1. Heard learned counsel for the applicant, learned counsel for the complainant and learned Additional Government Advocate for the State and perused the record.

2. The prosecution story as alleged in the first information report is that the marriage of daughter of the complainant was solemnised two years ago, with the applicant. The accused persons being unsatisfied with the dowry demanded additional dowry along with 4-wheeler. It is further alleged that she advised many times, but they were not satisfied. Hence, on 4.1.2020, the accused persons hanged the daughter of the complainant after killing her.

3. Learned counsel for the applicant submits that the independent witness Raghvendra Shukla has not supported the prosecution case. He has stated that the deceased has committed suicide. The door was locked from inside. The information was given to the in-laws of the applicant. The door was opened after applying force several times. He has denied the fact that the applicant had ever demanded dowry.

4. The learned counsel has drawn attention of this court towards the photograph of the brother of the deceased who is shown trying to open the door by applying force which was locked from inside by kicks.

5. It is further submitted that the applicant side has given an application to District Magistrate, Hardoi dated 5.1.2020 to get post-mortem done under supervision of a senior officer. Accordingly, Chief Medical Officer, Hardoi was directed and thereafter post mortem was conducted. In the post mortem, following injuries (page 21 of the paper book) have been found :

8. He has also submitted that applicant was doing a job in bank on contract basis in Lucknow. The deceased being ambitious lady wanted to reside in Lucknow and was exerting pressure to live there, however, economic, condition of the applicant was not such, therefore, he could not bring her to Lucknow. It is submitted that due to this fact, she became annoyed and committed suicide.

10. It is further submitted that there is no possibility of the applicant of fleeing away after being released on bail or tampering with the witnesses. In case the applicant is enlarged on bail, he shall not misuse the liberty of bail.

11. Learned A.G.A. and learned counsel for the complainant have opposed the prayer for bail but could not dispute the fact that findings in the post mortem are suggestive of a case of suicide/hanging.

12. Considering the facts and circumstances of the case, including the fact that the charge-sheet has been filed, out of ten, only one witness has been examined so far, applicant has no criminal history, arguments advanced by learned counsel for the parties, for the period for which he is in jail and without expressing any opinion on the merits of the case, I find it to be a fit case for enlarging the applicant on bail and accordingly, the bail application is allowed.

13. Let the applicant Sumit Kumar Gupta, involved in Case Crime No.06/2020, under sections 498-A, 304-B I.P.C. and sections 3/4 D.P. Act, P.S. In case of default of this condition, it shall be open for the trial court to treat it as abuse of liberty of bail and pass orders in accordance with law.

14.	482 of 2021	2/3 of U. P. Gangsters & Anti Social Activities (Prevention) Act.	Not applied for bail.

5. Learned counsel for the applicant next submitted that the applicant has been acquitted in two cases (Sr. No. 2 and 3), two cases (Sr. No. 4 and 6) in which proceedings have been lapsed after acquittal in case at Sr. No.2, he has no criminal antecedent during the period of 2008 to 2018 and the applicant has been implicated in 10 other criminal cases out of 14 cases by the police of same police station, which are not heinous in nature. The applicant has been granted bail in all the cases except one case Sr. No. 14. The applicant has not undergone any imprisonment after conviction by any court in respect of any offence.

6. It is further submitted that co-accused Furkan, Mehraj, Irshad and Mehtab, having similar criminal antecedent, have been granted bail by the Co-ordinate Benches of this Court vide orders dated 22.7.2021, 2.8.2021, 3.9.2021 and 11.8.2021 in Criminal Misc. Bail Application Nos. 16512 of 2021, 21946 of 2021, 16991 of 2021 and 29317 of 2021 respectively. Copies of bail orders have been annexed as Annexure RA-1 to the rejoinder affidavit. It is next contended that there is no possibility of the applicant either fleeing away from the judicial process or tampering with the witnesses. The applicant is languishing in jail since 1.2.2021, undertakes that he will not misuse the liberty, if granted. It has also been pointed out that in the wake of heavy pendency of cases in the court, there is no likelihood of any early conclusion of trial.

7. Per contra, learned A.G.A. has opposed the prayer of bail and submitted that the applicant is a hardened criminal and having long criminal history. After collecting sufficient credible evidence against the applicant and other co-accused charge sheet has been submitted. In case the applicant is released on bail, he will again indulge in similar activities and will misuse the liberty of bail.

8. The duty of the Courts with regard to the liberty of citizen has been considered by the Supreme Court in Arnab Manoranjan Goswami v. State of Maharashtra, (2021) 2 SCC 427, wherein it was observed thus:

"67...Courts must be alive to the need to safeguard the public interest in ensuring that the due enforcement of criminal law is not obstructed. The fair investigation of crime is an aid to it. Equally it is the duty of courts across the spectrum - the district judiciary, the High Courts and the Supreme Court - to ensure that the criminal law does not become a weapon for the selective harassment of citizens. Courts should be alive to both ends of the spectrum - the need to ensure the proper enforcement of criminal law on the one hand and the need, on the other, of ensuring that the law does not become a ruse for targeted harassment. Liberty across human eras is as tenuous as tenuous can be. Liberty survives by the vigilance of her citizens, on the cacophony of the media and in the dusty corridors of courts alive to the rule of (and not by) law. Yet, much too often, liberty is a casualty when one of these components is found wanting.

70. More than four decades ago, in a celebrated judgment in State of Rajasthan v.

Balchand1 Krishna Iyer, J. pithily reminded us that the basic rule of our criminal justice system is "bail is not jail"2. The High Courts and courts in the district judiciary of India must enforce this principle in practice, and forego that duty, leaving this Court to intervene at all times. We must in particular also emphasise the role of the district judiciary, which provides the first point of interface to the citizen. Our district judiciary is wrongly referred to as the "subordinate judiciary". It may be subordinate in hierarchy but it is not subordinate in terms of its importance in the lives of citizens or in terms of the duty to render justice to them...."

9. It is settled position of law that bail is the rule and committal to jail is an exception in the case of State of Rajasthan Vs. Balchand @ Baliay (1977) 4 SCC 308, the Apex Court observed that refusal of bail is a restriction on the personal liberty of the individual guaranteed under Article 21 of the Constitution and opined in para 2 "The basic rule may perhaps be tersely put as bail, not jail, except where there are circumstances suggestive of fleeing from justice or thwarting the course of justice or creating other troubles in the shape of repeating offences or intimidating witnesses and the like, by the petitioner who seeks enlargement on bail from the court. We do not intend to be exhaustive but only illustrative" and considering the facts of the present case and keeping in mind, the ratio of the Apex Court's judgment in the case of Gudikanti Narasimhulu And Ors vs Public Prosecutor, High Court Of Andhra Pradesh, AIR 1978 SC 429, larger mandate of Article 21 of the constitution of India, the nature of accusations, the nature of evidence in support thereof, the severity of punishment which conviction will entail, the character of the accused-applicant, circumstances which are peculiar to the accused, reasonable possibility of securing the presence of the accused at the trial, reasonable apprehension of the witnesses being tampered with, the larger interest of the public/State and other circumstances, but without expressing any opinion on the merits, I am of the view that it is a fit case for grant of bail. Hence, the present bail application is allowed.

10. Let applicant, Imran be released on bail in the aforesaid case crime number on his furnishing a personal bond and two reliable sureties of the like amount to the satisfaction of the court concerned with the following conditions-

(i) The applicant shall not directly or indirectly make any inducement, threat, or promise to any person acquainted with the facts of the case so as to dissuade him from disclosing such facts to the court or to any police officer or tamper with the evidence.

(ii) The applicant shall not pressurize/intimidate the prosecution witnesses.

(iii) The applicant shall remain present, in person, before the trial court on the dates fixed for (i) opening of the case, (ii) framing of charge and (iii) recording of statement under Section 313 of Cr.P.C.

(iv) The applicant shall file an undertaking to the effect that he shall not seek any adjournment on the dates fixed for evidence when the witnesses are present in the trial court.

(v) The applicant shall remain present before the trial court on each date fixed, either personally or through his counsel.

11. In case of breach of any of the above conditions, it shall be a ground for cancellation of bail. It is clarified that anything said in this order is limited to the purpose of determination of this bail application and will in no way be construed as an expression on the merits of the case. The trial court shall be absolutely free to arrive at its independent conclusions on the basis of evidence led unaffected by anything said in this order.

12. The party shall file computer generated copy of such order downloaded from the official website of High Court Allahabad, self attested by the applicant alongwith a self attested identity proof of the said person (preferably Aadhar Card) mentioning the mobile number to which the said Aadhar Card is linked.

13. The concerned Court/ Authority/ Official shall verify the authenticity of such computerized copy of the order from the official website of High Court Allahabad and shall make a declaration of such verification in writing.

HELD:-Entire modus oprendi adopted by the police, wherein the applicant has been lifted from his residence and planted in the present case, puts the entire prosecution story doubtful. 2. Pleadings are exchanged between the parties and the matter is ripe for final submissions on merit.

3. Personal appearance of all the police officials pursuant to the earlier order of this Court dated 15.11.2021 is hereby exempted.

4. By means of the present bail application the applicant, who is facing prosecution in connection with Case Crime No.0356 of 2021, u/s 8/20 of N.D.P.S. Act, P.S.-Phase-2, District-Gautam Budh Nagar, is seeking his enlargement on bail during trial. The applicant is in jail since 14.6.2021.

5. Shri Shrikrishna Shukla, learned counsel for the applicant has drawn attention of the Court to the F.I.R. lodged by the Sub Inspector Ram Chandra Singh, P.S. Phase-II, NOIDA of Gautam Budh Nagar Commissionerate on 14.6.2021 at 13.34 hours against the lone named accused person Lalit Gupta u/s 8/20 of N.D.P.S. Act at P.S Phase-II, Gautam Budh Nagar with the allegation that the informant, who is Sub Inspector, along with his team members and co-accused Sonu to burst a bigger racket dealing in the psychotropic substance, went to Kakrala 112 Feet Road, the accused Sonu indicated a person sitting over the culvert, that he is a person who deals with the psychotropic substance. The police personnel overpowered that person and caught hold of him. He disclosed his name as Lalit Gupta s/o Ramesh Chandra Gupta, Police Station -Sasni, District -Hathras. The nabbed accused himself disclosed that the plastic gunny bag which he is having, contains cannabis (Ganja) and thereafter a usual formality of asking the accused for alleged frisking in front of Gazetted Officer, as contemplated under Section 50 of the N.D.P.S. Act, was made by the informant and the samples of psychotropic substance were made for its testing. The total recovery shown is 29.600 Kgs. of cannabis in four packets, said to have been carried by the applicant without any valid license.

6. The bail application of the applicant was rejected by the learned Additional District & Sessions Judge/F.T.C.-2, Gautam Budh Nagar on 02.07.2021. Hence this bail application.

7. It is contended by counsel for the applicant that till date there is no laboratory report is on record to substantiate that the alleged seized substance is cannabis. Secondly, it was contended that the mandatory requirement of Section 50 of the N.D.P.S. Act has not been followed and as mentioned above, it was a mere formality of the F.I.R. by the informant. There is no independent witness to the alleged recovery, though the incident said to have been taken place in broad day light in an open area. In Para-18 of the affidavit the applicant himself has disclosed that from the Year 2001 to 2017 the applicant has got criminal antecedents of 11 cases, out of which only three cases relate to N.D.P.S. Act and rest of cases are of Section 60 of the Excise Act. Since the applicant is a resident of P.S.- Sasni, District- Hathras, and as such, interestingly all the 11 cases to the credit of applicant relate to P.S. Sasni, Hathras. From the criminal antecedents of the applicant, it is evident that there is no case registered outside the district Hathras against the applicant. In fact, it is a first case of P.S. Phase-II, Gautam Budh Nagar Commissionarate. In all these cases the applicant has been bailed out and facing trial. After 2017 there is no other case to the credit of the applicant.

8. Besides this, the primary argument made by the learned counsel for the applicant is that the way and the manner in which the applicant is being involved/dragged in the case is depictive of a typical approach by the police and a false implication by them in nabbing the applicant. Learned counsel for the applicant has filed supplementary affidavit dated 25.8.2021, in which he has tried to expose the typical approach by the police, who for the reason best known to them, nailed the applicant in the present offence. It has been contended by learned counsel for the applicant in the supplementary affidavit that the applicant was, in fact, lifted from his residence at Teacher's Colony Sasni Kotwali, District Hathras by four masked persons in civil dress. A CCTV has recorded every movement of the act of lifting of the applicant by those four persons. The wife of the applicant, who is a typical house maker, was advised by her relatives to make a complaint to the Superintendent of Police, Hathras narrating the entire story for the alleged abduction of her husband by four-five masked persons from her residence on 11.6.2021 around 7.45 P.M. After receipt of said application from the wife of the applicant, S.P. Hathras on his own wisdom entrusted the inquiry to one Shri Vipin Kumar Yadav, S.I. who submitted its report on 5.8.2021. The said report was received by the applicant's wife through R.T.I., and as such, she received that inquiry report on 5.8.2021.

9. In the said inquiry report, given by Shri Vipin Kumar Yadav, addressed to C.O. City

Harhras dated 5.8.2021 has made a startling revelation. This was indeed an eye-opener for those who are often indulged in such type of mal-practices. Said report is quoted herein below :

10. Today, when the case is taken up, Shri M.C. Chaturvedi, learned A.A.G., assisted by Shri S.K. Pal, learned G.A. candidly and fairly conceded the fact that there are excesses made on the part of the police of concerned police station. There is neither any Aamad Report at the police station at Hathras nor the police personnel were in proper dress, nor any proper process was issued by the concerned court to arrest such type of persons. This lifting of the applicant was affected way back on 11.6.2021 by those unnamed, masked persons and S.I. Ram Chandra Singh, in order to win the laurels of his senior officers, created a sham prosecution story implicating the applicant in this offence. It is simply a pitiable on the part of the informant, who brought down the esteem of the police to the shambles. There seem that the image of police. No doubt, the applicant has a criminal history of 11 cases, but no one has got an authority to add one more to his credit without having any substantial and credible evidence. In the criminal law there is an aged old phrase "GIVE A DOG BAD NAME AND SHOOT HIM" and the police has done so in the present case.

11. The applicant himself is facing the misery of his own conduct but on account of his past credentials the police personnel are not authorized to add one more to his credit. The entire arrest is flimsy, fallacious and based on a make-believe theory.

The Court records its strongest exception and concern about the way and the functioning of the police. The Court expects from the S.S.P. Gautam Budh Nagar to take a stringent criminal action against the informant of the present F.I.R. and identify all those four-five masked persons in a civilian dress, who lifted the applicant from his residence on the odd hours of the night without any authority or reason, after holding an internal departmental inquiry by him alone, and if they are found guilty, the S.S.P., Gautam Budh Nagar is further directed to lodge an F.I.R. against all the erring persons including the informant of the Case Crime No.356 of 2021, P.S.- Phase II, G.B. Nagar as well as all the four-five persons who were masked and pounced upon the applicant from his residence, lifted him and booked him in the present offence without any rhyme or reason and intimate the Court by filing a proper affidavit before the Court concerned i.e. the learned Additional District & Sessions Judge/F.T.C.-II, Gautam Budh Nagar latest by 31st December, 2021 as stringent action would also be taken against the S.S.P. concern for the willful defiance of this Court's order.

12. The Court further expects that the entire modus oprendi adopted by the police, wherein the applicant has been lifted from his residence and planted in the present case, puts the entire prosecution story is "obscura nubes dubiorum" (under the dark cloud of doubts). The alleged seizure of psychotropic substance too is a doubtful proposition and makes entire prosecution story as a malicious prosecution and the arrest an illegal one.

13. The Court appreciates the assistance provided by Shri M.C. Chaturvedi, learned A.A.G., who fairly conceded the drawbacks and the loopholes of the prosecution.

14. Taking into account the manner and the way in which the applicant has been lifted and involved in the present case and keeping in view the nature of the offence, evidence on record regarding complicity of the accused and without expressing any opinion on the merits of the case, the Court is of the view that the applicant has made out a case for bail. The bail application is allowed.

15. Let the applicant Lalit Gupta, who is involved in aforementioned case crime be released on bail on his furnishing a personal bond and two sureties each in the like amount to the satisfaction of the court concerned subject to following conditions. Further, before issuing the release order, the sureties be verified.

(i) THE APPLICANT SHALL FILE AN UNDERTAKING TO THE EFFECT THAT HE SHALL NOT SEEK ANY ADJOURNMENT ON THE DATE FIXED FOR EVIDENCE WHEN THE WITNESSES ARE PRESENT IN COURT. IN CASE OF DEFAULT OF THIS CONDITION, IT SHALL BE OPEN FOR THE TRIAL COURT TO TREAT IT AS ABUSE OF LIBERTY OF BAIL AND PASS ORDERS IN ACCORDANCE WITH LAW.

(ii) THE APPLICANT SHALL REMAIN PRESENT BEFORE THE TRIAL COURT ON EACH DATE FIXED, EITHER PERSONALLY OR THROUGH HIS COUNSEL. IN CASE OF HIS ABSENCE, WITHOUT SUFFICIENT CAUSE, THE TRIAL COURT MAY PROCEED AGAINST HIM UNDER SECTION 229-A IPC.

(iii) IN CASE, THE APPLICANT MISUSES THE LIBERTY OF BAIL DURING TRIAL AND IN ORDER TO SECURE HIS PRESENCE PROCLAMATION UNDER SECTION 82 CR.P.C., MAY BE ISSUED AND IF APPLICANT FAILS TO APPEAR BEFORE THE COURT ON THE DATE FIXED IN SUCH PROCLAMATION, THEN, THE TRIAL COURT SHALL INITIATE PROCEEDINGS AGAINST HIM, IN ACCORDANCE WITH LAW, UNDER SECTION 174-A IPC.

(iv) THE APPLICANT SHALL REMAIN PRESENT, IN PERSON, BEFORE THE TRIAL COURT ON DATES FIXED FOR (1) OPENING OF THE CASE, (2) FRAMING OF CHARGE AND (3) RECORDING OF STATEMENT UNDER SECTION 313 CR.P.C. IF IN THE OPINION OF THE TRIAL COURT ABSENCE OF THE APPLICANT IS DELIBERATE OR WITHOUT SUFFICIENT CAUSE, THEN IT SHALL BE OPEN FOR THE TRIAL COURT TO TREAT SUCH DEFAULT AS ABUSE OF LIBERTY OF BAIL AND PROCEED AGAINST HIM IN ACCORDANCE WITH LAW.

(v) THE TRIAL COURT MAY MAKE ALL POSSIBLE EFFORTS/ENDEAVOUR AND TRY TO CONCLUDE THE TRIAL WITHIN A PERIOD OF ONE YEAR AFTER THE RELEASE OF THE APPLICANT.

16. In case of breach of any of the above conditions, it shall be a ground for cancellation of bail.

17. It is made clear that observations made in granting bail to the applicant shall not in any way affect the learned trial Judge in forming his independent opinion based on the testimony of the witnesses.

18. Since the bail application has been decided under extra-ordinary circumstances, thus in the interest of justice following additional conditions are being imposed just to facilitate the applicant to be released on bail forthwith. Needless to mention that these additional conditions are imposed to cope with emergent condition-:

1. The applicant shall be enlarged on bail on execution of personal bond without sureties till normal functioning of the courts is restored. The accused will furnish sureties to the satisfaction of the court below within a month after normal functioning of the courts are restored.

2. The party shall file computer generated copy of such order downloaded from the official website of High Court Allahabad.

3. The computer generated copy of such order shall be self attested by the counsel of the party concerned.

4. The concerned Court/Authority/Official shall verify the authenticity of such computerized copy of the order from the official website of High Court Allahabad and shall make a declaration of such verification in writing.

19. However, it is made clear that any wilful violation of above conditions by the applicant, shall have serious repercussion on his/her bail so granted by this Court and the trial court is at liberty to cancel the bail, after recording the reasons for doing so, in the given case of any of the condition mentioned above.

A. Criminal Law - Conviction based on circumstantial evidence - It is a settled law that to convict a person based on circumstantial evidence there must be a chain of circumstance so far complete as not to leave any reasonable ground for a conclusion consistent with the innocence of the accused and it must be such as to show that within all human probability the act must have been done by the accused. (Para 19)

Based on the abovementioned principle of law, the Court observed that the evidence of the deceased being last seen alive with the accused-appellant, on or about noon time, is not reliable and trust worthy and is liable to be discarded. Thus, the prosecution has failed to prove the circumstance of the deceased being last seen alive with the appellant beyond reasonable doubt. (Para 24)

INTRODUCTORY FACTS IN A CHRONOLOGICAL ORDER

2. (i) On 08.05.2019, at about 14.29 hours, a missing report (Ex. Ka-1) was lodged by Sharif Khan (PW-1), which was registered as Case Crime No.367 of 2019 at P.S. Civil Lines, District Rampur (Ex. Ka-6), wherein it was alleged that his daughter Zoya (the deceased), aged 6 years, on 07.05.2019, at 12.30 hours, wearing Firozi (dark blue) coloured knickers, had gone from her house to fetch curd but did not return and, despite hectic search, could not be found.

(ii) On 22.06.2019, at about 19.07 hrs PW-1 gave a written report (Ex. Ka-2) to the police stating therein that on receipt of information on 22.06.2019 that in Kashiram Colony, in a semi-built house, a body has been found, he reached the spot and from the slippers (Chappals), lying close to the body, and the clothes covering the body, he could identify the body as that of his daughter Zoya. Of this report there is G.D. Entry No.071, dated 22.06.2019, at 19.07 hrs (Ex. Ka-15).

It be noted that neither in the missing report (Ex. Ka-6) nor in the written report (Ex. Ka-2) any suspect is named.

(iii) After receipt of information with regard to discovery of a body, on 22.06.2019 inquest proceeding is carried out at the spot i.e. where the body was found, and completed by about 20.35 hours by Sub-Inspector Rohit Yadav (PW-6), who also prepares the inquest report (Ex. Ka-8). Inquest witness are: (a) Sharif (PW-1); (b) Aazam; (c) Junaid; (d) Farid; and (e) Rameshwar Prasad. Civil Lines, District Rampur in respect of the encounter that allegedly took place at 21.10 hrs on 22.06.2019. Both these reports are lodged at the instance of S.I. Rohit Yadav (PW-6). One is registered as Case Crime No.457 of 2019 under Section 307 IPC; and the other is registered as Case Crime No.458 of 2019, under Section 3/25 of the Arms Act, both against the appellant (Nazil). (viii) On 23.06.2019, by about 3 pm, post-mortem examination of the body is carried out by Dr. O.P. Rai (PW-4). The post-mortem report (Ex. Ka-4) describes the body as follows:-

Further, in the opinion of the doctor, cause and manner of death was uncertain; viscera recovered from cervical, pelvic & cephalic region was preserved for forensic examination. The time of death was estimated as one and one-half month before.

(ix) On 25.06.2019, while the appellant (Nazil) was in District Jail Hospital, Rampur, permission was sought to record his statement. After obtaining permission, at 14.25 hours, Inspector Radhey Shyam (PW-8) allegedly records the statement of Nazil, entry of which is made in CD Parcha No.15. According to the prosecution, Nazil confessed his guilt and stated that he had taken Zoya to that semi-built house with a bottle of oil to be used as a lubricant for intercourse and when he attempted the intercourse, Zoya caught hold of his hair and pulled them as a result several of his hair might have fallen on the spot which he could get recovered. He also stated that the bottle of oil was hidden by him in a room in that semi-built house which he alone can get recovered.

(x) On 26.09.2019, Inspector Radhey Shyam (PW-8) moves application for police custody remand to effect recovery.

(xi) On 27.06.2019, police custody remand from 10 am to 5 pm of 28.06.2019 is allowed.

(xii) On 28.06.2019, the appellant is taken from jail in a police vehicle. As per record, he was taken out from the vehicle on a stretcher to effect recovery of his hair lying on the spot and the bottle of oil allegedly hidden by him. Recovery/ seizure memo (Ex. Ka-21) was prepared, which has no public witness. The seizure memo reflects that on 28.06.2019, at 9.45 hours, a police team, comprising Inspector Radhey Shyam (PW-8); Sub-Inspector Harendra Kumar; Constable Rakesh Kumar; Constable Imran Ali; Constable Yogendra Singh; and Constable Bhupendra Singh, with driver Head Constable Dalvir Singh went to District Jail, Rampur. At 9.55 hours, they enter the District Jail and, pursuant to the order of the court dated 27.06.2019, after getting entries in the register and medical examination of the accused-appellant, at 10.32 hours, take the accused to the spot. The Field Unit Team, headed by Shiv Kumar Chaudhary, is informed about their intended visit to the spot. When they arrive at the spot, the Field Unit Team with Sri Shiv Kumar Chaudhary is present. The accused gestures to stop the vehicle. The accused points towards the house where he had committed rape on Zoya and the place where Zoya had pulled his (accused's) hair and the place where he had hidden a bottle of oil. The seizure memo notes that by gestures, the accused guided the police party to the upper floor. On the upper floor, the accused took them to a bathroom type Kothri (small room) to point out the spot where he committed the crime and disclosed that the hair pulled from his head by Zoya are lying scattered here and there. It is recorded in the seizure memo that the accused requested for light, which was provided from the torch light of mobile phones, whereafter, the accused picked up the hair lying there, which were kept in transparent plastic polythene, provided by the Field Unit Team headed by Shiv Kumar Chaudhary, and sealed at 13.30 hours. After which, the accused took the team to the lower floor where there was a door-less Kothri (small room). It is recorded that there, from near the electricity board, he lifted a bottle of oil and told the police that this is that bottle which he had used to lubricate his organ for commission of rape. It is recorded that this bottle of oil was handed over to the Incharge of the Field Unit, namely, Shiv Kumar Chaudhary; and the bottle was kept in a polythene and a plastic jar and sealed for the purposes of obtaining finger print.

(xiii) The incriminating material was dispatched to the Forensic Science Laboratory, U.P. The receipt of which, provided by Forensic Science Laboratory, was brought on record as Exhibit Ka-23.

(xiv) On 02.08.2019, PW-8 prepared and submitted charge sheet (Ex. Ka-26) against the appellant under section 363, 302, 376AB IPC and section 5/6, Pocso Act.

(xv) On 05.09.2019, the trial court charged the appellant for commission of offences of kidnapping, murder and rape of a minor punishable under Sections 302, 376-AB and 363 IPC; and Section 5(m)/6 of the Pocso Act. The appellant denied the charges and claimed trial.

(xvi) The blood sample of the accused Nazil; the hair sample of the accused Nazil; hair recovered from the spot; Baniyan (upper garment) and Knickers (lower garment) recovered from the body of the deceased, were all sent for forensic examination and to collect evidence including DNA profiling. The report of the Forensic Laboratory, U.P., Lucknow (Exhibit-36) indicated that the DNA profile of the blood of the accused matches with the DNA profile of the hair recovered from the spot. The forensic examination of the upper and lower garment of the deceased disclosed presence of allele (a form of a gene) with male characteristic but only partial DNA profile could be generated. Similarly, only a partial DNA profile of the hair collected from Nazil could be generated. The forensic report in respect of skull; hyoid bone; scalp skin; teeth; and tissue obtained from cervical, pelvic and cephalic region, was also obtained but it did not disclose presence of any kind of poison. The bottle of oil recovered from the spot was sent for finger print expert report. The finger print expert report was produced and marked as Ex. Ka-28. The finger print expert report indicated that the disputed sample No.5561 matched with sample No.5567; whereas the disputed sample Nos.5563, 5564, 5565 did not indicate sufficient characteristic to enable matching; and the sample No.5560 was blurred. It be noted that according to the report, the sample Nos. 5562 to 5575 were obtained from right hand whereas sample Nos.5576 to 5577 were obtained from left hand of the accused.

(xvii) In the trial, eight prosecution witnesses were examined, namely, Sharif (PW-1) Informant - Victim's father; Rahima (PW-2) - Victim's sister -witness of the deceased last seen with the appellant; Guddu Khan (PW-3) - witness of the deceased last seen with the appellant; Dr. O.P. Rai (PW-4) - Doctor who conducted autopsy; Kuldeep Kumar (PW-5) - police personnel who entered missing report; Rohit Lal Yadav (PW-6) - the first Investigation Officer (I.O.) who conducted inquest and effected arrest of the appellant on 22.06.2019 and proved papers in connection therewith; Rishipal Singh (PW-7) - the second I.O. who conducted investigation since 23.06.2019 - he took written application from PW-1 on 23.06.2019 and recorded clarificatory statement of PW-1 - prepared site plan (Ex. Ka-19) from where body of Zoya was recovered and video-graphed the confessional statement of the appellant made to the police, when he was arrested after encounter, from his mobile; Radhey Shyam (PW-8) - the third I.O. - he proved - recording of disclosure statement of the appellant made on 25.06.2019 while he was in district jail hospital - taking the appellant on police custody remand - making of recovery on 28.06.2019 - preparation of site plan (Ex Ka-37) of recovery - dispatch and receipt of materials for forensic examination - submission of charge sheet - receipt of forensic reports.

(xviii) On 24.10.2019 an application no.30 Kha, submitted by the appellant to summon the mother of Zoya, who was listed as prosecution witness in the charge sheet, and the doctor of District Hospital, Rampur as well as the record to prove injury report, dated 22.06.2019, i.e. Paper No. 16 Kha/29 (supra) of the appellant, was rejected by the trial court on the ground that the prosecution has prayed to discharge Zoya's mother and the injury report was prepared in connection with the encounter case, which would be tried separately.

(xix) On 02.11.2019, the incriminating circumstances appearing in the prosecution evidence were put to the appellant for recording his statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. In his statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C., the appellant admitted that a girl named Zoya had gone missing. But denied the allegation that on 07.05.2019, he was with Zoya and that informant's daughter Rahima had seen him with Zoya. He stated that the entire story was subsequently developed and it finds no mention in the report dated 08.05.2019. He denied that he was with Zoya and was spotted by PW-2 (Rahima) near the Talab. In respect of the testimony of PW-3 (Guddu Khan), he stated that he is brother-in-law of Sharif (PW-1) and that on account of being relative of PW-1, he is giving a false statement. In respect of incriminating material recovered, he stated that false recovery is shown by police to set up a false case to save themselves because they showed a false encounter. He denied having made any disclosure statement and stated that the police had prepared the documents sitting at the police station. He stated that the police had injured him, and on gun point got the disclosure statement signed from him. He stated that he committed no offence; that the police had arrested him on 22.06.2019 from taxi stand and they framed him in this case. He also stated that the police had forcibly pulled his hair to show recovery. He also stated that after he was injured, the police to save themselves had called Sharif to the police station and asked him to submit a written application against him. He reiterated that the entire police action is to save themselves and that the police recovered nothing from him. In addition to what is noticed above, he stated that Sharif's (PW-1's) wife's brother, namely, Azam, is also a taxi driver like him. He had taken the appellant's taxi and got that taxi involved in an accident. In connection with which, he had a fight with Azam and because of this enmity, Sharif had made false allegation and the police to show good work that they have solved the case, framed him and they took him to a secluded place and shot him on both his leg and the police in collusion with Sharif has falsely implicated him.

(xx) On 28.11.2019, the trial court rejected another application no.34 Kha of the appellant, under section 311 CrPC, for summoning the doctor, who examined the appellant on 22/23.06.2019, and the Ballistic Expert to demonstrate that the recovery of country made pistol and the cartridge in the encounter was bogus.

(xxi) On 29.11.2019, the appellant moved another application 37 Kha to bring on record certified copy of his injury report dated 22.06.2019, already on record as paper no.16 Kha/29, as paper no.39 Kha.

(xxii) On 02.12.2019, defence witness (DW-1) - Nazim - was examined to disclose that Guddu Khan (PW-3) is relative of Sharif and is a resident of some other place. On this date, the trial court also disposed off application 37 Kha by directing that the certified copy of the medical report of the appellant dated 22.06.2019 be taken on record though it was not assigned an exhibit number.

(xxiii) On 6.12.2019, the trial court concluded the arguments and on 13.12.2019 conviction order was passed followed by pronouncement of sentence on 18.12.2019.

FINDINGS RETURNED BY TRIAL COURT

3. The trial court, after considering the evidence brought on record, concluded that from the testimony of PW-1 and PW-2 it is proved that, the victim Zoya, aged 6 years, was to go with her elder sister (PW-2) to fetch curd in between 12.15 and 12.30 hrs of 07.05.2019. But, she did not go with her sister, rather her sister went alone and the victim sat with the appellant on an E-Rickshaw parked outside her house; that, the appellant and informant party are neighbours and knew each other therefore, there was no reason to be suspicious about the appellant; that, on that day, there was a fire in the colony hence there was lot of commotion and confusion; that, when victim's elder sister (PW-2) was returning, after getting curd, she saw the appellant and the deceased moving together towards Tashka Talaab; that, PW-3 also saw them together as seen by PW-2; that, thereafter, about an hour later, the appellant was seen returning alone and when he was asked about Zoya, he gave no clear reply; that, Zoya was not seen alive thereafter; that, her body was found on 22.06.2019; that, the autopsy report disclosed fracture of skull, suggesting a case of homicide; that, on arrest the appellant confessed his guilt; that, on his disclosure statement, there was recovery of hair and oil bottle from the spot which, when read with forensic evidence, confirms appellant's presence at the scene of crime thereby, completing the chain of circumstances and, in absence of plausible explanation from the appellant, pointed towards his guilt of having committed the offences for which he had been charged by ruling out all other exculpatory hypothesis. The trial court thus, convicted the appellant as above and upon finding that it was a case where a minor girl, aged 6 years, was raped and murdered, awarded death sentence. As a death sentence requires confirmation by the High Court, a reference has been made to the High Court, which has been registered as Reference No.1 of 2020.

4. We have heard Sri N.I. Jafri, learned Senior Counsel, assisted by Ms. Nasira Adil, for the appellant; Sri J.K. Upadhyay, learned A.G.A., for the State; and have perused the record.

SUBMISSIONS

5. Assailing the judgment and order of conviction and sentence, learned counsel for the appellant submitted as follows:-

(i) The trial court has not tested the prosecution evidence and, without putting the same to scrutiny, accepted the prosecution evidence as gospel truth. Such a decision is no decision in the eyes of law.

(ii) The evidence of the deceased being last seen alive with the appellant is unacceptable and completely unreliable for the following reasons:

(a) Admittedly, the missing report (Ex. Ka-1), lodged on 07.05.2019, and the written report (Ex. Ka-2) given on 22.06.2019, after discovery of body, suspects none. Even the written report (Ex. Ka-3) given by the informant (PW1) on 23.06.2019 does not put forth the theory of last seen;

(b) From the testimony of prosecution witnesses PW-1; PW-2 and PW-3, it appears that they were fully aware from 7.5.2019 itself, that is even before lodging the missing report, that the deceased had been with the appellant when she was last seen alive. If it was so, that is had the deceased been last seen alive with the appellant, in a span of 45 days, appellant's name would have definitely surfaced as a suspect. More so, because the appellant was known to the informant party from before, being a neighbour of the informant.

Thus, the last seen story is bogus and a figment of imagination, developed on police pressure, after the encounter, to save the police from searching questions and to give them a medal of having solved the case. Even otherwise, the last seen evidence is not of much consequence because no body saw the appellant entering the house (place where the body was found) with the deceased or leaving that house on or about the time of incident. Further, proximity between the place where the deceased was last seen alive with the appellant and the place from where the body was recovered has not been established. Consequently, this evidence by itself can not form basis of conviction.

(iii) That the investigation is tainted and destroys the credibility of the prosecution case. In this regard following circumstances are relevant:

(a) No effort was made to test the credibility of information as to whether the appellant had any involvement in the crime and straight away the appellant is subjected to arrest by use of force. Notably, inquest was completed at 20.35 hrs on 22.06.2019, during which, according to police witnesses, oral information was received with regard to the appellant having a hand in the crime, immediately thereafter, without testing that information, the police by constituting a team proceeds to arrest the appellant even though nothing is there to suggest that the appellant was absconding. And, at 21.10 hrs on 22.06.2019, the appellant is arrested, after an encounter, as a suspect, even though, by that time, there is no entry in the police records with regard to the appellant being a suspect. This casts a serious doubt on the bona fides of the investigation and taints the investigation with an indelible scar;

(b) All stages of the investigation, though by different officers, were from the same police station and, therefore, discredits the alleged disclosure statement as well as the alleged recovery. More so, when there is no public witness to support the same;

(c) Another aspect that casts serious doubt on the bona fides of the investigation is that the report of the night encounter is not made till 06.18 hours of 23.06.2019. All of this indicates that the police, to save themselves from searching questions in respect of the alleged encounter, contrived a story that, during the course of inquest, the police were orally informed that the appellant had a hand in the murder of Zoya. To support this false story, a written report (Ex. Ka-3) was obtained, vide G.D. No.27 (Ex. Ka-18), in the morning of 23.06.2019, at 10.57 hrs, from PW-1, confirming that he gave oral information during the course of inquest proceeding. Importantly, in this written application (Ex. Ka-3) too, it is not disclosed that the deceased was last seen with the appellant by any person, at a specified place and time, on 07.05.2019. All of this suggests that the author of that application (Ex. Ka-3) had no conviction in the statement made therein and that the police wanted a free hand to develop the story as per its convenience;

(d) The taint in the investigation gets amplified with what happened thereafter. Notably, no disclosure statement leading to discovery of a material fact is made on 22.06.2019 when the appellant allegedly confessed his guilt to the police, which was video-graphed by the I.O. from his mobile phone but, immediately thereafter, when a new I.O. (PW-8), from the same police station, steps in, he allegedly records a disclosure statement on 25.06.2019, while the appellant is in District Jail Hospital, which is not witnessed by a member of public, or any independent person, and, three days later, on 28.06.2019, effects recovery, which again is not witnessed by a member of public or any independent person. All of this demonstrates that the investigation was not fair and was only with a view to nail the appellant;

(e) From the testimony of prosecution witnesses it appears that when the body was discovered at the spot there were bottles, etc. No recovery memo of that was made and no effort was undertaken to test whether there could be involvement of any other person;

(f) That the place from where the body was recovered is an open semi-built house having access to all but no effort was made to find out as to who all were entering and leaving that house over the relevant period;

All these circumstances confirm that the investigation was not fair and either, it was with a view to nail the appellant by solving the case some how, or, to save the police from searching questions in respect of the encounter that allegedly took place in the night of 22.06.2019.

(iv) That the alleged recovery of hair and the bottle of oil from the spot at the pointing out and on the basis of disclosure statement of the appellant is all cooked up and has no support of a public witness. The disclosure statement has been obtained from the appellant on gun-point to build the prosecution case and justify illegal police action, which was nothing short of gross misconduct on the part of the police. The disclosure statement becomes highly doubtful also for the reason, that in the earlier confessional statement made to the police, immediately after encounter, video-recorded from mobile, nothing is there with regard to the presence of hair or bottle of oil at the place of the incident therefore, no sanctity could be attached to the subsequent disclosure statement as well as to the recovery, not witnessed by any member of public. More so, when the appellant was injured with gunshot injuries on his leg and was scared for his life. Otherwise also, it would not be prudent to accept that strands of hair of the appellant would be lying on the spot of a semi-built house, having access to all, particularly from where the body has been found and where inquest was held, that too, after 50 days of the incident. Recovery story is therefore completely unbelievable and has been thoroughly explained by the appellant.

(v) That the trial court has not considered the explanation of the appellant in his statement recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C. wherein he stated that his hair were pulled out from his head and sealed to show that they were recovered from the spot; and that the entire exercise was carried out on paper and he was forced to sign at gun point. It has been submitted that the aforesaid explanation fits perfectly with the string of circumstances emanating from the prosecution evidence and appears logical and believable, inter alia, for the following reasons:-

(a) That scene of crime from where hair were recovered, is a spot already discovered as there the body was found on 22.06.2019; the police had already scanned the spot to find out incriminating material, if any, therefore, there remained no possibility of presence of any further incriminating material;

(b) That the circumstance of finger prints found on the oil bottle matching with that of the appellant is of no consequence because, firstly, the bottle was planted and false recovery was shown and, secondly, admittedly, in the seizure memo it is recorded that the bottle was lifted by the appellant and given to the police. Thus, if it was lifted and handed over by the appellant to the police, the existence of finger prints on the bottle stood explained from the seizure memo itself.

(vi) That there is no forensic or medical evidence to confirm rape; and the confessional statement made before the police, in that regard, being not admissible, conviction under section 376AB IPC and section 6 Pocso Act has no basis.

(vii) That even if the appellant is considered guilty it is not a case for capital punishment.

6. Per contra, learned A.G.A. submitted that the prosecution evidence is reliable; that there is no specific material elicited during cross-examination, or produced, to demonstrate that the police or investigating officer was inimical to the appellant; that, admittedly, the appellant and the victim were neighbours and there was no occasion to draw suspicion against him therefore, delay in naming the appellant is not fatal to the prosecution case; that the time since when the deceased went missing gets fixed from the missing report and, from the prosecution evidence, shortly before that, the deceased was seen in appellant's company, and was not seen thereafter therefore, the burden was on the appellant to explain as to when he parted company. The appellant instead of giving an explanation made a false denial, therefore, this should be read as an incriminating circumstance against the appellant. Otherwise also, merely because the appellant was arrested after an encounter, in which he might have suffered injuries, is not a valid reason to doubt the recovery. Hair of the appellant falling on spot, on being pulled by the victim, is quite natural and, therefore, it cannot be said that the recovery is bogus. Further, the DNA profile of the recovered hair matches with the DNA profile of the blood sample obtained from the appellant. Thus, the presence of the appellant on the spot is proved, which, in absence of explanation, is sufficient to record conviction. Learned A.G.A. further submitted that absence of independent public witness is not always fatal to recovery as the police witnesses have proved the recovery. Moreover, the appellant has disclosed no personal enmity with the police personnel. He also submitted that the presence of finger prints of the appellant on the bottle of oil is also an incriminating circumstance. Even though the seizure memo reflects that the bottle of oil was lifted and provided by the appellant to the police but, from the testimony of PW-8, it is clear that the bottle was lifted from cap/crown and therefore, the presence of finger prints on the bottle existed from before and were not imprinted on account of the bottle being lifted at the time of preparing the seizure memo. He submitted that, under the circumstances, the prosecution has been successful in proving the charges framed against the appellant and since, it is a case of brutal rape and murder of a six years old girl, the death penalty awarded by the court below is liable to be confirmed.

7. Having considered the rival submissions, before we proceed to examine the weight of the respective submissions, it would be useful to notice the oral testimony of the prosecution witnesses, which is as follows:-

PROSECUTION EVIDENCE

8. PW-1 (Sharif) (informant) -the father of the victim. He states that he had four children, now, only three remain, after death of Zoya. On 07.05.2019, at 12.30 hours, he saw his elder daughter Rahima (PW-2) and victim Zoya coming downstairs to go to fetch curd. At that time, Nazil (the appellant) was sitting in front of the house on a rickshaw. When he saw the girls, Nazil called Zoya. At that stage, PW-1 went upstairs. 15-20 minutes later, Rahima (PW-2) returned alone with the curd. When he asked Rahima (PW-2) as to where Zoya is, she told him that Zoya is with Nazil Bhai near Tashka Talab. When Zoya did not return, thinking that she may be nearby, his wife Huma (not examined) started calling for Zoya. But when she did not respond, they started inquiring about Zoya. As, despite search, she could not be found, they lodged missing report (Ex. Ka-1) on the next day. He stated that the police also searched for Zoya but she could not be found. On 22.06.2019, when he was in his house, 2-3 persons came from near Tashka Talab and told him that a girl child's body has been discovered. On receiving information, they went to that place, which is a semi built house. On its upper floor, in a small room, body was noticed. From body structure, clothes and slippers he could gather that it was Zoya's body. On information, the police arrived. A written report (Ex. Ka-2) was given by him to the police. The police conducted inquest proceedings, of which, he was one of the witnesses. He proved his signature on the inquest report (Ex. Ka-8). He stated that near the body of his daughter a packet of oil, one cigarette, Chappal of Zoya was seen. Zoya's body had clothes, namely, knickers and vest (Baniyan). He states that on the next day, he gave a written report (Ex. Ka-3) scribed by Guddu (PW-3). He stated that he suspected Nazil from before. But, now, after recovery of the body, he was convinced that the culprit is Nazil and nobody else. He stated that he says so because his daughter Rahima (PW-2) had seen Nazil with Zoya.

