any enforceable right upon the appointee, and no equity can be claimed on the basis of long continuance in service. Length of service cannot sanitize an entry which is tainted at inception. Once the foundational qualification itself is found to be supported by a forged mark-sheet, the order cancelling the appointment cannot be faulted.

20. Insofar as the challenge to the imposition of exemplary costs is concerned, we find that the appellant not only questioned the termination but persisted in asserting the genuineness of the very same mark-sheet and even brought on record a certificate in support thereof, which also failed to withstand verification. In such circumstances, the learned Single Judge cannot be said to have acted arbitrarily in imposing exemplary costs so as to deter abuse of the process of Court. The amount imposed also cannot be said to be so disproportionate as to warrant appellate interference.

21. As regards the direction for lodging of FIR, we find that once the competent authority had already, while passing the order dated 10.05.2010, contemplated such action on the basis of use of a forged educational certificate for obtaining public employment, the learned Single Judge merely directed consequential action in light of the facts which had emerged on record. No exception can be taken to such direction, particularly where the allegation pertains to procurement of public employment on the basis of a forged public document.

22. Similarly, the contention that the learned Single Judge exceeded jurisdiction in directing recovery also does not persuade us to interfere. If salary has been drawn on the strength of an appointment obtained by fraud, the matter of recovery would remain open to be dealt with by the competent authority in accordance with law. Mere issuance of such direction does not render the judgment unsustainable, particularly when the appellant's very entry into service has been found to be founded on a forged document.

23. We are thus of the considered opinion that the learned Single Judge committed no error in upholding the order dated 10.05.2010 cancelling the appellant's appointment. The findings recorded are based on verification from the competent authorities, and the appellant has failed to demonstrate either any factual error in such findings or any legal infirmity in the procedure adopted.

24. The order under appeal does not suffer from perversity, arbitrariness, violation of natural justice, or any jurisdictional error warranting interference in intra-court appeal.

25. The special appeal, being devoid of merit, is accordingly dismissed.

26. Interim order, if any, stands discharged. There shall be no order as to costs in this appeal.

Issue for Consideration

- (1) Maintainability of Special Appeal against an order, whereby the contempt application was dismissed holding that no case for contempt is made out.
- (2) Applicability of judgment passed in Tanseem Fatima's case, which was already declared as per incuriam.

Headnotes

(A) Practice and procedure – Special Appeal – Maintainability – Contempt application was dismissed holding that no case for contempt is made out – Validity challenged – Applicability of Tasneem Fatima's case, Subhash Chandra's case and Alok Kumar Yadav's case felt into consideration: (E-1)

Held: Intra court special appeals in contempt cases are maintainable only when the contempt court oversteps its jurisdiction by addressing the merits of the original dispute. In the instant matter the contempt court vide order impugned has neither touched the merit nor has decided any issue and it has not made any direction relating to the merits of the disputes between the parties. Hence, we find that the contempt court has not overstepped its jurisdiction – No interference is required in the instant intra court appeal – The judgment in Tasneem Fatima's case being per incuriam is not applicable in the instant matter and the judgments in Subhash Chandra's case and Alok Kumar Yadav's case are holding the field. Hon'ble Kunal Ravi Singh, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the petitioner and Shri Manish Goyal, learned Addl. Advocate General assisted by Shri Devesh Vikram, learned Addl. Chief Standing Counsel; Ms. Akanksha Sharma, learned Standing Counsel and Shri Fuzail Ahmad Ansari, learned Standing Counsel for State respondents.

2. The instant intra court special appeal has been preferred assailing the validity of the order dated 12.3.2026 passed in Contempt Application (Civil) No.1591 of 2026 (Prem Kumar Singh v. Pawan Kumar Gangwar & Ors.) and for a direction to respondents to make compliance of the writ Court order dated 6.10.2025 passed in Public Interest Litigation (PIL) No.2933 of 2025 (Munni Lal @ Hari Sharan v. State of U.P. & Ors.). For ready reference, the order dated 12.3.2026 passed by the Contempt Court is reproduced as under:-

"1. Perused the material on record.

2. No case for contempt is made out.

3. Contempt application is misconceived and the same stands dismissed.""

3. At the time of admission, on 24.04.2026, while arguing on the maintainability of the instant intra court appeal under Chapter VIII Rule 5 of the Allahabad High Court Rules, 1952, learned counsel for the appellant had relied upon a judgment passed by Division Bench dated 20.02.2025 in Special Appeal no.83 of 2025 (Tasneem Fatima v. Sri Amit Mohan Mishra)². The said intra court special appeal was filed under Chapter VIII Rule 5 of the Rules, 1952 against the order dated 22.01.2025 passed by learned Single Judge in Contempt Application (Civil) No.2046 of 2023. The said special appeal was allowed on 20.02.2025 and the order impugned passed by learned Single Judge in Contempt Application was set aside. The contempt application was restored to its original number and listed before the appropriate Court for further proceeding. Learned counsel for the appellant, in this background had submitted on the previous date, that being on similar footing the instant intra court special appeal is also maintainable and liable to be allowed.

4. In this backdrop, we have proceeded to pass the following order on 24.04.2026:-

"1. Learned counsel for the appellant submits that the instant intra court appeal under Chapter VIII Rule 5 of the High Court Rules, 1952 is maintainable against the order passed by learned Single Judge dated 12.03.2026 in Contempt Application (Civil) No.1591 of 2026.

2. Before proceeding further on merits of the case, we request Shri Manish Goyal, learned Addl. Advocate General assisted by Shri J.N. Maurya, learned Chief Standing Counsel to assist the Court as to whether the instant intra court appeal is maintainable or not.

3. Put up this matter again on 28.04.2026 at 12.30 p.m. for further orders."

5. In response to the aforesaid order, Shri Manish Goyal, learned Addl. Advocate General has appeared before the Court and, at the outset, placed reliance on the judgment passed by a Division Bench of this Court in Subhash Chandra v. Srikant Goswami Posted Managing Director, Sahkari Gram Vikas Bank Ltd. Lucknow & Ors.³ He submits that in the said proceeding similar question, qua the maintainability of an intra court appeal filed under Chapter VIII Rule 5 of the Rules, 1952 from orders emanating from contempt proceeding, was raised. While considering the entire spectrum of the dispute in question as well as considering the judicial pronouncements in this regard, the Division Bench had proceeded to dismiss the said appeal. Learned Addl. Advocate General, in this backdrop, submits that in the light of the judgment in Subhash Chandra (Supra), the instant intra court appeal is not maintainable. For ready reference, paragraphs 19, 20, 69, 70 and 71 of the said judgment are reproduced as under:-

".....19. Before proceeding further, it will be relevant to notice an order in the instant case passed by a Coordinate Bench of this Court dated 22.04.2024 and the relevant portion of the said order reads as under:-

"Now, the order impugned herein has been passed by the High Court in exercise of its contempt jurisdiction under Section 12 of the Contempt of Courts Act, 1971 which is a central enactment. It is referable to entry 14 of the concurrent list, therefore, to this extent there is no difficulty i.e. if it is found that this is an order passed in exercise of criminal jurisdiction by the High Court, then, this appeal would fall within the exception made in Chapter VIII Rule 5 of the Allahabad High Court Rules, 1952, however, if it is found that contempt jurisdiction exercised by the learned Judge of the High Court while passing the impugned order, does not fall within the meaning of the words "in the exercise of criminal jurisdiction" used in Chapter VIII Rule 5, then, the position would be different subject of course to there being other issues involved and authorities thereon as also the submissions to be made by the learned counsel for the parties.

The question is whether the aforesaid words- "in the exercise of criminal jurisdiction" refer to the jurisdiction exercised by the High Court on the criminal side under the Code of Criminal Procedure or any other law falling in the criminal field or would it include the exercise of contempt jurisdiction which is termed as quasi criminal proceeding/jurisdiction. Whether these words will include the quasi criminal jurisdiction of a contempt Court of the High Court."

20. In light of the tentative observations noted above, this Court will consider the nature of the proceedings exercised by the High Court in its contempt jurisdiction inter alia to adjudge the issue of maintainability of the instant appeal in light of the rival submissions.

69. The pith and substance of the aforesaid discussion, the legal principles involved and circumstances when an appeal may lie under □Section 19 of the Contempt of Courts Act, 1971 and when a Special Appeal may lie from an order passed in contempt jurisdiction can be summarized as under:-

(A) □Section 19 (1) of the Contempt of Courts Act can be invoked only when the Contempt Court has exercised its jurisdiction to punish for contempt. The essence of this provision is to provide a remedy against decision where the court has taken a definitive action to penalize a contemnor. This includes orders that impose fines, imprisonment, or other punitive measures directly related to the contemptuous behavior. Interlocutory orders, which do not entail punishment for contempt, do not fall within the ambit of □Section 19. Such orders may include directions to produce documents, file affidavits, or procedural directives necessary for the continuation of the contempt proceedings. These are routine judicial actions that facilitate the progress of the case but do not constitute a final determination on the issue of contempt. Routine orders passed during the pendency of contempt proceedings are also excluded from the scope of □Section 19. These orders are typically procedural and administrative in nature, ensuring that the proceedings move forward without addressing the substantive issues of the original case or the merits of the contempt.

(B) The crux of the matter lies in the nuanced interpretation of what constitutes "merit" within the context of contempt proceedings, as referenced by the Supreme Court in the Midnapore Peoples Cooperative Bank Limited case. The term "merit" has not been defined in a straight jacket formula, leading to varying interpretations. However, a cumulative reading of the judgments provide clarity on several key aspects. In the Midnapore case, the Supreme Court held that in contempt proceedings, it is inappropriate to adjudicate or decide any issue related to the merits of the dispute between the parties. This principle aims to ensure that contempt proceedings do not encroach upon the substantive rights of the parties involved in the original dispute. The focus of contempt jurisdiction is to uphold the dignity and authority of the court, not to resolve the underlying dispute. The term "merit" in this context refers to the substantive issues of the original case that led to the contempt proceedings. It encompasses the core legal and factual questions that were or are being contested in the original litigation.

(C) Special appeals from the order or judgment of a single judge bench in contempt cases hinge on the distinction between addressing the merits of the original dispute and the conduct constituting contempt. The primary responsibility of the Contempt Court is to determine whether contempt has occurred and to impose appropriate sanctions if it has. The merits of the original controversy are outside the domain of the contempt court. However, when the Contempt Court issues directions or discusses the merits of the original controversy, it oversteps its jurisdiction. In such cases, a special appeal would lie to the High Court. This ensures that the original substantive issues are not inadvertently decided within the limited scope of contempt proceedings, preserving the parties' rights to a fair adjudication of their dispute.

(D) The interpretation of each case depends on its specific facts and circumstances. Courts must carefully distinguish between orders that address the procedural aspects of contempt proceedings and those that encroach upon the substantive issues of the original case. This distinction is crucial to maintaining the integrity of contempt jurisdiction and ensuring that appeals under□Section 19 of the Act of 1971 are appropriately limited to cases where punitive action for contempt has been taken.

Thus, Special appeals in contempt cases are warranted only when the Contempt Court oversteps its jurisdiction by addressing the merits of the original dispute, ensuring that the substantive rights of the parties are protected. The interpretation of each case must consider the specific facts and circumstances to uphold the integrity of contempt jurisdiction and provide appropriate remedies for aggrieved parties.

70. If the impugned order is now tested on the anvil of the principles summarized above then it would reveal that the Contempt Court vide order impugned has neither touched the merit nor has decided any issue and it has not made any direction relating to the merits of the disputes between the parties. Hence, it cannot be canvassed that the Contempt Court overstepped its jurisdiction.

71. Thus, in the aforesaid facts and circumstances, this Court is of the firm view that the intra-court appeal is not maintainable. Accordingly, it is dismissed. There shall be no order as to costs."

(Emphasis supplied)

6. Learned Addl. Advocate General submits that while passing the judgment in Tasneem Fatima (Supra), the Division Bench has not considered the judgment in Subhash Chandra (Supra). He has also placed reliance on the judgment dated 28.08.2025 in Special Appeal No.788 of 2025 (Alok Kumar Yadav v. Sri Ashish Kumar Pandey)⁴, wherein the Division Bench has again denied to interfere in the special appeal questioning the validity of the order passed by contempt court. In the said judgment, the Division Bench while considering the other judgments has also considered the judgments in Tasneem Fatima (Supra); Midnapore Peoples' Cooperative Bank Ltd. & Ors. v. Chunilal Nanda & Ors.⁵ and Subhash Chandra (Supra). In the said judgment, the Division Bench has held the judgment in Tanseem Fatima as per incuriam. For ready reference, the relevant para 16 of the judgment in Alok Kumar Yadav (Supra) is reproduced as under:-

"16. So far as the judgement in the case of Tanseem Fatima (supra) is concerned, the Division Bench without referring to any of the binding precedents came to the conclusion that the judgement in the case of Midnapore (supra) on the question of maintainability of Special Appeal under Chapter VIII Rule 5 of the Rules of 1952, has no application and provisions of Chapter VIII Rule 5 of the Rules of 1952 do not bar appeal against order dismissing the contempt petition, which judgement apparently on account of ignoring binding precedents is per incuriam and cannot be pressed into service as a precedent."

7. Learned Addl. Advocate General, in this backdrop, submits that once the judgment in Tanseem Fatima (Supra) has already been declared as per incuriam, the reliance on the same by learned counsel for the appellant is not justified and the instant intra court appeal being not maintainable is liable to be dismissed.

8. Having heard rival submissions, perusing the record and respectfully considering the judgments cited at Bar, we find that intra court special appeals in contempt cases are maintainable only when the contempt court oversteps its jurisdiction by addressing the merits of the original dispute. In the instant matter the contempt court vide order impugned has neither touched the merit nor has decided any issue and it has not made any direction relating to the merits of the disputes between the parties. Hence, we find that the contempt court has not overstepped its jurisdiction. We find that the judgment in Tasneem Fatima (Supra) being per incuriam is not applicable in the instant matter and the judgments in Subhash Chandra (Supra) and Alok Kumar Yadav (Supra) are holding the field. As such, no interference is required in the instant intra court appeal.

9. In the aforesaid facts and circumstances, this Court is of the considered opinion that the instant intra court appeal against the order impugned is not maintainable and is accordingly dismissed.

Appearances for Parties

Advs. for the Appellant: Grijesh Tiwari

Advs. for the Respondents: Akhilesh Kumar Sharma, Bansh Gopal Mishra (S.C.)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Manju Rani Chauhan, J.)

1. Heard Mr. Grijesh Tiwari, learned counsel for the petitioner, learned Standing Counsel for the State-respondents, Mr. Bansh Gopal Mishra, Advocate holding brief of Mr. Akhilesh Kumar Sharma, learned counsel for the respondent nos.2, 5 & 6 and perused the record.

2. The present writ petition has been filed inter-alia for the following reliefs:-

"i) Issue a writ order or direction in the nature of Mandamus commanding/directing the respondents to provide/pay the family pension as well as dues of late Dileep Kumar Singh to the petitioner being a wife and legal heir in terms of applicable Rules and Schemes by ignoring the order dated 02.12.2023, passed by the respondent no.5, forthwith or within stipulated period as fixed by this Hon'ble Court.

ii) Issue a writ order or direction in the nature of Mandamus commanding / directing the respondents to decide the representation dated 06.01.2026 (contained as Annexure No.17 to the writ petition), filed by the petitioner within stipulated period as fixed by this Hon'ble Court.

iii) Issue any other writ order or direction which this Hon'ble Court may deem fit and proper in the circumstances of the case

. iv) Award cost of the writ petition to the petitioner."

3. Placing brief facts of the case, the learned counsel for the petitioner submits that the petitioner's husband, Dileep Kumar Singh, was initially appointed as an Assistant Teacher in the year 2005 in a Primary School. He died in harness on 05.07.2017, leaving behind the petitioner, his legally wedded wife, and an adopted son, Vijay Kumar Singh. After the death of the petitioner's husband, the concerned District Magistrate issued a Family Membership Certificate on 10.12.2019, recognizing the petitioner as the legally wedded wife and naming Vijay Kumar Singh as the adopted son. After receiving the No Dues Certificate from the In-charge of the Primary School where the petitioner's husband had been working, the petitioner moved an application for payment of family pension.

4. When nothing was done, the petitioner filed Writ Petition No.5574 of 2023 (Smt. Asha Singh vs. State of U.P. and others), which was disposed of by order dated 11.07.2023 directing the District Basic Education Officer to pass orders for payment of family pension in case the petitioner is entitled for the same. When the aforesaid order was not complied with, a contempt application (Civil) No.7209 of 2023 was filed wherein the opposite party was granted further time for compliance with the orders passed in the writ petition.

5. On 02.12.2023, the Additional Director (Treasury & Pension), Varanasi Region, Varanasi, directed the District Basic Education Officer, Varanasi, as well as the Finance and Account Officer, to take the necessary steps for the payment of family pension to the petitioner.

6. In the meantime, Vaibhavi Singh, the daughter of the second wife, namely, Pooja Singh, filed Writ Petition No. 11772 of 2023, seeking a compassionate appointment due to the death of Late Dileep Kumar Singh. The Co-ordinate Bench of this Court, by order dated 11.08.2023, directed the petitioner to file a fresh representation, which was to be decided after hearing the legally wedded wife, Asha Singh.

7. Learned counsel for the petitioner further submits that all the documents, i.e., passport, Aadhar Card, mutation receipt issued by the Municipal Corporation Varanasi, Voter I.D. Card, and Domicile Certificate, prove that the petitioner is the legally wedded wife and Vijay Kumar Singh is the adopted son, both of whom are entitled to the payment of family pension.

8. Learned counsel for the petitioner has drawn the attention of the Court to page 87 of the petition, which contains a property suit filed by Vaibhavi Singh, wherein, in paragraph 3 of the plaint, it is admitted that the petitioner, Asha Singh, is the first legally wedded wife of Late Dileep Kumar Singh.

9. In compliance with the order dated 11.07.2023 in the writ petition and the order dated 04.10.2023 passed in the Contempt Petition, the District Basic Education Officer, Varanasi, passed an order dated 02.11.2023, requiring the petitioner to submit a succession certificate. In the aforesaid order, the District Basic Education Officer also mentioned that both Asha Singh and Pooja Singh had produced succession certificates, each claiming to be the wife of Late Dileep Kumar Singh. The Officer further noted that, in view of Section 12 of the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955, a second marriage is void if the legally wedded wife is still alive. The documents submitted by the petitioner were also taken into consideration by the District Basic Education Officer while passing the order dated 02.11.2023, which proved her to be the legally wedded wife; however, a succession certificate is still required for the payment of the family pension.

10. Learned counsel for the petitioner has relied upon the judgment of the Co-ordinate Bench of this Court in the case of Manno Singh vs. State of U.P., reported in 2014 (9) ADJ 701. The relevant paragraph 16 of the aforesaid judgment is as follows:

"16. It is clear from the facts and rules, stated herein above, that the second marriage after coming into force of the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955 is null and void. The second wife is not included within the definition of family, nomination if made in her favour would not defeat the claim of the legally wedded wife to claim family pension as she falls within the definition of family. Regulation 7 provides that family pension is not admissible to a person who is not a member of the deceased official's family. Sub-clause (4) refers to nomination under sub-regulation (5) which is exception to the general rule, Sub-clause 4(a)(i) provides that pension shall be paid to the "eldest surviving widow", thus, the rules refer to two widows and the manner in which pension is to be paid to them. In case, there is no nomination, the eldest widow shall receive pension and in case of nomination the nominee shall receive pension. Regulations being subordinate legislation cannot recognize second marriage which is null and void under the Hindu Marriage Act, thus in the opinion of the Court, the petitioner is entitled to family pension as she falls within the definition of family of the deceased employee. "

11. He has also relied upon the judgment of the Co-ordinate Bench of this Court in the case of Kiran Sonkar vs. State of U.P. and Others, reported in 2023 (3) ADJ 253. The relevant paragraphs 16 and 18 are as under:-

"16. In case of Chandra Kali Vs. State of U.P. and 7 others passed in Writ A No. 3288 of 2017 decided on 31.07.2019, Court has held that pension is to be disbursed as per provisions of Rules, 1961. The Rules clearly states that only eligible persons as defined in definition of "family" shall be entitled to receive family pension and member out of family member as defined in Rules, 1961 is not entitled for pension. Relevant paragraph of aforesaid judgment is quoted below; -

"As regards, eligibility to family pension, the pension is to be disbursed as per the provisions of the Rules, 1961. The Rules clearly state that only eligible person is entitled to receive family pension but where pension awarded ceases to be payable on the death or marriage of the recipient or for any other reason, it will be regranted to the persons next lower in the order mentioned in sub-rule (4) of Rule 7. The Hindu second wife would not be eligible for family pension as long as the first wife is alive and has not remarried. There is no provision in the Rules for relinquishment of family pension in favour of another person. The eighth respondent would not fall within the definition of "family" of the employee. The sixth and seventh respondent being sons of the deceased employees brother are also not family of the employee within the definition of "family" under the Rules, 1961."

18. Therefore, after death, gratuity, pension and terminal benefits shall be paid strictly in accordance with Rule 3(3), Rule 5(1) & Rule 6 of Rules, 1961 and any nomination made in service book contrary to the Rules, 1961 cannot be accepted. Petitioner being legally wedded wife is fully entitled for terminal benefits"

12. He has also relied upon the judgment of the Co-ordinate Bench of this Court in the case of Urmila Singh vs. State of U.P. and 4 Others, reported in Neutral Citation No. 2025:AHC:121667, where it was held that the petitioner, being the legally wedded wife, is entitled to the family pension.

13. Relying upon the judgment of the Co-ordinate Bench of this Court in the case of Rafat Naaz and Others vs. State of U.P. and Others, reported in MANU/UP/5109/2024, learned counsel for the petitioner submits that once it is proved that the petitioner is the legally wedded wife, no succession certificate is required for the payment of family pension.

14. Learned counsel for the respondents-BSA could not disputed the aforesaid facts.

15. From the arguments as placed by learned counsel for the parties, it is undisputed that the petitioner is the legally wedded wife of the deceased government servant. The same is evident from the succession certificate issued by the concerned District Magistrate, which has not been disputed.

16. The second marriage, after the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955, came into force, is void. The second wife does not fall within the definition of 'family,' and any nomination in her favour cannot override the legally wedded wife's right to family pension, as she qualifies as a family member. Regulation 7 specifies that family pension is only payable to members of the deceased's family. Sub-clause 4(a)(i) provides that the 'eldest surviving widow' is entitled to the pension, recognizing the rights of two widows and the procedure for pension distribution. In the absence of a valid nomination, the eldest widow receives the pension. As the second marriage is void under the Hindu Marriage Act, the petitioner, as the legally wedded wife, is entitled to the family pension.

17. Having considered the submissions of learned counsel for the parties and the peculiar facts and circumstances of the case, and in view of the admitted fact that the petitioner is the legally wedded wife of late Dileep Kumar Singh, this Court finds that the petitioner is entitled for the family pension. A mandamus is issued to the respondents to immediately release the family pension and other dues of late Dileep Kumar Singh in favour of the petitioner.

18. The writ petition stands allowed accordingly.

19. There shall be no order as to costs.

Issue for Consideration

- (1) Permissibility of challenging the cancellation of the appointment, obtained by using fraudulent marksheet, on the ground that no regular disciplinary enquiry was conducted.
- (2) Permissibility of challenging the cancellation of the appointment, obtained by using fraudulent marksheet, on the ground that the impugned action is being vitiated on account of delay of 25 years.
- (3) Permissibility of challenging the cancellation of the appointment, obtained by using fraudulent marksheet, on the ground that the marksheet was not annulled by the University.
- (4) Scope of Writ jurisdiction to interfere in the finding of facts.

Headnotes

(A) Service law – Cancellation of appointment – Assistant Teacher – Marksheet of BA IIIrd year was found doubtful as marks entered in it is slight more than the tabulation chart – Appointment was annulled with retrospective effect with a direction of recovery and initiating criminal proceeding – Validity challenged – Plea of not conducting regular disciplinary enquiry was taken – Grounds of impugned action being vitiated on account of delay of 25 years was also taken – Permissibility: (E-1)

Held: The present case does not pertain to an instance of misconduct committed during the course of service; rather, it strikes at the very root of the petitioner's entry into service, which is alleged to have been secured on the basis of a tainted and fraudulent document. It is trite law that where the initial appointment itself is void ab initio, the employer is not obliged to undertake a detailed disciplinary inquiry akin to punitive proceedings contemplated under the service rules. [Para 82]

Further held: Fraud vitiates all proceedings and that there can be no limitation for the discovery and correction of a fraud. The moment such fraud comes to light, the competent authority is well within its jurisdiction to take appropriate corrective measures, irrespective of the lapse of time. [Para 94]

(B) Service law – Cancellation of appointment – Assistant Teacher – Allegation of using Marksheet of BA IIIrd year procured by playing fraud was leveled – Appointment was annulled – Validity challenged – Plea of lack of formal cancellation of the degree by the University was raised – Permissibility: (E-1)

Held: An employer is not only entitled, but is under a legal obligation, to satisfy itself as to whether a candidate fulfilled the prescribed eligibility conditions at the time of entry into service. Where the material on record demonstrably indicates that the marksheet relied upon by the candidate is manipulated, inconsistent, or otherwise unreliable, the employer cannot be compelled to await a formal annulment of the degree by the University authorities. The satisfaction of the employer, arrived at on the basis of a duly conducted inquiry and founded upon cogent material, with regard to fraud or misrepresentation, is sufficient to invalidate the appointment. [Para 87]

(C) Practice and procedure – Constitution of India – Article 226 – Writ – Finding of facts – Scope of interference: (E-1)

Held: This Court, in exercise of its writ jurisdiction, does not sit as an appellate forum to reappraise or reassess findings of fact, unless such findings are demonstrated to be perverse, arbitrary, or wholly unsupported by the record. [Para 91]

(D) Service law – Cancellation of appointment – Assistant Teacher – Marksheet of BA IIIrd year was found forged – After enquiry, the appointment was annulled with retrospective effect – Validity challenged – Plea of length of continuous service of 15 years was taken – Permissibility: (E-1)

Held: The petitioner cannot claim any vested or indefeasible right on the basis of long continuance in service, when the very foundation of such continuance stands vitiated – Equity cannot be invoked to perpetuate an illegality, nor can a person be permitted to derive benefit from a fraudulent act. Once fraud is detected, the authorities are not only empowered but duty-bound to initiate inquiry and take consequential action, irrespective of the lapse of time. [Para 96 and 127]

6. The petitioner passed her Bachelor of Arts Course as a student of St. Andrew's College, Gorakhpur, affiliated to Deen Dayal Upadhyay Gorakhpur University, Gorakhpur (in short □Gorakhpur University□). 7. Without there being any material against the petitioner, she was placed under suspension by the Basic Shiksha Adhikari, Gorakhpur on 19.12.2019 and a charge sheet dated 26.12.2019 was issued. 9. On 18.01.2020, the Khand Shiksha Adhikari, Bhathat, sent a communication to the Basic Shiksha Adhikari, Gorakhpur, giving an opinion that no discrepancy is reflected. However, it would be appropriate to seek verification of the Graduation Degree of the petitioner from the University.

The Committee so constituted was headed by a professor of the University with three other members. The report as placed by the Committee dated 30.09.2022 mentions about the verification of the marks of the petitioner based upon the counter foil made available by the confidential section of the University, however, does not dispute the marks awarded to the petitioner are in conformity with the tabulation chart maintained by the University.

11. The Examination Controller of the University based on the aforesaid report dated 30.09.2022 of the Committee constituted by the Gorakhpur University submitted a report dated 18.09.2024 which was followed by a further report dated 21.05.2024. Though, the Committee while placing the report before the Examination Controller of the University has directed the Examination Controller to pass appropriate orders and place the same before the Basic Shiksha Adhikari, Gorakhpur and Incharge STF, Gorakhpur. Till date, no decision has been taken at the level of the Examination Committee on the basis of the report dated 30.09.2022.

12. Learned counsel for the petitioner submits that degree so awarded by the respondent-University can be cancelled or revoked only on the basis of decision of the Executive Council of the University and this decision can be made only on the basis of limited grounds enumerated under the State Universities Act, 1973. Neither the Executive Council nor the Examination Committee has taken any decision on the Bachelor of Arts Degree of the petitioner.

13. In between the Special Task Force, Gorakhpur appears to have submitted some report dated 01.04.2024. Another report dated 14.02.2025 followed by a further report dated 21.05.2024 was sent by the Examination Controller.

14. On 20.08.2024, a notice was issued by the Basic Shiksha Adhikari, Gorakhpur, fixing 26.08.2024 as the date of hearing, and the petitioner was required to remain present. In response to the aforesaid notice, the petitioner filed an application dated 26.08.2024 requesting for supply of documents referred to therein. Thereafter, another notice dated 19.10.2024 was issued by the Basic Shiksha Adhikari, Gorakhpur, fixing 29.10.2024 as the date of hearing. The aforesaid notice was accompanied by a copy of the proceedings of the Inquiry Committee of Gorakhpur University dated 30.09.2022, letters of Gorakhpur University, Gorakhpur dated 21.05.2024 and 18.09.2024 and the report of Special Task Force dated 26.07.2024. The petitioner in response of the aforesaid notice filed a detailed representation dated 29.10.2024. Against the notice dated 19.10.2024, however, she filed a Writ Petition No.77 of 2025 (Preeti Jaiswal vs. State of U.P. & 2 Others), and the aforesaid writ petition was finally disposed of by order dated 17.02.2025 directing the petitioner to submit a reply to the notice dated 19.10.2024 within a period of three weeks from that date before the concerned respondent who shall inturn take decision in the matter strictly in accordance with law, expeditiously, preferably within a period of three months thereafter.

15. Pursuant to the aforesaid order, a fresh notice dated 01.03.2025 making partial amendment to the notice dated 19.10.2024 was issued fixing 17.03.2025 as the date of hearing. In response to the aforesaid notice, the petitioner filed a representation dated 17.03.2025. Another notice dated 27.05.2025 was issued by Basic Shiksha Adhikari, Gorakhpur, which was a fourth notice to the petitioner to which a detailed reply and representation dated 09.06.2025 was submitted by her.

16. Learned counsel for the petitioner further points out that the Controller of Examination has verified the mark sheet of the petitioner on 03.02.2014 and has forwarded the verification report dated 03.02.2014 to the Basic Shiksha Adhikari, Gorakhpur through Khand Shiksha Adhikari, Bhathat, vide letter dated 05.02.2014.

17. He further submits that on the basis of application filed under Right to Information Act, 2005, the petitioner received the information that by communication dated 22.06.2021 issued by the Examination Controller it has been informed that Tabulation Register is maintained as a permanent record, whereas the counter foil/mark slip is retained only for a period of one year. It was further informed that the verification of the results is undertaken from the Tabulation Register. Evaluated answer sheets are retained for a period of two years or till holding of the examination thereafter. It was also informed by communication dated 04.09.2024 by the Principal of St. Andrews College, Gorakhpur, responded that the marks are entered in the format of the mark sheet made available from the University on the basis of marks contained in the Tabulation Register. By communication dated 18.10.2024, the Principal of the College intimated that the Tabulation Register was maintained by Gorakhpur University and verification of marks was only possible from the said Tabulation Register.

18. Learned counsel for the petitioner further submits that on 14.02.2025 the Examination Controller proceeded to submit a report to the effect that the earlier verification report dated 01.04.2024 was found to be erroneous and, accordingly, a modified report was placed on 21.05.2024. Thereafter, on 28.07.2025, an order was passed by the Basic Shiksha Adhikari, Gorakhpur, purporting to cancel the appointment of the petitioner with effect from the date of her initial appointment with further directions for lodging the First Information Report against the petitioner and for computation of salary for effecting a recovery of the salary from the year 2010 as paid to the petitioner.

19. The aforesaid order dated 28.07.2025, which is the order impugned has been challenged on the following grounds:-

(i). That no regular departmental proceedings were initiated prior to passing of the order impugned.

(ii). That the Basic Shiksha Adhikari, Gorakhpur has not conducted any oral hearing at his own level or by appointing any inquiry officer in accordance with Rule 7 of U.P. Govt. Servant (Discipline and Appeal) Rules, 1999 (in short □ Rules of 1999 □).

(iii). It is settled position of law that prior to imposition of major penalty like termination of service, a proper inquiry must be conducted in accordance with the procedure as provided under Rule 7 of the Rules of 1999.

(iv). None of the mark sheet of the petitioner suffer from any infirmity.

(v). None of the notices have been given to the petitioner making allegations to the effect that the mark sheet of the petitioner could not be verified by Deen Dayal Upadhyay, Gorakhpur University, Gorakhpur, because entries in the mark sheet is being compared with some counter foil claim to be available at St. Andrews College, Gorakhpur, on the basis of which a doubt is cast upon the petitioner for giving a forged mark sheet. As informed, the mark sheet are to be verified from the tabulation chart as maintained and there exists no discrepancy in the petitioner's mark sheet as compared with the tabulation sheet. There is no justification in passing any order on the basis of some counter foil obtained from St. Andrews College. The petitioner has worked for almost 18 years and cancellation of appointment by passing the order impugned after so many years, is arbitrary and bad in the eyes of law.

20. Learned counsel for the petitioner has filed written submissions wherein challenging the order impugned the following grounds have been taken:-

21. The objection which has been taken with respect to Bachelor of Arts Degree obtained by the petitioner in the year 2000 being student of St. Andrews College, Gorakhpur affiliated to Deen Dayal Upadhyay Gorakhpur University, Gorakhpur. There does not exist any allegation that the petitioner was not a student of St. Andrew's College, Gorakhpur, however, it has been stated that the marks entered in the mark sheet of IIIrd year of B.A. Course are inflated. Such objection is being raised on the basis of comparison of the mark sheet of the petitioner from the counter foil available with the Gorakhpur University. He submits that despite the fact that the marks entered in the mark sheet of the petitioner tallies with the marks entered in the tabulation register maintained by the St. Andrew's College as well as by the Gorakhpur University. The aforesaid objection is arbitrary as the tabulation register of the University and the College are the most authentic documents and any doubt with regard to the correctness of the marks can be resolved on the basis of the entries in the tabulation register only. Learned counsel for the petitioner has further submitted that the Bachelor of Arts Degree/mark-sheet awarded to the petitioner continues to remain intact, hence, the impugned order could not have been passed unless the aforesaid is cancelled or revoked. There also does not exist any justification on the part of Basic Shiksha Adhikari to pass the order impugned basing upon the mark sheet which is still intact.

22. Learned counsel for the petitioner further submits that the appointment of the petitioner is on the basis of Special BTC Training Certificate 2008, which is also intact, therefore, his appointment could not be cancelled on non existing grounds. The power of canceling the degree awarded to the petitioner lies with the Executive Council, however, there is no such decision on the basis of which the BSA could have proceeded to pass the order impugned. The respondents have tried to justified the entire action and have passed the order impugned on the basis of inquiry report of the Inquiry Committee dated 30.09.2022, minutes of the meeting of Examination Committee dated 21.08.2024, award sheet of BA-III, 2000, report of Examination Controller dated 21.05.2024, 18.09.2024 and 14.02.2025 as well as the report of the Special Task Force dated 26.07.2014. None of the aforesaid documents so relied upon demonstrate any decision for cancelling the degree/mark sheet already awarded to the petitioner.

23. The report of the Inquiry Committee (constituted by order dated 14.10.2025) by the Examination Controller contains a recital that the said report was being forwarded to the Examination Committee for further action. The extract of the aforesaid is as follows:-

“तदनुसार जाँच समिति की आख्या परीक्षा समिति को संदर्भित है। परीक्षा समिति के निर्णयानुसार सत्यापन आख्या बेसिक शिक्षा अधिकारी, गोरखपुर और प्रभारी STFफील्ड इकाई, गोरखपुर को प्रेषित किया जाये।”

24. The Examination Committee in its meeting dated 21.08.2024 has mentioned as under:-

“16 कु० प्रीति जायसवाल पुत्री रागपति गुप्ता बी० ए० एवम बी० एड दोनों के प्रकरण में गठित जाँच समिति की संस्तुति दिनांक 30/09/2022को परीक्षा समिति के सम्मुख प्रस्तुत किये जाने पर विधार।

निर्णय समिति जाँच आख्या एवं कृत्य कार्यवाही से संसूचित हुई। “

25. From the aforesaid, it is clear that no decision has been taken by the Examination Committee which also does not have any such powers. The report of the examination controller and Special Task Force as forwarded to the Basic Shiksha Adhikari is based on an inquiry report dated 30.09.2022, which itself cannot be taken as decision of the Examination Committee.

26. As per the report of the inquiry committee dated 30.09.2022 and letters of the Examination Controller and Special Task Force, the basis for doubting correctness of the marks entered in the mark sheet of the petitioner and the tabulation register of St. Andrew's College and the tabulation register of Gorakhpur University is the award sheet (counter foil).

27. At no point of time, any inquiry has been conducted with respect to the authenticity of the tabulation sheet on the basis of which marks of the petitioner has already been verified. The authorities have casted doubt on the tabulation register of the University itself on the basis of award sheet (counter foil) which is arbitrary and without justification.

28. The aforesaid objection has been raised after a lapse of 25 years after graduation of the petitioner and it is beyond imagination to believe as to why even after lapse of 25 years the award sheet has still not been destroyed. The impugned order is thus based on non existing grounds, therefore, is illegal, arbitrary and bad in the eyes of law.

29. The Bachelor of Arts Degree of the petitioner has been obtained in the year 2000 while the objection has been raised with respect to the aforesaid mark sheet between 2022 to 2025 years after a period of more than decades, there does not exist any justification for such belated action.

30. The only allegation which could be accepted is entering slight higher marks than the marks obtained in the IIIrd Year Bachelor of Arts. Even on the basis of the marks as shown in the tabulation sheet, the petitioner would continue to remain a pass and valid holder of graduation degree, therefore, there is no justification in passing the order impugned. A verification report of Controller of Examination dated 03.02.2014, the communication of the Principal St. Andrew's College, Gorakhpur dated 04.09.2024, 18.10.2024 as well as tabulation chart maintained by St. Andrews College, Gorakhpur as well as the Gorakhpur University and the report of examination controller dated 01.04.2024 all go to prove the correctness of the mark sheet of the petitioner.

31. Learned counsel for the petitioner further submits that even if the reduced marks of the petitioner are there an issue would arise as to how reduced marks would effect the selection/appointment of the petitioner, thus, the recovery on the basis of the aforesaid impugned order dated 28.07.2025, is also bad and not justified in the eyes of law. Hence, the impugned order is liable to be set aside.

32. Learned counsel appearing for the respondent-BSA submits that the petitioner came to be appointed as an Assistant Teacher in a Primary School pursuant to an appointment letter dated 06.02.2010. It is further contended that, subsequent to such appointment, certain doubts and suspicions arose with regard to the genuineness and authenticity of the B.A. mark-sheet purportedly issued in favour of the petitioner by St. Andrew's College, Gorakhpur, an institution affiliated with Gorakhpur University.

33. In view thereof, and in discharge of the statutory obligation to ensure the integrity of public appointments, the competent authority deemed it appropriate to initiate proceedings for verification of the said educational credentials, so as to ascertain their authenticity and veracity.

34. Learned counsel for the respondents further submits that, in order to ascertain the authenticity of the petitioner's academic credentials, the Vice-Chancellor of Deen Dayal Upadhyaya University, Gorakhpur, constituted a three-member inquiry committee to examine the genuineness of the B.A. examination mark-sheets pertaining to the academic sessions 1998-2000.

35. It is contended that, in the course of the said inquiry, the committee issued multiple notices to the petitioner, affording her adequate opportunity to appear in person and submit a written explanation. However, despite due service of notices, the petitioner neither appeared before the committee nor furnished any reply, thereby choosing not to avail the opportunity so granted.

36. It is further submitted that, upon completion of the inquiry proceedings, the committee finalized its report on 30.9.2022 and duly forwarded the same to the District Basic Education Officer, Gorakhpur, for appropriate action in accordance with law.

37. Learned counsel for the respondents further submits that, upon receipt of the aforesaid inquiry report, notices were duly issued by the District Basic Education Officer, Gorakhpur, as well as by the Inspector, STF, calling upon the petitioner to furnish her explanation and to appear for personal hearing.

38. It is contended that, instead of responding to the said notices, the petitioner preferred Writ Petition No.77 of 2025 before this Hon'ble Court, which came to be disposed of by order dated 17.02.2025. By the said order, this Hon'ble Court was pleased to grant liberty to the petitioner to submit her reply to the notice dated 19.10.2024 issued by the District Basic Education Officer, Gorakhpur, and further directed respondent no.2 to consider and decide the matter strictly in accordance with law, after duly advertent to the submissions so made by the petitioner.

39. Learned counsel for the respondents further submits that, in compliance with the order dated 17.02.2025 passed by this Hon'ble Court, the District Basic Education Officer, Gorakhpur issued a notice dated 01.03.2025 to the petitioner, calling upon her to submit her reply to the allegations levelled against her.

40. It is contended that, in response thereto, instead of furnishing a substantive explanation, the petitioner, vide letter dated 17.03.2025, merely sought supply of certain documents and failed to address the issues raised in the notice. Thereafter, a further notice dated 27.05.2025 was issued by respondent no.6, granting yet another opportunity to the petitioner; however, she again sought adjournment and prayed for additional time to submit her reply.

41. It is further submitted that, pursuant to the subsequent notice dated 14.07.2025 issued by respondent no.6, the petitioner neither submitted any reply nor availed the opportunity of hearing extended to her.

42. In these circumstances, and after affording repeated opportunities which the petitioner failed to avail, the competent authority, being left with no alternative, proceeded to pass the order dated 28.07.2025, whereby the appointment of the petitioner was cancelled in accordance with law.

43. Learned counsel for the respondents, while defending the impugned order, submits that the same has been passed on the basis of a detailed and duly conducted inquiry, culminating in a report dated 30.9.2022 submitted by the committee constituted by Gorakhpur University.

44. It is contended that the said inquiry report, which forms the very foundation of the impugned action, has not been assailed or challenged by the petitioner at any point of time before any competent forum. Consequently, the findings recorded therein have attained finality and are binding upon the parties.

45. On the strength of the aforesaid report, it is further submitted that the petitioner's mark sheet has been conclusively found to be not genuine, and therefore, the impugned order does not suffer from any legal infirmity warranting interference by this Hon'ble Court.

46. Learned counsel for the respondents further submits that the inquiry has unequivocally revealed that the tabulation chart of the college pertaining to the examination in question had been tampered with. It is contended that there exists clear interpolation in the marks, whereby the petitioner's score was unlawfully enhanced from 227 to 336.

47. It is further submitted that the manner and extent of such interpolation stand conclusively established from the counterfoil maintained by the University, which constitutes primary and unimpeachable evidence for ascertaining the actual marks obtained by a candidate. The said primary record, therefore, belies the authenticity of the mark sheet relied upon by the petitioner.

48. In light of the aforesaid, it is contended that the petitioner had deliberately relied upon a fabricated and manipulated mark sheet to secure appointment, and consequently, the impugned order, having been passed on the basis of cogent material and lawful inquiry, does not suffer from any illegality or infirmity warranting interference by this Hon'ble Court.

49. Learned counsel for the respondents further submits that it is a well-settled principle of law that any appointment secured on the basis of fraud or misrepresentation stands vitiated at its very inception, and such a person is not entitled to any equitable relief, sympathy, or indulgence from the Court.

50. It is contended that fraud unravels all solemn acts, and once it is established that the very foundation of appointment is tainted, no leniency can be shown in favour of such an incumbent. In support of the aforesaid proposition, reliance has been placed upon the judgments rendered in Krishna Kant vs. State of U.P. and others, (Writ-A No. 10029 of 2025), Virendra Kumar Mishra vs. State of U.P. and Others in Writ A No.11846 of 2025, Shiv Kumar Vs. State of U.P. and 8 Others in Writ A No.12839 of 2023, Pankaj Mathur vs. State of U.P. and 3 Others in Writ A No.12336 of 2025, Deepa Magleena vs. State of U.P. and 4 others in Writ A No.10843 of 2025, Kamlesh Kumar Nirankari vs. State of U.P. and 2 Others in Writ A No.2014 of 2023 wherein it has been categorically held that a candidate who secures appointment on the strength of forged or fabricated documents cannot claim any protection in law. The similar issue has also been settled in case of Garima Singh vs. State of U.P. and 2 Others in Writ A No.19634 of 2025. On that issue Division Bench of this Court has also made observation in case of Poonam Shukla vs. State of U.P. and others, 2016 (1) ADJ 225 and Vinay Kumar Shahi vs. Deen Dayal Upadhyaya Gorakhpur University and Others in Special Appeal No.26 of 2007 that the tabulation chart is a sacred documents and no person can be permitted to make any interpolation in it.

51. Accordingly, it is submitted that the petitioner, having obtained appointment on the basis of a manipulated mark sheet, is not entitled to any relief, and the impugned order calls for no interference by this Hon'ble Court.

52. Learned counsel for the respondents submits that, in cases where an appointment has been secured by practising fraud, the requirement of affording further opportunity of hearing or entertaining delayed replies does not arise under the applicable Rules of 1999. It is contended that once fraud is prima facie established, the principles of natural justice cannot be invoked to perpetuate an illegality or to confer any advantage upon the wrongdoer.

53. It is further submitted that the petitioner, having failed to avail repeated opportunities already extended and having been found to have procured appointment on the basis of fraudulent documents, cannot now insist upon any additional opportunity as a matter of right.

54. In view of the aforesaid, it is submitted that the present writ petition is devoid of merit and is, accordingly, liable to be dismissed.

55. Learned counsel appearing for the respondent-University submits that, upon scrutiny of the petitioner's academic records, material discrepancies and variations in the marks obtained by the petitioner were detected.

56. It is contended that, in order to afford due opportunity, several communications were issued by the University calling upon the petitioner to appear in person and furnish an appropriate explanation with respect to the said discrepancies. In response thereto, the petitioner submitted a reply dated 25.06.2021, however, the explanation so tendered was found to be wholly unsatisfactory and failed to dispel the serious doubts regarding the authenticity of the marks in question.

57. Learned counsel appearing for the respondent-University submits that a detailed counter affidavit has been filed upon due perusal of the original records of the University as well as the inquiry report. It is contended that, upon scrutiny, it has been conclusively established that the marks recorded in respect of the petitioner for B.A. Part-I (1998, Roll No. 128685), B.A. Part-II (1999, Roll No. 109673), and B.A. Part-III (2000, Roll No. 114125) were found to have been tampered with in the tabulation register maintained at the examination centre, namely St. Andrew's College, Gorakhpur, as well as in certain corresponding University records.

58. It is further submitted that, from a perusal of the original award sheets obtained from the confidential section of the University, particularly with regard to B.A. Part-III (2000), it emerges that the petitioner had actually secured 41 marks in the first paper of Psychology, 06 marks in the second paper, 47 marks in the third paper, and 26 marks in the practical examination. Similarly, in Political Science, the petitioner had secured 42 marks in the first paper, 30 marks in the second paper, and 35 marks in the third paper.

59. However, it is contended that the mark sheet submitted by the petitioner before the office of the District Basic Education Officer reflects wholly different and inflated marks, namely 62, 51, 57, and 24 in Psychology, and 62, 72, and 62 in Political Science, respectively, thereby demonstrating a stark and unexplained variation from the original records maintained by the University. Such discrepancies, it is submitted, unmistakably establish that the mark sheet relied upon by the petitioner is forged and fabricated, and further indicate tampering with the tabulation register in collusion with certain unknown persons.

60. It is thus submitted that the B.A. mark sheet produced by the petitioner is not genuine, and the inquiry report to that effect was duly placed before the competent authority, on the basis whereof the impugned order has been passed.

61. It is further submitted that, pursuant to the directions issued by this Hon^{ble} Court, a communication dated 19.10.2025 was addressed to the Controller of Examinations of the University for initiating appropriate action against the erring officials. In compliance thereof, the Vice-Chancellor directed the Controller of Examinations to issue show cause notices to the staff and employees of the Examination Department who had discharged duties during the period 1998 to 2019, with a view to identify the persons responsible for the fraud.

62. It is also contended that, consequent thereto, a First Information Report came to be lodged on 21.10.2025 at Police Station Cantt, District Gorakhpur, being Case Crime No. 0584 of 2025, under Sections 419, 420, 467, 468, 471 and 120-B of the Indian Penal Code. Further, the Controller of Examinations also addressed a communication to the Principal Secretary, Department of Higher Education, requesting constitution of a Special Task Force to conduct a comprehensive inquiry into the fraud perpetrated, of which the petitioner is a direct beneficiary.

63. All the aforesaid facts, it is submitted, have been duly brought on record by means of a personal affidavit filed by the Registrar of the University, in compliance with the directions issued by this Hon^{ble} Court.

64. Learned counsel for the respondents submits that the Inquiry Committee, upon a meticulous examination of the academic records of the petitioner as maintained by the University, particularly the counterfoil which constitutes primary and unimpeachable evidence, has rendered a detailed report. The findings recorded therein conclusively establish, beyond any reasonable doubt, that the petitioner had consciously, deliberately, and with mala fide intent, indulged in tampering with her educational documents so as to derive undue benefit for securing appointment in the Basic Education Department.

65. It is thus contended that the B.A. mark sheet relied upon by the petitioner cannot, by any stretch of imagination, be regarded as genuine or authentic. It is further submitted that the said inquiry report, forming the very substratum of the impugned action, has neither been assailed nor challenged by the petitioner at any stage and, as such, has attained finality.

66. In view of the aforesaid, it is submitted that the petitioner is not entitled to any relief as prayed for, and the present writ petition, being devoid of merit, is liable to be dismissed.

67. Heard learned counsel for the parties and perused the records.

68. The instant writ petition has been preferred laying challenge to the order dated 28.07.2025 passed by the Basic Shiksha Adhikari, Gorakhpur, whereby the petitioner's appointment to the post of Assistant Teacher has been annulled with retrospective effect, accompanied by consequential directions for recovery of emoluments disbursed and initiation of criminal proceedings against the petitioner.

69. The factual conspectus, shorn of superfluous details, is that the petitioner asserts to have attained educational qualifications up to the level of Bachelor of Arts, followed by B.Ed., and thereafter completing the Special BTC Training Course, in the year 2008. On the strength of the aforesaid credentials, she came to be appointed as an Assistant Teacher in the year 2010.

70. It is not in dispute that subsequent to her appointment, certain complaints came to be lodged casting doubt upon the authenticity of her Bachelor of Arts marksheet, particularly with regard to the alleged inflation of marks obtained in the third year examination.

71. The matter was subjected to multifarious levels of scrutiny, encompassing verification by the University authorities, consideration of the inquiry committee report dated 30.09.2022, examination of the reports submitted by the Controller of Examinations, as well as inputs received from the Special Task Force.

72. On the basis of the aforesaid materials, repeated notices were issued to the petitioner, affording her adequate opportunity to submit her explanation with respect to the allegations pertaining to the authenticity of the Bachelor of Arts marksheet.

73. The principal submissions advanced by learned counsel for the petitioner, assailing the impugned order, are manifold.

74. Firstly, it is contended that no regular departmental inquiry, as contemplated under the U.P. Government Servant (Discipline and Appeal) Rules, 1999, was conducted prior to the passing of the impugned order, thereby vitiating the action on account of procedural infirmity.

75. Secondly, it is urged that the petitioner's Bachelor of Arts degree has not been formally annulled or cancelled by the competent University authority, and in the absence thereof, the respondent-authorities lacked jurisdiction to invalidate the petitioner's appointment founded upon such qualification.

76. Thirdly, it is submitted that the entries contained in the tabulation register lend support to the marks claimed by the petitioner, and, therefore, any reliance placed upon the counterfoil to discredit the same is arbitrary and unsustainable in law.

77. Fourthly, it is contended that the impugned action is vitiated on account of gross and unexplained delay, inasmuch as the degree in question pertains to the year 2000, and the proceedings have been initiated after an inordinate lapse of time.

78. Lastly, it is argued that even assuming, without admitting, that there exists some discrepancy in the marks obtained, the petitioner would nonetheless retain the status of a graduate, and thus, the very foundation of the appointment cannot be said to be vitiated.

79. It has further been urged that the petitioner has rendered long years of unblemished service, which ought to be accorded due weight in equity while adjudicating the present controversy.

80. Upon consideration of the rival submissions advanced at the Bar, the following issues arise for determination before this Court:-

(i) whether the impugned action stands vitiated for want of a regular disciplinary inquiry in accordance with the applicable service rules;

(ii) whether the absence of a formal cancellation of the petitioner's degree by the competent University authority renders the impugned order unsustainable in law;

(iii) whether the findings recorded with regard to the alleged forged and manipulated marksheet suffer from perversity or legal infirmity;

(iv) whether the element of delay, coupled with the petitioner's long continuance in service, gives rise to any vested or equitable right in her favour; and

(v) whether the directions pertaining to recovery of salary and initiation of consequential proceedings are legally tenable.

81. The submission advanced on behalf of the petitioner is that a full-fledged departmental inquiry under the U.P. Government Servant (Discipline and Appeal) Rules, 1999 was a sine qua non for the impugned action is fundamentally misconceived and legally untenable.

82. The present case does not pertain to an instance of misconduct committed during the course of service; rather, it strikes at the very root of the petitioner's entry into service, which is alleged to have been secured on the basis of a tainted and fraudulent document. It is trite law that where the initial appointment itself is void ab initio, the employer is not obliged to undertake a detailed disciplinary inquiry akin to punitive proceedings contemplated under the service rules.

83. The Hon'ble Supreme Court has consistently enunciated the principle that fraud vitiates all solemn acts, and any appointment obtained by misrepresentation or by furnishing forged or fabricated documents is liable to be annulled without recourse to elaborate inquiry proceedings.

84. In the present case, the record reflects that the petitioner was issued repeated notices, furnished with the relevant materials, and afforded adequate opportunity to submit her explanation in respect of the allegations levelled against her. Despite the same, the petitioner has chosen to place reliance upon the tabulation chart to substantiate the correctness of her marksheet, which, in the considered opinion of this Court, is wholly misconceived.

85. In such circumstances, once it is established that the appointment was procured by playing fraud, the requirement of conducting a detailed departmental inquiry or affording any further opportunity pales into insignificance, the legal position in this regard being well settled.

86. The next limb of argument, namely, that in the absence of a formal cancellation of the degree by the University the employer is rendered powerless to act, does not commend acceptance and is liable to be rejected.

87. An employer is not only entitled, but is under a legal obligation, to satisfy itself as to whether a candidate fulfilled the prescribed eligibility conditions at the time of entry into service. Where the material on record demonstrably indicates that the marksheet relied upon by the candidate is manipulated, inconsistent, or otherwise unreliable, the employer cannot be compelled to await a formal annulment of the degree by the University authorities. The satisfaction of the employer, arrived at on the basis of a duly conducted inquiry and founded upon cogent material, with regard to fraud or misrepresentation, is sufficient to invalidate the appointment. In the present case, as already delineated hereinabove, the impugned order has been passed upon due consideration of the inquiry reports and other relevant materials on record.

88. Consequently, the submission advanced on behalf of the petitioner in this regard is devoid of merit and does not warrant acceptance.

89. As regards the evidentiary worth of the inquiry reports, the record unequivocally discloses that the issue was examined at multiple levels by competent authorities, including the inquiry committee constituted by the University, the report of the Controller of Examinations, as well as inputs received from the Special Task Force. The consistent and unbroken thread emerging from these materials is that the marks reflected in the petitioner's marksheet do not reconcile with the original academic record, particularly the counterfoil/award sheet, which constitutes the primary evidence.

90. The contention that the tabulation register alone ought to prevail is a manifest oversimplification of the evidentiary framework. It is a settled proposition of law that where discrepancies arise between primary and secondary records, primacy must be accorded to the original record, which in the present case is the counterfoil/award sheet, from which the tabulation register is prepared. In the present case, the marks recorded in the B.A. third-year marksheet are at variance with the counterfoil, and even the tabulation register bears signs of overwriting, thereby rendering it unreliable. A document derived from primary evidence, when itself stands vitiated by interpolation or alteration, cannot be accorded sanctity so as to override the primary record.

91. In such circumstances, it was well within the domain of the competent authority to examine all relevant records and arrive at a reasoned conclusion. This Court, in exercise of its writ jurisdiction, does not sit as an appellate forum to reappraise or reassess findings of fact, unless such findings are demonstrated to be perverse, arbitrary, or wholly unsupported by the record.

92. Learned counsel for the petitioner has failed to point out any such perversity or patent illegality in the findings so recorded and the inquiry report dated 30.09.2022 has not been challenged by the petitioner. Consequently, the challenge on this count is devoid of substance.

93. The plea advanced on behalf of the petitioner that the impugned action is vitiated on account of delay is equally devoid of merit and does not merit acceptance.

94. It is a settled proposition of law that fraud vitiates all proceedings and that there can be no limitation for the discovery and correction of a fraud. The moment such fraud comes to light, the competent authority is well within its jurisdiction to take appropriate corrective measures, irrespective of the lapse of time.

95. The mere length of service rendered by the petitioner cannot sanctify an appointment which was void ab initio. The Hon^{ble} Apex Court has time and again held that principles of equity cannot be invoked to perpetuate an illegality or to confer legitimacy upon an act tainted by fraud.

96. Accordingly, the petitioner cannot claim any vested or indefeasible right on the basis of long continuance in service, when the very foundation of such continuance stands vitiated.

97. Another submission advanced on behalf of the petitioner, to the effect that even upon reduction of marks the petitioner would still satisfy the eligibility criteria, is equally misconceived and liable to be rejected.

98. The controversy at hand does not rest merely upon the question of eligibility; rather, it goes to the very integrity and sanctity of the selection process. The submission of a document reflecting inflated or manipulated marks strikes at the root of fairness, transparency, and probity in public employment.

99. Even a marginal or seemingly insignificant manipulation cannot be countenanced, for any degree of falsification amounts to fraud. Once fraud is established, the entire selection stands vitiated, irrespective of whether the candidate may otherwise have fulfilled the minimum eligibility requirements.

100. Once an appointment is held to be void ab initio, the consequential directions for recovery of salary and initiation of criminal proceedings cannot be said to be without jurisdiction or authority of law. Such consequences are the natural corollaries of an appointment founded upon fraud or misrepresentation.

101. No doubt, in exceptional circumstances, the Court, in exercise of its equitable jurisdiction, may interfere with such consequential directions; however, no such mitigating or extraordinary circumstance has been demonstrated in the present case so as to warrant any indulgence.

102. In view thereof, the consequential directions contained in the impugned order also do not suffer from any legal infirmity. The issue in this regard stands authoritatively settled, inter alia, in the case of Krishna Kant vs. State of U.P. & 2 Others, passed in Writ A No.10029 of 2025, 2025:AHC:186564, wherein it has been held that once the very foundation of appointment is vitiated, all consequential actions flowing therefrom are legally sustainable.

103. Yet another submission has been advanced on behalf of the petitioner to the effect that the tabulation register constitutes the most authentic record and, therefore, any discrepancy vis-à-vis the counterfoil/award sheet ought to be disregarded.

104. Though the said contention may appear attractive at first blush, it does not withstand deeper judicial scrutiny and is liable to be rejected.

105. It is imperative to appreciate the hierarchical evidentiary value of academic records in the context of the present controversy. The counterfoil of the award sheet constitutes the original and primary record, prepared contemporaneously by the examiner at the time of evaluation, reflecting the marks actually awarded to the candidate. The tabulation register, on the other hand, is merely a compiled or derivative record, subsequently prepared on the basis of entries transcribed from such primary evidence, namely, the award sheet/counterfoil.

106. Thus, by its very nature, the counterfoil assumes the character of primary evidence, whereas the tabulation register partakes the character of secondary or derivative evidence. The settled legal position is that where primary evidence is available, it must be accorded primacy, and any reliance upon secondary evidence must necessarily yield thereto, particularly in a situation where discrepancies between the two come to light.

107. The Hon'ble Supreme Court, in the case of State of Bihar v. Radha Krishna Singh and others, (1983) 3 SCC 118, has emphasized the evidentiary superiority of primary records over derivative material, holding that entries made in original records contemporaneously carry greater probative value than subsequently prepared compilations. Similarly, in LIC of India and another v. Ram Pal Singh Bisen, (2010) 4 SCC 491, it has been reiterated that secondary evidence cannot prevail over primary evidence when the latter is available and trustworthy.

108. In the present case, therefore, once the counterfoil/award sheet being the foundational and contemporaneous record discloses a variance with the marks reflected in the tabulation register and the marksheet relied upon by the petitioner, the latter cannot be accorded precedence so as to override the former. The contention to the contrary is, thus, legally untenable.

109. It is a well-settled principle of law that primary evidence constitutes the best evidence, and recourse to secondary evidence is permissible only in the absence of the former or under exceptional and duly explained circumstances.

110. Applying the aforesaid doctrine to the facts of the present case, once the original award sheet/counterfoil is available on record, it assumes evidentiary primacy and is required to be accorded greater probative value than any compiled register, tabulation chart, or derivative record, which is admittedly prepared on the basis of such primary evidence itself.

111. This position assumes greater significance in the present case, where the tabulation chart, apart from being a secondary record, is also tainted by overwriting and interpolation, thereby further eroding its credibility. In such circumstances, no reliance can be placed upon a derivative record so as to override or displace the sanctity of the primary record.

112. Accordingly, the counterfoil/award sheet, being the best evidence available, must prevail.

113. In the present case, the entire controversy centres around the discrepancy between the marks recorded in the petitioner's marksheet and those reflected in the counterfoil/award sheet. The petitioner seeks to place reliance upon the tabulation register, contending that it corroborates the marks claimed by her. However, such reliance is wholly misplaced and legally untenable for the reasons noted hereinafter.

114. The tabulation register is admittedly a derivative record, prepared on the basis of entries transcribed from the counterfoil/award sheet. If the primary source itself reflects marks at variance with those recorded in the marksheet, any subsequent entry inconsistent therewith is rendered inherently suspect and devoid of probative value.

115. Acceptance of the tabulation register in preference to the counterfoil would amount to elevating a derivative record above its very source, which is impermissible in law and contrary to settled principles of evidence. It is, therefore, axiomatic that the authenticity of the marks must be tested at the level of the original and contemporaneous record, namely, the award sheet/counterfoil.

116. Once a discrepancy stands established between the entries recorded in the counterfoil, being the primary and contemporaneous record, and those reflected in the mark sheet produced by the petitioner, the only logical and legally sustainable inference that emerges is that the mark sheet does not constitute a faithful or accurate reflection of the marks actually awarded.

117. Such a divergence, in the absence of a plausible and satisfactory explanation, inevitably gives rise to a presumption that the document relied upon by the petitioner is either not genuine or has been subjected to interpolation or manipulation. The evidentiary value of the counterfoil, being the foundational record, cannot be diluted by a subsequent document which is demonstrably inconsistent with it.

118. In the case at hand, the petitioner has conspicuously failed to furnish any cogent, credible, or convincing explanation so as to reconcile the apparent inconsistency between the primary record and the mark sheet in question. The absence of any such explanation fortifies the conclusion that the mark sheet relied upon by the petitioner lacks authenticity and cannot be accorded any evidentiary credence.

119. Placing reliance upon the proceedings of the Examination Committee dated 21.08.2024, it is evident that the inquiry report dated 30.9.2022 was merely placed before the Committee for its consideration. The minutes unequivocally record that no decision was taken by the Examination Committee on the said report.

120. In such circumstances, the impugned order, having been passed solely on the basis of the aforesaid inquiry report without there being any deliberation, approval, or decision by the competent Examination Committee cannot be sustained in the eyes of law. The absence of a formal decision by the competent body renders the reliance upon the said report wholly untenable and legally unsustainable.

121. Accordingly, where the statutory or competent authority has consciously refrained from arriving at any conclusion on the inquiry report, any action founded exclusively thereupon stands vitiated, being arbitrary and devoid of due application of mind.

122. This Court is of the considered opinion that a detailed counter affidavit has been filed on behalf of Deen Dayal Upadhyay Gorakhpur University, Gorakhpur, through its Registrar as well as the Controller of Examinations, placing on record the entire material to demonstrate that the impugned action has been taken by the competent authority strictly in accordance with the provisions of the U.P. State Universities Act, 1973.

123. The records so produced clearly evince that a conscious and reasoned decision has been arrived at by the competent authority after due consideration of the inquiries conducted for the purpose of verifying the genuineness of the petitioner's mark sheet. The decision-making process, thus, cannot be said to suffer from any procedural irregularity or legal infirmity.

124. In view thereof, the submission advanced on behalf of the petitioner that no decision was taken by the Examination Committee on the earlier report is wholly misconceived and devoid of merit. Such an argument does not withstand judicial scrutiny and, in fact, has no legs to stand in the face of the material placed on record.

125. Learned counsel for the petitioner has placed reliance upon the judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Mansaram v. S.P. Pathak and others, 1984 (1) SCC 125 wherein it has been observed that the exercise of statutory powers must be undertaken within a reasonable time, and that inordinate and unexplained delay may render such action legally unsustainable.

126. However, the aforesaid judgment is clearly distinguishable and has no application to the facts of the present case. It is a settled proposition of law that fraud vitiates all solemn acts, and that no limitation operates against fraud. The discovery of fraud at any stage confers jurisdiction upon the competent authority to take appropriate corrective measures.

127. The Hon'ble Apex Court has consistently held that equity cannot be invoked to perpetuate an illegality, nor can a person be permitted to derive benefit from a fraudulent act. Once fraud is detected, the authorities are not only empowered but duty-bound to initiate inquiry and take consequential action, irrespective of the lapse of time.

128. In such circumstances, the principle of "reasonable time" as enunciated in Mansaram (supra) pales into insignificance, inasmuch as the present case pertains to allegations of fraud, where the overriding consideration is to uphold the sanctity of public records and prevent abuse of process.

129. Accordingly, the reliance placed by the petitioner upon the aforesaid judgment is misplaced and does not advance his case in any manner.

130. The judgment in Radhe Shyam Yadav & Another v. State of Uttar Pradesh & Others, (2024) 11 SCC 770, as relied upon by learned counsel for the petitioner, enunciates authoritative principles governing fraudulent appointments, suppression of material facts, and the legal consequences flowing therefrom in matters of public employment.

131. The ratio of the said decision may be succinctly encapsulated thus: an appointment secured by practicing fraud or on the basis of forged or fabricated documents is void ab initio. Such foundational illegality is incurable and cannot be sanctified by the mere efflux of time. Equitable considerations, including long years of service or alleged hardship, are wholly inapplicable and cannot be invoked to shield or legitimize an inherently void appointment.

132. The Hon'ble Apex Court has further held that the employer retains the inherent authority to annul such an appointment at any stage upon detection of fraud, and the doctrines of delay and laches do not operate as a bar in such cases.

133. The said judgment thus reinforces the settled legal position that fraud vitiates all solemn acts, and any benefit obtained by deceit is liable to be withdrawn irrespective of the passage of time or length of service rendered by the beneficiary.

134. Placing reliance upon the judgment in Riyazul Hasan v. State of Uttar Pradesh & Others, 2025:AHC:223273, learned counsel for the petitioner has contended that no regular departmental inquiry has been conducted, despite the petitioner being a duly appointed permanent teacher. It is thus urged that the impugned order stands vitiated for non-compliance with the procedure prescribed under the relevant statutory framework, including the Rules of 1999 and the U.P. Basic Education Staff Service Rules, 1973, and is consequently arbitrary and violative of the principles of natural justice.

135. The submission, however, is misconceived and untenable in the facts of the present case.

136. It is by now a well-settled principle of law that fraud vitiates all solemn acts, and any appointment obtained on the basis of forged or fabricated documents is void ab initio. In such cases, the very foundation of the appointment being non est, the requirement of holding a full-fledged departmental inquiry pales into insignificance.

137. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in A.P. State Financial Corporation v. M/S GAR Re-Rolling Mills and another, (1994) 2 SCC 647 and S.P. Chengalvaraya Naidu v. Jagannath, (1994) 1 SCC 1 has categorically held that a person who has obtained any benefit by practicing fraud is not entitled to any equitable relief, and such an act renders the transaction a nullity in the eyes of law.

138. Further, in the case of R. Vishwanatha Pillai v. State of Kerala and others, (2004) 2 SCC 105, the Hon'ble Apex Court held that where an appointment is secured on the basis of a false caste certificate, the same is void from inception, and no opportunity of hearing or detailed inquiry is required prior to cancellation, as the incumbent had no legal right to the post.

139. Similarly, in the case of Bank of India and another v. Avinash D. Mandivikar and others, (2005) 7 SCC 690, it was held that an employee who obtains appointment by producing false documents cannot claim protection of natural justice to perpetuate such illegality.

140. The principle has been reiterated in Chairman and Managing Director, FCI and others v. Jagdish Balaram Bahira and others, (2017) 8 SCC 670 wherein it has been held that once fraud is established, the question of affording further opportunity becomes irrelevant, as the appointment itself is void.

141. In view of the aforesaid settled legal position, this Court is of the considered opinion that no detailed departmental inquiry or prior opportunity of hearing is mandatorily required in cases where the appointment is founded upon forged or non-genuine documents, and the fraud stands substantiated on the basis of objective material on record.

142. The writ Court, in exercise of its jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution of India, would not ordinarily interfere with such action unless it is demonstrated that the decision is perverse, wholly arbitrary, or based on no evidence whatsoever. In the present case, no such infirmity has been established.

143. Accordingly, the contention raised by the petitioner, premised upon alleged violation of procedural safeguards, is devoid of merit and liable to be rejected.

144. In view of the foregoing discussion, this Court is of the considered opinion that the impugned order does not suffer from any illegality, arbitrariness, or perversity so as to warrant interference in exercise of jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution of India.

145. Accordingly, the writ petition, being devoid of merit, is liable to be dismissed and is hereby dismissed.

Writ A No 12905 of 2010

...Petitioner

Versus

State of U.P. & Ors.

...Respondents

Issue for Consideration

(1) Scope of writ jurisdiction to interfere with the findings of disciplinary authority in the matter arising out of charge of serious misconduct of carrying passengers without ticket.

Headnotes

(A) Service law – Termination – Disciplinary proceeding – Charge leveled was that the petitioner, while working as Conductor, did not issue tickets to 59 passengers in bus though he filled pay-bills – Defense that he was not able to distribute tickets though after making count of passengers, he filled pay-bills and received the ticket money also, therefore, there was no loss of Corporation, was taken – Further plea that no passengers has given any statement, was taken – Permissibility – Disciplinary Authority observed that petitioner has sufficient time to distribute tickets as bus was checked after about 12 kilometers from starting point – Scope of writ jurisdiction felt into consideration: (E-1)

Held: This Court cannot sit as Appellate Court to consider whether evidence was sufficient or not except in a case when findings are perverse which is not a case in hand. Carrying passengers without ticket is a serious misconduct and in this regard, Court takes note of above referred judgments and since petitioner has failed to provide any reasonable explanation that under which circumstances, without issue tickets to passengers, he could fill pay-bills in advance, therefore, this Court does not find any reason to interfere with impugned order in limited writ jurisdiction. Advs. for the Respondents: Ajit Kumar Singh (C.S.C.), Mritunjay Mohan Sahai

(Delivered by Hon'ble Saurabh Shyam Shamshery, J.)

1. Heard Sri Shyamdhara Pandey, learned counsel for petitioner and Sri M.M. Sahai, learned counsel for respondent-Road Corporation.

2. The petitioner was a Conductor with respondent-Corporation. On 23.06.2004 when he was discharging duties as Conductor of Vehicle No. UP-42-T/1633 from Faizabad to Akbarpur, an inspection was conducted wherein it was found that he has not issued tickets to 59 passengers in bus though he has filled paybills.

3. In aforesaid circumstances, petitioner was served with a charge sheet and inquiry report dated 19.09.2004 was submitted. Subsequently, a second show cause notice was issued by Assistant Regional Manager, Akbarpur passed an order of punishment dated 15.02.2005 whereby petitioner was terminated from service. Subsequently, petitioner has filed a representation before Regional Manager, Faizabad and vide order dated 09.11.2006, punishment order was set aside and matter was remitted back for fresh consideration.

4. In aforesaid circumstances, inquiry was conducted afresh and vide inquiry report dated 04.03.2009, the charge was found proved in part. For reference, relevant part of order is quoted below :-

"अधोहस्ताक्षरी द्वारा रा सम्पूर्ण प्रकरण पत्रावली का विधिवत अवलोकन किया गया। निरीक्षण के समय बस में कुल 59 यात्री यात्रा कर रहे थे जिसकी टिकट वाइज मागर् पत्र पर पिचालक द्वारा प्रविष्ट कर दी गयी थी जिसे निरीक्षण कतार एवं आरोपी द्वारा स्वीकार किया गया है। आरोपी के पेट में दर्द होने के कारण टिकट पर कहां से कहां तक अंकित नहीं किया गया जबकि टिकट का यात्री सहित यात्रा रत यात्रियों के पास उपलब्ध था यदि आरोपी की मनसा दूसरिहती तो उनको देय टिकटों का नम्बर वाइज अंकन मागर् पत्र पर नहीं करता। आरोपी का दावित्व था कि यात्रियों को टिकट बनाकर उपलब्ध कराने के उपरांत मागर् पत्र पर प्रविष्ट करने के बाद बस संचालित कराता लेकिन ऐसा न कर केवल यात्रियों की संख्या मागर् पत्र पर करके बिना टिकट बनाये वाहन संचालित करा दिया गया जिसके लिए आरोपी दोषी प्रतीत होता है।

5. The Disciplinary Authority thereafter issued a show cause notice along with a disagreement note, though admittedly, no specific reason was assigned therein and petitioner was asked to submit his reply within 15 days. The petitioner submitted a reply and asked respondents to provide reasons for disagreement. Accordingly, second notice was issued on 07.08.2009 wherein concerned respondent provided reasons for disagreement. Relevant part thereof is quoted below :-

"2- आपके उक्त प्रार्थना पत्र के क्रम में अवगत कराना है कि रिपोटर् कतार की मृत्यु हो जाने के कारण प्रकरण के द्वितीय जांच में उनकी बयान नहीं लिया गया है। आपने अपने आरोप पत्र के उत्तर में निरीक्षण स्थल की दूरी डेढ़ से 02 किमी० बताया गया है, जबकि पूर्व में हुई जांच में जांच अधिकारी, द्वारा रा प्रतिपरीक्षण के समय रिपोटर् कतार से पूछे गये प्रश्न के उत्तर में अकबरपुर से निरीक्षण स्थल की दूरी 12 किमी० बताया गया है, जिसमें विरोधाभास है। प्रकरण में अभिलेखनीय आधार पर जांच आख्या तैयार की गयी है। अतः आपको अन्तम रूप से सूचित किया जाता है, कि कारण बताओ नोटिस का उत्तर 03 दिन के अन्दर प्रेषित करें, अन्यथा प्रकरण में एकपक्षीय कार्यवाही कर दी जायेगी।

6. Admittedly, petitioner has not submitted any reply within prescribed period and he submitted a belated reply on 01.09.2009 whereas on same day, impugned order was passed, whereby a major punishment of termination from service was passed. Relevant part of said order is mentioned hereinafter :-

"मेरे द्वारा रिपोटर् कतार की रिपोटर्, जाँच आख्या प्रतिपरीक्षण के समय आये तथ्यों का सम्यक अवलोकन किया गया, और पाया कि आरोपी द्वारा रा अपने आरोप पत्र के उत्तर में लिखा है कि यात्रियों से पूछ कर उनकी संख्या नुसार मागर् पत्र पर प्रविष्ट अकबरपुर से बसखारी कर दी गयी थी।

अतः श्री जगदम्बा प्रसाद पाण्डेय, परिचालक अकबरपुर डिपो वतर्मान शाहगंज डिपो को कारण बताओ नोटिस में प्रस्तावित दण्ड को पारित करते हुए ये निलम्बन काल का अवशेष वेतन जब्त करते हुए ये सेवा से प्रथक किया जाता है।

7. The petitioner thereafter approached this Court by filing a Writ Petition No. 58141/2009 which was disposed of vide order dated 10.11.2009 with liberty to file an appeal being alternative remedy.

8. Accordingly, petitioner filed an appeal before Regional Manager, UPSRTC, Azamgarh Region, Azamgarh which was dismissed vide order dated 03.02.2010 and relevant part of it is mentioned below :-

"प्रकरण पत्रावली प्राप्त होने पर मेरे द्वारा प्रकरण से संबंधित रिपोर्ट जारी आरोप पत्र आरोपपत्र के उत्तर जांच अधिकारी की जांच आख्या जारी कारण बताओ नोटिस, प्रत्यावेदन एवं प्राप्त आख्या सहित सम्पूर्ण प्रकरण पत्रावली का गम्भीरता पूर्वक गहन अध्ययन किया गया। औरपाया कि चेकिंग के समय विजन टिकटों की प्रविष्टि प्रत्यावेदन श्री पाण्डेय द्वारा माग्न पत्र पर की गयी उनमें जो टिकट निरीक्षण के द्वारा रोके गये, सभी खाली (ब्लैंक) थे। और निरीक्षण स्थल तक उक्त टिकटों के यात्री वास्तव

में बिना टिकट ही थे और प्रकरण से अपने आपको बचाने हेतु यात्रियों को बहकाना भी इसी तारतम्य में स्पष्ट समझ में आता है। अतः मेरे अनुसार प्रत्यावेदनको दिया गया दण्ड उचित है।

10. Learned counsel for petitioner has argued vehemently and referred orders passed by respondents annexed in writ petition to the effect that on date of inspection, the petitioner was suffering with stomach pain and inspection was conducted within two kilometers from starting point of bus, therefore, he was not able to distribute tickets though after making count of passengers, he has filled pay-bills and has received the ticket money also, therefore, there was no loss of Corporation. Since author of inspection report was meanwhile expired, therefore, report was not proved during subsequent inquiry. None of passengers has given any statement and punishment was shockingly disproportionate.

11. Per contra, learned counsel for respondent-Corporation has supported impugned order and submitted that it was a case where disciplinary authority has made a disagreement to inquiry report submitted in second round of disciplinary proceedings and has made a specific reason in second notice, however, petitioner has not submitted any reply within stipulated time, therefore, on basis of material available, it was found that petitioner has committed misconduct that admittedly he was carrying 59 passengers without ticket and without any reasonable explanation with specific finding that inspection was conducted after about 12 kilometers from starting point of bus and not after 2 kilometers as alleged by petitioner. Therefore, there was no explanation for not providing tickets even after such a long journey.

12. I have considered above submissions and perused the records.

13. The Supreme Court in MD, North-East Karnataka Road Transport Corpn. v. K. Murti, (2006) 12 SCC 570 has held that carrying passengers without ticket is a serious misconduct which could invite major punishment of termination. Relevant paragraph of said judgment is quoted below :-

"8. The learned counsel for the appellant, at the time of hearing, placed strong reliance on the two decisions of this Court, one in Regional Manager, Rajasthan SRTC v. Ghanshyam Sharma [(2002) 10 SCC 330 : 2003 SCC (L&S) 714] which was also a case of bus conductor carrying passengers without issuing tickets. This Court, in the above case, held that carrying the passengers without tickets amounts to dishonesty or grave negligence and for such misconduct punishment of removal from service is justified. This Court also further observed that the Labour Court was not justified in directing the reinstatement with continuity of service but without back wages. This Court has also relied upon a judgment in Karnataka SRTC v. B.S. Hullikatti [(2001) 2 SCC 574 : 2001 SCC (L&S) 469]. In the said judgment, this Court has held that in such cases where the bus conductors carry passengers without ticket or issue tickets at a rate less than the proper rate, the said acts would inter alia amount to either being a case of dishonesty or of gross negligence and such conductors were not fit to be retained in service because such inaction or action on the part of the conductors results in financial loss to the Road Transport Corporation. This Court has also observed that in cases like the present, orders of dismissal should not be set aside. The learned counsel for the appellant also cited Divisional Controller, N.E.K.R.T.C. v. H. Amaresh [(2006) 6 SCC 187 : 2006 SCC (L&S) 1290]. In this case, this Court was considering the case of misappropriation of a small amount of State Road Transport Corporation's fund by a conductor and held it a grave act of misconduct, which resulted in financial loss to the Corporation. This Court also held that punishment of dismissal from service awarded by the disciplinary authority did not call for any interference by the Labour Court or the High Court and hence the order of reinstatement passed by the High Court was set aside. This Court also in a catena of decisions held that the Tribunal should not sit in appeal over the decision of any employer unless there exists a statutory provision in this behalf. This Court also observed that the High Court gets jurisdiction to interfere with the punishment in the exercise of its jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution only when it finds that the punishment imposed is shockingly disproportionate to the charges proved."

14. In the first round of proceedings, a representation of petitioner was considered by the higher authority and a fresh inquiry report was sought. Accordingly, a fresh inquiry report was submitted and charge was found proved in part, however, Disciplinary Authority has made a disagreement on a factual aspect that petitioner has sufficient time to distribute tickets as bus was checked after about 12 kilometers from starting point, he filled pay-bills without issuing tickets.

15. The petitioner is not able to deny aforesaid either in disciplinary proceedings or before this Court. The petitioner is also not able to deny that in normal circumstances, tickets are issued at first instance and pay-bills are filled subsequently and not vice versa. During inquiry, due process was followed. The petitioner was granted sufficient time to submit reply of notice of disagreement, however, he failed to do so.

16. The Appellate Authority has also rejected the appeal by a reasoned order. It is well settled that in cases of disciplinary proceedings, this Court cannot sit as Appellate Court to consider whether evidence was sufficient or not except in a case when findings are perverse which is not a case in hand. Carrying passengers without ticket is a serious misconduct and in this regard, Court takes note of above referred judgments and since petitioner has failed to provide any reasonable explanation that under which circumstances, without issue tickets to passengers, he could fill pay-bills in advance, therefore, this Court does not find any reason to interfere with impugned order in limited writ jurisdiction and for that Court takes note of a judgment of Supreme Court in Bhupinderpal Singh Gill vs. State of Punjab and others, 2025 SCC Online SC 113.

17. Accordingly, writ petition has no force, hence, dismissed.

Issue for Consideration

(1) Validity of the order of cancellation of selection passed on the grounds of pendency of three criminal cases, out of which one was quashed by the High Court and other two cases entail the offences, which do not involve moral turpitude.

Headnotes

(A) Service law – Cancellation of selection – Post of Constable (Civil Police) – Three criminal cases were registered, which were truthfully disclosed by the petitioner – Out of these cases, one FIR stood quashed by the High Court and two remaining cases entail offences, which does not involve moral turpitude and are punishable with a maximum sentence of up to seven years – While quashing FIR, High Court observed that both parties had withdrawn all cases instituted against each other and the dispute between the parties was essentially of a commercial nature – Effect – Applicability of principle laid down in Avtar Singh's case felt into consideration: (E-1)

Held: In respect of the two cases, applying the tests laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in various judgments, the nature of allegations does not prima facie indicate offences involving moral turpitude affecting society at large. The allegations against the petitioner are yet to be adjudicated and are subject to determination during trial – Youthful indiscretions and minor offences ought not to result in branding a person as a criminal for life and that the approach of the State should be reformatory rather than punitive, and applying the said principles to the present case, the pendency of two criminal cases, wherein the role assigned to the petitioner is general in nature, does not constitute a valid ground to deny appointment to the petitioner, particularly when he is not a convict and the allegations in the said cases are yet to be adjudicated during trial. Impugned order dated 03.09.2025 passed by the Superintendent of Police, Deoria.

Advs. for the Appellant: Utsav Mishra.

Advs. for the Respondents: Maneesh Pratap Singh(SC).

(Delivered by Hon'ble Karunesh Singh Pawar, J.)

1. Heard Sri Utsav Mishra, learned counsel for the petitioner and Sri Maneesh Pratap Singh, learned Standing Counsel appearing for the State.

2. By means of the present petition, the petitioner has assailed the impugned order dated 03.09.2025, whereby his selection/candidature has been cancelled by respondent No. 6, Superintendent of Police, Deoria.

3. Brief facts of the case are that pursuant to the advertisement dated 23.12.2023 issued by the U.P. Police Recruitment and Promotion Board, Lucknow, applications were invited for the post of Constable (Civil Police) through direct recruitment. In the said advertisement, under Clause 3.5, it was provided that a prospective candidate who is found guilty of an offence involving moral turpitude shall not be eligible for appointment to the post of Constable (Civil Police).

4. Clause 3.5 of the said advertisement is extracted hereunder:-

संघ सरकार या किसी राज्य सरकार या किसी स्था नीय प्राधिकारी द्वारा या संघ सरकार या किसी राज्य सरकार के स्वामित्व धीन या नियंत्रणधीन किसी नियम या निकाय द्वारा पदच्युत व्यक्ति सेवा में किसी पद पर नियुक्ति के लिये पात्र नहीं होंगे। नैतिक अधमता के किसी अपराध के लिए दोष सिद्ध व्यक्ति भी सेवा में किसी पद पर नियुक्ति के लिये पात्र नहीं होंगे।”

5. It is submitted that under Clause 8(2) of the advertisement dated 23.12.2023, the U.P. Police Recruitment and Promotion Board reserved the right to cancel the candidature of a candidate in case any vital information, such as pendency of a criminal case, polygamy, etc., is found against a prospective candidate. The petitioner, possessing all requisite qualifications, applied for the post of Constable (Civil Police) pursuant to the aforesaid advertisement. The written examination was conducted in the month of August, 2024, wherein the petitioner was declared successful and his name finds place at Serial No. 57107 of the selection list.

6. Thereafter, the petitioner appeared for document verification before the competent authority and was found successful. Subsequently, vide letter dated 11.04.2025 issued by the Additional Superintendent of Police/Nodal Officer (Direct Recruitment-2023), District Sultanpur, the petitioner was directed to appear for medical examination in terms of Rule 15(6) of the U.P. Police Constable and Head Constable Service Rules, 2017.

7. In compliance thereof, the petitioner appeared for medical examination on 23.04.2025, wherein he was required to fill Police Form No. 92, which mandates disclosure of all criminal antecedents. The petitioner accordingly submitted an affidavit dated 24.05.2025, disclosing all three criminal cases pending against him, along with the fact that he has not been convicted in any of the said cases.

8. The details of the three cases are as under:-

"1. FIR/Case Crime No. 364 of 2021 under Sections 352, 504 IPC & Section 4/10 of Forest Conservation Act, Police Station-Gosaiganj, District-Sultanpur.

2. FIR/Case Crime No. 13 of 2022 under Sections 323, 504, 506 IPC and Section 3(1)(Da) & 3(1)(Dha) of SC/ST Act, Police Station-Gosaiganj, District-Sultanpur.

3. FIR/Case Crime No. 711 of 2023 under Sections 406, 419, 420, 467, 468 & 471 IPC, Police Station-Kotwali Nagar, District-Sultanpur."

9. Vide letter dated 30.05.2025, issued by the Additional Superintendent of Police, Headquarters of the Director General of Police, U.P., Lucknow, the petitioner was allotted District Deoria for appointment to the post of Constable (Civil Police). However, in the meantime, the impugned order dated 03.09.2025 came to be passed by respondent No. 6, whereby the candidature/selection of the petitioner has been cancelled on the recommendation of respondent No. 4, District Magistrate, Sultanpur, as well as on account of non-issuance of a 'No Objection Certificate' by the Superintendent of Police, Sultanpur, declaring the petitioner ineligible for appointment.

10. Submission of learned counsel for the petitioner is that the impugned order has been passed on the ground that out of the three criminal cases registered against the petitioner, in two cases charge-sheets have been filed, while in one case, i.e. FIR/Case Crime No. 711 of 2023 under Sections 406, 419, 420, 467, 468 and 471 IPC, the allegations involve an offence of moral turpitude. It is submitted that in the said case, a final report has already been submitted, though no decision has yet been taken by the competent trial Court. However, on the basis of such criminal antecedents, coupled with the fact that in the other two cases charge-sheets have been filed, and treating FIR/Case Crime No. 711 of 2023 as involving moral turpitude and pending before the trial court, the impugned order has been passed read with the Government Order dated 28.04.1958.

11. Learned counsel for the petitioner submitted that with regard to FIR/Case Crime No. 711 of 2023 under Sections 406, 419, 420, 467, 468 and 471 IPC, a Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No. 6276 of 2023 (Smt. Deepa Singh vs. State of U.P. and Others) was filed which, after exchange of pleadings, was allowed vide judgment and order dated 01.02.2024, whereby the said FIR, registered at Police Station Kotwali Nagar, District Sultanpur, came to be quashed. He submits that the very basis for passing the impugned order is the aforesaid FIR. The impugned order, as contained in Annexure No. 1, records that since a final report has been submitted by the police in the said case and the same is pending consideration before the trial court, and no decision has yet been taken by the court concerned, the candidature/selection of the petitioner has been cancelled.

12. Submission is that FIR/Case Crime No. 711 of 2023 was quashed vide judgment and order dated 01.02.2024 passed in Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No. 6276 of 2023, whereas the impugned order has been passed subsequently on 03.09.2025. It is submitted that while passing the impugned order, the authorities have failed to consider that the said FIR/Case Crime No. 711 of 2023 had already been quashed by a Division Bench of this Court and no appeal has been preferred by the State against the said judgment. It is, thus, submitted that the very basis on which the impugned order has been passed no longer survives, inasmuch as FIR/Case Crime No. 711 of 2023 is no longer in existence.

13. It is submitted that the remaining cases, i.e. FIR/Case Crime No. 364 of 2021 under Sections 352 and 504 IPC and Section 4/10 of the Forest Conservation Act, Police Station Gosaiganj, District Sultanpur, entails offences punishable with a maximum sentence of up to three years. So far as FIR/Case Crime No. 13 of 2022 under Sections 323, 504, 506 IPC and Section 3(1)(Da) & 3(1)(Dha) of SC/ST Act, Police Station Gosaiganj, District Sultanpur is concerned, it is submitted that only general and sweeping allegations have been levelled against all the accused persons, and no specific role has been attributed to the petitioner. The said offences are punishable with a maximum sentence of up to seven years.

14. In support of his argument, learned counsel for the petitioner relied upon the judgment passed by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Avtar Singh vs. Union of India, (2016) 8 SCC 471.

15. It is submitted that the FIR/Case Crime No. 711 of 2023 is not under moral turpitude. In this regard, attention of the Court has been invited towards a finding given by the Division Bench of this Court while quashing the said FIR on paragraph 8 and 9 of the judgment and order dated 01.02.2024 passed in Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No. 6276 of 2023.

16. Learned Standing Counsel for the State has opposed the aforesaid contention. He submits that the FIR/Case Crime No. 711 of 2023 falls under the category involving moral turpitude.

17. Perused the record so also the impugned order including the law on the issue.

18. A perusal of the counter affidavit filed by the State particularly paragraph 20 it appears that the FIR/Case Crime No. 711 of 2023 under Sections 406, 419, 420, 467, 468 & 471 IPC, Police Station-Kotwali Nagar, District-Sultanpur, falls under the category of cases involving moral turpitude in which although the final report was submitted to the trial Court concerned on 25.02.2025, the case remains pending in the trial Court concerned and petitioner has not yet been acquitted of the said case involving moral turpitude and therefore the impugned order has been passed. Except this there is no specific pleadings have been made in the counter affidavit filed by the State.

19. This Court has noticed that petitioner in paragraph 51 of the writ petition has given an instance of various candidates as many as six names against whom criminal cases are pending have been given appointment. However, while filing the counter affidavit no reply has been given in paragraph 27 of the counter affidavit.

20. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in Avtar Singh (supra), while considering the issue of pending criminal cases at the stage of recruitment, laid down guidelines in paragraph 38, which is as under:-

"38. We have noticed various decisions and tried to explain and reconcile them as far as possible. In view of the aforesaid discussion, we summarise our conclusion thus:

38.1. Information given to the employer by a candidate as to conviction, acquittal or arrest, or pendency of a criminal case, whether before or after entering into service must be true and there should be no suppression or false mention of required information.

38.2. While passing order of termination of services or cancellation of candidature for giving false information, the employer may take notice of special circumstances of the case, if any, while giving such information.

38.3. The employer shall take into consideration the government orders/instructions/rules, applicable to the employee, at the time of taking the decision.

38.4. In case there is suppression or false information of involvement in a criminal case where conviction or acquittal had already been recorded before filling of the application/verification form and such fact later comes to knowledge of employer, any of the following recourses appropriate to the case may be adopted:

38.4.1. In a case trivial in nature in which conviction had been recorded, such as shouting slogans at young age or for a petty offence which if disclosed would not have rendered an incumbent unfit for post in question, the employer may, in its discretion, ignore such suppression of fact or false information by condoning the lapse.

38.4.2. Where conviction has been recorded in case which is not trivial in nature, employer may cancel candidature or terminate services of the employee.

38.4.3. If acquittal had already been recorded in a case involving moral turpitude or offence of heinous/serious nature, on technical ground and it is not a case of clean acquittal, or benefit of reasonable doubt has been given, the employer may consider all relevant facts available as to antecedents, and may take appropriate decision as to the continuance of the employee.

38.5. In a case where the employee has made declaration truthfully of a concluded criminal case, the employer still has the right to consider antecedents, and cannot be compelled to appoint the candidate.

38.6. In case when fact has been truthfully declared in character verification form regarding pendency of a criminal case of trivial nature, employer, in facts and circumstances of the case, in its discretion, may appoint the candidate subject to decision of such case.

38.7. In a case of deliberate suppression of fact with respect to multiple pending cases such false information by itself will assume significance and an employer may pass appropriate order cancelling candidature or terminating services as appointment of a person against whom multiple criminal cases were pending may not be proper.

38.8. If criminal case was pending but not known to the candidate at the time of filling the form, still it may have adverse impact and the appointing authority would take decision after considering the seriousness of the crime.

38.9. In case the employee is confirmed in service, holding departmental enquiry would be necessary before passing order of termination/removal or dismissal on the ground of suppression or submitting false information in verification form.

38.10. For determining suppression or false information attestation/verification form has to be specific, not vague. Only such information which was required to be specifically mentioned has to be disclosed. If information not asked for but is relevant comes to knowledge of the employer the same can be considered in an objective manner while addressing the question of fitness. However, in such cases action cannot be taken on basis of suppression or submitting false information as to a fact which was not even asked for.

38.11. Before a person is held guilty of suppressio veri or suggestio falsi, knowledge of the fact must be attributable to him."

21.It is not in dispute between the parties that at the time of Medical Examination, the petitioner truthfully disclosed all the three criminal cases registered against him, out of which FIR/Case Crime No. 711 of 2023 stood quashed by a Division Bench of this Court vide judgment and order dated 01.02.2024 passed in Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No. 6276 of 2023. So far as the remaining two cases are concerned, both entail offences punishable with a maximum sentence of up to seven years.

22.It is evident that the sole ground taken by the respondents while passing the impugned order is the pendency of FIR/Case Crime No. 711 of 2023 and the final report submitted therein, stated to be pending adjudication before the trial court and the petitioner has not been acquitted in the said case. Petitioner placed on record the judgment and order dated 01.02.2024 passed by the Division Bench quashing the aforesaid FIR, the respondents, while filing the counter affidavit, have neither specifically denied nor they have bothered to address on this point.

23.This Court further notices that while quashing FIR/Case Crime No. 711 of 2023, the Division Bench, in its judgment dated 01.02.2024, has recorded a categorical finding that both parties had withdrawn all cases and complaints instituted against each other. It has also been observed, inter alia in paragraph 9 of the said judgment, that the dispute between the parties was essentially of a commercial nature.

24.The Hon'ble Supreme Court, in State Bank of India and Others vs. P. Soupramaniane, (2019) 18 SCC 135, while dismissing the appeal filed by the State and affirming the judgment of the High Court, has held that even in cases of conviction, it cannot be said that every instance of assault or simple hurt would necessarily fall within the category of offences involving moral turpitude.

25.Relevant observations made in paragraph 16 of the judgment are extracted hereinafter:-

"16. There can be no manner of doubt about certain offences which can straightaway be termed as involving moral turpitude e.g. offences under the Prevention of Corruption of Act, the NDPS Act, etc. The question that arises for our consideration in this case is whether an offence involving bodily injury can be categorised as a crime involving moral turpitude. In this case, we are concerned with an assault. It is very difficult to state that every assault is not an offence involving moral turpitude. A simple assault is different from an aggravated assault. All cases of assault or simple hurt cannot be categorised as crimes involving moral turpitude. On the other hand, the use of a dangerous weapon which can cause the death of the victim may result in an offence involving moral turpitude. In the instant case, there was no motive for the respondent to cause the death of the victims. The criminal courts below found that the injuries caused to the victims were simple in nature. On an overall consideration of the facts of this case, we are of the opinion that the crime committed by the respondent does not involve moral turpitude. As the respondent is not guilty of an offence involving moral turpitude, he is not liable to be discharged from service."

26. In the present case, out of the three criminal cases, FIR/Case Crime No. 711 of 2023 has already been set aside by a Division Bench of this Court vide judgment and order dated 01.02.2024 passed in Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No. 6276 of 2023. The State, being a party to the said proceedings, has neither controverted nor made any comment with regard to the said judgment while filing the counter affidavit. The said judgment, therefore, appears to have attained finality, as no contrary stand has been taken by the respondents in the counter affidavit.

27. So far as the remaining two cases are concerned, the offences alleged therein entail a maximum sentence of up to seven years. It is well settled that no straightjacket formula can be applied in such matters, and the trials in both the cases are still pending.

28. In respect of the said two cases, applying the tests laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in various judgments, the nature of allegations does not prima facie indicate offences involving moral turpitude affecting society at large. The allegations against the petitioner are yet to be adjudicated and are subject to determination during trial.

29. It is further relevant to note that out of the three cases, FIR/Case Crime No. 711 of 2023 has already been quashed by the Division Bench of this Court vide judgment and order dated 01.02.2024, wherein a categorical finding has been recorded that the dispute between the parties was essentially commercial in nature and has already been settled between them.

30. Thus, considering the judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Avatar Singh (supra), wherein, while referring to Commissioner of Police vs. Sandeep Kumar, it has been observed in paragraphs 8 and 9 that youthful indiscretions and minor offences ought not to result in branding a person as a criminal for life and that the approach of the State should be reformatory rather than punitive, and applying the said principles to the present case, the pendency of two criminal cases, wherein the role assigned to the petitioner is general in nature, does not constitute a valid ground to deny appointment to the petitioner, particularly when he is not a convict and the allegations in the said cases are yet to be adjudicated during trial.

31. In view of the aforesaid discussion, the impugned order dated 03.09.2025 passed by the respondent No. 6, contained in Annexure No. 1, is hereby quashed. The respondent No. 6 is directed to issue the appointment letter to the petitioner forthwith. Such appointment shall, however, be subject to the final outcome of the criminal trials in the said two cases.

32.Resultantly, the writ petition succeeds and is allowed.

ISSUE FOR CONSIDERATION

Whether the death of the petitioner's wife, caused by knife wounds inflicted by unknown assailants, falls within the ambit of "accidental death" covered under the Mukhyamantri Kisan Evam Sarvhit Bima Yojna?

HEADNOTES

Civil Law – Constitution of India – Article 226:- Writ Petition under Article 226 – against the impugned rejection order whereby his claim under the Mukhyamantri Kisan Evam Sarvhit Bima Yojna was rejected – petitioner's wife died due to knife wounds inflicted by unknown assailants while cutting grass in the field – postmortem report indicates that her death was caused due to knife wound – he claimed compensation with a request that her death should be treated as accidental under the scheme – he relied on earlier scheme also – rejection – writ petition - State opposed, arguing that the scheme's eligibility clause specifically enumerates covered accidental events and does not extend to murder - Court held that, the present Mukhyamantri Yojna is distinct from the earlier scheme – and a murder or an incident of like nature as is narrated in the present facts and circumstances is not an accident as envisaged under the Mukhyamantri Yojna for availing compensation – held - murder cannot be treated as an accident under the scheme – though the scheme is beneficial but limited to its defined scope – hence, writ petition fails and is dismissed – however, court clarified that the petitioner may explore other government schemes for relief.

CASE ARISING FROM

Order dated 30.11.2024 rejecting petitioner's claim under the Mukhyamantri Kisan Evam Sarvhit Bima Yojna.

APPEARANCE OF PARTIES

Counsel for Appellant(s): Shri Zoheb Ahmed, Shravan Kumar, Tauseef Ali Ansari.

Counsel for Respondent(s): Ms. Deepshikha, Chief Standing Counsel.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Shekhar B. Saraf, J.
Hon'ble Abdhesh Kumar Chaudhary, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the petitioner and Ms. Deepshikha, learned Chief Standing Counsel for the State-respondent.

2. This is a writ petition under Article 226 of the Constitution of India, wherein the writ petitioner is aggrieved by the order dated November 30, 2024 by which the claim of the petitioner under the Mukhymantri Kisan Evam Sarvhit Bima Yojna (hereinafter referred to as the "the Mukhymantri Yojna") has been rejected on the ground that the petitioner did not fall within the said Mukhymantri Yojna.

3. The facts of the case are that the petitioner's wife, namely, Nanhki Sharma died on October 6, 2016 as a result of knife wound while she was cutting grass in the field. The facts reveal that certain unknown assailants murdered the wife of the petitioner and the post-mortem report indicates that death was caused due to knife wound.

4. The petitioner relied on the Yojna that indicates that accidents 'bima'/insurance should be provided to the following persons

"भाग-1 व्यक्तिगत दुर्घटना बीमा :- परिवार के मुखिया/रोटी अर्जक: की रेल/रोड/वायुयान से दुर्घटना, किसी भी टकराव, गिरने के कारण चोट, गैस रिसाव, सर्प काटने, बिच्छू नेवला, छिपकली काटने से मरना, सिलेण्डर फटने के कारण विकलांगतां या मृत्यु, विस्फोट, कुत्ता काटने, जंगली जानवर के काटने से मरना, जलना, डूबना, बाढ़ में बह, जाना, किसी भी प्रकार से हाथ पैर कट जाना एवं विषालता आदि दुर्घटना में शामिल हैं। व्यक्तिगत दुर्घटना बीमा के अन्तर्गत केवल परिवार का मुखिया/ रोटी अर्जक आच्छादित है।"

5. A subsequent clarification to the Yojna has stated that if the person was under the influence of alcohol, committed suicide or was involved in any illegal activities during which the accident takes place, the same would not be treated as an accidental death.

6. The petitioner relied upon a judgment of the Division Bench of this Court dated 15th February, 2019 passed in WRIT - C No. - 35148 of 2017(Smt. Bindu Devi Vs. State Of U.P. And 2 Others) in which the Court had allowed the claim of the petitioner therein under the Scheme of Samajwadi Kisan & Sarvhit Bima Yojana Kisan Accident Insurance Policy. In that case, the death of the petitioner-husband had taken place due to injuries caused by knife wound.

7. Upon perusal of the present Mukhymantri Yojna, we are of the view that the events provided under the Eligibility Clause are specific and benefit can only be provided if the deceased falls within the said eligibility criteria. It may be noted that the present Mukhymantri Yojna is different from the Scheme that was in operation and was interpreted by the Co-ordinate Bench in Smt. Bindu Devi (Supra). Thus, the said Co-ordinate Bench Judgment does not come to the aid of the petitioner.

8. Further, upon a perusal of the above Mukhymantri Yojna, we are of the view that accidental death caused due to railways, roadways and air travel would be included in the present scheme. If a person meets with an accident on the railway tracks, or on any road or dies in a plane crash, the same benefit would be available to the relatives of the deceased. However, this accidental claim cannot be extended to cases where persons are murdered. Even though, loosely termed one may treat a murder as an accidental phenomenon, however such accidents are not covered under the said Mukhymantri Yojna. The eligibility criteria has been specifically defined and the same can be interpreted for events which are ejusdem generis to the events enumerated therein. Surely, a murder or an incident of like nature as is narrated in the present facts and circumstances, is not an accident as envisaged under the Mukhymantri Yojna for availing compenstion.

9. No doubt, the said Mukhymantri Yojna is a beneficial scheme/Yojna, which provides for financial help to the needy, however, the object behind the said scheme is loud and clear, inasmuch it not only mentions the scheme is applicable for uncertain and unfortunate events, but also enumerates these events which ought to have happened with any person, before the relatives can become eligible for benefit under the said scheme. The said Mukhymantri Yojna is not applicable due to death covered by any reason, except as provided in the scheme/Yojna itself.

10. In light of the same, we are unable to grant any relief to the petitioner and as such the present writ petition fails. We make it clear that the petitioner may be eligible for other benefits under various other schemes of the Government as may be prevalent on the date of the death of the deceased and may avail the same in accordance with law.

11. Accordingly, the writ petition is disposed of.

Whether the decision of the Regional Level Committee (constituted under G.O. dated 19.12.2000 in aid of Section 16A-(7) of the Intermediate Education Act, 1921) taken by only two members, with one acting in dual capacity, is valid in law; and whether quorum defect vitiates the order.

HEADNOTES

Civil Law – Constitution of India – Article 226 – Intermediate Education Act, 1921 – Section 16A-(7) - Societies Registration Act, 1860 – Section 4(B): - Writ Petition under Article 226 - filed against orders of the Regional Level Committee and order of the District Inspector of Schools and seeking quashing thereof and further for mandamus to permit petitioner Committee of Management to function on strength of valid election dated 24.07.2024 approved on 26.07.2024 - Facts reveal long-standing disputes over elections of Janta Janardan Shiksha Samiti institution, with multiple writ petitions and directions since 2017 - whether the Regional Level Committee could decide with only two members, one acting in dual capacity, in absence of quorum mandated by G.O. dated 19.12.2000 - Petitioner pleaded violation of quorum, dual capacity signing, non-supply of adverse material, and disregard of earlier directions - respondents invoked doctrines of necessity, silence, and substantial compliance, contending no prejudice was caused - Court finds that, Regional Level Committee – quorum requirement – dual capacity signing – doctrine of necessity – doctrine of silence – dissent as integral to judicial process – decentralization of powers – transparency in management disputes - quorum defect fatal, dissent indispensable, and alternatives available for substitution - stress decentralization and transparency as objectives of G.O. 19.12.2000 - held, impugned orders are not sustainable and hence set aside with directions to reconstitute RLC with proper quorum, decide afresh within three weeks, and government to issue SOP for such contingencies – direction issued for compliance - Writ petition allowed accordingly.

3. The present writ petition has been filed with the following reliefs:

“ i. Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of Certiorari calling for the records of the case and to quash the impugned order dated 08.08.2025 passed by the Regional Level Committee, respondent no. 2 (Annexure no. 1 to the writ petition).

4. Shri Prabhakar Awasthi, learned Senior Counsel has assailed the order dated 08.08.2025 to submit that in District Mirzapur, a society in the name and style of □Janta Janardan Shiksha Samiti□, was registered under the provisions of Societies Registration Act, 1860 in the year 1973.

5. The aforesaid society initially established a Junior High School, which was subsequently upgraded as High School and thereafter as an Intermediate School. The Junior High School was under grand-in-aid and the High School Section and Intermediate, is not under the grand-in-aid of the State Government.

6. Certain dispute arose, with respect to the Committee of Management, which led to filing of various writ petitions and eventually vide order dated 19.09.2017 passed in Lal Chandra Singh vs. State of U.P. and others²; this Court found that the parties are at variance, as to whether, there has been a determination of the Members of the General Body of the Society; and as contemplated by Section 4B of the Act, pursuant to the directions given by this Court in Writ-C No.25100 of 4 All. Committee Of Management Janta Janardan Shiksha Sadan Inter College Tilaon & Anr. Vs. State of U.P. & Ors.

2017, vide order dated 19.09.2017, the writ petition was disposed of, by requiring the Regional Level Committee to examine, whether there has been a determination of the General Body as contemplated by Section 4B of the Act or not.

7. In compliance of the observations made by this Court, the Regional Level Committee proceeded to pass an order dated 20.12.2017, discarding the election dated 09.04.2017; which was a subject matter of challenge in Writ-C No.3861 of 2018; and vide order dated 30.01.2018, the writ petition was partly allowed with the following directions:

“(a) The order dated 20.12.2017 passed by the Regional Level Committee to the extent it refuses to accord approval to the election dated 09.04.2017 is affirmed;

(b) the order impugned dated 20.12.2017 to the extent it determines the electoral college of the institution as comprising of 30 members with a direction to hold election with the said 30 members general body is hereby set aside;

(c) the Regional Level Committee shall undertake a fresh exercise to determine the general body of the Institution in the light of the observations and the directions contained in the order dated 19.09.2017 passed in Writ-C No.43472 of 2017. The said exercise shall be completed within a period of eight weeks from the date of furnishing certified copy of this order upon the Joint Director of Education, Vindhaychal Region, Mirzapur. The parties concern would be at liberty to file their respective evidences to enable the Regional Level Committee to effectively conclude the aforesaid exercise.

(d) The fresh elections, alleged to have been held on 21.01.2018, shall abide the result of the decision taken by the Regional Level Committee pursuant to the direction given herein above.”

8. Eventually, the District Inspector of Schools vide order dated 18.04.2018, approved the election of one Virendra Pratap Singh, as Manager and the Regional Level Committee vide its order dated 10.07.2018, approved the list of 13 Members as submitted by Shri Virendra Pratap Singh; and being aggrieved against the aforesaid orders one Lal Chandra Singh filed Writ-C No.28345 of 2018, specifically raising a ground that the Regional Level Committee is repeatedly not following the directions issued by this Court, for determining the list of valid members of the society, as per directions/observations made by this Court on 19.09.2017 and 30.01.2018, in true spirit. This Court issued notices to the respondents vide its order dated 21.08.2018 in Writ-C No.28345 of 2018 and against the same a Special Appeal No.840 of 2018 was preferred which was disposed of vide order dated 11.09.2018, to decide the writ petition expeditiously.

9. Subsequently, one Shri Awadh Narain Singh filed Writ-C No.34780 of 2019 with a prayer that his signatures be attested as Manager, which petition was disposed of vide order dated 01.11.2019 that District Inspector of Schools, Mirzapur, may decide the representation of the petitioner, for attestation of the signature of the newly elected Manager of the Institution. However, the District Inspector of Schools vide its order dated 09.01.2021 discarded the election set up by Shri Awadh Narain Singh and directed for fresh elections. Subsequently, elections were held on 23.01.2021, wherein, Shri Lal Chandra Singh is said to be elected as Manager and his signatures were attested and approved on 01.02.2021.

10. Being aggrieved by the aforesaid orders, Shri Virendra Pratap Singh filed Writ-C No.10788 of 2021, which is pending. The term of the Committee of Management being 3 years, is said to have expired on 22/23.01.2024; but it has been alleged that one Shri Virendra Pratap Singh had set up an election dated 17.12.2023 and the District Inspector of Schools attested his signatures vide order dated 16.02.2024; and against which Writ-C No.16396 of 2024 was filed and an interim order has been granted on 31.05.2024 and subsequently an order of single operation has been passed on 21.06.2024.

11. Rival election has been set up by the petitioner's Committee of Management on 24.07.2024, which has also been approved by the District Inspector of Schools vide its order dated 26.07.2024; where after Writ-C No.16396 of 2024 was rendered infructuous, vide order dated 05.09.2024 as the term of the earlier Committee of Management had expired on 23.01.2024; and thereafter fresh election had also taken place, which was approved by the District Inspector of Schools.

12. The order of the District Inspector of Schools dated 26.07.2024, was challenged by Shri Virendra Pratap Singh in Writ-C No.32375 of 2024, which was disposed of by this Court vide order dated 13.11.2024, granting liberty to approach the Regional Level Committee.

13. In pursuance of the order of this Court dated 13.11.2024, notices were issued by the Joint Director of Education on 30.01.2025, fixing 06.02.2025. It transpires that on the basis of a report of the District Inspector of Schools dated 29.07.2025 and the objection of Shri Virendra Pratap Singh dated 06.05.2025 (which the petitioner alleges were never supplied to him), the impugned order dated 08.08.2025 has been passed. Thereafter, the consequential order has also been passed by the District Inspector of Schools, Mirzapur on 02.09.2025, approving and attesting the signatures of respondent no.6.

14. Hence, the present writ petition.

Issues

15. As a preliminary issue has been raised by Shri Prabhakar Awasthi, learned Senior Counsel, the following issue is framed, as such:-

(i) Since, as per the Government Order dated 19.12.2000, a three Member, Regional Level Committee has been constituted, in aid to Section 16A(7) of the Intermediate Education Act, 1921; whether in absence of any one Member, the decision taken by the remaining two Members, will be a valid decision; and for a want of Quorum, can be said to be in substantial compliance of the Government Order dated 19.12.2000; and further whether the doctrine of necessity or doctrine of silence, can be invoked in aid to the decision of the Regional Level Committee (as constituted by the Government Order dated 19.12.2000).

Discussion

16. Shri Prabhakar Awasthi, learned Senior Counsel has argued that perusal of the impugned order dated 08.08.2025, will clearly indicate that the Joint Director of Education, Vindhyaachal Mandal, Mirzapur has appended his signature in dual capacity of (i) Joint Director of Education; and (ii) Deputy Director of Education; and as such the impugned order dated 08.08.2025 along with consequential order dated 02.09.2025 is liable to be vitiated, as neither the quorum was complete nor there was substantial compliance, pertaining to the quorum of the committee, as envisaged under the Government Order dated 19.12.2000.

17. It is an admitted fact that Deputy Director of Education, who was a Member of the Regional Level Committee, Vindhyaachal Mandal, Mirzapur, was transferred and one Shri Uday Bhan, Joint Director of Education, Vindhyaachal Mandal, Mirzapur, was given the additional charge on 06.03.2025, i.e. much prior to the passing of the order dated 08.08.2025; and the said fact has not been disputed by the State-respondents.

18. Shri Prabhakar Awasthi, learned Senior Counsel has placed heavy reliance on the following extract of the Government Order dated 19.12.2000, which is reproduced below:

यह समिति निम्नलिखित प्रकरणों पर विचार करेगी:-

- 1- प्रबन्धकों के हस्ताक्षर प्रमाणित करना।*
- 2- वेतन वितरण अधिनियम के अन्तर्गत साधिकार नियंत्रक की नियुक्ति।*
- 3- समस्त प्रकार के प्रबन्धकीय विवाद*
- 4- शिक्षकों के वरिष्ठता संबंधी विवाद*
- 5- वेतन अनुमन्यता से संबंधित समरूप प्रकरण न्यायालयीय प्रकरणों को छोड़कर।*

यह समिति उक्त प्रकरणों का परीक्षण करने के उपरान्त अपनी संस्तुति उस अधिकारी को प्रस्तुत करेगी, जो अधिनियमों के अन्तर्गत इन कार्यों को करने के लिए अधिकृत है। इस समिति की माह में दो बार नियमित रूप से बैठकें आयोजित होंगी। न्यायालयीय प्रकरणों पर उक्त समिति अपनी संस्तुति शिक्षा निदेशक को प्रेषित करेगी जिनकी आख्या एवं संस्तुति प्राप्त होने पर शासन द्वारा कार्यवाही हेतु निर्देश दिया जायेगा।”

19. He has submitted that the Government Order dated 19.12.2000 has been issued in aid to Section 16A-(7) of the Act, 1921; and placing heavy reliance on the aforementioned extract of the Government Order dated 19.12.2000, he has submitted that the necessity for issuance of the Government Order dated 19.12.2000, arose on account of the fact, that the Government was continuously receiving complaints, with respect to the Prescribed Authorities/Competent Authorities under the □Intermediate Act, 1921□ and □U.P. High School and Intermediate Colleges (Payment of Salary of Teachers and other Employees) Act, 1971□; who were allegedly misusing their powers and therefore with an object to de-centralize the powers of the prescribed authorities, the Regional Level Committee was constituted, under the Chairmanship of the □Regional Joint Director of Education□, in which □Regional Deputy Director of Education□ and the □District Inspector of Schools□ of the concerned district, shall be the Members.

20. He has further submitted that in spite of the fact that the powers/functions of different authorities, were provided under the aforementioned enactments, the following functions were assigned to the Regional Level Committee:-

(a) Attesting the signatures of the Manager (which is otherwise the function/power of the District Inspector of Schools)

(b) Appointment of Authorized Controller (which is otherwise the function/power of the Joint Director of Education)

(c) All Management related disputes (which is otherwise the function/power of the Joint Director of Education,

(d) Seniority disputes of the teachers (which is to be determined by the Manager and against the same the appeal lies before the Joint Director of Education)

(e) Salary Approvals, except court cases

21. He has further submitted, to buttress his argument, that though different prescribed authorities, were nominated for the exercise of powers with respect to the aforementioned domains, which is now to be exercised by the Regional Level Committee; but in spite of the same, the Government has issued the Government Order in purported exercise of Article 162 of the Constitution of India with an object to bring transparency and decentralize the decision making process, bringing efficiency; and in case any one Member of the Regional Level Committee, does not participate in the proceedings, the order is liable to be vitiated, since the very objective to decentralize the powers and to bring in more transparency, as well as, accountability, shall be defeated.

22. He has further argued that the plain reading of the Government Order, clearly spells out the objective and the necessity of complete quorum, and nothing can be read into the said Government Order; and as such the Committee can only function with the presence of all the three Members, but for a situation, there is an impossibility, to complete the quorum.

23. Per contra, Shri Kartikeya Saran, learned Additional Advocate General has submitted that though it is not disputed that the Joint Director of Education, Vindhyachal Mandal, Mirzapur was acting in a dual capacity of Deputy Director of Education (Intermediate), Vindhyaachal Mandal, Mirzapur as well; but merely on account of non-availability of the Deputy Director of Education, the impugned order dated 08.08.2025 cannot be said to be vitiated. He has laid stress on the fact that the Government Order dated 19.12.2000, itself requires that the Regional Level Committee shall meet at least twice within a month and the said contemplation is evident of the fact, that the disputes which are to be decided and within the domain of the Regional Level Committee, by virtue of the Government Order dated 19.12.2000, are itself of urgent nature; and out of 18 regions in the State of U.P., there are more than 8 regions, where one of the three Members are not available; and as such considering the urgency to the resolution of the disputes of the Committee of Management, as enumerated in the Government Order itself, it is of paramount importance that the Regional Level Committee, continues to function, unless there is an alternative available; and hence he submits that the Doctrine of Necessity is attracted in the present case.

24. He has further submitted that though the object for issuing the Government Order, in question, apart from increasing efficiency in the administration of Educational Institution, was also distribution of the work, by referring certain issues to the Regional Level Committee; but in absence of any allegations of mala fides or by not raising any objections, regarding the incompetence of the Regional Level Committee, on account of non-compliance of the quorum and the decision having been taken unanimously, there has been a substantial compliance. He submits that it is trite law that the Government Order cannot override a statute, however since there is no mandatory stipulation as regard the requirement of a quorum in Section 16A(7) of the Act, 1921, the composition of the Committee is not mandatory but directory.

25. He has relied upon the decision of the Constitution Bench in State of U.P. and others vs. Babu Ram Upadhyay³, to submit that where the statute does not provide for a contingency of the non-compliance with the provision, the provision shall always be directory; but the Court may ascertain the real intention of the legislature, by examining entire scheme of the Act. For ready reference para-29 of Babu Ram Upadhyay (supra) is reproduced below :

“29. The relevant rules of interpretation may be briefly stated thus: When a statute uses the word "shall", prima facie, it is mandatory, but the Court may ascertain the real intention of the legislature by carefully attending to the whole scope of the statute. For ascertaining the real intention of the Legislature the Court may consider, inter alia, the nature and the design of the statute, and the consequences which would follow from construing it the one way or the other, the impact of other provisions whereby the necessity of complying with the provisions in question is avoided, the circumstance, namely, that the statute provides for a contingency of the non-compliance with the provisions, the fact that the non-compliance with the provisions is or is not visited by some penalty, the serious or trivial consequences that flow therefrom, and, above all, whether the object of the legislation will be defeated or furthered.

26. He further relies upon the decision in the case of Deepak Yadav vs. State of U.P. and others⁴, to submit that where the Government Order also do not prescribe the consequence of non-compliance, the same shall only be directory and not mandatory. For ready reference para-34 of the Deepak Yadav (supra) is reproduced below:

“34. The provisions of Government Orders dated 9th May, 1997 and 1st August, 1997 are only to ensure that a public servant is not harassed and is not faced with baseless and false allegations. It is not the mandate of the said Government Orders that no preliminary inquiry can proceed unless and until the complaint is given on affidavit. It is only a measure as to filter baseless and motivated complaints and to provide guidelines to the authorities to see that a person making complaint is serious about his complaint and there is substantial material in the same and is not made with oblique motive without having any basis. The said Government Orders also do not prescribe the consequences of non compliance and therefore, this Court is of the considered view that the said Government Orders are, only 'guidelines' and are directory and not mandatory. [...]

27. Therefore, insisting upon the strict compliance with the composition of the Committee, as prescribed in the Government Order, will only be a futility and an empty formality, which will militate against the object of the Government Order, i.e. to introduce fairness and efficiency in the resolution of disputes, pertains to the administration and management of the Institution.

28. He has relied upon a decision of a Constitution Bench in CCE vs. Hari Chandra Shri Gopal⁵, to submit that applying the □Doctrine of substantial compliance□, the question whether the requirements relate to the □substances□ or □essence□ of the statute is to be seen and if the strict adherence to those requirement is a pre-condition. For ready reference para-24 of Hari Chandra Shri Gopal (supra) is reproduced below:

“34. The test for determining the applicability of the substantial compliance doctrine has been the subject of a myriad of cases and quite often, the critical question to be examined is whether the requirements relate to the "substance" or "essence" of the statute, if so, strict adherence to those requirements is a precondition to give effect to that doctrine. On the other hand, if the requirements are procedural or directory in that they are not of the "essence" of the thing to be done but are given with a view to the orderly conduct of business, they may be fulfilled by substantial, if not strict compliance. In other words, a mere attempted compliance may not be sufficient, but actual compliance with those factors which are considered as essential”

29. He lastly submits that the Government Order dated 19.12.2000 is silent on the issue, as to what recourse is to be taken in case any one of the Members of the three Member Committee is indispensable.

30. Per contra, Sri Prabhakar Awasthi, learned Senior Counsel appearing for the petitioner has submitted that the □Doctrine of necessity□ can only be invoked when there is an □impossibility□ in meeting out the contingencies of completion of the quorum; while the remaining two Members of the Committee of Management had an option to seek guidance from the Government, and by way of nomination of a member from the neighboring region, till the time regular appointment is made to the said post and the concerned Member by its designation is available, the Government could have made a "stop gap" arrangement; and as such the "doctrine of necessity" is not attracted in the present case, since a plausible re-course was available, to the chairman of the RLC, to meet the mandate of the G.O. dated 19.12.2000, which holds the field.

31. As far as, the "Doctrine of Silence" being referred is concerned, it is linked to the "living tree doctrine" i.e. to fill the gaps to meet out the contingencies which may arise due to "silence" in the enactment or the Government Order; and the purpose is to keep the provision of law relevant and effective, by allowing the Courts to fill gaps where the enactment does not explicitly provide for a situation. However, the interpretation must be objective, based on constitutional principles rather than subjective judicial satisfactions.

32. Learned counsel for the petitioner has also relied upon a decision of the coordinate Bench of this Court dated 04.04.2025 in Committee of Management Shri D.C. Vedic Inter College and another vs. State of U.P. and others⁶ to submit that in an identical circumstances, where the quorum of the "Regional Level Committee" was incomplete, direction was issued to the District Inspector of Schools, to remit the records to the Regional Level Committee, who shall decide the dispute of the parties, with complete quorum. He has also submitted that the issue of prejudice was also raised in the aforesaid decision but the same was rejected and the matter was remitted back, since the constitution of the "Regional Level Committee" was not proper, inasmuch as instead of three Members, only two Members heard the matter.

33. He has also relied upon a decision of this Court dated 08.10.2025 in Committee of Management Kakori Shaheed Inter College and another vs. State of U.P. and others⁷ wherein, also the issue as to whether one of the Member could act in dual capacity, to complete the quorum on the ground of necessity arose but however keeping the said issue open, the writ petition was disposed of with a direction that a fresh decision shall be taken by the Regional Level Committee, comprising of all the three Members.

34. In order to meet the aforesaid arguments, Shri Kartikeya Saran, learned Additional Advocate General has placed reliance on the judgment of the Apex Court in the case of Election Commission of India and another vs. Dr. Subramaniam Swamy and another⁸ specifically on paras-15, 16 and 17, which is being reproduced hereinbelow:

"15. The next question then is if the Chief Election Commissioner, for reason of possible bias, is disqualified from expressing an opinion, how should the Election Commission conduct itself? As pointed out earlier Shri Sanghi, the learned counsel for the appellant, has very frankly and with his usual fairness stated that the Chief Election Commissioner preferred this appeal only because he genuinely believed that the scheme of Article 324 did not conceive of a decision by majority, but if the Court comes to the conclusion that a decision can be reached without the Chief Election Commissioner participating in decision-making in the special circumstances of the case, the latter is not at all keen or anxious to hear and adjudicate upon the matter at issue before the Election Commission. We are quite conscious of the high office the Chief Election Commissioner occupies. Ordinarily we would be loath to uphold the submission of bias but having regard to the wide ramification the opinion of the Election Commissioner would have on the future of Ms J. Jayalalitha, we think that the opinion, whatever it be, should not be vulnerable. The participation of the Chief Election Commissioner in the backdrop of the findings recorded by the learned Single Judge as well as the Division Bench of the High Court would certainly permit an argument of prejudice, should the opinion be adverse to Ms J. Jayalalitha. Therefore, apart from the legal aspect, even prudence demands that the Chief Election Commissioner should recuse himself from expressing any opinion in the matter. However, the situation is not so simple, it is indeed complex, in that, what would happen if the two Election Commissioners do not agree and there is a conflict of opinion between them? That would lead to a stalemate situation and the Governor would find it difficult to take a decision based on any such opinion. In such a situation, can the doctrine of necessity be invoked in favour of the Chief Election Commissioner?

16. We must have a clear conception of the doctrine. It is well settled that the law permits certain things to be done as a matter of necessity which it would otherwise not countenance on the touchstone of judicial propriety. Stated differently, the doctrine of necessity makes it imperative for the authority to decide and considerations of judicial propriety must yield. It is often invoked in cases of bias where there is no other authority or Judge to decide the issue. If the doctrine of necessity is not allowed full play in certain unavoidable situations, it would impede the course of justice itself and the defaulting party would benefit therefrom. Take the case of a certain taxing statute which taxes certain perquisites allowed to Judges. If the validity of such a provision is challenged who but the members of the judiciary must decide it. If all the Judges are disqualified on the plea that striking down of such a legislation would benefit them, a stalemate situation may develop. In such cases the doctrine of necessity comes into play. If the choice is between allowing a biased person to act or to stifle the action altogether, the choice must fall in favour of the former as it is the only way to promote decision-making. In the present case also if the two Election Commissioners are able to reach a unanimous decision, there is no need for the Chief Election Commissioner to participate, if not the doctrine of necessity may have to be invoked.

17. We think that is the only alternative in such a situation. We are, therefore, of the opinion that the proper course to follow is that the Chief Election Commissioner should call a meeting of the Election Commission to adjudicate on the issue of disqualification of Ms J. Jayalalitha on the grounds alleged by Dr Swamy. After calling the meeting he should act as the Chairman but then he may recuse himself by announcing that he would not participate in the formation of opinion. If the two Election Commissioners reach a unanimous opinion, the Chief Election Commissioner will have the opinion communicated to the Governor. If the two Election Commissioners do not reach a unanimous decision in the matter of expressing their opinion on the issue referred to the Election Commission, it would be necessary for the Chief Election Commissioner to express his opinion on the doctrine of necessity. We think that in the special circumstances of this case this course of action would be the most appropriate one to follow because if the two Election Commissioners do not agree, we have no doubt that the doctrine of necessity would compel the Chief Election Commissioner to express his views so that the majority opinion could be communicated to the Governor to enable him to take a decision in accordance therewith as required by Article 192(1) of the Constitution. "

35. He has contended that in the aforesaid decision, the Apex Court was seized with an issue regarding the participation of the Chief Election Commissioner as a Member/Chairman of the Committee, in the background of the findings of the learned Single Judge, as well as, the Division Bench, to the effect that his participation may cause prejudice and may be adverse to Ms. J. Lalita; but in spite of the aforesaid, the Apex Court had opined that the proper course to be followed is that the Chief Election Commissioner, should call the meeting of the Election Commission, to adjudicate the issue of disqualification of Ms. J. Lalita; and after calling upon the meeting he may recuse himself and in case if the two Election Commissioners do not reach a unanimous decision in the matter of expressing their opinion, invoking the doctrine of necessity, the Chief Election Commissioner may also express his opinion.

36. Learned Additional Advocate General has also placed reliance on the ratio of the case in Smt. Kamla Devi vs. State of U.P. and others⁹ to rely upon paras-15, 16, 17 and 18, which is reproduced below:

"15. In accordance with the provisions of Adhiniyam 1961, elected members of Zila Panchayat shall constitute an electoral college to participate and cast their vote in the meeting called to consider the Motion of No Confidence in Pramukh or Up-Pramukh of Kshettra panchayat. There is no dispute between the parties on the fact that all the members, who participated in the meeting of No Confidence were elected members of Zila Panchayat. The only point of issue between them is that 11 members, details of whom, have been set out in paragraph 14 of the writ petition, who had undisputedly not subscribed to the oath or affirmation and participated and voted of the meeting of No Confidence, could have done so and their participation and voting was invalid, on account of their having not subscribed to oath or affirmation.

16. The provisions of Adhiniyam 1961 do not contain any provision with respect to any oath or affirmation by any of the elected member of Kshettra panchayat. Since no such provision exists in the Adhiniyam, there is also no consequence provided for not subscribing or affirmation to oath. The provisions for subscribing to oath or affirmation by a Pramukh or elected member of Kshettra panchayat was introduced for the first time by the Uttar Pradesh Kshettra Panchayats and Zila Panchayats (Oath of Office of Adhyaksha or Pramukh Etc.) Rules 1994 framed in exercise of powers conferred by Uttar Pradesh (Kshettra Panchayats and Zila Panchayats) Adhiniyam, 1961. The relevant provision of the Rules pertaining to oath or affirmation, in case of elected member of Zila Panchayat is contained in Rule 3 (3), which is as under.

"3- Manner of taking oath or affirmation.

(3) The members of Zila Panchayat and Kshettra Panchayat before taking their seats for the first time as such members shall make or subscribe oath or affirmation, in the case of member of Zila Panchayat before the Adhyaksha and in his absence before the Mukhya Adhikari and in the case of members of the Kshettra Panchayat before the Pramukh and in his absence before the Khand Vikas Adhikari, in the form set out in the Appendix."

17. The 1994 Rules does not provide for any consequence of not taking oath or affirmation by a member. The Adhiniyam of 1961 also neither prescribes any provision for any oath to be taken or the affirmation to be made nor it prescribes any consequence for such an omission.

18. In the absence of any provision in the Adhiniyam of 1961 or the Rules prescribing any consequence for omission to subscribe to oath or affirmation, it cannot be held that such a member ipso facto loses his membership or in any manner becomes disqualified to either participate or vote in the meeting of No Confidence. His status, despite having failed to subscribe to oath or affirmation, continues to be that of an elected member and he continues to be a member of the electoral college. Participation of such member would neither render the meeting of No Confidence illegal nor vote cast by such member/members is liable to be excluded."

Conclusion

37. In the humble opinion of this Court, facts on which the □doctrine of necessity□ was invoked in the case of Election Commission of India (supra), was on account of the fact that there was only one "Chief Election Commissioner" and there was no other authority, who could have stepped in his shoes; and he was also to act upon as a Chairman of the Committee, and in the contingency, there was no unanimous decision, there was no other option but to seek his opinion also, to break the tie; and therefore the invocation of □doctrine of necessity□ was imperative.

38. As far as the ratio of the case in Smt. Kamla Devi (supra) is concerned, wherein, in the proceedings of no-confidence motion, in which there was provision under the U.P. Kshetra Panchayat and Zila Panchayat Adhiniyam, 1961, that the elected Member of the Zila Panchayat shall constitute an electoral college to participate and cast their vote, in a meeting in pursuance of a no-confidence motion, the Court was confronted with a question that, whether an elected Member of the Zila Panchayat can cast his vote, without subscribing to the oath or affirmation in view of the provisions of U.P. Kshettra Panchayats and Zila Panchayats (Oath of Office of Adhyaksh or Pramukh etc) Rules, 1994.

39. The Division Bench of this Court had opined that since there was no provision in the Rules, 1994 which provides for the consequence, for not subscribing or affirmation to oath and the requirement under the Adhiniyam, 1961 also did not prescribe any provision for any oath to be taken or affirmation to be made and as such the omission in the said enactments, towards the consequence, would be construed to the effect that an elected Member, who is a Member of the electoral college, can participate in the meeting, in pursuance of a no confidence motion.

40. In the facts of the present case though in the Government Order dated 19.12.2000, no consequence is provided, in case the quorum is not complete; but looking at the objective and the necessity which arose before the State Government, for the issuance of the Government Order dated 19.12.2000 i.e. to de-centralize the powers from a single authority, by constituting a RLC, which was required to look into the various issues; and would include the Joint Director of Education, the Deputy Director of Education and the District Inspector of Schools of the district arose. The same is indicative of the fact, that the powers has to be divested from the single authority, to be exercised by a three Member Committee.

41. The role of the Joint Director of Education as a Chairman of the Committee, along with the Regional Deputy Director of Education and the concerned District Inspector of Schools of the district, cannot be merged or else, the very objective of the Government Order dated 19.12.2000 would fail and as such the ratio of the judgment of Kamla Devi (supra) also cannot come to the rescue of the State, as it was on a different set of facts, not applicable in the facts of the present case.

42. At this stage, I think it appropriate to refer to the judgment in the case of State of Andhra Pradesh and another vs. Dr. Mohanjit Singh and others¹⁰; wherein, a Government Order dated 21.09.1976 was under consideration, which provides for a Selection Committee, consisting of two representative of the Management, two Professors or Readers representing the University and a representative of the Director of Education. A situation arose, that in the meeting for selection, the representative of Director Higher Education was not present, though two representative of the Management and that of the University participated; however the absent Members subsequently agreed with the selection.

43. In the aforesaid circumstances, the Apex Court considered the objective of the Government Order, concluding that the government order made it clear that the Selection Committee is intended to function as a body; and in case all the Members are present at the selection there would have been a scope for exchange of views, when the candidates appeared and the selection would have been in terms of the scheme; but in absence of the quorum, the Selection Committee cannot function, as per the scheme envisaged by the government order.

44. I may also refer to a decision rendered by the High Court of Chhattisgarh at Bilaspur in Writ Appeal No.31 of 2022 decided on 01.08.2023 (Arshad Ahmad vs. State of Chhattisgarh and others), wherein the constitution of a Permanent Lok Adalat was under consideration and the object of there being a non-judicial member, in tribunal like Permanent Lok Adalat was being considered. In the said background, the concept of dissent or dissenting view was considered, to hold a sacramental place in a judicial process.

45. In the words of William Brennan, “dissent” contribute to the integrity of the (Judicial) process not only by directing attention to perceived difficulties with the majority’s opinion but also by contributing to the market place of competing ideas: which means that when a composite body, having full quorum is contemplated under the scheme, the entire concept recognizes adjudication by the three Member Tribunal and the object of the government order, in question, clearly perceives the two authorities, who are otherwise also provided under their respective statute to determine the issues: but apart from the said two authorities another authority to be the Regional Deputy Director of Education, was contemplated as a member of the three Member Committee constituting the Regional Level Committee; and accordingly unless all the three Members are present but for any unavoidable reasons leading to an impossible situation, to fulfill the quorum; and he becomes irreplaceable, till then, it is imperative that all the three Members participate in the meeting and discharge their duties; since the concept of "dissent", hold a sacramental place in the judicial process.

46. The judgment of the 3 Judges Bench of the Apex Court in Election Commission of India (supra) was referred with affirmation recently in the case of X vs. O/O Speaker of the House of People and others¹¹ to which we now gainfully refer to. It is also noteworthy that the judgment in the case of X (supra) also refers to a quote, from the preface of the celebrated work of Michael Foley's in "Silence of Constitution", which is reproduced below:

"Abeyances refer to those constitutional gaps which remain vacuous for positive and constructive purposes. They are not, in any sense, truces between two or more defined positions, but rather a set of implicit agreements to collude in keeping fundamental questions of political authority in a state of irresolution. Abeyances are, in effect, compulsive hedges against the possibility of that which is unresolved being exploited and given meanings almost guaranteed to generate profound division and disillusionment. Abeyances are important, therefore, because of their capacity to deter the formation of conflicting positions in just those areas where the potential for conflict is most acute. So central are these abeyances, together with the social temperament required to sustain them, that when they become the subject of heightened interest and subsequent conflict, they are not merely accompanied by an intense constitutional crisis, they are themselves the essence of that crisis."

In Part II, Chapter Four, the author has also dealt with the constitutional gaps and the arts of prerogative. To the extent relevant, it reads as follows (p. 82):

"Gaps in a constitution should not be seen as simply empty space. They amount to a substantial plenum of strategic content and meaning vital to the preservation of a constitution. Such interstices accommodate the abeyances within which the sleeping giants of potentially acute political conflict are communally maintained in slumber. Despite the absence of any documentary or material form, these abeyances are real, and are an integral part of any constitution. What remains unwritten and indeterminate can be just as much responsible for the operational character and restraining quality of a constitution as its more tangible and codified components."

47. In the facts of the present case, an inescapable conclusion is to the effect that though the "doctrine of silence" can be read into a statute or the Government Order in this case, to fill up certain gaps but the Court has to be conscious to the objectives of the said enactment or the policy; and in case anything has to be read into i.e. the words which are not there, there has to be a dominating necessity or it would lead to violence to the said statute; as such nothing is to be added to or taken from the statute. There seems to be a silence in the Government Order, on the question, when it comes to a contingency, where one of the Member is not available but in the said circumstances it also cannot be construed that the remaining members or one of the Members, while acting in a dual capacity can undertake on to themselves, the role of the third member. Presence of every member, by its designated post, envisages a meaningful discussion and an opinion, in which case, there is a possibility to sway the opinion of other members; and more so over, the "dissenting opinion" may reflect the integrity and transparency, in the decision making process. The mere fact that the two members, gave a unanimous decision, cannot overcome the lacuna, of non-fulfillment of the quorum; but for a situation, leading to "impossibility" to do so.

48. The argument of the respondents that since the decision was a unanimous decision and even if the third Member was present, it would have not made any difference to the ultimate conclusion; also cannot be accepted because when a proceeding encapsulates the presence of a third Member by virtue of its position/post, the expertise which it may bring to the proceedings, cannot be ignored or taken over by any other Member of the Committee; as such unless situation arises where there is an impossibility of a substitution or nomination, the "doctrine of necessity" cannot be invoked, as already stated herein above.

49. The Committee could have easily sought for a guidance from the Government, who could have nominated a "Deputy Director of Education" of a neighboring region, to fill in the gap, so that the objective of the Government Order for adjudication by a three Member Committee, could have been achieved and without any violence to the policy decision, itself. Even if it is a unanimous decision, the value of the "dissent" cannot be undermined, as the presence and participation of each member is a mandate, which contribute to the integrity of the process; and any interpretation to the contrary would only do violence, to the objective of the Government Order.

50. In the last leg of argument though the learned Additional Advocate General has placed reliance on the judgment of Apex Court in the case of State of U.P. and others vs. Sudhir Kumar Singh and others¹² relying on para-42.3 and 42.5 to contend that no prejudice has been alleged by the petitioner by the decision but he has fairly submitted that the said ratio is in context to the principles of natural justice. For ready reference para-42.3. and 42.5 is reproduced below:

" 42.3. No prejudice is caused to the person complaining of the breach of natural justice where such person does not dispute the case against him or it. This can happen by reason of estoppel, acquiescence, waiver and by way of non-challenge or non-denial or admission of facts, in cases in which the Court finds on facts that no real prejudice can therefore be said to have been caused to the person complaining of the breach of natural justice.

42.5. The "prejudice" exception must be more than a mere apprehension or even a reasonable suspicion of a litigant. It should exist as a matter of fact, or be based upon a definite inference of likelihood of prejudice flowing from the non-observance of natural justice."

51. Now we refer to the ratio in the judgment of Babu Ram Upadhyay (supra) as relied upon by the respondents to submit that the composition as envisaged under the Government Order dated 19.12.2000, is only "directory" and not "mandatory" in nature. It is not res integra that the usage of the word "shall" can also be construed to mean "may"; but however, as inferred by the Apex Court in the case of Babu Ram Upadhyay (supra) itself, for ascertaining the real intention of the legislature, the Court may consider, inter alia, the nature and design of the statute.

52. Accordingly, the argument of the learned Additional Advocate General, though at the first instance seems to be attractive that where the statute does not provide for a contingency of a penalty, of non-compliance with the provision, the said provision has to be interpreted as □directory□ and not □mandatory□ in nature; but however, this Court cannot loose sight of the fact that the very necessity for bringing out the Government Order dated 19.12.2000, was on account of the fact that the decision which were being taken with respect to the subject matter of the Government Orders, by the concerned authorities as envisaged under the □Intermediate Act, 1921□ and □U.P. High Schools and Intermediate Colleges (Payment of Salary of Teachers and other Employees) Act, 1971□ was marred by instances of mala fides and colourable exercise of power; and therefore, with an object to de-centralize the powers, atleast with respect to crucial issues, which are fundamental to the running of an Institution or a college, a three Member □Regional Level Committee□ was created and the same also found approval from the various decisions of this Court, as well as, the Apex Court; and accordingly in case any necessity which may reduce the quorum of the Regional Level Committee, will be detrimental and a death blow, to the very object of the Government Order dated 19.12.2000.

53. The situation would have been different, if there is some technical difficulty in replacing any one of the three Regional Level Officer by the government, as was in the case of Election Commission of India (supra); but as fairly admitted by the learned Additional Advocate General that in case of a contingency, where one of three Members of the □Regional Level Committee□ is not available, it is always open for the government to make a nomination from a neighbouring region, as a □stop gap□ arrangement, to carry on the functioning of the Regional Level Committee; and even otherwise the recourse to Article 226 of the Constitution of India, seeking nomination from the government in certain circumstances, is also open.

54. I may also refer to the argument of the learned counsel for the petitioner that the Act, 1921 authorizes the □Joint Director of Education□ to look into the managerial disputes and the Act, 1971 authorizes the □District Inspector of Schools□; however the introduction of the □Deputy Director of Education□ in the □Regional Level Committee□, who is the only neutral Member and otherwise not vested with any functions; and as such his absence from the quorum of the Regional Level Committee, would do highest violence to the Government Order dated 19.12.2000.

55. The learned Additional Advocate General has submitted in response that admittedly, the □Joint Director of Education□ was having the charge of the □Deputy Director of Education□ and Joint Director of Education had issued notices on 30.01.2025 fixing 06.02.2025; whereafter though some hearings took place before the □Regional Level Committee□ with complete quorum, but subsequently on account of the transfer of the □Deputy Director of Education□ on 06.03.2025, the □Joint Director of Education□ was given the additional charge of □Deputy Director of Education□ and thereafter substantial hearing was done before the aforesaid two Members, of which the □Joint Director of Education□ was holding the dual charge of □Deputy Director of Education□; and no objection regarding the constitution of the Committee was made in the proceedings (though the same has been seriously disputed by learned counsel for the petitioner); however the said issue becomes inconsequential since the question of prejudice in that sense, is not an issue before this Court, simply for the reason, the shortage in quorum, itself does violence to the objective of the constitution of the Regional Level Committee and the opinion of □dissent□ which may influence the decision of the other two members, cannot be discarded, there being no situation of impossibility, to get a substitution, by nomination.

56. Shri R.K. Ojha, learned Senior Counsel appearing for the private respondents has submitted that since the constitution of the Regional Level Committee, is region specific, and in case the Regional Deputy Director of Education is not available, and the scheme does not contemplate transfer of the cases to any other region and the consequence of non-fulfillment of the quorum has also not been provided, there exist a situation of impossibility for fulfilling the quorum. He has further submitted that there is no power with the government to make any nomination as well; but he has fairly submitted that the remedy of Article 226 of the Constitution of India, is nevertheless available and the affected party could approach this Court seeking a nomination from the government, or for transfer of the case to a neighbouring region. He has fairly stated that the said contingency has to be addressed by the government but till such time, it is addressed, the doctrine of necessity may be invoked and in case government has given a dual charge to one individual, who participates in the proceedings of the Regional Level Committee, the same, cannot be invalidated. He has also submitted that the Government Order has not been issued merely in aid of Section 16A-7 of the Act, 1921 but other matters e.g. question of seniority etc. are the domain of the Regional Level Committee.

57. As far as, the first contention of Shri R.K. Ojha, learned Senior Counsel, to the effect that since the constitution of Regional Level Committee is region specific and if any Regional Member of the said Committee is not available, the case cannot be transferred to any other region or in absence of any other procedure, being provided in the Government Order dated 19.12.2000, there will be stalemate; this Court finds that the government is not bereft of its power to either transfer the adjudication to a neighbouring Regional Level Committee or to nominate an authority by way of a stop gap arrangement, to continue the proceedings before the Regional Level Committee. In case, any alternate or a procedure to address the issue is not provided under the government order; and there is a duty casted upon the Regional Level Committee, it could have easily sought for a guidance from the government or the parties seeking an adjudication before the Regional Level Committee, is also not remedy-less, for they could approach this Court under Article 226 of the Constitution of India, in a given case.

58. It is also pertinent to observe here, that merely because a majority opinion has been arrived at, also cannot be a basis, for holding a decision as valid, since the Doctrine of Dissent as considered herein above clearly postulates, the role of the third member, in the discussion and expression of his opinion, which may affect the decision making or opinion of other members, thereby changing the opinion of the majority in his favour; and in the said circumstances, it is held that the 3rd member's presence cannot be discarded and every effort is to be made, to achieve the object of the Government Order, unless there is a circumstance, of impossibility, where the Doctrine of necessity, will be applicable.

59. Another reason can be, in case a Regional Joint Director of Education is holding the charge of Regional Deputy Director of Education, it can also be said that, one individual alone, will form the majority, which will alone do violence to the objective of the Government Order dated 19.12.2000, which is to decentralize the power and bring transparency, also strengthening the integrity of the process.

Relief

60. In view of the aforesaid, I find that the impugned order dated 08.08.2025 cannot be sustained and is accordingly set aside, with the following directions:-

(i) The Joint Director of Education, Vindhyachal Mandal, Mirzapur, is directed to seek a nomination from the government within a period of two weeks from the date of receipt of the certified copy of this order, in case, till date no □Deputy Director of Education□ has taken charge.

(ii) Respondent no.1 on receipt of such a request, shall proceed to nominate Regional Deputy Director of Education, from a neighbouring region as an adhoc Member of the Regional Level Committee, Vindhyachal Mandal, Mirzapur.

(iii) On the constitution of the Regional Level Committee, Vindhyachal Mandal, Mirzapur as per the Government Order dated 19.12.2000, the Committee shall proceed to decide the issue within a period of three weeks from the date of aforementioned nomination, after adhering to the principles of natural justice and notice to all the parties concerned.

(iv) Respondent no.1 is directed to issue a circular to all the Regional Level Committees, constituted under the Government Order dated 19.12.2000, prescribing a procedure or a standard operating procedure (SOP), indicating the procedure to be followed by all the Regional Level Committees in the State of Uttar Pradesh, in case any one of the Members as contemplated under the Government Order dated 19.12.2000, is not available and ensure strict compliance of the same, keeping in mind, the observations and law discussed, herein above.

61. Registrar (Compliance) is directed to send a copy of this order to the respondent no.1- Principal Secretary, Ministry of Secondary Education, U.P. at Lucknow for necessary compliance; and issuance of directives/standard operating procedure, to be followed by □Regional Level Committees□ in the aforesaid contingencies.

62. Before parting with the judgment, a special mention of Ms. Pratibha Verma (Research Associate), attached with my chamber is to be made, as she was instrumental in providing research and deserves appreciation by the Court for the same.

63. With the aforesaid observations/directions, the writ petition stands allowed. However, no order as to costs.

Writ C No. 8895 of 2026

The Micro Small & Medium Enterprises & Anr. ...Respondents

ISSUE FOR CONSIDERATION

Matter pertains to whether an arbitral award passed by the Micro, Small and Medium Enterprises Facilitation Council under Section 18 of the Micro, Small and Medium Enterprises Development Act, 2006 can be challenged in writ jurisdiction under Article 226 on the grounds of absence of proper service and claim being barred by limitation despite availability of statutory remedy under Section 34 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996.

HEADNOTE

Constitution of India, Art.226 – Micro, Small and Medium Enterprises Development Act, 2006, s.18 – Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996, s.34 – MSME Council passed award against petitioner – Petitioner challenged the award in writ jurisdiction on the ground that the award was passed without due service upon him and that the claim was barred by limitation as the last supply was made on 18.02.2017 whereas the reference was filed on 03.09.2020 – Maintainability of writ petition in view of availability of statutory remedy under Section 34 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996.

Held: Proceedings under Section 18 of the 2006 Act culminate in an arbitral award and the statute itself provides a remedy under Section 34 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 – A party cannot bypass the statutory remedy and invoke writ jurisdiction to challenge such an award, particularly so as to avoid compliance with the requirement of pre-deposit under Section 19 of the 2006 Act – Court held that interference under Articles 226 and 227 in arbitral matters is extremely limited and can be exercised only in cases of patent perversity or exceptional circumstances – Court held that not every plea styled as one of “jurisdiction” can be entertained in writ jurisdiction – Where adjudication requires appreciation of evidence and determination of disputed questions of fact, such issues are required to be examined by the forum competent under the statute – Court held that where disputed questions of fact arise and an alternative remedy is available, the High Court should ordinarily decline to exercise writ jurisdiction.

Petitioner challenged the arbitral award on two grounds, namely, absence of proper service before the MSME Council and the claim being barred by limitation – Court held both these issues to be not pure questions of law but mixed questions of fact and law – Determination of proper service would require examination of mode of service, acknowledgment, addresses and related material, while plea of limitation would depend upon factual aspects such as date of supply, invoices, acknowledgments and course of dealings between parties – In the present case, Court did not find any manifest perversity – Issues raised required factual adjudication and did not fall within the narrow scope carved out by the Supreme Court – Whether a claim is barred by limitation depends upon factual determination and cannot be adjudicated in writ jurisdiction – Alleged improper service and ex parte proceedings are matters to be examined by the competent forum and do not render the award a nullity on the face of the record – Writ petition held not maintainable and dismissed – Petitioner left at liberty to avail such other statutory remedies as may be available in law. CASE ARISING FROM Award dated 15.07.2021 passed by the Micro, Small and Medium Enterprises Facilitation Council, Kanpur under Section 18 of the Micro, Small and Medium Enterprises Development Act, 2006 directing the petitioner to pay Rs.24,15,835/- including interest.

Appearances for Parties

Advs. for the Petitioner: Nitin Chandra, Sudekchhit Pandey

Advs. for the Respondents:

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs.Garima Prashad, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the petitioner.

2. The present writ petition has been filed challenging the award dated 15.07.2021 passed by the Micro, Small and Medium Enterprises Facilitation Council, Kanpur (hereinafter referred to as the "MSME Council") under Section 18 of the Micro, Small and Medium Enterprises Development Act, 2006 (hereinafter referred to as the "2006 Act"), whereby the petitioner has been directed to pay a sum of Rs. 9,62,610/- along with interest of Rs. 14,53,225/-, totaling to Rs. 24,15,835/-.

3. Learned counsel for the petitioner submits that the impugned award has been passed ex parte and without due service upon the petitioner. It is stated that the petitioner came to know of the award only in the third week of April, 2025. Thereafter, the petitioner approached the Executing Court. An application was filed seeking recall of the order dated 13.03.2023, whereby the execution proceedings were directed to proceed ex parte. It is further stated that objections to the execution proceedings were filed on 13.06.2025. The said applications are presently pending adjudication.

4. It is further submitted that despite the pendency of the recall application and objections, the Executing Court is proceeding ahead with the execution proceedings without deciding the said applications, compelling the petitioner to invoke the writ jurisdiction of this Court under Article 226 of the Constitution of India.

5. Learned counsel for the petitioner contends that the MSME Council lacked jurisdiction as the claim was barred by limitation, the last supply having been made on 18.02.2017 and the reference having been filed on 03.09.2020. It is further contended that the proceedings before the MSME Council were conducted in violation of principles of natural justice as no proper service was effected and the award has been passed ex parte without affording opportunity of hearing.

6. In support of the aforesaid submissions, learned counsel for the petitioner has placed reliance upon several decisions, which shall be dealt with hereinbelow, one by one. On the strength of the said authorities, it is sought to be contended that where arbitral proceedings suffer from a fundamental jurisdictional infirmity or are vitiated by violation of principles of natural justice, the High Court may, in appropriate cases, exercise its jurisdiction under Articles 226 and 227 of the Constitution of India.

7. We have considered the submissions advanced by learned counsel for the petitioner and perused the record.

8. The challenge raised by the petitioner essentially rests on two grounds, namely, absence of proper service before the MSME Council and the claim being barred by limitation. Both these issues are not pure questions of law but are mixed questions of fact and law. Determination of proper service would require examination of mode of service, acknowledgment, addresses and related material, while the plea of limitation would depend upon factual aspects such as date of supply, invoices, acknowledgments and course of dealings between the parties.

9. It is well settled that not every plea styled as one of "jurisdiction" can be entertained in writ jurisdiction. Where adjudication requires appreciation of evidence and determination of disputed questions of fact, such issues are required to be examined by the forum competent under the statute.

10. Proceedings under Section 18 of the 2006 Act culminate in an arbitral award and the statute itself provides a remedy under Section 34 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996. The Supreme Court in India Glycols Ltd. v. Micro and Small Enterprises Facilitation Council, (2018) 1 SCC 143 has categorically held that a party cannot bypass the statutory remedy and invoke writ jurisdiction to challenge such an award, particularly so as to avoid compliance of the requirement of pre-deposit under Section 19 of the 2006 Act.

11. The reliance placed upon Serosoft Solutions Pvt. Ltd. v. Dexter Capital Advisors Pvt. Ltd., 2025 SCC OnLine SC 26 is misplaced. The said judgment reiterates that interference under Articles 226 and 227 in arbitral matters is extremely limited and can be exercised only in cases of patent perversity or exceptional circumstances. In the present case, no such manifest perversity is demonstrated on the face of the record. The issues raised require factual adjudication and do not fall within the narrow scope carved out in Serosoft (supra).

12. Insofar as reliance upon Sonali Power Equipments Pvt. Ltd. v. Chairman, Maharashtra State Electricity Board, 2025 SCC OnLine SC 1467 is concerned, the said judgment merely lays down that the Limitation Act applies to arbitration proceedings under Section 18 of the 2006 Act by virtue of Section 43 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996. However, whether a claim is barred by limitation depends upon factual determination and cannot be adjudicated in writ jurisdiction. The said decision does not permit bypassing of the statutory remedy under Section 34.

13. The judgment in Jharkhand Urja Vikas Nigam Ltd. v. State of Rajasthan, (2021) 19 SCC 206 is clearly distinguishable. In the said case, the Supreme Court found that the MSME Council had failed to follow the mandatory statutory procedure and had not conducted arbitration in accordance with law, rendering the award a nullity. In the present case, no such foundational defect is apparent. The grievance raised pertains to alleged improper service and ex parte proceedings, which are matters to be examined by the competent forum and do not render the award a nullity on the face of the record.

14. In Tamil Nadu Cements Corp. Ltd. v. MSEFC, 2023 SCC OnLine Mad 4508, it has been observed that writ jurisdiction is not completely barred. However, the same judgment also reiterates that where disputed questions of fact arise and an alternative remedy is available, the High Court should ordinarily decline to exercise writ jurisdiction. The present case falls squarely within such a category.

15. The reliance upon Union Territory of Ladakh v. Jammu and Kashmir National Conference, 2023 (12) SCALE 389 to contend that in case of conflict of coordinate Bench decisions the earlier one must be followed, is of no assistance to the petitioner. There is no conflict requiring deviation from the law laid down in India Glycols (supra), which directly governs the issue involved.

16. The judgments in Lajja Ram v. Union Territory, Chandigarh, (2013) 11 SCC 235, Kalpraj Dharamshi v. Kotak Investment Advisors Ltd., (2021) 10 SCC 401 and State Bank of India v. Rajesh Agarwal, (2023) 6 SCC 1 arise in entirely different statutory contexts. While they reiterate general principles relating to natural justice, delay and fairness, they do not dilute the settled position that where a specific statutory remedy is available against an arbitral award, the writ jurisdiction ought not to be invoked except in exceptional circumstances.

17. Acceptance of the petitioner's submission would result in every arbitral award being subjected to writ scrutiny on allegations of procedural irregularity, thereby rendering the statutory mechanism under Section 34 redundant, which is impermissible in law.

18. In the present case, the petitioner has already approached the Executing Court and has filed applications raising the very issues now sought to be urged before this Court. The petitioner also has a statutory remedy available in law to challenge the award. No exceptional circumstance has been made out so as to warrant interference under Article 226 of the Constitution of India.

19. In view of the aforesaid, this Court is of the considered opinion that the writ petition is not maintainable.

20. Accordingly, the writ petition is dismissed.

21. It is, however, directed that any applications filed by the petitioner before the Executing Court shall be considered and decided expeditiously in accordance with law, without being influenced by any observation made herein.

22. It is further provided that the petitioner shall be at liberty to avail such other statutory remedies as may be available in law.

23. No order as to costs.

CASE ARISING FROM

Arbitration clause invoked by the respondent no.2 and moved an application under section 11 of the Act, 1963 for appointment of an arbitrator – Petitioner filed Section 16 application challenging jurisdiction on limitation grounds; rejected by Arbitral Tribunal.

APPEARANCE OF PARTIES

Counsel for Appellant(s): Shri Sri Tejas Singh, Sri Aakched Nath.
 Counsel for Respondent(s): Shri Ritesh Kumar Srivastava, Sri Alok Kumar Singh.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Shekhar B. Saraf, J.)

This is a writ petition under Article 226 of the Constitution of India for the issuance of a writ of certiorari seeking quashing of the order dated October 9, 2025, passed by a Sole arbitrator (hereinafter also referred to as the □Arbitral Tribunal/respondent no.3□) whereby the application filed by the petitioner under Section 16 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 (hereinafter referred to as the □Act□) seeking termination of arbitration proceedings was rejected by Arbitral Tribunal on the ground that once the High Court had appointed an arbitrator under the provisions of Section 11 of the Act, the Arbitral Tribunal had no jurisdiction to adjudicate on the limitation aspect for appointing such arbitrator. In furtherance, the petitioner prays for the issuance of a writ in the nature of certiorari terminating the entire arbitration proceedings pending before the Arbitral Tribunal.

FACTS

2. Factual matrix giving rise to this instant petition is delineated below:

a. The petitioner and Santosh Kumar Singh (hereinafter referred to as respondent no. 2) entered into a partnership deed dated September 13, 2013 to carry on business in the name of M/s. Arch Construction. Subsequently, an altercation arose between the petitioner and respondent no. 2 regarding payment in furtherance of work carried out for the Power Grid Corporation of India Limited. In this regard, the petitioner wrote a letter dated November 7, 2015, to ICICI bank informing it of the illegal operation of the account by the respondent no. 2, pursuant to which the aforesaid account in ICICI Bank bearing account no. 066605000653 was frozen by the bank.

b. The petitioner alleges that thereafter respondent no.2 opened another account in the name of Arch Construction in Union Bank of India, Narai Bandh Branch, Mau bearing account no. 4338010042423, by forging the signature of his father, petitioner and Ajay Singh (hereinafter referred to as respondent no.4). An application was also made before the Power Grid Corporation to release the payments for the work into the aforesaid account. The petitioner later discovered that the Power Grid Corporation of India Ltd. had made payment of the outstanding amounts into the accounts provided by respondent no.2.

c. Aggrieved by the aforesaid circumstances, the petitioner lodged an FIR No. 0620 of 2017 under Sections 406, 420, 467, 468, 471 and 506 of the Indian Penal Code, 1860 against respondent no.2. Subsequently, the Investigating Officer filed a charge-sheet against respondent no.2 under sections 420 and 406 of the Indian Penal Code, 1860 (corresponding to Section 318 and Section 316 of the Bharatiya Nyaya Sanhita, 2023 (BNS)). Pursuant thereto, respondent no.2 was arrested by the police.

d. Respondent no.2 had also issued security cheques of the due amounts to the petitioner, however, the same were dishonoured and as a result the petitioner filed a Complaint Case number 10531 of 2018 on December 17, 2018 before the Competent Court, Lucknow.

e. In the meantime, respondent no.2 sent a legal notice dated September 4, 2017 to the petitioner invoking arbitration clause to which the petitioner replied vide letter dated September 10, 2017 advising respondent no. 2 to approach the High Court seeking appointment of an arbitrator for settlement of disputes through arbitration.

f. In pursuance thereof, respondent no.2 filed an arbitration application under Section 11 of the Act on May 31, 2023 before the High Court for the appointment of an arbitrator in which this Court vide order dated December 7, 2023 has ex-parte proposed respondent no.3 as the sole arbitrator.

g. Aggrieved by order dated December 7, 2023, the petitioner filed a recall application before the High Court and on the date of hearing, the petitioner's counsel was unavailable, therefore, the High Court rejected the recall application vide order dated July 11, 2025.

h. Upon receiving the consent of respondent no.3, the High Court allowed the arbitration application vide order dated August 5, 2025 whereby respondent no.3 was appointed as the sole arbitrator and arbitration proceedings commenced. During the course of the arbitration, the petitioner was granted time to file preliminary objections with regard to the maintainability of the arbitration proceedings.

i. Accordingly, the petitioner filed an application under Section 16 of the Act challenging the jurisdiction on the ground of limitation in filing the application under Section 11 of the Act for appointment of an arbitrator which was disposed of vide impugned order dated October 9, 2025 by the Arbitral Tribunal. The Arbitral Tribunal came to the finding that he had no jurisdiction to decide the said issue of limitation since the High Court had referred the matter to arbitration and as such it was concluded that the High Court had already decided on the said issue of limitation.

j. Aggrieved by the aforesaid order passed by the respondent no.3 rejecting the application filed under Section 16 of the Act the petitioner has now approached this Court.

CONTENTIONS OF PETITIONER:

2. Sri Tejas Singh and Sri Aakched Nath appearing on behalf of petitioner have made the following submissions:

a. Since the appointment of an arbitrator under Section 11(6) of the Act by the High Court is not specifically barred by the Limitation Act, 1963 (hereinafter referred to as "Act, 1963") the residuary provision namely Article 137 to Schedule I of the Act, 1963 applies which bars the initiation of proceedings in the court after the lapse of three years from the date on which the cause of action arises.

b. The cause of action arose on or before September 4, 2017, that is, from the date of invocation of arbitration by sending legal notice by respondent no. 2, and therefore the bar of limitation of three years commenced from that date.

c. Respondent no. 1 ought to have filed the application under Section 11 of the Act within the prescribed period of three years; however, the same was filed after approximately six years, rendering it highly time-barred. Consequently, the substantive claims of the respondents are also barred by limitation.

d. Since both the application under Section 11 of the Act and the underlying claim are time-barred, the continuation of arbitration proceedings is illegal and unsustainable.

e. Under Section 16(2) of the Act a plea regarding the lack of jurisdiction of the Arbitral Tribunal may be raised even if a party has participated in the appointment of the arbitrator.

f. The learned sole arbitrator erred in rejecting the petitioner's application under Section 16 of the Act on the ground that, post appointment of the arbitrator by the High Court, the Tribunal has no jurisdiction to examine limitation aspects even though the Arbitral Tribunal is empowered to rule on its own jurisdiction under Section 16 of the Act including issue of limitation, which is a preliminary issue before proceeding to adjudicate the claim.

g. The issue of limitation involves mixed questions of facts and law, which cannot be conclusively determined by the High Court at the stage of proceeding under Section 11 of the Act.

h. Arbitral Tribunal, observed that the respondent's plea of a continuing cause of action lacks merit, yet rejected the petitioner's application solely on jurisdictional grounds. Hence the impugned order is self-contradictory.

i. The finding of the Arbitral Tribunal that it can examine whether the claim is time-barred or not but cannot determine as to whether the application under Section 11 is time-barred or not is contrary to settled law and renders the impugned order illegal and perverse.

j. The High Court may exercise its writ jurisdiction against an order passed under Section 16 in cases where a party is left remediless or where bad faith/illegality is evident.

k. To buttress his argument counsel has placed reliance on the following cases:-

(i) *Bhaven Construction v. Sardar Sarovar Narmada Nigam Ltd.*¹

(ii) *Ajay Madhusudan Patel v. Jyotrindra S. Patel*²

(iii) *Arif Azim Co. Ltd. v. Aptech Ltd.*³

(iv) *BSNL v. Nortel Networks (India) (P) Ltd.*⁴

(v) *Geo Miller & Co. (P) Ltd. v. Rajasthan Vidyut Utpadan Nigam Ltd.*⁵

(vi) *SBI General Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Krish Spg.*⁶

(vii) *Uttarakhand Purv Sainik Kalyan Nigam Ltd. v. Northern Coal Field Ltd.*⁷

CONTENTIONS OF RESPONDENTS:-

3. Sri Ritesh Kumar Srivastava and Sri Alok Kumar Singh appearing on behalf of the respondents have made the following submissions:

a. An order passed by the High Court under Section 11 of the Act appointing an arbitrator is a judicial order having statutory finality under Section 11(7) of the Act. No appeal, including Letters Patent Appeal, lies against such an order and the only remedy against such an order is by way of a Special Leave Petition under Article 136 of the Constitution of India before the Supreme Court.

b. Post the 2015 amendment, brought in force on the recommendation of Law Commission Report No. 246, the scope of judicial intervention under Section 11 has been curtailed; however the nature of power exercised and the order passed by the High Court under Section 11 continues to remain a judicial function.

c. Law Commission Report No. 246 refers to the role of the High Court in appointing arbitrators as a form of □judicial intervention□.

d. The order passed by the High Court appointing the arbitrator operates as res judicata between the parties and cannot be re-agitated or reviewed in subsequent proceedings.

e. The Arbitral Tribunal, being a creation of the High Court's order, cannot examine or sit in appeal over the validity of the High Court's judicial order, including on the issue of limitation.

f. Even assuming that the High Court passed the order under Section 11 of the Act without examining the issue of limitation, an order or decree passed beyond limitation is not a nullity and remains binding unless set aside by a Superior court. Since the order appointing the arbitrator has not been challenged before the Supreme Court, it has attained finality and remains legally valid.

g. Section 37 of the Act envisages remedy in the form of an appeal for a party aggrieved by an order accepting a plea that the arbitrator has no jurisdiction but a combined reading of Sections 16(5) and 16(6) of the Act enunciates that if a plea of lack of jurisdiction is rejected, the arbitral tribunal must continue with the proceedings and render an award, as the judicial interference at this stage is barred by Section 5 of the Act.

h. There are continuing breaches of contractual obligations hence, by virtue of Section 22 of the Act, 1963 the cause of action is continuous and the disputes remain alive.

i. The respondent has dissolved the partnership firm by notice, thereby, giving rise to fresh and subsisting disputes requiring adjudication. Post-dissolution, the respondent is entitled to seek rendition of accounts, examination of financial records, and winding up of the firm through arbitration. The cause of action for rendition of accounts has arisen during the pendency of arbitration and is intrinsically connected with the existing disputes.

j. It is in consonance with the objective of speedy and efficient dispute resolution that all disputes, including those that have subsequently arisen, be adjudicated by the same arbitral tribunal.

k. In view of the statutory bar and scheme of the Act, the present petition challenging the order passed under Section 16 of the Act is not maintainable.

1. To buttress his arguments, counsel has placed reliance on the following cases:

(i) S.B.P. & Co. vs Patel Engineering Ltd.⁸

(ii) Duro Felguera, S.A. v. Gangavaram Port Ltd.⁹

(iii) Ittyavira Mathai v. Varkey Varkey¹⁰.

4. After hearing the arguments canvassed by the learned counsel appearing on behalf of both the parties and scrutinizing the materials placed on record, the following issues arises for our consideration:

I. Whether the High Court under Article 226 of the Constitution of India exercising its writ jurisdiction can interfere in the interlocutory order passed by the sole arbitrator under Section 16 of the Act?

II. Whether the High Court before appointing the arbitrator under Section 11(6) of the Act is required to adjudicate on the jurisdictional issue of limitation?

III. Whether the Arbitral Tribunal erred in law by not adjudicating the preliminary objection as raised by the petitioner relating to its jurisdiction under Section 16 of the Act on the aspect of limitation of the application filed under Section 11 of the Act before the High Court?

5. The petitioner contends that the impugned order passed by the Arbitral Tribunal is perverse and illegal as the Tribunal while disposing of the application filed under Section 16 of the Act observed that the preliminary issue with regard to limitation cannot be adjudicated by the Tribunal before proceeding with the arbitration proceeding as only the High Court has jurisdiction to decide on the limitation aspects before appointing the arbitrator and once the High Court has found the dispute as live and subsisting, has appointed arbitrator in furtherance of it, the issue of limitation for appointment of arbitrator cannot be further adjudicated upon by the Tribunal. Moreover, the observation by the Arbitral Tribunal that only the issue of limitation with respect to the claim is required to be adjudicated by the Tribunal is perverse.

6. Per contra, the learned counsel appearing on behalf of respondents contends that the order appointing the arbitrator, passed by the High Court under Section 11 of the Act is a final judicial order by virtue of Section 11(7) of the Act, and the only remedy against such an order lies before the Supreme Court by way of a Special Leave Petition under Article 136 of the Constitution of India. The amendment of 2015, merely curtailed the scope of judicial intervention without altering the judicial nature of the order. Since the said order was never challenged before the Supreme Court, it has attained finality, operates as res judicata, and cannot be treated as a nullity merely on account of limitation. The respondent further contends that since Sections 16(5) and 16(6) of the Act mandate that upon rejection of a jurisdictional plea, the Arbitral Tribunal shall continue with the proceedings and make an award, no judicial interference at this interlocutory stage is permissible under Section 5 of the Act, and the present writ petition is therefore not maintainable. Additionally, the respondent submits that the disputes are still live and subsisting by virtue of continuing contractual breaches attracting Section 22 of the Limitation Act, 1963. Moreover, since that the respondent has dissolved the partnership firm by notice dated December 18, 2025, gives rise to a fresh cause of action for rendition of accounts which has accrued during the pendency of the arbitration proceedings and which, in the interest of expeditious resolution, ought also to be adjudicated in the ongoing arbitration proceedings making it neither expedient nor legally permissible to terminate the pending arbitral proceedings.

7. One may keep in mind the fact that arbitration is one of the methods of alternative dispute resolution where parties themselves agree to refer their disputes to a neutral third party known as the arbitrator. The objective of arbitration is to provide speedy, efficient and binding resolution of disputes that have arisen between the parties with regard to their substantive obligations. Redfern and Hunter on International Arbitration encapsulated arbitration law succinctly as □it is to be expeditious where the law is slow, cheap where the law is costly, simple where the law is technical, a pacemaker instead of stirrer-up of strife□. Arbitration acts as an elixir to disputes.

8. The Act was enacted to consolidate and amend the law relating to domestic arbitration, international commercial arbitration and enforcement of foreign arbitral awards as also to define the law relating to the conciliation and for matters connected therewith or incidental thereto. It also brought orchestration to domestic as well as international commercial arbitration with the Model Law, the New York Convention and the Geneva Convention.

9. The Act replaced the pre-colonial as well as post-colonial laws such as Arbitration Act, 1940, the Arbitration (Protocol and Convention) Act, 1937 and the Foreign Awards (Recognition and Enforcement) Act, 1961. The United Nations Commission on International Trade Law (UNCITRAL) adopted the Model Law in 1985 to foster the development of a unified legal framework for fair and efficient settlement of disputes arising in international commercial arbitration. In pursuance, the General Assembly of the United Nations recommended all states to give due consideration to the Model Law in view of the desirability of achieving uniformity of the law in arbitration procedure and the specific needs of International Commercial arbitration practice.

10. The principle of arbitration autonomy is an indelible element of the burgeoning domain of arbitration law. Arbitral tribunals function in an autonomous way in the sense that they are constituted to give effect to the mutual intention of the parties to settle their disputes through a neutral and expert authority of their choice. Section 9 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 bars the jurisdiction of Court from trying suits of civil nature of which the cognizance is either expressly or impliedly barred. However, Section 5 of the Act has an overriding effect as it ousts the judicial intervention in arbitration matters except where it is provided. Section 28 of the Contract Act, 1872 makes an agreement void if it restricts a party to a contract absolutely from enforcing their rights under or in respect of any contract by way of usual legal proceedings, but exception 1 to Section 28 of the Contract Act, 1872 provides an exception allowing parties to an agreement for enforcing their rights by way of legal proceeding by referring to arbitration instead of litigating in regular courts. Furthermore, Section 19 of the Act also liberated the Arbitral Tribunal from the clutches of the procedure laid down in the Code of Civil Procedure Code, 1908 or the Evidence Act, 1872 thereby exhibiting the principle of judicial non interference and autonomy of Arbitral Tribunals.

11. A plethora of decisions have deliberated upon the scope of the intervention of the writ court with respect to the orders passed by the arbitral tribunal. The principle of minimal judicial interference denounces the writ court from intervening in the interlocutory order passed by an Arbitral Tribunal. Section 5 of the Act contains a non-obstante clause mandating that no judicial authority shall intervene in matters governed by Part I of the Act except where expressly provided. The Supreme Court in Deep Industries Ltd. v. ONGC¹¹ while dealing with an order of the High Court against the dismissal of an application filed under Section 16 of the Act by arbitral tribunal has categorically observed that dismissal of Section 16 application by Tribunal cannot be interfered with unless there is patent illegality in the inherent jurisdiction exercised by the Tribunal.

12. However, the writ court can interfere with the order passed by the arbitrator under Section 16 of the Act when the perversity in the order stares on the face. The dictum enunciated with regard to the aforesaid principles find place in Punjab State Power Corpn. Ltd. v. Emta Coal Ltd.¹² The relevant paragraph of the judgment is delineated below:

“4. We are of the view that a foray to the writ court from a Section 16 application being dismissed by the arbitrator can only be if the order passed is so perverse that the only possible conclusion is that there is a patent lack in inherent jurisdiction. A patent lack of inherent jurisdiction requires no argument whatsoever □ it must be the perversity of the order that must stare one in the face.”

“18. In any case, the hierarchy in our legal framework, mandates that a legislative enactment cannot curtail a constitutional right. In Nivedita Sharma v. COAI [Nivedita Sharma v. COAI, (2011) 14 SCC 337 : (2012) 4 SCC (Civ) 947] , this Court referred to several judgments and held : (SCC p. 343, para 11)

“11. We have considered the respective arguments/submissions. There cannot be any dispute that the power of the High Courts to issue directions, orders or writs including writs in the nature of habeas corpus, certiorari, mandamus, quo warranto and prohibition under Article 226 of the Constitution is a basic feature of the Constitution and cannot be curtailed by parliamentary legislation □ L. Chandra Kumar v. Union of India [L. Chandra Kumar v. Union of India, (1997) 3 SCC 261 : 1997 SCC (L&S) 577] . However, it is one thing to say that in exercise of the power vested in it under Article 226 of the Constitution, the High Court can entertain a writ petition against any order passed by or action taken by the State and/or its agency/instrumentality or any public authority or order passed by a quasi-judicial body/authority, and it is an altogether different thing to say that each and every petition filed under Article 226 of the Constitution must be entertained by the High Court as a matter of course ignoring the fact that the aggrieved person has an effective alternative remedy. Rather, it is settled law that when a statutory forum is created by law for redressal of grievances, a writ petition should not be entertained ignoring the statutory dispensation.”

It is therefore, prudent for a Judge to not exercise discretion to allow judicial interference beyond the procedure established under the enactment. This power needs to be exercised in exceptional rarity, wherein one party is left remediless under the statute or a clear □bad faith□ shown by one of the parties. This high standard set by this Court is in terms of the legislative intention to make the arbitration fair and efficient.’

14. Drawing from Punjab State Power Corporation Ltd. (Supra) to Bhaven Construction (Supra) three conditions for warranting interference by writ court may be culled out: the party challenging the order is completely without remedy under the Arbitration Act; one of the parties has acted in clear bad faith; the order of tribunal under Section 16 is completely perverse on its face meaning that the perversity is so manifest and so glaring that it stares the court on the face and requires immediate intervention to prevent a gross miscarriage of justice.

15. To answer the first issue one may look into the impugned order passed by the Arbitral Tribunal. The relevant part of the order is extracted hereinbelow:

.....In the case in hand the respondents are challenging the limitation to file application under Section 11 of the Act and not the limitation to file claim which is yet to be filed. The High Court while passing order on the petition under Section 11(6) on 7.12.23, observed that there are live and subsisting disputes between the parties, which means that the court was satisfied that the petition under Section 11(6) of the Act, was within time. Thus, there is no occasion for this tribunal to go into the same issue again. The issue of limitation to file claim, is well within the jurisdiction of this tribunal but so far as the limitation to file application under Section 11 of the Act is concerned, the same has become final when the High Court found that there was live and subsisting dispute between the parties.

I am therefore of the considered opinion that this tribunal while exercising jurisdiction under section 16 of the Act, cannot examine as to whether the High Court had jurisdiction under Section 11 to appoint arbitrator or not. However, this tribunal would be competent enough to see as to whether the claim referred by the claimants is within time and is maintainable. If this tribunal comes to the conclusion that the claim is barred by limitation, it would have no jurisdiction to proceed with the matter, that this can be done only after filing of the claim and objection by the respondents.

In the result the application of the respondents for terminating the arbitration proceedings on the ground of limitation to file application under Section 11 of the Act before the High Court, is rejected. However, it will be open for the respondents to raise issue of limitation to file claim, when the same is filed by the claimants.”

16. As per Section 16 of the Act, the Arbitral Tribunal has power to rule on its own jurisdiction. Section 16 of the Act is delineated below:

“Section 16: Competence of arbitral tribunal to rule on its jurisdiction.

(1) The arbitral tribunal may rule on its own jurisdiction, including ruling on any objections with respect to the existence or validity of the arbitration agreement, and for that purpose,□

(a) an arbitration clause which forms part of a contract shall be treated as an agreement independent of the other terms of the contract; and

(b) a decision by the arbitral tribunal that the contract is null and void shall not entail ipso jure the invalidity of the arbitration clause.

(2) A plea that the arbitral tribunal does not have jurisdiction shall be raised not later than the submission of the statement of defence; however, a party shall not be precluded from raising such a plea merely because that he has appointed, or participated in the appointment of, an arbitrator.

(3) A plea that the arbitral tribunal is exceeding the scope of its authority shall be raised as soon as the matter alleged to be beyond the scope of its authority is raised during the arbitral proceedings.

(4) The arbitral tribunal may, in either of the cases referred to in sub-section (2) or sub-section (3), admit a later plea if it considers the delay justified.

(5) The arbitral tribunal shall decide on a plea referred to in sub-section (2) or sub-section (3) and, where the arbitral tribunal takes a decision rejecting the plea, continue with the arbitral proceedings and make an arbitral award.

(6) A party aggrieved by such an arbitral award may make an application for setting aside such an arbitral award in accordance with section 34.□

17. In the aforesaid order Arbitral Tribunal has abnegated to exercise jurisdiction under Section 16(2) of the Act on the ground that it does not have jurisdiction to decide with respect to the issue of limitation for filing application under Section 11(6) of the Act before the High Court on the reasoning that the above issue of limitation is the sole jurisdiction of the High Court which cannot be re-visited by the Tribunal.

18. The raison d'être of the Tribunal cannot be countenanced in law as the same will make one of the parties to arbitration remediless as there is no remedy against the rejection order passed by the arbitrator under Section 16(5) of the Act and the party shall be left with no remedy but to wait till the passing of the final award and file an application for setting aside of the award under Section 34 of the Act.

19. The doctrine of competence-competence enshrined under Section 16 of the Act empowers an arbitral tribunal to rule on its own jurisdiction which makes it crystal clear that all the issues of jurisdiction which includes the issue of deciding its jurisdiction on the ground of limitation for appointing an arbitrator should be adjudicated upon by the Tribunal and the Tribunal cannot shrug off from its own jurisdiction merely with the reasoning that once the reference court has appointed an arbitrator, the jurisdiction of limitation for appointment of arbitrator has already been adjudicated upon which need not be reagitated during the arbitration proceedings as being barred by res judicata. One may look into the very recent judgment of the Supreme Court in Interplay Between Arbitration Agreements under Arbitration Act, 1996 & Stamp Act, 1899, In re13 wherein the Court has observed that Section 16 of the Act is intended to give effect to the doctrine of competence-competence. The relevant paragraphs of the judgment are quoted hereinbelow:

‘130. This position has now undergone a complete metamorphosis in the present legislation. Section 16 of the Arbitration Act, which is based on Article 16 of the Model Law, recognises the doctrine of competence-competence in Indian arbitration law.

131. Section 16 empowers the Arbitral Tribunal to rule on its own jurisdiction, including ruling on any objections with respect to the existence or validity of arbitration agreement. Importantly, the parties have a right under Sections 16(2) and 16(3) to challenge the jurisdiction of the Arbitral Tribunal on grounds such as the non-existence or invalidity of the arbitration agreement. The Arbitral Tribunal is obligated to decide on the challenge to its jurisdiction, and where it rejects the challenge, it can proceed with the arbitral proceedings and make an arbitral award. It is the principle of procedural competence-competence which recognises the power of an Arbitral Tribunal to hear and decide challenges to its jurisdiction. Once the Arbitral Tribunal makes an arbitral award, Section 16(6) allows the aggrieved party to make an application for setting aside the award under Section 34. Sections 16(5) and 16(6) further show that Parliament has completely ousted the jurisdiction of Courts to interfere during the arbitral proceedings □ courts can intervene only after the tribunal has made an award. Thus, Section 16 is intended to give full effect to the procedural and substantive aspects of the doctrine of competence-competence.”

20. Moreover, Section 16(2) of the Act does not preclude a party from raising any jurisdictional plea merely because he has participated in the appointment of an arbitrator or he himself has appointed an arbitrator.

