68. The ratio which unmistakably emanates from the aforesaid Division Bench judgment is that unless it is shown that the alleged misrepresentation had a direct bearing on the selection process or conferred a tangible advantage upon the candidate, the extreme consequence of nullifying the appointment cannot be justified. Mere possession or disclosure of an additional qualification, particularly when it is neither essential nor acted upon, would not, in itself, vitiate the appointment.

69. The principle enunciated therein squarely fortifies the proposition that the sine qua non for sustaining an allegation of fraud is not merely the existence of an irregularity, but the presence of a deliberate design to secure an advantage which materially impacts the selection. In absence thereof, the action of the authorities in branding the appointment as void would not withstand judicial scrutiny.

70. So far as the issue pertaining to the discrepancy in the date of birth is concerned, and the question as to which certificate ought to be accorded primacy for the purposes of recording the date of birth, this Court finds that the same does not arise for substantive adjudication in the present lis.

71. A perusal of the impugned order reveals that no categorical or definitive finding has been recorded by the competent authority to the effect that the petitioner had deliberately relied upon the Madhyama certificate in substitution of the earlier High School certificate with a view to secure any undue benefit. There is a conspicuous absence of any conclusion that such reliance was actuated by a calculated intent to mislead or to gain an advantage in the matter of appointment.

72. In the absence of any such foundational finding, the mere existence of variance in the date of birth across different certificates pales into insignificance. The controversy, therefore, remains largely academic and does not have a determinative bearing on the core issue involved in the present case.

73. It is a settled principle that Courts do not adjudicate upon abstract or hypothetical questions which do not directly impact the lis. Since the respondents themselves have not returned any finding attributing motive or advantage to the petitioner on account of the alleged discrepancy, this Court finds no occasion to enter into an elaborate examination of the said issue.

74. Accordingly, no further observations are warranted on the aforesaid aspect.

75. In view of the aforesaid discussion, and upon an overall conspectus of the facts and the legal position governing the field, this Court finds that there is no categorical or substantiated allegation to the effect that the educational documents furnished by the petitioner before the respondents were forged, fabricated, or otherwise false in nature.

76. In absence of any such foundational infirmity, coupled with the consideration of the relevant statutory provisions and the authoritative pronouncements relied upon by learned counsel for the petitioner, the impugned action cannot be sustained in the eyes of law.

77. Accordingly, the writ petition deserves to be allowed, and is hereby, allowed.

78. The impugned order dated 27.06.2019, passed by the Basic Shiksha Adhikari, Mau, is hereby quashed.

79. The respondents are directed to permit the petitioner to resume/join his duties forthwith.

80. It is, however, made clear that since no interim order was operating in favour of the petitioner during the pendency of the writ petition, and the petitioner has admittedly not discharged any duties for the intervening period, he shall not be entitled to claim salary for the said period, in consonance with the well-settled principle of 'no work, no pay.'

81. It is further provided that in the event any of the documents, on the basis of which the petitioner has sought to sustain his claim, are subsequently found to be false, fabricated, or otherwise not genuine, it shall be open to the respondents to initiate appropriate proceedings against the petitioner, strictly in accordance with law.

Issue(s) for consideration

- (a) Whether the passing of an administrative order within 30 days satisfies the statute, or must the order be communicated to the institution within that timeframe to avert "deemed approval"?
- (b) Whether the post-selection procedural timeline is to submit papers within one week mandatory or directory?
- (c) Whether an institution's fair selection process can be vitiated if a nominee sent by the authorities participates in the committee, but the department later claims a lack of formal internal authorization?

Headnotes

A. Service Law – U.P. Recognized Basic Schools (Junior High School) Recruitment and Conditions of Service of Ministerial Staff and Group 'D' Employees Rules, 1984: Rules 14, 15, and 16 - The petitioner is Committee of Management of St. John's Girls Junior High School, Gorakhpur, a recognized, state-aided, minority institution. Staffing and ministerial recruitments are governed by the Rules, 1984. Seeking to fill a vacant post of Clerk, the Manager obtained formal permission from the District Basic Shiksha Adhikari (BSA), Gorakhpur, on 23.06.2016. The vacancy was subsequently advertised in two newspapers (Swatantra Janmitra and Swatantra Bharat) on 26.07.2016.

On 09.05.2017, the Management requested the BSA to nominate an expert/representative for the selection committee scheduled for 25.05.2017, as mandated by Rule 14. In response, Shri Jitendra Kumar Pandey (Principal, Rajkiya High School, Barigaon) attended, participated, and signed the selection minutes as the nominee. The committee unanimously selected Vikas Alexander for the post of Clerk. The selection documents were not transmitted within the standard one-week timeframe and were ultimately submitted and officially received by the BSA's office on 04.09.2017 (internally marked to a clerk on 06.06.2017).

On 07.10.2017, the institution received an order dated 28.09.2017, passed by the BSA, disapproving Alexander's appointment. The envelope revealed that the order was sent via registered post on 05.10.2017, at 6:37 p.m. The Management challenged this order, asserting that the 30-day statutory window for approval had lapsed, triggering a "deemed approval." (Para 43 to 50)

B. Acts done in substance in compliance with statutory requirements ought not to be invalidated on mere technical or procedural irregularities, particularly when no prejudice is shown to have been caused. The participation of the said nominee lends due legitimacy and transparency to the selection process, fulfilling the very object for which such nomination is contemplated under the Rules. (Para 51)

It is equally well settled that the candidate cannot be made to suffer for any alleged procedural lapse on the part of the authorities, particularly when the selection has otherwise been conducted fairly and in accordance with the prescribed procedure. Thus, in the absence of any allegation of mala fide, bias, or prejudice, and there being substantial compliance with the requirement of inclusion of the nominee, the disapproval of selection on this ground alone is arbitrary, unsustainable, and liable to be set aside. (Para 53, 54, 75)

Assuming, that there was any irregularity in the manner of nomination, the same would, at best, constitute an irregularity and not an illegality. The respondents cannot be allowed to approbate and reprobate by accepting the participation of the nominee during the selection process and subsequently questioning the same to defeat the selection. (Para 52, 74)

Where a request has been duly made by the Management for nomination of a representative, but the BSA either fails to nominate a specific individual or does not communicate the name of such nominee, the selection process cannot be rendered invalid on that ground alone. (Para 68, 72)

The first ground taken for disapproving the appointment of the said Clerk is that no specific nominee was indicated in the communication issued from the office of the BSA. However, it is an admitted position that Principal, Rajkiya High School, Barigaon, participated in the selection proceedings and duly signed the proceedings of the Selection Committee. Further objection that the District Basic Education Officer was not empowered to nominate Principal of Rajkiya High School, and that there existed no justification or occasion for such nomination has no legs to stand. (Para 55, 56, 69, 73)

C. Substantial justice ought not to be defeated on account of technicalities, particularly when the delay stands reasonably explained. The selection process had already been duly completed in a fair and transparent manner, and the delay in forwarding papers is a post-selection procedural lapse, which does not go to the root of the selection. No prejudice has been shown to have been caused to any party on account of the said delay. (Para 60, 61)

The second ground is that, although the selection to the post of Clerk was finalized on 25.05.2017, the provisions contained in Rule 15(3) and 15(4) of the Rules, 1984 mandate that the entire record of the selection proceedings be forwarded to the office of the BSA within a period of one week. However, in the present case, the said papers were transmitted only on 04.09.2017, after a considerable delay. The delay is neither deliberate nor fatal to the selection process. It stands duly explained on account of extraordinary and unavoidable circumstances, namely the severe flood situation prevailing in Gorakhpur during the relevant period, which disrupted normal administrative functioning. Such circumstances constitute a valid and sufficient cause, beyond the control of the institution. (Para 57, 58)

D. Procedural provisions relating to timelines are ordinarily directory in nature, unless the statute expressly provides consequences of non-compliance. Rule 15(3) and (4) of the Rules, 1984, though prescribing a time frame, do not stipulate that delay in submission of papers would automatically vitiate the entire selection process. Therefore, the said provision cannot be construed as mandatory so as to nullify an otherwise valid selection. (Para 59)

E. Provisions contained in Rule 15(5) of the Rules, 1984, clearly stipulate that if no communication regarding approval or disapproval is made within 30 days from the date of receipt of the selection papers, the selection shall be deemed to have been approved. The consequence that necessarily follows is that the selection in question stood deemed to have been approved upon expiry of the prescribed period. (Para 65)

Even if, the date of receipt is taken to be 06.09.2017, the statutory period of 30 days prescribed under the Rules would expire on 05.10.2017. In the present case, the impugned order was communicated to the petitioner only on 07.10.2017, i.e., beyond the stipulated period. Accordingly, the subsequent communication of the impugned order, having been made beyond the statutory period, is rendered inconsequential in the eyes of law, and the selection of the petitioner, must be held to have attained finality by virtue of deemed approval. (Para 64, 66)

F. It is a settled principle of law that once a candidate has participated in the selection process without demur, he/she is estopped from subsequently challenging the same on grounds which were available at an earlier point of time. (Para 77)

As far as the contention raised regarding non-publication of the advertisement in two newspapers is concerned, the same is wholly untenable and devoid of merit. The records placed before this Court unequivocally establish that the advertisement was, in fact, duly published in two widely circulated newspapers, thereby satisfying the prescribed requirement. (Para 76)

G. Objections relating to maintainability, particularly on the ground of locus standi, ought to be raised at the earliest possible opportunity. Permitting such an objection to be entertained belatedly would not only defeat the cause of substantive justice but would also result in unnecessary protraction of proceedings that have already attained considerable maturity before the Court. The belated plea of lack of locus standi is clearly an afterthought and is liable to be rejected. (Para 80, 81, 82)

Impugned order dated 28.09.2017 is quashed. Writ petition allowed. (E-4)

Appearances for Parties

For Petitioner(s): A.D. Saunders

For Respondent(s): Ashish Kumar (Nagvanshi), Ajay Kumar Mishra, C.S.C.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Manju Rani Chauhan, J.)

1. Heard Mr. A. D. Saunders, learned counsel for the petitioner, Mr. Ashish Kumar (Nagvanshi), learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel and Mr. Shailendra Singh, learned Standing Counsel for the State-respondents as well as perused the records.

2. This writ petition has been filed challenging the order dated 28.09.2017 passed by the District Basic Shiksha Adhikari, Gorakhpur, disapproving the appointment on the post of Clerk and a further prayer to direct the District Basic Shiksha Adhikari to pass necessary orders for the payment of salary to the selected candidate.

3. Placing the brief facts of the case, learned counsel for the petitioner submits that the petitioner is the Committee of Management of St. John's Girls Junior High School, which is a recognized, aided, and minority institution (hereinafter referred to as 'the institution'). Several vacancies, including one for the post of Clerk, existed in the said institution. The selection for the post of Clerk in the institution is governed by the Uttar Pradesh Recognized Basic Schools (Junior High Schools) (Recruitment and Conditions of Service of Ministerial Staff and Group D Employees) Rules, 1984 (hereinafter referred to as 'the Rules of 1984').

4. In order to advertise the vacant posts, including that of Clerk, the Manager of the institution sought permission from the District Basic Shiksha Adhikari for advertising the posts. The District Basic Shiksha Adhikari, Gorakhpur, by letter dated 23.06.2016, granted permission to advertise all the posts, including the post of Clerk. Pursuant to this, the Manager of the institution advertised the posts, including the post of Clerk, in two newspapers: Swatantra Jantmitra and Swatantra Bharat, dated 26.07.2016.

5. Pursuant to the aforesaid advertisement, a large number of applications were received and accordingly, interview letters dated 09.05.2017 were issued to all eligible candidates, fixing 25.05.2017 as the date for the interview before the selection committee.

6. As per Rule 14 of the Rules of 1984, the selection committee was required to be constituted in such a manner that one member would be nominated by the District Basic Shiksha Adhikari, Gorakhpur. Accordingly, by letter dated 09.05.2017, the Manager requested the District Basic Shiksha Adhikari, Gorakhpur, to nominate one representative for constituting the selection committee, which was scheduled on 25.05.2017. In response, the District Basic Shiksha Adhikari nominated and sent Shri Jitendra Kumar Pandey, Principal of Rajkiya High School Barigaon, Belghat, Gorakhpur, as the expert for the selection committee.

7. On 25.05.2017, the selection committee convened and selected Vikas Alexander for the post of Clerk. The Manager of the institution submitted all the relevant documents related to the selection process to the office of the Basic Shiksha Adhikari, Gorakhpur, on 04.09.2017, and these documents were received in his office on the same day, i.e., 04.09.2017.

8. After receiving all the documents along with the covering letter dated 04.09.2017, the Basic Shiksha Adhikari marked the letter to Shri Dinesh of his office on 06.09.2017. In the letter dated 04.09.2017, the Manager also informed about the floods in Gorakhpur, explaining that the documents could not be filed within the prescribed time due to delays caused by the situation of floods.

9. On 07.10.2017, the institution received a registered post containing a copy of the order dated 28.09.2017, passed by the Basic Shiksha Adhikari, disapproving the selection of Vikas Alexander as Clerk. According to the envelope, the said letter was posted on 05.10.2017 at 06:37 p.m. and received by the institution on 07.10.2017. Accordingly, the petitioner has challenged the aforesaid order.

10. Learned counsel for the petitioner submits that there was a delay in submitting the papers of Vikas Alexander in the office of the Basic Shiksha Adhikari, which has been explained in the covering letter dated 04.09.2017. The delay was caused by the floods in Gorakhpur, which prevented the timely filing of the papers related to the selection process.

11. Learned counsel for the petitioner further submits that the institution received the impugned order dated 28.09.2017, which disapproved the selection of Vikas Alexander as Clerk in the institution. The order also mentioned that the papers be returned and issued a direction to initiate fresh proceedings for selection, after obtaining approval for publishing notices declaring the vacancies for the post of Clerk.

12. The Manager, by her letter dated 26.10.2017 addressed to the Basic Shiksha Adhikari, Gorakhpur, claimed that there was deemed approval, as no order from the Basic Shiksha Adhikari had been received within the prescribed period of thirty days, as stipulated under Rule 15(5)(iii) of the Rules of 1984. In response to the aforesaid letter, the Basic Shiksha Adhikari informed the Manager of the institution that, as per the order dated 28.09.2017, the papers related to the selection process had been returned with directions to initiate fresh selection proceedings.

13. The Manager of the institution again by letter dated 06.11.2017, reiterated the claim of deemed approval; however, in response, the Basic Shiksha Adhikari issued a letter dated 10.11.2017, reiterating his stand and relying upon the impugned order dated 28.09.2017.

14. Learned counsel for the petitioner has challenged the impugned order dated 28.09.2017 on the ground that as per the Recruitment and Conditions of Service of Ministerial Staff and Group-D employees of Recognized Basic Schools, governed by Rule 1984, the District Basic Education Officer is required to communicate the decision within one month of receiving the relevant papers, failing which there shall be deemed approval, accordingly, the impugned order is illegal.

15. He further submits that the papers relating to the selection proceedings for the post of Clerk were submitted to the office of the Basic Shiksha Adhikari on 04.09.2017, and prior to 07.10.2017, no information was received regarding the order dated 28.09.2017 disapproving the appointment of Vikas Alexander to the post of Clerk.

16. He further submits that though the impugned order is stated to have been passed on 28.09.2017 and posted on 05.10.2017, i.e., after a delay of one week, there is no explanation as to why the Basic Shiksha Adhikari withheld the impugned order if it had indeed been passed on 28.09.2017.

17. The aforesaid impugned order was posted by the Basic Shiksha Adhikari on 05.10.2017 at 06:37 p.m., seemingly hurriedly, in an attempt to defeat the provisions of Rule 15(5)(iii) of the Rules of 1984, which stipulates deemed approval.

18. The envelope containing the impugned order dated 28.09.2017 was received by the institution on 07.10.2017. Since the papers were submitted on 04.09.2017 and the thirty-day period expired on 03.10.2017, learned counsel for the petitioner submits that under Rule 15(5)(iii) of the 1984 Rules, deemed approval took effect on 04.10.2017. Consequently, the impugned order became non-est and infructuous, as no further action could be taken after the deemed approval.

19. It is further submitted that the passing of the order dated 28.09.2017 by the Basic Shiksha Adhikari is irrelevant, as it requires further steps to communicate the order within 30 days. While the impugned order may have been passed on 28.09.2017 within the thirty-day period, it was communicated after the expiration of that period, thereby triggering the provision of deemed approval.

20. He further submits that in respect of teachers, there exists a rule known as The U.P. Recognized Basic School (Junior High School) (Recruitment and Conditions of Service of Teachers) Rules, 1978 (hereinafter referred to as the 'Rules of 1978'). These rules also provide for deemed approval. Rule 10(5)(iii) of the Rules of 1978 is analogous to Rule 15(5)(iii) of the 1984 Rules. Rule 10(5)(iii) is quoted herein for ready reference:-

"If the District Basic Education Officer does not communicate his decision within one month from the date of receipt of papers under clause (iv), he shall be deemed to have accord approval to be recommendation made by the Selection Committee."

21. Learned counsel for the petitioner has relied upon the judgment of this Court, in the case of Sant Ram v. State of U.P. and others¹, wherein the Co-ordinate Bench of this Court considered the provisions of Rule 10(5)(iii) of the 1978 Rules and held that if the order is not communicated within thirty days from the receipt of the papers regarding the selection process, it would result in deemed approval.

22. He has also relied upon the case of Sanjay Kumar Singh Vs. State of U.P. and others², wherein the same proposition of law has been held.

23. Thus, the petitioner submits that, in view of the deemed approval, the impugned order is ante-dated, becomes non-est. The petitioner has specifically stated in paragraph 13 of the writ petition that the impugned order is ante-dated. This fact has not been denied in the counter-affidavit filed by the State. The reply to paragraph 13 of the writ petition is provided in paragraph 12 of the counter-affidavit. Consequently, the petitioner is entitled to receive salary, as his appointment has been ratified by deemed approval.

24. The Selection Committee is constituted under Rule 14 of the 1984 Rules. The Manager of the institution requested the Basic Shiksha Adhikari to send a nominee to be a member of the Selection Committee. On 25.05.2017, one Sri Jitendra Kumar Pandey appeared as the nominee of the Basic Shiksha Adhikari, and the Principal and Manager of the institution assumed that Sri Jitendra Kumar Pandey, Principal of Rajkiya High School Barigaon, Belghat, Gorakhpur, was the nominee of the Basic Shiksha Adhikari. Sri Jitendra Kumar Pandey participated in the selection process, and the selection of Vikas Alexander on the post of Clerk was unanimously accepted, with the papers subsequently forwarded. However, the impugned order dated 28.09.2017 states that no record exists in the office of the Basic Shiksha Adhikari nominating Sri Jitendra Kumar Pandey as its nominee. In other words, the Basic Shiksha Adhikari did not officially appoint a nominee to the Selection Committee, thereby rendering the selection process invalid and contrary to law.

25. However, even assuming, without conceding, that the Basic Shiksha Adhikari did not send a nominee to the Selection Committee, such an omission does not vitiate the selection process. This contention is supported by the judgment in Dhirendra Pratap Singh v. State of U.P. and others³, where this Court held that the absence of a nominee from the District Basic Education Officer does not invalidate the selection process. The Committee of Management can proceed with the selection, and the District Basic Education Officer is required to formally approve the appointment of the selected candidate after one month from the receipt of the papers for approval. This judgment is fully applicable to the facts and circumstances of the present case.

26. Even if it is presumed that Sri Jitendra Kumar Pandey participated as a nominee of the Basic Shiksha Adhikari, the selection process was unanimously decided by the Principal and the Manager, who were members of the Selection Committee. Even if the participation of Sri Jitendra Kumar Pandey is disregarded, it would not vitiate the selection process, regardless of whether he was a nominee of the Basic Shiksha Adhikari or not.

27. As demonstrated above, the papers related to the selection process were submitted on 04.09.2017. The Basic Shiksha Adhikari, in his internal administrative capacity, marked the case to Sri Dinesh on 06.09.2017. However, it is irrelevant when the Basic Shiksha Adhikari took steps in his administrative capacity, as the papers were received in the office of the Basic Shiksha Adhikari, not personally by him. Even assuming, without conceding, that the papers were received by the Basic Shiksha Adhikari on 06.09.2017, the thirty day period expired on 05.10.2017. It is evident that the Basic Shiksha Adhikari hurriedly posted the impugned order on 05.10.2017 at 6:37 P.M. Even if this is accepted, the thirty-day period had already expired on 05.10.2017, and the order was communicated on 07.10.2017, i.e., after the thirty-day period, thereby making the selection of Vikas Alexander perfected by deemed approval prior to the communication of the order.

28. The impugned order further mentions a delay in submitting the papers related to the selection process, which had already been explained in the letter dated 04.09.2017, citing the floods in Gorakhpur as the cause of the delay. However, the Basic Shiksha Adhikari has not addressed this explanation and has instead made a mere bald assertion that there was a delay in receiving the papers.

29. On the other hand, learned counsel for the respondents submits that the Manager of the institution submitted an application dated 08.04.2016 before the District Basic Education Officer (Respondent No. 2) seeking permission to fill up the post of Clerk. The said permission was eventually accorded by Respondent No. 2 vide order dated 23.06.2018.

30. In the interregnum, the post of Clerk (Class III) was advertised in two widely circulated newspapers on 26.07.2016. Subsequently, the Manager addressed a communication dated 09.05.2017 to the District Basic Education Officer requesting nomination of an authorized representative to participate in the selection process, as mandated under law. The interviews were conducted on 25.05.2017, and the selection proceedings were thereafter placed before the Committee of Management. The Committee forwarded the entire record to the District Basic Education Officer for approval on 04.09.2017, which was duly received in the office of Respondent No. 2 on 06.09.2017.

31. Upon due consideration, the District Basic Education Officer, by a reasoned order dated 28.09.2017, declined to accord approval to the appointment of one Vikas Alexander, inter alia, on the ground that the selection had been conducted by an unlawfully constituted Selection Committee, in flagrant violation of Rules 14, 15, and 16 of the U.P. Recognized Basic Schools (Junior High School) Recruitment and Conditions of Service of Ministerial Staff and Group D Employees Rules, 1984.

32. The said order dated 28.09.2017 is legally sound, well-reasoned, and in strict conformity with the applicable statutory provisions, warranting no interference.

33. Learned counsel for the respondents has also raised a preliminary objection with regard to the maintainability of the present petition, contending that the same has been instituted at the behest of a member of the Committee of Management and is, therefore, not maintainable in law. On this ground alone, the writ petition is liable to be dismissed.

34. He further submits that the Committee of Management lacks locus standi to institute the present writ petition, inasmuch as the challenge is directed against the order rejecting approval of the appointment of one Vikas Alexander, who has not been impleaded as a petitioner in the present proceedings. Consequently, the Committee of Management cannot be said to be an aggrieved party competent to invoke the writ jurisdiction of this Hon^{ble} Court.

35. Learned counsel for the respondents has further raised an objection that the advertisement pertaining to the selection was not published in two widely circulated newspapers, as mandated. Consequently, the same is in clear violation of Rule 13(1) of the Rules, 1984.

36. Learned counsel for the respondents has further raised an objection regarding the improper constitution of the Selection Committee. It is contended that, under the relevant provisions of the Rules, 1984, one member of the Selection Committee is required to be nominated by the District Basic Education Officer. However, in the present case, the third member was not nominated by the District Basic Education Officer but was instead chosen by the Selection Committee itself, which is clearly impermissible in law.

37. It has also been submitted that the Principal of Government High School, Barigaon, Bela Ghat, Gorakhpur, is neither under the administrative control nor the supervisory jurisdiction of the District Basic Education Officer, Gorakhpur. Consequently, such person could not have been validly nominated by the District Basic Education Officer to act as a member of the Selection Committee for the purposes of the selection in question.

38. It is also an undisputed fact that the Selection Committee selected Vikas Alexander for the post of Clerk in its proceedings dated 25.05.2017; however, the relevant papers were forwarded only on 04.09.2017, after an inordinate delay of three months and ten days, which is in clear contravention of Rule 15(4) of the Rules, 1984.

39. Accordingly, the impugned order dated 28.11.2019 has been passed strictly in accordance with the provisions of the Rules, 1984, particularly Rule 15(5)(iii) thereof.

40. Thus, the entire selection process conducted by the Selection Committee and the Committee of Management stands vitiated, having been undertaken in flagrant violation of Rules 14, 15, 16, as well as Rule 13(1) of the Rules, 1984. Consequently, the present writ petition is devoid of merit and is liable to be dismissed.

41. The Court called upon the parties and perused the records. The impugned order has been passed primarily on the grounds that the advertisement was not published in widely circulated newspapers; that no nominee was deputed by the District Basic Education Officer to constitute the Selection Committee for the post in question; and further, that the proposal for approval was forwarded after an inordinate delay.

42. In order to effectively adjudicate upon the controversy involved in the present case, it would be apposite to advert to the relevant statutory provisions governing the field, namely, the provisions contained under the Uttar Pradesh Recognized Basic Schools (Junior High School) (Recruitment and Conditions of Service of Ministerial Staff and Group 'D' Employees) Rules, 1984, which are extracted hereinbelow:-

“13. Advertisement of vacancy. –

(1) No vacancy shall be filled, except after its advertisement in at least one newspaper having adequate circulation in the locality and the intimation of such vacancy to the District Basic Education Officer.

14. Selection Committee. - The Management shall constitute a selection committee consisting of :-

(1) Manager.

(2) Headmaster of the recognised school in which the appointment is to be made.

(3) A specialist nominated by the District Basic Education Officer who will be from amongst minority in respect of a school established and administered by a minority or from amongst Scheduled Castes in respect of any other school.

15. Procedure for selection. –

(5) (iii) If the District Basic Education Officer does not communicate his decision within one month from the date of receipt of the papers under clause (4), he shall be deemed to have accorded approval to the recommendations made by the Selection Committee.”

43. The undisputed facts of the present case are that several vacancies existed in the institution, including one post of Clerk. In this regard, prior permission was duly sought from the Basic Shiksha Adhikari for initiating the process of recruitment by way of advertisement.

44. Pursuant to the permission so granted, the vacancies, including the post of Clerk, were duly advertised in two widely circulated newspapers, namely, Swatantra Janmitra and Swatantra Bharat, both dated 26.07.2016. Thereafter, 25.05.2017 was fixed as the date for conducting interviews before the duly constituted Selection Committee.

45. Thereafter, the Manager of the institution, vide communication dated 09.05.2017 addressed to the Basic Shiksha Adhikari, requested for deputation of his nominee to serve as a member of the Selection Committee to be constituted under Rule 14 of the Rules, 1984. Pursuant thereto, one Shri Jitendra Kumar Pandey, Principal, Rajkiya High School, Barigaon Bela Ghat, Gorakhpur, participated in the selection proceedings, claiming to be the nominee of the Basic Shiksha Adhikari.

46. Subsequently, one Shri Vikas Alexander came to be unanimously selected for appointment on the post of Clerk on 25.05.2017. Thereafter, on 04.09.2017, the Manager of the institution forwarded the entire record pertaining to the selection process to the office of the Basic Shiksha Adhikari under a covering letter, which was received in the said office on the same day.

47. The Basic Shiksha Adhikari, on 06.09.2017, marked the file to one Dinesh through internal administrative arrangement for necessary examination. The delay in submission of the papers was sought to be explained on account of the flood situation prevailing in Gorakhpur at the relevant time.

48. Thereafter, the impugned order dated 28.09.2017 came to be passed by the Basic Shiksha Adhikari, whereby the selection of Shri Vikas Alexander to the post of Clerk in the institution was disapproved. The said order further directed that the entire record relating to the selection process be returned, with a direction to initiate fresh selection proceedings after obtaining prior approval for issuance of advertisement notifying the vacancy of Clerk.

49. At the outset, it is not in dispute that the Manager of the institution had duly requested the Basic Shiksha Adhikari to nominate his representative for inclusion in the Selection Committee, as mandated under Rule 14 of the Rules, 1984. In pursuance thereof, Shri Jitendra Kumar Pandey, Principal, Rajkiya High School, Barigaon Bela Ghat, Gorakhpur, in fact participated in the selection proceedings and duly appended his signatures on the proceedings of the Selection Committee.

50. Once a nominee, representing the office of the Basic Shiksha Adhikari, has in fact participated in the selection process without any demur, the objection that his name was not specifically mentioned in the communication, or that he was not formally authorized, is a hyper-technical plea which cannot be permitted to vitiate an otherwise valid selection.

51. It is a settled principle of law that acts done in substance in compliance with statutory requirements ought not to be invalidated on mere technical or procedural irregularities, particularly when no prejudice is shown to have been caused. The participation of the said nominee lends due legitimacy and transparency to the selection process, fulfilling the very object for which such nomination is contemplated under the Rules.

52. Furthermore, even assuming, without admitting, that there was any irregularity in the manner of nomination, the same would, at best, constitute an irregularity and not an illegality, especially when the authority itself permitted such participation and never objected to it at the relevant point of time. The respondents cannot be allowed to approbate and reprobate by accepting the participation of the nominee during the selection process and subsequently questioning the same to defeat the selection.

53. It is equally well settled that the candidate cannot be made to suffer for any alleged procedural lapse on the part of the authorities, particularly when the selection has otherwise been conducted fairly and in accordance with the prescribed procedure.

54. Thus, in the absence of any allegation of mala fide, bias, or prejudice, and there being substantial compliance with the requirement of inclusion of the nominee, the disapproval of selection on this ground alone is arbitrary, unsustainable, and liable to be set aside.

55. The first ground taken in the impugned order for disapproving the appointment of the said Clerk is that no specific nominee was indicated in the communication issued from the office of the Basic Shiksha Adhikari. However, it is an admitted position that Shri Jitendra Kumar Pandey, Principal, Rajkiya High School, Barigaon, Belaghat, Gorakhpur, participated in the selection proceedings and duly signed the proceedings of the Selection Committee.

56. In view of the above discussion, the further objection that the District Basic Education Officer was not empowered to nominate Principal of Rajkiya High School, and that there existed no justification or occasion for such nomination has no legs to stand.

57. The second ground taken in the impugned order is that, although the selection to the post of Clerk was finalized on 25.05.2017, the provisions contained in Rule 15(3) and 15(4) of the Rules, 1984 mandate that the entire record of the selection proceedings be forwarded to the office of the Basic Shiksha Adhikari within a period of one week. However, in the present case, the said papers were transmitted only on 04.09.2017, after a considerable delay.

58. The delay, though apparent on the face of record, is neither deliberate nor fatal to the selection process. It stands duly explained on account of extraordinary and unavoidable circumstances, namely the severe flood situation prevailing in Gorakhpur during the relevant period, which disrupted normal administrative functioning. Such circumstances constitute a valid and sufficient cause, beyond the control of the institution.

59. It is well settled that procedural provisions relating to timelines are ordinarily directory in nature, unless the statute expressly provides consequences of non-compliance. Rule 15(3) and (4) of the Rules, 1984, though prescribing a time frame, do not stipulate that delay in submission of papers would automatically vitiate the entire selection process. Therefore, the said provision cannot be construed as mandatory so as to nullify an otherwise valid selection.

60. Further, no prejudice has been shown to have been caused to any party on account of the said delay. The selection process had already been duly completed in a fair and transparent manner, and the delay in forwarding papers is a post-selection procedural lapse, which does not go to the root of the selection.

61. It is equally trite that substantial justice ought not to be defeated on account of technicalities, particularly when the delay stands reasonably explained. The authorities, instead of adopting a hyper-technical approach, ought to have considered the explanation in its proper perspective.

62. Thus, the delay in forwarding the papers, being satisfactorily explained and not affecting the merits of the selection, could not have been made a ground to disapprove the appointment.

63. It is an admitted position on record that the papers relating to the selection process were submitted in the office of the Basic Shiksha Adhikari, Gorakhpur, on 04.09.2017, and the same were internally marked to Shri Dinesh on 06.09.2017 for necessary consideration. Thus, the receipt of the selection papers in the office of the Basic Shiksha Adhikari stands duly established.

64. Even if, for the sake of argument, the date of receipt is taken to be 06.09.2017, the statutory period of 30 days prescribed under the Rules would expire on 05.10.2017. In the present case, the impugned order was communicated to the petitioner only on 07.10.2017, i.e., beyond the stipulated period of 30 days.

65. In view of the provisions contained in Rule 15(5) of the Rules, 1984, which clearly stipulate that if no communication regarding approval or disapproval is made within 30 days from the date of receipt of the selection papers, the selection shall be deemed to have been approved, the consequence that necessarily follows is that the selection in question stood deemed to have been approved upon expiry of the prescribed period.

66. Accordingly, the subsequent communication of the impugned order, having been made beyond the statutory period, is rendered inconsequential in the eyes of law, and the selection of the petitioner, namely Vikas Alexander, must be held to have attained finality by virtue of deemed approval.

67. The controversy pertaining to the validity of the selection proceedings in the absence of a duly nominated representative of the Basic Shiksha Adhikari stands authoritatively considered in State of Uttar Pradesh & 2 Others vs. Gunjan Singh & Another⁴. In the said decision, the Court, while interpreting the statutory scheme, observed that it cannot remain oblivious to the practical realities and the mandate of the Rules, which cast an obligation upon the Management to conclude the selection process within a stipulated time frame.

68. The Court further held that where a request has been duly made by the Management for nomination of a representative, but the Basic Shiksha Adhikari either fails to nominate a specific individual or does not communicate the name of such nominee, the selection process cannot be rendered invalid on that ground alone.

69. Applying the aforesaid principle to the facts of the present case, it is evident that although no specific name of the nominee was communicated, Shri Jitendra Kumar Pandey did, in fact, participate in the proceedings of the Selection Committee, asserting himself to be the nominee of the Basic Shiksha Adhikari. His participation stands duly recorded, and the proceedings bear his signatures.

70. In such circumstances, the absence of formal nomination or communication thereof constitutes, at best, a procedural irregularity and not an illegality going to the root of the matter. The selection proceedings, having been conducted with the participation of a representative claiming to act on behalf of the competent authority, cannot be invalidated on such a hyper-technical ground.

71. Accordingly, the objection raised in the impugned order in this regard is unsustainable in law.

72. In District Basic Shiksha Adhikari, Ambedkar Nagar & Another v. Chandraprakash Tripathi & Others⁵, the Court had occasion to consider a similar controversy concerning the validity of selection proceedings in the absence of participation of the nominee of the District Basic Education Officer in the Selection Committee. The Court observed that although the composition of the Selection Committee is prescribed under the statutory Rules to include the Manager of the institution, the Headmaster, and one nominee of the District Basic Education Officer, the selection process cannot be frustrated merely on account of non-participation of such nominee, particularly when the Management had duly requested the District Basic Education Officer to depute his representative. In the said case, despite a request having been made, the District Basic Education Officer failed to send any nominee, and consequently, the Selection Committee, comprising the remaining two members, proceeded to complete the selection process. The Court declined to interfere, holding that the authority could not be permitted to take advantage of its own lapse in failing to nominate a representative.

73. Applying the aforesaid principle to the facts of the present case, it is evident that a proper and timely request was made by the Manager of the institution to the District Basic Education Officer for deputation of his nominee. Pursuant thereto, one individual, namely Shri Jitendra Kumar Pandey, participated in the selection proceedings, asserting himself to be the nominee of the said authority, and his participation stands duly recorded in the proceedings.

74. In such circumstances, even if the name of the nominee was not formally communicated by the District Basic Education Officer, the participation of a representative claiming to act on his behalf, coupled with the prior request made by the Management, sufficiently satisfies the requirement of the Rules. At any rate, the absence of formal communication of the nominee's name cannot be construed as an illegality so as to vitiate the entire selection process.

75. Thus, the selection proceedings cannot be held to be bad in the eyes of law on this ground, particularly when the alleged lapse, if any, is attributable to the inaction or omission on the part of the authority itself.

76. So far as the contention raised regarding non-publication of the advertisement in two newspapers is concerned, the same is wholly untenable and devoid of merit. The records placed before this Court unequivocally establish that the advertisement was, in fact, duly published in two widely circulated newspapers, thereby satisfying the prescribed requirement.

77. In such view of the matter, the objection sought to be raised at this belated stage, after culmination of the entire selection process, is clearly an afterthought and appears to have been taken merely to unsettle a concluded process. It is a settled principle of law that once a candidate has participated in the selection process without demur, he/she is estopped from subsequently challenging the same on grounds which were available at an earlier point of time.

78. Accordingly, the said ground, being misconceived and lacking in substance, does not merit acceptance and is hereby rejected.

79. The objection raised by the respondents with regard to the alleged lack of locus standi of the petitioner, and consequently the maintainability of the present writ petition, does not commend acceptance at this stage.

80. It is noteworthy that the writ petition was duly entertained by this Court as far back as the year 2018 and has since remained pending, with pleadings having been exchanged and the matter having proceeded substantially on merits. At such an advanced stage, it is no longer open to the respondents to assail the maintainability of the petition on a ground which was very much available to them at the threshold but was not pressed with due diligence.

81. The law is well settled that objections relating to maintainability, particularly on the ground of locus standi, ought to be raised at the earliest possible opportunity. Permitting such an objection to be entertained belatedly would not only defeat the cause of substantive justice but would also result in unnecessary protraction of proceedings that have already attained considerable maturity before the Court.

82. In the considered opinion of this Court, the belated plea of lack of locus standi is clearly an afterthought and is liable to be rejected. Accordingly, the said objection does not merit acceptance and stands overruled.

83. In view of the aforesaid submissions advanced on behalf of the petitioner, the precedents relied upon, and the discussion undertaken herein-above, this Court arrives at the considered conclusion that the impugned order cannot be sustained in the eyes of law. The same suffers from manifest arbitrariness, non-application of mind, and is contrary to the settled legal principles governing the field.

84. Accordingly, the impugned order dated 28.09.2017 passed by the District Basic Shiksha Adhikari, Gorakhpur is hereby set aside and quashed.

85. The writ petition, being meritorious, stands allowed.

86. Consequently, all consequential benefits shall follow.

87. No order as to costs.

Issue(s) for consideration

Is the State's recruitment process for Trained Graduate Teachers (TGT) legally sound if its service rules omit the Teacher Eligibility Test (TET) qualification required by notification?

Headnotes

A. Service/Education Law – Uttar Pradesh Subordinate Educational (Trained Graduate Grade) Service Rules, 1983: Rule 8; Right of Children to Free and Compulsory Education Act, 2009: Section 23 - Petitioners challenged Rule 8 of the U.P. Subordinate Educational Service Rules, 1983 (amended in 2025) and a UPPSC recruitment advertisement dated July 28, 2025. They argued that the rule omitted TET (pass) as a mandatory qualification, directly violating a National Council for Teacher Education (NCTE) 2010 notification (dated 23.08.2010) that requires TET for teaching classes VI to VIII.

The State of U.P. countered that this specific recruitment drive was strictly meant for Classes IX and X (which do not require TET under a separate 2014 NCTE notification). They argued that no recruitments were actively being made for classes VI to VIII under these rules.

B. The State admitted that there are 904 institutions in Uttar Pradesh where combined classes from VI to XII are taught. The disputed UPPSC recruitment advertisement failed to specify which classes the selected teachers would actually be assigned to teach. Because the rules and the advertisement were ambiguous, there was a clear risk of non-TET-qualified teachers being deployed to teach classes VI to VIII.

It was held that the State of Uttar Pradesh must insert "TET (pass)" into Rule 8 as a mandatory prerequisite qualification for any future recruitment intended for teaching classes VI to VIII. And the Public Service Commission (UPPSC) must immediately issue a clarification/corrigendum explicitly stating that the recruitment advertisement dated July 28, 2025, is strictly for teaching Classes IX and X.

Writ petitions are allowed to the above extent and disposed of. (E-4)

For Respondent(s): C.S.C., M.N. Singh, Vaibhav Tripathi

(Delivered by Hon'ble Arindam Sinha, J.)

1. Two writ petitions have been taken up for hearing. In Writ - A no.11604 of 2025 prayer is for quashing rule 8 of Uttar Pradesh Subordinate Educational (Trained Graduate Grade) Service Rules, 1983 as amended by 6th amendment dated 30th January, 2025 insofar as the same is in contravention of National Council for Teacher Education (NCTE) notification dated 23rd August, 2010. Petitioners say the notification mandates passing of Teacher Eligibility Test (TET) for appointment to post of Assistant Teacher, to teach classes VI to VIII. Prayer in Writ - A no.18038 of 2025 carries similar prayer inasmuch as, allegedly offending rule 8 is sought to be declared ultravires and consequent quashing of advertisement dated 28th July, 2025 issued by Public Service Commission, Uttar Pradesh for recruitment under the rules. Ms. Taniya Pandey, learned advocate appears on behalf of petitioners in Writ -A no.11064 of 2025 and Mr. Sanjay Kumar Yadav, learned advocate appears on behalf of petitioners in the other writ petition.

2. Ms. Pandey submits, by notification dated 31st March, 2010 published by authority in Gazette of India Extraordinary on 5th April, 2010, NCTE was conferred power under sub-section (1) in section 23 of Right of Children to Free and Compulsory Education Act, 2009, to be authorized as the academic authority to lay down minimum qualification(s) for a person to be eligible for appointment as a teacher. We obtained confirmation from respondents that the Act applies to teachers to teach upto class VIII.

3. Ms. Pandey submits further, pursuant to this authorization there was notification dated 23rd August, 2010 issued by the authority, mandating eligibility criteria of possessing, apart from other qualification(s) TET (pass). She demonstrates from allegedly offending rule 8 that inspite of the amendment made thereto subsequent to the Act and notification, it did not include the mandated qualification TET (pass) for purpose of the recruitment. She submits upon reliance on statement made in paragraph 8 of supplementary counter affidavit affirmed by the Additional Director of Education that there are 904 institutions, where students in classes VI to XII are being taught. The paragraph is reproduced below.

"8. That at this juncture, it may also be stated that in the State of U.P. there are 1488 government high schools where only classes IX and X are taught. Further, there are 70 intermediate colleges where only classes IX to XII are being taught, and there are only 904 institutions where classes VI to XII are being taught." (emphasis supplied)

She submits, there has been no recruitment pursuant to the notification. In the circumstances, existence of 904 institutions, where classes VI to XII are being taught necessarily means that Assistant Teachers, who do not have qualification of TET (pass) are also teaching classes VI to VIII. The rule is thus ultravires section 23 in Right of Children to Free and Compulsory Education Act, 2009, by omission. She seeks interference.

4. Mr. Sanjay Kumar Yadav adopts submissions made by Ms. Pandey and adds, the Defence forces have incorporated the requirement for recruiting teachers to their institutions. Learned advocate for petitioners pray for direction on quashing the advertisement.

5. Mr. Kartikeya Saran, learned advocate, Additional Advocate General assisted by Mr. Saurabh, learned advocate, Standing Counsel appear on behalf of respondent nos.1 to 3. They are State through the education department. Mr. Saran submits, there was notification dated 12th November, 2014 issued by NCTE, mandating educational qualifications for recruitment of teachers to classes IX and X. Consequent thereto, two amendments were made to the rules. First was in year 2016, to insert additional requirement of bachelor degree and BEd or equivalent thereto and second was more in nature of clarification in year 2025, inserting inclusive term 'graduation degree'. The amended rules have been relied upon for issuance of aforesaid recruitment notice dated 28th July, 2025. He submits he has clear instructions that there has been no recruitment under the rules for teachers to teach classes VI to VIII. He points out from counter affidavit dated 9th December, 2025, there stands disclosed order dated 28th February, 2017 made by coordinate Bench. Relevant text of the order is reproduced below.

"The prayer made in the writ petition reads thus:

"a) Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of Certiorari quashing the impugned advertisement dated 21.12.2016 advertising total 9342 posts of Trained Graduate Teacher/L.T. Grade Teacher to be appointed in Government Inter Colleges for teaching the students from Class 6th to 10th without prescribing Teacher Eligibility Test as essential qualification."

The petition is filed on the assumption that the advertisement has been issued for appointing 9342 Trained Graduate Teachers/L.T. Grade Teachers for classes 6 to 10. Counsel appearing for respondents 1 to 3, on instructions, submits that the impugned advertisement and the posts of Trained Graduate Teachers/L.T. Grade Teachers are for classes 9 and 10, and not for classes 6 to 8th standard. His statement is recorded and accepted. In view thereof, counsel for the petitioner does not press this writ petition."

Thereby is demonstration that the rule under challenge was duly amended pursuant to the year 2014 notification issued by NCTE, in respect of recruitment of teachers for classes IX and X. He opposes the writ petitions.

6. Mr. Fuzail Ahmad Ansari, learned advocate appears on behalf of respondent no.5 (the Commission) in one writ petition and respondent no.4 in the other. He submits, the recruitment notice was issued by his client for recruitment of trained graduate teachers (TGT). On query he submits, there is no indication in the advertisement regarding classes to be taught by the teachers recruited. Mr. Vaibhav Tripathi, learned advocate appears on behalf of NCTE. He submits, his client was duly empowered to mandate qualifications on recruitment of the teachers. By notification dated 23rd August, 2010 requisite qualifications for recruitment of teachers appointed to teach upto classes VIII were notified. By subsequent notification dated 12th November, 2014, same was notified in respect of teachers who are to be recruited to teach classes IX and X.

7. On specific query, we have not been shown by respondents that there has been recruitment or at least initiated by a recruitment notice, pursuant to the requisite qualification mandated by NCTE on notification dated 23rd August, 2010. It follows, respondents cannot say that no vacancy has arisen in post of teachers to teach classes VI to VIII, particularly when there is admission on affidavit made by the Additional Director of Education that there exists 904 institutions where students study from classes VI to XII. As such, petitioners have demonstrated the omission, more so because the recruitment notice dated 28th July, 2025 does not specify the recruitment necessity of the recruited, in respect of classes to be taught. We find there is a gap in rule 8. On query Mr. Saran submits, upon direction made, State will have to propose amendment. Thus we do direct that there be insertion in rule 8, as requisite qualification in addition to those mentioned, TET (pass). We direct the Commission to issue corrigendum clarifying that the advertisement relates to recruitment of teachers for class IX and X. For the purpose, the State will issue necessary instructions.

9. The writ petitions are allowed to above extent and disposed of.

Issue(s) for consideration

- (a) Whether the respondent authorities exceeded their legally prescribed jurisdiction by reopening and reviewing the validity of the petitioners' 2006 selection (which had already attained finality through a comprehensive approval order in 2018) when a Division Bench of the High Court had explicitly restricted the scope of inquiry solely to the determination of salary arrears from 2014 to 2018.
- (b) Whether the State's sudden ex-parte cancellation of the 2018 approval and the subsequent termination of the teachers' right to work without issuing notices, furnishing adverse reports, or granting a meaningful opportunity of hearing was legally sustainable?
- (c) Whether the long, uninterrupted, and fraud-free service of the teachers since 2006 could be legally dismantled on the technical ground that they held B.Ed. degrees rather than basic training certificates, particularly when Supreme Court precedents explicitly protect B.Ed. teachers appointed prior to the 2008 rule amendment?
- (d) Whether the Regional Approval Committee possessed any statutory power under the law to review and rescind its own detailed, multi-year-old approval order?

Headnotes

A. Service Law – Uttar Pradesh Recognized Basic Shiksha (Junior High School) (Recruitment and Conditions of Service of Teachers) Rules, 1978: Rule 4(1) - The petitioners were appointed by the Committee of Management of the institution on 18.11.2006 and 18.12.2006 respectively. The institution in question was brought under the grant-in-aid list pursuant to the GO dated 02.12.2006. Teachers of the institution were receiving their salaries from the State exchequer pursuant to the order dated 21.02.2007. However, the petitioners were extended this benefit only after the issuance of the order dated 19.12.2014, whereby provision was made for payment of their salaries from the State exchequer. (Para 39, 40)

After thoroughly scrutinizing initial objections regarding their qualifications (holding B.Ed. degrees) and the selection process, the Regional Approval Committee fully validated their appointments and directed the payment of their current salaries from the State exchequer via a detailed order dated 14.08.2018. The petitioners were denied back-pay/arrears for the interim period between 2014 and 2018. In Special Appeal No. 488 of 2024, on 16.05.2024, a Division Bench directed the Secretary of Basic Education to strictly consider their limited claim regarding those salary arrears. (Para 48, 49)

Instead of deciding the restricted issue of 2014–2018 arrears, the Secretary of Basic Education issued an order on 26.08.2025, declaring the petitioners' original 2006 appointments void because B.Ed. degrees were allegedly not an approved qualification in 2006. Based on this directive, successive cascading orders were issued by the respondents, culminating in an ex-parte order on 08.09.2025, by the Regional Approval Committee cancelling its own 2018 approval.

B. The respondent authorities exceeded their jurisdiction in seeking to reopen the question relating to the validity of the petitioners' selection, which had already attained finality upon due consideration and was found to be in accordance with law. Such an exercise, being beyond the scope of the directions issued by the appellate court, is impermissible in the eyes of law. (Para 52, 60)

Once all objections pertaining to the selection of the petitioners had been duly examined and adjudicated, culminating in the order dated 14.08.2018 directing payment of salary, the issue that remained to be determined was confined to the entitlement of the petitioners to salary for the period from 2014 to 2018, in terms of the directions issued by the Hon'ble Court in the Special Appeal (order dated 16.05.2024). (Para 51, 57, 58)

C. The respondents have proceeded to the extent of rescinding the order dated 14.08.2018 by passing the impugned order dated 08.09.2025, that too without affording any opportunity of hearing to the petitioners and without conducting any inquiry whatsoever. Such action is patently arbitrary, violative of the principles of natural justice, and clearly unsustainable in the eyes of law. (Para 59)

D. The petitioners who had B.Ed degree and were appointed before 2008 i.e. before the date of amendment in the Rules, which came into existence in 1978, their appointment cannot be disturbed subsequently, especially when the appointment has been sought without playing fraud and the teachers have put in long years of service. (Para 62)

E. Where a teacher has been appointed and has continued in service for a long period, particularly with the knowledge of the competent authorities, such service ought not to be unsettled on mere technical objections. Where the appointment has either been expressly approved or the incumbent has been permitted to continue for years without objection, it is not open to the authorities to subsequently turn around and invalidate such appointment on grounds which were very much available at the time of appointment but were not raised. The State cannot take advantage of its own lapses after having taken work from the employees. Long and uninterrupted continuance in service creates a legitimate equity in favour of the employee. (Para 53, 54, 63, 64)

It is evident that the petitioners have continuously discharged their duties and have worked for a considerable length of time, including during the period from 2014 to 2018. The petitioners are, therefore, prima facie entitled to payment of salary for the said period. (Para 56)

Writ petitions allowed. (E-4)

1. Heard Mr. Adarsh Singh, learned counsel for the petitioners, Mr. Radhe Shyam Gupta, learned counsel for respondent no.3 and Mr. Shailendra Singh, learned Standing Counsel for the State.

2. The present writ petition has been instituted, inter alia, seeking issuance of a writ of certiorari for quashing the impugned order dated 08.09.2025 passed by respondent no. 4, namely the Regional Approval Committee under the chairmanship of the Regional Assistant Director, (Basic), Meerut Region, Meerut. A further prayer has been made for issuance of a writ of mandamus commanding the respondents not to interfere with the peaceful functioning of the petitioners on the post of Assistant Teacher in Ram Singh Vishwa Chaitanya Kanya Junior High School, Astauli, District Gautam Buddha Nagar. Additionally, a direction has been sought against respondent no. 2 to ensure payment of the current salary to the petitioners in accordance with law.

3. Learned counsel for the petitioners submits that the institution, namely Ram Singh Vishwa Chaitanya Kanya Junior High School, Astauli, District Gautam Buddha Nagar (hereinafter referred to as "the institution"), is a duly recognized and aided junior high school. It is governed by the provisions of the U.P. Basic Education Act, 1972, the U.P. Recognized Basic Schools (Junior High School) (Recruitment and Conditions of Service of Teachers) Rules, 1978, and the Uttar Pradesh Junior High Schools (Payment of Salaries of Teachers and Other Employees) Act, 1978. Two posts of Assistant Teachers, one post of Clerk, and one post of Class-IV employee fell vacant in the year 2006, primarily on account of resignation.

4. He further submits that the Manager of the Committee of Management of the institution sought prior permission from the District Basic Education Officer to fill up the aforesaid vacancies vide letter dated 09.06.2006, which was duly granted by order dated 20.09.2006. Pursuant thereto, the vacancies were advertised in two widely circulated newspapers on 23.09.2006 and 24.09.2006. The petitioners, being duly qualified, applied in response to the said advertisement and participated in the selection process conducted by a duly constituted Selection Committee on 05.10.2006. Thereafter, all relevant papers pertaining to the selection proceedings were forwarded by the Manager of the institution to the District Basic Education Officer vide letter dated 08.10.2006. The said appointments were accorded approval by order dated 18.11.2006, in pursuance whereof an appointment letter was issued to petitioner no. 1 on the same date appointing her as Assistant Teacher (English).

5. As Ms. Deepti Gaur, who had been selected for the post of Assistant Teacher (Science), did not join the institution on account of her appointment elsewhere, the Manager of the institution proceeded to issue an appointment letter to petitioner no. 2 on 18.12.2006. The said appointment was duly approved by the District Basic Education Officer, Gautam Budh Nagar, vide order dated 18.12.2006. In pursuance thereof, petitioner no. 2 joined the post of Assistant Teacher (Science) on the same date.

6. It is further contended that the State Government invited applications from eligible institutions for their inclusion in the grant-in-aid list. In pursuance thereof, the State Government, vide Government Order dated 02.12.2006, brought a large number of institutions within the grant-in-aid fold. Consequently, the institution of the petitioners was also included in the said list, as communicated vide letter dated 04.01.2007 issued by the Director of Education (Basic).

7. Pursuant to the inclusion of the institution in the grant-in-aid list, the salary of only one Headmaster and two Assistant Teachers was being disbursed from the State Exchequer in terms of the order dated 21.02.2007. However, the petitioners were not extended the said benefit, as at the time of submission of the application for grant-in-aid, the selection proceedings in respect of the petitioners were still underway.

8. Being aggrieved by the non-payment of salary, the petitioners submitted a representation before the State Government seeking release of their salary from the State Exchequer. The said representation was duly considered, and consequently, a Government Order dated 19.12.2014 came to be issued, providing for payment of salary to the petitioners.

9. Pursuant to the aforesaid Government Order dated 19.12.2014, the Regional Approval Committee, under the chairmanship of the Regional Assistant Director (Basic), Meerut Region, Meerut, undertook scrutiny of the selection and appointment of the petitioners. Upon due consideration and being satisfied with the validity of the said selection proceedings, the Committee passed an order dated 14.08.2018, directing payment of salary to the petitioners with effect from 19.12.2014, i.e., the date of issuance of the aforesaid Government Order.

10. It is also submitted that although, the petitioners had been regularly discharging their duties on the post of Assistant Teachers in the institution with effect from 18.11.2006 and 18.12.2006 respectively, after obtaining prior approval from the District Basic Education Officer, Gautam Buddh Nagar, they were denied payment of salary till the issuance of the order dated 14.08.2018.

11. Aggrieved thereby, the petitioners preferred Writ-A No. 970 of 2019 (Shrimati Minakshi Sharma and another vs. State of U.P. and 4 others), which came to be dismissed vide judgment and order dated 2.04.2024. The said judgment was assailed by the petitioners by filing Special Appeal No. 488 of 2024, which was disposed of by the Hon^{ble} Division Bench vide judgment and order dated 16.05.2024.

12. By the said order, the Hon^{ble} Division Bench set aside the judgment of the learned Single Judge dated 2.04.2024 and modified the order dated 14.08.2018 to the extent that the claim of the petitioners for payment of salary and arrears shall be considered by the Secretary, Basic Education, in accordance with law.

13. Upon filing of the contempt petition, the Secretary, Basic Education, proceeded to pass an order dated 26.08.2025, whereby the appointments of the petitioners were declared void, on the ground that the same had been made in contravention of the applicable rules.

14. Pursuant thereto Respondent No. 2 proceeded to pass the order dated 30.08.2025 at the behest of Respondent No. 1, without any independent application of mind, and further compelled Respondent No. 3 to initiate action against the petitioners without affording them any opportunity of hearing.

15. Consequently, Respondent No. 3, acting under the dictates of Respondent No. 2, passed the order dated 01.09.2025 in an arbitrary and perverse manner, in gross violation of the principles of natural justice, thereby restraining the petitioners from discharging their duties in the institution.

16. He further submits that the petitioners thereafter preferred Writ-A No. 14225 of 2025, assailing the orders dated 26.08.2025, 30.08.2025 and 01.09.2025. In the said writ petition, this Hon'ble Court was pleased to pass an order dated 09.10.2025, directing the respondents to file their counter affidavit.

17. To the utter surprise of the petitioners, Respondent No. 4 passed an ex-parte order dated 08.09.2025, being adversely influenced by the findings recorded in the order dated 26.08.2025 passed by Respondent No. 1, without issuing any notice or affording any opportunity of hearing to the petitioners. By means of the said order, Respondent No. 4 proceeded to cancel its earlier order dated 14.08.2018, despite there being no provision under law conferring any power of review upon it.

18. He further submits that the petitioners had neither any knowledge of the order dated 08.09.2025 nor was the same ever served upon them. Consequently, at the time of filing the writ petition, the aforesaid order was not brought under challenge.

19. It is also contended that the respondent No. 2 proceeded to pass the impugned order dated 30.08.2025 at the dictates of Respondent No. 1, without any independent application of mind. Further, Respondent No. 3, acting under the compulsion and directions of Respondent No. 2, was constrained to initiate action against the petitioners without affording them any opportunity of hearing.

20. Likewise, Respondent No. 3, acting at the dictates of Respondent No. 2 and without any independent application of mind, proceeded to pass the impugned order dated 01.09.2025, without affording any opportunity of hearing to the petitioners, thereby restraining them from discharging their duties in the institution.

21. The order dated 26.08.2025 passed by Respondent No. 1 is founded upon certain letters and reports submitted by the Director of Education (Basic), U.P. However, at no point of time were the said reports or materials ever furnished to the petitioners, nor were they afforded any opportunity to submit their explanation in respect thereof. Consequently, the entire exercise stands vitiated, having been undertaken in flagrant violation of the principles of natural justice.

22. The impugned orders have been assailed, inter alia, on the ground that Respondent No. 1 has acted wholly without jurisdiction in travelling beyond the scope of the authority vested in him, and in venturing into the question of the validity of the petitioners' appointments, which was neither in issue nor liable to be reopened. Rather, in terms of the directions issued by this Hon'ble Court, Respondent No. 1 was required to confine the inquiry strictly to the limited question of payment of salary and arrears for the period prior to 14.08.2018.

23. He further submits that while passing the impugned order, Respondent No. 1 has ventured into examining the validity of the selection and appointments of the petitioners, an issue which had already been duly considered and conclusively determined by the Regional Approval Committee, chaired by the Regional Assistant Director (Basic), Meerut Region, Meerut. The said Committee, after thoroughly examining all relevant aspects and dealing with the objections raised, had recorded its satisfaction and accordingly approved the appointments of the petitioners.

24. Inasmuch as the order dated 14.08.2018 has neither been revoked nor recalled by any competent authority and continues to hold the field, the petitioners remain entitled to continue in service and discharge their duties, along with all consequential benefits, including payment of salary from the State Exchequer. Thus, the impugned order, having failed to take into consideration the subsistence and binding effect of the aforesaid order dated 14.08.2018, is liable to be set aside.

25. There was no occasion for Respondent No. 1 to question the factum of appointment of the petitioners or to reopen the issue, particularly after the judgment and order passed by the Hon'ble Division Bench in Special Appeal No.488 of 2024 (Smt. Meenakshi Sharma And Another vs. State of U.P. And 4 Others) dated 16.05.2024, whereby the matter stood relegated to Respondent No. 4 therein with specific observations and directions which are as follows:

“6. Having heard rival submissions and perusing the record, we find that while according financial approval in the year 2018 there is no finding by the respondents to the effect that initial appointment/ engagement of the petitioners in the institution was contrary to the relevant Rules. The letters dated 16.4.2013 and 19.12.2014 also reflect that inter-departmental correspondence were on to accord financial approval to the petitioners-appellants. Therefore, it is clear that the claim was pending consideration before the Authority for according financial approval in favour of the petitioners-appellants and moreover the Authority has also accorded salary since 2018. But once positive communication was made on 19.12.2014 to send requisite papers of the appellants for financial approval within 15 days but the same was not complied with, therefore, in such situation, we find that it was not in dispute before the Authority to verify whether the petitioners were working in the institution or not. The dispute was only to accord salary. Once this finding of fact is returned in the above letters that they were working in the institution, the rightful claim cannot be denied qua the salary.

7. Considering the facts and circumstances of the case, we set aside the impugned judgment and order passed by learned Single Judge dated 2.4.2024. We further modify the order dated 14.8.2018 to the extent that the claim of the petitioners-appellants qua salary and arrears may be considered by the Secretary (Basic Education) in accordance with law but certainly after verifying the material/ record and after giving due opportunity to all the stake holders. The said exercise is to be carried out within three months from the date of production of certified copy of this order.

8. Accordingly, the present special appeal stands disposed of. “

26. The scope of inquiry was thus clearly circumscribed, and the same could not have been expanded beyond the mandate of the Hon’ble Court.

27. Learned counsel for the petitioners further submits that the alleged infirmities, as recorded in the order dated 26.08.2025 passed by Respondent No. 1, had already been duly examined by the competent authority at the time of granting approval to the appointments of the petitioners vide a detailed order dated 14.08.2018. In the said order, it was categorically recorded that the appointments of the petitioners were made in accordance with the procedure prescribed under law, including due publication of advertisement in newspapers, one of which was a local daily. It was further observed that there was no requirement of obtaining prior permission from the State Government at the relevant point of time, as the institution had not yet been brought under the grant-in-aid list.

28. In view of the aforesaid findings, all relevant aspects stood duly considered and concluded by the competent authority. Therefore, there was no occasion for Respondent No. 1 to reopen the matter and re-examine the very same issues, which had already been adjudicated upon by the concerned Committee vide order dated 14.08.2018, which continues to subsist and hold the field.

29. It is also submitted that the issue regarding the qualifications of the petitioners was also duly examined by the Regional Approval Committee while passing the order dated 14.08.2018. Upon such consideration, the Committee accorded approval to the appointments of the petitioners. Once such an approval had been granted after due scrutiny, no occasion arose for reopening the matter with regard to the selection and appointment of the petitioners, particularly when the order dated 14.08.2018 continues to subsist and hold the field.

30. The order dated 26.08.2025 passed by Respondent No. 1 is patently illegal, inasmuch as it fails to consider and deal with the relevant grounds and proceeds in excess of the jurisdiction vested in it. Consequently, the order dated 08.09.2025, which is founded upon the aforesaid order dated 26.08.2025, having been passed ex parte without issuance of notice or affording any opportunity of hearing to the petitioners, is wholly arbitrary and without jurisdiction.

31. Further, Respondent No. 4 lacked any statutory power to review its earlier order, and the impugned order, having been passed without assigning any cogent reasons, is liable to be set aside on the ground of being a non-speaking and arbitrary order.

32. Learned counsel for the petitioners, in support of his submissions, has placed reliance upon the judgments rendered in Alka Singh (Writ Petition No. 14989 of 2018, decided on 29.08.2018) and Yadu Nath Singh (Writ Petition No. 19524 of 2018, decided on 13.09.2018), wherein it has been laid down that once appointments have been made in accordance with the rules prevailing at the relevant point of time, the same cannot be unsettled on the basis of any subsequent amendment in the rules.

33. Applying the aforesaid settled proposition of law to the facts of the present case, it is submitted that the petitioners, having been appointed in accordance with law prior to the institution being brought under the grant-in-aid list, their appointments could not have been disturbed on the grounds as mentioned in the impugned orders.

34. The learned counsel for the respondent no.3 as well as learned Standing Counsel for the State-respondents submitted that the advertisement issued for the appointment of two Assistant Teachers, one Clerk, and one Class IV employee failed to specify the minimum qualifications, thereby being in clear violation of the provisions of the Uttar Pradesh Recognized Basic Shiksha (Junior High School) (Recruitment and Conditions of Service of Teachers) Rules, 1978.

35. It is further submitted that as per Rule 4(1) of the Uttar Pradesh Recognized Basic Shiksha (Junior High School) (Recruitment and Conditions of Service of Teachers) Rules, 1978, the minimum qualification prescribed for appointment as an Assistant Teacher in a recognized school was a pass in Secondary Education, i.e., Uttar Pradesh Intermediate Examination or an equivalent examination with Hindi as a subject, along with the requisite teacher training qualification such as STC, JTC, BTC, or any Training Certificate recognized by the State Government or the competent Council.

36. It is further submitted that in the year 2006, a B.Ed degree was not included as a minimum qualification for the post of Assistant Teacher. The said qualification was incorporated only in the year 2008. Therefore, it is evident that the petitioners did not possess the prescribed minimum qualification for appointment as Assistant Teacher in a recognized school in the year 2006. Consequently, their appointment is in clear violation of Rule 4 of the Uttar Pradesh Recognized Basic Shiksha (Junior High School Rules) (Recruitment and Conditions of Service of Teachers), 1978.

37. In view of the foregoing submissions, the petitioners are not entitled to the reliefs as claimed.

38. Heard counsel for the parties and perused the record.

39. From the records, it is evident that the petitioners were appointed by the Committee of Management of the institution on 18.11.2006 and 18.12.2006 respectively. The institution in question was brought under the grant-in-aid list pursuant to the Government Order dated 02.12.2006.

40. Teachers of the institution were receiving their salaries from the State exchequer pursuant to the order dated 21.02.2007. However, the petitioners were extended this benefit only after the issuance of the order dated 19.12.2014, whereby provision was made for payment of their salaries from the State exchequer.

41. Certain objections were raised by Respondent No. 4 in the letter dated 02.02.2015 with regard to the selection proceedings of the petitioners. It was stated that the advertisement for the said selection was published only in one newspaper, Dainik Jagran on 23.09.2006. It was further alleged that no prior approval had been obtained before making the appointments, and therefore, the same were in violation of the Government Order issued under the 20.11. 2003.

42. It was also pointed out that although Mr. Majuddin Ansari, ABSA, was present during the selection proceedings, he had not been duly nominated by the District Basic Education Officer for that purpose. Additionally, an objection was raised regarding the educational qualifications of the petitioners, stating that they possessed B.Ed degree, which was not the prescribed qualification for the post.

43. In response to the aforesaid query, a report dated 15.02.2017 was submitted from the office of the Director of Education (Basic), stating that the advertisement for the selection had been published in Dainik Jagran as well as Hind ki Zameen. It was further clarified that at the time when the selection process was undertaken, the institution in question was not included in the grant-in-aid list, and therefore, no prior approval was required in terms of the Government Order dated 20th November, 2003.

44. With regard to the presence of ABSA, Mr. Majuddin Ansari, it was reported that the Basic Education Officer, Gautam Buddha Nagar, had informed him telephonically to remain present at the time of the interview.

45. As regards the qualifications of the petitioners, petitioner no. 1, who possessed B.A., B.Ed., and petitioner no. 2, who possessed M.Sc., B.Ed., were duly eligible for appointment on the post of Assistant Teacher in terms of the amended Fifth Amendment to the Rules, 1978.

46. Considering all the aforesaid aspects, approval for payment of salary to the petitioners from the State exchequer was accordingly granted vide order dated 19.12.2014.

47. Accordingly, upon due consideration and after addressing all the objections, the Regional Approval Committee, under the chairmanship of the Regional Assistant Director (Basic), Meerut Region, Meerut, passed an order dated 14.08.2018, directing that the petitioners be paid their salaries from the State exchequer with effect from 19.12.2014, i.e., the date of issuance of the aforesaid Government Order providing for such payment.

48. However, the petitioners were denied payment of salary for the period from 2014 to 2018. Aggrieved thereby, they filed a writ petition, which came to be dismissed.

49. The special appeal preferred against the said order of dismissal was, however, entertained and ultimately disposed of by order dated 16.05.2024, whereby the Secretary, Basic Education, was directed to consider and decide the claim of the petitioners/appellants regarding payment of salary and arrears, in accordance with law, after verifying the relevant records and affording due opportunity of hearing to the petitioners.

50. While disposing of the appeal, the appellate court also recorded a finding that the petitioners had been working in the institution, as was evident from the records, and the said fact was not in dispute.

51. Upon due consideration, this Court is of the considered opinion that once all objections pertaining to the selection of the petitioners had been duly examined and adjudicated, culminating in the order dated 14.08.2018 directing payment of salary, the issue that remained to be determined was confined to the entitlement of the petitioners to salary for the period from 2014 to 2018, in terms of the directions issued by the Hon'ble Court in the Special Appeal.

52. It is, therefore, manifest that the respondent authorities exceeded their jurisdiction in seeking to reopen the question relating to the validity of the petitioners' selection, which had already attained finality upon due consideration and was found to be in accordance with law. Such an exercise, being beyond the scope of the directions issued by the appellate court, is impermissible in the eyes of law.

53. The controversy in the present case stands squarely covered by the judgment of the Division Bench of this Court passed in Special Appeal Defective No.123 of 2009 (District Basic Education Officer, District Mau v. Jagdamba Singh), decided on 27.07.2010 wherein it has been authoritatively held that where a teacher has been appointed and has continued in service for a long period, particularly with the knowledge of the competent authorities, such service ought not to be unsettled on mere technical objections.

54. The Court further emphasized that long and uninterrupted continuance in service creates a legitimate equity in favour of the employee. It was also observed that where the appointment has either been expressly approved or the incumbent has been permitted to continue for years without objection, it is not open to the authorities to subsequently turn around and invalidate such appointment on grounds which were very much available at the time of appointment but were not raised.

55. The Court while deciding the issued involved in Writ-A No.52438 of 2010 (Kalindi Pandey vs. State of U.P. & Others as decided on 21.12.2012), wherein the Selection Committee had recommended the name of the petitioner therein in the year 1996 and the District Basic Education Officer has granted approval to the aforesaid recommendation for appointment of the petitioners therein as Assistant Teachers and the petitioners continued to teach for 14 years, when an objection was the District Basic Education Officer regarding the fact that the petitioners did not possess the requisite teachers training course certificate at the time of his appointment, had observed that the petitioners cannot be said to be at any fault because it is not the case that the documents on the basis of which appointment was sought were forged. Thus, at this stage i.e. after 14 years, even if it is assumed that the said certificate, possessed by the petitioners does not satisfy the requirement of the relevant rules, then too, the absence of requisite training certificate would not be that grave in the light of the other factors narrated in that case and the fact that the petitioners had gained sufficient experience, the decision for cancelling the appointment or dismissing the petitioners therein from service was arbitrary.

56. From the record, as also noticed by the Division Bench while deciding the Special Appeal, it is evident that the petitioners have continuously discharged their duties and have worked for a considerable length of time, including during the period from 2014 to 2018. Their working in the institution has, at no point, been disputed by the respondents. The petitioners are, therefore, prima facie entitled to payment of salary for the said period.

57. The appellate court, while disposing of the Special Appeal vide order dated 16.05.2024, had specifically directed the competent authority to consider the claim of the petitioners with regard to payment of salary and arrears, after due verification of the relevant records and upon affording an opportunity of hearing to the petitioners.

58. In such circumstances, once the aforesaid direction had been issued, the scope of consideration before the respondents stood confined to the determination of the petitioners' entitlement to salary for the relevant period. There was, therefore, no occasion or jurisdiction for the respondent authorities to reopen the issue relating to the validity of the petitioners' selection, particularly when all objections in that regard had already been duly examined and addressed while passing the order dated 14.08.2018.

59. The respondents have proceeded to the extent of rescinding the order dated 14.08.2018 by passing the impugned order dated 08.09.2025, that too without affording any opportunity of hearing to the petitioners and without conducting any inquiry whatsoever. Such action is patently arbitrary, violative of the principles of natural justice, and clearly unsustainable in the eyes of law.

60. Moreover, the impugned action runs directly contrary to, and in the teeth of, the directions issued by this Hon'ble Court in the Special Appeal, whereby the scope of consideration was specifically confined to the issue of payment of salary and arrears. The respondent authorities have thus acted beyond their jurisdiction in reopening and unsettling a matter which had already attained finality.

61. In Special Appeal No.1461 of 2005 (Committee of Management vs. State of U.P. and Others) and other connected special appeals, by order dated 09.01.2009, the appointment of the teachers who had B.Ed qualification and appointment made before the amendment of 1978 Rules in the year 2008, was set-aside on the ground that B.Ed is not one of the essential qualifications prescribed under the Rules. The teachers approached the Hon'ble Apex Court by means of filing Special Leave to Appeal (C) No(s)14907/2009 along with Special Leave to Appeal (C) Nos.24549-24580 of 2011, 27396 of 2016, 26331 of 2009 and C.A. No.3904 of 2013, in which the Apex Court vide order dated 14.07.2017 has passed the following order:

"Heard learned counsel for the parties.

Having regard to the fact that the petitioners have been in service for a long period, we are of the view that their appointments ought not be disturbed only on the ground of alleged lack of qualification which is contested by the petitioners.

Accordingly, the special leave petitions are disposed of by directing that the services of the petitioners be not disturbed on the above grounds.

Pending application(s), if any, shall also stand disposed of."

62. Once a view has been taken in several judgments as passed by this Court and the Hon'ble Apex Court that the petitioners who had B.Ed degree and were appointed before 2008 i.e. before the date of amendment in the Rules, which came into existence in 1978, their appointment cannot be disturbed subsequently, especially when the appointment has been sought without playing fraud and the teachers have put in long years of service.

63. In the case of State of Karnataka v. M.L. Kesari, reported in (2010) 9 SCC 247, the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that where employees have worked for a long period and their appointments were not tainted by fraud or illegality, their services deserve protection. The Court emphasized that long and continuous service cannot be ignored on technical grounds.

64. The Apex Court in the case of Rattan Lal v. State of Haryana, reported in (1985) 4 SCC 43 has held that where teachers had worked for a considerable time, denial of salary or termination on technical grounds would be arbitrary. The Court observed that the State cannot take advantage of its own lapses after having taken work from the employees.

65. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Narendra Kumar Tiwari v. State of Jharkhand, reported in (2018) 8 SCC 238, has reiterated that employees who have continued for long periods should not be deprived of benefits, particularly when the employer has taken work from them and there is no fraud attributable to the employee.

66. The Apex Court in the case of Vikas Pratap Singh vs. State of Chhattisgarh, reported in (2013) 14 SCC 494, has held that in cases where a wrongful or irregular appointment is made without any mistake on the part of the appointee and upon discovery of such error or irregularity, the appointee is terminated, this Court has taken a sympathetic view in the light of various factors including bona fide of the candidate in such appointment and length of service of the candidate after such appointment.

67. In view of the aforesaid discussion, the orders impugned are liable to be set-aside. Accordingly, the impugned order dated 08.09.2025 passed by Respondent No.4, order dated 26.08.2025 passed by Respondent No.1, order dated 30.08.2025, passed by respondent No.2 and order dated 01.09.2025, passed by Respondent No.3 are quashed.

68. With the aforesaid observations, these petitions are allowed.

69. Accordingly, all the benefits may be provided to the petitioners, for which they is entitled for.

70. The Court records its appreciation for the meticulous efforts and valuable assistance rendered by Ms. Anushka Gupta and Ms. Vaishnavi Kesarwani, Research Associates. The precision, clarity and exactitude reflected in the legal research and analysis submitted by them, demonstrates commendable attention to detail. The Court acknowledges their contribution in aiding the adjudication of the matter.

Versus

State of U.P. & Ors.

...Respondents

Issue(s) for consideration

Whether respondents can deprive the petitioner of his claim on compassionate appointment merely on the ground that on the date of registration of the adoption deed, the petitioner was a major?

Headnotes

A. Service Law – Hindu Adoptions and Maintenance Act, 1956: Section 16 – Presumption as to registered documents relating to adoption - It is not open to the respondents to deprive the petitioner for his claim on compassionate appointment merely on the ground that on the date of registration of the adoption deed, i.e., 15.05.2014, the petitioner was a major. The adoption deed on record clearly mentions that the adoption ceremony had taken place on the eve of Basant Panchami in the year 1997, when the petitioner was about six years old. (Para 11)

Thus, considering the provisions of the Act of 1956, including Section 16 which provides for presumption as to registered documents relating to adoption, the contention of the respondents that the adoption is invalid on account of the petitioner being a major on the date of registration is erroneous and cannot be a ground to deprive the petitioner of his claim for compassionate appointment on account of the demise of his adoptive mother, Smt. Sharda Devi, who was admittedly working as a Basic Health Worker under respondent No. 4. (Para 12)

Writ petition disposed of. (E-4)

C.S.C.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Karunesh Singh Pawar, J.)

1. Heard Mrs. Shraddha Tripathi, learned counsel for the petitioner and learned Additional C.S.C. appearing for the State-respondents.

2. By means of the present petition, the petitioner has prayed for a writ in the nature of mandamus commanding respondent No. 2 to consider his case for appointment under the Dying-in-Harness Rules in accordance with the order dated 04.07.2018 passed by the Inspector General (Stamp & Registration), Lucknow.

3. Submission of the learned counsel for the petitioner is that earlier the petitioner had filed Writ Petition No. 19158 (S/S) of 2017 (Ankit Kumar vs. State of U.P. & Ors.), which was decided vide judgment and order dated 18.09.2017, wherein a direction was issued to the Inspector General (Registration & Stamps) to examine the issue.

4. It is submitted that in compliance of the aforesaid order, the Inspector General (Registration & Stamps), vide order dated 04.07.2018, has upheld the validity of the adoption deed of the petitioner. Thus, it is prayed that respondent No. 2 be directed to consider the case of the petitioner for compassionate appointment.

5. Learned Standing Counsel appearing for the State has opposed the contention and submitted that on the date of registration of the adoption deed, i.e., 15.05.2014, the petitioner was a major and, therefore, his case could not be considered under the provisions of the Hindu Adoptions and Maintenance Act, 1956 (hereinafter referred to as "the Act of 1956").

6. Perused the record.

7. Although, considering the peculiar circumstances under which the petitioner's adoption was not in accordance with law, the direction for compassionate appointment was earlier refused, however, a direction was issued to the Inspector General (Registration & Stamps) to examine the issue. Relevant paragraphs 3 and 4 of the order dated 18.09.2017 are extracted hereinbelow:-

"3. Since the petitioner's adoption is not in accordance with law, as such no direction can be issued for grant of compassionate appointment, as is prayed in this matter. The order of Deputy Director (Administration) dated 21st June, 2017, therefore, does not require any interference and the challenge laid to the order fails.

4. A direction, however, is issued to the I.G. (Registration & Stamps) to examine the issue as to how a document of 1997 has been entertained for registration in 2014, without any orders passed by the competent court and appropriate steps, as may be required to be drawn to deal with the situation, shall be undertaken, within a period of two months from the date of presentation of certified copy of this order. Learned Standing Counsel is directed to communicate this order to the I.G. (Registration & Stamps), within a week from today."

8. In compliance of the order dated 18.09.2017 passed by the Court earlier, the Inspector General (Registration & Stamps), vide order dated 04.07.2018, has upheld the validity of the adoption deed. The said order is on record as Annexure No. 18 to the petition. A Co-ordinate Bench of this Court, while recalling the earlier order dated 11.03.2024 vide order dated 21.08.2025, has also noticed that the adoption deed has been held to be valid by the Inspector General (Registration & Stamps).

9. It has further been observed that since the present petition has been filed in terms of the order dated 04.07.2018, it constitutes a fresh cause of action and, therefore, the principle of res judicata would not apply, as enunciated by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Daryao vs. State of U.P., AIR 1961 SC 1457.

10. During the course of arguments, learned counsel for the petitioner has placed reliance upon the judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Prema Gopal vs. Central Adoption Resource Authority & Ors. (Special Leave to Appeal (C) No. 14886 of 2024, decided on 29.01.2025). Reliance has also been placed on the judgment of the Punjab and Haryana High Court at Chandigarh in Union of India and Another vs. Sukhpreet Kaur and Another (CWP No. 28074 of 2024, decided on 13.02.2025), wherein it has been held that once an adoption deed is registered, it would be presumed that a valid adoption has taken place with of course the right of rebuttal. Relevant paragraphs are extracted hereinbelow:-

"7. Once an adoption-deed is registered, it would be presumed that a valid adoption has taken place with, of course, the right of rebuttal. The provisions regarding such presumption are provided under Section 16 of the Act. The contention of the petitioners that the adoption of respondent no. 1 not being in accordance with law on the ground that she has attained the age of majority on the day of the registration of the adoption-deed, is also erroneous. The date of birth of the applicant-respondent no. 1 (Sukhpreet Kaur) is 23.03.1997. The registered adoption-deed reflects that the adoption had taken place on 12.01.2010 but the registration could not take place. It is a matter of common knowledge that so far as the School Education Boards are concerned, they would only recognize actual parents of a child for being mentioned in the certificate and the names of father and mother would change only on the presentation of a registered adoption-deed. In June, 2013, there was no registered adoption-deed and, therefore, it is natural that in the Punjab School Education Board Certificate, the names of original parents, instead of adoptive parents, of the applicant-respondent no. 1 were mentioned. The same would, therefore, not be a reason to deprive her claim for compassionate appointment on account of demise of her adoptive father Vijay Kumar, who was, admittedly, an employee of the Railways and had died while in service.

9. It may be pertinent to note that in a recent judgment passed in Special Leave to Appeal (C) No. 14886 of 2024 Prema Gopal v. Central Adoption Resource Authority dated 29.01.2025, the Apex Court considered the aspect with regard to relating back and held as under:?

"Learned counsel submitted that although the adoption of twin children in the instant case took place on the 09.01.2020, the Deed of Adoption was subsequently registered on 19.09.2022. He submitted that the said Deed of Adoption would relate back to 09.01.2020, on which date the religious ceremonies were performed in the presence of relatives and friends for the formal adoption of the children under the provisions of the HAMA, 1956. In the circumstances, Regulation 67 has to be read in a manner relatable to the date of adoption. although The submission of the learned counsel was that Deed of Adoption 19.09.2022 which is subsequent to the was registered on commencement of the Adoption (Amendment) Regulations, 2021, the said Deed of Adoption relates back to the date of adoption being 09.01.2020. In the circumstances, there can be no hurdle in the consideration of the case of the petitioner herein under Regulation 67 of the Regulations, 2022. Therefore, he urged that initially direction may be issued to respondent a no. 3/Collector, and respondent no. 2 as well, for the purpose of consideration of the case under Regulation 67 of the Regulations, 2022.

We are prima facie of the view that the learned counsel for the petitioner is right in his submissions."

11. In view of the aforesaid, it is not open to the respondents to deprive the petitioner for his claim on compassionate appointment merely on the ground that on the date of registration of the adoption deed, i.e., 15.05.2014, the petitioner was a major. The adoption deed on record clearly mentions that the adoption ceremony had taken place on the eve of Basant Panchami in the year 1997, when the petitioner was about six years old.

12. Thus, considering the provisions of the Act of 1956, including Section 16 which provides for presumption as to registered documents relating to adoption, the contention of the respondents that the adoption is invalid on account of the petitioner being a major on the date of registration is erroneous and cannot be a ground to deprive the petitioner of his claim for compassionate appointment on account of the demise of his adoptive mother, Smt. Sharda Devi, who was admittedly working as a Basic Health Worker under respondent No. 4.

13. In view of the peculiar facts and circumstances of the case, as well as the judgments referred to hereinabove, a writ of mandamus is issued to respondent No. 2 to consider the case of the petitioner for appointment under the Dying-in-Harness Rules.

14. The petitioner shall submit a fresh representation before respondent No. 2 within a period of two weeks from today. In case such a representation is submitted, the same shall be considered and a decision shall be taken within a further period of four weeks, in accordance with law, for making compassionate appointment.

15. The petition is, accordingly, disposed of.

Issue(s) for consideration

- (a) Whether a disciplinary authority can rely solely on an uncorroborated, opinion-based handwriting report to dismiss an employee, particularly when other primary modes of physical identification are available?
- (b) Whether an employee's admission regarding the authenticity of an official document legally equates to admitting that the internal findings and conclusions of that document are true, thereby waiving the right to cross-examination?
- (c) Whether a departmental inquiry fundamentally flawed if the employer suppresses or ignores primary biometric and eyewitness indicators (thumbprints, verified photos, and invigilator testimony) tied to its own verification process?

Headnotes

A. Service Law – The three petitioners were recruited as Clerks (Assistants) by the State Bank of India (SBI) through a competitive selection process initiated via an advertisement dated 08.08.2009. They successfully cleared the written examination held on 08.11.2009, passed their interviews, and were appointed in late 2010. Following a successful six-month probation period, they were confirmed in service by May 2011. In 2012–2013, following external complaints alleging fraudulent recruitment, the Bank placed the petitioners under suspension. SBI subsequently issued a charge-sheet on July 11, 2013, accusing them of adopting unfair means and hiring impersonators to take the written examination on their behalf.

The Bank's case rested entirely on a report dated 19.11.2012, from a Forensic Science Laboratory handwriting expert, which concluded that the signatures on the written exam call letters did not match the petitioners' genuine signatures. No other departmental witnesses were examined. Based solely on this report, the Regional Manager dismissed the petitioners from service on 17.01.2014, and the Deputy General Manager rejected their subsequent statutory appeal on 11.03.2015. The petitioners moved the High Court to challenge these orders.

B.(i) A handwriting expert's report is a document prepared by a specialist, analysing handwriting or documents to help resolve disputes. Its nature as evidence is opinion-based. The opinion of handwriting expert is based on familiarity resulting from frequent observation and experience. The science of handwriting recognition is not a perfected proposition. (Para 11)

In disciplinary proceedings, the question to be probed is targeted towards finding as to whether the employee is guilty of misconduct as would merit punishment. It will depend on the facts and circumstances of each case, which are sufficient for the employee to be punished. (Para 12)

While passing the impugned order dated 17.01.2014, findings are based on handwriting expert report without there being any independent finding being recorded by the Enquiry Officer or the disciplinary authority. The disciplinary authority while passing the impugned order further has not taken into consideration the effect of thumb impression and the photograph of petitioners on call letter. In the disciplinary proceedings, handwriting expert was never examined, and was not permitted to be cross-examined by the employee/petitioners. (Para 13, 14, 15, 19, 23, 24)

Petitioners argued that the request was made to the Enquiry Officer for examination of the invigilator, however, aforesaid request was not accepted by the Enquiry Officer. The invigilator verified the photograph, thumb impression as well as signature of petitioners on the call letter of written examination and as such, he was the best person to have certified the presence of petitioners at the time of written examination. In reply submitted by petitioners, a specific stand was taken for cross-examination of invigilator, however, the aforesaid fact was ignored in the enquiry proceedings. (Para 24)

The impugned order of dismissal has been passed relying on mismatch of signature of petitioners on call letter with sample signatures based on report of handwriting expert. The other two factors (photograph and thumb impression) which were also the factor of identification of petitioners, had not been considered. (Para 16, 27, 28)

B.(ii) In disciplinary proceedings, "preponderance of probability" is the legal standard of proof used to determine if an employee is guilty of misconduct. It means that, based on the evidence presented, it is more likely than not that the alleged incident occurred. The decision is to be based on a careful weighing of all available facts and circumstances. The scales are to be perfectly balanced and all evidences, facts and circumstances must be considered to come to finding of misconduct. (Para 17)

It was imperative for respondent-Bank to have verified participation of petitioners in written examination by verifying all factors/modes of identification of petitioners w.r.t. his presence at the time of written examination. The respondent-Bank by doubting the candidature of petitioners is in fact challenging it's own examination process and the verification conducted by invigilator appointed by respondent-Bank. It is not the case of respondent-Bank that the recruitment department has reported any fault in the examination process. (Para 18)

C. If a party admits to the documents authenticity and genuineness thereby accepts that the document, was signed by the person it claims to be signed by, and is not a forgery. However, the aforesaid would not amount to admitting that the information, allegations, contents or statements written in the document are true or accurate. It is to be seen that accepting the authenticity of handwriting expert report would only mean that the handwriting expert report has been submitted by the authority concerned and the aforesaid would not have effect to have admitted the contents of handwriting expert report. The acceptance of the authenticity and genuineness of the handwriting expert report would not have the effect that the department would not give opportunity to delinquent employee to cross examine the hand writing expert. (Para 21)

D. The right to cross-examine the witnesses is an essential part of the doctrine of fairness and principles of natural justice. It is settled law that departmental proceedings should be fair, just and reasonable. The principle of natural justice is required to be followed at each step in departmental proceeding so that right of an employee to defend may not be prejudiced. Even in the memo of appeal preferred by petitioners, they had raised the issue with regard to non-production of handwriting expert for cross-examination before appellate authority, however, the appellate authority has brushed aside the aforesaid contention of petitioners on the ground that petitioners have admitted the genuineness and authenticity of handwriting expert report. The aforesaid finding of appellate authority is not sustainable in the eyes of law in view of the reasoning given hereinabove. (Para 22)

E. It is to be seen that the disciplinary proceedings are initiated to enquire into the alleged misconduct of an employee and come to a fair finding of fact w.r.t. the misconduct alleged to have been conducted by the employee. The employer is expected in the disciplinary proceeding to bring the best available evidence to prove the charge of misconduct against an employee. In the present case, neither invigilator was examined as a witness in support of departmental charge-sheet nor impugned order of dismissal has taken into consideration the endorsement of invigilator on the call letter for written examination that the thumb impression, photograph and signature were verified by invigilator. (Para 25)

In view of the above-mentioned reasoning, the impugned order dated 17.01.2014 passed by respondent no.4 and order dated 11.03.2015 passed by respondent no.3 are set aside. Liberty granted to respondent-Bank to hold disciplinary proceeding afresh against petitioners. (Para 29)

Writ petition allowed. (E-4)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Vikram D. Chauhan, J.)

1. Heard Sri Siddharth Khare, learned counsel for petitioners and Sri Ashutosh Mishra, learned counsel for respondent-Bank

2. The writ petition is preferred by petitioners challenging the order dated 17.1.2014 passed by respondent no.4-Regional Manager, State Bank of India, Regional Business Office, Meerut and order dated 11.3.2015 passed by respondent no.3-Deputy General Manager (B&O), Administrative Office, Noida.

3. The brief facts of the case are that:

(i) An advertisement dated 8.8.2009 was issued by respondent Bank for recruitment to the post of Clerk in State Bank of India. In pursuance to said advertisement, petitioner no.1-Sachin Kumar and petitioner no.2-Sanjeev Kumar applied under general category, while petitioner no.3-Vipin Kumar applied under Schedule Caste category. In pursuance to above-mentioned advertisement, petitioners appeared in written examination. Call letters of petitioners are annexed as Annexure Nos.2A, 2B and 2C to the writ petition. The result of written examination was declared on 3.3.2010 and petitioners were declared successful in aforesaid written examination.

Thereafter, petitioner no.1 appeared for interview on 1.5.2010, while petitioner no.3 appeared for interview on 27.4.2010 and petitioner no.2 also appeared for interview. Final result of above-mentioned recruitment process was declared on 29.9.2010 wherein petitioners were selected for appointment on the above-mentioned post.

(ii) In pursuance to above-mentioned selection of petitioners, petitioner no.1 submitted his joining on 18.12.2010 as Assistant in Baraut main branch, while petitioner no.2 submitted his joining at Agrawal Mandi, Tatri, District Baghpat and petitioner no.3 submitted his joining at Kotana Branch, District Baghpat. Initially, petitioners were appointed on probation for six months, however, after completion of aforesaid period, petitioners were confirmed in service.

(iii) On 9.10.2013, a notice was issued to petitioner nos. 1 and 3 to the effect that a complaint has been received with regard to fraudulent appointment in the bank. The petitioner nos.1 and 3 submitted reply denying the allegations of complaint. Petitioner nos.1 and 3 were thereafter suspended by means of order dated 16.1.2013, while petitioner no.2 was suspended by means of order dated 15.5.2012. The suspension of petitioners were based on allegation of fraudulent appointment in bank service by adopting unfair means.

(iv) Petitioner nos.1 and 3 being aggrieved by above-mentioned suspension order had preferred Writ-A No.19868 of 2013 (Sachin Kumar and 2 others Vs. S.B.I. Thru Chairman and 2 others). The aforesaid writ petition was disposed of by means of order dated 12.4.2013, whereby, this Court issued directions to the respondent-Bank that the disciplinary proceedings against petitioners be concluded preferably within three months from the date of presentation of certified copy of the order.

(v) Petitioners were issued charge-sheet dated 11.7.2013 in disciplinary proceedings. Charge against petitioners were with respect to obtaining appointment in Bank service by adopting unfair means/impersonation while attempting an examination which was held on 8.11.2009. Petitioners thereafter preferred reply to the above-mentioned charge-sheet denying allegations. Petitioners also sought for details of the complainant and copy of the complaint in respect of which disciplinary proceedings were initiated against petitioners. Petitioners also sought for cross-examination of complainant as well as the invigilator before whom petitioners appeared in written examination. Thereafter, respondents appointed an Enquiry Officer to enquire into allegations against petitioners.

(vi) Petitioners participated in disciplinary/enquiry proceedings. Thereafter, a show cause notice was issued to petitioners, which was replied by petitioners. Respondents by impugned order dated 17.1.2014 dismissed the petitioners from service. Petitioners being aggrieved by above-mentioned order dated 17.1.2014 preferred an appeal before respondent no.3. The aforesaid appeal of petitioners were rejected by order dated 11.3.2015 passed by respondent no 3.

4. It is submitted by learned counsel for petitioners that petitioners were working on the post of Clerk in the respondent-Bank after having been duly selected. A complaint was received by respondent-Bank against petitioners and on the aforesaid basis, disciplinary proceedings were initiated against petitioners and a charge sheet was issued on the ground that petitioners had adopted unfair means and impersonation while attempting the written examination, which was held on 8.11.2009. Petitioners filed their reply denying the aforesaid allegations and disciplinary proceedings were held. The department produced handwriting expert report to substantiate the charge against petitioners that petitioners were not the person, who had appeared in the written examination held on 8.11.2009.

4-A. Learned counsel for petitioners submits that in the departmental proceedings no departmental witness was produced and the order of dismissal from service was passed against the petitioners. Thereafter, petitioners had filed an appeal. In the appeal, a specific ground was raised by petitioners that the handwriting expert was never permitted to be cross-examined. However, appellate authority has denied the aforesaid on the ground that the authenticity and genuineness of the handwriting expert report was not denied by petitioners as such there was no requirement for cross-examining the handwriting expert. The report of handwriting expert is only an opinion. The written examination was conducted by recruitment department of Bank and invigilator was present and admit card was signed in presence of invigilator, as such, it was imperative for department to have examined the invigilator as a department witness.

4-B. It is further submitted by learned counsel for petitioners that invigilator was never examined, who was the best person to substantiate the allegations. There was thumb impression on the admit card, which was also taken in presence of invigilator and aforesaid would have also been an indicative factor to be considered whether the petitioners had participated in the written examination. Mere relying upon report of handwriting expert, who was never cross-examined and was never produced as department witness would not be tenable under law. The request for examination of invigilator was also made, however, the same has also been turned down. In the facts and circumstances of the case, the manner in which the departmental proceedings have been proceeded is surrounded with suspicious circumstances as the department could have produced the invigilator, who was present at the time of examination, who was employee of Bank and examination was conducted by the recruitment department of the Bank and as such mere relying upon the handwriting expert report is not sustainable.

4-C. Learned counsel for petitioners has relied upon the judgment of this Court in Ran Vijay Singh and others Vs. Union of India and others, 2018 (6) ADJ 369, Union of India and others Vs. Devendra Kumar Chaudhary and others, 2018 (9) ADJ 570 and order dated 15.11.2022 passed in Writ-A No.8534 of 2018, (Ravi Kumar Yadav Vs. Union of India and 4 others).

4-D. Learned counsel for petitioners submits that while submitting reply to charge sheet, specific stand was taken for cross-examination of the invigilator, who was present at the time of examination. The punishment order mechanically relies upon the handwriting expert report without recording its independent finding.

5. Learned counsel for respondent-Bank has opposed the writ petition and submits that the handwriting expert report was the evidence found against petitioners in the disciplinary proceedings and on the aforesaid basis, the petitioners' services have been dispensed with and the appeal has been rejected. Petitioner have accepted the authenticity and genuineness of the handwriting expert report, as such, once the document has been accepted as authentic and genuine, then requirement of cross-examination of handwriting expert would not arise.

6. Petitioners had appeared in a recruitment drive initiated by the respondent Bank for the post of Clerk in State Bank of India. Petitioners participated in written examination held on 18.11.2009 and were issued call letter for written examination which are Annexure Nos.2A, 2B and 2C to the writ petition. A perusal of the aforementioned call letter for written examination would go to show that call letter contained signature of petitioners as well as of Invigilator. The aforesaid call letter also carried thumb impression of petitioners made in the presence of Invigilator (as per call letter). The call letter also contained photograph of petitioners. Petitioners after the written examination were declared successful and, thereafter, were called for interview. The final result was declared on 29.9.2010 wherein all the petitioners stood selected for appointment. Petitioners were issued appointment letter and, thereafter, submitted their joining in the year 2010. Petitioners completed their probation successfully and after completion of probation period were confirmed in service by order dated 9.5.2011.

7. The respondent-Bank initiated disciplinary proceedings against the petitioners on the ground that petitioners had adopted unfair means and impersonation while attempting written examination for the post in question with the respondent-Bank. Petitioners denied the allegations made in the charge-sheet issued to the petitioners. The employer relied upon the report of handwriting expert dated 19.11.2012 to substantiate charges against petitioners with regard to unfair means and impersonation. The handwriting expert compared signature of petitioners on call letter for written examination with other signature and thereafter came to conclusion that signature on call letter was not written by the same person as the other signature.

8. It is not in dispute between the parties that except for above-mentioned handwriting expert report, no departmental witness was examined nor other material was relied upon by employer in support of the charges. The dismissal order dated 17.1.2014 was passed against petitioners solely relying upon handwriting expert report issued by the Forensic Science Laboratory.

9. The primary submission of learned counsel for petitioners is to the effect that the handwriting expert report was only an opinion and it was imperative on the part of department to have relied upon substantive evidence with regard to allegation to corroborate the conclusion arrived by the handwriting expert.

10. Learned counsel for respondent submitted that the handwriting expert report was the only evidence found against petitioners in the disciplinary proceeding and the same was enough for passing the dismissal order against petitioners.

11. A handwriting expert's report is a document prepared by a specialist, analysing handwriting or documents to help resolve disputes. Its nature as evidence is opinion-based. The opinion of handwriting expert is based on familiarity resulting from frequent observation and experience. The science of handwriting recognition is not a perfected proposition. The Hon^{ble}le

Supreme Court in Murari Lal Vs State of Madhya Pradesh, AIR 1980 SC 531 with regard to the value of a handwriting expert has observed as under :-

“We are firmly of the opinion that there is no rule of law, nor any rule of prudence which has crystalized into a rule of law, that opinion-evidence of a handwriting expert must never be acted upon, unless substantially corroborated. But, having due regard to the imperfect nature of the science of identification of handwriting, the approach, as we indicated earlier, should be one of caution. Reasons for the opinion must be carefully probed and examined. All other relevant evidence must be considered. In appropriate cases, corroboration may be sought. In cases where the reasons for the opinion are convincing and there is no reliable evidence throwing a doubt, the uncorroborated testimony of an handwriting expert may be accepted. There cannot be any inflexible rule on a matter which, in the ultimate analysis, is no more than a question of testimonial weight. We have said so much because this is an argument frequently met with in subordinate courts and sentences torn out of context from the judgments of this Court are often flaunted.□”

12. In view of above mentioned, handwriting expert opinion is not a perfected proposition and is based on science of comparison and observation. In disciplinary proceedings, the question to be probed is targeted towards finding as to whether the employee is guilty of misconduct as would merit punishment. The standard of proof is based on preponderance of probability. It will depend on the facts and circumstances of each case, which are sufficient for the employee to be punished. The question whether the report of handwriting expert itself can be enough to proceed against the employee and disciplinary proceedings will depend on the facts and circumstances of each case.

13. It is admitted case that in the disciplinary proceedings, handwriting expert was never examined. The aforesaid expert further was not permitted to be cross-examined by the employee/petitioners. Further, the call letter on which the disputed signature of petitioners was examined by the handwriting expert also contained the photograph, thumb impression of petitioners. The aforesaid call letter for written examination, also stated that thumb impression of petitioners was made in the presence of Invigilator and signature of petitioners on call letter was also obtained in the presence of invigilator. Further, invigilator has also certified that signature of petitioners was obtained in his presence and photograph of petitioners on call letter for written examination was verified by invigilator.

14. No explanation is offered by counsel for respondent-Bank as to why the invigilator was not witnessed in departmental proceedings. The respondent-Bank has also not disputed the fact that signature & thumb impression of petitioners were obtained in presence of invigilator (as has been stated in the call letter). Further, counsel for respondent-Bank has not explained the fact that the photograph of petitioners has been verified by invigilator (as has been noted in the call letter itself). No dispute has been raised before this Court by counsel for respondent-Bank that the photograph of call letter does not belong to petitioners. It is important to note that recruitment to the post in question was carried on by the respondent-Bank itself through its recruitment department.

15. It is important to note that while passing the impugned order dated 17.1.2014, findings are based on handwriting expert report without there being any independent finding being recorded by the Enquiry Officer or the disciplinary authority. The disciplinary authority while passing the impugned order further has not taken into consideration the effect of thumb impression and the photograph of petitioners on call letter.

16. The examination for recruitment in the Banks is required to be free and fair. If the examination is found to be unfair then it was for the examining body to have reported the same. Various mechanisms were embedded in the examination process to verify the identity of candidate as the call letter contained photograph of petitioners (verified by Invigilator), thumb impression and signature of petitioners. The impugned order of dismissal has been passed relying on mismatch of signature of petitioners on call letter with sample signatures based on report of handwriting expert. The other two factors (photograph and thumb impression) which were also the factor of identification of petitioners, had not been considered while passing the impugned order.

17. In disciplinary proceedings, "preponderance of probability" is the legal standard of proof used to determine if an employee is guilty of misconduct. It means that, based on the evidence presented, it is more likely than not that the alleged incident occurred. The decision is to be based on a careful weighing of all available facts and circumstances. The scales are to be perfectly balanced and all evidences, facts and circumstances must be considered to come to finding of misconduct.

18. It was imperative for respondent-Bank to have verified participation of petitioners in written examination by verifying all factors/modes of identification of petitioners with regard to his presence at the time of written examination. The respondent-Bank by doubting the candidature of petitioners is in fact challenging it's own examination process and the verification conducted by invigilator appointed by respondent-Bank. It is not the case of respondent-Bank that the recruitment department has reported any fault in the examination process.

19. The handwriting expert was not examined in disciplinary proceedings. The report of handwriting expert, which is not subjected to cross-examination by employee is a weak piece of evidence, more particularly when the call letter provides other modes of identification i.e. thumb impression and photograph, which were verified by invigilator. The circumstances and facts of the present case do not warrant that a mere handwriting expert report be concluded as conclusive evidence in respect of passing the impugned order against petitioners. The disciplinary proceedings scope should have been wide enough to have considered all the evidences, material, facts and circumstances with regard to identification of petitioners to have participated in the written examination conducted by Bank, however, in the present case handwriting expert report has only been considered, which is in the nature of the opinion and was not even subjected to cross-examination.

20. One of arguments raised by learned counsel for respondent-Bank was to the effect that the cross-examination of handwriting expert was not required as the petitioners admitted the authenticity and genuineness of handwriting expert report.

21. It is to be seen that accepting the authenticity of handwriting expert report would only mean that the handwriting expert report has been submitted by the authority concerned and the aforesaid would not have effect to have admitted the contents of handwriting expert report. It is settled law that if a party admits to the documents authenticity and genuineness thereby accepts that the document, was signed by the person it claims to be signed by, and is not a forgery. However, the aforesaid would not amount to admitting that the information, allegations, contents or statements written in the document are true or accurate. Petitioners were not given any opportunity by respondent-Bank to cross-examine the handwriting expert, who has submitted the report. The acceptance of the authenticity and genuineness of the handwriting expert report would not have the effect that the department would not give opportunity to delinquent employee to cross examine the hand writing expert.

22. The right to cross-examine the witnesses is an essential part of the doctrine of fairness and principles of natural justice. It is settled law that departmental proceedings should be fair, just and reasonable. The principle of natural justice is required to be followed at each step in departmental proceeding so that right of an employee to defend may not be prejudiced. Even in the memo of appeal preferred by petitioners, they had raised the issue with regard to non-production of handwriting expert for cross-examination before appellate authority, however, the appellate authority has brushed aside the aforesaid contention of petitioners on the ground that petitioners have admitted the genuineness and authenticity of handwriting expert report. The aforesaid finding of appellate authority is not sustainable in the eyes of law in view of the reasoning given hereinabove.

23. The fact that handwriting expert was not cross-examined coupled with the fact that other factors of identification of petitioners, which were available were not part of disciplinary proceedings and further such factors and circumstances were not considered by disciplinary authority and only relying upon the handwriting expert report, which is not the perfect science, the drawing of conclusion by respondent authorities would not be fair more particularly when the petitioners had already been appointed and were working in the Bank after due verification of the records and no complaint has been sent by the recruitment department of the Bank that the recruitment process was tainted by the petitioners. Further the respondent-Bank has not examined the invigilator in disciplinary proceeding, who was present at the time of examination and has identified the petitioners.

24. Learned counsel for petitioners has further raised argument that the request was made to the Enquiry Officer for examination of the invigilator, however, aforesaid request was not accepted by the Enquiry Officer. The invigilator verified the photograph, thumb impression as well as signature of petitioners on the call letter of written examination and as such, he was the best person to have certified the presence of petitioners at the time of written examination. In reply submitted by petitioners, a specific stand was taken for cross-examination of invigilator, however, the aforesaid fact was ignored in the enquiry proceedings.

25. It is to be seen that the disciplinary proceedings are initiated to enquire into the alleged misconduct of an employee and come to a fair finding of fact with regard to the misconduct alleged to have been conducted by the employee. The employer is expected in the disciplinary proceeding to bring the best available evidence to prove the charge of misconduct against an employee. In the present case, neither invigilator was examined as a witness in support of departmental charge-sheet nor impugned order of dismissal has taken into consideration the endorsement of invigilator on the call letter for written examination that the thumb impression, photograph and signature were verified by invigilator. Although in counter affidavit filed by respondent-Bank, it is stated that in the case of petitioner no.2-Sanjeev Kumar, fingerprint expert report was obtained, however, the aforesaid report is not part of disciplinary proceedings and as such, the same could not have been relied upon before this court for the first time.

26. A perusal of impugned order would further go to show that no independent finding has been recorded by disciplinary authority as to why handwriting expert report has been accepted by the disciplinary authority and further no reasons have been recorded in the impugned order as to why other identification marks (thumb impression and photograph verified by Invigilator) were not considered by disciplinary authority when the same has not been disputed by respondent-Bank.

27. The judgment of Lalit Popli Vs Canara Bank, 2003(3) SCC 583 relied upon by counsel for respondent-Bank in the facts of said case other evidence were also read as has been stated in paragraph 4 of the aforesaid judgment and further the court in aforesaid judgment especially recorded that disciplinary authority took pains to carefully consider the handwriting expert report and also looked at the documents to arrive at its own conclusion and, therefore, the aforesaid judgment relied upon by counsel for respondent-Bank is distinguishable from the facts and circumstances of present case. In the present case, it is not disputed by counsel for respondent-Bank that during enquiry proceedings no opportunity was given to the petitioners to cross-examine the handwriting expert, who has prepared the handwriting expert report. Further, no independent finding is recorded by disciplinary authority in the impugned order as to why report of handwriting expert is found acceptable despite the fact that in disciplinary proceedings the employer has not doubted the thumb impression and photograph of petitioners on call letter which was verified by invigilator.

28. The only material relied upon by respondent-Bank while passing the impugned order of dismissal against petitioners is the report of handwriting expert. The aforesaid handwriting expert was not subjected to any cross-examination and as such, there was no opportunity for petitioners/employees to have demolished the handwriting expert report in the cross examination. Not providing an opportunity of cross-examination to petitioners on the pretext that handwriting expert report genuineness and authenticity was not disputed is not tenable under law as even if the document execution is not disputed the contents of document can always be subject matter of cross-examination to demolish the conclusion of handwriting expert and the same is essentially part of principles of natural justice. There was other material available on the basis of which the identity or presence of petitioners at the time of written examination could have been established as has been detailed herein above. The aforesaid factors have neither been considered in the impugned order nor any evidence in this respect is led in the disciplinary proceeding.

29. In view of the above-mentioned reasoning, the impugned order dated 17.1.2014 passed by respondent no.4 and order dated 11.3.2015 passed by respondent no.3 are hereby set aside. The nature of allegation made against petitioners are serious in nature and as such, liberty stands granted to respondent-Bank to hold disciplinary proceeding afresh against petitioners and respondent-Bank shall also be at liberty to place the petitioners under suspension after reinstatement of petitioners. If the respondent-Bank takes a decision to hold the enquiry afresh then all the materials with regard to identity of petitioners at the time of written examination including photograph, thumb impression and signature would be taken into consideration.

30. The writ petition is allowed with aforesaid directions.

Issue(s) for consideration

- (a) Whether a meticulous adherence to a selection procedure under an inapplicable rule framework validate an appointment or generate an enforceable legal right?
- (b) Whether the Commissioner lacked jurisdiction to interfere in the functioning of the institution or to direct cancellation of the appointment in question?
- (c) Whether the impugned order has been passed in violation of principles of natural justice?
- (d) Whether the impugned order is a non-speaking one?

Headnotes

A. Service Law – Anglo Junior High School Persia, Gorakhpur, was initially recognized under the U.P. Basic Education Act, 1972, and came into the State's grant-in-aid list in 1980–81. In the year 2006, the school was upgraded to a High School under the U.P. Intermediate Education Act, 1921. Between 2008 and 2012, five sanctioned teachers retired. To fill these vacancies, the Committee of Management sought permission from the District Basic Education Officer (BSA), who granted permission to advertise the posts on 25.06.2015.

The selection process was conducted in August 2015 under the U.P. Recognized Basic Schools (Junior High Schools) (Recruitment and Conditions of Service of Teachers) Rules, 1978. The four petitioners (who were fully qualified (Graduates with B.Ed. and TET certificates)) were selected by a committee that included a nominee of the BSA. They joined the institution at the end of August 2015. Following a complaint by a third party, the Divisional Commissioner of Gorakhpur ordered an inquiry. Based on the subsequent inquiry report, the Assistant Director of Education (Basic) directed the BSA to remove the teachers. Consequently, on 10.12.2015, the BSA issued the impugned order terminating the services of the petitioners and cancelling their appointments.

B. Compliance with a procedure under an inapplicable statutory framework does not cure the inherent lack of jurisdiction. Appointments made in contravention of statutory provisions are illegal and do not confer any enforceable right. (Para 25)

Once the institution stood upgraded, all appointments were necessarily required to be made strictly in accordance with the statutory provisions governing such upgraded institutions. The appointments of the petitioners have been made under the provisions of the Rules of 1978, which are wholly inapplicable to the institution in question. Upon its upgradation, the institution is governed by the provisions of the U.P.

Intermediate Education Act, 1921 r/w the Rules of 1982, and any appointment was required to be made strictly in accordance therewith. (Para 41, 42, 44)

Thus, even if the entire procedure under the 1978 Rules was meticulously followed, the same would not validate an appointment which ought to have been made in accordance with the statutory regime governing secondary institutions. (Para 29, 30, 34, 36)

C. Jurisdiction of Commissioner - Where an appointment is ex facie contrary to statutory provisions, the competent authority is not rendered powerless to annul the same. The impugned action reflects an exercise of supervisory and corrective jurisdiction to rectify a patent illegality in the matter of appointment. Petitioners have failed to demonstrate any statutory embargo restraining such exercise of power. Even assuming, for the sake of argument, that the Commissioner could not have interfered in matters strictly governed by the applicable statutory rules, the present case does not fall in that category, as the very foundation of the appointments is contrary to the statutory scheme. (Para 31, 39)

D. Principles of natural justice are not to be applied in a straitjacket formula. Where the admitted or undisputed facts lead to only one inevitable conclusion, and no prejudice is demonstrably caused, the requirement of affording a prior opportunity of hearing may be dispensed with. (Para 37)

In the present case, the foundational facts, namely the upgradation of the institution to a High School and the consequent applicability of a different statutory regime, are not in dispute. Once the institution stood upgraded, the field stood governed by the statutory provisions applicable to High Schools, and not by the Rules of 1978. The appointments of the petitioners, having been made dehors the governing statutory framework, are thus rendered ex facie illegal. In such circumstances, no useful purpose would have been served by affording an opportunity of hearing. The plea of violation of natural justice, therefore, does not persuade this Court to interfere. (Para 32, 38)

E. Mere brevity of the order does not render it invalid when the underlying illegality is apparent. The basis of cancellation, namely non-adherence to the applicable statutory provisions, is clearly discernible from the record. The impugned orders sufficiently indicate that the appointments were not made in accordance with the statutory provisions applicable to institutions governed by the relevant enactments, including the Act, 1921 and the Act, 1982 (Para 33, 40)

F. Where the substantive action itself is contrary to the governing statute, this Court would be loath to exercise its discretionary writ jurisdiction to grant relief on technical or procedural grounds. In present case, even though certain grounds have been urged with regard to lack of jurisdiction and the impugned order being nonspeaking in nature, the same pale into insignificance and do not merit adjudication. (Para 43)

Applicability of recruitment rules is dependent upon the status of the institution on the date of appointment. Thus, the entire proceedings culminating in the appointments of the petitioners stand vitiated in the eyes of law, being dehors the applicable statutory framework. (Para 45, 46)

Writ petition dismissed. (E-4)

Appearances for Parties

For Petitioner(s): Sudeep Dwivedi

For Respondent(s): Arun Kumar, Ashish Kumar (nagvanshi), C.S.C., S.p.k. Tripathi

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Manju Rani Chauhan, J.)

Order on Impleadment Application

1. Heard learned counsel for the petitioners and learned counsel for the respondents.

2. The impleadment application has been moved for impleading Manish Kumar and Durgesh Dhar as respondents No. 7 & 8 as they are the persons who participated in the selections, but have been declared unsuccessful and made a complaint regarding the selection proceeding. Therefore, as complainants, they cannot be permitted to be arrayed as party. They can also not be permitted on the ground that they have not challenged the appointment of the petitioners on any ground which was the option left to them.

3. Accordingly, the impleadment application is rejected.

Order on petition

1. Heard learned counsel for the petitioners and Mr. Shailendra Singh, learned Standing Counsel for the State-respondents.

2. The present petition has been filed, with a prayer to quash the orders dated 2.12.2015 and 10.12.2015, passed by respondents No. 3 & 4, respectively, with a further prayer to direct the respondents not to interfere in the peaceful functioning of the petitioners as Assistant Teachers in the concerned institution and also make payment as and when it comes due.

3. Learned counsel for the petitioner submits that the institution of respondent No.6, namely, Anglo Junior High School Persia, Gorakhpur is an institution, established up to Junior High School level and the said institution was recognized under U.P. Basic Education Act, 1972 (in short 'Act, 1972') and appointment of teachers are being made under the U.P. Recognized Basic Education (Junior High School) (Recruitment and Conditions of Service of Teachers) Rules, 1978 (in short 'Rules, 1978').

4. The aforesaid institution came into grant-in-aid list in 1980-81 up to Junior High School. Initially one post of Head Master and four posts of Assistant Teachers were sanctioned. However, by order of respondent No.3 dated 31.3.2019, one extra post of Assistant Teacher was sanctioned. Accordingly, five teachers, namely, Radhey Shyam Mishra, Shiv Shankar, Moti Yadav, Ravindra Rai and Ram Kripal Maurya, who were getting salary under the Rules, 1978 in the Junior High School, retired in the year 2008, 2009, 2010, 2011 and 2012, respectively.

5. The institution was upgraded up to High School level under the U.P. Intermediate Education Act and was granted recognition up to the aforesaid level in the year 2006. After upgradation of the institution up to High School level, as there was no provision of creation of posts, therefore, in order to fill up the aforesaid vacant posts, due to retirement of five teachers as named above, who were drawing salary under the Rules, 1978, a permission was taken for advertising the aforesaid posts of four teachers. The District Basic Education Officer granted permission for advertisement by order dated 25.6.2015. Accordingly, the advertisement was published in two newspapers, namely, Aaj and Swatantra Chetna on 27.6.2015.

6. The petitioners, being duly qualified with a Graduation degree, B.Ed. training qualification, and having also qualified the Teacher Eligibility Test (TET), were selected and appointed to the post of Assistant Teacher after undergoing due selection before the duly constituted Selection Committee. Their appointments were accorded approval vide order dated 25.08.2015, pursuant where to the Committee of Management issued formal appointment letters of even date, i.e., 25.08.2015, in favour of the petitioners.

7. Thereafter, the candidates who had applied appeared before the duly constituted Selection Committee, formed in accordance with the relevant statutory provisions. The Committee comprised the Manager, the Headmaster, and a nominee of the District Basic Shiksha Adhikari, Gorakhpur—namely, the Deputy Education Officer, Shri Parasnath Kushwaha.

8. Thereafter, the petitioners duly joined the institution as Assistant Teachers on 28/31.08.2015 and have been continuously discharging their duties since then.

9. Upon a complaint lodged by one Udhay Narayan Mishra, who had earlier instituted proceedings before the court below, the Commissioner, Gorakhpur Mandal, Gorakhpur, initiated an enquiry and, vide order dated 24.11.2015, directed the Assistant Director of Education (Basic) to submit a report with respect to the said complaint.

10. Pursuant thereto, the Assistant Director of Education (Basic) called for a report from the District Basic Education Officer, who, in turn, submitted the same. Relying upon the said report, the Assistant Director of Education, Mandal, thereafter passed an order dated 02.12.2015 directing the District Basic Education Officer, Gorakhpur, to take steps for removal/termination of the petitioners from service. Subsequently, the District Basic Education Officer has passed the impugned order dated 10.12.2015, whereby the services of the petitioners have been terminated; in effect, their appointments have been cancelled.

11. The aforesaid orders have been assailed, inter alia, on the ground that the Commissioner lacked inherent jurisdiction to issue directions to the Assistant Director of Education to initiate or pass such orders, thereby impermissibly interfering in the statutory functioning of the educational authorities governing appointments made under the provisions of the Act. It is contended that such interference is wholly without authority of law and renders the impugned orders ex facie illegal and without jurisdiction.

12. In support of the aforesaid submission, reliance has been placed upon the judgment rendered in Sunil Kumar Dubey v. State of U.P., Writ-A No. 23887 of 2009, decided on 06.04.2015, wherein it has been observed that the State Government does not possess any direct role or authority in matters pertaining to recruitment of teachers, non-teaching staff, or Class-IV employees, as such powers are statutorily vested in the competent educational authorities designated for the said purpose.

13. The learned counsel for the petitioners further submits that the impugned orders have been passed in flagrant violation of the principles of natural justice, inasmuch as no notice was ever issued nor any opportunity of hearing was afforded to the petitioners prior to the passing of the said orders.

14. It is further contended that the petitioners were duly appointed as Assistant Teachers strictly in accordance with the procedure prescribed under law. However, their services have been dispensed with without conducting any regular or detailed inquiry, as mandatorily required, before taking such an adverse action.

15. In view thereof, it is urged that the impugned orders, having been passed in breach of the settled legal principles and without adherence to the due process of law, are wholly arbitrary, unsustainable, and liable to be set aside as being bad in the eyes of law.

16. The impugned orders are wholly non-speaking in nature, bereft of any reasons whatsoever as to why the appointments of the appellants have been cancelled. Such orders, passed without disclosing the basis or rationale, fail to meet the essential requirement of reasoned decision-making.

17. Furthermore, the same have been issued without affording any proper notice or opportunity of hearing to the appellants, thereby rendering the action in clear violation of the principles of natural justice.

18. In consequence, the impugned orders, being arbitrary, unreasoned, and procedurally infirm, are unsustainable in the eyes of law and cannot be allowed to stand.

19. It is submitted by the learned Standing Counsel that it is an admitted position on record that the institution in question stood upgraded to a High School in the year 2006. Consequently, any appointment made thereafter could not have been governed by the provisions of the Uttar Pradesh Recognized Basic Schools (Junior High Schools) (Recruitment and Conditions of Service of Teachers) Rules, 1978, which are applicable only to institutions imparting education up to the Junior High School level.

20. He further submits that the controversy involved in the present case is no longer res integra and stands squarely covered by the judgment of this Court in Manju Awasthi v. State of U.P. reported in 2013 (3) ADJ 64 (DB), wherein it has been categorically held that the applicability of recruitment rules is dependent upon the status of the institution on the date of appointment. It has been authoritatively laid down that upon upgradation, the earlier statutory framework stands eclipsed and the field becomes governed by the provisions of the Uttar Pradesh Intermediate Education Act, 1921 and the Uttar Pradesh Secondary Education Services Selection Board Act, 1982.

21. Learned Standing Counsel further contends that the determinative factor is the date of appointment and not the stage at which the selection process may have been initiated. Thus, any appointment made subsequent to upgradation, by invoking the provisions of the 1978 Rules, is wholly without jurisdiction. Such an appointment, being in clear contravention of the statutory mandate, is void ab initio and confers no legal right upon the appointee.

22. The learned Standing Counsel has placed reliance upon the judgment rendered in Shailendra Pratap Singh vs. State of U.P., Writ A No. 6879 of 2012, decided on 3rd March, 2024 (Neutral Citation No. 2024 AHC-LKO-41360). In the said case, the impugned order arose out of a procedural irregularity in the appointment of a clerk, wherein the provisions of the Rules, 1984 were invoked for making such appointment.

23. The Court, upon due consideration, dismissed the petition holding that the provisions of the Rules, 1984 governing such appointments would not be applicable to an institution that had already been upgraded to the level of a High School. It was categorically observed that, upon such upgradation, the field stood occupied by the provisions of the U.P. Intermediate Education Act, 1921, and the appointments were required to be made strictly in accordance therewith.

24. Consequently, it was held that any appointment made de hors the applicable statutory framework, i.e., by erroneously invoking the Rules, 1984, stood vitiated in the eyes of law. Thus, in light of the settled legal position, the entire proceedings culminating in such appointment were rendered unsustainable.

25. He further submits that a batch of Special Appeals, the leading one being Special Appeal No. 503 of 2019 (Committee of Management, Standard Intermediate College, Mau, Aima and others vs. State of U.P. and others), has authoritatively delineated the statutory provisions applicable to institutions which were initially Junior High Schools but were subsequently upgraded to High Schools.

26. It is contended that the Court, in the aforesaid judgment, has clearly held that upon such upgradation, the earlier regulatory framework ceases to operate and the appointments are thereafter required to be made strictly in accordance with the provisions governing High Schools under the relevant Act and Rules.

27. On the strength of the said pronouncement, it is urged that if the applicable statutory scheme is correctly applied to the facts of the present case, the appointments of the petitioners are ex facie dehors the prescribed rules. Consequently, it is submitted that the petitioners are not entitled to any relief from this Court.

28. Heard learned counsel for the parties and perused the records.

29. The petitioner asserts that his appointment was made against vacancies arising on account of the retirement of four teachers, and that the entire selection process was conducted strictly in accordance with the provisions of the Uttar Pradesh Recognized Basic Schools (Junior High Schools) (Recruitment and Conditions of Service of Teachers) Rules, 1978.

30. He further submits that the vacancies in question were duly advertised and the selection was conducted strictly in accordance with the provisions of the Uttar Pradesh Recognized Basic Schools (Junior High Schools) (Recruitment and Conditions of Service of Teachers) Rules, 1978. It is contended that the competent authority, namely the Committee of Management, having adhered to the prescribed procedure, the appointment in question cannot be faulted.

31. It is next submitted that the Commissioner lacked jurisdiction to interfere in the functioning of the institution or to direct cancellation of the appointment in question.

32. Learned counsel further submits that the impugned order has been passed without holding any proper inquiry and without affording the petitioner an adequate opportunity of hearing, thereby being in clear violation of the principles of natural justice.

33. Lastly, it is urged that the impugned order is a non-speaking one, as it fails to disclose any cogent reasons, and is therefore liable to be set aside on this ground alone.

34. The principal submission advanced on behalf of the petitioner, that since the procedure prescribed under the 1978 Rules was duly followed, the appointment deserves protection, does not merit acceptance. The issue is not merely whether a procedure has been followed, but whether the correct statutory procedure has been adhered to. Once it is found that the 1978 Rules themselves were inapplicable, any adherence to the procedure prescribed thereunder becomes wholly inconsequential.

35. Compliance with a procedure under an inapplicable statutory framework does not cure the inherent lack of jurisdiction. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in State of Karnataka v. Umadevi reported in (2006) 4 SCC 1 has clearly held that appointments made in contravention of statutory provisions are illegal and do not confer any enforceable right.

36. Thus, even if the entire procedure under the 1978 Rules was meticulously followed, the same would not validate an appointment which ought to have been made in accordance with the statutory regime governing secondary institutions.

37. As regards the submission advanced by learned counsel for the petitioner on the alleged violation of the principles of natural justice, this Court finds that it is a settled proposition of law that such principles are not to be applied in a straitjacket formula. Where the admitted or undisputed facts lead to only one inevitable conclusion, and no prejudice is demonstrably caused, the requirement of affording a prior opportunity of hearing may be dispensed with.