In his cross examination, he stated that he had been residing in the colony for the last 10-12 years; below his quarter is the quarter of Guddu Bhai; Nazil with his family resides just in front of his quarter in another quarter; that he saw Nazil (the accused) sitting on an e-rickshaw at about 12.15 hours and thereafter, he went inside the house; that, on that day, there was a fire in the colony, as a result, there was a lot of commotion; that he searched for his daughter and must have searched 17-18 quarters; in the night also, he searched with the aid of a torch and the search continued till 1.30 AM in the night. He also searched for his daughter in fields as well as Talaab (pond) and when there was no success, he reported the matter to the police on the next day. The report was written by Fazil on his dictation. He stated that on the same day the police inquired from him. He told the police that she had gone to fetch curd. He stated that he had inquired from the shopkeeper selling curd but he does not remember the name of the shopkeeper. He stated that the police had also scanned the pond to find out whether Zoya had drowned. He denied the suggestion that he received information from a lady named Seema that his daughter has been sold to Banjaras (nomadic tribe). He stated that, on 22.06.2019, the children of Kashiram Colony had discovered the body first, and then, three persons from village Tashka, informed him with regard to discovery of the body and by the time he reached the spot, a number of persons had gathered there. Later, the police also arrived and there were media men as well. The media persons had also photographed him but they had not recorded his statement. He stated that the police had inquired from him as to whom he suspected and on that day when the body was discovered, he gave a written report (Ex. Ka-2). He stated that that report must have been given at 7.30 pm. Thereafter, the police conducted the inquest proceeding and after inquest, they took his statement and prepared site plan. He stated that from the place where the body was found, the police had also lifted a packet of yellow oil and cigarette; and they had lifted all articles from near the spot. He stated that he had recognised the body with the help of clothes and slippers. He stated that inside the house, there was darkness but, things were recovered in the light of a torch. Apart from those two articles, nothing else was recovered from the (Kothri). However, on search of Kothri, as well as the house, from where the body was recovered, liquor bottles were found outside that room. He stated that on the next day of recovery of the body, he had given another written application (Ex. Ka-3). He stated that inference with regard to the involvement of Nazil was drawn from the circumstance that Nazil was with his daughter on that day, which information came to him from his elder daughter Rahima (PW-2). On further questioning, he stated that he had got information on 07.05.2019 itself that Zoya had gone with Nazil; and that he asked Nazil on 07.05.2019 about Zoya. But Nazil replied by saying that he does not know. He stated that he had suspected Nazil but was not sure till recovery of Zoya's body. He admitted that he never expressed his suspicion against Nazil to the police before. He stated that his quarter is about 400-500 paces away from the spot where the body was found. He stated that Nazil was arrested by the police on the same day when the body was recovered though, he did not know from where the arrest was made. He admitted that Nazil has a taxi. He denied the suggestion that on 22.06.2019 when the accused (Nazil) was in lockup, he had gone to serve him dinner. He stated that in his presence, after inquest proceedings, the body was sealed by the police. The police queried him then as well as on the next day. Thereafter, on the following day, police recorded the statement of his wife and daughter (Rahima). In his cross examination, upon suggestion of motive for false implication, he admitted that Azam is his brother-in-law and a driver. He, however, denied having knowledge about his brother-in-law taking taxi of Nazil and getting it involved in an accident, resulting in a fight between Nazil and Azam. He also denied knowledge of threat extended by Azam to Nazil in that connection. He also denied the suggestion that the fight had taken place just below his quarter. He denied the suggestion that he is telling lies in collusion with the police to provide support to the police case.

9. PW-2 (Rahima) - Elder daughter of Sharif (PW-1), aged 9 years, and is elder sister of the deceased Zoya. The court recorded her statement after putting questions to her to ascertain whether she understands the gravity of speaking the truth. Upon finding her competent, the court proceeded to record her statement. The witness stated that on the date when Zoya went missing, it was a fasting day (Roza). Her mother asked her and Zoya to get curd (Dahi). It must have been noon when she and her sister came down. Nazil was sitting on a rickshaw. He called Zoya. Zoya started talking to him whereas, she (PW-2) proceeded to fetch curd. When she was returning after getting curd, she saw Nazil with Zoya near Talaab (pond). When she called Zoya, Nazil told her to go and that Zoya will come. When she (PW-2) went upstairs to her quarter, her mother asked her about Zoya and she informed her mother that Zoya is with Nazil Bhai near Talaab. PW-2 stated that when her sister did not return, her mother and father went in search for Zoya. Within one hour, Nazil Bhai was seen returning alone. But Zoya was not with him. Her mother and father inquired from Nazil about Zoya. To which, Nazil responded in a mumbling tone that he does not know.

In her cross examination, she stated that the police had been visiting her house daily, morning and evening, and they had been taking her including her parents in a Jeep. Her father had told the police not to come till Teeja but the police did not agree and they have brought them for their statement and therefore, she is here to give her statement. She further stated that Nazil's quarter is just in front of her quarter. The rickshaw was parked on the side, which was visible and Nazil Bhai was sitting on the rickshaw. Her mother had given her Rs.10/- to go with Zoya to get curd. She had gone to a new shop at the Puliya (culvert). She did not remember the time taken by her to get the curd. She stated that when she was returning after getting curd, she saw Nazil Bhai going towards Maidan Talaab. When her mother asked her about Zoya, she told her that she has gone with Nazil Bhai near Maidan Talab. At that time, her father was present in the house. She stated that her mother and father had gone in search of Zoya immediately thereafter, though she does not know the place they visited. It must be an hour later, that her father and mother met Nazil Bhai. On being queried about Zoya, Nazil Bhai stated that he does not know. She stated that this question was put to Nazil in her presence. She further stated that, thereafter, her parents did not take Nazil to search for Zoya as, at that time, Nazil was intoxicated. On being questioned, she stated that she does not know whether Nazil has any addiction of any kind of intoxication. On being questioned further, she stated that she does not know about intoxication. She stated that body of her sister was found about one and one-half months later and information of that was given by one vegetable vendor Babu Bhai. She also stated that one Mulla had told her father that his daughter has been sold by one Seema. She admitted that Nazil has a car which belongs to his father (Nazim). She also stated that Nazil was not searching for Zoya. She stated that, at 12 noon, in the colony there was fire. She stated that by the time she returned after taking curd, it must have been 1 pm. She stated that she does not remember as to when police had inquired from her about the incident. She also stated that from her quarter to Tashka Talaab, there are houses on both sides, where people reside. She stated that she does not know the distance between Tashka Talab and the spot from where the body was recovered. She denied the suggestion that the police had tutored her to state what she has stated. She stated that she is aware that in court after taking oath, one has to state the truth. She also denied the suggestion that she is lying.

10. PW-3 (Guddu Khan) -a resident of Kashi Ram colony. He stated that on May 7, 2019, at about noon, there was a fire in Kashiram Colony. Hearing the noise, he came out of his house and saw Nazil sitting with Sharif's daughter Zoya on an e-rickshaw and talking to her. Thereafter, he left to see where the fire was. He took 10 minutes to return and saw Nazil and Zoya going towards Tashka Talaab. Thereafter, he got busy in his own work. One hour later, he saw mother and father of Zoya standing below Puliya (culvert) searching for Zoya. At that time, he also came out of his house to see Nazil returning from near the Talaab. Zoya's mother questioned Nazil about Zoya to which he hurriedly replied by saying that he does not know. At that time, Nazil was under influence of some intoxicant. After body was found from the vacant house near Tashka Talaab, they all suspect that Nazil is the perpetrator of the crime.

In his cross examination, he stated that he saw Zoya going with Nazil at around 12-12.30 hours. Later, within an hour or so, he saw Nazil returning alone. PW-3 stated that he does not know whether Nazil's mother and father inquired from Nazil about Zoya. He stated that he saw Sharif's wife asking from Nazil about Zoya near Puliya (culvert), which is just 4-5 paces from Sharif's house. He could not remember whether Zoya's mother and father had inquired from Nazil's mother and father. He stated that he also did not ask Nazil's mother and father about Zoya. On return, Nazil went upstairs to his quarter whereas Zoya's parents kept searching for her. He had also searched for Zoya and got an announcement made in the Masjid. He however did not remember the time spent by Nazil with Zoya sitting on the rickshaw. He stated that the curd shop is quite far from Zoya's house though, he does not know the distance. He stated that he had not gone to see the body when it was found. But when he had reached the spot, the police were stopping people from entering the house. He stated that he has not signed any paper on the spot where the body was found but, two or more times, the police had come and got his signature though, the police did not put any question to him. He denied the suggestion that he has settled in the colony only since last one or one and half months. He stated that his quarter is next to Nazil's quarter. He denied the suggestion that he had broke open the lock and forcibly occupied the house and is therefore, lying. He also denied the suggestion that he entered into a fight with Nazil under influence of liquor and had threatened him. He, however, admitted the suggestion that he has given a report that Nazil was threatening him not to give statement. He denied the suggestion that because he is Bahnoi (sister's husband) of Sharif he is lying.

11. PW-4 (Dr. O.P. Rai). He had conducted the autopsy he proved the postmortem report and its contents, which have already been noticed above. He stated that it is possible that death could have occurred on 07.05.2019 at about 12.30 hours on account of injury on the head and neck. He stated that no evidence of any acid on the body was found. He, however, made no disclosure with regard to the possibility of the deceased being subjected to sexual assault.

12. PW-5 (Constable Kuldeep Kumar). He proved the G.D. Entry of the first information report made on 08.05.2019.

13. PW-6 (S.I. Rohit Yadav) - the first I.O. He stated that upon receipt of missing report on 08.05.2019, he visited the spot, recorded statement of Sharif Khan (PW-1) and prepared site plan (Ex. Ka-7) showing the location of the house from where Zoya went missing. He searched for the victim; took the photographs of the victim from the informant, circulated the same in the media; recorded the statement of Constable Kuldeep Kumar; on 09.05.2019 inquired from Ali Ahmad, curd shop owner; took the statement of independent witnesses Amit Kapoor and Ashok Babu and distributed pamphlet; and on 10.05.2019, checked CCTV footage from Max Hospital located in front of Kashiram Colony but could get no information. On 10.05.2019, the statement of neighbour Nazil was also recorded. The information of the missing girl child was also uploaded on the website. On 11.05.2019, statement of informant's neighbours was recorded but no information could be collected. On 12.05.2019, again, search operation was carried out at various places. Similarly, on 13.05.2019, search was carried out but no information could be gathered. This process of search continued. On 22.06.2019, at 7.07 PM, information was received from the informant about recovery of his daughter's body from a semi built house at village Tashka. On receipt of information, he, with his team, went to the spot for inquest and prepared inquest report. He proved various papers in connection with inquest proceedings and with regard to sealing and forwarding the body for autopsy. He stated that during inquest proceeding, he recorded a clarificatory statement of the informant and, thereafter, he left in search of Nazil and when he reached Ambedkar Park Crossing, he received information from an informer that the person responsible for the death of Zoya is near the Mazhaar, close to Ashram Paddhati School. On receiving that information, he and his team reached the spot and, in the light of the vehicles, spotted Nazil. When the vehicle reached near Nazil, he started to walk fast and when he was requested to stop, he fired at the police. The police returned fire. After which, the police heard him crying. Consequently, firing was stopped and Nazil was arrested with a country made pistol and two live cartridges. On being inquired, he disclosed his name as Nazil son of Nazim, a resident of 112/12 Kashiram Colony. He stated that as Nazil was arrested in an injured condition, he was brought to District Hospital, Rampur. On interrogation, Nazil admitted to having killed Zoya. He proved G.D. Entry No.71 (Ex. Ka-15), dated 22.06.2019, return G.D. Entry No.9 (Ex. Ka-16), dated 23.06.2019, at 6.18 hours, and also the arrest memo (Ex Ka-17).

In his cross examination, he admitted that after lodging the missing report, the informant had told him that Zoya had gone to fetch curd. He admitted that at that time the informant had not told him that Zoya was seen with Nazil on a rickshaw or was seen with Nazil at Tashka Talaab or that Nazil was seen coming alone. He admitted that no suspicion was expressed by the informant against Nazil and the site plan was prepared by him on the pointing out of the informant. He stated that at a marble shop, there is a CCTV camera and there is a CCTV camera at Max Hospital. Both the cameras had not captured anything material. He stated that on 10.05.2019, he had recorded the statement of Nazil and, on 11.05.2019, he had recorded the statement of Tabassum. Tabassum had told him that Zoya was seen playing at about 12 noon. The statement of Nusrat was also recorded who had seen Zoya at 8 am of that morning. He admitted that the case diary from 08.05.2019 up to 30.05.2019 has been prepared under his signature. He stated that Tashka Talaab is towards south of Block No.112 and people going towards Tashka Talaab will not be captured in the CCTV camera. He stated that the inquest proceedings had started at 7.30 pm and culminated by 8.35 pm. The body was found in the bathroom in a decomposed condition. Light on the spot at the time of Inquest was provided by mobile phone torches and there was sufficient light on the spot. He could not remember whether near the body, inside the Kothri, a yellow oil packet and a cigarette was found. He could not remember whether it was lifted and a seizure memo was prepared. He stated that he had not lifted the hair from near the body nor he remembers noticing them. He stated he reached Ambedkar Park at 8.45 pm and within 2-4 minutes, the informer came and soon thereafter, the Inspector Ramveer Singh came with his team and, immediately thereafter, Rishipal Singh (PW-7) arrived at 8.50 pm. He stated that by the time the informer had given the information, Rishipal Singh (PW-7) had not arrived. After getting information from the informer, the entire team proceeded towards Ashram Paddhati School, there were, in all, nine police men in Jeeps. In the encounter that followed, the accused was arrested and was sent to the hospital without Chitthi Majrubi. He denied the suggestion that the police had fired on both knees of the accused to threaten him and under threat that he would be killed, got his confessional statement. He stated that initially the accused was taken for primary care to Hospital, Rampur from there he was referred to Meerut. He stated that the entire night he was at the hospital and returned at the police station at 6.18 hrs. He denied the suggestion that the entire case has been falsely framed just to support the police case.

14. PW-7 (Inspector Rishipal Singh). He stated that on 23.06.2019, on account of Inspector Incharge Radhey Shyam being on leave, he was the Inspector (Incharge) at Police Station, Civil Lines, Rampur. The case, at that point in time, was being investigated by Rohit Yadav. After the encounter, on getting evidence of murder, the case was converted to one punishable under Section 302 IPC. On 23.06.2019 he took over the investigation. On 23.06.2019, vide G.D. Entry No.27, at 10.57 hours, Sharif Khan gave a written application (Ex. Ka-3) about the incident in which it was stated that during the course of inquest proceedings, he had disclosed to the police regarding involvement of Nazil son of Nazim in the rape and murder of Zoya and, therefore, section 376AB IPC and section 5 (m) / 6 Pocso Act were added. This GD Entry No.27 was marked Ex. Ka-18. He proved preparation of the site plan from where the body was recovered, which was marked Ex. Ka-19. He stated that the accused on his arrest had confessed to the police and that confessional statement was video-graphed with the help of mobile of which a compact disc has been prepared and sealed (Ex. Ka-20).

In his cross examination, he stated that when the investigation was taken over by him, the informant had given written report following which, his clarificatory statement was recorded wherein he stated about the involvement of Nazil as also that the information in that regard was passed on during the course of inquest proceeding. He, however, admitted that he did not ask the informant as to what was the basis of his suspicion against Nazil and as to why he gave no information to that effect earlier. He stated that the site plan (Exhibit Ka-19) from where the body was recovered was prepared by him on the next day at about 1.15 pm. He also stated that on the spot (near Kothri), half burnt cigarette butts and hair lying scattered were noticed by him but he had not disclosed their presence in the map prepared by him because he did not consider it to be necessary. He had also seen an oil packet in the Kothri though he did not disclose it in the site plan. He stated that he had scanned the upper floor of the house but did not scan the ground floor. He also tried to inquire from the neighbours of that house but they were not found. He denied the suggestion that the accused had not voluntarily confessed and that he was shot on the knees to forcibly extract a confession from him in police custody. He also denied the suggestion that the entire exercise was done to fortify the police case.

15. PW-8 (Inspector Radhey Shyam). He stated that he is the Inspector Incharge of P.S. Civil Lines, Rampur. He took over investigation of the case on 25.06.2019 under the orders of Circle Officer, City. After taking over the investigation, he went to record the clarificatory statement of Sharif Khan (informant), who stated that he is in mourning and is not in a position to get his statement recorded. On the same day, after obtaining permission of the Court, he went to Hospital of District Jail, Rampur where Nazil was in judicial custody and at 14.25 hours recorded his disclosure statement wherein Nazil confessed his guilt by stating -- that on the date of incident there was a fire in the colony. When everybody got busy in the fire, he took Zoya, in between 12 and 1 pm, to a semi built house in Gram Tashka and took her to the upper floor of the house. At that time he had a bottle of oil because he had intention to have intercourse with her. Upon entering the Kothri, he pounced on Zoya and after lubricating his organ with oil had intercourse. Zoya attempted to scream and pulled his hair. At that time, he strangulated her. He stated that his hair pulled from his head by Zoya, must be lying on the spot. He also stated that he had hidden the bottle of oil in that part of the house which he alone can tell. He stated that he can get the hair lying on the spot and the bottle of oil recovered. PW-8 stated that on 26.06.2019 an application for police custody remand was moved before the court to effect recovery of hair and bottle of oil. On 27.06.2019, police custody remand for 28.06.2019, from 10 am to 5 pm, was allowed. On 28.06.2019, PW-8 with his team took the accused from jail to the place of occurrence after informing the Field Unit Team Incharge Sri Shiv Kumar Chaudhary to be present at the place of occurrence. On reaching the spot, the accused Nazil pointed towards the place of occurrence. The accused was taken out of the vehicle on a stretcher and on his gestures, he was taken to the upper floor of the house where there was a bathroom shaped Kothri. The accused pointed that it was that very place where he raped the victim and it is here that the victim had pulled his hair from his head, which are lying on the spot and after collecting the hair lying on the spot, they were handed over to the Field Unit Incharge Shiv Kumar Chaudhary, who sealed them in a transparent plastic jar. Thereafter, Nazil took them to the lower floor and took out a bottle of oil from the electricity board of that Kothri. The bottle was held by the accused from its crown/cap. The bottle had some oil. The bottle was sealed for finger prints. He proved the recovery memorandums as well as the material exhibits produced before the court. He also proved various dispatches to forensic laboratory as well as forensic reports including collection of blood sample etc and papers and material exhibits in connection therewith. He also proved various stages of the investigation including collection of finger print, dispatch of sample, etc to the forensic laboratory and the reports obtained in pursuance thereto as well as submission of charge sheet.

In his cross examination, he stated that he had not obtained statement of Dr. Dashrath Singh who had examined the appellant. He stated that no certificate of the doctor was obtained while recording the statement of Nazil. He stated that at the time of recovery, Nazil was in a position to speak and gesticulate. He stated that he had failed to transcribe as to what the accused stated at the time of recovery. He stated that at the time when Rohit Yadav was investigating, the accused had made no confessional disclosure. He stated that on 23.06.2019, Inspector Rishipal Singh had recorded confession of which CD was prepared. He stated that the previous I.O. Rishipal Singh had only entered two case diary parchas. He came back from leave on 25.06.2019. He denied the suggestion that he had gone on leave just to save his skin from the fall out of the encounter. During cross examination, he stated that in the site plan prepared by the previous I.O. Rishipal Singh, no hair was shown lying on the spot i.e. Kothri where the offence was committed. Whereas in the map which he prepared on 28.06.2019 he had shown hair lying on the spot i.e. the same Kothri. He denied the suggestion that liquor bottles were found but not disclosed by him. He admitted that at the time of recovery and preparing the seizure memo there was no public witness of the recovery because when they were requested, they refused to be a witness. He, however, admitted that at the time of making seizure memo he had not incorporated that no public witness came forward despite request though he claimed that this omission in making a note was an inadvertent mistake. During his cross examination, on 15.10.2019, at internal page 15, bottom paragraph, he stated that the first statement of Sharif (the informant) was recorded on 08.05.2019 by Rohit Yadav and thereafter Rishipal Singh, Inspector, recorded the clarificatory statement of Sharif (informant) on 23.06.2019. He stated that he had recorded the statement of Guddu; the informant; informant's wife Huma; and informant's daughter Rahima on 31.07.2019 and their statements were taken at the door of their house at one go. He stated that inadvertently the name of informant's wife Huma was left out from the list of witnesses to support the charge sheet. In his cross examination, on 15.10.2019, he reiterated that the accused had lifted the bottle of oil from its cap but the finger prints of his palm and fingers were obtained to ensure that they could be compared with the finger prints available on the bottle. On being questioned with regard to the other case registered against the accused Nazil, he admitted that the accused had to be admitted in hospital at Meerut but the medical papers in respect of treatment offered to the accused at Meerut are not there in the records, as they may be part of that case. He denied the suggestion that he had pulled the hair from the head of the accused to show a false recovery. He denied the suggestion that the accused had made no disclosure in respect of hair and bottle of oil present on the spot. He denied the suggestion that public witness was not roped in to effect recovery because the recovery is bogus and fictitious. He denied the suggestion that at the spot, liquor bottle was seen. He denied the suggestion that the statement of prosecution witnesses was recorded in the police station while sitting at the table. He denied knowledge of Guddu being Bahnoi of Sharif. He denied the suggestion that the samples collected for forensic examination were not properly secured. He denied the suggestion that the X-ray report and supplementary report have deliberately not been produced to hide the gravity of injury suffered by the accused. He denied the suggestion that the investigation was carried out in a fraudulent manner. He denied the suggestion that the witnesses were forced to depose against the accused. He denied the suggestion that the accused was lifted in the evening of 22.06.2019 from a taxi stand and taken to a secluded place where he was shot at on his knees after putting wet Taat Ki Patti (Bandage) so as to threaten and coerce him into making a disclosure statement. At this stage, on the application of the prosecution, he was examined to prove site plan that was prepared at the time of the alleged recovery of hair and the bottle of oil, which, on his statement, was marked as Ex. Ka-37. On this statement, he denied the suggestion that all this was prepared while sitting at the police station.

16. The incriminating circumstances appearing in the prosecution evidence was put to the accused for recording the statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. The Statement made under Section 313 Cr.P.C. has already been noticed above. In addition to the explanation given in the statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C., the accused examined DW-1 Nizam as a defence witness.

17. DW-1 (Nizam). He stated that Guddu Khan is Sharif's real Bahnoi. He produced the voter list showing entry of the name of Guddu

Khan in the voter list to demonstrate that he had been a resident of another colony.

ANALYSIS OF THE EVIDENCE

18. Having gone through the entire evidence brought on record, in our view, in the prosecution evidence, following features stand out:

(i) Missing report lodged by Zoya's father (PW-1) on 08.05.2019, stating that Zoya went from home to fetch curd at 12.30 hours on 07.05.2019 and has gone missing, suspects none. Further, from the statement of PW-2, it is clear that Zoya did not go to fetch curd rather, she was with the accused-appellant and this fact was brought to the notice of PW-1, yet, PW-1 in his missing report mentions that Zoya had gone to fetch curd.

(ii) For as long as 45 days neither PW-1, nor any other person, informs the I.O. in respect of Zoya not having gone to fetch curd but having stayed with the accused-appellant even though, the I.O. had been in regular touch with the informant to get further information about the missing girl.

(iii) Even on recovery of the body on 22.06.2019, when the police is informed by the informant (PW-1) at 17.09 hrs on 22.06.2019, through a written report (Ex. Ka-2), regarding discovery of the body in a semi-built vacant house, of which GD Entry No.71 (Ex.Ka-15) is made on 22.06.2019, no suspicion of any kind is expressed against the accused-appellant.

(iv) Inquest proceeding starts within half an hour of receipt of information and culminates by 20.35 hrs (8.35 pm). The informant, amongst others, is a witness of the inquest and the first I.O. Rohit Yadav (PW-6) prepares the inquest report (Ex- Ka 8). The entry in the inquest report with regard to the opinion of the inquest witnesses is that Zoya has been killed by some unknown person even though, PW-6 states that during inquest the informant had given information with regard to the involvement of the appellant in the crime.

(v) Written application (Ex- Ka-3) is given by Sharif on 23.06.2019, by way of G.D. Entry No.27 (Ex. Ka-18) at 10.57 am, wherein, for the first time, the informant (PW-1) makes a statement with regard to his suspicion against the appellant (Nazil) and also makes a disclosure therein that he had given information with regard to the involvement of Nazil (the appellant) during the course of inquest proceedings. But, interestingly, Radhey Shyam (PW-8), the third I.O., in his cross examination, on 15.10.2019, at internal page 15, makes a significant statement, which is extracted below:-

''सीडी में वादी शरीफ का पहली बार ब्यान दिनांक 08.05.19 को श्री रोहित यादव विवेचक द्वारा लिया गया था। तत्पश्चात श्री ऋषिपाल सिंह इन्सपैक्टर द्वारा वादी शरीफ का मजीद बयान दिनांक 23.06.19 को लिया गया।''

This indicates that no formal statement of Sharif (PW-1 - the informant) with regard to the involvement of Nazil (the appellant) in the crime was there in the case diary till 23.06.2019.

(vi) Written application (Ex- Ka-3) given by the informant on 23.06.2019 though refers to the satisfaction of the informant (PW-1) with regard to the involvement of Nazil (the appellant) in the crime but gives no basis for such satisfaction or reason for his suspicion. The written application (Ex. Ka-3) fails to disclose that the victim (the deceased) instead of having gone to fetch curd, as had been the story thus far, had actually remained with the appellant and was seen going towards Tashka Talaab with the appellant on that fateful day.

(vii) The place from where the recovery of the body was made is an open, semi-built vacant house. It is not demonstrated in the evidence that it had limited or restricted access. This implies that it had access to all. The Inquest was carried out in presence of torch light on 22.06.2019 thereafter, on the next day (23.06.2019), the second I.O. (PW-7 - Rishipal Singh) prepared site plan (Ex. Ka-19) after again visiting the spot with the informant and mentioned nothing substantial in the site plan with regard to presence of any incriminating material or article on the spot. Whereas, the place from where recovery of hair of the appellant on 28.06.2019 is shown, is the same Kothri, on the first floor of that semi-built house, where the body was discovered, inquest was held on 22.06.2019 in the presence of witnesses and the second I.O. (PW-7) visited it to prepare the site plan (Ex. Ka-19) on 23.06.2019.

19. Before we proceed further, considering that we are dealing with a case which is to be decided on the basis of circumstantial evidence, it would be useful to notice the legal principles to be borne in mind when a criminal trial is to be decided on the basis of circumstantial evidence. Where the evidence is of a circumstantial nature, the circumstances from which the conclusion of guilt is to be drawn should, in the first instance, be fully established and all the facts so established should be consistent only with the hypothesis of the guilt of the accused. Again, the circumstances should be of a conclusive nature and tendency and they should be such as to exclude every hypothesis but the one proposed to be proved. In other words, there must be a chain of circumstances so far complete as not to leave any reasonable ground for a conclusion consistent with the innocence of the accused and it must be such as to show that within all human probability the act must have been done by the accused (vide Hanumat Govind Nargundkar & Anr. V. State of Madhya Pradesh, AIR 1952 SC 343; Sharad Birdhichand Sarda V. State of Maharashtra, (1984) 4 SCC 116). In Vijay Shankar V. State of Haryana, (2015) 12 SCC 644, the Supreme Court following its earlier decisions in Sharad Birdhichand Sarda (supra) and Bablu V. State of Rajasthan, (2006) 13 SCC 116, in respect of a case based on circumstantial evidence, held that "the normal principle is that in a case based on circumstantial evidence the circumstances from which an inference of guilt is sought to be drawn must be cogently and firmly established; that these circumstances should be of a definite tendency unerringly pointing towards the guilt of the accused; that the circumstances taken cumulatively should form a chain so complete that there is no escape from the conclusion that within all human probability the crime was committed by the accused and they should be incapable of explanation of hypothesis other than that of the guilt of the accused and inconsistent with their innocence". Further, (vide paragraph 153 of the celebrated judgment in Sharad Birdhichand Sarda's case) the circumstances from which the conclusion of guilt is to be drawn should be fully established meaning thereby they 'must or should' and not 'may be' established. In addition to above, we must bear in mind that the most fundamental principle of criminal jurisprudence is that the accused must be and not merely may be guilty before a court can convict and the mental distance between 'may be' and 'must be' is long and divides vague conjectures from sure conclusions (vide Shivaji Sahabrao Bobade & Another v. State of Maharashtra, (1973) 2 SCC 793). These settled legal principles have again been reiterated in a three-judge Bench decision of the Supreme Court in Devi Lal v. State of Rajasthan, (2019) 19 SCC 447 wherein, in paragraphs 18 and 19 of the judgment, it was held as follows:-

"18.On an analysis of the overall fact situation in the instant case, and considering the chain of circumstantial evidence relied upon by the prosecution and noticed by the High Court in the impugned judgment, to prove the charge is visibly incomplete and incoherent to permit conviction of the appellants on the basis thereof without any trace of doubt. Though the materials on record hold some suspicion towards them, but the prosecution has failed to elevate its case from the realm of "may be true" to the plane of "must be true" as is indispensably required in law for conviction on a criminal charge. It is trite to state that in a criminal trial, suspicion, howsoever grave, cannot substitute proof.

19. That apart, in the case of circumstantial evidence, two views are possible on the case of record, one pointing to the guilt of the accused and the other his innocence. The accused is indeed entitled to have the benefit of one which is favourable to him. All the judicially laid parameters, defining the quality and content of the circumstantial evidence, bring home the guilt of the accused on a criminal charge, we find no difficulty to hold that the prosecution, in the case in hand, has failed to meet the same."

20. Having noticed the prosecution evidence and the legal principles governing decision of a criminal trial on circumstantial evidence, we notice that in the instant case, the prosecution seeks to bring home the guilt of the accused appellant by proving following circumstances: (a) that the deceased was last seen alive with the accused-appellant on or about 12.30 or 13.00 hrs on 07.05.2019 going towards Tashka Talaab and, thereafter, the deceased was not seen alive; (b) that on 22.06.2019 the body of the deceased was recovered from a Kothri on the first floor of a semi-built house; (c) the autopsy report suggests that the deceased died a homicidal death; (d) that the autopsy report confirms that death could have been caused on or about the time when the deceased was last seen with the accused-appellant; (e) that on the disclosure made by the accused-appellant and at his pointing out hair strands were recovered from that Kothri which, upon DNA matching, were confirmed to be of the appellant; (f) likewise, a bottle of oil bearing finger prints of the appellant was also recovered at the instance of the appellant from another place of that house, which confirms the presence of the appellant at that place.

21. Now, we shall examine as to whether the prosecution has been able to successfully prove all the circumstances narrated above. Before we proceed further, we may observe that the prosecution has been successful in establishing the following circumstances in respect of which there is hardly any dispute even in statement of the accused-appellant recorded under section 313 CrPC. These circumstances are: (i) that informant's daughter went missing since the afternoon of 07.05.2019; (ii) that on 22.06.2019 her mummified body (with all organs and orifices missing) was discovered lying in a Kothri on the first floor of a semi-built house; and (iii) that from the autopsy report dated 23.06.2019 it appeared that her death could be homicidal and could have occurred a month and a half back that is on or about 07.05.2019. Therefore, what we have to carefully examine is whether the circumstance of the deceased being last seen alive with the accused on or about 12.30 hrs on 22.06.2019 has been proved beyond doubt; and whether there was a recovery of incriminating material, noticed above, on the disclosure, and pointing out, of the accused-appellant.

Circumstance of the deceased being last seen with the appellant

22. First, we shall analyse the evidence in respect of the circumstance of the accused-appellant being last seen with deceased on or about noon time of 07.05.2019. Before we dwell on this issue we may observe that, ordinarily, the circumstance of the deceased being last seen alive with the accused may alone not be sufficient to record conviction (vide Nizam V. State of Rajasthan, (2016) 1 SCC 550; Navneetakrishnan V. State, (2018) 16 SCC 161; and Kanhaiya Lal v. State of Rajasthan, (2014) 4 SCC 715). But, it is an important link in the chain of circumstances that could point towards the guilt of the accused with some certainty. The last seen theory comes into play where the time-gap between the point of time when the accused and the deceased were last seen alive and when the deceased is found dead is so small that the possibility of any person other than the accused being the author of the crime becomes impossible. It would be difficult in some cases to positively establish that the deceased was last seen with the accused when there is long gap and possibility of other persons coming in between exists (vide State of U.P. V. Satish, (2005) 3 SCC 114). Similar is the view taken in Ramreddy Rajesh Khanna Reddy & Another V. State of A.P., (2006) 10 SCC 172, where, following the decisions in State of U.P. V. Satish (supra) and Bodhraj V. State of J & K, (2002) 8 SCC 45, in paragraph 27 of the judgment, it was held that "the last seen theory, furthermore, comes into play where the time-gap between the point of time when the accused and the deceased were last seen alive and the deceased is found dead is so small that possibility of any person other than the accused being the author of crime becomes impossible. Even in such cases the courts should look for some corroboration." Here, no doubt, the time-gap between the deceased being last seen alive with the appellant and recovery of the body is so large that last seen theory by itself would not be sufficient to nail the accused but the prosecution has put forth evidence of recovery as well, therefore, we would have to meticulously examine each of the two circumstances.

23. In so far as the evidence of the deceased being last seen alive with the accused on 07.05.2019 around noon time is concerned it does not inspire our confidence for the following reasons:

(i) In the missing report which was lodged on 08.05.2019 by PW-1, the father of the deceased, it is specifically stated that the deceased had gone to fetch curd on or about noon time of 07.05.2019 but she did not return thereafter whereas, in the testimony of both PW1 and PW2 (elder sister of the deceased), during trial, the story is that though the deceased was to go to fetch curd with her elder sister (PW-2) but she did not go as she was called by the appellant, who was sitting on an e-rickshaw and, thereafter, they (i.e. the deceased and the appellant) were seen going towards Tashka Talaab. Importantly, from the testimony of PW-2 it is clear that she had informed her mother (not examined) in the presence of her father (PW1) that day itself that the deceased did not go with her to get curd but was with the accused-appellant. The question that now arises is that, if it was so, where was the occasion to mention in the missing report that she (Zoya) had left her house to fetch curd. This improvement in the prosecution story to introduce the theory of last seen, which was not there initially, shrouds the last seen theory with grave suspicion.

(ii) The last seen theory was developed too late. For 45 days, that is till the discovery of body, there was no last seen theory. Even when the body was discovered, in the written information (Ex. Ka-2), given on 22.06.2019, no last seen theory is there. Importantly, even in the written application (Ex. Ka-3), given on 23.06.2019, though suspicion against the accused-appellant is expressed but the basis of such suspicion, including the last seen theory, is conspicuous by its absence. In fact, this last seen theory is developed only after the police arrests the accused-appellant in the alleged police encounter. This inordinate delay in making a disclosure of highly incriminating circumstance, even though, the police had been regularly inquiring from the informant party, seriously dents the credibility of the last seen theory. In Kali Ram v. State of Himachal Pradesh, (1973) 2 SCC 808, the apex court had observed that :

"If a witness professes to know about a gravely incriminating circumstance against a person accused of the offence of murder and the witness kept silent for over two months regarding the said incriminating circumstance against the accused, his statement relating to the incriminating circumstance, in the absence of any cogent reason, was bound to lose most of its value."

No doubt, the aforesaid observations may not have application where the knowledge of the witness with regard to the incriminating circumstance against the accused of murder is inchoate and the witness is waiting for some material to convert his suspicion into belief. But here the accused and the informant party are next door neighbours therefore, if an incriminating circumstance had come to the notice of the informant it sure would have reached the police more so when it relates to a minor daughter, who has gone missing. Further, here, the informant had already approached the police with a missing report therefore, having knowledge of a gravely incriminating circumstance against a person yet, not bringing it to the notice of the police for as long as 45 days, seriously dents the credibility of the last seen theory. Unfortunately, the trial court overlooked this vital aspect of the matter.

(iii) The last seen theory does not get corroboration from the conduct of the appellant, as could be elicited from the prosecution evidence. Noticeably, in the testimony of both PW1 and PW2, the accused-appellant though, had left with Zoya on or about noon time of that fateful day but had returned back within an hour. Further, it is not the case of the prosecution that the appellant went hiding for some time or was not seen for a few days as is expected of a person having a guilty mind. Ordinarily, when a person commits a heinous crime, his natural reaction would be to avoid those who would be putting questions to him. But, here, the accused-appellant returned back within an hour and never hid himself or absconded.

(iv) In addition to what we have noticed above, there is an additional circumstance which dents the last seen theory and gives us an impression that it is an after thought, probably, at the suggestion of the police. This is so, because the last seen theory gains momentum only after police arrests Nazil (the appellant) after an alleged encounter. The question that immediately arises is whether at the time of effecting arrest there existed some cogent material/ evidence against the appellant that may convince the police to effect arrest with such promptitude, or was the arrest effected only to show good work to ward off media pressure. This question assumes importance because of what happened thereafter. Admittedly, a simple action of effecting arrest turned into an ugly encounter, in which gun shots had to be fired at the appellant resulting in gun shot injuries on the body of the appellant for which he had to be admitted in the Hospital in the night of 22.06.2019 and had to be referred to District Hospital Meerut. As the police admittedly suffered no injury in the encounter, naturally searching questions would come. Therefore, the question that crops up is whether to avoid searching questions in respect of the encounter, the police forced the informant to set up this story. Notably, it is the specific case of the appellant in his statement under section 313 CrPC as also by way of suggestion to the prosecution witnesses that the police shot the accused on both his legs from a close range to extract a confession and, in furtherance whereof, to save themselves from searching questions, took application from informant and staged a false recovery by pulling his hair. No doubt, no evidence in respect of that allegation has come nor could come because it is the accused alone who could say so, but it is well settled in law that the prosecution has to prove its case beyond the pale of doubt whereas, the accused would succeed if he, by his explanation, manages to create a reasonable doubt with regard to the correctness of the prosecution case (vide Hate Singh Bhagat Singh v. State of M.B., AIR 1953 SC 468; Reena Hazarika v. State of Assam, (2019) 13 SCC 289). When we examine the matter in that light, we find that till 22.06.2019, starting from the missing report dated 07.05.2019, there is no major development in the case. On discovery of body on 22.06.2019, the police swings into action and effects arrest within two hours. In Joginder Kumar V. State of UP, (1994) 4 SCC 260, it was observed: no arrest can be made in a routine manner on a mere allegation of commission of an offence made against a person. It would be prudent for a police officer in the interest of protection of the constitutional rights of a citizen and perhaps in his own interest that no arrest should be made without a reasonable satisfaction reached after some investigation as to the genuineness and bona fides of a complaint and a reasonable belief both as to the person's complicity and even so as to the need to effect arrest. These observations of the Supreme Court in Joginder Kumar's case have been noticed with approval in a recent three-judge Bench decision of the Supreme Court in Social Action Forum For Manav Adhikar And Another V. Union of India, (2018) 10 SCC 443. Therefore, now the question that arises is whether by evening / night of 22.06.2019 was there any such cogent material / information available with the police as against the appellant to warrant appellant's arrest forthwith. In this regard, Rohit Yadav (PW-6), who prepared the inquest report, states that during inquest proceedings he got information from the informant regarding involvement of the appellant in the murder of Zoya and immediately thereafter, he left in search of Nazil (the appellant) and reached Ambedkar Park crossing. This statement does not appear in sync with the statement of PW-8 who, as we have already noticed above, disclosed that the case diary indicates that after 08.05.2019 the clarificatory statement of the informant was recorded on 23.06.2019. Assuming that what Rohit Yadav (PW-6) stated related to oral information. But, inquest proceeding got over at 8.35 pm and till then, as appears in the inquest report, the opinion of the inquest witnesses, including the informant, was that the perpetrator of the crime was an unknown person. Whereas, from the statement of Rohit Yadav (PW-6), it appears, PW-6 was at Ambedkar Park Crossing, looking for the accused, immediately after the inquest, and effected arrest, after an encounter, at 21.10 hrs or 9.10 p.m. Relevant portion of the statement of Rohit Yadav, made during his cross examination on 19.09.2019, is extracted below:-

''अम्बेडकर पार्क पर मैं करीब आठ पैतालिस पर पहुंचा था। मुखबिर दो चार मिनट बाद आ गया था, इन्सपेक्टर रामवीर सिंह अपनी टीम के साथ पहुंच चुके थे। इन्सपेक्टर ऋषिपाल सिंह करीब आठ पचास के करीब आ गये थे। मुखबिर ने सूचना जब सभी को दी तो इन्सपेक्टर ऋषिपाल सिंह नही आये थे। इन्सपेक्टर ऋषिपाल सिंह के आने के बाद फिर हम लोग मुखबिर से सूचना प्राप्त करने के बाद आश्रम पद्धिति स्कूल के सामने दो जीपों से नौ पुलिस कर्मी पहुंचे''

From the above, it appears, within 10 minutes, PW-6, after completing the inquest proceedings, reaches Ambedkar Park, gets information from an informer regarding the location of Nazil (the appellant), and follows it up with an encounter with Nazil (the appellant) at 9.10 pm on 22.06.2019 itself. But, information of this encounter report is entered at the police station only in the morning of 23.06.2019 at 6.18 hours. When we notice the above sequence of events and the contents of application (Ex. Ka-3) given by the informant, wherein no material is disclosed as to the basis of suspicion against Nazil (the appellant), a reasonable doubt arises as to whether the Investigating Officer to show his good work and to justify his action i.e. the alleged encounter, took the written application from Sharif (PW-1) next day, just to put his record straight so as to demonstrate that his action was not mala fide but bona fide, and a consequence of receipt of credible information with regard to Nazil's (appellant's) involvement in the crime. The haste shown in the matter of arrest is inexplicable. More so, when nothing has come on record that the accused-appellant was hiding himself or was absconding.

When we take notice of all these circumstances, coupled with the fact that for nearly 45 days the informant and his family remained silent, expressing no suspicion against Nazil's (appellant's) involvement, and then, after the encounter, all of a sudden the last seen theory emerges, renders the last seen evidence completely unreliable and unworthy of credit.

24. In addition to above, from the statement of PW-2 (Rahima), a child, during her cross examination, it appears that the police had been visiting informant's house on a daily basis to ensure that these witnesses get their statement recorded. Notably, PW-2 makes a statement, the import of which she does not know, which is, that the accused on that fateful day (i.e. the day of incident) appeared intoxicated. When she was asked about the meaning of the word intoxicated, she states that she does not know. All of this not only suggests that the police was coming on regular basis to the house of the informant to create pressure that the informant and her daughter make their deposition in court but also that PW-2 could be tutored. In addition to above, the appellant has also given a reason for his false implication, which is, that his taxi was taken by a close relative of the informant who got it involved in an accident, resulting in a fight between the appellant and that close relative of the informant, giving rise to animosity. Although these few factors on their own might not be sufficient to discredit the last seen theory but when we take a conspectus of all the circumstances and reasons recorded above, we come to a definite conclusion that the evidence of the deceased being last seen alive with the accused-appellant, on or about noon time of 07.05.2019, is not reliable and trust worthy and is liable to be discarded. We are, therefore, of the considered view that the prosecution has failed to prove the circumstance of the deceased being last seen alive with the appellant beyond reasonable doubt.