21. In our view, the reasoning of the arbitrator that once the High Court had referred the matter to the arbitrator, the Arbitral Tribunal cannot examine the jurisdictional issue with regard to application filed under Section 11 of the Act being time barred goes against the settled principles of law that even if the High Court referred the matter to arbitration, the Arbitral Tribunal under Section 16 of the Act had the power to decide on its own jurisdiction. The Arbitral Tribunal is the forum for deciding all issues that the parties may raise including the issues of limitation that may have not been raised by the parties at the time of order passed by the High Court under Section 11 of the Act. Keeping in mind Section 11(6-A) of the Act that is still operational, the duty of the High Court is restricted to examining the existence and validity of the arbitration agreement and nothing more. Even if the High Court refers the matter to the Arbitral Tribunal under Section 11 of the Act, the Tribunal has the power under Section 16 of the Act to hold that there is no valid and subsisting arbitration agreement. The issue of limitation being a jurisdictional point can be raised at any point. In the present case the jurisdictional point with regard to limitation vis-a-vis the time barred application under Section 11(6) of the Act was required to be adjudicated upon by the Tribunal. The logic of the Tribunal that since the matter has been referred by the High Court, the point of limitation cannot be re-looked into by the Tribunal is without any basis in law and against the principle of competence-competence as well as the provisions of Section 16(2) and Section 16(3) of the Act.

22. Before finally deciding on the issue as to whether the writ court shall have jurisdiction to intervene in the present matter, one may look into a neoteric position of law as laid down in a three-judge bench judgment of the Supreme Court in Ajay Madhusudan Patel (Supra) wherein the Court has meticulously observed the transition brought into effect by the amendment of 2015 with the addition of Section 11(6-A) of the Act that limits the scope of reference court to decide the preliminary issue and leaves all issues open to be decided by the Arbitral Tribunal. The relevant paragraphs of the judgment are quoted hereinbelow:

76.1.SBP & Co. [SBP & Co. v. Patel Engg. Ltd., (2005) 8 SCC 618 : (2005) 128 Comp Cas 465] expanded the scope of the Court's power under Section 11 while empowering the referral courts to decide several preliminary issues. Boghara Polyfab [National Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Boghara Polyfab (P) Ltd., (2009) 1 SCC 267 : (2009) 1 SCC (Civ) 117] went to the extent of identifying three categories of preliminary issues that may arise for consideration in an application under Section 11. Of these, in the first category which had to be mandatorily decided by the referral court, the question whether there was an arbitration agreement and whether the party who has applied under Section 11 of the 1996 Act is a party to such an agreement, was also included.

76.2. The insertion of Section 11(6-A) through the 2015 Amendment to the 1996 Act stipulated that the courts under Section 11 shall confine their examination to the ☐existence☐ of an arbitration agreement. It legislatively overruled the decisions in SBP & Co. [SBP & Co. v. Patel Engg. Ltd., (2005) 8 SCC 618 : (2005) 128 Comp Cas 465] and Boghara Polyfab [National Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Boghara Polyfab (P) Ltd., (2009) 1 SCC 267 : (2009) 1 SCC (Civ) 117] by virtue of its non obstante clause.

76.3.Duro Felguera [Duro Felguera, S.A. v. Gangavaram Port Ltd., (2017) 9 SCC 729 : (2017) 4 SCC (Civ) 764] , in clear terms, clarified the effect of the change brought in by Section 11(6-A) and stated that all that the courts need to see is whether an arbitration agreement exists ☐ nothing more, nothing less.

76.4.Vidya Drolia [Vidya Drolia v. Durga Trading Corpn., (2021) 2 SCC 1 : (2021) 1 SCC (Civ) 549] endorsed the prima facie test in examining the existence and validity of an arbitration agreement both under Sections 8 and 11, respectively. However, it was clarified that in cases of debatable and disputable facts and reasonably good arguable case, etc. the Court may refer the parties to arbitration since the Arbitral Tribunal has the authority to decide disputes including the question of jurisdiction. It was further stated that jurisdictional issues concerning whether certain parties are bound by a particular arbitration under the group-company doctrine, etc. in a multi-party arbitration raise complicated questions of fact which are best left to the tribunal to decide.

76.5. In Interplay, In re [Interplay Between Arbitration Agreements under A&C Act, 1996 & Stamp Act, 1899, In re, (2024) 6 SCC 1] the position taken in Vidya Drolia [Vidya Drolia v. Durga Trading Corpn., (2021) 2 SCC 1 : (2021) 1 SCC (Civ) 549] was clarified to state that the scope of examination under Section 11(6) should be confined to the ☐existence of the arbitration agreement☐ under Section 7 of the 1996 Act and the ☐validity of an arbitration agreement☐ must be restricted to the requirement of formal validity such as the requirement that the agreement be in writing. Therefore, substantive objections pertaining to existence and validity on the basis of evidence must be left to the Arbitral Tribunal since it can ☐rule☐ on its own jurisdiction.

76.6. Krish Spg. [SBI General Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Krish Spg., (2024) 12 SCC 1 : 2024 SCC OnLine SC 1754] cautioned that the courts delving into the domain of the Arbitral Tribunal at the Section 11 stage run the risk of leaving the claimant remediless if the Section 11 application is rejected. Further, it was stated that a detailed examination by the courts at the Section 11 stage would be counterproductive to the objective of expeditious disposal of Section 11 application and simplification of pleadings at that stage.

76.7. Cox & Kings [Cox & Kings Ltd. v. SAP India (P) Ltd., (2024) 4 SCC 1 : (2024) 2 SCC (Civ) 1 : (2024) 251 Comp Cas 680] specifically dealt with the scope of inquiry under Section 11 when it comes to impleading the non-signatories in the arbitration proceedings. While saying that the referral court would be required to prima facie rule on the existence of the arbitration agreement and whether the non-signatory party is a veritable party to the arbitration agreement, it also said that in view of the complexity in such a determination, the Arbitral Tribunal would be the proper forum. It was further stated that the issue of determining parties to an arbitration agreement goes to the very root of the jurisdictional competence of the Arbitral Tribunal and can be decided under its jurisdiction under Section 16. ☐

94. Once the Arbitral Tribunal is constituted, it shall be open for the respondents to raise all the available objections in law, and it is only after (and if) the preliminary objections are rejected that the tribunal shall proceed to adjudicate the claims of the petitioners. ☐”

23. The amendment of 2015, after insertion of 11(6-A) to the Act legislatively overruled the broadened position of law prevailing prior to 2015 amendment when the Court could also go into preliminary questions such as stale claims, accord and satisfaction having been reached amongst all others [see: (SBP & Co. (Supra) and National Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Boghara Polyfab (P) Ltd.¹⁴. Although the 2019 amendment to the Act omitted Section 11(6-A), the omission has not yet been notified, and therefore, Section 11(6-A) still remains as part of the Act and remains operative as on date. Ergo, the law laid down in Duro Felguera (Supra), Vidya Drolia v. Durga Trading Corporation¹⁵, Interplay, In Re (Supra), SBI General Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Krish Spg.¹⁶, Cox & Kings Ltd. v. SAP India (P) Ltd.¹⁷ holds the field.

24. Although the Supreme Court in Bhaven Construction (Supra) has cautioned the writ court not to exercise discretion beyond the procedure established under the enactment, the Supreme Court in the same breath has stated that this power may be exercised in exceptional rarity. Combining this principle with the dictum enunciated in Punjab State Power Corporation Ltd. (Supra) that when an order is passed wherein there is a patent lack of inherent jurisdiction, the writ court may intervene. In our view, we are duty bound to examine whether the arbitrator while deciding an application under Section 16 of the Act had acted within its jurisdiction. When the arbitrator chooses to abrogate and abdicate his jurisdiction and comes to a wrong finding that he does not have jurisdiction to decide a particular point contrary to principles established in law, the arbitrator at such point is acting in a patently illegal manner. In the present case, the Arbitral Tribunal has in a crystal clear manner abdicated its responsibility to decide on its own jurisdiction that it is required to do under Section 16 of the Act. As pointed out in the judgment of Ajay Madhusudan Patel (Supra), once the Arbitral Tribunal is constituted, it shall be open for the respondents to raise all the available objections in law and it is only after the preliminary objections are rejected, that the Tribunal shall proceed to adjudicate the claims of the parties to arbitration. In the present case, the arbitrator has specifically held that he does not have power and/or jurisdiction to decide on a point of limitation. In our view, this abdication stares at our face and the perversity of the order compels us to intervene in the present matter.

25. With regard to the arguments of the respondent on the conjoint reading of Section 5 read with Section 16(5) and Section 16(6) of the Act, that mandates that once a decision has been taken rejecting the application under Section 16 of the Act, the only remedy left to the party is to wait for the arbitration award and thereafter challenge it by way of an application under Section 34 of the Act, is required to be dealt with by me. In our view, looking at first principles, it is clear that Section 16(2) of the Act categorically states that the Tribunal shall deal with the issue of jurisdiction and a party shall not be precluded from raising such a plea merely because that he has appointed or participated in the appointment of the arbitrator. Keeping in mind the principles laid down in Ajay Madhusudan Patel (Supra), it is clear that all issues including that of jurisdiction have to be ruled upon by the arbitrator himself. In fact, the judgement indicated above clearly forbids the referral Court from going into the aspect of jurisdiction except with regard to the existence or validity of the arbitration agreement. All other points are clearly left for the arbitrator to decide as he has the power to rule on his own jurisdiction. Limitation being an arbitrable issue, the arbitrator is bound to decide the same as this issue is directly in relation to his jurisdiction.

26. Furthermore, the very fact that Sections 16(5) and 16(6) of the Act state that once the decision is taken with regard to rejecting the plea, the arbitrator is required to continue with the arbitration proceedings and make an award that can only be challenged by way of an application for setting aside of the award under Section 34 of the Act, makes it mandatory for the arbitrator to not be reticent and taciturn with regard to his own jurisdiction. It is upon the arbitrator to decide on its own jurisdiction that includes the issue of limitation. One has to keep in mind the fact that the principle of competence-competence requires the arbitrator to decide on its own jurisdiction and the principle of res judicata with regard to the referral Court do not come into play before the Arbitral Tribunal. In fact, the Courts have consistently held that it is the Arbitral Tribunal that decides on its own jurisdiction and not the referral Court.

27. In light of the above, we are of the view that the order of the Tribunal is patently illegal, perverse and the Tribunal has failed to exercise the inherent jurisdiction entrusted upon it. In light of the same, the first question is answered in the affirmative in the facts and circumstances of the case.

28. Proceeding to the second issue with regard to the scope of jurisdiction of the referral court in appointing an arbitrator, the lex lata subsequent to insertion of Section 11(6-A) to the Act, is that the Supreme Court or as the case maybe the High Court whilst considering any application under Section 11(4) to 11(6) is to confine itself to examination of existence of the arbitration agreement, nothing more, nothing less and leave all other preliminary issues including the issue with regard to limitation for appointment of an arbitrator to be decided by the Tribunal. Ergo, answering the second issue in the negative, we may reiterate the principle of autonomy and competence-competence that allows the Arbitral Tribunal to rule on its own jurisdiction by virtue of Section 16 of the Act and confines the jurisdiction of referral court under Section 11 of the Act for the appointment of arbitrator to the existence of a valid arbitration agreement. When the High Court does look into the issue of limitation and rejects the reference to arbitration, the aggrieved party may approach the Supreme Court by way of a Special Leave Petition under Article 136 of the Constitution of India. Per Contra, when the High Court does not delve into the issue of limitation, the aggrieved party has two choices: either for filing a Special Leave Petition before the Supreme Court or filing an objection challenging the jurisdiction of the Arbitral Tribunal on the grounds of limitation under Section 16 of the Act before the Tribunal.

29. A cumulative dealing with the first two issues, will answer the third issue. One may look into a treasure-trove decision in the field of arbitration law by a seven-judge Constitution Bench of the Supreme Court (coram: Dr. D.Y. Chandrachud C.J. and Sanjay Kishan Kaul, Sanjiv Khanna, B.R. Gavai, Surya Kant, J.B. Pardiwala, and Manoj Misra, JJ.) in Interplay, In Re (Supra), wherein the court has reaffirmed that the legislative policy under Section 11(6) of the Act by the High Court is one of minimal judicial interference and maximum delegation of jurisdictional questions. The Court has observed that separability presumption contained in Section 16 of the Act gives effect to the doctrine of competence-competence allowing the Arbitral Tribunal to assume and decide on its own jurisdiction. The relevant paragraphs of the judgment are quoted hereinbelow:

“120. In view of the above discussion, we formulate our conclusions on this aspect. First, the separability presumption contained in Section 16 is applicable not only for the purpose of determining the jurisdiction of the Arbitral Tribunal. It encapsulates the general rule on the substantive independence of an arbitration agreement. Second, parties to an arbitration agreement mutually intend to confer jurisdiction on the Arbitral Tribunal to determine questions as to jurisdiction as well as substantive contractual disputes between them. The separability presumption gives effect to this by ensuring the validity of an arbitration agreement contained in an underlying contract, notwithstanding the invalidity, illegality, or termination of such contract. Third, when the parties append their signatures to a contract containing an arbitration agreement, they are regarded in effect as independently appending their signatures to the arbitration agreement. The reason is that the parties intend to treat an arbitration agreement contained in an underlying contract as distinct from the other terms of the contract; and Fourth, the validity of an arbitration agreement, in the face of the invalidity of the underlying contract, allows the Arbitral Tribunal to assume jurisdiction and decide on its own jurisdiction by determining the existence and validity of the arbitration agreement. In the process, the separability presumption gives effect to the doctrine of competence-competence.

G. The doctrine of competence-competence

123. The doctrine of kompetenz-kompetenz (also known as competence-competence), as originally developed in Germany, was traditionally understood to imply that arbitrators are empowered to make a final ruling on their own jurisdiction, with no subsequent judicial review of the decision by any court. [Fouchard, Gaillard, Goldman on International Commercial Arbitration, Emmanuel Gaillard and John Savage (Eds.), (1999) 396.] However, many jurisdictions allow an Arbitral Tribunal to render a decision on its jurisdiction, subject to substantive judicial review. [Gary Born, International Arbitration Law and Practice (3rd Edn., 2021) 1143.]

124. It is a well-recognised principle of public international law that a legal authority possessing adjudicatory powers has the right to decide its own jurisdiction. [Interpretation of the Greco-Turkish Agreement of December 1st, 1926, In re, 1928 SCC OnLine PCIJ 5] Similarly, it is a general rule of international arbitration law that an Arbitral Tribunal has the power to determine its own jurisdiction. The ability of an Arbitral Tribunal to determine its own jurisdiction is an important facet of arbitration jurisprudence because it gives effect to the separability presumption. The separability presumption insulates the arbitration agreement from the defects of the underlying contract, and thereby ensures the sustenance of the tribunal's jurisdiction over the substantive rights and obligations of the parties under the underlying contract even after such a contract is put to an end. The doctrine of competence-competence allows the tribunal to decide on all substantive issues arising out of the underlying contract, including the existence and validity of the arbitration agreement.

131. Section 16 empowers the Arbitral Tribunal to rule on its own jurisdiction, including ruling on any objections with respect to the existence or validity of arbitration agreement. Importantly, the parties have a right under Sections 16(2) and 16(3) to challenge the jurisdiction of the Arbitral Tribunal on grounds such as the non-existence or invalidity of the arbitration agreement. The Arbitral Tribunal is obligated to decide on the challenge to its jurisdiction, and where it rejects the challenge, it can proceed with the arbitral proceedings and make an arbitral award. It is the principle of procedural competence-competence which recognises the power of an Arbitral Tribunal to hear and decide challenges to its jurisdiction. Once the Arbitral Tribunal makes an arbitral award, Section 16(6) allows the aggrieved party to make an application for setting aside the award under Section 34. Sections 16(5) and 16(6) further show that Parliament has completely ousted the jurisdiction of Courts to interfere during the arbitral proceedings □ courts can intervene only after the tribunal has made an award. Thus, Section 16 is intended to give full effect to the procedural and substantive aspects of the doctrine of competence-competence.

153. The decisions of this Court in Patel Engg. [SBP & Co. v. Patel Engg. Ltd., (2005) 8 SCC 618] and Boghara Polyfab [National Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Boghara Polyfab (P) Ltd., (2009) 1 SCC 267 : (2009) 1 SCC (Civ) 117] allowed for greater judicial interference at the pre-arbitral stage. In effect, the Referral Courts were encouraged to conduct mini trials instead of summarily dealing with the preliminary issues. This was also noted by the Law Commission of India, which observed that judicial intervention in the arbitral proceedings is a pervasive problem in India leading to significant delays in the arbitration process. [Law Commission of India, 246th Report (2014).] The Law Commission recognised that one of the problems plaguing implementation of the Arbitration Act was that Section 11 applications were kept pending for years by the Courts. To remedy the situation, the Law Commission proposed changing the then existing scheme of the power of appointment being vested in the □Chief Justice□ to the □High Court□ and the □Supreme Court□. It also clarified that the power of appointment of arbitrators ought not to be regarded as a judicial act.

154. Significantly, the Law Commission observed that there was a need to reduce judicial intervention at the pre-arbitral stage, that is, prior to the constitution of the Arbitral Tribunal. Accordingly, it proposed limiting the scope of the judicial intervention at the referral stage under Sections 8 and 11 of the Arbitration Act □to situations where the Court/Judicial Authority finds that the arbitration agreement does not exist or is null and void□. The Law Commission suggested insertion of sub-section (6-A) under Section 11 which would read:□Any appointment by the High Court or the person or institution designated by it under sub-section (4) or sub-section (5) or sub-section (6) shall not be made only if the High Court finds that the arbitration does not exist or is null and void.□ In light of the recommendations of the Law Commission, Parliament passed the Arbitration and Conciliation (Amendment) Act, 2015 (□the 2015 Amendment Act□) to incorporate Section 11(6-A).

155. The Statement of Objects and Reasons of the 2015 Amendment Act states that sub-section (6-A) is inserted in Section 11 to provide that the Supreme Court or the High Court while considering application under sub-sections (4) to (6) □shall confine to the examination of an arbitration agreement□. With the coming into force of the 2015 Amendment Act, the nature of preliminary examination at the referral stage under Section 11 was confined to the existence of an arbitration agreement. It also incorporates a non obstante clause which covers □any judgment, decree or order of any court□. By virtue of the non obstante clause, Section 11(6-A) has set out a new position of law, which takes away the basis of the position laid down by the previous decisions of this Court in Patel Engg. [SBP & Co. v. Patel Engg. Ltd., (2005) 8 SCC 618] and Boghara

Polyfab [National Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Boghara Polyfab (P) Ltd., (2009) 1 SCC 267 : (2009) 1 SCC (Civ) 117] . It is also important to note that Parliament did not incorporate the expression "or is null and void" as was suggested by the Law Commission. This indicates that Parliament intended to confine the jurisdiction of the Courts at the pre-arbitral stage to as minimum a level as possible.

167. Section 11(6-A) uses the expression "examination of the existence of an arbitration agreement". The purport of using the word "examination" connotes that the legislature intends that the Referral Court has to inspect or scrutinise the dealings between the parties for the existence of an arbitration agreement. Moreover, the expression "examination" does not connote or imply a laborious or contested inquiry. [P. Ramanatha Aiyar, The Law Lexicon (2nd Edn., 1997) 666.] On the other hand, Section 16 provides that the Arbitral Tribunal can "rule" on its jurisdiction, including the existence and validity of an arbitration agreement. A "ruling" connotes adjudication of disputes after admitting evidence from the parties. Therefore, it is evident that the Referral Court is only required to examine the existence of arbitration agreements, whereas the Arbitral Tribunal ought to rule on its jurisdiction, including the issues pertaining to the existence and validity of an arbitration agreement. A similar view was adopted by this Court in Shin-Etsu Chemical Co. Ltd. v. Aksh Optifibre Ltd. [Shin-Etsu Chemical Co. Ltd. v. Aksh Optifibre Ltd., (2005) 7 SCC 234]

229. The discussion in preceding segments indicates that the Referral Court at Section 11 stage should not examine or impound an unstamped or insufficiently stamped instrument, but rather leave it for the determination by the Arbitral Tribunal. When a party produces an arbitration agreement or its certified copy, the Referral Court only has to examine whether an arbitration agreement exists in terms of Section 7 of the Arbitration Act. The Referral Court under Section 11 is not required to examine whether a certified copy of the agreement/instrument/contract discloses the fact of payment of stamp duty on the original. Accordingly, we hold that the holding of this Court in SMS Tea Estates [SMS Tea Estates (P) Ltd. v. Chandmari Tea Co. (P) Ltd., (2011) 14 SCC 66 : (2012) 4 SCC (Civ) 777] , as reiterated in N.N. Global (2) [N.N. Global Mercantile (P) Ltd. v. Indo Unique Flame Ltd., (2023) 7 SCC 1 : (2023) 3 SCC (Civ) 564] , is no longer valid in law."

30. In the present case, the arbitrator has declined to decide the preliminary objection of limitation, not rejected the same on merits but has relinquished the very jurisdiction to decide it. For the sake of clarity, the relevant part of the order passed by the arbitrator is once again extracted below for the sake of clarity:

"The Hon'ble Supreme Court has held in the case of The Uttarakhand Purv Sainik Kalyan Nigam Ltd. Vs. Northern Coal Field Ltd. (Manu/SC/1634/2019) that in the proceedings under Section 11 of the Act, the court is only required to see the existence of arbitration clause in the agreement, the parties to the agreement and that one of the parties has refused to appoint arbitrator. No other issue such as validity of the agreement, limitation etc. are to be seen by the arbitrator and not by the court at pre-reference stage.

In the case referred to above, the High Court had refused to appoint arbitrator on the ground that the claim was barred by limitation. The Supreme Court held that after the amendment in Section 11 of the Act, this power can be exercised by the tribunal only and not by the High Court in the proceedings under Section 11 of the Act.

Thus, from analysis of the position of law on the issue, I am of the view that while considering the issue of limitation in relation to a petition under Section 11(6) of the Act, the court should satisfy on two aspects, first whether the petition under Section 11(6) of the Act, is barred by limitation, and secondly whether the claim sought to be arbitrated, is dead claim and thus barred by limitation on the date of commencement of proceedings.

In the case in hand the respondents are challenging the limitation to file application under Section 11 of the Act and not the limitation to file claim which is yet to be filed. The High Court while passing order on the petition under Section 11(6) on 7.12.23, observed that there are live and subsisting disputes between the parties, which means that the court was satisfied that the petition under Section 11(6) of the Act, was within time. Thus, there is no occasion for this tribunal to go into the same issue again. The issue of limitation to file claim, is well within the jurisdiction of this tribunal but so far as the limitation to file application under Section 11 of the Act is concerned, the same has become final when the High Court found that there was live and subsisting dispute between the parties.

I am therefore of the considered opinion that this tribunal while exercising jurisdiction under section 16 of the Act, cannot examine as to whether the High Court had jurisdiction under Section 11 to appoint arbitrator or not. However, this tribunal would be competent enough to see as to whether the claim referred by the claimants is within time and is maintainable. If this tribunal comes to the conclusion that the claim is barred by limitation, it would have no jurisdiction to proceed with the matter, that this can be done only after filing of the claim and objection by the respondents.

In the result the application of the respondents for terminating the arbitration proceedings on the ground of limitation to file application under Section 11 of the Act before the High Court, is rejected. However, it will be open for the respondents to raise issue of limitation to file claim, when the same is filed by the claimants.”

31. The Arbitral Tribunal has accepted that limitation is a jurisdictional issue within its domain and recorded that the continuing cause of action of the respondent has no force but has still refused to decide the point of limitation on a perfunctory whim that he has no jurisdiction. An order that records a legal position, accepts it, and then acts contrary to it without any reasoning is inherently contradictory and completely perverse on the face of the record. The relevant part of the order that substantiates the aforesaid analysis is quoted hereinbelow for the sake of clarity:

“The judgments of the Supreme Court also make it clear that the period of limitation to file an application under Section 11, is 3 years from the date of refusal to appoint the arbitrator or from the date when cause of action arises, in view of this, the argument of the claimants that the cause of action is still continuing, has no force, but at the same time this tribunal while exercising power under Section 16 of the Act, can examine as to whether the claim of the claimants is within time but so far as the jurisdiction of the High Court to entertain application under section 11 of the Act is concerned, this Tribunal cannot examine as to whether the High Court had jurisdiction to entertain the application under section 11 of the Act. The respondents had every occasion to appear before the high court and file objection as to the limitation to file application under section 11 of the Act for appointment of arbitrator but on both the occasions, the respondents failed to appear and oppose the application on the ground of limitation.”

32. In light of the principles laid down in Interplay, In Re (Supra) and Ajay Madhusudan Patel (Supra), we are of the considered view that the Tribunal has erred in law in declining to adjudicate on the jurisdictional issue of limitation for appointing the arbitrator in spite of being duty bound and obligated to decide on its own jurisdiction.

CONCLUSION

33. Upon sifting through a catena of judgments of the Supreme Court and applying the said dictum to the present case, we are of the considered view that the present case is one of the rarest cases warranting interference by writ court in light of the findings given above.

34. The power of the High Court being a reference court under Section 11 of the Act is of minimal interference and maximum delegation and the jurisdiction of the High Court in appointing an arbitrator under Section 11 is confined to examination of arbitration clause in the agreement and the Court at this stage should not get lost in thickets and decide disputed and mixed questions of fact such as the limitation for appointing the arbitrator. Moreover, as per P. Ramanatha Aiyar, The Law Lexicon [(2nd Edn., 1997) 666] the expression “examination” does not connote or imply a laborious or contested inquiry. On the other hand, Section 16 provides that the Arbitral Tribunal can “rule” on its jurisdiction, including the existence and validity of an arbitration agreement. A “ruling” connotes adjudication of disputes after admitting evidence from the parties. Ergo, it is evident that the referral court is only required to examine the existence of arbitration agreements, whereas the Arbitral Tribunal ought to rule on its jurisdiction, including the issues pertaining to the limitation for appointment of an arbitrator under Section 11 of the Act and the Tribunal has erred in law in declining to adjudicate on the jurisdictional issue of limitation for appointing arbitrator under Section 16 despite having the competence and jurisdiction to rule on the same.

35. In light of the above, the impugned order dated October 9, 2025 passed by the Arbitral Tribunal rejecting the petitioner's application under Section 16 of the Act, is hereby quashed and set aside.

36. The Arbitral Tribunal is directed to adjudicate upon the issue relating to limitation for appointment of arbitrator under Section 11(6) of the Act as a preliminary objection under Section 16 of the Act, on merits after granting an opportunity of hearing to the parties, in accordance with law.

37. The Arbitral Tribunal shall decide the said preliminary objections expeditiously.

38. It is clarified that this Court has expressed no opinion on the merits of the limitation issue, and all the contentions of both parties are left open to be raised and decided before the Arbitral Tribunal.

39. The writ petition is allowed in the aforesaid terms. There shall be no order as to costs.

40. I would like to acknowledge the consummate arguments made by counsel appearing on behalf of both the parties and for the diligent spadework in preparation of the notes of arguments. I would also go amiss if I did not acknowledge the significant contribution and appreciate my Research Associate Ms. Saumya Patel for her in-depth research and assistance provided to me.

Whether, and to what extent, the rights guaranteed under Articles 25 and 26 extend to the conduct of congregational religious activities, whether on public land or private premises.

HEADNOTE

Constitution of India – Arts. 25 and 26 – Prayer/Namaz on public land and private premises – Claim for security/protection and permission to offer Namaz at alleged private property – State case that land recorded as public land and petitioner seeking to introduce regular large scale congregational prayers – Scope of protection under Arts. 25 and 26:

Held: (i) Public land is meant for common use, and no individual or group can claim a right to use it as an exclusive or recurring religious space; the State is bound to ensure equal access and cannot permit preferential or exclusive use of such land.

(ii) The right to practise religion is subject to public order, including access, movement and peaceful living, and cannot be exercised in a manner that interferes with these rights of others.

(iii) Private property may be used for personal and limited religious activity so long as it remains genuinely private, occasional and non-disruptive; however, once such use extends to regular or organized congregational activity involving persons beyond a limited private sphere, it falls outside the protected domain and may attract regulatory control.

(iv) Where such activity in the private property becomes regular, organized or large in scale, it may amount to a change in the nature of use of the premises and is subject to applicable laws, including planning and local regulations.

(v) The introduction or expansion of a religious use or practice not previously prevalent, particularly where it disturbs the existing social balance, is not protected under Articles 25 and 26. The State is not required to wait for actual disruption and may take reasonable preventive measures where such activity is likely to affect public life. [Para 20]

Allegations of interference, threats and collusion were general in nature and not supported by any material – Land in question recorded as public land – Even assuming the land to be private, petitioner was seeking to introduce regular congregational gatherings including persons from within and outside the village – Earlier, Namaz was offered only on specific occasions such as Eid – Expansion beyond a limited private sphere falls outside the protected domain and is subject to regulation – No enforceable legal right made out – Writ petition dismissed. CASE ARISING FROM

Pending representation for security/protection and permission to offer Namaz at alleged private property

Advs. for the Petitioner: Intekhab Alam Khan, Janardan Singh.

Advs. for the Respondents: C.S.C.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Garima Prashad, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the petitioner and learned Standing Counsel for the State.

2. The petitioner, by means of the present writ petition, has sought the following reliefs:

“(i) Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus commanding the respondent authority to provide security/protection and permission of the prayer (Namaz) at the private premises (i.e. area 82.80 sqr mtr of Abadi Land) of petitioner situated at Village Ikona, Pargana Rajpura, Tehsil Gunnaur, District Sambhal.

“(ii) Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus commanding the respondent no.2/District Magistrate Sambhal to consider and pass the appropriate order upon the representation dated 15.11.2005 pending before him within stipulated period, otherwise petitioner shall suffer irreparable loss and injury.”

3. The petitioner’s case is that Namaz has been offered on a piece of land at Village Ikona, District Sambhal, which he claims to be his private property. He alleges that the respondent authorities are restraining such prayers. The petitioner asserts ownership over the land on the basis of a registered gift deed dated 16.06.2023, and contends that the restraint violates his fundamental rights under Articles 19, 25, 26, 27 and 28 of the Constitution, as persons professing Islam are entitled to offer Namaz without interference.

4. It is further alleged that such interference is arbitrary and is being carried out in collusion with certain social elements, thereby obstructing the petitioner and other persons from offering prayers. Reliance has been placed upon the decisions of the coordinate benches of this Court in Munazir Khan v. State of U.P. & Others (Writ-C No. 5996 of 2026), Pastor Selvakumar Samu v. State of U.P. (Writ-C No. 32058 of 2024, decided on 19.03.2025), Marantha Full Gospel Ministries v. State of U.P. (Writ-C No. 1097 of 2026, decided on 27.01.2026) and Emmanuel Grace Charitable Trust v. State of U.P. (Writ-C No. 1080 of 2026, decided on 27.01.2026) to contend that prayers can be conducted on private premises without requiring prior permission.

5. Per contra, learned Standing Counsel submits, on the basis of written instructions, that the land in question, being Khata No. 613, Gata No. 629, is recorded as Abadi land falling under Category Shreni-6(2), i.e. land meant for public use, and that the petitioner has no ownership rights over the same. The said gift deed dated 16.06.2023 allegedly executed by one Deen Mohammad in favour of the petitioner, in respect of an area of 82.80 sq. meters, does not disclose any Gata number, Khata number or identifiable revenue particulars, and is based only on vague boundary descriptions. It therefore cannot confer any legal title upon him.

6. It is also brought on record that as per the report of the Sub-Divisional Magistrate, Namaz has traditionally been offered at the said location only on the occasion of Eid, and that no restriction has been imposed on such established practice. The petitioner, however, is attempting to introduce regular large scale congregational prayers by inviting persons from within and outside the village.

7. It is further brought on record that Village Ikona has a mixed population and has remained peaceful for decades. Even the petitioner, in his own representation, has acknowledged that villagers have been living harmoniously for more than 50 years. The photographs annexed with the petition themselves demonstrate that Namaz has been offered only on specific traditional occasions such as Eid.

8. Learned Standing Counsel has further relied upon several Government Orders dated 16.07.2024, 16.08.2024, 24.03.2025 and 11.02.2026, all of which consistently mandate that while religious practices are to be respected, no new traditions or non-traditional activities shall be permitted and that established practices must be adhered to in order to maintain public order.

9. It has further been submitted that even with respect to Hindu festivals like Holika Dahan, it has been specifically directed that such ceremonies shall be conducted only at traditional sites and not in public thoroughfares or new locations, thereby reinforcing the consistent administrative policy of preservation of established traditions.

10. Having considered the submissions, the issue that arises for consideration is:

“Whether, and to what extent, the rights guaranteed under Articles 25 and 26 extend to the conduct of congregational religious activities, whether on public land or private premises”

11. Freedom, in a constitutional society, is always accompanied by responsibility towards others. The Constitution protects the right to practice religion, but it also makes it clear that this right is subject to public order, morality and health. It is not an unlimited right. It cannot be exercised in a way that affects others or disturbs the normal functioning of public life. As is often said, one person’s freedom ends where it begins to affect someone else.

12. When it comes to public land, the position is straightforward. Public land is meant for everyone and is controlled by law. No individual can claim a right to use it for regular religious gatherings. Such use affects movement, access and safety, and in appropriate situations, communal equilibrium; it must therefore be regulated. It is the State’s obligation to ensure equal access, civic order and non-discriminatory administration.

13. The law in this regard is well settled. In Commissioner, Hindu Religious Endowments, Madras v. Sri Lakshmindra Thirtha Swamiar of Shirur Mutt, 1954 SCR 1005, the Supreme Court recognized protection in matters of religion, but made it equally clear that the right is not dissociated from the constitutional limitations expressly written into Article 25. In M. Ismail Faruqui v. Union of India, (1994) 6 SCC 360, it was observed that Namaz may be offered anywhere, which means that no particular place can be claimed as a matter of right.

14. In Tehseen S. Poonawalla v. Union of India, (2018) 9 SCC 501, the Supreme Court emphasised the importance of maintaining social harmony, civic peace and the rule of law and reminded that courts must be mindful of the practical impact of their decisions. Where a claim to hold religious congregation on public land has the potential to create social tension, the constitutional court must ensure that the conditions necessary for peaceful coexistence are maintained.

15. In this context, it must be recognised that existing lawful practices, long-regulated arrangements, or permissions granted for limited or specific purposes may stand on their own footing; but no new or unilateral claim can be founded merely on religion or personal preference. The State is constitutionally entitled, and in appropriate cases duty bound, to prevent the use of public land without lawful authority.

16. The position in respect of private property stands on a different footing. Private prayer, family worship, and such limited devotional activity as remains genuinely internal to the premises ordinarily fall within the protected domain of Articles 25 and 26. This protection, however, is confined to activity that is truly private, occasional, and non-disruptive. It does not extend to transforming any private premises into a de facto public religious venue.

17. Once the activity assumes such a congregational character, it is no longer merely a matter of inward faith. It begins to produce external consequences: it may draw repeated attendance, including persons beyond the immediate household, affect ingress and egress, create traffic and parking concerns, alter the character of the locality, generate noise, require policing, and in sensitive areas, create the possibility of inter-community tension. At that stage, the activity assumes a public or quasi-public dimension. It is not that the private property loses all protection, but that the use of such property, to that extent, no longer remains purely private for constitutional purposes and becomes amenable to reasonable regulation.

18. This position is consistent with the decisions relied upon by the petitioner. In Munazir Khan vs. State of U.P. & Others, Pastor Selvakumar Samu vs. State of U.P., Marantha Full Gospel Ministries vs. State of U.P. and Emmanuel Grace Charitable Trust vs. State of U.P., the Court protected bona fide prayer within private premises and held that such personal religious exercise cannot be arbitrarily interfered with. However, those decisions cannot be read as laying down that organized or regular congregational activity on private premises is wholly immune from regulation. They recognise a limited protection, namely where prayer remains confined to a private, non-disruptive setting. Where the activity extends beyond that sphere and begins to affect the public domain, lawful regulation follows. These decisions do not confer a right to convert private premises into an unregulated congregational space.

19. Further, the law does not require the authorities to wait for an actual disturbance to occur. Where an activity is likely to affect public order, the State is entitled to act in advance. The test is not the religious nature of the activity, but its public consequences. This approach is consistent with the constitutional principle of secularism, which requires equal treatment of all religions and equal application of law. While the State must permit private worship, it is equally bound to regulate activities that affect public order, whether on public land or on private premises. Maintaining this balance is essential to the working of Articles 25 and 26 in a constitutional system.

20. In light of the above discussion, the issue so framed stands answered in the following terms:

(i) Public land is meant for common use, and no individual or group can claim a right to use it as an exclusive or recurring religious space; the State is bound to ensure equal access and cannot permit preferential or exclusive use of such land.

(ii) The right to practise religion is subject to public order, including access, movement and peaceful living, and cannot be exercised in a manner that interferes with these rights of others.

(iii) Private property may be used for personal and limited religious activity so long as it remains genuinely private, occasional and non-disruptive; however, once such use extends to regular or organized congregational activity involving persons beyond a limited private sphere, it falls outside the protected domain and may attract regulatory control.

(iv) Where such activity in the private property becomes regular, organized or large in scale, it may amount to a change in the nature of use of the premises and is subject to applicable laws, including planning and local regulations.

(v) The introduction or expansion of a religious use or practice not previously prevalent, particularly where it disturbs the existing social balance, is not protected under Articles 25 and 26. The State is not required to wait for actual disruption and may take reasonable preventive measures where such activity is likely to affect public life.

21. Turning to the facts of the present case, the material on record does not support the claim advanced by the petitioner. The pleadings in the writ petition are vague and lack material particulars. No specific incident, date, time or identifiable act attributable to any authority has been disclosed. The allegations of interference, threats and collusion with unnamed persons are general in nature and are not supported by any material. Such pleadings do not meet the standard required for invoking the jurisdiction of this Court under Article 226 of the Constitution.

22. On the basis of the material placed on record, this Court finds that the land in question is recorded as public land. The claim of ownership rests entirely on a purported gift deed dated 16.06.2023, which does not contain basic land particulars such as Gata or Khata numbers and is based only on vague boundary descriptions. Such a document does not establish any identifiable title and cannot displace the revenue record.

23. Even otherwise, if the land is assumed to be private, the petitioner is not entitled to the relief sought. The record shows that he is not protecting an existing practice, but seeking to introduce regular congregational gatherings, including persons from within and outside the village. It is admitted that Namaz was earlier offered only on specific occasions such as Eid. This expansion beyond a limited private sphere falls outside the protected domain and is subject to regulation.

24. In these circumstances, no enforceable legal right is made out. This Court cannot grant relief on such a basis, particularly where the matter has implications for public order and social harmony.

25. Accordingly, the writ petition is dismissed. No order as to costs.

Factual Matrix

1. The instant writ petition has been preferred by four petitioners who all are owners of a land situated in District Shamli where they have the crops and trees planted on the land. Over this land, the respondent Nos.2 and 3 are setting up a High Tension Electricity Transmission Line and because of which the petitioners suffer from the loss of crops, trees and devaluation of the land. As far as trees are concerned, certain compensation has been awarded but no compensation has been awarded for the corridor area over which the high tension wire passes through (known as Right of Way, 'RoW'). The Government of India through Ministry of Power had issued certain guidelines by means of a Government Order (in short, 'G.O.') dated 15.10.2015 which provides for payment of compensation towards damages with regard to RoW for transmission lines as well as for the tower base area.

2. As per G.O. dated 15.10.2015, 85% of the land value has to be paid by the District Magistrate on the tower base area on which the heavy metallic tower is set up. Further, a compensation towards diminution of land value (in the width of RoW corridor due to laying of transmission line) was to be awarded which was subject to the maximum 15% of the land value as determined on circle rate/ guideline value/ Stamp Act rate.

3. The Government of India through Ministry of Power issued another guideline vide G.O. dated 14.06.2024 for payment with regard to RoW for transmission lines wherein the compensation for the tower base area was increased to 200 % and the land value for RoW corridor area was increased to 30% of the land value.

4. Again the Government of India through Ministry of Power issued another circular on 21.03.2025 providing a supplementary guideline for payment of compensation with regard to RoW for transmission line of inter-state high voltage electricity lines.

5. The respondent authorities while determining the compensation of trees and crops coming under the transmission line area failed to follow the guidelines and provided no compensation for the RoW of corridor area. The petitioners made several representations to the respondents but no heed was paid to it.

6. Aggrieved by this situation, the petitioners preferred a writ petition being Writ-C No.20077 of 2025 (Pradeep Kumar and others vs. State of U.P. and others) which was disposed of by a Division Bench of this Court vide order dated 04.11.2025 with the following directions:-

"5. Considering the facts and circumstances of the case and without going into the merits of the case, we dispose off the writ petition permitting each petitioners to file separate representation under Rule 3 (2) of the Works of Licensees Rules, 2006 ventilating their grievances before the respondent nos. 5-District Magistrate, Shamli & respondent no.6-District Magistrate, Saharanpur along with a certified copy of this order within a period of one month from today. In case any such representation is filed by the petitioners, concerned respondent authority shall pass separate orders on the representation of each petitioners strictly in accordance with law after giving due notice and opportunity of hearing to each petitioners within a period of two months thereafter."

7. As per the directions given by this Court, the petitioners preferred representation on 21.11.2025 and 21.01.2026 to the respondents raising the grievance and requested the respondents for compensation of land, trees and the damage crops. The respondents by the help of police force opened the high tension electricity line on 05.02.2026.

8. On 10.03.2026, the respondent No.4 disposed of the representation filed by the petitioners wherein he stated that the State had implemented the earlier G.O. dated 15.10.2015 but however, since the G.O. dated 14.06.2024 issued by the Ministry of Power has not been implemented by the State and no compensation has been awarded to them. It has been further stated that since the transmission line was not inter-state transmission line hence, the G.O. dated 21.03.2025 will not be applicable.

9. The order dated 10.03.2026 by which the representation of the petitioners was rejected has been assailed by means of the instant writ petition. The petitioners had made the following prayer:-

"(i) Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of certiorari quashing the impugned order-dated 10.03.2026 (Annexure No.1) passed by respondent no.4.

(ii) Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus directing the respondent authorities to provide the compensation to the petitioners of their land coming in ROW Corridor Area, adequate compensation for trees and crops of the petitioners being damaged in the construction of Transmission Line of 220 KV and trees still standing within the Corridor Arca as per the prescribed rate of forest department and as per guidelines issued by Union of India, Ministry of Power, New Delhi vide its circular/government orders-dated 15th October, 2015, 14.06.2024 and 21.03.2025

(iii) Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus directing to the respondent authorities not to supply the electricity through aforesaid transmission line without cutting/removing the trees standing below the transmission line."

10. Learned counsel for the petitioners submits that the transmission company has erected towers and the high voltage transmission line over the land of the petitioners and a meager compensation had been given for the crops, trees and tower base area although the compensation should have been awarded as per the latest G.O. However, nothing has been awarded towards the compensation for the RoW of the high tension wire. He further submits that the value of the land has drastically diminished because of the overhead wires and restriction of carrying on any other activities under the wire.

11. He further submits that the issue of compensation has been considered by the Government of India vide G.O. dated 15.10.2015 wherein some compensation had been awarded for the tower base area and over the RoW. The Government of India re-visited the issue of compensation and again issued a G.O. on 14.06.2024 wherein the compensation of the tower base area had been increased to 200 % of the land value and for right of way the compensation was increased to 30% of the land value. This G.O. has not been implemented by the State of U.P. in spite of clear direction of the Government of India vide G.O. dated 14.06.2024 and a G.O. dated 21.03.2025 which lays down the guidelines for compensation.

12. He further submits that the petitioners had earlier moved a writ petition wherein this Court vide order dated 04.11.2025 had directed that the representation of the petitioners shall be decided within one month. From the orders of this Court, a representation was filed on 21.11.2025 however, no decision was taken on it within the stipulated time. On the contrary, during the pendency of this representation before the authorities, the authorities forcibly lay down the overhead cables without complying the orders of this Court and thereafter, rejected the representation of the petitioners by means of the impugned order. He further submits that action taken by the respondents are completely illegal and contrary to the norms laid down by the Government of India and as such the same may be set aside and a just and proper compensation should have been awarded to the petitioners.

13. He further submits that because of laying high tension cables, the value of the land of the petitioners below the wire and adjacent to the RoW have been permanently diminished and nothing can come up under that. The land of the petitioners cannot be put to any other beneficial use.

14. He further submits that the guideline issued by the Government of India had been followed in many States in toto, hence there was no reason for the State of U.P. to deny the compensation to the petitioners which had already been sanctioned by the Government of India.

15. Learned counsel for the petitioners further submits that there are provisions of compensation under the applicable Electricity Act and the Telegraph Act which are applicable in this field. Notifications had been issued by the Government of India through Ministry of Power wherein the Government relies that a just and proper compensation should be paid to the farmers however, the same has been refused by the respondents to the present petitioners.

16. Mr. Raj Mohan Upadhyay, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel appears on behalf of State. He draws attention to supplementary guidelines dated 21.03.2025 issued by Government of India and demonstrates from it, applicability of the guidelines have been confined to inter state transmission systems and further submits that the transmission line in this case is not an inter-state transmission line, hence the G.O. dated 21.03.2025 would not be applicable. Relied upon applicability clause in the supplementary guidelines is reproduced below.

"1. Applicability: These supplementary guidelines shall apply to Inter-State Transmission System lines only in cases where landowners have objected to the compensation because the Circle Rates are below the Market Rates. State Governments may adopt these guidelines in their entirety or issue their own modified guidelines. These guidelines shall apply in cases where State Governments have yet to specify the manner of determination of market value of land."

Moreover, State Governments have discretion regarding their applicability.

17. Mr. Pankaj Kumar Shukla, learned advocate appears on behalf of respondent nos.2 and 3 submits that the writ petition is not maintainable as the petitioners have remedy of revision. Without prejudice he submits, the guidelines are not in any way enforceable through the writ Court. He opposes the writ petition and seeks dismissal of the writ petition.

18. Heard Mr. Rajesh Kumar Singh, learned counsel for the petitioners, Mr. Raj Mohan Upadhyay, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel appears on behalf of State, Mr. Pankaj Kumar Shukla, learned advocate appears on behalf of respondent nos.2 and 3 (the transmission company) and perused the records.

19. In this field, in the the year 1910 the Indian Electricity Act, 1910 was first enacted thereafter, the Electricity Supply Act in 1948 and then Electricity Regulation Commission Act, 1998 was enacted.

20. Initially, the entire field of electricity was in the hands of Government however, later on this field of electricity was bifurcated in generation, transmission, distribution, trading and use of electricity in India. The private operators were also inducted to achieve the objects of the Act and thereafter, the Electricity Act, 2003 was enacted repealing the earlier Acts.

21. One of the key objectives of 2003 Act was promoting competition within its framework and allowed private sector participation in power generation, supply and distribution of electricity in India. The relevant Section of Electricity Act is as follows:-

"Section 38 of the Electricity Act lays down as follows:-

"Central Transmission Utility and functions.- (1) The Central Government may notify any Government company as the Central Transmission Utility: Provided that the Central Transmission Utility shall not engage in the business of generation of electricity or trading in electricity: Provided further that the Central Government may transfer, and vest any property, interest in property, rights and liabilities connected with, and personnel involved in transmission of electricity of such Central Transmission Utility, to a company or companies to be incorporated under the Companies Act, 1956 to function as a transmission licensee, through a transfer scheme to be effected in the manner specified under Part XIII and such company or companies shall be deemed to be transmission licensees under this Act.

(2) The functions of the Central Transmission Utility shall be –

(a) to undertake transmission of electricity through inter-State transmission system;

(b) to discharge all functions of planning and co-ordination relating to inter-State transmission system with –

(i) State Transmission Utilities;

(ii) Central Government;

(iii) State Governments;

(iv) generating companies;

(v) Regional Power Committees;

(vi) Authority;

(vii) licensees;

(viii) any other person notified by the Central Government in this behalf;

(c) to ensure development of an efficient, co-ordinated and economical system of inter-State transmission lines for smooth flow of electricity from generating stations to the load centres;

(d) to provide non-discriminatory open access to its transmission system for use by-

(i) any licensee or generating company on payment of the transmission charges; or (ii) any consumer as and when such open access is provided by the State Commission under sub-section

(2) of section 42, on payment of the transmission charges and a surcharge thereon, as may be specified by the Central Commission:

Provided that such surcharge shall be utilised for the purpose of meeting the requirement of current level cross-subsidy: Provided further that such surcharge and cross subsidies shall be progressively reduced I[] in the manner as may be specified by the Central Commission: []

Provided also that the manner of payment and utilisation of the surcharge shall be specified by the Central Commission:

Provided also that such surcharge shall not be leviable in case open access is provided to a person who has established a captive generating plant for carrying the electricity to the destination of his own use."

22. Part VIII of the Electricity Act, 2003 deals with 'Works' which only encompasses two Sections i.e. Sections 67 and 68. Section 67 deals with the determination and payment of compensation of rent to the person affected by the work carried out under this Section. Section 68 deals with overhead lines. Section 76 of the Electricity Act, 2003 grants power to the Central Government to make rules.

23. Further, Section 164 of the Electricity Act, 2003 provides that the appropriate Government may confer upon any public officer, licensee or any other person engaged in supplying of electricity, any of the powers which the telegraph authority possesses under the Act of 1885 with respect to placing of telegraph lines and poles as provided under the Telegraphic Act.

24. Section 176 (2)(ii)(e) of the Electricity Act, 2003 lays down as follows:-

"the works of licensees affecting the property of owner or occupier under sub-section (2) of Section 67;"

The effect of this Section is that the provisions of both the Acts will be applicable while determining the compensation of the land on which the overhead wire passes through (right of way) and the poles and towers were installed. The instant case is regarding the compensation to be awarded for the losses suffered by the land owners on which the transmission lines passes.

25. The transmission lines basically have two components, firstly, the towers installed on the ground and secondly, the overhead wires which passes over the land of private individuals which is also known as land corridor over which the wire hangs. Once a tower is erected on the field/land of an individual and the wire gone through his property, the potential of land diminish. There are certain restrictions which are imposed on the owner of the land like no structures can be build under and around the right of way, no trees can be planted and nothing can come up on that land in future.

26. Under the power granted under the Electricity Act and the Rules, the Government of India through Ministry of power had issued a G.O. on 15.10.2015 which provides compensation to the land owners over which the high tension wires passes through and which causes the land to loose its value, this order states as follows:-

(i) Compensation @ 85% of land value as determined by District Magistrate, or any other authority based on Circle rate/Guideline value/Stamp Act rates for tower base area (between four legs) impacted severely due to installation of tower/pylon structure;

(ii) Compensation towards diminution of land value in the width of Row corridor due to laying of transmission line and imposing certain restriction would be decided by states as per categorization of land in different places of states, subject to a maximum of 15% of land value as determined based on Circle rate/Guideline value/Stamp Act rates;

(iii) In areas where landowner/owners have been offered/accepted alternate mode of by concerned compensation corporation/Municipality under Transfer Development Right (TDR) policy of State, the licensee/utility shall deposit compensation amount as per (i) & (11) above with the concerned corporation/Municipality/Local Body or the State Government,

(iv) For this purpose, the width of RoW Corridor shall not be more than that prescribed in para. 1.3 (of the Report of the Committee for Payment of Compensation in Regard to the Right of Way for Transmission Lines) and shall not be less than the width directly below the conductors."

27. Since there was certain hiccups, the Government of India, through Ministry of Power again issued a comprehensive guideline for award of compensation to the land owners who suffer from loss of land value because of setting of the transmission line over the land. The Notification dated 14.06.2024 issued by The Ministry of Power is as follows:-

"COMPENSATION GUIDELINES FOR TRANSMISSION LINES

(2) Authority for determination of Compensation: District Magistrate/District collector/Deputy commissioner shall be the authority for determining the compensation.

(3) Determination of compensation: The compensation shall ordinarily be based on the circle rate/Guideline value/stamp Act rates of the land, except where the market rate exceeds the circle rate/Guideline value/Stamp Act rates. In such instances, the land value shall be determined based on the prevailing market rate as ascertained by the District Magistrate/District Collector/Deputy Commissioner in the manner as may be specified by the state Government. The determined land value shall serve as the basis for compensation and shall be promptly communicated by the respective District Magistrate/District Collector/Deputy Commissioner.

(4) Tower Base compensation: Compensation for the tower base area shall be 200% of the land value. The tower base area shall be the area enclosed by the four legs of the tower at ground level, plus an additional one (1) meter extension on each side.

(5) RoW Corridor compensation: The compensation amount for Right-of-way (RoW) corridor shall be 30% of the land value. Land within the RoW corridor, as defined in Schedule VII of the Central Electricity Authority (Technical Standards for construction of Electrical Plants and Electric Lines) Regulations, 2022 (Annex-I), shall be eligible for compensation. This compensation will address the potential diminution of land value due to the presence of overhead lines or underground cables within the RoW corridor. No construction activity of any kind would be permitted within the Row of the transmission line. states/UTs may decide higher rate depending on the area and urgency of the work.

(6) Alternate compensation: In areas where land owner/owners have been offered/accepted alternate mode of compensation by Corporation/Municipality concerned under Transfer of Development Rights (TDR) policy of the State/UT, the licensee /utility shall deposit compensation amount as per (4) to (5) above with the corporation/ Municipality/ Local Development Authority or the State Government concerned.

(9) Compensation Payment: Compensation payment shall be one-time and upfront. Whenever possible, compensation will be paid through various digital payment methods, such as the Aadhaar Enabled Payment System (AEPS) and Unified Payments Interface (UPI).

(10) Standard Operating Procedure (SOP): States/UTs and transmission developers should refer to the Standard Operating Procedure (SOP) at Annex-III for detailed guidelines."

28. Thereafter, the Government of India had issued a supplementary guideline on 21.03.2025 for determination of market value and the right of way, compensation for inter-state transmission lines. The relevant portion of the Notification dated 21.03.2025 is as follows:-

"SUPPLEMENTARY GUIDELINES FOR DETERMINATION OF MARKET RATE AND ROW COMPENSATION FOR ISTS LINES

1. Applicability: These supplementary guidelines shall apply to Inter-State Transmission System lines only in cases where landowners have objected to the compensation because the Circle Rates are below the Market Rates. State Governments may adopt these guidelines in their entirety or issue their own modified guidelines. These guidelines shall apply in cases where State Governments have yet to specify the manner of determination of market value of land.

2. Committee for Market Rate Determination: The market rate of land shall be determined by the following Market Rate Committee (MRC) based on the valuation by independent land valuers:

i. District Magistrate/District Collector/Deputy Commissioner or his/her nominee (not below Sub-Divisional Magistrate) ? Chair

ii. Representative of land owners ? Member

iii. Nominee of ISTS Transmission Service Provider (TSP) – Member

The District Magistrate/District Collector/Deputy Commissioner may co-opt upto two additional members as may be required.

3. Land Valuation Methodology:

(1) MRC shall appoint two valuers-one nominated by the TSP and the other by the representative of landowners. The MRC shall engage the land valuers empanelled by the Insolvency and Bankruptcy Board of India (1881) as per the list available at website of IBBI (<https://ibbi.gov.in>). The valuers should preferably be from the same State or, if an adequate pool of valuers is not available, from adjoining States. The reference market rate shall be determined as specified below.

(i) If the difference in the market rates worked out by valuers is less than 20% over the lowest value, then average value of the two valuations shall be taken as the reference market rate.

(ii) If the difference exceeds 20%, MRC may negotiate the reference market rate.

(iii) Else, or if negotiation fails, then MRC shall engage a third valuer, and the reference market value shall be determined as the average of the two closest valuations.

(2) The assessed reference market rate shall serve as the basis for determination of market rate by the MRC.

(3) The professional fee/charges of the land valuers shall be borne by the TSP and shall form part of the Row compensation cost. 4.

Compensation Rates: (1) The compensation for tower base shall be as per RoW guidelines dated 14.06.2024.

(2) The compensation amount for Right-of-Way (RoW) corridor shall be as follows for ISTS lines:

i. 30% of the land value in rural areas.

ii. 60% of the land value in municipal corporations and metropolitan areas notified by the State Government. iii. 45% of the land value for municipalities, nagar panchayats and all other urban planning areas notified by the State Government.

5. The District Collector may allow the construction of ISTS lines to proceed without obstruction on the condition that compensation would be paid based on the market rate determined by the MRC. The market rate determination should ideally be completed within one month from the date of application by TSP.

6. Pass through by CERC: If the actual Row compensation paid by the TSP due to implementation of these guidelines or the extant guidelines /policy of the appropriate government differs from the base Row compensation determined for the ISTS Scheme as per Tariff Based Competitive Bidding (TBCB) Guidelines, the same shall be eligible for pass through under Change in Law (CIL) by the Central Electricity Regulatory Commission."

29. It is clear that setting up of the transmission line is a public interest project which can be put at par with other public projects like setting up a dam or building a road. In the other infrastructure projects land is acquired by the Government and handed over to the licensee and a compensation is paid to the owner of the land however, in this case land has not been acquired but at the same time, a number of restrictions have been imposed on the land owners. For example, they cannot have trees on that area and no construction can be carried out in the RoW area and there are several other restrictions which the owners have to face for the land adjoining the RoW with the result the value of the land is drastically diminished. The Government refuses to pay a compensation on the ground that the land has not been acquired however, without even acquiring the land all the valuable rights of the land owners are being taken away from the land owners and that too without providing any compensation.

30. Since the land remains a State subject, number of States have come up with notification/circular where the methodology proposed is at variance with the guidelines issued by the Ministry of Power. The State of Uttar Pradesh has come out with the guideline that only 85% of the land value would be paid for the tower base and nothing would be paid for the land corridor area/RoW.

31. The Ministry of Power had given a guideline to the States and several States have implemented the same wherein they provide certain compensation for the land corridor area/RoW however, since it was a guideline, the State of U.P. chooses to provide nothing towards the compensation for the loss of valuable rights of the land owners.

32. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in the matter of Kerala State Electricity Board v. Livisha and Others reported in (2007) 6 SCC 792, had observed as follows:

"9. Both telegraph lines and electric lines are required to be drawn over the agricultural land and other properties belonging to third parties. In drawing such lines, the entire land cannot be acquired but the effect thereof would be diminution of value of the property over which such lines is drawn.

The amount of compensation is required to be determined keeping in view the purpose and object of the statute. There cannot be any fixed formula therefor or the other. Although undoubtedly one formula laid down may assist the Board and/or the Reference Court to apply the same, but there cannot be a hard-and-fast rule in this behalf. A fixed formula for determining the amount of compensation although may make the task of the Land Acquisition Officer or the Reference Court easier but in our opinion each case is required to be taken on its own merit. We may hasten to add that the purpose and object of the Act and the methodology laid down therein for the purpose thereof should be the guiding factor.

The situs of the land, the distance between the high voltage electricity line laid thereover, the extent of the line thereon as also the fact as to whether the high voltage line passes over a small tract of land or through the middle of the land and other similar relevant factors in our opinion would be determinative. The value of the land would also be a relevant factor. The owner of the land furthermore, in a given situation may lose his substantive right to use the property for the purpose for which the same was meant to be used."

33. Since the issue of compensation of the land which lies on the RoW of high tension wire has already been addressed by the Central Government, hence it is imperative on the State Government to follow the same in toto. The procedure of calculating the compensation has been given in the G.O. dated 15.10.2015, G.O. dated 14.06.2024 and in G.O. dated 21.03.2025, which makes mandatory to pay the compensation affront to the owners on whose land the high tension wires passes through and the tower base are erected.

34. The Government Order issued by the Government of India through the Ministry of Power, must have effect on the State. There is no available material to form a reasonable basis for the State of Uttar Pradesh to have exercised discretion in the negative, to distress of affected land holders. The respondents are directed to follow the guidelines issued by the Government of India through the Ministry of Power vide G.O. dated 14.06.2024 (since it is not an inter-state transmission line, hence the G.O. dated 21.03.2025 would not be applicable in this case). Therefore, the respondents herein are bound to pay compensation as per the G.O. dated 14.06.2024. Even the Government of India recognizes that upfront compensation should be paid before the transmission lines are set up. However, in this case in spite of the direction of this Court to decide the representation in four weeks, the representation was kept pending and it is only after using the police force when the wires on the petitioners' land was set up and energized, the representation was dealt with and rejected.

35. The respondents herein, cannot be selective in implementing the G.O. issued by the Government of India. As per the G.O. dated 06.09.2018 numbered as Letter No.2023/24-P-3-2018 issued by the State of U.P., the earlier G.O. dated 15.10.2015 of the Government of India was implemented by the State however, the State very conveniently fails to implement the other G.O. dated 14.06.2024. The State cannot be choosy and selective when it comes to the grant of compensation to the farmers whose land has been forcefully been used and the value of the land has been drastically diminished.

36. In this case, the transmission line is not an inter-state line hence, the respondents are directed to grant compensation as per the guidelines issued by the Government of India vide G.O. dated 14.06.2024 passed by the Ministry of Power.

37. In view of aforesaid facts and circumstances of the matter, the impugned order dated 10.03.2026 is quashed and this writ petition is allowed.

38. This compensation shall be paid within a period of four weeks from communication of this judgment to respondent no.2, to be made by petitioners.

ISSUE FOR CONSIDERATION

Whether repeated reopening of caste verification proceedings against the petitioners, despite closure by competent authorities and absence of locus standi of respondent no.5, is legally sustainable?

HEADNOTES

Civil Law – Constitution of India – Article 226: - Writ Petition under Article 226 - against order passed by Regional Level Committee as well as State Level Committee - seeking quashing of repeated caste verification proceedings - Petitioners, belonging to OBC category namely Bhishti Abbasi - had notified as an OBC caste by the Gazette Notification – their caste certificates issued by competent authority – complaint filed – enquiry - upheld twice by the District Level Committee and the complaint dismissed as baseless by the State Government in 2015 - after the death of the original complainant, his son (respondent no.5) pursued successive appeals without authorisation - leading to repeated reopening - Petitioners pleaded harassment, lack of locus standi, and violation of finality - Respondent no.5 alleged fraud and misuse of reservation benefits - Court finds that, no fraud was established, substitution was unauthorised, and repeated reopening is impermissible once competent authorities and the State Government have closed the matter – held, (i) the impugned orders suffer from arbitrariness and are unsustainable in law and against the principle of finality – (ii) third-party locus standi in service matters is barred absent prima facie fraud – hence, impugned orders are quashed - proceedings closed - District Level Committee's findings upholding caste certificates remain operative - writ petition allowed.

CASE ARISING FROM

orders of State Level and Regional Level Caste Scrutiny Committees (27.11.2020, 18.12.2016, 18.07.2017) and pending proceedings before District/Regional Committees, Prayagraj.

APPEARANCE OF PARTIES

Counsel for Appellant(s): - Shri Sri V.K. Singh, Senior Advocate assisted by Sri Navin Kumar Sharma, Counsel for Respondent(s): - Shri Anand Bhaskar Srivastava, Standing Counsel, Sri Aushim Luthra with Ms. Utkarshni Singh.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Garima Prashad, J.)

1. Heard Sri V.K. Singh, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Sri Navin Kumar Sharma, learned counsel for the petitioners, Sri Anand Bhaskar Srivastava, learned Standing Counsel for the State and Sri Aushim Luthra with Ms. Utkarshni Singh, learned counsel for the respondent No.5.

2. The present writ petition has been filed seeking the following reliefs:

i) Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of certiorari to quash the impugned order dated 27.11.2020 (Annexure No.10 to this writ petition) passed by Respondent No.2 (State Level Caste Scrutiny Committee, Lucknow).

ii) Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of certiorari to quash the impugned order dated 18.12.2016 and 18.07.2017 (Annexure No.8 and 9 to this writ petition) passed by respondent No.3 (Regional Level Caste Scrutiny Committee, Prayagraj).

iii) Issue a writ order or direction in the nature of certiorari to quash the proceedings pending before Regional Level Caste Scrutiny Committee, Prayagraj as well as District Level Caste Scrutiny Committee, Prayagraj in respect of the caste verification of the petitioners.

3. Learned Senior Advocate appearing for the petitioners submits that both the petitioners belong to the Other Backward Class category, namely Bhishti Abbasi, which has been notified as an OBC caste by Gazette notification dated 06.08.1997. A caste certificate to that effect was also issued by the competent authority in favour of petitioner no.2.

4. It is submitted that the dispute arose from a complaint dated 14.12.2011 filed by one Late Nazmuddin before the State Government alleging that the caste certificates of the petitioners were not genuine. Acting upon the said complaint, the State Government by order dated 10.02.2012 directed the District Level Caste Scrutiny Committee, Prayagraj to conduct an enquiry regarding the validity of the caste certificates and submit its report.

5. Pursuant to the said direction, the District Level Committee conducted an enquiry and by order dated 03.04.2014 found the complaint to be baseless and upheld the validity of the caste certificates of the petitioners. It is further submitted that apart from the said enquiry, a departmental enquiry was also conducted regarding the caste certificate of petitioner no.2 which culminated in an order dated 16.05.2012 declaring the certificate to be valid.

6. During the pendency of the proceedings, the original complainant Late Nazmuddin died on 17.03.2013. Thereafter, his son Zafaruddin (respondent no.5) filed an appeal before the Regional Level Caste Scrutiny Committee. The Regional Level Committee by order dated 27.05.2015 recorded that the order dated 03.04.2014 passed by the District Level Committee was correct and required no interference, however it directed the District Level Committee to examine certain additional documents produced by respondent no.5. In compliance thereof, the District Level Committee again examined the matter and by order dated 20.01.2016 reiterated its earlier findings and refused to interfere with its order dated 03.04.2014.

7. It is further submitted that the State Government itself by order dated 28.04.2015 dismissed the complaint dated 14.12.2011 as false and baseless. The said decision was communicated to the District Magistrate, Prayagraj by letter dated 30.06.2015 and by order dated 04.08.2015 directions were issued to terminate the caste dispute proceedings against the petitioners.

8. Despite the aforesaid orders, respondent no.5 again preferred an appeal before the Regional Level Committee against the order dated 20.01.2016. The Regional Level Committee by order dated 18.12.2016 allowed the appeal without considering the earlier government orders closing the proceedings. The petitioners thereafter filed a review application which was partly allowed by order dated 18.07.2017, however the Regional Level Committee again directed the District Level Committee to re-examine the matter. Thereafter, respondent no.5 approached the State Level Caste Scrutiny Committee which by order dated 27.11.2020 directed the Regional Level Committee to reconsider the matter.

9. Learned Senior Advocate submits that the issue regarding the caste status of the petitioners has already been examined repeatedly by the competent authorities. The District Level Committee twice upheld the caste certificates of the petitioners, the Regional Level Committee initially affirmed the same, and the State Government itself by orders dated 28.04.2015 and 04.08.2015 closed the proceedings.

10. It is further submitted that in response to an application under the Right to Information Act, the State Government by communication dated 27.09.2018 clarified that no order had been passed permitting substitution of the complainant after the death of Late Nazmuddin nor was any authority directed to conduct repeated enquiries. Reliance is also placed on a further communication dated 12.09.2022 issued by the Deputy Secretary, State of U.P., wherein it has been stated that the complaints against the petitioners regarding their caste certificates were found baseless and the matter had already been concluded and consigned to record. It is therefore submitted that the continued proceedings initiated at the instance of respondent no.5, who has no locus in the matter, amount to harassment of the petitioners and the impugned orders are liable to be quashed.

11. Per contra, learned counsel appearing for respondent no.5 submits that the petitioners have obtained an interim order dated 31.08.2022 by suppressing material facts. It is submitted that the petitioners concealed that an appeal had already been filed against the order dated 18.07.2017 and therefore approached this Court without clean hands. It is contended that a person who seeks equitable relief under Article 226 must disclose all material facts and suppression thereof is sufficient ground for dismissal of the writ petition.

12. It is further submitted that the petitioners have fraudulently obtained caste certificates showing themselves as belonging to the Bhishti Abbasi OBC category despite actually belonging to the general category. By using the said certificate, the petitioners allegedly secured a government post meant for members of the backward class.

13. Learned counsel for the respondent no.5 further submits that documentary evidence including educational records of the petitioners and the caste status of their biological relatives indicate that the family has never belonged to the Bhishti Abbasi community.

14. It is further contended that the objection regarding locus standi raised by the petitioners is misconceived. Reliance is placed upon the decision in Shakila Begum Faiyazuddin v. State of Maharashtra (2003) 8 SCC 49 and Raju Ramsing Vasave v. Mahesh Deorao Bhivapurkar, (2008) 9 SCC 54, wherein it has been observed that the validity of an appointment obtained on the basis of a caste certificate is a matter of public importance and the Court can examine such issues even if raised by a third party in order to prevent fraud on the Constitution.

15. Learned Standing Counsel appearing for the State submits that pursuant to the complaint dated 14.12.2011 the State Government by order dated 10.02.2012 directed the District Magistrate, Prayagraj to conduct an enquiry through the District Level Caste Scrutiny Committee regarding the validity of the caste certificate of the petitioners. In compliance thereof, the District Level Committee conducted the enquiry and submitted its report dated 03.04.2014 to the State Government.

16. The State Government thereafter by order dated 28.04.2015 dismissed the complaint dated 14.12.2011 as baseless and consigned the matter to record. The said decision was communicated to the District Magistrate, Prayagraj by order dated 04.08.2015 directing termination of the caste dispute proceedings against the petitioners.

17. It is further submitted that the State Government by order dated 12.09.2022 again communicated to the Commissioner, State Tax and the District Magistrate, Prayagraj that the matter had already been concluded and no justification exists for conducting a fresh enquiry.

18. After hearing learned counsels for the parties and perusing the material on record, this Court finds that the controversy in the present writ petition revolves around the legality of repeated reopening of caste verification proceedings initiated against the petitioners despite the issue having been examined on multiple occasions by the competent authorities and the State Government itself having recorded findings that the complaint was baseless.

19. From the record it emerges that the entire proceedings originated from a complaint dated 14.12.2011 submitted by one Late Nazmuddin before the State Government alleging that the caste certificates of the petitioners were not genuine. Acting upon the said complaint, the State Government by order dated 10.02.2012 directed the District Level Caste Scrutiny Committee, Prayagraj to conduct an enquiry regarding the validity of the caste certificates of the petitioners and to submit its report to the Government.

20. Pursuant to the said direction, a detailed enquiry was conducted by the District Level Committee and an order dated 03.04.2014 was passed wherein the complaint was found to be baseless and the caste certificates of the petitioners were found to be valid. The record further indicates that apart from the enquiry conducted by the District Level Committee, a departmental enquiry was also conducted in respect of the caste certificate of petitioner no.2 and the same too culminated in an order dated 16.05.2012 declaring the caste certificate to be valid.

21. It is also not in dispute that during the pendency of the proceedings, the original complainant Late Nazmuddin died on 17.03.2013. Thereafter, his son Zafaruddin, who is respondent no.5 in the present writ petition, sought to continue the proceedings by filing an appeal before the Regional Level Caste Scrutiny Committee. The Regional Level Committee by order dated 27.05.2015 recorded that the order dated 03.04.2014 passed by the District Level Committee was correct and did not warrant interference. However, while recording the said finding, it remanded the matter to the District Level Committee directing it to examine certain additional documents that had been produced at the appellate stage by respondent no.5.

22. In compliance with the said direction, the District Level Committee again examined the matter and by order dated 20.01.2016 reiterated its earlier finding and refused to interfere with its order dated 03.04.2014. The State Government itself thereafter passed an order dated 28.04.2015 dismissing the complaint of Late Nazmuddin as false and baseless. The said decision was communicated to the concerned authorities and further directions were issued on 04.08.2015 to terminate the caste dispute proceedings against the petitioners. A communication dated 30.06.2015 issued by the Commissioner, Commercial Tax, U.P., Lucknow also recorded that the State Government had already closed the proceedings relating to the caste certificates of the petitioners.

23. Despite the aforesaid orders and the repeated findings recorded in favour of the petitioners, respondent no.5 again preferred an appeal before the Regional Level Committee against the order dated 20.01.2016. The Regional Level Committee by order dated 18.12.2016 allowed the appeal and reopened the issue. Subsequently, upon a review application filed by the petitioners, the Regional Level Committee by order dated 18.07.2017 modified its earlier order but again directed the District Level Committee to examine the matter afresh. Thereafter, respondent no.5 approached the State Level Caste Scrutiny Committee which by order dated 27.11.2020 directed the Regional Level Committee to reconsider the matter.

24. The consequence of the aforesaid orders is that despite the issue having been examined repeatedly by the competent authorities and even after the State Government itself had recorded a categorical finding that the complaint was baseless and the proceedings stood closed, the matter continued to be remanded from one authority to another resulting in the same issue being reopened again and again.

25. This Court finds substance in the submission advanced on behalf of the petitioners that such repeated reopening of the proceedings cannot be permitted once the competent authorities as well as the State Government itself have examined the matter and closed the complaint. Administrative and quasi-judicial proceedings cannot be permitted to continue indefinitely as that would defeat the principle of finality and would result in unnecessary harassment of the parties.

26. The law relating to verification of caste status stands authoritatively laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Kumari Madhuri Patil v. Addl. Commissioner, Tribal Development, (1994) 6 SCC 241, wherein a detailed mechanism was prescribed for scrutiny of caste certificates through Scrutiny Committees. The said position has been subsequently explained and reaffirmed in Dayaram v. Sudhir Batham, (2012) 1 SCC 333, wherein it has been emphasized that the determination of caste status must be undertaken by the competent scrutiny authorities and cannot be left open to indefinite reconsideration.

27. A necessary corollary of the above principle is that once the issue of caste verification has been duly examined by the competent authorities in accordance with law, and findings have been recorded, such proceedings must attain finality. Repeated reopening of the same issue, particularly on the same set of allegations, would defeat the very purpose of constituting scrutiny committees and would lead to uncertainty and harassment.

28. In this regard, it is well settled that repeated enquiries into the validity of a caste certificate are impermissible, except in exceptional circumstances where the earlier determination is shown to be vitiated by fraud or was rendered without jurisdiction or without proper enquiry.

29. There can be no dispute with the proposition that a false caste claim amounts to a fraud on the Constitution, as held in Chairman & Managing Director, FCI v. Jagdish Balaram Bahira, (2017) 8 SCC 670. However, the said principle cannot be invoked in a mechanical manner. Mere allegations of fraud, without any fresh or cogent material, cannot justify repeated reopening of proceedings which have already been concluded by the competent authorities and accepted by the State Government.

30. In the present case, there is no such finding of fraud recorded by any competent authority despite multiple enquiries. The record clearly demonstrates that the issue was examined by the District Level Committee, then reaffirmed upon reconsideration, further considered by the Regional Level Committee, and thereafter the State Government itself, upon due consideration, declared the complaint to be baseless and directed closure of proceedings. □

31. Further, the State Government has clarified that it had neither authorised the substitution of any person after the death of the original complainant nor directed the authorities to conduct repeated enquiries. Moreover, the Government Order dated 12.09.2022 categorically records that the matter has already been examined and closed, and that no further enquiry is required.

32. Once the State Government itself has accepted the findings and consigned the matter to record, and the issue has already been examined repeatedly by the competent scrutiny authorities, it could not have been reopened or remanded in the absence of any fresh material or jurisdictional infirmity in the earlier proceedings. The impugned action, therefore, cannot be sustained in law as it permits repeated re-agitation of a concluded issue.

33. Such action is clearly contrary to the settled principles of finality, certainty and fairness in administrative and quasi-judicial decision-making. Permitting such repeated reopening would render the entire statutory scrutiny mechanism otiose and expose individuals to perpetual uncertainty. □

34. As regards the objection relating to locus standi of respondent no.5, it is undisputed that the original complaint was filed by Late Nazmuddin who admittedly died on 17.03.2013. After his death, the proceedings were sought to be pursued by his son, respondent no.5. The material on record indicates that respondent no.5 is a resident of the same village, but he has not demonstrated any direct legal injury arising out of the caste certificates of the petitioners. □

35. It is well settled that service matters cannot ordinarily be agitated at the instance of a third party, as held by the Hon^{ble} Supreme Court in Dr. Duryodhan Sahu v. Jitendra Kumar Mishra, (1998) 7 SCC 273, and Hari Bansh Lal v. Sahodar Prasad Mahto, (2010) 9 SCC 655, wherein it has been categorically held that strangers have no locus standi to challenge appointments or service benefits and such disputes are essentially between the employer and the employee. The present dispute, being essentially in the realm of service benefits arising out of caste certification, falls squarely within the aforesaid principle.

36. It is contended by the respondent no.5 that issues relating to false caste claims may be raised even by a third party in view of their public importance, as observed by the Hon^{ble} Supreme Court in Shakila Begum (supra) and Raju Ramsing (supra) wherein it has been held that although ordinarily a third party may lack standing, the Court can intervene in exceptional cases where fraud is apparent. The proposition is not in dispute. However, both the aforesaid decisions operate in a limited field. In Shakila Begum (supra), the Hon^{ble} Supreme Court intervened in peculiar facts where there was prima facie material indicating fraud and misuse of reservation benefits, thereby justifying departure from the general rule of locus standi. Similarly, in Raju Ramsing (supra), it was held that issues of caste fraud affecting public employment or electoral rights may be examined in view of their public importance.

37. However, neither of the aforesaid decisions lays down that a private individual can perpetually re-agitate a matter which has already been examined and concluded by the competent statutory authorities. Both judgments proceed on the existence of prima facie material indicating fraud or illegality warranting judicial scrutiny. In the present case, no such circumstance exists. On the contrary, the issue has been examined repeatedly by the competent scrutiny committees as well as by the State Government, and all authorities have consistently recorded findings in favour of the petitioners. In absence of any fresh material or demonstrated fraud, the reliance placed upon the aforesaid decisions is misconceived and does not justify repeated reopening of concluded proceedings.

38. Even assuming that respondent no.5 could initially bring the issue to notice, he cannot be permitted to sustain successive rounds of proceedings in the absence of any fresh material or legal justification. In the present case, respondent no.5 is only a co-villager and has not demonstrated any direct legal injury and, therefore, does not fall within the category of an aggrieved person in service jurisprudence. More importantly, the State Government itself has categorically clarified that no substitution of the complainant was permitted and no further enquiry was warranted. In such circumstances, the continuation of proceedings at his instance is wholly unjustified.

39. In these circumstances, the Court is of the view that the impugned orders dated 18.12.2016 and 18.07.2017 passed by the Regional Level Caste Scrutiny Committee and the order dated 27.11.2020 passed by the State Level Caste Scrutiny Committee cannot be sustained in law, as they result reopening an issue which has already attained finality. The impugned orders, therefore, suffer from arbitrariness and are unsustainable in law.

40. Accordingly, the impugned order dated 27.11.2020 passed by the State Level Caste Scrutiny Committee, Lucknow as well as the orders dated 18.12.2016 and 18.07.2017 passed by the Regional Level Caste Scrutiny Committee, Prayagraj are hereby quashed.

41. Consequently, the proceedings pending before the Regional Level Caste Scrutiny Committee, Prayagraj and the District Level Caste Scrutiny Committee, Prayagraj in respect of the caste verification of the petitioners shall stand closed. The findings recorded by the District Level Committee in its orders dated 03.04.2014 and 20.01.2016 declaring the caste certificates of the petitioners to be valid shall remain operative.

42. The writ petition is, accordingly, allowed.

43. No order as to costs.

ISSUE FOR CONSIDERATION

Whether a writ of quo warranto can be issued against duly appointed public officials (Tehsildar, Kanungo, Lekhpal, SHO, etc.) for alleged misuse of authority in forcibly delivering possession of private land during pendency of civil litigation.

HEADNOTES

Civil Law – Constitution of India – Article 32, 226: - Writ Petition under Article 226 - filed against State authorities (respondent no. 4 to 8), seeking relief of quo warranto and mandamus for restoration of possession of ancestral property allegedly handed over by Tehsildar, Kanungo, Lekhpal, and police officials (respondent no. 4 to 8) to private respondents during pendency of civil suit - Petitioners pleaded that respondents 4 - 8 misused their office and exercised jurisdiction beyond authority – Scope and limits of writ of quo warranto - court finds that, (i) writ of quo warranto lies only to test validity of appointment to public office, not against illegal exercise of power – (ii) respondents hold valid public office and the grievance relates to alleged misuse of power, which cannot be remedied by quo warranto – held - writ of quo warranto is a proceedings by which a person is asked to state by what authority he supports his claim to a particular office and it is not like a writ of certiorari or writ of mandamus – hence, writ petition is wholly misconceived, and is dismissed – however, it will be open for the petitioner to avail the remedy available under law for redressal of grievances..

CASE ARISING FROM

Case is arising out from forcible possession of ancestral property (Khasra No. 551, area 1.1450 hectare, Mauja Viruhuni, District Auraiya) allegedly facilitated by public officials during pendency of civil suit.

APPEARANCE OF PARTIES

Counsel for Appellant(s): - Shri Ganesh Mani, Ram Chandra Solanki, Counsel for Respondent(s): - C.S.C.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Manish Kumar Nigam, J.)

1. This petition has been filed for the following reliefs:-

"i. A writ order or direction in the nature of Quo-warranto against the respondent 4 to 8 under which capacity, they provide forcefully possession of the land belonging to the petitioner of Khasra No.551 Area About 1.1450 hectare to the respondent no.9 to 11.

ii. A writ order or direction in the nature of Mandamus directing the respondent no.2 and to take appropriate action against respondent no.4 to 8 for misusing their post for providing forcefully possession to the respondent no.9 to 11 of the ancestral property of Khasra No.551 area about 1.1450 hectare situated at Mauja Viruhuni, Pargana Ajeetmal, District-Auraiya.

iii. A writ order or direction in the nature of Mandamus directing respondent no.4 to 8 to provide possession of property of Khasra No.551 area about 1.1450 hectare situated at Mauja Viruhuni, Pargana Ajeetmal, District-Auraiya to the petitioner with immediate effect from the respondent no.9 to 11."

2. The petitioners in this petition have asked for a writ of quo warranto against respondent Nos. 4 to 8, i.e. Avinash Kumar posted as Tehsildar, Tehsil- Ajeetmal, District-Auraiya, Ram Naresh Gupta posted as Kanungo, Tehsil- Ajeetmal, District-Auraiya, Ankit posted as Area Lekhpal, Village-Biruhani, Tehsil-Ajeetmal, District-Auraiya, Lalit Tripathi posted as Station House Officer of Police Station Ajeetmal, District-Auraiya and Ram Putra Yadav, Chawki Atju, Police Station Ajeetmal, District-Auraiya.

3. Before considering the question involved in the writ petition, it would be appropriate to consider the law as to writ of quo warranto.

4. Quo warranto is a judicial remedy against an intruder or usurper of an independent substantive public office or franchise or liberty. The writ of quo warranto is an ancient common law remedy of prerogative in nature.

5. Quo warranto is a civil action available to determine right to public office, franchise, or liberty. It is a remedy to test the right of the person to hold an office or franchise or exercise some right or privilege, the powers of which are derived from the State. Articles 32 and 226 of the Constitution of India confers jurisdiction on the Supreme Court and all High Courts to control executive action in the matter of making appointment to public offices against its statutory provisions. They also protect a citizen from being deprived of public office to which he may have a right.

6. In case of The University Of Mysore And Anr vs C. D. Govinda Rao And Anr; AIR 1965 Supreme Court 491, the Supreme Court has held as under:-

"Broadly stated, the quo warranto proceeding affords a judicial enquiry in which any person holding an independent substantive public office, or franchise, or liberty, is called upon to show by what right he holds the said office, franchise or liberty; if the inquiry leads to the finding that the holder of the office has no valid title to it, the issue of the writ of quo warranto ousts him from that office. In other words, the procedure of quo warranto confers jurisdiction and authority on the judiciary to control executive action in the matter of making appointments to public offices against the relevant statutory provisions; it also protects a citizen from being deprived of public office to which he may have a right. It would thus be seen that if these proceedings are adopted subject to the conditions recognised in that behalf, they tend to protect the public from usurpers of public office; in some cases, persons, not entitled to public office may be allowed to occupy them and to continue to hold them as a result of the connivance of the executive or with its active help, and in such cases, if the jurisdiction of the courts to issue writ of quo warranto is properly invoked, the usurper can be ousted and the person entitled to the post allowed to occupy it. It is thus clear that before a citizen can claim a writ of quo warranto, he must satisfy the court, inter alia, that the office in question is a public office and is held by usurper without legal authority, and that necessarily leads to the enquiry as to whether the appointment of the said alleged usurper has been made in accordance with law or not."

7. In case of B.R. Kapoor vs State Of Tamil Nadu And Anr; 2001 (7) SCC 231, the Supreme Court held:-

"Besides the above, many High Courts as well as this Court have taken the view that a writ of quo warranto lies against a person, who is called upon to establish his legal entitlement to hold the office in question..... On being called upon to establish valid authority to hold a public office, if the person fails to do so, a writ of quo warranto shall be directed against such person. It shall be no defence to say that the appointment was made by the competent authority, who under the law is not answerable to any Court for anything done in performance of duties of his office. The question of fulfilling the legal requirements and qualifications necessary to hold a public office would be considered in the proceedings, independent of the fact as to who made the appointment and the manner in which appointment was made." (para No. 82 at page No. 317 of the judgment).

8. Quo warranto is an extraordinary remedy which law does not offer with liberal hand. It must be exercised sparingly and with utmost care, caution, and circumspection. A writ of quo warranto is not a writ of course. It is at the discretion of the Court to grant or to refuse the relief considering the facts and circumstances of the case.

9. Coming to the facts of the present case, the relief of quo warranto has been claimed by the petitioners against respondent Nos. 4 to 8 on the ground that respondent Nos. 4 to 8 without any authority of law and during pendency of civil suit put respondent Nos. 9 to 11 in possession of the property in question on 09.01.2026. It has also been stated in the writ petition that respondent Nos. 4 to 8 committed gross illegality in putting respondent Nos. 9 to 11 in possession over the ancestral property of the petitioners during pendency of the original suit. Respondent Nos. 4 to 8 have overlooked the legal provision as well as neglected the pendency of litigation. It has also been stated that respondent Nos. 4 to 8 have exercised jurisdiction beyond their power and are liable to be punished and prayed that in view of these facts, the court may graciously be pleased to issue a writ of quo warranto against respondent Nos. 4 to 8, as to under which capacity, they provided forcible possession of the land belonging to the petitioners to respondent Nos. 9 to 11. Averments noted above are made in paragraph Nos. 14, 15, 16, 19, and 22 of the writ petition.

10. In my opinion, the prayer made in the writ petition is wholly misconceived. The writ of "quo warranto" is not a substitute for mandamus or injunction nor for an appeal or writ of error, and is not to be used to prevent an improper exercise of power lawfully possessed, and its purpose is solely to prevent an officer or corporation or persons purporting to act as such from usurping a power which they do not have. A writ of quo warranto is a proceeding by which a person is asked to state by what authority he supports his claim to a particular office. It is not like a writ of certiorari or writ of mandamus.

11. From the averments made in the writ petition, it appears that the petitioners are aggrieved by the illegal action of respondent Nos. 4 to 8 for illegal exercise of power. Petitioners have remedy other than writ of quo warranto as the scope of writ of quo warranto is entirely different. The illegal action of the respondents can be challenged in appropriate proceedings but not in a writ of quo warranto.

12. In view of the discussions made above, I am of the view that the writ petition is wholly misconceived and is dismissed.

13. However, it will be open for the petitioners to avail the remedy available for redressal of their grievances, and dismissal of this petition will not come in their way, in case, any proceedings are initiated by the petitioners.

CASE ARISING FROM

The denial of admission to Class-VI for the academic session 2026-27 at PM Shri School Jawahar Navodaya Vidyalaya, Duredi, Banda, despite the petitioner fulfilling the prospectus eligibility criteria based on his Gram Panchayat birth certificate.

APPEARANCE OF PARTIES

Counsel for Appellant(s): - Shri Chandra Prakash Awasthi

Counsel for Respondent(s): - Shri Anant Kumar Tiwari (for respondents 1, 2 & 4), learned Standing Counsel (for respondents 3 & 5).

(Delivered by Hon'ble Siddharth Nandan, J.)

1. Heard Shri Chandra Prakash Awasthi, learned counsel for the petitioner, Shri Anant Kumar Tiwari, learned counsel for the respondent nos. 1, 2 and 4 as well as learned Standing Counsel for the State-respondents no. 3 and 5.

2. The present writ petition has been filed with the following prayer:

"(A). Issue a writ order or direction in the nature of mandamus commanding the respondent No.4 to admitting the petitioner in Class-VIth in PM Shri School Jawahar Navodaya Vidyalaya Duredi, Banda.

(B) Issue a writ order or direction in the nature of mandamus commanding the respondent No.4 to keep vacant one seat in class-Vi for the petitioner in the said institution.

(C). Issue any suitable writ order or direction which this Hon'ble Court may deem fit and proper under the facts and circumstances of the case."

3. Learned counsel for the petitioner has submitted that the birth certificate issued by the Gram Panchayat, Bantharee, Banda specifically records the date of birth of the petitioner to be 01.07.2013. He has also relied on the prospectus for admission to Class-VI in PM Shri School Jawahar Navodaya Vidyalaya, wherein under the eligibility clause, more particularly in Clause 4.2, it has been mentioned that a candidate seeking admission must not be born before 01.05.2013 or after 30.07.2015. In view of the aforesaid, he submits that the date of birth of the petitioner is 01.07.2013 and the birth certificate issued by the Government has a presumption of its validity and unless the same is cancelled or the presumption is dislodged, the date of birth of the petitioner could not have been doubted.

4. Per contra, Shri Anant Kumar Tiwari, Advocate, relying upon Para-29 of the counter affidavit, has submitted that the Chief Medical Officer, Banda, through his letter dated 16.04.2025 though indicated that the age could be in variance of six months to one year, in the medical verification of the age of a candidate, he has given a report that the petitioner's age is about 16 year (wrongly transcribed as 15 year in Para-29). In view of the aforesaid, the petitioner could not have been given the admission.

5. On a pointed query to the learned counsel for the respondent, as to whether the birth certificate issued by the Gram Panchayat, Bantharee, as annexed with the affidavit filed along with aforesaid writ petition (Annexure-2), has been controverted, he submits on the basis of the counter affidavit that the same has not been contradicted.

6. The issue which arises for consideration before this Court is that once a document which has been issued under a statutory provision and the same being admitted, whether under the scheme which is beneficial in nature, is it open to the authorities to doubt the age of a student and seek for a medical report from the Chief Medical Officer.

7. It is trite law that the ossification test, based on which the CMO submits his report, cannot be said to be accurate and it has been considered to be having an accuracy of $\square$ 2 years (Ref: Jaya Mala Vs. Home Secretary, Government of Jammu & Kashmir and Others; reported in (1982) 2 SCC 538 and Vishnu Alias Undrya Vs. State of Maharashtra; reported in (2006) 1 SCC 283).

8. In the case of Vishnu Alias Undrya (supra), while the date of birth was being determined on the basis of the available evidences, the Apex Court had opined that the date of birth registered in the municipal corporation coupled with the statement of the parents is a determining factor. The correct date of birth, where unimpeachable document, is corroborated by even an oral statement, the ossification test based opinion of medical officer, which is really of an advisory character cannot take precedence over the date of birth recorded in the municipal corporation. Even as per the doctor's opinion in the ossification test for determination of age, the age varies.

9. The Apex Court in the case of Jarnail Singh Vs. State of Haryana, reported in (2013) 7 SCC 263, also examined the issued and held that in Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2015, the matriculation (or equivalent) certificate of a child concerned is a highest rated option, in the scheme of Rule, 12(3); and in case said certificate is available, no other evidence can be relied upon, and only in absence of such a certificate other records of date of birth can be looked into i.e. the date of birth entered into the school first attended by the child; and thereafter in absence of such entry, Rule 12(3) postulates reliance on a birth certificate issued by a Corporation or a municipal authority or a Panchayat. Yet again, if such a certificate is available then no other material whatsoever, is to be taken into consideration, for determining the age of the child concerned, as the said certificate would conclusively determine the age of the child; and only in absence of any of the aforesaid document, the determination of age of a child concerned, can be on the basis of "medical opinion".

10. It is noteworthy that the birth certificate is issued under Section 12/17 of the Registration of Births and Deaths, Act, 1969 read with Rule 8(3) of the Uttar Pradesh Registration of Births and Deaths Rules, 2002; and as such it has the presumption of its validity under law; and at no point of time the said presumption has been dislodged by the respondent and the certificate admittedly has not been cancelled.

11. In view of the aforesaid fact, this Court is of the opinion that unless and until, a document which has been issued under a statutory provision, is either cancelled or an element of forgery is proved, it shall have a binding effect on the authorities; and it is not within the domain of the authorities concerned, to doubt the certificate issued under a statutory provision, on its own whims and fancies.

12. The said observation is also in view of the fact that the ossification test which the CMO conducts, as per the certificate itself, records that the opinion of age is based on general appearance and the respondents also admits in their counter affidavit that, there could be a variance of six month to one year in the medical verification of the age of a candidate, i.e. in Paragraph No. 29 of the counter affidavit dated 21.11.2025.

13. In view of the aforesaid, the denial by the respondent no.4 to admit the petitioner in Class-VI in PM Shri School Javahar Navodaya Vidyalaya, Duredi, Banda is not in consonance with the mandate of Right to Education Act, 2009; and accordingly the respondent no.4 is directed to admit the student (petitioner herein) in Class-VI, for the academic session 2026-27, as it is the case of the petitioner that he is not studying anywhere, without any further delay.

14. This Court finds that a number of writ petitions are being filed, on account of the rejection of the candidature solely based on a medical opinion, discarding the documents which have been issued by the competent authorities under a statutory provision; therefore, I deem it appropriate that a direction may be issued to Respondent No.2- to circulate amongst all the schools which are governed by them i.e. "Navodaya Vidyalaya", to only seek for a medical opinion, in case the following documents are not available: (i) Matriculation certificate (or equivalent) issued by the competent authorities/Board.

(ii) Documents evidencing date of birth entered into the school first attended by the child, duly attested by the Principal, of the said school.

(iii) Birth certificate issued by the Corporation or Municipal Authority or a Panchayat.

15. However, the aforesaid documents are subject to their verification, if any doubt arises regarding their genuineness, for which the concerned School authorities, may send the said documents within two weeks of application, to their issuing authorities/Board, who shall be required to respond within a maximum period of one month, from the date of receipt of such request, from the School, where the child had applied for admission.

16. With the aforesaid observation and direction, the writ petition stands disposed of.

17. Registrar (Compliance) is directed to send a copy of this order to Respondent No.2, for necessary compliance.

ISSUE FOR CONSIDERATION

- (i) Whether IBC overrides the electricity laws and regulations, thereby barring the respondent authorities from raising demands for the pre-resolution period after the resolution plan is duly approved and implemented.
- (ii) Whether the respondent authorities are entitled to receive separate notice of the CIRP and whether they had information to provide them opportunity to file their claims.
- (iii) Whether the respondent authorities could raise demand for their statutory dues after implementation of resolution plan, while they have neither filed their claim during CIRP nor objected to the resolution plan before NCLT

Insolvency and Bankruptcy Code, 2016 – ss. 3(6), 15, 31, 238 – Electricity Act, 2003 – ss. 173, 174 – Corporate Insolvency Resolution Process (CIRP) – Electricity dues pertaining to pre-CIRP period – Demand notices issued after approval and implementation of resolution plans – Distribution licensees sought recovery of electricity dues pertaining to the period prior to approval of the resolution plans – Contention that electricity dues being statutory in nature could not stand extinguished and that Electricity Act would prevail – Validity:

Held: Section 238 of the IBC, being a subsequent legislation, contains a clear and unambiguous non obstante clause giving it primacy over all other laws in case of inconsistency. Though the Electricity Act occupies a special field and contains its own overriding provisions, the legislative intent underlying Section 238 of the IBC ensures that, in matters of insolvency, the provisions of the IBC shall prevail notwithstanding any inconsistency with the Electricity Act, including Sections 173 and 174 thereof.

Court reiterated that the objective of the IBC is to ensure that the successful resolution applicant takes over the corporate debtor on a clean slate, free from past liabilities except those specifically incorporated in the resolution plan. Consequently, all claims not forming part of the approved resolution plan stand extinguished and cannot thereafter be revived or enforced.

Court held that while the respondents are not precluded from exercising their statutory powers in respect of post-resolution discoveries or continuing liabilities, they cannot be permitted to enforce claims which stand extinguished by operation of law under the IBC. The contention that the Electricity Laws would prevail over the IBC was held to be unacceptable. The argument that electricity dues are statutory in nature and, therefore, cannot stand extinguished was also held to be unsustainable in view of the clear mandate of Sections 31 and 238 of the IBC.

Court further held that where no claim had been filed by the respondents during CIRP and no objection had been raised before the NCLT against the resolution plan, no fault could be attributed to the Resolution Professional. Publication made after following the procedure prescribed under the IBC constitutes sufficient notice to all stakeholders, and the respondent authorities are no exception so as to claim a separate notice.

In the instant case, the respondent authorities neither filed any claim in respect of the alleged electricity dues during the CIRP nor did such dues form part of the resolution plan approved by the Adjudicating Authority. The impugned demands, which sought to resurrect claims extinguished upon approval of the resolution plan, could not be permitted to be enforced under the guise of statutory recovery proceedings.

Demand notices quashed. However, the respondent authorities were granted liberty to issue fresh demand notices in respect of any dues arising for the post-resolution period, in accordance with law. (E-5)

1. Both writ petitions, filed under Article 226 of the Constitution of India, arise out of a similar grievance, wherein the respective petitioners challenge the demand notices issued to them towards electricity dues pertaining to the period prior to the commencement of the Corporate Insolvency Resolution Process (hereinafter referred to as □CIRP□) of the concerned companies, which are resolved long ago after following due procedure prescribed under Insolvency and Bankruptcy Code, 2016 (hereinafter referred to as □IBC□). In Writ C No.19391 of 2023, the petitioner seeks issuance of a writ, order or direction in the nature of certiorari for quashing the impugned demand notices, whereas in Writ C No.17846 of 2025, the petitioner, prays for issuance of a writ of certiorari to quash the impugned demand to the extent it pertains to the period prior to the approval of the resolution plan, and a writ of mandamus restraining the respondents from taking any coercive action pursuant to the said notices and subsequent actions.

2. Since the reliefs sought in both the petitions are substantially similar, and the matters arise out of a similar set of facts involving identical questions of law, both the petitions were taken up together for hearing and are being decided by this common order. However, the necessary facts pleaded in each writ petition, as well as the submissions advanced on behalf of the parties therein, are being noticed separately wherever required.

I

Factual Matrix

3. The factual matrix in Writ C No. 19391 of 2023 is that the Isolux Corsan Concesiones S.A. (hereinafter referred to as □Isolux□) has received a letter of intent dated 05.07.2011 by the Uttar Pradesh Power Transmission Company Limited (hereinafter referred to as □UPPTCL□) to establish a 765 kV transmission system on a Build-Own-Operate-Maintain & Transfer (BOOT) basis at Mainpuri-Bara line.

4. Pursuant thereto, the Petitioner company was incorporated as a special purpose vehicle in September 2011 to implement and operate the said transmission system, and its 100% shareholding was subsequently acquired by Isolux on 16.12.2011. In furtherance to this, on 20.01.2012, the petitioner entered into Transmission Service Agreements with the distribution licensees (hereinafter referred to as □DISCOMs□) in the State of Uttar Pradesh.

5. Thereafter, on 25.09.2013, the petitioner applied to Respondent No.1 seeking a 630 KVA, 33 kV auxiliary power supply at the 400/220 kV Rewa Road GIS Sub-station. On 04.01.2014, the petitioner informed UPPCL of its requirement for two 33 kV auxiliary sources for safe operations, specifically indicating that one such source was being drawn through the tertiary winding of Inter-Connecting Transformer-II (hereinafter referred to as □ICT-II□). Subsequently, an Electrical Energy Supply Agreement dated 18.04.2015 came to be executed between the petitioner and Respondent No.1.

6. In continuation thereof, the ICT-II was charged on 02.10.2015 and allegedly utilised as a source of auxiliary power. The Uttar Pradesh Electricity Regulatory Commission (UPERC) declared commercial commissioning of the transmission lines and substations with effect from 27.10.2017, which was communicated by UPPTCL to the petitioner on 19.07.2018.

7. Subsequently, the company has gone into the insolvency as the National Company Law Tribunal (hereinafter referred to as the □NCLT□), Allahabad Bench, vide its order dated 06.07.2020 initiated the CIRP against the company under the provisions of the IBC.

8. During the CIRP, Resurgent Power Ventures Pvt. Limited submitted a resolution plan on 19.07.2021, which was approved by the Committee of Creditors (hereinafter referred to as □CoC□) with a 100% vote on 08.03.2022. The NCLT formally approved this resolution plan vide its order dated 15.06.2022, and it was implemented on 15.09.2022. Following this, the UPERC approved the 100% change in shareholding to Resurgent Power on 29.07.2022.

9. The actual root of the dispute is the inspection dated 17.10.2022, when respondents conducted an inspection of the Rewa Road Sub-station, wherein it was observed and recorded in the minutes that no meter had been installed at the ICT-II tertiary, resulting in an absence of energy accounting since its charging from 02.10.2015. Consequently, Respondent No.1 installed a meter at the tertiary winding of ICT-II in 21.10.2022 to assess actual consumption. Thereafter, Respondent No.1 issued demand notices on 09.01.2023, 21.01.2023, and a notice on 04.02.2023, claiming an amount of Rs. 2,17,49,692.58/- for the auxiliary consumption of power from ICT-II spanning the period from 02.10.2015 to 01.12.2022.

10. The Petitioner opposed demand notices for the period prior to the approval of the resolution plan, sending reply dated 16.02.2023, and 02.03.2023, while simultaneously clearing the dues generated for the period after approval of the resolution plan on 15.06.2022 by the order passed by Ld. NCLT. On 17.05.2023, Respondent No.1 issued another demand notice dated 17.05.2023, alleging unauthorized use of electricity and indicating the probability of recovery proceedings to be initiated against the petitioner. Aggrieved by these actions, the Petitioner has approached this Court.

11. The factual background in Writ C No. 17846 of 2025 is that the petitioner, Tata Steel Limited (hereinafter referred to as □TSL□), is the successor-in-interest of Tata Steel BSL Limited (hereinafter referred to as □TSBSL□), formerly known as Bhushan Steel Limited (hereinafter referred to as □BSL□).

12. On 08.08.2011, the erstwhile BSL entered into an □Agreement for Supply of Electrical Energy□ with the Executive Engineer, Pashchimanchal Vidyut Vitran Nigam Limited (hereinafter referred to as □PVVNL□). The said agreement pertained to BSL's Pilkhuwa Stockyard, under which an industrial load connection (HV-2) category was sanctioned, and the supply of electricity commenced with effect from 01.10.2011.

13. On 03.07.2017, the State Bank of India (hereinafter referred to as □SBI□) initiated CIRP against the erstwhile BSL by filing a petition under Section 7, IBC before NCLT, New Delhi, Principal Bench. Ld. NCLT admitted the petition filed by the SBI on 26.07.2017 and appointed an Interim Resolution Professional (hereinafter referred to as □IRP□) while imposing moratorium as per procedure prescribed under IBC.

14. The IRP made public announcement inviting claims from all creditors as per procedural requirement under IBC. Subsequently, on 03.02.2018, TSL submitted its resolution plan, which was approved by the CoC on 20.03.2018. The NCLT approved TSL's resolution plan vide its order dated 15.05.2018. Following this approval, TSL acquired the control and business of BSL on 18.05.2018, and BSL's name was changed to Tata Steel BSL Limited (TSBSL) on 27.11.2018. The NCLT's approval was upheld after appeals against resolution plan got dismissed by the National Company Law Appellate Tribunal (hereinafter referred to as "NCLAT") on 10.08.2018 and the Supreme Court on 22.02.2021. Eventually, TSBSL was wholly amalgamated with TSL pursuant to the order dated 29.10.2021 passed by the learned NCLT, Mumbai Bench, with effect from 11.11.2021.

15. As appeared from records, on 11.03.2019, the erstwhile TSBSL officially intimated Respondent No. 2 about the completion of the CIRP and its takeover and thereafter deposited the requisite fee to change the consumer name from BSL to TSBSL in the electricity records. On 13.01.2023, officials of PVVNL conducted an inspection at the Pilkhuwa Stockyard, which gave rise to the present dispute. Based on the said inspection, Respondent No.2 issued the demand notice dated 09.03.2023 being Notice No. 8670, alleging that the petitioner was consuming electricity in excess of the sanctioned load and raising a demand of Rs. 1,15,33,801/-. In response, on 28.04.2023, the petitioner submitted its reply, bringing to the notice of the respondents the facts relating to CIRP and amalgamation, and also sought a two-week extension of time to furnish a detailed response.

16. On 29.04.2023, Respondent No.2 issued two more notices, being Notice Nos. 641 and 642. By notice no. 641, the petitioner's response was rejected on the ground that TSL was not competent to reply to the notice issued in the name of BSL and by notice no. 642, alleged that during the inspection dated 13.01.2023, the connection was found to be operating under the commercial load category (HV-1) instead of the sanctioned industrial category (HV-2). The said notices further directed the petitioner to appear for a hearing on 17.05.2023.

17. In response, the petitioner submitted a detailed reply dated 16.05.2023, reiterating that the stockyard was merely an extension of its Sahibabad Industrial Plant, thereby justifying classification under the (HV-2) and also asserting its legal contention that any demand relating to the period prior to approval of the CIRP on 15.05.2018 stood extinguished. Thereafter, PVVNL issued another letter dated 05.10.2023 fixing the matter for hearing on 18.10.2023, with the mention that ex-parte proceedings may be taken in the event of non-appearance. The petitioner again reiterated its stand in the letter dated 28.11.2023.

18. Following an order passed by PVVNL on 16.09.2024, determining the demand as final revenue, on 26.10.2024, Respondent No.2 issued the demand notice no. 6428, directing the Petitioner to deposit Rs. 1,15,33,801/- by 26.11.2024, failing which the recovery would be proceeded as an arrear of land revenue. Further, on 18.01.2025, notice no. 8148 was issued to the District Magistrate to initiate recovery proceedings. Consequently, on 05.02.2025, the Tehsildar, Hapur, Respondent No.3 issued the impugned recovery notice (RC No. 36) demanding the amount under the Uttar Pradesh Revenue Code (hereinafter referred to as "Revenue Code").

19. Upon receipt of the recovery citation, the petitioner sent a letter dated 20.02.2025, seeking a month-wise and year-wise calculation of the differential amount, disclosure of the precise basis for reclassification to (HV-1) category, and reiterating the applicability of the "clean slate" principle under the IBC, which makes the pre-CIRP unclaimed dues extinguished. Thereafter, on 21.03.2025, Respondent No.2 issued the demand notice, being Notice No. 10013, while stating that the department had not been formally informed of the CIRP and requiring the petitioner to undertake a formal change of name. Thereafter, the petitioner addressed letters dated 03.04.2025 to both PVVNL and the Tehsildar, placing on record the earlier intimations, including those made since 2019, and disputing the initiation of recovery proceedings.

II

Submissions on behalf of Petitioners

20. Having heard Sri Anurag Khanna, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Sri Varad Nath, as well as Ms. Sadhavi Kumar, learned counsel for the petitioner in Writ C No, 19391 of 2023 and Sri Devashish Bharukha, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Sri Pratik J. Nagar, learned counsel for the petitioner in Writ C No.-17846 of 2025, we find basic submissions advanced in both petitions has been that the impugned demand and recovery actions in both writ petitions are ex facie illegal, being in direct contravention of the respective approved resolution plans and the statutory scheme under the IBC.

21. Learned counsel appearing for the petitioner in Writ C No. 19391 of 2023 submitted that during the CIRP, neither any claim was filed by the respondent authorities in respect of electricity dues, nor was any representation or objection made by them during the pendency of CIRP proceedings. It is submitted that the CoC approved the resolution plan on 08.03.2022, which was subsequently approved by the NCLT on 15.06.2022. Neither any objection was filed by respondents against the resolution plan nor they assailed approved resolution plan at any stage.

22. Learned counsel representing petitioner in Writ C No. 19391 of 2023 further submitted that the law is well settled that the resolution plan approved by the CoC is binding upon all stakeholders. He relied upon clause 8 of the approved resolution plan, which is as follows:

"8. Waivers, Reliefs and Exemptions

8.1. The Resolution Applicant claimed various reliefs, waivers and concessions in the resolution plan. However, in our view, we cannot grant all such reliefs and concessions for the effective implementation of the Resolution Plan. As per the scheme of IBC read with the regulations made thereunder, and keeping the judicially settled position in view, we grant the reliefs, waiver and claims made by the Resolution Applicant in the following manner and only to this extent: -

a. After the payment of the dues to the creditors, as per the resolution plan, all the liabilities of the said stakeholders shall stand permanently extinguished after the approval of the resolution plan. We further hold that other claims including Government/Statutory Authority, whether lodged during CIRP or not, shall stand extinguished after the approval of the resolution plan. We further hold that contingent/unconfirmed dues shall also stand extinguished.

b. In view of the judgment of Ghanashyam Mishra & Sons Pvt Ltd v. Edelweiss Asset Reconstruction Company Ltd, where the Hon'ble Supreme Court held in para 95(i) that once a Resolution Plan is approved, a creditor cannot initiate proceedings for recovery of claims which are not part of the Resolution Plan. Therefore, all claims except provided in the plan shall stand permanently extinguished."

23. It was further submitted that after the approval of the resolution plan by the NCLT, respondent authorities conducted the inspection on 17.10.2022 at the premises of the petitioner. Later, respondents issued a demand notice dated 09.01.2023 demanding payment from 02.10.2015, which cannot be permissible in law as demand is raised for the pre-CIRP period.

24. It was submitted by the learned counsel that the petitioner has already discharged liabilities which pertain to the period after approval of the resolution plan, and the dispute in the present petition is confined to the demand raised for the pre-resolution period. Learned counsel relied upon Section 31 of the IBC, 2016 to buttress his submissions that the petitioner is not liable for the demand related to the pre-CIRP duration.

25. Sri Devashish Bharuka, learned Senior Counsel appearing in Writ C No. 17846 of 2025, submitted that while entertaining the writ petition on 29.05.2025, this Court granted interim protection to the petitioner and stayed recovery of demand relating to the period prior to 15.05.2018, and directed issuance of a revised demand confined to the period thereafter. In compliance thereof, a revised demand was issued by respondent authorities.

26. He further submitted that this Court, in its order dated 29.05.2025, also noted that the core issue for determination is whether the respondents were justified in raising demands for the pre- CIRP period despite its own fault of non-filing of claims during the CIRP and further not raising any objection till the approval of the resolution plan on 15.05.2018 by NCLT.

27. Learned counsel for the petitioners also placed reliance on judgements of the Supreme Court in Committee of Creditors of Essar Steel India Ltd. v. Satish Kumar Gupta (2020) 8 SCC 531 and Ghanshyam Mishra & Sons (P) Ltd. v. Edelweiss Asset Reconstruction Co. Ltd. (2021) 9 SCC 657.

28. Learned counsel for the petitioner appearing in Writ C No. 19391 of 2023 further submitted that pursuant to initiation of CIRP by NCLT, Allahabad Bench vide its order dated 06.07.2020, after following due procedure of CIRP, the resolution plan submitted by Resurgent Power Ventures Limited was approved on 15.06.2022 by NCLT and had since been implemented. Similarly, in Writ C No. 17846 of 2025, the approved resolution plan dated 15.05.2018 in respect of the erstwhile corporate debtor has attained finality and has been duly acted upon. In both cases, the approved resolution frameworks have not been challenged by the respondents when it could have been, and now the resolution is concluded.

29. It was submitted that in both petitions, substantial portion of the impugned demands pertains to the pre-CIRP period. In Writ C No. 19391 of 2023, the demand relates to the period prior to 15.06.2022, whereas in Writ C No. 17846 of 2025, the demand pertains to the period from 08.08.2011 to 15.05.2018. Relying on the "clean slate" doctrine read with Sections 31(1) and 238 of the IBC, 2016, it was contended that all such pre-CIRP debts and statutory dues stand extinguished upon approval of the resolution plan and cannot be revived or demanded thereafter.

30. Learned counsel for the petitioners submitted that Section 31 of the IBC makes the approved resolution plan binding on all stakeholders, including governmental and statutory authorities, and all claims not forming part of the approved resolution plan stand extinguished upon its approval. It is further emphasized that CIRP proceedings are in rem in nature and bind all stakeholders without requiring individual intimation. Reliance in this regard is placed on the judgement of the Supreme Court in RPS Infrastructure Ltd. v. Mukul Kumar (2023) 10 SCC 718.

31. It was further submitted that the respondents had acted arbitrarily in both matters. In Writ C No. 19391 of 2023, the petitioner's electricity connection was reclassified from industrial to commercial without any cogent basis or supporting material, and despite repeated requests dated 16.02.2022 and 02.03.2023, no meaningful breakup of the demand was supplied to the petitioner. In Writ C No. 17846 of 2025, similar arbitrariness is alleged in the assessment of demand without proper disclosure or transparency, rendering the impugned actions violative of principles of natural justice.

32. Further, it was submitted that CIRP being in rem proceedings, all stakeholders are deemed to have knowledge of its commencement and also the public announcement was duly made in compliance with Section 15 of the IBC read with Regulation 6 of the Insolvency and Bankruptcy Board of India (Insolvency Resolution Process for Corporate Persons) Regulations, 2016 (hereinafter referred to as "IBBI Regulation"), including publication in widely circulated newspapers. In this circumstance, respondent authorities, cannot plead ignorance of the CIRP proceedings and even if they do so, that cannot make any difference as per settled law on this issue.

33. It was further submitted that in both matters, the respondents are attempting to enforce pre-CIRP liabilities contrary to the approved resolution framework and established legal principles in this regard. Reliance is placed on Section 238 of the IBC, which gives overriding effect over the Electricity Act, 2003. It was also argued that Section 238 of the IBC contains a clear non-obstante clause giving overriding effect to the provisions of the Code over any other law for the time being in force.

34. The petitioners relied upon judgement in Paschimanchal Vidyut Vitran Nigam Ltd. v. Raman Ispat Pvt. Ltd. (2023) 10 SCC 60, where the Supreme Court has held that the waterfall mechanism provided under Section 53, makes it clear that the governmental dues rank subservient to those of secured, unsecured, and operational creditors.

35. Learned counsel further submitted that the respondents are "operational creditors" within the meaning of Sections 5(20) of the IBC, as the impugned demands constitute "claim" being "operational debts", and are therefore bound by the approved resolution plans. Since they could not file claim within time, they cannot demand it after approval as well as implementation of the resolution plan. Petitioners finally reiterated that in both writ petitions, the respondents are seeking to enforce extinguished claims contrary to the statutory provisions of the IBC as well as established legal principles, and therefore impugned demand notices deserve to be quashed.

36. It was also submitted that the respondent authorities failed to file their claims during the time provided for the same by Resolution Professional during CIRP in both matters and, consequently, claims stand extinguished and cannot be revived after approval of the resolution plans.

III

Submissions on behalf of Respondents

37. Having heard Sri Sambhu Chopra, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Sri Narendra Kumar Tiwari, learned counsel for the respondents in Writ C No.-19391 of 2023 and Sri M. C. Chaturvedi, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Sri Ravi Anand Agarwal, learned panel counsel for respondents in Writ C No.-17846 of 2025. Learned counsel for the respondents in both petitions submitted that the writ petitions are misconceived and the impugned demands are fully justified in law as well as on facts. It was contended that the reliance placed by the petitioners on the doctrine of "clean slate" under the IBC is wholly misplaced, inasmuch as statutory dues and electricity charges owed to public authorities cannot be extinguished in the manner suggested. In support of this submission, counsel appearing for respective respondents, relied upon the judgments of the Supreme Court in Telangana State Southern Power Distribution Company Ltd. v. Srighdaa Beverages, (2020) 6 SCC 404 and State Tax Officer v. Rainbow Papers Limited (2023) 9 SCC 545.

38. Learned counsel further submitted that a conjoint reading of the principles in above-mentioned judgments along with the provisions of the Electricity Act, 2003 and the applicable state electricity regulations makes it clear that statutory dues created by operation of law constitute secured debts and cannot be extinguished by referring to the IBC framework. It was further submitted that any resolution plan which ignores such statutory dues payable to governmental authorities is contrary to law and cannot bind respondent authorities.

39. Learned counsel further submitted that under the statutory scheme of the Electricity Act, 2003 and Electricity Supply Code, 2005, electricity dues constitute statutory charges having enforceable legal character and cannot be defeated by general application of the provisions of IBC.

40. It was also submitted that the Resolution Professional was under a statutory obligation under Section 29 of the IBC to prepare an accurate Information Memorandum reflecting all liabilities, disputes, and operational dues, including electricity dues. In both matters, the petitioners were continuously availing electricity supply, and such consumption ought to have been duly reflected in the CIRP records. He further submitted that the failure of the Resolution Professional to properly disclose and maintain proper account of such liabilities cannot operate to extinguish lawful dues of statutory authorities, and the CIRP process cannot be used as a mechanism to defeat actual consumption based liabilities.

41. It was further contended that the reliance placed by the petitioners on Ghanshyam Mishra & Sons (P) Ltd. (supra) is misconceived and distinguishable, as the said judgment does not deal with statutory dues secured by operation of law, but pertains to claims in the context of resolution proceedings where creditors had participated or had the opportunity to submit claims.

42. It was further submitted that the principles laid down in Rainbow Papers (supra) clarifies that statutory dues cannot be ignored in the resolution process and authorities cannot be deprived of their lawful dues merely due to approval of a resolution plan. He further submitted that petitioners cannot take advantage of their own non-disclosure during CIRP to defeat lawful claims arising from actual consumption of electricity.

43. Learned counsel for the respondent submitted that the petitioner in Writ C No. 19391 of 2023 had unauthorisedly drawn electricity through ICT-II tertiary connection without proper authorisation and metering arrangement. The same was discovered during inspection conducted on 17.10.2022, wherein it was found that electricity was being consumed through an undisclosed arrangement and was accordingly assessed.

44. It was submitted by the counsel that such unauthorised consumption continued for a prolonged period and liability for electricity consumption commenced from 02.10.2015 as it was duly reflected in the impugned demand notices. The inspection took place after approval of the resolution plan on 15.06.2022, the petitioner cannot rely upon the resolution plan to avoid liability for actual consumption.

45. It was further submitted that the petitioner continued correspondence in its own name even after the alleged takeover and also made payments under its earlier identity, thereby demonstrating continuity of liability. It was therefore submitted that the petitioner was attempting to evade statutory liability under the guise of insolvency proceedings, which is impermissible in law.

46. Regarding Writ C No. 17846 of 2025 learned counsel for the respondent submitted that the impugned demands were raised strictly in accordance with statutory provisions governing electricity supply and recovery of dues. It was urged by the counsel that Sections 173 and 174 of the Electricity Act, 2003 contain non-obstante clauses, and therefore the recovery proceedings are fully protected thereunder and the same is legally justified.

47. It was further submitted that as per Section 5 of the Uttar Pradesh Government Electrical Undertaking (Dues Recovery) Act, 1958, read with Rule 5 of Uttar Pradesh Government Electrical Undertaking (Dues Recovery) Rule, 1958 dues are recoverable as arrears of land revenue, and the petitioner continues to be a □consumer□ of the electricity connection originally issued to BSL.

48. Learned Senior Counsel for the respondents further submitted that Clause 5 of the supply agreement in between PVVNL and the petitioner in Writ C No. 19391 of 2023, creates a charge on the assets of the company. He further submitted that in terms of Section 100 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, such charge is enforceable in law being a secured interest. Above mentioned Clause 5 is reproduced as under:

“5. The outstanding dues will be a charge on the assets of the company. Before sale is made, the outstanding dues will be cleared and, in the alternative the deed to agreement / sale will specifically mention the outstanding dues and the method of its payment.”

(emphasis supplied)

49. It was further submitted that the statutory framework under the Electricity Act, 2003, read with the Uttar Pradesh Government Electrical Undertaking (Dues Recovery) Act, 1958, governs recovery, and the expression □consumer□ includes any person supplied with electricity. The petitioner, being a continuing user of the same connection, was therefore liable for outstanding dues.

50. It was further submitted that inspection conducted on 13.01.2023 revealed that electricity was being consumed beyond the sanctioned load and that the industrial connection (HV-2) was being used for commercial purposes (HV-1). It was also submitted that stockyard operations were continuing both prior to and after the takeover, and the petitioner was admittedly paying current electricity bills under commercial tariff.

51. It was therefore submitted that differential tariff and consequential demand had been correctly raised on the basis of actual usage and classification, and the petitioner cannot avoid liability for consumption under an incorrect tariff category. It was further submitted that no crystallised claim existed during CIRP so far as the respondents are concerned, and therefore there was no occasion to file any claim before the Resolution Professional. It was also submitted that no notice of CIRP was received by the respondent authorities.

52. Learned counsel for the respondents further submitted that since the erstwhile company continued in the same name even after approval of the resolution plan by the NCLT - and its subsequent affirmation by the Appellate Tribunal and dismissal of the special leave petition by the Supreme Court - the liability is deemed to have continued. Consequently, the petitioner, being the successor entity, cannot avoid such liability.

53. Sri M.C. Chaturvedi, learned Senior Advocate appearing for the respondent authorities, further submitted that since the electricity connection was originally granted in the industrial category (HV-1) to BSL, the petitioner was not justified in utilising it for commercial purposes. It was submitted that this misuse was discovered during an inspection conducted on 13.01.2023, and accordingly the demand was raised. It was further submitted that once unauthorised use of electricity is established, the charges become recoverable from the date of such unauthorised use commenced.

54. It was lastly submitted that the calculation of the impugned demand is based on due inspection and verification, supported by the checking report and calculation sheets on record after full compliance of provisions of law. In view of the aforesaid, the impugned demands in both writ petitions are justified, being based on actual consumption as well as statutory authority; therefore, both writ petitions are liable to be dismissed.

IV

Points for Determination

55. Having considered the facts of the case and the submissions advanced on behalf of the parties, following points arise for consideration in these writ petitions:

(i) Whether IBC overrides the electricity laws and regulations, thereby barring the respondent authorities from raising demands for the pre-resolution period after the resolution plan is duly approved and implemented.

(ii) Whether the respondent authorities are entitled to receive separate notice of the CIRP and whether they had information to provide them opportunity to file their claims.

(iii) Whether the respondent authorities could raise demand for their statutory dues after implementation of resolution plan, while they have neither filed their claim during CIRP nor objected to the resolution plan before NCLT.

Discussion and Analysis

56. The Supreme Court has analysed the scope of judicial review in insolvency cases in Torrent Power Ltd. v. Ashish Arjunkumar Rathi and Others, 2026 SCC OnLine SC 325, where it was held that:

“14.7. Predictability and finality are thus essential to maintaining a robust insolvency regime. Judicial intervention beyond the narrow statutory confines undermines both predictability and finality. Recognising this, the IBC deliberately confines judicial review to strict statutory compliance under Sections 30(2) and 61(3). Respecting these limits will preserve the economic sense of the IBC and ensure that insolvency remains a predictable, time-bound, and market-driven process.”

57. Having regard to the settled legal position that the scope of judicial review over an approved resolution plan under the IBC is limited, and that the commercial wisdom of the CoC is ordinarily not open to judicial scrutiny, we proceed to examine issues arising for determination in these petitions.

(i) Overriding Effect of the IBC over Electricity Laws.

(a) Arrival of IBC

58. In the history of economic law reforms in India, bringing IBC holds a distinct place, as it introduced a consolidated, time-bound framework for insolvency resolution, replacing the earlier fragmented regime of multiple forums and different laws. The legislative design of the IBC prioritises resolution and makes liquidation as a last resort; its main objective is to protect the economic value of the company and keep the corporate debtor as a going concern while under CIRP.

59. The basic feature of insolvency law framework is the finality accorded to an approved resolution plan by the Statute, including necessary provisions to minimize interference with the final resolution plan. Under IBC, once a plan is approved by the adjudicating authority, it is intended to bind all stakeholders - including governmental and statutory authorities - to ensure that the successful resolution applicant is not burdened with unforeseen or belated claims relating to the period preceding the resolution process.

60. Generally, the "clean slate principle" is being used to explain the status of the resolved company. This doctrine flows from the statutory architecture itself and is founded on the premise that all claims arising prior to the approval of the resolution plan must be submitted within the insolvency framework, failing which they stand extinguished upon approval of the plan. This ensures certainty, predictability, and viability of the resolution process.

61. Equally significant feature of the IBC is the collective mechanism of the insolvency process. It contemplates that all creditors, including statutory authorities, participate in the CIRP by filing their claims in a timely manner. The integrity of the process get ensured with the participation of all creditors while they file their respective claims, enabling the CoC to evaluate the corporate debtor's liabilities in an informed manner.

62. Against this statutory backdrop, it is necessary to examine that which law will have primacy and whether statutory authorities, having chosen not to file their claims in the CIRP, can bypass the resolution mechanism and raise demands post-approval of the resolution plan in respect of pre-CIRP dues. It also falls for consideration that whether such claims stand extinguished upon approval of the resolution plan, or whether the impugned demand notices can survive in law despite the absence of any objection having been raised by the respondents to the resolution plan, which was subsequently approved by the NCLT. It further falls for consideration whether such claims stand extinguished upon approval of the resolution plan, or whether the impugned demand notices can survive in law despite the absence of any challenge to the resolution plan, which was subsequently approved by the NCLT.

63. These questions go to the root of the sanctity of the insolvency process and the binding effect of an approved resolution plan under the IBC. With this backdrop, we proceed to examine the facts and issues arising in these writ petition.

(b) Interplay in between IBC and Electricity Laws.

64. After hearing learned counsel for the parties and upon perusal of the material on record, the first question that arises for consideration is the interplay between the provisions of the IBC and the Electricity Act, 2003, as well as other applicable electricity laws governing dues in the State of Uttar Pradesh. Since learned counsel appearing for both sides are ad idem that the grievance in the present petitions is confined to demand notices raising claims pertaining to the pre-CIRP period, the consideration is accordingly limited to the legality and enforceability of such demands arising prior to the approval of the resolution plan.

65. Relevant provisions of the Electricity Act, 2003 require consideration, and in this regard, counsel appearing for respondent authorities relied upon Sections 173 and 174 of the Electricity Act, 2003, which are reproduced below:

“173. Inconsistency in laws. □ Nothing contained in this Act or any rule or regulation made thereunder or any instrument having effect by virtue of this Act, rule or regulation shall have effect in so far as it is inconsistent with any other provisions of the Consumer Protection Act, 1986 (68 of 1986) or the Atomic Energy Act, 1962 (33 of 1962) or the Railways Act, 1989 (24 of 1989).

174. Act to have overriding effect.- Save as otherwise provided in section 173, the provisions of this Act shall have effect notwithstanding anything inconsistent therewith contained in any other law for the time being in force or in any instrument having effect by virtue of any law other than this Act.”

66. To determine the primacy in between IBC and Electricity Act, 2003, similar provision of the IBC also require consideration. Learned counsel appearing for petitioners relied upon Section 238 of the IBC to assert primacy of IBC 2016 over The Electricity Act 2003. Section 238 IBC reads as under:

“238. Provisions of this Code to override other laws.

The provisions of this Code shall have effect, notwithstanding anything inconsistent therewith contained in any other law for the time being in force or any instrument having effect by virtue of any such law.”

67. Bare perusal of the Section 238 demonstrates a legislative mandate that the provisions of IBC shall prevail notwithstanding anything inconsistent contained in any other law for the time being in force. The effect of this provision is to accord primacy to the insolvency resolution mechanism, ensuring that in the event of any inconsistency or conflict with other statutory regimes, the mechanism and outcomes contemplated under the IBC cannot be diluted.

68. In addition to above, a reading of Section 31 of the IBC is also significant, which indicates that an approved resolution plan is binding on all stakeholders, including governmental and statutory authorities. Section 31 (1) of the IBC is reproduced below for easy reference:

“31. Approval of resolution plan. (1) If the Adjudicating Authority is satisfied that the resolution plan as approved by the committee of creditors under sub-section (4) of section 30 meets the requirements as referred to in sub-section (2) of section 30, it shall by order approve the resolution plan which shall be binding on the corporate debtor and its employees, members, creditors, including the Central Government, any State Government or any local authority to whom a debt in respect of the payment of dues arising under any law for the time being in force, such as authorities to whom statutory dues are owed.] guarantors and other stakeholders involved in the resolution plan:

Provided that the Adjudicating Authority shall, before passing an order for approval of resolution plan under this sub-section, satisfy that the resolution plan has provisions for its effective implementation.

69. Conjoint reading of both provisions indicate that the statutory scheme of the IBC is designed to confer finality upon the resolution process by making the approved resolution plan binding on all stakeholders, and simultaneously through its overriding clause, it ensures that nothing should unsettle matters concluded therein to create problem for the resolved company after completion of CIRP. The legislative intent is thus to create a self-contained and comprehensive framework where all claims against the corporate debtor are required to be addressed during CIRP period only, so that upon approval of the resolution plan, the rights and liabilities stand conclusively determined.

70. We also consider it necessary to refer legal maxim, □leges posteriores priores contrarias abrogant□, which means wherever two enactments are irreconcilably inconsistent, the later enactment must prevail to the extent of such inconsistency. This principle of interpretation of statutes is generally applicable in a situation where two enactments appear to operate in the same field but got enacted in different timeline. It is a settled rule of statutory interpretation is that where there is a conflict between two statutes, the Court must first attempt a harmonious construction, however, where such reconciliation is not possible, the later enactment would prevail as per above-mentioned maxim.

71. In the light of above, if we read Section 238 of IBC, it clearly indicates the legislative intent to ensure that the insolvency resolution framework operates with primacy in the event of inconsistency. Hence, reliance on the provisions of Electricity Act, 2003 and UP Electricity Supply Code 2005 to contend that the pre-CIRP dues can be recovered after the company is resolved and the resolution plan is implemented, is completely misconceived.

72. The IBC is a subsequent and comprehensive legislation intended to consolidate and amend the laws relating to insolvency resolution, specifically focussing on revival of corporate debtors in a time-bound manner. The scheme of the Code would be rendered unworkable if past liabilities, not forming part of the resolution plan, were permitted to be raised by claimants relying upon any other Statute.

73. For ascertaining the legislative intent underlying the enactment of the IBC, we consider it appropriate to refer to its preamble, which was also analysed by the Supreme Court in Innovative Industries Ltd. v. ICICI Bank & Anr., (2018) 1 SCC 407. It is settled beyond ambiguity that IBC was enacted to consolidate and amend the laws relating to reorganisation and insolvency resolution of corporate persons, partnership firms, and individuals in a time-bound manner, keeping in view maximisation of assets value. It further seeks to balance the interests of all stakeholders while providing a waterfall mechanism for payment of dues.

74. The above provisions make it abundantly clear that the intent of Parliament was to ensure that a successful resolution applicant is not burdened with past liabilities which were not part of the resolution plan, as the same would deter prospective applicants and undermine the efficacy of the insolvency regime if there is sword of uncertain and unquantified dues is left hanging over their heads.

75. Thus, when Section 238 of the IBC is read in light of the objective of the Code and established legal principles, there remains no doubt that in the event of inconsistency between the IBC and any other statutes, including sector-specific enactments such as the Electricity Act, 2003, the provisions of the IBC would prevail.

76. The reliance placed by the respondents on the statutory character of electricity dues or the provisions of the Electricity Act cannot override the express mandate of the IBC. As a subsequent enactment, the IBC provides a comprehensive insolvency framework while accounting for all other existing laws. Therefore, the claims in question, which relate to any period prior to approval of the resolution plan are to be considered as extinguished.

(c) Principles Laid Down by the Supreme Court

77. The Supreme Court in Essar Steel India Ltd. Committee of Creditors v. Satish Kumar Gupta (2020) 8 SCC 531, held that:

“107. For the same reason, the impugned NCLAT judgment [Standard Chartered Bank v. Satish Kumar Gupta, 2019 SCC OnLine NCLAT 388] in holding that claims that may exist apart from those decided on merits by the resolution professional and by the Adjudicating Authority/Appellate Tribunal can now be decided by an appropriate forum in terms of Section 60(6) of the Code, also militates against the rationale of Section 31 of the Code. A successful resolution applicant cannot suddenly be faced with □undecided□ claims after the resolution plan submitted by him has been accepted as this would amount to a hydra head popping up which would throw into uncertainty amounts payable by a prospective resolution applicant who would successfully take over the business of the corporate debtor. All claims must be submitted to and decided by the resolution professional so that a prospective resolution applicant knows exactly what has to be paid in order that it may then take over and run the business of the corporate debtor. This the successful resolution applicant does on a fresh slate, as has been pointed out by us hereinabove. For these reasons, NCLAT judgment must also be set aside on this count.”

78. This legal position has been further clarified by the Supreme court in Ghanshyam Mishra & Sons (P) Ltd. (supra), and held that once a resolution plan is approved under Section 31(1), it is binding on all stakeholders, including the Central Government, State Government, and local authorities. Claims not part of the plan are extinguished, ensuring no surprise claims are sprung on the successful resolution applicant. Relevant paragraphs of the judgment are as follows:

“93. As discussed hereinabove, one of the principal objects of the I&B Code is providing for revival of the corporate debtor and to make it a going concern. The I&B Code is a complete Code in itself. Upon admission of petition under Section 7 there are various important duties and functions entrusted to RP and CoC. RP is required to issue a publication inviting claims from all the stakeholders. He is required to collate the said information and submit necessary details in the information memorandum. The resolution applicants submit their plans on the basis of the details provided in the information memorandum. The resolution plans undergo deep scrutiny by RP as well as CoC. In the negotiations that may be held between CoC and the resolution applicant, various modifications may be made so as to ensure that while paying part of the dues of financial creditors as well as operational creditors and other stakeholders, the corporate debtor is revived and is made an on-going concern. After CoC approves the plan, the adjudicating authority is required to arrive at a subjective satisfaction that the plan conforms to the requirements as are provided in sub-section (2) of Section 30 of the I&B Code. Only thereafter, the adjudicating authority can grant its approval to the plan. It is at this stage that the plan becomes binding on the corporate debtor, its employees, members, creditors, guarantors and other stakeholders involved in the resolution plan. The legislative intent behind this is to freeze all the claims so that the resolution applicant starts on a clean slate and is not flung with any surprise claims. If that is permitted, the very calculations on the basis of which the resolution applicant submits its plans would go haywire and the plan would be unworkable.

102. In the result, we answer the questions framed by us as under:

102.1. That once a resolution plan is duly approved by the adjudicating authority under sub-section (1) of Section 31, the claims as provided in the resolution plan shall stand frozen and will be binding on the corporate debtor and its employees, members, creditors, including the Central Government, any State Government or any local authority, guarantors and other stakeholders. On the date of approval of resolution plan by the adjudicating authority, all such claims, which are not a part of resolution plan, shall stand extinguished and no person will be entitled to initiate or continue any proceedings in respect to a claim, which is not part of the resolution plan.

102.2. The 2019 Amendment to Section 31 of the I&B Code is clarificatory and declaratory in nature and therefore will be effective from the date on which the I&B Code has come into effect.

102.3. Consequently, all the dues including the statutory dues owed to the Central Government, any State Government or any local authority, if not part of the resolution plan, shall stand extinguished and no proceedings in respect of such dues for the period prior to the date on which the adjudicating authority grants its approval under Section 31 could be continued.”

79. The principle established by the Supreme Court in the aforementioned judgments is that a successful resolution applicant must be permitted to take over the corporate debtor on a □clean slate□ and the new entity should be free from past liabilities except those specifically preserved in the resolution plan. The IBC is based on the principle that upon approval of a resolution plan, the corporate debtor emerges from insolvency in a renewed form, with its past liabilities crystallised and confined strictly to those recognised in the resolution plan.

80. The respondents' contention is that electricity dues, being statutory in nature, cannot be extinguished in such manner and that such dues constitute secured debts by operation of law is unacceptable. In support thereof, reliance had been placed by respondents on State Tax Officer (1) v. Rainbow Papers Ltd. (supra), and Telangana State Southern Power Distribution Co. Ltd. (supra), however, both judgements are distinguishable on their facts. This Court finds that while the aforesaid judgments recognise that certain statutory dues may be in the character of secured debts, the same cannot be read in a manner so as to dilute the overriding scheme of the IBC in the facts of these cases where the resolutions plans have already got implemented.

81. It is a settled legal principle that the corporate soul, once purged through the judicial resolution process under IBC, is a legally reborn entity that does not carry the burden of its past debts, therefore, even if the Corporate Debtor continues to operate under its old name, it cannot be held liable for extinguished dues that were not recognised in the NCLT approved resolution plan. In Ruchi Soya Industries Ltd. v. Union of India (2022) 6 SCC 343 the Supreme Court held as follows:

"11. Admittedly, the claim in respect of the demand which is the subject-matter of the present proceedings was not lodged by Respondent 2 after public announcements were issued under Sections 13 and 15 IBC. As such, on the date on which the resolution plan was approved by the learned NCLT, all claims stood frozen, and no claim, which is not a part of the resolution plan, would survive."

82. In this regard, reference may be made to Paschimanchal Vidyut Vitran Nigam Ltd. (supra), wherein the Supreme Court considered the status of electricity dues in the context of the IBC and held that the IBC overrides the provisions of the Electricity Act, 2003, as section 238 of the IBC contains a non-obstante clause. The Supreme Court distinguished findings of Rainbow Papers (supra) and further held that:

"53. Rainbow Papers [STO v. Rainbow Papers Ltd., (2023) 9 SCC 545] did not notice the waterfall mechanism under Section 53-the provision had not been adverted to or extracted in the judgment. Furthermore, Rainbow Papers [STO v. Rainbow Papers Ltd., (2023) 9 SCC 545] was in the context of a resolution process and not during liquidation. Section 53, as held earlier, enacts the waterfall mechanism providing for the hierarchy or priority of claims of various classes of creditors. The careful design of Section 53 locates amounts payable to secured creditors and workmen at the second place, after the costs and expenses of the liquidator payable during the liquidation proceedings. However, the dues payable to the government are placed much below those of secured creditors and even unsecured and operational creditors. This design was either not brought to the notice of the Court in Rainbow Papers [STO v. Rainbow Papers Ltd., (2023) 9 SCC 545] or was missed altogether. In any event, the judgment has not taken note of the provisions of IBC which treat the dues payable to the secured creditors at a higher footing than dues payable to the Central or the State Government."

57. Similarly, in Duncans Industries Ltd. v. AJ Agrochem [Duncans Industries Ltd. v. AJ Agrochem, (2019) 9 SCC 725 : (2019) 4 SCC (Civ) 669], Section 16-G of the Tea Act, 1953 which required prior consent of the Central Government (for initiation of winding-up proceedings) was held to be overridden by IBC. In a similar manner, it is held that Section 238 IBC overrides the provisions of the Electricity Act, 2003 despite the latter containing two specific provisions which open with non obstante clauses (i.e. Sections 173 and 174). The position of law with respect to primacy of IBC, is identical with the position discussed in ABG Shipyard Liquidator [ABG Shipyard Liquidator v. Central Board of Indirect Taxes & Customs, (2023) 1 SCC 472 : (2023) 1 SCC (Civ) 251] and Duncans Industries [Duncans Industries Ltd. v. AJ Agrochem, (2019) 9 SCC 725 : (2019) 4 SCC (Civ) 669] [refer also : Innoventive Industries [Innoventive Industries Ltd. v. ICICI Bank, (2018) 1 SCC 407 : (2018) 1 SCC (Civ) 356], CIT v. Monnet Ispat & Energy Ltd. [CIT v. Monnet Ispat & Energy Ltd., (2018) 18 SCC 786 : (2019) 3 SCC (Civ) 252], Ghanashyam Mishra & Sons (P) Ltd. v. Edelweiss Asset Reconstruction Co. Ltd. [Ghanashyam Mishra & Sons (P) Ltd. v. Edelweiss Asset Reconstruction Co. Ltd., (2021) 9 SCC 657 : (2021) 4 SCC (Civ) 638], and Jagmohan Bajaj v. Shivam Fragrances (P) Ltd. [Jagmohan Bajaj v. Shivam Fragrances (P) Ltd., 2018 SCC OnLine NCLAT 413]]."

(emphasis supplied)

(ii) Notice of CIRP and non-submission of claims

(a) Nature of Electricity Dues under the IBC

83. Under IBC, the concept of a claim is intentionally broad, and it forms the foundation for determining the scope of liabilities in insolvency proceedings. Section 3(6) IBC defines a claim. The definition is significant, as it enables diverse liabilities, including statutory dues on corporate debtor. Thus, the statutory character of electricity dues as a claim, by itself, is not excluded from the ambit of the IBC, but once a resolution plan is approved, any claim pertaining to the period prior thereto, if not forming part of the resolution plan, can be claimed after the implementation of the resolution plan or the same is extinguished is to be determined.

84. In the light of IBC framework and judicially established principles, it cannot be accepted that liabilities pertaining to a period prior to the resolution can be permitted to resurface after conclusion of the CIRP, merely because they were not earlier quantified, and thereby burdening the resolved corporate entity. Permitting such an approach would defeat the finality attached to the resolution plan and undermine the very objective of revival by exposing the corporate debtor to uncertain and indeterminate liabilities. Accordingly, such claims cannot be imposed upon the resolved entity, irrespective of the fact that whether the entity continues under the same old name or a different one. Once the resolution plan has attained finality, a new entity is born after implementation of the resolution plan, and the scope for judicial review also gets over qua that approved resolution plan.

85. Therefore, even if a distinction is to be drawn between claims which were in existence or ascertainable during CIRP but claims not filed, and those which were detected subsequently, the former would stand extinguished, the latter would be barred by application of the "clean slate" doctrine and consequently that will also get extinguished.

(b) Whether Public Announcement is sufficient notice under IBC

86. The next issue, which requires consideration is whether the respondent authorities had notice of the CIRP to file their claims. In this regard, Section 15 of the IBC, which also provides details regarding contents for the public announcement of initiation of CIRP, is to be read as follows:

"15. Public announcement of corporate insolvency resolution process. (1) The public announcement of the corporate insolvency resolution process under the order referred to in section 13 shall contain the following information, namely:-

(a) name and address of the corporate debtor under the corporate insolvency resolution process;

(b) name of the authority with which the corporate debtor is incorporated or registered;

(c) the last date for submission of claims, as may be specified;

(d) details of the interim resolution professional who shall be vested with the management of the corporate debtor and be responsible for receiving claims;

(e) penalties for false or misleading claims; and

(f) the date on which the corporate insolvency resolution process shall close, which shall be the one hundred and eightieth day from the date of the admission of the application under sections 7, 9 or section 10, as the case may be.

(2) The public announcement under this section shall be made in such manner as may be specified."

87. Bare reading of Section 15 of the IBC makes it clear that the Code contemplates mechanism and content for public notice, but it does not contemplate individual service of notice for informing stakeholders of the initiation of the CIRP. The provision mandates a public announcement containing complete particulars of the corporate debtor, the interim resolution professional, and significantly, the last date for submission of claims, along with consequences of non-compliance. Such announcement is required to be made in the manner prescribed under the regulations.

88. The nature of CIRP proceedings as proceedings in rem and the effect of public announcement have been considered by the Supreme Court in RPS Infrastructure Ltd. v. Mukul Kumar (2023) 10 SCC 718. Supreme Court held that:

“21. The second question is whether the delay in the filing of claim by the appellant ought to have been condoned by Respondent 1. The IBC is a time bound process. There are, of course, certain circumstances in which the time can be increased. The question is whether the present case would fall within those parameters. The delay on the part of the appellant is of 287 days. The appellant is a commercial entity. That they were litigating against the corporate debtor is an undoubted fact. We believe that the appellant ought to have been vigilant enough in the aforesaid circumstances to find out whether the corporate debtor was undergoing CIRP. The appellant has been deficient on this aspect. The result, of course, is that the appellant to an extent has been left high and dry.”

(emphasis supplied)

89. From the aforementioned, it is established that individual notice to each creditor is not contemplated under the mechanism of IBC, and public announcement is treated as sufficient notice. Creditors are expected to act with necessary diligence and file their claims within the prescribed time during CIRP.

(c) Effect of non-filing of claim during CIRP

90. In the absence of any material to indicate procedural irregularity in the conduct of CIRP, the respondents, being commercial entities, cannot be permitted to plead ignorance from CIRP being the reason for not challenging the resolution plan at any stage till the resolution plan got approved by NCLT. Accordingly, if a claim existed and was capable of being filed during CIRP, failure to do so would result in its extinguishment upon approval of the resolution plan.

91. However, the submission advanced on behalf of the respondents that no crystallised claim existed during the CIRP also requires careful scrutiny. If stand of the respondents is that the liability did not realised during the subsistence of the CIRP and that the dues were discovered only after its conclusion, the question would arise whether such a claim was capable of being asserted within the CIRP framework pursuant to the public announcement inviting claims. If the claim was not in existence during CIRP, the same cannot be imposed as liability of the resolved corporate entity.

(iii) Maintainability of demand notices raised for pre-CIRP period

92. Applying the above discussed principles to determine that whether the respondent authorities can be permitted to raise demand for their statutory dues after implementation of resolution plan, while they have neither filed their claim during CIRP nor objected to the resolution plan before NCLT.

93. In the facts of Writ C No. 19391 of 2023, the demand has been raised pursuant to inspection dated 17.10.2022, i.e., much after approval of the resolution plan on 15.06.2022 and its effective implementation and therefore, the demand for the time period going back to the pre-CIRP period. To the extent the demand is of past dues which could have been determined prior to approval of the resolution plan and the claims could have been filed if the respondent authorities were vigilant, that demand would not be sustainable. However, to the extent demand arises from detection of unauthorised consumption revealed during inspection, and the same is for the consumption by the resolved company and after resolution plan got implemented, the dues are liable to be paid.

94. Similarly, in Writ C No. 17846 of 2025, the demand is based on inspection indicating excess load and misuse of tariff category. To the extent the demand pertains to continuing usage or post-resolution liability, it would not be hit by the resolution plan. However, any component of the demand related to the pre-CIRP period, which did not form part of the approved resolution plan, would liable to be set aside due to the same reasoning.

95. We are also of the view that even otherwise, the exercise of statutory power must conform to the principles of natural justice. In the present case, the grievance regarding not providing proper breakup and lack of clarity in the impugned demands assumes significance and the authorities are directed to act with fairness and transparency while making any such demand in future. Accordingly, the impugned demand notices are required to be tested not only on the touchstone of the IBC framework but also on compliance with principles of natural justice and procedural fairness.

96. Applying legal principles discussed above in the facts of Writ C No. 19391 of 2023, the admitted position is that the resolution plan was approved by NCLT on 15.06.2022. The inspection, however, was conducted thereafter on 17.10.2022, and the demand has been raised covering a period substantially prior to approval of the resolution plan. To the extent the impugned demand seeks recovery of dues relatable to the pre-resolution period, the same would fall within the ambit of claims required to be filed during the CIRP, and upon approval of the resolution plan, stands extinguished in view of Section 31 read with Section 238 of the Code.

97. Similarly, in Writ C No. 17846 of 2025, the impugned demands are stated to arise out of inspection leading to reclassification of tariff category and detection of alleged misuse of sanctioned load. To the extent such reclassification and consequential billing pertain to continuing usage or post-resolution conduct, the respondents statutory authority can proceed in accordance with the applicable electricity laws. However, any component of the demand attributable to the pre-resolution period, which was not incorporated in the approved resolution plan, would stand on a different footing and cannot be demanded contrary to the settled position of law under the IBC.

98. It is an undisputed fact that respondent authorities neither filed claim during the CIRP nor questioned the resolution plan at any stage, despite the same having attained finality not only from NCLT but also upheld by NCLAT and Supreme Court where other stakeholders assailed the same. The law is settled that once resolution plan, is approved by NCLT, it attains binding force on all stakeholders, including those who chose not to participate in the process. In such statutory framework, permitting a belated claim to be raised after the culmination of the process would run contrary to the settled principles governing finality and sanctity of an approved resolution plan. Accordingly, claims not forming part of the CIRP or the approved plan cannot survive once the CIRP is concluded.

99. The Supreme Court has consistently held that the commercial wisdom of the CoC is decisive in matters relating to the resolution of the corporate debtor and is not ordinarily subject to judicial interference. In Torrent Power Ltd., (supra) the Supreme Court has held that the commercial wisdom of the CoC is paramount. It has further observed that:

“12.5. The issue is no longer res integra, the law having been settled that the commercial wisdom of the CoC enjoys primacy and cannot be supplanted by judicial review. Neither the NCLT, nor the NCLAT nor even this Court is empowered to substitute its assessment in place of the commercial decision arrived at by a requisite majority of the CoC.

13. The appeals before us typify the growing strategic use of the judicial system by unsuccessful resolution applicants, who seek to reopen almost every commercial decision under the guise of procedural impropriety. This converts the corporate resolution process into a protracted adversarial contest and erodes the value of the Corporate Debtor. Such an approach incentivises delay, rent-seeking, and strategic obstruction and is fundamentally inconsistent with the economic logic and statutory design of the IBC.

13.1. In the present case, the Resolution Plan stands approved by both the NCLT and the NCLAT and has since been implemented, leaving absolutely no scope for intervention by this Court.

13.2. In view of the foregoing, we do not find any merit in the appeals. With the above observations, these appeals are dismissed. Therefore, the Impugned Judgment dated 01.10.2024 passed by the NCLAT is affirmed.

14. Before parting, we wish to add a few words of caution. The IBC represents a conscious legislative choice to privilege speed, certainty, and creditor-driven decision-making over exhaustive judicial scrutiny. Experience shows that unsuccessful bidders will always try to spin commercial decisions of the CoC as procedurally faulty in order to secure a second shot through litigation by filing applications or making representations. However, courts need to remain vigilant against any temptation to expand the scope of review beyond the narrow boundaries prescribed by the IBC.

100. In both writs, the resolution plan contains a stipulation that all dues and liabilities not recognised therein shall stand extinguished upon approval of the plan. This statutory consequence binds the respondent authorities as well, who admittedly did not file any claim during CIRP, nor challenged the plan before its approval for omitting their dues. In view of this clear term within resolution plan, read with the binding effect of an approved resolution under the IBC, any demand raised thereafter is clearly unsustainable. Furthermore, the claims referred by respondents were not crystallised during CIRP and were not mentioned in the resolution plan, they stand extinguished and the same cannot be allowed to be raised against the newly resolved company, which has started on the basis of resolution plan, finalized as per wisdom of CoC and duly approved by NCLT.

VI Conclusion

101. A conjoint reading of Sections 173 and 174 of the Electricity Act, 2003 shows that while Section 173 provides that the provisions of certain specified enactments shall not be affected, Section 174 expressly confers overriding effect on the Electricity Act over anything inconsistent contained in any other law for the time being in force, except to the limited extent carved out under Section 173. However, this overriding clause is itself subject to the operation of Section 238 IBC, which is a subsequent legislation containing a clear and unambiguous non obstante provision giving it primacy over all other laws in case of inconsistency. Accordingly, even though the Electricity Act occupies a special field and contains its own overriding provision, the legislative intent of Section 238 of the IBC ensures that, in matters of insolvency, the provisions of the IBC shall prevail notwithstanding any inconsistency with the Electricity Act, including Sections 173 and 174 thereof.

102. Thus, we are of the view that while the respondents are not precluded from exercising statutory powers in respect of post-resolution discoveries or continuing liabilities, they cannot be permitted to enforce claims which stand extinguished by operation of law under the IBC. The impugned demands are required to be examined and segregated accordingly for determining their enforceability wherever the same is not done. Supreme Court in Paschimanchal Vidyut Vitran Nigam Ltd. (supra) has held the primacy of IBC over electricity dues and as per this principle, all submissions made by respondents regarding claiming primacy of Electricity Laws over IBC are unacceptable.

103. The respondents argued to justify the impugned demands on the ground that electricity dues are statutory in nature and therefore it cannot get extinguished, this argument cannot be sustained in view of the clear mandate of Sections 31 and 238 of the IBC, and the law laid down by the Supreme Court in the judgments referred to above. The reliance on Telangana State Southern Power Distribution Company Ltd. (supra) and Rainbow Papers Ltd. (supra) are misplaced as the issues and factual matrix therein differ and do not detract from the binding effect of an already implemented resolution plan.

104. After implementation of resolution plan, arguments made by the respondents that the resolution plan having no mention of the electricity due is an inaccurate information and bad under Section 29 IBC, cannot be considered here. Resolution professional, while having no claim filed by respondents and no objection filed before NCLT against the resolution plan, cannot be blamed at this stage, especially when there is no dispute regarding any unpaid dues during CIRP. If respondents had any grievance against the resolution plan, the time to object the same ended right after the plan got approved by NCLT.

105. The IBC framework is based on the foundation that the corporate entity under resolution is an ongoing concern, and therefore, the resolution professional communicates with the same company name during CIRP. Respondents' submission that the claim is a continued claim because of communication with the same name is unacceptable, as the same does not make the resolved entity liable for any pre-CIRP unclaimed, unrecognised dues.

106. The arguments made by respondents that they did not receive notice of commencement of CIRP is also misplaced as the publication after following due procedure under IBC is sufficient notice to all stakeholders and the respondent authorities are not exception to it, who could demand a separate notice in this regard.

107. On the basis of submissions made by counsel appearing in both petitions, the impugned demand notices, in both the writ petitions, relate to electricity dues pertaining to a period prior to the approval of the respective resolution plans under the IBC, 2016. It is not in dispute that the CIRP had been duly initiated in accordance with law, that public announcement was made inviting claims, and that the resolution plans were thereafter approved by NCLT and have attained finality.

108. In such circumstances, the legal consequence flowing from Section 31 of the IBC, 2016 is that the approved resolution plan is binding on all stakeholders, including statutory authorities, and operates to extinguish all claims which were not filed during CIRP or which did not form part of the approved resolution plan. The said provision, read with the overriding effect contained in Section 238 of the Code, leaves no doubt that any attempt to enforce pre-CIRP claims outside the framework of the resolution plan is impermissible in law. Approved resolution plan conclusively determines all claims against the corporate debtor, leaving no scope for the enforcement of any claim outside the approved plan.

109. The Supreme Court in Essar Steel India Ltd. (supra) has clearly held that the objective of the IBC is to ensure that the successful resolution applicant takes over the corporate debtor on a clean slate, which is free from past liabilities except those specifically incorporated in the resolution plan. This principle has been reaffirmed in Ghanshyam Mishra & Sons (P) Ltd. (supra), wherein it has been categorically held that all claims not forming part of the approved resolution plan stand extinguished and cannot be revived or enforced thereafter.

110. Applying the aforesaid settled legal position to the facts of the present case, it is manifest that the respondent authorities admittedly did not file any claim in respect of the alleged electricity dues during the CIRP, nor is it shown that such dues formed part of the resolution plan as approved by the Adjudicating Authority. The impugned demands, therefore, seek to resurrect claims which stood extinguished upon approval of the resolution plan and cannot be permitted to be enforced under the guise of statutory recovery proceedings.

111. Submissions regarding category under which the electricity is being used and the tariff etc., are not considered in this order for the reason that if any such demand is regarding pre-CIRP then the same cannot be claimed being extinguished claim and if the demand is regarding post resolution plan approval then the parties have got remedy under Electricity Act for which they are at the liberty to proceed.

112. Before parting, we consider it necessary to observe that the exercise of statutory power, even when otherwise available, must conform to the requirements of fairness, transparency, and procedural propriety. Not providing adequate breakup of amount, clarity in computation, and disclosure of the basis of classification or reassessment, as requested by the petitioners, cannot be ignored and may have a bearing on the legality of demand notices even if it get issued for the post resolution period.

113. Therefore, all the issues discussed above are concluded in the favour of petitioners.

114. In view of the above discussion and analysis, this Court is of the considered view that the impugned demand notices dated 09.01.2023, 21.01.2023, 04.02.2023 and 17.05.2023 in Writ C No. 19391 of 2023 and notices dated 09.03.2023, 18.01.2025 and 21.03.2023 in Writ C. No. 17846 of 2025, upto the extent of demand being made for pre-CIRP period, cannot be sustained in law and hence deserve to be quashed.

VII Order

115. These petitions succeed and are accordingly allowed. Impugned demand notices dated 09.01.2023, 21.01.2023, 04.02.2023 and 17.05.2023 in Writ C No. 19391 of 2023 and notices dated 09.03.2023, 18.01.2025 and 21.03.2023 in Writ C. No. 17846 of 2025 are hereby quashed. However, respondent authorities are at the liberty to issue fresh demand notice for any dues, which may have occurred for the post-resolution period, in accordance with law.

116. No order as to costs.

ISSUE FOR CONSIDERATION

Whether a subsequent amendment introducing an alternative remedy of appeal constitutes a substantive change in law or is merely a procedural change; and in case the amendment of Section 25 of the Societies Registration Act, 1860 is substantive, whether it shall have retrospective application.

HEADNOTE

Societies Registration Act, 1860, s.25(1)(d) (inserted by U.P. Act No. 8 of 2022) – Society dispute – Prescribed Authority, by order dated 21.08.2021, rejected the claim of respondent no.4 raised by way of reference under Section 25(1) of the Act, 1860 – Respondent no.4 assailed the said order by filing Writ-C No. 33129 of 2021 – During pendency of the writ petition, amendment dated 18.07.2022 introduced a new provision, namely Section 25(1)(d), providing remedy of appeal before the Commissioner of the Division – Thereafter, Writ-C No. 33129 of 2021 was withdrawn on 27.04.2024 with liberty to pursue alternative remedies available under law – Respondent no.4 subsequently preferred appeal under Section 25(1)(d) against the order dated 21.08.2021 – Petitioners objected to maintainability of appeal contending that the amendment introducing the right of appeal was a substantive change in law and could not operate retrospectively – Objection rejected by Appellate Authority – Challenge in writ jurisdiction.

Held: Right of appeal is not merely a matter of procedure but is a matter of substantive right – Legal pursuit of a remedy by way of suit or appeal are steps in a series of proceedings and are to be regarded as one legal proceeding – Right of appeal is a statutory and vested right which accrues to a litigant from the date the lis commences – Once a lis commences, all rights get crystallized and no clog upon a likely appeal can be put unless the law is made retrospective expressly or by fair implication – Applicability of a right of appeal is governed by the law prevailing on the date of institution of the proceedings and not by the law subsequently brought into force.

Court held that the amendment dated 18.07.2022 introducing Section 25(1)(d) created a right of appeal which was otherwise not available and, therefore, constituted a substantive change in law – Intention to vest a right of appeal retrospectively cannot be presumed unless such intention is clearly manifested by express words or necessary implication – Since the amendment neither expressly nor by necessary implication provided retrospective operation, the remedy of appeal introduced by Section 25(1)(d) could not be invoked against an order passed by the Prescribed Authority on 21.08.2021 prior to the amendment.

Court further held that a superior court cannot vest jurisdiction in an authority which otherwise does not exist – Liberty granted by this Court to pursue alternative remedies available under law did not confer jurisdiction upon the appellate authority to entertain an appeal otherwise not maintainable – Appeal filed under Section 25(1)(d) against the order dated 21.08.2021 held not maintainable – Impugned order dated 10.06.2025 and entire proceedings initiated under Section 25(1)(d) quashed – Writ petition allowed. CASE ARISING FROM

From the order dated 10.06.2025 passed by the Commissioner, Prayagraj Division, Prayagraj in Appeal No. 1105 of 2025 (Farid Javed Ansari v. Tariq Nihal Ansari), rejecting objection regarding maintainability of appeal under Section 25(1)(d) of the Societies Registration Act, 1860.

Appearances for Parties

Advs. for the Petitioner: Gautam Baghel, Rajesh Kumar Shukla.

Advs. for the Respondents: Ashutosh Chaubey, C.S.C., Pramod K. Gupta, Shailendra Kumar, Shivendu Ojha.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Siddharth Nandan, J.)

1. Heard Shri Gautam Baghel, learned counsel for the petitioners, Shri R.K. Ojha, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Shri Umang Chandra Gupta, Advocate holding brief of Shri Shivendu Ojha, learned counsel for the respondent no.4 and Shri Vaibhav Tripathi, learned Standing Counsel for the State-respondent nos. 1 to 3.

2. The present writ petition has been filed challenging the order dated 10.06.2025 passed by respondent no.2 in Appeal No. 1105 of 2025 (Farid Javed Ansari Vs. Tariq Nihal Ansari), by way of which the objection filed by the petitioner has been rejected; and further seeking quashing of the entire proceedings of Appeal No. 1105 of 2025 filed under Section 25(1) (d) of the Societies Registration Act, 1860 (hereinafter referred to as the "Act, 1860").

Facts

1. There is a society in the name and style of Managing Committee of Hidaytul Muslimin School, Prayagraj registered under the Act 1860 and is governed by its own by-laws, which has been renewed from time to time. The said society runs and administers a Madarsa, namely Hidaytul Muslimin School, Prayagraj, which is under grant-in-aid.

2. Certain disputes were raised regarding the elections of the Committee, leading to Writ-C No. 49987 of 2015 (Nihaluddin Ansari and Another Vs. State of U.P. and 10 Others) which was allowed vide order dated 08.04.2019, holding that the list of office bearers of Nihaluddin Ansari, has come to be registered continuously for more than a decade and the court does not find any illegality in the same.

3. Subsequently, the petitioner no.2 was elected as Manager on 14.07.2019 and the list of office bearers of committee of management was also approved vide order dated 12.06.2019; which was challenged by respondent no.3 (Farid Javed Ansari) in Writ-C No. 27312 of 2019 but the same was subsequently withdrawn on 20.02.2020, since the order dated 12.06.2019 was challenged before the prescribed authority by making a reference under Section 25(1) of the Act, 1860.

4. However the prescribed authority on 21.08.2021 rejected the claim of respondent no.4. Against the order dated 21.08.2021, respondent no. 4 filed Writ-C No. 33129 of 2021; but, no interim relief was granted, as the order dated 08.04.2015 had already attained finality upon dismissal of Writ-C No. 26908 of 2015; and eventually, the said writ petition was also withdrawn on 27.04.2024.

5. In between, the petitioner no. 2 was again elected as the Manager of the Society in the year 2024, and the list was duly approved by respondent no. 3 for the year 2024□25. Thereafter, learned counsel for the petitioner submits that the petitioner had no knowledge about the order dated 27.04.2024, whereby the writ petition was withdrawn with liberty to pursue alternative remedies available to him under law. For ready reference, the order dated 27.04.2024 is reproduced below:

“1. Sri Chaudhary N.A. Khan, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Sri Dinesh Shukla, learned counsel appearing for the petitioner prays that this case may be dismissed on the ground of alternative remedy.

2. Accordingly, this writ petition is dismissed with liberty to the petitioner to pursue his alternative remedies available to him under law.”

6. It is further stated that the petitioners came to know about the order dated 27.04.2024 only upon receipt of notice issued by respondent no. 2 in Appeal No. 1105 of 2024, purportedly issued in proceedings/Appeal under Section 25(1)(d) of the Societies Registration Act, 1860, preferred against the order dated 21.08.2021, passed by the Prescribed Authority.

7. The petitioner filed two objections before the Commissioner on 14.05.2025, raising specific grounds, firstly regarding the maintainability of the appeal, i.e. on jurisdiction issue; and secondly reliance was placed on the objections dated 21.04.2025, taking the ground of limitation, emphasizing the fact that the ground taken in the writ petition for explaining the delay in filing the appeal, i.e. for want of knowledge, is un-sustainable, as the petitioner being a practicing lawyer, was in know-how of the correct legal position.

4 All. Committee of management of managing Committee of Hidaytul Muslimin School Prayagraj & Anr/409
Vs. State of U.P. & Ors.

8. Furthermore, the petitioner submits that he had taken specific ground that the amendment dated 18.07.2022, introducing a remedy of appeal under Section 25(1)(d) of the Act, 1860, does not have a retrospective effect, and hence the appeal is not maintainable in the eyes of law. For the sake of convenience, Paragraph-7 of the objection dated 21.04.2025 is reproduced below:

“7. That, the appellant is dragging to the deponent in several litigations, regarding this, institution merely filing an Application, he is dragging from several years. The Amendment dated 18.07.2022 having no retrospective effect, under the law hence the Appeal is not maintainable in the eye of law.”

Submission on Law

Learned counsel for the petitioner has submitted that by way of the amendment dated 18.07.2022 in the U.P. Societies Registration Act, 1860 (U.P. Act No. 8 of 2022), a new provision, namely Section 25(1)(d), has been added by which an appellate court has been established, against the order passed by the Prescribed Authority under Section 25(1) of the Act, 1860; and the appellate power has been vested in the Commissioner of the Division, and the limitation prescribed for filing the appeal is one month from the date of communication of the order. A relevant extract of the notification dated 18.07.2022 is quoted below:

further to amend the Societies Registration Act, 1860 in its application to the State of Uttar Pradesh

IT IS HEREBY enacted in the Seventy-second Year of the Republic of India as follows:-

Short Title 1. This Act may be called the Societies Registration (Uttar Pradesh Amendment) Act, 2021

..

section 25 7. In the proviso to sub-section(1) of section 25 of the principal Act, after clause (c), the following clause shall be inserted, namely:-

(d) An appeal against an order made under this sub-section may be preferred to the Commissioner of the Division in whose jurisdiction the headquarter of the Society lies, within one month from the date of communication of such order:

Provided that the appellate authority may admit an appeal after the expiry of such period if the appellant satisfies the appellate authority that he had sufficient cause for not preferring the appeal within such period.□ ”

Issue

This Court, vide its order dated 31.03.2026, has framed the issue regarding maintainability of appeal under Section 25(1) (d) of the Act, 1860; and following point of determination is framed accordingly:-

(I) Whether, a subsequent amendment, introducing an alternative remedy of Appeal, constitutes a substantive change in law or is merely a procedural change; and in case the Amendment of Section 25 is substantive, whether it shall have retrospective application?

Since the issue raised is purely legal in nature, with the consent of the parties, the present petition is being decided at the admission stage itself.

Discussions

1. Shri Gautam Baghel, learned counsel for the petitioner, submits that the provision of appeal under Section 25(1)(d) of the Act, 1860 has been introduced by the legislature by way of U.P. Act No. 8 of 2022, vide notification dated 18.07.2022; and since the order of the Prescribed Authority was passed prior to the effective date of the aforementioned amendment, i.e., on 21.08.2021, the said provision of appeal cannot be applied retrospectively. He has further submitted that this Court, vide order dated 27.04.2024 passed in Writ-C No. 33129 of 2021 (Farid Javed Ansari vs. State of U.P. and Others), while dismissing the writ petition, merely granted liberty to the petitioner to pursue alternative remedies □available under law□. The Court did not vest any jurisdiction in the appellate authority to entertain an appeal, which is otherwise not available to the petitioner, under law; since the Amendment in question, being a substantive change of law, cannot operate retrospectively.

2. He has further submitted that the expression □appeal□ has not been defined in the Code. However, as per the dictionary meaning, an □appeal□ is an application or a petition to a higher authority or a court of law for reconsideration of a decision of a lower authority, or inferior court of law. (Ref: 1997 edition of the Chambers 21st Century Dictionary).

4 All. Committee of management of managing Committee of Hidaytul Muslimin School Prayagraj & Anr/411
Vs. State of U.P. & Ors.

3. In Nagendra Nath Dey vs. Suresh Chandra Dey¹, wherein speaking for the judicial committee of the Privy Council, Shri Dinshaw Fardunji Mulla stated□□

“There is no definition of appeal in the Code of Civil Procedure but their Lordships have no doubt that any application by a party to an appellate court, asking it to set aside or revise a decision of a separate court is an appeal within the ordinary acceptance of the term □□..”

4. A further reference has been made to a decision in the case of Colonial Sugar Refining Co. Ltd. vs. Irving², to submit on the issue whether right of appeal is a substantive right or is only a matter of procedure and further whether the right of appeal could be crystalized by subsequent legislation or not.

5. It is trite law that the legal pursuit of a remedy, suit, appeal and second appeal are really the steps in a series of proceedings all connected by an intrinsic unity and are to be regarded as one legal proceedings; but as in the case of Garikapati Veeraya vs. N. Subbiah Choudhry,³ the Hon’ble Apex Court held, that the right of appeal is not a mere matter of procedure but is a substantive right. The said right exists as on and from the date the lis commences and such right is to be governed by the law prevailing on the date of the institution of the proceeding and not by the law that prevails on the date of its decision or on the date of filing of the appeal.

6. The Hon’ble Apex Court in the case of Mukund Deo (Dead) by his legal representatives Kasibai and Others Vs. Mahadeo⁴; held that it is true that as a general rule, alteration in law of procedure are retrospective, but a right of an appeal, to a particular forum is a substantive right; and is not lost by alteration in the law unless, the provision is made expressly in that behalf or a necessary implication arises.

7. Similarly, the Hon'ble Apex Court in the Case of Hoosein Kasam Dada (India) Ltd. vs. State of M.P.,⁵ held as following in Paragraph-24, which is as below:

"24. The above decisions quite firmly establish and our decisions in Janardhan Reddy v. State [Janardhan Reddy v. State, 1950 SCC 898 : 1950 SCR 940] and in Ganpat Rai v. Agarwal Chamber of Commerce Ltd. [Ganpat Rai v. Agarwal Chamber of Commerce Ltd., (1952) 2 SCC 214 : 1953 SCR 752] uphold the principle that a right of appeal is not merely a matter of procedure. It is a matter of substantive right. This right of appeal from the decision of an inferior tribunal to a superior tribunal becomes vested in a party when proceedings are first initiated in, and before a decision is given by, the inferior court."

8. Relying on the aforesaid judgments, Shri Gautam Baghel, Advocate submits, that the presumption is that a statute is prima facie prospective, unless it is expressly or by necessary implication made to have a retrospective operation.

9. In the case of Hitendra Vishnu Thakur vs. State of Maharashtra,⁶ the Hon'ble Apex Court held as follows in Paragraph No. 26:

"26. The Designated Court has held that the amendment would operate retrospectively and would apply to the pending cases in which investigation was not complete on the date on which the Amendment Act came into force and the challan had not till then been filed in the court. From the law settled by this Court in various cases the illustrative though not exhaustive principles which emerge with regard to the ambit and scope of an Amending Act and its retrospective operation may be culled out as follows:

(i) A statute which affects substantive rights is presumed to be prospective in operation unless made retrospective, either expressly or by necessary intendment, whereas a statute which merely affects procedure, unless such a construction is textually impossible, is presumed to be retrospective in its application, should not be given an extended meaning and should be strictly confined to its clearly defined limits.

(ii) Law relating to forum and limitation is procedural in nature, whereas law relating to right of action and right of appeal even though remedial is substantive in nature.

(iii) Every litigant has a vested right in substantive law but no such right exists in procedural law.

(iv) A procedural statute should not generally speaking be applied retrospectively where the result would be to create new disabilities or obligations or to impose new duties in respect of transactions already accomplished.

(v) A statute which not only changes the procedure but also creates new rights and liabilities shall be construed to be prospective in operation, unless otherwise provided, either expressly or by necessary implication." □

10. At this juncture, we may also refer gainfully to a decision in the case of Chirag Ashiyana Pvt. Ltd. Vs. Smt. Santosh and Another⁷; wherein this court referring to the various decisions held as follows:

29. The right of appeal is a substantive right and not merely a matter of procedure. It is a vested right and accrues in favour of the litigant on the date lis commences and although, it may be actually exercised when an adverse judgment is pronounced, such a right is governed by the law prevailing at the date of institution of the suit or proceeding and not by the law that prevails at the date of its decision or at the date of filing of appeal. It is well-settled that right of appeal arises when a proceeding is commenced and cannot be taken away by a subsequent legislation except by express provision or by necessary intendment to the contrary. Ram Singha v. Shankar Dayal, (1928) ILR 50 All. 965 (FB).

31. Again in case of Seth Nand Lal and another v. State of Haryana and others; AIR 1980 SC 2097, following the Anant Mill's case (supra) the Supreme Court stated "It is well-settled by several decisions of this Court that the right of appeal is a creature of a statute and there is no reason why the legislature while granting the right cannot impose conditions for the exercise of such right so long as the conditions are not so onerous as to amount to unreasonable restrictions rendering the right almost illusory".

4 All. Committee of management of managing Committee of Hidaytul Muslimin School Prayagraj & Anr/413

32. Again in case of Vijay Prakash D. Mehta and another v. Collector of Customs (Preventive), Bombay; (1988) 4 SCC 402, the Supreme Court reiterated "the right to appeal is neither an absolute right nor an ingredient of natural justice the principles of which must be followed in all judicial or quasi-judicial adjudications. The right to appeal is a statutory right and it can be circumscribed by the condition in grant.....If the statute gives a right of appeal upon certain conditions, it is upon fulfillment of those conditions that right becomes vested and exercisable by the appellant."

33. In case of Garikapatti Veeraya v. N. Subbiah Choudhury; 1957 AIR 540, after referring to several leading decisions on the point, the Supreme Court observed that a vested right of appeal can be taken away only by a subsequent enactment, if it so provides either expressly or by necessary intendment and not otherwise. (Para 28 of the judgment).

34. Hon'ble Supreme Court in case of Mukund Deo (Dead) represented by his legal representatives Kasibai and others v. Mahadeo and others, AIR1965 SC 703, held that it is true that as a general rule, alteration in the law of procedure are retrospective, but a right of appeal to a particular forum is a substantive right and is not lost by alteration in the law unless, provision is made expressly in that behalf, or a necessary implication arises.

35. In view of the law laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court a right of appeal is a vested right and is governed by the statute which confers such right. In case the statute or the law which confers the right places certain conditions for exercise of such right, the said can be exercised only after the fulfillment of those conditions by the appellant. The Hon'ble Supreme Court while interpreting the right of appeal being substantive right has held to the extent that by a subsequent enactment (such as Court Fees Act), the right of the appellant cannot be impaired or made onerous by providing additional conditions by the subsequent Act. Unless, the subsequent Act providing for such a condition is made retrospective either expressly or by necessary intendment. "

11. The effect of amendment of law relating to appeal after commencement of lis was again, a subject matter of consideration before a Constitutional Bench in Vithalbhai Nema Bhai Patel vs. Commissioner of Sales Tax,⁸ and the view taken in Hoosein Kasam Dada (India) Ltd. (supra) was reiterated, by stating that when a lis commences, all rights get crystallized and no clog upon a likely appeal can be put unless the law is made retrospective, expressly or by fair implication.

12. The maxim nova constitutio futuris formam imponere debet non praeteritis, i.e. □ a new law ought to regulate what is to follow, not the past □ exemplifies this legal position.

13. Recently, the Apex Court had the occasion to examine the practice and procedure viz. a viz. right of appeal and its nature and scope in ECCG Ltd. vs. Mokul Shriram EPC JV, ⁹ wherein giving reference to the case of Hoosein Kasam Dada (India) Ltd. (supra), the Court held that the fact that the pre-existing right to appeal continues to exist must, in its turn, necessarily imply that the old law which created that right of appeal, must also exist to support the continuation of that the appeal; and that the old law must govern the exercise and enforcement of that right of appeal.

14. The observation in the case of Ganpat Rai Hira Lal Vs. Aggarwal Chambers of Commerce Ltd.,¹⁰ and Janardan Reddy Vs. State,¹¹ firmly established the principle that the right of appeal is not merely a matter of procedure. It is a matter of substantive right. This right of appeal, from the decision of an inferior tribunal to a superior tribunal, becomes vested in a party when proceedings are first initiated in, and before a decision is given by, the inferior court.

15. From the aforesaid, the discernable principle is that, firstly, the right of appeal is not a mere alteration in procedure but is a matter of substantive right; and secondly, once a pre-existing right of appeal is not destroyed by the amendment and continues to exist, post the amendment, and it is equally applicable in a converse situation (Emphasis supplied) where the lis, was prior to the amendment and the decision, as in the present case, is also prior to the amendment, creating a right of appeal by way of Amendment; and as such unless and until the amendment is made retrospective by the express words or necessary implication, it is trite law that the settled position prior to the amendment, cannot be permitted to be re-agitated by way of enforcing a right of appeal, which is otherwise not available, by a retrospective application.

16. The aforesaid view also find concurrence from a three Judge Bench judgment in State of Bombay Vs. Supreme General Fils Exchange Ltd.,¹² wherein it was held that an impairment of the right of appeal by putting a new restriction thereon or imposing a more onerous condition is not a matter of procedure only; it impairs or imperils a substantive right and an enactment which does so is not retrospective, unless it says so expressly or by necessary intendment.

17. Shri R.K. Ojha, learned Senior Counsel appearing for the respondents does not dispute the aforesaid propositions, but however submits that this court, vide its order dated 27.04.2024, passed in Writ-C No. 33129 of 2021 had given the liberty to the respondents to pursue his alternative remedy available to him under law. Therefore, he argues that the only remedy which was available to him at the time of the passing of the order dated 27.04.2024 was a remedy under Section 25(1)(d), and now since he has withdrawn his challenge, he shall be rendered remedy-less, if the appeal is held to be not maintainable; and accordingly submits that in view of the order dated 27.04.2024 passed by this court, the present writ petition is devoid of any merit.

18. The aforesaid argument is only noted to be rejected, since it is trite law that a superior court or for that matter any court, cannot vest jurisdiction in an authority, which otherwise does not exist and the respondents had withdrawn the proceedings, even if under a misapprehension of law, the appeal cannot be said to be maintainable.

19. Shri R.K. Ojha, learned Senior Counsel has also placed reliance on an order dated 26.03.2025 passed by this court in Writ-C No. 9039 of 2025, preferred by Farid Javed Ansari, which was disposed off, directing the appellate authority to decide the appeal within a period of four months. The aforesaid order dated 26.03.2025 also cannot come to the rescue of the respondents, as while deciding the appeal, the appellate authority, ought to also have decided its own jurisdiction with respect to the order dated 21.08.2021; and as to whether the appeal was maintainable or not, which now this Court has held to be not maintainable.

Vs. State of U.P. & Ors.

Conclusion/Direction

1. In view of the various decisions of the Hon'ble Apex Court as well as this court, it is evident from long line of decisions, that the right of appeal is not merely a matter of procedure but is a substantive right and though legal pursuit of a remedy by way of suit or appeal, are steps in a series of proceedings and are to be regarded as one legal proceedings; however, the right to appeal is a statutory right and can only be enforced or taken away by an enactment; and its applicability, if is to be inferred with retrospectivity, the same has to be either expressly or by necessary implication has to be provided and not otherwise. The intention to vest right to appeal retrospectively, cannot be presumed, unless such intention is clearly manifested by expressed words or necessary implications.

2. The right of an appeal is a vested right which accrues to a litigant from the date the lis commences; and it is when a lis commences, all rights get crystalized and no clog upon a likely appeal can be put unless the law was made retrospective, expressly or by fair implication.

3. In the present case, the order passed under Section 25(1) of the Act, 1860 was admittedly passed on 21.08.2021 and the same was subjected to challenge in Writ-C No. 33129 of 2021 (Farid Javed Ansari Vs. State of U.P. and Others); which was withdrawn by the petitioner therein vide order dated 27.04.2024, with a liberty that he may seek such alternative remedy, which may be available to him under the law.

4. Now, the question arises that what is the nature of remedy that may be available to him under law and in case, the Writ-C No. 33129 of 2021 was withdrawn, under a misconception of law, what remedy may be available to the respondents; as this court is also conscious of the fact that no one should be rendered remedy-less.

5. In the eventuality, no remedy was available to the respondents against the order passed under Section 25(1) of the Act, 1860, it cannot be said that the remedy of Article 226 of the Constitution of India was not available to him, and in view of the fact that the said writ petition was dismissed with an observation that a liberty is available to the petitioner to pursue his alternative remedy, which otherwise was not available to him, the dismissal of the writ petition on the ground that there being an efficacious alternative remedy, may be an order, if the petitioner so advised, he may seek for a recall or review (Ref: Chitra Srivastava Vs. Government of NCT of Delhi)¹³. However, the aforesaid observation is in no way on the merits of the case and shall be independently dealt with, in case appropriate proceedings are set in motion. The said question, is left open, at this stage.

6. In view of the aforesaid, the impugned order dated 10.06.2025 passed by the Respondent no.2 in Appeal No. 1105 of 2025 (Farid Javed Ansari Vs. Tarik Nihal Ansari), along with entire proceedings initiated under Section 25(1)(d) of the Act, 1860, is hereby quashed and the writ petition stands allowed.

7. However, no order as to costs.

ISSUE FOR CONSIDERATION

Whether mere pendency of criminal cases or registration of FIRs, without allegations of misuse of firearm and despite acquittal, can justify cancellation of an arms license under Section 17(3) of the Arms Act, 1959?

HEADNOTES

Civil Law – Constitution of India – Article 226 - Arms Act, 1959 - Sections 17(3), 18) - Indian Penal Code, 1860 - Sections 307, 323, 504, 506: - Writ Petition under Article 226 - filed against impugned orders, cancelling petitioner's DBBL arms license and also seeking restoration thereof - Arms license cancellation - petitioner pleaded that FIRs registered against him were politically motivated, that he was acquitted in both criminal cases - there was no allegation of misuse of firearm - District Magistrate cancelled the license branding him "criminal minded" - Appellate authority upheld the order without considering acquittals or reply - whether mere pendency of FIRs, absent misuse, can justify cancellation under Section 17(3) of the Arms Act - Court finds that cancellation based on speculative likelihood of misuse, ignoring acquittals and reply, is arbitrary and perverse – pendency of criminal case cannot be sole ground - acquittal strengthens innocence - licensing authority must record cogent reasons – held, Licensing authority must record cogent reasons, speculative apprehension of misuse is arbitrary - Non-speaking orders ignoring reply and acquittal judgments are unsustainable - hence, impugned orders are set-aside, writ petition, allowed accordingly.

CASE ARISING FROM

Orders dated 23.09.2011 (District Magistrate, Sitapur) and 04.06.2016 (Appellate Authority) cancelling and upholding cancellation of petitioner's DBBL arms license No. 4315, Police Station Raniganj, District Pratapgarh.

APPEARANCE OF PARTIES

Counsel for Appellant(s): Shri Vijay Kumar.

Counsel for Respondent(s): Shri Rajiv Srivastava, Additional Chief Standing Counsel.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Irshad Ali, J.)

1. Heard Shri Vijay Kumar, learned counsel for the petitioner and Sri Rajiv Srivastava, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel for the State-respondent.

2. By means of the present writ petition, the petitioner is challenging the orders dated 4.6.2016, passed by the respondent No.2 in Appeal No.4/2011-2012 (Amanullah v. State of U.P.) under Section 18 of the Arms Act, 1959 as well as order dated 23.9.2011, passed by the respondent No.3, District Magistrate, Sitapur, contained as Annexures-1 and 2 to the writ petition. Further prayer has been made for issuance of direction in the nature of mandamus commanding the respondents to restore the fire arms license of the petitioner bearing license No.4315 relating to Police Station Raniganj, District Pratapgarh.