38. In the present case, the foundational facts, namely the upgradation of the institution to a High School and the consequent applicability of a different statutory regime, are not in dispute. Once the institution stood upgraded, the field stood governed by the statutory provisions applicable to High Schools, and not by the Rules of 1978. The appointments of the petitioners, having been made dehors the governing statutory framework, are thus rendered ex facie illegal. In such circumstances, no useful purpose would have been served by affording an opportunity of hearing. The plea of violation of natural justice, therefore, does not persuade this Court to interfere.

39. As regards the contention pertaining to lack of jurisdiction of the Commissioner, the same is equally devoid of merit. The impugned action reflects an exercise of supervisory and corrective jurisdiction to rectify a patent illegality in the matter of appointment. It is well settled that where an appointment is ex facie contrary to statutory provisions, the competent authority is not rendered powerless to annul the same. The petitioners have failed to demonstrate any statutory embargo restraining such exercise of power. Even assuming, for the sake of argument, that the Commissioner could not have interfered in matters strictly governed by the applicable statutory rules, the present case does not fall in that category, as the very foundation of the appointments is contrary to the statutory scheme.

40. So far as the submission regarding the impugned orders being non-speaking is concerned, this Court finds that the basis of cancellation, namely non-adherence to the applicable statutory provisions, is clearly discernible from the record. Mere brevity of the order does not render it invalid when the underlying illegality is apparent. The impugned orders sufficiently indicate that the appointments were not made in accordance with the statutory provisions applicable to institutions governed by the relevant enactments, including the U.P. Intermediate Education Act, 1921 and the U.P. Secondary Education Services Selection Board Act, 1982.

41. The contention sought to be raised on behalf of the petitioners, attempting to justify the appointments under an inapplicable statutory regime, cannot be sustained. Once the institution stood upgraded, all appointments were necessarily required to be made strictly in accordance with the statutory provisions governing such upgraded institutions. Any deviation therefrom vitiates the very foundation of the appointment.

42. In the present case, it is evident that the procedure adopted for appointment of the petitioners is traceable to the rules governing Junior High Schools, which, in view of the upgradation, had already lost their applicability. Thus, the very foundation of the appointments stands vitiated, being dehors the statutory provisions in force.

43. In such circumstances, even though certain grounds have been urged with regard to lack of jurisdiction and the impugned order being non-speaking in nature, the same pale into insignificance and do not merit adjudication. It is well settled that where the substantive action itself is contrary to the governing statute, this Court would be loath to exercise its discretionary writ jurisdiction to grant relief on technical or procedural grounds.

44. Ultimately, this Court is of the considered opinion that the appointments of the petitioners have been made under the provisions of the Rules of 1978, which are wholly inapplicable to the institution in question. Upon its upgradation, the institution is governed by the provisions of the U.P. Intermediate Education Act, 1921 read with the Rules of 1982, and any appointment was required to be made strictly in accordance therewith.

45. This position stands settled by the judgment of this Court in Manju Awasthi v. State of U.P. reported in 2013 (3) ADJ 64 (DB), wherein it has been categorically held that the applicability of recruitment rules is dependent upon the status of the institution on the date of appointment.

46. Thus, in light of the settled proposition of law, the entire proceedings culminating in the appointments of the petitioners stand vitiated in the eyes of law, being dehors the applicable statutory framework.

47. In view of the aforesaid discussion, this Court is of the considered opinion that no illegality or infirmity can be said to exist in the impugned orders warranting interference under Article 226 of the Constitution of India.

48. Accordingly, the writ petition, being devoid of merit, is liable to be and is hereby dismissed. No order as to costs.

Issues for Consideration

(i) Whether a criminal revision under Section 102 of the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2015 is maintainable against an order of the Juvenile Justice Board when the statutory remedy of appeal under Section 101 of the Act has not been availed?

(ii) Whether the decision of the Supreme Court in Child in Conflict with Law through his Mother v. State of Karnataka permits bypassing the appellate remedy under Section 101 of the Act in every case?

(iii) Whether the order impugned in the revision was a non est order so as to justify direct invocation of revisional jurisdiction under Section 102 of the Act?

Headnotes

Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2015 — Ss. 101 and 102 — Criminal Revision — Maintainability — Statutory remedy of appeal — Bypassing appellate remedy — Permissibility.

HELD: Where the Act of 2015 provides a statutory remedy of appeal under Section 101 against an order passed by the Juvenile Justice Board, the revisional jurisdiction under Section 102 ordinarily cannot be invoked by bypassing such remedy. In the absence of exceptional circumstances, a revision filed directly before the High Court without exhausting the statutory appellate remedy is not maintainable. The impugned order ought to have been challenged before the appellate authority constituted under Section 101 of the Act. [Paras 9, 10, 14 and 15]

Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2015 — Ss. 101 and 102 — Revision — Exception carved out by Supreme Court — Non est order — Scope.

HELD: The observations of the Supreme Court in Child in Conflict with Law through his Mother v. State of Karnataka do not lay down that a revision under Section 102 is maintainable in every case notwithstanding the availability of an appeal. The exception recognised therein was confined to a situation where the impugned order was non est in law. Unless the order sought to be challenged is shown to be non est, the statutory remedy of appeal cannot be bypassed by directly invoking the revisional jurisdiction of the High Court. [Paras 6 to 8 and 11]

Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2015 — Ss. 101 and 102 — Non est order — Distinction between void order and illegal or erroneous order — Effect.

HELD: A non est order is one passed without inherent jurisdiction and can be ignored or challenged at any stage. However, an order which is merely erroneous, irregular, illegal or passed in an improper exercise of jurisdiction cannot be equated with a non est order. Such defects are capable of correction by the appellate authority provided under the statute. Since the impugned order had been passed by the Juvenile Justice Board in exercise of jurisdiction vested in it under the Act of 2015, it could not be treated as a non est order merely because its correctness was disputed. [Paras 11 to 15]

Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2015 — Ss. 101 and 102 — Revision — Alternative statutory remedy available — Merits not examined.

HELD: Once the Court found that the revision itself was not maintainable in view of the availability of the statutory remedy of appeal, there was no occasion to examine the merits of the order passed by the Juvenile Justice Board. Liberty was granted to the revisionist to avail the remedy of appeal under Section 101 of the Act of 2015 in accordance with law. [Paras 14 and 15]

Revision dismissed with liberty to the revisionist to avail the statutory remedy of appeal under Section 101 of the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2015. (E-14)

Case Arising From

Judgment and decree dated 15.11.2025 passed by the Court of Civil Judge (Senior Division)/FTC, Bulandshahr in O.S. No. 863 of 2020, Rajesh Kumar v. Rakesh Kumar and Others.

Appearance for Parties

For Appellant: Sri Madhulika Yadav and Sri Balkeshwar Srivastava

For Respondent: Sri S.P. Tiwari, learned A.G.A. and Sri Adarsh Kumar Maurya..

(Delivered by Hon'ble Saurabh Lavania, J.)

1. Heard Sri Balkeshwar Srivastava, learned Counsel for the revisionist, Sri Adarsh Kumar Maurya, learned Counsel for the side opposite, whose name inadvertently could not be mentioned when the order dated 12.03.2026 was reserved, Sri S.P.Tiwari, learned A.G.A. appearing for the State and perused the records.

2. This criminal revision under Section 102 of the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2015 (in short "Act of 2015") has been filed against the order dated 25.01.2023, passed by the Juvenile Justice Board, Lakhimpur Kheri (in short 'JJB'), arising out of Case Crime No. 139 of 2014 under Sections 302, 201, 377 IPC and 3/4 POCSO Act, Police Station-Paliya, District-Kheri.

3. Learned A.G.A. has raised preliminary objections regarding maintainability/entertainability of the present 'Revision' by stating that revisionist has bypassed the remedy of 'Appeal' provided under Section 101 of the Act of 2015 and as such the present revision be dismissed with liberty to the revisionist to avail, the statutory remedy of 'Appeal' provided under Section 101 of the Act of 2015.

4. The availability of statutory remedy i.e filing of an 'Appeal' against the order under challenge dated 25.01.2023 passed by JJB Kheri, arising out of Case Crime No. 139 of 2014, under Sections 302, 201, 377 IPC and 3/4 POCSO Act, Police Station-Paliya, District-Kheri, has not been refuted.

5. It is stated that instant 'Revision' under Section 102 of the Act of 2015 is entertainable and maintainable, therefore, the order be passed on merits.

6. On the issue of entertainability and maintainability of the instant 'Revision', the reference has been made to paragraph no(s). 46 to 48 of the judgment passed by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Child in Conflict with Law through his mother Versus State of Karnataka and another, reported in (2024) 8 SCC 473. Paragraphs, referred, are extracted hereunder:-

"46. Another argument raised by the learned counsel for the appellant was that there being remedy of appeal available with the complainant against the order dated 12-4-2024 vide which two members of the Board had directed inquiry into the offence allegedly committed by CCL by the Board. In our opinion, even though such a remedy may be available to the complainant which should normally be availed, but what is evident from the facts of the case is that there was an earlier order passed by the Principal Magistrate on 5-4-2022, which was final regarding conduct of trial of CCL by the Children's Court, still subsequently two members of the Board without the Principal Magistrate being there passed an order on 12-4-2022 directing inquiry into the offence by the Board. In fact, the subsequent order was totally non est. Even if in such a situation the aforesaid order was not challenged by availing the remedy of appeal, in our opinion the revision under Section 102 of the Act cannot be said to be not maintainable.

47. Firstly, there is no time-limit provided for filing a revision therein, and secondly it could be on an application filed by any of the parties. The High Court can exercise its revisional powers for satisfying itself as to the legality or propriety of any such order and may pass such order in relation thereto as it thinks fit. Besides the legality of the order dated 12-4-2022, the case in hand is such where even the propriety of the proceeding was also in question. The proceedings before the Board could not continue after the passing of the order dated 5-4-2022, in terms of Section 7(4) of the Act.

48. Hence, non-availment of the remedy of appeal by the complainant in such a situation cannot be held to be fatal. We may also add here that even the appellant could have availed the remedy of appeal against the order dated 5-4-2022, but he thought of continuing before the Board in a non est proceeding."

7. In response of aforesaid, it is stated that a perusal of paragraphs referred i.e. paragraph no(s). 46 to 48 of the report, would indicate that the Hon'ble Apex Court declined to interfere in the order dated 15.11.2023 passed by High Court in exercise of power under Section 102 of the Act of 2015, on the ground to the effect that without availing the statutory remedy of 'Appeal' available under Section 101 of the Act of 2015 against the order dated 12.04.2022 passed by JJB Kheri, the 'Revision' in terms of Section 102 of the Act of 2015 was filed, for the reason that the order dated 12.04.2022 was a 'Non-est' order.

8. It is also stated that instant case the order dated 25.01.2023 passed by JJB, challenged in the instant 'Revision' is not a 'Non-est' order and therefore, the judgment on which reliance has been placed would not apply in the present case.

9. Considered the aforesaid and perused the record.

10. The order impugned dated 25.01.2025 ought to have been impeached by way of an 'Appeal' provided under Section 101 of the Act of 2015 and without availing the remedy of 'Appeal' the instant 'Revision' has been filed under Section 102 of the Act of 2015 challenging the order dated 25.01.2023.

11. It is settled principle of law that a 'Non-est' order can be ignored and can be questioned/impeached at any stage or/and in any proceedings.

12. On the aforesaid aspects of the case, this Court finds it appropriate to refer the relevant paragraphs of the judgment passed by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Smt. Bismillah Versus Janeshwar Prasad and Others, (1990) 1 SCC 207, which reads as under:-

"7. It is settled law that the exclusion of the jurisdiction of the civil court is not to be readily inferred, but that such exclusion must either be explicitly expressed or clearly implied. The provisions of a law which seek to oust the jurisdiction of civil court need to be strictly construed. Section 331 of the Act has been the subject of series of pronouncements of the High Court as to the circumstances and the nature of the suits in which its exclusionary effect operates. Distinction was sought to be drawn between the class of cases where the binding effect of a deed had had to be got rid of by an appropriate adjudication on the one hand and the class of cases in which a transaction could be said to be void in law where what the law holds to be void, there is nothing to cancel or set aside on the other. In the former case, it was held, a suit was cognisable by the civil court while in the latter, it was not, it being open to the statutory authority to take note of the legal incidents of what was non est.

8. In the instant case, the High Court has construed, in our opinion not quite correctly, appellant's pleadings to amount to a plea of nullity of the sales and has held that the prayer for cancellation of the sale deeds was 'simply illusory' and that such a relief was neither necessary nor appropriate in the context of a plea of nullity. The High Court has further held that the relief of possession, though appearing to be a consequential relief, was really the main relief and would fall within the statutory jurisdiction.

9. It is true that the question of jurisdiction depends upon the allegations in the plaint and not the merits or the result of the suit. However, in order to determine the precise nature of the action, the pleadings should be taken as a whole. If as, indeed, is done by the High Court the expression 'void' occurring in the plaint as descriptive of the legal status of the sales is made the constant and determinate and what is implicit in the need for cancellation as the variable and as inappropriate to a plea of nullity, equally, converse could be the position. The real point is not the stray or loose expressions which abound in inartistically drafted plaints, but the real substance of the case gathered by construing pleadings as a whole. It is said "Parties do not have the farsight of prophets and their lawyers the draftsmanship of a Chalmers".

10. Indeed in Gorakh Nath Dube v. Hari Narain Singh [(1973) 2 SCC 535 : (1974) 1 SCR 339] this Court, dealing with the provisions of the U.P. Consolidation of the Holdings Act, 1954 where the provision excluding the civil court's jurisdiction is even wider, has had occasion to observe: (SCR p.342 : SCC p.538, para 5)

'...but, where there is a document the legal effect of which can only be taken away by setting it aside or its cancellation, it could be urged that the consolidation authorities have no power to cancel the deed, and, therefore, it must be held to be binding on them so long as it is not cancelled by a court having the power to cancel it...."

11. The assumption underlying the reasoning of the High Court is that if the action had really been one based on the need for the cancellation of the deeds, without which possession could not be granted, the civil court would have had jurisdiction. The cause of action in the appellant's suit does admit of being brought within this class of cases.

12. The common law defence of non est factum to actions on specialties in its origin was available where an illiterate person, to whom the contents of a deed had been wrongly read, executed it under a mistake as to its nature and contents, he could say that it was not his deed at all. In its modern application, the doctrine has been extended to cases other than those of illiteracy and to other contracts in writing. In most of the cases in which this defence was pleaded the mistake was induced by fraud; but that was not, perhaps, a necessary factor, as the transaction is "invalid not merely on the ground of fraud, where fraud exists, but on the ground that the mind of the signor did not accompany the signature; in other words, that he never intended to sign, and therefore, in contemplation of law never did sign, the contract to which his name is appended" [Chitty on Contracts, 25th edn., p. 341].

13. Authorities drew a distinction between fraudulent misrepresentation as to the character of the document and fraudulent misrepresentation as to the contents thereof. It was held that the defence was available only if the mistake was as to the very nature or character of the transaction.

14. In Foster v. Mackinnon [(1869) LR 4 CP 704 : 38 LJCP 310] , Mackinnon, the defendant was induced to endorse a bill of exchange on the false representation that it was a guarantee similar to one he had signed on a previous occasion. He was held not liable when sued even by an innocent endorsee of the bill. Byles, J. said:

"... The defendant never intended to sign that contract or any such contract. He never intended to put his name to any instrument that then was or thereafter might become negotiable. He was deceived, not merely as to the legal effect, but as to the 'actual contents' of the instrument."

15. This decision was referred to with approval by this Court in Ningawwa v. Byrappa [(1968) 2 SCR 797 : AIR 1968 SC 956] . It was observed: (SCR pp. 800-01)

"It is well established that a contract or other transaction induced or tainted by fraud is not void, but only voidable at the option of the party defrauded. Until it is avoided, the transaction is valid, so that third parties without notice of the fraud may in the meantime acquire rights and interests in the matter which they may enforce against the party defrauded."

This would be a voidable transaction. But the position was held to be different if the fraud or misrepresentation related to the character of the document. This court held: (SCR p. 801)

"The legal position will be different if there is a fraudulent misrepresentation not merely as to the contents of the document but as to its character. The authorities make a clear distinction between fraudulent misrepresentation as to the character of the document and fraudulent misrepresentation as to the contents thereof. With reference to the former, it has been held that the transaction is void, while in the case of the latter, it is merely voidable."

However the House of Lords in Saunders v. Anglia Building Society [1971 AC 1004 : (1970) 3 All ER 961] reviewed the law and held that the essential features of the doctrine, as expressed by Byles, J. in Foster v. Mackinnon [Chitty on Contracts, 25th edn., p. 341], had been correctly stated. Lord Reid, however, observed: (AC headnote at p. 1005)

"The plea of non est factum could not be available to anyone who signed without taking the trouble to find out at least the general effect of the document. Nor could it be available to a person whose mistake was really a mistake as to the legal effect of the document. There must be a radical or fundamental difference between what he signed and what he thought he was signing."

16. However the distinction based on the character of the document and the contents of the document was considered unsatisfactory. The distinction based on the character and contents of a document is not without its difficulties in its practical application; for, in conceivable cases the 'character' of the document may itself depend on its contents. The difficulty is to be resolved on a case by case basis on the facts of each case and not by appealing to any principle of general validity applicable to all cases. Chitty on Contracts ["General Principles" 25th edn, para 343, page 194] has this observation to make on Saunders decision [(1968) 2 SCR 797 : AIR 1968 SC 956] :

"....It was stressed that the defence of non est factum was not lightly to be allowed where a person of full age and capacity had signed a written document embodying contractual terms. But it was nevertheless held that in exceptional circumstances the plea was available so long as the person signing the document had made a fundamental mistake as to the character or effect of the document. Their Lordships appear to have concentrated on the disparity between the effect of the document actually signed, and the document as it was believed to be (rather than on the nature of the mistake) stressing that the disparity must be "radical", "essential", "fundamental", or "very substantial."

In the instant case, prima facie appellant seems to proceed on the premises that she cannot ignore the sales but that the sales require to be set aside before she is entitled to possession and other consequential reliefs.

17. Even in cases where the transaction was assailed as void, the High Court of Allahabad in Indra Dev v. Ram Pyari [1982 All LJ 1308 : 1982 (8) ALR 517 (All HC)] held the civil court's jurisdiction not barred. The facts in that case were that: (All LJ p. 1309)

"... plaintiff-appellants claimed a decree for cancellation of the sale deed dated July 10, 1969 executed by Smt. Ram Pyari Devi, mother of appellant 1 Indra Deo, minor, in favour of Bramha Nand respondent 1 in respect of certain agricultural plots. The cancellation was sought on the ground that Smt. Ram Pyari had no interest in the property in suit and, therefore, she was not entitled to execute the sale deed."

In that case the learned District Judge had held that the allegations made in the plaint amounted to saying that the sale deed was a void document. The civil court was held to have no jurisdiction.

18. The High Court, allowing the plaintiff's appeal and reversing the finding of the District Judge, held: (All LJ pp. 1313 and 1314)

"A survey of the above decisions shows that the consistent view of this Court is that the cause of action in a suit for cancellation of sale deed is not the denial of plaintiff's title which may be said to be implicit in the execution of the sale deed by the defendant but is the execution of the deed itself."

.... Therefore, under the provisions of the Act itself, the jurisdiction of the civil court would not be barred when declaration is sought against a person who has transferred agricultural property which the plaintiff claims to be his. Section 229-B does not contemplate all kinds of declaratory suits. It deals with declaratory suits of the specific type hereinbefore mentioned."

This case has since been approved by a Full Bench of that Court in Ram Padarath v. Second ADJ, Sultanpur [(1989) RD 21 (All) (FB)] . The Full Bench held:

"We are of the view that the case of Indra Dev v. Smt. Ram Pyari [1971 AC 1004 : (1970) 3 All ER 961] , has been correctly decided and the said decision requires no consideration, while the Division Bench case, Dr. Ayodhya Prasad v. Gangotri Prasad [1981 AWC 469 (DB)] is regarding the jurisdiction of consolidation authorities, but so far as it holds that suit in respect of void document will lie in the revenue court it does not lay down a good law. Suit or action for cancellation of void document will generally lie in the civil court and a party cannot be deprived of his right getting this relief permissible under law except when a declaration of right or status and a tenure holder is necessarily needed in which event relief for cancellation will be surplusage and redundant. A recorded tenure holder having prima facie title in his favour can hardly be directed to approach the revenue court in respect of seeking relief for cancellation of a void document which made him to approach the court of law and in such case he can also claim ancillary relief even though the same can be granted by the revenue court."

In any view of the matter, the present action would be covered by the pronouncement of the Full Bench. It is not necessary to go into the correctness of the view of the Full Bench as its correctness was not assailed before us."

13. Relevant paragraphs of the judgment passed by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Deepak Agro Foods Versus State of Rajasthan and others reported in (2008) 7SCC 748.

"17. All irregular or erroneous or even illegal orders cannot be held to be null and void as there is a fine distinction between the orders which are null and void and orders which are irregular, wrong or illegal. Where an authority making order lacks inherent jurisdiction, such order would be without jurisdiction, null, non est and void ab initio as defect of jurisdiction of an authority goes to the root of the matter and strikes at its very authority to pass any order and such a defect cannot be cured even by consent of the parties. (See Kiran Singh v. Chaman Paswan [AIR 1954 SC 340] .) However, exercise of jurisdiction in a wrongful manner cannot result in a nullity? it is an illegality, capable of being cured in a duly constituted legal proceedings.

18. Proceedings for assessment under a fiscal statute are not in the nature of judicial proceedings, like proceedings in a suit inasmuch as the assessing officer does not adjudicate on a lis between an assessee and the State and, therefore, the law on the issue laid down under the civil law may not stricto sensu apply to assessment proceedings. Nevertheless, in order to appreciate the distinction between a null and void order and an illegal or irregular order, it would be profitable to notice a few decisions of this Court on the point.

19. In Rafique Bibi v. Sayed Waliuddin [(2004) 1 SCC 287] explaining the distinction between null and void decree and illegal decree, this Court has said that a decree can be said to be without jurisdiction, and hence a nullity, if the court passing the decree has usurped a jurisdiction which it did not have; a mere wrong exercise of jurisdiction does not result in a nullity. The lack of jurisdiction in the court passing the decree must be patent on its face in order to enable the executing court to take cognizance of such a nullity based on want of jurisdiction. The Court further held that a distinction exists between a decree passed by a court having no jurisdiction and consequently being a nullity and not executable and a decree of the court which is merely illegal or not passed in accordance with the procedure laid down by law. A decree suffering from illegality or irregularity of procedure, cannot be termed inexecutable.

20. In view of the above, in the present case, apart from the fact that on a plain reading of Section 29(8)(b) of the Act, it is manifestly clear that fresh assessment for Assessment Year 1995-1996, framed pursuant to the order passed by the appellate authority on 8-6-2000, was well within the prescribed time, even otherwise, in the light of the aforesaid settled law, the assessment orders in question could not be held to be null and void on account of the stated irregularities committed by the assessing officer during the course of assessment proceedings. In our opinion, therefore, despite scathing observations by the Division Bench on the conduct of the assessing officer, it was a case of an irregularity in assessment proceedings by the officer, who was not bereft of authority to assess the appellant. At best, it was an illegality, which defect was capable of and has been cured by the High Court by setting aside the orders and by granting consequential relief."

14. Upon due consideration, this Court is not inclined to interfere in the order impugned in the instant 'Revision' in exercise of revisional power provided under Section 102 of the Act of 2015, which has been instituted without availing the statutory remedy of 'Appeal' provided under Section 101 of the Act of 2015, and therefore without entering into the merits of the case, the present revision is dismissed with liberty to the petitioners to approach the appellate authority under Section 101 of the Act of 2015 as per law.

15. Aforesaid is for the reason that the impugned order dated 25.01.2023 passed by Juvenile Justice Board, Lakhimpur Kheri, in a case arising out of Case Crime No. 139 of 2014, Police Station- Palia, District-Kheri, if established, would fall under the expression(s) 'irregular order' or 'erroneous order' or 'illegal order' or 'wrong order' but it cannot be termed as 'Non-est' order, as the same has been passed by the Board in exercise of power provided to it under the provisions of the Act of 2015, and therefore it can be cured by the Appellate Court/Authority created under Statute itself i.e. the Act of 2015.

Issue for Consideration

(i) Whether the trial court was justified in exercising powers under Section 319 Cr.P.C. to summon the unmarried sisters of the husband as additional accused on the basis of general allegations contained in the F.I.R. and the depositions of prosecution witnesses?

(ii) Whether reiteration during trial of allegations already available before the Investigating Officer and found insufficient for prosecution constitutes fresh evidence warranting exercise of powers under Section 319 Cr.P.C.?

(iii) Whether the trial court could invoke Section 319 Cr.P.C. by relying upon the F.I.R. and statements recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C. instead of the evidence adduced during trial?

Headnotes

Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 — S. 319 — Summoning of additional accused — Extraordinary power — Nature and scope of jurisdiction.

HELD: The power conferred under Section 319 Cr.P.C. is extraordinary in nature and cannot be exercised casually. Such jurisdiction can be invoked only where the evidence adduced during trial strongly indicates the involvement of a person not already facing trial. Mere existence of allegations or suspicion does not justify summoning an additional accused unless the evidence satisfies the higher degree of satisfaction contemplated under Section 319 Cr.P.C. [Paras 6 and 7]

Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 — S. 319 — Additional accused — Persons exonerated during investigation — General allegations in F.I.R. — Evidence merely reiterating prosecution version — Summoning impermissible.

HELD: The unmarried sisters of the husband were exonerated during investigation as neither the F.I.R. nor the dying declaration contained any specific allegation regarding demand of dowry or participation in the alleged offence. The depositions of P.W.-1 and P.W.-2 merely reiterated the allegations already contained in the F.I.R. and did not disclose any fresh incriminating material emerging during trial. Such evidence, having already been considered by the Investigating Officer while exonerating the proposed accused, could not constitute the basis for exercising powers under Section 319 Cr.P.C. [Paras 8 and 9]

Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 — Ss. 161 and 319 — Summoning of additional accused — Reliance upon F.I.R. and statements recorded during investigation — Legality.

HELD: The trial court committed a serious error of law by exercising jurisdiction under Section 319 Cr.P.C. on the basis of allegations contained in the F.I.R. and statements recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C. The power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. can be exercised only on the strength of evidence adduced during trial and not on the basis of material collected during investigation, which had already been considered at the stage of cognizance and framing of charge. [Para 10]

Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 — S. 319 — Dying declaration — Absence of allegation against proposed accused — Effect.

HELD: Where the dying declaration of the deceased implicated only the mother-in-law and did not attribute any role to the unmarried sisters of the husband, the bald allegations made by prosecution witnesses during trial could not be regarded as strong prima facie evidence justifying their summoning as additional accused. The trial court failed to examine the evidentiary value of the dying declaration while exercising jurisdiction under Section 319 Cr.P.C. [Paras 8, 10 and 11]

Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 — Ss. 397 and 401 — Revision — Order under Section 319 Cr.P.C. — Interference.

HELD: Since the trial court exercised jurisdiction under Section 319 Cr.P.C. on legally impermissible considerations and without the existence of strong evidence emerging during trial against petitioner nos. 3 to 5, the impugned order suffered from grave illegality and impropriety and was liable to be set aside. The revision, however, stood dismissed as infructuous in respect of petitioner nos. 1 and 2, who had already faced trial and were acquitted. [Paras 10 and 11]

Revision partly allowed. Impugned order set aside qua petitioner nos. 3 to 5; revision dismissed as infructuous qua petitioner nos. 1 and 2. (E-14)

Case Arising From

Order dated 03.03.2011 passed by the Additional Sessions Judge, Fast Track Court, Baghpat in Sessions Trial No. 185 of 2010, State v. Smt. Munesh and Others, arising out of Case Crime No. 13 of 2010, Police Station Baraut, District Baghpat

Appearance for Parties

For the Appellant: Sri Ali Hasan and Sri Manish Kumar Singh

For the Respondents: Learned Government Advocate and Sri Mohd. Akbar Shah Alam Khan

(Delivered by Hon'ble Manoj Bajaj, J.)

Petitioners have filed this revision petition to challenge the impugned order dated 3.3.2011 passed by Additional Sessions Judge, Fast Track Court, Baghpat in Sessions Trial No. 185 of 2010, titled State Vs. Smt. Munesh and others, arising out of Case Crime No. 13 of 2010, under Sections 498-A, 304-B I.P.C. and Section 3/4 D.P. Act, Police Station Baraut, District Baghpat, whereby the application under Section 319 Cr.P.C. filed by prosecution was allowed and the petitioners were summoned as additional accused.

Learned counsel for the petitioners has argued that the complainant's daughter namely, Rachna was married to Pradeep on 6.3.2009, who died of burn injuries on 8.1.2010, within a period of one year, whereupon the complainant-opposite party no.2 implicated the petitioners and others for alleged commission of offences punishable under Section 304-B I.P.C. etc. Learned counsel has drawn the attention of the Court to the subject F.I.R to argue that the allegations by complainant-Mainpal against the petitioner nos.3 to 5 (unmarried sisters of Pradeep-husband) are absolutely vague and no specific attribution of demand of dowry is made against them. Learned counsel further submits that the victim gave her statement before death and the said dying declaration only implicates Munesh (mother-in-law of victim), whereas nothing is mentioned by victim about other accused persons, therefore, after investigation, the petitioners were declared innocent and the charge sheet was filed against Pradeep and Munesh.

Learned counsel for the petitioners has further argued that the statements of Mainpal (P.W.-1) and Neeraj Kumar (P.W.-2) echoes the allegations in the F.I.R. and on the basis of those statements, the trial court proceeded to summon the petitioners as additional accused, but the said order is not sustainable. Learned counsel has pointed out that initially the impugned order dated 3.3.2011 was stayed by this Court qua the petitioner nos.3 to 5 namely, Renu, Nidhi @ Chinu and Ritu, whereas the petitioner nos.1 and 2 were directed to associate with the trial, and during the pendency of the revision petition, the trial ended in acquittal of four accused persons namely, Munesh (mother-in-law), Pradeep (husband), Nitin (brother-in-law) and Rishipal (father-in-law). The judgment of acquittal dated 29.3.2012 is on record as Annexure No.SA-1. Learned counsel prays that the impugned order dated 3.3.2011 be set aside.

Learned A.G.A. while opposing the prayer has argued that the impugned order dated 3.3.2011 is based upon proper appreciation of testimonies of P.W.-1 and P.W.-2 and when the impugned order was passed, the trial was pending. He submits that the judgment of acquittal passed in respect of other accused persons may not be relevant as the evidence adduced during trial of the acquitted accused persons cannot be read qua the petitioners, if, the impugned order dated 3.3.2011 is upheld. He prays that the revision petition be dismissed.

After hearing the learned counsel for the parties and considering their submission, this Court finds that as far as petitioner nos.1 and 2 are concerned, qua them the revision petition is rendered infructuous, who faced the trial and stand acquitted vide judgment dated 29.3.2012.

Before analyzing the merits of the petition, it would be appropriate to have a glance of section 319 Cr.P.C., which reads as under:

319. Power to proceed against other persons appearing to be guilty of offence.-(1) Where, in the course of any inquiry into, or trial of, an offence, it appears from the evidence that any person not being the accused has committed any offence for which such person could be tried together with the accused, the Court may proceed against such person for the offence which he appears to have committed.

(2) Where such person is not attending the Court, he may be arrested or summoned, as the circumstances of the case may require, for the purpose aforesaid.

3) Any person attending the Court, although not under arrest or upon a summons, may be detained by such Court for the purpose of the inquiry into, or trial of, the offence which he appears to have committed.

(4) Where the Court proceeds against any person under sub-section (1) then-(a) the proceedings in respect of such person shall be commenced afresh, and the witnesses re-heard;

(b) subject to the provisions of clause (a), the case may proceed as if such person had been an accused person when the Court took cognizance of the offence upon which the inquiry or trial was commenced."

A perusal of the above provision makes it abundantly clear that the power vested with the trial court under Section 319 Cr.P.C. is extraordinary in nature, and by now it is settled law that such a power can not be exercised in a casual manner. The trial court would be justified in resorting to the above provision where the evidence recorded during trial strongly suggests about the involvement of any other person(s), who is not before the trial court.

While examining the alleged involvement of petitioner nos.3 to 5 i.e. unmarried sisters of Pradeep, this Court finds that F.I.R. does not contain any specific allegation against them regarding demand of dowry and even according to the complainant, on 7.1.2010 husband-Pradeep had called Neeraj Kumar (P.W.-2) to demand a sum of Rs.1 lac and motorcycle. That apart, the dying declaration also implicates only one accused namely, Munesh, therefore, the investigating officer proceeded to exonerate the petitioners and filed charge sheet against Pradeep and Munesh. A reading of the testimonies of Mainpal (P.W.-1) and Neeraj Kumar (P.W.-2) also makes it clear that both these witnesses had attributed demand of dowry to accused Pradeep, who telephonically contacted Neeraj on 7.1.2010 to demand cash and motorcycle, therefore, the depositions of these witnesses P.W.-1 and P.W.-2, if, reiterates the version contained in the F.I.R. cannot be construed as a new piece of evidence emerging only during trial as the same stood analyzed and tested by Investigating Officer while declaring them innocent.

Most importantly, the trial court exercised the extraordinary jurisdiction under Section 319 Cr.P.C. while relying upon the allegations in the F.I.R. and the statements of witnesses recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C., and in the considered opinion of this Court this is a serious error of law, as the powers under Section 319 Cr.P.C. can be exercised only on the strength of the evidence adduced during trial. The material relied upon by trial court was already before it when it took cognizance and framed charges against the accused, but at that stage, no such order was passed against the petitioner nos.3 to 5.

Notably, in the present case the dying declaration of the deceased does not at all implicate the unmarried sisters of Pradeep, therefore, the bald allegations in the deposition of P.W.-1 and P.W.-2 before the trial court cannot be construed as a strong prima facie evidence suggesting involvement of petitioner nos.3 to 5 in the alleged commission of crime. A perusal of the impugned order dated 3.3.2011 would show that the trial court has not carefully examined the evidence on record relied upon by prosecution while exercising powers under Section 319 Cr.P.C. Thus, the impugned order dated 3.3.2011 suffers from grave illegality and impropriety, which calls for interference by this Court.

Resultantly, the revision petition is allowed and the impugned order dated 3.3.2011 is set aside qua the petitioner nos.3 to 5, whereas in respect of petitioner nos.1 and 2, the petition is dismissed as infructuous in view of their acquittal recorded on 29.3.2012.

UCO Bank & Ors.

...Respondents

Issue(s) for consideration

- (a) Whether inquiry was conducted by a Competent Authority or not?
- (b) Whether during disciplinary proceeding due procedure was followed or not?
- (c) Whether punishment, i.e., removal from Bank service, was contrary to bipartite agreement that petitioner was denied pension?

Headnotes

A. Service Law – UCO Bank Officers Employees' (Discipline & Appeal) Regulations, 1976: Regulation 17 - The Petitioner was working as a Manager at the Ghaziabad Branch of UCO Bank from August 2000 to 19.07.2004. He was initially suspended on 11.09.2004, following allegations of several acts of omissions and commissions. A charge sheet with five charges was issued on 18.10.2004. Following a deeper internal investigation, a fresh, specialized Article of Charge and Statement of Allegations dated 29.03.2005, was served to the Petitioner, strictly isolating and detailing the "Fake Bank Guarantee" fraud.

The investigation revealed that the Petitioner issued Bank Guarantee No. 28/02 dated 09.11.2002, for Rs. 47.00 Lakhs in favor of U.P. Jal Nigam, NOIDA, on behalf of M/s Bhavya Credits. He bypassed all mandatory bank guidelines.

The Petitioner later extended the guarantee's validity up to 09.11.2004, via an off-the-record letter on a Rs. 100/- stamp paper. On the strength of this unauthorized document, the private company fraudulently secured a mobilization advance of Rs. 45.89 Lakhs from U.P. Jal Nigam, which was funneled through their current account on 12.11.2004. It was also alleged that the Petitioner personally pocketed Rs. 94,000/- given as an off-market commission by the company's representatives. Parallel to the departmental action, a criminal FIR was lodged u/Ss. 420, 409, 467, 468, 471, and 120B of the IPC. The Petitioner was arrested and subsequently released on bail by the High Court on 23.09.2005.

B. There was no illegality in the appointment of Enquiry Authority. The Disciplinary Authority has a right to appoint any person who is or has been a public servant and in present case the Enquiry Authority was an Ex-Scale-IV Officer of Bank. (Para 25, 26)

C. It is well settled that in a case arising out of disciplinary proceeding, the High Court under writ jurisdiction has a very limited power to review an order of punishment and it can be interfered only on limited grounds. (Para 22)

There is no irregularity in the process of disciplinary proceeding. The charges were found proved on basis of material as well as examination and cross-examination of management witnesses. The reason for management to have taken 14 months to conclude its case was that, the petitioner has taken various adjournments and has not appeared on various dates. Effective dates were very few on which management's case was concluded and thereafter further opportunity of a week was granted to petitioner to present his defence, if any, which is contrary to his submission that only a week's time was granted to put his defence. (Para 35)

(ii) Any allegation that documents were not confronted, being contrary to record, cannot be accepted. The memorandum of charge was submitted to which petitioner submitted his reply. Petitioner has participated in inquiry. He was granted ample opportunity to cross examine management witnesses. Petitioner sought adjournments for number of months on medical grounds and despise examination-in-chief was conducted in his presence, still he failed to cross-examine the management witnesses. He was granted opportunity to examine documents as directed by this Court and he was confronted with all documents placed during inquiry. (Para 28, 29, 34, 37, 38)

(iii) It is not a case that conclusion, on very face of it, was wholly arbitrary and capricious that no reasonable person can arrive to such conclusion as well as it is not a case of no evidence. On perusal of the inquiry report as well as the order passed by Disciplinary Authority, it is found that every argument and objections were considered and only thereafter it was held that both charges were found proved. (Para 30)

D. Objection on report of handwriting expert - The expert report was part of investigation in criminal case and the same was though placed on record in disciplinary proceeding but not much relied on. It was used only for the purpose of corroboration. (Para 32, 33)

E. Clause 6(b) inserted on 10.04.2002 in Bipartite settlement arrived between Indian Bank's Association - Even in proved gross misconduct as in present case petitioner though can be removed from service, however, it must be with superannuation benefits. (Para 41, 42)

The appropriate authority of Respondent-Bank has not taken note of clause of bipartite settlement. Accordingly, without disturbing finding that both charges were found proved and petitioner has committed gross misconduct, the matter is remitted back only to the extent that a fresh order be passed on nature of punishment taking note of above referred clause of bipartite settlement as well as UCO Bank Vs. Vijay Kumar Handa (infra). (Para 43, 44, 45)

Writ petition disposed of. (E-4)

1. Petitioner, while working as Manager, UCO Bank at Ghaziabad Branch, has allegedly indulged in several acts of omissions and commissions. Initially an Statement of Allegations and Articles of Charge dated 18.10.2004 was submitted to petitioner on as many as five charges including an allegation of a Fake Bank Guarantee of M/s Bhavya Credit and Investment Pvt. Ltd. for U.P. Rajkiya Nirman Nigam, NOIDA and for that petitioner was earlier put under suspension vide order dated 11.09.2004.

2. Subsequently, on basis of further internal inquiry another Statement of Allegations dated 29.03.2005 was submitted to petitioner which limit the allegation only qua to Fake Bank Guarantee. For reference the Article of Charge dated 29.03.2005 and Statement of Allegations dated 29.03.2005, in its entirety, is reproduced hereinafter:

ARTICLES OF CHARGE

Mr. V.K. Seth, PFM No. 17334, while working as Manager at B/o Ghaziabad from August 2000 to 19.7.2004 had indulged in several acts of omission and commissions. These acts are set out in the enclosed Statement of Allegations for which he is charged as under:

1. Mr. Sethi failed to discharge his duties with utmost integrity, honesty, devotion and diligence and acted in a manner unbecoming of a Bank Officer, which is violative of Regulation 3(1) of UCO Bank Officer Employees (Conduct) Regulations 1976 as amended.

2. Mr. Sethi failed to take all possible steps to ensure and protect interest of the Bank which is violative of Regulations 3(1) of UCO Bank Officer Employees (Conduct) Regulations 1976 as amended.

STATEMENT OF ALLEGATIONS

Mr. V.K. Sethi, PFM No. 17334, while working as Manager, Ghaziabad Branch, had indulged in several acts of omissions and commissions. The allegations are given hereunder: -

1. M/s Bhavya Credits and Investment Pvt. Ltd. a Private Limited Company with its address B-9/6351 Vasant Kunj, New Delhi having two directors namely Mr. Anshuman Tewari and Ambrish Tiwari, opened a current account with our Ghaziabad branch on 4.10.2002. A case of issuance of a fraudulent Bank Guarantee came to the notice of the Bank upon which the matter was got investigated which confirmed that a Bank Guarantee No. 1/03 for Rs. 57,71,500/- dated 4.4.03 had been issued by Mr. V.K. Sethi without following laid down procedure of the Bank. For this lapse on the part of Mr. V.K. Sethi, a Charge sheet dated 18.10.2004 has been issued to him.

During the course of investigation of fraudulent Bank Guarantee No. 1/03 the Investigating Officer came across a credit entry dated 12.11.04 of Rs. 45,89,000/- in the account of M/s Bhavya Credits and investment Pvt. Ltd. On getting the matter further investigated, it transpired that this amount had been released by U.P. Jal Nigam, NOIDA to M/s Bhavya Credits and Investment Pvt. Ltd. as advance on the strength of Bank Guarantee No.28/02 dated 9.11.02 for Rs.47.00 Lac purportedly issued by B/o Ghaziabad. When the Authorities of U.P. Jal Nigam were approached regarding the said Bank Guarantee they furnished a photocopy of the Bank Guarantee No.28/02 to the Investing Officer, which bore one of the signatures of Mr. V.K. Sethi.

Mr. Sethi issued a Bank Guarantee No.28/02 dated 9.11.02 for Rs.47.00 Lac in favour of U.P. Jal Nigam on behalf of M/s Bhavya Credits and Investment Pvt. Ltd. and signed the Bank Guarantee as Manager of the Branch whereas the Bank Guarantee should have been signed by the Senior Manager of the Branch with advance In-charge. Mr. Sethi, deliberately, did not follow any laid down procedure of the Bank viz. bringing it in the knowledge of the Senior Manager, taking an application from the party, Counter Guarantee, Margin, Security for the residual value, obtaining sanction from Regional Office, Bareilly, processing charges and commission entering the Guarantee in Guarantee Register. Nor did he keep any record in the Branch for issuing the said Bank Guarantee. Further, Mr. Sethi extended the validity period of this Guarantee up to 9.11.2004 by a letter dated 4.11.2003 signed by him addressed to Project Manager, U.P. Jal Nigam, NOIDA, written on Stamp Paper of Res.100/-. Mr. Sethi did not keep any record of such extension of Bank Guarantee in Bank's record. On the basis of this Bank Guarantee, M/s Bhavya Credits and Investment Pvt. Ltd. managed to secure a payment of Rs.45.89 Lac from U.P. Jal Nigam, NOIDA which was collected through the account on 12.11.04. In this way, Mr. Sethi, in collusion with the account holder, extended undue gain to M/s Bhavya Credits and Investment Pvt. Ltd. and loss to the Bank and tarnished the image of the Bank. Mr. Sethi also exposed the bank to grave risk. Mr. Sethi has also caused loss to State Government of U.P.

3. Simultaneously a First Information Report was also lodged against petitioner and others under Sections 420, 409, 467, 468, 471, 120B IPC and petitioner was arrested also, though he was granted bail by this Court vide an order dated 23.09.2005.

4. When petitioner has denied allegations and failed to submit any reasonable explanation, the Disciplinary Authority decided to get an inquiry conducted in this matter and appointed Sri H.P.

Varshney, an Ex-Scale-IV Officer of Bank as an Enquiry Authority and also appointed a Manager of Branch at Meerut as Presenting Officer.

5. In aforesaid circumstances, an inquiry was initiated and notice was issued to petitioner (CSOE) as well as Presenting Officer to submit their respective list of documents and witnesses, however, as specifically noted in inquiry report as well as in the order of Disciplinary Authority, the CSOE sought various adjournments between 12.04.2006 to 21.09.2006 on medical grounds for various duration, such as, six weeks, six weeks, six weeks, 10 days and 30 days, therefore, inquiry got delayed.

6. On one hand petitioner himself was guilty of delaying the inquiry and on another hand he has approached this Court by way of filing Writ Petition No. 72210 of 2005 that inquiry be expedited. The writ petition was disposed of vide order dated 15.11.2006 that petitioner cannot ask for documents which were not in the custody of Bank, though a direction was passed that petitioner can inspect the documents likely to be relied on during departmental inquiry.

7. It is also on record that petitioner has appointed his Defense Representative (DR), however, later on he quit and a permission was granted to engage new Defense Representative, however, despite sufficient time was granted, he did not forward a consent letter of his new Defense Representative by 08.11.2006.

8. It is also on record that statement of Management Witness-1 (ME-1) was recorded in presence of CSOE on 13.01.2006, however, cross-examination was adjourned on his request not once but on four dates, i.e., 14.02.2006, 06.02.2006, 21.03.2006 and 22.03.2006 but he still failed to cross-examine MW-1.

9. Similarly examination-in-chief of MW-2 was recorded in presence of CSOE on 22.03.2006 and he was asked for cross-examination, however, he again sought adjournment and still failed to cross-examine on next date, i.e., 20.04.2006 and thereafter he sought adjournment on ground of medical grounds for about four months. Subsequently also, despite petitioner was granted a further opportunity, he repeatedly avoided to cross-examine MW-2 and accordingly a decision was taken to stop opportunity of cross-examination.

10. It is further on record that statement of MW-3 was recorded on 02.11.2006 in presence of petitioner and he was requested to cross-examine MW-3 also, however, again he sought time and finally a last opportunity was granted to petitioner to cross-examine MW-3 on 14.11.2006 but again petitioner failed to cross-examine MW-3 and finally he cross-examined MW-3 on 05.12.2006 and management presentation was declared closed on same day.

11. On basis of aforesaid description, based on material on record, an allegation that petitioner was not afforded opportunity to place his case or to cross-examine MW-1 to MW-3 effectively, has no legal basis since, as referred above, petitioner was granted repeated opportunity to cross-examine management witnesses, however, he failed to cross-examine MW-1 and MW-2 though at very later stage he cross-examined MW-3.

12. The Enquiry Authority submitted report which was forwarded to petitioner by a covering letter dated 05.02.2007. Copy of inquiry report was not enclosed alongwith this writ petition, however, was enclosed alongwith the counter affidavit. Said inquiry report is a very detail report wherein all material including reply of petitioner as well as statements of management witnesses were discussed. It was also noted that CSOE was granted ample opportunity to place defence witness, however, has failed to do so though has filed defence documents, which were considered in inquiry report.

13. The Enquiry Authority after considering all circumstances found both charges to be proved. A detail assessment of evidence was conducted and finally on basis of a reasoned and considered conclusion, Statement of Allegations were found to be proved. For reference conclusion relating to Article of Charges, as mentioned in inquiry report submitted by Enquiry Authority, is reproduced hereinafter:

IX. CONCLUSIONS RELATING TO ARTICLES OF CHARGE:

As mentioned above, the findings of the enquiry show that the matters mentioned in the Statement of Allegations are proved to be correct.

The two charges in Articles of charge reads as under :

1. Mr. Sethi failed to discharge his duties with utmost integrity, honesty, devotion and diligence and acted in a manner unbecoming of a Bank Officer, which is violative of Regulation 3 (1) of UCO Bank Officer Employees' (Conduct) Regulations, 1976 as amended.

2. Mr. Sethi failed to take all possible steps to ensure and protect interest of the Bank which is violative of Regulation 3 (1) of UCO Bank Officer Employees' (Conduct) Regulations, 1976 as amended.

The findings stated above show that :

1. The C.S.O.E. issued the bank guarantee ME-2 and extended its validity by ME-4 unauthorisedly, beyond powers and against the Banks rules/guidelines as contained in ME-12, ME-13 & ME-14.

2. The C.S.O.E. neither took any application from M/s BCIPL for issuance of ME-2 and ME-4, nor did he process the issuance & extension of guarantee as per Bank's rules/ procedures/ guidelines, nor did he place the matter before the higher authorities as per Bank's guidelines/procedures.

3. The C.S.O.E. did not obtain any margin money and collateral security to secure the said guarantee ME-2 as per Bank's guidelines.

4. The C.S.O.E. neither made any entries in the relevant Bank records nor did he keep any records in the Bank about the issuance of ME-2, ME-4 and ME-21/2, as per Bank's guidelines, thereby concealing facts from the Bank authorities.

5. The C.S.O.E. did not obtain counter guarantee from the applicant, nor did he obtain any margin and collateral security while issuing ME-2. Thereby, he exposed the Bank to risk of invocation of the guarantee to the extent of Rs.47 Lacs.

6. The C.S.O.E. caused wrongful financial loss to the Bank by not charging and getting deposited in the Bank, the processing charges and "exchange and commission" which should have been earned for issuance of the bank guarantee ME-2 as well as extension thereof, as per Bank's rules.

7. The C.S.O.E. concealed the material facts from his superior officers/Bank with motive of personal gain, and did not deposit the amount Rs.94,000/- given to him by the representative of the applicant company towards commission for issuing the bank guarantee ME-2, in the Bank.

8. The C.S.O.E. is responsible for doing other such acts for which the C.S.O.E. was not authorised and for causing wrongful benefit to the company M/s BCIPL.

The above findings clearly establish that all the various elements of the Charge No. 1 and Charge No. 2 are individually fully proved.

Here it would be pertinent to mention the ruling given by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case Disciplinary Authority-cum-Regional Manager and Others Vs- Nikunja Bihari Patnaik (1996) 9 S.C.C.69, (copy attached marked Annexure-IV) where it has been held that

In acting beyond one's authority is by itself a breach of discipline and a breach of Regulation 3. It constitutes misconduct within the meaning of Regulation 24. No further proof of loss is really necessary

In view of all the aforesaid, it is held that:

Charge No. 1- proved

Charge No. 2- proved

14. Petitioner submitted a reply dated 16.02.2007 to the inquiry report that doctrine of preponderance of probability was not correctly followed and erroneously burden was shifted on CSOE; there were two handwriting expert reports, one by Management and other by CSOE, however, only report of Management was considered; Enquiry Authority has wrongly placed reliance on statements made during police investigation; CSOE was not able to put his defence rightly since allegedly there was a confusion in proceedings; CSOE was not granted opportunity to examine or re-examine witnesses for ME-19 to ME-22; despite a request was made and Management Witnesses were not recalled etc.

15. Disciplinary Authority after considering inquiry report submitted by Enquiry Authority and a reply submitted by petitioner, i.e., CSOE, passed a reasoned final order dated 22.03.2007, whereby the outcome of inquiry report was accepted that both charges were found proved and Disciplinary Authority imposed punishment of removal from service. Relevant part of order dated 22.03.2007 is reproduced hereinafter:

I have also gone carefully through the comments of CSOE to the E.A.'s Report and find that

1. By merely writing that "written brief is a long rambling document" by E.A. does not prove or establish any where that E.A. has not taken into consideration the contents of brief submitted by CSOE.

2. For case referred by E.A. to establish the procedure of issuing Bank Guarantee which was prevailing in B/O Ghaziabad, CSOE has mentioned that he has no comments to make on it, meaning thereby his admission to the system & procedure of the Bank which he has violated. By merely mentioning that he has never been punished in the past and has 30 years of unblemished record, does not disprove or negate contents of allegation. No body can be excused from prosecution for commitment of crime/breach of conduct merely on the basis that he has not committed any crime/breach of conduct in the past. The pleas of CSOE is not tenable. The Doctrine of Preponderance of Probabilities is an accepted doctrine, applied by Hon'ble Supreme Court in various cases. It is not generated by either E.A. or P.O. I hereby reject contention of CSOE in this regard.

It was not within the ambit of enquiry to verify such a document, which was not presented during the course of enquiry. Neither the CSOE put up any record for verification from its original in the enquiry nor put-up such a demand. I see no tenable reason put forth by CSOE to establish that rules of natural justice have not been satisfied.

Filing of complaint in Police Authorities by MW-3 is not result of any biased attitude but discharge of his official duty. Criminal Proceedings are pursued for breach of law while departmental enquiries are meant to look into breach of discipline and/or any act of misconduct as described by Hon'ble Supreme Court in Ms. Neera Yadav's case in January, 2007. Complaint has been filed after thorough investigation into the matter and therefore, was not the result of any biased attitude towards any one. E.A. has relied on the records of trial court because it is connected to the same matter, i.e., B.G. for Rs. 47.00 Lakhs. Hence, I find no substance in CSOE's comments in this regard. i.e., fraudulently issuing a Bank Guarantee for Rs. 47.00 Lakhs on 09/11/2002, for which criminal proceedings as well as departmental proceedings have been instituted. I find that E.A. has acted in a judicious manner. Pleas advanced by CSOE that E.A. has not realized the consequence of his findings on such record on the life of CSOE have no hearance over the matter. Hence, I reject the same.

3. The matter was investigated by another Senior Officer of the Bank Mr. R.K. Gariyali and on the basis of the facts mentioned in that Report suitable action has been taken by Mr.

Bhandari in his capacity of Disciplinary Authority. Contention of CSOE in this regard is hereby rejected.

4. Section 21 of I.P.C. referred to by CSOE is not applicable in this enquiry. The present enquiry has been conducted in accordance with provisions/regulations of UCO Bank Officer Employees' (Discipline & Appeal) Regulations, 1976 as amended & E.A. has been appointed accordingly. I see no violation of Regulations meant for Officer Employees'. Hence I reject plea raised by CSOE in this regard.

5. E.A. has judiciously analysed the record of enquiry before him and then arrived at the findings as mentioned in his Report. Findings are not errors of judgement.

6. I find that CSOE has again raised the point of "errors of judgement" made by E.A. in his findings. CSOE has just narrated his story of last two years, which has no relevancy here. He was advised to offer his comments on E.A.'s Report. What ever CSOE has mentioned on page 13 & 14 under para 6 of his comments, has no relevancy to the matter. If CSOE remained in judicial custody for 46 days, it was due to breach of law committed by him. Other matters are personal in nature. CSOE is supposed to choose an officer as D.R., who is able to assist him as per the time frame of enquiry. In case of any problem regarding his unavailability, he was free to change his D.R. It is wrong to mention that he had no control over his DR. E.A. has expected nothing much from DR but he was duty bound to conclude the enquiry as early as possible, because it was inordinately delayed. It was supposed to be completed by 31/08/2005. It is also a fact that on one hand the enquiry was being delayed on account of adjournments sought by CSOE/DR, but on the other hand, CSOE has filed CMWP No. 72210/2005 against the Bank & Ors. for causing delay to him in completion of enquiry. Then Hon'ble Allahabad High Court fixed time-frame for completion of enquiry. Even then CSOE has been found to be demanding/gaining time on one ground or another, causing delay in completion of enquiry.

7. What so ever CSOE has mentioned in this para, it has no relevancy with the present matter. It is a matter of record that DR has also sought number of adjournments in enquiry due to one reason or another, causing delay in completion of enquiry. Contrarily, CSOE has charged management for delay in completion of enquiry and even filed Writ Petition against the Bank & Others.

8. I find that due opportunities have been provided by E.A. to defence to conduct cross-examination of Mr. R.K. Gariyali (MW-2) His examination-in-chief was conducted and recorded on 22/03/2006 in enquiry proceedings. There-after, many dates were fixed for enquiry, but CSOE sought continuous adjournments for six months, also defying the instructions of Disciplinary Authority to present himself before C.M.O. Bareilly for his medical check-up. I find that there was no denial to CSOE by E.A. to cross-examine MW-2 and the basic tenets of natural justice have been fully observed by E.A. In fact, lot of time and energy was spent to bring CSOE to participate in the enquiry. Cat & Mouse game is figment of imagination of CSOE.

9. I find that defence only wanted to reserve their right to re-cross-examine MW-3, Mr N P Mangla without assigning any acceptable reason, for which there is no provision as per Regulations of UCO Bank Officer Employees' (Discipline & Appeal) Regulations, 1976 as amended. Cross-examination of MW-3 was duly conducted by defence and recorded in enquiry proceedings. There was no denial to cross-examine MW-2 Mr. R K Gariyali also. The conditions and stipulations are well described in the aforesaid Regulations regarding engagement of DR. I find no substance in this regard in CSOE's comments to E.A.'s Report.

10. Allegations made by CSOE do not contain any substance. Procedure & norms to conduct departmental enquiry are well settled and defined in Discipline & Appeal Regulations. It is just the figment of imagination of CSOE to describe the proceedings as "cat and mouse game".

11. The Charge-sheet served on CSOE is based on facts contained in Investigation Report of MW-2 submitted to the Bank. I reject the plea of CSOE. There is no discrimination or bias-ness against CSOE, as revealed by enquiry proceedings.

12. ME-8 is referred only to prove practice/habit of the CSOE of doing such acts. It was not a subject matter of this enquiry. A separate Charge-sheet dt. 18/10/2004 was issued to CSOE regarding the issuance of ME-8. It is very well mentioned in the Charge-sheet that CSOE was in habit of issuing Bank Guarantees like ME-8. This fact had to be proved in this enquiry. It's very purpose was to lay foundation of Charge. I find E A justified to expunge question no. 9 of defence put to MW-3 during his cross-examination in enquiry.

13. ME-19 to ME-22 have been inducted in the enquiry by P.O. in accordance of Regulation 6(14) of Discipline & Appeal Regulations. I find no violation of natural justice or miscarriage of justice by doing so. Re-examination of any witness is the right of each side after completion of cross-examination of that witness by other side, as defined in aforesaid Regulations.

14. It is prerogative of management or defence, as to which witness they want to produce either to substantiate or rebut/refute the Charge. It is not the right of other side to object to that. I find that P.O. has stated on 02/11/2006 during enquiry proceedings that after cross examination and re-examination of MW-3, the management presentation will be closed, as recorded by E.A. during enquiry proceedings. It goes to establish that CSOE had the prior knowledge of closure of management presentation, as mentioned by E.A. in his Report. I find no substance in CSOE's comments on E.A.'s Report in this regard. It is also a fact as cited supra that enquiry was delayed due to adjournments sought by the defence and if a time of one and a half year was consumed to conclude the management presentation, it was due to delaying tactics adopted by CSOE/DR. I find no miscarriage of justice in conducting the enquiry as alleged by the CSOE.

15. It is a wrong notion of CSOF in saying that E.A. has allowed P.O. over 11 months for inspection of original of ME-3. Right from 04/07/05, CSOE sought continuous adjournments till 07/11/05 and there after also from 22/04/06 to 21/09/06, causing delay in completion of enquiry.. After finding location of original of ME-3, it was got inspected by CSOE. It was very well mentioned by E.A. in enquiry proceedings held on 02/11/2006 that no further time will be allowed for the sake of study of the case/papers by new DR and the defence must come fully prepared for their presentation immediately after cross-examination and re-examination, if any, of MW-3 on 14/11/2006, the next date of hearing. CSOE, instead of attending enquiry, submitted a medical certificate w e f 08/11/2006 upto 07/12/2006, seeking adjournment of enquiry. The enquiry was held on 05/12/2006. The defence had sufficient time to prepare their presentation. In the meantime, Hon'ble Allahabad High Court issued directions in CMWP No. 72210/2005 filed by CSOE to conclude enquiry within 4 months w.e.f. 15/11/2006. I find that the defence was allowed sufficient time by E.A. for their presentation and no injustice is caused to CSOE. Directions issued by Hon'ble High Court were to be followed scrupulously by E.A.

16. Through the deposition of management witnesses and with the support of management exhibits, the signatures of CSOE have been confirmed on ME-2, ME-4, ME-8, ME-21/2 and various parts of ME-22 beyond any doubt. It corroborated the findings of Handwriting Expert through his Report (ME-22/2, 3 & 4). I find no substance in the contention of CSOE regarding copying and/or forging his signatures on ME-2, ME-4, ME-8 & ME-21/2.

17. ME-2 to ME-22 were brought in the enquiry as they were thought to be relevant to the enquiry. The authenticity of the signatures of CSOE on ME-2, ME-4, ME-8 & ME-21/2 have been discussed supra and else where in enquiry proceedings on the basis of facts brought in during the course of enquiry & not after it is concluded.

18. I find that P.O. declared his intention of closure of management presentation on 02/11/2006 during the enquiry. CSOE can't insist upon the management for it's presentation. I also find that defence was provided sufficient time & opportunity to present their case in the enquiry. I find no material substance in CSOE's contention.

19. It is not correct on the part of CSOE to say that the directions of the Hon'ble Allahabad High Court have been used to cut the throat of the CSOE. Through Notification of the Disciplinary Authority issued on 31/05/2005, E.A. was directed to conclude the enquiry by 31/08/05. The enquiry was inordinately delayed. I find no substance of truth in the contention of the CSOE.

20. The doctrine of "res ipsa loquitur" as quoted by the CSOE has no application in present context.. CSOE has been provided full opportunity to defend himself in the enquiry. I find no denial of natural justice caused to CSOE in the enquiry.

21. Any record which is tendered after completion of enquiry by either side, has no relevancy, as the documents placed as exhibits in enquiry are to be inspected with their original records, testified by the witnesses about their contents and only then taken in the enquiry.

22. ME-22 has been obtained by Investigating Officer of S.I.S., Ghaziabad after lodging F.I.R. by the Bank in the matter of issuance of Bank Guarantee for Rs. 47.00 Lakhs. What ever documents the CSOE has referred to have been handed over to Police, that has been done as per requirements of law during the course of Police Investigation. CSOE has duly inspected all the contents of ME-22 on 26/09/06 in District Court Ghaziabad in presence of E.A. as recorded in enquiry.

After careful study of enquiry record, exhibits on record, deposition of witnesses, management & defence briefs, E.A.'s Report and CSOE's comments there-on, I further find that

1. Matter relating to existence of originals of ME-2 & ME-4 has been raised by the CSOE before the Hon'ble Allahabad High Court through his CMWP No. 72210/2005. Through its Order dt. 15/11/2006, Hon'ble Court has directed that "the Bank is only obliged to show those papers which are in its custody and which it proposes to rely upon during the departmental proceedings. The Bank is not obliged to search out, obtain and supply the defence material, on being requisitioned, to the employee. We may mention here that this is a departmental enquiry and not court proceedings which may be governed strictly by the Indian Evidence Act.

2. ME-2 & ME-4 have not been signed by MW-1, but have been signed jointly with CSOE by such a person, who is not official of Ghaziabad branch. This is as per the deposition made by MW-3, Mr. N.P. Mangla, then Senior Manager of the branch who was well versed with and capable of identifying signatures of Officers of branch.

3. While going through the proceedings, it is clear that no bias-ness was exhibited towards CSOE during the enquiry.

4. Management's case is not based of suspicions but based on hard facts revealed through investigations conducted by MW-2, and the documents connected with the case, alongwith Xerox copies provided to the Bank by concerned beneficiary departments. Contention of CSOE, therefore, does not merit any consideration.

5. Doctrine of Preponderance of Opportunities is applied depending on the circumstances of the case. There are sufficient grounds to apply this doctrine based on management documents and deposition of management witnesses. Contention of CSOE does not merit any consideration.

6. ME-22 is obtained by Investigating Officer, S.I.S., Ghaziabad from Handwriting Expert Mr. Sanjeev Tomar and its conclusion has been drawn on the basis of some documents in original, bearing signatures of CSOE and ME-22/7, 8 & 9, being the copies of ME-2, attested by U P Jal Nigam. It is not obtained by the Bank. While DE-5 is obtained by CSOE himself on 08/12/2006 with the purpose to counter ME-22 and it is not based on any of the documents in original. On perusal of defence brief, it is found that CSOE has annexed Annexure-I, containing (i) Letter of Sh Raj Singh Verma dt. 20/12/2006 addressed to Mr. V.K. Sethi (CSOE) & (ii) Xerox copies of Applications dt. 14/12/2006, moved by Mr. Chetan Kumar Verma & Mr. Raj Singh Verma for conducting Inspection of Records in Cr. Appeal No. 683/05 & 684/05 in the Court of V Addl. District Judge, Ghaziabad. It is hereby established with the record produced by CSOE that inspection of records was conducted by Mr. Raj Singh Verma, Handwriting Expert & writer of DE-5, on 14/12/2006 while he prepared his Report on 08/12/2006, even before he claimed to have inspected the record on 15/12/2006. Hence, its reliance is susceptible and its very purpose seems to negate the effect of ME-22, as mentioned by E.A. in his Report.

7. Bank is under no obligation to consider any such record/ document, which has not been presented in the enquiry at appropriate stage & time by the defence. Extraneous record beyond enquiry is not to be considered.

8. As far as matter of Criminal Court is concerned, the case is regarding fraudulently issuance of Bank Guarantee for Rs. 47.00 Lakhs on 09/11/2002 by CSOE and ME-19, ME-20, ME-21 & ME-22 are connected and related documents pertaining to the present Charge-sheet. There is no such bar in any law, not to use such documents in enquiry.

9. It is also a matter of record that CSOE has caused inordinate delay in completion of enquiry, as mentioned in details by E.A. in his Report. If management presentation was concluded on 05/12/2006, delay was caused due to adjournments sought by CSOE and/or his DR on one reason or other.

10. CSOE has not given any cogent reason to E.A. in the enquiry to further cross-examine any management witness at any stage. He only wanted to reserve his right to further cross-examine MW-3 only, if needed so, which is not permissible in departmental enquiries. There is no provision to re-cross-examine any witness. E.A. is found justified in this regard.

11. As far as the matter of cross-examination of MW-2 is concerned, his examination-in-chief was completed on 22/03/2006 and there-after so many dates were fixed for enquiry, but CSOE sought continuous adjournments of enquiry as recorded by E.A. in his Report and every time, MW-2 had to be informed to attend enquiry and then not to come due to adjournments sought by defence. It is pertinent to mention here that MW-2 is on deputation in Rastriya Mahila Kosh and not under direct control of the Bank. Every time when MW-2 is summoned to appear before the enquiry, Director of Rastriya Mahila Kosh had to be requested. E.A. was justified to mention that CSOE had a sufficient time of 6 months from the date of deposition of MW-2 to prepare for his cross-examination with the assistance of his DR.

12. There is no substance in mentioning by CSOE that enquiry proceedings be kept in abeyance till completion of criminal proceedings. Criminal proceedings are meant for any breach of law, while departmental enquiry is meant to look into breach of discipline and acts of misconduct on the part of an employee. Supreme Court's judgement in Neera Yadav's case pronounced in Jan., 2007 is also referred by E.A. , which has logical application in this matter. The plea of CSOE to keep in abeyance the enquiry till completion of criminal proceedings is not tenable.

13. As alleged by CSOE that findings of E.A. in his Report are errors of judgement, I have gone through all the records of enquiry and do not find any substance of error of judgement in his findings. I consider that the allegation of CSOE is devoid of any reason & is not based on facts.

14. As mentioned by CSOE on page 13 at para (f) that forgetting all the management restrictions at times, he had to shift to Meerut, which was also objected by the management□ goes to show his indiscipline-ness to the orders and directions of the higher authorities of the Bank. It further proved when he, on three occasions, defied the directions of the Regional Manager/Disciplinary Authority to appear before C.M.O./ Medical Board for his medical check-up.

34. I have further gone through other contents of CSOE's comments on E.A.'s Report, but they merit no consideration. He has also inducted quite a few extraneous matters not relating to E.A.s Report, which have no bearings in the present matter. His last prayer mentioned on page 22 of his comments on E.A.'s Report is that decision of this enquiry proceedings may please be kept in abeyance till the outcome of frivolous criminal proceeding□ is not acceptable, considering the views of the Supreme Court expressed in Neera Yadav's case in January, 2007.

I concur with the finding of Enquiring Authority and hold the contents of Statement of Allegations as correct and proven true. His finding are based on records of enquiry, assessment of exhibits/documents presented in the enquiry and deposition of the witnesses during the conduct of enquiry proceedings, management brief and defence brief. He has arrived to the logical conclusion by considering all the aspects in a justified manner. I find that E.A. has provided ample, reasonable & due opportunities to CSOE to defend his case in enquiry and he has further ensured that every norm of natural justice is met and no injustice is caused to CSOE.

I hold contents of Allegation leveled against Mr. V.K. Sethi, CSOE, as 'proved' beyond any doubt or suspicion.

Charge No. 2: Mr. Sethi failed to take all possible steps to ensure and protect interest of the Bank, which is violative of Regulation 3(1) of UCO Bank Officer Employees' (Conduct) Regulations, 1976, as amended.

E A's findings for this Charge are same as to Charge No. 1. For the sake of brevity, they are not being repeated again. The said findings (from Sl. No. 1 to 8) clearly establish that all the elements of Charge No. 2 are "fully proved"

The Enquiring Authority has referred to the ruling given by Hon'ble Supreme Court in case of "Disciplinary Authority-cum-Regional Manager & Ors. Vs. Nikunj Behari Patnaik" (1996) 9 SCC 69.

It will be pertinent to mention verdict of the Apex Court in (i) Disciplinary Authority-cum-Regional Manager & Ors. Vs. Nikunj Behari Patnaik in Civil Appeal No. 7188 of 1996 decided on dt. 15/04/1996 (1996(9) SCC) and (ii) State Bank of India Vs. Ramesh Dinkar Punde decided in August, 2006, in which the Supreme Court has specifically dealt with misconduct of a Bank Officer under Regulation 24 of UCO Bank Officer Employees (Conduct) Regulations, 1976 covering Regulation 3 which deals with

(i) utmost integrity, honesty, devotion and diligence of a Bank Officer in discharge of his duties and take all possible steps at all times to protect interest of the Bank and do nothing which is unbecoming of a Bank Officer

(ii) every officer employee shall maintain good conduct and discipline and show curtesy and attention to all persons in all transactions & negotiations.

(iii) no officer employee shall, in the performance of his official duties or in the exercise of his powers conferred on him, act otherwise than in his best judgement except where he is acting under the direction of his official superior.

(iv) every officer employee shall take all possible steps to ensure the integrity and devotion to duty of all persons for the time being under his control and authority

In case of Disciplinary Authority-cum-Regional Manager & Ors. Vs. Nikunj Behari Patnaik reported in 1996(9) SCC, Supreme Court held:

In acting beyond one's authority is by itself a breach of discipline and a breach of Regulation 3. It constitutes misconduct within the meaning of Regulation 24. No further proof of loss is really necessary

24 Acts of misconduct- A breach of any of the provisions of these regulations shall be deemed to constitute a misconduct punishable under the Bank Officer Employees(Discipline & Appeal) Regulations, 1976 Breach of Regulation 3 is misconduct within the meaning of Regulation 24 In the case of a Bank- for that matter; in the case of any other organization every officer/employee is supposed to act within the limits of his authority. If such officer/employee is allowed to act beyond his authority, the discipline of the organization/Bank will disappear. Each officer of the Bank can not be allowed to carve out his own little empire wherein he dispenses favors and largesse. No organization, particularly a Bank, can function properly and effectively if it's officers are not emphasized to observe prescribed norms and discipline. Such indiscipline cannot be condoned on the spacious ground that it was not actuated by ulterior motive or by extraneous considerations. The very act of acting beyond authority- that too a course of conduct spreading over a sufficiently long period and involving innumerable instances- is by itself a misconduct. Such acts, if permitted, may bring in profit in some cases, but they may also lead to huge losses. Such adventures are not given to employees of Banks, which deal with public funds. If what we hear about the reasons for the collapse of Barings Bank is true, it is attributable to the acts of one of it's employees, Nick Leeson, a minor officer stationed at Singapore, who was allowed by his superiors to act far beyond his authority. As mentioned here-in-before, the very discipline of an organization and more particularly a Bank is dependent upon each of it's employees and officers, acting and operating within their allotted sphere. Acting beyond one's authority is by itself a breach of discipline and a breach of Regulation 3. It constitutes misconduct within the meaning of Regulation 24. No further proof of loss is really necessary.

Supreme Court has further held in case of State bank of India Vs. Ramesh Dinkar Punde (2006) as:

Mr. Justice H.K.Sema and Mr. Justice A.K.Mathur said- a Bank Officer holds a position of trust where honesty and integrity are in built requirements. In the banking business, absolute devotion, diligence, integrity and honesty need to be preserved by every Bank-employee and in particular the Bank-officer so that the confidence of the public / depositor is not impaired. It is for this reason that when a Bank-officer commits misconduct for his personal ends and against the interest of the Bank and the depositors, he must be dealt with iron hands and he does not deserve to be dealt with leniently

After careful consideration of the entire material available before me and keeping in mind the due consideration of the above two judgements, I concur with the findings of Enquiring Authority and see no reason to dissent from his findings.

I accordingly, hold

Charge No. 1 proved

Charge No. 2 proved

I, acting as Disciplinary Authority over Mr. V.K. Sethi, PFM No. 17334, delegated to me under Regulation 5(1) of UCO Bank Officer Employees(Discipline & Appeal) Regulations, 1976 as amended, award the following penalties under Regulation 4 of said Regulations:

Charge No. 1

Proved

Mr. V. K. Sethi, P.F.M. No. 17334, Manager B/O Nainital Road Bareilly (Under suspension) is removed from Bank's service with immediate effect with further directions that his suspension w.e.f. 11/09/2004 vide Order of the Disciplinary Authority in the matter of Charge-sheet dt. 18/10/2004 is hereby lifted with immediate effect & he will not be entitled to draw any subsistence allowance further from the date of this Order

Charge No. 2

Proved

Mr. V. K. Sethi, P.F.M. No. 17334, Manager B/O Nainital Road Bareilly (Under suspension) is removed from Bank's service with immediate effect with further directions that his suspension w.e.f. 11/09/2004 vide Order of the Disciplinary Authority in the matter of Charge-sheet dt. 18/10/2004 is hereby lifted with immediate effect & he will not be entitled to draw any subsistence allowance further from the date of this Order

16. Petitioner, thereafter, preferred an appeal dated 29.04.2007 under Regulation 17 of UCO Bank Officers Employees (Discipline & Appeal) Regulations, 1976 (hereinafter referred to as Regulations, 1976) and it was dismissed vide order dated 10.05.2008. Subsequently, petitioner filed a review petition before Reviewing Authority, however, it was also dismissed vide order dated 30.03.2009. Accordingly, petitioner has filed present writ petition challenging orders dated 22.03.2007, 10.05.2008 and 30.03.2009.

17. Sri Arvind Srivastava, learned counsel for petitioner has argued at length and referred various documents annexed alongwith this writ petition as well as filed a written argument also. The crux of his arguments are as follows:

(A) The documents provided to petitioner during inquiry and documents submitted by Presenting Officer during inquiry were different and were not provided to petitioner during inquiry. Presenting Officer initially has not disclosed about any management witness though later on proposed to examine four management witnesses.

(B) It was a case of excessive delegation by Disciplinary Authority as he authorized Presenting Officer to submit any other document without presenting or providing it to petitioner and it was a violation of Regulation 6(5) of Regulations, 1976. The Enquiry Authority was not competent to conduct inquiry.

(C) The entire departmental inquiry was proceeded on basis of photocopies of Bank Guarantee and other documents. The photocopies were also incomplete and their original do not exist either at the record of Bank or at U.P. Rajkiya Nirman Nigam.

(D) The inquiry report as well as order of Disciplinary Authority has failed to take note that original Bank Guarantee Bond, if any, was handed over to Branch Manager of Bank, however, it was not specifically denied and despite it was an accepted case of management evidence that photocopies of alleged Bank Guarantee was incomplete, still petitioner was held guilty which was not correct.

(E) The Bank Guarantee was allegedly signed by petitioner and Sri H.C. Lamba, the Disbursing Officer, however, instead to take action against him also, he was produced as MW-1, which was a denial of fair trial.

(F) Management took almost 14 months to present their case, whereas petitioner was provided only six days to present his witnesses. He was not even provided personal hearing before Enquiry Authority or before Disciplinary Authority, Appellate Authority or Reviewing Authority. Proper opportunity of cross-examination of management witnesses was also denied. The Management has dropped two important witnesses. Punishment is also shockingly disproportionate.

18. In support of his argument, learned counsel for petitioner has placed reliance on the judgments passed by Supreme Court in Purshottam Lal and others vs. Union of India and another, AIR 1973 SC 1088; UCO Bank and another vs. Vijay Kumar Handa, 2025 INSC 442; and, a judgment passed by High Court of Punjab and Haryana at Chandigarh in Ujagar Singh Saini (through LRs) vs. State Bank of Patiala and others (CWP-16738-1999), decided on 09.01.2026.

19. Per contra, Sri Sanjay Singh, learned counsel for respondents, has supported the impugned orders that petitioner has committed fraud and prepared a Fake Bank Guarantee which has given pecuniary advantage to M/s Bhavya Credit & Investment Pvt. Ltd. In disciplinary proceeding repeated opportunities were granted to petitioner to cross-examine the management witnesses but on one or other excuse, he has failed to examine MW-1 and 2 though he has examined MW-3 at very belated stage, as such, principle of natural justice was followed.

20. The examine-in-chief of management witnesses were conducted in presence of petitioner. Opportunity of oral hearing was equally granted. Learned counsel referred the outcome of inquiry report as well as Disciplinary Authority that each and every aspect of case was considered and on basis of proved charges major punishment of removal was imposed.

21. I have heard learned counsel for parties and perused the material on record.

22. It is well settled that in a case arising out of disciplinary proceeding, the High Court under writ jurisdiction has a very limited power to review an order of punishment and it can be interfered only on limited grounds and for that the Court takes note of broad parameters of exercising power under judicial review as elaborated in Union of India v. P. Gunasekaran, 2015 (2) SCC 610 and its paragraphs no. 12 and 13, being relevant, are reproduced hereinafter:

12. Despite the well-settled position, it is painfully disturbing to note that the High Court has acted as an appellate authority in the disciplinary proceedings, reappreciating even the evidence before the enquiry officer. The finding on Charge I was accepted by the disciplinary authority and was also endorsed by the Central Administrative Tribunal. In disciplinary proceedings, the High Court is not and cannot act as a second court of first appeal. The High Court, in exercise of its powers under Articles 226/227 of the Constitution of India, shall not venture into reappreciation of the evidence. The High Court can only see whether:

- (a) the enquiry is held by a competent authority;
- (b) the enquiry is held according to the procedure prescribed in that behalf;
- (c) there is violation of the principles of natural justice in conducting the proceedings;
- (d) the authorities have disabled themselves from reaching a fair conclusion by some considerations extraneous to the evidence and merits of the case;
- (e) the authorities have allowed themselves to be influenced by irrelevant or extraneous considerations;
- (f) the conclusion, on the very face of it, is so wholly arbitrary and capricious that no reasonable person could ever have arrived at such conclusion;
- (g) the disciplinary authority had erroneously failed to admit the admissible and material evidence;
- (h) the disciplinary authority had erroneously admitted inadmissible evidence which influenced the finding;

(i) the finding of fact is based on no evidence.

13. Under Articles 226/227 of the Constitution of India, the High Court shall not:

(i) reappreciate the evidence;

(ii) interfere with the conclusions in the enquiry, in case the same has been conducted in accordance with law;

(iii) go into the adequacy of the evidence;

(iv) go into the reliability of the evidence;

(v) interfere, if there be some legal evidence on which findings can be based.

(vi) correct the error of fact however grave it may appear to be;

(vii) go into the proportionality of punishment unless it shocks its conscience.

23. The Court also takes note of various judgments referred in another judgment passed by Supreme Court in Union of India and other vs. Dalbir Singh, 2021(11) SCC 321.

24. In the background of above referred legal position, the first issue is, whether inquiry was conducted by a Competent Authority or not?

25. The Disciplinary Authority has appointed Sri H.P. Varshney, an Ex-Scale-IV Officer of Bank, as an Enquiry Authority. In this regard, the Court takes note that it was under the powers of Disciplinary Authority and for that the Court takes note of a Circular dated 20.10.2001 whereby sub-regulation (2) of Regulation 6 of Regulations, 1976 were substituted in following manner:

"(2) Whenever the Disciplinary Authority is of the opinion that there are grounds for inquiring into the truth of any imputation of misconduct of misbehaviour against an officer employee, it may itself enquire into, or appoint any other person who is or has been, a public servant (hereinafter referred to as the inquiring authority) to inquire into the truth thereof."

26. In aforesaid circumstances, the Disciplinary Authority has a right to appoint any person who is or has been a public servant and since in present case the Enquiry Authority was an Ex-Scale-IV Officer of Bank, therefore, there was no illegality so far as appointment of Enquiry Authority is concerned.

27. The second issue is to consider, whether during disciplinary proceeding due procedure was followed or not?

28. As already referred above, the memorandum of charge was submitted to which petitioner submitted his reply. Petitioner has participated in inquiry. He was granted ample opportunity to cross-examine management witnesses and when he repeatedly failed to do so, there was no illegality when opportunity was closed.

29. It is also on record that petitioner sought adjournments for number of months on medical grounds and despite examination-in-chief was conducted in his presence, still he failed to cross-examine the management witnesses as well as that petitioner was granted opportunity to examine documents as directed by this Court and he was confronted with all documents placed during inquiry. Therefore, any allegation that documents were not confronted, being contrary to record, cannot be accepted.

30. I have perused the inquiry report as well as the order passed by Disciplinary Authority. Every argument and objections were considered and only thereafter it was held that both charges were found proved. Therefore, it is not a case that conclusion, on very face of it, was wholly arbitrary and capricious that no reasonable person can arrive to such conclusion as well as it is not a case of no evidence.

31. Now the Court deals with other submissions as under:

(A) Petitioner has not denied that there was an established procedure to issue a Bank Guarantee and admittedly it was not followed.

(B) It was a case of Fake Bank Guarantee and it was acted upon on basis of its photocopy and only for a reason that original Bank Guarantee was not available, does not make present case, a case of no evidence rather absence of original Bank Guarantee and photocopy of Bank Guarantee having signature of petitioner makes a case much stronger against him.

(C) An argument that petitioner was denied to ask relevant questions to management witnesses has no legal basis since in disciplinary proceedings, charges are proved on basis of preponderance of probability and does not require to prove beyond reasonable doubt as in a criminal trial. From the record, it is evident that petitioner has multiple questions to MW-3 and Enquiry Authority has expunged very few questions being irrelevant. Petitioner has failed to show any prejudice.

(D) The concerned Company was earlier involved in a fake Solvency Certificate, where petitioner's involvement was not found, would not absolve petitioner from subsequent allegation of Fake Bank Guarantee and in the present case on basis of Fake Bank Guarantee a huge transaction was made in the account of M/s Bhavya Credit and Investment Pvt. Ltd. as well as Bank's reputation was also compromised.

(E) In a case where no action was taken against other signatory would not itself render disciplinary proceeding concluded against the petitioner bad in law. The petitioner has to place his case on it's own merit, which he failed to do so.

(F) When the inquiry was initiated management documents were marked from ME-1 to ME-12 and on same day ME-13 to ME-18 were included on request of Presenting Officer and petitioner was accordingly informed, therefore, an argument that management documents were presented without confronting to petitioner and without information, was wrong. According to details of proceeding it was done in presence of defence and ME-13 to ME-18 were provided to CSOE and he inspected it on 29.03.2005 as recorded in enquiry proceedings. There is no denial on behalf of petitioner. Original record was also shown except few documents since certified copies of same were shown. Copies of ME-13 to ME-18 were also provided to CSOE on 29.03.2005. Therefore, said submission of petitioner has also no force.

32. So far as objection on report of handwriting expert is concerned, the expert report was part of investigation in criminal case and the same was though placed on record in disciplinary proceeding but not much relied on. So far as signature of petitioner on Fake Bank Guarantee is concerned, it was proved from deposition of MW-1, 2 and 3 as well as on basis of Bank record, which are also mentioned in inquiry report under the heading of Findings that document was signed by petitioner and had acknowledged the receipt which was also proved from document bearing No. ME-21/2, i.e., certified copy of letter dated 13.11.2002 of Construction and Design Service Unit 27, U.P. Jal Nigam seeking confirmation of BG No. 28/02 dated 09.11.2002 for Rs. 47 lacs of M/s Bhavya Credit and Investment Pvt. Ltd. which was received and acknowledged by CSOE.

33. In inquiry report not much reliance was placed on document No. ME-22, i.e., a certified copy of handwriting expert's report and it was used only for the purpose of corroboration and for that paragraph no. 15 of inquiry report under above referred heading is reproduced hereinafter:

15. The document ME-22 and its Annexures give the Handwriting Expert's findings that the documents ME-2, ME-4 and ME-21/2 do contain the signatures of the C.S.O.E. The evidence produced & circumstances shown in the enquiry proceedings independently lead to the same conclusion, that the documents ME-2, ME-4 and ME-21/2 bear the signatures of C.S.O.E., as mentioned above earlier in point No.5. Thus the findings of the enquiry and ME-22 are corroboratory but arrived at in independent manner.

34. The Court also takes note of copy of proceedings annexed alongwith counter affidavit that petitioner was given ample opportunity and he has cross-examined ME-3 at length and it was his default that cross-examination of ME-1 and ME-2 was closed since he has taken number of adjournments and has not taken any steps to cross-examine said witnesses when call for.

35. In aforesaid circumstances, Court is of the considered opinion that there is no irregularity in the process of disciplinary proceeding. The charges were found proved on basis of material as well as examination and cross-examination of management witnesses.

36. So far as submission that management took about 14 months to present its case and petitioner was granted only a week's time to put his defence, is also contrary to record since reason to took 14 months to conclude management's case was that petitioner has taken various adjournments and has not appeared on various dates. Effective dates were very few on which management's case was concluded and thereafter further opportunity was granted to petitioner to present his defence, if any.

37. After cross-examination of MW-3 was over on 02.11.2006, defence was advised to submit his final list of defence documents and witnesses to Enquiry Authority and he sought 15 days time and further take adjournment on ground of illness from 08.11.2006 to 28.11.2006, however the prayer was rejected by a reasoned order that petitioner despite having granted ample opportunity has not able to produce any defence witness. Defence documents were already on record, which were considered by Enquiry Authority and Disciplinary Authority.

38. Request to recall MW-2 for cross-examination was rightly rejected since there was no reason to recall him. The detail of days are also recorded in inquiry report that why request for further time was rejected. Court takes note that there was no illegality in not approaching further time to produce defence witness. The petitioner has made no averment or argument that how he has prejudiced. For reference the same is mentioned hereinafter:

- (1) Submission of brief by PO 15 days
- (2) Submission of brief by CSO 15 days
- (3) Submission of EAs report - 30 days
- (4) Calling for comments of CSO on EAs report - 15 days
- (5) The time taken in communication/transit of papers - min. 3x15-15 days.
- (6) Time already passed - 21 days.

Thus total 111 days are accounted as above and just 9 days are available out of total 120 days to conclude the hearings in the enquiry. So you will find that it will not be possible & practicable for you to allow the time as demanded by defence. You are requested to take a note of above citations & decide the matter as you deem fit.

39. The outcome of above discussion is that all arguments of petitioner has no legal force.

40. Now the only question is, whether punishment, i.e., removal from Bank service, was contrary to bipartite agreement that petitioner was denied pension.

41. Learned counsel for petitioner has placed reliance on a judgment passed by Supreme Court in the case of UCO Bank vs. Vijay Kumar Handa (supra) that in terms of bipartite settlement arrive between Indian Banks Association latest being on 10.04.2002 Clause 6(b) was inserted in earlier bipartite settlement providing for one of the penalties which may be imposed on delinquent employee found guilty of misconduct. Clause 6(b) reads as follows:

6. An employee found guilty of gross misconduct may:

(b) be removed from service with superannuation benefits i.e. pension and/ or provident fund and gratuity as would be due otherwise under the rules or regulations prevailing at the relevant time and without disqualification from future employment; or

42. On basis of above and its interpretation mentioned in UCO Bank vs. Vijay Kumar Handa (supra) learned counsel for petitioner submitted that even in proved gross misconduct as in present case petitioner though can be removed from service, however, it must be with superannuation benefits, still Respondent-Bank has not taken note of above referred clause of bipartite settlement.

43. In aforesaid background the Court takes note of paragraphs no. 21 to 23 of UCO Bank vs. Vijay Kumar Handa (supra) and for reference the same are reproduced hereinafter:

21. Interplay of Clause 6(b) of the Bipartite Settlement and Regulation 22 of the Regulations, 1995 was examined by this Court in S.K. Kool (supra) and after due consideration answered the same in the following manner:

13. From a plain reading of the aforesaid Regulation, it is evident that removal of an employee shall entail forfeiture of his entire past service and consequently such an employee shall not qualify for pensionary benefits. If we accept this submission, no employee removed from service in any event would be entitled for pensionary benefits. But the fact of the matter is that the Bipartite Settlement provides for removal from service with pensionary benefits "as would be due otherwise under the rules or regulations prevailing at the relevant time". The consequence of this construction would be that the words quoted above shall become a dead letter. Such a construction has to be avoided.

14. The Regulations do not entitle every employee to pensionary benefits. Its application and eligibility is provided under Chapter II of the Regulations whereas Chapter IV deals with qualifying service. An employee who has rendered a minimum of ten years of service and fulfils other conditions only can qualify for pension in terms of Regulation 14 of the Regulations. Therefore, the expression "as would be due otherwise" would mean only such employees who are eligible and have put in minimum number of years of service to qualify for pension. However, such of the employees who are not eligible and have not put in required number of years of qualifying service shall not be entitled to the superannuation benefits though removed from service in terms of Clause 6(b) of the Bipartite Settlement. Clause 6(b) came to be inserted as one of the punishments on account of the Bipartite Settlement. It provides for payment of superannuation benefits as would be due otherwise.

15. The Bipartite Settlement tends to provide a punishment which gives superannuation benefits otherwise due. The construction canvassed by the employer shall give nothing to the employees in any event. Will it not be a fraud Bipartite Settlement? Obviously it would be. From the conspectus of what we have observed we have no doubt that such of the employees who are otherwise eligible for superannuation benefit are removed from service in terms of Clause 6(b) of the Bipartite Settlement shall be entitled to superannuation benefits. This is the only construction which would harmonise the two provisions. It is well-settled rule of construction that in case of apparent conflict between the two provisions, they should be so interpreted that the effect is given to both. Hence, we are of the opinion that such of the employees who are otherwise entitled to superannuation benefits under the Regulations if visited with the penalty of removal from service with superannuation benefits shall be entitled for those benefits and such of the employees though visited with the same penalty but are not eligible for superannuation benefits under the Regulations shall not be entitled to that.

22. Both the learned Single Judge and the Division Bench had followed the aforesaid decision of this Court. Learned Single Judge noted that respondent had submitted his option for pension on 05.10.2010. Learned Single Judge also held that objection of the appellant to the claim of pension by the respondent was without any basis in as much as the appellate authority had specifically held that respondent would be entitled to receive terminal benefits for the period of service he had rendered. This order of the appellate authority has attained finality. Therefore, it was held that respondent was entitled to receive pension in view of the order passed by the appellate authority. This view of the learned Single Judge has been endorsed by the Division Bench in the impugned judgment. The decision in S.K. Kool (supra) is binding on us. Therefore, we do not find any compelling reason to interfere with the concurrent findings of the learned Single Judge and the Division Bench while exercising our jurisdiction under Article 136 of the Constitution of India.

23. Accordingly, the civil appeal is dismissed. However, there shall be no order as to cost.

44. In aforesaid circumstances, Court finds that there is substance in the argument of learned counsel for petitioner so far as nature of punishment (removal from service) is concerned as well as that while passing impugned orders the appropriate authority of Respondent-Bank has not taken note of above referred clause of bipartite settlement.

45. Accordingly, without disturbing finding that both charges were found proved and petitioner has committed gross misconduct, the matter is remitted back only to the extent that a fresh order be passed on nature of punishment taking note of above referred clause of bipartite settlement as well as UCO Bank vs. Vijay Kumar Handa (supra). The aforesaid exercise shall be concluded within six weeks from the date a certified copy of this order is placed before concerned respondent.

46. The writ petition is accordingly disposed of.

Arbitration Appeal No. 53 of 2023

Laxmi Kant Pandey

...Appellant

Versus

Hindustan Petroleum Corporation Ltd., Lko. ...Respondent

Issues for Consideration

- (i) Whether the appointment of the Sole Arbitrator by the Chairman and Managing Director of the respondent-Corporation under the dealership agreement was invalid after the amendments to Section 12 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996?
- (ii) Whether the appellant's letter dated 07.03.2018 amounted to an express written waiver contemplated under the proviso to Section 12(5) of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996?
- (iii) Whether the objection regarding the de jure ineligibility of the Arbitrator could be raised in proceedings under Section 37 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996?
- (iv) Whether the arbitral award and the judgment of the Commercial Court affirming the award were liable to be set aside?

Headnotes

Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 — Ss. 12(1), 12(5), 14, 34 and 37 — Appointment of Sole Arbitrator — Chairman and Managing Director of Corporation empowered under arbitration clause to act as Arbitrator or nominate another Arbitrator — Statutory ineligibility.

HELD: After the amendment to Section 12 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996, the Chairman and Managing Director of the respondent-Corporation, being a person falling within the categories specified in the Fifth and Seventh Schedules, became ineligible to act as an Arbitrator. Once the named Arbitrator incurred statutory ineligibility, he equally lost the authority to nominate another Arbitrator. Consequently, the appointment of the Sole Arbitrator by the Chairman and Managing Director was void being contrary to Sections 12(5) and 14 of the Act. [Paras 75 to 77, 90(i) & (ii)]

Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 — Proviso to S. 12(5) — Express agreement in writing — Waiver — Meaning and scope.

HELD: The correspondence exchanged between the parties did not amount to an express written agreement waiving the statutory disqualification under the proviso to Section 12(5). The appellant merely consented to the respondent appointing an Arbitrator and did not consciously and unequivocally waive his statutory right to object to the appointment of an ineligible Arbitrator. In the absence of a clear post-dispute written waiver, the statutory ineligibility remained unaffected. [Paras 78 to 85, 90(iii)]

Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 — Ss. 12(5), 14, 34 and 37 — De jure ineligibility of Arbitrator — Jurisdictional objection — Can be raised at any stage.

HELD: An objection regarding the de jure ineligibility of an Arbitrator strikes at the root of the Arbitrator's jurisdiction. Such objection is not defeated merely because it was not elaborately pleaded before the Commercial Court. Since the issue concerns the inherent jurisdiction of the Arbitrator, it can validly be raised even in proceedings under Section 37 of the Act. [Paras 86, 87 and 90(iv)]

Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 — Ss. 12, 34 and 37 — Award by ineligible Arbitrator — Validity.

HELD: As the Sole Arbitrator lacked jurisdiction by reason of statutory ineligibility and there was no valid waiver under Section 12(5), the arbitral award could not be sustained. Consequently, the judgment of the Commercial Court affirming the award was also liable to be set aside. Once the appointment itself was held illegal, examination of the appellant's challenge regarding procedural violations during arbitral proceedings became unnecessary. [Paras 88 to 91]

Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 — Fresh arbitration — Liberty to parties.

HELD: Upon setting aside the award, liberty was granted to the parties to have a fresh Arbitrator appointed in accordance with law for adjudication of their disputes. [Para 91]

Appeal allowed. Judgment of the Commercial Court and arbitral award set aside. (E-14)

Case Arising From

Appeal under Section 37 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 against the judgment and order dated 19.04.2023 passed by the Commercial Court-II, Lucknow in Arbitration Case No. 766 of 2019, affirming the arbitral award dated 26.04.2019 passed by the Sole Arbitrator arising out of termination of the appellant's petroleum dealership agreement dated 14.01.2013

Appearance for Parties

For the Appellants: Sri Gaurav Mehrotra, Senior Advocate, assisted by Sri Anupam Mishra and Ms. Madhur Jhawar.

For the Respondents: Ms. Aprajita Bansal, Sri Anilesh Tewari, Ms. Gursimran Kaur and Ms. Shreya Pahwa.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Jaspreet Singh, J.)

1. The appellant has preferred the instant appeal under Section 37 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 (hereinafter referred to as "the Act of 1996") assailing the judgment and order passed by the Commercial Court-II, Lucknow dated 19.04.2023 in Arbitration Case No. 766 of 2019 whereby his petition under Section 34 of the Act of 1996 was dismissed and the arbitral award dated 26.04.2019 passed by the Sole Arbitrator was affirmed.

Factual Background:-

2. In order to appreciate the controversy involved in the instant appeal, it will be apt to take a brief glance at the facts leading up to this appeal.

3. The appellant was a dealer of the respondent-corporation for retail sales of petrol/diesel and other petroleum products. The said dealership agreement was entered between the parties on 14.01.2013 and in terms whereof the appellant was entitled to run his petrol pump under the name and style of "Pandey Filling Station" at Village Budawa, Pargana and Tehsil Attaara, District Banda.

4. On 14.06.2017, a Special Team under the supervision of the District Magistrate, Banda inspected the dealership outlet of the petitioner. During inspection, the seal affixed by the Weights and Measures Department relating to Nozzle No. (ii) of Gilbarco Dual Ms. Dispensing Unit with Serial no. 20152000858 was found broken.

5. Based on the aforesaid discrepancy, a show cause notice was issued by the respondent-corporation dated 21.06.2017 calling upon the appellant to show cause within 15 days as to why necessary action may not be taken against him.

6. The appellant submitted his reply dated 15.07.2017 and also by an undated letter, and both were received by the Corporation on 17.07.2017. The appellant stated that the aforesaid nozzle no. (ii) was not functioning properly and the appellant had already raised his complaint regarding the same on 03.06.2017. Despite the said complaint, the Corporation on its online portal indicated that the complaint had been resolved. This was again interjected by the appellant who raised a fresh complaint on 06.06.2017 and the Corporation was also informed of the incorrect functioning of the aforesaid nozzle, however, it was not physically resolved at the site rather the Corporation closed the complaint on its online portal. This was once again brought to the notice of the respondent-corporation by the appellant that the complaint raised by him had not been resolved.

7. The appellant further stated that even during the inspection upon measuring, no short dispensation of fuel was recorded from any of the dispensing units including from nozzle no. (ii) and moreover all other seals were found intact.

8. The Corporation, however, did not find the reply of the appellant satisfactory and vide its order dated 24.07.2017, the dealership agreement dated 14.01.2013 was terminated.

9. The appellant assailed the cancellation order dated 24.07.2017 by means of a writ petition bearing Writ-C No. 62809 of 2017 which was dismissed by a Division Bench of this Court at Allahabad leaving it open for the appellant to initiate arbitral proceedings in terms of the arbitration Clause No. 66 contained in the agreement.

10. Thereafter, the appellant invoked the arbitration clause by means of an undated letter. In response, the Corporation vide its reply dated 24.01.2018 acknowledged the receipt of the aforesaid undated letter of the appellant and the Corporation informed that as the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 had undergone an amendment which came in effect from 23.10.2015, hence, in view of the proviso appended to Section 12(5) of the Act of 1996, a written consent was required from the appellant to express his willingness and permit the Corporation to appoint its employee as a Sole Arbitrator.

11. The appellant responded to the aforesaid letter dated 24.01.2018 and informed the Corporation that the appellant had appointed Sri Anil Kumar Gupta, a Chartered Accountant as an Arbitrator and requested the Corporation to concur with the said appointment of the Sole Arbitrator.

12. The Corporation vide its letter dated 26.02.2018 turned down the appellant's request of concurring to the appointment of the appellant's nominated Arbitrator and further reiterated that the appellant must give his consent, as sought in its earlier letter dated 24.10.2018, so that the Corporation may appoint an Arbitrator, failing which the appellant may invoke the appropriate forum for appointment of an Arbitrator.

13. The appellant vide its letter dated 07.03.2018 addressed the respondent and conveyed his consent for the appointment of an Arbitrator by the Corporation and further requested that as he was differently abled and had difficulties in traveling, hence, an Arbitrator of a nearby place be appointed.

14. In furtherance of the aforesaid letter, the Corporation vide its letter dated 18.04.2018 appointed Sri Sanjay Verghese as a Sole Arbitrator to resolve the disputes between the appellant and the respondent-corporation.

15. The Sole Arbitrator entered into the reference and passed its first procedural order on 21.05.2018 fixing time lines to enable the parties to exchange the pleadings amongst themselves.

16. The appellant on 14.06.2018 furnished its statement of claim. The respondent filed its statement of defence on 05.07.2018. Thereafter the Sole Arbitrator fixed 29.10.2018 as the first effective date of hearing followed by another dated fixing 13.02.2019. Thereafter no further hearing was held and the Sole Arbitrator made his award on 26.04.2019, dismissing the claims of the appellant.

17. This award dated 26.04.2019 was challenged by the appellant before the Commercial Court by filing a petition under Section 34 of the Act of 1996 and the Commercial Court after hearing the parties vide its judgment and order dated 19.04.2023 dismissed the said petition and affirmed the award dated 26.04.2018.

18. In the aforesaid factual backdrop, the appellant has challenged the judgment of the Commercial Court and the award of the Sole Arbitrator by the instant appeal under Section 37 of the Act of 1996.

Submissions on behalf of the Appellant:-

19. Sri Gaurav Mehrotra, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Sri Anupam Mishra and Ms. Madhur Jhavar, learned counsel for the appellant attacked the award and the judgment of the Commercial Court on two counts.

(i) The first ground urged by the learned Senior Counsel for the appellant was that the appointment of the Sole Arbitrator by the Corporation was directly hit by the legislative embargo contained in Section 12(1) & (5) of the Act of 1996 read with the Fifth and Seventh Schedule.

20. Elaborating his submissions, learned Senior Counsel for the appellant laid emphasis that after the amendment of 2016 in the Act of 1996, any person who falls within the relationship as mentioned in the Fifth and Seventh Schedule appended to the Act of 1996 becomes ineligible to act as an Arbitrator.

21. It was further submitted that the proviso appended to Section 12(5) of the Act of 1996 is an exception to the general rule and for the said reason, it requires strict compliance. Even though the embargo contained in Section 12(1) & (5) of the Act of 1996 is mandatory yet in case if the parties agree to waive their right of raising an objection emerging from Section 12(5) of the Act of 1996 then the said waiver must be by way of an express agreement in writing and that too it must be done after the disputes had arisen between the parties.

22. It was also urged that in the instant case there was no express agreement in writing and the appellant did not waive his right as required in terms of Section 12(5) of the Act of 1996. In absence of any express waiver as contemplated in law, the Corporation was not justified in appointing an Arbitrator who was within the prohibited relationship in terms of the Fifth Schedule appended and relatable to Section 12 of the Act of 1996.

23. It was further urged that even the Sole Arbitrator did not give a clear declaration regarding his impartiality as required in terms of Section 12(1) of the Act of 1996 read with Fifth and Sixth Schedule.

24. In such circumstances, the appointment of the Sole Arbitrator was against the statutory conditions which rendered the appointment as void. Consequently, the proceedings held by the Sole Arbitrator were also void. As a fortiori, void proceedings could be challenged at any stage and while the appellant had raised this issue before the Commercial Court in its petition under Section 34 of the Act of 1996, but the court concerned turned down the said plea on the premise that the appellant had participated in the process of appointment of Arbitrator and had also given his consent, as indicated in his letter dated 07.03.2018, hence, the appellant was precluded from raising such a plea in proceedings under Section 34 of the Act of 1996.

25. The learned Senior Counsel further urged that there was no worthy consideration of the aforesaid objection rather it was turned down by the Commercial Court in a cursory manner which substantially and adversely affected the valuable rights of the appellant. For the said reason, it was submitted that the entire arbitral proceedings were vitiated so also the award which deserved to be set aside.

26. Sri Mehrotra, in support of his submissions, relied upon the decision of the Apex Court in Central Organization for Railway Electrification v. ECI SPIC Smo MCML (JV) A Joint Venture Company, (2025) 4 SCC 641 (hereinafter referred to as Core-II) and Bhadra International (India) (P) Ltd. vs. Airports Authority of India: 2026 SCC Online SC 7.

27. The other ground raised by Sri Mehrotra was (ii) that no adequate opportunity was afforded by the Sole Arbitrator. The award impugned was in complete violation of principles of natural justice. The Sole Arbitrator, after the exchange of pleadings, did not permit the contesting parties to record their admission and denial on the documents filed by the respective parties. The Sole Arbitrator did not frame any issues nor an opportunity to cross-examine the witness was allowed which rendered the entire arbitral proceedings, a mere farce.

28. It was further submitted that the entire arbitral proceedings were concluded on two effective dates. This indicated that the Sole Arbitrator decided the arbitral proceedings with undue haste and while doing so it ignored the admitted facts including that no short dispensation of fuel was found during inspection and though the appellant had demonstrated that one nozzle was malfunctioning much prior to the date of inspection and was also complained of to the Corporation but the Corporation did not rectify it and the appellant had been made a scapegoat for the negligence of the Corporation. In such circumstances, the appellant was denied of a reasonable opportunity to contest.

29. It was lastly submitted that though the aforesaid issues were raised before the Commercial Court, however, the said court did not advert to the aforesaid aspect of the matter and dismissed the petition under Section 34 of the Act of 1996 in a mechanical exercise of jurisdiction which rendered the judgment and order dated 19.04.2023 passed by the Commercial Court-II, Lucknow susceptible and vulnerable to judicial scrutiny under Section 37 of the Act of 1996 and it deserves to be set aside, after allowing the appeal.

Submissions of the learned counsel for the Respondent:-

30. Ms. Aprajita Bansal, learned counsel for the respondent-corporation vehemently opposed the submissions of the learned Senior Counsel for the appellant and urged that the appellant was not justified in attacking the award by invoking the provisions of Section 12 (5) of the Act of 1996 as the appellant had furnished his consent and he had expressly waived his right in writing to object to the appointment of the Sole Arbitrator and that too after the disputes had arisen.

31. It was urged that proviso appended to Section 12(5) of the Act of 1996 was clearly attracted in the instant case and the appellant who had consented to the appointment of the Sole Arbitrator and also participated in the arbitral proceedings, now cannot be permitted to raise a contradictory stand to assail the award.

32. Ms. Bansal while referring to the records endeavoured to demonstrate that as soon as the appellant had made a request for appointment of an Arbitrator, the Corporation vide its letter dated 24.01.2018 expressly referred to the amended Section 12(5) of the Act of 1996 and clearly sought the consent of the appellant in writing before proceeding to appoint any Arbitrator.

33. It was further submitted that the Corporation, on 26.02.2018 specifically informed the appellant that it did not agree to the proposed appointment of an Arbitrator made by the appellant. The Corporation further put the appellant to notice that he was required to furnish his written consent in terms of the earlier letter dated 24.01.2018 to enable the Corporation to appoint an Arbitrator, failing which it was open for the appellant to approach the appropriate forum for getting an Arbitrator appointed.

34. It was further submitted that in this backdrop, the appellant submitted a consent letter dated 07.03.2018 specifically indicating therein that the appellant gives his consent to the Corporation to appoint an Arbitrator. Acting upon the said consent, the Corporation vide its letter dated 18.04.2018 appointed Sri Sanjay Verghese as the Sole Arbitrator. This indicates that the appellant was made fully aware of the legal provisions and the appellant after understanding it, had furnished his consent.

35. In the aforesaid circumstances, where the appellant had given his express consent in writing after the disputes had arisen permitting the respondent-corporation to appoint its employee as an Arbitrator, this was a clear case where the appellant had waived his right in terms of the proviso appended to Section 12(5) of the Act of 1996, hence, the appellant cannot challenge the award of the Arbitrator being in violation of Section 12(1) and (5) of the Act of 1996.

36. Ms. Bansal, further urged that while filing the petition under Section 34 of the Act of 1996, general grounds were raised but no specific ground regarding the appointment of the Arbitrator, being violative of Section 12 (1) and (5) of the Act of 1996, was raised by the appellant. It is only for the first time before this Court specific grounds had been raised in this appeal.

37. The learned counsel for the respondent-corporation further urged that the appellant had been put to clear notice and he was given an opportunity to re-consider whether he wanted the Corporation to appoint an Arbitrator. Now, after having given his written consent to the Corporation to appoint its employee as an Arbitrator, the appellant is now prevented from raising such an objection for the first time in appeal.

38. It was further submitted that the appellant participated in the entire arbitral proceedings before the Sole Arbitrator without any demur and with full awareness regarding the consent given to the Corporation. No objections were raised regarding the impartiality of the Arbitrator. Even after the claims were dismissed by means of the award dated 26.04.2019 and the appellant assailed the said award but even then no specific ground challenging the appointment of the Sole Arbitrator was taken in proceedings under Section 34 of the Act of 1996. The said ground of Section 12(5) has been taken in the instant appeal without there being any foundation for such a challenge in the earlier stage of the proceedings and this cannot be countenanced in law, at this stage.

39. The learned counsel for the respondent-corporation further submitted that as far as the principles laid down by the Apex Court in Core-II (Supra) judgment is concerned, it is not disputed nor the judgment of the Apex Court in Bhadra International (Supra) can be said to aid the appellant for the reason that both the decisions clearly preserve the party-autonomy and the right of the parties to get an Arbitrator appointed even though he may fall in any category enumerated in Fifth & Seventh Schedule provided there was scrupulous compliance of the proviso appended to Section 12(5) of the Act of 1996.

40. In the instant case, once the consent was submitted in writing by the appellant after the disputes had arisen, referring to the letters of the Corporation, thereafter there can be no doubt that the appellant knowingly had consented in the appointment of the Arbitrator and now is precluded to turn around to assail the appointment.

41. In such circumstances, if the appellant is permitted to resile from the consent then it would be against the public policy and it would amount to putting a premium to an unscrupulous act of a party. For the aforesaid reasons, the decisions of the Apex Court cited by the appellant do not come to his aid.

42. The learned counsel for the respondent-corporation also urged that in so far as the claims having been decided in haste is concerned, the same is not tenable as the appellant fully participated in the proceedings and the Sole Arbitrator recorded his statement that he did not wish to adduce any further evidence and it is only thereafter that the Arbitrator made his award.

43. It was further urged that during the entire arbitral proceedings, the appellant did not request nor made any prayer to the Sole Arbitrator to frame issues or to get an endorsement made on the documents for admission and denial. The appellant also did not make any request to cross-examine any witness, now, he is precluded from challenging the award on alleged ground of procedural error which does not touch the roots of the matter. Furthermore, the appellant could not demonstrate any prejudice which may have been caused for such procedural infractions and in absence thereof, the aforesaid ground is not sufficient to set aside an award. Thus, the appeal deserves to be dismissed.

44. In support of her submissions, Ms. Bansal has relied upon a decision of the Bombay High Court in Arbitration Petition No. 43 of 2023 (M/s Truly Pest Solution Pvt. Ltd. v. Principal Chief Mechanic Engineer (PCME), Chief Railway, decided on 11th November, 2024.

Record of Proceedings

45. Before making an analysis, it will be relevant to state that during the course of submissions, the appellant had furnished a supplementary affidavit with an advance copy to the learned counsel for the respondent-corporation. The said supplementary affidavit seeks to bring on record two letters issued by the Corporation dated 26.02.2018 and 18.04.2018.

46. The learned counsel for the respondent-corporation very fairly consented that the same be taken on record as it was part of the arbitral record, however, liberty was sought to refer to those letters during course of her submissions. With the aforesaid understanding, the said supplementary affidavit was taken on record.

Discussions and Analysis:-

47. The Court has heard the learned counsel for the parties and also perused the material available on record.

48. Before dealing with the submissions of the respective parties, it will be pertinent to take a birds eye view of the legislative background of the amending Act No. 3 of 2016 which came into effect from 23.10.2015 by which the Act of 1996 was amended and the leading pronouncement on the subject.

49. The 246th report of the Law Commission was a prelude to the legislative amendment, introduced in the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996. The proposed amendment of 2016 aimed to reduce judicial intervention, ensuring Arbitrator's neutrality and implementing time lines to expedite arbitral proceedings.

50. The said amendment of 2016 came into effect on 23.10.2015 and it inter-alia amended Section 12 of the Act of 1996 to disqualify such individuals who had some relationship with the party, counsel, or with the subject matter of dispute, as it could give rise to a direct conflict of interest. The said amendment also endeavoured to prevent a party to a dispute to unilaterally appoint an Arbitrator, often of their own choice or an employee or an affiliated person, who could be inclined to favour such a party who had the right to appoint. The relationship which was considered as offending were identified and it found expression in the Fifth and Seventh Schedule which were incorporated in the Act. For better appreciation, the amended Section 12 of the Act of 1996 is being reproduced hereinafter:-

"12. Grounds for challenge.- [(1) When a person is approached in connection with his possible appointment as an arbitrator, he shall disclose in writing any circumstances,"

(a) such as the existence either direct or indirect, of any past or present relationship with or interest in any of the parties or in relation to the subject-matter in dispute, whether financial, business, professional or other kind, which is likely to give rise to justifiable doubts as to his independence or impartiality; and

(b) which are likely to affect his ability to devote sufficient time to the arbitration and in particular his ability to complete the entire arbitration within a period of twelve months.

Explanation 1.-The grounds stated in the Fifth Schedule shall guide in determining whether circumstances exist which give rise to justifiable doubts as to the independence or impartiality of an arbitrator.

Explanation 2.-The disclosure shall be made by such person in the form specified in the Sixth Schedule.]

(2) An arbitrator, from the time of his appointment and throughout the arbitral proceedings, shall, without delay, disclose to the parties in writing any circumstances referred to in sub-section (1) unless they have already been informed of them by him.

(3) An arbitrator may be challenged only if-

(a) circumstances exist that give rise to justifiable doubts as to his independence or impartiality, or

(b) he does not possess the qualifications agreed to by the parties.

(4) A party may challenge an arbitrator appointed by him, or in whose appointment he has participated, only for reasons of which he becomes aware after the appointment has been made.

[(5) Notwithstanding any prior agreement to the contrary, any person whose relationship, with the parties or counsel or the subject-matter of the dispute, falls under any of the categories specified in the Seventh Schedule shall be ineligible to be appointed as an arbitrator:

Provided that parties may, subsequent to disputes having arisen between them, waive the applicability of this sub-section by an express agreement in writing."

51. The purpose and rationale behind the Amending Act No. 3 of 2016 which came in force on 23.10.2025 was noticed by the Apex Court in Voestalpine Schienen GmbH v. DMRC: (2017) 4 SCC 665 and the relevant paragraphs read as under:-

"17. We may put a note of clarification here. Though, the Law Commission discussed the aforesaid aspect under the heading "Neutrality of Arbitrators", the focus of discussion was on impartiality and independence of the arbitrators which has relation to or bias towards one of the parties. In the field of international arbitration, neutrality is generally related to the nationality of the arbitrator. In international sphere, the "appearance of neutrality" is considered equally important, which means that an arbitrator is neutral if his nationality is different from that of the parties. However, that is not the aspect which is being considered and the term "neutrality" used is relatable to impartiality and independence of the arbitrators, without any bias towards any of the parties. In fact, the term "neutrality of arbitrators" is commonly used in this context as well.

18. Keeping in mind the aforequoted recommendation of the Law Commission, with which spirit, Section 12 has been amended by the Amendment Act, 2015, it is manifest that the main purpose for amending the provision was to provide for neutrality of arbitrators. In order to achieve this, sub-section (5) of Section 12 lays down that notwithstanding any prior agreement to the contrary, any person whose relationship with the parties or counsel or the subject-matter of the dispute falls under any of the categories specified in the Seventh Schedule, he shall be ineligible to be appointed as an arbitrator. In such an eventuality i.e. when the arbitration clause finds foul with the amended provisions extracted above, the appointment of an arbitrator would be beyond pale of the arbitration agreement, empowering the court to appoint such arbitrator(s) as may be permissible. That would be the effect of non obstante clause contained in sub-section (5) of Section 12 and the other party cannot insist on appointment of the arbitrator in terms of the arbitration agreement.

20. Independence and impartiality of the arbitrator are the hallmarks of any arbitration proceedings. Rule against bias is one of the fundamental principles of natural justice which applied to all judicial and quasi-judicial proceedings. It is for this reason that notwithstanding the fact that relationship between the parties to the arbitration and the arbitrators themselves are contractual in nature and the source of an arbitrator's appointment is deduced from the agreement entered into between the parties, notwithstanding the same non-independence and non-impartiality of such arbitrator (though contractually agreed upon) would render him ineligible to conduct the arbitration. The genesis behind this rational is that even when an arbitrator is appointed in terms of contract and by the parties to the contract, he is independent of the parties. Functions and duties require him to rise above the partisan interest of the parties and not to act in, or so as to further, the particular interest of either parties. After all, the arbitrator has adjudicatory role to perform and, therefore, he must be independent of parties as well as impartial. The United Kingdom

Supreme Court has beautifully highlighted this aspect in Hashwani v. Jivraj [Hashwani v. Jivraj, (2011) 1 WLR 1872 : 2011 UKSC 40] in the following words : (WLR p. 1889, para 45)

"45. - the dominant purpose of appointing an arbitrator or arbitrators is the impartial resolution of the dispute between the parties in accordance with the terms of the agreement and, although the contract between the parties and the arbitrators would be a contract for the provision of personal services, they were not personal services under the direction of the parties."

52. From a close reading of Section 12 and the Fifth and Seventh Schedule, it would reveal that the Fifth Schedule contains 34 entries while the Seventh Schedule contains 19 entries. Moreover, the first 19 entries in the Fifth Schedule are replicated in the Seventh Schedule. The Fifth Schedule is referable to Section 12(1) (b) while the Seventh Schedule is referable to Section 12(5) of the Act of 1996.

53. The category of relationship which gives justiciable grounds of doubt as to the independence or impartiality of an Arbitrator is in Fifth Schedule. In so far as the Seventh Schedule is concerned, it relates to situation where a person would be ineligible for being appointed as an Arbitrator, unless the parties to the disputes enter into an agreement in writing, after the disputes have arisen, expressly waiving the right to challenge such appointment.

54. Sections 12 (1) and (2) requires a prospective Arbitrator to disclose in writing any circumstances which is likely to give rise to justifiable doubt as to his independence or impartiality to act as an Arbitrator. Explanation 1 states that the grounds mentioned in the Fifth Schedule shall guide so as to determine what would be such justifiable doubts and Explanation 2 mandates such disclosure by the Arbitrator in the form mentioned in the Sixth Schedule.

55. On the other hand, Section 12(5) provides that notwithstanding any prior agreement to the contrary, any person whose relationship with the parties, counsel or the dispute falls under any of the categories specified in the Seventh Schedule shall make such person ineligible to be appointed as an Arbitrator subject to the post dispute express written waiver as mentioned in the proviso.

56. Illustratively, upon considering the Fifth and the Seventh Schedule, it would reveal that in a given factual scenario such as an Arbitrator being an employee of a party, it will have distinct consequences depending on whether it is invoked for the purposes of the Fifth or the Seventh Schedule.

57. In case if the said disability is invoked for the purposes of the Fifth Schedule then it has to be considered in terms of Section 12(1) and (4) and Section 13 of the Act of 1996. The circumstances, as mentioned in the Fifth Schedule will act as a guide to ascertain justifiable doubts and it would trigger the mandatory disclosure for an Arbitrator in terms of the Sixth Schedule. In case if a party is so aggrieved then it would lead such an aggrieved party to invoke the challenge procedure before the Tribunal under Section 13 of the Act of 1996. In case if the challenge fails then the issue can be raised after the award is made by filing a petition under Section 34 of the Act of 1996 to set aside the award on the said ground. Needless to say that the disclosure as required in terms of Section 12(1) read with the Sixth Schedule is mandatory.

58. However, in case the said objection is raised for the purposes of the Seventh Schedule then it has to be seen in context with Section 12(5) and Section 14 of the Act of 1996. In such circumstances, where a proposed Arbitrator or an Arbitrator appointed falls within any of the entries mentioned in the Seventh Schedule, he runs the risk of de jure-ineligibility and his mandate automatically terminates and a party can directly go to the Court under Section 14 and may not have to first raise a challenge in terms of Section 13 which has been noticed in the preceding paragraph. This disability which is incurred can only be cured by, a post dispute, express written waiver under the proviso to Section 12(5) of the Act of 1996.

59. Considering the aforesaid doctrinal aspect of the matter in light of the report of the Law Commission and noticing the decision of the Apex Court, the rationale for duplication of the entries in the Fifth and the Seventh Schedule can be understood as:-

(a) a single list covering serious conflicts; and

(b) two levels of legal recourse to the same conflict as explained in the preceding paragraphs. In other words disclosure and justifiable doubts arising out of the Fifth Schedule leads to a challenge in terms of Section 13 and later in terms of a ground raised under Section 34 of the Act of 1996 whereas the disability as per the Seventh Schedule is automatic and by replicating entries 1 to 19 of the Fifth Schedule, in the Seventh Schedule, it reflects the legislative intent to elevate such entries to such a degree which makes it a non-derogable ineligibility and the same can only be removed by an express waiver in writing after the disputes have arisen.

60. The Apex Court in HRD Corpn. v. GAIL (India) Ltd., (2018) 12 SCC 471 explained the scope and purpose of the duplication of the entries in the Fifth and Seventh Schedule with the scheme of challenge to the appointment of an Arbitrator in terms of Section 12 to 15 of the Act of 1996 and the relevant paras 12 to 15 read as under:-

12. After the 2016 Amendment Act, a dichotomy is made by the Act between persons who become "ineligible" to be appointed as arbitrators, and persons about whom justifiable doubts exist as to their independence or impartiality. Since ineligibility goes to the root of the appointment, Section 12(5) read with the Seventh Schedule makes it clear that if the arbitrator falls in any one of the categories specified in the Seventh Schedule, he becomes "ineligible" to act as arbitrator. Once he becomes ineligible, it is clear that, under Section 14(1)(a), he then becomes de jure unable to perform his functions inasmuch as, in law, he is regarded as "ineligible". In order to determine whether an arbitrator is de jure unable to perform his functions, it is not necessary to go to the Arbitral Tribunal under Section 13. Since such a person would lack inherent jurisdiction to proceed any further, an application may be filed under Section 14(2) to the Court to decide on the termination of his/her mandate on this ground. As opposed to this, in a challenge where grounds stated in the Fifth Schedule are disclosed, which give rise to justifiable doubts as to the arbitrator's independence or impartiality, such doubts as to independence or impartiality have to be determined as a matter of fact in the facts of the particular challenge by the Arbitral Tribunal under Section 13. If a challenge is not successful, and the Arbitral Tribunal decides that there are no justifiable doubts as to the independence or impartiality of the arbitrator/arbitrators, the Tribunal must then continue the arbitral proceedings under Section 13(4) and make an award. It is only after such award is made, that the party challenging the arbitrator's appointment on grounds contained in the Fifth Schedule may make an application for setting aside the arbitral award in accordance with Section 34 on the aforesaid grounds. It is clear, therefore, that any challenge contained in the Fifth Schedule against the appointment of Justice Doabia and Justice Lahoti cannot be gone into at this stage, but will be gone into only after the Arbitral Tribunal has given an award. Therefore, we express no opinion on items contained in the Fifth Schedule under which the appellant may challenge the appointment of either arbitrator. They will be free to do so only after an award is rendered by the Tribunal.

13. Confining ourselves to ineligibility, it is important to note that the Law Commission by its 246th Report of August 2014 had this to say in relation to the amendments made to Section 12 and the insertion of the Fifth and Seventh Schedules:

"59. The Commission has proposed the requirement of having specific disclosures by the arbitrator, at the stage of his possible appointment, regarding existence of any relationship or interest of any kind which is likely to give rise to justifiable doubts. The Commission has proposed the incorporation of the Fourth Schedule, which has drawn from the red and orange lists of the IBA Guidelines on Conflicts of Interest in International Arbitration, and which would be treated as a "guide" to determine whether circumstances exist which give rise to such justifiable doubts. On the other hand, in terms of the proposed Section 12(5) of the Act and the Fifth Schedule which incorporates the categories from the red list of the IBA Guidelines (as above), the person proposed to be appointed as an arbitrator shall be ineligible to be so appointed, notwithstanding any prior agreement to the contrary. In the event such an ineligible person is purported to be appointed as an arbitrator, he shall be de jure deemed to be unable to perform his functions, in terms of the proposed Explanation to Section 14. Therefore, while the disclosure is required with respect to a broader list of categories (as set out in the Fourth Schedule, and as based on the red and orange lists of the IBA Guidelines), the ineligibility to be appointed as an arbitrator (and the consequent de jure inability to so act) follows from a smaller and more serious sub-set of situations (as set out in the Fifth Schedule, and as based on the red list of the IBA Guidelines).

60. The Commission, however, feels that real and genuine party autonomy must be respected, and, in certain situations, parties should be allowed to waive even the categories of ineligibility as set in the proposed Fifth Schedule. This could be in situations of family arbitrations or other arbitrations where a person commands the blind faith and trust of the parties to the dispute, despite the existence of objective "justifiable doubts" regarding his independence and impartiality. To deal with such situations, the Commission has proposed the proviso to Section 12(5), where parties may, subsequent to disputes having arisen between them, waive the applicability of the proposed Section 12(5) by an express agreement in writing. In all other cases, the general rule in the proposed Section 12(5) must be followed. In the event the High Court is approached in connection with appointment of an arbitrator, the Commission has proposed seeking the disclosure in terms of Section 12(1) and in which context the High Court or the designate is to have "due regard" to the contents of such disclosure in appointing the arbitrator."