Circumstance of Recovery

25. Now, we take up the issue whether the prosecution has been able to prove the circumstance of recovery beyond reasonable doubt. Notably, recovery of strands of hair and the bottle of oil is alleged to have been made on 28.06.2019 from the same semi-built house from where the body of deceased Zoya was recovered on 22.06.2019. Hair strands are allegedly recovered from the same Kothri from where the body was lifted and where the Inquest was held on 22.06.2019 by the first I.O. (P.W.-6) and, thereafter, on the next day i.e. 23.06.2019 the second I.O. (PW-7) prepared site plan (Ex-Ka-19). The first I.O. (PW-6) in his cross examination stated that he does not remember seeing any hair there. The second I.O. (PW-7) states in his cross-examination that though he noticed hair, cigarette butt and packet of oil on or about the site where the body was found on the upper floor but he did not consider it necessary to notice them in the site plan. Importantly, existence of any incriminating material lying on spot is not reflected in the site plan prepared by the second I.O. even though he stated that he scanned the entire first floor but not the ground floor. At this stage, it be noticed that hair of Zoya had got detached from her skeleton and therefore it could be possible that some of her hair might have been noticed by him. Be that as it may, in ordinary course, it is expected that the investigating agency would first look for incriminating material lying on the spot. It is quite unbelievable that the place from where body of a girl child is recovered, particularly, in suspicious circumstances, would not be thoroughly scanned by the I.O. to look out for incriminating material. In Mani V. State of Tamil Nadu, (2009) 17 SCC 273, a recovery was shown to have been made after 10 days from a place near to the place from where the body was recovered earlier, discarding the said recovery, in paragraph 24 of the judgment, the Supreme Court observed that it would be impossible to believe that the Inspector did not search the nearby spots and that all the articles would remain in the open, unguarded. The Supreme Court held such a recovery to be completely farce. Here also, it is completely unacceptable that the I.O. would not have scanned the place to search for incriminating material. Moreover, hair strands lying for 50 days on a floor of a vacant semi built house which has access to all and sundry and, that too, where inquest proceeding has taken place, is highly improbable, if not impossible.

26. Further, this recovery has been explained by the appellant in his statement recorded under section 313 CrPC by stating that he had been inflicted with two gun shot injuries, one on each leg, from a close range to extract his confession and to force him to sign recovery memorandum when, in fact, there was neither any disclosure made by him nor any recovery from the spot, rather, his hair were pulled to show them as hair strands recovered from the spot; and that the entire exercise is a paper work of the police to build a case against him as he was unnecessarily shot at in a false encounter. It is well settled that an explanation under section 313 CrPC, though not evidence, has to be considered by the court and if it fits in the scheme and nature of the prosecution evidence and serves as a material to create reasonable doubt in the prosecution case, it may well be accepted. In the instant case, indisputably, the prosecution admits that Nazil (the appellant) was arrested in an encounter and that he had suffered injury for which he had to be admitted in the hospital. Admittedly, that encounter was by police personnel of P.S. Civil Lines, Rampur and the recovery is also made by a team headed by PW-8 who is the Incharge Inspector of P.S. Civil Lines, Rampur though he was on leave at the time of encounter. Interestingly, in the prosecution evidence it has come that to effect recovery the appellant was brought at the spot on a stretcher, which suggests that the injury was serious and he was not in a position to walk. In these circumstances, to ensure that the exercise is free from doubt, the minimum that was required from the I.O. was to arrange for independent witnesses to comply with the provisions of sub-section (4) of section 100 CrPC so as to lend credence to the alleged recovery, which, otherwise, appeared farcical. But, interestingly, neither public witnesses were present at the time of recovery nor in the recovery memorandum it is stated that an effort to rope in public witnesses failed, as none came forward. Such a recovery therefore, in our view, is nothing but farce and no sanctity can be attached to such a recovery. More so, when the accused has put the police on the dock for the alleged encounter by stating that he was picked up from a taxi stand and was shot at on both legs from a close range to force him to confess. The defence also cross-examined the Investigating Officer in respect of the mode in which he was shot at. Thus, though the prosecution suppressed the injury report but it was clearly established on record that the appellant was seriously injured in the encounter and was immobilised. The appellant has also specifically stated in his explanation that the police framed him to save themselves from the embarrassing questions in the false encounter case. No doubt, it may not be appropriate for us to record a finding in respect of the genuineness of the encounter as that is a matter of another trial but we can always take this circumstance to doubt the recovery, particularly, when we find from the evidence on record that the police might have been under pressure to show good work because media persons had arrived at the spot when the body was recovered. This pressure on the police is also evident from the circumstance that they venture out to arrest the appellant on 22.06.2019 itself when, by that time, no credible information was available against the appellant as already noticed above while discussing the last seen circumstance.

of the next day i.e. 23.06.2019 also does not disclose presence of any hair or of any other incriminating material on the spot. Further, it is admitted by the I.O. that earlier, though the appellant had confessed his guilt but had not made any disclosure with regard to the presence of any incriminating material on the spot. It is only when the third I.O. (PW-8) takes over, obtains permission of the court to record clarificatory statement of the appellant, who is in jail hospital, having suffered two gun shot injuries, one on each leg, the disclosure statement is allegedly recorded on 25.06.2019 with regard to the presence of hair and a bottle of oil at the place from where body has been recovered. Now, we have to test whether this disclosure statement is (a) voluntary; and (b) truthful.

28. In so far as it being voluntary is concerned, nothing much can be said, particularly, when, according to the accused, he was shot on both legs and was threatened to make disclosure or be killed. In that kind of a situation, once gun-shot injuries on the body of accused-appellant are not disputed it would be anybody's guess that, in absence of cogent evidence coming through the mouth of independent witnesses, it would be difficult to accept it as voluntary. In so far as it being truthful, that is whether it led to discovery, is concerned, importantly, except the police witnesses there is no other independent or public witness to demonstrate that such a statement was made and that it led to recovery. Thus, on the basis of such an alleged disclosure statement, where the spot from where recovery is made being already known, the Field Unit, as per PW-8 testimony, already there, and the appellant is brought there on a stretcher to lift hair strands and bottle of oil, makes the entire exercise of recovery, in absence of public or independent witness, a mock drill, unworthy of any credence. Notably, the recovery has no support from a public witness and the memorandum of the recovery does not even record that an effort was made to rope in public witness but none, despite request, came forward. Interestingly, in the statement of PW-8, it has come that an effort was made to rope in a public witness. But, this appears an after thought as recital to that effect is not there in the recovery memorandum. No doubt, a recovery cannot be discarded merely for absence of public witness but each case has to be judged on its own fact. Here, absence of public witness is detrimental to the evidence of recovery for the following reasons: (a) the recovery is from a place which is already discovered; where inquest was held and site plan was prepared but nothing incriminating was found; (b) the person on whose disclosure recovery is stated to have been made is one who has been shot at on both legs by the police giving rise to a controversial situation therefore, the burden is on the police to inspire confidence in the whole situation of recovery; and (c) in the first confessional statement allegedly recorded immediately after encounter, there is no such disclosure. Thus, one way to inspire confidence is to ensure presence of a public or independent witness to clear the doubts that shrouds the entire exercise of recovery.

29. In addition to above, a question that would naturally arise is whether it could be considered probable that a six year old girl would be able to offer so much resistance, that she would be able to pull out hair from the head of her offender. No doubt, such possibility can not be ruled out but to lend credence to such possibility, the burden is heavy on the prosecution. Here, presence of an independent/public witness might have helped the prosecution to clear the doubt whereas, absence of it renders the circumstance of recovery unworthy of acceptance, particularly, in the facts of this case.

30. There is another circumstance which renders the exercise of recovery a mock drill and strikes at the value of finger prints found on the bottle of oil recovered. Interestingly, according to the prosecution evidence, the police took the appellant to the place where he had hidden the oil bottle and allowed him to pick up the bottle and give it to the investigating officer. If the bottle of oil was allowed to be picked up by the appellant, the appearance of his finger prints on the bottle would be of no consequence. Here also, there is a deliberate attempt on the part of PW-8 to justify that, by stating that the accused picked up the bottle from its crown (cap). But that is not mentioned in the seizure memorandum. Thus, seen from any angle and for all the reasons discussed above, the circumstance of recovery of hair and bottle of oil from the spot on the disclosure statement of the appellant is not proved beyond reasonable doubt. Rather, the explanation offered by the appellant that he was forced to make a disclosure statement and his hair were pulled to show recovery appears probable and casts an insurmountable doubt on the recovery. Once the recovery is rendered doubtful, the DNA profiling report is of no consequence and so is the finger print report.

31. At this stage, we may observe that unfortunately the trial court has failed to test the reliability and credibility of the prosecution evidence and has accepted the prosecution evidence as gospel truth, which is not the requirement of law. For a proper decision in a trial, the prosecution evidence, if admissible, has to be tested on broad probabilities emerging from the facts of a case to find out whether it is reliable. Only after the evidence is tested and found reliable, that it can form the basis of conviction.

32. In the present case, we find that the prosecution evidence has failed to prove the incriminating circumstances of the deceased being last seen alive with the appellant and the recovery beyond the pale of doubt, and there is no medical / forensic evidence to demonstrate that there was presence of semen or blood stain of the appellant on the clothes of the deceased or on her body. Importantly, all orifices and organs of the body were missing hence, except for confessional statement which, being made before police, was not admissible, there was no evidence to come to the conclusion that an offence of rape was committed. As all these incriminating circumstances from which the prosecution sought to prove its case against the appellant have not been proved beyond the pale of doubt, the appellant is entitled to be acquitted.

33. We, therefore, have no hesitation in rejecting the reference for affirmation of the death sentence and in allowing the appeal of the appellant against the order of his conviction and sentence. The appeal of the appellant is allowed. The reference sent by the trial court to confirm the death penalty is rejected. The judgment and order of the trial court is set aside. The appellant is acquitted of all the charges for which he has been tried and convicted. The appellant shall be released from jail forthwith, unless wanted in any other case, subject to compliance of the provisions of Section 437-A Cr.P.C. to the satisfaction of the trial court.

34. Let a copy of this order along with the record of the court below be sent back to the court below for information and compliance.

Wahid Khan Vs St. of M.P. (2010) 68 ACC 266

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Sadhna Rani (Thakur), J.)

1. This jail appeal has been preferred by the appellant Pramod Kumar against the judgment and order dated 13.11.2018 passed by Special Judge, (POCSO Act)/ 8th Additional Sessions Judge, Agra in Special Case No. 2446 of 2017, case crime no. 441 of 2017 State Vs. Pramod Kumar, under sections 363, 366 and 376 I.P.C. and 3/4 POCSO Act, police station Atmadpur District Agra.

2. By the impugned judgment and order dated 13.11.2018 the learned lower court convicted the present accused Pramod Kumar under section 363, 366 and 376 I.P.C. and acquitted under section 3/4 POCSO Act, whereby the accused persons Dinesh, Choota @ Atendra and Tinchu @ Sarvesh were acquitted of all the charges levelled against them by the same judgment passed in the connected Special Sessions Trial No. 821 of 2018, State Vs. Tinchu and others under the same sections.

3. The facts germane to this appeal are that on 4.9.2017 on 18.10 hours Mannu son of Niroti Lal lodged a first information report at case crime no. 0441 of 2017 under sections 363 and 366 I.P.C. against Lakhan and Chhotu, both sons of Suresh with the allegation that he is a peace loving and law abiding poor person belonging to scheduled caste. He works as a labourer in Ballabhgarh Faridabad and his family members reside in village Siktara police station Atmadpur District Agra. On 1.9.2017 his wife Smt. Ranno Devi had gone to graze animals at about 4.00 p.m. His daughter Pooja aged about 16 years was alone at the house. Lakhan and Chhotu sons of Suresh r/o house no. 83 lane no. 2, police station and District Firozabad enticed her daughter away and her whereabouts are not known till now so the steps be taken against them.

4. After lodging the first information report, Sub Inspector Jai Prakash recorded necessary statements, prepared site plan, made attempt to recover the girl and ultimately the girl was recovered by him on 22.9.2017. Her statements were recorded under sections 161 and 164 Cr.P.C. and she was given in supurdagi of her parents as per her wish. The girl was medically examined. Her statement against sexual violence was recorded by the concerned doctor. According to the report of C.M.O. she was found to be about 18 years of age. All the necessary endorsements were made in case diary and following the due procedure chargesheet no. 284/2017 dated 14.12.2017 was submitted against the present accused Pramod Kumar under sections 363, 366, 376D I.P.C. and 3/4 POCSO Act and charge sheet no. 284A/2017 dated 15.3.2018 was filed against Chhota @ Atendra, Dinesh and Tinchu @ Sarvesh under the same sections 363, 366, 376D I.P.C. and 3/4 POCSO Act. After receiving the chargesheets, learned Magistrate took cognizance against the accused persons and under due procedure of law the cases were committed to the court of Sessions.

5. On 10.5.2018 and 20.4.2018 charges under section 363, 366, 376-D I.P.C. and 3/ 4 POCSO Act were framed against accused Pramod Kumar, Dinesh and Tinchu @ Suresh respectively. The accused persons denied of the charges and pleaded not guilty.

6. The prosecution produced as many as 7 witnesses in support of their case. P.W.-1 Mannu is the father of the victim. P.W.-2 Ranno Devi is mother of the victim, P.W-3 Shivnath is the Principal of the school where victim is said to have studied, P.W.-4 is the victim herself, P.W.-5 Jai Prakash Singh is the first Investigating Officer, P.W.-6 Dr. Sunita Kumari has proved the medical report of the victim. P.W.-7 Vijay Kumar is the second Investigating Officer.

7. As documentary evidence, the prosecution has produced chik FIR as exhibit K-1, School leaving certificate of the victim as exhibit K-2, statement of victim under section 164 Cr.P.C. as exhibit-K-3, siteplan as exhibit-K-4, Supurdaginama as exhibit K-5, Chargesheet no. 284 of 2017 against the accused Pramod Kumar as exhibit K-6. Medical report exhibit K-7, pathologist report exhibit K-8, X-ray report and report of C.M.O. as exhibit K-9. Charge sheet no. 284-A of 2017 against Tinchu @ Sarvesh, Dinesh and Chhota @ Atendra as exhibit K-10.

8. On 23.10.2018 statements of accused persons were recorded under section 313 Cr.P.C. wherein they denied of their charges and claimed their implication to be false. No defence evidence has been adduced by accused persons.

9. As per x-ray report and the report of C.M.O. exhibit K-9 the age of victim is determined about 18 years and regarding rape it is opined that no definite opinion regarding rape can be given. As per finding of the lower court record, the girl was found to be about 18 years of age at the time of incident and the date of birth of the victim mentioned in the school leaving certificate 8.7.2000 is disbelieved by the trial court. There is no dispute regarding the same and because the age of girl is determined as about 18 years at the time of incident so the lower court on the application for custody of the girl ordered to let the girl go as per her own wish. As per supurdaginama exhibit K-5 the girl consented to go with her parents so the Sub Inspector Jai Prakash gave the girl in the custody of her parents.

10. As per the judgment of learned lower court dated 13.11.2018, the three accused persons namely Dinesh, Choota @ Atendra and Tinchu @ Sarvesh have been acquitted of all the charges levelled against them under section 363, 366, 376 D I.P.C. and section 3/4 POCSO Act. The accused Pramod Kumar has also been acquitted of the charge under section 3/4 POCSO Act but he has been convicted under section 363, 366 and 376 I.P.C. as noted above.

11. The present appeal has been preferred on behalf of Pramod Kumar only with the contention that the impugned judgment is against the law and facts on record. The accused has been illegally convicted and undue weightage has been given to the prosecution evidence. The version of the accused has been illegally rejected. The sentence awarded is excessive. The prosecution has utterly failed to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt. No benefit of doubt has been given to the accused.

The accused is innocent and has committed no offence. He has been falsely implicated in the present case. He has been illegally convicted, so judgment is prayed to be set aside.

12. From perusal of the lower court judgment it is clear that the present accused has been convicted under section 363, 366, 376 I.P.C. If we go through the finding of the lower court on page "13' of the judgment it has reached at the conclusion that on the basis of C.M.O. report the girl was found to be of age of 18 years at the time of occurrence so the accused Pramod Kumar is acquitted of the charges under section 3/4 POCSO Act. In my opinion, the finding of lower court is self contradictory. If the court has found the girl to be of 18 years of age at the time of occurrence then the accused could not be convicted under section 363 I.P.C. For the offence under section 363 I.P.C. In this regard section 361 of I.P.C. is to be looked into which can be reproduced as under;

Section 361 :- Whoever takes or entices any minor under [sixteen] years of age if a male, or under [eighteen] years of age if a female, or any person of unsound mind, out of the keeping of the lawful guardian of such minor or person of unsound mind, without the consent of such guardian, is said to kidnap such minor or person from lawful guardianship.

13. The punishment of kidnapping is given in section 363 I.P.C. Thus, if any person who entices away any minor girl under age of 18 years out of keeping of the lawful guardianship of such minor without the consent of such guardian will said to have kidnapped such minor from the lawful guardianship and such person shall be punished under section 363 I.P.C. As per finding of learned lower court at page 13 of its judgment the age of victim girl has been decided to be 18 years at the time of occurrence. So in my opinion, if the girl is found to be of 18 years i.e. major on the date of occurrence then the person who is said to entice away her cannot be held guilty under section 363 I.P.C. so finding of the judgment of learned lower court to the extent of section 363 I.P.C. is erroneous and against the law.

14. So far as conviction under section 366 I.P.C. is concerned it is to be proved that the girl was induced with the intent that she may be compelled or knowingly it to be likely will be compelled to marry any person against her will or in order that she may be forced or seduced to illicit intercourse or knowing it to be likely that she will be forced or seduced to illicit intercourse.

15. For the offence under section 376 I.P.C. the word rape has been defined under section 375 I.P.C. wherein a man is said to commit rape on a female if the act is done against her will, without her consent, if it is with her consent it has been obtained by putting her or any person in whom she is interested in fear of death or of hurt with or without her consent when she is under 18 years of age or if she is unable to communicate her consent.

16. Here it is not the case that the girl was unable to communicate her consent. It has been decided by the lower court that at the time of occurrence the girl was 18 years of age i.e. she was major. So the conviction under section 363 I.P.C. becomes against the law.

17. Now it is to be seen whether the girl was abducted with the intend that she may be compelled or likely to be compelled to marry against her will or she may be forced or seduced to illicit intercourse or likely to be forced or seduced to illicit intercourse and physical relations are made with the girl against her will or consent.

18. If we go through the medical report exhibit K-6, the opinion of doctor is that no definite opinion regarding rape can be given. P.W.-6 Dr. Sunita has proved this report by her statement. If we go through the report, it is mentioned therein that the girl had changed clothes under-garments, she had washed her clothes and under-garments, she had passed urine and stool, rinsed her mouth. The girl is said to be recovered on 22.9.2017 and is said to have been examined next day i.e. on 23.9.2017. Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Wahid Khan Vs. State of Madhya Pradesh, 2010 (68) ACC 266 held that rape is crime and not a medical condition. Rape is a legal term and not a diagnosis to be made by the medical officer treating the victim. The only statement that can be made by the medical officer is to the effect whether there is evidence of recent sexual activity. Whether the rape has occurred or not is a legal conclusion, not a medical one.

19. So the physical assault on the victim was a rape or not is to be decided by the court on the basis of evidence on record. Whether the said victim was abducted or kidnapped with the intent of compelling her to marry any person against her will or that she may be forced or seduced to illicit intercourse and whether the physical assault on the victim comes under section 375 of I.P.C. is to be looked into and the evidence is to be scrutinized to come to a definite conclusion.

20. As per first information report Lakhan and Chhotu both sons of Suresh were said to have enticed away the victim. During investigation the involvement of these two persons was found wrong. When the girl was recovered by the police on 22.9.2017 she was found in the company of the present accused Pramod Kumar. When her statement under section 161 Cr.P.C. was recorded on 22.9.2017 she stated that on the missed call of accused Pramod they started conversation with each other and at the last on the call of Pramod Kumar she left her home. In the way she met Chhotu who take her to Atmadpur where she met Pramod Kumar and Pramod Kumar took her NOIDA Mamura by bus. There they solemnized marriage and started living like husband and wife. Next day on 23.9.2017 when she was produced before the doctor there she narrated the incident that on 1.9.2017 Dinesh, Tinchu and Chhota lifted her from her home to some unknown place. They kept her for 3-4 days there then they left her with Pramod Kumar and Chhota. Pramod Kumar committed rape upon her. She lived for 6-7 days along with Pramod after that police recovered her.

21. On 4.10.2017 her statement under section 164 Cr.P.C. was recorded before the Magistrate wherein she stated that on 1.9.2017 at 4.00 p.m. she went alone to Admadpur to purchase vegetables. She met there Dinesh,Tinchu and Chhota who administered her juice and after having juice she felt dizziness. She was taken away from there by a roadways bus. When she boarded on bus she became unconscious. When she gained her conscious she found herself in a room in Mamura. Chhota put off her trouser and Tinchu and Dinesh caught hold her hands and legs. Chhota committed rape on her. After Chhota, Dinesh and Tinchu also raped her and then they handed over the victim in custody of a boy named Pramod Kumar who took her to his house by auto rickshaw and next day he also committed rape on her. During traveling in auto rickshaw she did not raise any alarm as Pramod Kumar had given threat to kill her brother.

22. On 6.10.2017 the Investigating Officer recorded her additional statement wherein she stated that she is not familiar with Chhotu. Chhotu is the nephew of Tinchu. Chhota, Tinchu and Dinesh administered her juice, raped her and then gave her in custody of Pramod Kumar.

23. If we go through the evidence on record of p.w.-1, the father of the girl, he has proved the complaint wherein he has mentioned that on 1.9.2017 her daughter was enticed away by Lakhan and Chhotu. The only statement regarding the present accused, the witness has made is that on 21.9.2017 her daughter was recovered with Pramod and Pramod was arrested.

24. P.W.-2 mother of the victim has also stated that on 1.9.2017, she had gone to house of her parents. Her husband informed her in the evening that Lakhan and Chhotu have enticed away their daughter Pooja. Pooja came back on 21.9.2017 and on being asked she did not name Dinesh, Chhota and Tinchu. She also admitted that her daughter was recovered along with Pramod Kumar. Pramod Kumar was arrested by the police. Both these witnesses have not mentioned the name of the present accused in committing the rape on their daughter. They have only stated that the girl was recovered along with Pramod.

25. The most important and the only witness of the occurrence is the girl herself who has appeared as P.W.-4 in the court. In her examination-in-chief she stated that on 1.9.2017 in the evening she went alone to Atmadpur for purchasing vegetables, Pramod Kumar met there along with his friends. Pramod Kumar administered her juice after that she felt dizziness and then they took her by a bus and kept her in a room. Pramod Kumar raped her and on 21.9.2021 when he was bringing her to Agra she was recovered by the police at Taj Expressway. She was medically examined and Pramod was arrested. She specifically denied the involvement of Dinesh, Chhota and Tinchu in enticing her away or committing rape on her. She was declared hostile and in the cross examination by the learned Government Advocate she denied of her statement under section 161 Cr.P.C. and stated that she is not aware of the said statement. She has no knowledge how this statement has been recorded by the police and in cross examination again she stated that Pramod Kumar committed rape on her. He kept her in his house and gave threat to kill her brother. In the cross examination by the counsel on behalf of Tinchu, Chhota and Dinesh she again denied of rape committed by Tinchu, Chhota and Dinesh.

26. It is noteworthy that only three witnesses of fact have been produced on behalf of the prosecution wherein p.w.1 and 2, the parents of the victim are neither the eye witnesses of the incident nor have made allegation against Pramod of enticing the girl away or that he committed rape on their daughter. They have only admitted the fact that their daughter was recovered with Pramod Kumar, however, the victim has in her examination-in-chief and also in cross examination stated that Pramod Kumar committed rape on her. It is true that the victim the PW-4 has not been cross examined by the learned counsel of accused Pramod Kumar rather none of the witnesses have been cross examined by the counsel of accused Pramod Kumar. It is found that on 29.10.2018 when the statement under section 313 Cr.P.C. of the accused persons had been recorded and the arguments were heard in part an application on behalf of the accused Pramod Kumar was moved that his counsel be permitted to cross examine the witnesses. This application was rejected on the ground that it was moved at a very belated stage. However, the judgment on the basis of uncontroverted evidence of the victim was passed which resulted into conviction of accused Pramod Kumar. The evidence of the victim only is enough to hold the accused guilty but for holding a person guilty of offence, it is necessary that the statement of only witness i.e. prosecutrix must be convincing, reliable and trustworthy. Now we have to see whether the uncontraverted statement of victim is reliable enough to bring home the guilt of accused.

27. It is true that when the first information report was lodged by the father of the victim he had no knowledge that with whom his girl has eloped. Only on the basis of suspicion the names of Chhotu, Lakhan were mentioned therein and the implication of these two persons was found wrong by the police, they were not even chargesheeted.

28. When the girl was recovered on 22.9.2017 she stated in her statement under section 161 Cr.P.C. that she went along with Pramod Kumar on her own on the phone call of Pramod Kumar. They went to Noida Mamura. Pramod Kumar kept her in his house. They both solemnized their marriage and lived like husband and wife. It is noteworthy that in the bail application also the same ground was taken by Pramod Kumar that both had solemnized marriage and were living as husband and wife. A photocopy of marriage certificate was produced, then the accused Pramod Kumar was released on bail on 28.10.2017.

29. After admitting the fact of marriage with Pramod Kumar in statement under section 161 Cr.P.C., the girl was produced before the doctor for her medical examination. There she named Dinesh, Tinchu and Chhota that they lifted her from her house and she was kept with them and afterward she was left with Pramod Kumar by them. Chhota and Pramod committed rape upon her. Thus on the next day of her recovery along with Pramod Kumar she implicated Dinesh, Tinchu and Chhota also in the offence and alleged that they lifted her from her house. After the statement before the doctor which has been proved by the doctor as P.W. 6 in the court, on 4.10.2017 in her statement under section 164 Cr.P.C. she cooked up a fresh story that on 1.9.2017 at 4.00 p.m. she had gone to buy some vegetables to Atmadpur where Tinchu and Chhota administered her juice and took her in a bus to Mamura. In the bus she got unconscious and when she gain her conscious Tinchu, Dinesh and Chhota committed rape on her one by one. After that they gave her in the custody of Pramod Kumar who took her in his house and there he also committed rape on her. On 6.10.2017 her additional statement was recorded by the police wherein she again named Chhota, Tinchu and Dinesh for administering her juice, committing rape on her and transferring her in custody of Pramod Kumar and when she was produced in the court as P.W.-4, she clearly refused the involvement of Chhota, Dinesh and Tinchu in enticing her away and committing rape on her. Here she only implicated Pramod Kumar and made allegations against him of committing rape on her.

30. Though on single testimony of the prosecutrix the accused can be convicted but her evidence must be convincing and reliable as the Hon'ble Apex Court in Santosh Prasad Vs. State of Bihar (2020) 3 Supreme Court Cases 443 and Sudhansu Shekhar Sahoo Vs. State of Orisa, 2003 AIR SCW 154 has opined that there can be a conviction solely based on the evidence of the prosecutrix however the testimony of the prosecutrix must be trustworthy and convincing and reliable. Non-examination of other witnesses cannot be ground to reject the prosecution case. In the judgment of Abbas Ahmad Choudhary Vs. State of Assam, 2010 (12) SCC 115, the Apex Court held that the statement of prosecutrix must be given primary consideration but at the same time, the broad principle that the prosecution has to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt applies equally to a case of rape and there can be no presumption that the prosecutrix would always tell entire story truthful. Here the statement of prosecutrix is the only evidence produced in support of charges levelled by the prosecution but the evidence of the prosecutrix cannot be said to be reliable. It is completely shaky. The girl has changed her stand every time.

31. At one place, when she has been recovered by the police she admits in the statement under section 161 Cr.P.C. the present accused Pramod Kumar to be her husband and stated that they had solemnized marriage and were living as husband and wife and very next day in her statement before the doctor she implicated Chhota, Dinesh and Tinchu and blamed them of committing rape upon her and transferring her custody to Pramod Kumar by these three persons. She also stated that these three persons lifted her from her home. On 4.10.2017 in her statement under section 164 Cr.P.C. she again changed her stand that on the date of incident she had gone to Atmadpur to buy some vegetables and there Tinchu, Dinesh and Chhota administered her juice. She felt dizzy and she was taken away by a bus where she got unconscious and these three persons committed rape on her and gave her in custody of Pramod Kumar. On 6.10.2017 in her additional statement under section 161 Cr.P.C. again she repeated this statement. When she was produced in the court as P.W.-4 she totally exonerated Chhota, Dinesh Tinchu and denied the involvement of the other persons in the offence except Pramod Kumar.

32. It is noteworthy that after her recovery and recording her statement under section 161 Cr.P.C., she was living with her parents. These changed circumstances changed her stand also.

33. As the girl has been found to be major on the date of incident, so her consent makes a difference in the commission of the offence. It is admitted fact that girl was recovered from the custody of Pramod Kumar and her statement that after committal rape by Chhota, Tinchu and Dinesh they handed over her to Pramod Kumar next day means after eloping on 1.9.2017 till her recovery on 22.9.2017 at least for 20 days she was with accused Pramod Kumar and if she was taken forcefully she could have raised alarm, she could have come out from his house and report the matter to police but she did not do so rather she continued living with him and when she was recovered by the police she was in the company of Pramod Kumar. There also she did not state before the police that she was being taken forcefully by the accused Pramod Kumar rather in her first statement of the recovery under section 161 Cr.P.C. she accepted that she had solemnized marriage with accused Pramod Kumar which makes it clear that she was a consenting party who left her house on her own and went to meet Pramod Kumar and both solemnized marriage and lived as husband and wife together. Later on, she was recovered by the police and started living with her parents and then she changed her stand implicating Pramod Kumar in the offence punishable under sections 363, 366 and 376 I.P.C. The lower court has held the prosecutrix major on the date of occurrence on the basis of the above discussion, the evidence of the prosecutrx with regard to the offence committed with her is found to be totally unreliable, untrustworthy and unconvincing, hence the accused cannot be convicted of the charges levelled against him.

34. The finding of lower court convicting the accused Pramod Kumar under section 363 Cr.P.C. after holding the victim major is completely erroneous and against the law. The conviction of Pramod Kumar under other sections is also based on unreliable and shaky evidence. The sexual intercourse in question is not proved amounting to rape and no offence is brought home to Pramod Kumar appellant. Learned lower court has misconstrued the evidence produced by the prosecution in recording perverse finding regarding conviction of the accused. Hence the judgment of lower court is liable to be set aside.

35. For the reasons mentioned above, the impugned judgment and order cannot be upheld and it is set aside.

36. Accordingly, the appeal is allowed.

37. The appellant Pramod Kumar is acquitted of the charges levelled against him and he be set at liberty forthwith if not required in any other case.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Vipin Chandra Dixit, J.)

1. The present jail appeal has been preferred by the appellant Baba Kuberanand @ Kaluram from jail against the impugned judgment and order dated 18.3.2016 passed by Special Judge, POCSO Act/Additional Sessions Judge, Court No.4, Ghaziabad in Sessions Trial No.17 of 2014 (State of U.P. Vs. Baba Kuberanand alias Kaluram). The accused-appellant has been convicted and sentenced with rigorous imprisonment for 5 years with fine of Rs.5,000/- under Section 363 I.P.C. and in default thereof he shall undergo additional imprisonment for two months, sentenced with rigorous imprisonment for 7 years and fine of Rs.10,000/- under Section 366 I.P.C. and in default thereof he shall undergo additional imprisonment for three months, sentenced with rigorous imprisonment for 10 years and fine of Rs.10,000/- under Sections 376(2) J of I.P.C. and in default thereof he shall undergo additional imprisonment for three months, sentenced with rigorous imprisonment for 7 years and fine of Rs.10,000/- under Section 4 of POCSO Act and in default thereof he shall undergo additional imprisonment for three months. All these sentences have been directed to be run concurrently.

2. Factual matrix of the case are that the F.I.R. (Exhibit Ka-5) was lodged by complainant Pratap Singh (P.W.-2) in Police Station Dhaulana, District Hapur that her daughter, age 15 years, was missing since evening of 13.1.2014 and he suspects Baba Kuberanand, Harish, Rinku and Sushil for the same. The case was registered as Case Crime No.21 of 2014, under Sections 363 & 366 I.P.C. The case was investigated by S.I. Vinod Kumar Sharma (P.W.-5) who submitted the charge-sheet (Exhibit Ka-8) on 8.2.2014. Learned trial court had framed charges against appellant on 3.5.2014 under Sections 363, 366, 376(2) I, 376(2) J of I.P.C. and Section 4 of POCSO Act. The appellant-accused has denied the charges and pleaded for trial.

3. So as to hold the accused-appellant guilty, the prosecution had produced six witnesses which are as follows:-

1. P.W.-1 victim
2. P.W.-2 Pratap, informant (father of victim)
3. P.W.-3 Bhujveer, nephew of informant
4. P.W.-4 Constable Kamal Singh, scriber of F.I.R.
5. P.W.-5 S.I. Vinod Kumar Sharma, Investigating Officer
6. P.W.-6 Dr. Tina Khanuja

4. The statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. of accused-appellant was recorded in which he denied the allegations and pleaded that he has been falsely implicated in this case on account of enmity with informant. It is stated that a quarrel took place on 4.1.2014 with father of victim and other villagers and as such for that reason he has been falsely implicated in this case. He has denied to produce any witness in support of his defence.

5. The victim was medically examined and as per medical report there was no external injury on any part of the body of victim and the victim had denied for her internal medical examination. The age of the victim was assessed as 17 years by Chief Medical Officer, Hapur.

6. The victim appeared as P.W.-1 before trial court and stated on oath that she went with accused-appellant to Himachal Pradesh from Meerut on motorcycle but she has not stated that she was enticed or forcibly took away by appellant-accused. The informant has appeared as P.W.-2 who is father of victim and has stated the same story as stated in F.I.R. The other witness of fact produced by prosecution was Bhujveer who appeared as P.W.-3 and supported the prosecution case. Constable Komal Singh appeared as P.W.-4 and proved the F.I.R. Investigating Officer Vinod Kumar Sharma appeared as P.W.-5 and proved the filing of charge-sheet. Dr. Tina Khanuja appeared as P.W.-6 and proved the medical report (Exhibit Ka-10). P.W.-6 had stated that victim denied for her internal medical examination and therefore commission of rape could not be proved.

7. The learned trial court on the basis of evidence adduced by the prosecution had recorded the findings that as per migration certificate the age of victim is 16 years 5 months as her date of birth is mentioned as 15.8.1997. As per report of Chief Medical Officer, Hapur dated 4.2.2014 the age of victim was 17 years and as such she was minor on the date of incident, therefore, the charges against accused-appellant were established and convicted the accused-appellant under Sections 363, 366 and 376 (2) J of I.P.C. and Section 4 of POCSO Act.

8. Heard Sri Lalji Chaudhary, learned counsel for appellant, Sri R.K. Srivastava, learned A.G.A. for the State and perused the impugned judgment and order as well as record of the present case.

9. Learned counsel appearing for appellant states that he does not propose to challenge the judgment and order of trial court on its merit. He, however, submitted that there are contradictions in the statements of witnesses produced by prosecution and the trial court has ignored the evidence of doctor who appeared as P.W.-6 that internal medical examination was refused by the victim thus commission of rape could not have been proved. It is further submitted that from the evidence adduced by the prosecution it is apparent that victim went to Himachal Pradesh with accused-appellant on motorcycle without raising any alarm and lived there till 24.1.2014 which itself proved that she was consenting party and went with appellant with her own will but on account of enmity with informant the appellant has been falsely implicated in this case.

10. Learned counsel for appellant has submitted that maximum sentence awarded by learned trial court is 10 years and the appellant has already undergone more than 6 years 10 months and as such the matter be considered sympathetically and the order of sentence may be reduced to the period already undergone by the appellant. It is next submitted that appellant is not a previous convict. Learned Additional Government Advocate has no objection if the Court reduces the quantum of punishment.

11. The findings of fact has been recorded by trial court that on the date of incident the victim was minor and that findings have not been challenged by the appellant, hence, the conviction of appellant stands affirmed.

12. Learned counsel for appellant pleads that appellant is in jail for last about 7 years whereas the maximum punishment awarded to the appellant is 10 years and as such the appeal may be decided sympathetically and the sentence may be reduced to the period which had already undergone by the appellant.

13. In the case of Sattan Sahani vs State of Bihar and others, 2002 (45) ACC 1134 (SC), accused were sentenced to three years' rigorous imprisonment under section 326 IPC. In appeal, the Apex Court reduced the sentence to the period already undergone on the ground that the incident took place two decades back and parties have also compromised.

14. In the case of Uthem Rajanna vs State of Andhra Pradesh, 2005 (11) SCC 531, accused was convicted and sentenced to six months' simple imprisonment under section 304-A IPC along with fine of Rs. 500/- and three months' simple imprisonment under section 338 IPC and also to pay a fine of Rs. 500/- under section 337 IPC. The Apex Court in appeal has reduced the sentence to the period already undergone.

15. In the case of Neelam Bahal and another vs State of Uttarakhand, 2010 (2) SCC 229, the accused was convicted and sentenced to undergo seven years' rigorous imprisonment under section 307 IPC. The Apex Court has convicted the accused under section 326 IPC and reduced the sentence to the period already undergone, i.e. almost one year.

16. The Hon'ble Supreme Court has reduced the sentence of accused to the period already undergone in the case of B.G. Goswami Vs. Delhi Administration, 1973 AIR 1457. The relevant paragraph of the judgment is reproduced as under:

"Now the question of sentence is always a difficult question, requiring as it does, proper adjustment and balancing of various considerations, which weigh with a judicial mind in determining its appropriate quantum in a given case. The main purpose of the sentence broadly stated is that the accused must realise that he has committed an act, which is not only harmful to the society of which he forms an integral part but is also harmful to his own future, both as an individual and as a member of the society. Punishment is designed to protect society by deterring potential offenders as also by preventing the guilty party from repeating the offence; it is also designed to reform the offender and reclaim him as a law abiding citizen for the good of the society as a whole. Reformatory, deterrent and punitive aspects of punishment thus play their due part in judicial thinking while determining this question. In modern civilized societies, however, reformatory aspect is being given somewhat greater importance. Too lenient as well as too harsh sentences both lose their efficaciousness. One does not deter and the other may frustrate thereby making the offender a hardened criminal. In the present case, after weighing the considerations already noticed by us and the fact that to send the appellant back to jail now after 7 years of the annoy and harassment of these proceedings when he is also going to lose his job and to earn a living for himself and for his family members and for those dependent on him, we feel that it would meet the ends of justice if we reduce the sentence of imprisonment to that already undergone but increase the sentence of fine from Rs- 200/- to Rs. 400/-. Period of imprisonment in case of default will remain the same."

17. In the present case the appellant is in jail since 25.1.2014 and had served the sentence for 6 years 10 months. In view of aforesaid facts the sentence awarded to the appellant is modified and the sentence is reduced to the period already undergone by the appellant in this case.

18. The present jail appeal is partly allowed. The appellant is in jail. He shall be released forthwith if not wanted in any other case. It is further directed that the appellant shall furnish bail bonds with sureties to the satisfaction of the court concerned.

(C.M. Bail Application No. 137168 of 2021)

1. This First Bail application has been filed along with Criminal Appeal No.1588 of 2021 by the appellant Indra Pratap Tiwari against the judgement and order dated 18.10.21 passed by the III Additional Sessions Judge Faizabad/Ayodhya in Special Case number 3012/2018; for suspension of sentence and conviction.

The facts of the case in brief are that on the basis of a letter sent by the Principal of Saket Postgraduate Degree College Ayodhya Sri Yaduvansh Ram Tripathi, to the Superintendent of Police, the Superintendent of Police directed PS Ram Janmabhoomi, Ayodhya, to register FIR and investigate. The FIR 24/1992 was registered on 18.02.1992 under Sections 420, 467, 468 and 471 I.P.C., against three accused of which we are concerned only with facts of the present case. Charge Sheet was submitted after investigation. The allegation in the FIR was that the appellant had submitted forged marksheet of BSc. part II and was promoted in BSc. part III in the said College on the basis of such forged mark sheet. Three prosecution witnesses were examined. PW1 was the Office

Superintendent in Saket Degree College and he stated on the basis of documentary evidence i.e. Register maintained of marks obtained by all students in examinations held in the College that the appellant had failed in BSc. part II examination in 1990 but had taken admission BSc. part III on the basis of mark sheet showing him to have passed. PW2 was the Senior Assistant (Confidential) in the Faizabad University, and on the basis of documentary evidence available in the University proved that the appellant had failed in BSc. part II examination held in the College. P.W.3 was the Head Moharrir of the Police Station concerned and had proved the handwriting of the then Head Moharrir who had noted the F.I.R. and Investigating Officer who had submitted the charge sheet. The learned Trial Court gave opportunity to the appellant under Section 313 Cr.P.C. to submit his evidence. Except for statement on oath that he had not taken the help of any forged mark sheet to take admission in BSc. part III in Saket Degree College no documentary evidence was produced by the appellant to disprove the prosecution charge that despite having failed in BSc. part II the appellant had shown himself to have passed in the said examination, and on the basis of forged mark sheet had taken admission in BSc. part III in the said College. The learned Trial Court having found all three accused guilty of forging their mark sheets of different years while studying in Saket Degree College and taking admission in the next class on the basis thereof found the charge of Sections 420, 468 and 471 I.P.C. proved. After hearing the counsel for the accused on the quantum of punishment, the learned Trial Court directed them to serve three years imprisonment along with fine for being guilty under Section 420 IPC, five years imprisonment along with fine for being guilty under Section 468 IPC, and two years Imprisonment along with fine for having been found guilty under Section 471 IPC all the three sentences were to run concurrently.

2. I have heard learned Senior Advocate, Shri I.B. Singh assisted by Sri Dharmendra Misra for the appellant, learned A.G.A. Shri S. P. Tiwari, for the State, and Shri H.G.S. Parihar, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Sri Ashish Kumar Singh for the objector Junaid Ahmad (hereinafter referred to as Objectior-1) and Shri Sushil Kumar Singh, Advocate for another objector Brijendra Pratap Singh (hereinafter referred to as Objector-2).

3. Learned counsel for the appellant has mentioned three grounds mainly for challenge to the order under appeal . Firstly, it has been argued that the Trial of the case is vitiated on the ground that it was tried and decided by an incompetent Court. The charge against the applicant was for offences under Sections 420, 468, 471 I.P.C., which are triable by a Magistrate. Appeal against such order is maintainable before before the Sessions Court. In the light of orders passed by the Supreme Court in the case of Ashwini Kumar Upadhyay versus Union of India and Others, Writ Petition Civil No. 699 of 2016, the Allahabad High Court proposed the formation of one special MP/MLA Sessions Court at Allahabad for which notification was issued on 21.08.2018. Later on the Allahabad High Court circulated two letters dated 26.09.2018 and 19.10.2018, whereby all District Judges were directed to transfer all pending cases relating to MPs and MLAs to Special Sessions Court at Allahabad. On 4.12.2018 the Supreme Court directed all States to create one Special Sessions Court and one Special Magisterial Court in each district in order to dispose of all pending criminal cases relating to sitting and former legislators on a priority basis. In the State of U.P. till date no Special Magisterial Court for MP / MLAs has been formed. This fact was noticed by the Supreme Court in its latest order dated

4. The learned counsel for the appellant has argued about the prejudice caused to the Appellant due to Trial conducted by the Additional Sessions Judge. It has been argued that the appellant 1) has lost the opportunity of one appeal before the Sessions Judge. 2)The procedure for warrant Trial by a Magistrate is given in chapter XIX, Section 238 -250 of the Cr.P.C. 3) Under chapter XVIII Sections 225 - 237, provide for Trial by Sessions Court. Therefore wrong procedure has been adopted for prosecution of the appellant. 4) It has been submitted that the appellant cannot be treated as a separate class, because of an illegal Notification issued by the High Court, which has already been set aside by the Supreme Court And he cannot be discriminated against in the matter of his Trial, as opposed to other similarly situated persons. 5) It has been submitted that the Supreme Court has already expunged the proceedings before the Sessions Judge, while directing the matter to be decided by the Magistrate from the stage from which the file was sent to the Additional Sessions Judge.