3. Factual matrix of the case is that the petitioner was licensee of DBBL bearing license No.4315 relating to police station Raniganj, District Pratapgarh. A show cause notice was issued on 29.9.2009 to the petitioner under Section 17(3) of the Arms Act regarding cancellation of arms license of the petitioner on the ground of involvement of his gun in criminal case mentioned in the show cause notice that why his license may not be cancelled. The petitioner submitted his reply before the respondent No.2, denying the allegations levelled against him with the submission that the petitioner has never misused his gun, but due to village party bandi and enmity of land dispute, his gun has been falsely been shown in the above criminal case.

4. The respondent No.2, without going into the merit of the case and ignoring the reply of the petitioner, cancelled the arms license of the petitioner vide order dated 23.9.2011. Feeling aggrieved against the order of cancellation, the petitioner preferred an appeal before the respondent No.2 under Section 18 of Arms Act, which has also been dismissed without considering the argument advanced by the petitioner, vide order dated 2.9.2011.

5. Feeling aggrieved by the aforesaid impugned orders, the petitioner has filed the present writ petition.

6. Submission of learned counsel for the petitioner is that the petitioner was granted arms license for DBBL gun and FIR in the case Crime No.8/2005 under Section 307, 504 and 506 IPC and Case Crime No.57A/2003 at Police Station Raniganj, District Pratapgarh has been lodged. In the said FIR, neither the petitioner has been named, nor has been found involved in any manner and merely on lodging of the First Information Report, show cause notice was issued to the petitioner, asking him as to why his fire arms license be not cancelled as First Information Report has been registered against him. The petitioner denied the allegation vide reply dated 4.11.2009, submitting that the First Information Report has been registered against him due to political reason and enmity with the respondents, on the basis of false allegations.

He next submits that the petitioner has been acquitted in Case Crime No.8/2005 by the learned Additional Sessions Judge, vide judgment and order dated 17.04.2009 (Annexure no.5 to the writ petition) and has also been acquitted in Case Crime No.57A/2003 by the learned Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Pratapgarh vide judgment and order dated 11.12.2001 (Annexure No.2 to the affidavit filed in support of the recall application)

7. Learned counsel for the petitioner stated that the petitioner was going to the sister's house alongwith his gun, which was kept by the police authority at police station and on the next date, when the petitioner went to take the gun, a First Information Report has been lodged. The District Magistrate, Pratapgarh, only recorded the fact that nature of the allegations levelled against the petitioner are serious and also that the petitioner is a criminal minded person and it cannot be denied that in future, he will not misuse the licensed weapon and looking to the aforesaid circumstances, cancelled the license of the petitioner, by means of an order dated 2.9.2011 against which, an appeal was filed, which was also dismissed vide order dated 4.6.2016.

8. The first question which arises for consideration before this Court is as to whether mere pendency of criminal case can be a ground for the respondents to cancel the arms license of the petitioner under the provisions of Arms Act ? A consistent view of this Court has been that merely on account of pendency of a criminal case fire arm's license cannot be cancelled. In Writ-C No.31473 of 2019 this Court by means of its order dated 14.9.2022 has held as under:-

"(8) In support of his submission, learned counsel for the petitioner has placed reliance on the judgments passed by this Court in the cases of Ram Murti Madhukar vs. District Magistrate, Sitapur [1998 (16) LCD-905], Ram Karpal Singh vs. Commissioner, Devi Patan Mandal, Gonda and Ors. [2006 (24) LCD 114] and Ram Prasad vs. Commissioner and Ors. decided on 07.02.2020 in Writ-C No. 56378 of 2006, wherein it has been held that mere pendency of criminal case or apprehension of misuse of arms are not sufficient grounds for passing the order of suspension or revocation of licence under Section 17 of the Act.

(9) In Ram Murti Madhukar (supra), this Court has held in paragraph no. 8, is quoted as under :-

(8) It is also well settled in law that mere pendency of criminal case or apprehension of abuse of Arms Act, are not sufficient ground for passing of the order of suspension or revocation of licence under Section 17 of the Act. A reference in this regard may be made to the decisions of this Court in Ganesh Chandra Bhatt v. D. M. Almora, AIR 1993 All 291"

(10) In the case of Ram Karpal Singh (supra), this Court has held as following in paragraph nos. 6 and 7 which are being reproduced hereunder:-

'6, Learned counsel for the petitioner had relied upon the two judgments of this Court reported in 2002 ACC; Habib v. State of U.P

7. Para 3 of the said judgment is reproduced as under:

"Para 3: The question as to whether mere involvement in a criminal case or pendency of a criminal case can be a ground for revocation of the license under Arms Act, has been dealt with by a Division Bench in this Court reported in Sheo Prasad Misra v. The District Magistrate, Basti and others, wherein the Division Bench relying upon the earlier decision reported in Mai Uddin v. Commissioner, Allahabad, found that mere involvement in criminal case cannot be in any way affect the public security or public interest and the order canceling or revoking the licence of fire arm has been set aside. The present impugned order also suffers from the same infirmity as was pointed out by the Division Bench in the above mentioned cases. I am in full agreement with the view taken by the Division Bench that these orders cannot be sustained and deserve to be quashed and are hereby quashed."

(11) This Court in the case of Ram Prasad (supra) has held as under. Relevant paragraphs of the said judgments i.e. 16,19,22,23,24,25,28,32 and 36 are being quoted hereunder:-

"16. The matter which requires consideration is, whether on the ground of pendency of the criminal case the petitioner's fire arm licence could be cancelled and his appeal could be dismissed, notwithstanding his acquittal on 17.1.2003. It also requires consideration if the ground in the impugned orders that if the petitioner's fire arm licence remain with the petitioner, it would not be in the public interest and public security, are justified for cancellation and based on substantial material."

19. In Masiuddin Vs. Commissioner, Allahabad Division, Allahabad and another reported in 1972 A.L.J. 573 this Court held in paragraph Nos. 4 and 7 as under:

"4. After a license is granted, the right to hold the license and possess a gun is a valuable individual right in a free country. The security of public peace and public safety is a valuable social interest. Section 17 shows that Parliament had decided that neither of the two valuable interests should unduly impinge on the other Section 17 seeks to establish a fair equilibrium between the two contending interests. It says: Hear the licensee first; and then cancel the license "if necessary for the security of the public peace or for public safety". True, there is no express provision for hearing. But the nature of the right affected, the language of Sec. 17, the grounds for cancellation, the requirement of a reasoned order and the right of appeal plainly implicate a fair hearing procedure. Jai Narain Rai v. District Magistrate, Azamgarh. While cancelling a licence, the District Magistrate acts as a quasi-judicial authority.

7. A license may be cancelled, inter alia on the ground that it is "necessary for the security of the public peace or for public safety" to do so. The District Magistrate has not recorded a finding that it was necessary for the security of the public peace or for public safety to revoke the license. The mere existence of enmity between a licensee and another person would not establish the "necessary" connection with security of public peace or public safety. There should be something more than mere enmity. There should be some evidence of the provocative utterances of the licensee or of his suspicious movements or of his criminal designs and conspiracy in reinforcement of the evidence of enmity. It is not possible to give an exhaustive list of facts and circumstances from which an inference of threat to public security or public peace may be deduced. The District Magistrate will have to take a decision on the facts of each case. But in the instant case there is nothing in his order to indicate that it was necessary for the security of the public peace or for public safety to cancel the license of the petitioner. Mere enmity is not sufficient."

22. In Chhanga Prasad Sahu Vs. State of U.P. and others reported in 1984 AWC 145 (FB), after noticing the provisions of Section 17 (3) of the Arms Act the Full Bench in paragraph 5 held as follows:

"A perusal of abovementioned provisions indicates that the licensing authority has been given the power to suspend or revoke an arms licence only if any of the conditions mentioned in sub-clauses (a) to (e) of sub-section (3) of Section 17 of Act exists." sub section (5) of Section 17 makes it obligatory upon the licensing authority to, while passing the order revoking/suspending an arms licence, record in writing the reasons therefore and to, on demand, furnish a brief statement thereof to the holder of the license unless it considers that it will not be in the public interest to do so."

In paragraph-9 it has been emphasised as under:-

"it is true that in order to revoke/suspend an arms licence, the licensing authority has necessarily to come to the conclusion that the facts justifying revocation/suspension of licence mentioned in grounds (a) to (e) of section 17 exist"

23. In Ilam Singh v. Commissioner, Meerut Division and others [1987 ALL. L.J. 416] this Court held that under Section 17(3) (b) the licencing authority may suspend or revoke a licence if it becomes necessary for the security of public peace or public safety. In this case no report was lodged against the licensee indicating that he had used the gun in the incident which led to the breach of public peace or public safety. It was held that there must be some positive incident in which the petitioner participated and used his gun which led to breach of public peace or public safety and in the absence of the use of the gun by the licensee against the security of public peace or public safety the licence of the gun could not be suspended or revoked. The relevant paragraphs 4 and 5 of the judgment in Ilam Singh (supra) are being reproduced as under:

"4. Having heard the learned counsel for the petitioner I am of the view that the submissions raised by the learned counsel for the petitioner cannot be said to be without substance. Section 17(3) (b) of the Arms Act enacts that licensing authority may by order in writing suspend a licence or revoke the same if it becomes necessary for the security of public peace or the public safety. When once a person has been granted a licence and he acquires a gun, it becomes one of his properties. In the present case no incident of breach of security of the public peace or public safety at the behest of the petitioner has been pointed out. Even no report was lodged against the petitioner indicating that he used his gun in the incident which led to the breach of public peace or public safety. Even though some reports might have been lodged but that could not be said to be a sufficient reason to cancel the licence."

5. There must be some positive incident in which the petitioner participated and used his gun which led to the breach of the public peace or public safety. In the absence of the use of the gun by the petitioner against the security of public peace or public safety the licence of the gun of the petitioner was not liable either to be suspended or revoked. The licensing authority as well as the Commissioner committed errors on the face of the record in cancelling the licence of the gun held by the petitioner in utter disregard of the provisions of Section 17 (3) (b) of the Arms Act. In view of these facts the impugned orders cannot be sustained and deserves to be quashed."

24. In Habib v. State of U.P. and others [2002 (44) ACC 783] this Court held that mere involvement in a criminal case cannot in any way affect the public security or public interest and the order cancelling or revoking licence of fire arm was not justified. Paragraph 3 of this judgment reads as under:

"3. The question as to whether mere involvement in a criminal case or pendency of a criminal case can be a ground for revocation of the licence under Arms Act, has been dealt with by a Division Bench of this court reported in Sheo Prasad Misra Vs. The District Magistrate, Basti and others, wherein the Division Bench relying upon the earlier decision reported in Masi Uddin v. Commissioner, Allahabad, found that mere involvement in criminal case cannot in any way affect the public security or public interest and the order cancelling or revoking the licence of fire arm has been set aside."

25. In Satish Singh v. District Magistrate, Sultanpur 2009 (4) ADJ 33 (LB), this Court elaborately explained what is detrimental to the security of the public peace or public safety and held that mere involvement in criminal case cannot in any way affect the public security or public interest. Paragraphs 6 and 7 of Satish Singh case (supra) are being reproduced as under:

"6. A plain reading of section 17 indicates that the arms licence can be cancelled or suspended on the ground that the licensing authority deems it necessary for security of the public peace or the public safety. In the present case, while passing the impugned order, neither the District Magistrate nor the appellate authority has recorded the finding as to how and under what circumstance, the possession of arms licence by the petitioner, is detrimental to the public peace or the public security and safety. Merely because criminal case is pending more so, does not seem to attract the provisions of section 17 of the Arms Act. To attract the provisions of section 17 of the Arms Act with regard to public peace, security and safety it shall always be incumbent on the authorities to record a finding that how, under what circumstances and what manner, the possession of arms licence shall be detrimental to public peace, safety and security. In absence of such finding merely on the ground that a criminal case is pending without any mitigating circumstances with regard to endanger of public peace, safety and security, the provisions contained under Section 17 of the Arms Act, shall not satisfy."

7. Needless to say that right to life and liberty are guaranteed under Article 21 of the Constitution of India and the arms licences are granted for personal safety and security after due inquiry by the authorities in accordance with the provisions contained in Arms Act, 1959. The provisions of section 17 of the Arms Act with regard to suspension or cancellation of arms licence cannot be invoked lightly in an arbitrary manner. The provisions contained under Section 17 of the Arms Act should be construed strictly and not liberally. The conditions provided therein, should be satisfied by the authorities before proceeding ahead to cancel or suspend an arms licence. We may take notice of the fact that any reason whatsoever, the crime rate is raising day by day. The Government is not in a position to provide security to each and every person individually. Right to possess arms is statutory right but right to life and liberty is fundamental guaranteed by Article 21 of the Constitution of India. Corollary to it, it is citizen's right to possess firearms for their personal safety to save their family from miscreants. It is often said that ordinarily in a civilised society, only civilised persons require arms licence for their safety and security and not the criminals. Of course, in case the government feels that arms licence are abused for oblique motive or criminal activities, then appropriate measures may be adopted to check such mal-practice. But arms licence should not be suspended in a routine manner mechanically, without application of mind and keeping in view the letter and spirit of Section 17 of the Arms Act."

28. In Thakur Prasad Vs. State of U.P. and others reported 2013(31) LCD 1460 (LB) this Court after referring to the earlier pronouncements in the case of Ram Murli Madhukar Vs. District Magistrate, Sitapur [1998 (16) LCD 905] and Habib Vs. State of U.P., 2002 ACC 783, held in paragraphs 10 and 11 as follows:

"10. "Public peace" or "public safety" do not mean ordinary disturbance of law and order public safety means safety of the public at large and not safety of few persons only and before passing of the order of cancellation of arm license as per Section 17 (3) of the Act the Licensing Authority is under an obligation to apply his mind to the question as to whether there was eminent danger to public peace and safety involved in the case in view of the judgment given by this court in the case of Ram Murli Madhukar v. District Magistrate, Sitapur [1998 916) LCD 905], wherein it has been held that license can not be suspended or revoked on the ground of public interest (Jan-hit) merely on the registration of an F.I.R. and pendency of a criminal case."

11. Further, this Court in the case of Habib v. State of U.P. 2002 ACC 783 held as under:

"The question as to whether mere Involvement in a criminal case or pendency of a criminal case can be a ground for revocation of the licence under Arms Act, has been dealt with by a Division Bench of this Court in Sheo prasad Misra Vs. District Magistrate, Basti and Others, 1978 AWC 122, wherein the Division Bench relying upon the earlier decision in Masi Uddin Vs. Commissioner, Allahabad, 1972 ALJ 573, found that mere involvement in criminal case cannot, in any way, affect the public security or public interest and the order cancelling or revoking the licence of fire arm has been set aside. The present impugned orders also suffer from the same infirmity as was pointed out by the Division Bench in the above mentioned cases. I am in full agreement with the view taken by the Division Bench that these orders cannot be sustained and deserves to be quashed and are hereby quashed.

There is yet another reason that during the pendency of the present writ petition, the petitioner has been acquitted from the aforesaid criminal case and at present there is neither any case pending, nor any conviction has been attributed to the petitioner, as is evident from Annexure SA-I and II to the supplementary affidavit filed by the petitioner. In this view of the matter, the petitioner is entitled to have the fire-arm licence."

32. In Ghanshyam Gupta v. State of U.P. and others [2016 (34) LCD 3035] this Court has again held that the necessary ingredients to invoke jurisdiction of the licencing authority in terms of Section 17 were clearly lacking and no finding had been returned on the basis of materials produced in that regard by the licencing authority, which must justify passing of the order of cancellation. Paragraph 9 of the said judgment is being quoted as under:

"9. In a recent decision of Lucknow Bench of this court in Surya Narain Mishra v. Stae of U.P. and others, reported in 2015 (7) ADJ 510, similar view has been taken by this Court relying upon subsequent decisions. Para-14 of the judgment is reproduced:

"14. In the case of Raj Kumar Verma v. State of U.P., 2013 (80) ACC 231 this court in paragraph No.3 held as under:-

"The ground for issue of show-cause notice, suspension and ultimately cancellation of the licence is that one and precisely one criminal case was registered against the petitioner. The District Magistrate has also held that the petitioner has been enlarged on bail. He has gone further to observe that if the licence remained intact, the petitioner, may disturb public peace and tranquility. The same findings have been given by the Commissioner, Unmindful of the fact that this Court is repeating the law of the land, but the deaf ears of the administrative officers do not ready to succumb the law of the land. The settled law is that mere involvement in a criminal case without any finding that involvement in such criminal case shall be detrimental to public peace and tranquility shall not create the ground for the cancellation of Armed Licence. In Ram Suchi v. Commissioner, Devipatan Division reported in 2004 (22) LCD 1643, it was held that this law was relied upon in Balram Singh Vs. Satate of U.P. 2006 (24) LCD 1359. Mere apprehension without substance is simply an opinion which has no legs to stand. Personal whims are not allowed to be reflected while acting as a public servant.""

9. In the light of the aforesaid judgment, it is crystal clear that mere on account of First Information Report where evidently the fire arm was never used and there are no allegations of misuse of fire arms, license could not have been cancelled. The finding recorded by the District Magistrate, Sitapur that there is likelihood of misuse of fire arms by the petitioner, is also arbitrary and without there being any material to demonstrate that he is likely to misuse his fire arms. In absence of any material, the finding in this regard, is illegal and arbitrary.

10. The petitioner had criminal history of two case i.e. Case Crime No.8/2005 under Sections 307, 504, 506 IPC, Police Station Raniganj, District and Case Crime No.C57-A/ 2003 under Sections 323, 504 IPC, Police Station Raniganj, District Pratapgarh and in both the aforesaid cases, the petitioner has been acquitted vide judgment and order dated 17.04.2009 (Annexure no.5 to the writ petition) and judgment and order dated 11.12.2021 (Annexure No.2 to the affidavit filed in support of the recall application) respectively.

10. Considering the allegations levelled against the petitioner in show cause notice and also considering the finding of licensing authority in cancelling the arms license that there was violation of conditions of Arms Act are arbitrary, perverse and not based on any cogent reason. Reply of the petitioner has also not been taken into consideration while passing the impugned order of cancellation as well as in the appeal filed by the petitioner, therefore, the order dated 4.6.2011, passed by the respondent No.2 as well as order dated 29.9.2011, passed by the respondent No.3 are arbitrary, perverse and not based on cogent reasons.

11. In the light of the reasons recorded hereinabove as also the fact that the petitioner has been acquitted in both the cases, the writ petition is allowed and the impugned orders dated 4.6.2016 and 23.9.2011 are hereby set aside.

12. No order as to costs.

ISSUE FOR CONSIDERATION

Whether the State authorities are legally entitled to levy collection charges upon the petitioner-Bank when no recovery was effected pursuant to the recovery certificate?

HEADNOTES

Civil Law – Constitution of India – Article 226, - Securitisation and Reconstruction of Financial Assets and Enforcement of Security Interest Act, 2002 – Section 13(2), 13(4) : - Writ Petition under Article 226 – questioning the correctness of recovery citation and demand of 10% collection charges – petitioner Bank had lent loan to borrowers whose accounts turned NPA – statutory notices issued under Sections 13(2) and 13(4) of the SARFAESI Act – recovery proceedings initiated against borrowers – borrowers challenged before DRT - dismissed by tribunal with direction to resolve dispute amicably – meanwhile, district revenue authorities initiated recovery proceedings on request of Bank – subsequently, loan dues had already been liquidated by borrowers - petitioner Bank requested to State Authorities to return the recovery certificate, asserting no recovery was effected by State authorities – State relied on Board's order dated 14.08.2007 prohibiting direct acceptance of dues by Bank – petitioner argued order cannot operate retrospectively – whether collection charges can be levied without actual recovery – Court finds that no recovery was made, recovery certificate not returned, and demand of charges amounts to unjust enrichment contrary to law – held, impugned recovery certificate for collection charges without sanction of law would be against the fundamental principles of justice, equity and fair-play – hence, impugned recovery certificate is quashed and writ petition is allowed.

Ref: Writ Petition

1. Heard Shri Krishna Raj Singh Jadaun, learned counsel for the petitioner and Shri Chandra Prakash Yadav, learned Standing Counsel for the State respondents.

2. By means of instant writ petition, the petitioner has questioned the correctness of recovery citation dated 18.03.2008 issued by 4th respondent/Tehsildar, Tehsil Jansath now Khatauli, District Muzaffarnagar contained as Annexure No.10 to the writ petition.

3. The factual matrix giving rise to instant writ petition is, the petitioner is Nationalized Bank registered under the Banking Companies (Acquisition and Transfer of Undertakings) Act, 1970. The petitioner-Bank lent a loan to M/s Deep Chand Sushil Kumar, Shri Sushil Kumar Jain, Neeraj Kumar Jain, Surendra Kumar Jain and Dhanendra Kumar Jain ((hereinafter referred to as "borrowers" for the sake of brevity) but their accounts turned Non-Performing Assets, as such statutory notice under Section 13(2) of the Securitisation and Reconstruction of Financial Assets and Enforcement of Security Interest Act, 2002 (hereinafter referred to as "SARFAESI Act" for the sake of brevity), was issued, which was followed by a notice for possession as envisaged under Section 13(4) of SARFAESI Act.

4. The recovery proceedings under SARFAESI Act were challenged by borrowers by means of a Securitisation Application No.33 of 2004 before the Debt Recovery Tribunal, Lucknow (herein after referred as "DRT"), and thereafter, a writ petition bearing Writ Petition No.2640 of 2004 was instituted before this Court at Lucknow. This Court directed the DRT, Lucknow to decide the interim relief application filed in Securitisation Application No.33 of 2004 but the DRT, Lucknow vide order dated 17.01.2005 dismissed the Securitisation Application No.33 of 2004 itself and directed the borrower and the bank to resolve their dispute amicably. They were in fact, directed to dispose of the immovable properties as detailed in the bank's notice under Section 13(2) & 13(4) of the SARFAESI Act dated 11.06.2003 and 26.08.2003 respectively, in all possible manner and strictly as per rules and regulations to get the reasonable fair price according to the present market rate at the earliest, so that claim of the respondent bank is satisfied properly.

5. The loan was liquidated by the borrower and this outstanding dues were satisfied, as such vide letter dated 17.03.2005 the petitioner-Bank requested the District Magistrate to return the recovery certificate so issued.

6. The letter dated 17.03.2005 issued by the bank was replied by the 4th respondent/Tehsildar concerned stating therein that return of recovery certificate is not feasible owing to recovery process set into motion through State machinery. Several reminders were also sent by the bank for return of recovery certificate but they remained of no avail.

7. Based on the report of Collection Amin, impugned recovery certificate dated 18.03.2008 was issued. The impugned recovery certificate is for realization of 10% demand raised by the bank, which is being termed as collection charges.

8. Submission advanced by learned counsel for the petitioner-bank is that the State authorities have not acted upon the recovery certificate issued against the original borrower and they have not effected the recovery as such and hence, they have no authority in law to ask for collection charges. Any demand of collection charges without effecting the recovery would be unlawful and arbitrary. The impugned recovery certificate asking for collection charges before any actual recovery had taken place at the end of State authorities, either through some coercive measure or through sale of property as stipulated under the rules framed under U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Act, 1952 is without authority of law.

9. Learned counsel for the petitioner in order to assail the recovery certificate asking for collection charges from the petitioner-Bank has relied upon the Full Bench decision of this Court rendered in the case of Maharajwa and others Versus State of U.P. and others reported in 2013 SCC OnLine All 14291. The Hon'ble Full Bench was faced with following question of law:-

"Whether decision in Mange Ram v. State of U.P. in so far as it takes the view that there is no provision under any of the Acts for levying any collection charges for mere issuance of citation or sale proclamation is correct; or, the decision in Chinta Mani v. State of U.P., holding that provisions of subjection (2) of section 279 do not contain any provision for an absolute waiver of recovery charges where the citation has been issued under sub-section (1) and the charging section empowers the Collector to raise such demand subject to the rules and provision of Revenue Recovery Act (U.P. Act No. 37 of 2001); is correct."

10. The Hon'ble Full Bench replied the question so posed vide paragraph no.37, which is reproduced as under:-

"From the aforesaid decisions, it is absolutely clear that it has to be seen as to under what Act the recovery has been initiated. Whether it is under 1890 Act, 1950 Act or 1973 Act. If the recovery proceedings have been initiated under 1890 Act then in that event if the recovery is being made under section 3 of the Act then cost of recovery would be 10% of the amount stated in the certificate. However, if recovery certificate has been issued but no recovery had been made by the State authorities, who had issued the recovery certificate as for example the defaulter directly deposits the amount or the recovery certificate is withdrawn or cancelled for any reason whatsoever then in that event there is no question of charging any costs of recovery. At best the fee for the process mentioned in 1952 Rules can be levied. However, if the recovery certificate has been issued under section 5 of 1890 Act then there is no question of any cost of recovery being realised as the State Government has not yet issued any notification specifying any rate. If the recovery has been issued under 1973 Act then in that case realisation of recovery, charges by the State authorities can be made from the defaulter only where the entire amount had been recovered by the authorities of the State. If the recovery as arrears of land revenue is being made by invoking the provisions of 1950 Act then in that event the fee prescribed under 1952 Rules for various process for realisation of arrears of land revenue while selling moveable and immovable properties and also where properties are not sold alone is payable. It appears that this aspect of the matter was not brought to the notice of the Hon'ble Judges who decided the case of Chinta Mani (supra). We are, therefore, in respectful agreement with the view taken by this Court in the case of Mange Ram (supra) and hold that the decision in the case of Chinta Mani (supra) does not lay down the correct law. Before parting with the case, we may mention here that we have not gone into the question as to whether recovery charges of 10% fixed under section 3 of 1890 Act or the fee of 10% to be deposited by the bank while making an application under Rules 12 and 23 of 1975 Rules or the costs of recover @ 10% specified in 1975 Rules bears any correlation with the expenditure incurred by the State Government in recovering the dues as arrears of land revenue as there is no pleadings on this issue in the writ petition."

11. Countering the submissions advanced by counsel for the petitioner-Bank, learned Standing Counsel submits that after issuance of recovery certificate at the end of State authorities the Bank cannot accept the defaulted outstanding amount from the borrower directly and it can only be accepted through State machinery. The deposition of defaulted outstanding amount directly to the bank was hit by the Board's order dated 14.08.2007 issued by the Commissioner and Secretary Board of U.P. Anubhag-II, Lucknow, which is contained as Annexure No.1 to the counter affidavit.

12. Responding to the submissions advanced by State counsel with respect to Board's Order dated 14.08.2007, it has been submitted by counsel for the petitioner that the Board's order dated 14.08.2007 cannot be permitted to operate retrospectively as the loan amount was liquidated way back in the year 2005 and a request for return of recovery certificate itself was made on 17.03.2005, which was deliberately been not responded to by State authorities and without deciding the request of bank for return of recovery certificate, levying any collection charge upon bank was clearly untenable.

13. Upon consideration of the rival submissions it comes out that the State authorities had not acted upon recovery certificate and in nutshell no recovery was made and at the same time the recovery certificate was not returned despite request made by the petitioner-Bank. Thus, if collection charges in the form of recovery certificate are allowed to be recovered, it would attract the doctrine of 'unjust enrichment', which is based on a maxim "Nemo Debet Locupletari Ex Aliena Jactura" (no person should be enriched at the expense of another). Even the State authorities cannot be permitted to derive benefit for which they are not legally entitled. No recovery as a tool of oppression is permissible. Permitting the State authorities to proceed for levy of collection charges would amount to taxing the Bank-petitioner and it is constitutional mandate that no tax shall be levied or collected except by authority of law. In given factual backdrop the State respondents utterly failed to demonstrate any provision of law for levying the collection charge as demanded by them by virtue of impugned recovery certificate. The doctrine of 'unjust enrichment' was subject matter of consideration of Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Mafatlal Industries Ltd and Ors vs. Union of India (UOI) and Ors. reported in (1997) 5 SCC 536 wherein 'unjust enrichment' has been deprecated.

14. The Apex Court in Indian Council for Enviro Legal Action versus Union of India reported in 2011 (8) SCC 161 has defined the "Unjust Enrichment", as under:-

"UNJUST ENRICHMENT"

152. 'Unjust enrichment' has been defined by the court as the unjust retention of a benefit to the loss of another, or the retention of money or property of another against the fundamental principles of justice or equity and good conscience. A person is enriched if he has received a benefit, and he is unjustly enriched if retention of the benefit would be unjust. Unjust enrichment of a person occurs when he has and retains money or benefits which in justice and equity belong to another.

153. Unjust enrichment is "the unjust retention of a benefit to the loss of another, or the retention of money or property of another against the fundamental principles of justice or equity and good conscience." A defendant may be liable "even when the defendant retaining the benefit is not a wrongdoer" and "even though he may have received [it] honestly in the first instance." (Schock v. Nash, A.2d, 232-33).

159. Unjust enrichment is basic to the subject of restitution, and is indeed approached as a fundamental principle thereof. They are usually linked together, and restitution is frequently based upon the theory of unjust enrichment. However, although unjust enrichment is often referred to or regarded as a ground for restitution, it is perhaps more accurate to regard it as a prerequisite, for usually there can be no restitution without unjust enrichment. It is defined as the unjust retention of a benefit to the loss of another or the retention of money or property of another against the fundamental principles of justice or equity and good conscience. A person is enriched if he has received a benefit, and he is unjustly enriched if retention of the benefit would be unjust. Unjust enrichment of a person occurs when he has and retains money or benefits which in justice and equity belong to another."

15. The State respondents did not attempt for realization of amount of recovery with promptitude and once same has been liquidated between borrower and the bank, asking for collection charges through impugned recovery certificate would be licensing, realization of an amount (collection charges) without sanction of law and same would be against the fundamental principles of justice, equity and fair-play.

16. Thus, if recovery certificate is issued but no recovery had been made by the State authorities, who had issued the recovery certificate and the defaulter directly deposits the amount and the recovery certificate is asked for withdrawal, withdrawn or even cancelled then in that event there is no question of charging any cost of recovery, permitting State authorities to realize cost of recovery/collection charges is clearly impermissible by doctrine of 'unjust enrichment'.

17. In view of the above, writ petition succeeds and is allowed. The impugned recovery certificate dated 18.03.2008 is quashed. No order as to cost.

Allotment of shop to respondent no. 6 dated 01.08.2017.

APPEARANCE OF PARTIES

Counsel for Appellant(s): Shri Alok Sharma.

Counsel for Respondent(s): Shri Sudhakar Mishra, counsel for respondent no.6, Shri Mohan Singh, counsel for Gaon Sabha.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Irshad Ali, J.)

1. Heard Shri Alok Sharma, learned counsel for the petitioner, learned Standing Counsel for the respondents-State, Shri Sudhakar Mishra, learned counsel for the respondent no.6 and Shri Mohan Singh, learned counsel for the respondent-Goan Sabha.

2. During course of submissions it has been pointed out that Officer (District Supply Officer, Sultanpur) who has passed the order impugned, has not been made party to the writ petition.

3. In view of the above, Shri Alok Sharma, learned counsel for the petitioner is permitted to implead the District Supply Officer as respondent no.8 in the array of parties.

4. The present writ petition has been directed against the order of cancellation dated 14.11.2017 passed by the Deputy Commissioner (Food), Faizabad Division, Faizabad and order dated 5.7.2017 passed by District Supply Officer, Sultanpur.

5. Factual matrix of the case is that the petitioner runs fair-price shop since 2006 to cardholders of the village in question. A complaint was filed against the petitioner at the behest of Gram Pradhan on 13.05.2016 and inquiry was initiated against the petitioner. The petitioner levelled certain charges. The petitioner submitted reply to the charges levelled against him stating therein that the Gram Pradhan due to enmity is continuously creating hindrance in proper functioning of the fair-price shop, therefore the petitioner sent letter to the authorities on 28.11.2016, 30.11.2016 and 14.12.2016.

Upon enquiry and after consideration of the reply submitted by the petitioner, vide order dated 20.12.2006 entire stock of the petitioner was found to be in order. The petitioner again wrote a letter to the S.D.M., Sultanpur informing him about illegality being committed by the Gram Pradhan on 18.1.2017. Vide order dated 7.2.2017 Gram Pradhan started pressurizing the authority to transfer cardholders to other shop.

In the meantime, another complaint was filed against the petitioner on 20.12.2016. The S.D.M. inquired into the said complaint and gave clean cheat to the petitioner vide report dated 18.4.2017. Another request was made by the petitioner to the authority for deputing an officer for peaceful distribution of foodgrains to the cardholders. The said letter was sent on 26.12.2016 and 15.5.2016 and an inquiry was done upon the complaint of the petitioner recorded in the report dated 23.5.2017 that the Gram Pradhan was restraining people from taking ration from the petitioner's shop.

Another report was submitted on 27.5.2017 wherein it was recorded that the people were not taking ration due to enmity of Gram Pradhan with the petitioner and also recorded that some unknown person tried to make hindrance in the distribution system even during the time of distribution officer was himself present on the spot.

Another complaint was filed against the Gram Pradhan by the anganwadi worker stating that the Gram Pradhan is coercing her and pressurizing her to verify false/ illegal ration cards. On 19.5.2017, certain individual at the behest of Gram Pradhan filed complaint against the petitioner.

The licence of the petitioner was suspended on 12.06.2017. The petitioner filed reply and the same was taken on record on 29.6.2017. A complaint was filed against the petitioner alleging the same fact on 4.7.2017. Immediately after the complaint dated 4.7.2017, the licence of the petitioner's shop was terminated without affording opportunity of hearing to the petitioner.

The petitioner filed appeal against the said order of cancellation on 10.7.2017. During pendency of the appeal, Gram Sabha passed resolution in favour of Smt. Sakeela Bano who is relative of Gram Pradhan and living in the same house. The appeal of the petitioner has been dismissed in mechanical manner even without considering the facts and averments of the petitioner.

6. Learned counsel for the petitioner submits that reply submitted by the petitioner on four points which were not taken into consideration and in a hurried manner, the order was passed allotting shop to Gram Pradhan's family member i.e. Smt. Sakeela Bano.

In this regard, learned counsel for the petitioner has invited attention of this Court at page 31 of the paper-book and shown that on four charges reply was sought from the petitioner. In pursuance thereof, the petitioner replied annexing therewith necessary document to show that there is no irregularity as alleged in the show cause notice.

7. Learned counsel for the petitioner next submits that while passing the impugned order of cancellation of shop, no reply submitted by the petitioner was taken into consideration.

8. Learned counsel for the petitioner next submits that Government Order dated 18.5.1999 restrains the family members of the Gram Pradhan to hold licence of fair-price shop in their favour. For ready reference, clause 1.8 reads as under:

"1.8 ग्राम प्रधान या उप प्रधान के परिवार के सदस्यों / संबंधियों के पक्ष में उचित दर की दुकान के आवंटन का प्रस्ताव नहीं किया जायेगा। परिवार की परिभाषा निम्नलिखित मानी जायेगी — स्वयं स्त्री, पुत्र, अविवाहित पुत्री, माता, भाई या अन्य कोई सदस्य जो साथ में रहता हो तथा एक चूल्हे का बना खाना खाता हो।"

9. Learned counsel for the petitioner next submits that in view of the provisions referred hereinabove, Smt. Sakeela Bano would not have been granted fair-price shop's licence as she is member of family of the Gram Pradhan and is residing the same house i.e. House No.65.

In support of his submission, the petitioner invited attention of this Court towards electoral roll to show that House No.65 starts from page 109 from the bottom, at serial no.596 name of Smt. Sakeela Bano finds place and at serial no.608 name of Mahzveen finds place. This clearly demonstrates that Smt. Sakeela Bano who has been given quota of fair-price shop is family member of the Gram Pradhan, therefore she cannot be given quota of fair-price shop in view of the restricted provisions provided under the Government Order dated 18.5.1999.

10. Learned counsel for the petitioner next submits that the Appellate Authority has also not taken into consideration the aforesaid aspect of the matter despite the fact that the specific ground was taken in the memo of appeal, therefore the order passed by the Appellate Court is wholly illegal and not sustainable in the eyes of law.

11. Learned counsel for the petitioner lastly submits that the order of cancellation has been passed in a very cursory manner without considering the reply submitted by the petitioner and the appeal filed by the petitioner has also been decided without taking into consideration the grounds taken in the memo of appeal, therefore the orders passed by the District Supply Officer as well as by the Deputy Commissioner, Faizabad Division, Faizabad are not sustainable in the eyes of law.

12. On the other hand, Shri Sudhkar Mishra, learned counsel for the respondent no.6 submits that she is not member of family of Gram Pradhan, therefore the quota allotted to her is just and valid.

13. Shri Mohan Singh, learned counsel for the respondent- Gaon Sabha submits that while passing the impugned order of cancellation reply submitted by the petitioner was not properly taken into consideration.

14. Having heard the rival submissions of learned counsel for the parties, I have perused the material on record.

15. On perusal of the impugned order of cancellation, it is evident that reply was submitted by the petitioner in detail by annexing copy of the Board displaying required information under law but the same has not been considered by the District Supply Officer while passing the impugned order, therefore the order impugned dated 5.7.2017 has been passed in a very casual manner without taking into consideration the reply submitted by the petitioner, therefore the order impugned dated 5.7.2017 is not sustainable in the eyes of law.

16. Government Order referred hereinabove dated 18.5.1999 also reveals that no quota of fair-price shop can be allotted to the family member of Gram Pradhan and by annexing copy of the electoral roll, the petitioner has established that Smt. Sakeela Bano is family member of the Gram Pradhan, therefore, quota granted to Smt. Sakeela Bano is illegal and contrary to the Government Order referred hereinabove.

17. By means of the present writ petition, on the ground referred hereinabove, the petitioner has prayed to quash allotment order dated 1.8.2018 made in favour of Smt. Sakeela Bano who is family member of the Gram Pradhan.

18. In view of the reasons recorded above and facts and circumstances of the case, impugned order dated 4.11.2017 passed by the Deputy Commissioner, Faizaba Division, Faizabad (Annexure No.1 to the writ petition) and order dated 5.7.2017 passed by the District Supply Officer, Sultanpur and order of allotment of quota dated 1.8.2017 are hereby quashed.

19. Accordingly, this writ petition succeeds and is allowed.

20. After passing the order for quashing and allowing the writ petition, it has been pointed out that quota holder who is petitioner has died and legal heirs of the petitioner has already been arrayed as party to the writ petition, therefore, Sub-Divisional Magistrate, Baldiray, District Sultanpur is directed to hold a meeting in his presence and give preference to the legal heirs of family member of the deceased while issuing allotment of fair-price shop in accordance with Government Order dated 5.8.2019. The said exercise shall be completed within three months from the date of production of a certified copy of this order.

ISSUE FOR CONSIDERATION

Whether a child seeking admission under Section 12(1)(c) of the Right of Children to Free and Compulsory Education Act, 2009 can be denied consideration merely because the application was submitted manually and not through the online portal.

HEADNOTE

Right of Children to Free and Compulsory Education Act, 2009, s.12(1)(c) – Constitution of India, Art. 21-A – Admission under 25% quota for children belonging to weaker sections and disadvantaged groups – Petitioner unable to upload the application form online – Manual application submitted before Basic Siksha Adhikari – State contended that for the purposes of admission for the Academic Session 2023-24, the procedure contemplated was only through online applications – Sustainability:

Held: Government Order dated 03.03.2016 specifically provides that where the parents are unable to apply through online mode, it casted a duty on the District Basic Siksha Adhikari to facilitate the filing of the manual application before him – Letter dated 20.01.2017 clearly states that as per the Government Order, the online procedure is “also” being implemented facilitating online application – Communication dated 30.01.2023 merely contemplates that an online application and lottery system has been started but does not indicate that Government Order dated 03.03.2016 has been amended or restrictions have been placed for making applications manually through Basic Siksha Adhikari – Since the Government Order dated 03.03.2016 was applicable for Academic Session 2023-24, it cannot be said that there was change in procedure subsequently. Court held that if the application under Section 12(1)(c) is mandated to be submitted only through online portal, the very object of the constitutional amendment and the Directive Principles of State Policy to provide free and compulsory education to children who are under privileged and are unable to complete their elementary education shall stand defeated – The very object of the Act, 2009 shall stand defeated if parents who are unable to apply through online mode are restrained from even making an application manually - Argument of the State that the application ought to have been made only through online mode rejected - Court directed that if applications are to be insisted through online mode only, the State Government must take upon itself the onerous duty to facilitate parents to file online applications through the office of Basic Siksha Adhikari. – State Government directed to consider issuance of a Standard Operating Procedure incorporating guidelines for processing online application forms through the office of Basic Siksha Adhikari for parents incapable of applying online for benefit of Section 12(1)(c) of the Act, 2009 [Paras 12, 13, 18, 21]

In the instant case the Respondent-Basic Siksha Adhikari directed to forthwith process the application of the petitioner [Paras 19] (E-5)

Provided that where a school specified in clause (n) of section 2 imparts pre-school education, the provisions of clauses (a) to (c) shall apply for admission to such pre-school education."

3. The case of the petitioner is that he had applied manually in the office of the Basic Siksha Adhikari, Prayagraj along with the letter dated 05.04.2023, expressing his inability to upload the form online, and therefore had requested the Basic Siksha Adhikari, Prayagraj to submit the same as per the provisions of the Government Order dated 03.03.2016. He has relied upon the Government Order dated 03.03.2016, wherein it has been provided that for admission, the parents of the child can apply in the office of District Basic Siksha Adhikari and further has relied upon the notification dated 06.02.2017 issued by the Additional Project Director, wherein also under Clause 2(d), it has been provided that for any reason an application cannot be made online, under the said circumstances, the same can be made through Block Siksha Adhikari. For ready reference, Section 2(d) of the notification dated 06.02.2017 is reproduced below:

"4. In pursuance of the order of this court dated 09.04.2026, an affidavit of respondent no.2 has also been filed along with a copy of Government Order dated 03.03.2016 (wrongly transcribed as 03.03.2018 in the notification dated 30.01.2023) has been filed wherein it is provided that it is the duty of the District Basic Siksha Adhikari to forward the manual application, in case, the parents are not able to upload the same online. It also records that no child can be denied admission for whatsoever reason, as per the mandate of Section 12(1)(c) of the Act, 2009. It also provides that the admission has to be made in the school which is situated in the neighboring area or nearest to the residence of the child, in case schools are not available in the block in which the family resides.

5. Shri Vaibhav Tripathi, learned Standing Counsel has placed reliance on the letter of the Special Secretary to the State Project Director (Education For All) dated 20.01.2017, and submits that as per the Government Order dated 03.03.2016, the procedure for application under Section 12(1)(c) of the Act, 2009, has been made online.

6. However, a perusal of Paragraph no.3, of the letter dated 20.01.2017, clearly states that as per the Government order, the online procedure is "also" being implemented, facilitating online application. For ready reference, Paragraph No.3 is quoted below:

3- इस संबंध में मैं मुझे यह कहने का निर्देश हुआ है कि उक्त शासनादेशों में 7 निर्धारित वर्तमान प्रक्रिया को ऑन लाइन भी किए जाने का निर्णय लिया गया है। उक्त कार्य अत्यन्त महत्वपूर्ण है। कृपया इसे समयबद्ध रूप से कराने के लिए अपने स्तर से यथोचित कार्यवाही किया जाना सुनिश्चित करें। उक्त कार्य के लिए आप पूर्णतः उत्तरदायी होंगे।"

7. Thereafter, he places reliance on the letter dated 30.01.2023, to contend that for the purposes of admission for the Academic Session 2023-24, the procedure contemplated is only through online applications. Bare reading of the communication dated 30.01.2023, itself demonstrates that a note was made with respect to Government Order dated 03.03.2016 (wrongly transcribed as 03.03.2018 in the notification dated 30.01.2023), wherein it merely contemplates that an online application and lottery system has been started; but it does not in any manner indicate that the earlier Government Order dated 03.03.2016, has been amended or restrictions have been placed, for making applications manually through Basic Siksha Adhikari. Since the Government Order dated 03.03.2016, was applicable for the academic Session 2023-24, as evident from the letter dated 30.01.2023, it also cannot be said that there was change in procedure subsequently, as the same would not apply retrospectively.

8. At this juncture, the court also take note of the statement of objects and reasons and the 86th Amendment Act, 2002; whereby, Article 21-A has been inserted in the Constitution of India, for making provision for the Right of Children to Free and Compulsory Education. It casts an obligation on the appropriate Government to provide and ensure admission, attendance and completion of elementary education. It provides that every child has a right to be provided full time elementary education of satisfactory and equitable quality, in a formal school which satisfies certain essential norms and standards.

9. The Directive Principles of State Policy, which is part of the Constitution of India, also lays down that the State shall provide free and compulsory education to all the children up to the age of 14 years.

10. The Statement of Object and Reasons, takes note of the fact that the number of children, particular children from disadvantaged groups and weaker sections, who drop out of school before completing the compulsory elementary education, remains very large.

11. If the argument of the State is accepted, and the application which is to be made under Section 12(1)(c) of the Act, 2009; is mandated to be submitted only through online portal, this court is afraid that the very object of the constitutional amendment and the Directive Principles of State Policy, to provide free and compulsory education to children who are under privileged and are unable to complete their elementary education, shall stand defeated.

12. It is perhaps in view of the aforesaid objectives, the Government Order 03.03.2016, specifically provides that where the parents are unable to apply through online mode, it casted a duty on the District Basic Siksha Adhikari to facilitate the filing of the manual application before him, to enable the parents to apply for the provision of free and compulsory education, to his child.

13. The very object of the Act, 2009 shall stand defeated, if the parents who are unable to apply through online mode, are put to restrain by not even making an application manually; and as such the argument of the State that the application ought to have been made only through online mode cannot be accepted; and is accordingly rejected.

14. Before parting with the judgment, this court also takes note of the fact that in affidavit dated 24.04.2026 filed on behalf of the respondents, wherein on a query being raised by the court, in Para-13 of the said affidavit, it has been mentioned that for the Academic Session 2024-25 out of total 3760 children, who were allotted schools, only 2412 children took admission; and similarly, for the Academic Session 2025-26, out of total 3862 children, only 2527 children took admission i.e. more than 1300 children did not take admission, in both academic sessions.

15. The said fact is indicative of an inherent defect in the implementation of the benefits of the Act, 2009 and though the children are aspiring to seek the benefit of Section 12(1)(c) of the Act, 2009; but due to the defect in the allotment of schools, thousands of children are not able to take the benefit of the Act, 2009. The Government must also look into the reasons and should provide some remedial measure, so that the benefit is extended to maximum students. The allotment, should be made accordingly, so that children are encouraged to take admission and not forfeit the same.

16. I may also give reference to the data collated, and brought on record, in pursuance of the orders of this court, by way of the affidavit dated 24.04.2026, which indicates that in District Prayagraj, for the Academic Session, 2025-26, some schools have given admission under the benefit of Section 12(1)(c) of the Act, 2009, to a almost negligible number of students and does not meet the criteria of 25% admission; for example in Ananta Devi Girls Inter College, only one student has been given the benefit; in Astha Vidya Mandir, only two students have been given the benefit; in Bal Vikas Vidyalaya, only four students, and similarly the numbers are between 1 to 4 in each school is overwhelming in the entire list, brought on record by the respondents.

17. The court is also conscious of the fact that online mechanism may bring transparency and reduce the human inputs, which may invariably attract some irregular practices, with respect to allotment of schools; but that alone cannot be the basis of prohibiting any manual application; considering that majority of students and family are those who are underprivileged and disadvantaged groups, who may not always make an application online. Also the fact that none of the schools are meeting the criteria of providing 25% such admissions.

18. However, in case the applications are to be insisted through online mode only, the State Government must also take upon itself, the onerous duty to facilitate the parents, to file online application through the office of Basic Siksha Adhikari; and any other method, would defeat the very purpose of the Act, 2009.

19. In view of the aforesaid, Respondent no.2 - Basic Siksha Adhikari, Prayagraj is directed to forthwith process the application of the petitioner within a period of one week from today.

20. Learned Standing Counsel is directed to communicate this order to the Respondent No.2, so that needful may be done and the academic session which is about to ensue, is not lost.

21. Registrar (Compliance) is directed to send a copy of this order to Respondent No.1 to consider the observation and opinion of this court more specifically stated in Paragraph 12 to 19 ; and it shall be expected from the Respondent No.1 to further circulate this judgment to all the District Basic Siksha Adhikari, in the State of U.P., within a period of three weeks from today, for necessary compliance, and if deems fit, to issue a separate "standard operating procedure", incorporating the guidelines for processing the online applications form, through the office of Basic Siksha Adhikari for those parents, who are incapable of applying online for the benefit of Section 12(1)(c) of the Act, 2009, since belonging to weaker sections and disadvantaged groups; and for want of knowledge, expertise or facility, to apply online.

22. With the aforesaid observations and directions the writ petition stands allowed.

ISSUE FOR CONSIDERATION

Whether employees of essential service departments such as electricity, water supply, telephone, and police, who discharged duties during the COVID-19 pandemic, are entitled to ex-gratia compensation under the State Government's scheme when they died due to COVID-19 infection?

HEADNOTES

Civil Law – Constitution of India – Article 14, 21, 226: - Writ Petition under Article 226 – for quashing impugned rejection order - whereby State Govt. rejected the ex-gratia compensation - petitioner's husband was assigned duties to maintain electricity supply during pandemic – who died due to COVID-19 infection – claim of compensation under COVID-19 ex-gratia compensation scheme, to the dependent of deceased employee of electricity department who died due to COVID-19 infection - claim rejected on ground that electricity duty not covered under "COVID duty" - Legal question before High Court that, whether essential service employees (like electricity, water, telephone, police) fall within scope of "COVID duty" under Government Order dated 11.04.2020 - Court finds that essential service employees contributed directly to containment, treatment, and protection during pandemic - narrow interpretation by State arbitrary and violative of Articles 14 and 21 – held - employees of essential services are deemed to be on COVID duty – therefore, rejection order unsustainable – quashed - writ petition allowed – direction issued to release ex-gratia compensation within 30 days

CASE ARISING FROM

Rejection order dated 28.07.2023 passed by the State Government denying ex-gratia compensation to the petitioner under the Government Order dated 11.04.2020 (COVID-19 ex-gratia compensation scheme).

APPEARANCE OF PARTIES

Counsel for Appellant(s): - Shri Ashutosh Kumar Tiwari, Ram Bilas Yadav.

Counsel for Respondent(s): - Shri P.K. Shahi (Additional Chief Standing Counsel), Shri Pankaj Srivastava (Standing Counsel), Shri Devesh Vikram (for respondent nos. 6 & 7)..

(Delivered by Hon'ble Indrajeet Shukla, J.)

1. Heard Shri Ram Bilas Yadav, learned counsel for the petitioner, Shri P.K. Shahi, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel along with Shri Pankaj Srivastava, learned Standing Counsel for the State respondents and Shri Devesh Vikram, learned counsel for respondent nos.6 and 7.

2. By means of present petition under Article 226 of the Constitution of India the petitioner has questioned the decision taken by the State Government dated 28.07.2023 rejecting the claim of ex-gratia compensation to the dependent-petitioner on account of death of Viklesh Gaud due to covid-19.

3. It is argued by learned counsel appearing on behalf of the petitioner that the husband of the petitioner since was assigned duties in the electricity department to ensure continue supply of electricity, and died due to infection of covid-19, the claim of ex-gratia compensation could not have been rejected on the ground that the duties assigned to the deceased would not have been taken to be duty on covid-19.

4. It is contended by learned counsel for the petitioner that the word and expression 'covid roktham, upchar and vachav' i.e. containment of covid pandemic/covid-19 treatment and protection from infection of covid would not involve the electricity department as a department rendering services for the said object to be achieved.

5. It is contended that during pandemic covid-19 while the State medical machinery was running out of its existing strength to meet the requirement and even the private hospitals were being declared as covid hospitals in city areas and rural areas, the Primary Health Center and the Community Health Centers were involved, which required oxygen machines and other machines to be installed beside ventilators to be run on electricity, the electricity became as necessary as water resources and the medical resources.

6. It is contended that the continued electricity supply to be maintained to the hospitals, Primary Health Centers and Community Health Centers to make the machinery run properly to ensure that there is a proper care taking and treatment given to the covid patients and the containment of the covid pandemic also when the people were to undergo quarantine and the movement on public streets was absolutely restricted then continued water supply and electricity supply became indispensable.

7. Article 14 and 21, it is contended not only ensures that there is no arbitrariness on the part of the State authorities or administration including the medical department, its essential services that would include the electricity, telephone and water supply and this would also attract Article 21 of the Constitution of India where citizens have the fundamental right to life, not only with liberty but to live life with dignity. In a situation of pandemic where the entire State machinery had geared up to ensure that there was no much threat to the life of the ordinary citizens more especially in the rural areas and sub-urban areas where the medical facilities could not be provided properly even after efforts of their obligation at optimum level, non-supply of water and electricity would have had very adverse effect and would have made the life of the citizens miserable

8. Thus, according to counsel appearing for the petitioner, for the purposes of containment of pandemic covid-19, treatment of patients, who were covid affected and their protection, which were the three hallmark points to maintain an application for payment of ex-gratia compensation announced by the State Government, the duties assigned to the people, in the electricity department, water supply department, telephone department, police department and such other essential services departments would amount to and would be taken to be duty assigned in the covid period for the containment of covid-19, treatment and cure.

9. People may not realize in ordinary days the necessity of telephone services and such other essential services etc. but continued connectivity also played a great role not only in connecting the people, who were coming to their Village from far far away places but also ensuring immediate attention of the doctors for the remote areas. So the people who were working in these departments were equally deserve to be taken to have worked and discharged duties during covid to be defined as duty for covid containment cure and treatment.

10. Upon a pointed query being made to the learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel as to those, who were discharging their duties during pandemic covid-19, electricity department, water supply department, telephone department, police department and such other essential departments would not get covered, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel could not show any material from the counter affidavit or otherwise could bring any such document, which would have justified the order passed by the State Government.

11. We have been apprised by coordinate bench judgement of this Court dated 29.05.2023 passed in the matter of Smt. Premlata Pandey Versus State of U.P. and 3 others, Writ-C No.17575 of 2023. The said writ petition has been allowed by the coordinate bench granting ex-gratia compensation to the dependent of deceased, who was working as Head Constable in the police department and died during pandemic covid-19. Paragraph no.9 of the said judgement has held thus:-

"9. Husband of the petitioner, Head Constable Ashok Kumar Pandey while working at Civil Airport Gorakhpur was involved in enforcement of COVID-19 protocol by ensuring social distancing among the passengers as well as forcing them to undergo corona test. Admittedly, there is no other force or employees except the policemen at airport who are deputed for this specific purpose. The State cannot make artificial distinction among its employees to depriving one class of employees from getting ex gratia compensation on their death despite the fact that they had received corona infection on duty during COVID-19 period. Every policeman or other government employee who has been discharging his duty during COVID-19 period for enforcing COVID-19 protocol will be deemed to be performing duty for prevention and protection of COVID-19 as mentioned in Government Order dated 11.4.2020 and if he dies because of corona infection during discharge of his duty then his dependents will be entitled to receive ex gratia compensation as per Government Order dated 11.4.2020."

12. In view of the above and in our considered view as well the employees working in the electricity department, water supply department, telephone department, police department and such other essential services departments who worked during covid period would be taken to be on covid duty as their discharge of duties helped the State Government in containing the spread of pandemic covid-19 virus, treatment of the patients and their protection by keeping them in confinement.

13. In view of the above, we are unable to sustain the order passed by the State Government giving a very narrow interpretation to the covid duty only confining those people, who were specially assigned to discharge their duties in treatment of people physically in hospitals.

14. The writ petition succeeds and is allowed. The order dated 28.07.2023 passed by the State Government is hereby quashed. The State Government is directed to release the ex-gratia compensation to the petitioner within a period of 30 days from the date of presentation of certified copy of this order before it.

ISSUE FOR CONSIDERATION

Whether the petitioner, widow/legal heir of original allottee of Quarter in question is entitled to restoration of possession and execution of transfer deed despite absence of allotment letter in official records?

HEADNOTES

Civil Law – Constitution of India – Article 226: -_Writ Petition under Article 226 – filed against State authorities, for relief of restoration of possession and execution of transfer deed in respect of Quarter in question - original allotment in favour of the petitioner’s husband – petitioner inherited rights - unauthorized occupants evicted – and further affirmed by High Court – lower authority’s finding recognized petitioner’s lawful entitlement – whether absence of allotment letter could defeat admitted allotment and possession rights – petitioner pleaded that respondents themselves admitted allotment - hence withholding possession is arbitrary – State objected alleging no allotment letter and unauthorized construction – Court finds State’s stand contradictory and failure to produce allotment list fatal, adverse inference drawn – weaving is hereditary and widow cannot be displaced – held, petitioner entitled to possession and transfer deed – writ petition allowed with direction to the respondents authorities to restore the possession in favour of the petitioner forthwith and execute the transfer deed in petitioner’s favour.

Order on Writ Petition

1. Heard Mr. Rakesh Kumar, learned counsel for the petitioner and Sri Pradeep Singh, learned Standing Counsel for the State-respondents.

2. Present writ petition under Article 226 of the Constitution of India has been instituted by petitioner Kamrunnisha, being the wife/legal heir of late Mati Ullah (original allottee of Quarter no.3, Bunkar Colony, Nati Imli (Labour Colony Chauraha), District Varanasi with the following main prayers:

“(i) issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of Mandamus directing the respondents No.4 to give possession to petitioner over the locked part of Quarter No.3, Bunkar Colony, Nati Imli, (Labour Colony Chauraha), District-Varanasi, expeditiously.

(ii) issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus directing the respondent no.4 to take appropriate decision upon petitioner’s application dated 15.09.2015 (Annexure No.8 to the writ petition) in accordance with law within reasonable time.”

Factual Matrix

3. The factual matrix giving rise to the instant writ petition is delineated herein as under:

4. The facts as culled out from pleading of writ petition are that petitioner’s husband late Mati Ullah was allotted Quarter no.3 Bunkar Colony Nati Imli (Labour Colony Chauraha), District Varanasi by respondents under the State sponsored housing scheme launched for silk weavers. The petitioner’s husband was in possession and was continuously paying rent against the quarter no.3 allotted to him, admeasuring area 25 x 50 square feet. In the meantime, after death of petitioner’s husband, she being widow inherited the possessory rights. However, two persons namely Mohd. Shueb and Mohd. Juned forcibly grabbed possession over a small portion of Quarter no.3, initially allotted to petitioner’s husband.

5. Petitioner lodged a complaint on 21.09.2013 before the police for removal of the said unauthorised occupants and thereafter, filed two representations dated 26.02.2014 and 05.03.2014 addressed to the District Magistrate, Varanasi.

6. On the representation dated 05.03.2014, filed by petitioner, cognizance was taken by 4th respondent/Assistant Director, Handloom and Textile Industries, Varanasi Region, Varanasi and notices were issued to Mohd. Shueb and Mohd. Juned directing them to vacate their unauthorised occupation qua Quarter no.3.

7. Petitioner, thereafter, instituted Writ-C No.27434 of 2014 titled as Kamrunnisha Vs. State of U.P. and 5 others which was disposed of on 19.05.2014 by following below quoted order:

“From the records, it appears that the Assistant Director, Handloom & Textiles, Industries, Varanasi has issued a notice to the fifth and sixth respondents alleging that the aforesaid private respondents are in unauthorized occupation of Quarter No. 3 and calling upon them to vacate the premises failing which appropriate action would be taken in accordance with law.

Since a notice has been issued by the fourth respondent, we direct that the fourth respondent shall act in pursuance of the notice and pass appropriate orders strictly in accordance with law after furnishing the fifth and sixth respondents an opportunity of being heard, preferably within a period of two months of receipt of a certified copy of this order.”

8. After the order dated 19.05.2014 passed by co-ordinate bench of this Court in Writ C No.27434 of 2014, said Mohd. Shoeb and Mohd. Juned instituted Writ-C No.42854 of 2014 titled as Mohd. Shoeb & Another Vs. State of U.P and 4 others assailing the order dated 07.07.2014 passed by Assistant Director, Handloom and Textile Industries, Varanasi Region, Varanasi by which a direction was issued against them to vacate □the portion of Quarter in question□ within a period of one week, failing which, the Station Officer was directed to get the house vacated and possession of portion of house encroached to be handed over to Smt. Kamrunnisha (petitioner herein). The writ petition so filed by Mohd. Shoeb and Mohd. Juned was allowed vide order dated 20.08.2014. The relevant portion of the order passed in Writ C No.42854 of 2014 is extracted as under:

“In this view of the matter it will not be necessary to issue notice to the respondents and the petition can be disposed of at this stage.

As the order dated 7 July 2014 is not in accordance with the order dated 19 May 2014 passed by the Court, it deserves to be set-aside and is set-aside. A direction is□ issued□ to the Assistant Director to pass a fresh order strictly in accordance with the order dated 19 May 2014 passed by the Court in Writ Petition No. 27434 of 2014 filed by Smt. Kamrunnisha.

The writ petition is, accordingly, allowed to the extent indicated above.”

9. Fresh proceedings were undertaken before Assistant Director, Handloom and Textile Industries, Varanasi Region, Varanasi in compliance of order dated 20.08.2014 passed in Writ C No.42854 of 2014 and order dated 19.05.2014 passed in Writ C No.27434 of 2014. The 4th respondent/Assistant Director, Handloom & Textile Industries, Varanasi Region, Varanasi put the parties to notice and framed points of determination to the effect □whether the property in question which was allotted to original allottee late Mati Ullah, has been trespassed by Mohd. Shoeb and Mohd. Juned□ and the second point of determination was □whether on the basis of affidavits and material produced by Mohd. Shoeb and Mohd. Juned it can be construed that they are allottee of property in question i.e. Quarter No.3, Bunkar Colony, Nati Imli (Labour Colony Chauraha), District Varanasi

10. The 4th respondent/Assistant Director, Handloom & Textile Industries, Varanasi Region, Varanasi concluded vide order dated 18.10.2014 that Quarter No.3 was originally allotted to late Mati Ullah and despite meticulous examination of material put forth by Mohd. Shueb and Mohd. Juned they were found to be trespasser. The operative portion of order dated 18.10.2014 passed by 4th respondent/Assistant Director, Handloom & Textile Industries, Varanasi Region, Varanasi is extracted as under:

Submission Advanced by counsel for the petitioner

11. Learned counsel for the petitioner submitted that petitioner who is admittedly legal heir/widow of original allottee/occupant late Mati Ullah, filed an application for possession of portion of Quarter No.3, which was trespassed/encroached by Mohd. Shueb and Mohd. Juned but even after recovery of possession, same was not restored in favour of the petitioner. Thus, she filed another application on 15.09.2015 addressed to 4th respondent/Assistant Director, Handloom & Textile Industries, Varanasi Region, Varanasi.

12. The further submission advanced by counsel for the petitioner is that the respondents themselves have admitted the allotment of the quarter in question in favour of the petitioner's husband, late Mati-Ullah, by virtue of orders dated 11.04.2014 and 18.10.2014 passed by respondent no. 4, and therefore, the petitioner's lawful entitlement and right over Quarter No. 3 stands clearly established. But despite such clear admission by the competent authority, no document or material has been brought on record by the respondents to dislodge findings contained in the order dated 18.10.2014 passed by the 4th Respondent.

13. Once the allotment/occupation of petitioner & her predecessor in-interest is admitted, there is no justification for the authorities to withhold possession of any part of the quarter, especially after evicting the unauthorized occupants. Thus, such retention of possession is wholly illegal, arbitrary and without authority of law.

14. The counsel for the petitioner strenuously urged that the respondents cannot be allowed to act contrary to their own records and orders, and they are legally bound from denying the petitioner's rightful claim to possession.

Submission Advanced by counsel for the State-Respondents

15. Learned Standing Counsel, while refuting the submissions advanced on behalf of petitioner submitted that M/s Silk Weaver Cooperative Societies Limited Varanasi was given the responsibility for the realisation of the rent for the allotted shops and deposit of same in treasury, but due to non depositing of the rent in the treasury despite its collect, dispute started and as such vide Govt. Order dated 17.03.1981 and 18.10.1994 it was resolved that the quarters in Bunkar Colony would be transferred pursuant to Govt. Notification dated 09.09.1994 by District Magistrate. The then Director Handloom & Textile Industries, U.P. Kanpur vide letter dated 22.11.1994 requested the District Magistrate, Varanasi to transfer quarters situated in Bunkar Colony, Nati Imli (Labour Colony Chauraha), District Varanasi, but same could not be materialised.

16. The further submission advanced by State Counsel also fortified by pleadings contained in the counter affidavit particularly in paragraph 3H, is that a Committee was constituted under the order dated 16.03.1996 passed by the Additional District Magistrate (Administration) Varanasi who prepared a list of occupants residing in Bunkar Colony in which at serial no.3 against the property/Quarter No.3, the name of Mati Ullah s/o Hafiz Ullah is mentioned. It has further been emphasized that the records related to the allotment of Quarter No.3 in the name of late Mati Ullah are not available in the office and at the same time, petitioner has not produced any documentary evidence, establishing allotment of Quarter No.3 in favour of late Mati Ullah.

17. It was further submitted that petitioner illegally constructed unauthorised shops on government land adjacent to Quarter No.3. The petitioner is also realizing rent from such unauthorised constructions and therefore, the petitioner is guilty of encroachment and misuse of government land. Based on the enquiry, respondent no.4 issued a warning letter dated 09.11.2022 directing for removal of unauthorised construction and handing over possession to the department. It is further submitted that the petitioner has no ownership rights/valid allotment and is involved in unauthorised occupation and construction.

18. The further submission advanced by learned counsel for the State respondents is that in absence of allotment letter, the portion of Quarter No.3 which has been recovered from Mohd. Shoeb and Mohd. Juned cannot be restored to petitioner.

Discussion and Findings

19. The factual position as emerges from thrashing out the material available on record is that, Mohd Shoeb and Mohd. Juned were found to be unauthorised occupants of Quarter No.3 in Bunkar Colony, Nati Imli (Labour Colony Chauraha), Varanasi and possession from them have been recovered by virtue of order dated 18.10.2014 passed by Assistant Director, Handloom & Textile Industries, Varanasi Region, Varanasi. The said order dated 18.10.2014 has been implemented through police machinery and the order dated 18.10.2014 passed by Assistant Director, Handloom & Textile Industries, Varanasi was challenged by Mohd Shoeb and Mohd. Juned, through Writ-C No.59769 of 2014 which too has been dismissed and the order dated 18.10.2014 has been affirmed vide order dated 11.11.2014. The order dated 11.11.2014 passed in Writ-C No.59769 of 2014 is extracted as under:

“Heard learned counsel for the parties.

From the record of the present writ petition, it is apparent that the Assistant Director, Handloom and Textiles Industries, Varanasi Region, Varanasi as per his order dated 18.10.2014 has held that the petitioners are in unauthorized occupation of the Quarter no.3 Bunkar Colony Natiimali, Labour Colony Chauraha, Varanasi. It is not in dispute that the said quarter is the property of the State of Uttar Pradesh Industries Department. The Assistant Director, Handloom and Textiles Industries, Varanasi Region, Varanasi has required the petitioner to vacate the premises failing which legal action shall be taken.

We find no ground to interfere with the order of the Assistant Director, Handloom and Textiles Industries, Varanasi Region, Varanasi.

This writ petition is finally disposed off.”

20. After passing of order dated 11.11.2014 in Writ C No.59769 of 2014, petitioner instituted Writ-C No.18178 of 2015 and this Hon^{ble} Court asked the State counsel to seek instructions, whether order dated 18.10.2014 has been complied with or not, then thereafter on 25.04.2015 order was passed by Additional City Magistrate III, Varanasi, which reads as under:

"महोदय,

21. Subsequently, another Writ-C 18178 of 2015 was instituted by petitioner which was disposed of finding the possession of Quarter No.3/property in question has been recovered from unauthorised occupants. The State respondents refused to hand over the possession of portion of Quarter No.3 recovered from unauthorised occupants. Only on the strength that there was no allotment letter available in their office and as such tried to dispute the allotment in favour of late Mati Ullah and emphasised that petitioner has no right or valid allotment either in her favour or in favour of her husband but the occupation/possession of petitioner and her husband has always been recognized even by virtue of list of occupants prepared on 16.09.1996 brought on record by State respondents themselves through Counter Affidavit and vide order dated 18.10.2014 passed by 4th respondent and possession of petitioner has never been questioned by the State authorities.

22. The instant writ petition was taken up on 09th March, 2026 and on the said date below quoted order was passed:

"3. Learned Standing counsel for the State, at this stage, has drawn the attention of the Court to paragraph no.12 of the counter affidavit in which a stand has been taken that there was no allotment ever issued in favour of Late Mati Ullah for Quarter no.3. These averments made in paragraph no.12 have been sworn by the Assistant Director, Handloom & Textile Industries, Varanasi Region, Varanasi.

4. On the face of it, the averments so made run contrary to the stand taken by the officer of the same rank in the order passed for dispossession by him of the unauthorized occupant on 18.10.2014.

5. Let the allotment list of all the allottees of the colony in question be placed before this Court on an affidavit to be sworn by the Assistant Director, Handloom & Textile Industries, Varanasi Region, Varanasi by the next date fixed, failing which he shall be appearing in person before this Court."

23. In compliance with order dated 09.03.2026, the matter was taken up on 31.03.2026 and the State respondents failed to produced allotment list of all allottees of the colony in question before this Court and as such, this Court is left with no other option except to draw an adverse inference against the State's stand and to treat the fact mentioned in order dated 18.10.2014 qua allotment of late Mati Ullah to be correct which consistently remained intact even after several round of litigation before this Court.

24. The respondents themselves have admitted the allotment of the quarter in question in favour of the petitioner's husband, late Mati Ullah, in the orders dated 11.04.2014 and 18.10.2014 passed by respondent no. 4, and, therefore, the petitioner's lawful entitlement and right and retention of possession over Quarter No. 3 stands clearly established.

25. Despite such clear admission by the competent authority, no document or material has been brought on record by the respondents to dispute or deny the allotment as claimed by petitioner in favour of her late husband.

26. Once the allotment could not be disputed there was no justification for the authorities to have withheld possession of any part of the quarter, especially after evicting the unauthorized occupants. Such retention of possession is wholly illegal, arbitrary and is without authority of law.

27. We must record here that as per own averments vide paragraph 3 (D,E,F,G) the proceedings were started to execute transfer deed in favour of those who were occupant of quarters in weavers' colony and transfer deeds would have been executed but for an intervention of Court (Lucknow Bench of this Court in Writ Petition No.1405 (M/B) of 1996, later on dismissed on 08.03.2013). The proceedings were reinitiated under direction of this Court vide order dated 10.07.2014 passed in Writ Petition No.27435 of 2014. The Committee constituted for the purpose of identifying occupants in the year 1996 itself acknowledged petitioner's husband being a valid occupant by placing him at serial no.3 of the list prepared dated 19.06.1996. The list bears signatures of Assistant Director Handicraft and Cloth Industries, Varanasi (para 3H). It is worth mentioning here that ejection of unauthorised occupants of the quarter in question namely Mohd. Shoeb and Mohd. Juned both sons of Zaheer Ahmad had been done upon the complaint filed by her vide letter dated 09.03.2014 in compliance of the order passed by this Court in a Writ Petition being Writ C No.27434 of 2014 dated 19.05.2014. Neither at the time of compliance of Court's order to evict unauthorized occupants nor at the time of passing of order dated 20.08.2014 in writ petition being Writ C No.42854 of 2014 State respondents took any stand that writ petitioner had no locus to either maintain a complaint or file writ petition as a wife of a valid allottee Mati Ullah. We may observe here also that any suit filed by the unauthorised occupant namely Mohd. Shoeb and Mohd Juned who have already been dispossessed, cannot weaken the case of the petitioner for execution of transfer of deed. Once the Government had itself decided to transfer quarters to the occupant-weavers in possession, the death of a husband-weaver cannot be a ground to deny same rights to weaver's widow. In a family of weavers in India, all members do weaving and the weaving is a hereditary art that passed on to the next generation. We cannot permit death of this art by displacing the members of the family of a weavers from the colony upon the death of head of the family.

28. The respondents cannot be allowed to act contrary to their own records and orders, and they are legally bound to honour petitioner's rightful claim of possession.

Order

29. In view of the above, writ petition succeeds and is allowed. The order dated 19.05.2014 is hereby quashed. The 4th respondent/Assistant Director, Handloom & Textiles Industries, Varanasi Region, Varanasi is commanded to restore possession of the locked part of Quarter No.3, Bunkar Colony, Nati Imli (Labour Colony Chauraha), District Varanasi to writ petitioner forthwith. Transfer deed shall be executed to the successor of late Mati Ullah namely Kamrunnisha his wife, the petitioner, in terms of order dated 19.05.2014 in Writ C No.27434 of 2014.

30. There will be no order as to cost.

(ii) Whether there was any determination of the area, if any, falling within the disputed territory of the State of Madhya Pradesh;

(iii) What was the effect of the clause contained in the e-tender/e-auction notice dated 16.02.2018 requiring the bidder to inspect and satisfy himself regarding the mining area before participating in the bidding process, on the reliefs claimed by the petitioner; and

(iv) Whether the amount claimed by the petitioner by way of refund was in excess of the amount actually deposited by him.

HEADNOTE

Indian Contract Act, 1872 – ss.20, 65 – U.P. Minor Minerals (Concession) Rules, 1963 – r.58 – Mining lease – E-tender cum e-auction for excavation of sand/morum over 25 hectares – Mining lease executed after issuance of letter of intent and environmental clearance – Mining operations disrupted shortly after commencement on account of boundary dispute between States of Uttar Pradesh and Madhya Pradesh regarding river Ken – State Government subsequently stopping mining operations and later permitting mining only in alleged undisputed area – Joint inspection finding that out of 25 hectares only 12.86 hectares was undisputed while 12.14 hectares remained disputed – No assessment of mineral quantity in undisputed area – No effective steps taken to resolve boundary dispute, hand over undisputed area, reassess mineral availability or renegotiate lease conditions – Mining operations remaining suspended after 26.05.2019 – Lease ultimately cancelled on ground of loss of revenue – Petitioner sought refund and restitution of the amounts deposited under the mining lease – Entitlement to refund and restitution – Justification:

Held:

Court held that initially the entire area of 25 hectares under the lease dated 13.02.2019 was demarcated and handed over to the petitioner. Shortly thereafter the dispute of boundary arose between the two States on 22.02.2019 thereby hindering the mining operations. Subsequently a joint exercise was also undertaken on 10.04.2019 for demarcation of boundary by the officers of both the States but without success. It was admitted that no excavation was carried out after 26.05.2019. As the dispute of boundary remained unresolved the State of U.P. vide the letter dated 15.07.2019 had stopped mining operations in the entire mining area of 50 hectares, including the mining area of 25 hectares allotted to the petitioner. The State of U.P. thereafter permitted mining in the undisputed area. However, even the undisputed area was not made available to the petitioner for mining. Court held that the area of 25 hectares allotted to the petitioner for mining was not made available to the petitioner after 26.05.2019 till the termination of lease on 29.01.2022.

Court held that it was only once on 10.04.2019 that a joint exercise was undertaken to demarcate the boundary between the two States but the attempt so made was without any success. During the pendency of the writ petition an exercise was undertaken to demarcate the undisputed mining area, but no effort was made by the respondents to hand over the undisputed mining area to the petitioner or to assess the quantity of minor mineral (sand/morum) available in the said area. [Paras 56-62]

Court held that the condition in the advertisement dated 16.02.2018 requiring the bidder to inspect and satisfy himself regarding the mining area would not absolve the respondents of their obligation to make available the leased area for mining. Petitioner was not supposed to verify the correctness of boundary or title as there was a presumption that the State would only advertise the mining area, which is free from all encumbrances. Petitioner was only required to assess the quantity of minerals and the access to the mining area to be allotted to the petitioner. Respondents failed to demarcate and hand over the undisputed area and also failed to assess the quantity of minor minerals available therein or renegotiate the terms of the lease after the boundary dispute arose. Said condition did not defeat the relief claimed by the petitioner. [Paras 63-76]

Court held that both the parties had entered into the mining lease dated 13.02.2019 under a mistake as to a matter of fact that 25 hectares of land was available for mining. However, after execution of the mining lease, it was realised that the required area was not available. The availability of 25 hectares of mining area being a matter of fact essential to the agreement, the parties suffered from mutual mistake and the mining lease was void by virtue of Section 20 of the Contract Act, 1872. The Court further held that the words "discovered to be void" in Section 65 comprehend a situation where the parties were suffering from a mistake of fact from the very beginning but had not realised, at the time of entering into the agreement, that they were suffering from such mistake and had acted bona fide on the agreement. Consequently, the petitioner was entitled to restitution under Section 65 of the Contract Act. [Paras 75, 77, 79]

Court held that the monetary reliefs claimed by the petitioner were in the nature of restitution of investments made. Petitioner was held entitled to refund of the amounts admittedly paid by the petitioner to the respondents in pursuance to the lease deed dated 13.02.2019 after deducting the amount of sand/morum already excavated by the petitioner, the return of fixed deposit, and liberty to move the competent authority for refund of stamp duty. Court held that claims relating to expenditure on service road development and other disputed heads cannot be adjudicated in the writ proceedings. [Paras 95-97]

Court held that the petitioner could not be held liable for any loss of revenue to the State Government. Once the petitioner was not permitted to carry out mining operations after 26.05.2019, there was no question of payment of further lease instalments. Respondents made no effort to resolve the boundary dispute with the State of Madhya Pradesh, which resulted in stoppage of mining operations. No notice as required under Rule 58 of the U.P. Minor Minerals (Concession) Rules, 1963 was issued prior to cancellation of the lease. Consequently, the order dated 29.01.2022 cancelling the lease was held to be illegal, arbitrary and contrary to the prescribed procedure. [Paras 46-49]

Writ petition was partly allowed.

CASE ARISING FROM

Petitioner filed the writ petition seeking refund and restitution of the amounts deposited under a mining lease for excavation of sand/morum over an area of 25 hectares, over which mining operations could not be carried out owing to a boundary dispute between the States of Uttar Pradesh and Madhya Pradesh and because the entire leased area was not made available for mining.

Appearances for Parties

Advs. for the Petitioner: Jai Singh Parihar, Abhishek Bhushan, Adarsh Bhushan, Sri S.P. Singh.

Advs. For the Respondents: C.S.C.,

(Delivered by Hon'ble Sudhanshu Chauhan, J.)

1. Heard Shri Shashi Nandan, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Shri Jai Singh Parihar, learned counsel for the petitioner and Shri Kartikeya Saran, learned Additional Advocate General assisted by Shri Rajeshwar Tripathi, learned Chief Standing Counsel II and Shri Sandeep Kumar Singh, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel for respondents.

2. The controversy involved in the present writ petition is that the District Magistrate, Banda-respondent no.4 had issued an e-tender cum e-auction notice dated 16.02.2018 inviting bids for excavating 5,00,000 cubic meters of sand/morum over an area of 25 hectares comprised in part of Khasra No.5 and part of Khasra No.9 in Village- Bilharka, Tehsil- Narayani, District- Banda.

3. The bid made by the petitioner in pursuance to the tender notice was accepted and a letter of intent was issued on 19.03.2018. The terms of reference (TOR) for the proposed site was issued by the State Level Environment Impact Assessment Authority (SLEIAA) on 25.05.2018 and the environmental clearance was subsequently granted to the petitioners for mining on the aforesaid site on 08.02.2019.

4. Subsequently, a mining lease dated 13.02.2019 was executed between the parties. Under the lease the petitioner was to excavate annually 5,00,000 cubic meters of sand/morum at the rate of Rs. 527/- per cubic meter. The lease was for a period of five years and the amount so payable was to increase at the rate of 10% for every subsequent year. Besides, the petitioner prior to commencement of mining was required to deposit an amount of Rs. 6,58,75,000/- towards security and 25% of the first instalment for the first year amounting to Rs. 6,58,75,000/-. Hence, the petitioner had deposited a total amount of Rs. 13,17,50,000/- as advance besides a stamp duty of Rs. 3,21,73, 877/- was paid by the petitioner on the lease.

5. However, shortly after the petitioner commenced mining, the mining operations were disrupted by officials of State of Madhya Pradesh (MP) on the pretext that a part of the mining area allotted to the petitioner fell within the State of M.P. The petitioner made complaints regarding the incident with a request to resolve the boundary dispute. A joint inspection team comprising of officers of State of Uttar Pradesh (U.P) and State of M.P. was constituted but the dispute relating to boundaries remained unresolved. In the meanwhile a demand for payment of second instalment under the lease dated 13.02.2019 was raised. However, the petitioner expressed his inability to make any payment till the boundary dispute was resolved between the two States.

6. As the petitioner was not permitted to carry out mining operations and demand for second installment was being made by the respondent no.4, the petitioner was constrained to file Writ-C No.-18794 of 2019 seeking a direction that the two States be directed to settle the boundary dispute in respect of river, 'Ken' and State of U.P. be restrained from realising royalty and future installments till the time the petitioner was not permitted to carry out the mining operations.

7. During the pendency of the aforesaid writ petition a letter dated 15.07.2019 was issued by the State Government wherein while taking cognizance of the difficulties faced in mining of minor minerals (sand /morum) on account of the dispute relating to the boundary a request was made to the Revenue Department (State of U.P.) to resolve the same and till the time the dispute was resolved the mining operations in the area were stopped.

8. This Court while taking cognizance of the letter dated 15.07.2019 had disposed of Writ-C No.- 18794 of 2019 vide the judgment and order dated 18.07.2019 directing as under :-

“10. The dispute in respect of mining area allotted to the petitioner by way of lease deed dated 13.2.2019. The petitioner was not permitted to excavate the minor minerals from the area allotted to him by way of aforesaid lease deed on the ground that certain area fell within the boundary of State of M.P. Cognizance in this regard has already been taken by the State Government which is clear from the perusal of the letter dated 15.7.2019

11. In the aforesaid facts and circumstances, the present writ petition is disposed of finally directing the State Government/respondent No.1 to resolve the dispute expeditiously specially in terms of the letter dated 15.7.2019 written by the State Government, a reference of which has been made in paragraph 7 of this judgement. Till the time, the dispute is resolved by the State Government, no coercive action be taken against the petitioner specially in respect of recovery of amount regarding which notice was issued to the petitioner. 12. With the aforesaid observations, writ petition stands disposed of. 13. No order as to costs. “.

9. As the State Government failed to resolve the dispute relating to boundary, the petitioner was constrained to file the present writ petition seeking the return of the deposited amount and expenses incurred amounting to Rs. 26,65,66,666/- along with 9% interest and damages and also seeking a direction for the State Government to annul the lease executed in favour of the petitioner.

10. During the pendency of the writ petition the State of U.P permitted mining in the undisputed mining area allotted to the petitioner. Further on the directions of this Court an exercise was undertaken by the parties to demarcate the undisputed area and also to determine the quantity of minor mineral (sand/ morum) available therein. Although such an exercise to demarcate the undisputed mining area allotted to the petitioner was undertaken but there is nothing on record to demonstrate that any effort was made by the respondents to hand over the undisputed mining area to the petitioner or to assess the quantity of minor mineral (sand/ morum) available in the said area. It is further admitted between the parties that no mining operations were carried out by the petitioner after 26.05.2019. Under the circumstances the mining lease of the petitioner was cancelled vide the order dated 29.01.2022.

11. It is in the above background that the present writ petition was allowed by this Court vide judgment and order dated 30.09.2022 wherein it was directed as under :-

“12. The stand taken by the respondents seems to be that the petitioner was allowed to carry out excavation of minor minerals in the undisputed area out of total area of 25 hectares, which itself establishes that the interstate boundary dispute was not resolved. Besides this, nothing has been pointed out from the record that possession of aforesaid undisputed area was handed over to the petitioner. However, the petitioner may have opted for taking lease of a particular plot for carrying out excavation of minor minerals keeping in view the total plot and availability of minor minerals therein, which may or may not be commercially viable for a part of the area.

13. For the reasons mentioned above, in our view, the respondents having failed to hand over the possession of the area allotted to the petitioner for carrying out excavation of minor minerals, in our opinion, the petitioner is entitled to get refund of the entire amount deposited for the purpose along with interest @ 6% per annum from the date of deposit of the said amount till the date it is refunded. The needful shall be done by the authorities concerned within a period of three months from the date of receipt of certified copy of the order. In case, the amount is not refunded within the prescribed period, any interest payable to the petitioner thereafter, shall be the responsibility of the officer(s)/ officials (s), who may be responsible for delay in compliance of the order. 14. The writ petition stands allowed in the aforesaid terms.”

12. The respondents being aggrieved by the judgment and order dated 30.09.2022 passed in the present writ petition had filed review petition before this Court registered as Civil Misc. Review Application No.-525 of 2022, essentially on the ground that the petitioner had deposited Rs. 13,17,50,000/- in pursuance to the lease deed and not an amount of Rs. 26,65,66,666/- as claimed in the writ petition. Further the petitioner had carried out mining between 15.02.2019 to 26.05.2019 and excavated 22,820 cubic meters of sand/morum. It was also stated that the petitioner under the conditions of the advertisement dated 16.02.2018 (e-tender notice) was required to inspect the area in respect of the quantity of mineral and the petitioner had got prepared the mining plan and also obtained the environmental clearance certificate wherein sufficient mineral was shown to be available and as such the petitioner was well aware of the site conditions of the mining area and the quantity of minor mineral available.

13. The review petition so filed by the respondents was allowed in part vide judgment and order dated 12.05.2023 and it was directed as under :- ?5. Considering the facts and circumstances, as it is apparent from the face of record, we accordingly modify the order dated 30.09.2022 to the effect that the opposite party would be at liberty to deduct the amount from the total outstanding amount to the effect of total excavated sand/ morum of 22,820 cubic meter, as it is alleged the same has been excavated by the petitioner with effect from 15.02.2019 to 26.05.2019 and accordingly, the rest of amount along with requisite interest may be returned. 6. Accordingly, the review application is allowed in part.?

14. The respondents not being satisfied with the judgment and order dated 30.09.2022 passed in the present writ petition and the judgment and order dated 22.05.2023 in the review petition had filed a special leave petition before the Apex Court and same was converted in Civil Appeal No. 5171-5172 of 2023 (State of U.P. and others Vs. Vinay Kumar Singh and others). The Apex Court vide judgment and order dated 23.08.2023 passed in the civil appeal had allowed the appeals and restored the present writ petition for fresh adjudication. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in the judgment and order dated 23.08.2023 had held as under :-

“20. On a careful reading of the writ-petition filed by the original petitioner, as noticed above, prima facie, it appears that the State of U.P. was justified in taking a stand in the review petition that the High Court had wrongly observed that the State of U.P. (i.e., respondents in the writ petition) had failed to handover possession of the area allotted to the petitioner for carrying out mining operations. However, while deciding the review petition, this aspect of the matter has not been dealt with by the High Court. Further, the High Court failed to address the ground no. 8 in the review petition wherein it was stated that in the advertisement dated 16.02.2018 the bidder was advised to inspect and satisfy itself regarding the mining area before participating in the bidding process. As to what would be the effect of that clause on the relief claimed by the original petitioner is a matter which requires consideration. But there appears no discussion in that regard in the orders impugned. That apart, there is no determination of the area, if any, which falls in the disputed territory i.e., within the State of M.P. There is also no discussion on the plea of the appellants that the amount of which refund was sought was far in excess of the amount paid by the original petitioner.

21. Having found that the High Court has not properly addressed all the issues raised before it, we deem it appropriate to remand the matter to the High Court by restoring the writ petition to its original number so that it is decided afresh in accordance with law.

22. Consequently, these appeals are allowed. The impugned orders dated 30.09.2022 and 12.05.2023 are set aside. Writ C No.37749 of 2019 is restored to the file for fresh adjudication. It is made clear that if parties have not already exchanged their affidavits in the said writ petition, they may do so within six weeks from today. We request the High Court to decide the matter in the light of our observations above, expeditiously, preferably, within a period of three months from the date a copy of this order is furnished before it.

23. We, however, clarify that we have not expressed our opinion on the merits of any of the issues that may arise for adjudication by this High Court. .”

15. In the above background it is contended on behalf of the petitioner that the petitioner was not permitted to carry out the mining operations on the entire leased area of 25 hectares. Shortly after the execution of the mining lease, dated 13.02.2019 on 22.02.2019, the officers of the State of MP had stopped the mining operations on the pretext that 300 meters of mining area allotted to the petitioner fell in the State of M.P. The petitioner regarding the incident had made representations before the respondent no. 3 and respondent no.4 with the request to carry out the exercise of demarcation of the mining area allotted to the petitioner. In pursuance thereto a joint exercise of demarcation was undertaken by the officers of the two States but without any success. Subsequent thereto no exercise whatsoever was ever undertaken by the respondents to carry out demarcation of boundaries and the dispute remained unresolved thereby adversely affecting the mining/ excavation to be carried out by the petitioner.

16. In the meanwhile, the respondent no. 4 vide the letter dated 06.04.2019 had made a demand for payment of second instalment under the lease. The petitioner on 15.05.2019 had expressed his inability to pay the amount in view of the difficulties faced in mining. Ultimately as the petitioner was not permitted to carry out mining after 26.05.2019 and in view of the demands raised by the respondent in respect of the payment of second instalment of lease, the petitioner was compelled to file Writ C No. 18794 of 2019. The writ petition was disposed of vide the judgment and order dated 18.07.2019 in the light of the letter dated 15.07.2019 of the State Government stopping mining operations including in the mining area allotted to the petitioner till the boundary dispute was resolved, with the further directions to take no coercive measures against the petitioner till the dispute was resolved in pursuance to the letter dated 15.07.2019.

17. However, as no effective measures were undertaken by the respondents to resolve the boundary dispute, hence, the petitioner was constrained to file the present writ petition. During the pendency of the present writ petition the State Government vide the letter dated 17.03.2020 permitted mining in undisputed areas but no effort whatsoever was made to demarcate the boundary of the undisputed area, to assess the quantity of minor minerals available and to renegotiate the terms of the mining lease. It was only with the intervention of this Court that in pursuance to the order dated 08.02.2021 a joint inspection team was constituted to carry out the demarcation of the undisputed area.

18. The petitioner had objected to the exercise so undertaken essentially on the ground that there was no sand available in the so-called undisputed area and as such mining was not feasible. The petitioner did not agree with the manner in which the exercise of demarcation was carried out on 15.02.2021 but even as per own showing of the respondents in the joint inspection report dated 15.02.2021 out of total mining area of 25 hectares an area of 12.14 hectares was found to be disputed while an area of 12.86 hectare was found to be undisputed. Thus, it is contended that only about 51% of the total mining area was available for mining and there was no sand available for excavation in the undisputed area. Moreso, no effort was made by the respondents to handover the undisputed mining area to the petitioner and to re-negotiate the terms of the lease. Subsequently the respondents while acting in a most illegal and arbitrary manner had cancelled the mining lease on 29.01.2022.

19. Thus, the crux of contention of the petitioner is that from the very commencement of the mining lease the petitioner was not permitted to carry out mining for no fault of his and ultimately no mining was carried out after 26.05.2019. Further no effort was made by the respondents to demarcate the mining area of the petitioner or to resolve the boundary dispute. Even the so-called undisputed mining area was never handed over to the petitioner and no effort was made to re-negotiate the terms of the mining lease. Under the mining lease it was the obligation of the respondents to provide hindrance free mining area to the petitioner, which the respondents utterly failed to provide, as such the petitioner is liable to be compensated for the breaches and defaults on part of the respondents.

20. Per contra it has been vehemently contended on behalf of the respondents that petitioner was well aware about the site conditions of the mining area under the lease and the petitioner had executed the lease with eyes wide open and it was no longer open for the petitioner to question the same. It is submitted that the e-tender cum e-auction notice was issued only on the basis of District Survey Report and the report of Technical Committee after determining the quantity of minor mineral available at site. Reliance has also been placed on condition no. 22 (1) of the e-tender cum e-auction notice dated 06.02.2018 wherein bidders were required to satisfy themselves regarding the quantity of minor mineral available. Besides reliance has also been placed on condition 22 (2) of the e-tender notice.

21. It is also contended that the petitioner himself had got the mining plan prepared and also got the Environmental Clearance Survey where too, the quantity of minor minerals available from the mining area under the lease was shown to be 5,00,000 (Five lakh) cubic meters. Thus, it is contended that once the entire mining lease area of 25 hectares was demarcated and duly handed over to the petitioner, the respondents cannot be held to be liable for the petitioner being unable to carry out mining.

22. As far as the boundary dispute is concerned, it is contended on behalf of the respondents that repeated efforts were made to resolve the boundary dispute and letters were also issued to Collector, Chhatarour, however due to non-cooperation of the officers of the State of M.P. the boundary dispute remained unresolved. Subsequently the respondents had demarcated the undisputed mining area under the mining lease in compliance of the directions of this Court but the petitioner intentionally failed to commence mining. Thus, the respondents being left with no alternative were compelled to cancel the mining lease vide the order dated 29.01.2022.

23. Hence, the crux of the contention of the respondents is that there was sufficient minor mineral available for mining and once the possession of the mining area was handed over to the petitioner after demarcation of the same, the respondents cannot be held liable under the terms of the agreement.

24. We have heard learned counsel for the parties and perused the records.

25. The respondents do no dispute the fact that the petitioner had carried out mining operations upto 26.5.2019 and had excavated 22820 cubic meter of sand/morum from 15.2.2019 to 26.5.2019. It is also admitted that the petitioner had deposited the amount of Rs. 6,58,00,075/- towards first instalment and a security of Rs. 6,58,00,075/- was deposited, hence, it is stated that total amount of Rs. 13,17,50,000/- was deposited by the petitioner with the respondents. However, the petitioner had not deposited the second instalment, which fell due on 01.4.2019 as per the terms of the lease.

26. Before we advert to the merits of the controversy, we are conscious of the fact that the Apex Court vide the judgment and order dated 23.08.2023, while remanding the matter back to us to decide the same afresh in accordance with law, had also framed certain questions in paragraph 20 of the judgment, morefully reproduced in paragraphs above and the same read as under:-

(i) Whether the State of U.P. had failed to hand over the possession of the area allotted to the petitioner for carrying out mining operations?

(ii) Whether there is no determination of the area, if any, which falls in the disputed territory i.e. within the State of M.P?

(iii) Effect of clause in the advertisement dated 16.02.2018, where the bidder was advised to inspect and satisfy itself regarding the mining area before participating in the bidding process on the reliefs claimed in the writ petition.

(iv) Whether the amount of which refund was sought was far in excess of the amount paid by the petitioner?

Hence, an effort would be made by us that while deciding the matter afresh, the questions raised by the Apex Court, as mentioned above, are also dealt with, at the appropriate place in this judgment.

27. The records reveal that after preparation and approval of District Survey Report (DSR) and after inspection of the Technical Committee the advertisement for e-tender cum e-auction was published on 16.02.2018, amongst others for two locations for mining of sand/ morum situated in Village Bilharka, Tehsil Narayani, District Banda. Both the locations were comprised in part of Khasra No. 5 and part of Khasra No. 9, each having a mining area of 25 hectares and a quantity of 5,00,000 cubic meters of sand/ morum for excavation per year. The letter of intent in respect of one of the mining area so advertised was issued in favour of the petitioner on 19.03.2018. The letter of intent in respect of the other mining area of 25 hectares comprised in part of Khasra Nos. 5 and part of Khasra No. 9 was issued in favour of one, Ram Kumar Shastri, proprietor M/s Madhav Construction. Thereafter the demarcation of the mining area was carried out in presence of the petitioner on 11.02.2019 followed by the lease deed dated 13.02.2019.

28. The perusal of the lease deed amongst others reveals that it was in respect of the land comprised in part of Khasra No. 5 and part of Khasra No. 9 situated in Village Bilharka, Tehsil Narayani, District Banda having an area of 25 hectares and bounded as below:

North: Mining area;

South: River Ken;

East: Khasra Nos. 91 to 96 and 195 belonging to tenureholder Mulle and others.

West: River Ken.

Hence, it is beyond doubt that the mining area allotted to the petitioner was bounded on two sides by river, Ken.

29. It is also evident that after the petitioner had commenced mining, on 22.02.2019 officers belonging to State of M.P had entered the mining area allotted to the petitioner and disrupted the mining operations. The petitioner had apprised the District Magistrate, Banda-respondent no.4 about the incident vide the letter dated 23.02.2019 as well as the Director, Directorate of Geology and Mining- respondent no.2 vide the letter dated 18.03.2019 regarding the incident with a request to carry out the exercise of demarcation of the boundaries.

30. The records also reveal that the District Magistrate, Banda vide the letter dated 25.03.2019 in pursuance to the request of the petitioner had requested the Collector, Chhatarpur to constitute a team to carry out joint inspection. It is also evident that although the exercise for demarcation of boundaries was undertaken by the officials of State of U.P. and that of State of MP but without any success.

31. Hence, it can be concluded from the fact that an exercise of demarcation of boundaries was undertaken by the officers of both the States, though without success but as such, was a dispute in respect of boundaries of two States, which remained unresolved. Further the perusal of letter dated 16.04.2019 of the Mining Inspector, Chhatarpur reveals that the boundary dispute between the two states essentially arose in view of differences regarding the width of river Ken. Hence, the mining area allotted to the petitioner which was bounded on two sides by river Ken ought to have been adversely affected. The records further reveal that other than the exercise undertaken on 10.04.2019 to demarcate the boundaries, no other effort was made thereafter for demarcation of boundaries except for a couple of correspondences made by the respondent no.4 to his counterpart in Chhatarpur, M.P.

32. In the meanwhile the demand for payment of second instalment against the lease was made from the petitioner vide the letter dated 06.04.2019. The petitioner in view of the difficulties faced in mining vide the letter dated 15.05.2019 had informed the respondent no.1 that the petitioner was unable to make the payment of royalty till the exercise of demarcation was carried out and the petitioner was permitted to carry out the mining activities without any hindrance. It is also admitted that no mining was carried after 26.05.2019.

33. It is under these circumstances that the petitioner had filed Writ C No. 18794 of 2019. It is shortly after the filing of Writ C No. 18794 of 2019 that by means of the letter dated 15.07.2019 issued by the State of U.P. the mining operations in the mining area comprised in Khasra No. 5 and Khasra No. 9 having a total area of 50 hectares (including 25 hectares of mining area of the petitioner) was stopped in view of the difficulties faced in mining on account of the boundary dispute. Subsequently the writ petition filed by the petitioner was also disposed of vide the judgment and order dated 18.07.2019 in view of the letter dated 15.07.2019.

34. The fact that State of U.P. had stopped the mining in the mining area allotted to the petitioner itself demonstrates that there was a dispute of boundaries between the two States leading to difficulties in mining, which said dispute remained unresolved. Further the petitioner cannot be faulted for the stoppage of mining.

35. However, the records reveal that no exercise to resolve the dispute relating to boundaries was undertaken by the respondents thereafter, despite the directions of this Court as contained in the judgment and order dated 18.07.2019 to resolve the dispute (in respect of the boundary) expeditiously in terms of the letter dated 15.07.2019. Under the circumstances the petitioner had filed the present writ petition amongst others for the refund of the amounts deposited and investments made by the petitioner in pursuance to the mining lease dated 13.02.2019.

36. Even after filing of the present writ petition, there was no effort by the respondents to resolve the boundary dispute. The only correspondence available on records in this regard is a letter dated 26.12.2019 issued by the respondent no.4 to the District Collector, Chhatarpur to carry out a joint inquiry, even the said letter has been issued at the instance of Ram Kumar Shastri, the allottee of the remaining mining area of 25 hectares. Hence, it can very well be concluded from the records that no effective effort was made by the respondents to resolve the boundary dispute.

37. It is during the pendency of the present writ petition that the State Government vide the letter dated 17.03.2020 had permitted mining in the undisputed area allegedly on the ground of financial losses even though no effort was made to resolve the boundary dispute. But even thereafter neither any effort was made to demarcate the undisputed area available to the petitioner for mining nor any effort was made to determine the quantity of minor minerals (sand/ morum) available for mining in the said undisputed area nor any effort was made to renegotiate the terms of the lease. Hence, the stalemate continued between the parties without any mining activity being undertaken by the petitioner. Further the letter dated 17.03.2020 clearly establishes the fact that the complete mining area allotted to the petitioner under the lease dated 13.02.2019 was not available to the petitioner for mining and even the undisputed area remained undefined.

38. It is only after a passage of about one year thereafter, that this Court vide the order dated 08.02.2021 directed the respondent no.4 to come out with a demarcation of the area on which the petitioner could carry out the mining operations without interference of the State of M.P. that compelled the respondents to undertake the exercise of demarcation of the undisputed area. This Court vide order dated 08.02.2021 had directed as under:

“Learned Standing Counsel prays and is granted a week's time to sort out the issue in regard to the boundaries of mining lease area. The dispute lies between the State of Uttar Pradesh and State of Madhya Pradesh regarding their boundaries and thus mining operation is not being permitted for the area of lease.

Let the District Magistrate concerned come out with the demarcation of area before next date of hearing on which the petitioner can carry on the mining operation without interference of the State of Madhya Pradesh. Let this petition be listed on 9th of March, 2021. The recovery has already been stayed by the State Government, as stated by the learned counsel for the respondents herein. “

39. In pursuance to the directions of this Court, the respondent no.4 vide the letter dated 09.02.2021 had sought to undertake the exercise of demarcation of the undisputed area and also to assess the quantity of minor minerals (sand/ morum) in the said area. The petitioner in response to the aforesaid letter vide letter dated 12.02.2021 expressed his apprehensions to the effect that there was no sand/ morum available in the so called undisputed area.

40. However, although the joint inspection to demarcate the undisputed area was undertaken on 15.02.2021, the petitioner did not agree with the exercise of demarcation so undertaken. In the inspection report dated 15.02.2021 it was held that out of total area of 25 hectares of area leased to the petitioner, while an area of 12.14 hectares was disputed and only the balance area of 12.86 hectares was undisputed. Further despite the specific direction to assess the quantity of minor minerals (sand/ morum), in the undisputed area, no such assessment was made by the joint inspection team. Thus, the undisputed area was only about 51% of the total mining area allotted to the petitioner i.e. 12.86 hectares out of the total area of 25 hectares.

41. In this regard the petitioner in the present writ petition by means of supplementary affidavit have also brought on record the photographs of the undisputed area at the time of joint inspection showing the geo-coordinates of the land to demonstrate that there was hardly any minor minerals available at the spot. The petitioner in paragraph 5 of the supplementary affidavit has stated as under:

“5. That the deponent reached the spot at relevant time but the Mines Inspector and other persons assisting the Mines Inspector reached at spot at about 03.00 p.m. without having assistance from the officers of State of M.P. started mapping mining site as undisputed area where there is no sign of sand and the area full of pebbles, small particles of boulders and rocks indicating as the undisputed site. The deponent questioned about the area asking politely that it is not the sand mining area, but the deponent was scolded indicating the same as undisputed area. The deponent brings on record the photo of the undisputed mining area on behalf of officers of mining department of Banda. The deponent also made live conversation photography of area is mobile scan and the same can be produced before this Hon'ble Court. The photo of the area is being filed herewith and marked as Annexure-SA-4 to this affidavit”

The respondents have not refuted the averments made in the aforesaid paragraph of the supplementary affidavit, so filed by the petitioner.

42. It is in the above circumstances, that the respondent no.4 vide the letter dated 22.02.2021 had forwarded the joint inquiry report to the Directorate of Geology and Mines, State of U.P. admitting the fact that only 12.86 hectares was undisputed, the relevant part of letter dated 22.02.2021 is being reproduced hereunder:

“अतः मा० उच्च न्यायालय इलाहाबाद द्वारा पारित आदेश दिनांक-08.02.2021 के अनुपालनमें किये गये संयुक्त सर्वेक्षण आख्या / सीमांकन आख्या दिनांक 15.02.2021 व उ०प्र० उपखिनज (पिरहार) नियमावली-1963 के नियम-28(2) (दो) (तीन) को दृष्टिगत रखते हुये श्री विनय कुमार पुत्र श्री नरिसहसिंह निवासी-साकेतपुरी, रोड नं०-01, हनुमान नगर, पटना बिहारके पक्ष में स्वीकृत कुल क्षेत्र 25.00 हे० भू-क्षेत्र में से विवादित क्षेत्र रकबा 12.140 हे० को छोड़ कर विवाद रिहत उपलब्ध खनन क्षेत्र 12.860 हे० होने से निष्पादित पट्टा विवेख में उल्लिखित वांछित मात्रा 5,00,000 घनमीटर के आधार पर पांच वर्षों हेतु निधारित पट्टाधनराशि के सम्बन्ध में उचित मार्गदर्शन देने का कष्ट करें, जिससे प्रश्नगत मामले में अग्र मकायवाही की जा सकें एवं मा० उच्च न्यायालय, इलाहाबाद को उक्त कायवाही से अवगत कराया जा सकें।

43. Thereafter no further development took place. Hence, it is beyond doubt that neither any effort was made by the respondents to handover the undisputed mining area to the petitioner to commence mining nor any effort was made by the respondents to assess quantity of sand/ morum available therein or to renegotiate the terms of the mining lease. Further it is the specific case of the petitioner that there was no sand/ morum available in the undisputed area for mining.

44. It is apparent from the perusal of the records that the matter remained pending at the level of the State Government and in the meanwhile vide the letter dated 29.01.2022 the mining lease of the petitioner was cancelled in view of loss of revenue to the State.

45. The perusal of the order dated 29.01.2022 itself reveals that the lease had been cancelled as no mining operations had been undertaken by the petitioner after the month of May, 2019 and the same was leading to loss of revenue to the respondents. In this regard we are of the view that the respondents themselves admit the fact that no mining was carried out by the petitioner after 26.05.2019. Further the respondents by means of the order dated 15.07.2019 themselves had stopped the mining over the leased area. Thereafter even though vide the letter dated 17.03.2020 the petitioner was permitted to carry out mining over the undisputed area but access to the same was never provided to the petitioner despite the exercise of demarcation of the undisputed area. In fact the matter remained pending before the State Government as would be evident from the letter dated 22.02.2021 of the respondent no.4. Under the circumstances, the petitioner cannot be faulted for not being able to carry out the mining operations after 26.05.2019.

46. As far as the question of loss of revenue is concerned, this court vide the judgment and order dated 18.07.2019 passed in Writ C No. 18794 of 2019 had directed that till the time the dispute in respect of boundaries between the two States is resolved by the State Government, no coercive action be taken against the petitioner especially in respect of recovery of the amount regarding which notice (for payment of second installment under the lease) was issued to the petitioner. Further the perusal of the the order dated 08.02.2021 of this Court passed in the present writ petition, itself reveals that the respondents themselves admit that recovery against the petitioner had already been stayed by the State Government. Thus, the petitioner cannot be said to be liable for any loss of revenue to the State Government and the respondents themselves were responsible for the alleged financial loss as the defaults can only be attributed to the respondents.

47. Even otherwise, once the petitioner was not permitted to carry out mining operations admittedly after 26.05.2019 there is no question of payment of lease instalment by the petitioner. Hence, as far as the question of loss of revenue is concerned, the respondent themselves are responsible for the aforesaid loss, more so as the record reveals that no effort was made by the respondents to resolve the boundary dispute with the State of MP leading to the stalling of mining operations.

48. The lease having being cancelled on the ground of loss of revenue to the State, in this regard Rule 58 of the U.P. Minor Minerals (Concession) Rules, 1963 (hereinafter referred to as 'the Rules, 1963') becomes relevant and the same reads as under:

"58, Consequences of non-payment of royalty, rent or other dues (1) The State Government or any officer authorised by it in this behalf may determine the mining lease after serving a notice on the lessee to pay within thirty days of the receipt of the notice any amount due or dead rent under the lease including the royalty due to the State Government if it was not paid within fifteen days next after the date of fixed for such payment. This right shall be in addition to and without prejudice to the right of the State Government to realise such dues from the lessee as arrears of land revenue.

(2) Without prejudice to the provisions of these rules, simple interest at the rate of 18 percent per annum may be charged on any rent, royalty, demarcation fee and any other dues under these rules, due to the State Government after the expiry of the period of the notice under sub-rule (1)."

49. However, the records reveal that no such notice as required under the Rule 58 was ever issued to the petitioner prior to cancellation of the lease. Hence, it is beyond doubt that the order dated 29.01.2022 cancelling the lease has been passed in an illegal and arbitrary manner, for no fault of the petitioner and was in violation of the manner prescribed.

50. It is also necessary to point out that two mining areas comprised in Khasra No. 5 and Khasra No. 9, Village Bilharka, each having an area of 25 hectares were auctioned vide e-tender cum e-auction notice dated 16.02.2018. The letter of intent dated 19.03.2018 was issued in favour of the petitioner and the letter of intent in respect of other mining area of 25 hectares was issued in favour of Ram Kumar Shastri, proprietor M/s Mahadev Constructions. However, Ram Kumar Shastri did not execute any mining lease in respect of the mining area allotted to him, unlike the petitioner. The aforesaid fact is itself admitted by the respondents, in their counter affidavit dated 19.09.2020 wherein it is stated as under:-

"10. That out of 50 hectare area of Khasra Nos. 05, 09 Village Bilharka, Tehsil-Naraini, District- Banda, 25 hectare area belongs to petitioner's mining lease area and 25 hectare area was auctioned in favour of one Sri Ram Kumar Shastri but mining lease was not executed in favour of Sri Ram Kumar Shastri. Due to the boundary dispute, the mining work has been stopped till further order of the State Government in pursuant to the order dated 15.07.2019 of State Government”

51. Even the letter dated 26.12.2019 was issued by the respondent no.4 to Collector, Chhatarpur at the instance of Ram Kumar Shastri, the respondent no.4 in the said letter while asking for constitution of joint team to carry out demarcation of boundaries admits that Ram Kumar Shastri had agreed to enter into a mining lease in respect of the undisputed area other than the area in respect of which there was a boundary dispute but for want of demarcation of boundaries the lease could not be executed despite passage of eighteen months.

52. The respondent no.4 vide the order dated 21.03.2020 by means of which mining was permitted in the undisputed area of 50 hectares, comprised in Khasra No. 5 and Khasra No. 9 had once again marked the copy of the said letter to M/s Mahadev Construction through Proprietor Ram Kumar Shastri to get the mining lease executed in accordance with the rules. Further, there is nothing on record to show that the mining lease was executed in favour of Ram Kumar Shastri or any action was taken against him by the respondents on account of his failure to do so.

53. Hence, it is evident that Ram Kumar Shastri, proprietor Mahadev Constructions neither executed any mining lease in respect of the mining area allotted to him nor commenced mining operations, even then, as the records reveal no action was taken against him by the respondents. Thus, the approach of the respondents towards petitioner in largely same set of circumstances was discriminatory, biased and prejudiced as both Ram Kumar Shastri and the petitioner were similarly situated.

54. In view of the findings recorded by us in the paragraphs above, we now advert to the first two questions framed by the Apex Court, the first question framed is as to whether the State of U.P. had failed to handover the possession of the area allotted to the petitioner for carrying out mining operations”

55. In respect of the first question we are of the view that initially the entire area of 25 hectares under the lease dated 13.02.2019 was demarcated on 11.02.2019 and handed over to the petitioner. But shortly thereafter the dispute of boundary arose between the two States on 22.02.2019 thereby hindering the mining operations. Subsequently a joint exercise was also undertaken on 10.04.2019 for demarcation of boundary by the officers of both the States but without success. It is also admitted that no excavation was carried out after 26.05.2019. As the dispute of boundary remained unresolved the State of U.P. vide the letter dated 15.07.2019 had stopped mining operations in the entire mining area of 50 hectares, including the mining area of 25 hectares allotted to the petitioner. The State of U.P. thereafter keeping in view the loss of revenue had vide the letter dated 17.03.2020 permitted mining in the undisputed area of the total mining area of 25 hectares allotted to the petitioner. However, even the undisputed area was not made available to the petitioner for mining, for reasons detailed in the paragraphs above. Thus, it is evident that the area of 25 hectares allotted to the petitioner for mining was not made available to the petitioner after 26.05.2019 till the termination of lease on 29.01.2022.

56. The second question framed is to the effect that as to whether there was no determination of the area, if any, which falls in the disputed territory, ie. within the State of M.P.”

57. In respect of the second question we are of the view that it was only once on 10.04.2019 that a joint exercise was undertaken to demarcate the boundary between the two States but the attempt so made was without any success. Thereafter no exercise was undertaken to demarcate the boundary between the two States and as such no determination could be made in respect of the area within the mining area of 25 hectares allotted to the petitioner, which fell in the disputed territory i.e State of M.P. Be that as it may, an exercise was undertaken by the respondents on 15.02.2021 to demarcate the disputed area and undisputed area in the total mining area allotted to the petitioner, wherein it was concluded that out of the total mining area of 25 hectares, 12.86 hectares constituted undisputed area and the rest 12.81 hectares constituted disputed area.

58. Now considering the contention of the respondents, heavy reliance has been placed on the fact that the petitioner was very well aware of the site conditions and the petitioner had made an inspection of leased area and as such it was no longer open for the petitioner to claim otherwise. In this regard in the advertisement dated 16.02.2018 inviting bids condition number 22 (1) and condition number 22 (2) read as under:-

22. “(1) ई-निविदा सह ई-नीलामी में भाग लेने से पूर्व क्षेत्र में आंकित उपखनज की मात्रा एवं खनन स्थल के लिए पहुँच मार्ग आदि के सम्बन्ध में मौके का निरीक्षण कर बिडर स्वीकृत हो लें। ई-निविदा सह ई-नीलामी में भाग लेने के पश्चात् इस सम्बन्ध में किसी भी प्रकारका दावा स्वीकार नहीं किया जायेगा।

(2) पट्टा धारक पट्टे के अधीन दिये गये क्षेत्र के सर्वेक्षण और सीमांकन के समय सीमांकितमानचित्र पर खनन पट्टा क्षेत्र का कांटेनेट्स अंकित करेगा तथा पट्टा विवेक निष्पादन करने के WRIC No. 37749 of 201918 पूर्व पट्टा धारक अपने स्वीकृत व्यय पर ऐसे सीमा चिह्न को और खम्बों को लगायेगा जो पट्टा विवेक से संलग्न नक्शे में दर्शाये गये सीमांकन को इंगित करने के लिए आवश्यक होगा।”

59. A perusal of the condition no. 22 (1) reveals that the petitioner was required to carry out the inspection of the mining area to assess the quantity of minor minerals available and also the access to the mining area and no claim in this regard was to be entertained after the participation in the auction process. Besides, the lessee prior to execution of the lease deed was required to erect boundary marks to demarcate the mining area. The respondents while placing reliance on the aforesaid condition of the advertisement have argued that once the petitioner had inspected the mining area prior to making his bid, it was no longer open for the petitioner to have raised any dispute in that regard.

60. The perusal of the condition no. 22 (1) reveals that it does not stipulate that the lessee will have to satisfy himself about the measurement of the area to be leased. It was the duty of the respondent to handover the complete mining area as per the e-tender cum e-auction notice. The petitioner under e-tender cum e-auction notice/ advertisement is not supposed to verify about the title of the mining area or as to whether some part of the area advertised falls within the boundary of another District/ State.

61. Records reveal that advertisement for e-tender cum e-auction is dated 16.02.2018, subsequently recommendations were made in favour of the petitioner by the e-tender committee on 14.03.2018 and the letter of intent was issued in favour of the petitioner on 19.03.2018. There is no evidence available on record to show that there was any dispute of boundary at the time of submission of bid by the petitioner or at the time of issuance of letter of intent in favour of the petitioner. Further the petitioner was only required to assess the quantity of minerals and the access to the mining area to be allotted to the petitioner. There is no dispute between the parties that the mining area allotted to the petitioner did not have sufficient quantity of sand/ morum for evacuation nor there was any dispute in respect of accessibility of the mining area.

62. As far as the condition no. 22 (2) pertaining to demarcation of mining area and fixing of boundary marks prior to execution of lease is concerned it is also admitted between the parties that the exercise of demarcation was carried out on 11.02.2019 prior to execution of lease deed dated 13.02.2019 and it is also not disputed that the entire area of 25 hectares under the lease was available for carrying out mining operations.

63. It is pointed out here that the dispute between the parties revolves around the fact that the entire mining area was not made available to the petitioner for excavation in view of boundary dispute between the two States. As would be evident from the facts narrated above, the aforesaid dispute relating to boundary arose for the first time only on 22.02.2019 much after the acceptance of bid of the petitioner and issuance of letter of intent dated 19.03.2018. Under the circumstances we are afraid that the aforesaid condition would not come to the rescue of the respondents in any manner whatsoever.

65. The petitioner in this regard has placed reliance upon the judgment of the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Planet Steel Pvt. Ltd. v. State of Haryana and others, 2018 SCC Online SC 3990 wherein it was held as under:

"4. Learned counsel for the State of Haryana refers to Clause 5 of the terms and conditions of the auction and submits that it was the duty of the petitioner to ascertain whether the land was actually 558.53 hectares or not. Clause 5 of the terms and conditions reads as follows:

"5. All prospective bidders are expected and presumed to have surveyed the areas to make their own assessment for the potential of the areas for which bids are to be offered. The State Government shall not be responsible for any kind of loss to the bidders/contractors at any point of time (before or after grant of contract). Further the bidders are also expected to have gone through the terms and conditions of auction notice and also the applicable Acts and Rules for undertaking mining."

5. On a plain reading of Clause 5, it is quite clear that there is no requirement on the prospective bidder to survey the area for the purpose of measurement. The prospective bidder can make an assessment for the potential of the area for which bids are to be offered.

6. It is the duty and responsibility of the State to ensure that the area sought to be auctioned for mining purposes is as per the advertisement.

7. This view has also been taken by the Punjab and Haryana High Court in the case of Haryana Royalty Company v. State of Haryana [CWP No. 15431 of 2014] decided on 15th January, 2015. The admitted position is that this decision of the Punjab and Haryana High Court has attained finality.

8. It is, therefore, incorrect to contend by the State that the sole responsibility for measuring the area sought to be auctioned for mining purposes was that of the petitioner.

9. Consequently, we are of the view that the decision of the High Court is required to be set aside and the petitioner is entitled to the refund of the deposited amount. This amount may be refunded to the petitioner within a period of four weeks from today along with interest at 9% per annum from the date of deposit till the date of payment in view of the vast discrepancy of the area of the land mentioned in the advertisement and the area made available.

10. The special leave petitions are disposed of.

11. Pending application, if any, stands disposed of.”

We are of the view that the present controversy is squarely covered by the law relied upon by the petitioner.

66. It would also not be out of place to mention here that the respondents have placed a lot of emphasis on the fact that the petitioner himself had got prepared the mining plan and the same was approved by the Directorate of Geology, U.P., Lucknow, thereafter the terms of reference were issued on 25.05.2018 and environmental clearance was granted to the petitioner on 08.02.2019. Hence, it is contended that the petitioner was well aware about the mining area but had not raised any objection at any point of time.

67. In this regard we are of the view that that the entire exercise was undertaken to assess the quantity of minor mineral available in the mining area to be leased and there is no dispute between the parties in respect to the same. However, the petitioner was not supposed to verify the correctness of boundary or title as there was a presumption that the State would only advertise the mining area, which is free from all encumbrances. Besides, there is nothing on record to show that there was a boundary dispute existing between the two States at the time of execution of the lease dated 13.02.2019 or prior thereto.

68. Thus, the submission of the mining plan by the petitioner and the issuance of environmental clearance would have no bearing upon the failure on the part of the respondents in not providing the required mining area under the lease to the petitioner on account of the boundary dispute between the two States and also for the respondents having failed to resolve the boundary dispute despite the directions of this Court.

69. Further, the mining plan was approved, terms of reference issued and environmental clearance granted after assessing the quantity of sand/ morum over the entire leased area of 25 hectares. However, the respondents for the detailed reasons assigned were only left with an undisputed area of 12.86 hectares for mining and themselves made no effort to assess the quantity of sand/ morum available in the undisputed area, which was about 51% of the total leased area of 25 hectares. Moreso, it is the specific case of the petitioner that no sand/ morum was available in the undisputed area and the respondents made no effort to assess the same. Hence, the mining plan, terms of reference and environmental clearance being in respect of the entire leased area of 25 hectares would be of no relevance once the aforesaid area was no longer available to the petitioner for mining.

70. Now we advert to the third question framed the Apex Court with respect to the effect of the clause in advertisement dated 16.02.2008, where the bidder was advised to inspect and satisfy itself regarding the mining area before participating in the bidding process on the reliefs claimed in the writ petition.

71. In respect thereof we are of the view that the dispute between the parties hovered around the fact that mining area allotted to the petitioner was not made available by the respondent for mining on account of the boundary dispute between the two States. There is no dispute between the parties that required quantity of sand / morum was not available in the mining area allotted to the petitioner. Further under the said clause the petitioner was not required to verify the correctness of area/title of the mining area advertised. Moreover, there was a presumption that State would advertise an encumbrance free mining area. Moreover, for the reasons detailed above, the aforesaid clause in the agreement would not have any effect on the relief claimed in the writ petition, firstly on account of the fact that it was the obligation of the respondent to ensure that the entire mining area of 25 hectares was made available to the petitioner, which the respondent failed to provide and it was solely on account of defaults of respondent that no mining/ excavation could taken place after 26.05.2019.

72. Before advert to the reliefs claimed by the petitioner in the present writ petition, we would like to advert to the law laid down in that regard. In view of the discussions made above, it can be very well be concluded that it was the obligation of the respondents to provide mining area of 25 hectares to the petitioner, morefully detailed in the lease deed dated 13.02.2019 but the respondents failed to do so. As a consequence thereof no mining/ excavation could take place after 26.05.2019. Further for the reasons detailed above the respondents on account of their acts of omission and commission had failed to provide the mining area under the lease dated 13.02.2019 to the petitioner.

73. Be that as it may, there is nothing on record to show that the respondents were aware of the boundary dispute between the two States prior to execution of the lease deed dated 13.02.2019. It is also not the case of petitioner that the lease dated 13.02.2019 was an outcome of coercion, undue influence, fraud or misrepresentation on the part of the respondents. In fact the petitioner in the writ petition admits that the contract became hindered on account of unforeseen circumstances, para 21 of the writ petition in this regard reads as under:-

“21. That it is settled position in law, that if any contract is hindered by unforeseen circumstances, then such contract is losing its efficacy and the petitioner is duty bound to come out of the contract and the State Government is responsible for the refund the money “

74. Further the petitioner in para 11 of the writ petition states that the stand of State of M.P. is wrong and the map prepared by the State of M.P. is wrong and is required to be corrected.

75. Thus, it can be concluded that both the parties had entered into the mining lease dated 13.02.2019 under a mistake as to a matter of fact that 25 hectares of land was available for mining, which was not so. The aforesaid conclusion is further fortified from the fact that although letter of intent was also issued in respect of another piece of land adjoining the land in controversy but no mining lease was executed, as would be evident from the records as the other allottee became aware of the boundary dispute between the two States and the fact that mining area as assured by the respondents was not available.

76. Hence, we are of the view that parties suffered from mutual mistake with regard to the area of land in respect of which, the mining lease dated 13.02.2019 was executed. Thus, we are of the view that provisions of Section 20 of the Contract Act, 1872 would be attracted in the facts and circumstances of the present case and the same reads as under:

“20. Agreement void where both parties are under mistake as to matter of fact- Where both the parties to an agreement are under a mistake as to a matter of fact essential to the agreement the agreement is void.

Explanation- An erroneous opinion as to the value of the thing which forms the subject-matter of the agreement, is not to be deemed a mistake as to a matter of fact. ”

77. In the present case both the parties verily believed that a mining area of 25 hectares was available for excavation under the mining lease, the same being a matter of fact essential to the agreement. However, after execution of the mining lease it was realised that the required area was not available, hence, the mining lease was void as parties suffered from mutual mistake with regard to the area available for mining under the lease by virtue of Section 20 of the Contract Act, 1872.

78. Under the above circumstances we may also refer to Section 65 of the Contract Act, 1872 minus the illustrations and the same reads as under: -

“65. Obligation of person who has received advantage under void agreement or contract that becomes void- When an agreement is discovered to be void or when a contract becomes void, any person who has received any advantage under such agreement or contract is bound to restore it, or to make compensation for it to the person from whom he received it. “

79. In the present case while applying the provisions of Section 65 of the Contract Act, 1872 we are of the view that the words ‘discovered to be void’ comprehends a situation where a parties were suffering from a mistake of fact from the very beginning but had not realised, at the time of entering into agreement, that they were suffering from any such mistake and therefore, acted bonafide on such agreement. The agreement in such a case would be void from its inception, though discovered to be so at a much later stage. Even in the present case both the parties while acting bonafidely prior to entering the mining lease dated 13.02.2019 had carried out various exercises including conduct of surveys and obtaining clearances, morefully detailed above, in respect of mining area of 25 hectares, that was sought to be leased.

80. Under the circumstances we rely on the law laid down by the Apex Court in the case of Tarsem Singh v. Sukhinder Singh, (1998) 3 SCC 471 in this regard, wherein the parties were at a mutual mistake in respect of the area of land sought to be transferred in pursuance to an agreement for sale thereby making the agreement void consequently leading to the situation of benefit received by one party to another party and it was held as under:

"20. Section 20 of the Act lays down as under: "20. Agreement void where both parties are under mistake as to matter of fact. Where both the parties to an agreement are under a mistake as to a matter of fact essential to the agreement, the agreement is void. Explanation. An erroneous opinion as to the value of the thing which forms the subject-matter of the agreement, is not to be deemed a mistake as to matter of fact."

21. This section provides that an agreement would be void if both the parties to the agreement were under a mistake as to a matter of fact essential to the agreement. The mistake has to be mutual and in order that the agreement be treated as void, both the parties must be shown to be suffering from mistake of fact. Unilateral mistake is outside the scope of this section.

22. The other requirement is that the mistake, apart from being mutual. should be in respect of a matter which is essential to the agreement.

24. "Bigha" and "kanal" are different units of measurement. In the northern part of the country, the land is measured in some States either in terms of "bighas" or in terms of "kanals". Both convey different impressions regarding area of the land. The finding of the lower appellate court is to the effect that the parties were not ad idem with respect to the unit of measurement. While the defendant intended to sell it in terms of "kanals", the plaintiff intended to purchase it in terms of "bighas". Therefore, the dispute was not with regard to the unit of measurement only. Since these units relate to the area of the land, it was really a dispute with regard to the area of the land which was the subject-matter of agreement for sale, or, to put it differently, how much area of the land was agreed to be sold, was in dispute between the parties and it was with regard to the area of the land that the parties were suffering from a mutual mistake. The area of the land was as much essential to the agreement as the price which, incidentally, was to be calculated on the basis of the area. The contention of the learned counsel that the ?mistake? with which the parties were suffering did not relate to a matter essential to the agreement cannot be accepted.

29. Since, in the instant case, it has been found as a fact by the courts below that the agreement in question was void from its inception as the parties suffered from mutual mistake with regard to the area and price of the plots of land agreed to be sold, the forfeiture clause would, for that reason, also be void and, therefore, the petitioner could not legally forfeit the amount and seek the enforcement of forfeiture clause, even by way of defence, in a suit instituted for specific performance by the respondent.

30. We may also refer to Section 65 of the Contract Act which, minus the illustrations, is as follows: "65. Obligation of person who has received advantage under void agreement, or contract that becomes void. When an agreement is discovered to be void, or when a contract becomes void, any person who has received any advantage under such agreement or contract is bound to restore it, or to make compensation for it, to the person from whom he received it."

31. This section, which is based on equitable doctrine, provides for the restitution of any benefit received under a void agreement or contract and, therefore, mandates that any "person" which obviously would include a party to the agreement, who has received any advantage under an agreement which is discovered to be void or under a contract which becomes void, has to restore such advantage or to pay compensation for it, to the person from whom he received that advantage or benefit.

33. Mutual consent, which should also be a free consent, as defined in Sections 13 and 14 of the Act, is the sine qua non of a valid agreement. One of the essential elements which go to constitute a free consent is that a thing is understood in the same sense by a party as is understood by the other party. It may often be that the parties may realise, after having entered into the agreement or after having signed the contract, that one of the matters which was essential to the agreement, was not understood by them in the same sense and that both of them were carrying totally different impressions of that matter at the time of entering into the agreement or executing the document. Such realisation would have the effect of invalidating the agreement under Section 20 of the Act. On such realisation, it can be legitimately said that the agreement was "discovered to be void". The words "discovered to be void", therefore, comprehend a situation in which the parties were suffering from a mistake of fact from the very beginning but had not realised, at the time of entering into the agreement or signing of the document, that they were suffering from any such mistake and had, Therefore, acted bona fide on such agreement. The agreement in such a case would be void from its inception, though discovered to be so at a much later stage.

36. To the same effect is an old decision of the Calcutta High Court in the case of Ram Chandra Misra v. Ganesh Chandra Gangopadhyaya, in which it was held that an agreement entered into under a mistake and misapprehension as to the relative and respective rights of the parties thereto is liable to be set aside as having proceeded upon a common mistake. In this case, there was an agreement for lease of the mogoli brahmatter rights of the defendants in certain plots of land. Both the parties were under the impression that the brahmatter rights carried with them the mineral rights. It was subsequently discovered that brahmatter rights did not carry mineral rights. The High Court held that the agreement became void under Section 20 of the Contract Act as soon as the mistake was discovered and, therefore, the plaintiffs were entitled to refund of money advanced under a contract which was subsequently discovered to be void."

81. Even otherwise, the Apex Court in the case of Popatrao Vyankatrao Patil v. State of Maharashtra and others (2020) 19 SCC 241, where the appellant despite being the highest bidder was not handed over the possession of the sand block for excavation, had held as under:

“11. It could thus be seen, that even if there are disputed questions of fact which fall for consideration but if they do not require elaborate evidence to be adduced, the High Court is not precluded from entertaining a petition under Article 226 of the Constitution. However, such a plenary power has to be exercised by the High Court in exceptional circumstances. The High Court would be justified in exercising such a power to the exclusion of other available remedies only when it finds that the action of the State or its instrumentality is arbitrary and unreasonable and, as such, violative of Article 14 of the Constitution of India. In any case, in the present case, we find that there are hardly any disputed questions of facts.

12. It is undisputed, that the appellant was the highest bidder for the sand block in question. The appellant has deposited an amount of Rs 62,26,085. The panchnama prepared by the Circle Officer, Kale Respondent 5, clearly exhibited that neither possession of the sand block in question was given to the appellant nor excavation of sand was done from the said sand block. The said position is reiterated by the Tahsildar, Karad Respondent 4 in his report submitted to the Collector Respondent 2 dated 9-8-2012. The Sub-Divisional Officer, Karad Respondent 3 in his report dated 4-9-2012, addressed to the Collector, Satara also confirmed the said position. A perusal of the letter dated 3-10-2012, addressed by the Collector, Satara to the Tahsildar and Sub-Divisional Officer also does not dispute the said position. However, he directed his subordinates to submit original file of the appellant's sand block with his office for refund of the amount deposited by the appellant.

13 It appears, that subsequently after all the authorities including Circle Officer, Tahsildar, Sub-Divisional Officer and the Collector found that neither the possession of the sand block was handed over to the appellant nor the excavation of sand from the said sand block was done, at the instance of the Collector, the file for grant of refund was being processed. It further appears. that the file in transit was misplaced and on this ground the appellant was denied the refund. It could thus be seen, in these admitted facts, that the denial on the part of the respondents to refund the amount to the appellant can, by no stretch of imagination, be called as reasonable. The action of the respondents, in denying the refund of the amount of the appellant, when the respondents themselves had failed to give possession of the sand block and as a result of which the appellant could not excavate the sand, would smack of arbitrariness. In this premise, we find that the High Court was not justified in relegating the appellant to file a suit.

15. In view of the undisputed position, that in spite of the appellant being the highest bidder and in spite of him depositing the entire amount of auction, since the possession of the sand block was not given to him for the reasons not attributable to him and he could not evacuate the sand, he will be entitled to get refund of the amount deposited by him.”

82. Similarly the Apex Court in the case of Jai Durga Invest (P) Ltd v. State of Haryana (2004) 3 SCC 381 where the appellant was prevented from excavation of sand by reasons of omission and commission on the part of the respondents had held as under:

“11. It is not in dispute that the grant of mining lease in favour of the appellant herein for the extraction of mineral sand by the respondents is governed by the provisions of the Punjab Minor Mineral Concession Rules, 1964. In terms of Rule 33 the bidder is required to execute a deed in Form 'L'. Clause 27 of the agreement in Form 'L' obligates the respondents to comply with the request made in terms thereof. The Appellate Authority had not considered this aspect of the matter. The High Court also did not apply its mind in this behalf. The first question that arises is whether the respondents complied with their statutory obligations when the request was made by the appellant. If not, the second question would be the effect of non-compliance with the statutory obligation of the respondents which formed part of the contract insofar as they did not comply with the appellant's request as aforementioned which had a direct bearing on the right of the appellant to raise sand. The High Court, as noticed hereinbefore, has merely proceeded on the basis that the appellant had entered into the contract with his eyes wide open; but, the same would not, in our opinion, mean that they were bound to pay the contract amount, get its security amount forfeited, as also pay interest at the rate of 24 per cent, although it could not, by reason of acts of omission and commission on the part of the respondents, carry out the mining operation as per the terms of the agreement.”

83. As far as the reliefs claimed by the petitioner in the present writ petition are concerned the petitioner has claimed an amount of Rs. 26,65,66,666/- as the amount deposited with the respondent and the expenditure incurred under various heads and elaborate details of the amounts claimed have been given in para 13 of the writ petition. Paragraph 13 of the writ petition reads as under:-

“13. That after the date of execution of mining lease deed, the petitioner's legal business routine required to be calculated according to Government scheduled at the minimum level.

In six months according to Government rate appropriate sale including all expenses would be 26,65,66,666/-. Expenses and profit will be as per the following schedule.

(A) Royal- Rs. 527/- per cum

G.S.T. 18%

D.R.M.F. 10%

Overhead Charge 10%

Total @Rs. 727/- per cum

Total expenses Rs. 24,23,33,333/-

The total used royalty in six months would be 3,33,333/- per cum

(B). After acceptance of e-tender actual government expenses incurred by the petitioner are as follows:

E-stamp fee- Rs. 3,21,73, 877/- Deposit of earnest money-Rs. 6,58,75,000/-

Advance royalty-Rs. 6,58,75,000/-

F.D. Deposit with District Magistrate on 12.2.2019-Rs. 9,27,000/-

Expenses incurred in connection with survey road development etc. (7 km road development by the petitioner including repairing of 3 bridges and shafts- Rs.17,07,50,877/- “

84. The respondents in response thereto in paragraph 23 of their counter affidavit states as under:-

“23. That the contents of paragraph no. 13 of the writ petition are matter of record and the same can only be verified from the record, hence need no comments.”

85. The respondent themselves admit in paragraph 25 of their supplementary counter affidavit dated 19.04.2024 that the petitioner had deposited an amount of Rs. 13,17,50,000/- of which an amount of Rs. 6,58,75,000/- was towards first instalment of the lease and the balance amount was deposited towards security. Besides the respondents also admit in the review petition that the petitioner carried out mining operations from 15.02.2019 to 26.05.2019 and had evacuated a total of 22,820 cubic meters of sand/ morum in the process. The petitioner has not disputed the aforesaid position. Further under the registered lease dated 13.02.2019 the petitioner had agreed to excavate sand/ morum at the rate of Rs. 527 per cubic meter. Thus, in view of the position admitted between the parties the petitioner would be entitled to refund of amount of Rs. 13,17,50,000/- from the respondents with the liberty to the respondents to deduct the amount from the total outstanding amount to the effect of total excavated sand/ morum being 22,820 cubic meter of sand/ morum excavated by the petitioner.

86. Besides the petitioner has claimed an amount of Rs 17,07,50,877/- towards expenses incurred in connection with service road development etc. (seven km of road developed by the petitioner including repairing of three bridges and shafts), the aforesaid claim has not been admitted by the respondents and as such is disputed. For the purpose of establishing the claim of the aforesaid amount the petitioner would be required to adduce evidence in support of the expenditure so incurred. As such the aforesaid claim would require a decision on disputed questions of fact. Under the circumstances, no relief can be granted to the petitioner under the said claim in proceedings under Article 226 of the Constitution of India. Hence, the claim of the petitioner of the aforesaid amount is dismissed with the liberty to the petitioner to approach the competent forum under law as far as the aforesaid claim is concerned.

87. So far as the relief claimed by the petitioner in respect of refund of stamp duty deposited to the tune of Rs. 3,21,73,877/- for the purpose of execution of the lease deed dated 13.2.2019 is concerned. We are of the view that the petitioner was prevented from carrying out the mining operations in pursuance to the lease deed dated 13.02.2019 for no fault of his. Further the petitioner had duly fulfilled his share of obligations under the lease but was prevented from carrying out the mining operations solely on account of the dispute of boundary between the State of U.P. and the State of M.P., which was beyond the control of the petitioner. The petitioner has been pursuing the legal remedies available to him diligently by approaching this Court. Moreover, the lease deed dated 13.02.2019 is void by virtue of Section 20 of the Contract Act, 1872 for the reasons detailed above.

88. Hence, it is only as a result of this judgment and order passed by this Court that the petitioner would become entitled to the refund of stamp duty paid for the purpose of execution of the lease deed. Thus, in view of the above, the petitioner would be entitled to the refund of stamp duty under Section 65 of the Contract Act, which enables the party to a contract to seek restoration of all such advantages from the other party, which they took from such contract when such contract becomes void.

89. Under the circumstances, we are of the view that the petitioner is entitled to avail appropriate legal recourse under the provisions of Indian Stamp Act, 1888 and to approach the competent authority for refund of the stamp duty paid on the lease deed dated 13.02.2019.

90. The Apex Court in the Case of The Committee-GFIL vs. Libra Buildtech Pvt. Ltd. and Ors 2015 (16) SCC 31 in respect of refund of stamp duty had held as under :-

“24. In our considered opinion, keeping in view the undisputed facts mentioned above, the applicants are also entitled to claim the refund of entire stamp duty amount of Rs 6.22 crores from the State Exchequer, which they spent for execution of sale deeds in their favour in relation to the properties in question. This we say for the following reasons.

25. In the first place, admittedly the transaction originally intended between the parties i.e. sale of properties in question by GFIL Committee to the applicants was not accomplished and failed due to reasons beyond the control of the parties. Secondly, this Court after taking into consideration all facts and circumstances also came to the conclusion that it was not possible for the parties to conclude the transactions originally intended and while cancelling the same directed the seller (GFIL Committee) to refund the entire sale consideration to the applicants and simultaneously permitted the applicants to claim refund of stamp duty amount from the State Government by order dated 26-9-2012¹¹. Thirdly, as a result of the order of this Court, a right to claim refund of amount paid towards the stamp duty accrued to the applicants. Fourthly, this being a court-monitored transaction, no party was in a position to take any steps in the matter without the permission of the Court. Fifthly, the applicants throughout performed their part of the contract and ensured that transaction in question is accomplished as was originally intended but for the reasons to which they were not responsible, the transaction could not be accomplished. Lastly, the applicants in law were entitled to claim restoration of all such benefits/advantages from the State once the transaction was cancelled by this Court on 26-9-2012 in the light of the principle contained in Section 65 of the Contract Act which enable the party to a contract to seek restoration of all such advantage from other party which they took from such contract when the contract is discovered to be void or becomes void. This was a case where contract in question became void as a result of its cancellation by order of this Court dated 26-9-2012 which entitled the applicants to seek restitution of the money paid to the State for purchase of stamp papers.

26. In our considered opinion, while deciding a case of this nature, we have to also bear in mind one maxim of equity, which is well settled, namely, actus curiae neminem gravabit meaning an act of the court shall prejudice no man. In Broom's Legal Maxims, 10th Edn., 1939 at p. 73 this maxim is explained by saying that it is founded upon justice and good sense and afforded a safe and certain guide for the administration of law. This maxim is also explained in the same words in Jenk. Cent. 118. This principle is fundamental to any system of justice and applies to our jurisprudence. [See Busching Schmitz (P) Ltd. v. P.T. Menghani and Raj Kumar Dey v. Tarapada Dey].

27. It is thus a settled principle of law based on principle of equity that a person cannot be penalised for no fault of his and the act of the court would cause no prejudice to any of his rights.

28. In our considered opinion, the aforesaid maxim would apply with full vigour in the facts of this case and if that is the position then the applicants, in our opinion, are entitled to claim the refund of the entire amount of stamp duty from the State Government which they spent in purchasing the stamp papers for execution of sale deed in relation to the properties in question. Indeed in the light of six reasons set out supra which, in our considered opinion, in clear terms attract the principle contained in the aforesaid maxim, the State has no right to defend the order of the SDM for retaining the amount of stamp duty paid by the applicants with them. The applicants' bona fide genuine claim of refund cannot be denied on such technical grounds.

29. This case reminds us of the observations made by M.C. Chagla, C.J. in Firm Kaluram Sitaram v. Dominion of India. The learned Chief Justice in his distinctive style of writing observed as under in para 19: (Firm Kaluram case, SCC OnLine Bom)

"19.... we have often had occasion to say that when the State deals with a citizen it should not ordinarily rely on technicalities, and if the State is satisfied that the case of the citizen is a just one, even though legal defences may be open to it, it must act, as has been said by eminent Judges, as an honest person."

We are in respectful agreement with the aforementioned observations, as in our considered opinion these observations apply fully to the case in hand against the State because except the plea of limitation, the State has no case to defend their action.

30. Even apart from what we have held above, when we examine the case of the applicants in the light of Sections 49 and 50 of the Act, we find that the case of the applicants can be brought under Section 49 (d) (2) read with Section 50 (3) of the Act to enable the State to entertain the application made by the applicants seeking refund of stamp duty amount. The interpretation, which advances the cause of justice and is based on the principles of equity, should be preferred. We hereby do so."

91. Under the circumstances, we grant the liberty to the petitioner to approach the competent authority under the Indian Stamp Act, 1888 for the refund of the stamp duty paid on the lease deed dated 13.02.2019. Thus, if the petitioner makes a representation in this regard before the competent authority under the Indian Stamp Act, 1988 in respect of the refund of Stamp Duty paid on the lease deed dated 13.02.2019 along with the certified copy of this order within one month from the date of this order, the same shall be decided within a period of two months thereafter keeping in view the observations made above and strictly in accordance with law.

92. That as far as the relief of return of fixed deposit of Rs. 9, 27,000/- deposited with the District Magistrate, Banda- respondent no.4 is concerned, for the reasons detailed in the paragraphs above, as the petitioner is entitled to the restitution of payments made in pursuance to the lease deed dated 13.02.2019 by virtue of Section 65 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872, we are of the view that the petitioner would be entitled to return the fixed deposit of Rs. 9,27,000/- and on the failure to do so the petitioner would be entitled for refund of the amount of Rs. 9,27,000/- along with the interest accrued on the fixed deposit, payable upto the date of refund of the aforesaid amount.

93. Now, on the question of the rate of interest payable to the petitioner on the amounts due, we are of the view that admittedly the petitioner could not carry out any excavation after 26th May, 2019 as such the petitioner would be entitled to interest on the amounts due from 27th May, 2019. As far as the rate of interest is concerned we rely upon the judgment of the Apex Court in the case of Dharmenda Kumar Singh v. State of Uttar Pradesh (2021) 1 SCC 93, in which case the appellant had been prevented from carrying out mining operations in view of orders passed by learned National Green Tribunal, and the Apex Court was of the view that the appellant's mines remained blocked and mining prevented for no fault of his as such the monies blocked should carry a simple interest @ 9% per annum. Hence, the petitioner would be entitled to simple interest @ 9 % per annum on the amounts so payable by the respondents from 27.05.2019 till the date of actual realization.

94. As far as the relief claimed by the petitioner to annul the lease deed as the respondents failed to fulfill the terms and conditions due to unforeseen circumstances and mistake of the State Government is concerned, in this regard we have already assigned elaborate reasons above to conclude that the lease deed dated 13.02.2019 was void by virtue of Section 20 of the Contract Act, 1872. Hence, we hold that the lease deed dated 13.02.2019 being void, stands annulled.

95. Lastly we advert to the forth question framed by the Apex Court as to whether the amount of which refund was sought was far in excess of the amount paid by the petitioner.

96. As already discussed above, the monetary reliefs claimed by the petitioner are in the nature of restitution of investments made, as the petitioner was not allowed to carry out excavation of sand/ morum in pursuance to the lease deed dated 13.02.2019. Amongst the reliefs claimed by the petitioner we have allowed the refund of the amounts admittedly paid by the petitioners to the respondents in pursuance to the lease deed dated 13.02.2019 after deducting the amount of sand/ morum already excavated by the petitioner, the return of fixed deposit, and granted liberty to the petitioner to move the competent authority for refund of stamp duty. The claim of interest has also been allowed. As far as the relief claimed pertaining to expenditure incurred in connection with service road development etc, undoubtedly the petitioner would have incurred expenses to commence mining operations, however, as the amounts claimed under the said head are not admitted by the respondents and involves disputed questions, which can be adjudicated only after production of evidence, we have relegated the petitioner to approach the competent forum under law. Thus, we are of the view amongst the amounts claimed by the petitioner, the disputed claims cannot be adjudicated in the present proceedings, further, the petitioner has also failed to seek adjustment of the amount of sand/ morum already excavated

97. Thus, in view of the above the present writ petition is partly allowed in terms of the observations made above.

98. No order as to costs.

CASE ARISING FROM

Writ-C No.61435 of 2010 filed by claimant-petitioner (Gangadhar Tiwari) seeking enhancement of compensation awarded under the Public Liability Insurance Act, 1991.

Connected Writ-C No.51093 of 2010 filed by U.P. Power Corporation challenging the award of compensation by the Additional Collector/Accident Claim Tribunal, Sant Ravidas Nagar.

APPEARANCE OF PARTIES

Counsel for Appellant(s): - Shri Kamlakar Dwivedi, Counsel for Respondent(s): - Shri Devesh Vikram, Additional Chief Standing Counsel, Shri Sushil Kumar Pandey for Power Corporation.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mahesh Chandra Tripathi, J.

Hon'ble Kunal Ravi Singh, J.)

1. Heard Shri Kamlakar Dwivedi, learned counsel for the petitioner (respondent no.2 in connected Writ-C No.51093 of 2010; Shri Devesh Vikram, learned Addl. Chief Standing Counsel for State respondents and Shri Sushil Kumar Pandey, learned counsel for respondent nos.3 & 4- Purvanchal Vidyut Vitran Nigam (Electricity Distribution Division-II), Sant Ravidas Nagar (Bhadohi)1 (the petitioners in connected Writ-C No.51093 of 2010).

FACTS

2. Since the controversy involved in both the writ petitions are similar, with the consent of learned counsel for parties, they are being decided by this common order.

3. The facts of Writ-C No.61435 of 2010 are being taken as leading case for deciding the controversy.

4. The facts of the case in brief are that on 09.12.2006, when the claimant-petitioner (Gangadhar Tiwari) was going to answer the call of nature in the morning, he came into contact with live electrical wire of 11000 KV and sustained severe burn injuries due to electrocution. Somehow with the help of stick and bamboos the petitioner was separated from the live electrical wire due to which the life of the petitioner was saved. It is alleged that the electrical wire was broken on 7.12.2006 and on the same day Gram Pradhan had informed about the same to the concerned Junior Engineer of the Electricity Distribution Division, Wahida Nagar Power House, Distt. Sant Ravidas Nagar, Bhadohi but inspite of the information, the broken electrical wire was neither repaired nor electric supply was stopped. The information of the said unfateful incident was also given to the Police Station, Koirauna, Distt. Sant Ravidas Nagar, Bhadohi. The petitioner was treated in several hospitals and due to the said electrocution the petitioner has suffered from 40% permanent disability.□

5. The petitioner filed a Claim Petition No.7 of 2007 in the court of Additional Collector/ Accident Claim Tribunal, Sant Ravidas Nagar, Bhadohi under Section 6 (1) of Public Liability Insurance Act, 19912 claiming Rs.10 lacs as compensation. The claim petition was allowed on 21.5.2010 awarding compensation of Rs.4 lacs in favour of the petitioner.

6. It is alleged that the Addl. Collector/ Accident Claim Tribunal, Sant Ravidas Nagar has not paid compensation to the petitioner towards loss of actual earning, mental agony and medical expenses. Such situation has impelled the petitioner to invoke the writ jurisdiction by way of instant writ petition for the following reliefs:-

"(a) Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus enhancing the amount of Rs.4,00,000/- awarded by Additional Collector/ Accident Claim Tribunal, Sant Ravidas Nagar, Bhadohi in Claim Petition No.7 of 2007 under Section 6 (1) of Public Liability Insurance Act, 1991 to Rs.10,00,000/- and directing the respondent no.2 to pay the enhanced amount to the petitioner."

7. The order dated 21.5.2010 passed by the Addl. Collector/ Accident Claim Tribunal, Sant Ravidas Nagar was challenged by the U.P. Power Corporation³ in connected Writ-C No.51093 of 2010. In the said writ petition, following interim order was passed by the Coordinate Bench of this Court on 26.08.2010:-

"Heard learned counsel for the petitioner and learned standing counsel appearing for the respondents.

Notices on behalf of respondents no. 1 and 3 have been accepted by learned standing counsel. He prays for and is granted one month's time to file counter affidavit. Three weeks thereafter is allowed to the petitioner to file rejoinder affidavit.

Issue notice to respondent no. 2 through registered post.

Steps be taken within two weeks. Office shall send notice returnable at an early date.

List this case on the date fixed by the office in the notice.

Counsel for the petitioner has urged that the order passed by Additional District Magistrate, Sant Ravidas Nagar (Bhadohi) is without jurisdiction as the Public Liability Insurance Act, 1991 is not applicable to U.P. Corporation or a person who receive any injury or death or damage. Hence the petitioner is entitled for interim relief.

Until further order of this Court, the effect and operation of order dated 21.5.2010 passed by Additional District Magistrate, Sant Ravidas Nagar, Bhadohi (annexure 2 to the writ petition) shall remain stayed."□

ARGUMENTS ON BEHALF OF PETITIONER

8. Learned counsel for the petitioner vehemently argued that although the information of broken wire was already furnished by the Gram Pradhan to the Electricity Department but the Electricity Department in gross negligence did not repair the high voltage wire, which resulted in the 40% permanent disability of the petitioner.

9. He further argued that even the Claim Petition No.7 of 2007 was allowed on 21.05.2010 but the Tribunal has not awarded compensation towards actual earning, mental agony and medical expenses.

10. Learned counsel for the petitioner has stated that the Act, 1991 is fully applicable in the instant case and the objection qua its maintainability is misplaced.

ARGUMENTS ON BEHALF OF RESPONDENT-NIGAM

11. Learned counsel for the Nigam has vehemently opposed the relief claimed by the claimant-petitioner (Gangadhar Tiwari). He states that the Corporation is the licensee under the provisions of Electricity Act, 2003 and Nigam comes under it. The Nigam is distributing electricity within the area of their operation strictly in accordance with law to the satisfaction of the consumers. It is alleged that in the said claim petition the notices issued to the Nigam could not be served and as such Nigam could not acquire knowledge about the pendency of the said claim petition. Without there being any finding on the ordersheet to the effect that the service of notice could not be effected on the Nigam by hand or by registered post, straightaway order for publication of notice was passed and an alleged copy was filed on record after its publication and the matter was directed to be decided exparte. Eventually the claim petition was allowed on 21.5.2010 granting compensation to the petitioner for a sum of Rs.4 lacs.

12. Learned counsel for the Nigam further contended that the order impugned dated 21.5.2010 is totally arbitrary and patently illegal and the same is liable to be quashed. He submits that the claim petition filed by the petitioner purporting to be under Section 6 (1) of the Act, 1991 will not apply for grant of compensation in case of electrocution. The Act, 2003 is a special enactment and there is provisions for enquiry in case of accident to be conducted by the Electrical Inspector under Section 161 of the Act, 2003. Therefore, unless the enquiry under Section 161 of the Act, 2003 is conducted, no compensation can be awarded by any court or authority. The notices in the said claim petition were not actually served upon the Nigam and as such the order impugned is arbitrary and illegal being exparte.

13. Learned counsel for the Nigam lastly submitted that only in this backdrop the Division Bench has rightly passed the interim order dated 26.8.2010 as the order impugned is without jurisdiction and the Act, 1991 is not applicable to U.P. Power Corporation or a person, who receive any injury or death or damage.

ARGUMENT OF STATE RESPONDENTS

14. Shri Devesh Vikram, learned Addl. Chief Standing Counsel, while adopting the submissions made by learned counsel for the Nigam vehemently argued that the Act, 1991 is not applicable in the instant matter. He submitted that the Act, 1991 is made for business handling hazardous substances to provide immediate relief to victims of industrial accidents, as such the order passed by the Addl. Collector is illegal and without jurisdiction.

REJOINDER ARGUMENTS ON BEHALF OF PETITIONER

15. Learned counsel for the petitioner-claimant, in rejoinder arguments, vehemently opposed the contention of learned counsel for Nigam and submitted that the Addl. District Magistrate has rightly proceeded to accord compensation under the Act, 1991 as the same would definitely be attracted in the instant matter. He submits that similar controversy has earlier been raised in Writ-C No.12492 of 2017 (Purwanchal Vidyut Vitran Nigam Ltd. v. Pradeep Kumar Bind & Anr.) in which the Division Bench has refuted the similar contentions raised by learned counsel for Nigam and proceeded to dismiss the writ petition on 27.3.2017.

16. Learned counsel for the claimant-petitioner, in this backdrop, has submitted that the Addl. Collector is competent to accord compensation under the Act, 1991. The claimant-petitioner has sustained permanent disability and while passing the order impugned the Addl. Collector has not only accorded ex-gratia payment of Rs.4 lacs but also accorded said amount towards medical expenses. The petitioner is entitled for ex-gratia payment under the Act, 1991.□

17. Learned counsel for the petitioner, in support of his submissions, has also placed reliance on the judgment passed in U.P. State Electricity Board & Ors. v. District Magistrate, Dehradun & Ors.5, wherein learned Single Judge while considering the Act, 1991 and Environment (Protection) Act, 19866 has found that the electricity is hazardous and also substance and, therefore, learned Single Judge had denied to interfere in the impugned award. Learned Single Judge had also provided that the claimant in addition to the amount awarded to them by the impugned award may also institute any other proceeding for claiming further relief.□□

18. Learned counsel for the petitioner submits that the relief has rightly been accorded by Addl. Collector under the Act, 1991, which warrant no interference. It is contended that on account of pendency of instant proceedings as well as continuation of interim order for more than 15 years, the claimant-petitioner has suffered a lot. Due to sustaining grievous injury causing permanent disability, the claimant-petitioner is not capable to discharge his day to day work. He submits that the compensation is not commensurate to his disability and as such indulgence may be accorded in favour of the claimant-petitioner. □

ANALYSIS BY THE COURT

19. Heard rival submissions, perused the record and respectfully considered the judgments cited at Bar.

20. The precise objection as raised by learned counsel for the Nigam is that in the instant proceeding the Act, 1991 is not applicable. In order to appreciate the controversy, it would be apt to have a glance on the judgment in Purwanchal Vidyut Vitran Nigam Ltd. v. Pradeep Kumar Bind & Anr. (Supra), which is reproduced as under:-

"Heard Mr Narendra Kumar Tiwari, learned counsel for the petitioner and Mrs Subhash Rathi, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel for respondent no.2.

This writ petition, filed by the Electricity Distribution Company, challenges the order dated 29.12.2016 passed by respondent no.2-District Magistrate, whereby compensation of Rs.5,79,456.00 has been awarded, on the application made by respondent no.1, who suffered permanent disability on account of an electrocution accident. The challenged is raised on two grounds. Firstly, that the provisions of the Public Liability Insurance Act, 1991 (in short 'the Insurance Act') are not attracted in view of the fact that such accidents are covered by the rules framed under the Electricity Act, 2003. Secondly, that even if it is held that the provisions of the Insurance Act are attracted, the Collector has no power to grant anything more than what is prescribed in the Schedule appended to the Act.

In our opinion, both the submissions advanced by learned counsel for the petitioner deserve to be rejected outright. Section 22 of the Insurance Act clearly provides that the provisions of this Act and any rules made thereunder shall have effect notwithstanding anything inconsistent therewith contained in any other law. It may be true that a person, like respondent no.1, may have a remedy under the provisions of the rules framed under the Electricity Act, 2003, but that itself would not debar him from making an application under the provisions of the Insurance Act more particularly, in view of the provisions contained in Section 22 thereof. Hence, the first submission deserves to be rejected outright and is rejected as such.

The second submission advanced by learned counsel for the petitioner is based on Section 3 of the Insurance Act, which places a liability to give relief in certain cases on the principle of "no fault-liability". The application made by respondent no.1 was not under Section 3, but it was under Section 6 of the Insurance Act, which does not put any restriction on the powers of the Collector to award an amount as relief which appears to him to be just. Section 3 confers power only to give the minimum relief to a victim in terms of a scale as provided for in the Schedule. Insofar as the power of the Collector to award relief under Section 6 of the Insurance Act is concerned, it is unlimited and it is left to the Collector to make an award determining the amount of relief which appears to him to be just. This power cannot be curtailed and is not curtailed by the provisions of this Act or any other Act. □

It is needless to mention that the learned counsel for the petitioner, though made submissions as aforementioned, he did not point out any provisions in support of his contention or judgment of either this Court or any other High Court or the Supreme Court. □

In the circumstances, we find no merit in the writ petition. The writ petition is dismissed.

21. In the said judgment, the Court had considered Section 22 of the Act, 1991 and negated the claim of Electricity Department and held that in addition to the Act, 2003, the Act, 1991 would also be attracted in the instant matter. As such the objection raised by Nigam that Act, 1991 is not applicable in the instant matter is not tenable as the same has been clearly answered by the Division Bench in the aforesaid judgment.

22. In a similar matter, vide judgment and order passed by learned Single Judge in U.P. State Electricity Board & Ors. v. District Magistrate Dehradun & Ors. (Supra), it has been held that electricity is both hazardous and substance and it is also admitted that the petitioner has sustained permanent disability from electrocution.

23. Nothing is brought on record to suggest that the aforesaid judgments have been annulled or modified or they do not hold the field. □

24. We have also occasion to peruse the judgment and order dated 19.09.2014 passed in Writ-C No.23783 of 2010 (Neetu Devi v. State of U.P. & Ors.), wherein the Division Bench has also considered the judgment passed by the Apex Court in Raghuvansh Dewanchand Bhasin v. State of Maharashtra⁷. For ready reference, para 18 of the said judgment is reproduced as under:-

"18 In the case reported in 2012 (9) SCC 791: Raghuvansh Dewanchand Bhasin Vs. State of Maharashtra, while considering the ambit and scope of Article 21 and its violation, and court's right to payment compensation, their lordships held as under:-

17 It is trite principle of law that in matters involving infringement or deprivation of a fundamental right; abuse of process of law, harassment etc., the courts have ample power to award adequate compensation to an aggrieved person not only to remedy the wrong done to him but also to serve as a deterrent for the wrongdoer.

18 In Rudul Sah Vs. State of Bihar, Y.V. Chandrachud, CJ, speaking for a Bench of three learned Judges of this Court had observed thus: (SCC p. 147, para 10)

"10. ...One of the telling ways in which the violation of that right can reasonably be prevented and due compliance with the mandate of Article 21 secured, is to mulct its violators in the payment of monetary compensation. Administrative sclerosis leading to flagrant infringements of fundamental rights cannot be corrected by any other method open to the judiciary to adopt."

19 In Bhim Singh, MLA Vs. State of J & K, holding illegal detention in police custody of the petitioner Bhim Singh to be violative of his rights under Articles 21 and 22(2) of the Constitution, this Court, in exercise of its power to award compensation under Article 32, directed the State to pay monetary compensation to the petitioner. Relying on Rudal Sah , O. Chinnappa Reddy, J. echoed the following views: (SCC p.686, para 2)

"2. ... When a person comes to us with the complaint that he has been arrested and imprisoned with mischievous or malicious intent and that his constitutional and legal rights were invaded, the mischief or malice and the invasion may not be washed away or wished away by his being set free. In appropriate cases we have the jurisdiction to compensate the victim by awarding suitable monetary compensation..."

20. In Nilabati Behera (Smt) Alias Lalita Behera Vs. State of Orissa, clearing the doubt and indicating the precise nature of the constitutional remedy under Articles 32 and 226 of the Constitution to award compensation for contravention of fundamental rights, which had arisen because of the observation that "the petitioner could have been relegated to the ordinary remedy of a suit if his claim to compensation was factually controversial" in Rudul Sah (SCC p. 147, para 10), J.S. Verma, J. (as His Lordship then was) stated as under: (Nilabati Behera case, SCC pp. 762-63, para 17)

"17 It follows that 'a claim in public law for compensation' for contravention of human rights and fundamental freedoms, the protection of which is guaranteed in the Constitution, is an acknowledged remedy for enforcement and protection of such rights, and such a claim based on strict liability made by resorting to a constitutional remedy provided for the enforcement of a fundamental right is 'distinct from, and in addition to, the remedy in private law for damages for the tort' resulting from the contravention of the fundamental right. The defence of sovereign immunity being inapplicable, and alien to the concept of guarantee of fundamental rights, there can be no question of such a defence being available in the constitutional remedy. It is this principle which justifies award of monetary compensation for contravention of fundamental rights guaranteed by the Constitution, when that is the only practicable mode of redress available for the contravention made by the State or its servants in the purported exercise of their powers, and enforcement of the fundamental right is claimed by resort to the remedy in public law under the Constitution by recourse to Articles 32 and 226 of the Constitution. This is what was indicated in Rudul Sah and is the basis of the subsequent decisions in which compensation was awarded under Articles 32 and 226 of the Constitution, for contravention of fundamental rights."

21. In the same decision, in his concurring judgment, Dr. A.S. Anand, J. (as His Lordship then was), explaining the scope and purpose of public law proceedings and private law proceedings stated as under: (Nilabati Behera case, SCC pp. 768-69, para 34)

"34. The public law proceedings serve a different purpose than the private law proceedings. The relief of monetary compensation, as exemplary damages, in proceedings under Article 32 by this Court or under Article 226 by the High Courts, for established infringement of the indefeasible right guaranteed under Article 21 of the Constitution is a remedy available in public law and is based on the strict liability for contravention of the guaranteed basic and indefeasible rights of the citizen. The purpose of public law is not only to civilize public power but also to assure the citizen that they live under a legal system which aims to protect their interests and preserve their rights. Therefore, when the court moulds the relief by granting "compensation" in proceedings under Article 32 or 226 of the Constitution seeking enforcement or protection of fundamental rights, it does so under the public law by way of penalising the wrongdoer and fixing the liability for the public wrong on the State which has failed in its public duty to protect the fundamental rights of the citizen. The payment of compensation in such cases is not to be understood, as it is generally understood in a civil action for damages under the private law but in the broader sense of providing relief by an order of making 'monetary amends' under the public law for the wrong done due to breach of public duty, of not protecting the fundamental rights of the citizen. The compensation is in the nature of 'exemplary damages' awarded against the wrongdoer for the breach of its public law duty and is independent of the rights available to the aggrieved party to claim compensation under the private law in an action based on tort, through a suit instituted in a court of competent jurisdiction or/and prosecute the offender under the penal law." (emphasis supplied)

22. The power and jurisdiction of this Court and the High Courts to grant monetary compensation in exercise of its jurisdiction respectively under Articles 32 and 226 of the Constitution of India to a victim whose fundamental rights under Article 21 of the Constitution are violated are thus, well-established. However, the question now is whether on facts in hand, the appellant is entitled to monetary compensation in addition to what has already been awarded to him by the High Court. Having considered the case in the light of the fact- situation stated above, we are of the opinion that the appellant does not deserve further monetary compensation."

25. The Division Bench has also considered the judgment passed by the Apex Court in Salem Advocate Bar Association (II) v. Union of India⁸. Eventually, the Division Bench in Neetu Devi (Supra) has accorded indulgence in favour of claimant-petitioner (in the said writ petition). □

26. This Court in the case of U.P. State Electricity Board vs. District Magistrate, Dehradun⁹, has also considered the issue that electricity falls within the definition of "hazardous substance" and the accident, caused on account of it, is covered under the provisions of the Act, 1991. Relevant extract of the judgment, as contained in paragraphs 42 to 44, is being quoted below:

"42. Hence in my opinion 'hazardous substance' as defined in Section 2 (d) of the 1991 Act is not to be confined to a substance specified in the notification issued by the Central Government, but it includes all substances which come under the definition of 'hazardous substance' under the Environment (Protection) Act, 1986, with this exception that if any such substance is also notified by the Central Government under Section 2 (d) of the 1991 Act then it will be a 'hazardous substance' only if it exceeds the quantity specified in the said notification. Thus the notification issued by the Central Government under Section 2 (d) of the 1991 Act can only narrow down the scope of 'hazardous substance' as defined under the Environment (Protection) Act, 1986, but substances which are not specified in the said notification will nevertheless be regarded as 'hazardous substances' under the 1991 Act if they come within the definition of 'hazardous substances' under the Environment (Protection) Act, 1986.

43. I have already stated above that electricity is "hazardous substance" as defined under the Environment (Protection) Act, 1986 and hence I reject the submission of the learned counsel for the petitioners that it is not a hazardous substance since it has not been included in the Notification dated 24-3-1992.

44. THE principle of strict Liability Section 3 (2) of the 1991 Act places a strict liability (liability without fault) in cases of such accident due to 'hazardous substances' and it is not necessary for the claimant to plead that the death or injury was caused by wrong or negligent act of any person..."

27. Hon'ble Supreme Court in *M.P. Electricity Board v. Shail Kumari*¹⁰ has held that the Electricity Board is liable to pay compensation even though there was no negligence on its part.□ In *Parvati Devi & Ors. v. Commissioner of Police, Delhi & Ors.*¹¹, the Supreme Court observed that once it is established that the death occurred on account of electrocution while walking on the road, necessarily the authorities concerned must be held to be negligent and the legal heirs of the deceased are entitled for compensation.

28. In *M.C. Mehta v. Union of India*¹², Hon'ble Supreme Court has held□that where an enterprise is engaged in a hazardous or inherently dangerous activity and harm is caused on any one on account of the accident in the operation of such activity, the enterprise is strictly and absolutely liable to compensate those who are affected by the accident.

CONCLUSION

29. We find that the issue in hand is no more res integra. In the light of the above cited judgments, we find that the quintessence is that the compensation has rightly been accorded under the Act, 1991. It is writ large that the petitioner had set up the claim under the Act, 1991 on the ground that he had received grievous injury and during treatment he has incurred expenses of more than Rs.4 lacs towards medical costs and other expenses. We find that under the present facts and circumstances the order impugned is required to be modified qua the amount of compensation.□ As a stay order was operating in the connected writ petition, therefore, the amount quantified by the District Magistrate was never paid to the petitioner. The petitioner has been deprived of the compensation amount, which he is legally entitled to receive.

30. The stay order was granted on the ground of jurisdiction of the District Magistrate to pass the order. However, as observed above, the District Magistrate has the jurisdiction to pass an order under the Act. Therefore, the ground of jurisdiction is unsustainable. The incident is of the year 2006 and the order of compensation was passed in the year 2010. Ordinarily, the deprivation of the compensation amount would require granting of damages and interest to the petitioner as despite an award for grant of compensation, no amount came to be given for a period of 16 years.

Therefore, in the interest of justice and to balance the equities, we deem it appropriate that a further sum of Rs.5,00,000/- be quantified over and above to what has been awarded as medical expenses and enhanced compensation to be awarded to the petitioner.

ORDER AND DIRECTIONS

31. We accordingly modify the order impugned to the extent that the petitioner is entitled for compensation of Rs.9,00,000/- in total (Rs.5,00,000/- as enhanced compensation and Rs.4,00,000/- as medical expenses). The Corporation/Nigam is directed to disburse the aforesaid amount to the claimant-petitioner within four weeks, failing which the claimant-petitioner will be entitled for 9% interest over the said amount towards delayed payment from the date of impugned order

32. In view of above, WRIT - C No. - 61435 of 2010 stands allowed and □ Writ - C No. 51093 of 2010 stands dismissed.

ISSUE FOR CONSIDERATION

(i) Whether the disputed holding recorded in the name of late Sri Daulat Singh was his exclusive holding or was ancestral joint Hindu family property in which the petitioners had acquired interest by birth;

(ii) Whether the authorities below correctly determined the nature of the land as irrigated under Section 4-A of the U.P. Imposition of Ceiling on Land Holdings Act, 1960; and

(iii) Whether the computation of surplus area was made in accordance with law after correctly considering grove, abadi and usar land as well as the number of family members entitled to additional ceiling area.

HEADNOTE

U.P. Imposition of Ceiling on Land Holdings Act, 1960 – ss.4-A, 10(2), 13 – Ceiling proceedings – Notice under Section 10(2) issued to legal heirs of deceased tenure-holder Daulat Singh treating 46.86 acres as surplus land – Petitioners contended that disputed land was ancestral 'sir' and 'khud kasht' property of their grandfather Bankey Bihari Lal and that late Sri Daulat Singh was recorded only in a representative capacity on behalf of the joint Hindu family – Further case of petitioners that petitioner no.1 was born prior to the date of vesting and had acquired coparcenary rights by birth; substantial area had been wrongly treated as irrigated; and grove, abadi and usar land as well as entitlement to additional ceiling area on account of family composition had not been correctly considered – Prescribed Authority declared surplus land and appellate authority affirmed the order – Failure to adjudicate specific objections and record findings on material issues – Ignored binding precedents governing ancestral holdings – Cryptic and non-speaking appellate order – Orders vitiated by perversity and patent illegality – Remand for fresh determination :

Held: (I) Mere entry in the revenue records does not confer exclusive title where the land is alleged to be ancestral 'sir' and 'khud kasht' land and rights by birth had already accrued under Mitakshara law prior to vesting. Court held that the authorities below were not justified in treating the entire holding as the exclusive holding of late Sri Daulat Singh merely because revenue records stood in his sole name. Neither the Prescribed Authority nor the Appellate Authority recorded any categorical finding upon the evidence as to whether the disputed holding was ancestral 'sir' and 'khud kasht' land. It was the admitted position that petitioner no.1, having been born prior to the date of vesting, was entitled to be treated as a co-sharer. Consequently, the entire premise on which ceiling proceedings were initiated against the legal heirs treating late Sri Daulat Singh as exclusive tenure-holder could not be sustained. The authorities completely failed to advert to the said vital jurisdictional issue and thereby misdirected themselves in law.

(II) Court held that Section 4-A prescribes a definite statutory mechanism for determining whether land is irrigated or unirrigated. Such determination is required to be founded upon relevant khasras of 1378, 1379 and 1380 Fasli and, wherever necessary, local inspection. The Prescribed Authority did not discuss the relevant khasras nor record any finding satisfying the requirements of Section 4-A. Court held that the determination of irrigated land was arbitrary and contrary to the statutory procedure prescribed under Section 4-A.

(III) Petitioners specifically pleaded that substantial area constituted grove land, abadi land and usar land and had further claimed entitlement to additional ceiling area on account of family composition, existence of a major son and other family members. Those were specific factual objections requiring adjudication. Neither the Prescribed Authority nor the Appellate Authority recorded any reasoned finding on these objections. Impugned orders were quashed and the matter was remanded to the Prescribed Authority for fresh adjudication after determining: (E-5)

CASE ARISING FROM

Order dated 30.04.1988 passed by the Prescribed Authority (Ceiling)/Upper Collector, Kheri in proceedings under Section 10(2) of the U.P. Imposition of Ceiling on Land Holdings Act, 1960, affirmed by appellate order dated 07.04.1993 passed by the Additional Commissioner, Lucknow Division, Lucknow.

Appearances for Parties

Advs. for the Petitioner: Awadhesh Kumar, Ajaiy Kumar Mishra, Ayush Srivastava, Devi Prasad Maurya, Hari Om Singh, Kapil Dev Chaubey, Manish Mani Sharma, S. Mirza, Sandeep Kumar, Shashwat Srivastava, Uma Shankar Sahai, Vijay Kumar Pandey

Advs. for the Respondents: C.S.C., Prahlad

(Delivered by Hon'ble Irshad Ali, J.)

1. Heard Sri U.S. Sahai, learned counsel for the petitioners and Sri Shatrughan Chaudhary, learned Additional CSC for the respondent - State.

2. By means of present writ petition, the petitioners are challenging the impugned order dated 30.04.1988 passed by the prescribed authority (Ceiling) / Upper Collector, Kheri contained as Annexure-22 and the order of Additional Commissioner, Lucknow Division, Lucknow dated 07.04.1993 contained as Annexure-25 to the writ petition.

3. The present dispute pertains to the land situated in village Dhakha and Grant No.10, Pargana Kukra, Tehsil Lakhimpur, District Kheri. The petitioners were served with a notice under Section 10(2) of U.P. Imposition of Ceiling on Land Holdings Act, 1961 (Ceiling Act) being legal heirs of deceased tenure holder Sri Daulat Singh, whereby 46.86 acres of land was declared to be surplus.

4. Joint objection was filed by the petitioners on 12.08.1985 praying for quashing the ceiling notice on the ground that disputed land was recorded in the name of Late Sri Daulat Singh in a representative capacity of a joint hindu family but he was not the sole owner of the said land. The disputed land was 'Sir', 'Khud Kasht' and grove land before enforcement of U.P. ZA& LR Act.

5. The petitioner No.1 was born on 01.11.1939, petitioner No.2 was born in 1956 and petitioner No.3 was born in 1958. Therefore, the petitioner Nos. 1 & 2 were co-parcener of the said ancestral holding of Babu Bankey Bihari Lal (grandfather of the petitioners) and petitioner Nos.1 & 2 and their father Late Sri Dualat Singh each had 1/3rd share.

6. Since Late Sri Daulat Singh, representative of a joint hindu family was father of the petitioners, therefore, there was no need to get their rights declared during his lifetime. Thus, there would be three independent tenure holders each having 1/3rd share of the disputed land and none of them would fall under the ceiling limits and thus, no notice against them could be issued.

7. 27 acres of land was erroneously shown as irrigated land. Owing to the number of family members of petitioner Nos.1 & 2 (petitioners themselves, their wives, each of them having 2 minor sons and 2 minor unmarried daughters) they were liable to get 5 acres each extra land. Also the petitioner No.3 was major on the relevant ceiling date and on that basis he was entitled to get 5 acres.

8. 72.06 acres of land was erroneously shown as irrigated land while the entire land was unirrigated under Section 4A of Ceiling Act. The petitioners further stated following details:

- 15 acres grove in Grant No.10
- 10 acres grove in Dhaka
- Total 25 acres grove however in ceiling papers the area of grove land was captured incorrectly
- 4 acres abadi land
- 10 acres usar land

9. The Naib Tehsildar (Ceiling), Lakhimpur filed his reply on 22.12.1985 on behalf of State to the objections filed by the petitioners stating that the entire land belonged to Sri Daulat Singh and since the petitioners were his legal heirs, hence, the notice under ceiling provisions was issued to them thereby dismissing the objections filed by the petitioners.

10. Before the prescribed authority (Ceiling) case No.58/24 (State Vs. Late Daulat Singh s/o Banke Bihari Lal through LRs under Section 10 (2) of Ceiling Act was registered in respect of land situated in at village Dhakha and village Grant No.10, Pargana Kukra, Tehsil Lakhimpur, District Kheri. In CLH forms, total land of Daulat Singh was stated to be 79-33 acres out of which 2-23 acres was stated to be Abadi.

11. On behalf of the State, Sri Ram Swarup, Lekhpal of village Dhakha, Sri Ram Bilas Gupta, Lekhpal of village Grant No.10 and Sri Shyama Charan, ARK, were produced and their statements were taken on record.

12. The prescribed authority (Ceiling) / Upper Collector, Kheri (respondent No.3) vide order dated 30.04.1988 declared 33.076 acres land in irrigated terms of the petitioners as surplus. Feeling aggrieved by the order of prescribed authority, the petitioners filed appeal under Section 13(1) of Ceiling Act before the Commissioner, Lucknow Division, Lucknow. Along with said appeal, the petitioners also prayed to stay the operation and execution of order dated 30.04.1988 passed by respondent No.3.

13. The Additional Commissioner (Judicial) Lucknow Division, Lucknow was pleased to stay the operation of the order dated 30.04.1988 and all sorts of further ceiling proceedings on 25.06.1988 till next date and thereafter, the stay was extended on every date and it was operative till the pronouncement of the judgment.

14. On 07.04.1993, the Additional Commissioner (Judicial), Lucknow Division, Lucknow dismissed the appeal and confirmed the order of prescribed authority (Ceiling) / Upper Collector, Kheri dated 30.04.1988. It is noteworthy that in the order dated 07.04.1993 no adequate findings were given by respondent No.2 with respect to the issues framed by respondent No.3 vide order dated 03.04.1988.

15. Submission of learned counsel for the petitioners is that the decision of the court below is against the law and facts of the case. The court below has wrongly declared 33.076 acres of land in irrigated terms as surplus while no land was to be declared surplus. The court below has misrepresented and disbelieved the evidence adduced by the appellant and relied upon the statements of Sri Ram Bilas Gupta, Lekhpal of Grant No.10, Ram Swarup, Lekhpal of Dhaka without any proof.

16. He next submitted that the court below has wrongly shifted the burden of proof on the shoulders of the appellant while the same onus is on the State to prove the facts. The court below has not discussed the entire evidence on record adduced by the appellant but based its finding on imagination conjectures and surmises.

17. He further submitted that the court below has wrongly held that the entire disputed land was not an ancestral holding but it was owned by Late Sri Daulat Singh father of the appellants while it was acquired by Late Babu Bankey Behari Lal the grandfather of the appellants and the appellants were co-tenants alongwith their father Sri Daulat Singh who was recorded in revenue papers in representative capacity.

18. He submitted that the court below has wrongly interpreted the law of Sir and Khud Kasht and Zamindari Abolition Act and in nay case one son will be co-tenant alongwith his father Late Sri Daulat Singh and as such he will be co-tenant to the extent of 1/2 share.

19. He next submitted that the court below has erred in holding that appellant No.1 and 2 will not be entitled to get separately while they are entitled to get 1/3 share each. The court below has erred in holding that the tenure holder had two adult son and one minor son at the time of applicability of Ceiling Act.

20. He further submitted that the court below has wrongly relied upon the commission report partially but relied upon the statements of Lekhpals of village Grant No.10 and Dhaka. The Court below has also misinterpreted Section 4A of Ceiling Act whereby burden of proof lies on the State to file Khasra of 1378, 1979 and 1380 F and to inspect the spot and to prove that the disputed land is irrigated one in accordance with Section 4A of the Act.

21. He submitted that the court below has erred in holding that in village Dhaka no grove situates whereas 10 acres of land in village Dhaka is grove. The court below has also erred in holding that there is only 2 acres of Abadi land whereas 4 acres of abadi land is one the spot.

22. He lastly submitted that the court below has wrongly calculated the numbers of family members and relates for them as the appellant No.3 is major and he is also entitled to get. In declaring the land surplus, the court below has miscalculated the area and has wrongly declared 33.076 acres of land to be surplus. The findings arrived at by the court below are against the oral and documentary evidence on record. In support of his submissions, he placed reliance upon following judgments:

a) Dilip Singh and Ors. Vs. Commissioner Agar Division Agar and Ors.; MANU/UP/1759/2012

b) Chetanya Raj Singh Vs. II Addl. Civil Judge and ors.; MANU/UP/0381/1977.

c) Rajendra Singh Vs. State of Uttar Pradesh; MANU/UP/0986/1978.

d) Gaya Prasad Vs. Prescribed Authority; MANU/UP/0793/1979

e) Vishwa Nath Singh Vs. State of U.P. and others; 1978 SCC Online All 637.

g) Chhattar Singh and others Vs. State of Uttar Pradesh and others; 1978 SCC Online All 743

f) Sheela Devi and others Vs. Lal Chand and Another; (2006) 8 Supreme Court Cases 581.

21. The Act indisputably would prevail over the old Hindu law. We may notice that Parliament, with a view to confer right upon the female heirs, even in relation to the joint family property, enacted the Hindu Succession Act, 2005. Such a provision was enacted as far back in 1987 by the State of Andhra Pradesh. The succession having opened in 1989, evidently, the provisions of the Amendment Act, 2005 would have no application. Sub-section (1) of Section 6 of the Act governs the law relating to succession on the death of a coparcener in the event the heirs are only male descendants. But, the proviso appended to sub-section (1) of Section 6 of the Act creates an exception. First son of Babu Lal viz. Lal Chand, was, thus, a coparcener. Section 6 is an exception to the general rules. It was, therefore, obligatory on the part of the respondent-plaintiffs to show that apart from Lal Chand, Sohan Lal will also derive the benefit thereof. So far as the second son, Sohan Lal is concerned, no evidence has been brought on record to show that he was born prior to coming into force of the Hindu Succession Act, 1956.

22. Thus, it was the half-share in the property of Babu Ram, which would devolve upon all his heirs and legal representatives as at least one of his sons was born prior to coming into force of the Act."

23. On the other hand, learned Additional CSC submitted that in regard to Section 4, onus lies on the tenure holder to prove that which land is irrigated and non irrigated. He also submitted that under Section 4A of the Ceiling Act, there is a provision to look into other documents relied upon by the State and in view of that CLH form 41 was produced which shown the irrigated and non irrigated land. In support of his submissions, he placed reliance upon following judgments:

a) Shyamvir Singh Vs. The State of U.P. and others; 1978 AWC 263.

b) Shital Singh Vs. State of U.P. and others; 1978 AWC 449.

c) Ram Charan Vs. State of U.P. and others; 1979 All. L.J. 166.

24. In reply to the arguments advanced by learned Additional CSC, learned counsel for the petitioners submitted that onus lies on the State to prove that the land is irrigated or un-irrigated by producing khasra of 1378, 1379 and 1980 and if not available, inspection is to be made by the prescribed authority himself to ascertain the irrigated and non irrigated land and facility available of canal or private tubewell or government tubewell, which has not been done in the present case, therefore, reliance placed on other documents and CLH form 41, which is 15 years old paper or is of before 1970, has no meaning while the Ceiling Act came into year 1985.

25. I have considered the submissions advanced by learned counsel for the parties and perused the material on record as well as law reports cited by learned counsel for the parties.