14. The enumeration of grounds given in the Fifth and Seventh Schedules have been taken from the IBA Guidelines, particularly from the Red and Orange Lists thereof. The aforesaid guidelines consist of three lists. The Red List, consisting of non-waivable and waivable guidelines, covers situations which are "more serious" and "serious", the "more serious" objections being non-waivable. The Orange List, on the other hand, is a list of situations that may give rise to doubts as to the arbitrator's impartiality or independence, as a consequence of which the arbitrator has a duty to disclose such situations. The Green List is a list of situations where no actual conflict of interest exists from an objective point of view, as a result of which the arbitrator has no duty of disclosure. These Guidelines were first introduced in the year 2004 and have thereafter been amended, after seeing the experience of arbitration worldwide. In Part 1 thereof, general standards regarding impartiality, independence and disclosure are set out.

15. General Principle 1 reads as follows:

"IBA Guidelines on Conflicts of Interest in International Arbitration:-

(1) General Principle:-

Every arbitrator shall be impartial and independent of the parties at the time of accepting an appointment to serve and shall remain so until the final award has been rendered or the proceedings have otherwise finally terminated."

On "conflicts of interest", Guidelines laid down are as follows:

"(2) Conflicts of Interest

(a) An arbitrator shall decline to accept an appointment or, if the arbitration has already been commenced, refuse to continue to act as an arbitrator, if he or she has any doubt as to his or her ability to be impartial or independent.

(b) The same principle applies if facts or circumstances exist, or have arisen since the appointment, which, from the point of view of a reasonable third person having knowledge of the relevant facts and circumstances, would give rise to justifiable doubts as to the arbitrator's impartiality or independence, unless the parties have accepted the arbitrator in accordance with the requirements set out in General Standard 4.

(c) Doubts are justifiable if a reasonable third person, having knowledge of the relevant facts and circumstances, would reach the conclusion that there is a likelihood that the arbitrator may be influenced by factors other than the merits of the case as presented by the parties in reaching his or her decision.

(d) Justifiable doubts necessarily exist as to the arbitrator's impartiality or independence in any of the situations described in the Non-Waivable Red List."

61. In this very context, the Apex Court in TRF Ltd. v. Energo Engg. Projects Ltd. (2017) 8 SCC 377 considered the eligibility of appointment of an Arbitrator, taking note of Section 12(1) and (5) of the Act of 1996 along with the Fifth & Seventh Schedule and the relevant paras read, as under:-

"50. First, we shall deal with Clause (d). There is no quarrel that by virtue of Section 12(5) of the Act, if any person who falls under any of the categories specified in the Seventh Schedule shall be ineligible to be appointed as the arbitrator. There is no doubt and cannot be, for the language employed in the Seventh Schedule, the Managing Director of the Corporation has become ineligible by operation of law. It is the stand of the learned Senior Counsel for the appellant that once the Managing Director becomes ineligible, he also becomes ineligible to nominate. Refuting the said stand, it is canvassed by the learned Senior Counsel for the respondent that the ineligibility cannot extend to a nominee if he is not from the Corporation and more so when there is apposite and requisite disclosure. We think it appropriate to make it clear that in the case at hand we are neither concerned with the disclosure nor objectivity nor impartiality nor any such other circumstance. We are singularly concerned with the issue, whether the Managing Director, after becoming ineligible by operation of law, is he still eligible to nominate an arbitrator. At the cost of repetition, we may state that when there are two parties, one may nominate an arbitrator and the other may appoint another. That is altogether a different situation. If there is a clause requiring the parties to nominate their respective arbitrator, their authority to nominate cannot be questioned. What really in that circumstance can be called in question is the procedural compliance and the eligibility of their arbitrator depending upon the norms provided under the Act and the Schedules appended thereto. But, here is a case where the Managing Director is the "named sole arbitrator" and he has also been conferred with the power to nominate one who can be the arbitrator in his place. Thus, there is subtle distinction...

53. The aforesaid authorities have been commended to us to establish the proposition that if the nomination of an arbitrator by an ineligible arbitrator is allowed, it would tantamount to carrying on the proceeding of arbitration by himself. According to the learned counsel for the appellant, ineligibility strikes at the root of his power to arbitrate or get it arbitrated upon by a nominee.

54. In such a context, the fulcrum of the controversy would be, can an ineligible arbitrator, like the Managing Director, nominate an arbitrator, who may be otherwise eligible and a respectable person. As stated earlier, we are neither concerned with the objectivity nor the individual respectability. We are only concerned with the authority or the power of the Managing Director. By our analysis, we are obligated to arrive at the conclusion that once the arbitrator has become ineligible by operation of law, he cannot nominate another as an arbitrator. The arbitrator becomes ineligible as per prescription contained in Section 12(5) of the Act. It is inconceivable in law that person who is statutorily ineligible can nominate a person. Needless to say, once the infrastructure collapses, the superstructure is bound to collapse. One cannot have a building without the plinth. Or to put it differently, once the identity of the Managing Director as the sole arbitrator is lost, the power to nominate someone else as an arbitrator is obliterated. Therefore, the view expressed by the High Court is not sustainable and we say so.....

62. The aforesaid issue was again considered by the Apex Court in Perkins Eastman Architects DPC v. HSCC (India) Ltd. (2020) 20 SCC 760 wherein the Apex Court held as under:-

"20. We thus have two categories of cases. The first, similar to the one dealt with in TRF Ltd. v. Energo Engg. Projects Ltd., (2017) 8 SCC 377 : (2017) 4 SCC (Civ) 72] where the Managing Director himself is named as an arbitrator with an additional power to appoint any other person as an arbitrator. In the second category, the Managing Director is not to act as an arbitrator himself but is empowered or authorised to appoint any other person of his choice or discretion as an arbitrator. If, in the first category of cases, the Managing Director was found incompetent, it was because of the interest that he would be said to be having in the outcome or result of the dispute. The element of invalidity would thus be directly relatable to and arise from the interest that he would be having in such outcome or decision. If that be the test, similar invalidity would always arise and spring even in the second category of cases. If the interest that he has in the outcome of the dispute, is taken to be the basis for the possibility of bias, it will always be present irrespective of whether the matter stands under the first or second category of cases. We are conscious that if such deduction is drawn from the decision of this Court in TRF Ltd. v. Energo Engg. Projects Ltd., (2017) 8 SCC 377 : (2017) 4 SCC (Civ) 72] , all cases having clauses similar to that with which we are presently concerned, a party to the agreement would be disentitled to make any appointment of an arbitrator on its own and it would always be available to argue that a party or an official or an authority having interest in the dispute would be disentitled to make appointment of an arbitrator.

21. But, in our view that has to be the logical deduction from TRF Ltd. [TRF Ltd. v. Energo Engg. Projects Ltd., (2017) 8 SCC 377 : (2017) 4 SCC (Civ) 72] Para 50 of the decision shows that this Court was concerned with the issue, "whether the Managing Director, after becoming ineligible by operation of law, is he still eligible to nominate an arbitrator" The ineligibility referred to therein, was as a result of operation of law, in that a person having an interest in the dispute or in the outcome or decision thereof, must not only be ineligible to act as an arbitrator but must also not be eligible to appoint anyone else as an arbitrator and that such person cannot and should not have any role in charting out any course to the dispute resolution by having the power to appoint an arbitrator. The next sentences in the paragraph, further show that cases where both the parties could nominate respective arbitrators of their choice were found to be completely a different situation. The reason is clear that whatever advantage a party may derive by nominating an arbitrator of its choice would get counter-balanced by equal power with the other party. But, in a case where only one party has a right to appoint a sole arbitrator, its choice will always have an element of exclusivity in determining or charting the course for dispute resolution. Naturally, the person who has an interest in the outcome or decision of the dispute must not have the power to appoint a sole arbitrator. That has to be taken as the essence of the amendments brought in by the Arbitration and Conciliation (Amendment) Act, 2015 (3 of 2016) and recognised by the decision of this Court in TRF Ltd. [TRF Ltd. v. Energo Engg. Projects Ltd., (2017) 8 SCC 377 : (2017) 4 SCC (Civ) 72]"

63. However, The Apex Court expressed a non-conformist view in Central Organization for Railway Electrification v. ECI-SPIC-SMO-MCML (JV) a Joint Venture Company Core-I (2020) 14 SCC 712 (hereinafter referred to as Core-I and held that the decisions in TRF (supra) and Perkins Eastman (supra) were not applicable and further noticed that Section 12(5) of the Act of 1996 did not bar the retired officers to be appointed as an Arbitrator nor such appointment was hit by Section 12(5) of the Act of 1996.

64. Soon thereafter, In Union of India v. Tantia Constructions Limited, 2021 SCC OnLine SC 271, the Apex Court expressed a discordant note and doubted the correctness of the decision in Core-I (supra) and referred the matter to a Larger Bench. A Constitution Bench in Core-II (supra) was faced with the following questions to be answered, which are being noticed hereinunder:-

" 14. The following issues fall for the determination of this Court:

14.1. (a) Whether an appointment process which allows a party who has an interest in the dispute to unilaterally appoint a sole arbitrator, or curate a panel of arbitrators and mandate that the other party select their arbitrator from the panel is valid in law;

14.2. (b) Whether the principle of equal treatment of parties applies at the stage of the appointment of arbitrators; and

14.3. (c) Whether an appointment process in a public-private contract which allows a government entity to unilaterally appoint a sole arbitrator or majority of the arbitrators of the Arbitral Tribunal is violative of Article 14 of the Constitution."

65. The Apex Court in context of the aforesaid questions vide its majority opinion held that all such arbitration agreements which enable one party to unilaterally constitute an Arbitral Tribunal would be void per se keeping in mind the principle of equal treatment of parties which apply to all stages of arbitral proceedings including the stage of appointment of Arbitrators. It also held that the Arbitration Act did not prohibit Public Sector Corporation from empanelling potential Arbitrators, however, an arbitration clause could not mandate the other party to select its Arbitrators from the panel created by such Corporations. It is also held that a clause allowing one party to unilaterally appoint an Arbitrator gives rise to justifiable doubts as to the independence and impartiality of such an Arbitrator. After a detailed discussion the Apex Court in Core-II (Supra), went on to record its conclusions, as per the majority opinion, as under:-

"J. Conclusion

170. In view of the above discussion, we conclude that:

170.1. The principle of equal treatment of parties applies at all stages of arbitration proceedings, including the stage of appointment of arbitrators;

170.2. The Arbitration Act does not prohibit PSUs from empanelling potential arbitrators. However, an arbitration clause cannot mandate the other party to select its arbitrator from the panel curated by PSUs;

170.3. A clause that allows one party to unilaterally appoint a sole arbitrator gives rise to justifiable doubts as to the independence and impartiality of the arbitrator. Further, such a unilateral clause is exclusive and hinders equal participation of the other party in the appointment process of arbitrators;

170.4. In the appointment of a three-member panel, mandating the other party to select its arbitrator from a curated panel of potential arbitrators is against the principle of equal treatment of parties. In this situation, there is no effective counterbalance because parties do not participate equally in the process of appointing arbitrators. The process of appointing arbitrators in CORE [Central Organisation for Railway Electrification v. ECI-SPIC-SMO-MCML (JV), (2020) 14 SCC 712] is unequal and prejudiced in favour of the Railways;

170.5. Unilateral appointment clauses in public-private contracts are violative of Article 14 of the Constitution;

170.6. The principle of express waiver contained under the proviso to Section 12(5) also applies to situations where the parties seek to waive the allegation of bias against an arbitrator appointed unilaterally by one of the parties. After the disputes have arisen, the parties can determine whether there is a necessity to waive the nemo judex rule; and

170.7. The law laid down in the present reference will apply prospectively to arbitrator appointments to be made after the date of this judgment. This direction applies to three-member tribunals."

66. The Apex Court recently in Bhadra International (Supra), had the occasion to consider the issue of waiver in context of proviso appended to Section 12(5) of the Act with certain other ancillary questions, which were delineated in para 29 and the conclusions in para 123, as under:-

"i. Whether the sole arbitrator could be said to have become "ineligible to be appointed as an arbitrator" by virtue of sub-section (5) of Section 12 of the Act, 1996?

ii. Whether the parties could be said to have waived the applicability of sub-section (5) of Section 12 of the Act, 1996, by way of their conduct, either expressed or implied?

iii. Whether the appellants could have raised an objection to the appointment of the sole arbitrator for the first time in an application under Section 34 of the Act, 1996?"

"VIII. CONCLUSION

123. A conspectus of the aforesaid detailed discussion on the position of law as regards Section 12 of the Act, 1996, is as follows:"

i. The principle of equal treatment of parties provided in Section 18 of the Act, 1996, applies not only to the arbitral proceedings but also to the procedure for appointment of arbitrators. Equal treatment of the parties entails that the parties must have an equal say in the constitution of the arbitral tribunal.

ii. Sub-section (5) of Section 12 provides that any person whose relationship with the parties or counsel, or the dispute, whether direct or indirect, falls within any of the categories specified in the Seventh Schedule would be ineligible to be appointed as an arbitrator. Since, the ineligibility stems from the operation of law, not only is a person having an interest in the dispute or its outcome ineligible to act as an arbitrator, but appointment by such a person would be ex facie invalid.

iii. The words "an express agreement in writing" in the proviso to Section 12(5) means that the right to object to the appointment of an ineligible arbitrator cannot be taken away by mere implication. The agreement referred to in the proviso must be a clear, unequivocal written agreement.

iv. When an arbitrator is found to be ineligible by virtue of Section 12(5) read with the Seventh Schedule, his mandate is automatically terminated. In such circumstance, an aggrieved party may approach the court under Section 14 read with Section 15 for appointment of a substitute arbitrator. Whereas, when an award has been passed by such an arbitrator, an aggrieved party may approach the court under Section 34 for setting aside the award.

v. In arbitration, the parties vest jurisdiction in the tribunal by exercising their consent in furtherance of a valid arbitration agreement. An arbitrator who lacks jurisdiction cannot make an award on the merits. Hence, an objection to the inherent lack of jurisdiction can be taken at any stage of the proceedings."

67. Having waded through the thicket of the exposition of law as adumbrated by the Apex Court in the aforesaid noted decisions, now the stage is set to extract the undisputed facts between the parties, as follows:-

(i) It is not disputed that a dealership agreement was entered between the parties which inter-alia contained an arbitration clause. It is also not disputed that the appellant invoked the arbitration clause and required the respondent-corporation to appoint an Arbitrator.

(ii) It is also not disputed that the respondent-corporation vide its letter dated 24.01.2018 had required the appellant to give his consent in writing for permitting the Corporation to appoint its employee as the Sole Arbitrator. It is also not disputed that the Corporation vide its letter dated 26.02.2018 had turned down the request of the appellant whereby he had appointed a Chartered Accountant as an Arbitrator and required the Corporation to concur to such appointment.

(iii) It is also not disputed that the Corporation informed the appellant that the Corporation did not recognize the appointment suggested by the appellant and further required the appellant to either give his consent as required in terms of the earlier letter dated 24.01.2018 of the Corporation or the appellant may approach the appropriate forum for appointment of an Arbitrator. It is also not disputed that thereafter the appellant gave his consent to the Corporation for appointment of an Arbitrator.

68. In the aforesaid backdrop of undisputed facts and considering the submissions advanced by the learned counsel for the respective parties, two issues arise for consideration of this Court (i) whether the consent given by the appellant vide its letter dated 07.03.2018 amounts to an agreement in writing expressly waiving the right to object in terms of Section 12(5) of the Act of 1996; (ii) whether an objection regarding the ineligibility of the Arbitrator can be raised in the appeal for the first time or it requires to be taken necessarily first, before the Tribunal and the Court under Section 34 of the Act of 1996.

69. The first issue noticed above, would require this Court to consider the Arbitration Clause and the following letters exchanged between the parties i.e. (i) dated 24.01.2018 (ii) its reply by the appellant dated 15.02.2018, (iii) the response of the Corporation dated 26.0.2018 and (iv) the letter of the appellant dated 07.03.2018.

70. The arbitration clause No. 66 of the agreement reads as under:-

"66. ANY DISPUTE OR DIFFERENCE OF ANY NATURE WHATSOEVER REGARDING ANY RIGHT, LIABILITY, ACT, OMISSION OR ACCOUNT OF ANY OF THE PARTIES HERETO ARISING OUT OF OR IN RELATION TO THIS AGREEMENT (OTHER THAN THOSE IN RESPECT OF WHICH THE DECISION OF ANY PERSON, IS BY THE AGREEMENT EXPRESSED TO BE FINAL AND BINDING) SHALL BE REFERRED TO THE SOLE ARBITRATION OF THE CHAIRMAN AND MANAGING DIRECTOR OF THE CORPORATION OR OF SOME OFFICER/RETIRED OFFICER OF THE CORPORATION OR RETIRED OFFICER OF OTHER OIL PSUS OR RETIRED SENIOR CENTRAL GOVT. OFFICER WHO MAY BE NOMINATED BY THE CHAIRMAN AND MANAGING DIRECTOR. THE DEALER WILL NOT BE ENTITLED TO RAISE ANY OBJECTION TO ANY SUCH ARBITRATOR ON THE GROUND THAT THE ARBITRATOR IS OR WAS AN OFFICER AND/OR SHARE HOLDER OF THE CORPORATION OR THAT HE HAS TO DEAL WITH OR DEALT WITH THE MATTERS TO WHICH THE CONTRACT RELATES OR THAT IN THE COURSE OF HIS DUTIES AS AN OFFICER OF THE CORPORATION HE HAD EXPRESSED VIEWS ON ALL OR ANY OF THE MATTERS IN DISPUTE OR DIFFERENCE. IN THE EVENT OF THE ARBITRATOR TO WHOM THE MATTER IS ORIGINALLY REFERRED VACATING HIS OFFICE OR BEING UNABLE TO ACT FOR ANY REASON THE CHAIRMAN AND MANAGING DIRECTOR AS AFORESAID AT THE TIME OF SUCH VACATION OF OFFICE OR INABILITY TO ACT, SHALL DESIGNATE

ANOTHER PERSON TO ACT AS ARBITRATOR. IN ACCORDANCE WITH THE TERMS OF THE AGREEMENT SUCH PERSON SHALL BE ENTITLED TO PROCEED WITH THE REFERENCE FROM THE POINT AT WHICH IT WAS LEFT BY HIS PREDECESSOR. IT IS ALSO A TERM OF THIS CONTRACT THAT NO PERSON OTHER THAN THE CHAIRMAN AND MANAGING DIRECTOR OR A PERSON NOMINATED BY SUCH CHAIRMAN AND MANAGING DIRECTOR OF THE CORPORATION AS AFORESAID SHALL ACT AS ARBITRATOR HEREUNDER THE COST OF ARBITRATION SHALL BE SHARED EQUALLY BY THE PARTIES THE AWARD OF THE ARBITRATOR SO APPOINTED SHALL BE FINAL, CONCLUSIVE AND BINDING ON ALL PARTIES TO THE AGREEMENT, SUBJECT TO THE PROVISIONS OF THE ARBITRATION AND CONCILIATION ACT, 1996 OR ANY STATUTORY MODIFICATION OF OR RE-ENACTMENT THEREOF AND RULES MADE THEREUNDER AND FOR THE TIME BEING IN FORCE SHALL APPLY TO THE ARBITRATION PROCEEDINGS UNDER THIS CLAUSE.

THE AWARD SHALL BE MADE IN WRITING WITHIN SIX MONTHS AFTER ENTERING UPON THE REFERENCE OR WITHIN SUCH EXTENDED TIME NOT EXCEEDING FURTHER FOUR MONTHS AS SOLE ARBITRATOR SHALL BY A WRITING UNDER HIS OWN HANDS APPOINT."

71. The letter dated 24.01.2018 of the Corporation reads as under:-

Sub: Appointment of Sole Arbitrator in respect of disputes and differences pertaining to Petrol/Diesel Agreement dated 14.01.2013

Dear Sir,

This is in reference to your communication dated Nil addressed to Corporation wherein you have given reference of clause 66 of the terminated Dealership Agreement dated 14.01.2013 which provides for appointment of arbitrator.

However, before considering your request for appointment of Arbitrator, with the coming into force of the Arbitration and Conciliation (Amendment) Act, 2015 with effect from 23.10.2015, your prior written consent is required for appointment of Arbitrator by Corporation in view of Section 12(5) as inserted by the Amendment, which states that:-

"Notwithstanding any prior agreement to the contrary, any person whose relationship, with the parties or counsel or the subject matter of dispute, falls under any of the categories specified in the Seventh Schedule shall be ineligible to be appointed as an arbitrator:

Provided that parties may, subsequent to disputes having arisen between them, waive the applicability of this sub-section by an express agreement in writing..."

In view of the above change in law, we would like your confirmation as to whether you are ready and willing to waive the applicability of the aforementioned section 12 (5) as inserted by the recent amendment in 2015 and whether you are willing to give your consent for appointment of an employee of Hindustan Petroleum Corporation Limited as a Sole Arbitrator to adjudicate the difference and disputes between yourself and HPCL.

Kindly convey your written response (i.e. giving consent or not giving consent) within 15 days from the date of this letter to enable us to take further necessary action in the matter.

Thanking you.

Very truly yours.

75. In the instant case, from the perusal of the arbitration clause as reproduced hereinabove, it reveals that the arbitration clause contemplated the disputes to be referred to the Sole Arbitration of the Chairman and Managing Director of the Corporation who had an additional power to appoint some other person as an Arbitrator. Apparently, the Chairman and the Managing Director of the Corporation clearly falls within the category mentioned in the Fifth and the Seventh Schedule appended to the Act of 1996. Thus, post the amendment in the Act i.e. w.e.f. 23.10.2015 the Chairman and the Managing Director of the Corporation was ineligible to act as an Arbitrator.

76. It is not a case where the Corporation had prepared a panel of potential Arbitrators and the appellant was required to select from amongst the said curated panel. Here, in the case at hand, the Chairman and the Managing Director of the Corporation was named as the Arbitrator with additional power to appoint some other person as Arbitrator. Once the Chairman and the Managing Director of the Corporation was ineligible to act as an Arbitrator then for the very same reason, he was not competent to appoint any other person to arbitrate. Thus, on this count, it is clear that the appointment of the Arbitrator made by the Chairman and the Managing Director of the Corporation was squarely hit by the decision of the Apex Court in TRF (Supra) and Core-II (Supra) and such a person was not eligible to act as an Arbitrator as he lacked inherent jurisdiction and could not have made the award.

77. Additionally, the Arbitrator so appointed by the Chairman and Managing Director of the Corporation also did not furnish a declaration as required in terms of Section 12(1) read with Fifth and Sixth Schedule appended to the Act of 1996. This assumes significance for the reason that the exchange of letters between the parties would indicate that the letter of the appellant dated 07.03.2018 which has been quoted above, at best can be treated as consent only permitting the Corporation to appoint an Arbitrator and not a waiver of his right in terms of provisions to Section 12 (5) of the Act of 1996.

78. The letters quoted above would clearly indicate that by the first letter issued by the Corporation it sought consent of the appellant for appointment of a serving officer of the Corporation to act as an Arbitrator which was turned down by the appellant by his letter dated 15.02.2018. Now, if the letter of the Corporation dated 26.02.2018 is seen, then it will reveal that the appellant was required to furnish his consent to enable the Chairman and the Managing Director of the Corporation to appoint an Arbitrator and it did not say that the Chairman and the Managing Director of the Corporation would appoint only a serving officer of the Corporation.

79. Section 12(5) and its proviso uses the words "by an express agreement in writing" whereas an agreement postulates manifestation of mutual assent by two or more persons to one another. In other words it is meeting of minds with a common intention made through offer and acceptance.

80. In this background, it would be seen that the letter of the Corporation dated 24.01.2018 was an offer made by the Corporation requiring the appellant to give his consent.

81. The appellant by his reply dated 15.02.2018 appointed a Chartered Accountant as the Arbitrator and required the concurrence of the Corporation. This clearly was not an acceptance of the offer of the Corporation made in its letter dated 24.01.2018, rather this was a counter offer by the appellant.

82. Again the Corporation turned down the counter offer of the appellant vide its reply dated 26.02.2018. This was then followed by making another offer which was replied by the appellant on 07.03.2018 and this would reveal that as far as the issue of seeking waiver in terms of Section 12(5) Proviso is concerned, there was no visible meeting of minds (consensus ad idem) between the appellant and the respondent.

83. In this context at best, the appellant's consent can only be treated for the purposes of appointment of an Arbitrator who even could be a retired officer of the Corporation or of some other Oil Company or some retired Senior Central Government employee and the consent was not for the purposes of appointing a serving officer of the Corporation and certainly it was not a waiver of his right to raise objections in terms of the proviso appended to Section 12(5) of the Act of 1996.

84. In order to ascertain what could be construed as an "express waiver" and its facets, was considered by the Apex Court in Bhadra International (Supra) and in paragraph 77 to 86, 89 to 90 and paragraphs 96 to 98, it held as under:-

"77. Waiver means the intentional giving up of a right. It involves a conscious decision to abandon an existing legal right, benefit, claim, or privilege that a party would otherwise have been entitled to. It amounts to an agreement not to enforce that right. A waiver can occur only when the person making it is fully aware of the right in question and, with complete knowledge, chooses to give it up. [See : State of Punjab v. Davinder Pal Singh Bhullar, (2011) 14 SCC 770]

78. What flows from the aforesaid is when a right exists, i.e., the right to object to the appointment of an ineligible arbitrator in terms of Section 12(5), such a right cannot be taken away by mere implication. For a party to be deprived of this right by way of waiver, there must be a conscious and unequivocal expression of intent to relinquish it. Needless to say, for a waiver to be valid, it is necessary that the actor demonstrates the intention to act, and for an act to be intentional, the actor must understand the act and its consequences.

79. The expression "express agreement in writing" demonstrates a deliberate and informed act that although a party is fully aware of the arbitrator's ineligibility, yet it chooses to forego the right to object against the appointment of such an arbitrator. The requirement of an express agreement in writing has been introduced as it reflects awareness and a conscious intention to waive the right to object under sub-section (5) of Section 12. A clear manifestation of the expression of waiver assumes greater importance in light of the fact that the parties are overcoming a restriction imposed by law.

80. It is in the same breath we say that appointment of an arbitrator with the consent of both parties is the general rule, while unilateral appointment is an exception. When one party appoints an arbitrator unilaterally, even if its own consent is implicit, the consent of the opposite party stands compromised, and the choice of the former is effectively imposed upon the latter.

81. It is only through an express agreement in writing, waiving the bar under sub-section (5) of Section 12, that the other party can be said to have voluntarily consented to the unilateral appointment of such an arbitrator. The proviso conveys that the arbitrator, although ineligible to be appointed, yet can continue to perform his functions, as it is oriented towards facilitating party autonomy. Thus, the proviso reinforces party autonomy and equal treatment of parties in arbitration.

82. In other words, even though the appointment had been made by one of the parties, by the act of entering into an agreement in writing, the other party expresses its consent. The manner of the agreement prescribed by the statute demonstrates voluntariness by the parties.

83. In a case of unilateral appointment, the waiver mentioned in the proviso is an indication of party autonomy in two ways : first, that the parties, by entering into an agreement, are waiving the bar under Section 12(5). Secondly, by the act of entering into an agreement, the parties, more particularly, the non-consenting party, are expressing their consent for appointment of the proposed arbitrator.

84. Undoubtedly, the statute does not prescribe a format for the agreement. However, the absence of a prescribed format cannot be construed to mean that the waiver may be inferred impliedly or through conduct. We say so because the legislature has consciously prefaced the term "agreement" with the word "express" and followed it with the phrase "in writing". This semantics denote the intention of the legislature that the waiver under the proviso to Section 12(5) must be made only through an express and written manifestation of intention.

85. The conscious use of the prefatory expression also serves to differentiate such waiver from "deemed waiver" as stipulated under Section 4 of the Act, 1996. We must be mindful of the fact that if the legislature intended that waiver under Section 12(5) could similarly arise by implication or conduct as mentioned under Section 4, it would have refrained from introducing a heightened and mandatory requirement, more particularly, in light of the rigours of the Seventh Schedule. The statutory design therefore makes it evident that the bar under Section 12(5) can be removed only by a clear, unequivocal, and written agreement executed after the dispute has arisen, and not by any form of tacit acceptance or procedural participation.

86. The mandate of an express agreement in writing in the present case may looked at from one another angle. The unilateral appointment of an arbitrator is assessed from the viewpoint of the parties. However, when the parties later execute an express written agreement waiving the ineligibility of the proposed arbitrator, the position gets altered. Such written waiver supplies the very consent that was previously missing, thereby placing the appointment on the same footing as a mutually agreed appointment and addresses concerns regarding neutrality and fairness.

89. What can be discerned from the above discussion is that the ineligibility of an arbitrator can be waived only by an express agreement in writing. In the present case, there is no agreement in writing, after the disputes arose, waiving the ineligibility of the sole arbitrator or the right to object under Section 12(5) of the Act, 1996.

90. The conduct of the parties is inconsequential and does not constitute a valid waiver under the proviso. The requirement of the waiver to be made expressly in the form of agreement in writing ensures that parties are not divested of their right to object inadvertently or by procedural happenstance."

" 96. The net effect of the aforesaid is that a notice invoking the arbitration clause under Section 21 of the Act, 1996, a procedural order, submission of statement of claim by the appellants, the filing an application seeking interim relief, or a reply to an application under Section 33 of the Act, 1996, cannot be countenanced to mean "an express agreement in writing" within the meaning of the proviso to sub-section (5) of Section 12 of the Act, 1996.

97. One could argue that a miscreant party may participate in the arbitral proceedings up to the passing of the award, despite having full knowledge of the arbitrator's ineligibility. While after an adverse award is rendered, such a party may then seek to challenge it with a view to having it set aside. Such an apprehension is reasonable, however, to obviate the possibility of such misuse, the party making unilateral appointment must endeavour to enter into an express written agreement as stipulated in the proviso to Section 12(5), so as to safeguard the proceedings from being rendered futile.

98. Thus, all the High Court decisions taking a contrary view to the present judgment would stand overruled."

85. In light of the aforesaid discussions, this Court finds that the appellant did not expressly waive his right to object in writing in terms of Section 12(5) of the Act of 1996 and its proviso. Thus, the first issue is answered accordingly.

Issue No. II

86. Now, whether the appellant could have raised this objection for the first time in an appeal under Section 37 of the Act of 1996. This issue was considered by the Apex Court in Bhadra International (Supra) and in paragraph nos. 112, 113, 120, it held as under:-

"112. What emerges from the foregoing is that the appellants were well within their right to challenge the ineligibility of the sole arbitrator in an application under Section 34 of the Act, 1996.

c. Challenge to the ineligibility of the arbitrator at any stage of the proceedings

113. A challenge to an arbitrator's ineligibility could be raised at any stage because an award passed in such circumstance is non-est, i.e., it carries no enforceability or recognition in law. We say so because an arbitrator does not possess the jurisdiction to pass an award. In arbitration, the parties vest the jurisdiction in the tribunal by virtue of a valid arbitration agreement and an appointment made in accordance with the provisions of the Act, 1996. This jurisdiction is grounded in the consent of the parties as explained in the foregoing paragraphs of this judgment.

120. All that we are trying to convey is that, in civil law, the law itself confers subject-matter jurisdiction on specific courts. For instance, a suit seeking a declaration on the validity of marriage before the Civil Court is not maintainable, as such disputes fall within the exclusive jurisdiction of the Family Court. Similarly, in arbitration, the consent of parties confers subject-matter jurisdiction, i.e., the authority to decide the dispute. When an arbitral tribunal is unilaterally constituted, such consent is absent, thereby divesting the tribunal of subject-matter jurisdiction. The Act, 1996, does not recognize the conferral of jurisdiction on an arbitral tribunal without the consent of the parties. By entering into an express agreement in writing as per the proviso to Section 12(5), the parties not only waive the ineligibility of the proposed arbitrator but also consent to his appointment.

121. Before we part, we deem it fit to observe that an arbitrator is better equipped with the position of law on appointments, more particularly, unilateral appointments. Therefore, it becomes incumbent upon the arbitrator that upon entering reference and at the very first hearing, to ensure from the parties that they are willing to participate in the proceedings and to insist upon a written agreement waiving the requirement of Section 12(5) of the Act, 1996."

87. In light of the observations made by the Apex Court as noticed above, it would be clear that such objections can be taken at any stage of the proceedings. In the case at hand, the appellant did raise an objection in his petition under Section 34 of the Act of 1996, though not very precisely but nevertheless it was an issue which was dealt with by the Commercial Court by holding that the appellant gave his consent in the appointment of the Arbitrator. This finding is also under challenge in this appeal and clear grounds have been taken in the memo of appeal. Hence, the appellant cannot be non-suited for not taking a precise ground in its petition under Section 34 of the Act of 1996 as the ground of illegibility could be raised at any stage and having done so and examined by this Court, it is found that the appointment of the Arbitrator was not valid nor the waiver as per Section 12(5) of the Act was express, thus rendering the appointment legally invalid and even the award made by such an Arbitrator is rendered invalid. Thus, the second issue is answered accordingly.

88. Since the appointment of the Arbitrator is found to be without jurisdiction and for the said reason, the award cannot be sustained, hence, there is no need for this Court to enter into the second question raised by the appellant to challenge the award on grounds of procedural infractions.

89. As far as the dictum of the Bombay High Court in Truly Pest Solution (Supra) is concerned, it does not help the respondent as the Apex Court in para 98 of Bhadra International (Supra) has overruled the said decision and it loses its binding substratum.

Conclusion:-

90. In light of detailed discussions, this Court concludes:-

(i) The appointment of the Sole Arbitrator by the Chairman and Managing Director of the Corporation was violative of the principles of equal treatment of parties;

(ii) The appointment of the Sole Arbitrator by the Chairman & Managing Director of the Corporation was bad since as per the Clause 66 of the Agreement, the disputes were to be referred to the Chairman & Managing Director of the Corporation who was ineligible to act as an Arbitrator, hence, he could not even appoint an Arbitrator;

(iii) The letter exchanged between the parties, does not indicate that the appellant had agreed to expressly waive his right in writing to raise objections after the disputes had occurred, in terms of the proviso appended to Section 12 (5) of the Act of 1996. Thus, in absence of a express waiver, the Sole Arbitrator incurred de jure ineligibility and he could not act as an Arbitrator nor could he make the award.

(iv) The appellant had a right to raise an objection regarding the legality of the appointment of the Arbitrator even in an appeal under Section 37 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996, as it is a matter which goes to the roots of the jurisdiction of the Arbitrator to make an award.

91. For the reasons aforesaid, the present appeal is allowed. The judgment passed by the Commercial Court-II, Lucknow dated 19.04.2023 passed in Arbitration Case No. 766 of 2019 is set aside, so also the award dated 26.04.2019 is set aside. It will be open for the parties to get a fresh Arbitrator appointed in accordance with law for settlement of their disputes. In the facts and circumstances, there shall be no order as to costs.

Issues for Consideration

- (i) Whether the trial court was justified in rejecting the application under Section 319 Cr.P.C. seeking summoning of Kallu and Chandani as additional accused after they had been exonerated during investigation?
- (ii) Whether the depositions of P.W.-1, P.W.-2 and P.W.-3 disclosed strong and cogent evidence warranting exercise of the extraordinary power under Section 319 Cr.P.C.?
- (iii) Whether vague and omnibus allegations in the F.I.R. and prosecution evidence, unsupported by specific overt acts, constitute sufficient material for summoning additional accused under Section 319 Cr.P.C.?

Headnotes

Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 — S. 319 — Summoning of additional accused — Extraordinary power — Nature and scope.

HELD: The power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. is extraordinary in nature and is to be exercised only where strong and cogent evidence emerges during trial indicating involvement of a person not facing trial in the commission of the offence. Mere naming of a person in the F.I.R. or existence of suspicion is insufficient to justify summoning as an additional accused. The evidence must satisfy the higher degree of satisfaction contemplated under Section 319 Cr.P.C. [Para 9]

Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 — S. 319 — Persons exonerated during investigation — General and omnibus allegations — Absence of specific role — Summoning declined.

HELD: Though Kallu and Chandani were named in the F.I.R., the allegations against them were vague and lacked any specific attribution regarding demand of dowry or participation in the alleged offence. The F.I.R. merely alleged that Kallu informed the complainant about the death of his daughter, while no specific instance of cruelty or harassment was attributed to Chandani. Such omnibus allegations did not constitute sufficient material for invoking the extraordinary jurisdiction under Section 319 Cr.P.C. [Paras 6 and 7]

Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 — S. 319 — Evidence recorded during trial — Improvements over F.I.R. — Material omissions — Effect.

HELD: The deposition of P.W.-1 contained material improvements over the version disclosed in the F.I.R. The allegation that the deceased had narrated incidents of cruelty to her mother during her visit to the parental home was absent from the F.I.R., and the mother herself was not examined as a prosecution witness. Further, the testimony of P.W.-1 did not disclose that P.W.-2 and P.W.-3 possessed any direct knowledge of the occurrence or of the alleged acts of the proposed accused. Consequently, the evidence of P.W.-2 and P.W.-3 did not materially strengthen the prosecution case against Kallu and Chandani. [Paras 7 and 8]

Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 — S. 319 — Additional accused — Relative not residing in matrimonial home — Absence of evidence connecting him with offence.

HELD: During the course of hearing, it was fairly admitted that Kallu was merely the cousin of the father-in-law of the deceased and was not residing in the matrimonial home. In the absence of specific evidence establishing his participation in the alleged acts of cruelty or dowry demand, no case for summoning him as an additional accused under Section 319 Cr.P.C. was made out. [Para 9]

Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 — Ss. 397 and 401 — Revision — Order rejecting application under Section 319 Cr.P.C. — Interference.

HELD: The trial court assigned cogent reasons for declining to summon Kallu and Chandani as additional accused and correctly held that the evidence on record did not satisfy the standard required for exercise of powers under Section 319 Cr.P.C. The impugned order did not suffer from any illegality, perversity or jurisdictional error warranting interference in revisional jurisdiction. [Paras 9 and 10]

Revision dismissed. Clarified that the observations made in the order shall remain confined to adjudication of the application under Section 319 Cr.P.C. (E-14)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Manoj Bajaj, J.)

1. Petitioner-Complainant is aggrieved against the order dated 06.11.2025 passed by Additional District and Session Judge/Special Judge (E.C.Act), Banda in Session Trial No.341 of 2023, State Vs. Taufiq and others, arising out of Case Crime No.15 of 2023, under Sections 498-A, 304-B I.P.C. and Section 3/4 Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961, Police Station Marka, district Banda, whereby his application under Section 319 Cr.P.C. for summoning Chandani and Kallu as an additional accused has been dismissed.

2. The facts in brief leading to the revision petition are that the complainant gave a written complaint to the police wherein it is alleged that his daughter-Sifa was married on 12.05.2022 as per Muslim rites and rituals with Taufiq, son of Sarvar Ali and sufficient dowry was given by him, but Taufiq, his parents-Sarvar Ali and Safeena, his uncle-Kallu and sister-Chandani harassed his daughter and continuously demanded Rs.1 lac as well as a motor-cycle. On 15.01.2023 there was some altercation between the couple and he got this information on mobile phone, and his attempt to meet his daughter failed as the accused were adamant on their demand of dowry. On 26.01.2023 at about 1:10 p.m. the complainant talked to Taufiq on his mobile phone and his daughter was also online when she informed him to take her back, otherwise she would be killed by all the accused persons. The conversation went on for twenty minutes and finally after sometime Kallu informed the complainant that his daughter is no more who died of hanging. The complainant reached there and found that the feet of the dead-body were touching the ground, who in his complaint to police requested for necessary action against the accused persons. Broadly on these allegations F.I.R. was registered on 28.01.2023 against five persons, namely, Taufiq, Sarvar Ali, Safeena, Kallu and Chandani.

3. Thereafter, the investigation in the crime was conducted and charge-sheet was filed against three persons, namely, Taufiq-husband, Sarvar Ali-father-in-law, Safeena-Mother-in-law of the deceased, whereas Kallu and Chandani were declared innocent.

4. After commencement of trial proceedings, the prosecution examined three witnesses, namely, Jalil Ahmad (PW-1), Barkat Ali (PW-2) and Shakun (PW-3), and thereafter, an application under Section 319 Cr.P.C. was moved by the complainant for summoning Chandani and Kallu as an additional accused to face the trial, which has been dismissed through impugned order 06.11.2025. Hence this revision petition.

5. Sri Hari Bans Singh, learned counsel appearing on behalf of the complainant-petitioner has argued that Sifa, daughter of the complainant got married to Taufiq on 12.05.202, and she met her unnatural death on 26.01.2023 in her matrimonial home and from the very beginning the complainant had levelled allegations of demand of dowry against all five accused persons but during investigation, Chandani and Kallu were declared innocent. Learned counsel has drawn the attention of the Court to the F.I.R. (Annexure-1) to point out that the allegations against Chandani also reveal her participation in commission of crime, therefore, exoneration of these two persons by police is unjustified. He referred to the testimony of PW-1 recorded during trial to point out that specific allegations were levelled by the complainant against all the accused persons regarding cruelty meted out to his daughter resulting in her death, therefore, application under Section 319

Cr.P.C. was moved to summon these two persons as an additional accused, and the trial court has not considered the facts and circumstances of the case carefully while rejecting the application. The reference is also made to the evidence/testimonies of PW-2-Barkat Ali and PW-3-Shakun to contend that these two witnesses also supported the stand of PW-1, despite that the trial court has proceeded to reject the application thereby causing miscarriage of justice to the complainant. He prays that the impugned order be set aside and opposite party nos.2 and 3 be summoned.

6. After hearing learned counsel for the parties and considering the submissions, this Court finds that the initial version given by the complainant is recorded in the F.I.R. and it only narrates about the date of marriage and alleged cruelty meted out to his daughter who later met an unnatural death and the allegations are not specific much less against Kallu, cousin of Sarvar Ali, who as per F.I.R. only informed the complainant about demise of his daughter. Similarly the allegations against Chandani are vague and do not attribute any specific instance of maltreating his daughter.

7. Further a perusal of the deposition of the complainant recorded as PW-1 during trial would show that on 15.01.2023 when there was an altercation between the couple he in fact met his daughter, but only narrated about his inability to meet the alleged demand of dowry, and in the said statement no specific attribution is against Chandani and Kallu. Though in the version contained in the F.I.R., it is the stand of the complainant that despite his attempts to meet his daughter he was not allowed to meet her.

8. That apart, the deposition of the complainant is based on the alleged disclosure made by his daughter to his wife when she visited her parental home after marriage but this version is completely missing in the F.I.R. and the mother has not been examined as a prosecution witness. The entire evidence of PW-1 does not mention about the knowledge of the alleged crime to PW-2 and PW-3 much less their involvement in talking to the daughter of the complainant. The evidence of PW-2 and PW-3 does not at all stand at a better footing than the deposition of PW-1.

9. By now it is a well settled law that the power vested with the trial court to summon any person as an additional accused who has not been sent to face trial is extraordinary in nature and has to be invoked in cases where during trial strong evidence emerges to point out the involvement of some other person as well in commission of crime. During the course of the hearing it is fairly stated by learned counsel for the petitioner that Kallu, son of Gulab Ali is cousin of Sarvar Ali and he was not residing in the matrimonial home of the complainant's daughter.

10. Thus, considering the material on record, this Court has no hesitation in holding that the evidence on record is not enough for exercising the power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. and trial court has rightly proceeded to reject the application vide order dated 06.11.2025. A perusal of the impugned order would show that the trial court has given valid reasons in refusing to summon Chandani and Kallu as an additional accused and, therefore, the order does not call for any interference i.e. to exercise the revisional jurisdiction.

11. Resultantly, the revision petition is dismissed. However, it is clarified that the observations made in the order are only in respect of the adjudication relating to the impugned order dated 06.11.2025.

Issues for Consideration

- (i) Whether the ex parte order granting maintenance under Section 125 Cr.P.C. was liable to be set aside under Section 126 Cr.P.C. on the plea that the husband had not been effectively served?
- (ii) Whether grant of maintenance under the Protection of Women from Domestic Violence Act, 2005 was impermissible where maintenance had already been awarded under Section 125 Cr.P.C.?
- (iii) Whether enhancement of maintenance awarded under the Domestic Violence Act was justified having regard to the husband's income, the growing needs of the minor son and the prevailing cost of living?
- (iv) Whether the recovery warrants issued for enforcement of the maintenance order under Section 125 Cr.P.C. called for interference?

Headnotes

Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 — Ss. 125 and 126 — Maintenance — Ex parte order — Application for setting aside ex parte proceedings — Knowledge of proceedings admitted by husband — Failure to contest proceedings on legal advice — Effect.

HELD: The husband admitted in his application under Section 126 Cr.P.C. that he had knowledge of the proceedings under Section 125 Cr.P.C. and had consciously chosen not to contest the claim on the advice of his counsel. A Government employee, having knowledge of pending proceedings, cannot subsequently seek recall of an ex parte maintenance order merely by pleading ineffective service. The Family Court rightly dismissed the application under Section 126 Cr.P.C., as the husband failed to establish any sufficient cause for his absence. [Paras 8 and 9]

Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 — Ss. 125 and 126 — Maintenance — Suppression of income by husband — Assessment of maintenance.

HELD: The husband neither contested the proceedings under Section 125 Cr.P.C. nor disclosed his actual income despite being employed in the State Roadways Department. Even before the High Court he failed to disclose his total income from all sources. The Court held that the conduct of the husband clearly indicated an attempt to avoid disclosure of his true financial capacity and thereby evade his statutory obligation to maintain his wife and minor son. [Paras 8 and 9]

Protection of Women from Domestic Violence Act, 2005 — Maintenance — Maintenance already awarded under Section 125 Cr.P.C. — Subsequent award under Domestic Violence Act — Maintainability.

HELD: Merely because maintenance had already been awarded under Section 125 Cr.P.C., the claim under the Protection of Women from Domestic Violence Act, 2005 did not become non-maintainable. The Magistrate while deciding the application under the Domestic Violence Act had specifically taken into consideration the maintenance already awarded under Section 125 Cr.P.C. and granted only an additional amount. Therefore, there was no duplication of maintenance and the challenge to the award under the Domestic Violence Act was devoid of merit. [Paras 10 and 11]

Protection of Women from Domestic Violence Act, 2005 — Appeal — Enhancement of maintenance — Salary and other sources of income of husband — Growing educational needs of minor child — Rising cost of living.

HELD: The appellate court rightly enhanced the additional maintenance payable under the Domestic Violence Act from Rs.4,000/- to Rs.8,000/- per month after considering the documentary evidence regarding the husband's salary as well as his other sources of income. The collective maintenance of Rs.16,000/- per month payable under Section 125 Cr.P.C. and the Domestic Violence Act was held to be just, fair and reasonable having regard to the educational needs of the thirteen-year-old son and the prevailing cost of living. [Paras 11 and 12]

Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 — S. 125 — Recovery proceedings — Recovery warrants — Validity.

HELD: Since the ex parte maintenance order dated 16.12.2020 and the order rejecting the husband's application under Section 126 Cr.P.C. were found to be valid, no interference was warranted with the recovery warrants issued for execution of the maintenance order. [Paras 9 and 13]

Maintenance — Wife and minor son — Quantum — Adequacy.

HELD: The maintenance awarded collectively under Section 125 Cr.P.C. and the Protection of Women from Domestic Violence Act, 2005 adequately balanced the financial capacity of the husband with the needs of the wife and minor son and did not warrant either enhancement or reduction. [Para 12]

All the petitions dismissed. (E-14)

Appearance for Parties

For the Appellants: Sri Salilendu Kumar Upadhyay and Sri Vineet Kumar Dubey.

For the Respondents: Sri Anjani Kumar Shahwal and learned G.A..

(Delivered by Hon'ble Manoj Bajaj, J.)

1. Matrimonial dispute between the rival parties has led to filing the above separate petitions against each other, wherein issue of maintenance by wife and son of Sunil Kumar has been adjudicated through impugned order dated 13.5.2024 passed in Criminal Appeal No. 73 of 2023, titled Smt. Neeru Vs. State of U.P. and others, by Sessions Judge, Mainpuri thereby enhancing the maintenance awarded to claimants under D.V. Act vide order dated 2.8.2023 by Additional Civil Judge (S.D.), Court No.2, Mainpuri. The claimants have prayed for further enhancement of the maintenance, whereas husband-Sunil Kumar has also challenged the order dated 13.5.2024 by invoking Article 227 Constitution of India.

2. Besides, Sunil Kumar-husband has also challenged the order dated 10.5.2022 ad 14.3.2023 passed by Principal Judge, Family Court, Mainpuri in Case No. 596 of 2018, titled Smt. Neeru and another Vs. Sunil Kumar, whereby his application under Section 126 Cr.P.C. for setting aside the ex parte proceedings/ order granting maintenance under Section 125 Cr.P.C. was dismissed, and subsequently, the recovery warrants were issued against him for execution of order dated 16.12.2020.

3. Mr. Sailendu Kumar Upadhyay, learned counsel for the claimants has argued that the marriage between Neeru and Sunil Kumar was solemnized on 11.12.2009, and from this wedlock one son was born, who had attained the age of 4 years when the couple separated on 16.2.2017, and after separation, dependent wife alongwith son is residing with her parents. Learned counsel submits that husband-Sunil Kumar is employed with State Roadways Department and is drawing a monthly salary of Rs.45000/-, besides he also owns agricultural land and immovable property. According to learned counsel, the husband has an extra monthly rental income, but he did not discharge his obligations to maintain his wife and son, therefore, an application under Section 125 Cr.P.C. was filed by the claimants on 21.12.2018, and it was decided in favour of the claimants vide ex-parte order dated 16.12.2020, thereby awarding monthly maintenance of Rs.5,000/- and Rs.3,000/- respectively. Learned counsel submits that as the amount was not being paid, therefore, the wife was compelled to initiate recovery proceedings against her husband-Sunil Kumar, wherein recovery warrants were issued against him vide impugned order dated 14.3.2023 and the said order is under challenge in petition bearing Application U/S 482 No.13274 of 2023 filed by husband-Sunil Kumar.

4. Learned counsel for the claimants has further argued that as the destitute wife and son were not getting any maintenance from the opposite party no.2-Sunil Kumar, therefore, another claim of maintenance was preferred under Protection of Women from Domestic Violence Act, 2005 (hereinafter referred to as 'D.V. Act') and vide order dated 2.8.2023 passed by Additional Civil Judge (S.D.), Court No.2, Mainpuri an amount of Rs.4,000/- per month was awarded, which has been enhanced to Rs.8,000/- per month by the appellate court through the impugned order dated 13.5.2024. Learned counsel submits that the amount of maintenance awarded in favour of wife and son is on lower side, particularly, in the light of the monthly income of husband-Sunil Kumar, who apart from of his salary is having other source of income as well, therefore, he prays for enhancement.

5. Mr. Ram Sajeevan Prajapati, learned counsel for the husband has argued that the first claim by wife was moved under Section 125 Cr.P.C., wherein the husband being employed with the State Roadways Department was not served effectively and the ex-parte order dated 16.12.2020 was passed against him, and the wife never filed any petition to seek enhancement of the said maintenance. Learned counsel has pointed out that being aggrieved against the ex-parte adjudication of the claim by wife, an application dated 15.3.2023 was filed by him under Section 126 Cr.P.C, which has been dismissed vide order dated 10.5.2022 and against this a petition bearing Criminal Revision Defective No. 638 of 2022 is pending before this Court. Learned counsel submits that the maintenance awarded under Section 125 Cr.P.C. in the absence of the contest by the husband calls for interference by this Court, therefore, the recovery warrants issued vide order dated 14.3.2023 would also call for interference. He prays that the order dated 10.5.2022 dismissing the application under Section 126 Cr.P.C. be set aside and the husband be allowed to contest the case. Learned counsel also prays for setting aside the recovery warrants issued against him on 14.3.2023

6. Learned counsel for the husband has further argued that the amount of maintenance of Rs.8,000/- per month, if, is to the satisfaction of the wife and son, the award of maintenance under D.V. Act vide order dated 2.8.2023 is not justified. Similarly, according to learned counsel, the enhancement order by appellate court passed on 13.5.2025 is also not sustainable.

7. However, during the course of hearing, it is fairly conceded by learned counsel for the husband that in none of the cases, any written response was ever filed by the husband and even in his revision petition challenging the order of enhancement dated 13.5.2024 he has not chosen to reveal his monthly income from all sources. Lastly, it is stated by learned counsel that if, the original order dated 16.12.2020 passed by the Family Court granting monthly maintenance of Rs.8,000/- to the wife and son is maintained, his grievance would be redressed.

8. After hearing the learned counsel for the parties and considering their submissions, this Court finds that the couple resided together for a period of eight years after their marriage in the year 2009 and the wife and son were dependent on Sunil Kumar. A perusal of the application dated 21.12.2018 would show that the wife initially made an attempt for reunion, but all efforts went in vain, therefore, she was compelled to claim maintenance from her husband and the claim was not contested by Sunil Kumar. Though, it is claimed by husband-Sunil Kumar that he was not served, but in application under Section 126 Cr.P.C. he admitted the knowledge of the pending proceedings, who chose not to contest by following the advice of his advocate, who informed Sunil Kumar that as and when his presence is required, he would be intimidated. Thus, it is clear that believing the legal advice, he continued with his job and when he came to learn that proceedings have been decided against him, he swung in action. It does not appeal to prudence that a litigant who is employed in government service would not even bother to file his reply, therefore, it becomes clear that he never wanted to reveal his true income, perhaps to avoid his liability.

9. A perusal of the order dated 16.12.2020 would show that the trial court has carefully analyzed the facts and circumstances of the case while awarding monthly maintenance of Rs.8,000/- collectively to the wife and son, and the application filed by husband-Sunil Kumar under Section 126 Cr.P.C. has been rightly dismissed by delivering valid reasons vide order dated 10.5.2022. Thus, the order dated 10.5.2022 does not call for any interference in exercise of revisional jurisdiction.

10. Learned counsel for the husband-opposite party no.2 had vehemently argued that once the maintenance awarded under Section 125 Cr.P.C. by the Family Court was accepted, the similar claim under D.V. Act could not have been allowed, much less without adjusting the amount of maintenance earlier awarded vide order dated 16.12.2020.

11. The argument appears impressive, but is without any merit as a perusal of the order dated 2.8.2023 would show that Additional Civil Judge, Manipuri has specifically noticed the maintenance of Rs.8,000/- per month already awarded under Section 125 Cr.P.C. in favour of the claimants by the Family Court, and considering that amount it only awarded additional maintenance of Rs.4,000/- per month. Most importantly, the order dated 2.8.2023 was accepted by husband-Sunil Kumar, who never challenged it by way of an appeal, and it also becomes abundantly clear that with enhancement the total maintenance of Rs.12,000/- per month in favour of the claimants stood accepted by him.

12. Of course, the appellate court vide impugned order dated 13.5.2024 has also added an amount of Rs.4,000/- per month to the wife and son, therefore, the collective amount comes to Rs.16,000/- per month, but a perusal of the order dated 13.5.2024 by appellate court would show that the salary drawn by husband-Sunil Kumar is clearly noticed by relying upon the documentary evidence. Further considering the other source of income., the appellate court modified the order dated 2.8.2023 by raising the amount of maintenance of Rs.4,000/- per month to Rs.8,000/- per month. Thus, considering the growing age of the son, who is presently 13 years old and is pursuing his education as well as the cost of living, which is higher in the present days, the collective maintenance awarded to the claimants i.e. Rs.16,000/- per month under Section 125 Cr.P.C. and D.V. Act is just, fair and adequate.

13. Resultantly, no ground is made out for interfering with the impugned orders as the orders do not suffer from any illegality, and the petitions are hereby dismissed.

Issues for Consideration

- (i) Whether a plaint seeking only a decree of permanent injunction on the basis of alleged title acquired by adverse possession, without seeking declaration of title or cancellation of a subsequent gift deed, discloses a cause of action and is maintainable?
- (ii) Whether the plaint and the documents relied upon by the plaintiff prima facie established the essential ingredients of adverse possession so as to survive rejection under Order VII Rule 11 CPC?
- (iii) Whether the suit was barred under Order VII Rule 11(a) and (d) CPC on account of absence of cause of action and omission to seek necessary declaratory reliefs?
- (iv) Whether the Trial Court was justified in rejecting the plaint under Order VII Rule 11 CPC?

Headnotes

Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 — O. VII R. 11(a) & (d) — Rejection of plaint — Scope of enquiry — Court to examine only plaint averments and documents relied upon by plaintiff — Written statement and defence irrelevant.

HELD: While deciding an application under Order VII Rule 11 CPC, the Court is confined to the averments contained in the plaint together with the documents filed by the plaintiff. The defence of the defendants or documents relied upon by them cannot be considered. The Court is, however, required to undertake a meaningful reading of the plaint to ascertain whether it discloses a real cause of action or whether clever drafting has merely created an illusion of one. If the suit is manifestly vexatious, barred by law or does not disclose a right to sue, the plaint is liable to be rejected at the threshold. [Paras 33 to 39]

Adverse Possession — Essential ingredients — Hostile possession — Knowledge of true owner — Animus possidendi — Burden of proof.

HELD: A person claiming ownership by adverse possession must specifically plead and establish when and how possession commenced, the nature of possession, the identity of the true owner, that such possession was open, continuous, hostile and uninterrupted for the statutory period, and that it was to the knowledge of the true owner. Mere long possession does not mature into title. Animus possidendi is an indispensable requirement and the burden lies entirely upon the person asserting adverse possession. [Paras 40 to 43]

Adverse Possession — Knowledge of true owner — Bald assertion in plaint — Insufficiency.

HELD: Although the plaintiff asserted continuous possession of the property since 01.01.1996, the plaint nowhere disclosed how the true owner had knowledge of such allegedly hostile possession. No material facts or documentary evidence were pleaded to establish that the owner, residing at another place, was aware of the plaintiff's hostile claim. Mere assertion of such knowledge without supporting facts did not satisfy the foundational requirement of adverse possession. [Paras 44 and 45]

Adverse Possession — Government records showing disputed property as residential address — Effect.

HELD: Documents such as revolver licence, voter identity card, company records, income-tax records, trade-tax registration, insurance policies, vehicle registration, export-import licence, educational records of children and other official documents merely establish the address furnished by the applicant. Such documents neither establish ownership nor prove hostile possession against the true owner. Their existence does not imply that governmental authorities or the true owner acknowledged the claimant's title by adverse possession. [Para 46]

Adverse Possession — Electricity bills and municipal taxes continued in name of previous owner — Acknowledgement of title of true owner — Effect.

HELD: The plaintiff himself pleaded that electricity bills continued to be paid in the name of the previous owner and municipal taxes were also deposited in his name without seeking mutation or transfer of the records. Such conduct constituted acknowledgement of the title of the recorded owner and was wholly inconsistent with a hostile assertion of ownership. These pleadings themselves demolished the plaintiff's claim of adverse possession. [Paras 47 and 48]

Adverse Possession — Calculation of statutory period — Incorrect pleading.

HELD: The plaintiff claimed to have entered possession on 01.01.1996 but pleaded that title matured on 31.12.2008 after expiry of twelve years. The Court noticed that even this computation was erroneous, since twelve years from 01.01.1996 would expire on 01.01.2008. The incorrect pleading further reflected the infirmity in the plaintiff's claim. [Para 49]

Specific Relief Act, 1963 — Permanent injunction — Title disputed — Necessity of declaration.

HELD: Where the plaintiff claims title by adverse possession and such title is disputed or clouded by the defendant's title documents, a suit seeking merely permanent injunction is not maintainable. The plaintiff must seek declaration of title and, wherever necessary, consequential relief. A person claiming adverse possession cannot obtain injunction against the true owner without first establishing his title through an appropriate declaratory decree. [Paras 50 to 54]

Gift Deed — Subsequent transfer in favour of defendants — Failure to seek declaration or cancellation — Maintainability of suit.

HELD: The plaintiff admitted execution of the registered gift deed dated 18.01.2019 in favour of defendant Nos. 2 and 3 but neither sought its cancellation nor prayed for a declaration that it was void or not binding. Since the gift deed constituted a cloud upon the plaintiff's alleged title, omission to seek appropriate declaratory relief rendered the suit for bare injunction legally incompetent. [Paras 55 to 57]

Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 — O. VII R. 11(a) & (d) — Cause of action — Bar of law.

HELD: The plaintiff failed to disclose the essential ingredients of adverse possession and omitted to seek indispensable reliefs of declaration of title and cancellation of the gift deed. Consequently, the plaintiff had no enforceable cause of action and the suit was barred in law. The Trial Court rightly rejected the plaintiff under Order VII Rule 11(a) and (d) CPC. [Paras 60 to 62]

Civil Procedure — Appeal — Rejection of plaintiff — Affirmation.

HELD: The judgment rejecting the plaintiff under Order VII Rule 11 CPC suffered from no legal infirmity. The appeal was devoid of merit and was dismissed with costs while affirming the judgment and decree of the Trial Court. [Paras 62 to 64]

Appeal dismissed with costs. (E-14)

Case Arising From

Judgment and decree dated 30.10.2023 passed by the Civil Judge (Senior Division)/F.T.C., Ghaziabad in Original Suit No. 876 of 2021, Ravi Prakash v. Dalip and Others.

Appearance for Parties

For the Appellants: Sri Jyoti Agrawal and Sri Nitin Kumar Agrawal.

For the Respondents: Ms. Akanksha Sharma.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Sandeep Jain, J.)

1. The instant appeal has been filed by the plaintiff under Section 96 CPC against the impugned judgment and decree dated 30.10.2023 passed by the Civil Judge(Senior Division)/FTC, Ghaziabad in O.S.no. 876 of 2021 Ravi Prakash vs. Dalip and others, whereby defendants application no. 41-C2 under Order VII Rule 11 CPC has been allowed and consequently, the plaint has been rejected.

Plaint case

2. The plaintiff appellant filed O.S. no. 876 of 2021 with the averments that on the basis of adverse possession he is the actual and physical owner of house no. KH - 11, area 1413.31 square yards i.e. 1181.668 m² situated in Block -H, Sector 18, GMP residential colony, Kavinagar, Ghaziabad, tehsil and District Ghaziabad, the boundaries of which have been mentioned at the end of the plaint, which is hereinafter referred to as the disputed property.

3. It was further averred that the disputed property was purchased by defendant no.1 on 20.4.1987, which comprises of 3 rooms, kitchen, 3 toilet, servant room, lobby, store, etc. which are constructed in an area of 92.90 m². There is also boundary wall which is 7 feet high and the main gate is of iron, which is used for egress and ingress, which is locked. The property has been continuously in the occupation of plaintiff from 1.1.1996, in which his family members are also residing with him, since then, he is in the actual and physical possession of the disputed property. Since then, he has fixed his name plate on the main gate, which is known to all residents and also defendant no.1.

4. It was further averred that since plaintiff and his family members are residing in the disputed property as such, the District Magistrate Ghaziabad on 26.7.1997 issued him revolver license no. 262/97 on which he purchased the revolver of 32 bore 0619(IOF). He also established his watch manufacturing factory in the year 1997 in the name of S.D. Watches India Ltd, in which he is director and he has shown his address as the disputed property. The trade tax number was obtained on the address of the disputed property by him in the year 1997, on the basis of which he is doing his watch business. On 30.4.2002 he obtained loan from Ford Credit Kotak Mahindra Ltd through agreement no. 41803313 for purchasing a car. On 17.2.1996 an agreement was executed between him and HMT Ltd in which he has shown his address as the disputed property. He also obtained a loan from Punjab National Bank ,Shastri Nagar, Ghaziabad in which security bond was registered in which he has disclosed his address as the disputed property, in which an agreement of guarantee was executed on 18.8.1998 and further, in the year 1998, he applied for obtaining a loan of ₹ 35 lakhs for his firm S.D Watches India Ltd from Punjab National Bank Ghaziabad, which was sanctioned on 7.8.1998 and in this loan also he has shown his address as the disputed property.

5. It was further averred that he applied on behalf of Delta Watch Private Limited to the Registrar of Companies, in which a show cause notice was issued under Section 75(4) of the Companies Act on 26.3.2004, to his wife Shashikala at her address as the disputed property. In the year 2004, he applied on behalf of his company to the Registrar of Companies, regarding which a confirmation was received on 23.1.2004, which was sent to his wife Shashikala on her address as the disputed property. He also submitted the annual return of his firm Delta Watches Private Ltd on 28.9.1999 disclosing his address as the disputed property. In the 1997, he also applied for the export import of components for his firm M/S S.D.Watch India Ltd for allotting IC number in which he also disclosed his address as the disputed property.

6. In the year 1996 he also obtained landline telephone no. 2701383 from BSNL which was installed on his address as disputed property. He started manufacturing Delta Watches from 20.1.2004 and for obtaining the trademark he disclosed his address as the disputed property, its receipt no. 241797 was issued on 20.1.2004. On 15.10.2005 for obtaining the trade mark of the watch in the name of Swiz Delta he applied to the Government of India disclosing his address as the disputed property. On 1.1.2007 the Election Commission of India issued voter card to him and his wife Shashikala on their address as the disputed property.

7. It was further averred that the house tax of the disputed property is being paid in the name of Major Vinod Kumar, who was the owner prior to defendant no.1. Since he and his family members are continuously residing in the disputed property hence they are regularly depositing the house tax of the disputed property, its receipts dated 15.3.2008, 31.3.2009, 26.3.2011 and 29.3.2012 are in his possession, which proves that his occupation of the disputed property is open, peaceful and without any interference.

8. It was further averred that on 11.3.2005 he purchased a Honda City car no.UP-14 X- 8823 in which his address as the disputed property was shown and the car was insured on the same address having policy number HNC/00003472. His daughter Mahima and son Shyam were born in the disputed property on 16.10.2011 and 2.9.2019, respectively. His daughter Mahima was studying in class V in Holy Child School, Ghaziabad, and in the school record her address is of the disputed property. In the disputed property he, his wife and family members are continuously residing, the possession of which is also with him and due to this reason, his wife Shashikala on 13.7.2011 executed a power-of-attorney in his favour regarding khatauni no. 70 in which their address is of the disputed property.

9. It was further averred that he is the director of his company Dayal and Sons Electronics Private Limited in which his residential address is of the disputed property, which has also been confirmed by the income tax department of the Government of India. He has also obtained a gas connection on the disputed property from IGL on 28.4.2015 having connection no. BP 7000076153, from which he is continuously receiving gas, which is being used for cooking meals. His revolver license no. 262/97 was unfortunately lost regarding which he registered a FIR on 11.7.2015 at police station, Kavi Nagar Ghaziabad showing his address as the disputed property.

10. It was further averred that in the disputed property electrical connection no. 004/006851 is in the name of previous owner Capt. Vinod Kumar, but the payment is being made by him. Some of the electricity bills were paid by him through cheque and in the receipts dated 16.11.2010, 15.7.2009 and 5.7.2010 cheque no. 592245 drawn on SBI is mentioned. He also purchased a Creta car no. UP-14-DF 1607 in the year 2017 on his address as the disputed property, which was insured by policy no. HAX/S 6743753. A false FIR was registered by some anti-social elements against him at police station Mohanlalganj, Lucknow regarding which notice under Section 91/160 CrPC was issued by the above police station on his address as the disputed property. He has also obtained along with his family members, medical policy no. 254003/48/2010/536 in the year 2016, which is continuing till date, regarding which an enquiry was conducted by the Oriental Insurance Co. and on ascertaining that he is residing in the disputed property, policy was issued.

11. It was further averred that on 26.2.2020 he deposited the house tax, water tax & sewer tax with the Nagar Nigam Ghaziabad through cheque no. 006277/26.2.2020 for ₹ 20,472/- which was drawn on Federal Bank. He further deposited bills for the electric connection no. 8824355000 dated 1.12.2018 and 29.7.2020 through cheque no. 004342 for ₹ 4,133/- and cheque no. 006288 for ₹ 50,558/-, respectively, which also proved his possession of the disputed property.

12. It was further averred that since 1.1.1996 he is in continuous possession of the disputed property, he has shown his address of the disputed property in his business concerns, the defendant no.1 and others are fully aware of his actual, hostile and continuous possession of the disputed property. He is residing in the disputed property as owner for the last 25 years, which is in the knowledge of defendant no.1, which has not been objected by defendant no.1, and he has deprived the defendant no.1 from the use and occupation of the disputed property. The defendant no.1 was always aware of his ownership and possession of the disputed property, but the defendant no.1 never took any steps for dispossessing him from the disputed property, neither filed any case against him in any competent Court nor obtained any order or decree against him. No suit, appeal and execution proceeding for his ejectment are pending in any competent Court.

13. It was further averred that since he was in continuous possession of the disputed property from 1.1.1996 as such, the limitation for filing the suit for dispossessing him from the disputed property has ended on 31.12.2008, and hence his possession of the disputed property has matured into ownership, and since 31.12.2008 he is the owner in possession of the disputed property and since then the defendant no.1 has lost his right to dispossess him, interfere in his ownership and possession of the disputed property and has also lost his right to alienate, mortgage, etc. the disputed property. The defendant no.1 has got no right, title and interest whatsoever, in the disputed property and in accordance with Section 27, Article 65 and 136 of the Limitation Act, all the rights of the defendant no.1 in the disputed property have ended.

14. It was further averred that the defendant no.1 has lost his right to dispossess him from the disputed property since his right has become time barred. Otherwise also, the defendant no.1 was incapable of dispossessing him but was in contact of land mafia for selling the disputed property, who was intending to dispossess him with their assistance.

15. It was further averred that defendant no.1 was in collusion with some land mafia and Sandeep (defendant no. 3), and for usurping the disputed property, constituted a trust in the name of Dayal Educational Trust (defendant no. 2) and the defendant no. 3 was the chairman of the trust. It was averred that when the plaintiff became aware that the defendant no.1 was ready to transfer the disputed property in favour of defendant no. 2 and 3 in the month of January 2019, then he made a request to defendant no. 3 that by adverse possession from 1.1.1996 he has acquired ownership of the disputed property on 31.12.2008, hence defendant no. 3 should not get the property transferred in his name. It was further averred that the defendant no. 3 was well aware that the plaintiff and his family members are in continuous possession of the disputed property since 1.1.1996 and they have acquired ownership of the disputed property by adverse possession on 31.12.2008.

16. It was further averred that inspite of the above facts, defendant no.1 in collusion with some antisocial elements executed the gift deed of the disputed property in favour of defendant no. 2 and 3 on 18.1.2019, which was not shown to the plaintiff. It was further averred that defendant no. 2 and 3 are also well aware of his possession and ownership of the disputed property but they have also not taken any steps for his dispossession from the disputed property by filing any suit before the competent Court. It was further averred that defendant no.1 was a resident of Mohalla Patwarian Post Office Mandawar District Bijnor and the defendant no. 3 was a resident of 9/30 Sarvodaya Colony, Rana Pratap Marg, Lucknow, who never had any concern with the disputed property.

17. It was further averred that on 17.9.2021 the defendants no.1 and 3 along with some antisocial elements came to the disputed property and defendant no. 3 showed him a gift deed of the disputed property dated 18.1.2019, then the plaintiff became aware for the 1st time that the defendant no.1 has executed an illegal gift deed of the disputed property in favour of defendant no. 2, whereas, the ownership of the plaintiff in disputed property has matured on the basis of adverse possession on 31.12.2008. It was further averred that the defendant no.1 had no right to execute the above gift deed in favour of defendant no. 2, which was void and illegal, which neither affects the plaintiff's right in the disputed property nor any right, title and interest has vested in defendant no. 2 and 3 on its basis.

18. It was further averred that on 17.9.2021 the defendants made an unsuccessful attempt to dispossess him from the disputed property but due to the intervention of some influential people, the defendants could not succeed, but in future the defendants may again try to dispossess him and hence if, an injunction was not passed against the defendants then they will certainly dispossess the plaintiff from the disputed property and if they succeed in doing so, then irreparable injury will be caused to the plaintiffs, hence, the necessity of filing the suit.

19. In the above backdrop, the plaintiff claimed the following reliefs:-

(i) By decree of permanent injunction granted in favour of the plaintiff against the defendants, the defendants be restrained from interfering in the peaceful possession, ownership, usage and in any other manner whatsoever, and from dispossessing the plaintiff from the disputed property, and be also restrained from creating mortgage, obtaining loan and alienating in any other manner.

(ii) The plaintiff be also awarded the costs of the suit against the defendants.

(iii) Any other relief which the Court deems appropriate be also granted.

Defendants application 41-C2 under Order VII Rule 11 CPC

20. During the pendency of the suit the defendants no.2 & 3 moved an application 41-C2 under Order VII Rule 11 CPC on the ground that no cause of action has arisen to the plaintiff for filing permanent injunction suit against true owner defendant no.1 and after executing gift deed dated 18.1.2019 in favour of defendant no. 2, whatever cause of action has been shown in paragraph 44 of the plaint is only fabricated and false cause of action. The plaintiff has accepted that the defendant no.1 purchased the disputed house on 20.4.1987 from Capt. Vinod Kumar, whose name was still recorded in the Nagar Nigam, Ghaziabad and electric connection was also in the name of Capt. Vinod Kumar, but he has not been arrayed as a party.

21. The plaintiff cannot claim ownership by adverse possession over residential house situated in abadi land. Under Article 25 of the Limitation Act the possession over house must be of 20 years for claiming ownership by adverse possession, but the plaintiff has only claimed ownership on the basis of only 12 years possession over residential house, which cannot be claimed by the plaintiff. The relief of permanent injunction is not available to a trespasser against true owner as such, no cause of action existed for the relief of permanent injunction. The plaintiff has not claimed relief of declaration hence, the relief of permanent injunction cannot be granted to him. The suit is barred under Section 34 of the Specific Relief Act since the relief of declaration was not claimed by the plaintiff. With these averments, it was prayed that the plaint be rejected.

Objections of the plaintiff against the defendants application

22. The plaintiff filed his objection paper no.46-C2 in which the averments of the defendants were denied. It was averred that no cause of action has arisen to the plaintiff against Capt. Vinod Kumar, since at the time of filing of the suit, he was not having any right title and interest in the disputed property, since he had sold the disputed property. It was further averred that in respect of residential house, ownership on the basis of adverse possession can be claimed. It was further averred that the plaintiff was in possession of the disputed house since 1.1.1996 whereas, the suit was filed on 20.9.2021 after a duration of 25 years 8 months and 19 days, during this period, the plaintiff's possession of the disputed property has remained continuous. Article 25 of the Limitation Act is related to easementary rights, not to adverse possession. For claiming ownership on the basis of adverse possession only 12 years open, continuous and hostile possession, which must be in the knowledge of the owner, is required, hence the plaintiff's suit for the relief of permanent injunction was maintainable. The plaintiff was not a trespasser. The cause of action for filing the suit has arisen on 17.9.2021 since the defendants attempted to dispossess the plaintiff from the disputed property and also tried to mortgage the disputed property for obtaining loan and also tried to alienate it. The suit was not barred by Section 34 of the Specific Relief Act. With these averments it was prayed that the defendants application be rejected.

Reasoning of the trial court

23. The trial court opined that the plaint discloses that the electricity bill and the house tax of the disputed property was being deposited by the plaintiff in the name of Vinod Kumar, from whom the defendant no.1 Dalip Singh has purchased the disputed property, through sale deed. It was further opined that the plaint discloses that on 18.1.2019 the disputed property has been gifted by defendant no.1 to defendant no. 2 and 3, which proves that the plaintiff 's possession of the disputed property has not remained continuous and without hindrance till 18.1.2019, whereas the suit was filed on 20.9.2021. The trial court opined that for claiming ownership on the basis of adverse possession, 12 years continuous possession was required, which was not proved from the plaint averments, hence the plaintiff has got no cause of action to file the suit. With this reasoning, the defendants application 41-C2 was allowed and consequently, the plaint was rejected under Order VII Rule 11 CPC, aggrieved against which, the plaintiff has filed the instant appeal under Section 96 CPC.

Submissions of the learned counsel of the parties

24. Learned counsel for the plaintiff appellant submitted that the plaintiff was in continuous possession of the disputed property since 1.1.1996, which was proved from the plaint averments. The plaintiff has disclosed that he has obtained the telephone connection, gas connection, revolver license, car registration, insurance policies, medical policy, showing the address of the disputed property. It was further submitted that the plaintiff is also director of several companies and in the records of the Registrar of Companies, the plaintiffs address is of the disputed property. In the income tax and trade tax the plaintiffs address of the disputed property is recorded. Learned counsel further submitted that plaintiff 's children were also born in the disputed house, the plaintiffs wife has also mentioned the address of the disputed property, in her documents. It was further submitted that the voter card has also been issued on the address of the disputed property.

25. It was further submitted that the defendant no.1 was the owner of the property, who was well aware that the plaintiff was residing in the disputed property since 1.1.1996, but he took no steps for evicting the plaintiff from the disputed property. It was further submitted that since 1.1.1996 the possession of the plaintiff on the disputed property has remained open, hostile and continuous against the owner defendant no.1, as such, after the expiry of 12 years on 31.12.2008, the plaintiff has become the owner of the disputed property on the basis of adverse possession.

26. It was further submitted that the defendants application under Order VII Rule 11 CPC is to be decided only on the basis of plaint averments and documents of the plaintiff, and the written statement as well as the documents of the defendants are not to be considered at this stage. It was further submitted that the Court can also not examine the veracity of the plaint averments and is bound to accept them as true. It was further submitted that from the plaint averments it was prima facie proved that the plaintiff was residing in the disputed property as an owner since 1.1.1996, who has perfected his legal ownership in the disputed property on the basis of adverse possession on 31.12.2008, as such, the plaint could not have been rejected by the trial court. With these submissions, it was prayed that the appeal be allowed and the matter be remanded back for deciding it on merits. In support of his contention learned counsel has relied upon the following case law:-

- (i) Karam Singh vs. Amarjit Singh and ors. 2025 INSC 1238.
- (ii) Bhau Ram vs. Janak Singh and ors. (2012) 8 SCC 701.
- (iii) Sunil Kumar Dublith vs. Sri Ramesh Chandra Dublith (Since Dead) and ors. 2026 (1) ARC 435.

27. Sri Manish Goyal learned Senior Counsel for the respondents submitted that it is true that only the plaint averments and the documents submitted by the plaintiff are to be considered only at the time of deciding the defendants application under Order VII Rule 11 CPC. It was further submitted that the plaintiff has to prima facie prove that the true owner defendant no.1 was aware that the plaintiff was residing in the disputed property since 1.1.1996. Learned counsel further submitted that if this fact was not in the knowledge of defendant no.1, then the plaintiff cannot claim adverse possession against the above defendant.

28. It was further submitted that for obtaining the revolver license, for getting the car registered with RTO, for obtaining the insurance policy, for filing income tax return, for getting children admitted to a school, for establishing the company, for getting registered the directorship of the company with the Registrar of Companies, for obtaining export import licence, for getting the firm registered with trade tax, sales tax Department, for obtaining trademark - it is not required, that the address shown must be of the property, which is owned by the applicant. If a person is living in a rented/leased accommodation, even then, he can obtain the above mentioned documents and get his name entered in the official records.

29. It was further submitted that for obtaining the electricity connection in an accommodation and for mutation in the records of the municipality, the applicant is required to prove his ownership of the property, failing which, he can neither obtain the electricity connection nor can get his name mutated. Learned counsel submitted that the plaintiff has admitted that he's continuously depositing the house tax and other taxes attached to the property and the electricity bill of the electric connection installed in the disputed property, in the name of previous owner Capt. Vinod Kumar, which itself proves, that the plaintiff has never made any effort to deposit the above amounts in his name and has acknowledged Capt. Vinod Kumar, as the true owner of the disputed property, otherwise the plaintiff would not have deposited the electricity bill and other taxes in the name of previous owner Capt. Vinod Kumar.

30. Learned counsel further submitted that the plaintiff has nowhere mentioned how defendant no.1 was aware that he was residing in the disputed property since 1.1.1996, no documentary evidence regarding this fact has been submitted by the plaintiff before the court. It was further submitted that the plaintiff should have given legal notice to the defendant no.1 that he is residing in the disputed property since 1.1.1996 to prove his intention but no such action was taken by the plaintiff. Learned counsel submitted that it was necessary for the plaintiff to prove his hostile intention to claim ownership of the disputed property and mere possession of the disputed property, without hostile intention, is not sufficient for claiming ownership on the basis of adverse possession. Learned counsel further submitted that the plaintiff never proved his hostile intention against the real owner i.e. defendant no.1, hence, the plaintiff has got no cause of action for filing the instant suit.

31. It was further submitted that the plaintiff has accepted that the defendant no.1 as owner has executed the gift deed of the disputed property in favour of defendant no. 2 and 3 on 18.1.2019, but no relief of cancellation of the disputed gift deed has been claimed by the plaintiff. The plaintiff has also not claimed relief of declaration that he be declared the owner of the disputed property on the basis of adverse possession, as such, the plaintiff's suit was barred by Section 34 of the Specific Relief Act. With these submissions, it was prayed that the appeal is meritless and be rejected.

32. The following issues arise for determination in this appeal:-

(i) What are the essential ingredients of claiming ownership on the basis of adverse possession ?

(ii) Whether the plaintiff has prima facie proved from the plaint averments and documents submitted, that he has acquired ownership of the disputed property on the basis of adverse possession ?

Interpretation of Order VII Rule 11 CPC

33. The Apex Court in the case of Correspondence, RBANMS Educational Institution vs. B. Gunashekar and anr. 2025 SCC OnLine SC 793, while considering the scope and purpose of Order VII Rule 11 CPC, has held as under:-

“14. Let us first examine the scope and purpose of Order VII Rule 11 CPC. This Court in Dahiben v. Arvindbhai Kalyanji Bhanusali (Gajra) dead through legal representatives (2020) 7 SCC 366, explained in detail the applicable law for deciding the application for rejection of the plaint. The relevant paragraphs of the said decision are reproduced below:

23.1 ...

23.2. The remedy under Order VII Rule 11 is an independent and special remedy, wherein the Court is empowered to summarily dismiss a suit at the threshold, without proceeding to record evidence, and conducting a trial, on the basis of the evidence adduced, if it is satisfied that the action should be terminated on any of the grounds contained in this provision.

23.3. The underlying object of Order VII Rule 11 (a) is that if in a suit, no cause of action is disclosed, or the suit is barred by limitation under Rule 11 (d), the Court would not permit the plaintiff to unnecessarily protract the proceedings in the suit. In such a case, it would be necessary to put an end to the sham litigation, so that further judicial time is not wasted.

23.4. In Azhar Hussain v. Rajiv Gandhi 1986 Supp SCC 315 this Court held that the whole purpose of conferment of powers under this provision is to ensure that a litigation which is meaningless, and bound to prove abortive, should not be permitted to waste judicial time of the court, in the following words : (SCC p.324, para 12)

"12. The whole purpose of conferment of such power is to ensure that a litigation which is meaningless, and bound to prove abortive should not be permitted to occupy the time of the Court, and exercise the mind of the respondent. The sword of Damocles need not be kept hanging over his head unnecessarily without point or purpose. Even in an ordinary civil litigation, the Court readily exercises the power to reject a plaint, if it does not disclose any cause of action."

23.5. The power conferred on the court to terminate a civil action is, however, a drastic one, and the conditions enumerated in Order VII Rule 11 are required to be strictly adhered to.

23.6. Under Order VII Rule 11, a duty is cast on the Court to determine whether the plaint discloses a cause of action by scrutinizing the averments in the plaint read in conjunction with the documents relied upon, or whether the suit is barred by any law.

23.7. Order VII Rule 14(1) provides for production of documents, on which the plaintiff places reliance in his suit, which reads as under:

"14. Production of document on which plaintiff sues or relies.-(1) Where a plaintiff sues upon a document or relies upon document in his possession or power in support of his claim, he shall enter such documents in a list, and shall produce it in Court when the plaint is presented by him and shall, at the same time deliver the document and a copy thereof, to be filed with the plaint.

(2) Where any such document is not in the possession or power of the plaintiff, he shall, wherever possible, state in whose possession or power it is.

(3) A document which ought to be produced in Court by the plaintiff when the plaint is presented, or to be entered in the list to be added or annexed to the plaint but is not produced or entered accordingly, shall not, without the leave of the Court, be received in evidence on his behalf at the hearing of the suit.

(4) Nothing in this rule shall apply to document produced for the cross examination of the plaintiff's witnesses, or, handed over to a witness merely to refresh his memory."

23.8. Having regard to Order VII Rule 14 CPC, the documents filed alongwith the plaint, are required to be taken into consideration for deciding the application under Order VII Rule 11(a). When a document referred to in the plaint, forms the basis of the plaint, it should be treated as a part of the plaint.

23.9. In exercise of power under this provision, the Court would determine if the assertions made in the plaint are contrary to statutory law, or judicial dicta, for deciding whether a case for rejecting the plaint at the threshold is made out.

23.10. At this stage, the pleas taken by the defendant in the written statement and application for rejection of the plaint on the merits, would be irrelevant, and cannot be adverted to, or taken into consideration (2004) 3 SCC 137.

23.11. The test for exercising the power under Order VII Rule 11 is that if the averments made in the plaint are taken in entirety, in conjunction with the documents relied upon, would the same result in a decree being passed. This test was laid down in Liverpool & London S.P. & I Assn. Ltd. v. M.V. Sea Success which reads as : (SCC p.562, para 139)

139. Whether a plaint discloses a cause of action or not is essentially a question of fact. But whether it does or does not must be found out from reading the plaint itself. For the said purpose, the averments made in the plaint in their entirety must be held to be correct. The test is as to whether if the averments made in the plaint are taken to be correct in their entirety, a decree would be passed."

23.12. In Hardesh Ores (P.) Ltd. v. Hede & Co. (2007) 5 SCC 614 the Court further held that it is not permissible to cull out a sentence or a passage, and to read it in isolation. It is the substance, and not merely the form, which has to be looked into. The plaint has to be construed as it stands, without addition or subtraction of words. If the allegations in the plaint prima facie show a cause of action, the court cannot embark upon an enquiry whether the allegations are true in fact. D. Ramachandran v. R.V. Janakiraman (1999) 3 SCC 267.

23.13. If on a meaningful reading of the plaint, it is found that the suit is manifestly vexatious and without any merit, and does not disclose a right to sue, the court would be justified in exercising the power under Order VII Rule 11 CPC.

23.14. The power under Order VII Rule 11 CPC may be exercised by the Court at any stage of the suit, either before registering the plaint, or after issuing summons to the defendant, or before conclusion of the trial, as held by this Court in the judgment of Saleem Bhai v. State of Maharashtra (2003) 1 SCC 557. The plea that once issues are framed, the matter must necessarily go to trial was repelled by this Court in Azhar Hussain (supra).

23.15. The provision of Order VII Rule 11 is mandatory in nature. It states that the plaint "shall" be rejected if any of the grounds specified in clause (a) to (e) are made out. If the Court finds that the plaint does not disclose a cause of action, or that the suit is barred by any law, the Court has no option, but to reject the plaint.

24. "Cause of action" means every fact which would be necessary for the plaintiff to prove, if traversed, in order to support his right to judgment. It consists of a bundle of material facts, which are necessary for the plaintiff to prove in order to entitle him to the reliefs claimed in the suit.

24.1. In Swamy Atmanand v. Sri Ramakrishna Tapovanam (2005) 10 SCC 51 this Court held:

"24. A cause of action, thus, means every fact, which if traversed, it would be necessary for the plaintiff to prove an order to support his right to a judgment of the court. In other words, it is a bundle of facts, which taken with the law applicable to them gives the plaintiff a right to relief against the defendant. It must include some act done by the defendant since in the absence of such an act, no cause of action can possibly accrue. It is not limited to the actual infringement of the right sued on but includes all the material facts on which it is founded"

24.2. In T. Arivandandam v. T.V. Satyapal (1977) 4 SCC 467 this Court held that while considering an application under Order VII Rule 11 CPC what is required to be decided is whether the plaint discloses a real cause of action, or something purely illusory, in the following words : (SCC p. 470, para 5)

"5. The learned Munsif must remember that if on a meaningful - not formal - reading of the plaint it is manifestly vexatious, and meritless, in the sense of not disclosing a clear right to sue, he should exercise his power under Order VII, Rule 11 CPC taking care to see that the ground mentioned therein is fulfilled. And, if clever drafting has created the illusion of a cause of action, nip it in the bud at the first hearing"

24.3. Subsequently, in I.T.C. Ltd. v. Debt Recovery Appellate Tribunal (1998) 2 SCC 70 this Court held that law cannot permit clever drafting which creates illusions of a cause of action. What is required is that a clear right must be made out in the plaint.

24.4. If, however, by clever drafting of the plaint, it has created the illusion of a cause of action, this Court in Madanuri Sri Ramachandra Murthy v. Syed Jalal (2017) 13 SCC 174 held that it should be nipped in the bud, so that bogus litigation will end at the earliest stage. The Court must be vigilant against any camouflage or suppression, and determine whether the litigation is utterly vexatious, and an abuse of the process of the court.

 28. A three-Judge Bench of this Court in State of Punjab v. Gurdev Singh (1991) 4 SCC 1 held that the Court must examine the plaint and determine when the right to sue first accrued to the plaintiff, and whether on the assumed facts, the plaint is within time. The words "right to sue" means the right to seek relief by means of legal proceedings. The right to sue accrues only when the cause of action arises. The suit must be instituted when the right asserted in the suit is infringed, or when there is a clear and unequivocal threat to infringe such right by the defendant against whom the suit is instituted. Order VII Rule 11(d) provides that where a suit appears from the averments in the plaint to be barred by any law, the plaint shall be rejected."

14.1. Thus, it is clear that the above provision viz., Order VII Rule 11 CPC serves as a crucial filter in civil litigation, enabling courts to terminate proceedings at the threshold where the plaintiff's case, even if accepted in its entirety, fails to disclose any cause of action or is barred by law, either express or by implication. The scope of Order VII Rule 11 CPC and the authority of the courts is well settled in law. There is a bounden duty on the Court to discern and identify fictitious suit, which on the face of it would be barred, but for the clever pleadings disclosing a cause of action, that is surreal. Generally, sub-clauses (a) and (d) are stand alone grounds, that can be raised by the defendant in a suit. However, it cannot be ruled out that under certain circumstances, clauses (a) and (d) can be mutually inclusive. For instances, when clever drafting veils the implied bar to disclose the cause of action; it then becomes the duty of the Court to lift the veil and expose the bar to reject the suit at the threshold. The power to reject a plaint under this provision is not merely procedural but substantive, aimed at preventing abuse of the judicial process and ensuring that court time is not wasted on fictitious claims failing to disclose any cause of action to sustain the suit or barred by law. Therefore, the appeal before us requires careful consideration of the scope of rejection of the plaint under Order VII Rule 11 CPC, particularly, in the context of the suit filed based on an agreement to sell against third parties in possession.

15. Order VII Rule 11(a) CPC mandates rejection of the plaint where it does not disclose a cause of action. In Om Prakash Srivastava v. Union of India (2006) 6 SCC 207, this Court pointed out that cause of action means every fact which, if traversed, would be necessary for the plaintiff to prove in order to support their right to judgment. It consists of bundle of facts which narrate the circumstances and the reasons for filing such suit. It is the foundation on which the entire suit would rest. Therefore, it goes without saying that merely including a paragraph on cause of action is not sufficient but rather, on a meaningful reading of the plaint and the documents, it must disclose a cause of action. The plaint should contain such cause of action that discloses all the necessary facts required in law to sustain the suit and not mere statements of fact which fail to disclose a legal right of the plaintiff to sue and breach or violation by the defendant(s). It is pertinent to note here that even if a right is found, unless there is a violation or breach of that right by the defendant, the cause of action should be deemed to be unreal....

17. At the same time, we are conscious of principle that only averments in the plaint are to be considered under Order VII Rule 11 CPC. While it is true that the defendant's defense is not to be considered at this stage, this does not mean that the court must accept patently untenable claims or shut its eyes to settled principles of law and put the parties to trial, even in cases which are barred and the cause of action is fictitious. In T. Arivandandam (supra), this Court emphasized that where the plaint is manifestly vexatious and meritless, courts should exercise their power under Order VII Rule 11 CPC and not waste judicial time on matters that are legally barred and frivolous."

34. The Apex Court in the case of Raghwendra Sharan Singh vs. Ram Prasanna Singh (Dead) By Lrs. (2020)16 SCC 601, while considering whether the suit was barred by limitation for the purpose of Order VII Rule 11 CPC, held as under:-

"7. Applying the law laid down by this Court in the aforesaid decisions on exercise of powers under Order 7 Rule 11 CPC to the facts of the case in hand and the averments in the plaint, we are of the opinion that both the courts below have materially erred in not rejecting the plaint in exercise of powers under Order 7 Rule 11 CPC. It is required to be noted that it is not in dispute that the gift deed was executed by the original plaintiff himself along with his brother. The deed of gift was a registered gift deed. The execution of the gift deed is not disputed by the plaintiff. It is the case of the plaintiff that the gift deed was a showy deed of gift and therefore the same is not binding on him. However, it is required to be noted that for approximately 22 years, neither the plaintiff nor his brother (who died on 15-12-2002) claimed at any point of time that the gift deed was showy deed of gift. One of the executants of the gift deed, brother of the plaintiff during his lifetime never claimed that the gift deed was a showy deed of gift. It was the appellant herein-original defendant who filed the suit in the year 2001 for partition and the said suit was filed against his brothers to which the plaintiff was joined as Defendant 10. It appears that the summon of the suit filed by the defendant being TS (Partition) Suit No. 203 of 2001 was served upon Defendant 10-plaintiff herein in the year 2001 itself. Despite the same, he instituted the present suit in the year 2003. Even from the averments in the plaint, it appears that during these 22 years i.e. the period from 1981 till 2001/2003, the suit property was mortgaged by the appellant herein-original defendant and the mortgage deed was executed by the defendant. Therefore, considering the averments in the plaint and the bundle of facts stated in the plaint, we are of the opinion that by clever drafting the plaintiff has tried to bring the suit within the period of limitation which, otherwise, is barred by law of limitation. Therefore, considering the decisions of this Court in T. Arivandandam [T. Arivandandam v. T.V. Satyapal, (1977) 4 SCC 467] and others, as stated above, and as the suit is clearly barred by law of limitation, the plaint is required to be rejected in exercise of powers under Order 7 Rule 11 CPC.

8. At this stage, it is required to be noted that, as such, the plaintiff has never prayed for any declaration to set aside the gift deed. We are of the opinion that such a prayer is not asked cleverly. If such a prayer would have been asked, in that case, the suit can be said to be clearly barred by limitation considering Article 59 of the Limitation Act and, therefore, only a declaration is sought to get out of the provisions of the Limitation Act, more particularly, Article 59 of the Limitation Act. The aforesaid aspect has also not been considered by the High Court as well as the learned trial court.

9. Now, so far as the application on behalf of the original plaintiff and even the observations made by the learned trial court as well as the High Court that the question with respect to the limitation is a mixed question of law and facts, which can be decided only after the parties lead the evidence, is concerned, as observed and held by this Court in Sham Lal [Sham Lal v. Sanjeev Kumar, (2009) 12 SCC 454 : (2009) 4 SCC (Civ) 741] ; N.V. Srinivasa Murthy [N.V. Srinivasa Murthy v. Mariyamma, (2005) 5 SCC 548 : AIR 2005 SC 2897] as well as in Ram Prakash Gupta [Ram Prakash Gupta v. Rajiv Kumar Gupta, (2007) 10 SCC 59] , considering the averments in the plaint if it is found that the suit is clearly barred by law of limitation, the same can be rejected in exercise of powers under Order 7 Rule 11(d) CPC.”

35. The Apex Court in the case of Shri Mukund Bhavan Trust and others vs. Shrimant Chhatrapati Udayan Raje Pratapsinh Maharaj Bhonsle and another (2024)15 SCC 675, was considering whether the suit was barred by limitation while deciding application under Order VII Rule 11 CPC. It was held as under:-

“13. As settled in law, when an application to reject the plaint is filed, the averments in the plaint and the documents annexed therewith alone are germane. The averments in the application can be taken into account only to consider whether the case falls within any of the sub-rules of Order 7 Rule 11 by considering the averments in the plaint. The court cannot look into the written statement or the documents filed by the defendants. The civil courts including this Court cannot go into the rival contentions at that stage....

25. Continuing further with the plea of limitation, the courts below have held that the question of the suit being barred by limitation can be decided at the time of trial as the question of limitation is a mixed question of law and facts. Though the question of limitation generally is mixed question of law and facts, when upon meaningful reading of the plaint, the court can come to a conclusion that under the given circumstances, after dissecting the vices of clever drafting creating an illusion of cause of action, the suit is hopelessly barred and the plaint can be rejected under Order 7 Rule 11....

40. At this juncture, we wish to observe that we are not unmindful of the position of law that limitation is a mixed question of fact and law and the question of rejecting the plaint on that score has to be decided after weighing the evidence on record. However, in cases like this, where it is glaring from the plaint averments that the suit is hopelessly barred by limitation, the courts should not be hesitant in granting the relief and drive the parties back to the trial court. We again place it on record that this is not a case where any forgery or fabrication is committed which had recently come to the knowledge of the plaintiff. Rather, the plaintiff and his predecessors did not take any steps to assert their title and rights in time. The alleged cause of action is also found to be creation of fiction.”

36. It is apparent from the above law laid down by the Apex Court in the case of Correspondence, RBANMS Educational Institution (supra) that at the time of deciding Order VII Rule 11 CPC application, the court has to look into only the averments made in the plaint and the documents submitted by the plaintiff. The court has not to examine the written statement of the defendant or the documents submitted by it.

37. It is also apparent that the test for exercising the power under Order VII Rule 11 CPC is if the averments made in the plaint are taken in entirety, in conjunction with the documents relied upon, would the same result in a decree being passed. The plaint should also disclose a real cause of action and if clever drafting has created the illusion of a cause of action, then it should be nipped in the bud at the 1st hearing, so that bogus litigation will end at the earliest stage. The court should also be vigilant against any camouflage or suppression, and determine whether the litigation is utterly vexatious, and an abuse of the process of the court.

38. It is also apparent that the court is not bound to accept patently untenable claims or shut its eyes to settled principles of law and put the parties to trial, even in cases which are barred and the cause of action is fictitious. In such situation the courts should not waste judicial time on matters that are legally barred and frivolous.

39. It is also apparent from the law laid down by the Apex Court in Raghwendra Sharan Singh (supra) and Shri Mukund Bhavan Trust (supra) that if from the plaint averments it is found that the suit was hopelessly barred by law of limitation then the same can be rejected in exercise of powers under Order VII Rule 11 CPC.

Case law on adverse possession

40. The Apex Court in the case of Uttam Chand (Deceased) through Lrs. vs. Nathu Ram(Dead) through Lrs. and others (2020) 11 SCC 263, while examining the concept of adverse possession, held as under :-

“11. In T. Anjanappa [T. Anjanappa v. Somalingappa, (2006) 7 SCC 570] , this Court has set aside the finding of the High Court that the defendants claiming adverse possession do not have to prove who is the true owner. If the defendants are not sure who the true owner is, the question of them being in hostile possession as well as of denying the title of the true owner does not arise. The Court held as under: (SCC pp. 574-75, paras 12-14)

“12. The concept of adverse possession contemplates a hostile possession i.e. a possession which is expressly or impliedly in denial of the title of the true owner. Possession to be adverse must be possession by a person who does not acknowledge the other's rights but denies them. The principle of law is firmly established that a person who bases his title on adverse possession must show by clear and unequivocal evidence that his possession was hostile to the real owner and amounted to denial of his title to the property claimed. For deciding whether the alleged acts of a person constituted adverse possession, the animus of the person doing those acts is the most crucial factor. Adverse possession is commenced in wrong and is aimed against right. A person is said to hold the property adversely to the real owner when that person in denial of the owner's right excluded him from the enjoyment of his property.

13. Possession to be adverse must be possession by a person who does not acknowledge the other's rights but denies them:

"24. It is a matter of fundamental principle of law that where possession can be referred to a lawful title, it will not be considered to be adverse. It is on the basis of this principle that it has been laid down that since the possession of one co-owner can be referred to his status as co-owner, it cannot be considered adverse to other co-owners." (See Vidya Devi v. Prem Prakash [(1995) 4 SCC 496] , SCC p. 504, para 24.)

14. Adverse possession is that form of possession or occupancy of land which is inconsistent with the title of the rightful owner and tends to extinguish that person's title. Possession is not held to be adverse if it can be referred to a lawful title. The person setting up adverse possession may have been holding under the rightful owner's title e.g. trustees, guardians, bailiffs or agents. Such persons cannot set up adverse possession:

'14. Adverse possession means a [hostile possession] which is expressly or impliedly in denial of title of the true owner. Under Article 65 [of the Limitation Act] burden is on the defendants to prove affirmatively. A person who bases his title on adverse possession must show by clear and unequivocal evidence i.e. possession was hostile to the real owner and amounted to a denial of his title to the property claimed. In deciding whether the acts, alleged by a person, constitute adverse possession, regard must be had to the animus of the person doing those acts which must be ascertained from the facts and circumstances of each case. The person who bases his title on adverse possession, therefore, must show by clear and unequivocal evidence i.e. possession was hostile to the real owner and amounted to a denial of his title to the property claimed.

15. Where possession can be referred to a lawful title, it will not be considered to be adverse. The reason being that a person whose possession can be referred to a lawful title will not be permitted to show that his possession was hostile to another's title. One who holds possession on behalf of another, does not by mere denial of that other's title make his possession adverse so as to give himself the benefit of the statute of limitation. Therefore, a person who enters into possession having a lawful title, cannot divest another of that title by pretending that he had no title at all. (See Annasaheb Bapusaheb Patil v. Balwant [(1995) 2 SCC 543] , SCC p. 554, paras 14-15.) "'

12. In Kurella Naga Druva Vudaya Bhaskara Rao [(2008) 15 SCC 150] , the payment of tax receipts and mere possession for some years was found insufficient to claim adverse possession. It was held that if according to the defendant, the plaintiff was not the true owner, his possession hostile to the plaintiff's title will not be sufficient. The Court held as under: (SCC p. 158, para 19)

"19. The defendant claimed that he had perfected his title by adverse possession by being in open, continuous and hostile possession of the suit property from 1957. He also produced some tax receipts showing that he has paid the taxes in regard to the suit land. Some tax receipts also showed that he paid the tax on behalf of someone else. After considering the oral and documentary evidence, both the courts have entered a concurrent finding that the defendant did not establish adverse possession, and that mere possession for some years was not sufficient to claim adverse possession, unless such possession was hostile possession, denying the title of the true owner. The courts have pointed out that if according to the defendant, the plaintiff was not the true owner, his possession hostile to the plaintiff's title will not be sufficient and he had to show that his possession was also hostile to the title and possession of the true owner. After detailed analysis of the oral and documentary evidence, the trial court and the High Court also held [Kurella Naga Druva Vudaya Bhaskara Rao v. Galla Janikamma, 2006 SCC OnLine AP 842 : (2009) 3 ALD 416] that the appellant was only managing the properties on behalf of the plaintiff and his occupation was not hostile possession."

13. In Brijesh Kumar v. Shardabai [(2019) 9 SCC 369 : (2019) 4 SCC (Civ) 509], the Court held as under: (SCC p. 374, para 13)

"13. Adverse possession is hostile possession by assertion of a hostile title in denial of the title of the true owner as held in M. Venkatesh [(2015) 17 SCC 1 : (2017) 5 SCC (Civ) 387]. The respondent had failed to establish peaceful, open and continuous possession demonstrating a wrongful ouster of the rightful owner. It thus involved question of facts and law. The onus lay on the respondent to establish when and how he came into possession, the nature of his possession, the factum of possession known and hostile to the other parties, continuous possession over 12 years which was open and undisturbed. The respondent was seeking to deny the rights of the true owner. The onus therefore lay upon the respondent to establish possession as a fact coupled with that it was open, hostile and continuous to the knowledge of the true owner. The respondent-plaintiff failed to discharge the onus. Reference may also be made to Chatti Konati Rao v. Palle Venkata Subba Rao [(2010) 14 SCC 316 : (2012) 1 SCC (Civ) 452], on adverse possession observing as follows: (SCC p. 322, para 15)

"15. Animus possidendi as is well known is a requisite ingredient of adverse possession. Mere possession does not ripen into possessory title until the possessor holds the property adverse to the title of the true owner for the said purpose. The person who claims adverse possession is required to establish the date on which he came in possession, nature of possession, the factum of possession, knowledge to the true owner, duration of possession and that possession was open and undisturbed. A person pleading adverse possession has no equities in his favour as he is trying to defeat the rights of the true owner and, hence, it is for him to clearly plead and establish all facts necessary to establish adverse possession. The courts always take unkind view towards statutes of limitation overriding property rights. The plea of adverse possession is not a pure question of law but a blended one of fact and law."

14. As to whether the plaintiff can claim title on the basis of adverse possession, this Court in a judgment Ravinder Kaur Grewal v. Manjit Kaur [(2019) 8 SCC 729 : (2019) 4 SCC (Civ) 453] has held as under: (SCC p. 777, para 60)

"60. The adverse possession requires all the three classic requirements to co-exist at the same time, namely, nec vi i.e. adequate in continuity, nec clam i.e. adequate in publicity and nec precario i.e. adverse to a competitor, in denial of title and his knowledge. Visible, notorious and peaceful so that if the owner does not take care to know notorious facts, knowledge is attributed to him on the basis that but for due diligence he would have known it. Adverse possession cannot be decreed on a title which is not pleaded. Animus possidendi under hostile colour of title is required. Trespasser's long possession is not synonymous with adverse possession. Trespasser's possession is construed to be on behalf of the owner, the casual user does not constitute adverse possession. The owner can take possession from a trespasser at any point in time. Possessor looks after the property, protects it and in case of agricultural property by and large the concept is that actual tiller should own the land who works by dint of his hard labour and makes the land cultivable. The legislature in various States confers rights based on possession."

15. The matter has been examined by a Constitution Bench in M. Siddiq (Ram Janmabhumi Temple-5 J.) v. Suresh Das [(2020) 1 SCC 1] wherein, it has been held that a plea of adverse possession is founded on the acceptance that ownership of the property vests in another, against whom the claimant asserts possession adverse to the title of the other. The Court held as under: (SCC pp. 703-706, paras 1142-1143 & 1147-1150)

"1142. A plea of adverse possession is founded on the acceptance that ownership of the property vests in another against whom the claimant asserts a possession adverse to the title of the other. Possession is adverse in the sense that it is contrary to the acknowledged title in the other person against whom it is claimed. Evidently, therefore, the plaintiffs in Suit 4 ought to be cognizant of the fact that any claim of adverse possession against the Hindus or the temple would amount to an acceptance of a title in the latter. Dr Dhavan has submitted that this plea is a subsidiary or alternate plea upon which it is not necessary for the plaintiffs to stand in the event that their main plea on title is held to be established on evidence. It becomes then necessary to assess as to whether the claim of adverse possession has been established.

1143. A person who sets up a plea of adverse possession must establish both possession which is peaceful, open and continuous possession which meets the requirement of being nec vi nec claim and nec precario. To substantiate a plea of adverse possession, the character of the possession must be adequate in continuity and in the public because the possession has to be to the knowledge of the true owner in order for it to be adverse. These requirements have to be duly established first by adequate pleadings and second by leading sufficient evidence. Evidence, it is well settled, can only be adduced with reference to matters which are pleaded in a civil suit and in the absence of an adequate pleading, evidence by itself cannot supply the deficiency of a pleaded case. Reading Para 11(a), it becomes evident that beyond stating that the Muslims have been in long, exclusive and continuous possession beginning from the time when the Mosque was built and until it was desecrated, no factual basis has been furnished. This is not merely a matter of details or evidence. A plea of adverse possession seeks to defeat the rights of the true owner and the law is not readily accepting of such a case unless a clear and cogent basis has been made out in the pleadings and established in the evidence.

1147. In Supt. & Remembrancer of Legal Affairs v. Anil Kumar Bhunja [(1979) 4 SCC 274 : 1979 SCC (Cri) 1038] , R.S. Sarkaria, J. speaking for a three-Judge Bench of this Court noted that the concept of possession is "polymorphous" embodying both a right (the right to enjoy) and a fact (the real intention). The learned Judge held: (SCC p. 278, para 13)

"13. ... It is impossible to work out a completely logical and precise definition of "possession" uniformly applicable to all situations in the contexts of all statutes. Dias and Hughes in their book on Jurisprudence say that if a topic ever suffered from too much theorising it is that of "possession". Much of this difficulty and confusion is (as pointed out in Salmond's Jurisprudence, 12th Edn., 1966) caused by the fact that possession is not purely a legal concept. "Possession", implies a right and a fact; the right to enjoy annexed to the right of property and the fact of the real intention. It involves power of control and intent to control. (See Dias and Hughes, ibid.) "

These observations were made in the context of possession in Section 29(b) of the Arms Act, 1959.

1148. In P. Lakshmi Reddy v. L. Lakshmi Reddy [1957 SCR 195 : AIR 1957 SC 314] , Jagannadhadas, J. speaking for a three-Judge Bench of this Court dwelt on the "classical requirement" of adverse possession: (AIR pp. 317-18, para 4)

'4. Now, the ordinary classical requirement of adverse possession is that it should be nec vi nec clam nec precario. (See Secy. of State for India in Council v. Debendra Lal Khan [1933 SCC OnLine PC 65 : (1933-34) 61 IA 78] IA at p. 82.) The possession required must be adequate in continuity, in publicity and in extent to show that it is possession adverse to the competitor. "

The Court cited the following extract from U.N. Mitra's Tagore Law Lectures on the Law of Limitation and Prescription: (AIR p. 319, para 7)

'7. ... "An adverse holding is an actual and exclusive appropriation of land commenced and continued under a claim of right, either under an openly avowed claim, or under a constructive claim (arising from the acts and circumstances attending the appropriation), to hold the land against him (sic) who was in possession. (Angell, Sections 390 and 398). It is the intention to claim adversely accompanied by such an invasion of the rights of the opposite party as gives him a cause of action which constitutes adverse possession. "'[6th Edn., Vol. I, Lecture VI, at p. 159]

This Court held: (AIR p. 319, para 7)

'7. Consonant with this principle the commencement of adverse possession, in favour of a person implies that the person is in actual possession, at the time, with a notorious hostile claim of exclusive title, to repel which, the true owner would then be in a position to maintain an action. It would follow that whatever may be the animus or intention of a person wanting to acquire title by adverse possession his adverse possession cannot commence until he obtains actual possession with the requisite animus. '

1149. In Karnataka Board of Wakf v. Union of India [(2004) 10 SCC 779] , S. Rajendra Babu, J. speaking for a two-Judge Bench held that: (SCC p. 785, para 11)

'11. ... Physical fact of exclusive possession and the animus possidendi to hold as owner in exclusion to the actual owner are the most important factors that are to be accounted in cases of this nature. Plea of adverse possession is not a pure question of law but a blended one of fact and law. Therefore, a person who claims adverse possession should show: (a) on what date he came into possession, (b) what was the nature of his possession, (c) whether the factum of possession was known to the other party, (d) how long his possession has continued, and (e) his possession was open and undisturbed. '

The ingredients must be set up in the pleadings and proved in evidence. There can be no proof sans pleadings and pleadings without evidence will not establish a case in law.

1150. In Annakili v. A. Vedanayagam [(2007) 14 SCC 308] , this Court emphasised that mere possession of land would not ripen into a possessory title. The possessor must have animus possidendi and hold the land adverse to the title of the true owner. Moreover, he must continue in that capacity for the period prescribed under the Limitation Act. "

(emphasis supplied)

41. Similarly, the Apex Court in the case of M.Radheshyamlal vs. V. Sandhya and Anr. (2024) 13 SCC 275 has elucidated the essential principles governing adverse possession. It was held as under:-

"15. Therefore, to prove the plea of adverse possession:

(a) The plaintiff must plead and prove that he was claiming possession adverse to the true owner;

(b) The plaintiff must plead and establish that the factum of his long and continuous possession was known to the true owner;

(c) The plaintiff must also plead and establish when he came into possession; and

(d) The plaintiff must establish that his possession was open and undisturbed.

It is a settled law that by pleading adverse possession, a party seeks to defeat the rights of the true owner, and therefore, there is no equity in his favour. After all, the plea is based on continuous wrongful possession for a period of more than 12 years. Therefore, the facts constituting the ingredients of adverse possession must be pleaded and proved by the plaintiff.

18. When a party claims adverse possession, he must know who the actual owner of the property is. Secondly, he must plead that he was in open and uninterrupted possession for more than 12 years to the original owner's knowledge.... "

42. From the above law laid down by the Apex Court it is apparent that the person claiming ownership on the basis of adverse possession must establish when and how he came into possession, the nature of his possession, the factum of possession known and hostile to the other parties, continuous possession over 12 years which was open and undisturbed. The onus is also on such person to establish that his possession was open, hostile and continuous to the knowledge of the true owner.

43. It is also apparent that mere possession does not ripen into possessory title. Long possession is not synonymous with adverse possession. The possessor must have animus possidendi and hold the land adverse to the title of the true owner. The party claiming adverse possession must also know, who is the actual owner of the property and must plead that he was in open and uninterrupted possession for more than 12 years to the original owner's knowledge.

Conclusion by this Court

44. It is the case of the plaintiff that he is in possession of the disputed property from 1.1.1996, but the plaintiff has nowhere mentioned in his plaint, how he came in possession of the disputed property. It is apparent that the plaintiff has to plead and prove, how the disputed property came in his possession, but the plaint is silent on this material fact.

45. The plaintiff has averred that after entering the disputed property on 1.1.1996, he remained in its continuous possession, which was in the knowledge of the owner/defendant no.1, but it is not mentioned how his possession of the disputed property was in the knowledge of defendant no.1. Except a bald assertion in the plaint, no documentary evidence was submitted by the plaintiff to prove this fact. It is apparent that the disputed property is in Ghaziabad and the defendant no.1 resides in Bijnor, which is at a distance of about 150 kms from Ghaziabad. It is not a case where the true owner was residing nearby, who used to regularly visit the disputed property, who knowingly did not initiate any proceedings for eviction of the plaintiff. It is also not a case where the plaintiff gave a legal notice to the defendant no.1, intimating his intention of forcibly occupying the disputed property, by denying the ownership of defendant no.1 and even then, the true owner did not take any step for eviction of the plaintiff.

46. It was further apparent that for obtaining the revolver license, for getting the car registered with RTO, for obtaining the insurance policy, for filing income tax return, for getting children admitted to a school, for establishing the company, for getting registered the directorship of the company with the Registrar of Companies, for obtaining export import licence, for getting the firm registered with trade tax, sales tax Department, for obtaining trademark - it is not required, that the address shown by the applicant must be of the property, which is owned by him. If a person is living in a rented/leased accommodation, or with a relative as a licensee, even then, he can obtain the above mentioned documents and get his name entered in the official records by mentioning the address of the rented/leased accommodation or the address where he is residing as a licensee, as his residential address. Hence, if the plaintiff has obtained the above documents from the State and Central Government it does not imply that his ownership of the disputed property has been accepted by them or the above documents were in the knowledge of the defendant no.1.

47. From the plaint averments it is prima facie proved that the plaintiff is in possession of the disputed property from 1.1.1996. But the plaintiff has himself admitted that the electricity connection in the disputed property is in the name of previous owner Capt. Vinod Kumar and he is continuously depositing electricity bills in the previous owners name, which proves that the plaintiff never asserted with the electricity department that he is the true owner of the disputed property. The plaintiff has similarly disclosed in the plaint that even in the records of the Nagar Nigam Ghaziabad, the name of previous owner Capt. Vinod Kumar is recorded and the plaintiff is depositing the house tax, water tax and sewer tax in the name of previous owner Capt. Vinod Kumar. This fact also proves that the plaintiff has made no effort to get his name mutated in the records of the Nagar Nigam Ghaziabad. Both the above facts, prove that plaintiff has acknowledged by depositing the electricity bill and property tax that the owner of the disputed property is Capt. Vinod Kumar, as such, the plaintiffs case of ownership by adverse possession is demolished. It is very surprising that why plaintiff failed to get the electricity connection transferred in his name and also failed to get his name mutated in the records of the Nagar Nigam, Ghaziabad, if he was the owner of the disputed property.

48. The plaintiff has also disclosed in the plaint that he has obtained loan from Punjab National Bank, Ghaziabad and has also submitted a security bond with the above Bank, a copy of which has been filed by the plaintiff which discloses that the plaintiff has mortgaged his property situated in village, Pargana and tehsil Hapur, District Ghaziabad. The plaintiff has not mortgaged the disputed property with the above Bank, because for mortgaging the disputed property, title deeds of the property were required, which were not available with the plaintiff, as such, this document does not support the plaintiff's case, insofar as the ownership of the disputed property is concerned.

49. It is also apparent that the plaintiff has claimed ownership of the disputed property from 31.12.2008, i.e. after the expiry of 12 years from 1.1.1996. It is apparent that there is a calculation error on the part of the plaintiff, because if calculation of 12 years is made from 1.1.1996, then the plaintiff becomes owner of the disputed property by adverse possession on 1.1.2008, but the plaintiff has claimed that he became owner by adverse possession on 31.12.2008.

50. The Apex Court in the case of Anathula Sudhakar vs. P. Buchi Reddy(Dead) by Lrs. and others (2008)4 SCC 594, while discussing the general principles as to when a mere suit for permanent injunction will lie, and when it is necessary to file a suit for declaration and /or possession with injunction as a consequential relief, held as under:-

“13. The general principles as to when a mere suit for permanent injunction will lie, and when it is necessary to file a suit for declaration and/or possession with injunction as a consequential relief, are well settled. We may refer to them briefly.

13.1. Where a plaintiff is in lawful or peaceful possession of a property and such possession is interfered or threatened by the defendant, a suit for an injunction simpliciter will lie. A person has a right to protect his possession against any person who does not prove a better title by seeking a prohibitory injunction. But a person in wrongful possession is not entitled to an injunction against the rightful owner.

13.2. Where the title of the plaintiff is not disputed, but he is not in possession, his remedy is to file a suit for possession and seek in addition, if necessary, an injunction. A person out of possession, cannot seek the relief of injunction simpliciter, without claiming the relief of possession.

13.3. Where the plaintiff is in possession, but his title to the property is in dispute, or under a cloud, or where the defendant asserts title thereto and there is also a threat of dispossession from the defendant, the plaintiff will have to sue for declaration of title and the consequential relief of injunction. Where the title of the plaintiff is under a cloud or in dispute and he is not in possession or not able to establish possession, necessarily the plaintiff will have to file a suit for declaration, possession and injunction.

14. We may, however, clarify that a prayer for declaration will be necessary only if the denial of title by the defendant or challenge to the plaintiff's title raises a cloud on the title of the plaintiff to the property. A cloud is said to raise over a person's title, when some apparent defect in his title to a property, or when some prima facie right of a third party over it, is made out or shown. An action for declaration, is the remedy to remove the cloud on the title to the property. On the other hand, where the plaintiff has clear title supported by documents, if a trespasser without any claim to title or an interloper without any apparent title, merely denies the plaintiff's title, it does not amount to raising a cloud over the title of the plaintiff and it will not be necessary for the plaintiff to sue for declaration and a suit for injunction may be sufficient. Where the plaintiff, believing that the defendant is only a trespasser or a wrongful claimant without title, files a mere suit for injunction, and in such a suit, the defendant discloses in his defence the details of the right or title claimed by him, which raise a serious dispute or cloud over the plaintiff's title, then there is a need for the plaintiff, to amend the plaint and convert the suit into one for declaration. Alternatively, he may withdraw the suit for bare injunction, with permission of the court to file a comprehensive suit for declaration and injunction. He may file the suit for declaration with consequential relief, even after the suit for injunction is dismissed, where the suit raised only the issue of possession and not any issue of title.

15. In a suit for permanent injunction to restrain the defendant from interfering with the plaintiff's possession, the plaintiff will have to establish that as on the date of the suit he was in lawful possession of the suit property and the defendant tried to interfere or disturb such lawful possession. Where the property is a building or building with appurtenant land, there may not be much difficulty in establishing possession. The plaintiff may prove physical or lawful possession, either of himself or by him through his family members or agents or lessees/licensees. Even in respect of a land without structures, as for example an agricultural land, possession may be established with reference to the actual use and cultivation. The question of title is not in issue in such a suit, though it may arise incidentally or collaterally.

16. But what if the property is a vacant site, which is not physically possessed, used or enjoyed? In such cases the principle is that possession follows title. If two persons claim to be in possession of a vacant site, one who is able to establish title thereto will be considered to be in possession, as against the person who is not able to establish title. This means that even though a suit relating to a vacant site is for a mere injunction and the issue is one of possession, it will be necessary to examine and determine the title as a prelude for deciding the de jure possession. In such a situation, where the title is clear and simple, the court may venture a decision on the issue of title, so as to decide the question of de jure possession even though the suit is for a mere injunction. But where the issue of title involves complicated or complex questions of fact and law, or where court feels that parties had not proceeded on the basis that title was at issue, the court should not decide the issue of title in a suit for injunction. The proper course is to relegate the plaintiff to the remedy of a full-fledged suit for declaration and consequential reliefs. "

51. The Apex Court in the case of T.V.Ramakrishna Reddy vs. M.Mallappa & Anr. (2021) 13 SCC 135 has held that whenever title is disputed, suit for injunction must be accompanied by a prayer for declaration of title. It is quoted as under:-

"15. It could thus be seen that this Court in unequivocal terms has held that where the plaintiff's title is not in dispute or under a cloud, a suit for injunction could be decided with reference to the finding on possession. It has been clearly held that if the matter involves complicated questions of fact and law relating to title, the court will relegate the parties to the remedy by way of comprehensive suit for declaration of title, instead of deciding the issue in a suit for mere injunction.

16. No doubt, this Court has held that where there are necessary pleadings regarding title and appropriate issue relating to title on which parties lead evidence, if the matter involved is simple and straightforward, the court may decide upon the issue regarding title, even in a suit for injunction. However, it has been held that such cases are the exception to the normal rule that question of title will not be decided in suits for injunction. "

52. The Apex Court in the case of Annamalai vs. Vasanthi and others 2025 INSC 1267, held as under:-

"When a declaratory relief is essential:-

25. A declaratory relief seeks to clear what is doubtful, and which is necessary to make it clear. If there is a doubt on the right of a plaintiff, and without the doubt being cleared no further relief can be granted, a declaratory relief becomes essential because without such a declaration the consequential relief may not be available to the plaintiff. For example, a doubt as to plaintiff's title to a property may arise because of existence of an instrument relating to that property. If plaintiff is privy to that instrument, Section 31 of Specific Relief Act, 1963 enables him to institute a suit for cancellation of the instrument which may be void or voidable qua him. If plaintiff is not privy to the instrument, he may seek a declaration that the same is void or does not affect his rights. When a document is void ab initio, a decree for setting aside the same is not necessary as the same is non est in the eye of law, being a nullity. Therefore, in such a case, if plaintiff is in possession of the property which is subject matter of such a void instrument, he may seek a declaration that the instrument is not binding on him. However, if he is not in possession, he may sue for possession and the limitation period applicable would be that as applicable under Article 65 of the Limitation Act, 1963 on a suit for possession. Rationale of the aforesaid principle is that a void instrument /transaction can be ignored by a court while granting the main relief based on a subsisting right. But, where the plaintiff's right falls under a cloud, then a declaration affirming the right of the plaintiff may be necessary for grant of a consequential relief. However, whether such a declaration is required for the consequential relief sought is to be assessed on a case-to-case basis, dependent on its facts."

53. The Apex Court in the case of Padhiyar Prahladi Chenaji (Deceased) Thr. LRS. vs. Maniben Jagmalbhai (Deceased) Thr. LRS And others (2022) 12 SCC 128, while considering whether injunction can be granted against true owner, held as under:-

"18. Even otherwise on merits also, the courts below have erred in passing the decree of permanent injunction restraining Defendant 1 from disturbing the alleged possession of the plaintiff. Assuming for the sake of argument that the plaintiff is found to be in possession, in that case also, once the plaintiff has lost so far as the relief of declaration and title is concerned and Defendant 1 is held to be the true and absolute owner of the property in question, pursuant to the execution of the sale deed dated 17-6-1975 in his favour, the true owner cannot be restrained by way of an injunction against him. In a given case, the plaintiff may succeed in getting the injunction even by filing a simple suit for permanent injunction in a case where there is a cloud on the title. However, once the dispute with respect to title is settled and it is held against the plaintiff, in that case, the suit by the plaintiff for permanent injunction shall not be maintainable against the true owner. In such a situation, it will not be open for the plaintiff to contend that though he/she has lost the case so far as the title dispute is concerned, the defendant - the true owner still be restrained from disturbing his/her possession and his/her possession be protected."

54. It is apparent that the plaintiffs title to the disputed property has not been acknowledged by the true owner or Court, as such the plaintiff ought to have claimed the relief of declaration of his ownership rights on the basis of adverse possession in the disputed property, but the plaintiff has not claimed it and has simplicitor claimed the relief of permanent injunction. It is also apparent that the plaintiff cannot be granted the relief of permanent injunction against the true owner, unless a declaration of his ownership in the disputed property is made by the Court.

55. It is also apparent that defendant no. 2 is the true owner of the property on the basis of the gift deed executed in his favour by defendant no.1 on 18.1.2019. For granting any relief to the plaintiff, the above gift deed has to be ignored by declaring it void, but the relief of getting declared the sale deed void and not binding on the plaintiff has not been claimed by the plaintiff. In view of this, the plaintiff has to seek declaration of his rights in the disputed property, which he has not claimed.

56. It is further apparent that without the relief of declaration, the plaintiff cannot be granted the relief of permanent injunction against the defendants. It is further apparent that the limitation for claiming the relief of declaration is 3 years. Since plaintiff is claiming ownership of the disputed property on the basis of adverse possession from 31.12.2008, he should have filed the suit within 3 years from this date. It is apparent that, the plaintiffs suit for the relief of declaration is time barred.