5. It has been argued that the case of the appellant being triable by the Court of Magistrate, it's Trial was transferred to a DJ/Special Judge MP/MLA Court in September 2019 by an order of the High Court dated 22.08.2019. The learned counsel for the appellant has placed reliance upon judgement rendered in A.R. Antulay versus R.S. Naik, AIR 1988 SC 1531 where the Supreme Court had quashed the proceedings because the Trial was not conducted by the competent Court although such Trial had been ordered by the Supreme Court itself.

6. The Supreme Court had observed in A.R. Antulay (supra) that "having regard to the enormity of the consequences of the error to the Appellant and by reason of the fact that the directions were given Suo Moto,We do not find there is anything which can detract from the power of the Court to review its judgement Ex Debito Justitiae. "In case injustice has been caused. No Court, however high, has jurisdiction to give an order unwarranted by the Constitution" and therefore, the order dated 16.02.1984 was recalled by the Supreme Court in order to rectify that injustice in the peculiar facts and circumstances of the case.

7. The learned counsel for the appellant read out para 8,9, and 10, And 11 of the order dated 24.11.2021 passed by the Supreme Court in Ashwini Kumar Upadhyay case. The observation- "we further direct the cases triable my Magistrates which are pending before the Sessions Court in view of the circular dated 16 August 2019 shall stand transferred to the Court of competent jurisdiction. However, the entire record and proceedings shall be transferred to the Court of the designated Magistrate and the proceedings shall commence from the stage which has been reached prior to the transfer of the proceedings, as a consequence of which the Trial shall not have to commence afresh."; has been read out by the learned counsel for the appellant to argue that the Supreme Court had expressed an opinion that "the proceedings shall commence from the stage which has been reached prior to the transfer of the proceedings" should be read in isolation by this Court to mean that the Supreme Court has expunged all the proceedings which have taken place in the Sessions Court and the Trial would commence from the stage it had reached in the Court of the Magistrate prior to the wrong transfer of the proceedings by the notification of the High Court.

8. This Court cannot interpret the phrase as pointed out repeatedly by the learned counsel for the appellant in the manner in which it has been sought to be interpreted as it would render the later phrase "as a consequence of which the Trial shall not have to come in afresh" redundant and otiose.

9. Secondly, it has been submitted that registration of one single FIR for three different offences, against three different persons for offences committed at three different times was not maintainable. It has been argued that the allegation of the complainant, the Principal of Saket Degree, College related to three different alleged occurrences where three different students at three different points of time, studying in three different courses run by the College, had allegedly forged the mark sheet for admission/promotion to the next class. There was no allegation of conspiracy or abetment among the three Persons. They were not even distantly related. None of the occurrences were connected to each other or a part of the same transaction. As per Section 154 of the Code of Criminal Procedure the FIR should relate to the commission of "an offence" and not many offences which are not correlated to each other.

10. It was argued that an F.I.R. was lodged on 18.02.1992 under Section 420, 467, 468, 471 I.P.C. at PS Ram Janma Bhumi Ayodhya Faizabad by the Principal of Saket Degree College against three students referring to earlier letter sent by him to the Superintendent of Police, Faizabad. The F.I.R. stated that three persons had forged their marksheets and taken admission in the next year of their degree courses although they had failed. The first such person was Phoolchand Yadav who had taken B.Sc. part I examination in 1986 with Roll number 60999, his result showed him failed. He took back paper and then made interpolation in the back paper mark sheet to show himself, as passed. As a result, he took admission in B.Sc. Part II in the following year. Similarly, Indra Pratap Tiwari, the appellant herein, had taken B.Sc. Part II examination in 1990 with Roll number 4263. He failed but showed himself as passed and took admission in B.Sc. Part III in the following session on the basis of a forged mark sheet. He was also elected Secretary of the Students Union. When this fact came to the knowledge of the University he was sent a notice to which he failed to reply. Consequently, the University struck off his name as a student and also cancelled his Election as Secretary of the Students Union. Shree Krupa Nidhan Tiwari took LLB first year examination in 1989 with Roll number 91570, he was declared failed but he showed himself to be passed by forging the mark sheet and took admission in LLB second year in academic year 1990-91.

11. It has been further submitted that Code of Criminal Procedure defines how a Court should exercise its power in such a case where one single FIR are has been lodged. Under Section 221 and 223 of the Cr.P.C. it is provided that separate charges shall be framed against separate accused persons and the Trials should be conducted separately. The accused however were tried jointly in violation of such procedure. It has been argued that under Section 464 Cr.P.C. if the Court of appeal finds that the charge framed against the accused person had some irregularity or error in it, then it may direct a new Trial to be conducted.

12. Thirdly, it has also been submitted that conviction of the appellant is based upon allegedly forged document that is photocopy of a mark sheet. The marksheet was never produced in the original before the learned Trial Court, it was never proved by any witness in accordance with the provisions of the Indian Evidence Act. The learned Trial Court convicted the appellant on the basis of Secondary Evidence in gross violation of Section 65 of the Indian Evidence Act. The appellant had been tried and convicted in violation of the procedure established by law which vitiates the entire proceedings. It has been argued by the learned counsel for the appellant that three persons were tried together for different offences and convicted. One of these three persons had approached this Court in Criminal Appeal No. 1761 of 2021, where after admitting the Appeal and calling for lower Court record, a coordinate bench observed that there were inconsistencies in the statements of prosecution witnesses and that the appellant had not misused his liberty when he was on bail during Trial, and has granted bail to the appellant Krupa Nidhan Tiwari by its order dated 15.11.2021.

13. The objections filed by the State to the application moved by the appellant has stated besides the facts of the case as noticed in the judgement under Appeal; that against the appellant I.P. Tiwari a total of 35 criminal cases are pending. The criminal history of the appellant has been filed as Annexure to the said objections showing cases under various Sections including Sections 307 and 302 pending since 1986, 1991 ,1992 and 1993 up to 2012 at Various stages in different Courts. Cases under Section 3 of the U.P. Control of Goondas Act and Sections 2 & 3 of the U.P. Gangsters Act have also been repeatedly instituted by the police in various years.

14. The objector-1 Mohammad Junaid, has filed an application praying for appropriate orders to be passed for prosecuting the appellant. It has been submitted that Objectior-1's Sumo Jeep was looted on 14.03.1997. F.I.R. was lodged in Case Crime No.77 of 1997 at P.S. Singramau at Jaunpur. On 03.06.1997 the appellant Indra Pratap Tiwari was arrested in Sonebhadra in Case Crime No. 142 of 1997, under Sections 302 and 506 I.P.C. The looted jeep of the objector-1 was recovered from his possession. Thereafter the police submitted charge-sheet against the appellant in Case Crime No.77 of 1997 at Jaunpur. While being arrested in Case Crime No.142 of 1997 at Sonebhadra, the appellant claimed to be resident of Village Gauhaniya P.S. Haraiyya, District Basti, and was released on bail giving the said fake address. He could not be traced later on as his residence was actually in village Baraipara, P.S. Maharajganj, District Faizabad. The appellant never appeared in Case Crime No.77 of 1997. Non bailable warrant was issued and process under Section 82 and 83 was also issued by the Trial Court in District Jaunpur. The appellant thereafter managed the loot of Court records from the office of the Judicial Magistrate-IInd, at Jaunpur for which FIR was registered as case Case Crime No.117 of 2016 at P.S. Line Bazar, District Jaunpur under the signature of the Judicial Magistrate-IInd, Jaunpur. When the file of case Crime number 77 of 1997 could not be traced, the objector-1 filed a petition under Section 482 Cr.P.C. No.29263 of 2018, Mohammad Junaid Versus State of U.P. and this Court directed reconstruction of the record and to conclude the Trial proceedings of the concerned case within a period of six months without granting any unnecessary adjournments. The then Judicial Magistrate-IIIrd, Jaunpur, reconstructed the file and summoned the accused through order dated 22.06.2019. Despite best efforts of the police, the legislator I.P. Tiwari could not be produced before the Trial Court at Jaunpur. Later on news was received that he was incarcerated in jail on being convicted on 18.10.2021. The Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate-IIIrd, Jaunpur thereafter issued Bailable warrant against I.P. Tiwari to facilitate the hearing of Case Crime No.77 of 1997 at Jaunpur.

15. It has been submitted by Objector 1 that the Appellant has been absconding from the Trial proceedings for last 25 years and thus the Objector 1, had locus to file application objecting to the prayer for grant of bail made by the appellant in this appeal as per law settled by the Supreme Court in Ratan Lal Versus Prahlad Jat and Others Criminal Appeal No.499 of 2014 decided on 15.09.2017, and Naveen Singh Versus State of U.P. AIR Online 2021 Supreme Court 138. It has further been submitted by Shri H.G.S. Parihar that in Case Crime No.24/1992, in which he has been ultimately convicted, the appellant misused his position and moved repeated applications under Section 70 (2) Cr.P.C. and never appeared before the Trial Court. He moved applications on 26.07.2005, 17.11.2011 and 05.05.2017, true copies of which have been filed as Annexures to the objections. In all three applications the appellant stated that he had no information about pendency of the case relating to his fake marksheet. It has been pointed out by Shri H.G.S. Parihar that the appellant contested U.P. Assembly Elections thrice, in 2007, 2012 and lastly in the year 2017, and in all the three affidavits filed by him before the Election Commission Case Crime No.24 of 1992 was mentioned, but in the application submitted by him under Section 70 (2) in 2011 and 2017, he showed that he was unaware of the Case relating to fake marksheet being pending.

16. It has been argued by Sri H.G.S. Parihar that the appellant never sought regular bail but only filed applications under Section 70 (2) for recall of non-bailable warrants issued by the learned Trial Court to ensure his presence. Each time he succeeded also in getting Non bailable warrants recalled. In Naveen Singh Versus State of U.P. and Others, the appellant had approached the Supreme Court against grant of bail by the High Court to Respondent No.2 who was accused of forging Court records and showing himself as acquitted in Sessions Trial. The appellant was opposed by the Respondent No.2 on the ground that he had no locus to oppose the grant of bail secured by the Respondent No.2. It was submitted that he was neither the complainant nor the affected person from the alleged offence in Case Crime No.433 of 2019. On the contrary he had a personal motive in keeping the accused behind the bars. The application was politically motivated as the appellant was a third person who was not connected with the matter under consideration and had a personal axe to grind. The Supreme Court having heard the appellant on the merits of the order passed by the High Court granting bail to the Respondent No.2 and also the counsel for the Respondent No.2 objecting to such appeal being filed, observed that the Respondent No.2 is facing Trial for offences under Sections 420, 467, 468, 471, and 120-B IPC in which FIR was lodged by the District and Sessions Judge, Unnao, at the directions of the High Court in another case. It observed in Paragraph 8.4 that so far as submissions on behalf of the accused regarding locus of the appellant is concerned the Court had considered the fact that it was the appellant who approached the High Court alleging tampering of Court record by the Respondent No.2 accused and thereafter the Court had directed the learned Additional Session Judge, Unnao, to submit his comments. The Session Judge submitted his enquiry report on the basis of which FIR was lodged therefore it could not be said that the appellant had no locus to file the present application for cancellation of bail. It further observed: "Even otherwise in a case like this, allegations of tampering with Court order and for whatever reason the State has not filed the cancellation of bail application, locus is not that much important and it is insignificant."

17. In Ratan Lal Versus Prahlad Jat and others Criminal Appeal No.499 of 2014 decided on 15.09.2017, the Supreme Court was considering an appeal filed by a private person seemingly not the affected person, against an order passed by the High Court under Section 482 Cr.P.C. setting aside order passed by the Additional Sessions Judge rejecting the application of the accused filed under Section 311 Cr.P.C. The locus of the appellant was challenged by the respondent alleging that the High Court"s order could have been challenged by the State and not by private appellant. The Supreme Court referred to the Blacks Law Dictionary and the meaning assigned to the term "locus standi" and then observed that the orthodox rule of interpretation regarding locus standi of a person to reach the Court has undergone a sea change with the development of Constitutional law in India, and the Constitutional Courts have been adopting a liberal approach in dealing with cases and rejecting objections raised merely on hyper technical ground of locus standi. It was observed thus:-

"It is now well settled that if a person is found to be not merely a stranger to the case, he cannot be non-suited on the ground of his not having locus standi." The Supreme Court observed that, "in criminal Trial the locus standi of the complainant is a concept which is completely foreign. Anyone can set the criminal law in motion except where the statute enacting or creating an offence indicates to the contrary." Supreme Court referred to the Constitution Bench judgment in the case of A.R. Antulay Versus Ramdas Srinivas Naik 1984 (2) SCC 500, where the Supreme Court had observed that the general principle regarding criminal law being set in motion by any person is founded upon a policy that an offence, that is, an act or omission made punishable by law for the time being in force, is not merely an offence committed in relation to the person who suffers the harm but it is also an offence against the society. The society for peaceful development is interested in the punishment of the offender. Penal statutes are enacted for the larger good of the society, and the right to initiate proceedings cannot be whittled down or circumscribed or fettered by putting it into a straitjacket formula of locus standi unknown to criminal jurisprudence.

18. The Supreme Court also referred to judgement rendered by it in Manohar Lal Versus Dinesh Anand and Others 2001 (5) SCC 407 and Arunachalam Versus PSR Sadananantham and Others 1979 (2) SCC 297 that although it is the duty of the State to get the culprit booked for the offence committed by him, if the State fails in this regard and the party having bona fide connection with the cause of action, who is aggrieved by the order of the Court, cannot be left at the mercy of the State and without any option to approach the appellate Court to seek justice. The Supreme Court granted special leave to appeal and also allowed the appeal thereafter.

19. Sri Brijendra Pratap Singh the Objector 2 has taken almost common grounds to challenge the bail application moved by the appellant. His locus standi disclosed in his affidavit is only that he is a student of Kamta Prasad Sunderlal Saket Postgraduate College, and that he was worried that the practice adopted by the appellant shall be followed by other students also thus lowering the standards of education and morals in the society. He came to know on enquiry that the appellant and two other students had forged their mark sheets and an F.I.R. was lodged by the Principal of the College in 1992, but Trial could not be concluded expeditiously. He preferred a Criminal Miscellaneous Case Number 5762 of 2018 under Section 483 Cr.P.C., praying for early disposal of the Trial. This Court by its order dated 20.09.2018 directed the learned Trial Court to decide the case within a period of six months.

20. It has been argued by Sri Sushil Kumar Singh that Locus standi in criminal jurisprudence is of no relevance. The appellant was wanted in Trials pending in Basti, SoneBhadra, Jaunpur, Faizabad and many other districts of U.P., and he was a sitting legislator of the ruling political party and he could not be allowed to make a mockery of the judicial process by not only managing to snatch and loot Court records but to place false information before the district Court and before the High Court as well.

21. The counsel for the Objector 2 referred to the appellant managing to get a rifle license number 54 from district Basti by giving a fake address. On this fake identity bail applications were filed by him but presence of the appellant could not be ensured by the Court concerned later on because of deliberate misrepresentation regarding his identity and true address. Sri S.K. Singh has also pointed out how in case crime number 142 of 1997 under Section 302 and 506 I.P.C. in Sonebhadra on 03.06.1997, the weapon of attack was the same rifle which was issued from district Basti. After gaining knowledge of fake identity being used to obtain the arms license, the District Magistrate Basti has cancelled the arms license but this rifle license has not yet been surrendered till date by the appellant.

22. Almost the same facts have been mentioned in the application of the Objector 2, as have been mentioned by Objector 1 regarding filing of repeated applications for recall of non-bailable warrant orders before the Trial Court at Faizabad. Also, it has been submitted that after bailable warrants were issued by the learned Trial Court in Jaunpur on 22.10.2021 in Case Crime NO. 77 of 1997, the jail authorities have not yet produced the appellant before the learned Trial Court at Jaunpur though the date fixed was 9.11.21. It has been argued that the reason for this is not far to seek. The Appellant is in jail since 18.10.2021 and his Bail application is pending before the High Court. As soon as he is released on bail, he shall again abscond and Trial pending at Jaunpur since 1997 in Crime Nos. 77 and at Sonebhadra in Case Crime No. 142 of 1997 will again remain pending. The objector 2 has disclosed a criminal case history of 40 cases instead of 35 as mentioned in the counter affidavit filed by the State of UP.

23. The learned counsel for the appellant has objected vehemently to the Court entertaining objections by the said Objectors 1 and 2, Mohammed Junaid and Brijendra Pratap Singh. It has been submitted that the Court is considering a criminal appeal filed under Code of Criminal Procedure, and it is neither a Public Interest Litigation nor a Section 482 Petition, wherein inherent power of the High Court can be exercised to secure the ends of justice. It has been argued that in the Cr.P.C. one amendment has been carried out in 2019 giving the right to the victim only to file an appeal and to be heard through Public Prosecutor in Trial or appeal. No right to be heard has been extended to any stranger who is not even claiming to be a victim in criminal appeal. The applications of two objectors should be rejected by this Court outrightly.

24. It has been submitted by the learned counsel for the appellant that Mohammad Junaid is a close associate and a gang member of renowned mafia who is presently in jail at Banda where he was transferred from Punjab on the directions of the Supreme Court. The bail application is being contested vehemently by such Objectors only to ensure that the right of the appellant to contest the upcoming Legislative Assembly elections is prejudiced.

25. It has been argued that such Objectors do not have any locus as they do not fall within the definition of victim as per Section 2(wa) of the Code. Section 2(wa) defines a victim "as a person who has suffered any loss or injury caused by reason of the act or omission for which the accused person has been charged," and the expression victim includes his or her legal heir. None of the Objectors can be said to be victims and thus they have no right to be heard. The Supreme Court has observed in many cases that victim shall be a person who has suffered any "loss or injury" due to the alleged crime and some element of personal injury must be involved. Since the Objectors have no locus standi, their affidavits filed in support of such objections should be ignored by this Court. Objecting to the locus of Brijendra Pratap Singh, the learned counsel for the appellant submitted he is only 25 years of age and was not even born at the time when the appellant was studying in Saket Degree College and had allegedly forged his mark sheet to get promoted from BSc. part II to BSc. part III. Only because Brijendra Pratap Singh is a student of Saket Degree College, he cannot claim any locus to oppose the bail application of the appellant. Both the Objectors have been set up by the political rivals of the appellant namely Mukhtar Ansari and Abhay Singh respectively.

26. The learned counsel for the appellant has placed reliance upon Thakur Ram and others versus state of Bihar 1966 (2) SCR 740, and has read out paragraph 9 thereof, with regard to the observations regarding right of third-party to be heard in a criminal Trial. The Supreme Court observed that in a case which has proceeded on a police report a private party has really no locus standi . The criminal law is not to be used as an instrument of wreaking private vengeance by an aggrieved party against the person who, according to that party, has caused injury to it. Barring a few exceptions, in family matters the party who is treated as the aggrieved party is the State which is the custodian of the social interests of the community at large and so it is for the State to take all the steps necessary for bringing the person who has acted against the social interests of the community to book."

27. The counsel for the appellant has placed reliance upon judgement rendered in Shivakumar versus Hukam Chand and another 1999 (7) SCC 467 where it was observed that "it is not merely an overall supervision which the Public Prosecutor is expected to perform in such cases when a privately engaged counsel is permitted to act on his behalf. The role which a private counsel in such a situation can play is, perhaps, comparable to that of a Junior advocate conducting the case of a senior in a Court, on behalf of the Public Prosecutor albeit the fact that he is engaged in the case for a private party. If the role of the public prosecutor is allowed to shrink to a mere supervisory role the Trial would become a combat between the private party and the Accused which would render the legislative mandate in Section 225 of the Code a dead letter".

28. Learned Counsel for the appellant has placed reliance upon judgement of a Full Bench of Delhi High Court rendered in Ramphal versus State in Criminal Appeal No.1415 of 2012 on 28.05.2015. The Full Bench was considering the scope of the term "victim" and whether it would mean only legal heirs entitled to the property of the victim under the law applicable of inheritance, or would embrace any person who has suffered any loss or injury caused by reason of the act or omission for which the accused person had been charged. The Court considered the definition given of the term victim Under Section 2 (wa) of the Cr.P.C. and also the terms "loss "or "injury "which have not been defined under the Cr.P.C. but have been defined by the I.P.C. Under Section 44 "injury "is defined as "any harm whatever illegally caused to any person in body, mind, reputation or property" "loss "is defined in terms of wrongful loss and refers to "loss by unlawful means of property to which the person losing it is legally entitled." It was observed by the Bench that injury as defined, does not only include physical harm resulting from the offence as there can be direct and proximate emotional injuries equally resulting from the crime. It referred to judgement rendered by a Constitution Bench in PSR Sadanantham Versus Arunachalam 1980 (3) SCC 141 on the "standing" of a private person other than a complainant under Section 191 (a) to appeal against an acquittal. The question faced by the Supreme Court in the said case was "whether a private citizen (the brother of the deceased victim) could appeal by way of special leave under Article 136 of the Constitution of India against an order of acquittal of the petitioner in that case." The Supreme Court granted leave, allowed the appeal and restored the conviction and sentence of the Trial Court. The convicted petitioner approached the Supreme Court invoking its Writ jurisdiction contending that the Supreme Court"s order was a nullity as it lacked jurisdiction. The Supreme Court observed in Paragraph-24 that "in India the criminal law envisages the State as the prosecutor. Under the Cr.P.C., the machinery of the State is set in motion on information received by the police or on a complaint filed by a private person before a Magistrate. If the case results in an acquittal the right to appeal against the acquittal is closely circumscribed. Under the old Code of Criminal Procedure the State was entitled to appeal to the High Court. The complainant could do so only if granted special leave to appeal by the High Court." The right of appeal was not given to other interested persons. After referring to the Law Commission of India's recommendation the Supreme Court observed "We think that the Court should entertain a special leave petition filed by a private party, other than the complainant, in those cases only where it is convinced that the public interest justifies an appeal against the acquittal and that the State has refrained from petitioning for special leave for reasons which do not bear on the public interest but are prompted by private influence, lack of bona fide and other extraneous considerations. We would restrict accordingly the right of a private party, other than the complainant, to petition for special leave against an order of acquittal. It is perhaps desirable to keep in mind that what follows from the grant of special leave is an appeal and that jurisdiction must, therefore, be invoked by the petitioner possessing a locus standi recognised in law."

29. The Delhi High Court referred to the judgement rendered by the Supreme Court in the case of NHRC Versus State of Gujarat 2004 (8) SCC 610 where it had been observed that "it needs to be emphasised that the rights of the accused have to be protected. At the same time the rights of the victims have to be protected and the rights of the victims cannot be marginalised. Accused persons are entitled to a fair Trial where their guilt or innocence can be determined. But from the victim's perception the perpetrator of a crime should be punished. They stand equally poised in the scales of justice."

30. The said judgment of the Delhi High Court in fact supports a wide interpretation of the term "Victim" and the terms "loss" and "injury" and held that even those persons who were not directly in the line of inheritance as legal heirs of the victim/deceased, could also approach the Court in Appeal.

31. The learned counsel for the appellant also placed reliance upon Anand Sen Yadav versus State of U.P., Criminal Appeal No.1061 of 2011 and connected matters decided on 18.10.2012, where this Court considered Section 24 of the Cr.P.C. which defines Public Prosecutor and on the basis of judgment rendered by the Supreme Court 1999 (7) SCC 467, it observed That a public prosecutor is not expected to show eagerness to reach the case in the conviction of the accused somehow or the other, irrespective of the true facts involved in the case. The expected attitude of the Public Prosecutor while conducting prosecution must be to speak out in fairness not only to the Court and to the investigating agencies but to the accused as well. If an accused is entitled to any legitimate benefit during Trial the Public Prosecutor should not scuttle/conceal it. On the contrary, it is the duty of the Public Prosecutor to bring it to the fore and make it available to the accused even if the defence counsel overlooked it. "Public Prosecutor has the added responsibility of bringing it to the notice of the Court if it comes to his knowledge. A private counsel, if allowed a free hand to conduct prosecution would focus on bringing the case to conviction even if it is not a fit case to be so convicted. That is the reason why Parliament applied a bridle on him and subjected his role strictly to the instructions given by the public prosecutor."

32. The learned counsel for the appellant has also placed reliance upon an order passed by the Delhi High Court in People's Union for Civil Liberties versus CBI; Criminal Revision Number 339 of 1996, decided on 10/04/1997; and an order passed by the High Court of Punjab and Haryana in Kuldeep Singh versus State of Haryana Criminal Revision Number 1030 of 1979, decided on 4 September 1979 ; and Prisoners Rights Forum versus State of Tamil Nadu 2019 SCC online Madras 2476; however, such cases as have been cited only reiterate the position in law regarding locus Standi of third party in criminal Trial and role of Public Prosecutor and are therefore not being considered individually by this Court.

33. In the Supplementary Rejoinder Affidavit of the Appellant details regarding the Objector2 being set up by one Abhay Singh, a hardened criminal who had lost the elections against the appellant in the year 2017 from Gosain Ganj constituency at Ayodhya, have been mentioned giving photographs of the Facebook page of Brijendra Pratap Singh showing his proximity to the said Abhay Singh; the appellant's political rival and also a history sheeter. The learned counsel for Appellant has also referred to the argument raised by the Objectors us that the appellant never applied for regular bail before the learned Trial Court. In response, he has submitted that as is evident from the Court record, in the Case Diary at Parcha number 045765 dated 26 September 1994, it has been noted by the Investigating Officer that all the accused persons including the appellant, are on bail.

34. In regard to the argument regarding criminal history of 35 cases shown against the appellant, the learned counsel has submitted that only one case against the Appellant is pending under Section 323, 5046IPC in which he has been released on bail. In all cases against the Appellant he had been acquitted or Final Report had been submitted or the proceedings were dropped. In paragraph 21 of the Rejoinder Affidavit filed by the Appellant mention has been made of 35 cases which were listed in the Counter Affidavit filed by the State of UP. In some cases Final Report had been filed, in others the appellant had been Acquitted. In still others, the proceedings were dropped and only one criminal case was pending against him. It has been argued that Criminal record for the purpose of grant of bail can only be seen for such offences where Trial was pending.

35. This Court has perused the list of cases filed in the Rejoinder Affidavit by the Appellant. It is apparent that case crime no.77 of 1997 and case number 142 of 1997, pending at Jaunpur and Sonebhadra, have not been mentioned.

36. The learned counsel for the appellant has place reliance upon paragraph 10 of the judgement rendered by the Supreme Court in Maulana Mohammad Aamir Rashidi versus State of UP and another 2012 (2) SCC 382, where the Supreme Court was considering the case of the appellant who was opposing the grant of bail by the High Court to a sitting member of Parliament who was arrested and was in jail for a long time during the course of Trial. The appellant had contended that the accused was a criminal with more than three dozen criminal cases involving serious offences against him. The High Court had observed that merely on the basis of criminal antecedents, the claim of the accused to bail cannot be rejected. The Supreme Court observed that the relevant Consideration for grant of bail order would be 1) the accused has been in jail for a long time, 2) the Trial had commenced and as assured by the State that the Trial will not be prolonged and would be concluded within a reasonable time, and 3) the High Court while granting bail had imposed several conditions for strict adherence during the period of release on bail.

This case is not of much help to the appellant as it related to an accused who was still facing Trial and the presumption of innocence was in his favour.

37. The learned counsel for the appellant has also placed reliance upon Prabhakar Tiwari versus State of UP and another 2020(11) SCC648 and paragraph 7 thereof where the factors that are to be kept in mind For cancellation of an order granting bail have been mentioned i.e. whether there has been a non-application of mind on the part of the Court granting bail or that the opinion of the Court granting bail is not borne out from a prima facie view of evidence on record.

Principles for Grant of Bail Post Conviction

38. This Court having gone through the case laws on grant of bail post conviction finds numerous instances where the Supreme Court has observed that suspension of sentence should be done in extremely rare cases. In Vijai Kumar versus Narendra and others 2002 (9) SCC 364, the Supreme Court has observed that the Court must take into account relevant factors like nature of accusation made against the accused, manner in which the crime was alleged to have been committed, gravity of the offence, desirability of releasing the accused on bail after they have been convicted for committing serious offence. The Supreme Court observed that Section 389(1) of the Code deals with suspension of execution of sentence pending the appeal and release of the appellant. It was observed in para 20 thus- "There is a distinction between bail and suspension of sentence. One of the essential ingredients of 389(1) is the requirement of the appellate Court to record reasons in writing for ordering suspension of execution of the sentence or the order appealed against. If the appellant is in confinement, the Court can direct that he be released on bail or on his own bond. The requirement of Recording reasons in writing clearly indicates that there has to be careful consideration of the relevant aspects, and the order directing suspension of sentence and grant of bail should not be passed as a matter of routine".

39. In Preetpal Singh versus State of U.P. and others 2002 (8) SCC 645, the Supreme Court was considering the question of suspension of sentence after conviction under Section 304B, 406 and 498 A of the I.P.C. and Section 3 and 4 of the Dowry Prohibition Act 1961. It was observed that in an Application for suspension of sentence the "appellate Court was only to examine if there was such patent infirmity in the order of conviction that renders the order of conviction prima facie erroneous. Where there was evidence that has been considered by the Trial Court, it was not open to the appellate Court considering application under Section 389 to re-assess and/or re analyse the same evidence and take a different view, to suspend the execution of sentence and release the convict on bail." At the stage of an application under Section 389 (1) the High Court found merit in the argument that the brother of the victim had not been examined ignoring the evidence relied upon by the Sessions Court, including the oral evidence of the victim's parents. The Supreme Court observed that under Section 389 (3) of the Code the principles are different in case of sentence not exceeding three years and/or in the case of bailable offences. The Supreme Court relied upon Kashmira Singh versus State of Punjab 1977 (4) SCC page 291 and Babu Singh and others versus State of UP 1978 (1) SCC 579, to say that the appellate Court must consider whether any cogent ground has been disclosed giving rise to substantial doubts about the validity of the conviction and whether there is likelihood of unreasonable delay in disposal of appeal. The Supreme Court also relied upon observations made in Kalyan Chandra Sarkar versus Rajesh Ranjan and another 2004 (7) SCC page 528, where the Supreme Court had held in paragraph 11 that the Court granting bail should exercise its discretion in a judicious manner and not as a matter of course. It was observed thus:-

"Though at the stage of granting bail a detailed examination of evidence and elaborate documentation of the merits of the case need not be undertaken, there is a need to indicate in such orders reasons for prima facie concluding innocence while bail was being granted particularly where the accused is charged of having committed a serious offence. Any order devoid of such reasons would suffer from non-application of mind." Reference was made to Chaman Lal versus State of U.P. and another 2004 (7) SCC 525, and judgement rendered in Mauji Ram versus State of U.P. and another 2019 8 SCC 17, Ajay Kumar Sharma versus State of UP and others 2005 (7) SCC 507, Lokesh Singh versus State of UP and another 2021 (6) SCC 753, and Data Ram Singh versus State of U.P. and Another 2018 (3) SCC 22; where it was observed that reasons must be assigned while granting bail. The Supreme Court further observed in paragraph 36 -

"there is a difference between grant of bail under Section 439 of the Code of Criminal Procedure in case of pre-Trial arrest and suspension of sentence under Section 389 of the code of criminal procedure and grant of bail, post conviction. In the earlier case there may be presumption of innocence, which is a fundamental postulate of criminal jurisprudence, and the Courts must be liberal, depending on the facts and circumstances of the case, on the principle that bail is the rule and jail is an exception, as held by this Court in Data Ram Singh versus State of UP and another. However in case of post conviction bail, by suspension of operation of sentence, there is a finding of guilt and the question of presumption of innocence does not arise nor is the principle of bail being the rule and jail an exception attracted, once there is a conviction upon Trial. Rather, the Court considering an application for suspension of sentence and grant of bail, is to consider the prima facie merits of the appeal, coupled with other factors. There should be strong compelling reasons for grant of bail, notwithstanding an order of conviction for by suspension of sentence, and this strong and compelling reason must be recorded in the order granting bail, as mandated in Section 389 (1) of the Code of Criminal Procedure."

The Supreme Court further observed in paragraph 39 -"In considering an application for suspension of sentence, the appellate Court is only to examine if there is such patent infirmity in the order of conviction that renders the order of conviction prima facie erroneous. Where there is evidence that has been considered by the Trial Court, it is not open to a Court "considering application under Section 389 to reassess and or re analyse the same evidence and take a different view, to suspend the execution of sentence and release the convict on bail. " (emphasis supplied)

40. In Kishori Lal versus Roopa and others, 2004 (7) SCC 638, the Supreme Court was considering the informants' appeal against grant of bail under Section 389(1) Cr.P.C. by the High Court on the ground that during Trial, the accused respondents were on bail and had not misused the liberty granted to them. The Supreme Court observed that the High Court is duty-bound to objectively assess the matter and to record reasons for the conclusion that warrants suspension of execution of sentence and grant of bail. Mere fact that during the period when the accused persons were on bail during Trial there was no misuse of liberties does not per se warrant suspension of execution of sentence.

41. In Shyam Narayan Pandey versus State of U.P. 2014 (8) SCC 909, the Supreme Court was considering the scope of stay of conviction under Section 389 (1) of the Code of Criminal Procedure. The appellant had been convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment and fine. The High Court had considered the application made by the petitioner for staying conviction and had declined the relief. It was the contention of the appellant that he was innocent. He had been working as a Principal and if his conviction was not stayed he would lose his job and would be denied of his livelihood and would not be able to participate in subsequent selection procedures conducted by U.P. Secondary Education Service Selection Board Allahabad. The Supreme Court rejected such contentions. The Supreme Court observed that, "to be convicted means declared to be guilty of criminal offence by the verdict of the Court of law. That declaration is made after Court finds him guilty of the charges which had been proved against him. That is, in effect if one prays for stay of conviction, he is asking for stay of operation of the effects of declaration of being guilty. Unless there are exceptional circumstances the Appellate Court shall not stay the conviction and may not direct that the sentence be suspended. There are no hard and fast rules or guidelines as to what are those exceptional circumstances. However there are certain indications in the Code of Criminal Procedure 1973 itself as to which are those situations and a few indications are available in the judgements of the Supreme Court as to what are those circumstances." (emphasis supplied)

42. The Supreme Court thereafter in paragraph 9 observed - "it may be noted that even for suspension of the sentence, the Court has to record reasons in writing of which some indication are given in the Code of Criminal Procedure pursuant to the recommendations made by the Law commission of India, and the observations of the Supreme Court in various judgements as per Act 25 of 2005. It was regarding the release on bail of a convict where the sentences of death or life imprisonment or of a period not less than 10 years. If the appellate Court is inclined to consider release of a convict for such offences, the Public Prosecutor has to be given an opportunity for showing cause in writing against such release. This is also an indication as to the seriousness of such offences and circumspection which the Court should have while passing the order on stay of conviction. Similar is the case with offences involving moral turpitude. If the convict is involved in crimes which are so outrageous and yet beyond suspension of sentence, if the conviction is also stayed , it would have serious impact on the public perception on the integrity of the institution. Such orders definitely will shake the public confidence in judiciary. That is why, it has been observed time and again that the Court should be very wary in staying the conviction specially in the types of cases referred to above, and it shall be done only in very rare and exceptional cases of irreparable Injury coupled with every possible consequence resulting in injustice.". (emphasis supplied)

43. The Supreme Court observed further in paragraph 10 thus -

"In Ravi Kant S Patil versus Sarvabhauma S Bagali 2007 (1) SCC 673 the Supreme Court has held that, "the power to stay the conviction should be exercised only in exceptional circumstances where failure to stay the conviction would lead to injustice and irreversible consequences".

44. In Navjot Singh Sidhu versus State of Punjab and another 2007 (2) SCC 574, following Ravi Kant S Patil's (Supra) case at paragraph 6, the Supreme Court held as follows:

(6) "the legal position is therefore, clear that an appellate Court can suspend or grant stay of order of conviction. But the person seeking stay of conviction must advert to the consequences that may arise if the conviction is not stayed. Unless the attention of the Court is drawn to the specific consequences that would follow on account of the conviction, the person convicted cannot obtain an order of stay of conviction. Further, grant of stay of conviction can be resorted to in rare cases depending upon the special facts of the case."

45. In Sanjay Dutt versus State of Maharashtra 2009 (5) SCC 787 the petitioner appellant was found guilty under Sections 3 and Section 7 read with Section 251A and 1B of the Arms act 1959 and sentenced to 6 years rigourous imprisonment. The appeal against such judgement was pending consideration before the Supreme Court during which the petitioner was granted bail. The petitioner being desirous of contesting elections was disqualified in view of Section 8 subclause (3) of the Representation of People Act because of the aforesaid conviction and sentence. Therefore a petition was filed by him under Section 389 (1) praying that execution of the order of his conviction and sentence be suspended, pending final hearing of appeal, to enable him to contest elections. The Supreme Court held that the petitioner was convicted for serious offences challenge against which is still pending before the Supreme Court. The petitioner may be a senior artiste and son of a well-known film actor/politician and not a habitual criminal nor had been involved in any other criminal case, despite all these favourable circumstances, it was not a fit case where conviction and sentence could be suspended so that under Section 8 sub-clause (3) of the Representation of People Act the disqualification against the petitioner be removed. It was held that the power of the Court under Section 389(1) Cr.P.C. shall be exercised only under exceptional circumstances. In paragraph 10 and thereafter in paragraph 12 to 14 it was observed that Reliance placed on the judgement rendered and Navjot Singh Sidhu V state of Punjab 2007 (2) SCC 574 by the Petitioner was misplaced. In that case the petitioner was a sitting MP and could have continued as an MP even after his conviction and sentence in view of Section 8 subclause (4) of the Representation of People Act. The petitioner in Navjot Singh Sidhu's case resigned and expressed his desire to contest the election. In fact, that was the case where the Trial Court acquitted the petitioner and the High Court, in reversal, found the petitioner guilty. It was in those circumstances that the Supreme Court granted stay of the order of conviction and sentence. The Court while expressing no views on the merits of the case which would have even a remote possibility to prejudice either of the parties in appeal, made observations that in view of the serious offences for which he has been convicted by the Special Judge, the petitioners' prayer for suspension of conviction and sentence awarded by the Special Judge could not be be granted

46. In State of Maharashtra through CBI Anti Corruption Branch, Mumbai versus Balakrishna Dattatreya Kumbhar 2012(12) SCC 384, referring also to the two decisions cited above, it has been held in paragraph 15 that: "- - - the appellate Court in an exceptional case, may put the conviction in abeyance along with the sentence, but such power must be exercised with great circumspection and caution, for the purpose of which, the applicant must satisfy the Court as regards the evil that is likely to befall him, if the said conviction is not suspended. The Court has to consider all the facts as are pleaded by the applicants, in a judicious manner and examine whether the facts and circumstances involved in the case are such, that the warrant such course of action by it. The Court, must record in writing, its reasons for granting such relief. Relief of staying the order of conviction cannot be granted only on the ground that appellant will lose his job, if the same is not done...".

47. In Shakuntala Shukla versus State of UP and others AIR 2021 Supreme Court 4384, the Supreme Court was considering challenge to order granting bail to the accused pending appeal. The Supreme Court observed in para 11,11.1,11.2,&11.3, that the judgement of the High Court releasing the accused on bail did not take into consideration the conduct of the accused during investigation and Trial giving threats to the complainant side and other witnesses are offences under Section 504 and 506 IPC and can be said to be very serious offences as the accused had tried to interfere in the fairness of the investigation and the Trial. Such conduct ought not to have been taken by the High Court very lightly. The Court set aside the order of the High Court observing that it had committed a grave error in releasing the accused on bail pending appeals against the judgement and order of conviction.

48. In Somesh Chaurasiya versus State of Madhya Pradesh and others AIR 2021 Supreme Court 3563, the Supreme Court was considering an application for cancellation of bail granted to the second respondent by the High Court under Section 389 (1) of the Cr.P.C. pending his appeal against conviction for murder. The Supreme Court observed that the High Court should not have dismissed the application for cancellation of bail moved by the appellant and the State of Madhya Pradesh without looking into the fact that the appellant had committed murder during the period he was on bail as a result of suspension of his sentence in the pending appeal.

49. The Supreme Court made a reference to the judgement rendered in Atul Tripathi versus State of UP and others 2014 (9) SCC 177, where the procedure regarding consideration of bail under Section 389 (1) has been discussed in detail. It referred to the observation made by the Bench in Atul Tripathi (supra) that the appellate Court had to give opportunity to the Public Prosecutor to file written objections against the bail application. Such a stringent provision is introduced only to ensure that the Court is the apprised of all the relevant factors so that the Court may consider "whether it is an appropriate case for release having regard to the manner in which the crime is committed, the gravity of the offence, age, criminal antecedents of the convict, impact on public confidence in the justice delivery system et cetera. This procedure is intended to ensure transparency, to ensure that there is no allegation of collusion and to ensure that the Court is properly assisted by the State with true and correct facts with regard to the relevant considerations for grant of bail in respect of serious offences, at the post conviction stage".

(emphasis supplied)

50. The Supreme Court observed in paragraph 34 - "there are distinct doctrinal concepts in criminal law namely (1), the grant of bail before Trial or, what is described as pre-conviction stage; (2) setting aside an order granting bail when the principle must weigh in the decision on whether bail should be granted have been overlooked or wrongly applied; (3) the post conviction suspension of sentence under the provisions of Section 389 subclause (1) ; and (4) the cancellation of bail on the ground of supervening events, such as the conduct of the accused during the period of bail, vitiating the continuance of bail."

51. In State of Delhi Narcotics Control Bureau versus Lokesh Chadha 2021 (5) SCC 724 and Preet Pal Singh versus State of UP

(Supra), the Supreme Court observed that there is a difference between grant of bail under Section 439 of the Code of Criminal Procedure in case of Pre-Trial arrest and suspension of sentence under Section 389 (1) of the Cr.P.C. and grant of bail, post conviction. Under Section 389 (1) the High Court must be duly cognisant of the fact that a finding of guilt has been arrived at by the Trial judge at the conclusion of Trial. The High Court may stay the execution of the sentence but it should keep in mind that there are sufficient reasons to do so which must have a bearing on the public policy.

52. In B.R. Kapoor versus State of Tamil Nadu 2001 (7) SCC 231 the Court had observed that an order of the appellate or original Court suspending the sentence of imprisonment had to be read in the context of Section 389(1) of the Code of Criminal Procedure and that under the provision, what is suspended is only the execution of the sentence and not the sentence itself. The Constitution Bench made it clear that the suspension of execution of sentence would not alter or affect the conviction, and therefore such a person would remain disqualified under Section 8(3).

53. In fact, in B.R. Kapoor (Supra) a person whose nomination was rejected on the ground of disqualification, got elected as leader of a party which secured the majority in the elections and became the Chief Minister and hence Article 164 was pressed into service. But even such argument was rejected on the ground that a person who was disqualified from contesting the elections, cannot take the route of Article 164. The contention was further raised in B.R. Kapoor (Supra) that sitting Members of Parliament or legislators are granted protection against removal from office by Section 8(4) of the Act during pendency of their appeal or revision against conviction, and that it is violative of the guarantee of equality under the Constitution, if the class of persons getting convicted before elections are placed at a disadvantageous position than the class of persons who are convicted after getting elected to the Parliament or the state legislatures. The Constitution Bench rejected this contention in BR Kapoor on the ground that constitutional validity of sub-Section (4) of Section 8 was not in question.