26. To resolve the controversy involved in the matter, relevant portion of the judgments are being quoted below:

Judgments relied upon by learned counsel for the petitioners:

a) Dilip Singh and Ors. (Supra):

"9. Law is well settled that in case of a Hindu as far as his interest in ancestral property is concerned the same accrues right from the date of conception in the womb and the same does not wait till the child is born. Even if he may not be in actual control of the property, he has inalienable right to own the said property. So while determining the shares in the said holding, right of the such child has also to be looked into. In the present case, admitted fact is that the petitioners No. 2 and 3 had acquired their respective rights in the ancestral property prior to 1st of July, 1952 and had clear interest in the property as such it could not be said to be exclusive property of the petitioner No. 1. It was by way of necessity the Prescribed Authority was required to examine this aspect of the matter at the time of initiating ceiling proceedings under section 10(2) of the Act, 1960. This aspect had to be looked into irrespective of any subsequent proceedings being initiated by the petitioners to define their shares. Limited role of Prescribed authority was to determine the surplus land by reference to the number of owners holding such land. As already stated herein-supra petitioners No. 2 and 3 had acquired their right in this property prior to 1.7.1952 and had interest in the property. This aspect has been consistently ignored by the Prescribed Authority even though specific objection was taken before the Prescribed Authority.

10. 11. Reliance placed by learned Counsel for the petitioners on the case of Vishwa Nath Singh v. State of U.P. [1978 All. L.J. 1085 : 1978 (4) ALR 945.] wherein a Co-ordinate Bench of this Court in paragraph No. 12 has held as under:

"In my opinion the Prescribed Authority has misappropriated the contentions raised on behalf of the petitioner tenure holder. The relevant thing to be determined in the case is as to whether the plots claimed by the petitioner were coming down in his family from the time of his ancestor and whether the petitioner's son Madan Gopal was born before 1st July, 1952. If the aforesaid two questions are answered in the affirmative the petitioner's son Madan Gopal would get a right in Sir or Khudkasht land by virtue of his birth in the family. It is immaterial whether his name was entered over the disputed plots or not, or he was not in actual possession over his share in the plots. Even if the petitioner was in possession over the ancestral property, the rights of his son Madan Gopal would not extinguish in the disputed plots if the disputed plots were coming down in the family from the time of grand father or great grand father or even from before them. It is true that the devolution would be governed by the provisions of U.P.Z.A. and L.R. Act after the enforcement of Act 1 of 1951, but on 30.6.1952 the persons who could in law be sir holder or Khudkasht holder would not lose their rights due to enforcement of Act 1 of 1951. The Prescribed Authority appears to have failed to examine the claim of the petitioner from this angle. The appellate authority has not dealt with this aspect of the matter. Since the judgments of the ceiling authorities are patently erroneous on the questions of the claim put forward by the petitioner that his plots were unirrigated, I think that the appellate authority should also examine the claim of the petitioner that his son Madan Gopal has a share in the plots indicated by him (the petitioner) as ancestral property."

19. From the aforesaid discussion, it clearly emerges that the Prescribed Authority has not examined the case in its true legal perspective by ignoring the right of the petitioners No. 2 and 3 to be joint holder of the ancestral property from the date of their birth. It was incumbent upon him that while determining the ceiling area it should have taken into consideration the land which had fallen into the share of petitioner Nos. 2 and 3 as owners. As a matter of fact what is being construed as assigning of shares before the consolidation officer is infact a partition of the property. Partition can be effected only where the ownership is joint. Petitioners acquired ownership right prior to 1.7.1952. Partition was effected only for the purposes of assigning their respective shares. This could not be construed to be a transfer as held by the Prescribed Authority. For the reasons stated above, this writ petition is allowed. The impugned orders are hereby quashed. The matter is remanded back to the concerned authorities to determine the shares of the petitioners No. 2 and 3 and after such determination the authorities shall determine as to whether they hold the land in excess of the ceiling limit in accordance with law."

b) Chetanya Raj Singh (Supra):

"4. The 2nd Additional Civil Judge, Aligarh, however, dismissed both the appeals by his order dated 19th August, 1976. He came to the conclusion that Hari Raj Singh and Ravi Raj Singh being just minors of one or two years, were not in cultivatory possession and, therefore, they could not be the bhumidhars of the plots in question and so the petitioner alone was the tenure holder of the disputed plots. The contention of the petitioner that by virtue of the family settlement on 20th June, 1969, the entire land of the family was partitioned and the same was recovered by court in the suit filed by Hari Raj Singh in 1972 was also repelled by the learned Judge in view of the provisions of Section 5(7) of the Ceiling Act, as that was a partition of land after the 24th day of January, 1971. The learned Judge also repelled the contention of the petitioner that the land of his wife Smt. Indra Kumari was her Stridhan on the ground that Smt. Indra Kumari had given her consent to include the land held by her in the ceiling area applicable to her husband, the petitioner. He took the view that the word 'tenure holder' has been defined to mean the holder of a holding and the word 'person' has been defined to include a family. Thus a family is an unit at par with the individual and the term 'family' in section 2(7) of the Ceiling Act, which includes himself or herself and his wife or her husband, as the case may be (other than a judicially separated wife or husband), minor sons and minor daughters (other than married daughters). So, the land held by them is liable to be aggregated in the ceiling area applicable to the petitioner. The transfer made by Smt. Indra Kumari of the land situate in village Kinhus to Rani Laj Kumari was ignored, as the same was made after the 24th day of January, 1971, and it was not proved to the satisfaction of the Prescribed Authority that the transfer was made in good faith and for adequate consideration under an irrevocable instrument. The learned Judge was also not satisfied that the petitioner had his stud farm.

19. For the reasons given above, while confirming the findings of the appellate authority on other points, I set aside the finding on the question that Hari Raj Singh and Ravi Raj Singh are not the co-tenure holders with the petitioner Chetanya Raj Singh. Consequently, the order of the appellate authority is quashed and the case is sent back to it for deciding that point afresh in the light of the observations made above. The findings on other points, which have been confirmed, shall not be considered. In the circumstances of the case, the petitioner is entitled to his costs."

c) Rajendra Singh (Supra):

"1. A notice under section 10(2) of the U.P. Imposition of Ceiling on Land Holdings Act was issued to Hanumant Singh. In the objection filed by him it was asserted that the entire land recorded as his holding was ancestral Sir and Khudkasht before the abolition of Zamindari and that his sons Rajendra Singh and Lallu Raja had a share in it by birth as they were born prior to the date of vesting. The objection was overruled by the Prescribed Authority and the appeal preferred by the tenure-holder also proved infructuous. Rajendra Singh and Lallu Raja, the sons of the tenure-holder, filed this petition challenging the legality of the orders of the ceiling authorities. In the petition Hanumant Singh was impleaded as a respondent. An application has been moved praying that respondent no. 4 be transposed from the array of respondents to the array of the petitioners. I have allowed that application today. 2. The only question involved in the petition is whether land recorded in the name of Hanumant Singh could be treated as his exclusive holding. There is no dispute that the land was ancestral Sir and Khudkasht. There appears to be further no dispute that Rajendra Singh and Lallu Raja were born prior to the date of vesting. On these admitted facts the legal position is clear that Rajendra Singh and Lallu Raja had an interest in the property and that it was not the exclusive property of Hanumant Singh. On the abolition of Zamindari the land held by the aforesaid persons as their Sir and Khudkasht became their Bhumidhari property in the same share in which they hold the land as their Sir and Khudkasht. The fact that in revenue papers only the name of the father was mutated would not result in depriving the sons of their interest in the property. By mere entry of his name in the revenue records Hanumant Singh did not acquire exclusive Bhumidhari rights over the entire property to the exclusion of the rights of his sons. Under section 18 of the U.P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act Bhumidhari rights were acquired by all the intermediaries who held that land as their Sir and Khudkasht. Since there was no conflict of interest between the father and the sons, it has to be presumed that the name of the father was recorded in the revenue papers in a representative capacity. The view taken by the ceiling authorities that since Bhumidhari right was a fresh right conferred under the U.P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act, the fact that the property was ancestral Sir and Khudkasht, and the sons had an interest in it prior to the abolition of Zamindari was not of any significance, is wholly erroneous, Bhumidhari rights under the U.P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act was acquired by all the three persons who held the land exclusively in his own right."

d) Gaya Prasad Vs. Prescribed Authority (Supra):

" 1. This petition arises out of the proceedings under the U.P. Imposition of ceiling on Land Holdings Act, 1960. The facts, in brief are thus. The petitioner was issued notice under Section 10(2) of the Act and objections were filed. They were decided by the Prescribed Authority, a true copy of whose order dated 30th June, 1976 is Annexure I to the petition. Thereafter an appeal was filed by the petitioner and the same was decided by the Civil Judge, Jalaun Camp at Orai and a certified copy of the judgment has been annexed and marked as Annexure 2. Now the petitioner has come up in the instant petition and in support thereof I have heard the learned counsel Sri Rajesh Ji Verma for the petitioner and in opposition, the Standing counsel has made submissions. Only one point has been pressed before me and that relates to Khata No. 12 in village Churkhi. The said land was claimed to be ancestral Sir and Khud Kasht and it was also contended that the three sons of the petitioner were in existence on the date of vesting and as such the petitioner and his three sons had 1/4th share each in the land of the said Khata. The said contention was not accepted by the authorities below and in my opinion on an inadequate ground. It seems that the petitioner had executed gift deed in favour of his sons and subsequently he also executed a sale deed on 6-9-1971. The recital in these documents was that the petitioner was the sole and exclusive owner of the properties. In my opinion merely because of these recitals the real nature of the land could not be changed. The appellate Court has itself observed that the extract of Khatauni for 1334 Fasli established that the land was recorded as Sir and Khudkasht. It has to be seen that the recording in the name of the petitioner in that Fasli year will not prove that the land was ancestral in his hands. It had to be further found that the land of the said Khata had come in the hands of the petitioner from his ancestors or that it was otherwise proved to be joint family property in which the sons acquired rights by their births."

e) Vishwa Nath Singh (Supra):

"11. In my opinion the Prescribed Authority has misappreciated the contentions raised on behalf of the petitioner tenure-holder. The relevant thing to be determined in the case is as to whether the plots claimed by the petitioner was coming down in his family from the time of his ancestor and whether the petitioner's son Madan Gopal was born before 1st July, 1952. If the aforesaid two questions are answered in the affirmative the petitioner's son Madan Gopal would get a right in Sir or Khudkasht land by virtue of his birth in the family. It is immaterial whether his name was entered over the disputed plot or not, or he was not in actual possession over his share in the plots. Even if the petitioner was in possession over the ancestral property, the right of the son Madan Gopal would not extinguish in the disputed plots if the disputed plots were coming down in the family from the time of grand-father or great grand-father or even from before them. It is true that the devolution would be governed by the provisions of U.P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act after the enforcement of Act I of 1951, but on 30th June, 1952 the persons who could in law be sirholder or khudkasht holder would not lose their rights due to enforcement of Act I of 1951. The Prescribed Authority appears to have failed to examine the claim of the petitioner from this angle. The appellate authority has not dealt with this aspect of the matter. Since the judgments of the ceiling authorities are patently erroneous on the question of the claim put forward by the petitioner that his plots were unirrigated, I think that the appellate authority should also examine the claim of the petitioner that his son Madan Gopal has share in the plots indicated by him (the petitioner) as ancestral property."

f) Chhattar Singh and others (Supra):

"It is note-worthy that the appellate authority has accepted that Pratap Singh was born before the date of vesting, i.e. 1st July, 1952 and that the property in the hands of the present petitioner. Chhattar Singh was coming down from the time of Nathuram. In such circumstances, it is evident that Pratap Singh being grandson of Nathuram, father of the present petitioner no. 1 would get right in the property by birth. Whether the property would be exclusive property of Chhattar Singh or not, it would be a pure question of law in the circumstances of the present case. Even if the Present petitioner no. 1 makes contrary admission in the alleged gift deeds that the property exclusively belongs to him, but in law if it could not belong to him, as such the petitioner could be held as an exclusive owner, I think that the appellate authority has misappreciated the circumstances in the present case. Secondly even if the possession of the present petitioner Chhattar Singh is treated to be exclusive possession on his own behalf excluding Pratap Singh, his son, the present petitioner no. 1 would not mature right to the land on the relevant date because for perfecting title by adverse possession ousting the other co-sharer he would need 12 years possession. In the present case the gift-deed is of the year 1967 and the relevant date for the purpose of determining the ceiling area of the petitioners would be 8th June, 1973 according to the provisions of the aforesaid Ceiling Act. In this view of the matter the right of the son of the petitioner no. 1, namely, Pratap Singh had not extinguished in the area which is under the provisions of law. It appears that the appellate authority has misdirected itself in holding that the right of Pratap Singh had come to an end in the area which he could otherwise hold being a co-sharer in family of Nathu Ram, father of present petitioner no. 1."

g) Sheela Devi and others Vs. Lal Chand and Another (Supra):

"16. Although in 1927, Babu Ram had no son and the property at his hands became a separate property. But, in view of the well-settled principles of Hindu law, as soon as a son was born to him the concept of the property being a coparcenary property in terms of the Mitakshara school of Hindu law revived. The law in this behalf has succinctly been stated in Mayne's Hindu Law & Usage, 14th Edn., at pp. 627-28 and 641, in the following terms:

“Where ancestral property has been divided between several joint owners, there can be no doubt that if any of them have male issue living at the time of the partition, the share which falls to him will continue to be ancestral property in his hands, as regards his male issue, for their rights had already attached upon it, and the partition only cuts off the claims of the dividing members. The father and his male issue still remain joint. The same rule would apply even where the partition had been made before the birth of male issue or before a son is adopted, for the share which is taken at a partition, by one of the coparceners is taken by him as representing his branch. It was held by the Andhra Pradesh High Court that where a father divided the family property between him and his sons, the share obtained by him was his self-acquired property which he could bequeath to his wife”

Coparceners may hold property separately.?An examination into the property of the joint family would not be complete without pointing out what property may be held by the individual members as their separate property. All property which is not held in coparcenary is separate property and Hindu law recognises separate property of individual members of a coparcenary as well as of separated members. (1) Property which comes to a man as obstructed heritage (sapratibandhadaya) is his separate property. It is not self-acquired property within the meaning of Hindu law, though in their incidents, there may be no difference between the two species.”

Judgments relied upon by learned Additional CSC:

a) Shyamvir Singh (Supra):

"4. The second submission made by counsel for the petitioner is that the petitioner's land of village Rajpur was unirrigated. It may be pointed out that the Additional Civil Judge has held that the petitioner did not file the copies of the Khasra for the relevant years and as such he had failed to substantiate the plea raised by him. The submission made on behalf of the petitioner before the Additional Civil Judge that it was not the petitioner's duty to file the necessary copies of the Khasra but it was the duty of the State Government to have filed these copies was repelled by the Additional Civil Judge on the ground that when the notice under Section 10(2) of the Act along with the statement prepared under sub-section (1) thereof was sent to the petitioner requiring him to show cause as to why the same should not be taken as correct it was the duty of the petitioner to point out such errors which according to him found place in the statement and to prove his case by producing evidence including copies of the Khasra for the relevant years. The same plea was raised by counsel for the petitioner in support of this writ petition also, viz., that it was the duty not of the petitioner but of the State Government to produce the copies of the Khasra for the relevant years to enable the Prescribed Authority to record a finding whether the petitioner's land was irrigated or not within the meaning of Section 4-A of the Act. According to counsel Section 4-A cast a duty on the Prescribed Authority to look into these Khasras itself before determining the petitioner's land to be surplus and record reasons as to how the petitioner's land of village Rajpur was irrigated within the meaning of Section 4-A of the Act. In order to deal with this submission it would be necessary to have in view the scheme of the Act. The preamble of the Act reads:”

‘Ceiling area’ has been defined in Sec. 3(2) of the Act. According to the definition the term ‘ceiling area’ means the area of land not being land exempted under this Act, determined as such in accordance with the provisions of Sec. 5. Substantial amendment was made in the Act by the U.P. Imposition of Ceiling on Land Holdings (Amendment) Act, 1972 (U.P. Act 18 of 1973). By the said Act Secs. 4, 5 and 6 were substituted for the old sections. Reference hereinafter to these sections is being made as they stand after being substituted by U.P. Act 18 of 1973. Section 4 deals with determination of area for purposes of ceiling under Section 5 and exemptions under Section 6. Section 5(1) inter alia provides that on and from the commencement of the Uttar Pradesh Imposition of Ceiling on Land Holdings (Amendment) Act, 1972, no tenure-holder shall be entitled to hold in the aggregate throughout Uttar Pradesh, any land in excess of ceiling area applicable to him. As seen above the aforesaid amendment Act is U.P. Act 18, 1973, the date of commencement of which Act is 8th June, 1973. Section 5(3) provides for the limit of the ceiling area in terms of irrigated land. Sub-sections (2) and (4) to (8) of Section 5 are not relevant for the decision of the point under consideration. Section 6 provides that notwithstanding anything contained in the Act, land falling in any of the categories mentioned in Section 6 shall not be taken into consideration for the purposes of determining the ceiling area applicable, and the surplus land of a tenure-holder. The ceiling area contemplated by sub-section (1) of Section 5 is to be determined, inter alia, keeping in mind Section 4, the remaining sub-sections (2) to (8) of Section 5 and Section 6 of the Act. The extent of ceiling area provided for in sub-section (3) of Section 5 is in terms of irrigated land. The ceiling area of a tenure-holder, therefore, which is determined under sub-section (1) of Section 5 is in terms of irrigated land. Term ‘tenure-holder’ stands defined in Section 3(17) of the Act. It is not disputed that the petitioner was a tenure-holder and his ceiling area was liable to be determined under the Act and as such it is not necessary to refer to the definition of the term ‘tenure-holder’. Since ceiling area is determined in terms of irrigated land it is necessary to refer to the definition of the term ‘irrigated land’. It is contained in Section 3(11) of the Act. Amendments of the various terms which are defined in Section 3 have been made from time to time. ‘Irrigated land’ according to its present definition means ‘land determined as such in the manner laid down in Section 4-A’. Section 4-A was inserted in the Act by U.P. Act 2 of 1975 with retrospective effect from 8th June, 1973, and deals with determination of irrigated land. Prior to the insertion of this section the manner of determination of irrigated land was contained in Rule 3 framed under the Act. Since the sheet anchor of the submission made by counsel for the petitioner in respect of his plea that the petitioner’s land of village Rajpur was unirrigated is based on this very Section 4-A, it would be useful to reproduce it at this plea. It reads:

In the scheme of the Act Sections 7 and 8 need not be referred to inasmuch as nothing turns upon these sections in order to determine the plea raised by counsel for the petitioner. Section 9 has also been amended by U.P. Act 18 of 1973 and its sub-section (1), as it stands now, reads”

Sub-section (2) of Section 9 inter alia provides that as soon as may be after the enforcement of the Uttar Pradesh Imposition of Ceiling on Land Holdings (Amendment) Act, 1972, the Prescribed Authority shall, by like general notice, call upon every tenure-holder holding land in excess of the ceiling area applicable to him on the enforcement of the said Act to submit to him within 30 days of publication of such notice, a statement referred to in sub-section (1) of Section 9. Sections 10, 11 and 12 are the other material sections and they read as follows:?

Sections 9 and 10 refer to forms and particulars as may be prescribed. The term "prescribed" has been defined in Section 3(12) of the Act. It means ?prescribed by rules made under this Act.? Rule 6 of the Rules framed under the Act provides that the general notice to be published in pursuance of Section 9 and the statement required to be submitted thereunder by every tenure-holder holding land in excess of the ceiling area applicable to him in the State shall be in C.L.H. Forms 1 and 2 respectively. Rule 7 inter alia provides that soon after the issue of general notice in C.L.H. Form 1 the Prescribed Authority shall, after making necessary inquiries, cause to be prepared a statement in C.L.H. Form 3. Rule 8 inter alia provides that as soon as may be after the expiry of 33 days from the date of publication of the general notice in C.L.H. Form 1 in the official Gazette, the Prescribed Authority shall cause to be served upon every tenure-holder, who has failed to submit the statement in C.L.H. Form 4 together with a copy of the statement in C.L.H. Form 3 prepared under Rule 6 calling upon him to show cause within a period of 15 days from the date of service of the notice why the aforesaid statement be not taken as correct. It is not necessary to quote here Forms 2 and 3. Suffice it to point out that these forms inter alia contain various columns which are to be filled in for purposes of determining ceiling area as contemplated by Section 5(1) of the Act. Their perusal makes it clear that these forms have inter alia to show plot Nos., their area, the irrigated area, single crop land in areas mentioned in Section 4(2) of the Act, unirrigated area, Usar land and grove land. Form 3 which contains the statement which is prepared as contemplated by sub-section (1) of Section 10 of the Act and which is served on the tenure-holder along with the notice under Section 10(2) of the Act has also in its column 6 of part A to mention the ceiling area applicable to the tenure holder under Section 5 in terms of irrigated land.

5. On a conspectus of the relevant provisions of the Act and the Rules it is clear that the ceiling area contemplated by Section 5(1) of the Act has to be determined in terms of irrigated land. Land held by the tenure-holder in excess of the ceiling area is to be declared surplus. Form 2, in which the tenure-holder is required to voluntarily submit the statement of ceiling area, has inter alia to show, as already seen above, the extent of his irrigated land as also unirrigated land. Likewise Form 3, which contains the statement prepared in accordance with Section 10(1) of the Act and which is to be served along with notice under Section 10(2), has also to contain the extent of the tenure-holders irrigated and unirrigated area. It has further to give in its column 6 of part A the tenure-holder's ceiling area in terms of irrigated land. It is a settled principle of law that if a term stands denned in the Act the said term is to be given the same meaning wherever it is used in the Act unless a contrary intention is expressed. Nothing has been brought to my notice either in the Act or in the Rules which may contain an indication that the term irrigated area is to be given the meaning according to its definition for some purposes and a different meaning for other purposes. No contrary intention having thus been expressed the term ?irrigated land? has to be given the same meaning wherever the said term occurs in the Act or the Rules framed thereunder as has been assigned to it in the definition clause. Consequently there is no escape from the conclusion that when the tenure-holder is required to submit his statement in Form 2 he has to calculate the area of his irrigated land in accordance with its definition under the Act. Likewise Form 3 prepared under Section 10(1) of the Act is to contain the statement about the area of irrigated land in conformity with the requirements of the definition of the said term. Since the ceiling area is to be determined in terms of irrigated land this area can be determined only if the extent of the tenure-holder's irrigated land is calculated in the manner provided for in the definition of the said term. If any other manner is taken recourse to it would be impossible to determine the extent of the petitioner's ceiling area in terms of irrigated land as contemplated by the Act. As such if any manner for determining the extent of irrigated land other than the manner contemplated by the definition of the term is adopted the extent of the irrigated land would not represent the extent of such land as contemplated by the Act. It is again a settled principle of law that if a particular thing is by statute required to be done in a particular manner it has to be done in that manner or not at all. In this view of the matter I find it difficult to accept the submission made by counsel for the petitioner that the words "the prescribed authority shall determine such land to be irrigated land for the purposes of this Act", used in Section 4-A of the Act refer only to the judicial adjudication by the Prescribed Authority while deciding the objection of the tenure-holder under Section 12 of the Act. In my opinion the word "determine" apart from judicial decision also includes within its ambit its dictionary meaning. According to Webster the word "determine" inter alia means "to decide by authoritative and judicial sentence; as the court has determined the cause; to pronounce formally; to state, to enounce, to come to a decision concerning, as a result of investigation, reasoning etc.; as I am unable to determine its meaning; to obtain definite and first hand knowledge of as to character, location, quantity or the like; as to determine a rock, a route, the salt in sea water."

6. 8. The reason why I take the aforesaid view is this. When the tenure-holder submits his return in Form 2 he has to determine the extent of his irrigated land for without doing so he cannot give the required information. This determination has to be made with reference to the definition of the term "irrigated land". It cannot be said that while the tenure-holder is determining his irrigated land for purposes of filling in Form 2 he is making any judicial decision. Section 10(1) contemplates preparation of a statement in Form 3, as already seen above, for purposes of service along with notice under Section 10(2). This statement has to be prepared in case where a tenure-holder fails to submit a statement in Form 2 or submits an incomplete or incorrect statement. In that case where a tenure-holder has submitted his statement in Form 2 notice under Section 10(2) can be issued only if the Prescribed Authority is of the view that the statement submitted is incomplete or incorrect. Here again the Prescribed Authority will have to determine whether the statement which has been submitted by the tenure-holder in regard to his irrigated land is correct or not without doing which it would not be justified in issuing a notice to the tenure-holder under Sec. 10(2) of the Act. At this stage even though the Prescribed Authority will have to determine whether the statement of a tenure-holder in regard to his irrigated land is correct or not, it cannot be said that this determination amounts to any judicial decision. At this place it would be relevant to point-out that if no objection has been filed by a tenure-holder on a notice being served on him under Section 10(2) of the Act the Prescribed Authority has under Section 11 to determine the surplus land of the tenure-holder "accordingly" meaning thereby in accordance with "the statement prepared by the Prescribed Authority under Section 10". In this connection it will be relevant to note that the form of the notice which is served on the tenure-holder under Section 10(2) of the Act is C.L.H. Form 4. It has to bear the signature of the Prescribed Authority and inter alia contains the following statement:"

“On your failure to dispute the correctness of the statement in my court, within the time allowed, the aforesaid statement shall be treated as final and ceiling area applicable to you and the surplus land shall be determined accordingly.”

9. At this stage the Prescribed Authority really only confirms the statement prepared under Section 10 and declares that area to be surplus which is in excess of the ceiling area which stands already shown in column 6 of part A of CLH Form 3 and which in its turn is prepared in terms of ‘irrigated land’ as defined in the Act. At this stage also the Prescribed Authority cannot really be said to be making a judicial decision on the question as to whether the extent of the petitioner’s irrigated land, as shown in CLH Form 3, is in conformity with the definition of the said term or not. Section 12 deals with determination of surplus land where an objection is filed. As already seen above this section contemplates that the Prescribed Authority after affording the parties reasonable opportunity of being heard and of producing evidence decide the objections after recording its reasons and determine the surplus land. This section thus requires the Prescribed Authority to do two things: (1) to decide the objections after recording its reasons, and (2) to determine the surplus land. It is thus apparent that even while determining surplus land under Section 12 the Prescribed Authority would do so in accordance with the statement prepared in CLH Form 3 subject to such modifications as may be necessitated by its findings while deciding the objections filed by the tenure-holder.

7. The scheme of the Act thus shows that if a statement is submitted by the tenure-holder in CLH Form 2 and is accepted by the Prescribed Authority the ceiling area and the surplus land of the tenure-holder will be determined in accordance with the statement contained in the said form. If the tenure-holder does not submit the statement in CLH Form 2 the Prescribed Authority would prepare a statement in CLH Form 3 or get the same prepared by a person subordinate to it and serve it on the tenure-holder along with a notice under Section 10(2). If no objection is filed by the tenure-holder the ceiling area and the surplus land of the tenure-holder would be determined in accordance with the statement prepared in CLH Form 3. If an objection is filed the ceiling area and the surplus land of the tenure-holder who has filed such an objection would again be determined in accordance with the statement contained in CLH Form 3 subject to such modifications as may be necessitated by the decision of the objection filed by the tenure-holder. The legislature has thus attached great significance to the statement prepared in CLH Form 3 for purposes of determining the ceiling area and surplus land of tenure-holders. A statutory duty has been cast upon the Prescribed Authority to either prepare the statement itself or to get it prepared by a person subordinate to it. Even in those cases where the statement is prepared by a person subordinate to the Prescribed Authority it is prepared under the authorisation of the Prescribed Authority and is served on the tenure-holder along with a notice under Section 10(2) under the signature of the Prescribed Authority.

8. Illustration (e) of Section 114 of the Indian Evidence Act provides that the court may presume that judicial and official acts have been regularly performed. This rule is apparently based on the maxim ‘omnia proesumuntur legitime facta donee probetur in contrarium,’ which means ‘everything is presumed to be legally done until the contrary is shown.’ In Shyam Pratap v. Collector of Etawah, AIR 1946 PC 103 a question arose about the evidentiary value of a pedigree contained in an estate note book prepared under Section 332 of the Court of Wards Manual. It was held that the court must assume that the Court of Wards did its duty to the best of its ability and based the pedigree on material of the accuracy of which it was satisfied and in the absence of any reason for supposing the document to be incorrect it must be accepted as accurate. In Raj Bahadur v. Emperor, AIR 1947 All. 105, a Division Bench of this Court held that the very purpose of Section 114 is that it shall be assumed that the authority charged with a duty has performed it. The decision in this case was approved of by a Full Bench of this Court in Devi Prasad v. Emperor, AIR 1947 All. 191. In Tulsi Ram v. State of U.P., AIR 1963 SC 666 (para. 12) it was held that a presumption would arise that an official act was regularly performed. In Gopal Narain v. State of U.P., AIR 1964 SC 371 (para. 15) it was held that there is a presumption when a statutory authority makes an order that it has followed the prescribed procedure. In Pratap Singh v. Manmohan Dev, AIR 1966 SC 1931 (para. 10) it was held that if an official act has been proved to have been done it will be presumed to have been regularly done.

9. 12. In the background of the law discussed above it is apparent that there would be a presumption that the statement which was prepared in CLH Form 3 as contemplated by Section 10(1) of the Act, the preparation of which is an official act in the discharge of the statutory duty, had been prepared in the manner prescribed by the Act and the Rules framed thereunder. Accordingly there would be a presumption that the details of the petitioner's irrigated land as contained in the said Form 3 were prepared in the manner prescribed by Section 4-A of the Act. If the petitioner had not filed any objection the Prescribed Authority would have determined the petitioner's ceiling area and surplus land under Section 11 of the Act accepting the statement in Form 3 to be correct. As seen above what Section 12 contemplates is (1) the decision of the objections filed by the tenure-holder, and (2) determination of surplus land. The determination of the surplus land, as already pointed out above, is made on the basis of the statement prepared in CLH Form 3 subject to such modifications as the decision of the objections may require. What is, therefore, vital under Sec. 12 of the Act is the decision of the objections after recording reasons. If there is no objection it is not clear as to what is to be decided and what reasons are to be given. In view of the presumption that the extent of the irrigated land of the tenure-holder shown in CLH Form 3 has been calculated or determined in the manner prescribed by Section 4-A of the Act it falls to the lot of the tenure-holder to rebut that presumption. At this place it would be relevant to refer to P.J. Ratnam v. B. Kanikaram, AIR 1964 SC 244 to paragraph 6 where of not only it was held that there would be a presumption of regularity in respect of official and judicial acts but it was also held that it would be for the party who challenges such regularity to plead and prove his case. (Emphasis supplied).

10. In the aforesaid background if a tenure-holder wishes to challenge the correctness of the statement prepared in CLH Form 3 in respect of his irrigated land he will have to plead in his objection all such facts which, if proved would establish that the statement in Form 3 about his irrigated land was not prepared in the manner prescribed by Section 4-A of the Act and that his land was not irrigated within the meaning of the said section. He will also, have to produce evidence to prove those facts. In adversary proceedings a presumption cannot be rebutted only by raising a plea in the objection. The facts pleaded have to be proved. In Agricultural & Industrial Syndicate Ltd. v. State of U.P., (1974) 2 SCC 27 (para. 8) it was held that after an objection has been filed by the tenure-holder disputing the correctness of the statement prepared under Section 10 of the Act there ensues a dispute and in such a case there is an adversary proceeding before the Prescribed Authority between him and the government; Since the Prescribed Authority in the process of deciding the objection is empowered to take evidence it would be ?court? within the meaning of Sec. 3 of the Evidence Act. As such when it is deciding an objection under Sec. 12 of the Act the provisions of the Evidence Act in regard to the manner and burden of proof will apply to the proceedings. Section 101 of the Evidence Act inter alia provides that when a person is bound to prove the existence of a fact, the burden of proof lies on that person. In view of the decision of the Supreme Court in P.J. Ratnam's case (supra) to the effect that it is for the party who challenges the regularity in respect of official acts to plead and prove his case and in view of Section 101 of the Evidence Act the burden to prove that the statement in C.L.H. Form 3 about his irrigated land was not prepared in the manner prescribed by Section 4-A of the Act would lie on the tenure-holder and to discharge that burden it would be for him to produce such evidence as he considers material including the relevant extracts of Khasras mentioned in Section 4-A. It is really with reference to these documents and not with reference to his pleading in the objection that the tenure holder would be in a position to show that the statement in Form 3 about his irrigated land has not been prepared in the manner prescribed by Section 4-A of the Act. In the eye of law there is hardly any difference between a case where no objection at all is filed and a case where in the objection necessary facts have not been pleaded nor evidence has been led to prove such facts. Section 4-A does not cast any obligation on the Prescribed Authority to record reasons where no objection is filed at all. The said section cannot in my opinion be reasonably interpreted to mean that it casts an obligation on the Prescribed Authority to record reasons why a particular plot has been treated as irrigated in C.L.H. Form 3 even if no facts have been pleaded by the tenure-holder in his objection which if proved will establish that the said plot has been shown as irrigated in Form 3 otherwise than in conformity with Section 4-A and no evidence has, been led by him to prove those facts. If these facts have been pleaded and proved the Prescribed Authority will certainly have to decide the objection raised. In this behalf and record reasons for its findings in conformity with Section 4-A. In the absence of requisite pleading and proof the Prescribed Authority, while declaring surplus land under Section 12 of the Act, can be required to record reasons stating as to under which part or category of Section 4-A a particular plot has been treated as irrigated in CLH Form 3, only if Section 4-A is placed at par to the performance of a ritual. In this view of the matter I find it difficult to accept the submission made by counsel for the petitioner that the Additional Civil Judge committed an error in treating the petitioner's land of village Rajpur as irrigated."

b) Shital Singh Vs. State of U.P. and others (Supra):

"4. With regard to the next point about the remaining area of plot no. 262 being unirrigated, the point does not appear to have been considered by the Prescribed Authority. The learned Additional Civil Judge has, however, observed on this point that the khasras for 1377F. to 1378F and 1380F. show that the plot was irrigated from a canal and both Kharif and Rabi crops were produced in the plot, hence, it was rightly treated as irrigated by the Prescribed Authority. The learned counsel contended that the plot was in the bed of a river and the revenue entries were prima facie wrong and that his prayer for local inspection was refused. The determination of irrigated area of the land has to be made in accordance with section 4-A of the Act. That section makes the khasras of 1378F. 1379F. and 1380F. relevant for purposes of determining the irrigated area and also enjoins upon the Prescribed Authority to make a local inspection wherever necessary. How the Prescribed Authority is supposed to prepare the statement of ceiling area after determination of the irrigated area in accordance with the principles and procedure laid down by section 4-A of the Act. This does not appear to have been done and when the petitioner contended that the whole of the area of plot no. 262 was unirrigated, no attempt was made by the Prescribed Authority to go into that objection or to determine it on the basis of the considerations made relevant by section 4-A of the Act. The learned Additional Civil Judge has also not mentioned the khasra of 1379F. probably because it was not on the record and has mentioned the khasra of 1377F. With regard to the refusal of the prayer for local inspection, all that has been said on behalf of the Prescribed Authority in the counter-affidavit of Sri Brij Kishore Misra, the Supervisor Kanungo, is that it was not necessary to be made unless the Prescribed Authority considered the case to be a fit one. Under the circumstances, I am not satisfied that the question whether plot no. 262 was unirrigated, has been dealt with properly and in accordance with law. If the entries in the revenue records are challenged by a citizen in proceedings under the Act, and a statute provides for a procedure for determination of the irrigated area, the prescribed procedure has to be followed. The petitioner has challenged the correctness of the entries in the revenue records with regard to plot no. 262. The Prescribed Authority did not even care to look into the relevant khasras and his refusal to make a local inspection was in the circumstances of the case no less arbitrary."

c) Ram Charan Vs. State of U.P. and others (Supra):

"23. In this view when the legislature by adding the Explanation created a fiction that proceedings under the Ceiling Act shall not be deemed to be proceedings in respect of declaration or adjudication of rights or interest in any land, had obviously intended to exclude the ceiling proceedings from the purview of the Consolidation Act. The Explanation was made applicable for purposes of sub-section (2) of section 5. Since section 49 is an extension of sub-section (2) of section 5 in relation to future litigation of the same kind, the fiction created by the Explanation would equally apply to the bar created by section 49. A proceeding under the Ceiling Act shall not be deemed to be a proceeding which is barred under section 49 as well.

25. The legal fiction is that ceiling proceedings are not proceedings for declaration of rights or interest in land. This imaginary state of affairs must equally apply to all situations in which it would on terms be applicable. Though the Explanation says 'for the purposes of sub-section (2)' it would apply to section 49 also because section 49 is integrally connected with and referable to sub-section (2) of Section 5."

27. From perusal of the record and the rival submissions advanced by learned counsel for the parties, the principal questions which arise for consideration before this Court are:

(i) whether the disputed holding recorded in the name of late Sri Daulat Singh was his exclusive holding or was ancestral joint Hindu family property in which the petitioners had acquired interest by birth;

(ii) whether the authorities below have correctly determined the nature of land as irrigated under Section 4-A of the Ceiling Act;

(iii) whether the computation of surplus area has been made in accordance with law after correctly considering grove, abadi and usar land as well as the number of family members entitled to additional ceiling area.

28. So far as the first issue is concerned, the consistent case of the petitioners is that the land in dispute was ancestral 'sir' and 'Khud Kasht' land of late Babu Bankey Bihari Lal and after his death the same devolved upon the branch represented by late Sri Daulat Singh, who continued to be recorded merely in a representative capacity on behalf of the joint Hindu family. The petitioners have specifically pleaded that petitioner no.1 was born on 01.11.1939, petitioner no.2 in the year 1956 and petitioner no.3 in the year 1958 and, therefore, petitioner no.1 admittedly existed prior to the date of vesting and acquired co-parcenary rights by birth.

29. The prescribed authority as well as the appellate authority have brushed aside this foundational plea merely on the ground that the revenue records stood in the sole name of late Sri Daulat Singh. Such an approach is patently unsustainable in law. It is now well settled that mere entry in the revenue records does not confer exclusive title where the land is shown to be ancestral 'sir' and 'Khud Kasht' and where rights by birth had already accrued under Mitakshara law prior to vesting.

30. In the case of Rajendra Singh Vs. State of U.P. (Supra), this Court has categorically held that where ancestral 'sir' and 'Khud Kasht' land devolved upon a family and sons were born prior to the date of vesting, they acquired rights therein by birth and subsequent mutation solely in the father's name would not extinguish such rights. Similarly, in the case of Vishwa Nath Singh Vs. State of U.P. (Supra), it was held that what is relevant is whether the property was coming down from ancestors and whether the son was born before 1st July, 1952; if both conditions stand satisfied, independent rights accrue by birth irrespective of separate entries.

31. The same principle has been reiterated in the case of Dilip Singh and others Vs. Commissioner (Supra), wherein this Court held that ceiling authorities are duty bound to determine whether the sons had acquired rights in ancestral property prior to 1.7.1952 and cannot proceed on the assumption that land standing in the father's name is his exclusive holding. The ratio of the judgment in the case of Chetanya Raj Singh (Supra), Gaya Prasad (Supra) and Chhattar Singh (Supra) also reinforces the proposition that rights flowing from birth in ancestral holdings cannot be defeated by revenue entries or unilateral assertions.

32. Even the judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Sheela Devi Vs. Lal Chand (Supra) recognizes the settled doctrine that ancestral property continues to retain its coparcenary character and the birth of a son revives and fastens corresponding rights therein.

33. Tested on the touchstone of the aforesaid legal principles, the findings returned by the authorities below that the entire land exclusively belonged to late Sri Daulat Singh cannot be sustained. Neither the prescribed authority nor the appellate authority recorded any categorical finding upon the evidence as to whether the disputed holding was ancestral 'sir' and 'Khud Kasht' land. The authorities have completely failed to advert to this vital jurisdictional issue and thereby misdirected themselves in law.

34. At the very least, the admitted position that petitioner no.1 was born prior to the date of vesting entitled him to be treated as co-sharer. Once this position is accepted, the entire premise on which ceiling proceedings were initiated against the legal heirs treating late Sri Daulat Singh as exclusive tenure holder falls to the ground.

35. Coming to the second issue relating to irrigated land, this Court finds substance in the submission of learned counsel for the petitioners that the determination under Section 4-A of the Ceiling Act has not been undertaken in the manner known to law. Section 4-A prescribes a definite statutory mechanism for determining whether land is irrigated or unirrigated. Such determination is required to be founded upon relevant khasras of 1378, 1379 and 1380 Fasli and, wherever necessary, local inspection.

36. Though learned Additional CSC has rightly relied upon in the case of Shyamvir Singh (Supra) for the proposition that there is a presumption regarding correctness of CLH Form-3 and burden lies upon the tenure holder to rebut the same, the said judgment itself clearly lays down that once a specific objection is raised, the prescribed authority is obliged to adjudicate the same by considering evidence and recording reasons.

37. In the present case, the petitioners specifically pleaded that 72.06 acres had wrongly been shown as irrigated; that 25 acres constituted grove land; that 4 acres were abadi; and 10 acres were usar land. These were not vague objections but specific factual assertions requiring adjudication on the basis of statutory material.

38. The prescribed authority, however, appears to have relied principally upon oral statements of Lekhpals and CLH entries without discussing the relevant khasras or recording any reasoned finding satisfying the requirements of Section 4-A. The appellate authority, instead of independently examining the issue, affirmed the order in a cursory manner.

39. The judgment in the case of Shital Singh Vs. State of U.P. (Supra) directly supports the petitioners inasmuch as it holds that where objection to irrigation entries is raised, the prescribed authority must examine khasras and follow the statutory procedure. Failure to do so renders the determination arbitrary.

40. Thus, even the authorities cited by learned Additional CSC do not advance the respondents' case. On the contrary, they emphasize strict adherence to statutory procedure, which is conspicuously absent here. The reliance placed upon in the case of Ram Charan Vs. State of U.P. (Supra) is equally misplaced. The said judgment merely clarifies the nature of ceiling proceedings vis-a-vis consolidation proceedings and does not dilute the obligation of ceiling authorities to adjudicate title-related objections when such objections bear directly upon determination of surplus area.

41. This Court further finds that the objections regarding grove land, abadi land, usar land and entitlement of additional ceiling area on account of family composition have not been adjudicated by the authorities below with the seriousness required in law.

The petitioners had specifically pleaded the existence of major son, additional family members and corresponding entitlement to additional land. No reasoned finding has been recorded while rejecting these claims.

42. The appellate authority, being the final fact-finding authority, was under a legal obligation to independently examine each issue framed by the prescribed authority. The appellate order dated 07.04.1993 does not disclose any such consideration. It is cryptic, non-speaking and suffers from complete non-application of mind.

43. A quasi-judicial order affecting valuable property rights must contain reasons. Recording of reasons is not an empty formality but an indispensable facet of fairness and judicial discipline. The impugned appellate order falls woefully short of this requirement.

44. This Court is, therefore, of the considered opinion that both the prescribed authority as well as the appellate authority have proceeded on an erroneous understanding of law, ignored binding precedents governing ancestral 'sir' and 'Khud Kasht' holdings, failed to properly determine irrigated land under Section 4-A and have consequently arrived at findings vitiated by perversity and patent illegality.

45. Since, the very foundation of the surplus determination is legally unsustainable, the impugned orders cannot be permitted to stand. Accordingly, for all the reasons recorded hereinabove, the writ petition deserves to be allowed.

46. The writ petition is, accordingly, allowed.

47. The impugned order dated 30.04.1988 passed by the Prescribed Authority (Ceiling)/Upper Collector, Kheri and the appellate order dated 07.04.1993 passed by the Additional Commissioner, Lucknow Division, Lucknow are hereby quashed.

48. The matter is remitted to the Prescribed Authority concerned to reconsider the proceedings afresh strictly in accordance with law after determining, whether the disputed land was ancestral 'sir' and 'Khud Kasht' property and the shares of the petitioners therein in light of the law laid down in the case of Rajendra Singh (Supra), Vishwa Nath Singh (Supra), Dilip Singh (Supra) and other binding precedents redetermining the nature of land under Section 4-A of the Ceiling Act on the basis of relevant khasras and such local inspection as may be necessary by adjudicating afresh the claims regarding grove, abadi and usar land and determining the entitlement of the petitioners to additional ceiling area on account of family composition and majority status of petitioner no.3 by passing a fresh reasoned speaking order after affording full opportunity of hearing to all concerned parties. The entire exercise shall be completed expeditiously, preferably within a period of six months from the date a certified copy of this order is produced before the concerned authority.

49. Till fresh determination is made, no coercive action shall be taken against the petitioners pursuant to the quashed orders. 50. No order as to costs.

ISSUE FOR CONSIDERATION

Whether delay of about five years in filing revision under Section 219 of the U.P. Land Revenue Act against the order passed under Section 28 of the U.P. Land Revenue Act could be condoned without disclosure of any cogent or convincing reason; and whether revision preferred by a person who was neither a party to the original proceedings nor had any direct legal interest is maintainable.

HEADNOTE

U.P. Land Revenue Act – ss.28, 219 – Limitation Act, 1963 – s.5 – Correction of village map – Application under Section 28 of the U.P. Land Revenue Act allowed by Additional Collector (Finance and Revenue) directing correction of plot number in village map – Respondent no.3, who was neither a party to the proceedings nor shown to have any direct interest in the matter, preferred revision under Section 219 after about five years along with application under Section 5 of the Limitation Act – Delay condoned and revision entertained by Additional Commissioner (Judicial) – Challenge in writ jurisdiction – Justification:

Held: Although Court has discretion to condone delay under Section 5 of the Limitation Act, such discretion must be exercised judiciously and upon sufficient cause being shown – In the present case, delay was inordinate, extending to about five years and the impugned order did not disclose any cogent or convincing reasons justifying such delay – Exercise of discretion therefore appeared to be arbitrary and unsustainable in law.

Revisional power, though wide, must be exercised in cases involving jurisdictional error or where public interest is demonstrably involved – Respondent no.3 was neither a party to the original proceedings nor had any direct legal interest been established – Revisional Authority failed to examine maintainability of revision at the instance of respondent no.3, rendering the order legally infirm.

Ordinarily writ jurisdiction is not exercised against interlocutory or interim orders; however, an exception arises where order suffers from jurisdictional error or there is manifest illegality or abuse of process – Entertaining a highly belated revision without proper reasons and doing so at the instance of a person lacking locus constitutes a clear jurisdictional error warranting interference – Court held that impugned order suffered from non-application of mind and delay had been condoned in a mechanical manner – Issue of locus standi had also not been properly considered – Writ petition allowed – Impugned order dated 05.06.2000 passed by Additional Commissioner (Judicial), Faizabad Division, Faizabad quashed. CASE ARISING FROM

From the order dated 05.06.2000 passed by the Additional Commissioner (Judicial), Faizabad Division, Faizabad in Revision No. 1531 under Section 219 of the U.P. Land Revenue Act condoning delay and entertaining the revision against the order dated 02.03.1995 passed under Section 28 of the U.P. Land Revenue Act.

Appearances for Parties

Advs. for the Petitioner: Narendra Gupta, I.M. Pandey, K.K. Dubey.

Advs. for the Respondents: C.S.C., Gopal Krishna Pathak, R.N. Gupta.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Irshad Ali, J.)

1. Heard Shri I.M. Pandey, learned counsel for the petitioner, learned Standing Counsel for the respondents-State and Shri Piyush Pathak, learned counsel for the private respondents.

2. By means of the present writ petition, the petitioner has prayed for issuance of a writ in the nature of Certiorari, quashing proceedings of revision and order dated 5.6.2000 as contained in Annexure Nos.1 and 2 passed by Additional Commissioner (Judicial), Faizabad in Revision No.1531 under Section 219 of the U.P. Land Revenue Act.

3. Factual matrix of the case is that the petitioner moved an application under Section 28 of the U.P. Land Revenue Act before the Collector, Sultanpur which was heard and disposed off by Additional Collector (Finance and Revenue), District Sultanpur on 2.3.1995 and it was allowed and the correction of plots number was directed to be done in place of 2506 in village map and Plot No.2507 was renumbered as 2506. The mistake was occurred on the face of the record as such the same was directed to be corrected.

As a matter of fact, opposite party no.3 Swami Dayal was neither a party nor he has got any interest in the matter nor locus standi, therefore he has got nothing to do with the case. On account of entry after a lapse of time of about 5 years, he preferred a revision before Additional Commissioner under Section 219, Faizabad Division, Faizabad against the order dated 2.3.1995 with an application for condonation of delay under Section 5 of the Limitation Act without explaining the inordinate delay in filing the revision and against this the petitioner filed an objection in writing but the same was not considered and revision was held maintainable.

Swami Dayal (opposite party no.3) filed revision at his own accord and on behalf of Gaon Sabha or State Government but in individual capacity, but the same was entertained and interim stay order was also granted and delay was condoned.

The application moved by the petitioner for exchange under Section 161 of U.P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act was allowed by Deputy Collector, Musafirkhanna, District Sultanpur on 12.6.1998 against which opposite party no.3 moved an application for setting aside so called ex parte order dated 12.6.1998 and the same was rejected on 21.12.1999.

Against the order dated 21.12.1999 and 12.6.1998, the opposite party no.3 preferred a revision with an application under Section 5 of the Limitation Act praying therein for condonation of delay, the same was condoned and the revision was held maintainable and granted interim stay order.

Against the order dated 5.6.2000 passed in revision under Section 333 of U.P.Z.A.& L.R. Act preferred by the opposite party no.3 in exchange matter by the Additional Commissioner, Faizabad Division, the petitioner preferred a writ petition no.1702 of 2000 which was admitted and interim stay orders were granted.

The Deputy Collector decided the application under Section 28 of the U.P. Land Revenue Act after obtaining the report from Tehsildar which fully justified the order of the Deputy Collector allowing the application of the petitioner moved under Section 28 of the U.P. Land Revenue Act.

4. Learned counsel for the petitioner submitted that the Additional Commissioner, Faizabad Division has acted beyond his jurisdiction in holding that the revision filed by the opposite party no.3 under Section 219 of U.P. Land Revenue Act is maintainable and there is sufficient ground for condonation of delay and condoned the delay in ex parte manner ignoring the objections of the petitioner.

5. Learned counsel for the petitioner next submitted that accepting the revision of the opposite party no.3 and granting interim relief after long interval of the order passed by the Deputy Collector without accepting the delay is itself sufficient ground for rejection of the revision and impugned orders as contained in Annexure nos.1 and 2 are perverse in law and fact both.

6. Learned counsel for the petitioner next submitted that non-taking of advise by the opposite party no.3 for a long time cannot be a ground for condonation of delay or an excuse within the meaning of Section 5 of the Limitation Act.

7. Learned counsel for the petitioner next submitted that order of the Deputy Collector allowing the correction of Map cannot be assailed in any way as in the map the error was apparent on the face of the record.

8. In support of his submissions, learned counsel for the petitioner placed upon judgment rendered in the case of Bachchu Bhai Tripathi v. Board of Revenue, U.P. at Allahabad and others reported in Neutral Citation No.-2005:AHC:2226.

9. Per contra, learned counsel for the respondents submitted that the impugned order passed by the respondents does not suffer from infirmity or illegality and is just and valid order.

10. Learned counsel for the respondents also placed reliance upon the following judgments:

"(i) Jawahar Lal Tiwari v. Saheb Lal and another (Reference No.220 of 1974-75 decided on April 19, 1979)

(ii) Smt. Phoolmati and others v. Assistant Director of Consolidation, Deoria and others (Civil Misc. Writ Petition No.Nil of 1988, decided on the 3rd November, 1989)

(iii) Smt. Leung @ Laungshri v. Deputy Director of Consolidation, Moradabad and others (Civil Misc. Petition No. Nil of 1989 decided on 28th November, 1989)

(iv) Dharam Singh v. Ravindra Singh and others reported in 2011 (113) RD 154"

11. Having heard the rival submissions of learned counsel for the parties, I perused the material and the case-law cited by the learned counsel for the parties.

12. To resolve the controversy involved in the present writ petition, operative portion of the judgment rendered in the case of Bachchu Bai Tripathi (supra) is extracted here-in-below:

"In view of the aforesaid this Court is of the view that on both counts i.e. on merits of exchange and on locus of petitioner writ petition is to fail. Exchange has not been found to be erroneous in any manner as no violation of any of the criteria or guidelines as provided in Section 161 of the U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Act has been either proved or has been pointed out. Similarly petitioner having not complained about inaction on the part of Gaon Sabha, before Collector/ Commissioner who are custodian of Gaon Sabha property and there being unanimous resolution of Gaon Sabha in favour of exchange and report of Tehsildar, taking up the matter, only by the petitioner, not by any body else of the village appears to be with some motive in the name of public loss and thus no relief on this count also can be allowed."

13. Learned counsel for the respondents also relied upon the several judgments, operative portion of which is extracted here-in-below:

Jawahar Lal Tiwari (supra):

5. The learned Additional Com-Jawahar Lal Tiwari was not a party to the proceedings and had no locus stand to file a revision application, as he was merely an informant. This view of the learned Additional Commissioner is not sound. Section 333 of the U.P. 2. no and L.R. Act reads as follows:

"Sec. 333. Power of Board to call for name. The Board may call for the record of any suit or proceeding decided by any subordinate court in which no appeal lies, or where an appeal lies but has not been preferred, and if such subordinate court appears-

(a) to have exercised a jurisdiction not vacated in it by law; or

(b) to have failed to exercise a jurisdiction so vested; or

(c) to have acted in the exercise of jurisdiction illegally or with material irregularity;

the Board may pass such order in the case as it thinks fit."

6. The power of revision is conferred under Section 333. This section does not lay down that a revision shall be filed by a party to the case. In fact it does not state at all that any party shall file a revision. On the other hand, it is the power of the Board of Revenue to call for the record of any suit or proceeding decided by any subordinate court and thereafter to pass a suitable order. Hence, the Board of Revenue cannot refuse to entertain a revision only on a plea that it has been filed by a person who is an informant and not a party to the proceedings. The material points which the Board of Revenue has to consider in a revision are, whether a sub-ordinate court has exercised a jurisdiction not vested in it by law, or has failed to exercise a jurisdiction so vested or has acted in the exercise of jurisdiction illegally or with material irregularity. Now, the present proceedings under Section 122-B were started on the report of the Supervisor Kanungo dated January 20, 1972. The Supervisor Kanungo is a responsible field official of the Revenue Department and his enquiry report cannot be lightly brushed aside. He has clearly stated in his report that Saheb Lal had encroached on the public path-way. There was nothing in his report to suggest that the encroachment had taken place before May 24, 1971. Even in the detailed order dated August 8, 1972 passed by the learned Tahsildar, there is nothing to suggest that the encroachment had taken place prior to this date. Once the learned Tahsildar has passed the final order on August 8, 1972. in proceedings under Section 122-B. the prior remedy open to the aggrieved party (Saheb Lal) was to come in revision before the Board of Revenue. It was a misuse of jurisdiction by the learned Tahsildar to review his own earlier order on October 28, 1972, setting aside the previous order. The power of review can be exercised only when there is an error apparent on the face of the record or for some other sufficient reason. There is no error apparent on the face of the record in the earlier order of the Tahsildar. There is nothing on the record to show that the encroachment took place before May 24, 1971. The impugned order of the learned Tahsildar is thus without jurisdiction and cannot be maintained.

Smt. Phoolmati (supra):

4. As regards reduction of the valuation of the petitioners plot, it would be open to the petitioners to agitate this point before the revisional court.

5. It is well known by now that any order passed against a party without hearing him is bad in law and cannot be sustained. Therefore if the contentions raised on behalf of the petitioners are correct, the impugned order would be recalled by the revisional court and the revisional court shall decide the claims of the petitioners strictly in accordance with law. It is also made clear that if the petitioners approach, the revisional court hereafter, the revisional court shall not indulge into any technicality and treat the application filed by the petitioners as a miscellaneous application and afford an opportunity to the petitioners if they were not heard earlier.

Smt. Leung @ Laungshri (supra):

This petition under Article 226 of the Constitution of India is directed against the order dated 9-6-89 granting interim stay in the revision filed before the Dy. Director of Consolidation.

2. Heard the learned counsel for the petitioner. Against the order granting interim stay the writ petition is not maintainable on the facts of the case. However, under the facts and circumstances of the case it appears just that the revision before the Dy. Director of Consolidation, Moradabad must be decided within two months..

3. The Dy. Director of Consolidation of Moradabad, is directed to decide the revision positively by 31-1-1990.

4. With these directions the petition is dismissed summarily.

Dharam Singh (Supra):

A party has a right to raise such objection before the Trial Court in order to protect his interest. But once such objections are being decided the party has to be cautious in approaching the higher forum, especially in a writ jurisdiction. The petitions filed under the supervisory writ jurisdiction, has to be sparingly used and cannot be made a forum to approach the Writ Court on a drop of a hat. In the present case, the Court finds that the petitioner is raising all sorts of objections before the Trial Court, for which, he has every right to do so, in order to protect his interest but, by taking such objection before a higher forum, the Court finds that the petitioner, namely, Dharam Singh is misusing the process of the Court. A writ jurisdiction cannot be used as a tool to delay the proceedings. The Court finds that election petition was filed in the year 2008. Two years have nearly elapsed. The term of the elected member is five years and the Court finds that a concerted effort is being made by the elected candidate to stall the proceedings and prolong the litigation. Such tactics adopted by the returned candidate which the Court can see clearly from the order sheet is deprecated. In the light of the aforesaid and in the facts and circumstances of the case, the Court finds that exemplary cost needs to be imposed upon the petitioner Dharam Singh for raising frivolous issues before this Court and in the circumstances of the case, the Court imposes a cost of Rs. 25,000/- which shall be deposited by the petitioner before the Trial Court within two weeks from today. The amount so deposited can be withdrawn by the plaintiff Ravindra Singh without furnishing any security.

14. I have examined the material available on record in the light of the case-laws reported by learned counsel for the parties.

15. On its examination, it is found that it is well settled that although the Court has discretion to condone delay under Section 5 of the Limitation Act, such discretion must be exercised judiciously and upon sufficient cause being shown.

In the present case, the delay is inordinate, extending to about five years and the impugned order does not disclose any cogent or convincing reasons justifying such delay, therefore the exercise of discretion appears to be arbitrary and unsustainable in law.

16. The submission of the respondents based on Jawahar Lal Tiwari (supra) that a revision can be entertained even at the instance of an informant cannot be accepted in absolute terms. The revisional power, though wide, must be exercised in cases involving jurisdictional error, or where public interest is demonstrably involved.

In the present case, respondent no. 3 was neither a party to the original proceedings nor has any direct legal interest been established. Thus, the Revisional Authority failed to examine the maintainability of the revision at the instance of respondent no. 3, rendering the order legally infirm.

17. Moreover, it is true that ordinarily writ jurisdiction is not exercised against interlocutory or interim orders, as held in Smt. Leung (supra). However, an exception arises where the order suffers from jurisdictional error, or there is manifest illegality or abuse of process.

In the present case, entertaining a highly belated revision without proper reasons, and doing so at the instance of a person lacking locus, constitutes a clear jurisdictional error, warranting interference.

18. Therefore, in view of the aforesaid discussion, this Court is of the considered opinion that the impugned order dated 05.06.2000 suffers from non-application of mind and the delay has been condoned in a mechanical manner. Moreover, the issue of locus standi has not been properly considered.

19. Accordingly, the writ petition succeeds and is allowed. The impugned order dated 05.06.2000 passed by the Additional Commissioner (Judicial), Faizabad Division, Faizabad is hereby quashed.

ISSUE FOR CONSIDERATION

Whether the Petitioners' recorded tenure lands could legally be clubbed with the holdings of opposite party no.4 under Section 5 of the U.P. Imposition of Ceiling on Land Holdings Act, 1961, despite separate consolidation proceedings and undisputed entries in revenue records.

HEADNOTES

Civil Law - Constitution of India - Article 226 - U.P. Imposition of Ceiling on Land Holdings Act, 1961 - Section 5(1), 10(2) - U.P. Imposition of Ceiling on Land Holdings Rules - Rule 8: - Writ Petition under Article 226 - seeking quashing of orders passed by the Prescribed Authority and order of Appellate Authority, and exclusion of petitioners' lands from clubbing with opposite party no.4. - Petitioners, recorded tenure holders - their lands were separately consolidated and wrongly declared surplus by relying solely on Lekhpal's statement, without cogent evidence - Authorities below found opposite party no. 4 to be real holder - treating petitioners as name-lenders - Petitioners relied on precedents (Pritam Singh, Som Nath Khanna, Shishu Pal Singh) to argue that burden lies on State to prove ostensible holding with substantive evidence - Respondents countered that possession and benefits were enjoyed by opposite party no.4, and concurrent findings should not be disturbed - Court finds that revenue entries carry presumption of correctness, State failed to discharge burden, reliance on Lekhpal's report alone is perverse, and Appellate Authority abdicated jurisdiction by not remanding - Ceiling Act must be strictly construed - findings based on surmises are unsustainable - Held, impugned orders vitiated and set aside - Writ petition allowed with directions issued to exclude petitioners' lands from clubbing.

1. Heard Shri Aftab Ahmad, learned counsel for the petitioners, Ms. Richa Sharma, learned counsel for the respondent no.4 and Shri Rajeev Srivastava, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel for the respondents-State.

2. By means of the present writ petition, the petitioners have prayed for issuance of a writ in the nature of Certiorari, quashing order dated 28.12.1998 passed by opposite party no.2 in Appeal No. 335/93-94 and order dated 21.4.1994 passed by opposite party no.3, as contained in Annexure nos.1 and 2 respectively to this writ petition, with further prayer to issue a writ in the nature of Mandamus, commanding upon the opposite party nos.2 and 3 not to club the land of the petitioners with other tenure holder whereby they may also be directed to exclude the same in accordance with law.

3. Factual matrix of the case is that the petitioners are recorded tenure holders of the land in question. The petitioner no.1 is the tenure holder of land comprising plots bearing Khata No.164 (Annexure No.3 to the writ petition), the petitioner no.2 is tenure holder of 02 plots (Annexure no.4 to the writ petition), petitioner no.3 is tenure holder of 01 plot (Annexure No.5 to the writ petition), petitioner no.4 is tenure holder of 06 plots (Annexure no.6 to the writ petition) and petitioner no.5 is tenure holder of 01 plot (Annexure no.7 to the writ petition).

The opposite party no.4 was issued notice u/s 10(2) U.P. Imposition of Ceiling on Land Holdings Act, 1961 and subsequently the land of the petitioners was clubbed with him and they were issued notice under Rule 8 of the Rules. The opposite party no.4 filed his objection dated 25.01.1993 stating that he had no concerned with the petitioners' land and their chaks were created separately during consolidation proceedings.

The petitioners also filed their objection before Prescribed Authority (Ceiling), Kheri stating that they are having cultivatory possession over the lands in their ownership and they have no other agricultural land in all over State of U.P. It was also stated that their lands are situated in different villagers and cannot be in any manner treated and clubbed with the land of opposite party no.4 and their chaks were created in year 1992 during consolidation proceedings.

The Prescribed Authority (Ceiling), Kheri vide his impugned judgment and order dated 30.03.1994 declared 33.913 hectare irrigated land as surplus of the opposite party no.5 by clubbing the land of the petitioners although it has been admitted in the impugned judgment and order dated 30.03.1994 that the land is recorded in the name of the petitioners in revenue record.

Being aggrieved, the petitioners and the opposite party no.4 filed two separate appeals which have been dismissed by the opposite party no.2 vide judgment and order dated 28.12.1998. However, while dismissing the appeals the opposite party no.2 has himself directed the opposite party no.3 to verify the revenue record at his level and if the land four plots which are recorded in Khata No.1615 in Khatauni 1399-1404 Fasli as Navin Parti are found to be Khalihan land of Gaon Sabha then there is no justification to declare the same as surplus land and the opposite party no.3 may modify his impugned judgment and order dated 30.03.1994 at his level.

4. Learned counsel for the petitioner submits that the opposite party no.2 while passing the impugned judgment and order dated 28.12.1998 has failed to exercise the jurisdiction vested in him and instead of setting aside the impugned judgment and order dated 30.03.1994 and remanding back the matter to the opposite party no.3 to verify the record and then pass a fresh order after giving opportunity of hearing and evidence to the petitioners and had given it in the hand of the opposite party no.3 to correct his mistake.

5. Learned counsel for the petitioner next submitted that the opposite parties had not disputed that the names of the petitioners are recorded over the lands in question as tenure holders and hence the bald statement of the Lekhpal that the opposite party no.4 is in possession over the petitioners land is totally false and misleading.

6. Learned counsel for the petitioner next submitted that in the instant case, the sole evidence relied upon by the courts below to return the finding that it is opposite party no.4 who was ostensible owner of the land in question even on and after 24.01.1971 the statement made by Lekhpal, is false, wrong and misleading.

7. In support of his submissions, learned counsel for the petitioner placed reliance upon the following judgment:

(i) Pritam Singh Vs. State of U.P. & Ors., reported in 1998(1) JCLR 329(All)

(ii) Som Nath Khanna and 3 Ors. vs State of UP through Collector Kheri and 2 Ors. (Writ C No. 3000025 of 2005),

(iii) Shishu Pal Singh and Ors. vs Prescribed Authority and Ors. (Civil Misc. Writ Petition No. 4283 of 1992)

8. On the other hand, learned counsel for the respondents submitted that the writ petition is devoid of merit and the impugned orders dated 30.03.1994 and 28.12.1998 do not suffer from any illegality or error of law and have been passed after due consideration of material on record.

9. Learned counsel for the respondents next submitted that both the Prescribed Authority and the Appellate Authority have concurrently recorded findings that Sri Sobaran Singh (Opp. Party No. 4) was the real tenure holder, and the lands recorded in the names of the petitioners were merely held ostensibly for his benefit.

10. Learned counsel for the respondents next submitted that though the lands were recorded in the names of the petitioners, in reality possession remained with Sri Sobaran Singh and benefits of the land were enjoyed by him, and the petitioners were only name-lenders.

11. Learned counsel for the respondents placed reliance upon the fact that the notices issued under Section 10(2) were received by Sri Sobaran Singh, sale receipts of agricultural produce (wheat) in the names of petitioners were in possession of Sri Sobaran Singh and produced by him, statement/report of the Lekhpal confirming possession of Sri Sobaran Singh over the land. Therefore, submission of learned counsel for the respondent is that on this basis, the authorities rightly concluded that the land was held ostensibly in the names of the petitioners.

12. Learned counsel for the respondents next submitted that Section 5 of the Ceiling Act uses the expression "land held ostensibly in the name of another person", which is distinct from "benami transaction". Therefore, clubbing under the Ceiling Act does not depend upon proving a benami transaction as defined under the 1988 Act.

13. Learned counsel for the respondents next submitted that the findings recorded are pure findings of fact, the High Court, in exercise of writ jurisdiction under Article 226, should not interfere with concurrent findings unless shown to be perverse or illegal, and no such ground has been made out by the petitioners.

14. Having heard the rival submissions of learned counsel for the parties, I have perused the material on record as well as law-report cited by learned counsel for the petitioner.

15. To resolve the controversy involved in the present writ petition, operative portion of the judgments relied upon by learned counsel for the petitioner is extracted here-in-below:

(i) Pritam Singh (supra):-

"21. Having given my anxious consideration I am clearly of the opinion that in the circumstances indicated hereinabove, in the present case, the presumption contemplated under II Explanation of Section 5 of the Ceiling Act could not be deemed to be available. As a consequence, in the absence of the presumption the onus to prove that the transfer effected on 11-8-1970 was a sham transaction or a transfer ostensible in nature where transferor had not divested himself of all interest and rights in praesentii in the transferred land and had reserved some benefits in future for himself or other person of his family had to be established by cogent evidence led by the State."

(ii) Som Nath Khanna (supra):

"19. It is further submitted that the findings are based on mere assumption, surmises and conjunctures. It is pointed out that from the perusal of the impugned order it would reveal; that the sole reason upon which the impugned order is based is that while the notices were issued, the same could not be served on any of the petitioners rather it was served on the care taker/agent of Ms. Asha Nanda and all the petitioners were living in Delhi, hence since Ms. Asha Nanda was in possession of all the land, hence they were clubbed in the hands of Ms. Asha Nanda."

32. Now relating to the submissions, relating to Writ-C No.3000025 (Ceiling) of 2005 is concerned, in light of the above noted facts and from the perusal of the impugned order, it would reveal that both the Prescribed Authority as well as Appellate Authority has proceeded on the premise that since notice was issued and received by and on behalf of Ms. Asha Nanda, hence it was found that the land relating to all the original petitioners namely, Som Nath Khanna, Madan Lal, Ms. Sangita Khanna and Sai Kiran were ostensible owner whereas possession was of Ms. Asha Nanda, Hence the same was clubbed together. 33. It would be relevant to notice that the nature of U.P Imposition of Ceiling Act, 1980 is a proprietary legislation by which land beyond the prescribed limit can be ex-proprietied by the State under the Act of 1960. In the aforesaid circumstances where the nature of the Act 1960 is such then the same has to be strictly construed. In case if the land of any record tenure holder is to be taken by the State in exercise of powers under the Act 1960, then it would be State who has to establish that the condition prescribed in the Act are clearly met, failing which it cannot be assumed that the entries or the facts as appearing on record are incorrect."

(iii) Shishu Pal Singh (supra):-

"3.The learned Counsel for the petitioners submitted that the petitioners are not included within the term □family□ defined under Section 3(7) of the Act and in order to include their holding by placing reliance on Explanation-1 of Section 5 of the Act, heavy onus lies upon the State to prove that the holding was benami, i.e., □ostensibly in the name of any other person, though it is a land held by him in his own rights□. In the case in hand, the respondents have proceeded otherwise by observing that the petitioners did not produce any evidence to show that the land was not held by petitioner's father in his own rights and, therefore, the basic approach of the respondents is clearly erroneous, illegal and contrary to law. He has also placed reliance on a single judgment of this Court in Writ Petition No. 2315 of 1977□Banshi Singh□v.□District Judge, Moradabad□decided on 3-1-1979. The learned Standing Counsel opposed the submission and supported the reasons assigned by the respondents.

8.From the order of the appellate authority, it appears that he proceeded on the assumption that once notice under Section 10(2) of the Act has been issued based on the inquiry of the Lekhpal and Tahasildar etc. alleging that the noticee held certain holding in his own rights though ostensibly in the name of other, it is the liability of the noticee to prove otherwise. This approach is absolutely misconceived and contrary to law. Explanation-1 of Section 5 is in the nature of exception inasmuch normally every tenure holder is entitled to hold a land to the extent provided in the Act, but in a case where the land actually belongs to one but has been purchased in the name of some other person, that is a kind of benami transaction, in that case only to prevent such cases so as not to frustrate the very purpose of the Act, the explanation-1 has provided that such land shall be included in the holding area of a tenure holder, but to prove the existence of such fact, the onus lies on the State heavily and not otherwise. Explanation-1 read with Section 5 is very clear that neither it purports to add nor to limit the normal meaning of the expression □tenure-holder□ as defined in Section-3, sub-section (17) of the Act and, thus, clearly shows that the land must be held by the tenure holder in his own rights. In case, the State claims that any land is held ostensibly by the tenure holder, the onus lies upon the State to establish the same. A somewhat similar issue came up for consideration before a Division Bench of this Court in□Mohammad Abbas□v.□State of U.P., 1979 AWC 23 : (1979 All LJ 326). There two major sons of the tenure holder executed sale deeds on 12-5-1971, 7-9-1971 and 8-3-1972 transferring the entire land recorded in their names. Thereafter, the tenure holder claimed two additional hectares of land on the ground that his two major sons did not hold any land on the appointed date, i.e., 8-6-1973, but the said claim was rejected by the ceiling authorities holding that the transfer of land by major sons after 24-1-1971 was liable to be ignored as they could not establish that the sale deeds were executed in good faith and for adequate consideration. Referring to Section 5, sub-section (3) of the Act, the Court held that the ceiling area to which a tenure holder is entitled is fixed with reference to the number of members in the tenure-holder's family and land held by other members of the tenure-holder's family is to be aggregated with the land held by the tenure holder. The word □family□ as defined in the Act in relation to a tenure holder, means himself or herself and his wife or her husband, as the case may be (other than a judicially separated wife or husband) minor sons and minor daughters (other than married daughters).

*9. It shows that the said definition does not include the major sons of the tenure holder. By virtue of Section 5(3), if the tenure holder is a male, land recorded in the name of his wife, provided she is not a judicially separated wife, and minor sons and minor daughters can be clubbed in determining the ceiling area which the tenure holder is entitled to retain. This shows that the land held by the major sons is not to be included in the holding of the tenure holder. The only possibility for including the said land, therefore, would have been if Explanation-1 of Section 5(1) would have been applicable, namely, if the land is ostensibly held by the tenure holder in the name of any other person, but for the said purpose, heavy burden lies upon the State to prove this fact. Considering this aspect of the matter with reference to Explanation-1 to Section 5(1) of the Act, another Division Bench of this Court in Banshi Singh (supra) wherein this Court held as under:*

“Explanation 1 of Section 5(1) clearly shows that when the State alleges that the land is ostensibly being held by a tenure-holder in the name of any other person which should be treated as the land belonging to the tenure-holder then the burden lies upon the State to prove this fact. Merely because in the notice the State has clubbed the land belonging to others under the pretext that it is being held ostensibly in the name of sons or any other person, the burden cannot be said to have been discharged. Once a notice under Section 10(2) is served upon the tenure-holder he has to show cause and while showing cause if the tenure-holder establishes by prima facie evidence by filing documents or by giving evidence that the land was being held by other persons in their own capacity, the burden shifts upon the State to establish the fact that the land is being held by the tenure-holder ostensibly in the name of others. In order to discharge this burden the State has to establish by some cogent and satisfactory evidence that the land is being held by the tenure-holder. Merely because the land has been clubbed in the land of petitioner No. 1 in the notice issued under Section 10(2) of U.P. Imposition of Ceiling on Land Holdings Act or merely because the Lekhpal gives a statement that the petitioner is in possession, is not sufficient to discharge that burden and to establish that the land was ostensibly being held by the tenure-holder in the name of others. In the present case petitioner No. 1 led evidence by showing that the names of the sons were entered in revenue records right from 1264-F and after the partition their names were entered separately on the basis of the partition decree. When the State was alleging that the land was being ostensibly held by petitioner No. 1, the State had to discharge that burden by giving cogent and satisfactory evidence. In the present case no such evidence was adduced and the mere statement of the Lekhpal was not sufficient to rebut the evidence and to hold that the land was being held ostensibly by petitioner No. 1 in the names of the sons.”

16. I have examined the material on record in the light of the judgment relied upon by learned counsel for the petitioners.

17. Upon careful examination of the entire material on record, submissions advanced by learned counsel for the parties, and the settled legal position, this Court arrives at the conclusion that it is an admitted position that the lands in question are recorded in the names of the petitioners as tenure holders in the revenue records. Such entries carry a presumption of correctness under law unless rebutted by cogent, reliable and admissible evidence reference may be made to the case of Shishupal (supra).

18. Moreover, the case set up by the State authorities for clubbing the land of the petitioners with that of opposite party no.4 is founded solely on the allegation that the holdings are ostensible or benami in nature. No documentary evidence, independent witness, or surrounding circumstances of a definite character have been brought on record to substantiate such allegation.

19. The entire findings recorded by the Prescribed Authority as well as the Appellate Authority rests upon the statement/report of the Lekhpal. It is trite law that such a report, in absence of corroborative evidence, cannot by itself discharge the heavy burden cast upon the State to establish that a transaction or holding is benami or ostensible.

20. The issue is no longer res integra. In Som Nath Khanna (supra), this Court has categorically held that findings based merely on assumptions, such as service of notice or alleged possession of one person, without substantive evidence, are vitiated being based on surmises and conjectures. It has further been held that the Ceiling Act, being expropriatory in nature, must be strictly construed and the burden lies heavily upon the State to establish that the statutory conditions for clubbing are fully satisfied.

21. Similarly, in case of Shishu Pal Singh (supra), it was held that where the State seeks to invoke Explanation to Section 5(1) of the Act by alleging that land is held ostensibly in the name of another, the burden squarely lies upon the State to prove such fact by cogent evidence. It has been further clarified that mere issuance of notice under Section 10(2) or reliance upon the report of revenue officials like the Lekhpal is not sufficient to discharge such burden.

22. The ratio of the aforesaid judgments applies fully to the present case. Here also, the authorities have proceeded on an erroneous premise that once an allegation is made in the notice, the burden shifts upon the petitioners to disprove the same. Such an approach is clearly contrary to the settled legal position.

In fact, the petitioners have discharged their initial burden by placing reliance upon revenue records showing their independent tenure holding and possession. Once such prima facie evidence was brought on record, the burden shifted upon the State to establish, by cogent and convincing evidence, that the holdings were in fact benami or ostensible. The State has failed to discharge this burden.

23. The reliance placed solely upon the statement of the Lekhpal, without any supporting evidence such as source of consideration, nature of possession, conduct of parties, or any indicia of benami transaction, renders the findings wholly perverse and legally untenable.

24. This Court also finds that the Appellate Authority has failed to exercise jurisdiction vested in it in accordance with law. Despite noticing discrepancies, it did not set aside the order of the Prescribed Authority nor remand the matter for fresh adjudication. Instead, it issued directions to the Prescribed Authority to verify and modify its own order, which is an impermissible course and amounts to abdication of appellate jurisdiction.

25. The findings recorded by the authorities below are thus vitiated on the ground of absence of cogent evidence, misapplication of burden of proof, reliance on inadmissible/insufficient material, and failure to exercise jurisdiction in accordance with law. Consequently, the impugned orders cannot be said to be legally sustainable and are liable to be set aside.

26. Considering in totalities of facts and circumstances of the case, this writ petition is allowed. Order dated 28.12.1998 passed by opposite party no.2 in Appeal No. 335/93-94 and order dated 21.4.1994 passed by opposite party no.3, as contained in Annexure nos.1 and 2 respectively to this writ petition are hereby set aside.

27. Accordingly, this writ petition succeeds and is allowed.

28. No order as to costs.

ISSUE FOR CONSIDERATION

Whether the Prescribed Authority and appellate authority erred in declaring 13.657 acres irrigated land surplus despite High Court's remand order dated 12.01.1984, oral family settlement claim, and substitution of heirs.

Whether the impugned orders suffer from violation of natural justice and non-compliance with binding directions.

HEADNOTES

Civil Law - Constitution of India - Article 226, 227 - U.P. Imposition of Ceiling on Land Holdings Act, 1961 - Section 10(2): - Writ Petition under Article 226 – seeking quashing of order passed by prescribed authority under the U.P. Imposition of Ceiling on Land Holdings Act, and order of appellate order - whereby 13.657 acres irrigated land was declared surplus - petitioners pleaded that the land was ancestral, subject to oral family settlement, heirs were not duly substituted, and the Prescribed Authority failed to comply with the High Court's remand order, directing recalculation - respondents contended that proper notices were issued, heirs substituted, and recalculation done strictly in compliance with law - Court finds that, substitution application was ignored, remand directions were not followed, and orders were passed without judicial application of mind - show violation of natural justice and disregard of binding precedents - held, both impugned orders are unsustainable, quashed - writ petition allowed - matter remanded for recalculation in terms of High Court's earlier directions – direction issued accordingly.

CASE ARISING FROM

Orders of Prescribed Authority dated 31.03.2001 and Commissioner dated 10.09.2002 affirming surplus land declaration under Ceiling Act.

APPEARANCE OF PARTIES

Counsel for Appellant(s): Shri Mohiuddin Khan,

Counsel for Respondent(s): Shri S.G. Singh, Standing Counsel - Shri Dinesh Chandra for allottee.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Irshad Ali, J.)

1. Heard Shri Mohiuddin Khan, learned counsel for the petitioners, Shri S.G. Singh, learned Standing Counsel for the respondents-State and Shri Dinesh Chandra, learned counsel for the subsequent allottee.

2. The present writ petition has been filed challenging the judgment and order dated 10.09.2002 passed by the Commissioner (opposite party no.2) whereby the appeal preferred by the petitioners has been dismissed and the order dated 31.03.2001 passed by the Prescribed Authority under the provisions of the U.P. Imposition of Ceiling on Land Holdings Act, 1960 has been affirmed.

3. The factual matrix of the case is that on 08.07.1974 a notice under Section 10(2) of UP Imposition of Ceiling on Land Holding Act was issued in which area held by the petitioner's father and grand-father of (petitioners no. 9 to 12) was shown 23.056 acres land un-irrigated equivalent to 13.697 acres irrigated land was proposed to be declared surplus and an area 29.400 acres irrigated land was held within the ceiling limits.

The petitioner's father and grand father of the petitioner no. 9 to 12 filed an objection with the allegation that the entire land is unirrigated ancestral land and 5 major sons were in existence on the date of vesting and thus they are the co-tenure holder along-with Gulam Mohammad Khan.

The Prescribed Authority (Opposite Party No. 3) dismissed the objections vide order dated 26.12.1974. Against the said order petitioner preferred an appeal in the Court of District Judge, Bahraich (Rent Appeal No. 32 of 1975) which was allowed and accordingly the order dated 26.12.1974 was set aside vide order dated 05.04.1975.

In a review application filed by OP No.1 the order dated 05.04.1975 was dismissed and the order dated 26.12.1974 was upheld vide order dated 18.09.1980.

The petitioner filed a writ petition 3026/80 in this Hon'ble Court which was allowed vide order dated 12.01.1984 with following direction : "The writ petition is allowed and the order passed by the Distt. Judge dated 5.4.1975 Annexure Ho. 5) in review application is quashed and is directed to recalculate the land in accordance with laws"

The matter was remanded back to the Prescribed Authority to recalculate the land of the petitioner in the light of order dt. 12.01.1984. The Prescribed Authority vide order dated 31.03.2001 declared 13.657 acres irrigated land equivalent to 20.485 acres unirrigated land as surplus. Against the order dated 31.03.2001 petitioners filed an appeal in the court of Commissioner, Devi Patan (OP No. 2) which was dismissed vide order dated 10.09.2002.

4. Learned counsel for the petitioners submits that the appellate Court has arbitrarily and illegally passed the judgment and order dated 10.9.2002 upholding the order dated 31.3.2001 passed by the opposite party no. 3 has been passed without giving opportunity of hearing to the petitioners and without applying its judicial mind at the time of passing the impugned order and without considering the pleas and arguments raised by the petitioners.

5. Learned counsel for the petitioners next submits that opposite party no. 3 has committed manifest error of law in not deciding the application for substitution of the legal heirs of late Abdul Wahab Khan and without substituting the sons of late Abdul Wahab and grandsons of Late Gulam Mohamaad Khan passed the impugned order dated 10.9.2002.

6. Learned counsel for the petitioner next submits that the Prescribed Authority vide order dated 26.12.1974 also rejected the plea of mutual partition cum family settlement on the ground that no documentary evidence to the said effect has been led whereas it is well settled principle that mutual partition and family settlement can be orally done and there is no necessity of reducing the same in writing.

7. Learned counsel for the petitioner submits that the Prescribed Authority passed the order dated 31.03.2001 without considering the facts of the order dated 12.1.1964 passed by this Hon'ble Court wherein it was held that the District Judge Bahraich allowed the review application under mistaken belief that the original tenure holder had four major sons and three sons are entitled to 6 hectare of land and as such even if the original tenure holder had 4 sons an area of 5.160 acre land was not reduced, the order passed by the District Judge in review application order dated 18.9.1980 thus deserves to be quashed, but the Prescribed Authority Ceiling Bahraich did not follow the remand order of the Additional Commissioner Faizabad nor the order dated 12.1.1984 passed by this Hon'ble Court and without deducting the area of land and declared 13.657 acres irrigated land equivalent to 20.485 acres unirrigated land acres as surplus.

8. Learned counsel for the petitioner next submits that according to the petitioner, out of total surplus land, 0.461 acres has been shown as grove, 0.410 acres of land has been kept out of ambit of ceiling and in remaining land petitioners are entitled to retain 7.30 hectares in terms of irrigated land plus six hectare for 4 major sons and other family members and thus remains 8.09 acres land only and after excluding 5,160 only, 2.98 acres land allegedly remains surplus.

9. In support of his submissions, learned counsel has relied upon the following judgments:

(i) Wadood Ahmad v. ADJ, 2020 SCC OnLine All 1930

(ii) Jasraj Inder Singh v. Hemraj Multanchand, (1977) 2 SCC 155

10. On the other hand, learned counsel for the respondents submits that the orders passed by the authorities under the U.P. Imposition of Ceiling on Land Holdings Act, 1960 are legal, valid and passed in accordance with law.

11. Learned counsel for the respondents next submits that a notice under Section 10(2) of the Act was issued on 08.07.1974 to the tenure holder Ghulam Mohammad Khan, indicating that he possessed 43.057 acres of land (in terms of irrigated land). After calculating the permissible ceiling limit of the tenure holder and his family members 23.056 acres (unirrigated equivalent) were proposed to be declared surplus land. Accordingly, the Prescribed Authority/Additional District Magistrate (Finance and Revenue), Bahraich passed an order dated 02.12.1974 declaring the said land as surplus.

12. Learned counsel for the respondents next submits that the tenure holder filed Appeal No. 32/75 before the District Judge, Bahraich, which was dismissed on 18.09.1980. Thereafter, a writ petition was filed before the High Court, and by order dated 12.01.1984, the High Court directed the authorities to recalculate the land in accordance with the rules. In compliance with the High Court's direction and the order dated 22.04.1998 of the appellate authority, the land was recalculated. After recalculation, the total holding of the tenure holder was found to be 43.057 acres (irrigated equivalent). After deducting the permissible ceiling limit of 29.400 acres, 13.657 acres of irrigated land (equivalent to 20.485 acres unirrigated) was found to be surplus.

13. Learned counsel for the respondents next submits that after the death of the tenure holder, notices were duly served upon his legal representatives, who were substituted in the proceedings on the basis of the Tehsildar's inquiry report dated 23.04.1999. The legal representatives appeared on 26.09.2000 and 30.09.2000, but subsequently failed to appear, due to which ex-parte proceedings were conducted.

14. Learned counsel for the respondents next submits that the Prescribed Authority passed an order dated 31.03.2001 declaring 13.657 acres of irrigated land (20.485 acres unirrigated) of Gata No. 301M as surplus. Against this order, the legal representatives filed Appeal No. 21/2001

(Nisar Ahmad Khan & Others vs State), which was dismissed on 10.09.2002, and the order of the Prescribed Authority was affirmed.

15. Learned counsel for the respondents lastly submits that the State has contended that all proceedings were conducted after issuing proper notices, providing opportunity of hearing, and strictly in compliance with the directions of the High Court and the appellate authority. Therefore, the grounds taken in the writ petition are not tenable in law, and the writ petition is liable to be dismissed.

16. Having heard the rival submissions of learned counsel for the parties, I have perused the material available on record.

17. To resolve the controversy involved in the present writ petition, operative portion of judgment relied upon by learned counsel for the petitioner is extracted herein below:

(i) Wadood Ahmad (supra):

"17. On the issue, learned counsel for respondent No. 2 further relied upon a judgment rendered in the case of Shamshad Ahmad v. Tilak Raj Bajaj; (2008) 9 SCC 1 : (AIR 2008 Supp SC 526):

"38. Though powers of a High Court under Articles 226 and 227 are very wide and extensive over all courts and Tribunals throughout the territories in relation to which it exercises jurisdiction, such powers must be exercised within the limits of law. The power is supervisory in nature. The High Court does not act as a court of appeal or a court of error. It can neither review nor reappreciate, nor reweigh the evidence upon which determination of a subordinate court or inferior Tribunal purports to be based or to correct errors of fact or even of law and to substitute its own decision for that of the inferior court or Tribunal. The powers are required to be exercised most sparingly and only in appropriate cases in order to keep the subordinate courts and inferior Tribunals within the limits of law.

18. Learned counsel for respondent No. 2 relied upon aforesaid judgments to show that the findings recorded by the trial court on erroneous impression of legal position could be interfered with and the Revisional court can re-assess and record its findings. The case of Smt. Nattho (supra) relates to the revisional jurisdiction under Section 115 of the CPC, likewise, in the case of Ram Swaroop (supra), the provisions of Section 2(2) of Act No. 13 of 1972 were considered as well as in Hemlata Tripathi and Bhoopal Singh (supra), it was held that the finding regarding non-applicability of the Act are findings of fact. The judgment of the Apex Court in Shamshad Ahmad (supra) case relates to the bona fide requirement of the landlord.

19. On a careful consideration of the entire facts and the evidence on record as well as the case laws, it is now evident that this court after setting aside the findings recorded by the respondent No. 1 vide judgment dated 06.11.2006 regarding the question of rate of rent and applicability of U.P. Act No. 13 of 1972 and the entitlement of the petitioner for the benefit under Section 20(4) of the Act, quashed the same and remanded the matter to the respondent No. 1 to decide the revision in accordance with the directions contained therein within two months.

20. The respondent No. 1 even without complying the order of remand passed by this court earlier, had again endorsed the same findings which in view of the law relied upon by counsel for the petitioner are beyond scope of the powers conferred on him under Section 25 of the Act"

(ii) Jasraj Inder Singh (supra):

"12. The remand order was undoubtedly binding on the lower court and had directed a limited enquiry and passing of a decree □ in favour of the party in whose favour the balance will be found due □. The High Court held that after the remand the learned trial Judge had no jurisdiction to look into the Bombay accounts as a whole and on account of the misapprehension of the observations of the remand order an illegal decree had been passed in favour of the plaintiff.

13. What was the misapprehension about? While directing a remand, the High Court ordered that Issue 6 should be decided by the trial court and this issue has been set out earlier by us. Naturally, the trial court took the view that the High Court, having ordered an adjudication of Issue 6, vested it with the jurisdiction to enquire into the Bombay accounts in toto and pass the decree that we have already indicated viz. a deduction of the surplus due to the defendant from the Bombay accounts from the amount due to the plaintiff from the defendant according to the Khamgaon accounts. The arithmetic is not in dispute and, indeed, while both the counsel have taken us through the evidence in the case we are satisfied that if both the Khamgaon and the Bombay accounts had to be gone into the decree passed was correct both regarding the quantum and on the issue of limitation. This we affirm because Shri Phadke had feebly pressed before us that in any case his client should be given a fresh opportunity to make out his case regarding the various entries in the Bombay khata. We are not satisfied that the defendant has not had a full say and we are therefore disinclined to accede to this request.

14. The surviving question before us is whether it was in order for the trial court to have investigated the accounts in the two shops together as if they were transactions between the same two persons or whether the remand order of the High Court at the first round had fettered the trial court's hands in doing justice in this comprehensive way. The suit is for a sum due on accounts. The parties are the same. There are two shops belonging to the same owner. The return of the income from the two shops, for income tax purposes, is a consolidated one. In short, there was only one person who owned two shops and it is wrong to construe the situation as if there were two juristic entities or personae. Secondly, the defendant, who dealt with the plaintiff in the two shops, was the same person. He had no dual characters to play. The dealings were either in one or in the other shop. They were business dealings between two businessmen, during the same period, and even inter-related, to such an extent that sometimes advances were made from one shop and realisations were made in the other shop. In short an artificial dissection of these transactions could not square up with the reality of the situation. Shri Phadke urged that one contract was one transaction and a set of contracts need not be necessarily brought up in the same action between the same parties. We consider that the true nature of the action here is a suit on accounts for the sum due on striking a balance. That itself is the cause of action. Such a suit is not unfamiliar and such a cause of action may be made up of various minor transactions. Viewed at the micro level each may be a single contract. But viewed at the micro level as a suit on accounts, it is a single cause of action. If the present action is one on accounts and if the various entries in the two shops at Khamgaon and Bombay involve transfusion of funds and goods, there is no reason why we should not accept as sound the approach made by the trial court that the entirety of accounts in the two shops should be viewed as a composite one. It reduces litigation; it promotes the final financial settlement as between the parties; it has the stamp of reality. Otherwise it would be an odd distortion to grant a decree for the plaintiff for, say Rs 10,000 on the strength of the Khamgaon accounts while he owes the defendant Rs 50,000 according to the Bombay accounts. Order 8 Rule 6 CPC deals with a specific situation and does not prevent the court, where the facts call for wider relief, from looking into the accounts in both places to do ultimate justice between the parties. Procedure is the handmaid and not the mistress of justice and, in this spirit, the trial court's adjudication cannot be faulted.

15. Be that as it may, in an appeal against the High Court's finding, the Supreme Court is not bound by what the High Court might have held in its remand order. It is true that a subordinate court is bound by the direction of the High Court. It is equally true that the same High Court, hearing the matter on a second occasion or any other court of coordinate authority hearing the matter cannot discard the earlier holding, but a finding in a remand order cannot bind a higher court when it comes up in appeal before it. This is the correct view of the law, although Shri Phadke controverted it, without reliance on any authority. Nor did Shri S.T. Desai, who asserted this proposition, which we regard as correct, cite any precedent of this Court in support. However, it transpires that in Lonankutty [Lonankutty v. Thomman, (1976) 3 SCC 528] this proposition has been affirmed. Viewed simplistically, the remand order by the High Court is a finding in an intermediate stage of the same litigation. When it came to the trial court and escalated to the High Court, it remained the same litigation. The appeal before the Supreme Court is from the suit as a whole and, therefore, the entire subject-matter is available for adjudication before us. If, on any other principle of finality statutorily conferred or on account of res judicata attracted by a decision in an allied litigation the matter is concluded, we too are bound in the Supreme Court. Otherwise, the whole lis for the first time comes to this Court and the High Court's finding at an intermediate stage does not prevent examination of the position of law by this Court. Intermediate stages of the litigation and orders passed at those stages have a provisional finality. After discussing various aspects of the matter, Chandrachud, J. speaking for the Court in Lonankutty [Lonankutty v. Thomman, (1976) 3 SCC 528] observed : (scc p. 535, para 23)

“The circumstance that the remaining judgment of the High Court was not appealed against, assuming that an appeal lay therefrom, cannot preclude the appellant from challenging the correctness of the view taken by the High Court in that judgment.”

18. Perusal of the above-extracted judgments reveals that though the powers of a High Court under Article 226 and 227 are very wide and extensive over all courts and Tribunals throughout the territories in relation to which it exercises jurisdiction, such powers must be exercised within the limits of law. The power is supervisory in nature. The High Court does not act a court of appeal or a court of error. It can neither review nor reappreciate, nor reweigh the evidence upon which determination of a subordinate court or inferior Tribunal purports to be based or to correct errors of fact or even of law and to substitute its own decision for that of the inferior court or Tribunal. The powers are required to be exercised most sparingly and only in appropriate cases in order to keep the subordinate courts and inferior Tribunals within the limits of law.

It also reveals that the remand order was undoubtedly binding on the lower court and had directed a limited enquiry and passing of a decree □in favour of the party in whose favour the balance will be found due□. It was held that after the remand the learned trial Judge had no jurisdiction to look into the matter as a whole.

19. Perusal of the record shows that an application for substitution of the legal heirs of late Abdul Wahab Khan had been filed. However, the Prescribed Authority proceeded to decide the matter without first determining the substitution application and without bringing the legal heirs on record. It is a settled principle that proceedings conducted without impleading the necessary parties, particularly legal heirs of a deceased party whose rights are directly affected, cannot be sustained in law. In this view of the matter, the order impugned is vitiated in law and has been passed without applying its judicial.

20. The orders impugned also reveal that earlier proceedings in the matter had culminated in a remand by the superior authorities. Once a remand order had been passed with specific directions, it was incumbent upon the Prescribed Authority to strictly adhere to those directions. The law in this regard has been clearly laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Jasraj Inder Singh v. Hemraj Multanchand (supra) where it has been held that the subordinate Court is bound by the remand order and cannot travel beyond its scope.

21. Similarly, this Court in the case of Wadood Ahmad (supra) reiterated that failure to comply with the directions issued in a remand order renders the subsequent order unsustainable. The judgments relied upon by the learned counsel for the petitioners are fully applicable to the facts and circumstances of the case

In the present case, it appears that the Prescribed Authority did not properly understand the directions issued in earlier proceedings nor examined the question regarding deduction of land as indicated by the superior authorities.

22. The Prescribed Authority, without considering the observation that Hon'ble Court declared 13.6547 acres irrigated land equivalent to 20.485 acres of unirrigated land as well as the observation that the initial 5.160 acres of land declared as surplus has to be reduced vide order dated 31.03.2001, passed the impugned order without application of judicial mind and is contrary to the observation made by the Hon'ble Court.

23. The Appellate Authority while affirming the order of the Prescribed Authority has also failed to examine these aspects and passed the impugned order in a cursory manner without taking into account the aspects narrated in the aforesaid paragraphs.

24. Both the Courts-Below have failed to re-calculate the land surplus in accordance with direction issued by this Hon'ble Court and hence not duly complied with the remand order, hence both the orders are liable to be set aside.

25. It is very strange that specific direction issued by the Hon'ble High Court has not been taken into account and ignored while passing the orders impugned by the Courts-Below. It is duty of the Courts Below that while passing any order by the Courts-Below, remand order passed by the Hon'ble High Court / Superior Authority must be taken into account and pass order in accordance with the direction issued by the Superior Authority.

26. Considering in totalities of facts and circumstances of the case, this Court is of the opinion that both the Courts-Below have passed the orders impugned without complying with the remand order of this Hon'ble Court dated 12.01.1984 in which a direction was specifically made to recalculate the land of the petitioners.

27. Accordingly, this writ petition succeeds and is allowed. Order dated 10.09.2002 passed by the Commissioner (opposite party no.2) and the order dated 31.03.2001 passed by the Prescribed Authority are quashed.

Issue for Consideration

(1) Effect of not holding departmental enquiry before terminating the appointment, which was obtained by using forged certificate.

Headnotes

(A) Service law – Punishment – Termination – Appointment on the post of Excise Constable – Charge of using forged documents of educational qualification was leveled – Certificate of 'Adhikari Pariksha', not equivalent to High School Examination was used – Plea of not serving the copy of document, relied upon in the impugned order, was taken – Permissibility – Writ petition was also dismissed confirming termination order – Validity challenged – Ground of not conducting departmental enquiry was taken – Permissibility: (E-1)

Held: Fraud vitiates even the most solemn act and fraud and justice never dwell together – Once the appellant had secured appointment based upon forged and fabricated certificates; other aspects of the matter including alleged equivalence of the two qualifications and examinations, become irrelevant – Termination of services of the appellant on the ground that he had obtained appointment based upon forged and fabricated documents, was in accordance with law and the learned Single Judge has not erred in dismissing the writ petition – Fraud and justice never dwell together and that in case the appointment has been obtained based upon forged and fabricated documents, services can be terminated without holding inquiry, we find absolutely no error, either of fact or law, in the order passed by the learned Single Judge. Appearances for Parties

Advs. for the Appellant: Siddharth Khare, Parashar Pandey.

Advs. for the Respondents: Ankit Gaur (S.C.).

(Delivered by Hon'ble Kshitij Shailendra, J.)

1. Heard Shri Siddharth Khare, learned counsel for the appellants and Shri Ankit Gaur, learned Standing Counsel for the respondents in all the appeals.

2. Whereas Special Appeal No.1632 of 2013 arises out of order dated 03.10.2013 passed by the learned Single Judge in Writ A No.54819 of 2013 (Javed Khan v. State of U.P. and 5 others), Special Appeal No.1634 of 2013 raises challenge to an identical order passed in Writ A No. 54821 of 2013 (Nazeeb Ali v. State of U.P. and 4 others) and Special Appeal No.388 of 2014 arises out of order dated 25.02.2014 passed in Writ A No.3689 of 2014 (Mustaq Ullaha v. State of U.P. and others).

3. Since controversy involved in all these appeals is identical, they are being decided by this common judgment. For the sake of convenience, Special Appeal No.1632 of 2013 is being treated as the leading one, however, slightly distinctive features of the remaining two special appeals shall be taken note of by us.

4. By the order dated 03.10.2013, learned Single Judge has dismissed Writ A No. 54819 of 2013 upholding the order dated 16.09.2013 passed by Deputy Commissioner Excise, Agra, whereby the appellant's representation against termination of his services had been rejected on the ground that the documents submitted by him pertaining to his educational qualifications had been found forged and fictitious in the inquiry conducted by the respondents.

5. Brief facts are that the appellant, after undergoing the process of selection, was appointed as Excise Constable by appointment order dated 14.10.2010 and he joined his duties. On 30/31.05.2013, the Deputy Commissioner Excise, Agra terminated his services against which he preferred a representation before the Deputy Commissioner Excise, Agra Region, Agra and also filed Writ Petition No.36360 of 2013 (Javed Khan v. State of U.P. and 2 others). The Writ Petition was disposed of by order dated 09.07.2013 with liberty to the appellant to approach the competent authority with supportive documents with a further direction to the authority to take a reasoned decision.

6. Pursuant to the liberty granted by this Court, the appellant preferred another representation dated 22.07.2013 before the authority annexing therewith 87 documents. All the representations were rejected by order dated 16.09.2013, against which the writ petition giving rise to the present appeal was filed and dismissed.

7. The authority has, after providing opportunity of hearing to the petitioner-appellant and after considering the explanation submitted by him and based upon the documents, found the certificate of □Adhikari Pariksha□ obtained by the petitioner in the year 2008 from Gurukul Vishwavidyalaya, Vrindavan, Mathura (in short □the University□) to be forged, fabricated and invalid. It was further observed that the □Adhikari Pariksha□ allegedly conducted by the said University was not equivalent to High School Examination conducted by the Board of Secondary Education and, consequently, termination of appellant was not interfered with.

8. Learned counsel for the appellant has made submissions that the order dated 16.09.2013 was based upon the documents, copies whereof were not served upon him and, therefore, the order cannot be sustained. On merits, it is contended that the appellant had produced marksheet and certificate of □Adhikari Pariksha□ (High School)-2008 issued by the University. Learned counsel also referred the record of marks obtained by various students including the appellant and submission has been made that once there was no dispute regarding validity of □Adhikari Pariksha□ (High School) conducted by the said University up to the year 2008, but it was declared invalid only after 2008, as held by this Court in Akanksha Gautam v. State of U.P. and others : 2012 (6) ADJ 107, declaring the appellant's marksheet and certificate, which pertained to year 2008, as invalid, was per se illegal.

9. It is further submitted that the view taken by the authority while rejecting the representation that the □Adhikari Pariksha□ allegedly conducted by the said University was not equivalent to High School Examination conducted by the U.P. Board of Secondary Education, is in teeth of judgment of Full Bench of this Court in Dhanpal and others v. State of U.P. and others : 2013 (8) ADJ 723 (FB) and, for this reason also, the order impugned in the writ petition was liable to be set aside. Reliance has also been placed upon judgment of this Court in Riazul Hasan v. State of U.P. and others : 2024 (6) ALJ 542.

10. It is lastly submitted that once the appellant was duly appointed on the post of Excise Constable, termination of his services being stigmatic, could not be resorted to without holding a full fledged departmental inquiry.

11. Per contra, learned Standing Counsel has made submissions that it is not a case where appellant was not afforded any opportunity of hearing, rather the order dated 16.09.2013 itself indicates that not only his explanation was considered but also he was personally heard and the order was passed based upon inquiry conducted by the department, wherein it stood reflected that no academic activities were held in the Institution wherefrom the appellant had obtained certificate, for the period w.e.f. 2008 onwards nor any examinations had been conducted during the said period. Further submission has been made that during inquiry, no record of even recognition allegedly granted to B.L. Vidya Mandir, Devnagar, Jheel ka Purva, District-Banda on 16.04.2005 had been found and, therefore, conclusion drawn by the authority that documents produced by the appellant were forged and fabricated, cannot be faulted.

12. It is further submitted that fraud vitiates everything and once it has been found that the appellant had obtained appointment based upon forged and fabricated documents, no departmental inquiry was required. Reliance has been placed on judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court in R. Vishwantha Pillai v. State of Kerala and others : (2004) 2 SCC 105.

13. We have considered the submissions made and have perused the material available on record.

14. The order dated 16.09.2013, impugned in the writ petition was passed in furtherance of the order passed by this Court in Writ A No.36360 of 2013, wherein this Court had directed the authority to take a reasoned decision on appellant approaching the authority. The order dated 16.09.2013 clearly indicates that the appellant was granted opportunity to offer his explanation and for personal hearing, 27.06.2013 was fixed, on which date the appellant filed various documents.

15. The authority has observed that before the documents presented by the appellant could be verified, he preferred writ petition before the High Court and during the course of verification of the marksheet of the appellant pertaining to the examinations of 2008, it stood revealed that all the evidences produced by the appellant had not been issued by or received from the University. The order further indicates that no Registrar was appointed in the Institution during the relevant period of time, however, the letter pad and even seal of Registrar had been utilized for the purposes of procuring documents.

16. It has further been recorded that the officer had personally contacted the Arya Pratinidhi Sabha, U.P., 5- Meerabai Road, Lucknow and, on inquiry, it was found that no head of the said Sabha was appointed. In relation to the same, letter dated 16.04.2009 issued by Justice S.C. Verma, retired Judge of this Court, who was acting as receiver in the Arya Pratinidhi Sabha, was relied on, wherein it was indicated that on account of managerial dispute in relation to the Society, no academic activities had been conducted in the Institution or in any related Colleges and no examinations had been held.

17. The order further indicates that a document of recognition to the B.L. Vidya Mandir, Dev Nagar, Jheel ka Purva, District Banda, allegedly dated 16.04.2005 had been produced, however, on query, the Vice Chancellor of the University had informed that the documents did not pertain to the Institution nor was there any evidence to demonstrate that the same were issued from the Institution and, consequently, the documents produced were found to be forged.

18. After recording various findings regarding production of forged and fabricated documents by the appellant, the authority has concluded that the appellant had procured appointment on the post of Excise Constable based upon forged and fabricated documents and, further, □Adhikari Pariksha□ allegedly conducted by the said University was not equivalent to High School Examination conducted by the Board of Secondary Education.

19. As far as the documents referred to by learned counsel for the appellant to demonstrate as if the marksheet and certificate of □Adhikari Pariksha□ held in 2008 were issued to the appellant and that the record of the University reflects his participation in the examinations held, along with other candidates, we could have elaborated the implication of the contents of those documents, however, once we are satisfied that the documents have already been found as forged and fabricated pursuant to extensive inquiry held by the authorities which we are not inclined to discard merely on the plea that copies of the documents relied upon were not served upon the appellant, we need not delve into the contents of the certificates or other documents.

20. The relied upon documents form part of the counter affidavit filed on behalf of the respondents and the Court deems it appropriate to refer to one of such documents, being letter dated 16.04.2009 issued by (Retired) Justice S.C. Verma, indicating issuance of fabricated certificate. The said letter reads as under:-

21. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in Jainendra Singh v. State of U.P. : (2012) 8 SCC 748 held that fraudulently obtained orders of appointment could be legitimately treated as voidable at the option of the employer or could be recalled by the employer and, in such cases, merely because the employee has continued in service for a number of years on the basis of such fraudulently obtained employment, he cannot get any equity in his favour or any estoppel against the employer.

22. The Hon'ble Supreme Court, in the case of R. Vishwantha Pillai (supra), has laid down that where an appointment in service had been acquired by practising fraud or deceit, such appointment is no appointment in law and in such a situation, Article 311 of the Constitution of India is not attracted. The Hon'ble Supreme Court reiterated the view taken by the Division Bench of Patna High Court in Ishwar Dayal Sah v. State of Bihar : 1987 Lab. I.C. 390 and observed that in that case, the employee had obtained appointment by producing a caste certificate indicating that he belonged to a Scheduled Caste community which, later on, was found to be false and the appointment was cancelled. It was contended by the employee before the Patna High Court that the cancellation of appointment amounted to removal from service within the meaning of Article 311 of the Constitution and, therefore, void and that he could not be terminated from service without holding departmental inquiry as provided under the Rules. Dealing with the above contention, the High Court had held that if the very appointment to the civil posts is vitiated by fraud, forgery or crime or illegality, it would necessarily follow that no constitutional rights under Article 311 of the Constitution can possibly flow and if the very entry or the crossing of threshold into the area of the civil service of the State or the Union is put in issue and door is barred against him, the cloak of protection under Article 311 is not attracted.

23. On similar lines, the Hon'ble Supreme Court, in Indian Oil Corporation Ltd. v. Rajendra D. Harmalkar : 2022 SCC OnLine SC 486, has held that the production of a fake document in a selection process is sufficient to invoke action, notwithstanding the intention of the applicant. Similarly, in Union of India and others v. M. Bhaskaran : AIR 1996 SC 686, it has been held that when an appointment is procured on the basis of bogus and forged causal labourer service card, it would amount to misrepresentation and fraud on the employer. Therefore, it would create no equity in favour of the workman or any estoppel against the employer and for such misconduct, termination would be justified without any domestic inquiry.

24. It is well settled that fraud vitiates even the most solemn act and fraud and justice never dwell together. Reference, in this regard, can be made to judgments of Hon'ble Supreme Court in Ram Chandra Singh v. Savitri Devi and others : (2003) 8 SCC 319, The State of Andhra Pradesh & Anr. v. T. Suryachandra Rao : JT 2005 (6) SC 391, A.V. Papayya Sastry & others v. Government of A.P. & Ors. : JT 2007 (4) SC 186 and Ganpatbhai Mahijibhai Solanki v. State of Gujarat & others : JT 2008 (3) SC 452.

25. As far as arguments based upon the Full Bench decision of this Court in the case of Dhanpal (supra) qua equivalence of □Adhikari Pariksha□ with High School examination conducted by the U.P. Board of Secondary Education, we need not go into the said aspect of the matter as we are satisfied that once the appellant had secured appointment based upon forged and fabricated certificates; other aspects of the matter including alleged equivalence of the two qualifications and examinations, become irrelevant.

26. For all the aforesaid reasons, we are not inclined to interfere with the order passed by the learned Single Judge.

27. The appeal has no merit and the same is, accordingly, dismissed.

Special Appeal No.1634 of 2013

28. This special appeal is directed against order dated 03.10.2013 whereby the learned Single Judge has dismissed Writ A No. 54821 of 2013 (Nazeeb Ali v. State of U.P. and 4 others).

29. The facts of the present case are identical to the one involved in Special Appeal No.1632 of 2013 as also submitted by learned counsel for the appellant. Therefore, we are of the view that termination of services of the appellant on the ground that he had obtained appointment based upon forged and fabricated documents, was in accordance with law and the learned Single Judge has not erred in dismissing the writ petition.

30. For the reasons stated in the order deciding Special Appeal No.1632 of 2013, the present appeal also stands dismissed.

31. This appeal has been filed challenging the order dated 25.02.2014 whereby learned Single Judge has dismissed Writ A No.3689 of 2014 (Mustaq Ullah v. State of U.P. and 2 others).

32. The writ petition was filed challenging the order dated 26.12.2013 whereby the Deputy Excise Commissioner, Mirzapur, Region Mirzapur had terminated services of the appellant on identical grounds of forged certificates and marksheets having been utilized for the purposes of obtaining appointment on the post of Excise Constable.

33. Present appeal was filed subsequent to filing of Special Appeals No.1632 of 2013 and 1634 of 2013 and reliance was placed on interim orders dated 30.10.2013 passed therein. Apparently, the cause agitated in the present appeal is identical to the one involved in two other special appeals and once no distinctive features are apparent on the face of record as far as obtaining appointment based upon the documents issued from the University etc., as already discussed in our order passed in Special Appeal No.1632 of 2013, we are inclined to take same view in the present appeal also.

34. We may, however, mention that though in other two appeals, the writ petitions were dismissed by learned Single Judge by one page order, the order impugned in the present appeal is quite detailed one wherein the learned Single Judge, after discussing the documents on record, has recorded findings regarding production of forged certificates and other documents and, after referring to various judgments of Hon'ble Supreme Court on the proposition that fraud and justice never dwell together and that in case the appointment has been obtained based upon forged and fabricated documents, services can be terminated without holding inquiry, we find absolutely no error, either of fact or law, in the order passed by the learned Single Judge.

35. Consequently, the present appeal also fails and is, accordingly, dismissed.

Issue for Consideration

Whether the victim and his father have corroborated the date, time, place, and manner of offence and have proved the case beyond reasonable doubt, but learned Trial Court, discarding the evidence of best witness/victim, has recorded unreasonable finding and same is required to be interfered by this court by granting leave to appeal.

Head Notes

The Indian Penal Code, 1860- Sections 377, 504 & 506; The Protection of Children from Sexual Offences Act, 2012- Sections 3 & 4; The Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973-Section 378(3)- That offence was said to have been committed on 09.04.2020 and medical was conducted on 16.04.2020, and therefore, there may not be a chance of having found any injury on his person by that time after a gap of almost seven days. But the fact remains that it was the burden of the prosecution to explain as to why the First Information Report was not registered immediately after commission of the offence and same is best known to the complainant- Only fact established on record is that the prosecution version is not supported by the medical evidence, which may be best piece of evidence to show the complicity of accused in commission of offence- There is no dispute that the samples preserved by PW4 were not sent for DNA testing. Therefore, the medical evidence is not in support of the version of prosecution and the applicants have failed to point out any prima facie fault in the appreciation of medical evidence by the learned Trial Court

Defence from the very inception that complainant was tenant of accused's father and was under the obligation to pay the outstanding arrears of electricity charges pending against him, due to which there was heated exchange of words between the complainant and father of accused and in order to avoid the liability of payment, present malicious prosecution has been launched against him-The elder brother of the victim has been shown as eyewitness of the occurrence, but he was not examined as witness by the prosecution- Victim has blown hot and cold in same breath and light of admission made by PW1, even if at a time it appeared that he corroborated the story of prosecution, possibility cannot be ruled out that the child has been tutored to depose against the accused and he is susceptible to be won over due to his tender age. If for the sake of argument, it is assumed that some offence has been committed with the victim, then also finding recorded by learned Trial Court that this child deposed at different places differently and observed him not to be reliable witness, has guaranteed the presumption of innocence of the accused, which cannot be taken away without any concrete and plausible evidence.

Held- Nothing adverse has been brought on record by the prosecution to hilt which may leave the tinge of doubt-Memorandum of appeal does not survive and stands dismissed. (E-15)

Case Arising From

Prayer in this instant criminal miscellaneous application filed by state under Section 378(3) of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973, is to seek leave to appeal against the impugned order and judgement of acquittal of sole respondent passed by the learned Trial Court in Sessions Trial No. 50/2020, arising out of Case Crime Number 293/2020, under Sections 377, 504, 506 of Indian Penal Code, 1860 and Section 3/4 of Protection of Children from Sexual Offences Act, 2012, in Police Station, Kotwali Nagar, District, Faizabad

Appearances for Parties

Counsel for Applicant(s) : G.A.

Counsel for Opposite Party(s) :

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Babita Rani, J.)

1. Heard learned Additional Government Advocate for the State-applicant.

2. Prayer in this instant criminal miscellaneous application filed by state under Section 378(3) of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (hereinafter referred to as 'CrPC' for brevity), is to seek leave to appeal against the impugned order and judgement of acquittal of sole respondent (hereinafter referred to as 'accused') passed by the learned Trial Court in Sessions Trial No. 50/2020, arising out of Case Crime Number 293/2020, under Sections 377, 504, 506 of Indian Penal Code, 1860 (hereinafter referred to as 'IPC' for brevity) and Section 3/4 of Protection of Children from Sexual Offences Act, 2012 (hereinafter referred to as 'POCSO' for brevity), in Police Station, Kotwali Nagar, District, Faizabad.

3. Brief facts of the case relevant for the purpose of disposal of this application are that on 15.04.2020 at about 20:58 hours, the First Information Report bearing number 293/2020 was registered against the accused in Police Station, Kotwali Nagar, Ayodhya, under Sections 377/504/506 of IPC and Section 3/4 of POCSO, on the basis of the written tehrir Ex.Ka.1 submitted by the informant, Vinay Kumar, with the averments that he, along with his family, has been residing in the tenanted premises and on 09.04.2020, at about 10:00 AM, when his elder son Matadin reached on the roof, he saw that accused Shubham was committing unnatural offence with his minor son 'X' aged about seven years. On being confronted by Matadin, the accused started abusing Matadin and threatened to eliminate him. PW5, constable Vijay Kumar Pandey, registered the First Information Report against the accused and same was entered in the general diary of the police station.

4. Investigation was thereafter carried out by PW6 sub- Inspector Vijayant Mishra. During investigation, he recorded the statement of informant, victim and other factual witnesses. The medical examination of the victim was conducted and statement of the concerned doctor was also recorded. After collecting the entire material, finding prima facie incriminating evidence against the accused and completing the entire formalities, the charge-sheet under Sections 377/504/506 of IPC and Section □ of POCSO, was filed before the court concerned. Learned Trial Court, taking cognizance of the offences, committed the case to the Court of Sessions for the trial. Learned Trial Court framed the charges against the accused in the aforementioned sections, to which the accused pleaded not guilty and claimed trial.

5. The prosecution opened its case and examined PW1 informant Vinay Kumar, PW2 victim of the case, PW3 Qasim Mehendi, principal of the School who produced and proved the age of victim at the time of occurrence, as well as PW4 Dr Dharmendra Rao. Apart from above factual witnesses, PW5, constable Vijay Kumar Pandey and sub-inspector, Vijayant Mishra, investigating officer PW6, were also examined as prosecution witnesses.

6. After conclusion of prosecution evidence, the statement of accused was recorded under Section 313 of CrPC, in which the accused stated that he has been falsely implicated due to the non-payment of rent and electricity bill arrears and dispute between the informant and his father. In order to avoid the payment of outstanding rent arrears, a false story had been cooked up against him only to pressurise him and extort money. The accused was given opportunity to adduce the evidence oral as well as documentary in support of his innocence, but accused chose not to lead any evidence, and consequently, his opportunity was closed.

7. Learned Trial Court, after hearing the arguments advanced by both the parties and considering the facts, circumstances and evidence available on record, passed the impugned order and judgement acquitting the accused from the charges levelled against him, which the state intends to challenge in appeal, and hence the instant leave to appeal has been filed.

8. While pressing the application under Section 378(3) of CrPC, learned Additional Government Advocate submitted that acquittal of accused vide impugned order and judgement, carries substantial irregularity and illegality and the same has been passed ignoring the evidence available on the record. Further contention is that the impugned judgement leads to patent miscarriage of justice and the accused has been granted benefit of doubt considering the trivial ground of delayed FIR, non-examination of independent witness and minor discrepancies arising out of statements of PW1 and PW2 and heavily relying upon the defence of the accused, which is erroneous and tantamount to grave miscarriage of justice with the victim and his family. Further contention is that at the time of occurrence, the age of victim was of seven years and accused, while taking advantage of his tender age and non-opposition, committed the grave and serious offence which certainly would have been imprinted in the mind and memory of the victim forever. Such type of offences against the children not only ruins their future but also weakens the society. In the instant case, the victim and his father have corroborated the date, time, place, and manner of offence and have proved the case beyond reasonable doubt, but learned Trial Court, discarding the evidence of best witness/victim, has recorded unreasonable finding and same is required to be interfered by this court by granting leave to appeal. Concluding the arguments, it has been stated that the prosecution has proved its case beyond reasonable doubt in chapter and verse, and therefore, there are good chances of success in appeal and hence, the instant application deserves to be allowed.

9. We have heard the arguments of the state and perused the record minutely and meticulously.

10. Before advertng to the facts of the instant case, it may be beneficial to refer to the following pronouncements which deal with the scope of interference with a judgment of acquittal at the appellate stage.

11. In Ramesh and Others v. State of Haryana; (2017) 1 SCC 529, the Hon'ble Supreme Court made the following observations:

"24. We have duly appreciated the submissions advanced by counsel for the parties on both sides. No doubt, the High Court was dealing with the appeal against the judgment of the trial court which had acquitted the appellants herein. The scope of interference in an appeal against acquittal is undoubtedly narrower than the scope of appeal against conviction. Section 378 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 confers upon the State a right to prefer an appeal to the High Court against the order of acquittal. At the same time, sub-section (3) thereof mandates that such an appeal is not to be entertained except with the leave of the High Court. Thus, before an appeal is entertained on merits, leave of the High Court is to be obtained which means that normally judgment of acquittal of the trial court is attached a definite value which is not to be ignored by the High Court. In other words, presumption of innocence in favour of an accused gets further fortified or reinforced by an order of acquittal. At the same time, while exercising its appellate power, the High Court is empowered to reappreciate, review and reconsider the evidence before it. However, this exercise is to be undertaken in order to come to an independent conclusion and unless there are substantial and compelling reasons or very strong reasons to differ from the findings of acquittal recorded by the trial court, the High Court, as an appellate court in an appeal against the acquittal, is not supposed to substitute its findings in case the findings recorded by the trial court are equally plausible.

26. This legal position is reiterated in Govindaraju v. State (2012) 4 SCC 722 and the following passage therefrom needs to be extracted: (SCC p. 732, paras 12-13)

12. The legislature in its wisdom, unlike an appeal by an accused in the case of conviction, introduced the concept of leave to appeal in terms of Section 378 CrPC. This is an indication that appeal from acquittal is placed on a somewhat different footing than a normal appeal. But once leave is granted, then there is hardly any difference between a normal appeal and an appeal against acquittal. The concept of leave to appeal under Section 378 CrPC has been introduced as an additional stage between the order of acquittal and consideration of the judgment by the appellate court on merits as in the case of a regular appeal. Sub-section (3) of Section 378 clearly provides that no appeal to the High Court under sub-section (1) or (2) shall be entertained except with the leave of the High Court. This legislative intent of attaching a definite value to the judgment of acquittal cannot be ignored by the courts.

13. Under the scheme of CrPC, acquittal confers rights on an accused that of a free citizen. A benefit that has accrued to an accused by the judgment of acquittal can be taken away and he can be convicted on appeal, only when the judgment of the trial court is perverse on facts or law. Upon examination of the evidence before it, the appellate court should be fully convinced that the findings returned by the trial court are really erroneous and contrary to the settled principles of criminal law."

12. In Jafarudheen vs State Of Kerala, (2022) 8 SCC 440, the Hon'ble Supreme Court made the following observations:

"25. While dealing with an appeal against acquittal by invoking Section 378 of the Cr.PC, the Appellate Court has to consider whether the Trial Court's view can be termed as a possible one, particularly when evidence on record has been analyzed. The reason is that an order of acquittal adds up to the presumption of innocence in favour of the accused. Thus, the Appellate Court has to be relatively slow in reversing the order of the Trial Court rendering acquittal. Therefore, the presumption in favour of the accused does not get weakened but only strengthened. Such a double presumption that enures in favour of the accused has to be disturbed only by thorough scrutiny on the accepted legal parameters."

13. In Rajpal Singh v. Rajveer & Others; 2025 SCC OnLine SC 2823, the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that even where the appellate court re-appreciates the evidence while dealing with a judgment and order of acquittal, the innocence attributed to the accused acquitted from the charges of offences would be a weighty rebuttable factor. The relevant paragraph 9.2 is extracted here-in-below:

"9.2 It is a well-settled principle enunciated by series of judgments of this Court that there must exist "substantial and compelling reasons" to upset the acquittal. Once the court acquits the accused, the presumption of innocence is reinforced. Thereafter, the interference by the appellate court would be minimal and has to be guided by strong and cogent reasons. Reversal of acquittal should not be a matter of course just because the other view is considered to be possible by the appellate court. Even when the appellate court re-appreciates the evidence while dealing with the judgment and order of acquittal, the innocence attributed to the accused acquitted from the charges of offences would be a weighty rebuttable factor."

14. In Manoj Rameshlal Chhabriya v. Mahesh Prakash Ahuja & Another; 2025 SCC OnLine SC 451 the Hon'ble Supreme Court made the following observations regarding the parameters that must be considered while dealing with the applications seeking leave to appeal under Section 378 of CrPC:

"7. The question as to how the application for grant of leave to appeal filed under Section 378(3) of the Cr.P.C. should be decided by the High Court and what are the parameters which the High Court should keep in mind remains no longer res integra. This issue was examined by this Court in State of Maharashtra v. Sujay Mangesh Poyarekar reported in (2008) 9 SCC 475. C.K. Thakker, J. speaking for the Bench held in paras 19, 20, 21 and 24 respectively as under:

"19. Now, Section 378 of the Code provides for filing of appeal by the State in case of acquittal. Sub-section (3) declares that no appeal "shall be entertained except with the leave of the High Court". It is, therefore, necessary for the State where it is aggrieved by an order of acquittal recorded by a Court of Session to file an application for leave to appeal as required by subsection (3) of Section 378 of the Code. It is also true that an appeal can be registered and heard on merits by the High Court only after the High Court grants leave by allowing the application filed under sub-section (3) of Section 378 of the Code.

20. In our opinion, however, in deciding the question whether requisite leave should or should not be granted, the High Court must apply its mind, consider whether a prima facie case has been made out or arguable points have been raised and not whether the order of acquittal would or would not be set aside.

21. It cannot be laid down as an abstract proposition of law of universal application that each and every petition seeking leave to prefer an appeal against an order of acquittal recorded by a trial court must be allowed by the appellate court and every appeal must be admitted and decided on merits. But it also cannot be overlooked that at that stage, the court would not enter into minute details of the prosecution evidence and refuse leave observing that the judgment of acquittal recorded by the trial court could not be said to be "perverse" and, hence, no leave should be granted.

24. We may hasten to clarify that we may not be understood to have laid down an inviolable rule that no leave should be refused by the appellate court against an order of acquittal recorded by the trial court. We only state that in such cases, the appellate court must consider the relevant material, sworn testimonies of prosecution witnesses and record reasons why leave sought by the State should not be granted and the order of acquittal recorded by the trial court should not be disturbed. Where there is application of mind by the appellate court and reasons (may be in brief) in support of such view are recorded, the order of the court may not be said to be illegal or objectionable. At the same time, however, if arguable points have been raised, if the material on record discloses deeper scrutiny and reappraisal, review or reconsideration of evidence, the appellate court must grant leave as sought and decide the appeal on merits. In the case on hand, the High Court, with respect, did neither. In the opinion of the High Court, the case did not require grant of leave. But it also failed to record reasons for refusal of such leave.

12. We are of the view that at the stage of considering grant of leave under sub-section (3) of Section 378 of the Cr.P.C., a prima facie case should be looked into by the High Court, of course, not ignoring the materials on record."

15. In the wake of above case laws and bare perusal of Section 378(3) of CrPC, it is needless to say that Section 378(3) casts a restriction that has been put on the entertainment of appeal by imposing a condition that leave of the High Court should first be obtained before any such appeal is entertained and before granting the leave, High Court is permitted to review and reconsider the evidence placed on record by the prosecution and while refusing leave to appeal, it shall indicate the reasons for the refusal. Generally, the order of acquittal passed by the court shall not be interfered with because the presumption of innocence of accused is further strengthened by acquittal and it is to be interfered only when there are compelling and substantial reasons for doing so. Further, if the evaluation and appreciation of evidence by the Trial Court does not suffer from illegality, manifest error or perversity and the main grounds on which it has based its finding is reasonable and plausible, the High Court should not disturb the order of acquittal even if another view is possible. The High Court has to determine whether a prima facie case is made out warranting interference in the order of acquittal or not and only where any prima facie arguable points are made out, the leave to appeal must be granted.

16. Now, we have to see the evidence on record and whether the findings made by learned trial court bears any error or perversity while passing the impugned order of acquittal. Here, the subjected offence was said to have been committed on 09.04.2020 between 10 AM-11 AM on the terrace, the time when the complainant Vinay Kumar was out of his house for the purpose of selling the vegetables. It has been alleged that as his elder son reached on terrace searching for his younger brother 'X' (identity not disclosed being victim of case), he found the accused committing unnatural offence with the minor son of complainant, aged about seven years. On being opposed the same by his elder son, the accused ran away extending him filthy abuses and threats to life. As per the prosecution, the entire incident was narrated to the complainant by his both sons and on having the information of the incident, PW1 submitted the written complaint before the police concerned and accordingly, the First Information Report was registered against the accused on 15.04.2020. After registration of First Information Report, the investigating officer got conducted the medico-legal examination of the victim and obtained the report and recorded the statement of doctor concerned. In order to prove its version, prosecution examined only two factual witnesses i.e. PW1 and PW2.

17. Admittedly, PW1 is only the complainant and hearsay-witness and has no personal knowledge about the incident, therefore, his evidence in the scenario of present case carries negligible value. PW3 is the principal of the school, who has proved the age of the victim as seven years at the time of occurrence which is uncontroverted and unchallenged. PW4 Dr. Dharmendra Rao, has proved the medico legal examination report Ex.Ka.4 of the victim stating therein that while examining the victim on 16.04.2020, he found no injuries on the person of the victim and preserved his perianal, anal, oral swab in two slides and blood sample as well as nail clippings for the purpose of DNA and handed over the same to the police concerned. From the perusal of statement of PW4, it has been established on record that no injury was found on the person of victim and the version of prosecution has not been supported by the medical evidence.

18. Needless to say that offence was said to have been committed on 09.04.2020 and medical was conducted on 16.04.2020, and therefore, there may not be a chance of having found any injury on his person by that time after a gap of almost seven days. But the fact remains that it was the burden of the prosecution to explain as to why the First Information Report was not registered immediately after commission of the offence and same is best known to the complainant. In the attending circumstances, only fact established on record is that the prosecution version is not supported by the medical evidence, which may be best piece of evidence to show the complicity of accused in commission of offence. Further, there is no dispute that the samples preserved by PW4 were not sent for DNA testing. Therefore, the medical evidence is not in support of the version of prosecution and the applicants have failed to point out any prima facie fault in the appreciation of medical evidence by the learned Trial Court.

19. Accused has placed his defence from the very inception that complainant was tenant of his father and was under the obligation to pay the outstanding arrears of electricity charges pending against him, due to which there was heated exchange of words between the complainant and father of accused and in order to avoid the liability of payment, present malicious prosecution has been launched against him. PW1 and PW2 both factual witnesses have admitted the fact of their being tenant of father of accused since the year of 2014. PW1 categorically admitted that on 13.04.2020, he left the rented premises of accused and shifted to another rented accommodation on 15.04.2020 and after shifting, he filed the First Information Report against the accused on the same day. It is not the case of complainant that he could not get the FIR lodged against the accused due to the reason of his being tenant and was under fear of eviction and therefore after leaving the premises only, he could dare to lodge the First Information Report against the accused, or due to the commission of offence by the accused, he was forced to vacate the premises. The conjoint perusal of facts and circumstances and conduct of complainant speaks in volume against the complainant and his version.

20. Another circumstance which drew our immediate attention is that in the First Information Report, the elder brother of the victim has been shown as eyewitness of the occurrence, but he was not examined as witness by the prosecution. He may be the witness who could have corroborated the testimony of victim PW2, against the accused regarding commission of an offence, but the prosecution failed to examine him and best reason of the same may be known to him only. Law is well settled that where the prosecution has the best evidence available with it, but despite that the best evidence has not been produced or withheld, then the court may draw adverse inference against the prosecution.

21. Now we will examine the credibility and reliability of the sole evidence of the victim of the case in hand, PW1, aged about seven years at the time of occurrence. Learned Trial Court before permitting him to depose as witness examined his capacity and maturity to understand the question and rational answering of same and after being satisfied that the child is capable to understand and answer rationally, permitted him to testify. As a PW1, victim corroborated the allegations made in First Information Report in his chief examination. During the cross examination, it was stated by this witness that at the time of occurrence, he was not on the terrace, rather was down. Similarly, he testified that there was a dispute between his father and father of the accused regarding the outstanding amount of electricity charges of the rented premises and his father was obliged to pay the same being tenant. PW1 further admitted that the present case lodged against the accused is false and has been filed maliciously by his father. PW1, although in one breath has tried to produce the allegations not only in his chief but also in his cross examination that he suffered the atrocities of unnatural offence at the hand of accused, but on next moment testified that entire prosecution was malicious and an attempt to get rid of payment of rental dues. Thus, this witness has blown hot and cold in same breath. Therefore, in light of admission made by PW1, even if at a time it appeared that he corroborated the story of prosecution, possibility cannot be ruled out that the child has been tutored to depose against the accused and he is susceptible to be won over due to his tender age. If for the sake of argument, it is assumed that some offence has been committed with the victim, then also finding recorded by learned Trial Court that this child deposed at different places differently and observed him not to be reliable witness, has guaranteed the presumption of innocence of the accused, which cannot be taken away without any concrete and plausible evidence.

22. On the basis of norms set up by settled legal principles and on the basis of evidence placed on record, we have gathered the view that learned Trial Court has taken best probable view as outcome of the case in hand while discussing the entire facts and circumstances. Nothing adverse has been brought on record by the prosecution to hilt which may leave the tinge of doubt. No arguable points have been made out by the applicants that would convince us to grant the leave of appeal. The purpose of Section 378(3) of CrPC is to ensure that the accused is not kept waiting for years for a relief which may be granted to him at early stage to save his right of life and personal liberty.

23. Keeping in view the aforesaid failure of prosecution to establish any prima facie ground warranting interference with the order of the learned Trial Court, the prayer for grant of leave to appeal is hereby refused and the instant application is dismissed accordingly. Resultantly, the memorandum of appeal does not survive and stands dismissed.

Issue for Consideration

Whether the plaint was liable to be rejected under Order VII Rule 11 (d) CPC as the suit was barred by Order II Rule 2 CPC and Section 34 of the Specific Relief Act, 1963 and, and whether the order impugned be set aside and the plaint be rejected.

Head Notes

The Code of Civil Procedure-1908- Order II Rule 2; Order VII Rule 11- Order VII Rule 11 deals with rejection of plaint and not the 'right to sue being barred'. Qua expression "barred by any law", it The provision of Order II Rule 2 does not bar the filing of any suit but sub-rules (2) and (3) forbid the suing for certain claims which have been relinquished or certain reliefs which have been omitted to sue in the earlier suit in respect of which a plaintiff cannot sue for those claims or reliefs by filing a subsequent suit. Under Order II Rule 2 of the Code, the right to sue is taken away in terms of sub-rules (2) and (3) thereof which means that the suit could not have been filed at all. On the other hand, under Order VII Rule 11(d), there is "no bar to sue" but "the suit is barred by law"- The application of Order II Rule 2 CPC to a case can result in denial of reliefs being granted to a plaintiff which may, in certain cases, also result in dismissal of the suit itself but it does not result in rejection of the plaint under Order VII Rule 11 (d) of the Code.

Partial substance in the submissions made on behalf of the revisionists that, on the one hand the Court has deferred adjudication of the pleas raised to the stage of framing issues and leading evidence, at the same time, plea of limitation has been decided in favour of the respondent.

Held- Finding recorded by the trial court in the order impugned only to the effect that challenge laid by the respondent is not barred by limitation, is set aside, however, the same shall be adjudicated after framing of issues- Revision partly allowed. (E-15)

Revision under Section 115 CPC at the instance of defendants in O.S. No. 394 of 2023 (re-numbered as 22 of 2023), raises challenge to the order dated 24.01.2025, whereby the learned Additional District and Sessions Judge/Fast Track Court, Agra has rejected an application 31-C filed on behalf of the revisionists under Order VII Rule 11 CPC, consequence whereof is that the plaint of the suit survives as on date.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Kshitij Shailendra, J.)

1. Heard Shri Vineet Kumar Singh, learned counsel for the applicants in revision (revisionists), Shri Pankaj Agarwal, learned counsel for the respondent no. 1 (respondent) and Shri Neeraj Dwivedi, learned counsel for the proforma respondents no. 2, 3 and 4.

THE CHALLENGE

2. The instant revision under Section 115 CPC at the instance of defendants in O.S. No. 394 of 2023 (re-numbered as 22 of 2023), □ raises challenge to the order dated 24.01.2025, whereby the learned Additional District and Sessions Judge/Fast Track Court, Agra has rejected an application 31-C filed on behalf of the revisionists under Order VII Rule 11 CPC, consequence whereof is that the plaint of the suit survives as on date.

BRIEF FACTS

3. The property in dispute was allotted in favour of the revisionists by Awas Vikas Parishad on 02.01.1993/28.02.2023. The allotment was cancelled and a fresh allotment was made in favour of the respondent on 03.03.1993. The revisionists earlier filed an Original Suit No. 252 of 1993 claiming relief for declaring the auction made in favour of respondent as null and void and for declaring the allotment made earlier in favour of the revisionists as valid. The suit was decreed ex-parte on 18.10.1996. The decree was put into execution, wherein the respondent filed objections under Section 47 CPC. The same were rejected, against which a revision was preferred, which was also dismissed and Writ-C No. 9100 of 2015 filed by him was also dismissed on 16.02.2015.

4. After dismissal of the said writ petition, a suit being O.S. No. 296 of 2015 was filed by the respondent seeking setting aside of the ex-parte decree dated 18.10.1996. The plaint of the said suit was rejected under Order VII Rule 11 CPC holding the suit as barred by limitation. Civil Appeal filed thereagainst was dismissed and now the matter is pending before this Court in the form of Second Appeal.

5. Another suit being O.S. No. 394 of 2023 (re-numbered as 22 of 2023) giving rise to this revision was filed by the respondent with a prayer to declare the allotment order dated 28.02.2023 passed in favour of the revisionists as illegal, invalid, void and liable to be recalled, set aside and quashed. A further prayer was made to restrain the defendants in the suit, i.e. the Awas Vikas Parishad and its officials, from executing any sale deed and delivering possession in favour of the revisionist.

6. In the meantime, a fresh allotment was made and a sale deed was also executed in favour of the revisionists on 05.04.2023 in execution of the decree drawn in previous O.S. No. 252 of 1993 and challenge laid to the execution proceedings at the behest of the Awas Vikas Parishad was turned down upto Hon'ble Supreme Court.

SUBMISSIONS ON BEHALF OF THE REVISIONISTS

7. It is contended on behalf of the revisionists that, based upon the finality attached not only to the allotment but also the sale deed executed in furtherance of order passed by the executing court even before institution of the suit giving rise to the present revision, the suit is barred by law and, therefore, the plaint was liable to be rejected. It is further submitted that the plaint has been amended by the respondent and the relief which has now been claimed by way of amendment, could be claimed even at the time of filing of earlier suit in the year 2015 and, therefore, the plaint was liable to be rejected under Order VII Rule 11 (d) CPC as the suit was barred by Order II Rule 2

CPC and Section 34 of the Specific Relief Act, 1963 and, therefore, the order impugned be set aside and the plaint be rejected.

8. It is further submitted that though all the pleas raised by the revisionists were discussed by the trial court, an erroneous finding has been recorded that the suit is not barred by limitation and, then, after observing that the questions raised by the revisionists are mixed questions of fact and law and that the same shall be decided after framing proper issues, the application has been illegally rejected.

SUBMISSIONS ON BEHALF OF THE RESPONDENT

9. Learned counsel for respondent submits that every adjudication made in favour of the revisionists is ex-parte qua the respondent in the sense that the first Suit No. 252 of 1993 was filed by the revisionists only against the officials of Awas Vikas Parishad and, therefore, the decree obtained by the revisionists and consequences flowing therefrom are not binding against the respondent.

10. It is further submitted that the objections filed by the respondent under Section 47 CPC were not decided on merits, rather the same were rejected only on the ground that he was not a party to the proceedings. It is, therefore, contended that since the pleas raised by the respondent in execution proceedings were rejected, he had no option but either to raise his claim under Order XXI Rule 97 CPC as observed by this Court while deciding Writ-C No. 9100 of 2015 or by way of a separate suit which he filed in the year 2015 but plaint thereof was rejected, however, the matter is now subjudice before this Court in the form of Second Appeal.

11. It is further submitted that the sale deed relied upon by the revisionists is without delivery of possession in respect whereof specific averments have been made in the amended plaint, particularly para 15(f) thereof, and, therefore, all the questions raised inter se parties require adjudication on merits.

SUBMISSIONS IN REJOINDER

12. In rejoinder, learned counsel for revisionists submits that once title stood vested in their favour pursuant to the sale deed, cancellation whereof has not been prayed for in appropriate terms, the challenge initially laid to the subsequent allotment made in furtherance of the execution proceedings and indirect challenge to the sale deed dated 05.04.2023 is not sustainable. It is further contended that more than Rs. 25,00,00/- (twenty five lakh) was deposited by the revisionists and even though possession has been delivered to them, they are unable to raise constructions on the plot in question as time limit fixed by the Awas Vikas Parishad for the said purpose has already expired on account of litigation pending between the parties and an order of status quo passed in F.A.F.O. No. 1104 of 2024 by this Court arising out of suit giving rise to the present revision itself.

DISCUSSION

13. I have considered the submissions made and have perused the material available on record.

14. The proceedings of different suits and the result thereof not being in dispute, the Court has to confine its adjudication within the four corners of Order VII Rule 11 CPC, which provides that when plaint, from the statement made therein, appears to be barred by any law [sub-rule (d) of Rule 11], it shall be rejected. It has been held in Saleem Bhai vs. State of Maharashtra, (2003) 1 SCC 557 that the relevant facts which need to be looked into for deciding an application thereunder are the averments in the plaint and the pleas taken by the defendant in the written statement would be wholly irrelevant at that stage. In R.K. Roja vs. U.S. Rayudu, (2016) 14 SCC 275, it was reiterated that the consideration of the application should not be on the basis of the allegations made by the defendant in his written statement and the court has to consider only the plaint as a whole.

15. Since bar of suit under Order II Rule 2 C.P.C. has been emphatically argued, the Court may observe that Order II Rule 2 deals with the reliefs claimed in a suit in respect of a cause of action. Order II Rule 2(1) states that every suit shall include the whole of the claim which the plaintiff is entitled to make in respect of the cause of action; but a plaintiff may relinquish any portion of his claim in order to bring the suit within the jurisdiction of any court. Order II Rule 2(2) states that where a plaintiff omits to sue in respect of, or intentionally relinquishes, any portion of his claim, he shall not afterwards sue in respect of the portion so omitted or relinquished. Order II Rule 2(3) states that a person entitled to more than one relief in respect of the same cause of action may sue for all or any of such reliefs; but if he omits, to sue for all such reliefs, except with the leave of the court, he shall not afterwards sue for any relief so omitted.

16. 'Bar to sue' is distinct from a 'suit being barred by any law'. In the former, a suit cannot commence at all and, therefore, would have to be dismissed by applying Order II Rule 2 CPC, while in the latter case, a suit can commence but is not entertainable owing to a bar in law. Under Order II Rule 2, a suit can be dismissed after recording evidence depending upon the facts and circumstances of the case and on the analysis of the cause of action in a former suit and a subsequent suit.

17. Order VII Rule 11 deals with rejection of plaint and not the 'right to sue being barred'. Qua expression 'barred by any law', it is noted that the provision of Order II Rule 2 does not bar the filing of any suit but sub-rules (2) and (3) forbid the suing for certain claims which have been relinquished or certain reliefs which have been omitted to sue in the earlier suit in respect of which a plaintiff cannot sue for those claims or reliefs by filing a subsequent suit. Under Order II Rule 2 of the Code, the right to sue is taken away in terms of sub-rules (2) and (3) thereof which means that the suit could not have been filed at all. On the other hand, under Order VII Rule 11(d), there is no bar to sue but 'the suit is barred by law'. In other words, the application of Order II Rule 2 CPC to a case can result in denial of reliefs being granted to a plaintiff which may, in certain cases, also result in dismissal of the suit itself but it does not result in rejection of the plaint under Order VII Rule 11 (d) of the Code. The said legal position has been thoroughly explained by the Hon'ble Supreme Court very recently in S. Valliammai and others Vs. S. Ramanathan and another: Civil Appeal No. 3624 of 2024, decided on 16.04.2026.

18. In view of the above discussion, if the order impugned is perused, the Court finds partial substance in the submissions made on behalf of the revisionists that, on the one hand the Court has deferred adjudication of the pleas raised to the stage of framing issues and leading evidence, at the same time, plea of limitation has been decided in favour of the respondent. However, other submissions made that, at this stage itself, the plaint be rejected without holding trial, cannot be accepted as per the law laid down and referred.

19. Considering the record of proceedings and the scope of order under Order VII Rule 11 CPC, irrespective of the findings recorded in earlier litigations which may be germane and relevant to the controversy involved in the present suit also, the same can be considered even in the form of preliminary issues that may be framed by the trial court, if pressed. The submissions advanced in this revision go beyond the purview of Order VII Rule 11 CPC, except the findings recorded on the question of limitation at this stage.

20. As far as the grievance raised qua inability to raise constructions on account of order of status quo operating in F.A.F.O. No. 1104 of 2024, no comment can be made in these proceedings and the parties are at liberty to raise their respective pleas in the said appeal itself.

CONCLUSION

21. Consequently, the revision is allowed in part.

22. The finding recorded by the trial court in the order impugned only to the effect that challenge laid by the respondent is not barred by limitation, is hereby set aside, however, the same shall be adjudicated after framing of issues.

23. Considering the nature and length of litigation, it is directed that the trial court shall frame issues within a period of two months from the date a certified copy of this order is filed before it. Thereafter, the suit shall be posted for further proceedings including adjudication based upon preliminary issues, if they are framed, and the court shall make all endeavour to dispose of the proceedings in accordance with law with utmost expedition without granting unnecessary adjournment to the parties, by fixing short dates on weekly basis.

Habeas Corpus Writ Petition No. 128 of 2026

...Respondents

Issue for Consideration

Whether petitioner is detained illegally in pursuance of the detention order dated 8.8.2025 passed under Section 3(1) of P.I.T.N.D.P.S. Act passed by respondent no.3 and order dated 6.11.2025 passed by respondent no.4 and whether impugned order dated 8.8.2025 passed by respondent no.3 as well as confirmation order dated 6.11.2025 passed by respondent no.4 are liable to be quashed

Head Notes

The Constitution of India, 1950-Article 14, 21, 22 & 226 (Habeas Corpus); The Prevention of Illicit Traffic in Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances Act, 1988- Section 3(1)- The detention orders can be passed against detainees in jail provided the officers passing such orders can justify the detention with reference to the material on record and can also justify that the detainees will indulge in similar activities, if set at liberty- No such 'satisfaction' recorded by the detaining officers in the present case- The detaining authority should apply its mind and show awareness to the "grounds of detention". The detaining authority must be reasonably satisfied on the basis of cogent material, that there is likelihood of detainee of indulging in such activities on being released from jail. The "reasons to believe" should be based on reliable material and real possibility of detainee misusing his liberty in case of release from jail. The impugned orders are self-explanatory and clearly show that they have been passed without application of mind and without reference to any of the 'grounds of detention' of the petitioner. Such a state of affairs is deplorable and needs to be redressed at the earliest by the Union Government in the larger interest of the criminal justice delivery system.

Impugned orders passed against the petitioner cannot be sustained as per the settled law. Respondent Nos. 3 & 4 have paid mere lip service to the mandatory requirements of law. They have mechanically mentioned that they are satisfied that petitioner is required to be detained so as to prevent him from engaging in illicit trafficking of narcotic drugs and psychotropic substances. Such 'satisfaction' was required to have been spelt out after application of mind by reference to separate grounds of detention made by the detaining authority, which has not been done. None of the orders impugned show any application of mind and no "grounds of detention" have been recorded therein.

Held- The conduct of respondent nos. 3 & 4 is highly arbitrary and illegal. They have exercised their powers in violation of Articles 14, 21 and 22 of the Constitution of India. Despite being public servants, their conduct reflects scant respect for law of land the dereliction of duty on their part, which can be considered to be misconduct in service on their part, since they have failed to perform their duties in accordance with law- Impugned orders quashed.

Petition allowed. (E-15)

1. Heard Shri Vinay Saran, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Sri Ajay Mishra and Shri Piyush Panday learned counsel for the petitioner; Shri S.K. Pal, learned Deputy Solicitor General of India assisted by Sri Prem Shanker Prasad appearing for respondent nos. 1 to 4 and perused the material on record.

2. This Habeas Corpus Writ Petition has been filed praying for following reliefs:-

(i) Issue a writ of habeas corpus commanding all the respondents to release the petitioner from their illegal detention in pursuance of the detention order dated 8.8.2025 passed under Section 3(1) of P.I.T.N.D.P.S. Act passed by respondent no.3 and order dated 6.11.2025 passed by respondent no.4 and to set petitioner at liberty forthwith and may further be pleased to quash the impugned order dated 8.8.2025 passed by respondent no.3 as well as confirmation order dated 6.11.2025 passed by respondent no.4.

(ii) To issue a writ or any other such order or direction as may be deemed just fit and proper under the facts and circumstances of the case.

(iii) Award the cost of the writ petition.

3. Learned Senior Counsel for the petitioner has made following submissions:-

(I) While passing the detention order dated 08.08.2025, provisions of section 3 (3) of the Act has not been complied with which mandates that for the purpose of clause (5) of Article 22 of the Constitution of India, the communication to a person detained in pursuance to detention order of grounds on which the order has been made shall be made as soon as may be after detention, but ordinarily not later than 5 days and in exceptional circumstances and for reason to be recorded in writing not later than 15 days, from the date of detention.

(ii) The petitioner was not supplied with complete and legible set of relied upon documents along with the detention order itself which is a gross violation of the procedure itself.

(iii) The impugned order was primarily issued on two ill-founded assumptions that if enlarged on bail, the Detenu will abscond and vitiate the trial, and would again indulge in the same crime for monetary benefits, without relying upon any such fact or circumstance or document to substantiate such an ill-founded apprehension. The same has been done solely with the motive of keeping the Detenu/Petitioner in unwarranted and uninterrupted custody away from the place where he is facing trial and delaying the trial, for reasons best known to the sponsoring Authority and detaining authority. It has been passed solely on unfounded apprehensions, without any cogent material based on stale grounds having no live proximity with the alleged prejudicial activity leading to no subjective satisfaction and application of mind by Detaining Authority thereby violating the fundamental rights guaranteed under Articles 21 and 22 of the Constitution of India.

(iv) 5 months period of incarceration of detention period is passed already.

(v) The impugned orders are arbitrary, mechanical, and suffer from a fatal flaw between the alleged prejudicial activities relied upon by the detaining authority. The alleged prejudicial activities primarily stem from two pending under trial cases: (i) the 2013 DRI case (Cr. No. 338/XVIII/2013/GI), which dates back over 12 years, and (ii) the October 2024 NCB case (Cr. No. VIII/35/DZU/2024), in relation to which the petitioner was arrested on 26.10.2024. Despite the petitioner being in continuous judicial custody since 26.10.2024, in the 2024 case, the detention order was passed only on 08.08.2025-after an unexplained delay of approximately 10 months from the date of the alleged offence in October 2024 from the date of arrest.

4. Learned counsel for the respondents have vehemently opposed the petition on the basis of the material brought on record by way of counter affidavits filed before this Court.

5. Since the detention order dated 8.8.2025 passed by respondent no.3, Joint Secretary, (P.I.T.N.D.P.S.), Government of India, Ministry of Finance, Department of Revenue, (P.I.T.N.D.P.S. Division), New Delhi and order dated 6.11.2025 passed by respondent no.4, Deputy Secretary, (P.I.T.N.D.P.S.), Government of India, Ministry of Finance, Department of Revenue, New Delhi, are sought to be quashed in this petition, they are required to be considered and for ready reference, they are hereby quoted below:-

5. The Apex Court in the case of Mortuza Hussain Choudhary Vs. State of Nagaland and others, 2025 SCC Online SC 502 has considered the scheme of P.I.T.N.D.P.S. Act from paragraph nos. 7 to 10 quoted herein below:-

“7. It would be apposite at this stage to take note of the statutory regime of the Act of 1988. Section 3(1) thereof empowers the authorized officers, either of the Central Government or of a State Government, to detain any person with a view to prevent him/her from engaging in illicit traffic in narcotic drugs and psychotropic substances. Section 3(2) requires a State Government that passes such a detention order to forward a report of the same to the Central Government within ten days. Section 3(3) mandates communication of the grounds on which the detention order has been made to the detenu as soon as may be after the detention, but ordinarily not later than five days and in exceptional circumstances and for reasons to be recorded in writing, not later than fifteen days from the date of detention. The sub-section records that this requirement is for the purposes of Article 22(5) of the Constitution, which mandates such communication as soon as may be. Section 6 of the Act of 1988 provides that the grounds of detention are severable and an order of detention shall not be deemed to be invalid or inoperative merely because one or some of the grounds is either found to be vague, nonexistent, irrelevant or not connected with such persons or is invalid for any other reason. Section 6 specifically records that where a person has been detained pursuant to an order of detention under Section 3(1), which has been made on two or more grounds, such order shall be deemed to have been made separately on each ground. This indicates that the order of detention must be accompanied by the 'grounds of detention' made by the detaining authority itself. Section 11 of the Act of 1988 speaks of the maximum period of detention and states that the same may be extended up to 2 (two) years from the date of detention.

8. We may now note precedential law on the subject. In Kamarunnissa v. Union of India, (1991) 1 SCC 128 the detenus were already in judicial custody at the time the orders of preventive detention were passed against them. This Court affirmed that detention orders could be validly passed against detenus who were in jail, provided the officers passing the orders were alive to the factum of the detenus being in custody and there was material on record to justify the conclusion that they would indulge in similar activities, if set at liberty. Reference was made to the earlier decision of this Court in Binod Singh v. District Magistrate, Dhanbad, Bihar, (1986) 4 SCC 416 wherein it was held that there must be cogent material before the officer passing the detention order to infer that the detenu was likely to be released on bail and such an inference must be drawn from the material on record and must not be the ipse dixit of the officer passing such order. This Court, therefore, emphasized that before passing the detention order in respect of a person who is in jail, before passing the detention order in respect of a person who is in jail the concerned authority must satisfy himself and such satisfaction must be reached on the basis of cogent material that there is a real possibility of the detenu being released on bail and, further, if released on bail, the material on record must reveal that he/she would indulge in prejudicial activity again, if not detained.

9. On similar lines, in Rekha v. State of Tamil Nadu, (2011) 5 SCC 244, a 3-Judge Bench of this Court affirmed that, where a detention order is passed against a person already in jail, there should be a real possibility of the release of that person on bail, that is, he must have moved a bail application which is pending. It was observed that if no bail application is pending it logically *followed that there is no likelihood of the person in jail being released on bail. The Bench, however, pointed out that the exception to this Rule would be where a co-accused, whose case stood on the same footing, was granted bail. The Bench cautioned that details in this regard have to be recorded, otherwise the statement would be mere ipse dixit and cannot be relied upon. The law laid down in Rekha (supra) was reiterated and followed in Huidrom Konungjao Singh v. State of Manipur, (2012) 7 SCC 181.

10. Earlier, in Union of India v. Paul Manickam, (2003) 8 SCC 342, this Court observed that, where detention orders are passed against persons who are already in jail, the detaining authority should apply its mind and show awareness in the grounds of detention of the chances of release of such persons on bail. It was observed that the detaining authority must be reasonably satisfied, on the basis of cogent material, that there is a likelihood of the detenu's release and in view of his/her antecedent activities, which are proximate in point of time, he/she must be detained in order to prevent him/her from indulging in such prejudicial activities. It was held that an order of detention would be valid in such circumstances only if the authority passing the order is aware of the fact that the detenu is actually in custody; the authority has a reason to believe, on the basis of reliable material, that there is a real possibility of the detenu being released on bail; and that, upon such release, he/she would, in all probability, indulge in prejudicial activities; and it is felt essential to detain him/her to prevent him/her from so doing. This principle was again reiterated and applied in Union of India v. Dimple Happy Dhakad, (2019), 20 SCC 609."

9. The Apex Court in the case of Kamarunnisa Vs. Union of India (supra) has held that the detention orders can be passed against detainees in jail provided the officers passing such orders can justify the detention with reference to the material on record and can also justify that the detainees will indulge in similar activities, if set at liberty. In this case, we do not find any such 'satisfaction' recorded by the detaining officers. The ratio of the judgments of the Apex Court in the cases of Binod Singh Vs. District Magistrate (supra) and Rekha Vs. Tamil Nadu (supra) are to the same effect. The Apex Court in the case of Union of India Vs. Paul Manickam (supra) has also held that the detaining authority should apply its mind and show awareness to the 'grounds of detention'. The detaining authority must be reasonably satisfied on the basis of cogent material, that there is likelihood of detenu of indulging in such activities on being released from jail. The 'reasons to believe' should be based on reliable material and real possibility of detenu misusing his liberty in case of release from jail. The impugned orders are self-explanatory and clearly show that they have been passed without application of mind and without reference to any of the 'grounds of detention' of the petitioner. Such a state of affairs is deplorable and needs to be redressed at the earliest by the Union Government in the larger interest of the criminal justice delivery system.

10. If we consider the aforesaid impugned orders passed by respondent nos. 3 & 4 in the light of the settled legal as laid down by the Apex Court in the case of Mortuza Hussain Choudhary (supra), we find that the orders passed against the petitioner cannot be sustained as per the settled law. Respondent Nos. 3 & 4 have paid mere lip service to the mandatory requirements of law. They have mechanically mentioned that they are satisfied that petitioner is required to be detained so as to prevent him from engaging in illicit trafficking of narcotic drugs and psychotropic substances. Such 'satisfaction' was required to have been spelt out after application of mind by reference to separate grounds of detention made by the detaining authority, which has not been done. None of the orders impugned show any application of mind and no 'grounds of detention' have been recorded therein.

11. It is settled law that order passed by public servant should stand on its own legs. Any pleadings in support of impugned order cannot cure the defect in the order.

12. Therefore, the conduct of respondent nos. 3 & 4 is highly arbitrary and illegal. They have exercised their powers in violation of Articles 14, 21 and 22 of the Constitution of India. Despite being public servants, their conduct reflects scant respect for law of land the dereliction of duty on their part, which can be considered to be misconduct in service on their part, since they have failed to perform their duties in accordance with law.

13. We leave it open for the employer to take suitable action against respondent nos. 3 & 4, since dereliction of duty by them will ultimately benefit the detenue. We find that this state of affairs is continuing for long despite numbers of orders passed by the courts quashing such illegal and non-speaking orders passed by detaining authorities.

14. We have no option but to quash the impugned orders dated 8.8.2025 and 6.11.2025 passed by respondent nos. 3 and respondent no.4.

15. The petitioner is directed to be set at liberty forthwith.

16. The above noted petition is allowed.

Issue for Consideration

Whether the petitioner, being the natural and legal guardian, is entitled to the custody of the minor, the mother of the corpus, died on 10.02.2025 and since then, the corpus is in the custody of respondent Nos. 4 and 5, who are the maternal aunt and uncle of the corpus.

Head Notes

The Constitution of India, 1950-Article 226 (Habeas Corpus)- In proceedings of habeas corpus relating to custody of a minor, the paramount consideration for the Court is the welfare and best interest of the child- That the mother of the corpus, died on 10.02.2025, and there is no criminal prosecution pending against the petitioner in relation to her death. The mere fact that the death occurred during a failed IVF procedure cannot, in any manner, be attributed to any fault on the part of the petitioner so as to disentitle him from claiming custody of his minor child- After the demise of the mother, the father is the natural guardian and ordinarily the most suitable person to look after the welfare of the minor. There is no material on record to indicate that the petitioner is unfit or incapable of discharging his parental responsibilities. On the contrary, the record reflects that the petitioner possesses sufficient financial means, has stable residential arrangements, and is in a position to provide proper care and upbringing to the child.

Held- In the totality of the facts and circumstances, and considering the paramount welfare of the minor, this Court finds no justification to deny custody of the corpus to his father. (E-15)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Sandeep Jain, J.)

The present habeas corpus petition has been filed by the petitioner, Vipin Kumar Pandey, who is the father of the minor corpus, Akshit Pandey, seeking his custody.

In compliance with the order of this Court dated 03.04.2026, the corpus has been produced before this Court today by Sri Sanjay Kumar Singh, Sub-Inspector, Police Station Sarai Lakhansi, District Mau.

Learned counsel for the petitioner submits that the wife of the petitioner and mother of the corpus, namely Deepika Pandey, died on 10.02.2025. It is further submitted that since then, the corpus is in the custody of respondent Nos. 4 and 5, who are the maternal aunt and uncle of the corpus. It is contended that the petitioner, being the natural and legal guardian, is entitled to the custody of the minor. It is further submitted that the petitioner is financially sound and fully capable of maintaining the minor and ensuring his proper upbringing. Therefore, there exists no legal justification to deny custody of the minor to the petitioner.

It is also submitted that the petitioner's sister, Smt. Sunita Pandey, who resides in close proximity to the petitioner's residence, is a housewife and is available to assist in taking care of the minor. She is stated to be physically fit and capable of ensuring the welfare of the child.

The petitioner, Vipin Kumar Pandey, is present in Court and has assured that he shall properly take care of the minor corpus. His financial capacity has not been disputed. Likewise, Smt. Sunita Pandey is also present and has undertaken to assist in the upbringing and welfare of the child.

Per contra, learned counsel for private respondent Nos. 4 and 5 submits that the wife of the petitioner died during a failed IVF procedure, which, according to him, reflects adversely on the conduct of the petitioner and raises doubts regarding his capability to take care of the minor, who is presently about 13 months old. It is further submitted that the corpus is presently under the care of the maternal aunt, who is adequately equipped to look after the child, particularly considering that the child was born premature and requires special care. However, it is fairly admitted that no criminal proceedings are pending against the petitioner.

I have heard learned counsel for the parties and perused the material on record.

The Apex Court in the case of Tejaswini Gaud and Others vs. Shekhar Jagdish Prasad Tewari and Ors. (2019) 7 SCC 42 while granting the custody of 1.5 years child after the demise of mother to the father, who is the natural guardian, under Article 226 of the Constitution of India, held as under:-

"14. Writ of habeas corpus is a prerogative process for securing the liberty of the subject by affording an effective means of immediate release from an illegal or improper detention. The writ also extends its influence to restore the custody of a minor to his guardian when wrongfully deprived of it. The detention of a minor by a person who is not entitled to his legal custody is treated as equivalent to illegal detention for the purpose of granting writ, directing custody of the minor child. For restoration of the custody of a minor from a person who according to the personal law, is not his legal or natural guardian, in appropriate cases, the writ court has jurisdiction.

18. In Manju Malini [Manju Malini Seshachalam v. Vijay Thirugnanam, 2018 SCC OnLine Kar 621 : (2018) 4 AIR Kant R 166] where the mother filed a habeas corpus petition seeking custody of her minor child Tanishka from her sister and brother-in-law who refused to hand over the child to the mother, the Karnataka High Court held as under : (SCC OnLine Kar para 26)

26. The moment Respondents 1 and 2 refused to hand over the custody of minor Tanishka to the petitioner the natural and legal guardian, the continuation of her custody with them becomes illegal detention. Such intentional act on the part of Respondents 1 and 2 even amounts to the offence of kidnapping punishable under Section 361 IPC. Therefore there is no merit in the contention that the writ petition is not maintainable and Respondents 1 and 2 are in legal custody of baby Tanishka.?

19. Habeas corpus proceedings is not to justify or examine the legality of the custody. Habeas corpus proceedings is a medium through which the custody of the child is addressed to the discretion of the Court. Habeas corpus is a prerogative writ which is an extraordinary remedy and the writ is issued where in the circumstances of the particular case, ordinary remedy provided by the law is either not available or is ineffective; otherwise a writ will not be issued. In child custody matters, the power of the High Court in granting the writ is qualified only in cases where the detention of a minor by a person who is not entitled to his legal custody. In view of the pronouncement on the issue in question by the Supreme Court and the High Courts, in our view, in child custody matters, the writ of habeas corpus is maintainable where it is proved that the detention of a minor child by a parent or others was illegal and without any authority of law.

20. In child custody matters, the ordinary remedy lies only under the Hindu Minority and Guardianship Act or the Guardians and Wards Act as the case may be. In cases arising out of the proceedings under the Guardians and Wards Act, the jurisdiction of the court is determined by whether the minor ordinarily resides within the area on which the court exercises such jurisdiction. There are significant differences between the enquiry under the Guardians and Wards Act and the exercise of powers by a writ court which is summary in nature. What is important is the welfare of the child. In the writ court, rights are determined only on the basis of affidavits. Where the court is of the view that a detailed enquiry is required, the court may decline to exercise the extraordinary jurisdiction and direct the parties to approach the civil court. It is only in exceptional cases, the rights of the parties to the custody of the minor will be determined in exercise of extraordinary jurisdiction on a petition for habeas corpus.

21. In the present case, the appellants are the sisters and brother of the mother Zelam who do not have any authority of law to have the custody of the minor child. Whereas as per Section 6 of the Hindu Minority and Guardianship Act, the first respondent father is a natural guardian of the minor child and is having the legal right to claim the custody of the child. The entitlement of father to the custody of child is not disputed and the child being a minor aged 1 years cannot express its intelligent preferences. Hence, in our considered view, in the facts and circumstances of this case, the father, being the natural guardian, was justified in invoking the extraordinary remedy seeking custody of the child under Article 226 of the Constitution of India.

32. In the case at hand, the father is the only natural guardian alive and has neither abandoned nor neglected the child. Only due to the peculiar circumstances of the case, the child was taken care of by the appellants. Therefore, the cases cited by the appellants are distinguishable on facts and cannot be applied to deny the custody of the child to the father.

33. The child Shikha went into the custody of the appellants in strange and unfortunate situation. Appellants 1 and 2 are the sisters of deceased Zelam. Appellant 4 is the husband of Appellant 1. All three of them reside at Mahim, Mumbai. Appellant 3 is the married brother of Zelam who resides in Pune. During the fifth month of her pregnancy, Zelam was diagnosed with stage 3/4 breast cancer. Zelam gave birth to child Shikha on 14-8-2017. On 29-11-2017, Respondent 1 collapsed with convulsions due to illness. Upon his collapse, he was rushed to hospital where he was diagnosed with Tuberculosis Meningitis and Pulmonary Tuberculosis. He was kept on ventilator for nearly eight days, during which period, appellants took care of Zelam and the child. The first respondent had to undergo treatment in different hospitals for a prolonged period. From 29-11-2017 to June 2018, Zelam and Shikha stayed at the residence of the appellants in Mumbai. During this period, Zelam underwent mastectomy surgery. Zelam later relapsed into cancer and decided to get treatment from a doctor in Pune and therefore, shifted to Appellant 3's house at Pune with Shikha and Zelam passed away on 17-10-2018. After recovering from his illness, the respondent visited Pune to seek custody of the child. But when they refused to hand over the custody, the father was constrained to file the writ petition seeking custody of the child. The child Shikha thus went to the custody of the appellants in unavoidable conditions. Only the circumstances involving his health prevented the father from taking care of the child. Under Section 6 of the Act, the father is the natural guardian and he is entitled to the custody of the child and the appellants have no legal right to the custody of the child. In determining the question as to who should be given custody of a minor child, the paramount consideration is the welfare of the child and not rights of the parents under a statute for the time being in force.

34. As observed in Rosy Jacob [Rosy Jacob v. Jacob A. Chakramakkal, (1973) 1 SCC 840] earlier, the father's fitness has to be considered, determined and weighed predominantly in terms of the welfare of his minor children in the context of all the relevant circumstances. The welfare of the child shall include various factors like ethical upbringing, economic well being of the guardian, child's ordinary comfort, contentment, health, education, etc. The child Shikha lost her mother when she was just fourteen months and is now being deprived from the love of her father for no valid reason. As pointed out by the High Court, the father is a highly educated person and is working in a reputed position. His economic condition is stable.

35. The welfare of the child has to be determined owing to the facts and circumstances of each case and the Court cannot take a pedantic approach. In the present case, the first respondent has neither abandoned the child nor has deprived the child of a right to his love and affection. The circumstances were such that due to illness of the parents, the appellants had to take care of the child for some time. Merely because, the appellants being the relatives took care of the child for some time, they cannot retain the custody of the child. It is not the case of the appellants that the first respondent is unfit to take care of the child except contending that he has no female support to take care of the child. The first respondent is fully recovered from his illness and is now healthy and having the support of his mother and is able to take care of the child.

36. The appellants submit that handing over of the child to the first respondent would adversely affect her and that the custody can be handed over after a few years. The child is only 1^{1/2} years old and the child was with the father for about four months after her birth. If no custody is granted to the first respondent, the Court would be depriving both the child and the father of each other's love and affection to which they are entitled. As the child is in tender age i.e. 1^{1/2} years, her choice cannot be ascertained at this stage. With the passage of time, she might develop more bonding with the appellants and after some time, she may be reluctant to go to her father in which case, the first respondent might be completely deprived of her child's love and affection. Keeping in view the welfare of the child and the right of the father to have her custody and after consideration of all the facts and circumstances of the case, we find that the High Court was right in holding that the welfare of the child will be best served by handing over the custody of the child to the first respondent."

The Apex Court in the case of Gautam Kumar Das vs. NCT of Delhi and Ors. (2024) 10 SCC 588, held that granting temporary custody of minor child to a relative would not preclude the natural guardian from seeking custody of the minor child. It was held as under:-

"20. ..The appellant's wife died due to Covid infection and as such, he was forced to give the custody of the minor child Sugandha Das to Respondents 5 and 6, who are the sisters of the deceased wife. Looking at the very tender age of the child Sugandha Das at that time, the appellant could not have looked after her. However, the appellant was looking after his son Divyanshu Das, who was relatively older.

21. Subsequently, the appellant remarried. Now, he and his wife can very well look after the minor girl Sugandha Das. A perusal of the photographs placed on record would also reveal that pursuant to the visitation rights granted by the High Court and this Court, the minor child has gelled well with the family and the family of four appears to be happy.

22. Insofar as the fitness of the appellant is concerned, he is well educated and currently employed as Assistant General Manager (Class A Officer) in Central Warehousing Corporation, Delhi. The appellant's residence is also in Delhi whereas Respondent 6 to whom the custody of the minor child was handed over to by Respondent 5 is residing at a remote village in West Bengal. Apart from taking care of his children, the appellant can very well provide the best of the education facilities to his children. The child Sugandha Das, who lost her mother at tender age, cannot be deprived of the company of her father and natural brother. At the relevant time, the appellant had no other option but to look upon the sisters of his deceased wife to nurture his infant child.

23. In our opinion, merely because of the unfortunate circumstances faced by the appellant as a result of which, Respondents 5 and 6 were given the temporary custody of the minor child Sugandha Das and only because they looked after her for few years, the same cannot be a ground to deny the custody of the minor child to the appellant, who is her only natural guardian.

25. Recently, this Court, in Nirmala [Nirmala v. Kulwant Singh, (2024) 10 SCC 595 : 2024 INSC 370] in para 27 has also observed that no hard-and-fast rule can be laid down insofar as the maintainability of the habeas corpus petition in the matters of custody of minor child is concerned. It has been held that as to whether the writ court should exercise its jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution of India or not will depend on the facts and circumstances of each case.

26. However, it is to be noted that a common thread in all the judgments concerning the custody of minor children is the paramount welfare of the child. As discussed hereinabove, we find that, apart from the appellant being the natural guardian, even in order to ensure the welfare of the minor child, she should live with her natural family. The minor child is of tender age, and she will get adapted to her natural family very well in a short period. We are therefore inclined to allow the appeal."

It is well settled that in proceedings of habeas corpus relating to custody of a minor, the paramount consideration for the Court is the welfare and best interest of the child.

From the record, it is evident that the mother of the corpus, Deepika Pandey, died on 10.02.2025, and there is no criminal prosecution pending against the petitioner in relation to her death. The mere fact that the death occurred during a failed IVF procedure cannot, in any manner, be attributed to any fault on the part of the petitioner so as to disentitle him from claiming custody of his minor child.

It is also undisputed that after the demise of the mother, the father is the natural guardian and ordinarily the most suitable person to look after the welfare of the minor. There is no material on record to indicate that the petitioner is unfit or incapable of discharging his parental responsibilities. On the contrary, the record reflects that the petitioner possesses sufficient financial means, has stable residential arrangements, and is in a position to provide proper care and upbringing to the child.

Further, the presence and support of the petitioner's sister, Smt. Sunita Pandey, who is residing nearby and is an experienced housewife with two grown up children aged about 17 years and 11 years, provides an additional assurance regarding the welfare and proper upbringing of the minor.

The contention of the private respondents that the welfare of the child would be better served under the care of the maternal relatives does not outweigh the legal and natural claim of the father, particularly in the absence of any adverse material against him. The age of the maternal grandmother, stated to be about 71 years, also cannot be ignored while assessing long-term welfare considerations.

This Court is also mindful of the fact that the corpus is only about 13 months old. If custody is not entrusted to the father at this stage, there is a real possibility of the child growing up without forming any emotional bond with him, which would be detrimental to the child's overall development and the father's parental rights.

In the totality of the facts and circumstances, and considering the paramount welfare of the minor, this Court finds no justification to deny custody of the corpus to his father.

Accordingly, the private respondent Nos. 4 and 5 are directed to hand over the custody of the minor corpus, Akshit Pandey, to the petitioner, Vipin Kumar Pandey, forthwith, in Court itself.

However, in order to preserve the emotional bond of the child with the maternal family, respondent Nos. 4 and 5 are granted visitation rights. They shall be entitled to visit the minor at the petitioner's residence every Sunday at 04:00 PM for a duration of two hours.

It is expected that the petitioner shall extend full cooperation to the private respondents and shall not cause any obstruction during the visitation period.

It is further clarified that in the event the private respondents observe any circumstance adverse to the welfare of the minor, it shall be open to them to approach this Court in accordance with law.

Accordingly, the present habeas corpus petition is allowed.

In compliance of the direction of this Court, the custody of minor Akshit Pandey has been handed by the private respondents, to his father Vipin Kumar Pandey.

Head Notes

The Constitution of India, 1950-Article 226 (Habeas Corpus); The Hindu Minority and Guardianship Act, 1956- Section 6; The Indian Penal Code. 1860- Section 361- Mere allegation that the father has forcibly taken the minors from the custody of the mother, even if accepted on its face value, would not lead to the conclusion that the minors are in illegal detention. The father, being a natural guardian, cannot be said to have taken the minors out of lawful guardianship so as to attract any criminality. Such forcibly taking away will constitute an offence only if it has been done in violation of a legal order or legal prohibition.

Held- It is evident that the minors, who are above five years of age, have been residing with the father since the year 2022. No exceptional or extraordinary circumstance has been brought on record to indicate that their custody is illegal or detrimental so as to warrant interference by this Court in exercise of its writ jurisdiction. The remedy of habeas corpus cannot be permitted to be used as a substitute for the remedies available under the Hindu Minority and Guardianship Act, 1956 and the Guardians and Wards Act, 1890, where a detailed adjudication on the issue of custody, guided by the welfare of the child, can appropriately be undertaken.

Counsel for Petitioner(s) : Pradeep Kumar Singh, Rahul Shukla

Counsel for Respondent(s) : Amit Kumar Chaudhary, G.A.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Anil Kumar-X, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the petitioners and Sri R.K.Singh, learned AGA for the State as also perused the record.

2. The present habeas corpus writ petition has been filed seeking issuance of a writ, order or direction in the nature of habeas corpus commanding respondents to produce petitioner no. 1 (corpus) before this Court and to set her at liberty.

3. Learned counsel for the petitioner submitted that the marriage of petitioner no. 1 was solemnized with respondent no. 4 on 07.02.2010 in accordance with Hindu rites and rituals. Out of the said wedlock, petitioner no. 2, Devansh, aged about 14 years, and petitioner no. 3, Awani, aged about 10 years, were born. It is further submitted that relations between petitioner no. 1 and respondent no. 4 became strained, and petitioner no. 1 was driven out of her matrimonial home. Thereafter, on 04.06.2022, respondent no. 4 allegedly came to the matrimonial home of petitioner no. 1 and forcibly took away both the minors (corpus) at gunpoint. Since then, petitioner nos. 2 and 3 are stated to be in the illegal custody of respondent no. 4. Learned counsel for the petitioner further submitted that several applications were filed before different forums seeking custody of the minors; however, no effective action has been taken by the authorities. It is also submitted that a habeas corpus petition for seeking custody of a minor child, even from the other parent, is maintainable.

4. In support of his submissions, learned counsel has placed reliance upon the judgment of this Court in Smt. Rinku Ram @ Rinku Devi and another vs. State of U.P. and 7 others. Drawing attention to paragraph 16 of the said judgment, it is submitted that the Division Bench has clearly held that where a child is in the custody of another parent, the Court can invoke its extraordinary jurisdiction in the best interest of the child. Accordingly, it is prayed that a direction be issued to respondent no. 4 to hand over custody of the corpus to the petitioner.

5. Learned AGA and learned counsel for the respondent submitted that both minors have been residing with respondent no. 4 since the year 2022, and the petitioner has not availed any remedy under the Guardian and Wards Act till date. It is contended that the appropriate remedy for seeking custody of the minors is to approach the competent Family Court by filing a petition under the Guardian and Wards Act. It is further submitted that custody disputes between parents ordinarily cannot be adjudicated in a writ petition under Article 226 of the Constitution of India. The judgment in Smt. Rinku Ram (supra), relied upon by the petitioner, is distinguishable on facts. In that case, the custody of the minor was forcibly taken in violation of an order passed by the Child Welfare Committee, which had directed that custody be handed over to the mother. No such circumstance exists in the present case. Therefore, the present petition, seeking custody of minors from the father at the instance of the mother, is not maintainable.

6. Heard learned counsel for the parties and perused the record. Considering the submissions advanced, it is evident that the Division Bench of this Court in Smt. Rinku Ram (supra), in paragraph 16, observed that the extraordinary writ jurisdiction may be invoked where the welfare of the child so demands. It was observed in Paragraph-16:-

"16. In our opinion, the view taken by the learned Single Judge is contrary to the decision of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Yashita Sahu Vs. State of Rajasthan and others: (2020) 3 SCC 67, wherein, after placing reliance on judgments in Elizabeth Dinshaw Vs. Arvand M. Dinshaw and others: (1987) 1 SCC 42, Nithya Anand Raghavan Vs. State (NCT of Delhi) and another: (2017) 8 SCC 454 and Lahari Sakhamuri Vs. Sobhan Kodali: (2019) 7 SCC 311, it has been held that it is too late in the day to urge that a writ of habeas is not maintainable if the child is in the custody of another parent and the court can invoke its extraordinary writ jurisdiction for the best interest of the child."

7. However, the said observation was made in the peculiar facts of that case, where the child had been forcibly taken in violation of an order passed by the Child Welfare Committee. It is well settled that ordinarily a writ of habeas corpus for custody of a minor child is not maintainable when the custody is sought by one parent from the other parent. In this regard, reference may be made to the judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Tejaswini Gaud and others vs. Shekhar Jagdish Prasad Tewari and others, wherein the Hon'ble Supreme Court has held in paragraphs 18 and 19 as follows:

"18. Habeas corpus proceedings is not to justify or examine the legality of the custody. Habeas corpus proceedings is a medium through which the custody of the child is addressed to the discretion of the court. Habeas corpus is a prerogative writ which is an extraordinary remedy and the writ is issued where in the circumstances of the particular case, ordinary remedy provided by the law is either not available or is ineffective; otherwise a writ will not be issued. In child custody matters, the power of the High Court in granting the writ is qualified only in cases where the detention of a minor is by a person who is not entitled to his legal custody. In view of the pronouncement on the issue in question by the Supreme Court and the High Courts, in our view, in child custody matters, the writ of habeas corpus is maintainable where it is proved that the detention of a minor child by a parent or others was illegal and without any authority of law.

19. In child custody matters, the ordinary remedy lies only under the Hindu Minority and Guardianship Act or the Guardians and Wards Act as the case may be. In cases arising out of the proceedings under the Guardians and Wards Act, the jurisdiction of the court is determined by whether the minor ordinarily resides within the area on which the court exercises such jurisdiction. There are significant differences between the enquiry under the Guardians and Wards Act and the exercise of powers by a writ court which is of summary in nature. What is important is the welfare of the child. In the writ court, rights are determined only on the basis of affidavits. Where the court is of the view that a detailed enquiry is required, the court may decline to exercise the extraordinary jurisdiction and direct the parties to approach the civil court. It is only in exceptional cases, the rights of the parties to the custody of the minor will be determined in exercise of extraordinary jurisdiction on a petition for habeas corpus."

8. The crux of the above observation is very clear that habeas corpus in child custody matters is an extraordinary remedy, used only when the custody of a child is illegal or without authority of law. It is not meant to decide detailed custody rights but to ensure the welfare of the child through a summary process. Normally, such disputes should be resolved under the Guardians and Wards Act or the Hindu Minority and Guardianship Act. The High Court exercises this power only in exceptional cases and may direct parties to approach the civil court if a detailed inquiry is required.

9. A question arises whether a bald allegation by one parent against the other parent that the minors were forcibly taken away would be sufficient to invoke the jurisdiction of a writ of habeas corpus. The basic requirement for invoking the writ of habeas corpus is that the corpus must be shown to be in illegal detention. Therefore, a further question arises as to whether a minor residing in the custody of one parent, against the wishes or consent of the other parent, would by itself give rise to a presumption that such custody is illegal.

10. In order to answer the aforesaid issue, it is necessary to examine the ingredients of Section 361 of the Indian Penal Code, which defines kidnapping from lawful guardianship in the following terms:-

"Whoever takes or entices any minor under sixteen years of age if a male, or under eighteen years of age if a female, out of the keeping of the lawful guardian of such minor, without the consent of such guardian, is said to kidnap such minor from lawful guardianship."

11. The emphasis of the provision is on taking a minor "out of the keeping of the lawful guardian". The said expression clearly signifies that the offence would be attracted only when the minor is removed from the custody of a person who is legally recognized as the guardian, and the person taking the minor is not himself a lawful guardian. Where the person taking the minor is himself a lawful guardian, the essential ingredient of the offence fails.

12. In this context, reference may be made to Section 6 of the Hindu Minority and Guardianship Act, 1956, which reads as below :

"6. Natural guardians of a Hindu minor ? The natural guardians of a Hindu minor, in respect of the minor's person as well as in respect of the minor's property (excluding his or her undivided interest in joint family property), are-

(a) in the case of a boy or an unmarried girl ? the father, and after him, the mother; provided that the custody of a minor who has not completed the age of five years shall ordinarily be with the mother;"

13. It is evident that statute itself recognizes the father as a natural guardian. Further, the definition of the term "Guardian" as defined under Section 4(2) of the Guardians and Wards Act, 1890, also requires consideration which reads thus :

"4.(2) "guardian" means a person having the care of the person of a minor or of his property, or of both his person and property."

14. Bare perusal of Section 6 of the Hindu Minority and Guardianship Act, 1956 and Section 4 (2) of the Guardians and Wards Act, 1890 defines a guardian as a person having the care of the person of a minor or of his property or of both. The combined reading of these provisions makes it clear that both parents have a legally recognized status in relation to the minor, and disputes regarding custody are essentially civil disputes to be adjudicated by the competent court.

15. In view of the aforesaid legal position, mere allegation that the father has forcibly taken the minors from the custody of the mother, even if accepted on its face value, would not lead to the conclusion that the minors are in illegal detention. The father, being a natural guardian, cannot be said to have taken the minors out of lawful guardianship so as to attract any criminality. Such forcibly taking away will constitute an offence only if it has been done in violation of a legal order or legal prohibition. It was explicitly explained in Shri Ashok Kumar Seth vs. State of Orissa 2002 SCC OnLine Ori 138, particularly paragraph 8 of the said decision, which runs as below :

"8. It is thus clearly readable from the position of law as noted and discussed above that unless there is legal prohibition by order of a Court of competent jurisdiction, the father cannot be booked for taking away his minor child from the custody of his wife because he is the natural guardian and therefore, the offence under Section 363, I.P.C. cannot be attracted against him for taking the child from the custody of the mother?.."