57. It is further apparent that the gift deed of the disputed property has been executed by the defendant no.1 in favour of defendant no. 2 on 18.1.2019, on the basis of which, the defendant no. 2 is the owner of the disputed property, but the plaintiff has not claimed its cancellation. The plaintiff could have filed suit for its cancellation within 3 years. The plaintiff has claimed in the plaint that he became aware of the gift deed on 17.9.2021, as such, the plaintiff could have filed suit for the cancellation of the gift deed within 3 years i.e. upto 17.9.2024, but no such suit has been filed by the plaintiff till date, hence on this ground also, the plaintiff cannot be granted any relief.

58. It is also apparent that the plaintiff has claimed that cause of action for filing the instant suit has arisen on 17.9.2021 when the defendants attempted to dispossess him from the disputed property, whereas, as per the plaintiff himself prior to it, the defendant no.1 has executed a gift deed on 18.1.2019 in favour of defendant no. 2 and 3.

59. It is evident that since the defendant no. 2 and 3 became owner of the disputed property on 18.1.2019, hence, the plaintiff cannot claim ownership of the disputed property on the basis of adverse possession, after this date. It is further apparent that if the plaintiff is still in the possession of the disputed property, then after 12 years from 18.1.2019 his claim of ownership on the basis of adverse possession will mature against defendant no. 2 and 3, not prior to it.

60. It is apparent that the plaintiff has neither claimed the relief of declaration of his rights in the disputed property nor claimed the relief of cancellation of gift deed dated 18.01.2019 as such, the plaintiff cannot be granted the relief of permanent injunction by the Court. It is apparent that there is a cloud on the title of the plaintiff in the disputed property which has not been removed by the plaintiff. It is further apparent that the relief of declaration of plaintiff's ownership in the disputed property and cancellation of the above gift deed, both have become time-barred hence, these reliefs cannot be granted to the plaintiff legally. In this situation, the plaintiff's suit for the simplicitor relief of permanent injunction is legally not maintainable against the defendants under Order VII Rule 11(d) CPC.

61. It is also apparent that from the plaint averments and documentary evidence, it is prima facie not proved that the true owner/defendant no.1 was aware of the plaintiff's adverse possession in the disputed property since 01.01.1996, as such, the plaintiff cannot claim adverse possession of the disputed property against defendant no.1. It is also apparent that the plaintiff by depositing the electricity bills and property tax has acknowledged that Capt. Vinod Kumar is the owner of the disputed property as such, the entire case of plaintiff claiming ownership on the basis of adverse possession, is demolished. In view of the above facts, the plaintiff has got no cause of action to file the instant suit and the plaintiff's suit is barred under Order VII Rule 11(a) CPC.

62. For the aforesaid reasons, the trial court has not erred in allowing the defendants application under Order VII Rule 11 CPC and rejecting the plaint. The appeal is meritless and is liable to be dismissed.

63. Accordingly, the instant appeal is dismissed with costs. Consequently, the impugned judgment and decree dated 30.10.2023 in O.S. no.876 of 2021 is affirmed.

64. Office is directed to send back the trial court record, forthwith.

Issues for Consideration

Whether an applicant seeking grant of letters of administration under the Indian Succession Act, 1925 is required to pay the entire ad valorem court fee at the time of presentation of the petition or only the fixed court fee prescribed under Schedule II of the Court Fees Act, 1870?

(ii) Whether the balance court fee payable under Article 11 of Schedule I of the Court Fees Act, 1870 is required to be deposited only after the Court decides to grant letters of administration and before their issuance?

(iii) Whether the trial court was justified in rejecting the appellant's application seeking permission to make good the deficiency of court fee after grant of letters of administration?

Headnotes

Court Fees Act, 1870 — Schedule I, Article 11 — Schedule II — Indian Succession Act, 1925 — Ss. 278, 295 and 299 — Letters of administration — Court fee payable at the stage of institution — Payment of ad valorem court fee — Stage at which payable.

HELD: A harmonious construction of Schedule II and Article 11 of Schedule I of the Court Fees Act, 1870 makes it evident that an applicant seeking grant of letters of administration is required to pay only the fixed court fee prescribed under Schedule II at the time of presentation of the petition. The ad valorem court fee contemplated under Article 11 of Schedule I becomes payable only after the Court decides to grant letters of administration and before the actual issuance thereof. Any interpretation requiring payment of the entire ad valorem court fee at the initial stage would render Article 11 and the statutory scheme otiose. [Paras 10, 12 and 16]

Court Fees Act, 1870 — Schedule I, Article 11 — Schedule II — Letters of administration — Deficiency of court fee — Application seeking permission to deposit balance court fee after grant of letters of administration — Rejection by trial court — Legality.

HELD: The trial court committed an error in directing the appellant to deposit the entire deficient court fee before adjudication of the petition seeking letters of administration. Since only a token court fee is payable at the stage of institution and the balance court fee is required to be paid only after grant but before issuance of letters of administration, the appellant's application seeking permission to make good the deficiency at that stage deserved to be allowed. The impugned order rejecting the application was liable to be set aside. [Paras 16 to 18]

Indian Succession Act, 1925 — Ss. 278 and 295 — Letters of administration — Contentious proceedings — Authenticity of Will — Scope of appellate order.

HELD: The controversy before the appellate court was confined to the stage at which court fee was payable. No opinion was expressed regarding the genuineness or authenticity of the unregistered Will forming the basis of the petition. The trial court was directed to adjudicate the petition as a contentious cause under Section 295 of the Indian Succession Act after affording due opportunity to the parties and in accordance with law. [Paras 17 to 19]

Letters of administration — Court fee — Grant of relief.

HELD: The appellant was entitled to deposit the deficient court fee after the petition for letters of administration was allowed but before the actual issuance of the letters of administration. [Paras 17 and 18]

Appeal allowed. Impugned order set aside. Application permitting payment of deficient court fee after grant of letters of administration allowed. (E-14)

Case Arising From

Order dated 30.07.2024 passed by the Additional District Judge, Court No. 10, Kanpur Nagar in Original Suit No. 3 of 2023, Shailendra Jain v. State of U.P. and Others, whereby Application 39-A Kha seeking permission to make good the deficiency of court fee after grant of letters of administration was rejected

Appearance for Parties

For the Petitioner: Sri Rajnish Sahai Saxena, Ms. Shreya Gupta and Sri Vikas Mathur
For the Respondents: Sri Kripa Shanker Pandey

(Delivered by Hon'ble Sandeep Jain, J.)

1. The instant appeal has been filed by the petitioner/appellant under Section 299 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925, against the impugned order dated 30.07.2024 passed by the Additional District Judge, Court No. 10, Kanpur Nagar, in O.S. No.3 of 2023 (Shailendra Jain vs. State of U.P. and others), whereby the appellant's application 39-A Kha has been rejected, whereby it was prayed that the appellant be permitted to make good the deficiency of Court fees after the letters of administration was granted in his favour.

2. The facts in brief are that the petitioner/appellant applied for grant of letters of administration regarding the unregistered Will dated 16.4.2022, which was executed by his mother Smt. Veer Bala Jain in favour of the appellant whereby all her movable and immovable assets were bequeathed to the appellant. It is the case of the appellant that his father Jitendra Kumar Jain died on 22.11.2004 and his mother Smt. Veer Bala Jain also died on 20.05.2022, as such, after her death the above Will came into effect and for getting letters of administration, the appellant filed O.S. No.3 of 2023 before the Court of District Judge, Kanpur Nagar, which was later on transferred to the Additional District Judge, Court No.10, Kanpur Nagar.

3. It is apparent that at the time of filing the above suit, the petitioner-appellant only paid Court fees of Rs.25/-, whereas the valuation of the suit was Rs.15,00,000/-. A preliminary objection was raised by the Munsarim that the Court fees paid by the petitioner-appellant was deficient by Rs.1,12,882.50 and on this, the petitioner moved an application 39-C dated 13.10.2023 before the trial court to permit him to make good the deficiency of Court fees after the petition seeking letters of administration is allowed and not before the passing of the order of the court.

4. The above application of the petitioner was objected by the contesting respondent No.3 Smt. Shweta Jain on the ground that letters of administration has been sought regarding unregistered Will dated 16.04.2022, which is doubtful, which has not been executed by Smt. Veer Bala Jain, which has been challenged by her. It was further averred that a Court fees of Rs.1,12,882.50 paise was required to be paid on it and as such, without paying this amount the petition seeking letters of administration was not legally maintainable.

5. The trial court vide impugned order dated 30.07.2024 has concluded that as per report of Munsarim dated 16.03.2023, there is a deficiency of Court fees of Rs.1,12,907.50 paise but the petitioner has only paid Rs.25/-, as such, the deficiency of Court fees of Rs.1,12,882.50 paise remains, which is required to be made good. The trial court considered the case law submitted by the petitioner reported in AIR 2010 Uttarakhand 22, but still concluded that since the petition has been converted into an original suit, being a contentious case, as such, the above precedent was not applicable and the petitioner is required to pay ad-valorem Court fees under Section 7(iv-A) of the Court Fees Act, which has not been paid by the petitioner at the time of filing of the petition. In the light of this reasoning, the petitioner was directed to make good the deficiency of court fees of Rs.1,12,882.50 paise, aggrieved against which the petitioner has filed this Appeal under Section 299 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925.

6. Ms. Shreya Gupta, learned Counsel for the appellant submitted that at the time of applying for letters of administration, the petitioner is only required to pay the fixed Court fees of Rs.25/- as per Schedule II of the Court Fees Act and only after the court comes to the conclusion that the letters of administration is to be granted to the petitioner for a particular amount only then the petitioner is required to pay Court fees on it in accordance with Article 11 of Schedule I of the Court Fees Act, 1870. She further submitted that there is similar provision also for grant of succession certificates under the Indian Succession Act, 1925, where also the required Court fees is paid after the grant of succession certificate. She further submitted that similar controversy was decided by the Uttarakhand High Court in the case of Dr. Pushpa Puri Memorial Charitable Trust, Mussoorie and Another vs. 2nd Additional District Judge, Dehradun and Another AIR 2010 UTTARAKHAND 22, wherein it has been specifically held that the complete Court fees has to be paid only at the time of grant of letters of administration or probate.

7. In the above facts, it was submitted that the trial court has erred in rejecting the petitioner's application 39-A Kha and as such, the appeal be allowed and the petitioner-appellant be permitted to deposit the deficient court fees at the time of grant of letter of administration in his favour.

8. Per contra, learned Counsel for the contesting respondent No.3 submitted that the order is perfectly justified because the petitioner was required to pay the whole amount of Court fees of Rs.1,12,907.50 paise, which has not been paid by the petitioner, as such, the letters of administration cannot be granted in his favour. Learned Counsel further submitted that the letters of administration cannot be granted to the petitioner on the basis of unregistered Will, which is a forged and fabricated document. With these submissions, it was prayed that the appeal is meritless and is liable to be dismissed at the admission stage.

9. I have heard learned Counsel for the parties and perused the impugned order and documents submitted with the appeal. The appeal is admitted.

10. A very short question arises in this appeal whether the petitioner is required to deposit the entire amount of Court fees at the time of applying for letters of administration under Section 276 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925 or he can apply for it with a Court fees of Rs.25/- in accordance with Schedule II of the Court Fees Act, 1870 and later on make good the deficiency in accordance with Article 11 of Schedule I of the Court Fees Act, 1870, at the time of grant of letter of administration or probate.

11. It is apparent from the facts of this case that the petitioner is seeking letters of administration under Section 278 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925 regarding the unregistered Will dated 16.04.2022 of his late mother Smt. Veer Bala Jain, who has died on 20.05.2022.

12. It is also apparent that the petitioner has only paid a fixed Court fees of Rs.25/- under Schedule II of the Court Fees Act, 1870 and it is also apparent that Article 11 of Schedule I of the above Act prescribes the Court fees which is to be paid on a petition seeking letters of administration. If the above two provisions are reconciled then it is apparent that the Court fees prescribed under Schedule II is only a token amount whereas the full Court fees has been prescribed under Article 11 of Schedule I of the Court Fees Act. If the Court fees of Rs.25/- was sufficient then there was no need for the Legislature to enact Article 11 of Schedule I of the Act. It is well settled that all the provisions of the statute are to be harmoniously construed and an interpretation, which renders any provision otiose is to be avoided. In view of this legal principle, it is apparent that at the time of applying for the letters of administration, only a token amount of Rs.25/- is to be paid in accordance with Schedule II of the Act, 1870 and the remaining amount is to be paid under Article 11 of Schedule I, at the time of grant of letter of administration or probate.

13. This Court in the case of Km. Rakhi and Another vs. First Additional District Judge, Firozabad and others 1999 SCC OnLine All 723, has held that on petition filed under Section 379 of Indian Succession Act, 1925, for issuance of succession certificate, it is not necessary for the petitioner to pay the entire Court fees, except the Court fees of Rs.25/-, while filing the application for succession certificate. It has been further held that complete Court fees has to be paid after the application for succession certificate is allowed.

14. The Uttarakhand High Court in the case of Dr. Pushpa Puri Memorial Charitable Trust (supra), has also held that in a petition filed under Section 276 for grant of letters of administration under Indian Succession Act, 1925, the petitioner need not deposit the entire amount of Court fees at the time of filing of the petition and he is only required to pay court fees of Rs.25/- as per Schedule II of Court Fees Act, 1870 and only when the letters of administration are issued, he is required to pay complete court fees.

15. The High Court of Bombay in the case of Prakashchandra Deokaranji Bhoot and Others vs. Manoharlal Deokaranji Bhoot and Another 2023 SCC OnLine Bom 1166, while considering court fees payable on application for grant of Succession Certificate under the Indian Succession Act, 1925, held as under:-

“14. A reading of Sub-Section (1) of Section 379 suggests that every application for a certificate shall be accompanied, not by court-fees, but by a sum equal to such court-fee as may be payable in respect of a Succession Certificate. Sub-Section (1) of Section 379 of the Act, does not prescribe the consequence of non-deposit of the sum referred to therein, when not accompanying the application.

15. It is thus clear that the provision of Section 379 do not prescribe for the payment of requisite court-fee along with the application but prescribe the deposit of a sum of money in the Court, which would be ultimately expended, under orders of the Court, towards purchase of stamp to be used for denoting the fee payable on the value of each of the shares of the successors. In the event of the Court deciding not to allot any share or to dismiss the application, the parties who has deposited such sum would be entitled to a refund of the same in terms of Sub-Section (3) of Section 379. The scheme of Section 379 itself denotes that the sum to be deposited is not actual court-fee under the Court Fees Act but an amount which may be expended or refunded, at the time of final orders to be passed on the application. It would stand to reason therefore, that the provision of Section 379 could not be mandatory and require such a sum or fee to be deposited as a sine qua non for the maintainability of an application under Section 372 of the Act.

16. Looked at from a different angle, neither the provision of Section 372 nor those of Section 379 in any manner lay down that a Court dealing with such an application would lack jurisdiction to proceed with the matter in the absence of the sum required to be deposited under Sub-section (1) of Section 379. The jurisdiction of the Court to proceed to hear an application for issuance of a Succession Certificate would not depend upon whether the sums specified under Sub-section (1) of Section 379 has been deposited or not; however, a combined reading of Sub-section (1) & (3) of Section 379 of the Act, would suggest that the Court would not issue a Succession Certificate on the culmination of the proceedings, to a party declared as a successor or having a share in the estate, unless the requisite court-fees payable on such share is paid before issuance of such a certificate.

20. Considering the provisions of Section 372 read with Section 379 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925, in answer to the questions formulated in para 3 above, I am of the view, for the reasons discussed, that the deposit of the sum to be expended on the fee referred to in Sub-section (1) of Section 379 is not mandatory, and non-deposit of the same along with the filing of the application that issuance of Succession Certificate under Section 372 of the Act, does not affect the maintainability of the application or of the jurisdiction of the Court to proceed to deciding the application...”

16. It is apparent that a token amount of Rs.25/- is to be paid at the time of moving application seeking letters of administration under Section 276 of the Indian Succession Act and only when the court allows that application then the petitioner is required to deposit the complete Court fees, for the actual issuance of the letter of administration. It is apparent that the petitioner is not supposed to deposit the complete fee at the time of moving the above petition seeking grant of letters of administration.

17. In view of the above facts and law, the impugned order passed by the trial court is certainly erroneous and is liable to be set aside, which has directed the petitioner to deposit the entire Court fees on the petition seeking letters of administration prior to grant and issuance of certificate to the petitioner. This appeal has merit and is liable to be allowed.

18. Accordingly, the instant appeal is allowed. Consequently, the impugned order dated 30.07.2024 is set aside and the petitioner's application 39-A Kha stands allowed and the petitioner is permitted to make good the deficiency of court fees after grant but before the issuance of letters of administration.

19. This court has not expressed any opinion as to the genuineness and authenticity of the Will dated 16.04.2022 executed by late Smt. Veer Bala Jain. The trial court is directed to decide the petition seeking letters of administration as a contentious case under Section 295 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925, after giving due opportunity to the opposite parties, preferably within a period of six months from the date of production of certified copy of this order, without affording unnecessary adjournments to either of the parties, in accordance with law.

APPELLATE JURISDICTION
DATED: ALLAHABAD 07.04.2026

BEFORE

THE HON'BLE SANDEEP JAIN, J.

First Appeal No. 273 of 2026

Mr. Puneet Sachdeva
IndusInd Bank & Ors.

...Appellant
Versus
...Respondents

Issues for Consideration

- (i) Whether a civil suit instituted by an employee of a private bank challenging his dismissal from service was barred for want of jurisdiction on the ground that the relief claimed pertained to termination of service?
- (ii) Whether the Trial Court rightly held that the proviso to Order XXXIX Rule 2(2) CPC, as inserted by Section 13 of U.P. Act No. 57 of 1976, barred the jurisdiction of the Civil Court to entertain the suit?
- (iii) Whether an employee of a private bank, whose service conditions are governed by contractual service rules and not by statutory rules, is entitled to reinstatement and consequential service benefits or is confined to the remedy of damages for wrongful termination?
- (iv) Whether the Trial Court was justified in dismissing the suit solely on the question of jurisdiction without adjudicating the dispute on merits?

Headnotes

Civil Procedure—Civil Court—Jurisdiction—Employee of private bank challenging dismissal from service—Maintainability of suit.

HELD: The jurisdiction of a Civil Court under Section 9 CPC can be excluded only by an express statutory provision or by necessary implication coupled with the availability of an adequate and efficacious alternative remedy. Neither the Executive Staff Service Rules, 1994 governing the plaintiff nor any statutory provision expressly barred institution of a civil suit challenging the legality of his dismissal. Since the defendant is a private bank and the plaintiff's service conditions were purely contractual, the Civil Court alone constituted the appropriate judicial forum for adjudicating the dispute. The Trial Court, therefore, erred in holding that it lacked inherent jurisdiction to entertain the suit. [Paras 42, 46 to 49]

Civil Procedure—Order XXXIX Rule 2(2) CPC (U.P. Amendment)—Section 13 of U.P. Act No. 57 of 1976—Scope—Bar against grant of injunction distinguished from jurisdiction to entertain suit.

HELD: The proviso inserted by Section 13 of U.P. Act No. 57 of 1976 merely prohibits grant of injunction in specified service matters. It does not exclude the jurisdiction of the Civil Court to examine the legality of termination or to grant such reliefs as are otherwise permissible in law. The Trial Court wrongly treated the statutory restriction on grant of injunction as a complete bar to its jurisdiction and thereby failed to exercise jurisdiction vested in it. [Paras 47 to 49]

Private employment—Contract of personal service—Termination—Relief of reinstatement—When impermissible.

HELD: Where employment is governed purely by contract and the employer is neither the State within the meaning of Article 12 of the Constitution nor a statutory body governed by statutory service rules, the contract of personal service cannot be specifically enforced. Even if termination is found to be illegal, the employee is not entitled to reinstatement or declaration that the contract of employment subsists. The remedy is confined to damages for wrongful termination. [Paras 43 to 46]

Private Bank—Service Rules—Executive Staff Service Rules, 1994—Non-statutory character—Effect.

HELD: The plaintiff's service was regulated by the Executive Staff Service Rules, 1994 and the Code of Conduct framed by the private bank. The said Rules were contractual and not statutory in nature. The defendant Bank was neither 'State' within the meaning of Article 12 nor were Articles 309 and 311 of the Constitution or labour law protections applicable to the plaintiff. Consequently, the plaintiff could neither invoke writ jurisdiction nor claim reinstatement as a matter of right. [Paras 27, 37, 43 and 46]

Specific Relief Act, 1963—Contract of personal service—Wrongful dismissal—Damages—Maintainability of claim.

HELD: Although reinstatement and mandatory injunction compelling continuance in service cannot be granted in respect of private contractual employment, the employee is entitled to establish that his dismissal was illegal or contrary to the applicable service rules and principles of natural justice and may recover damages for wrongful termination. Such claim is maintainable before the Civil Court. [Paras 43, 49 and 50]

Specific Relief Act, 1963—Section 40—Damages in addition to or in substitution of injunction—Amendment of plaint.

HELD: The Trial Court failed to consider that the plaintiff had already filed an application under Order VI Rule 17 CPC seeking amendment of the plaint to claim damages and that under Section 40 of the Specific Relief Act, damages may be claimed in addition to or in substitution of an injunction and such amendment may be permitted at any stage of the proceedings. Failure to decide the amendment application before dismissing the suit reflected non-application of mind. [Para 50]

Civil Procedure—Dismissal of suit solely on preliminary issue of jurisdiction—Failure to decide merits—Illegality.

HELD: The Trial Court dismissed the suit exclusively on the issue of jurisdiction without examining the legality of the disciplinary proceedings, the plaintiff's challenge to the dismissal order or the relief of damages. Since the Court possessed jurisdiction to entertain the suit, the impugned judgment was legally unsustainable and liable to be set aside with a direction for fresh adjudication on merits. [Paras 49 to 55]

Remand—Trial Court—Directions.

HELD: The judgment and decree dismissing the suit were set aside. The suit was restored to its original number with a direction to the Trial Court to decide it expeditiously, preferably within six months, on the basis of the pleadings and evidence already on record. It was clarified that the High Court had expressed no opinion on the merits of the disciplinary proceedings or the legality of the plaintiff's dismissal. [Paras 51 to 55]

Appeal allowed with costs. Judgment and decree set aside. Suit restored for decision on merits.

Judgment and decree dated 10.07.2023 passed by the Additional Civil Judge (Senior Division), Court No. 16, Prayagraj in Original Suit No. 180 of 2015, Puneet Sachdeva v. IndusInd Bank and Others.

Appearance for Parties

For the Revisionist: Sri Anshul Kumar Singhal.

For the Respondents: Sri Mayank Awasthi and Sri Saurabh Raj Srivastava.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Sandeep Jain, J.)

1. The instant appeal has been filed by the plaintiff under Section 96 CPC against the impugned judgment and decree dated 10.7.2023 passed by Additional Civil Judge(Senior Division) Court No. 16, Allahabad in O.S. no. 180 of 2015 Puneet Sachdeva vs.IndusInd Bank and others, whereby the plaintiff 's suit has been dismissed on the ground that the Court lacks inherent jurisdiction to try and decide the suit.

Plaint case

2. The plaintiff filed O.S.no.180 of 2015 against the defendants who are IndusInd Bank and its officials, with the averments that he joined the Bank on 21.8.2008 as Senior Relationship Manager at its Barakhamba Branch, New Delhi and by his dedication, devotion, hard work, excellent performance and appraisal, was promoted as Branch Manager and was transferred to Allahabad Branch of the defendant Bank in June 2011,where he worked there till 9.5.2013. It was further averred that during his tenure of 6 years with the bank, he received commendations, appreciation letter for his work and his appraisal ratings in 4 years from 2008 - 2009 to 2011 - 12 remained outstanding and excellent and he earned promotions from the rank of Deputy Manager to Asst. Vice President on the basis of his hard work, commitment and devotion.

3. It was further averred that in the financial year 2011 - 12 he received appreciation for detecting fraud of ₹ 5 lakhs on account of Mr.Shobhit Srivastava and recovery of ₹ 3 lakhs was effected against the outstanding of ₹ 5 lakhs.

4. It was further averred that as Branch Manager he was not dealing with disbursement/receipt of cash/cheque etc. but was required to examine transactions of ₹ 5 lakhs and above from the daily reports that were brought by the staff to his notice apart from his other routine duties and as Branch Manager, he was required to counter sign the vouchers of ₹ 5 lakhs and above which were initially signed by operation of staff and Manager - Customer Service and Operations(MCSOP). It was further averred that the defendant Bank had given MCSOP the discretionary power to authorise all transactions and to counter sign the voucher for the transaction up to ₹ 5 lakh and vouchers of transaction of ₹ 5 lakh and above were to be signed by the operational staff, MCSOP and Branch Manager. At the relevant time Mr. Neeraj Verma was the MCSOP.

5. It was further averred that the prime responsibility of cash officer Mr. Sachin Yadav of the defendant Bank at Allahabad was receipt and payment of cash to ensure cash management is within retention limit, maintenance of cash registers, joint custodian of vault and ATM. The clearing officer Mrs.Amba Lakshmi of defendant Bank was overall in charge of inward/outward clearing, reconciliation of accounts with banks, lodgment of outward cheques, all work related to ECS credits, reporting, returns and effective closure of complaints/issues related to it.

6. It was further averred that the prime responsibility of remittance officer Mrs. Suchitra Prajapati of the defendant Bank was issuance, revalidation, cancellation of demand draft and pay orders to customers, transfer entries, RTGS, arrangement of vouchers, daily reconciliation of FD suspense accounts, daily report checking and arrangement and verifying the vouchers which are incomplete, dispatching a voucher to VVU and responding to their queries.

7. It was further averred that the Branch Monitoring Unit (BMU) audit was done on quarterly basis in each Branch and the audit of the defendant Banks' Allahabad Branch was reviewed by Mr. Anurag Chaudhary on 14.3.2013 which was for the period 27.8.2012 to 13.3.2013 and certain observations were made in the audit, which were resolved during course of the report submission and Mr. Neeraj Verma MCSOP mentioned his feedback on various points highlighted in the audit report. The plaintiff has specifically averred that in the above audit there was no mention of missing vouchers and none of the fraudulent transactions could be traced and detected. It was further averred that in the internal audit conducted by the Bank the performance of the Branch was found satisfactory and no fraud of any kind was found in the Branch.

8. The plaintiff has mentioned relevant details in the plaint to point out that Mr. Neeraj Verma was not performing properly, which was also in the notice of higher officials of the Bank. The plaintiff has also averred that Mrs. Suchitra Prajapati who was reporting to Mr. Neeraj Verma MCSOP, was also not deliberately preparing the vouchers of fraudulent transactions and had been showing wrong POD. Mr. Neeraj Verma was also providing wrong and false information to him regarding sending of pending vouchers and this fact was brought to his notice by VVU (voucher verification unit). It is the case of the plaintiff that if transfer vouchers would have been sent to the VVU promptly by Mr. Neeraj Verma then the fraud in regard to unauthorised transactions would have been traced.

9. It was further averred that on 1.5.2013 the plaintiff received a transfer order from the defendant bank that he had been transferred to his home town Delhi at Naraina Branch of the defendant Bank. The plaintiff handed over the charge of his branch to Mr. Vishwaneeet Khosla on 9.5.2013, and the plaintiff was relieved on 13.5.2013. The plaintiff was later on directed by the defendant Bank to join Gujranwala Branch on 18.5.2013, to which he complied.

10. It is the specific case of the plaintiff that on 30.5.2013 he came to know that Mrs. Suchitra Prajapati has committed fraud in internal accounts and misappropriated funds in several customer accounts and the BMU team of the Bank was locating fraudulent entries done by her. The plaintiff was also informed that fraudulent entries beyond her power were authorised by using ID of Mr. Neeraj Verma MSCOP and Mr. Vineet Gupta, Authoriser. The plaintiff was further informed that Mrs. Suchitra Prajapati has confessed to committing fraud amounting to ₹ 41 lakhs consisting of ₹ 17.77 lakhs during the tenure of plaintiff and the remaining ₹ 23.23 lakhs in the period of his successor. The plaintiff was also informed that the Bank has recovered most of the amount. Subsequently, Mrs. Suchitra Prajapati denied that the fraud was committed by her. She also lodged a case of sexual harassment against all the officials of the defendant bank, who persuaded her for depositing back the amount of fraud, with police authorities and to higher authorities of the Bank.

11. It is the specific case of the plaintiff that the fraud committed by Mrs. Suchitra Prajapati was due to sheer negligence of Mr. Neeraj Verma MCSOP, which was detected by Mr. Gautam Singh of the Branch Monitoring Unit(BMU) who visited the Branch on 27.5.2013 to take stock of the situation and checked the transactions for missing vouchers along with Mr. Neeraj Verma MCSOP.

12. The plaintiff has further averred that due to the above fraud committed by Mrs. Suchitra Prajapati he was suspended by the Bank on 30.9.2013, a disciplinary enquiry was instituted by the Bank regarding the above fraud in which the chargesheet was served on Mrs. Suchitra Prajapati on 9.10.2013, Mr. Neeraj Verma and on him on 18.2.2014, but the disciplinary enquiry was only conducting enquiry for the charges levelled against Mrs. Suchitra Prajapati in the chargesheet given to her whereas, the same should have been done for all the employees to whom the chargesheet was served. According to the plaintiff, it was strange that for one offence different chargesheets were issued. It is the case of the plaintiff that the higher officials of the defendant Bank intimated to him that the fraud had been committed by Mrs. Suchitra Prajapati but to make it appear as serious action, they had also suspended plaintiff for the brief period. It was further averred that on 22.6.2013 the defendant Bank lodged FIR against Mrs. Suchitra Prajapati for committing fraud of ₹ 41 lakhs, in which there was no mention of his involvement, in any manner whatsoever, which is still pending for investigation, in which no chargesheet has been filed till date.

13. It was further averred by the plaintiff that he was suspended by the defendant Bank on 7.10.2013, chargesheet was served on him on 18.2.2014, on 19.2.2014 he was served with the fresh chargesheet on the same grounds in Delhi, on which enquiry was already held in Allahabad. It was further averred that the plaintiff was not given proper opportunity of submitting his reply, since he had to collect and peruse the relevant records for negating the charges, the opportunity given to him was too short, due to which he could not prepare his proper defence statement, the defendant Bank also failed to comply with the principles of natural justice. The plaintiff has further averred that in the meanwhile the higher officials of the Bank were sending clear signal to him that he would be exonerated in the enquiry since he was not part of the fraud as such, he need not raise all those objections.

14. The following charges were levelled against the plaintiff in the disciplinary enquiry conducted by the defendant Bank :-

“(i)Despite mails from BMU, the charged executive and the Manager Customer Service and Operations(MCSOP) failed to reconcile internal account.

(ii)The charged executive and the MCSOP failed to send the vouchers to VVU despite follow-up by BMU. No proper tracking was done at the branch by the charged executive and the MCSOP.

(iii)Daily report was not checked by the charged executive and the MCSOP.

(iv)Mrs. Suchitra Prajapati had not prepared the vouchers and ensured that the vouchers were not sent to VVU, to avoid detection of unauthorised entries by VVU Hub.

(v)The MCSOP Mr.Neeraj Verma has allegedly shared the password to Mrs. Suchitra Prajapati which was done by her with his authority and used in the transaction undertaken by her."

15. It was further averred by the plaintiff that a 2nd domestic enquiry on 25.2.2014 was conducted against him at the corporate office of the defendant Bank at Mumbai by Mr. Sachin Pandey, who was junior to him. It was further averred that the plaintiff came to know from the BMU team that Mr. Neeraj Verma has been reinstated in the job with some punishment. The plaintiff was ultimately dismissed on 19.5.2014 by the defendant no. 2 Mr.Ashok Nair, Head Human Relations of the defendant Bank, on the basis of the report of the disciplinary enquiry, which according to the plaintiff was grossly disproportionate and unwarranted, since there was no evidence against him. According to the plaintiff, the fraud was committed by Mrs. Suchitra Prajapati and Mr. Neeraj Verma, MCSOP but he was wrongly punished. It has been specifically averred by the plaintiff that he has never made any admission of his guilt in the disciplinary enquiry before any official of the Bank or of his wrongdoing in any manner whatsoever. It was specifically averred by the plaintiff that his password was not used in committing fraud nor he had authorised any fraudulent transaction undertaken by Mrs. Suchitra Prajapati and Mr. Neeraj Verma MCSOP.

16. It has been further averred by the plaintiff that for filing Appeal against his dismissal order, he demanded the relevant documents from the Bank which were not provided to him on the ground that they were not relevant. The plaintiff submitted his Appeal against the order of disciplinary authority to defendant no. 2 on 19.6.2014.

17. It was further averred that the Appellate Authority added 2 additional charges on 7.10.2014 against him, which were not before the disciplinary authority in the chargesheet dated 18.2.2014, which was against the principles of natural justice, which read as under :-

"(i) There has been many lapses on your part such as debiting dormant accounts and booking life insurance policies in dummy names and allowing free hand to Mrs. Suchitra Prajapati to undertake transactions to inflate business.

(ii>Password sharing too seems to have been done under your pressure since Mrs. Suchitra Prajapati was managing with some of the customers by selling life insurance policies as also making the MCSOP and the authorisers move out for business."

18. It was further averred that the Appellate Authority failed to conduct impartial enquiry, which failed to properly examine the material on record, who has illegally upheld his termination from the Bank. The plaintiff further averred that due to the illegal termination,he has suffered a loss of about ₹ 26,49,663/-which he is entitled to get with interest @ 18% per annum from the defendant Bank and its officials.

19. In the above backdrop ,the plaintiff claimed the following reliefs in his plaint:-

"(A) Pass a decree of declaration to the effect that the Appellate order dated 8.10.2014 passed by defendant no. 3 and order dated 19.5.2014 passed by defendant no. 2 is illegal and is nullity;

(B) Pass a decree of permanent injunction against the defendant no.1 Bank injunctioning the defendant No. 1 Bank to terminate the plaintiff;

(C) Pass a decree of declaration to the effect that the plaintiff is entitled to his back wages with interest and all employment benefits;

(D) Pass a decree of mandatory injunction directing defendant No. 1 Bank to reinstate the plaintiff forthwith with full back wages and employment benefits;

(E) Award cost of the suit in favour of plaintiff and against the defendants;

(F) Pass any such order as this Hon'ble Court deems fit proper in the facts and circumstances of the present case."

Written statement of the defendants

20. All the defendants filed their joint written statement before the trial court, in which the plaint averments were denied. It was averred that the relief claimed by the plaintiff cannot be granted in original suit, which was not maintainable for the reliefs claimed by him. It was further averred that the plaintiff was directly responsible for the fraud which was committed in his Branch for which appropriate disciplinary proceedings were drawn against him and in pursuance of that, the plaintiff has been rightly dismissed from service of the Bank. It was further averred that the plaintiff, being the Branch Manager, was responsible for all high-value transactions, he was supposed to check and sign the vouchers, being the custodian and overall incharge of the Branch.

21. It was further averred by the defendants that during enquiry several transactions above ₹ 5 lakhs were found, which were not duly checked by the plaintiff, on account of which fraud was committed, which caused serious financial and reputational loss to the Bank. It was further averred that MCSOP worked under the supervision of the plaintiff and it was his duty to ensure that MCSOP worked in a fair and error free manner, in which the plaintiff failed. It was further averred that on account of several supervisory and controlling lapses committed by the plaintiff, Mrs. Suchitra Prajapati, a subordinate employee of the plaintiff, was able to commit fraud amounting to ₹ 40 lakhs. The defendants in their written statement have justified the dismissal of the plaintiff, for the alleged lapses committed by him during his tenure as a Branch Manager.

22. It was further averred by the defendants that after disciplinary enquiry Mrs. Suchitra Prajapati has also been dismissed from service. It was further averred that plaintiff was charged for his negligence and dereliction of duties towards the Bank and because the plaintiff was negligent, the fraud was perpetuated in the Branch, during his tenure as Branch Manager. It was further averred that the plaintiff was given full opportunity to defend himself in the enquiry proceedings in which chargesheet was given to him, and thereafter, final order of dismissal was passed. It was further averred that the plaintiff has not pointed out any procedural irregularity in the disciplinary proceedings conducted by the defendant Bank, and has only pressed upon the factual aspects of the matter, which have already been dealt with in the enquiry proceedings, hence the dismissal as well as the appellate orders, does not warrant any interference by this Court. It was further averred that Mr. Neeraj Verma was also punished in the disciplinary enquiry.

23. It was further averred by the defendants that the relief of re-instatement in service cannot be granted by the Court. Further, the order of dismissal from service cannot be challenged by way of civil suit. It was further averred that the plaintiff was suspended on 30.9.2013, a chargesheet was served on him on 18.2.2014 for breach of the Executive Staff Service Rules, 1994 and the Code of Conduct, as applicable to him. It was further averred that the appeal preferred by the plaintiff before the Appellate Authority was dismissed by a reasoned order on 8.10.2014. It was averred by the defendants that no illegality has been committed by the Bank in dismissing the plaintiff, in view of this, the suit was liable to be dismissed with costs.

Issues framed by the trial court

24. On the basis of the pleadings of the parties the trial court framed the following issues:-

- “(i) Whether the plaintiff had been unlawfully suspended from service by the defendants ?*
- (ii) Whether the plaintiff suffered any economic loss due to unlawful and arbitrary act of defendant no.1 ?*
- (iii) Whether the suit is under valued ?*
- (iv) Whether the court fees paid by the plaintiff is insufficient ?*
- (v) Whether the court has jurisdiction to try the suit ?*
- (vi) Whether any cause of action has arisen to the plaintiff ?*
- (vii) Whether plaintiff is entitled to the relief claimed by him ? ”*

25. It is evident from the record of the trial court that the plaintiff examined himself as PW-1 before the trial court, but he was not cross-examined by the defendants, inspite of numerous opportunities provided by the trial court, as such, the opportunity of the defendants to cross-examine plaintiff was closed on 29.10.2021. No further evidence was adduced by the plaintiff. The case was proceeded ex-parte against the defendants on 11.11.2022 and after the closure of plaintiffs evidence, the case was fixed for hearing ex-parte arguments, the arguments of the plaintiff were heard on 04.7.2023 and thereafter, the suit was dismissed on 10.7.2023.

Reasoning of the trial court

26. The trial court considered Section 9 and Order 39 Rule 2(2) CPC, as well as the amendment made by Section 13 of the Uttar Pradesh Act 57 of 1976, and from their combined reading, concluded that the trial court lacked inherent jurisdiction to try the suit since the plaintiff was seeking the relief of declaration and mandatory injunction against the order of termination of service, which was specifically barred by Section 13 of the Uttar Pradesh Act 57 of 1976. In the light of the above conclusion, issue no. 5 relating to jurisdiction was decided against the plaintiff. The trial court did not examine the controversy on merit. The plaintiff's suit was dismissed on the ground of being barred by jurisdiction, aggrieved against which, the plaintiff has filed the instant appeal under Section 96 of the CPC.

Submissions made by the learned counsel of the parties

27. Sri Anshul Kumar Singhal learned counsel for the plaintiff appellant submitted that the defendant IndusInd Bank is a private bank, which is not owned by the Government, the employees of which are not governed by any statutory rules, but only governed by the private rules and Code of Conduct framed by the Bank. It was further submitted that the Bank does not fall in the definition of State or other authorities, so as to attract the provisions of Article 12 of the Constitution of India, as such, the Bank is not amenable to Writ jurisdiction of the Constitutional Courts, meaning thereby, that the employee cannot challenge his illegal dismissal from service by invoking the Writ jurisdiction of the Constitutional Courts. It was further submitted by the learned counsel that the plaintiffs service was not governed by any statutory rules but by Executive Staff Service Rules, 1994 of the defendant Bank and the plaintiff was also bound by the Code of Conduct applicable to him.

28. It was further submitted that since the plaintiff appellant has exhausted the departmental remedy of Appeal provided by the defendant Bank, as such, since no other remedy was available to him, hence, he can very well challenge his illegal termination from the service of the Bank by filing the instant suit, and can also claim the relief that his illegal termination from service be set aside, he be reinstated in service and he be also paid back wages for the illegal duration of termination. Learned counsel further submitted that the plaintiff can also claim damages for his illegal termination from the defendants.

29. It was further submitted that the provisions of Section 13 of U.P. Act 57 of 1976, were inapplicable and the trial court has misread the above provision. It was further submitted that the jurisdiction of civil court was not barred in this matter, as such the trial court has committed material illegality in rejecting the plaintiff's suit on this ground, which is liable to be set aside. With these submissions, it was prayed that the appeal be allowed, the impugned order be set aside and the matter be remanded back to the trial court for deciding it on merits. In support of his contention, the learned counsel has relied on the following case law :-

- “(i) Shivdhesar Singh vs. Union of India 2010 SCC OnLine All 1820.*
- (ii) Ramendra Kishore Biswas vs. State of Tripura and ors. (1999) 1 SCC 472 (By 3 Judges).*
- (iii) Saurabh Kumar Pandey vs. Reserve Bank of India and ors. Writ 'A' no. 7140 of 2021 decided on 01.10.2021 by Allahabad High Court.*
- (iv) Dhruv Green Field Ltd. vs. Hukum Singh and others AIR 2002 SC 2841.*
- (v) Sitaram Kashiram Konda vs. Pigment Cakes & Chemicals Mfg. Co. (1979) 4 SCC 12.”*

30. Per contra, Sri Saurabh Raj Srivastava learned counsel for the defendant respondent Bank submitted that the plaintiff committed certain serious lapses during his tenure as Branch Manager of the Allahabad Branch of the defendant Bank, due to which the bank suffered financial loss of ₹ 41 lakhs and the reputation of the Bank was also tarnished, for which disciplinary enquiry was conducted as per the rules and regulations of the bank against responsible employees, by following the principles of natural justice and affording full opportunity to the plaintiff to submit his defence, in which he was found guilty, as a result of which, he was dismissed from the services of the Bank, which was challenged by the plaintiff by filing appeal, which was also dismissed on merits by the Bank.

31. Learned counsel further submitted that the dismissal of the plaintiff has attained finality, which neither can be set aside by the civil court nor it can order plaintiffs reinstatement in the service of the defendant Bank. It was further submitted that at the most, if the plaintiffs termination was found illegal by the Court, it can only award damages to the plaintiff for his illegal termination, but the plaintiff has not claimed any damages as such, even the damages cannot be awarded to the plaintiff.

32. It was further submitted that the plaintiff has sought the relief of declaration that his termination from the service of the Bank was illegal, the relief of permanent injunction for restraining the Bank from terminating him from the service of the Bank, back wages with interest and all employment benefits and mandatory injunction for his reinstatement with full back wages and employment benefits, which cannot be granted by the Court. It was further submitted that since the plaintiff has already been terminated from the service of the Bank as such, the relief of permanent injunction cannot be granted to the plaintiff. With these submissions, it was prayed that the appeal is meritless and is liable to be rejected. Learned counsel has relied upon the decision of the Apex Court in State Bank of India and ors. vs. S.N. Goyal (2008) 8 SCC 92.

33. I have heard the learned counsel for the parties, perused the impugned judgment and the record of the trial court. Appeal is admitted.

34. The following issues arise for determination in this appeal :-

“(A) Whether the civil court lacked inherent jurisdiction to examine whether plaintiff's termination from the service of the defendant Bank was illegal ?

(B) What relief could have been granted by the Court to the plaintiff in the suit? ”

Analysis of case law submitted by the learned counsel

35. This Court in the case of Shivdhesar Singh (supra) was considering a case where the services of Constable employed in the Central Reserve Police Force was terminated and he had challenged it by filing civil suit. It was contended by the respondents that an alternative remedy under the Central Administrative Tribunal Act was available to the plaintiff, as such, the suit was not legally maintainable, but the submission was rejected by this Court, on the ground that, the exclusion of the jurisdiction of the civil court in view of Section 14 of the Specific Relief Act or even on account of the fact that the Central Reserve Police Force Act provides for a complete mechanism for redressal of the grievance of the plaintiff appellant, cannot be inferred. It was further held that where the relevant service rules neither expressly nor by implication takes away, the jurisdiction of the civil court to deal with the service matter, it was not proper to hold that the civil court had no jurisdiction.

36. The Apex Court in the case of Ramendra Kishore Biswas (supra) was considering a case where the employee of the Central Government had challenged his dismissal from service as void and illegal and had filed civil suit claiming reinstatement. The High Court held that under Rule 24 of the CCS(CCA) Rules, 1965 the jurisdiction of the civil court was barred, and only in the writ petition the termination order could have been challenged. In these circumstances, it was held by the Apex Court as under:-

“5. The opinion expressed by the learned Single Judge to the effect that in view of the CCA Rules, the jurisdiction of the civil court is ousted from dealing with an order passed by the disciplinary authority which can be questioned under the Service Rules and that even after recourse is had to the departmental proceedings, recourse can only be to file a writ petition is palpably erroneous. The learned Single Judge readily accepted the ouster of jurisdiction of civil courts to deal with service matters without proper consideration of the matter. Indeed, it is appropriate to relegate a person to exhaust departmental remedies when he approaches the court without exhausting departmental remedies under the Service Rules but to hold that the civil court had no jurisdiction while hearing a second appeal, after the matter has been litigated in civil courts for more than five years was, to say the least, not proper. The learned Single Judge ought to have decided the case on its own merits and not made a short-cut of it. The appellant could not have been non-suited on the ground that he had failed to take recourse to proceedings under the CCS (CCA) Rules, 1965 against the order of dismissal.

6. Again the opinion expressed by the learned Single Judge to the effect:

It is my firm conviction that in the present case, the civil court cannot make a declaration under Section 34 of the Specific Relief Act, 1963 as its jurisdiction has been taken away by the special rules, i.e., the CCS (CCA) Rules, 1965. Under the circumstances, it means a civil court does not have jurisdiction in respect of matters which are entertained and decided by the statutory tribunal in conformity with the powers conferred by the enactment. ” is clearly erroneous and cannot be sustained. Service Rules, neither expressly nor by implication, have taken away the jurisdiction of the civil courts to deal with service matters. The opinion of the learned Single Judge does violence both to the Code of Civil Procedure, the Specific Relief Act and the Service Rules. As a matter of fact it appears to us that the learned Single Judge failed to exercise the jurisdiction vested in him while non-suiting the appellant. It, therefore, appears appropriate to us to allow this appeal, set aside the order of the learned Single Judge and remit the matter to the High Court for a fresh decision of the regular second appeal and the cross-objections on their own merits. The appeal, therefore, succeeds and is allowed. The RSA and cross-objections are remitted to the High Court for fresh disposal on merits in accordance with law. ”

37. This Court in Saurabh Kumar Pandey (supra) was considering a case where the service of an employee of IndusInd Bank Ltd. was terminated, and the employee challenged the termination order by filing writ petition under Article 226 of the Constitution of India. The learned counsel of the Bank had specifically submitted that writ petition against the employer, a private Bank, was not maintainable since the service contract of a private bank employee cannot be enforced in writ jurisdiction. This Court after considering the various precedents of the Apex Court, held as under:-

“6. It is not disputed by the learned counsel for the petitioner that respondent bank is a private sector Bank duly incorporated and having licence under Banking Regulation Act, 1949. Reserve Bank of India is entrusted with the full responsibility for supervising and regulating the banks, including, private banks. Under Section 22 of the Act, 1949, private banks are required to obtain license from RBI to carry out the banking business in India. On specific query, learned counsel for petitioner is unable to show that service conditions of the petitioner is governed under any statutory Rules applicable to the employees of a private bank.

7. The private banks would be amenable to the writ jurisdiction for breach of any of the statutory provision under which it is incorporated or bound to be governed, but the services of the employee of a private bank is contractual and governed as per the Rules framed by the Bank/employer. In the instant case, petitioner is governed by Discipline and Appeal Rules, and the Code of Conduct, as applicable on the employees of the Bank.

8. Whether a private company engaged in banking business performs public function, in other words, does banking business as a scheduled bank involve public law element was considered by the Supreme Court in Federal Bank Ltd vs. Sagar Thomas and others (2003)10 SCC 733, the Court held that a private company carrying on banking business as a scheduled bank, cannot be termed as an institution or company carrying on any statutory or public function. A private body or a person may be amenable to writ jurisdiction only where it may become necessary to compel such body or association to enforce any statutory obligations or such obligations of public nature casting positive obligation upon it. The statutory provisions governing a private bank is merely regulatory. To put it differently a company engaged in banking business is not required to perform public function, nor essential governmental function is placed upon it.

14. The private bank, as held in Federal Bank Ltd.(supra) is not imparting public duty. Even if it is assumed that a private bank is imparting public duty, the act complained of must have direct nexus with the discharge of public duty. It is undisputedly a public law action which confers a right upon the aggrieved to invoke extraordinary writ jurisdiction under Article 226 for a prerogative writ. Individual wrongs or breach of mutual contracts without having any public element as its integral part cannot be rectified through petition under Article 226. Wherever Courts have intervened in exercise of jurisdiction under Article 226, either the service conditions were regulated by statutory provisions or the employer had the status of 'State' within the expansive definition under Article 12 or it was found that the action complained of has public law element.

15. On specific query, learned counsel for the petitioner does not dispute that the conditions of service governing the petitioner are not statutory. The terms and conditions of employment are purely contractual governed under rules framed by the Bank.

16. In view thereof, the preliminary objection raised by learned counsel for the respondent that the writ petition against the impugned termination order would not lie within the domain of writ jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution of India is sustained and upheld."

38. The Apex Court in the case of Dhruv Green Field Ltd. (supra) was considering the jurisdiction of the civil courts and when it can be barred. It was held as under:-

8. The jurisdiction of the courts to try all suits of civil nature is very expansive as is evident from the plain language of Section 9 of the Code of Civil Procedure. This is because of the principle ubi jus ibi remedium. It is only where cognizance of a specified type of suit is barred by a statute either expressly or impliedly that the jurisdiction of the civil court would be ousted to entertain such a suit. The general principle is that a statute excluding the jurisdiction of civil courts should be construed strictly.

9. The question, when and in what circumstances, can a suit of civil nature be said to be barred by a special statute, is no longer res integra. In Kamala Mills Ltd. v. State of Bombay [AIR 1965 SC 1942] a seven-Judge Bench of this Court laid down the principle thus:

"The question about the exclusion of the jurisdiction of civil courts either expressly or by necessary implication must be considered, in every case, in the light of the words used in the statutory provision on which the plea is rested, the scheme of the relevant provisions, their object and their purpose.

Whenever a plea is raised before a civil court that its jurisdiction is excluded either expressly or by necessary implication to entertain claims of a civil nature, the court naturally feels inclined to consider whether the remedy afforded by an alternative provision prescribed by a special statute is sufficient or adequate. Where the exclusion of the civil court's jurisdiction is expressly provided for, the consideration as to the scheme of the statute in question and the adequacy or the sufficiency of remedies provided for by it may be relevant, it cannot, however, be decisive.

But when exclusion is pleaded as a matter of necessary implication, such considerations would be very important, and, in conceivable circumstances, might even become decisive. If a statute creates a special right or a liability and provides for the determination of the right and liability to be dealt with by tribunals specially constituted in that behalf, and it further lays down that all questions about the said right and liability shall be determined by the tribunals so constituted, it is pertinent to enquire whether remedies normally associated with actions in civil courts are prescribed by the said statute or not."

That judgment was followed in Ram Swarup v. Shikar Chand [AIR 1966 SC 893 : (1966) 2 SCR 553 (sub nom Lala Ram Swarup v. Shikar Chand)]. There Gajendragadkar, C.J. speaking for a Constitution Bench of this Court formulated the following tests:

"The two tests, which are often considered relevant in dealing with the question about the exclusion of civil courts' jurisdiction are (a) whether the special statute which excludes such jurisdiction has used clear and unambiguous words indicating that intention; and (b) does that statute provide for an adequate and satisfactory alternative remedy to a party that may be aggrieved by the relevant order under its material provisions. Applying these tests the inference is inescapable that the jurisdiction of the civil courts is intended to be excluded.

The bar excluding the jurisdiction of civil courts cannot operate in cases where the plea raised before the civil court goes to the root of the matter and would, if upheld, lead to the conclusion that the impugned order is a nullity."

10. In the light of the above discussion, the following principles may be restated:

(1) If there is express provision in any special Act barring the jurisdiction of a civil court to deal with matters specified thereunder the jurisdiction of an ordinary civil court shall stand excluded.

(2) If there is no express provision in the Act but an examination of the provisions contained therein leads to a conclusion in regard to exclusion of jurisdiction of a civil court, the court would then inquire whether any adequate and efficacious alternative remedy is provided under the Act; if the answer is in the affirmative, it can safely be concluded that the jurisdiction of the civil court is barred. If, however, no such adequate and effective alternative remedy is provided then exclusion of the jurisdiction of the civil court cannot be inferred.

(3) Even in cases where the jurisdiction of a civil court is barred expressly or impliedly, the court would nonetheless retain its jurisdiction to entertain and adjudicate the suit provided the order complained of is a nullity."

39. The Apex Court in the case of Sitaram Kashiram Konda (supra) was considering a case where the plaintiff instituted a suit against employer claiming various reliefs, including a declaration that he had been removed from service illegally, asking for reinstatement and in the alternative compensation. The trial court dismissed the suit, holding that it had no jurisdiction to try as the dispute was in the nature of an industrial dispute. The 1st Appellate Court allowed the plaintiff's appeal, holding that the dispute raised was of a civil nature. In the 2nd appeal filed by the defendant employer the High Court upheld the view of the trial court and held that the plaintiff had not claimed damages by pleading wrongful dismissal in breach of contract of service. The plaintiff appealed to the Supreme Court by certificate. Allowing the appeal and remanding the matter to the trial court for decision in the light of the Courts judgment, it was held:-

“3. The Court is obliged to Mr K. Jayaram for assisting it as amicus curiae in this case. After having appreciated the entire facts and the circumstances of the case, we are of the opinion that it is not quite correct to say that the suit filed by the appellant is not maintainable at all in a civil court. The correct position of law is that the main reliefs asked for by him which when granted will amount to specific performance of the contract of service and therefore they cannot be granted. There are a number of decisions of this Court to that effect; to wit - S.B. Dutt (Dr) v. University of Delhi [AIR 1958 SC 1050 : 1959 SCR 1236 : 1959 SCJ 78] ; S.R. Tiwari v. District Board Agra [AIR 1964 SC 1680 : (1964) 3 SCR 55 : (1964) 1 LLJ 1] and Indian Airlines Corporation v. Sukhdeo Rai [(1971) 2 SCC 192 : 1971 SCR (Supp) 510 : AIR 1971 SC 1828 : (1971) 1 LLJ 557] . Reference may also be made in this connection to the decision of this Court in Premier Automobiles Ltd. v. Kamlekar Shantaram Wadke [(1976) 1 SCC 496 : 1976 SCC (L&S) 70 : (1976) 1 SCR 427 : (1975) 2 LLJ 445] .

4. But then in the alternative, the appellant had also prayed for awarding compensation to him. And reading the plaint as a whole, it can legitimately be culled out that he had made out a case, whether it was right on facts or not, that is a different question, that he was wrongfully dismissed from service. This relief could be granted by the civil court if it found that the plaintiff's case was true. The High Court, in our opinion, is not right in saying that no such case had at all been made out in the plaint. In our opinion, as we have earlier said, reading the plaint as a whole, such case can be spelt out. That being so to this limited extent, the matter could be examined by the civil court. ”

40. The Apex Court in the case of S.N.Goyal (supra) was considering a case where the respondent employee of the Bank was dismissed from the service of the Bank after holding disciplinary enquiry under the State Bank of India Officers Service Rules, which was challenged by the employee by filing civil suit. It was held as under :-

“17. Where the relationship of master and servant is purely contractual, it is well settled that a contract of personal service is not specifically enforceable, having regard to the bar contained in Section 14 of the Specific Relief Act, 1963. Even if the termination of the contract of employment (by dismissal or otherwise) is found to be illegal or in breach, the remedy of the employee is only to seek damages and not specific performance. Courts will neither declare such termination to be a nullity nor declare that the contract of employment subsists nor grant the consequential relief of reinstatement. The three well-recognised exceptions to this rule are:

(i) where a civil servant is removed from service in contravention of the provisions of Article 311 of the Constitution of India (or any law made under Article 309);

(ii) where a workman having the protection of the Industrial Disputes Act, 1947 is wrongly terminated from service; and

(iii) where an employee of a statutory body is terminated from service in breach or violation of any mandatory provision of a statute or statutory rules.

There is thus a clear distinction between public employment governed by statutory rules and private employment governed purely by contract. The test for deciding the nature of relief-damages or reinstatement with consequential reliefs-is whether the employment is governed purely by contract or by a statute or statutory rules. Even where the employer is a statutory body, where the relationship is purely governed by contract with no element of statutory governance, the contract of personal service will not be specifically enforceable. Conversely, where the employer is a non-statutory body, but the employment is governed by a statute or statutory rules, a declaration that the termination is null and void and that the employee should be reinstated can be granted by courts. (Vide S.B. Dutt (Dr.) v. University of Delhi [AIR 1958 SC 1050] , U.P. Warehousing Corpn. v. Chandra Kiran Tyagi [(1969) 2 SCC 838 : (1970) 2 SCR 250] , Sirsi Municipality v. Cecelia Kom Francis Tellis [(1973) 1 SCC 409 : 1973 SCC (L&S) 207 : (1973) 3 SCR 348] , Vaish Degree College v. Lakshmi Narain [(1976) 2 SCC 58 : 1976 SCC (L&S) 176 : (1976) 2 SCR 1006] , J. Tiwari v. Jwala Devi Vidya Mandir [(1979) 4 SCC 160 : 1979 SCC (L&S) 356 : AIR 1981 SC 122] and Dipak Kumar Biswas v. Director of Public Instruction [(1987) 2 SCC 252 : (1987) 3 ATC 505 : AIR 1987 SC 1422] .)

18. In this case the appellant is a statutory body established under the State Bank of India Act, 1955 and the contract of employment was governed by the State Bank of India Officers Service Rules, which are statutory rules framed under Section 43(1) of the said Act. The respondent approached the civil court alleging that his removal from service was in violation of the said statutory rules. When an employee of a statutory body whose service is terminated pleads that such termination is in violation of statutory rules governing his employment, an action for declaration that the termination is invalid and that he is deemed to continue in service is maintainable and will not be barred by Section 14 of the Specific Relief Act. ”

41. The Apex Court in the case of Kailash Singh vs. Managing Committee, Mayo College, Ajmer and Others (2018) 18 SCC 216 where in respect of dispute related to termination of an employee of Mayo College, Court held that employment was governed by simple contract of employment and, hence, no relief of reinstatement can be granted, but employee, if wrongfully terminated, may claim damages. It is quoted as under:-

“22. We may refer to Vidya Ram Misra v. Shri Jai Narain College [Vidya Ram Misra v. Shri Jai Narain College, (1972) 1 SCC 623] , where in para 4, it was observed as under: (SCC pp. 624-25)

“4. It is well settled that, when there is a purported termination of a contract of service, a declaration that the contract of service still subsisted would not be made in the absence of special circumstances, because of the principle that courts do not ordinarily enforce specific performance of contracts of service (see U.P. Warehousing Corpn. v. Chandra Kiran Tyagi [U.P. Warehousing Corpn. v. Chandra Kiran Tyagi, (1969) 2 SCC 838] and Indian Airlines Corpn. v. Sukhdeo Rai [Indian Airlines Corpn. v. Sukhdeo Rai, (1971) 2 SCC 192]). If the master rightfully ends the contract, there can be no complaint. If the master wrongfully ends the contract, then the servant can pursue a claim for damages. So even if the master wrongfully dismisses the servant in breach of the contract, the employment is effectively terminated. In Ridge v. Baldwin [Ridge v. Baldwin,

1964 AC 40 : (1963) 2 WLR 935 (HL)] Lord Reid said in his speech: (Ridge case [Ridge v. Baldwin, 1964 AC 40 : (1963) 2 WLR 935 (HL)] , WLR p. 940)

"The law regarding master and servant is not in doubt. There cannot be specific performance of a contract of service and the master can terminate the contract with his servant at any time and for any reason or for none. But if he does so in a manner not warranted by the contract he must pay damages for breach of contract. So the question in a pure case of master and servant does not at all depend on whether the master has heard the servant in his own defence: it depends on whether the facts emerging at the trial prove breach of contract. But this kind of case can resemble dismissal from an office where the body employing the man is under some statutory or other restriction as to the kind of contract which it can make with its servants, or the grounds on which it can dismiss them."

23. The aforesaid view is also adopted by the Constitution Bench in Sirsi Municipality v. Cecelia Kom Francis Tellis [Sirsi Municipality v. Cecelia Kom Francis Tellis, (1973) 1 SCC 409 : 1973 SCC (L&S) 207] . We may usefully extract the observations in the following paras: (SCC p. 413, paras 15-19)

"15. The cases of dismissal of a servant fall under three broad heads. The first head relates to relationship of master and servant governed purely by contract of employment. Any breach of contract in such a case is enforced by a suit for wrongful dismissal and damages. Just as a contract of employment is not capable of specific performance similarly breach of contract of employment is not capable of finding a declaratory judgment of subsistence of employment. A declaration of unlawful termination and restoration to service in such a case of contract of employment would be indirectly an instance of specific performance of contract for personal services. Such a declaration is not permissible under the Law of Specific Relief Act.

16. The second type of cases of master and servant arises under Industrial Law. Under that branch of law a servant who is wrongfully dismissed may be reinstated. This is a special provision under Industrial Law. This relief is a departure from the reliefs available under the Indian Contract Act and the Specific Relief Act which do not provide for reinstatement of a servant.

17. The third category of cases of master and servant arises in regard to the servant in the employment of the State or of other public or local authorities or bodies created under statute.

18. Termination or dismissal of what is described as a pure contract of master and servant is not declared to be a nullity however wrongful or illegal it may be. The reason is that dismissal in breach of contract is remedied by damages. It (sic.) [To be read as "In ".] the case of servant of the State or of local authorities or statutory bodies, courts have declared in appropriate cases the dismissal to be invalid if the dismissal is contrary to rules of natural justice or if the dismissal is in violation of the provisions of the statute. Apart from the intervention of statute there would not be a declaration of nullity in the case of termination or dismissal of a servant of the State or of other local authorities or statutory bodies.

19. The courts keep the State and the public authorities within the limits of their statutory powers. Where a State or a public authority dismisses an employee in violation of the mandatory procedural requirements or on grounds which are not sanctioned or supported by statute the courts may exercise jurisdiction to declare the act of dismissal to be a nullity. Such implication of public employment is thus distinguished from private employment in pure cases of master and servant."

24. The facts of the present case are covered by the master-servant relationship i.e. the first category. There is no adjudication by invocation of a reference to the Industrial Disputes Act, 1947. Thus, the remedy would only be in damages."

Conclusion of this Court

42. From the above law laid down by the Apex Court in the case of Dhruv Green Field Ltd. (supra), Ramendra Kishore Biswas (supra) and this Court in Shivdhesar Singh (supra) it is apparent that there should be express provision in any Act barring the jurisdiction of the civil court and even if there is an express bar in any Act, but no adequate and efficacious remedy is provided, then exclusion of the jurisdiction of civil court cannot be inferred. From the law laid down by this Court in the case of Saurabh Kumar Pandey (supra) it is evident that where the terms and conditions of service governing the petitioner are not statutory, but are purely contractual governed under the Rules framed by a private Bank, the employee of the Bank cannot challenge his termination by filing Writ Petition under Article 226 of the Constitution of India.

43. From the law laid down by the Apex Court in the case of Sitaram Kashiram Konda (supra), S.N. Goyal (supra) and Kailash Singh (supra) it is evident that when the service conditions of the employee are not governed by statutory rules and the employer does not fall within the category of 'State' as defined in Article 12 of the Constitution of India, if an employee is terminated by the employer after conducting disciplinary proceedings, the employee cannot claim the relief of reinstatement. The employee can only show that his termination from service was illegal, against Rules and principles of natural justice, where due procedure as prescribed was not followed, he was not provided with due opportunity of hearing, which has caused him grave prejudice, and if, the contention of the employee is upheld by the Court, that he was wrongfully dismissed from service, in that situation, the Court can only grant him damages for his illegal termination but the Court cannot reinstate him. In such situation, the employee cannot specifically enforce his contract of personal service, which is barred under Section 14 of the Specific Relief Act.

44. It is apparent that the above law is not applicable on a civil servant who is removed from service in contravention of the provisions of Article 311 or any law made under Article 309 of the Constitution of India. Similarly, it is also not applicable where a workman covered under the provisions of Industrial Disputes Act, 1947 and an employee of a statutory body is terminated from service in breach or violation of any mandatory provision of a statute or statutory rules. It is further apparent that even where the employer is a statutory body, but the relationship is purely governed by contract with no element of statutory governance, the contract of personal service will not be specifically enforceable.

45. It is apparent that in the instant case the plaintiff was posted as Branch Manager of the Allahabad Branch of the defendant Bank, then, according to the Bank, due to his lax supervision a fraud of ₹ 41 lakhs was committed by an employee Mrs. Suchitra Prajapati, who was subordinate of the plaintiff, for which he was initially suspended on 30.9.2013, thereafter, as per the Executive Staff Service Rules, 1994 of the Bank and the Code of Conduct applicable on the plaintiff, charges were framed against him and in the disciplinary enquiry he was found guilty and accordingly, he was dismissed from service by defendant No. 2 on 19.5.2014, which was challenged by plaintiff by filing Appeal, as provided under the above Rules of the Bank, which was also dismissed by defendant No. 3 on 08.10.2014, and thereafter, the plaintiff has challenged his above dismissal by filing the instant suit, in which, he has claimed the following reliefs:-

“(A) Pass a decree of declaration to the effect that the Appellate order dated 8.10.2014 passed by defendant no. 3 and order dated 19.5.2014 passed by defendant no. 2 is illegal and is nullity;

(B) Pass a decree of permanent injunction against the defendant no.1 Bank injunctioning the defendant No.1 Bank to terminate the plaintiff;

(C)Pass a decree of declaration to the effect that the plaintiff is entitled to his back wages with interest and all employment benefits;

(D)Pass a decree of mandatory injunction directing defendant No. 1 Bank to reinstate the plaintiff forthwith with full back wages and employment benefits;

(E)Award cost of the suit in favour of plaintiff and against the defendants;

(F)Pass any such order as this Hon'ble Court deems fit proper in the facts and circumstances of the present case. ”

46. It is apparent that the defendant Bank, is a private Bank, and the plaintiffs employment was purely contractual, which is apparent from the letter of offer filed by the plaintiff, which was governed by the Executive Staff Service Rules, 1994 of the Bank and the plaintiff was bound by the Code of Conduct applicable on him, which are not statutory. Neither the defendants fall in the definition of 'State' as mentioned in Article 12 of the Constitution of India nor the service conditions of the plaintiff were governed by the statutory rules. It is further apparent that the provisions of Article 309 and 311 of the Constitution of India and the Labour Laws were not applicable on the plaintiff. There is no express provision in any contract or Rule, which bars the remedy of civil suit to the plaintiff. It is apparent that in the above circumstances, the plaintiff could not have challenged his dismissal by filing Writ Petition before the Constitutional Court under Article 226 of the Constitution of India or by filing petition before the Service Tribunals, which was available to the employees of the Central or State Government. It is apparent that the plaintiff could have only approached one judicial forum to redress his grievance, where he could have challenged his alleged illegal dismissal by the Bank, which was the Civil Court.

47. Order 39 Rule 2(2) CPC has been amended in the State of U.P. vide Section 13 of U.P. Act No. 57 of 1976, w.e.f. 1.1.1977, whereby the following proviso has been inserted, which reads as under:-

"Provided that no such injunction shall be granted –

(a) where no perpetual injunction could be granted in view of the provisions of Section 38 and Section 41 of the Specific Relief Act, 1963, (Act 47 of 1963), or

(b) to stay the operation of an order for transfer, suspension, reduction in rank, compulsory retirement, dismissal, removal or otherwise termination of service of, or taking charge from, any employee including any employee of the Government, or

(c) to stay, any disciplinary proceeding pending or intended or, the effect of any adverse entry, against any employee of the Government, or and any order for injunction granted in contravention of these provisions shall be void....."

48. It is apparent from the impugned judgment that the trial court has considered the above Proviso of Order 39 Rule 2(2) CPC and concluded that the relief of declaration and mandatory injunction against the order of termination of service is specifically barred in the State of Uttar Pradesh by the above amending Act, as such, the trial court does not have the jurisdiction to try the suit.

49. In the light of the above discussion, it is true that the civil court cannot grant any relief of permanent and mandatory injunction in this matter but the plaintiff can show that his dismissal by the defendant Bank was wrong and he can also claim damages for his wrongful dismissal from the Bank. It is true that he cannot be reinstated in the service of the defendant Bank and his only remedy is to claim damages from the Bank, for which, the civil court has the jurisdiction. In view of this, the civil court had the jurisdiction for examining the above facts and for awarding the relief of damages, as such, the trial court has erred by concluding that the civil court lacked inherent jurisdiction in this matter.

50. From the perusal of the plaint it is evident that the plaintiff has not claimed damages from the defendants, but has claimed back wages with interest and all consequential employment benefits. From the perusal of the record of the lower court, it is evident that the plaintiff moved an amendment application 37-A under Order VI Rule 17 CPC on 28.7.2022 claiming decree for damages @ ₹ 5,000/- per month from 19.5.2014 till the date of filing of the suit, pendente lite and future till realisation, against which no objection has been filed by the defendants, which remained undisposed by the trial court, till the suit was dismissed on 10.7.2023, which shows the carelessness of the trial court. It is further apparent that under Section 40 of the Specific Relief Act, 1963, the plaintiff can always demand damages in lieu of, or in addition to, injunction and such amendment can be allowed by the Court at any stage of the proceedings.

51. For the aforesaid reasons, the impugned judgment and decree passed by the trial court is erroneous and legally unsustainable, which is liable to be set aside. Consequently, the appeal deserves to be allowed with costs.

52. Accordingly, the appeal is allowed with costs throughout. The impugned judgment and decree dated 10.7.2023 is set aside and consequently, O.S.no.180 of 2015 stands restored on its original number. The finding of trial court on issue no. 5 is set aside and it is held that the trial court has jurisdiction to try the suit.

53. The trial court is directed to decide the suit expeditiously preferably within a period of 6(six) months from the date a certified copy of this order is received by it, without affording unnecessary adjournment to either of the parties, on merits, in accordance with law.

54. It is made clear that this Court has not expressed any opinion as to the legality of the dismissal of the plaintiff by the defendant Bank. The trial court is at liberty to arrive at a just conclusion on the basis of pleadings and evidence on record, in accordance with law.

55. Office is directed to send back the record of the trial court, forthwith.

THE HON'BLE SANDEEP JAIN, J.

First Appeal No. 713 of 2021

Pappu	...Appellant
	Versus
U.P. State Electricity Board	...Respondent

Issues for Consideration

- (i) Whether in a suit claiming compensation for electrocution from a high-voltage transformer, the plaintiff is required to prove negligence on the part of the Electricity Board or whether the principle of strict liability governs the claim?
- (ii) Whether the plea of contributory negligence could be raised against a seven-year-old child who sustained permanent disability after coming into contact with an unfenced transformer installed adjacent to a primary school?
- (iii) Whether the suit was barred for want of notice under Section 33 of the Indian Electricity Act, 1910?
- (iv) Whether the Trial Court was justified in dismissing the suit for compensation and, if not, what would be the just and reasonable compensation payable to the plaintiff?

Headnotes

Electricity—Electrocution—High-voltage transformer—Compensation—Strict liability—Negligence not required to be proved.

HELD: In cases where death or bodily injury results from electrocution caused by high-tension electrical infrastructure belonging to the Electricity Board, the rule of strict liability governs the claim. The claimant is only required to establish that the injury was caused by electrocution from the defendant's electrical installation. Proof of negligence is unnecessary. The liability arises because transmission and distribution of high-voltage electricity constitute an inherently hazardous activity imposing a non-delegable duty upon the supplier to ensure public safety. [Paras 43 to 49]

Electricity—Transformer installed adjacent to primary school—Transformer not protected by fencing or barricading—Failure of Electricity Board to adduce evidence regarding compliance with safety regulations—Adverse inference.

HELD: The plaintiff consistently pleaded and proved that the 11 KV transformer had been installed barely three feet from the primary school building without fencing, barricading or protective enclosure. Although the Electricity Board pleaded that the transformer had been installed in accordance with applicable rules, it neither produced the relevant regulations nor examined any official to establish compliance therewith. In the absence of any documentary or oral evidence from the defendant, an adverse inference under Section 114 illustration (g) of the Evidence Act was liable to be drawn that the defence was false. [Paras 50 to 56]

Evidence—Adverse inference—Party withholding evidence—Failure to enter witness box.

HELD: Where the Electricity Board neither examined any responsible officer nor produced evidence to substantiate its pleaded defence, despite the burden resting upon it to prove compliance with statutory safety requirements, the Court was justified in drawing an adverse presumption against the defendant under Section 114(g) of the Evidence Act. [Paras 53 to 55]

Electricity—Electrocution—Child aged seven years—Contributory negligence—Plea not available.

HELD: The plaintiff was merely seven years old when he accidentally came into contact with the unfenced transformer while playing outside the primary school. A child of such tender age cannot reasonably be expected to appreciate the danger posed by a high-voltage transformer. The plea that the accident occurred due to the plaintiff's own negligence was therefore untenable. In the absence of evidence that the transformer was fenced or otherwise secured, no contributory negligence could be attributed to the child. [Paras 57 to 63]

Indian Electricity Act, 1910—S. 33—Notice of accident—Nature of provision—Suit for compensation.

HELD: Section 33 of the Indian Electricity Act, 1910 merely requires notice of an accident to be given to the Electrical Inspector and other prescribed authorities. The provision does not create any statutory bar to the institution of a civil suit for compensation in the event of non-compliance. The Trial Court therefore erred in holding that the suit was not maintainable for want of notice under Section 33. [Paras 64 and 65]

Civil Suit—Compensation—Electrocution—Erroneous appreciation of evidence by Trial Court.

HELD: The Trial Court committed manifest errors in holding that the accident resulted from the plaintiff's own negligence, in treating delay in lodging the FIR as material despite the accident being admitted by the defendant, and in rejecting documentary evidence on hyper technical grounds. Such findings were contrary to the pleadings, evidence and settled principles governing electrocution cases and rendered the dismissal of the suit legally unsustainable. [Para 66]

Compensation—Permanent disability—Amputation of both upper limbs—Assessment of damages—Principles.

HELD: Compensation in electrocution cases involving permanent disability is to be determined on principles analogous to those governing motor accident claims. Assessment must take into account loss of future earning capacity, functional disability, future prospects, attendant charges, medical expenses, future medical treatment, pain and suffering, loss of amenities, loss of marriage prospects and other consequential losses. [Paras 67 to 79]

Permanent disability—Amputation of both upper limbs—Functional disability—Assessment.

HELD: Since both upper limbs of the plaintiff had been amputated, he had suffered 100% functional disability rendering him incapable of earning his livelihood and wholly dependent upon others throughout his life. Compensation was therefore required to be computed on the basis of minimum wages of a skilled workman with addition towards future prospects and by applying the appropriate multiplier. [Paras 69 to 79]

Compensation—Award.

HELD: The plaintiff was held entitled to compensation of Rs.26,65,000/-, after deducting Rs.1,25,000/- already received, together with pendente lite and future interest at 6% per annum from the date of institution of the indigent proceedings. Directions were also issued for investment of the decretal amount in a fixed deposit for the benefit of the permanently disabled plaintiff, with liberty to seek withdrawal for medical treatment and other special circumstances. [Paras 79 to 82]

Appeal allowed. Judgment and decree of the Trial Court set aside. Suit decreed. (E-14)

Case Arising From

Judgment and order dated 21.07.2025 passed by the District Judge, Firozabad in Misc. Probate Petition No. 2 of 2023, Amit Gupta and Another v. Smt. Kalpana Gupta and Others

Appearance for Parties

For the Appellants: Sri Rishabh Agarwal.

For the Respondents: Sri Abhishek Agarwal and Sri Arvind Agrawal.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Sandeep Jain, J.)

1. The instant appeal has been filed by the plaintiff under Section 96 CPC against the impugned judgment and decree dated 29.10.2005 passed by the Additional District Judge Court No. 7 Agra in O.S. no.171 of 2003 Pappu vs. Uttar Pradesh Electricity Board, whereby the plaintiff 's suit seeking compensation for the injuries sustained due to electrocution from the transformer of the defendant on 01.3.1997 has been dismissed on the ground that the incident occurred due to the plaintiffs' own negligence. Appeal is admitted.

Plaint case

2. The plaintiff- appellant Pappu filed O.S.no 171 of 2003 through his guardian and next friend his father Hari Singh, against defendant U.P. State Electricity Board with the averments that he was an innocent, simple but intelligent, healthy, energetic and handsome child aged about 7 years, studying in 2nd class in Kapil Dev Shastri, Jr.High School, Nangla Padi,Agra. The defendant is a statutory body constituted under the provisions of the electricity laws, the basic object of whom is to generate, transmit and supply electricity by installing the electric line, transformers and other instruments.

3. It was further averred that the defendant placed a transformer of 11,000/400 Volts 100 KVA capacity on the open land near the gate of the building of Primary School,Nangla Padi,Agra, which was managed by Nagar Nigam, Agra. It was further averred that the distance between the steps of the school building and the place where the above transformer was installed was not more than 3 feet, the transformer was placed in open without any fencing, barricading or any other means to protect it. It was further averred that under law such transformer must be efficiently protected by fencing not less than 1.8 m in height or other means so as to prevent access to the electric line and apparatus therein. It was further averred that the officials of the defendant never erected any such protection around the transformer as was required by law.

4. It was further averred that the residents of the locality several times requested the officials of the defendant to protect such transformer as per law by fencing or otherwise so that any untoward accident may not be caused but no heed was paid to it.

5. It is the specific case of the plaintiff that on 01.3.1997 at about 5 PM when he was playing with other children near the above school building, then he had an accidental contact with the 11 KV side of the transformer, which was unprotected and unsecure, there was a heavy flash and both his hands and arms were badly burnt due to electrocution. Some neighbours on seeing the incident rushed to the spot and removed the plaintiff from the said transformer and got him admitted to S.N. Medical College Hospital, Agra, where a major operation was done on 14.3.1997 in which both the hands and arms of the plaintiff were amputated. He was again operated on 28.4.1997 and 7.5.1997. It was further averred that the plaintiff remained in the hospital from 01.3.1997 to 19.3.1997 and again from 03.4.1997 to 12.5.1997 and he was still in the treatment of Dr.Rahul Sahai. It was further averred that an FIR regarding the accident was lodged at police station New Agra, District Agra.

6. It is the specific case of the plaintiff that the said accident was caused by the serious and unimaginary negligence committed by the officials of the defendant. It was further averred that the plaintiff has lost both his hands, as such his life has become miserable since he is totally dependent on others, he cannot take food, cannot wear his clothes, cannot wash or brush his teeth and cannot perform his daily morning rituals. He cannot play with toys, he can only watch them helplessly. It was further averred that the plaintiff is not in a position to earn his livelihood throughout his life, his father was also an ailing person, who was unemployed.

7. The plaintiff claimed compensation for loss of earning @ ₹ 4,000/-per month up to the age of 70 years amounting to ₹ 30.24 lakhs, salary of one attendant for 24 hours a day @ ₹ 3,000/- per month amounting to ₹ 22.68 lakhs, expenses incurred in treatment of ₹ 50,000/-, compensation for mental torture, agony to him and his family amounting to ₹ 5 lakhs, loss of earning of his mother and brother amounting to ₹ 5,000/-. In this way, the plaintiff claimed compensation of ₹ 58.47 lakhs for the injuries suffered by him due to electrocution from the transformer of the defendant, which was still lying open, unprotected and unsecured after the accident.

8. The plaintiff initially sought permission to file the suit as an indigent person by filing miscellaneous application on 30.5.1997, which was allowed by the trial court on 21.2.2003 with the finding that plaintiff was only 10 years old, whose both hands are amputated, whose father has died, whose mother is a labourer and the plaintiff has 3 other siblings. During the pendency of the indigent proceedings the plaintiffs father Hari Singh died on 23.5.1998, and the mother of the plaintiff Smt. Shanti Devi became the guardian and next friend of the plaintiff. Thereafter, the suit was registered as O.S.no.171 of 2003.

9. In the above backdrop, the plaintiff has claimed with following reliefs:-

(A) That a decree of ₹ 58.47 lakhs along with interest @ 2% per month future and pendente lite from the date of accident till the date of realisation be decreed in favour of the plaintiff against the defendant.

(B) That the cost of the suit be also awarded in favour of plaintiff against the defendant.

(C) That any other relief which the Hon'ble Court may deem just and proper in the circumstances of the case be also awarded in favour of the plaintiff against the defendant.

Written Statement of the defendant

10. The defendant in his written statement evasively denied the plaint averments. It was averred that the transformer was installed as per rule and regulation of the Board. It was specifically denied that the officials of the defendant never made any such protection as required under law. It was also specifically denied that the residents of the locality ever requested the defendant to protect the transformer. It was admitted that an incident took place on 1.3.1997 due to the own negligence of the plaintiff in which the plaintiff was electrocuted. It was averred that there was no negligence on the part of the defendant in the alleged accident, which occurred due to the own negligence and fault of the plaintiff as such, the defendant cannot be blamed for the laches on plaintiffs part and the defendant was not liable to pay any damages as claimed by the plaintiff. It was also averred that the plaintiffs claim was highly inflated, excessive and unreasonable, the plaintiff has got no cause of action to file the suit against the defendant.

11. It was further averred that plaintiff filed complaint no.9484/24/97-98 before the National Human Rights Commission, New Delhi who vide its order dated 20.5.1999 directed the defendant to pay ₹ 1 lakh in addition to a sum of ₹ 20,000/- and ₹ 5,000/- already paid to the plaintiff and in compliance of the above order, the defendant paid ₹ 1 lakh on 4.7.2000, on which the plaintiff was getting monthly interest. It was further averred that the defendant as a matter of courtesy and on humanitarian ground has paid an amount of ₹ 1.25 lakhs to the plaintiff as a consolation compensation which has been acknowledged by him.

12. It was further averred that the plaintiff had knowledge of the existing danger and he could have reasonably avoided such danger or the alleged negligence of the defendant. The plaintiff was under legal duty to take care of his own safety which he did not and consequently, he was the author of his own wrong, who was injured by his own carelessness, who had voluntarily undertaken the risk for own negligence of not taking precaution against the known risk and the defendant was not liable for the alleged incident and consequently, was under no legal obligation to pay the alleged compensation to the plaintiff. The suit was barred by Section 33 of the Indian Electricity Act. The suit was misconceived and liable to be dismissed with costs.

Documentary evidence of the plaintiff

13. Original discharge slip issued by S.N. Medical College Hospital, Agra; injury report of plaintiff dated 01.3.1997; certificate issued by the Ortho Surgeon, District Hospital Agra dated 11.9.1997; copy of application given by the plaintiffs father to police station New Agra, Agra on 14.3.1997 and 5.5.1997, copy of application dated 12.3.1997 written by Nathan Singh Kushwah PW-3 to Executive Engineer Electricity Department, Agra; prescriptions of Jaidevi Nursing Centre, Agra and cashmemos of medicines purchased by the plaintiff.

14. The plaintiff was examined by Dr. A.K. Singh at the Emergency Department of S.N. Medical College and Hospital, Agra on 01.3.1997 at 7:15 PM, where the following injuries were found on his body :-

"Superficial to deep burn over right upper extremity, some part of left arm upper one-third and left forearm with hand, some part of left big toe, burn.....KUO. Patient admitted. Police informed."

Opinion:-injury caused by electric burn KUO, duration fresh. "

15. According to the discharge slip filed by the plaintiff he remained admitted in S.N. Medical College and Hospital, Agra from 01.3.1997 till 19.3.1997 and again from 03.4.1997 till 12.5.1997 for surgical treatment under Dr.Rahul Sahai, the summary of which reads as under:-

"Patient was admitted as a case of electric burn, amputation was done of both upper limbs, the right upper limb was amputated above elbow, while the left upper limb was amputated below the elbow. There was no post operation complications. Patient discharged with advice of medical treatment."

16. The plaintiff has also filed the certificate issued by Dr.A.K.Ambesh,Ortho Surgeon, District Hospital Agra dated 11.9.1997 according to which the plaintiff is permanently disabled due to below shoulder amputation of both upper extremity.

17. No documentary and oral evidence was adduced by the defendant.

Issues framed by the trial court

18. On the basis of the pleadings of the parties, the following issues were framed by the trial court:-

- (i) Whether the accident occurred on 1.3.1997 due to fault of the electricity department since the transformer was kept open, as a result of which the plaintiff sustained injuries ?*
- (ii) Whether the plaintiff is entitled to any compensation from the department ?*
- (iii) Whether the suit is barred by Section 33 of the Indian Electricity Act ?*

Oral evidence of the plaintiff

19. The plaintiff examined his mother Smt. Shanti Devi as PW-1, Omprakash as PW-2 and Nathan Singh Kushwaha as PW-3.

20. Smt. Shanti Devi PW-1 deposed in her examination-in-chief that the plaintiff is her son who was residing with her. Defendant had established the transformer of 11,000/400 Volts and 100 KVA capacity in open place near the gate of Primary School, Nangla Padi, Agra which was managed by Nagar Nigam. There was hardly a distance of 3 feet between the transformer and the school building and the transformer was installed in an open place, without any fencing and barricading in order to save people. The employees of the defendant never took any steps for the safety of transformer. The local residents complained many times to the employees of the defendant for erecting fencing around the transformer so that the life of the people was not endangered but malafidely they did not pay any heed.

21. She further deposed that on 01.3.1997 at about 5 PM the plaintiff along with other children of the above primary school, were playing near the school building, then while playing the plaintiff came in contact of the above transformer, which was kept on the ground without any fencing. As soon as the plaintiff came in contact with the transformer, a flash was generated in which both hands of the plaintiff were badly burnt due to electrocution, some neighbours rushed to the spot who removed the plaintiff from the transformer and got admitted him to S.N. Medical College. She further deposed that a FIR was registered regarding the accident at police station New Agra, Agra by plaintiffs father Hari Singh.

22. She further deposed that since both the hands of the plaintiff were badly burnt, the doctors in order to save his life, amputated them in an operation on 14.3.1997. Since some other medical problems remained, the plaintiff was again operated in the above Hospital on 28.4.1997 and 7.5.1997, for which the plaintiff remained admitted in the above Hospital from 1.3.1997 to 19.3.1997 and 3.4.1997 to 12.5.1997, and thereafter, the plaintiff was under treatment of Dr. Rahul Sahai.

23. She further deposed that the above accident occurred solely due to the negligence of the defendant and its employees. Without both hands, the life of the plaintiff has become miserable, who cannot - eat, wear clothes, perform daily rituals, play with toys. The plaintiff requires the assistance of an attendant throughout his life. The plaintiff belongs to a poor family, whose father has died due to poverty and illness. Since both hands of the plaintiff have been amputated, he is not in a condition to earn his livelihood. She has demanded a compensation of ₹ 58.47 lakhs under different heads. She further deposed that even after the accident, the transformer is still lying in the open.

24. PW-1 in cross-examination deposed that the school in which the plaintiff studied was at a distance of about one kilometre from her house. She admitted that the information of the accident was given to her by neighbouring children. She disclosed that the accident occurred from the transformer which was kept on the road outside the school. She further disclosed that on getting information, she straightaway went to the emergency of the S.N. Medical College where the plaintiff was admitted. She further deposed that the plaintiff remained admitted in the above Hospital for about 4 months during which his both hands were amputated.

25. She further deposed that at the time of the accident the plaintiff was studying in class II of Kapil Dev school, after the accident the studies of plaintiff abruptly ended, who thereafter, remained at the house. She admitted that she has seen the place of accident, where the transformer was kept in open, on the ground, which was not surrounded by any fencing, which was at the same place since 2 years prior to the accident, and regarding this, the local residents had complained even prior to the accident.

26. She denied the suggestion that the accident occurred due to the sole negligence of her son. She disclosed that her 3 other sons were elder than the plaintiff who were doing private job and marriage of one son has been solemnised. She admitted that she had earlier complained to the Human Rights Commission which granted ₹ 1 lakh compensation which has been deposited by the defendant in plaintiffs name, on which he is earning monthly interest of ₹ 700/-. She also admitted that besides the above amount, the defendant has also paid ₹ 25,000/-.

27. Omprakash PW-2 deposed in his examination-in-chief that he was the eyewitness of the accident that occurred on 1.3.1997, since he used to iron the clothes near the school on a cart. He deposed that the defendant had installed a 11,000/400 Volts, 100 KVA transformer in open near the Primary School, Nangla Padi, Agra which was managed by the Nagar Nigam. There was hardly a distance of 3 feet between the transformer and the school building, the transformer was kept in open, without any fencing and barricading to save people from coming in contact with it. The local residents also complained many times to the employees of the defendant for erecting fencing around the transformer but no heed was paid.

28. He further deposed that on 01.3.1997 at about 5 PM when plaintiff was playing with other children near the above school building then while playing, he came in contact with the above transformer, which was kept on the ground without any fencing, from which electricity lines were going, due to which an electric flash was generated, and due to the flow of electricity, both hands of the plaintiff were badly burnt. He and other nearby people rushed to the spot and pulled the plaintiff from the collar of his shirt, removed him from the transformer, who was taken by his parents to the emergency department of the S.N. Medical College. The badly burnt hands of the plaintiff were amputated by doctors by operation on 19.3.1997. The accident occurred due to the negligence of the employees of the defendant. The life of the plaintiff without hands has become miserable. The plaintiff and his family are very poor, who have got no means of livelihood.

29. PW-2 in cross-examination deposed that his cart on which he used to iron clothes, was at a distance of about 10 - 15 paces from the transformer. He knew the plaintiff prior to the accident. The accident occurred at about 5 PM, the transformer was at a distance of about 3 - 4 feet from the school of Nagarpalika, which used to close in the evening. After the accident, nearby people gathered at the site of accident. He disclosed that the children were playing near the transformer, which was on the road, and a 11 KV line was coming from above to the transformer. He also deposed that no sooner the plaintiff touched the transformer, he got electrocuted and his hands were badly burnt. He also disclosed that a complaint was made by municipal member Nathan Singh. He denied the suggestion that he was not present at the time of the accident and was giving false testimony due to acquaintance with the plaintiff. He further denied the suggestion that the accident occurred due to the negligence of the plaintiff, for which the employees of the defendant cannot be faulted.

30. Nathan Singh Kushwaha PW-3 deposed in his examination-in-chief that the defendant had installed 11,000/400 Volts, 100 KVA transformer in open near the gate of Primary School, Nangla Padi, Agra managed by Nagar Nigam, Agra, which was hardly at a distance of 3 feet from the school building. The transformer was in the open, which was not surrounded by any fencing and barricading, in order to save people from coming in contact with it.

31. He further deposed that in the year 1997 he was the member of the Nagar Nigam from Nangla Padi and he himself and the local residents complained many times to the officials of the defendant for fencing the above transformer, so that the lives of the common people may not be endangered, but negligently the employees of the defendant failed to pay any heed on his application. He further deposed that on getting information of the accident on 1.3.1997 at 6 PM, being the neighbour and municipal member he went to the S.N. Medical College to see the admitted plaintiff, where he saw his badly burnt hands, and nearby, parents and family members of the plaintiff were present who were very distraught. He also deposed that a FIR was also registered with the police regarding the accident, the application of which was scribed by him. He also deposed that in a major operation on 19.3.1997 both hands of the plaintiff were amputated and the accident occurred due to the loss negligence of the defendant and its employees. He further deposed that the plaintiff and his family members were very poor who had no means of livelihood.

32. PW-3 deposed in cross-examination that he was a teacher, whose house was at a distance of about 200 metres from the site of accident. He admitted that he was not present at the time of accident, who came to know about the accident at about 6 PM, when he returned to his house. He reiterated that the distance of the transformer from the boundary of Nagar Nigam's school was about 3 feet. He disclosed that there was no shop on both sides of the transformer, which was in the open place, which was kept on a foundation of bricks, which had been cemented, nearby poles were installed, but there was no fencing. He disclosed that the transformer was installed one - one and half years prior to the accident. He disclosed that on the 14th he got the FIR registered, the application of which was written by him. He also disclosed that as per his knowledge prior to this accident, no such accident occurred. He denied the suggestion that previously he had not complained to the officials of the defendant. He also denied the suggestion that since he was friendly with the plaintiff, was giving false testimony. He also denied the suggestion that as per the rules of the defendant, the transformer was correctly installed.

Reasoning of the trial court

33. The trial court recorded the following reasons in the impugned judgment:-

- (i) Smt. Shanti Devi PW-1 was not an eyewitness of the accident.*
- (ii) Plaintiff has not examined himself as a witness in the court.*
- (iii) From the evidence of eyewitness PW-2 Omprakash it was proved that the plaintiff has himself negligently touched the transformer, in which there was no negligence of the defendant.*
- (iv) Nathan Singh PW-3 is not an eyewitness but he has admitted that the transformer was installed on a foundation of bricks which was cemented, which proved the statement of PW-1 wrong, that transformer was installed on the ground.*
- (v) The plaintiff has filed photo copy of the documents, which were not proved in accordance with law, hence were inadmissible in evidence.*
- (vi) The plaintiff has not given any notice under Section 33 of the Indian Electricity Act, 1910.*
- (vii) The defendant has already paid an amount of ₹ 1 lakh to the plaintiff on account of complaint made to the Human Rights Commission. Besides this, the defendant has also paid an amount of ₹ 25,000/- to the plaintiff.*
- (viii) The accident took place on 01.3.1997, but the application was given with delay at the police station on 14.3.1997, but the explanation of delay was not given.*
- (ix) From the evidence on record it was not proved that the accident occurred due to the negligence and fault of the defendant.*

34. For the aforesaid reasons, the trial court concluded that the plaintiff failed to prove his case, hence no relief could be granted to him and consequently, the plaintiffs suit was dismissed with costs, aggrieved against which, the plaintiff sought leave of this Court to file this Appeal under Section 96 CPC, as an indigent person, which was granted vide order dated 09.9.2021 and consequently, the plaintiff was permitted by this Court, to file appeal as an indigent person.

Submissions of the learned counsel of the parties

35. Learned counsel for the plaintiff appellant submitted that the plaintiff was only 7 years old at the time of the accident, which occurred on 01.3.1997 at about 5 PM, who was studying in class II, who was playing with other children outside the Primary School managed by Nagar Nigam, Agra, when he accidentally came in contact with the 11,000/400 Volts, 100 KVA transformer of the defendant, which was kept in open without being surrounded by any fencing and barricading, which was necessary in order to prevent people from coming in contact with it.

36. Learned counsel further submitted that had the transformer surrounded by proper fencing and barricading, the plaintiff would not have come in contact with it. It was further submitted that the plaintiff was only 7 year old child at the time of accident as such, the plea of negligence cannot be taken against him. It was further submitted that in cases of electrocution from high tension electricity, the principle of negligence is inapplicable. In such cases, the principle of strict liability applies and it was the bounden duty of the defendant to keep its transformer enclosed in a cage, so as to prevent passers by from coming in contact with it.

37. It was further submitted that the defendant has admitted the accident and has also not entered the witness box to deny the accident and offer himself for cross-examination by the plaintiff. Further the defendant has not led any evidence to contradict the plaintiffs case. It was further submitted that the defendant has not produced any rule or regulation to prove that it was not required to take sufficient precaution for ensuring that people may not come in contact with the transformer.

38. It was further submitted that the plaintiff has lost both his hands in the accident, which occurred due to electrocution from the transformer of the defendant, which was kept negligently in open place, without being surrounded by any cage, to prevent plaintiff and other people from accidentally coming in contact with it, as such, the plaintiff is entitled to compensation for the injuries suffered by him in the accident.

39. It was further submitted that the plaintiff has lost both his hands in the accident, which is proved from the oral and documentary evidence on record. The plaintiff is unable to earn his livelihood and he is completely dependent on other persons for his survival, throughout his life. The plaintiff requires one constant attendant to look after him. It was also submitted that in this case the plaintiff is entitled to compensation on the basis that he was a skilled labour at the time of the accident, for the loss of earning due to 100% permanent disability. He also submitted that the plaintiff is also entitled to compensation for loss of future prospects, loss of amenities and enjoyment of life, loss of marriage prospects, expenses incurred on medical treatment, expenses for future medical treatment, compensation for pain and suffering, etc. With these submissions, it was prayed that the appeal be allowed and reasonable compensation be awarded to the plaintiff.

40. Per contra, learned counsel for the defendant respondent submitted that the transformer was not kept on the ground but it was installed on a cemented platform, which was at a considerable height, the plaintiff climbed the above platform, which was not permitted, thereafter, the plaintiff touched the transformer, which was also not permitted. It was submitted that had the plaintiff not climbed the platform on which the transformer was installed and further, not touched the transformer, the accident would not have occurred. It was submitted that the accident occurred only due to the sole negligence of the plaintiff, who touched the transformer. There was no occasion for the plaintiff to touch the transformer. It was submitted that from the evidence of the plaintiff it was proved that the accident occurred only due to the negligence of the plaintiff as such, the trial court has rightly dismissed the suit, which requires no interference from this Court in exercise of its appellate jurisdiction. With these submissions, it was prayed that the appeal is meritless, which is liable to be rejected.

41. I have heard the learned counsel of both the sides, perused the impugned judgment and the record of the trial court.

42. The following issues arise for determination by this Court:-

(i) Whether the plaintiff is required to prove that the defendant was negligent in installing its transformer in the open, which was not surrounded by any fencing or barricading, in order to prevent people from accidentally coming in contact with it ?

(ii) Whether for the injuries suffered in the accident, the plaintiff is entitled to any compensation from the defendant ? If yes , then how much ?

Case law applicable

43. The Apex Court in the case of Parvati Devi and Others vs. Commissioner of Police, Delhi and others (2000) 3 SCC 754, held as under:-

“2. The appellants moved the High Court of Delhi claiming compensation as the husband of Appellant 1 died on account of electrocution while walking on the road. That the death was on account of electric shock is established in view of the CFSL report from Calcutta. But as the appellants could not produce relevant materials indicating the negligence of any particular officer of the authority, the High Court refused to award compensation. It is against this order, the present appeal has been filed. Once it is established that the death occurred on account of electrocution while walking on the road, necessarily the authorities concerned must be held to be negligent, and therefore, in the case in hand, it would be NDMC who would be responsible for the death in question. It is found from the records that the appellant was serving as a machineman in The Statesman and was aged 54 years on the date of death, and the age of retirement is 60 years. Taking these factors into consideration, we direct that the appellants, who are the legal heirs of the deceased, be awarded compensation to the tune of Rs 1,00,000 and NDMC should pay the same within 3 months from today failing which it will carry interest at the rate of 12 %. This should be in total satisfaction of the compensation for the legal heirs of the deceased.”

44. The Apex Court in the case of MP Electricity Board vs. Shail Kumari (2002) 2 SCC 162, while interpreting the principle of strict liability in a case where death was caused due to electrocution, held as under:

“7. It is an admitted fact that the responsibility to supply electric energy in the particular locality was statutorily conferred on the Board. If the energy so transmitted causes injury or death of a human being, who gets unknowingly trapped into it the primary liability to compensate the sufferer is that of the supplier of the electric energy. So long as the voltage of electricity transmitted through the wires is potentially of dangerous dimension the managers of its supply have the added duty to take all safety measures to prevent escape of such energy or to see that the wire snapped would not remain live on the road as users of such road would be under peril. It is no defence on the part of the management of the Board that somebody committed mischief by siphoning such energy to his private property and that the electrocution was from such diverted line. It is the lookout of the managers of the supply system to prevent such pilferage by installing necessary devices. At any rate, if any live wire got snapped and fell on the public road the electric current thereon should automatically have been disrupted. Authorities manning such dangerous commodities have extra duty to chalk out measures to prevent such mishaps.

8. Even assuming that all such measures have been adopted, a person undertaking an activity involving hazardous or risky exposure to human life is liable under law of torts to compensate for the injury suffered by any other person, irrespective of any negligence or carelessness on the part of the managers of such undertakings. The basis of such liability is the foreseeable risk inherent in the very nature of such activity. The liability case on such person is known, in law, as "strict liability". It differs from the liability which arises on account of the negligence or fault in this way i.e. the concept of negligence comprehends that the foreseeable harm could be avoided by taking reasonable precautions. If the defendant did all that which could be done for avoiding the harm he cannot be held liable when the action is based on any negligence attributed. But such consideration is not relevant in cases of strict liability where the defendant is held liable irrespective of whether he could have avoided the particular harm by taking precautions."

45. The Gujarat High Court in the case of PGVCL and Another vs. Devsinhbhai Arjanbhai Hadiya and Another 2025 SCC Online Guj 4823, held as under:-

"8. Negligence in electrocution cases is often established through the failure of the electricity board or their officers in non-maintaining a high standard care in managing electrical infrastructure. Failure to repair or maintain equipment, resulting in accidents like electrocution, principle of strict liability is often applied because electricity is considered inherently Dangerous activity. Electricity providers have an utmost duty of care to ensure that lines and equipments are safe. This includes proper installation, maintenance and repair of all electrical infrastructure. If there is evidence of failure to meet these duties of care, it tantamounts to negligence on the part of electricity provider. The breach of duty must have directly caused the electrocution. Broken high voltage wires, open or exposed electrical wires, poor maintained poles or other infrastructure, lack of safety measures like warning signs where contact is possible are the instances of failure in taking utmost good care of electrical infrastructure and on proving such failures would invite a liability of compensating the victim or their legal representatives.

9. In Law of Torts, negligence means failure to exercise the standard of care that reasonable person would exercise in a similar situation, which results in harm or injury to another person. To prove negligence important elements such as a duty to the plaintiff, a breach of that duty, causation and damages are to be established. In the present case, the evidence indicates that plaintiffs have succeeded on all four counts and the oral deposition of the appellant is sufficient evidence in holding the appellants liable for compensation."

46. This Court in the case of Yashpal Singh (Minor) vs. State of UP Thru. Princ. Secy.(Electricity) and 5 Others 2017 SCC OnLine ALL 1246, where death was caused due to contact with a live wire on account of the negligence and laxity of the functionaries of the Electricity Department, who failed to maintain the supply lines and take necessary precautions, held as follows:-

"27. The electricity authorities are duty bound to observe precautions/safeguards under the provisions of the Indian Electricity Act and the Rules framed thereunder. Failure of such statutory functions/duties tantamounting to negligence cannot be overcome by alleged statutory obligations on the part of the consumer of the electricity. Electrocution by live wires necessitates strict liability and differs from liability arising on account of negligence and is not relevant in cases of strict liability. The electricity department is liable irrespective of the fact whether the harm could have been avoided by the consumer or injured by taking precautions."

47. The High Court of Rajasthan in the case of Ajmer Vidhyut Vitran Nigam Ltd. Vidyut Bhawan, Jyoti Nagar, Jaipur and Others vs. Sohani Jat and Others 2022 SCC OnLine Raj 2265, held as under:-

“13. From the factual matrix of this case negligence on the part of defendants by non maintaining High Voltage Electricity Line of 11,000 KV at the appropriate height is clear. At the site wires of High Voltage Electricity Line of 11,000 KV were loose and wire broken due to which heavy electricity passed in the pump-set of deceased and he was electrocuted. Once it is established that wire of High Voltage Electricity Line of 11,000 KV was broken due to which deceased got electrocuted, the principle of strict liability and vicarious liability comes in play. The defendants would be strictly and vicariously liable to compensate persons affected by accidents without being any fault of their and due to negligence on the part of department.”

48. This Court in the case of Smt. Sunita Tiwari vs. State of UP and others Neutral Citation No.2010:AHC:83628, while interpreting electricity as “hazardous substance” irrespective of its proportion under the Public Liability Insurance Act, 1991, where rule of strict liability is applicable, held as under:-

“This Court in the case of U.P. State Electricity Board vs. District Magistrate, Dehradun, 1997 UPLBEC (2) 1344, has already considered the issue that electricity falls within the definition of “hazardous substance” and the accident, caused on account of it, is covered under the provisions of the Public Liability Insurance Act, 1991. Relevant extract of the judgment, as contained in paragraphs 42 to 44, is being quoted below:

“42. Hence in my opinion ‘hazardous substance’ as defined in Section 2 (d) of the 1991 Act is not to be confined to a substance specified in the notification issued by the Central Government, but it includes all substances which come under the definition of ‘hazardous substance’ under the Environment (Protection) Act, 1986, with this exception that if any such substance is also notified by the Central Government under Section 2 (d) of the 1991 Act then it will be a ‘hazardous substance’ only if it exceeds the quantity specified in the said notification. Thus the notification issued by the Central Government under Section 2 (d) of the 1991 Act can only narrow down the scope of ‘hazardous substance’ as defined under the Environment (Protection) Act, 1986, but substances which are not specified in the said notification will nevertheless be regarded as ‘hazardous substances’ under the 1991 Act if they come within the definition of ‘hazardous substances’ under the Environment (Protection) Act, 1986.

43. I have already stated above that electricity is “hazardous substance” as defined under the Environment (Protection) Act, 1986 and hence I reject the submission of the learned counsel for the petitioners that it is not a hazardous substance since it has not been included in the Notification dated 24-3-1992.

44. THE principle of strict Liability Section 3 (2) of the 1991 Act places a strict liability (liability without fault) in cases of such accident due to ‘hazardous substances’ and it is not necessary for the claimant to plead that the death or injury was caused by wrong or negligent act of any person.....”

49. It is apparent from the law laid down by the Apex Court in Parvati Devi (supra) and Shail Kumari (supra) and High Courts in other cases, that in cases of electrocution by broken electricity line or any electrical infrastructure/equipment connected to it, the principle of strict liability is applicable and for obtaining compensation in such cases, the plaintiff is not supposed to prove that the Electricity Board or Power Corporation was negligent in maintaining the high tension electricity line, which snapped due to the fault of the Board/Corporation or the Board/Corporation was negligent in maintaining its electrical infrastructure/equipment. It is well settled that in cases of strict liability, the negligence of the defendant or its servants/employees is not to be proved. The plaintiff is only required to prove that he died or suffered injuries due to electrocution from the high tension electricity line or the electrical infrastructure/equipment of the defendant. Of course, this principle will not apply where any person dies or is injured due to electrocution while committing theft of electricity or of electrical infrastructure/ equipment such as distribution transformer, the oil of the transformer, copper or aluminium electrical wire, electrical poles, etc. This principle will also not apply where a person enters a restricted place where the electricity is being generated, transmitted, distributed such as electric substation, which is duly barricaded, fenced, walled, having gates for restricting the entry, which are locked, a display board is installed with a warning that it is a dangerous and prohibited zone, where public entry is banned. This principle is also not applicable where the person suffers injury while committing theft of the high tension electricity line of the Railways or any infrastructure/equipment connected with it.

Conclusion of this Court

50. It is the case of the plaintiff that at the time of the accident on 1.3.1997, he was only 7 years old, was studying in class II and was playing with other children outside the Primary School, Nangla Padi, Agra which was managed by Nagar Nigam Agra, then at 5 PM, he accidentally came in contact with the 11,000/400 Volts, 100 KVA electric transformer of the defendant, which was kept hardly at a distance of 3 feet from the steps of the school building, without any fencing or barricading, so as to prevent people from accidentally coming in contact with it. It is the specific case of the plaintiff that the transformer was not having any fencing and barricading, and due to this, while playing, he came in contact with it, got electrocuted, in which his both hands were badly burnt. The defendant in its written statement has specifically admitted the above incident, that the plaintiff was indeed electrocuted on 1.3.1997, but it is the case of the defendant that the incident occurred due to the own negligence on the part of the plaintiff, in which there was no negligence of the defendant. In view of the above admission of the defendant, it was proved that indeed the plaintiff was electrocuted from the above electric transformer of the defendant.

51. The plaintiff in his plaint specifically averred that the transformer of the defendant must have been protected by fencing of at least 1.8 metre height or other means so as to prevent access to the electric line and apparatus therein, but the defendant never made any such protection as required under law. The defendant in its written statement countered it by saying that the transformer was installed as per rule and regulation of the Board. It was also denied that the officials of the defendant never made any such protection as required under law.

52. It is apparent that once having pleaded that the transformer was installed as per rules and regulation of the defendant, it was the bounden duty of the defendant to prove that it was indeed so.

The defendant has not brought to the notice of the Court what were the relevant rules and regulation, which were to be complied while installing the transformer in the open place, outside the primary school and further, it had indeed complied with them.

53. The Apex Court in the case of Iswar Bhai C.Patel vs. Harihar Behera (1999) 3 SCC 457 has observed as under :-

"17..... Having not entered into the witness box and having not presented himself for cross-examination, an adverse presumption has to be drawn against him on the basis of the principles contained in Illustration (g) of Section 114 of the Evidence Act, 1872."

54. The Apex Court in the case of Vidyadhar vs. Manikrao and Anr. (1999) 3 SCC 573 has again reiterated that where a party to the suit does not appear in the witness box and states his own case on oath and does not offer himself to be cross-examined by the other side, a presumption would arise that the case set up by him is not correct.

55. It is apparent that the defendant has neither adduced any documentary nor any oral evidence in order to prove the averments of its written statement, as such, the contention of the defendant remains unproved. No official of the defendant has entered in the witness box to prove the case of defendant on oath, as pleaded in the written statement and offer himself for cross-examination by the plaintiff. In view of the above, an adverse presumption has to be drawn against the defendant, on the basis of principles contained in Section 114(g) of the Evidence Act, 1872, that the case set up by the defendant that it installed the transformer as per the applicable rules and regulations of the Board and had also undertaken requisite safety measures to prevent anyone from accidentally coming in contact with it, is false.

56. From the evidence on record it is proved that the transformer of the defendant was kept just outside the Primary School, on the road, which was unprotected and unsecured, which was not fenced, barricaded or caged. From the evidence of PW-3 it was proved that the transformer was kept on the roadside (kharanja) on foundation of bricks, which was cemented, electrical poles were installed adjoining the transformer, but it was not fenced.

57. Learned counsel for the defendant respondent has submitted that the transformer was kept on a high cemented platform, on which the plaintiff climbed and thereafter, touched the transformer, due to which he was electrocuted. It was submitted that had the plaintiff not climbed the cemented platform on which the transformer was installed and not touched the transformer, then this incident would not have occurred, and for this incident, the plaintiff is solely responsible. It was also submitted that the plaintiff was well aware of the danger from the transformer, which he deliberately ignored, for which the defendant cannot be faulted in any manner whatsoever.

58. The Punjab and Haryana High Court in the case of Anshu vs. State of Haryana and Others in CWP No.17880 of 2023 decided on 16.03.2026, where due to the negligence of Dakshin Haryana Bijli Vitran Nigam Ltd. in maintaining a high-tension electric wire at a safe distance from a balcony, the claimant, aged 6 years, suffered serious permanent disability due to the amputation of her right arm, held as under:-

“12.1 Further, with regard to the liability to pay compensation by the tortfeasor, in the case of a gravely injured child, the concept of contributory negligence cannot be made applicable. There can be no denying that a child functions according to his own reasoning and intelligence. As noticed hereinabove, there is no material brought on record to show that the petitioner was at any fault. Even with regard to the allegation qua the father of the petitioner having extended the balcony, in the absence of any material available on record and the factum that the respondent Nigam has accepted its negligence and liability, the petitioner cannot be held liable for contributory negligence. Even otherwise, the manner in which the accident had occurred, it was for the Nigam to establish contrary to the inquiry report that there was no negligence on its part. Since the HT line carrying high voltage electricity was passing at a very close distance from the petitioner’s house, no contributing negligence can be attributed to a girl aged about 6 years. A Division Bench of the Madhya Pradesh High Court in M.P. State Road Transport Corporation and others vs. Abdul Rahaman and others, reported in AIR 1997 MP 248, held as under:

“11. From the aforesaid discussion relating to contributory negligence on the part of a child of tender age there is no doubt that the concept of contributory negligence cannot be made applicable to a child. A child functions according to his own reasoning and his intelligence. Logicity and rationality are not expected from a child as a child of tender age has no continuous thinking process and is governed by his impulse, instinct and innocence. Can one ever conceive that a child, if would have been aware of the peril, would ever commit an act which is dangerous or hazardous for him? The answer has to be a categorical 'No', because a child's action is childlike and really innocent. Possibly for that reason, it has been said :--

"The Maker of the Stars and Sea, become a Child earth for me?"

A child remains a child in spite of all training and directions and if anything sparkles it is the glory of his innocence which makes him indifferent to the risks which an adult apprehends and pays attention. In view of our aforesaid analysis, we conclude and hold that Riyaz, the child of four, was not liable for contributory negligence.

24. Insofar as the disability in the present case is concerned, the petitioner’s right arm having been amputated from the shoulder, she would require an advance prosthetic arm, which would enable her to attend to her daily activity and carry on with life. It is also to be taken note that the petitioner would require servicing and replacement of the accessories of the prosthetic limb periodically. In the absence of evidence regarding the quantum of expenditure in that regard, this Court is inclined to conservatively accept the amount awarded by the Hon’ble Supreme Court of India in Civil Appeal No.12098-12099 of 2024 decided on 04.09.2025 titled as Anoop Maheshwari vs. Oriental Insurance Company Ltd. and others, reported in 2025 SCC OnLine SC 1918. In the said case, in the absence of any evidence regarding the frequency of change or the servicing of the prosthetic limb or the quantum of expenditure, their Lordships of the Apex Court were of the opinion that an amount of Rs.10 lakh would suffice to account for the future expenses of continued use of the prosthetic limb and medical expenses arising in that regard. The said amount is also required to be awarded to the petitioner in the present case. ”

59. It is true that PW-3 has disclosed in his cross-examination that the transformer was installed on the cemented platform of bricks, which was by the roadside, but he has specifically said that there was no fencing surrounding the transformer or the platform. No suggestion has been given to this witness in the cross-examination that indeed the transformer was surrounded by fencing, barricading or it was caged. Besides this, the defendant could have proved the above fact by adducing evidence, but no such evidence was led by the defendant before the trial court. It is further apparent that no such suggestion was given to eyewitness Omprakash PW-2 that the plaintiff climbed on the cemented platform and then touched the transformer deliberately. No question was put to PW-2 in order to ascertain the height of the cemented platform on which the transformer was installed. No such suggestion was put to PW-2 that the transformer was fenced, barricaded or caged and the plaintiff crossed that barrier and then, touched the transformer.

60. There is no evidence on record to prove that transformer was indeed surrounded by any fencing, barricading or it was caged so as to prevent anyone from accidentally coming in contact with it. It is apparent that in such circumstances, the plaintiff while playing near the transformer has accidentally touched it, and consequently, has suffered electrocution from high tension electric supply of 11KV, the fact of electrocution has been admitted by the defendant. It is also not proved from evidence on record that the plaintiff climbed the cemented platform on which the transformer was installed and then deliberately touched the transformer.

61. The injury report dated 01.3.1997, the treatment papers and the discharge summary of S.N.Medical College, Agra duly proved that the plaintiff has suffered burn injuries on his both hands due to electrocution. It is not the case of the defendant that the plaintiff has not suffered electrocution injuries. In fact, the defendant has admitted in its written statement that the plaintiff suffered electrocution injuries due to his own negligence. The defendant has also disclosed in its written statement that he has paid on humanitarian ground a compensation of ₹ 1.25 lakhs to the plaintiff, which itself proves that the plaintiff was electrocuted from the defendants transformer, which is not disputed by the defendant.

62. It is apparent that the plaintiff has been electrocuted from the transformer of the defendant which was installed on a cemented platform by the roadside. It is also proved that the transformer was of 11,000/400 Volts 100 KVA capacity, which was connected to a 11 KV high tension electric line of the defendant. The defendant has failed to prove that the transformer was fenced, barricaded or was caged, and the plaintiff crossed that barrier and touched the transformer. Since there was no barrier around the transformer, hence, the plaintiff accidentally came in contact with it while playing with other children outside the Primary School. In these facts and circumstances, the plaintiff was not required to prove that he was not negligent in the accident but the tortious principle of strict liability applies in which, the plaintiff has only to prove that he suffered electrocution injuries from high tension electrical infrastructure/equipment of the defendant, which he has successfully proved. In the facts and circumstances of the case, neither the plaintiff was required to prove that he was not negligent nor there was any negligence on the part of the plaintiff.

63. It is also apparent that the plaintiff was only about 7 years old at the time of the accident. It is also proved from evidence on record that the transformer was installed just outside the Primary School managed by Nagar Nigam, Agra, as such, the defendant was well aware of the existence of the school and the possibility that children studying in school may come in contact with its transformer, hence, the defendant should have taken proper steps to avoid any such untoward incident of electrocution from its transformer, but no such steps were ever taken by the defendant. From the evidence on record it is proved that even after the accident, the defendant has not taken any steps to avoid any such accident in future, which shows the careless and negligent attitude of the defendant towards the general public. It is also apparent that it is not expected from a child of 7 years of age to be aware of the imminent danger from a transformer, as such, the defendant cannot take the plea of negligence on the part of the plaintiff, for avoiding its tortious liability.

The defendant has also taken a plea in its written statement that the plaintiffs suit was barred by Section 33 of the Indian Electricity Act, 1910. The trial court has concluded that the plaintiff has not given any notice to the Electrical Inspector or other official of the defendant under the above provision. The question arises if no notice has been given by the plaintiff under the above provision, then whether the suit was barred ?

64. Section 33 of the Indian Electricity Act, 1910 reads as under :-

Notice of accidents and inquiries--(1) If any accident occurs in connection with the generation, transmission, supply or use of energy in or in connection with, any part of the electric supply - lines or other works of any person and the accident results or is likely to have resulted in loss of human or animal life or in any injury to a human being or an animal, such person shall give notice of the occurrence and of any such loss or injury actually caused by the accident, in such form and within such time as may be prescribed to the Electrical Inspector and to such other authorities as the appropriate Government may by general or special order, direct.

(2) The appropriate Government may, if it thinks fit, require any Electrical Inspector, or any other competent person appointed by it in this behalf, to inquire and report –

(a) as to the cause of any accident affecting the safety of the public, which may have been occasioned by or in connection with, the generation, transmission, supply or use of energy, or

(b) as to the manner in, and extent to, which the provisions of this Act or of any person, have been complied with.

(3) Every Electrical Inspector or other person holding an inquiry under sub-section(2) shall have all the powers of a Civil Court under the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908(5 of 1908), for the purpose of enforcing the attendance of witnesses and compelling the production of documents and material objects, and every person required by an Electrical Inspector or such other person as aforesaid to furnish any information shall be deemed to be legally bound to do so within the meaning of Section 176 of the Indian Penal Code(45 of 1860).

65. The above provision only stipulates giving notice of the accident to the Electrical Inspector or such other authorities prescribed by the Government. In the above provision, nowhere it is mentioned that if it is not complied with, then the suit claiming compensation cannot be filed against the defendant.

66. From the above facts and applicable law, it is apparent that the trial court has erred in concluding that the accident occurred due to plaintiff's own negligence, for which the defendant cannot be faulted. The trial court also erred in concluding that the plaintiff has lodged the FIR regarding the accident with delay, as if, the trial court was deciding a criminal case. The issue of delay in lodging the FIR was not at all relevant, since the defendant has admitted in its written statement the accident of electrocution from its transformer and the defendant has even paid a paltry compensation of ₹ 1.25 lakhs for this, to the plaintiff. In view of this, the observation of the trial court that the plaintiff has filed photo copy of the documents which are inadmissible in evidence, is a perverse finding, on the basis of which plaintiff's suit could not have been dismissed. It is a travesty of justice that the plaintiffs suit has been dismissed by an incompetent trial court Judge.

67. It is also evident that the trial court has not determined the amount of compensation payable to the plaintiff for the accident which occurred on 01.3.1997. It will be a travesty of justice if the case is remanded to the trial court for determination of compensation because 29 years have already lapsed after the accident and it will further prolong the agony of the plaintiff and his family. In view of this, this Court has proceeded to determine the compensation payable to the plaintiff, in accordance with the law and various precedents of the Apex Court.

Compensation payable to the plaintiff

68. In the instant case the compensation is to be determined in the same manner, in which it is determined in a motor accident claim case, by considering the occupation of the plaintiff, his monthly income, nature of injuries whether simple or grievous, quantum of permanent disability, the earning capacity loss due to the permanent disability, and he is entitled to get compensation for future loss of earning due to permanent disability, treatment expenses incurred by him and to be incurred in future, compensation for loss of earning due to future prospects, compensation for pain and suffering, loss of amenities, enjoyment of life, special diet and expenditure incurred on transportation.

69. It is proved from the evidence on record that the plaintiff was only 7 years old at the time of the accident, his both hands were badly burnt in the electrocution suffered from the defendants transformer, he remained admitted in the S.N.Medical College, Agra for treatment from 01.3.1997 to 19.3.1997 and again from 03.4.1997 to 12.5.1997 and he was still in the treatment of Dr.Rahul Sahai, when the case was filed. It was proved from the documentary and oral evidence on record that in the above Medical College his right hand above elbow and left hand below elbow, were amputated, due to electrocution burn injuries. It is also proved from the medical certificate of Dr.A.K.Ambesh, Ortho Surgeon, District Hospital, Agra dated 11.9.1997 that the plaintiff has suffered permanent disability due to below shoulder amputation in both upper extremity.

70. The Apex court in the case of Raj Kumar vs. Ajay Kumar and Another, (2011) 1 SCC 343, while analysing how to determine compensation in cases of permanent disability, has held as under:-

“10. Where the claimant suffers a permanent disability as a result of injuries, the assessment of compensation under the head of loss of future earnings would depend upon the effect and impact of such permanent disability on his earning capacity. The Tribunal should not mechanically apply the percentage of permanent disability as the percentage of economic loss or loss of earning capacity. In most of the cases, the percentage of economic loss, that is, the percentage of loss of earning capacity, arising from a permanent disability will be different from the percentage of permanent disability. Some Tribunals wrongly assume that in all cases, a particular extent (percentage) of permanent disability would result in a corresponding loss of earning capacity, and consequently, if the evidence produced show 45% as the permanent disability, will hold that there is 45% loss of future earning capacity. In most of the cases, equating the extent (percentage) of loss of earning capacity to the extent (percentage) of permanent disability will result in award of either too low or too high a compensation.

11. What requires to be assessed by the Tribunal is the effect of the permanent disability on the earning capacity of the injured; and after assessing the loss of earning capacity in terms of a percentage of the income, it has to be quantified in terms of money, to arrive at the future loss of earnings (by applying the standard multiplier method used to determine loss of dependency). We may however note that in some cases, on appreciation of evidence and assessment, the Tribunal may find that the percentage of loss of earning capacity as a result of the permanent disability, is approximately the same as the percentage of permanent disability in which case, of course, the Tribunal will adopt the said percentage for determination of compensation. (See for example, the decisions of this Court in Arvind Kumar Mishra v. New India Assurance Co. Ltd. [(2010) 10 SCC 254 : (2010) 3 SCC (Cri) 1258 : (2010) 10 Scale 298] and Yadava Kumar v. National Insurance Co. Ltd. [(2010) 10 SCC 341 : (2010) 3 SCC (Cri) 1285 : (2010) 8 Scale 567])

71. Since, both hands of the plaintiff have been amputated, there is not an iota of doubt that he has become permanently disabled. It is further apparent that due to the amputation of his hands, the plaintiff is not in a condition to do any work and earn his livelihood. In view of this, the plaintiff has suffered 100 % functional disability, who is completely dependent on others for his survival and daily chores. The plaintiff is unable to eat, dress-up, play, his entire childhood has been spoiled, he cannot enjoy the amenities of life, his marriage prospects have vanished, his life has become miserable.

72. The Apex Court in the case of Kajal vs. Jagdish Chand & Ors. (2020) 4 SCC 413, Master Ayush vs. Branch Manager, Reliance General Insurance Co. Ltd. & Anr. (2022) 7 SCC 738, Baby Sakshi Greola vs. Manzoor Ahmad Simon & Anr. 2024 SCC OnLine SC 3692 and Hitesh Nagjibhai Patel vs. Bababhai Nagjibhai Rabari & Another 2025 INSC 1070 has held that where a claimant has suffered 100% permanent functional disability due to an accident, the compensation under the head of loss of income must be awarded, at the very least, on the basis of the minimum wages of a skilled workman prevailing at the time of the accident in that region and should not be assumed on a notional basis. The Apex Court has also applied a multiplier of 18 for determining compensation in cases, where the claimant was below the age of 15 years at the time of the accident.