54. A challenge was made to Section 8 (4) in Lily Thomas Versus Union of India 2013 (7) SCC 653 on the ground of discrimination. While declaring the said provision to be unconstitutional, the Supreme Court held in Lily Thomas, that a Member of Parliament or state legislature who suffers a frivolous conviction, will not be remedyless. Taking note of decisions in Rama Narang versus Ramesh Narang 1995 (2) SCC 513, and Ravi Kant S. Patil versus Sarvabhauma S. Bagali 2007 (1) SCC 673, the Supreme Court held in Lily Thomas that the appellate Court had ample power under Section 389 (1) of the Code to stay the conviction as well as the sentence, and that whenever a stay of conviction itself has been granted, the disqualification will not operate.

55. In Rama Narang versus Ramesh Narang others 1995 (2) SCC 513 Relied upon by the counsel for the appellant, conviction of Managing Director of a company for an offence involving moral turpitude was suspended. The Supreme Court considered Section 389(1) which empowered the Appellate Court to order the execution of the sentence or order appealed against to be suspended pending the appeal. The Supreme Court considered the question as to what can be suspended under this provision, and held that it was the execution of the sentence or order which could be suspended. An order of conviction by itself is not capable of execution under the Code. It is the order of sentence or an order awarding compensation or imposing fine or release on probation which are capable of execution, and would be required to be executed by the authorities if not suspended. In certain situations the order of conviction can be executable in the sense that it will lead to the disqualification for example under Section 267 of the Companies Act from being appointed or to continue as a Director incharge of the affairs of a Company. Therefore when an appeal is preferred under Section 374 of the Code, the appeal is against both the conviction and sentence and therefore there is no reason to place a narrow interpretation on Section 389 (1) of the Code not to extend it to an order of conviction. In a fit case, if the High Court feels satisfied that the order of conviction needs to be suspended post conviction so that the convicted person does not suffer from a certain was disqualification provided for in any other Statute, it may exercise the power because otherwise the damage done cannot be undone; the disqualification incurred by Section 267 of the Companies Act and given effect to cannot be undone at a subsequent date if the conviction is set aside by the appellate Court eventually.

Whether trial vitiated due to subsequent observations of the Supreme Court.

56. Regarding the argument raised by the learned counsel for the appellant that the trial is vitiated as it was done by an incompetent Court; in Gokaraju Ranga Raju Versus State of Andhra Pradesh 1981 (13) SCC 132, the Supreme Court was considering the "de facto doctrine". It was a case where while criminal revision and appeals were pending before the High Court, the Supreme Court quashed the appointment of the Sessions Judges, who had heard those cases, on the ground that their appointment was in violation of Article 233 of the Constitution. Thereupon, it was argued before the High Court that the judgements rendered by the judges were void and required to be set aside. The High Court rejected the contention. Dismissing the appeal the Supreme Court held that- "a Judge, De facto is one who is not a mere intruder or usurper but one who holds office, under colour of lawful authority., Even though his appointment is defective And may later be found to be so. Whatever be the defect of his title to the office, judgements pronounced by him or acts done by him when he was clothed with the powers and functions of the office, albeit unlawfully, have the same efficacy as judgements pronounced or acts done by a judge de jure. Such is the de facto doctrine, born of necessity and public policy to prevent needless confusion and endless mischief. There is yet another rule also based on public policy. The defective appointment of a de facto judge may be questioned directly in a proceeding to which he be a party, but it cannot be permitted to be questioned in a litigation between two private litigants, a litigation which is of no concern or consequence to the judge except as a judge. Hence the rule against collateral attack of validity of judicial appointments. To question a judge's appointment in an appeal against the judgement is such a collected attack. Therefore it is not possible to accept the contention is that a Trial by a Sessions judge who was appointed in violation of Article 233 was not a Trial by a Sessions Judge duly appointed to exercise jurisdiction under Section 9 Cr.P.C. and that the Fundamental Right of the appellants under Article 21 was violated as their liberty was being taken away otherwise than in accordance with the procedure established by law. It would be a different matter if the Constitution of the Court itself is under challenge, but that is not the case here."

57. The Supreme Court in the said judgement referred to several English and American authorities right from 1431. The Supreme Court referred to observations made by Lord Denning relying upon American cases where observation was made that "where an office exists under the law, it matters not how the appointment of the incumbent is made, so far as the validity of his acts are concerned. It is enough that he is clothed with the insignia of the office, And exercises its powers and functions - - - the official acts of such persons are recognised as valid on the grounds of public policy, and for protection of those having official business to transact."

58. In State of U.P. versus Rafiq Uddin and others 1987 Supplement SCC 401, the Supreme Court was considering the appointment of certain judges in violation of U.P. Civil Service Judicial Branch Rules 1951. The Supreme Court observed that even though they had not been found suitable for appointment according to the norms fixed by the Public Service Commission, they had been working in the Judicial Service during all these years and some of them had been promoted and they had performed their functions and duties as de facto judicial officers. The Supreme Court relied upon judgement rendered in Gokaraju (supra) where it has been observed "a person who is ineligible to judgeship, but who has nevertheless been duly appointed and who exercises the powers and duties of the office of is a de facto judge, he acts validly until he is properly removed. Judgement and orders of a de facto judge cannot be challenged on the ground of his ineligibility for appointment."

59. The argument of the Learned Counsel for the appellant that his Trial was vitiated on the ground that it had been held by an incompetent Court cannot also be countenanced As is evident from the observations made by the Supreme Court in the case of Gokaraju (supra) and Rafiq Uddin (supra).

Joint Trial, if permissible

60. Regarding the argument raised by learned Senior Counsel for the appellant about joint Trial being impermissible, in a recent decision of Nasib Singh versus State of Punjab decided on 8.10.2021 reported in 2021 SCC Online SC 924; the Supreme Court was considering the question as to whether non-joinder of Trials in two FIRs itself had caused a miscarriage of justice, prejudicing the rights of the accused or the case of the prosecution such that it necessitated the order of the High Court directing a reTrial after clubbing the proceedings arising out of both the FIRs. The Supreme Court considered the judicial pronouncements on the issue as well as the statutory provisions relating to framing and joinder of charges, and after referring to Section 218, 219, 220, 221 and 223 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. The Supreme Court observed that the High Court ought not to set aside the conviction of the accused on the ground that inter-alia the joint Trial of two or more offences committed by each of them is illegal, the Supreme Court referred to a three-judge bench decision regarding Section 239 (d) of the old Code which corresponds to Section 223 (d) of the new Code and juxtaposing it with the provisions of Section 225 (1)of the old Code which is Section 219 (1) of the new Code . In that case the respondents along with two others were tried together for offences under the Penal Code. The High Court had set aside the conviction on the ground that joint Trial of two or more offences committed by each of them was illegal. The Bench observed that the phrase "offence committed in the course of same transaction "would mean offences that are committed in proximity of time or place or unity of purpose and design. It quoted paragraph 25 of the judgement in State of Andhra Pradesh versus Cheemlapati GaneshVara Rao AIR 1963 Supreme Court 1850, thus :- "....indeed it would be always difficult to define precisely what the expression means. Whether a "transaction" can be regarded as the same would necessarily depend upon the particular facts of each case and it seems to us to be difficult task to undertake a definition of that which the legislature has deliberately left undefined. We have not come across a single decision of any Court which has embarked upon the difficult task of defining the expression. But it is generally thought that where there is a proximity of time or place or unity of purpose and design or continuity of action in respect of a series of facts, it may be possible to infer that they form part of the same series of acts, it may be possible to infer that they form part of the same transaction. It is, however not necessary that every one of these elements should coexist for a transaction to be regarded as the same. But if several acts committed by a person show unity of purpose or design that would be a strong circumstance to indicate that those acts form part of the "same transaction". The connection between a series of acts seems to us to be an essential ingredient of those acts to constitute the same transaction and, therefore, the mere absence of the words "so connected together as to form same transaction" in Section 239 would make little difference. Now a transaction may consist of an isolated act or may consist of a series of acts. The series of acts which constitute a transaction must of necessity be connected with one another and if some of them stand out independently they would not form part of the same transaction but would constitute a different transaction or transactions. Therefore, even if the expression same transaction alone has been used in Section 235 it would have meant a transaction consisting of either a single act or a series of connected acts. The expression "same transaction "occurring in clause (d) of Section 239 as well as that occurring in Section 235 (1) ought to be given the same meaning according to the normal rule of construction of statutes - - -".

61. In Nasib Singh (supra), the Bench observed that holding a separate Trial is the rule and a joint Trial is the exception. However, in case the accused persons commit different offences forming part of the same transaction, a joint Trial would be the rule unless it is proved that joint Trial would cause difficulty:

para 28 - - - "no doubt, as has been rightly pointed out in this case, separate Trial is the normal rule and joint Trial is an exception, but while this principle is easy to appreciate and follow where one person alone is accused and the interaction or intervention of the acts of more persons than one does not come in, it would, where the same act is committed by several persons, be not only inconvenient but injudicious to try all the several persons separately. This would lead to unnecessary multiplicity of Trials involving avoidable inconvenience to the witnesses and avoidable expenditure of public time and money. No corresponding advantage can be gained by the accused persons by following the procedure of separate Trials. Where, however, several offences are alleged to have been committed by several accused persons, it may be more reasonable to follow the normal role of separate Trials. But here, again, if those offences are alleged not to be wholly unconnected but as forming part of the same transaction, the only consideration that will justify separate Trials would be the embarrassment or difficulty caused to the accused persons in defending themselves."

62. The Supreme Court thereafter held that the High Court was wrong in setting aside the order of conviction on the ground of misjoinder of parties. It was observed that the Court could have set aside the order of conviction only on the ground that such misjoinder caused a failure of justice to the accused and not merely because there is a misjoinder of parties:

para 31 ...."even if we were to assume that there has been a misjoinder of charges in violation of the provisions of Section 233 to 239 of the Code, the High Court was incompetent to set aside the conviction of the respondents without coming to the definite conclusion that misjoinder had occasioned failure of justice. This decision completely meets the argument based upon Dawson case (1961 All England reporter 558).Merely because the accused persons are charged with a large number of offences and convicted at the Trial, the conviction cannot be set aside by the appellate Court unless it in fact comes to the conclusion that the accused persons were embarrassed in their defence with the result that there was a failure of justice. For all these reasons we cannot accept the argument of the learned counsel on the ground of mis-joinder of charges and multiplicity of charges."

This interpretation placed on Section 223(d) of the old Code was relied upon by the Supreme Court in R Dinesh Kumar versus State 2015 (7) SCC 497.

63. The Court also observed in Chandrabhal versus State of U.P. 1971(3) SCC 983, a case where the appellant was convicted of an offence under Section 302, while the two co-accused charged with offences under Section 302 read with Section 34 of the Penal Code were acquitted, that "although Section 233 embodies the general mandatory rule providing for a separate charge for every distinct offence and for a separate Trial for every such charge, the broad object underlying the general rule seems to be to give to the accused a notice of the precise accusation and to save him from being embarrassed in his defence by the confusion which is likely to result from lumping together in a single charge distinct offences, and from combining several charges at one Trial. There are however, exceptions to this general rule and they are found in Section 234, 235, 236 and 239. These exceptions embrace cases in which one Trial for more than one offence is not considered likely to embarrass or prejudice the accused in his defence. The matter of joinder of charges is however in the general discretion of the Court and the principal consideration controlling the judicial exercise of this discretion should be to avoid embarrassment to the defence by joinder of charges."

64. The Supreme Court observed further that the matter was required to be considered by the Trial Court at the beginning of the Trial and is not to be determined on the basis of the result of the Trial. The Court further observed that its attention was not drawn to any material on record suggesting that prejudice has been caused to the appellant as a result of a separate Trial.

65. The Supreme Court in Nasib Singh (supra) summarised the Principles laid down in Chandrabhal thus-"A separate Trial is not contrary to law even if a joint Trial for the offences along with other offences is permissible. (1) The possibility of a joint Trial has to be decided at the beginning of the Trial and not on the basis of the result of the Trial; (2) and the true test is whether any prejudice has been sustained as a result of a separate Trial. In other words, reTrial with the direction of a joint Trial would be ordered only if there is a failure of justice."

66. The Supreme Court in paragraph 39 summarised the principles on the basis of decisions of the Court on joint Trials and Separate Trials and observed thus.

Para 39 "From the decisions of this Court on joint Trial and separate Trials, the following principles can be formulated:

1) Section 218 provides that separate Trials will be conducted for distinct offences alleged to be committed by a person. Section 219-221 provide exceptions to this general rule. If a person falls under these exceptions, then a joint Trial for the offences, which a person is charged with maybe conducted. Similarly, under Section 223, a joint Trial may be held for persons charged with different offences, if any of the clauses in the provision are separately or in a combination satisfied;

2),while applying the principles enunciated in Sections 218-223 on conducting joint and separate Trials, the Trial Court should apply a two pronged test, namely, (i) whether conducting a joint/separate Trial will prejudice the defence of the accused; and/or (ii) whether conducting a joint/separate Trial would cause judicial delay.

(3)the possibility of conducting a joint Trial will have to be determined at the beginning of the Trial and not after the Trial based on the result of the Trial. The appellate Court may determine the validity of the argument that there ought to have been a separate/joint Trial only based on whether the Trial had prejudiced the rights of the accused or the Prosecutrix ;

(4)since the provisions which engraft an exception use the phrase "may "with reference to conducting a joint Trial, a separate Trial is usually not contrary to law even if a joint Trial could be conducted, unless proven to cause a miscarriage of justice; and

A conviction or acquittal of the accused cannot be set aside on the mere ground that there was a possibility of a joint or a separate Trial. To set aside the order of conviction or acquittal, it must be proved that Rights of the parties were prejudiced because of the joint or separate Trial, as the case may be".

67. The Supreme Court in Nasib Singh (supra) further observed in paragraph 44 that the observations of the Supreme Court in Chandrabhal were reiterated in State of M. P. Vs. Bhooraji 2001 (7) SCC 679; and observed that a de novo Trial should be a matter of last resort only when such a course of action becomes "so desperate and indisputable". Moreover, the Court emphasised that the appellate Court would do so in an extreme exigency to avert the failure of justice. While exercising its power as a Court of appeal under Section 386 Code of Criminal Procedure, the Court has to be conscious of the fundamental principle that the power to order a de novo Trial or "that the accused to be retried or committed for Trial" is of an exceptional nature which is intended to prevent a miscarriage of justice. The same principle is in fact embodied in Section 465(1) of the Code of Criminal Procedure.

68. Section 465 of the Code provides that-

"465. Finding or sentence when reversible by reason of error, omission or irregularity - (1) subject to the provisions hereinbefore contained, no finding, sentence or order passed by a Court of competent jurisdiction shall be reversed or altered by a Court of appeal, confirmation or revision on account of any error, omission or irregularity in the complaint, summons, warrant, Proclamation, order, judgement or other proceedings, before or during Trial ,or in any enquiry or other proceedings under this Code, or any error, or irregularity, in any sanction for prosecution, unless in the opinion of the Court, a failure of justice has in fact been occasioned thereby.

69. The learned counsel for the petitioner has argued also on the ground that the Trial is vitiated because it has been conducted and judgement delivered by Smt. Pooja Singh IIIrd ADJ who was not the designated Court/Special Sessions Court to try cases relating to MPs and MLAs in district Faizabad. This Court had summoned a report from the District Judge concerned on 29.11.2021. On the basis of such report/comments this Court had passed an order on 30.11.2021. Which is being quoted here in below: -

"In pursuance of the order passed by me earlier the District Judge, Faizabad has sent a report dated 30.11.2021 which has been placed by the office before the Court today itself.

In this report, it has come out that Smt. Pooja Singh was initially Additional District and Sessions Judge, Court No.1 and she was entrusted/designated to hear matters regarding MPs and MLAs. Later on, however due to certain intervening circumstances she became Court No.3 but the High Court sent a letter No. 6171 dated 03.06.2021 wherein it was stated that officers who were empowered to try the criminal cases pending against the MPs and MLAs will try the said cases as long as they were posted in the concerned district. Therefore, some twenty cases which were being heard by Smt. Pooja Singh as designated District & Sessions Judge/Special Court for MPs and MLAs would assigned to her even though she became Court no.3 in Faizabad Judgeship. A list of such matters has also been filed alongwith the report as also the copy of letter dated 03.06.2021 sent by the Joint Registrar,Judicial(Services) High Court of the Allahabad to all District Judges concerned. The question of lack of jurisdiction is thus addressed insofar as Trial of the petitioner by Additional District and Sessions Judge, Smt. Pooja Singh is concerned.

Put up tomorrow i.e. 01.12.2021 at 02:15 PM."

The controversy regarding The IIIrd ADJ and not the Ist ADJ At Faizabad hearing and deciding the Special Case No.3012/2018 thus stands settled.

70. Having considered the arguments raised by the learned counsel for the appellant against giving hearing to the private counsel appearing on behalf of the Objectors, this Court is of the considered opinion that such Objectors can only be allowed to interject under the supervision of AGA/ Public prosecutor. The State having filed objections wherein the criminal history of the appellant has been given in detail in the form of a chart, the same can be considered by this Court even if it chooses to ignore the affidavits filed in support of the objections by the Objector 1 and 2. Practically the same objections have been taken by both the Objectors to the grant of bail to the appellant. They have referred to his criminal background and the fact that several criminal cases are pending against him in various Courts in various districts such as Jaunpur, Sonebhadra, Ayodhya and others. They have also referred to the Appellant managing to get a firearm licence on a fake identity proof and residential address. They have also referred to the appellant managing to get bail on the basis of fake identity proof and fake residential address. It has been submitted by the learned counsel for the appellant that the appellant has been acquitted, Or discharged Or the proceedings have been dropped or final report has been submitted in almost all such cases, but the Learned counsel for the appellant has failed to point out that at least two cases which are still pending in the Court at Jaunpur and Sonebhadra regarding theft of Court records and murder. These criminal antecedents form a necessary fact to be looked into at the time of grant of bail to the appellant post Conviction by the Learned Trial Court.

71. The learned counsel for the appellant has argued on the basis of order passed by the Supreme Court on 24.11.2021 in Mohammad Azam Khan's case whose Writ petitions were taken up along with the PIL by Ashwini Kumar Upadhyay (supra) that the observations of the Supreme Court have nullified and expunged the Trials that have been held by Sessions Courts in cases triable by Magistrates also does not appeal to reason as the Supreme Court has not mentioned in its order dated 24 November 2021 anything about cases where Trials have been concluded and judgement pronounced. Such Trials/judgements must be governed by the law settled by the Supreme Court in the case of Gokaraju (supra) and Rafiq Uddin (supra). At the time when Trial was being conducted by the Sessions Court a valid notification of the Allahabad High Court was in existence transferring the case to it. Subsequent observations of the Supreme Court regarding misinterpretation of its orders by the High Court would not nullify the judgement Under appeal before this Court.

72. The learned counsel for the appellant has raised a challenge to the judgement under appeal on the ground That a joint Trial was held.

In view of the law settled by the Supreme Court in the case of Nasib Singh versus State of Punjab 2021 SCConline Supreme Court 924 a joint Trial could have been held As the college where the three accused were studying was one, its Principal had lodged the FIR regarding similar interpolations in marksheets by the three accused on the basis of same record of results maintained by it in its ordinary course of business and the very same evidence was to be produced to bring home the charge in the case of each of the accused and the prosecution witnesses who were examined to prove the charges were also the same.

73. This Court having considered the law laid down by the Supreme Court for considering applications for suspension of sentence and conviction pending appeals by the appellant does not find merit in the submissions made by the learned counsel for the appellant that he will suffer irreparable loss if his conviction is not stayed as he will be disqualified under Section 8(3) of the Representation of Peoples Act for a period of six years from the date of his conviction till his release from participating in elections. The Supreme Court has time and again observed the need to maintain probity in public life. This Court cannot countenance the conduct of the appellant as brought out by the facts mentioned hereinabove in taking the Authorities for a ride by submitting fake proof of identity and residence for procuring an arms license, and in taking the Courts for a ride in submitting bail papers and sureties on the basis of fake residential address and also removing Court records of criminal case pending against him.

74. The application under Section 389 (1) of the Cr.P.C. therefore stands rejected.

Criminal Appeal No. 3879 of 2015

Rinka @ Jitendra ...Appellant
Versus
State of U.P. ...Respondent

Counsel for the Appellant:
Sri Sudhir Kr. Kulshreshtha, Sri Noor Mohammad, Sri Ronak Chaturvedi, Sri Santosh Tripathi, Sri Umang Srivastava, Zia Naz Zaidi, Sri Ajay Kumar Pathak, Ms. Alka Upadhyay, Sri Krishna Deep Singh

Counsel for the Respondent:
Govt. Advocate

Evidence Law - Indian Evidence Act, 1872- Sections 3 ,101 , 145 & 155(3) – Only examination of interested witnesses- Major contradictions – Failure to prove injuries with weapon alleged – Perverse findings- Just because the F.I.R had named the accused it cannot mean that the site plan depicting the presence of the accused at a particular place is proved beyond reasonable doubt. There are several contradictions and these contradictions are not minor in nature- All interested witnesses have been examined by the prosecution. Not a single witness who can be said to be an independent witness has been examined. The finding of the learned Judge is not accepting the submission of the accused goes to through the perversity in the judgement. The F.I.R never stated that the accused had any altercation with the deceased girl, it was juvenile delinquent who had passed remarks-The accused should be granted what is known as benefit of doubt. One of the reasons been the manner in which the injuries was caused was not with the weapon which was alleged to be carried by the accused, the scribe also did not prove the time of the incident. The manner of assault is also not been proved against the accused.

Settled law that the burden of proving its case beyond all reasonable doubt lies upon the prosecution. Where the prosecution has examined only interested witnesses whose testimony has major contradictions, the time, place and manner of the alleged assault has not been proved and the judgement of the trial court is perverse, then the accused is entitled for the benefit of doubt. Criminal Appeal Allowed. (E-3)

Judgements/ Case law relied upon:-

1. St. of Guj. Vs. Bhalchandra Laxmishankar Dave, 2021 (0) AIJEL-SC 66983

2. Awadh Ram Vs. St. of U.P, 2004 (48) ACC 365

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Kaushal Jayendra Thaker, J.
Hon'ble Dinesh Pathak, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the appellant and G.A. for the respondent.

2. The instant Criminal Appeal has been preferred on behalf of the sole appellant-convict Rinka alias Jitendra against the judgment dated 14.07.2015 passed by the Sessions Court in Sessions Trial No. 471 of 2013 (State Vs. Rinka @ Jitendra) arising out of Case Crime No. 342 of 2012, under Sections 376, 511 read with 302 of Indian Penal Code (I.P.C.), P.S. Palimukimpur, District Aligarh whereby the learned trial court convicted him for the offence under Section 376/511 of Indian Penal Code and sentenced appellant to undergo with rigorous imprisonment of 5 years and a fine of Rs. 5000/- and also ordered to undergo imprisonment of two months in default of payment of fine and for the offence under Section 302 of Indian Penal Code the appellant further undergo for life imprisonment and fine of Rs. 20,000/- and in default of payment of fine six months imprisonment.

3. The brief facts as culled out from the paper-book and the record are that Yadram Sharma has given a written information at police station Palimukimpur for commission of offence under Section 376, 302 and 511 I.P.C on the facts that on 27.12.2012 his daughter (prosecutrix) was aged about 14 years the accused wanted to have illicit relation with her and when she refused, he threatened to kill her with a knife. This fact was conveyed by prosecutrix to her mother. On 27.12.2012 at about 4:30 p.m when the prosecutrix was on the way to attend the call of nature, accused Gopal who was declared juvenile later on and whose case is pending before the Juvenile Justice Board, Aligarh to the mustard field so as to support this Gaurav the present accused in the appeal also came behind him and when the girl started yelling persons who were near her came running. At that point of time the accused drew out his pistol and conveyed that if anybody came near he would shoot them, on this there was a commotion. At that point of time as per the F.I.R version the accused took out a knife and did away with the prosecutrix and they went away. The girl was declared dead. On the basis of the complaint the investigation was started and it converted into laying of charge-sheet against both the accused. Lala @ Gaurav being juvenile, his case was send to Juvenile Justice Board and the case of present accused was committed to the court of Sessions.

4. On this written information case crime no. 342 of 2012 was registered under Sections 376/511 read with 302 I.P.C against Rinka @ Jitendra with the Police Station Palimukimpur, District Aligarh.

5. The I.O. after concluding the investigation filed charge sheet against the accused Rinka @ Jitendra and the concerned court took cognizance of the same. The trial court framed charges against the accused Rinka @ Jitendra under sections 376/511 read with 302

I.P.C. and the charges were read over and explained to the accused which was denied by him and claimed for trial.

6. The prosecution so as to bring home the charges examined seven witnesses, who are as under:-

1.	Yadram Sharma	P.W.
2.	Nannu	P.W.
3.	Dharmendra Singh	P.W.
4.	Satyawati	P.W.
5.	Dr. Sayeed Mohammad	P.W.
6.	S.I/I.O Udal Singh	P.W.
7.	Dr. Anil Kumar Purwani	P.W.

7. In support of the ocular version of the witnesses, following documents were produced and contents were proved by leading evidence:

1.	Written report
2.	Panchayatnama
3.	Recovery memo of 'Lota'
4.	Recovery memo of blood stained & plain earth
5.	F.I.R
6.	Letter to the C.M.O
7.	Site plan
8.	Site plan with index
9.	Charge Sheet Mool
10.	P.M Report

8. We have heard submissions made by the learned counsel for the appellant and also learned A.G.A. for the State, and perused the materials brought on record.

9. Shri Ajay Kumar Pathak, the learned counsel for the appellant has submitted written argument that the F.I.R was against two accused and it was Gaurav who has threatened the victim even before four days of the incident, there was no mention of the present appellant. It is submitted that the appellant had a country made pistol with him which was never used, how the persons saw him giving blow to the deceased is silent. It is submitted that the presence of the father is absolutely doubtful, the scarf was tied around the neck and there was bleeding of the victim which was never attributed to the accused. The site plan was prepared but neither pistol nor the knife was recovered. In postmortem report two injuries were found on the body namely injury no. 1 was a lacerated wound on the neck and injury no. 2 was abrasion on the face. The doctor who examined and conducted the postmortem opined that injuries were possible by a blunt object. The learned counsel further submits that entire evidence of all the seven people do not show that the accused was in any way attributed to have committed rape. It is submitted that leave apart of committing rape there was not a discussion even by the learned judge about how the accused can be said to have committed rape even there is no mention of attempt to commit rape. The oral testimony of P.W.-7 does not support prosecution story as far as it relates to commission of offence under Section 376 read with 511 read with 302 I.P.C. Grounds of the appeal is as follows:-

(i) There is no evidence against the appellant for using of country made pistol;

(ii) It is not believable that in presence of witnesses any person can kill the deceased and can cover the injury with dupatta;

(iii) The father of the deceased work at Delhi and Investigating Officer had also not shown his presence in the site plan and otherwise also P.W.-1 and P.W.-2 is 100 mtrs away from the place of incident;

(iv) Accused persons were not seen going towards the place of incident by the alleged witnesses but it is alleged that accused persons were seen while giving threat and running from the place of incident;

(v) There is no evidence of resistance or attempt of rape, in as much neither the clothes of the deceased was torn nor any injury was there on the whole body of the deceased;

(vi) None has corroborated the prosecution version other than P.W-1, father of the deceased and P.W.-2, cousin of the deceased;

(vii) Both the alleged eye witnesses could not even told the name of any single witness who have reached the place of incident and Investigating Officer also did not mention the place in the site plan from where P.W.-1 and P.W.-2 have seen the incident;

(viii) The doctor who conducted the postmortem specifically stated that injury was caused by a blunt object while the appellant was alleged to have been armed with country made pistol, there is huge conflict between oral and medical evidence;

(ix) The appellant cannot be attributed the role of killing the deceased as stated by P.W.-1 himself that when he reached near the spot he seen appellant Rinka @ Jitendra showing country made pistol to the witnesses. The co-accused had shown armed with knife;

(x) The manner in which injury was caused was not proved by P.W.-7- the doctor and as per suggestion and also P.W.-7, doctor has accepted that incident took place in the night;

(xi) The conviction of the appellant under Section 376,511 and 302 I.P.C is against the weight of evidence on record;

(xii) Even the court below did not look into the contradiction in the prosecution evidence which makes the prosecution story doubtfu;

(xiii) Nothing has been recovered from the possession of the appellant;

10. Learned counsel for the appellant in his written submission has submitted that there was no evidence against the appellant of having used a country made pistol. There is no evidence that an attempt of rape with the deceased was made by the accused. It is submitted that the story put forth by the prosecution that in presence of appellant and co-accused the minor was done to death and then the injury was covered by a dupatta and had submitted that the timing of the accident is not properly mentioned. The site plan also belies the theories put forth by the prosecution. It is submitted that P.W.-1 and P.W.-2 are interested witnesses and there is no corroboration by any independent witnesses. It is submitted that the appellant had no motive. It is further submitted that accused had been alleged to have had pistol and not knife even if presence is proved even then it cannot be said that the appellant had committed the murder of the victim. The manner of assault and entangling the neck with dupatta is also going to show that it was not the accused but either the juvenile accused or any other person who had committed this offence.

11. The learned counsel for the State has submitted that the decision of the learned Judge cannot be interfered with as the evidence against the accused has been discussed in such a way that there is no other view which can be taken just because there was no recovery from the accused, it cannot be said that he was not involved in the incident. It is further submitted that the judgment of the court below goes to show that the death occurred of the girl and the accused was found present. The eye witness P.W.-2 has testified to the said effect. The injuries are two in number and there is no question of the accused not being involved in the said crime his statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C is also silent. He has not examined any witness so as to testify that he was not present. It is submitted that learned lower court has rightly not believed the decision cited by the accused.

12. Having heard the learned advocates the recent decision of the Apex Court in "State of Gujrat Vs. Bhalchandra Laxmishankar Dave, 2021 (0) AIJEL-SC 66983 decided on 02.02.2021. Having heard learned counsel for the parties, three things emerge for our consideration, one the death occurred due to knife injury and not by injuries cause due to any gun fire. There is no recovery of pistol from the present accused. The site plan also does not inspire confidence that the accused was present at the spot where the crime was committed. The decision of the Allahabad High Court in Awadh Ram Vs. State of U.P, 2004 (48) ACC 365 will also come to the aid of the accused which has been misinterpreted by the learned Judge. Just because the F.I.R had named the accused it cannot mean that the site plan depicting the presence of the accused at a particular place is proved beyond reasonable doubt. There are several contradictions and these contradictions are not minor in nature. We have considered thread bear the facts. All interested witnesses have been examined by the prosecution. Not a single witness who can be said to be an independent witness has been examined. The finding of the learned Judge is not accepting the submission of the accused goes to through the perversity in the judgement. The F.I.R never stated that the accused had any altercation with the deceased girl, it was juvenile delinquent who had passed remarks.

13. We are convinced that this is a case where the accused should be granted what is known as benefit of doubt. One of the reasons been the manner in which the injuries was caused was not with the weapon which was alleged to be carried by the accused, the scribe also did not prove the time of the incident. The manner of assault is also not been proved against the accused.

14. In view of the facts and evidence on record, we are convinced that the accused has been wrongly convicted, hence, the judgment and order impugned is reversed and the accused is acquitted of charges levelled. The accused appellant Rinka alias Jitendra in case crime no. 342 of 2012 , if not wanted in any other case, be set free forthwith.

15. Appeal is allowed accordingly.

16. Record be sent to the trial court.

17. We are thankful to learned counsel for appellant and learned AGA for the State who has ably assisted the Court.

Criminal Appeal No. 4138 of 2018

Jasveer & Ors. ...Appellants
Versus
State of U.P. ...Opposite Party

Counsel for the Appellants:
Sri Santosh Tripathi, Sri Adesh Kumar, Sri Mandvi Tripathi, Pradeep Kumar, Sri Ram Suphal Shukla, Sri Vindeshwari Prasad

Counsel for the Opposite Party:
A.G.A., Sri Narendra Singh Chahar, Sri Ashutosh Singh

Criminal Law - Indian Penal Code , 1860 - Section 307- Allegation of use of firearm found to be false- All injuries simple and not dangerous to life- From the evidence of PW-1, PW-2 and also from the perusal of injury reports, it is crystal clear that no injured sustained any firearm injury and prosecution has failed to prove that any firearm was used in the occurrence. Informant/injured Prakashwati has tried to make exaggeration in her statement and use of firearm is brought into the picture just to exaggerate the case and for bringing it within the ambit of offence under Section 307 I.P.C. Dr. Azadveer Singh PW-3 has also given opinion that no injury was dangerous to life. Injured Pradeep sustained 12 injuries in all and out of these 12 injuries, 11 injuries were found simple in nature and only one injury i.e. injury no. 8 was found grievous in nature due to fracture in forearm of the injured. Injured Prakashwati sustained five injuries and all the five injuries were found simple in nature. Hence with this analysis and scrutiny of evidence of witnesses on record, this court is of the considered view that no offence under Section 307 I.P.C. is made out against any of the appellants and learned trial court did not appreciate the evidence in this regard in right perspective and finding of trial court for convicting the appellants under Section 307 I.P.C. is perverse and liable to be set aside.

Where all injuries are simple and not dangerous to life and the allegation of the use of firearm is found to be false, which shows that the intention of the accused was not to commit murder, then the offence u/s 307 of the IPC is not made out.

Criminal Law - Indian Penal Code, 1860- Section 34 & 324- Prosecution has proved that all the appellants entered the house of informant with common intention to commit offence. They entered the informant's house together with ''Balkati' and ''Lathi-danda' in their hands. So it can be definitely opined that they were having common intention to commit the crime. Injured Pradeep sustained three injuries of incised wound as aforesaid, hence appellants are held guilty for offence under Section 324 I.P.C.Conviction and sentence awarded to appellants under Section 307 r.w.s. 34 I.P.C. is hereby set aside.

As the accused committed the offence with common intention whereby grievous hurt was caused with the use of dangerous weapons hence the offence would come within the purview of Section 324 read with Section 34 of the IPC.(Para 15, 16, 17, 19)

Criminal Appeal partly allowed. (E-3)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ajai Tyagi, J.)

1. This appeal has been preferred by appellants Jasveer, Rajan, Raju and Amit @ Guddu against the judgment and order passed by Learned Additional Sessions Judge [Fast Track Court No. 2] Muzaffar Nagar dated 20.07.2018 in Session Trial No. 735 of 2013 (State of U.P. Vs. Jasveer and others) arising out of Case Crime No. 240 of 2012, under Sections 452, 307/34, 323/34, 504 and 506 I.P.C., Police Station- Mansoorpur, District- Muzaffar Nagar by which learned trial court convicted and sentenced the appellants for 10 years rigorous imprisonment under Section 307/34 I.P.C., for seven years under Section 452 I.P.C., one year R.I. under Section 323/34 I.P.C., two years R.I. under Section 504 I.P.C. and seven years R.I. under Section 506 I.P.C. along with fine and imprisonment in default of fine. All the sentences were directed to run concurrently.

2. The brief facts giving rise to this appeal are that informant of this case Smt. Prakashwati W/o Late Peetam Singh submitted a written report Ex. KA-1 in P.S.-Mansoorpur, District-Muzaffar Nagar on 13.06.2012 with the averments that on that day she was sitting inside her house with her son Pradeep and daughter-in-law Sudha. At about 8:30 in the morning Jasveer, Amit @ Guddu, Rajan and Raju of her village entered her house with country made pistol ["Tamancha'], ''Balkati' [Sharp edged instrument] and ''Lathi-danda' and started abusing. When her son Pradeep stopped them from abusing, all the accused persons/appellants fired with intention to kill and attacked on Pradeep with ''Balkati' and ''Lathi-danda' and beating him badly. When she tried to intervene, she was also attacked and her daughter-in-law Sudha was also attacked by appellants. Her son Pradeep and she herself sustained serious injuries. On her hue and cry Ashok, Vinod and other villagers came on the spot who saw the occurrence and saved them. While going back, the accused persons threatened them to kill him in the future.

3. Case Crime No. 240/2012 under Section 452, 307, 504, 506 I.P.C. was registered against all the appellants. After investigation, charge sheet against all the appellants was submitted by Investigating Officer. Learned trial court framed charges against all the appellants under Section 452, 307/34, 323/34, 504 and 506 I.P.C. After trial learned court convicted and sentenced all the appellants as aforesaid. Hence this appeal.

4. Heard Shri Vindeshwari Prasad, learned counsel for appellants, Shri Ashutosh Singh, learned counsel for the opposite party and Shri B.A. Khan, learned A.G.A. for State.

5. Learned counsel for appellants submitted that there are two injured in this case, one is informant Prakashwati and other her son Pradeep. All injuries of Pradeep are simple in nature except injury no. 8 which is fracture in his right arm. It is further submitted that there is no injury of fire arm and no fire arm was even used in entire incident as per prosecution witnesses themselves. Hence no case under Section 307 I.P.C. is made out and learned trial court wrongly convicted the appellants under this section. It is argued that the case maximum goes to the extent of offence under Section 325 I.P.C. although it is not clear from the prosecution evidence as to who had caused the injury no. 8, i.e. fracture to the injured Pradeep.

6. Learned counsel for appellant further argued that learned trial court wrongly framed the charge against the appellants under Section 307 I.P.C. because no intention to kill is emerged from entire prosecution story and injuries nor there was any firing by any appellants. Injured witnesses themselves and Investigating officer have said that no firearm was used and injury reports also suggest it. In this way there is no evidence for the offence under Section 307 I.P.C. In her statement informant/injured PW-1 Prakashwati has made so many improvements. She has stated in her statement that no fire was made by Jasveer although she has stated that Jasveer tried to make fire but it was missed but no such averment is made in first information report, hence her testimony should not be believed. Hence appeal be allowed.

7. Learned counsel for respondent and learned A.G.A. made rival submissions and argued that there are 12 injuries to Pradeep and four injuries to Prakashwati and maximum injuries of Pradeep have been inflicted on vital parts of the body. Pradeep has fracture in his right forearm also. No injury is superficial and injury report as well as supplementary medical report say that injuries were inflicted to the injured persons by hard and blunt object and by sharp edged weapon. As per prosecution version and evidence of injured witnesses, appellants were having ''Balkati' and ''Lathi-danda' in their hands, so in this way the evidence of injured witnesses is corroborated by medical evidence also.

8. It is next submitted by respondents that appellants entered the house of informant with intention to kill as is evident from injuries inflicted to Pradeep and informant also. Hence offence under Section 307 I.P.C. is made out. It is day light incident and F.I.R. was lodged promptly. It is also submitted that every appellant had active participation in crime. Hence learned trial court has rightly convicted and sentenced to the appellants. Appeal be dismissed.

9. Prosecution has brought the case that on 13.06.2012 at about 8:30 in the morning all the appellants entered the house of informant and had beaten the informant, her son and her daughter-in-law with ''Balkati' and ''Lathi-danda' and also made fire. In this occurrence informant Prakashwati and her son sustained injuries.

10. Prosecution has produced both injured persons as PW-1 Prakashwati and PW-2 Pradeep, no other witness of fact is produced. Injured witnesses are best witness to depose before the court. As per prosecution case, at the time of occurrence appellant Jasveer was having country made pistol [''Tamancha'] in his hand,

Rajan and Raju were having ''Balkati' and Amit @ Guddu was having "Lathi' but evidence of PW-1 and PW-2 shows that no firearm was used in the incident. In this regard PW-1 Prakashwati has stated in her statement that all the accused persons entered her house and made fire. Further it is said by her that fire was missed. This witness has admitted in her statement that it was correctly mentioned in F.I.R. by her that accused persons opened fire with intention to kill and also admitted that she did not mention in F.I.R. that Jasveer fired from "Tamancha' and it was missed. This statement of missing the fire was not given by the witness to Investigating Officer. Later on before trial court PW-1 distracted from her statement that Jasveer fired and it was missed rather she has specifically stated in cross examination that no fire was made by Jasveer in entire occurrence and it is also correct to say that no accused person made any fire. PW-2 Pradeep, another injured witness has stated in his examination-in-chief that Jasveer fired from "Tamancha' but bullet was not discharged. Both the witnesses PW-1 and PW-2 have accepted in their statements that Jasveer did not try to make second fire. Hence the evidence of PW-1 and PW-2 is not at all reliable on the point of making fire by any of the appellants. This fact is corroborated by injury reports also. Medical examination of both the injured persons were conducted by Dr. Azadveer Singh who produced by prosecution as PW-3. He has proved the injury report of injured Pradeep as Ex. KA-2. In Ex. KA-2 following injuries are shown to be sustained by inured Pradeep:-

(ii) Incised would 2cm x 0.5 cm x Scalp Deep right side forehead, 3 cm. above left eyebrow.

(iii) I.W. size 2cm x 0.5 cm x Muscle Deep outer end of right eyebrow.

(vi) L.W. size 2.5 cm x 0.5 cm x Bone Deep, right side of head, 8 cm. above right ear.

(viii) L.W. size 2cm x 0.5 cm x Bone Deep, T.S. 15 cm x 8 cm of right elbow forearm.

(ix) Multiple contusion in front part of chest and abdomen, bigger is 22cm x 2cm. and smaller is 3cm x 1cm.

(xi) Multiple contusion in front of right side in an area 24cm x 15cm, larger is 12cm x 5cm and smaller is 5cm. x 4cm.

11. Injuries no. 1, 2 and 8 were kept under observation and X-ray was advised.

12. After X-ray, supplementary report of medico legal examination of injured Pradeep was submitted which is also by the doctor PW-3 as Ex. KA-4. According to this report no bony injury was seen in injure no. 1 and fracture of ulna bone was found in X-ray. All the injuries of Pradeep were found simple except injury no. 8 which was found grievous in nature.

13. Medical examination of injuries sustained by informant Prakashwati was also conducted by Dr. Azadveer Singh. He has proved this report as Ex. KA-3 according to which following injuries were sustained by injured Prakashwati :-

(i) Abraded contusion size 3cm. x 2cm. Dorsiflexion of left hand.

(ii) Contusion 2.5cm. x 2cm. Dorsiflexion of right hand.

(iii) Abraded contusion 7cm. x 4cm. Back of left arm 5cm. above left elbow.

(v) C/O pain in chest.

14. All the above injuries of injured Prakashwati were simple in nature.

15. Hence as per injury reports of both the injured persons, there was no injury of firearm. Hence from the evidence of PW-1, PW-2 and also from the perusal of injury reports, it is crystal clear that no injured sustained any firearm injury and prosecution has failed to prove that any firearm was used in the occurrence. Informant/injured Prakashwati has tried to make exaggeration in her statement and use of firearm is brought into the picture just to exaggerate the case and for bringing it within the ambit of offence under Section 307 I.P.C. Dr. Azadveer Singh PW-3 has also given opinion that no injury was dangerous to life. Injured Pradeep sustained 12 injuries in all and out of these 12 injuries, 11 injuries were found simple in nature and only one injury i.e. injury no. 8 was found grievous in nature due to fracture in forearm of the injured. Injured Prakashwati sustained five injuries and all the five injuries were found simple in nature. Hence with this analysis and scrutiny of evidence of witnesses on record, this court is of the considered view that no offence under Section 307 I.P.C. is made out against any of the appellants and learned trial court did not appreciate the evidence in this regard in right perspective and finding of trial court for convicting the appellants under Section 307 I.P.C. is perverse and liable to be set aside.