16. In the above decision the Orissa High Court equally held that the father cannot be booked for taking away his minor child from the custody of his wife because he is the natural guardian, and therefore, the offence punishable under Section 363 of the IPC cannot be attracted against him.

17. Consequently, such allegation by itself would not justify invocation of the extraordinary writ jurisdiction of habeas corpus. It is well settled that habeas corpus is an extraordinary remedy, to be exercised sparingly and only in cases where the custody is shown to be wholly illegal or without authority of law, as held by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Tejaswini Gaud (Supra). The observation in judgment of Smt. Rinku Ram (supra) were made in the same context and is not applicable in every case of custodial dispute between the parents.

18. Applying the aforesaid principles to the facts of the present case, it is evident that the minors, who are above five years of age, have been residing with the father since the year 2022. No exceptional or extraordinary circumstance has been brought on record to indicate that their custody is illegal or detrimental so as to warrant interference by this Court in exercise of its writ jurisdiction. The remedy of habeas corpus cannot be permitted to be used as a substitute for the remedies available under the Hindu Minority and Guardianship Act, 1956 and the Guardians and Wards Act, 1890, where a detailed adjudication on the issue of custody, guided by the welfare of the child, can appropriately be undertaken.

19. Accordingly, this Court is of the considered opinion that the present petition is not maintainable and no interference is called for.

20. Accordingly, this petition is dismissed.

Habeas Corpus Writ Petition No. 741 of 2025

Issue for Consideration

Whether the petitioner has been detained by the Detaining Authority, exercising jurisdiction under Section 3(3) of the NSA, without application of mind and the offence attributed to the petitioner is a petty offence, triable by Magistrate, which even if established to have been committed by him, would constitute no more than a violation of the law and order.

Head Notes

The Constitution of India, 1950-Article 226 (Habeas Corpus); The National Security Act, 1980-Section 3(3) & 12-The offence committed by the petitioner was not an offence of the ordinary violent kind, that affected the life of one individual or a group of them, unconcerned with the stable life of the community, which would go on unruffled by his actions. He had committed an act that aroused public outrage amongst a large section of the population in the locale, whose religious feelings were hurt. This kind of an offence, if repeated again, about which the Detaining Authority had material to believe that it could be done by the petitioner upon his release, would certainly imperil the even tempo of life of the locality, and, a fortiori public order. In this regard, the nature of the offence has to be borne in mind very discretely. The offence committed by the petitioner, produces almost spontaneous violence and resentment from one section of the community and, therefore, the Detaining Authority was absolutely justified in thinking that the petitioner, upon his release from jail, could indulge in activity, prejudicial to the maintenance of public order- No unexplained delay occurred, which might vitiate the detention order.

Held- No infirmity in the order impugned, directing the petitioner's detention under the NSA.
Petition dismissed. (E-15)

Counsel for Petitioner(s) : Brijesh Kumar Yadava, Narendra Kumar

Counsel for Respondent(s) : Manish Pandey, G.A.

(Delivered by Hon'ble J. J. Munir, J.)

1. This petition for a writ of habeas corpus has been preferred by Sameer through his father, Shamshad, against his detention ordered by the District Magistrate, Shamli, under Section 3(3) of the National Security Act, 1980, vide order dated 15.05.2025, and confirmed by the State Government vide order dated 12.06.2025 made under Section 12(1) of the Act last mentioned.

2. The facts, giving rise to this petition, would show that it all began with a police party, headed by Sub-Inspector Gyanendra Singh on routine duty to maintain law and order and serve processes etc. while passing through the jungle in Village Lavvadaudpur, Police Station Jhinhana, District Shamli, coming across the remains of cows progeny, lying in the field of one Sandeep son of Aval Singh on 15.03.2025, soon after 10.10 a.m. The police party, who came across the remains of cows' progeny, found 11 dismembered feet, four tails, parts of the head, besides parts of skin and a wooden block. The police team called Veterinary Medical Officer, Dr. Imran Ansari over his mobile phone to identify the remains. The Veterinary Medical Officer reached the spot and identified the remains as ones of the cows progeny, regarding which he said he would make a separate report. The police team in the FIR, that they got registered with P.S. Jhinhana, said that the remains were found at the specified location, and that some unknown men had slaughtered the cows progeny, on the basis of which Crime No. 99 of 2025, under Section 3/8 of the Uttar Pradesh Prevention of Cow Slaughter Act, 1955 (for short, 'the Act of 1955'), P.S. Jhinhana, District Shamli, was registered. It was also recorded in the FIR that the remains were secured by the Police and upon directions of the Veterinary Medical Officer, in order to prevent foul stench, besides disease from spreading, interred after digging up earth. The wooden block was marked and taken into custody.

3. It is next said in the FIR that Holi was around and the incident had led to unrest amongst the Hindu population, necessitating detailing of force to maintain peace. It was also said in the FIR that a memo of recovery was prepared on the spot and signed by members of the police party. In fact, it is the aforesaid memo, relating to recovery of remains of the cows progeny, that was registered as the check FIR, giving rise to the crime.

4. The grounds, upon which the impugned detention is founded, are indeed detailed and recount all happenings and circumstances, leading to the petitioner's incarceration. Since other men were involved in the crime, that led to the petitioner's detention, and they too were similarly detained, the grounds carry reference to those others as well. Therefore, it may not be relevant for us to refer to the entire gamut of facts that the grounds carry. We propose to refer to only so much of whatever is said in the grounds as is relevant to the petitioner's detention under the National Security Act, 1980 (for short, 'the NSA'). After a copious reference to the discovery of the offence by the police team and whatever is said in the FIR, it is mentioned in the grounds that post registration of the crime, the Investigating Officer left for the place of occurrence, and upon reaching there, saw that at the field of Sandeep Kumar located in the jungle of Village Lavvadaudpur, a big crowd of people had congregated. Amongst them, members of the Hindu populace had frayed tempers, who were reasoned with and pacified.

5. The Investigating Officer then set about the task of finding out the identity and location of the offenders. The police informers were summoned for the purpose and necessary instructions issued to them. The Station House Officer, P.S. Jhinhana, upon learning of this happening, reached the spot, accompanied by members of his companion force. The S.H.O. again found a big crowd gathered at the place of occurrence and they were livid about the incident of cow slaughter. The crowd, that had now gathered, had representatives of various associations present, including Hindu organizations, such as the Rashtriya Bajrang Dal, the Pashchimi Uttar Pradesh Sanyukt Udyog Vyapar Mandal, the Shiv Sena Mandal Saharanpur Unit, the Akhil Bharatiya Pradhan Sangthan. Members of these organizations were shouting slogans and demanding the immediate arrest of the offenders responsible for the crime. This crowd blockaded the Jhinhana-Thana Bhawan Road, leading to a long queue of vehicles on both sides of the blockade. The passersby and the travellers were much troubled. This jamming of the road on account of the blockade lasted for long hours, in consequence of which public order in the area was torn asunder.

6. Upon receiving information, the Circle Officer, Kairana, also reached the spot/ place of occurrence, along with members of his companion force and attempted to pacify the enraged members of the crowd. In the meanwhile, information of this incident was relayed to the nearby police stations and additional forces from those stations, such as Thana Bhawan, Garhi Pukhta, Thana Babri, arrived. They were detailed around the place of occurrence and the enangered villagers were assured about their own safety and that of their cattle. Police force had to camp at villages Naya Gaon, Dathaida, Gangarampur Khedki, Lavvadaudpur, Shamli-Shamla, Panthupura, Jijaula, Ballamajra, Toda, Khodsama and Laxmipura. The Police maintained surveillance in these villages, in order to ensure that the disturbed public order resulting from this incident could be restored.

7. The Investigating Officer on the 16th of March, 2025 learnt through a police informer that five men were involved in this incident of cow slaughter. They were Iqbal son of Rashid, Jaane Alam son of Sagir, Javed son of Islam, Wasim alias Gullu son of Salim, and Sameer son of Shamshad (the petitioner). All of them had together, according to the informer, committed the offence. By and by, the investigation proceeded and raids were made by the Police to interrogate men, whose names had surfaced in connection with the crime.

8. For a first, the Police went to the homes of Iqbal and Jaane Alam, one after the other, looking out for them, but they were not there. The relatives did not give any information as to their whereabouts. Next, the Police went to Javed's house, but he too was not found at home. His relatives did not give any information as to his whereabouts. On 16.03.2025, upon an informer's tip off that the offenders, responsible for the incident of cow slaughter, would be proceeding from Chausana to Mundet, carrying illicit weapons on them, and that they could be caught if a checking exercise was strictly undertaken, the Police went to the place of their reported movement. To shorten the narration of events, three of the men, said to be involved in the incident, were seen riding a motorcycle, and upon being challenged to stop, attempted to escape, accelerating the vehicle. They then turned aggressive, when it was apparent that they were surrounded by the police party, and opened fire. The policemen barely escaped unhurt and in the return fire, some of the offenders were injured. They were overpowered and apprehended. The apprehended men disclosed their names as Javed son of Islam, Iqbal son of Rasheed and the third, who was caught after a chase, revealed his name as Raees son of Mumtaj. All of them had firearms on them, besides mobile phones, the details of which are not very relevant to the controversy involved here. All the three were arrested.

9. On 16.03.2025 at 23:12 hours, the arrested men were interrogated, who disclosed that in the night intervening 12/ 13.03.2025, the three of them, along with Waseem @ Gullu son of Saleem and Sameer son of Shamshad (the petitioner), had slaughtered a cow and two calves, that were roaming free, doing this act in the jungle of Village Lavvadaudpur, precisely a sugarcane field. The flesh of the slaughtered progeny of the cow was sold, fetching them a sum of Rs.20,000/- in proceeds. A sum of Rs.5,999/- was utilized to buy a mobile handset, which was recovered from Iqbal and the residue was equally shared by all the offenders. It was also revealed that today when apprehended, they were planning to slaughter cows, roaming free in the jungle. The arrest of the three offenders and whatever they revealed was recorded on a mobile phone by Sub-Inspector Gyanendra Singh, the mobile carrying SID No. 2724984928831148. On the basis of these facts, a separate Crime No.104 of 2025, under Sections 109(1) B.N.S. and 3/25/27 of the Arms Act was registered vide G.D. No. 4 at 2:20 a.m. on 17.03.2025 at P.S. Jhinhana, District Shamli.

10. Next on the information received, the petitioner was arrested on 17.03.2025 at 9:55 a.m. He is a young man of 20 years and a search of his person, led to the recovery of an illicit knife. Upon inquiry being made about the knife, the petitioner is said to have stated that if during a cow slaughter, someone chances upon him, the knife is used to threaten the man away. The petitioner too, upon being interrogated, revealed that he along with his brother-in-law (sister's husband), Javed and his companions Iqbal, Jaane Alam and Gullu, had slaughtered cows in the night intervening 12/13.03.2025 in the jungle of Village Lavvadaudpur. Since those men were caught, the petitioner reportedly said that he was going to a friend to hide himself, but was caught. The petitioner was arrested on the spot and charged with Section 4/25 Arms Act, as he was in the possession of an illicit knife. Later on, being involved in Crime No.99 of 2025, under Section 3/8 of the Act of 1955, he was challaned in that case also.

11. It is also said in the grounds of detention that the petitioner's arrest and recovery were captured on a mobile phone, using the e-evidence application by Head Constable 578 Ashish Kumar, leading to generation of SID No. 2782061293382277. It is also said in the grounds of detention that information of his arrest was given to his family members, whose name was furnished by the petitioner. The memo of arrest and recovery was typed out by the Investigating Officer on his mobile phone, using notepad and forwarded to Head Constable 578 Ashish Kumar on his mobile phone. Two sets of printouts were taken out at Police Chowki Chausana, employing the official printer provided there. Once the printout of the memo of arrest and recovery was available, it was read out to all the members of the police party, who signed the same. A copy of the said memo was provided to the petitioner after securing his acknowledgment on the duplicate. The last of the co-accused Waseem @ Gullu son of Saleem was apprehended after exchange of fire with the Police on 27.03.2025.

12. It is next said in the grounds of detention that news of the cow slaughter in Village Lavvadaudpur spread like wildfire in that village and the adjoining villages of Naya Gaon, Dathaida, Gangarampur, Khedki, Panthupura, Jijaula, Laxmipura, Ballamajra, Toda and Khodsama, leading natives of the said village and workers of various organizations/ Hindu organizations to rush to the spot. Upon seeing the remains of the cow and their progeny, they were enraged. This event coincided with the festival of Holi, which led to religious feelings of the villagers being hurt. They let out their anger by resorting to slogan shouting and blockading the Thana Bhawan-Jhinjhana Road completely. This cause a formidable road jam and on both sides of the blockade, a long queue of vehicles, all standstill was there. The passersby and travellers, caught in this traffic jam, were severely distressed and the public order was completely disturbed. Upon receipt of information, the S.H.O., P.S. Jhinjhana along with police force posted at the Chowki and higher officials of the police reached the spot in order to attempt to pacify the crowd that had gathered there. Police summoned from the adjoining police stations was detailed to duty in maintaining public order and the villagers were assured about the safety and security of their animals, all towards an endeavour to restore public order.

13. The prevalent conditions on the spot are evident from copies of reports registered at Police Chowki Chausana, P.S. Jhinjhana, memoranda handed over to the Police/ Administration by the various Hindu organizations, the material collected in the cases registered, including statements recorded and documentary evidence, besides intelligence collected from the adjoining villages by speaking to the locals there and that secured through informers. It is also said in the grounds that the incident was widely reported in various newspapers, which are annexed to the grounds.

14. It is next mentioned in the grounds that Head Constable 578 Ashish Kumar and Head Constable 361 Mukesh Kumar, upon return from their beat, had got G.D. No.20 at 7:25 p.m. registered, saying that the petitioner had got information conveyed through his close relatives from the jail that he would be soon released on bail by this Court, and upon being released from jail, would again commit cow slaughter and that the Police could not harm him. This beat information was entrusted for investigation to Sub-Inspector Pramod Kumar, who found that the information carried correct facts. In addition, the report submitted by the Local Intelligence Unit dated 29.04.2025 also verified the same facts as carried in the beat report.

15. It is then said in the grounds that the petitioner was in jail in connection with Case Crime No. 99 of 2025, under Section 3/5A/8 of the Act of 1955 and Section 4/25 of the Arms Act, incarcerated in the District Jail, Muzaffar Nagar, but was regularly endeavouring to secure his release on bail. It is noted that a bail application was filed before the Lower Court, which was rejected, and then the Sessions Judge was moved, seeking bail. The Sessions Judge too rejected the petitioner's bail plea. Now, the petitioner had moved this Court and there are strong chances that the petitioner would be enlarged on bail.

16. It is said that the petitioner was consistently endeavouring to secure his release on bail. The fact that the petitioner was so endeavouring is verified by the report of P.S. Jhinhana. The beat information and its verification, besides the Local Intelligence Unit report dated 29.04.2025, also verify the fact. It is next recorded in the grounds that it is, thus, evident that the petitioner's release is nigh. His criminal propensity makes it evident that once released from jail, there is likelihood of commission of such offences that public order in the local limits of P.S. Jhinhana and the adjoining areas would again be vitiated. The detaining Authority then says that on the basis of the aforesaid facts and grounds, he was subjectively satisfied that the petitioner's release from jail could happen soon, and that upon release from jail, there was likelihood of his committing such offences, which are prejudicial to the maintenance of public order. In order to prevent him from acting in a manner prejudicial to the maintenance of public order, it was necessary to detain him.

17. The grounds then go on to inform the petitioner of his right to represent to the District Magistrate and the State Government under Section 8 of the NSA. It was also clearly conveyed that in the event the petitioner wished to exercise his right to represent to the Detaining Authority, he could do so promptly through the Superintendent of Jail, where he was detained. Such a representation, if moved within 12 days or before the approval of the detention by the State Government, whichever was earlier, would be considered by the Detaining Authority. The right to represent to the State Government could be exercised by the petitioner by moving the Secretary, Home Department, Government of U.P., Lucknow, through the Superintendent of the Jail, wherever the petitioner was detained.

18. The grounds further informs the petitioner that under Sections 9 and 10 of the NSA, if he wished to represent his case before the Uttar Pradesh Advisory Board, Lucknow, he could do so through the Registrar, U.P. Advisory Board, Lucknow, addressing him. The representation could be moved through the Superintendent of the Jail, where he was detained. The petitioner was further informed that the matter would be referred to the Advisory Board under Section 10 within three weeks of the petitioner's detention and his representation, if received with delay, would not be considered by the Board. The petitioner was also informed that under Section 11(1) of the NSA, if the Advisory Board thought it fit or the petitioner desired so, he could be heard in person. If the petitioner wanted a personal hearing before the Board, he must specifically mention it in his representation, which would have to be made through the Superintendent of the Jail, where he was detained and presented to the State Government. The petitioner was informed that under Section 14 of the NSA, he had a right to represent his case against the detention to the Central Government. If the petitioner desired to invoke this remedy, he could do so by making a representation, addressed to the Secretary, Home Ministry, Government of India through the Deputy Secretary (Security), Security Department, Sector 11 Building, Jaisingh Road, near Regal Park, Jantar-Mantar, New Delhi, moving the said representation through the Jail Superintendent.

19. On the basis of these grounds, the District Magistrate, Shamli, passed a detention order under Section 3(3) read with Section 3(2) of the NSA, directing the petitioner to be detained in District Jail, Muzaffar Nagar. Since the petitioner's representation against his detention to the Advisory Board was rejected, the State Government, in exercise of their powers under Section 12(1), confirmed the detention order, directing the petitioner to be detained for a period of 12 months w.e.f. 15.05.2025.

20. Aggrieved, this habeas corpus writ petition has been preferred.

21. The writ petition was presented before the Registry on 11.08.2025 and all defects were removed on 19.08.2025. It came up before the Division Bench for admission on 23.08.2025, when a show cause was issued, asking the respondents to answer why the detenu be not set at liberty. By an order dated 22.09.2025, the Union of India was directed to be impleaded. The petition then came up again on 13.10.2025, when the Court noticed that affidavits, so far as the State of U.P. and their officials were concerned, have been exchanged. The petition was admitted and posted for hearing on 28.10.2025. By that time, the Secretary, Ministry of Home, was granted time to file a counter affidavit. The petition was adjourned once on 28.10.2025. On 03.11.2025, the Union of India filed their counter affidavit, but the learned Counsel for the petitioner waived his right to file a rejoinder to the said affidavit.

22. Heard Mr. Narendra Kumar, learned Counsel for the petitioner, Mr. Deepak Mishra, learned A.G.A. on behalf of respondent Nos.1 to 8 and Mr. Manish Kumar Pandey, learned Central Government Counsel, appearing on behalf of the Union of India.

23. The foremost point argued by the learned Counsel for the petitioner is that the grounds of detention in support of the detention order indicate that the petitioner has been detained by the Detaining Authority, exercising jurisdiction under Section 3(3) of the NSA, without application of mind. The next submission is that the offence attributed to the petitioner is a petty offence, triable by Magistrate, which even if established to have been committed by him, would constitute no more than a violation of the law and order. There is no material to show that the petty offence, of which the petitioner was a part, could or did lead to vitiation of public order. Since, there is no case more than that of a violation of the law and order, the prosecution launched against the petitioner would test the petitioner's guilt or otherwise. There is absolutely no basis to invoke the NSA and detain the petitioner without trial, it being evident that there was no violation of public order. It is next argued that there was no material to show that the petitioner, if enlarged on bail, would again indulge in commission of the offence of cow slaughter, endangering the maintenance of public order in future. There being no objective material in this regard, the subjective satisfaction of the detaining Authority is clearly vitiated on account of being based on no material.

24. The petitioner alleges that he represented his case in the exercise of his statutory right to the State Government and the Advisory Board, but there was inordinate delay in the decision of his representations by the Government and the Board, vitiating the detention.

25. Mr. Deepak Mishra, learned A.G.A., has refuted the submissions advanced on behalf of the petitioner and submitted that the detention order has been made well within the requirements of the law. He has taken us through the various affidavits and the material, upon which the order of detention is founded.

26. So far as the submission that the impugned order is one made without application of mind, we do not think that, that is the case. A perusal of the grounds of detention show that there is a copious consideration not only of the crime disclosed in the FIR, giving rise to Crime No.99 of 2025, but the circumstances of the occurrence and its impact in the locale, where the offence was committed, vis-a-vis the issue of public order. All of this has been meticulously considered by the Detaining Authority. This is not a case, where there is a mechanical recital of the fact alone that the offence constitutes a violation of public order, but shows due application of mind to the offence and its impact in the locale on the maintenance of public order. It is also not the case that the Detaining Authority has proceeded to pass the detention order without application of mind to the requirements of the law, after describing the ramifications of the offence in the locale. The Authority has held it to be an act that vitiated public order. It is also remarked by the Authority on the basis of material before it that it was subjectively satisfied that the petitioner was attempting to secure his release on bail and there was likelihood of his being released on bail. It is then said that the material further showed that the petitioner intended to repeat the offence by capturing stray cows, which if done, would again lead to the public order being prejudicially affected. All these features, which figure in the grounds of detention, make it evident that this is not a case, where it can be said that the order of detention has been passed without application of mind. The first point urged by the learned Counsel for the petitioner is, therefore, negatived.

27. This takes us to the next submission that the crime reported against the petitioner, on the foot of which the impugned order of detention has been passed, is no more than an instance of the violation of law and order; not an incident, which prejudicially affects public order, so as to entitle the respondents to detain the petitioner without trial, invoking the provisions of the NSA.

28. We must remark here that in the genesis of every event, that is an infraction of the public order or its vitiation, there is some crime punishable by law, which can always be termed as a violation of law and order. The violation of law and order is, of course, to be punished in accordance with law after prosecuting the offender, but this does not mean that every infraction of the law and order, that spins out of its trouble spot and widely affects the even tempo of life, is to be regarded as a violation of law and order alone. Whether a violation of the law and order would be just that and no more or have a cascading effect, unsettling the even tempo of life in the locale, or even far and wide, is dependent upon the circumstances, the time, the place and the situation, where the infraction is committed. The point is well elucidated in the celebrated decision of the Supreme Court in Ram Manohar Lohia v. State of Bihar and another, AIR 1966 SC 740, where their Lordships of the Constitution Bench held:

"54. We have here a case of detention under Rule 30 of the Defence of India Rules which permits apprehension and detention of a person likely to act in a manner prejudicial to the maintenance of public order. It follows that if such a person is not detained public disorder is the apprehended result. Disorder is no doubt prevented by the maintenance of law and order also but disorder is a broad spectrum which includes at one end small disturbances and at the other the most serious and cataclysmic happenings. Does the expression "public order" take in every kind of disorders or only some of them? The answer to this serves to distinguish "public order" from "law and order" because the latter undoubtedly takes in all of them. Public order if disturbed, must lead to public disorder. Every breach of the peace does not lead to public disorder. When two drunkards quarrel and fight there is disorder but not public disorder. They can be dealt with under the powers to maintain law and order but cannot be detained on the ground that they were disturbing public order. Suppose that the two fighters were of rival communities and one of them tried to raise communal passions. The problem is still one of law and order but it raises the apprehension of public disorder. Other examples can be imagined. The contravention of law always affects order but before it can be said to affect public order, it must affect the community or the public at large. A mere disturbance of law and order leading to disorder is thus not necessarily sufficient for action under the Defence of India Act but disturbances which subvert the public order are. A District Magistrate is entitled to take action under Rule 30(1)(b) to prevent subversion of public order but not in aid of maintenance of law and order under ordinary circumstances.

55. It will thus appear that just as "public order" in the rulings of this Court (earlier cited) was said to comprehend disorders of less gravity than those affecting "security of State", "law and order" also comprehends disorders of less gravity than those affecting "public order". One has to imagine three concentric circles. Law and order represents the largest circle within which is the next circle representing public order and the smallest circle represents security of State. It is then easy to see that an act may affect law and order but not public order just as an act may affect public order but not security of the State. By using the expression "maintenance of law and order" the District Magistrate was widening his own field of action and was adding a clause to the Defence of India Rules.

29. The point is again considered in Arun Ghosh v. State of W.B., (1970) 1 SCC 98, where the concept of public order, as distinguished from law and order, has been eloquently explained by their Lordship thus:

‘3. The submission of the counsel is that these are stray acts directed against individuals and are not subversive of public order and therefore the detention on the ostensible ground of preventing him from acting in a manner prejudicial to public order was not justified. In support of this submission reference is made to three cases of this Court: Dr Ram Manohar Lohia v. State of Bihar [(1966) 1 SCR 709]; Pushkar Mukherjee v. State of W.B. [WP No. 179 of 1968, decided on November 7, 1968: (1969) 1 SCC 10] and Shyamal Chakraborty v. Commissioner of Police, Calcutta [WP No. 102 of 1969, decided on August 4, 1969: (1969) 2 SCC 426]. In Dr Ram Manohar Lohia case [(1966) 1 SCR 709] this Court pointed out the difference between maintenance of law and order and its disturbance and the maintenance of public order and its disturbance. Public order was said to embrace more of the community than law and order. Public order is the even tempo of the life of the community taking the country as a whole or even a specified locality. Disturbance of public order is to be distinguished from acts directed against individuals which do not disturb the society to the extent of causing a general disturbance of public tranquillity. It is the degree of disturbance and its affect upon the life of the community in a locality which determines whether the disturbance amounts only to a breach of law and order. Take for instance, a man stabs another. People may be shocked and even disturbed, but the life of the community keeps moving at an even tempo, however much one may dislike the act. Take another case of a town where there is communal tension. A man stabs a member of the other community. This is an act of a very different sort. Its implications are deeper and it affects the even tempo of life and public order is jeopardized because the repercussions of the act embrace large sections of the community and incite them to make further breaches of the law and order and to subvert the public order. An act by itself is not determinant of its own gravity. In its quality it may not differ from another but in its potentiality it may be very different. Take the case of assault on girls. A guest at a hotel may kiss or make advances to half a dozen chamber maids. He may annoy them and also the management but he does not cause disturbance of public order. He may even have a fracas with the friends of one of the girls but even then it would be a case of breach of law and order only. Take another case of a man who molests women in lonely places. As a result of his activities girls going to colleges and schools are in constant danger and fear. Women going for their ordinary business are afraid of being waylaid and assaulted. The activity of this man in its essential quality is not different from the act of the other man but in its potentiality and in its affect upon the public tranquillity there is a vast difference. The act of the man who molests the girls in lonely places causes a disturbance in the even tempo of living which is the first requirement of public order. He disturbs the society and the community. His act makes all the women apprehensive of their honour and he can be said to be causing disturbance of public order and not merely committing individual actions which may be taken note of by the criminal prosecution agencies. It means therefore that the question whether a man has only committed a breach of law and order or has acted in a manner likely to cause a disturbance of the public order is a question of degree and the extent of the reach of the act upon the society. The French distinguish law and order and public order by designating the latter as ordre publique. The latter expression has been recognised as meaning something more than ordinary maintenance of law and order. Justice Ramaswami in Writ Petition No. 179 of 1968 drew a line of demarcation between the serious and aggravated forms of breaches of public order which affect the community or endanger the public interest at large from minor breaches of peace which do not affect the public at large. He drew an analogy between public and private crimes. The analogy is useful but not to be pushed too far. A large number of acts directed against persons or individuals may total up into a breach of public order. In Dr Ram Manohar Lohia case examples were given by Sarkar and Hidayatullah, JJ. They show how similar acts in different contexts affect differently law and order on the one hand and public order on the other. It is always a question of degree of the harm and its affect upon the community. The question to ask is: Does it lead to disturbance of the current of life of the community so as to amount a disturbance of the public order or does it affect merely an individual leaving the tranquillity of the society undisturbed? This question has to be faced in every case on facts. There is no formula by which one case can be distinguished from another.

30. There are some issues, where the community is sensitive to the extent that if these surface, there is an inherent potentiality of creating widespread ripples in society that would affect the even tempo of life. One of them is cow slaughter. The slaughtering of a cow, whenever reported or detected, spontaneously evokes strong emotions and violent reactions for obvious injury to religious beliefs of a large section of the society. History is replete with instances of profusion of emotions and violence that an incident of this kind entails. And, it is not that these are matters of historical record to be read in books or fancied about in contemporary world. Violent reactions at the happening of cow slaughter are so well reputed that no one can feign ignorance of the fact, violation of the law apart. Public order is after all not about what the intention of the individual was, or what law he has violated. It is about the impact that his act generates. If the act in question is such that it is not confined to one, two or a few individuals, but disturbs the even tempo of life in the locale or may be beyond, in larger areas, prejudice to public order, is certainly there. The particular act of slaughtering a cow, as already remarked, has immediate and widespread ramifications in society, almost always leading to widespread violence that takes toll on a tranquil society and throws life out of gear.

31. There are a series of decisions of this Court, which acknowledge the fact that cow slaughter foments communal tension, brings disharmony and results in a situation, that leads to disturbance of public order. The point is elucidated in a few words in the Bench decision of this Court in Shaukat Ali v. Union of India and others, 2002 SCC OnLine All 1435. In Shaukat Ali (supra), it was held:

‘1. A perusal of the grounds of detention copy of which is Annexure 2, shows that the allegations against the petitioner are that the petitioner had slaughtered a cow and the knife and rods were recovered from him. This incident caused communal tension and hence the impugned detention order was passed.

2. Communal amity and harmony are absolutely essential for the progress of the nation. We cannot afford to have another Gujarat in U.P. Slaughter of cow hurts the sentiments of the Hindus and hence should not be committed. In our opinion cow slaughter affects public order because it is likely to incite communal tension.

3. Hence it is not merely a case of law and order.

32. Again in Tauqeer v. State of U.P. and others, 2002 SCC OnLine All 230, it was held:

‘4. We have carefully perused the detention order and find that the matter certainly pertains to public order and not to law and order. Under our Constitution freedom of religion has been guaranteed as a fundamental right. However the U.P. Prevention of Cow Slaughter Act bans the slaughter of cows and calves. The petitioner has no right to break the law and violate the above

Act. It may be mentioned that nobody has right to do any tiling which may lead to communal tension in the country. In case we permit such activities a situation like in Gujarat may recur again Hindus, rightly or wrongly venerate cows. The Muslims should also respect the sentiments of the Hindus and noticing should be done Which may provoke communal riots. The last thing which country can afford today is inflammation of communal feelings in the Society. The petitioner with his associate could slaughter any other animal but certainly not slaughter cows against the provisions of the Prevention of Cow Slaughter Act as that may create communal tension.

33. In Guddu Panchhi v. District Magistrate, Kanpur Nagar and others, 2004 SCC OnLine All 1847, the following remarks of the Division Bench are relevant:

‘3. Slaughtered cow and she-calf were found lying at the spot. The news of the incident spread in the area like wild fire. Members of the two communities of the society, i.e. Hindus and Muslims collected at the spot in agitated mood and started raising slogans against one another. Communal harmony was disturbed and the atmosphere became tense. The shopkeepers started downing their shutters. People ran helter-skelter. The public order was completely disturbed. S.O. informed the higher authorities on telephone and requisitioned additional force to control the situation. Case Crime No. 217 of 2003 under Sections 3/5/8 of U.P. Cow Slaughter Act was registered against the petitioner and others.

6. Obviously, it is the reaction or fall out of an incident in the society which is determinative as to whether it was only disturbance of law and order or that of public order. In the present case, there was a live link between the alleged criminal activity of the petitioner of cow slaughtering and the purpose of detention. The act was clearly prejudicial to public order as is borne out from the grounds of detention reiterated by respondent No. 1 District Magistrate, Kanpur Nagar in his counter-affidavit. The act of the petitioner offended the religious feelings of a sect of society venerating cow and its progeny, besides being in contravention of U.P. Prevention of Cow Slaughter Act. The incident disturbed the even tempo of the life of the society. Members of two communities thronged the spot, shouting slogans against one another. The shops were closed and public tranquility was disturbed in the area with tempers of the two communities of the society running high. Additional force had to be deployed in the area to restore the confidence of the people and for the return of normalcy. The incident adversely affected the social harmony, created communal tension and disturbed public order of the area. The matter certainly pertains to public order and not to law and order. We, therefore, reject the sole argument advanced by the learned counsel for the petitioner in support of the petition that it was a matter of law and order only

34. Much later in Wasi through Mohd. Rafi v. State of U.P. and others, 2017 SCC OnLine All 1880 in the context of an offence of cow slaughter and its bearing on the disturbance of public order, it was held by a Division Bench of this Court:

‘30. Learned counsel for the petitioner has emphatically argued that the place of incident where cow was slaughtered is not a public place, as such, it cannot be treated as an issue of public order. It is the reaction or fall out of an incident in the society which is determinative, as to whether, it was only disturbance of law and order or that of public order. Admittedly, the cow slaughter in an open place may have offended the religious feeling of a society, it is, therefore, important to see the proportionality of the response to the act complained of and in view of this, the gravity of the act may be given a thought where the body parts of cow were lying open in public view. Where cattle has been slaughtered in public view, which may definitely lead to disturbance of the current life of the community, so as to amount to a disturbance of a public order, communal amity and harmony. Slaughter of cow hurts the sentiments of the Hindus which affects public order because it is likely to incite communal tension, hence, it is not merely a case of law and order but that of public order.

35. We have already noticed the kind of impact that the incident had not only in the village, where it happened, but in the adjoining villages of Naya Gaon, Dathaida, Gangarampur Khedki, Lavvadaudpur, Shamli-Shamla, Panthupura, Jijaula, Ballamajra, Toda, Khodsama and Laxmipura. The aftermath of the slaughter and its discovery by the Police led to the local populace and volunteers of organizations heading to the place of occurrence. They were workers of Hindu organizations as also others, like Pashchimi Uttar Pradesh Sanyukt Udyog Vyapar Mandal and the Akhil Bharatiya Pradhan Sangthan, who participated with the public in staging a blockade on the Thana Bhawan □ Jhinhana Road. It led to a complete traffic jam with passersby and travellers, badly stuck and unable to move. The even tempo of life was thrown out of gear, necessitating the summoning of additional forces from adjoining police stations. In fact, it was after very sensitive and trained persuasions by officers of the Police that public order could be restored. The locals of the village and adjoining villages had to be assured about their safety and security as well as that of their animals.

36. These facts amply show that it was no isolated incident of a violation of the law and order, but one which threw the even tempo of life out of gear. It is the disturbing effect of an incident on serene and tranquil life that determines if it is indeed a violation of public order or a mere breach of law and order. It is not necessary that there should be actual violence, loss of human life and property before an incident can be termed as disturbance of public order. It is disturbance of the daily and ordinary movements of life in the locale, which are the index of vitiation of public order.

37. In the totality of circumstances, we hold that this is decidedly a case where public order was prejudicially affected in consequence of the offence committed by the petitioner. And, it is not a mere case of infraction of law and order.

38. The next point for consideration is if there was material to show that the petitioner, if enlarged on bail, would again indulge in commission of the offence of cow slaughter, endangering the maintenance of public order in future. It is submitted that there is no objective material in this regard, on the foot of which the Detaining Authority could be subjectively satisfied that the petitioner, if enlarged on bail, would again indulge in repetition of the offence, prejudicially affecting public order.

39. The question involved here is part of a wider principle, which relates to preventive detention of persons, already in jail, in connection with the crime, that has given rise to the preventive detention order or some other crime. At some point of time, a question that arose for consideration was, if a man, already in jail, could be preventively detained. He was incarcerated and, therefore, could pose no present danger prejudicially affecting public order. In other words, the question was that as regards a man, already in jail, if the detaining Authority thought of preventively detaining him under the NSA, what would be the principles, upon which the Detaining Authority could rest his subjective satisfaction. This question was answered by the Supreme Court in Kamarunissa v. Union of India and another, (1991) 1 SCC 128, after survey of all relevant authority, thus:

‘13. From the catena of decisions referred to above it seems clear to us that even in the case of a person in custody a detention order can validly be passed (1) if the authority passing the order is aware of the fact that he is actually in custody; (2) if he has reason to believe on the basis of reliable material placed before him (a) that there is a real possibility of his being released on bail, and (b) that on being so released he would in all probability indulge in prejudicial activity and (3) if it is felt essential to detain him to prevent him from so doing. If the authority passes an order after recording his satisfaction in this behalf, such an order cannot be struck down on the ground that the proper course for the authority was to oppose the bail and if bail is granted notwithstanding such opposition, to question it before a higher court. What this Court stated in the case of Ramesh Yadav [(1985) 4 SCC 232 : 1985 SCC (Cri) 514] was that ordinarily a detention order should not be passed merely to pre-empt or circumvent enlargement on bail in cases which are essentially criminal in nature and can be dealt with under the ordinary law. It seems to us well settled that even in a case where a person is in custody, if the facts and circumstances of the case so demand, resort can be had to the law of preventive detention. This seems to be quite clear from the case law discussed above and there is no need to refer to the High Court decisions to which our attention was drawn since they do not hold otherwise. We, therefore, find it difficult to accept the contention of the counsel for the petitioners that there was no valid and compelling reason for passing the impugned orders of detention because the detenus were in custody.

40. These principles have been followed in T.V. Sravanan v. State, (2006) 2 SCC 664 and Champion R. Sangma v. State of Meghalaya, (2015) 16 SCC 253.

41. In this case, as already remarked, the entire gamut of principles summarized by the Supreme Court in Kamarunissa (supra), relating to preventive detention of a man, already in custody, apply. The reason is that it has not been seriously disputed or urged before us that the Detaining Authority was not aware of the fact that the petitioner is actually in custody. More than that, it has also not been urged in this case that the detaining Authority had no reliable material before him, on the basis of which he could infer that there is a real possibility of the petitioner being released on bail. It has, however, been argued that there was no reliable material placed before the Detaining Authority, on the basis of which he could infer that upon being released on bail, the detinue in all probability would indulge in activity, prejudicial to the maintenance of public order. Of course, it is submitted that since there was no reliable material to infer that upon his release, the petitioner would indulge in activity prejudicial to public order, there was no question for the Detaining Authority to think that it was essential to detain him from going about his misadventure. What emerges, therefore, is that the petitioner's submission is an effort to establish that there was no reliable material, on the foot of which, the Detaining Authority could think that upon his release from prison on being granted bail, the petitioner would again act in a manner that would vitiate public order.

42. In the grounds of detention, it has figured that on 30.04.2025, Head Constable 578 Ashish Kumar and Head Constable 361 Mukesh Kumar, upon return from their beat, got G.D. No.20 registered at 17:25 hours, mentioning therein that while in jail, the petitioner had sent information through persons close to him that he was about to be released on bail by this Court, and on being emancipated from jail, he would indulge in cow slaughter. The Police can do him no harm. This beat information was investigated by Sub-Inspector Pramod Kumar and found to be true. There is also a report dated 29.04.2025, given by the Local Intelligence Unit, which affirms the fact that the Beat Constables had reported. Now, this is certainly reliable material, on the basis of which the Detaining Authority could form his subject satisfaction that the petitioner, if released on bail, would in all probability indulge in activity prejudicial to the maintenance of public order. He would in all likelihood repeat the same kind of offence, disturbing the even tempo of life.

43. One has to bear in mind that the offence committed by the petitioner was not an offence of the ordinary violent kind, that affected the life of one individual or a group of them, unconcerned with the stable life of the community, which would go on unruffled by his actions. He had committed an act that aroused public outrage amongst a large section of the population in the locale, whose religious feelings were hurt. This kind of an offence, if repeated again, about which the Detaining Authority had material to believe that it could be done by the petitioner upon his release, would certainly imperil the even tempo of life of the locality, and, a fortiori public order. In this regard, the nature of the offence has to be borne in mind very discretely. The offence committed by the petitioner, about which we have already spoken, produces almost spontaneous violence and resentment from one section of the community and, therefore, the Detaining Authority was absolutely justified in thinking that the petitioner, upon his release from jail, could indulge in activity, prejudicial to the maintenance of public order. The contention to the contrary, put forward on behalf of the petitioner that there was no such possibility or no reliable material to draw that inference, is stated to be rejected under the circumstances obtaining.

44. This brings us to the last point urged on behalf of the petitioner and that is that there was inordinate delay in the decision of his representations by the State Government and the Advisory Board, vitiating his detention.

45. There is a complete calendar of events in paragraph Nos.3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9 and 10 of counter affidavit filed on behalf of Respondent no. 1 and 2, explaining the time taken by the State Government in disposing of the petitioner's representation and that by the Advisory Board, where the petitioner was heard in person on 28.05.2025. The State Government approved the detention on 23.05.2025, when it was sent to it by the District Magistrate on 16.05.2025. The approval was communicated to the petitioner through the District Authorities by the State Government's radiogram and letter, both dated 23.05.2025, within 12 days from the date of detention. The copy of the detention order, together with the grounds and documents, were forwarded to the Central Government by the State Government under Section 3(5) of the NSA. The petitioner submitted his representation dated 25.05.2025, which was received by the State Government on 06.06.2025. It was sent to the Advisory Board and the Central Government under covering memoranda dated 12.06.2025. Thereafter, the State Government considered the representation of the petitioner on 18.08.2025. It was examined by the Joint Secretary on 18.08.2025, and on the same day, by the Special Secretary (Home) and the Secretary (Home), Government of U.P., Lucknow, also on 18.08.2025. It was submitted to the higher Authorities for final orders of the State Government and rejected on 18.08.2025. It was communicated to the petitioner by the State Government's radiogram dated 19.08.2025. In the rejoinder affidavit, filed in response to the State Government's counter affidavit, it is not at all pointed out by the petitioner as to where unexplained delay occurred, which might vitiate the detention order.

46. In the circumstances, we are of opinion that there is no infirmity in the order impugned, directing the petitioner's detention under the NSA.

47. This habeas corpus writ petition fails and is dismissed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Yogendra Kumar Srivastava, J.)

1. Heard Sri Avinash Pandey, learned counsel for the applicant and Sri Aditya Pratap Mishra, learned counsel for the opposite party.

2. Present application has been preferred by the Applicant-wife under Section 24 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, seeking transfer of Case No.21 of 2023 (Vivek Kumar vs. Smt. Vinita), instituted under Section 13 of the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955 from the Court of the Principal Judge, Family Court, Baghpat to the Court of the Principal Judge, Family Court, Shamli.

3. The order-sheet of the case indicates that on 03.08.2023, when the case was taken up, this Court, upon considering the submissions made on behalf of the applicant that she is residing with her father at Shamli and that as per the applicant, the divorce petition had been filed by the respondent in the Family Court at Baghpat with a view to harass the applicant, and also taking note of the fact that the applicant is a deserted wife, having no source of income to meet the litigation expenses and other expenses which are to be incurred in traveling from Shamli to Baghpat, directed issuance of notice and stayed the further proceedings of the divorce suit.

4. The facts as pleaded on behalf of the applicant-wife indicate that the opposite party filed a petition under Section 13 of the Hindu Marriage Act 1955 before the Court of Principal Judge, Family Court, Baghpat, seeking a declaration that the marriage dated 15.03.2020 be dissolved. The said petition was registered as Case No.21 of 2023 (Vivek Kumar vs. Smt. Vinita). Notice of the said proceedings had been served upon the applicant and the matter is pending before the Family Court, Baghpat.

5. The applicant is stated to be presently residing at her parental home. According to the applicant, attending the proceedings at Baghpat would cause inconvenience and grave hardship to her. In these circumstances, the present application under Section 24 of the Code of Civil Procedure has been filed, seeking transfer of the divorce petition pending before the Family Court, Baghpat.

6. Counsel appearing for the opposite party, without admitting the allegations made by the applicant, has very fairly submitted that he has instructions to state that the opposite party does not object to the transfer of the case to Shamli, as sought by the applicant.

7. This Court, in its recent decisions in Smt. Akansha Saxena v. Shikhar Saxena, 2026 (3) ADJ 104, and Smt. Arju @ Vimal v. Umakant Parasar, 2026 (3) ADJ 66 has observed that in matrimonial cases, the convenience of the wife must be looked into; the cardinal principle for exercise of power under Section 24 CPC being that the ends of justice should be subserved.

8. In view of the aforesaid discussions, and particularly in view of the hardship that has been pleaded by the applicant and the categorical "No Objection" expressed on behalf of the Opposite Party, this Court is of the considered opinion that the present case is a fit one for exercise of power under Section 24 CPC. The transfer sought, being by consent of the parties and in furtherance of justice, deserves to be allowed.

9. Accordingly, Civil Misc. Transfer Application is allowed with the following directions :

(i) The proceedings of Case No.21 of 2023 (Vivek Kumar vs. Smt. Vinita) instituted under Section 13 of the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955, are hereby withdrawn from the Court of the Principal Judge, Family Court, Baghpat and transferred to the Court of the Principal Judge, Family Court, Shamli.

(ii) The Principal Judge, Family Court, Baghpat is directed to transmit the entire case record to the Transferee Court at District Shamli within fifteen days from the date of receipt of a certified copy of this order.

(iii) The Transferee Court shall proceed with the matter from the stage at which it was transferred and shall endeavor to conclude the proceedings expeditiously.

Appearances for Parties

Counsel for Applicant(s) : S.K. Tripathi

Counsel for Opposite Party(s) : G.A.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Subhash Vidyarthi, J.)

1. Heard Sri S. K. Tripathi, the learned counsel for the applicant, Sri Vishal Agarwal, the learned A.G.A. appearing on behalf of the State and perused the records.

2. By means of the instant application filed under Section 447, Bhartiya Nagrik Suraksha Sanhita (BNSS), the applicant has sought transfer of Case No.13990 of 2025, arising out of Case Crime No. 101 of 2025 under Sections 85, 115(2), 352, 351(2) B.N.S. and Section 3/4 of Dowry Prohibition Act, Police Station Mill Area, District Raebareli from the Court of Chief Judicial Magistrate, Raebareli to the Court of Chief Judicial Magistrate, Hardoi.

3. It has been pleaded in the transfer application that the applicant got married to the opposite party no. 4 on 22.06.2022 at Raibareli. She stayed at her sasural for about 1 months. Thereafter she went to her maternal house at Hardoi and returned after 15 days. She kept visiting her maternal house with the consent of the opposite parties. The opposite party no. 4 is working as a tube-well operator at District Jaunpur, but his family resides at Raibareli. After sometime, her husband and his family members started ill-treating her for demanding dowry. She was beaten up on 16.03.2025 and she lodged an F.I.R. on 18.03.2025 against her father-in-law, mother-in-law and husband (the opposite parties no. 2 to 4 respectively) and the husband's sister Ritika Tripathi.

4. The allegations levelled against Ritika Tripathi could not be established in investigation and a charge-sheet dated 15.04.2025 was filed only against the opposite parties no. 2 to 4. The Magistrate took cognizance of the offence on 06.08.2025.

5. The applicant has alleged that the accused persons have been enlarged on bail and during that, when the applicant and her brother opposed the bail application, they were threatened by the opposite parties no. 2 to 4. The applicant and her brother were gheroad and threatened for withdrawing the case when they had gone to attend the date fixed on 06.03.2026 and they were forced to leave without meeting their Counsel.

On 09.03.2026, the applicant has sent a complaint to the police stating that while she was going to attend the proceedings of the case, the opposite party no. 2 and 4 and five other unknown persons stopped and abused them and they had beaten them up with kicks and fists and threatened to kill them, unless they entered into a compromise.

6. The applicant has filed Complaint No. 2913 of 2025 under Section 12 of the Protection of Women in the Court of Civil Judge (J.D.) / F.T.C. Mahila, Hardoi.

7. The applicant has pleaded that she is unable to take part in the proceedings in the Court of CJM Raibareli due to financial constraints and threats of the opposite party nos. 2 to 4.

8. The applicant has filed a supplementary affidavit annexing therewith a copy of the FIR lodged by her and a copy of some extracts of the case diary. It contains a narration of her medical examination report dated 16.03.2025, which mentions an abrasion of 1cmX0.5cm, 2 cm below right eye and restricted movement of right thumb. The injuries were opined to be simple in nature and the duration of injury was one day.

9. Copies of the statements of the applicant, her brother and the land-lord of the house which was the applicant's matrimonial home at Raibareli, have also been annexed with the supplementary affidavit. The applicant and her brother reiterated the FIR version but the landlord has stated that the applicant is working in Kasturba Gandhi Vidyalay, Hardoi. The opposite party no.4 is working as Operator in Tube-well Department at Jaunpur. The other accused Ritika Tripathi had got married on 11.12.2020. She has not stayed with the applicant at any point of time and she has falsely been implicated.

10. It is relevant to note that the applicant has stated in para 6 of the application that her husband (the opposite party no.4) is working as a tube well operator at Jaunpur and he is permanent resident of District Raebareli. She has stated that she was forced to leave her matrimonial house at Raebareli and having no other place to live she has taken shelter at her brother's house at District Hardoi. However, while she stated that she is unable to attend the proceedings of the case at District Raebareli due to financial constraints, she did not disclose her financial status and the source of earning.

11. It has been stated in the supplementary affidavit that the applicant is working as a teacher in Kasturba Gandhi Awasiya Balika Vidyalay, Hardoi. Therefore, the averment made in the transfer application that the applicant will not be able to attend the proceedings due to financial constraints, is false and baseless.

12. The learned counsel for the applicant has submitted that the above stated facts make out a case for transfer of the criminal case instituted by the applicant at Raibareli to Hardoi. He has placed reliance on a judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Anjali Ashok Sidhwani Vs. Ashok Kishinchand Sidhwani: (2009) 16 SCC 188, and a decision of a coordinate Bench of this court in the case of Sonam Rai v. State of U.P.: 2023 SCC OnLine All 4344.

13. In Anjali Ashok Sidhwani Vs. Ashok Kishinchand Sidhwani (supra), the Hon'ble Supreme court has transferred the proceedings of the a suit from the Family Court at Indore, Madhya Pradesh to the Family Court at Bandra in Mumbai keeping in view the distance between the two places which was about 900 kms and there was nobody in the family of the wife who could escort her from Mumbai to Indore for attending the cases. In the present case, the applicant is seeking transfer of the case from Raebareli to Hardoi and the distance between the two cities is merely 195 kms. The applicant has stated that she has taken shelter of house of her brother and it is not her case that there is no one in her family of the applicant who can escort her from Hardoi to Raebareli. Therefore, the applicant cannot get any benefit from the order in the case of Anjali Ashok Sidhwani Vs. Ashok Kishinchand Sidhwani (supra) because of the difference in the facts of the two cases.

14. The case of Sonam Rai Vs. State of U.P. and another (supra) arose from an application for transfer the entire proceedings of a Criminal Case instituted on a complaint filed under Sections 498-A, 323, 504, 506, 120-B IPC and Section 3/4 Dowry Prohibition Act filed on 27.08.2019 before the learned Judicial Magistrate, Azamgarh. In spite of the statements under Sections 200 and 202 Cr.P.C. having been recorded, the opposite party nos. 2 to 6 had not been summoned till decision of the transfer application on 04.04.2023. The applicant was originally a resident of District Azamgarh and at the time of filing the transfer application, she was residing at District Mau while the opposite party no. 2 (husband) was a resident of District Azamgarh. The coordinate Bench allowed the transfer application on the following submissions: -

14. Learned counsel for the applicant submits that she is a poor lady having no source of income and depends upon the income of her father, who also bears the liability of other family members. The applicant herself has a minor daughter aged about four years. The father of the applicant is an old person who is unable to attend the court on every date with the applicant and in absence of him, the opposite party nos. 2 to 6 regularly threatened her, when she goes to attend the court alone. Thus, life of the applicant is not safe in view of the previous conduct of the opposite party nos. 2 to 6. Due to fear of opposite party nos. 2 to 6 as well as their family members, she could not face the trial in District Azamgarh. In these circumstances, there is apprehension to her life keeping in view the previous conduct of opposite party nos. 2 to 6. The opposite party nos. 2 to 6 have good relation with anti social elements and they are waiting the occasion to take revenge from the applicant if she goes to Azamgarh for doing pairvi of the case in question. She is also not able to bear the expenses of pairvi of the case.?

15. In the present case, the applicant has pleaded in the transfer application that she got married to the opposite party no. 4 on 22.06.2022 at Raibareli, she stayed at her sasural for about 1 months only. Although she has stated that the opposite party no. 4 is working as a tube-well operator at District Jaunpur, the applicant has concealed the fact that she is working as a teacher in Kasturba Gandhi Vidyalay, Hardoi.

16. The applicant has pleaded that she kept visiting her maternal house at Hardoi, but this pleading appears to be false, as a person working as a teacher in Kasturba Gandhi Vidyalay, Hardoi has to reside at Hardoi to be available there permanently.

17. While serving at Hardoi, the applicant herself filed the FIR at Raibareli regarding the offences that had allegedly committed at Raibareli. She had leveled allegations against her married sister-in-law Ritika Tripathi, which were found to be false in investigation.

18. While concealing the fact that the applicant is working as an assistant teacher in Kasturba Gandhi Vidyalay, Hardoi, she has pleaded in the transfer application that she will not be able to attend the proceedings due to financial constraints. Apparently this plea is false and baseless, as a teacher working in Kasturba Gandhi Vidyalay cannot claim that she cannot attend the proceedings initiated by herself at District Raibareli because of financial constraints.

19. The other ground taken in the transfer application is that the applicant and her brother were threatened by the accused persons on the date fixed on 06.03.2026. However, in the complaint dated 09.03.2026 sent to the police, the applicant stated that while she was going to attend the proceedings of the case on 07.03.2026, the opposite party no. 2 and 4 and five other unknown persons had stopped and abused them and they had beaten them up with kicks and fists and had threatened to kill them.

20. The presence of five other persons has not been mentioned in the transfer application. The discrepancy in the date of the incident is also relevant to be noted. There is no independent witness of the incident. There is no medical report to support the allegations. From these facts, it appears that the applicant has cooked up a story merely to create a ground for transfer.

21. Any person should approach a Court of law with clean hands and should not conceal or suppress any fact and should not make any misstatement of facts. In V. Chandrasekaran v. Administrative Officer: (2012) 12 SCC 133, the Hon^{ble} Supreme Court held that: -

44. The appellants have not approached the court with clean hands, and are therefore, not entitled for any relief. Whenever a person approaches a court of equity, in the exercise of its extraordinary jurisdiction, it is expected that he will approach the said court not only with clean hands but also with a clean mind, a clean heart and clean objectives. Thus, he who seeks equity must do equity. The legal maxim jure naturae aequum est neminem cum alterius detrimento et injuria fieri locupletiores, means that it is a law of nature that one should not be enriched by causing loss or injury to another?.

22. As has been noted above, the applicant has made both concealment and mis-statement of facts in the transfer application and yet she has failed to make out a ground for transfer of the criminal case filed by herself at Raibareli, to Hardoi.

23. The learned Counsel for the applicant lastly requested that there is a possibility of an amicable settlement of the dispute through the process of mediation and for this purpose, notice be issued to the opposite party. Mediation between the parties is possible in the pending case under Section 12 of the Protection of Women from Domestic Violence Act also and it is not necessary to multiply the proceedings and for a merely for making a reference to the mediation and conciliation center of this Court.

24. Moreover, there would only be a chance of success in the mediation when the parties participate with clean hands, a clean mind, a clean heart and clean objectives. It appears that no fruitful purpose will be served by referring the dispute to mediation when the applicant has approached this Court by making concealment and misstatements of facts.

25. For the foregoing discussions, I am of the considered view that the transfer application lacks merit and the same is accordingly dismissed.

Issue(s) for consideration

- (a) In the inquiry report, if it is found that the charges are not proved, whether it can be said that no disciplinary proceeding is pending against an employee?
- (b) When would the pendency of criminal proceedings be said to become effective?
- (c) What is the precise legal threshold or date upon which a criminal proceeding is considered "pending" to justify or maintain a sealed cover procedure under U.P. Government Orders?
- (d) Whether the pendency of the matter for sanction of criminal prosecution would have any bearing on consideration of the promotion of an employee, by the DPC?

Headnotes

A. Service Law – Greator NOIDA Industrial Development Authority Service Regulations, 1993: Regulation 75 - The petitioner, Braham Singh, was appointed as an Assistant Manager (Civil) in the Greater NOIDA Industrial Development Authority in 2002 and climbed through the ranks to Manager Grade I by 2014. An adversarial complaint was lodged against him on 13.08.2014. He was completely exonerated by the State Government in departmental inquiry (Report dated 14.03.2018). However, following the introduction of the centralized service rules in June 2018 (making the State Government the official appointing authority), a second inquiry on the exact same charges was launched in August 2019. The inquiry officer in this second proceeding also found that the charges were not proved (Report dated 24.10.2019). (Para 26)

While the second inquiry report was awaiting final consideration by the disciplinary authority, the Departmental Promotion Committee (DPC) met on 24.12.2020, to consider promotions to Senior Manager (Civil). Due to the structural pendency of the disciplinary proceeding, the DPC adopted the "sealed cover procedure" for the petitioner, and his junior was promoted on 29.12.2020. In January 2022, the State Government disagreed with the inquiry officer's clean chit and awarded the petitioner a punishment of 'censure'. This censure was subsequently quashed by the State Public Services Tribunal in May 2023, and on 11.04.2025, the State Government formally cancelled the censure order entirely. Simultaneously, a vigilance/criminal anti-corruption investigation was underway; prosecution sanction was granted on 18.11.2022, and a criminal charge sheet was filed before the Special Judge, Anti-Corruption, Meerut, on 10.10.2023.

After his departmental censure was cancelled, the petitioner filed a representation on 16.04.2025, requesting that his sealed cover be opened and he be promoted retrospectively from the date his junior was promoted. The State Government rejected this representation on 12.06.2025, citing the ongoing, active anti-corruption criminal case. The petitioner challenged this rejection in the High Court.

B. In the inquiry report, if it is found that the charges are not proved, whether it can be said that no disciplinary proceeding is pending against an employee?

This Court examines the two main grounds taken while passing the order impugned herein. First, from the disciplinary proceedings instituted against the petitioner, it reveals that when the DPC was convened on 24.12.2020, the inquiry report was in motion, wherein the inquiry officer found that the charges were not proved against the petitioner. The law is very clear on this point that it is not the pendency of the inquiry proceeding, but the pendency of the disciplinary proceeding, which is to be considered, while considering the provisions of clauses (2) and (3) of the GO dated 28.5.1997. The same clearly speaks about the pendency of 'disciplinary proceedings', and therefore, if the inquiry officer reaches to the conclusion that no charges are proved against an employee, that does not mean that no disciplinary proceeding is pending against such an employee. Therefore, this Court finds that the DPC, which was convened on 24.12.2020, has rightly resorted to the procedure of sealed cover. The fact remains that the inquiry proceeding, which was instituted by the State Government, has been concluded, and the petitioner was awarded the punishment of 'Censure', though at a subsequent stage, i.e., on 11.4.2025, the State Government canceled the punishment of censure awarded on 25.1.2022. Thus, it is abundantly clear that no departmental proceeding is pending against the petitioner as of now. (Para 28)

C. When would the pendency of criminal proceedings be said to become effective?

Coming to the second issue, which, in fact, is in the way of opening of the sealed cover, is that the criminal proceedings are pending against the petitioner. The counter-affidavit filed by the State Government reveals that the prosecution sanction was granted, on 18.11.2022, and the charge sheet was submitted on 10.10.2023. Admittedly, the DPC for promotion of the Senior Manager (Civil) was held on 24.12.2020, and till that period of time, no criminal proceeding was initiated. Clause 2(c) of the GO dated 28.5.1997, is abundantly clear that once the charge sheet is submitted in the court, by the prosecution, that would be the date, which will be considered for the pendency of criminal proceedings. (Para 29)

D. Sealed cover procedure can be resorted to only after the charge memo is served upon the concerned official, in contemplation of the disciplinary proceeding or a charge sheet is filed before the criminal court, in a criminal proceeding. In the present case, the charge sheet was submitted in a criminal prosecution, in the court, on 10.10.2023. It is settled law that no sealed cover proceeding could be undertaken, if, on the date of the DPC, no charge sheet had been issued in the matter of departmental proceedings, and in a criminal case, the charge sheet had not been submitted before the court concerned. In the instant case, when the DPC was held, chargesheet was not submitted in the court, thus, the criminal proceeding cannot be said to be pending. (para 30)

E. Whether the pendency of the matter for sanction of criminal prosecution would have any bearing on consideration of the promotion of an employee, by the DPC?

The pendency of sanction of criminal prosecution would not suffice to enable the authorities to adopt the sealed cover procedure. So far as the present case is concerned, though the application for the prosecution's sanction was pending, but the decision was taken on 18.11.2022, that too after the DPC was convened on 24.12.2020, and therefore, the sanction of prosecution will not make any difference, for consideration of promotion of an employee, by the D.P.C. Thus, the fact that the sanction of prosecution was pending, would have no adversarial effect on, for consideration of promotion of the petitioner. (Para 31)

The provisions of GO dated 28.5.1997, has escaped the attention of the authorities for considering the case of the petitioner, in its right perspective. The order impugned dated 12.6.2025 is quashed. (Para 32, 33)

Writ petition allowed. (E-4)

Appearances for Parties

For Petitioner(s): Vijay Kumar Srivastava

For Respondent(s): C.S.C., Manoj Sahu

(Delivered by Hon'ble Shree Prakash Singh, J.)

1. Heard Mr. Vijay Kumar Srivastava, learned counsel for the petitioner and Mr. Brijendra Singh, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel for the State.

2. By means of the present writ petition, the petitioner has challenged the order dated 12.6.2025 passed by the respondent no.1 whereby the representation of the petitioner for promotion to the post of Senior Manager (Civil) has been rejected.

3. The brief factual matrix of the case is that the petitioner had initially been appointed as Assistant Manager (Civil) in the department of Greater NOIDA Industrial Development Authority, Gautam Buddha Nagar, on 13.9.2002 and he was promoted to the post of Manager Grade II on 10.3.2008 and thereafter to the post of Manager Grade I within (Project), on 14.11.2014. The wife of the brother of the petitioner, namely, Smt. Suresh Devi, lodged an F.I.R. on 11.6.2014 against several accused persons, out of which one accused, namely, Tarun, being whimsical filed a complaint against the petitioner, on 13.8.2014, before the Principal Secretary to the Chief Minister, U.P. and Director, Enforcement Directorate, U.P.

4. Thereafter, by the order dated 1.10.2014, a departmental inquiry was instituted by the State Government on the above-stated complaint, and the petitioner was asked to submit a reply, vide letter dated 3.11.2014. In response thereto, a reply was submitted by the petitioner on 16.12.2014, whereupon the inquiry officer submitted his report on 14.3.2018, wherein the petitioner was exonerated from the charges leveled against him.

5. The appointing authority, being satisfied with the inquiry report, dropped the inquiry proceedings and submitted a report to the State Government vide letter dated 27.6.2018 but, since, in the meantime, the Uttar Pradesh Industrial Development Authorities Centralized Services Rules, 2018 (hereinafter referred to as 'the Rules 2018') were promulgated, which came into effect on 22.6.2018, wherein the State Government was made the appointing authority of the petitioner, therefore, another inquiry was instituted against the petitioner on 14.8.2019, under the Rules of 1999, on the basis of the same complaint dated 14.8.2014, and the charge sheet was served upon the petitioner on 14.8.2019, with the charges that the petitioner did not inform the competent authority about the properties and cars purchased by him during the period from 16.9.2002 to 18.12.2015, wherein the reply was submitted by the petitioner on 30.9.2019 and the inquiry officer submitted his inquiry report on 24.10.2019 wherein the charges leveled against the petitioner were not found proved.

6. In the meantime, the Departmental Promotion Committee (hereinafter referred to as 'the DPC') was held on 24.12.2020, and the decision with respect to the promotion of the petitioner was kept in a sealed cover, while adopting the sealed cover procedure, on the ground that the departmental proceeding is pending against him and on the basis of the recommendation of the DPC, the person junior to the petitioner, namely, Anil Kumar Jauhri, was promoted to the post of Senior Manager (Civil), vide promotion letter dated 29.12.2020.

7. On 15.12.2021, the respondent no.1, issued a show cause notice to the petitioner, thereby mentioning disagreement with the inquiry report dated 24.10.2019, on the ground that the UP Government Servant Conduct Rules, 1956 (hereinafter referred to as 'the Conduct Rules 1956') are applicable to the employees of the Authority, in the light of Regulation 75 of Greater NOIDA Industrial Development Authority Service Regulations, 1993 (hereinafter referred to as 'the Regulations, 1993'), therefore, the petitioner has violated the provisions of Rule 24(3) of the Conduct Rules, 1956. After the aforesaid show cause notice was issued to the petitioner, he submitted his reply on 23.12.2021.

8. Considering the reply of the petitioner, on 25.1.2022 the respondent no.1/the State Government, passed the punishment order awarding the punishment of 'censure' to the petitioner, which was challenged by the petitioner in Claim Petition No. 1264 of 2022 with the prayer to quash the punishment order and also to direct the respondents to promote the petitioner on the post of Senior Manager (Project), with effect from the date, junior to the petitioner, namely, Anil Kumar Jauhri, was promoted, i.e., on 29.12.2020.

9. The learned Tribunal, after considering all the facts and circumstances, allowed the claim petition, vide judgment and order dated 17.5.2023 and quashed the punishment order dated 25.1.2022, while giving liberty to the respondents to issue fresh show cause notice and pass appropriate order within three months.

10. The facts remains that on the basis of the complaint dated 13.8.2014, with the same set of charges, a vigilance inquiry was also instituted by the respondent no.1, wherein prosecution sanction was granted on 18.11.2022, and the charge sheet was filed on 10.10.2023.

11. After the aforesaid judgment and order was passed by the Tribunal, when the respondent authority did not comply, the petitioner filed Contempt Petition No.37 of 2024, before the Tribunal, wherein notices were issued on 6.2.2024, whereafter on 4.11.2024, the respondent no.1 issued a show cause notice to the petitioner without seeking permission of the Court.

12. The show cause notice was challenged in Writ-A No.10861 of 2024, wherein an interim order was passed on 13.12.2024, providing that 'until further orders, no action would be taken by the respondents in pursuance to the notice dated 4.11.2024, against the petitioner. Thereafter, on 11.4.2025, the respondent no.1 passed the order, canceling the punishment of 'censure' awarded to the petitioner, on 25.12.2022. The petitioner preferred a representation before respondent no.1, on 16.4.2025, requesting that the petitioner be promoted to the post of Senior Manager, (Civil), with effect from the date, his junior was promoted, after opening the sealed cover, whereupon, the impugned order dated 12.6.2025 has been passed by the State Government, rejecting the claim of the petitioner made through representation dated 16.4.2025.

13. The contention put forth by the learned counsel for the petitioner is that the petitioner, after his initial appointment to the post of Assistant Manager (Civil), was promoted to Manager Grade II and thereafter Manager Grade I, and he is working in the Department to the best satisfaction of his superiors, and his career remained unblemished. He submitted that because of the annoyance of the complainant from bhabhi of the petitioner, who lodged FIR against several accused persons and out of whom, one Tarun, made complaint against the petitioner, under annoyance on 13.8.2014, and the inquiry proceeded against the petitioner and the inquiry officer, after conducting the inquiry, submitted its report while observing that no charge was found proved and thereafter, the matter was kept on pending with the appointing/disciplinary authority, but in the meantime, on 24.12.2020, the DPC was convened for the promotion to the post of Senior Manager (Civil), and uptill the DPC was convened, the factual position was that the inquiry officer did not find any charge proved against the petitioner, though the DPC has wrongly undertaken the sealed cover proceeding so far as the promotion of the petitioner is concerned.

14. He further submitted that after the Rules of 2018 were promulgated by the State Government, the State was made the appointing authority for the petitioner and thereafter, another inquiry was instituted by the State, wherein the punishment of 'censure' was awarded, though after filing the claim petition, the order was passed thereafter, the contempt petition was instituted, which resulted cancellation of the punishment order dated 25.1.2022. The order of punishment was cancelled on 11.4.2025, therefore, the petitioner had rightly moved a representation on 16.4.2025 for consideration of his promotion to the post of Senior Manager (Civil), but without application of mind, and in an arbitrary manner, the representation of the petitioner has been rejected by the order dated 12.6.2025.

15. Adding his arguments, he submitted that the show cause notice dated 4.11.2024 was issued to the petitioner, in compliance with the order dated 17.5.2023, passed by the learned Tribunal, i.e., after more than five and a half months of the order passed, which vitiates the proceedings of show cause notice in light of the judgment and order rendered in the case of Abhishek Prabhakar Awasthi Vs. New India Assurance Company, reported in 2014 (32) LCD 405.

16. Learned counsel for the petitioner has emphasized that since on the date of consideration of the promotion by the DPC, , i.e., on 24.12.2020, the report of the inquiry officer was in effect, wherein it was found that no charges were proved against the petitioner, and therefore, there was no inquiry pending as such or any adversarial fact available against the petitioner so as to lead the occasion for the DPC, adopting the sealed cover procedure. In support of his contention, he has placed reliance on a judgment rendered in the case of Union of India (UOI) and others versus K.V. Jankiraman and others reported in AIR 1991 SC 2010 and has referred to paragraph 6 of the judgment, which is extracted as under:-

"On the first question, viz., as to when for the purposes of the sealed cover procedure the Tribunal has held that it is only when a charge-memo in a disciplinary proceedings the disciplinary/criminal proceedings can be said to have commenced, the Full Bench of or a charge-sheet in a criminal prosecution is issued to the employee that it can be said that the departmental proceedings/criminal prosecution is initiated against the employee. The sealed cover procedure is to be resorted to only after the charge memo/charge-sheet is issued. The pendency of preliminary investigation prior to that procedure. We are in agreement with the Tribunal on this point. The contention not be sufficient to enable the authorities to adopt the sealed cover advanced by the learned Counsel for the appellant-authorities that when there are serious allegations and it takes time to collect necessary evidence to prepare and issue charge-memo/charge-sheet, it would not be in the Interest of the purity of administration to reward the employee with a promotion, increment etc. does not impress us. The acceptance of this contention would result in Injustice to the employees in many cases. As has been the experience so far, the preliminary investigations take an inordinately long time and particulariv when they are initiated at the instance of the Interested persons, they are kept pending deliberately. Many times they never result in the issue of any charge-memo/charge-sheet. If the allegations are serious and the authorities are keen in investigating them, ordinarily it should not take much time to collect the relevant evidence and finalise the charges. What is further, if the charges are that serious, the authorities have the power to suspend the employee under the relevant rules, and the suspension by itself permits a resort to the sealed cover procedure. The authorities thus are not without a remedy.

It was then contended on behalf of the authorities that conclusions nos 1 and 4 of the Full Bench of the Tribunal are inconsistent with each other. Those conclusions are as follows:

(1) consideration for promotion, selection grade, crossing the efficiency bar or higher scale of pay cannot be withheld merely on the ground of pendency of a disciplinary or criminal proceedings against an official;

(4) the sealed cover procedure can be resorted only after a charge memo is served on the concerned official or the charge sheet filed before the criminal Court and not before.

There is no doubt that there is a seeming contradiction between the two conclusions. But read harmoniously, and that is what the Full Bench has intended, the two conclusions can be reconciled with each other. The conclusion No. 1 should be read to mean that the promotion etc. cannot be withheld merely because some disciplinary/criminal proceedings are pending against the employee. To deny the said benefit, they must be at the relevant time pending at the stage when charge-memo/charge-sheet has already been issued to the employee. Thus read, there is no Inconsistency in the two conclusions. We, therefore, repel the challenge of the appellant-authorities to the said finding of the Full Bench of the Tribunal."

17. Placing reliance on the aforesaid judgment, he submitted that the Hon'ble Supreme Court has held that pending of a preliminary investigation will not be sufficient to enable the authorities to adopt sealed cover procedure, and after the aforesaid judgment and order was passed, the Government of UP issued an exhaustive Government Order dated 28.5.1997, wherein in clauses 2, 3, and 4, the grounds for adopting sealed cover procedure have been given. Clauses (2), (3) & (4) of the Government Order dated 28.5.1997 are extracted as under:-

"(२) उपरोक्तानुसार विचार कर चयन समिति द्वारा स्पष्ट संस्तुति की जायेगी परन्तुचयन समिति की संस्तुति को निम्नलिखित परिस्थितियों में(चाहेचयन समिति द्वारा सम्बन्धित कार्मिक को प्रोन्नति केलिए संस्तुत किया गया हो या नहीं) अर्थात्दोनों ही दशाओं मेंकार्यवृत्त मेंअंकित नहीं किया जायेगा वरन्ऐसेकार्मिक केसम्बन्ध में कार्यवृत्त मेंमात्र यह अंकित करतेहुए कि चयन समिति की संस्तुति मुहरबंद लिफाफेमेंरखी ह,ै उस कार्मिक केविषय मेंचयन समिति की संस्तुति एक अलग शीट पर अंकित की जायेगी, जिसेमुहरबंद लिफाफे मेंरखा जायेगा और लिफाफे के ऊपर अंकित कर दिया जायेगा कि इसमें अमुक कार्मिक की झोन्नति केविषय में चयन समिति की सिफारिश रखी गयी ह-ै (क) यदि कार्मिक निलम्बित चल रहा ह,ै (ख) यदि कार्मिक केविरुद्ध अनुशासनिक कार्यवाही या प्रशासनाधिकरण की कार्यवाही लम्बित ह,ै जिसकेलिए आरोप-पत्र जारी किया जा चुका ह.ै (ग) यदि आपराधिक आरोप के आधार पर कार्मिक के विरुद्ध अभियोजन की कार्यवाही लम्बित हैअर्थात् न्यायालय में अभियोजन हतु आरोप-प े त्र प्रस्तुत किया जा चुका ह,ै

18. Referring the aforesaid, he submits that in fact, three exigencies are provided wherein the DPC can undertake the sealed cover procedure-first one is that if the employee is under suspension; secondly that if any disciplinary proceeding is pending for which the charge sheet is issued; and thirdly that if the charge sheet in a criminal case has been submitted before the Court by the prosecution.

19. He argued that information of the above conditions/terms are revalent as neither any inquiry proceeding is pending against the petitioner nor any charge sheet in any criminal prosecution has been served upon him, and furthermore, no criminal case is pending.

20. In addition, learned counsel for the petitioner has also placed reliance on the judgment and order rendered in the case of Union of India and others Vs. Doly Loyi, reported in 2024 SCC Online SC 2613, and has referred to paragraphs 9 and 14 of the judgment, which are quoted hereinbelow:-

"9. Shri Wasim Qadri, learned senior counsel appearing on behalf of the appellants drew the Court's attention towards the Office Memorandum (in short OM) dated 14 September, 1992 dealing with the Promotion of Government servants against whom disciplinary/court proceedings are pending or whose conduct is under investigation Procedure and guidelines to be followed the extract of the OM dated 14th September 1992 relied upon by the learned counsel for the appellants is reproduced below-

2. At the time of consideration of the cases of Government servant for promotion details of Government servant in the consideration zone for promotion falling under the following category should be specifically brought to the notice of the Departmental Promotion Committee –

I) Government servants under suspension.

II) Government servants in respect of whom, a charge sheet has been issued and the disciplinary proceedings are pending, and

III) Government servants in respect of whom prosecution for criminal charge is pending.

2.1. The Departmental Promotion Committee shall assess the suitability of Government servants coming within the purview of the circumstances mentioned above along with other eligible candidates without taking into consideration the case/criminal prosecution pending The disciplinary assessment of the DPC including "unfit for promotion and the grading awarded by it will be kept in a sealed cover. The cover will be superscribed 'Findings regarding suitability for promotion to the grade/post of of Shri. in respect (name of the Government servant). Not to be opened till the termination of the disciplinary case/criminal prosecution against Shri... The proceeding of the DPC need only contain the note. The findings are contained in the attached sealed cover' The authority competent to fill the vacancy should be separately advised to fill the vacancy in the higher grade only in an officiating capacity when the findings of the DPC in respect of the suitability of a Government servant for his promotion are kept in a sealed cover."

(emphasis supplied)

24. Considering the above position, the disciplinary/criminal proceedings can be said to be initiated against the employee only when a charge memo is issued to the employee in a disciplinary proceeding or a charge-sheet for a criminal prosecution is filed in the competent Court. The sealed cover procedure is to be resorted to only after issuance of the charge-memo/charge-sheet is issued. The pendency of investigation and grant of prosecution sanction will not be sufficient to enable the authorities to adopt the sealed cover procedure."

21. Referring to the aforesaid, he submitted that it has been held by the Apex Court that prosecution is not sufficient to enable the authorities to adopt the sealed cover procedure.

22. Concluding the argument, he submits that the order impugned by which the claim of the petitioner for promotion has been rejected, is erroneous and ambiguous and, therefore, the same may be quashed.

23. Per contra, Mr. Brijendra Singh, learned counsel for the State, has opposed the aforesaid contentions and submitted that, in the complaint dated 13.8.2014, moved by one Tarun, there are serious allegations against the petitioner as the petitioner retains a lot of cash as well as the movable and immovable properties, which were not brought to the notice of the department, which, in fact, is in violation of Rules 24(1) and (2) of the Conduct Rules, 1956. He further submitted that, for the institution of criminal proceedings, prosecution sanction was granted as per office memo dated 18.11.2022, and the criminal prosecution was pending against the petitioner, as on 10.10.2023, with the Special Judge, Anti-Corruption, Meerut. He argued that, on the application of the petitioner dated 16.4.2025, it was put up before the DPC, which was convened on 9.5.2025, for pending the sealed cover proceeding, but after discussion, it was found that the criminal case under the Anti-Corruption Act was pending against the petitioner, and therefore, the order dated 12.6.2025, has rightly been passed by the competent authority.

24. In support of his contention, he has also drawn attention towards paragraph 6 of the judgment and order of K.V. Jankiraman (supra) and paragraph 17 of Doly Loyi (supra). Para 17 of Dly Loyi (supra), which is quoted herein under:-

"17. He further drew the Court's attention to clause (iii) of Para No. 2 of OM dated 12th January, 1988 as per which the sealed cove. procedure could be adopted with regard to a Government servant in respect of whom the prosecution for a criminal charge was pending or sanction for prosecution had been issued or a decision had been taken to accord sanction for prosecution. The relevant para of OM dated 12th January, 1988 is reproduced hereinbelow:-

"Cases of Government Servants to whom Sealed Cover Procedure will be applicable

2. At the time of consideration of the cases of Government servants for promotion, details of Government servants in the consideration zone for promotion falling under the following categories should be specifically brought to the notice of the Departmental Promotion Committee –

(i) Government servants under suspension.

(ii) Government servants in respect of whom disciplinary proceedings are pending or a decision has been taken to Initiate disciplinary proceedings.

(iii) Government servants in respect of whom prosecution for a criminal charge is pending or sanction for prosecution has been issued or a decision has been taken for to accord sanction for prosecution.

(iv) Government servants against whom an investigation on serious allegations of corruption, bribery or similar grave misconduct is in progress either by the CBI or any other agency, departmental or otherwise."

(emphasis supplied)"

25. He submits that the sealed cover procedure could be adopted with regard to such Government Servant, in respect of whom, prosecution for criminal charges are pending, or sanction for prosecution has been issued, or a decision is taken to accord sanction for prosecution, therefore, submission is that there is no merit in the writ petition, thus, it is liable to be dismissed.

26. Upon considering the submissions of the learned counsel for the parties, and after perusal of the record, it transpires that the petitioner was initially appointed in the year 2002 and subsequently, he was promoted to Manager Grade II, in the year 2008 and Manager Grade I, in the year 2014, but on 13.8.2014, a complaint was made against the petitioner, which proceeded, and the inquiry proceeding was concluded. In the meantime, the State promulgated Rules 2018, wherein the State was made the appointing authority, in respect of the petitioner and, therefore, a further inquiry was instituted and the charge-sheet was served upon the petitioner, but in the meantime, the DPC was convened, on 24.12.2020, and observing that the disciplinary proceeding is pending against the petitioner, the sealed cover procedure has been adopted, by the DPC.

27. As is evident from the counter affidavit of the State, the second set of reason, given for adopting the sealed cover proceeding, is the pendency of the criminal proceedings against the petitioner. From paragraph 5 thereof, it is evident that the sanction for criminal prosecution was accorded, vide office memo dated 18.11.2022, and thereafter, the charge-sheet was submitted on 10.10.2023.

28. This Court examines the aforesaid two main grounds taken while passing the order impugned herein. First, from the disciplinary proceedings instituted against the petitioner, it reveals that when the DPC was convened on 24.12.2020, the inquiry report was in motion, wherein the inquiry officer found that the charges were not proved against the petitioner. Herein, the question which is to be replied is that, in the inquiry report, if it is found that the charges are not proved, whether it can be said that no disciplinary proceeding is pending against an employee? The law is very clear on this point that it is not the pendency of the inquiry proceeding, but the pendency of the disciplinary proceeding, which is to be considered, while considering the provisions of clauses (2) and (3) of the Government Order dated 28.5.1997. The same clearly speaks about the pendency of 'disciplinary proceedings', and therefore, if the inquiry officer reaches to the conclusion that no charges are proved against an employee, that does not mean that no disciplinary proceeding is pending against such an employee. Therefore, this Court finds that the DPC, which was convened on 24.12.2020, has rightly resorted to the procedure of sealed cover. The fact remains that the inquiry proceeding, which was instituted by the State Government, has been concluded, and the petitioner was awarded the punishment of 'Censure', though at a subsequent stage, i.e., on 11.4.2025, the State Government canceled the punishment of censure awarded on 25.1.2022. Thus, it is abundantly clear that no departmental proceeding is pending against the petitioner as of now.

29. Coming to the second issue, which, in fact, is in the way of opening of the sealed cover, is that the criminal proceedings are pending against the petitioner. The counter-affidavit filed by the State Government reveals that the prosecution sanction was granted, on 18.11.2022, and the charge sheet was submitted on 10.10.2023. Admittedly, the DPC for promotion of the Senior Manager (Civil) was held on 24.12.2020, and till that period of time, no criminal proceeding was initiated. The question is that when would the pendency of criminal proceedings be said to become effective?

Clause 2(c) of the Government Order dated 28.5.1997, is abundantly clear that once the charge sheet is submitted in the court, by the prosecution, that would be the date, which will be considered for the pendency of criminal proceedings.

30. This issue has exhaustively been dealt with, in the judgment and order rendered in the case of K. V. Jankiraman (supra). The Hon'ble Supreme Court, while dealing with the issue regarding an analogous provision of the Government Order dated 28.5.1997, has held that sealed cover procedure can be resorted to only after the charge memo is served upon the concerned official, in contemplation of the disciplinary proceeding or a charge sheet is filed before the criminal court, in a criminal proceeding. In the present case, the charge sheet was submitted in a criminal prosecution, in the court, on 10.10.2023. It is settled law that no sealed cover proceeding could be undertaken, if, on the date of the DPC, no charge sheet had been issued in the matter of departmental proceedings, and in a criminal case, the charge sheet had not been submitted before the court concerned. In the instant case, when the DPC was held, chargesheet was not submitted in the court, thus, the criminal proceeding cannot be said to be pending.

31. The another question which seeks attention of this Court is whether the pendency of the matter for sanction of criminal prosecution would have any bearing on consideration of the promotion of an employee, by the DPC. This issue has candidly been considered, in Doly Loyi's case (supra), and in paragraph 24, the Hon'ble Apex Court has held in so many words, that the pendency of sanction of criminal prosecution would not suffice to enable the authorities to adopt the sealed cover procedure. So far as the present case is concerned, though the application for the prosecution's sanction was pending, but the decision was taken on 18.11.2022, that too after the DPC was convened on 24.12.2020, and therefore, the sanction of prosecution will not make any difference, for consideration of promotion of an employee, by the D.P.C. Thus, in the present case, the fact that the sanction of prosecution was pending, would have no adversarial effect on, for consideration of promotion of the petitioner.

32. In view of aforementioned submissions and discussions, this Court is of the considered opinion that the order impugned dated 12.6.2025, goes against, the law laid down in the cases of K. V. Jankiraman (supra), as well as Doly Loyi (supra). Further, the provisions of Government Order dated 28.5.1997, has escaped the attention of the authorities for considering the case of the petitioner, in its right perspective.

33. Resultantly, the order impugned dated 12.6.2025 passed by the respondent no.1, is unsustainable and the same is hereby quashed.

34. The competent authority is directed to take a fresh decision regarding the promotion of the petitioner, to the post of Senior Manager (Civil), within a period of eight weeks, from the date a certified copy of this order is produced before him, in the light of the observations made hereinabove.

35. The writ petition is allowed accordingly.

3. Shri Pankaj Rai, learned Addl. Chief Standing Counsel files the affidavit of compliance dated 30.04.2026 on behalf of Relief Commissioner, Revenue, Government of U.P., Lucknow-respondent no.2, which is taken on record.

4. This review application has been filed for reviewing the judgement and order dated 02.11.2023 in Writ-C No.31953 of 2023 (Smt. Krishna Singh v. State of U.P. & Ors.) by which the writ petition was disposed of in terms of judgment and order dated 03.10.2023 passed in Writ-C No.32178 of 2023 (Smt. Champa Devi v. State of U.P. & Ors.). For ready reference, the order dated 02.11.2023 is reproduced as under:-

"1. Heard learned counsel for the petitioner and Sri Devesh Vikram, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel for the State-respondents.

2. Present writ petition is preferred under Article 226 of Constitution of India with request to issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus directing the respondents to release the ex-gratia compensation of Rs.50 lacs to the petitioner in pursuance of the Government order dated 11.04.2020 in lieu of death of her husband Sri Vijay Bahadur Singh, Head Constable U.P. Police due to Covid-19 while performing public duties and engaged in ensuring the Covid-19 protocol within some stipulated time.

3. Earlier the matter was taken up on 19.9.2023 and on the said date the Court had proceeded to pass following order:-

"1. The matter relates to ex-gratia compensation.

2. At the very outset, Sri R.M.Upadhyay, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel has placed the detailed instructions dated 18.9.2023 sent by the Deputy Commissioner of Police Headquarter Commissionerate Prayagraj, which is taken on record. On the basis of instructions, he submits that the matter is ceased before the State Government and some breathing time may be accorded so that fate of the said proceeding may be apprised on the next date of listing. On his request, the case is passed over for the day.

3. Put up this matter on 9.10.2023 as fresh. Needless to say, the claim of the petitioner must be processed on or before the next date of listing."

4. Learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel submits that adequate information has already been sent to the concerned authority through e-mail on 21.9.2023 and the instructions are still awaited. He submits that further time may be accorded so that the order dated 19.9.2023 may be complied with.

5. Per contra, learned counsel for the petitioner states that the issue in hand is already settled by the Division Bench vide order dated 3.10.2023 in Writ C No.32178 of 2023 (Smt. Champa Devi vs. State of U.P. and others), wherein similarly situated incumbents have already been given the benefit in the light of the Government Order dated 11.4.2020. In the present matter, the competent authority vide order dated 14.11.2022 has already made recommendation for according ex-gratia payment in favour of legal heirs of late Vijay Bahadur Singh, Head Constable (husband of the petitioner) and Surendra Kumar, Jail Warder, Naini, Prayagraj, whereas the ex-gratia payment has been made to the dependents of late Sri Surendra Kumar but in spite of the aforesaid recommendation, the respondents have not taken any remedial measures for according ex-gratia payment to the petitioner till date. He has confined his prayer that the writ petition may be disposed of in the light of judgement in Smt. Champa Devi (supra).

6. Considering the facts and circumstances, we are of the view that no useful purpose would be served in keeping the present writ petition pending consideration and dispose of the writ petition in terms of our order dated 3.10.2023 passed in Smt. Champa Devi (supra)."

5. Shri Amit Saxena, learned Addl. Advocate General appearing on behalf of State-applicant has submitted that the Writ Court has passed the order in question only on the basis of instructions and has heavily relied upon the judgment passed by the Division Bench in Smt. Champa Devi (Supra). The judgment and order passed in Smt. Champa Devi (Supra) has already been challenged before the Apex Court and the matter is pending there for consideration. He submits that the case of the petitioner does not fall under the Government Order dated 11.4.2020 and as such the competent authority has rightly considered and negated the claim of the petitioner. He further submits that in case the order in question is not reviewed, heavy financial burden will be fastened upon the State exchequer, which would have very serious financial implications.

6. Per contra, learned counsel for the opposite party-petitioner has vehemently opposed the review application as well as the arguments so advanced by learned Addl. Advocate General. He has submitted that the order in question dated 02.11.2023 has been passed relying on and in terms of Smt. Champa Devi (Supra). He submits that the judgment in Smt. Champa Devi (Supra) has been passed on 03.10.2023 and the State Government had assailed the same before Hon'ble Supreme Court with inordinate delay on 24.04.2026, having Diary No.25155 of 2026, just to deprive the petitioner from her rightful claim, even though Smt. Champa Devi has already been extended the benefit. Without there being any order in the matter pending in the Supreme Court, the order in question dated 02.11.2023 as well as the judgment in Smt. Champa Devi (Supra) are still holding the field and as such no interference is required in the instant matter.

7. Learned counsel for the opposite party-petitioner further submits that looking to the extreme and horrifying working conditions during the period of Covid-19, being a welfare State, the Government has issued the Government Order dated 11.04.2020 for giving immediate relief to the family of deceased employees, who had rendered their valuable service during that period. While issuing the said Government Order, the Government must have considered the financial implications and taken a conscious decision in this regard and as such at present the contention of financial implication is not justified.

8. Learned counsel for the opposite party-petitioner, in support of his submissions, has also placed reliance on successive Division Bench orders allowing the writ petitions and according relief to the petitioners (in the said writ petitions). In this regard, he has placed reliance on the judgment dated 29.05.2023 passed in Writ-C No.17575 of 2023 (Smt. Premrata Pandey v. State of U.P. & Ors.) passed by the Coordinate Bench, whereby the writ petition was allowed with following observations:-

".....9. Husband of the petitioner, Head Constable Ashok Kumar Pandey while working at Civil Airport Gorakhpur was involved in enforcement of COVID-19 protocol by ensuring social distancing among the passengers as well as forcing them to undergo corona test. Admittedly, there is no other force or employees except the policemen at airport who are deputed for this specific purpose. The State cannot make artificial distinction among its employees to depriving one class of employees from getting ex gratia compensation on their death despite the fact that they had received corona infection on duty during COVID-19 period. Every policeman or other government employee who has been discharging his duty during COVID-19 period for enforcing COVID-19 protocol will be deemed to be performing duty for prevention and protection of COVID-19 as mentioned in Government Order dated 11.4.2020 and if he dies because of corona infection during discharge of his duty then his dependents will be entitled to receive ex gratia compensation as per Government Order dated 11.4.2020.

10. In view of the above, husband of the petitioner Late Ashok Kumar Pandey (Head Constable) while working at Civil Airport Gorakhpur was involved in the duty of prevention, protection and treatment of COVID-19, therefore, on his death, the petitioner is entitled for ex gratia compensation as per the Government order dated 11.4.2020. The respondent No.1 is directed to release the ex gratia compensation of Rs.50,00,000/- to the petitioner within a period of one month from today.

11. With the aforesaid direction, the writ petition is allowed."

9. He has also placed reliance on the judgment dated 13.03.2024 in Writ-C No.1760 of 2024 (Gyan Prakash Chaturvedi v. State of U.P. & Ors), whereby the Coordinate Bench has not only allowed compensation of Rs.50 lacs within two months but also considering the delay of almost two years, provided interest @ 8% from the date of occurrence of death till the date of actual payment. For ready reference, the operative portion of the order dated 13.03.2024 is reproduced as under:-

".....5. Learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel states no further written instructions have been received. Counsel for the petitioner states the amount has yet not been paid.

6. In view of the fact that the amount is due and has remained outstanding for almost two years, no useful purpose would be served in keeping the writ petition pending any further. It cannot be denied that interest is a natural accretion on capital. On the other hand money loses value due to inflationary forces. Since, no dispute exists with respect to the payment, otherwise due to the petitioner, minimal interest must be provided, less money compensation awarded loses value and purpose.

7. Accordingly, the writ petition is allowed with the direction upon respondent no. 1 to ensure due payment is made to the petitioner in respect of compensation of Rs. 50 lacs within a period of two months from today together with interest @ 8 % from the date of occurrence of death till the date of actual payment. "

10. He has also placed reliance on recent Coordinate Bench order dated 17.04.2026 in Writ-C No.34909 of 2023 (Smt. Pushpa Devi v. State of U.P. & Ors.) by which the writ petition was allowed with following observations:-

".....12. In view of the above and in our considered view as well the employees working in the electricity department, water supply department, telephone department, police department and such other essential services departments who worked during covid period would be taken to be on covid duty as their discharge of duties helped the State Government in containing the spread of pandemic covid-19 virus, treatment of the patients and their protection by keeping them in confinement.

13. In view of the above, we are unable to sustain the order passed by the State Government giving a very narrow interpretation to the covid duty only confining those people, who were specially assigned to discharge their duties in treatment of people physically in hospitals.

14. The writ petition succeeds and is allowed. The order dated 28.07.2023 passed by the State Government is hereby quashed. The State Government is directed to release the ex-gratia compensation to the petitioner within a period of 30 days from the date of presentation of certified copy of this order before it."

11. He has also placed reliance on the order dated 17.04.2026 passed in Writ-C No.13325 of 2023 (Mst Usha Maurya v. State of U.P. & Ors.) by which the writ petition was disposed of in terms of the order passed in Smt. Pushpa Devi (Supra). For ready reference, the order dated 17.04.2026 is reproduced as under:-

"1. Disposed of in terms of order passed today in Writ-C No.34909 of 2023. 2. The order dated 25.02.2023 passed by the State Government impugned in this petition is also hereby quashed. The State Government is directed to release the ex-gratia compensation to the petitioner within a period of 30 days from the date of presentation of certified copy of this order before it."

12. Heard rival submissions, perused the record and respectfully considered the judgments cited at Bar.

13. On the matter being taken up on 16.04.2026, we have proceeded to pass detailed order, the operative portion of which, for ready reference, is reproduced as under:-

".....3. It is pointed out by learned counsel for the petitioner/opposite party that the instant review application is preferred with inordinate delay of ten months and the affidavit is sworn by Naib Tehsildar, P.W.D., Tahsil Sadar, Prayagraj on behalf of the applicants/State respondents. The petitioner/opposite party had preferred Writ C No.31953 of 2023, arraying five State respondents i.e. State of U.P. through Principal Secretary, U.P. Govt. Lucknow; Relief Commissioner, Revenue Section-11, Govt. of U.P. Lucknow; Secretary Home (Police) Anubhag-10 U.P. Lucknow; District Magistrate/Chairman, District Disaster Management Authority, Prayagraj and Commissioner of Police, Prayagraj. Nothing is brought on record to indicate that the State respondents have accorded any permission on their behalf to swear the affidavit by the Naib Tahsildar. Moreover, no reason has been given as to under what circumstances, after ten months the instant review application is preferred against the judgment and order dated 02.11.2023.

4. Learned counsel for the petitioner/opposite party has placed a copy of the order dated 21.04.2025, wherein it is indicated that in response to the order dated 03.10.2023 passed in Smt. Champa Devi (supra), even though the Committee had rejected the claim but later on, the benefit has been accorded to Smt. Champa Devi, who is widow of late Kamlesh Singh Yadav. The same is taken on record.

5. Learned counsel for the petitioner-opposite party submits that similar matter is engaging attention of this Court in Writ C No.34909 of 2023 (Smt. Pushpa Devi vs. State of UP and 6 others), wherein the Coordinate Bench in its order dated 20.03.2026 had observed that the question, which needed to be resolved in the case, is as to whether those, who were assigned duties to provide essential services to the State Government and public at large, should not be benefited with the compensation under the relevant Government Order, because they were not specifically assigned COVID duty. The said observation had been made in the backdrop that a narrow interpretation of the Government Order, which itself is a beneficial piece of subordinate legislation, would be not only against the public interest but will also even hit Article 14 of the Constitution of India. In the said proceeding, various other departments and instrumentalities of the State are also stakeholders and question before the Division Bench is whether in the light of the Government order, the said benefit has to be extended by the department concerned. Accordingly, the affidavit had been asked from the Additional Chief Secretary, Revenue Department as well as the Chief Secretary of Uttar Pradesh.

6. We find that the Court had disposed of the Writ C No.31953 of 2023 filed by the petitioner/opposite party on 02.11.2023, relying upon the judgement and order dated 03.10.2023 passed in Writ-C No.32178 of 2023 (Smt. Champa Devi vs State of U.P. and 5 others) wherein the similar benefit has been extended in the light of a Government Order dated 11.04.2020. Admittedly, Smt. Champa Devi has been conferred with the benefit under the Government Order dated 11.04.2020.

7. Earlier the instant matter was taken up on 22.11.2024 and on the said date, we had accorded time to the learned counsel for opposite party/petitioner to file an objection to the review application. Again the matter was taken up on 09.05.2025 and on the request of Sri Manish Goyal, learned Additional Advocate General appearing for the applicants/State respondents, the matter was adjourned to enable him to get proper instructions.

8. What we find is that just to meet out the inordinate delay and laches, a very noble device has been coined by the applicants/State respondents by convening the meeting on 26.06.2024 just to negate and reject the rightful claim of the petitioner/opposite party. The applicants/State respondents have considered the claims of heirs of late Kamlesh Singh Yadav, Constable P.A.C. District Deoria and heirs of late Vijay Bahadur, Constable, Police Department, Prayagraj. Even though the Committee has declined to accord any ex-gratia payment in the light of the Government Order but later on, the benefit has been extended. Under the guise of the meeting dated 26.06.2024, the respondents have declined to accord any relief to the opposite party/petitioner, who is a widow and suffering since long.

9. In the facts and circumstances, as placed before us, surprisingly what we find is that the District Magistrate, Prayagraj has initially made an endorsement in favour of the petitioner in the light of a Government Order but just to circumvent the order passed by the Division Bench, later on, after eight months, the meeting was convened and rights of the petitioner have been denied. Such practice cannot be accepted.

10. Let the Relief Commissioner, Revenue, Govt. of U.P. Lucknow file personal response in the matter so that we can proceed to consider the claim of the opposite party/petitioner.

11. On the request of Sri Manish Goel, learned Additional Advocate General assisted by Sri Pankaj Rai, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel, the matter is adjourned today.

12. Put up again on 30.04.2026 at 03.45 p.m. for further orders."

(Emphasis supplied)

14. In the instant proceeding, we find that while disposing of the instant writ petition, two other writ petitions of similar nature were also disposed of on same terms. Later on along with the instant review application two other review applications namely Review Application No.348 of 2024 (State of U.P. & Ors. v. Smt. Sanju Yadav) as well as Review Application No.410 of 2024 (State of U.P. & Ors. v. Smt. Champa Devi) were also filed separately. Meanwhile, Review Application No.348 of 2024 and Review Application No.410 of 2024 were dismissed as not pressed on 09.05.2025 on the statement of Shri Manish Goel, learned Addl. Advocate General appearing on behalf of the State that the benefit is already extended to the petitioners in the light of Writ Court Order. For ready reference, the order dated 09.05.2025 passed in Review Application No.410 of 2024 (State of U.P. & Ors. v. Smt. Champa Devi) is reproduced as under:-

"1. Mr. Manish Goel, learned Additional Advocate General appearing on behalf of State submits that in the instant matter, benefit is already extended to the petitioner in the light of Division Bench judgment of this Court dated 03.10.2023 passed in Writ-C No. 32178 of 2023; Smt. Champa Devi vs. State of U.P. and others, as such the present review petition may be dismissed as not pressed.

2. Learned counsel appearing for opposite party does not dispute the aforesaid fact as argued by learned counsel for the applicant. 3. Accordingly, the present review application is dismissed as not pressed."

15. We are surprised to note that on one hand the State Government has complied with the Writ Court order in Smt. Champa Devi (Supra) and accorded financial benefit to her and on the other hand they had challenged the Writ Court order in Smt. Champa Devi (Supra) before the Supreme Court with inordinate delay on 24.4.2026. In such circumstances, no plausible reason is before us to discriminate the petitioner (Smt. Krishna Singh) from getting her rightful claim and, therefore, no case is made out to review our order dated 02.11.2023 in the instant review application, which has been passed in terms of Smt. Champa Devi (Supra).

16. We also find that the scope and ambit of the review under Article 226 of the Constitution of India, in reviewing its own order, is very limited. The review application can be allowed only on (1) discovery of new and important matter of evidence which, after exercise of due diligence, was not within the knowledge of the person seeking review, or could not be produced by him at the time when the order was made, or (2) when some mistake or error on the face of record is found, or (3) on any analogous ground. Review is not permissible on the ground that the decision was erroneous on merits as the same would be the province of an Appellate Court.

17. In the case of Shivdeo Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1963 SC 1909, Hon'ble Apex Court took the view that there is nothing under Article 226 of the Constitution of India, which precludes High Court from exercising the power of review, which inheres in every Court of plenary jurisdiction to prevent miscarriage of justice or to correct grave and palpable errors committed by it. It was held that the power of review under Article 226 of the Constitution of India, in reviewing its own orders, every Court including High Court inheres plenary jurisdiction, to prevent miscarriage of justice or to correct grave and palpable errors committed by it.

18. Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Aribam Tuleswar Sharma v. Aribam Pishak Sharma and others, 1979 (4) SCC 389, has cautioned that power of review of the High Court is not the same as appellate powers and review on the ground that certain documents have not been considered, which formed the record, cannot be ground of Review. Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Meera Bhanja v. Nirmla K. Chaudhary, 1995 (1) SCC 170, has taken the view that review must be confined to error apparent on the face of record, error must be such as would be apparent on mere looking without any long drawn process of reasoning, and reappraisal of evidence on record for finding out error would amount to exercise of appellate jurisdiction, which is not at all permissible.

19. In the case of Satyanarayan Laxminarayan Hegde v. Mallikarjun Bhavanappa Tirumale, AIR 1960 SC 137, Hon'ble Supreme Court has made the following observations in connection with an error apparent on the face of the record :-

"An error which has to be established by a long drawn process of reasoning on points where there may conceivably be two opinions can hardly be said to be an error apparent on the face of the record. Where an alleged error is far from self-evident and if it can be established, it has to be established, by lengthy and complicated arguments, such an error cannot be cured by a writ of certiorari according to the rule governing the powers of the superior Court to issue such a writ.

In our view the aforesaid approach of the Division Bench dealing with the review proceedings clearly shows that it has overstepped its jurisdiction under Order 47, Rule 1, C.P.C. By merely styling the reasoning adopted by the earlier Division Bench as suffering from a patent error. It would not become a patent error or error apparent in view of the settled legal position indicated by us earlier. In substance, the review Bench has re appreciated the entire evidence, sat almost as Court of appeal and has reversed the findings reached by the earlier Division Bench. Even if the earlier Division Bench findings regarding C.S. Plot No. 74 were found to be erroneous, it would be no ground for reviewing the same, as that would be the function of an appellate Court. Learned counsel for the respondent was not in a position to point out how the reasoning adopted and conclusion reached by the Review Bench can be supported within the narrow and limited scope of Order 47, Rule 1, C.P.C. Right or wrong, the earlier Division Bench judgment had become final so far as the High Court was concerned. It could not have been reviewed by reconsidering the entire evidence with a view to finding out the alleged apparent error for justifying the invocation of review powers. Only on that short ground, therefore, this appeal is required to be allowed. The final decision dated 8th July, 1986 of the Division Bench dismissing the appeal from appellate decree No.569 of 1973 insofar as C.S. Plot No. 74 is concerned as well as the review judgment dated 5th September, 1984 in connection with the very same plot, i.e. C.S. Plot No. 74 are set aside and the earlier judgment of the High Court dated 3rd August, 1978 allowing the Second Appeal regarding suit plot No. 74 is restored. The appeal is accordingly allowed. In the facts and circumstances of the case, there will be no order as to costs."

20. In Parsion Devi and others v. Sumitri Devi and others, 1997 (8) J.T. SC 480, Hon'ble Supreme Court has taken the view that review proceeding has to be strictly confined to the ambit and scope of Order 47, and therein the two earlier judgments referred to above have been relied upon. Again in Smt. Meera Bhanja v. St. Nirmala Kumari Choudhary, 1985 (1) SCC 170, while quoting this approval a passage from Aribam Tuleshwar Sharma v. Aribam Pishak Sharma & Ors. (1979 (4) SCC 389, Hon'ble Supreme Court once again held that review proceedings are not by way of an appeal and have to be strictly confined to the scope and ambit of Order 47 Rule 1 CPC.

21. Hon'ble Apex Court, in the case of Lily Thomas v. Union of India, AIR 2000 SC 1650, after considering the dictionary meaning of word "review" has taken the view that power of review can be exercised for correction of mistake and not to substitute a view. Such powers can be exercised within the limits of the statute, dealing with exercise of power; the review cannot be treated as an appeal in disguise, and mere possibility of two views on the subject is not a ground of Review.

22. Hon'ble the Apex Court in Subhash Vs. State of Maharastra & another, AIR 2002 SC 2537, the Apex Court emphasized that Court should not be misguided and should not lightly entertain the review application unless there are circumstances falling within the prescribed limits for that as the Courts and Tribunal should not proceed to re-examine the matter as if it was an original application before it for the reason that it cannot be a scope of review. In State Haryana v. Mohinder Singh, JT 2002 (1) 197, the Apex Court disapproved the judgment of High Court, wherein earlier writ petition was disposed of by High Court being infructuous and giving some directions, and subsequent to the same, Review was sought, which was allowed, same was clearly termed to be overstepping of jurisdiction, and amounting to giving of one more chance of hearing.

23. In the case of Union of India v. B. Valluvar, 2006 (8) SCC 686, Hon'ble Apex Court has again considered the parameters of review jurisdiction of High Court, that same shall be exercised within the limitations as provided under Section 114 read with Order 47 Rule of C.P.C., and without recording finding as to there existed error apparent on the face of the record, merit cannot be gone into. Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of State of Haryana and others v. M.P. Mohila, 2007 (1) SCC 457, has taken the view that in the garb of clarification application, recourse to achieve the result of review application, cannot be permitted, as what can not be done directly, cannot be done indirectly.

24. In Kamlesh Verma Vs. Mayawati and others 2013 (8) SCC 320, the Apex Court said:

"19. Review proceedings are not by way of an appeal and have to be strictly confined to the scope and ambit of Order 47 Rule 1 of CPC. In review jurisdiction, mere disagreement with the view of the judgment cannot be the ground for invoking the same. As long as the point is already dealt with and answered, the parties are not entitled to challenge the impugned judgment in the guise that an alternative view is possible under the review jurisdiction.

Summary of the Principles:

20. Thus, in view of the above, the following grounds of review are maintainable as stipulated by the statute:

20.1. When the review will be maintainable:-

- (i) Discovery of new and important matter or evidence which, after the exercise of due diligence, was not within knowledge of the petitioner or could not be produced by him;*
- (ii) Mistake or error apparent on the face of the record;*
- (iii) Any other sufficient reason.*

The words "any other sufficient reason" has been interpreted in Chhajju Ram vs. Neki, AIR 1922 PC 112 and approved by this Court in Moran Mar Basselios Catholicos vs. Most Rev. Mar Poulouse Athanasius & Ors., AIR 1954 SC 526, to mean "a reason sufficient on grounds at least analogous to those specified in the rule". The same principles have been reiterated in Union of India vs. Sandur Manganese & Iron Ores Ltd. & Ors., 2013 (8) SCC 337.

22.2. When the review will not be maintainable:-

- (i) A repetition of old and overruled argument is not enough to reopen concluded adjudications.*
- (ii) Minor mistakes of inconsequential import.*
- (iii) Review proceedings cannot be equated with the original hearing of the case.*
- (iv) Review is not maintainable unless the material error, manifest on the face of the order, undermines its soundness or results in miscarriage of justice.*

(v) A review is by no means an appeal in disguise whereby an erroneous decision is reheard and corrected but lies only for patent error.

(vi) The mere possibility of two views on the subject cannot be a ground for review.

(vii) The error apparent on the face of the record should not be an error which has to be fished out and searched.

(viii) The appreciation of evidence on record is fully within the domain of the appellate court, it cannot be permitted to be advanced in the review petition.

(ix) Review is not maintainable when the same relief sought at the time of arguing the main matter had been negated." (emphasis supplied)

25. On the touchstone of the dictum noted above, the review is permissible only when there is error apparent on the face of record i. e. error should be grave and palpable, and the error must be such as would be apparent on mere looking of record, without requiring any long drawn process of reasoning, and reappraisal of entire evidence for finding the error, as the same would amount to exercise of appellate jurisdiction. Further, the review lies only on the grounds mentioned in Order 47, Rule 1 read with Section 141 CPC. The party must satisfy the Court that the matter or evidence discovered by it at a subsequent stage could not be discovered or produced at the initial stage though it had acted with due diligence. A party filing a review application on the ground of any other "sufficient reason" must satisfy that the said reason is analogous to the conditions mentioned in the said provision of C.P.C.

26. Perusal of judgment under review passed by us shows that each and every aspect of the matter has been considered and thereafter, the writ petition in question was disposed of and there appears no apparent mistake in the judgment under review. Neither review court can examine the merits of the judgment as an appellate court nor in the garb of review petition, a re-hearing of the matter can be permitted by this Court.

27. Consequently, the review application is rejected.

Case Arising From

The corpus is the wife of the petitioner and is in illegal custody of the State, being kept in a Rajkiya Bal Grah (Balika), Vrindavan, Mathura against her wishes. The petitioner, being the husband of the corpus, is entitled to her lawful custody.

Appearances for Parties

Counsel for Petitioner(s) : Maohammd Nadeem

Counsel for Respondent(s) : G.A.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Sandeep Jain, J.)

1. Learned counsel for the petitioners submits that the corpus, Deeksha, is the wife of Arvind Kumar and is in illegal custody of the State, being kept in a Rajkiya Bal Grah (Balika), Vrindavan, Mathura against her wishes. It is submitted that the petitioner, being the husband of the corpus, is entitled to her lawful custody.

2. Per contra, learned AGA submitted that a criminal case is pending against the petitioner, who allegedly solemnized marriage with the corpus while she was a minor, and, as such, she has been lawfully detained in Rajkiya Bal Grah (Balika), Vrindavan, Mathura. It is submitted that since the corpus is in lawful custody of the State in pursuance of a judicial order, the present habeas corpus petition is not maintainable.

3. I have heard the learned counsel of the parties and perused the record.

4. A Full Bench of this Court in the case of Rachna and Another vs. State of UP and Others 2021 SCC OnLine All 211, held as under:-

"80. We accordingly come on our conclusions in respect of question nos. 1, 2 and 3 for determination as follows:?"

Question No. 1: "(1) Whether a writ of habeas corpus is maintainable against the judicial order passed by the Magistrate or by the Child Welfare Committee appointed under Section 27 of the Act, sending the victim to Women Protection Home/Nari Niketan/Juvenile Home/Child Care Home?;

Answer : If the petitioner corpus is in custody as per judicial orders passed by a Judicial Magistrate or a Court of Competent Jurisdiction or a Child Welfare Committee under the J.J. Act. Consequently, such an order passed by the Magistrate or by the Committee cannot be challenged/assailed or set aside in a writ of habeas corpus.

Question No. 2: "Whether detention of a corpus in Women Protection Home/Nari Niketan/Juvenile Home/Child Care Home pursuant to an order (may be improper) can be termed/viewed as an illegal detention?"

Answer : An illegal or irregular exercise of jurisdiction by a Magistrate or by the Child Welfare Committee appointed under Section 27 of the J.J. Act, sending the victim to Women Protection Home/Nari Niketan/Juvenile Home/Child Care Home cannot be treated an illegal detention.

Question No. 3: "Under the Scheme of the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2015, the welfare and safety of child in need of care and protection is the legal responsibility of the Board/Child Welfare Committee and as such, the proposition that even a minor cannot be sent to Women Protection Home/Nari Niketan/Juvenile Home/Child Care Home against his/her wishes is legally valid or it requires a modified approach in consonance with the object of the Act?"

Answer : Under the J.J. Act, the welfare and safety of child in need of care and protection is the legal responsibility of the Board/Child Welfare Committee and the Magistrate/Committee must give credence to her wishes. As per Section 37 of the J.J. Act the Committee, on being satisfied through the inquiry that the child before the Committee is a child in need of care and protection, may, on consideration of Social Investigation Report submitted by Child Welfare Officer and taking into account the child's wishes in case the child is sufficiently mature to take a view, pass one or more of the orders mentioned in Section 37 (1) (a) to (h)." (emphasis supplied)

5. Similarly, a Coordinate Bench of this Court in the case of Jayanti and Another vs. State of UP and others 2021 SCC OnLine All 760, held as under:-

"26. Having regard to the foregoing discussion, the legal position which emerges is that in a case where the custody of the petitioner corpus as been handed over as per a judicial order passed by Judicial Magistrate or a court of competent jurisdiction or a CWC constituted under the JJ Act, the said order cannot be assailed in a petition seeking a writ of habeas corpus."

6. A Division Bench of this Court again in the case of Mayank Ojha (Minor) vs. State of UP Thru. Home Secretary Lko. and others 2025 SCC OnLine All 6064, held as under:-

"25. It is trite in law that writ of habeas corpus would not be maintainable, if the detention in custody is pursuant to judicial orders passed by a Judicial Magistrate or a court of competent jurisdiction or by the Child Welfare Committee. Section 27 of the Juvenile Justice Act defines the 'Child Welfare Committee' and provides that the State Government shall by notification in the Official Gazette constitute for every district, one or more Child Welfare Committees for exercising the powers and to discharge the duties conferred on such Committees in relation to 'child in need of care and protection' under the said Act. The powers of the Committee are defined in Section 27(9) of the Juvenile Justice Act. The said provision of the Act makes it clear that while passing such orders, the Committee exercises the power of Judicial Magistrate and functions as a Bench and shall have the powers conferred by the Criminal Procedure Code, 1973 (2 of 1974) on a Metropolitan Magistrate or, as the case may be, a Judicial Magistrate of First Class. The powers, functions and responsibilities of the Committee are defined under Section 29 and 30 of the Juvenile Justice Act. Section 30(vi) provides that it is the function of the Committee to ensure care, protection, proper rehabilitation or restoration of children in need of care and protection, based on the child's individual care plan and passing necessary directions to parents or guardians or fit persons or children's homes or fit facility in this regard. It further provides for selection of registered institution for placement of each children requiring institutional support, based on the child's age, gender, disability and needs and keeping in mind the available capacity of the institution. Further, the term 'Juvenile' has been defined in Section 2(35) of the Juvenile Justice Act to mean a child below the age of 18 years. The word 'Child' has been defined in Section 2(12) of the Juvenile Justice Act to mean a person who has not completed 18 years of. Age. The meaning of the phrase 'child in need of care and protection' is defined under Section 2(14) of the Juvenile Justice Act.

26. The Juvenile Justice Act, 2015 provides a complete mechanism dealing with welfare of the child. The 'Child Welfare Committee' exercises the power of Magistrate in view of the provision of Section 27 of the Juvenile Justice Act, 2015 and for all purposes, the Committee acts like the Magistrate. Once the order has been passed by the Magistrate, then it can only be assailed before the appropriate Court by filing an appeal or any other remedy as provided under the law.

27. At the cost of repetition, we reiterate that if the corpus is found a child, as defined under Section 2(12) of the Juvenile Justice Act, 2015, he/she would fall in the category of 'child in need of care and protection' in view of Clauses (iii), (viii) and (xii) of Sub-section (14) of Section 2 of the Juvenile Justice Act, 2015. Hence the order passed by the Child Welfare Committee placing the corpus in a protection home would be within its power conferred under Section 37 of the Juvenile Justice Act, 2015. Thus, the person aggrieved by an order passed by the Child Welfare Committee can file an appeal under Section 101 of the Juvenile Justice Act, 2015. Further, the Juvenile Justice Act, 2015 provides the revisional forum before the High Court wherein the High Court may, at any time either on its own motion or an application received in this behalf, call for the record of any proceeding in which any Committee or Board or Children's Court, or court has passed an order, for the purpose of satisfying itself as to the legality or propriety of any such order and may pass such order in relation thereto as it thinks fit. Therefore, in such a situation, it cannot be presumed that in case the corpus is in Children's Home pursuant to an order passed by the 'Child Welfare Committee'; then the same is neither without jurisdiction nor illegal or perverse, keeping in mind the provisions of Juvenile Justice Act, 2015, the detention of the corpus cannot be said to be illegal and in case the petitioner is aggrieved by the order of the 'Child Welfare Committee', the petitioner is at liberty to take recourse of remedy of Appeal or Revision provided under Sections 101 & 102 of the Juvenile Justice Act.

29. The order passed by the Committee pursuant to which the corpus has been sent to Children's Home is a judicial order and hence the detention of corpus cannot be termed to be illegal. Moreover, the order passed by the Committee is appealable. Thus, the instant Habeas Corpus Petition being not maintainable is liable to be dismissed.

30. ***

31. Having regard to the foregoing discussion, the legal position which emerges is that in a case where the custody of the petitioner corpus has been handed over as per the order passed by the 'Child Welfare Committee', constituted under the Juvenile Justice Act, 2015, the said order cannot be assailed in a petition seeking a writ of habeas corpus." (emphasis supplied)

7. The Apex Court in the case of Nirmala vs. Kulwant Singh and Others (2024) 10 SCC 595, held that in matters of child custody, a writ of habeas corpus would ordinarily not be maintainable when an efficacious alternative remedy is available. Such a writ would lie only where the detention of the child is illegal, unauthorized, and contrary to the welfare and best interests of the child. The relevant extract is reproduced as under:

"23. It can thus be seen that this Court in Tejaswini Gaud case [Tejaswini Gaud v. Shekhar Jagdish Prasad Tewari, (2019) 7 SCC 42 : (2019) 3 SCC (Civ) 433] has held that the habeas corpus is a prerogative writ which is an extraordinary remedy. It has been held that recourse to such a remedy should not be permitted unless the ordinary remedy provided by the law is either not available or is ineffective. It has been held that in child custody matters, the power of the High Court in granting the writ is qualified only in cases where the detention of a minor by a person who is not entitled to his legal custody. It has further been held that in child custody matters, the writ of habeas corpus is maintainable where it is proved that the detention of a minor child by a parent or others was illegal and without any authority of law." (emphasis supplied)

8. It is apparent that, as the corpus is in lawful custody of the State pursuant to judicial order passed by the Child Welfare Committee, Sambhal on 18.12.2025 under Section 27(9) of the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2015, the instant habeas corpus petition is not legally maintainable.

9. Accordingly, the habeas corpus petition is dismissed.

...Respondents

Issue(s) for consideration

- (a) Whether there was any seniority list of Awazdar and whether some Awazdar were regularized or not?
- (b) Whether the petitioners were paid salary for only 10 days, even after working for 30 days?
- (c) Whether casual substitute workers (Awazdars) who are engaged sporadically for up to 10 days a month to fill temporary absences qualify as 'directly appointed daily wagers' under the U.P. Regularization Rules, 2001?

Headnotes

A. Labour Law – In 2009, five petitioners filed a writ petition claiming they had been working since 1990 as Awazdar employees (daily-wage substitutes) to perform the duties of a Switchman whenever a regular employee was absent. The petitioners alleged that although they worked all 30 days of a month, they were paid for only 10 days. They also claimed that Kanpur Nagar Nigam had prepared a seniority list of Awazdars in 1994, but the department had used a "pick and choose" policy to regularize their juniors while ignoring the petitioners' seniority.

The petitioners had previously approached the High Court in 2003 and 2006. The Court had directed the authorities to consider their cases for regularization under the U.P. Daily Wage Employees (Regularization of Group 'D' Post) Rules, 2001. In compliance with those orders, Kanpur Nagar Nigam evaluated their claims and issued an order on 02.02.2009, rejecting their regularization. The department found that they had only worked a maximum of 10 days a month as substitutes, never completed the mandatory 240 days of service in a year, and were not working against any legally sanctioned, substantive posts. The petitioners challenged this 2009 rejection order.

B. Petitioners have only made an averment in the writ petition in regard to regularization of some Awazdar, but have not placed any document on record to support it, whereas contesting respondents i.e. Nagar Nigam Kanpur has placed appointment letters of private respondents, and for reference appointment letter of respondent no. 9 (Subhash Chandra s/o Munir) is taken note of that he was appointed vide an appointment letter dated 12.01.2000, against a recruitment process through a Selection Committee being a fresh appointment against vacant post of Switchman due to death or retirement of substantive appointee or Switchman, therefore claim of petitioners that private respondents were regularized being working as Awazdar treating them as a daily wager is contrary to records. No contrary record was placed on record by the petitioner. (Para 14)

Kanpur Nagar Nigam had conducted a special drive to appoint Switchman under a category of OBC also, therefore, some appointments were made through special drive in due process and not from any alleged seniority list. (Para 16)

C. Referred documents though was named as a seniority list, but it was not a seniority list for the purpose of regularization and was not prepared under any provision of law, rather it was a list only for purpose to call Awazdar for work in absence of regular Switchman in a chronical manner as well as that it was never considered as a Seniority List for purpose of regularization and therefore, an argument that seniority list was prepared for purpose of regularization is not correct. No service rule is placed on record by the petitioners to show that purported seniority list has statutory backup. Respective appointment letters of private respondents are also not challenge either. (Para 15)

D. Petitioners' claim that they have worked for 30 days, but salary was paid for only 10 days, cannot be accepted since it not only remains a very vague claim which has been specifically denied by the respondents. (Para 19)

E. Since the petitioners were never directly appointed on daily wages on any Group 'D' post, rather they were working for few days when regularly appointed Switchman was absent as Awazdar, therefore, they would not fall within the definition of daily wager, required for consideration under 'Rules 2001' therefore, also no case of regularization is made out. (Para 21)

'Rules, 2001' provides that any person who- (a) was directly appointed on daily wage basis on a Group 'D' post in the Government service before 29.06.1991 and is continuing in service as such on the date of commencement of these rules; and (b) possessed requisite qualification prescribed for regular appointment for that post at the time of such appointment on daily wage basis under the relevant service rules, shall be considered for regular appointment in permanent or temporary vacancy, as may be available in Group D post, on the date of commencement of these rules on the basis of his record and suitability before any regular appointment is made in such vacancy in accordance with the relevant service rules or orders. (Para 20)

Writ petition dismissed. (E-4)

For Petitioner(s): Daya Shankar Singh, Shailendra

For Respondent(s): Abhinava Krishna Srivastava, Anil Tiwari, C.S.C., Chandan Sharma, Munna Pandey, Yashwant Singh

(Delivered by Hon'ble Saurabh Shyam Shamshery, J.)

1. Heard Sri. Daya Shankar Singh, learned counsel for the petitioners, Sri M.C. Chaturvedi, learned Senior Counsel, learned Additional Advocate General assisted by Mr. Abhinava Krishna Srivastava, learned counsel for respondent no.2, and Sri Yashwant Singh, learned Standing Counsel.

2. Present writ petition was filed in the year 2009 and no interim order was granted and finally it is decided after more than 17 years by present judgment.

3. Petitioners, five in numbers have approached this Court in the year 2009 that they were working since 1990 as Awazdar Karmchari, (एवजदार) on daily wage to undertake work of a Switch Man, in absence of regular Switchman.

4. It was further case of petitioners that though they worked for 30 days in a month, but were paid salary for only of 10 days, though said assertion remained without any supportive material as well as why any objection was not taken during last 19 years.

5. It was further case of petitioners that respondent Kanpur Nagar Nigam had prepared a seniority list of 'Awazdar', but respondents have adopted a pick and choose policy to regularize junior Awazdars, ignoring petitioners despite senior in said list.

6. In aforesaid circumstances, petitioners have earlier approached this Court when respondents were contemplating for a recruitment process for appointment of Switchman against vacant posts that before any such recruitment process commenced, petitioners' case for regularization be considered in terms of Government Order dated 10.7.2003 read with U.P. Daily Wage Employees (Regularization of Group 'D' Post) Rules, 2001 (in brief 'Rules, 2001').

7. The Writ Petition No.28786 of 2003, filed earlier by similarly situated persons was disposed of vide an order dated 14.8.2003. Subsequently, another Writ Petition No.15292 of 2006 was filed which was also disposed of vide an order dated 21.3.2006 with a direction that cases of petitioners and others, be considered for regularization in terms of aforesaid 'Rules 2001'.

8. In pursuance of above referred orders, cases of petitioners and others were considered, however, their respective claim for regularization was rejected on a ground that they do not fall within ambit of 'Rules, 2001' and they have worked as daily wagers for not more than 10 days in a month and accordingly have not worked for 240 days in a year and therefore, they were not 'daily wagers'. It was also mentioned that no seniority list in terms of any service rules was prepared for Awazdars and no procedure was undertaken to regularize any Awazdar independently or from purported list. No Awazdar was appointed against any substantive post. For reference, relevant part of the order is reproduced hereinafter:

“मैंने उपलब्ध अभिलेखों, शासनादेशों एवं सेवानियमों का परीक्षण किया और पाया कि निसार अहमद व अन्य 9 याचीगणों द्वारा मार्ग प्रकाश विभाग, नगर निगम, कानपुर में एवजदार के रूप में प्रत्येक माह में अधिकतम 10 दिन तक ही कार्य किया है जिसका भुगतान किया जा चुका है। याचीगणों ने कभी भी लगातार एक माह भी कार्य नहीं किया और प्रत्येक वर्ष में कभी भी 240 दिन कार्य नहीं किया और याचीगणों द्वारा मार्ग प्रकाश विभाग नगर निगम में कभी भी दैनिक वेतन पर कार्य नहीं किया गया है। इसलिए याचीगण U.P. Daily wage Employees (Regularization on Group D. Posts) Rules 2001 की परिधि में नहीं आते हैं। जिसमें यह निर्देश दिये गये हैं कि श्रमिक ने 29 जून, 1991 से निरन्तर 2001 तक दैनिक वेतन में कार्य कर रहा हो और प्रत्येक वर्ष 240 दिन कार्य किया हो उसी दैनिक वेतन भोगी कर्मचारी को नियमित करने हेतु उक्त नियमावली लागू होगी साथ ही साथ यह भी उल्लेखनीय है कि याचीगणों से अलग-अलग अवधि में एवजदार के रूप में कार्य लिया गया और उस कार्य का निर्धारित पारिश्रमिक का भुगतान किया जा चुका है। उत्तर प्रदेश नगर महापालिका सेवानियमावली के अधीन नगर निगम में एवजदार का कोई पद सृजित नहीं है और न ही उसके द्वारा कथित पद पर कार्य किया गया है। सेवानियमावली में विनिर्दिष्ट तथा नगर निगम द्वारा सृजित एवं नियमानुकूल चयन प्रक्रियाओं के अधीन नियुक्त कर्मचारी को ज्येष्ठता सूची तैयार की जाती है। इस प्रकार एवजदारी की न तो नियमानुकूल वरिष्ठता सूची तैयार की गयी और न ही अभिकथित प्रकार से वरिष्ठता सूची में याचीगणों का नाम अंकित है। एवजदारी का कोई पद न होने के कारण उनकी वरिष्ठता सूची तैयार किये जाने का नियमतः प्रश्न ही नहीं उठता है। इस सम्बन्ध में मा० उच्चतम न्यायालय द्वारा स्टेट ऑफ कर्नाटक बनाम उमादेवी नामक विशेष अनुमति याचिका में प्रतिपादित सिद्धान्तों एवं निर्णय के अनुसार यह प्रकरण प्रथम दृष्टया पोषणीय नहीं है। ऐसी स्थिति में याचीगणों द्वारा दिया गया प्रत्यावेदन नियमानुसार ग्राह्य न होने के कारण निरस्त किया जाता है। तदुसार याचीगणों को सूचित किया जाय।” (Emphasis supplied)

9. Above referred order dated 2.2.2009 was under challenge in the present writ petition, by petitioner's who are 5 in numbers.

10. Admittedly, petitioners have not worked after 2006 and no interim order was granted in the present writ petition, therefore it would be a major adverse factor even if petitioners make out a case that they can be considered for regularization.

11. In the present case pleadings were exchanged and this Court has passed several orders for filing affidavits for providing relevant informations such as seniority list, manner of regularization, manner of selections etc. For reference, relevant orders being orders dated 3.11.2025, 19.11.2025 and 3.12.2025 are reproduced hereinafter:

Order dated 03.11.2025

“Heard Mr. Daya Shankar Singh, learned counsel for the petitioners, Mr. Abhinava Krishna Srivastava, learned counsel for the respondents.

Learned counsel for the petitioners submits that the petitioners, who are five in number, were appointed as Awazdar/Switchman (Daily Wager) in the respondents’ department in the year 1990 for the purpose of regularization, as required under law. A seniority list was subsequently prepared by the department in the year 1994, wherein petitioner no.1 was placed at serial no.74 with the date of registration as 25.09.1990; petitioner no.2 at serial no.72, registered on 10.08.1990; petitioner no.3 at serial no.27, registered on 01.06.1987; petitioner no.4 at serial no.31, registered on 12.12.1987; and petitioner no.5 at serial no.52, registered on 10.05.1990.

When the persons junior to the petitioners were regularized, the petitioners approached this Court by filing a writ petition, wherein a direction was issued to the authorities concerned to consider the grievance of the petitioners. The names of the juniors who were regularized have been mentioned as Kamal Kumar, Rakesh Kumar, Ramesh Chandra, Daya Ram, Subhash Chandra, Pradeep Kumar, Kishan Lal, Jagdish Kannoja, Rajendra Kumar, Lalji Ram, Tamas, Sarju Prasad, Kuldeep, Arun Kumar, Kripa Shanker, Ramesh Chandra, and Shailendra Singh.

Pursuant to the order passed by the writ Court, the petitioners submitted representations before the authorities concerned, however, without passing any orders on the said representations, the respondents prepared two seniority lists, one comprising those who were permitted to continue as daily wagers in the department, and the other consisting of those who were stopped from performing their duties after filing of the earlier writ petition. The respondents, thereafter, have passed the impugned order without considering the fact that although the petitioners were permitted to work as daily wagers for 30 days but payment was made only for 10 days, showing it merely as an arrangement to fill in for any Switchman who was absent for any reason. Despite this, it has been stated that the petitioners were not working as daily wagers.

On a specific query as raised by the Court to learned counsel for the respondents, as to how it can be said that the petitioners were not working as daily wagers when in the first seniority list as issued in the year 1994 their names find place and persons from the same list have already been regularized.

To the aforesaid, Mr. Abhinava Krishna Srivastava, learned counsel for the respondents, requests for two weeks’ time to obtain instructions in the matter.

List on 19.11.2025.

Learned counsel for the petitioner shall be at liberty to make a mention for the matter to be taken up on the said date.

Order dated 19.11.2025

In compliance of order dated 03.11.2025, a supplementary counter affidavit has been filed, which does not mention the details of the juniors who were regularized, nor the category in which such regularization was made. It also does not contain any list showing the names of the persons whose cases were placed for consideration of regularization.

This Court finds that the instructions on the basis of which supplementary counter affidavit has been filed is not proper.

In these circumstances, respondent no.2, Nagar Ayukta, Nagar Nigam, Kanpur, is directed to remain present before this Court along with the entire records and to file an affidavit in respect of the aforesaid issues.

List on 03.12.2025.

Registrar (Compliance) as well as Mr. Abhinava Krishna Srivastava, learned counsel for the respondents shall look into compliance of this order.

Order dated 03.12.2025

In compliance of earlier order of this Court dated 19.11.2025, respondent no.2, Nagar Ayukta, Nagar Nigam, Kanpur, namely, Arpit Upadhyaya is present before this Court and has filed compliance affidavit in the Court today, which is taken on record.

Perusal of the compliance affidavit goes to show that though, the appointment letters of the persons named in the order dated 3.11.2025 have been annexed but the records pertaining to the Selection Committee and order passed by Mukhya Nagar Adhikari dated 10.01.2000, explaining the procedure of absorption and the manner of appointment has not been placed before this Court. Thus, the query of the Court still remains unanswered.

On the aforesaid, Mr. M.C. Chaturvedi, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Mr. Abhinava Krishna Srivastava, learned counsel for the respondent-Nagar Nigam requests for time to file a better affidavit, explaining the procedure of regularization as well as how the persons whose appointment letters have been annexed in the compliance affidavit dated 3.12.2025 have been absorbed.

List this case on 16th December, 2025, for further hearing. In the meantime, affidavit as prayed may be filed.

An oral request has been made by learned Senior Counsel appearing on behalf of the respondent-Nagar Nigam to exempt the appearance of the officer concerned, i.e. respondent no.2, Arpit Upadhyaya-Nagar Ayukta, Nagar Nigam, Kanpur.

The oral request is considered and liberty is granted to the counsel representing respondent no.2 to file an affidavit of exemption within two hours before the Court.

Ref: Order on Civil Misc. Exemption Application

Learned counsel appearing on behalf of respondent no.2 has filed exemption application at 2:00 pm today, which is kept on record. Office is directed to register the same.

The appearance of respondent no.2 is exempted until and unless required.

Accordingly, the exemption application stands disposed of.”

12. Aforesaid orders were passed on a premise that similarly situated some of the Awazdars were regularized on basis of a purported seniority list despite being junior. It was also alleged that some junior Awazdars were regularized and out of them some were arrayed as private respondents also.

13. In the aforesaid circumstances, first issue for consideration is as to whether there was any seniority list of Awazdar and whether some Awazdar were regularized or not?

14. Petitioners have only made an averment in the writ petition in regard to regularization of some Awazdar, but have not placed any document on record to support it , whereas contesting respondents i.e. Nagar Nigam Kanpur has placed appointment letters of private respondents, and for reference appointment letter of respondent no. 9 (Subhash Chandra son of Munir) is taken note of that he was appointed vide an appointment letter dated 12.1.2000, against a recruitment process through a Selection Committee being a fresh appointment against vacant post of Switchman due to death or retirement of substantive appointee or Switchman, therefore claim of petitioners that private respondents were regularized being working as Awazdar treating them as a daily wager is contrary to records. No contrary record was placed on record by the petitioner. For reference, scanned copy as well as typed copy of appointment letter of Subhash Chandra, (respondent no.9) is pasted hereinafter:

15. Learned counsel for petitioners has placed heavy reliance on a purported seniority list annexed along with this writ petition and for that contents of affidavit filed on behalf of contesting respondents as well as submissions of learned Additional Advocate General appearing on behalf of Nagar Nigam Kanpur would be relevant that referred documents though was named as a seniority list, but it was not a seniority list for the purpose of regularization and was not prepared under any provision of law, rather it was a list only for purpose to call Awazdar for work in absence of regular Switchman in a chronical manner as well as that it was never considered as a Seniority List for purpose of regularization and therefore, an argument that seniority list was prepared for purpose of regularization is not correct. No service rule is placed on record by the petitioners to show that purported seniority list has statutory backup. Respective appointment letters of private respondents are also not challenge either.

16. Court also takes note of stand of respondent Kanpur Nagar Nigam that they have conducted a special drive to appoint Switchman under a category of OBC also, therefore, some appointments were made through special drive in due process and not from any alleged seniority list.

17. The facts mentioned in compliance affidavit dated 2.12.2025 remains uncontroverted since no reply was filed by the petitioners.

18. Only outcome of above discussion would be that very basis of claim of petitioners has no legs i.e. does not survive either on facts or on law.

19. Another claim of the petitioners that they have worked for 30 days, but salary was paid for only 10 days, cannot be accepted since it not only remains a very vague claim which has been specifically denied by the respondents.

20. 'Rules, 2001' provides that any person who- (a) was directly appointed on daily wage basis on a Group 'D' post in the Government service before June 29, 1991 and is continuing in service as such on the date of commencement of these rules; and

(b) possessed requisite qualification prescribed for regular appointment for that post at the time of such appointment on daily wage basis under the relevant service rules, shall be considered for regular appointment in permanent or temporary vacancy, as may be available in Group D post, on the date of commencement of these rules on the basis of his record and suitability before any regular appointment is made in such vacancy in accordance with the relevant service rules or orders.

21. However from the facts referred above, since the petitioners were never directly appointed on daily wages on any Group 'D' post, rather they were working for few days when regularly appointed Switchman was absent as Awazdar, therefore, they would not fall within the definition of daily wages, required for consideration under 'Rules 2001' therefore, also no case of regularization is made out.

22. Learned counsel for petitioners has placed reliance on judgment passed in Mohd. Sagir Vs. Nagar Nigam Kanpur, 2026 SCC OnLine SC 473, that in similar circumstances, a plea of a Awazdar was accepted that even he has not worked for 240 days in a year Award was restored, however, Court finds that in said case, an Award was passed by the Labour Court after considering the evidence, statement of witnesses etc. and that respondent Kanpur Nagar Nigam failed to produce records despite summoned, whereas such disputed questions of fact cannot be decided in writ jurisdiction as well as case placed by petitioners was of arbitrariness, which as referred above does not hold good, therefore, no benefit could be granted of the said judgment.

23. In view of above discussion on facts and law, the Court does not find any reason to interfere with the impugned order, which has assigned legally sustainable reasons.

24. Writ Petition is accordingly dismissed.

Issue for Consideration

Whether the order dated 3.12.2025 be reviewed and the writ petition be allowed on the ground that certain facts namely the filing of the suit and the filing of the writ petition, could not be brought to the notice of this Court.

Head Notes

The Constitution of India, 1950-Article 226- Review petition against order dated 3.12.2025 passed in Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No.25002 of 2025- Even if it is ignored that the review petition has not been filed by the lawyer who had filed and argued the writ petition then also it is found that the order passed by the learned Single Judge on 15.11.2025 was not placed before the Court on 3.12.2025 during the argument in Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No.25002 of 2025- Though a suit with regard to permanent injunction was mentioned in the writ petition but regarding it, no ground was raised at the time of the argument-The civil suit being Original Suit No.1689 of 2023 has been brought to the notice of the court and this suit which was challenging a certain will of the father of the petitioner and his brother Yashwant Singh had no bearing to the present case. Even though various civil suits etc. might have been there in existence but the main allegation in the FIR was with regard to the fabrication of the signatures by the first informant of the mother of the petitioner who had died and, therefore, definitely it was a case where investigation was required and it had to be found out prima facie if the accused in the FIR was guilty.

Held-The petitioner had availed the remedy of filing an anticipatory bail and, therefore, no interference in the instant review petition is called for- Review Petition dismissed. (E-15)

Criminal Misc. Delay Condonation Application No.1 of 2026 :

1. This application has been filed for condoning the delay in filing the Review Application.

2. In view of the averments made in the affidavit filed in support of the application under Section 5 of the Limitation Act, we are satisfied that the applicant was prevented by sufficient cause from preferring the Review Application within the period of limitation.

3. The application is, accordingly, allowed.

Order on the Review Petition :

4. A First Information Report was lodged under sections 318(4), 319(2), 336(3), 338, 340(2), 351(3), 352 of Bharatiya Nyaya Sanhita, 2023 on 12.10.2025 alleging that the petitioner had without declaring that his mother Smt. Radhika Singh had died, continued to run various institutions in the name of a dead person. A writ petition was filed being Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No.25002 of 2025 which was sworn on 29.10.2025. The writ petition came to be heard by this Court on 3.12.2025 and was dismissed with the following order :-

"1. Heard learned counsel for the petitioner and learned A.G.A. for the State.

2. This writ petition has been filed for quashing the impugned First Information Report dated 12.10.2025 registered as Case Crime No. 205 of 2025, under Sections 318(4), 319(2), 336(3), 338, 340(2), 351(3), 352 B.N.S., Police Station- Pipari, District- Sonbhadra, and a direction to the respondent authorities not to arrest the petitioner in pursuance of the impugned first information report.

3. Submission of the learned counsel for the petitioner is that the petitioner has been falsely implicated.

4. Per contra, learned A.G.A. submits that a cognizable offence has been made out and, therefore, no interference is warranted in the impugned first information report.

5. Perusal of the impugned first information report prima facie reveals commission of cognizable offence.

*6. Therefore, in view of the law laid down by Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of State of Haryana and others vs. Bhajan Lal and others, 1992 Supp. (1) SCC 335 and M/s Neeharika Infrastructure Pvt. Ltd. vs. State of Maharashtra, AIR 2021 SC 1918 and in Special Leave to Appeal (Crl.) No.3262/2021 (Leelavati Devi @ Leelawati & another vs. the State of Uttar Pradesh) decided on 07.10.2021, no case has been made out for interference with the impugned first information report.

7. Therefore, the writ petition is dismissed leaving it open for the petitioner to apply before the competent court for anticipatory bail/bail as permissible under law and in accordance with law."

5. In the meantime, it has been stated by learned counsel for the petitioner that as per paragraph no.7 of the order, the petitioner had approached the Court for anticipatory bail which was numbered as 1171 of 2026. In the meantime, it has also been submitted that Yashwant Singh, the first informant had filed a writ petition being Writ-C No.28918 of 2025 wherein the Assistant Registrar, Firms, Societies and Chits, Sonbhadra was directed to look into the various contentions raised by various parties. This order was passed on 15.11.2025.

6. Learned counsel for the review petitioner has further submitted that also a suit was filed by the first informant being Original Suit No.1689 of 2023 with regard to properties which were inherited by the petitioner by means of a will and in that suit the will was challenged. Today, learned counsel for the review petitioner has also produced an order dated 3.4.2026 which has been passed in some suit being Original Suit No.97 of 2025 filed by Radhika Memorial Trust in which the petitioner is a defendant. Learned counsel for the petitioner, therefore, states that because these facts, namely the filing of the suit and the filing of the writ petition, could not be brought to the notice of this Court, the order dated 3.12.2025 be reviewed and the writ petition be allowed.

7. Learned counsel for the first informant Shri Krishan Yadav has, however, opposed the review petition and has submitted that the writ petition was in fact filed by learned counsel Sri Dharmendra Pratap Singh and Sri Sunil Kumar Singh while the Review Petition has now been filed by Sri Ashok Kumar Pandey and Sri Ashutosh Mishra, Advocates and relying upon a judgment of the Supreme Court in Tamil Nadu Electricity Board & Anr. vs. N. Raju Reddiar & Anr. reported in AIR 1997 SC 1005; a judgment of this Court in Civil Misc. Review Application No.432 of 2023 decided on 31.10.2023 and upon a further Division Bench judgment of this Court in Vinita Bhatnagar vs. Union of India & Ors. reported in 2018 SCC OnLine All 6411 has submitted that if the review petition was not filed by the counsel who had argued the case earlier, then the review petition cannot be entertained. He further has submitted that if the writ petition is perused, it could be seen that the grounds taken were as follows :-

"(a) Because on the basis of the aforesaid facts, the entire allegation levelled against the petitioner in the Application under Section 173(4) BNSS filed by the Respondent no.3 is totally false, frivolous and concocted, but learned Chief Judicial Magistrate, Sonbhadra without considering the real facts and circumstances of the case as well as without applying his judicial mind, allowed the Application u/s 173(4) BNSS vide his order dated 29.09.2025 by way of mechanical manner, which is illegal, arbitrary and against the provisions of law.

(b) Because the respondent no.3 has filed a civil suit against the petitioner before the concerned court on 26.05.2025 and same is still pending till date.

(c) Because regarding to the aforesaid dispute of the Samiti, the respondent no.3 has already filed a Writ petition no.28918 of 2025 (Yashwant Singh and 2 others Vs. State of U.P. and 2 Others), which is still pending till today.

(d) Because the matter belongs to civil dispute regarding to the aforesaid Samiti, but respondent no.3 has given colour of the case as criminal case and only view of the harassment and torturing to the petitioner, lodged and alleged FIR against him only for grabbing the aforesaid Samiti, while petitioner has not committed any offence as alleged against him.

(e) Because the petitioner has falsely been implicated in the aforesaid case, while he is innocent person.

(f) Because the petitioner is law abiding person and belonging to well reputed society at large and there is no any criminal antecedent against him, except to the present false case.

(g) Because the petitioner has falsely been implicated in the alleged case, while he has not committed any offence as alleged against him.

(h) Because from bare perusal of the entire evidence on record, no offence is made out against the petitioner under Sections 318(4), 319(2), 336(3), 338, 340(2), 351(3), 352 BNS.

(i) Because in spite of these, concerned police has made pressure upon the petitioner for arresting him, due to this petitioner has filed the present writ petition before this Hon'ble Court for staying the arrest of the petitioner.

(j) Because as per best knowledge of the petitioner, no charge sheet has been submitted by the Investigating Officer against the petitioner and investigation is going on till today.

(k) Because the concerned police regularly harassing to the petitioner and his entire family members for arresting the petitioner, while petitioner is innocent person and he has not committed any offence as alleged against him.

(l) Because the impugned F.I.R. is totally false, fabricated and concocted, nothing only abuse process of law only view to the harassment of the petitioner and action of the respondent authorities is illegal, arbitrary and against the principle of natural justice and the impugned alleged F.I.r. is liable to quashed by this Hon'ble Court.

(m) Because the entire proceedings have been initiated maliciously which are illusory, vexatious, scandalous and abuse of the process of the law and as such the entire proceedings are not tenable under law and thus the same are liable to be quashed by this Hon'ble Court."

8. Learned counsel for the first informant submits that the grounds as have been raised by the review petitioner today were not available to the petitioner at the time when the order dated 3.12.2025 was passed in the writ petition. What is more, learned counsel for the first informant submits that it could be seen that the writ petition was actually sworn in the month of October 2025 and the judgment of the learned Single Judge, which was passed in Writ-C No.28918 of 2025 on 15.11.2025, was not available to the petitioner at the time of the drafting of the writ petition. He, therefore, submits that the order dated 15.11.2025 was available to the petitioner on the date when the Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No.25002 of 2025 was being argued but it was never placed before the Court. Learned counsel for the first informant/respondent further submits that as per the order dated 3.12.2025, the petitioner had filed an application for the grant of anticipatory bail which was numbered as Criminal Misc. Anticipatory Bail Application U/S 482 BNSS No.1171 of 2026 and, therefore, he submits that no interference be made in the instant Review Application.

9. Having heard learned counsel for the review petitioner and the learned counsel for the respondent, we are of the view that definitely the review petition has not been filed by the lawyer who had filed and argued the writ petition. Be that as it may, even if we ignore this issue, we find that the order passed by the learned Single Judge on 15.11.2025 was not placed before the Court on

3.12.2025 during the argument in Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No.25002 of 2025. Still further we are of the view that though a suit with regard to permanent injunction was mentioned in the writ petition but regarding it, no ground was raised at the time of the argument. Also, today the civil suit being Original Suit No.1689 of 2023 has been brought to our notice and this suit which was challenging a certain will of the father of the petitioner and his brother Yashwant Singh had no bearing to this case. We also find that even though various civil suits etc. might have been there in existence but the main allegation in the FIR was with regard to the fabrication of the signatures by the first informant of the mother of the petitioner who had died and, therefore, definitely it was a case where investigation was required and it had to be found out prima facie if the accused in the FIR was guilty. Still further, we are of the view that the petitioner had availed the remedy of filing an anticipatory bail and, therefore, no interference in the instant review petition is called for.

10. The Review Application is, accordingly, dismissed.

Issue for Consideration

Whether review petition cannot be filed through a counsel who was not a counsel in the writ petition

Head Notes

The Code of Civil Procedure-1908- Section 114; Order 47- Review application can only be filed where there is an error apparent on the face of the record and even where there is an error which is apparent on the face of record, the review application should be filed by the Counsel who had advanced submissions in the original proceedings- A review petition is not a rehearing or an appeal against the original order and, therefore, new grounds cannot be taken in a review petition- By seeking a review on the ground that the order impugned in the Writ Petition suffers from perversity, the review applicant is seeking a rehearing of the matter, which is not permissible in law.

Held- Review application filed through another Counsel cannot be entertained-Order sought to be reviewed does not suffer from any error, much less an error apparent on the face of the record. The Review Application lacks merit and the same is dismissed. (E-15)

Case Arising From

The applicant is seeking review of a judgment and order dated 07.01.2026 passed by this Court dismissing WritC No. 41 of 2026, which was filed by the review applicant/petitioner challenging the validity of an order dated 21.05.2019 passed by the SubDivisional Magistrate, Ambedkar Nagar canceling the fair price shop license of the petitioner, which order had been affirmed by means of an order dated 08.12.2025 passed by the Deputy Commissioner, Ayodhya Division, Ayodhya in appeal filed by the petitioner under Para 13(3) of U.P. Essential Commodities(Regulation of Sale and Distribution) Order, 2016.

Appearances for Parties

Counsel for Applicant(s) : Saima Khan, Zainul Abbas

Counsel for Opposite Party(s) :

(Delivered by Hon'ble Subhash Vidyarthi, J.)

1. Heard Ms. Saima Khan, learned counsel for the review applicant and Sri Rahul Shukla, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel alongwith Sri Alok Srivastava, learned Standing Counsel for the State of U.P. representing the respondents no. 1, 2 & 3.

2. By means of instant application, the applicant is seeking review of a judgment and order dated 07.01.2026 passed by this Court dismissing Writ-C No. 41 of 2026, which was filed by the review applicant/petitioner challenging the validity of an order dated 21.05.2019 passed by the Sub-Divisional Magistrate, Ambedkar Nagar canceling the fair price shop license of the petitioner, which order had been affirmed by means of an order dated 08.12.2025 passed by the Deputy Commissioner, Ayodhya Division, Ayodhya in appeal filed by the petitioner under Para 13(3) of U.P. Essential Commodities(Regulation of Sale and Distribution) Order, 2016.

3. The learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel has raised a preliminary objection that the writ petition had been filed through Sri Ajay Kumar Pandey, Advocate and the aforesaid counsel had advances submissions in support of the writ petition. The review application has been filed by another counsel Ms. Saima Khan. He has submitted that in view of the law laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of M. Poornachandran & Another Vs. State of Tamil Nadu and Others: (1996) 6 SCC 755 and Tamil Nadu Electricity Board & Another Vs. N. Raju Reddiar & Anr: (1997) 9 SCC 736, a review petition cannot be filed through a counsel who was not a counsel in the writ petition. .

4. The learned counsel for the review applicant has also placed reliance on the decision of the Supreme Court in the Case of Tamil Nadu Electricity Board and Another Vs. N. Raju Reddiar and Another: (1997) 9 SCC 736.

5. In M. Poornachandran v. State of T.N., (1996) 6 SCC 755, a Review Petition No. 2670 of 1996 in CA No. 1867 of 1992, had been dismissed by holding as under: -

"The record of the appeal indicates that Shri Sudarsh Menon was the Advocate-on-Record when the appeal was heard and decided on merits. The review petition has been filed by Shri Prabir Chowdhury who was neither an arguing counsel when the appeal was heard nor was he present at the time of arguments. It is unknown on what basis he has written the grounds in the review petition as if it is a rehearing of an appeal against our order. He did not confine to the scope of review. It would not be in the interest of the profession to permit such practice. That apart, he has not obtained 'No Objection Certificate' from the Advocate-on-Record in the appeal, in spite of the fact that Registry had informed him of the requirement for doing so. Filing of the 'No Objection Certificate' would be the basis for him to come on record. Otherwise, the Advocate-on-Record is answerable to the Court. The failure to obtain the 'No Objection Certificate' from the erstwhile counsel has disintitled him to file the review petition. Even otherwise, the review petition has no merits. It is an attempt to reargue the matter on merits."

(Emphasis added)

6. Thereafter another application for clarification of the order, an application for review whereof had already been rejected vide judgment in the case of M. Poornachandran v. State of T.N. (supra) was filed through another Advocate. The Hon'ble Supreme Court dismissed the application by a judgment in Tamil Nadu Electricity Board & Another Vs. N. Raju Reddiar & Anr: (1997) 9 SCC 736 by observing that: -

"1. It is a sad spectacle that a new practice unbecoming and not worthy of or conducive to the profession is cropping up. Mr Mariaputham, Advocate-on-Record had filed vakalatnama for the petitioner-respondent when the special leave petition was filed. After the matter was disposed of, Mr V. Balachandran, Advocate had filed a petition for review. That was also dismissed by this Court on 24-4-1996. Yet another advocate, Mr S.U.K. Sagar, has now been engaged to file the present application styled as "application for clarification", on the specious plea that the order is not clear and unambiguous. When an appeal/special leave petition is dismissed, except in rare cases where error of law or fact is apparent on the record, no review can be filed; that too by the Advocate-on-Record who neither appeared nor was party in the main case. It is salutary to note that the court spends valuable time in deciding a case. Review petition is not, and should not be, an attempt for hearing the matter again on merits. Unfortunately, it has become, in recent time, a practice to file such review petitions as a routine; that too, with change of counsel, without obtaining consent of the Advocate-on-Record at earlier stage. This is not conducive to healthy practice of the Bar which has the responsibility to maintain the salutary practice of profession."

7. The learned counsel for the review applicant has submitted that she has obtained a no objection certificate from the Counsel who had filed and argued the Writ Petition and, therefore, she has the right to file the review application. She has further submitted that even in T.N. Electricity Board v. N. Raju Reddiar (supra), the Hon'ble Supreme Court has carved out an exception against the prohibition against filing of review petitions for the "rare cases where error of law or fact is apparent on the record". She has submitted that the present case is one of those rare cases as it suffers from a patent error of fact. The petitioner was held prima facie guilty in a preliminary inquiry, thereafter, an opportunity to show cause was given to him and without any evidence having been led to prove the charges against the petitioner, he has been held guilty. She has submitted that as the order impugned in the writ petition suffers from perversity which renders it unsustainable in law, the present case falls in the category of those rare cases, in which a review of the order is permitted.

8. The aforesaid submission of the learned Counsel for the applicant is based on a misreading of the judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court. What the Hon'ble Supreme Court has laid down is, that a review application cannot be filed in a routine manner and it can only be filed in rare cases, where an error of law or fact is apparent on the face of the record. The second principle laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court is that review application can be filed by the Counsel who had advanced submissions in the original proceedings, as any other Counsel will not be in a position to point out what submissions had been advanced before the Court at the time of passing of the order sought to be reviewed. A review petition is not a rehearing or an appeal against the original order and, therefore, new grounds cannot be taken in a review petition. It would not be in the interest of the profession to permit such practice. The Hon'ble Supreme Court has not held that where the order suffers from an error apparent on the face of the record, a review application can be filed through a new Counsel also. A review application can only be filed where there is an error apparent on the face of the record and even where there is an error which is apparent on the face of record, the review application should be filed by the Counsel who had advanced submissions in the original proceedings. Therefore, the submission of the learned Counsel for the review applicant is misconceived and the same is rejected.

9. The learned counsel for the review applicant next submitted that the provision for filing applications for review before this High Court is contained in Chapter V Rule 12 of the Allahabad High Court Rules, which reads as follows: -

"12. Application for review. :- An application for the review of a Judgment shall be presented to the Registrar General, who shall endorse thereon the date when it is presented and lay the same as early as possible before the Judge or Judges by whom such judgment was delivered along with an office report as to limitation and sufficiency of courtfees. If such Judge or Judges or any one or more of such Judges be no longer attached to the court, the application shall laid before the Chief Justice who shall having regard to the provisions of Rule 5 of Order XL VII of the Code, nominate a Bench for the hearing of such applications :

Provided that an application for the review of a judgment of one Judge who is precluded by absence or other cause for a period of six months next after the presentation of the application from considering the decree or order to which the application refers, shall be heard or disposed of by a single Judge, and that an application for the review of a judgment of two or more Judges, any one or more of whom is or are precluded by absence or other cause for a period of six months next after the presentation of the application from considering the decree or order to which the application refers, shall be heard or disposed of by a Bench consisting of the same or a greater number of Judges. Explanation:- For the purposes of this rule the expression 'no longer attached to the Court' shall be deemed to include absence from the permanent place of sitting on account of the directions given under rule 17 of this Chapter, illness or any other cause.."

10. The learned Counsel for the applicant has submitted that the aforesaid Rule permits hearing of a review application by a Judge other than the Judge who had decided the original proceedings, in case of non-availability of the Judge who had decided the original proceedings. As per the learned counsel for the petitioner the same analogy should be applied to the counsel also and if the earlier counsel is not available for filing review application or advancing submissions, another counsel should be permitted to file a review application and advance submissions in support thereof.

11. I am unable to accept the aforesaid submission of the learned counsel for the review applicant as firstly, in case the judge who had decided the earlier original proceedings is not attached to the Court, the review applicant can not be left remedy-less and in that case the Rule rightly provides that the review application shall be heard and disposed of by another Bench. It is not the case that the counsel who had filed the writ petition and had advanced submissions in support thereof, is not practicing before this Court any more and it is not the case that the counsel is not available for filing the review petition and advancing submissions in support thereof. The only thing is that the applicant/petitioner has chosen to avail the services of another counsel. Therefore the analogy of Chapter V Rule 12 of the Allahabad High Court Rules, as pressed by the learned counsel for the petitioner, would not apply to the present case.

12. Therefore, I find force in the submission of Sri Rahul Shukla, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel, that the review application filed through another Counsel cannot be entertained.

13. The order sought to be reviewed is a detailed order, wherein this Court has noted that the order dated 21.12.2019 shows that during inquiry, statements of 40 persons have been recorded who pointed out the illegalities committed by the petitioner in distribution of essential commodities. The Village Pradhan gave written statement stating that the essential commodities for the month of October 2018 had not been distributed till 27.10.2018. After a complaint was made by the card holders, the petitioner made inadequate distribution on 28/29.10.2018. He has charged excessive amount from the card holders. After recording of statements of card holders, the petitioner's shop was inspected. The stock register was not available in the shop. The petitioner's brother who was present at the shop at the time of inspection was directed to produce the stock register the following day, but the petitioner did not do so. It was also found during inspection that the sign board, stock board, rate board, notice board and toll free number of the department was not displayed at the shop. The petitioner was not using electronic weighing scale or standard weights and weighing scale certified by the legal meteorology department. The petitioner's license was suspended by means of order dated 06.11.2018. The petitioner submitted his explanation on 11.10.2018 along with a copy of the stock register. He stated that he could not distribute the essential commodities because of some criminal actions committed on 30.09.2018 in which he and his family members had suffered injuries and were under going treatment and he had remained admitted to hospital since 30.09.2018 to 09.10.2018. He had started distribution through an assistant since 12.10.2018. It is recorded in the impugned order that the petitioner's explanation and the evidence adduced by him, including the distribution register, was examined by the Regional Food Officer who found that the distribution register had not been properly filled. Some pages thereof contained signature of large number of persons than the persons whose names were mentioned and some other pages mentioned lesser number of signatures than the names of persons mentioned. The distribution register had not been verified by the competent officer from which it appeared that the petitioner had fabricated the register.

14. This Court has also taken into consideration that Para 7 (8) of U.P. Essential Commodities (Regulation of Sale and Distribution) Order, 2016 merely provides that an inquiry regarding irregularities in distribution by a fair price shop owner shall be conducted by the designation officer or by the District Magistrate. After inquiry, if the license of fair price shop owner is suspended along with a show cause notice by the competent authority, then the reply/ explanation of show cause notice by fair price shop owners will be examined by an officer at least one rank above the inquiry officer. If the preliminary inquiry had been conducted by a district level officer, then the explanation by fair price shop owners shall be examined by another district level officer. It does not provide for recording of statements of witnesses and giving opportunity of their cross-examination by the shop holder.

15. This Court has already examined the plea raised on behalf of the petitioner that the impugned order suffers from perversity and after a detailed discussion, has concluded in para 8 of the judgment dated 07.01.2026 that "the S.D.M. arrived at a finding of guilt of the petitioner after taking into consideration the entire record and the order cannot be said to be perverse. The findings of S.D.M. has been affirmed by the Deputy Commissioner, Food during appeal."

16. Now by seeking a review on the ground that the order impugned in the Writ Petition suffers from perversity, the review applicant is seeking a rehearing of the matter, which is not permissible in law.

17. In Thungabhadra Industries Ltd. v. Govt. of A.P.: AIR 1964 SC 1372, the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that: -

"7....A review is by no means an appeal in disguise whereby an erroneous decision is reheard and corrected, but lies only for patent error. We do not consider that this furnishes a suitable occasion for dealing with this difference exhaustively or in any great detail, but it would suffice for us to say that where without any elaborate argument one could point to the error and say here is a substantial point of law which stares one in the face, and there could reasonably be no two opinions, entertained about it, a clear case of error apparent on the face of the record would be made out..."

18. The aforesaid principle has consistently been followed till date, and it has recently been followed in State of W.B. v. Jai Hind (P) Ltd.: 2026 SCC OnLine SC 157.

19. In Malleeswari v. K. Suguna: 2025 SCC OnLine SC 1927, the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that: -

"15. It is axiomatic that the right of appeal cannot be assumed unless expressly conferred by the statute or the rules having the force of a statute. The review jurisdiction cannot be assumed unless it is conferred by law on the authority or the Court. Section 114 and Order 47, Rule 1 of CPC deal with the power of review of the courts. The power of review is different from appellate power and is subject to the following limitations to maintain the finality of judicial decisions:

15.1 The review proceedings are not by way of an appeal and have to be strictly confined to the scope and ambit of Order 47 Rule 1 of CPC.

15.2 Review is not to be confused with appellate powers, which may enable an appellate court to correct all manner of errors committed by the subordinate court.

15.3 In exercise of the jurisdiction under Order 47 Rule 1 of CPC, it is not permissible for an erroneous decision to be reheard and corrected. A review petition, it must be remembered, has a limited purpose and cannot be allowed to be an appeal in disguise.

15.4 The power of review can be exercised for the correction of a mistake, but not to substitute a view. Such powers can be exercised within the limits specified in the statute governing the exercise of power.

15.5 The review court does not sit in appeal over its own order. A rehearing of the matter is impermissible. It constitutes an exception to the general rule that once a judgment is signed or pronounced, it should not be altered. Hence, it is invoked only to prevent a miscarriage of justice or to correct grave and palpable errors.

16. To wit, through a review application, an apparent error of fact or law is intimated to the court, but no extra reasoning is undertaken to explain the said error. The intimation of error at the first blush enables the court to correct apparent errors instead of the higher court correcting such errors. At both the above stages, detailed reasoning is not warranted.

17. Having noticed the distinction between the power of review and appellate power, we restate the power and scope of review jurisdiction. Review grounds are summed up as follows:

17.1 The ground of discovery of new and important matter or evidence is a ground available if it is demonstrated that, despite the exercise of due diligence, this evidence was not within their knowledge or could not be produced by the party at the time, the original decree or order was passed.

17.2 Mistake or error apparent on the face of the record may be invoked if there is something more than a mere error, and it must be the one which is manifest on the face of the record. Such an error is a patent error and not a mere wrong decision. An error which has to be established by a long-drawn process of reasoning on points where there may conceivably be two opinions can hardly be said to be an error apparent on the face of the record.

17.3 Lastly, the phrase 'for any other sufficient reason' means a reason that is sufficient on grounds at least analogous to those specified in the other two categories.

18. Courts ought not mix up or overlap one jurisdiction with another jurisdiction..."

20. Sri Rahul Shukla, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel has placed reliance on a decision in Shankar Prasad v. State of U.P.: 2021 SCC OnLine All 1852, wherein a Division Bench of this Court examined the following two questions referred to it: -

"(a) What are the parameters of principles of natural justice to be followed in inquiries conducted by Licensing Authority on complaints of irregularities in the distribution of Essential Commodities?

(b) Whether the observation made in Paragraph 35 of the Full Bench decision in Puran Singh v. State of U.P. (2010) 2 UPLBEC 947 regarding holding of "full fledged enquiry" after suspension of license can be read in such a manner as would require the whole gamut of steps required in disciplinary proceedings of Government servants to be followed?"

The Division Bench gave the following answers to the questions: -

*(i) It is held that the parameters for an enquiry to be conducted against the licensee for the irregularities committed by the licensee in terms of the Distribution of Essential Commodities is on broad principles of natural justice where the competent authority shall provide a show cause notice to the licensee indicating the violations and irregularities committed by the licensee with sufficient particularity to enable him to respond to the same and after affording an opportunity of hearing, the decision can be taken by the competent authority by a reasoned and a speaking order. The enquiry envisaged is summary in nature and does not entail a detailed hearing, akin to a departmental enquiry;

(ii) It is held that the words "full fledged enquiry" as used by the Full Bench of this Court in the decision of Puran Singh (supra) has to be read in context with paras 4 and 5 of the Government Order of July 2004 and the scheme therein which merely requires adherence to the principles of natural justice and does not provide for a detailed enquiry involving various stages and steps as are required to be met in disciplinary enquiry against a government servant."

(Emphasis added)

21. The order sought to be reviewed is in conformity with the aforesaid principles laid down by the Division Bench in Shankar Prasad v. State of U.P. (supra) and it does not suffer from any error, much less an error apparent on the face of the record. The Review Application lacks merit and the same is dismissed.

Government Appeal No. 91 of 1987

State of U.P.

...Appellant

Versus

Tulsi Ram

...Respondent

Issue for Consideration

A. Whether the learned Trial Court has rightly accorded the benefit of self-defence to the accused?

B. Whether the failure of the prosecution in explaining the injuries on the person of the accused renders the entire prosecution story untrustworthy?

C. Whether the impugned order and judgment of acquittal bears any illegality or perversity?

Head Notes

The Indian Evidence Act, 1872-Section 105; The Indian Penal Code, 1860-Sections 96, 99 & 100- Evidence proved by prosecution reasonably established that incident was authored and provoked by accused. It is not the case of accused that deceased and injured criminally trespassed their premises with weapons and they had no safe alternative, but to inflict injuries to them to save themselves. No evidence what so ever, has been adduced by accused to prove that they acted in self defence, except the doctor who proved injuries on the body of accused Harnaam. Therefore, observations of learned trial court that accused acted in self defence and rendering them benefit of acquittal bears material illegality-Even if it is accepted that there was some quarrel and heated exchange between accused and the informant and his deceased brother, it cannot be accepted that such a heated exchange gave the accused the right to self-defence to the extent of causing death.

The injuries established on the person of accused are simple in nature, therefore, in the wake of evidence on record, non-explanation of his injuries is not so much fatal which may render the case of prosecution as unreliable

The injuries were not result of intentional killing but the accused certainly must have been aware of the fact that blow from such weapon could even result in death- It is clear that despite knowing that blow of bhala could have caused death of victim, both accused with common intention and in a fit of rage, gave blow resulting in the death of victim, and therefore, are found guilty of committing offence of culpable homicide not amounting to murder and causing simple hurt to complainant.

Held-That impugned judgement and order passed by learned trial court acquitting the accused from all the charges, is patently perverse and not sustainable in the eyes of law and is hereby liable to be reversed and set aside and accused Jagat Pal and Harnaam are liable to be held guilty for committing the offence under Section 304 Part II/34 and under Section 323/34 of IPC.

Appeal allowed. (E-15)

Appearances for Parties

Counsel for Appellant(s) : Shri Bireshwar Nath, Counsel for Respondent(s) : Ram Naresh Singh Chauhan

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Babita Rani, J.)

1. Heard Sri Arunendra, learned AGA for the State/appellant and Shri Ram Naresh Singh Chauhan, learned counsel for the respondents.

2. The present appeal has been filed by the State of U.P. challenging the judgment and order dated 31.03.1986 passed by the Special Sessions Judge, Unnao acquitting the respondents (hereinafter referred to as accused) for the charges under Sections 302/323 read with Section 34 of the Indian Penal Code, 1860 (hereinafter referred to as 'IPC' for brevity) in re: State v. Tulsi Ram and others, bearing S.T. No. 386/84 and in re: State vs. Harnaam, under Section 25 of the Arms Act in S.T. No. 235/85, police station Makhi, District Unnao.

3. During pendency of the appeal, accused Tulsiram and Lakshmi Narain, had passed away and thus, the instant appeal was abated on their behalf by this Court vide order dated 28.11.2022. Now instant appeal survives only for accused Jagat Pal and Harnaam.

4. Brief facts of the case are that on 15.06.1984, at about 10:00 AM, the informant's brother, Jamuna Prasad (deceased) was fixing parnala on his roof and the informant, Amrit Lal (PW1), was putting up mud on his rooftop. The accused opposed installation of parnala on the ground that the same would result in the flow of water on their roof. However, Jamuna Prasad refused to budge and continued fixing the parnala stating that the rain water had been flowing to the roof of the accused through the parnala from old times. This resulted in a heated exchange between the two sides, and on the instigation of accused Tulsi Ram, accused Lakshmi Narayan with lathi, Harnaam with bhala and Jagat Pal with lathi having iron rings on it, came and assaulted the person of Jamuna Prasad (deceased) with their lethal weapon. PW1, who was on his roof, rushed to save his brother Jamuna Prasad and in this process, he was also beaten up by them. The incident was witnessed by PW2, who was working on his roof as well as other neighbours working on their roof who assembled on hearing the hues and cries. The accused, thereafter, fled away from the spot with their weapons. When the injured Jamuna Prasad was being taken to hospital for treatment by complainant Amrit Lal by a bullock cart, he succumbed to injuries. Complainant Amrit Lal submitted an application of incident to the police concerned to lodge the first information report.

5. On the basis of written tehrir (Ex. Ka.1) of complainant Amrit Lal (PW1), the first information report (Ex. Ka.3) was registered in Police Station- Makhi on 15.06.1984 under Sections 302/323 of IPC by PW 4 Head Constable Shubh Karan Singh. The investigation was entrusted to PW7, Sh Ram Lal Yadav, who reached on the spot and after nomination of panch, prepared the panchnama of the body Ex. Ka10 and collected blood soaked clothes and soil samples vide recovery memo Ex. Ka14 and 15 as well. The site plan Ex. Ka16 was prepared at the instance of complainant PW1. Post-mortem of the body was conducted by Dr. S.P. Rastogi (PW5), who prepared the report Ex. Ka-8. On 17.06.1984, the accused namely Harnaam and Lakshmi Narayan were arrested. Accused Harnaam in custody made a disclosure statement that he had hidden the lathi and bhala used in the incident in his house. He led to the place and got the bhala and lathi recovered from the dung store. The subjected weapons were taken into possession and sealed on the spot in presence of witnesses vide recovery memo Ex. Ka 2, and site plan of recovery of weapons was prepared. On 17.06.1984, on the basis of recovery of bhala by PW7, first information report was registered by PW4 against accused Harnaam under Sections 4/25 of Arms Act, 1959.

6. After the completion of entire investigation and prima-facie evidence collected against accused, charge-sheet was filed against all accused under Sections 302/323 IPC including section 4/25 of Arms Act against accused Harnaam. The magistrate took cognisance of case and committed the case for trial to the court of sessions. Learned Sessions Judge framed charges under Section 302 read with Section 34 IPC and Section 323 IPC against Harnaam, Jagat Pal and Lakshmi Narayan and Section 302 read with Section 114 IPC against Tulsi Ram whereas in connected Sessions Trial No. 235/85, charge against accused Harnaam was framed under Section 25 of the Arms Act, 1959, to which they all pleaded not guilty and claimed a trial.

7. The prosecution examined as many as 9 witnesses in it's support and closed evidence while accused examined Dr. L.D. Shukla, the jail doctor as DW-1 who examined Harnaam on 17.06.1984.

8. PW1, the informant and injured witness, stated that on the day of occurrence, his brother Jamuna Prasad (deceased) was fixing an old parnala on his roof, which is above the roof of the accused respondents. Accused Tulsi Ram told Jamuna Prasad not to fix the parnala but Jamuna Prasad refused to budge and told Tulsi Ram that the parnala was an old one and the water has always flown towards the roof of the accused. Tulsi Ram then instigated Lakshmi Narain, Jagat Pal and Harnaam to bring lathi and bhala and immediately accused Lakshmi Narayan with lathi, Jagat Pal with lathi and Harnaam with bhala came on the roof of Jamuna Prasad and started assaulting him with the lathis and bhala. When PW1 Amrit Lal tried to intervene, the respondents assaulted him too. Neighbours Ramsevak, Baijnath, Guruprasad and Dayashankar, who were also working on their roofs, came rushing upon hearing the screams of PW1 and his brother. The accused respondents then fled away from the scene and PW1 started carrying his injured brother Jamuna Prasad to the police station. However, just outside the village, Jamuna Prasad succumbed to his injuries, so PW1 brought his deceased brother back home. Thereafter, PW1 wrote a complaint (Ex Ka1) and handed over the same in the police station. PW2, Guruprasad, is eye witness of the incident and has corroborated the testimony of PW1. PW3, Ram Chandra, is a witness to the recovery of the bhala and lathi at the instance of accused Harnaam and proved not only the disclosure statement of accused and recovery of weapons, but also his undoubted presence at the time of recovery of weapon in question.

9. PW5, Dr S.P. Rastogi conducted the autopsy of Jamuna Prasad and prepared the post-mortem report (Ex Ka 8) on 16.06.1984, which disclosed the following injuries:

b. Stab wound 0.5" x 0.5" x chest cavity deep, present on left side scalp middle part of back, 8" below the lower end of left scapula and 1" left to the vertebral column. Directions of the wound is from left oblique upwards, medially on opening the chest cavity, left side chest cavity full of fluid and clotted blood, left lung lower lobe at its dorsal aspect shows stab 0.3" x 0.3" and left verticle 0.2" x 0.2" stab wound.

The injuries were reported to be about one day old. The internal examination disclosed stab wound present on the left lung and the cause of death was reported to be shock and haemorrhage as a result of ante mortem injury no. 2. PW5 stated in his testimony that the injury no. 2 was more likely to have been caused by a bhala. Genuineness of the post-mortem report was admitted by the respondents under Section 294 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973.

10. PW6, Dr G.P. Awasthi, medically examined the informant PW1 Amrit Lal and found the following injuries on his person (Ex Ka 9):

a). Lacerated wound 2 cm x 0.5 cm x scalp deep present on the occipital region of the skull.

b). Contusion 6 cm x 3 cm present over the back left scapular region c). Traumatic swelling 4 cm x 2 cm present over the dorsal aspect of left foot. The aforementioned injuries, in the opinion of PW6, were of a simple nature and had been caused by a blunt object.

11. The sole defence witness (DW1), Dr LD Shukla, performed the medical examination of accused Harnaam on 19.06.1984 and found the following injuries on his person.

a). Contusion 2 c.m. x 1 c.m. on right side of face at maxillary prominence.

b.) Traumatic injury on dorsum of right hand measuring 10 c.m. x 8 c.m. swelling is covered by multiple contusions

d). Complaint of pain on both buttock and right foot but no visible injury seen

On the nature of injuries, DW1 stated that the injuries were simple in nature and were caused by a blunt object. The injuries were reported to be around 5 days old. The medical report was marked as Ex. Khal.

12. Upon appreciating the evidence available on record and on the basis of the testimonies of the various witnesses, the learned Trial Court came to the conclusion that the accused had acted in self-defence for the protection of their person and property and thus, the accused were acquitted of all the charges. The learned Trial Court found that the prosecution had failed to explain the injuries as recorded on the person of the accused Harnaam by DW1 and such a failure was held to be fatal on the part of the prosecution.

13. The learned counsel for the appellant /state has challenged the impugned judgment primarily on the ground that the learned Trial Court wrongly and erroneously observed that the presence of unexplained simple injuries on the person of accused Harnaam entitled him to claim the plea of self-defence. The counsel for the state vociferously contended that the injuries on the body of the accused were of such a minor and simple nature, that the prosecution was not required to explain them. Further, the learned Trial Court failed to appreciate that in view of the minor and trivial nature of the injuries, the right of self-defence cannot be said to have extended to the extent of causing death. The learned counsel submitted that the case of the prosecution had been established beyond reasonable doubt by adducing the cogent, consistent and reliable ocular evidence of eyewitness PW2 as well as injured witness PW1, thus, the acquittal as recorded by the learned Trial Court was not sustainable. Concluding the arguments, the appellant placed on reliance on the law laid down by Hon'ble supreme court in State of Madhya Pradesh v. Ramesh; (2005) 9 SCC 705, Lakshmi Singh and Others v. State of Bihar; (1976) 4 SCC 394 and State of Gujarat v. Bai Fatima & Another; (1975) 2 SCC 7.

14. Per contra, the learned counsel for the respondents has contended that on 15.06.1984, the informant and his brother were fixing the parnala on their roof to which the respondents objected and this resulted in a hot exchange between the two sides. Thereafter, the informant and his brother, Jamuna Prasad started assaulting accused Harnaam with a lathi and resultantly, accused Harnaam sustained injuries. This forced the accused to act in defence of their person and property which resulted in the death of Jamuna Prasad. The accused/respondents thereafter approached police station for lodging an FIR against the informant and his deceased brother but the police did not register the FIR and instead took them in custody on the same day.

15. The respondents have further contended that their plea of self-defence stands corroborated by the injuries present on the body of accused Harnaam as recorded by the Jail doctor (DW1). The prosecution has failed to explain his injuries and thus, the learned trial court has passed a well-reasoned and sound legal principle-based judgment extending them the benefit of self-defence and thereby acquitting them observing the presentation version being produced with concealment of true and material facts of not explaining injuries of accused. The accused in support of their arguments, placed reliance in the principles laid down by Hon'ble Supreme Court in Kumar v. State represented by Inspector of police; (2018) 7 SCC 536, Mohan Alias Srinivas v. State of Karnataka; AIR ONLINE 2021 SC 1184, Lakshmi Singh and Others v. State of Bihar; (1976) 4 SCC 394, State of UP v. Atar Singh and others; AIR 2008 Supreme Court 411, Anwar Ali v. State of Himachal Pradesh; AIR 2020 SC (Criminal) 1649, Supreme Court and Jairam & Others v. State of U.P.; Criminal Appeal No. 877 of 1982 (judgment dated 28.11.2025). Concluding the arguments, it is submitted that the order and judgement of acquittal passed by learned trial court warrants no interference and appeal deserves to be dismissed.

ISSUES EMERGED FOR CONSIDERATION AND ADJUDICATION:-

16. Having heard the rival submissions advanced by the learned counsels for the contesting parties and having meticulously perused the record, the following issues emerge for consideration and record:

- a. Whether the learned Trial Court has rightly accorded the benefit of self-defence to the accused?*
- b. Whether the failure of the prosecution in explaining the injuries on the person of the accused renders the entire prosecution story untrustworthy?*
- c. Whether the impugned order and judgment of acquittal bears any illegality or perversity?*

ANSWER TO THE HEREIN ABOVE FORMULATED ISSUES:-

17. Before commencing to pen down an answer to Issue No. (a), it is deemed appropriate to refer to some significant provisions and judicial precedents which are germane to the facts and disputes of the present case.

18. The right to private defence is contained under Chapter IV of IPC, which deals with General Exceptions. Section 96 of IPC states that nothing is an offence which is done in exercise of the right of private defence. Section 99 of IPC states that the right of private defence does not extend to inflicting more harm than necessary of the purpose of self-defence. Section 100 of IPC stipulates the circumstances under which the right to self-defence extends to causing death. The relevant sections are reproduced hereunder:

“96. Things done in private defence.-Nothing is an offence which is done in the exercise of the right of private defence.

97. Right of private defence of the body and of property.-Every person has a right, subject to the restrictions contained in section 99, to defend-

First.-His own body, and the body of any other person, against any offence affecting the human body;

Secondly.-The property, whether movable or immovable, of himself or of any other person, against any act which is an offence falling under the definition of theft, robbery, mischief or criminal trespass, or which is an attempt to commit theft, robbery, mischief or criminal trespass.

99. Acts against which there is no right of private defence.-There is no right of private defence against an act which does not reasonably cause the apprehension of death or of grievous hurt, if done, or attempted to be done by a public servant acting in good faith under colour of his office, though that act may not be strictly justifiable by law.

There is no right of private defence against an act which does not reasonably cause the apprehension of death or of grievous hurt, if done, or attempted to be done, by the direction of a public servant acting in good faith under colour of his office though that direction may not be strictly justifiable by law.

There is no right of private defence in cases in which there is time to have recourse to protection of the public authorities.

Extent to which the right may be exercised.-The right of private defence in no case extends to the inflicting of more harm than it is necessary to inflict for the purpose of defence.

Explanation 1.-A person is not deprived of the right of private defence against an act done, or attempted to be done, by a public servant, as such, unless he knows or has reason to believe, that the person doing the act is such public servant.

Explanation 2.-A person is not deprived of the right of private defence against an act done, or attempted to be done, by the direction of a public servant, unless he knows, or has reason to believe, that the person doing the act is acting by such direction, or unless such person states the authority under which he acts, or if he has authority in writing, unless he produces such authority, if demanded.

100. When the right of private defence of the body extends to causing death.-The right of private defence of the body extends, under the restrictions mentioned in the last preceding section, to the voluntary causing of death or of any other harm to the assailant, if the offence which occasions the exercise of the right be of any of the descriptions hereinafter enumerated, namely:-

First.-Such an assault as may reasonably cause the apprehension that death will otherwise be the consequence of such assault;

Secondly.-Such an assault as may reasonably cause the apprehension that grievous hurt will otherwise be the consequence of such assault;

Thirdly.-An assault with the intention of committing rape;

Fourthly.-An assault with the intention of gratifying unnatural lust;

Fifthly.-An assault with the intention of kidnapping or abducting;

Sixthly.-An assault with the intention of wrongfully confining a person, under circumstances which may reasonably cause him to apprehend that he will be unable to have recourse to the public authorities for his release.

Seventhly.-An act of throwing or administering acid or an attempt to throw or administer acid which may reasonably cause the apprehension that grievous hurt will otherwise be the consequence of such act.

19. Section 105 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872 states that the burden of proving the plea of self-defence is on the accused person who takes such defence. The plea of self-defence is a question of fact which has to be determined on the basis of the facts of each case. The accused is not required to prove the defence beyond reasonable doubt and it will suffice if the accused is able to show the preponderance of probability in favour of the plea of right of self-defence.

20. In Vijayee Singh and Ors v. State Of Uttar Pradesh; (1990) 3 SCC 190 the Hon'ble Supreme Court observed that:

"16. The phrase "burden of proof" is not defined in the Act. In respect of criminal cases, it is an accepted principle of criminal jurisprudence that the burden is always on the prosecution and never shifts. This flows from the cardinal principle that the accused is presumed to be innocent unless proved guilty by the prosecution and the accused is entitled to the benefit of every reasonable doubt. Section 105 of the Evidence Act is in the following terms:

"105. When a person is accused of any offence, the burden of proving the existence of circumstances bringing the case within any of the General Exceptions in the Indian Penal Code, or within any special exception or proviso contained in any other part of the same Code, or in any law defining the offence, is upon him, and the Court shall presume the absence of such circumstances."