73. The Apex Court in the case of Pappu Deo Yadav vs. Naresh Kumar (2022) 13 SCC 790 (By Three Judges) while considering the issue of awarding future prospects in cases of permanent disablement from motor accident, held as under:-

“7. Two questions arise for consideration : one, whether in cases of permanent disablement incurred as a result of a motor accident, the claimant can seek, apart from compensation for future loss of income, amounts for future prospects too; and two, the extent of disability. On the first question, the High Court no doubt, is technically correct in holding that Pranay Sethi involved assessment of compensation in a case where the victim died. However, it went wrong in saying that later, the three-Judge Bench decision in Jagdish [Jagdish v. Mohan, (2018) 4 SCC 571 : (2018) 3 SCC (Civ) 102 : (2018) 2 SCC (Cri) 572] was not binding, but rather that the subsequent decision in Anant [Anant v. Pratap, (2018) 9 SCC 450 : (2018) 4 SCC (Civ) 378 : (2018) 3 SCC (Cri) 756] to the extent that it did not award compensation for future prospects, was binding. This Court is of the opinion that there was no justification for the High Court to have read the previous rulings of this Court, to exclude the possibility of compensation for future prospects in accident cases involving serious injuries resulting in permanent disablement. Such a narrow reading of Pranay Sethi is illogical, because it denies altogether the possibility of the living victim progressing further in life in accident cases-and admits such possibility of future prospects, in case of the victim's death. "

74. The Apex Court in the case of Sidram vs. Divisional Manager, United India Insurance Co. Ltd. & Another (2023) 3 SCC 439, while directing that in cases of serious permanent disability, compensation for future prospects should also be awarded, held as under:-

"31. It is now a well-settled position of law that even in cases of permanent disablement incurred as a result of a motor accident, the claimant can seek, apart from compensation for future loss of income, amounts for future prospects as well. We have come across many orders of different tribunals and unfortunately affirmed by different High Courts, taking the view that the claimant is not entitled to compensation for future prospects in accident cases involving serious injuries resulting in permanent disablement. That is not a correct position of law. There is no justification to exclude the possibility of compensation for future prospects in accident cases involving serious injuries resulting in permanent disablement. Such a narrow reading is illogical because it denies altogether the possibility of the living victim progressing further in life in accident cases-and admits such possibility of future prospects, in case of the victim's death. "

75. The Apex Court in the case of Rahul Ganpatrao Sable vs. Laxman Maruti Jadhav (Dead) through LRS. and others, (2023) 13 SCC 334 has awarded compensation towards attendant charges, future medical expenses, loss of marriage prospects and pain and suffering.

76. The Constitution Bench of the Apex Court in the case of National Insurance Co. Ltd. vs. Pranay Sethi and Others (2017) 16 SCC 680 has held that where the injured is self employed and upto 40 years old, then he is entitled to compensation towards future prospects @ 40% of his income.

77. It is evident that the accident occurred on 01.3.1997, when the plaintiff was only 7 years old. In this case the compensation is to be determined on the basis of minimum wages of skilled labour prevailing in the State of Uttar Pradesh at the time of accident, which was about ₹ 3,000/- per month. The plaintiff is entitled to future prospects @ 40% of his income. Besides this, since the plaintiff is fully dependent on others, he is entitled to wages of one attendant, on the basis of minimum wages of unskilled labour @ ₹ 2,500/- per month. He is entitled to future prospects on the wages of one attendant @ 40%, since the wages payable to attendant will also increase in future.

78. The plaintiff is also entitled to medical expenses incurred by his family for his treatment, special diet and transportation, loss of marriage prospects, pain and suffering, loss of amenities of life and loss of income of family members during his treatment. The plaintiff has not submitted any evidence regarding cost of artificial limb. It is also apparent that plaintiff has filed the suit and this appeal, as an indigent person, who is not having any financial means to arrange an artificial limb. In these circumstances, it will be in the interest of justice, that a reasonable amount is awarded to the plaintiff under this head, so that he can afford an artificial limb.

79. The plaintiff has also filed the cash memos of medicine purchased amounting to Rs.4,191.60, prescription of the doctors and discharge summary of S.N.Medical College,Agra, as such, it will be appropriate to award ₹ 5,000/- to the plaintiff towards medical expenses incurred by his family for his treatment. In view of the above facts and applicable legal principles, the compensation payable to the plaintiff is determined as under:-

S.No.	Compensation Head	Amount Awarded (in Rs.)	In Accordance with
1.	Monthly income of the injured plaintiff on the basis of minimum wages of skilled workman	3,000/-	Kajal (supra), Master Ayush (supra), Baby Sakshi Greola (supra) and Hitesh Nagjibhai Patel (supra)
2.	Annual income of the injured plaintiff	3,000X12= 36,000/-	Kajal (supra), Master Ayush (supra), Baby Sakshi Greola (supra) and Hitesh Nagjibhai Patel (supra)
3.	Add future prospects @40% since injured plaintiff was about 7 years on the date of the accident.	36,000 X 40%=14,400/-	Pranay Sethi (supra), Pappu Deo (supra) and Sidram (supra)
4.	Total annual loss of future income	36,000+14,400=50,400/-	Pranay Sethi (supra), Pappu Deo Yadav (supra) and Sidram (supra)

5.	Multiplier applied since age of the injured/claimant was 7 years on the date of accident	18	Pranay Sethi (supra)
6.	Total future loss of income due to 100% functional disability	50,400 X 18= 9,07,200/-	Pranay Sethi (supra) and Raj Kumar (supra)
7.	Special Diet and Transportation Expenses	10,000/-	Hitesh Nagjibhai Patel (supra)
8.	Treatment Expenses	5,000/-
9.	Attendant Expenses (1 attendant)	2,500+1,000(40% of 2,500)=3,500X12X18=7,56,000/-	Rahul Ganpatrao Sable (supra) and Kajal (supra)
10.	Compensation towards pain, suffering and loss of amenities	5,00,000/-	Kajal (supra)
11.	Loss of marriage prospects	3,00,000/-	Kajal (supra) and Hitesh Nagjibhai Patel (supra)
12.	Future medical expenses for artificial limb	3,00,000/-	Hitesh Nagjibhai Patel (supra)
13.	Loss of income of his parents and family members during his treatment (4 months)	3,000X4=12,000/-	Kajal (supra)
14.	Total compensation	27,90,000/-	-
15.	Less compensation received earlier from the defendant	1,25,000/-	-
16.	Net compensation to be paid by defendant	27,90,000- 1,25,000=26,65,000/-	-

80. In this way, the plaintiff is entitled to total compensation of ₹ 26,65,000/- for the injuries suffered by him due to electrocution from the transformer of the defendant. He is also entitled to pendentelite and future interest on the above compensation @ 6% per annum, from the date of filing of the misc.case as indigent person i.e. 30.5.1997 till realisation from the defendant.

81. For the aforesaid reasons, the trial court has erred in dismissing the plaintiff's suit, which is legally unsustainable and is liable to be set aside.

82. Accordingly, the appeal is allowed with costs throughout. The impugned judgment and decree dated 29.10.2005 in O.S. no.171 of 2003 is set aside and the plaintiff's suit is decreed for the following reliefs :-

(i)The plaintiff is entitled to a sum of ₹ 26.65 lakhs as compensation for the injuries suffered by him, along with pendente lite and future interest @ 6% per annum from the date of filing of the miscellaneous case i.e.30.5.1997, till its realisation from the defendant.

(ii)The plaintiff is also entitled to the costs of the suit and the appeal, including the court fees payable in the suit and the appeal, from the defendant.

(iii)The defendant is directed to pay the above amount within a period of one month from today, failing which, the plaintiff is at liberty to initiate execution proceedings against the defendant for realisation of the decretal amount.

(iv)Since the plaintiff is permanently disabled and dependent on others, the compensation realised from the defendant along with interest, will be deposited by the trial court in a fixed deposit account of any nationalised bank or post office, bearing maximum monthly interest, which the plaintiff will be able to draw every month for his livelihood. Without the permission of the court, the plaintiff will not be able to withdraw any amount from the fixed deposit. Of course, for medical treatment and other special circumstances, the plaintiff is permitted to withdraw the amount from the fixed deposit, but with the permission of the trial court.

(v)Since the plaintiff is illiterate and poor, for executing the decree, he can take assistance of the concerned District Legal Service Authority. The concerned District Judge is directed to assist the plaintiff in this matter, so that, he may not be fleeced, for reaping the fruits of the decree.

83. Office is directed to send back the record of the trial court.

Criminal Revision No. 2935 of 2024

...Opposite Parties

Issues for Consideration

- (i) Whether rejection of an application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. on the ground of absence of sanction under Section 197 Cr.P.C. for prosecution of a public servant was legally sustainable?
- (ii) Whether a person who had accepted compensation under a Government scheme treating the death of the deceased as accidental could subsequently seek criminal prosecution alleging that the same death was homicidal?
- (iii) Whether the High Court, in exercise of revisional jurisdiction, should interfere with the rejection of an application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. when the ultimate conclusion of the Magistrate was otherwise sustainable?

Headnotes

Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 — Ss. 156(3) and 197 — Application for direction to register F.I.R. — Public servant — Rejection on ground of absence of sanction under Section 197 Cr.P.C. — Legality.

HELD: Sanction under Section 197 Cr.P.C. becomes relevant at the stage of taking cognizance of the offence and not at the stage of consideration of an application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. Consequently, rejection of an application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. solely on the ground that prior sanction under Section 197 Cr.P.C. had not been obtained is not legally sustainable. [Paras 6, 7 and 16]

Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 — S. 156(3) — Direction for registration of F.I.R. — Applicant accepting compensation for accidental death under Government scheme — Subsequent plea of homicidal death — Maintainability of criminal proceedings.

HELD: Accidental death and homicidal death are mutually inconsistent factual situations. Where the revisionist had accepted compensation under a Government scheme by treating the death of his father as accidental, he could not thereafter seek criminal prosecution of the opposite parties on the allegation that the very same death was homicidal. The inconsistent stand adopted by the revisionist rendered the allegations made in the application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. unreliable and disentitled him to the relief sought. [Paras 8 to 16]

Criminal Law — Accidental death — Homicidal death — Distinction.

HELD: An accidental death is one resulting from an unintended, unexpected and unplanned event, whereas homicidal death is the consequence of an intentional criminal act. The two concepts are fundamentally distinct and cannot be equated. A claim founded on accidental death cannot simultaneously be maintained as one based on homicidal death in respect of the same occurrence. [Paras 13 to 16]

Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 — Ss. 156(3), 397 and 401 — Revision — Interference with order of Magistrate — Erroneous reasoning but correct ultimate conclusion.

HELD: Although the Magistrate erred in rejecting the application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. on the ground of absence of sanction under Section 197 Cr.P.C., the ultimate conclusion rejecting the application did not warrant interference since, on the material available, the allegations set up by the revisionist were inconsistent with his own conduct in obtaining compensation for accidental death. Where the final conclusion is otherwise sustainable, revisional interference is unwarranted merely because one of the reasons assigned by the court below is legally erroneous. [Para 16]

Revision dismissed. (E-14)

Case Arising From

Order dated 04.05.2024 passed by the Chief Judicial Magistrate, Rampur in Case No. 662 of 2022, Shavez Khan v. Rakesh Chand, Tehsildar, under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C., Police Station Swar, District Rampur, whereby the application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. seeking direction for registration of an F.I.R. was rejected.

Appearance for Parties

For the Appellants: Sri Krishna Dutt Tiwari.

For the Respondents: earned A.G.A.; Sri Alind Kumar; Sri Kiran Rani; and Sri Laloo Yadav

(Delivered by Hon'ble Laxmi Kant Shukla, J.)

1. Heard Mr. Krishna Dutt Tiwari, the learned counsel for revisionist, the learned AGA for State-opposite party no. 1 and Mr. Laloo Yadav, the learned counsel for opposite party nos. 2, 3 and 4.

2. Perused the record.

3. Revisionist Shavez Khan has preferred this Criminal Revision challenging the impugned order dated 04.05.2024 passed by Chief Judicial Magistrate, Rampur (hereinafter referred as Jurisdictional Magistrate) in Case No. 662/2022 Shavez Khan Vs. Rakesh Chand, Tehsildar, under section 156(3) Cr.P.C., Police Station Swar, District Rampur whereby the jurisdictional magistrate rejected the application of the revisionist under section 156(3) Cr.P.C.

4. Feeling aggrieved from that order, this revision has been filed on the ground that the impugned order is illegal, perverse to law and has been passed without application of judicial mind, and is, therefore, liable to be set aside.

5. The factual matrix of the case in short is that the revisionist filed an application under section 156(3) Cr.P.C. stating that on 05-09-2022, at 05:30 in the morning, he along with his father had gone to collect fodder for their animals. After harvesting the fodder, they returned to the banks of the Kosi River in the Bhuvanra Ehtmal forest. At around 07:00 in the morning, opposite party no. 2 accompanied by opposite party no. 3 and 4 and two unknown persons having rifles in their hands, came from Akbarabad, started giving filthy abuse to father of the revisionist and making allegation of illegal mining against him. Opposite party no. 2 told opposite party nos. 3 and 4 to kill him by throwing him into the river. Upon hearing the noise, the witnesses reached there. Then, at the behest of opposite party nos. 2, 3 and 4 threw the revisionist's father, into a deep riverbed and stood there until he died. Two unknown persons pointed rifles at everyone and threatened to shoot if anyone tried to save him. Responding to the revisionist's cries, people gathered and pulled the dead body from the water. The revisionist's uncle, filed a complaint at the police station, but no case was registered. The body was neither sent to the District Hospital, Rampur, for post-mortem examination, nor post-mortem report filed. The body remained on the banks of the Kosi River until evening. The police themselves wrote a written complaint on a plain paper signed by the revisionist's uncle. The same night, a post-mortem report was filed. The revisionist sent applications to S.P. Rampur in person and by speed post to get a report written in this regard, to the Additional Director General of Police, Bareilly, to the Chief Minister of Uttar Pradesh Government, Lucknow by speed post, and to the DIG, Moradabad Division, Moradabad by speed post on 14-09-2022.

6. The Jurisdictional Magistrate, after calling for a report from the concerned police station, rejected the application on the ground that opposite party no. 2 is a public servant and as per the directions passed by the Hon'ble Allahabad High Court in Anil Kumar Vs. M.K. Ayyappa case, prior sanction from the competent authority under Section 197 Cr.P.C. has been made mandatory for prosecuting a public servant, which is not available on record.

7. Learned counsel appearing on behalf of revisionist submitted that the permission under section 197 Cr.P.C. is required at the time of taking cognizance meaning thereby if the matter is investigated and charge sheet is filed against public servant without permission of initiation of criminal proceeding issued by proper authority the Court cannot take cognizance on the same i.e. different stage but such condition precedent does not apply to the application under section 156(3) Cr.P.C. and thus it is contended that the impugned order, having been passed on this erroneous ground, suffers from material irregularity and illegality, and is liable to be set aside by this Court.

8. Per contra learned AGA as well as learned counsel appearing on behalf of opposite party nos. 2, 3 and 4 vehemently opposed the criminal revision and argued that according to the post mortem report, the cause of death was asphyxia due to drowning. It is pertinent to mention that there is not external injury on the part of dead body of deceased. It is remarkable that the family of the deceased treated the death as accidental death and moved an application for compensation under government scheme and received Rs. Five Lakhs. Though the revisionist was tried to get said amount immediately without following the process but opposite party no. 2 have no power to grant such compensation immediately, the file was already forwarded by opposite party no. 2 to higher authorities sitting at District Head Quarter and the action in District Head Quarter was to be taken.

9. In this circumstances the opposite party nos. 2, 3 and 4 had no opportunity to do anything with that application but under his whim the revisionist was making pressure on them and in that pursuance he filed such application before jurisdictional magistrate. It is the dual standard of revisionist on one hand he received compensation for accidental death of his father and on other hand he wants to prosecute opposite party nos. 2, 3 and 4 for the same.

10. Learned counsel appearing on behalf of opposite parties referred page 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22 and 23 of counter affidavit dated 11.12.2025 and urged that the opposite party nos. 2, 3 and 4 are public servant. Opposite party no. 2 is Tehsildar and opposite party nos. 3 and 4 are Lekhpal who would have no enmity with the deceased, even no enmity has been shown in application u/s 156(3) of Cr.P.C. 2. In such circumstances the story cooked in application u/s 156(3) Cr.P.C. is only a bundle of false and nothing more and the jurisdictional magistrate rightly rejected the said application and passed the impugned order.

11. When confronted with above, the learned counsel for revisionist only argued that the government insurance scheme is a beneficiary scheme and since the revisionist's father died under unnatural condition and the cause of death was asphyxia due to drowning so to get compensation against that is his legal right under the scheme so he got it the same but though such drowning of father of revisionist was caused by opposite party nos. 2, 3 and 4 along with two persons, so he is trying to get them punished for the same.

12. Having heard the rival submissions and perusal of the material available on record, this Court is of the view that accidental death and homicidal death are two different facts. A homicidal death cannot be construed or treated as accidental death.

13. According to the Oxford Dictionaries, word accident is a noun having meaning:- an unpleasant event that happens unexpectedly and causes damage, injury or death. According to Cambridge Dictionary accident means something bad that happens that is not expected or intended and that often damages something or injures someone. According to Wikipedia an accident is an unintended and usually undesirable event that is not deliberately caused by humans. Although in ordinary conversations, intentionality is the only factor most people consider, formally, accidents require three factors: it must be unintended, unpreventable, and unexpected. The term accident usually implies the presence of unrecognized or unaddressed risks.

14. An accident is a event that unintentionally happened, that results in damage, injury or harm. An accident is an event that has unintentionally happened, but this may or may not result any damage, harm or injury. Further more it is an undesirable or unintended and usually results as any harm injury damage or loss. It signifies a mishap, chance occurrence, or an unplanned incident. Synonyms include misfortune, calamity, disaster, mishap, and chance.

15. An accident is an unplanned and unintentional event that especially resulting in injury damage or harm. An incident is a broader term for any unplanned event, including those that do not cause harm (near misses). Essentially all accidents are incidents but not all incidents are accidents. In contrast, a homicidal death is the result of an incident which has defined meaning other than accident.

16. When a person performs any action without any malafide intention to cause harm but due to inadvertence the result of such action came out differently without the intentional role of doer meaning thereby the result of act as intended by his it's doer was against his hope. On the other hand a crime is result of an intentional act. In such circumstance, I am of the view that the accidental death and a homicidal death is different to each other both cannot be summarized in one definition. In such circumstance, if the revisionist has claimed compensation for accidental death of the deceased, he cannot claim it as homicidal death. In such situation, though the trial court's ground for rejecting the Application U/S 156 (3) Cr.P.C. was not good in law, but otherwise the story presented by the revisionist before jurisdictional magistrate cannot be considered as true, and, therefore, no interference by this Court with the impugned order is required.

17. Accordingly, the criminal revision, is hereby dismissed.

First Appeal No. 10 of 2022

...Appellants

Versus

State of U.P.

...Respondent

Issues for Consideration

- (i) Whether the Kanpur Development Authority was justified in withholding possession of the leased plot despite execution and registration of a 999-year lease deed and receipt of the entire lease premium?
- (ii) Whether the plaintiffs proved that the leased plot had been obtained for establishment of an industrial unit and that they suffered loss on account of non-delivery of possession?
- (iii) Whether the Trial Court rightly dismissed the suit by holding that the plaintiffs had failed to prove their case despite the defendants having led no evidence?
- (iv) Whether the plaintiffs were entitled to mandatory injunction for delivery of possession, damages for loss of business profits, damages on account of escalation in project cost, interest and exemplary costs?

Headnotes

Lease—999-year lease—Industrial plot—Entire premium paid—Registered lease deed executed—Possession withheld without cancellation of lease or forfeiture—Mandatory injunction.

HELD: Upon execution and registration of the lease deed and payment of the entire premium, the plaintiffs acquired enforceable leasehold rights over the suit property. The defendants neither pleaded nor proved cancellation of the lease, forfeiture, resumption or creation of any third-party rights. Mere withholding of possession for decades without any legal justification constituted breach of contractual and statutory obligations. The plaintiffs were, therefore, entitled to a decree directing delivery of vacant possession of the leased plot. [Paras 32 to 41]

Evidence—Registered lease deed—Terms reduced into writing—Contrary plea in written statement unsupported by evidence—Effect.

HELD: The registered lease deed constituted the best evidence of the contractual relationship between the parties and expressly acknowledged payment of the entire lease premium. The plea that the plaintiffs had failed to pay the entire consideration, in the absence of any documentary or oral evidence, could not override the recitals contained in the registered instrument. [Paras 32 to 36]

Evidence—Burden of proof—Statutory authority withholding best evidence—Failure to enter witness box—Adverse inference.

HELD: Although the defendants pleaded that possession had already been delivered, they neither produced the possession memo nor examined any officer conversant with the facts. A party withholding the best available evidence and abstaining from entering the witness box invites an adverse inference under Section 114 Illustration (g) of the Evidence Act that the defence set up is incorrect. Mere pleadings without proof do not discharge the burden cast upon the defendants. [Paras 37 to 40]

Civil Procedure—Appreciation of evidence—Trial Court ignoring admitted documents and material evidence—Perverse findings.

HELD: The Trial Court ignored the registered lease deed, previous litigation between the parties, correspondence exchanged with the Development Authority and other undisputed documentary evidence. The findings that the plaintiffs failed to establish the terms of allotment, demand for possession and entitlement to relief were contrary to the record and suffered from perversity, warranting interference in appeal. [Paras 43 to 45]

Lease—Industrial plot—Failure to deliver possession—Loss of business opportunity—Entitlement to damages.

HELD: The lease itself established that the plot had been allotted for setting up an industrial unit. The plaintiffs proved that they had obtained registration from the Industries Department and prepared a project report indicating the anticipated profitability of the proposed factory. Since establishment of the industry became impossible solely due to the defendants' failure to hand over possession, the plaintiffs became entitled to damages for loss of business profits. [Paras 46 to 56]

Damages—Breach of lease—Loss of anticipated profits—Assessment.

HELD: Exact computation of future business profits is not always possible where a commercial venture is prevented from commencing because of breach by the opposite party. Once the intended business, the wrongful conduct of the defendants and the probable income stood established, the Court was justified in awarding compensation on a reasonable estimate based upon the project report and surrounding circumstances. [Paras 47 to 56]

Damages—Delay in delivery of possession—Escalation in project cost due to inflation—Compensation.

HELD: The prolonged deprivation of possession resulted in substantial escalation in the cost of establishing the proposed industrial unit. The plaintiffs were, therefore, entitled to compensation towards increased project cost attributable to inflation and the delay occasioned by the defendants' unlawful conduct. [Paras 55 and 56]

Development Authorities—Statutory obligations—Arbitrary withholding of possession despite receipt of entire consideration—Public accountability.

HELD: A statutory development authority is expected to act fairly and reasonably. Retaining possession of an allotted plot for decades after execution of a registered lease deed and receipt of the entire premium, without cancelling the lease or assigning any lawful reason, amounts to arbitrary exercise of power and defeats the legitimate expectations of citizens. Such conduct renders the authority liable for consequential damages. [Paras 57 to 59]

Civil Procedure—Exemplary costs—Statutory authority compelling unnecessary litigation.

HELD: Where a public authority compels citizens to engage in prolonged litigation despite their clear legal entitlement, award of exemplary costs is justified to discourage arbitrary conduct and compensate the successful litigants for avoidable hardship. [Paras 57 to 61]

Lease—Mandatory injunction—Damages—Interest.

HELD: The plaintiffs were entitled to delivery of possession of the leased plot, damages for loss of business profits from 01.07.1987 till delivery of possession, Rs.5,00,000/- towards escalation in project cost, pendente lite and future interest at 6% per annum, delivery of the sanctioned building plan and exemplary costs of Rs.2,00,000/-. [Paras 60 and 61]

Appeal allowed. Judgment and decree of the Trial Court set aside. Suit decreed. (E-14)

For the Respondents: Sri Raj Nath Pandey and Sri Rajesh Kumar Singh

(Delivered by Hon'ble Sandeep Jain, J.)

1. The instant appeal has been filed by the plaintiff under Section 96 CPC against the impugned judgment and decree dated 20.4.2016 passed by the 2nd Additional Judge Small Cause Court, Kanpur Nagar in O.S. no. 243 of 2009 B.N. Tripathi and others vs. State of U.P. and another, whereby the plaintiffs suit for the relief of mandatory injunction directing the defendants to deliver the possession of the disputed plot and award of damages of ₹ 41,16,800/- with interest @18% p.a. has been dismissed.

Plaint case

2. The plaintiffs filed O.S. no. 243 of 2009 against the defendant no.1 State of Uttar Pradesh and defendant no. 2 Kanpur Development Authority (KDA) with the averments that they are the joint lessees of plot No. 56, Block 'A', Scheme 39, Jajmau, Kanpur, hereinafter referred to as the disputed plot, admeasuring 2,222 square yards by virtue of lease deed dated 3.12.1984, which was executed by the defendant KDA. It was further averred that the disputed plot was leased to plaintiffs for a period of 999 years commencing from 3.12.1984, for a consideration of the premium reserved under the aforesaid lease deed of ₹ 22,220/-, which was paid by the plaintiffs at the time of execution of the above lease deed, the boundaries of which were duly described in the lease deed and at the foot of the plaint. It was further averred that the above lease deed was registered in the office of sub-Registrar Kanpur at Bahi no.1, Book 562/611 at pages 144/288 and 301 on 07.12.1984.

3. It was further averred by the plaintiffs that before the execution of the lease deed, an unwarranted demand of interest @ 15% per annum was made by the KDA from the plaintiffs, and under protest the payment of interest so illegally demanded, which amounted to ₹ 44,420.22 was paid by the plaintiffs to the defendant KDA, and thereafter, the plaintiffs filed O.S.no. 335 of 1985 challenging the legality of the above demand of interest, which was decreed by judgment and decree dated 15.5.1994 in favour of the plaintiffs, thus, the legal interest was refunded to the plaintiffs.

4. It was further averred that for the purpose of harassing the plaintiffs, the defendant KDA initially demanded uncalled for, illegal and unwarranted interest and the possession of the disputed plot was not handed to the plaintiffs under the garb of above illegal demand of interest and whenever the plaintiffs demanded possession of the disputed plot from the defendant KDA, the frivolous ground of the pendency of the above suit no. 335 of 1985 was taken by it, which was untenable.

5. It was further averred that in the meantime, the plaintiffs moved the defendant KDA for sanction of building plan which was sanctioned on 27.2.1998 but since the possession of the disputed plot was not delivered to the plaintiffs as such, it was impossible for them to raise construction on it, hence the validity of the building plan needs to be extended to make it effective after the delivery of possession of the plot.

6. It was further averred that the plaintiffs constantly wrote letters to the defendant KDA asking for delivery of possession but the possession was not delivered. The above letters were written on 21.7.1985, 2.6.1990, 3.6.1990, 9.12.1990, 25.9.2002, 15.11.2002, 29.1.2003, 28.3.2003, 9.10.2003, 27.10.2003, 19.12.2003, 11.3.2004, 17.5.2004, 5.7.2004, 16.10.2004 and 13.1.2005. It was further averred that finally the plaintiffs served a legal notice dated 17.1.2005 on the defendant KDA demanding possession of the disputed plot along with damages at the rate of ₹ 1 lakh per annum within a period of 15 days from the date of receipt of the notice but despite service of notice on 18.1.2005, the defendant failed to deliver the possession.

7. It was specifically averred by the plaintiffs that the disputed plot was purchased for doing some trade or business on it, for the livelihood of the plaintiffs and their family members, but due to non-delivery of the disputed plot, the aspirations and dreams of the plaintiffs were completely crushed by the high-handed, illegal and arbitrary action of the defendants.

8. It was further averred that when the possession of the disputed plot was not delivered, the plaintiffs filed a writ petition no. 425 of 2006 before this Court, which was disposed by order dated 9.5.2006 with the direction that the plaintiffs can approach the civil court for the relief of delivery of possession of the disputed plot, and after the above order of this Court, the defendant KDA was approached by the plaintiffs but inspite of giving assurance by the senior officials of the defendant, the possession of the disputed plot was not delivered to the plaintiffs, who are senior citizens aged about 70 years, who are at the fag end of their lives. It was further averred that the plaintiffs invested their hard earned money in the disputed plot but its possession was deliberately, without any reason, was not handed to the plaintiffs and as such, by the arbitrary and illegal action of the defendants, the plaintiffs have been deprived of reaping the fruits of the disputed plot, which was still lying vacant. It was further averred that since the possession of the disputed plot was never handed to the plaintiffs, the plaintiffs could not use it or acquire its possession.

9. It was further averred that in the year 1992, the plaintiffs even obtained registration of the business concern from Directorate of Industries, U.P. in the name of Narayan Krishi Yantra Udyog and according to the project report, the plaintiffs were supposed to earn profit of ₹ 13,700/- per month from the above business, but since the possession of the disputed plot was not handed to the plaintiffs, they failed to establish their factory, which was the basic object of acquiring the disputed plot, due to which the plaintiffs have suffered financial loss, because the capital cost of establishing the factory has increased and due to this, the plaintiffs have suffered a loss of ₹ 5 lakhs.

10. It was further averred that the plaintiffs have assessed the loss on a flat rate of ₹ 13,700/- per month, which amounts to ₹ 1,64,400/- per annum and till the end of the month of December, 2006 the total loss was ₹ 36,16,800/- which was due to the non-delivery of possession of the disputed plot and if, amount the loss of increased capital cost of ₹ 5 lakhs was added, then the plaintiffs have suffered a total loss of ₹ 41,16,800/- to which they are entitled along with interest @ 18% per annum from the defendants.

11. In the above backdrop, the plaintiffs claimed the following reliefs :-

(A) A decree of mandatory injunction, thereby directing the defendant to deliver the possession of plot No. 56, Block 'A', Scheme 39, Jajmau, Kanpur, admeasuring 2,222 square yards, fully bounded at the foot of the plaint, to the plaintiffs and also deliver its sanction letter regarding the sanctioned building plan in respect of that plot.

(B) Money decree be passed for a sum of ₹ 41,16,800/- together with up-to-date interest @18% per annum in favour of the plaintiffs and against the defendant.

(C) A decree be passed declaring that the building plan in respect of the aforesaid plot sanctioned by KDA no. 214/489/Bhau/92-93 dated 27.2.1998 shall be effective and operative after delivery of possession of that plot by KDA to the plaintiff.

(D) Cost of the suit.

(E) Any other relief which this Hon'ble Court may deem fit and proper in the facts and circumstances of the present case.

Written Statement on behalf of defendant Kanpur Development Authority(KDA)

12. The defendant denied the plaint averments, which were evasive and not specific. It was averred that the answering defendant was not the least concerned with the object of the purchase of the disputed plot. The plaintiffs claim of damages was vague and imaginary. It was further averred that no cause of action has accrued to the plaintiffs to file the present suit.

13. It was specifically averred that the possession of the disputed plot has been given to the plaintiffs, as per rules of the KDA, on payment of entire dues, which were payable from time to time. The plaintiffs deliberately failed to make payment, as demanded by the answering defendant and instead, entered into uncalled for litigation, only to harass the officials of the KDA. It was further averred that the plaintiffs are fond of litigation and it is for this reason, earlier suit no. 335 of 1985 and the Writ before the High Court was filed. It was further averred that the instant suit was filed on whims, which was barred under Section 34 and 41(h) of the Specific Relief Act.

Documentary evidence of the parties

14. The plaintiffs filed original lease deed dated 3.12.1984 executed by KDA in their favour, certified copy of the judgment dated 17.5.1994 passed in O.S. no. 335 of 1985, copy of the letters written to the KDA, copy of the legal notice dated 17.1.2005 given to the KDA, certificate of Directorate of Industries Uttar Pradesh, project report, etc.

15. The defendants have not filed any documentary evidence.

Issues framed by the trial court

16. No written statement was filed by the defendant State of U.P. On the basis of the pleadings of the plaintiffs and the defendant KDA, the following issues were framed :-

(i) Whether without any legal and reasonable cause, the defendant failed to hand over the possession of the disputed plot No. 56, Block 'A', Scheme 39, Jajmau to the plaintiffs? If so, its effect?

(ii) Whether the suit has been less valued?

(iii) Whether the court fees paid is insufficient?

(iv) Whether the plaintiff's suit is barred by Section 34 and Section 41(h) of the Specific Relief Act ?

(v) Whether the plaintiffs are entitled to get any relief ?

Oral evidence adduced by the parties

17. The plaintiff B.N.Tripathi examined himself as PW-1, who in his examination-in-chief proved the plaint averments. He deposed that the lease deed dated 3.12.1984 was executed in favour of the plaintiffs by the power-of-attorney holder of Kanpur Development Authority(KDA),

K.N.Bhalla, and thereafter, the lease deed was got registered. He further deposed that the entire premium of ₹ 22,220/- was paid by the plaintiffs to the KDA, but, an illegal demand of interest @ 15% per annum was made by the KDA, which was fulfilled under protest by depositing an amount of ₹44,420.22 as interest with the KDA, which was later on challenged by filing O.S. no. 335 of 1985 against the KDA, which was decreed in favour of plaintiffs on 15.5.1994. He further deposed that inspite of fulfilling the illegal demand of KDA, the plaintiffs were not handed the possession of the disputed plot on the ground that the above suit no. 335 of 1985 was pending. He further deposed that even after the decision of the suit no. 335 of 1985, the plaintiffs were not handed the possession of the disputed plot, regarding which several letters were written to the KDA by registered post and a representation was also made, but to no effect. The plaintiff has proved the above letters sent by registered post to the defendant KDA from time to time. The plaintiff has further proved the legal notice given by his counsel Yatindra Shukla dated 17.1.2005 through registered post to the KDA. The plaintiff further deposed that they obtained the disputed plot for doing business on it, in order to sustain their livelihood but they were not handed its possession, due to which they have suffered a loss of ₹ 41,16,800/-, for the recovery of which they have filed the suit, along with interest @ 18% per annum. He further deposed that the plaintiffs have also filed a writ petition no. 25403 of 2006 before this Court, in which by order dated 9.5.2006 it was ordered that for getting possession, the plaintiffs may file a suit before the civil court. He further deposed that after the passing of the above order by this Court, the plaintiffs met senior officers of KDA and requested them to give possession of the disputed plot, on which they assured the plaintiffs, which proved to be false, and as such they filed the instant suit on 9.2.2007. It was further deposed that the deponent was more than 80 years old and the plaintiff no. 2 died on 13.9.2011. He further deposed that in the year 1992 the plaintiffs have got registered the intended business in the name and style of Narayan Krishi Yantra Udyog, with the Directorate of Industries, Government of U.P. and the project report was also prepared, according to which the plaintiffs were expecting to earn monthly income of ₹ 13,700/-, from which they were deprived. He further deposed that the cost of setting business has also increased due to inflation by ₹ 5 lakhs. He further deposed that the plaintiffs are the lease holders of the disputed plot and they are entitled to its physical possession and are also entitled to get damages with interest from the defendants.

18. PW-1 in cross-examination deposed that the disputed plot was purchased in auction from KDA in the year 1967. His bid was highest @ ₹ 10/- per square yard, among the persons, who participated in the auction. In all 16 plots were auctioned.

19. The defendants neither adduced any documentary or oral evidence nor any arguments were submitted on their behalf, before the trial court.

Reasoning of the Trial Court

(1) The plaintiffs have nowhere mentioned the duration in which, after the execution of the lease deed, they were supposed to get the possession of the disputed plot.

(2) The plaintiffs were supposed to disclose what action was taken by them for getting the possession of the disputed plot and in response to that, what action was taken by the KDA.

(3) After the execution of the lease deed in their favour, the plaintiffs were supposed to disclose what were the other terms and conditions of the KDA.

(4) The plaintiffs have also not disclosed why the possession of the disputed plot was not handed to them by the KDA.

(5) If the possession of the disputed plot was not handed to the plaintiffs, then they should have complained to the KDA.

(6) The plaintiffs have failed to disclose what reply was given by the KDA to the letters sent to it by the plaintiffs. This fact was also required to be proved by the plaintiffs by their oral and documentary evidence.

(7) The plaintiffs have also failed to submit any document to prove that after the execution of lease deed, how the payment was to be effected.

(8) The plaintiffs has only filed attested copy of the lease deed, but have not filed any terms and conditions issued by the KDA.

(9) The plaintiffs have concealed and suppressed material facts from the court, the burden was upon the plaintiffs to prove the above facts, which they have utterly failed to discharge.

20. In view of the above reasons, issue no.(i) was decided against the plaintiffs. Issue no. (ii) and (iii) were previously by order dated 4.7.2014 decided ex-parte in favour of the plaintiffs. Issue no. (iv) was also decided in favour of the plaintiffs, against the defendants, because it was not pressed by the defendants. Since issue no.(i) was decided against the plaintiffs, as such, in the opinion of the trial court, the plaintiffs were not entitled to get any relief, because they failed to prove their case, hence, the plaintiffs suit was dismissed with costs, aggrieved against which, the plaintiffs have filed the instant appeal under Section 96 CPC.

Submissions of the learned counsel of the parties

21. Ms.Shreya Gupta learned counsel for the plaintiff appellant submitted that the disputed plot was purchased in auction by the plaintiffs way back in the year 1967 and the plaintiffs deposited the whole amount of consideration of the lease amounting to ₹ 22,220/- with the defendant KDA, but still the KDA demanded interest at the rate of 15%, which was illegal, but still the plaintiffs paid the further amount of ₹ 44,420.22 with the KDA under protest and then filed O.S. No. 335 of 1985 for recovery of the amount paid under protest, which was decreed on 15.5.1994 in favour of the plaintiffs, and it was held that the above demand of additional amount of ₹ 44,420.22 was illegal.

22. Learned counsel further submitted that the lease deed was executed by the KDA after obtaining the full consideration of ₹ 22,220/- from the plaintiffs, which is recorded in the lease deed. It was further submitted that since the above demand of the KDA of ₹ 44,420.22 was found to be illegal, and thereafter, no additional demand was ever made by the KDA from the plaintiffs, as such, no money was due from the plaintiffs to the KDA.

23. Learned counsel further submits that the lease deed itself contains all the terms and conditions, but it nowhere mentions that when the possession of the disputed land was to be handed to the plaintiffs. The lease deed is silent on this aspect. Learned counsel further submits that as per the written statement of the KDA, the possession of the disputed plot was handed to the plaintiffs, but no documentary or oral evidence was adduced to prove the above averment. It was further submitted that the plaintiffs always demanded the possession of the disputed plot after the lease deed was executed in their favour on 3.12.19 84 by the KDA, but the possession of the disputed plot was never handed to the plaintiffs.

24. It was further submitted that from the year 1985 till the filing of the suit in the year 2007, the plaintiff continuously demanded possession of the disputed plot from the KDA by writing numerous letters to it, but there was no response from the other side. She further submitted that the plaintiffs also filed a writ petition before the High Court in the year 2006, which was disposed with the observation that the plaintiffs may file suit before the civil court for getting possession of the disputed plot.

25. She further submitted that the disputed plot was taken on lease for setting up business on it, for sustaining the livelihood of the plaintiffs and their family members from the earning of the business, which was supposed to be established on the disputed plot. She further submitted that in the year 1992 the proposed business in the name and style of 'Narayan Krishi Yantra Udyog' was got registered with the Directorate of Industries, State of Uttar Pradesh and the project report was also got prepared, according to which, the plaintiffs were supposed to earn monthly profit of ₹ 13,700/- after the commencement of the business, but it never materialised, because the possession of the disputed plot was never handed to the plaintiffs. She further submitted that all the hopes and aspirations of the plaintiffs were crushed by the illegal, arbitrary and whimsical acts of the KDA, which without any reason, failed to hand over the possession of the disputed leasehold plot to the plaintiffs.

26. She further submitted that the plaintiffs have proved their case on the basis of oral and documentary evidence, which has not been controverted by the defendants, because the defendants failed to adduce any oral or documentary evidence. She further submitted that the defendant KDA never entered the witness box to deny the plaintiffs case but still the trial court has erroneously held that the plaintiff failed to prove their case, which is a perverse finding.

27. She further submitted that the defendant KDA has not denied the execution of the lease deed of the disputed plot in favour of the plaintiffs. Further, the additional demand of the KDA was found to be illegal by the court in O.S. no. 335 of 1985, which was decreed in plaintiffs favour on 15.5.1994, which was never challenged before any court, as such, the defendant KDA cannot take a stand that the plaintiffs have not paid the full consideration of the lease. She further submitted that the defendant KDA could have submitted documentary evidence of handing over the possession of the disputed plot to the plaintiffs before the court, but no such evidence was submitted by it. She further submitted that the defendant KDA failed to prove any valid reason for not handing the possession of the disputed plot to the plaintiffs. She further submitted that it is not the case of KDA that the allotment of the disputed plot or the lease deed executed in favour of the plaintiffs have been cancelled by it and subsequently, the disputed plot has been leased to some other person or any 3rd party right has been created on it.

28. She further submitted that since the plaintiffs were deprived from the possession of the disputed plot, which they have intended for business purposes, for sustaining their livelihood, as such, they have suffered grave financial loss. Learned counsel submitted that as per the project report the plaintiffs were supposed to earn a minimum profit at the rate of ₹ 13,700/- per month after the business started on the disputed plot, but since its possession was never handed to them, they were deprived from earning that amount. Learned counsel further submitted that the cost of establishing business also escalated due to inflation and on this account the plaintiff suffered the loss of ₹ 5 lakhs. She further submitted that the plaintiffs in all claimed damages of ₹ 41,16,800/- along with interest pendente lite and future at the rate of 18% per annum from the defendant KDA, which they were entitled to get, but the trial court has without appreciating the evidence on record, has all together for perverse reasons dismissed the plaintiffs suit which is legally unsustainable and is liable to be set aside. With these submissions it was prayed that the instant appeal be allowed and the plaintiffs suit be decreed with costs. In support of her submission she has relied upon the following case law :-

(i) Iqbal Basith and ors. vs. N.Subbalakshmi and ors. (2021) 2 SCC 718 (by 3 Judges)

(ii) Maula Bux vs. Union of India (1969) 2 SCC 554 (by 3 Judges)

(iii) M/s A.T.Brij Paul Singh and ors. vs. State of Gujarat (1984) 4 SCC 59 (by 3 Judges)

(iv) Bhagwati Prasad Jhunhunwala & ors.vs. UCO Bank & anr. 2023 Supreme (Cal) 359

29. Sri Abhinav Krishna Srivastava learned counsel for the Kanpur Development Authority(KDA) justified the decision of the trial court on the ground that the plaintiffs failed to prove their case. It was also submitted that the possession of the disputed plot has been handed to the plaintiffs but the learned counsel could not point out any documentary evidence in support of this contention. Learned counsel admitted that the lease deed mentions that the KDA has received the consideration of the lease deed but it does not mention that the possession of the disputed plot was handed to the plaintiffs. Learned counsel could not point out any reason for not handing the possession of the disputed plot to the plaintiffs. Learned counsel admitted that the lease deed executed in favour of the plaintiffs has not been cancelled and no 3rd party right has been created in the disputed plot. Learned counsel was repeatedly asked by the court to specify the reason for not handing the possession of the disputed plot to the plaintiffs, but he failed to give any reply.

30. I have heard the learned counsel of the parties, perused the impugned judgment and the record of the trial court.

31. The following issues arise for determination in this appeal :-

(i) Whether the defendant KDA was justified in not handing the possession of the disputed leased plot to the plaintiffs ?

(ii) Whether the plaintiffs had obtained the plot for commercial purposes for earning their livelihood from it ?

(iii) To what amount of damages are the plaintiffs entitled ?

Conclusion of this Court

32. It is evident that the plaintiffs obtained the disputed leased plot by paying its full premium of ₹ 22,220/- as mentioned in the plaint and the lease deed, the execution of which has not been specifically denied by the defendant KDA, in its written statement. The plaintiffs have filed the original lease deed and also proved it in the court, by examining plaintiff no.1 B.N.Tripathi as PW-1. It is apparent that the lease deed itself contains the terms and conditions of the lease, as such, both the parties were bound by it. This Court has itself perused the lease deed which mentions that the lease has been executed on 3.12.1984 on the terms and conditions printed on it.

33. The lease deed mentions that it is for the purposes of constructing factory building only, as per the building plan approved by the Vice-Chairman of the KDA. The lease deed also records that the consideration of the premium of ₹ 22,220/- has been paid by the plaintiffs to the KDA @ ₹ 10/- per square yard and the area of the leased plot was 2,222 square yards. The lease deed mentions the description of the disputed plot, which is same, as has been mentioned by the plaintiffs in the plaint and its term as 999 years. It is apparent that the lease of the disputed property was executed by the KDA after obtaining full premium in favour of the plaintiffs for a duration of 999 years on 3.12.1984. It is further mentioned in the lease deed that the lessee will commence the construction of factory building on the plot within a period of one year and will completely finish the same within the period of 2 years from the date of the lease deed or such extended period as may be allowed by the KDA. The lease deed also records that it shall be lawful for the KDA in respect of any breach of agreement to re-enter the demised premises. It also mentions that the KDA can determine the lease in the case of failure on the part of the lessee to fulfil its obligations. It is also apparent that the lease deed has been registered subsequently, in the office of sub-registrar Kanpur on 7.12.1984, as such it is legally enforceable and admissible in evidence. It is also apparent that no oral evidence can be adduced contrary to the terms of the lease deed.

34. The defendant KDA has averred in its written statement that the plaintiff failed to pay the entire dues of the KDA, which is not true, because the lease deed itself mentions that the plaintiffs have paid the entire premium of the lease amounting to ₹ 22,220/- to the KDA, which has also been accepted by the KDA in the lease deed, at the time of its execution and registration, as such, the assertion of KDA that the entire amount of dues was not paid by the plaintiffs, is not tenable and is liable to be rejected.

35. It is the specific case of the plaintiffs that apart from the premium of the lease amounting to ₹ 22,220/- interest at the rate of 15% per annum was also demanded by KDA from them, which was deposited under protest by the plaintiffs. The plaintiffs have specifically averred that they deposited an amount of ₹ 44,420.22 under protest with KDA and subsequently, for reclaiming it they filed O.S.no. 335 of 1985 B.N.Tripathi and another vs. KDA and another, which was decreed by the court on 17.5.1994, and the KDA was directed to refund the amount of ₹ 44,420.22 by the court. The plaintiffs have filed the certified copy of the above judgment dated 17.5.1994, which clearly mentions that the disputed plot was purchased in auction by the plaintiffs by making highest bid, which was confirmed in favour of plaintiffs on 26.4.1967. It is apparent that O.S. no. 335 of 1985 was filed by the plaintiffs after the execution of lease deed on 3.12.1984 in their favour by the KDA, for recovering the excess amount paid by them to the KDA. The above judgment specifically records that the demand of interest by the KDA from 8.1.1967 to 9.11.1984 was not lawful, and the defendants should have executed the lease deed just after 9.11.1984, but it was executed on 3.12.1984.

36. It is apparent that the lease deed itself mentions that the defendant KDA has received the entire premium of ₹ 22,220/-from the plaintiffs and the additional demand of interest @15% per annum amounting to ₹ 44,420.22 was found illegal by the Court of 11th Additional District Judge, Kanpur Nagar in O.S. no. 335 of 1985, as such, there is no force in the contention of the defendant KDA that the plaintiffs have not paid the entire consideration of the lease deed to the KDA.

37. The Apex Court in the case of Iswar Bhai C.Patel vs.Harihar Behera (1999) 3 SCC 457 has observed as under :-

"17..... Having not entered into the witness box and having not presented himself for cross-examination, an adverse presumption has to be drawn against him on the basis of the principles contained in Illustration (g) of Section 114 of the Evidence Act, 1872."

38. The Apex Court in the case of Vidyadhar vs. Manikrao and Anr. (1999) 3 SCC 573 has again reiterated that where a party to the suit does not appear in the witness box and states his own case on oath and does not offer himself to be cross-examined by the other side, a presumption would arise that the case set up by him is not correct.

39. The next controversy is regarding the possession of the disputed plot. The plaintiffs allege that its possession was not handed to them, whereas, as per the KDA the possession was handed to the plaintiffs. It is apparent that the KDA has neither adduced any documentary nor any oral evidence in order to prove the averments of its written statement, as such, the contention of the KDA remains unproved. No official of the KDA has entered in the witness box to prove the case of KDA on oath, as pleaded in the written statement and offer himself for cross-examination by the plaintiffs. In view of the above, an adverse presumption has to be drawn against the KDA, on the basis of principles contained in Section 114(g) of the Evidence Act,1872, that the case set up by the KDA is false.

40. The terms and conditions of the lease deed does not mention anything about the possession of the disputed plot. It is further apparent that the burden is upon the KDA to prove that the possession of the disputed plot was handed by it to the plaintiffs but that burden has not been discharged by it. The KDA could have filed the possession memo, which is prepared at the time of handing of possession to the lessee, which is also signed by 2 witnesses. By producing the possession memo and examining its witnesses in the court, the KDA could have proved that it has handed over the possession of the disputed plot to the plaintiffs, but no such evidence was led by the KDA. Mere bald assertion by the KDA in its written statement is not sufficient to prove that it has handed the possession of the disputed plot to the plaintiffs.

41. It is further apparent that no valid reason has been mentioned by the KDA in its written statement for not handing the possession of the disputed plot to the plaintiffs. It is apparent that the lease deed is silent as to the duration within which the possession was to be handed to the plaintiffs after the execution of the lease deed.

42. It is the specific case of the plaintiffs that they obtained the leased plot for commercial purposes, for earning their livelihood and for the sustenance of their family. The lease deed also mentions that the lease was for construction of a factory, which was to be constructed within a period of 2 years, after getting the building plan approved from the KDA within a period of one year. It also mentions that the KDA had the authority to terminate the lease in violation of the terms and conditions of the lease and re-enter the disputed plot. It also mentions that the KDA was entitled to claim damages for the violation of the terms and conditions of the lease by the plaintiffs.

43. It is also apparent from the documentary and oral evidence of the plaintiffs that after the execution of lease deed on 3.12.1984 they had continuously written letters to the KDA demanding possession of the disputed plot. The plaintiffs have filed a copy of the letters sent to the KDA between the year 1985 till the filing of the suit, along with the registered post receipts, which proved that the plaintiffs were continuously asserting their rights and demanding possession of the disputed plot. It is further evident that the plaintiffs letters on the above subject were never replied by the KDA, to specify the reason why possession was not being given to the plaintiffs. It is not the case of the KDA that they had duly communicated to the plaintiffs the reason for not handing over the possession of the disputed plot. The KDA could have proved the above fact by adducing evidence, but no such evidence was led by it. It is further apparent that the plaintiffs, prior to the filing of the instant suit, filed a Writ Petition no.25403 of 2006 Smt.Yugrani Devi and another vs. State of U.P. and others for obtaining possession of the disputed plot, which was dismissed by a Division Bench of this Court on 9.5.2006, with the observation that the plaintiffs can file a suit in the subordinate Court in this regard. In the light of the above evidence on record, the conclusion of the trial court that the plaintiffs have failed to prove what steps were taken by them for getting possession of the disputed plot and if any action was taken by them, then what reply was submitted by the KDA, is a perverse finding.

44. It is apparent that the plaintiffs have taken all possible steps, they could have taken to get the possession of the disputed plot. It is apparent that the KDA has neither taken the plea of limitation nor any issue has been framed on it, as such, the question of limitation is not involved in the suit.

45. It is apparent from the above analysis that the trial court has not cared to go through the terms and condition mentioned in the lease deed, and the documentary evidence on record and due to this fatal error, has recorded a series of perverse findings such as □ that the plaintiffs failed to prove the terms and conditions of the lease as well as, when the possession was to be handed to them; the plaintiffs failed to prove why the possession of the disputed plot was not handed to them by the KDA; the plaintiffs never complained to the KDA that the possession was not handed to them; the plaintiffs failed to prove what amount was required to be paid after the execution of the lease deed in their favour ; the plaintiffs have not filed the terms and conditions of the KDA, any agreement or the scheme, due to which, the plaintiffs have failed to prove their case and the plaintiffs have also suppressed and concealed material facts from the Court, which they were bound to disclose. It is apparent that all the above findings recorded by the trial court are perverse, because the trial court has not cared to go through the plaint averments, written statement of the KDA, lease deed, the terms and conditions mentioned in it, the correspondence undertaken by the plaintiffs with the KDA and the judgment of O.S. no. 335 of 1985. Had the trial court gone through the above pleadings and documents carefully, then, perhaps the findings of the trial court could have been different. It is apparent that the trial court has failed to discharge its duties lawfully, and has passed a perverse judgment, which is legally unsustainable.

46. It is apparent that the plaintiffs have been deprived from the possession of the disputed plot, without any valid reason by the KDA. It is further apparent that the plaintiffs obtained the disputed plot for commercial purposes, for earning their livelihood, but since the possession of the plot was not handed to them, the plaintiffs could neither construct the factory on the disputed plot and start the business nor earn anything from it. The plaintiffs purpose of obtaining the plot was frustrated deliberately by the KDA, for which, the plaintiffs are entitled to get damages, for the lost profits they would have generated from the business, they had intended to commence on the disputed plot. From the evidence on record, it is proved, that the plaintiffs registered their business in the name and style of 'Narayan Krishi Yantra Udyog' with the Directorate of Industries, State of Uttar Pradesh, on 21.10.1992. The plaintiffs also got prepared the project report for manufacturing agricultural implements such as cultivator, sprayer, paddy thresher, leveller, disc-harrow, etc. which was filed and proved before the trial court, according to which, from the alleged business they would have earned a monthly profit of ₹ 13,700/- against which no contra evidence has been led by the KDA. In view of the above unrebutted evidence on record, more particularly, when the trial court has not examined this issue on merits, this Court has to determine what amount of reasonable damages could be awarded to the plaintiffs against the KDA, in the above facts and circumstances.

47. The Apex Court in the case of Maula Bux (supra) has held that in every case of breach of contract the person aggrieved by the breach is not required to prove actual loss or damage suffered by him before he can claim a decree and the Court is competent to award reasonable compensation in case of breach even if no actual damage is proved to have been suffered in consequence of the breach of contract. In case of breach of some contracts it may be impossible for the Court to assess compensation arising from breach, while in other cases compensation can be calculated in accordance with established rules. Where the Court is unable to assess the compensation, the sum named by the parties if it be regarded as a genuine preestimate may be taken into consideration as the measure of reasonable compensation, but not if the sum named is in the nature of penalty. Where loss in terms of money can be determined, the party claiming compensation must prove the loss suffered by him.

48. The Apex Court in the case of M/s A.T. Brij Paul Singh (supra) has held that in a works contract, if the party entrusting the work commits breach of the contract, the contractor would be entitled to claim damages for loss of profit which he expected to earn by undertaking the works contract. What must be the measure of profit and what proof should be tendered to sustain the claim are different matters, but the claim under this head is certainly admissible. It was further held that while estimating the loss of profit that can be claimed for the breach of contract by the other side, it would be unnecessary to go into the minutest details of the work executed in relation to the value of the works contract. A broad evaluation would be sufficient.

49. A Division Bench of the Calcutta High Court in the case of Bhagwati Prasad Jhunjhunwala (supra) has held that mesne profit is conceptualised in the form of a damage which is to be determined on a case to case basis. The broad principles for determining the mesne profit is firstly that the defendant is in actual possession of the decretal property. Secondly, such possession is wrongful; thirdly, the person in wrongful occupation have actually received or might with ordinarily diligent(sic) have received a profit because of his wrongful occupation of the immovable property and fourthly, any improvement made by a person in wrongful occupation shall not be included in the mesne profit. There is no quarrel on fact that upon expiration of period of lease by efflux of time, the respondent continued in possession till the actual delivery of possession was given to the appellants. The period between expiry of lease and the delivery of actual possession cannot be assumed as lawful but the possession during such period is wrongful and, therefore, the mesne profit /damages are to be determined and it is a liability of the person in wrongful occupation to compensate a person a profit which he derived or might have derived during such wrongful possession.

50. It was further held that the decree for mesne profits/damages is in effect a money decree and the moment the interest on such profit is imbibed within the definition given under Section 2(12) CPC, the rate of interest on such mesne profit should not exceed 6% per annum. The trial court committed an error in not awarding the interest from the date of the decree till its actual payment.

51. The plaintiffs have filed the project report of the proposed business in the name and style of 'Narayan Krishi Yantra Udyog', which was to be established for manufacturing agricultural implements on the disputed plot, a total investment of ₹ 3,46,800/- was to be incurred for establishing the factory which included cost of building, plant and machinery and working capital, a monthly sale of ₹ 90,000/- was expected and after deducting the cost of monthly production ₹ 76,300/-, a monthly profit of ₹ 13,700/- was expected to be generated from the business, from which they were deprived. The KDA has not led any evidence to dispute the above project report and estimation of profit, submitted by the plaintiffs, which remains uncontroverted. It is further apparent that the estimate submitted by the plaintiffs cannot be minutely examined by this Court.

52. It is further apparent that this issue has not been examined by the trial court but at this stage, after about 19 years of litigation, the matter cannot be remanded to the trial court for the assessment of damages, which will further prolong the agony of the plaintiffs. It is apparent that plaintiff no. 2 Yugrani Devi has died during the pendency of the suit, whereas, plaintiff no.1 B.N.Tripathi is almost 90 years old, as such, this Court has examined the quantum of damages to which the plaintiffs are legally entitled in the facts and circumstances of the case.

53. This Court is satisfied that the quantum of profit which was disclosed by the project report submitted by the plaintiffs, was fair and reasonable. It is also apparent that the plaintiffs are legally entitled to the loss of profit they were expected to earn, from the alleged business. This Court is also conscious that in the business, generation of profit is never guaranteed, sometimes there is a loss, sometimes there is a profit, and even the quantum of profit/loss is not assured, but keeping in view the long duration of more than 41 years, for which the plaintiffs have been deprived of the possession of the disputed plot it would be fair that they are awarded damages at the rate of ₹ 13,700/- per month, along with pendente lite and future interest @ 6% per annum.

54. From the perusal of the lease deed, it is apparent that, the plaintiffs were supposed to get the building plan of the proposed factory sanctioned as per the applicable bye laws of KDA and start construction of the factory building within one year, which was to be completely finished within a period of 2 years from the date of lease, or such extended time granted by the KDA. It is apparent that the construction of the factory was supposed to be completed within a maximum period of 2 years from obtaining the possession of the plot. In view of this, the plaintiffs are not entitled to claim damages from the date of the execution of the lease deed i.e. 3.12.1984. It is further pertinent to mention here that in the meanwhile the plaintiffs also submitted the building plan of the proposed factory, which was sanctioned by the KDA on 27.2.1998 but neither the sanctioned building plan nor the possession of the disputed plot was handed to the plaintiffs, hence the construction of factory on it, could not be started.

55. It is further apparent that the plaintiffs have demanded damages of ₹ 5 lakhs towards cost escalation in establishing the factory, due to inflation. It is apparent that the project report was prepared long back in the year 1992 and since then, the cost of establishing factory i.e. building material, labour charges, cement, iron and steel, etc. has considerably increased as such, the amount of ₹ 5 lakhs claimed by the plaintiffs towards cost escalation, is just and reasonable.

56. Since, the possession of the disputed plot was supposed to be handed soon after the execution of the lease in favour of the plaintiffs on 03.12.1984, and thereafter, within a further period of 2 years the plaintiffs were supposed to complete the construction of factory on it, as such, it will be just and reasonable to award damages for the loss of profit at the rate of ₹ 13,700/- per month from 01.7.1987 till the possession of the disputed plot is not handed to the plaintiffs along with pendente lite and future interest at the rate of 6% per annum. The plaintiffs are also entitled to damages towards escalation of cost of establishing the factory of ₹ 5 lakh along with pendente lite and future interest at the rate of 6% per annum, till the payment is made by the KDA.

Conduct of the defendants

57. India is a country governed by rule of law. It is the solemn duty of the State to protect its citizens and abide by the laws but in this case, the officials of the KDA have acted in an arbitrary, illegal and mala fide manner to deny the plaintiffs the possession of the disputed plot for without any reason. This Court repeatedly asked the Counsel of the KDA to disclose why the possession of the disputed plot was not handed to the plaintiffs, but he failed to give any reason. The plaintiffs were running from pillar to post to obtain the possession of the disputed plot but they were helpless against the might of the State and its functionaries. There was no reason whatsoever for the defendants, to deny the plaintiffs the lawful possession of the disputed plot, once they had paid the entire consideration of the lease way back on 03.12.1984. The plaintiffs obtained the plot in auction in the year 1967, being the highest bidder, the lease of which for 999 years was executed on 03.12.1984 by the KDA after getting excess consideration, which was refunded by the intervention of the court after a separate suit was filed by the plaintiffs, are waiting for 41 years to get the possession of their plot, but still only God knows when they will be able to obtain its possession. In the meanwhile, plaintiff no.2 Smt.Yugrani Devi has died on 13.9.2011 and plaintiff no.1 B.N.Tripathi is now almost 90 years old. Since the KDA, is a statutory body of the State, hence the State of Uttar Pradesh is also vicariously liable for the arbitrary, illegal acts committed by the KDA and its officials, in not handing over the possession of the disputed plot to the plaintiffs, without any lawful reason.

58. This Court wants the Hon'ble Chief Minister of the State of Uttar Pradesh to look into this matter and order enquiry to fix negligence of the concerned officials and also to recover the damages from them, in accordance with law, which has been awarded to the plaintiffs along with interest, since taxpayers money is involved, and the State must also ensure appropriate disciplinary action against them, for their alleged illegal acts, which were unwarranted, arbitrary and whimsical, which have tarnished the image of the State and its functionary in the public. The State being the protector of the citizens and upholder of the laws, it is never expected from the functionaries of the State that they would act in such an irresponsible and illegal manner.

59. It is apparent that the plaintiffs have been unnecessarily forced to file the suit at the fag end of their lives and despite doing everything in their control, they have been deprived from the lawful possession of the leased plot. There was no reason whatsoever for the defendants, to deny the plaintiffs the lawful possession of the disputed plot, once they had paid the entire consideration of the lease way back on 03.12.1984. In view of the above facts, the plaintiffs are also entitled to get exemplary costs against the defendants.

60. For the aforesaid reasons, the judgment and decree passed by the trial court being perverse, is liable to be set aside.

61. Accordingly, the appeal is allowed with costs throughout. The judgment and decree passed by the trial court in O.S.no. 243 of 2009 dated 20.4.2016 is set aside, and the plaintiffs suit is decreed, jointly and severally, against the defendants, for the following reliefs :-

(A) A decree of mandatory injunction is granted in favour of the plaintiffs against the defendants, whereby the defendants are directed to deliver the vacant and physical possession of plot no. 56, Block 'A', Scheme 39, Jajmau, Kanpur, admeasuring 2,222 square yards, to the plaintiffs within a period of one month from today.

(B) The plaintiffs are entitled to get damages for the loss of profit they would have earned from the business at the rate of ₹ 13,700/- per month from 01.7.1987 till the actual and vacant possession of the disputed plot is not handed to them, along with pendente lite and future interest @ 6% per annum, till realisation.

(C)The plaintiffs are entitled to get damages for the cost of escalation for establishing the factory on the disputed plot due to inflation amounting to ₹ 5 lakhs with pendente lite and future interest @ 6% per annum, till its payment by the defendant.

(D)The defendants are further directed to deliver the sanctioned building plan dated 27.2.1998 regarding the disputed plot to the plaintiffs, for enabling them to construct the factory on the disputed plot.

(E)The plaintiffs are also entitled to costs of the suit and the appeal.

(F) The plaintiffs are also entitled to exemplary costs of ₹ 2 lakh from the defendants under Section 35 CPC, for the harassment, suffering, pain and agony caused to them, in pursuing this litigation.

(G) The defendants are directed to handover the vacant and physical possession of the disputed plot to the plaintiffs and further pay the damages etc. within a period of one month from today, failing which, the plaintiffs will be entitled to claim them through Court, by initiating execution proceedings.

62. Registrar (Compliance) is directed to send a copy of this order to the Chief Secretary, Government of Uttar Pradesh, Lucknow for information and necessary action.

Issue(s) for consideration

(a) Whether recommendations of the Internal Complaint Committee made in terms of Section 13(3) of the Act of 2013 are mandatory or directory?

(b) Whether the impugned orders of suspension from service are in consonance with Rule 4 of UP Government Servants (Discipline and Appeal) Rules of 1999?

Headnotes

A. Service Law – U.P. Government Servants (Discipline and Appeal) Rules 1999: Rule 4, 7; Sexual Harassment of Women at Workplace (Prevention, Prohibition and Redressal) Act, 2013: Section 11, 13(4) - On 27.07.2025, an official complaint detailing severe allegations of prolonged sexual harassment was lodged by a newly promoted Sales Tax Officer against another departmental officer (the delinquent).

Acting under the Act of 2013, the state administration immediately constituted an Internal Complaints Committee (ICC) on 28.07.2025, appointing the petitioners as members.

By a letter dated 29.07.2025, the Joint Commissioner (Establishment) strictly directed the ICC to complete proceedings and submit its final report within the same day. The ICC recorded statements from the complainant, the delinquent, and various witnesses. On 31.07.2025, the ICC submitted a report entirely exonerating the delinquent, concluding that his problematic actions did not explicitly fall under the statutory definition of "sexual harassment." (Para 48)

Following the exoneration, on 02.08.2025, the complainant submitted a pen drive containing an audio recording of the actual ICC proceedings to the state authorities. She alleged that the committee members exhibited blatant hostility and acted in a hyper-partisan manner to actively shield the perpetrator. On 03.08.2025, the state suspended the delinquent employee despite the ICC's clearance. Concurrently, via impugned administrative orders dated 05.08.2025 and 06.08.2025, the state placed the petitioners (the ICC members) under suspension from service in contemplation of full-scale departmental disciplinary inquiries for structural bias and misconduct.

B.(i) Rule of purposive interpretation - A statute or a provision must be construed w.r.t. its intent, which is meaningful and fulfills the object and purport of such intention. The doctrine also indicates that meaning of words used in a provision is required to be comprehended to advance the purpose of object and to remedy the mischief, if any, which it sought to remedy. Context includes reading the statute or the provision as a whole with the surrounding circumstances so that its intention is in consonance with the policy in order to give it a meaningful object. (Para 30, 31)

In the present case it transpires that the intent of legislature and the wordings of the Act confer complete power upon the complaints committee not only to inquire into the complaint of sexual harassment but also to make its recommendations in terms of Ss. 13 and 14 of the Act of 2013 which are required to be complied with by the employer or the district officer, treating such a recommendation to be a misconduct. Section 26 (1)(b) of the Act also imposes penalty upon the employer for non-compliance of recommendations made by the complaint committee. Provision of appeal in Section 18 of the Act has been provided only against the recommendations of the complaints committee and not against action taken by the employer in terms thereof. (Para 32)

To give a meaningful object to the Act of 2013 so that it ensures a smooth and harmonious working and is also reasonable, it can thus be deduced from the aforesaid provision that the recommendations made by the complaints committee u/s 13 or 14 of the Act of 2013 are mandatory in nature and not merely recommendatory or directory. (Para 33)

(ii) Discrepancy in language used in Section 12(3) r/w Section 13 of the Act - No doubt u/s 12(3), it has been directed that the employer shall implement recommendations made u/s 12(1) of the Act with the said words missing in Section 13 of the Act but nonetheless in view of surrounding circumstances, pertaining to appeal u/s 18 only from the recommendations of complaints committee and penalty clause u/s 26(1)(b), the nature of report submitted by committee u/Ss 13 and 14 of the Act are conclusive and require implementation by the employer without any further action contemplated. (Para 34)

The report submitted by complaints committee although indicated as recommendation, nonetheless is held to be mandatory in nature. (Para 35)

C. Rule 4 of the Rules of 1999, clearly prescribes that suspension of an employee can be resorted to in contemplation of departmental inquiry provided the charges levelled against the delinquent are serious enough to merit major penalty. (Para 45)

It is evident that petitioners have been suspended from service pending departmental proceedings on the allegation that they made a concerted effort to exonerate the delinquent by not following their duties and responsibilities. (Para 41, 43, 46, 47)

C.(i) Disciplinary action for exercise of quasi judicial power - Where a prima facie finding of misconduct is recorded, departmental proceedings can ensue.

The possibility on a given set of facts to arrive at a different conclusion is not a ground to indite a judicial officer for taking one view. The correctness or legality of the decision cannot be a ground to proceed departmentally against a person exercising quasi judicial power and it is only the conduct in discharge of duties which can form the basis. The law encapsulated is that judicial authorities have freedom to record and pass judgments as per material available before them in a free and impartial manner for which they cannot be proceeded against unless there is a prima facie material to show recklessness or misconduct in the discharge of such duty which is unbecoming of the post which is being held. The same would be applicable in case if such person has acted in order to unduly favour a party or is actuated by corrupt motive. (Para 49, 51, 54, 56)

Applicability - Since the Internal Complaints or Local Committee exercises quasi-judicial powers and is expected to make its recommendations in a free, fair and impartial manner placing reliance on evidence available before them, the aforesaid principle would be squarely applicable. (Para 55)

C.(ii) The impugned orders of suspension have not made any differentiation between the correctness or legality of the decision vis-a-vis conduct of the petitioners in discharge of their duty as members of the committee. The order impugned have been passed without forming any prima facie satisfaction, is clearly cursory in nature and does not indicate any application of mind. (Para 63, 65, 67)

Before proceeding departmentally against any such quasi-judicial power, it is incumbent and imperative upon the disciplinary authority to record a prima facie satisfaction w.r.t. such misconduct in discharge of such quasi-judicial duty which is required to be separated from the correctness or legality of the decision or recommendation as in the present case. (Para 57, 58, 64)

A prima facie satisfaction is imperative for the free, fair and impartial decision by the quasi-judicial authority particularly to ensure that such a quasi-judicial authority does not have the Sword of Damocles hanging over them to be proceeded against departmentally in case their recommendations do not find favour with the authorities. In case such quasi-judicial authorities conduct proceedings under such fear, it would obviate the very purpose of the act itself and therefore it is essential that such quasi-judicial authorities as the internal complaints or the local committees act without such a fear. (Para 59, 60)

While this court lauds stand of State Government and there can be no gainsaying that aspect of sexual harassment in the workplace is required to be nipped in the bud by preventive and corrective steps being taken, at the same time it is also essential that the proceedings of the Internal Complaints or the Local Committee should be fair, transparent and without any aspect of fear or favour in the minds of the members of a committee. (Para 61)

Present proceedings pertained only to suspension of service of petitioners and not the initiation of disciplinary proceedings by issuance of charge-sheet and therefore, the impugned orders are required to be decided in terms of provisions of Rule 4 of Rules of 1999. Proviso to sub-section (1) thereof clearly indicates the conditions under which a government servant can be placed under suspension. The said proviso stipulates that suspension should not be resorted to unless allegations so serious that in the event of being established may ordinarily warrant major penalty. (Para 62)

D. U/Rule 7 of the Rules of 2013, the manner of inquiry into complaint has been delineated with a time frame also being indicated, which appears to have been completely ignored by the opposite parties while constituting the committee vide order dated 28.07.2025 in which the direction of state government has been indicated to the committee that it should submit its report on the same day itself. (Para 66)

The impugned orders dated 05.08.2025 and 06.08.2025 are quashed, granting liberty to authority to pass orders afresh, in accordance with observations and directions. (Para 67)

Writ petition allowed. (E-4)

Appearances for Parties

For Petitioner(s): Sharad Pathak

For Respondent(s): C.S.C.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Manish Mathur, J.)

1. Heard Mr. Sharad Pathak learned senior counsel assisted by Ms. Priya Singh learned counsel for petitioner and Mr. S.M. Singh Royekwar learned Additional Advocate General assisted by Mr. Akash Sinha learned state counsel for opposite parties.

2. Writ A No. 9112 of 2025 and writ A No. 9114 of 2025 having the same cause of action had earlier been consolidated and are being adjudicated upon by this common judgment and order.

3. Petition has been filed challenging orders dated 5th August 2025 and 6th August 2025 whereby petitioners have been suspended from service in contemplation of departmental inquiries.

4. It is submitted that upon a complaint being made on 27th July 2025 regarding allegation of sexual harassment against another officer (hereinafter referred to as the delinquent) under provisions of Sexual Harassment of Women at Workplace (Prevention, Prohibition and Redressal) Act, 2013 (hereinafter referred to as 'Act of 2013') an Internal Complaints Committee was constituted on 28th July 2025 with petitioners being included as members thereof. Vide letter dated 29th July 2025, the Joint Commissioner (Establishment) directed the committee to submit its report within the same day. In terms of the aforesaid directions, proceedings under the Act of 2013 were initiated and statement of complainant, of the delinquent employee and other witnesses were recorded on the same date on 27th July 2025. Application was submitted by the delinquent seeking time to give a reply for which a day's time was granted and was subsequently submitted on 30th July 2025. On the basis of aforesaid proceedings, the committee submitted its report dated 31st July 2025 exonerating the delinquent whereafter the delinquent employee was placed under suspension from service vide order dated 3rd August 2025 and subsequently vide impugned orders, the petitioners who were members of the Internal Complaints Committee were also suspended from service pending departmental proceedings.

5. It is submitted that as per the Act of 2013, the report submitted by Internal Complaints Committee was only recommendatory in nature and was subject either to acceptance or rejection by the head of the department. It is submitted that the impugned order does not advert as to whether the said report was ever rejected by the head of department and a perusal of impugned order will also reveal that there is no specific or even prima facie satisfaction recorded that any deliberate attempt was made by the entire committee for absolving the delinquent. Learned counsel further submits that even otherwise the impugned order is against provisions of Rule 4 of the U.P. Government Servants (Discipline and Appeal) Rules 1999 inasmuch as the proceedings may not result in any major penalty.

6. It is also submitted that initiation of departmental inquiry only on the basis of report submitted by the committee sets a very dangerous precedent since it may have the consequence of such committees being compelled to submit a tailor made report as per wishes of employer instead of an impartial one.

7. Learned counsel further submits that it is settled law that a quasi-judicial authority should not be proceeded against departmentally merely on the basis of opinion submitted by it since it has larger implications with regard to fairness of proceedings. It is submitted that pressure exerted upon the committee is evident from the order constituting the committee indicating a report to be submitted within one day although Rule 7 of the Rules of 2013 framed under the Act clearly stipulate a timeline for conclusion of said proceedings. Learned counsel has placed reliance on following judgments to buttress his submissions:-

Union of India & others Vs. J. Ahmed, (1979) 2 SCC 286; P.C. Joshi Vs. State of U.P. & others (2001) 6 SCC 491; Krishna Prasad Verma Vs. State Of Bihar & Others (2019) 10 SCC 640; Sadhna Chaudhary v. State of U.P & Another (2020) 11 SCC 760; Amresh Srivastava Vs. State Of M.P & Others (2025) SCC Online 693; Nirbhay Singh Suliya v. State of M.P & another, Civil Appeal no. 40 of 2026 (arising out of SLP (C) No. 24570 of 2024

8. Mr. S. M. Singh, Royekwar learned counsel appearing on behalf of state has refuted submissions advanced by learned counsel for petitioner with submission that the complainant was promoted as a Sales Tax Officer on 27th February 2025 whereafter the delinquent contacted her on phone even before she joined and after facing multiple episodes of sexual harassment by the delinquent, she was able to muster courage to lodge a formal complaint on 27th July 2025. Taking cognizance of the said complaint, the state government directed Commissioner (State Tax) to submit his report. Directions for constitution of the internal complaints committee were also issued.

9. It is submitted that the committee thereafter required Smt. Vibha Pandey, Joint Commissioner (Executive) to submit her testimony regarding the allegations. The said lady vide letter dated 30th July 2025 unequivocally accepted the fact that the complainant had earlier as well reported her harassment by the delinquent.

10. Learned counsel submits that in its report dated 31st July 2025, the committee has exonerated the delinquent ignoring testimony of Smt. Vibha Pandey and by taking into account the testimony of irrelevant witnesses. It is further submitted that subsequently on 2nd August 2025, the complainant presented an audio recording of the proceedings of committee and submitted the same through a pen drive as she apprehended an incorrect recommendation judging by the hostile conduct of members of the committee. He submits that it is in pursuance thereof that taking true version of the proceedings of committee as available in the audio, recommendation for suspension of the members of committee was made on 3rd August 2025 whereafter impugned orders have been passed.

11. Learned counsel submits that there was a deliberate and intentional effort on the part of members of the committee to exonerate the delinquent employee since the committee has conveniently disregarded the written testimony of Smt. Vibha Pandey, Joint Commissioner (Executive).

12. Learned counsel has further submitted that members of committee themselves were privy to the conduct of delinquent and had the opportunity to know about the sexual harassment being faced by complainant on multiple previous occasions but despite having such knowledge, the members of committee acted in a partisan manner and proceeded to protect the delinquent. He therefore submits that it is in view of such efforts to exonerate the delinquent employee that disciplinary proceedings have been resorted to and is not only on the basis of decision taken by the committee.

13. He submits that disciplinary proceedings can be initiated against officers even if the conduct is an exercise of quasi-judicial powers and that courts should not ordinarily interfere with an order of suspension which in the present case is justified considering gravity of charges. It is submitted that in case the delinquents are permitted to join in the same office, it may result in mischief and tampering of evidence.

14. Learned counsel has further submitted that Section 13(4) of the Act of 2013 mandates that the employer or the district officer shall act upon the recommendation within 60 days of its receipt and therefore the recommendation of the committee would be mandatory in nature. He further submits that it is the prerogative of the employer to discipline the workforce and incidents of sexual harassment should not go unpunished. Any attempt to protect such perpetrators should be dealt with in an exemplary manner to ensure deterrence. Learned counsel has also adverted to paragraph 4 of the counter affidavit to indicate discrepancies in the conduct of proceedings by the committee to submit that such discrepancies clearly indicated a deliberate attempt on the part of members of the committee to protect the delinquent employee. He submits that report with regard to preliminary inquiry against petitioners has already been produced in sealed cover before this court. Learned counsel has placed reliance on following judgments to buttress his case:-

Union of India and Others Versus KK Dhawan, (1993) 2 SCC 56; Zunjarrao Bhikaji Nagarkar Versus Union of India and Others, (1999) 7 SCC 409; Union of India And Another Versus Ashok Kumar Aggarwal, (2013) 16 SCC 147 and State of Orissa Versus Bimal Kumar Mohanty, (1994) 4 SCC 126

15. Upon consideration of submissions advanced by learned counsel for parties and perusal of material on record, the questions which are required to be adjudicated upon are, therefore, as follows:-

A) Whether recommendations of the Internal Complaint Committee made in terms of Section 13(3) of the Act of 2013 are mandatory or directory?

B) Whether the impugned orders of suspension from service are in consonance with Rule 4 of UP Government Servants (Discipline and Appeal) Rules of 1999”

Answer regarding question No. A

16. Upon consideration of submissions advanced by learned counsel for parties and perusal of material on record, for purposes of adjudication of this question, provisions of Sections 11, 13, 18 and 26 require examination along with Rules 7 and 9 of the Rules of 2013 framed under this Act.

17. The provisions are as follows:-

Section 11

" 11. Inquiry into complaint. (1) Subject to the provisions of section 10, the Internal Committee or the Local Committee, as the case may be, shall, where the respondent is an employee, proceed to make inquiry into the complaint in accordance with the provisions of the service rules applicable to the respondent and where no such rules exist, in such manner as may be prescribed or in case of a domestic worker, the Local Committee shall, if prima facie case exist, forward the complaint to the police, within a period of seven days for registering the case under section 509 of the Indian Penal Code (45 of 1860), and any other relevant provisions of the said Code where applicable:

Provided that where the aggrieved woman informs the Internal Committee or the Local Committee, as the case may be, that any term or condition of the settlement arrived at under sub-section (2) of section 10 has not been complied with by the respondent, the Internal Committee or the Local Committee shall proceed to make an inquiry into the complaint or, as the case may be, forward the complaint to the police:

Provided further that where both the parties are employees, the parties shall, during the course of inquiry, be given an opportunity of being heard and a copy of the findings shall be made available to both the parties enabling them to make representation against the findings before the Committee.

(2) Notwithstanding anything contained in section 509 of the Indian Penal Code (45 of 1860), the court may, when the respondent is convicted of the offence, order payment of such sums as it may consider appropriate, to the aggrieved woman by the respondent, having regard to the provisions of section 15.

(3) For the purpose of making an inquiry under sub-section (1), the Internal Committee or the Local Committee, as the case may be, shall have the same powers as are vested in a civil court under the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 (5 of 1908) when trying a suit in respect of the following matters, namely:-

- (a) summoning and enforcing the attendance of any person and examining him on oath,
 - (b) requiring the discovery and production of documents; and
 - (c) any other matter which may be prescribed.
- (4) The inquiry under sub-section (1) shall be completed within a period of ninety days."

Section 13

"13. Inquiry report (1) On the completion of an inquiry under this Act, the Internal Committee or the Local Committee, as the case may be, shall provide a report of its findings to the employer, or as the case may be, the District Officer within a period of ten days from the date of completion of the inquiry and such report be made available to the concerned parties.

(2) Where the Internal Committee or the Local Committee, as the case may be, arrives at the conclusion that the allegation against the respondent has not been proved, it shall recommend to the employer and the District Officer that no action is required to be taken in the matter.

(3) Where the Internal Committee or the Local Committee, as the case may be, arrives at the conclusion that the allegation against the respondent has been proved, it shall recommend to the employer or the District Officer, as the case may be-

(i) to take action for sexual harassment as a misconduct in accordance with the provisions of the service rules applicable to the respondent or where no such service rules have been made, in such manner as may be prescribed;

(ii) to deduct, notwithstanding anything in the service rules applicable to the respondent, from the salary or wages of the respondent such sum as it may consider appropriate to be paid to the aggrieved woman or to her legal heirs, as it may determine, in accordance with the provisions of section 15:

Provided that in case the employer is unable to make such deduction from the salary of the respondent due to his being absent from duty or cessation of employment it may direct to the respondent to pay such sum to the aggrieved woman:

Provided further that in case the respondent fails to pay the sum referred to in clause (ii), the Internal Committee or, as the case may be, the Local Committee may forward the order for recovery of the sum as an arrear of land revenue to the concerned District Officer.

(4) The employer or the District Officer shall act upon the recommendation within sixty days of its receipt by him."

Section 18

"18. Appeal. - (1) Any person aggrieved from the recommendations made under sub-section (2) of section 13 or under clause (i) or clause (ii) of sub-section (3) of section 13 or sub-section (1) or sub-section (2) of section 14 or section 17 or non-implementation of such recommendations may prefer an appeal to the court or tribunal in accordance with the provisions of the service rules applicable to the said person or where no such service rules exist then, without prejudice to provisions contained in any other law for the time being in force, the person aggrieved may prefer an appeal in such manner as may be prescribed.

(2) The appeal under sub-section (1) shall be preferred within a period of ninety days of the recommendations."

Section 26

"26. Penalty for non-compliance with provisions of Act (1) Where the employer fails to-

(a) constitute an Internal Committee under sub-section (1) of section 4;

(b) take action under sections 13, 14 and 22; and

(c) contravenes or attempts to contravene or abets contravention of other provisions of this Act or any rules made thereunder, he shall be punishable with fine which may extend to fifty thousand rupees.

(2) If any employer, after having been previously convicted of an offence punishable under this Act subsequently commits and is convicted of the same offence, he shall be liable to-

(i) twice the punishment, which might have been imposed on a first conviction, subject to the punishment being maximum provided for the same offence: Provided that in case a higher punishment is prescribed under any other law for the time being in force, for the offence for which the accused is being prosecuted, the court shall take due cognizance of the same while awarding the punishment;

(ii) cancellation, of his licence or withdrawal, or non-renewal, or approval, or cancellation of the registration, as the case may be, by the Government or local authority required for carrying on his business or activity."

Rule 7

"7. Manner of inquiry into complaint. (1) Subject to the provisions of section 11, at the time of filing the complaint, the complainant shall submit to the Complaints Committee, six copies of the complaint along with supporting documents and the names and addresses of the witnesses.

(2) On receipt of the complaint, the Complaints Committee shall send one of the copies received from the aggrieved woman under sub-rule (1) to the respondent within a period of seven working days.

(3) The respondent shall file his reply to the complaints along with his list of documents, and names and addresses of witnesses, within a period not exceeding ten working days from the date of receipt of the documents specified under sub-rule (1).

(4) The Complaints Committee shall make inquiry into the complaint in accordance with the principles of natural justice.

(5) The Complaints Committee shall have the right to terminate the inquiry proceedings or to give an ex-parte decision on the complaint, if the complainant or respondent fails, within sufficient cause to present herself or himself for three consecutive hearings convened by the Chairperson or President Officer, as the case may be:

Provided that such termination or ex parte order may not be passed without giving a notice in writing, fifteen days in advance, to the party concerned.

(6) The parties shall not be allowed to bring in any legal practitioner to represent them in their case at any stage of the proceedings before the Complaints Committee

(7) In conducting the inquiry, a minimum of three Members of the Complaints Committee including the President Officer or the Chairperson, as the case may be, shall be present."

Rule 9

"9. Manner of taking action for sexual harassment.-Except in cases where service rules exist, where the Complaints Committee arrives at the conclusion that the allegation against the respondent has been proved, it shall recommend to the employer or the District Officer, as the case may be, to take any action including a written apology, warning, reprimand or censure, withholding of promotion, withholding of pay rise or increments, terminating the respondent from service or undergoing a counselling session or carrying out community service."

18. Section 11 of the Act of 2013 pertains to inquiry into complaint with sub section (1) indicating that the inquiry contemplated therein is to be in accordance with provisions of service rules applicable upon the delinquent or in case of absence of such rules, in such manner as may be prescribed. The Local Committee has also been granted a power to forward the complaint to police for registering case under Section 509 IPC, if prima facie case exists.

19. Section 11 (3) of the Act of 2013 indicates that Internal Committee or the Local Committee, as the case may be, for purposes of making an inquiry, shall have the same powers as vested in civil court under the Code of Civil Procedure 1908 pertaining to summoning, enforcing attendance and examination of any person, requiring discovery and production of documents and any other matter.

20. Section 13 pertains to the inquiry report with Section 13(3)(i) granting powers to the Internal Committee or the Local Committee to recommend to the employer or the district officer to take action for sexual harassment as a misconduct in accordance with provisions of service rules or in such manner as may be prescribed, where no such service rules have been made.

21. Thus the aforesaid provision indicates that upon submission of inquiry report, the only power vested in the employer or the district officer is to treat the sexual harassment as a misconduct in case the report is against the delinquent and to act in accordance with provisions of the service rules or in such manner as may be prescribed.

22. A conjoint reading of Sections 11 and 13 of the Act of 2013 therefore is indicative that once the inquiry has been conducted in terms of Section 11 of the Act of 2013, no further inquiry is contemplated under Rule 7 of the U.P. Government Servants (Discipline and Appeal) Rules 1999 which are applicable in the present case or even under any other service rules which may be applicable. The aforesaid sections also indicate that in case a report is submitted against the delinquent, the employer is vested only with the power to take action against the delinquent in accordance with provisions of service rules or as may be prescribed, treating the sexual harassment as a misconduct.

23. Rule 7 of the Rules of 2013 made in terms of the Act of 2013 contemplates the manner of inquiry into complaint and is analogous to the nature and procedure of inquiry contemplated under Rule 7 of the Rules of 1999.

24. Rule 9 of the aforesaid Rules of 2013 indicate the manner of taking action for sexual harassment and confers power upon the complaints committee to recommend the nature and type of action which is to be taken by the employer or the district officer including termination of such employee.

25. It is thus evident from perusal of aforesaid provisions that the nature of inquiry to be conducted into a complaint of sexual harassment by the Internal Committee or the Local Committee in terms of Sections 11, 13 read with rules 7 and 9 of the Rules is conclusive in nature, which does not warrant any further proceedings except for the employer to punish the delinquent employee treating such sexual harassment as a misconduct. The Act does not contemplate any further inquiry at the behest of the employer or the district officer concerned.

26. It is also relevant that Section 18(1) of the Act of 2013 provides for an appeal only against the recommendations made by the committee under Sections 13, 14, 17 or non implementation of the recommendations.

27. It is relevant that there is no appeal provided from any order or action taken by the employer or the district officer as the case may be.

28. Section 26(1)(b) of the Act of 2013 also provides for a penalty in case the employer fails to take action under Sections 13, 14, and 22. The aforesaid provisions again pertain to recommendations made by the committee under Sections 13 and 14 and for the employer to include information in annual report in terms of Section 22 of the Act.

29. The aspect of whether such provisions can be held to be mandatory or merely directory would therefore also require consideration which has been enunciated upon by Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of May George versus Special Tehsildar and others (2010) 13 SCC 98 in the following manner:-

"25. The law on this issue can be summarised to the effect that in order to declare a provision mandatory, the test to be applied is as to whether non-compliance with the provision could render the entire proceedings invalid or not. Whether the provision is mandatory or directory, depends upon the intent of the legislature and not upon the language for which the intent is clothed. The issue is to be examined having regard to the context, subject-matter and object of the statutory provisions in question. The Court may find out as to what would be the consequence which would flow from construing it in one way or the other and as to whether the statute provides for a contingency of the non-compliance with the provisions and as to whether the non-compliance is visited by small penalty or serious consequence would flow therefrom and as to whether a particular interpretation would defeat or frustrate the legislation and if the provision is mandatory, the act done in breach thereof will be invalid."

30. The aforesaid aspect signifies that a statute or a provision must be construed with regard to its intent, which is meaningful and fulfills the object and purport of such intention. The doctrine also indicates that meaning of words used in a provision is required to be comprehended to advance the purpose of object and to remedy the mischief, if any, which it sought to remedy.

Context includes reading the statute or the provision as a whole with the surrounding circumstances so that its intention is in consonance with the policy in order to give it a meaningful object. Aforesaid proposition has been enunciated by Hon'ble the Supreme Court in Vivek Narayan Sharma and others (Demonetisation Case-5 J.) v. Union of India and others reported in (2023) 3 SCC 1 in the following manner:-

"137. A statute must be construed having regard to the legislative intent. It has to be meaningful. A construction which leads to manifest absurdity must not be preferred to a construction which would fulfil the object and purport of the legislative intent"

"148. It is thus clear that it is a settled principle that the modern approach of interpretation is a pragmatic one, and not pedantic. An interpretation which advances the purpose of the Act and which ensures its smooth and harmonious working must be chosen and the other which leads to absurdity, or confusion, or friction or contradiction and conflict between its various provisions, or undermines, or tends to defeat or destroy the basic scheme and purpose of the enactment must be eschewed. The primary and foremost task of the Court in interpreting a statute is to gather the intention of the legislature, actual or imputed. Having ascertained the intention, it is the duty of the Court to strive to so interpret the statute as to promote or advance the object and purpose of the enactment. For this purpose, where necessary, the Court may even depart from the rule that plain words should be interpreted according to their plain meaning. There need be no meek and mute submission to the plainness of the language. To avoid patent injustice, anomaly or absurdity or to avoid invalidation of a law, the court would be justified in departing from the so-called golden rule of construction so as to give effect to the object and purpose of the enactment. Ascertainment of legislative intent is the basic rule of statutory construction"

31. Similarly, in the case of X v. Principal Secretary, Health and Family Welfare Department, Government of NCT of Delhi and another reported in (2023) 9 SCC 433, the Rule of purposive interpretation has been indicated as follows:-

"31. The cardinal principle of the construction of statutes is to identify the intention of the legislature and the true legal meaning of the enactment. The intention of the legislature is derived by considering the meaning of the words used in the statute, with a view to understanding the purpose or object of the enactment, the mischief, and its corresponding remedy that the enactment is designed to actualise. [Justice G.P. Singh. Principles of Statutory Interpretation, (Lexis Nexis, 2016), at p. 12: State of H.P. v Kailash Chand Mahajan, 1992 Supp (2) SCC 351 1992 SCC (L&S) 874; Union of India v Elphinstone Spg. & Wvg Co. Ltd. (2001) 4 SCC 139] Ordinarily, the language used by the legislature is indicative of legislative intent. In Kanai Lal Sur v. Paramnidhi Sadhukhan (Kanai Lal Sur v. Paramnidhi Sadhukhan, 1957 SCC OnLine SC 8: AIR 1957 SC 907), Gajendragadkar, J. (as the learned Chief Justice then was) opined that "the first and primary rule of construction is that the intention of the legislature must be found in the words used by the legislature itself". But when the words are capable of bearing two or more constructions, they should be construed in light of the object and purpose of the enactment. The purposive construction of the provision must be "illuminated by the goal, though guided by the word". [Kanta Goel v. B.P. Pathak, (1977) 2 SCC 814] Aharon Barak opines that in certain circumstances this may indicate giving "an unusual and exceptional meaning to the language and words used. [Aharon Barak, Purposive Interpretation in Law, (Princeton University Press, 2007), at p. 306.]"

32. Upon applicability of aforesaid judgments in the present facts and circumstances it thus transpires that the intent of legislature and the wordings of the Act confer complete power upon the complaints committee not only to inquire into the complaint of sexual harassment but also to make its recommendations in terms of Sections 13 and 14 of the Act of 2013 which are required to be complied with by the employer or the district officer, treating such a recommendation to be a misconduct. As indicated herein above, Section 26 (1)(b) of the Act also imposes penalty upon the employer for non-compliance of recommendations made by the complaint committee. As has also been discussed herein above, provision of appeal in Section 18 of the Act has been provided only against the recommendations of the complaints committee and not against action taken by the employer in terms thereof.

33. In terms of surrounding circumstances, as well as looking into the intention of legislature and to give a meaningful object to the Act of 2013 so that it ensures a smooth and harmonious working and is also reasonable, it can thus be deduced from the aforesaid provision that the recommendations made by the complaints committee under Section 13 or 14 of the Act of 2013 are mandatory in nature and not merely recommendatory or directory.

34. So far as submission of learned counsel for petitioner with regard to discrepancy in language used in Section 12 (3) read with Section 13 of the Act is concerned, no doubt under Section 12(3), it has been directed that the employer shall implement recommendations made under sub section (1) of Section 12 of the Act with the said words missing in Section 13 of the Act but nonetheless in view of surrounding circumstances as discussed herein above pertaining to appeal under Section 18 only from the recommendations of complaints committee and penalty clause under Section 26(1)(b), the nature of report submitted by committee under Sections 13 and 14 of the Act are conclusive and require implementation by the employer without any further action contemplated.

35. In view of discussion made herein above, the report submitted by complaints committee although indicated as recommendation, nonetheless is held to be mandatory in nature.

36. That question No.A therefore is answered against the petitioner and in favour of the opposite parties.

Answer regarding Question No. B

37. Apropos the said question regarding validity of the impugned order of suspension, learned counsel for petitioner has submitted that the order impugned has clearly been passed without application of mind since it does not address or record any prima facie satisfaction with regard to complicity of the petitioners regarding charges levelled against them. It is submitted that the report dated 31st July 2025 has included every fact pleaded before the committee including the objectionable conduct of the delinquent and it is only when the committee came to a definitive conclusion that the complaint did not fall within purview of definition of the term 'sexual harassment' that the report was submitted accordingly. It is further submitted that had there been any intention to save the delinquent, objectionable behavior of the delinquent would not have required to be mentioned. It is further submitted that there is no allegation against the petitioners that report submitted or decision arrived at was on account of any extraneous consideration and therefore even if assumed, though not admitted, mere error in the manner of conducting inquiry or error of appreciation of facts cannot be a ground to initiate disciplinary proceedings.

38. It is further submitted that petitioners were nominated as members of the committee just one day before the inquiry i.e. 28th July 2025 and the committee was compelled to conclude the inquiry in two days on pressure being exerted by the head of office to conclude it within one day and it is in such compelling circumstances that the report was submitted on 31st July 2025 incorporating all the evidence which was taken during the inquiry proceedings.

39. Learned counsel further submits that the report has not been challenged by any party in appeal under Section 18 of the Act and on the contrary authorities have relied upon the said report while suspending the delinquent officer.

40. It is submitted that in case members of the Internal Complaint or the Local Committee are proceeded against departmentally only because the report was not according to wishes of the higher authorities, it would set a very dangerous precedent. He further submits that petitioners are unnecessarily being harassed for the past seven months and have also not been allowed to join their duties in compliance of interim order dated 13th August 2025 which clearly indicates that suspension is being resorted to as a mode of punishment since the report submitted was not in accordance with wishes of the authorities.

41. Mr. S.M. Singh Royekwar learned counsel for state has refuted submissions advanced by learned counsel for petitioners with the submission that petitioners are not being proceeded against with a view to harass them but on account of their deliberate and intentional acts to scuttle the proceedings. He submits that the committee has conveniently disregarded written testimony of Smt. Vibha Pandey, Joint Commissioner (Executive) State Tax, Aligarh-B who was earlier posted as Joint Commissioner (Executive) State Tax, Mathura in which she had verified allegations made by the complainant.

42. It is further submitted that the members of committee themselves were privy to the conduct of the delinquent and had the opportunity to know about sexual harassment being faced by the complainant on multiple previous occasions but despite the knowledge, members of the committee did not act in a fair manner and proceeded to protect the delinquent. He further submits that an audio recordings of proceedings of the committee was submitted by the complainant clearly indicating that members of the committee admitted multiple times with regard to the delinquent attempting to harass the complainant. He submits that in the audio recordings of the proceedings of the committee which was submitted by the complainant, the female members are clearly heard stating and verifying the aspect of harassment being suffered by the complainant. He further submits that on the contrary, the committee has relied upon testimonies of persons who were neither cited as eye witnesses to the incident by the victim or by the delinquent and it is in view of gravity of charges that petitioners have been placed under suspension in contemplation of departmental proceedings in terms of Rule 4 of Rules of 1999.

43. Upon consideration of submissions advanced by learned counsel for the parties and perusal of material on record, it is thus evident that petitioners have been suspended from service pending departmental proceedings on the allegation of deliberately exonerating the delinquent.

44. For a better appreciation of the aforesaid dispute, it would be convenient to advert to Rule 4 of the Rules of 1999 which are as follows:-

" 4. Suspension (1) A Government Servant against whose conduct an in-quiry is contemplated, or is proceeding may be placed under suspension pending the conclusion of the inquiry in the discretion of the Appointing Authority:

Provided that suspension should not be resorted to unless the allegations against the Government Servant are so serious that in the event of their being established may ordinarily warrant major penalty:

Provided further that concerned Head of the Department empowered by the Governor by an order in this behalf may place a Government Servant or class of Government Servants belongs to Group "A" and "B" posts under suspension under this rule:

Provided also that in the case of any Government Servant or class of Gov. ernment Servants belonging to Group "C" and 'D' posts, the Appointing Authority may delegate its power under this rule to the next lower authority.

(2) A Government Servant in respect of, or against whom an investigation, inquiry or trial relating to a criminal charge, which is connected with his position as a Government Servant or which is likely to embarrass him in the discharge of his duties or which involves moral turpitude, is pending, may, at the discretion of the Appointing Authority or the Authority to whom the power of suspension has been delegated under these rules, be placed under suspension until the termination of all proceedings relating to that charge.

(3) (a) A Government Servant shall be deemed to have been placed or, as the case may be, continued, to be placed under suspension by an order of the Authority Competent to suspend, with effect from the date of his detention, if he is detained in custody, whether the detention is on criminal charge or otherwise, for a period exceeding forty-eight hours.

(b) The aforesaid Government Servant shall, after the release from the custody. inform in writing to the Competent Authority about his detention and may also make representation against the deemed suspension. The Competent Authority shall, after considering the representation in the light of the facts and circumstances of the case as well as the provision contained in this rule, pass appropriate order continuing the deemed suspension from, the date of release from custody or invoking or modifying it.(4) Government Servant shall be deemed to have been placed, or as the case may be, continued to be placed under suspension by an order of the Authority Competent to suspend under these rules, with effect from the date of his conviction if in the event of a conviction for an offence he is sentenced to a term of imprisonment exceeding forty-eight hours and is not forthwith dismissed removed consequent to such conviction. "

45. The aforesaid rule therefore clearly prescribes that suspension of an employee can be resorted to in contemplation of departmental inquiry provided the charges levelled against the delinquent are serious enough to merit major penalty.

46. In the present case, the allegation levelled is that the petitioners made a concerted effort to exonerate the delinquent by not following their duties and responsibilities.

47. Thus it transpires that the entire gist of allegations levelled against petitioners is of making a concerted and deliberate effort for exonerating the delinquent against whom complaint had been filed. In the counter affidavit filed on behalf of state, it has been stated that the committee in its report dated 31st July 2025 has concealed several facts and relied upon irrelevant evidences to exonerate the delinquent. A procedural error has been indicated with regard to conduct of proceedings particularly for ignoring the letter issued by Smt. Vibha Pandey.

48. From the written submissions submitted on behalf of State of U.P., it appears that the complainant had been promoted as State Tax Officer on 27 February 2025 whereafter she was contacted by the delinquent by telephone on 28th February 2025 and upon her joining on 4th March 2025 as the State Tax Officer in Mathura, she faced multiple episodes of sexual harassment due to which a complaint was filed. Taking cognizance of the said complaint dated 27th July 2025, the state government, vide order dated 28th July 2025 directed the Commissioner, State Tax, to submit his report. Subsequently, the Internal Complaint Committee was constituted on 29th July 2025. The said order constituting the committee indicates a direction at the instance of the state government that the report was required to be submitted on the same day itself. However since the same was not possible, the committee required Smt. Vibha Pandey, Joint Commissioner to submit her testimony. In pursuance thereof, the said lady submitted her letter on 30th July 2025 and after taking testimony of various witnesses, report was submitted on 31st July 2025 exonerating the delinquent whereafter the complainant presented audio recording of the proceedings of the committee on 2nd August 2025 along with a letter and pen drive addressed to the Commissioner, State Tax, indicating hostile conduct by the members of committee whereafter the impugned proceedings have taken place.

49. From perusal of counter affidavit and the written submissions on behalf of State of UP., the primary gist of allegations appears to be that proceedings were conducted while ignoring the material testimony of Smt. Vibha Pandey and taking into account statements of irrelevant witnesses. With regard to disciplinary action being taken for exercise of quasi judicial power, the Supreme Court in the case of K.K. Dhawan (supra) has enunciated as follows:-

" 28. we are not concerned with the correctness or legality of the de-cision of the respondent but the conduct of the respondent in discharge of his duties as an officer. The legality of the orders with reference to the nine assessments may be questioned in appeal or revision under the Act. But we have no doubt in our mind that the Government is not precluded from taking the disciplinary action for violation of the Conduct Rules. Thus, we conclude that the disciplinary action can be taken in the following cases:

(i) Where the officer had acted in a manner as would reflect on his reputation for integrity or good faith or devotion to duty.

(ii) if there is prima facie material to show recklessness or misconduct in the discharge of his duty,

(iii) if he has acted in a manner which is unbecoming of a Government servant;

(iv) if he had acted negligently or that he omitted the prescribed conditions which are essential for the exercise of the statutory powers;

(v) if he had acted in order to unduly favour a party.

(vi) if he had been actuated by corrupt motive, however small the bribe may be because Lord Coke said long ago "though the bribe may be small, yet the fault is great".

29. The instances above catalogued are not exhaustive. However, we may add that for a mere technical violation or merely because the order is wrong and the action not falling under the above enumerated instances, disciplinary action is not warranted. Here, we may utter a word of caution Each case will depend upon the facts and no absolute rule can be postulated."

50. The said aspect was thereafter elaborated in the case of Junjar Rao Bhikha Ji Nagarkar (supra) in the following manner:-

"40. When we talk of negligence in a quasi-judicial adjudication, it is not negligence perceived as carelessness, inadvertence or omission but as culpable negligence. This is how this Court in State of Punjab v. Ex-Constable Ram Singh 13 interpreted "misconduct" not coming within the purview of mere error in judgment, carelessness or negligence in performance of duty."

"42. Initiation of disciplinary proceedings against an officer cannot take place on information which is vague or indefinite. Suspicion has no role to play in such matter. There must exist reasonable basis for the disciplinary authority to proceed against the delinquent officer. Merely because penalty was not imposed and the Board in the exercise of its power directed filing of appeal against that order in the Appellate Tribunal could not be enough to proceed against the appellant. There is no other instance to show that in similar case the appellant invariably imposed penalty. 43. If every error of law were to constitute a charge of misconduct, it would impinge upon the independent functioning of quasi-judicial officers like the appellant. Since in sum and substance misconduct is sought to be inferred by the appellant having committed an error of law, the charge-sheet on the face of it does not proceed on any legal premise rendering it liable to be quashed. In other words, to maintain any charge-sheet against a quasi-judicial authority something more has to be alleged than a mere mistake of law, e.g., in the nature of some extraneous consideration influencing the quasi-judicial order. Since nothing of the sort is alleged herein the impugned charge-sheet is rendered illegal. The charge-sheet, if sustained, will thus impinge upon the confidence and independent functioning of a quasi-judicial authority. The entire system of administrative adjudication whereunder quasi-judicial powers are conferred on administrative authorities, would fall into disrepute if officers performing such functions are inhibited in performing their functions without fear or favour because of the constant threat of disciplinary proceedings. "

51. Subsequently in the case of P.C. Joshi (supra) it has been held that the possibility on a given set of facts to arrive at a different conclusion is not a ground to indict a judicial officer for taking one view. The relevant paragraph is as follows:-

"7. That there was possibility on a given set of facts to arrive at a different conclusion is no ground to indict a judicial officer for taking one view and that too for alleged misconduct for that reason alone. The enquiry officer has not found any other material, which would reflect on his reputation or integrity or good faith or devotion to duty or that he has been actuated by any corrupt motive. At best, he may say that the view taken by the appellant is not proper or correct and not attribute any motive to him which is for extraneous consideration that he had acted in that manner. If in every case where an order of a subordinate court is found to be faulty a disciplinary action were to be initiated, the confidence of the subordinate judiciary will be shaken and the officers will be in constant fear of writing a judgment so as not to face a disciplinary enquiry and thus Judicial officers cannot act independently or fearlessly. Indeed the words of caution are given in K.K. Dhawan case and A.N. Saxena case that merely because the order is wrong or the action taken could have been different does not warrant initiation of disciplinary proceedings against the judicial officer. In spite of such caution, it is unfortunate that the High Court has chosen to initiate disciplinary proceedings against the appellant in this case."

52. In the case of R.R. Parekh versus High Court of Gujarat, 2016 (14) SCC 1, it has been held as follow:-

"16. The issue of whether a judicial officer has been actuated by an oblique motive or corrupt practice has to be determined upon a careful appraisal of the material on the record. Direct evidence of corruption may not always be forthcoming in every case involving a misconduct of this nature. A wanton breach of the governing principles of law or procedure may well be indicative in a given case of a motivated, if not reckless disregard of legal principle. In the absence of a cogent explanation to the contrary, it is for the disciplinary authority to determine whether a pattern has emerged on the basis of which an inference that the judicial officer was actuated by extraneous considerations can be drawn. Cases involving misdemeanours of a judicial officer have to be dealt with sensitivity and care. A robust common sense must guide the disciplinary authority. At one end of the spectrum are those cases where direct evidence of a misdemeanour is available. Evidence in regard to the existence of an incriminating trail must be carefully scrutinised to determine whether an act of misconduct is established on the basis of legally acceptable evidence. Yet in other cases, direct evidence of a decision being actuated by a corrupt motive may not be available. The issue which arises in such cases is whether there are circumstances which an considerations have actuated a judicial officer can legitimately be inference that extraneous drawn. Such an inference cannot obviously be drawn merely from a hypothesis that a decision is erroneous. A wrong decision can yet be a bona fide error of judgment Inadvertence is consistent with an honest error of judgment A charge of misconduct against a judicial officer must be distinguished from a purely erroneous decision whether on law or on fact. The legality of a judicial determination is subject to such remedies as are provided. law for testing the correctness of the determination. It is not the correctness of the verdict but the conduct of the officer which is in question. The disciplinary authority has to determine whether there has emerged from the record one or more circumstances that indicate that the decision which forms the basis of the charge of misconduct was not an honest exercise of judicial power The circumstances let into evidence to establish misconduct have to be sifted and evaluated with caution. The threat of disciplinary proceedings must not demotivate the honest and independent officer Yet on the other hand, there is a vital element of accountability to society involved in dealing with cases of misconduct. There is on the one hand a genuine public interest in protecting fearless and honest officers of the District Judiciary from motivated criticism and attack Equally there is a genuine public interest in holding a person who is guilty of wrongdoing. responsible for his or her actions. Neither aspect of public interest can be ignored Both are vital to the preservation of the integrity of the administration of justice"

53. In the recent judgment of Nirbhay Singh Suliya(supra), it has been held as follows.:-

"My esteemed brother Justice K.V. Viswanathan has penned an ineffable judgment. This judgment will go a long way in protecting judicial officers of the district judiciary from being subjected to departmental action for alleged wrong or incorrect exercise of discretion in passing orders of bail without anything more. Brother Viswanathan has put it very pithily, saying that if the complaint of misconduct against the judicial officer is prima facie found to be true then. in such circumstances, disciplinary proceedings must be taken. and no leniency should be shown if the charges are established in an appropriate case, even criminal prosecution may be instituted against a Judicial officer Such action is necessary to weed out tainted judges from the judiciary It goes without saying that corruption in the Judiciary at any level is intolerable, as corruption severely undermines the core of the administration of justice and erodes public trust in the rule of law However, the High Court, which is vested with the supervisory control must keep in mind that a judicial officer of the district judiciary works mostly in a charged atmosphere. A mere wrong order or wrong exercise of discretion in grant of bail by itself without anything more, cannot be a ground to initiate departmental proceedings.

2 Initiation of departmental proceedings on mere suspicion is one of the primary causes why trial court judges are reluctant when it comes to exercising discretion for the purpose of grant of bail. It should not happen that because of the lurking fear in the mind of a trial court judge of some administrative action being taken that even in a deserving case, well within the principles of law, bail is declined. This is one reason why the High Courts are flooded with bail applications. The same is the scenario even so far as the Supreme Court is concerned. Over a period of time, the trial court judges have exhibited tendency to shirk from their solemn judicial function and responsibility when it comes to exercising discretion in matters relating to bail. Courts of the district judiciary wield powers necessary for the functioning of the justice delivery system in India and when their autonomy is compromised by higher courts and fear takes precedence over judicial duties, democracy and the rule of law suffer.3. For functioning of democracy, an independent judiciary to dispense justice without fear and favour is paramount. As held by this Court in M.S. Bindra v. Union. (1998) 7 SCC 310 while evaluating the materials the authority should not altogether ignore the reputation in which the officer was held till recently The maxim "Nemo Firut Repente Turpissimus (no one becomes dishonest all of a sudden) is not unexceptional but still is a salutary guideline to judge human conduct, particularly in the field of Administrative Law The authorities should not keep the eyes totally closed towards the overall estimation in which the deliriquent officer was held in the recent past by those who were supervising him earlier. To dunk an officer into the puddle of doubtful integrity it is not enough that the doubt fringes on a mere hunch. That doubt should be of such a nature as would reasonably and consciously be entertainable by a reasonable man on the given material. Mere possibility is hardly sufficient to assume that it would have happened. There must be preponderance of probability for the reasonable man to entertain doubt regarding that possibility. Only then there is Justification to ram an officer with the label 'doubtful integrity.'"

54. Upon examination of aforesaid judgments, evidently, the law encapsulated is that judicial authorities have freedom to record and pass judgments as per material available before them in a free and impartial manner for which they cannot be proceeded against unless there is a prime facie material to show recklessness or misconduct in the discharge of such duty which is unbecoming of the post which is being held. The same would be applicable in case if such person has acted in order to unduly favour a party or is actuated by corrupt motive. The correctness or legality of the decision cannot be a ground to proceed departmentally against a person exercising quausi judicial power and it is only the conduct in discharge of duties which can form the basis.

55. Although majority of judgments cited herein above pertain to exercise of judicial powers but in the considered opinion of this court, since the Internal Complaints or Local Committee exercises quasi judicial powers and is expected to make its recommendations in a free, fair and impartial manner placing reliance on evidence available before them, the aforesaid judgments would be squarely applicable.

56. The aforesaid judgments also clearly enunciate the law that in such circumstances where a prima facie finding of misconduct is recorded, departmental proceedings can ensue.

57. In view of the aforesaid judgments, it is thus evident that although departmental proceedings can be initiated against an authority exercising judicial or quasi-judicial powers but there should be at least a prima facie satisfaction by the disciplinary authority before proceeding departmentally that the allegations levelled are not with regard to views taken by such an authority but is in fact based on any extraneous motive as indicated in the judgments herein above.

58. In the considered opinion of this Court, therefore, before proceeding departmentally against any such quasi-judicial power, it is incumbent and imperative upon the disciplinary authority to record a prima facie satisfaction with regard to such misconduct in discharge of such quasi-judicial duty which is required to be separated from the correctness or legality of the decision or recommendation as in the present case.

59. Such a prima facie satisfaction is imperative for the free, fair and impartial decision by the quasi-judicial authority particularly to ensure that such a quasi-judicial authority does not have the Sword of Damocles hanging over them to be proceeded against departmentally in case their recommendations do not find favour with the authorities.

60. In case such quasi-judicial authorities conduct proceedings under such fear, it would obviate the very purpose of the act itself and therefore it is essential that such quasi-judicial authorities as the internal complaints or the local committees act without such a fear

61. While this court lauds stand of State Government and there can be no gainsaying that aspect of sexual harassment in the workplace is required to be nipped in the bud by preventive and corrective steps being taken, at the same time it is also essential that the proceedings of the Internal Complaints or the Local Committee should be fair, transparent and without any aspect of fear or favour in the minds of the members of a committee.

62. It is pertinent to remember that the present proceedings pertained only to suspension of service of petitioners and not the initiation of disciplinary proceedings by issuance of charge-sheet and therefore, the impugned orders are required to be decided in terms of provisions of Rule 4 of Rules of 1999. Proviso to sub-section (1) thereof clearly indicates the conditions under which a government servant can be placed under suspension. The said proviso stipulates that suspension should not be resorted to unless allegations so serious that in the event of being established may ordinarily warrant major penalty.

63. A perusal of impugned orders will make it evident that there is absolutely no decision with regard to any such aspect or any subjective satisfaction of the authority as required to be contemplated and reason to be indicated in the impugned order.

64. This Court is also of the considered opinion that in cases, such as the present one, where suspension has been resorted to of the members of Internal Complaints Committee, the factors enumerated here-in-above pertaining to distinction in exercise of quasi-judicial powers and the conduct during such proceedings under the Act of 2013 are also required to be adverted to by the authority to record its subjective satisfaction.

65. Upon applicability of the aforesaid judgments and factors in the present facts and circumstances and perusal of the impugned suspension orders, it is evident that impugned orders have been passed in a very cursory manner without forming any prima facie satisfaction that suspension is being resorted to not with regard to the decision but with regard to the conduct of the members of the committee.

66. Here it is also relevant to keep in mind that under Rule 7 of the Rules of 2013, the manner of inquiry into complaint has been delineated with a time frame also being indicated, which appears to have been completely ignored by the opposite parties while constituting the committee vide order dated 28th July 2025 in which the direction of state government has been indicated to the committee that it should submit its report on the same day itself.

67. In view of discussion made herein above, this Court reaches a conclusion that the impugned orders of suspension have not made any differentiation between the correctness or legality of the decision vis-a-vis conduct of the petitioners in discharge of their duty as members of the committee. The order impugned is clearly cursory in nature and does not indicate any application of mind. The impugned orders dated 5th August 2025 and 6th August 2025 are therefore quashed by issuance of writ in the nature of Certiorari granting liberty to authority to pass orders afresh, if required, but only in accordance with observations and directions made here-in-above.

68. The question No. B therefore stands answered in favour of petitioners.

69. Writ petitions consequently stand allowed. Parties to bear their own costs.

Issues for Consideration

- (i) Whether Rule 204(7) of the U.P. Motor Vehicle Rules, 2011, requiring impleadment of the driver as a necessary party in a claim petition under Section 166 of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988, applies retrospectively to claims instituted prior to its enforcement?
- (ii) Whether the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal was justified in attributing 40% contributory negligence to the deceased cyclist on the basis of the site plan and other evidence on record?
- (iii) Whether, where the deceased left behind four dependent family members, deduction towards personal and living expenses ought to be one-fourth instead of one-third while computing loss of dependency?
- (iv) Whether the claimants were entitled to enhancement of compensation under the conventional heads in accordance with the principles laid down in Pranay Sethi and Magma General Insurance Co. Ltd.?
- (v) Whether the Tribunal was justified in directing investment of the major portion of the compensation in Fixed Deposit/Monthly Income Scheme for fifteen years despite the claimants having attained majority?

Headnotes

Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 — Section 166 — U.P. Motor Vehicle Rules, 2011 — Rule 204(7) — Claim petition — Necessary parties — Impleadment of driver — Retrospective operation.

HELD: Rule 204(7) of the U.P. Motor Vehicle Rules, 2011, making the driver of the offending vehicle a necessary party in a claim petition under Section 166 of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988, operates prospectively. A claim petition instituted prior to the enforcement of the amendment cannot be held to be non-maintainable for non-impleadment of the driver. In the absence of express legislative intent conferring retrospective operation, the amended Rule cannot affect pending proceedings instituted before its enforcement. The objection regarding maintainability raised for the first time in appeal was rightly rejected. [Paras 10 to 13]

Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 — Section 166 — Motor accident claim — Contributory negligence — Cyclist entering T-junction — Duty of care — Determination of negligence.

HELD: Though a cyclist entering a T-junction is required to exercise reasonable care for his own safety, the driver of a motor vehicle approaching such junction owes a higher degree of care and caution. Where the evidence on record, including the site plan and the nature of the collision, established that the offending vehicle was being driven at a high speed without slowing down at the junction, while no independent evidence was adduced by the respondents to substantiate their plea of exclusive negligence on the part of the deceased, attribution of 40% contributory negligence to the deceased was excessive. In the facts and circumstances of the case, contributory negligence attributable to the deceased was liable to be reduced to 20%. [Paras 23 to 29]

Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 — Section 166 — Rash and negligent driving — Burden of proof — Appreciation of evidence.

HELD: Rash and negligent driving constitutes the sine qua non for maintaining a claim under Section 166 of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988. While determining negligence, the Tribunal is required to appreciate the entire evidence on record, including the circumstances of the accident, the site plan and oral evidence. Mere involvement of the offending vehicle does not by itself establish negligence; however, where the attendant circumstances demonstrate failure of the driver to exercise due care expected at a road junction, negligence can legitimately be inferred. [Paras 25 to 29]

Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 — Section 166 — Compensation — Deduction towards personal and living expenses — Four dependants — Loss of dependency.

HELD: Where the deceased left behind four dependants, namely, his widow and three children, deduction towards personal and living expenses ought to be one-fourth of the income of the deceased and not one-third. The Tribunal erred in deducting one-third towards personal expenses contrary to the principles laid down in Sarla Verma, as affirmed in Pranay Sethi. Consequently, the loss of dependency was liable to be recomputed by deducting one-fourth of the annual income. [Paras 30 to 33, 46 and 47]

Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 — Compensation — Conventional heads — Loss of consortium — Loss of estate — Funeral expenses — Determination.

HELD: Compensation under the conventional heads is required to be awarded in accordance with the principles laid down in National Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Pranay Sethi and Magma General Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Nanu Ram. Accordingly, the claimants were entitled to ₹40,000 each towards consortium, ₹15,000 towards loss of estate and ₹15,000 towards funeral expenses. The award made by the Tribunal under the conventional heads was liable to be suitably enhanced. [Paras 34 to 37, 48]

Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 — Compensation — Investment of compensation — Fixed Deposit Receipt (FDR) — Adult claimants — Release of amount.

HELD: The directions issued by the Tribunal requiring investment of the major portion of the compensation in Fixed Deposit/Monthly Income Scheme for fifteen years were appropriate when the award was passed, some of the claimants being minors or of young age. However, with the passage of time all the claimants had attained majority and were capable of managing their own affairs. The protective directions contained in Rule 220-B of the U.P. Motor Vehicle Rules, 1998 and the principles laid down in General Manager, Kerala State Road Transport Corporation v. Susamma Thomas are intended to safeguard vulnerable claimants and should not be mechanically continued after the circumstances warranting such protection have ceased to exist. The restriction on release of the compensation amount was, therefore, liable to be removed. [Paras 39 to 45]

Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 — Section 173 — Enhancement of compensation — Modification of award.

HELD: Since the Tribunal had erroneously assessed contributory negligence at 40%, deducted one-third instead of one-fourth towards personal expenses, and awarded inadequate compensation under the conventional heads, the award required modification. The total compensation payable to the claimants was recalculated at ₹17,27,288/- with interest at the rate of 7% per annum from the date of institution of the claim petition till realization, after adjustment of the amount already paid or deposited. [Paras 46 to 49]

Appeal partly allowed. Judgment and award modified. Compensation enhanced to ₹17,27,288/- with interest at the rate of 7% per annum from the date of institution of the claim petition till realization. Directions regarding long-term investment of the compensation modified. (E-14)

Case Arising From

Judgment and award dated 11.04.2012 passed by the Additional District Judge/Sessions Judge-02, Motor Accident Claims Tribunal, Lucknow in Claim Petition No. 241 of 2009, Smt. Chandravati Yadav and Others v. Vikas Pathak and Others.

Appearance for Parties

For the Appellants: Sri Balendu Shekhar and Sri Mahesh Kumar Yadav.

For the Respondents: Sri A. Rafique and Sri Anil Kumar Srivastava

(Delivered by Hon'ble Syed Qamar Hasan Rizvi, J.)

1. Sri Balendu Shekar learned counsel for the appellants; Sri A. Rafique, learned counsel appearing for the respondent no. 1 and Sri Anil Kumar Srivastava, learned counsel for the respondent no. 2-ICICI Lombard General Insurance Limited are present.

2. By means of the present Appeal filed under Section 173 of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988, the appellants/Claimants have assailed the judgment and award dated 11.04.2012 passed by the Court of Learned Additional District and Sessions Judge-02, Lucknow/Motor Accident Claims Tribunal, Lucknow (hereinafter referred to as the "Learned Tribunal") in Claim Petition No. 241/2009 (Smt. Chandravati Yadav and Others versus Vikas Pathak and Others).

3. The facts of the case that culled out from the pleadings are that in a road accident occurred on 15.04.2009 at 8:00 P.M. on Lucknow-Hardoi Road near Kushmora falling under the jurisdiction of Police Station Kakori, District Lucknow, the husband of appellant no. 1 and father of appellants no. 2 to 4 (Late) Suresh Chandra Yadav, lost his life. It is pleaded by the Appellants that the deceased was riding his bicycle in a careful and cautious manner at time and the place of accident, when the driver of Hyundai Santro Car bearing registration number U.P.32CM1065, insured by respondent no. 2 (hereinafter referred to as the "offending vehicle") and owned with respondent no. 1, drove the said offending vehicle in a rash and negligent manner caused the accident by hitting the bicycle of the deceased. As a result thereof, the deceased sustained grievous injuries and succumbed to death at the place of accident itself. The appellants/claimants filed Claim petition under Section 166 of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 that was registered as Claim Petition No. 241/2009 (Smt. Chandravati Yadav and Others versus Vikas Pathak and Others) before the Learned Tribunal, primarily on the ground that the deceased was a government employee and was earning monthly salary of Rs. 12,946/-, and had he survived, he would have continued to earn and maintain his family comprising of his wife (appellant no. 1) and three children (appellants no. 2 to 4). The appellants/claimants sought compensation to the tune of Rs. 33,00,000/- along with interest at the rate of 12% per annum before the learned Tribunal.

4. The learned Tribunal while deciding the aforesaid Claim Petition No. 241/2009, framed the following issues for determination:

1. क्या दिनांक 15.04.09 को रात को लगभग 08.00 बजे कुशमौरा मोड़ के पास अंतर्गत थाना क्षेत्र काकोरी, जिला लखनऊ में कार सं.यू.पी.32 सी.एम. 1065 के चालक द्वारा वाहन को तेजी व लापरवाही से चलाते हुए साइकिल पर टक्कर मारकर दुर्घटना कारित की गई, जिसके परिणामस्वरूप साइकिल चालक सुरेश कुमार यादव को गम्भीर चोटें आईं और और इन्हीं चोटों के कारण सुरेश कुमार यादव की दुर्घटनास्थल पर मृत्यु हो गई -

2. क्या दुर्घटना की तिथि पर उपरोक्त कार विपक्षी सं.2 आई.सी.आई.सी.आई. लोम्बार्ड जनरल इंश्योरेंस कम्पनी लि. से बीमित थी तथा बीमा पालिसी की शर्तों के अधीन परिचालित थी -

3. क्या दुर्घटना की तिथि पर उपरोक्त कार चालक के पास वैध एवं प्रभावी ड्राइविंग लाइसेंस था -

4. क्या याचीगण किसी प्रतिकर को पाने का अधिकारी है - यदि हाँ तो किससे और कितनी धनराशि -

5. The learned Tribunal vide Order dated 11.04.2021 passed in the aforesaid Claim Petition No. 241/2009 awarded compensation to a tune of Rs. 10,59,692/- to the appellants/claimants along with interest at the rate of 7% per annum. While deciding the Issue No. 1, the learned Tribunal held contributory negligence on the part of the deceased cyclist and the driver of the offending vehicle, thereby fixed negligence on the part of the deceased at 40% and that of the driver of the offending vehicle at 60%. While deciding Issue No. 4 regarding the quantification of compensation, the learned Tribunal determined the monthly income of the deceased at Rs. 12,946/- on the basis of the 'salary certificate' available on record and added 30% towards future prospects in view of the age factor of the deceased falling between the age group of 40-50 years. However, the learned Tribunal deducted 1/3rd towards personal and living expenses. By applying the multiplier of 13 as per the Second Schedule to the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988, the Learned Tribunal determined the compensation to a tune of Rs. 10,50,192/-. Further, an amount of Rs. 9500/- under conventional heads was also added. Thus, the learned Tribunal awarded compensation to the appellants/claimants aggregating to Rs. 10,59,692/-, with the direction that the said amount be disbursed in the following manner:

1. श्रीमती चन्द्रावती आयु लगभग 48 वर्ष पत्नी स्व. सुरेश चन्द्र यादव, को मु. 1,22,000.00 रूपए नगद जरिए रेखांकित चैक के माध्यम से अदा किया जाएगा, जो किसी राष्ट्रीयकृत बैंक की शाखा पर देय होगा। श्रीमती चन्द्रावती के नाम से मु. 4,87,692.00 रुपये (संग हानि को शामिल करते हुए) तथा सम्पूर्ण प्रतिकर की धनराशि पर मिलने वाला ब्याज एवं वाद व्यय किसी राष्ट्रीयकृत बैंक की मासिक आय 'जमा योजना' में 15 वर्ष के लिए इस न्यायाधिकरण के माध्यम से जमा किये जायेंगे, जिस पर मासिक ब्याज देय होगा।

6. Aggrieved by the aforesaid judgment and award dated 11.04.2012 passed in Claim Petition No. 241/2009, particularly with regard to the determination of 40% contributory negligence on the part of the deceased, deduction of 1/3rd of the deceased's monthly income towards personal and living expenses instead of 1/4th, inadequacy of compensation under conventional heads, and award of interest at the rate of 7% per annum instead of 12% per annum; the appellants/claimants have preferred the instant Appeal under Section 173 of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988.