16. Injured Pradeep sustained three injuries of incised wound which are injury no. 1, 2 and 3, all these injuries were simple in nature but it is clear that these injuries were inflicted with sharp edged weapon and prosecution has proved that ''Balkati' was used in occurrence which is a sharp edged instrument and injury no. 1, 2, and 3 could be inflicted to him by ''Balkati.' Prosecution has proved that all the appellants entered the house of informant with common intention to commit offence. They entered the informant's house together with ''Balkati' and ''Lathi-danda' in their hands. So it can be definitely opined that they were having common intention to commit the crime.

17. Injured Pradeep sustained three injuries of incised wound as aforesaid, hence appellants are held guilty for offence under Section 324 I.P.C.

18. Injury no. 8 sustained by injured Pradeep, which is fracture in ulna bone, was grievous injury. It can be safely held that this injury was caused by appellant Amit @ Guddu because as per statement of injured PW-2 Pradeep Kumar in examination-in-chief Amit @ Guddu was having ''Lathi' in his hand. Further he has stated that Amit @ Guddu assaulted on his head by ''Lathi' 4 to 5 times but he was saving himself by his hands. So it is proved that the injury no. 8 was inflicted to Pradeep by the appellant Amit @ Guddu. Hence appellant Amit @ Guddu is held guilty under Section 325 I.P.C. also.

19. With the discussion as above I am of the considered opinion that no case under Section 307 I.P.C. is made out against any of the appellants. Hence conviction and sentence awarded to appellants under Section 307 r.w.s. 34 I.P.C. is hereby set aside.

20. Sentence under Sections 452 and 504 I.P.C. is very harsh keeping in view of the fact that no offence under Section 307 I.P.C. is made out. Hence sentence under Section 452 I.P.C. is reduced for two years from seven years. Sentence under Section 506 I.P.C. is reduced to two years from seven years. Imposition of fine and imprisonment in default of fine shall remain intact for the offences under Sections 452 and 506 I.P.C. Sentence under Section 323 r.w.s. 34 I.P.C. and under Section 504 I.P.C. shall remain intact.

21. Appellants Jasveer, Raju, Amit @ Guddu and Rajan are sentenced for three years rigorous imprisonment under Section 324 I.P.C.

22. Appellant Amit @ Guddu is sentenced for three years rigorous imprisonment and Rs.5,000/- fine. He shall undergo simple imprisonment for three months in case of default of fine.

23. All the sentences shall run concurrently.

24. In the result, appeal is partly allowed as modified aforesaid. Copy of this judgment and record be transmitted to concerned court below for ensuring compliance.

A. Criminal Law-Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973-Section 374(2) - Indian Penal Code, 1860-Section 302-challenge to-conviction-prosecution has not disclosed any motive-PW-2 inimical witness, also stated that he never saw any altercation between son and mother-Danda was recovered on the pointing out the appellant from inside the Chappar of his house and blood was found on it-PW-1 and PW-2 are not eye-witnesses as they were not present on the spot-However, injuries were sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death, therefore, the appellant held guilty under Section 304 (Part-I) instead of under section 302 IPC.(Para 1 to 24)

The appeal is partly allowed. (E-6)

List of Cases cited:

1. Tuka Ram & ors.. Vs St. of Mah. (2011) 4 SCC 250

2. BN Kavadakar & anr. Vs St. of Kar. (1994) Supp (1) 304

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ajai Tyagi, J.)

1. This appeal has been preferred by the appellant- Gaurav Kumar Srivastava against the judgment and order dated 28.08.2014, passed by Additional Sessions Judge, Farrukhabad, in Session Trial No.117 of 2012 (State vs. Gaurav Kumar Srivastava) arising out of Case Crime No.137 of 2012 under Section 302 IPC, Police Station-Kamlaganj, District- Farrukhabad, whereby the appellant-accused was convicted and sentenced for life imprisonment and fine of Rs.5,000/- under Section 302 IPC. He was further directed to undergo six months of simple imprisonment, in case of default of fine.

2. The brief facts of this case are that on 31.03.2012, a written report was submitted by complainant Sitaram at Police Station-Kamalganj, District- Farrukhabad stating that besides his house in village Sindhirampur, there is house of his elder sister Smt. Phoolan Devi, wife of late Rakesh Chandra. Today on 31.03.2012 at about 10:30 PM, Phoolan Devi's son Gaurav Kumar had murdered his mother Phoolan Devi by using Danda. On hearing the noise, he and Ram Saran of his village ran to the place of occurrence and saw the occurrence. They tried to catch Gaurav but he ran away. On the basis of this written report, a first information was registered at police station-Kamalganj on Case Crime No.137 of 2012 under Section 302 IPC.

3. S.I. Raj Kishore Awasthi took up the investigation. Inquest proceedings of deceased Phoolan Devi were conducted. Post mortem was conducted by Dr. Kamlesh Kumar Sharma and post mortem report was prepared. During the course of investigation, the I.O. recorded the statements of witnesses under Section 161 Cr.P.C., site-plan was prepared. Accused was arrested and the Danda, used in crime, was recovered on his pointing out from his house, which was sent for chemical examination, the report of which indicated that it was having blood stains. After completing the investigation, I.O. submitted charge sheet against the accused-appellant. The case being exclusively triable by court of sessions was committed to the sessions court by the competent Magistrate for trial.

4. Learned trial court framed charges against the accused-appellant under Section 302 IPC. The accused denied the charges and claimed to be tried.

5. To bring home the charges, the prosecution produced following witnesses, namely:

1.	Sitaram	PW1
2.	Ram Saran	PW2
3.	Constable Devendra Kumar Singh	PW3
4.	Dr. Kamlesh Kumar Sharma	PW4
5.	S.I. Raj Kishore Awasthi	PW5
6.	S.I. Sunil Kumar Tiwari	PW6

6. In support of the ocular version of the witnesses, following documents were produced by prosecution and contents were proved by leading the evidence:

1.	Written Report	Ex. Ka1
2.	FIR	Ex. Ka2
3.	Recovery-memo of blood-stained and plain-earth	Ex. Ka12
4.	Recovery-memo of Danda	Ex. Ka13
5.	P.M. Report	Ex. Ka4
6.	Panchayatnama	Ex. Ka6
7.	Charge-sheet	Ex. Ka15
8.	Report of FSL	Ex. Ka12

7. Statement of accused was recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C., in which he said that false evidence is produced against him. The accused did not examine any witness in defence.

8. We have heard Shri Santosh Kumar Yadav, learned Amicus Curiae appearing for the appellant, Shri Vikash Goswami, learned AGA for the State and perused the record.

9. Learned counsel for the appellant first of all submitted that in this case, complainant has not disclosed any motive of the crime in FIR nor the witnesses of fact made any statement regarding motive before the learned trial court. There was no occasion and no reason for appellant to commit the murder of his own mother. Therefore, silence of motive creates a big doubt on prosecution case and it cannot be inferred that accused-appellant committed the crime. It is also submitted that PW1 Sitaram is complainant and in his statement, he has clearly stated that he wrote the report of this case on dictation of Sub-Inspector of police. It clearly indicates that appellant is falsely implicated by the complainant with the consultation of the police.

10. Learned counsel for the appellant vehemently submitted that there is no eye-witness of the occurrence. Prosecution has produced two witnesses of fact, namely, PW1- Sitaram and PW2- Ram Saran. PW1- Sitaram has deposed that when he reached to the scene of crime, accused Gaurav was not there. Lastly in his statement, he has specifically said that he could not tell who had murdered Phoolan Devi. He was not on the spot, so he could not tell that she was murdered by miscreants or some other persons. It shows that PW1 has not seen any occurrence, therefore, his testimony cannot be relied on. It is further submitted that PW2- Ram Saran is also not the eye-witness. He has said in his cross-examination that he was the first person to reach at the place of occurrence and saw the incident with his own eyes but complainant PW1 has stated that when he reached to the place of occurrence, Gaurav was not there and the people, who reached to the spot after him, also did not see Gaurav at the place of occurrence. Hence, on the basis of aforesaid statement, made by the PW1, the statement of PW2- Ram Saran becomes falsified that he saw the occurrence.

11. Learned counsel for the appellant next submitted that as per statement of PW1, Virendra and Munnilal reached to the spot prior to him but these Virendra and Munnilal were not produced by the prosecution in evidence. Regarding the recovery of Danda, the learned counsel submitted that false recovery of Danda is made by the police and Danda is planted. Moreover, it is recovered from inside the Chhappar of the house of the appellant, where it is not natural that a person after committing the crime like murder will hide the Danda in his own house. So the recovery of Danda is made by the police is falsified to give the colour to the case and learned trial court has not rightly appreciated the evidence and convicted the appellant without any direct or circumstantial evidence on record.

12. Learned AGA for the State rebutted the arguments advanced on behalf of the appellant and submitted that PW1 and PW2 supported the prosecution version and if there are any minor contradiction, it does weaken the prosecution case. It is also submitted that the report of FSL shows that blood was found on the Danda, recovered on the pointing out of the appellant. It further strengthens the prosecution case. Learned AGA attracted our attention towards post mortem report of deceased Ex.Ka4 and submitted that there were six ante mortem injuries found on the body of the deceased and such type of injuries could be inflicted by Danda. In this way, statement of PW1 and PW2 are corroborated by medical evidence.

13. We sift the evidence on record, keeping in view the rules of appreciation of evidence. Prosecution has produced two witnesses of fact, namely, PW1- Sitaram, who is the complainant and PW2- Ram Saran, who is said to be the eye-witness as per first information report. Complainant also claims himself to be eye-witness in FIR but perusal of statement of PW1 clearly shows that he is not eye-witness at all because in FIR and examination-in-chief, he has stated that he reached on the spot and tried to catch the appellant-Gaurav but could not do so. While in examination-in-chief, he has specifically stated that he reached to the spot after 10 minutes of hearing the noise and did not find Gaurav there. At the end of his cross-examination, he has very clearly stated that he could not tell as to who murdered the Phoolan Devi because he was not on the spot and he could not even tell whether some miscreants murdered her or any other person. So, PW1 is not at all eye-witness of this case. PW2- Ram Saran has said that he reached on the spot and tried to catch Gaurav but he succeeded to run away due to dark night but it is pertinent to mention that PW2- Ram Saran and appellant were having enmity as stated by complainant PW1 on account of purchase of some land by PW2 Ram Saran from father of the appellant.

14. It is relevant that Danda was recovered by the investigating officer on the pointing out of appellant from inside the Chhappar of his house and in FSL, blood was found on it.

15. We have perused the post mortem report and considered the ante mortem injuries.

16. Considering the evidence of these witnesses and also considering the medical evidence including postmortem report, there is no doubt left in our mind about the guilt of the present appellant. However, the question which falls for our consideration is whether on reappraisal of the peculiar facts and circumstances of the case, the conviction of the appellant under Section 302 IPC should be upheld or the conviction deserves to be converted under Section 304 (Part-I) or (Part-II) of the Indian Penal Code. It would be relevant to refer Section 299 of the Indian Penal Code, which reads as under:

17. The academic distinction between 'murder' and 'culpable homicide not amounting to murder' has always vexed the Courts. The confusion is caused, if Courts losing sight of the true scope and meaning of the terms used by the legislature in these sections, allow themselves to be drawn into minute abstractions. The safest way of approach to the interpretation and application of these provisions seems to be to keep in focus the keywords used in the various clauses of Sections 299 and 300 IPC. The following comparative table will be helpful in appreciating the points of distinction between the two offences.

Section 299	Section 300
A person commits culpable homicide if the act by which the death is caused is done.	A person commits culpable homicide if the act by which the death is caused is done.
	INTENTION
(a) with the intention of causing death; or	(1) with the intention of causing death; or
(b) with the intention of causing such bodily injury as is likely to cause death; or	(2) with the intention of causing such bodily injury as the offender knows to be likely to cause the death of the person to whom the harm is caused;
KNOWLEDGE	KNOWLEDGE
(c) with the knowledge that the act is likely to cause death.	(4) with the knowledge that the act is so immediately dangerous that it must in all probability cause death or such bodily injury as is likely to cause death, and without any excuse for incurring the risk of causing death or such injury as is mentioned above.

18. In the case in hand, PW4- Kamlesh Kumar Sharma found following ante mortem injuries on the body of the deceased:-

(i) Lacerated wound 5x2cm bone deep over nose and middle part of forehead underline bone fracture.

(ii) Lacerated wound 3.5x1.5cm bone deep over right cheek underline bone fracture.

(iii) Lacerated wound 3x1 cm bone deep just below injury No.2.

(iv) Lacerated wound 1.5x1 cm right angle of mouth and rounded by abraded contusion measuring marks 4x2 cm and 2x1.5 cm and neck bone was fractured.

(v) Multiple abraded contusion on abdomen measuring 4x1.5 cm.

(vi) Contusion 3.5x2 cm on right shoulder.

19. In his opinion Dr. Kamlesh Kumar Sharma PW4 has stated that cause of death could be by strangulation and injuries sustained in neck and on head. But in his cross-examination doctor has specifically stated that there were no signs/marks of strangulation. Therefore, keeping in view the entire evidence, oral as well as documentary, it comes in our mind that injury No.1, which was on the forehead, was responsible for the death of the deceased because injury No.4 in which part of hyoid bone was found fractured could be due to strangulation but as per medical evidence there were no signs of strangulation. In this way, injury No.4 does not match with the committing the crime as stated by the complainant in his FIR and statements of PW1 and PW2.

20. On overall scrutiny of the facts and circumstances of the case coupled with the opinion of the medical officer and considering the principle laid down by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Tuka Ram and others vs. State of Maharashtra [(2011) 4 SCC 250] and in the case of BN Kavadakar and another vs. State of Karnataka [1994 Supp (1) 304], we are of the considered opinion that the offence would be punishable under Section 304 (Part-I) IPC.

21. From the upshot of the aforesaid discussion, it appears that the death of deceased, caused by the appellant, was not intended because prosecution has not disclosed any motive. In this case, motive has great relevance because the relation between the appellant and deceased was of son and mother. There could be some motive for the son to kill his mother. PW2-Ram Saran, inimical witness, also said in his statement that he never saw any altercation between appellant and his mother prior to this occurrence. Hence, it can be safely assumed that killing of his mother was never intended by the accused-appellant though the injuries were sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death, therefore, the instant case false under the Exceptions 1 and 4 to Section 300 IPC.

22. In the light of the foregoing discussions, the appeal is liable to be allowed in part. Appellant is held guilty for commission of the offence under Section 304 (Part-I) IPC instead of offence under Section 302 IPC.

23. Hence, the conviction and sentence awarded to the appellant for the offence under Section 302 IPC is converted into the offence under Section 304 (Part-I) IPC and appellant is sentenced under Section 304 (Part-I) IPC for 10 years rigorous imprisonment and fine of Rs.5,000/-. The appellant shall undergo further simple imprisonment for one year in case of default of fine.

24. Accordingly, the appeal is partly allowed, as modified above.

1860-Section 302-challenge to-conviction-as per post-mortem report wound on the body of the deceased does not have any blackening which belies the theory put forward by PW-1 & PW-2 rather the medical evidence is in favour of the accused that firearm injury is not from very close range but at least from 8-10 ft-evidence of PW-3, doctor shows that the version of PW-1& PW-2 is absolutely concocted-infact, PW-1 & PW-2 are not eye-witnesses-recovery of Tamancha was from open place and cartridges was not found on the place of occurrence, therefore, provision of section 27 of the Evidence Act could not have applied-Moreso, factum of animosity for the accused being sole person in the locality professing another religion as per version u/s 313 Cr.P.C. cannot be ruled out-Thus, benefit of doubt is given to the accused.(Para 1 to 22)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Kaushal Jayendra Thaker, J.
Hon'ble Ajai Tyagi, J.)

1. Heard Sri Sunil Kumar, learned counsel for the appellant and Sri N.K. Srivastava, learned A.G.A. for the State.

2. This appeal challenges the judgment and order dated 18.9.2015 passed by the Additional Sessions Judge, Banda in Sessions Trial Nos. 36 of 2011 & 37 of 2011 convicting & sentencing Munna Singh, appellant, for commission of offence under Sections 302 of Indian Penal Code, 1860 (hereinafter referred to as 'I.P.C.') to undergo rigorous imprisonment for life with fine of Rs.20,000/-, in case of default of payment of fine, further to under go four month imprisonment.

3. Facts as culled out from the First Information Report, are that on 24.11.2010 at about 12.30 p.m., accused-respondent, Munna Singh came near the deceased, son of the complainant, who was sitting at (chabutra) and started quarreling with deceased and after some time, the accused took out his country made pistol (tamancha) and fired. Saida Parveen, daughter-in-law of complainant who was drawing water by hand pump had seen the incident. Md. Nafees Khan and his mother-in-law had also come at the spot on hearing the voice of gun shot and on hearing shouting of Saida Parveen that deceased-Momin was shot by Munna Singh. Munna Singh took out second country made pistol, threatened them and ran away from the place of incident. The son of complainant ran after the accused but due to fear returned back to the scene of incident. It was stated that he called for help but because of fear of Munna Singh, nobody came for rescue.

4. This F.I.R. culminated into recording of statements of the witnesses and charge-sheet was laid against the sole accused. The accused was alleged to have committed murder, hence, he was committed to the Court of Sessions. The accused being summoned, pleaded not guilty and wanted to be tried.

5. The prosecution examined 7 witnesses who are as follows:

1	Rashid Khan	PW1
2	Saida Parveen (Eye-witness)	PW2
3	Pranav Kumar Rai	PW3
4	Ramesh Kumar	PW4
5	Daya Shankar Singh	PW5
6	Sanjay Singh Yadav	PW6
7	D.P. Singh	PW7

6. In support of ocular version following documents were filed:

1	First Information Report	Ex.Ka.3 & Ex. Ka.11
2	Written Report	Ex.Ka.1
3	Recovery Memo of blood-stained & plain soil	Ex. Ka. 18
4	Recovery Memo of Tamancha	Ex. Ka. 7
5	Postmortem Report	Ex.Ka.2
6	Panchayatnama	Ex.Ka.12
7	Charge-sheet	Ex. Ka.8 & Ex. Ka. 10

7. On the witnesses being examined and the prosecution having concluded its evidence, the accused was put to questions under Section 313 Cr.P.C. The accused-respondent also examined Chandra Prakash alias Changu as D.W.1. He has taken defence that as he is the only person belonging and professing the different religion, all the witnesses and complainant have colluded with each other to see that he is convicted so that he may vacate the said area.

8. Submission of Sri Sunil Kumar, learned counsel for the appellant, hinges on the following decisions and learned counsel for the appellant has placed reliance on Mahavir Singh Vs. State of Madhya Pradesh, (2016) 10 SCC 220, Brijpal Singh Vs. State of M.P., 2004 SCC (Cri) 90, Shanker Vs. State of Madhya Pradesh, (2018) 15 SCC 725, Rajesh Alias Sarkari and Another Vs. State of Haryana, (2021) 1 SCC 118, Alim Ullah Vs. State, 2003 (46) ACC 1151 and submitted that this is a case of total improbability as medical evidence is contrary to the deposition of P.W.2, the so called eye-witness, who was not an eye-witness but posed as such and even if she was eye-witness, the genesis of offence as narrated by P.W.1 are contradictory to that narrated by P.W.2.

9. It is submitted by learned counsel for the appellant that the accused who is in jail since 2011 requires to be granted benefit of doubt on the basis of aforesaid judgments and on the basis of gun shot injury which was mentioned to be fired from a very close range but evidence discloses something else. It is submitted that no empty cartridge was found from the place of occurrence. Learned counsel for the appellant has submitted that there was no blackening or charring and has raised the issue of F.I.R. being ante timed. He has tried to demonstrate that the postmortem and time of F.I.R. do not match with each other.

10. The submission of learned A.G.A. is that absence of blackening is not a ground to grant the accused benefit of doubt. Learned A.G.A. has further submitted that blackening would be only if the shot was made at from very very close range and with full of vigour. It is further submitted by learned A.G.A. that there is no reason to disbelieve the prosecution witness nos. 1 & 2 who are though related to accused but are not interested witnesses. In support of his arguments, learned A.G.A. has relied on the decision in Guru Dutt Pathak Vs. State of Uttar Pradesh, LAWS (SC) 2021 5 5 to contend that this is not a case where conviction requires to be upturned.

11. Learned A.G.A. has relied on the finding of facts which are elaborately discussed by learned Sessions Judge which according to him cannot be easily interfered with.

12. Before we threadbare discuss the evidence and decide the case, two facts required to be undertaken. One, the decision of the Apex Court in Guru Dutt Pathak Vs. State of Uttar Pradesh, LAWS (SC) 2021 5 5., pressed into service by the learned A.G.A. and the judgment of the Apex Court in State of Gujarat Vs. Bhalchandra Laxmishankar Dave, (2021) 2 SCC 736 wherein the Apex Court has held that if the first Trial Court is reversing the judgment of conviction, each and every evidence and the finding of the Sessions Judge should be met with.

13. Depositions of P.W.1, P.W.2 & P.W.3 go to show that pistol (tamancha) which was said to have been fired has not been recovered from the accused but was found from open place, and no empty cartridges were found at place of occurrence. Deposition of P.W.2 also goes to show that her presence is doubtful. The decision of the Court below also goes on this premise and has placed heavy reliance on ocular version of P.W.1, though he is not an eye-witness but he was conveyed by his son's wife that Munna Singh had fired at Momin. There are certain facts which have come on record which have not been considered by the learned Trial Court which goes to show that statement of accused under Section 313 Cr.P.C. is a plausible statement that he is only person professing other religion and, therefore, he has been time and again tried to be made accused. There are lot of contradictions in the testimony of P.W.1. At one stage, he has stated that Nafees has shouted and, in his chief, he has stated that Nafees, Momin and other persons were crying. In the cross examination he has accepted that Nafees was driver of Ambulance and Momin was staying with him. There is question put that Momin had illicit relation with Saida Parveen.

14. Even if we believe the statements put forward by P.W.1 in his cross examination that Munna Singh had asked the deceased not to hear music on the mobile but Momin used to abuse him, the evidence of P.W.2 is also full of contradictions. The evidence of doctor who had been examined as P.W.3 goes to show that the version of P.W.1 & P.W.2 is absolutely concocted, the manner in which he has depicted the firing. In his testimony, the doctor has stated as under :

"यदि मृतक बैठी हालत में हो और फायर करने वाला खड़ी हालत में हो तो मृतक को ऐसी चोट आना संभव नहीं है I किस प्रकार के आग्नेयस्त्रो का प्रयोग किया गया व कैसे मारा गया यह शस्त्र विशेषज्ञ ही बता सकता हैI"

15. The findings of facts are also not consistent with medical evidence and the Postmortem report. In fact learned counsel for the appellant had even made alternative prayer that if this Court believes version of P.W.1 and P.W.2, then also there are altercation only and there are several discrepancies in the statement of P.W.1 and P.W.2 and the judgment of convicting the accused under Section 302 of I.P.C. is bad in eye of law. At the most if this Court does not deem it fit granting benefit/Acquittal, it is a case of Section 304 part II of I.P.C.

16. While going through the record it is clear that learned judge has committed grave error in not examining the evidence from the angle that all the witnesses of fact opined that accused had fired from one ft. whereas as per the Medical evidence it was made from more than 8 to 10 ft. This fact goes in favour of the accused as it looks there was no eye-witness. Thus, it transpires that P.W.1 & P.W.2 were not eye-witnesses. The accused has already pleaded in his statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. which was also not considered by the Court below. The recovery of the Tamancha was from an open place and, therefore, provision of Section 27 of the Evidence Act could not have been applied by the Trial Court against the accused which was found from an open place near Ken River. The factum of this recovery was not proved by the witnesses of fact. The police official accepted fact that in the cross examination that time of recovery is not mentioned.

17. Witnesses who have been examined are interested and partisan witnesses. If the incident had occurred at the place which is narrated which is an open place, there would have been other witnesses of fact. The medical evidence vis-a-vis ocular version of witnesses, there are lot of contradictions and omissions. The judgments in Guru Dutt Pathak & Bhalchandra Laxmishankar Dave (Supra) have been properly scrutinized by us. The Rules for appreciating evidence go to show that there is discrepancy which is writ large on the record that gun shot could not have been in the manner in which P.W.1 and P.W.2 have narrated which is a major contradictions rather which goes to the root of the matter. Factum of animosity for the accused being sole person in that locality professing another religion therefore is sought to be roped in as per his version under Section 313 Cr.P.C. cannot be ruled out.

18. The decision in case of Rajesh (Supra) will apply in full force to the facts of this case, the reason being, the witnesses who were deposed are not only related witnesses but are interested witnesses. The removal of the deceased to the Hospital by them has also been in doubtful circumstances. The incident of firing and there is variation about the incident. The ballistic expert should have been examined in such matter. The recovery in the context of investigation was not found. When there is discrepancy in the reports which would result into fatality for the prosecution and the benefit of doubt should be given to the accused. The decision in Gurucharan Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1963 SC 340 has been reiterated in Rajesh (Supra). The medical evidence and the controversy would permit us to take a different view then that taken by the Court below as the Court below has overlooked this aspect.

19. Decision in Shanker (Supra) would go to show that before a conviction is awarded no room for suspect evidence of key prosecution witnesses should be there. In our case, the trial court has not sifted the evidence by quality of evidence. The appreciation of evidence, in the case in hand, also proves that there is material non corroboration. Genesis and genuineness of the F.I.R. is also absent. In our view, learned Sessions Judge did not deal with the case of the accused in gross with settled principle of law namely author of fatal firearm wound was not proved. The judgment in Ashoksinh Jayendrasinh v. State of Gujarat, (2019) 6 SCC 535 will also enure for the benefit of the accused. There are serious contradictions and these are reconciled by the reports. The law laid down in Brijpal Singh (Supra) will come to the aid of the accused as it would not have safe to convict the accused on the basis of the oral testimony which is highly doubtful.

20. The appreciation of evidence as done by the High Court in the case of Bhalchandra Laxmishankar Dave (Supra) shall apply. The tests are applied and we have threadbare decided the matter and come to a definite conclusion that accused could not have been convicted on the basis of scanty evidence. Ground of the prosecution is that the witnesses did not come forward as they were scared of the accused, this would prove fatal to the prosecution as the entire area was of a particular community even though no independent witness was examined though the incident occurred in broad day light and in a open space.

21. Going from the postmortem report, we find that the wound on the body of the deceased does not have any blackening which would belies the theory put forward by P.W.1 & P.W.2.

Rather the medical evidence is in favour of the accused that firearm injury is not from very close range but at least from 8-10 ft. The tenor of injury in the postmortem report will also go to the aid of the accused.

22. In view of the above, benefit of doubt is given to the accused. Judgment and order passed by the learned Sessions Judge is set aside. This appeal is allowed. Let the accused be released from jail forthwith, if not warranted in any other offence.

23. Record and proceedings be sent back to the Court below forthwith.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Kaushal Jayendra Thaker, J.
Hon'ble Dinesh Pathak, J.)

1. Heard learned Amicus Curiae Mr. Pawan Singh Pundir for the appellant, learned AGA for the State and also perused the record.

2. This appeal has arisen from the judgement and order dated 28.4.2009 passed by learned Sessions Judge, Meerut in S.T. No.307 of 2009, State of U.P. v. Aftab, (Case Crime No.378 of 2008) under Section 302 I.P.C., Police Station Delhi Gate, District Meerut. The learned Sessions Judge convicted the accused for life imprisonment for commission of offence under Section 302 Indian Penal Code (IPC) and with fine of Rs.10,000/-. In default of payment of fine, the accused shall undergo rigorous imprisonment for 6 months.

3. The brief facts as per prosecution case are that the complaint/FIR was lodged by Aas Mohammad (PW-2), brother of the accused and grand-son of the deceased declares that on 8.1.2008 at about 10.15 p.m. Aftab and his grand father were having altercatiion and then the accused cut the neck of Ramjan by Knife (Chhuri). He witnessed the occurrence. His brother Chand, his children and tenants were also present there. He and Chand tried to chase Aftab but he ran away from the spot. He took his grand-father in an injured condition to the District Hospital where his grand-father Ramjan was declared dead.

4. Learned counsel for appellant contended the so called dispute arose out of asking money by the accused from the deceased who was his grand-father. The learned counsel has submittted that the offence would not fall within Section 302 of Indian Penal Code (IPC) but would be at the most punishable under Section 304 part I or part II of the IPC.

5. It is an admitted position of fact as mentioned by PW-2 and PW-3 that there was an altercation which took place between accused and deceased and thereafter appellant-Aftab was chased but he ran away.

6. The submission of learned counsel was for a clean acquittal but later on he has pressed for alternative sentence contending that there was no intention to do away with own grand-father and, therefore, he has requested that the offence be considered under Section 304 part-II.

7. The prosecution examined four witnesses so as to bring home the charge framed against the accused as enumerated:

1.	Deposition of Dr. N.K. Gupta	PW1 PW1
2.	Deposition of Ash Mohammad (brother of accused)	PW2
3.	Deposition of Chand (brother of accused)	PW3

12	Site Plan with Index drawn on 18.11.2008	Ex.Ka.8

9. The recent decision of the Apex Court in the case of State of Gujarat v. Bhalchandra Laxmishankar Dave, 2021 (0) AIJEL-SC 66983, decided on 2nd February, 2021 wherein the Apex Court has held that while dealing with the matter relating to conviction, the Court should discuss the decision of the trial court and also the judgment in Guru Dutt Pathak v. State of Uttar Pradesh, LAW(SC) 2021 5 5, decided on 5th May, 2021. All the principles laid down in these latest decisions, obliged us to consider the evidence afresh.

10. Dr. N.K. Gupta (PW-1) has stated on oath that he had examined the body of Ramjan alias Mohammad prepared the autopsy (Ext. Ka-

1) and found the following ante mortem injuries on his body- (i) incised wound 22 cm. x 6 cm. x bone cut (c-4) on the right side of the neck; (ii) incised wound 6 cm x 0.5 cm muscle deep over the outer aspect of right arm. Rigorous mortis was present in extremity-passed in the neck. No decomposition was there. On internal examination c-4 vertebra was cut, neck artery and vessel on right side were cut. All the organs like spleen, kidneys, liver were pale. He further stated on oath that the death of the deceased could be caused on 8.11.2008 at about 10.15 p.m. and these injuries could be caused by Knife (Chhuri)

11. Aas Mohammad (PW-2) is the witness of fact. He has stated on oath that Aftab and his grand father were having altercation when the accused caused injury in the neck of Ramjan by Knife (Chhuri). He took the injured Ramjan to the District Hospital where he was declared dead. He proved the written report (Ext. Ka-2) given by him he has with stood the cross examination.

12. Chand (PW-3) is also a witness of fact. He has stated on oath that on 8.11.2008 at about 10.00 p.m. accused Aftab and Ramjan were having altercation and when he reached the spot, he saw cut neck of Ramjan and accused Aftab was running. He chased Aftab having Chhuri in his hand but accused ran away.

13. Naresh Chand Verma, Inspector, P.S. Delhi Gate (PW-4) is the investigating officer of the case. He inspected the spot and prepared the site plan (Ext. Ka-3). He had taken the blood stained pieces of Dari, blanket, rope of cot and sealed the same. He prepared the memo (Ext. Ka-4). He had also taken bulb from the place of occurrence. The occurrence was seen by Aas Mohammad and Chand (Pws-2 and 3) respectively in light of the bulb as it was right time. The same was handed in the Supardagi of Aas Mohammad and prepared the memo (Ext. Ka-5). The witness (IO) also also took the blood stained earth and simple earth and sealed the same in two different containers, and prepared the memo (Ext. Ka.-6). On 13.11.2008 he recovered Kinfe (Chhuri) used in this murder at the instance of accused Aftab from beneath of Peepal tree. He prepared the recovery memo (Ext. Ka-7). He proved the site plan of the place of recovery of Knife (Chhuri) as the Ext. Ka-8). He sent the knife (Chhuri), blood stained Dari, blanket and rope of cot for the Chemical Examination, Agra. He proved the filing of charge sheet (Ext. Ka-9) by him.

14. The learned trial court has convicted the accused on the basis of recovery and also on the fact that the prosecution witnesses over, his brothers had deposed against the accused, we concur with the same and held the accused guilty. The learned Judge has relied on the judgments of the Apex Court titled State of Punjab v. Jagir Singh, AIR 1973 SC 2407; Lahna v. State of Haryana, 2002 (3) SCC 76; and S. Sudershan Reddy v. State of Andhra Pradesh, AIR 2006 SC 2716.

15. The learned Judge relied on the provisions of Section 27 of the Evidence Act and has relied on the Decision in Pulukuri Kotayya v. Emperor, AIR 1947 PC 67, the finding of fact as far as the will of the accused is concerned cannot be interfered as well as that of the recovery of the knife which was from a place of occurrence.

16. The statements of the eye witnesses were recorded and as per information of FIR, the medical report is also consistent with version that the deceased was attacked by knife by his grand-son, the involvement of accused is proved beyond any doubt.

17. It would now necessary for discussing the role of the accused and the manner in which, the incident occurred the injuries are found on the right side of the neck. The accused is in jail since 14 years. The incident appears to have occurred on spur of the moment, offence of that it is very clear that the death occurred by the hands of the accused.

18. While considering the deposition of eye witnesses, entire evidence considered the injuries are not superficial, but as such which shows that the intention of the accused as culled out from the record does not shows that bad intention with his grand-father, therefore, altercation between the same.

19. The accused was 28 years of age at the time of commission of offence, he is the grand-son of the deceased and real brother of PW-2 and PW-3. There was altercation and, the occurrence of incident had taken place at about 10.15 at night in house.

20. In that view of the matter, we concur with the learned sessions Judge held that the accused was author of the crime. We further concur with the learned Jude on the finding of fact that deceased who was aged about 75 years and the injury caused was sufficient to cause the death.

21. We are unable to accept the submission of learned counsel for appellant that Section 304 Part-II IPC would be attracted in this case the reason for not accepting this concertion is that the place of occurrence on the body part the deceased was injured on the vital part further the accused cannot be said to not have knowledge about the fact that his inflicting the injuries would cause such injuries which can prove fatal.

22. The learned counsel for appellant has relied on recent decision in Criminal Appeal No.1237 of 2013, (Sharafat and another v. State of U.P), decided on 21.1.2021 where the facts were similar and has contended that that offence would not be under Section 302 of the Indian Penal Code, but would under Section 304 Part I or Part II of the Indian Penal Code. The learned counsel has placed reliance on the said decision wherein finding in paragraphs 17 to 20, the court has held:

"17. This takes us to the issue of whether the offence would be punishable under Section 299 or Section 304 I.P.C.

18. Considering the evidence of these witnesses and also considering the medical evidence including post mortem report, there is no doubt left in our mind about the guilt of the present appellants and admission on part of accused. However, the question which falls for our consideration is whether, on reappraisal of the peculiar facts and circumstances of the case, the conviction of the appellant under Section 302 of the Indian Penal Code should be upheld or the conviction deserves to be converted under Section 304 Part-I or Part-II of the Indian Penal Code. It would be relevant to refer Section 299 of the Indian Penal Code, which read as under:

19. The academic distinction between "murder' and "culpable homicide not amounting to murder' has always vexed the Courts. The confusion is caused, if Courts losing sight of the true scope and meaning of the terms used by the legislature in these sections, allow themselves to be drawn into minute abstractions. The safest way of approach to the interpretation and application of these provisions seems to be to keep in focus the keywords used in the various clauses of Section 299 and 300. The following comparative table will be helpful in appreciating the points of distinction between the two offences.

Section 299 Section 300

A person commits culpable homicide if the act by which the death is caused is done-	Subject to certain exceptions culpable homicide is murder is the act by which the death is caused is done.
INTENTION
(a) with the intention of causing death; or	(1) with the intention of causing death; or
(b) with the intention of causing such bodily injury as is likely to cause death; or	(2) with the intention of causing such bodily injury as the offender knows to be likely to cause the death of the person to whom the harm is caused;
KNOWLEDGE	KNOWLEDGE
(c) with the knowledge that the act is Playlikely to cause death.	(4) with the knowledge that the act is so immediately dangerous that it must in all probability cause death or such bodily injury as is likely to cause death, and without any excuse for incurring the risk of causing death or such injury as is mentioned above.

20. It is very clear from the F.I.R. though unsupported by the prosecution and other witnesses of facts that there was a heated discussion and during the quarrel one of the accused had tried to see that the deceased remaining in the four corners of the home or go back to her matrimonial home as she wanted to elope with a person though she was a married lady having four children."

23. We are even supported in our decision by the judgment of the Apex Court reported in Pardeshiram v. State of M.P., (2021) 3 SCC 825, where in considering the period of custody undergone, relationship between the appellant and the deceased and the background in which the injuries were caused, sentence directed to be reduced to period already undergone.

24. While going through the record, we are convinced that the accused had no intention of doing away with his own grand father but in hit of the moment the incident has occurred. Learned Judge heavily relied on recovery. The grand-son is not attributed to have any intention to do away with the deceased, there was a quarrel which were going on he wanted he share all money but the grand-father wanted to him to shift to Jaipur. This was the main bone of contention for the incident having taken place.

25. From the above discussion, it is evident that the incised wound on deceased were sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to prove fatal on the deceased, an old man, and he actually died due to the injuries which were the result of injuries due to use of sharp weapon. There was no enmity between the accused and deceased as deposed by Aas Mohd. (PW-2) and Chand (PW-3). There was light at the place of occurrence. There is no delay in lodging the FIR. The recovery of knife at the instance of the accused also lends support to the case of the prosecution. The evidence of the prosecution is solid and free from any weakness or lacunae. Hence under Section 304 part-I of I.P.C. is made out and not under Section 302 of I.P.C.

26. Having held that the offence is punishable under Section 304 part I punishment of period undergone and the fine of Rs.10,000/- is reduced to Rs.5000/-, incarceration in default of payment of fine would be for six months.

27. The accused appellant, if not wanted in any other offence, be set free forthwith.

28. Appeal is partly allowed accordingly.

29. Record and proceedings be sent back to the trial court.

30. Shri Pawan Singh Pundir, learned Amicus Curiae appointed by Legal Services Committee, who shall be paid all his dues as are admissible.

31. This court is thankful to learned counsel for the parties for ably assisting this Court in getting this matter disposed off.

Criminal Appeal No. 6032 of 2018

Anil Kumar Bind ...Appellant
Versus
State of U.P. & Anr. ...Respondents

Counsel for the Appellant:
Sri M.A. Siddiqui, Sri Kalamuddin

Counsel for the Respondents:
A.G.A.

Criminal Law - Indian Penal Code, 1860- Section 376- Evidence of prosecutrix produced before learned trial court as PW3 - This evidence seems to be exaggerated - The testimony of prosecutrix does not inspire confidence. Moreover, her testimony is not corroborated by medical evidence- There were no injuries. Doctor has clearly opined that at the time of her internal medical examination, she did not find that intercourse was committed with her- Statement of Doctor falsifies the factum of rape. Enmity of prosecutrix's father with the appellant is itself stated by the prosecutrix in her examination-in-chief- From beginning it was projected that the girl was minor but the learned trial judge came to the finding that provision of POCSO Act will not be applicable in this case because she was not minor.

Where the testimony of the prosecutrix is exaggerated, uncorroborated with the medical evidence, prior enmity is admitted and the claim of her being minor is found false, then it would not be safe to rely upon such testimony.

Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, 1989- Section 3(2)(v)- Just because the accused was knowing the prosecutrix belonging to the vulnerable caste cannot itself take the matter in that ambit and it is relevant to mention that when offence of rape is not proved then there is no question of punishment under Section 3(2)(V) of SC/ST Act.

When the offence of rape is itself not proved then the accused cannot be convicted only on the basis of Section 3(2)(v0 of the Sc/St Act.(Para 16,17)

Criminal Appeal allowed.(E-3)

4. Guru Dutt Pathak Vs St. of U.P ,Criminal Appeal No.502 of 2015 (SC)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ajai Tyagi, J.)

1. By way of this appeal, the appellant-Anil Kumar Bind has challenged the Judgment and order 30.08.2018 passed by Additional Sessions Judge (Court No.12), Allahabad, in Special Session Trial No.56 of 2016 (State Vs. Anil Kumar Bind) arising out of Case Crime No.119 of 2016 under Section 376 Indian Penal Code and Section 3(2)(V) SC/ST Act and Section 3/4 POCSO Act, Police Station-Handia, District-Allahabad whereby the accused-appellant was convicted under Section 376 IPC and sentenced to imprisonment for 10 years with fine of Rs.10,000/- and in case of default of payment of fine, to undergo further imprisonment for one year and for life imprisonment and fine of Rs.10,000/- under Section 3(2)(V) SC/ST Act and in case of default of payment of fine, to undergo further imprisonment for one year. Appellant was acquitted under Section 3/4 POCSO Act.

2. The brief facts of the case are that complainant Chote Lal Pasi submitted written report Ex.Ka-1 to the Police Station- Handia, District- Allahabad on 24.03.2016 stating that his daughter prosecutrix, age 15 years, went to ease herself at about 10:00 pm in the night near the pond. From there Anil of his village took her daughter forcible by sequeezing her mouth to nearby hut and committed rape with her. On hearing the noise of crying, his son Hausila Prasad and other people ran towards the place of occurrence and his son caught Anil Bind red handed but he fled away from the spot. On the basis of this report an FIR was registered on Case Crime No.119 of 2016.

3. Ravi Shankar Prasad C.O. took up the investigation, I.O. visited the spot and prepared site-plan, recorded the statements of witnesses under Section 161 Cr.P.C. Prosecutrix was medically examined. Her statement under Section 164 Cr.P.C. was recorded by competent authority. After completing the evidence I.O. submitted charge sheet against the appellant. The case being exclusively triable by court of sessions was committed to the sessions court by competent magistrate for trial.

4. So as to bring home the charge, prosecution produced following witnesses, namely :-

1	Chote Lal Pasi	P.W.1
2.	Nanki Devi	P.W.2
3.	Prosecutrix	P.W.3
4.	Hausila Prasad	P.W.4
5.	Jai Hind Yadav	P.W.5
6.	Dr. Neelu Mishra	P.W.6
7.	Ravi Shankar Prasad	P.W.7

5. After completion of prosecution evidence, the accused was examined under Section 313 Cr.P.C. The accused did not examine any witness in defence.

6. Apart from oral evidence, following documentary evidence was produced by the prosecution and proved by leading evidence:

1.	Written Report	Ex.ka1
2.	FIR	Ex.ka4
3.	Statement u/s 164 Cr.P.C.	Ex.ka2
4.	Medico Legal Examination Report	Ex.ka5
5.	Supplementary Report	Ex.ka6
6.	Charge-Sheet	Ex.ka9
7.	Pathology Report	Ex.ka-
8.	Report of Radiologist	Ex.ka-

7. Heard Shri M. A. Siddiqui, learned counsel for the appellant, learned AGA for the State and also perused the record.

8. Learned counsel for the appellant submitted that appellant has been fasely implicated in this case. There is no evidence of rape. It is further submitted that as per prosecution case, prosecutrix was of age of 15 years at the time of occurrence, but when she was medically examined by radiologist, her age was found between 18 and 22 years. It clearly shows that at the time of alleged incident prosecutrix was major.

9. It is next submitted by the learned counsel for the appellant that as per medical examination report of prosecutrix, no evidence of rape was found. Doctor, who medically examined the prosecutrix, has opined that at the time of examination it was not found that any intercourse has been committed with the prosecutrix. In chemical examination report no spermatozoa was found. There were no injury marks on her private part.

10. Learned counsel for the appellant also submitted that prosecutrix is examined as PW3. She has stated in her statement that her father was having enmity with the appellant. Moreover, she has not supported the prosecution version in her cross-examination. Her statement is having so much contradictions that it cannot be relied on. Her statement is exaggerated.