*The Section to some extent places the onus of proving any exception in a penal statute on the accused. The burden of proving the existence of circumstances bringing the case within the exceptions mentioned therein is upon him. The Section further lays down that the Court shall presume non-existence of circumstances bringing the case within an exception." The words "the burden of proving the existence of circumstances" occurring in the Section are very significant. It is well settled that "this burden" which rests on the accused does not absolve the prosecution from discharging its initial burden of establishing the case beyond all reasonable doubts. It is also well-settled that the accused need not set up a specific plea of his offence and adduce evidence. That being so the question is: what is the nature of burden that lies on the accused under Section 105 if benefit of the general exception of private defence is claimed and how it can be discharged? In Woolmington v. The Director of Public Prosecutions, [1935] Appeal Cases 462, Viscount Sankey, L.C. observed:*

"When evidence of death and malice has been given (this is a question for the jury), the prisoner is entitled to show by evidence or by examination of the circumstances adduced by the Crown that the act on his part which caused death was either unintentional or provoked. If the jury are either satisfied with his explanation or, upon a review of all, the evidence are left in reasonable doubt whether, even if his explanation be not accepted, the act was unintentional or provoked, the prisoner is entitled to be acquitted."

It is further observed:

"Just as there is evidence on behalf of the prosecution so there may be evidence on behalf of the prisoner which may cause a doubt as to his guilt. In either case, he is entitled to the benefit of the doubt. But while the prosecution must prove the guilt of the prisoner, there is no such burden laid on the prisoner to prove his innocence and it is sufficient for him to raise a doubt as to his guilt; he is not bound to satisfy the jury of his innocence ...

Throughout the web of the English criminal law one golden thread is always to be seen, that it is the duty of the prosecution to prove the prisoner's guilt subject to what I have already said as to the defence of insanity and subject also to any statutory exception. If, at the end of and on the whole of the case, there is reasonable doubt created by the evidence given by either the prosecution or the prisoner as to whether the prisoner killed the deceased with a malicious intention, the prosecution has not made out the case and the prisoner is entitled to an acquittal. No matter what the charge or where the trial, the principle that the prosecution must prove the guilt of the prisoner is part of the common law of England and no attempt to whittle it down can be entertained."

(Emphasis added by court)

21. In Ramesh (supra) the Hon'ble Supreme Court made the following observations regarding the plea of self-defence:

"10. Only question which needs to be considered, is the alleged exercise of right of private defence. Section 96, IPC provides that nothing is an offence which is done in the exercise of the right of private defence. The Section does not define the expression 'right of private defence'. It merely indicates that nothing is an offence which is done in the exercise of such right. Whether in a particular set of circumstances, a person legitimately acted in the exercise of the right of private defence is a question of fact to be determined on the facts and circumstances of each case. No test in the abstract for determining such a question can be laid down. In determining this question of fact, the Court must consider all the surrounding circumstances. It is not necessary for the accused to plead in so many words that he acted in self-defence. If the circumstances show that the right of private defence was legitimately exercised, it is open to the Court to consider such a plea. In a given case the Court can consider it even if the accused has not taken it, if the same is available to be considered from the material on record. Under Section 105 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872 (in short 'the Evidence Act'), the burden of proof is on the accused, who sets up the plea of self-defence, and, in the absence of proof, it is not possible for the Court to presume the truth of the plea of self-defence. The Court shall presume the absence of such circumstances. It is for the accused to place necessary material on record either by himself adducing positive evidence or by eliciting necessary facts from the witnesses examined for the prosecution. An accused taking the plea of the right of private defence is not necessarily required to call evidence; he can establish his plea by reference to circumstances transpiring from the prosecution evidence itself. The question in such a case would be a question of assessing the true effect of the prosecution evidence, and not a question of the accused discharging any burden. Where the right of private defence is pleaded, the defence must be a reasonable and probable version satisfying the Court that the harm caused by the accused was necessary for either warding off the attack or for forestalling the further reasonable apprehension from the side of the accused. The burden of establishing the plea of self-defence is on the accused and the burden stands discharged by showing preponderance of probabilities in favour of that plea on the basis of the material on record. (See Munshi Ram and Ors. v. Delhi Administration (AIR 1968 SC 702), State of Gujarat v. Bai Fatima (AIR 1975 SC 1478), State of U.P. v. Mohd. Musheer Khan (AIR 1977 SC 2226), and Mohinder Pal Jolly v. State of Punjab (AIR 1979 SC 577). Sections 100 to 101 define the extent of the right of private defence of body. If a person has a right of private defence of body under Section 97, that right extends under Section 100 to causing death if there is reasonable apprehension that death or grievous hurt would be the consequence of the assault. The oft quoted observation of this Court in Salim Zia v. State of U.P. (AIR 1979 SC 391), runs as follows:

"It is true that the burden on an accused person to establish the plea of self-defence is not as onerous as the one which lies on the prosecution and that, while the prosecution is required to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt, the accused need not establish the plea to the hilt and may discharge his onus by establishing a mere preponderance of probabilities either by laying basis for that plea in the cross-examination of the prosecution witnesses or by adducing defence evidence."

The accused need not prove the existence of the right of private defence beyond reasonable doubt. It is enough for him to show as in a civil case that the preponderance of probabilities is in favour of his plea.

11. The number of injuries is not always a safe criterion for determining who the aggressor was. It cannot be stated as a universal rule that whenever the injuries are on the body of the accused persons, a presumption must necessarily be raised that the accused persons had caused injuries in exercise of the right of private defence. The defence has to further establish that the injuries so caused on the accused probabilise the version of the right of private defence. Non-explanation of the injuries sustained by the accused at about the time of occurrence or in the course of altercation is a very important circumstance. But mere non-explanation of the injuries by the prosecution may not affect the prosecution case in all cases. This principle applies to cases where the injuries sustained by the accused are minor and superficial or where the evidence is so clear and cogent, so independent and disinterested, so probable, consistent and credit-worthy, that it far outweighs the effect of the omission on the part of the prosecution to explain the injuries. [See Lakshmi Singh v. State of Bihar (AIR 1976 SC 2263)]. A plea of right of private defence cannot be based on surmises and speculation. While considering whether the right of private defence is available to an accused, it is not relevant whether he may have a chance to inflict severe and mortal injury on the aggressor. In order to find whether the right of private defence is available to an accused, the entire incident must be examined with care and viewed in its proper setting."

(Emphasis added by court)

22. The right of private defence is a defensive right, serving a social purpose, which cannot be given such a wide meaning as to sub serve vindictive purposes. In Darshan Singh v. State of Punjab; (2010) 2 SCC 333, the Hon'ble Apex Court held:

"54. In Vidhya Singh v. State of Madhya Pradesh (1971) 3 SCC 244, the court observed that

"18. The right of self-defence is a very valuable right, serving a social purpose and should not be construed narrowly..... Situations have to be judged from the subjective point of view of the accused concerned in the surrounding excitement and confusion of the moment, confronted with a situation of peril and not by any microscopic and pedantic scrutiny. In adjudging the question as to whether more force than was necessary was used in the prevailing circumstances on the spot it would be inappropriate, as held by this court, to adopt tests by detached objectivity which would be so natural in a court room, or that which would seem absolutely necessary to a perfectly cool bystander. The person facing a reasonable apprehension of threat to himself cannot be expected to modulate his defence step by step with any arithmetical exactitude of only that much which is required in the thinking of a man in ordinary times or under normal circumstances."

23. In view of the above-mentioned legal position, we proceed to analyse the facts of the instant case. It is worth-while to mention here that the accused have not disputed the day, time, place of occurrence and further the injuries inflicted on the person of deceased Jamuna Prasad, who succumbed due to the injuries sustained in occurrence. Moreover, there is no dispute that both are neighbours and had adjacent rooftop of their respective houses. The rooftop of deceased on which he was installing parnala, was higher to that of the accused and the water had to flow to the roof of the accused, to which they raised objection. But the deceased ignored the protest of accused and continued with his work, and therefore, a dispute arose over this matter. Further, this fact is also not disputed that PW1 informant Amrit Lal along with deceased and accused was present on the spot at the relevant time. The accused has not confronted substantially the lacerated and stab injuries sustained by deceased and rather had admitted genuineness of post mortem report of deceased, and thus the fact of injuries being outcome of lathi and bhala as opined by PW5 is not disputed. Prosecution further led evidence of PW3 Ram Chandra and PW 7 investigating officer who deposed and corroborated the fact of arrest of accused Lakshmi Narayan and disclosure statement of accused Harnaam regarding hiding of weapons used in offence and to get them recovered and further leading recovery of weapons in their presence and same was taken into custody on the spot vide recovery memo under the signature of witnesses. Thus, in view of admitted incident by accused and adducing ocular evidence, prosecution successfully proved its case beyond reasonable doubt.

24. On the contrary, accused submitted that on being opposed for not installing parnala on his roof as the water would be flowing on their roof, the deceased became violent and opened assault on them. It is further case of accused that it was the deceased, who was adamant to damage their roof and the act of deceased was falling in the category of offence of mischief and they got every right to protect their property, therefore, in order to protect their person and property as well, the deceased sustained and succumbed to injuries, while PW1 received simple injuries in same occurrence. According to the submissions of accused, they had clear case of right of private defence but the prosecution has not put forth the true material facts of occurrence and narrated only their injuries in complete non-explanation of injuries suffered by accused Harnaam during the occurrence, therefore, learned trial court while taking serious note of non- explanation of injuries of accused, rightly disbelieved prosecution version and observed that accused were acting in the self defence while causing injuries and acquitted them.

25. Now the question that needs redressal is whether informant and his brother can be termed aggressors on the basis of the facts and evidence available on record, thus, entitling the accused to claim the benefit of plea of self-defence. As observed above, it is not disputed that PW1 along with his brother Jamuna Prasad and accused were present on their respective roofs on the day of occurrence. PW2 has deposed and established his presence on his roof at the relevant time. Jamuna Prasad was repairing the parnala, while PW1 was putting mud on his roof. The repair work being carried on was opposed by accused, due to the reason of deceased having the roof higher than the accused and installation of parnala in the direction of roof of accused, would have caused flow of water on their roof, but deceased did not pay heed and on the instigation of Tulsi Ram, co-accused Harnaam and Lakshmi Narayan attributed fatal injuries to Jamuna Prasad leading to his death and when PW1 tried to interfere and save his brother, he was also given beatings by accused. PW1 and PW2 corroborated the prosecution story and narrated the eye account verbatim. PW1 is not only the eye account, but also injured in the incident.

26. In his cross examination, PW1 stated that by the time accused came to the place of occurrence, the deceased kept on installing drain. In reply to the specific question regarding having any weapon with Jamuna Prasad and PW1, PW1 categorically denied the same stating that neither he or the deceased was having any lathi or danda at the time of repairing the parnala, nor any bucket was there for getting the repair work done. Explaining the reason, PW 1 specifically stated that due to having wet soil, deceased was working with hands, so he had no danda or bucket etc. Therefore, it is indicative on record from the cross-examination of PW1, that the deceased or PW1 was not having any weapon when the incident occurred. It also emerged from his evidence that the deceased was working till the accused reached his roof with lethal weapons and was not ready for the fight and had no occasion to arrange the weapon for assault. PW2, who was also present on his roof and witnessed the incident stated in his cross-examination that he saw no lathi or danda in hands of Jamuna Prasad or Amrit Lal. He categorically stated that accused Harnaam was not assaulted by them, nor he received any injury. The statement of PW2 is in corroboration and consonance to the statement of PW1. Both the witnesses were put to detailed cross-examination by the accused with regard to the accused being aggressor, but nothing adverse could be brought on record, rather this fact was proved by prosecution witnesses that deceased and PW1 were empty handed at the time of occurrence and they had no occasion and opportunity to cause injuries to any of accused. It is pertinent to mention here that in order to show that accused acted in their self defence, there must be some cogent and concrete material on record to demonstrate that the injured or deceased were having the fatal weapons and sufficient preparation to put the accused in constraint to use force and weapon to protect themselves. Needless to say, it is established on record in the above discussion that to assault the informant and his deceased brother, accused Harnaam had used a Bhala and accused Lakshmi Narayan used Lathi while Jagat Prasad used Lathi with iron rings. Nothing is on record to indicate that informant and his diseased brother were armed with any weapons.

27. Another aspect to be considered is that who had immediate motive to attack. In order to address the issue, it is apposite to mention here that PW1 is an injured and eye witness. PW2 is also an eyewitness, who was also repairing his roof at the relevant time of occurrence and has supported the prosecution version. Nothing adverse could be brought on record which may lead us to disbelieve his presence and eye account. PW7, investigating officer prepared the site plan at the instance of PW1 and collected the blood stain and plain earth from the roof of the deceased and sealed them on the spot itself. The place from where the plain and bloodstained earth was taken into possession by the investigating officer PW7, has been indicated in the site plan as well, to which accused could not produce anything adverse. Therefore, from the ocular evidence produced by prosecution, it is established that the injuries were inflicted on the deceased on his roof at the time when he was deeply engaged in his work. Even otherwise, the respondents have not raised any dispute regarding the place of occurrence being the roof of deceased. The attending circumstances are clearly indicative of the fact that it was the accused party who chose to jump into the initiation of aggression. PW1 and PW2 categorically stated that Jamuna Prasad fell down by the blow given by co-accused Jagat Pal and within no time, accused Harnaam gave a blow of bhala on his back. The testimony of both witnesses is corroborated by the medical evidence of PW5 who found lacerated wound on head and stab wound on the back of chest. This impeccable and unchallenged evidence proved by prosecution has reasonably established that incident was authored and provoked by accused. It is not the case of accused that deceased and injured criminally trespassed their premises with weapons and they had no safe alternative, but to inflict injuries to them to save themselves. No evidence what so ever, has been adduced by accused to prove that they acted in self defence, except the doctor who proved injuries on the body of accused Harnaam. Therefore, observations of learned trial court that accused acted in self defence and rendering them benefit of acquittal bears material illegality and we are unable to agree with the observations recorded by learned trial court, to this effect.

28. There is yet another aspect that needs to be considered. The right to private defence does not extend to using disproportionate force and Section 99 of IPC categorically states that only such force as is reasonably necessary should be used in private defence. In assaulting the informant and his deceased brother, accused Harnaam had used a bhala without a handle, accused Laxmi Narayan used a lathi and accused Jagat Pal used a lathi with iron rings. There is nothing on record to indicate that the informant and his deceased brother were armed with similar weapons. The nature and type of the weapons used by the accused persons speaks volumes of their intent and by no stretch of imagination can it be said that they used such deadly weapons for mere self-defence. The injuries sustained by accused Harnaam, as evident from the report prepared by DW1, Dr LD Shukla, were of a simple nature. Even if it is accepted that there was some quarrel and heated exchange between accused and the informant and his deceased brother, it cannot be accepted that such a heated exchange gave the accused the right to self-defence to the extent of causing death.

29. In the case of Bihari Lal v. State of Bihar (now Jharkhand) (2008) 15 SCC 778, the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that:

“Merely because there was a quarrel and some of the accused persons sustained injuries, that does not confer a right of private defence extending to the extent of causing death as in this case. Though such right cannot be weighed in golden scales, it has to be established that the accused persons were under such grave apprehension about the safety of their life and property that retaliation to the extent done was absolutely necessary. No evidence much less cogent and credible was adduced in this regard. The right of private defence as claimed by the accused persons have been rightly discarded.

(Emphasis added by court)

In Darshan Singh (supra), the Hon'ble Supreme Court observed:

55. In Jai Dev v. State of Punjab AIR 1963 SC 612 the court held as under:-

"....as soon as the cause for the reasonable apprehension has disappeared and the threat has either been destroyed or has been put to rout, there can be no occasion to exercise the right of private defence."

56. In order to find out whether right of private defence is available or not, the injuries received by the accused, the imminence of threat to his safety, the injuries caused by the accused and the circumstances whether the accused had time to have recourse to public authorities are all relevant factors to be considered. "

30. The deceased Jamuna Prasad was fixing a parnala on his roof. Even if the respondents were infuriated by the fixing of the parnala, they could have approached the local police or municipal authorities. There was no occasion for them to assault the informant or his brother. The act of fixing parnala cannot be said to have amounted to initiation of aggression. Even if we were to accept the story of the respondents that Jamuna Prasad was aggressively fixing the parnala and attacked them upon being restrained, they had all opportunity to approach the local municipal or state authorities against any unauthorised installation. Instead, they decided to inflict such lethal disproportionate blows on Jamuna Prasad, which resulted in his death. The magnitude of force used by them cannot be said to be that which a reasonable person would have inflicted under similar circumstances. PW1 admitted in his testimony that after a month of incident, the investigating officer resolved the cause of dispute and re-installed the parnala by changing it's flow towards the house of deceased itself. The circumstance speaks in volume that had the accused adopted the legal recourse available to them in law, then the situation would have been resolved by the authorities without the cost of life of deceased, in which accused acted in complete illogical, irrational and unwarranted manner and took life of deceased.

31. Against such a backdrop, we find that it was rather the accused who had initiated the aggression and resorted to violence upon being enraged by the act of fixing of the parnala by the deceased. The deceased Jamuna Prasad was merely fixing a parnala on his own rooftop. Such an act did not cause any immediate threat to the person or property of the accused. In our society, such trivial disputes relating to flow of rainwater are not uncommon but these disputes cannot be said to confer a right on either side to take the law in their own hand and resort to any kind of violence only to claim the right of self-defence, when held accountable. Hence, we reached on conclusion that accused has been wrongly provided right of private defence by learned trial court.

32. To know as to when and how fatal it is for prosecution not to describe the injuries of accused, it is apposite to refer to the observations made by the Hon'ble Supreme Court, in Lakshmi Singh (supra), wherein the Apex Court held that:

"12.....According to the Doctor injury No. 1 was grievous in nature as it resulted in compound fracture of the fibula bone. The other two injuries were also serious injuries which had been inflicted by a sharp-cutting weapon. Having regard to the circumstances of the case there can be no doubt that Dasrath Singh must have received these injuries in the course of the assault, because it has not been suggested or contended that the injuries could be self-inflicted nor it is believable. In these circumstances, therefore, it was the bounden duty of the prosecution to give a reasonable explanation for the injuries sustained by the accused Dasrath Singh in the course of the occurrence. Not only the prosecution has given no explanation, but some of the witnesses have made a clear statement that they did not see any injuries on the person of the accused. Indeed if the eye-witnesses could have given such graphic details regarding the assault on the two deceased and Dasain Singh and yet they deliberately suppressed the injuries on the person of the accused, this is a most important circumstance to discredit the entire prosecution case. It is well settled that fouler the crime, higher the proof, and hence in a murder case where one of the accused is proved to have sustained injuries in the course of the same occurrence, the non-explanation of such injuries by the prosecution is a manifest defect in the prosecution case and shows that the origin and genesis of the occurrence had been deliberately suppressed which leads to the irresistible conclusion that the prosecution has not come out with a true version of the occurrence. This matter was argued before the High Court and we are constrained to observe that the learned Judges without appreciating the ratio of this Court in Mohar Rai v. State of Bihar tried to brush it aside on most untenable grounds. The question whether the Investigating Officer was informed about the injuries is wholly irrelevant to the issue, particularly when the very Doctor who examined one of the deceased and the prosecution witnesses is the person who examined the appellant Dasrath Singh also. In the case referred to above, this Court clearly observed as follows:

The trial Court as well as the High Court wholly ignored the significance of the injuries found on the appellants. Mohar Rai had sustained as many as 13 injuries and Bharath Rai 14. We get it from the evidence of P.W. 15 that he noticed injuries on the person of Mohar Rai when he was produced before him immediately after the occurrence. Therefore the version of the appellants that they sustained injuries at the time of the occurrence is highly probalised. Under these circumstances the prosecution had a duty to explain those injuries.... In our judgment the failure of the prosecution to offer any explanation in that regard shows that evidence of the prosecution witnesses relating to the incident is not true or at any rate not wholly true. Further those injuries probalise the plea taken by the appellants."

This Court clearly pointed out that where the prosecution fails to explain the injuries on the accused, two results follow: (1) that the evidence of the prosecution witnesses is untrue: and (2) that the injuries probalise the plea taken by the appellants. The High Court in the present case has not correctly applied the principles laid down by this Court in the decision referred to above. In some of the recent cases, the same principle was laid down. In Puran Singh v. The State of Punjab (1975) 4 SCC 518, which was also a murder case, this Court, while following an earlier case, observed as follows:

"In State of Gujarat v. Bai Fatima (1975) 2 SCC 7, one of us (Untwalia, J.), speaking for the Court, observed as follows:

In a situation like this when the prosecution fails to explain the injuries on the person of an accused, depending on the facts of each case, any of the three results may follow:

(1) That the accused had inflicted the injuries on the members of the prosecution party in exercise of the right of self defence.

(2) It makes the prosecution version of the occurrence doubtful and the charge against the accused cannot be held to have been proved beyond reasonable doubt.

(3) It does not affect the prosecution case at all.

The facts of the present case clearly fall within the four corners of either of the first two principles laid down by this judgment. In the instant case, either the accused were fully justified in causing the death of the deceased and were protected by the right of private defence or that if the prosecution does not explain the injuries on the person of the deceased the entire prosecution case is doubtful and the genesis of the occurrence is shrouded in deep mystery, which is sufficient to demolish the entire prosecution case. It seems to us that in a murder case, the non-explanation of the injuries sustained by the accused at about the time of the occurrence or in the course of altercation is a very important circumstance from which the Court can draw the following inferences:

(1) that the prosecution has suppressed the genesis and the origin of the occurrence and has thus not presented the true version:

(2) that the witnesses who have denied the presence of the injuries on the person of the accused are lying on a most material point and therefore their evidence is unreliable;

(3) that in case there is a defence version which explains the injuries on the person of the accused it is rendered probable so as to throw doubt on the prosecution case.

The omission on the part of the prosecution to explain the injuries on the person of the accused assumes much greater importance where the evidence consists of interested or inimical witnesses or where the defence gives a version which competes in probability with that of the prosecution one. In the instant case, when it is held, as it must be, that the appellant Dasrath Singh received serious injuries which have not been explained by the prosecution, then it will be difficult for the Court to rely on the evidence of PWs. 1 to 4 and 6 more particularly, when some of these witnesses have lied by stating that they did not see any injuries on the person of the accused. Thus neither the Sessions Judge nor the High Court appears to have given due consideration to this important lacuna or infirmity appearing in the prosecution case. We must hasten to add that as held by this Court in State of Gujarat v. Bai Fatima (1975) 2 SCC 7 there may be cases where the non-explanation of the injuries by the prosecution may not affect the prosecution case. This principle would obviously apply to cases where the injuries sustained by the accused are minor and superficial or where the evidence is so clear and cogent, so independent and disinterested, so probable, consistent and credit-worthy, that it far outweighs the effect of the omission on the part of the prosecution to explain the injuries. The present, however, is certainly not such a case, and the High Court was, therefore, in error in brushing aside this serious infirmity in the prosecution case on unconvincing premises.

(Emphasis added by Court)

33. In Thoti Manohar v. State of Andhra Pradesh (2012) 7 SCC 723, the Hon'ble Supreme Court made the following observations:

“28. Now, we shall proceed to dwell with the criticism on the base of which the case of the prosecution is sought to be demolished. The learned counsel for the appellant would submit that the injuries sustained by the accused have not been explained. On a perusal of the evidence of PW-20, the Investigating Officer, it appears that when he arrested A-1 and A-2, there were certain injuries on their person and they stated that they had received the injuries at the hands of the deceased. It is worth noting that the injuries are superficial in nature, the accused were not sent for medical examination and further there is no suggestion whatsoever as regards the injuries sustained by them to any of the witnesses. The story built up as regards the fight between the two groups does not remotely appeal to common sense and, more so, in the absence of any evidence, it is like building a castle in Spain.

29. Quite apart from the above, nonexplaining of injuries of the accused persons is always not fatal to the case of the prosecution. In this context, we may usefully refer to Sri Ram v. State of M.P. (2004) 9 SCC 292 wherein it has been held that mere non-explanation of the injuries by the prosecution may not affect the prosecution case in all cases and the said principle applies to cases where the injuries sustained by the accused are minor and superficial or where the evidence is so clear and cogent, so independent and disinterested and so probable, consistent and creditworthy that it far outweighs the effect of the omission on the part of the prosecution to explain the injuries. Hence, we repel the said submission of the learned counsel for the appellants.

(Emphasis added by Court)

34. It is true that explaining the injuries of the accused is an important circumstance and non-explanation of injuries of accused is manifest error as observed by Hon'ble Supreme Court in Lakshmi Singh (supra) provided that such injuries are grievous in nature. However, in Thoti Manohar (supra), it has been propounded by Hon'ble Supreme Court that in case injuries are simple and artificial in nature, non-explanation of such injuries is not always fatal to the prosecution. In the instant case, admittedly injuries of accused has not been brought on record, therefore, the effect of failure to do so on the credibility of the prosecution's case has to be determined in lieu of the facts and evidence available on record. Now it remains to be seen that whether injuries suffered by accused Harnaam were self-inflicted and sustained in the course of occurrence. So far as infliction of injuries on the person of accused is concerned, it has emerged in the statement of PW1 and PW2 that during the course of assault by accused person, accused Harnaam sustained no injury. Nothing could be brought on record by the accused that PW1 and deceased were having any weapon with them at the time of occurrence or thereafter. However, PW4 scribe of first information report and PW7, Investigating officer admitted the fact that at the time of arrest, accused Harnaam had two-three injuries on his body which were about 3-4 days old. Accused Harnaam with co-accused was arrested on 17.06.84 and surprisingly despite having injuries on his person, he was not medico-legally examined after arrest. On 19.06.1984, accused was medico legally examined in jail by Dr.L.K. Shukla who, was examined as DW1 and corroborated the evidence of PW4 and PW7 of the accused Harnaam having three simple injuries on his person, which were about five days old and that same might have been caused by blunt object. The injuries were found on his face and in form of traumatic swelling on his right wrist. Keeping in view of evidence on record, duration of injuries and admitted presence of accused on place of occurrence, it transpires that he may have sustained injuries during the occurrence. As per DW1, he can't state that injuries of accused were self inflicted or inflicted. Although, nothing emerged on record that prosecution witnesses ever inflicted injuries to him, but existence of injuries has established the fact that accused Harnaam may have sustained injuries during the course of the incident.

35. Now this question requires answer as to whether non-explanation of injuries of accused vitiate the entire prosecution version? Once it is established on record that the deceased and PW1 were empty-handed and did not use any force or assault against accused, observation of trial court that accused received those injuries due to assault by deceased, appears manifestly erroneous and purely on the basis of assumptions. The above observation of trial Court holds no water in the peculiar circumstances of the case where accused did not even care to adduce any ocular evidence to create even a doubt in story of prosecution. Admittedly, the place of occurrence was roof of the deceased, which was higher than that of accused, therefore, in absence of proof of any intentional assault, there is every likelihood of receiving of such injuries during the process of their assault or while enabling their fleeing from the spot with weapons. Therefore, in absence of intentional attribution of trivial and simple injuries found on person of accused by deceased and PW1 and further in absence of reliable evidence, it can't be safely observed that injuries were caused by deceased or injured to the accused. Keeping in view of above fact and circumstances, the observation recorded by trial court is not sustainable.

36. It has been held by Hon'ble Supreme Court in Bai Fatima (supra) that non-explanation of minor and superficial injuries sustained by accused is not fatal to the prosecution, where the evidence is so clear and cogent, so independent and disinterested, so probable, inconsistent and creditworthy that it far outweighs the effect of the omission on the part of prosecution to explain the injuries. In the instant case, it is established that injuries have not been inflicted by PW 1 and deceased and more so are superficial and simple in nature to justify the fatal injuries attributed by them to Jamuna Prasad, of which he succumbed immediately

37. Further, as per Section 105 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872, the burden of proving the exception of private defence is on the accused. While the burden contemplated under Section 105 is of a relatively light character, the accused still has a duty to establish a reasonable probability in their favour. We do not find any material on record that indicates that the accused faced any sudden or imminent threat to their person or property, which entitled them to claim the right of self-defence to the extent as observed by learned trial court.

38. The injuries established on the person of accused are simple in nature, therefore, in the wake of evidence on record, non-explanation of his injuries is not so much fatal which may render the case of prosecution as unreliable and is squarely covered with the principle laid down in Bai Fatima (supra) by Hon'ble Supreme Court where the non- explanation of simple and superficial injuries were held not to be fatal and falsify the entire prosecution story. The law laid down by Supreme Court in Lakshmi Singh (supra) has no applicability in the facts of the case in hands as in the facts of this case, the accused had also suffered grievous injuries and the doctor who conducted the post-mortem report of deceased had also conducted the medical of accused but inspite of that prosecution didn't explain the injuries of prosecution, therefore, in the peculiar facts, the Hon'ble Court took adverse inference of non-explanation of injuries of accused. The Learned trial court wrongly observed that since the roof of the deceased was on higher pedestal than that of accused, therefore, it was the right of the accused to defend their property. Further, we found that learned trial court has recorded its findings beyond the evidence and purely on the basis of assumption observing that when Harnaam resisted them, then it must have annoyed the deceased and injured and they had taken law in their hands, assaulting Harnaam, who in retaliation would have attacked Jamuna Prasad and Amrit Lal, and consequently, Jamuna Prasad lost his life.

39. We also consider it appropriate to deal with one more argument as raised by learned AGA, who had submitted that learned Trial Court passed the judgment of acquittal in favour of accused Harnaam in Sessions Trial no. 235/85 under Section 25 of Arms Act, without appreciation of any additional evidence and merely on the set of evidence of Session Trial No. 386/84, under Sections 302 and 323 of IPC and therefore in complete violation of theory of fair trial and natural justice. From the perusal of impugned judgment and order, we found force in the arguments that learned Trial Court has not appreciated the evidence produced by prosecution for charges under the Arms Act and merely on the basis of the finding that alleged recovery was unreliable, impugned judgement of acquittal was passed. However, since the occurrence pertains to the year 1984 and appeal before us is to be assessed on point of law and facts and being part of trial, therefore, it would be in the interest of justice to assess at the stage of appeal as to what was the evidence brought by prosecution against the accused for charges under Section 25 of Arms Act.

40. PW7 is complainant and PW8 is investigating officer of Arms Act. Accused Harnaam after his arrest is said to have made a disclosure statement in presence of PW3 and PW7 investigating officer to the effect that the weapon in question is in his house and he can get it recovered from there and in pursuance of disclosure, he led the recovery of lathi and bhala from his house. PW3 stated in his cross-examination that the police had recovered the weapon in question, that is lathi and bhala, in his presence, but the memo was not prepared in his presence and same was prepared later on. The witness further clarified that being illiterate, he couldn't know about the writing prepared by PW7. Although this witness has supported the fact of recovery in his chief and cross-examination as well, however, he has not placed a reliable testimony regarding the preparation of recovery memo on the spot itself. Admittedly, neither the disclosure statement made by accused was reduced into writing by PW7 investigating officer separately, nor any explanation has been offered on record by him regarding the same. The investigating officer PW7 has not produced on record the GD entry of his departure from the police station to arrest the accused, despite receipt of secret information in advance. Further more, no dimension of alleged bhala and lathi has been described in recovery memo by adducing reliable evidence. The mere material which has been brought on record is that the bhala was handleless. However, nothing has been placed on record how the said bhala was attracting the provisions of Section 25 of Arms Act. PW8, who is the investigating officer of the FIR under the Arms Act, has not placed even an iota of evidence in his testimony that how and what investigation was conducted by him under Section 25 of Arms act. PW7 was the complainant in the FIR lodged under the Arms Act and PW8 categorically admitted that he is junior officer to that of the PW7. We are astonished by entrustment of investigation to the junior officer, where the complainant himself is a senior officer. A junior officer should not be appointed as investigating officer in such cases as there is every likelihood of unfair and bias investigation. In this way. due to absence of incriminating evidence against accused, it cannot be said that the accusations under Section 25 of the Arms Act have been successfully established against the accused beyond reasonable doubt. Therefore, the accused Harnaam is entitled for acquittal in respect of the charges framed under the Arms Act and the acquittal in respect of such charges is sustained herewith.

41. However, needless to mention here at this juncture that it is a settled principle of law that even though the recovery of weapon has not been established or the charges of Arms Act have not been proven against the accused, even then the accused can be safely convicted in case, cogent, consistent, and reliable evidences are found against them.

42. Having concluded that the benefit of right of private defense has been wrongly extended to the accused, we now proceed to examine whether the accused can be said to have inflicted lethal blows on the deceased in a free fight. As mentioned above, the fact of injuries found on the person of the accused Harnaam is not disputed and same have not been explained by prosecution. It is also admitted between the parties that the genesis of dispute was fixing of parnala by deceased and the resultant heated exchange. We have already observed herein before that accused clearly exceeded the force by causing more harm than was required for the purpose. Further, the accused suddenly and without reasonable provocative impulse, unnecessarily used a weapon like bhala and executed excessive force on empty handed deceased and victim. Further, the above incident cannot be considered a free fight as no weapons were found with the deceased or complainant, as discussed above.

43. Now we proceed to examine whether the accused can be said to have inflicted such lethal blows on deceased with such degree of intention and knowledge so as to convict them for the offense of murder. As per the testimony of PW1, accused Jagat Pal had given a single blow of lathi on the head of the deceased following which accused Harnaam also struck a single blow of bhala on the back of the deceased. Once Jamuna Prasad fell down, no more blows are said to have been inflicted on him. Jamuna Prasad was alive at the time of the incident and succumbed to his injuries while his brother was carrying him on a bullock cart.

PW5 Dr. S.P. Rastogi found the lacerated wound caused by hard and blunt object on the hand of deceased and also found a stab wound on left lung and pericardium during internal examination of dead body of victim and this injury was said to be cause of death. Bringing such a lethal weapon from home on a trivial dispute and then using it in a fit of fury clearly shows that accused was certainly aware of the fact that its blow may take life of anyone. There is no dispute that accused Jagat Pal and Harnaam had inflicted only single injury each by their lathi and bhala and did not attempt to strike again with their deadly weapons, despite of having opportunity. Nothing is on record that there was any enmity between the two before the incident, rather admittedly both were neighbours having cordial relations. As per prosecution witnesses, the incident occurred within two minutes. Prior to open attack on victim, accused alarmed him and asked him to desist of the installation of parnala towards their roof, which was illegal in itself but victim was adamant and being enraged by the same, accused in a fit of fury, armed with lathi and bhala, attacked the accused. It appears that by that time the activity was done only to stop the victim from the act he was doing. But when they found that victim still was persistent to install parnala, they used force upon him to stop him. Hence from the facts and circumstances and on applying the proposition of law and scrutiny of evidence on record, it emerges that the injuries inflicted on the person of deceased were not caused with the intention to cause his death. But this fact cannot be ignored that though the injuries were not result of intentional killing but the accused certainly must have been aware of the fact that blow from such weapon could even result in death. Considering all the circumstances and at the cost of repetition, it is clear that despite knowing that blow of bhala could have caused death of victim, both accused with common intention and in a fit of rage, gave blow resulting in the death of victim, and therefore, are found guilty of committing offence of culpable homicide not amounting to murder and causing simple hurt to complainant.

44. In light of entire facts and circumstances, we are of opinion that impugned judgement and order passed by learned trial court acquitting the accused from all the charges, is patently perverse and not sustainable in the eyes of law and is hereby liable to be reversed and set aside and accused Jagat Pal and Harnaam are liable to be held guilty for committing the offence under Section 304 Part II/34 and under Section 323/34 of IPC. However, for the reasons discussed herein above, the acquittal of respondent No.4 under Section 25 of the Arms Act as recorded by the learned trial court in S.T. No. 235/85 warrants no interference and is liable to be confirmed.

45. Therefore, the appeal is accordingly allowed. Judgment and order dated 31.03.1986 is hereby set-aside and the accused Jagat Pal and Harnaam are held guilty for commission of offence under Section 304 Part II/34 IPC and Section 323/34 IPC.

46. Accused Jagat Pal and Harnaam are on bail. Their bail bonds are cancelled and sureties stand discharged. They be taken in custody. Their nonailable warrants be issued through Chief Judicial Magistrate concerned to produce them before this Court to hear them on point of sentence on 11.05.2026.

47. List on 11.05.2026.

Issue for Consideration

Whether continuation of the proceedings before the same forum has become impracticable from the standpoint of maintaining confidence in the adjudicatory process

Head Notes

The Code of Civil Procedure, 1908-Section 24; The Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996- Section 37(2)(b)-That transfer of a case on the ground of bias, particularly when directed against a Presiding Officer, is a matter of serious consequence. Such an order, if passed without adequate basis, has the potential to cast unwarranted aspersions on the integrity and independence of the judicial officer concerned. The power under Section 24 CPC, though wide, is to be exercised with circumspection and only in cases where the ends of justice so demand on the basis of cogent and compelling circumstances. Allegations touching upon the impartiality of a judicial officer are required to be made with due care and circumspection, and must be founded on cogent material. Such pleas, if resting on vague or unsubstantiated assertions, carry the potential to undermine confidence in the judicial process and ought not to be lightly entertained.

Accepting allegations of the present nature, which are neither supported by material nor demonstrative of any real prejudice, would open the door to litigants seeking transfer on tenuous grounds, thereby encouraging forum shopping and impeding the orderly administration of justice. The Court cannot permit its process to be invoked in a manner that undermines the confidence in the institutional framework of the judiciary.

Held- Applicant have failed to make out any case warranting transfer of the proceedings. The apprehension expressed by them is neither reasonable nor substantiated so as to justify exercise of jurisdiction under Section 24 CPC.

Application dismissed. (E-15)

Case Arising From

Transfer application has been preferred by the applicant/appellant under Section 24 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, seeking transfer of proceedings arising out of Arbitration Appeal No.15 of 2025, instituted under Section 37(2)(b) of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996, presently pending before the Court of Presiding Officer, Commercial Court No. 1, Agra

Appearances for Parties

Counsel for Applicant(s) : Rishabh Agarwal

Counsel for Opposite Party(s) : Ajay Kumar Pandey

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Yogendra Kumar Srivastava, J.)

1. Heard Sri Anil Tiwari, learned Senior Counsel appearing along with Sri Rishabh Agarwal, for the applicant and Sri Rakesh Pande, learned Senior Counsel appearing along with Sri Ajay Kumar Pandey, for the opposite parties.

2. The present transfer application has been preferred by the applicant/appellant under Section 24 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, seeking transfer of proceedings arising out of Arbitration Appeal No.15 of 2025, instituted under Section 37(2)(b) of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996, presently pending before the Court of Presiding Officer, Commercial Court No. 1, Agra. The principal relief sought is for transfer of the said proceedings to the Court of Commercial Court No. 2, Agra, or to any other court of competent jurisdiction, in order to secure a fair, impartial and unbiased adjudication of the dispute.

3. A supplementary affidavit has also been filed on behalf of the applicant bringing on record certain additional facts. Counsel for respondent no.1 has filed a short counter affidavit placing on record the order-sheets of the case in question. Counsel for the applicant has stated that no rejoinder affidavit was required, inasmuch as only order-sheets were being brought on record.

4. The dispute arises out of a commercial transaction between M/s Virola International (applicant/appellant) and Smt. Sunita Sachdeva (respondent). The respondent invoked arbitration by instituting Arbitration Case No. 06 of 2023 before a learned Sole Arbitrator, seeking recovery of substantial amounts towards alleged capital balance and unsecured loans. Along with the statement of claim dated 28.11.2023, an application under Section 17 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 was also filed seeking interim directions for payment of approximately Rs.15.85 crores along with interest.

5. The applicant entered appearance before the learned Arbitral Tribunal and contested the proceedings, including filing objections to the application under Section 17. The learned Arbitral Tribunal, by order dated 06.07.2024, partly allowed the said application and directed the applicant to pay a sum of Rs.8,88,75,863/- towards capital balance and Rs.5,95,99,772/- towards unsecured loans.

6. Aggrieved thereby, the applicant preferred an appeal under Section 37(2)(b) of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 before the Commercial Court at Agra, which was registered as Arbitration Appeal No. 15 of 2025. Along with the appeal, an application for interim stay of the impugned arbitral order was also filed. The respondent entered appearance and filed objections, to which the applicant filed a rejoinder.

7. Learned counsel for the applicant submits that the case has been listed on several dates before the Court of Presiding Officer, Commercial Court No. 1, Agra. It is contended that on earlier dates, i.e., 09.12.2025 and 20.12.2025, despite the presence of the applicant's counsel, arguments were not advanced on behalf of the respondent. It is further submitted that the case was thereafter fixed for 11.02.2026, on which date the applicant's counsel sought a short adjournment on account of personal difficulty. According to the applicant, notwithstanding the said request, the learned court proceeded to hear the respondent and fixed the proceedings for further hearing on behalf of the applicant.

8. It is further stated that, while fixing the next date, an oral observation was made by the learned Presiding Officer to the applicant's representative (pairokar) to the effect that arrangements be made for payment to the respondent. According to the applicant, such observation, in the backdrop of the ongoing adjudication of the stay application and appeal, has given rise to a reasonable apprehension in their mind that the matter may not receive an impartial consideration.

9. In the aforesaid circumstances, the applicant submits that the cumulative effect of the proceedings, particularly the sequence of hearings coupled with the aforesaid observation, has led to a bona fide and reasonable apprehension regarding the neutrality of the forum. It is, therefore, in the interest of justice that the proceedings be transferred to another competent court to ensure that justice is not only done but is manifestly seen to be done.

10. Learned counsel for the applicant submits that the present transfer application is not an attempt to seek a forum of choice, but is necessitated to preserve the fairness and integrity of the judicial process. It is submitted that, in the circumstances aforesaid, continuation of proceedings before the same forum has become impracticable from the standpoint of maintaining confidence in the adjudicatory process.

11. The principal ground urged by the applicant is that the aforesaid oral observation, made during the pendency of the stay application and the appeal, has created an impression in the mind of the applicant that the issues involved may stand prejudged. The apprehension, it is contended, is not founded on mere conjecture but on a tangible circumstance which bears upon the perception of impartial adjudication.

12. Relying upon the decision in Maneka Sanjay Gandhi v. Ram Jethmalani, it is urged that assurance of a fair trial is an integral facet of Article 21 of the Constitution, and any circumstance giving rise to a reasonable apprehension in the mind of a litigant would warrant transfer of proceedings. It is submitted that the test is not whether actual bias exists, but whether the situation is such as would lead a reasonable person to apprehend that justice may not be done.

13. Learned counsel further submits that the settled legal position is that even an appearance of bias or a perceived predisposition is sufficient to erode the confidence of a litigant in the judicial process. In this regard, reliance is placed upon P.K. Ghosh v. J.G. Rajput and State of West Bengal v. Shivananda Pathak, to contend that the test is not whether bias has in fact influenced the decision, but whether there exists a reasonable apprehension in the mind of a party that justice may not be done. It is, therefore, submitted that where circumstances give rise to such apprehension, the Court ought to exercise its power of transfer to preserve the fairness and credibility of the adjudicatory process.

14. Reliance is placed upon Kulwinder Kaur v. Kandi Friends Education Trust to submit that the power of transfer under Section 24 CPC is wide and is to be exercised wherever it is expedient in the interest of justice. It is urged that, in the facts of the present case, the sequence of proceedings coupled with the alleged observation has given rise to a bona fide and reasonable apprehension in the minds of the applicant, warranting transfer to another competent court so as to ensure that justice is both done and seen to be done.

15. Drawing support from Ranjit Thakur v. Union of India, it is contended that the governing test is that of "real likelihood of bias", namely, whether a reasonable person would apprehend a predisposition in the mind of the adjudicating authority. Impartiality, it is submitted, constitutes the very foundation of adjudication, and even an appearance of bias is sufficient to vitiate the proceedings.

16. Reference is also made to State of Punjab v. V.K. Khanna to contend that fairness in adjudicatory or administrative action is synonymous with reasonableness, and that bias, being a facet of mala fides, vitiates such action. While mala fides must ordinarily be supported by cogent material, it is urged that a predetermined approach or failure to apply an independent mind may itself indicate bias.

17. In addition, reliance is placed upon Allinson v. General Council of Medical Education and Registration to submit that in cases of non-pecuniary bias, the relevant test is whether a reasonable and informed person would apprehend bias, and that a substantial likelihood of partiality is sufficient to vitiate the decision.

18. Lastly, Metropolitan Properties Co. (F.G.C.) Ltd. v. Lannon is cited to contend that justice must not only be done but must also appear to be done, and that even the appearance of bias, judged from the standpoint of reasonable persons, is sufficient to invalidate the proceedings.

19. Opposing the present transfer application, learned counsel for the respondent submits that the same is wholly misconceived and has been instituted with the sole object of delaying the proceedings in the pending arbitration appeal. It is contended that no legally sustainable ground has been made out for exercise of powers under Section 24 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, as there is no material on record to indicate any real likelihood of bias on the part of the Presiding Officer.

20. Referring to the order-sheets forming part of the record, it is urged that the conduct of the applicant reflects a consistent pattern of seeking repeated adjournments on varying and untenable grounds, thereby delaying the proceedings. The learned Commercial Court has recorded that on multiple dates, including 17.10.2025, 31.10.2025, 21.11.2025, 09.12.2025 and thereafter on 17.02.2026, adjournments were sought by the applicant on different pretexts, despite sufficient opportunity having been granted to address arguments. It is submitted that such repeated requests, often coupled with absence of counsel or authorized representatives, indicate a lack of diligence in prosecuting the appeal.

21. It is further pointed out that even after imposition of costs and grant of last opportunity on 17.02.2026, the applicant continued to adopt dilatory tactics by filing successive adjournment applications on 25.02.2026, 06.03.2026, 07.04.2026 and 16.04.2026, including on grounds such as personal inconvenience, non-preparation of the case, or pendency of transfer proceedings before this Court. The record, it is submitted, reflects that the respondent had already concluded arguments, whereas the applicant failed to complete their submissions despite repeated directions. In such circumstances, the present application is asserted to be a calculated attempt to delay adjudication and avoid conclusion of proceedings.

22. The allegation regarding the oral observation attributed to the court is stated to be vague, unsubstantiated, and taken out of context. It is contended that stray or casual observations, even if assumed to have been made, cannot form the basis for alleging bias or seeking transfer, unless supported by cogent material demonstrating a real and reasonable apprehension of prejudice.

23. It is also urged that the present application amounts to an abuse of the process of law and, in substance, constitutes forum shopping under the guise of alleging apprehension of bias. The applicant, it is submitted, cannot be permitted to seek transfer merely because the proceedings are not progressing in a manner convenient to them or on account of any perceived adversity arising from the arbitral proceedings.

24. In view of the aforesaid, it is contended that the apprehension expressed by the applicant is neither reasonable nor bona fide and does not satisfy the settled parameters governing transfer of cases. The application, therefore, deserves to be dismissed with costs.

25. Heard learned counsel for the parties at length. The controversy is examined in the backdrop of Section 24 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, which confers discretionary powers upon the High Court and the District Court to transfer or withdraw any suit, appeal, or other proceeding at any stage.

26. The object of the aforesaid provision is to ensure that the ends of justice are effectively subserved by enabling transfer in appropriate cases. While the power is broad in its amplitude, it is required to be exercised judiciously and with due circumspection.

27. It is well settled that such power is not to be invoked for mere convenience of a party or on account of subjective apprehensions. The jurisdiction is to be exercised only where there exist circumstances giving rise to a reasonable and bona fide apprehension that justice may not be done, or where transfer becomes necessary to preserve the fairness and credibility of the adjudicatory process.

28. In continuation of the discussion on the scope of power under Section 24 CPC, it becomes necessary to examine the concept of bias, particularly when urged as a ground for transfer. Bias, in its ordinary connotation, denotes a predisposition or pre-judgment which detracts from the requirement of even-handed justice. A judicial authority is expected to approach every matter with an independent and impartial mind, uninfluenced by any inclination towards either party, and any deviation from this standard strikes at the very foundation of the adjudicatory process.

29. The determination of bias does not rest upon the actual state of mind of the Presiding Officer, but upon the impression which the surrounding circumstances are capable of creating in the mind of a reasonable and informed observer. The applicable test is whether there exists a real likelihood or real danger of bias. Such apprehension must be founded on tangible material and objective circumstances; mere surmise, conjecture, or fanciful suspicion cannot constitute a valid basis. The Court is, therefore, required to adopt an objective standard and assess whether the facts on record would lead a reasonable person to apprehend that the matter may not be decided with an open and unbiased mind.

30. At the same time, the concept of bias cannot be confined within a rigid or straitjacket formula and must necessarily depend upon the facts and circumstances of each case. Not every observation made in the course of proceedings, nor every instance of active judicial engagement in regulating the hearing, can be construed as indicative of pre-judgment. A Judge is not expected to remain a silent spectator, and observations made for the purpose of clarifying issues, testing submissions, or managing proceedings cannot, by themselves, be treated as evidence of bias. A careful distinction must, therefore, be maintained between legitimate judicial conduct and circumstances which genuinely give rise to an apprehension of prejudice.

31. In the context of exercise of power under Section 24 CPC, these principles assume added significance, as allegations of bias are often invoked as a ground for transfer. While the power of transfer is undoubtedly wide, it is to be exercised with circumspection, particularly where imputations are directed against a Presiding Officer. Such allegations, if accepted lightly, have the potential to erode institutional confidence in the judicial process. The paramount consideration, therefore, remains the ends of justice, and the Court must be satisfied that the apprehension expressed is reasonable, bona fide, and founded on cogent material indicating that a fair adjudication may not be possible before the concerned forum.

32. Ultimately, while assurance of a fair trial is of paramount importance, a plea for transfer on the ground of bias cannot be founded on mere hypersensitivity, convenience, or trivial grievances. The Court must be satisfied that there exists something more substantial and compelling which justifies such transfer. The test is whether the apprehension is reasonable and bona fide, supported by objective circumstances, and not based on conjecture or subjective perception. In this regard, the importance of a fair trial as the governing consideration in matters of transfer has been succinctly emphasised in Maneka Sanjay Gandhi v. Rani Jethmalani. The Supreme Court held that the foremost imperative in the dispensation of justice is the assurance of a fair trial. While considering a motion for transfer, the Court is not guided by the hypersensitivity of a party, comparative convenience, ease of access to legal services, or similar minor grievances. What is required is something substantially more compelling and of such gravity as to imperil public justice or the fairness of the adjudicatory environment. It is only upon disclosure of such weighty circumstances that the extraordinary power of transfer is to be exercised.

33. Equally, the law recognises that observations or expressions made by a Presiding Officer during the course of hearing cannot lightly be construed as indicative of bias. During the hearing of a case, a judicial officer may express tentative views or put forth opinions for the purpose of eliciting further clarification, testing rival submissions, or enabling counsel to address the concerns of the Court. Such exchanges are part of the ordinary process of adjudication and do not imply that the Court has predetermined the issues involved. Judges cannot be expected to remain silent throughout the hearing; reasoned interventions and comments on the merits, when made in the course of argument, are intended to clarify disputed issues and ought not to be mistaken as a final expression of decision.

34. While considering such a plea, the Court must adopt a cautious and balanced approach. Mere observations made during the course of hearing, or regulation of proceedings in exercise of judicial discretion, cannot be construed as indicative of bias or pre-judgment. A Judge is expected to actively engage with the matter, and such engagement cannot be mistaken as an expression of a concluded opinion. Stray remarks or dissatisfaction with the manner in which proceedings are conducted would not, by themselves, justify transfer.

35. At the same time, the Court cannot be oblivious to the principle that where circumstances exist giving rise to a reasonable apprehension in the mind of a litigant that justice may not be done, it becomes not only the power but the duty of the Court to order transfer so as to uphold the sanctity of the judicial process. The paramount factor remains the ends of justice, and each case must be examined on its own facts, keeping in view whether the apprehension is genuine and whether denial of transfer would result in miscarriage of justice.

36. Guidance on the test of reasonable apprehension in transfer matters is furnished by R. Balakrishna Pillai v. State of Kerala. It was held that while one of the foundational principles of administration of justice is that justice must not only be done but must also appear to have been done, a mere allegation or assertion that justice may not be done is by itself insufficient. Before directing transfer, the Court must satisfy itself that the apprehension projected is reasonable, genuine and justifiable, and not founded upon conjecture or subjective suspicion.

37. Similar principles stand reiterated in Kumaon Mandal Vikas Nigam Ltd. v. Girja Shankar Pant, where the governing test was further elucidated. The enquiry is not whether there exists a mere apprehension of bias, but whether the surrounding circumstances, when objectively assessed, disclose a real danger or reasonable likelihood of bias. For that purpose, all relevant facts and attendant circumstances are required to be collated and carefully examined. Where the conclusion of real likelihood of bias is inescapable, appropriate corrective action would follow. Conversely, where allegations are fanciful, speculative, or advanced merely to avoid a particular court, tribunal or authority, such pleas merit rejection.

38. These authorities firmly establish that the doctrine of bias is anchored in public perception of fairness, rather than proof of actual prejudice. The emphasis is on maintaining confidence in the administration of justice by ensuring that adjudication is free not only from actual bias but also from circumstances which reasonably give rise to its appearance.

39. At the same time, the standard of “reasonable apprehension” must be applied with care and restraint. The apprehension must be that of a reasonable, informed and objective person, and not that of a litigant who is overly sensitive or inclined to read into routine judicial conduct an element of prejudice. The test strikes a balance between preserving public confidence in the judiciary and preventing misuse of the doctrine as a tool to seek transfer on untenable grounds.

40. The concept of judicial bias has also been extensively examined in comparative jurisprudence and authoritative legal writings, which reinforce the principles governing the present issue. One of the most frequently cited formulations is found in R v. Sussex Justices, ex parte McCarthy, where Lord Hewart, C.J., famously observed:

“It is not merely of some importance but is of fundamental importance that justice should not only be done, but should manifestly and undoubtedly be seen to be done.

..... Nothing is to be done which creates even a suspicion that there has been an improper interference with the course of justice.”

Few judicial aphorisms have been quoted more often than the celebrated dictum that justice must not only be done, but must also be seen to be done. The principle underscores that the legitimacy of the judicial process rests not merely on actual impartiality, but equally on the perception of fairness in the eyes of the public.

41. The modern test for bias has been articulated in Porter v. Magill, wherein the House of Lords reformulated the standard in the following terms:

“The question is whether the fair-minded and informed observer, having considered the facts, would conclude that there was a real possibility that the tribunal was biased.

“This formulation has been widely accepted across common law jurisdictions and aligns closely with the “reasonable apprehension” test applied by Indian courts.

42. Similarly, in Locabail (U.K.) Ltd. v. Bayfield Properties Ltd., the Court of Appeal emphasized the contextual nature of bias and cautioned against overextension of the doctrine:

It would be dangerous and futile to attempt to define or list the factors which may or may not give rise to a real danger of bias. Everything will depend on the facts, which may include the nature of the issue to be decided.... By contrast, a real danger of bias might well be thought to arise if there were personal friendship or animosity between the judge and any member of the public involved in the case; or if the judge were closely acquainted with any member of the public involved in the case.... or if.... the judge had expressed views.... in such extreme and unbalanced terms as to throw doubt on his ability to try the issue with an objective judicial mind.... The mere fact that a judge.... had commented adversely on a party or witness.... would not without more found a sustainable objection.

43. The law, however, also recognizes the practical limits of the doctrine of bias. In re Linahan, 138 F.2d 650, Jerome Frank, speaking for the Court, made a significant observation on the human element in adjudication:

“If, however, ‘bias’ and ‘partiality’ be defined to mean the total absence of preconceptions in the mind of the judge, then no one has ever had a fair trial and no one will. The human mind, even at infancy, is no blank piece of paper. We are born with predispositions.... Much harm is done by the myth that, merely by taking the oath of office as a judge, a man ceases to be human and strips himself of all predilections, becomes a passionless thinking machine.”

44. The above exposition highlights an important distinction between predisposition and disqualifying bias. While impartiality is an essential attribute of judicial adjudication, the law does not demand the impossible standard of a mind entirely devoid of all prior impressions. What is required is not the absence of all predispositions, but the capacity of the Judge to decide the matter on the basis of the record and the law, uninfluenced by extraneous considerations.

45. Thus, the test is not whether a Judge has any initial impressions or engages actively with the matter, but whether there exists such a degree of pre-judgment or predisposition that it renders the adjudicatory process unfair. The emphasis remains on the ability to bring an open and receptive mind to bear upon the issues in controversy.

46. The standard for determining likelihood of bias has consistently been held to be an objective one, resting on the reasonableness of the apprehension in the mind of a party. The proper approach is not for the Judge to introspect upon his own state of mind and enquire whether he is in fact biased, but to consider whether the circumstances are such as would give rise to a reasonable apprehension in the mind of a litigant.

47. This principle was articulated early in Allinson v. General Council of Medical Education and Registration, where Lord Esher observed:

“The question is not whether in fact he was or was not biased. The Court cannot inquire into that.... In the administration of justice.... public policy requires that.... any person who is to take part in it should not be in such a position that he might be suspected of being biased.

48. The same principle was reiterated with greater clarity in Metropolitan Properties Co. (F.G.C.) Ltd. v. Lannon, where Lord Denning, M.R., observed:

“...in considering whether there was a real likelihood of bias, the court does not look at the mind of the justice himself... It does not look to see if there was a real likelihood that he would, or did, in fact favour one side... The court looks at the impression which would be given to other people. Even if he was as impartial as could be, nevertheless if right-minded persons would think that... there was a real likelihood of bias... then he should not sit...”

49. These authorities collectively establish two complementary propositions: first, that public confidence in the judiciary requires that justice must appear to be done; and second, that this principle cannot be stretched to treat every judicial observation or procedural order as indicative of bias. The doctrine is intended to safeguard fairness, not to obstruct adjudication or enable litigants to avoid an inconvenient forum.

50. It is equally well settled that the law does not require a Judge to remain a silent spectator during the course of proceedings. Expression of tentative views or prima facie observations, with a view to test the submissions of counsel or to elicit clarification, is a normal and integral part of the adjudicatory process and does not, by itself, establish bias. Judicial engagement in the course of hearing is both permissible and necessary for effective adjudication.

51. Equally, the mere expression of prima facie or tentative views during the course of hearing does not, by itself, establish bias or prejudgment. In Liteky v. United States, it was authoritatively held that judicial remarks made during proceedings ordinarily do not support a challenge of bias unless they display a deep-seated favoritism or antagonism rendering fair adjudication impossible. Thus, judicial engagement through questioning and tentative observations is a normal and necessary facet of adjudication and cannot, without more, be construed as indicative of bias.

52. The distinction, however, lies between a tentative view and a concluded opinion. A tentative expression is in the nature of a working hypothesis, amenable to persuasion and subject to reconsideration upon hearing the parties, whereas bias, in its legal sense, implies a closed mind incapable of being influenced by further submissions. The determinative question, therefore, is not whether the Court has indicated a prima facie view, but whether such indication discloses a pre-determined approach rendering the hearing an empty formality.

53. The test for determining whether a judge should be disqualified on the ground of apprehended bias is whether a fair-minded and informed observer might reasonably apprehend that the judge might not bring an impartial and unprejudiced mind to the resolution of the question required to be decided. This test of bias has been authoritatively explained in Ebner v. Official Trustee in Bankruptcy, wherein it was held that the assessment is to be made not with the benefit of hindsight but in the light of the facts as they existed at the time the alleged circumstances arose.

Its application involves two steps: first, the identification of the circumstance which is said might lead the judge to decide the case otherwise than on its legal and factual merits; and second, the articulation of a logical connection between that circumstance and the apprehended deviation from a decision on merits.

54. The “fair-minded lay observer”, who forms the fulcrum of the test for apprehended bias, is a hypothetical construct grounded in the necessity of maintaining public confidence in the administration of justice. Such an observer is neither unduly sensitive or suspicious, nor complacent, but is informed of the legal, statutory and factual context in which the decision arises. The observer is taken to recognise ordinary human frailty and would not readily infer bias from stray or isolated exchanges, particularly where such remarks are taken out of context or divorced from the overall conduct of proceedings. The observer would also appreciate that interventionist questions or comments by a judge are often motivated by a legitimate desire to clarify issues, understand the evidence, and facilitate the adjudicatory process. These principles find articulation in Polson v Harrison and BW v Secretary, Department of Communities and Justice, the latter also reiterating, with reference to Isbester v Knox City Council, that the fair-minded observer is to be attributed knowledge of the surrounding legal and factual framework.

55. The governing standard in this regard remains that of a reasonable apprehension of bias, namely, whether a fair-minded and informed observer would, in the given circumstances, conclude that there exists a real likelihood of predisposition.

56. The law, however, also recognises the practical limits of the doctrine of bias and the inescapable human element in adjudication. If bias or partiality were to be understood as requiring the total absence of all preconceptions or prior impressions in the mind of a Judge, no person could ever be said to receive a fair trial. The human mind is not a blank slate, nor does a Judge, merely by assuming judicial office, cease to be human or become a passionless thinking machine divested of all predispositions. What the law requires is not the impossible standard of complete mental neutrality in the abstract, but the capacity to decide the controversy fairly, with an open mind, on the basis of the record and the law.

57. It follows that a trial judge is not required to remain in stony silence or refrain from indicating tentative views for fear of attracting allegations of bias. The expression of prima facie views during the course of hearing, on matters where parties are afforded full opportunity to address the Court, is a recognised and legitimate feature of judicial process and does not, by itself, evince partiality. Whether judicial interventions or observations transgress the bounds of propriety must be assessed in the totality of circumstances of the case. The articulation of tentative views in the course of argument does not manifest bias. Further, the assessment cannot be founded upon selective extraction or “cherry-picking” of isolated portions of the record; the entirety of the proceedings must be considered in context. Judicial engagement, including robust exchange and probing of issues, is not impermissible; indeed, genuine debate on critical questions is an accepted facet of adjudication. Even critical, strong or candid observations, viewed in their proper setting, do not necessarily lead to an inference of bias.

58. Active participation by the Court, including posing questions, expressing doubts, or indicating tentative views, cannot be construed as bias unless it is shown that the Court has foreclosed consideration of the issues or is unwilling to be persuaded by legitimate argument. To hold otherwise would render the adjudicatory process sterile and impede effective judicial functioning.

59. Thus, while the principle that justice must not only be done but must also appear to be done remains fundamental, it cannot be extended to equate every judicial observation with pre-judgment. The apprehension of bias must be real, reasonable, and based on cogent circumstances, and not on isolated remarks or subjective perceptions of a litigant.

60. The caution required while entertaining allegations against a Presiding Officer has repeatedly been emphasised. An application seeking transfer of proceedings on such grounds cannot be dealt with in a casual or light-hearted manner. Transfer of a case from one court to another, particularly when founded on allegations directed against the Presiding Officer, inevitably carries implications touching upon the integrity, competence and reputation of the judicial officer concerned. For that reason, such relief cannot be granted on fanciful apprehensions or mere dissatisfaction of a litigant, but only where sufficiently cogent, substantial and credible grounds are disclosed.

61. The enquiry of the Court, while examining a plea of bias, is not whether any earlier order passed by the Presiding Officer may be erroneous, adverse, or even legally vulnerable, since such matters are amenable to challenge in appropriate appellate or supervisory proceedings. The real question is whether the conduct complained of discloses a demonstrable manifestation of prejudice, partiality, or a reasonable apprehension that the matter would not receive fair consideration.

62. Equally, transfer of a case from one Judge to another cannot be ordered merely on a party's perceived notion of bias. Judicial orders, by their very nature, may operate to the advantage of one party and to the detriment of the other. The fact that an order is adverse to a litigant, or that the court has not accepted a party's submissions, does not by itself reflect any bias on the part of the Presiding Officer. To hold otherwise would permit every unsuccessful party to seek transfer on the basis of dissatisfaction with the course or outcome of proceedings, a consequence plainly impermissible in law.

63. It must be emphasised that judges are duty-bound to discharge their functions unless disqualified in accordance with law, and ought not to accede lightly to recusal or transfer requests, lest litigants be permitted, in effect, to choose the forum of their preference. The mere fact that adverse orders have been passed against a party does not furnish a ground for disqualification. The doctrine of apprehended bias is concerned with a reasonable likelihood of prejudice or partiality, and not with the subjective perceptions or expectations of an individual litigant.

64. The Court must zealously guard the right to a fair and impartial trial, it must equally ensure that the extraordinary power of transfer is not invoked on the basis of vague, unsubstantiated, or fanciful allegations, or as a device to delay proceedings or avoid a particular forum.

65. The principles emerging from the aforesaid discussion governing the exercise of jurisdiction under Section 24 CPC, particularly where transfer is sought on allegations of bias, may be succinctly summarised thus:

65.1 The power of transfer under Section 24 CPC is wide but discretionary, and must be exercised sparingly, judiciously, and only to secure the ends of justice.

65.2 Transfer cannot be granted on mere convenience, dissatisfaction, or subjective apprehension of a party.

65.3 Where bias is alleged, the test is objective, namely, whether a fair-minded, informed, and reasonable observer would apprehend a real likelihood of prejudice or that justice may not be done.

65.4 Such apprehension must be bona fide, reasonable, and founded on cogent, tangible, and contemporaneous material, and not on conjecture, suspicion, or isolated impressions.

65.5 Justice must not only be done but must also appear to be done; however, this principle cannot be extended to treat every adverse order, procedural direction, or judicial remark as evidence of bias.

65.6 A Judge is not expected to remain silent. Active judicial engagement, questioning, prima facie observations, regulation of proceedings, or tentative views expressed during hearing are normal incidents of adjudication and do not by themselves establish prejudice.

65.7 Only conduct indicative of a closed mind, pre-judgment, personal interest, hostility, or unwillingness to consider legitimate submissions may justify transfer on the ground of bias.

65.8 Allegations against a Presiding Officer are serious in nature and must be examined with caution, since unfounded accusations may erode institutional confidence and judicial independence.

65.9 The power of transfer must not be permitted to become an instrument of forum shopping, delay, or avoidance of an inconvenient forum.

65.10 Ultimately, each case turns on its own facts, with the paramount consideration being whether denial of transfer would realistically undermine the fairness, impartiality, or credibility of the adjudicatory process.

66. Having noticed the governing principles, this Court now proceeds to examine whether, in the facts of the present case, the apprehension expressed by the applicant satisfies the threshold of a real and reasonable likelihood of bias so as to warrant exercise of power under Section 24 CPC.

67. From the record, it transpires that the grievance of the applicant rests essentially on two circumstances: firstly, that on the date fixed, the learned court proceeded to hear the respondent when an adjournment was sought on behalf of the applicant; and secondly, that an oral remark is alleged to have been made by the Presiding Officer advising the applicant to arrange funds to pay the respondent, which, according to them, indicates a predisposition in the matter.

68. Insofar as the first ground is concerned, this Court finds that the regulation of proceedings, including the grant or refusal of adjournments and the decision to proceed with hearing, squarely falls within the domain of judicial discretion. The record does not disclose any denial of opportunity of hearing to the applicant; rather, it reflects that the matter was adjourned thereafter for hearing on their behalf. The mere fact that the court proceeded to hear the respondent on a particular date, especially when an adjournment was sought by the applicant, cannot be construed as indicative of bias or prejudice. Such orders are part of routine judicial functioning and, in the absence of demonstrable prejudice, cannot be elevated to a ground for transfer.

69. This inference stands further reinforced by the contention of the respondent based on the order-sheets, in respect whereof this Court finds considerable merit in the submission that the conduct of the applicant reflects a consistent pattern of seeking repeated adjournments on varying and untenable grounds. The record reveals that on several dates adjournments were sought despite sufficient opportunity having been granted to address arguments. The learned Commercial Court has also recorded that such repeated requests, often accompanied by absence of counsel or authorised representatives, indicate that the applicant were not serious in prosecuting the appeal and were seeking to prolong the proceedings at their convenience.

70. It is further evident from the record that even after imposition of costs and grant of last opportunities, the applicant continued to adopt dilatory tactics by filing successive adjournment applications on grounds such as personal inconvenience, lack of preparation, or pendency of transfer proceedings. Significantly, the respondent had already concluded arguments, whereas the applicant failed to complete their submissions despite repeated directions.

71. Viewed in this backdrop, the record does not disclose any denial of opportunity of hearing to the applicant; rather, it reflects that the proceedings were adjourned thereafter for hearing on their behalf. In such circumstances, the contention of the respondent that the present transfer application is not founded on any bona fide apprehension of bias, but is a device to delay adjudication and avoid conclusion of the proceedings, appears to be well-founded.

72. As regards the second ground relating to the alleged oral remark, it is to be noted that no contemporaneous record, order-sheet entry, or any other material has been placed on record to substantiate the same. The allegation rests solely on an assertion made in the application. Even assuming, for the sake of argument, that some observation to the effect indicated was made, such remarks, if made in the course of hearing, may at best reflect a tentative view, a suggestion for exploring settlement, or an attempt to test the stand of the parties. It is well settled that expressions made by a court during the course of hearing cannot be read in isolation or treated as a final pronouncement on the merits.

73. A Presiding Officer is expected to actively engage with the matter, pose questions, and even indicate prima facie impressions so as to facilitate effective adjudication. To construe every such observation as evidence of pre-judgment would render the process of judicial hearing impracticable. The law, as noticed hereinabove, draws a clear distinction between a tentative observation made in the course of proceedings and a concluded determination, and only the latter, if demonstrably established, can give rise to a legitimate apprehension of bias.

74. During the course of hearing, a Presiding Officer is entitled to actively engage with the matter by putting questions, seeking clarifications, and even indicating prima facie views so as to facilitate effective adjudication. It cannot be expected that the Judges should be silent without expressing any opinion; a "sphinx-like" attitude is not expected from the Presiding Officer. Mere observations made in the course of proceedings, unless demonstrably indicative of a closed mind or final determination, cannot be construed as evidence of bias so as to vitiate the proceedings.

75. Tested on the touchstone of a reasonable and informed observer, this Court is of the considered view that the apprehension expressed by the applicant does not rise beyond a subjective perception. There is no tangible material on record from which it can be inferred that there exists a real likelihood of bias or that the learned Presiding Officer would not adjudicate the matter in accordance with law. The allegations, in their present form, fall short of the standard of being reasonable, bona fide, and substantiated.

76. It must also be borne in mind that transfer of a case on the ground of bias, particularly when directed against a Presiding Officer, is a matter of serious consequence. Such an order, if passed without adequate basis, has the potential to cast unwarranted aspersions on the integrity and independence of the judicial officer concerned. The power under Section 24 CPC, though wide, is to be exercised with circumspection and only in cases where the ends of justice so demand on the basis of cogent and compelling circumstances. Allegations touching upon the impartiality of a judicial officer are required to be made with due care and circumspection, and must be founded on cogent material. Such pleas, if resting on vague or unsubstantiated assertions, carry the potential to undermine confidence in the judicial process and ought not to be lightly entertained.

77. The allegations of bias in the present case are founded solely on an isolated observation made during the course of hearing, which, when viewed in their proper perspective, falls well within the permissible bounds of judicial engagement. No material whatsoever has been placed on record to establish any real likelihood of bias or to indicate that the learned court below has pre-judged the matter or closed its mind to the issues involved. The apprehension sought to be projected by the applicant is thus wholly subjective, speculative, and devoid of any reasonable or cogent foundation.

78. Accepting allegations of the present nature, which are neither supported by material nor demonstrative of any real prejudice, would open the door to litigants seeking transfer on tenuous grounds, thereby encouraging forum shopping and impeding the orderly administration of justice. The Court cannot permit its process to be invoked in a manner that undermines the confidence in the institutional framework of the judiciary.

79. Insofar as the authorities relied upon by the applicant are concerned, this Court finds that the propositions laid down therein are well settled and cannot be disputed. The decisions in Gurcharan Das Chadha and Maneka Sanjay Gandhi reiterate that justice must not only be done but must also appear to be done, and that a fair trial is an integral component of Article 21. Likewise, the judgments in P.K. Ghosh and Shivananda Pathak emphasize that even an appearance of bias may vitiate proceedings, while Kulwinder Kaur recognizes the wide amplitude of powers under Section 24 CPC to secure the ends of justice. Similarly, in Ranjit Thakur and allied authorities, the test of “real likelihood of bias” has been explained as one based on the perception of a reasonable and informed person, and not on proof of actual prejudice.

80. However, the applicability of these principles necessarily depends upon the factual foundation laid in each case. As noticed hereinabove, the apprehension projected by the applicant is not supported by any cogent or contemporaneous material and rests primarily on conjecture and subjective perception. None of the cited authorities dispense with the requirement that such apprehension must be reasonable, bona fide, and based on tangible circumstances. In the absence of any material demonstrating a real likelihood of bias, the reliance placed on the aforesaid judgments does not advance the case of the applicant, and the same are clearly distinguishable on facts.

81. In view of the foregoing discussion, this Court finds that the applicant have failed to make out any case warranting transfer of the proceedings. The apprehension expressed by them is neither reasonable nor substantiated so as to justify exercise of jurisdiction under Section 24 CPC.

82. Consequently, this Court finds no merit in the present transfer application, which is, accordingly, dismissed.

83. It is, however, clarified that the observations made herein are confined solely to the adjudication of the present transfer application and shall not be construed as any expression on the merits of Arbitration Appeal No.15 of 2025 or the stay application pending therein, which shall be considered and decided independently by the court concerned, strictly in accordance with law.

84. The appellate court shall endeavour to dispose of the pending appeal expeditiously, in accordance with law, after affording due opportunity of hearing to all parties concerned. The applicant as well as the respondents are directed to extend full cooperation in the proceedings and to remain duly represented on the dates fixed, so that the proceedings in the appeal may be concluded without any further delay.

Matters Under Article 227 No. 1563 of 2026

...Petitioner

Versus

Shri Chitrakoot Ramlila Samiti & Ors. ...Respondents

Issue for Consideration

Whether impleadment of only one legal heir or co-tenant of a deceased tenant is sufficient for the continuation of eviction proceedings, or whether all co-tenants are required to be mandatorily impleaded; and further, whether non-impleaded co-tenants may seek impleadment at their own instance during the pendency of such proceedings

Head Notes

The Constitution of India, 1950-Article 227; The Code of Civil Procedure, 1908- Order XXII- Upon the death of a tenant, the tenancy devolves upon the legal heirs as a joint and indivisible tenancy, retaining its unity vis-à-vis the landlord. In such a situation, any one of the joint tenants who is in possession or otherwise effectively representing the tenancy is deemed in law to represent the entire body of co-tenants. Consequently, impleadment of all legal heirs is not a sine qua non for the maintainability or validity of eviction or release proceedings, and proceedings instituted against one or more such joint tenants are maintainable and binding upon all, unless a case of distinct, independent, or severed tenancy rights is specifically pleaded and established. The determinative test is one of effective and adequate representation of the tenancy, and not of formal or exhaustive impleadment. At the same time, a co-tenant, if so advised, may seek impleadment to safeguard his or her interest; however, such a right of participation cannot be elevated to a mandatory requirement so as to vitiate proceedings in its absence.

Held- Impleadment of all co-tenants is not mandatory, there exists no legal bar for any other heir to approach the Court and seek impleadment for protection of his or her interest. However, such a right cannot be enforced at the instance of the petitioner so as to compel mandatory impleadment of all heirs.

Petition dismissed. (E-15)

Orders dated 26.11.2025, 18.07.2023, and 18.02.2021 passed in Small Causes Suit No. 18 of 2014. The principal relief sought is the setting aside of the substitution order dated 18.02.2021, whereby only the petitioner alone was impleaded as the legal heir of the deceased tenant, along with a consequential direction to implead all the legal heirs of the deceased defendant

Counsel for Respondent(s) : Ritvik Upadhya

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Yogendra Kumar Srivastava, J.)

1. Heard Sri Triloki Nath Tiwari, learned counsel for the petitioner and Sri Vinod Kumar Upadhya, learned Senior Counsel appearing along with Sri Ritvik Upadhya, learned counsel for the respondents.

2. The present petition calls in question the orders dated 26.11.2025, 18.07.2023, and 18.02.2021 passed in Small Causes Suit No. 18 of 2014. The principal relief sought is the setting aside of the substitution order dated 18.02.2021, whereby only the petitioner alone was impleaded as the legal heir of the deceased tenant, along with a consequential direction to implead all the legal heirs of the deceased defendant.

3. The factual matrix, in brief, is that the plaintiff respondent instituted Small Causes Suit No. 18 of 2014 seeking eviction, recovery of arrears of rent, and damages in respect of the disputed non-residential premises. The original defendant, Krishna Gopal Gupta, contested the suit by filing a written statement during his lifetime.

4. During the pendency of the suit, the original defendant expired on 14.02.2019. Thereafter, the plaintiff filed a substitution application dated 22.08.2019, pursuant to which the present petitioner, Ashish Kumar Agarwal, came to be impleaded as the sole legal representative of the deceased defendant by order dated 18.02.2021.

5. Subsequently, on account of non-appearance, the trial court proceeded ex parte against the defendants by order dated 27.04.2022. Upon acquiring knowledge of the said proceedings, the petitioner filed a recall application seeking recall of both the substitution order dated 18.02.2021 and the ex parte order dated 27.04.2022, inter alia, on the ground that all the legal heirs of the deceased defendant had not been impleaded and that proper service had not been effected.

6. The trial court, by order dated 18.07.2023, partly allowed the recall application by setting aside the ex parte proceedings dated 27.04.2022; however, it declined to recall the substitution order dated 18.02.2021. The revision preferred thereagainst was dismissed by the revisional court on 26.11.2025, affirming the view taken by the trial court.

7. Aggrieved by the aforesaid orders, the petitioner has instituted the present petition invoking the supervisory jurisdiction of this Court under Article 227 of the Constitution of India.

8. Learned counsel for the petitioner has vehemently contended that the courts below have committed a manifest error of law in permitting the suit to proceed without impleading all the legal heirs of the deceased tenant, late Krishna Gopal Gupta. It is submitted that upon the death of the original tenant, the tenancy rights devolved upon all his legal heirs in accordance with the provisions of the Hindu Succession Act, 1956, and consequently, each of them acquired a joint and indivisible interest in the tenancy.

9. It is further contended that the non-impleadment of the widow, Smt. Neelam Agarwal, as well as the daughters of the deceased tenant, renders the proceedings fundamentally defective, inasmuch as they are necessary and proper parties whose rights stand directly affected by any decree of eviction. It is urged that failure to implead all such heirs results in denial of opportunity of hearing and constitutes a clear infraction of the principles of natural justice.

10. Placing reliance upon *Gauri Shankar Gupta v. Anita Mishra and another*¹, *Lalit Kumar v. Neel Kantheshwar and others*², and *Textile Association (India) Bombay Unit v. Balmohan Gopal Kurup and another*³, it is submitted that although the legal heirs of a deceased tenant succeed as joint tenants, the principle that one joint tenant may represent the entire body of co-tenants cannot be applied in a rigid or mechanical manner so as to defeat the substantive rights of other co-tenants.

11. It is further submitted that the supplementary affidavit filed before this Court demonstrates that Smt. Neelam Agarwal has become the proprietor of the business being carried on from the disputed premises, as evidenced by GST registration, and therefore has a direct and substantial interest warranting her impleadment.

12. Per contra, learned counsel for the respondents has supported the impugned orders and submitted that the petitioner is the sole person in possession and effective control of the tenanted premises and is adequately representing the tenancy.

13. Reliance has been placed upon *Suresh Kumar Kohli v. Rakesh Jain and another*⁴ and *Harish Tandon v. Additional District Magistrate, Allahabad, U.P. and others*⁵, to contend that tenancy devolves as a joint and indivisible unit, and impleadment of one joint tenant is sufficient.

14. It is further contended that objections regarding non-impleadment raised at a belated stage are liable to be rejected as attempts to delay proceedings.

15. Reliance is also placed on *Binod Pathak and others v. Shankar Choudhary and others*⁶ to submit that procedural provisions should advance justice and cannot be invoked belatedly.

16. Further reliance is placed on *Uday Bhan Tiwari v. Pashupati Colonizers Pvt. Ltd. and others*⁷ to contend that impleadment of all co-tenants is not mandatory.

17. In view of the rival submissions advanced by learned counsel for the parties, the issue that falls for consideration before this Court is whether impleadment of only one legal heir or co-tenant of a deceased tenant is sufficient for the continuation of eviction proceedings, or whether all co-tenants are required to be mandatorily impleaded; and further, whether non-impleaded co-tenants may seek impleadment at their own instance during the pendency of such proceedings.

18. The controversy in the present case lies at the intersection of two well-settled principles of law, namely, the nature of devolution of tenancy upon the death of a tenant, and the requirement of representation of the estate of the deceased in pending proceedings. The resolution of the issue requires a harmonious construction of these principles in the context of eviction proceedings.

19. At the outset, it may be noted that in *Kanta Goel v. B.P. Pathak and others*⁸, it was held that one co-owner sufficiently represents the entire body of co-owners and that non-impleadment of all co-owners does not render the proceedings defective. This principle, though enunciated in the context of co-ownership, has been consistently applied by analogy to tenancy matters.

20. The law relating to succession to tenancy stands authoritatively settled. *In H.C. Pandey v. G.C. Paul*⁹, it was held that upon the death of the original tenant, the tenancy devolves upon the heirs as a single, indivisible unit, and the heirs succeed as joint tenants. It was further clarified that there is no division of the premises or rent, and acts done by one heir are deemed to be on behalf of all.

21. The aforesaid position was reaffirmed and clarified in Harish Tandon, wherein the apparent conflict in earlier decisions was resolved by holding that the tenancy does not fragment upon succession. The heirs step into the shoes of the deceased tenant as joint tenants, and the tenancy remains a single, indivisible unit. The Court cautioned that any other interpretation would lead to anomalous consequences, particularly requiring landlords to establish eviction grounds separately against each heir.

22. In *Ashok Chintaman Juker and others v. Kishore Pandurang Mantri and another*¹⁰, it was further held that notice to one joint tenant is sufficient, a suit against one is maintainable, and a decree passed therein binds all co-tenants. The Court also emphasized that where other heirs are not in possession or have not asserted independent rights, their non-impleadment does not vitiate the proceedings.

23. The concepts of joint tenancy and tenancy-in-common were considered in detail in Suresh Kumar Kohli (supra). It was held that the two concepts are distinct in form and substance. A joint tenancy is characterized by unity of title, unity of commencement, unity of interest, unity of possession, and unity of equal shares, coupled with the right of survivorship, thereby creating a single and consolidated tenancy. In contrast, tenancy-in-common is marked by unity of possession alone, without unity of title or interest, and each co-tenant holds a distinct and identifiable share in the estate.

24. It was clarified that while inter se the heirs may hold the property as tenants-in-common with separate shares under the law of succession, their position vis-à-vis the landlord stands on a different footing. Each such heir, though having a distinct share inter se, retains the right to possess the entirety of the tenanted premises, and privity of estate continues to subsist between the landlord and each co-tenant in respect of the tenancy.

25. Relying upon the decision in H.C. Pandey, it was reiterated that upon the death of the original tenant, the tenancy devolves upon the heirs as a joint tenancy qua the landlord, and not as separate or fragmented tenancies. The tenancy thus continues as a single and indivisible unit, and cannot be split or partitioned so far as the landlord-tenant relationship is concerned.

26. Consequently, it is not incumbent upon the landlord to implead each and every legal heir. Impleadment of one or more heirs who are in occupation or otherwise effectively representing the tenancy is sufficient in law. A decree of eviction passed against such joint tenant(s) binds all co-tenants, and objections founded on non-joinder of every heir are untenable, particularly in the absence of proof of separate possession or independent tenancy rights.

27. Before adverting to the rival contentions on merits, it would be apposite to notice the procedural doctrine governing substitution and representation of estate under Order XXII of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908¹¹.

28. It is trite that the requirement in law is one of effective representation and not exhaustive impleadment. This principle constitutes a cornerstone of representative litigation and service of process within civil jurisprudence, striking a balance between the demands of due process and the practical necessity of ensuring that adjudication is not stultified by insistence on impleading every individual having a remote or derivative interest. The doctrine postulates that for a court to pass an effective and enforceable decree, it is not invariably necessary that each and every person having an interest be arrayed as a party; rather, what is essential is that the estate or interest in question is adequately, bona fide, and competently represented by those already on record.

29. In the context of Order XXII CPC, upon the death of a party, the requirement is to bring on record the legal representatives of the deceased. Where there are multiple heirs, and those who are primarily managing or representing the estate are impleaded in good faith, the estate is, in the eye of law, treated as being sufficiently represented. The provisions of Order XXII are not intended to be construed in a manner that defeats substantive rights; they must receive a pragmatic and liberal construction so as to advance substantial justice rather than to obstruct adjudication on technical grounds. As has been consistently emphasized, if the estate is represented, the non-impleadment of every single heir is not fatal.

30. In this context, a three-fold test has been evolved to determine the adequacy of such representation: (i) bona fide conduct – whether the litigation has been prosecuted or defended honestly and with due diligence by the parties on record; (ii) identity of interest – whether the interest of the non-impleaded party is identical to, and not in conflict with, that of the party representing the estate; and (iii) absence of prejudice – whether the omission to implead a particular heir has resulted in any failure of justice or a distorted or one-sided presentation of the case.

31. If these conditions are satisfied, the non-impleadment of every heir does not render the proceedings defective, nor does it result in abatement. The emphasis thus shifts from a mechanical requirement of exhaustive impleadment to a functional requirement of effective representation, namely, whether the interest of the deceased is being adequately and fairly defended before the Court. So long as such representation exists, the proceedings remain valid and binding, and cannot be invalidated on technical grounds of non-joinder.

32. The petitioner's contention proceeds on the premise that each legal heir possesses an independent and indivisible right in the tenancy requiring mandatory impleadment. However, such a premise overlooks the settled distinction between tenancy-in-common and joint tenancy. As held in Suresh Kumar Kohli, while heirs may hold rights inter se as tenants-in-common, vis-à-vis the landlord, the tenancy remains joint and indivisible.

33. The judgments relied upon by the petitioner, namely Gauri Shankar Gupta and Lalit Kumar, do not lay down a contrary proposition. They merely recognize that where a co-tenant independently approaches the Court seeking impleadment, such request ought ordinarily to be considered to avoid prejudice. These decisions carve out a limited equitable exception but do not dilute the settled principle that one joint tenant can represent the tenancy.

34. On the other hand, the authorities relied upon by the respondents, including Uday Bhan Tiwari reaffirm that tenancy devolves as a single, indivisible unit and that impleadment of one joint tenant is sufficient. These decisions also emphasize that in the absence of separate possession or independent tenancy, a decree binds all co-tenants.

35. Further, reliance placed on Binod Pathak reinforces the principle that procedural provisions must be construed to advance justice and cannot be invoked belatedly to unsettle proceedings. The Court emphasized that parties cannot take advantage of their own omission or delay.

36. The principles laid down in Harish Tandon and Suresh Kumar Kohli further fortify the position that occupation or representation by one heir is deemed to be on behalf of all, and that impleadment of every heir is not mandatory. The aforesaid doctrine has also been consistently applied and it has been held that eviction proceedings against one or more joint tenants in possession are maintainable and binding upon all heirs. Thus, upon a holistic examination, it emerges that while co-heirs undoubtedly inherit rights in the tenancy, the law does not mandate their compulsory impleadment in eviction proceedings. The tenancy being joint and indivisible, effective representation by one co-tenant suffices.

37. At the same time, the right of a co-tenant to seek impleadment cannot be ignored. As indicated in Gauri Shankar Gupta and Lalit Kumar, a co-tenant may, if aggrieved, approach the Court and seek impleadment. However, such right does not translate into a mandatory obligation upon the landlord or the Court to implead all heirs.

38. It is also well settled that upon the death of a tenant, his heirs succeed as joint tenants, and a decree passed against one joint tenant binds the others. This principle has been consistently applied in eviction jurisprudence.

39. The concept of joint tenancy implies that the tenancy remains a single, indivisible entity. All heirs collectively represent the estate of the deceased tenant, and representation by one is, in law, representation of all.

40. In this context, the object of substitution under Order XXII CPC assumes significance. The purpose is to ensure representation of the estate and not to insist upon mechanical impleadment of all heirs. Where one heir, particularly one in possession and actively conducting business, is on record, the requirement of representation stands satisfied.

41. The distinction between a "necessary party" and a "proper party" is also relevant. A necessary party is one in whose absence no effective decree can be passed. In cases of joint tenancy, one joint tenant is sufficient for passing an effective decree. Other heirs fall within the category of proper parties, whose impleadment is discretionary and not mandatory.

42. From the aforesaid discussion, the following principles emerge:

42.1 Upon the demise of a tenant, the tenancy does not stand fragmented but devolves upon the heirs as a joint and indivisible tenancy, the unity of the tenancy being preserved vis-à-vis the landlord.

42.2 Such joint tenancy carries with it the principle of representative possession, wherein any one of the joint tenants in occupation or control of the tenanted premises is deemed, in the eye of law, to represent the entire body of co-tenants.

42.3 Consequently, impleadment of each and every legal heir is not a sine qua non for the maintainability or validity of eviction or release proceedings, and non-joinder of some co-tenants does not ipso facto vitiate the proceedings.

42.4 A decree or order passed against one or more joint tenants, particularly those in possession or effectively representing the tenancy, enures to the benefit of and binds all co-tenants, unless a case of distinct, independent, or severed tenancy rights is specifically pleaded and established.

42.5 The test is one of effective and adequate representation of the tenancy and the estate of the deceased, and not of exhaustive or mechanical impleadment of all legal heirs. Where it is established that the tenancy or estate is bona fide and competently represented by a person in possession or control, the proceedings cannot be invalidated on technical grounds of non-impleadment. The provisions of Order XXII of the Code of Civil Procedure are to be construed pragmatically and liberally so as to advance substantial justice; in the absence of demonstrable prejudice, non-impleadment of every legal heir is not fatal.

42.6 The burden to establish that a non-impleaded heir was a necessary party by virtue of independent possession or distinct tenancy rights lies upon the person raising such objection, and in the absence of such pleading and proof, the objection cannot be sustained.

42.7 At the same time, the law recognizes that a co-tenant, if so advised, may seek impleadment to safeguard his or her interest, and such impleadment ought ordinarily to be permitted to advance the cause of complete adjudication; however, such permissibility cannot be elevated to a mandatory requirement so as to render proceedings defective in its absence.

42.8 Thus, the jurisprudential distinction lies between what is indispensable and what is merely facilitative—while the presence of all heirs is not a legal necessity, the door remains open for their participation where they choose to assert an interest.

43. The legal position, thus crystallized, may be succinctly stated that upon the death of a tenant, the tenancy devolves upon the legal heirs as a joint and indivisible tenancy, retaining its unity vis-à-vis the landlord. In such a situation, any one of the joint tenants who is in possession or otherwise effectively representing the tenancy is deemed in law to represent the entire body of co-tenants. Consequently, impleadment of all legal heirs is not a sine qua non for the maintainability or validity of eviction or release proceedings, and proceedings instituted against one or more such joint tenants are maintainable and binding upon all, unless a case of distinct, independent, or severed tenancy rights is specifically pleaded and established. The determinative test is one of effective and adequate representation of the tenancy, and not of formal or exhaustive impleadment. At the same time, a co-tenant, if so advised, may seek impleadment to safeguard his or her interest; however, such a right of participation cannot be elevated to a mandatory requirement so as to vitiate proceedings in its absence.

44. At this juncture, having considered the rival submissions advanced by learned counsel for the parties and the legal principles emanating from the judicial precedents governing the field, it becomes necessary for this Court to examine the controversy in the light of the settled doctrine of joint tenancy and the scope of impleadment of legal heirs in eviction proceedings.

45. At the outset, it is to be noted that both the trial court and the revisional court have concurrently recorded findings of fact that the petitioner, Ashish Kumar Agarwal, was the person actively carrying on the business in the tenanted premises and was in effective control and possession thereof. These findings are findings of fact based on appreciation of evidence and have neither been shown to be perverse nor based on no evidence. On the contrary, they clearly indicate that the tenancy, as a functional and commercial unit, was being effectively represented by the petitioner alone.

46. It further transpires from the record that during the pendency of the suit, the plaintiff had moved an application bringing on record the death of the original tenant, Krishna Gopal Gupta, and had specifically asserted that the present petitioner, being his legal heir, had succeeded to the tenancy and was carrying on the business from the disputed premises. Significantly, such assertions were not specifically denied or controverted by the petitioner in the recall application subsequently filed by him. The absence of a categorical denial to such material pleadings amounts to an implied admission, thereby reinforcing the conclusion that the petitioner had stepped into the shoes of the original tenant and was effectively representing the tenancy both in possession and in conduct.

47. In the aforesaid factual backdrop, the settled legal principle that heirs of a deceased tenant succeed as joint tenants assumes determinative significance. The doctrine of joint tenancy, as consistently applied in tenancy law, recognizes that the tenancy remains a single and indivisible interest, and representation of such tenancy by one of the co-tenants is, in appropriate cases, sufficient for the purposes of litigation. Consequently, the mere non-impleadment of all legal heirs does not, by itself, vitiate the proceedings, so long as the tenancy is adequately and effectively represented.

48. The revisional court, while affirming the order of the trial court, has rightly relied upon the principle that only those heirs who are actively involved in the tenancy or in the business carried on in the tenanted premises are to be treated as necessary parties. In the present case, it has been specifically found that the widow and daughters of the deceased tenant were neither participating in the business nor shown to be in possession of the tenanted premises. In the absence of any such participation, possession, or demonstrable assertion of independent rights, their impleadment cannot be said to be mandatorily required.

49. The subsequent filing of the supplementary affidavit by the petitioner, asserting that Smt. Neelam Agarwal has been allotted a GST registration and has become the proprietor of the business, does not, ipso facto, alter the legal position. Firstly, this assertion pertains to a subsequent development which was neither pleaded nor substantiated before the courts below at the relevant stage when the substitution order was passed. Secondly, the mere existence of a GST registration, in the absence of cogent material demonstrating actual possession, control, or active conduct of business in the tenanted premises at the relevant point of time, does not conclusively establish that she was a necessary party whose non-impleadment would vitiate the proceedings.

50. More importantly, the law does not mandate that every heir must necessarily be impleaded in an eviction suit. The requirement is of effective representation of the tenancy and not exhaustive or mechanical impleadment. Once it is found that the petitioner was representing the tenancy and has been afforded full opportunity to contest the proceedings on merits after recall of the ex parte order, the proceedings cannot be held to be defective merely on account of non-impleadment of other heirs.

51. At the same time, the legal position as elucidated in Gauri Shankar Gupta and Lalit Kumar must be harmoniously applied. These decisions lay down that although impleadment of one joint tenant is sufficient in law, a co-tenant who independently approaches the Court seeking impleadment during the pendency of proceedings may ordinarily be permitted to be impleaded, so as to avoid prejudice and ensure complete adjudication.

52. However, a crucial distinction must be maintained. The aforesaid judgments do not lay down that impleadment of all co-tenants is mandatory in every case; rather, they recognize a right to seek impleadment, not a corresponding obligation upon the Court to suo motu implead all heirs. In the present case, it is noteworthy that no independent application has been filed by Smt. Neelam Agarwal or any other alleged co-heir seeking impleadment in their own right. The plea for impleadment has been raised only by the petitioner, who is already on record and adequately representing the tenancy. Therefore, the ratio of the aforesaid judgments does not advance the petitioner's case to the extent of rendering the substitution order illegal.

53. In view of the foregoing discussion, this Court is of the considered opinion that the substitution of the petitioner alone as the legal representative of the deceased tenant does not suffer from any legal infirmity. The consistent judicial position clearly establishes that upon the death of a tenant, the tenancy devolves as a joint and indivisible unit, and one joint tenant is competent to represent the entire tenancy. In the facts of the present case, the petitioner has been found to be in effective control and possession of the tenanted premises and has been afforded full opportunity to contest the proceedings on merits. The non-impleadment of other heirs, in such circumstances, cannot be said to vitiate the proceedings or render the substitution order illegal.

54. At the same time, it is equally well settled that while impleadment of all co-tenants is not mandatory, there exists no legal bar for any other heir, if so advised, to approach the Court and seek impleadment for protection of his or her interest. However, such a right cannot be enforced at the instance of the petitioner so as to compel mandatory impleadment of all heirs.

55. In view of the foregoing discussion and the settled legal position, this Court finds no illegality, perversity, or jurisdictional error in the impugned orders dated 18.02.2021, 18.07.2023 (to the extent challenged), and 26.11.2025 passed by the courts below, warranting interference in exercise of supervisory jurisdiction under Article 227 of the Constitution of India.

56. The petition, being devoid of merit, is accordingly dismissed.

57. The trial court shall proceed with the suit expeditiously and endeavour to conclude the same, in accordance with law, preferably within a period of six months from the date of production of a certified copy of this order, without granting unnecessary adjournments to either party.

58. It is made clear that the observations made in this judgment are confined to the issues raised herein and shall not be construed as an expression on the merits of the case, which shall be decided independently by the trial court.

Issue for Consideration

Whether directing the parties to go for mediation again, though they had mediated at an early point of time in some other proceedings and was unsuccessful, can it be a ground to waive the cooling period as the parties cannot be made to undergo another mediation.

Head Notes

The Constitution of India, 1950-Article 227; The Hindu Marriage Act, 1955- Section 13-B- Petitioners have not indicated what are those accentuating circumstances which falls within the scope of grounds seeking exemption of the cooling period except the fact that when the parties were contesting the proceedings under Section 13 of the Act of 1955, they were subjected to mediation which failed- Failure of mediation at one stage does not necessarily imply that subsequent mediation cannot take place and even if it does, then it has to fail thus, on this assumption a subsequent mediation cannot be ordered by the Court, cannot be legally valid submissions.

Held- The ground upon which the petitioners seek to assail the order dated 07.02.2026, already stood complied with and, therefore, if that grounds is subtracted from the entire application there is no other ground upon which the petitioners seeks the exemption of cooling of period.

Petition dismissed. (E-15)

Petitioners assail the order dated 07.02.2026, passed by the Family Court in Case No.4208/2025, whereby an application for seeking exemption of the cooling period of six months, as provided under Section 13-B of the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955 has been rejected.

Appearances for Parties

Counsel for Petitioner(s) : Pradeep Kumar, Adarsh Tripathi

Counsel for Respondent(s) : C.S.C.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Jaspreet Singh, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the petitioners.

2. By means of the instant petition, the petitioners assail the order dated 07.02.2026, passed by the Family Court in Case No.4208/2025, whereby an application for seeking exemption of the cooling period of six months, as provided under Section 13-B of the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955 (for short, 'the Act of 1955'), has been rejected.

3. The submission of the learned counsel for the petitioners is that the Family Court has erred in rejecting the application without noticing the fact that all the conditions applicable and necessary for exempting the cooling of period relating to a petition under Section 13-B of the Act of 1955, were duly met.

4. The trial Court upon entertaining the petition under Section 13-B of the Act of 1955 fixed the next date as 27.05.2026 for filing of the second motion. By the very same order, the Family Court directed the parties to appear before the Mediation and Conciliation Centre on 20.01.2026.

5. It is urged that the first and foremost, the parties had already mediated while they were contesting the proceedings under Section 13 of the Act of 1955, but the mediation failed. The petitioners thereafter finding that there was no element of reconciliation and they were also living apart since more than one year, hence, they preferred a petition under Section 13-B of the Act of 1955 for dissolution of their marriage by mutual consent.

6. It is further submitted that once the mediation had failed, it was not open for the Family Court to have directed the parties to undergo the exercise of mediation again while their petition under Section 13-B of the Act of 1955 was pending, hence, prolonging the agony of the petitioners. The Court was required to consider the dictum and the conditions laid down by the Apex Court in Amardeep Singh v. Harveen Kaur, (2017) 8 SCC 746, however, the same was not noticed and the application preferred by the petitioners for seeking exemption of cooling period has been rejected by means of the impugned order dated 07.02.2026, which cannot be sustained and deserves to be set aside.

7. The Court has put a query to the learned counsel for the petitioners to address the Court on the under mentioned two grounds:-

(a) Regarding the availability of statutory remedy of appeal as provided under Section 19 of the Family Courts Act, 1984 (for short, 'the Act of 1984');

(b) What could be the ground upon which the application seeking exemption of cooling period can be made and whether requiring the parties to go for a mediation would stand exempted because, some mediation at some earlier point of time in respect of different set of proceedings had taken place.

8. Learned counsel for the petitioners, at the outset, submitted that since the order dated 07.02.2026 is an interlocutory order, hence, in terms of Section 19(1) of the Act of 1984, the appeal as contemplated would not lie and in such circumstances, a petition under Article 227 of the Constitution of India would be maintainable.

9. Examining the aforesaid submission, insofar as the powers of the Court to entertain and exercise its powers in terms of under Article 227 of the Constitution of India is concerned, the same are very wide, deep and pervasive. The Constitutional power cannot be abridged merely because an order is made appealable under a Statute. The difference between the right to entertain a petition is altogether different from the right to maintain a petition. [See : M/s. Godrej Sara Lee Ltd. v. The Excise and Taxation Officer and others, 2023 SCC OnLine SC 95].

10. It is now too well settled that even though the bar of alternate remedy is not an absolute bar but where the forum and remedy is created under a Statute then unless grave and accentuating circumstances are pointed out, which are within the well accepted perimeters till then the said bar operates nearly as an absolute bar notwithstanding that the powers under Articles 226 and 227 of the Constitution of India are purely equitable and discretionary.

11. The perimeters within which a petition under Article 227 of the Constitution of India is entertained while assailing an order of a Court can be summarily mentioned as under:-

- (a) where the order impugned is an outcome of erroneous assumption of jurisdiction;
- (b) where the Court refuses to exercise jurisdiction vested in it in law;
- (c) The order is in violation of principles of natural justice;
- (d) The order is an outcome of arbitrary exercise of authority or discretion by Court;
- (e) The order is perverse or based on no material;
- (f) The order is an outcome of a patent error of jurisdiction or procedure;
- (g) If an order is allowed to stand it would occasion manifest injustice.

12. At this stage, it will be relevant to notice the provision of Section 19 of the Act of 1984 and for the sake of convenience, the aforesaid provision is being reproduced hereinafter:-

"Section 19. Appeal.?(1) Save as provided in sub-section (2) and notwithstanding anything contained in the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 (5 of 1908) or in the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (2 of 1974) or in any other law, an appeal shall lie from every judgment or order, not being an interlocutory order, of a Family Court to the High Court both on facts and on law.

(2) No appeal shall lie from a decree or order passed by the Family Court with the consent of the parties [or from an order passed under Chapter IX of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (2 of 1974):

Provided that nothing in this sub-section shall apply to any appeal pending before a High Court or any order passed under Chapter IX of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (2 of 1974) before the commencement of the Family Courts (Amendment) Act, 1991 (59 of 1991)].

(3) Every appeal under this section shall be preferred within a period of thirty days from the date of the judgment or order of a Family Court.

[(4) The High Court may, of its own motion or otherwise, call for and examine the record of any proceeding in which the Family Court situate within its jurisdiction passed an order under Chapter IX of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (2 of 1974) for the purpose of satisfying itself as to the correctness, legality or propriety of the order, not being an interlocutory order, and as to the regularity of such proceeding.]

(5) Except as aforesaid, no appeal or revision shall lie to any court from any judgment, order or decree of a Family Court.

(6) An appeal preferred under sub-section (1) shall be heard by a Bench consisting two or more judges."

13. The issue in context with the word 'interlocutory' used in Section 19(1) of the Act of 1984 came up for consideration before a Full Bench of this Court in Smt. Kiran Bala Srivastava v. Jai Prakash Srivastava, 2005 (23) LCD 1 and the Full Bench observed as under:-

"23. Before we consider whether orders under Section 24 granting pendent lite maintenance to the party to the matrimonial dispute, possesses characteristics and trappings of a "judgment", we would like to refer to two Supreme Court cases, namely Amar Nath v. State of Haryana : AIR 1977 SC 2185 and Madhu Limaye v. State of Maharashtra : AIR 1978 SC 47. The controversy in Amar Nath's case centred around the meaning of the expression "interlocutory order" appearing in sub-section (2) of Section 397 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. Relying on earlier view in Mohan Lal Magan Lal Thakkar v. State of Gujarat : AIR 1968 SC 733 the Apex Court said:

"The term "interlocutory order" is a term of well-known legal significance and does not present any serious difficulty. It has been used in various statutes including the Code of Civil Procedure, Letters Patent of the High Courts and other like statutes. In Webster's New World Dictionary "interlocutory" has been defined as an order other than final decision. Decided cases have laid down that interlocutory orders to be appealable must be those which decide the right? and liabilities of the parties concerning a particular aspect. It seems to us that the term "interlocutory order" in Section 397(2) of the 1973 Code has been used in a restricted sense and not in any broad or artistic sense. It merely denotes orders of a purely interim or temporary nature which do not decide or touch the important rights or the liabilities of the parties. Any order which substantially affects the rights of the accused, or decides certain rights of the parties cannot be said to be an interlocutory order so as to bar a revision to the High Court against that order, because that would be against the very object which formed the basis for insertion of this particular provision in Section 397 of the 1973 Code. Thus, for instance, orders summoning witnesses, adjourning cases, passing orders for bail, calling for reports and such other steps in aid of the pending proceeding may no doubt amount to interlocutory orders against which no revision would lie under Section 397(2) of the 1973 Code. But orders which are matters of moment and which affect or adjudicate the rights of the accused or a particular aspect of the trial cannot be said to be interlocutory order so as to be outside the purview of the revisional jurisdiction of the High Court."

28. The learned counsel for the respondents has referred to the definition of "interlocutory orders" in Vol. 22 of the third edition of Halsbury's Law of England and also to Central Bank of India v. Gokul Chand : AIR 1967 SC 799 and also to Amar Nath's case and Madhu Limaye's case (supra), so as to say that order under Section 24 of the Act of 1955 are just steps in aid of the main proceedings and have no existence independent of the main proceedings, so will not fall within the definition of the judgment and will be only an interlocutory order. We are of the view that in view of the discussion made above order of pendent lite maintenance has all the characteristics and trappings of the judgment as it decides the valuable rights and liabilities of the parties to the proceedings. In so far as those rights and liabilities are concerned the order is final. The fact that the considerations that matter in granting or refusing pendent lite maintenance under Section 24, have no connection with issues in the main proceedings or the question that even after disposal of application under Section 24, the main petition remains alive for disposal, do not prevent the order under Section 24 from falling within the definition of the "judgment". We are also of the view that the expression "interlocutory order" appearing in sub-section (1) of Section 19 of the Act 1984 qualify the word "order" only and does not qualify the word "judgment" appearing before the word "order". In other words, if order of pendent lite maintenance is a "judgment" for all legal and practical purposes, it matters, little whether the same is interlocutory or final."

14. Now, it will be relevant to examine Section 115 CPC as amended in the State of U.P., which reads as under:-

"115.(1) A superior court may revise an order passed in a case decided in an original suit or other proceeding by a subordinate court where no appeal lies against the order and where the subordinate court has-

- (a) exercised a jurisdiction not vested in it by law; or
- (b) failed to exercise a jurisdiction so vested; or
- (c) acted in exercise of its jurisdiction illegally or with material irregularity.

(2) A revision application under sub-section (1), when filed in the High Court, shall contain a certificate on the first page of such application, below the title of the case, to the effect that no revision in the case lies to the district court but lies only to the High Court either because of valuation or because the order sought to be revised was passed by the district court.

(3) The superior court shall not, under this section, vary or reverse any order made except where,-

(i) the order, if it had been made in favour of the party applying for revision, would have finally disposed of the suit or other proceeding, or

(ii) the order, if allowed to stand, would occasion a failure of justice or cause irreparable injury to the party against whom it is made.

(4) A revision shall not operate as a stay of suit or other proceeding before the court except where such suit or other proceeding is stayed by the superior court.

Explanation -I. In this section,-

(I) the expression 'superior court' means-

(a) the district court, where the valuation of a case decided by a court subordinate to it does not exceed five lakh rupees;

(b) the High Court, where the order sought to be revised was passed in a case decided by the district court or where the value of the original suit or other proceedings in a case decided by a court subordinate to the district court exceed five lakh rupees;

(ii) the expression 'order' includes an order deciding an issue in any original suit or other proceedings.

Explanation -II. The provisions of this section shall also be applicable to orders passed, before or after the commencement of this section, in original suits or other proceedings instituted before such commencement."

15. If the aforesaid provision is seen and more particularly the sub-Section (3) of Section 115 CPC, it would reveal that any order impugned, deciding an issue and if such an order is varied and reversed, it would finally dispose of the suit or other proceedings or the said order impugned if allowed to stand would cause failure of justice or irreparable injury to the party against whom it is passed, then a revision under Section 115 CPC can be maintained.

16. Now if the order impugned is seen, it would reveal that if such order is varied or reversed then by virtue of the 'effect doctrine' as explained by the Apex Court in Chintels India Ltd. v. Bhayana Builders Pvt. Ltd., (2021) 4 SCC 602, it would amount to waiving off the cooling period of six months and once the said period is waived, it would amount to allowing the petition under Section 13-B of the Act of 1955. Thus, effectively under normal circumstances, a revision would be maintainable against such an order. But by virtue of Section 19(1) of the Act of 1984 every order passed by the Family Court which is not interlocutory in nature, is appealable. Furthermore, the provisions of the Family Court Act has an overriding effect by virtue of Section 20 of the Act of 1984.

17. Thus, considering the meaning of the word 'interlocutory' as explained by the Full Bench of this Court in Kiran Bala Srivastava (supra) and also noticing the impact of an order waiving the cooling off period and its effect, it would leave no doubt that refusing to waive off the cooling off period cannot be treated as an interlocutory order. Thus, ordinarily against such an order, an appeal would be maintainable in terms of Section 19(1) of the Act of 1984, unless for special reasons, this Court finds it to be a case within the perimeter noticed above to entertain a petition under Article 227 of the Constitution of India. Thus, the first ground is decided accordingly.

18. Next, if the contention of the learned counsel for the petitioners in relation to the second ground is seen, as to whether directing the parties to go for mediation again, though they had mediated at an early point of time in some other proceedings and was unsuccessful, can it be a ground to waive the cooling period as the parties cannot be made to undergo another mediation.

19. In this regard, it will be appropriate to notice the provision of Section 13-B of the Act of 1955, which reads as under:-

"Section 13-B. Divorce by mutual consent.-(1) Subject to the provisions of this Act a petition for dissolution of marriage by a decree of divorce may be presented to the district court by both the parties to a marriage together, whether such marriage was solemnized before or after the commencement of the Marriage Laws (Amendment) Act, 1976 (68 of 1976), on the ground that they have been living separately for a period of one year or more, that they have not been able to live together and that they have mutually agreed that the marriage should be dissolved.

(2) On the motion of both the parties made not earlier than six months after the date of the presentation of the petition referred to in sub-section (1) and not later than eighteen months after the said date, if the petition is not withdrawn in the meantime, the court shall, on being satisfied, after hearing the parties and after making such inquiry as it thinks fit, that a marriage has been solemnized and that the averments in the petition are true, pass a decree of divorce declaring the marriage to be dissolved with effect from the date of the decree.]"

20. It will also be relevant to point out that certain ingredients are mentioned in Section 13-B of the Act of 1955 which permits the parties to file a petition for dissolution of their marriage with mutual consent. The said ingredients as mentioned in Section itself are (i) the parties have been staying separately for over a year; (ii) they have not been able to live together and (iii) they have agreed mutually to get their marriage dissolved.

21. The basic purpose of putting in a cooling period of six months before moving the second motion has been explained by the Apex Court in Inderjit Singh Grewal v. State of Punjab and another, (2011) 12 SCC 588 and is as under:-

"25. As per the statutory requirement, the purpose of the second motion after a period of six months is that the parties may make further efforts for reconciliation in order to save their marriage. There is also an obligation on the part of the court under Section 23(2) of the 1955 Act to make every endeavour to bring about a reconciliation between the parties. In Jagraj Singh v. Birpal Kaur [(2007) 2 SCC 564 : AIR 2007 SC 2083] this Court held that conjugal rights are not merely creature of statute but inherent in the very institution of marriage. Hence, the approach of a court of law in matrimonial matters should be 'much more constructive, affirmative and productive rather than abstract, theoretical or doctrinaire'. The court should not give up the effort of reconciliation merely on the ground that there is no chance for reconciliation or one party or the other says that there is no possibility of living together. Therefore, it is merely a misgiving that the courts are not concerned and obligated to save the sanctity of the institution of marriage.

26. In Sureshta Devi v. Om Prakash [(1991) 2 SCC 25 : 1991 SCC (Cri) 292 : AIR 1992 SC 1904] this Court held that mere filing of the petition for divorce by mutual consent does not authorise the court to make a decree for divorce. The interregnum waiting period from 6 to 18 months is obviously intended to give time and opportunity to the parties to reflect on their move and seek advice from relations and friends. In this transitional period one of the parties may have a second thought and change the mind not to proceed with the petition. The court must be satisfied about the bona fides and the consent of the parties for the reason that the court gets jurisdiction to make a decree for divorce only on mutual consent at the time of enquiry. The consent must continue to decree nisi and must be valid subsisting consent when the case is heard. Thus, withdrawal of consent can be unilateral prior to the second motion.

27. The Court further observed : (Sureshta Devi case [(1991) 2 SCC 25 : 1991 SCC (Cri) 292 : AIR 1992 SC 1904] , SCC p. 29, para 9)

“9. The ‘living separately’ for a period of one year should be immediately preceding the presentation of the petition. It is necessary that immediately preceding the presentation of petition, the parties must have been living separately. The expression ‘living separately’, connotes to our mind not living like husband and wife. It has no reference to the place of living. The parties may live under the same roof by force of circumstances, and yet they may not be living as husband and wife. The parties may be living in different houses and yet they could live as husband and wife. What seems to be necessary is that they have no desire to perform marital obligations and with that mental attitude they have been living separately for a period of one year immediately preceding the presentation of the petition. The second requirement that they ‘have not been able to live together’ seems to indicate the concept of broken down marriage and it would not be possible to reconcile themselves. The third requirement is that they have mutually agreed that the marriage should be dissolved.”

(emphasis added)

28. For grant of divorce in such a case, the Court has to be satisfied about the existence of mutual consent between the parties on some tangible materials which demonstrably disclose such consent. (Vide Hitesh Bhatnagar v. Deepa Bhatnagar [(2011) 5 SCC 234 : (2011) 2 SCC (Civ) 701 : AIR 2011 SC 1637] .)”

Thus, it would reveal that the basic purpose of six months is to give a chance to the parties to give another thought to their decision to dissolve the marriage.

22. At this stage, it will also be relevant to note the aim, object and reason for enacting the Family Court Act, 1984 and it inter alia provided:-

"STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

Several associations of women, other organisations and individuals have urged, from time to time, that Family Courts be set up for the settlement of family disputes, where emphasis should be laid on conciliation and achieving socially desirable results and adherence to rigid rules of procedure and evidence should be eliminated. The Law Commission in its 59th report (1974) had also stressed that in dealing with disputes concerning the family the court ought to adopt an approach radically different from that adopted in ordinary civil proceedings and that it should make reasonable efforts at settlement before the commencement of the trial. The Code of Civil Procedure was amended in 1976 to provide for a special procedure to be adopted in suits or proceedings relating to matters concerning the family. However, not much use has been made by the courts in adopting this conciliatory procedure and the courts continue to deal with family disputes in the same manner as other civil matters and the same adversary approach prevails. The need was, therefore, felt, in the public interest, to establish Family Courts for speedy settlement of family disputes.

2. The Bill inter alia seeks to –

(a) provide for establishment of Family Courts by the State Governments;

(b) make it obligatory on the State Governments to set up a Family Court in every city or town with a population exceeding one million;

(c) enable the State Governments to set up, such courts, in areas other than those specified in (b) above:

(d) exclusively provide within the jurisdiction of the Family Courts the matters relating to-

(i) matrimonial relief, including nullity of marriage, judicial separation, divorce, restitution of conjugal rights, or declaration as to the validity of marriage or as to the matrimonial status of any person;

(ii) the property of the spouses or of either of them;

(iii) declaration as to the legitimacy of any person;

(iv) guardianship of a person or the custody of any minor,

(v) maintenance, including proceedings under Chapter IX of the Code of Criminal Procedure,

(e) make it obligatory on the part of the Family Court to endeavour, in the first instant to effect a reconciliation or a settlement between the parties to a family dispute. During this stage, the proceedings will be informal and rigid rules of procedure shall not apply,

(f) provide for the association of social welfare agencies, counsellors, etc., during conciliation stage and also to secure the service of medical and welfare experts;

(g) provide that the parties to a dispute before a Family Court shall not be entitled, as of right, to be represented by legal practitioner. However, the court may, in the interest of justice, seek assistance of a legal expert as amicus curiae;

(h) simplify the rules of evidence and procedure so as to enable a Family Court to deal effectively with a dispute;

(i) provide for only one right of appeal which shall lie to the High Court."

23. In this context, it will also be relevant to notice Section 9 of the Act of 1984, which reads as under:-

"9. Duty of Family Court to make efforts for settlement.-(1) In every suit or proceeding endeavour shall be made by the Family Court in the first instance, where it is possible to do so consistent with the nature and circumstances of the case, to assist and persuade the parties in arriving at a settlement in respect of the subject-matter of the suit or proceeding and for this purpose a Family Court may, subject to any rules made by the High Court, follow such procedure as it may deem fit.

(2) if, in any suit or proceeding, at any stage, it appears to the Family Court that there is a reasonable possibility of a settlement between the parties, the Family Court may adjourn the proceedings for such period as it thinks fit to enable attempts to be made to effect such a settlement

(3) The power conferred by sub-section (2) shall be in addition to, and not in derogation of any other power of the Family Court to adjourn the proceedings."

24. The aforesaid provision is in consonance with the aim and object of the Act of 1984 as noticed above and has been couched in a mandatory form. Such powers can be exercised at any stage and such powers are also in addition and not in derogation of the other powers of the Court, under the Act of 1984.

25. Now, at this stage, it will be relevant to note the observations made by the Apex Court in Amardeep Singh (supra), which is being reproduced hereinafter:-

"19. Applying the above to the present situation, we are of the view that where the court dealing with a matter is satisfied that a case is made out to waive the statutory period under Section 13-B(2), it can do so after considering the following:

(i) the statutory period of six months specified in Section 13-B(2), in addition to the statutory period of one year under Section 13-B(1) of separation of parties is already over before the first motion itself;

(ii) all efforts for mediation/conciliation including efforts in terms of Order 32-A Rule 3CPC/Section 23(2) of the Act/Section 9 of the Family Courts Act to reunite the parties have failed and there is no likelihood of success in that direction by any further efforts;

(iii) the parties have genuinely settled their differences including alimony, custody of child or any other pending issues between the parties;

(iv) the waiting period will only prolong their agony.

The waiver application can be filed one week after the first motion giving reasons for the prayer for waiver. If the above conditions are satisfied, the waiver of the waiting period for the second motion will be in the discretion of the court concerned.

20. Since we are of the view that the period mentioned in Section 13-B(2) is not mandatory but directory, it will be open to the court to exercise its discretion in the facts and circumstances of each case where there is no possibility of parties resuming cohabitation and there are chances of alternative rehabilitation.”

26. The Apex Court in Amit Kumar v. Suman Beniwal, (2023) 17 SCC 648 had the occasion to consider the provision of Section 13-B of the Act of 1955 and the object of the cooling off period. It also considered the decision of Amardeep Singh (supra) and clarified the law as under:-

"16. The legislature has, in its wisdom, enacted Section 13-B(2) of the Hindu Marriage Act to provide for a cooling period of six months from the date of filing of the divorce petition under Section 13-B(1), in case the parties should change their mind and resolve their differences. After six months if the parties still wish to go ahead with the divorce, and make a motion, the court has to grant a decree of divorce declaring the marriage dissolved with effect from the date of the decree, after making such enquiries as it considers fit.

17. The object of Section 13-B(2) read with Section 14 is to save the institution of marriage, by preventing hasty dissolution of marriage. It is often said that 'time is the best healer'. With passage of time, tempers cool down and anger dissipates. The waiting period gives the spouses time to forgive and forget. If the spouses have children, they may, after some time, think of the consequences of divorce on their children, and reconsider their decision to separate. Even otherwise, the cooling period gives the couple time to ponder and reflect and take a considered decision as to whether they should really put an end to the marriage for all time to come.

18. Where there is a chance of reconciliation, however slight, the cooling period of six months from the date of filing of the divorce petition should be enforced. However, if there is no possibility of reconciliation, it would be meaningless to prolong the agony of the parties to the marriage. Thus, if the marriage has broken down irretrievably, the spouses have been living apart for a long time, but not been able to reconcile their differences and have mutually decided to part, it is better to end the marriage, to enable both the spouses to move on with life.

20. The factors mentioned in Amardeep Singh v. Harveen Kaur [Amardeep Singh v. Harveen Kaur, (2017) 8 SCC 746 : (2017) 4 SCC (Civ) 804 : (2017) 3 SCC (Cri) 505], in para 19

are illustrative and not exhaustive. These are factors which the court is obliged to take note of. If all the four conditions mentioned above are fulfilled, the court would necessarily have to exercise its discretion to waive the statutory waiting period under Section 13-B(2) of the Marriage Act.

21. The Family Court, as well as the High Court, have misconstrued the judgment of this Court in Amardeep Singh v. Harveen Kaur [Amardeep Singh v. Harveen Kaur, (2017) 8 SCC 746 : (2017) 4 SCC (Civ) 804 : (2017) 3 SCC (Cri) 505] and proceeded on the basis that this Court has held that the conditions specified in para 19 of the said judgment, quoted hereinabove, are mandatory and that the statutory waiting period of six months under Section 13-B(2) can only be waived if all the aforesaid conditions are fulfilled, including, in particular, the condition of separation of at least one-and-half year's before making the motion for decree of divorce.

22. It is well settled that a judgment is a precedent for the issue of law that is raised and decided. A judgment is not to be read in the manner of a statute and construed with pedantic rigidity. In Amardeep Singh v. Harveen Kaur [Amardeep Singh v. Harveen Kaur, (2017) 8 SCC 746 : (2017) 4 SCC (Civ) 804 : (2017) 3 SCC (Cri) 505], this Court held that the statutory waiting period of at least six months mentioned in Section 13-B(2) of the Hindu Marriage Act was not mandatory but directory and that it would be open to the Court to exercise its discretion to waive the requirement of Section 13-B(2), having regard to the facts and circumstances of the case, if there was no possibility of reconciliation between the spouses, and the waiting period would serve no purpose except to prolong their agony."

27. The pith and substance of the aforesaid discussions, the legal provisions involved and how a Court must deal with an application for seeking waiver of the cooling off period of six months are summarized as under:-

(A) It first must be borne in mind that under the Hindu Marriage Act there is a distinct legal threshold which gives eligibility to file a petition for dissolution of marriage by mutual consent. This is quite different from the grounds and justification required to skip the waiving/cooling off period.

(B) Now, in order to seek waiver of this six months of cooling off period, the grounds as set out and specially by the Apex Court in Amardeep (supra) would indicate that though some grounds are common to the ones which must exist before a petition under Section 13-B of the Act of 1955 can be filed yet the said grounds for cooling off the period of six months require more stringent scrutiny.

(C) At the stage, when the Court is confronted with an application seeking waiver of the cooling off period then the Court should ascertain that-

(i) whether all matters between to the parties, such as custody of children, distribution of properties, and alimony etc. are fully settled and done between the parties;

(ii) what has been the period of separation between the parties, beyond one year prior to the date of institution of the petition under Section 13-B of the Act of 1955;

(iii) the Court must be satisfied that in the circumstances of the case before it, the waiting period will only prolong the agony of the parties;

(iv) The Court must also keep in mind that as per the legislative intent, the six months period as provided in Section 13-B is the Rule and waiving the six months period is the exception. Thus, in order to seek waiver of the cooling off period, it becomes necessary to plead the grounds of seeking exemption with sufficient particularity so that the Court dealing with the said application has enough material before it to objectively consider the application seeking waiver of the cooling off period;

(v) It also must be seen that what is the urgency or the hardship which compels the parties to seek waiver of the cooling off period of six months. Since, this urgency or hardship clause will be the decisive factor, hence, it must be clearly pleaded with sufficient particularity to make out a clear case and the Court should be able to discern it and not give into an artificial urgency created by mere clever drafting. Though, no straitjacket formula nor all circumstances can be illustrated but nevertheless the following grounds and its like can be a useful guide for the Court:-

(a) a party may have a firm job opportunity aboard or visa aboard may be expiring;

(b) advanced age or failing health of any party;

(c) any circumstances which may restrict the movement of a party including any service condition relatable to any member of the armed forces or in cases of sportsperson who have to travel for their sports training or competition, etc.;

(d) any other similar cause which may be time sensitive;

(e) long period of acrimonious litigation between the parties which has already shattered the very bedrock of the institution of marriage and there can be no reconciliation;

(f) anyone parent/party, who has the custody of the child/children has to travel for education or like purpose for the betterment and welfare of the child.

28. Now, coming to the facts of the instant case, it would reveal that the petitioners have not indicated what are those accentuating circumstances which falls within the scope of grounds seeking exemption of the cooling period as noticed above except the fact that when the parties were contesting the proceedings under Section 13 of the Act of 1955, they were subjected to mediation which failed.

29. Failure of mediation at one stage does not necessarily imply that subsequent mediation cannot take place and even if it does, then it has to fail thus, on this assumption a subsequent mediation cannot be ordered by the Court, cannot be legally valid submissions.

30. In the instant case, the record would reveal that after the entertainment of the first motion by the Family Court, by means of the order dated 26.11.2025, it had directed the parties to appear before the mediation on 20.01.2026. It is also not disputed that the parties abided by the said order and they also participated in the mediation, however, the same was not successful and the mediator on 03.04.2026 had sent its report indicating the failure of mediation.

31. In this view of the matter, the ground upon which the petitioners seek to assail the order dated 07.02.2026, already stood complied with and, therefore, if that grounds is subtracted from the entire application there is no other ground upon which the petitioners seeks the exemption of cooling of period. 32. For the aforesaid reasons, this Court does not find that it is a fit case for this Court to entertain a petition under Article 227 of the Constitution of India as it does not fall within the perimeter set by the Court and as explained hereinabove. Accordingly, for the aforesaid reason, the petition is dismissed. There shall be no order as to costs.

Issue for Consideration

Whether under the scheme of Section 21(2)(m) of the Uttar Pradesh Regulation of Urban Premises Tenancy Act, 2021, the landlord is merely to demonstrate that the premises are required for his occupation, or whether such requirement must also satisfy the test of "bona fide need" as was contemplated under the erstwhile U.P. Act No. 13 of 1972

Head Notes

The Constitution of India-1950-Article 227; The Uttar Pradesh Regulation of Urban Premises Tenancy Act, 2021- Section 21 (a), (b) & (m)- According to sub-section (2)(m) of Section 21 of the Act, 2021, the landlord is only required to demonstrate that the premises are required for his occupation. The provision, in its plain terms, is clearly distinguishable from the provisions contained in the erstwhile U.P. Act No. 13 of 1972, wherein the landlord was obligated to establish not only his bona fide requirement but also to satisfy the test of comparative hardship. The omission of these requirements under the present enactment is neither incidental nor insignificant, but a conscious legislative departure.

In the absence of the expression "bona fide requirement," the landlord is only required to demonstrate that the premises are needed for his occupation, either in its existing form or after demolition. Once such requirement is duly asserted, the onus shifts upon the tenant to specifically deny the same and substantiate such denial with cogent material. A mere bald or vague plea would not suffice to rebut the statutory ground.

Held- Orders passed by the Rent Authority and the Rent Tribunal are in consonance with the statutory scheme of Section 21(2)(m) of the Act, 2021 and do not suffer from any perversity, illegality, or jurisdictional error. The requirement of the landlord having been duly established within the limited scope of the provision, and there being no material on record to dislodge the same, no ground for interference is made out in exercise of supervisory jurisdiction under Article 227 of the Constitution of India.

Appearances for Parties

Counsel for Petitioners(s) : Prakash Chandra Dwivedi, Raunak Gupta

Counsel for Respondent(s) : Kunal Shah, Nidhi

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Yogendra Kumar Srivastava, J.)

Heard Sri Atul Dayal, learned Senior Counsel appearing along with Sri Prakash Chandra Dwivedi, for the petitioner and Sri Kunal Shah, learned counsel appearing for the respondent.

2. The petitioner, claiming to be a tenant in respect of a shop situated at 106/376, Gandhi Nagar, □P□ Road, Kanpur Nagar, at a monthly rent of Rs.500/-, has filed the present petition. The respondent□landlord instituted proceedings under Section 21(2)(a), (b) and (m) of the Uttar Pradesh Regulation of Urban Premises Tenancy Act, 2021 (hereinafter referred to as □the Act, 2021□), seeking release of the premises in question on the ground that he had acquired ownership thereof by inheritance and that the same was required for expansion of his business.

2.1 In support of the application, it was averred by way of affidavit that the landlord was in possession of a non-residential area measuring approximately 150 square yards, being utilized as a godown, while an area ad-measuring about 90 square yards on the first floor was being used as a furniture workshop. It was further stated that, in the event possession of the premises in question is secured, the landlord would be in a position to shift the furniture workshop to the ground floor and utilize the first floor portion for residential purposes.

2.2 It was also asserted that a notice dated 02.06.2023 had been issued, along with an intimation purportedly under Section 4(3) of the Act, 2021, and that the rent, as assessed on the basis of the applicable circle rate, would be Rs.1,00,000/- per month.

3. The petitioner□tenant appeared and contested the proceedings, inter alia asserting that the agreed rent was Rs. 500/- per month; that the alleged enhancement of rent to Rs.1,00,000/- was impermissible under the Act; that no valid notice had been served; and that the alleged refusal of notice was incorrect. It was further contended that the landlord□s requirement was not genuine and that alternative accommodations were available to him, whereas the tenanted shop constituted the sole source of livelihood of the petitioner.

4. The parties exchanged pleadings and filed affidavits in support of their respective claims. The landlord reiterated his requirement of the premises for personal use, while the petitioner denied the same and raised objections regarding maintainability, service of notice, and compliance with statutory requirements.

5. The Rent Authority, by order dated 19.06.2025, allowed the release application and directed eviction of the petitioner. It recorded that the rate of rent was Rs. 500/- per month and that there was no default in payment of rent. The application, however, was allowed under Section 21(2)(m) of the Act, 2021 on the ground of personal requirement of the landlord.

6. Aggrieved, the petitioner preferred an appeal under Section 35 of the Act, which came to be dismissed by the Rent Tribunal vide order dated 30.01.2026, affirming the findings recorded by the Rent Authority.

7. The petitioner has now approached this Court under Article 227 of the Constitution of India challenging the aforesaid orders.

8. The core issue that arises for consideration is whether, under the scheme of Section 21(2)(m) of the Uttar Pradesh Regulation of Urban Premises Tenancy Act, 2021, the landlord is merely to demonstrate that the premises are required for his occupation, or whether such requirement must also satisfy the test of □bona fide need□ as was contemplated under the erstwhile U.P. Act No. 13 of 1972.

9. The petitioner has assailed the impugned orders contending that the requirement set up by the landlord is neither genuine nor pressing and is merely a pretext to evict the tenant. It is urged that the landlord is possessed of alternative accommodations which could sufficiently meet his alleged need, yet the same have not been considered by the authorities below. It is further submitted that relevant material on record has been ignored, and the proceedings are vitiated on account of non-compliance with statutory requirements, including improper service of notice and an impermissible attempt to enhance the rent. In support of the aforesaid submissions, reliance has been placed on Phiroze Bamanji Desai v. Chandrakant N. Patell , wherein it has been held that the expression "requires" must be construed to mean an element of actual need and not a mere desire, and that such requirement must satisfy the test of bona fide necessity. Further reliance has been placed on Shiv Sarup Gupta v. Mahesh Chand Gupta², to contend that the requirement of the landlord must be genuine and real for eviction, and that the Court is obliged to scrutinize the same objectively on the basis of pleadings and evidence on record.

10. Per contra, the respondent has supported the impugned orders contending that the requirement of the landlord stands duly established within the meaning of Section 21(2)(m) of the Act, 2021 and does not call for any further scrutiny on the touchstone of bona fide need or comparative hardship. It is submitted that the statutory provision is clear and unambiguous and merely requires the landlord to demonstrate that the premises are needed for his occupation, which has been duly pleaded and accepted by both the authorities below. In this regard, reliance has been placed on Bhuwalka Steel Industries Ltd. v. Bombay Iron & Steel Labour Board³ to contend that where the language of the statute is plain, it must be given its literal meaning and no words can be added or read into it. Reliance has also been placed on the decision of the Court of Appeal in *Ireland v. Taylor*⁴ to emphasize adherence to the plain meaning rule of interpretation. Further reliance has been placed on Ganga Sagar Sethi and others v. Rajeev Kumar Jain⁵ and Mahesh Chandra Agarwal v. Rent Tribunal, Lucknow⁶ to submit that under the Act, 2021, the scope of inquiry is limited and once the requirement of the landlord is established, the question of examining alternative accommodation or comparative hardship does not arise.

11. At this stage, it would be apposite to notice the statutory requirement as engrafted in Section 21(2)(m) of the Act, 2021. The provision postulates only the existence of the requirement of the landlord for occupation of the premises, without incorporating any further condition or qualification. The relevant portion of the act is extracted below :

“21. Protection of tenant against eviction. 21. (1) A tenant shall not be evicted during the continuance of tenancy agreement unless otherwise agreed to in writing by the landlord and tenant, except in accordance with the provisions of sub-section (2) or in accordance with the provisions of section

(2) The Rent Authority may, on an application made to it by the landlord in such manner as may be prescribed, make an order for eviction and recovery of possession of the premises on one or more of the following grounds, namely:

(m) that the premises are required by landlord either in its existing form, or after demolition and new construction thereof for the purpose of its occupation by landlord.□

12. According to sub-section (2)(m) of Section 21 of the Act, 2021, the landlord is only required to demonstrate that the premises are required for his occupation. The provision, in its plain terms, is clearly distinguishable from the provisions contained in the erstwhile U.P. Act No. 13 of 1972, wherein the landlord was obligated to establish not only his bona fide requirement but also to satisfy the test of comparative hardship. The omission of these requirements under the present enactment is neither incidental nor insignificant, but a conscious legislative departure. Relevant portion under U.P. Act No. 13 of 1972, is given below :

“21. Proceedings for release of building under occupation of tenant-

(1) The prescribed authority may, on an application of the landlord in that behalf, order the eviction of a tenant from the building under tenancy or any specified part thereof if it is satisfied that any of the following grounds exists; namely: --

(a) that the building is bona fide required either in its existing form or after demolition and new construction by the landlord for occupation by himself or any member of his family, or any person for whose benefit it is held by him, either for residential purposes or for purposes of any profession, trade or calling, or where the landlord is the trustee of a public charitable trust, for the objects of the trust.□”

13. A perusal of the statutory framework of the Act, 2021 shows that the legislature has employed language materially different from that contained in the erstwhile enactment of the Act no. 13 of 1972. The provision does not incorporate expressions such as □bona fide requirement□ or any reference to comparative hardship, which were integral to the earlier regime. This change in phraseology assumes significance while construing the scope and ambit of the provision.

14. The manner in which Section 21(2)(m) is structured indicates that the emphasis is placed on the requirement of the premises by the landlord for occupation, either in its existing form or after demolition and reconstruction. The absence of additional qualifying expressions suggests that the provision is intended to be applied on its own terms, in accordance with the language employed by the legislature.

15. The grounds urged by the petitioner have been duly considered.

16. The submission that the authorities below failed to consider the actual requirement of the landlord and ignored the availability of alternative accommodations cannot be accepted. Under Section 21(2)(m) of the Act, 2021, the landlord is only required to demonstrate that the premises are required for his occupation, either in its existing form or after demolition. The earlier requirement of proving □bona fide need□ or undertaking a comparative assessment of hardship, as contemplated under U.P. Act No. 13 of 1972, has been consciously omitted. The Court cannot reintroduce such considerations, and consequently, the plea regarding alternative accommodation or absence of pressing need is not relevant for adjudication under the present statute.

17. The further contention that the landlord must still establish a higher threshold of genuine or actual need is equally misconceived. The exclusion of the expression □bona fide requirement□ has materially altered the legal position, and the statutory obligation stands satisfied once the landlord asserts and demonstrates that the premises are required for his occupation. In the present case, such requirement has been specifically pleaded, and there is no substantive material brought on record by the petitioner to dislodge the same. In the absence of any credible rebuttal, the requirement stands established within the meaning of Section 21(2)(m).

18. The allegation that the Rent Tribunal has dismissed the appeal in a mechanical manner also does not merit acceptance. Both the Rent Authority and the Rent Tribunal have recorded concurrent findings of fact regarding the requirement of the landlord. Non-consideration of aspects which are no longer germane under the statutory scheme would not render the orders as mechanical or indicative of non-application of mind. The findings are based on the pleadings and material on record and do not suffer from perversity.

19. The contention that omission of the words "bona fide requirement" would allow eviction without pleadings or evidence is also misplaced. The statute still requires the landlord to plead and demonstrate his requirement; however, once such assertion remains unrebutted by any cogent material from the tenant, the authorities are justified in allowing the application. The provision does not envisage any inquiry beyond the limited requirement so prescribed.

20. It is also pertinent that the eviction application was filed, inter alia, under Section 21(2)(m) of the Act, 2021, specifically asserting personal requirement of the landlord. The Rent Authority has allowed the application solely on this ground, without passing any order regarding arrears of rent, which clearly indicates that eviction has been directed only on the basis of personal requirement as contemplated under the said provision. The authorities below have, thus, acted strictly within the confines of the statutory framework.

21. Reliance has been placed by the petitioner on Phiroze Bamanji Desai (supra) to contend that the expression "requires" must necessarily be construed to mean an element of actual need as distinguished from a mere desire, and that such requirement must be established on the touchstone of bona fide necessity along with other considerations such as comparative hardship. The said decision was rendered in the context of the Section 13(1)(g) of the Bombay Rents, Hotel and Lodging House Rates Control Act, 1947, which provides that a landlord shall be entitled to recover possession of any premises if the Court is satisfied that the premises are "reasonably and bona fide required" by the landlord for occupation by himself or by any person for whose benefit the premises are held, or where the landlord is a trustee of a public charitable trust, that the premises are required for occupation for the purposes of the trust.

22. The principle relied upon by petitioner, arises from a statutory framework materially different from the one governing the present case. Under Section 21(2)(m) of the Act, 2021, the legislature has consciously omitted the requirement of proving "bona fide requirement" and has also done away with any inquiry into comparative hardship. The scope of examination, therefore, stands confined to whether the premises are required by the landlord for his occupation. In view of this clear legislative departure, the interpretation of the expression "requires" as laid down in the aforesaid judgment, which is rooted in a different statutory context, cannot be applied to proceedings under the Act, 2021.

23. Reliance placed by the respondent on Bhuwalka Steel Industries Ltd. (supra) is to emphasize the principle of statutory interpretation that where the language of a provision is clear and unambiguous, it must be given its plain meaning and no external aids or interpretative additions can be resorted to; further, that the Court cannot supply a casus omissus where the legislature has consciously omitted certain expressions. The relevant extract from the judgment is as follows:

“44. It must, at this juncture, be noted that in spite of Section 2(11), which included the words □ but for the provisions of this Act is not adequately protected by legislation for welfare and benefits of the labour force in the State□, these precise words were removed by the legislature and the definition was made limited as it has been finally legislated upon. It is to be noted that when the Bill came to be passed and received the assent of the Vice-President on 5-6-1969 and was first published in the Maharashtra Government Gazette Extraordinary, Part IV on 13-6-1969, the aforementioned words were omitted. Therefore, this would be a clear pointer to the legislative intent that the legislature being conscious of the fact and being armed with all the Committee reports and also being armed with the factual data, deliberately avoided those words. What the appellants are asking was to read in that definition, these precise words, which were consciously and deliberately omitted from the definition. That would amount to supplying the casus omissus and we do not think that it is possible, particularly, in this case. The law of supplying the casus omissus by the courts is extremely clear and settled that though this Court may supply the casus omissus, it would be in the rarest of the rare cases and thus supplying of this casus omissus would be extremely necessary due to the inadvertent omission on the part of the legislature. But, that is certainly not the case here.”

24. In Bhuwalka Steel Industries Ltd. (supra), the Supreme Court reiterated the settled principle of statutory interpretation that where the legislature has consciously omitted certain words from the final enactment, such omission is indicative of deliberate legislative intent, and it is not open to the Court to read those words back into the provision, as doing so would amount to supplying a casus omissus. It was also observed that such judicial supplementation is permissible only in the rarest of cases where the omission is clearly inadvertent, and not where it is deliberate. The judgment thus underscores that a provision must be interpreted as it stands, and neither expanded nor curtailed by importing considerations which the legislature has consciously chosen to exclude.

25. The principle relating to casus omissus is well settled. In State of Jharkhand v. Govind Singh⁷, the Supreme Court held that a casus omissus cannot be supplied by the Court except in a case of clear necessity and when such necessity is discernible from the four corners of the statute itself. It was further observed that a casus omissus ought not to be readily inferred, nor can the Court, under the guise of interpretation, create or fill in omissions in the statutory scheme, as that would amount to legislating. The Court emphasized that statutory provisions must be construed as a whole so as to give effect to the legislative intent, and unless the language leads to manifest absurdity or defeats the object of the enactment, it is not open to the Court to read into the statute words which are not there. Relevant portion of the judgment is as follows:

21. Two principles of construction □ one relating to casus omissus and the other in regard to reading the statute as a whole □ appear to be well settled. Under the first principle a casus omissus cannot be supplied by the court except in the case of clear necessity and when reason for it is found in the four corners of the statute itself but at the same time a casus omissus should not be readily inferred and for that purpose all the parts of a statute or section must be construed together and every clause of a section should be construed with reference to the context and other clauses thereof so that the construction to be put on a particular provision makes a consistent enactment of the whole statute. This would be more so if literal construction of a particular clause leads to manifestly absurd or anomalous results which could not have been intended by the legislature. □ An intention to produce an unreasonable result□, said Danckwerts, L.J. in Artemiou v. Procopiou [(1966) 1 QB 878 : (1965) 3 All ER 539 : (1965) 3 WLR 1011 (CA)] (All ER p. 544 I), □ is not to be imputed to a statute if there is some other construction available□. Where to apply words literally would □ defeat the obvious intention of the legislation and produce a wholly unreasonable result□, we must □ do some violence to the words□ and so achieve that obvious intention and produce a rational construction. [Per Lord Reid in Luke v. IRC [1963 AC 557 : (1963) 1 All ER 655 : (1963) 2 WLR 559 (HL)] where at AC p. 577 (All ER p. 664 I) he also observed: □ This is not a new problem, though our standard of drafting is such that it rarely emerges.□]

22. It is then true that, □ when the words of a law extend not to an inconvenience rarely happening, but due to those which often happen, it is good reason not to strain the words further than they reach, by saying it is casus omissus, and that the law intended quae frequentius accidunt□. □ But□, on the other hand, □ it is no reason, when the words of a law do enough extend to an inconvenience seldom happening, that they should not extend to it as well as if it happened more frequently, because it happens but seldom□. (See Fenton v. Hampton [(1858) 11 Moo PC 347 : 6 WR 341] .) A casus omissus ought not to be created by interpretation, save in some case of strong necessity. Where, however, a casus omissus does really occur, either through the inadvertence of the legislature, or on the principle quod semel aut bis existit praetereunt legislatores, the rule is that the particular case, thus left unprovided for, must be disposed of according to the law as it existed before such statute □ casus omissus et oblivioni datus dispositioni communis juris relinquitur; □ a casus omissus□, observed Buller, J. in Jones v. Smart [1 TR 44 : 99 ER 963] (TR at p. 52 : ER at p. 967), □ can in no case be supplied by a court of law, for that would be to make laws□.

26. In view of the aforesaid principles laid down by the Supreme Court, it is clear that statutory provisions must be interpreted on the basis of their plain language, and the Court cannot read into them words or conditions which the legislature has consciously omitted. Applying the same to Section 21(2)(m) of the Act, 2021, once the legislature has deliberately excluded the expression □ bona fide requirement□ and any element of comparative hardship, it is not open to the Court to import such requirements under the guise of interpretation. Any attempt to reintroduce notions of □ genuine,□ □ pressing,□ or □ bona fide□ while construing the expression □ required□ under Section 21(2) (m) would amount to supplying a casus omissus, which is impermissible. The provision must, therefore, be given effect as it stands, confining the inquiry strictly to whether the premises are required by the landlord for his occupation.

27. A useful exposition of the meaning of the expression □ requires□ is found in the decision of the Court of Appeal in Ireland v. Taylor⁸ wherein it was observed that the term □ requires□ is satisfied if the landlord establishes a genuine intention to occupy the premises, and does not necessarily import an element of reasonableness or need. It was further held that, so long as the intention of the landlord is real and not a mere pretence, it is not for the Court to examine the reasonableness of such intention or to substitute its own assessment in place thereof. The Court clarified that the word □ requires□ cannot be equated with □ reasonably requires□ or □ needs,□ and that the inquiry is confined to the genuineness of the landlord's intention to occupy. It is pertinent to refer to the observations of Lord Tucker :

“The evidence of Mr. Taylor, one of the landlords, was that he required possession of the house so that he might use the large lounge as a studio for portrait painting, for which purpose it was suitable by reason of its size and lighting□...If Mr. Taylor, in fact, desires to get possession of this house and genuinely intends to use it for this purpose I can see no ground for saying that he does not "require" it within the meaning of sub-para. (i) of para. (8) of sub-s. (3) of s. 5, which contains the words "the premises are required for occupation by himself." If he required it for this purpose, then his wife who was living with him clearly also required it apart altogether from the other reasons which she gave in evidence some of which clearly could not be substantiated. The referee had interpreted the word "required" as if it meant "needed," somewhat on the lines of the words "reasonably required". □□.in my opinion, in this part of the section the landlord must be the sole arbiter of his own requirements, provided he proves that he, in fact, desires possession and genuinely intends to occupy.”

In the same decision, Somervell, L. J has observed that

“The referee in his report construed "requires" as meaning "needs," and came to the conclusion that the landlords did not need this large house. □...The learned judge did not regard "requires" as meaning "reasonably requires or needs," but as a somewhat stronger word than "intends". □□.In Clift v. Taylor, it is said that any real ambiguity of language ought to be resolved in favour of maintaining common law rights. I doubt if there is any real ambiguity. "Requires" may, of course, have different senses in different contexts. In its present context it is, I think, satisfied if a landlord establishes, as these landlords did, that he wants and intends to occupy the premises. Apart from the Act that is his common law right, If the legislature had intended to place some burden on him of establishing that he was reasonable or not unreasonable in requiring what was his own, plain words would have been used. Of course, if a court came to the conclusion that the evidence of intention was false and that the landlord did not genuinely intend to occupy the premises, the claim would fail. There is, however, no trace of any finding to this effect. On this view it is unnecessary to consider the question of "reasonableness."

28. The aforesaid observations unequivocally demonstrate that the expression □requires□ does not import an obligation upon the landlord to establish reasonableness or necessity in an objective sense, but is satisfied once a genuine and bona fide intention to occupy the premises is established. The Court expressly disapproved of substituting judicial assessment in place of the landlord's own requirement and held that, so long as the intention is real and not a mere pretence, the landlord is the sole arbiter of his requirement. The enquiry, therefore, stands confined to the genuineness of the intention, and not its reasonableness.

29. Reliance placed by the petitioner on Shiv Sarup Gupta (supra) is misplaced and distinguishable. The said judgment was rendered in the context of Section 14(1)(e) of the Delhi Rent Control Act, 1958, which specifically governs eviction on the ground of bona fide residential requirement, coupled with the statutory condition that the landlord must not have any other reasonably suitable residential accommodation. The legislative framework under the Delhi Act is thus materially different.

30. In a recent decision of this Court, in Mahesh Chandra Agarwal (supra), it has been observed that under Section 21(2)(m) of the Act, 2021, the landlord is only required to demonstrate that the premises are needed for his own occupation, and the earlier requirement of establishing □bona fide need□ or undertaking any comparative assessment of hardship, as was contemplated under the repealed Act of 1972, no longer survives. It was further held that once the requirement of the landlord for personal occupation is established and remains uncontroverted, there is no scope for interference with the orders of eviction passed by the authorities below.

31. A similar position has been noted by this Court in Ganga Sagar Sethi (supra), wherein it was observed that with the enforcement of the U.P. Regulation of Urban Premises Tenancy Act, 2021, the earlier regime under U.P. Act No. 13 of 1972 stood materially altered. The Court took note of the legislative shift whereby the requirement of establishing □bona fide need□ and undertaking a comparative assessment of hardship has been consciously done away with, and the statutory focus now stands confined to the □requirement□ of the landlord. It was held that in view of the clear legislative intent, the Rent Authority is required to adjudicate the claim strictly within the framework of Section 21(2)(m) of the Act, 2021, without importing considerations of bona fide need or comparative hardship as were applicable under the repealed enactment.

32. The Act of 2021 marks a paradigm shift from the earlier regime under the U.P. Act No. 13 of 1972, particularly in the matter of eviction on the ground of landlord's requirement. While the earlier enactment mandated a rigorous inquiry into □bona fide requirement□ coupled with a comparative assessment of hardship between the landlord and the tenant, the present Act consciously departs from that framework.

33. The scheme of Section 21(2)(m) of the Tenancy Act, 2021, when read in its plain and unambiguous terms, makes it evident that the legislature has departed from the earlier statutory framework. Unlike the provisions contained in the erstwhile U.P. Act No. 13 of 1972, the requirement of establishing bona fide need coupled with comparative hardship is conspicuously absent. The legislative intent, therefore, appears to be to simplify the ground of eviction by requiring the landlord to merely demonstrate that the premises are required for his occupation.

34. The omission of the expression □bona fide requirement□ assumes significance and materially alters the nature of adjudication under the present enactment. Consequently, the scope of inquiry stands confined to examining whether the requirement of the landlord for occupation of the premises is made out, either in its existing form or after reconstruction.

35. This evident shift is reflected in the legislative omission of expressions such as □bona fide requirement□ and in the complete absence of any provision mandating a comparative hardship analysis. Such omissions cannot be treated as accidental; rather, they signify a conscious legislative intent to narrow the scope of adjudication.

36. It is a settled principle of statutory interpretation that the Court cannot supply a casus omissus. An omission in the statute cannot be filled by judicial interpretation unless such necessity is evident from the scheme of the Act itself. The Court must construe the provision as it stands and give effect to the legislative intent as expressed, without adding or subtracting words. Where the legislature has consciously omitted a requirement, it is not open to the Court to reintroduce it under the guise of interpretation. Any such exercise would amount to legislating, which lies beyond the judicial function. Accordingly, the statutory provision must be applied in its plain terms, and no additional conditions can be read into it by implication.

37. In view of the altered statutory position, the Court is not required to undertake a comparative assessment of hardship between the parties, nor is it expected to scrutinize the degree or genuineness of the need in the manner contemplated under the repealed enactment. The jurisdiction is limited to ascertaining the existence of the requirement as pleaded by the landlord.

38. In the absence of the expression "bona fide requirement," the landlord is only required to demonstrate that the premises are needed for his occupation, either in its existing form or after demolition. Once such requirement is duly asserted, the onus shifts upon the tenant to specifically deny the same and substantiate such denial with cogent material. A mere bald or vague plea would not suffice to rebut the statutory ground.

39. Consequently, the nature of adjudication under the Act, 2021 stands fundamentally altered. The focus is no longer on testing the degree, urgency, or genuineness of the landlord's need in comparison with the tenant's hardship, but is limited to examining whether the requirement, as pleaded, exists. Once such requirement is established and remains un rebutted by cogent material, the statutory ground for eviction stands satisfied.

40. In the present case, though a denial of the landlord's requirement has been set up in the pleadings, the same remains unsubstantiated. No substantive material has been brought on record, either before the authorities below or before this Court, to dislodge the claim that the premises are required for personal occupation. The pleadings, in this regard, lack material particulars and are not supported by any credible evidence in rebuttal. Consequently, the defence raised by the tenant does not create any real or substantial doubt as to the genuineness of the landlord's requirement.

41. In view of the foregoing discussion, this Court finds that the orders passed by the Rent Authority and the Rent Tribunal are in consonance with the statutory scheme of Section 21(2)(m) of the Act, 2021 and do not suffer from any perversity, illegality, or jurisdictional error. The requirement of the landlord having been duly established within the limited scope of the provision, and there being no material on record to dislodge the same, no ground for interference is made out in exercise of supervisory jurisdiction under Article 227 of the Constitution of India.

42. Learned counsel, at this stage, has sought an indulgence, praying for an additional time of eight months to vacate the premises in question.

43. Counsel appearing for the respondent submits that he has no objection to the prayer so made by the petitioner.

44. Having regard to the aforesaid and in view of the request so made by counsel for the petitioner, while dismissing the petition, this Court grants eight months' time to the petitioner to vacate and handover peaceful possession of the premises in question, to respondent-landlord, on or before 2nd December, 2026, subject to the following conditions:

(i) The tenant-petitioner shall file an undertaking before the Rent Authority, Kanpur Nagar, to the effect that he shall handover peaceful possession of the premises in question, to the respondent-landlord on or before 2nd December, 2026;

(ii) The said undertaking shall be filed within a period of two weeks from today; and

(iii) The tenant-petitioner shall also regularly deposit a monthly amount of Rs.2000/- towards 'use and occupation charges' by the 7th day of each month, during the period of extended occupation.

45. It is made clear that in the event of default in compliance of any of the aforesaid conditions, the protection granted by this Court, shall stand vacated automatically and it shall be open to the respondent-landlord to seek execution of the order passed in the Rent Case in accordance with law.

46. Subject to the aforesaid directions, the petition stands dismissed.

Habeas Corpus Writ Petition No. 137 of 2026

Manoj Kumar

...Petitioner

Versus

State of U.P. & Ors.

...Respondents

Issue for Consideration

Why exemplary cost should not be awarded to the petitioner for his illegal incarceration in jail since 27.01.2026 till date comprising of a period of almost three months, as the life and personal liberty of the petitioner has been curtailed by the respondent authorities/State.

Head Notes

The Constitution of India, 1950-Article 226 (Habeas Corpus)-The grounds of arrest have been perused and considered by the Court in the order dated 24.04.2026 and this court has recorded a categorical finding in the said order, after considering the judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Dr. Rajinder Rajan versus Union of India that the arrest of the petitioner on 27.01.2026 has been made without complying with the procedure as directed by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Mihir Rajesh Shah meaning thereby that the arrest of the petitioner on 27.01.2026 is illegal. It is further recorded that the remand order granted by the learned Magistrate dated 28.01.2026, being based on the illegal arrest of the petitioner, is also liable to be set aside keeping in view the judgment of this Court in the case of Shivam Chaurasiya vs. State of U.P. and others. This Court was also of the view that the writ petition deserves to be allowed with exemplary cost and consequently directed the Additional Chief Secretary (Home) to submit his reply as to why exemplary cost should not be awarded to the petitioner for his illegal incarceration in jail since 27.01.2026 till date comprising of a period of almost three months.

Additional Chief Secretary (Home) has failed to file a reply with regard to submission of a reply as to why exemplary costs should not be imposed rather -It thus appears that Additional Chief Secretary (Home) has not even cared to go through the order of this Court dated 24.4.2026 which, as we have already indicated above, required him to file a reply as to why exemplary cost should not be imposed for the illegal incarceration of the petitioner.

The personal affidavit of the Additional Chief Secretary (Home) does not even contain a whisper regarding the explanation as to why exemplary cost should not be imposed. If this is the non-application of mind at the end of the highest authority of the Home Department we can well understand as to how the other authorities of the State are working!!!

Held- Considering the illegal arrest of the petitioner since 27.1.2026 which continues even as of date i.e. 29.4.2026 and his illegal incarceration in jail being of more than three months, the Court is of the view that exemplary costs quantified at Rupees Ten Lakhs are also imposed on the State authorities.

5. In pursuance thereof, the petitioner has been arrested on 27.01.2026. A copy of the arrest memo is annexed as annexure no.3 to the petition. State of U.P. before the learned District & Sessions Judge, Unnao, which has been rejected vide order dated 07.01.2026, a copy of which is annexed as annexure no.6 to the petition.

7. The primary and legal ground raised by the learned counsel for the petitioner in the instant petition of habeas corpus challenging his illegal arrest is based on the judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Mihir Rajesh Shah Vs. State of Maharashtra; 2026 (1) SCC 500, wherein the Hon'ble Supreme Court has categorically held, after considering Article 22(1) of the Constitution of India, that no person who is arrested shall be detained in custody without being informed of the grounds of such arrest. This casts a mandatory and unexceptional duty on the State to provide the arrested person with the grounds of such arrest. Supply of grounds of arrest have also been held to be grounded in fundamental right of life and personal liberty under Article 21 of the Constitution of India and the requirement of informing the arrested person of the grounds of arrest is not a mere formality but a mandatory, binding constitutional safeguard which has been included in Part III of the Constitution under the head of "Fundamental Rights".

8. For the sake of convenience, relevant observations of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Mihir Rajesh Shah (Supra) are reproduced below:-

"28. It was said that any breach of the constitutional safeguards provided under Article 22 would vitiate the lawfulness of arrest and subsequent remand and entitle the arrested person to be set at liberty. The relevant portion in Prabir Purkayastha [Prabir Purkayastha v. State (NCT of Delhi), (2024) 8 SCC 254 : (2024) 3 SCC (Cri) 573] is reproduced herein: (SCC pp. 276 & 278, paras 19-21 & 28-29)

"19. Resultantly, there is no doubt in the mind of the court that any person arrested for allegation of commission of offences under the provisions of UAPA or for that matter any other offence(s) has a fundamental and a statutory right to be informed about the grounds of arrest in writing and a copy of such written grounds of arrest have to be furnished to the arrested person as a matter of course and without exception at the earliest. The purpose of informing to the arrested person the grounds of arrest is salutary and sacrosanct inasmuch as this information would be the only effective means for the arrested person to consult his advocate; oppose the police custody remand and to seek bail. Any other interpretation would tantamount to diluting the sanctity of the fundamental right guaranteed under Article 22(1) of the Constitution of India.

20. The right to life and personal liberty is the most sacrosanct fundamental right guaranteed under Articles 20, 21 and 22 of the Constitution of India. Any attempt to encroach upon this fundamental right has been frowned upon by this Court in a catena of decisions. In this regard, we may refer to the following observations made by this Court in Roy V.D. v. State of Kerala [Roy V.D. v. State of Kerala, (2000) 8 SCC 590 : 2001 SCC (Cri) 42] : (SCC p. 593, para 7)

'7. The life and liberty of an individual is so sacrosanct that it cannot be allowed to be interfered with except under the authority of law. It is a principle which has been recognised and applied in all civilised countries. In our Constitution, Article 21 guarantees protection of life and personal liberty not only to citizens of India but also to aliens.'

Thus, any attempt to violate such fundamental right, guaranteed by Articles 20, 21 and 22 of the Constitution of India, would have to be dealt with strictly.

21. The right to be informed about the grounds of arrest flows from Article 22(1) of the Constitution of India and any infringement of this fundamental right would vitiate the process of arrest and remand. Mere fact that a charge-sheet has been filed in the matter, would not validate the illegality and the unconstitutionality committed at the time of arresting the accused and the grant of initial police custody remand to the accused.

28. The language used in Article 22(1) and Article 22(5) of the Constitution of India regarding the communication of the grounds is exactly the identical. Neither of the constitutional provisions require that the "grounds" of "arrest" or "detention", as the case may be, must be communicated in writing. Thus, interpretation to this important facet of the fundamental right as made by the Constitution Bench while examining the scope of Article 22(5) of the Constitution of India would ipso facto apply to Article 22(1) of the Constitution of India insofar as the requirement to communicate the grounds of arrest is concerned.

29. Hence, we have no hesitation in reiterating that the requirement to communicate the grounds of arrest or the grounds of detention in writing to a person arrested in connection with an offence or a person placed under preventive detention as provided under Articles 22(1) and 22(5) of the Constitution of India is sacrosanct and cannot be breached under any situation. Non-compliance of this constitutional requirement and statutory mandate would lead to the custody or the detention being rendered illegal, as the case may be."

31. The relevant portion of Vihaan Kumar [Vihaan Kumar v. State of Haryana, (2025) 5 SCC 799 : (2025) 2 SCC (Cri) 762] is reproduced herein: (SCC pp. 814-15, 817 & 822-23, paras 15, 21 & 40-42)

"15. The view taken in Pankaj Bansal [Pankaj Bansal v. Union of India, (2024) 7 SCC 576 : (2024) 3 SCC (Cri) 450] was reiterated by this Court in Prabir Purkayastha [Prabir Purkayastha v. State (NCT of Delhi), (2024) 8 SCC 254 : (2024) 3 SCC (Cri) 573] . In paras 28 and 29, this Court held thus: (Prabir Purkayastha case [Prabir Purkayastha v. State (NCT of Delhi), (2024) 8 SCC 254 : (2024) 3 SCC (Cri) 573] , SCC p. 278)

'28. The language used in Article 22(1) and Article 22(5) of the Constitution of India regarding the communication of the grounds is exactly the identical. Neither of the constitutional provisions require that the "grounds" of "arrest" or "detention", as the case may be, must be communicated in writing. Thus, interpretation to this important facet of the fundamental right as made by the Constitution Bench while examining the scope of Article 22(5) of the Constitution of India would ipso facto apply to Article 22(1) of the Constitution of India insofar as the requirement to communicate the grounds of arrest is concerned.

29. Hence, we have no hesitation in reiterating that the requirement to communicate the grounds of arrest or the grounds of detention in writing to a person arrested in connection with an offence or a person placed under preventive detention as provided under Articles 22(1) and 22(5) of the Constitution of India is sacrosanct and cannot be breached under any situation. Non-compliance of this constitutional requirement and statutory mandate would lead to the custody or the detention being rendered illegal, as the case may be.'

21. An attempt was made by the learned Senior Counsel appearing for the first respondent to argue that after his arrest, the appellant was repeatedly remanded to custody, and now a charge-sheet has been filed. His submission is that now, the custody of the appellant is pursuant to the order taking cognizance passed on the charge-sheet. Accepting such arguments, with great respect to the learned Senior Counsel, will amount to completely nullifying Articles 21 and 22(1) of the Constitution. Once it is held that arrest is unconstitutional due to violation of Article 22(1), the arrest itself is vitiated. Therefore, continued custody of such a person based on orders of remand is also vitiated. Filing a charge-sheet and order of cognizance will not validate an arrest which is per se unconstitutional, being violative of Articles 21 and 22(1) of the Constitution of India. We cannot tinker with the most important safeguards provided under Article 22.

N. Kotiswar Singh, J. (supplementing)?I had the benefit of going through the draft opinion of my esteemed Brother Hon'ble Mr Justice Abhay S. Oka and I concur with the analysis and conclusions arrived at. However, I wish to add a few lines in supplement to the aforesaid opinion.

41. The issue on the requirement of communication of grounds of arrest to the person arrested, as mandated under Article 22(1) of the Constitution of India, which has also been incorporated in the Prevention of Money Laundering Act, 2002 under Section 19 thereof has been succinctly reiterated in this judgment. The constitutional mandate of informing the grounds of arrest to the person arrested in writing has been explained in Pankaj Bansal [Pankaj Bansal v. Union of India, (2024) 7 SCC 576 : (2024) 3 SCC (Cri) 450] so as to be meaningful to serve the intended purpose which has been reiterated in Prabir Purkayastha [Prabir Purkayastha v. State (NCT of Delhi), (2024) 8 SCC 254 : (2024) 3 SCC (Cri) 573] . The said constitutional mandate has been incorporated in the statute under Section 50CrPC (Section 47 of the BNSS). It may also be noted that the aforesaid provision of requirement for communicating the grounds of arrest, to be purposeful, is also required to be communicated to the friends, relatives or such other persons of the accused as may be disclosed or nominated by the arrested person for the purpose of giving such information as provided under Section 50-A CrPC. As may be noted, this is in the addition of the requirement as provided under Section 50(1)CrPC.

42. The purpose of inserting Section 50-A CrPC, making it obligatory on the person making arrest to inform about the arrest to the friends, relatives or persons nominated by the arrested person, is to ensure that they would be able to take immediate and prompt actions to secure the release of the arrested person as permissible under the law. The arrested person, because of his detention, may not have immediate and easy access to the legal process for securing his release, which would otherwise be available to the friends, relatives and such nominated persons by way of engaging lawyers, briefing them to secure release of the detained person on bail at the earliest. Therefore, the purpose of communicating the grounds of arrest to the detenue, and in addition to his relatives as mentioned above is not merely a formality but to enable the detained person to know the reasons for his arrest but also to provide the necessary opportunity to him through his relatives, friends or nominated persons to secure his release at the earliest possible opportunity for actualising the fundamental right to liberty and life as guaranteed under Article 21 of the Constitution. Hence, the requirement of communicating the grounds of arrest in writing is not only to the arrested person, but also to the friends, relatives or such other person as may be disclosed or nominated by the arrested person, so as to make the mandate of Article 22(1) of the Constitution meaningful and effective failing which, such arrest may be rendered illegal."

35. In Joginder Kumar v. State of U.P. [Joginder Kumar v. State of U.P., (1994) 4 SCC 260 : 1994 SCC (Cri) 1172] , this Court while framing guidelines regarding the rights of an arrested person has observed that the existence of a power to arrest and the justification to use such power are two different aspects. The person making arrest must be able to justify the arrest with reasons apart from his power to do so. Arrest of a person can cause irreversible damage to his reputation in the society as well as his self-esteem, therefore, arrest cannot be made in a routine manner. The police officer making an arrest must be cautious while arresting a person and ought to satisfy himself after a reasonable investigation to justify the person's complicity and also the effect as well as the need of arrest. This Court has further observed that except in heinous offences, arrest must be avoided.

37. The mandate contained in Article 22(1) of the Constitution of India is unambiguous and clear in nature, it provides that the arrested person must be informed of the grounds of arrest as soon as they can be. It further provides that the arrested person has the right to defend himself by consulting a legal practitioner of his choice. This constitutional mandate has been effectuated by the legislature in Section 50CrPC (now Section 47 of BNSS 2023) which provides that an arrested person shall be forthwith communicated with the grounds of his arrest.

41. The purpose of securing legal assistance before remand is not merely symbolic, but it is to ensure that the accused is afforded an effective opportunity to oppose the prayer for police custody and to place before the Magistrate any circumstances that may warrant refusal or limitation of such custody. If the accused is not represented through a counsel, he/she should be made aware that he/she is entitled for legal aid. As far as possible, it shall be ensured that every accused person is represented by an advocate, if he is not able to avail such assistance, he should be given free legal aid. A three-Judge Bench of this Court in Ashok v. State of U.P. [Ashok v. State of U.P., (2025) 2 SCC 381 : (2025) 1 SCC (Cri) 744] held that an accused who is not represented by an advocate is entitled for free legal aid at all material stages starting from remand.

43. Section 167CrPC (now Section 187 of BNSS 2023) while dealing with remand provides for a positive mandate on the police officer to forward the accused to the Magistrate before expiry of such period as fixed under Section 57CrPC (now Section 58 of BNSS 2023) when investigation cannot be completed in twenty-four hours. It further mandates that the Magistrate to not authorize the detention of accused unless he is physically produced before him. The purpose of this provision mandating the production of accused before Magistrate for exercise of the power of remanding him to custody under this section is with the dual purpose. First, ensuring physical presence of the accused and second to afford him an opportunity to be heard. The intent of this provision is not merely to be heard at the stage of remand but to be represented by the counsel of his choice. Thereafter, the duty is cast upon the Magistrate to apply his judicial mind to the material produced before him, hear the accused or the counsel representing him to determine whether the accused should be remanded to police custody or should be detained at all within the parameters prescribed in Section 167CrPC (Section 187 of BNSS 2023). The Magistrate is not acting as a post office simply putting a stamp of approval to the remand papers as presented before him. In Manubhai Ratilal Patel v. State of Gujarat [Manubhai Ratilal Patel v. State of Gujarat, (2013) 1 SCC 314 : (2013) 1 SCC (Cri) 475] this Court held that it is obligatory on the part of the Magistrate to satisfy himself whether the materials placed before him justify such a remand.

45. A plain reading of Article 22(1) of the Constitution of India shows that the intent of the Constitution makers while incorporating the provisions was not to create any exceptional circumstances, instead it reads as "No person who is arrested shall be detained in custody without being informed, as soon as may be, of the grounds for such arrest?.". it casts a mandatory unexceptional duty on the State to provide the arrested person with the grounds of such arrest with the objective to enable that person to be able to defend himself by consulting a legal practitioner of his choice. This mandate of Article 22(1) is notwithstanding any exception. This Court has made it explicit that the constitutional obligation under Article 22 is not statute-specific and it is grounded in fundamental right of life and personal liberty under Article 21 of the Constitution of India, therefore making it applicable to all offences including those under the Penal Code, 1860 (now BNS 2023).

46. The requirement of informing the arrested person the grounds of arrest, in the light of and under Article 22(1) of the Constitution of India, is not a mere formality but a mandatory binding constitutional safeguard which has been included in Part III of the Constitution under the head of Fundamental Rights. Thus, if a person is not informed of the grounds of his arrest as soon as maybe, it would amount to the violation of his fundamental rights thereby curtailing his right to life and personal liberty under Article 21 of the Constitution of India, rendering the arrest illegal.

48. As mentioned above, it has been held while dealing with the mode of communicating the grounds of arrest so as to serve the intended purpose of the constitutional mandate that the language used in Articles 22(1) and 22(5) regarding communication of the grounds is identical and therefore the interpretation of Article 22(5) shall ipso facto apply to Article 22(1). The grounds of arrest must be furnished in writing, in order to attend the true intended purpose of Article 22(1). Reference at this stage may be made to the Constitution Bench judgment of this Court in Harikisan [Harikisan v. State of Maharashtra, 1962 SCC OnLine SC 117] wherein while dealing with Article 22(5) of the Constitution of India in the context of the right of a detainee to be made aware of the grounds of arrest, it has been held that the same should be furnished in a language which he can understand and in a script which he can read, if he is a literate person.

50. Further, the above judgment has been reiterated and followed by this Court in Lallubhai Jogibhai Patel v. Union of India [Lallubhai Jogibhai Patel v. Union of India, (1981) 2 SCC 427 : 1981 SCC (Cri) 463 : (1982) 52 Comp Cas 543] wherein it has been reaffirmed that grounds of detention must be communicated to the detenu in writing in a language which he understands.

51. On perusal of the above two judgments, it turns out that mere communication of the grounds in a language not understood by the person arrested does not fulfil the constitutional mandate under Article 22 of the Constitution of India. The failure to supply such grounds in a language understood by the arrestee renders the constitutional safeguards illusory and infringes the personal liberty of the person as guaranteed under Articles 21 and 22 of the Constitution of India. The objective of the constitutional mandate is to place the person in a position to comprehend the basis of the allegations levelled against him and it can only be realised when the grounds are furnished in a language understood by the person, thereby enabling him to exercise his rights effectively.

52. From the catena of decisions discussed above, the legal position which emerges is that the constitutional mandate provided in Article 22(1) of the Constitution of India is not a mere procedural formality but a constitutional safeguard in the form of fundamental rights. The intent and purpose of the constitutional mandate is to prepare the arrested person to defend himself. If the provisions of Article 22(1) are read in a restrictive manner, its intended purpose of securing personal liberty would not be achieved rather curtailed and put to disuse.

55. This Court is of the opinion that to achieve the intended objective of the constitutional mandate of Article 22(1) of the Constitution of India, the grounds of arrest must be informed to the arrested person in each and every case without exception and the mode of the communication of such grounds must be in writing in the language he understands.

57. The second issue which requires consideration is when grounds of arrest are not furnished either prior to arrest or immediately after the arrest, would it vitiate the arrest for non-compliance of the provisions of Section 50CrPC (now Section 47 of BNSS 2023) irrespective of certain exigencies where furnishing such grounds would not be possible forthwith.

58. It is by now settled that if the grounds of arrest are not furnished to the arrestee in writing, this non-compliance will result in breach of the constitutional and statutory safeguards hence rendering the arrest and remand illegal and the person will be entitled to be set at liberty. The statute is silent with regard to the mode, nature or the time and stage at which the grounds of arrest has to be communicated. Article 22 says "as soon as may be" which would obviously not mean prior to arrest but can be on arrest or thereafter. The indication is as early as it can be conveyed. There may be situations wherein it may not be practically possible to supply such grounds of arrest to the arrested person at the time of his arrest or immediately.

62. We thus hold, that, in cases where the police are already in possession of documentary material furnishing a cogent basis for the arrest, the written grounds of arrest must be furnished to the arrestee on his arrest. However, in exceptional circumstances such as offences against body or property committed in flagrante delicto, where informing the grounds of arrest in writing on arrest is rendered impractical, it shall be sufficient for the police officer or other person making the arrest to orally convey the same to the person at the time of arrest. Later, a written copy of grounds of arrest must be supplied to the arrested person within a reasonable time and in no event later than two hours prior to production of the arrestee before the Magistrate for remand proceedings. The remand papers shall contain the grounds of arrest and in case there is delay in supply thereof, a note indicating a cause for it be included for the information of the Magistrate.

64. In view of the above, we hold with regard to the second issue that non-supply of grounds of arrest in writing to the arrestee prior to or immediately after arrest would not vitiate such arrest on the grounds of non-compliance with the provisions of Section 50CrPC (now Section 47 of BNSS 2023) provided the said grounds are supplied in writing within a reasonable time and in any case two hours prior to the production of the arrestee before the Magistrate for remand proceedings.

68. We are cognizant that there existed no consistent or binding requirement mandating written communication of the grounds of arrest for all the offences. Holding as above, in our view, would ensure implementation of the constitutional rights provided to an arrestee as engrafted under Article 22 of the Constitution of India in an effective manner. Such clarity on obligation would avoid uncertainty in the administration of criminal justice. The ends of fairness and legal discipline therefore demand that this procedure as affirmed above shall govern arrests henceforth."

9. Recently the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the judgment of Dr Rajinder Rajan vs Union of India : 2026 Live Law (SC) 327 has also held that the grounds of arrest must be furnished in writing to the arrested person, in order to attend the true intended purpose of Article 22(1) of the Constitution of India. As such it is apparent that supply of grounds of arrest to the person being arrested is a constitutional mandate. The Hon'ble Supreme Court has also held that if the grounds of arrest are not furnished to the arrestee in writing, the non-compliance will result in breach of the constitutional and statutory safeguards hence rendering the arrest and remand illegal and the person will be entitled to be set at liberty. The aforesaid directions in the case of Mihir Rajesh Shah (Supra) have been directed to govern all arrests with effect from the date of judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court, which is 06.11.2025.

10. Thus considering the aforesaid it is apparent that since the pronouncement of the judgment on 06.11.2025, the respondents authorities are required to adhere to the directions which have been issued by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Mihir Rajesh Shah (Supra) meaning thereby that if the grounds of arrest are not furnished to the arrestee in writing, this non-compliance will result in breach of the constitutional and statutory safeguards hence rendering the arrest and remand illegal.

11. Perusal of the grounds of arrest, a copy of which has been annexed as annexure-3 to the petition, would indicate that the said grounds of arrest are only indicating about the case crime number which has been lodged against the petitioner without indicating the grounds on which the petitioner is sought to be arrested.

12. Hon'ble Supreme Court recently in the case of Dr Rajinder Rajan (supra) after considering Mihir Rajesh Shah (Supra) has held as under:-

20. It is no longer res integra that supplying the grounds of arrest to the accused in writing before the arrest or, in a given case, under exceptional circumstances, immediately thereafter, is the mandate of the constitutional guarantees provided under Article 22(1) read with Article 21 of the Constitution of India. The ratio of the judgment in Mihir Rajesh Shah (supra) conclusively holds that any deviation from the above principle would lead to the arrest of the accused being declared illegal entitling such accused to be released forthwith.

13. Interestingly, indication of the case crime number in the memo of arrest without indicating the grounds of arrest has been considered by the Apex Court in the case of Dr. Rajinder Rajan (supra) wherein the ground taken by the authorities was that as the case crime number has been mentioned in the memo of arrest that would suffice. However, the Apex Court was of the view that supplying the ground of arrest to the accused in writing before the arrest is a mandate of Constitutional guarantees provided under Article 22 (1) read with Article 21 of the Constitution of India and that any deviation from the principles laid down by the Apex Court in the case of Mihir Rajesh Shah (supra) would lead to the arrest of accused being declared illegal entitling such accused to be released forthwith.

14. Thus, it is apparent that the petitioner has been arrested on 27.01.2026 without complying with the procedure as directed by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Mihir Rajesh Shah (Supra), meaning thereby that the arrest of petitioner with effect from 27.01.2026 is illegal. The remand order which has been granted by the learned Magistrate dated 28.01.2026, is based on the illegal arrest of the petitioner and is thus also liable to be set-aside, keeping in view the judgment of this Court in the case of Shivam Chaurasiya Vs. State of U.P. and Others; 2026:AHC-LKO:10501-DB, wherein, in a similar matter, this court has held as under:-

"27. So far as the argument of the learned AGAs that as the petitioner is now in custody in pursuance to the remand order passed by the learned Magistrate and thus the illegality, if any, in the arrest gets obliterated which argument has been advanced on the basis of the judgment of the Apex Court in the case of Mihir Rajesh Shah (supra), the same merits to be rejected inasmuch as it is a settled proposition of law that once the edifice goes the super structure collapses meaning thereby that in case the arrest itself is declared illegal even if the remand order has been passed, the same would also be rendered bad keeping in view the law laid down by the Apex Court in the case of Mihir Rajesh Shah (supra)."

15. On the other hand, the learned AGA does not dispute the judgments of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the cases of Mihir Rajesh Shah (Supra) and Dr Rajinder Rajan (supra) and Shivam Chaurasiya (Supra), and the principles of law as laid down in the aforesaid judgments.

16. Considering the aforesaid, we are of the view that this petition deserves to be allowed. The fact that the petitioner has been in jail since 27.01.2026, and as already observed above, his continued incarceration would be in violation of the law laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Mihir Rajesh Shah (Supra).

17. However, before allowing the writ petition we are of the view that the writ petition deserves to be allowed with exemplary costs, particularly when the petitioner has lost his personal liberty on account of an illegal act on the part of the authorities, who have failed to follow the law laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Mihir Rajesh Shah (Supra), wherein it was categorically held that informing a person of the grounds of arrest is not a mere formality but a mandatory, binding constitutional safeguard. Thus, it is apparent that the authorities have flagrantly violated the constitutional safeguards provided by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Mihir Rajesh Shah (Supra). Thus, it is apparent that the petitioner has lost his personal life and liberty for no fault on his part but on account of the authorities not following the Constitutional safeguards directed to be followed by the Apex Court.

18. Considering the aforesaid, we direct the Additional Chief Secretary, Home, Government of U.P. i.e the respondent no. 1 to submit a reply as to why exemplary costs should not be awarded to the petitioner for his illegal incarceration in jail from 27.01.2026 until the present date, comprising a period of almost three months.

19. Let the reply be filed within three days.

20. List this case on 29.04.2026 at 02:15 PM.

21. In the event the reply is not submitted, the Additional Chief Secretary, Home, Government of U.P, Lucknow shall appear in person, along with all relevant records, to assist the Court.

22. The learned AGA shall communicate this order to the Additional Chief Secretary (Home) forthwith, without waiting for a certified copy.

23. The A.G.A. shall again produce the records including case diary etc. on the date fixed."

4. From the perusal of the aforesaid order dated 24.04.2026, it emerges that the petitioner has approached this Court being aggrieved by his arrest and illegal detention and the remand order dated 28.01.2026.

5. The sheet anchor of the argument of the learned counsel for the petitioner is the judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Mihir Rajesh Shah versus State of Maharashtra : 2026 (1) SCC 500 wherein the Hon'ble Supreme Court, after considering Article 22(1) of the Constitution of India, has held that no person who is arrested shall be detained in custody without being informed of the grounds of such arrest. The grounds of arrest have also been perused and considered by this Court in the order dated 24.04.2026 and this court has recorded a categorical finding in the said order, after considering the judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Dr. Rajinder Rajan versus Union of India : 2026 LiveLaw (SC) 327, that the arrest of the petitioner on 27.01.2026 has been made without complying with the procedure as directed by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Mihir Rajesh Shah (Supra) meaning thereby that the arrest of the petitioner on 27.01.2026 is illegal. It is further recorded that the remand order granted by the learned Magistrate dated 28.01.2026, being based on the illegal arrest of the petitioner, is also liable to be set aside keeping in view the judgment of this Court in the case of Shivam Chaurasiya vs. State of U.P. and others : 2026:AHC-LKO:10501-DB. This Court was also of the view that the writ petition deserves to be allowed with exemplary cost and consequently directed the Additional Chief Secretary (Home) to submit his reply as to why exemplary cost should not be awarded to the petitioner for his illegal incarceration in jail since 27.01.2026 till date comprising of a period of almost three months.

6. At the outset, learned AGA states that the petitioner still continues to remain in jail and has not been released despite the observations made in the order dated 24.04.2026.

7. As regards the reply pertaining to explaining as to why exemplary cost should not be awarded learned AGA has filed the personal affidavit of the Additional Chief Secretary (Home).

8. The Court is constrained to observe that the Additional Chief Secretary (Home) has failed to file a reply with regard to submission of a reply as to why exemplary costs should not be imposed rather has concluded in the penultimate paragraph of the personal affidavit i.e. paragraph 14, that prompt action has been taken by the State authorities in compliance of the order dated 24.04.2026 and necessary steps have been initiated including seeking a detailed report from Director General of Police. It has further been indicated that the matter is under active consideration of the Government and appropriate action shall be taken in accordance with law upon receipt of the report. It thus appears that Additional Chief Secretary (Home) has not even cared to go through the order of this Court dated 24.4.2026 which, as we have already indicated above, required him to file a reply as to why exemplary cost should not be imposed for the illegal incarceration of the petitioner in jail for almost three months.

9. As already indicated above, the personal affidavit of the Additional Chief Secretary (Home) indicates that appropriate action is being taken or shall be taken after receipt of the report and the personal affidavit does not even contain a whisper regarding the explanation as to why exemplary cost should not be imposed. If this is the non-application of mind at the end of the highest authority of the Home Department i.e. Additional Chief Secretary (Home), we can well understand as to how the other authorities of the State are working!!!

10. Accordingly, considering the aforesaid, more particularly when no reply has been filed with regard to explaining as to why exemplary costs should not be imposed, the Court is of the view that while allowing the writ petition, keeping in view the detailed consideration of the facts including the judgments on the relevant point pertaining to the arrest of the petitioner since 27.1.2026, some exemplary cost should also be imposed as the life and personal liberty of the petitioner has been curtailed by the respondent authorities/State in gross violation of the law laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Mihir Rajesh Shah (Supra).

11. Further, despite the order of this court dated 24.4.2026, the respondent authorities have failed to wake up from their slumber and the illegal incarceration of the petitioner still continues.