7. At the very outset, the learned counsel for the Respondent No. 2/ ICICI Lombard General Insurance Limited raised an objection to the effect that as per the amended Rule 204 of U.P. Motor Vehicle Rules, 2011, the driver of the vehicle involved in the accident should be made party in Claim petition and since the driver of the offending vehicle was not impleaded by the appellants in the aforesaid Claim Petition No. 241 of 2009, the same was liable to be rejected on this score alone being maintainable. Consequently, the present Appeal arising out of said Claim Petition No. 241/2009, is also non-maintainable and is liable to be dismissed.

8. Confronting the aforesaid preliminary objection regarding the maintainability of the present Appeal, the learned counsel for the Appellants/claimants submitted that the Respondent No. 2 did not raised the said objection before the Learned Tribunal and for the first time the same has been raised at this appellate stage. Further, he submitted that the Claim Petition No. 241 of 2009 was filed on 11.05.2009, while the mandatory requirement regarding impleadment of the driver as a necessary party was introduced by way of the Eleventh Amendment to the U.P. Motor Vehicles Rules, 2011, as Rule 204(7) to the said Rules of 2011. He contended that the said statutory requirement was introduced much after the filing of the Claim Petition and as such, the non-impleadment of the driver could not render the Claim Petition as non-maintainable. In support of his contention, the learned counsel has relied upon the judgment passed by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Machindranath Kernath Kasar versus D. S. Mylarappa reported in AIR 2008 SC 2545.

9. Before delving into the merits of the case, it would be apt to address the issue raised on behalf of respondent No. 2 regarding the maintainability of the present Appeal arising out of the Claim Petition No. 241 of 2009.

10. In so far as the objection raised by the learned Counsel for the Respondent No. 2 that non-fulfilment of the mandatory requirement stipulated under the amended Rule 204(7) of the U.P. Motor Vehicle Rules, 2011 rendered aforesaid Claim Petition non-maintainable before the Learned Tribunal; it is pertinent to mention that the said amendment to the Motor Vehicle Rules, 2011 has been published in official gazette dated 26.9.2019, whereas the Claim Petition in question was filed on 11.05.2009, i.e., much before the coming into force of said amendment to the Motor Vehicle Rules. It is well settled in law that a legislation is applicable prospectively unless specifically provided therein. It is trite in law that, in absence of anything in the enactment to show that it is to be operated with retrospective effect, it cannot be so construed as to have the effect of altering the law applicable to a claim in litigation at the time when the said act was passed.

11. For a ready reference, the Amended Rule 204(7) of the U.P. Motor Vehicle Rules, 2011 is reproduced herein below,

"4. Amendment of Rule 204.-In the said rules, for Rule 204, the following rule shall be substituted, namely--

"204. Application for compensation.-

(1) ...

(7) The driver of the vehicle, involved in the accident, shall be the necessary party in the application for compensation filed under Section 166 of the Act."

12. The Division Bench of this Court in the case of ICICI Lombard General Insurance Co. Ltd. versus Smt. Reena Tyagi and Others vide order dated 27.03.2017 in (FAFO No. 2190 of 2010) has held that the amendment in U.P. Motor Vehicle Rules making it mandatory to implead the driver of the vehicle involved in the accident shall not be retrospective in operation, however, only beneficial provision can have retrospective application.

13. In view of what has been discussed herein above establishing the the amended Rule 204(7) of the U.P. Motor Vehicle Rules, 2011, being prospective in nature, the objection raised by the learned counsel for the Respondent No. 2 regarding non-maintainability of the Claim Petition filed in the year 2009 and the present Appeal arising from the same; more particularly when the said objection/issue was never raised earlier before the learned Tribunal; stands demolished. Accordingly, the said objection raised by the Learned Counsel for the respondent No.2 is turned down.

14. Now, on the merits of the appeal, the contention of the learned counsel for the appellants/claimants is that the learned Tribunal committed grave error in solely relying upon the site plan of the place of accident submitted after a lapse of 20 days from the date of accident by the Investigating Officer and thereby drew conclusion that there was 40% contributory negligence on the part of the deceased. He pleaded that PW-2 (Sant Ram Yadav) categorically deposed that the deceased was riding the bicycle carefully and the accident occurred solely due to the rash and negligent driving of the offending vehicle. Further, on the other hand respondent Nos. 1 and 2 in their written statements, have denied the occurrence of the accident. The said contradiction itself unveils the truthfulness of the case of the respondents. It is vehemently argued by the learned counsel for the appellant that there was no negligence on the part of the deceased and the entire compensation should be awarded to the appellants/claimants without any deduction on account of contributory negligence

15. Another ground taken by the appellants is that the learned Tribunal erred in deducting 1/3rd towards personal and living expenses while the deceased had four dependents, namely, his wife and three children, therefore, the deduction should have been 1/4th in the present case. It has further been contended that the learned Tribunal committed error in awarding a meagre sum of Rs. 9500/- under conventional heads, whereas each claimant is entitled to Rs. 1,00,000/- under the head of loss of love and affection, and Rs. 50,000/- towards funeral expenses. It has also been contended that the learned Tribunal erred in awarding interest at the rate of 7% per annum, whereas in the facts of the present case, it should have been at the rate of 12% per annum.

16. The next submission made on behalf of the appellants/claimants is that the direction of the learned Tribunal directing the major portion of the compensation amount awarded to the appellants/claimants should be deposited in Fixed Deposit Receipt (FDR) or Monthly Income Scheme for a long period of 15 years is erroneous as the accident occurred 17 years back, and all the appellants/claimants are by now become majors, who are capable to manage their own funds. In such circumstances, the entire amount or at least the major portion thereof is required be paid to them directly.

17. Finally, it has been contended by the learned counsel that the appellants/claimants are entitled to just and reasonable compensation even if they have not specifically claimed the enhanced amount of compensation before the learned Tribunal or before this Court. By placing reliance upon several judgments passed by the Hon'ble Supreme Court, he contended that it was incumbent upon the learned Tribunal to award just compensation in accordance with law, regardless of the amount claimed by the claimants.

18. Per contra, the, learned counsel appearing on behalf of the respondent no. 1, i.e., the owner of offending vehicle; vehemently argued that the impugned judgement and award suffers from no infirmity or perversity, as the learned Tribunal has analyzed the entire sequence of the accident very logically, on the basis of the material available on record.

19. The learned Counsel contended that the deceased was coming from a link-lane to the main-road, while reaching the main-road, he ought to have looked on both the sides. It was the sudden appearance of the deceased cyclist before the offending vehicle that resulted in the accident thereby forcing the offending vehicle to get dis-balanced and falling into a ditch. In this manner, the percentage of contributory negligence on the part of the deceased as 40% has been rightly determined by the learned Tribunal.

20. The learned counsel has vehemently argued that mere involvement of the driver of the offending vehicle in the accident does not ipso facto make him liable for the accident when the element of rash driving is absent. To buttress his argument, the learned counsel has relied upon several judgments of the Hon'ble Supreme Court. He has argued that in the case of National Insurance Company Ltd. versus Chamundeshwari and Others reported in (2021) 18 SCC

596, it was held that each case is judged having regard to facts of the case and evidence on record. Further, he relied upon the judgment of the Hon'ble Apex Court passed in Lachoo Ram and Others versus Himachal Road Transport Corporation, reported in (2014) 13 SCC 254 wherein it was held that "the involvement of the bus in the accident cannot make the respondent liable to pay compensation unless it can be held on the basis of materials on record that the accident was caused by rash and negligent act of the driver-respondent no.2...". He argues that in the present case, the driver of the offending vehicle was neither rash nor negligent and therefore, he cannot be solely held liable for causing the accident.

21. Lastly, he submitted that the site plan/naksha nazri is an important piece of evidence, and the learned Tribunal has rightly passed the judgment and award dated 11.04.2012 by taking it into consideration the material on record particularly the naksha nazri; holding contributory negligence of the deceased in the accident in question. To support his contention, he placed reliance on the judgment passed by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of T.O. Anthony versus Karvarnan and Others, reported in (2008) 3 SCC 748. For a ready reference, Paragraph 8 of the said judgment is reproduced herein-below,

"8. It is not in dispute that the Mahazar Ex. P-2 showed that the accident spot was at a distance of 2.26 meters from the Southern edge of the tarred road and 4.79 meters from the Northern edge of the tarred road. If the appellant was proceeding from Palakkad to Trichur (from East to West) and the accident occurred at a distance of 2.2 meters from the southern edge of the road and 4.79 meters from the Northern edge of the road, the inference is that the appellant was on the right side of the road and the private bus came partly to the wrong side of the road. But the fact that there was a head-on collision could not be ignored. The evidence shows that the appellant was not diligent, as he neither slowed down the bus nor swerved to his left, on seeing the oncoming bus. On the facts and circumstances we are of the view that the appellant was also partly responsible for the accident and we fix the responsibility at 25% on the appellant and 75% on the first respondent."

22. Heard the learned counsel for the respective parties and perused the material available on record. This Court now proceeds to examine the issues that arise for consideration in the present appeal. For the sake of convenience and clarity, the issues are addressed in seriatim.

23. The foremost question that falls for consideration before this Court is whether the learned Tribunal was justified in holding the deceased was guilty of 40% contributory negligence.

24. The learned Tribunal has based the above-mentioned finding of contributory negligence primarily, if not solely, on the basis of the site plan/naksha nazri which is marked as document C-15/8 placed on the record of Claim Petition. The learned Tribunal observed that the said naksha nazri reflects that the deceased was coming from a link-road and suddenly emerged on the main road without looking on both left and right sides, whereas the offending vehicle was proceeding on the main-road from Hardoi towards Lucknow. The relevant finding recorded by the learned Tribunal is extracted below:

"...इस मामले में दुर्घटना दिनांक 15.04.09 की रात 08.00 बजे की है और प्रथम सूचना रिपोर्ट थाने पर उसी दिन रात में 09.15 बजे अंकित हुई। जिसमें वाहन की नंबर दिया हुआ है। नक्शा नजरी सी-15/8 को देखने से स्पष्ट होता है कि मृतक कुशमौरा मार्ग से हरदोई-लखनऊ रोड की ओर जा रही थी अर्थात् वह उत्तर से दक्षिण की ओर आ रही थी। आक्रामक वाहन हरदोई से लखनऊ की ओर अर्थात् पश्चिम से पूरब की ओर जा रही थी। दुर्घटना जिस स्थान पर होना दिखाया गया है वह तिराहा है। नक्शा नजरी से स्पष्ट होता है कि मृतक हरदोई-लखनऊ मुख्य मार्ग पर आ रहा था। तभी हरदोई की ओर से आ रही कार ने साइकिल में टक्कर मारी जिससे मृतक उस स्थान से काफी आगे गिरा और साइकिल उससे दूर जाकर गिरी। इन परिस्थितियों से यह भी स्पष्ट है कि टक्कर जोरदार थी और यह तभी संभव है जब आक्रामक वाहन की गति काफी तेज हो। साइकिल से आने वाले व्यक्ति की गति काफी तेज नहीं हो सकती। वाहन चालक का दायित्व था कि वह गति पर नियंत्रण रखते हुए अपने वाहन को चलाता और तिराहे के पास वाहन को धीमा करता। इसी प्रकार साइकिल चालक का भी दायित्व था कि तिराहे पर आने के पूर्व अपनी बाईं ओर दाईं ओर देखता कि कोई वाहन तो नहीं आ रहा है। इस संबंध में यह प्रतीत होता है कि दोनों मृतक और वाहन चालक की योगदायी उपेक्षा दुर्घटना में रही है, किन्तु कार चालक का दायित्व साइकिल चालक की अपेक्षा अधिक है। जिस स्थान पर टक्कर लगी और जहाँ पर शव मिला उनमें काफी दूरी है, जो स्वयं दर्शाता है कि टक्कर के समय वाहन तेज गति में था। इन परिस्थितियों को देखते हुए इस मामले में वाहन कार चालक की उपेक्षा 60 प्रतिशत तथा मृतक साइकिल सवार की उपेक्षा 40 प्रतिशत निर्धारित की जाती है। बिन्दु सं. 1 तदनुसार निस्तारित किया जाता है।"

25. Needless to say that rash and negligent driving is sine quo non for deciding a Claim petition under section 166 of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Lachoo Ram (Supra) is has very explicitly held that the driver/owner of the vehicle causing the accident is not liable to pay compensation unless it can be held on the basis of materials on record, the accident was caused by rash and negligent act of the said driver of the vehicle. Moreover, it is necessary for the courts to appreciate the evidence on record, in order to ascertain whether the driver of the vehicle causing the accident was rash and negligent and in case he was rash and negligent, then, to ascertain as to the degree of the driver's negligence. In ascertaining the aforesaid negligence the facts speaks for itself. In this regard, it is worth noting that in the case of United India Insurance Company versus Sarita Rani Dhaka and Others reported in 1994 SCC OnLine All 684, the Hon'ble Supreme Court, after considering the facts of the said case, held that,

"4. -it is clear that driver of the oil tanker was negligent in driving the vehicle resulting in the accident by applying the principle of Res ipsa loquitor. Therefore, owner is vicariously liable for negligent act of the driver and insurer which has covered the risk of the owner in respect of the vehicle has rightly been directed to pay compensation to the claimants who are dependents of the deceased."

26. Upon a careful reappraisal of the material available on record, this Court finds that the finding returned by learned Tribunal holding contributory negligence on the part of the deceased, to the extent of 40% requires reconsideration. The material on record, including the site plan/naksha nazri and the deposition of PW-2 namely, Sant Ram Yadav, indicates that the accident occurred at a T-junction on the main road, where it is obvious that a higher degree of caution was expected from the driver of the offending vehicle. The nature of the impact and the force of collision reasonably suggest that the offending vehicle was being driven at a high speed and that its driver failed to slow down his vehicle and did not followed due care while approaching the said T-junction (place of accident).

27. Further, it is relevant to note that the respondents had taken the specific plea in their written statement that the accident occurred due to the sole negligence of the deceased but failed to produce any independent evidence to substantiate their plea.

28. However, at the same time, it cannot be overlooked that the deceased, being a cyclist entering at the said T-junction, was also under duty to exercise reasonable care for his own safety. Although, the evidence that has been placed on record does not indicate any reckless or deliberate act on the part of the deceased, a lapse in vigilance on his part cannot be completely ruled out as well. In such circumstances, the principle of contributory negligence is attracted, though the extent (percentage) thereof as assessed by the learned Tribunal appears to be on the higher side.

29. After considering the aforesaid facts in its totality and having regard to the fact that the driver of the offending vehicle was under a greater obligation to anticipate and avoid harm at a T-junction, this Court is of the considered opinion that fixing negligence at 40% on the part of the deceased is disproportionate in the facts and circumstances of the case in hand, especially when there is no such evidence to substantiate the negligence on part of the deceased, except some lapse in vigilance. The ends of justice would be met by reducing the extent of the contributory negligence on part of the deceased to 20%, in place of 40%.

30. The second issue that falls for consideration before this court is regarding the deduction of 1/3rd of the deceased's income towards personal and living expenses.

31. The issue of deduction towards personal and living expenses of the deceased has been dealt in detail by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Sarla Verma (Smt.) and others versus Delhi Transport Corporation and another, reported in (2009) 6 SCC 121. The said judgment has been upheld by the Constitution Bench of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of National Insurance Company Ltd. versus Pranay Sethi and Others, reported in (2017) 16 SCC 680, and, later on, followed in the case of United India Insurance Company Ltd. versus Satinder Kaur alias Satwinder Kaur and others, reported in 2020 SCC OnLine SC 410.

32. It would be apt to quote the relevant portion of the judgment passed in the case of Sarla Verma (Supra), wherein the Hon'ble Apex Court was pleased to hold that,

"30. Though in some cases the deduction to be made towards personal and living expenses is calculated on the basis of units indicated in Trilok Chandra [(1996) 4 SCC 362], the general practice is to apply standardised deductions. Having considered several subsequent decisions of this Court, we are of the view that where the deceased was married, the deduction towards personal and living expenses of the deceased, should be one-third (1/3rd) where the number of dependent family members is 2 to 3, one-fourth (1/4th) where the number of dependent family members is 4 to 6, and one-fifth (1/5th) where the number of dependent family members exceeds six."

33. Taking into consideration the facts of the present case in light of the law laid down by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Sarla Verma (Supra), this Court is of the opinion that the learned Tribunal erred in deducting 1/3rd towards personal and living and expenses when the deceased had four dependents, namely his wife and three children. As such it would be lawfully justified that the said deduction should have been only 1/4th in the present case.

34. The third issue that falls for consideration before this Court is regarding the calculations of damages, loss of consortium and the multiplier under the conventional head of the Second Schedule appended with the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 and as per the principles laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court. In the case of National Insurance Company Ltd. versus Pranay Sethi and Others reported in (2017) 16 SCC 680, the Hon'ble Apex Court observed that the conventional damage amount needs to be appositely determined and thereby the Hon'ble Apex Court revisited the practice of awarding compensation under conventional heads. For a ready reference, Paragraph 52 of the judgment passed in the case of Pranay Sethi [Supra] is reproduced herein-below,

"52. As far as the conventional heads are concerned, we find it difficult to agree with the view expressed in Rajesh[Rajesh v. Rajbir Singh, (2013) 9 SCC 54 : (2013) 4 SCC (Civ) 179 : (2013) 3 SCC (Cri) 817 : (2014) 1 SCC (L&S) 149] . It has granted Rs 25,000 towards funeral expenses, Rs 1,00,000 towards loss of consortium and Rs 1,00,000 towards loss of care and guidance for minor children. The head relating to loss of care and minor children does not exist. Though Rajesh [Rajesh v. Rajbir Singh, (2013) 9 SCC 54 : (2013) 4 SCC (Civ) 179 : (2013) 3 SCC (Cri) 817 : (2014) 1 SCC (L&S) 149] refers to Santosh Devi [Santosh Devi v. National Insurance Co. Ltd., (2012) 6 SCC 421 : (2012) 3 SCC (Civ) 726 : (2012) 3 SCC (Cri) 160 : (2012) 2 SCC (L&S) 167] , it does not seem to follow the same. The conventional and traditional heads, needless to say, cannot be determined on percentage basis because that would not be an acceptable criterion. Unlike determination of income, the said heads have to be quantified. Any quantification must have a reasonable foundation. There can be no dispute over the fact that price index, fall in bank interest, escalation of rates in many a field have to be noticed. The court cannot remain oblivious to the same. There has been a thumb rule in this aspect. Otherwise, there will be extreme difficulty in determination of the same and unless the thumb rule is applied, there will be immense variation lacking any kind of consistency as a consequence of which, the orders passed by the tribunals and courts are likely to be unguided. Therefore, we think it seemly to fix reasonable sums. It seems to us that reasonable figures on conventional heads, namely, loss of estate, loss of consortium and funeral expenses should be Rs 15,000, Rs 40,000 and Rs 15,000 respectively. The principle of revisiting the said heads is an acceptable principle. But the revisit should not be fact-centric or quantum-centric. We think that it would be condign that the amount that we have quantified should be enhanced on percentage basis in every three years and the enhancement should be at the rate of 10% in a span of three years. We are disposed to hold so because that will bring in consistency in respect of those heads."

(Emphasis supplied by this Court)

35. Further, the principles governing award of compensation under conventional heads with regard to award for loss of consortium, have also been laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Magma General Insurance Company Ltd. versus Nanu Ram and others, reported in (2018) 18 SCC 130 and for a ready reference, Paragraph 21 of the same is reproduced herein-below,

"21. - In legal parlance, "consortium" is a compendious term which encompasses "spousal consortium", "parental consortium", and "filial consortium". The right to consortium would include the company, care, help, comfort, guidance, solace and affection of the deceased, which is a loss to his family. With respect to a spouse, it would include sexual relations with the deceased spouse: [Rajesh v. Rajbir Singh, (2013) 9 SCC 54 : (2013) 4 SCC (Civ) 179 : (2013) 3 SCC (Cri) 817 : (2014) 1 SCC (L&S) 149]

21.1. Spousal consortium is generally defined as rights pertaining to the relationship of a husband-wife which allows compensation to the surviving spouse for loss of "company, society, cooperation, affection, and aid of the other in every conjugal relation". [Black's Law Dictionary (5th Edn., 1979).]

21.2. Parental consortium is granted to the child upon the premature death of a parent, for loss of "parental aid, protection, affection, society, discipline, guidance and training".

22. Consortium is a special prism reflecting changing norms about the status and worth of actual relationships. ...

23. The Motor Vehicles Act is a beneficial legislation aimed at providing relief to the victims or their families, in cases of genuine claims. - Parental consortium is awarded to children who lose their parents in motor vehicle accidents under the Act. A few High Courts have awarded compensation on this count [Rajasthan High Court in Jagmala Ram v. Sohi Ram, 2017 SCC OnLine Raj 3848 : (2017) 4 RLW 3368; Uttarakhand High Court in Rita Rana v. Pradeep Kumar, 2013 SCC OnLine Utt 2435 : (2014) 3 UC 1687; Karnataka High Court in Lakshman v. Susheela Chand Choudhary, 1996 SCC OnLine Kar 74 : (1996) 3 Kant LJ 570]. However, there was no clarity with respect to the principles on which compensation could be awarded on loss of filial consortium.

24. The amount of compensation to be awarded as consortium will be governed by the principles of awarding compensation under "loss of consortium" as laid down in Pranay Sethi [National Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Pranay Sethi, (2017) 16 SCC 680 : (2018) 3 SCC (Civ) 248 : (2018) 2 SCC (Cri) 205]."

36. Moreover, the principles governing award of compensation with multiplier is accurately discussed by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Sunita Tokas and Another versus New India Insurance Company Ltd and another, reported in 2019 (20) SCC 688 wherein after considering a catena of its previous judgments, the Hon'ble Apex Court was pleased to hold as follows,

"(4) We have perused the judgments of the courts below, and found that the multiplier has been fixed on the basis of the age of the mother of the deceased boy. The issue with respect to whether the multiplier to be applied in the case of a bachelor, should be computed on the basis of the age of the deceased, or the age of the mother, is no longer res integra. There are a catena of judgments rendered by this Court, wherein it has been held that the multiplier has to be applied on the basis of the age of the deceased, and not on the basis of the age of the dependants.

(4.8) The Court after perusing all earlier judgments, observed that the judicial pronouncements had devised a standard formula for calculation of the compensation qua various components. The amount of compensation is to be paid to the claimants who are dependents in the event of the death of a person, based on what the deceased would have contributed to their support. The amount received by the dependants becomes a part of the estate, as they may live longer, or may be younger than the age-limits taken into account for calculation of the multiplier to be applied in such a situation. In the case of the death of a married person, it is an accepted norm that the age of the deceased would be taken into account. The Court held that even in the case of a bachelor, the same principle must be applied. The Court held that once the law is settled, it should not repeatedly be changed, since certainty of law is of crucial importance, to avoid any confusion."

37. Now, as the principles are well settled regarding the calculation of damages, loss of consortium and the multiplier under the conventional head of the Second Schedule appended with the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988, as have been encapsulated above, the same can be applied in view of the facts of the present case. As far as the conventional heads are concerned, namely Loss of Consortium (loss of love and affection), loss of estate, and funeral expenses, this Court is of the opinion that a reasonable sum should be fixed. Therefore, in the light of the law laid down by the Hon'ble Apex Court as discussed herein-above, for ensuring consistency and fairness in compensation, it is appropriate in the facts of the present case to enhance the amount falling under the Conventional Heads to Rs. 40,000/- to each claimant for loss of consortium, Rs. 15,000/- for loss of estate, and Rs. 15,000/- for funeral expenses.

38. The fourth issue that falls for consideration before this Court is regarding the correctness of the direction of the learned Tribunal to invest a major portion of the compensation in Fixed Deposit Receipt (FDR) that was fixed for a period of 15 years.

39. It would not be out of place to refer Rule 220-B as contained in U.P. Motor Vehicle Rules, 1998 which was added to the said Rules as a result of the guidelines issued by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of General Manager, Kerala State Road Transport Corporation versus Sushamma Thomas reported in, 1994 SCC (2) 176. For a ready reference, the aforesaid Rule 220-B is reproduced herein below:

"220-B. Securing the interest of Claimants.-(1) Where any lump-sum amount of compensation, deposited with the Claims Tribunal is payable to a woman or a person under legal disability/ such sum may be invested, applied or otherwise dealt with for the benefit of the woman or such person during his disability in such manner as the Claims Tribunal may direct to be paid to any dependent of the injured or heirs of the deceased or to any other person whom the Claims Tribunal thinks best fitted to provide for the welfare of the injured or the heir of the deceased.

(2) Where an application made to the Claims Tribunal in this behalf otherwise, the Claims Tribunal is satisfied that on account of neglect of the children on the part of the parents, or on account of the variation of the circumstances of any dependent, or for any other sufficient cause, an order of the Claims Tribunal as to the distribution of any sum paid as compensation or as to the manner in which any sum payable to any such dependent is to be invested applied or otherwise dealt with, ought to be varied, the Claims Tribunal may make such further orders for the variation of the former order as it thinks just in the circumstances of the case. the Claims Tribunal may consider such a request after being satisfied that the amount would be actually spent for the purpose and the demand is not a ruse to withdraw money.

(3) The Claims Tribunal shall, in the case of minor, order that amount of compensation awarded to such minor be invested in fixed deposits till such minor attains majority. The expenses incurred by the guardian or the next friend may be allowed to be withdrawn by such guardian or the next friend from such deposits before it is deposited : Provided that the interest payable on such deposits may be allowed to be utilized for education, maintenance and development of the minor with the permission of the Claims Tribunal.

(4) The Claims Tribunal shall, in the case of illiterate claimants, order that the amount of compensation awarded be invested in fixed deposits for a minimum period of three years, but if any amount is required for effecting purchase of any movable or immovable property for improving the income of the claimant, the Claims Tribunal may consider such a request after being satisfied that the amount would be actually spent for the purpose and the demand is not a ruse to withdraw money.

(5) The Claims Tribunal shall, in the case of semi-literate person resort to the procedure for the deposit or award amounts set out in sub-rule (4) unless if is satisfied, for reasons to be recorded in writing that the whole or part of the amount is required for the expansion of any existing business or for the purchase of some property as specified and mentioned, in sub- rule (4) in which case the Claims Tribunal shall ensure that the amount is invested for the purpose for which it is prayed for and paid.

(6) The Claims Tribunal may in the case of literate persons also resort to the procedure for deposit of awarded amount specified in sub-rules (4) and (5) if having regard to the age, fiscal background and state of society to which the claimant belongs and such other consideration/ the Claims Tribunal in the larger interest of the claimant and with a view to ensure the safety of the compensation awarded, thinks it necessary to order.

(7) The Claims Tribunal, may in personal injury cases, if further treatment is necessary, on being satisfied which shall be recorded in writing, permit the withdrawal of such amount as is necessary for the expenses of such treatment.

(8) The Claims Tribunal may, in the matter of investment of money, have regard to maximum return by ways of periodical income to the claimant, deposit with public sector undertaking of the State or Central Government which offers higher rate of interest.

(9) The Claims Tribunal shall, in investing money, direct that the interest on the deposits be paid directly to the claimants or the guardian of the minor claimants by the institution holding the deposits under intimation to the Claims Tribunal]."

40. The aforesaid Rule 220-B is a beneficial and protective framework for vulnerable claimants, i.e., claimants who are women, minors, illiterates, semi-illiterates or disabled. The purpose of the aforesaid Rule is to safeguard the funds that are awarded as compensation to the claimants so that it is securely invested and used for the long-term welfare of the claimants mentioned therein and not squandered or misused.

41. Further, the guidelines issued by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of General Manager, Kerala State Road Transport Corporation versus Sushamma Thomas (Supra) were re-appreciated and clarified by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of A.V. Padma and others versus R. Venugopal and others reported in (2012) 3 SCC 378, wherein the Hon'ble Court was pleased to hold as follows:

"9. The guidelines cast a responsibility on the Tribunals to pass appropriate orders after examining each case on its own merits. However, it is seen that even in cases when there is no possibility or chance of the feed being frittered away by the beneficiary owing to ignorance, illiteracy or susceptibility to exploitation/investment of the amount of compensation in long term fixed deposit is directed by the Tribunals as a matter of course and in a routine manner, ignoring the object and the spirit of the guidelines issued by this Court and the genuine requirements of the claimants. Even in the case of literate persons, the Tribunals are automatically ordering investment of the amount of compensation in long term fixed deposit without recording that having regard to the age or fiscal background or the strata of the society to which the claimant belongs or such other considerations, the Tribunal thinks it necessary to direct such investment in the larger interests of the claimant and with a view to ensure the safety of the compensation awarded to him.

10. The Tribunals very often dispose of the claimant's application for withdrawal of the amount of compensation in a mechanical manner and without proper application of mind. This has resulted in serious injustice and hardship to the claimants. The Tribunals appear to think that in view of the guidelines issued by this Court, in every case the amount of compensation should be invested in long term fixed deposit and under no circumstances the Tribunal can release the entire amount of compensation to the claimant even if it is required by him. Hence a change of attitude and approach on the part of the Tribunals is necessary in the interest of justice."

42. From the law as laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of A.V. Padma and Others versus R. Venugopal and Others (supra), it is clear that the guidelines were issued to keep the amount in Fixed Deposit or Monthly Income Scheme for a period of time only in the case of minors, illiterate claimants and widows requiring special protection.

43. In the present case, the appellants/claimants No.1 lost her husband while the other appellants/claimants No. 2 to 4 lost their father in the year 2009, and the award was passed in the year 2012. At present, all the claimants are undisputedly adult members. The guidelines issued by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in General Manager, Kerala State Road Transport Corporation versus Susamma Thomas, (Supra), which have now been incorporated in Rule 220-B of the U.P. Motor Vehicle Rules of 1998, were only to safeguard the interest of the vulnerable claimants. These guidelines were not meant to be understood to mean that the Tribunal was supposed to take a rigid stand while considering the mode of disbursement of compensation to adult claimants who are capable of managing their own funds.

44. Therefore, considering the facts of the present case that the appellants/claimants are now major by age and adult members of the deceased family. The impugned award was passed in the year 2012 in respect of an accident which had taken place in the year 2009. Nearly 17 years have elapsed since the accident and the death of the deceased and 14 years have passed since the award was passed by the learned Tribunal; there is no reason to continue the FDR directed by the learned Tribunal and the restriction placed on release of compensation amount to the appellants/claimants.

45. This Court is of the opinion that the direction for investment in Fixed Deposit/Monthly Income Scheme for a period of 15 years, as contained in the judgment and award dated 11.04.2012 passed by the learned Tribunal, was appropriate at the time when the award was passed and when some of the appellants/claimants were minors or of young age. However, with the passage of considerable time, all the appellants/claimants are now mature adults capable of managing their own funds, and therefore, the continued restriction on release of the enhanced compensation amount is not at all justified at this stage.

46. The deceased namely Suresh Chandra Yadav has left behind four dependents, all of whom have claimed compensation. The dependents are: (i) Smt. Chandravati Yadav, wife of the deceased; (ii) Mukesh Yadav, son of the deceased; (iii) Kamlesh Kumar Yadav, son of the deceased; and (iv) Kumari Sarla Yadav, daughter of the deceased. There is no case that these family members were not dependent upon income the deceased. The deceased was employed in government service and was earning a monthly salary of Rs. 12,946/- and was providing for maintaining the entire family comprising of 4 people.

47. The learned Tribunal has deducted 1/3rd of the deceased's income towards personal and living expenses, which is contrary to the principles laid down by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Pranay Sethi (supra). Therefore, deduction towards personal and living expenses would be 1/4th, as the dependent family members being four in number. In this manner, the judgment and award dated 11.04.2012 passed by the learned Tribunal deserves to be modified.

48. Over and above the substantive compensation payable, the appellants/claimants are also entitled to compensation under the conventional heads determined in accordance with the principles laid down in Pranay Sethi (supra). The compensation payable to the appellants/claimants in the present First Appeal stands modified as under:

(i) Monthly Income (of the deceased)	= Rs. 12,946/-
(ii) Monthly Income + Future Prospects (monthly income x 30%)	= 12,946 + 3,884 = Rs. 16,830/-
(iii) Annual Income (of the deceased)	= 16,830 x 12 = Rs. 2,01,960/-
(Annual Income) – (1/4th deduction towards personal expenses of the deceased)	= 2,01,960 – 50,490

	= Rs. 1,51,470/-
(v) Total Dependency =	= 1,51,470 × 13
Annual Dependency *	= Rs. 19,69,110/-
Applied Multiplier
vi) Claimants' entitlement towards conventional heads =
• Loss of consortium (Rs. 40,000 × 4 dependents)	= 1,60,000 + 15,000 + 15,000 = Rs. 1,90,000/-
• Loss of estate (Rs. 15,000)	Rs. 19,69,110/- + Rs. 1,90,000/-
• Funeral expenses (Rs. 15,000)	= Rs. 21,59,110/-
v) Deduction on account of contributory negligence	20% × 21,59,110 = Rs. 4,31,822/- (round figure)
The total compensation works out as	Rs. 21,59,110 – Rs. 4,31,822 = Rs. 17,27,288/-

49. In view thereof, the judgment and award dated 11.04.2012 passed by the learned Tribunal in Claim Petition No. 241 of 2009 is modified and the compensation awarded is enhanced to a total amount of Rs. Rs. 17,27,288/- (Rupees Seventeen Lacs Twenty Seven Thousand Two Hundred Eighty Eight only). The compensation would carry simple interest thereon at the rate of 7% per annum from the date of institution of the aforesaid Claim Petition No. 241 of 2009, until realization of the said amount of money. However, the sum of money already deposited (paid or invested in terms of the judgment and award dated 11.04.2012 passed by the learned Tribunal in Claim Petition No. 241 of 2009 or interim orders of this Court) shall be accordingly adjusted. The enhanced compensation shall be paid to the appellants/claimants within a period of eight weeks from the date of receipt of a certified copy of this judgment.

50. As a result and subject to the aforesaid modification, the appeal is partly allowed. There shall be no order as to costs.

51. The original record of the Claim Petition No. 241 of 2009 be transmitted back to the Tribunal concerned at the earliest.

52. Before parting, this Court deems it appropriate to place on record its deep appreciation for the invaluable assistance rendered by Mr. Rajat Srivastava, Research Associate, attached with me in drafting this judgment and finding out case laws applicable in the present case.

Issues for Consideration

(i) Whether an application under Order XLI Rule 27 CPC seeking permission to adduce additional evidence in appeal can be allowed merely because the evidence is relevant, or only when the conditions prescribed under clauses (a), (aa) or (b) of Rule 27(1) are satisfied?

(ii) Whether, while exercising power under Order XLI Rule 27(1)(b) CPC, the requirement to adduce additional evidence must be that of the appellate court itself for enabling it to pronounce judgment or for any other substantial cause, and not of the party seeking to fill up lacunae in its case?

(iii) Whether an application under Order XLI Rule 27(1)(b) CPC is ordinarily required to be considered at the stage of final hearing of the appeal after the appellate court has examined the evidence already on record?

(iv) Whether the lower appellate court committed any jurisdictional error in rejecting the petitioner's application under Order XLI Rule 27 CPC seeking to produce seventeen documents as additional evidence in an appeal arising from a suit for specific performance?

Headnotes

Code of Civil Procedure, 1908—Order XLI Rule 27—Additional evidence in appeal—General rule and exceptions.

HELD: The normal rule is that an appeal is to be decided on the evidence adduced before the trial court. Production of additional evidence at the appellate stage is an exception and is permissible only in the circumstances specifically enumerated in clauses (a), (aa) or (b) of Rule 27(1). A party has no vested right to adduce additional evidence in appeal merely because such evidence may be relevant or useful. The power under Rule 27 is required to be exercised sparingly and only in exceptional circumstances. [Paras 11 to 24]

Code of Civil Procedure, 1908—Order XLI Rule 27(1)(a), (aa) and (b)—Distinct fields of operation.

HELD: Clauses (a), (aa) and (b) of Rule 27(1) operate in different fields. Clause (a) applies where the trial court improperly refused to admit evidence; clause (aa) applies where, despite due diligence, the evidence was not within the knowledge of the party or could not be produced before the trial court; whereas clause (b) is attracted only when the appellate court itself requires additional evidence either to enable it to pronounce judgment or for any other substantial cause. The conditions governing each clause are separate and cannot be interchanged. [Paras 19 to 24]

Code of Civil Procedure, 1908—Order XLI Rule 27(1)(b)—Requirement of appellate court—Scope.

HELD: The expression "requires" occurring in clause (b) denotes the requirement of the appellate court and not the desire or convenience of the litigating party. Additional evidence cannot be permitted merely because a party considers it necessary to strengthen its case. The jurisdiction under clause (b) arises only where the appellate court, upon examining the evidence already on record, forms an independent opinion that such evidence is necessary for pronouncing a satisfactory judgment or for any other substantial cause. [Paras 23 to 35]

Code of Civil Procedure, 1908—Order XLI Rule 27—Additional evidence—Cannot be permitted to fill lacunae.

HELD: The provisions of Order XLI Rule 27 are not intended to afford an unsuccessful litigant an opportunity to patch up the weak parts of its case or to fill omissions left during trial. The appellate court must guard against permitting additional evidence merely because a party failed to adduce available evidence before the trial court. Such jurisdiction is intended to subserve the ends of justice and not to cure deficiencies in the evidence of an unsuccessful party. [Paras 26 to 31 and 59 to 60]

Code of Civil Procedure, 1908—Order XLI Rule 27(1)(b)—Stage for consideration of application.

HELD: Although an application under Order XLI Rule 27 may be filed before the appeal is finally heard, the question whether additional evidence is required under clause (b) ordinarily arises when the appellate court examines the evidence already on record during hearing of the appeal. At that stage alone can the court effectively determine whether the existing material is sufficient for pronouncing judgment or whether additional evidence is genuinely required. [Paras 32 to 35 and 49]

Code of Civil Procedure, 1908—Order XLI Rule 27—Recording of reasons—Rejection of application.

HELD: Rule 27(2) expressly requires recording of reasons when additional evidence is admitted. There is no corresponding statutory mandate requiring elaborate reasons while rejecting an application under Rule 27. Nevertheless, the order rejecting such application must disclose application of mind to the facts of the case, the evidence already on record and the relevance of the proposed additional evidence. [Paras 42 to 44]

Specific Relief—Suit for specific performance—Appeal—Application for additional evidence—Relevance of proposed documents.

HELD: The documents sought to be produced by the defendant principally related to allotment of plots by the Ghaziabad Development Authority to the Society, correspondence regarding demarcation, possession and internal transactions between the Society and the Development Authority, proceedings in an independent suit concerning penal interest, an affidavit already forming part of the record and a cheque issued in purported compliance with the trial court decree. Since the execution of the agreement to sell and allotment of the plot were not in dispute and the proposed documents had no bearing on the real controversy in appeal, the appellate court rightly held that they were unnecessary for deciding the appeal. [Paras 45 to 47]

Code of Civil Procedure, 1908—Order XLI Rule 27(1)(aa)—Due diligence—Plea of oversight by counsel.

HELD: A vague plea that relevant documents could not be produced before the trial court due to oversight of the advocate or that efforts were made to obtain copies thereof, unsupported by proper pleadings and material establishing due diligence, does not satisfy the requirements of clause (aa) of Rule 27(1). Such assertions are insufficient to invoke the exceptional jurisdiction for production of additional evidence. [Paras 45 and 55]

Constitution of India—Article 227—Order refusing additional evidence—Scope of interference.

HELD: The power to admit or refuse additional evidence under Order XLI Rule 27 is discretionary and judicial. The High Court, while exercising supervisory jurisdiction under Article 227, would not interfere merely because another view is possible. Interference is warranted only where the discretion has been exercised arbitrarily or contrary to settled principles. Where the appellate court has considered the proposed documents, assigned cogent reasons for their irrelevance and exercised its discretion in accordance with law, no interference is called for. [Paras 63 to 67]

Code of Civil Procedure, 1908—Order XLI Rule 27—Expression "additional evidence"—Meaning.

HELD: The expression "additional evidence" does not imply that only a party which has adduced some evidence before the trial court can invoke Rule 27. Even where no evidence was led before the trial court, the application is maintainable, subject to fulfilment of the statutory conditions prescribed by Rule 27. [Paras 61 and 62]

Article 227 Petition—Order rejecting application under Order XLI Rule 27 CPC—No arbitrariness found—Petition dismissed.

HELD: Since the lower appellate court had considered each category of documents sought to be introduced, found them irrelevant to the controversy involved in the appeal and exercised its discretion on settled principles governing Order XLI Rule 27 CPC, the impugned order suffered from no illegality warranting interference under Article 227 of the Constitution. The petition was accordingly dismissed without costs. [Paras 67 and 68]

Petition dismissed. (E-14)

Case Arising From

Petition under Article 227 of the Constitution challenging the judgment and order dated 04.01.2025 passed by the Additional District Judge, Court No. 12, Ghaziabad in Civil Appeal No. 117 of 2010, Smt. Namrata Saraswat v. Bhupendra Singh, whereby the petitioner's application (Paper No. 153-Ga) under Order XLI Rule 27 CPC for adducing additional evidence was rejected. The appeal arose out of the judgment and decree dated 18.09.2010 passed by the Civil Judge (Senior Division), Ghaziabad, in Original Suit No. 1501 of 1998 for specific performance.

Appearance for Parties

For the Revisionist: Sri Ritvik Upadhya.

For the Respondents: Sri Bablu Singh; Ms. Vishakha Pande.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Manish Kumar Nigam, J.)

1. This petition has been filed challenging the order dated 04.01.2025 passed by the Additional District Judge, Court No. 12, Ghaziabad in Civil Appeal No. 117 of 2010, Smt. Namrata Saraswat vs. Bhupendra Singh, rejecting the application filed by the defendant-respondent (petitioner), under Rule 27 of Order XLI C.P.C.

2. Brief facts of the case are that plaintiff-respondent (hereinafter referred to as 'respondent'), Smt. Namrata Saraswat, instituted Original Suit No. 1501 of 1998, Smt. Namrata Saraswat vs. Sri Bhupendra Singh, Advocate, in the court of Civil Judge, Senior Division, Ghaziabad for a decree of specific performance of an agreement to sell dated 14.10.1992 executed by the defendant-petitioner (hereinafter referred to as 'petitioner'), in favour of the respondent of the property in question. It was pleaded inter alia in the plaint that on 13.08.1990 petitioner was allotted residential plot (property in dispute) by the Ghaziabad Development Authority, Ghaziabad, and the petitioner on 15.10.1992 executed an agreement to sell in favour of the respondent for a sum of Rs.43,620/-. Rs. 43,000/- was paid in advance as part payment of the consideration and respondent was put in possession over the property in dispute. In the said agreement for the sell, it was provided that the sale deed was to be executed by the petitioner within one month after first getting the lease deed executed in his favour from the Ghaziabad Development Authority through Adhivakta Sahakari Awas Samiti Limited (hereinafter referred to as 'Samiti') and thereafter obtaining the permission to sell the plot in question from the Samiti. After being noticed, the petitioner appeared and contested the suit by filing written statement, wherein the petitioner pleaded that after the execution of the lease deed in his favor by the Ghaziabad Development Authority, defendant was declared to be sub-lessee and the agreement to sell the property in dispute was under misconception. The permission sought by the petitioner to transfer the plot in favour of the respondent was refused by the Samiti. It was also pleaded that being sub-lessee, the petitioner was not competent to transfer the plot and as such the agreement to sell was not enforceable. Both the parties led their evidence to prove their case. The two important issues apart from other framed by the trial court, on the basis of pleadings of the parties, were whether the respondent as per the facts of the case, was entitled for decree of specific performance and whether the respondent was ready and willing to perform his part of the agreement. The petitioner though filed his evidence paper No. 22-Ga, but thereafter remained absent and his opportunity to lead evidence was closed. The trial court decided the issue of willingness and readiness against the respondent and the suit filed by the respondent was partly decreed by the judgment and decree dated 18.09.2010 passed by Civil Judge, Senior Division Ghaziabad for refund of earnest money along with the interest, but the decree of specific performance was refused. Being aggrieved, the respondent filed first appeal under Section 96 C.P.C before the Additional District Judge, Ghaziabad being Civil Appeal No. 117 of 2010, Smt. Namrata Saraswat Vs. Shri Bhupendra Singh. The appeal filed by the defendant was allowed by the appellate court on 09.3.2011. The petitioner filed an application under Order XLI Rule 21 C.P.C for restoration of appeal, which was rejected by the court below by order dated 19.10.2011. The order dated 19.10.2011 was challenged before this court in FAFO No. 42 of 2012, which was allowed by this Court by judgment and order dated 01.11.2022, and the matter was remitted to the first appellate court to decide the appeal within a period of six months. After the remand, the matter was taken by the first appellate court, and an application was filed by the petitioner for framing additional issue as to non-joinder of necessary party. The said application was rejected by the lower appellate court by order dated 10.04.2023. On 24.07.2023, the petitioner moved an application, paper No. 153- Ga, under Order XLI Rule 27 for taking additional evidence in the said appeal, to which objections were filed by the respondent. Lower appellate court by order dated 19.07.2024 rejected the application No. 153 Ga. Order dated 19.07.2024 was challenged by the petitioner before this Court by filing a petition under Article 227 of the Constitution of India being Matters Under Article 227 No. 11479 of 2024. The petition under Article 227 of the Constitution of India was allowed by this Court vide judgment and order dated 18.09.2024 directing the appellate court to decide the application afresh considering the judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court in case of Sanjay Kumar Singh Vs. State of Jharkhand; (2022) 7 SCC 247. The lower appellate court, i.e. Additional District Judge, Ghaziabad, after remand by judgment and order dated 04.01.2025, rejected the application filed by the petitioner under Order XLI Rule 27 of C.P.C. Hence the present writ petition.

3. Contention of Sri Ritvik Upadhya, learned counsel for the petitioner is that the documents sought to be produced by the petitioner had a direct and significant bearing with the controversy to be decided in the appeal. It has been submitted by learned counsel for the petitioner that the lower appellate court ought to have admitted the evidence which was sought to be produced by the petitioner as an additional evidence, as the same was directly connected with the controversy to be decided in appeal and was necessary to be considered for rendering correct judgment. Learned counsel for the petitioner relied upon judgments of the Supreme Court in cases of :-Venkata Seshavatharam & Ors Vs. Chapalamadugu Venkata Rangayya & Ors.;(1946) 14 ITR 722, Arjan Singh Alias Puran Vs. Kartar Singh & Ors; 1951 SCC 178, K. Venkataramiah Vs. Seetharama Reddy & Ors.;1963 SCC OnLine SC 216, Deputy Registrar, Co-operative Societies, U.P., Lucknow Vs. Chaudhari Sarfaraz-un-Zaman & Anr.; 1971 SCC Online All 367, State Bank of India Vs. M/s Ashok Stores & Ors.;1981 SCC OnLine Ori 69, Akash Ganga Builders & Engineers (P) Ltd. Vs. G.P. Seth HUF & Anr., 1999 (50) DRJ (DB), K.R. Mohan Reddy Vs. Net Work INC;(2007) 14 SCC 257, Sangram Singh Vs. Election Tribunal, Kotah & Anr.; (1955) 1 SCC 323, Chinnamal & Ors. Vs. P. Arumugham & Anr.;(1990) 1 SCC 513, Dondapati Narayana Reddy Vs. Dugireddy Venkatanarayana Reddy & Ors.;(2001) 8 SCC 115, Commissioner Mysore Urban Development Authority Vs. S.S. Sarvesh; (2019) 5 SCC 144, Sanjay Kumar Singh Vs. State of Jharkhand; (2022) 7 SCC 247.

4. Per contra, Ms. Vishakha Pandey, learned counsel for the respondent submitted that the application filed by the petitioner under Order XLI Rule 27 of C.P.C. was not maintainable as none of the conditions contemplated under Sub-rule (1) of Rule 27 of Order XLI existed. Learned counsel further contended that it is for the court to decide whether any evidence is required to be produced as additional evidence for pronouncement of judgment or for any other sufficient cause, and it is not open for the party applying for additional evidence to direct the court to consider the evidence for the said purpose. It has also been submitted by learned counsel for the respondent that the court below has rightly rejected the application filed by the petitioner after holding that the evidence was not necessary for the controversy in dispute. Lastly, it was submitted by Ms. Vishakha Pandey, learned counsel appearing for the respondent, that since opportunity to lead evidence of the defendant was closed by the trial court, therefore, there was no evidence on behalf of the petitioner before the trial court, and as such, in absence of any evidence before the trial court, additional evidence could not be filed by the petitioner under Order XLI Rule 27 C.P.C as the word "additional evidence" presupposes the existence of some evidence. It has been further submitted that the expression "additional evidence" implies leading of some evidence by the party and only in such cases the petitioner may apply to produce additional evidence and not otherwise.

5. Learned counsel for the respondents relied upon the judgment in cases of:- Kessowji Issur Vs. Great Indian Peninsula Railway Company; [1907 SCC Online PC 9], Parsotim Thakur & Others Vs. Lal Mohar Thakur & Others ; [1931 SCC Online PC 35], Arjan Singh @ Puran Vs. Kartar Singh & Others [1951 SCC 178], State of U.P. Vs. Manbodhan Lal Srivastava ; [1957 SCC Online SC 4], The Municipal Corporation Greater Bombay Vs. Lala Pancham & Others; [AIR 1965 SC 1008].

6. Before considering the rival submissions of the party, it would be appropriate to note the relevant statutory provisions for adducing the additional evidence.

7. Normally, the evidence whether oral or documentary is filed before the trial court. Rule 14 of Order VII of CPC provides, where a plaintiff sues upon a document or relies upon a document in his possession or power in support of his claim, he shall enter such documents in a list, and shall produce it in court when the plaint is presented by him and shall, at the same time deliver the document and a copy thereof, to be filed with the plaint. Sub-rule (2) of Rule 14 of Order VII provides, where any such document is not in the possession or power of the plaintiff, he shall, wherever possible, state in whose possession or power it is. Sub-rule (3) of Rule 14 provides, a document which ought to be produced in court by the plaintiff when the plaint is presented, or to be entered in the list to be added or annexed to the plaint, but is not produced or entered accordingly, shall not, without the leave of the court, be received in evidence on his behalf at the hearing of the suit.

8. Similarly, Order VIII, Rule 1-A, (inserted by Act 46 of 1999, w.e.f. 01.07.2002), where the defendant bases his defence upon a document or relies upon any document in his possession or power in support of his defence or claim for set-off or counterclaim, he shall enter such document in a list and shall produce it in court when the written statement is presented by him and, at the same time, deliver the document and a copy thereof to be filed with the written statement. Sub-rule (2) of Rule 1-A of Order VIII provides, where any such document is not in possession or power of the defendant, he shall, wherever possible, state in whose presence or power it is. Sub-rule (3) of Rule 1-A provides a document which ought to be produced in court by the defendant under this rule, but, is not so produced, shall not, without the leave of the court, be received in evidence on his behalf at the hearing of the suit.

9. Order XIII, Rule 1 of C.P.C. provides parties or their pleader shall produce, on or before the settlement of issues, all the documentary evidence in original where the copies thereof have been filed along with plaint or written statement. Sub-rule (2) of Order XIII provides, the court shall receive the documents so produced, provided they are accompanied by an accurate list prepared in such form as the High Court directs.

10. Order XVI Rule 1 provides, on or before such date as the court may appoint, and not later than fifteen days after the date on which issues are settled, the parties shall present in court a list of witnesses whom they propose to call either to give evidence or to produce documents and obtain summonses to such persons for their attendance in court. Sub-rule (3) of Rule 1 of Order XVI provides that the Court may, for reasons to be recorded, permit a party to call, whether by summoning through court or otherwise, other than those whose names appear in the list referred to in sub-rule (1), if such party shows sufficient cause for omission to mention the name of such witness in the said list. Rule 1-A of Order XVI provides, subject to the provisions of sub-rule (3) of Rule 1, any party to a suit may, without applying for summons under Rule 1, bring any witness to give evidence or to produce documents.

11. Thus, from the reading of the aforesaid provisions of the C.P.C, it is clear that normal rule is that evidence, whether oral or documentary, has to be produced before the trial Court in accordance with the provisions of the C.P.C referred above.

12. Section 107 C.P.C. provides for powers of appellate court. Sub-section 1(d) of Section 107 authorizes the appellate court to take additional evidence or to require such evidence to be taken. Section 107 of C.P.C. is quoted as under:-

“107. Powers of Appellate Court.-(1) Subject to such conditions and limitations as may be prescribed, an Appellate Court shall have power-

(a) to determine a case finally;

(b) to remand a case;

(c) to frame issues and refer them for trial;

(d) to take additional evidence or to require such evidence to be taken.

(2) Subject as aforesaid, the Appellate Court shall have the same powers and shall perform as nearly as maybe the same duties as are conferred and imposed by this Code on Courts of original jurisdiction in respect of suits instituted therein. ”

13. The power to take additional evidence by the appellate court is subjected to such conditions and limitations as may be prescribed. Section 107(1)(d) enables the appellate court to admit additional evidence, Order XLI Rule 27 furnishes grounds on which additional evidence may be admitted. Order XLI Rule 27 of C.P.C. is quoted as under:-

“27. Production of additional evidence in Appellate Court.-

(1) The parties to an appeal shall not be entitled to produce additional evidence, whether oral or documentary, in the Appellate Court. But if-

(a) the Court from whose decree the appeal is preferred has refused to admit evidence which ought to have been admitted, or

(aa) the party seeking to produce additional evidence, establishes that notwithstanding the exercise of due diligence, such evidence was not within his knowledge or could not, after the exercise of due diligence, be produced by him at the time when the decree appealed against was passed, or

(b) the Appellate Court requires any document to be produced or any witness to be examined to enable it to pronounce judgment, or for any other substantial cause, the Appellate Court may allow such evidence or document to be produced or witness to be examined.

(2) Whenever additional evidence is allowed to be produced by an Appellate Court, the Court shall record the reason for its admission."

14. The provisions of Rule 27 of Order XLI shall be read with Section 107(1)(d). The underlying object of these provisions is to permit parties to adduce complete evidence in support of their case and to allow such evidence which would completely adjudicate the dispute between the parties and would do full justice to the cause.

15. Sub-rule (1) of Rule 27 begins with a negative condition. The words ("the parties to an appeal shall not be entitled to produce additional evidence, whether oral or documentary, in the appellate court") clearly indicate the legislative intent. It also lays down a general rule that an appellate court should decide an appeal on evidence led by the parties before the trial court and should not admit additional evidence in appeal. Sub-rule (1) of Rule 27 should be read with clause (a) of sub-section (1) of Section 107. The said clause also require the appellate court "to determine a case finally". Rule 24 of Order XLI, too, enjoins the appellate court to determine the case finally where evidence on record is sufficient for such determination. Thus, normally an appellate court should not allow additional evidence to be produced and should decide an appeal on the basis of material on record. Sub-rule (1) of Rule 27 of Order XLI, having laid down a general rule as to leading of additional evidence in negative form, proceeds to carve out exceptions and enumerate circumstances in which the appellate court is allowed to admit additional evidence under clause (a), (aa) or (b) of sub-rule (1) of Rule 27.

16. Constitution Bench of the Supreme Court in case of K. Venkataramaih v. Seetharama Reddy (supra) while interpreting Section 107 read with sub-rule (1) of Rule 27 of Order XLI, stated, "Section 107 of the Code of Civil Procedure empowers the appellate court 'to take additional evidence or to require such evidence to be taken, 'subject to such conditions and limitations as may be prescribed'. Rule 27 of Order XLI of the Code of Civil Procedure prescribes the conditions and limitations in the matter. The rule first lays down that the parties to an appeal shall not be entitled to produce additional evidence, whether oral or documentary, in the appellate court. It then proceeds to lay down two classes of cases where the appellate court may allow additional evidence to be produced."

Note- Clause (aa) of sub-rule (1) of Rule 27 of Order XLI was added by Act 104 of 1976 w.e.f 01.02.1977.

17. Order XLI, Rule 27, as enacted originally, had only two sub-clauses, i.e. 1 (a) and (b). Sub-clause (aa) was added by Act 104 of 1976 w.e.f 01.02.1977.

18. Before proceeding further, it would be relevant to look into the provisions contained in Code of Civil Procedure, 1882. Section 568 and Section 623 of C.P.C., 1882 are quoted as under:

“568. The parties to an appeal shall not be entitled to produce additional evidence, whether oral or documentary, in the Appellate Court. But if

(a) the Court against whose decree the appeal is made refuses to admit evidence which ought to have been admitted, or

(b) the Appellate Court requires any document to be produced or any witness to be examined to enable it to pronounce judgment, or for any other substantial cause, the Appellate Court may allow such evidence to be produced, or document to be received, or witness to be examined.

Whenever additional evidence is admitted by an Appellate Court, the Court shall record on its proceedings the reason for such admission.

623. Any person considering himself aggrieved-

(a) by a decree or order from which an appeal is hereby allowed, but from which no appeal has been preferred;

(b) by a decree or order from which no appeal is hereby allowed; or

(c) by a judgment on a reference from a Court of Small Causes, and who from the discovery of new and important matter or evidence which, after the exercise of due diligence, was not within his knowledge or could not be produced by him at the time when the decree was passed or order made, or on account of some mistake or error apparent on the face of the record, or for any other sufficient reason, desires to obtain a review of the decree passed or order made against him...”

19. Rule 27 of Order XLI enumerates circumstances wherein an appellate court may admit additional evidence, whether oral or documentary, in appeal. They are as under:

(i) where the lower court has improperly refused to admit evidence which ought to have been admitted; or

(ii) where such additional evidence was not within the knowledge of the party or could not, after exercise of due diligence, be produced by him at the time when the lower court passed the decree or made the order, or

(iii) where the appellate court itself requires such evidence either (a) to enable it to pronounce judgment; or (b) for any other substantial cause.

20. Clauses (a), (aa) and (b) of sub-rule (1) of Rule 27 are different; they deal with different situations and operate in different fields.

21. So far as clause (a) is concerned, it covers cases where the lower court has improperly refused to admit evidence which ought to have been admitted.

22. Clause (aa), as inserted by the Amendment Act, 1976, applies to production of additional evidence which was not within the knowledge of the party, or could not, even after exercise of due diligence, be produced by him at the time when the lower court passed the decree or made the order.

23. Clause (b) deals with totally different situation. Here, it is the court, i.e. the appellate court which requires additional evidence to be allowed on one of the two grounds, viz.

(i) for pronouncement of judgment; or

(ii) for any other substantial cause.

In either case, it is the requirement of the appellate court. Nothing more but nothing less.

24. Conditions precedent for application of clause (a) and clause (aa) of sub-rule (1) of Rule 27 of Order XLI are different from that of clause (b). In the event, the former is to be applied, it would be for the applicant to show that the ingredients or conditions precedent mentioned therein are satisfied. On the other hand, if clause (b) to sub-rule (1) of Rule 27 of Order XLI C.P.C. is to be taken recourse to, the appellate court is bound to consider the entire evidences on record and come to an independent finding for arriving at a just decision; adduction of additional evidence as has been prayed by the appellant or respondent was necessary in an appeal.

25. In the present case, we are mainly concerned with clause (b) to sub-rule (1) of Rule 27 of Order XLI C.P.C. Clause (b) covers cases wherein the appellate court may itself require additional evidence (production of document or examination of witness) either (i) for pronouncement of judgment; or (ii) for any other substantial cause. "Requires" means "Needs" or "finds needful". As seen above, even under the old Code of 1882, Section 562 enabled the trial court to produce additional evidence, if the appellate court required.

26. The privy council in Parsotim Thakur and others Vs. Lal Mohar Thakur and others; 1931 SCC Online PC 35 has held at page No. 87 as under:-

"In their Lordships' opinion this additional evidence ought not to have been admitted. If the respondents desired to give evidence as to the thumb-impression they had ample opportunity to do so in the trial Court. The provisions of Sect. 107, Civil Procedure Code, as elucidated by O. 41, R. 27, are clearly not intended to allow a litigant who has been unsuccessful in the the lower Court to patch up the weak parts of his case and fill up omissions in the Court of Appeal.

Turning to the provisions of R. 27, Cl. (1) (a) has no application in the present case. Under Cl. (1) (b), it is only where the appellate Court "requires" it, (i.e., finds it needful) that additional evidence can be admitted. It may be required to enable the Court to pronounce judgment or for any other substantial cause, but in either case it must be the Court that requires it. This is the plain grammatical reading of the sub-clause. The legitimate occasion for the exercise of this discretion is not whenever before the appeal is heard a party applies to adduce fresh evidence, but "when on examining the evidence as it stands some inherent lacuna or defect becomes apparent." This is laid down in the most positive terms by Lord Robertson In Kessowji Issur v. G.I.P. Ry [1907 SCC Online PC 9]. He was dealing with the words of Sect. 568 of the Code of 1882, but they are substantially the same as those of O. 41, R. 27, of the present Code. It may well be that the defect may be pointed out by a party, or that a party may move the Court to supply the defect, but the requirement must be the requirement of the Court upon its appreciation of the evidence as it stands. Wherever the Court adopts this procedure it is bound by R. 27(2) to record its reasons for so doing and under R. 29 must specify the points to which the evidence is to be confined and record on its proceedings the points so specified. Their Lordships regret to find that so far as the record discloses, none of these conditions was complied with in the present case. "

27. The Supreme Court in Arjan Singh @ Puran Vs. Kartar Singh and others; 1951 SCC 178 referring to above mentioned privy council decision, stated: "The true test, therefore, is whether the appellate court is able to pronounce judgment on the materials before it without taking into consideration the additional evidence sought to be adduced."

28. In case of K. Venkataramiah Vs. Seetharama Reddy (supra), the Supreme Court held the ability to pronounce a judgment does not mean or confine to the ability to pronounce any judgment, but the ability to pronounce a judgment satisfactory to the mind of the court delivering or pronouncing it. An appellate court may be able to pronounce judgment on the basis of material on record, but may still consider additional evidence to pronounce correct, satisfactory, or effective judgment. Additional evidence may be allowed in such cases.

29. However, in case of The Municipal Corporation of Greater Bombay Vs. Lala Pancham and others; AIR 1965 SC 1008, it has been held by the Supreme Court that the appellate court cannot allow additional evidence only for the purpose of pronouncing judgment in a particular way.

30. The appellate court may admit additional evidence, "for any other substantial cause." The words "for any other substantial cause" should be construed liberally and they do not need to confine on the rule of ejusdem generis with the cause stated in earlier part of the provision, (i.e., "to pronounce"). The words ("for any other substantial cause") confer very wide discretion on the appellate court to admit additional evidence where end of the justice require admission of such evidence. Normally, the test applied for the purpose is the question whether the material, i.e. additional evidence, would alter the decision that was rendered without the material. The word "substantial" indicates that it must positively point to the fact that the record on the basis of which the suit has been decided was incomplete in the sense that had this material "additional evidence" been before the court, the result would have been inevitably been different.

31. In case of K. Venkataramiah (supra), Supreme Court clearly and univocally held that requirement must be of the appellate court alone but the power to allow additional evidence in appeal has to be exercised cautiously, sparingly, and only in exceptional circumstances. The requirement must be the requirement of the court and not that of a party who had lost the litigation. Additional evidence cannot be allowed to enable the applicant to fill in lacuna or to strengthen his case in appeal.

32. Another question which has to be considered is when the application for additional evidence may be decided. Rule 27(1) of Order XLI contemplates three different situations which have been enumerated in separate clauses (a), (aa), and (b). So far as clause (a) is concerned, it covers cases lower court has refused to admit evidence which ought to have been admitted. The applicant may file an application before the appellate court for production of evidence said to have been wrongly and erroneously refused by the lower court. Such an inquiry is independent of hearing of the main matter i.e. appeal and hence the question can be decided by the appellate court on the basis of the complaint made or grievance raised by the applicant in the light of relevant provision of law and it can pass appropriate order in accordance with law.

33. Clause (aa) gets attracted in those cases where the party seeking to produce additional evidence, establishes that notwithstanding the exercise of due diligence, (I) such evidence was not within his knowledge or (II) could not be produced by him in lower court. In support of this clause, the limited inquiry the appellate court is required to make is whether the applicant is right in his submission that he had exercised due diligence and in support of such due diligence, either he could not come to know of such evidence, or he could not produce it before the lower court. Onus of proof is on the applicant to satisfy the court as to the applicability of clause (a) or (aa). If applicant is able to convince the court of his claim, the appellate court would allow the application.

34. Clause (b) applies in those cases where the court, i.e., the appellate court requires additional evidence to enable it either (I) to pronounce judgment, or (II) for any other substantial cause. Under clause (b), the requirement is the requirement of the court and such requirement should be either of the two purposes specified in the clause, i.e, either for pronouncement of judgment or for any other substantial cause. Such an exercise is possible when the appeal is taken up for hearing. Under clause (b), additional evidence can be admitted by the appellate court when it requires such evidence for the purposes mentioned in clause (b), which can be ascertained by the court on examining evidence produced and material placed by the parties on record and the need or necessity of additional evidence in the form of a document or oral testimony.

35. In my view, the prayer for admission of additional evidence under clause (b) cannot be decided before the appeal is taken up for hearing. In case the power as contemplated under clause (b) is exercised before hearing of the appeal, then the appellate court has to look into evidence and material placed before the court at an intervening stage, which in my opinion is not practical as the exercise of examining evidence will have to be taken by the appellate court, firstly at the time of considering the application under Order XLI Rule 27(1)(b) and thereafter again at the time of hearing of the appeal on merits. The proper course is to consider the application under Order XLI Rule 27(1)(b) at the time of hearing of appeal when the court applies its mind and examine the evidence on record and if it comes to the conclusion that evidence is required, the application may be decided at that stage.

36. Elaborating his submissions, Sri Ritvik Upadhya, learned counsel for the petitioner submitted that the lower appellate court has erred in law in rejecting the application filed by the petitioner under Order XLI, Rule 27 C.P.C. It has also been submitted by learned counsel for the petitioner that in view of judgment in case of Sanjay Kumar Singh (supra), and judgment of this Court dated 18.09.2024 in Matters under Article 227 No. 11479 of 2024, the court below has not recorded any reason for rejecting the application.

37. It has been further submitted that the reasons recorded by the court below are sketchy and cannot be said to be passed in compliance of order dated 18.09.2024 passed in Matters under Article 227 No. 11479 of 2024 and Sanjay Kumar Singh (supra).

38. Refuting the submissions of learned counsel for the petitioner, Ms. Vishakha Pandey, counsel appearing for the respondent, submitted that as per sub-rule (2) of Rule 27 of Order XLI, the appellate court has to record the reasons in case the appellate court is taking additional evidence on record, and by any stretch of imagination, it cannot be said that for rejecting an application under Order XLI Rule 27 C.P.C, reasons are to be recorded. Learned counsel for the respondent further submitted that in case of Sanjay Kumar Singh (supra) there was no dictum of the Supreme Court for recording of reasons for rejecting an application under Order XLI, Rule 27 C.P.C.

39. The Supreme Court in case of Sanjay Kumar Singh (supra) has held in paragraph Nos. 4 to 9 as under:-

“4. At the outset, it is required to be noted that before the Reference Court as well as before the High Court, the only evidence produced on record was the sale deed dated 29-12-1987 which was rejected from being considered. Hence, as such, there was no other evidence/material on record to arrive at a fair market value for the acquired land. Therefore, before the High Court, the appellant filed an application under Order 41 Rule 27 CPC for additional evidence to bring on record the sale deeds and certified copy of the judgment and award passed by the Reference Court which, according to the appellant, would have a direct bearing on the determination of the fair market value of the acquired land.

5 . The High Court has rejected the said application by observing that the application does not satisfy the requirement of Order 41 Rule 27 read with Section 96 CPC. The High Court has also observed that the appellant has failed to establish that notwithstanding exercise of due diligence, such additional evidence was not within his knowledge and could not after exercise of due diligence be produced before the courts below.

6. However, the High Court while considering the application for additional evidence has not appreciated the fact that the documents which were sought to be produced as additional evidence might have a bearing on determination of the fair market value of the acquired land. It is to be noted that except the sale deed dated 29-12-1987, which was rejected by the courts below, no further evidence was on record to determine the fair market value of the acquired land. It was a case of awarding of fair compensation to the landowner whose land has been acquired for public purpose. It cannot be disputed that the claimant whose land is acquired is entitled to the fair market value of his land.

7. It is true that the general principle is that the appellate court should not travel outside the record of the lower court and cannot take any evidence in appeal. However, as an exception, Order 41 Rule 27 CPC enables the appellate court to take additional evidence in exceptional circumstances. It may also be true that the appellate court may permit additional evidence if the conditions laid down in this Rule are found to exist and the parties are not entitled, as of right, to the admission of such evidence. However, at the same time, where the additional evidence sought to be adduced removes the cloud of doubt over the case and the evidence has a direct and important bearing on the main issue in the suit and interest of justice clearly renders it imperative that it may be allowed to be permitted on record, such application may be allowed. Even, one of the circumstances in which the production of additional evidence under Order 41 Rule 27 CPC by the appellate court is to be considered is, whether or not the appellate court requires the additional evidence so as to enable it to pronounce judgment or for any other substantial cause of like nature.

8. As observed and held by this Court in A. Andisamy Chettiar v. A. Subburaj Chettiar, the admissibility of additional evidence does not depend upon the relevancy to the issue on hand, or on the fact, whether the applicant had an opportunity for adducing such evidence at an earlier stage or not, but it depends upon whether or not the appellate court requires the evidence sought to be adduced to enable it to pronounce judgment or for any other substantial cause. It is further observed that the true test, therefore is, whether the appellate court is able to pronounce judgment on the materials before it without taking into consideration the additional evidence sought to be adduced.

9. Applying the law laid down by this Court in the aforesaid decision to the facts of the case on hand, we are of the opinion that while considering the application for additional evidence, the High Court has not at all adverted to the aforesaid relevant consideration i.e, whether the additional evidence sought to be adduced would have a direct bearing on pronouncing the judgment or for any other substantial cause. As observed hereinabove, except sale deed 29-12-1987, which as such was rejected, there was no other material available on record to arrive at a fair market value of the acquired land. Therefore, in the facts and circumstances of the case, the High Court ought to have allowed the application for additional evidence. However, at the same time, even after permitting to adduce the additional evidence, the applicant has to prove the existence, authenticity and genuineness of the documents including contents thereof, in accordance with law and for the aforesaid purpose, the matter is to be remanded to the Reference Court. "

40. In the case of Sanjay Kumar Singh (supra), the Supreme Court has laid down that normal rule is that additional evidence should not be permitted to be taken before the appellate court, and the provisions of sub-Rule (1) of Rule 27 of Order XLI are exceptions to the general rule. The judgment in case of Sanjay Kumar Singh (supra) has been given on peculiar facts of the case and there is no dispute to the proposition of law as laid down by the Apex Court that additional evidence can be accepted under clause (b) of sub-Rule (1) of Rule 27 of Order XLI, but the requirement is of the court so as to pronounce the judgment on the material available on record or not.

41. The Supreme Court in the case of Arjun Singh @ Puran (supra) held "the discretion to receive and admit additional evidence is not an arbitrary one, but a judicial one circumscribed by the limitations specified under Order XLI Rule 27 of the C.P.C."

42. Further, in the case of K. Venkataramiah(supra), the Supreme Court was of the view that courts of appeal should not overlook the provisions of clause 2 of Rule and should record their reasons for admitting additional evidence. The Supreme Court further held, we are not prepared, however, to accept the contention of counsel for the appellant that omission to record reason vitiates the admission of evidence. (para No. 13)

43. Though this Court in earlier round of litigation by order dated 18.9.2024 has set aside the earlier order dated 19.07.2024 passed by the appellate court on the ground that no reasons have been recorded by the appellate court for rejecting the application for additional evidence and directed the appellate court to decide the application keeping in view the judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court in case of Sanjay Kumar Singh (supra). I am unable to persuade myself to the law laid down and direction given by this court, as in view of the law discussed above, there is no mandate that reasons have to be recorded while rejecting an application under Rule 27 sub-Rule (1)(b) of C.P.C. The requirement of law is that while accepting an additional evidence, the appellate court is required to record reasons. It is true that every judicial order is to be supported by reasons but in my view while rejecting an application for additional evidence, court is not required to give very detailed reason for rejecting the application, sufficient compliance of law will be if from the order it is reflected that court has applied its minds to facts of the case, evidence on record, and to the relevance of evidence sought to be produced at appellate stage.

44. Since the earlier judgment dated 18.9.2024 passed by this Court was an inter-party judgment directing the court below to decide the application as directed by this Court, I have perused the order impugned and from the perusal of order, I am of the view that lower appellate court has recorded reasons for rejecting the application. The contention of learned counsel for the petitioner that no reasons were recorded by the appellate court is misconceived.

45. Learned counsel for the petitioner has invited attention of this Court to the application under Order XLI Rule 27 C.P.C filed by the petitioner. From the perusal of the application, it appears that a feeble attempt was made by the petitioner for admission of additional evidence on the ground that due to oversight of petitioner's advocate, who conducted the trial, relevant documents could not be placed before the trial court (Paragraph No. 22 of the application). In paragraph No. 23, he has again made a feeble attempt by averting that the petitioner made efforts and tried his best to secure copy of the same, but he could not secure the copy of the same to produce it before the trial court. And lastly, it has been stated in the application that the documents referred above are necessary for disposal of the appeal. The defense as set up by the petitioner in his written statement was that after execution of lease deed by the Ghaziabad Development Authority in his favor, the status of the petitioner was of a sub-lessee and therefore, the petitioner was not competent to execute the sale deed and thus, agreement to sell was executed by the petitioner under misconception of law. It was also the case of the petitioner that the Society has refused permission to the petitioner to execute the sale deed. Certain evidence was filed before the court below by the petitioner, but because the petitioner never proved the said evidences as he was absent and therefore, his right to adduce evidence was forfeited by the court below and the order become final.

46. I have also perused the documents which are being sought to be filed along with the application under Order XLI Rule 27 C.P.C. The document mentioned at serial No. 1 dated 20.12.1983 is an application moved by the Society before the Ghaziabad Development Authority for allotment of plots. Item No. 2 dated 23.04.1984 is the acceptance of the application of the Society by the G.D.A. Item No. 3 dated 28.04.1986 is the allotment letter by which Ghaziabad Development Authority has allotted 152 plots measuring 250 square meters in Sector 12 of Vidhi Vihar Colony to the Society. Item No. 4 dated 29.04.1986 is the application moved by the petitioner to become member of the Society. Item No. 5 dated 27.05.1986, is a receipt of Rs. 11,90,550 being 20% of the cost being paid to Ghaziabad Development Authority. Item No. 6 dated 27.05.1986 is the letter of Ghaziabad Development Authority directing the Society to get the land demarcated. Item No. 7 dated 28.05.1986 is the letter by the Ghaziabad Development Authority informing the Society that development work has not completed yet and therefore, demarcation will not be possible. Item No. 8 dated 29.01.1988 and 11.06.1989 and 25.01.1990 are the letters of the Society to the G.D.A., reminding the G.D.A. and for possession of the land to the Society. Item No. 9 dated 14.06.1990 is the letter of G.D.A. informing Society that development work has completed and they should meet Joint Secretary of G.D.A. Item No. 10 dated 24.07.1990 is the letter of G.D.A. informing the Society that 30.07.1990 has been fixed for demarcation and measurement of plots. Item No. 11 dated 30.7.1990 is the memo of transfer of the land to the Society by the G.D.A. Item No. 12 dated 13.08.1990 is the letter of allotment of plot No. 122 to the petitioner. Item No. 13 dated 19.8.1990 is the possession letter issued to the petitioner. Item Nos. 14 and 15 are the orders dated 19.01.1993 and 24.09.2004 passed in Original Suit No. 634 of 1992. The Original Suit No. 634 of 1992 was filed by the Society for a declaratory decree that the G.D.A. is not entitled any amount except the amount of interest of Rs. 12,83,529/- admitted by letter dated 04.10.1991. The said suit filed by the Society was decreed by the trial court by order dated 25.09.2004. Item No. 16 is copy of an affidavit filed by the petitioner in the suit itself and item No. 17 is cheque for return of consideration in compliance of judgment passed by the trial court.

47. Item Nos. 1 to 13 in the list of documents, which are being sought by the petitioner to be adduced as additional evidence relates to application, allotment, demarcation of the land to the Society and thereafter to the petitioner. These documents are not at all relevant for disposal of the suit as the plaintiff himself in the suit has pleaded that after the allotment, an agreement to sell has been executed which has not been denied by the petitioner in his written statement, therefore, any preceding proceedings are not relevant and are also not necessary for the disposal of the controversy in hand. Similarly item Nos. 14 and 15 are the interim order as well as final order passed in Civil Suit No. 634 of 1992 are also of no use as the same relate to charging of panel interest by the G.D.A. from the Society. Item No. 16 is an affidavit which was filed by the petitioner in the present suit itself is also of no relevance as the said affidavit has already been filed in the suit. Since right to adduce evidence of the petitioner has been closed by the trial court for his absence, such affidavit cannot be filed as additional evidence and lastly, the cheque of amount of Rs. 47,200/- is also not relevant for the reason the said cheque has been issued for compliance of the judgment of trial court which is under challenge in appeal as the respondent was not agreeable to the refund of money and has filed the present appeal for decree of specific performance in pursuance to the agreement of sell in question.

48. Learned counsel for the petitioner relied upon judgment of Deputy Registrar, Cooperative Societies vs. Chaudhary Sarfaraz-un-Zaman and others; 1971 SCC online Allahabad 361. In the said case, it was argued before this Court that appellate court could not have exercised jurisdiction under clause (b) of Rule 27(1) earlier than hearing of arguments in the appeal itself. It was argued that the appeal admittedly was not being heard by the Civil Judge who permitted reception of this additional evidence, although it may have been heard by his predecessor, and this additional evidence having been permitted to be produced anterior to such a stage, it was not a case where the appellate court could decide as to whether these documents were required by it to enable it to pronounce judgment. The submission noted above was not accepted by this Court and it was held that application under Order XLI Rule 27 of CPC may be moved by the parties in some cases, as in the present case, some time before the date of arguments in the appeal is fixed and in connection with the hearing of such application before the appeal, the appellate court may consider not only the issue or issues on which the additional evidence is sought to be produced, and in that connection examine the evidence bearing on the matter in controversy. If upon such examination of the evidence with reference to issue or issues before it the Court comes to the conclusion that the document sought to be produced at that late stage will be required to enable it to pronounce judgment on the issue or issues then the requirements of clause (b) of Rule 27(1) of Order XLI of the Code, as amended by this Court, to my mind, will stand satisfied and it is immaterial that such a decision has not been contemporaneous with the hearing of the appeal itself. The material point is that a decision under clause (b) of Rule 27(1) must be taken by the Court on an examination of the evidence as observed by the Privy Council in the case of Parsotim (supra). This has happened in this case and therefore the argument that there was improper exercise of jurisdiction by the appellate Court under clause (b) of Rule 27 as the appeal itself was not heard by the time the application under Order XLI, Rule 27 was allowed cannot be accepted.

49. There is no dispute to the proposition of law laid down by this Court. The court may exercise the power to receive additional evidence at an intermittent stage of the appeal also but since for exercise of power under sub-clause (b) of sub- Rule 1 of Rule 27, the court has to consider the evidence on record for coming to the conclusion of its requirement as contemplated under sub-clause (b), it is more practical to consider the application at the stage of hearing otherwise examining of evidence has to be undertaken by the appellate court twice.

50. Learned counsel for the petitioner also relied upon judgment of Supreme Court in case of State Bank of India versus Messrs Ashok Stores and Others;1981 SCC online Orissa 69. In that case, in exercise of power, clause (b) of sub-rule (1) of Rule 27 was challenged on the ground that appellate court should decide whether the document is required by it, is reached after the commencement of the hearing of the appeal when the court apprises itself of the facts and circumstances of the case. At that stage only the appellate court would be in a position to adjudge the requirement. The record of the appeal does not disclose that the appellate court had by the time of disposal of the application filed by the petitioner for adducing additional evidence apprised itself of the facts of the case and it was also submitted that order of appellate court rejecting the petition of the petitioner for additional evidence is unsustainable. The Orissa High Court held as the hearing of the appeal in the present case had not commenced before the appellate court nor did the appellate court examined the evidence to adjudge the requirements of the provisions of clause (b), it was inappropriate to deal with the application for additional evidence. The order of rejection is, therefore, not sustainable and is set aside.

51. In view of the law laid down by this Court as well as by the Hon'ble Supreme Court, I am unable to persuade myself to the view taken by the Orissa High Court. The judgment of the Orissa High Court is not applicable to the facts of the present case as the grievance of the petitioner is that the court below ought to have recorded reasons for rejecting the application filed by the petitioner and not that the said application has been rejected at the stage prior to hearing of the appeal.

52. Learned counsel also relied upon judgment in case of Akash Ganga Builders and Engineers (supra), wherein the Delhi High Court has held that it is not that a document can be called at the appellate stage at the instance of a party only. The Court in order to do substantial justice can also call for a document. Rule 27(1)(b) empowers the Court to call for a document without the aid of any party.

53. There is no dispute as to the proposition of law laid down by the Delhi High Court in the aforesaid judgment, but as held by this Court as well as by the Supreme Court that under clause (b), the requirement is of the Court itself, and if the Court finds that a particular document is required for pronouncement of judgment or for any other substantial cause, the same can be admitted as additional evidence.

54. Learned counsel for the petitioner also relied upon judgment of K.R. Mohan Reddy (supra). The Supreme Court in paragraph No. 15, 16, and 17 of the judgment has held as under:-

“(15) The High Court, in our opinion, failed to apply the provisions of Order 41 Rule 27 of CPC in its correct perspective. Clauses (a), (aa) and (b) of Sub-rule (1) of Rule 27 of Order XLI refer to three different situations. Power of the appellate court to pass any order thereunder is limited. For exercising its jurisdiction thereunder, the appellate Court must arrive at a finding that one or the other conditions enumerated thereunder is satisfied. A good reason must also be shown as to why the evidence was not produced in the trial Court.

(16) Respondent in its application categorically stated that the books of accounts had been misplaced and the same were discovered a few days prior to the filing of the said application while the office was being shifted. The High Court, unfortunately did not enter into the said questions at all. As indicated hereinbefore, the High Court proceeded on the basis as if clause(b) of Sub-rule (1) of Rule 27 of Order XLI of CPC was applicable.

(17) It is now a trite law that the conditions precedent for application of clause (aa) of Sub-rule (1) of Rule 27 of Order XLI is different from that of clause(b). In the event the former is to be applied, it would be for the applicant to show that the ingredients or conditions precedent mentioned therein are satisfied. On the other hand clause(b) to Sub-rule (1) of Rule 27 of Order XLI of CPC is to be taken recourse to, the appellate Court was bound to consider the entire evidences on record and come to an independent finding for arriving at a just decision; adduction of additional evidence as has been prayed by the appellant was necessary. The fact that the High Court failed to do so, in our opinion, amounts to misdirection in law.”

55. There is no dispute to the law laid down by the Hon;ble Apex Court as noted above but the said judgment is not applicable to the facts of the present case as in the present case the scope of enquiry is applicability of sub-clause (b) of sub-Rule 1 of Rule 27. Though in the application filed by the petitioner for additional evidence, feeble attempt was made by the petitioner to bring his case within the parameter of sub-clause (aa) of sub-Rule 1 of Rule 27, but without the relevant pleading and material for the same.

56. Learned counsel for the petitioner also relied upon judgment in the cases of Sangram Singh (supra), Chinnamal and others (supra), Dondapati Narayana Reddy (supra) and Commissioner Mysore Urban Development Authority (supra) to contend that C.P.C. is a body of procedural law designed to facilitate justice and it should not be treated as an enactment providing for punishment and penalties. The law of procedure should be so construed as to render justice wherever reasonably possible. There is no dispute with the proposition of law laid down by the Supreme Court in the aforesaid judgments, but the situation in case of additional evidence is slightly different.

57. The Supreme Court in case of State of Gujarat versus Mahendarkumar Parshottambhai Desai; 2006 (9) SCC 772 has held as under:-

"10.... though the appellate court has the power to allow a document to be produced and a witness to be examined under Order 41 Rule 27 CPC, the requirement of the said Court must be limited to those cases where it found it necessary to obtain such evidence for enabling it to pronounce judgment. This provision did not entitle the appellate court to let in fresh evidence at the appellate stage where even without such evidence it can pronounce judgment in the case. It does not entitle the appellate court to let in fresh evidence only for the purposes of pronouncement of judgment in a particular way."

58. Recently, in case of Gobind Singh and others Vs. Union of India; 2026 AIR SC 1303, Hon'ble Supreme Court in paragraph No. 11.7 has held as under:

"11.7. The procedural framework under Order XLI of CPC makes it abundantly clear that an appeal is ordinarily to be decided on the evidence adduced before the Trial Court. The Appellate Court is not expected to embark upon a fresh fact-finding exercise or permit production of additional evidence as a matter of routine. Where the Appellate Court is satisfied that the material already available on record is sufficient to enable it to pronounce judgment, it is well within its jurisdiction to confine its consideration to the evidence forming part of the record of the courts below. "

59. In case of K.R. Mohan Reddy (supra) the appellate court has held as under in paragraph No. 19:-

"19. The appellate court should not pass an order so as to patch up the weakness of the evidence of the unsuccessful party before the trial Court, but it will be different if the Court itself requires the evidence to do justice between the parties. The ability to pronounce judgment is to be understood as the ability to pronounce judgment satisfactorily to the mind of the Court. But mere difficulty is not sufficient to issue such direction. While saying so, however, we do not mean that the court at an appropriate stage would be precluded from considering the applicability of clause (b). "

60. In my view, the appellate court should not pass an order as to patch up the weaknesses of the evidence of the unsuccessful party before the trial court, but it will be different if the court itself requires evidence to do justice between the parties. The ability to pronounce judgment is to be understood as the ability to pronounce judgment satisfactorily to the mind of the court.

61. So far as contention of learned counsel for the respondent that since the opportunity of leading evidence of the petitioner was closed by the trial court, in fact, no evidence was led by the petitioner before the trial court and therefore he cannot be permitted to lead additional evidence at the stage of appeal, as the expression "additional evidence" in Rule 27 of Order XLI the Code implies leading of some evidence by the party, only where the party has led some evidence, then only party can be permitted to lead additional evidence.

62. The argument of learned counsel for the respondent appears to be very attractive, but this controversy has been settled by the Supreme Court in the case of Jaipur Development Authority vs. Kailash Pati Devi, 1997 (7) SCC 297, the Supreme Court held that the term "additional evidence" does not mean that parties seeking to produce additional evidence must have adduced some evidence in the lower court. Such a view amounts to introducing an additional condition not contemplated by sub-rule. There is no distinction between a party who has led some evidence and a party who has not led any evidence at all.

63. Learned counsel for the respondent submitted that power to receive additional evidence or refuse is a discretionary power vested with the appellate court. Once such a discretion has been exercised by the appellate court, the superior court should not normally interfere with such in exercise of powers under Section 115 C.P.C. or in exercise of power under Article 226 or Article 227 of the Constitution of India. It has also been submitted by learned counsel for the respondent that appellate court while deciding the question whether it requires the evidence as additional evidence comes to the conclusion after examining the entire evidence available on record and the superior court, while exercising the jurisdiction, normally does not have the record before it, under Section 115 C.P.C. or exercising powers under Article 226 or 227 of the Constitution of India.

64. Learned counsel for the respondent relied upon the judgment of Apex Court in the case of Mahaveer Singh vs. Naresh Chandra, 2001 (1) SCC 309. Paragraph No. 5 of the said judgment is quoted as under:-

"5.... The words 'or for any other substantial cause' must be read with the word 'requires'", which is set out at the commencement of the provision,so that it is only where, for any other substantial cause, the appellate court requires additional evidence, that this rule would apply as noticed by the Privy Council in Kessowji Issur v. Great Indian Peninsula Railway Co. It is under these circumstances such a power could be exercised Therefore, when the first appellate court did not find the necessity to allow the application, we fail to understand as to how the High Court could, in exercise of its power under Section 115 CPC, have interfered with such an order, particularly when the whole appeal is not before the Court. It is only in the circumstances when the appellate court requires such evidence to pronounce the judgment the necessity to adduce additional evidence would arise and not in any other circumstances. When the first appellate court passed the order on the application filed under Order 41 Rule 27 CPC, the whole appeal was before it and if the first appellate court is satisfied that additional evidence was not required, we fail to understand as to how the High Court could interfere with such an order under Section 115 CPC."

65. Learned counsel for the respondent also relied upon the judgment in the case of Gurudev Singh vs. Mehanga Ram, 1997 (6) SCC 507. In paragraph No. 2 of the Gurudev Singh (supra), the Apex Court has held as under:-

"2. We have heard the learned counsel for the parties. The grievance of the appellants before us is that in an appeal filed by them before the learned Additional District Judge, Ferozepur, in an application under Order 41 Rule 27(b) of the Code of Civil Procedure (CPC) the learned Additional District Judge at the final hearing of the appeal wrongly felt that additional evidence was required to be produced as requested by the appellants by way of examination of a handwriting expert. The High Court in the impugned order exercising jurisdiction under Section 115 CPC took the view that the order of the appellate court could not be sustained. In our view the approach of the High Court in revision at that interim stage when the appeal was pending for final hearing before the learned Additional District Judge was not justified and the High Court should not have interfered with the order which was within the jurisdiction of the appellate court. The reason is obvious. The appellate court hearing the matter finally could exercise jurisdiction one way or the other under Order 41 Rule 27 specially clause (b). If the order was wrong on merits, it would always be open for the respondent to challenge the same in accordance with law if an occasion arises to carry the matter in second appeal after an appellate decree is passed. But at this interim stage, the High Court should not have felt itself convinced that the order was without jurisdiction. Only on this short question, without expressing any opinion on the merits of the controversy involved and on the legality of the contentions advanced by both the learned counsel for the parties regarding additional evidence, we allow this appeal, set aside the order of the High Court."

66. There is no dispute as to the proposition of law that it is the discretion of the appellate court either to admit or refuse the additional evidence in exercise of powers under Rule 27(1)(b), but the discretion is not to be exercised arbitrarily but has to be exercised on settled judicial principles. The judgments in case of Mahavir Singh (supra) and Gurudev Singh (supra) relied upon by the respondents arose where the High Court, in exercise of powers under Section 115 C.P.C, has interfered with the discretion exercised by the appellate court. Though, the jurisdiction of the Court exercising power under Article 227 of the Constitution of India, is wider than the jurisdiction as provided under Section 115 C.P.C, but still the Superior Court should not interfere with the discretionary power exercised by the appellate court unless the discretion exercised by the appellate court is found to be arbitrary.

67. I have also perused the judgment passed by the court below wherein the court below has considered the documents and has come to the conclusion that these documents are not at all relevant for disposal of the appeal. In the present case, cogent reasons have been given by the appellate court while rejecting application filed by the petitioner under Order XLI Rule 27 C.P.C. which cannot be said to be arbitrary. I find no illegality in the order passed by the court below as from the discussions made above the documents are not at all necessary for the controversy involved in the appeal. The court below has rightly rejected the application filed by the petitioner.

68. Consequently, the petition fails and is dismissed. No orders as to cost.

Issues for Consideration

- (i) Whether the requirement of pre-deposit of fifty per cent of the entire payable amount under the proviso to Section 35(1) of the Uttar Pradesh Regulation of Urban Premises Tenancy Act, 2021 is a mandatory jurisdictional condition precedent for institution of an appeal before the Rent Tribunal?
- (ii) Whether an appeal presented without the prescribed pre-deposit is non est in the eye of law and whether a deposit made after expiry of the prescribed period of limitation can retrospectively validate such appeal?
- (iii) Whether the Rent Authority becomes functus officio after passing the eviction order and consequently lacks jurisdiction to entertain an application seeking deposit of the statutory pre-deposit?
- (iv) Whether, in the absence of any statutory provision prescribing the mode and forum for making the pre-deposit under Section 35(1), the High Court, in exercise of its supervisory jurisdiction under Article 227 of the Constitution, can evolve a procedural mechanism to operationalise the statutory mandate?

Headnotes

Uttar Pradesh Regulation of Urban Premises Tenancy Act, 2021 — Section 35(1) proviso — Appeal — Pre-deposit — Condition precedent — Nature of requirement.

HELD: The proviso to Section 35(1) of the Uttar Pradesh Regulation of Urban Premises Tenancy Act, 2021, employing the expression "no appeal shall lie", makes the deposit of fifty per cent of the entire payable amount under the impugned order a mandatory and jurisdictional condition precedent for institution of an appeal. The requirement is substantive in nature and goes to the very competence of the appeal. In the absence of such pre-deposit, the appeal is not merely defective but non est in the eye of law. [Paras 26 to 30]

Uttar Pradesh Regulation of Urban Premises Tenancy Act, 2021 — Section 35(1) proviso — Pre-deposit — Limitation — Interplay.

HELD: The statutory requirement of pre-deposit and the prescribed period of limitation are cumulative and inseparable conditions governing the institution of an appeal. A deposit made after expiry of the prescribed period of limitation does not relate back to the date of presentation of the memorandum of appeal so as to validate an otherwise incompetent appeal. Where pre-deposit is effected beyond limitation, the appeal would be treated as having been instituted only on the date of compliance, thereby necessitating consideration of delay and condonation in accordance with law. [Paras 31 to 42, 52 to 56]

Uttar Pradesh Regulation of Urban Premises Tenancy Act, 2021 — Section 35(1) proviso — Appeal filed without pre-deposit — Effect.

HELD: An appeal preferred without compliance with the statutory requirement of pre-deposit does not confer jurisdiction upon the Rent Tribunal. Such an appeal remains inchoate and incompetent until the mandatory condition is fulfilled. Compliance with the requirement of pre-deposit cannot substitute compliance with limitation, nor can fulfilment of one statutory condition cure non-compliance with the other. [Paras 32 to 40, 53 to 56]

Uttar Pradesh Regulation of Urban Premises Tenancy Act, 2021 — Rent Authority — Doctrine of functus officio — Scope.

HELD: The doctrine of functus officio applies only where an authority seeks to reopen or review its adjudication on merits after finally deciding the lis. Rejection by the Rent Authority of a subsequent application seeking permission to deposit the statutory amount does not amount to review or modification of the eviction order but relates merely to an ancillary matter arising subsequent to the adjudication. The Rent Authority, therefore, cannot be said to have acted without jurisdiction in rejecting such application. [Paras 22 to 25]

Uttar Pradesh Regulation of Urban Premises Tenancy Act, 2021 — Section 35(1) proviso — Pre-deposit — Substantive requirement — Mode and forum of deposit — Procedural aspect.

HELD: While the obligation to deposit fifty per cent of the entire payable amount under the impugned order is substantive and mandatory, the mode, forum and manner of making such deposit are procedural in nature. The statutory silence regarding the procedural mechanism cannot be construed so as to defeat the statutory right of appeal or to frustrate the legislative intent underlying Section 35(1). The substantive requirement must be strictly enforced, whereas the procedural aspects are liable to be regulated in a manner that advances the object of the enactment. [Paras 43 to 52]

Constitution of India — Article 227 — Uttar Pradesh Regulation of Urban Premises Tenancy Act, 2021 — Section 35(1) — Statutory silence — Power of High Court to evolve procedural mechanism.

HELD: Where a statute clearly mandates performance of an act but remains silent as to the procedure for its implementation, the High Court, in exercise of its supervisory jurisdiction under Article 227 of the Constitution, is competent to evolve a workable procedural framework to operationalise the legislative mandate until appropriate rules are framed. Such judicial supplementation is confined to procedural matters and does not amount to supplying a substantive casus omissus. [Paras 46 to 52]

Uttar Pradesh Regulation of Urban Premises Tenancy Act, 2021 — Section 35(1) — Pre-deposit — Procedure — Guidelines.

HELD: To ensure uniformity in the administration of the Act, the Court laid down the following procedural guidelines until statutory rules are framed:

- (i) the memorandum of appeal may be presented before the Rent Tribunal along with the requisite pre-deposit by demand draft or any other legally permissible mode, whereupon the Tribunal may retain the amount in its registry or direct its deposit before the Rent Authority;
- (ii) alternatively, the appellant may deposit the amount before the Rent Authority, which shall function only as a ministerial repository for receiving the deposit and issuing a receipt or certificate to be filed before the Rent Tribunal;
- (iii) an appeal shall be treated as duly instituted where proof of such deposit is furnished before the Tribunal within the prescribed period; and
- (iv) where the pre-deposit is defective or has not been made at the time of filing the appeal, the appellant may seek time and, where necessary, condonation of delay before the Rent Tribunal, failing which the appeal shall be liable to be dismissed as not maintainable. These directions regulate only the procedural modality of compliance and do not dilute the mandatory nature of the statutory pre-deposit. [Paras 57 to 59]

Constitution of India — Article 227 — Supervisory jurisdiction — Interference with order of Rent Authority.

HELD: Since the petitioner neither complied with the mandatory requirement of pre-deposit within the prescribed period of limitation nor sought condonation of delay before the appellate forum, the impugned order rejecting the application for deposit did not suffer from any jurisdictional error warranting interference under Article 227 of the Constitution. [Paras 56 to 62]

Petition dismissed. Procedural guidelines issued for future compliance with the requirement of pre-deposit under Section 35(1) of the Uttar Pradesh Regulation of Urban Premises Tenancy Act, 2021 to operate until appropriate rules are framed. (E-14)

Order dated 17.02.2026 passed by the Rent Authority/Civil Judge (Senior Division), Gautam Buddh Nagar rejecting the petitioner's application seeking permission to deposit fifty per cent of the decretal amount under the proviso to Section 35(1) of the Uttar Pradesh Regulation of Urban Premises Tenancy Act, 2021 after passing of the eviction order, in proceedings arising out of Case No. 361 of 2024, Anupam Vijay @ Anupam Vijay Gupta v. Mohd. Nasir @ Nasir Ahmad

Appearance for Parties

For the Appellants: Anurag Shrivastava, Archit Mandhyan.

For the Respondents: Ashish Agrawal.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Yogendra Kumar Srivastava, J.)

1. Heard Sri Archit Mandhyan, learned counsel appearing along with Sri Anurag Srivastava, for the petitioner and Sri Ashish Agrawal, learned counsel for the respondent. Sri Rahul Agrawal, learned Additional Advocate General appearing along with Sri Gaurav Singh, learned Standing Counsel for the State of U.P., has also been heard on the question relating to interpretation of the statutory provisions and the rules framed thereunder.

2. The present petition under Article 227 of the Constitution of India has been filed questioning the correctness of the order dated 13.11.2025 passed by the Additional District Magistrate (Finance & Revenue), Bijnor, acting as Rent Authority, whereby the application moved by the petitioner on 07.11.2025 seeking to deposit fifty percent of the adjudicated amount in terms of Section 35(1) of the Uttar Pradesh Regulation of Urban Premises Tenancy Act, 2021 has been rejected.

3. The facts giving rise to the present petition are not in dispute. The petitioner is a tenant in respect of Shop No. 20 situated at Ramesh Super Bazar, Mandi Pamarganj, Bijnor. Proceedings initiated by the respondent-landlord under Sections 21(2) and 23 of the Act, 2021 culminated in an order dated 07.08.2025 passed by the Rent Authority directing eviction of the petitioner and payment of arrears, compensation and costs. The petitioner preferred an appeal under Section 35(1) of the Act before the Rent Tribunal on 08.09.2025. Admittedly, the appeal was not accompanied by deposit of fifty percent of the adjudicated amount. Thereafter, the petitioner moved an application before the Rent Authority on 07.11.2025, nearly 90 days after the eviction order, seeking to deposit the said amount, which application has been rejected by the impugned order.

4. Learned counsel for the petitioner submits that upon passing of the final order dated 07.08.2025, the Rent Authority became functus officio and was divested of jurisdiction to entertain or decide any application touching upon the appellate process, including the question of limitation. It is submitted that the issue whether the appeal was within time or otherwise could only have been examined by the Rent Tribunal, and the Rent Authority acted wholly without jurisdiction in rejecting the application on that ground.

5. It is further contended that the Act, 2021 and the Rules framed thereunder do not prescribe the forum or mechanism for making the pre-deposit. In the absence of any statutory guidance, the petitioner cannot be penalized for having approached the Rent Authority, which had determined the liability and was the natural repository of the amount. It is urged that procedural uncertainty ought not to defeat a substantive right of appeal.

6. Placing reliance upon Union of India v. Association for Democratic Reforms, it is contended that where the statute and the rules are silent on procedure, constitutional courts are empowered to issue appropriate directions to ensure that the legislative intent is not defeated.

7. Per contra, learned counsel appearing for the respondent-landlord has supported the impugned order and has contended that the requirement of pre-deposit under Section 35(1) is mandatory and jurisdictional in nature. It is submitted that the proviso to Section 35(1) employs the expression "no appeal shall lie," which makes the deposit a condition precedent for the very existence of the appeal. In the absence of such deposit, the appeal is non-est and cannot be entertained.

8. It is further contended that the petitioner, having voluntarily approached the Rent Authority for making the deposit, cannot now turn around and challenge its jurisdiction after having suffered an adverse order. The principle that a party cannot approbate and reprobate is invoked to submit that the petitioner is estopped from raising such a plea.

9. Referring to Section 41 of the Act, 2021, it is urged that the provisions of Section 5 of the Limitation Act, 1963 are applicable, and it was open to the petitioner to seek condonation of delay, which was not done. Reliance is also placed on Rule 11(d) to submit that the statutory authorities are empowered to pass appropriate orders to meet the ends of justice.

10. Learned counsel for the respondent has further drawn attention to the certified copy of the order sheet of the appeal to point out that several dates were fixed in the proceedings and the petitioner had sought repeated adjournments; however, no steps were taken either to tender the requisite pre-deposit before the Rent Tribunal or to seek condonation of delay.

11. It is also submitted that the Act, 2021 has been enacted with the object of providing speedy and time-bound remedies in landlord-tenant disputes. The requirement of pre-deposit is integral to this object. A delay of nearly 90 days in seeking to comply with a mandatory condition precedent defeats the legislative intent and cannot be condoned on the ground of procedural uncertainty.

12. In view of the recurring nature of the issue and the apparent statutory silence on the procedural aspect of pre-deposit, this Court requested the learned Additional Advocate General to assist on the broader question relating to statutory interpretation and the permissibility of judicially evolving a procedural framework.

13. Learned Additional Advocate General has submitted that the scheme of the Act, 2021 clearly demonstrates that the requirement of pre-deposit under Section 35(1) is substantive and mandatory in nature. Placing reliance upon Commissioner of Income Tax v. Filmistan Ltd., it is urged that where a statute provides that "no appeal shall lie" unless a specified condition is fulfilled, the appeal cannot be regarded as properly instituted in the absence of such compliance. It is further contended that where the pre-deposit is made after the expiry of the prescribed period of limitation, the appeal would, in effect, be treated as having been instituted only on the date on which such deposit is made, notwithstanding that the memorandum of appeal may have been presented earlier within time. In such a situation, the question of limitation would necessarily fall for consideration with reference to the date of compliance with the mandatory condition, and the appellant would be required to establish sufficient cause for condonation of delay.

14. Further reliance is placed upon Prathama U.P. Gramin Bank v. Union of India to reiterate that the right of appeal is a creature of statute and may be conditioned or qualified by the legislature, and that strict adherence to such conditions is essential for maintaining the appeal.

15. The learned Additional Advocate General does not dispute that the Act and the Rules do not expressly delineate the forum before which such deposit is to be made or the precise manner in which compliance is to be effected. It is, however, submitted that the absence of such procedural specification ought not to be construed in a manner that frustrates the operation of the statute or impairs the exercise of the appellate remedy, particularly when the substantive requirement of pre-deposit stands clearly mandated.

16. It has been urged that while courts cannot supply omissions in substantive provisions, they are not precluded from filling in procedural gaps where such supplementation is necessary to give effect to the legislative intent. The distinction between substantive and procedural omissions has been emphasized, and it is submitted that the present case falls squarely within the latter category.

17. The learned Additional Advocate General has further submitted that in the absence of rules, courts have, on several occasions, evolved procedures to operationalize statutory mandates, particularly where failure to do so would result in uncertainty or arbitrary application. It is contended that the power under Article 227 of the Constitution enables this Court to issue appropriate directions to subordinate courts and tribunals to ensure uniformity and consistency in practice.

18. It is also submitted that any such procedural framework must preserve the mandatory nature of the pre-deposit while providing reasonable flexibility in the mode and forum of compliance. The guiding principle, according to the learned Additional Advocate General, should be that the substance of the requirement—namely, the actual deposit of fifty percent of the adjudicated amount within the permissible time—must be strictly enforced, while the procedural aspects should be construed in a manner that advances the object of the statute.

19. The learned Additional Advocate General has, therefore, suggested that this Court may consider laying down broad guidelines indicating that the deposit may be made either before the Rent Tribunal at the time of filing the appeal or before the Rent Authority as a ministerial repository, with proof thereof being furnished before the Tribunal. It is further suggested that the Tribunal may be vested with the discretion to regulate compliance in cases where the deposit is defective or delayed, subject to the statutory mandate.

20. The rival submissions advanced by the learned counsel for the parties, as well as the assistance rendered by the learned Additional Advocate General, bring to the fore two interrelated questions: first, the nature and effect of the requirement of pre-deposit under Section 35(1), particularly in its interplay with limitation; and second, the extent to which this Court may evolve a procedural mechanism in the face of statutory silence.

21. These issues, having wider ramifications beyond the facts of the present case, require careful consideration not only in the context of the statutory language but also in light of the principles of statutory construction, the object of the enactment, and the need to ensure uniformity in the administration of justice under the Act, 2021.

22. Before advertent to the larger issue, it would be appropriate to first deal with the preliminary objection raised on behalf of the petitioner with regard to the jurisdiction of the Rent Authority.

23. The doctrine of functus officio is attracted where an authority, having finally adjudicated upon a lis, seeks to revisit, review or alter its decision on merits. The underlying rationale of the doctrine is to ensure finality in adjudication and to prevent re-opening of issues that have already attained conclusiveness. However, the said doctrine cannot be stretched to encompass situations where the authority is called upon to deal with matters which are merely incidental or consequential to the order already passed.

24. In the present case, the Rent Authority has neither reviewed nor modified its earlier eviction order dated 07.08.2025. The rejection of an application seeking to deposit money at a belated stage does not amount to re-adjudication of the dispute. The impugned order is confined to the consideration of a subsequent application moved by the petitioner and is ancillary in nature. It does not trench upon the merits already determined between the parties.

25. Viewed thus, the Rent Authority cannot be said to have exercised a jurisdiction not vested in it merely by declining to entertain an application which, on the face of it, was moved beyond the permissible period. The plea founded on the doctrine of functus officio is, therefore, misconceived and is rejected.

26. The provision for statutory appeal against an order passed by the Rent Authority is under Section 35(1) of the U.P. Act No. 16 of 2021. It reads as follows:

“35. Appeal to Rent Tribunal.-(1) Any person aggrieved by an order passed by the Rent Authority may prefer an appeal along with a certified copy of such order to the Rent Tribunal within the local limits of which the premises is situated, within a period of thirty days from the date of that order:

Provided that no appeal shall lie unless the appellant pre-deposits fifty percent of the entire payable amount under the impugned order of the Rent Authority.”

27. A plain reading of the provision makes it evident that no appeal shall lie unless the appellant deposits fifty percent of the entire payable amount under the impugned order of the Rent Authority. The language employed by the legislature is clear, categorical and admits of no dilution. The use of the expression “no appeal shall lie” is of decisive import, as it renders the deposit a condition precedent for the very institution of the appeal. In the absence of such deposit, the appeal is not merely defective but incompetent at its inception and is liable to be treated as non-est in the eye of law. This position finds support in Commissioner of Income Tax v. Filmistan Ltd. wherein it was held that where a statute provides that no appeal shall lie unless the prescribed condition is fulfilled, the appeal cannot be regarded as properly instituted in the absence of such compliance.

28. A distinction is well recognized in law between provisions which declare that an appeal shall not be “entertained” and those which provide that no appeal shall “lie”. In the former category, the defect is capable of being cured at a later stage and the appeal, though initially defective, is not void ab initio. In the latter category, however, the very right to prefer an appeal is made conditional. Unless the condition is fulfilled, the appeal does not come into existence in the eye of law.

29. The provision in question clearly falls in the latter category. The requirement of pre-deposit is not procedural but jurisdictional. It constitutes a condition precedent for the invocation of the appellate jurisdiction of the Rent Tribunal. In its absence, the appeal is non-est and cannot be treated as a validly instituted proceeding.

30. The Supreme Court has consistently upheld such statutory conditions. In Anant Mills Co. Ltd. v. State of Gujarat, it was held that the right of appeal being a creature of statute, the legislature is competent to impose conditions for its exercise, including the requirement of pre-deposit. Similarly, in Vijay Prakash D. Mehta v. Collector of Customs, the Court emphasized that where a statute imposes a condition precedent for the maintainability of an appeal, such condition must be strictly complied with and cannot be circumvented. The same principle has been reiterated in Shyam Kishore v. Municipal Corporation of Delhi, wherein it was observed that the requirement of deposit is intended to balance the right of appeal with the need to secure the demand and prevent frivolous litigation. A similar exposition of the law is to be found in Prathama U.P. Gramin Bank v. Union of India wherein, upon a comprehensive survey of precedents, it was held that the right to appeal being a creature of statute can be qualified by imposing a condition of pre-deposit.

31. The requirement of pre-deposit must also be read in conjunction with the limitation prescribed for filing the appeal. The statute unequivocally provides that the right of appeal is available only within the prescribed period and subject to fulfillment of the condition of pre-deposit.

32. It follows, therefore, that for an appeal to be competent in law, the deposit must exist at the time when the appeal is preferred, or at the very least within the period of limitation, subject to orders of the appellate forum in appropriate cases. A deposit made beyond the prescribed period does not relate back so as to validate an otherwise incompetent appeal.

33. Where an appeal is filed without deposit, it is not merely defective but fundamentally incompetent. Where, in addition, the deposit itself is sought to be made after the expiry of the period of limitation, the defect is compounded. In such a situation, there is neither a valid appeal in existence nor a subsisting right to create one.

34. Even in cases where delay in filing the appeal is sought to be condoned, the position does not materially alter. The appeal remains inchoate until delay is condoned and the statutory condition is fulfilled. Any deposit made in the interregnum is necessarily conditional and subject to the outcome of the application for condonation. If delay is not condoned, the deposit does not breathe life into the appeal.

35. The legislative intent behind employing the expression "no appeal shall lie" is to create a strict juristic threshold-a gateway condition-designed to ensure that the tenant demonstrates bona fides by securing a substantial part of the adjudicated liability before invoking the appellate jurisdiction. To permit compliance with this condition at any indefinite point of time would be to defeat the object of the provision and dilute its mandatory character.

36. The statutory scheme thus contemplates that two foundational requirements must co-exist for an appeal to be competent: first, it must be filed within limitation, and second, it must be accompanied by the prescribed pre-deposit, being fifty percent of the entire payable amount under the impugned order of the Rent Authority. These conditions are cumulative and inseparable. Compliance with one does not cure non-compliance with the other.

37. This interpretation is also in consonance with the underlying object of the Act, 2021, which has been enacted to ensure speedy, efficient and time-bound adjudication of landlord-tenant disputes. The requirement of pre-deposit, read with the strict timeline for filing an appeal, constitutes a deliberate legislative design to prevent dilatory tactics and to ensure that the tenant does not continue in possession without securing the adjudicated liability. The principles enunciated by the Supreme Court in Anant Mills Co. Ltd., Vijay Prakash D. Mehta and Shyam Kishore reinforce that such statutory conditions are neither ornamental nor procedural formalities, but substantive safeguards integral to the scheme of the enactment. Any interpretation permitting belated or indefinite compliance would not only dilute the mandatory character of the provision but also undermine the legislative intent of expeditious resolution embodied in the Act, 2021.

38. Viewed in the aforesaid statutory and legal framework, the chronology of events assumes significance. The eviction order was passed on 07.08.2025, and the appeal was filed on 08.09.2025 without the requisite pre-deposit. The attempt to deposit the amount was made only on 07.11.2025, well beyond the prescribed period of limitation. The petitioner not only failed to accompany the appeal with the requisite deposit but also sought to comply with the condition after a lapse of nearly 90 days. By that time, the statutory period for preferring the appeal had long expired. The initial filing of the appeal without deposit did not give rise to a valid proceeding, and the subsequent attempt to deposit the amount cannot retrospectively validate what was non-existent in law.

39. In dealing with such a situation, the Court must strike a balance between two competing considerations. On the one hand, the condition of pre-deposit is mandatory and cannot be diluted. On the other hand, procedural ambiguity cannot be permitted to defeat a substantive statutory right. The distinction between substantive and procedural requirements assumes significance in this context. While substantive conditions must be strictly complied with, procedural prescriptions are to be construed in a manner that advances the cause of justice.

40. The legal position in this regard is clear. Pre-deposit is not a substitute for limitation. Where an appeal is time-barred, compliance with the requirement of deposit does not revive or validate the appeal. Conversely, even where delay is condoned, the appeal cannot proceed unless the pre-deposit condition is satisfied. Both requirements are jurisdictional and cumulative.

41. In a situation where an appeal is filed beyond limitation, the only manner in which it can survive is if an application for condonation of delay is filed and allowed. Until such condonation, the appeal remains inchoate. Any deposit made in such circumstances can, at best, be treated as conditional or provisional, subject to the outcome of the application for condonation of delay. If delay is not condoned, the deposit does not cure the defect and the appeal remains non-maintainable.

42. The deposit, in the instant case, was not even tendered within the period of limitation, nor was it made contemporaneously with any application for condonation of delay before the appellate forum. The attempt to deposit the amount after nearly 90 days cannot be treated as substantial compliance with the statutory mandate.

43. The contention that the Act does not prescribe the forum for deposit also does not advance the petitioner's case. The absence of a specified procedure pertains only to the mode or channel of deposit. Such procedural silence can be addressed by adopting a purposive approach so as to make the statute workable.

44. In this regard, reference may be made to the decision of this Court in Mayank Mittal v. District Judge/Rent Tribunal, wherein it was held that a direction issued by the Rent Tribunal requiring the appellant to deposit the amount before the Rent Authority and to file the receipt thereof along with the memorandum of appeal could not be faulted. The said decision implicitly recognizes that the Rent Authority may act as a ministerial repository for the purpose of receiving the deposit, even though the appellate jurisdiction is exercised by the Rent Tribunal.

45. The controversy, therefore, does not lie in the existence or nature of the obligation, which is unequivocal, but in the absence of a prescribed procedural mechanism for its fulfillment. The distinction between substantive and procedural requirements assumes significance in this context. The requirement of pre-deposit is substantive and mandatory, going to the root of the maintainability of the appeal; the mode, forum and manner of effectuating such deposit are essentially procedural in nature.

46. While the mandatory nature of the requirement of pre-deposit thus admits of no ambiguity, the present case also highlights a recurring and systemic difficulty arising under the Act, 2021. Although the statute unequivocally mandates the deposit, it remains silent as to the forum before which such deposit is to be made and the manner in which compliance is to be demonstrated. This statutory silence has led to divergent practices across forums, at times resulting in rejection of appeals on technical grounds. Such an approach, if left unaddressed, is likely to generate avoidable litigation and uncertainty, and may, in given circumstances, impede the effective exercise of the statutory right of appeal.

47. It is a settled principle of statutory construction that while courts cannot supply a casus omissus in respect of substantive provisions, they are not powerless to evolve procedures to give effect to a statutory mandate where the statute and the rules framed thereunder are silent. The doctrine that procedure is the handmaid of justice requires that procedural prescriptions be interpreted and, where necessary, supplemented in a manner that advances the cause of justice rather than defeats it.

48. The Supreme Court in Mangalore Chemicals & Fertilizers Ltd. v. Deputy Commissioner has emphasized that procedural requirements ought not to be construed in a manner that defeats substantive rights where compliance, in essence, is established. The principle that procedural law is intended to facilitate, and not obstruct, the course of justice also informs the approach to situations where the statutory framework is silent on the manner of compliance.

49. In this context, reliance placed upon Union of India v. Association for Democratic Reforms is apposite, wherein it was held that in a situation where the Act or the Rules do not prescribe the procedure to be followed, the Court, in exercise of its constitutional powers, is competent to issue appropriate directions so as to effectuate the legislative intent until suitable provisions are framed.

50. A similar approach has been adopted in M.V. Elisabeth v. Harwan Investment and Trading Pvt. Ltd., wherein the Supreme Court held that where statutes are silent and a remedy has to be effectuated, it is the duty of the court to devise appropriate procedural rules by drawing upon analogy and expediency so as to render justice in accordance with substantive law. It was further emphasized that where substantive law demands justice for the aggrieved party but the statute does not provide the procedural mechanism, the court may evolve suitable procedures to give effect to such rights.

51. Applying these principles, it becomes evident that the omission in the Act, 2021 is procedural and not substantive. The legislature has clearly mandated what is to be done, namely, deposit of fifty percent of the adjudicated amount, but has not specified how it is to be done. In such a situation, it is both permissible and necessary for the Court, in exercise of its supervisory jurisdiction, to evolve a workable procedural mechanism so as to ensure uniformity and avoid arbitrary or technical rejections.

52. However, before doing so, it must also be clarified that the requirement of pre-deposit operates in conjunction with the law of limitation. The two conditions-filing within limitation and compliance with pre-deposit-are cumulative. Pre-deposit does not cure limitation, nor does limitation dispense with pre-deposit. The requirement of pre-deposit cannot be diluted. The correct approach lies in maintaining the mandatory nature of the deposit while permitting reasonable flexibility in the mode and forum of such deposit in the absence of statutory rules.

53. In a case where an appeal is time-barred, the deposit of fifty percent amount does not, by itself, validate the appeal. If an appeal is filed beyond limitation without an application for condonation of delay, it remains non-maintainable notwithstanding any deposit. Where an application for condonation of delay is filed, the appeal remains inchoate until such delay is condoned. Any deposit made in such a situation is necessarily conditional and subject to the outcome of the application for condonation. If delay is not condoned, the deposit does not revive the appeal.

54. Thus, pre-deposit is not a substitute for limitation, nor does compliance with limitation dispense with the requirement of pre-deposit. Both conditions must co-exist for the appeal to be competent.

55. The requirement of pre-deposit of fifty percent of the entire payable amount under the impugned order of the Rent Authority under Section 35(1) is a mandatory and jurisdictional condition precedent to the institution of an appeal, and in its absence, no appeal can be said to "lie" in the eye of law. Where such deposit is made beyond the prescribed period of limitation, the appeal would be treated as having been instituted only on the date of compliance, necessitating consideration of delay and condonation.

56. In the present case, the petitioner neither complied with the requirement of pre-deposit within the prescribed period nor ensured that the appeal was accompanied by such deposit. The attempt to deposit the amount after approximately 90 days cannot be treated as substantial compliance. The defect in the present case is not merely procedural but substantive, going to the root of the maintainability of the appeal.

57. The recurring nature of the issue and the statutory silence noticed hereinabove, necessitates that a clear procedural framework be laid down for future guidance so that litigants are not left in uncertainty and authorities adopt a uniform approach.

58. Accordingly, in exercise of supervisory jurisdiction under Article 227 of the Constitution of India, and to operationalize the mandate of Section 35(1) of the Act, this Court lays down the following procedure to govern compliance with the requirement of pre-deposit:

58.1 An appellant may file the memorandum of appeal before the Rent Tribunal along with fifty percent of the entire payable amount under the impugned order of the Rent Authority, by way of demand draft or any other legally permissible mode. Upon such filing, the Rent Tribunal may either accept and retain the deposit in its registry or direct the appellant to deposit the amount before the Rent Authority within a specified time and to place on record proof thereof.

58.2 Alternatively, the appellant may deposit the required amount before the Rent Authority, which shall act as a ministerial repository for the limited purpose of receiving such deposit and issuing a certificate or receipt. Such certificate shall be filed along with the memorandum of appeal before the Rent Tribunal as proof of compliance.

58.3 An appeal shall be treated as duly instituted if the pre-deposit is made by either of the aforesaid modes and proof of such deposit is furnished before the Tribunal within the prescribed period.

58.4 In cases where the pre-deposit is not made at the time of filing, or is defective or incomplete, it shall be open to the appellant to move an application before the Rent Tribunal seeking time to comply and, where necessary, condonation of delay. The Tribunal may, in appropriate cases, grant reasonable time to cure such defect. Failure to comply within the time granted shall render the appeal liable to be dismissed as not maintainable.

59. It is clarified that these directions regulate only the procedure and modality of compliance in the absence of statutory rules. The requirement of pre-deposit under Section 35(1) remains mandatory and cannot be diluted. These directions shall operate until appropriate rules are framed under the Act.

60. All Rent Authorities and Rent Tribunals functioning under the Uttar Pradesh Regulation of Urban Premises Tenancy Act, 2021 shall adhere to the procedure laid down herein in regard to compliance with the requirement of pre-deposit under Section 35 (1).

61. In so far as the present case is concerned, the petitioner having failed to comply with the mandatory requirement of pre-deposit within the prescribed period of limitation, and having also not sought condonation of delay in accordance with law, no case for interference is made out. The impugned order does not suffer from any jurisdictional error warranting exercise of supervisory jurisdiction under Article 227 of the Constitution of India.

62. The petition is, accordingly, dismissed. No order as to costs.

Issues for Consideration

(i) Whether proceedings under Sections 127 and 128 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (corresponding Sections 146 and 147 of the Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023), arising out of a maintenance order passed by a Family Court, can validly be transferred to and decided by a Gram Nyayalaya?

(ii) Whether, notwithstanding the concurrent jurisdiction conferred upon Gram Nyayalayas in respect of proceedings under Chapter IX of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973, a Gram Nyayalaya can exercise jurisdiction over proceedings seeking modification, cancellation or execution of an order passed by a Family Court?

(iii) Whether the impugned orders passed by the Gram Nyayalaya under Sections 127 and 128 CrPC were liable to be set aside on account of inconsistency between the Family Courts Act, 1984 and the Gram Nyayalayas Act, 2008?

Headnotes

Family Courts Act, 1984 — Sections 7 and 8 — Gram Nyayalayas Act, 2008 — Sections 11, 12 and First Schedule — Chapter IX, Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 — Concurrent jurisdiction — Scope.

HELD: Though the Gram Nyayalayas Act, 2008 confers jurisdiction upon Gram Nyayalayas to entertain proceedings relating to maintenance of wives, children and parents under Chapter IX of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973, the jurisdiction vested in the Family Courts under Sections 7 and 8 of the Family Courts Act, 1984 continues to operate in respect of matters adjudicated by the Family Courts. The conferment of jurisdiction upon Gram Nyayalayas does not authorise a Gram Nyayalaya to exercise supervisory or corrective jurisdiction over orders already passed by a Family Court.

Family Courts Act, 1984 — Sections 7 and 8 — Gram Nyayalayas Act, 2008 — Sections 11, 12 and 18 — Transfer of proceedings — Proceedings under Sections 127 and 128 CrPC — Validity.

HELD: Proceedings under Sections 127 and 128 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 are continuation of proceedings arising out of an order already passed under Section 125 CrPC. Where the original order determining the rights of the parties has been passed by a Family Court, subsequent proceedings seeking alteration, cancellation or enforcement thereof cannot be transferred to a Gram Nyayalaya for adjudication, as such transfer would result in a Judicial Officer of the rank of Civil Judge (Junior Division) effectively exercising jurisdiction over an order passed by a Court constituted under the Family Courts Act, 1984 and presided over by an officer of the Higher Judicial Service. Such an interpretation would be inconsistent with the scheme of the Family Courts Act.

Gram Nyayalayas Act, 2008 — Sections 11, 12 and 18 — Family Courts Act, 1984 — Jurisdiction — Overlapping statutory provisions — Harmonious construction.

HELD: The provisions of the Gram Nyayalayas Act, 2008 and the Family Courts Act, 1984 are required to be harmoniously construed. While Gram Nyayalayas are competent to exercise jurisdiction over matters falling within Chapter IX of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 in accordance with the jurisdiction conferred by the Act, such jurisdiction cannot be construed to permit review, recall, modification or execution of an order passed by a Family Court. To that extent, transfer of pending proceedings would be inconsistent with the statutory scheme governing Family Courts.