11. Learned AGA submitted that prosecutrix has supported the prosecution version in her statement under Section 164 Cr.P.C. as well as deposition made before learned trial court. It is also submitted that in medical examination Hymen was found torn. Learned trial court has rightly convicted and sentenced the appellant and it was also submitted by learned AGA that prosecutrix belongs to Scheduled Caste. Hence, he was rightly convicted under Section 3(2)(V) SC/ST Act also.

12. At the very outset, it is pertinent in this case, to consider the age of prosecutrix at the time of alleged occurrence. In first information report, the father of the prosecutrix has mentioned her age 15 years but to determine the real age, ossification test was conducted by the radiologist and as per supplementary report prepared by him, her age was found above 18 years and below 22 years. As per supplementary report Ex.Ka6, this fact is established that at the time of alleged incident, prosecutrix was not minor but she was major.

13. We have examined the evidence of prosecutrix produced before learned trial court as PW3. This evidence seems to be exaggerated. In her examination-in-chief she has included two more persons with appellant which were not in the picture before her statement. It is also stated in her cross-examination that she went to ease herself with her mother. But mother was left behind and she reached to the pond by running and when she did not return to the house then her mother raised the alarm. It is further submitted by the prosecutrix that she was forcibly taken away from the pond to the hut by three persons out of which two were hiding their face by cloth. She has also stated that when she was being taken away, she did not raise alarm because she fainted. After that she became conscious and when rape was committed she again fainted. The testimony of prosecutrix does not inspire confidence. Moreover, her testimony is not corroborated by medical evidence. Dr. Neelu Mishra conducted her medical examination and she was produced as PW6. Doctor has stated in her report that no spermatozoa was found. There were no injuries. Doctor has clearly opined that at the time of her internal medical examination, she did not find that intercourse was committed with her. Hence, this statement of Doctor falsifies the factum of rape. Enmity of prosecutrix's father with the appellant is itself stated by the prosecutrix in her examination-in-chief. Learned counsel for the appellant has relied on Jafar and another Vs. State of U.P. 2009 0 Supreme (All) 3417 and Bibhishan Vs. State of Maharashtra 2007 0 Supreme (SC) 1219.

14. We have gone through the above case laws, which are fully applicable on the facts of this case.

15. We have also considered the judgements of Apex Court in State of Gujarat Vs. B. L. Dave passed in criminal appeal No.99 of 2019 and Guru Dutt Pathak Vs. State of Uttar Pradesh passed in Criminal Appeal No.502 of 2015, in which parameters of reversing the judgments of court below are guided.

16. We have convinced that the doctor has positively opined that she could not find any trace of spermatozoa and, therefore, no injury marks. She further testified that the prosecutrix had not been subjected to any forcible sexual harassment or intercourse. From beginning it was projected that the girl was minor but the learned trial judge came to the finding that provision of POCSO Act will not be applicable in this case because she was not minor.

17. Offence of rape is not proved, hence, the accused could not have been punished under Section 3(2)(V) of SC/ST Act. We are unable to accept the submission of learned counsel for the State that just because the accused was knowing the prosecutrix belonging to the vulnerable caste cannot itself take the matter in that ambit and it is relevant to mention that when offence of rape is not proved then there is no question of punishment under Section 3(2)(V) of SC/ST Act.

18. Hence, after meticulous appreciation of evidence on record and in the facts and circumstances of this case, we are of the considered view that prosecution has failed to prove the charges against the appellant. Learned trial court did not appreciate the evidence in right perspective as far as the rape is concerned and the accused-appellant was wrongly convicted on the basis of perverse finding.

19. Accordingly, the appeal is likely to be allowed.

20. The appeal is allowed. Conviction and sentence of appellant awarded in this case is hereby set aside. Appellant be set free forthwith if he is not wanted in any case. Fine, if deposited, be refunded to the appellant. Bail bond is cancelled and sureties are discharged, if any. Record of court below be sent back forthwith.

Criminal Law - Indian Penal Code, 1860 - Section 376- Rape of minor- Imprisonment for life- Quantum of Punishment- Reformative Theory and Doctrine of Proportionality- No accused person is incapable of being reformed and therefore, all measures should be applied to give them an opportunity of reformation in order to bring them in the social stream- 'reformative theory of punishment' is to be adopted and for that reason, it is necessary to impose punishment keeping in view the 'doctrine of proportionality'. Keeping in view of theory of 'doctrine of proportionality',the sentence awarded to the appellant seems harsh. Since, the appellant has already served 14 years of sentence and ends of justice would be met if sentence is reduced from life imprisonment to the period of ten years. There were no external injury or there were no external injury were found. The accused-appellant was a young man at the time when he committed the offence. Hence, the sentence awarded to the appellant by the learned trial-court is modified and is reduced to fourteen years rigorous imprisonment with all remissions and fine default sentence mentioned.

Where the offence was committed by the accused at a young age, there were no external or internal injuries on the person of the victim and the accused has served 14 years of the sentence, hence by way of providing the accused the opportunity of reforming himself and in view of the harshness of the punishment of life sentence awarded to him, the sentence modified to the period undergone by the appellant.(Para 22, 23, 24, 25)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Kaushal Jayendra Thaker, J.)

1. By way of this appeal, the appellant-Braj Kishore has challenged the Judgment and order dated 25.08.2008 passed by court of Additional Sessions Judge, Court No.3, Jhansi in Session Trial No.87 of 2007 arising out of Case Crime No.131 of 2006, under Section 376 Indian Penal Code (hereinafter referred to as 'IPC'), Police Station- Mauranipur, District Jhansi whereby the accused-appellant was convicted under Section 376 IPC and sentenced to imprisonment for life.

2. The brief facts as per prosecution case are that on 17.12.2006, a written report was submitted by Raj Kumar stating therein that on 16.12.2006 at about 4:30 p.m. the prosecutrix, a girl of 10 years of age, was returning to her House. On the way the accused-appellant met her. He took her in his house, committed rape with the prosecutrix and when she raised hue and cry, the accused- appellant ran away. The report of the incident was lodged on the next day at 1:20 a.m. i.e. in the night between 16/17.12.2006. A case crime No.131 of 2006 was registered at Police Station Mauranipur, District Jhansi under Section 376 IPC.

3. S.I.-Ram Naresh Singh took the investigation, visited the spot, prepared site plan, recorded statements of the prosecutrix and witnesses. Medical examination of prosecutrix was conducted by the doctor.

4. After completion of investigation, charge sheet was submitted against appellant - Braj Kishore under Section 376 IPC to the Magistraterial Court. The case being triable by Court of Sessions, was comitted by concerned Magistrate to the Court of Sessions for trial.

5. Trial Court framed charges against the appellant under Section 376 IPC. The accused denied the charge and claimed to be tried. The prosecution so as to bring home the charge, examined seven witnesses, who are as under:-

1	Kasturi Devi	P.W.1
2.	Prosecutrix	P.W.2
3.	Raj Kumar	P.W.3
4.	Ram Prakash	P.W.4
5.	Dr. Alpana Bratariya	P.W.5
6.	Ram Naresh Singh	P.W.6
7.	R.L. Kureshi	P.W.7

6. In support of the ocular version of the witnesses, following documents were produced and contents were proved by leading evidence:

1.	F.I.R.	Ext. Ka-3
2.	Written report	Ext. Ka.2A
3.	Staement of prosecutrix	Ext. Ka-2
4.	Recovery memo	Ext. Ka-9
5.	Recovery memo	Ext. Ka-1
6.	Injury report	Ext. Ka-6

7.	Injurty report of prosecutrix	Ext. Ka-5
8.	X-Ray Report	Ext. Ka-10
9.	Site plan	Ext. Ka-7A

7. Heard Shri Rahul Misra assisted by Sri Raghuvansh Misra, learned counsels for the appellant, learned AGA for the State and also perused the record.

8. Perusal of record shows that occurrence of this case took place on 16.12.2006. The prosecution has alleged that the accused committed rape on ten year old daughter of complainant-Raj Kumar. The victim's statement under Section 164 Cr.P.C. was recorded by the concerned Magistrate. During the course of investigation, medical examination of victim was conducted and the medical report was prepared. Dr. Alpana Brtariya, conducted the medical examination. She in her evidence as PW-5 has stated that no spermatozoa was seen in the set smears. In her opinion, no definite opinion regarding rape could be given. Considering the x-ray report, the age of prosecutrix is 9-12 years.

9. The victim was examined as prosecution as PW-2. She reiterated what she had stated in her statement recorded under Section 164 Cr.P.C., the victim supported the prosecution version. In her statement before the Trial Court, she supported the prosecution version. Her mother- Kasturi Devi -PW-1 also supported the case against accused.

10. Complainant- father of the victim, Raj Kumar was examined as PW-3. He has proved the written report as Ex. Ka-2A which was submitted by him at police station for registration of the case against accused.

11. Learned counsel for the appellant would contend that on perusing the FIR, it was only a case of attempt to commit murder. However, on further statement of witness the police had filed charge sheet against the accused under Section 376 IPC also.

12. Learned AGA submitted that the age of victim at the time of commission of offence was just twelve years and as per the medical examination, she was found aged between 9-12 years. She has supported prosecution version in her statement and her testimony is supported with medical evidence. . It is submitted that prosecution case is proved beyond doubt and accused is rightly convicted by the trial Court.

13. Learned Trial Court relied on the testimony of witnesses, mainly the testimony of victim coupled with medical evidence, convicted and sentenced the accused appellant for life imprisonment and fine under section 376 IPC.

14. After some arguments, learned counsel for the appellant submitted that he is not pressing this appeal on merits but prays for reduction of the sentence as the sentence of life imprisonment awarded to the appellant by the trial court is very harsh. Learned counsel for the appellant further contended that the medical evidence categorically showed that alleged incident took place on 16.12.2006 at 4:30 p.m.. There is a belated FIR. Seven witness who have been examined go to show that the FIR was ante timed and hence the sanity of FIR is also doubtful. The presence of PW1 and PW-3 are doubtful at the scene of occurrence. There is offence of opinion of rape that there were not external or internal injuries are found. The recovery of undergarment of accused and the victim is also very doubtful. The statement of victim was recorded under Section 164 Cr.P.C. The presence of PW-1 and PW-3 at the time of occurrence is not proved.

15. Learned counsel for the appellant has relied on the decision of Supreme Court in Rahim BEG & Another Vs. State of U.P. (1972) 3 Supreme Court Cases 759 and Bavo Alias Manubhai Ambalal Thakore Vs. State of Gujarat, (2012) 2 Supreme Court Cases 684 and contended that the case does not fall within the parameters for commission of rape and punishment for the said offence.

16. This case pertains to the offence of 'rape', defined under Section 375 IPC, which is quoted as under:

[375. Rape.- A man is said to commit "rape" if he-

(a) penetrates his penis, to any extent, into the vagina, mouth, urethra or anus of a woman or makes her to do so with him or any other person; or

(b) inserts, to any extent, any object or a part of the body, not being the penis, into the vagina, the urethra or anus of a woman or makes her to do so with him or any other person; or

(c) manipulates any part of the body of a woman so as to cause penetration into the vagina, urethra, anus or any part of body of such woman or makes her to do so with him or any other person; or

(d) applies his mouth to the vagina, anus, urethra of a woman or makes her to do so with him or any other person, under the circumstances falling under any of the following seven descriptions :-

First.- Against her will.

Secondly.- Without her consent.

Thirdly.- With her consent, when her consent has been obtained by putting her or any person in whom she is interested, in fear of death or of hurt.

Fourthly.- With her consent, when the man knows that he is not her husband and that her consent is given because she believes that he is another man to whom she is or believes herself to be lawfully married.

Fifthly.- With her consent when, at the time of giving such consent, by reason of unsoundness of mind of intoxication or the administration by him personally or through another of any stupefying or unwholesome substance, she is unable to understand the nature and consequences of that to which she gives consent.

Sixthly.- With or without her consent, when she is under eighteen years of age.

Seventhly.- When she is unable to communicate consent.

Explanation 1.- For the purposes of this section, "vagina" shall also include labia majora.

Explnation 2.- Consent means an unequivocal voluntary agreement when the woman by words, gestures or any form of verbal or non-verbal communication, communicates willingness to participate in the specific sexual act.

Provided that a woman who does not physically resist to the act of penetration shall not by the reason only of that fact, be regarded as consenting to the sexual activity.

Exception 1.- A medical procedure or intervention shall not constitute rape.

Excpetion 2.- Sexual intercourse or sexual acts by a man with his own wife, the wife not being under fifteen years of age, is not rape.]

17. Factual scenario goes to show that the accused has been named in the FIR. It is not proved that there was any enmity between the parties, though there is some doubt. Learned counsel for the appellant contended that he would press for commutation of sentence from life to a lesser sentence.

18. A very recent judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court titled as Manoj Mishra @ Chhotkau Vs. The State of Uttar Pradesh ( Criminal Appeal No.1167 of 2021) decided on 8th October, 2021 is also considered by us. The facts were similar and, therefore, we cannot disagree with the finding of facts of the Court below but at the same time considering the factual scenario and sentencing the policy will permit us to reduce the life imprisonment to lesser punishment of incarceration as far as Section 376 IPC is concerned.

19. In Mohd. Giasuddin Vs. State of AP, [AIR 1977 SC 1926], explaining rehabilitary & reformative aspects in sentencing it has been observed by the Supreme Court:

"Crime is a pathological aberration. The criminal can ordinarily be redeemed and the state has to rehabilitate rather than avenge. The sub-culture that leads to ante-social behaviour has to be countered not by undue cruelty but by reculturization. Therefore, the focus of interest in penology in the individual and the goal is salvaging him for the society. The infliction of harsh and savage punishment is thus a relic of past and regressive times. The human today vies sentencing as a process of reshaping a person who has deteriorated into criminality and the modern community has a primary stake in the rehabilitation of the offender as a means of a social defence. Hence a therapeutic, rather than an 'in terrorem' outlook should prevail in our criminal courts, since brutal incarceration of the person merely produces laceration of his mind. If you are to punish a man retributively, you must injure him. If you are to reform him, you must improve him and, men are not improved by injuries."

20. 'Proper Sentence' was explained in Deo Narain Mandal Vs. State of UP [(2004) 7 SCC 257] by observing that Sentence should not be either excessively harsh or ridiculously low. While determining the quantum of sentence, the court should bear in mind the 'principle of proportionality'. Sentence should be based on facts of a given case. Gravity of offence, manner of commission of crime, age and sex of accused should be taken into account. Discretion of Court in awarding sentence cannot be exercised arbitrarily or whimsically.

21. In Ravada Sasikala vs. State of A.P. AIR 2017 SC 1166, the Supreme Court referred the judgments in Jameel vs State of UP [(2010) 12 SCC 532], Guru Basavraj vs State of Karnatak, [(2012) 8 SCC 734], Sumer Singh vs Surajbhan Singh, [(2014) 7 SCC 323], State of Punjab vs Bawa Singh, [(2015) 3 SCC 441], and Raj Bala vs State of Haryana, [(2016) 1 SCC 463] and has reiterated that, in operating the sentencing system, law should adopt corrective machinery or deterrence based on factual matrix. Facts and given circumstances in each case, nature of crime, manner in which it was planned and committed, motive for commission of crime, conduct of accused, nature of weapons used and all other attending circumstances are relevant facts which would enter into area of consideration. Further, undue sympathy in sentencing would do more harm to justice dispensations and would undermine the public confidence in the efficacy of law. It is the duty of every court to award proper sentence having regard to nature of offence and manner of its commission. The supreme court further said that courts must not only keep in view the right of victim of crime but also society at large. While considering imposition of appropriate punishment, the impact of crime on the society as a whole and rule of law needs to be balanced. The judicial trend in the country has been towards striking a balance between reform and punishment. The protection of society and stamping out criminal proclivity must be the object of law which can be achieved by imposing appropriate sentence on criminals and wrongdoers. Law, as a tool to maintain order and peace, should effectively meet challenges confronting the society, as society could not long endure and develop under serious threats of crime and disharmony. It is therefore, necessary to avoid undue leniency in imposition of sentence. Thus, the criminal justice jurisprudence adopted in the country is not retributive but reformative and corrective. At the same time, undue harshness should also be avoided keeping in view the reformative approach underlying in our criminal justice system.

22. Keeping in view the facts and circumstances of the case and also keeping in view criminal jurisprudence in our country which is reformative and corrective and not retributive, this Court considers that no accused person is incapable of being reformed and therefore, all measures should be applied to give them an opportunity of reformation in order to bring them in the social stream.

23. As discussed above, 'reformative theory of punishment' is to be adopted and for that reason, it is necessary to impose punishment keeping in view the 'doctrine of proportionality'. It appears from perusal of impugned judgment that sentence awarded by learned trial court for life term is very harsh keeping in view the entirety of facts and circumstances of the case and gravity of offence. Hon'ble Apex Court, as discussed above, has held that undue harshness should be avoided taking into account the reformative approach underlying in criminal justice system.

24. Learned AGA also admitted the fact that appellant is languishing in jail for the last more than 14 years. Keeping in view of theory of 'doctrine of proportionality' as discussed above, the sentence awarded to the appellant seems harsh. Since, the appellant has already served 14 years of sentence and ends of justice would be met if sentence is reduced from life imprisonment to the period of ten years.

25. We find that there were no external injury or there were no external injury were found. The accused-appellant was a young man at the time when he committed the offence. Hence, the sentence awarded to the appellant by the learned trial-court is modified and is reduced to fourteen years rigorous imprisonment with all remissions and fine default sentence mentioned.

26. Accordingly, the appeal is partly allowed with the modification of the sentence, as above. Record be sent back to the Court below forthwith.

27. Release order be sent to the Jail Authority without waiting for detailed judgment.

DATED: ALLAHABAD 17.12.2021

THE HON'BLE MRS. SADHNA RANI (THAKUR), J.

Criminal Appeal No. 6822 of 2019

Ram Sharan Jatav ...Appellant
Versus
State of U.P. & Ors. ...Respondents

Counsel for the Appellant:
Sri Aay Sengar

Counsel for the Respondents:
A.G.A., Sri Rajiv Kumar Tripathi

Criminal Law - Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973- Sections 154, 156(3) & 190- Rejection of Application Under Section 156(3)- The registration of first information report is mandatory under Section 154 Cr.P.C. if the information discloses the commission of cognizable offence and no preliminary inquiry is permissible in such a situation. However, if the information received does not disclose the commission of cognizable offence but indicates necessity for inquiry the preliminary inquiry may be conducted in order to ascertain whether cognizable offence is disclosed or not.

The preliminary inquiry is needed only when the information does not disclose the cognizable offence - The only need was to summon the report whether the case had been registered or not in the police station concerned regarding the complaint. It was incumbent upon the Magistrate concerned to order the registration of first information report as the application itself disclosed the commission of cognizable offence and in that situation no preliminary inquiry was permissible.

Where the application u/s 156(3) Cr.P.c discloses the commission of a cognizable offence, then it is incumbent upon the Magistrate to direct the police to register an F.I.R and conduct investigation whereas a preliminary inquiry is required only when the information does not disclose the commission of a cognizable offence. The purpose of calling for a police report is only to ascertain whether any case has been registered at the police station and for no other purpose. (Para 21, 22, 24).

Judgements/Case law relied upon:-

1. Har Prasad Vs. St. of U.P., 2006 (10) ADJ 412

2. Seema Devi Vs. St. of U.P. & 3 ors, 2018 (3) All. Crl. Rulings 3294

3. Lalita Kumari Vs. Govt. of U.P & anr., 2014 (2) SCC 1

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Sadhna Rani (Thakur), J.)

1. Heard Sri Ajay Sengar, learned counsel for the appellant, learned A.G.A. and perused the record.

2. The challenge in this appeal is to the order dated 14.10.2019 of the Special Judge (SC & ST Act), Jalaun at Orai in Criminal Misc. Case No. 72 of 2019 Ram Sharan Jatav Vs. Sandeep Dixit and others Police Station Madhogarh, District Jalaun. By the impugned order the lower court rejected the application of the appellant under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. of the appellant.

3. Brief facts of the case are that the appellant Ram Sharan Jatav moved an application under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. before the Special Judge (SC & ST Act) Jalaun on 18.09.2019 along with affidavit that he is a resident of Village Bangara, P.S. Madhogarh, District Jalaun and is by caste 'Chamar' (scheduled caste). Sandeep Dixit the son of Gram Pradhan Brahmin by caste is a person of criminal nature. He exploits the weaker section persons and on protest abuses them and gives them threat of life. Because of his terror no one comes forward to file a suit or depose against him. On 07.09.2019 at 9.00 p.m. he was coming back from the market to his home along with Uday Singh, as soon as he reached in front of the house of the Village Pradhan and was purchasing something from the shop existing in the house of Village Pradhan, Sandeep Dixit along with his companion Prem Babu Pachori came there. Sandeep Dixit kicked him from the back. When he resisted both of them in furtherance of their common intention hurled caste based abuses and asked him why did he refuse to come on their call to work for them. Both of them assaulted and beat him badly with fists, blows and kicks. Mohit s/o Ram Swaroop, Udai Singh s/o Veer Singh and other persons standing thereby saved him. He submitted his complaint in the police station Madhogarh on 08th September, 2019 his report was taken but the same was not registered. He got himself medically examined on 09.09.2019 by his own and gave his complaint to the Circle Officer Madhogarh on 10.09.2019 and Superintendent of Police, Jalaun on 12.09.2019 by registered post but his report has not been lodged till now. The accused persons who are influential persons are giving threat not to let him live in the village, hence the officer incharge of police station concerned be directed to lodge the first information report and investigate the matter.

4. After receiving this application, the court concerned summoned the report from the police station Madhogarh. The witness Mohit filed an affidavit denying to witness the incident.

5. After perusal of the report of police station concerned and affidavit of witness, the officer concerned passed the impugned order and rejected the application of the appellant under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. on 14.10.2019.

6. The present appeal has been preferred against this rejection order dated 14.10.2019 passed on Misc. Application No. 72 of 2019 (Ram Sharan Jatav Vs. Sandip Dixit), P.S. Madhogarh, District Jalaun on the premise that the lower court has committed manifest error of law by not considering the case of the appellant. He being the member of scheduled caste community is exploited at the hands of opposite party nos. 2 and 3 and is compelled to do the forced labour. On 07.09.2019 at 9.00 p.m. he was assaulted with kicks and fists and abused by hurling caste base words by both the opposite party nos. 2 and 3. The cognizable offence has been committed but his report was not lodged in the police station concerned. The Circle Officer concerned and the Superintendent of Police also did not pay any heed so he was compelled to file the application under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. and that too has been rejected by the Court concerned after summoning a report from the police station concerned. The witness Mohit was compelled by the opposite party nos. 2 and 3 to give affidavit to the effect that he did not witness the incident. The police has submitted false report. Prima facie a cognizable offence is proved to be committed by the opposite party nos. 2 and 3. The Special Judge, SC/ST Act, Jalaun has reached at the wrong conclusion that there is party bandi in the village and the appellant is a member of party of Shivam Gurjar and upon instigation of Shivam Gurjar he is falsely implicating the opposite party nos. 2 and 3, who are witnesses of the crime committed by Shivam Gurjar. So the appeal be allowed, the impugned order be set aside and an F.I.R. be registered with regard to the cognizable offence committed against him.

7. On the date fixed, neither the opposite party nos. 2 and 3 or their counsel appeared nor any counter affidavit has been filed on their behalf.

8. Learned A.G.A. in his counter affidavit has stated that the eye witness in the application under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. has filed an application supported with an affidavit that he did not witness the incident as on the date of incident he was in Jaipur. After considering the said affidavit and each and every aspects of the mater, the lower court has rightly rejected the application moved by the appellant under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. The order impugned is perfect, just, legal and valid and does not suffer from any infirmity or illegality.

9. In support of his contentions the appellant has placed before this Court the copy of application under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C., his injury report dated 09.09.2019, copy of complaint given to the Superintendent of Police, Jalaun, copy of complaint give to the Circle Officer, Madhogarh, enquiry report filed by the concerned police station, affidavit of witness Mohit along with his application and the impugned order dated 14.10.2019.

10. A perusal of the impugned order reveals the observation of the lower court that as one of the witnesses Mohit has refused to witness the occurrence by filing an affidavit and the report has been received from the concerned police station that in the village there are two parties one of Shivam Gurjar, who had murdered Hari Om Pachori on 13.06.2017 along with his companion and the case was registered in the matter. The present opposite party no. 2 Sandip Dixit and Prem Babu Pachori are the eye witnesses of the incident and thus belong to the rival party and the present appellant belongs to the party of Shivam Gurjar, so on the basis of this party bandi on false allegation the application under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. has been moved by the appellant. The lower court opined that as per injury report the injuries sustained by the applicant-appellant are of simple in nature and could be self inflicted and so placing reliance on the judgement in the case of Sukhvasi Vs. State of U.P., 2007 (59) ACC 739 Allahabad, the lower court rejected the application of the appellant under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. vide impugned order dated 14.10.2019.

11. As the application of appellant under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.c. has been rejected so let us see what are the requirements to move an application under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. Section 156 Cr.P.C. can be reproduced as under:-

156. Police officer's power to investigate cognizable case.

(1) Any officer in charge of a police station may, without the order of a Magistrate, investigate any cognizable case which a Court having jurisdiction over the local area within the limits of such station would have power to inquire into or try under the provisions of Chapter XIII.

(2) No proceeding of a police officer in any such case shall at any stage be called in question on the ground that the case was one which such officer was not empowered under this section to investigate.

(3) Any Magistrate empowered under section 190 may order such an investigation as above- mentioned.

12. As per this Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. as the Magistrate is empowered under Section 190 Cr.P.C. to order such investigation. So section 190 Cr.P.C. is also to be looked into, which runs as under:-

190. Cognizance of offences by Magistrates.

(1) Subject to the provisions of this Chapter, any Magistrate of the first class, and any Magistrate of the second class specially empowered in this behalf under sub- section (2), may take cognizance of any offence-

(a) upon receiving a complaint of facts which constitute such offence;

(b) upon a police report of such facts;

(c) upon information received from any person other than a police officer, or upon his own knowledge, that such offence has been committed.

(2) The Chief Judicial Magistrate may empower any Magistrate of the second class to take cognizance under sub- section (1) of such offences as are within his competence to inquire into or try.

13. According to this section, the Magistrate is empowered to take cognizance of any offence upon receiving a complaint of facts which constitute such offence, upon a police report of such facts and upon information received from any person.

14. The complaint is defined under Section 2 (d) of Cr.P.C., which reads as under:-

Section 2(d) of The Code Of Criminal Procedure, 1973

(d) " complaint" means any allegation made orally or in writing to a Magistrate, with a view to his taking action under this Code, that some person, whether known or unknown, has committed an offence, but does not include a police report. Explanation.- A report made by a police officer in a case which discloses, after investigation, the commission of a non-cognizable offence shall be deemed to be a complaint; and the police officer by whom such report is made shall be deemed to be the complainant;

15. Thus, the Magistrate is empowered to take cognizance when an application under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. is moved before him.

16. The lower court has placed reliance on the judgement of Sukhvasi (supra), wherein the Court has opined as under:-

"Applications under section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. are comig in torrents. Provisions under section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. should be used sparingly. They should not be used unless there is something unusual and extra ordinary like miscarriage of justice which warrants a direction to the Police to register a case. Such application should not be allowed because the law provides them with an alternative remedy of filing a complaint, therefore, recourse should not normally be permitted for availing the provisions of section 156 (3) Cr.P.C.

The reference is, therefore, answered in the manner that it is not incumbent upon a Magistrate to allow an application section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. and there is no such legal mandate."

17. While in this regard the appellant has placed reliance on the judgement in Har Prasad Vs. State of U.P., 2006 (10) ADJ 412, wherein the coordinate Bench of this Court allowed the revision of the revisionist and hold that if the application under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. discloses the commission of cognizable offence and at the stage of Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C., which is a pre-cognizance stage, once cognizable offence is disclosed through an application it was the duty of the concerned court to order for registration and investigation of the offence as crime detection and crime prevention are the foremost duty of the police and not of the court.

18. The reliance has also been placed on the judgement in Seema Devi Vs. State of U.P. & 3 others, 2018 (3) All. Crl. Rulings 3294 (Criminal Appeal No. 1647 of 2018 decided on 24.09.2018) wherein the coordinate Bench of this Court held that if the averments of the complaint are trustworthy or these are found so after preliminary inquiry, then the Magistrate under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C., 1973 may direct the S.H.O. to register F.I.R. and conduct investigation on the basis of averments of the complaint.

19. However, the findings of the Constitution Bench of the Apex Court in the case of Lalita Kumari Vs. Government of Uttar Pradesh and another, reported in 2014 (2) SCC 1, can be looked into. Paragraph-111 of the aforesaid judgement, is reproduced herein:-

"111) In view of the aforesaid discussion, we hold:

i)Registration of FIR is mandatory under Section 154 of the Code, if the information discloses commission of a cognizable offence and no preliminary inquiry is permissible in such a situation."

20. Section 154 Cr.P.C. runs as under:-

154. Information in cognizable cases.

(1) Every information relating to the commission of a cognizable offence, if given orally to an officer in charge of a police station, shall be reduced to writing by him or under his direction, and be read Over to the informant; and every such information, whether given in writing or reduced to writing as aforesaid, shall be signed by the person giving it, and the substance thereof shall be entered in a book to be kept by such officer in such form as the State Government may prescribe in this behalf.

[Provided that if the information is given by the woman against whom an offence under section 326A, section 326B, section 354, section 354A, section 354B, section 354C, section 354D, section 376, [section 376A, section 376AB, section 375B, section 376C, section 376D, section 376DA, section 376DB,] section 376E or section 509 of the Indian Penal Code is alleged to have been committed or attempted, then such information shall be recorded, by a woman police officer or any woman officer:

Provided further that-

(a) in the event that the person against whom an offence under section 354, section 354A, section 354B, section 354C, section 354D, section 376, [section 376A, section 376AB, section 376B, section 376C, section 376D, section 376DA, section 376DB] section 376E or section 509 of the Indian Penal Code is alleged to have been committed or attempted, is temporarily or permanently mentally or physically disabled, then such information shall be recorded by a police officer, at the residence of the person seeking to report such offence or at a convenient place of such person's choice, in the presence of aninterpreter or a special educator, as the case may be;

(b) the recording of such information shall be videographed;

(c) the police officer shall get the statement of the person recorded by a Judicial Magistrate under clause (a) of such-section (5A) of section 164 as soon as possible.]

(2) A copy of the information as recorded under sub- section (1) shall be given forthwith, free of cost, to the informant.

(3) Any person aggrieved by a refusal on the part of an officer in charge of a police station to record the information referred to in subsection (1) may send the substance of such information, in writing and by post, to the Superintendent of Police concerned who, if satisfied that such information discloses the commission of a cognizable offence, shall either investigate the case himself or direct an investigation to be made by any police officer subordinate to him, in the manner provided by this Code, and such officer shall have all the powers of an officer in charge of the police station in relation to that offence.

21. Thus, from the findings of the Apex Court and the provisions mentioned above, it is clear that the registration of first information report is mandatory under Section 154 Cr.P.C. if the information discloses the commission of cognizable offence and no preliminary inquiry is permissible in such a situation. However, if the information received does not disclose the commission of cognizable offence but indicates necessity for inquiry the preliminary inquiry may be conducted in order to ascertain whether cognizable offence is disclosed or not. Though in sub-para 5 of para-111 of the judgement Lalita Kumar (supra) it is mentioned that the scope of preliminary inquiry is not to verify the veracity or otherwise of the information received but only to ascertain whether the information reveals any cognizable offence, though, in which case preliminary inquiry may be made, has also been mentioned in sub-para 6 of para-111 of the judgement. It is clear from the above findings that the preliminary inquiry is needed only when the information does not disclose the cognizable offence.

22. In the application under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. moved by the appellant, he has mentioned that the "opposite party nos. 2 and 3 hurled caste based abuses and beaten him with kicks and fists." It makes clear that in the application itself commission of cognizable offence has been mentioned so as per judgment of the Apex Court in Lalita Kumari (supra) no preliminary inquiry was needed by the Magistrate. The only need was to summon the report whether the case had been registered or not in the police station concerned regarding the complaint. The fact is admitted by the concerned court in the impugned order that the purpose of summoning the police report was only to ascertain the fact as to whether an F.I.R. in the matter had been registered in the police station or not and in the report of police station it is clearly mentioned that no first information report has been registered in the police station concerned regarding allegation made in the application under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C.

23. The lower court after perusing the application under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. was aware of the fact that commission of cognizable offence is reported in the application under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. and in the report of police station also it was mentioned that some incident took place on the date and time mentioned in the application under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. Though, in the report it is mentioned that the applicant-appellant was hurling abuses and after hearing the noise the opposite party nos. 2 and 3 came out of their houses pursuaded the applicant and sent him to his home but after some time the applicant-appellant again came to the shop and again started hurling abuses. Both the opposite party nos. 2 and 3 holding his hands then brought the applicant-appellant to his home. The report also discloses that to pressurize Sandip Dixit and Prem Babu Pachori this false application has been given.

24. Thus, from the report itself it is clear that on 07.09.2019 at 9.00 p.m. some incident took place and what was that incident it was not to be inquired by the police at the stage of pre-cognizance as the application under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C itself discloses the commission of cognizable offence. Thus, on the basis of judgement in Lalita Kumari (supra) it was incumbent upon the Magistrate concerned to order the registration of first information report as the application itself disclosed the commission of cognizable offence and in that situation no preliminary inquiry was permissible.

25. In view of above, I am of the view that the lower court has misinterpreted the provisions and has wrongly relied upon the report of police station concerned, hence the appeal is allowed. The impugned order dated 14.10.2019 is hereby set aside.

26. The file be sent to lower court where the parties shall appear on 04th January, 2022.

3. Maru Ram Vs U.O.I. (1980) AIR SC 2147

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Kaushal Jayendra Thaker, J.)

1. This appeal has been preferred by the appellant-Kunwar Pal against the judgment and order dated 04.11.2009, passed by Additional Sessions Judge, Court No. 13 Bareilly, in Session Trial No. 946 of 2007 (State vs. Kunwar Pal) arising out of Case Crime No. 26 of 2007, under Sections 302, 376, read with section 511 Indian Penal Code (I.P.C.), Police Station Awala, District Bareilly, whereby the accused was convicted and awarded sentence under Section 302 IPC for life imprisonment and fine of Rs.15,000/- in default accused was directed to undergo further imprisonment for one year. Accused was acquitted of charges under sections 376 read with section 511 of IPC.

2. The facts giving rise to this appeal are that complainant Omkar Jatav submitted written-report at Police Station Awala, District Bareilly, stating therein that on 18.01.2008 at 11:30 in the morning when six years old child-girl who had accompanied with appellant was found dead in his house. The prosecution was moved into motion by father of the deceased alleging that she had been raped and then murdered. The Investigating Officer conducted the investigation and being satisfied that case was made out, submitted charge-sheet against the accused-appellant, under Sections 302, 376, read with section 511 IPC.

3. As accused was facing charges under Sections 302, 376, read with section 511 IPC, the case was committed to the court of Sessions. Learned trial court has framed charges on 29.03.2008 against appellant under Sections 302, 376, read with section 511 IPC. Charges were read over to the accused, who denied the charges and claimed to be tried.

4. To bring home the charges, following witnesses were examined by the prosecution:

1.	Omkar	PW1
2.	Lilawati	PW2
3.	Babu Singh	PW3
4.	Badami	PW4
5.	Dr. A. K. Gautam	PW5
6.	V.K. Kasana	PW6
7.	Gajendra Pal Singh	PW7
8.	Ram Sharan Verma	PW8

All of them have given statements under section 161 Cr.P.C. and have opined against the accused.

5. The ocular version was sought to be corroborated by production of documentary evidences:

1.	F.I.R.	Ex. Ka2
2.	Written Report	Ex. Ka1
3.	P.M. Report	Ex. Ka4
4.	Panchayatnama	Ex. Ka7
5.	Charge Sheet Mool	Ex. Ka6
6.	Site Plan with Index	Ex. Ka5

6. Accused-appellant was examined under Section 313 Cr.P.C. and evidence against him led by prosecution against him were put to him. Accused stated that false evidence has been led against him. Accused did not examine any witness in his defence.

7. We have heard Ms. Kanchan Chaudhary, who has been appointed by High Court Legal Services Committee, as Amicus Curiae and learned AGA for the State and perused the record.

8. Learned counsel for the appellant has vehemently submitted that there is contradiction in the ocular version of Omkar and Lilawati i.e. father and mother of the deceased and also about the timing as mentioned in the postmortem report as Ex. 4. She has further submitted that accused is totally innocent and could not have been convicted on fragile evidence of eye-witnesses which is full of contradiction. It has been further submitted that dead body might have been planted by somebody else and the accused is roped in.

9. Per contra, learned AGA has taken us through the evidence on record and has contended that this is not a case where the accused can be given any benefit of doubt as it was his own house where the dead body was found. The father of the victim categorically in ocular version supported the F.I.R. stating that his daughter had accompanied the accused and she did not return back at home, they went to the house of the accused who did not open the door and when the door was opened he ran away from the scene of offence.

10. At the outset only the offence for which the accused has been convicted under section 302 IPC we would now sift the evidence on record.

(a) The dead body was found in the house of accused, the testimony of father corroborates the F.I.R. that deceased had accompanied with accused, there is no rebuttal evidence produced and, therefore, we have to call section 106 of the Indian Evidence Act for which learned trial Judge has given cogent reasons that accused Kunwar Pal took the victim/deceased from her house and she was found dead in the room of accused's house. At that time there was no one in the house of accused. Hence, burden lies on the shoulder of accused to prove as to how the death of deceased took place because this fact was within the special knowledge of the accused but accused had not discharged this burden.

11. The fact that the dead body was found at the residence/place of accused at 1:00 p.m. and just because there is some minor contradictions about the timing when he had come at 11:30 and dead body 10/11:00 and will not dislodge the prosecution case. Estimated time is given by the doctor and it is not the exact time. The ligature mark in postmortem report categorically goes to show that young girl died on account of asphexia caused due to strangulation. We have convinced that this is not a case where accused can be given any benefit of doubt.

12. The recent judgment of Apex Court has held in the case of Union of India Vs. Dharam Pal, AIJEL 2019 (0) SC 64322 where the accused was charged in murder of five persons there was imposition of death sentence mercy petition was filed and there was incarceration for a total period of over 25 years, out of which 18 years were in solitary confinement, the Apex Court commuted his death sentence into life imprisonment. We are supported in arguing by the decision of Vikas Yadav Vs. State of U.P. 2016 (9) 541 will also for benefit of accused. It is not a heinous crime and however when he has committed the offence he was a young person.

13. Looking to the over all fact and circumstances, we also rely the judgment of Maru Ram Vs. Union of India, AIR 1980 SC 2147. This case has not yet been considered, though it is not a right of the accused but it is obligation on the State to consider the case for commutation. The recent judgment in Criminal Appeal No. 345 of 1983 decided on 29.08.2017 paragraph 33 of this Court has held as fallows:

"33. Going through the testimony and the record, it cannot be said that the commission of offence was so gruesome and life sentence would mean till the last blood. Accused shall be entitled to all the remissions. This direction is given in view of principles enunciated in Maru Ram Vs. Union of India, AIR 1980 SC 2147, considered again in Vikas Yadav Vs. State of U.P. 2016 (9) 541 and the constitutional power vested in Article 72 and Article 161 of the Constitution of India read with Section 432 and 433-A of Cr.P.C. will also permit this Court to hold that it will be available to the State to exercise its jurisdiction vested under Section 432 Cr.P.C. and we do not, for a moment, hold that this is a case where life would mean till his last breath and, therefore, also the case of both the accused be considered for remission as expeditiously as possible not later than six months from today. It goes without saying that the State shall exercise the powers after 14 years incarceration is over."

14. Thus in the light of these facts, the High Court as per reformative theory will permit us to grant fix term jail sentence to the accused.

15. At the end, we agree with the submission of learned counsel for the appellant that at end of 14 years the State may consider his case for remission under section 433 and 434 and this is not a heinous crime and he is in jail since 2007 and more than 14 years are already completed.

45. We find that in the State of U.P. even after 14 years of incarceration does not even send the matter to the Magistrate for reevaluation the cases for remission as per mandate of Sections 432 and 433 of Cr.P.C. and as held by Apex Court in catena of decisions even if appeals are pending in the High Court. The accused in present case is in jail since 2000.

46. Sections 433 and 434 of the Cr.P.C. read as follows:-

"Section 433. Power to commute sentence. The appropriate Government may, without the consent of the person sentenced, commute-

(a) a sentence of death, for any other punishment provided by the Indian Penal Code;

(b) a sentence of imprisonment for life, for imprisonment for a term not exceeding fourteen years or for fine;

(c) a sentence of rigorous imprisonment, for simple imprisonment for any term to which that person might have been sentenced, or for fine;

(d) a sentence of simple imprisonment, for fine."

"Section 434. Concurrent power of Central Government in case of death sentences. The powers conferred by sections 432 and 433 upon the State Government may, in the case of sentences of death, also be exercised by the Central Government."

47. Section 433 and 434 of the Cr.P.C. enjoins a duty upon the State Government as well as Central Government to commute the sentences as mentioned in the said section. We are pained to mention that even after 14 years of incarceration, the State did not think of exercising its power for commutation of sentence of life imprisonment of the present accused and it appears that power of Governor provided under Article 161 of the Constitution of India are also not exercised though there are restriction to such power to commute sentence. The object of Sections 432 read with Section 433 of the Cr.P.C. is to remit the sentence awarded to the accused if it appears that the offence committed by him is not so grave. In our case, we do not see that why the accused is not entitled to remission. His case should have been considered but has not been considered. Remission/ commutation of sentence under Sections 433 and 434 of the Cr.P.C. is in the realm of power vested in the Government. The factual scenario in the present case would show that had the Government thought of taking up the case of the accused as per jail manual, it would have been found that the case of the appellant was not so grave that it could not have been considered for remission / commutation.

16. The State may consider for his remission, hence as a theory of reformation would apply to this case as it may be that he was young boy and due to bad luck and fear he may have committed this offence. He has no criminal antecedents attributed to him.

17. The appeal sans merit and is dismissed. However, with the aforesaid observations to the State.

18. Record for proceedings be consigned to the trial court.

19. The High Court Legal Services Committee will pay the requisite fees to the learned counsel who is amenably assisted this Court.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Vikas Budhwar, J.)

1. This is a revision under Section 102 of the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2015 (in short the J.J. Act, 2015), instituted against the order dated 26.8.2020 passed by the Principal Magistrate, Juvenile Justice Board, Gorakhpur in Case Crime no. 09 of 2020 (State Vs. Vishal Kannaujiya), under Section 376 IPC read with Section 5/6 of the Prevention of Child from Sexual Offence Act, 2012, hereinafter referred to as the "POCSO Act', P.S. Khajani, District Gorakhpur as well as the order dated 27.11.2020 passed by learned Addl. Sessions Judge/ Special Judge (POCSO Act), Court No.1, Gorakhpur, in Criminal Appeal No. 62 of 2020, Vishal Kannaujiya Vs. State of U.P. and others refusing the bail to the revisionist.

2. Brief facts of the case setforth by the revisionist are that the prosecution has alleged that the victim Miss Neeraj Kannaujiya, daughter of Ram Laut Kannaujiya is 17 years old, as whereas revisionist-juvenile being Master Vishal Kannaujiya son of Rajesh Kannaujiya was aged about 16 years, they were found wandering in a suspicious condition in Kasba Khajani on the unlucky day, i.e, 28.12.2019. On interception, the juvenile as well as the victim Neeraj Kannaujiya apprised the police personnel that they were not willing to go to their respective houses as they wanted to live together. Faced with these circumstances, one Sri Rudra Pratap Singh, Sub-Inspector, P.S. Khajani, District Gorakhpur made a communication to the designated official of Child Welfare Committee, District Gorakhpur clearly narrating the fact that the juvenile and the victim both of them were not agreeable to go to their respective houses and further despite the fact that information was provided to the parents of the juvenile and the victim, none of them approached them to take custody of the juvenile or the victim and thus request was being sought to be made to them that the victim as well as the revisionist be taken into the custody of the Child Welfare Committee, District Gorakhpur for their upkeep, care and betterment.