12. Keeping the aforesaid discussion, the Court now proceeds to consider as to the amount of costs which are to be awarded to the petitioner for his illegal incarceration in jail for more than three months as of date.

13. In this regard, it would be apt to refer to the judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Rini Johar and Another versus State of Madhya Pradesh and Others: 2016 (11) SCC 703, wherein in a case of the petitioners having been arrested without complying with the procedural requirements, the Hon'ble Supreme Court was of the view that as the arrest was in violation of the due procedure, seriously jeopardizing the dignity of the arrested petitioners consequently, in view of their illegal arrest for a period of 17 days and three weeks for the petitioners, the Hon'ble Supreme Court awarded compensation of Rupees Five Lakhs each to the petitioners to be paid by the State Government. For the sake of convenience, relevant observations of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Rini Johar (supra) are reproduced below:-

“23□...It is also clear that liberty of the petitioner was curtailed in violation of law. The freedom of an individual has its sanctity. When the individual liberty is curtailed in an unlawful manner, the victim is likely to feel more anguished, agonized, shaken, perturbed, disillusioned and emotionally torn. It is an assault on his/her identity. The said identity is sacrosanct under the Constitution. Therefore, for curtailment of liberty, requisite norms are to be followed. Fidelity to statutory safeguards instil faith of the collective in the system. It does not require wisdom of a seer to visualize that for some invisible reason, an attempt has been made to corrode the procedural safeguards which are meant to sustain the sanguinity of liberty. The investigating agency, as it seems, has put its sense of accountability to law on the ventilator. The two ladies have been arrested without following the procedure and put in the compartment of a train without being produced before the local Magistrate from Pune to Bhopal. One need not be Argus eyed to perceive the same. Its visibility is as clear as the cloudless noon day. It would not be erroneous to say that the enthusiastic investigating agency had totally forgotten the golden words of Benjamin Disraeli:

“I repeat □. that all power is a trust □ that we are accountable for its exercise □ that, from the people and for the people, all springs and all must exist.”

24. We are compelled to say so as liberty which is basically the splendor of beauty of life and bliss of growth, cannot be allowed to be frozen in such a contrived winter. That would tantamount to comatosing of liberty which is the strongest pillar of democracy.

25. Having held thus, we shall proceed to the facet of grant of compensation. The officers of the State had played with the liberty of the petitioners and, in a way, experimented with it. Law does not countenance such kind of experiments as that causes trauma and pain. In Mehmood Nayyar Azam v. State of Chhattisgarh-(2012) 8 SCC 1, while dealing with the harassment in custody, deliberating on the concept of harassment, the Court stated thus:-

“22. At this juncture, it becomes absolutely necessary to appreciate what is meant by the term □harassment□. In P. Ramanatha Aiyar□s Law Lexicon, 2nd Edn., the term □harass□ has been defined thus:

“Harass.□□Injure□ and □injury□ are words having numerous and comprehensive popular meanings, as well as having a legal import. A line may be drawn between these words and the word □harass□, excluding the latter from being comprehended within the word □injure□ or □injury□. The synonyms of □harass□ are: to weary, tire, perplex, distress tease, vex, molest, trouble, disturb. They all have relation to mental annoyance, and a troubling of the spirit.□”

The term □harassment□ in its connotative expanse includes torment and vexation. The term □torture□ also engulfs the concept of torment. The word □torture□ in its denotative concept includes mental and psychological harassment. The accused in custody can be put under tremendous psychological pressure by cruel, inhuman and degrading treatment.□

26. In the said case, emphasizing on dignity, it has been observed:-

“36□..The majesty of law protects the dignity of a citizen in a society governed by law. It cannot be forgotten that the welfare State is governed by the rule of law which has paramourcy. It has been said by Edward Biggon "the laws of a nation form the most instructive portion of its history". The Constitution as the organic law of the land has unfolded itself in a manifold manner like a living organism in the various decisions of the court about the rights of a person under Article 21 of the Constitution of India. When citizenry rights are sometimes dashed against and pushed back by the members of City Halls, there has to be a rebound and when the rebound takes place, Article 21 of the Constitution springs up to action as a protector."

27. In the case at hand, there has been violation of Article 21 and the petitioners were compelled to face humiliation. They have been treated with an attitude of insensibility. Not only there are violation of guidelines issued in the case of D.K. Basu vs. State of W.B. (1997) 1 SCC 416, there are also flagrant violation of mandate of law enshrined under Section 41 and Section 41-A of CrPC. The investigating officers in no circumstances can flout the law with brazen proclivity. In such a situation, the public law remedy which has been postulated in Nilabati Behera vs. State of Orissa - (1993) 2 SCC 746, Sube Singh v. State of Haryana-(2006) 3 SCC 178, Hardeep Singh v. State of M.P. - (2012) 1 SCC 748 comes into play. The constitutional courts taking note of suffering and humiliation are entitled to grant compensation. That has been regarded as a redeeming feature. In the case at hand, taking into consideration the totality of facts and circumstances, we think it appropriate to grant a sum of Rs.5,00,000/- (rupees five lakhs only) towards compensation to each of the petitioners to be paid by the State of M.P. within three months hence. It will be open to the State to proceed against the erring officials, if so advised."

14. Keeping the aforesaid discussion, the writ petition is allowed. A writ of habeas corpus is issued declaring the arrest of the petitioner as illegal. The remand order dated 28.1.2026 being consequential to the illegal arrest is also set aside. The petitioner be set free provided he is not wanted in any other case. However, it would be open for the respondents to proceed in accordance with law.

15. Further, considering the illegal arrest of the petitioner since 27.1.2026 which continues even as of date i.e. 29.4.2026 and his illegal incarceration in jail being of more than three months, the Court is of the view that exemplary costs quantified at Rupees Ten Lakhs are also imposed on the State authorities.

16. The said cost shall be paid at the first instance by the State Government with the liberty to recover the same from the officials who were responsible in accordance with law. The said cost shall be paid to the petitioner within four weeks from the date of receipt of a certified copy of this order.

Head Notes

The Constitution of India, 1950-Article 226 (Habeas Corpus)- Petitioner is a well-educated, professionally qualified, and financially independent individual, fully capable of securing the welfare and future prospects of the minor- Petitioner has secured admission of the corpus in Bishop Cotton School, Shimla, and has already deposited a substantial amount towards the fees for the Academic Session 2026–27, wherein the corpus is to be enrolled in Class V. The said institution, being a reputed residential school of high academic standing, offers significantly superior educational and developmental opportunities when compared to the available institutions in District Meerut- Respondent No. 3 suffers from chronic alcoholism, has undergone a liver transplant on 12.01.2025, and has demonstrated financial dependency, as evidenced by the fact that the medical expenses for the said procedure were borne by his mother- Entrusting the custody of the minor to the father would not be conducive to the child's overall welfare, stability, and long-term development.

Held-The paramount consideration is the welfare and best interests of the child, which must override all other considerations, including the legal rights of the parents. Applying this settled principle to the facts of the present case, this Court is of the considered view that the welfare of the corpus would be best served by allowing him to continue his education at Bishop Cotton School, Shimla, as arranged by the petitioner.

Case Arising From

Petition for issuance of a writ of habeas corpus has been instituted by the petitioner, mother of the minor child. The petitioner asserts her lawful entitlement to the custody of the corpus on the grounds that Respondent No. 3, the father, is habitually addicted to alcohol, has a history of domestic violence, and lacks the requisite financial stability to ensure the proper upbringing and welfare of the minor.

Counsel for Respondent(s) : G.A., Mohit Kumar, Sai Girdhar, Vandana Mishra

(Delivered by Hon'ble Sandeep Jain, J.)

1. Heard Sri Vikrant Rana learned Senior Counsel assisted by Sri Chandra Rai Singh learned counsel for the petitioner and counsel for the respondent.

2. The present petition for issuance of a writ of habeas corpus has been instituted by the petitioner, Dr. Bhavna Singh, the biological mother of the minor child (hereinafter referred to as the ?corpus?). The petitioner asserts her lawful entitlement to the custody of the corpus on the grounds that Respondent No. 3, the father, is habitually addicted to alcohol, has a history of domestic violence, and lacks the requisite financial stability to ensure the proper upbringing and welfare of the minor.

3. It is submitted that the petitioner is a qualified medical professional residing in Gautam Buddh Nagar and is financially self-sufficient. The corpus, presently aged about ten years, has been admitted to class V in Bishop Cotton School, Shimla for the Academic Session 2026?2027, and the petitioner has incurred substantial expenditure amounting to approximately Rs. 17,00,000/- towards admission and related costs. Learned counsel for the petitioner further contends that owing to irreconcilable matrimonial discord and ideological incompatibility between the parties, cohabitation is no longer feasible. It is, therefore, urged that this Court may be pleased to pass appropriate orders keeping paramount consideration of the welfare, education, and holistic development of the minor, and permit the corpus to continue his education at the said institution with structured visitation rights to both parents.

4. Per contra, learned counsel appearing on behalf of Respondent No. 3 does not dispute that the respondent has been suffering from chronic alcoholism, resulting in permanent liver damage and necessitating a liver transplant. However, it is contended that the corpus is presently residing with the father and has been enrolled in Brainz Edu World school in Meerut, where he is receiving adequate education. It is further submitted that the corpus shares a strong emotional bond with his father and has expressed his preference to remain in his custody. The respondent asserts that he possesses sufficient means of sustenance through rental and agricultural income and is physically capable of taking care of the minor.

5. This Court has heard the learned counsel for the parties at length, perused the material on record, and has also interacted with the corpus in chambers.

6. The Apex Court in the case of Rajeshwari Chandrasekar Ganesh vs. State of Tamil Nadu (2023) 12 SCC 472 and Nilanjan Bhattacharya vs. State of Karnataka and others (2021) 12 SCC 376 (By 3 Judges) has held that in a petition seeking writ of habeas corpus in matter relating to custody of child, the paramount consideration of the Court is to ascertain the welfare and best interest of the child.

7. Further, the Apex Court in the case of Rohith Thammana Gowda vs. State of Karnataka and Ors. (2022) 20 SCC 550, while drawing a clear distinction between the “best interest of the child” and the mere ?wish or desire of the child,? has authoritatively held that in proceedings under a writ of habeas corpus relating to child custody, paramount consideration must be accorded to the welfare and best interest of the child, and not solely to the expressed preference of the child. It is quoted as under:-

"11. At the outset we may state that in a matter involving the question of custody of a child it has to be borne in mind that the question ?what is the wish/desire of the child? is different and distinct from the question ?what would be in the best interest of the child?. Certainly, the wish/desire of the child can be ascertained through interaction but then, the question as to ?what would be in the best interest of the child? is a matter to be decided by the court taking into account all the relevant circumstances.

12. When couples are at loggerheads and wanted to part their ways, as Parthian shot they may level extreme allegations against each other so as to depict the other unworthy to have the custody of the child. In the circumstances, we are of the view that for considering the claim for custody of a minor child, unless very serious, proven conduct which should make one of them unworthy to claim for custody of the child concerned, the question can and shall be decided solely looking into the question as to, ?what would be the best interest of the child concerned?. In other words, welfare of the child should be the paramount consideration..."

8. During the course of such interaction, the corpus expressed his inclination to reside with his father and levelled certain allegations against the petitioner, including instances of scolding and physical reprimand. The corpus also alleged that the petitioner consumes alcohol. However, upon careful observation of the demeanor and responses of the minor, this Court is of the considered opinion that the statements so made appear to be influenced and tutored, lacking spontaneity and comprehension expected of a child of his age. The allegations, being exaggerated and beyond the natural understanding of the minor, do not inspire confidence and are, therefore, not relied upon.

9. A perusal of the record unequivocally establishes that the petitioner is a well-educated, professionally qualified, and financially independent individual, fully capable of securing the welfare and future prospects of the minor. It is also an admitted position that the petitioner has secured admission of the corpus in Bishop Cotton School, Shimla, and has already deposited a substantial amount towards the fees for the Academic Session 2026?27, wherein the corpus is to be enrolled in Class V. The said institution, being a reputed residential school of high academic standing, offers significantly superior educational and developmental opportunities when compared to the available institutions in District Meerut.

10. In contrast, the material on record reflects that Respondent No. 3 suffers from chronic alcoholism, has undergone a liver transplant on 12.01.2025, and has demonstrated financial dependency, as evidenced by the fact that the medical expenses for the said procedure were borne by his mother. In such circumstances, this Court is constrained to observe that entrusting the custody of the minor to the father would not be conducive to the child?s overall welfare, stability, and long-term development.

11. It is a well-settled principle of law that in matters concerning custody of a minor, the paramount consideration is the welfare and best interests of the child, which must override all other considerations, including the legal rights of the parents. Applying this settled principle to the facts of the present case, this Court is of the considered view that the welfare of the corpus would be best served by allowing him to continue his education at Bishop Cotton School, Shimla, as arranged by the petitioner.

12. Accordingly, it is directed that both parents shall be entitled to visit the corpus, either jointly or individually, once every month, in a congenial and non-disruptive environment within the premises of the school. The Headmaster of Bishop Cotton School, Shimla, is hereby directed to facilitate such visitation without any obstruction or inconvenience. The parties are at liberty to bring to the notice of this Court, any grievance in this regard, for appropriate directions.

13. The parties are further directed to ensure that the corpus is duly admitted to Bishop Cotton School, Shimla, on 26.04.2026. A copy of this order shall be transmitted to the Headmaster of the said institution for information, compliance, and necessary action by the Registrar Compliance.

14. It is further clarified that during school vacations, the custody of the corpus shall be equally shared between the parents, subject to the wishes, comfort, and well-being of the minor, ensuring that his emotional and psychological needs are duly respected. 15. In view of the above, the present habeas corpus petition is disposed of.

Habeas Corpus Writ Petition No. 781 of 2025

...Petitioner

Versus

State of U.P. & Ors.

...Respondents

Issue for Consideration

Whether the detaining authority has not applied his mind, making the detention order mechanically and arbitrarily on the recommendation of the Sponsoring Authority, and the grounds of detention are not proper and the detention is based on speculation; not reality and whether offences attributed to the petitioner are such that these would constitute no more than violation of the law and order

Head Notes

The Constitution of India, 1950-Article 226 (Habeas Corpus); The National Security Act, 1980-Section 3(3)- The petitioner was found indulging in a particular kind of an offence that spontaneously arouses religious passions amongst a large section of the community, inciting them to indulge in violence with the imminent likelihood of vitiation of public order in the locale. They have slaughtered a cow, which, like always, led to frayed tempers and violent emotions displayed by members of the public, agitating and blockading the road, and throwing life out of gear in the locale. It is not a case, where for a simple violation of law and order or an irrelevant consideration, like past instances of violations of law and order were taken into consideration by the detaining Authority to infer that the detainee, if released on bail, would indulge in similar acts, that would lead to public order being prejudicially affected.

No representation made by the petitioner against his detention, either to the State Government or the Advisory Board, which might have been considered and decided by these two Authorities under the NSA before confirming the petitioner's detention-It is not disputed by the petitioner that the Advisory Board heard him in person before they advised the State Government to confirm the detention order.

Held- No infirmity in the order impugned, ordering the petitioner's detention under the NSA.
Petition dismissed. (E-15)

(Delivered by Hon'ble J.J. Munir, J.)

1. Javed, a detenue under the National Security Act, 1980, has petitioned this Court for the grant of a writ in the nature of habeas corpus, declaring his detention pursuant to the order dated 05.06.2025, passed by the District Magistrate, Shamli, illegal and with a prayer that the rule be made absolute, ordering him to be set at liberty.

2. The case against the petitioner, on the foot of which he has been detained vide order dated 05.06.2025 passed by the District Magistrate, Shamli under Section 3(2) of the National Security Act, 1980 (for short, 'the NSA'), is copiously set out in the grounds of detention, upon which the order of detention is founded.

3. According to the grounds of detention, on the 15th of March, 2025, Sub-Inspector Gyanendra Singh, Chowki In-charge Chausana, Police Station Jhijnjhana, District Shamli, had left the Chowki along with his companion policemen in the official vehicle for the purpose of maintaining law and order, doing inquiries and serving processes etc. The Sub-Inspector had left his Chowki at 10:10 a.m. vide G.D. Entry No.14. When the police party reached the jungle of Village Lavvadaudpur, they received information that in the same locale in the sugarcane field of one Sandeep son of Aval Singh, some remains of the cows progeny lying strewn. The police party reached the spot, that is to say, the sugarcane field owned by Sandeep and found all around the place, remains of the cows progeny were lying. There were eleven dismembered feet, four tails, parts of the head, besides parts of skin and a wooden block. For the purpose of inspecting these, the Sub-Inspector summoned Dr. Imran Ansari, a Veterinary Medical Officer, calling him over his mobile number. The doctor, upon arrival at the spot, inspected the remains and identified these as ones belonging to the cows' progeny. Apparently, these remains of the cows progeny showed that unknown man/ men had slaughtered cows and left these remains behind. The remains were taken into custody by the Police, and according to the Veterinary Doctor's instructions, in order to prevent foul stench from spreading and proliferation of infectious disease, buried them at an appropriate place, after digging up earth. The wooden block was marked with a chit and seized. Since this happened at the time of Holi, members of the Hindu community had frayed tempers. A memorandum was drawn up by Sub-Inspector Gyanendra Singh, which was read out to his companions and got signed by them.

4. The police party along with the recovery in hand returned to the police station and on the basis of the memorandum drawn up at the spot, Crime No. 99 of 2025, under Section 3/8 of the Uttar Pradesh Prevention of Cow Slaughter Act, 1955 (for short, 'the Act of 1955'), P.S. Jhinhana, District Shamli, was registered against unknown men vide G.D. No. 17 on 15.03.2025. The investigation was assigned to Sub-Inspector Pramod Kumar. The Investigating Officer proceeded to the spot, that is to say, Sandeep's sugarcane field, located in the jungle of Village Lavvadaudpur, where he found a crowd gathered, amongst whom were members of the Hindu community, who were much enangered. Their feelings had to be assuaged and the men persuaded to keep calm. An I-surveillance team and an S.O.G. team were also present at the spot, who were already about their task. The Investigating Officer undertook the necessary steps while commencing investigation, the chief amongst which was to ascertain the identity of the offenders.

5. Upon hearing of this occurrence, the Inspector In-charge, P.S. Jhinhana, himself, along with a companion force, arrived at the spot only to witness a large crowd gathered there. The members of this crowd had tempers running high over this incident of cow slaughter. This crowd had amongst them members of various organizations, including the Hindu organizations, such as the Rashtriya Bajrang Dal, the Pashchimi Uttar Pradesh Sanyukt Udyog Vyapar Mandal, the Shiv Sena Mandal Saharanpur Unit, and the Akhil Bharatiya Pradhan Sangthan. These men were raising slogans, demanding arrest of the accused, who were involved in the crime. This crowd blockaded the Jhinhana-Thana Bhawan Road, leading to a long queue of vehicles on both sides of the blockade. The wayfarers and the travellers were put to much trouble on this count. This jamming of the road on account of the blockade lasted for long hours, in consequence of which public order in the area was torn asunder.

6. Upon receipt of information, the Circle Officer, Kairana, along with his companion police force, also arrived and made attempts to pacify the agitated members of the crowd, who had blockaded the public road. In the meantime information of this occurrence was sent to adjoining police stations and additional forces summoned to the spot. The forces, that were called, were from Police Stations Thana Bhawan, Garhipukhta, Babri. The additional forces were deployed on the spot and the agitated residents of the villages assured about their security and that of their animals. The police force had to patrol for a number of days in villages Naya Gaon, Dathaida, Gangarampur Khedki, Lavvadaudpur, Shamli-Shamla, Panthupura, Jijaula, Ballamajra, Toda, Khodsama and Laxmipura. These efforts had to be undertaken by the police force, that was summoned in order to restore peace, where public order had been disturbed.

7. On 16.03.2025, Sub-Inspector Pramod Kumar left the station for Village Lavvadaudpur and arriving there, he summoned a police informer and spoke to him. The informer gave him information that in Village Basi Chundyari, there was much talk and information of the fact that residents of that village, Iqbal son of Rashid, Jaane Alam son of Sagir, along with his companions, Javed son of Islam (the petitioner), Wasim alias Gullu son of Salim, and Sameer son of Shamshad, had together committed the offence of cow slaughter under investigation. The informer said that he was gathering further details, which he would post the Investigating Officer with as soon as he had them. The Investigating Officer proceeded along with his companions to Village Basi Chundyari, visiting the houses of Iqbal and Jane Alam, one after the other looking. The two were not found at home and their family members could not tell the Police about their whereabouts. Next, the Investigating Officer proceeded to Village Mundet Khadar, looking for the petitioner, where he too was not found at home. The petitioner's family did not disclose the details of his whereabouts. Inquiries were made by the Police in the neighbourhood after taking them into confidence, who disclosed that the petitioner these days was spending a lot of money and in the evenings outsiders too come to visit him. It was revealed that the petitioner was not in the village since the day before.

8. On 16.03.2025, various police teams were going about their duties, including checking of vehicles. Information came through a secret informer that the offenders, who were involved in the incident of cow slaughter in Village Lavvadaudpur on 15.03.2025, would be proceeding from Chausana to Mundet Khadar and they would be armed. The Police, which included an S.O.G. Team, intensified their checking of vehicles. After passage of a short time, a motorcycle with two pillion riders □ three in all □ were seen to approach from the side of Chausana. They were attempted to be stopped, but the rider accelerated it, turning it to the left in a bid to escape. However, this led the two wheeler being dis-balanced and it slipped, throwing the rider and the pillions down. The three men riding it attempted to escape. Seen themselves surrounded by a police party, they opened fire employing the illicit firearms they were carrying. The Police sustained no injury and one of the offenders was hit by a bullet. They were overpowered. One of them was the petitioner, who disclosed his name as Javed son of Islam. Upon the search of his person a 0.315 bore country-made pistol was recovered, which had an empty in its chamber. The others, who were apprehended, were Iqbal and Raees son of Mumtaj.

9. Shorn of unnecessary details, upon apprehension, the petitioner along with the two others, during investigation gave out the names of the remainder of their two companions and confessed to the cow slaughter done in the sugarcane field, situate in the jungle of Village Lavvadaudpur in the night intervening 12/ 13.03.2025. They confessed that they had slaughtered two calves and a cow, who were roaming untethered and homeless. They revealed that the flesh from the cows they sold fetched them Rs.20,000/-. Out of the proceeds, Iqbal purchased a mobile handset of POCO Make for a sum of Rs.5,999/-. The balance of the proceeds were equally divided amongst the five men involved. The petitioner along with the two others are said to have confessed to the fact that they were on the lookout for more stray cows, when apprehended by the Police. The petitioner and Iqbal had been shot in their lower limbs and there was blood loss. A ligature was tied to prevent further loss of blood and both of them were conveyed to the CHC for initial medical aid.

Later, in the police lock too, after receiving treatment, the petitioner confessed to their crime in association with others and corroborated the story that he had narrated at the time of his arrest. The other two were also apprehended in due course, but facts relating to them, that are also detailed in the grounds of detention in order to disclose the entire circumstances, bearing on the conduct of the petitioner and the co-accused, leading to the detention order, need not be narrated here.

10. It is then said in the grounds of detention that the petitioner was remanded in Crime No. 99 of 2025, under Section 3/5A/8 of the Act of 1955 and Crime No. 104 of 2025, under Section 109(1) B.N.S. and Section 3/25/27 Arms Act, both relating to P.S. Jhinhana, District Shamli, and he was in judicial custody, incarcerated in the District Jail, Muzaffar Nagar.

11. Noting this fact, the detaining Authority has remarked in the grounds of detention that the petitioner was consistently attempting to ensure his release from prison on bail. He had moved the learned Magistrate's Court for bail, but failed there. Next, he moved the learned Sessions Judge for bail, but again failed. He then applied for bail to this Court, which was granted. This fact was clearly within the cognizance of the detaining Authority, besides the fact that notwithstanding the grant of bail, the petitioner was still detained in the Muzaffar Nagar District Jail, awaiting release. The detaining Authority has remarked that his release from jail is close at hand. It is then observed by the detaining Authority that considering the petitioner's criminal propensity, there was the likelihood that once released from prison, he would commit offences of a kind in the local limits of P.S. Jhinhana and adjoining areas, that would prejudicially affect public order.

12. The basis of the detaining Authority's satisfaction that once released from prison on bail, the petitioner would again indulge in the same kind of offences, is based on three different items of material: The first is an information sent back home from jail by the petitioner that he would be released on bail pursuant to orders of this Court, and once released, he would carry on with slaughtering cows because it was his livelihood. This material figured in a Beat Constables' report, jointly submitted by two members of the police force, a Head Constable and a Constable, who heard about it in their beat on 16.05.2025 and made an entry of it upon return to the police station vide G.D. No.28 at 19.40 hours.

13. The second item of material is the report of Sub-Inspector Pramod Kumar, who inquired into the truth of this Beat Constables' report and found that the contents of G.D. No. 28 dated 16.05.2025 were correct and he made his report that was entered vide G.D. Entry No. 10 dated 17.05.2025 at 10.30 hours.

14. In addition, the third item of material, that was taken into consideration, is a report of the Local Intelligence Unit dated 29.04.2025, affirming the fact of the petitioner having conveyed such intentions of his to his associates upon being released from prison.

15. It is on all this basis that the District Magistrate said that he was subjectively satisfied that upon release from jail, the petitioner would indulge in repetition of offences, that would prejudicially affect public order. In order to prevent the petitioner from committing offences that would prejudicially affect public order, it was necessary to detain him on a preventive basis, invoking the provisions of the NSA.

16. The grounds of detention, that were served upon the petitioner, state that he had a right under Section 8 of the NSA to represent his case to the detaining Authority as also the State Government. It was clarified that if the petitioner wanted to exercise his right to represent as aforesaid to the District Magistrate, he could do so within twelve days of the detention order or before approval of the order by the State Government. The right could be exercised by submitting a representation through the Superintendent of the Jail, where he was detained. It was further mentioned in the grounds that in order to represent to the State Government, he could address his representation to the Secretary, Department of Home, Government of U.P., Lucknow and submit it through the Superintendent of the Jail, where he was detained.

17. It was then conveyed through the grounds that under Sections 9 and 10 of the NSA, the petitioner had a right to represent his case before the Uttar Pradesh Advisory Board, Lucknow and the representation had to be addressed to the Registrar, Uttar Pradesh Advisory Board, Lucknow. The representation aforesaid could be submitted through the Superintendent of the Jail, where he was detained. The grounds also say that under Section 10 of the NSA, his case would be placed before the Advisory Board within three weeks of his detention, and if the petitioner's representation was received belatedly, it would not be considered. The petitioner was also informed of his right to be heard personally before the Advisory Board, in case he elected to do so, demanding that right through his representation to be submitted to the State Government through the Superintendent of the Jail, where he was detained.

18. It was next enumerated in the grounds that the petitioner also had a right to represent his case to the Central Government. That right the petitioner could exercise by addressing his representation to the Secretary, Ministry of Home, Government of India through the Deputy Secretary (Security), Security Division, Centre-II Building, Jai Singh Road, Near Royal Park, Jantar Mantar, New Delhi, which too had to be submitted through the Superintendent of the Jail, where he was detained.

19. The detention order dated 05.06.2025 was confirmed by the State Government on 14.06.2025 under Section 3(4) of the NSA, and finally by an order made on 29.07.2025, after receipt of report from the Advisory Board for the entire duration of twelve months.

20. Aggrieved, this petition for a writ of habeas corpus has been filed.

21. This petition was instituted on 27.08.2025 and came up before the Division Bench on 29.08.2025. A notice of motion was issued on 27.08.2025, requiring parties to exchange affidavits. On 07.10.2025, rule nisi was granted and the petition directed to come up for hearing on 28.10.2025.

22. Heard Mr. Brijesh Kumar Yadav, learned Counsel for the petitioners, Mr. Deepak Mishra, learned Additional Government Advocate-I appearing on behalf of the State and Mr. Arvind Kumar Goswami, learned Central Government Counsel appearing on behalf of the Union of India.

23. A perusal of the counter affidavit filed on behalf of the detaining Authority shows that the petitioner was arrested on 16.03.2025 in two cases, to wit: (1) Case Crime No. 99 of 2025, under Section 3/5A/8 of the Act of 1955, P.S. Jhinhana, District Shamli; and, Case Crime No. 104 of 2025, under Section 109(1) B.N.S. and Section 3/25/27 Arms Act, P.S. Jhinhana, District Shamli. In both these matters, the petitioner was remanded by the learned Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Shamli, to judicial custody on 17.03.2025. He was served with the detention order passed under Section 3(2) of the NSA on 05.06.2025, while still in jail in connection with the aforesaid crimes. The detaining Authority has taken the stand that the petitioner was served with the grounds of detention and other materials through the Jail Authorities on 05.06.2025 together with the detention order. The detaining Authority sent the order of detention to the State Government for their approval on 05.06.2025 through a special messenger. The State Government approved the order of detention on 16.06.2025, which was forwarded to the Jail Authorities for its service upon the petitioner.

24. The detaining Authority has taken the stand that the petitioner did not send any representation to the U.P. Advisory Board through the Jail Authorities, a fact which the petitioner has denied in paragraph no. 6 of the rejoinder affidavit filed in answer to the counter affidavit filed on behalf of the detaining Authority. He has asserted that a representation to the Advisory Board was sent. However, no date of the representation finds mention, much less evidence or a copy thereof annexed to the rejoinder. The stand of the State Government is also the same that is that no representation was submitted by the petitioner to the Advisory Board against his detention. Be that as it may.

25. The Advisory Board sent a communication dated 07.07.2025 to the effect that the date of hearing fixed before them was 09.07.2025. The petitioner was sent to attend before the Advisory Board, that is to say, for a personal hearing on the date fixed. The petitioner appeared before the Advisory Board on the said date. The Advisory Board submitted a report, favouring confirmation of the detention order. The State Government then passed orders on 29.07.2025, confirming the detention order, on the basis of the Advisory Board's report for the entire period of twelve months. The fact that the petitioner was personally heard before the Advisory Board is not denied in the rejoinder put in to the detaining Authority's counter affidavit. The State Government's counter affidavit is consistent with the detaining Authority's return.

26. There is a counter affidavit also filed on behalf of the Superintendent, District Jail Muzaffar Nagar. In paragraph no. 8 of the counter affidavit, it is asserted that the petitioner did not submit any representation to the Authorities at the District Jail Muzaffar Nagar. No rejoinder has been filed in answer to the Jail Superintendent's counter affidavit with the result that the assertion in paragraph no. 8 of the counter affidavit aforesaid remains unrebutted.

27. A counter affidavit has also been filed on behalf of the Union of India, where in paragraph no. 5, it is asserted that no representation either from the detainee or on his behalf has been received in the Section concerned of the Ministry of Home Affairs so far. There is no rejoinder in answer to the aforesaid counter affidavit.

28. Mr. Brijesh Kumar Yadav, learned Counsel for the petitioner, has urged that the detaining Authority has not applied his mind, making the detention order mechanically and arbitrarily on the recommendation of the Sponsoring Authority, that is to say, the Police. It is next argued that the grounds of detention are not proper and the detention is based on speculation; not reality. The next submission is that the offences attributed to the petitioner are such that these would constitute no more than violation of the law and order, even if established at the trial. These can never constitute violation of public order, on the basis of which the petitioner can be preventively detained. There is no material to show that the offences attributed to the petitioner could or did lead to vitiation of public order. Since there is no case, more than that of a violation of the law and order, the prosecution launched against the petitioner would test his guilt or prove him innocent. There is absolutely no basis to invoke the NSA and detain the petitioner without trial. It is next argued that the petitioner's right to represent against the detention order, which is not only a statutory right under the NSA, but a constitutional right guaranteed under Article 22 of the Constitution, has been infringed, inasmuch as the petitioner sent his representation through the Jail Superintendent, Muzaffar Nagar to the Secretary (Home), Government of U.P., Lucknow and the Uttar Pradesh Advisory Board, but the same remained pending, while his detention order was confirmed without considering the petitioner's representation, either by the State Government or the Advisory Board.

29. Mr. Deepak Mishra, learned A.G.A., has refuted the submissions advanced on behalf of the petitioner and submitted that the detention order has been made well within the requirements of the law. He has taken us through the various affidavits and the material, upon which the order of detention is founded.

30. So far as the submission that the impugned order is one made without application of mind is concerned, we do not think that, that is the case. A perusal of the grounds of detention show that there is a copious consideration not only of the crime disclosed in the FIR, giving rise to Crime No.99 of 2025, but the circumstances of the occurrence and its impact in the locale, where the offence was committed, vis-a-vis the issue of public order. This is not a case, where there is a mechanical recital of the fact alone that the offence constitutes a violation of public order, but shows due application of mind to the offence and its impact in the locale on the maintenance of public order. It is also not the case that the detaining Authority has proceeded to pass the detention order without application of mind to the requirements of the law, after describing the ramifications of the offence in the locale. The Authority has held it to be an act that vitiated public order. It is also remarked by the Authority on the basis of material before it that it was subjectively satisfied that the petitioner was attempting to secure his release on bail and that the petitioner has moved this Court for bail, which had been granted, but for the present, the petitioner was still incarcerated in jail. It is further remarked that in this manner his release from jail would soon take place. It is then said that looking to the petitioner's criminal propensities, it is evident that once released from jail, he is likely to indulge in the commission of such criminal offences, which would prejudicially affect public order within the local limits of P.S. Jhinhana and the local limits of the adjoining police stations, that look over the rural areas. All these features, which figure in the grounds of detention, make it evident that this is not a case, where it can be said that the order of detention has been passed without application of mind. The first point urged by the learned Counsel for the petitioner is, therefore, negatived.

31. The matter does not end here. What we notice is that the detaining Authority has done a careful consideration of all matters relevant to the question of passing a detention order under the NSA.

32. There is a detailed description of the events of the day beginning with discovery of remains of the cow and its progeny by the police party in the sugarcane field, located in the jungle of Village Lavvadaudpur. The events that unfolded thereafter are amply recorded with movement of police party, deployment of police force, protest by the public, blockade of the road and dislocation of life on the day in the locale, where it all happened. In the circumstances, to say that the grounds of detention are not proper and the detention based on speculation, is stated to be rejected.

33. The next point that arises for consideration is, if the act attributed to the petitioner or the offence committed by him is no more than violation of law and order or these go way beyond it to constitute a violation of public order. We must notice here that we have dealt with this point in our judgment of date, arising out of the same incident in Sameer and another v. State of U.P. and others, 2026:AHC:83732-DB. There we have held:

“27. This takes us to the next submission that the crime reported against the petitioner, on the foot of which the impugned order of detention has been passed, is no more than an instance of the violation of law and order; not an incident, which prejudicially affects public order, so as to entitle the respondents to detain the petitioner without trial, invoking the provisions of the NSA.

28. We must remark here that in the genesis of every event, that is an infraction of the public order or its vitiation, there is some crime punishable by law, which can always be termed as a violation of law and order. The violation of law and order is, of course, to be punished in accordance with law after prosecuting the offender, but this does not mean that every infraction of the law and order, that spins out of its trouble spot and widely affects the even tempo of life, is to be regarded as a violation of law and order alone. Whether a violation of the law and order would be just that and no more or have a cascading effect, unsettling the even tempo of life in the locale, or even far and wide, is dependent upon the circumstances, the time, the place and the situation, where the infraction is committed. The point is well elucidated in the celebrated decision of the Supreme Court in Ram Manohar Lohia v. State of Bihar and another, AIR 1966 SC 740, where their Lordships of the Constitution Bench held:

"54. We have here a case of detention under Rule 30 of the Defence of India Rules which permits apprehension and detention of a person likely to act in a manner prejudicial to the maintenance of public order. It follows that if such a person is not detained public disorder is the apprehended result. Disorder is no doubt prevented by the maintenance of law and order also but disorder is a broad spectrum which includes at one end small disturbances and at the other the most serious and cataclysmic happenings. Does the expression "public order" take in every kind of disorders or only some of them? The answer to this serves to distinguish "public order" from "law and order" because the latter undoubtedly takes in all of them. Public order if disturbed, must lead to public disorder. Every breach of the peace does not lead to public disorder. When two drunkards quarrel and fight there is disorder but not public disorder. They can be dealt with under the powers to maintain law and order but cannot be detained on the ground that they were disturbing public order. Suppose that the two fighters were of rival communities and one of them tried to raise communal passions. The problem is still one of law and order but it raises the apprehension of public disorder. Other examples can be imagined. The contravention of law always affects order but before it can be said to affect public order, it must affect the community or the public at large. A mere disturbance of law and order leading to disorder is thus not necessarily sufficient for action under the Defence of India Act but disturbances which subvert the public order are. A District Magistrate is entitled to take action under Rule 30(1)(b) to prevent subversion of public order but not in aid of maintenance of law and order under ordinary circumstances.

55. It will thus appear that just as "public order" in the rulings of this Court (earlier cited) was said to comprehend disorders of less gravity than those affecting "security of State", "law and order" also comprehends disorders of less gravity than those affecting "public order". One has to imagine three concentric circles. Law and order represents the largest circle within which is the next circle representing public order and the smallest circle represents security of State. It is then easy to see that an act may affect law and order but not public order just as an act may affect public order but not security of the State. By using the expression "maintenance of law and order" the District Magistrate was widening his own field of action and was adding a clause to the Defence of India Rules."

29. The point is again considered in Arun Ghosh v. State of W.B., (1970) 1 SCC 98, where the concept of public order, as distinguished from law and order, has been eloquently explained by their Lordship thus:

"3. The submission of the counsel is that these are stray acts directed against individuals and are not subversive of public order and therefore the detention on the ostensible ground of preventing him from acting in a manner prejudicial to public order was not justified. In support of this submission reference is made to three cases of this Court: Dr Ram Manohar Lohia v. State of Bihar [(1966) 1 SCR 709]; Pushkar Mukherjee v. State of W.B. [WP No. 179 of 1968, decided on November 7, 1968: (1969) 1 SCC 10] and Shyamal Chakraborty v. Commissioner of Police, Calcutta [WP No. 102 of 1969, decided on August 4, 1969: (1969) 2 SCC 426]. In Dr Ram Manohar Lohia case [(1966) 1 SCR 709] this Court pointed out the difference between maintenance of law and order and its disturbance and the maintenance of public order and its disturbance. Public order was said to embrace more of the community than law and order. Public order is the even tempo of the life of the community taking the country as a whole or even a specified locality. Disturbance of public order is to be distinguished from acts directed against individuals which do not disturb the society to the extent of causing a general disturbance of public tranquillity. It is the degree of disturbance and its affect upon the life of the community in a locality which determines whether the disturbance amounts only to a breach of law and order. Take for instance, a man stabs another. People may be shocked and even disturbed, but the life of the community keeps moving at an even tempo, however much one may dislike the act. Take another case of a town where there is communal tension. A man stabs a member of the other community. This is an act of a very different sort. Its implications are deeper and it affects the even tempo of life and public order is jeopardized because the repercussions of the act embrace large sections of the community and incite them to make further breaches of the law and order and to subvert the public order. An act by itself is not determinant of its own gravity. In its quality it may not differ from another but in its potentiality it may be very different. Take the case of assault on girls. A guest at a hotel may kiss or make advances to half a dozen chamber maids. He may annoy them and also the management but he does not cause disturbance of public order. He may even have a fracas with the friends of one of the girls but even then it would be a case of breach of law and order only. Take another case of a man who molests women in lonely places. As a result of his activities girls going to colleges and schools are in constant danger and fear. Women going for their ordinary business are afraid of being waylaid and assaulted. The activity of this man in its essential quality is not different from the act of the other man but in its potentiality and in its affect upon the public tranquillity there is a vast difference. The act of the man who molests the girls in lonely places causes a disturbance in the even tempo of living which is the first requirement of public order. He disturbs the society and the community. His act makes all the women apprehensive of their honour and he can be said to be causing disturbance of public order and not merely committing individual actions which may be taken note of by the criminal prosecution agencies. It means therefore that the question whether a man has only committed a breach of law and order or has acted in a manner likely to cause a disturbance of the public order is a question of degree and the extent of the reach of the act upon the society. The French distinguish law and order and public order by designating the latter as ordre publique. The latter expression has been recognised as meaning something more than ordinary maintenance of law and order. Justice Ramaswami in Writ Petition No. 179 of 1968 drew a line of demarcation between the serious and aggravated forms of breaches of public order which affect the community or endanger the public interest at large from minor breaches of peace which do not affect the public at large. He drew an analogy between public and private crimes. The analogy is useful but not to be pushed too far. A large number of acts directed against persons or individuals may total up into a breach of public order. In Dr Ram Manohar Lohia case examples were given by Sarkar and Hidayatullah, JJ. They show how similar acts in different contexts affect differently law and order on the one hand and public order on the other. It is always a question of degree of the harm and its affect upon the community. The question to ask is: Does it lead to disturbance of the current of life of the community so as to amount a disturbance of the public order or does it affect merely an individual leaving the tranquillity of the society undisturbed? This question has to be faced in every case on facts. There is no formula by which one case can be distinguished from another.”

30. There are some issues, where the community is sensitive to the extent that if these surface, there is an inherent potentiality of creating widespread ripples in society that would affect the even tempo of life. One of them is cow slaughter. The slaughtering of a cow, whenever reported or detected, spontaneously evokes strong emotions and violent reactions for obvious injury to religious beliefs of a large section of the society. History is replete with instances of profusion of emotions and violence that an incident of this kind entails. And, it is not that these are matters of historical record to be read in books or fancied about in contemporary world. Violent reactions at the happening of cow slaughter are so well reputed that no one can feign ignorance of the fact, violation of the law apart. Public order is after all not about what the intention of the individual was, or what law he has violated. It is about the impact that his act generates. If the act in question is such that it is not confined to one, two or a few individuals, but disturbs the even tempo of life in the locale or may be beyond, in larger areas, prejudice to public order, is certainly there. The particular act of slaughtering a cow, as already remarked, has immediate and widespread ramifications in society, almost always leading to widespread violence that takes toll on a tranquil society and throws life out of gear.

31. There are a series of decisions of this Court, which acknowledge the fact that cow slaughter foments communal tension, brings disharmony and results in a situation, that leads to disturbance of public order. The point is elucidated in a few words in the Bench decision of this Court in Shaukat Ali v. Union of India and others, 2002 SCC OnLine All 1435. In Shaukat Ali (supra), it was held:

“1. A perusal of the grounds of detention copy of which is Annexure 2, shows that the allegations against the petitioner are that the petitioner had slaughtered a cow and the knife and rods were recovered from him. This incident caused communal tension and hence the impugned detention order was passed.

2. Communal amity and harmony are absolutely essential for the progress of the nation. We cannot afford to have another Gujarat in U.P. Slaughter of cow hurts the sentiments of the Hindus and hence should not be committed. In our opinion cow slaughter affects public order because it is likely to incite communal tension.

3. Hence it is not merely a case of law and order.”

32. Again in Tauqeer v. State of U.P. and others, 2002 SCC OnLine All 230, it was held:

“4. We have carefully perused the detention order and find that the matter certainly pertains to public order and not to law and order. Under our Constitution freedom of religion has been guaranteed as a fundamental right. However the U.P. Prevention of Cow Slaughter Act bans the slaughter of cows and calves. The petitioner has no right to break the law and violate the above Act. It may be mentioned that nobody has right to do any thing which may lead to communal tension in the country. In case we permit such activities a situation like in Gujarat may recur again Hindus, rightly or wrongly venerate cows. The Muslims should also respect the sentiments of the Hindus and noticing should be done Which may provoke communal riots. The last thing which country can afford today is inflammation of communal feelings in the Society. The petitioner with his associate could slaughter any other animal but certainly not slaughter cows against the provisions of the Prevention of Cow Slaughter Act as that may create communal tension.”

33. In Guddu Panchhi v. District Magistrate, Kanpur Nagar and others, 2004 SCC OnLine All 1847, the following remarks of the Division Bench are relevant:

“3. Slaughtered cow and she-calf were found lying at the spot. The news of the incident spread in the area like wild fire. Members of the two communities of the society, i.e. Hindus and Muslims collected at the spot in agitated mood and started raising slogans against one another. Communal harmony was disturbed and the atmosphere became tense. The shopkeepers started downing their shutters. People ran helter-skelter. The public order was completely disturbed. S.O. informed the higher authorities on telephone and requisitioned additional force to control the situation. Case Crime No. 217 of 2003 under Sections 3/5/8 of U.P. Cow Slaughter Act was registered against the petitioner and others.

6. Obviously, it is the reaction or fall out of an incident in the society which is determinative as to whether it was only disturbance of law and order or that of public order. In the present case, there was a live link between the alleged criminal activity of the petitioner of cow slaughtering and the purpose of detention. The act was clearly prejudicial to public order as is borne out from the grounds of detention reiterated by respondent No. 1 District Magistrate, Kanpur Nagar in his counter-affidavit. The act of the petitioner offended the religious feelings of a sect of society venerating cow and its progeny, besides being in contravention of U.P. Prevention of Cow Slaughter Act. The incident disturbed the even tempo of the life of the society. Members of two communities thronged the spot, shouting slogans against one another. The shops were closed and public tranquility was disturbed in the area with tempers of the two communities of the society running high. Additional force had to be deployed in the area to restore the confidence of the people and for the return of normalcy. The incident adversely affected the social harmony, created communal tension and disturbed public order of the area. The matter certainly pertains to public order and not to law and order. We, therefore, reject the sole argument advanced by the learned counsel for the petitioner in support of the petition that it was a matter of law and order only...”

34. Much later in Wasi through Mohd. Rafi v. State of U.P. and others, 2017 SCC OnLine All 1880 in the context of an offence of cow slaughter and its bearing on the disturbance of public order, it was held by a Division Bench of this Court:

“30. Learned counsel for the petitioner has emphatically argued that the place of incident where cow was slaughtered is not a public place, as such, it cannot be treated as an issue of public order. It is the reaction or fall out of an incident in the society which is determinative, as to whether, it was only disturbance of law and order or that of public order. Admittedly, the cow slaughter in an open place may have offended the religious feeling of a society, it is, therefore, important to see the proportionality of the response to the act complained of and in view of this, the gravity of the act may be given a thought where the body parts of cow were lying open in public view. Where cattle has been slaughtered in public view, which may definitely lead to disturbance of the current life of the community, so as to amount to a disturbance of a public order, communal amity and harmony. Slaughter of cow hurts the sentiments of the Hindus which affects public order because it is likely to incite communal tension, hence, it is not merely a case of law and order but that of public order.”

35. We have already noticed the kind of impact that the incident had not only in the village, where it happened, but in the adjoining villages of Naya Gaon, Dathaida, Gangarampur Khedki, Lavvadaudpur, Shamli-Shamla, Panthupura, Jijaula, Ballamajra, Toda, Khodsama and Laxmipura. The aftermath of the slaughter and its discovery by the Police led to the local populace and volunteers of organizations heading to the place of occurrence. They were workers of Hindu organizations as also others, like Pashchimi Uttar Pradesh Sanyukt Udyog Vyapar Mandal and the Akhil Bharatiya Pradhan Sangthan, who participated with the public in staging a blockade on the Thana Bhawan □ Jhinhana Road. It led to a complete traffic jam with passersby and travellers, badly stuck and unable to move. The even tempo of life was thrown out of gear, necessitating the summoning of additional forces from adjoining police stations. In fact, it was after very sensitive and trained persuasions by officers of the Police that public order could be restored. The locals of the village and adjoining villages had to be assured about their safety and security as well as that of their animals.

36. These facts amply show that it was no isolated incident of a violation of the law and order, but one which threw the even tempo of life out of gear. It is the disturbing effect of an incident on serene and tranquil life that determines if it is indeed a violation of public order or a mere breach of law and order. It is not necessary that there should be actual violence, loss of human life and property before an incident can be termed as disturbance of public order. It is disturbance of the daily and ordinary movements of life in the locale, which are the index of vitiation of public order.

37. In the totality of circumstances, we hold that this is decidedly a case where public order was prejudicially affected in consequence of the offence committed by the petitioner. And, it is not a mere case of infraction of law and order.”

34. Here, is a case where the petitioner was found indulging in a particular kind of an offence that spontaneously arouses religious passions amongst a large section of the community, inciting them to indulge in violence with the imminent likelihood of vitiation of public order in the locale. They have slaughtered a cow, which, like always, led to frayed tempers and violent emotions displayed by members of the public, agitating and blockading the road, and throwing life out of gear in the locale. It is not a case, where for a simple violation of law and order or an irrelevant consideration, like past instances of violations of law and order were taken into consideration by the detaining Authority to infer that the detainee, if released on bail, would indulge in similar acts, that would lead to public order being prejudicially affected.

35. For the very same reason, in the present case also, our conclusions are also the same. We, therefore, reject the petitioner's submission that it was not a case of violation of public order, but merely an infraction of law and order.

36. The last point that has been argued is that the petitioner's right guaranteed under Section 8(1) of the NSA and Article 22 of the Constitution has been infringed, inasmuch as he had submitted representations to the Secretary (Home), Government of U.P., Lucknow and to the Uttar Pradesh Advisory Board addressed to their Registrar, both through the Jail Superintendent, Muzaffar Nagar, but neither the State Government have considered the petitioner's representation while confirming the detention order nor the Advisory Board. Rather, both the State Government and the Advisory Board have proceeded on the assumption that there was no representation submitted by the petitioner.

37. We have carefully considered this point urged on behalf of the petitioner. In answer to the assertion carried in paragraph no.11 of the writ petition that representations were addressed to the State Government and the Advisory Board through the Jail

Superintendent, which are pending, but not considered, it is stated in paragraph no. 5 of the counter affidavit filed on behalf of the State Government thus:

“5. It is not out of place to submit here that no representation has been moved by the petitioner till date.”

38. There is no rejoinder affidavit in answer to the State's counter affidavit with the result that paragraph no. 5 of the counter affidavit filed on behalf of the State Government remains un rebutted. Moreover, there is no mention of the date when the representation was addressed to the State Government and the Advisory Board, much less a copy of the representation annexed to a rejoinder, that could have been filed, if it was not annexed to the writ petition on account of any disadvantage that the petition might have had, owing to his detention. We also do notice that the Jail Superintendent in paragraph no. 8 of his counter affidavit has averred:

“8. That it is further humbly submitted that the petitioner has not submitted any representation at District Jail, Muzaffarnagar.”

39. There is no rejoinder on behalf of the petitioner rebutting the assertion in paragraph no. 8 of the counter affidavit filed on behalf of the Superintendent, District Jail Muzaffar Nagar. There is, thus, no basis on the existing material to infer that there was indeed a representation of any kind submitted by the petitioner, either to the State Government or the Advisory Board.

40. It must also be remarked that the District Magistrate in his counter affidavit as well as the Central Government have also asserted that they did not receive any representation from the petitioner in exercise of his right under the NSA, though representations to the detaining Authority, that is to say, the District Magistrate, and the Central Government, is not the point under consideration. But, this fact lends credence to the assertion both by the State Government and the Jail Superintendent that the petitioner never addressed any representation to the State Government or the Advisory Board.

41. In the totality of circumstances, we hold that there was no representation made by the petitioner against his detention, either to the State Government or the Advisory Board, which might have been considered and decided by these two Authorities under the NSA before confirming the petitioner's detention. We also note that it is not disputed by the petitioner that the Advisory Board heard him in person before they advised the State Government to confirm the detention order.

42. No other point was pressed at the hearing.

43. In the circumstances, we are of opinion that there is no infirmity in the order impugned, ordering the petitioner's detention under the NSA.

44. This habeas corpus writ petition fails and is dismissed.

Habeas Corpus Writ Petition No. 919 of 2025

Jane Alam (Corpus)	...Petitioner
	Versus
State of U.P. & Ors.	...Respondents

Issue for Consideration

Whether the Detaining Authority has not applied his mind, making the detention order mechanically and arbitrarily on the recommendation of the Sponsoring Authority and the grounds of detention are not proper and the detention is based on speculation; not reality and whether offences attributed to the petitioner are such that these would constitute no more than violation of the law and order

Head Notes

The Constitution of India, 1950-Article 226 (Habeas Corpus); The National Security Act, 1980-Section 3(3)- Petitioner was found indulging in a particular kind of offence that spontaneously arouses religious passions amongst a large section of the community, inciting them to indulge in violence, with the imminent likelihood of vitiation of public order in the locale. They have slaughtered a cow, which, like always, led to frayed tempers and violent emotions displayed by members of the public, agitating and blockading the road, and throwing life out of gear in the locale. It is not a case, where for a simple violation of law and order, an irrelevant consideration, like past instances of violations of law and order were taken into consideration by the Detaining Authority to infer that the detainee, if released on bail, would indulge in similar acts, that would lead to public order being prejudicially affected.

In case of preventive detention, while irrelevant material cannot be taken into consideration, such as mere criminal history of the detainee, indulging in acts of violation of law and order in the past, the law of evidence to connect the offender to the crime, would not be attracted- Correctness of the allegations in a preventive detention matter is not up for a scrutiny before the Court, doing a judicial review of the Administrator's decision to preventively detain.

Held- No infirmity in the order impugned, ordering the petitioner's detention under the NSA.
Petition dismissed. (E-15)

(Delivered by Hon'ble J.J. Munir, J.)

1. This petition for a writ of habeas corpus has been instituted by Jane Alam, seeking the issue of a rule nisi, ordering the respondents to produce him before the Court and set him at liberty, confirming the rule. The petitioner has been detained under Section 3(3) of the National Security Act, 1980, by the District Magistrate, Shamli, vide order dated 26.05.2025, which has been confirmed by the State Government on 04.06.2025 and the Uttar Pradesh Advisory Board, Lucknow on 09.07.2025. After receipt of the Advisory Board's report, State Government has enlarged the duration of the detention to twelve months vide order dated 29.07.2025.

2. The facts, giving rise to this petition, would show that it all began with a police party, headed by Sub-Inspector Gyanendra Singh on routine duty to maintain law and order and effective service of processes etc. while passing through the jungle in Village Lavvadaudpur, Police Station Jhinhana, District Shamli, coming across the remains of cows' progeny, lying in the field of one Sandeep son of Aval Singh on 15.03.2025, soon after 10.10 a.m. The police party, who came across the remains of cows' progeny, found 11 dismembered feet, four tails, parts of the head, besides parts of skin and a wooden block. The police team called Veterinary Medical Officer, Dr. Imran Ansari over his mobile phone to identify the remains. The Veterinary Medical Officer reached the spot and identified the remains as ones of the cows' progeny, regarding which he said he would make a separate report. The police team in the FIR, that they got registered with P.S. Jhinhana, said that the remains were found at the specified location, and that some unknown men had slaughtered the cows progeny, on the basis of which Crime No. 99 of 2025, under Section 3/8 of the Uttar Pradesh Prevention of Cow Slaughter Act, 1955 (for short, 'the Act of 1955'), P.S. Jhinhana, District Shamli, was registered. It was also recorded in the FIR that the remains were secured by the Police and upon directions of the Veterinary Medical Officer, in order to prevent foul stench, besides disease from spreading, interred the same, after digging up earth. The wooden block was marked and taken into custody.

3. It is next said in the FIR that Holi was around and the incident had led to unrest amongst the Hindu population, necessitating detailing of force to maintain peace. It was also said in the FIR that a memo of recovery was prepared on the spot and signed by members of the police party. In fact, it is the aforesaid memo, relating to recovery of remains of the cows' progeny, that was registered as the check FIR, giving rise to the crime.

4. The grounds, upon which the impugned detention is founded, are indeed detailed and recount all happenings and circumstances, leading to the petitioner's incarceration. Since other men were involved in the crime, that led to the petitioner's detention, and they too were similarly detained, the grounds carry reference to those others as well. Therefore, it may not be relevant for us to refer to the entire gamut of facts that the grounds carry. We propose to refer to only so much of whatever is said in the grounds as is relevant to the petitioner's detention under the National Security Act, 1980 (for short, 'the NSA'). After a copious reference to the discovery of the offence by the police team and whatever is said in the FIR, it is mentioned in the grounds that post registration of the crime, the Investigating Officer left for the place of occurrence, and upon reaching there, saw that at the field of Sandeep Kumar located in the jungle of Village Lavvadaudpur, a big crowd of people had congregated. Amongst them, members of the Hindu populace had frayed tempers, who were reasoned with and pacified.

5. The Investigating Officer then set about the task of finding out the identity and location of the offenders. The police informers were summoned for the purpose and necessary instructions issued to them. The Station House Officer, P.S. Jhinhana, upon learning of this happening, reached the spot, accompanied by members of his companion force. The S.H.O. again found a big crowd gathered at the place of occurrence and they were livid about the incident of cow slaughter. The crowd, that had now gathered, had representatives of various associations present, including Hindu organizations, such as the Rashtriya Bajrang Dal, the Pashchimi Uttar Pradesh Sanyukt Udyog Vyapar Mandal, the Shiv Sena Mandal Saharanpur Unit, the Akhil Bharatiya Pradhan Sangthan. Members of these organizations were shouting slogans and demanding the immediate arrest of the offenders responsible for the crime. This crowd blockaded the Jhinhana Thana Bhawan Road, leading to a long queue of vehicles on both sides of the blockade. The passersby and the travellers were much troubled. This jamming of the road on account of the blockade lasted for long hours, in consequence of which public order in the area was torn asunder.

6. Upon receiving information, the Circle Officer, Kairana, also reached the spot/ place of occurrence, along with members of his companion force and attempted to pacify the enraged members of the crowd. In the meanwhile, information of this incident was relayed to the nearby police stations and additional forces from those stations, such as Thana Bhawan, Garhi Pukhta, Thana Babri, arrived. They were detailed around the place of occurrence and the enangered villagers were assured about their own safety and that of their cattle. Police force had to camp at villages Naya Gaon, Dathaida, Gangarampur Khedki, Lavvadaudpur, Shamli-Shamla, Panthupura, Jijaula, Ballamajra, Toda, Khodsama and Laxmipura. The Police maintained surveillance in these villages, in order to ensure that the disturbed public order resulting from this incident could be restored.

7. The Investigating Officer on the 16th of March, 2025 learnt through a police informer that five men were involved in this incident of cow slaughter. They were Iqbal son of Rashid, Jaane Alam son of Sagir (the petitioner), Javed son of Islam, Wasim alias Gullu son of Salim, and Sameer son of Shamshad. All of them had together, according to the informer, committed the offence. By and by, the investigation proceeded and raids were made by the Police to interrogate men, whose names had surfaced in connection with the crime.

8. For a first, the Police went to the homes of Iqbal and Jaane Alam, one after the other, looking out for them, but they were not there. The relatives did not give any clue as to their whereabouts. Next, the Police went to Javed's house, but he too was not found at home. His relatives did not give any information as to his whereabouts. On 16.03.2025, upon an the informer's tip off that the offenders, responsible for the incident of cow slaughter, would be proceeding from Chausana to Mundet Khadar, carrying illicit weapons on them, and that they could be caught if a checking exercise was strictly undertaken, the Police went to the place of their reported movement. To shorten the narration of events, three of the men, said to be involved in the incident, were seen riding a motorcycle, and upon being challenged to stop, attempted to escape, accelerating the vehicle. They then turned aggressive, when it was apparent that they were surrounded by the police party, and opened fire. The policemen barely escaped unhurt and in the return fire, some of the offenders were injured. They were overpowered and apprehended. The apprehended men disclosed their names as Javed son of Islam, Iqbal son of Rasheed and the third, who was caught after a chase, revealed his name as Raees son of Mumtaz. All of them had firearms on them, besides mobile phones, the details of which are not very relevant to the controversy involved here. All the three were arrested.

9. On 16.03.2025 at 23:12 hours, the arrested men were interrogated, who disclosed that in the night intervening 12/ 13.03.2025, the three of them, along with Waseem @ Gullu son of Saleem and Sameer son of Shamshad, had slaughtered a cow and two calves, that were roaming free, doing this act in the jungle of Village Lavvadaudpur, precisely a sugarcane field. The flesh of the slaughtered progeny of the cow was sold, fetching them a sum of Rs.20,000/- in proceeds. A sum of Rs.5,999/- was utilized to buy a mobile handset, which was recovered from Iqbal and the residue was equally shared by all the offenders. It was also revealed that today when apprehended, they were planning to slaughter cows, roaming free in the jungle. The arrest of the three offenders and whatever they revealed was recorded on a mobile phone by Sub-Inspector Gyanendra Singh, the mobile carrying SID No. 2724984928831148. On the basis of these facts, a separate Crime No.104 of 2025, under Sections 109(1) B.N.S. and 3/25/27 of the Arms Act was registered vide G.D. No. 4 at 2:20 a.m. on 17.03.2025 at P.S. Jhinhana, District Shamli.

10. On the 17th of March, 2025, co-accused Sameer was apprehended by a police party during their beat on the basis of suspicion from Village Laxmipura Turn, near the Yamuna Barrage Road. The search of his person led to the recovery of an illicit knife, regarding which Sameer said he had the knife on him for the purpose of security, that is, if during a cow slaughter, someone confronted him, he could scare him away. It is said in the grounds that the co-accused Sameer was arrested under Section 4/25 of the Arms Act on account of recovery of the illicit knife and after communicating to him the grounds of his arrest, he was taken into police custody. During interrogation, Sameer revealed that he along with his brother-in-law (sister's husband Javed) and the latter's companion, Iqbal, Jane Alam (the petitioner) and Gullu, had together slaughtered a cow in the night intervening 12/ 13.03.2025 in the jungle located in Village Lavvadaudpur. Sameer said that he was trying to escape as the others were apprehended and waiting for the arrival of a friend, when the Police caught him. Sameer was made aware about his complicity in Crime No.99 of 2025, under Section 3/8 of the Act of 1955 and the fact that he was wanted there. The recovered knife was taken into custody and sealed, drawing up a recovery memo, which no member of the public signed, citing uncalled for enmity.

11. It is next said in the grounds of detention that the petitioner's co-accused Javed and Iqbal, upon their discharge from hospital, and co-accused Sameer, who is in the Police Lockup (Male), were all interrogated by Gyanendra Singh, Chowki In-charge, Chausana, whereupon Javed, Iqbal and Sameer confessed to their guilt in one voice and said that in the night intervening 12/13.03.2025, they along with their co-accused Jane Alam son of Saghir (the petitioner), besides Waseem @ Gullu, had slaughtered two calves and a cow, that were roaming free in the jungle. The accused took away the flesh of the animals and sold it in the adjoining villages. It fetch them Rs.20,000/-, out of which Rs.5,999/- were spent on purchasing a mobile phone of POCO Make. The mobile was purchased from Chausana in the name of Iqbal. The balance of the proceeds were distributed equally amongst the accused. The grounds of detention further say that Iqbal and Javed, together with their associate Raees, were on the lookout of catching hold of stray cattle in order to slaughter them, when the Police caught all three of them.

12. It is also said in the grounds that co-accused Sameer had revealed that he knew that his brother-in-law and co-accused Iqbal and Javed, besides Raees, were all arrested, on account of which he was on the lookout of an opportunity to flee the place, when he was apprehended by the Police. The grounds further say that co-accused Waseem @ Gullu son of Salim, a habitual offender, carrying a reward of Rs.25,000/- on his head, was apprehended on 27.03.2025 from Village Kachchi Garhi (Garhi Abdulla), P.S. Garhi Pukhta, District Shamli. The manner of his arrest has been described, involving exchange of fire with the Police, in which Waseem sustained a gunshot injury in his lower limb. He was given necessary medical aid and his injuries examined. The place of encounter was examined by the Field Unit, where empties etc. were recovered. In case of Waseem, he was arrested in Case Crime No.130 of 2025, under Section 109 (1), 317(5) B.N.S. and Section 3/25/27 of the Arms Act vide G.D. Entry No.48 at 16:55 hours on 27.03.2025. He too was challaned, apart from the aforesaid cases, in connection with Crime No.99 of 2025, under Section 3/8 of the Act of 1955. The co-accused Waseem too, on being interrogated in the Police Lockup, confessed to the offence under the Act of 1955. An arrest memo was separately drawn up for him. The arrest was communicated to his relatives. The entire proceedings of arrest were video-graphed by Sub-Inspector Raghvendra Singh on his mobile phone and saved to the e-evidence application. The aforesaid Waseem, during interrogation, revealed that he along with his co-accused, would slaughter the cow and its progeny, and his associates, Javed, Iqbal and Sameer, would sell meat in the adjoining villages and the border areas of Haryana State. For the said reason, he was challaned under Section 3/5A/8 of the Act of 1955. In his statement recorded pursuant to the said crime under the Act of 1955, Waseem confessed it.

13. The grounds of detention then go on to say that on 09.04.2025, the petitioner surrendered in Court and he was sent to the District Jail, Muzaffar Nagar by a warrant issued under Section 187 B.N.S.S. On 21.04.2025, the Investigating Officer Pramod Kumar along with Constable Lalit Mohan, pursuant to orders of the Court, went to the Jail to record the petitioner's statement. The petitioner is attributed with having said to the Investigating Officer that he had indulged in cow slaughter because of greed overtaking him. In the night intervening 12/13.03.2025, the petitioner acknowledged that he along with Javed, Iqbal, Waseem @ Gullu, Sameer, had slaughtered two calves and a cow that were roaming unclaimed in the jungle of Village Lavvadaudpur, doing so in the sugarcane field. They had sold off the meat for a sum of Rs.20,000/- , out of which Iqbal bought a mobile worth Rs.5,999/- from some shop in town Chausana and the balance of the proceeds were equally distributed amongst the accused.

14. It is also said in the grounds of detention that when the other co-accused were arrested, the petitioner was fleeing his house. He also told the Investigating Officer that earlier too, he had slaughtered the cow and its progeny in the jungle of Village Lavvadaudpur, roaming free and unclaimed. Since there is no Muslim settlement, close to Lavvadaudpur, there is no suspicion leading to ease in commission of the offence. The remains were hidden in the sugarcane fields.

15. It is next said in the grounds of detention that news of the cow slaughter in Village Lavvadaudpur spread like wildfire in that village and the adjoining villages of Naya Gaon, Dathaida, Gangarampur, Khedki, Panthupura, Jijaula, Laxmipura, Ballamajra, Toda and Khodsama, leading natives of the said village and workers of various organizations/ Hindu organizations to rush to the spot. Upon seeing the remains of the cow progeny, they were enraged. This event coincided with the festival of Holi, which led to religious feelings of the villagers being hurt. They let out their anger by resorting to slogan shouting and blockading the Thana Bhawan-Jhinhana Road completely. This cause a formidable road jam and on both sides of the blockade, a long queue of vehicles, all standstill was there. The passersby and travellers, caught in this traffic jam, were severely distressed and the public order was completely disturbed. Upon receipt of information, the S.H.O., P.S. Jhinhana along with police force posted at the Chowki and higher officials of the police reached the spot in order to attempt pacifying the crowd that had gathered there. Police summoned from the adjoining police stations was detailed to duty in maintaining public order and the villagers were assured about the safety and security of their animals, all towards an endeavour to restore public order.

16. The prevalent conditions on the spot are evident from copies of reports registered at Police Chowki Chausana, P.S. Jhinhana, memoranda handed over to the Police/ Administration by the various Hindu organizations, the material collected in the cases registered, including statements recorded and documentary evidence, besides intelligence collected from the adjoining villages by speaking to the locals there and that secured through informers. It is also said in the grounds that the incident was widely reported in various newspapers, which are annexed to the grounds.

17. The grounds of detention next say that on 09.05.2025, Head Constable 607 Raja Beniwal and Constable 1107 Jitendra Kumar, upon returning from their beat, got G.D. No.15 registered at 4.30 p.m., saying that the petitioner had got information conveyed through his close relatives from Jail that he would soon be released on bail by this Court, and upon being released from jail, would again commit cow slaughter because his source of livelihood was cow slaughter. The aforesaid beat information was investigated by Sub-Inspector Manoj Kumar, who found that the information carried correct facts, regarding which G.D. Entry No. 17 was made at 7.30 p.m. on 10.05.2025. In addition, the report submitted by the Local Intelligence Unit dated 29.04.2025 also verified the same facts as carried in the beat report.

18. It is then said in the grounds that the petitioner was in jail in connection with Case Crime No. 99 of 2025, under Section 3/5A/8 of the Act of 1955 and Section 4/25 of the Arms Act, incarcerated in the District Jail, Muzaffar Nagar, but he was regularly endeavouring to secure his release on bail. It is noted that a bail application was filed before the Lower Court, which was rejected, and then the Sessions Judge was moved, seeking bail. The Sessions Judge too rejected the petitioner's bail plea. Now, the petitioner had moved this Court and there are strong chances that the petitioner would be enlarged on bail.

19. It is said that the petitioner was consistently endeavouring to secure his release on bail. The fact that the petitioner was so endeavouring is also verified by the report of P.S. Jhinhana. The beat information and its verification, besides the Local Intelligence Unit report dated 29.04.2025, also verify the fact. It is next recorded in the grounds that it is, thus, evident that the petitioner's release is nigh. His criminal propensity makes it evident that once released from jail, there is likelihood of commission of such offences that public order in the local limits of P.S. Jhinhana and the adjoining areas would again be vitiated. The Detaining Authority then says that on the basis of the aforesaid facts and grounds, he was subjectively satisfied that the petitioner's release from jail could happen soon, and that upon release from jail, there was likelihood of his committing such offences, which are prejudicial to the maintenance of public order. In order to prevent him from acting in a manner prejudicial to the maintenance of public order, it was necessary to detain him.

20. The grounds then go on to inform the petitioner of his right to represent to the District Magistrate and the State Government under Section 8 of the NSA. It was also clearly informed that in the event the petitioner wished to exercise his right to represent to the Detaining Authority, he could do so through the Superintendent of Jail, where he was detained promptly. Such a representation, if moved within 12 days or before the approval of the detention by the State Government, whichever was earlier, would be considered by the Detaining Authority. The right to represent to the State Government could be exercised by the petitioner by moving the Secretary, Home Department, Government of U.P., Lucknow, through the Superintendent of the Jail, wherever the petitioner was detained.

21. The grounds further informs the petitioner that under Sections 9 and 10 of the NSA, if he wished to represent his case before the Uttar Pradesh Advisory Board, Lucknow, he could do so through the Registrar, U.P. Advisory Board, Lucknow, addressing him. The representation could be moved through the Superintendent of the Jail, where he was detained. The petitioner was further informed that the matter would be referred to the Advisory Board under Section 10 within three weeks of the petitioner's detention and his representation, if received with delay, would not be considered by the Board. The petitioner was also informed that under Section 11(1) of the NSA, if the Advisory Board thought it fit or the petitioner desires so, he could be heard in person. If the petitioner wanted a personal hearing before the Board, he must specifically mention it in his representation, which would have to make through the Superintendent of the Jail, where he was detained and presented to the State Government. The petitioner was informed that under Section 14 of the NSA, he had a right to represent his case against the detention to the Central Government. If the petitioner desired to invoke this remedy, he could do so by making a representation, addressed to the Secretary, Home Ministry, Government of India through the Deputy Secretary (Security), Security Department, Sector 11 Building, Jaisingh Road, near Wriggle Park, Jantar-Mantar, New Delhi, moving the said representation through the Jail Superintendent.

22. On the basis of these grounds, the District Magistrate, Shamli, passed a detention order under Section 3(3) read with Section 3(2) of the NSA, directing the petitioner to be detained in District Jail, Muzaffar Nagar. Since the petitioner's representation against his detention to the Advisory Board was rejected, the State Government, in exercise of their powers under Section 12(1), confirmed the detention order, directing the petitioner to be detained for a period of 12 months w.e.f. 26.05.2025.

23. Aggrieved, this habeas corpus writ petition has been preferred.

24. The writ petition was presented before the Registry on 16.09.2025 and all defects were removed on 06.10.2025. It came up before a Division Bench for admission on 09.10.2025, when rule nisi was granted. On 30.10.2025, when the writ petition again came up, a counter affidavit was filed on behalf of the District Magistrate, Shamli and another on behalf of the Jail Superintendent, Central Jail, Prayagraj, in Court. No counter affidavit was filed by then on behalf of the Union of India. A week's further time was granted to the Union to file their return. The matter adjourned to 07.11.2025. On 07.11.2025, a counter affidavit was filed on behalf of the Union of India also. A counter affidavit was further filed on behalf of the State of U.P. by the learned A.G.A., both of which were taken on record.

25. The learned Counsel for the petitioner was granted three days' time to file rejoinder affidavits to all the unanswered affidavits. On 13.11.2025, three days' further time was granted to the petitioner for rejoinders.

26. On 18.11.2025, four rejoinder affidavits were filed by the petitioner answering the counter affidavits. On the said day, noticing a prima facie discrepant stand in the counter affidavit filed on behalf of the District Magistrate and the ground of detention on a particular point, we passed the following order (relevant part)

“In the grounds of detention at page no. 75 of the paper book, it is said, in the opening lines of paragraph no. 12 that the detenue surrendered on 09.04.2025 and was remanded to judicial custody.

By contrast, in the counter affidavit on behalf of the District Magistrate, in paragraph no. 2 of the affidavit, it is averred :

2. That the petitioner was arrested on 09.04.2025, in Case Crime No. 99 of 2025 under section 3, 5-A, 8 of Cow Slaughter Act and section 4/25 of the Arms Act, Police Station, Jhijnjhana District Shamli. In pursuance of the said case, an order of remand dated 09.04.2025 was passed by A.C.J.M Shamli and in pursuance of the said remand order, the petitioner was sent to Jail.

The grounds of detention, the detention order dated 26.05.2025 as well as the counter affidavit filed by the District Magistrate are both signed and sworn, respectively by the same Officer, to wit, Arvind Kumar Chauhan, who is the incumbent District Magistrate, Shamli.

Let Arvind Kumar Chauhan file his personal affidavit, explaining this discrepancy in the grounds of detention and the counter affidavit filed by him. The said personal affidavit shall be filed by the District Magistrate, on or before 25.11.2025.

Adjourned to 25.11.2025.

To be taken up in the cause list of the day.”

27. In compliance with the order last mentioned, the District Magistrate filed his personal affidavit dated 24.11.2025, where he explained the inaccuracy attributing it to a clerical error in drafting the counter affidavit dated 09.04.2025 in the following words:

“3. That it is humbly submitted that deponent is tendering his unconditional, unfettered and unqualified apology for the inconvenience caused to this Hon'ble Court.

4. That it is humbly submitted that due to inadvertent mistake, in para-2 of counter affidavit of the deponent, "the petitioner was arrested on 09.04.2025" has been wrongly typed in place of "the petitioner had surrendered on 09.04.2025."

5. That the deponent is again tendering his unconditional apology for the inconvenience caused to this Hon'ble Court and in para-2 of the counter affidavit of the deponent, "the petitioner had surrendered on 09.04.2025 may kindly be incorporated in place of "the petitioner was arrested on 09.04.2025."

28. Heard Mr. Noor Ahmed, learned Counsel for the petitioner in support of this petition, Mr. Ghanshyam Kumar, learned Additional Government Advocate-I on behalf of the State and Mr. Manish Pandey, learned Central Government Counsel appearing for the Union of India.

29. Mr. Noor Ahmed, learned Counsel for the petitioner has urged that the Detaining Authority has not applied his mind, making the detention order mechanically and arbitrarily on the recommendation of the Sponsoring Authority, that is to say, the Police. It is next argued that the grounds of detention are not proper and the detention is based on speculation; not reality. The next submission is that the offence attributed to the petitioner is a petty offence, triable by Magistrate, which even if established to have been committed by him, would constitute no more than violation of law and order. There is no material to show that the petty offence, of which the petitioner was a part, could or did lead to vitiation of public order. Since, there is no case more than that of a violation of the law and order, the prosecution launched against the petitioner would test the petitioner's guilt or otherwise. There is absolutely no basis to invoke the NSA and detain the petitioner without trial, it being evident that there was no violation of public order.

30. It is next argued that the detenue is not at all involved in the case and his name has come to light on the confession of a co-accused. As such, it was not admissible in law. It is emphasized that the petitioner, not being named in Case Crime No.99 of 2025 and his name connected to the crime on the basis of information given by a police informer, when the petitioner came to know about the fact that he was wanted in Crime No.99 of 2025, under Section 3/8 of the Act of 1955, immediately surrendered before the Court. As such, there is no apprehension of disturbance to the public order from him. The opinion that his release on bail would disturb public order is based on speculation, surmises and conjectures. The grounds of detention are founded on incorrect information supplied by the Sponsoring Authority. It is also emphasized that the petitioner has no criminal history. It is next argued that there was no material to show that the petitioner, if enlarged on bail, would again indulge in commission of the offence of cow slaughter, endangering the maintenance of public order in future. There being no objective material in this regard, the subjective satisfaction of the Detaining Authority is clearly vitiated on account of being based on no material. It is specifically argued that the facts mentioned in paragraph No.15 of the grounds of detention are wrong and false.

31. Learned Counsel for the petitioner has placed reliance upon Annu @ Aniket v. Union of India and others, 2025 (4) GLT 39.

32. Mr. Ghanshyam Kumar, learned A.G.A.-I, has refuted the submissions advanced on behalf of the petitioner and submitted that the detention order has been made well within the requirements of the law. He has taken us through the various affidavits and the material, upon which the order of detention is founded.

33. So far as the submission that the impugned order is one made without application of mind is concerned, we do not think that, that is the case. A perusal of the grounds of detention show that there is a copious consideration not only of the crime disclosed in the FIR, giving rise to Crime No.99 of 2025, but the circumstances of the occurrence and its impact in the locale, where the offence was committed, vis-a-vis the issue of public order. This is not a case, where there is a mechanical recital of the fact alone that the offence constitutes a violation of public order, but shows due application of mind to the offence and its impact in the locale on the maintenance of public order. It is also not the case that the Detaining Authority has proceeded to pass the detention order without application of mind to the requirements of the law, after describing the ramifications of the offence in the locale. The Authority has held it to be an act that vitiated public order. It is also remarked by the Authority on the basis of material before it that it was subjectively satisfied that the petitioner was attempting to secure his release on bail and there was likelihood of his being released on bail. It is then said that the material further showed that the petitioner intended to repeat the offence by capturing stray cows, which if done, would again lead to the public order being prejudicially affected. All these features, which figure in the grounds of detention, make it evident that this is not a case, where it can be said that the order of detention has been passed without application of mind. The first point urged by the learned Counsel for the petitioner is, therefore, negatived.

34. It is submitted by learned Counsel for the petitioner that the grounds of detention are speculative and take into account irrelevant material. There is a detailed description of the events of the day beginning with discovery of remains of the cow and its progeny discovered by the police party in the sugarcane field, located in the jungle of Village Lavvadaudpur. The events that folded thereafter are amply recorded with movement of police parties, deployment of police force, protest by the public, blockade of the road and dislocation of life on the day in the locale, where it all happened. In the circumstances, to say that the grounds of detention are not proper and the detention based on speculation, is stated to be rejected.

35. The next point that arises for consideration is, if the act attributed to the petitioner or the offence committed by him are no more than violation of law and order, or these go way beyond it, to constitute a violation of public order. We must notice here that we have dealt with this point in our judgment of date, arising out of the same incident in Sameer and another v. State of U.P. and others, 2026:AHC:83732-DB. There, we have held:

“27. This takes us to the next submission that the crime reported against the petitioner, on the foot of which the impugned order of detention has been passed, is no more than an instance of the violation of law and order; not an incident, which prejudicially affects public order, so as to entitle the respondents to detain the petitioner without trial, invoking the provisions of the NSA.

28. We must remark here that in the genesis of every event, that is an infraction of the public order or its vitiation, there is some crime punishable by law, which can always be termed as a violation of law and order. The violation of law and order is, of course, to be punished in accordance with law after prosecuting the offender, but this does not mean that every infraction of the law and order, that spins out of its trouble spot and widely affects the even tempo of life, is to be regarded as a violation of law and order alone. Whether a violation of the law and order would be just that and no more or have a cascading effect, unsettling the even tempo of life in the locale, or even far and wide, is dependent upon the circumstances, the time, the place and the situation, where the infraction is committed. The point is well elucidated in the celebrated decision of the Supreme Court in Ram Manohar Lohia v. State of Bihar and another, AIR 1966 SC 740, where their Lordships of the Constitution Bench held:

"54. We have here a case of detention under Rule 30 of the Defence of India Rules which permits apprehension and detention of a person likely to act in a manner prejudicial to the maintenance of public order. It follows that if such a person is not detained public disorder is the apprehended result. Disorder is no doubt prevented by the maintenance of law and order also but disorder is a broad spectrum which includes at one end small disturbances and at the other the most serious and cataclysmic happenings. Does the expression "public order" take in every kind of disorders or only some of them? The answer to this serves to distinguish "public order" from "law and order" because the latter undoubtedly takes in all of them. Public order if disturbed, must lead to public disorder. Every breach of the peace does not lead to public disorder. When two drunkards quarrel and fight there is disorder but not public disorder. They can be dealt with under the powers to maintain law and order but cannot be detained on the ground that they were disturbing public order. Suppose that the two fighters were of rival communities and one of them tried to raise communal passions. The problem is still one of law and order but it raises the apprehension of public disorder. Other examples can be imagined. The contravention of law always affects order but before it can be said to affect public order, it must affect the community or the public at large.

A mere disturbance of law and order leading to disorder is thus not necessarily sufficient for action under the Defence of India Act but disturbances which subvert the public order are. A District Magistrate is entitled to take action under Rule 30(1)(b) to prevent subversion of public order but not in aid of maintenance of law and order under ordinary circumstances.

55. It will thus appear that just as "public order" in the rulings of this Court (earlier cited) was said to comprehend disorders of less gravity than those affecting "security of State", "law and order" also comprehends disorders of less gravity than those affecting "public order". One has to imagine three concentric circles. Law and order represents the largest circle within which is the next circle representing public order and the smallest circle represents security of State. It is then easy to see that an act may affect law and order but not public order just as an act may affect public order but not security of the State. By using the expression "maintenance of law and order" the District Magistrate was widening his own field of action and was adding a clause to the Defence of India Rules."

29. The point is again considered in Arun Ghosh v. State of W.B., (1970) 1 SCC 98, where the concept of public order, as distinguished from law and order, has been eloquently explained by their Lordship thus:

"3. The submission of the counsel is that these are stray acts directed against individuals and are not subversive of public order and therefore the detention on the ostensible ground of preventing him from acting in a manner prejudicial to public order was not justified. In support of this submission reference is made to three cases of this Court: Dr Ram Manohar Lohia v. State of Bihar [(1966) 1 SCR 709]; Pushkar Mukherjee v. State of W.B. [WP No. 179 of 1968, decided on November 7, 1968: (1969) 1 SCC 10] and Shyamal Chakraborty v. Commissioner of Police, Calcutta [WP No. 102 of 1969, decided on August 4, 1969: (1969) 2 SCC 426]. In Dr Ram Manohar Lohia case [(1966) 1 SCR 709] this Court pointed out the difference between maintenance of law and order and its disturbance and the maintenance of public order and its disturbance. Public order was said to embrace more of the community than law and order. Public order is the even tempo of the life of the community taking the country as a whole or even a specified locality. Disturbance of public order is to be distinguished from acts directed against individuals which do not disturb the society to the extent of causing a general disturbance of public tranquillity. It is the degree of disturbance and its affect upon the life of the community in a locality which determines whether the disturbance amounts only to a breach of law and order. Take for instance, a man stabs another. People may be shocked and even disturbed, but the life of the community keeps moving at an even tempo, however much one may dislike the act. Take another case of a town where there is communal tension. A man stabs a member of the other community. This is an act of a very different sort. Its implications are deeper and it affects the even tempo of life and public order is jeopardized because the repercussions of the act embrace large sections of the community and incite them to make further breaches of the law and order and to subvert the public order. An act by itself is not determinant of its own gravity. In its quality it may not differ from another but in its potentiality it may be very different. Take the case of assault on girls. A guest at a hotel may kiss or make advances to half a dozen chamber maids. He may annoy them and also the management but he does not cause disturbance of public order. He may even have a fracas with the friends of one of the girls but even then it would be a case of breach of law and order only. Take another case of a man who molests women in lonely places. As a result of his activities girls going to colleges and schools are in constant danger and fear. Women going for their ordinary business are afraid of being waylaid and assaulted. The activity of this man in its essential quality is not different from the act of the other man but in its potentiality and in its affect upon the public tranquillity there is a vast difference. The act of the man who molests the girls in lonely places causes a disturbance in the even tempo of living which is the first requirement of public order. He disturbs the society and the community. His act makes all the women apprehensive of their honour and he can be said to be causing disturbance of public order and not merely committing individual actions which may be taken note of by the criminal prosecution agencies. It means therefore that the question whether a man has only committed a breach of law and order or has acted in a manner likely to cause a disturbance of the public order is a question of degree and the extent of the reach of the act upon the society. The French distinguish law and order and public order by designating the latter as ordre publique. The latter expression has been recognised as meaning something more than ordinary maintenance of law and order. Justice Ramaswami in Writ Petition No. 179 of 1968 drew a line of demarcation between the serious and aggravated forms of breaches of public order which affect the community or endanger the public interest at large from minor breaches of peace which do not affect the public at large. He drew an analogy between public and private crimes. The analogy is useful but not to be pushed too far. A large number of acts directed against persons or individuals may total up into a breach of public order. In Dr Ram Manohar Lohia case examples were given by Sarkar and Hidayatullah, JJ. They show how similar acts in different contexts affect differently law and order on the one hand and public order on the other. It is always a question of degree of the harm and its affect upon the community. The question to ask is: Does it lead to disturbance of the current of life of the community so as to amount a disturbance of the public order or does it affect merely an individual leaving the tranquillity of the society undisturbed? This question has to be faced in every case on facts. There is no formula by which one case can be distinguished from another.”

30. There are some issues, where the community is sensitive to the extent that if these surface, there is an inherent potentiality of creating widespread ripples in society that would affect the even tempo of life. One of them is cow slaughter. The slaughtering of a cow, whenever reported or detected, spontaneously evokes strong emotions and violent reactions for obvious injury to religious beliefs of a large section of the society. History is replete with instances of profusion of emotions and violence that an incident of this kind entails. And, it is not that these are matters of historical record to be read in books or fancied about in contemporary world. Violent reactions at the happening of cow slaughter are so well reputed that no one can feign ignorance of the fact, violation of the law apart. Public order is after all not about what the intention of the individual was, or what law he has violated. It is about the impact that his act generates. If the act in question is such that it is not confined to one, two or a few individuals, but disturbs the even tempo of life in the locale or may be beyond, in larger areas, prejudice to public order, is certainly there. The particular act of slaughtering a cow, as already remarked, has immediate and widespread ramifications in society, almost always leading to widespread violence that takes toll on a tranquil society and throws life out of gear.

31. There are a series of decisions of this Court, which acknowledge the fact that cow slaughter foments communal tension, brings disharmony and results in a situation, that leads to disturbance of public order. The point is elucidated in a few words in the Bench decision of this Court in Shaukat Ali v. Union of India and others, 2002 SCC OnLine All 1435. In Shaukat Ali (supra), it was held:

“1. A perusal of the grounds of detention copy of which is Annexure 2, shows that the allegations against the petitioner are that the petitioner had slaughtered a cow and the knife and rods were recovered from him. This incident caused communal tension and hence the impugned detention order was passed.

2. Communal amity and harmony are absolutely essential for the progress of the nation. We cannot afford to have another Gujarat in U.P. Slaughter of cow hurts the sentiments of the Hindus and hence should not be committed. In our opinion cow slaughter affects public order because it is likely to incite communal tension.

3. Hence it is not merely a case of law and order.”

32. Again in Tauqeer v. State of U.P. and others, 2002 SCC OnLine All 230, it was held:

“4. We have carefully perused the detention order and find that the matter certainly pertains to public order and not to law and order. Under our Constitution freedom of religion has been guaranteed as a fundamental right. However the U.P. Prevention of Cow Slaughter Act bans the slaughter of cows and calves. The petitioner has no right to break the law and violate the above Act. It may be mentioned that nobody has right to do any thing which may lead to communal tension in the country. In case we permit such activities a situation like in Gujarat may recur again Hindus, rightly or wrongly venerate cows. The Muslims should also respect the sentiments of the Hindus and noticing should be done Which may provoke communal riots. The last thing which country can afford today is inflammation of communal feelings in the Society. The petitioner with his associate could slaughter any other animal but certainly not slaughter cows against the provisions of the Prevention of Cow Slaughter Act as that may create communal tension.”

33. In Guddu Panchhi v. District Magistrate, Kanpur Nagar and others, 2004 SCC OnLine All 1847, the following remarks of the Division Bench are relevant:

“3. Slaughtered cow and she-calf were found lying at the spot. The news of the incident spread in the area like wild fire. Members of the two communities of the society, i.e. Hindus and Muslims collected at the spot in agitated mood and started raising slogans against one another. Communal harmony was disturbed and the atmosphere became tense. The shopkeepers started downing their shutters. People ran helter-skelter. The public order was completely disturbed. S.O. informed the higher authorities on telephone and requisitioned additional force to control the situation. Case Crime No. 217 of 2003 under Sections 3/5/8 of U.P. Cow Slaughter Act was registered against the petitioner and others.

6. Obviously, it is the reaction or fall out of an incident in the society which is determinative as to whether it was only disturbance of law and order or that of public order. In the present case, there was a live link between the alleged criminal activity of the petitioner of cow slaughtering and the purpose of detention. The act was clearly prejudicial to public order as is borne out from the grounds of detention reiterated by respondent No. 1 District Magistrate, Kanpur Nagar in his counter-affidavit. The act of the petitioner offended the religious feelings of a sect of society venerating cow and its progeny, besides being in contravention of U.P. Prevention of Cow Slaughter Act. The incident disturbed the even tempo of the life of the society. Members of two communities thronged the spot, shouting slogans against one another. The shops were closed and public tranquility was disturbed in the area with tempers of the two communities of the society running high. Additional force had to be deployed in the area to restore the confidence of the people and for the return of normalcy. The incident adversely affected the social harmony, created communal tension and disturbed public order of the area. The matter certainly pertains to public order and not to law and order. We, therefore, reject the sole argument advanced by the learned counsel for the petitioner in support of the petition that it was a matter of law and order only□□..”

34. Much later in Wasi through Mohd. Rafi v. State of U.P. and others, 2017 SCC OnLine All 1880 in the context of an offence of cow slaughter and its bearing on the disturbance of public order, it was held by a Division Bench of this Court:

“30. Learned counsel for the petitioner has emphatically argued that the place of incident where cow was slaughtered is not a public place, as such, it cannot be treated as an issue of public order. It is the reaction or fall out of an incident in the society which is determinative, as to whether, it was only disturbance of law and order or that of public order. Admittedly, the cow slaughter in an open place may have offended the religious feeling of a society, it is, therefore, important to see the proportionality of the response to the act complained of and in view of this, the gravity of the act may be given a thought where the body parts of cow were lying open in public view. Where cattle has been slaughtered in public view, which may definitely lead to disturbance of the current life of the community, so as to amount to a disturbance of a public order, communal amity and harmony. Slaughter of cow hurts the sentiments of the Hindus which affects public order because it is likely to incite communal tension, hence, it is not merely a case of law and order but that of public order.”

35. We have already noticed the kind of impact that the incident had not only in the village, where it happened, but in the adjoining villages of Naya Gaon, Dathaida, Gangarampur Khedki, Lavvadaudpur, Shamli-Shamla, Panthupura, Jijaula, Ballamajra, Toda, Khodsama and Laxmipura. The aftermath of the slaughter and its discovery by the Police led to the local populace and volunteers of organizations heading to the place of occurrence. They were workers of Hindu organizations as also others, like Pashchimi Uttar Pradesh Sanyukt Udyog Vyapar Mandal and the Akhil Bharatiya Pradhan Sangthan, who participated with the public in staging a blockade on the Thana Bhawan □ Jhinhana Road. It led to a complete traffic jam with passersby and travellers, badly stuck and unable to move. The even tempo of life was thrown out of gear, necessitating the summoning of additional forces from adjoining police stations. In fact, it was after very sensitive and trained persuasions by officers of the Police that public order could be restored. The locals of the village and adjoining villages had to be assured about their safety and security as well as that of their animals.

36. These facts amply show that it was no isolated incident of a violation of the law and order, but one which threw the even tempo of life out of gear. It is the disturbing effect of an incident on serene and tranquil life that determines if it is indeed a violation of public order or a mere breach of law and order. It is not necessary that there should be actual violence, loss of human life and property before an incident can be termed as disturbance of public order. It is disturbance of the daily and ordinary movements of life in the locale, which are the index of vitiation of public order.

37. In the totality of circumstances, we hold that this is decidedly a case where public order was prejudicially affected in consequence of the offence committed by the petitioner. And, it is not a mere case of infraction of law and order.”

36. In Annu @ Aniket, the order of preventive detention was held to have been passed mechanically, without application of mind, and based upon extraneous considerations, as it was based in that case solely upon the criminal antecedents of the detainee. It was in Annu @ Aniket:

“37. In Nenavath Bujji (supra), this Court summed up the relevant considerations to be taken into account by the detaining authority to arrive at a subjective satisfaction of the need for an order of preventive detention and the scope of judicial review. This Court held thus:

43. We summarize our conclusions as under: -

(i) The detaining authority should take into consideration only relevant and vital material to arrive at the requisite subjective satisfaction,

(ii) It is an unwritten law, constitutional and administrative, that wherever a decision-making function is entrusted to the subjective satisfaction of the statutory functionary, there is an implicit duty to apply his mind to the pertinent and proximate matters and eschew those which are irrelevant & remote,

(iii) There can be no dispute about the settled proposition that the detention order requires subjective satisfaction of the detaining authority which, ordinarily, cannot be questioned by the court for insufficiency of material. Nonetheless, if the detaining authority does not consider relevant circumstances or considers wholly unnecessary, immaterial and irrelevant circumstances, then such subjective satisfaction would be vitiated,

(iv) In quashing the order of detention, the Court does not sit in judgment over the correctness of the subjective satisfaction. The anxiety of the Court should be to ascertain as to whether the decision-making process for reaching the subjective satisfaction is based on objective facts or influenced by any caprice, malice or irrelevant considerations or non-application of mind,

(v) While making a detention order, the authority should arrive at a proper satisfaction which should be reflected clearly, and in categorical terms, in the order of detention,

(vi) The satisfaction cannot be inferred by mere statement in the order that □ it was necessary to prevent the detenu from acting in a manner prejudicial to the maintenance of public order□. Rather the detaining authority will have to justify the detention order from the material that existed before him and the process of considering the said material should be reflected in the order of detention while expressing its satisfaction,

(vii) Inability on the part of the state□s police machinery to tackle the law and order situation should not be an excuse to invoke the jurisdiction of preventive detention,

(viii) Justification for such an order should exist in the ground(s) furnished to the detenu to reinforce the order of detention. It cannot be explained by reason(s) / grounds(s) not furnished to the detenu. The decision of the authority must be the natural culmination of the application of mind to the relevant and material facts available on the record, and

(ix) To arrive at a proper satisfaction warranting an order of preventive detention, the detaining authority must, first examine the material adduced against the prospective detenu to satisfy itself whether his conduct or antecedent(s) reflect that he has been acting in a manner prejudicial to the maintenance of public order and, second, if the aforesaid satisfaction is arrived at, it must further consider whether it is likely that the said person would act in a manner prejudicial to the public order in near future unless he is prevented from doing so by passing an order of detention. For passing a detention order based on subjective satisfaction, the answer of the aforesaid aspects and points must be against the prospective detenu. The absence of application of mind to the pertinent and proximate material and vital matters would show lack of statutory satisfaction on the part of the detaining authority.

37.1. Thus, in Nenavath Bujji (supra), this Court highlighted that inability on the part of the police machinery to tackle a law and order situation should not be an excuse to invoke the jurisdiction of preventive detention.

38. At this stage, we may also usefully refer to another recent decision of a coordinate Bench of this Court in Ameena Begum Vs. State of Telangana, (2023) 9 SCC 587. In that case also the Bench observed that a detenu□s criminal antecedents or his habituality of committing offences cannot, in isolation, be the sole basis of an order of preventive detention. Merely because a detenu was charged for committing multiple offences, it cannot be said that he was in the habit of committing such offence.

39. On the touchstone of the proposition of law laid down by this Court through the above decisions, when we examine the order of preventive detention in the instant case as well as the order rejecting the representation of the appellant against the preventive detention, it is evident that the detaining authority was solely guided by the criminal antecedents of the appellant and thereafter formed the satisfaction that the appellant was in the habit of committing such offences. Consequently, the power of preventive detention was invoked. We have already noted above that as against nine criminal proceedings against the appellant, including the present one, he has been acquitted in five cases. Two proceeding are still pending but in those proceedings, appellant is on bail. Only in one proceeding, appellant was convicted but the sentence was only imposition of fine.

In so far the present criminal case (being Crime No.236/2024) is concerned, appellant was granted bail on 28.01.2025.

40. Viewed in the above conspectus of facts and law, it is clear that there was non-application of mind by respondent No.3 as to the requirement of preventive detention qua the appellant. The entire intent appears to continue the detention of the appellant since he was likely to get bail in the criminal case, which, in fact, he got. Such nonapplication of mind to the material facts and taking of extraneous factors into consideration has completely vitiated the order of preventive detention as well as the order rejecting the representation. □

37. Learned Counsel for the petitioner has called in aid the authority of the Supreme Court in Annu @ Aniket (supra) on the point that non-application of mind vitiates an order of detention. Annu @ Aniket was a case, where a student was detained under the NSA for assaulting a College Professor during working hours inside the premises of an educational institution. It was said that it disrupted academic activity and caused widespread panic. Largely the order was passed bearing in mind that there was likelihood of the detainee coming out on bail, and disturbing public peace and law and order. The order was passed largely on the basis of the detainee's criminal antecedents, that is to say, the number of cases pending against him. It was noticed by the Supreme Court that while rejecting the detainee's representation, the District Magistrate, who passed the detention order, invoked Section 3(2) of the NSA in order to maintain peace and law and order in the area, and to create a fear free environment amongst the public. After referring to consistent authorities on the point in Annu @ Aniket, it was observed:

“36. Thus, it is now clear that public order has a narrower ambit and could be affected by only such contravention which affects the community or the public at large. Public order is the even tempo of life of the community taking the country as a whole or even a specified locality. It is the potentiality of the act to disturb the even tempo of life of the community which makes it prejudicial to the maintenance of public order. If a contravention in its effect is confined only to a few individuals directly involved as distinct from a wide spectrum of public, it would be an issue of law and order only. □

38. The present case is not one of the kind that was under consideration before their Lordships of the Supreme Court in Annu @ Aniket. Here, is a case where the petitioner was found indulging in a particular kind of offence that spontaneously arouses religious passions amongst a large section of the community, inciting them to indulge in violence, with the imminent likelihood of vitiation of public order in the locale. They have slaughtered a cow, which, like always, led to frayed tempers and violent emotions displayed by members of the public, agitating and blockading the road, and throwing life out of gear in the locale. It is not a case, where for a simple violation of law and order, an irrelevant consideration, like past instances of violations of law and order were taken into consideration by the Detaining Authority to infer that the detainee, if released on bail, would indulge in similar acts, that would lead to public order being prejudicially affected. Reliance, therefore, placed by the learned Counsel for the petitioner on Annu @ Aniket, so far as this point goes, is completely misplaced in our opinion.

39. For the very same reason as those in Sameer (supra), our conclusions are also the same. We, therefore, reject the petitioner's submission that it was not a case of violation of public order, but merely an infraction of law and order.

40. The next submission advanced on behalf of the petitioner is that the petitioner's name in the crime, that has led to the detention, has come through the confession of a co-accused, and, therefore, not admissible in law. It is urged that not being named in the case crime, he has been connected on the basis of information given by a police informer. It is also emphasized that upon coming to know of the fact that he was wanted in the crime, the petitioner surrendered in Court immediately, which shows no apprehension of disturbance to the public order.

41. So far as the petitioner's case goes, it must be remarked that in case of preventive detention, while irrelevant material cannot be taken into consideration, such as mere criminal history of the detainee, indulging in acts of violation of law and order in the past, the law of evidence to connect the offender to the crime, would not be attracted. Quite apart, the rule against reliance on accomplice testimony alone, without being corroborated in material particulars, belongs to the law of evidence applicable in a trial, and it is a rule of prudence; not law. It is not that accomplice evidence is absolutely irrelevant, unless corroborated in material particulars by evidence aliunde. It can, with caution, be acted upon during trial as well. It has to be borne in mind that these proceedings, where preventive detention is ordered, do not partake of the character of a trial.

42. It is true that being a serious inroad into an individual's liberty to be detained without trial, the harsh law of preventive detention must always be construed strictly in favour of the citizen. But, this does not mean that material, which shows that a person, who was involved in the commission of a particular act, disturbing public order, is to be ignored on the ground that the material available to the Detaining Authority, would not be dependable evidence in a trial of the man on a criminal charge, if otherwise his complicity is well established. Moreover, correctness of the allegations in a preventive detention matter is not up for a scrutiny before the Court, doing a judicial review of the Administrator's decision to preventively detain.

43. The veracity of the material is not to be tested for its truth or falsehood, but its relevance to the exercise of power to preventively detain alone is what matters. Therefore, what the petitioner wants us to do is virtually to say that he was not involved in the crime, which led to the breach of public order. We cannot sit in judgment on that material and hold him not involved, in these proceedings.

44. There is another facet to the ground that the learned Counsel for the petitioner has raised here. He has come up with a novel submission. He says that upon coming to know of his involvement in the crime, he immediately surrendered before the Court. This shows his release on bail would not give rise to any apprehension of disturbance to the public order, as far as he is concerned. We are afraid, we cannot agree. The mere fact that a man, upon hearing of his involvement in a crime, that has led to vitiation of the public order, decides to surrender in Court and go to jail because he knows that he would be arrested, like others, is not at all relevant to a decision on the point that if released on bail, would he indulge in a similar act, again leading to the public order being prejudicially affected. The propensity of a man to escape the inconvenience of arrest by the Police and secure a safe passage to judicial custody through the Court, is no index about his later behaviour, once released on bail as far as acts go, that may lead to the violation of public order. The submission is, therefore, rejected.

45. So far as the contention that the grounds of detention are founded on incorrect information supplied by the Sponsoring Authority, is based on vague assertion. Generally, the material, that is before the Detaining Authority, coming from the Sponsoring Authority, is not to be judged for its truth or falsehood by this Court in judicial review, unless it can be shown that the report of the Sponsoring Authority is patently false to the extent of being based on non-existent material. In this case, the grounds of detention would show that the petitioner's name figured in the statements of co-accused Javed, Iqbal and Raesh, who were arrested on the first tip off from the police informer and overpowered after a shootout. They have disclosed the petitioner's name, as one amongst them, who had slaughtered the cow's progeny in the jungle of Village Lavvadaudpur in the night intervening 12/ 13.03.2025. The statements of these men were video-graphed by Sub-Inspector Gyanendra Singh on his mobile and saved in the e-evidence application with SID No. 2724984928831148. The petitioner's name was again revealed by Sameer, who was separately apprehended on 17.03.2025 by the police team, headed by Sub-Inspector Pramod Kumar. The recovery and arrest of Sameer too was video-graphed and saved to the e-evidence application. A material of this kind cannot be said to be one that is false on its face, or one which is based on non-existing facts reported by the Police to the Detaining Authority. The petitioner's contention on this count cannot, therefore, be accepted.

46. It is next argued that there is no material to show that the petitioner, if enlarged on bail, would again indulge in commission of the offence of cow slaughter, endangering the maintenance of public order in future. It is pointed out that there is no objective material in this regard, on the foot of which the Detaining Authority could have been subjectively satisfied that the petitioner, indeed, would indulge in acts involving cow slaughter in future, upon being released on bail. The opinion of the Detaining Authority on this score is based on no material, according to the learned Counsel for the petitioner.

47. There are three definitive items of material, on the basis of which the Detaining Authority has concluded that if released on bail, the petitioner would again indulge in acts of cow slaughter, which would in all likelihood prejudicially affect the public order. The first is an information sent back home from jail by the petitioner that he would be released on bail pursuant to orders of this Court, and once released, he would carry on with slaughtering cows because it was his livelihood. This material figured in a Beat Constables' report, jointly submitted by two members of the police force, a Head Constable and a Constable, who heard about it in their beat on 09.05.2025 and made an entry of it upon return to the police station vide G.D. Entry No. 15 at 16.30 hours.

48. The second item of material is the report of Sub-Inspector Manoj Kumar, who inquired into the truth of this Beat Constables' report and found that the contents of G.D. Entry No. 15 dated 09.05.2025 were correct and he made his report that was entered vide G.D. Entry No. 17 dated 10.05.2025 at 7.30 p.m.

49. In addition, the third item of material, that was taken into consideration, is a report of the Local Intelligence Unit dated 29.04.2025, affirming the fact of the petitioner having conveyed such intentions of his to his associates upon being released from prison.

50. As already remarked, in the present petition, we cannot inquire into the truth or sufficiency of the material, upon which the Detaining Authority has acted. All that we can see is, if there was relevant and existing material for the Detaining Authority to subjectively form opinion, and here, on point that upon release from prison, would the petitioner continue to indulge in acts of cow slaughter that have the innate tendency of immediately working up religious passions amongst a large section of the community with resultant violence, that would lead to widespread disturbance of the kind that is the hallmark of violation of public order as distinguished from a mere violation of law and order. Therefore, in our opinion, it is not a case where there was no objective material for the Detaining Authority to be subjectively satisfied that the petitioner, if enlarged on bail, would again indulge in commission of the offence of cow slaughter, endangering the maintenance of public order in future. The petitioner's contention on this count too is, therefore, rejected.

51. No other point was pressed at the hearing.

52. In the circumstances, we are of opinion that there is no infirmity in the order impugned, ordering the petitioner's detention under the NSA.

53. This habeas corpus writ petition fails and is dismissed.

Habeas Corpus Writ Petition No. 931 of 2025

Smt. Rinku Ram @ Rinku Devi & Anr. ...Petitioners
Versus
State of U.P. & Ors. ...Respondents

Issue for Consideration

Whether the petitioner is entitled to the custody of the minor corpus on the ground that the minor, being only 21 months old, is wholly dependent on the petitioner for his nutritional and other essential needs and in terms of Section 6 of the Hindu Minority and Guardianship Act, 1956, up to the age of five years, the mother is considered the best guardian of the minor.

Head Notes

The Constitution of India, 1950-Article 226 (Habeas Corpus)- The Hindu Minority and Guardianship Act, 1956- Section 6- The Hindu Minority and Guardianship Act- It is well-established that, ordinarily, the custody of a minor who has not attained the age of five years is entrusted to the mother. This principle has been recognized and codified by the legislature through the above relevant statutory provision. The legislative intent underlying this enactment reflects recognition of the unique nutritional, emotional, and developmental needs of the minor, which, in the formative years, can best be met by the mother. While the father plays an essential role in the child's upbringing, it is the mother who, by reason of biological and nurturing considerations, is ordinarily best positioned to secure the physical and emotional welfare of the minor.

Held- Keeping in view the tender age of the corpus t is in the best interest that his custody is handed to the petitioner because for the nutritional needs, he is fully dependent on the petitioner. It will be an injustice to deprive the corpus from the custody of his mother. (E-15)

Case Arising From

Instant dispute concerns the custody of the minor corpus, who is approximately 21 months old and is presently in the custody of his father, respondent no.6, a constable in the U.P. Police posted in District Jaunpur.

Appearances for Parties

Counsel for Petitioner(s) : Ajay Singh Sengar, Kamal Dev Singh Chanchal, Kamla Kant Mishra, Varun Mishra
Counsel for Respondent(s) : G.A., Mariya Khatoon, Ram Kesh

(Delivered by Hon'ble Sandeep Jain, J.)

1. The supplementary rejoinder affidavit has been filed in Court today and is taken on record.
2. Heard Shri K.K. Mishra, learned counsel for the petitioners, and Shri Rakesh Pande, learned Senior Advocate, assisted by Shri Ram Kesh, learned counsel for respondent no.6.
3. The instant dispute concerns the custody of the minor corpus, Vishwajeet, who is approximately 21 months old and is presently in the custody of his father, respondent no.6, Dharmendra Ram, a constable in the U.P. Police posted in District Jaunpur.

4. Earlier, by order dated 06.11.2025, a Coordinate Bench of this Court had dismissed the instant writ petition on the ground that the parties could seek custody of the minor under the Guardian and Wards Act, 1890. That order was challenged by the petitioner by filing Special Appeal No.1205 of 2025 (Smt. Rinku Ram @ Rinku Devi & Anr. v. State of U.P. & Ors.), which was allowed by a Division Bench of this Court vide order dated 03.04.2026, and the matter has been restored to its original number for adjudication on merits.

5. The Division Bench after considering the various precedents of the Apex Court has concluded that in a habeas corpus petition for the custody of the minor only the welfare of the child is paramount and the Court has to examine this aspect. It was held that on the ground of alternative remedy, the habeas corpus petition cannot be dismissed.

6. Another factor, which influenced the decision of the Division Bench was an ex parte order dated 10.09.2025 passed by the Child Welfare Committee, whereby the custody of the minor was handed to the petitioner, but during the pendency of this appeal that order has been set aside in Criminal Appeal No.47 of 2026 (Dharmendra Ram vs. State of U.P. and others), passed by the Children Court/Special Judge (POCSO Act), Court No.8, Ballia dated 21.04.2026. In view of this, at present there is no judicial order in favour of the petitioner, whereby, the legal custody of the minor has been handed to the petitioner.

7. Learned counsel for the petitioner submitted that the petitioner Smt. Rinku Ram @ Rinku Devi's marriage with respondent no.6 was solemnized on 04.12.2023; however, due to illegal demands for dowry, the petitioner was subjected to mental and physical harassment, and acts of cruelty were committed against her. It was further submitted that on 31.08.2024, the petitioner gave birth to the corpus Vishwajeet, who is now about 21 months old, who is in the illegal custody of respondent no.6. It was further submitted that the corpus has been illegally taken away by the respondent on 19.08.2025 regarding which, an FIR has been registered on 07.03.2026, under Section 75 of the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2015 at Police Station Haldi, District Ballia against respondent, Dharmendra Ram. It was submitted that the respondent has been suspended by the S.S.P., Jaunpur by order dated 12.03.2026 for his illegal act and acting in defiance of the orders of the Child Welfare Committee dated 10.09.2025, whereby he was directed to handover the custody of the minor to the petitioner.

8. Learned counsel submitted that the minor, being only 21 months old, is wholly dependent on the petitioner, Smt. Rinku Ram @ Rinku Devi, for his nutritional and other essential needs. Further, in terms of Section 6 of the Hindu Minority and Guardianship Act, 1956, up to the age of five years, the mother is considered the best guardian of the minor. In view of the paramount welfare of the minor, the petitioner is, therefore, entitled to the custody of the minor corpus. He further submitted that the respondent is having an affair with another woman, which is evident from the WhatsApp chats submitted by the petitioner; as such, this fact alone disentitles the respondent from claiming custody of the minor corpus.

9. In support of his contention, learned counsel for the petitioner has relied upon the following judgments:

1. Manju Tiwari vs. Rajendra Tiwari 1990 LawSuit(SC)24.
2. Gohar Begum vs. Suggi 1959 LawSuit(SC)144.
3. Arvinder Kaur vs. State of Punjab and Others CRWP-5617 of 2020.
4. Master Atharva(Minor) and Another vs. State of UP and 7 Others Neutral Citation No.2020:AHC:92812.
5. Mohd. Irfan vs. State of UP and 2 Others Neutral Citation No.2014:AHC:221825-DB.
6. xxxxxxx vs. State of Kerala and Others 2024 SCC OnLine Ker 6166.
7. Prabha Rani Das vs. State of Tripura and Others 2026 SCC OnLine Tri 97.
8. Kanchan Akshay Shinde vs. The State of Maharashtra 2026 NCBHC-AS 11768.
9. Master Samarjeet Singh (Minor Detenue) And Another vs. State of UP and 4 others Neutral Citation No.2019:AHC:180361-DB.
10. Dr. Dinesh Kumar Agarwal and Others vs. State of UP and Others 2026(2) ADJ 400(DB)(LB).

10. Per contra, Shri Rakesh Pande, learned Senior Counsel, submitted that earlier the custody of the minor corpus had been handed to the petitioner by the Child Welfare Committee by order dated 10.09.2025; however, the same was set aside in appeal preferred under Section 101 of the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2015 by the respondent. The said appeal was allowed by the Children Court/Special Judge (POCSO Act), Court No. 8, Ballia, on 21.04.2026. Accordingly, there is no judicial order presently in existence whereby custody of the minor corpus has been granted to the petitioner.

11. It was further submitted that the petitioner has education only up to the intermediate level, is unemployed, has no independent income, and is wholly dependent on her parents for assistance; as such, she is not capable of looking after the interests of the minor.

12. He further submitted that as per medical prescriptions of the petitioner filed by the respondent, it is apparent that she is addicted to Gul, is alcoholic and is further having psychiatric problems, who is not in stable mental condition, which disentitles her to claim the custody of the corpus. It was further submitted that the respondent, who is in a government job is having a stable income, who is the father of the corpus and who is fully capable of ensuring the welfare of the corpus, as such, the custody of the corpus be remained with his father. It was further submitted that complicated questions are involved, as such the parties be relegated to pursue their remedy in accordance with the Guardian and Wards Act, 1890 for claiming the custody of the minor, which cannot be adjudicated in this writ petition.

13. In support of his contention, learned counsel has relied upon the following case law:

1. Tejaswini Gaud and Others vs. Shekhar Jagdish Prasad Tewari and Others (2019) 7 SCC 42.

2. Nirmala vs. Kulwant Singh and Others (2024) 10 SCC 595.

3. Smt. Deeksha and Another vs. State of UP and Others Neutral Citation No.2026:AHC:89038.

14. I have heard the learned counsel for the parties and perused the record and the documents submitted by them through affidavit.

15. It is evident that earlier the habeas corpus petition was dismissed on the ground of availing alternative remedy under the Guardian and Wards Act, 1890 on 06.11.2025, but that order was challenged by the petitioner by filing Special Appeal No.1205 of 2025 (Smt. Rinku Ram @ Rinku Devi & Anr. v. State of U.P. & Ors.), which was allowed by the Division Bench of this Court vide order dated 03.04.2026, wherein the matter has been restored on its original number and as such, this Court has to decide the habeas corpus petition on merits.

16. It is also apparent that since the earlier order of the Child Welfare Committee dated 10.09.2025 in favour of the petitioner has been set aside by the Appellate Court on 21.04.2026, as such, the custody of the minor has not been assigned to any party by judicial order.

17. In view of this, this Court is tasked with determining what serves the best interests of the minor corpus and, accordingly, who is entitled to his custody. The authorities cited by both parties emphasize that the paramount consideration in matters of child custody is the welfare of the minor child. It is incumbent upon the Court to identify the individual best suited to safeguard the minor's well-being and interests. Guided by this principle, the Court proceeds to adjudicate the issue of custody in the instant case.

18. Section 6 of the Hindu Minority and Guardianship Act, 1956, reads as under:

“6.Natural guardians of a Hindu minor.- The natural guardian of a Hindu minor, in respect of the minor's person as well as in respect of the minor's property (excluding his or her undivided interest in joint family property), are-

(a) in the case of a boy or an unmarried girl-the father, and after him, the mother; provided that the custody of a minor who has not completed the age of five years shall ordinarily be with the mother;

(b) in the case of an illegitimate boy or an illegitimate unmarried girl-the mother, and after her, the father;

(c) in the case of a married girl-the husband;

Provided that no person shall be entitled to act as the natural guardian of a minor under the provisions of this section-

(a) if he has ceased to be a Hindu, or

(b) if he has completely and finally renounced the world by becoming a hermit (vanaprastha) or an ascetic (yati or sanyasi).”

19. It is well-established that, ordinarily, the custody of a minor who has not attained the age of five years is entrusted to the mother. This principle has been recognized and codified by the legislature through the above relevant statutory provision. The legislative intent underlying this enactment reflects a recognition of the unique nutritional, emotional, and developmental needs of the minor, which, in the formative years, can best be met by the mother. While the father plays an essential role in the child's upbringing, it is the mother who, by reason of biological and nurturing considerations, is ordinarily best positioned to secure the physical and emotional welfare of the minor. Accordingly, in adjudicating the present habeas corpus petition, the Court must be guided by the paramount consideration of the minor's welfare.

20. In the instant case, keeping in view the allegations levelled by the parties against each other, in the opinion of the Court, at this stage, there is no possibility of reconciliation between the parties. It is apparent that the husband is not paying any maintenance to the wife, to which he is legally obliged and, as such, the petitioner is dependent on her parents. The petitioner has filed an affidavit, in which, she has stated that her mother Lalita Devi is in government service working in Vikas Khand Revati, District Ballia under District Panchayat Raj Adhikari, Ballia and was getting a salary of Rs.47,000/- per month, whereas her father was retired government employee getting a pension of Rs.30,000/- per month. The petitioner has filed the relevant documents to establish that her mother is a government employee and her father is a retired government servant.

21. The respondent has levelled certain allegations against the petitioner that she is an addict, alcoholic and is not in a fit mental condition to have the custody of the minor corpus and to substantiate these allegations some prescriptions issued by District Hospital, Varanasi dated 04.06.2025 and 02.07.2025 have been filed, which only mention that the petitioner was suffering from abdominal pain, as such, she approached the doctor for treatment alongwith her husband.

22. Keeping in view, the abdominal pain, the doctor advised her to refrain from taking spicy food. No such definite opinion has been expressed in any prescriptions that the mental condition of the petitioner is unsound or she is alcoholic. On the basis of the above prescriptions, it cannot be said that the petitioner is not in a fit physical and mental condition to look after the welfare of the minor corpus.

23. The petitioner has also brought to the Court's notice a WhatsApp chat of the respondent, in which he disclosed that he has solemnized marriage with another woman and is residing with her. The WhatsApp chat also contains photographs of the respondent and the said woman. The respondent is present in Court today, and upon perusal of the photographs in the WhatsApp chat, this Court is of the opinion that the respondent was in the company of another woman. However, this Court is not expressing any opinion regarding the nature of their relationship.

24. Certain documents are available on record, which reflect the conduct of the respondent, who forcibly snatched the corpus from the custody of the petitioner regarding which a complaint was made to the Superintendent of Police, District Ballia. The Child Welfare Committee had directed by order dated 10.09.2025 to handover the custody of the minor corpus to the petitioner, but that order was not deliberately complied with by the respondent and this fact was noticed by the Division Bench while allowing the special appeal of the petitioner.

25. It is further apparent that when the Division Bench directed the State to intimate the steps taken to comply with the order dated 10.09.2025, then action was taken only after much hesitation, deliberation, and reluctance. The respondent was suspended by the S.S.P., Jaunpur, on 12.03.2026, which reflects the respondent's conduct. This attitude and behavior demonstrate that he is not at all concerned with the orders of this Court, which is particularly distressing given that he is a member of the disciplined force as a police constable, who has shown open defiance of the Court's orders.

26. It is apparent that as of now, keeping in view the tender age of the corpus, it is in the best interest that his custody is handed to the petitioner Smt. Rinku Ram @ Rinku Devi because for the nutritional needs, he is fully dependent on the petitioner. It will be an injustice to deprive the corpus from the custody of his mother.

27. Accordingly, the instant habeas corpus petition has merit and is liable to be allowed.

28. Respondent No. 6, Dharmendra Ram, is directed to hand over the custody of the minor, Vishwajeet, to the petitioner, Rinku Ram @ Rinku Devi, within three days.

29. However, to preserve the emotional bond between the minor and his father, the respondent is entitled to have visitation rights.

30. The Court interacted with the respondent and inquired about the specific dates on which he would like to visit. The respondent replied that he could not specify exact dates or days, but prayed that he be allowed to visit the minor twice a month.

31. In view of this, the respondent is permitted to exercise visitation rights and may visit the minor twice a month after informing the petitioner in advance. The visits shall take place at the nearest police station.

32. Learned counsel for the petitioner submits that the petitioner will not create any obstruction and will fully cooperate, making all efforts to ensure that the respondent is able to meet his minor son.

33. Accordingly, the instant habeas corpus petition is allowed.

Writ A No. 511 of 2026

Versus

State of U.P. & Ors.

Issue(s) for consideration

- (a) Does the simultaneous acquisition of two educational credentials during the same academic session automatically invalidate a government appointment, in the absence of an explicit statutory embargo or rule prohibiting it?
- (b) Can a long-standing public service appointment (spanning nearly 29 years) be dismantled on technical, structural timeline discrepancies when there is no explicit finding of fraud, deceit, or forged documentation?
- (c) Is a summary termination order issued purely on the basis of show-cause notices legally sustainable when statutory rules explicitly mandate a formal departmental inquiry?

Headnotes

A. Service Law – The petitioner, Mukesh Kumar Sharma, completed his High School in 1991, pursued Class XI in 1992–93, obtained a Certificate in Physical Education from Maharashtra during the 1993–94 academic session, and passed his Intermediate Examination in 1995. Following a GO and a subsequent judicial directive in a 1997 writ petition, he was appointed as an untrained Assistant Teacher on 24.04.1997. He successfully completed the mandatory in-service trained Basic Teachers course in 1999, was granted a regular trained teacher pay scale in 2000, and eventually rose to the position of Headmaster at a Composite School in District Gautam Buddha Nagar. He rendered nearly 29 years of continuous, unblemished service.

Based on complaints regarding his credentials, the department conducted formal inquiries in 2020 and 2024. Both independent inquiry committees found the complaints to be completely unsubstantiated, and his salary, which had been briefly stopped, was restored. In 2025, another complaint was filed with the District Magistrate, prompting a fresh inquiry. Despite an interim order from the High Court on 16.10.2025, instructing the department to pay his current salary and conclude the inquiry through due legal process, the Basic Shiksha Adhikari (BSA) issued an order on 11.12.2025, terminating his services without a formal departmental inquiry.

B. In the absence of any statutory embargo, simultaneous pursuit of courses cannot constitute a valid ground for disqualification. Simultaneous acquisition of qualifications at the relevant point of time was permissible and cannot, by itself, render an appointment illegal. (Para 44)

The fulcrum of the impugned action rests upon the allegation of simultaneous acquisition of two qualifications. However, neither in the impugned order nor in the course of arguments has any statutory provision, rule, or regulation been brought to the notice of this Court which proscribes a candidate from pursuing or obtaining two qualifications in the same academic session. (Para 43)

If the acquisition of two degrees in the same academic session may appear improbable, such improbability, in the absence of cogent material and due process culminating in annulment of such degrees by a competent authority, cannot furnish a lawful basis for invalidating an appointment. In the present case, it is an admitted position that none of the petitioner's educational qualifications have been set aside or invalidated. (Para 45)

C. Long continuance in service, coupled with the absence of fraud or deceit, operates as a significant equitable consideration against annulment of appointment. Long standing appointment should not be disturbed in absence of any fraud. The impugned order is conspicuously bereft of any categorical finding of fraud, misrepresentation, or submission of forged documents on the part of the petitioner. In the absence of such a foundational finding, the drastic consequence of termination, particularly after the petitioner has rendered nearly three decades of continuous and unblemished service, is wholly disproportionate and legally unsustainable. (Para 46, 47)

D. The course of action is in flagrant violation of the principles of natural justice. There is significant procedural infirmity vitiating the impugned order. No regular departmental inquiry, as mandated under the Service Rules, 1973 r/w the Rules, 1999, has been conducted. The termination has been effected merely on the basis of notices, without formulation of charges, without adducing evidence, and without affording the petitioner a meaningful and effective opportunity of hearing. (Para 48)

Petitioner's educational credentials, namely, the High School Certificate (1991), Certificate of Physical Education (1993-94), and Intermediate Certificate (1995), continue to hold the field, having never been annulled or invalidated by any competent authority. In such circumstances, impugned order dated 11.12.2025 cannot be sustained. (Para 49)

Writ petition allowed. (E-4)

Appearances for Parties

For Petitioner(s): Siddharth Khare, Sr. Advocate

For Respondent(s): C.S.C., Shashi Prakash Rai

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Manju Rani Chauhan, J.)

1. Heard Mr. Ashok Khare, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Mr. Aditendra, learned counsel for the petitioner, Mr. Shashi Prakash Rai, learned counsel for respondent-BSA and learned Standing Counsel for the State.

2. The writ petition has been instituted, inter alia, seeking issuance of a writ of certiorari for quashing the order dated 11.12.2025 passed by the Basic Shiksha Adhikari, Gautam Buddha Nagar, whereby the services of the petitioner have been terminated.

3. A further prayer has been made for issuance of a writ of mandamus commanding the respondents not to interfere in the functioning of the petitioner as Headmaster of Composite Vidyalaya, Jewar, Development Block Jewar, District Gautam Buddha Nagar.

4. The petitioner has also prayed for a direction to the respondents to ensure payment of his regular monthly salary, along with arrears of salary w.e.f. June, 2025 till date, within a stipulated period.

5. Placing the aforesaid facts on record, learned counsel for the petitioner submits that the petitioner possesses the following educational qualifications:-

“(i) The petitioner appeared in the High School Certificate Examination in the year 1991 from the Board of High School and Intermediate Education, Uttar Pradesh, as a student of Krishna Sahai Gokul Chandra Inter College, Dhanauri Khurd, District Bulandshahr.

(ii) The petitioner pursued his studies in Class XI during the academic session 1992-93 from Adarsh Inter College, Ranhera.

(iii) The petitioner obtained a Certificate in Physical Education during the academic session 1993-94 from Bharati Sharirik Shikshan Mahavidyalaya, Hanuman Vyayam Nagar, Amravati, Maharashtra.

(iv) Thereafter, the petitioner appeared as a regular student in the Intermediate Certificate Examination for the academic session 1994-95 from the Board of High School and Intermediate Education, Uttar Pradesh, being a student of Adarsh Inter College, Ranhera.”

6. Pursuant to the Government Order dated 23.03.1995, which provided for the appointment of candidates possessing a Certificate in Physical Education as untrained teachers with a stipulation for imparting in-service training post-appointment, the State authorities issued an advertisement dated 27.12.1996 inviting applications from eligible candidates for such appointments. The petitioner, being duly eligible, submitted his application in response thereto.

7. However, as no interview call letter was issued to him, the petitioner was constrained to file Writ Petition No. 11804 of 1997 (Rajesh Singh and two others vs. BSA, Bulandshahr and others), wherein this Hon^{ble} Court, vide interim order dated 04.04.1997, directed consideration of his candidature. In compliance thereof, the petitioner’s case was considered by the Basic Shiksha Adhikari, Bulandshahr.

8. The petitioner was issued an appointment letter dated 24.04.1997, whereby he was appointed as an untrained Assistant Teacher and posted at Prathmik Vidyalaya, Jewar, District Bulandshahr. Pursuant thereto, the petitioner duly joined his duties on 25.04.1997.

9. The appointment so granted to the petitioner was as an untrained Assistant Teacher on payment of a consolidated honorarium of Rs. 850/- per month. Subsequently, the petitioner was directed to undergo an in-service training course for Basic Teachers at the District Institute of Education and Training, Bulandshahr, which he successfully completed in the year 1999.

10. On the basis of the aforesaid training qualification, the petitioner was granted the regular pay scale applicable to a trained teacher with effect from 08.03.2000.

11. The petitioner has been working continuously and regularly since 08.03.2000 as a trained Assistant Teacher and has been drawing the pay scale applicable to regularly appointed trained teachers. Initially, the petitioner was serving in District Bulandshahr; however, upon the creation of District Gautam Budhh Nagar as a separate district, the Development Block Jewar came to be included within its territorial limit. Consequently, the services of the petitioner stood allocated to District Gautam Budhh Nagar, where he has been continuing in service thereafter.

12. On the basis of certain complaints, the Basic Shiksha Adhikari, Gautam Budhh Nagar, vide order dated 22.07.2020, constituted a two-member inquiry committee to conduct an inquiry into the educational certificates of the petitioner and, simultaneously, directed stoppage of payment of his salary.

13. Notices were issued to the petitioner, to which he submitted his reply along with relevant documents. Upon due consideration of the same, the inquiry committee submitted its report dated 03.03.2021, recording a finding that the complaints against the petitioner were unsubstantiated.

14. Accordingly, the Basic Shiksha Adhikari, Gautam Budhh Nagar, vide order dated 16.03.2021, restored the payment of salary to the petitioner.

15. The Basic Shiksha Adhikari again issued a notice dated 24.05.2024 requiring the petitioner to submit his reply on or before 27.05.2024 with regard to the complaints concerning his educational qualifications. Thereafter, vide order dated 11.06.2024, the Basic Shiksha Adhikari constituted an inquiry committee comprising the Khand Shiksha Adhikari, Jewar, and the Khand Shiksha Adhikari, Bisrakh to conduct an inquiry and submit its report.

16. The said committee submitted its report dated 27.07.2024, recording a finding that the complaints against the petitioner were unsubstantiated, and further noting that the earlier inquiry had also returned the same conclusion.

17. Subsequently, a complaint was again made before the District Magistrate, Gautam Budhh Nagar, in the year 2025, pursuant to which the Vice Principal, District Institute of Education and Training, Dankaur, District Gautam Budhh Nagar, was appointed as the Inquiry Officer. The Inquiry Officer fixed 07.02.2025 as the date of hearing. The petitioner duly participated in the proceedings; however, the complainant remained absent.

18. Thereafter, the Inquiry Officer submitted his report dated 04.04.2025, recording that the petitioner had obtained the Certificate of Physical Education from Maharashtra during the academic session 1993-94, which stood duly verified from the available records and documents. The report, however, also noted that the petitioner had passed the Intermediate Certificate Examination in the year 1994.

19. The aforesaid inquiry report was forwarded by the District Magistrate, Gautam Budhh Nagar, to the Basic Shiksha Adhikari, Gautam Budhh Nagar, for further action. In pursuance thereof, the Basic Shiksha Adhikari issued a notice dated 14.07.2025 to the petitioner, to which submitted his reply on 28.07.2025 along with relevant documents.

20. Simultaneously, another notice dated 14.07.2025 was issued directing stoppage of payment of the petitioner's salary. Thereafter, a further notice dated 08.08.2025 was issued by the Basic Shiksha Adhikari requiring the petitioner to submit his response within a period of three days.

21. In compliance, the petitioner submitted a detailed representation dated 11.08.2025 in response to the notice dated 08.08.2025, enclosing his educational certificates and mark sheets. He also submitted a further representation dated 19.08.2025 in response to the notice dated 14.07.2025 concerning stoppage of his salary.

22. The petitioner has not been paid any salary since June, 2025. Despite the fact that the petitioner duly responded to each notice issued by the Basic Shiksha Adhikari, his salary continued to be withheld and no final order was passed in the matter. Thereafter, another notice dated 17.09.2025 was issued, to which the petitioner submitted his reply on 25.09.2025.

23. Aggrieved by the continued non-payment of salary and the notices dated 14.07.2025 and 17.09.2025, the petitioner filed Writ-A No. 15556 of 2025 (Mukesh Kumar Sharma vs. State of U.P. and others), wherein this Hon'ble Court granted an interim order dated 16.10.2025. By the said order, the District Basic Education Officer was directed to complete the inquiry in accordance with law and to take a final decision within a period of two months after affording an opportunity of hearing to the petitioner. The Court further directed that the petitioner be paid his salary for the current month and continue to be paid salary thereafter until a final decision in the inquiry is taken.

24. Despite the order passed by this Hon'ble Court, the salary of the petitioner was not paid. Instead, the Basic Shiksha Adhikari proceeded to pass an order dated 11.12.2025 terminating the services of the petitioner on the ground that his initial appointment was invalid.

25. The impugned termination order dated 11.12.2025 is founded on two principal grounds. Firstly, it records that the petitioner passed the Intermediate Certificate Examination in the year 1995, whereas, according to the record, he had already passed the said examination in the year 1994. Secondly, it alleges that the petitioner pursued and completed two regular courses simultaneously during the same academic session 1993-94, namely, the Certificate of Physical Education and the Intermediate Certificate Examination in the year 1994.

26. Learned counsel for the petitioner submits that the impugned order has been passed in gross violation of the principles of natural justice. It is contended that repeated complaints were made against the petitioner, which were duly inquired into on earlier occasions, and each time the allegations were found to be unsubstantiated. However, in complete disregard of the findings recorded in the earlier inquiry reports, the impugned order has been passed, rendering the same arbitrary and unsustainable in the eyes of law.

27. The petitioner has rendered unblemished service for the past 29 years, during the said period there has neither been any complaint against his conduct, nor any allegation that the educational certificates on the basis of which he was appointed are forged. In such circumstances, the impugned order is wholly unsustainable in law and is in clear violation of the principles laid down by this Hon'ble Court in Anita Rani vs. State of Uttar Pradesh (Special Appeal No. 646 of 2026, decided on 27.01.2026), as well as in Board of Management, Chandra Shekhar Azad University of Agriculture and Technology, Kanpur vs. Dr. Samir Kumar Biswas and another (Special Appeal No. 91 of 2026).

28. In Anita Rani (supra), the Division Bench of this Hon'ble Court observed that where the petitioner therein had rendered service for a considerable period of seven years, and there was no finding of fraud or manipulation on her part in securing the appointment, the same could not be cancelled.

29. While deciding the matter in Board of Management, Chandra Shekhar Azad University of Agriculture and Technology, Kanpur vs. Dr. Samir Kumar Biswas and another (Special Appeal No. 91 of 2026), the Division Bench of this Hon'ble Court took note of the allegation that the petitioners therein were not entitled to appointment on the post in question as they had availed the benefit of belonging to a Scheduled Caste in their home State, which was not recognized in the State of Uttar Pradesh. However, in the absence of any finding of fraud or misrepresentation on the part of the petitioners in securing their appointment, the Court upheld their appointments.

30. Learned counsel for the petitioner further contends that there exists no statutory prohibition against obtaining two certificates in the same academic year. Therefore, the ground taken in the impugned order to the contrary is wholly misconceived, illegal, and unsustainable in the eyes of law.

31. Learned counsel for the petitioner, placing reliance upon the judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Kuldeep Kumar Pathak vs. State of U.P. and others, reported in (2016) 3 SCC 521, submits that the respondents have failed to place on record any statutory provision or regulation prohibiting simultaneous appearance in two examinations. Consequently, the appointment of the petitioner could not have been cancelled on this ground, and the impugned order is liable to be set aside.

32. Learned counsel for the petitioner has further placed reliance upon the judgment of the Division Bench of this Hon'ble Court in Basic Education Board, U.P., Prayagraj and another vs. Lakshmi Shankar Yadav (Special Appeal No. 37 of 2022), wherein it has been observed that although it may appear improbable as to how a person could obtain two degrees simultaneously, such improbability by itself cannot constitute a valid ground to annul both the degrees. The Court held that there must exist cogent material and due process, including affording an opportunity of hearing to the holder of such degrees, before annulling either one or both of them.

33. In the said case, since one of the degrees relied upon by the petitioner for selection to the post in question had admittedly not been cancelled, the Division Bench upheld the validity of the appointment and held that the same could not be annulled merely on the ground that two degrees had been obtained simultaneously.

34. Learned counsel for the petitioner further submits that the impugned order has been passed without conducting a regular departmental inquiry as mandated under the U.P. Basic Education (Staff) Service Rules, 1973, read with the U.P. Government Servant (Discipline and Appeal) Rules, 1999. The termination of the petitioner's services has been effected merely on the basis of issuance of notices, which do not satisfy the procedural requirements prescribed under law.

35. It is contended that in the absence of a duly conducted disciplinary inquiry, affording full opportunity of hearing and adherence to the prescribed procedure, the impugned order is in clear violation of the principles of natural justice and is, therefore, liable to be set aside.

36. Learned counsel for the petitioner further submits that there is no dispute with respect to the authenticity of the petitioner's educational qualifications, namely, the High School Certificate obtained in the year 1991, the Certificate of Physical Education obtained during the academic session 1993-94, and the Intermediate Certificate obtained in the year 1995. The said certificates have neither been cancelled nor declared invalid by any competent authority and continue to hold the field.

37. In such circumstances, it is contended that there was no occasion or justification for initiating or taking any adverse action against the petitioner, particularly when the very qualifications on the basis of which the petitioner was appointed remain undisputed and valid.

38. Learned counsel for the respondents, on the other hand, submits that there is no illegality or infirmity in the impugned order. It is contended that in the course of inquiry, it has been found that the petitioner had pursued and completed two regular courses during the same academic session 1993-94, namely, the Certificate of Physical Education and the Intermediate Examination (1994), which fact was not disclosed by him at the time of seeking appointment.

39. Learned counsel for the respondents further submits that the petitioner had initially submitted a Transfer Certificate issued from Kisan Sahai Gokulchand, Inter College, Dhanauri Khurd, for the purpose of seeking admission in Kisan Inter College, Barsol, from where he is stated to have passed Class XI during the academic session 1991-92. However, in response to the notice, the petitioner took a different stand by asserting that he had passed Class XI during the academic session 1992-93 from Adarsh Inter College, Ranhera, District Gautam Budhh Nagar.

40. It is further contended that, as per the report dated 24.01.2025 received from Adarsh Inter College, Ranhera, the petitioner had neither taken admission in the said institution nor was he enrolled there during the period 1988 to 1993.

41. On the basis of the aforesaid material, it is submitted that the petitioner had appeared in two examinations as a regular candidate in the same year, namely, the Certificate of Physical Education and the Intermediate Examination in the year 1994, and thereafter again appeared in the Intermediate Examination in the year 1995. It is thus contended that by concealing these facts and by simultaneously pursuing two courses, the petitioner secured his initial appointment. It is further urged that for the purpose of subsequent benefits as a trained teacher, the petitioner relied upon his Intermediate mark sheet of the year 1995.

42. In view of the aforesaid, it is contended that the petitioner secured his initial appointment by concealing material facts, particularly the fact of having appeared in and passed two examinations in the same year. Accordingly, the petitioner is not entitled to any relief from this Hon^{ble} Court.

43. Having bestowed anxious consideration to the rival submissions and upon a careful scrutiny of the record, this Court finds that the fulcrum of the impugned action rests upon the allegation of simultaneous acquisition of two qualifications. However, neither in the impugned order nor in the course of arguments has any statutory provision, rule, or regulation been brought to the notice of this Court which proscribes a candidate from pursuing or obtaining two qualifications in the same academic session.

44. The legal position in this regard stands authoritatively settled by the Hon^{ble} Supreme Court in Kuldeep Kumar Pathak (supra), wherein it has been unequivocally held that in the absence of any statutory embargo, simultaneous pursuit of courses cannot constitute a valid ground for disqualification. The said principle has been echoed by the Division Bench of this Court in Board of Basic Education and another vs. Arvind Prakash Dwivedi and others (Special Appeal Defective No. 898 of 2020), holding that simultaneous acquisition of qualifications at the relevant point of time was permissible and cannot, by itself, render an appointment illegal.

45. Further, in Basic Education Board, U.P., Prayagraj and another vs. Lakshmi Shankar Yadav (Special Appeal No. 37 of 2022), the Division Bench has lucidly observed that even if the acquisition of two degrees in the same academic session may appear improbable, such improbability, in the absence of cogent material and due process culminating in annulment of such degrees by a competent authority, cannot furnish a lawful basis for invalidating an appointment. In the present case, it is an admitted position that none of the petitioner's educational qualifications have been set aside or invalidated.

46. This Court also finds that the impugned order is conspicuously bereft of any categorical finding of fraud, misrepresentation, or submission of forged documents on the part of the petitioner. In the absence of such a foundational finding, the drastic consequence of termination, particularly after the petitioner has rendered nearly three decades of continuous and unblemished service, is wholly disproportionate and legally unsustainable. The Division Bench of this Court in Anita Rani (supra) has held that long continuance in service, coupled with the absence of fraud or deceit, operates as a significant equitable consideration against annulment of appointment.

47. This Court finds that long standing appointment should not be disturbed in absence of any fraud. The aforesaid has been held by Apex Court in the case of State of Maharashtra vs. Milind, (2001) 1 SCC 4, wherein the caste certificate of the petitioner was questioned, however, on the aforesaid principle, the appointment of the petitioner was not disturbed as the certificate of the petitioner therein was accepted with open eyes by the respondents.

48. Equally significant is the procedural infirmity vitiating the impugned order. It is evident that no regular departmental inquiry, as mandated under the U.P. Basic Education (Staff) Service Rules, 1973 read with the U.P. Government Servant (Discipline and Appeal) Rules, 1999, has been conducted. The termination has been effected merely on the basis of notices, without formulation of charges, without adducing evidence, and without affording the petitioner a meaningful and effective opportunity of hearing. Such a course of action is in flagrant violation of the principles of natural justice, as expounded by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in State of U.P. vs. Saroj Kumar Sinha, (2010) 2 SCC 772.

49. It is also not in dispute that the petitioner's educational credentials, namely, the High School Certificate (1991), Certificate of Physical Education (1993-94), and Intermediate Certificate (1995), continue to hold the field, having never been annulled or invalidated by any competent authority. In such circumstances, the substratum of the impugned action is rendered wholly untenable.

50. In light of the foregoing discussion, this Court is constrained to hold that the impugned order dated 11.12.2025 is vitiated by arbitrariness, non-application of mind, procedural impropriety, and violation of settled principles of law. The same, therefore, cannot be sustained.

51. The impugned order dated 11.12.2025 passed by the Basic Shiksha Adhikari, District- Gautam Budhh Nagar, is hereby quashed.

52. The writ petition succeeds and is accordingly allowed.

Issue(s) for consideration

- (a) Whether recommendation of punishment by the Inquiry Officer in the inquiry report itself, vitiates the inquiry proceedings and the inquiry report?
- (b) Whether the departmental proceedings as well as the criminal trial can proceed simultaneously?
- (c) Whether a subsequent criminal acquittal based on the "benefit of doubt" automatically invalidates a prior termination order passed in a regular departmental inquiry involving identical facts?

HeadnotesA. Service Law - UP Police Officers of the Subordinate Ranks (Punishment and Appeal) Rules

1991: Rule 14(1) - The petitioner was a Constable in the U.P. Police Department. On 14.12.2011, while assigned to present an accused person at the Sadar Lockup in District Firozabad, the petitioner allegedly consumed alcohol. Due to his severe intoxication, his service rifle accidentally discharged. The gunshot injured two private citizens, Buddhpal and Chunnilal. Following the incident, a criminal case was registered against the petitioner (Case Crime No. 318 of 2011). Concurrently, a preliminary inquiry was conducted, leading to the initiation of formal departmental disciplinary proceedings u/Rule 14(1) of the Rules, 1991.

A charge sheet was issued and served upon the petitioner via his daughter on 17.09.2012. Despite multiple notices detailing the time and place of the inquiry hearings, the petitioner entirely boycotted the proceedings. The Inquiry Officer subsequently conducted the inquiry ex-parte. In his report dated 29.06.2013, the Inquiry Officer found the petitioner guilty and explicitly recommended his removal from service. A show-cause notice along with the inquiry report was served on the petitioner on 10.07.2013. He failed to file an explanation within the stipulated 15 days. On 19.08.2013, the Disciplinary Authority ordered his removal from service. His statutory appeal was dismissed on 21.12.2013, and his revision petition was later dismissed as time-barred. The petitioner subsequently approached the High Court. (Para 12)

B. Provisions of Rule 14(1) along with Appendix 1 of 1991 Rules - The proviso to the Appendix specifically empowers the Disciplinary Authority to make the recommendation w.r.t. the punishment after conclusion of the guilt recorded by the Inquiry Officer. However, it is expected that such recommendation ought to have been made separately. The purpose being that the aforesaid recommendations are in between the Inquiry Officer and the Disciplinary Authority and the same ought not to have been communicated to the delinquent officer before any punishment order is passed. Thus, the aforesaid requirement is just a requirement of convenience and caution, however, the same would not vitiate the inquiry report itself, which has been otherwise based upon the cogent evidence recorded by the Inquiry Officer, during the inquiry proceedings. (Para 13)

C. The criminal trial as well as the disciplinary proceedings for identical allegations are two different things and operate in different spheres. The purpose of a criminal trial is to punish the offender for the offense committed by him and for such purpose, the allegations are required to be proved beyond reasonable doubt. So far as the disciplinary proceedings are concerned, the purpose thereof is to ascertain the misconduct, indiscipline committed by the delinquent officer while on service and with regard to the finding of guilt for misconduct, negligence, etc. by one's service, the degree of proof is preponderance of probabilities and not the strict proof as in the criminal trial. (Para 14)

The departmental proceedings as well as the criminal trial can proceed simultaneously as there is no bar to their being conducted simultaneously. However, it provides that where the charges in the departmental proceedings as well as criminal case are based on identical and similar set of facts and the charge in the criminal case against the delinquent employee is of a grave nature, which involves complicated questions of law and fact, it would be desirable to stay the departmental proceedings till the conclusion of the criminal case. However, due regard has to be given to the fact that the departmental proceedings cannot be unduly delayed and wherever the disposal of criminal case is delayed, the disciplinary proceedings cannot be delayed. (Para 16)

D. The criminal trial and the disciplinary proceedings for the identical allegations operate in different spheres and both are not dependent on each other. Merely because an employee is acquitted in a criminal trial, he cannot be ipso facto reinstated in service due to such acquittal in criminal trial. Wherever charges and allegations were identical and the criminal court has acquitted then it is the duty of the Court to examine whether it was an honorable acquittal or benefit of doubt has been given to such employee. Even if there is an honorable acquittal the Court is required to examine whether the witnesses produced before the Disciplinary Authority and the criminal trial were the same. The dismissal stands if inquiry witnesses supported the charges but did not support (turned hostile) the criminal trial, or if the inquiry proved additional facts not covered in the trial. (Para 27)

In present case, most of the witnesses who were injured were turned hostile and did not support the prosecution case and the petitioner has been acquitted on the basis of his own statement, which is similar to the explanation allegedly submitted by him to the show-cause notice before the Disciplinary Authority, where he has also not been cross-examined by the prosecution. (Para 28)

The petitioner was found to be guilty of misconduct. It was not a clean acquittal. Writ petition dismissed. (Para 29, 30)

Appearances for Parties

For Petitioner(s): Pawan Kumar Tripathi, Vijay Gautam, Vijay Gautam (Senior Adv.), Vinod Kumar Mishra

For Respondent(s): C.S.C.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Anish Kumar Gupta, J.)

1. Heard Sri Pawan Kumar Tripathi, learned counsel assisted by Sri Deepanshu Sharma, learned counsel for the petitioner and Sri Gaurav Singh, learned Standing Counsel for the State respondents.

2. The briefly stated facts of the case are that the petitioner was posted as Constable on 15.05.1982 in the U.P. Police Department. At the relevant time in the year 2011, the petitioner was posted as Constable at Police Line, District- Firozabad. On 14.12.2011, the petitioner was assigned duty to present an accused at Sadar Lockup. While on such duty, allegedly the petitioner got intoxicated and due to such intoxication consumed by the petitioner, a gunshot fire from his service rifle took place, due to which private persons got injured. With regard to the aforesaid incident, an F.I.R. was lodged against the petitioner being Case Crime No. 318 of 2011 at Police Station-Mathsena, District- Firozabad. Thereafter, a preliminary inquiry was conducted with regard to the misconduct of the petitioner herein by an Inquiry Officer appointed by the Department, who held the petitioner herein guilty of the misconduct. Thereafter, on the basis of the report of the preliminary inquiry, the departmental disciplinary proceedings were initiated against the petitioner under Rule 14 (1) of the UP Police Officers of the Subordinate Ranks (Punishment and Appeal) Rules 1991 (hereinafter referred to as '1991 Rules').

3. In the disciplinary proceedings, the Inquiry Officer was appointed to conduct the inquiry against the petitioner with regard to the aforesaid misconduct, due to which bullet was fired from his service rifle causing injury to private persons during intoxication while on duty. Initially, the disciplinary inquiry was handed over to Shri Asharam Yadav, the then Circle Officer. On 30.07.2012, the charge-sheet was issued by him with the approval of the Disciplinary Authority to the petitioner, which was served through the daughter of the petitioner as the petitioner was not found at his given address on 17.09.2012.

4. Thereafter, the inquiry was handed over to Shishpal Singh, Circle Officer, Firozabad, who noted that the charge-sheet had been duly served, acknowledgement of the daughter of the petitioner is available on record. Thereafter, he proceeded with the inquiry and called for the witnesses and intimation with regard to the date, time, and place of the disciplinary proceedings to be conducted was sent to the petitioner calling upon the petitioner to cross-examine the witnesses, if he so desires but petitioner did not appear before the Inquiry Officer in the entire inquiry proceedings. Thus, the Inquiry Officer had no other option but to proceed with recording the statements of witnesses in accordance with rules ex-parte. The witnesses have categorically stated that after the incident medical examination of the petitioner was conducted, wherein it was proved that the petitioner had consumed alcohol. Thus, from the evidence available on record, the Inquiry Officer concluded that the petitioner herein was guilty of intoxication while on duty and due to his negligence a bullet was fired from his service rifle, due to which two public persons namely, Buddhpal and Chunnilal had sustained injuries and for the aforesaid incident, an F.I.R. was lodged by one Rajkumar, being Case Crime No. 318 of 2011 under section 307 I.P.C.

5. In the medical examination of the petitioner, intoxication was found, therefore, the Inquiry Officer held him guilty of the aforesaid charges and also recommended the punishment of removal from services in his inquiry report dated 29.06.2013. Therefore, on 03.07.2013, a show-cause notice was issued by Superintendent of Police, Firozabad to the petitioner herein along with the copy of the inquiry report. The petitioner had submitted his explanation to the aforesaid show-cause notice, stating therein that while performing his duties to escort the accused in the Court of ACJM-II, Firozabad and looking at sensitivity and crowd he kept the loaded rifle with him to ensure that the accused cannot escape or assaulted by the opposite parties. The opposite parties to the accused had crowded him in the verandah of the ACJM-II Court and had tried to snatch the rifle from him. Thereafter, the petitioner consciously kept the point of rifle towards the roof, however, due to the crowd, someone had pressed the trigger, thus the fire was caused, the bullet first touched to the roof and thereafter came back on the floor and due to some stones from the floor hit the injured persons. Thus, he submitted that he has not committed any misconduct deliberately and he has not been negligent in his duties. Had he been negligent then there would have been some mishappening. The petitioner was immediately arrested and was sent to jail without giving any opportunity to explain his conduct. The matter was investigated by the Investigation Officer and in the said offense, only offense under Sections 286 and 338 I.P.C. was found to have been committed and thereafter the petitioner was released on bail and the trial is pending. However, with regard to the aforesaid reply/explanation submitted by the petitioner, neither the date has been given on which date the said explanation/reply was submitted by petitioner nor there is any acknowledgment that the said reply/explanation was actually submitted by him.

6. The Superintendent of Police being the Disciplinary Authority has categorically noted that initial show-cause notice was sent to petitioner on 03.07.2013 calling upon him to submit his explanation. Thereafter, it was submitted by the Police Line- Hathras that the petitioner is absent from his duties from 28.06.2013. Thereafter, a copy of show-cause notice was sent through Special Messenger to his permanent address at Village- Khoobkhabar, P.S.- Lodha, District- Aligarh, wherein it was informed by various persons, resident of the said village, that he is not residing in the village and has sold his house and land and shifted to Aligarh. Thereafter, again, the Special Messenger was sent to his address at Aligarh, wherein the notice was duly served on the petitioner on 30.07.2013. He was expected to submit his reply/explanation within 15 days. Since, the petitioner has failed to submit any explanation or reply to the show-cause notice, thereafter, the Disciplinary Authority has proceeded ex-parte and has passed the punishment order of removal from service on 19.08.2013. Being aggrieved by the same, the petitioner herein has filed a statutory appeal before the Deputy Inspector General of Police, Agra Zone, Agra, which was dismissed by the Appellate Authority on 21.12.2013. Thereafter, the petitioner has submitted a revision petition on 21.05.2015, though the copy of the order of the Appellate Authority was duly served to the petitioner on 17.01.2014. Thereafter, the Revisional Authority having found that the revision is time-barred, the same was dismissed. Being aggrieved by the aforesaid three orders passed by the Disciplinary Authority, Appellate Authority, as well as the Revisional Authority, the instant petition has been filed by the petitioner herein.

7. Learned counsel for the petitioner has submitted that the petitioner herein has already been acquitted in the criminal case, lodged for the identical allegations against the petitioner herein. Initially, the Case Crime No. 318 of 2011 was registered under Section 307 I.P.C, however, the charge-sheet was filed under Sections 286 and 338 I.P.C., for which the petitioner was tried and after trial, giving benefit of doubt to the petitioner he was acquitted.

8. In support of this submission, learned counsel for the petitioner has relied upon the judgment and order dated 26.09.2024 passed by the Division Bench of this Court in Special Appeal No. 601 of 2024 (Constable No.118 Awadhesh Kumar Pandey vs. State of U.P. and 3 Others).

"37. We have also carefully perused the judgment of trial court, which is on record, and it can be safely said that the petitioner-appellant was honorably acquitted. We find that the disciplinary proceeding and the orders passed thereon cannot be allowed to stand. The charges were not just the same but identical and the evidence, witnesses and circumstances were all the same. Merely on the basis of two days absence, that so due to ailment, no such major penalty can be inflicted. Accordingly, question no.2 is answered. "

9. Learned counsel for the petitioner submitted that since the petitioner has been acquitted for the identical charges in a judicial trial, therefore, the punishment order on the basis of the identical charges cannot be sustained in law. Thus, the petitioner is entitled for reinstatement with all consequential benefits. It is further submitted by learned counsel for the petitioner that the Inquiry Officer has recommended the punishment in the inquiry report itself, which is impermissible for the Inquiry Officer. Though, the Appendix 1 of 1991 Rules permits the Inquiry Officer to make the recommendation regarding the punishment to be imposed on the charged police officer, however, such recommendations ought to have been made separately, but not in the inquiry report and the Disciplinary Authority, without application of his mind, has simply agreed with the recommendation made by the Inquiry Officer and has passed the punishment order. The appeal filed by the petitioner against the order of removal from service was rejected and the revision has been dismissed as time-barred. Thus, learned counsel for the petitioner submits that since the Inquiry Officer has made the recommendations in inquiry report itself, then the entire inquiry proceedings gets vitiated. Thus, he seeks quashing of the inquiry proceedings as well as the termination order passed by the Disciplinary Authority and consequently the orders passed by the Appellate Authority and Revisional Authority. 10. Per contra, learned Standing Counsel for the State submits that on perusal of the inquiry, it is apparent that sufficient opportunity to defend himself was granted by the Inquiry Officer to the petitioner. The charge-sheet was duly served. Date, time, and place for examination of witnesses was duly intimated to the petitioner time and again, and despite that, the petitioner has failed to cooperate with the disciplinary proceedings. Thus, the Inquiry Officer had no other option but to proceed ex-parte against the petitioner, and has after examination of witnesses in accordance with law, has found petitioner guilty of the charges leveled against the petitioner. As per Appendix 1 attached to 1991 Rules, read with Rule 14 (1) empowers the Inquiry Officer, after conclusion of inquiry proceedings, to make the recommendation with regard to punishment. Thus, the aforesaid recommendation made by the Inquiry Officer were well within its powers. It is further submitted by learned Standing Counsel for the State that merely because the petitioner has been acquitted in a criminal trial, it would not amount to reversal of the findings of misconduct which were arrived in a fairly concluded disciplinary proceeding.

11. In support of the submission, learned Standing Counsel for the State has relied upon the judgment and order dated 02.09.2022 passed by the Apex Court in Civil Appeal No. 5930 of 2022, State of Rajasthan and Ors. vs. Phool Singh, and also in Maharana Pratap Singh vs. State of Bihar and Others, 2025 SCC Online SC 890. Thus, Standing Counsel for the State seeks dismissal of the instant case.

12. Having heard the rival submissions so made by learned counsel for the parties, this Court has carefully gone through the records of the Case. The facts of the case have already been noted herein above. From the perusal of the inquiry report, it is apparent that the charge-sheet was served to the petitioner through her daughter and despite service of the charge-sheet the petitioner has failed to file any response to the said charge-sheet. Thereafter, under intimation to the petitioner and by calling upon him to join the inquiry proceedings and cross-examine the witnesses on the given date, time and place, since the petitioner failed to cooperate in the inquiry proceedings, the Inquiry Officer having no other option, had proceeded ex-parte against the petitioner in accordance with the law and he had examined the witnesses and thereupon has concluded the inquiry against the petitioner and found him guilty of the alleged charges against the petitioner. Thus, in the considered opinion of this Court, there is no illegality so far as the inquiry proceedings are concerned and the petitioner was found guilty by the Inquiry Officer.

13. So far as the argument raised by counsel for the petitioner that the Inquiry Officer had recommended the punishment in the inquiry report itself, which vitiates the inquiry proceedings and the inquiry report, this Court has gone through the provisions of Rule 14(1) along with Appendix 1 of 1991 Rules. The proviso to the Appendix specifically empowers the Disciplinary Authority to make the recommendation with regard to the punishment after conclusion of the guilt recorded by the Inquiry Officer. However, it is expected that such recommendation ought to have been made separately. The purpose of such recommendation being made separately appears to be that the aforesaid recommendations are in between the Inquiry Officer and the Disciplinary Authority and the same ought not to have been communicated to the delinquent officer that is why it is expected that such recommendations ought to have been made separately by the inquiry officer before any punishment order is passed. Thus, the aforesaid requirement is just a requirement of convenience and caution, however, the same would not vitiate the inquiry report itself, which has been otherwise based upon the cogent evidence recorded by the Inquiry Officer, during the inquiry proceedings. Thus, in the considered opinion of this Court, the aforesaid argument advanced by learned counsel for the petitioner is not sustainable in law.

14. So far as the arguments advanced by the learned counsel for the petitioner that since the petitioner had been acquitted in the criminal trial for the identical allegation against the petitioner, thus, the petitioner is automatically entitled for reinstatement. In this regard, it is a settled position of law that the criminal trial as well as the disciplinary proceedings for identical allegations are two different things and operate in different spheres. The purpose of a criminal trial is to punish the offender for the offense committed by him and for such purpose, the allegations are required to be proved beyond reasonable doubt. So far as the disciplinary proceedings are concerned, the purpose thereof is to ascertain the misconduct, indiscipline committed by the delinquent officer while on service and with regard to the finding of guilt for misconduct, negligence, etc. by one's service, the degree of proof is preponderance of probabilities and not the strict proof as in the criminal trial.

15. Before proceeding further, it would be relevant to take note of some of the judgments of the Apex Court, which throw light on the aforesaid issue. In Capt. M. Paul Anthony vs. Bharat Gold Mines Ltd. & Anr : (1999) 3 SCC 679, the Apex Court has drawn the following conclusion:-

“22. The conclusions which are deducible from various decisions of this Court referred to above are:

(i) Departmental proceedings and proceedings in a criminal case can proceed simultaneously as there is no bar in their being conducted simultaneously, though separately.

(ii) If the departmental proceedings and the criminal case are based on identical and similar set of facts and the charge in the criminal case against the delinquent employee is of a grave nature which involves complicated questions of law and fact, it would be desirable to stay the departmental proceedings till the conclusion of the criminal case.

(iii) Whether the nature of a charge in a criminal case is grave and whether complicated questions of fact and law are involved in that case, will depend upon the nature of offence, the nature of the case launched against the employee on the basis of evidence and material collected against him during investigation or as reflected in the charge-sheet.

(iv) The factors mentioned at (ii) and (iii) above cannot be considered in isolation to stay the departmental proceedings but due regard has to be given to the fact that the departmental proceedings cannot be unduly delayed.

(v) If the criminal case does not proceed or its disposal is being unduly delayed, the departmental proceedings, even if they were stayed on account of the pendency of the criminal case, can be resumed and proceeded with so as to conclude them at an early date, so that if the employee is found not guilty his honour may be vindicated and in case he is found guilty, the administration may get rid of him at the earliest.”

16. According to the aforesaid judgment, the departmental proceedings as well as the criminal trial can proceed simultaneously as there is no bar to their being conducted simultaneously. However, it provides that where the charges in the departmental proceedings as well as criminal case are based on identical and similar set of facts and the charge in the criminal case against the delinquent employee is of a grave nature, which involves complicated questions of law and fact, it would be desirable to stay the departmental proceedings till the conclusion of the criminal case. Whether the criminal case involves the grave charges or whether it involves the complicated questions of fact and law, will depend upon the nature of the offense, nature of the case lodged against the employee on the basis of the evidence and material collected during investigation. However, it has further been provided in the said judgment that the Stay of departmental proceedings cannot operate in isolation on the aforesaid principles but due regard has to be given to the fact that the departmental proceedings cannot be unduly delayed and wherever the disposal of criminal case is delayed, the disciplinary proceedings cannot be delayed.

17. In Karnataka Power Transmission Corporation Limited vs. C. Nagaraju : 2019 10 SCC 367, the Apex Court has held as under:

“10. As the High Court set aside the order of dismissal on the basis of the judgments of this Court in M. Paul Anthony [M. Paul Anthony v. Bharat Gold Mines Ltd., (1999) 3 SCC 679 : 1999 SCC (L&S) 810] and G.M. Tank [G.M. Tank v. State of Gujarat, (2006) 5 SCC 446 : 2006 SCC (L&S) 1121] , it is necessary to examine whether the said judgments are applicable to the facts of this case. Simultaneous continuance of departmental proceedings and proceedings in a *criminal case on the same set of facts was the point considered by this Court in M. Paul Anthony case [M. Paul Anthony v. Bharat Gold Mines Ltd., (1999) 3 SCC 679 : 1999 SCC (L&S) 810] . This Court was of the opinion that departmental proceedings and proceedings in a criminal case can proceed simultaneously as there is no bar. However, it is desirable to stay departmental inquiry till conclusion of the criminal case if the departmental proceedings and criminal case are based on identical and similar set of facts and the charge in the criminal case against the delinquent employee is of a grave nature which involves complicated questions of law and fact. On the facts of the said case, it was found that the criminal case and the departmental proceedings were based on identical set of facts and the evidence before the criminal court and the departmental inquiry was the same. Further, in the said case the departmental inquiry was conducted ex parte. In such circumstances, this Court held that the ex parte departmental proceedings cannot be permitted to stand in view of the acquittal of the delinquent by the criminal court on the same set of facts and evidence. The said judgment is not applicable to the facts of this case. In the present case, the prosecution witnesses turned hostile in the criminal trial against Respondent 1. He was acquitted by the criminal court on the ground that the prosecution could not produce any credible evidence to prove the charge. On the other hand, the complainant and the other witnesses appeared before the inquiry officer and deposed against Respondent 1. The evidence available in the departmental inquiry is completely different from that led by the prosecution in criminal trial.

11. Reliance was placed by the High Court on a judgment of this Court in G.M. Tank [G.M. Tank v. State of Gujarat, (2006) 5 SCC 446 : 2006 SCC (L&S) 1121] whereby the writ petition filed by Respondent 1 was allowed. In the said case, the delinquent officer was charged for an offence punishable under Section 5(1)(e) read with Section 5(2) of the PC Act, 1988. He was honourably acquitted by the criminal court as the prosecution failed to prove the charge. Thereafter, a departmental inquiry was conducted and he was dismissed from service. The order of dismissal was upheld [G.M. Tank v. State of Gujarat, 2003 SCC OnLine Guj 487] by the High Court. In the appeal filed by the delinquent officer, this Court was of the opinion that the departmental proceedings and criminal case were based on identical and similar set of facts. The evidence before the criminal court and the departmental proceedings being exactly the same, this Court held that the acquittal of the employee by a criminal court has to be given due weight by the disciplinary authority. On the basis that the evidence in both the criminal trial and departmental inquiry is the same, the order of dismissal of the appellant therein was set aside. As stated earlier, the facts of this case are entirely different. The acquittal of Respondent 1 was due to non-availability of any evidence before the criminal court. The order of dismissal was on the basis of a report of the inquiry officer before whom there was ample evidence against Respondent 1.

12. In Krishnakali Tea Estate v. Akhil Bharatiya Chah Mazdoor Sangh [Krishnakali Tea Estate v. Akhil Bharatiya Chah Mazdoor Sangh, (2004) 8 SCC 200 : 2004 SCC (L&S) 1067] this Court was concerned with the validity of the termination of the services of workmen after acquittal by the criminal court. Dealing with a situation similar to the one in this case, where the acquittal was due to lack of evidence before the criminal court and sufficient evidence was available before the Labour Court, this Court was of the opinion that the judgment in M. Paul Anthony case [M. Paul Anthony v. Bharat Gold Mines Ltd., (1999) 3 SCC 679 : 1999 SCC (L&S) 810] cannot come to the rescue of the workmen.

13. Having considered the submissions made on behalf of the appellant and Respondent 1, we are of the view that interference with the order of dismissal by the High Court was unwarranted. It is settled law that the acquittal by a criminal court does not preclude a departmental inquiry against the delinquent officer. The disciplinary authority is not bound by the judgment of the criminal court if the evidence that is produced in the departmental inquiry is different from that produced during the criminal trial. The object of a departmental inquiry is to find out whether the delinquent is guilty of misconduct under the conduct rules for the purpose of determining whether he should be continued in service. The standard of proof in a departmental inquiry is not strictly based on the rules of evidence. The order of dismissal which is based on the evidence before the inquiry officer in the disciplinary proceedings, which is different from the evidence available to the criminal court, is justified and needed no interference by the High Court.”

18. In Union of India vs. Sitaram Mishra : (2019) 20 SCC 588, the Apex Court has observed as under:

“14. The fact that the first respondent was acquitted in the course of the criminal trial cannot operate ipso facto as a ground for vitiating the finding of misconduct which has been arrived at during the course of the disciplinary proceedings. The High Court, in our view, has drawn an erroneous inference from the decision of this Court in M. Paul Anthony v. Bharat Gold Mines Ltd. [M. Paul Anthony v. Bharat Gold Mines Ltd., (1999) 3 SCC 679: 1999 SCC (L&S) 810]. The High Court adverted to the following principle of law laid down in the above judgment: (SCC p. 687, para 13)

“13. While in the departmental proceedings the standard of proof is one of preponderance of the probabilities, in a criminal case, the charge has to be proved by the prosecution beyond reasonable doubt. The little exception may be where the departmental proceedings and the criminal case are based on the same set of facts and the evidence in both the proceedings is common without there being a variance.”

15. It is undoubtedly correct that the charge in the criminal trial arose from the death of a co-employee in the course of the incident resulting from the firing of a bullet which took place from the weapon which was assigned to the first respondent as a member of the Force. But the charge of misconduct is on the ground of the negligence of the first respondent in handling his weapon and his failure to comply with the departmental instructions in regard to the manner in which the weapon should be handled. Consequently, the acquittal in the criminal case was not a ground for setting aside the penalty which was imposed in the course of the disciplinary enquiry. Hence, having regard to the parameters that govern the exercise of judicial review in disciplinary matters, we are of the view that the judgment [Sitaram Mishra v. Union of India, 2007 SCC OnLine Cal 718 : (2008) 1 Cal LJ 863] of the Division Bench of the High Court is unsustainable.”

19. In Ajit Kumar Negi vs. General Manager Indian Oil Corporation Limited : (2005) 7 SCC 764, the Apex Court has observed as under:

“11. In our judgment, the law is fairly well settled. Acquittal by a criminal court would not debar an employer from exercising power in accordance with Rules and Regulations in force. The two proceedings criminal and departmental - are entirely different. They operate in different fields and have different objectives. Whereas the object of criminal trial is to inflict appropriate punishment on offender, the purpose of enquiry proceedings is to deal with the delinquent departmentally and to impose penalty in accordance with service Rules. In a criminal trial, incriminating statement made by the accused in certain circumstances or before certain officers is totally inadmissible in evidence. Such strict rules of evidence and procedure would not apply to departmental proceedings. The degree of proof which is necessary to order a conviction is different from the degree of proof necessary to record the commission of delinquency. The rule relating to appreciation of evidence in the two proceedings is also not similar. In criminal law, burden of proof is on the prosecution and unless the prosecution is able to prove the guilt of the accused 'beyond reasonable doubt?', he cannot be convicted by a court of law. In departmental enquiry, on the other hand, penalty can be imposed on the delinquent officer on a finding recorded on the basis of 'preponderance of probability'.....”

20. In State of Rajasthan vs. Heem Singh : (2020) SCC OnLine SC 886, the Apex Court has observed as under:

“39. In exercising judicial review in disciplinary matters, there are two ends of the spectrum. The first embodies a rule of restraint. The second defines when interference is permissible. The rule of restraint constricts the ambit of judicial review. This is for a valid reason. The determination of whether a misconduct has been committed lies primarily within the domain of the disciplinary authority. The judge does not assume the mantle of the disciplinary authority. Nor does the judge wear the hat of an employer. Deference to a finding of fact by the disciplinary authority is a recognition of the idea that it is the employer who is responsible for the efficient conduct of their service. Disciplinary enquiries have to abide by the rules of natural justice. But they are not governed by strict rules of evidence which apply to judicial proceedings. The standard of proof is hence not the strict standard which governs a criminal trial, of proof beyond reasonable doubt, but a civil standard governed by a preponderance of probabilities. Within the rule of preponderance, there are varying approaches based on context and subject. The first end of the spectrum is founded on deference and autonomy ? deference to the position of the disciplinary authority as a fact finding authority and autonomy of the employer in maintaining discipline and efficiency of the service. At the other end of the spectrum is the principle that the court has the jurisdiction to interfere when the findings in the enquiry are based on no evidence or when they suffer from perversity. A failure to consider vital evidence is an incident of what the law regards as a perverse determination of fact. Proportionality is an entrenched feature of our jurisprudence. Service jurisprudence has recognized it for long years in allowing for the authority of the court to interfere when the finding or the penalty are disproportionate to the weight of the evidence or misconduct. Judicial craft lies in maintaining a steady sail between the banks of these two shores which have been termed as the two ends of the spectrum. Judges do not rest with a mere recitation of the hands-off mantra when they exercise judicial review. To determine whether the finding in a disciplinary enquiry is based on some evidence an initial or threshold level of scrutiny is undertaken. That is to satisfy the conscience of the court that there is some evidence to support the charge of misconduct and to guard against perversity. But this does not allow the court to reappreciate evidentiary findings in a disciplinary enquiry or to substitute a view which appears to the judge to be more appropriate. To do so would offend the first principle which has been outlined above. The ultimate guide is the exercise of robust common sense without which the judges' craft is in vain."

21. In Phool Singh (Supra), the Apex Court has categorically observed as under:

"7. The question before this Court is therefore only to see whether the respondent can be reinstated in service for the reason that now on the same set of charges he has been acquitted by a criminal court"

8. There should be no ambiguity in law on this subject. A departmental proceeding is different from a criminal proceeding. The fundamental difference between the two is that whereas in a departmental proceeding a delinquent employee can be held guilty on the basis of ?preponderance of probabilities?, in a criminal court the prosecution has to prove its case ?beyond reasonable doubt?. In short, the difference between the two proceedings would lie in the nature of evidence and the degree of its scrutiny. The two forums therefore run at different levels. For this reason, this Court has consistently held that merely because a person has been acquitted in a criminal trial, he cannot be ipso facto reinstated in service.

11. In the above case a distinction has also been drawn by this Court between a "criminal offence" and "Misconduct". One has to be proved in a criminal court, the other in a departmental proceedings, and though both may arise from the same set of facts, yet there is a clear distinction between the two and merely because one has been acquitted in a criminal trial, it would not amount to a reversal of the findings of "misconduct", which were arrived in a departmental proceedings....."

22. In Ram Lal vs. State of Rajasthan & Ors. (Civil Appeal no. 7935 of 2023 dated 04.12.2023), the Apex Court has observed as under:

"25. Expressions like ?benefit of doubt? and ?honorably acquitted?, used in judgments are not to be understood as magic incantations. A court of law will not be carried away by the mere use of such terminology. In the present case, the Appellate Judge has recorded that Exh. P-3, the original marksheet carries the date of birth as 21.04.1972 and the same has also been proved by the witnesses examined on behalf of the prosecution. The conclusion that the acquittal in the criminal proceeding was after full consideration of the prosecution evidence and that the prosecution miserably failed to prove the charge can only be arrived at after a reading of the judgment in its entirety. The court in judicial review is obliged to examine the substance of the judgment and not go by the form of expression used."

23. In Maharana Pratap Singh vs. State of Bihar and Others : 2025 SCC OnLine SC 890, the Apex Court has observed as under:

"47. While an acquittal in a criminal case does not automatically entitle the accused to have an order of setting aside of his dismissal from public service following disciplinary proceedings, it is well-established that when the charges, evidence, witnesses, and circumstances in both the departmental inquiry and the criminal proceedings are identical or substantially similar, the situation assumes a different context. In such cases, upholding the findings in the disciplinary proceedings would be unjust, unfair, and oppressive. This is a position settled by the decision in G. M. Tank (supra), since reinforced by a decision of recent origin in Ram Lal v. State of Rajasthan.

48. To assess the degree of similarity between the charges, evidence, witnesses, and circumstances in the disciplinary and criminal proceedings, it is indeed crucial to review the materials placed before the Court where such an issue arises....."

24. In Commissioner of Police, New Delhi and Another vs. Mehar Singh : 2013 (7) SCC 685, the Apex Court has observed as under:

"25. The expression 'honourable acquittal' was considered by this Court in S. Samuthiram. In that case this Court was concerned with a situation where disciplinary proceedings were initiated against a police officer. Criminal case was pending against him under Section 509 of the IPC and under Section 4 of the Evetearing Act. He was acquitted in that case because of the non-examination of key witnesses. There was a serious flaw in the conduct of the criminal case. Two material witnesses turned hostile. Referring to the judgment of this Court in Management of Reserve Bank of India, New Delhi v. Bhopal Singh Panchal[12], where in somewhat similar fact situation, this Court upheld a bank's action of refusing to reinstate an employee in service on the ground that in the criminal case he was acquitted by giving him benefit of doubt and, therefore, it was not an honourable acquittal, this Court held that the High Court was not justified in setting aside the punishment imposed in departmental proceedings. This Court observed that the expressions 'honourable acquittal?', 'acquitted of blame?' and 'fully exonerated?' are unknown to the Criminal Procedure Code or the Penal Code. They are coined by judicial pronouncements. It is difficult to define what is meant by the expression 'honourably acquitted?'. This Court expressed that when the accused is acquitted after full consideration of prosecution case and the prosecution miserably fails to prove the charges leveled against the accused, it can possibly be said that the accused was honourably acquitted."

25. In Constable No.118 Awadhes Kumar Pandey (Supra) the Division Bench having examined the judgement passed by the trial court concluded that the appellant herein was acquitted and in the disciplinary proceedings he was punished only on the basis of two days' absence that due to ailment, thus found the penalty of punishment to be disproportionate, accordingly set-aside the same and directed the reinstatement of the appellant with 25% back wages along with all other consequential benefits.

26. The Coordinate Bench of this Court in Anand Kumar vs. Union of India and Another : 2025 0 AHC 188636: 2025 0 Supreme (All) 3430, having found various cases of the Apex Court in this regard, observed as under:-

"39. A comparative study of the purpose, scope, procedure and standards of evidence in departmental enquiries and criminal trials is crucial for determining the feasibility or advisability of continuing the two proceedings simultaneously in the facts of this case.

46. In case departmental proceedings are held up for prolonged periods and delinquent officials are permitted to discharge their duties in the face of grave charges of misconduct as if it was business as usual, the consequences will be very grave for departmental efficiency, image and discipline."

27. In the aforesaid judgments, the legal position is crystal clear that the criminal trial and the disciplinary proceedings for the identical allegations operate in different spheres and both are not dependent on each other. Merely because an employee is acquitted in a criminal trial, he cannot be ipso facto reinstated in service due to such acquittal in criminal trial. In the recent judgments, after considering the previous judgments of the Apex Court, the Apex Court has categorically observed that merely the facts of acquittal in a criminal trial would not amount to reversal of findings of misconduct which were arrived at in the past proceedings. From the aforesaid judgments of the Apex Court it can be safely concluded that wherever charges and allegations were identical and the criminal court has acquitted then it is the duty of the Court to examine whether it was an honorable acquittal or benefit of doubt has been given to such employee. Even if there is an honorable acquittal the Court is required to examine whether the witnesses produced before the Disciplinary Authority and the criminal trial were the same. If there were the same set of witnesses then on the basis of the evidence led in the criminal court has acquitted then in such cases the reinstatement can be granted by the Court. However, if the court on scrutiny finds that the witnesses examined during the disciplinary proceedings have supported the allegations, however the same set of witnesses did not support the criminal trial or that there are some additional facts which have been proved in the disciplinary proceedings and which were not the subject matter of trial then the court should not interfere in such concluded disciplinary proceedings.

28. In the light of the aforesaid judgments, it would be relevant to take note of the fact, from the perusal of the judgment of acquittal passed by the trial court it is apparent that most of the witnesses who were injured were turned hostile and did not support the prosecution case and the petitioner has been acquitted on the basis of his own statement, which is similar to the explanation allegedly submitted by the petitioner to the show-cause notice before the Disciplinary Authority and the petitioner has been acquitted as the petitioner, who was examined as DW1 has not been cross-examined by the prosecution.

29. From perusal of the inquiry report, there is ample evidence with regard to intoxication of the petitioner while on duty, as immediately after incident, the medical examination of the petitioner was conducted which has been duly supported by the witness examined during the inquiry proceedings and the petitioner was found intoxicated. Thus, the petitioner was found to be guilty of misconduct and due to the negligence the bullet fired from the service rifle of the petitioner. Having regard to the facts and record of the criminal trial as well as disciplinary proceedings, this Court finds that the evidence led in the disciplinary proceedings was comprehensive one and in the criminal trial, the petitioner has been acquitted on the basis of key witnesses turned hostile. 30. Thus, in considered opinion of this Court, it was not a clean acquittal of the petitioner. Therefore, this Court do not find any good reason to interfere with the impugned orders passed by Disciplinary Authority, Appellate Authority as well as the Revisional Authority and accordingly, the instant petition fails and is hereby dismissed.

Issue(s) for consideration

Whether the alleged unauthorized steps of which, there are no adverse consequences and which were taken to deal the difficult situation arising out of the pandemic, should be scrutinized?

Headnotes

A. Service Law — On perusal of materials on record, nothing adverse has been found against petitioner but a clear picture emerges of administrative necessities having been met by him on exigencies arising. There is no adverse consequence of alleged unauthorized steps taken by petitioner at all reverted to in the inquiry report. The difficult situation arising out of the pandemic was dealt with by the administration on petitioner having contributed his bit. He then came to be under scrutiny and has been punished. In the inquiry there was no reference to the District Magistrate, but clear implication in the inquiry report that even though there may have been oral direction, post facto approval ought to have been obtained. The pressure of work dealt with cannot in hindsight be under scrutiny on pedantic approach of having violated a rule, when the emergent situation of the pandemic was well met by the administration. (Para 9)

Impugned punishment order and judgment are set aside and quashed, with consequent restoration of the increments denied. The Departmental Promotion Committee's (DPC) report on the petitioner, which has been kept in sealed cover, be opened and evaluated as a consequence of this judgment and in event the report so recommends, petitioner be given the promotion retrospectively. (Delivered by Hon'ble Arindam Sinha, J.)

1. Petitioner has challenged punishment order dated 9th August, 2024 and order dated 10th February, 2026 passed by the Tribunal. Mr. B.S. Pandey, learned advocate appearing on his behalf submits, there were six charges brought against his client. Only charges 2 and 3 were found to be proved. Yet, punishment awarded by impugned order, confirmed by the Tribunal was on charge no.1. A further point is that the punishment order was not passed by the appointing authority. He had filed supplementary affidavit dated 5th April, 2026 on copy circulated to bring on record that his client has not received any increment after year 2022. He seeks interference.

2. Paragraph 3 from our earlier order dated 6th April, 2026 is reproduced below.

"3. Petitioner to provide us with English translation of the memorandum of charges, inquiry report, impugned punishment order and order dated 10th February, 2026 of the Tribunal. Respondents are free to also provide English translation of any document in Hindi, they would want to rely upon."

Mr. Pandey, hands up a brief containing the translations with copy to Dr. Tripathi, learned advocate, Additional Chief Standing Counsel appearing on behalf of State. Mr. R.N. Mishra, learned advocate holding the brief appears for respondent no. 5 (the Commission).

3. Charge no. 1 given in the charge-sheet disclosed by letter dated 11th July, 2023 of the Deputy Director, is reproduced below.

"Charge No. 1

That during your tenure in District Ghazipur, as per the Transfer Policy, 2021 issued by the Government regarding transfer of Government officers/employees, it has been provided that in accordance with the provisions prescribed under Government Order No. 3/2018/1/3/96/Ka-4-2018 dated 29.03.2018, transfers could be effected up to 15 July, 2021, and thereafter, for transfer of Group 'C' and 'D' employees, prior approval of an authority one level higher than the prescribed level was mandatory. However, after the last date of the transfer session i.e., 15 July, 2021, you effected transfers of a total of 1027 sanitation workers posted in Gram Panchayats under the Panchayati Raj Department between July, 2021 and October, 2021 at your own level without obtaining approval from the higher authority. Further, as per the transfer policy, the number of transferred employees could not exceed 20% of the total strength, which was also violated by you. Additionally, out of the said transferred sanitation workers, transfer orders of 351 sanitation workers were cancelled by you without obtaining approval from the higher authority, whereas such cancellation should have been carried out only after obtaining approval from an authority one level higher. Thus, you are found guilty of acting in contravention of Government Orders. The following evidence shall be relied upon in support of this charge: 1. Inquiry report of the District Magistrate, Ghazipur dated 26.04.2022."

We find from inquiry report dated 5th January, 2024, charge no. 1 was not proved against petitioner.

4. Charge no. 2 is reproduced below.

"Charge No. 2

That after the transfer session 2020-21 (last date 15.07.2021), you, on the dates 24.07.2021, 28.07.2021, 04.08.2021, 09.08.2021 and 12.08.2021, effected transfers of a total of 11 Gram Panchayat Officers, namely-Shri Kamalkant Singh, Shri Sanjay Singh Kushwaha, Shri Jitendra Kumar, Shri Avneesh Kumar, Shri Jai Prakash Yadav, Smt. Jyoti Singh, Shri Anil Kumar Yadav, Shri Suryaman Kumar Rai, Shri Shyamji Saini, Shri Sikandar Kumar Rajbhar and Shri Anil Kumar Dubey, to other development blocks at your own level without obtaining approval from the competent authority, which constitutes a serious irregularity. Thus, by exhibiting negligence towards your official duties, you have disobeyed the orders of the Government and higher authorities, for which you are liable. The following evidence shall be relied upon in support of this charge: 1. Inquiry report of the District Magistrate, Ghazipur dated 26.04.2022."

It is sufficient for us to reproduce a paragraph from aforesaid inquiry report, in respect of charge no. 2.