Constitution of India — Article 227 — Gram Nyayalaya — Orders under Sections 127 and 128 CrPC — Supervisory jurisdiction.

HELD: The orders passed by the Gram Nyayalaya entertaining proceedings under Sections 127 and 128 CrPC arising out of a maintenance order passed by the Family Court were without jurisdiction and liable to be quashed. However, the maintenance order originally passed by the Family Court remained unaffected, leaving it open to the parties to pursue such remedies as are available within the framework of the Family Courts Act, 1984.

Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 — Sections 125, 127 and 128 (corresponding Sections 144, 146 and 147, Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023) — Maintenance proceedings — Transfer to Gram Nyayalaya — Distinction between original proceedings and post-adjudication proceedings.

HELD: While proceedings under Section 125 CrPC, in appropriate cases, may be instituted and entertained before the Gram Nyayalaya in accordance with the jurisdiction conferred by the Gram Nyayalayas Act, 2008, a different consideration arises where the rights of the parties have already been adjudicated by a Family Court. Proceedings under Sections 127 and 128 CrPC seeking alteration, cancellation or enforcement of such adjudicated rights constitute a continuation of the original proceedings and cannot be transferred to the Gram Nyayalaya, as that would permit a Court of coordinate statutory jurisdiction, though presided over by an officer of a different cadre, to deal with matters arising out of a concluded adjudication by the Family Court.

Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 — Section 127 (corresponding Section 146, Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023) — Cancellation or alteration of maintenance — Remarriage of wife — Competent forum.

HELD: Remarriage of the wife constitutes a change in circumstances entitling the husband to seek cancellation or alteration of the maintenance order under Section 127 CrPC. However, where the maintenance order has been passed by the Family Court, such question is required to be adjudicated within the framework of the Family Courts Act by the competent Family Court. The High Court, while exercising jurisdiction under Article 227 of the Constitution, declined to determine the disputed question of remarriage on merits, leaving the parties to pursue the statutory remedy before the competent forum.

Family Courts Act, 1984 — Gram Nyayalayas Act, 2008 — Transfer of pending proceedings — Limitation on transfer.

HELD: Cases pending before the Family Court may be transferred to the Gram Nyayalaya only so long as no order determining the substantive rights of the parties has been passed and no question arises requiring reconsideration, execution or modification of such adjudication. Proceedings under Sections 126(2), 127 and 128 CrPC (corresponding Sections 145(2), 146 and 147 BNSS, 2023), arising after adjudication by the Family Court, are not liable to be transferred to the Gram Nyayalaya.

Petition allowed. Orders dated 01.10.2024 and 25.03.2025 passed by the Gram Nyayalaya, Dhampur, District Bijnor quashed. Order dated 06.03.2019 passed by the Family Court awarding maintenance to respondent No. 2 to remain operative till the date of her remarriage. Liberty reserved to the parties to pursue remedies before the competent Family Court in accordance with law. (E-14)

Orders dated 01.10.2024 and 25.03.2025 passed by the Gram Nyayalaya, Dhampur, District Bijnor in proceedings under Sections 127 and 128 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973, arising out of the maintenance order dated 06.03.2019 passed by the Principal Judge, Family Court, Bijnor in proceedings under Section 125 CrPC.

Appearance for Parties

For the Appellants: Sri Ram Bilas Prasad.

For the Respondents: Sri Anoop Singh, learned Government Advocate, and Sri Janardan Singh.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Harvir Singh, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the parties and perused the material available on record.
2. The instant petition has been filed against the impugned orders dated 25.3.2025 and 1.10.2024 under Section 127 Cr.PC, passed by the Gram Nyayalaya, Dhampur, District Bijnor.
3. Learned counsel for the petitioner submits that initially, an order dated 6.3.2019 was passed by Principal Judge, Family Court, Bijnor, under Section 125 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (corresponding Section 144 of Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023), wherein the learned Principal Judge, Family Court, Bijnor has awarded a sum of Rs. 3,000/- to respondent No.2, as monthly maintenance, to be paid from the date of filing of application i.e. 28.4.2016. Thereafter, aggrieved by order dated 6.3.2019, the petitioner moved a Criminal Revision No.1804/2019, challenging the order dated 6.3.2019 on various grounds taken in the petition, wherein an order was passed by this Court on 3.5.2019. The relevant/ operative portion of the said order dated 3.5.2019 passed by this Court is reproduced herein-under:-

"The operation of impugned order dated 06.3.2019 shall remain stayed provided and with the condition that the applicant shall continue to pay the maintenance amount Rs.3000/- to the opposite party no.2 per month regularly from the date of order and not from the date of filing of application, during the pendency of this application or till further orders of this Court.

It is clarified that only the payment of arrears amount, accruing for the period in between the date of application and the date of order, is being stayed by this Court till further orders of this Court.

It is observed that if the applicant fails to comply with the aforesaid condition, the interim order of stay passed by this Court shall be deemed to have been vacated automatically."

4. Thereafter, the only point stressed before the Court by the petitioner is that the respondent no.2, i.e. his wife, got remarried on 26.01.2020, with one Manoj Kumar, therefore, she is not entitled for any maintenance amount. On the other hand, it may usefully be noted that respondent no.2 filed an application under Section 125 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (corresponding Section 144 of Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023) on 28.04.2016 i.e. much earlier than the date of alleged marriage and that, she was granted maintenance from the date of application only. It may be noted that, under the provision of Section 127 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973, on proof of change in the circumstances of the income of a person, who is receiving any monthly maintenance under Section 125 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (corresponding Section 144 of Bhartiya Nagrik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023), the Magistrate/ Court concerned may make such alteration in the order of maintenance, as he thinks fit. The Court concerned has power to cancel any order, which was passed by it, (under Section 125 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973) in respect of a woman, from the date of her remarriage. Thus it is clear from the above provision, that in case of such an eventuality, husband may approach the Court concerned for recall/ cancellation of the order. This fact can not be decided in the instant petition, there being an alternate efficacious statutory remedy available under law.

5. Learned counsel for the petitioner further submits, that the petitioner herein filed a Miscellaneous Application No. 375 of 2021, under Section 127 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 before the learned Principal Judge, Family Court, Bijnor on the ground that, the circumstances have changed, as the respondent No. 2, the wife of the petitioner, got remarried, with the third person and in that event, the petitioner was not obliged to pay any amount of maintenance. The said Miscellaneous Application No. 375 of 2021 was limited to the extent, that circumstances have changed and because of the change in circumstances, i.e., the alleged remarriage of respondent No. 2, with a third person, the order dated 6.3.2019 was prayed to be recalled. Respondent No. 2/ wife of the petitioner filed an objection in respect of Miscellaneous Application No. 375 of 2021, before learned Principal Judge, Family Court. However, the said Miscellaneous Application No. 375 of 2021 has taken a different turn at that stage, as much as, all the cases pending before the learned Principal Judge, Family Court/ learned Additional Principal Judge, Family Court, Bijnor, pertaining to Chapter IX of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (now Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023), were directed to be transferred to Gram Nyayalaya and the said order was passed by the then District Judge, Bijnor vide Administrative Order No.821/ 2024, dated 22.2.2024, in furtherance of Notification No.331/ Admin. (Services)/2024, dated 15.2.2024 issued by this Court, on the administrative side and pursuant to Notification Nyay Anubhag-2 (Subordinate Courts) No. 4/2024/89/ VII-Nyay-2-2024-216 G/2007 T.C.-II, Lucknow, dated 14.2.2024 issued by State Government. By this notification dated 14th February 2024, the then Additional Civil Judge (Junior Division), Bijnor was appointed/ posted as Nyayadhikari, Gram Nyayalaya at Tehsil Dhampur, District Bijnor, in the newly created Court vide G.O. No. 25/ 2015/ 1462/ VII-Nyay-2-2015-2160/ 2007 dated 24.11.2015. By the Administrative Order No.821/ 2024, dated 22.2.2024, the then District Judge directed all the Civil Judges (Junior Division) and Judicial Magistrates of the District Court, Bijnor to prepare a list of relevant civil and criminal cases falling under Tehsil Dhampur area, to be transferred to newly created Gram Nyayalaya, Dhampur, pursuant to Notification Nyay Anubhag-2 (Subordinate Courts) No. 4/2024/89/VII-Nyay-2-2024-216 G/2007 T.C.-II, Lucknow, dated 14.02.2024 issued by State Government and as per the jurisdiction mentioned in Gram Nyayalaya Act, 2008 and also, to make it available in the office of District Judge. In the said order dated 22.2.2024, a reference was made to the First Schedule and Second Schedule of Gram Nyayalaya Act 2008, stating therein, that Gram Nyayalaya has jurisdiction over the subjects mentioned in the said Schedule 1 and 2. Part I and Part II of the First Schedule and Part I of the Second Schedule are reproduced below:-

"THE FIRST SCHEDULE

(See Sections 12 and 14)

- (c) money suits either arising from trade transaction or money lending;*
- (d) disputes arising out of the partnership in cultivation of land;*
- (e) disputes as to the use of forest produce by inhabitants of Gram Panchayats."*

6. Hence, the then Principal Judge, Family Court, vide letter No. 844/ Family Court/ Bijnor, dated 28.01.2026, has transferred, all such cases pertaining to sub-clause (v) of part II of the First Schedule of Gram Nyayalaya Act, 2008, i.e. order for maintenance of wives, children and parents, under Chapter IX of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (2 of 1974), and consequently, the Miscellaneous Application No. 375 of 2021, which was pending disposal before the learned Additional Principal Judge, also got transferred to Gram Nyayalaya, Dhampur, Bijnor.

7. Learned counsel for the petitioner has raised a legal issue that the Gram Nyayalaya was not competent to pass any order, if a subject matter has been adjudicated and decided by the Family Court Judge i.e. learned Principal Judge/ learned Additional Principal Judge, Family Court, who is an officer of the rank of Higher Judicial Service Cadre, even if, jurisdiction has been conferred upon the Gram Nyayalaya to decide the cases, pertaining to sub-clause (v) of part II of the first Schedule of Gram Nyayalaya Act, 2008, but continues to be exercised by the Family Courts as well, on concurrent basis i.e. both the Gram Nyayalaya and Family Court will have jurisdiction over Chapter IX of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (now Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023), concurrently.

8. On the other hand, respondent No. 2 has moved an application No. 62 of 2024, under Section 128 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (now Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023), seeking the execution of the order dated 6.3.2019 passed by the learned Principal Judge, Family Court, Bijnor. After hearing the parties, the learned Gram Nyayalaya passed the order dated 25.3.2025, thereby directing the petitioner to comply with the order dated 6.3.2019 passed by learned Family Court, by which a sum of Rs. 3,000/- was fixed as monthly maintenance and issued recovery warrant to the petitioner and hence, the instant petition under Article 227 of Constitution of India, before this Court against the order dated 1.10.2024 and 25.03.2025 passed by learned Gram Nyayalaya, Dhampur.

9. Besides deciding the case on merit, the petitioner has raised a legal issue that, even if the jurisdiction has been conferred upon the Gram Nyayalaya, then also Gram Nyayalaya was not competent to review/ uphold/ set aside/ modify or entertain any application or execution, against an order passed by learned Principal Judge/ learned Additional Principal Judge, Family Court i.e. an officer of Higher Judicial Service Cadre, whereas the Gram Nyayalaya is headed by an officer of the cadre of Civil Judge (Junior Division) and referred to the scheme of Family Courts Act 1984, wherein the Family Courts still continued to exercise the jurisdiction over Chapter IX of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (now Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023). Learned counsel submitted, that both the Family Court, as well as Gram Nyayalaya, as of now, exercises concurrent jurisdiction over Chapter IX of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (now Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023).

10. Learned counsel for the petitioner further submits that, as per the hierarchy of the Courts within the districts, the normal nomenclature is as under:-

Highest Judicial Officer being in district, District and Sessions Judge/ Principal Judge, Family Court; Additional District and Sessions Judge/ Additional Principal Judge, Family Court; Chief Judicial Magistrate, Civil Judge (Senior Division)/ Additional Civil Judge (Senior Division); Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate; Civil Judge (Junior Division)/ Additional Civil Judge (Junior Division); Judicial Magistrate, Gram Nyayalaya Adhikari.

Remedy of orders passed by the Gram Nyayalaya and Family Courts.

11. Learned counsel for the petitioner further submits that the Judicial Officers of the Districts, discharge their duties as per the jurisdiction assigned to them, either under common law, such as Indian Penal Code, Civil Procedure Code or any other law, for the time being in force and the Gram Nyayalaya headed by an officer of the rank of Civil Judge (Junior Division) exercises jurisdiction under Gram Nyayalaya Act, 2008, on the subjects and other Acts, conferred upon, by the jurisdiction in this behalf.

12. Learned counsel for the petitioner further submits that the Family Courts Act, 1984, as constituted by the Uttar Pradesh State Government, vide Notification No.79/11/86-Jus., dated September 4, 1986, has conferred the jurisdiction upon Family Courts, initially exercised by a Ist-Class Magistrate and the Gram Nyayalaya Act, 2008 has conferred the jurisdiction upon the Gram Nyayalaya as per part II of first Schedule, thereby empowered the Gram Nyayalaya to exercise jurisdiction on the subjects and Sections under Chapter IX of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (now Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023). Learned counsel for the petitioner further submits that, as far the jurisdiction assigned to Family Courts, as per Family Court Act, 1984 is concerned, the Family Courts have been given jurisdiction to entertain and adjudicate upon the matters, with respect to Chapter IX of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (now Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023) and further submits that, there is an overlapping, as far as jurisdiction under Chapter IX of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (now Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023) as conferred upon Family Courts, as well as the Gram Nyayalaya Act, 2008. Hence, there is not only disparity, but the same leads to a situation, wherein an order passed by an officer of the cadre of Higher Judicial Service or to say Principal Judge, Family Court/ Additional Principal Judge, Family Court, then the same cannot be subjected to review/ recall or set aside by the Gram Nyayalaya, which has happened in the present case i.e to say, that in the beginning, an order was passed by learned Principal Judge, Family Court under Section 125 the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (now Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023) and thereafter, the respondent in the present case, filed an application under Section 127 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (now Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023), bearing No,375 of 2021, which was transferred for disposal to Gram Nyayalaya, Dhampur, Bijnor. Hence, learned Civil Judge (Junior Division)/ Presiding Officer, Gram Nyayalaya exercised jurisdiction over and above the order passed by learned Additional Principal Judge, Family Court, an officer of the Higher Judicial Service cadre, which has no parallel or does not enjoy any parity with respect to the Code of Criminal Procedure or the matters being adjudicated upon by the Family Courts. As on date, the Family Courts comprises the officer of Higher Judicial Service cadre only and there is nobody, who is an officer of the rank of Civil Judge (Junior Division)/ Judicial Magistrate or Civil Judge (Senior Division)/ Chief Judicial Magistrate, either attached or posted, within the scheme of Family Courts Act, 1984.

13. Learned counsel for the petitioner further submitted that, the legislature by conferring the concurrent jurisdiction i.e. one under Family Court Act, 1984 and another under Gram Nyayalaya Act, 2008, the former being exercised by the officers of the Higher Judicial Service cadre and the later being exercised by the officers of the Civil Judge (Junior Division) cadre, has led to disparity, and anomaly, within the cadre of the District Courts. Hence, the arrangement has not only created a fuss, but has also led to disparity, judicial impropriety and overlapping in exercising jurisdiction, over one and the single subject i.e. Chapter IX of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (now Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023) by two different judicial officers in the hierarchy and therefore, the subject matter of Chapter IX of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (now Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023) ought not to have been included in Part II of the first Schedule of Gram Nyayalaya Act, 2008, as the same was fully operating under the scheme of Family Courts Act, 1984, prior to the passage of Gram Nyayalaya Act, 2008 and the system is still operating within the Family Courts, concurrently.

14. Learned counsel for the petitioner submitted that, at the time of framing of the Gram Nyayalaya Act, 2008, either the matter of adjudication by Family Courts in respect of Chapter IX of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (now Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023) could not be brought to the notice of the concerned Committee, which formulated Gram Nyayalaya Act, 2008 or it skipped the attention of the lawmakers, that two different Courts of judicial officers from two different cadres, within the District have been assigned jurisdiction to adjudicate upon the same subject matter i.e. Chapter IX of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (now Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023). Consequently, within the local jurisdiction of District Courts, the Judicial Magistrate, Ist Class and Sessions Judge/ Addl. Sessions Judge/ Principal Judge, Family Court/ Addl. Principal Judge, Family Court are exercising powers on the one and same Chapter IX of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (now Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023).

15. Learned counsel for the petitioner further submits that, Section 7(2) and 8(b) of Family Courts Act, 1984 reads as follows:-

7. Jurisdiction.-

(2) Subject to the other provisions of this Act, a Family Court shall also have and exercise-

(a) the jurisdiction exercisable by a Magistrate of the first class under Chapter IX (relating to order for maintenance of wife, children and parents) of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (2 of 1974); and

(b) such other jurisdiction as may be conferred on it by any other enactment.

8. Exclusion of jurisdiction and pending proceedings.-

Where a Family Court has been established for any area,-

(b) no magistrate shall, in relation to such area, have or exercise any jurisdiction or powers under Chapter IX of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (2 of 1974);

Therefore, on the one hand, the Family Courts excluded the jurisdiction to be exercised by a first class Magistrate, as far as Chapter IX of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (now Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023) is concerned and prohibited the first class Magistrate to exercise jurisdiction over subject matter of Chapter IX of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (now Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023) and on the other hand, part II of the first Schedule conferred jurisdiction upon a first class Magistrate to adjudicate upon subject matter of Chapter IX of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (now Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023), under the Gram Nyayalaya Act, 2008. Therefore, there is a disparity, dissimilarity and overlapping and anomaly in two jurisdictions, on the same subject of Chapter IX of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (now Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023) and therefore, any matter being decided or adjudicated by the Presiding Officer Gram Nyayalaya shall be in contravention of Section 8(b) of Family Courts Act, 1984. Hence the orders dated 25.3.2025 and 1.10.2024 are liable to be quashed and set aside.

16. Learned counsel for the petitioner further submits that Section 18, Chapter IV of Gram Nyayalayas Act, 2008 reads as under:-

"18. Overriding effect of Act in criminal trial.- The provisions of this Act shall have effect notwithstanding anything contained in the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (2 of 1974) or any other law, but save as expressly provided in this Act, the provisions of the Code shall, in so far as they are not inconsistent with the provisions of this Act, apply to the proceedings before a Gram Nyayalaya; and for the purpose of the said provisions of the Code, the Gram Nyayalaya shall be deemed to be a Court of Judicial Magistrate of the first class."

From perusal of the aforesaid, Section 18 of the Gram Nyayalaya Act, 2008, it is evident that, the Presiding Officer Gram Nyayalaya will not adjudicate upon any matter, if the same is inconsistent with the Act itself, for the time being in force. In the present case, not only the order dated 1.10.2024 and 25.3.2025 have been passed by the Gram Nyayalaya, Dhampur, Bijnour, but also in contravention of Section 8 (b) of the Family Courts Act, 1984, the learned Gram Nyayalaya has exercised power and jurisdiction both, over and above an order, passed by Family Court, comprising a Judicial Officer of Higher Judicial Service cadre i.e. Sessions Judge/ Addl. Sessions Judge/ Principal Judge, Family Court/ Addl. Principal Judge, Family Court, and hence, both the orders dated 1.10.2024 and 25.3.2025 are liable to be quashed and set aside.

17. Learned counsel for the petitioner further submits that, as far as Section 7(2)(a) and Section 8(b) of Family Courts Act, 1984 are concerned, they are separate and Section 7(2)(a) has itself given power to first class Magistrate to exercise jurisdiction over Chapter IX of Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023, however, the same is not the issue before this Court and if there is any anomaly within the framework of Family Courts Act, 1984, the same can be a separate subject matter of adjudication and cannot be dealt with here in this case, as the petitioner has confined his relief with respect to the orders passed by Gram Nyayalaya under Gram Nyayalaya Act, 2008.

18. On the other hand, learned counsel appearing on behalf of respondent No.2 submits that the order passed by learned Additional Principal Judge, Family Court, under Section 125 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (corresponding Section 144 of Bhartiya Nagrik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023) awarding a sum of Rs. 3,000/- per month to respondent No.2 is in accordance with law. Learned counsel for respondent No.2 further submits that the jurisdiction conferred upon the Gram Nyayalaya has been done by a careful consideration by the legislature and the same cannot be questioned before these proceedings and further submits that order dated 1.10.2024 and 25.3.2025 have been passed in accordance with law.

19. Learned counsel for the respondent No.2 submits that every officer, say Additional Principal Judge, Family Court, has exercised the jurisdiction under Family Court Act, 1984, a separate statute, whereas the Gram Nyayalaya has exercised the jurisdiction under a separate statute i.e. Gram Nyayalaya Act, 2008 and therefore, unless and until a particular Section or part of the Act is declared as redundant or overlapping, till then, every order passed by the Judicial Officer(s) under two different Acts separately, cannot be termed as illegal or arbitrary. Learned counsel for the respondent no.2 prays that the instant petition is liable to be dismissed, being devoid of merits.

20. Having considered the rival contentions and after having perused the relevant Sections of the Gram Nyayalaya Act, 2008 and the Family Courts Act, 1984, a further analysis is required with respect to the anomaly and overlapping of the jurisdiction between the two Acts i.e. Gram Nyayalaya Act, 2008 and the Family Courts Act, 1984.

Gram Nyayalaya Act, 2008	Family Courts Act, 1984
11. Jurisdiction of Gram Nyayalaya.- Notwithstanding anything contained in the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (2 of 1974) or the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 (5 of 1908) or any other law for the time being in force, the Gram Nyayalaya shall exercise both	7. Jurisdiction.- (2) Subject to the other provisions of this Act, a Family Court shall also have and exercise- (a) the jurisdiction exercisable by a Magistrate of the first class under Chapter IX (relating to order for maintenance of wife, children and

civil and criminal jurisdiction in the manner and to the extent provided under this Act.	parents) of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (2 of 1974); and (b) such other jurisdiction as may be conferred on it by any other enactment.
12. Criminal jurisdiction.- (1) Notwithstanding anything contained in the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (2 of 1974) or any other law for the time being in force, the Gram Nyayalaya may take cognizance of an offence on a complaint or on a police report and shall- (a) try all offences specified in Part I of the First Schedule; and (b) try all offences and grant relief, if any, specified under the enactments included in Part II of that Schedule. (2) Without prejudice to the provisions of sub-Section (1), the Gram Nyayalaya shall also try all such offences or grant such relief under the State Acts which may be notified by the State Government under sub-Section (3) of Section 14.	8. Exclusion of jurisdiction and pending proceedings.-Where a Family Court has been established for any area,- (b) no magistrate shall, in relation to such area, have or exercise any jurisdiction or powers under Chapter IX of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (2 of 1974);
14. Power to amend Schedules.- (1) Where the Central Government is satisfied that it is necessary or expedient so to do, it may, by notification, add to or omit any item in Part I or Part II of the First Schedule or Part II of the Second Schedule, as the case may be, and it shall be deemed to have been amended accordingly. (2) .. (3) If the State Government is satisfied that it is necessary or expedient so to do, it may, in consultation with the High Court, by notification, add to any item in Part III of the First Schedule or Part III of the Second Schedule or omit from it any item in respect of which the State Legislature is competent to make laws and thereupon the First Schedule or the Second Schedule, as the case may be, shall be deemed to have been amended accordingly.	20. Act to have overriding effect.-The provisions of this Act shall have effect notwithstanding anything inconsistent therewith contained in any other law for the time being in force or in any instrument having effect by virtue of any law other than this Act.

21. Learned counsel for the petitioner submitted that, if a matter was to be transferred from Family Court to Gram Nyayalaya, then in that event, both the Courts would have been headed by the Judicial Officer of the same cadre, say Higher Judicial Services cadre or the Junior Division cadre, but there is disparity and inequality, between the two posts, hence, a Judicial Officer of the rank of Junior Division, who is much below the rank of Higher Judicial Services cadre, cannot review/ recall or adjudicate upon the order passed by the Family Court, having the rank of District Judge/ Principal Judge, Family Court. Learned counsel for the petitioner further submitted that, if a case is transferred from Family court to Gram Nyayalaya and the Gram Nyayalaya, has dealt with such a case, then an appeal can always be filed before the District Judge/ Additional District Judge and consequently, an order passed by the Family Court, would further be a subject matter of appeal before the District Judge, Additional District Judge. Then the petitioner prayed that, once an order has been passed by the learned Family Court, deciding the rights between the parties, the said case cannot be transferred to the Gram Nyayalaya. However, there is no bar in fresh filing of cases before the Gram Nyayalaya.

22. A reference was also made to the Circular letter of High Court No. 14806/ Main-B/ G.N./ Admin. (A-3)/ Allahabad: Dated 16.12.2021, wherein the matter of jurisdiction has been dealt with in the said circular letter, conferring jurisdiction of Chapter IX of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (2 of 1974) and clarified that, the Gram Nyayalaya Act, 2008 would have an overriding effect over the (conflicting) provisions of Family Courts Act, 1984, however, the same does not deal with the disparity to the extent of disposal of cases pertaining to maintenance of wives, children and parents under Chapter IX of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (now Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023) i.e. in one hand, a First Class Magistrate exercises such powers under the Gram Nyayalaya Act, 2008, on the other hand, the same power, to try cases for maintenance of wives, children and parents under Chapter IX of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (now Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023) is being exercised by the officers of Higher Judicial Service cadre, i.e. Session Judge/ Additional Sessions Judge/ Additional District Judge, therefore, the disparity still continues and if an order with respect to Chapter IX of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (now Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023) is passed by Sessions Judge/ Additional Sessions Judge, in that event, the affected party from either side has lost a valuable remedy, which has not been provided under the Family Court Act, 1984, that an order passed by Gram Nyayalaya is appealable or revisable, as the case may be, before the Court of Sessions Judge/ Additional Sessions Judge. Hence, the disparity, which has been created by creation of Gram Nyayalaya under the Gram Nyayalaya Act, 2008, still continues and therefore, Section 18 of Gram Nyayalaya Act, 2008, is explicitly clear that, if the jurisdiction conferred upon Gram Nyayalaya with respect to Chapter IX of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (now Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023) is inconsistent with the proviso of this Act, the same can be rectified. Hence, Section 18 of Gram Nyayalaya Act and Section 20 of Family Courts Act, 1984 are overlapping with each other, as far as jurisdiction of Chapter IX of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (now Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023) is concerned, and the subject of maintenance of wives, children and parents is more akin and related to scheme of Family Courts and should continue to remain within the framework of the Family Courts, therefore, conferring jurisdiction upon Gram Nyayalaya, becomes redundant. The said circular letter of the High Court dated 16.12.2021 is read as under:-

No. 14806 /Main-B/G.N./Admin. (A-3)/ Allahabad: Dated: 16-12-2021.

Subject:- Regarding provisions mentioned in the Family Court Act, 1984 and Gram Nyayalaya Act, 2008 related to trial of cases u/s 125 of Cr.P.C.

Sir,

I have been directed to say that upon consideration of letter no. 2513/XV, dated 21.09.2020 of the District Judge, Budaun and representation dated 12.08.2021 of the General Secretary of Association, Sitapur (copy enclosed for ready reference), the Hon'ble Court has been pleased to communicate the following on the above-noted subject:-

“i). The Gram Nyayalayas Act, 2008 has been enacted for a special purpose and intention, and with a more laudable objective- "of providing access to justice to the citizens at their doorsteps" and to ensure that opportunities for securing justice to any citizen are not denied due to social, economic or other disabilities.

ii). The Gram Nyayalayas Act, 2008 is a later enactment than the Family Courts Act, 1984.

iii). Section 3 (3) of the Gram Nyayalayas Act, 2008 provides for establishment of Gram Nyayalayas in addition to other courts already functioning within the district under any other law for the time being in force, thereby indicating the intention of the legislature to include the Gram Nyayalayas in the hierarchy of Courts.

(the provisions of Gram Nyayalaya Act, 2008 would have an over-riding effect over the (conflicting) provisions of the Family Courts Act and the Gram Nyayalaya, Tehsil- Bilsa, District Budaun would have the exclusive jurisdiction to try cases for maintenance of wives, Children and parent under Chapter-IX of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (2 of 1974)."

This is for your kind information and further necessary action.

With regards,

Encl: As above.

Your Sincerely,

Sd/-

Registrar General"

23. The argument raised on behalf of learned counsel appearing on behalf of respondent No.2 that, even if a matter is transferred from Family Court to Gram Nyayalaya for appropriate disposal, then the same falls within the jurisdiction of Gram Nyayalaya, as conferred in Part II of the First Schedule and therefore, the Gram Nyayalaya will have the power to review/ decide, dispose any matter as far Sections 126(2), 127 and 128 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (Corresponding Sections 145(2), 146 and 147 of Bhartiya Nagrik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023), even if passed by Sessions Judge/ Additional Sessions Judge i.e. officer of Higher Judicial Service cadre and therefore, the impugned orders dated 25.3.2025 and 1.10.2024 have been passed in accordance with law and by way of jurisdiction conferred upon Gram Nyayalaya Act, 2008 with respect to Chapter IX of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (now Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023). The said arguments do not carry any weight, for the reason of disparity and overlapping of the jurisdiction.

24. Under such circumstances and from the above discussion, it can fairly be concluded that:-

(i) the impugned orders dated 25.3.2025 and 1.10.2024 passed by learned Judicial Officer, Gram Nyayalaya Dhampur, District Bijnor are liable to be quashed and set aside, the same being inconsistent with the Family Court Act, hence, the aforesaid orders dated 1.10.2024 and 25.3.2025 are quashed and set aside. However, it shall remain open to either of the parties to take up the matter within the framework of Family Court scheme, availing any remedy, provided under law. As far as order dated 6.3.2019 is concerned, the same shall remain in force and till the date, the respondent No.2 got re-married.

(ii) The cases filed before the Family Courts can be transferred to the Gram Nyayalaya, to the extent and with a rider that, all such cases, where no such order, deciding the rights of the parties, has been passed, (say grant of interm maintenance), and the same order is not revisable or appealable before the Higher Court.

(iii) It is further held that, the cases pending before the Family Courts to be decided under Sections 126(2), 127 and 128 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (Corresponding Sections 145(2), 146 and 147 of Bhartiya Nagrik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023) cannot be transferred to Gram Nyayalaya.

25. With the aforesaid observations/ directions, the instant petition stands disposed of.

Issues for Consideration

- (i) Whether a husband, having already obtained interim maintenance under Section 24 of the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955, is entitled to invoke the supervisory jurisdiction of the High Court under Article 227 of the Constitution seeking expeditious disposal of a subsequent maintenance proceeding instituted under Section 144 of the Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023?
- (ii) Whether a petitioner invoking equitable and discretionary jurisdiction under Article 227 is entitled to relief after suppressing material facts, including the pendency and stay of connected proceedings and the receipt of interim maintenance under Section 24 of the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955?
- (iii) Whether the High Court, while declining relief under Article 227, is justified in imposing compensatory costs for abuse of the process of Court and issuing consequential directions to ensure expeditious disposal of the pending matrimonial proceedings?

Headnotes

Constitution of India — Article 227 — Supervisory jurisdiction — Equitable and discretionary relief — Suppression of material facts — Effect.

HELD: Exercise of supervisory jurisdiction under Article 227 is governed by equitable principles. A litigant who approaches the Court by suppressing material facts, making false statements on oath, or concealing orders having a direct bearing on the relief claimed is not entitled to invoke the discretionary jurisdiction of the High Court. Suppression of the fact that proceedings sought to be expedited had already been stayed by a coordinate Bench, coupled with concealment of the order granting interim maintenance under Section 24 of the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955, disentitles the petitioner to any equitable relief. [Paras 13, 14, 17 and 32]

Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023 — Section 144 — Maintenance proceeding by husband — Parallel claim under Section 24, Hindu Marriage Act, 1955 — Effect of concealment.

HELD: Where the husband had already obtained an order awarding interim maintenance and litigation expenses under Section 24 of the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955 in pending matrimonial proceedings, and failed to disclose the same while instituting proceedings under Section 144 of the Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023 as well as in the petition under Article 227, such suppression constituted a material circumstance disentitling him to the discretionary relief sought before the High Court. [Paras 7, 9.4, 13 and 14]

Constitution of India — Article 227 — Prayer for expeditious disposal — Proceedings stayed by coordinate Bench — Maintainability.

HELD: Where further proceedings in the maintenance case under Section 144 BNSS, 2023 had already been stayed by a coordinate Bench of the High Court in transfer proceedings, the prayer seeking expeditious disposal of such proceedings became infructuous and legally unsustainable. The High Court cannot direct expeditious disposal of proceedings whose further conduct stands interdicted by a subsisting judicial order. [Para 13]

Constitution of India — Article 227 — Abuse of process of Court — Compensatory costs.

HELD: Where the Court finds that the petition lacks bona fides and has been instituted by suppressing material facts and pursuing parallel remedies with a view to obtain equitable relief, it is justified in dismissing the petition with realistic and substantial compensatory costs. Award of such costs serves the dual purpose of compensating the opposite party and discouraging frivolous and vexatious litigation amounting to abuse of the judicial process. [Paras 18 to 32]

Constitution of India — Article 227 — Equitable jurisdiction — Clean hands doctrine — Duty of candour and full disclosure.

HELD: A litigant invoking the extraordinary supervisory jurisdiction of the High Court is under a solemn obligation to disclose all material facts having a bearing on the relief claimed. Suppression of pending connected proceedings, subsisting interim orders or previous adjudications affecting the controversy amounts to abuse of the process of Court. A party guilty of concealment cannot claim equitable or discretionary relief merely because a legal remedy may otherwise be available. [Paras 13 to 18]

Constitution of India — Article 227 — Supervisory jurisdiction — Exercise of discretion — Abuse of process — Consequential directions.

HELD: While declining to exercise jurisdiction under Article 227 on account of suppression of material facts, the High Court is not precluded from issuing appropriate consequential directions for effective administration of justice. Such directions, including expeditious disposal of pending matrimonial proceedings, are intended to avoid multiplicity of litigation and secure an early resolution of disputes between the parties. [Paras 29 to 32]

Family Courts Act, 1984 — Hindu Marriage Act, 1955 — Pendency of matrimonial proceedings — Expeditious disposal.

HELD: Matrimonial disputes involving interconnected proceedings should be concluded with due expedition. Where several proceedings between the spouses are pending before the Family Court, the Court may appropriately direct their early disposal so that the parties are not subjected to prolonged litigation and repeated interlocutory proceedings. [Paras 30 to 32]

Case Arising From

Petition under Article 227 of the Constitution of India seeking a direction for expeditious disposal of proceedings under Section 144 of the Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023, pending before the Principal Judge, Family Court, Gautam Buddha Nagar, during the pendency of connected matrimonial proceedings between the parties, in which an order granting interim maintenance under Section 24 of the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955 had already been passed and further proceedings under Section 144 BNSS had been stayed by a coordinate Bench of the High Court.

Appearance for Parties

For the Revisionist: Anurag Shukla, Arun Kumar Soni, Kumar Anubhav, Ms. Amrita Rai Mishra

For the Respondents: Gyan Chandra, Mahendra Bahadur Singh, Vijeta Singh

(Delivered by Hon'ble Vinod Diwakar, J.)

1. Heard Shri Arun Kumar Soni and Shri Kumar Anubhav, learned counsel for the petitioner; Ms. Amrita Rai Mishra, learned Amicus Curiae; Ms. Vijeta Singh, learned counsel for the respondent; learned A.G.A. for the State-respondent, and perused the record.

2. The present petition has been filed by the petitioner-husband with the prayer to expedite the proceedings of Maintenance Case No.523 of 2025, filed under Section 144 BNSS, 2023 (Order for maintenance of wives, children and parents) titled as 'Ranjeet Singh v. Neetu Singh', pending before the learned Principal Judge, Family Court, Etawah.

3. The brief facts arising out from the application under section 144 of BNSS, 2023 are succinctly reproduced hereinafter. The marriage of petitioner-husband and the respondent-wife was solemnized on 18.5.2019 in accordance with Hindu rites and customs at J.P. Garden, Pachavali Road, Etawah. At the time of marriage both the parties were unemployed and were preparing for competitive examinations. Since both the parties were good in their academics, their families decided to solemnize their marriage with the belief that soon they would get government employment. Soon after the marriage, the respondent-wife secured government job in High Court of Allahabad on the post of Additional Private Secretary, but the petitioner-husband did not get a government job even though he has been equally good in studies, as claimed by the petitioner. The petitioner while preparing for the competitive examinations also pursued Law and obtained LL.B. degree, and thereafter got enrolled as an Advocate with the Bar Council of Uttar.

3.1 It is further contended in maintenance application that after securing a job as an Additional Private Secretary in High Court of Allahabad, the respondent-wife started quarreling and misbehaving with the petitioner and his mother and tried every possible means to separate the petitioner-husband from his family and launched false criminal prosecution against the petitioner and his family members by influencing the police. The petitioner has no independent source of income. He is an unemployed youth, and is preparing for competitive examinations. The respondent-wife also started taunting the petitioner for being unemployed and even humiliated the petitioner in front of her colleagues at her work place. The respondent-wife started filing false FIR based on concocted story against the petitioner with the intention to spoil his career.

3.2 The petitioner has no source of income for survival and is maintaining himself by way of taking loan from his friends and relatives. Presently the petitioner has no option except of filing an application under Section 144 BNSS, 2023 for seeking maintenance from the respondent-wife. The petitioner has also contended that he has not filed any petition before any Court for seeking maintenance prior to filing of the present petition.

4. In support of the contentions raised in the maintenance application filed under section 144 of BNSS, 2023, the learned counsel for the petitioner argued that the respondent-wife has spoiled the career of the petitioner by filing two FIRs against him based on incorrect facts; (i) Case Crime No.27 of 2023, under Sections 498A, 323, 504, 506 IPC and Section 3/4 of Dowry Prohibition Act, at P.S. Mahila Thana, Commissionerate Prayagraj, (ii) Case Crime No.043 of 2024, under Sections 406, 506 IPC, at P.S. Cantt, Commissionerate Prayagraj. The respondent-wife has also filed a divorce petition under Section 13 of the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955 registered as Marriage Case No.2504 of 2023, tilted as 'Neetu Singh v. Ranjeet Singh', pending trial before the learned Principal Judge, Family Court, Prayagraj. The petitioner has to travel for around 400 kilometers on each fixed date to attend the court proceedings.

4.1 He next submitted that the petitioner has also filed an application under Section 9 of the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955 registered as Case No.43 of 2024 before the learned Principal Judge, Family Court, Etawah and the respondent-wife has not participated in the said proceedings. In fact, the respondent-wife preferred a Transfer Application No.883 of 2024 before this Court for transfer of the Case No.43 of 2024 pending trial before learned Family Court, Etawah. The co-ordinate Bench of this Court stayed the aforesaid proceedings vide order dated 14.11.2024.

4.2 The petitioner has to travel thousands of kilometers in a month to attend the Court proceedings with regard to numerous cases filed by the respondent-wife, and due to the same reason, the petitioner has developed serious health issues like high blood pressure, hypertension, sugar, high cholesterol, urinary problems, heart and kidney diseases.

4.3 The respondent-wife has not been appearing before the learned Principal Judge, Family Court, in the proceedings under section 144 of BNSS, 2023 and since then no effective order has been passed.

4.4 Lastly, it is submitted by way of rejoinder affidavit dated 28.11.2025 through Advocate Shri Anurag Shukla that the present petition has been filed with a limited relief seeking expeditious disposal of the application under section 144 of BNSS, 2023 and as such no counter affidavit is required. The petitioner has also filed an application no.7 of 2025 dated 15.12.2025 through Advocate Shri Arun Kumar Soni along with an affidavit seeking liberty from this Court to withdraw the present petition, which was argued by Shri O.P. Singh, learned Senior Counsel for the petitioner.

4.5 The petitioner has also filed a supplementary affidavit dated 9.12.2025, wherein he submitted that due to his sudden illness he failed to appear before this Court on 8.12.2025 and non appearance of the petitioner was intimated to this Court by post on 7.12.2025 through the petitioner's counsel to the Registrar General. The whatsapp message was also sent and the same was acknowledged by the respondent's counsel.

5. Per contra, Ms. Vijeta Singh, learned counsel for the respondent-wife submitted that the petitioner comes from a political family and is a registered Advocate with Bar Council of Uttar Pradesh. The petitioner has started his legal practice before this Court under the juniorship of Shri Anurag Shukla (Advocate Roll No.0127/2016). The uncle of the petitioner was the Member of 15th Lok Sabha from Etawah constituency while his mother was a Gram Pradhan. The petitioner also was in construction business. The petitioner is fraud, compulsive liar and a greedy man. He does everything to get easy money. He is a healthy and sturdy man and is addicted to alcohol and bad habits; he wants free money to live a debauched life.

5.1 The petitioner has a history of making false and misleading statements before learned Family Court and this Hon'ble Court as well. He has attempted to secure relief by suppressing and concealing true and material facts. The petitioner has misled the Court to obtain favourable orders while continuing to take benefit from the respondent wife's income. Despite being an Advocate, the petitioner has portrayed himself as a helpless and pitiable person in order to gain undue sympathy and advantage in the proceedings.

5.2 On 10.11.2020, the petitioner fraudulently, by taking the respondent-wife in confidence on false promise to purchase a plot of land, took a personal loan of Rs.11,50,000/- from the respondent's salary account in SBI Bank having branch at High Court at Lucknow- a Bench of the High Court of Judicature at Allahabad. The petitioner again on 6.10.2022, took personal loan of Rs.13,56,000/- to be repaid in six years from the respondent's salary account, in Jhalwa Branch of SBI, at Prayagraj. The respondent-wife has been paying monthly EMI of Rs.26,020/- since then, and will pay till October, 2028. The said loan was taken under the guise of purchasing a plot whereas the petitioner fraudulently kept transferring the loan amount into his personal account through UPI and exhausted all the loan amount, total amounting to Rs.13,56,000/-, on alcoholic drinks and leading luxurious life, and other nefarious activities.

5.3 It is next submitted that all the banking details, password, ATM/Debit Card of the respondent-wife were with the petitioner-husband, who without her consent and knowledge made unauthorized withdrawals and spent the entire money on leading luxurious life and consuming alcoholic drinks.

5.4 As per respondent-wife, when she confronted the petitioner regarding the account statement, and luxurious spending, initially he avoided the respondent and thereafter started perpetuating cruelty. The loan was taken under the guise of taking a plot of land and when she insisted for a visit to the plot, the petitioner became aggressive and started causing mental and physical cruelty upon the respondent. The petitioner left the respondent-wife at her maternal home and stopped contacting her. After some days, the respondent-wife visited her rented home in Kalindipuram, Prayagraj and came to know that her husband (petitioner) had run away with all the household articles, jewelries and her Vitara Brezza car bearing registration no.UP-70-EW-3661, purchased by the respondent-wife from her own funds.

5.5 She next submitted that when the respondent-wife asked the petitioner to return her car, given in the marriage, he shamelessly demanded Rs.10 lakhs from the respondent. Aggrieved by the same, the respondent lodged an FIR against the petitioner on 07.03.2024 having Case Crime No.0043 of 2024, under Sections 406, 506 IPC, at P.S. Cantt, Prayagraj. Against the aforesaid FIR, the petitioner filed a Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No.4930 of 2024 with the prayer to quash the FIR and the petition was dismissed with the observation that the FIR prima facie disclose commission of cognizable offense and the prayer to quash the FIR cannot be entertained. Even after lodging an FIR, the petitioner refused to return the car, and aggrieved by the same, the respondent-wife was further forced to file Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No.14344 of 2024 with the prayer to direct to the police to recover the vehicle registered in her name and handover to her. The same was dismissed as 'not pressed' with the understanding that the matter would be settled out of the Court in mediation proceedings.

5.6 Aggrieved by the constant physical and mental abuse by the petitioner, the respondent- wife lodged an FIR on 01.04.2023 having Case Crime No.0027 of 2023, under Sections 498A, 323, 504, 506 IPC and 3/4 Dowry Prohibition Act, at P.S. Mahila Thana, Prayagraj. Thereafter, being aggrieved by the aforesaid FIR, the petitioner has filed a Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No.6041 of 2023 before this Court with the prayer to quash the FIR which was dismissed for want of prosecution vide order dated 06.08.2024, and thereafter two FIRs have also been lodged against the petitioner-husband.

5.7 Aggrieved by the ill and reprehensible behaviour of the petitioner, leading to the mental and physical torture, the respondent-wife, filed a divorce petition under Section 13 of Hindu Marriage Act, 1955 before the learned Principal Judge, Family Court, Allahabad, which is pending for final adjudication. The respondent-wife has gone through emotional dysregulation and cognitive disturbances and a situation came where it became impossible to live with the petitioner-husband, and therefore, the respondent-wife filed the aforesaid divorce petition.

5.8 In the divorce petition, on 20.5.2025, the petitioner filed an application under section 24 of Hindu Marriage Act, 1955 seeking maintenance based on concocted and false averments. The learned Family Court vide order dated 15.9.2025 allowed the application under section 24 of the HMA with the direction to the respondent-wife to pay Rs.5,000/- per month as an interim maintenance and Rs.10,000/- towards litigation expenses. Against the order dated 15.9.2025, the respondent-wife filed a review application which is pending for adjudication before the learned Principal Judge, Family Court, Prayagraj.

5.9 She next submitted that the respondent-wife challenged the proceedings filed under section 144 of BNSS, 2023 pending adjudication before the learned Family Court, Etawah, before this Court by way of a Transfer Application (Criminal) No.517 of 2025, this Court vide order dated 3.11.2025 stayed the further proceedings arising out of Maintenance Case No.523 of 2025 filed under section 144 of BNSS, 2023 pending before the learned Family Court, Etawah.

5.10 The conduct of the petitioner clearly reflects a deliberate attempt by initiating multiple frivolous proceedings solely to delay the lawful adjudication of the matter. The petitioner despite being capable of earning has been intentionally suppressing material facts and falsely portraying himself as an unemployed person only to seek undue advantage, and has engaged the respondent-wife in multiple litigation to frustrate her.

5.11 It's next emphatically submitted that the respondent was subjected to continuous physical and mental cruelty at the hands of the petitioner-husband, which, according to her, led to severe emotional distress and depression. It has further been alleged that the petitioner is habitual drunkard and had, without lawful justification, procured substantial personal loans from the salary account of the respondent-wife, and that the withdrawn amounts were misused for gambling, drinking and other improvident activities.

5.12 Ms. Vijeta Singh, learned counsel for the respondent-wife concluded her submission by stating that a compensatory cost be imposed on the petitioner-husband, and a more realistic and pro-active approach is needed for Courts to deal with such matters. The compensatory cost may act deterrent to vexatious or luxury litigation born out of false pretenses, ego, greed, or resorted to as a buying-time tactics. In this context, she placed reliance upon the observation made by the Supreme Court in Ashok Kumar Mittal v. Ram Kumar Gupta, Vinod Seth v. Devinder Bajaj, and Sanjeev Kumar Jain v. Raghuvir Saran Charitable Trust.

6. In brief, few facts and the relevant contents of the orders passed during the hearing of the petition would help to reach to a logical conclusion. The present petition was filed before this Court on 25.09.2025 and was firstly listed on 04.11.2025. On the first date, none was present on behalf of the petitioner neither any adjournment slip was moved on his behalf. This Court directed both the parties to appear in person and accordingly the Registry was directed to communicate a copy of the order to Shri Kumar Anubhav, learned counsel for the petitioner on his registered mobile number to ensure the presence of the petitioner in person on the next date of hearing. In compliance thereof a copy of the order dated 4.11.2025 was communicated to Shri Kumar Anubhav on his registered mobile no.6387317341.

6.1 On 11.11.2025, on the joint request of learned counsel for the parties, the matter was adjourned to 21.11.2025, and when the matter was taken up on 21.11.2025, again none appeared on behalf of the petitioner while the respondent's counsel was present, and on his request the case was adjourned to 25.11.2025. On 25.11.2025, the respondent-wife filed counter affidavit while time was granted to the petitioner to file rejoinder affidavit and accordingly, rejoinder affidavit was filed on 28.11.2025.

6.2 On 03.12.2025 after hearing learned counsel for both the parties, this Court called for the certified copy of the record from learned District Judge, Etawah regarding all pending cases between the parties. The learned counsel for the respondent-wife was also directed to furnish details regarding pending cases between the parties before the Allahabad District Court and High Court along with orders and the learned counsel for the petitioner was granted time to prepare with the case.

6.3 On 8.12.2025, the matter was called twice. None appeared on behalf of petitioner while the learned counsel for the respondent was present. The matter was scheduled to be taken up at 10:30 a.m. and was taken up at 12:40 p.m. still neither petitioner nor his counsel appeared on his behalf. In compliance with the order dated 3.12.2025, the respondent's learned counsel furnished details of the litigation pending between the parties before the various Courts. Learned counsel for the respondent informed the Court that the learned counsel for the petitioner was communicated on two separate occasions and petitioner's learned counsel cited his unavailability and thereafter finally deliberately refused to accept the counter affidavit. In the interest of justice, this Court had granted last and final opportunity to the petitioner to advance submissions personally or through duly engaged counsel and the copy of order was duly communicated to the petitioner on his registered mobile number through Registrar (Compliance).

6.4 On 10.12.2025, Shri Arun Kumar Soni, learned counsel for the petitioner appeared and sought time to go through the counter affidavit filed on behalf of respondent-wife and to file rejoinder affidavit, accordingly one week's time was further accorded to the learned counsel for the petitioner. Ms. Vijeta Singh, learned counsel for the respondent was heard at length and she was directed to furnish the copy of petition to Ms. Amrita Rai Mishra, learned Advocate, who may assist the Court on behalf of the petitioner, on the next date of hearing if the petitioner's counsel fails to appear before the Court. This alternative arrangement was made because the petitioner was frequently replacing the advocates, and the Court was facing difficulty to proceed with the matter.

6.5 On 17.12.2025, Shri O.P. Singh, learned Senior Counsel, assisted by Shri Arun Kumar Soni, learned counsel appeared for the petitioner and submitted that an application for withdrawal of the case is pending before the Registry waiting clearance, therefore, either the case may be dismissed as withdrawn or the Court may wait till the time the withdrawal application is cleared by the Registry. Upon the query of this Court regarding the possibility of amicable settlement, if any, may be arrived between the parties, the learned Senior Counsel submitted that the petitioner is ready and willing to seek mutual divorce. The Court further queried regarding the terms and conditions of the mutual divorce on which the learned Senior Counsel submitted that he had no instruction in this regard and requested a discharge from this case and left the Court. Thereafter, this Court accordingly, directed Ms. Amrita Rai Mishra, learned Advocate to assist the Court as an Amicus-Curiae.

7. On 17.12.2025, Ms. Amrita Rai Mishra, learned Amicus-Curiae filed written submission, and the same has been taken on record. She contended that the petitioner is already getting maintenance of Rs.5,000/- per month and also received one time amount of Rs.10,000/- for litigation expenses. The maintenance was awarded pursuant to an application dated 20.05.2025 filed by the petitioner under Section 24 of Hindu Marriage Act, 1955 in the divorce proceedings initiated by the respondent-wife, pending trial before the learned Family Court, Prayagraj. The petitioner has not disclosed the details of the application dated 20.05.2025, filed under section 24 of Hindu Marriage Act, 1955 and an order dated 15.09.2025 passed by the learned Family Judge, Prayagraj directing the respondent-wife to pay Rs.5,000/- per month to the petitioner and Rs.10,000/- towards legal expenses, in an application filed under Section 144 BNSS, 2023 before learned Family Judge at Etawah. Learned Amicus-Curiae has drawn the attention of the Court to paragraph no.16 of the Maintenance Application No.523 of 2025, filed under 144 BNSS, 2023 wherein the petitioner has stated that no case with regard to maintenance is pending in any Court and sworn affidavit to this effect.

7.1 The learned Amicus-Curiae further stated that even if the wife is employed, the husband cannot make himself wholly dependent on his wife's income through a device under Section 24 of Hindu Marriage Act. The petitioner has not filed an affidavit of assets and liabilities as mandated in Rajnesh v. Neha and another⁵. She next submitted that the petitioner has sworn false affidavit before this court and before the learned Judge, Family Court both at Prayagraj and Etawah. In support of the submissions, learned Amicus-Curiae has relied upon the judgment passed by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Rajnesh v. Neha, (supra); a judgment passed by Bombay High Court in Smt. Kanchan w/o Kamendra Sawarkar v. Kamendra; a judgment passed by Madhya Pradesh in Yashpal Singh Thakur v. Smt. Anjana Rajput; and a judgment passed by High Court of Kerala in the case of Nivya v. Shivaprasad to substantiate that the husband is disentitled to claim maintenance under section 144 of BNSS, 2023 and there was no reason for the learned Family Judge, Etawah to entertain such a frivolous application.

7.2 Learned Amicus-Curiae further stated that petitioner is in habit of misleading Courts by placing incorrect facts and swearing false affidavits. This become grave when the petitioner himself claims to be a practicing Advocate and has been appearing in this Court regularly under the guidance of Shri Anurag Shukla, learned counsel. Contesting matrimonial litigation is one thing, and filing false and frivolous petitions along with false affidavits is another matter of grave concern. The conduct of the petitioner shall be taken seriously. On one hand, the respondent-wife is paying monthly installment of Rs.26,020/- against the loan spent by the petitioner-husband for consuming alcohol and leading luxurious life. On the other hand, the petitioner has moved two separate maintenance applications; (i) under section 144 of BNSS, 2023 and (ii) section 24 of Hindu Marriage Act, 1955 accompanied with false affidavits. Further, the petitioner is getting a maintenance of Rs.5,000/- per month by misleading the learned Family Court and received one time amount of Rs.10,000/- towards litigation expenses under section 24 of Hindu Marriage Act, 1955.

7.3 She next submitted that it can very well be understood that petitioner is a crook and lair, and leading a debauched life. The Court may proceed further with perjury proceedings against the petitioner-husband.

8. This Court has examined and given a thoughtful consideration of the records; (i) summoned from the court of learned Principal Judge, Family Court, Etawah where an application under section 144 BNNS, 2023 was filed by the petitioner, (ii) the Matrimonial Case No.2504 of 2023, pending adjudication before the learned Principal Judge, Family Court, Prayagraj and proceedings initiated before learned Family Judge on the petitioner's application under section 24 of the HMA, 1955, (iii) the affidavits sworn by the petitioner, (iv) order dated 15.9.2025 passed in Application under section 24 of HMA, 1955 by learned Family Judge, Prayagraj, and the findings recorded by the learned Judge in the last portion of para-4 of internal page-6 of the order, (v) the account statements of respondent-wife with respect to the loan amount, (vi) contents of FIR No.0027 of 2023, under sections 498A, 323, 504 and 506 IPC read with section 3/4 Dowry Prohibition Act, at P.S. Mahila Thana, Prayagraj, (vii) FIR No.0043/2024, under sections 406, 506 IPC registered at P.S. Cantt. Prayagraj, (viii) orders dated 18.03.2024, 19.04.2023 & 06.08.2024 passed by Division Bench of this Court in Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No.6041 of 2023, titled as Ranjeet Singh v. State of U.P. and 3 others, (ix) order dated 24.10.2024 passed by co-ordinate Bench of this Court in Matters Under Article 227 No.12641 of 2024 titled as Neetu Singh v. Ranjeet Singh, (x) order dated 02.04.2024 passed in Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No.4930 of 2024, titled as Ranjeet Singh v. State of U.P. and 3 others, (xi) order dated 02.09.2024, 25.09.2024, 22.10.2024 and 03.03.2025 passed by the Division Bench in Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No.14344 of 2024 titled as Smt. Neetu Singh v. State of U.P. and 3 others, (xii) order dated 14.11.2024 passed in Transfer Application (Civil) No.883 of 2024, titled as Smt. Neetu Singh v. Ranjeet Singh, (xiii) order dated 03.11.2025 passed in Transfer Application (Criminal) No.517 of 2025 titled as Neetu Singh v. State of U.P. and 2 others, and (xiv) affidavit of assets and liabilities filed by the petitioner-husband before the learned Family Court, Prayagraj.

9. Admittedly, the petitioner's marriage was solemnized with respondent on 18.5.2019 in accordance with Hindu rites and ceremonies. The marriage could not succeed and both the parties entered into litigation. The record further suggests that the respondent-wife is a resident of Prayagraj and also got job in this Court as Additional Private Secretary. The respondent-wife got transferred to Lucknow Bench of this Court for the convenience of the petitioner-husband and remained posted there for approximately 3 years. Subsequently, when the dispute arose, the respondent-wife got transferred to Prayagraj, and started living at a rented accommodation.

9.1 The record further suggests that the respondent-wife initially has taken a personal loan of Rs.11,50,000/- on her salary account from SBI Bank branch, situated at Lucknow Bench of this Court. The loan was subsequently paid by the respondent-wife. Thereafter, the respondent-wife at the persistent request of her husband to save the matrimonial life again taken a personal loan of Rs.13,56,000/- on 6.10.2022, and since then she is paying regular monthly installments of Rs.26,020/- from her salary account.

9.2 The salary account statement of respondent-wife further reflects that the petitioner-husband transferred the entire loan amount from respondent-wife's account no.38057767739 at SBI Branch High Court to his account no.3444187141 at Central Bank of India and second Account no.3499626709 through UPI. The complete details have not been provided by the petitioner.

9.3 The Income Tax Return (ITR) of the petitioner-husband for the Assessment Year 2023-2024 shows that total income of the petitioner was Rs.4,70,540/-, and the petitioner has given a justification that the petitioner was a civil contractor before joining the legal profession in the year 2025, and therefore, filed ITR for the year 2023-2024. The petitioner has two Bank Accounts at State Bank of India, bearing Account No.3499626709 and 3948116745, as disclosed in affidavit of assets and liabilities filed by the petitioner. The petitioner has neither annexed the last three years bank account statement nor furnished the further details like name of the bank, branch and account number etc. Thus, it can safely be concluded that the petitioner has concealed the material source of income from the learned Principal Judge, Family Court, Prayagraj.

9.4 It is also admitted that besides the criminal cases filed by the respondent-wife against the petitioner, the writ petitions, and transfer petitions were filed by both the parties. A divorce petition registered as Matrimonial Case No.2504 of 2023 under Section 13 of the Hindu Marriage Act, was filed by the respondent-wife on 22.12.2023, and since then the same is pending consideration before the learned Judge Family Court, Prayagraj. The petitioner-husband had moved an application dated 20.05.2025 under Section 24 of the Hindu Marriage Act for seeking maintenance, which was allowed vide order dated 15.9.2025 with the direction to the respondent-wife to pay Rs.5,000/- per month to the petitioner and Rs.10,000/- towards legal expenses.

9.5 The respondent-wife preferred a petition under Article 227 No.12641 of 2024 seeking a direction to the learned Principal Judge, Family Court to decide the Matrimonial Suit No.2504 of 2023 filed under Section 13 of the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955 within a fixed time frame. The co-ordinate Bench of this Court placing reliance upon Section 21-B of Hindu Marriage Act, 1955, disposed of the petition with the observation that the Act of 1955 itself provides for deciding the petition within fixed period of time, therefore, there is no need for issuing a separate direction to the learned Family Court. The Family Court was directed to proceed in accordance with Section 21-B of the Act, 1955. Section 21-B of the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955 has been reproduced:

“21B. Special provision relating to trial and disposal of petitions under the Act.-(1) The trial of a petition under this Act shall, so far as is practicable consistently with the interests of justice in respect of the trial, be continued from day to day until its conclusion unless the court finds the adjournment of the trial beyond the following day to be necessary for reasons to be recorded.

(2) Every petition under this Act shall be tried as expeditiously as possible and endeavour shall be made to conclude the trial within six months from the date of service of notice of the petition on the respondent.

(3) Every appeal under this Act shall be heard as expeditiously as possible, and endeavour shall be made to conclude the hearing within three months from the date of service of notice of appeal on the respondent. ”

9.6 It is also admitted position that the petitioner-husband again instituted a fresh maintenance application under section 144 of BNSS, 2023 on 29.5.2025 before the learned Family Court, Etawah. Aggrieved by the same, the respondent-wife approached this Court through a Transfer Application (Criminal) No.517 of 2025 seeking transfer of the case from learned Family Court Etawah to Prayagraj, where both the parties to the litigation are residing, though separately. This court vide order dated 3.11.2025 issued notice to the petitioner-husband and stayed further proceedings of the aforesaid Maintenance Case No.523 of 2025.

9.7 Immediately after filing the aforesaid Maintenance Case No.523 of 2025, the petitioner-husband moved the present petition for seeking direction to expedite the aforesaid maintenance proceeding pending before the learned Family Judge, Etawah.

9.8 After examining the bank account statement of the respondent-wife, it is also an admitted position that the respondent-wife had firstly taken a personal loan of Rs.11,50,000/- on 10.11.2020 and after its repayment again took personal loan of Rs.13,56,000/- on 6.10.2022, and since then she has been paying a monthly EMI of Rs.26,020/- from her salary account. It is also admitted position that the huge amount (almost entire amount) has been transferred by petitioner into his personal account without knowledge and consent of the respondent-wife. It is also admitted position that no land has been purchased as promised by the petitioner-husband from the loan amount. The examination of the bank account statement of the respondent-wife, it is revealed that on an average, a daily withdrawal of Rs.5,000-10,000/- has been made and on many occasions Rs.49,000/- have been withdrawn. As per respondent-wife's claim, the said withdrawal has been made by the petitioner-husband to lead a luxurious life.

10. This Court on numerous occasions has interacted with the petitioner-husband and the respondent-wife, tried its level best to convince the petitioner-husband to lead a healthy professional life rather than keeping eye on the wife's income. The wife's body language and demeanor reflected that she has been physically abused and now seems to be mentally drained whereas the petitioner-husband is a well built, shameless youth, who has no respect for the hard work, sincerity, and loyalty. The petitioner-husband seems to come from a comparatively well-off family whose uncle was earlier the Member of Parliament and the mother was Ex-Pradhan of the village.

11. The petitioner admitted to be in business of construction and therefore filed a ITR of Rs.4,70,540/- for the year 2023-2024. He filed an affidavit of assets and liabilities with incorrect details of source of income. The supplementary affidavit filed by the respondent-wife suggests that; (i) the petitioner husband is a owner of two storied well furnished house at Bharthana Chauraha, District Etawah, (ii) the petitioner's mother owns a vacant plot of land next to the petitioner's house, (iii) the petitioner's mother Smt. Satyawati is an Ex-Village Pradhan. She is an illiterate woman and the petitioner used to manage all her finances and works as her representative, (iv) the petitioner also has a joint family property at village Bijauli, Bakewar, District Etawah and an agricultural farm in his name, (v) the petitioner's elder brother- Surjeet Singh also owns an agricultural farm in Etawah, (vi) petitioner's younger brother- Ajeet Singh is a government employee and owns a well furnished two storied building at Bharthana Chauraha, District Etawah, and (vii) the petitioner is also a owner of a bike and a car.

12. Contrary to the petitioner's family background, the respondent-wife comes from a modest middle class family, her father is retired from police services and her mother served in the health department as a Group-D employee. The respondent-wife qualified exam for the post of Additional Private Secretary on 14.5.2019 and joined her services on 07.06.2019 and the marriage was solemnized on 18.5.2019. Notably, the marriage was solemnized within a week of declaration of the final result of the respondent-wife.

13. Further, the material placed on record reflects that the proceedings under Section 144 BNSS, 2023 were stayed by a Coordinate Bench of this Court in the transfer application preferred by the respondent-wife, and the petitioner-husband tried to conceal the same fact from this Court. In such circumstances, the prayer for expeditious disposal of a proceeding which presently stands stayed is rendered infructuous and legally unsustainable. This Court cannot be oblivious to the submission advanced on behalf of the respondent that Section 144 BNSS, 2023 primarily contemplates grant of maintenance to wives, children and parents. Further, in the present case the petitioner-husband, being an able-bodied person and a practicing Advocate, cannot seek to project himself as wholly dependent without full and candid disclosure of his financial status, particularly in the absence of an affidavit of assets and liabilities as mandated in Rajnesh v. Neha (supra) with full and correct disclosure.

14. The record further suggest that the petitioner has sworn the affidavit stating that the contents of paragraphs nos.1 to 12 of affidavit are true to his personal knowledge. The perusal of the affidavit reveals the petitioner has concealed the fact that he has been getting monthly maintenance of Rs.5000/- from the respondent-wife. It was also concealed that the proceedings of the maintenance Case No.523 of 2025 filed under section 144 of BNSS, 2023 before the learned Family Judge, Etawah have been stayed by the co-ordinate Bench of this Court.

15. Interestingly, the husband is disentitled to claim maintenance from his wife under 144 of BNSS, 2023. The Madras High Court in B. Clement v. Mcthel Thanga Annam, observed as under:

"To read and understand the scope of Section 125 of the Code of Criminal Procedure is not a tortuous task. The words are plain and the intention is explicit. The legislature would not have intended to clothe the husband with the right to claim maintenance from his wife under this Chapter. Though under some personal laws, the husband may be entitled to claim maintenance from the wife, it is certainly not possible under Section 125 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. "

16. A reference can also be taken from a judgment passed the Hyderabad High Court in *Malleshwaramma v. G.S. Srinivasulu*¹⁰, the court observed as under:

"It appears, the Parliament, in its wisdom, intentionally not included the words husband or spouse after the words his wife and preceding the words unable to maintain in clause (a) of Sub-section (1) of Section 125 Cr.PC; therefore, a husband is not entitled to file application under Section 125 Cr.PC claiming maintenance from the wife. "

17. The High Court is not a window shopping forum, and the petitioner has approached this Court numerous times with incorrect and misleading facts and swearing false affidavits in support of the petitions and applications. The conduct of the petitioner in suppressing material facts and pursuing parallel remedies, while seeking equitable relief, disentitles him from any indulgence by this Court.

18. So far as the issue of compensatory cost is concerned, and the judgments placed reliance by Ms. Vijeta Singh, the common thread running through all the judgments is the reiteration of three salutary principles; (i) cost should ordinarily follow the event, (ii) realistic cost should be awarded keeping in view the ever increasing litigation expenses, and (iii) the cost should serve the purpose for curbing frivolous and vexatious litigation. The words of Justice Brown in Cropper v. Smith (1884) aptly resonates strongly with an issue for determination of the compensatory cost- "I found in my experience that there is one panacea which heals every sore in litigation and that is costs".

19. The traditional framework of 'litigation costs' in law has largely been confined to the reimbursement of quantifiable losses or litigation expenses. However, this narrow understanding becomes inadequate when applied to the evolving realities of marital relationships, particularly in cases involving economic abuse. Where one spouse systematically depletes the financial resources of the other under the guise of marital authority or expectation, the injury inflicted transcends mere monetary loss.

20. Economic abuse within marriage operates in insidious ways-through control over income, coercive appropriation of assets, and the gradual erosion of financial independence. The aggrieved spouse, often acting in good faith and with the expectation of marital stability, may tolerate such conduct until the harm becomes irreversible. In such circumstances, limiting compensatory costs to direct financial loss fails to capture the full extent of the injustice.

21. A young professional woman, who, after qualifying for the competitive exam, secures a government job, and whose financial and personal resources have been systematically depleted by her husband, may initially endure such deprivation in the expectation that the marital relationship will eventually stabilize and fulfill its intended purpose of mutual support. However, where this expectation is frustrated, and the relationship instead becomes a vehicle for sustained economic and emotional exploitation, the law cannot remain indifferent.

22. In such circumstances, the imposition of financial liability-whether through maintenance, compensation, or restitution- serves a legitimate legal purpose. It is not merely punitive, but corrective: aimed at restoring, as far as possible, the economic position and dignity of the aggrieved spouse. This aligns with established jurisprudential principles that recognize marriage not as a license for exploitation, but as a partnership grounded in equity, good faith, and mutual obligation.

23. Jurisprudentially, there is a compelling case for expanding the scope of compensatory costs to include elements of restitution and equitable rebalancing. The doctrine of unjust enrichment provides that no person should benefit at another's expense without lawful justification. Similarly, the principle of restitutio-in-integrum seeks to restore the injured party to the position they would have occupied but for the wrongdoing. When applied to marital exploitation, these principles demand a broader, more nuanced approach. The law, therefore, intervenes not only to redress individual harm but also to uphold the normative ideal that justice within intimate relationships is neither illusory nor optional.

24. For the aggrieved individual, the claim to compensation is not merely a financial demand-it reflects a deeper conception of justice as something inviolable and worthy of vindication. Where exploitation has been normalized under the guise of marital duty, legal remedies serve to reaffirm that such expectations are neither lawful nor morally defensible.

25. Such an approach aligns with the constitutional commitment to dignity and equality, ensuring that legal remedies remain responsive to lived realities. Ultimately, the law must evolve to recognize that justice within marriage is not merely symbolic but materially enforceable.

26. From a jurisprudential perspective, the gap between the litigation costs and compensatory costs highlights the tension between formal legal structures and substantive justice. Legal realism reminds us that law must respond to social realities rather than remain confined to abstract doctrines. In the context of marital exploitation, this requires a shift from a purely needs-based framework to one that incorporates accountability and restitution.

27. Courts must therefore move beyond viewing marriage as a private sphere insulated from rigorous legal scrutiny. Instead, they should recognize that power imbalances within marriage can give rise to legally cognizable harm. By expanding the scope of remedies to include compensatory and restitutionary elements, the law can better address the full spectrum of injury suffered by the aggrieved spouse. Such an evolution would not undermine the institution of marriage; rather, it would reinforce its foundational values by ensuring that it cannot be misused as a tool for exploitation.

28. The pursuit of justice within intimate relationships presents unique challenges for legal systems. Unlike commercial transactions, marital relationships are characterized by trust, emotional interdependence, and informal arrangements. However, these very features can create conditions for exploitation, particularly when one party exercises disproportionate control over financial resources.

29. Equity, as a jurisprudential concept, offers a pathway forward. Rooted in principles of fairness and conscience, equity allows courts to tailor remedies to the specific circumstances of each case. In situations of economic abuse, this may involve not only compensating for direct losses but also addressing the broader consequences of dependency and dis-empowerment. This aligns with the moral intuition that justice requires both compensation for the victim and disgorgement from the wrongdoer.

30. In conclusion, the evolution of legal principles in this area is not merely desirable but necessary. As societal understandings of marriage continue to change, so too must the law adapt to ensure that justice remains both relevant and effective. In the context of the lived realities of 2026, courts are required to adopt a proactive and progressive approach in adjudicating such matters, ensuring that legal remedies evolve in step with contemporary forms of harm and exploitation.

31. Based on above said deliberations, this Court cannot lose sight of the fact that the respondent-wife on the insistence of petitioner's husband, taken personal loan twice (Rs.11,50,000/- on 10.11.2020 & Rs.13,56,000/- on 06.10.2022) against her salary account. After foreclosure of the first loan, the second loan was immediately availed, and the respondent-wife has been paying regular installment of Rs.26,020/- per month, and will pay till October, 2028, besides a maintenance of Rs.5000/- per month to the husband, and Rs.10000/- was paid towards litigation cost. Needless to mention, the entire loan amount has been unauthorizedly misused by the petitioner-husband as reflected from the pattern of withdrawal of the amount and some transaction reflects a large amount has been transferred through UPI and other similar modes.

32. In view of the aforesaid facts and circumstances, this Court is of the considered opinion that the present petition under Article 227 of the Constitution of India lacks bona-fides and does not warrant exercise of supervisory jurisdiction vests with this Court. Accordingly, the equity demands the present petition is dismissed with the compensatory cost of Rs.15,00,000/- to be given to the respondent-wife within six weeks from today by way of demand draft. The demand draft be deposited with the Registrar General of this Court, who shall in turn, hand over the same to the respondent-wife.

32.1 The justification for imposing a heavy cost rooted in the logic emerged from undisputed facts and the jurisprudential deliberations discussed herein above.

32.2 Accordingly, the instant petition is dismissed.

33. The observation made herein above have been made to decide the present petition and shall have no bearing on the case(s) pending trial before the learned Principal Family Court, Prayagraj or any other Court. The learned Principal Judge, Family Court shall decide the case(s) on its merit in accordance with law.

Further Directions:

34. The petitioner has invoked the jurisdiction vests with this Court under Article 227 of the Constitution of India, which empowers this Court with supervisory jurisdiction over all courts within their territorial jurisdiction. It would be in the interest of justice and right, if the pending litigation between the parties be concluded at the earliest, in a free and fair manner by upholding an opportunity of hearing to both the parties, and thus following directions are issued.

34.1 The learned Principal Judge, Family Court, Prayagraj is directed to expedite the proceedings arising out of Matrimonial Case No.2504 of 2023, under Section 13 of Hindu Marriage Act, titled Smt. Neetu Singh v. Ranjeet Singh and to decide the same in accordance with the view taken by the co-ordinate Bench of this Court in Matters Under Article 227 No.12641 of 2024, titled as Neetu Singh v. Ranjeet Singh, vide order dated 24.10.2024.

34.2 The proceedings be decided in view of the time period mentioned in Section 21-B of the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955. No unnecessary adjournment shall be granted to either of the parties, the application(s) of personal exemption shall be decided by recording a reason, and in case repetitive personal exemption applications are filed, the same shall be decided by keeping in mind the objective of Section 21-B of HMA.

34.3 In case, the learned Advocates for the petitioner creates commotion in the Court and obstruct the course of justice by raising voice inside the court or creating an atmosphere not conducive to the effective and unbiased trial of the case, the proceedings of the case shall be immediately commenced with in-camera proceedings. In such case, only one learned Advocate along with an assisting learned Advocate shall be allowed inside the court room from both the sides. Further, in case of non-availability of the Advocates, the learned Family Court shall immediately make an alternative arrangement by appointing an Advocate from the panel of legal Aid Counsel. On such appointment, such legal aid counsel shall step into the shoes of the learned counsel for the petitioner so that the learned court may proceed with the trial effectively.

34.4 Having regard to the nature of allegations and counter-allegations between the parties and in order to ensure a fair and uninfluenced adjudication, it is directed that the evidence of the parties, including cross-examination, shall be conducted, as far as practicable, in-camera in terms of Section 11 of the Family Courts Act, 1984, so as to preserve the dignity and privacy of the parties. No person other than the parties, their duly engaged counsel and authorized Court staff shall remain present during such proceedings.

34.5 As the respondent-wife has filed an application for recall and review of the order dated 15.9.2025, passed by learned Principal Judge, Family Court Prayagraj, under Section 24 of Hindu Marriage Act in Matrimonial Case No.2504 of 2023, titled as Smt. Neetu v. Ranjeet Singh, the same may be decided within four weeks after receipt of a copy of this order.

34.6 The learned Principal Judge, Family Court, is directed to ensure that sufficient and appropriate security arrangements are made available to the respondent-wife within the Court premises to maintain a secure and congenial environment for the fair and smooth conduct of the proceedings.

34.7 The learned Principal Judge, Family Court shall further submit a quarterly status report to the Registrar (Compliance) of this Court, apprising him of the progress of the case, with a view to ensuring its expeditious and effective disposal strictly in accordance with law, who in turn shall place the same on record of this case.

35. The justification of giving such a direction is that this Court has noticed commotion inside and outside the Court by a group of learned Advocates during the hearing of this Case. The petitioner kept on replacing his Advocates during the hearing of this case and one learned Senior Counsel sought his discharge from the case during the hearing, and left the court in middle of the arguments. This Court is trained and possessed with wisdom to defuse such a situation as and when arises. This Court understands that the learned trial court judges work on a different footings and in a different atmosphere. The facts and circumstances of this case necessitated this Court to pass the aforesaid directions.

36. This Court is of the prima-facie view that the petitioner has approached the learned Family Courts with a concealment of material facts, false averments on oath, and therefore, this Court deems it appropriate to direct the learned Principal Judge, Family Court, Prayagraj to call for an inquiry, at an appropriate stage, to examine the question of initiation of appropriate proceedings in accordance with law against the petitioner-husband for filing false affidavit and concealing material particulars. The respondent-wife shall be at liberty to file the certified copy of the petitions, affidavits or any other material as she deemed it appropriate before the learned Family Judge, Prayagraj for its record and reference. It's made clear that the learned Judge, Family Court shall apply its independent mind before taking cognizance of the issue connected hereto.

Further Directions for Realization of the Costs

37. In case, the petitioner-husband failed to deposit the cost by way of demand draft with the Registrar General of this Court, on an application of the respondent-wife, the District Magistrate, Etawah shall recover the same as an arrears of land revenue within a period of three months on expiry of the time granted to the petitioner.

37.1 Immediately after receipt of a copy of this order, the District Magistrate, Etawah shall forward a copy of this order to the concerned Sub-Registrar in whose jurisdiction, the petitioner's properties are situated. The Sub-Registrar shall ensure that no third party interest shall be created by the petitioner-husband and no sale transaction shall be permitted from today till the recovery of cost.

37.2 The District Magistrate, Etawah shall also constitute a committee to inquire into the movable and immovable assets owned and possessed by the petitioner immediately after receipt of a copy of this order, for record and compliance of the terms of this order.

38. The Registrar (Compliance) is directed to transmit forthwith a copy of this order to (i) the learned Principal Judge, Family Courts, Prayagraj & Etawah, (ii) District Magistrate, Etawah, and (iii) S.S.P. Prayagraj for providing security, I f necessary, to enable the respondent wife to appear before the leaned Family Court.

ORIGINAL JURISDICTION
CIVIL SIDE
DATED: ALLAHABAD 20.04.2026

THE HON'BLE KSHITIJ SHAILENDRA, J.

Kiran Raikwar (Since Died) ...Petitioner
State of U.P. & Anr. Versus
...Respondents

- (i) Whether the mother of a deceased divorced daughter is entitled to receive the amount awarded to the daughter under a decree of divorce by mutual consent, where the amount remained deposited before the Family Court and the daughter died before its actual disbursement?
- (ii) Whether the amount awarded to the wife under a decree passed under Section 13-B of the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955 forms part of her estate so as to devolve upon her legal heirs under Sections 14 and 15 of the Hindu Succession Act, 1956?
- (iii) Whether the application moved by the deceased wife for release of the amount could be continued by her legal representative under Section 146 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908?
- (iv) Whether the Family Court was justified in withholding release of the deposited amount merely because the former husband objected to its disbursement after dissolution of marriage?

Hindu Succession Act, 1956 — Sections 14 and 15 — Divorce by mutual consent — Amount payable to wife under decree — Death before disbursement — Devolution of property.

HELD: The amount awarded to a wife under a decree of divorce by mutual consent forms part of her property within the meaning of Section 14 of the Hindu Succession Act, 1956. Where the decree does not create a restricted estate within the meaning of Section 14(2), the amount becomes the absolute property of the wife notwithstanding that actual disbursement remained pending. Upon her death intestate before receipt of the amount, succession is governed by Section 15 of the Act.

Hindu Succession Act, 1956 — Section 15 — Deceased divorced female — Succession — Former husband not an heir.

HELD: Upon dissolution of marriage by a decree of divorce, the status of the spouses as husband and wife comes to an end and the former husband ceases to have any right of inheritance in the property of the divorced wife. Consequently, where the deceased divorced woman dies issueless and without any surviving heir falling within clauses (a) and (b) of Section 15(1), her property devolves upon her parents in terms of clause (c) thereof. Where the mother is the sole surviving parent, she alone is entitled to succeed to such property.

Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 — Sections 2(11) and 146 — Legal representative — Estate of deceased — Continuation of proceedings.

HELD: Money lying deposited before the Family Court pursuant to a decree in favour of the deceased constitutes part of her estate. The mother, being the legal representative and successor of the deceased, is entitled to represent such estate within the meaning of Section 2(11) CPC. By virtue of Section 146 CPC, the application instituted by the deceased during her lifetime for release of the amount could validly be pursued by her legal representative without instituting independent proceedings.

Hindu Marriage Act, 1955 — Section 13-B — Decree of divorce by mutual consent — Amount deposited before Family Court — Release after death of wife.

HELD: Where the wife had already acquired an enforceable right to receive the amount stipulated under the decree of divorce by mutual consent and had applied for its release during her lifetime, her subsequent death before actual payment does not extinguish such right. The amount continues to remain part of her estate and is liable to be released in favour of her legal representative in accordance with the law of succession.

Constitution of India — Article 227 — Family Court — Release of deposited amount — Supervisory jurisdiction.

HELD: Where the Family Court withheld release of the amount deposited under the decree solely on account of objections raised by the former husband, despite the petitioner being the sole legal representative of the deceased divorced wife, the High Court, in exercise of its supervisory jurisdiction under Article 227 of the Constitution, rightly directed release of the amount in favour of the petitioner.

Petition allowed. Principal Judge, Family Court, Banda directed to release ₹16,00,000/- in favour of the petitioner within two weeks from the date of filing of a certified copy of the order along with a fresh application. (E-14)

Appearance for Parties

For the Appellants: Sri Lal Chandra Mishra and Sri Shashikant Mishra.

For the Respondents: Learned Standing Counsel for the State; none appeared for respondent No. 2 despite service.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Kshitij Shailendra, J.)

Issue Involved:- Whether mother of a deceased divorced daughter is entitled to receive amount awarded to wife under the decree of divorce.

1. Heard learned counsel for the petitioner, learned standing counsel for the State and perused the record.

2. By order dated 03.03.2025 notice was issued to respondent no.2. Office report dated 29.11.2025 indicates that notice has been delivered upon the addressee on 07.04.2025. Service of notice upon the respondent no.2 is held to be sufficient. No one has put in appearance on behalf of respondent no.2.

3. This petition has been filed with the prayer to issue a direction to the Principal Judge, Family Court Banda to release a sum of Rs. 16,00,000/- (sixteen lakh) in favour of the petitioner who is mother of late Kiran Raikwar, which amount was deposited by the respondent no.2 in O.S. No. 103 of 2023 under Section 13-B of Hindu Marriage Act.

4. It is contended by the learned counsel for the petitioner that the petition under Section 13-B was filed jointly by the parties to the marriage seeking dissolution of marriage by mutual consent. The said petition was decreed by order dated 23.4.2024 and one of the terms of the settlement between the parties was payment of Rs. 20 lakh to the wife, i.e. the petitioner's daughter.

5. Submission is that out of the aforesaid sum of Rs. 20 lakh, a sum of Rs. 4 lakh was paid to the wife, however, remaining sum of Rs. 16 lakh was deposited before the Family Court. It is contended that the wife moved an application dated 24.5.2024 seeking release of amount to her, pursuant to which a cheque of Rs. 16 lakh was prepared by the Family Court on 06.07.2024, however, before the cheque could be issued in her favour, she died on 16.7.2024.

6. Thereafter, the petitioner, who is mother of the deceased wife, moved an application in September, 2024 along with affidavit and copy of the death certificate as well as certificate issued by District Magistrate that the petitioner is the only living member in the family and request was made to release the amount in her favour.

7. It is stated that the amount is lying deposited before the concerned Family Court and only on account of an objection filed by respondent no.2, the same has not been released. The court has perused the objections preferred by respondent no.2 in which it is stated that the amount was meant for being paid to wife and for her maintenance and, therefore, mother has no right to receive the same.

8. A significant question has arisen for adjudication by this Court, that is to say that in a case divorce is granted based upon mutual consent subject to payment of certain amount to the wife and if, after the decree is passed but before the amount is received by the divorced wife, she dies, whether legal representative(s) of the deceased divorced wife would be entitled to receive the amount.

LAW OF SUCCESSION IN MONEY MATTERS

9. The Court may observe that movable and immovable properties owned by either Hindu male or female devolve by succession as per the provisions of the Hindu Succession Act, 1956 or Indian Succession Act, 1925. Since, in the present case, the amount was awarded in favour of wife and a cheque was also prepared by the Family Court on 06.07.2024 but before it could be paid to the divorced wife, i.e. daughter of the petitioner, she died on 16.07.2024, provisions of Section 14 of the Hindu Succession Act, 1956 need reference. The same read as under:-

‘14. Property of a female Hindu to be her absolute property.’

(1) Any property possessed by a female Hindu, whether acquired before or after the commencement of this Act, shall be held by her as full owner thereof and not as a limited owner.

Explanation.?In this sub-section, “property” includes both movable and immovable property acquired by a female Hindu by inheritance or devise, or at a partition, or in lieu of maintenance or arrears of maintenance, or by gift from any person, whether a relative or not, before, at or after her marriage, or by her own skill or exertion, or by purchase or by prescription, or in any other manner whatsoever, and also any such property held by her as stridhana immediately before the commencement of this Act.

(2) Nothing contained in sub-section (1) shall apply to any property acquired by way of gift or under a will or any other instrument or under a decree or order of a civil court or under an award where the terms of the gift, will or other instrument or the decree, order or award prescribe a restricted estate in such property.

10. A bare perusal of Section 14 indicates that any property possessed by a female Hindu shall be held by her as full owner thereof and not as of limited owner. Explanation to sub-section (1) of Section 14 includes in the definition of “property”, movable and immovable property acquired by a female Hindu by inheritance or devise, or at a partition, or in lieu of maintenance or arrears of maintenance or in any other manner whatsoever However, there is a restriction provided under sub-section (2) of Section 14 to the effect that the provisions of sub-section (1) shall not apply to any property where terms of any instrument or decree or order of a civil court or award prescribe a restricted estate in such a property.

11. In the present case, the order passed by the Family Court does not prescribe a restricted estate in the property, i.e. the sum directed to be received by the wife and even if the order passed by the Family Court is read in a sense that the amount to be received by the wife after divorce was meant for her maintenance, although no such specification was made in the order rather qua the amount it was indicated that lump sum payment of money is a condition for grant of decree which includes Stridhana etc., provisions of Section 15 of the Hindu Succession Act may come in picture which reads as under:-

15. General rules of succession in the case of female Hindus.-

(1) The property of a female Hindu dying intestate shall devolve according to the rules set out in section 16,?

(a) firstly, upon the sons and daughters (including the children of any pre-deceased son or daughter) and the husband;

(b) secondly, upon the heirs of the husband;

(c) thirdly, upon the mother and father;

(d) fourthly, upon the heirs of the father; and

(e) lastly, upon the heirs of the mother.

(2) Notwithstanding anything contained in sub-section (1),?

(a) any property inherited by a female Hindu from her father or mother shall devolve, in the absence of any son or daughter of the deceased (including the children of any pre-deceased son or daughter) not upon the other heirs referred in sub-section (1) in the order specified therein, but upon the heirs of the father; and

(b) any property inherited by a female Hindu from her husband or from her father-in-law shall devolve, in the absence of any son or daughter of the deceased (including the children of any pre-deceased son or daughter) not upon the other heirs referred to in sub-section (1) in the order specified therein, but upon the heirs of the husband.?

12. As per Section 15 of the Act, the property of a female Hindu dying intestate shall devolve according to the Rules set out in Section 16, (a) firstly, upon the sons and daughters (including the children of any pre-deceased son or daughter) and the husband; (b) secondly, upon the heirs of the husband; (c) thirdly, upon the mother and father;

13. In the present case, the persons falling in the category of clause (a) and (b) of sub-section (1) are not existent, inasmuch as it has come in the order of the Family Court that no issue was born out of wedlock of the parties who were residing separately for the last ten years. Further, since status of the plaintiff-respondent (husband) ceased as such after the decree of divorce was granted, there is no question of devolution of property (money) of the deceased upon any heir of the husband.

14. In the aforesaid circumstances, clause (c) of sub-section (1) of Section 15 would come into picture and property of the deceased divorced wife would devolve upon her mother and father. The petitioner being a widowed mother, as indicated in the certificate issued by the District Magistrate, no heir was left by the deceased.

LEGAL REPRESENTATIVE

15. The matter can be seen from another angle, i.e. in the light of Section 2(11) of the Code of Civil Procedure, which defines 'legal representatives' as under:-

“2(11) ?legal representative? means a person who in law represents the estate of a deceased person, and includes any person who intermeddles with the estate of the deceased and where a party sues or is sued in a representative character the person on whom the estate devolves on the death of the party so suing or sued;”

16. Word 'estate' has been defined in 7th edition of Blacks? Law Dictionary as the amount, degree, nature and quality of a person?s interest in land other property. 2. All that a person or entity owns, including both real and personal property. 3. The property that one leaves after death; the collective assets and liabilities of a dead person. 4. A tract of land esp. one affected by an easement.”

17. In the opinion of the Court, the money lying deposited before the Family Court and not paid either to the divorced wife who is no more or to the petitioner, is covered by the word “estate” and the petitioner being legal representative/heir of her deceased daughter, would be entitled to receive the same. The principle of “actionable claim” can also be utilized in the present case for the purpose.

CONTINUANCE OF CLAIM BY A PERSON CLAIMING UNDER THE ORIGINAL

18. There is a third dimension of this case, which lies under Section 146 CPC, which reads as under:-

"146. Proceedings by or against representatives.-

Save as otherwise provided by this Code or by any law for the time being in force, where any proceeding may be taken or application made by or against any person then the proceeding may be taken or the application may be made by or against any person claiming under him.”

19. In view of Section 146, it is clear that where any proceeding may be taken or application made by or against any person, such proceeding may be taken or the application may be made by or against any person claiming under him. Therefore, if the application moved by the petitioner?s daughter on 24.05.2024 when she was alive, could not materialize in terms of release of payment of Rs. 16 lakh though the cheque was prepared by the Family Court on 06.07.2024, the application could be pursued by the petitioner being her mother in terms of Section 146 CPC and, for that purpose, no other proceedings were required to be instituted.

FEW PRECEDENTS TOUCHING THE ISSUE

20. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in Yallawva Vs. Shantavva: (1997) 1 SCC 159 has discussed devolution of interest in the property of a female Hindu as per the Section 15 of the Act, 1956 and has held that in a case where divorce decree is granted, spouses do not remain husband and wife and, therefore, the mutual rights of inheritance in each other's property on the death of either of them get extinguished. The Hon'ble Supreme Court has also discussed the effect of Section 305 of Indian Succession Act, 1925 observing that an executor or administrator has the same power to sue in respect of all causes of action that survive the deceased and may exercise the same power for recovery of debts as the deceased had when living.

21. In V. Tulasamma and others Vs. Sesha Reddy (Dead) by Lrs.: (1977) 3 SCC 99, the Hon'ble Supreme Court, in light of the provisions of Section 14 of the Hindu Succession Act, has held that sub-section (1) of Section 14 is large in its amplitude and covers every kind of acquisition of property by a female Hindu including acquisition in lieu of maintenance and she would become full owner of the same.

22. In Melepurath Sankunni Ezhuthassan Vs. Thekittil Geopalankutty Nair: (1986) 1 SCC 118, the Hon'ble Supreme Court, after dealing with the provisions of Section 306 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925, has held that rights of action of or against deceased survive to and against executor or administrator and the position must necessarily prevail in the case of legal representative and what applies to the executors and administrators, will also apply to a legal representative.

CONCLUSION

23. In view of the above discussion, this Court has no hesitation in holding that the petitioner is entitled to receive the amount of Rs. 16 lakh lying in the Family Court as a legal representative of her deceased divorced wife and as the only living successor left by her.

24. The petition is allowed and the Principal Judge, Family Court, Banda is directed to release the amount of Rs. 16 lakh in favour of the petitioner in furtherance of the decree drawn in Suit No. 103 of 2023, within a period of two weeks from the date a certified copy of this order alongwith a fresh application is filed before him.

Issues for Consideration

- (i) Whether the proviso to Section 35(1) of the U.P. Regulation of Urban Premises Tenancy Act, 2021 requiring deposit of fifty per cent of the entire amount payable under the impugned order is confined to the amount due on the date of filing of the appeal or extends to recurring liabilities accruing during the pendency of the appeal?
- (ii) Whether the Rent Tribunal is competent to direct continued deposit of fifty per cent of the revised monthly rent during pendency of the appeal as a condition for grant of interim protection?
- (iii) Whether such a direction amounts to execution of the impugned order or constitutes an additional condition not contemplated under Section 35(1) of the Act?
- (iv) Whether interference under Article 227 of the Constitution is warranted against such an interlocutory order passed by the Rent Tribunal?

Headnotes

U.P. Regulation of Urban Premises Tenancy Act, 2021 — Section 35(1) proviso — Appeal — Pre-deposit — Condition precedent — Nature of requirement.

HELD: The proviso to Section 35(1) of the U.P. Regulation of Urban Premises Tenancy Act, 2021 engrafts a mandatory condition precedent for maintainability of an appeal. The right of appeal being a statutory right, the legislature is competent to regulate its exercise by prescribing a condition of pre-deposit. The expression "no appeal shall lie unless" employed in the proviso leaves no discretion with the appellate authority to dispense with the statutory requirement.

U.P. Regulation of Urban Premises Tenancy Act, 2021 — Section 35(1) proviso — "Entire amount payable under the impugned order" — Meaning — Recurring liability of revised rent.

HELD: The expression "entire amount payable under the impugned order" is of wide amplitude and cannot be confined to the amount quantified as on the date of institution of the appeal. Where the impugned order revises rent, thereby creating a recurring monthly liability, the statutory requirement of deposit necessarily extends to liabilities accruing during the pendency of the appeal. Restricting the deposit to the amount due on the date of filing would render the expression "entire amount payable" otiose and defeat the legislative intent underlying the proviso.

U.P. Regulation of Urban Premises Tenancy Act, 2021 — Section 35(1) proviso — Continuing pre-deposit — Direction for periodic deposit — Validity.

HELD: In cases where the impugned order gives rise to a continuing or recurring liability, the obligation of pre-deposit is not exhausted by the initial deposit made at the time of filing of the appeal. The Rent Tribunal is competent to issue directions requiring periodic deposit of fifty per cent of the recurring liability during pendency of the appeal so as to effectuate the statutory mandate embodied in the proviso. Such a direction is incidental to enforcement of the statutory condition and does not amount to imposition of any additional requirement.

U.P. Regulation of Urban Premises Tenancy Act, 2021 — Section 35(1) proviso — Periodic deposit — Interim protection — Execution of impugned order.

HELD: A direction requiring deposit of fifty per cent of the revised rent during pendency of the appeal neither amounts to execution of the impugned order nor compels compliance with the entire liability determined thereunder. Such direction merely enforces the statutory requirement of partial deposit and constitutes a balanced arrangement safeguarding the interests of both parties while interim protection continues to operate.

Constitution of India — Article 227 — Supervisory jurisdiction — Interference with interlocutory order of Rent Tribunal.

HELD: Supervisory jurisdiction under Article 227 is confined to cases involving patent illegality, perversity or jurisdictional error. Where the Rent Tribunal adopts a purposive interpretation of the proviso to Section 35(1) of the U.P. Regulation of Urban Premises Tenancy Act, 2021 and directs continued deposit of fifty per cent of the recurring revised rent during pendency of the appeal, no ground for interference under Article 227 is made out.

Case Arising From

Order dated 02.01.2026 passed by the Rent Tribunal/Additional District Judge, Court No. 26, Agra in Rent Appeal No. 07 of 2026, directing the appellant-tenant to continue depositing fifty per cent of the revised monthly rent during pendency of the appeal against the order dated 24.11.2025 passed by the Rent Authority, Agra in Case No. 1196 of 2024 under Section 10(1) of the U.P. Regulation of Urban Premises Tenancy Act, 2021.

Appearance for Parties

For the Appellants: Sri Rishabh Agarwal and Sri Shashank Singh.

For the Respondents: None appeared.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Yogendra Kumar Srivastava, J.)

Heard Sri Rishabh Agarwal, learned counsel for the petitioner.

2. The present petition has been filed seeking to assail the order dated 02.01.2026 passed by the Rent Tribunal/Additional District Judge, Court No.26, Agra in Rent Appeal No. 07 of 2026.

3. The brief facts giving rise to the present petition are that the respondent filed an application under Section 10 of the U.P. Regulation of Urban Premises Tenancy Act, 2021 seeking determination and enhancement of rent, asserting that the tenanted premises had been purchased by him and that the petitioner, being a tenant under the previous owner, had defaulted in payment of rent. The petitioner, upon appearance, disputed the relationship of landlord and tenant as well as the respondent's title and raised objections regarding maintainability.

4. The Rent Authority, Agra, by order dated 24.11.2025, passed in Case No. 1196 of 2024 under Section 10(1) of the U.P. Act No. 16 of 2021, revised the rent payable by the tenant. Aggrieved thereby, the petitioner preferred Rent Appeal No. 07 of 2026. While entertaining the appeal, the Rent Tribunal, by the impugned order dated 02.01.2026, took note of the Munsarim's report indicating that 50 percent of the amount due under the impugned order had been deposited. The Tribunal thereafter directed the appellant-tenant to continue depositing 50 percent of the revised rent, i.e., Rs. 22,500/- per month (out of Rs. 45,000/-), by the 7th of each succeeding month, and granted interim protection.

5. Assailing the said direction, learned counsel for the petitioner has placed reliance upon the proviso to Section 35(1) of the U.P. Act No. 16 of 2021 to contend that the requirement of deposit stands satisfied once 50 percent of the amount due as on the date of filing of the appeal is deposited, and that no further direction for continuous deposit during pendency of the appeal could have been imposed. It is urged that the direction in effect enforces the impugned order and renders the appeal illusory.

6. The core question that arises for consideration is whether the requirement of pre-deposit under the proviso to Section 35(1) of the U.P. Act No. 16 of 2021 is confined to a one-time deposit calculated up to the date of filing of the appeal, or whether it extends to a continuing obligation covering recurring liabilities accruing during the pendency of the appeal.

7. The submission necessitates consideration of the scope and import of Section 35 of the U.P. Act No. 16 of 2021. Section 35(1) provides for a statutory appeal against an order passed by the Rent Authority. It reads as follows:

“35. Appeal.”

(1) Any person aggrieved by an order passed by the Rent Authority may prefer an appeal along with a certified copy of such order to the Rent Tribunal within the local limits of which the premises is situated, within a period of thirty days from the date of that order:

Provided that no appeal shall lie unless the appellant has deposited fifty per cent of the entire payable amount under the impugned order of the rent authority."

8. The proviso, thus, engrafts a clear and mandatory condition precedent for the maintainability of an appeal. The legislative intent is explicit—an appellant seeking to avail the statutory remedy must first comply with the requirement of depositing 50 percent of the entire amount payable under the impugned order.

9. The language employed in the proviso is clear and peremptory, making the requirement of pre-deposit a condition precedent to the very maintainability of an appeal. The right of appeal being a creature of statute, it is well within the legislative competence to condition its exercise, and such conditions are required to be strictly complied with.

10. It is, by now, well settled that the right of appeal is not an inherent right but a statutory creation, and it is always open to the legislature, while conferring such a right, to impose conditions for its exercise. The requirement of pre-deposit, as a condition precedent for the maintainability of an appeal, has consistently been upheld as a valid legislative device to regulate the exercise of the appellate remedy. In Anant Mills Co. Ltd. v. State of Gujarat¹, it was authoritatively held that such a condition does not take away the right of appeal but merely regulates its exercise so as to balance the right of the appellant with the interest of the successful party. This principle has been reiterated in Vijay Prakash D. Mehta v. Collector of Customs², wherein it was observed that the right of appeal is neither an absolute right nor an essential ingredient of natural justice, and being statutory in nature, it can be circumscribed by conditions in its grant. The consistent judicial view, as reflected in Gujarat Agro Industries Co. Ltd. v. Municipal Corporation of Ahmedabad³ and Har Devi Asnani v. State of Rajasthan⁴, is that such conditions are mandatory, and non-compliance renders the appeal not maintainable. In M/s Tecnimont Pvt. Ltd. v. State of Punjab⁵, the Court further emphasized that pre-deposit requirements, particularly in fiscal statutes, are designed to safeguard the interests of the successful party and cannot be diluted through interpretative processes.

11. Thus, the requirement of pre-deposit operates as a threshold bar to the very maintainability of an appeal and ensures that the appellate remedy is not invoked merely to obstruct or delay the enforcement of lawful orders.

12. A similar exposition of the law is to be found in Prathama U.P. Gramin Bank v. Union of India⁶, wherein, upon a comprehensive survey of precedents, it was held that the right to appeal being a creature of statute can be qualified by imposing a condition of pre-deposit, and where such requirement is couched in mandatory terms, the appellate authority is left with no discretion to entertain an appeal in the absence of compliance. It was further held that such a condition does not render the remedy illusory but merely regulates its exercise and ensures that the statutory right is not abused to the prejudice of the party in whose favour the order has been passed.

13. The nature and effect of a proviso in a statutory provision is also well settled. Ordinarily, a proviso is engrafted to qualify, carve out an exception to, or impose a condition upon the main enactment, which but for the proviso would have operated in a wider field. As explained in authoritative precedents including S. Sundaram Pillai v. V.R. Pattabiraman⁷ and Shah Bhojraj Kuverji Oil Mills v. Subbash Chandra Yograj Sinha⁸, a proviso may, depending upon its language, either qualify the main provision or, in certain cases, assume the character of a substantive enactment imposing an independent condition. Where a proviso is couched in mandatory terms, particularly employing expressions such as "no appeal shall lie unless", it operates as a substantive restriction on the right conferred under the main provision and must be strictly complied with. The proviso to Section 35(1), therefore, is not merely procedural in nature but constitutes a legislative mandate conditioning the very maintainability of the appeal, and must be construed in a manner that furthers its object rather than dilutes its effect.

14. The expression "entire amount payable under the impugned order" is of wide amplitude and admits of no artificial truncation. It cannot be read in a constricted manner so as to confine it merely to the amount quantified up to the date of filing of the appeal. The phrase is to be interpreted contextually and must take its colour from the nature of the liability created by the impugned order.

15. In the present case, the order impugned before the appellate authority is one revising rent, which gives rise to a recurring and continuous liability accruing month after month. Therefore, the "amount payable under the impugned order" would not be a static figure but a dynamic and ongoing obligation.

16. The crucial expression occurring in the proviso is "entire amount payable under the impugned order". The word "entire" cannot be rendered otiose or confined by an artificial limitation. The expression must be construed in a manner that accords with the nature of the liability created by the impugned order. Where the order gives rise to a one-time liability, the computation may not present difficulty; however, where the liability is inherently recurring, as in the case of revised rent payable month to month, the "amount payable" cannot be frozen at a particular point of time, namely the date of filing of the appeal. It represents a continuing obligation which accrues periodically.

17. The interpretation suggested by the petitioner, if accepted, would result in freezing the statutory obligation at the stage of filing of the appeal, thereby enabling the appellant to avoid compliance with the recurring liability during pendency of the appeal. It would result in the landlord being deprived of even 50 percent of the revised rent during pendency of appeal, despite a lawful adjudication in his favour. Such an interpretation would defeat the very purpose of the proviso and render the expression "entire amount payable" redundant in the context of continuing liabilities.

18. The legislative intent underlying the provision is not only to ensure that the appeal is pursued with seriousness but also to safeguard the interest of the party in whose favour the order has been passed, pending adjudication. The rationale underlying such provisions has been emphasized by the Supreme Court in M/s Tecnimont Pvt. Ltd., wherein it has been observed that conditions of pre-deposit are intended to strike a balance between the right of appeal and the need to protect the successful party.

19. At this juncture, it would be apposite to note that provisions requiring pre-deposit as a condition for maintaining an appeal are not unknown to statutory jurisprudence. Similar stipulations are found in fiscal statutes as well as rent control legislations. The consistent judicial approach in interpreting such provisions has been that they are mandatory in nature and are intended to balance the right of appeal with the need to secure the decretal or adjudicated amount.

20. In the context of fiscal statutes, courts have repeatedly held that pre-deposit requirements are conditions attached to the statutory right of appeal and must be strictly complied with. Such provisions are intended to discourage frivolous challenges and to protect the interest of the successful party pending adjudication. Likewise, under rent control legislations, provisions requiring deposit of rent during pendency of proceedings have been interpreted to impose a continuing obligation upon the tenant, particularly where the liability is recurring. The rationale underlying such interpretation is that a tenant, while availing the benefit of stay or pendency of proceedings, cannot be permitted to withhold payment of rent, thereby causing undue prejudice to the landlord.

21. Viewed in this backdrop, the proviso to Section 35(1) must be construed in a manner that advances the legislative intent and preserves the balance between the rights of the parties. The condition of pre-deposit, though coming into operation at the stage of filing of the appeal, necessarily extends to ensuring continued compliance in respect of liabilities that accrue during pendency of the appeal. The statutory requirement of pre-deposit is not exhausted upon a one-time deposit made at the time of filing but subsists so long as the liability under the impugned order continues to operate. Any other interpretation would not only defeat the statutory mandate but would also lead to manifest inequity.

22. Rent law jurisprudence consistently recognizes that rent is a recurring obligation, and a tenant cannot retain possession while withholding payment. The principle that a litigant cannot enjoy the benefit of pendency of proceedings while avoiding corresponding obligations is well entrenched.

23. From the foregoing discussion, the following principles emerge:

23.1 Pre-deposit under the proviso to Section 35(1) of the U.P. Act No. 16 of 2021 is mandatory in nature and operates as a condition precedent to the very maintainability of an appeal; the right of appeal being statutory, its exercise remains subject to strict compliance with such condition.

23.2 The expression "entire amount payable under the impugned order" is of wide amplitude and must receive a purposive construction; it is not to be confined to the amount quantified as on the date of institution of the appeal, but extends to the whole liability arising from the impugned order in its true character.

23.3 Where the impugned order gives rise to a recurring or continuing liability, including but not limited to payment of revised rent on a monthly or periodic basis, the statutory requirement of deposit necessarily takes within its fold such continuing accruals, and cannot be restricted to a one-time computation.

23.4 The obligation of pre-deposit under the proviso, in cases involving recurring or continuing liability, is not exhausted by the initial deposit made at the time of filing of the appeal; it remains a subsisting and dynamic requirement that endures so long as the liability under the impugned order continues to accrue during the pendency of the appeal.

23.5 Any interpretation, in the context of such recurring liability, which confines the deposit to the amount due as on the date of filing would render the expression "entire amount payable" otiose and defeat the legislative intent of securing the beneficiary of the impugned order against non-payment during the pendency of appellate proceedings.

23.6 The object underlying the proviso is twofold, namely, to ensure that the remedy of appeal is invoked with due seriousness and to safeguard the interest of the party in whose favour the order has been passed; the provision, therefore, embodies a legislative balance between the right of appeal and the obligation to secure compliance.

23.7 The appellate authority, while entertaining an appeal, is empowered to issue appropriate directions to ensure continued compliance with the statutory requirement of deposit, including directions for periodic deposit in cases of recurring liability, so as to effectuate the mandate of the proviso.

23.8 A direction requiring deposit of fifty percent of the recurring liability during pendency of the appeal is neither extraneous to the statutory scheme nor an imposition of an additional condition, but is in furtherance of and incidental to the enforcement of the statutory requirement itself.

23.9 Such a direction does not amount to execution of the impugned order, inasmuch as it does not compel full compliance therewith, but only mandates partial deposit in terms of the statute, and operates as a regulatory measure governing the continuation of the appeal and the grant of interim protection.

23.10 The grant of interim protection in appeal is inherently conditional and can be validly made subject to compliance with the requirement of continued deposit, the same constituting a balanced and equitable arrangement between the parties.

23.11 Non-compliance with the requirement of continued deposit, in cases of recurring liability, would disentitle the appellant from claiming equitable relief and may legitimately invite consequences, including vacating of interim protection or dismissal of the appeal in accordance with law.

23.12 The proviso to Section 35(1) must be construed in a manner that advances the object of the enactment, prevents abuse of the appellate process, and ensures that a litigant does not retain the benefit of possession or pendency of proceedings without discharging the corresponding statutory obligation, even if to a limited extent.

23.13. The statutory mandate of pre-deposit under Section 35(1), in its application to recurring liabilities, is continuous in operation and enforceable throughout the pendency of the appeal, and any direction issued by the appellate authority to secure such compliance is legally sustainable and within jurisdiction.

24. The direction issued by the Rent Tribunal requiring the appellant to deposit 50 percent of the revised rent on a monthly basis is, therefore, not an additional or extraneous condition, but a logical extension of the statutory mandate contained in the proviso to Section 35(1). It is in consonance with the statutory scheme and an operational mechanism to ensure continued compliance with the condition precedent embodied in the proviso to Section 35(1).

25. The contention that such a direction amounts to execution of the impugned order is misconceived. The Tribunal has not directed payment of the entire revised rent but only 50 percent thereof, strictly in conformity with the statutory requirement. The grant of interim protection is conditional upon such compliance and is in the nature of an equitable arrangement to balance competing interests.

26. The supervisory jurisdiction of this Court under Article 227 of the Constitution of India is confined to cases of patent illegality, perversity, or jurisdictional error. The impugned order does not suffer from any such infirmity. On the contrary, it reflects a correct and purposive construction of the statutory provision and a balanced exercise of jurisdiction.

27. The petition lacks merit and is, accordingly, dismissed.

Issues for Consideration

- (i) Whether an arbitral award passed against a Special Purpose Vehicle (SPV) can be executed against its constituent shareholders who were neither signatories to the arbitration agreement nor parties to the arbitral proceedings?
- (ii) Whether, in execution proceedings under Section 36 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 read with Order XXI Rule 11 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, the executing Court is competent to implead persons other than the judgment-debtor and enforce the arbitral award against them?
- (iii) Whether the expression "persons claiming under them" occurring in Section 35 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 permits enforcement of an arbitral award against non-signatories by invoking the doctrines of alter ego, lifting of the corporate veil or group of companies?
- (iv) Whether, in the facts of the case, the constituent companies of the SPV could be treated as persons claiming under the award-debtor so as to render them liable for satisfaction of the arbitral awards?

Headnotes

Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 — Sections 35 and 36 — Execution of arbitral award — Enforcement against non-signatories — Scope of expression "persons claiming under them".

HELD: Section 35 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 gives finality and binding effect to an arbitral award not only against the parties to the arbitration agreement but also against persons claiming under them. The expression is of wider import than the expression "party" defined under Section 2(h) of the Act and enables enforcement of an award against a person whose legal capacity or position is derived from, and is identical with, that of a party to the arbitral proceedings. Mere absence from the arbitral proceedings is not decisive if the statutory test embodied in Section 35 is otherwise satisfied. [Paras 57 to 59]

Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 — Sections 35 and 36 — Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 — Order XXI Rule 11 — Execution proceedings — Impleadment of persons against whom execution is sought.

HELD: By virtue of Section 36 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996, an arbitral award is enforceable in the same manner as a decree of a civil court. Order XXI Rule 11 CPC expressly contemplates disclosure of the name of the person against whom execution is sought. Accordingly, where the decree-holder establishes that a person is liable under Section 35 of the Act as one claiming under the award-debtor, the executing court is not denuded of jurisdiction to examine such plea merely because that person was not formally arrayed before the arbitral tribunal. [Paras 53 to 58]

Company Law — Separate corporate personality — Alter ego — Lifting of corporate veil — General principle.

HELD: The doctrine of separate corporate personality remains the fundamental rule and the liabilities of a company cannot ordinarily be fastened upon its shareholders or constituent companies. However, the corporate veil may be lifted in exceptional situations recognised by law, including where the company is a mere façade, cloak or alter ego, or where justice so requires having regard to the statutory scheme, the realities of the commercial arrangement and the conduct of the parties. The applicability of the doctrine depends upon the facts of each case. [Paras 55 to 59]

Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 — Section 35 — Domestic arbitral award — Binding effect — "Persons claiming under them" — Scope.

HELD: The expression "persons claiming under them" occurring in Section 35 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 is wider than the expression "party" defined under Section 2(h) of the Act. The provision extends the binding effect of a domestic arbitral award not only to the parties to the arbitration agreement but also to persons whose legal capacity or position is derived from, and is the same as, that of a party. Whether a non-signatory falls within the ambit of Section 35 depends upon the facts of each case and the source from which such person derives its rights and obligations. Mere non-participation in the arbitral proceedings is not conclusive of the issue. [Paras 57 to 59]

Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 — Sections 35 and 36 — Execution of arbitral award — Non-signatories — Special Purpose Vehicle (SPV) — Alter ego — Lifting of corporate veil.

HELD: Where the materials on record establish that the Special Purpose Vehicle (SPV) was incorporated exclusively to implement the project allotted to its constituent companies; had no independent business or commercial existence; its affairs, management and finances were completely controlled by the constituent companies; and the constituent companies themselves acknowledged liability arising out of the arbitral awards in their financial statements, the Commercial Court was justified in holding that the constituent companies answered the description of persons claiming under the award-debtor within the meaning of Section 35 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996. In such exceptional circumstances, invocation of the doctrine of alter ego and lifting of the corporate veil to enforce the arbitral awards against the constituent companies did not amount to travelling beyond the arbitral awards. [Paras 60 to 84]

Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 — Section 35 — Non-signatory — Post-award stage — Distinction between reference to arbitration and enforcement of award.

HELD: The principles governing impleadment of a non-signatory at the stage of reference to arbitration are distinct from those governing enforcement of an arbitral award. While questions concerning existence of an arbitration agreement arise at the pre-reference stage, Section 35 specifically governs the binding effect of a domestic arbitral award after its pronouncement. Consequently, precedents dealing with appointment of arbitrators or reference of disputes to arbitration cannot be mechanically applied while considering enforcement of an award against a person claiming under a party. [Paras 57 to 74]

Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 — Sections 35 and 36 — Execution of arbitral award — Executing Court — Jurisdiction.

HELD: The executing court does not travel beyond the arbitral award merely because it examines whether a person sought to be proceeded against falls within the expression "persons claiming under" the judgment-debtor under Section 35 of the Act. Such enquiry is incidental to enforcement of the award and does not amount to modification or enlargement of the arbitral award. [Paras 53 to 74]

Constitution of India — Article 227 — Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 — Sections 35 and 36 — Supervisory jurisdiction — Interference with execution orders.

HELD: The jurisdiction of the High Court under Article 227 of the Constitution is supervisory and not appellate. Where the Commercial Court has correctly appreciated the statutory scheme under Sections 35 and 36 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996, examined the material placed before it, and recorded a reasoned finding that the constituent companies of the Special Purpose Vehicle (SPV) were liable as persons claiming under the award-debtor, no patent illegality, jurisdictional error or perversity warranting interference under Article 227 is made out. [Paras 75 to 84]

Both petitions dismissed. Orders dated 31.07.2025 and 29.08.2025 passed by the Commercial Court-I, Lucknow in Execution Case Nos. 277 of 2021 and 383 of 2023 upheld. (E-14)

1. Writ Petition being Matters Under Article 227 No.6089 of 2025 has been filed by the petitioners challenging the order dated 29.08.2025 passed by learned Commercial Court □ I, Lucknow in Execution Case No.383 of 2023 (M/s Adani Enterprises v. UCM Coal Company and Ors.) whereby objections filed by the petitioners have been rejected in respect of the execution sought by respondent no.1 for execution of the final arbitral award dated 20.11.2018.

Writ Petition being Matters Under Article 227 No.5333 of 2025 has been filed by the petitioners against the order dated 31.07.2025 passed by learned Commercial Court □ I, Lucknow in Execution Case No.277 of 2021 (M/s Adani Enterprises v. UCM Coal Company and Ors.) whereby the objections of the petitioners were dismissed. The said execution proceedings were initiated by respondent no.1 for execution of the interim award dated 31.01.2017.

2. As the facts and issues are same and the parties are also same, both the petitions are being decided together by this common judgment.

3. For the sake of brevity, facts of Writ Petition being Matters Under Article 227 No.6089 of 2025 are being recorded for deciding the matters.

FACTS OF THE CASE :

4. Ministry of Coal invited bids for allocation of coal mines and petitioner nos.1, 2 & 3 being desirous of participating applied and were allocated coal mines at Chandipada □ I and Chendipada □ II coal blocks at Odisha vide allocation dated 25.07.2007 (Annexure □ 2). In terms of the allocation letter, the allottees were entitled to float a company for excavation and development of the coal block and in pursuance to the said provision, the petitioner nos.1, 2 & 3 formed a company known as UCM Coal Company Ltd. (hereinafter referred to as □SPV□). The petitioner nos.1, 2 & 3 were the shareholders in the percentage in which they were allotted the coal blocks by the Ministry of Coal. Copy of the Articles of Association of the SPV are on record as Annexure □ 3. It also bears from record that a share holder agreement was executed inter se in between petitioner nos.1, 2 & 3 on 11.11.2008 (Annexure □ 4) which specified the manner in which a company (SPV) would be incorporated.

5. The SPV □ respondent no.2 herein □ floated a request for proposal on 27.09.2009 through an international competitive bidding for selection of suitable mine operator for the coal mines located at Chendipada I and II. Respondent No.1 was desirous of obtaining the contract and submitted its bid and was selected as successful for which a Letter of Award dated 27.10.2010 was issued by the SPV to respondent no.1 (Annexure □ 5). Subsequently, a mining contract dated 05.02.2011 was also entered into inter se between respondent no.1 and respondent no.2 (Annexure □ 6). The said agreement also contained an arbitration clause.

6. It is claimed that after the issuance of Letter of Award several work contracts and sub-contracts were issued by respondent no.1 which according to the petitioners, were in violation of the agreement.

7. It is on record that subsequently the Hon□ble Supreme Court while hearing the matters with regard to allegations of improper allocation of coal mines and ultimately the Hon□ble Supreme Court in the case of Manohar Lal Sharma v. The Principal Secretary & Ors.; Writ Petition (Criminal) No.120 of 2012 set aside the entire coal block allotments and vide its judgment dated 24.09.2014 entire 204 coal blocks were de-allocated. After the cancellation of the coal blocks, mining contract dated 05.02.2011 became impossible to perform and respondent no.1 raised claims through letter/notice dated 28.02.2015 for restitution of the expenses and cost incurred by them towards performance of the obligations under the contract. The said letter/notice dated 28.02.2015 is on record as Annexure □ 7.

8. In view of the dispute arising inter se in between respondent no.1 and respondent no.2, the same was referred to the Arbitral Tribunal comprising of three arbitrators who entered into the reference of the dispute in between respondent no.1 and respondent no.2. Before the Arbitral Tribunal, respondent no.1 moved an application for interim award for payment of Rs.73.94 crores which was granted in favour of respondent no.1 against respondent no.2 on 31.01.2017. Subsequently, the Arbitral Tribunal proceeded and ultimately a final award came to be passed on 20.11.2018 in favour of respondent no.1 against respondent no.2. The interim award and the final award are contained in Annexures □ 8 & 9. The final award dated 20.11.2018 was challenged before the Commercial Court under Section 34 of Arbitration and Conciliation Act (hereinafter referred to as □the Act□) which was dismissed on 31.03.2023. The said order of dismissal came to be challenged before the High Court under Section 37 of the Act in an appeal being Appeal Under Section 37 of Arbitration and Conciliation Act 1996 No. - 52 of 2023. Subsequently, it bears from record that the said appeal also came to be dismissed on 23.09.2025 and SLP preferred by respondent no.2 was dismissed on 19.01.2026.

9. It also bears from record that the interim award passed in favour of respondent no.1 on 31.01.2017 was never challenged by respondent no.2 through separate objections under Section 34 and in fact, a partial payment out of the said amount awarded has also been paid by respondent no.2 in the execution proceedings. Respondent no.1 ultimately preferred an execution of the interim award dated 31.01.2017 through an application filed under Order XXI Rule 11 read with Section 151 of CPC and Section 37 of the Act on 29.09.2021 which was registered as Execution Case No.277 of 2021 before the Commercial Court, Lucknow.

Similarly, respondent no.1 filed a separate execution case being Execution Case No.383 of 2023 seeking execution of the final award dated 20.11.2018. In the said execution cases, apart from respondent no.2, the petitioners who were the constituents of the SPV (respondent no.2) were also arrayed as judgment debtors.

As both the execution cases were being heard together, the petitioners herein filed an application seeking deletion of their names in in Execution Case No.277 of 2021 which came to be rejected on 22.05.2023.

10. The petitioners preferred a writ petition being Matters Under Article 227 No.3254 of 2025 challenging the order dated 22.05.2023 which came to be decided finally on 09.01.2025 whereby the writ Court refused to interfere with the order and gave liberty to the parties to raise all the pleas available to them in the execution proceedings which was directed to be decided in accordance with law.

11. The petitioners herein filed detailed objections in Execution Case No.383 of 2023 which are on record as Annexures □ 13, 14 & 15. The decree holder/respondent no.1 filed its objection to the objections filed by petitioner nos.1, 2 & 3 through replies dated 27.05.2025 (Annexures □ 16 & 17). Learned Commercial Court finally decided the execution case on 29.08.2025 and the objections filed by the petitioners were rejected and orders were passed against the petitioners to satisfy the award. The said order dated 29.08.2025 is under challenge in the present proceedings.

ARGUMENTS :

12. In the backdrop of the facts, in brief as narrated above, Shri K M Nataraj, learned A.S.G. assisted by Shri Pritish Kumar, learned A.A.G., Shri Suyash Manjul, Shri Vibhanshu Srivastava and Shri Sharath Nambiar, learned counsel(s) argued and submitted his written submission in terms of the directions given by this Court.

13. It is argued that the Commercial Court has erred in directing enforcement of the arbitral awards (interim as well as final) against the petitioners, even though the said awards were rendered in proceedings inter se between respondent no.1 and respondent no.2 and the petitioners were not parties. It is argued that it is well settled that an executing Court cannot go behind the decree. The Commercial Court has failed to appreciate the settled principles governing the doctrine of □alter ego□ and □lifting of corporate veil□ as well as limited scope of persons □claiming under a party□ under Section 35 of the Act as well as the parameters for invoking the doctrine of □group of companies□ and has erred in directing the enforcement of the award against the petitioners who were not the parties in the arbitration agreement or the proceedings.

14. It is argued that Section 35 of the Act cannot come to the rescue to bind non-signatories to an arbitration agreement or award by invoking Section 35 of the Act as their scope, foundation and legal tests are different. The alter ego doctrine to lift or pierce the corporation veil can be applied only on satisfying the proof of alter ego. It is argued that respondent no.1 for filing the execution proceedings against the petitioners had argued that petitioner nos.1, 2 & 3 are the promoters and share holders of respondent no.2 □ SPV □ and exercise control over its management and affairs, and were the initial allottees of the coal blocks and the respondent no.2 is a mere creature of these three entities, whereas in the present case, three State owned companies from three different states are the share holders of the company against which the award has been passed, as such, there could be no alter ego at all.

15. It is argued that only when the company is a facade, sham or instrumentality of another person or entity, the Court can treat them as one of the same legal personality.

16. It is argued that the doctrine of group of companies is based on the principle that a non signatory company within the same corporate group may be bound by an arbitration agreement if it was intended to be part of the transaction which depends on various factors such as common intention of the parties to bind the group entities, direct participation of the non signatory in the negotiation, performance or termination of the contract.

17. It is argued that Section 35 of the Act specifies that the award shall be binding on the parties and the persons claiming under them. The same embodies a statutory concept rather than a judicial doctrine whereby the binding effect of an arbitral award may be extended to persons who derive successor or derivative rights from a party to the arbitration.

18. It is argued that before the executing Court, respondent no.1 confined his pleadings only to the invocation of doctrine of alter ego without there being any pleadings of the foundational facts and without there being any pleadings of fraud, sham and misuse of the corporate form which are essential for lifting the corporate veil.

19. It is argued that the execution proceedings are confined to decree holder and the judgment debtor, and the executing Court cannot widen the scope of decree by impleading strangers or third parties who are neither the parties to the suit nor bound by the decree and the impleadment of the third part would amount to granting relief not contemplated by the decree. The executing Court cannot travel beyond the terms and scope of the decree. The attempt to implead third party who are neither parties to a suit or bound by the decree is impermissible in law and amounts to enlarging or modifying the decree.

20. To support the argument that the executing Court is bound by the decree and cannot go beyond it, reliance is placed upon judgment of the following judgments:

Topanmal Chhotmal v. Kundomal Gangaram; AIR 1960 SC 388;

Meenakshi Sadana v. ECGC Limited; (2018) 7 SCC 479;

Sanwarlal Agarwal v. Ashok Kumar; (2023) 7 SCC 307;

Dhanush Vir v. Dr. Ila Sharma; 2024 SCC OnLine All 3693;

V.K. Uppal v. Akshay International Pvt.; 2010 SCC OnLine Del 538;

Anirban Roy and Anr. v. Ram Kishna Gupta; 2017 SCC OnLine Delhi 12867

21. It is argued that the company is separate and distinct legal entity from its shareholders. It is argued that the shareholders cannot be treated as company and vice versa, and shareholders cannot be proceeded against for the liabilities of the company, except in situations recognized by law, and thus, the properties and liabilities of the company are its own and not that of the shareholders even if the shareholders hold majority of the shareholding. For the said proposition, reliance is placed upon the following judgments:

Electronics Corpn. of India Ltd. v. Secy., Revenue Deptt. Govt. of A.P.; (1999) 4 SCC 458

Meekin Transmission Ltd. v. State of U.P.; 2008 SCC OnLine All 161

22. In support of the submission that doctrine of alter ego and lifting of the veil is permissible only in exceptional circumstances and not as a rule, reliance is placed upon the following judgments:

Ansal Crown Heights v. M/s Ansal Crown Infrabuild; 2026 INSC 51

Rakesh Mahajan v. State of U.P.; 2019 SCC OnLine All 4766

Balwant Rai Saluja v. AIR India Limited; (2014) 9 SCC 407

Ajay Gupta v. Amit Sales; 2025 SCC OnLine Del 4703

Sudhir Gopal v. IGNO; 2017 SCC OnLine Del 8345

Cox and Kings Ltd. v. SAP India Private Limited and Anr.; (2024) 4 SCC 1

23. It is argued that the concept of Group of Companies doctrine cannot be invoked at the execution stage. The said doctrine has no applicability in the present case as petitioners are separate and independent corporate entities and do not form part of the single economic unit or group structure. There is no common controlling entity having pervasive control over the day to day affairs of the petitioners companies. It is also argued that in the absence of the same, the attempt to invoke Group of Companies doctrine at the execution stage is impermissible. In support of the same, reliance has been placed on the following judgments:

Cox & Kings Ltd. v. SAP India Private Limited and Anr.; (2024) 4 SCC 1

Cheran Properties Limited v. Kasturi & Sons; (2018) 16 SCC 413

24. It is argued that the expression "claiming under" used in Section 35 of the Act is confined to persons who derive their legal rights or liabilities from arbitration agreement or award and the said expression cannot be expanded to include independent third parties or group companies merely on the basis of corporate association and for impleading a party invoking Section 35 it is essential that the entity must derive its rights and obligation from the party itself.