"From the above, it is evident that the delinquent officer, during his tenure, effected transfer of Secretaries without obtaining approval from the competent authority. Even if, for any reason, the District Magistrate had orally directed such transfers, post-facto approval ought to have been obtained. Accordingly, the aforesaid charge stands proved against the delinquent officer."

5. Charge no. 3 is reproduced below.

"Charge No. 3

That in relation to the deployment of Secretaries cluster-wise in Development Block Sadat of District Ghazipur, upon the proposal dated 30.01.2021 submitted by the Block Development Officer, Sadat, approval was obtained from the District Magistrate, Ghazipur on 10.02.2021, and accordingly, you issued deployment orders of Gram Panchayat Secretaries vide Office Order No. 9085 dated 11.02.2021. Subsequently, upon receipt of a fresh proposal dated 26.09.2021 from the Block Development Officer, Sadat regarding deployment of Gram Panchayat Secretaries, you, without obtaining approval from the District Magistrate, Ghazipur, issued Office Order No. 4858 dated 04.10.2021 at your own level, thereby altering the clusters and issuing deployment orders. Further, in Development Block Mardah, without receiving any proposal from the Block Development Officer, Mardah, you, by including Gram Panchayat Bahtura (earlier part of Cluster Gariha) into Cluster Gai, issued Office Order No. 4007 dated 13.09.2021 and deployed Shri Anjani Kumar Sonkar, Gram Vikas Adhikari, without obtaining approval from the District Magistrate, Ghazipur, which is in contravention of Government instructions, for which you are liable. The following evidence shall be relied upon in support of this charge: 1. Inquiry report of the District Magistrate, Ghazipur dated 26.04.2022."

6. We find from the inquiry report that petitioner as the Charged Officer (CO) had issued orders dated 4th October, 2021 for cluster-wise deployment of Secretaries, strictly in accordance with the proposal submitted by the Block Development Officer (BDO) without making any modification and, subject to approval of the District Magistrate. Similarly, the (CO) had issued order dated 13th September, 2021 clearly stating that the named two persons were being attached as Secretary of Gram Panchayat, Bahtura until approval of the District Magistrate was obtained. However, no such approval was obtained. Hence, the charge was found proved against the CO.

7. Petitioner's claim petition was disposed of on impugned judgment dated 10th February, 2026 of the Tribunal. Paragraph 9 from the judgment is reproduced below.

"9. We have heard the learned counsel for both parties and have also perused the records available on file, which clearly indicate that the transfer of 1027 personnel was carried out without obtaining approval from the competent authority. The defence put forth by the applicant is not acceptable, as in the event that oral approval had indeed been granted by the District Magistrate, the applicant had sufficient opportunity to place such oral directions on record and obtain ex-post facto approval. However, upon examination of the entire record, no such document is found on file. The transfer policy is issued by the State Government from time to time and is a binding policy guideline, which clearly prescribes the level of approval required, the procedure for proposal and approval of transfers, and the provisions governing any permissible deviation. From the perusal of records, it is evident that neither approval from the competent authority was obtained for the transfers nor was approval obtained for exceeding the permissible limit of transfers (20 percent). The plea taken by the applicant regarding pressure from employee unions cannot, in any circumstance, constitute a valid ground for deviation from statutory rules."

8. Dr. Tripathi, submits, there should not be interference. The Tribunal's judgment was passed upon hearing petitioner. There is no illegality. The writ petition be dismissed. Mr. B.S. Pandey in reply submits, decisions taken by his client were necessary for the purpose of administration as it was during Covid time. On query he submits, there is no allegation of corruption against his client. The persons transferred and attached discharged their duties.

9. Under challenge are the punishment order and the judgment. The punishment order clearly relied upon the inquiry report. While charge no. 1 could not be proved against petitioner, in respect of charge no. 2 there is implication that the District Magistrate may have orally directed the transfers but post facto approval ought to have been obtained. So far as charge no. 3 is concerned, the inquiry report says that petitioner had passed the transfer and attachment orders on expressly indicating them to be subject to approval of the District Magistrate. On query we have ascertained from Dr. Tripathi that the District Magistrate was not examined in the inquiry. In the circumstances petitioner appears to have discharged his duty regarding the administration on meeting exigencies and, it can be presumed, upon obtaining oral directions/approval from the District Magistrate. The Tribunal in confirming the punishment order has referred to 1027 personnel having been transferred by petitioner, without approval. It is clear reference to charge no. 1, found not to be proved. On perusal of materials on record, we do not find anything adverse against petitioner but a clear picture emerges of administrative necessities having been met by him on exigencies arising. We reiterate, there is no adverse consequence of alleged unauthorized steps taken by petitioner, at all reverted to in the inquiry report. The difficult situation arising out of the pandemic was dealt with by the administration on petitioner having contributed his bit. He then came to be under scrutiny and has been punished. In the inquiry there was no reference to the District Magistrate, but clear implication in the inquiry report that even though there may have been oral direction, post facto approval ought to have been obtained. The pressure of work dealt with cannot in hindsight be under scrutiny on pedantic approach of having violated a rule, when the emergent situation of the pandemic was well met by the administration.

10. Impugned punishment order and judgment are set aside and quashed, with consequent restoration of the increments denied. Mr. Pandey submits, the Departmental Promotion Committee's (DPC) report on his client has been kept in sealed cover. It be opened and evaluated as a consequence of this judgment and in event the report so recommends, petitioner be given the promotion retrospectively.

11. The writ petition is allowed and disposed of.

Issue(s) for consideration

- (a) Whether the State can avoid paying salary to an employee who was recruited through an open, non-backdoor process by relying indefinitely on its own bureaucratic delay in formalizing a post-sanction?
- (b) Whether State can refuse to sanction posts indefinitely where the work is perennial in nature and employees have been working for long years?
- (c) Whether non-payment of salary for work taken is violative of Articles 14 and 21 of the Constitution of India and amounts to exploitation?

Headnotes

A. Service Law – Petitioner No. 1 had been granted a promotion and Petitioner No. 3 had received a fresh appointment. Consequently, the ongoing petition explicitly agitated the grievances of Petitioner No. 2 alone. Kamla Nehru Institute of Physical and Social Sciences, Sultanpur, is a recognized higher education institution affiliated with Dr. Ram Manohar Lohia Avadh University, Faizabad, and governed by the university's Statute of 1978.

Facing an acute shortage of administrative staff, the Committee of Management issued a recruitment notice in The Times of India (11.08.2004) and a local daily (17.08.2004) inviting applications for Class III posts. Following evaluation by a duly constituted selection committee, Petitioner No. 2 secured the highest rank and was issued an appointment order on 08.11.2004, under anticipation of post-sanction. The institution had submitted a formal proposal for the creation and sanction of clerical posts to the Director of Higher Education as early as 31.08.1998. Despite reminders in 2002 and 2004, the State authorities sat on the proposal indefinitely.

Since joining on 08.11.2004, Petitioner No. 2 continuously discharged his clerical duties without a single blemish or break. However, the State exchequer refused to disburse his regular salary or outstanding arrears, prompting him to seek a writ of mandamus for payment, post-sanctioning, and non-interference.

B. Distinction between "irregular" and "illegal" appointments - irregular appointments, made after due process, deserve protection. Continuous service coupled with a selection process akin to regular recruitment cannot be ignored on the ground of initial procedural irregularity. (Para 22)

In present case, the appointment falls within the category of at best an "irregular" appointment and not an "illegal" one. It is not in dispute that petitioner No.2 was appointed after issuance of public advertisement and due selection process by a duly constituted Selection Committee. The procedure adopted by the Committee of Management satisfies the requirement of transparency and fairness and cannot be said to be a back-door entry. (Para 17)

C. Long and continuous service gives rise to legitimate expectation and the State cannot act arbitrarily in denying benefits. (Para 21)

The only ground for denial of salary is absence of sanctioned post and formal approval. The petitioner No.2 has been continuously discharging duties on the post of Clerk since 08.11.2004 and the respondents have not disputed the factum of work being taken from him. The ground of absence of sanctioned post and formal approval, cannot be accepted inasmuch as the institution itself had moved proposal for sanction of posts as far back as in the year 1998, followed by repeated reminders, but the competent authority failed to take any decision. (Para 18)

The State, being a model employer, cannot take advantage of its own inaction and deny legitimate dues to an employee who has been continuously serving the institution. The inaction on the part of the respondents in not taking a decision on the proposal for sanction of posts for decades, despite continuous requirement of clerical staff, clearly reflects arbitrariness. (Para 19)

D. Statute 18.03(4) - The approval is deemed to have been granted in absence of any decision within the prescribed time. Once the papers relating to appointment were forwarded and no decision was taken within time, the consequence of deemed approval would follow, entitling the petitioner to salary. (Para 20)

E. State cannot refuse to sanction posts indefinitely where the work is perennial in nature and employees have been working for long years. It has been held that such refusal amounts to arbitrariness and sanction of posts has been directed. (Para 23)

F. Non-payment of salary for work taken is violative of Articles 14 and 21 of the Constitution of India and amounts to exploitation. Where the employer has taken work from an employee for long years, the State cannot deny salary on hyper-technical grounds. (Para 25)

Writ petition allowed. (E-4)

3. Ms. Radhika Singh, learned counsel for the petitioner submitted that petitioner No.1 has been granted promotion to the higher post and petitioner No.3 has been granted fresh appointment, therefore, she is representing petitioner No.2 only.

4. The present writ petition has been filed on following prayer:

"i. Issue a writ of Mandamus or a writ, order or direction in the nature of Mandamus commanding the opposite parties to make payment of salary to the petitioners regularly each and every month including the arrear of salary with effect from 8.11.2004.

v. Allow the writ petition with costs."

5. Factual matrix of the case is that the petitioner No.2 was granted appointment on 08.11.2004 under anticipation of sanction of post submitted by the committee of management. The committee of management issued advertisement in widely circulated Times of India newspaper on 11.08.2004 and in local news paper on 17.08.2004 inviting applications from eligible and qualified candidates for appointment on Class III post.

6. The petitioner along with other candidates submitted application for selection and appointment on the post of Clerk. A selection committee was constituted who selected petitioner No.2 by placing him at Sr. No.1 in the select list and in pursuance thereof, an appointment letter was issued to him on 08.11.2004 and in pursuance thereof, the petitioner is continuously discharging duties but no salary was paid to him from the State Exchequer.

7. Kamla Nehru Institute of Physical and Social Sciences, Sultanpur is a recognized institution and affiliated from Dr. Ram Manohar Lohia Avadh University, Faizabad. The Statute of 1978 as amended upto date is applicable to the said institution. The institution submitted a proposal on 31.08.1998 before the Director of Higher Education for creation and sanction of necessary posts including clerical staff, however, no decision was taken by the competent authority and a reminder letter on 16.11.2002 was sent followed by correspondence dated 07.02.2004 but the matter remain pending without any final decision.

8. Due to necessity arose to maintain proper functioning of the institution and in consonance with requirement of Statute 18.03, the management of the institution proceeded to initiate recruitment process by issuing an advertisement in the news papers in the year 2004 and thereafter, a selection committee constituted selected petitioner including petitioner No.2 and he was duly selected and appointed on the post of Clerk. The appointments were made strictly in accordance with Statute 18.03(1) which mandates recruitment through advertisement and selection.

9. Papers in regard to selection and appointment of petitioner No.2 were duly submitted before the Director, Higher Education for grant of approval and to release salary. Within prescribed period as per provisions contained under Statute 18.03(4), the appointment of the petitioner was deemed approved, therefore, he became entitled to get salary from State Exchequer.

10. Despite continuous service rendered by petitioner No.2 since 08.11.2004, respondents have failed to ensure payment of salary on regular basis. The petitioner No.2 has also not been paid arrears of salary w.e.f. 08.11.2004.

11. Submission of learned counsel for the petitioner is that under anticipation to sanction of posts appointment of the petitioner was made and no order whatsoever has been passed to sanction the post. The committee of management proceeded to make appointment under anticipation that the post will be sanctioned and the petitioner was appointed on Class III post, therefore, there is no justification in not paying salary to the petitioner No.2 from the State Exchequer.

12. She submitted that the institution in question was suffering a lot due to non availability of sufficient number of employees, therefore, the committee of management made appointment after following due procedure of law. The papers in regard to appointment of petitioner were duly submitted before the Director, Higher Education, who also has not passed any order for grant of approval as required under Statute 18.03(4), therefore, it is deemed approved in view of said provision, therefore, the petitioner is entitled for grant of payment of salary from the State Exchequer.

13. Her next submission is that action of the respondents in not paying salary to the petitioner is arbitrary, illegal and not justifiable in law. In support of her submissions, she placed reliance upon following judgments:

a) Bhola Nath Vs. State of Jharkhand; (2026) SCC Online SC 129.

b) Shripal and another Vs. Nagar Nigam, Ghazaibad; 2025 SCC Online SC 221.

c) Jaggo Vs. Union of India; 2024 SCC Online SC 3826.

d) Vinod Kumar and others Vs. Union of India; (2024) 9 SCC 327.

e) Virendra Kumar Chaubey Vs. State of U.P. and others; (2025) 4 UPLBEC 2893.

14. On the other hand, learned Additional CSC invited attention of this Court on paragraph 7 of the counter affidavit pointing out that there is no sanction post against which the petitioner has claimed appointment and no approval was granted to the appointment of the petitioner. In support of his submission, he placed reliance upon a judgment in the case of State of U.P. through Secretary, Secondary Education and others Vs. C/M Sri Sukhpal Intermediate College, Tirhut, Sultanpur and others; Special Appeal Defective No.673 of 2014 decided on 12.05.2015, wherein the Full Bench of this Court has held that in absence of sanctioned post, direction cannot be issued to ensure payment of salary to the employee.

15. I have considered the submissions advanced by learned counsel for the parties and perused the material on record as well as judgments relied upon by learned counsel for the parties.

16. To resolve the controversy involved in the matter, relevant portion of the judgments relied upon by learned counsel for the petitioner are being quoted below:

a) Bhola Nath Vs. State of Jharkhand (Supra):

"6.7. that the appellants? long and uninterrupted service has given rise to a legitimate expectation of consideration for regularization. It is contended that having diligently served for over a decade pursuant to a due process of selection, the appellants justifiably believed that their services would be regularized and that discontinuation at this stage would result in grave hardship.

On the aforesaid grounds, the learned senior counsel urged this Court to set aside the impugned judgments passed by the High Court, allow the present appeals, and issue appropriate directions to the respondent-State for regularization of the services of the appellants.

9.3. In the present case, the respondent-State has engaged the services of the appellants for a period exceeding 10 years. Upon completion of this long tenure, the respondents, as apprehended by the appellants, declined to grant any further extension on the ground that the engagement was contractual in nature. Such a decision necessarily warrants examination on the touchstone of the equality principles enshrined in the Constitution, which obligate the State to act as a model employer and to take decisions free from arbitrariness. In our consideration of the second issue, we shall examine whether non-interference with the impugned judgments would result in substantial and grave injustice to the appellants.

12.2. At this juncture, the analogy of apples and oranges serves as a useful reminder that certain relationships are inherently incapable of being assessed on an equal plane. A contract between the State and an employee stands on a similar footing. The State, in such a relationship, assumes the role of a metaphorical lion, endowed with overwhelming authority, resources and bargaining strength, whereas the employee, who is yet an aspirant, is reduced to the position of a metaphorical lamb, possessing little real negotiating power. To suggest parity between the two, i.e. the lion and the lamb, would be to ignore the stark imbalance that defines the relationship.

12.3. Therefore, where a lion contracts with a lamb, the inequality is not incidental but structural, and it is precisely this disproportion that calls for judicial sensitivity. In such situations, the conscience of Constitutional Courts must inevitably tilt in favour of protecting the lamb. We have no hesitation in holding that Constitutional Courts are duty-bound to act to safeguard those who are vulnerable to exploitation, so that employees are not compelled to meekly submit to the demands of a vastly dominant contracting party like the State, but are instead assured that constitutional protections will intervene to prevent such exploitation.

13.6. This Court has, on several occasions, deprecated the practice adopted by States of engaging employees under the nominal labels of 'part-time', 'contractual' or 'temporary' in perpetuity and thereby exploiting them by not regularizing their positions. In Jaggo v. Union of India¹⁰, this Court underscored that government-departments must lead by example in ensuring fair and stable employment, and evolved the test of examining whether the duties performed by such temporary employees are integral to the day-to-day functioning of the organization. 13.9. The State must remain conscious that part-time employees, such as the appellants, constitute an integral part of the edifice upon which the machinery of the State continues to function. They are not merely ancillary to the system, but form essential components thereof. The equality mandate of our Constitution, therefore, requires that their service be reciprocated in a manner free from arbitrariness, ensuring that decisions of the State affecting the careers and livelihood of such part-time and contractual employees are guided by fairness and reason.

13.9. The State must remain conscious that part-time employees, such as the appellants, constitute an integral part of the edifice upon which the machinery of the State continues to function. They are not merely ancillary to the system, but form essential components thereof. The equality mandate of our Constitution, therefore, requires that their service be reciprocated in a manner free from arbitrariness, ensuring that decisions of the State affecting the careers and livelihood of such part-time and contractual employees are guided by fairness and reason."

b) Shripal and another Vs. Nagar Nigam, Ghazaibad (Supra):

"15. It is manifest that the Appellant Workmen continuously rendered their services over several years, sometimes spanning more than a decade. Even if certain muster rolls were not produced in full, the Employer's failure to furnish such records?despite directions to do so?allows an adverse inference under well-established labour jurisprudence. Indian labour law strongly disfavors perpetual daily-wage or contractual engagements in circumstances where the work is permanent in nature. Morally and legally, workers who fulfil ongoing municipal requirements year after year cannot be dismissed summarily as dispensable, particularly in the absence of a genuine contractor agreement. At this juncture, it would be appropriate to recall the broader critique of indefinite ?temporary? employment practices as done by a recent judgment of this court in Jaggo v. Union of India³ in the following paragraphs:

“22. The pervasive misuse of temporary employment contracts, as exemplified in this case, reflects a broader systemic issue that adversely affects workers' rights and job security. In the private sector, the rise of the gig economy has led to an increase in precarious employment arrangements, often characterized by lack of benefits, job security, and fair treatment. Such practices have been criticized for exploiting workers and undermining labour standards. Government institutions, entrusted with upholding the principles of fairness and justice, bear an even greater responsibility to avoid such exploitative employment practices. When public sector entities engage in misuse of temporary contracts, it not only mirrors the detrimental trends observed in the gig economy but also sets a concerning precedent that can erode public trust in governmental operations.

25. It is a disconcerting reality that temporary employees, particularly in government institutions, often face multifaceted forms of exploitation. While the foundational purpose of temporary contracts may have been to address short-term or seasonal needs, they have increasingly become a mechanism to evade long-term obligations owed to employees. These practices manifest in several ways:

 Misuse of ?Temporary? Labels : Employees engaged for work that is essential, recurring, and integral to the functioning of an institution are often labelled as ?temporary? or ?contractual,? even when their roles mirror those of regular employees. Such misclassification deprives workers of the dignity, security, and benefits that regular employees are entitled to, despite performing identical tasks.*

 Arbitrary Termination : Temporary employees are frequently dismissed without cause or notice, as seen in the present case. This practice undermines the principles of natural justice and subjects workers to a state of constant insecurity, regardless of the quality or duration of their service.*

 Lack of Career Progression : Temporary employees often find themselves excluded from opportunities for skill development, promotions, or incremental pay raises. They remain stagnant in their roles, creating a systemic disparity between them and their regular counterparts, despite their contributions being equally significant.*

 Using Outsourcing as a Shield : Institutions increasingly resort to outsourcing roles performed by temporary employees, effectively replacing one set of exploited workers with another.*

This practice not only perpetuates exploitation but also demonstrates a deliberate effort to bypass the obligation to offer regular employment.

 Denial of Basic Rights and Benefits : Temporary employees are often denied fundamental benefits such as pension, provident fund, health insurance, and paid leave, even when their tenure spans decades. This lack of social security subjects them and their families to undue hardship, especially in cases of illness, retirement, or unforeseen circumstances."*

16. The High Court did acknowledge the Employer's inability to justify these abrupt terminations. Consequently, it ordered re-engagement on daily wages with some measure of parity in minimum pay. Regrettably, this only perpetuated precariousness : the Appellant Workmen were left in a marginally improved yet still uncertain status. While the High Court recognized the importance of their work and hinted at eventual regularization, it failed to afford them continuity of service or meaningful back wages commensurate with the degree of statutory violation evident on record."

c) Jaggo Vs. Union of India (Supra):

" 7. They urged the High Court to recognize their long and continuous service, the nature of their work, and the lack of any backdoor or illegal entry. They highlighted that they had functioned without any break, performed tasks equivalent to regular employees, and had been assigned duties essential to the regular upkeep, cleanliness, and maintenance of the respondent's offices. The High Court, after examining the Tribunal's decision and the submissions advanced, concluded that the petitioners before it were part-time workers who had not been appointed against sanctioned posts, nor had they performed a sufficient duration of full-time service to satisfy the criteria for regularization. It relied on the principle laid down in Secretary, State of Karnataka v. Uma Devi³ holding that the petitioners could not claim a vested right to be absorbed or regularized without fulfilling the requisite conditions. The High Court further observed that the petitioners did not possess the minimum educational qualifications ordinarily required for regular appointments, and additionally noted that the employer had subsequently outsourced the relevant housekeeping and maintenance activities. Concluding that there was no legal basis to grant the reliefs sought, the High Court dismissed the writ petition. Aggrieved by this rejection, the appellants have approached this Court by way of these appeals.

8. On behalf of the appellants, the following arguments have been advanced before us:

(i). Continuous and Substantive Engagement: The appellants emphasize their long, uninterrupted service spanning well over a decade?and in some instances, exceeding two decades. They argue that their duties were neither sporadic nor project-based but permanent and integral to the daily functioning of the respondent's offices.

(ii). Nature of Duties: Their responsibilities? such as cleaning, dusting, gardening, and other maintenance tasks?were not casual or peripheral. Instead, they were central to ensuring a clean, orderly, and functional work environment, effectively aligning with roles typically associated with regular posts.

(iii). Absence of Performance Issues: Throughout their tenure, the appellants were never issued any warning or adverse remarks. They highlight that their work was consistently satisfactory, and there was no indication from the respondents that their performance was not satisfactory or required improvement.

(iv). Compliance with ?Uma Devi? Guidelines: The appellants assert that their appointments were not ?illegal? but at most ?irregular.? Drawing on the principles laid down in *Secretary, State of Karnataka v. Uma Devi*⁴, they submit that long-serving employees in irregular appointments?who fulfil essential, sanctioned functions?are entitled to consideration for regularization.

(v). Discrimination in Regularization: The appellants point out that individuals with fewer years of service or similar engagements have been regularized. They contend that denying them the same benefit, despite their longer service and crucial role, constitutes arbitrary and discriminatory treatment.

(vi). Irrelevance of Educational Qualifications: The appellants reject the respondents' reliance on formal educational requirements, noting that such criteria were never enforced earlier and that the nature of their work does not inherently demand formal schooling. They argue that retrospectively imposing such qualifications is unjustified given their proven capability over many years.

(vii). Equity and Fairness: Ultimately, the appellants submit that the High Court erred by focusing too rigidly on their initial terms of engagement and ignoring the substantive reality of their long, integral service. They maintain that fairness, equity, and established judicial principles call for their regularization rather than abrupt termination.

9. On the other hand, the following primary arguments have been advanced before us on behalf of the Respondents:

(i). Nature of Engagement: The respondents maintain that the appellants were engaged purely on a part-time, contractual basis, limited to a few hours a day, and that their work was never intended to be permanent or full-time.

(ii). Absence of Sanctioned Posts: They assert that the appellants were not appointed against any sanctioned posts. According to the respondents, without sanctioned vacancies, there can be no question of regularization or absorption into the permanent workforce.

(iii). Non-Compliance with ?Uma Devi? Criteria: Relying heavily on Secretary, State of Karnataka v. Uma Devi (supra), the respondents argue that the appellants do not meet the conditions necessary for regularization. They emphasize that merely serving a long period on a part-time or ad-hoc basis does not create a right to be regularized.

(iv). Educational Qualifications: The respondents contend that even if the appellants were to be considered for regular appointments, they do not possess the minimum educational qualifications mandated for regular recruitment. This, in their view, disqualifies the appellants from being absorbed into regular service.

(v). Outsourcing as a Legitimate Policy Decision: The respondents point out that they have chosen to outsource the relevant housekeeping and maintenance work to a private agency. This, they argue, is a legitimate administrative policy decision aimed at improving efficiency and cannot be interfered with by the courts.

(vi). No Fundamental Right to Regularization: Finally, the respondents underscore that no employee, merely by virtue of long-standing temporary or part-time engagement, acquires a vested right to be regularized. They maintain that the appellants' claims are devoid of any legal entitlement and that the High Court was correct in dismissing their petition.

10. Having given careful consideration to the submissions advanced and the material on record, we find that the appellants' long and uninterrupted service, for periods extending well beyond ten years, cannot be brushed aside merely by labelling their initial appointments as part-time or contractual. The essence of their employment must be considered in the light of their sustained contribution, the integral nature of their work, and the fact that no evidence suggests their entry was through any illegal or surreptitious route.

11. The appellants, throughout their tenure, were engaged in performing essential duties that were indispensable to the day-to-day functioning of the offices of the Central Water Commission (CWC). Applicant Nos. 1, 2, and 3, as Safaiwalis, were responsible for maintaining hygiene, cleanliness, and a conducive working environment within the office premises. Their duties involved sweeping, dusting, and cleaning of floors, workstations, and common areas? a set of responsibilities that directly contributed to the basic operational functionality of the CWC. Applicant No. 5, in the role of a Khallasi (with additional functions akin to those of a Mali), was entrusted with critical maintenance tasks, including gardening, upkeep of outdoor premises, and ensuring orderly surroundings.

12. Despite being labelled as ?part-time workers,? the appellants performed these essential tasks on a daily and continuous basis over extensive periods, ranging from over a decade to nearly two decades. Their engagement was not sporadic or temporary in nature; instead, it was recurrent, regular, and akin to the responsibilities typically associated with sanctioned posts. Moreover, the respondents did not engage any other personnel for these tasks during the appellants' tenure, underscoring the indispensable nature of their work.

20. It is well established that the decision in Uma Devi (supra) does not intend to penalize employees who have rendered long years of service fulfilling ongoing and necessary functions of the State or its instrumentalities. The said judgment sought to prevent backdoor entries and illegal appointments that circumvent constitutional requirements. However, where appointments were not illegal but possibly ?irregular,? and where employees had served continuously against the backdrop of sanctioned functions for a considerable period, the need for a fair and humane resolution becomes paramount. Prolonged, continuous, and unblemished service performing tasks inherently required on a regular basis can, over the time, transform what was initially ad-hoc or temporary into a scenario demanding fair regularization. In a recent judgment of this Court in Vinod Kumar v. Union of India⁵, it was held that procedural formalities cannot be used to deny regularization of service to an employee whose appointment was termed ?temporary? but has performed the same duties as performed by the regular employee over a considerable period in the capacity of the regular employee. The relevant paras of this judgment have been reproduced below:

“6. The application of the judgment in Uma Devi (supra) by the High Court does not fit squarely with the facts at hand, given the specific circumstances under which the appellants were employed and have continued their service. The reliance on procedural formalities at the outset cannot be used to perpetually deny substantive rights that have accrued over a considerable period through continuous service. Their promotion was based on a specific notification for vacancies and a subsequent circular, followed by a selection process involving written tests and interviews, which distinguishes their case from the appointments through back door entry as discussed in the case of Uma Devi (supra).

7. The judgment in the case Uma Devi (supra) also distinguished between ?irregular? and ?illegal? appointments underscoring the importance of considering certain appointments even if were not made strictly in accordance with the prescribed Rules and Procedure, cannot be said to have been made illegally if they had followed the procedures of regular appointments such as conduct of written examinations or interviews as in the present case??

21. The High Court placed undue emphasis on the initial label of the appellants' engagements and the outsourcing decision taken after their dismissal. Courts must look beyond the surface labels and consider the realities of employment : continuous, long-term service, indispensable duties, and absence of any mala fide or illegalities in their appointments. In that light, refusing regularization simply because their original terms did not explicitly state so, or because an outsourcing policy was belatedly introduced, would be contrary to principles of fairness and equity.

25. It is a disconcerting reality that temporary employees, particularly in government institutions, often face multifaceted forms of exploitation. While the foundational purpose of temporary contracts may have been to address short-term or seasonal needs, they have increasingly become a mechanism to evade long-term obligations owed to employees. These practices manifest in several ways:

“ Misuse of ?Temporary? Labels: Employees engaged for work that is essential, recurring, and integral to the functioning of an institution are often labeled as ?temporary? or ?contractual,? even when their roles mirror those of regular employees. Such misclassification deprives workers of the dignity, security, and benefits that regular employees are entitled to, despite performing identical tasks.

“ Arbitrary Termination: Temporary employees are frequently dismissed without cause or notice, as seen in the present case. This practice undermines the principles of natural justice and subjects workers to a state of constant insecurity, regardless of the quality or duration of their service.

“ Lack of Career Progression: Temporary employees often find themselves excluded from opportunities for skill development, promotions, or incremental pay raises. They remain stagnant in their roles, creating a systemic disparity between them and their regular counterparts, despite their contributions being equally significant.

“ Using Outsourcing as a Shield: Institutions increasingly resort to outsourcing roles performed by temporary employees, effectively replacing one set of exploited workers with another. This practice not only perpetuates exploitation but also demonstrates a deliberate effort to bypass the obligation to offer regular employment.

“ Denial of Basic Rights and Benefits: Temporary employees are often denied fundamental benefits such as pension, provident fund, health insurance, and paid leave, even when their tenure spans decades. This lack of social security subjects them and their families to undue hardship, especially in cases of illness, retirement, or unforeseen circumstances.

27. In light of these considerations, in our opinion, it is imperative for government departments to lead by example in providing fair and stable employment. Engaging workers on a temporary basis for extended periods, especially when their roles are integral to the organization's functioning, not only contravenes international labour standards but also exposes the organization to legal challenges and undermines employee morale. By ensuring fair employment practices, government institutions can reduce the burden of unnecessary litigation, promote job security, and uphold the principles of justice and fairness that they are meant to embody. This approach aligns with international standards and sets a positive precedent for the private sector to follow, thereby contributing to the overall betterment of labour practices in the country."

d) Vinod Kumar and others Vs. Union of India (Supra):

"5. Having heard the arguments of both the sides, this Court believes that the essence of employment and the rights thereof cannot be merely determined by the initial terms of appointment when the actual course of employment has evolved significantly over time. The continuous service of the appellants in the capacities of regular employees, performing duties indistinguishable from those in permanent posts, and their selection through a process that mirrors that of regular recruitment, constitute a substantive departure from the temporary and scheme-specific nature of their initial engagement. Moreover, the appellants' promotion process was conducted and overseen by a Departmental Promotional Committee and their sustained service for more than 25 years without any indication of the temporary nature of their roles being reaffirmed or the duration of such temporary engagement being specified, merits a reconsideration of their employment status.

6. The application of the judgment in Umadevi (3) [State of Karnataka v. Umadevi (3), (2006) 4 SCC 1 : 2006 SCC (L&S) 753] by the High Court does not fit squarely with the facts at hand, given the specific circumstances under which the appellants were employed and have continued their service. The reliance on procedural formalities at the outset cannot be used to perpetually deny substantive rights that have accrued over a considerable period through continuous service. Their promotion was based on a specific notification for vacancies and a subsequent circular, followed by a selection process involving written tests and interviews, which distinguishes their case from the appointments through back door entry as discussed in Umadevi (3) [State of Karnataka v. Umadevi (3), (2006) 4 SCC 1 : 2006 SCC (L&S) 753] .

7. 7. The judgment in Umadevi (3) [State of Karnataka v. Umadevi (3), (2006) 4 SCC 1 : 2006 SCC (L&S) 753] also distinguished between ?irregular? and ?illegal? appointments underscoring the importance of considering certain appointments even if were not made strictly in accordance with the prescribed Rules and Procedure, cannot be said to have been made illegally if they had followed the procedures of regular appointments such as conduct of written examinations or interviews as in the present case. Para 53 of Umadevi (3) case [State of Karnataka v. Umadevi (3), (2006) 4 SCC 1 : 2006 SCC (L&S) 753] is reproduced hereunder : (SCC p. 42)

“53. One aspect needs to be clarified. There may be cases where irregular appointments (not illegal appointments) as explained in S.V. Narayanappa [State of Mysore v. S.V. Narayanappa, 1966 SCC OnLine SC 23] , R.N. Nanjundappa [R.N. Nanjundappa v. T. Thimmiah, (1972) 1 SCC 409] and B.N. Nagarajan [B.N. Nagarajan v. State of Karnataka, (1979) 4 SCC 507 : 1980 SCC (L&S) 4] and referred to in para 15 above, of duly qualified persons in duly sanctioned vacant posts might have been made and the employees have continued to work for ten years or more but without the intervention of orders of the courts or of tribunals. The question of regularisation of the services of such employees may have to be considered on merits in the light of the principles settled by this Court in the cases abovereferred to and in the light of this judgment. In that context, the Union of India, the State Governments and their instrumentalities should take steps to regularise as a one-time measure, the services of such irregularly appointed, who have worked for ten years or more in duly sanctioned posts but not under cover of orders of the courts or of tribunals and should further ensure that regular recruitments are undertaken to fill those vacant sanctioned posts that require to be filled up, in cases where temporary employees or daily wagers are being now employed. The process must be set in motion within six months from this date. We also clarify that regularisation, if any already made, but not sub judice, need not be reopened based on this judgment, but there should be no further bypassing of the constitutional requirement and regularising or making permanent, those not duly appointed as per the constitutional scheme.”

8. In light of the reasons recorded above, this Court finds merit in the appellants' arguments and holds that their service conditions, as evolved over time, warrant a reclassification from temporary to regular status. The failure to recognise the substantive nature of their roles and their continuous service akin to permanent employees runs counter to the principles of equity, fairness, and the intent behind employment regulations.

9. Accordingly, the appeals are allowed. The judgment [Vinod Kumar v. Central Administrative Tribunal, 2016 SCC OnLine All 4489] of the High Court is set aside, and the appellants are entitled to be considered for regularisation in their respective posts. The respondents are directed to complete the process of regularisation within 3 months from the date of service of this judgment."

e) Virendra Kumar Chaubey Vs. State of U.P. and others (Supra):

" 23. The point involved in this petition, in our opinion, has already received attention of the Supreme Court in Jaggo v. Union of India⁶. The relevant facts in Jaggo (supra) may be noticed from the report of their Lordships' judgment, which reads:

4. The appellants before this Court, being Applicant Nos. 1, 2, 3, and 5 before the Tribunal, were originally engaged by the Central Water Commission on part-time, ad-hoc terms. Applicant No. 1 was appointed as a Safaiwali in 1993, Applicant No. 2 as a Safaiwali in 1998, and Applicant No. 3 as a Safaiwali in 1999. All three were primarily responsible for cleaning and maintaining the office premises under the CWC. Applicant No. 5, appointed in 2004 as a Khallasi (also discharging duties akin to a Mali/Khallasi), was entrusted with tasks such as gardening, dusting, and other ancillary maintenance work. Throughout their engagement, these individuals performed essential housekeeping and support functions at CWC establishments, including its offices at Faridabad, ensuring daily upkeep and contributing to the smooth functioning of the Commission's administrative operations.

5. Initially, the appellants sought regularization of their services by filing Original Application No. 2211/2015 before the Tribunal. They contended that over the years, their roles and responsibilities had evolved beyond the nominal labels of 'part-time' or 'contractual' and that they were performing ongoing and core functions integral to the CWC's operations. They relied on applicable government instructions and the principle that long-serving employees, engaged against work of a perennial nature, deserve fair consideration for regularization, provided their appointments were not illegal or clandestine. The Tribunal, by its order dated 17.04.2018, dismissed the appellants' plea. It concluded that the appellants were not engaged on what it considered 'regular vacancies,' that they had not completed what it termed as sufficient 'full-time' service (such as meeting a 240-days per year criterion), and that their case did not attract the principles enabling regularization. Within ten days after the dismissal of the original application, on 17.04.2018, the services of all these individuals were abruptly terminated on 27.10.2018 by the respondent authorities without issuance of any show-cause notice.

7. They urged the High Court to recognize their long and continuous service, the nature of their work, and the lack of any backdoor or illegal entry. They highlighted that they had functioned without any break, performed tasks equivalent to regular employees, and had been assigned duties essential to the regular upkeep, cleanliness, and maintenance of the respondent's offices. The High Court, after examining the Tribunal's decision and the submissions advanced, concluded that the petitioners before it were part-time workers who had not been appointed against sanctioned posts, nor had they performed a sufficient duration of full-time service to satisfy the criteria for regularization. It relied on the principle laid down in Secretary, State of Karnataka v. Uma Devi holding that the petitioners could not claim a vested right to be absorbed or regularized without fulfilling the requisite conditions. The High Court further observed that the petitioners did not possess the minimum educational qualifications ordinarily required for regular appointments, and additionally noted that the employer had subsequently outsourced the relevant housekeeping and maintenance activities. Concluding that there was no legal basis to grant the reliefs sought, the High Court dismissed the writ petition..."

24. On these facts, it was held in Jago:

10. Having given careful consideration to the submissions advanced and the material on record, we find that the appellants' long and uninterrupted service, for periods extending well beyond ten years, cannot be brushed aside merely by labelling their initial appointments as parttime or contractual. The essence of their employment must be considered in the light of their sustained contribution, the integral nature of their work, and the fact that no evidence suggests their entry was through any illegal or surreptitious route.

11. The appellants, throughout their tenure, were engaged in performing essential duties that were indispensable to the day-to-day functioning of the offices of the Central Water Commission (CWC). Applicant Nos. 1, 2, and 3, as Safaiwalis, were responsible for maintaining hygiene, cleanliness, and a conducive working environment within the office premises. Their duties involved sweeping, dusting, and cleaning of floors, workstations, and common areas?a set of responsibilities that directly contributed to the basic operational functionality of the CWC. Applicant No. 5, in the role of a Khallasi (with additional functions akin to those of a Mali), was entrusted with critical maintenance tasks, including gardening, upkeep of outdoor premises, and ensuring orderly surroundings.

12. Despite being labelled as ?part-time workers,? the appellants performed these essential tasks on a daily and continuous basis over extensive periods, ranging from over a decade to nearly two decades. Their engagement was not sporadic or temporary in nature; instead, it was recurrent, regular, and akin to the responsibilities typically associated with sanctioned posts. Moreover, the respondents did not engage any other personnel for these tasks during the appellants' tenure, underscoring the indispensable nature of their work.

13. The claim by the respondents that these were not regular posts lacks merit, as the nature of the work performed by the appellants was perennial and fundamental to the functioning of the offices. The recurring nature of these duties necessitates their classification as regular posts, irrespective of how their initial engagements were labelled. It is also noteworthy that subsequent outsourcing of these same tasks to private agencies after the appellants' termination demonstrates the inherent need for these services. This act of outsourcing, which effectively replaced one set of workers with another, further underscores that the work in question was neither temporary nor occasional.

20. It is well established that the decision in Uma Devi (supra) does not intend to penalize employees who have rendered long years of service fulfilling ongoing and necessary functions of the State or its instrumentalities. The said judgment sought to prevent backdoor entries and illegal appointments that circumvent constitutional requirements. However, where appointments were not illegal but possibly ?irregular,? and where employees had served continuously against the backdrop of sanctioned functions for a considerable period, the need for a fair and humane resolution becomes paramount. Prolonged, continuous, and unblemished service performing tasks inherently required on a regular basis can, over the time, transform what was initially ad-hoc or temporary into a scenario demanding fair regularization. In a recent judgment of this Court in Vinod Kumar v. Union of India, it was held that procedural formalities cannot be used to deny regularization of service to an employee whose appointment was termed ?temporary? but has performed the same duties as performed by the regular employee over a considerable period in the capacity of the regular employee. The relevant paras of this judgment have been reproduced below:

“6. The application of the judgment in Uma Devi (supra) by the High Court does not fit squarely with the facts at hand, given the specific circumstances under which the appellants were employed and have continued their service. The reliance on procedural formalities at the outset cannot be used to perpetually deny substantive rights that have accrued over a considerable period through continuous service. Their promotion was based on a specific notification for vacancies and a subsequent circular, followed by a selection process involving written tests and interviews, which distinguishes their case from the appointments through back door entry as discussed in the case of Uma Devi (supra).

7. The judgment in the case Uma Devi (supra) also distinguished between ?irregular? and ?illegal? appointments underscoring the importance of considering certain appointments even if were not made strictly in accordance with the prescribed Rules and Procedure, cannot be said to have been made illegally if they had followed the procedures of regular appointments such as conduct of written examinations or interviews as in the present case...

22. The pervasive misuse of temporary employment contracts, as exemplified in this case, reflects a broader systemic issue that adversely affects workers' rights and job security. In the private sector, the rise of the gig economy has led to an increase in precarious employment arrangements, often characterized by lack of benefits, job security, and fair treatment. Such practices have been criticized for exploiting workers and undermining labour standards. Government institutions, entrusted with upholding the principles of fairness and justice, bear an even greater responsibility to avoid such exploitative employment practices. When public sector entities engage in misuse of temporary contracts, it not only mirrors the detrimental trends observed in the gig economy but also sets a concerning precedent that can erode public trust in governmental operations.

26. While the judgment in Uma Devi (supra) sought to curtail the practice of backdoor entries and ensure appointments adhered to constitutional principles, it is regrettable that its principles are often misinterpreted or misapplied to deny legitimate claims of long-serving employees. This judgment aimed to distinguish between ?illegal? and ?irregular? appointments. It categorically held that employees in irregular appointments, who were engaged in duly sanctioned posts and had served continuously for more than ten years, should be considered for regularization as a one-time measure. However, the laudable intent of the judgment is being subverted when institutions rely on its dicta to indiscriminately reject the claims of employees, even in cases where their appointments are not illegal, but merely lack adherence to procedural formalities. Government departments often cite the judgment in Uma Devi (supra) to argue that no vested right to regularization exists for temporary employees, overlooking the judgment's explicit acknowledgment of cases where regularization is appropriate. This selective application distorts the judgment's spirit and purpose, effectively weaponizing it against employees who have rendered indispensable services over decades.

27. In light of these considerations, in our opinion, it is imperative for government departments to lead by example in providing fair and stable employment. Engaging workers on a temporary basis for extended periods, especially when their roles are integral to the organization's functioning, not only contravenes international labour standards but also exposes the organization to legal challenges and undermines employee morale. By ensuring fair employment practices, government institutions can reduce the burden of unnecessary litigation, promote job security, and uphold the principles of justice and fairness that they are meant to embody. This approach aligns with international standards and sets a positive precedent for the private sector to follow, thereby contributing to the overall betterment of labour practices in the country. "

25. In Jaggo, the Supreme Court quashed the orders of termination, that were in issue and directed reinstatement of the employees, together with regularisation in service.

26. In Shripal v. Nagar Nigam, Ghaziabad⁷, the facts leading to the appeal before their Lordships of the Supreme Court can best be noticed the way these have been described in the report of the judgment. It reads:

3. The factual matrix leading up to the appeal before us is as follows:

3.1. The Appellant Workmen claim to have been engaged as Gardeners (Malis) in the Horticulture Department of the Respondent Employer, Ghaziabad Nagar Nigam, since the year 1998 (in some instances, since 1999). According to them, they continuously discharged horticultural and maintenance duties? such as planting trees, maintaining parks, and beautifying public spaces?under the direct supervision of the Respondent Employer. They further allege that no formal appointment letters were ever issued to them, and that they were persistently denied minimum wages, weekly offs, national holidays, and other statutory benefits.

3.2. In 2004, the Appellant Workmen, along with many other similarly situated employees, raised an industrial dispute (C.B. Case No. 6 of 2004) before the Conciliation Officer at Ghaziabad, seeking regularization of their services and the requisite statutory benefits. They contend that, upon learning of this demand, the Respondent Employer began delaying their salaries and subjected them to adverse working conditions. Eventually, around mid-July 2005, the services of numerous workmen were allegedly terminated orally, without any notice, written orders, or retrenchment compensation.

3.3. Since the above termination took place during the pendency of the conciliation proceedings, the Appellant Workmen argue it violated Section 6E of the U.P. Industrial Disputes Act, 1947. Consequently, the State Government referred the disputes concerning both (i) regularization and (ii) legality of the alleged termination, to the Labour Court, Ghaziabad for adjudication.

3.4. The Labour Court proceeded to decide the references vide two orders:

(i) Order dated 03.06.2011: In numerous adjudication cases (e.g., Adjudication Case Nos. 448, 451, 467 of 2006, etc.), the Labour Court passed awards holding the terminations illegal for want of compliance with Section 6N of the U.P. Industrial Disputes Act, 1947, and directed reinstatement with 30% back wages.

(ii) Order dated 11.10.2011: However, in about 41 other adjudication cases (e.g., Adjudication Case Nos. 269, 270, 272, etc.), the Labour Court arrived at a contrary conclusion, dismissing the claims on the finding that the concerned workmen had not been engaged directly by the Nagar Nigam but rather through a contractor, and hence had no enforceable right to reinstatement or regularization against the Respondent Employer.

3.5. Aggrieved by the adverse portion of the awards (i.e., those granting reinstatement), the Respondent Employer, Ghaziabad Nagar Nigam, filed several writ petitions before the High Court of Judicature at Allahabad, challenging the Labour Court's findings. On the other hand, the workmen whose claims were dismissed by the other set of awards also approached the High Court by filing their own writ petitions. All these writ petitions were heard together, culminating in the common judgment dated 01.03.2019, which partly modified the Labour Court's conclusions.

3.6. Through the impugned judgment, the High Court held that while the Labour Court was correct in exercising jurisdiction under the U.P. Industrial Disputes Act (since municipalities could be treated as ?industry?), there remained factual complexities as to whether the workmen were genuinely on the rolls of the Nagar Nigam or were provided by contractors. The High Court also noted that the State Government had, by notifications/orders, placed a ban on fresh recruitments in Municipal Corporations, thereby restricting direct appointments to any post. Ultimately, the High Court partially modified the relief granted, directing re-engagement of the workmen on daily wages, with pay equivalent to the minimum in the regular pay scale of Gardeners, while allowing future consideration of their regularization if permissible by law.

4. Both the Appellant Workmen and the Respondent Employer have now approached this Court by way of Special Leave Petitions. The workmen primarily seek full reinstatement with back wages and a direction to secure their regularization, whereas the Respondent Employer seeks to quash the modifications ordered by the High Court on the ground that the High Court exceeded its jurisdiction by granting partial relief akin to regular employees, contrary to constitutional provisions and the State's ban on recruitment.

28. *Of particular relevance to the issue here is the recent decision of the Supreme Court in Dharam Singh v. State of U.P.*⁸. The facts in Dharam Singh (supra) are set forth in the report of their Lordships' judgment, which reads:

4. The factual backdrop to the present appeal is as follows:

4.1. The appellants were engaged by the Commission between 1989 and 1992. Appellant Nos. 1 to 5 served as Class-IV employees (Peon/attendant duties), and Appellant No. 6 served as Driver (Class-III). They were paid as daily wagers and, with effect from 08.04.1997, received consolidated monthly amounts (Rs. 1,500 for Class-IV; Rs. 2,000 for Driver), while discharging ministerial and support functions during regular office hours. The Commission, established under the U.P. Higher Education Services Commission Act, 1980, processes large recruitment cycles for teachers and principals and requires ministerial support for scrutiny of applications, dispatch, and connected administrative work.

4.2. On 24.10.1991, the Commission resolved to create fourteen posts in Class-III and Class-IV and sought sanction from the State Government. On 27.12.1997, the State sought particulars of daily-wage hands and their service details. On 11.02.1998, the Commission furnished a list of fourteen daily wagers which included the present appellants.

4.3. On 16.10.1999, the Commission reiterated its request, seeking sanction of two posts of Driver and ten posts for Peon/Mali/Chowkidar, adverted to administrative exigencies, and referred to earlier correspondence. By letter dated 11.11.1999, the State rejected the proposal citing financial constraints.

4.4. Aggrieved, the appellants instituted Writ Petition No. 3162 of 2000 before the High Court praying for

(i) Quashing of the State's order dated 11.11.1999;

(ii) A mandamus to the State to sanction/create fourteen posts in Class-III/IV for the Commission in terms of the Commission's resolution and proposals and, thereafter, to regularise the appellants against those posts with regular pay; and

(iii) Consequential non-interference and salary directions.

4.5. On 24.04.2002, the High Court directed the Commission to send a fresh recommendation for sanction of appropriate Group-C/Group-D posts and directed the State to take a fresh decision thereon. In the meantime, having regard to the appellants' long engagement, the Commission was directed to pay them the minimum of the applicable pay scale.

4.6. Pursuant thereto, a fresh recommendation was sent and by communication dated 25.11.2003, the State declined sanction, again citing financial grounds and a ban on creation of new posts.

4.7. By judgment dated 19.05.2009, the learned Single Judge of the High Court dismissed the writ petition, holding that no rules for regularisation in the Commission had been shown and that even assuming the 1998 Regularisation Rules applied, there were no vacancies for the appellants. Moreover, the Single Judge held that regularisation was impermissible in view of the law declared in Secretary, State of Karnataka v. Umadevi and allied precedents. It was also observed that the petitioners (appellants herein) had not specifically assailed the subsequent decision dated 25.11.2003.

4.8. The appellants preferred Special Appeal No. 1245 of 2009. By the impugned judgment, the Division Bench of the High Court affirmed the dismissal, observing that the appellants were daily wagers, that there were no rules for regularisation in the Commission and that no vacancy existed for considering them.

29. In Dharam Singh, it was held:

7. Having heard the learned counsel for the parties and perused the record, we are unable to endorse the approach adopted by the High Court. The original writ petition before the High Court expressly assailed the State's refusal dated 11.11.1999 to sanction posts for the Commission and sought a mandamus for creation of posts with consequential consideration for the appellants. The Single Judge of the High Court, and the Division Bench of the High Court in appeal, treated the matter as a bare plea for regularisation, answered it only on the touchstone of absence of rules and vacancy, and rested principally on Umadevi (Supra). In doing so, the Courts below failed to adjudicate the principal challenge to the State's refusal and the legality of its reasons. In our opinion, such non-consideration amounts to a misdirection and, in effect, a failure to exercise jurisdiction.

8. The State's refusal of 11.11.1999 cites 'financial constraints' and the subsequent decision of 25.11.2003 (taken after the High Court's direction to reconsider) adverts to financial crisis and a ban on creation of posts. Neither decision engages with relevant considerations placed on record, namely, the Commission's 1991 resolution and repeated proposals, the acknowledged administrative exigencies of a recruiting body handling large cycles, the continuous deployment of these very hands for years, and the existence of attendant work that is primarily perennial rather than sporadic. While creation of posts is primarily an executive function, the refusal to sanction posts cannot be immune from judicial scrutiny for arbitrariness. We believe that a nonspeaking rejection on a generic plea of 'financial constraints', ignoring functional necessity and the employer's own longstanding reliance on daily wagers to discharge regular duties, does not meet the standard of reasonableness expected of a model public institution.

9. Moreover, it is undisputed that the nature of work performed by the appellants, i.e. sorting and scrutiny of applications, dispatch and office support, and driving, has been continuous and integral to the Commission's functioning since their engagement between 1989 and 1992. The Commission itself moved for sanction of fourteen posts and furnished a list of fourteen daily wagers including the appellants. That consistent internal demand, coupled with uninterrupted utilisation of the appellants' labour on regular office hours, fortifies the conclusion that the duties are perennial. To continue extracting such work for decades while pleading want of sanctioned strength is a position that cannot be sustained.

11. Furthermore, it must be clarified that the reliance placed by the High Court on Umadevi (Supra) to non-suit the appellants is misplaced. Unlike Umadevi (Supra), the challenge before us is not an invitation to bypass the constitutional scheme of public employment. It is a challenge to the State's arbitrary refusals to sanction posts despite the employer's own acknowledgement of need and decades of continuous reliance on the very workforce. On the other hand, Umadevi (Supra) draws a distinction between illegal appointments and irregular engagements and does not endorse the perpetuation of precarious employment where the work itself is permanent and the State has failed, for years, to put its house in order. Recent decisions of this Court in Jaggo v. Union of India and in Shripal v. Nagar Nigam, Ghaziabad have emphatically cautioned that Umadevi (Supra) cannot be deployed as a shield to justify exploitation through long-term ?ad hocism?, the use of outsourcing as a proxy, or the denial of basic parity where identical duties are exacted over extended periods. The principles articulated therein apply with full force to the present case. The relevant paras from Shripal (supra) have been reproduced hereunder:

"14. The Respondent Employer places reliance on Umadevi (supra) to contend that daily-wage or temporary employees cannot claim permanent absorption in the absence of statutory rules providing such absorption. However, as frequently reiterated, Uma Devi itself distinguishes between appointments that are ?illegal? and those that are ?irregular,? the latter being eligible for regularization if they meet certain conditions. More importantly, Uma Devi cannot serve as a shield to justify exploitative engagements persisting for years without the Employer undertaking legitimate recruitment. Given the record which shows no true contractor-based arrangement and a consistent need for permanent horticultural staff the alleged asserted ban on fresh recruitment, though real, cannot justify indefinite daily-wage status or continued unfair practices.

15. It is manifest that the Appellant Workmen continuously rendered their services over several years, sometimes spanning more than a decade. Even if certain muster rolls were not produced in full, the Employer's failure to furnish such records-despite directions to do so-allows an adverse inference under well-established labour jurisprudence. Indian labour law strongly disfavors perpetual daily-wage or contractual engagements in circumstances where the work is permanent in nature. Morally and legally, workers who fulfil ongoing municipal requirements year after year cannot be dismissed summarily as dispensable, particularly in the absence of a genuine contractor agreement. At this juncture, it would be appropriate to recall the broader critique of indefinite ?temporary? employment practices as done by a recent judgment of this court in Jaggo v. Union of India in the following paragraphs:

"22. The pervasive misuse of temporary employment contracts, as exemplified in this case, reflects a broader systemic issue that adversely affects workers' rights and job security. In the private sector, the rise of the gig economy has led to an increase in precarious employment arrangements, often characterized by lack of benefits, job security, and fair treatment. Such practices have been criticized for exploiting workers and undermining labour standards. Government institutions, entrusted with upholding the principles of fairness and justice, bear an even greater responsibility to avoid such exploitative employment practices. When public sector entities engage in misuse of temporary contracts, it not only mirrors the detrimental trends observed in the gig economy but also sets a concerning precedent that can erode public trust in governmental operations.

...25. It is a disconcerting reality that temporary employees, particularly in government institutions, often face multifaceted forms of exploitation. While the foundational purpose of temporary contracts may have been to address short-term or seasonal needs, they have increasingly become a mechanism to evade long-term obligations owed to employees. These practices manifest in several ways:

 Misuse of 'Temporary' Labels: Employees engaged for work that is essential, recurring, and integral to the functioning of an institution are often labelled as 'temporary' or 'contractual,' even when their roles mirror those of regular employees. Such misclassification deprives workers of the dignity, security, and benefits that regular employees are entitled to, despite performing identical tasks.*

 Arbitrary Termination: Temporary employees are frequently dismissed without cause or notice, as seen in the present case. This practice undermines the principles of natural justice and subjects workers to a state of constant insecurity, regardless of the quality or duration of their service.*

 Lack of Career Progression: Temporary employees often find themselves excluded from opportunities for skill development, promotions, or incremental pay raises. They remain stagnant in their roles, creating a systemic disparity between them and their regular counterparts, despite their contributions being equally significant.*

 Using Outsourcing as a Shield: Institutions increasingly resort to outsourcing roles performed by temporary employees, effectively replacing one set of exploited workers with another. This practice not only perpetuates exploitation but also demonstrates a deliberate effort to bypass the obligation to offer regular employment.*

 Denial of Basic Rights and Benefits: Temporary employees are often denied fundamental benefits such as pension, provident fund, health insurance, and paid leave, even when their tenure spans decades. This lack of social security subjects them and their families to undue hardship, especially in cases of illness, retirement, or unforeseen circumstances.?*

13. As we have observed in both Jaggo (Supra) and Shripal (Supra), outsourcing cannot become a convenient shield to perpetuate precariousness and to sidestep fair engagement practices where the work is inherently perennial. The Commission's further contention that the appellants are not ?full-time? employees but continue only by virtue of interim orders also does not advance their case. That interim protection was granted precisely because of the long history of engagement and the pendency of the challenge to the State's refusals. It neither creates rights that did not exist nor erases entitlements that may arise upon a proper adjudication of the legality of those refusals.

14. The learned Single Judge of the High Court also declined relief on the footing that the petitioners had not specifically assailed the subsequent decision dated 25.11.2003. However, that view overlooks that the writ petition squarely challenged the 11.11.1999 refusal as the High Court itself directed a fresh decision during pendency, and the later rejection was placed on record by the respondents. In such circumstances, we believe that the High Court was obliged to examine the legality of the State's stance in refusing sanction, whether in 1999 or upon reconsideration in 2003, rather than dispose of the matter on a mere technicality. The Division Bench of the High Court compounded the error by affirming the dismissal without engaging with the principal challenge or the intervening material. The approach of both the Courts, in reducing the dispute to a mechanical enquiry about ?rules? and ?vacancy? while ignoring the core question of arbitrariness in the State's refusal to sanction posts despite perennial need and long service, cannot be sustained.

17. Before concluding, we think it necessary to recall that the State (here referring to both the Union and the State governments) is not a mere market participant but a constitutional employer. It cannot balance budgets on the backs of those who perform the most basic and recurring public functions. Where work recurs day after day and year after year, the establishment must reflect that reality in its sanctioned strength and engagement practices. The long-term extraction of regular labour under temporary labels corrodes confidence in public administration and offends the promise of equal protection. Financial stringency certainly has a place in public policy, but it is not a talisman that overrides fairness, reason and the duty to organise work on lawful lines.

30. Tested on the touchstone of these far-reaching principles, here we have a case where the petitioners have to their credit 35 years of long service, and, at least, 28 years on the day when the writ petition was instituted. Realistically speaking, it should be regarded as 35 years, because, they are continuing in service without the aid of interim orders. The semblance of a clog that the Development Authority earlier pointed out was the absence of sanctioned posts, which the State Government did a tango to by saying that the Rules of 2016 had not been adopted by the Development Authority's Board. Now, pending the present writ petition, blissfully, the Development Authority's Board vide resolution dated 16.04.2025 have adopted the Rules of 2016. The State Government must now, therefore, sanction the necessary supernumerary posts to regularise the petitioners. We would think that given the fact that the number of supernumerary posts far exceed the sanctioned posts in this case, the State Government must spare a thought, bearing in mind the perennial nature of work, to sanction commensurate and adequate number of posts to bring about regularity in the cadres of its staff.

31. In the result, this writ petition succeeds and stands allowed. A mandamus is issued to the State Government (respondent nos. 1 and 2) to sanction the requisite number of supernumerary posts for the purpose of regularising the petitioners' services, which they must do within eight weeks from the date of receipt of a copy of this judgment. Immediately upon sanction of the posts, which the State Government shall intimate to the Development Authority, both to the Vice Chairman and the Secretary within a week of that decision being taken, the Secretary and the Vice Chairman of the Development Authority shall proceed to consider the petitioners' case for regularisation, bearing in mind the remarks in this judgment and the petitioners' case within a period of four weeks from the date of receipt of the State Government's decision to sanction supernumerary posts."

17. From the record, it is not in dispute that petitioner No.2 was appointed after issuance of public advertisement and due selection process by a duly constituted Selection Committee. The procedure adopted by the Committee of Management satisfies the requirement of transparency and fairness and cannot be said to be a back-door entry. The appointment, therefore, falls within the category of at best an 'irregular' appointment and not an 'illegal' one.

18. It is further evident that the petitioner No.2 has been continuously discharging duties on the post of Clerk since 08.11.2004 and the respondents have not disputed the factum of work being taken from him. The only ground for denial of salary is absence of sanctioned post and formal approval. Such a stand, in the facts of the present case, cannot be accepted inasmuch as the institution itself had moved proposal for sanction of posts as far back as in the year 1998, followed by repeated reminders, but the competent authority failed to take any decision.

19. The inaction on the part of the respondents in not taking a decision on the proposal for sanction of posts for decades, despite continuous requirement of clerical staff, clearly reflects arbitrariness. The State, being a model employer, cannot take advantage of its own inaction and deny legitimate dues to an employee who has been continuously serving the institution.

20. The submission of the learned counsel for the petitioner that under Statute 18.03(4), the approval is deemed to have been granted in absence of any decision within the prescribed time also deserves consideration. Once the papers relating to appointment were forwarded and no decision was taken within time, the consequence of deemed approval would follow, entitling the petitioner to salary.

21. The judgments relied upon by learned counsel for the petitioner fortify the aforesaid view. In Bhola Nath Vs. State of Jharkhand (Supra), the Hon'ble Supreme Court has emphasized that long and continuous service gives rise to legitimate expectation and the State cannot act arbitrarily in denying benefits. Similarly, in Shripal Vs. Nagar Nigam, Ghaziabad (Supra) and Jaggo Vs. Union of India (Supra), the Apex Court has deprecated the practice of engaging employees on temporary basis for long periods while denying them legitimate service benefits.

22. In Vinod Kumar Vs. Union of India (Supra), it has been held that continuous service coupled with a selection process akin to regular recruitment cannot be ignored on the ground of initial procedural irregularity. The distinction between 'irregular' and 'illegal' appointments has been reiterated, holding that irregular appointments, made after due process, deserve protection.

23. Further, in Virendra Kumar Chaubey Vs. State of U.P. (Supra), it has been categorically held that the State cannot refuse to sanction posts indefinitely where the work is perennial in nature and employees have been working for long years. The Court has held that such refusal amounts to arbitrariness and directed sanction of posts.

24. The reliance placed by learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel upon the judgment in State of U.P. Vs. C/M Sri Sukhpal Intermediate College (Supra) is distinguishable on facts. In the present case, the appointment of the petitioner was made after due advertisement and selection process and the necessity of the post is evident from long continued service and prior proposal for sanction. Moreover, the issue herein also involves arbitrary inaction of the State in not taking decision on sanction of posts, which was not the factual situation in the case relied upon by the respondents.

25. This Court is of the considered view that where the employer has taken work from an employee for long years, the State cannot deny salary on hyper-technical grounds. Non-payment of salary for work taken is violative of Articles 14 and 21 of the Constitution of India and amounts to exploitation.

26. In view of reasons recorded above, the writ petition deserves to be allowed and is hereby allowed.

27. A writ of mandamus is issued commanding the respondents:

(i) to ensure payment of regular salary to petitioner No.2 on the post of Clerk from the State Exchequer;

(ii) to release arrears of salary to petitioner No.2 with effect from 08.11.2004 within a period of three months from the date of production of a certified copy of this order;

(iii) to take a reasoned decision with regard to sanction of the post of Clerk, if not already sanctioned, within a period of three months;

(iv) not to interfere in the functioning of petitioner No.2 as Clerk, provided he continues to discharge duties.

28. It is made clear that the respondents shall not deny the aforesaid benefits on the ground of non-sanction of post when the petitioner has continuously worked for long years and the requirement of the post is evident.

29. No order as to costs.

Issue(s) for consideration

Whether petitioner's engagement as Mukhya Sewika/Anganwadi worker disentitles the family members of the deceased employees from compassionate appointment?

Headnotes

A. Service Law – Uttar Pradesh Recruitment of the Dependents of Government Servant Dying-in-Harness Rules, 1974: Rule 5 – Compassionate appointment - Engagement as Mukhya Sewika/Anganwadi worker does not disentitle the family members of the deceased employees from compassionate appointment and the respondent nos. 2 and 3 have failed to consider the financial hardships of the family. (Para 19)

Rule 5 bars compassionate appointment where the spouse is already employed under the Central/State Government or a Government-controlled corporation. But the petitioner was working on the post of Mukhya Sewika, Unnao and superannuated on the said post on 30.06.2013 and it is now well settled that engagement as Anganwadi worker or Mukhya Sewika is not a regular government service. Such engagement is contractual in nature, and remuneration is in the form of honorarium, not salary. In these circumstances, act and action of the respondents for denying the benefits provided under provisions of Dying-in-Harness Rules to the family members of the deceased employee is per se illegal and is not sustainable in the eyes of law. (Para 16)

B. The object of compassionate appointment is to provide immediate relief to the family of the deceased employee to tide over the financial crisis. In the present case the deceased was the sole breadwinner; the petitioner is a housewife with small agricultural land and the family consists of dependent children. It is pertinent to note that there is no finding by the authority comparing the income of the deceased at the time of death and income of the family after his death. The authority has failed to undertake this crucial exercise, rendering the decision arbitrary. (Para 17, 18)

Writ petition allowed. (E-4)

Appearances for Parties

For Petitioner(s): Panna Lal Gupta

For Respondent(s): C.S.C.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Irshad Ali, J.)

1. Heard Shri P.L. Gupta, learned counsel for the petitioner and learned Standing Counsel for the respondents-State.

2. By means of the present writ petition, the petitioner has prayed for the following reliefs:

"(I) To issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of Certiorari, quashing the order dated 21.9.2013 contained as Annexure No.1 to this writ petition.

(II) To issue a writ, order and direction in the nature of Mandamus, commanding the opposite parties to consider the case of the petitioner and appoint the son of the petitioner under Dying-in-Harness Rules.

(IV) To issue any other order or direction which this Hon'ble Court deems just and proper in the facts and circumstances of the case."

3. Factual matrix of the case is that the husband of petitioner Ram Kumar was initially appointed in the Irrigation Department on daily wages basis and seen the work and conduct of Late Ram Kumar, he was appointed on the post of Beldar as work-charge employee in the Department.

The work and conduct of Late Ram Kumar was much satisfactory and his work and conduct of Late Ram Kumar was always appreciated by their higher officers and there is no as such complaint against the Late Ram Kumar from any corner.

The husband of the petitioner died during service period on 26.12.2010, leaving behind his wife Kamla Devi, one son Sanjay Kumar Yadav and daughter Manju Yadav. On 23.5.2013, after death of her husband, the petitioner moved an application with affidavit for providing appointment under Dying-in-Harness Rules to her son Sanjay Kumar Yadav with relevant documents and papers as required.

On 21.9.2013, in pursuance to application dated 23.5.2013, the opposite party no.3 by way of arbitrary manner, declined the claim of the petitioner. On 12.07.2013, the petitioner submitted an application with all relevant document which have always been received by the Officer Clerk of opposite party no.3.

Due to sudden death of the husband of the petitioner, the entire family of the deceased employee is facing hardship and on the verge of starvation, but the opposite party are not providing employment to her son Sanjay Yadav on compassionate ground under Dying-in-Harness Rules .

4. Learned counsel for the petitioner submitted that Ram Kumar in the year 2010 fell seriously ill and at last he died on 26.12.2010 during his service period leaving behind him, his wife Kamla Devi, one son Sanjay Kumar and daughter Manju Yadav. Thereafter, his wife, Kamla Devi being a House-lady and small agriculturist is anyhow bearing the liability of the marriage of her daughter Manju Yadav and one son.

5. Learned counsel for the petitioner next submitted that the petitioner on 23.5.2013 moved an application with affidavit to the opposite party No. 3 for appointment of her son Sanjay Kumar Yadav under Dying-in-Harness Rules with relevant documents and paper as required by the opposite party No. 3. He also submitted that her son is Post Graduate and Handicapped and having good academic career and can be accommodated in the Department for all class III posts.

6. Learned counsel for the petitioner next submitted that the opposite party no. 3 declined the claim of the petitioner in an arbitrary manner vide order dated 21.9.2013 on the ground that according to the Govt. Order/Ordinance dated 20.01.1999 the appointment of Sanjay Kumar Yadav is not possible because the petitioner is working in District Bal Vikas Pustahar Deptt.

7. Learned counsel for the petitioner next submitted that according to the ordinance dated 20.1.1999, the Rule 5 has been amended, and column (1) has been replaced by column (2) and petitioner already by her letter dated 12.7.2013 has declared which has duly received in the office of the opposite party No. 3 that she is not in service in any department and she is not taking service benefit from any department.

8. Learned counsel for the petitioner lastly submitted that the family of Late Ram Kumar is now running from pillar to post for appointment under Dying-in-Harness Rules and his family is facing the starvation problem and his poor widow(petitioner) is unable to collect two time bread for her only son due to having few agricultural land. Moreover, the action of opposite party no. 2 and 3 is totally arbitrary, malafide, discriminatory and is bad in the eyes of law and is liable to be quashed.

9. In support of his submissions, learned counsel for the petitioner placed reliance upon the judgment rendered in the case of Aman Pathak v. State of U.P. and 2 others reported in Neutral Citation No.-2024:AHC:97182.

10. Per contra, learned Standing Counsel for the respondents-State submitted that in the impugned order dated 21/09/2013 the opposite party no. 3 has clearly mentioned that due to notification dated 20/01/1999 issued by the State Government son of the petitioner could not be appointed under the Dying-in-Harness Rules, 1974, because at the time of death of husband the petitioner was working in the Office of District Child Development Pushtahar. By impugned Order dated 21/09/2013 the opposite party no. 3 had directed the petitioner to produce certificate with regard to employment and submit certificate issued by the Office of District Child Development Pushtahar. In pursuance thereof the petitioner submitted reply on 26/11/2013 in the Office of the opposite party no. 3 and stated that the petitioner had completed age of superannuation on 30/06/2013 and was working on the post of Mukhya Sewika, Unnao. The Husband of the petitioner was died on 26/12/2010 and was working on the post of Beldar and according to Rule-5 of the Uttar Pradesh Recruitment of the Dependents of Government Servant Dying-in-Harness Rules, 1974, the petitioner is not entitled to get appointment under the Rules

11. Learned Standing Counsel lastly submitted that grounds as taken by petitioner are not tenable and therefore, the writ petition has no merit and is liable to be dismissed.

12. Having heard the rival submissions of learned counsel for the parties, I perused the material on record as well as case-law cited by learned counsel for the petitioner.

13. To resolve the controversy involved in the present writ petition, Rule 5 Uttar Pradesh Recruitment of the Dependents of Government Servant Dying-in-Harness Rules, 1974 is extracted hereinbelow:

"In case, a government servant dies in harness after the commencement of these rules and the spouse of the deceased government servant is not already employed under the Central Government or State Government or a Corporation owned or Controlled by the Central Government or a State Government, one member of his family who is not already employed under the Central Government or a State Government or a Corporation owned and controlled by the Central Government or a State Government or a Corporation owned and controlled by the Central Government or a State Government shall, on making an application for the purposes, be given a suitable employment in government service on a post except the post which is within the purview of the Uttar Pradesh Public Service Commission, in relaxation of the normal recruitment rules if the such person-

(i) Fulfills the educational qualifications prescribed for the post

(ii) Is otherwise qualified for the government service; and

(iii) Makes application for employment within 5 five years from the date of the death of the Government Servant:

Provided that where the State Government is satisfied for the times limit fixed for making the application for employment causes undue hardship in any particular case may dispense such or relax the requirement as it may consider necessary for dealing with the case in a just and equitable manner.

As far as possible, such an employment should be given in the same department in which the deceased Government Servant was employed prior to his death".

14. Perusal of the above-extracted shows that Rule 5 bars compassionate appointment where the spouse is already employed under the Central/State Government or a Government-controlled corporation.

15. The judgment relied upon by the petitioner Aman Pathak vs State of UP and Ors. (Writ A No. - 15485 of 2023) clearly lays down that such honorarium-based engagement cannot be treated as a sufficient source of livelihood nor equivalent to government employment, relevant paragraph is mentioned hereinafter;

"10. The position of the law that then appears is that what has to be compared is the income of the deceased at the time of his death and the family's income after his demise from various sources. This would be a safe index to assess, if indeed the family have been plunged into a crisis or they still have a reasonably normal life to lead, which is not ridden by financial crisis. It must be remarked that the State Authority and their Committee have singularly omitted to consider this very relevant material as to what was the deceased's income, when he passed away and the family's income when the District Cane Officer appraised their circumstances.

11. The deceased's widow is no doubt employed as an Anganwadi Karyakatri, but that does not mean that the family are not financially struggling. An Anganwadi Karyakatri is not a government employment. It is pleaded in paragraph No.6 of the supplementary affidavit that the engagement as an Anganwadi Karyakatri is a contractual job, for which no salary is paid. The petitioner's mother receives an honourarium in the sum of Rs.3250/- - 6500/- per month. It must be remarked that a contractual employment that offers the sum of money that the petitioner alleges is hardly any reckonable financial resource to guarantee a subsistence level of income for the family. The fact that the petitioner's mother receives an honourarium for her engagement as an Anganwadi Karyakatri in the sum of Rs.3250/- 6500/- per month, has not been denied in any of the two counter affidavits filed on behalf of the respondents. Therefore, the fact asserted in paragraph No.6 of the supplementary affidavit has to be accepted as correct. In fact, in the supplementary counter affidavit, contents of paragraph No.6 about the fact of what the nature of engagement of an Anganwadi Karyakatri is and what remuneration is received, has not at all been denied or pleaded to by the respondents."

16. In the case in hands, the petitioner was working on the post of Mukhya Sewika, Unnao and superannuated on the said post on 30.06.2013. However, it is now well settled that engagement as Anganwadi worker or Mukhya Sewika is not a regular government service. Such engagement is contractual in nature, and remuneration is in the form of honorarium, not salary. In these circumstances, act and action of the respondents for denying the benefits provided under provisions of Dying-in-Harness Rules to the family members of the deceased employee is per se illegal and is not sustainable in the eyes of law. The judgment relied upon by learned counsel for the petitioner in the case of Aman Pathak (supra), is fully applicable to the facts and circumstances of the present case.

17. The object of compassionate appointment is to provide immediate relief to the family of the deceased employee to tide over the financial crisis. In the present case the deceased was the sole breadwinner; the petitioner is a housewife with small agricultural land and the family consists of dependent children. It is pertinent to note that there is no finding by the authority comparing the income of the deceased at the time of death and income of the family after his death. The authority has failed to undertake this crucial exercise, rendering the decision arbitrary.

18. Appointment on compassionate grounds is not a source of recruitment. The reason for making such a benevolent scheme by the State or the public sector undertaking is to see that the dependents of the deceased are not deprived of the means of livelihood . It only enables the family of the deceased to get over the sudden financial crisis.

19. Considering in totalities of facts and circumstances of the case, this Court is of the considered opinion that engagement as Mukhya Sewika/Anganwadi worker does not disentitle the family members of the deceased employees from compassionate appointment and the respondent nos. 2 and 3 have failed to consider the financial hardships of the family.

20. Accordingly, this writ petition succeeds and is allowed. Order dated 21.09.2013 contained as Annexure no.1 to this writ petition is quashed.

20. A direction is issued to the petitioner to make a fresh representation before the respondents annexing therewith all the necessary documents annexed with this petition along with certified copy of this order within a period of three weeks from the date of production of a certified copy of this order and in case such a representation is filed within the period prescribed by this Court, the same shall be considered and decided by the respondents in favour of the petitioner in accordance with the observations made above and in accordance with law within a further period of two months□ thereafter.

Issue(s) for consideration

Whether the appointments of the petitioners as Assistant Teachers were legally valid and 'deemed approved' by operation of law, despite the District Basic Education Officer's subsequent rejection?

Headnotes

A. Service Law – Uttar Pradesh Junior High Schools (Payment of Salaries of Teachers and other Employees) Act, 1978: Section 12; Uttar Pradesh Recognised Basic Schools (Junior High Schools) (Recruitment and Conditions of Service of Teachers) Rules, 1978: Rule 9, 10 - The three petitioners were selected and appointed as Assistant Teachers following proper local newspaper advertisements and interviews conducted in the presence of an official nominee from the District Basic Education Officer (DIOS/BSA). Despite working continuously, the petitioners were not paid salaries from the State exchequer after the school received grant-in-aid status on 01.12.2006. They approached the High Court in 2013, which directed the District Basic Education Officer to decide on their approval. On 26.04.2014, the District Basic Education Officer rejected the approval of their appointments, asserting that:

- No prior approval was taken before issuing appointment letters.
- The selection process violated Section 12 of the U.P. Basic Education Act, 1972, and Rule 9 of the 1978 Rules.

B. In the present case, the provision of Section 12 of the Act of 1972 is not applicable to the selection and appointment of the petitioners. Rule 9 prescribes for selection on the post of Assistant Teacher. The provision contained u/Rule 9 was duly followed by the Committee of Management while making selection and appointment. As per Rule 9, nominee of District Basic Education Officer was also appointed, who participated in the selection proceeding initiated by the Committee of Management and papers in this regard to the selection were submitted before the District Basic Education Officer for grant of approval, which has not been accorded since long and ultimately, in pursuance to the order passed by this Court, claim setup by the petitioners has been rejected on total misconceived and erroneous grounds. (Para 19)

C. In case selection has not been disapproved on the ground of non appearance of nominee of the District Basic Education Officer, therefore, the impugned order appears to be not justified. The selection of the petitioners is held not to be vitiated in law. Appointment made under Rules, 1978. Papers in this regard were submitted before the District Basic Education Officer and almost and till the passing of the impugned order, no order was passed and reminder was also sent on the matter submitted by the Committee of Management, thus, in view of Rule 10, due to non passing of the order within a period of one month, selection of the petitioners was deemed to have been approved. (Para 20)

D. Under the Regulation 101 to 109, there is a deeming provision in case of non passing of order within a week. The Court in the case of Pramod Kumar Pandey (infra) has held that in case no order has been passed within a week from the date of receipt of papers, the appointment is deemed to be approved and direction was issued for the payment of salary from the date it was deemed to be approved. (Para 22)

The claim setup by the petitioners is just and valid and under deeming clause u/Rule 10 of Rules, 1978, the appointment of the petitioners is deemed to be approved from the date of approval, thus, the petitioners are entitled to get salary from the State Exchequer. (Para 24)

The impugned order dated 26.4.2014 quashed. The respondents are directed to ensure payment of salary to the petitioners w.e.f. the date of deemed approval from the date the institution is brought within the purview of payment of Salaries Act. (Para 25, 26)

Writ petition allowed.

Appearances for Parties

For Petitioner(s): Shashank Shekhar Parihar, Meenakshi Singh

For Respondent(s): C.S.C., Abhinav Singh, Ankit Srivastava, Jyoti Sikka, Nagendra Bahadur Singh, Rajive Singh Chauhan

(Delivered by Hon'ble Irshad Ali, J.)

1. Heard Sri Prashant Singh, learned counsel for the petitioners, Sri Divesh Mishra, learned Standing Counsel for State-respondent and Sri Ankit Srivastava, learned counsel for respondent No.7.

2. By means of the present writ petition, the petitioner is challenging the order dated 26.4.2014, passed by the respondent No.4 (Annexure-1 to the writ petition), whereby approval to the appointment of the petitioner has been rejected on the ground that no prior approval was taken before issuing the appointment letter as well as there is another objection that provisions of Section 12 and Rule 9 were not followed while making selection on the post of Assistant Teacher.

3. Factual matrix of the case is that Janta Junior High School, Patari, Post Patari, District Unnao is a recognized institution by the U.P. Basic Education Act, 1972. The institution was earlier unaided. With effect from 1.12.2006, vide government order dated 6.12.2006, the institution was brought within the purview of Payment of Salaries Act by the State Government. The provision under Uttar Pradesh Recognised Basic Schools (Junior High Schools) (Recruitment and Conditions of Service of Teachers) Rules, 1978 and Uttar Pradesh Junior High Schools (Payment of Salaries of Teachers and other Employees) Act, 1978 are applicable to the said institution.

4. In the said institution, there were nine posts of Assistant Teachers duly sanctioned and at the time of appointment of the petitioner, three posts were lying vacant. To fill up three vacancies, an advertisement was issued in the daily newspaper Unnao Times and Dainik Vratant on 3.7.1997. On a letter of the Committee of Management, the District Basic Education Officer passed an order nominating Sri Mahadeo Prasad Pandey, Lecturer, D.I.E.T., Unnao to participate as a Nominee in the selection proceeding.

5. The petitioner No.1 applied and she was interviewed by the selection committee in which Nominee of the District Basic Education Officer also participated. On 26.7.1997 itself, an appointment order was issued to the petitioner No.1 appointing her on the post of Assistant Teacher in response to the appointment order dated 26.7.1997. The petitioner No.1 joined the post of Assistant Teacher on 1.8.1997 and since then, she is continuously working on her post. On 7.8.1997, a letter was sent by the Manager to the District Basic Education Officer, seeking approval to the appointment of the petitioner No.1 and vide order dated 30.9.1998, the service of the petitioner No.1 was confirmed.

6. The petitioner No.2 has been appointed on the basis of an advertisement issued in newspapers Unnao Times and Dainik Vratant dated 5.7.2002 and the District Basic Education Officer passed an order nominating Sri Daya Ram Dwivedi, Principal, D.I.E.T., Unnao to participate in the selection proceeding. The petitioner No.2 applied and he was interviewed on 26.7.2002 by the selection committee, in which, the nominee of the District Basic Education Officer had participated. On 26.7.2002, the appointment order was issued to the petitioner No.2, appointing him on the post of Assistant Teacher and in response to the appointment order dated 26.7.2002, the petitioner No.2 joined the post on 1.8.2002 on the post and since then, he is continuously working on the post and the service of the petitioner No.2 was confirmed vide order dated 20.8.2003.

7. Similarly, the petitioner No.3 has been appointed on the basis of an advertisement issued in newspapers Unnao Times and Dainik Vratant and the District Basic Education Officer appointed Sri Daya Ram Dwivedi, Principal, D.I.E.T., Unnao as nominee to participate in the selection. The petitioner No.3 has been selected in the presence of nominee appointed by the District Basic Education Officer. Thereafter, appointment letter was issued to petitioner No.3 appointing her on the post of Assistant Teacher and in response to the appointment letter, she joined on the post of Assistant Teacher on 13.7.2006 and since then, she is continuously discharging her duties. Vide order dated 28.9.2007, passed by the Manager of the School, the service of petitioner No.3 was confirmed.

8. In spite of the fact that the petitioners are continuously discharging their duties on the respective posts, no salary was paid to them, therefore, they filed Writ Petition Nos.1423 (S/S) of 2013, 1424 (S/S) of 2013 and 1425 (S/S) of 2013 for issuance of direction to the respondents to make payment of salary to the petitioners on the post of Assistant Teacher w.e.f. 2.12.2006 and not to interfere in the peaceful working of the petitioners and further commanding respondent Nos.2 and 3 to accord approval to the appointment of the petitioners on the post of Assistant Teachers.

9. Prior to taking the institution in grant in aid list, salary of the petitioners was made from the own sources of the Committee of Management and the institution was taken on the grant in aid list w.e.f. 1.12.2006 and thereafter, they were entitled to get salary from the State Exchequer, which has not been disbursed till date. The writ petition was finally disposed of vide order dated 30.5.2013, directing the District Basic Education Officer to take decision in regard to the grant of approval on the appointment of the petitioners.

10. In pursuance to the order passed by this Court, an order was passed by the District Basic Education Officer dated 26.4.2014, whereby the claim setup by the petitioners vide representation to accord approval to the appointment of the petitioners was rejected, which is impugned in the writ petition. The impugned order has been passed on the ground that without approval of the District Basic Education Officer, no appointment can be made on the post of Assistant Teacher as well as provisions of Section 12 and Rule 9 were not followed in making selection on the post of Assistant Teacher.

11. Submission of learned counsel for the petitioners is that Section 12 has no application to the selection and appointment on the post of Assistant Teacher in the Junior Basic School, therefore, objection in this regard is wholly misconceived and erroneous in nature. He submits that papers in regard to the appointment of the petitioners were submitted on 18.6.1997, 15.6.2002 and 20.5.2006 on the papers submitted, the District Basic Education Officer did not pass any order as per the provision contained under Rule 9 of Uttar Pradesh Recognised Basic Schools (Junior High Schools) (Recruitment and Conditions of Service of Teachers) Rules, 1978, therefore, the appointment of the petitioners have been deemed approved in view of provision contained under Rule 10 (3) (iii), wherein it has been provided that in case after submission of papers, no approval is granted to the selection and appointment of the petitioners it will be deemed to be approved by operation of law, therefore, the petitioners are claiming salary w.e.f. the date of deemed approval in view of provision contained under Rule 10 (3) (iii) of the Rules of 1978.

12. Learned counsel for the petitioners next submitted that the District Basic Education Officer without considering the relevant records produced before him appointing nominee by the District Basic Education Officer, advertisements were issued in two daily newspapers inasmuch as following the procedure prescribed under law, appointment of the petitioners has been made and without considering the same, the impugned order dated 26.4.2014 has been passed. Next submission is that the provision of Rule 10 (3) (iii) has also not been taken notice while passing the impugned order, therefore, the impugned order suffers from apparent illegality and is not sustainable in the eyes of law. In support of the submissions advanced, he placed reliance upon the following judgments :-

(i) Sanjay Kumar Singh Vs. State of U.P. [2019 (5) ADJ 1583]

(ii) Pramod Kumar Pandey Vs. District Inspector of Schools [2019 (11) ADJ 127 (DB)]

13. On the other hand, learned Standing Counsel submits that the advertisement was issued in local newspapers published in District Unnao, therefore, no candidates from the other districts could know in regard to the advertisement and could not apply for the same. Next submission is that the provisions of Section 12 and Rule 9 were not followed while making appointment on the post of Assistant Teacher in the institution in question. Last submission is that the order dated 26.4.2014 does not suffer from any infirmity or illegality and is a just and valid order.

14. Learned counsel for the respondent No.7 submits that advertisement in the two local newspapers was made and in pursuance thereof, candidates applied for and were considered by the selection committee and recommendation for making appointment by the selection committee was made of the petitioners. It is submitted that prior to make selection, request was made to the District Basic Education Officer to appoint nominee in the selection proceeding and in pursuance thereof, nominee was appointed who was present at the time of selection, therefore, the selection does not vitiate in law and is a just and valid selection. Next submission is that in view of provision contained under Rule 10 of the 1978 Rules, the appointment of the petitioners has been deemed approved, therefore, they are entitled to get salary from the State Exchequer.

15. Next submission of counsel for respondent No.7 is that the procedure prescribed under Rule 9 was duly followed in making selection and appointment on the post of Assistant Teacher and there is no infirmity or illegality in the selection.

16. After having heard the submissions advanced by learned counsel for the parties, I perused perused the material on record.

17. For deciding controversy involved, Section 12 of the U.P. Basic Education Act, 1972 is being quoted below :-

"12. Control over Basic Schools. - (1) The Director may, from time to time, inspect or cause to be inspected any basic school [ * ] and also the records and proceedings of the local body concerning or connected with discharge of the functions of the local body in respect of basic education.

[(2) The Director may direct the management of a basic school to remove any defect or deficiency found on inspection or otherwise.

(3) If the management of a basic school fails to comply with any direction made under sub-section (2), the Director may, after considering the explanation or representation, if any, given or made by the management, refer the case to the Board for withdrawal of recognition of such school.

(4) On receipt of a recommendation under sub-section (3) in respect of any basic school, the Board may withdraw the recognition of that school.]"

18. It is also relevant to take notice of the Rule 9 of Uttar Pradesh Recognised Basic Schools (Junior High Schools) (Recruitment and Conditions of Service of Teachers) Rules, 1978, which is being quoted below :-

"9. Selection Committee ? The Management of minority Institutions and unaided Junior High Schools shall constitute a selection committee:

(i) For the post of headmaster :

(1) Manager;

(2) Two nominee of the Management;

(ii) For the post of Assistant Teacher;

(1) Manager;

(2) Headmaster of the recognised school in which the appointment is to be made;

(3) a nominee of the Management"

19. On perusal of the aforesaid Rules and Section, it is apparent that in the present case, the provision of Section 12 of the Act of 1972 is not applicable to the selection and appointment of the petitioners. Rule 9 prescribes for selection on the post of Assistant Teacher. The provision contained under Rule 9 was duly followed by the Committee of Management while making selection and appointment. Advertisement in two daily newspapers was issued inviting applications from the eligible and qualified candidates and it is not disputed that the advertisement was not made in two daily newspapers, inviting applications. As per Rule 9, nominee of District Basic Education Officer was also appointed, who participated in the selection proceeding initiated by the Committee of Management and papers in this regard to the selection were submitted before the District Basic Education Officer for grant of approval, which has not been accorded since long and ultimately, in pursuance to the order passed by this Court, claim setup by the petitioners has been rejected on total misconceived and erroneous grounds.

20. In regard to the submission advanced by learned counsel for the petitioners that appointment made under Uttar Pradesh Recognised Basic Schools (Junior High Schools) (Recruitment and Conditions of Service of Teachers) Rules, 1978, papers in this regard were submitted before the District Basic Education Officer and almost and till the passing of the impugned order, no order was passed and reminder was also sent on the matter submitted by the Committee of Management, thus, in view of Rule 10, due to non passing of the order within a period of one month, selection of the petitioners was deemed to have been approved. In case selection has not been disapproved on the ground of non appearance of nominee of the District Basic Education Officer, therefore, the impugned order appears to be not justified. The selection of the petitioners is held not to be vitiated in law.

21. Relevant paragraphs 17 to 36 in the case of Sanjay Kumar Singh (Supra) are being quoted as under :-

"(17) Having heard the rival contentions advanced by learned counsel for the parties, I perused the material on record as well as the law report relied upon by learned Senior Counsel for the petitioners.

(18) In regard to first submission of learned Senior Counsel for the petitioners that due to non passing of the order on papers submitted for grant of approval to the selection of the Principal, Assistant Teachers and Clerk within a period of one month, it is deemed that the approval has been accorded. In this regard, on the basis of material, it is well established that after making selection, the papers were submitted before the District Basic Education Officer vide letter dated 24.06.2015 for grant of approval, however, the District Basic Education Officer did not pass any order for a long spell of time. In this regard, Rule 10 of U.P. Recognized Basic Schools (Junior High Schools) (Recruitment and Conditions of Service of Teachers) Rules, 1978 is quoted below:

"10. Procedure for selection. - (1) The Selection Committee shall, after interviewing such candidates as appear before it on a date to be fixed by it in this behalf, of which due intimation shall be given to all the candidates, prepare a list containing as far as possible the names, in order of preference, of three candidates found to be suitable for appointment.

(2) The list prepared under clause (1) shall also contain particulars regarding the date of birth, academic qualifications and teaching experience of the candidates and shall be signed by all the members of the Selection Committee.

(3) The Selection Committee shall, as soon as possible, forward such list, together with the minutes of the proceedings of the Committee to the management.

(4) The Manager shall within one week from the date of receipt of the papers under clause (3) send a copy of the list to the District Basic Education Officer.

(5) (i) If the District Basic Education Officer is satisfied that –

(a) the candidates recommended by the Selection Committee possess the minimum qualifications prescribed for the post;

(b) the procedure laid down in these rules for the selection of Headmaster or Assistant Teacher, as the case may be, has been followed he shall accord approval to the recommendations made by the Selection Committee and shall communicate his decision to the Management within two weeks from the date of receipt of the papers under clause (4).

(ii) If the District Basic Education Officer is not satisfied as aforesaid, he shall return the papers to the Management with the direction that the matter shall be reconsidered by the Selection Committee.

(iii) If the District Basic Education Officer does not communicate his decision within one month from the date of receipt of the papers under clause (4), he shall be deemed to have accorded approval to the recommendations made by the Selection Committee."

(19) On perusal of the aforesaid rule, it is evident on the face of it that in case the order of approval or refusal to grant approval is not passed within the period of one month from the date of submission of papers of selection proceeding, then it is deemed to be approved on expiry of one month.

(20) In the present case, the papers were submitted on 24.06.2015 and for almost six months, the District Basic Education Officer kept mum. Therefore, in view of the provisions contained under Rule 10 of the 1978 Rules, due to non passing of the order within a period of one month, the selection of the petitioners were deemed to have been approved. In view of the above, due to non consideration of the aforesaid aspect of the matter, the impugned orders vitiate in law and are liable to be set aside.

(21) In regard to second submission of learned Senior Advocate, this Court found that the order impugned is not very specific. It does not record detailed reason that which of the provisions of the Act and Rules governing the selection proceeding on the post of Assistant Teacher up to the level of Junior High School has been vitiated in making the selection of the petitioners.

(22) On perusal of the impugned order, the only reason has been assigned that in regard to appointment on the post of Clerk, one Saurabh Singh was recommended for appointment on the post of Clerk under Dying in Harness Rules, 1974. The Committee of Management while making selection has not been considered that the candidate who belongs under Dying in Harness Rules against the post of Clerk, is entitled to get appointment. In this regard, on perusal of the record, it is found that the recommendation of Saurabh Singh on the post of Clerk was met prior to initiation of the selection proceeding or after the submission of papers regarding approval of selection. In absence of clear cut finding in this regard, the impugned order renders unsustainable in law.

(23) The District Basic Education Officer, while rejecting to grant approval, had not recorded finding that which provisions of the Act and Rules have been violated while making selection on the post of Headmaster, Assistant Teacher and on clerk, thus the reason being not specific suffers from illegality.

(24) On overall consideration of the respective arguments advanced by the learned counsel for the parties, it is crystal clear that the main issue in rejecting the approval is that the nominee of the District Basic Education Officer was not present in the Selection Committee and in his absence, the Selection Committee was permitted to conclude the selection proceeding. It is recorded that in case one Member of the Selection Committee is absent and the decision has been taken by majority of Members including the Chairman of the Selection Committee in making selection, the same does not vitiate the selection made in absence of nominee of the District Basic Education Officer. Upon bare perusal of the judgment relied upon and after examination of the law laid down by the Division Bench of this Court in the case of District Basic Shiksha Adhikari, Ambedkar Nagar (supra) and Fateh Bahadur Singh (Supra), this Court holds that issue involved in the aforesaid judgments was in regard to the appointment on the post of Clerk, wherein in the selection proceedings nominee of the District Basic Education Officer did not participate. The learned Single Judge on the basis of material placed on record found that the District Basic Education Officer to send the nominee on the letter submitted by the Manager/ Principal of the Institution, did not respond and in consequence thereto, the Selection Committee comprising of Manager and Headmaster met and made recommendation for the appointment and thereafter, the selection was made in absence of nominee of the District Basic Education Officer. Thus, in the present case, in case the same has been disapproved on the ground of non-appearance of nominee of the District Basic Education Officer, the impugned order appears to be not justifiable in law.

(25) The counter affidavit filed by the opposite parties denying the allegations made in the writ petitions and specifically stating therein that since the rules governing the service conditions of the petitioners prescribes that representative of the District Basic Education Officer shall participate in the selection, who was not present, therefore, the entire selection vitiates in law.

(26) In the rejoinder affidavit filed by learned counsel for the petitioners, the allegations made in the counter affidavit have been denied.

(27) The learned Single Judge held that it is the District Basic Education Officer, who himself failed to send the nominee to participate in the selection proceeding. Therefore, the selection cannot be faulted on the alleged ground. The judgment of the learned Single Judge was assailed in the Special Appeal (D) No.92 of 2016 (Supra), wherein the Division Bench of this Court declined to interfere by holding as under:

"We do not see any reason to interfere with the impugned judgment particularly for the reason that the District Basic Education Officer had himself failed to send the nominee who otherwise would have participated in the selection proceedings. In our considered opinion, the selection can not be faulted on the alleged ground that the selection committee comprising of two members could not hold the selection, as such, the impugned judgment does not call for any interference."

(28) In the another judgment relied upon by learned Senior Counsel for the petitioners in the case of Fateh Bahadur Singh (Supra), the proceeding was initiated to make selection on the post of Clerk under the first statute of Kanpur University, Statute No.21-03(6)(b). On submission of papers, the proposal of the Selection Committee was disapproved on the ground that neither the District Inspector of Schools nor the District Employment Officer participated in the selection. Relevant paragraphs of the said judgment are quoted below:

"9. It transpires from the record that the selection had been disapproved only on the ground that the DIOS himself had not participated and the District Employment Officer nor his representative had participated in the selection. The said ground is not available to the Regional Higher Education Officer for disapproving the selection for the reason that the DIOS had written by means of letter dated 11.6.1991 that whenever he is out of Head Quarter his functions are to be discharged by the Finance and Accounts Officer. So as a practice, since on the date of selection the DIOS was out of Head Quarter, therefore, he authorized the Finance and Accounts officer to participate in the selection. The non-participation of the DIOS under some compelling circumstances or under some misconception will not vitiate the selection when there was representation, in the capacity of DIOS, of District Finance and Accounts Officer, in his absence in the Head Quarter as practice prevalent in the DIOS office. The District Employment Officer was firmly of the view that since the intimation of the vacancy was not made 15 days prior to the selection to him, therefore, he will not participate in the selection. This reasoning of the District Employment Officer does not appeal to reason and the District Employment Officer could have participated in the selection putting his dissent in the selection, but instead of doing so, he opted to remain away from the selection with the understanding that he was only member of the Selection Committee.

10. The validity of the selection proceedings, if at all were vitiated for want of quorum, although not provided by the rules, regulations or by the Statutes would be valid or not, has not been considered by the Hon'ble Supreme Court and it has been held that if no quorum has been provided then merely because one of the representatives of the members has not participated in the selection, could not vitiate the selection proceedings.

11. The learned counsel for the petitioner has relied upon a decision of Hon'ble the Supreme Court reported in AIR 1972 SC page 1812, Ishwar Chandra v. Stayanarain Sinha and others, in which it has been held that if majority of the members are present in the selection and any quorum has not been provided then the selection would be valid and cannot be vitiated on this count. The relevant paragraph of the said judgment is being quoted below:

"If for one reason or the other one of them could not attend, that does not make the meeting of others illegal. In such circumstances, where there is no rule or regulation or any other provision for fixing the quorum, the presence of the majority of the members would constitute it a valid meeting and matters considered thereat cannot be held to be invalid."

12. In the wake of the observation made in the case of Ishwar Chandra (supra), the disapproval order cannot be sustained. The reasoning given by the Regional Higher Education Officer is not valid in the eye of law, as the selection cannot be vitiated on account of the fact that the District Employment Officer refused to participate in the selection. The petitioner is already in employment and is also working and once the appointment was being made on the basis of open advertisement, the reasoning of the District Employment Officer was not valid for intimating the vacancy. The intimation of vacancy is not contemplated under the Kanpur University Statutes and as such the requirement of giving intimation to the District Employment Officer was not valid and legal in the eye of law. The petitioner is already in employment and is working and she shall continue to work."

(29) In view of the law report relied upon by learned Senior Counsel for the petitioners, there is no hesitation to hold that the decision taken by the majority in the Selection Committee, the selections of the petitioners do not vitiate in law.

(30) In view of the above legal position, this Court is of the opinion that impugned orders dated 02.02.2016 and 24.02.2016, contained as Annexure No.1 to the writ petition are illegal and are liable to be set aside.

(31) In the result, the writ petitions succeed and are allowed.

(32) Accordingly, a writ in the nature of certiorari is issued quashing the impugned orders dated 02.02.2016 and 24.02.2016 contained as Annexure No.1 to the writ petition.

(33) The respondents are directed to pass a fresh order in the light of observations made above and law reports relied upon within a period of six weeks from the date of production of a certified copy of this order.

(34) The similar orders have been challenged in the connected writ petitions i.e. Writ Petition No.9201 (SS) of 2016 titled 'Ravi Kiran Singh v. State of U.P. and others' and Writ Petition No.29282 (SS) of 2016 titled 'Shiv Prakash v. State of U.P. and others and the same grounds and facts have been mentioned in the writ petitions pertaining to the selection of Assistant Teacher in the same Institution, thus the impugned order dated 02.02.2016 and 24.02.2016 as contained in Annexure no.1 is set aside and the writ petitions are allowed in the same terms with the same direction.

(35) In Writ Petition No.7832 (SS) of 2016 titled 'Jaideep Kumar Singh v. State of U.P. and others', the matter pertains to the selection on the post of Headmaster, wherein the same date orders have been challenged by the petitioner on same facts and on same grounds.

(36) In view of the above, the order in regard to the post of Headmaster passed on the same date i.e. 2.2.2016 is not sustainable in law and the same is set aside. The writ petition succeeds and is allowed in the same terms with the same directions."

22. Similarly, under the Regulation 101 to 109, there is a deeming provision in case of non passing of order within a week. The Court entertained the writ petition in the case of Pramod Kumar Pandey (Supra) has considered the provision of deeming clause and came to the conclusion that in case no order has been passed within a week from the date of receipt of papers, the appointment is deemed to be approved and direction was issued for the payment of salary from the date it was deemed to be approved. Relevant paragraph 17 is being quoted as under :-

"17. In the present case, it is admitted fact that the papers relating to selection and appointments of the appellant-petitioners were sent to DIOS by the Management on 17.10.1997 for his grant of approval after having issued letters of appointment to the appellant-petitioners. It is also not in dispute that the DIOS did not bestow his consideration on these papers within statutory specified period of seven days. As such the appointment of appellant-petitioners stood approved by deemed fiction of law and in view of the law settled by this court in above authoritative pronouncements (Lalit Mohan Misra and Another (supra), and Abhay Pal Singh (supra)]."

23. In view of the reasons assigned above, the argument advanced by learned Standing Counsel appears to be not justifiable in law, therefore, it is rejected.

24. The claim setup by the petitioners is just and valid and under deeming clause under Rule 10 of Uttar Pradesh Recognised Basic Schools (Junior High Schools) (Recruitment and Conditions of Service of Teachers) Rules, 1978, the appointment of the petitioners is deemed to be approved from the date of approval, thus, the petitioners are entitled to get salary from the State Exchequer.

25. In view of the reasons recorded above, the impugned order dated 26.4.2014 is hereby quashed. The writ petition succeeds and is allowed.

26. The respondents are directed to ensure payment of salary to the petitioners w.e.f. the date of deemed approval from the date the institution is brought within the purview of payment of Salaries Act within a period of two months from the date of production of a certified copy of this order.

Issue(s) for consideration

Whether a private bus owner, who has a transport agreement with a third party (the factory/guardians) rather than directly with the school authorities, is legally entitled to a school transport carriage permit u/Rule 222-B of the U.P. Motor Vehicles Rules, 1998?

Headnotes

A. Motor Vehicles Law – Motor Vehicles Act, 1988: Section 74; U.P. Motor Vehicles Rules, 1998: Rule 222-A, 222-B and 222-L - The petitioner, Sameer Agarwal, owns a bus operating under an "All U.P. Contract Carriage Permit." He entered into a private agreement with a factory, Avadh Sugar and Energy Ltd., to transport the children of the factory's employees to the ONGC Community School in District Sitapur. The petitioner approached the Court aggrieved by the inaction of the Regional Transport Authority (RTA) in refusing to grant him a specific contract carriage permit for carrying school children u/s 74 of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988.

The Court rejected the argument that the rules were silently ambiguous. A literal reading of Rule 222-B(2) explicitly mandates that a private bus owner must have a 'written agreement with the school authority' to apply for the permit.

Section 74 of Act, 1988 that allows for the grant of contract carriage permit, specifically states that the Regional Transport Authority shall grant a contract carriage permit subject to any Rules that may be made under the Act. Rules are unambiguous and a facial reading brings us to fore that these Rules allow such permits only to private buses having an agreement with the school authorities as per Rule 222-B (2) of the Rule, 1998. (Para 9, 10)

B. Rule 222-B (2) has to be read along with Rule 222- B (4), which prescribes certain condition precedent for the school authorities before they could enter into an agreement with an owner of a private bus. (Para 10)

The submission of the petitioner that it makes no difference as to whether the agreement is with the school or with the guardian as eventually it is related to transportation of the children to school only, is fallacious. The said prescriptions enjoins upon the school-authorities with certain responsibilities as mentioned and enumerated in Rule 222-B (4) (a) to Rule 222-B (4) (c), which prima facie appears to this Court to be in the nature of ensuring the safety and mandatory prior compliance of the school buses, its owner and driver before they can be put to service of carrying school children. This Rule also ensures that the school buses' service is not disrupted abruptly during the mid-sessions, which may cause inconvenience to the children. (Para 10)

C. There appears to be a rationale nexus as to why agreement with guardians have not been allowed under the Rules, inasmuch as, it is the school authorities, who is and are made responsible for the safety of school children as per the Rules. The individual guardian or their employers cannot be bestowed with such collective responsibility of these school children. In any case, the safety of the school going children cannot be tweaked by expanding the zone of consideration for such school buses, who do not have any agreement with the school-authorities as mandated u/Rule 222 (2) of the Rules, 1998. (Para 11)

There is no such mechanism of following strict safety norms as mentioned herein-above as a condition precedent in the case of an agreement with the parents or their employers. (Para 11)

D. Condition precedent and condition subsequent - The petitioner shows his willingness to comply with Rule 222-L (General conditions for school vehicle permit), but the said Rule is condition subsequent for Rule 222-B. Once it is found that the petitioner is not in compliance of the Rule 222-B, this Court finds no substance in the said submission of the learned counsel for the petitioner. (Para 12)

The conditions as mentioned in the Rules are mandatory and are ought to be strictly followed for the safety and welfare of the school going children. (Para 13)

E. The vires of the Rules are not under challenge and the challenge is simply w.r.t. the absence of a provision for providing permits to the school buses that have an agreement with the guardians of children, who are attending schools. (Para 8)

The High Court found no fault in the statutory authorities' refusal to grant the contract carriage permit. Writ petition dismissed. (E-4)

Appearances for Parties

For Petitioner(s): Alok Saxena

For Respondent(s): C.S.C

(Delivered by Hon'ble Shekhar B. Saraf, J.

Hon'ble Abdhesh Kumar Chaudhary, J.)

1. Heard Sri Alok Saxena, learned counsel for the petitioner and Sri Ratnesh Singh Tomar, learned counsel for the State- respondents. Rejoinder affidavit filed today by the learned counsel for the petitioner is taken on record. Exchange of the pleading between the parties are complete. With the consent of learned counsel for the parties, the matter is taken for final disposal.

2. This is a writ petition under Article 226 of the Constitution of India wherein the writ petitioner is aggrieved by the inaction on the part of the respondent-authorities in not granting him a contract carriage permit under Section 74 of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 (hereinafter referred to as "the Act, 1988") for carrying school children of Factory's Employees of Avadh Sugar and Energy Ltd. to the ONGC Community School, Village Paintala, District- Sitapur.

3. The case of the petitioner is that the petitioner has a bus with an All U.P. Contract Carriage Permit and he has entered an agreement with the Factory, namely, Avadh Sugar and Energy Ltd. (hereinafter referred to as the "Factory") by virtue of which the petitioner has got permission to carry the children of the Factory's Employees to the ONGC Community School.

4. In support of his submission, Sri Alok Saxena, learned counsel for the petitioner has relied on Section 2 (7) and Section 74 of the Act, 1988 . He further relied on Rule 222-A, 222-B and 222-L of the U.P. Motor Vehicles Rules, 1998 (hereinafter referred to as "the Rules, 1998") to submit that the Regional Transport Authority is required to grant a contract carriage permit to him for carrying school children as provided in Section 74 of the Act, 1988 read with Rules 222-B of the Rules, 1998.

5. Sri Saxena has further articulated that sub rule -1 of Rule 222-B of the Rules, 1998 allows for educational institutions to run buses and permits to be issued by the competent authority to such buses. He submits that sub-rule-2 allows for a owner of a private bus, who has written agreement with school authorities to apply for such permit. He further relied on sub rule-3 of Rule 222-B of the Rules, 1998 to indicate that owner of the school vans, who are having an agreement with guardian or a group of guardians for transporting school children are also permitted to get the carriage permit for plying school children.

6. Learned counsel for the petitioner fairly submitted that with regard to an owner of a private bus the Rules are silent on the aspect as to whether such owner may get a permit or not, if he has an agreement with the guardians for transporting school children. According to the learned counsel, this gap would not act as a bar for issuing permit to the private buses, who are having agreement with the guardians and/or their employers, which is the present case.

7. Per contra, Sri Ratnesh Singh Tomar, learned counsel appearing for the State submits that Chapter IX-A of the Rules, 1998 was added in the Rules specifically in the year, 2018 and came into effect from 17th of December of 2018 with respect to special provisions for school vehicles. The insertion of the entire Chapter IX-A also contains Rules 222-B and 222-L to ensure the safety and security of the children, who are going to school. He further submits that the petitioner has not challenged the vires of the said Rules and accordingly, the Rules as it is today are required to be followed for all intents and purposes. On the aspect of permission granted to school vans, who are having permission with the guardians, he submits that the rationale therein is different from that granting a permit to an owner of a private bus.

8. Upon hearing learned counsel for both the parties, it is to be firstly noted by us that the vires of the Rules are not under challenge and the challenge is simply with regard to the absence of a provision for providing permits to the school buses that have an agreement with the guardians of children, who are attending schools. Learned counsel for the petitioner has argued that there is no real logic and/or difference with regard to permitting the owner of a private bus, who has an agreement with the school authorities, juxtaposed to permitting the owner of a private school bus, who has an agreement with the guardians of the children instead of the school-authorities. According to him, the purpose and objective being one and the same, that is carrying school children by bus, the petitioner bus should also be granted permit for carrying school children.

9. In our view, Section 74 of Act, 1988 that allows for the grant of contract carriage permit, specifically states that the Regional Transport Authority shall grant a contract carriage permit subject to any Rules that may be made under the Act. As far as grant of permit for carrying school children are concerned, Rule 222-B of the Rules, 1998 as amended and inserted with effect from 22.05.2019 to U.P. Motor Vehicle Rules 1998, provides for the following:-

“222 B. Grant of permit for carrying school children- (1) An Educational institution bus shall have to obtain permit of private service vehicle under section 76 of the Act. The owner shall apply in Form SR-23A before Competent Authority and the authority may grant permit in accordance with application or with such modification as it deems fit or refuse to grant such permit. The permit shall be issued in Form SR-29A .

(2) An owner of a private bus, who has a written agreement with school authority shall apply before the Competent Authority under section 73 of the Act in Form SR21A and the authority may grant permit in accordance with application or with such modifications as it deems fit or refuse to grant such permit. The permit shall be issued in Form SR-27A.

(3) The owner of school van having an agreement with guardians or group of guardians for transporting the school children shall apply under section 73 before the Competent Authority in Form SR-21B along with copy of agreement duly forwarded by the school. The authority may grant permit in accordance with application or with such modifications as it deems fit or refuse to grant such permit. The permit shall be issued in Form SR-27B.

(4) Every school, before going to an agreement with a private operator, shall ensure: that;

(a) the vehicle complies all the norms prescribed in these rules and directions of the State Government from time to time.

(b) the character certificate of vehicle owner and driver is obtained.

(c) the agreement shall not be terminated before one year except in unavoidable circumstances.”

10. In the present case, the aforesaid Rules are unambiguous and a facial reading brings us to fore that these Rules allow such permits only to private buses having an agreement with the school authorities as per Rule 222-B (2) of the Rule, 1998. Learned counsel for the petitioner has argued that it makes no difference as to whether the agreement is with the school or with the guardian as eventually it is related to transportation of the children to school only. However, on a closer scrutiny of the Rules, we find that the said submission of the petitioner to be fallacious and an outcome of an erroneous reading of the Rules for a simple reason that Rule 222-B (2) has to be read along with Rule 222-B (4), which prescribes certain condition precedent for the school authorities before they could enter into an agreement with an owner of a private bus. The said prescriptions enjoins upon the school-authorities with certain responsibilities as mentioned and enumerated in Rule 222-B (4) (a) to Rule 222-B (4) (c), which prima facie appears to this Court to be in the nature of ensuring the safety and mandatory prior compliance of the school buses, its owner and driver before they can be put to service of carrying school children. This Rule also ensures that the school buses' service is not disrupted abruptly during the mid-sessions, which may cause inconvenience to the children.

11. Unfortunately, we are not able to find any such mechanism of following strict safety norms as mentioned herein-above as a condition precedent in the case of an agreement with the parents or their employers. Neither the learned counsel was able to point out any such similar provision under the Rules nor has relied on any document which could come to the rescue of the petitioner. According to this Court, there appears to be a rationale nexus as to why agreement with guardians have not been allowed under the Rules, inasmuch as, it is the school-authorities, who is and are made responsible for the safety of school children as per the Rules. The individual guardian or their employers cannot be bestowed with such collective responsibility of these school children. In any case, the safety of the school going children cannot be tweaked by expanding the zone of consideration for such school buses, who do not have any agreement with the school-authorities as mandated under Rule 222 (2) of the Rules, 1998.

12. As far as the second contention of learned counsel for the petitioner that the petitioner is ready and willing to comply with Rule 222-L (General conditions for school vehicle permit), we find that the said Rule is condition subsequent for Rule 222-B. Once it is found that the petitioner is not in compliance of the Rule 222-B, this Court finds no substance in the said submission of the learned counsel for the petitioner and as such the same has been noted to be rejected.

13. Having said so, this Court is of the view that the safety of school children ought to be of paramount significance, which should be the driving force for not only the guardians or the school management but also for the statutory authorities under the Motor Vehicles Act and the Rules made therein for plying the school buses. According to this Court, the conditions as mentioned in the Rules are mandatory and ought to be strictly followed for the safety and welfare of the school going children.

14. In light of the same, we cannot find any fault on the part of the authorities in not granting a carriage permit for school children to the petitioner.

15. Accordingly, the writ petition is dismissed.

Issue(s) for consideration

Whether in the absence of an explicit rule or regulation permitting the continuation, a disciplinary proceedings can continue after retirement?

Headnotes

A. Service Law – In absence of any provision under the Regulation and Rules, no disciplinary proceeding can continue after the retirement. (Para 11)

The petitioner was working as a Godown Man / Centre In Charge / In Charge District Manager. On 02.06.2011, he was placed under suspension due to certain allegations, and an inquiry officer was appointed. Because the inquiry was not completed in time, the petitioner's suspension was revoked on 18.06.2012, though he remained attached to the office. The petitioner subsequently reached the age of superannuation and retired on 30.06.2014. The respondents refused to release his retiral dues, citing the pendency of the disciplinary proceeding. Nearly seven years after his retirement, on 22.03.2021, the General Manager concluded the disciplinary proceeding and passed a punishment order directing a recovery of Rs. 8,80,230/- from the petitioner.

In the case of Bhagirathi Jena (infra), the Hon'ble Supreme Court has precisely considered this aspect of the matter and recorded finding that in absence of any Rule, Regulation or Act, no disciplinary proceeding can go on after the retirement, therefore, due to continuation of disciplinary proceeding in absence of provision of Rules or Regulation, the order is per se illegal and is liable to be set aside by this Court. (Para 13)

In the present case, the disciplinary proceeding continued after the retirement of the petitioner i.e. 30.6.2014 and impugned order of recovery was passed on 22.03.2021, therefore, the order is per se illegal and is not sustainable in law. (Para 12)

The order dated 22.03.2021, being contrary to the Rules, is quashed. The respondents are directed to ensure payment of retiral dues as well as arrears of salary, if any, to the petitioner with 8 % interest.

Writ petition allowed. (E-4)

1. Heard Sri Som Kartik Shukla, learned counsel for the petitioner, learned Standing Counsel for respondent No.1/ State and Sri Rajiv Kumar Sinha, learned counsel for respondent Nos.2 and 3.

2. Facts in nutshell are that the petitioner was working on the post of Godown Man/ Centre In Charge, Manjhanpur/ In charge District Manager, Koshambi, Allahabad Division. Vide order dated 2.6.2011, the respondent No.4 placed the petitioner under suspension on certain allegation and the petitioner was attached with the Accounts Officer (Audit), office of the respondent No.4. To conduct the enquiry, Enquiry Officer was appointed with direction to conclude the enquiry within a month and submit report.

3. The enquiry was not completed, thus, the petitioner submitted his representation before the respondent No.4 on 22.12.2011 and 30.4.2012 for cancellation of the suspension order. In pursuance to the aforesaid representation of the petitioner, vide order dated 18.6.2012, the respondent No.4 revoked the order of suspension of the petitioner vide order dated 2.6.2011 and he was attached with the office of respondent No.4. On 4.4.2014, the respondent No.4 issued an order that the petitioner will retire from service on 30.6.2014. No dues certificate in respect of the petitioner to be issued by 30.4.2014, clearing all dues against him so that due amount may be recovered from the petitioner's due and rest may be paid to him within time. It was further directed that no dues certificate cannot be issued during the pendency of disciplinary proceeding. The petitioner retired from the post of Godown Man on 30.6.2014 after attaining the age of superannuation.

4. In spite of that, no retiral dues were paid to the petitioner. The detail of the payable dues has been referred in paragraph 11 of the writ petition. Due to non payment of retiral dues, the petitioner filed a representation on 26.9.2014 before the respondents through registered post with the request for payment of retiral dues but no action was taken. Due to non taking of action by the respondents in the representation filed by the petitioner, he again filed a representation on 5.11.2014 before the respondents through registered post. Due to non passing of the order, feeling aggrieved, the petitioner filed Writ Petition No.7042 (S/S) of 2014 and direction was issued to the respondents to ensure payment of retiral dues to the petitioner including retiral/ pensionary benefits alongwith the interest at the rate of 12 % and the writ petition was finally disposed of vide order dated 5.12.2014, directing the respondent No.3 to decide the representation of the petitioner for the payment of retiral benefits in accordance with law, within three months.

5. The respondent No.3 decided and rejected the representation of the petitioner vide order dated 13.2.2015 stating that till the departmental enquiry against the petitioner is finalized, no dues could be paid to him. The order passed on 13.2.2015 was challenged in Writ-A No.2505 of 2015, wherein direction was issued to complete the pleadings and the writ petition is still pending consideration. The writ petition was dismissed for want of prosecution vide order dated 31.10.2022. An application for restoration/ recall of the order was filed which was allowed and the writ petition was restored. Thereafter, after the conclusion of disciplinary proceeding, an order of punishment was passed on 22.3.2021 by the General Manager, which is under challenge before this Court, whereby an order was passed for recovery of Rs.8,80,230/-.

6. Submission of learned counsel for the petitioner is that there is no provision under the Regulation that after the retirement, disciplinary proceeding can continue, therefore, his submission is that in absence of provision under the Regulation, disciplinary proceeding could not be continued after the retirement i.e. 30.6.2014. Next submission is that on the basis of conclusion of disciplinary proceeding, the order impugned dated 22.3.2021 has been passed, which is wholly illegal, arbitrary inasmuch as contrary to the settled proposition of law by the Hon'ble Supreme Court of India. Next submission is that the order impugned dated 22.3.2021 is per se illegal and is not sustainable in the eyes of law.

7. In support of the submission advanced on the point that in case there is no provision under the Regulation, Rules and Act to continue the disciplinary proceeding after the retirement, no proceeding can continue after the retirement, learned counsel for the petitioner placed reliance on the following judgments :-

(i) Bhagirathi Jena Vs. Orissa State Financial Corporation [1999 (3) SCC 666].

(ii) Dev Prakash Tewari Vs. Uttar Pradesh Cooperative Institutional Service Board Lucknow and others [2014 (7) Supreme Court Cases 260].

8. On the other hand, learned counsel for respondent Nos.2 and 3 could not place in the notice of this Court in regard to continuation of disciplinary proceeding after the retirement under any Rule applicable to the service condition of the petitioner. He submits that the impugned order is just and valid and there is no illegality or infirmity in the order. In support of his submission, he placed reliance upon a judgment in the case of U.P. State Sugar Corporation Ltd. and others Vs. Kamal Swaroop Tandon [2008 (1) Supreme Court Cases 352].

9. After having heard the rival submission of learned counsel for the parties, I perused the material on record as well as the law reports cited by the parties.

10. For deciding the controversy involved, paragraphs 5 to 10 of the judgment rendered in the case of Dev Prakash Tewari (Supra), wherein the judgment Bhagirathi Jena (Supra) has also been considered, are being quoted as under :-

"5. We have carefully considered the rival submissions. The facts are not in dispute. The High Court while quashing the earlier disciplinary proceedings on the ground of violation of principles of natural justice in its order dated 10.1.2006 granted liberty to initiate the fresh inquiry in accordance with the Regulations. The appellant who was reinstated in service on 26.4.2006 and fresh disciplinary proceeding was initiated on 7.7.2006 and while that was pending, the appellant attained the age of superannuation and retired on 31.3.2009. There is no provision in the Uttar Pradesh Co-operative Employees Service Regulations, 1975, for initiation or continuation of disciplinary proceeding after retirement of the appellant nor there is any provision stating that in case misconduct is established a deduction could be made from his retiral benefits.

6. An occasion came before this Court to consider the continuance of disciplinary inquiry in similar circumstance in Bhagirathi Jena's case (supra) and it was laid down as follows:

" 5. Learned Senior Counsel for the respondents also relied upon Clause (3) (c) of Regulation-44 of the Orissa State Financial Corporation Staff Regulations, 1975. It reads thus :

"44. (3) (c) When the employee who has been dismissed, removed or suspended is reinstated, the Board shall consider and make a specific order :

(i) Regarding the pay and allowances to be paid to the employee for the period of his absence from duty, and

(ii) Whether or not the said period shall be treated as a period on duty."

6. It will be noticed from the abovesaid regulations that no specific provision was made for deducting any amount from the provident fund consequent to any misconduct determined in the departmental enquiry nor was any provision made for continuance of the departmental enquiry after superannuation.

7. In view of the absence of such a provision in the abovesaid regulations, it must be held that the Corporation had no legal authority to make any reduction in the retiral benefits of the appellant. There is also no provision for conducting a disciplinary enquiry after retirement of the appellant and nor any provision stating that in case misconduct is established, a deduction could be made from retiral benefits. Once the appellant had retired from service on 30.6.95 there was no authority vested in the Corporation for continuing the departmental enquiry even for the purpose of imposing any reduction in the retiral benefits payable to the appellant. In the absence of such an authority, it must be held that the enquiry had lapsed and the appellant was entitled to full retiral benefits on retirement."

7. In the subsequent decision of this Court in U.P. Coop. Federation case (supra) on facts, the disciplinary proceeding against employee was quashed by the High Court since no opportunity of hearing was given to him in the inquiry and the management in its appeal before this Court sought for grant of liberty to hold a fresh inquiry and this Court held that charges levelled against the employee were not minor in nature, and therefore, it would not be proper to foreclose the right of the employer to hold a fresh inquiry only on the ground that the employee has since retired from the service and accordingly granted the liberty sought for by the management. While dealing with the above case, the earlier decision in Bhagirathi Jena's case (supra) was not brought to the notice of this Court and no contention was raised pertaining to the provisions under which the disciplinary proceeding was initiated and as such no ratio came to be laid down. In our view the said decision cannot help the respondents herein.

8. Once the appellant had retired from service on 31.3.2009, there was no authority vested with the respondents for continuing the disciplinary proceeding even for the purpose of imposing any reduction in the retiral benefits payable to the appellant. In the absence of such an authority it must be held that the enquiry had lapsed and the appellant was entitled to get full retiral benefits.

9. The question has also been raised in the appeal with regard to arrears of salary and allowances payable to the appellant during the period of his dismissal and upto the date of reinstatement. Inasmuch as the inquiry had lapsed, it is, in our opinion, obvious that the appellant would have to get the balance of the emoluments payable to him.

10. The appeals are, therefore, allowed and the judgment and order of the High Court are set aside and the respondents are directed to pay arrears of salary and allowances payable to the appellant and also to pay him his all the retiral benefits in accordance with the rules and regulations as if there had been no disciplinary proceeding or order passed therein. No costs."

11. On perusal of the extract of the judgments, it is crystal clear that in the case of Bhagirathi Jena (Supra) and Dev Prakash Tewari (Supra), the Hon'ble Supreme Court has held that in absence of any provision under the Regulation and Rules, no disciplinary proceeding can continue after the retirement.

12. In the present case, the disciplinary proceeding continued after the retirement of the petitioner i.e. 30.6.2014 and impugned order of recovery was passed on 22.3.2021, therefore, the order is per se illegal and is not sustainable in law. In absence of any provision to continue the disciplinary proceeding after the retirement, no disciplinary proceeding can continue after the retirement.

13. In the case of Bhagirathi Jena (Supra), the Hon'ble Supreme Court has precisely considered this aspect of the matter and recorded finding that in absence of any Rule, Regulation or Act, no disciplinary proceeding can go on after the retirement, therefore, due to continuation of disciplinary proceeding in absence of provision of Rules or Regulation, the order is per se illegal and is liable to be set aside by this Court.

14. Learned counsel for the respondent Nos.2 and 3 has relied upon a judgment in the case of U.P. State Sugar Corporation Ltd. (Supra). I have gone through the aforesaid judgment. In absence of any provision under the Act, Rules or Regulation in regard to continuation of disciplinary proceeding applicable to the petitioner, the ratio of the judgment is not applicable neither the case of Bhagirathi Jena (Supra) was taken into consideration while passing the judgment, therefore, it is distinguishable in nature and is not applicable to the case in hand.

15. In view of the reasons recorded above and the facts and circumstances of the case, I am of the considered opinion that the order dated 22.3.2021, being contrary to the Rules, is hereby quashed. The writ petition succeeds and is allowed.

16. The respondents are directed to ensure payment of retiral dues as well as arrears of salary, if any, to the petitioner with 8 % interest, within a period of three months from the date of production of a certified copy of this order.

Writ A No. 8349 of 2011

State of U.P. & Ors.

Issue(s) for consideration

Whether the State could deny the benefit of promotion to the petitioners from the post of Telephone Operator to Lower Division Assistant (LDA) based on an omission in the statutory service rules, even though similarly situated employees had already been granted the same promotion under a 1988 Government Order?

Headnotes

A. Service Law – The petitioners were working as Telephone Operators in the Board of Revenue. They challenged an order dated 20.12.2000 that rejected their claims for promotion to the post of Lower Division Assistant (LDA). They argued that under a GO dated September 6, 1988, Telephone Operators were explicitly eligible for promotion to vacant LDA posts. Furthermore, three of their predecessors had already been promoted under this policy in 1990 and 1994. The State argued that the U.P. Board of Revenue Ministerial Service Rules, 1983 did not contain any statutory provision for promoting Telephone Operators to LDA posts. They contended that executive G.O.s cannot override statutory rules and that the promotional claim was legally invalid.

B. The 1983 Service Rules omitted "Telephone Operators" simply because the posts were created later, in 1986. The 1988 G.O. was specifically issued by the State to bridge this legislative gap and prevent employee stagnation. (Para 18, 22)

C. Violation of Article 14 - The State had already adopted the 1988 policy and promoted three similarly situated Telephone Operators. Denying the same benefit to the petitioners—while 22 LDA posts sat vacant—constituted unconstitutional discrimination u/Article 14. (Para 21)

D. Approbate and Reprobate - The Court emphasized that the State cannot accept a policy for one set of individuals and reject it for another under identical circumstances without a rational basis. (Para 23, 24)

The impugned rejection order dated 20.12.2000 was quashed. The State was directed to reconsider the petitioners' case for promotion to LDA under the guidelines of the 1988 Government Order. The promotion review process must be concluded within six months. Eligible petitioners must receive all consequential benefits, including notional seniority and back-arrears of pay.

Writ petition allowed. (E-4)

Appearances for Parties

For Petitioner(s): Devendra Mohan Shukla, Manish Jauhari

For Respondent(s): C.S.C.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Irshad Ali, J.)

1. Heard Sri Asit Kumar Chaturvedi, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Sri Ashwani Kumar Singh, learned counsel for the petitioners and Sri Rajiv Srivastava, learned Additional CSC for the respondent - State.

2. By means of present writ petition, the petitioners are challenging the order dated 20.12.2000 passed by respondent No.4 contained as annexure-4 to the writ petition with a further prayer to issue writ of mandamus commanding the respondents to reconsider the claim of the petitioners to be promoted on the post of Lower Division Assistant w.e.f. 20.12.2000 in the light of Government Order dated 06.09.1988.

3. Factual matrix of the case is that in the year 1983 service rules namely U.P. Board of Revenue Ministerial Service Rules, 1983 were framed for governing service conditions of the employees working in Revenue Board. The said rules do not mention about the post of Telephone Operators in the department, therefore, benefit extended under the rules to the other posts in the department were denied to the Telephone Operators.

4. The post of Telephone Operators in the department was initially not sanctioned but in the year 1986 when the PBS exchange was installed in the Board of Revenue, three posts of Telephone Operators were sanctioned by the State Government vide order dated 29.01.1986.

5. As the post of Telephone Operator in the department was sanctioned in the year 1986 and by the time, the service rules applicable in the department were already framed, the petitioners believes that the post of Telephone Operators was not mentioned in the service rules because the creation of the post of Telephone Operators in the department was post dated. After creation of post of Telephone Operators, the appointment of three female candidates namely, Vijay Laxmi, Mala Bharti and Salma Bano were made by the respondents on 13.01.1987.

6. On 06.09.1988, State Government introduced a rotation policy which was communicated to the then Secretary, Board of Revenue for adopting the same by which it was provided that since there was no rules for promotion of Telephone Operators in the Civil Secretariat, the posts of Lower Division Assistants which were running vacant in the Secretariat and against which no selection had been made by the Public Service Commission, might be filled up by promoting the Telephone Operators according to their seniority.

7. The Government Order dated the 06.09.1988 was adopted by the then Secretary of Board of Revenue and accordingly the benefit of the said Government Order was extended to the Telephone Operators working at that time in the department. The first promotion of a Telephone Operator namely Km. Vijay Laxmi was made on the post of Lower Division Assistant on the 16.06.1990 on a vacancy occurred due to promotion of Mohd. Aslam on the post of a Reference Clerk. On the same line when another vacancies on the post of Lower Division Assistant occurred, the other two Telephone Operators were also promoted on the post of Lower Division Assistant by the opposite parties on 05.01.1994.

8. Since the post of Telephone Operators in the department became vacant due to promotion of Telephone Operators working therein, the petitioners and one other candidate namely Smt. Anjum Bano were selected and appointed on the aforesaid vacant posts of Telephone Operators. A dispute regarding parity between the employees working in Revenue Board and the Civil Secretariat had been resolved earlier also by way of the orders passed by this Hon'ble Court and implementation of the recommendations of Samta Samiti. However, the said resolutions were related to granting parity in pay scale of the employees working in both the departments but the reasons of granting such parity emanates from an undisputed fact that the State Government does not treat the employees working in Board of Revenue, Lokayukta Office, High court and State Law Office, different from the employees working in the Civil Secretariat.

9. In the department of the petitioners, there are 22 posts of LDA lying vacant for more than five years and no selection has been made by the Public Service Commission on the said posts in spite of the requisition sent by the Board to the Commission. On 31.05.1990 the proposal was sent by the department to the State Government for making a provision for promotion of Telephone Operators on the post of Lower Division Assistant but till date no decision has been taken by the State Government on this issue.

10. It was in the year 2010 when the petitioners sought the information regarding the decision taken over their on 21.09.2010 promotion, the department informed them that the request of the petitioners to promote them on the post of Lower Division Assistant was already rejected by means of the impugned order. Immediately after receiving the information by means of letter dated 21.09.2010, the petitioners again applied under Right to Information Act demanding the copy of the impugned order. In response to the application moved by the petitioners under Right to Information

Act, the department provided copy of the impugned order to the petitioners on 26.04.2011. Hence, the present writ petition has been preferred challenging the same.

11. Submission of learned Senior Counsel for the petitioners is that once three persons, namely, Vijay Laxmi, Mala Bharti and Salma Bano have been granted promotion on the post of Lower Division Assistant, denial for grant of benefits to the petitioners to grant promotion is discriminatory in nature and violative of Constitution of India.

12. He further submitted that this Court in the case of U.P. Board of Revenue Ministerial Officials Association, Lucknow - Allahabad Vs. State of U.P. and Others dated 06.04.1988 annexed as Annexure-9 to the writ petition, granted benefit as admissible to U.P. Civil Secretariat and the said judgment was affirmed by Hon'ble Supreme Court in Civil Writ to Appeal No.1107 of 1988 in the case of State of U.P. and others Vs. U.P. Board of Revenue Ministerial Officials Association, Lucknow - Allahabad, therefore, his submission is that once it has been held that all the allowances are admissible to the employees of Board of Revenue, discrimination cannot be carve out in granting promotion in the Board of Revenue.

13. His next submission is that the petitioners are entitled for grant of promotion on the post of Lower Division Assistant as well as Revenue Officer and are entitled for payment of all allowances and arrears as admissible to the post. Due to non grant of promotion and other benefits, the petitioners are suffering a lot and the action of the respondents is discriminatory and not tenable in the eyes of law.

14. On the other hand, learned Additional CSC invited attention of this Court on the contents of counter affidavit, wherein there is no explanation about grant of promotion to three persons, namely, Vijay Laxmi, Mala Bharti and Salma Bano. He submitted that there is no provision in the rules in regard to grant of promotion to Telephone Operators on the post of Lower Division Assistant in Board of Revenue.

15. He next submitted that in case the Government Order issued for grant of promotion on the post of Lower Division Assistant is contrary to the provisions contained under statutory rules, the Government Order is liable to be ignored. He invited attention of this Court to paragraph 4 of the counter affidavit and submitted that in view of Rule 4, the provisions regarding appointments in temporary and officiating capacity, if any contained in rules relating to Public Services made by the Governor in exercise of the powers under the proviso of Article 309 of the Constitution prior to commencement of these Rules are hereby rescinded and on the said basis his submission is that on the basis of Government Order issued, the promotion cannot be made and the impugned orders does not suffer from any infirmity or illegality and is just and valid.

16. I have considered the submissions advanced by learned counsel for the parties and perused the material on record.

17. The controversy involved in the present writ petition centers around the entitlement of the petitioners, working as Telephone Operators, to be considered for promotion to the post of Lower Division Assistant in terms of Government Order dated 06.09.1988.

18. It is not disputed that the U.P. Board of Revenue Ministerial Service Rules, 1983 do not contain any provision for the post of Telephone Operator. However, the reason for such omission is apparent, inasmuch as the said post was created subsequently in the year 1986. Thus, non-inclusion of the post in the Rules cannot be construed to deny promotional avenues altogether.

19. The State Government, in order to remove stagnation and provide promotional opportunities to Telephone Operators, issued Government Order dated 06.09.1988, permitting their promotion to the post of Lower Division Assistant against vacant posts where no recruitment had been made through the Public Service Commission.

20. The record clearly indicates that the said Government Order was adopted by the Board of Revenue and implemented in its true spirit. In pursuance thereof, three similarly situated employees, namely, Vijay Laxmi, Mala Bharti and Salma Bano, were promoted to the post of Lower Division Assistant in the years 1990 and 1994.

21. Once the benefit of the aforesaid Government Order has been extended to similarly situated employees, denial of the same benefit to the petitioners, without any rational basis, amounts to hostile discrimination and is violative of Article 14 of the Constitution of India.

22. The plea taken by the respondents that there is no provision in the statutory rules for such promotion is not tenable in the facts of the present case. The Government Order dated 06.09.1988 was issued precisely to fill the gap in the Rules and has already been acted upon by the respondents themselves.

23. It is a settled principle of law that the State cannot approbate and reprobate. Having granted promotion to certain employees under the same policy, the respondents cannot deny similar treatment to the petitioners without assigning any justifiable reason.

24. The respondents have failed to explain as to why the petitioners have been treated differently from their predecessors, despite availability of vacant posts and absence of recruitment through the Public Service Commission. Such action is clearly arbitrary and unsustainable.

25. In view of the aforesaid, this Court is of the considered opinion that the impugned order dated 20.12.2000 cannot be sustained in the eyes of law and is liable to be quashed.

26. Accordingly, the writ petition succeeds and is allowed.

27. The impugned order dated 20.12.2000 passed by respondent No.4 is hereby quashed.

28. A writ of mandamus is issued directing the respondents to consider the case of the petitioners for promotion to the post of Lower Division Assistant in terms of Government Order dated 06.09.1988, in accordance with law.

29. The aforesaid exercise shall be completed within a period of six months from the date of production of a certified copy of this order.

30. It is further directed that in case the petitioners are found entitled, they shall be granted all consequential benefits, including notional seniority and arrears, as admissible under law.

Writ A No. 9421 of 2023

State of U.P. & Ors.

...Petitioner
Versus

Issue(s) for consideration

- (a) Whether a departmental disciplinary inquiry can legally continue after the delinquent employee dies in harness?
- (b) Whether the state authorities could legally keep an inquiry pending for years without obtaining an official extension or prior leave from the Court, given that a binding judicial order had specifically mandated the inquiry to be completed within a strict four-month timeframe?
- (c) Whether a government department can legally withhold retiral and consequential service benefits from a deceased employee's legal heir on the pretext that the department itself lost or misplaced the employee's official service book and GPF passbook?

Headnotes

A. Service Law – The petitioner's late husband, Ram Nath Gupta, was appointed as a Compounder/Pharmacist (Homeopathy) in 1984. He was dismissed twice during his service (in 2001 and 2007) but was reinstated both times following orders by the High Court. Following his second reinstatement order, the Director (Homeopathy) officially brought him back into service on 20.12.2011. Per the Court's binding directives in a connected matter (Special Appeal No. 123 of 2010 r/w the order passed in WP No. 4633 of 2007), the department was strictly mandated to conclude any fresh disciplinary inquiry within a maximum period of four months from this reinstatement date.

An inquiry committee was formed, and an inquiry report was generated in 2013 alleging forged appointment papers. While being asked to appear for personal verification in late 2014, the employee informed the department that he was suffering from cancer and undergoing treatment at Tata Memorial Hospital, Mumbai. On 02.12.2016, Ram Nath Gupta passed away while the departmental inquiry was still pending. No final order or punishment was ever executed. The State refused to release his retiral and consequential service benefits to his widow, citing the pending inquiry and claiming his official service book and GPF passbook were 'not traceable.'

B. Disciplinary proceedings cannot be continued against a deceased employee. Where a delinquent employee dies during the pendency of disciplinary proceedings, such proceedings cannot be continued thereafter and are liable to be treated as having abated. Upon the demise of the employee, the relationship between the employer and the employee ceases to exist, and consequently, no further action in the nature of disciplinary proceedings can be sustained in the eyes of law. No punitive order can be passed against a deceased employee, as the imposition of punishment under the applicable service rules presupposes the existence of a living employee. (Para 20 to 22)

C. Where a court directs that disciplinary proceedings be concluded within a fixed time frame, such direction is binding and must be strictly adhered to. If, for any reason, the proceedings cannot be concluded within the prescribed period, it is incumbent upon the authority concerned to seek extension of time by moving an appropriate application before the Court. Even in cases where the delinquent employee does not object to continuation of proceedings beyond the stipulated period, the disciplinary authority is nevertheless under a legal obligation to obtain prior leave of the Court before proceeding further or passing any final order. (Para 18)

It was incumbent upon the respondents to conclude the inquiry proceedings within the stipulated period of four months. Alternatively, they ought to have sought extension of time from the Court in accordance with law. The continuation of disciplinary proceedings beyond the prescribed time frame, without obtaining leave of the Court, is clearly impermissible. (Para 19)

D. Responsibility for proper maintenance, safe custody, and upkeep of service records lies squarely upon the concerned department and not upon the employee. In the event such records are found to be missing or misplaced, the burden lies upon the department to reconstruct or verify the service particulars of the employee from available sources. The department cannot be permitted to derive advantage from its own lapse, nor can such deficiency be used as a ground to deny legitimate service benefits to an employee or his legal heirs. (Para 23)

The petitioner is entitled to the release of all consequential service benefits of her late husband. Accordingly, the opposite parties are directed to ensure the payment of all retiral dues, including gratuity, GPF and family pension, along with simple interest at the rate of 7% per annum, calculated from the date on which the petitioner became entitled to such benefits, i.e., 21.12.2016, being the date on which the application for release of post-retiral dues was submitted. (Para 24)

Writ petition allowed. (E-4)

Relief Sought

2. The petition has been filed seeking mandamus for releasing the salary dues of the late husband of the petitioner namely Ram Nath Gupta who died in harness on 02.12.2016 while working as Pharmacist (Homeopathy) in Government Homeopathic Hospital, Dhanaupur, Sultanpur.

Factual Background

3. The petitioner is the widow of late Ram Nath Gupta, who died in harness on 02.12.2016 while serving on the post of Pharmacist (Homeopathy) at the Government Homeopathic Hospital, Dhanaupur, Sultanpur.

4. The brief facts, as set forth in the petition, are that the petitioner's husband was initially appointed on 22.11.1984 to the post of Compounder in the Government Homeopathic Hospital. Subsequently, by order dated 11.09.2001, the Director (Homeopathy) dismissed him from service while he was working as a Pharmacist. The said dismissal order has been brought on record as Annexure No. 3. Aggrieved by the same, the order of dismissal was challenged before this Court. Pursuant to various orders passed by this Court, the State Government, vide order dated 30.01.2004, reinstated all similarly situated Pharmacists (Homeopathy) into service. Consequent thereto, the Director (Homeopathy), by order dated 13.02.2004, issued posting orders to the reinstated Pharmacists. Further, in continuation of the reinstatement, the Director (Homeopathy), vide communication dated 27.04.2004, issued necessary directions for payment of salary to such reinstated employees.

5. The petitioner's husband was once again dismissed from service on 03.07.2007. Challenging the said action, he preferred Writ Petition No. 4633 (S/S) of 2007 titled Ram Nath Gupta vs. State of U.P. and others. During the pendency of the said writ petition, certain other similarly situated employees, who had also been dismissed on identical grounds, approached this Court by filing Writ Petition No. 640 (S/S) of 2010 titled Rajendra Pratap Srivastava vs. State of U.P. and others, which came to be dismissed by order dated 04.02.2010. Against the said judgment, Special Appeal No. 123 of 2010 titled Rajendra Pratap Srivastava vs. State of U.P. and others, was preferred, which was allowed by a Division Bench of this Court vide judgment and order dated 12.08.2010. The Division Bench set aside the order under challenge and directed reinstatement of the appellant forthwith, along with payment of salary from the date of joining. It was further directed that the period of dismissal shall not be treated as a break in service. Additionally, liberty was granted to the authorities to conduct a fresh inquiry from the stage of submission of reply to the charge-sheet, to be concluded within a maximum period of four months from the date of service of the certified copy of the order.

6. Since the writ petition filed by the petitioner's husband, being Writ Petition No. 4633 (S/S) of 2007, involved identical questions of fact and law, a Coordinate Bench of this Court, vide order dated 27.05.2011, allowed the said writ petition in terms of the judgment and order dated 12.08.2010 passed in Special Appeal No. 123 of 2010, insofar as it related to the petitioner's husband.

7. The respondents, vide office order dated 20.12.2011, acknowledged and acted upon the aforesaid order passed in Writ Petition No. 4633 (S/S) of 2007. In view of the directions issued in Special Appeal No. 123 of 2010, the respondents were under an obligation to conclude the disciplinary proceedings within a period of four months from the date of receipt of the certified copy of the said order. Since the respondents had acknowledged the order by issuing the office order dated 20.12.2011, it can reasonably be inferred that the time period for concluding the inquiry was to be reckoned from that date. In compliance with the judgment dated 27.05.2011, the Director (Homeopathy), by office memorandum dated 20.12.2011, reinstated the petitioner's husband in service at Government Hospital, Dhanaupur, Sultanpur. It is pertinent to note that the petitioner's husband was also a beneficiary of the judgment dated 12.08.2010 passed in Special Appeal No. 123 of 2010, and therefore, the inquiry against him was required to be concluded within the stipulated period of four months.

8. In furtherance thereof, an inquiry committee was constituted under the Chairmanship of Dr. Anand Kumar Chaturvedi, the then Principal of Government Shri Durgaji Homeopathy Medical College and Hospital, Azamgarh. The petitioner's husband appeared before the inquiry committee on 19.09.2012 and submitted his written statement. The Inquiry Officer, however, found him guilty of obtaining appointment on the basis of forged and fabricated documents. The inquiry report dated 08.07.2013 was forwarded to him through a letter dated 10.07.2014 issued by the Directorate, calling upon him to submit his reply along with supporting documents.

9. In response thereto, late Ram Nath Gupta submitted his reply on 22.08.2014, asserting his innocence and requesting re-investigation and a fresh inquiry. Thereafter, vide letter dated 19.09.2014, the Directorate forwarded copies of educational and technical qualification certificates along with other relevant records pertaining to his appointment, and directed him to appear before the authorities. In reply, the petitioner's husband, vide letter dated 13.11.2014, informed that he was suffering from cancer and undergoing treatment at Tata Memorial Hospital, Mumbai, and accordingly sought time on medical grounds. Subsequently, on 02.12.2016, he passed away while the departmental inquiry was still pending. Notably, no final order concluding the disciplinary proceedings or imposing any punishment was ever passed against him. The death certificate has been placed on record as Annexure No. 1. Thus, the departmental inquiry remained inconclusive at the time of his death.

Arguments of Learned Counsel for the Petitioner

10. Submission of the petitioner is that upon the death of the petitioner's husband during the pendency of the disciplinary proceedings, the said proceedings stood abated. It is further contended that in view of the specific direction issued in Special Appeal No. 123 of 2010 (supra), requiring the inquiry to be concluded within a period of four months from the date of receipt of the certified copy of the order, the respondents cannot be permitted to keep the inquiry pending indefinitely without seeking appropriate extension or leave from this Court. Since Writ Petition No. 4633 (S/S) of 2007 filed by the petitioner's husband had been allowed in terms of the aforesaid

Special Appeal, the inquiry in his case was also required to be concluded within the same stipulated period.

11. It is also submitted that, by virtue of the acknowledgment letter dated 20.12.2011 issued by the Director (Homeopathy), the petitioner's husband stood reinstated, and from that date onwards, the respondents were under a legal obligation to conclude the inquiry within four months. However, it remains undisputed that the inquiry proceedings were not concluded within the prescribed time and, in fact, continue to remain pending.

12. In support of the aforesaid submissions, learned counsel for the petitioner has placed reliance upon the following judgments rendered by this Court, wherein it has been categorically held that in cases where a disciplinary inquiry remains incomplete and the delinquent employee dies during its pendency, such proceedings cannot thereafter be continued or concluded:

(i) A.K.S. Rathore (Dead) through LRs vs. Union of India, Civil Appeal No. 7028 of 2022 (with particular emphasis on paragraph 8);

(ii) Rajeshwari Devi vs. State of U.P. and others, 2011 SCC OnLine All 42 (with emphasis on paragraph 6);

(iii) Pushpa Devi vs. State of U.P. and another, Writ-A No. 15004 of 2022 (with emphasis on paragraph 11).

13. It has further been contended on behalf of the petitioner that where a court directs that an inquiry be concluded within a specified period, the same is required to be strictly adhered to, and the proceedings cannot be permitted to continue beyond the stipulated time without obtaining leave of the Court. In support of this submission, reliance has been placed upon the judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in State of Uttar Pradesh vs. Ram Prakash Singh, 2025 SCC OnLine SC 891, particularly paragraphs 62 and 63 thereof.

14. Lastly, it has been urged on behalf of the petitioner that the respondents are illegally withholding the retiral and consequential service benefits of late Ram Nath Gupta, the petitioner's husband, on the pretext that his service book and GPF passbook are not traceable. In this regard, learned counsel for the petitioner has drawn the attention of this Court to the judgment rendered in Satya Prakash Srivastava vs. State of U.P., Writ-A No. 5008 of 2024, to contend that the department cannot take shelter under the plea of missing service records to deny an employee the benefits to which he is otherwise lawfully entitled.

Arguments of Learned Counsel for the Respondents

15. Per contra, learned Standing Counsel has opposed the submissions advanced on behalf of the petitioner, contending that disciplinary proceedings against the petitioner's husband, late Ram Nath Gupta, were still pending. It is further submitted that in the absence of the service book and GPF records, the petitioner is not entitled to claim any retiral or consequential benefits.

Consideration by the Court

16. The Court has considered the rival submissions and perused the record.

17. It is not in dispute between the parties that late Ram Nath Gupta died on 02.12.2016 while in service. It is further admitted that he had been reinstated in service on 20.12.2011 and had continuously discharged his duties from the date of reinstatement till his demise on 02.12.2016. It is also an admitted position that the disciplinary proceedings initiated against the petitioner's husband remained pending and were not brought to their logical conclusion. The State has failed to assign any plausible or justifiable reason as to the basis on which the disciplinary proceedings could be continued beyond the stipulated period of four months, particularly in the face of the categorical directions issued in Special Appeal No. 123 of 2010, read with the order passed in Writ Petition No. 4633 of 2007 (Ram Nath Gupta vs. State of U.P. and others).

18. The Hon'ble Supreme Court, in State of Uttar Pradesh vs. Ram Prakash Singh (supra), has clearly enunciated in paragraphs 62 and 63 of the judgment that where a court directs that disciplinary proceedings be concluded within a fixed time frame, such direction is binding and must be strictly adhered to. It has been held that if, for any reason, the proceedings cannot be concluded within the prescribed period, it is incumbent upon the authority concerned to seek extension of time by moving an appropriate application before the Court. The judgment further clarifies that even in cases where the delinquent employee does not object to continuation of proceedings beyond the stipulated period, the disciplinary authority is nevertheless under a legal obligation to obtain prior leave of the Court before proceeding further or passing any final order. The relevant paragraphs 62 and 63 are extracted hereunder:

"62. While affirming the aforesaid view of the Full Bench, we would like to provide clarification on certain points not touched by such bench. First, in view of unseen institutional hurdles that can slow down swift action, it may not always be possible for the disciplinary authority in each such case where a fixed time has been stipulated by a tribunal/court to conclude the proceedings to apply and seek extension of time before expiry of such time although there can be no gainsaying that applying and obtaining an extension before expiry is eminently desirable. In exceptional cases, even after expiry of the stipulated time, such an application can be moved; and, depending on the cause shown for inability or failure to conclude the proceedings within the time stipulated and also for not applying for extension before expiry, the tribunal/court may, in its discretion, allow or reject the prayer for extension. If the application is rejected, the proceedings cannot be carried forward unless a superior court, reversing the order of rejection, permits the disciplinary authority to so proceed. Secondly, if the delinquent employee objects to continuation of proceedings beyond the time stipulated, the disciplinary authority without proceeding further ought to apply for extension of time and may not go ahead till such time its prayer for extension is granted on such application. Proceeding despite objection and without there being an extension could give rise to apprehensions of bias. Therefore, applying for extension upon halting the proceedings awaiting order on the application would be an advisable course of action to balance the interests of both the employer and the employee. Thirdly, even if the delinquent employee has not objected to continuation of proceedings beyond the time stipulated by the tribunal/court but before the final order is passed in the proceedings, the disciplinary authority would be bound to seek and obtain extension of time. This is for the simple reason that the sanctity of the orders of tribunals/courts cannot be disrespected by errant parties. The dignity of the judicial process would be seriously eroded and there would be nothing left of the rule of law if orders of tribunals/courts, validly made, are disobeyed and the disobedience is encouraged by being indulgent. Finally, we hasten to add that if a tribunal/court stipulates a fixed time by which an enquiry or proceedings for disciplinary action ought to be concluded coupled with a rider that, in default, the enquiry/proceedings will stand lapsed, the disciplinary authority in such a case would cease to have the jurisdiction to proceed further unless, of course, citing genuine grounds, a recall of such default clause is sought and obtained to proceed further in accordance with law.

63. We also hold that continuation of disciplinary proceedings beyond the time stipulated by a tribunal/court could invite interdiction if no bona fide attempt is shown to have been made to seek an extension of time. However, much would depend on the facts of each case and it may not be possible to lay down a common formula applicable to each case. In an exceptional case, the tribunal/court would have the discretion to overlook the laxity and make such direction as it deems fit in the circumstances."

19. In view of the aforesaid legal position, and considering that the judgment in Special Appeal No. 123 of 2010, read with Writ Petition No. 4633 of 2007 (Ram Nath Gupta vs. State of U.P. and others), had admittedly come to the knowledge of the respondents, as is evident from the office memorandum dated 20.12.2011, it was incumbent upon the respondents to conclude the inquiry proceedings within the stipulated period of four months. Alternatively, they ought to have sought extension of time from the Court in accordance with law. The continuation of disciplinary proceedings beyond the prescribed time frame, without obtaining leave of the Court, is clearly impermissible. Furthermore, upon the death of the employee, the disciplinary proceedings automatically stand abated. In this regard, this Court in Abhishek Prabhakar Awasthy vs. New India Assurance Company Ltd., 2013 SCC OnLine All 14267, has held as follows:

"18. These judgments of the Supreme Court consequently recognize that the delay in concluding a departmental enquiry would not ipso facto vitiate the proceedings or render it invalid or non est. The Court has to take into consideration and balance all the relevant factors. The Court must consider in that balance the need for preserving the sanctity of the administration. On the other hand, fairness towards the delinquent employee requires that disciplinary proceedings should be concluded expeditiously. Hence, the nature of the charge, its complexity and the reasons for that delay are all relevant considerations which have to be borne in mind. Where the court has stipulated a period of time within which an enquiry has to be concluded, the direction of the Court, particularly in the form of a mandamus, has to be duly observed. It would not be open to the employer to willfully disregard the fixation of a time limit as a matter of no consequence. However, the fixation of a period within which a disciplinary enquiry has to be concluded, in an order of the Court, does not deprive the court of its jurisdiction to extend time in an appropriate case having due regard to all the facts and circumstances which have been noted above. Whether the time should be extended on a consideration of the relevant circumstances is for the court to determine."

20. Similarly, in Rajeshwari Devi vs. State of U.P. and others, 2011 SCC OnLine All 42, this Court, in paragraph 6, has categorically held that upon the death of an employee, all his ties with worldly affairs, including the relationship of employment, come to an end. It has been observed that no punitive order can be passed against a deceased employee, as the imposition of punishment under the applicable service rules presupposes the existence of a living employee. Thus, the employer-employee relationship ceases immediately upon the death of the employee. The relevant paragraph 6 is extracted below:

"6. Holding of departmental enquiry and imposition of punishment contemplates a pre-requisite condition that the employee concerned, who is to be proceeded against and is to be punished, is continuing an employee, meaning thereby is alive. As soon as a person dies, he breaks all his connection with the worldly affairs. It cannot be said that the chain of employment would still continue to enable employer to pass an order, punitive in nature, against the dead employee. All the punishments contemplated under the rules are such which can be imposed on a person who is still continuing to be an employee. Sri Anil Tiwari, learned counsel appearing for respondent-Nagar Nigam, on repeated query did not controvert the fact that as soon as an employee dies, his relationship of employer and employee comes to an end. This would automatically result in cessation of proceedings including departmental proceedings pending against him."

21. In Pushpa Devi vs. State of U.P., 2023 SCC OnLine All 3264, this Court has reiterated the settled legal position that disciplinary proceedings cannot be continued against a deceased employee. The relevant paragraph of the said judgment is extracted hereunder:

"25. So far as, present case is concerned, inquiry proceeding was initiated, charge sheet was issued, but before submission of reply of the charge sheet, husband of petitioner died. Inquiry officer came to the conclusion that, as husband of petitioner (employee) died during the pendency of inquiry proceeding, therefore, it is required on the part of disciplinary authority to drop the disciplinary proceeding. Thereafter, no further order has been passed upon the inquiry proceeding. Only after filing of writ petition by the petitioner, order was passed to decide the representation of petitioner dated 21.12.2021, upon which order of recovery dated 27.05.2022 has been passed for recovery of amount of Rs. 10,14,594/-. In fact, it is nothing, but re-initiation of earlier inquiry, which has not been completed in light of recommendation made by the inquiry committee."

22. Thus, in light of the aforesaid judicial pronouncements, the legal position stands crystallized that where a delinquent employee dies during the pendency of disciplinary proceedings, such proceedings cannot be continued thereafter and are liable to be treated as having abated. Upon the demise of the employee, the relationship between the employer and the employee ceases to exist, and consequently, no further action in the nature of disciplinary proceedings can be sustained in the eyes of law.

23. Insofar as the contention advanced by learned counsel for the State that in the absence of the service book and GPF passbook of the petitioner's late husband, the employer cannot be compelled to extend service benefits is concerned, the same is devoid of merit. In Satya Prakash Srivastava vs. State of U.P. (supra), it has been categorically held that the responsibility for proper maintenance, safe custody, and upkeep of service records lies squarely upon the concerned department and not upon the employee. In the event such records are found to be missing or misplaced, the burden lies upon the department to reconstruct or verify the service particulars of the employee from available sources. The department cannot be permitted to derive advantage from its own lapse, nor can such deficiency be used as a ground to deny legitimate service benefits to an employee or his legal heirs. The relevant extract from the said judgment is reproduced hereunder:-

"11. It is trite that the responsibility of safe keeping and upkeep of service records of an employee is upon the department itself and not the employee and in case such service records are missing or misplaced, onus is upon the department itself to complete such service details of an employee. In the absence of any such service records, the department cannot take benefit of such an omission nor such burden can be shifted upon the employee so as to deny him benefits to which he is justifiably expected."

Conclusion and Directions

24. In view of the aforesaid discussion and the undisputed factual matrix of the case, this Court is of the considered opinion that the petitioner is entitled to the release of all consequential service benefits of her late husband. Accordingly, the opposite parties are directed to ensure the payment of all retiral dues, including gratuity, General Provident Fund (GPF), and family pension, in respect of late Ram Nath Gupta, who died in harness on 02.12.2016 while serving as Pharmacist (Homeopathy) at Government Homeopathic Hospital, Dhanaupur, Sultanpur. The aforesaid amounts shall be released within a period of three months from the date of production of a certified copy of this order, along with simple interest at the rate of 7% per annum, calculated from the date on which the petitioner became entitled to such benefits, i.e., 21.12.2016, being the date on which the application for release of post-retiral dues was submitted.

25. The writ petition is, accordingly, allowed.

Issue(s) for consideration

(a) Whether a termination based on alleged "suppression of facts" can stand if the non-disclosure did not result in an unfair eligibility advantage or prejudice to the employer?

(b) Whether a variance in the recorded DOB across different genuine certificates automatically amounts to fraud or actionable civil misconduct?

Headnotes

A. Service Law – The petitioner successfully passed his Purva Madhyama (2001) and Shastri (2009) degrees from Sampurnanand Sanskrit Vishwavidyalaya, Varanasi, and his Uttar Madhyama from the U.P. Secondary Sanskrit Education Board, Lucknow. Based on these foundational educational qualifications, he completed the Basic Training Certificate (BTC) course in 2010 and qualified the U.P. Teacher Eligibility Test (TET) in 2013. Pursuing a recruitment drive initiated in 2013, the petitioner was appointed to the post of Assistant Teacher in a Junior Basic School by the Basic Shiksha Adhikari (BSA), Mau, via an appointment order dated 08.08.2014. He joined and served without any complaints or adverse remarks.

Following a Right to Information (RTI) application filed by a third party, an inquiry was conducted into the petitioner's qualifications. The inquiry revealed that the petitioner's Class VIII scholar register (1994-95), his Class IX admission form at National Inter College, and an unsubmitted 1998 High School certificate recorded his DOB as 02.07.1984. However, the Purva Madhyama certificate (2001) used to secure his BTC admission and subsequent teacher appointment recorded his DOB as 07.07.1987. On 27.06.2019, the BSA, Mau, dismissed the petitioner from service on grounds of deliberate concealment of material facts and misconduct, directing the lodging of a FIR against him. The petitioner moved the High Court via this writ petition to quash the dismissal.

B. Unless it is shown that the alleged misrepresentation had a direct bearing on the selection process or conferred a tangible advantage upon the candidate, the extreme consequence of nullifying the appointment cannot be justified. (Para 66, 68)

The sine qua non for sustaining an allegation of fraud is not merely the existence of an irregularity, but the presence of a deliberate design to secure an advantage which materially impacts the selection. In absence thereof, the action of the authorities in branding the appointment as void would not withstand judicial scrutiny. (Para 67, 69)

The respondents have failed to establish any element of fraud, misrepresentation, or deliberate concealment on the part of the petitioner. The discrepancy in the DOB, in the factual conspectus of the present case, does not rise to the level of culpability so as to justify the extreme measure of cancellation of appointment. (Para 63)

C. In the absence of any foundational finding, the mere existence of variance in the DOB across different certificates pales into insignificance. No categorical or definitive finding has been recorded by the competent authority to the effect that the petitioner had deliberately relied upon the Madhyama certificate in substitution of the earlier High School certificate with a view to secure any undue benefit or to mislead or to gain an advantage in the matter of appointment. The controversy, therefore, remains largely academic and does not have a determinative bearing on the core issue involved in the present case. (Para 71, 72)

Courts do not adjudicate upon abstract or hypothetical questions which do not directly impact the lis. Since the respondents themselves have not returned any finding attributing motive or advantage to the petitioner on account of the alleged discrepancy, this Court finds no occasion to enter into an elaborate examination of the said issue. (Para 73)

There is no categorical or substantiated allegation to the effect that the educational documents furnished by the petitioner before the respondents were forged, fabricated, or otherwise false in nature. (Para 75)

The impugned order dated 27.06.2019 is quashed. Since no interim order was operating in favour of the petitioner during the pendency of the writ petition, and the petitioner has admittedly not discharged any duties for the intervening period, he shall not be entitled to claim salary for the said period, in consonance with the well-settled principle of "no work, no pay." (Para 76, 78, 80)

Writ petition allowed.

Appearances for Parties

For Petitioner(s): Ashok Khare, Sr. Advocate, Siddharth Khare

For Respondent(s): Shashi Prakash Singh, C.S.C., Syed Nadeem Ahmad

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Manju Rani Chauhan, J.)

1. Heard Mr. Siddharth Khare, learned counsel for the petitioner, Mr. Shashi Prakash Singh, learned counsel for the respondent-BSA and Mr. Shailendra Singh, learned Standing Counsel for the State-respondents.

2. The writ petition has been filed with the following prayers:-

“(i) Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of certiorari quashing the order dated 27.06.2019 passed by Basic Shiksha Adhikari, Mau.

(ii) Issue a writ, order or direction of suitable nature restraining the respondents from taking any action on the basis of the order impugned.

(iii) Issue a writ, order or direction of suitable nature commanding the respondents not to interfere in the working of the petitioner as Assistant Teacher under the respondents and to pay the petitioner his regular monthly salary on the said post regularly every month.

(iv) Issue any other suitable writ, order or direction which this Court may deem fit and proper under the facts and circumstances of the case.”

3. Learned counsel for the petitioner submits that the petitioner possesses the requisite academic and professional qualifications for appointment to the post in question. It is contended that the petitioner passed the Purva Madhyama examination from Sampurnanand Sanskrit Vishwavidyalaya, Varanasi in the year 2001, and thereafter qualified the Uttar Madhyama examination conducted by the U.P. Secondary Sanskrit Education Board, Lucknow. Subsequently, the petitioner is stated to have obtained the Shastri degree from Sampurnanand Sanskrit Vishwavidyalaya in the year 2009.

4. On the strength of the aforesaid qualifications, it is further submitted that the petitioner was granted admission to the Basic Training Certificate (BTC) course in the year 2010, which he successfully completed. A BTC Training Certificate for the said session was duly awarded to him by the Examination Regulatory Authority, Uttar Pradesh, Allahabad.

5. It is also urged that the petitioner has qualified the U.P. Teacher Eligibility Test (TET), 2013, for the Primary Level, and thus fulfills all essential eligibility criteria prescribed for appointment as an Assistant Teacher.

6. Learned counsel for the petitioner further submits that the petitioner, being duly qualified and fully eligible in terms of the prescribed criteria, applied for consideration for appointment to the post of Assistant Teacher pursuant to the selection process initiated in the year 2013. The said selection pertained to appointments in Junior Basic Schools established and administered by the Board of Basic Education across various districts of the State, including District Mau. It is contended that the petitioner's candidature was duly considered in accordance with the applicable rules and procedure governing the said recruitment exercise.

7. Learned counsel for the petitioner further submits that, pursuant to the aforesaid selection process, the petitioner was duly selected and appointed to the post of Assistant Teacher vide appointment order dated 08.08.2014 issued by the Basic Shiksha Adhikari, Mau. It is contended that the petitioner, in compliance with the said appointment order, joined his duties forthwith and has since been discharging his functions diligently and to the full satisfaction of the respondent authorities, without any complaint or adverse remark.

8. Learned counsel for the petitioner further submits that one Rajesh Yadav submitted an application dated 18.10.2018 before the Basic Shiksha Adhikari, Mau, purportedly under the Right to Information Act, 2005, seeking supply of copies of the petitioner's educational qualification certificates and mark sheets on the basis of which he had been granted appointment.

9. It is contended that, notwithstanding the fact that the said application was not maintainable in law, the Additional Director of Education (Basic), by means of communication dated 26.03.2019, directed the petitioner to furnish copies of his educational qualification certificates.

10. In response to the aforesaid communication, the petitioner duly furnished self-attested copies of all his educational certificates along with a covering letter dated 30.05.2019.

11. It is submitted on behalf of the petitioner that the Basic Shiksha Adhikari, Mau issued a notice dated 15.05.2019, calling upon the petitioner to appear for a personal hearing on 30.05.2019 in connection with the alleged discrepancies in the certificates and mark sheet submitted by the petitioner on 30.04.2019.

12. In compliance with the aforesaid notice, the petitioner duly furnished a detailed reply dated 03.06.2019, addressing the allegations levelled therein.

13. On 27.06.2019, a further order came to be passed by the Basic Shiksha Adhikari, Mau, whereby the petitioner was purportedly dismissed from service, coupled with a direction for lodging of a First Information Report against him.

14. It is submitted on behalf of the petitioner that his admission to the BTC Training Course, 2010 was granted on the basis of duly obtained academic qualifications, namely, Purva Madhyama from Sampurnanand Sanskrit Vishwavidyalaya (2001), Uttar Madhyama from the U.P. Secondary Sanskrit Education Board, Lucknow, and Shastri degree (2009) from Sampurnanand Sanskrit Vishwavidyalaya.

15. It is further contended that none of the aforesaid certificates or mark sheets have ever been alleged to be forged, fabricated, or otherwise tainted with any discrepancy. Even the impugned order is conspicuously silent in this regard and does not record any adverse finding qua the genuineness of these foundational qualifications.

16. In such circumstances, the very substratum of the petitioner's eligibility and induction into the BTC Training Course remains unimpeached, and in the absence of any finding discrediting the said qualifications, the impugned action stands vitiated in law and is liable to be set aside.

17. It is submitted on behalf of the petitioner that the impugned order proceeds on an erroneous and wholly misconceived premise by placing reliance upon an alleged discrepancy in the date of birth recorded in a High School Certificate of the year 1998, wherein the date of birth is mentioned as 02.07.1984, as against the date recorded in the Purva Madhyama certificate as 07.07.1987.

18. It is vehemently contended that the aforesaid High School Certificate has neither been relied upon nor ever produced by the petitioner at any stage. The same was not utilized for seeking admission to the BTC Training Course, 2010, nor was it furnished at the time of appointment. No benefit, whatsoever, has been derived by the petitioner on the basis of the said certificate at any point in time.

19. In such circumstances, the reliance placed upon a document which neither forms part of the petitioner's record nor has been used by him for any official purpose is wholly unjustified and legally unsustainable. The impugned order, to the extent it is founded upon such extraneous and irrelevant consideration, stands vitiated in law and is liable to be set aside.

20. It is submitted on behalf of the petitioner that there is no allegation, much less any finding, that his appointment was procured by fraud or on the basis of any forged or fabricated mark sheet.

21. It is further contended that the petitioner's appointment is founded upon his Purva Madhyama qualification (2001), wherein his date of birth is recorded as 07.07.1987. On the strength of the said qualification, the petitioner duly pursued and obtained Uttar Madhyama and Shastri qualifications, thereafter successfully completed the BTC training in the year 2012 and qualified the U.P. Teacher Eligibility Test (UP-TET) in 2013.

22. It is emphatically urged that all the aforesaid certificates and mark sheets are genuine and have never been questioned or discredited by the respondents. In the absence of any allegation of fraud, misrepresentation, or fabrication, there existed no justifiable basis for passing the impugned order.

23. Accordingly, the impugned action, being arbitrary, unfounded, and contrary to settled principles of law, is liable to be set aside.

24. The petitioner has placed reliance upon the judgment rendered in Kavita Kuril vs. State of U.P. and others, reported in 2023 (12) ADJ 571, to contend that the date of birth recorded in the High School mark sheet is to be treated as final and determinative, and the same forms the basis for its entry in the service book.

25. Building upon the said proposition, it has been urged that the date of birth of the petitioner, as reflected in Purva Madhyama mark sheet of the year 2001, i.e., 07.07.1987, deserves to be accepted for all intents and purposes. It is, thus, submitted that once such date of birth has consistently formed the foundation of the petitioner's educational and service records, any discrepancy in other certificates cannot be made a ground to sustain the impugned order.

26. In essence, the argument advanced is that in the absence of any allegation of fraud or manipulation, and where the date of birth has been uniformly acted upon by the authorities themselves, the same attains finality and cannot be unsettled to the detriment of the petitioner. Consequently, the impugned action, being founded merely upon a variance in date of birth in different certificates, is liable to be held unsustainable in the eyes of law.

27. Placing reliance upon the judgments rendered in Sheoraj Singh vs. State of U.P. and others (Writ-A No. 35397 of 2012, decided on 27.08.2012) and Kamla Kant Yadav vs. State of U.P. and others (Writ-A No. 10431 of 2019, decided on 06.02.2023), learned counsel for the petitioner has endeavoured to contend that even in cases where there exists a discrepancy in the date of birth recorded in two High School mark sheets, such discrepancy by itself would not vitiate the appointment, provided the certificate relied upon for securing appointment is genuine and not tainted by fraud or fabrication.

28. He submits that, where a candidate has appeared in the High School examination more than once and different mark sheets reflect different dates of birth, the mere non-disclosure of one such mark sheet would not ipso facto amount to fraud or misconduct, so long as the mark sheet relied upon for appointment is a valid and genuine document. The Hon^{ble} Court, in the said cases, has clearly held that unless it is established that the certificate in question is forged or fabricated, or that the discrepancy has conferred an undue advantage upon the candidate, such as rendering him eligible despite being otherwise ineligible, the appointment cannot be annulled merely on the ground of variance in the date of birth.

29. He further submits that, where, on both the dates of birth, the candidate would not fall within the category of being underage or otherwise ineligible, the element of deceit or prejudice to the employer is conspicuously absent. In such circumstances, the act cannot be construed as misconduct warranting termination.

30. Learned counsel for the petitioner has further contended that the impugned order has been passed in complete disregard of the procedure prescribed under the Rules, 1999, inasmuch as no proper or detailed inquiry, as mandatorily required, has been conducted prior to taking the impugned action. It is urged that the absence of such an inquiry vitiates the entire decision-making process, rendering the impugned order wholly arbitrary and in flagrant violation of the principles of natural justice.

31. It has been further submitted that the educational certificate of Purva Madhyama issued by Sampooranand Sanskrit Vishwavidyalaya in the year 2001 continues to hold the field and has neither been cancelled nor declared invalid by any competent authority. On the strength of the said certificate, the petitioner has admittedly acquired further qualifications, namely Uttar Madhyama, Shastri degree, and has also secured admission to the BTC training course, all of which have been accepted by the concerned authorities at the relevant point of time.

32. In such circumstances, it is contended that once the foundational certificate remains intact and has been consistently acted upon by the respondents themselves, no adverse inference of fraud or misrepresentation can be drawn against the petitioner. The allegation of fraud, in the absence of any cogent material or a duly conducted inquiry culminating in a definitive finding, cannot be sustained in law.

33. Thus, it is urged that the impugned orders, having been passed without adherence to the prescribed procedure and in violation of the principles of natural justice, coupled with the absence of any legally sustainable finding of fraud, are liable to be set aside.

34. Per contra, learned counsel appearing for the respondent□District Basic Education Officer has submitted that the impugned action is fully justified and has been taken upon due consideration of the material brought on record during the course of inquiry.

35. It is contended that pursuant to a complaint dated 10.04.2019, an inquiry was instituted, culminating in a report dated 18.06.2019 submitted by the Inquiry Officer. As per the said report, the scholar register pertaining to Class VIII, bearing Registration No. 2188 of the session 1994-95, records that the petitioner passed Class VIII in the year 1996, wherein the date of birth is entered as 02.07.1984. Further, the application form submitted by the petitioner for admission to Class IX in National Inter College also reflects the date of birth as 02.07.1984. It is further pointed out that the High School records, including the relevant gazette notification, similarly indicate the date of birth of the petitioner as 02.07.1984.

36. On the strength of the aforesaid material, it is argued that the petitioner was fully aware of the earlier recorded date of birth, yet deliberately withheld the said information and instead relied upon the Purva Madhyama certificate reflecting a different date of birth. Such non-disclosure, according to the respondents, is not a mere discrepancy but a conscious suppression of material facts, which goes to the root of the matter.

37. It is thus submitted that the act of the petitioner in seeking appointment on the basis of a certificate reflecting a different date of birth, without disclosing the existence of prior records to the contrary, clearly amounts to misconduct. The element of deliberate concealment disentitles the petitioner from any equitable relief under writ jurisdiction.

38. In view thereof, it is urged that the impugned orders, having been passed on the basis of a duly conducted inquiry and supported by documentary evidence, do not suffer from any illegality or infirmity warranting interference by this Court.

39. Learned counsel for the respondent further contends that it is a settled proposition of law that in cases involving concealment of material facts or fraud, the requirement of conducting a detailed inquiry or affording an elaborate opportunity of hearing stands considerably diluted. It is urged that where the foundational facts are borne out from undisputed documentary evidence, the principles of natural justice cannot be stretched to an extent so as to defeat the ends of justice.

40. It has been further submitted that, notwithstanding the aforesaid legal position, the petitioner was, in fact, afforded adequate opportunities to explain his stand. As is evident from the impugned order itself, repeated notices were issued calling upon the petitioner to furnish an explanation with regard to the non-disclosure of earlier certificates reflecting a different date of birth. However, the petitioner failed to furnish any plausible or satisfactory explanation for such non-disclosure.

41. In such circumstances, it is contended that the plea of violation of principles of natural justice is wholly misconceived and untenable. The conduct of the petitioner, in deliberately withholding material information despite being afforded sufficient opportunity, clearly disentitles him from invoking the equitable jurisdiction of this Court.

42. Accordingly, it is urged that the impugned order, having been passed after due consideration of the available material and after affording reasonable opportunity to the petitioner, does not suffer from any procedural impropriety or legal infirmity warranting interference.

43. Heard learned counsel for the parties at considerable length and perused the entire material available on record.

44. At the outset, this Court is constrained to observe that the edifice of the respondents' case rests upon the solitary circumstance of a divergence in the dates of birth as reflected in different educational records of the petitioner. However, a mere discrepancy, bereft of any attendant element of deceit, cannot, by any judicially accepted standard, be elevated to the pedestal of fraud or wilful misrepresentation.

45. Fraud, it is trite, is not to be presumed; it must be pleaded with specificity and established by cogent and unimpeachable evidence. The record, in the present case, is conspicuously silent on any material which may evince a deliberate design on the part of the petitioner to secure an undue or unwarranted advantage by projecting a particular date of birth. The certificates relied upon by the petitioner are not alleged to be forged, fabricated, or spurious; rather, they are documents issued by competent authorities and continue to subsist in the eyes of law.

46. The gravamen of the allegation is non-disclosure of certain earlier certificates reflecting a different date of birth. Yet, non-disclosure, to assume the character of misconduct, must be shown to be purposeful, calculated, and actuated by a discernible intent to deceive. In the absence of such mens rea, the omission remains, at best, an irregularity and not a culpable act warranting the drastic consequence of annulment of appointment.

47. What further dislodges the respondents' case is the incontrovertible position that, even if the date of birth as recorded in the High School certificate is accepted, the petitioner would nonetheless remain within the bounds of eligibility for appointment to the post in question. Thus, the foundational requirement of gain or advantage an indispensable concomitant of fraud is wholly absent. The alleged discrepancy, therefore, does not translate into any prejudice either to the employer or to competing candidates.

48. This Court cannot remain oblivious to the well-settled judicial pronouncements in Sheoraj Singh (supra), wherein it has been unequivocally held that mere variance in dates of birth across certificates, in the absence of forgery or demonstrable advantage, does not ipso facto constitute misconduct. The ratio laid down therein lends authoritative support to the proposition that authenticity of the document and absence of undue benefit are determinative factors.

49. However, upon a careful consideration of the present factual matrix, this Court finds that the applicability of the aforesaid judgments is contingent upon certain foundational facts being satisfied. The protection extended in the said cases is predicated upon the existence of two genuine High School mark sheets issued by the same examining body, coupled with the absence of any allegation of fraud and absence of any consequential advantage gained by the candidate.

50. If, in the present case, the discrepancy pertains not merely to two High School certificates but extends to different classes of certificates, or where the foundational document forming the basis of appointment itself is under a cloud, the ratio of the aforesaid judgments may not be attracted in its full rigour.

51. Nevertheless, if it is demonstrated that the petitioner has relied upon a bona fide and genuine certificate, that no element of forgery or fabrication is involved, and that irrespective of the differing dates of birth the petitioner remained eligible for appointment, then the principle laid down in the aforesaid judgments would lend considerable support to the petitioner's case.

52. Thus, the issue is not merely of discrepancy in date of birth, but of the nature of the document relied upon, the existence or absence of fraudulent intent, and the question whether any undue advantage has been derived. The answer to these factors would ultimately determine the applicability of the law laid down in the aforesaid decisions.

53. However, the matter does not end merely upon noticing non-disclosure. The Court is equally bound to examine whether such omission has, in fact, resulted in any prejudice to the employer or conferred any undue advantage upon the petitioner. In the present case, it is not in dispute that both the certificates relied upon by the parties are genuine and issued by competent authorities, and there is no allegation of fabrication or manipulation. More importantly, the difference in the dates of birth reflected therein has not been shown to have afforded any advantage to the petitioner, either in terms of eligibility, age relaxation, or otherwise.

54. It is well settled that while suppression of a material fact may, in given circumstances, vitiate an appointment, such principle cannot be applied in a mechanical or pedantic manner. The doctrine of proportionality and the requirement of absence of prejudice must guide the exercise of judicial review. Where the discrepancy is neither deliberate so as to secure an unfair benefit nor has it resulted in distortion of the selection process, the extreme consequence of cancellation of appointment would be wholly disproportionate.

55. In the considered opinion of this Court, the omission on the part of the petitioner to disclose the earlier certificate, though not to be appreciated, does not rise to the level of a culpable suppression so as to invalidate the appointment, particularly when no tangible advantage has accrued and the selection process remains unaffected. To visit the petitioner with the drastic consequence of termination in such circumstances would be unjust and inequitable.

56. Accordingly, this Court holds that the impugned action of the respondents in cancelling the appointment of the petitioner cannot be sustained in the eyes of law and is liable to be set aside. The writ petition, therefore, deserves to be allowed.

57. The ratio decidendi of the judgment rendered in Kavita Kuril vs. State of U.P. and others, 2023 (12) ADJ 571, is that the date of birth recorded in the High School certificate is to be treated as the primary and conclusive proof of age, particularly when the same has been consistently relied upon by the authorities for the purposes of service records. The Court, in the said case, held that once the date of birth has been duly entered in the service book on the basis of such foundational document and there is no allegation of fraud, misrepresentation, or fabrication, the same cannot be lightly altered or disregarded on the basis of discrepancies in other educational certificates.

58. Applying the aforesaid principle to the facts of the present case, this Court finds that the reliance placed by the petitioner upon the said judgment is of limited assistance. The distinguishing feature lies in the nature of the certificates in question. In the case at hand, the petitioner seeks to place primacy not on the High School certificate, but on the Madhyama and Purva Madhyama mark sheets of the year 2001, to assert the date of birth as 07.07.1987.

59. It is trite that the High School certificate, being the earliest public document issued by a recognized Board, ordinarily carries greater evidentiary value in determination of date of birth. The ratio in Kavita Kuril (supra) is premised upon this very principle. However, in the present factual matrix, the petitioner has not demonstrated that the said date of birth, as claimed, is borne out from the High School certificate or that the same formed the basis of initial entry in service records without dispute.

60. Moreover, where there exists a discrepancy in foundational documents themselves, the matter assumes a different complexion. In such a situation, the benefit of the principle laid down in the aforesaid judgment cannot be extended in a mechanical manner, particularly when the authenticity and primacy of the document relied upon by the petitioner is itself in question.

61. Accordingly, this Court is of the considered opinion that the ratio of the judgment in Kavita Kuril (supra), though well-settled, does not squarely apply to the facts of the present case, and the petitioner cannot derive any substantial benefit therefrom.

62. Tested on the anvil of the aforesaid principles, the impugned action of the respondents appears to be founded more on suspicion than on substantiated proof. The inference of fraud, which entails grave civil consequences, cannot be drawn on the basis of equivocal circumstances or mere inconsistencies in record, howsoever inconvenient they may appear.

63. In sum, this Court is of the considered and unequivocal opinion that the respondents have failed to establish any element of fraud, misrepresentation, or deliberate concealment on the part of the petitioner. The discrepancy in the date of birth, in the factual conspectus of the present case, does not rise to the level of culpability so as to justify the extreme measure of cancellation of appointment.

64. An analogous issue fell for consideration before this Court in Ashok Kumar Singh vs. State of U.P. and others (Writ-A No. 1064 of 2021, decided on 22.07.2024), wherein the appointment of the petitioner therein came to be annulled on the premise that he had submitted a B.Ed. mark sheet, which, though not an essential qualification for the post of Assistant Teacher, was only of a preferential nature. The learned Single Judge, upon finding that the petitioner had failed to furnish any plausible explanation despite due opportunity, proceeded to hold that the submission of such mark sheet amounted to securing public employment on the basis of a false document, thereby rendering the initial appointment void ab initio.

65. However, the aforesaid judgment was carried in appeal, and the Division Bench, in Special Appeal No. 987 of 2024, decided on 25.02.2025, set aside the order of the learned Single Judge. While the Division Bench observed that the reasoning adopted by the learned Single Judge was, in abstraction, well-founded, it nonetheless proceeded to hold that the foundational element of fraud was not substantiated on the facts of the case.

66. The Division Bench, in a nuanced and legally calibrated exposition, held that mere submission of a higher or additional qualification, which is neither essential nor shown to have been relied upon by the selection committee in conferring appointment, would not ipso facto establish fraud. It was further observed that the records did not demonstrate that the petitioner had secured any undue advantage on account of the B.Ed. qualification, nor was there any material to indicate that such qualification was manipulated or fabricated.

67. The Court emphasized that fraud, being a serious imputation carrying grave civil consequences, must be predicated upon clear evidence of deception coupled with resultant gain. In absence of any such demonstrable nexus between the alleged misrepresentation and the conferment of appointment, the charge of fraud was held to be unsustainable.