It is argued that no foundational facts were pleaded before the executing Court to demonstrate as to how the petitioners could be treated as "persons claiming under" under Section 35 of the Act. To support his argument, reliance is placed upon the following judgments:

Cox & Kings Ltd. v. SAP India Private Limited and Anr.; (2024) 4 SCC 1

Cheran Properties Limited v. Kasturi & Sons; (2018) 16 SCC 413

25. During the course of the argument, although not forming a part of the written arguments, an attempt was made to argue that the execution of the award was barred by the provisions of the Coal Mines (Special Provisions) Act, 2015, however, as no pleadings were existing, the said argument was not pressed very fairly by learned A.S.G. and thus, did not even form a part of the written arguments.

26. Shri Vikram Nankani, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Shri Pranjal Krishna, Shri Abhishek Dwivedi and Shri Sumeet Nankani, learned counsel for respondents extensively drew my attention to the initial bids by petitioner nos.1, 2 & 3 and the events leading to allocation of coal blocks.

27. It is argued that the coal blocks were jointly allocated to petitioner nos.1, 2 & 3 who were required to carry out the mining activity and were solely to be used for the benefit of power stations owned by petitioner nos.1, 2 & 3 only. Mining leases were to be executed by petitioner nos.1, 2 & 3 and the bank guarantees were also submitted by them. It is argued that respondent no.2 was only an SPV created by petitioner nos.1, 2 & 3 for sole purpose of exploiting the coal blocks through a shareholders agreement for holding the shares in the ratio of 50%, 31.47% and 18.53% respectively by petitioner nos.1, 2 & 3.

28. It is also argued that all the Directors were to be appointed by the petitioners and in fact, the Managing Director of petitioner no.2 is the Chairman of the Board of respondent no.2 and Managing Director of petitioner no.1 is the Managing Director of respondent no.2. It is argued that respondent no.2 had no other business except the coal blocks which was allotted to petitioner nos.1, 2 & 3 and its incorporation and end were subject to the sole business of exploiting the coal blocks to be availed by the petitioners only.

29. It is stated that the Company Secretary of the petitioners and respondent no.2 was the same and the Letter of Award was marked to the petitioner nos.1, 2 & 3 which is not a common practice. It is stated that the mining contract was signed on all pages by petitioner nos.1, 2 & 3 in their individual capacities as mine owners. The Directors were to be appointed from petitioner nos.1, 2 & 3 and the resources were to be used by petitioner nos.1, 2 & 3 only.

30. It is stated that respondent no.2 has no assets, resources or business of its own and survives and operates solely through the financial infusions and equity contributions made by petitioner nos.1, 2 & 3, and in fact the cost of arbitration was also borne by petitioner nos.1, 2 & 3.

31. My attention is also drawn to the financial statement wherein the liability arising out of award are shown as contingent liability in proportion to its shareholding. My attention is also drawn to the fact that in respect of the petitioner no.3 the auditor had raised certain objections in respect of contingent liability shown in the balance sheet by them which was clarified subsequently and accepted.

32. It is argued that in respect of petitioner no.1 in the financial statement for the year 2021 □ 22, a provision was made that all the three will continue their share in the ratio as agreed for satisfying the awards in respect of the interim award made. It is argued that in the financial statement of petitioner no.1 it has been stated that once the coal blocks have been satisfied, company's winding up proceedings will begin.

33. It is argued that the Company Secretary of petitioner no.1 and respondent no.2 are the same and operate from the same office, reflecting the clear control over the operations and finances by petitioner no.1 over respondent no.2 and even the present petition, has been signed by the same Company Secretary.

34. It is further argued that this Court had formulated four questions of law vide its order dated 24.09.2025 in writ petition being Mattes Under Article 227 No.5333 of 2025 to be decided, however, as the issues are identical, the same are being answered collectively.

35. It is argued that the arbitral award can be executed between a party which is not party to the arbitral proceeding and the executing Court has the power to lift the corporate veil by execution of an award against non-parties. As respondent no.2 □ the SPV □ is nothing but an alter ego of the petitioners which is recognized both under Section 35 of the Act as well as Order XXI Rule 11 and Order XXI Rule 41 of CPC. Reliance is placed upon the judgment of the Cheran Properties Ltd. v. Kasturi & Sons; (2018) 16 SCC 413.

36. It is argued that in terms of the mandate of Order XXI Rule 11 of CPC, there is a provision for including the name of the persons against whom the execution of the decree is sought and in terms of the mandate of Order XXI Rule 41 of CPC, a decree holder has a right to apply for examination of not only the judgment debtor but also any other person to ascertain whether the judgment debtor has means to satisfy the decree.

37. It is also argued that under the Act, the binding nature of the domestic arbitral award differs from that of a foreign arbitral award. While the former is governed by Part I of the said Act, latter is governed by Part II. Section 35 of the Act falls under Part I, which is reproduced in the later part of the judgment.

38. It is argued that language of Section 35 differs from Section 46 which falls under Part II and reads as under:

“46. When foreign award binding-Any foreign award which would be enforceable under this Chapter shall be treated as binding for all purposes on the persons as between whom it was made, and may accordingly be relied on by any of those persons by way of defence, set off or otherwise in any legal proceedings in India and any references in this Chapter to enforcing a foreign award shall be construed as including references to relying on an award.”

39. In the light of the said, it is argued that while a foreign award under Section 46 of the Act only binds the parties to the arbitral proceedings, the domestic award issued under Part I of the Act not only binds the parties to the arbitral proceedings but also the persons claiming under them.

40. It is argued that in view thereof, reliance of the petitioner, during argument, on the judgment of Mitsui OSK Lines Ltd. (Japan) v. Orient Ship Agency Pvt. Ltd. & Anr.; 2020 SCC OnLine Bom 217 is wholly misplaced as the same arose in respect of a foreign award governed by Section 46 of the Act and not Section 35.

41. Learned counsel for the respondents places reliance on the judgment of the Supreme Court in respect of Section 35 in the case of Cheran Properties Ltd. (supra) wherein the following was recorded:

29. The decision in Indowind [Indowind Energy Ltd. v. Wescare (India) Ltd., (2010) 5 SCC 306 : (2010) 2 SCC (Civ) 397] arose from an application under Section 11 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996. Indowind was not a signatory to the contract and was held not to be a party to the agreement to refer disputes to arbitration. Indowind [Indowind Energy Ltd. v. Wescare (India) Ltd., (2010) 5 SCC 306 : (2010) 2 SCC (Civ) 397] held that an application under Section 11 was not maintainable. The present case does not envisage a situation of the kind which prevailed before this Court in Indowind [Indowind Energy Ltd. v. Wescare (India) Ltd., (2010) 5 SCC 306 : (2010) 2 SCC (Civ) 397]. The present case relates to a post award situation. The enforcement of the arbitral award has been sought against the appellant on the basis that it claims under KCP and is bound by the award. Section 35 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 postulates that an arbitral award shall be final and binding on the parties and persons claiming under them respectively (emphasis supplied). The expression claiming under, in its ordinary meaning, directs attention to the source of the right. The expression includes cases of devolution and assignment of interest (Advanced Law Lexicon by P. Ramanatha Aiyar [3rd Edn., Vol. I, p. 818.]). The expression persons claiming under them in Section 35 widens the net of those whom the arbitral award binds. It does so by reaching out not only to the parties but to those who claim under them, as well. The expression persons claiming under them is a legislative recognition of the doctrine that besides the parties, an arbitral award binds every person whose capacity or position is derived from and is the same as a party to the proceedings. Having derived its capacity from a party and being in the same position as a party to the proceedings binds a person who claims under it. The issue in every such a case is whether the person against whom the arbitral award is sought to be enforced is one who claims under a party to the agreement.

31. The submission which was urged on behalf of the appellant, proceeds on the basis that since the appellant was not impleaded as a party to the arbitral proceedings, proceedings for the enforcement of the award will not lie against it. This line of submissions clearly misses the central facet of Section 35, which is that a person who claims under a party is bound by the award. The fact that the appellant was not a party to the arbitral proceedings will not conclude the question as to whether the award can be enforced against it on the ground that it claims under a party. Essentially, the Court is called upon to consider whether the test embodied in Section 35 is fulfilled in the present case, so as to bind the appellant.

42. Reliance is also placed upon the judgment of the Division Bench of the Bombay High Court in the case of Bhatia Industries & Infrastructure Limited v. Asian Natural Resources (India) Pvt. Ltd. & Ors.; 2016 SCC OnLine Bom 10695 to argue that the corporate veil can be pierced in execution proceedings also in situations where a view is formed that the company is a creature of the group and the mask which is held before its face is an attempt to avoid recognition by the eye of equity or is a mere cloak or sham and in truth the business was being carried on by one person and not by the company as a separate entity.

It is argued that the judgment of the Bhatia Industries (supra) was not interfered in the SLP, although, in the order passed by the Hon^{ble} Supreme Court it was recorded that the question of law was kept open.

43. Reliance is also placed upon judgment of the Calcutta High Court in the case of M/s Rana Chairs v. Director General (Town Planning) K.M.C. & Anr.; 2022 SCC OnLine Cal 3355 wherein the application for impleadment of the person as judgment debtor was allowed. Relevant paragraph of the said judgment is reproduced herein below:

“12. Filing an appeal by the Kolkata Municipal Corporation to set aside the ex-parte decree on the grounds whatsoever shows that though Kolkata Municipal Corporation was not eo nomine party but interested in such right, that means the other persons i.e. Kolkata Municipal Corporation and the Commissioner of Kolkata Municipal Corporation must come under the same title as those represented by names. The reason is that, if we read the provisions of Code of Civil Procedure in a technical or a restricted sense then the difficulty would be that the persons who are really entitled to the benefits of a decree or persons who are really burdened by a decree would escape the benefit or a liability under the decree and, therefore, the decree would be in-fructuous.”

44. It is reiterated by learned counsel for the respondents that from the Memorandum of Association of respondent no.2 it is clear that the same was incorporated as a vehicle for the purpose of exploiting coal for the power plant owned by the petitioners, and for their benefits, rights and entitlements and respondent no.2 has no independent business or existence of its own. The main object of the company □ respondent no.2 □ as per their Memorandum of Association is as under:

“A. THE MAIN OBJECTS TO BE PURSUED BY THE COMPANY ON ITS INCORPORATION ARE:-

1. The Company shall be primarily in the business of implementing the joint-venture project between UPRVUNL □ MAHAGENCO □ CMDC □ for the purpose of exploitation and share the output from the blocks of coal mines allotted by the Government of India, in a manner that is conducive, for the captive consumption of the joint venture partners.”

45. It is once again reiterated that as per the Shareholders□ Agreement of respondent no.2 □ the SPV □ the petitioners are recognized as both the promoters as well as the only shareholders of respondent no.2. It is argued that the SPV□s Board comprises only the officials from the petitioners □ the Chairman being the Managing Director of petitioner no.2. The SPV is intrinsically and entirely managed, controlled and operated by the petitioners. The petitioners were also actively involved in the arbitral proceedings. It is again reiterated that the petitioners are signatories to the Mining Contract and they have signed on each and every page thereof including the pages containing the arbitration clause.

46. My attention is also drawn to the judgment of the Delhi High Court in the case of Shapoorji Pallonji and Co. Pvt. Ltd. v. Rattan India Power Ltd.; 2021 SCC OnLine Del 3688, which observed as under:

“29. Gary B. Born in his book, International Commercial Arbitration, Volume I, (Third Edition), p. 1546, had explained the concept of alter ego as under:

□ Definitions of □ alter ego □ vary materially in different legal systems, and are applied in a number of different contexts. Nonetheless, the essential theory of the □ alter ego □ doctrine in most jurisdictions is that one party so thoroughly dominates the affairs of another party, and has sufficiently misused such control, that it is appropriate to disregard the two companies' separate legal forms, and to treat them as a single entity. In the context of arbitration agreements, demonstrating an □ alter ego □ relationship under most developed legal systems requires convincing evidence that one entity dominated the day-to-day actions of another and/or that it exercised this power to work fraud or other injustice or inequality on a third party or to evade statutory or other legal obligations.

The □ alter ego □ doctrine differs from principles of agency or implied consent in that the parties' intentions are not decisive; rather, the doctrine rests on overriding considerations of equity and fairness, which mandate disregarding an entity's separate legal identity in specified circumstances.”

47. In short, it is submitted that the most crucial element of the factual matrix available on record is the complete inseparability of respondent no.2 with the petitioners. The shareholding of respondent no.2 is based on the same proportion as per the ratio of coal allocation given in the Letter of Allocation. The entire management of respondent no.2 □ the SPV □ are derived from the petitioners and all the key managerial positions are manned by the persons either working with the petitioners or nominated by them. The entire action on behalf of respondent no.2 and the petitioners have been carried out as a single economic entity.

48. It is argued that the broad parameters for lifting the corporate veil were laid down by a Constitution Bench of the Supreme Court in the case of Life Insurance Corporation of India v. Escorts Ltd.; (1986) 1 SCC 264, which reads as under:

“90. It was submitted that the thirteen Caparo companies were thirteen companies in name only; they were but one and that one was an individual, Mr Swraj Paul. One had only to pierce the corporate veil to discover Mr Swraj Paul lurking behind. It was submitted that thirteen applications were made on behalf of thirteen companies in order to circumvent the scheme which prescribed a ceiling of one per cent on behalf of each non-resident of Indian nationality or origin, or each company 60 per cent of whose shares were owned by non-residents of Indian nationality/origin. Our attention was drawn to the picturesque pronouncement of Lord Denning M.R. in Wallersteiner v. Moir [(1974) 3 All ER 217] and the decisions of this Court in Tata Engineering and Locomotive Co. Ltd. v. State of Bihar [AIR 1965 SC 40 : (1964) 6 SCR 885], CIT v. Sri Meenakshi Mills Ltd. [AIR 1967 SC 819 : (1967) 1 SCR 934 : (1967) 63 ITR 609] and Workmen v. Associated Rubber Industry Ltd. [(1985) 4 SCC 114] While it is firmly established ever since Salomon v. A. Salomon & Co. Ltd. [1897 AC 22] was decided that a company has an independent and legal personality distinct from the individuals who are its members, it has since been held that the corporate veil may be lifted, the corporate personality may be ignored and the individual members recognised for who they are in certain exceptional circumstances Pennington in his Company Law (4th Edn.) states:

“Four inroads have been made by the law on the principle of the separate legal personality of companies. By far the most extensive of these has been made by legislation imposing taxation. The government, naturally enough, does not willingly suffer schemes for the avoidance of taxation which depend for their success on the employment of the principle of separate legal personality, and in fact legislation has gone so far that in certain circumstances taxation can be heavier if companies are employed by the taxpayer in an attempt to minimise his tax liability than if he uses other means to give effect to his wishes. Taxation of companies is a complex subject, and is outside the scope of this book. The reader who wishes to pursue the subject is referred to the many standard text books on corporation tax, income tax, capital gains tax and capital transfer tax.

The other inroads on the principle of separate corporate personality have been made by two sections of the Companies Act, 1948, by judicial disregard of the principle where the protection of public interests is of paramount importance, or where the company has been formed to evade obligations imposed by the law, and by the courts implying in certain cases that a company is an agent or trustee for its members.”

In Palmer's Company Law (23rd Edn.), the present position in England is stated and the occasions when the corporate veil may be lifted have been enumerated and classified into fourteen categories. Similarly in Gower's Company Law (4th Edn.), a chapter is devoted to lifting the veil and the various occasions when that may be done are discussed. In Tata Engineering and Locomotive Co. Ltd. [AIR 1965 SC 40 : (1964) 6 SCR 885] the company wanted the corporate veil to be lifted so as to sustain the maintainability of the petition, filed by the company under Article 32 of the Constitution, by treating it as one filed by the shareholders of the company. The request of the company was turned down on the ground that it was not possible to treat the company as a citizen for the purposes of Article 19. In CIT v. Sri Meenakshi Mills Ltd. [AIR 1967 SC 819 : (1967) 1 SCR 934 : (1967) 63 ITR 609] the corporate veil was lifted and evasion of income tax prevented by paying regard to the economic realities behind the legal facade. In Workmen v. Associated Rubber Industry Ltd. [(1985) 4 SCC 114] resort was had to the principle of lifting the veil to prevent devices to avoid welfare legislation. It was emphasised that regard must be had to substance and not the form of a transaction. Generally and broadly speaking, we may say that the corporate veil may be lifted where a statute itself contemplates lifting the veil, or fraud or improper conduct is intended to be prevented, or a taxing statute or a beneficent statute is sought to be evaded or where associated companies are inextricably connected as to be, in reality, part of one concern. It is neither necessary nor desirable to enumerate the classes of cases where lifting the veil is permissible, since that must necessarily depend on the relevant statutory or other provisions, the object sought to be achieved, the impugned conduct, the involvement of the element of the public interest, the effect on parties who may be affected etc.”

49. Relying on the judgment in Life Insurance Corporation of India (supra), Hon’ble Supreme Court in the case of State of U.P. & Ors. v. Renusagar Power Co. & Ors.; (1988) 4 SCC 59, held as under:

“66. It is high time to reiterate that in the expanding horizon of modern jurisprudence, lifting of corporate veil is permissible. Its frontiers are unlimited. It must, however, depend primarily on the realities of the situation. The aim of the legislation is to do justice to all the parties. The horizon of the doctrine of lifting of corporate veil is expanding. Here, indubitably, we are of the opinion that it is correct that Renusagar was brought into existence by Hindalco in order to fulfil the condition of industrial licence of Hindalco through production of aluminium. It is also manifest from the facts that the model of the setting up of power station through the agency of Renusagar was adopted by Hindalco to avoid complications in case of take over of the power station by the State or the Electricity Board. As the facts make it abundantly clear that all the steps for establishing and expanding the power station were taken by Hindalco, Renusagar is wholly owned subsidiary of Hindalco and is completely controlled by Hindalco. Even the day-to-day affairs of Renusagar are controlled by Hindalco. Renusagar has at no point of time indicated any independent volition. Whenever felt necessary, the State or the Board have themselves lifted the corporate veil and have treated Renusagar and Hindalco as one concern and the generation in Renusagar as the own source of generation of Hindalco. In the impugned order the profits of Renusagar have been treated as the profits of Hindalco.

68. The veil on corporate personality even though not lifted sometimes, is becoming more and more transparent in modern company jurisprudence. The ghost of Salomon case [1897 AC 22] still visits frequently the hounds of Company Law but the veil has been pierced in many cases. Some of these have been noted by Justice P.B. Mukharji in the New Jurisprudence [Tagore Law Lectures, p. 183].”

50. It is also argued that the attempt to argue on the basis of enactment of the Coal Mines Act, 2015 was untenable as the same relate to disputes between the mine developers and the prior allottees of the mine and does not address or govern the dispute inter se in between prior allottees and the subsequent allottees.

51. In the light of the said, it is argued that the petition under Art. 227 of Constitution having limited scope is liable to be dismissed.

DISCUSSION :

52. Considering the submissions made by the parties and recorded above, the undisputed facts are that the three petitioners before this Court had constituted a SPV □ respondent no.2. The SPV had executed the agreement with respondent no.1. The interim and the final awards were passed by arbitral Tribunal which have been affirmed and have attained finality. It is also accepted that petitioner nos.1, 2 & 3 were not party before the arbitral Tribunal and were impleaded for the first time in the execution proceedings.

53. In the light of the said admitted positions, the question that arise for consideration is whether the interim and the final awards passed in between respondent no.1 and respondent no.2 can be executed against petitioner nos.1, 2 & 3 ?

Whether the petitioner nos.1, 2 & 3 could be impleaded as parties in the execution proceedings, they not being a party to the arbitral proceedings, would be governed by Section 36 of the Act which provides that the award can be enforced in accordance with the provisions of Code of Civil Procedure in the same manner as if a decree of the Court ?

54. The right of the decree holder to implead the petitioner nos.1, 2 & 3 flows from Order XXI Rule 11 of CPC. Section 36 of the Act and Order XXI Rule 11 of CPC are quoted herein below:

“11. Oral application. □ (1) Where a decree is for the payment of money the Court may, on the oral application of the decree-holder at the time of the passing of the decree, order immediate execution thereof by the arrest of the judgment-debtor, prior to the preparation of a warrant if he is within the precincts of the Court.

(2) Written application. □ Save as otherwise provided by sub-rule (1), every application for the execution of a decree shall be in writing, signed and verified by the applicant or by some other person proved to the satisfaction of the Court to be acquainted with the facts of the case, and shall contain in a tabular form the following particulars, namely: □

(a) the number of the suit;

(b) the names of the parties;

(c) the date of the decree;

(d) whether any appeal has been preferred from the decree;

(e) whether any, and (if any) what, payment or other adjustment of the matter in controversy has been made between the parties subsequently to the decree;

(f) whether any, and (if any) what, previous applications have been made for the execution of the decree, the dates of such applications and their results;

(g) the amount with interest (if any) due upon the decree, or other relief granted thereby, together with particulars of any cross-decree, whether passed before or after the date of the decree sought to be executed;

(h) the amount of the costs (if any) awarded;

(i) the name of the person against whom execution of the decree is sought; and

(j) the mode in which the assistance of the Court is required whether

(i) by the delivery of any property specifically decreed;

(ii) by the attachment, or by the attachment and sale, or by the sale without attachment, of any property;

(iii) by the arrest and detention in prison of any person;

(iv) by the appointment of a receiver;

(v) otherwise, as the nature of the relief granted may require.

(3) The Court to which an application is made under sub-rule (2) may require the applicant to produce a certified copy of the decree.

XXX XXX XXX

36. Enforcement. □(1) Where the time for making an application to set aside the arbitral award under section 34 has expired, then, subject to the provisions of sub-section (2), such award shall be enforced in accordance with the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 (5 of 1908), in the same manner as if it were a decree of the court.

(2) Where an application to set aside the arbitral award has been filed in the Court under section 34, the filing of such an application shall not by itself render that award unenforceable, unless the Court grants an order of stay of the operation of the said arbitral award in accordance with the provisions of sub-section (3), on a separate application made for that purpose.

(3) Upon filing of an application under sub-section (2) for stay of the operation of the arbitral award, the Court may, subject to such conditions as it may deem fit, grant stay of the operation of such award for reasons to be recorded in writing:

Provided that the Court shall, while considering the application for grant of stay in the case of an arbitral award for payment of money, have due regard to the provisions for grant of stay of a money decree under the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 (5 of 1908).

Provided further that where the Court is satisfied that a Prima facie case is made out that, □

(a) the arbitration agreement or contract which is the basis of the award; or

(b) the making of the award, was induced or effected by fraud or corruption, it shall stay the award unconditionally pending disposal of the challenge under section 34 to the award.

Explanation. □ For the removal of doubts, it is hereby clarified that the above proviso shall apply to all court cases arising out of or in relation to arbitral proceedings, irrespective of whether the arbitral or court proceedings were commenced prior to or after the commencement of the Arbitration and Conciliation (Amendment) Act, 2015.

55. As regards the arguments of the petitioners founded on the cited judgments to argue that the SPV company is a separate juristic personality, independent of its constituent companies and the liabilities of the SPV company cannot be enforced against its shareholders or the Directors, this legal proposition as argued by learned counsel for the petitioners is fairly settled as was decided by the Constitution Bench of the Supreme Court in the case of Cox and Kings Ltd. (supra) wherein under the Heading □E□ of the said judgment, the arguments with regard to separate legal personality of the companies separate from its shareholder and director were considered after analyzing judgments in the cases starting from Aron Salomon (Pauper) v. A. Salomon & Co. Ltd.; 1897 AC 22 (HL) upto the judgment of the Supreme Court in the case of Vodafone International Holdings BV v. Union of India, (2012) 6 SCC 613 : (2012) 3 SCC (Civ) 867. The Supreme Court analyzed and crystallized, after discussing the case-laws with regard to separate legal personality of a company in Para 94, which is as under:

“94. From the above discussion, we can infer that entities within a corporate group have separate legal personality, which cannot be ignored save in exceptional circumstances such as fraud. The distinction between a parent company and its subsidiary is fundamental, and cannot be easily abridged by taking recourse to economic convenience. [Bank of Tokyo Ltd. v. Karoon, 1987 AC 45 : (1986) 3 WLR 414 (CA)] Legally, the rights and liabilities of a parent company cannot be transferred to the subsidiary company, and vice versa, unless, there is a strong legal basis for doing so.”

56. To that extent, there cannot be any dispute with the proposition as argued by learned counsel for the petitioners.

57. In the present case, the issue as arising inter se in between the parties is to be interpreted in the backdrop of mandate of Section 35 of the Act and the definition of □party□ as defined under Section 2(h) of the Act. Section 35 of the Act reads as under:

“35. Finality of arbitral awards. □ Subject to this Part an arbitral award shall be final and binding on the parties and persons claiming under them respectively. ”

Section 2(h) of the Act however, reads as under:

“2. Definitions. - (1) In this Part, unless the context otherwise require, -

(h) “party” means a party to an arbitration agreement.”

58. The issue as to whether a person/entity who is not a party to the arbitration agreement can be proceeded against in terms of the language of Section 35 of the Act which uses the phrase “persons claiming under them”. Section 35 is distinct insofar as the said section binds the party to the agreement and the “person claiming under them”. This aspect was considered in the light of mandate of Section 35 by the Supreme Court in the case of Cheran Properties Ltd. (supra) wherein the Supreme Court observed as under:

“23. As the law has evolved, it has recognised that modern business transactions are often effectuated through multiple layers and agreements. There may be transactions within a group of companies. The circumstances in which they have entered into them may reflect an intention to bind both signatory and non-signatory entities within the same group. In holding a non-signatory bound by an arbitration agreement, the court approaches the matter by attributing to the transactions a meaning consistent with the business sense which was intended to be ascribed to them. Therefore, factors such as the relationship of a non-signatory to a party which is a signatory to the agreement, the commonality of subject-matter and the composite nature of the transaction weigh in the balance. The group of companies doctrine is essentially intended to facilitate the fulfilment of a mutually held intent between the parties, where the circumstances indicate that the intent was to bind both signatories and non-signatories. The effort is to find the true essence of the business arrangement and to unravel from a layered structure of commercial arrangements, an intent to bind someone who is not formally a signatory but has assumed the obligation to be bound by the actions of a signatory.

29. The decision in Indowind [Indowind Energy Ltd. v. Wescare (India) Ltd., (2010) 5 SCC 306 : (2010) 2 SCC (Civ) 397] arose from an application under Section 11 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996. Indowind was not a signatory to the contract and was held not to be a party to the agreement to refer disputes to arbitration. Indowind [Indowind Energy Ltd. v. Wescare (India) Ltd., (2010) 5 SCC 306 : (2010) 2 SCC (Civ) 397] held that an application under Section 11 was not maintainable. The present case does not envisage a situation of the kind which prevailed before this Court in Indowind [Indowind Energy Ltd. v. Wescare (India) Ltd., (2010) 5 SCC 306 : (2010) 2 SCC (Civ) 397]. The present case relates to a post award situation. The enforcement of the arbitral award has been sought against the appellant on the basis that it claims under KCP and is bound by the award. Section 35 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 postulates that an arbitral award “shall be final and binding on the parties and persons claiming under them respectively” (emphasis supplied). The expression “claiming under”, in its ordinary meaning, directs attention to the source of the right. The expression includes cases of devolution and assignment of interest (Advanced Law Lexicon by P. Ramanatha Aiyar [3rd Edn., Vol. I, p. 818.]). The expression “persons claiming under them” in Section 35 widens the net of those whom the arbitral award binds. It does so by reaching out not only to the parties but to those who claim under them, as well. The expression “persons claiming under them is a legislative recognition of the doctrine that besides the parties, an arbitral award binds every person whose capacity or position is derived from and is the same as a party to the proceedings. Having derived its capacity from a party and being in the same position as a party to the proceedings binds a person who claims under it. The issue in every such a case is whether the person against whom the arbitral award is sought to be enforced is one who claims under a party to the agreement.

30. Mr Sibal has sought to make a distinction between the provisions of Section 45 and the unamended Section 8. Section 45, forms a part of Part II dealing with the enforcement of foreign awards to which the New York Convention applies. It contemplates a reference by a judicial authority to arbitration at the request of one of the parties or any person claiming through or under him, where there is an arbitration agreement. The submission of Mr Sibal is that a similar expression any person claiming through or under him has been introduced in the amended provisions of Section 8 (substituted by Act 3 of 2016 with effect from 23-10-2015) but that this expression did not find place in the unamended provision. The submission is a non sequitur. Both Sections 8 and 45 operate in the sphere of the duty of a judicial authority to refer parties to arbitration. In the present case Section 35 is the material provision, which expressly stipulates that an arbitral award is, final and binding not only on the parties but on persons claiming under them.

31. The submission which was urged on behalf of the appellant, proceeds on the basis that since the appellant was not impleaded as a party to the arbitral proceedings, proceedings for the enforcement of the award will not lie against it. This line of submissions clearly misses the central facet of Section 35, which is that a person who claims under a party is bound by the award. The fact that the appellant was not a party to the arbitral proceedings will not conclude the question as to whether the award can be enforced against it on the ground that it claims under a party. Essentially, the Court is called upon to consider whether the test embodied in Section 35 is fulfilled in the present case, so as to bind the appellant.

59. The said principle was further discussed and affirmed in the case of Cox and Kings Limited (supra) in the context of Section 35 in the following paragraphs:

“145. Section 35 of the Arbitration Act provides that an arbitral award shall be final and binding on the parties and persons claiming under them respectively. In Cheran Properties v. Kasturi & Sons Ltd., (2018) 16 SCC 413 : (2019) 1 SCC (Civ) 486, this Court rightly observed that the expression persons claiming under them is a legislative recognition of the doctrine that besides the parties, an arbitral award binds every person whose capacity or position is derived from and is the same as a party to the proceedings. It was further observed that [h]aving derived its capacity from a party and being in the same position as a party to the proceedings binds a person who claims under it. Similarly, Section 73 also provides that a settlement agreement signed by the parties shall be final and binding on the parties and persons claiming under them respectively”

146. Sections 8, 35, and 45 use the phrase parties or any person claiming through or under. The word or is used in Sections 8 and 45 as a disjunctive particle to express an alternative or give a choice between parties or any person claiming through or under.

Consequently, either the party to an arbitration agreement or any person claiming through or under the party can make an application to the judicial authority to refer the dispute to arbitration. It is in the interest of respecting the intention of the parties and promoting commercial efficacy, that the above provisions allow either the party or any person claiming through or under him to refer the disputes to arbitration.

147. On the other hand, Sections 35 and 73 use the phrase "parties and persons claiming under them". The use of the word "and" in Sections 35 and 73 conveys the idea that "parties" is to be added or taken together with the subsequent phrase "any person claiming through or under". The above provisions provide that an arbitration award binds not only the parties but also all such persons who derive their capacity from the party to the arbitration agreement. Again, the foundational basis for this provision is commercial efficacy as it ensures that an arbitral award leads to finality, such that both the parties and all persons claiming through or under them do not re-agitate the claims. Moreover, the use of the word "and" in Sections 35 and 73 leads to an unmistakable conclusion that under the Arbitration Act, the concept of a "party" is distinct and different from the concept of "persons claiming through or under" a party to the arbitration agreement.

60. The other judgments cited by learned counsel for respondent no.1 need not be gone into in view of the clear pronouncements of the Supreme Court on the interpretation of true scope and intent of Section 35 of the Act in the case of Cheran Properties Limited (supra) as affirmed in the case of Cox and Kings Limited (supra).

61. Once Section 35 and the phrase "any person claiming through or under him" has been interpreted by the Supreme Court to hold that the arbitral award binds every person whose capacity or possession is derived from and is the same as party to the proceedings, leaves no room for interpretation that the petitioners would be persons falling within the phrase "any person claiming through or under".

62. In the present case, what emerges from the pleadings is that from the stage of shareholders agreement, all the petitioners and their officers were involved. The SPV was created in terms of the mandate of the Ministry of Coal and all the officers of petitioner nos.1, 2 & 3 were involved from the process of creation of the SPV, which was created for the sole purpose of dealing with the allocated coal. The company was created for the benefit of petitioner nos.1, 2 & 3. The Company Secretaries of petitioner no.1 and respondent no.2 are the same. Respondent no.2 is nothing but a skeletal company drawing all its funds from its three major shareholders namely petitioner nos.1, 2 & 3. In fact, the office bearers of respondent no.2 who are also the office bearers of petitioner nos.1, 2 & 3 participated before the arbitral proceedings and at all stages of their dealing, the same was done by petitioner nos.1, 2 & 3 and their officers for and on behalf of respondent no.2. Also that part of interim award was satisfied by the petitioner by infusing funds. The SPV, respondent no.2, is same as petitioner nos.1, 2 & 3.

63. The argument that petitioner nos.1, 2 & 3 ought to have been made party before the arbitral Tribunal loses significance in view of the mandate of Section 35 which enables execution even against a non party but falling within the expression "persons claiming under them".

CONCLUSION :

64. Thus, the upshot of the reasoning recorded above is that a normal decree passed by a competent Court of law against a company can be executed only against the judgment debtor company and not against its shareholders/directors unless ingredients of lifting the corporate veil is established, however, an award passed under the Arbitration and Conciliation Act can be executed against the □party□ or any □person claiming under them□.

65. Finding that all the material on record clearly suggests that from the initial stage of inception up till the conclusion and in fact till the winding up of respondent no.2, it was the petitioners who would fall within the phrase □persons claiming under them□ as used in Section 35 of the Act, thus, I have no hesitation in holding that the order of execution passed by the Commercial Court does not warrant any interference in exercise of powers under Art. 227 of the Constitution.

66. Both the petitions are accordingly dismissed with direction to the Executing Court to execute the decree with all expedition forthwith.

67. Direction(s) given by the Commercial Court on 29.08.2025 & 31.07.2025 shall be complied with, with all expedition by the petitioners.

68. Before parting with the judgment, I would like to put in word of appreciation for Ms. Rajshree Lakshmi, Research Associate for her dexterity in research and superlative assistance in drafting this judgment.

First Appeal No. 277 of 2026

Issues for Consideration

(i) Whether a plaint seeking declaration that immovable property standing in the name of the mother is HUF property could be rejected under Order VII Rule 11 CPC on the ground that it discloses no cause of action and is barred by limitation?

(ii) Whether, at the stage of deciding an application under Order VII Rule 11 CPC, the Court is required to confine itself to the averments in the plaint and the documents relied upon by the plaintiff?

(iii) Whether a plea that the property was purchased from the nucleus of a Hindu Undivided Family, despite standing in the name of the mother since 1966, disclosed a triable cause of action in the absence of any prima facie material regarding the existence and nucleus of the HUF?

(iv) Whether the plaintiffs, who asserted co-ownership since birth but instituted the suit nearly six decades after the purchase of the property, could avoid the bar of limitation by pleading refusal to share rental income from the year 2022?

Headnotes

Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 — Order VII Rule 11 — Rejection of plaint — Cause of action — Limitation — Scope of enquiry.

HELD: While deciding an application under Order VII Rule 11 CPC, the Court is required to examine the averments contained in the plaint together with the documents relied upon by the plaintiff. The defence set up in the written statement or the documents produced by the defendants cannot ordinarily be looked into. However, if from the plaint itself it is evident that the suit is barred by law or discloses no enforceable cause of action, the plaint is liable to be rejected at the threshold. [Paras 34 to 45]

Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 — Order VII Rule 11(d) — Limitation — Declaration of co-ownership in alleged HUF property — Property purchased in 1966 in mother's name — Suit instituted in 2025 — Rejection of plaint.

HELD: The plaint itself disclosed that the property had been purchased in the exclusive name of defendant no.1 through a registered sale deed dated 11.04.1966 and that the plaintiffs claimed to be co-owners since birth. Having attained majority decades earlier, the plaintiffs could have asserted their alleged rights within the period prescribed by law. Institution of the suit in the year 2025 seeking declaration of co-ownership was ex facie barred by limitation. The plea that the cause of action arose only in September, 2022 on refusal to share rent did not revive or extend the limitation for seeking declaration of title. [Paras 46 to 54]

Hindu Law — Hindu Undivided Family (HUF) — Property standing in name of female member — Burden to establish HUF nucleus — Absence of prima facie material.

HELD: A mere assertion that the consideration for purchase flowed from the nucleus of a Hindu Undivided Family is insufficient. Where the plaint itself failed to disclose any prima facie material regarding the existence of the HUF, its income, or a sufficient ancestral nucleus capable of purchasing the property, and the registered sale deed recorded the mother as absolute purchaser, no enforceable right in favour of the plaintiffs was disclosed. [Paras 46 to 54]

Hindu Succession Act, 1956 — Section 14 — Property purchased in name of Hindu female — Absolute ownership — Effect.

HELD: The registered sale deed conferred title upon defendant no.1 in her individual capacity. In the absence of any prima facie material establishing that the property belonged to a Hindu Undivided Family, defendant no.1 was to be treated as the absolute owner under Section 14 of the Hindu Succession Act, 1956, and the plaintiffs failed to disclose any legally enforceable right to challenge her ownership. [Paras 46 to 54]

Civil Procedure — Cause of action — Artificial pleading to overcome limitation — Rental income dispute.

HELD: The plea that the defendant stopped sharing rental income from September, 2022 did not constitute an independent cause of action for seeking declaration of title where the plaintiffs' own case was that they had been co-owners since birth. In the absence of any documentary material supporting previous sharing of rent or co-ownership, such pleading was merely an attempt to bring an otherwise time-barred suit within limitation and did not create a fresh cause of action. [Paras 52 to 54]

Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 — Order VII Rule 11 — Rejection of plaint — Appellate interference.

HELD: Since the plaint itself disclosed that the plaintiffs had no subsisting cause of action and that the suit seeking declaration was hopelessly barred by limitation, the trial court rightly exercised jurisdiction under Order VII Rule 11 CPC in rejecting the plaint. No interference under Section 96 CPC was warranted. The appeal was accordingly dismissed and the judgment and decree of the trial court affirmed. [Paras 54 to 56]

First Appeal dismissed. Judgment and decree rejecting the plaint under Order VII Rule 11 CPC affirmed. (E-14)

Case Arising From

Judgment and decree dated 10.07.2025 passed by the Additional District Judge, Court No. 11, Agra in Original Suit No. 59 of 2025, Smt. Sunita Gupta and Another v. Smt. Prem Gupta and Others.

Appearance for Parties

For the Petitioner: Sri Ved Prakash Shukla

For the Respondents: Sri Kushagra Vaibhav Singh and Sri Pradeep Kumar Singh

(Delivered by Hon'ble Sandeep Jain, J.)

1. The instant appeal has been filed by the plaintiffs under Section 96 CPC against the impugned judgment and decree dated 10.7.2025 passed by the Additional District Judge, Court no. 11, Agra in O.S.no. 59 of 2025, Smt.Sunita Gupta and another vs. Smt.Prem Gupta and others, whereby the application no. 27-C of defendant no.1 and 2 under Order VII Rule 11 CPC has been allowed and consequently, the plaint has been rejected.

Plaint case

2. The plaintiffs who are the daughter and son of defendant no.1 Smt. Prem Gupta and sibling of defendant no. 2 Smt.Anju Gupta filed O.S. No. 59 of 2025 with the averments that plaintiffs and defendant no.1 and 2 are the members of the HUF who are originally resident of Mahavir Ganj,Aligarh. There was an ancestral house of their grandfather late Babulal Gupta , who was having a business of Aadat. Their father Omprakash Gupta left Aligarh and joined service as Senior Asst. in the office of the Joint Development Commissioner(JDC) Agra much prior to 1955 and thereafter, married defendant no.1 in or about 1955 who was very poor,hand to mouth person and was totally dependent upon their father. It was further submitted that their grandfather Babulal Gupta also winded up his business from Aligarh and distributed the money to their sons.

3. It was further averred that after the marriage of defendant no.1 with their father Omprakash Gupta, their father purchased disputed suit properties, which are mentioned at the foot of the plaint, from the fund of the HUF in the name of his wife defendant no.1 Smt.Prem Gupta, in love and affection and in trust for the benefit of himself and all his family members from Smt.Munni Devi through registered sale deed dated 11.4.1966 which was subsequently registered in the office of sub-registrar Agra on 09.6.1966, hence the property in suit is HUF property, in which the plaintiffs and defendant no.1 and 2 have equal share.

4. It was further averred that at the time of the above sale deed, the plaintiff no.1 was about 3 years old and plaintiff no. 2 was in womb and defendant no. 2 was not in existence. At the time of purchase of property of schedule 'A' it was residential house consisting of 2 rooms with tinshed and lobby on the ground floor. Thereafter, their father raised 3 storeyed building consisting of 17 rooms from the HUF fund.

It was further averred that at the time of purchase of another property bearing Nagar Nigam no. 5/13,was in the nature of plot.Thereafter, their father also raised a residential house on it consisting of 4 rooms on the ground floor and one store,latrine-bathroom on the 1st floor from HUF fund.

5. It was further averred that the defendant no.1 i.e.mother of the plaintiffs is a housewife, having no Stridhan with her and no source of income, all the investment in purchase of the property and raising construction on it was made by their father only from the ancestral nucleus i.e. from the HUF funds.

6. It was further averred that the plaintiff no.1 and defendant no.1 and 2 are residing in house no. 5/13 in 7 rooms and remaining 10 rooms are rented with different tenants, from which defendant no.1 is receiving about ₹ 50,000/- per month as rent on behalf of all the heirs of Late Omprakash Gupta. It was further averred that the plaintiffs and defendants no.1 and 2 are living in house no. 5/13 Madia Katra,Agra since very inception and part of the property in suit is rented,which is realised by defendant no.1 for herself and other co-owners.

7. It was further averred that the marriage of plaintiff no. 2 was solemnised in the year 1986 thereafter, the father of the plaintiffs completed the constructions of the plot no. 5/13-A and since then plaintiff no. 2 is residing in the house with his family.

8. It was further averred that their father Omprakash Gupta being the Karta of HUF realised the rent of 10 rooms from the tenants till his death and after his death, the rent is being realised by the defendant no.1 for herself and for the benefit of the HUF. It was further averred that the plaintiff no.1 and defendant no. 2 are residing in house no. 5/13 Madia Katra, Agra since very inception as co-owner and being the member of the HUF, and have equal share in the properties in suit. It was further averred that all the rent realised by the defendant no.1 was in representative capacity in which plaintiffs have equal share, the defendant no.1 used to give lump-sum amount to the plaintiffs and defendant no. 2 in lieu of their share in rent upto the month of October, 2022 but thereafter, the defendant no.1 failed to give any amount to the plaintiffs and when the plaintiffs demanded their share of rent then the defendant no.1 became furious and told them that the properties are in her name and threatened to dispossess the plaintiffs and has also started to negotiate its sale with different persons. The plaintiffs further asked the defendant no.1 to give the details of the rent since the month of September 2022 to which she refused.

9. It was further averred that on 23.1.2025 the defendant no. 3 Ferhan Khan with 4 other persons contacted the plaintiffs and informed that he is going to purchase the disputed property from defendant no.1 and asked the plaintiffs to vacate the properties and otherwise threatened them with dire consequences. The plaintiffs told the defendant no. 3 that they are the owners in possession of the disputed property jointly with their mother defendant no.1. The plaintiffs immediately on the same day contacted their mother defendant no.1 and enquired about the impending sale to which no satisfactory answer was given by her but later on, the defendant no.1 asked the plaintiffs to leave the house and also threatened that she is the absolute owner and shall sale the disputed properties. The plaintiffs requested their mother not to sell the disputed properties but their mother was adamant to sell it to defendant no. 3 or any other person of her choice.

10. It was further averred that on 24.1.2025 the defendant no. 3 with some person again came to the disputed house of the plaintiffs and threatened them that they will take possession of the disputed properties forcibly after purchasing the properties. The plaintiffs tried to register FIR regarding this incident, but they could not.

11. It is the specific case of the plaintiffs that the defendant no.1 has no right to sell any share in the disputed properties to defendant no. 3 or any other person, since the disputed property is of HUF in which as members, the plaintiffs have also got right title and interest since inception and they are also residing peacefully with their families and defendant no.1 is under obligation to give details of the rent received by her and also to give rent to other co-owners. It was further averred that the plaintiffs have preferential rights to purchase the share of other members of HUF in suit property, since they are the owners in possession and have every right to protect their properties.

12. In the above backdrop, the plaintiffs have claimed the following reliefs :-

(A) That a decree of declaration that the property in suit is HUF property and plaintiffs and defendants no.1 and 2 are members of the said HUF and have equal share in suit property and are also entitled to equal share in rent and decree of permanent prohibitory injunction be passed in favour of the plaintiffs against the defendant no.1 not to transfer or alienate the properties in suit to the defendant no. 3 or to any other person without partition and restraining the defendants, their associates, agents or any other persons claiming through them from interfering in the ownership and possession of the plaintiffs in property in suit by changing the nature of property in suit or by dispossessing the plaintiffs or by any other manner whatsoever.

(B) Decree of mandatory injunction to give account of rent realised from tenant since September 2022 and defendant no. 1 be directed to give share of rent of property in suit along with 18% interest per annum since September 2022 to the date of actual payments.

(C) The cost of the suit be awarded to the plaintiffs against the defendants.

(D) Any other relief to which the Hon'ble Court deems and proper in the circumstances of the case be also granted to the plaintiffs against the defendants.

Defendants application under Order VII Rule 11 CPC

13. The defendant no.1 and 2 moved an application no. 27 □ C under Order VII Rule 11 read with 151 CPC with the averments that according to the plaint the disputed property was purchased by defendant no.1 through registered sale deed on 11.4.1966 and the plaintiffs have also alleged that the cause of action for filing the suit has arisen on 11.4.1966. It was further averred that the disputed property was self acquired property of the defendant no.1, hence the plaintiffs have got no cause of action for filing the instant suit. Further, the plaintiff's suit was time barred and was also barred by Section 41 of the Specific Relief Act since the plaintiffs have not claimed the efficacious relief of cancellation of gift deeds executed by defendant no.1 in favour of defendant no. 2. With these averments, it was prayed that the plaintiff's suit be dismissed under Order VII Rule 11 CPC.

Objections filed by the plaintiffs against the above application of the defendants 14. The plaintiffs averred that the sale deed dated 11.4.1966 was executed in favour of the defendant no.1 in fiduciary capacity and as trustee for the benefit of all the members of the HUF. The issue of limitation is mixed question of law and fact which cannot be a ground under Order VII Rule 11 CPC. The alleged gift deed was not in the knowledge of the plaintiffs at the time of the filing of the suit. Further, the gift deed was nullity from inception upto the extent of the share of the plaintiffs in the disputed property. Since the disputed property is of HUF the plaintiffs are its co-owners since their birth and defendant no.1 has got no right or authority to transfer the share of the plaintiffs to the defendant no. 2 or any other person by alleged gift or in any other manner of transfer. Hence, the plaint cannot be rejected on this ground also. It was averred that the application of the defendants was misconceived and was liable to be rejected with cost.

Reasoning of the trial court

15. The trial court opined that in the sale deed dated 11.4.1966 it was not mentioned that the property belongs to HUF. To the contrary, it is mentioned that the defendant no.1 is the absolute owner in possession of the disputed property. The sale deed also mentions that the consideration has also been paid by the defendant no.1. The trial court further opined that the plaintiffs have not led any evidence to prove the existence and nucleus of HUF, that their grandfather was having a Aadat, the income generated from Aadat and the expenditure incurred from it.

16. The trial court further opined that the plaintiffs father Omprakash Gupta was a Senior Assistant, who was getting salary, which is contrary to the plaintiffs assertion that the disputed property is of HUF. The trial court opined that the disputed property was purchased through sale deed dated 11.4.1966, of which defendant no.1 is the absolute owner in possession and according to Section 14 of the Hindu Succession Act, 1956 if any property is acquired by any Hindu woman after the commencement of this Act, then she will be treated as the absolute owner of that property, not limited owner.

17. The trial court opined that the plaintiffs have claimed that they are co-owner of the disputed property but they have failed to prove it. The trial court further opined that the plaintiffs claimed that the sale deed was executed on 11.4.1966 but the suit has been filed on 28.1.2025 whereas, the limitation under Article 110 of the Limitation Act, 1963 was only 12 years, hence the plaintiffs suit was also time barred.

18. The trial court further opined that the plaintiffs have claimed that the cause of action has arisen to them in September 2022 when the defendant no.1 refused to share with them rents realised from the disputed property, but the plaintiffs have not filed any documentary evidence to prove that they were getting any rent previously. Trial court opined that the plaintiffs have failed to prove that they have got any cause of action to file the suit. In view of the above reasoning, the plaint was rejected under Order VII Rule 11 CPC, aggrieved against which, the plaintiffs have filed the instant appeal under Section 96 CPC.

Submissions of the learned counsel of the parties

19. Learned counsel for the plaintiff appellants submitted that the plaintiffs mother/defendant no.1 belonged to poor family, who had no Stridhan, who was not having any income to purchase the disputed property through sale deed dated 11.4.1966 for a consideration of ₹ 6,000/-, which was a princely amount at that time. Learned counsel further submitted that the consideration of the above sale deed came from the income/nucleus of the HUF of plaintiffs grandfather Babulal Gupta and father Omprakash Gupta and others, who were having a flourishing business of Aadat.

20. It was further submitted that at the stage of deciding application under Order VII Rule 11 CPC only the plaint averments and documents submitted by the plaintiff are to be considered. The written statement and the documents of the defendants are not to be considered, but the trial court has considered the house tax, water tax and the electricity bills produced by the defendants.

Further, the trial court cannot examine the veracity of the plaint averments, whatever is alleged by the plaintiff, is to be presumed true at this stage.

21. It was further submitted that the trial court has considered the issue of limitation, which is a mixed question of fact and law, which cannot be considered at the stage of deciding application under Order VII Rule 11 CPC.

22. It was further submitted that the plaintiffs are residing in the disputed property since their birth, as members of the HUF, and they are co-owners of the disputed property, hence, the defendant no.1 has no right to sell it to any person. It was further averred that since the plaintiffs were not aware at the time of the filing of the suit, that a gift deed of the disputed property has been executed by defendant no.1 in favour of defendant no. 2 as such, the relief of its cancellation has not been claimed by the plaintiffs. It was further averred that the plaintiffs have claimed that the cause of action has arisen to them only in the month of September 2022 when their mother refused to share with them the rents realised from the disputed property, hence no question of the suit being barred by limitation arises.

23. Learned counsel further submitted that all the issues raised by the defendants can only be adjudicated after trial, after the parties have led evidence, which cannot be determined at this stage, hence, the trial court has erred in rejecting the plaint under Order VII Rule 11 CPC at the threshold. With these submissions, it was prayed that the appeal be allowed, and the matter be remanded to the trial court for deciding it on merits. In support of his contention learned counsel has relied on the following case law :-

(i) P.V. Guru Raj Reddy Rep. By vs. P. Neeradha Reddy and ors. (2015) 8 SCC 331.

(ii) Shailesh Kumar vs. Vibha Gupta 2025 SCC OnLine All 6320.

(iii) Shreya Vidyarthi vs. Ashok Vidyarthi & ors. (2015) 16 SCC 46.

(iv) Om Prakash Gupta vs. Radhey Shyam Gupta 2026 (1) AWC 874.

(v) Sunil Kumar Dublith vs. Ramesh Chandra Dublith and ors. 2026 SCC OnLine All 310

24. Per contra, Sri Pradeep Kumar Singh learned Senior counsel for the contesting respondents submitted that the plaintiffs have alleged that there was a HUF of their grandfather and father but no prima facie evidence in this regard has been submitted. Learned counsel further submitted that the plaintiffs have also failed to prima facie prove what was the income of the alleged HUF and whether it was also having a substantial nucleus, from which the alleged property could have been purchased on 11.4.1966 for consideration of ₹ 6,000/-. Learned counsel further submitted that the plaintiffs have to prima facie show that there was a HUF which was having substantial income, from which the disputed property could have been purchased in the year 1966. It was further alleged that as per the plaint, the HUF was dissolved and the property was distributed among the members. Learned counsel submitted that if the HUF stood dissolved and if property was distributed among its members, then the whole case of the plaintiffs is demolished.

25. It was further submitted that the plaintiffs are claiming their ownership rights in the disputed property since their birth, but they have waited for about 60 years to assert their rights in the disputed property. Learned counsel further submitted that the plaintiff no.1 has averred that she was about 3 years old when the property was purchased in the year 1966 and the plaintiff no. 2 was in womb of his mother/defendant no.1, hence, within 3 years of attaining majority, the plaintiffs could have asserted their rights in the disputed property because they knew from their birth that they are co-owners in the disputed property, which belongs to HUF. It was submitted that in view of the above facts, the plaintiffs suit was grossly barred by limitation.

26. It was further submitted that the plaintiffs have claimed that upto the month of October 2022, the rents realised from the disputed property by defendant no.1 was being shared with them, because they were members of the HUF, but no prima facie evidence has been submitted in this regard by the plaintiffs. It was further submitted that there is also no evidence that their name is recorded as co-owner in the municipal records.

27. It was further submitted that the disputed property has already been gifted by the defendant no.1 to her daughter/defendant no. 2, which is in the knowledge of the plaintiffs, but they have not claimed the relief of cancellation of the gift deed, hence, the plaintiffs suit was barred by Section 41(h) of the Specific Relief Act.

28. It was further submitted that the defendant no.1 was the absolute owner of the disputed property in accordance with Section 14 of the Hindu Succession Act 1956, as such, the plaintiffs cannot claim any right title and interest in the disputed property.

29. It was further submitted that the plaintiffs have disclosed in the plaint that the plaintiffs father, who was also the husband of defendant no.1, was in government job since much prior to the year 1955, who was getting a decent salary, in view of this also, the averments of the plaintiffs that the disputed property was purchased from the income/nucleus of HUF in the year 1966, stands demolished.

30. Learned counsel further submitted that it is true that the written statement and the documents of the defendants are not to be considered at this stage, but it is also well settled that the plaintiff has to prove his case prima facie on the basis of some documentary evidence, which the plaintiffs have failed to submit. Learned counsel further submitted that the plaintiffs have to prove that they have got cause of action to file the instant suit, but in this case, it is prima facie proved from the plaint averments that neither the plaintiffs have got any cause of action to file the suit nor the suit has been filed within the prescribed period of limitation. Learned counsel submitted that the plaintiffs suit was grossly barred by limitation and hence, this issue can be examined at the stage of deciding application under Order VII Rule 11 CPC. It was submitted that in view of the above facts, the trial court has not erred in rejecting the plaint under Order VII Rule 11 CPC. With these submissions, it was prayed that the appeal is meritless and be rejected. In support of his contention, learned counsel has relied on the following case law :-

(i)Khatri Hotels Private Ltd. & anr. Vs. Union of India & anr.(2011) 9 SCC 126.

(ii) Dahiben vs. Arvindbhai Kalyanji Bhanusali (Gajra) Dead through LR's & ors. (2020) 7 SCC 366.

(iii) Rajendra Bajoria & ors. Vs. Hemant Kumar Jalan & ors. (2022) 12 SCC 641.

(iv) The Correspondence, RBANMS Educational Institution vs. B. Gunashekar & anr. 2025 INSC 490.

31. I have heard the learned counsel of the parties and perused the record of the lower court and the case law submitted by them.

32. The case laws submitted by the learned counsel for the appellants deal with the interpretation of Order VII Rule 11 CPC as well as with the applicability of The Benami Transactions (Prohibition) Act, 1988. In the instant case, the provisions of the Act of 1988 are not applicable since the alleged sale deed was executed on 11.04.1966, which is before the enforcement of the above Act.

33. The case laws submitted by the learned counsel for the respondents deal with the provisions of Order VII Rule 11 CPC as well as the issue of limitation, which has been subsequently dealt in this judgment.

Interpretation of Order VII Rule 11 CPC

34. The Apex Court in the case of Correspondence, RBANMS Educational Institution vs. B. Gunashekar and Anr. 2025 SCC OnLine SC 793, while considering the scope and purpose of Order VII Rule 11 CPC, has held as under:-

“14. Let us first examine the scope and purpose of Order VII Rule 11 CPC. This Court in Dahiben v. Arvindbhai Kalyanji Bhanusali (Gajra) dead through legal representatives (2020) 7 SCC 366, explained in detail the applicable law for deciding the application for rejection of the plaint. The relevant paragraphs of the said decision are reproduced below:

23.2. The remedy under Order VII Rule 11 is an independent and special remedy, wherein the Court is empowered to summarily dismiss a suit at the threshold, without proceeding to record evidence, and conducting a trial, on the basis of the evidence adduced, if it is satisfied that the action should be terminated on any of the grounds contained in this provision.

23.3. The underlying object of Order VII Rule 11 (a) is that if in a suit, no cause of action is disclosed, or the suit is barred by limitation under Rule 11 (d), the Court would not permit the plaintiff to unnecessarily protract the proceedings in the suit. In such a case, it would be necessary to put an end to the sham litigation, so that further judicial time is not wasted.

23.4. In Azhar Hussain v. Rajiv Gandhi 1986 Supp SCC 315 this Court held that the whole purpose of conferment of powers under this provision is to ensure that a litigation which is meaningless, and bound to prove abortive, should not be permitted to waste judicial time of the court, in the following words : (SCC p.324, para 12)

“12. □The whole purpose of conferment of such power is to ensure that a litigation which is meaningless, and bound to prove abortive should not be permitted to occupy the time of the Court, and exercise the mind of the respondent. The sword of Damocles need not be kept hanging over his head unnecessarily without point or purpose. Even in an ordinary civil litigation, the Court readily exercises the power to reject a plaint, if it does not disclose any cause of action.”

23.5. The power conferred on the court to terminate a civil action is, however, a drastic one, and the conditions enumerated in Order VII Rule 11 are required to be strictly adhered to.

23.6. Under Order VII Rule 11, a duty is cast on the Court to determine whether the plaint discloses a cause of action by scrutinizing the averments in the plaint read in conjunction with the documents relied upon, or whether the suit is barred by any law.

23.7. Order VII Rule 14(1) provides for production of documents, on which the plaintiff places reliance in his suit, which reads as under:

“14. Production of document on which plaintiff sues or relies.-(1) Where a plaintiff sues upon a document or relies upon document in his possession or power in support of his claim, he shall enter such documents in a list, and shall produce it in Court when the plaint is presented by him and shall, at the same time deliver the document and a copy thereof, to be filed with the plaint.

(2) Where any such document is not in the possession or power of the plaintiff, he shall, wherever possible, state in whose possession or power it is.

(3) A document which ought to be produced in Court by the plaintiff when the plaint is presented, or to be entered in the list to be added or annexed to the plaint but is not produced or entered accordingly, shall not, without the leave of the Court, be received in evidence on his behalf at the hearing of the suit.

(4) Nothing in this rule shall apply to document produced for the cross examination of the plaintiff's witnesses, or, handed over to a witness merely to refresh his memory.”

23.8. Having regard to Order VII Rule 14 CPC, the documents filed alongwith the plaint, are required to be taken into consideration for deciding the application under Order VII Rule 11(a). When a document referred to in the plaint, forms the basis of the plaint, it should be treated as a part of the plaint.

23.9. In exercise of power under this provision, the Court would determine if the assertions made in the plaint are contrary to statutory law, or judicial dicta, for deciding whether a case for rejecting the plaint at the threshold is made out.

23.10. At this stage, the pleas taken by the defendant in the written statement and application for rejection of the plaint on the merits, would be irrelevant, and cannot be adverted to, or taken into consideration (2004) 3 SCC 137.

23.11. The test for exercising the power under Order VII Rule 11 is that if the averments made in the plaint are taken in entirety, in conjunction with the documents relied upon, would the same result in a decree being passed. This test was laid down in Liverpool & London S.P. & I Assn. Ltd. v. M.V. Sea Success which reads as : (SCC p.562, para 139)

“139. Whether a plaint discloses a cause of action or not is essentially a question of fact. But whether it does or does not must be found out from reading the plaint itself. For the said purpose, the averments made in the plaint in their entirety must be held to be correct. The test is as to whether if the averments made in the plaint are taken to be correct in their entirety, a decree would be passed.”

23.12. In Hardesh Ores (P.) Ltd. v. Hede & Co. (2007) 5 SCC 614 the Court further held that it is not permissible to cull out a sentence or a passage, and to read it in isolation. It is the substance, and not merely the form, which has to be looked into. The plaint has to be construed as it stands, without addition or subtraction of words. If the allegations in the plaint prima facie show a cause of action, the court cannot embark upon an enquiry whether the allegations are true in fact. D. Ramachandran v. R.V. Janakiraman (1999) 3 SCC 267.

23.13. If on a meaningful reading of the plaint, it is found that the suit is manifestly vexatious and without any merit, and does not disclose a right to sue, the court would be justified in exercising the power under Order VII Rule 11 CPC.

23.14. The power under Order VII Rule 11 CPC may be exercised by the Court at any stage of the suit, either before registering the plaint, or after issuing summons to the defendant, or before conclusion of the trial, as held by this Court in the judgment of Saleem Bhai v. State of Maharashtra (2003) 1 SCC 557. The plea that once issues are framed, the matter must necessarily go to trial was repelled by this Court in Azhar Hussain (supra).

23.15. The provision of Order VII Rule 11 is mandatory in nature. It states that the plaint □shall□ be rejected if any of the grounds specified in clause (a) to (e) are made out. If the Court finds that the plaint does not disclose a cause of action, or that the suit is barred by any law, the Court has no option, but to reject the plaint.

24. □Cause of action□ means every fact which would be necessary for the plaintiff to prove, if traversed, in order to support his right to judgment. It consists of a bundle of material facts, which are necessary for the plaintiff to prove in order to entitle him to the reliefs claimed in the suit.

24.1. In Swamy Atmanand v. Sri Ramakrishna Tapovanam (2005) 10 SCC 51 this Court held:

“24. A cause of action, thus, means every fact, which if traversed, it would be necessary for the plaintiff to prove an order to support his right to a judgment of the court. In other words, it is a bundle of facts, which taken with the law applicable to them gives the plaintiff a right to relief against the defendant. It must include some act done by the defendant since in the absence of such an act, no cause of action can possibly accrue. It is not limited to the actual infringement of the right sued on but includes all the material facts on which it is founded”

24.2. In T. Arivandandam v. T.V. Satyapal (1977) 4 SCC 467 this Court held that while considering an application under Order VII Rule 11 CPC what is required to be decided is whether the plaint discloses a real cause of action, or something purely illusory, in the following words : (SCC p. 470, para 5)

“5. □ The learned Munsif must remember that if on a meaningful - not formal - reading of the plaint it is manifestly vexatious, and meritless, in the sense of not disclosing a clear right to sue, he should exercise his power under Order VII, Rule 11 CPC taking care to see that the ground mentioned therein is fulfilled. And, if clever drafting has created the illusion of a cause of action, nip it in the bud at the first hearing □”

24.3. Subsequently, in I.T.C. Ltd. v. Debt Recovery Appellate Tribunal (1998) 2 SCC 70 this Court held that law cannot permit clever drafting which creates illusions of a cause of action. What is required is that a clear right must be made out in the plaint.

24.4. If, however, by clever drafting of the plaint, it has created the illusion of a cause of action, this Court in Madanuri Sri Ramachandra Murthy v. Syed Jalal (2017) 13 SCC 174 held that it should be nipped in the bud, so that bogus litigation will end at the earliest stage. The Court must be vigilant against any camouflage or suppression, and determine whether the litigation is utterly vexatious, and an abuse of the process of the court.

28. A three-Judge Bench of this Court in State of Punjab v. Gurdev Singh (1991) 4 SCC 1 held that the Court must examine the plaint and determine when the right to sue first accrued to the plaintiff, and whether on the assumed facts, the plaint is within time. The words □right to sue□ means the right to seek relief by means of legal proceedings. The right to sue accrues only when the cause of action arises. The suit must be instituted when the right asserted in the suit is infringed, or when there is a clear and unequivocal threat to infringe such right by the defendant against whom the suit is instituted. Order VII Rule 11(d) provides that where a suit appears from the averments in the plaint to be barred by any law, the plaint shall be rejected.”

14.1. Thus, it is clear that the above provision viz., Order VII Rule 11 CPC serves as a crucial filter in civil litigation, enabling courts to terminate proceedings at the threshold where the plaintiff's case, even if accepted in its entirety, fails to disclose any cause of action or is barred by law, either express or by implication. The scope of Order VII Rule 11 CPC and the authority of the courts is well settled in law. There is a bounden duty on the Court to discern and identify fictitious suit, which on the face of it would be barred, but for the clever pleadings disclosing a cause of action, that is surreal. Generally, sub-clauses (a) and (d) are stand alone grounds, that can be raised by the defendant in a suit. However, it cannot be ruled out that under certain circumstances, clauses (a) and (d) can be mutually inclusive. For instances, when clever drafting veils the implied bar to disclose the cause of action; it then becomes the duty of the Court to lift the veil and expose the bar to reject the suit at the threshold. The power to reject a plaint under this provision is not merely procedural but substantive, aimed at preventing abuse of the judicial process and ensuring that court time is not wasted on fictitious claims failing to disclose any cause of action to sustain the suit or barred by law. Therefore, the appeal before us requires careful consideration of the scope of rejection of the plaint under Order VII Rule 11 CPC, particularly, in the context of the suit filed based on an agreement to sell against third parties in possession.

15. Order VII Rule 11(a) CPC mandates rejection of the plaint where it does not disclose a cause of action. In Om Prakash Srivastava v. Union of India (2006) 6 SCC 207, this Court pointed out that cause of action means every fact which, if traversed, would be necessary for the plaintiff to prove in order to support their right to judgment. It consists of bundle of facts which narrate the circumstances and the reasons for filing such suit. It is the foundation on which the entire suit would rest. Therefore, it goes without saying that merely including a paragraph on cause of action is not sufficient but rather, on a meaningful reading of the plaint and the documents, it must disclose a cause of action. The plaint should contain such cause of action that discloses all the necessary facts required in law to sustain the suit and not mere statements of fact which fail to disclose a legal right of the plaintiff to sue and breach or violation by the defendant(s). It is pertinent to note here that even if a right is found, unless there is a violation or breach of that right by the defendant, the cause of action should be deemed to be unreal”.

17. At the same time, we are conscious of principle that only averments in the plaint are to be considered under Order VII Rule 11 CPC. While it is true that the defendant's defense is not to be considered at this stage, this does not mean that the court must accept patently untenable claims or shut its eyes to settled principles of law and put the parties to trial, even in cases which are barred and the cause of action is fictitious. In T. Arivandandam (supra), this Court emphasized that where the plaint is manifestly vexatious and meritless, courts should exercise their power under Order VII Rule 11 CPC and not waste judicial time on matters that are legally barred and frivolous.”

35. The Apex Court in the case of Raghwendra Sharan Singh vs. Ram Prasanna Singh (Dead) By Lrs. (2020)16 SCC 601, while considering whether the suit was barred by limitation for the purpose of Order VII Rule 11 CPC, held as under:-

“7. Applying the law laid down by this Court in the aforesaid decisions on exercise of powers under Order 7 Rule 11 CPC to the facts of the case in hand and the averments in the plaint, we are of the opinion that both the courts below have materially erred in not rejecting the plaint in exercise of powers under Order 7 Rule 11 CPC. It is required to be noted that it is not in dispute that the gift deed was executed by the original plaintiff himself along with his brother. The deed of gift was a registered gift deed. The execution of the gift deed is not disputed by the plaintiff. It is the case of the plaintiff that the gift deed was a showy deed of gift and therefore the same is not binding on him. However, it is required to be noted that for approximately 22 years, neither the plaintiff nor his brother (who died on 15-12-2002) claimed at any point of time that the gift deed was showy deed of gift. One of the executants of the gift deed, brother of the plaintiff during his lifetime never claimed that the gift deed was a showy deed of gift. It was the appellant herein-original defendant who filed the suit in the year 2001 for partition and the said suit was filed against his brothers to which the plaintiff was joined as Defendant 10. It appears that the summon of the suit filed by the defendant being TS (Partition) Suit No. 203 of 2001 was served upon Defendant 10-plaintiff herein in the year 2001 itself. Despite the same, he instituted the present suit in the year 2003. Even from the averments in the plaint, it appears that during these 22 years i.e. the period from 1981 till 2001/2003, the suit property was mortgaged by the appellant herein-original defendant and the mortgage deed was executed by the defendant. Therefore, considering the averments in the plaint and the bundle of facts stated in the plaint, we are of the opinion that by clever drafting the plaintiff has tried to bring the suit within the period of limitation which, otherwise, is barred by law of limitation. Therefore, considering the decisions of this Court in T. Arivandandam [T. Arivandandam v. T.V. Satyapal, (1977) 4 SCC 467] and others, as stated above, and as the suit is clearly barred by law of limitation, the plaint is required to be rejected in exercise of powers under Order 7 Rule 11 CPC.

8. At this stage, it is required to be noted that, as such, the plaintiff has never prayed for any declaration to set aside the gift deed. We are of the opinion that such a prayer is not asked cleverly. If such a prayer would have been asked, in that case, the suit can be said to be clearly barred by limitation considering Article 59 of the Limitation Act and, therefore, only a declaration is sought to get out of the provisions of the Limitation Act, more particularly, Article 59 of the Limitation Act. The aforesaid aspect has also not been considered by the High Court as well as the learned trial court.

9. Now, so far as the application on behalf of the original plaintiff and even the observations made by the learned trial court as well as the High Court that the question with respect to the limitation is a mixed question of law and facts, which can be decided only after the parties lead the evidence, is concerned, as observed and held by this Court in Sham Lal [Sham Lal v. Sanjeev Kumar, (2009) 12 SCC 454 : (2009) 4 SCC (Civ) 741] ; N.V. Srinivasa Murthy [N.V. Srinivasa Murthy v. Mariyamma, (2005) 5 SCC 548 : AIR 2005 SC 2897] as well as in Ram Prakash Gupta [Ram Prakash Gupta v. Rajiv Kumar Gupta, (2007) 10 SCC 59] , considering the averments in the plaint if it is found that the suit is clearly barred by law of limitation, the same can be rejected in exercise of powers under Order 7 Rule 11(d) CPC.”

36. The Apex Court in the case of Shri Mukund Bhavan Trust and others vs. Shrimant Chhatrapati Udayan Raje Pratapsinh Maharaj Bhonsle and another (2024)15 SCC 675, was considering whether the suit was barred by limitation while deciding application under Order VII Rule 11 CPC. It was held as under:-

“13. As settled in law, when an application to reject the plaint is filed, the averments in the plaint and the documents annexed therewith alone are germane. The averments in the application can be taken into account only to consider whether the case falls within any of the sub-rules of Order 7 Rule 11 by considering the averments in the plaint. The court cannot look into the written statement or the documents filed by the defendants. The civil courts including this Court cannot go into the rival contentions at that stage”

*25. Continuing further with the plea of limitation, the courts below have held that the question of the suit being barred by limitation can be decided at the time of trial as the question of limitation is a mixed question of law and facts. Though the question of limitation generally is mixed question of law and facts, when upon meaningful reading of the plaint, the court can come to a conclusion that under the given circumstances, after dissecting the vices of clever drafting creating an illusion of cause of action, the suit is hopelessly barred and the plaint can be rejected under Order 7 Rule 11”.

40. At this juncture, we wish to observe that we are not unmindful of the position of law that limitation is a mixed question of fact and law and the question of rejecting the plaint on that score has to be decided after weighing the evidence on record. However, in cases like this, where it is glaring from the plaint averments that the suit is hopelessly barred by limitation, the courts should not be hesitant in granting the relief and drive the parties back to the trial court. We again place it on record that this is not a case where any forgery or fabrication is committed which had recently come to the knowledge of the plaintiff. Rather, the plaintiff and his predecessors did not take any steps to assert their title and rights in time. The alleged cause of action is also found to be creation of fiction.”

37. It is apparent from the above law laid down by the Apex Court in the case of Correspondence, RBANMS Educational Institution (supra) that at the time of deciding Order VII Rule 11 CPC application, the court has to look into only the averments made in the plaint and the documents submitted by the plaintiff. The court has not to examine the written statement of the defendant or the documents submitted by it.

38. It is also apparent that the test for exercising the power under Order VII Rule 11 CPC is if the averments made in the plaint are taken in entirety, in conjunction with the documents relied upon, would the same result in a decree being passed. The plaint should also disclose a real cause of action and if clever drafting has created the illusion of a cause of action, then it should be nipped in the bud at the 1st hearing, so that bogus litigation will end at the earliest stage. The court should also be vigilant against any camouflage or suppression, and determine whether the litigation is utterly vexatious, and an abuse of the process of the court.

39. It is also apparent that the court is not bound to accept patently untenable claims or shut its eyes to settled principles of law and put the parties to trial, even in cases which are barred and the cause of action is fictitious. In such situation the courts should not waste judicial time on matters that are legally barred and frivolous.

40. It is also apparent from the law laid down by the Apex Court in Raghwendra Sharan Singh (supra) and Shri Mukund Bhavan Trust (supra) that if from the plaint averments it is found that the suit was hopelessly barred by law of limitation then the same can be rejected in exercise of powers under Order VII Rule 11 CPC.

Conclusion of this Court

41. The Apex Court in the case of Angadi Chandranna vs. Shankar and others 2025 SCC OnLine SC 877, while considering whether there is presumption that a Hindu family merely because it is joint, possesses any joint property, held as under:-

“13. Further, it is a settled principle of law that there is no presumption of a property being joint family property only on account of existence of a joint Hindu family. The one who asserts has to prove that the property is a joint family property. If, however, the person so asserting proves that there was nucleus with which the joint family property could be acquired, then there would be presumption of the property being joint and the onus would shift on the person who claims it to be self-acquired property to prove that he purchased the property with his own funds and not out of joint family nucleus that was available. That apart, while considering the term □nucleus□ it should always be borne in mind that such nucleus has to be established as a matter of fact and the existence of such nucleus cannot normally be presumed or assumed on probabilities. This Court in R. Deivanai Ammal (Died) v. G. Meenakshi Ammal, dealt with the concept of Hindu Law, ancestral property and the nucleus existing therein. The relevant paragraphs are extracted below for ready reference:

“13. First let us consider the nature of the suit properties, namely, self-acquired properties of late Ganapathy Moopanar or ancestral properties and whether any nucleus was available to purchase the properties. Under the Hindu Law it is only when a person alleging that the property is ancestral property proves that there was a nucleus by means of which other property may have been acquired, that the burden is shifted on the party alleging self-acquisitions to prove that the property was acquired without any aid from the family estate. In other words the mere existence of a nucleus however small or insignificant is not enough. It should be shown to be of such a character as could reasonably be expected to lead to the acquisition of the property alleged to be part of the joint family property. Where the doctrine of blending is invoked against a person having income at his disposal and acquiring property, the reasonable presumption to make is that he had the income at his absolute disposal unless there is evidence to the contrary. If a coparcener desires to establish that a property in the name of a female member of the family or in the name of the manager himself has to be accepted and treated as property acquired from the joint family nucleus, it is absolutely essential that such a coparcener should not only barely plead the same, but also establish the existence of such a joint family fund or nucleus. Even if the joint family nucleus is so established, the prescription that the accretions made by the manager or the purchases made by him should be deemed to be from and out of such a nucleus does not arise, if there is no proof that such nucleus of the joint family is not an income-yielding apparatus. The proof required is very strict and the burden is on the person who sets up a case that the property in the name of a female member of the family or in the name of the manager or any other coparcener is to be treated as joint family property. There should be proof of the availability of such surplus income or joint family nucleus on the date of such acquisitions or purchases. The same is the principle even in the cases where moneys were advanced on mortgages over immoveable properties. The onus is not on the acquirer to prove that the property standing in his name was purchased from joint family funds. That may be so, in the case of a manager of a joint family, but not so in the case of all coparceners. For a greater reason it is not so in the case of female members.

14. The doctrine of blending of self-acquired property with joint family has to be carefully applied with reference to the facts of each case. No doubt it is settled that when members of a joint family by their joint labour or in their joint business acquired property, that property, in the absence of a clear indication of a contrary intention, would be owned by them as joint family property and their male issues would necessarily acquire a right by birth in such property. But the essential sine qua non is the absence of a contrary intention. If there is satisfactory evidence of an intention on the part of the acquirer of such property to treat it as his own, but not as joint family property, the presumption which ordinarily arises, according to the personal law of Hindus that such property would be regarded as joint family property, will not arise.

15. It is a well-established principle of law that where a party claims that any particular item of property is joint family property, the burden of proving that it is so rests on the party asserting it. Where it is established or admitted that the family possessed some joint property which from its nature and relative value may have formed the nucleus from which the property in question may have been acquired, the presumption arises that it was joint property and the burden shifts to the party alleging self-acquisition to establish affirmatively that the property was acquired without the aid of the joint family. But no such presumption would arise if the nucleus is such that with its help the property claimed to be joint could not have been acquired. In order to give rise to the presumption, the nucleus should be such that with its help the property claimed to be joint could have been acquired. A family house in the occupation of the members and yielding no income could not be nucleus out of which acquisitions could be made even though it might be of considerable value.

16. In a Hindu joint family, if one member sues for partition on the foot that the properties claimed by him are joint family properties then three circumstances ordinarily arise. The first is an admitted case when there is no dispute about the existence of the joint family properties at all. The second is a case where certain properties are admitted to the joint family properties and the other properties in which a share is claimed are alleged to be the accretions or acquisitions from the income available from joint family properties or in the alternative have been acquired by a sale or conversion of such available properties. The third head is that the properties standing in the names of female members of the family are benami and that such a state of affairs has been deliberately created by the manager or the head of the family and that really the properties or the amounts standing in the names of female members are properties of the joint family. While considering the term "nucleus" it should always be borne in mind that such nucleus has to be established as a matter of fact and the existence of such nucleus cannot normally be presumed or assumed on probabilities. The extent of the property, the income from the property, the normal liability with which such income would be charged and the net available surplus of such joint family property do all enter into computation for the purpose of assessing the content of the reservoir of such a nucleus from which alone it could, with reasonable certainty, be said that the other joint family properties have been purchased unless a strong link or nexus is established between the available surplus income and the alleged joint family properties. The person who comes to Court with such bare allegations without any substantial proof to back it up should fail.

17. It is also a well-established doctrine of Hindu Law that property which was originally self-acquired may become joint property if it has been voluntarily thrown by the coparcener into the joint stock with the intention of abandoning all separate claims upto it. But the question whether the coparcener has done so or not is entirely a question of fact to be decided in the light of all the circumstances of the case. It must be established that there was a clear intention on the part of the coparcener to waive his separate rights and such an intention will not be inferred from acts which may have been done from kindness or affection. The important point to keep in mind is that the separate property of a Hindu coparcener ceases to be his separate property and acquires the characteristics of his joint family or ancestral property, not by mere act of physical mixing with his joint family or ancestral property, but by his own volition and intention by his waiving or surrendering his special right in it as separate property. Such intention can be discovered only from his words or from his acts and conduct."

17. ...However, as per Hindu law, after partition, each party gets a separate and distinct share and this share becomes their self-acquired property and they have absolute rights over it and they can sell, transfer, or bequeath it as they wish. Accordingly, the properties bequeathed through partition, become the self-acquired properties of the respective sharers.

18. ***

19. As reiterated above, after the joint family property has been distributed in accordance with law, it ceases to be joint family properties and the shares of the respective parties become their self-acquired properties....

42. It is the plaintiff's case that the disputed property was purchased through sale deed on 11.4.1966 for consideration of ₹ 6,000/- in the name of their mother/defendant no.1 Smt.Prem Gupta, who was very poor, who was not having any independent income, who had no Stridhan and as such, she could not have purchased the property.

43. The plaintiffs have further alleged that the above property was purchased from the funds of HUF, consisting of their grandfather Babulal Gupta, father Omprakash Gupta and others, but the plaintiffs have not submitted any documentary evidence to prove the above fact. The initial burden is upon the plaintiffs to prove the existence of the above HUF, who were its members, its income, when it came into existence, when it was dissolved, what was its assets, whether it was having sufficient nucleus to purchase the above property of ₹ 6,000/-, but this burden has not been prima facie discharged by the plaintiffs.

44. The plaintiffs have only filed the certified copy of the above sale deed dated 11.4.1966 which discloses that defendant no.1 is the absolute owner in possession of the disputed property, which was purchased for a consideration of ₹ 6,000/- from Smt.Munni Devi. Nowhere the sale deed mentions that the consideration has been paid from the funds of the HUF, or it has been paid by the husband of defendant no.1. From the perusal of the sale deed, it is not disclosed that the property has been purchased from the funds provided by the alleged HUF. In view of the above facts, the plaintiffs assertion that the disputed property has been purchased from the funds of the alleged HUF is not prima facie proved.

45. The plaint further discloses that the plaintiff's father was in government job since much prior to the year 1955. It is apparent that if the plaintiff's father was in government job, then the HUF which was a business concern, could not have remained in simultaneous existence and further, the plaintiff's father could not have been its member, because a government servant is not allowed to do business while remaining in government job. A government servant cannot be part of a business, while he is in government service. The plaintiffs have themselves disclosed in the plaint that their grandfather winded his business from Aligarh and distributed the money to his sons, the plaintiff's father being one of them. The plaintiffs have not disclosed when the business of their grandfather was winded and the property distributed among the members. It is further apparent that after the dissolution of the joint family, the property given to its members or coparceners becomes their self-acquired property, as such, the plaintiffs cannot assert their ownership in it in any manner whatsoever.

46. It is apparent that the plaintiffs are alleging that the HUF was dissolved and its property was distributed among its members, but when this was done, and what amount was given to its each member on dissolution, has not been disclosed in the plaint. In the absence of above material facts, it is not open to the plaintiffs to allege that a HUF was in existence when the property was purchased on 11.4.1966. The plaintiffs have further failed to prove that the alleged HUF was having sufficient income and funds/nucleus, from which the disputed property could have been purchased.

47. It is further apparent that the disputed property was purchased when the plaintiff's father Omprakash Gupta, who is also the husband of defendant no.1, was alive, who was earning a decent salary in government job, who according to the plaintiffs was in government job much prior to the year 1955, who was having sufficient means to purchase the property, who has not challenged the title of his wife in the disputed property. Even if for the sake of argument it is presumed that the defendant no.1 was not having any income to purchase the disputed property, even then her husband Omprakash Gupta was getting a decent salary in the government job, who could have provided the consideration of the sale deed. It is not the case of the plaintiffs that their father was also not earning anything. There was/is no legal bar that the husband cannot purchase property in the name of his wife. Even, Section 3(2) of The Benami Transactions (Prohibition) Act of 1988, permits the husband to purchase the property for the benefit of his wife or the unmarried daughter.

48. Now the question arises, if the consideration of the disputed property was provided by the husband of the defendant no.1 then what is the status of the defendant no.1 insofar as the ownership of the disputed property is concerned ?

49. Section 14 of the Hindu Succession Act, 1956 reads as under:-

14. Property of a female Hindu to be her absolute property -(1) Any property possessed by a female Hindu, whether acquired before or after the commencement of this Act, shall be held by her as full owner thereof and not as a limited owner.

Explanation □ In this subsection, "property" includes both movable and immovable property acquired by female Hindu by inheritance or devise, or at a partition, or in lieu of arrears of maintenance, or by gift from any person, whether a relative or not, before, at or after her marriage, or by her own skill or exertion, or by purchase or by prescription, or in any other manner whatsoever, and also any such property held by her as stridhana immediately before the commencement of this Act.

(2) Nothing contained in sub-section(1) shall apply to any property acquired by way of gift or under a Will or any other instrument or under a decree or order of a Civil Court or under an award where the terms of the gift, Will or other instrument or the decree, order or award prescribe a restricted estate in such property.

50. It is apparent from Section 14 of the Hindu Succession Act, 1956 that any property purchased by female Hindu whether before or after the commencement of the Act shall be held by her as full owner thereof and not as a limited owner. In this case, the defendant no.1 has purchased the property after the commencement of the Act on 11.4.1966, and the sale deed does not mention that her rights are limited in the disputed property. To the contrary, the sale deed mentions that she is the absolute owner of the disputed property. In view of this, the plaintiffs' assertion that they are the co-owner of the disputed property, which was purchased from the funds of the alleged HUF, is not even prima facie proved.

51. The plaintiff averments disclose that plaintiff no.1 was 3 years old, when the property was purchased through sale deed on 11.4.1966 and the plaintiff no. 2 was in womb of his mother, whereas the defendant no. 2 was not in existence. The plaintiffs are claiming that they are the members of the HUF since birth and are asserting that they are co-owners in the disputed property. It is further apparent that the plaintiffs have filed the suit on 29.1.2025 asserting their rights in the disputed property, when they were well aware that they are co-owner of the disputed property since their birth. The plaintiffs have claimed declaration of their rights in the disputed property that it belongs to HUF and they are members of it along with the defendants no.1 and 2 and have got also equal share in the property.

52. It is further apparent that from 11.4.1966 till the filing of the suit on 29.1.2025, the plaintiffs were very well aware that their mother/defendant no.1 was the absolute owner of the disputed property, in which they are claiming co-ownership, but they never asserted their co-ownership in the disputed property during the lifetime of their father Omprakash Gupta. The plaintiffs were in legal disability being minor on 11.4.1966, but they could have subsequently, within 3 years of attaining majority, in accordance with Section 8 of the Limitation Act, 1963 challenged the exclusive ownership of their mother and claimed the relief of declaration of co-ownership in the disputed property, but no such suit was filed by the plaintiffs. It is apparent from the plaint that at the time of filing of the suit in the year 2025, the plaintiff no.1 was aged about 61 years and plaintiff no. 2 was aged about 58 years. In view of this, the plaintiff's suit for the relief of declaration that the disputed property belongs to HUF and they are its co-owner, is grossly time barred.

53. The plaintiffs have further alleged in the plaint that previously they were getting their share of the rent, which was realised from the tenant's of the disputed property but no documentary evidence has been adduced to prove this fact. The plaintiffs have asserted that the cause of action of the suit has arisen to them in the month of September, 2022 when the defendant no.1 failed to share with them the rents realised from the disputed property but no document has been produced to prove that tenants were residing in the disputed property from whom rent of ₹ 50,000/- per month was being collected, which was being shared with them. The plaintiffs have also failed to prove that their name is also entered as co-owner in the municipal records. It appears that in order to bring the suit within the limitation, this artificial fact of rent realisation has been pleaded by the plaintiffs which is not supported by any documentary evidence. It is apparent that the plaintiffs have tried to bring the suit within the prescribed period of limitation by claiming that cause of action has arisen after the month of September, 2022 which is not correct, because the plaintiffs were well aware at least since attaining majority, that their mother was the absolute owner of the disputed property. It is apparent that the whole controversy has arisen after the death of plaintiff's father.

54. From the above analysis it is evident that the plaintiffs have asserted their rights in the disputed property on the basis that they are its co-owner but prima facie it is not proved. The plaintiffs have failed to prove that the disputed property was purchased from the funds/nucleus of HUF. There is no evidence on record to prove that the plaintiffs have got any right title and interest in the disputed property. It is also evident that the plaintiffs suit for the relief of declaration is time barred. The plaintiffs have also failed to prove that they are entitled to any share of the rent, if any, realised from the disputed property by defendant no.1, who is the true owner of the disputed property, hence the plaintiffs have got no cause of action to file the instant suit and further, the suit is also grossly barred by limitation.

55. For the aforesaid reasons, the trial court has not erred in allowing the defendants application under Order VII Rule 11 CPC and consequently, rejecting the plaint. This appeal has got no merit and is liable to be dismissed at the admission stage.

56. Accordingly, this appeal is dismissed at the admission stage under Order 41 Rule 11 CPC with costs throughout. Consequently, the impugned judgment and decree of the trial court passed in O.S. no. 59 of 2025 dated 10.7.2025 is affirmed.

57. Interim order, if any, stands vacated.

58. Office is directed to send back the record of the trial court, forthwith.

First Appeal From Order No. 69 of 2026

Issues for Consideration

- (i) Whether the Employees' Compensation Commissioner committed an error in applying an incorrect relevant factor under Schedule IV of the Employees' Compensation Act, 1923 while computing compensation?
- (ii) Whether a driver who suffered 45% permanent physical disability resulting in inability to drive any vehicle is entitled to compensation by treating the loss of earning capacity as 100% functional disability?
- (iii) Whether the Commissioner was justified in computing compensation on the basis of minimum wages despite categorical admission by the employer regarding the claimant's monthly wages?
- (iv) Whether interest under Section 4A of the Employees' Compensation Act, 1923 is payable on the amount awarded towards reimbursement of medical expenses?

Headnotes

Employees' Compensation Act, 1923 — Sections 4 and Schedule IV — Compensation — Relevant factor — Incorrect application of factor — Effect.

HELD: The claimant was aged 31 years on the date of accident and the relevant factor prescribed under Schedule IV of the Employees' Compensation Act, 1923 was 205.95. The Commissioner committed a manifest error in applying the factor of 295.95 while calculating compensation. The award was liable to be modified by applying the correct statutory factor. [Paras 15 and 25]

Employees' Compensation Act, 1923 — Section 4 — Compensation — Monthly wages — Admission by employer — Evidentiary value.

HELD: Where the employer unequivocally admitted in the written statement that the claimant was employed as a driver on monthly wages of Rs.15,000/-, there was no justification for the Commissioner to ignore such admission and determine compensation on the basis of minimum wages. In the absence of any evidence to the contrary, compensation was liable to be computed on the admitted monthly wages. [Paras 16 and 17]

Employees' Compensation Act, 1923 — Section 4 — Permanent physical disability — Functional disability — Driver rendered incapable of driving — Loss of earning capacity.

HELD: Assessment of compensation cannot be based merely upon the percentage of physical disability. The decisive consideration is the impact of the injury on the earning capacity of the injured workman. Although the Medical Board assessed the claimant's permanent physical disability at 45% on account of right-side hemiplegia, the claimant, being employed as a driver, had become wholly incapable of driving any vehicle. Consequently, he suffered 100% functional disability and complete loss of earning capacity, entitling him to compensation on that basis. [Paras 18 to 22]

Employees' Compensation Act, 1923 — Sections 4 and 4A — Medical expenses — Reimbursement — Interest — Liability.

HELD: Reimbursement of medical expenses awarded under the Employees' Compensation Act forms an integral part of compensation. Consequently, interest under Section 4A is payable not only on the amount awarded towards compensation for loss of earning capacity but also on the amount reimbursed towards medical expenses. The claimant was entitled to interest at the rate of 12% per annum on both amounts from the date of accident till actual payment. [Paras 23 to 26]

Employees' Compensation Act, 1923 — Section 30 — Appeals by insurer and claimant — Modification of award.

HELD: Since the Commissioner applied an incorrect statutory factor, ignored the admitted wages of the claimant, failed to assess functional disability in accordance with settled principles, and omitted to award interest on medical reimbursement, the award required modification. The insurer's appeal lacked merit and was liable to be dismissed, whereas the claimant was entitled to enhancement of compensation. [Paras 25 to 30]

Insurer's appeal dismissed. Claimant's appeal allowed. Impugned award modified. Insurance company directed to deposit the enhanced compensation within two months after adjusting the amount already deposited. (E-14)

Case Arising From

Order dated 24.10.2025 passed by the Employees' Compensation Commissioner/Deputy Labour Commissioner, Moradabad in E.C.A. Case No. 01 of 2022, Taiyyab Alam v. Farooq and Another.

Appearance for Parties

For Appellant: Sri Anubhav Sinha

For Respondent: Sri Mohd. Asim Zulfiquar.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Sandeep Jain, J.)

1. FAFO No. 69 of 2026 under Section 30 of the Employees' Compensation Act, 1923 has been filed by the insurer, The New India Assurance Company Limited, challenging the impugned order dated 24.10.2025 passed by the Employees' Compensation Commissioner/Deputy Labour Commissioner, Moradabad in ECA Case No. 01 of 2022, Taiyyab Alam vs. Farooq and another, whereby for the injuries sustained by the claimant in the course of his employment as a driver, compensation of Rs.9,04,222/- along with interest @ 12% per annum and Rs.3,38,103/- towards reimbursement of medical expenses has been awarded, which has been ordered to be indemnified by the insurer of Truck No. UP-21-CN-8245.

2. FAFO No. 42 of 2026 has been filed by the claimant under Section 30 of the Employees' Compensation Act, 1923 against the aforesaid impugned order seeking enhancement of compensation on the ground that the amount awarded by the Commissioner is not commensurate with the injuries suffered by him.

3. Since both the appeals arise out of the same impugned order, they were heard together and are being decided by this common judgment.

4. The factual matrix of the case is that the claimant was employed as a driver on Truck No. UP-21-CN-8245 owned by respondent no.2, Farooq. During the course of his employment, on 14.10.2021, when the truck was being driven by claimant from Bihar to Bahraich, then at Pandeypur within the jurisdiction of Police Station Ekauna, District Shravasti, a stray animal suddenly came in front of the vehicle. In an attempt to save the animal, the driver, Taiyyab Alam, lost control of the vehicle, which overturned and fell into a ditch, causing grievous injuries to the claimant, who was thereafter admitted to a private hospital for treatment. In the accident, both legs of the claimant were fractured and he also sustained injuries to his head and other parts of the body. It is the case of the claimant that he incurred expenditure of Rs.7,00,000/- towards his treatment, which is still continuing, and that he was treated at Medanta Hospital and RR Health Care (Dr. Khare Hospital), Delhi Road, Moradabad.

5. The claimant asserted that at the time of the accident he was drawing a salary of Rs.15,000/- per month besides daily diet allowance of Rs.100/-, and was aged about 30 years. An FIR in respect of the accident was lodged by Farooq on 16.10.2021 at Police Station Ekauna, District Shravasti.

6. Before the Commissioner, the employer/respondent no.2 Farooq appeared and admitted in his written statement that the claimant was employed as a driver on his truck and was being paid salary @ ₹15,000/- per month. He further disclosed that the vehicle was insured with the appellant-insurance company for the period 03.12.2020 to 02.12.2021 and, therefore, the insurer was liable to indemnify any compensation awarded by the Commissioner.

7. The insurance company contested the claim by filing its written statement, disputing both the occurrence of the accident and the claimant's employment with respondent no.2, and put the claimant to strict proof thereof. It was further contended that the claimant had not suffered any permanent disability so as to entitle him to compensation.

8. On the pleadings of the parties, the Commissioner framed the following issues:

-Whether the claimant, namely Taiyyab Alam, was employed as a driver on Truck No. UP-21-CN-8245 owned by defendant no.1, who became completely disabled due to injuries suffered in the accident dated 14.10.2021 while working under the directions of the owner? If yes, its effect?

- Whether on 14.10.2021 the vehicle of defendant no.1 was insured with defendant no.2 and was being plied with all valid documents? If no, its effect"

-Whether on the date of the accident the claimant possessed a valid driving licence? If no, its effect"

- Whether the claimant is entitled to any compensation, and if yes, to what amount and from whom?

9. The claimant examined himself and one Wajid Hussain in support of his claim, whereas no oral evidence was adduced either by the owner or by the insurer. The claimant also produced a disability certificate dated 02.12.2022 disclosing 45% locomotor disability.

10. The Commissioner, while applying the provisions of the Act, took 60% of the monthly wages of Rs.11,316/-, which amounted to Rs. 6,789.60 and after applying a factor of 295.95 assessed compensation at Rs.9,04,222/-. The Commissioner also awarded Rs.3,38,103/- towards verified medical bills and directed payment of interest @ 12% per annum from the date of accident on only the compensation of Rs.9,04,222/-.

11. Assailing the award, learned counsel for the insurer submitted that as per Schedule IV of the Employees' Compensation Act, 1923, for the age of 31 years the relevant factor is 205.95, whereas the Commissioner erroneously applied the factor of 295.95. It was further contended that mere production of a disability certificate showing 45% disability could not ipso facto establish corresponding loss of earning capacity or functional disability. It was also argued that the certificate relied upon was provisional in nature and subject to reassessment.

12. Per contra, learned counsel for the claimant fairly conceded that the correct factor for the age of 31 years is 205.95. He, however, submitted that pursuant to directions of this Court, the claimant was re-examined by the Chief Medical Officer, Jyotiba Phule Nagar in duly constituted Medical Board on 10.02.2026, whereupon a permanent disability certificate certifying 45% permanent disability was issued on account of right-side hemiplegia. It was further contended that although the physical disability is assessed at 45%, the claimant, being a driver, has suffered 100% functional disability as he is no longer capable of driving any vehicle. It was also urged that in view of the categorical admission of the employer regarding wages of Rs.15,000/- per month, there was no justification for the Commissioner to reduce the monthly wages to Rs.11,316/- and compute compensation on minimum wage basis. It was lastly contended that interest ought to have been awarded even on the amount reimbursed towards medical expenses.

13. I have heard learned counsel for the parties and perused the impugned judgment as well as the material brought on record. Both the appeals are admitted on the following substantial question of law:-

(1) Whether the Commissioner has erred in determining the compensation by applying factor of 295.95?

(2) Whether the claimant has become 100% permanently disabled due to the injuries suffered in the accident?

(3) Whether the claimant is entitled to more compensation for the future loss of earning capacity?

(4) Whether the claimant is entitled to interest @12% per annum on the medical reimbursement amount awarded by the Commissioner?

14. In the present case, the factum of accident and the claimant's employment as a driver on the truck owned by respondent Farooq is not disputed by the appellant insurance company. The principal controversy is with regard to the extent of disability and the quantum of compensation payable.

15. It is undisputed that the claimant was aged 31 years at the time of accident. Therefore, the relevant factor under Schedule IV of the Act is 205.95. The Commissioner manifestly erred in applying the factor of 295.95.

16. The Apex Court in the case of Mamta Devi and others vs. The Reliance General Insurance Co. Ltd. and another 2023 INSC 566 has held that if the employer accepts in his written statement that the deceased was drawing Rs.6,000/- per month as wages, then there is no reason to disbelieve him keeping in view the minimum wages prevalent at that time.

17. It is further apparent that the claimant pleaded monthly wages of Rs.15,000/-, which were unequivocally admitted by the employer in his written statement. In view of such categorical admission and the judgment of the Apex Court in the case of Mamta Devi (supra), the Commissioner was not justified in discarding the admitted wages and substituting them with minimum wages of Rs.11,316/-. Accordingly, compensation is liable to be computed on the basis of monthly wages of Rs.15,000/-.

18. This Court had occasion to summon the claimant and interact with him personally. Upon close observation of his physical condition, it was found that he was unable to stand properly and was wholly incapable of driving any vehicle.

19. The Apex court in the case of Raj Kumar vs. Ajay Kumar and Another, (2011) 1 SCC 343, while analysing how to determine compensation in cases of permanent disability, has held as under:-

"10. Where the claimant suffers a permanent disability as a result of injuries, the assessment of compensation under the head of loss of future earnings would depend upon the effect and impact of such permanent disability on his earning capacity. The Tribunal should not mechanically apply the percentage of permanent disability as the percentage of economic loss or loss of earning capacity. In most of the cases, the percentage of economic loss, that is, the percentage of loss of earning capacity, arising from a permanent disability will be different from the percentage of permanent disability. Some Tribunals wrongly assume that in all cases, a particular extent (percentage) of permanent disability would result in a corresponding loss of earning capacity, and consequently, if the evidence produced show 45% as the permanent disability, will hold that there is 45% loss of future earning capacity. In most of the cases, equating the extent (percentage) of loss of earning capacity to the extent (percentage) of permanent disability will result in award of either too low or too high a compensation.

11. What requires to be assessed by the Tribunal is the effect of the permanent disability on the earning capacity of the injured; and after assessing the loss of earning capacity in terms of a percentage of the income, it has to be quantified in terms of money, to arrive at the future loss of earnings (by applying the standard multiplier method used to determine loss of dependency). We may however note that in some cases, on appreciation of evidence and assessment, the Tribunal may find that the percentage of loss of earning capacity as a result of the permanent disability, is approximately the same as the percentage of permanent disability in which case, of course, the Tribunal will adopt the said percentage for determination of compensation. (See for example, the decisions of this Court in Arvind Kumar Mishra v. New India Assurance Co. Ltd. [(2010) 10 SCC 254 : (2010) 3 SCC (Cri) 1258 : (2010) 10 Scale 298] and Yadava Kumar v. National Insurance Co. Ltd. [(2010) 10 SCC 341 : (2010) 3 SCC (Cri) 1285 : (2010) 8 Scale 567])"

20. The Apex Court in the case of Sarnam Singh vs. Sriram General Insurance Co. Ltd. & Ors.* (2023) 8 SCC 193, while analysing when partial disability will amount to 100% earning capacity loss, held as under:-

"10. As to how compensation, in case where permanent disability of an injured affects his functional disability, is to be assessed has been considered by this Court, repeatedly. Reference can be made to the judgment of this Court in Mohan Soni v. Ram Avtar Tomar [Mohan Soni v. Ram Avtar Tomar, (2012) 2 SCC 267 : (2012) 1 SCC (Civ) 747 : (2012) 1 SCC (Cri) 641] . In the aforesaid case the injured was working as a cart puller. As a result of the accident, his left leg was amputated. His permanent disability was assessed at 60%. The Tribunal assessed the compensation taking the loss of earning at 50% on the theory that he can still do some other work while sitting. The High Court did not disturb the finding regarding loss of income on account of disability. This Court found that the Tribunal was in error in taking the loss of earning at 50% as the injured was 55 years of age and it may be difficult for him to find a job at that stage. In fact, any physical disability resulting from an accident has to be judged with reference to the nature of the work being performed by the person who suffered disability. The same injury suffered by two different persons may affect them in different ways. Loss of leg by a farmer or a rickshaw puller may be end of the road as far as his earning capacity is concerned. Whereas, in case of the persons engaged in some kind of desk work in office, loss of leg may have lesser effect. This Court enhanced the loss of earning capacity from 50% to 90%.

11. Applying the same principle to the case in hand, we find that the appellant herein was working as a gunman with Bharat Hotel Limited. On account of amputation of his right leg above the knee, he was terminated from service w.e.f. 31-5-2015. It is not a matter of dispute that a person with his right leg amputated cannot perform the duty of a gunman. This is his functional disability. He was 50 years & 5 months old at the time of accident. Considering the aforesaid facts, in our view, the Tribunal was right in assessing the loss of earning capacity of the appellant at 100% and assessing the compensation accordingly. The High Court was in error in reducing the loss of earning capacity to 80%, relying upon the judgment [Shri Ram General Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Sarnam Singh, 2017 SCC OnLine Del 13011] of the High Court, despite there being a judgment of this Court available on the issue."

21. It is apparent that earlier a temporary disability certificate was issued to the petitioner disclosing 45% disability, but the subsequent certificate dated 10.02.2026, has confirmed that the petitioner has suffered 45% permanent disability due to hemiplegia affecting right side of the body.

22. Applying the settled principle of law laid down by the Apex Court in the case of Raj Kumar (supra) and Sarnam Singh (supra) the real test is the impact of the injury on earning capacity and ability to pursue the avocation previously undertaken. Since the claimant was employed as a driver and is now incapable of driving, he has suffered 100% functional disability notwithstanding the medical assessment of 45% physical disability.

23. The High Court of Madras in the case of Chandrasekaran vs. P. Marappan and Another in CMA No.2581 of 2021 decided on 13.02.2024, has held as under:-

"19. The next question of law related to the payment of interest for the medical expenses. Sub section 1 of 4(A), states that the compensation under section 4 shall be paid as soon as it falls due. As stated in the earlier paragraph, the claimant is entitled to get compensation for the medical expenses. Since the payment of medical expenses forms part of the compensation as prescribed under section 4 of the Act, 1923, this compensation is entitled for interest since sub section 3(a) of 4(A) prescribes that where the employer is entitled to pay compensation due under the Act is liable to pay interest for the compensation. The reimbursement of medical expenses could not be termed that it is not part of compensation, the reimbursement of medical expenses also forms part of compensation prescribed under Section 4(A), it carries interest in case of delay. This interest is liable to be paid as soon it falls due, as interpreted by the Apex Court in K. Sivaraman and others vs. P. Sathishumar and others [2020 ACJ 1361] that the interest shall paid from the date of accident. Accordingly, the respondents is liable to pay the interest for the medical expenses also. Accordingly, the second question of law raised in this appeal is answered."

(emphasis supplied)

24. The Commissioner has awarded Rs.3,38,103/- towards medical reimbursement but omitted to grant interest thereon. The claimant is entitled to interest @ 12% per annum on the said amount as well, from the date of accident i.e. 14.10.2021.

25. Accordingly, the claimant is entitled to compensation for loss of future earning capacity as follows:

(Rs.15,000X60/100) X 205.95=Rs.18,53,550/-

26. The claimant shall also be entitled to Rs.3,38,103/- towards reimbursement of medical expenses, together with interest @ 12% per annum on both amounts from the date of accident, i.e., 14.10.2021, till actual payment.

27. Accordingly, the impugned order dated 24.10.2025 passed by the Commissioner is modified to the aforesaid extent.

28. FAFO No. 69 of 2026 preferred by the insurer stands dismissed, whereas FAFO No. 42 of 2026 preferred by the claimant for enhancement of compensation is hereby allowed.

29. Interim order, if any, stands vacated.

30. The insurance company is directed to deposit the enhanced amount of compensation before the Commissioner within a period of two months after adjusting the amount already deposited.

Issue for Consideration

(i) Whether the trial court was justified in exercising powers under Section 319 Cr.P.C. to summon the unmarried sisters of the husband as additional accused on the basis of general allegations contained in the F.I.R. and the depositions of prosecution witnesses?

(ii) Whether reiteration during trial of allegations already available before the Investigating Officer and found insufficient for prosecution constitutes fresh evidence warranting exercise of powers under Section 319 Cr.P.C.?

(iii) Whether the trial court could invoke Section 319 Cr.P.C. by relying upon the F.I.R. and statements recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C. instead of the evidence adduced during trial?

Headnotes

Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 — Section 8 — Reference to arbitration — Stage for invoking arbitration agreement — Application filed beyond prescribed period for filing written statement — Maintainability.

HELD: The right to seek reference of the parties to arbitration under Section 8 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 must be exercised with due diligence and before submission of the first statement on the substance of the dispute. Where the defendants, despite entering appearance, neither filed the written statement nor invoked Section 8 within the prescribed period of ninety days, the application seeking reference to arbitration was rightly held to be belated and not maintainable. The trial court committed an error in entertaining such application after expiry of the statutory period. [Paras 22 to 30]

Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 — Section 8 — Arbitration agreement — Participation in civil proceedings — Filing of interlocutory applications — Effect.

HELD: Mere existence of an arbitration clause does not entitle a party to seek reference to arbitration at any stage of the proceedings. Where the defendants actively participated in the suit by filing an application under Order XXXIX Rule 4 CPC and other interlocutory applications, while failing to invoke Section 8 of the Act within the prescribed time, such conduct disentitled them from seeking reference to arbitration at a belated stage. A party cannot invoke the arbitral process at its own convenience after having participated in the proceedings before the civil court without due diligence. [Paras 23 to 30]

Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 — Section 8 — Reference to arbitration — Due diligence — Requirement.

HELD: The statutory right to seek reference to arbitration is conditioned upon timely invocation of the arbitration agreement. A litigant who continues to participate in the civil proceedings and omits to invoke Section 8 within the period contemplated by law cannot subsequently seek dismissal of the suit on the basis of the arbitration clause. Due diligence is an essential requirement for exercise of the statutory remedy under Section 8 of the Act. [Paras 26 to 30]

Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 — Section 8 — "First statement on the substance of the dispute" — Meaning and scope — Written statement — Participation in proceedings — Effect.

HELD: The expression "first statement on the substance of the dispute" occurring in Section 8(1) of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 ordinarily refers to the written statement filed by the defendant. However, where the defendant, after entering appearance, continuously participates in the proceedings by filing applications under various provisions of law and yet neither files the written statement within the prescribed period nor invokes Section 8 within such period, the right to seek reference to arbitration cannot be preserved indefinitely. The expression cannot be interpreted so as to permit a party to delay invocation of the arbitration agreement while simultaneously prosecuting proceedings before the civil court. [Paras 22 to 30]

Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 — Sections 8(1) and 8(2) — Application for reference to arbitration — Compliance with statutory requirements — Failure to produce arbitration agreement and invoke jurisdiction within prescribed time — Effect.

HELD: Compliance with the requirements of Sections 8(1) and 8(2) of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 is mandatory. Where the application seeking reference to arbitration was filed beyond the stipulated period and the defendants failed to establish compliance with the statutory requirements contemplated under Section 8(2), no case for reference to arbitration was made out. The appellate court rightly set aside the order of the trial court referring the parties to arbitration and restored the suit to its original number. [Paras 29 and 30]

Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 — First Appeal From Order — Order restoring civil suit after setting aside reference to arbitration — Appellate interference.

HELD: The appellate court rightly found that the trial court had acted contrary to the settled principles governing Section 8 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 in entertaining the defendants' application after considerable participation in the suit proceedings and beyond the permissible stage. The impugned judgment restoring the civil suit did not suffer from any illegality or irregularity warranting interference in appeal. [Paras 30 and 31]

Appeal dismissed. (E-14)

Judgment and order dated 15.07.2025 passed by the Additional District Judge-I, Hapur in Civil Appeal No. 24 of 2025, M/s Vardhman Roller Flour Mills v. Rajendra Sharma and Others

Appearance for Parties

For the Appellant: Ms. Akanksha Gaur.

For the Respondents: Sri Anurag Sharma and Sri Rahul Sahai

(Delivered by Hon'ble Abdul Shahid, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the defendants/appellants and learned counsel for the plaintiffs/respondent nos. 1 and 2.

2. The present appeal has been filed against the impugned judgement and order dated 15.07.2025 passed by Additional District Judge, Ist, Hapur, in Civil Appeal No. 24 of 2025 (M/S Vardhman Rollers Flour Mills Vs. Rajendra Sharma and others).

3. Learned counsel for the appellants/defendants has submitted that, as per Clause 19 of the Tenancy Agreement dated 07.03.2024, it has been clearly stated and agreed between the appellants and the respondents that, in case of any change in the partnership, such change shall be incorporated only after obtaining prior approval of the appellants. She has further submitted that Clause 25 of the Tenancy Agreement dated 07.03.2024 clearly stipulates that, in the event of any dispute between the parties to the agreement, the matter shall be referred to an arbitrator, who shall be appointed with the consent of the parties, and the proceedings shall be governed in accordance with the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996.

4. Learned counsel for the appellants has further submitted that, by way of a notarized partnership deed/agreement dated 21.10.2024, a new partner, namely Shri Ashish Jain, S/o Shri Ashok Kumar Jain, has been inducted by the respondents (first set), and Smt. Amita Jain, with whom the appellants had entered into the tenancy agreement dated 07.03.2024, has retired from the partnership firm of the respondents. The respondents failed to inform the appellants about the aforesaid development, inasmuch as such addition is in clear violation of Clause 19 of the Tenancy Agreement dated 07.03.2024.

5. Therefore, in view of Clause 19 of the Tenancy Agreement, Respondent No. 2, who has been inducted as a partner and has been granted power of attorney pursuant to the deed dated 10.09.2024, does not have any locus to file the instant original suit, since Respondent Nos. 2 and 3 did not inform the appellants about the said change in the partnership or the appointment of Respondent No. 2 as the power of attorney holder. She has relied upon Section 8 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996, which is quoted hereinbelow:

"8. Power to refer parties to arbitration where there is an arbitration agreement.-(1) A judicial authority, before which an action is brought in a matter which is the subject of an arbitration agreement shall, if a party to the arbitration agreement or any person claiming through or under him, so applies not later than the date of submitting his first statement on the substance of the dispute, then, notwithstanding any judgment, decree or order of the Supreme Court or any Court, refer the parties to arbitration unless it finds that prima facie no valid arbitration agreement exists.

(2) The application referred to in sub-section (1) shall not be entertained unless it is accompanied by the original arbitration agreement or a duly certified copy thereof:

Provided that where the original arbitration agreement or a certified copy thereof is not available with the party applying for reference to arbitration under sub-section (1), and the said agreement or certified copy is retained by the other party to that agreement, then, the party so applying shall file such application along with a copy of the arbitration agreement and a petition praying the Court to call upon the other party to produce the original arbitration agreement or its duly certified copy before that Court.

(3) Notwithstanding that an application has been made under sub-section (1) and that the issue is pending before the judicial authority, an arbitration may be commenced or continued and an arbitral award made."

6. Learned counsel for the appellants has further submitted that the first statement on the substance of dispute does not include; (i) applications relating interim application, (ii) jurisdictional objections or (iii) procedural matters as relied upon by her on law laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Rashtriya Ispat Nigam Limited and another Vs. Verma Transport Co. (2006) Volume 7 SCC 275 wherein it is held that the first statement needs the written statement and not every application or reply filed prior thereto. She has further submitted that in view of Booz Allen and Hamilton Inc. Vs. SBI Home Finance Ltd. and others (2011) Volume 5 SCC 532, the court clarified that if a defendant wants to seek reference to the arbitration under Section 8 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, the application must be filed before or at the time of filing the written statement. She has further submitted that the partnership firm of the respondent is a unregistered firm and therefore in view of the Section 9 of the Indian Partnership Act, 1932; (1) no suit to enforce a right arising from a contract or conferred by this Act shall be instituted in any court by or on behalf of any person suing as a partner in the firm against the firm or any person alleged to be or to have been a partner in the firm unless the firm is registered and the person suing is or has been shown in the register of firms as a partner in the firm. No suit to enforce a right arising from a contract shall be instituted in any court by or on behalf of a firm against any third party unless the firm is registered and the person suing are or have been shown in the register of firms as partners in the firm.

7. Learned counsel for the appellants has submitted that the judgment and order passed by the learned Additional District Judge in Civil Appeal No. 24 of 2025 (M/s Sri Vardhman Roller Flour Mills and another v. Rajendra Sharma and others), decided on 15.07.2025, is not in accordance with law and is liable to be set aside, and that the appeal deserves to be allowed.

8. The said civil appeal has arisen from the proceedings of Original Suit No. 174 of 2024 (M/s Vardhman Roller Flour Mills and others v. Rajendra Sharma and others). The learned appellate court has held that the appellant/defendant filed his first statement on the substance of the dispute in Application No. 15-C under Order XXXIX Rule 4 CPC, seeking modification of the ex parte injunction order. Hence, the application under Order XXXIX Rule 4 CPC, which was submitted on 07.10.2024 before the learned trial court, constituted his first statement on the substance of the dispute.

9. Thereafter, the application under Section 8 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 could not have been presented. The learned appellate court has further held that the appellant/defendant filed the application under Section 8 of the Act, 1996 on 23.10.2025. It has also been noted that the learned trial court, contrary to the settled principles of law, not only entertained the said application but also allowed it and dismissed the suit in violation of the provisions of law. Accordingly, the said order was set aside, and Original Suit No. 174 of 2024 was restored to its original number vide judgment and order dated 15.07.2025. Hence, the present appeal has been filed.

10. Original Suit No. 174 of 2024 was filed before the Civil Judge (Senior Division)-II, Hapur by M/s Vardhman Roller Flour Mills as plaintiff no. 1 and Ashok Kumar Jain as plaintiff no. 2 against defendant no. 1, Rajendra Sharma; defendant no. 2, Balvir Sharma; and defendant no. 3, M/s Hapur Roller Flour Mills, seeking the relief of permanent injunction to the effect that the plaintiffs shall not be evicted from the premises in question and that the defendants shall not interfere with their functioning except in accordance with due process of law.

11. The tenancy agreement relied upon by learned counsel for the appellants/defendants, dated 07.05.2024, was executed between Rajendra Sharma (defendant no. 1) and M/s Shree Vardhman Roller Flour Mills (plaintiff no. 1) through its partner, Amit Jain. The said tenancy agreement is for a period commencing from 01.03.2024 to 28.02.2033.

12. Learned counsel for the appellants has relied upon Clause 25 of the said tenancy agreement, which is a registered document, stipulating that in the event of any dispute arising between the parties, an arbitrator shall be appointed with the consent of both parties, and the award passed by the arbitrator shall be binding upon them. The entire process shall be conducted in accordance with the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996.

13. Learned counsel for the appellants has also filed a supplementary affidavit stating that the respondents have vacated the disputed premises; however, they are not permitting the appellants to enter the premises under the garb of the interim order dated 17.09.2024 passed by the learned Civil Judge-II, Hapur, allegedly with a view to extract money from the appellants.

14. It is further submitted by learned counsel for the appellants that the respondents have failed to pay the electricity dues to the electricity department, due to which the electricity connection was disconnected. Upon becoming aware of these facts, the appellants deposited the entire outstanding dues on behalf of the respondents in order to prevent disconnection of the electricity supply.

15. Learned counsel for the respondents has filed objections and submitted that, on 07.03.2024, a registered tenancy agreement was executed between Rajendra Sharma, partner of M/s Hapur Roller Flour Mills (defendant-appellant/owner of the property), and M/s Shri Vardhman Roller Flour Mills through its partner, Smt. Amita Jain (tenant). The aforesaid tenancy agreement was registered, and the tenancy was valid for a period of nine years, w.e.f. 01.03.2024 to 28.02.2033, at a monthly rent of Rs. 1,00,000/- plus GST. A total sum of Rs. 19,00,000/- (Rs. 14,00,000/- and Rs. 5,00,000/- as security) was paid to the defendants/appellants, and the rent was to be increased by 15% after three years. After execution of the agreement, the plaintiffs took possession of the flour mill and carried out maintenance and repairs of the plant and machinery. In order to maintain the quality and standard of their products, the plaintiffs spent Rs. 27,00,000/-, which was to be adjusted towards rent payable to the defendants/owners. The rent was accordingly paid till July, 2024.

16. It is further submitted that, on 14th 15 August, 2024, defendant no. 1 restrained the plaintiffs and attempted to forcibly evict them and their workers in order to stop their manufacturing business. Again, on 20.08.2024, the defendant created pressure and attempted to evict the plaintiffs from the flour mill. On 25.08.2024, the defendants and their agents allegedly used criminal force to restrain the plaintiffs from continuing their manufacturing activities and attempted to evict them forcibly. These facts giving rise to the cause of action have been set out in paragraph 9 of the civil suit filed on 17.09.2024.

17. In the meantime, a letter dated 08.08.2024 was issued to the defendants/appellants by the State Bank of India, Hapur Main Branch, regarding renewal of the credit facility and setting out various compliances/directions for sanction of a credit facility to the tune of Rs. 10 crores for the purchase of plant and machinery. The bank directed defendant no. 2 (Rajendra Sharma) to cancel the registered lease agreement bearing Serial No. 3175 dated 07.03.2024, executed by M/s Hapur Roller Flour Mills in favour of Shri Vardhman Roller Flour Mill.

18. The State Bank of India further stated that the renewal of the credit facility had been due since 30.03.2024 and that nearly five months had elapsed; as per RBI guidelines, the account would be classified as a non-performing asset (NPA) on 26.09.2024. The property/flour mill in dispute had already been mortgaged/hypothecated to the bank against the credit facility availed, and the defendants were directed to furnish a non-encumbrance certificate by cancelling the lease deed.

19. Thus, the property forming the subject matter of the tenancy agreement dated 07.03.2024 had been mortgaged against the credit facility availed by the defendants, and the bank had directed them to cancel the said agreement. This fact has been stated in paragraph 12 of the civil suit.

20. The defendant/appellant has committed fraud by executing the tenancy agreement and concealing the material fact that the property was mortgaged against the credit facility availed by the defendant. The defendant/appellant has also used criminal force to restrain and evict the plaintiff from his peaceful possession. Accordingly, the plaintiff has rightly filed the civil suit before the competent court.

21. He has further submitted that the well recognized examples of non-arbitral disputes are: (i) disputes relating to rights and liabilities which give rise to or arise out of criminal offences; (ii) matrimonial disputes relating to divorce, judicial separation, restitution of conjugal rights, child custody; (iii) guardianship matters; (iv) insolvency and winding up matters; (v) testamentary matters (grant of probate, letters of administration and succession certificate); and (vi) eviction or tenancy matters governed by special statutes where the tenant enjoys statutory protection against eviction and only the specified courts are conferred jurisdiction to grant eviction or decide the disputes. The present appeal lacks merit and is liable to be dismissed.

22. Learned counsel for the appellants/defendants has relied on paragraph 14 of Krishan Radhu v. Emaar MGF Construction Pvt. Ltd., decided by the High Court of Delhi at New Delhi in CS (OS) No. 3281/2014, IA No. 7709/2015 (under Section 8 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act), and OA No. 210/2015, dated 21.12.2016 that there is no dispute as to the meaning of the words "first statement on the substance of the dispute" used in Section 8 (1) of the Act, either before or after amendment. In the context of civil suit, such expression obviously would mean the "written statement" required to be filed in terms of the provision contained in Order 8 Rule 1 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 (CPC). But, for the purposes of proceedings before other judicial authorities or forums where the Code of Civil Procedure may not strictly apply, it would mean and include the response (or reply) filed by the party against whom action is brought to explain his defences. In Rashtriya Ispat Nigam (supra), the Supreme Court observed that this expression must be contra-distinguished with the expression 'written statement'. It implies submission of the party to the jurisdiction of the judicial authority and, therefore, what is needed is a finding on the part of judicial authority that the party has waived his right to invoke the arbitration clause. If an application is filed before filing the first statement on the substance of the dispute, the party cannot be said to have waived his right or acquiesced himself to the jurisdiction of the court.

23. Learned counsel for the plaintiffs/respondent nos. 1 and 2 has submitted that the appellants/defendants put in appearance on 04.10.2024 and has relied upon the supplementary affidavit filed by the appellants/defendants. Thereafter, the appellants/defendants consistently participated in the proceedings of the original suit on 07.10.2024, 08.10.2024, 10.10.2024, 11.10.2024, 18.10.2024, 24.10.2024, 29.10.2024, 07.11.2024, 14.11.2024, 26.11.2024, and 28.11.2024. The appellants/defendants filed an application under Order XXXIX Rule 4 CPC for modification of the ex parte injunction and also filed an application under Section 8(1) of the Act on 23.01.2025.

24. Learned counsel for respondent nos. 1 and 2 has submitted that the appellants/defendants first put in appearance on 04.10.2024; therefore, the period of limitation for filing the written statement expired on 04.01.2025. However, the appellants/defendants did not file the written statement within the stipulated period and instead filed the application under Section 8(1) of the Act on 23.01.2025.

25. Learned counsel for respondent nos. 1 and 2 has relied upon the law laid down by the High Court of Delhi at New Delhi in SSIPL Lifestyle Private Limited v. Vama Apparels (India) Private Limited and another, 2020:DHC:1211, wherein paragraph 22 it is held as follows:...

"22. Thus, as per the above decision, in view of the amended language in Section 8, the limitation for filing of the written statement under CPC for non-commercial suits and under the Commercial Courts Act for commercial suits would be applicable for filing of an application under Section 8. In view thereof, the Court concluded that the maximum period would be 90 days for ordinary civil suits and 120 days for commercial suits."

26. It is admitted that the appellants/defendants first put in appearance before the learned trial court in the original suit on 04.10.2024. Thereafter, the appellants/defendants filed an application under Order XXXIX Rule 4 CPC for modification of the interim injunction and also filed applications under other provisions of law, thereby consistently participating in the proceedings of the original civil suit. However, within the stipulated period of 90 days, the appellants/defendants did not file a written statement before the learned trial court.

27. The appellants/defendants have taken the plea that they had not yet filed their first statement on the substance of the dispute, and that the aforesaid applications cannot be be considered as such, as only the written statement is to be treated as the first statement on the substance of the dispute. The appellants/defendants have, however, consistently participated in the matter and filed various applications, including an application under Order XXXIX Rule 4 CPC. Despite the expiry of the stipulated period of 90 days for filing the written statement, the appellants/defendants did not file any application under Section 8 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996.

28. The submission of the appellants/defendants that the period of 90 days is directory and not mandatory cannot be accepted in the present case. Such relaxation may be considered where the defendants have failed to submit the written statement within the stipulated period despite due diligence. However, in the present case, the appellants/defendants consistently participated in the proceedings and filed applications under various provisions of law, yet neither submitted a written statement within 90 days nor filed an application under Section 8 of the Act within the said period.

29. The appellants/defendants have also failed to satisfy the Court that they complied with the provisions of Section 8(2) of the Act. It is an admitted position that the application under Section 8(1) of the Act was filed on 23.01.2025, which is clearly beyond the stipulated period of 90 days. The appellants/defendants cannot be permitted to invoke the process of law at their convenience and without due diligence.

30. In view of the facts and circumstances of the case, and the nature of the dispute between the parties in Original Suit No. 963 of 2025, this Court is of the view that there is neither any illegality nor irregularity in the impugned order dated 15.07.2025 passed by the Additional District Judge-I, Hapur, in Civil Appeal No. 24 of 2025 (M/s Vardhman Rollers Flour Mills v. Rajendra Sharma and others), arising out of Original Suit No. 174 of 2024.

31. Accordingly, the appeal is liable to be dismissed and is hereby dismissed.