3. It appears that on the same day, i.e, on 28.12.2019, G.D. entry was also made narrating the facts, which had been communicated on 28.12.2019 by the Sub-Inspector, P.S. Khajani, Gorakhpur to the Child Welfare Committee, Gorakhpur. Thereafter, FIR was lodged by one Sri Krishna Sinha being the member of the Child Welfare Committee, Gorakhpur before the police station Khajani, Gorakhpur dated 16.1.2020 registered as Case Crime no. 0009 of 2020 with an allegation that on 28.12.2019 itself the police officials found the revisionist and the victim together in suspicious condition and further on medical examination, it revealed that UPT was positive depicting that she was pregnant. It was also alleged that the father of the victim had not lodged the FIR because the victim was a minor and that will create negative impact upon the character of the victim. Statement of the complainant being Sri Krishna Sinha, Chairman / Member, Child Welfare Committee, District Gorakhpur was recorded on 17.1.2020 under Section 161 CrPC, wherein the same facts were reiterated, which already found place in the FIR. It has also come on record that despite being request administered to the parents of the victim, as well as the victim for getting her medically examined, she refused for the same. The statement of the victim was also recorded under Section 164 CrPC, a certified copy of the same is at page 70 of the paper book, wherein the victim has deposed that she is of 17 years of age and she is in love with the revisionist for the past three months and she according to her sweet will has married with the revisionist. Consequent to the initiation of the proceedings emanating from the FIR, the revisionist is in observation home since 22.7.2020, and the proceeding has been registered as Case Crime no. 9 of 2020, under Section 376 IPC read with Section 5/6 of POCSO Act.

4. The Court of Addl. Sessions Judge/ Special Judge (POCSO Act), Court No.1, Gorakhpur in the proceedings in Misc. Case No. 260 of 2020, CNR No. UPGK01-003610-2020 (State of U.P. Vs. Vishal Kannaujiya) by virtue of the order dated 21.7.2020 declared the revisionist to be juvenile, while determining his date of birth to be 1.4.2003 holding that he was 16 years 9 months and 15 days of age, i.e. below the age of 18 on the date of occurrence of incident. It has also come on record that District Probation Officer submitted report to the Board on 6.8.2020, according to which there was no good ground entitling the revisionist to be bailed out in terms of the provisions contained under Section 12 of the J.J. Act, 2015. A police report dated 25.8.2020 was also submitted, which also does not find favour with the revisionist.

5. The bail/ release application so preferred for releasing the revisionist on bail was at the first instance rejected by the Court of Principal Magistrate, Juvenile Justice Board, Gorakhpur in Case Crime no.9 of 2020, State vs. Vishal Kannaujiya, which was carried before learned Addl. Sessions Judge/ Special Judge (POCSO Act), Court No.1, Gorakhpur, being Criminal Appeal No. 62 of 2020, Vishal Kannaujiya vs. State of U.P. and others, which also met the same fate and the same was laid to rest by virtue of order dated 27.11.2020.

6. Challenging both the orders, the revisionist is before this Court in the present revision, which purports to be under Section 102 of the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2015.

7. Before proceeding further, while deciding the controversy in question it would be profitable to give a brief outline of the philosophy behind the introduction of Juvenile Justice system since inception.

8. The basic idea behind the formulation of the juvenile justice system is to reform, rehabilitate and re-integrate a child in conflict with law and the child in need of care and protection. Obviously, the philosophy in dealing with children committing offence is remarkably different from an adult committing an offence as in that case, different criteria and yardsticks have to be adopted. The first doctrine dealing with children of both the categories is the doctrine parens patriae in a juvenile justice legal system parens patriae, the doctrine that allows the State to step in and serve as a guardian for children, the mentally ill, the incompetent, the illiterate or disable persons, who are unable to take care of themselves.

9. Needless to point out that it refers to public policy power of State to intervene against absurd and inequitable parents, legal guardians or informal care taker and to act as a parent of any child or individual, who is in the need of protection. Normally, the natural parents and family are expected to take care of their child, but when they fail, then the State has to take steps and it has to step into the shoes of the parents and family to provide the same care and protection, as their own parents and family should have been provided for them.

10. With passage of time, the principle of parens patriae shifted to the right approach, which respects the constitutional and procedural rights of a juvenile. A child in conflict with law should be treated in a manner consistent with the promotion of the child's sense of dignity and worth, which reinforces the child's respect for the human rights and fundamental freedoms of others and, which takes into account the child's age and the desirability of promoting the child's reintegration and the child's assuming a constructive role in the society.

11. In the Pre-Independence era, first legislation enacted for the children in distress is the Apprentice Act, 1850. It applies to children above the age of 10 and under the age of 18 found to have committed petty offence and vagabonds. Under the Act, the children in distress were to be trained for trade and commerce. "The Preamble of the Apprentice Act, 1850", which explains the idea behind the enactment is quoted hereinunder:

"For better enabling children, and especially orphans and poor children brought up in public charity, to learn trades, crafts and employments, by which, when they came to full age, may gain a livelihood."

12. Thereafter, came into existence the widely known code by the name and nomenclature Indian Penal Code, 1860 enacting various provisions relating to child, which are as under:-

"82. Act of a child under seven years of age.--Nothing is an offence which is done by a child under seven years of age.

83. Act of a child above seven and under twelve of immature understanding.--Nothing is an offence which is done by a child above seven years of age and under twelve, who has not attained sufficient maturity of understanding to judge of the nature and consequences of his conduct on that occasion.

84. Act of a person of unsound mind.--Nothing is an offence which is done by a person who, at the time of doing it, by reason of unsoundness of mind, is incapable of knowing the nature of the act, or that he is doing what is either wrong or contrary to law."

13. Section 82 of the Indian Penal Code itself provides that nothing is an offence, which is done by a child under 7 years of age. Further classification has been made, while differentiating from a child, who is below the age of 7, while incorporating Section 83 in the Indian Penal Code, 1860 providing that nothing is an offence, which is done by a child above 7 years of age and under 12, who has not attained sufficient maturity of understanding to judge nature and consequences of his conduct on that occasion. Similarly, Section 84 has also been inserted, which itself provides that nothing is an offence, which is done by a person, who at the time of committing it by the reason of unsoundness of mind, is incapable of knowing the nature of the act or what he is doing is either wrong or contrary to law.

14. Then comes the stage wherein whereat a new legislation by the name and nomenclature of "Reformatory Schools Act, 1876" and its amendments made in 1897 was brought into existence according to which the Government was enjoined to establish reformatory schools for juvenile delinquents. Under the said Act, provision was made to keep juveniles in custody in reformatory school for a time period of 2 to 7 years, but after the attainment of 18 years, they were not to be kept in the Reformatory Schools. In the year 1898, another important legislation for children was brought into existence being Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, wherein Section 29(B) was inserted, which reads as

"29B. Jurisdiction in the case of juveniles. - Any offence, other than one punishable with death or [imprisonment] for life, committed, by any person who at the date when he appears or is brought before the Court is under the age of fifteen years, may be tried by a District Magistrate or a Chief Presidency

Magistrate, or by any Magistrate specially empowered by the [State Government] to exercise the powers conferred by Section 8, sub-section (1), of the Reformatory Schools Act, 1897, or in any area, in which the said Act has been wholly or in part repealed by any other law providing for the custody, trial or punishment of youthful offenders, by any Magistrate empowered by or under such law to exercise all or any of the powers conferred thereby.

State Amendments

Uttar Pradesh

In its application to the State of Uttar Pradesh, Section 29B of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, ceases to apply to any area in which Chapters I and III to Act I of 1952, S. 76(1)."

15. Further Section 399 of the "Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898" reads as under:

"399.(1) When any person under the age of fifteen years is sentenced by any Criminal Court to imprisonment for any offence, the Court may direct that such person, instead of being imprisoned in a criminal jail, shall be confined in any reformatory established by the Government as a fit place for confinement, in which there are means of suitable discipline and of training in some branch of useful industry or which is kept by a person willing to obey such rules as the Government prescribes with regard to the discipline and training of persons confined therein.

(2) All persons confined under this section shall be subject to the rules so prescribed.

(3). This section shall not apply to any place in which the Reformatory Schools Act, 1897, is for the time being in force."

State Amendments

Uttar Pradesh

- U.P. Act I of 1952, S. 76.

(2)(a) The Reformatory Schools Act, 1897 (VIII of 1897), which extends to whole of India except State of Jammu and Kashmir, has been extended to States merged in the State of (I) Bombay - See Bom. The Act has been extended to the Union Territory of Goa, Daman and Diu - See Reg. XI of 1963."

16. Section 562 of the said Code conferred power upon the Court to release on probation of good conduct youthful offenders under 21 years of age under certain conditions instead of sentencing them to prison. Section 562 of CrPC, 1898 reads as under: -

"562. Power of Court to release certain convicted offenders on probation of good conduct instead of sentencing to punishment. - (1) When any person not under twenty-one years of age is convicted of an offence punishable with imprisonment for not more than seven years, or when any person under twenty-one years of age or any woman is convicted of an offence not punishable with death or [imprisonment for life], and no previous conviction is proved against the offender, if it appears to the Court before which he is convicted, regard being had to the age, character or antecedents of the offender, and to the circumstances in which the offence was committed, that it is expedient that the offender should be released on probation of good onduct, the Court may, instead of sentencing him at once to any punishment, direct that he be released on his entering into a bond, with or without sureties, to appear and receive sentence when called upon during such period (not exceeding three years) as the Court may direct, and in the meantime to keep the peace and be of good behaviour :

Provided that, where any first offender is convicted by a Magistrate of the third class, or a Magistrate of the second class not specially empowered by the [State Government] in this behalf, and the Magistrate is of opinion that the powers conferred by this section should be exercised, he shall record his opinion to that effect, and submit the proceedings to a Magistrate of the first class or Sub-divisional Magistrate, forwarding the accused to, or taking bail for his appearance before, such Magistrate, who shall dispose of the case in manner provided by section 380.

[(1.A) Conviction and release with admonition.-- In any case, in which a person is convicted of theft, theft in a building, dishonest misappropriation, cheating or any offence under the Indian Penal Code punishable with not more than two before whom he is so convicted may, if it thinks fit, having regard to the age, character, antecedents or physical or mental condition of the offender and to the trivial nature of the offence or any extenuating circumstances under which the offence was committed, instead of sentencing him to any punishment, release him after due admonition.]

(2) An order under this section may be made by any Appellate Court or by the High Court when exercising its power of revision.

(3) When an order has been made under this section in respect of any offender, the High Court may, on appeal when there is a right of appeal to such Court, or when exercising its powers of revision, set aside such order, and in lieu thereof pass sentence on such offender according to law:

Provided that the High Court shall not under this sub-section inflict a greater punishment than might have been inflicted by the Court by which the offender was convicted.

(4) The provisions of sections 122, 126A and 406A shall, so far as ay be, apply in the case of sureties offered in pursuance of the provisions of this section.]

STATE AMENDMENT

Uttar Pradesh

(1) In its application to the State of Uttar Pradesh, S. 562 shall stand repealed - See U.P. Act VI of 1938, S.15 (1-2-1939.]

Note. - Section 15 of U.P. First Offenders' Probation Act, 1938 (U.P. Act VI of 1938), has been brought in fore in the whole of Uttar Pradesh on and from 1-2-1939-- See U.P. Gaz., 1939, Pt. I, p.99."

17. These provisions along with "Reformatory Schools Act, 1897" made a significant change in the juvenile justice system from punishment to reform and rehabilitation.

18. Thereafter, the recommendations made by the Indian Jail Committee (1919-1920) suggested that juvenile prisoners are amenable to reformation and their detention in prisons is undesirable, for, their simple mind may be polluted permanently by the atmosphere of Jail life. A child offender was mainly a product of unfavourable environment. He was entitled to new opportunities to grow and live in more congenial conditions. The Committee opined that juveniles could be reformed by re-education and proper treatment. It recommended that Borstal institutions should be established for reformation of juveniles. It also recommended for constitution of juvenile courts.

19. Thereafter, under the Juvenile Justice System in India, firstly the Juvenile Court was established under Madras Children Act, 1920.

20. After independence of India in 1947, the Parliament passed the first legislation on children, namely, The Children's Act, 1960. This was made applicable in centrally administered union territories and the States having no juvenile legislation were made free to adopt it. It was passed to function as model legislation and for implementation in union territories. This Act established separate child welfare courts to handle cases relating to neglected children. It also created the position of a Probation Officer to advise and assist the neglected or delinquent children. In addition, it established separate Children's Court for cases related to delinquent juveniles, thereby supporting the judicial process for delinquent and neglected children.

21. It would be relevant to note here that prior to the passing of The Children's Act, 1960, there existed different Children's Act in different States. The most important aspect of the Children's Act, 1960 was complete prohibition of use of police station or jail under any circumstances for children covered within its purview. However, at this stage, Juvenile Justice System in India was not uniform because each State had its own standards, norms and practices.

22. The necessity of a uniform Children Act across the Country gave rise to enactment of Juvenile Justice Act, 1986 (for short 'the Act of 1986').

23. The Act of 1986 promoted the best interest of the juveniles by incorporating the important provisions of Indian Constitution. The Act of 1986 was influenced by 'United Nations Declaration of the Rights of the Child, 1959' and 'United Nations Standard Minimum Rules for the Administration of Juvenile Justice (''The Beijing Rules''), 1985'. The detention of juveniles in police lock-up or jail was abolished by the Act of 1986. It also recommended to establish Juvenile Homes for the reception of neglected juveniles, Special Homes for reception of delinquent juveniles and Observation Homes for the temporary reception of juveniles during pendency of the inquiry and trial and Aftercare Homes for the purpose of taking care of juveniles after discharge from Observation Homes or Special Homes. The object of the Act of 1986 was to protect juvenile from criminalization, penalization and stigmatization. The Act of 1986 repealed various Children's Acts enacted in different States and provided a uniform Juvenile Justice System in India. Boys under the age of 16 and girls under the age of 18 were defined as Juveniles.

24. Noticing various shortcoming in the Act of 1986 when India signed and ratified the 'United Nations Convention of Rights of Children' in December, 1992, the Act of 1986 was repealed and replaced by The Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2000 (for short 'the Act of 2000'), which came into force from 1st April 2001. The Act of 2000 defined the term 'juvenile' as a person who having not completed the age of 18 years. The statement of objects and reasons for the Act of 2000 specified that it was enacted to bring the operation of Juvenile Justice System in conformity with Convention of Rights of Children and other United Nations Instruments signed by India. It incorporated the justice as well as the right approach towards children. It dealt with juveniles in conflict with law and children in need of care and protection.

25. The Act of 2000 was amended in 2006. The Amendment Act, 2006 brought several amendments in the Principal Act. By the amendment, it was made clear that crucial date for determination of age of a juvenile in conflict with law would be the date of commission of offence. Another important change was insertion of Section 7A, which provided that a claim of juvenility may be raised before any court and it shall be recognized at any stage, even after final disposal of the case. The amended Act further clarified that under any condition, a juvenile in conflict with law should not be kept in a police lock-up or jail.

26. The Act of 2000 was again amended in 2011 to address gaps in its implementation and make the law more child friendly.

27. As the ill-luck it may be, this country came across two important events, firstly being the brutal gang-rape and secondly the death of a girl (Nirbhaya) in Delhi on 16th December, 2012, which enacted the legislature in a forceful debate, warranting that the legislations, which were in the statute book are ill-equipped and ends over all modifications to tackle the children, who are in the age-group of 16-18.

28. After a long debate, the Juvenile Justice Will was introduced in Lok Sabha on 8.8.2014 and it was passed by the Lok Sabha on 7.5.2015 and Rajya Sabha on 22nd December, 2015 and then the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection) Act, 2015 (2 of 2016) (hereinafter referred to as the JJ Act, 2015) was given a decent birth and the same came into force with effect from 15.1.2016, after being published in Gazette of India.

29. In order to appreciate the controversy in the best possible manner in the backdrop of the aims and the objects governing the enactment of the said piece of legislation, the Statements of the objects and reasons behind the enactment are to be given a closure look:

"Statement of Objects and Reasons.- Article 15 of the Constitution, inter alia, confers upon the State powers to make special provision for children. Articles 39(e) and (f), 45 and 47 further makes the State responsible for ensuring that all needs of children are met and their basic human rights are protected.

2. The United Nations Convention on the Rights of Children, ratified by India on 11th December, 1992, requires the State Parties to undertake all appropriate measures in case of a child alleged as, or accused of, violating any penal law, including (a) treatment of the child in a manner consistent with the promotion of the child's sense of dignity and worth (b) reinforcing the child's respect for the human rights and fundamental freedoms of others (c) taking into account the child's age and the desirability of promoting the child's reintegration and the child's assuming a constructive role in society.

3. The Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act was enacted in 2000 to provide for the protection of children. The Act was amended twice in 2006 and 2011 to address gaps in its implementation and make the law more child-friendly. During the course of the implementation of the Act, several issues arose such as increasing incidents of abuse of children in institutions, inadequate facilities, quality of care and rehabilitation measures in Homes, high pendency of cases, delays in adoption due to faulty and incomplete processing, lack of clarity regarding roles, responsibilities and accountability of institutions and, inadequate provisions to counter offences against children such as corporal punishment, sale of children for adoption purposes, etc. have highlighted the need to review the existing law.

4. Further, increasing cases of crimes committed by children in the age group of 16-18 years in recent years makes it evident that the current provisions and system under the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2000, are ill equipped to tackle child offenders in this age group. The data collected by the National Crime Records Bureau establishes that crimes by children in the age group of 16-18 years have increased especially in certain categories of heinous offences.

5. Numerous changes are required in the existing Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2000 to address the above mentioned issues and therefore, it is proposed to repeal existing Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2000 and re- enact a comprehensive legislation inter alia to provide for general principles of care and protection of children, procedures in case of children in need of care and protection and children in conflict with law, rehabilitation and social re-integration measures for such children, adoption of orphan, abandoned and surrendered children, and offences committed against children. This legislation would thus ensure proper care, protection, development, treatment and social re-integration of children in difficult circumstance by adopting a child-friendly approach keeping in view the best interest of the child in mind.

6. The notes on clauses explain in detail the various provisions contained in the Bill.

7. This Bill seeks to achieve the above objectives."

30. It would be further useful to also quote the Preamble, which for the ready reference is quoted hereinunder:-

"An Act to consolidate and amend the law relating to children alleged and found to be in conflict with law and children in need of care and protection by catering to their basic needs through proper care, protection, development, treatment, social re-integration, by adopting a child-friendly approach in the adjudication and disposal of matters in the best interest of children and for their rehabilitation through processes provided, and institutions and bodies established, hereinunder and for matters connected therewith or incidental thereto.

WHEREAS, the provisions of the Constitution confer powers and impose duties, under clause (3) of article 15, clauses (e) and (f) of article 39, article 45 and article 47, on the State to ensure that all the needs of children are met and that their basic human rights are fully protected;

AND WHEREAS, the Government of India has acceded on the 11th December, 1992 to the Convention on the Rights of the Child, adopted by the General Assembly of United Nations, which has prescribed a set of standards to be adhered to by all State parties in securing the best interest of the child;

AND WHEREAS, it is expedient to re-enact the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2000 to make comprehensive provisions for children alleged and found to be in conflict with law and children in need of care and protection, taking into consideration the standards prescribed in the Convention on the Rights of the Child, the United Nations Standard Minimum Rules for the Administration of Juvenile Justice, 1985 (the Beijing Rules), the United Nations Rules for the Protection of Juveniles Deprived of their Liberty (1990), the Hague Convention on Protection of Children and Co-operation in Respect of Inter-country Adoption (1993), and other related international instruments."

31. A plain reading of the Preamble as well as the main object behind the enactment of Juvenile Justice Act, 2015 also gets its identity from the Articles of the Constitution of India 1950, the same are as under: -

"Article 15(3): Nothing in this article shall prevent the State from making any special provision for women and children"

"Article 39 (e) that the health and strength of workers, men and women, and the tender age of children are not abused and that citizens are not forced by economic necessity to enter avocations unsuited to their age or strength;

(f) that children are given opportunities and facilities to develop in a healthy manner and in conditions of freedom and dignity and that childhood and youth are protected against exploitation and against moral and material abandonment"*

"Article 45. Provision for free and compulsory education for children The State shall endeavour to provide, within a period of ten years from the commencement of this Constitution, for free and compulsory education for all children until they complete the age of fourteen years."

"Article 47. Duty of the State to raise the level of nutrition and the standard of living and to improve public health The State shall regard the raising of the level of nutrition and the standard of living of its people and the improvement of public health as among its primary duties and, in particular, the State shall endeavour to bring about prohibition of the consumption except for medicinal purposes of intoxicating drinks and of drugs which are injurious to health."

32. Thus it can be safely said that the Juvenile Justice Act, 2015 has been enacted to fulfil the objects of the Constitution in Clause (3) of the Article 15, Clauses (e) and (f) of Article 39, Articles 45 and 47, which confers powers and imposes duty upon the State to ensure that all needs of the children are met and their human rights are protected. The relevant provisions of Juvenile Justice Act, 2015, which are germane to the controversy in question needs to be extracted hereinbelow:

"Section 2 (12): "child" means a person who has not completed eighteen years of age;

2(13): "child in conflict with law" means a child who is alleged or found to have committed an offence and who has not completed eighteen years of age on the date of commission of such offence;*

section 17;

(xv) co-ordinate with the police, labour department and other agencies involved in the care and protection of children with support of the District Child Protection Unit or the State Government;

(xvi) in case of a complaint of abuse of a child in any child care institution, the Committee shall conduct an inquiry and give directions to the police or the District Child Protection Unit or labour departmentv or childline services, as the case may be;

(xvii) accessing appropriate legal services for children;

(xviii) such other functions and responsibilities, as may be prescribed."

33. In exercise of the powers conferred by the provision to Sub-section (1) of Section 110 of the Juvenile Justice Act, 2015, the Central Government also framed Rules by the name and the nomenclature of the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Models Rules 2016, which were gazzetted on 21.9.2016 in order to achieve the objects as enshrined in the Juvenile Justice Act, 2015.

34. The moot question, which falls for consideration before this Court in the present revision purported to be under Section 102 of the JJ Act, 2015 is with regard to the fact as to whether the orders passed by both the courts below are within the four-corners of Section 12 of the JJ Act, 2015, while rejecting the bail/ release application of the revisionist.

35. A proviso has also appended to the sub-section (1) of Section 12 of the Juvenile Justice Act, 2015 that a juvenile shall not be released, if there appears to be reasonable ground for believing that the release is likely to bring that child in association with any known criminal or expose the said person to mental, physical or psychological danger or the release would defeat the ends of justice, and thus, the Board shall record (reasons) "for denying the bail", and "circumstances that led to such a decision".

36. A perusal of Section 12(1) of the Juvenile Justice Act, 2015 postulates rule of bail for every child in conflict with law, whether the offence is to be bailable or non-bailable, notwithstanding anything contained in the Code of Criminal Procedure and carves out three distinct exceptions, under which the bail is to be refused to the juvenile, i.e, (a) where there are reasonable grounds for believing that the release is likely to bring the child into association with any known criminal; (b) the release is likely to expose the child to mental, physical or psychological danger; and (c) the release of child would defeat the ends of justice.

37. The words "reasons' and "circumstances' have been deliberately employed in the proviso to Section 12 of the JJ Act, 2015, so as to eliminate the chances of passing of any order in routine manner without application of mind.

38. The Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Om Prakash vs. State of Rajasthan reported in 2012(5) SCC201 in paragraph-3 has held as under:-

"Juvenile Justice Act was enacted with a laudable object of providing a separate forum or a special court for holding trial of children/juvenile by the juvenile court as it was felt that children become delinquent by force of circumstance and not by choice and hence they need to be treated with care and sensitivity while dealing and trying cases involving criminal offence. But when an accused is alleged to have committed a heinous offence like rape and murder or any other grave offence when he ceased to be a child on attaining the age of 18 years, but seeks protection of the Juvenile Justice Act under the ostensible plea of being a minor, should such an accused be allowed to be tried by a juvenile court or should he be referred to a competent court of criminal jurisdiction where the trial of other adult persons are held?"

39. However, the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Om Prakash (supra) has further gone to the extent that the courts must be cautious while passing orders with relation to a juvenile and also takes into account of the factors and the circumstances so prevalent therein.

40. Coming to the facts of the present case, it has come to the record that on the unlucky day, i.e, 28.12.2019, the juvenile along with the minor Neeraj Kannaujiya being the daughter of Ram Laut Kannaujiya was found wandering in the suspicious condition and when they were intercepted, then the victim Neeraj Kannaujiya as well as juvenile apprised the police personnel that they were not willing to go to their respective houses, as they wanted to live together. An FIR was also lodged by the complainant on 16.1.2020, which culminated into registration of a Case Crime no.0009 of 2020, wherein it was alleged that UPT report of victim was found to be positive, meaning thereby that she was pregnant and when the Statement was recorded under Section 161 CrPC on 17.1.2020, then it revealed that she is in love with revisionist for past three months and she according to her sweet will is willing to marry the revisionist.

41. Learned counsel for the revisionist has sought to argue that the orders passed by both the courts below are without any application of mind, as the orders rejecting the bail / release application of the revisionist has been passed without any basis or material available on record.

42. In order to buttress the said submission, learned counsel for the revisionist has drawn the attention of this Court towards the report of District Probation Officer dated 6.8.2020, so as to contend that the said report itself is contradictory and further there is nothing adverse found against the juvenile revisionist, particularly in view of the fact that the observations so given in the report are too general in nature and not being specific and further contradictory also.

43. Countering the said submission, learned A.G.A, who appears for the State has argued that the orders under challenge do not suffer from any illegality, as they have been passed within the four-corners of Section 12 of the J.J. Act, 2015.

44. The relevant observations made in report dated 6.8.2020 of the District Probation Officer is as under: -

45. Thus the District Probation Officer has given a negative report against the juvenile, which became a ground for non-release of juvenile, while observing that there is no control of the parents over the juvenile and he is in the influence of the persons, who belong to same age though there is no criminal antecedents and according to the neighbours, the juvenile is plain and simple. However, juvenile committed the said crime on account of the lack of control of his emotions and hence there is a likelihood that the juvenile may after release come in association with any known criminal and further in case, he is released, he is likely to be exposed to moral, physical or psychological danger and thus in the absence of any control of the parents over the juvenile, there are chances that the very object of releasing the juvenile on bail would be defeated.

46. This Hon'ble Court in the case of Sanjay Chaurasiya vs. State of U.P, 2006 CrLJ 2957 had the occasion to consider the general observations so sought to be made by the District Probation Officer, which became a ground for rejection of bail / release application. In paragraph-10, this Court has observed as under: -

"In case of the refusal of the bail, some reasonable grounds for believing abovementioned exceptions must be brought before the court concerned by the prosecution but in the present case, no such ground for believing any of the abovementioned exceptions has been brought by the prosecution before the Juvenile Justice Board and appellate court. The appellate court dismissed the appeal only on the presumption that due to commission of this offence, the father and other relatives of other kidnapped boy had developed enmity with the revisionist, that is why in case of his release, the physical and mental life of the revisionist will be in danger and his release will defeat the ends of justice but substantial to this presumption no material has been brought before the appellate court and the same has not been discussed and only on the basis of the presumption, Juvenile Justice Board has refused the bail of the revisionist which is in the present case is unjustified and against the spirit of the Act. It appears that the impugned order dated 27-6-2005 passed by the learned Sessions Judge, Meerut and order dated 28-5-2005 passed by the Juvenile Justice Board are illegal and are hereby set aside."

47. As already noticed earlier, deliberately the word "reasonable ground" "record the reasons" and "circumstances" has been employed in the proviso appended to sub-section (1) of Section 12 of the Juvenile Justice Act, 2015, in order to eliminate the chances that without assigning any appropriate reasons, the bail/ release application should not be rejected. Nonetheless, the report so submitted by the District Probation Officer cannot be accepted in routine manner on the ground that it has merely been filed, however, independent application of mind has to be made so as to find out that is there was any valid reason for rejecting the bail/ the release application, particularly in view of the fact that once the report of the District Probation Officer itself is general in nature. In nutshell, once jurisdiction is conferred upon the courts of law to pass an order either rejecting or allowing the bail/ release application, then it envisages a pre-condition that before passing any orders on the bail / release application, there has to be an independent application of mind that should be reduced in writing by way of an order.

48. The report of the District Probation Officer cannot be read in isolation rather to the contrary, the same is to be read in totality. The final conclusion so drawn by the District Probation Officer in its report dated 6.8.2010 cannot be held to be a gospel truth, as the reasons in coming to the conclusion have to be seen as it is not a case, wherein a criminal trial is being sought to be proceeded with, as the same is only for a limited purpose in order to see the over all conduct and the future of the delinquent, if in case, he is allowed to go set free on the strength of bail/ release.

49. I find that the report of the District Probation Officer is a general report being filed as an empty formality just in order to submit a report for the sake that it has to be submitted. The observations as well as the inputs, which became the basis for not recommending for grant of release/ bail, which too general and it cannot be a ground to negate the claim of the juvenile.

50. There is another aspect of the matter, which is to be dealt with with regard to the fact that under Section 12 of the Juvenile Justice Act, 2015, the gravity of offences are not to be seen, as in the matter of normal bails, either being anticipatory or regular bails, which are to be granted under the provisions of Criminal Procedure Code, the gravity of offences and charges have to be seen.

51. However, in the bail / discharge application under Juvenile Justice Act, 2015, there is complete departure of the same as the ingredients as mentioned under Section 12 of the Juvenile Justice Act, 2015 are to be adhered to in this regard.

52. The Hon'ble Rajesthan High Court in the case of Prakash vs. State of Rajesthan 2006 CrLJ 1373 in paragraphs-9 and 10 has observed as under: -

"9. At the time of consideration of bail under Section 12 of the Act, the merit or nature of offence has no relevancy. The language of Section 12 of the Act, using the word "shall" is mandatory in nature and providing non-obstante clause by using the expression "notwithstanding anything contained in the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (2 of 1974) or any other law for the time-being in force be released on bail" shows the intention of the Legislature to grant bail to the delinquent juvenile offender by releasing him on bail who is arrested or produced before a Court, however, with exception to release him on bail if there are reasonable grounds for believing that his release him on bail if there are reasonable grounds for believing that his release is likely to bring him into association with any known criminal or expose him to moral, physical or psychological danger or that his release would defeat the ends of justice. It is for the prosecution to bring on record such material while opposing the bail and to make out any of the grounds provided in this section which may persuade the Court not to-release the juvenile on bail.

10. The Act is beneficial and social-oriented legislation which needs to be given full effect by all concerned whenever the case of juvenile comes before them. In absence of any material or evidence of reasonable grounds to believe that the delinquent juvenile, if release on bail, is likely to come into association with any known criminal or expose him to moral, physical or psychological danger, it cannot be said that his release would defeat the ends of justice. On the contrary, keeping in view the legislative intent in enacting the Act, the juvenile offender deserves to be released on bail."

53 . In the case of Shiv Kumar @ Sadhu Vs. State of U.P, 2010 (1) ACC 616, this Court in paragraphs-6 and 7 has observed as under: -

"6. Gravity of the offence has not been mentioned as a ground for rejection of bail in Section 12 of the Act.

The learned Appellate Court dismissed the appeal on the ground that the nature of offences are grave and if the revisionist Shiv Kumar is released on bail, he may tamper with the prosecution evidence by intimidating or terrorizing the witnesses.

7. From perusal of the lower court record, it transpires that there was nothing to show any material or any substance for believing that the release of the revisionist is likely to bring him into association with any known criminal or expose him to moral, physical or psychological change or that his release would defeat the ends of justice as provided by Section 12 of the Act. The learned courts below passed the impugned orders are not in consonance with the provision of Section 12 of the Act.

Considering the peculiar facts and circumstances of the case and in view of the above discussions, the revision is allowed and the impugned order dated 24.7.2009 passed by the Special Judge, SC/ST Act, Faizabad as well as impugned order dated 25.6.2009 passed by Juvenile Justice Board, Faizabad are set aside."

54. Further in the case of Rahul Patel Vs. State of U.P. reported in 2018 (1)JIC357, this

Hon'ble Court in paragraph-8 has observed as under: -

"The Apex Court in a catena of judgements has constantly held that gravity of the offence is not a ground to deny bail to a juvenile accused. Unless the conduct of the accused is such to indicate that in all likelihood, after being released on bail, the juvenile-accused will indulge into more crimes. If there are no imminent chances of his repeating the crime, bail to a juvenile should not be ordinarily refused. "

55. This Court in the case of Mangesh Rajbhar Vs. State of U.P., 2018(6) ADJ in paragraphs- 23, 27, 28, 29, 30 and 31 has held as under: -

"23. No doubt, generally speaking bail is the rule in the case of a juvenile, even after the enforcement of the present Act, in cases of juveniles below the age of 16 years, and, burden is on the prosecution to show that on the parameters specified in the proviso to Section 12 (1) of the Act bail should be denied to a juvenile. In this connection reference be made to an order passed by this Court in the case of Raja (minor) v. State of U.P. in Criminal Appeal No. 1113 of 2017 decided on 4.5.2017. In this case, the Court has endorsed the view that burden is on the prosecution to bring the case within one of the exceptions under the proviso to Section 12(1) relying on an authority of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Jitendra Singh vs. State of U.P.3 which makes a clear statement of the law on a reading of paragraph 5 of the judgment in Raja (minor) (supra).

"39. The provision dealing with bail (Section 12 of the Act) places the burden for denying bail on the prosecution. Ordinarily, a juvenile in conflict with law shall be released on bail, but he may not be so released if the reappear reasonable grounds for believing that the release is likely to bring him into association with any known criminal or expose him to moral, physical or psychological danger or that his release would defeat the ends of justice."

26. ...

27. It seems thus that the suggestion of the learned counsel for the revisionist that bail to a juvenile or more properly called a child in conflict with law can be denied under the last ground of the proviso to Section 12 ejusdem generis with the first two and not with reference to the gravity of the offence, does not appear to be tenable. The gravity of the offence is certainly relevant though not decisive. It is this relevance amongst other factors where gravity of the offence committed works and serves as a guide to grant or refuse bail in conjunction with other relevant factors to refuse bail on the last ground mentioned in the proviso to Section 12 (1) of the Act, that is to say, on ground that release would "defeat the ends of justice".

28. Under the Act, as it now stands there is further guidance much more than what was available under the Act, 2000 carried in the provisions of Section 15 and 18 above extracted and the definition of certain terms used in those sections. A reading of Section 18 of the Act shows that the case of a child below the age of 16 years, who has committed a heinous crime as defined in the Act is made a class apart from cases of petty offence or the serious offence committed by a child in conflict with the law/juvenile of any age, and, it is further provided that various orders that may be made by the Board as spelt out under clause (g) of Section 15 depending on nature of the offences, specifically the need for supervision or intervention based on circumstances as brought out in the social investigation report and past conduct of the child. Though orders under Section 18 are concerned with final orders to be made while dealing with the case of a juvenile, the same certainly can serve as a guide to the exercise of power to grant bail to a juvenile under Section 12(1) of the Act which is to be exercised by the Board in the first instance.

29. Read in the context of the fine classification of juveniles based on age vis-a-vis the nature of the offence committed by them and reference to a specifically needed supervision or intervention, the circumstances brought out in the social investigation report and past conduct of the child which the Board may take into consideration, while passing final orders under Section 18 of the Act it is, in the opinion of this court, a good guide for the Board while exercising powers to grant bail to go by the same principles though embodied in Section 18 of the Act, when dealing with a case under the last part of the proviso to Section 12 (1) that authorizes the Board to deny bail on ground that release of the juvenile would "defeat the ends of justice."

30. Thus, it is no ultimate rule that a juvenile below the age of 16 years has to be granted bail and can be denied the privilege only on the first two of the grounds mentioned in the proviso, that is to say, likelihood of the juvenile on release being likely to be brought in association with any known criminal or in consequence of being released exposure of the juvenile to moral, physical or psychological danger. It can be equally refused on the ground that releasing a juvenile, that includes a juvenile below 16 years would "defeat the ends of justice." In the opinion of this Court the words "defeat the ends of justice" employed in the proviso to Section 12 of the Act postulate as one of the relevant consideration, the nature and gravity of the offence though not the only consideration in applying the aforesaid part of the disentitling legislative edict. Other factors such as the specific need for supervision or intervention, circumstances as brought out in the social investigation report and past conduct of the child would also be relevant that are spoken of under Section 18 of the Act.

31. In this context Section 12 and 18 and also Section15 (Section 15 not relevant in the case of a child below 16 years) and other relevant provisions all of which find place in Chapter IV of the Act are part of an integrated scheme. The power to grant bail to a juvenile under Section 12(1) cannot be exercised divorced from the other provisions or as the learned counsel for the revisionist argues on the other specific disentitling provisions in the grounds mentioned in the proviso to Section 12(1) of the Act. The submission made based on the rule of ejusdem generis urged by the learned counsel for the revisionist is misplaced, in the opinion of this Court."

56. Further in the case of Sumit Kumar vs. State of U.P. in Criminal Revision No. 915 of 2017 decided on 13.4.2018, this Court after following the judgment of Mangesh Rajbhar in paragraph-16 has held as under: -

"16. Seen in the context of the above legal position, the case of the revisionist though falls in the category of a heinous offence and is certainly one which endangers the safety and security of children in society, but at the same time it is a case where the child in conflict with law stands charged with an offence where nothing has been proved so far. The prima facie complicity of the revisionist in the crime has not at all been looked into as a factor to assess whether releasing him on bail would defeat the ends of justice. From what appears on record it is a case of circumstantial evidence, where the only evidence is that of last seen. Before the courts below or before this Court no further circumstance to connect the revisionist to the crime has been brought on record, like recovery of anything related to the victim. The social investigation report on the other hand does not show that the past conduct of the child is in any manner such where he has been involved in any crime or that he requires supervision in a Child Protection Home away from his family. It is further to be considered that the child has already suffered incarceration of about one and a half years in whatever kind of custody, and, the maximum period for which he could be confined is three years. He has done half of the said period that he would have undergone even if found guilty."

57. In the case of Deepesh Bhati Vs. State of U.P. in Criminal Revision no. 177 of 2018, decided on 16.8.2018 in paragraphs-14, 15 and 16, this Court observed as under: -

"14. A reading of the Social Investigation Report, which is the most wholesome input, apart from the evidence relating to the crime of which the revisionist stands charged, does not at all suggest that there is any kind of likelihood of exposure of the child to any moral, physical or psychological danger, in the event of release. It also does not suggest that in the event of release there is likelihood of the revisionist coming into contact with any known criminal. There is no input from the police also to that effect. Now, so far as the last and the most important premise of the disentitling grounds on which bail may be refused to a juvenile is concerned, that is to say, the contingency that release of the juvenile would lead to "ends of justice being defeated", this Court finds that so far as the offence is concerned no doubt it is heinous. It involves rape of a 10 years old girl who is a neighbour. Not much can be said about the veracity of the allegation at this stage that still awaits a test at the trial before the Juvenile Justice Board. But not much has been said either about a reason for a false implication, at least in these proceedings.

15. This disentitling ground is to be assessed, not just by the heinous nature of the offence charged but also taking into account other factors, that include the specific need for supervision or intervention, circumstances as brought out in the Social Investigation Report and the past conduct of the child, all of which are relevant under Section 18 of the Act, as held in Mangesh Rajbhar (supra). In the present case, this Court finds that prima facie, and, not by way of a finding as already said, the charge is heinous, the manner in which it has been committed also shows maturity of mind and an understanding of the consequences of the action. At the same time there is absolutely nothing in the Social Investigation Report which may suggest that there is specific need for supervision and intervention, or anything in the circumstances, so to speak, that may necessitate institutional incarceration.

16. It is also of relevance that the child does not have anything in his past conduct to show that granting freedom to him would be a bad decision for the society. Rather, the circumstances of the revisionist's family show that for him restoration of his liberty and the company of his family might remove those early aberrations in his psyche which in institutional incarceration, in the solitude of an atmosphere where he finds himself a stranger, might become magnified. Then there is also this fact, so far as the decision to release the revisionist on bail is concerned, that the maximum period of detention authorized by law, even if the revisionist were held guilty, is three years of institutional incarceration, of which he has done 16 months, that is to say, a little less than half of the said period. Thus, considering the overall facts and circumstances, this Court finds that in the entirety of the circumstances of the case, which includes the offence charged and various other factors relevant under the law, the orders impugned denying bail to the revisionist deserve to be set aside and reversed."

58. Recently, this Court reiterated the law as laid down in the aforesaid decisions and has delivered the judgment dated 22.10.2020 in Criminal Revision No. 1328 of 2020, Sahil Vs. State of U.P., wherein this Court observed as under: - under the age of 18 years, is a matter of course and it is only in the event that his case falls under one or the other disentitling categories mentioned in the proviso to sub-Section (1) of Section 12 of the Act that bail may be refused. The merits of the case against a juvenile acquire some relevance under the last clause of the proviso to sub-section (1) of Section 12 that speaks about the ends of justice being defeated. The other two disentitling categories are quite independent and have to be evaluated with reference to the circumstances of the juvenile. Those circumstances are to be gathered from the Social Investigation Report, the police report and in whatever other manner relevant facts enter the record.

What is of prime importance in this case is that the juvenile, who is a young boy, has no criminal history. There is nothing said against the juvenile, appearing from the Social Investigation Report that may show him to be a desperado or misfit in the society. The two courts below have held the juvenile disentitled to bail on account of his case falling under each of the three exceptions enumerated in the proviso to sub section (1) of Section 12, for which no reason has been indicated. That finding, in both the orders impugned, is based on an ipse dixit, in one case of the judge and in the other of the Board. Even if it be assumed that the offence was committed in the manner alleged, it would be rather strained logic to hold that release of the juvenile on bail would lead to the ends of justice being defeated. Both the courts below have also overlooked the statement of the victim recorded under Section 161 and 164 CrPC and further the courts below have also not considered the radiological age of the victim as per the medical report.

This Court in the case of Shiv Kumar alias Sadhu Vs. State of U.P. 2010 (68) ACC 616(LB) was pleased to observe that the gravity of the offence is not relevant consideration for refusing grant of bail to the juvenile.

After perusing the record in the light of the submissions made at the bar and after taking an overall view of all the facts and circumstances of this case, the nature of evidence, the period of detention already undergone, the unlikelihood of early conclusion of trial and also in the absence of any convincing material to indicate the possibility of tampering with the evidence and in view of the larger mandate of the Article 21 of the Constitution of India and the dictum of Apex Court in the case of Dataram Singh vs. State of UP and another, (2018) 3 SCC 22 and the view taken by the Apex Court in the cases of Kamal Vs. State of Haryana (supra), Takht Singh Vs. State of Madhya Pradesh (supra) and Shiv Kumar alias Sadhu Vs. State of U.P. (supra)., this Court is of the view that the present criminal revision may be allowed and the revisionist may be released on bail.

In the result, this revision succeeds and is allowed. The impugned judgment and order dated 09.06.2020 passed by Additional Session Judge/ Special Judge, POCSO Act, Azamgarh dismissing the Criminal Appeal No.14 of 2020, filed under Section 101 of the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2015 (for short "the Act') and affirming an order of Juvenile Justice Board, Azamgarh dated 18.12.2019 refusing the bail plea to the revisionist in Case Crime No. 43 of 2019, under Sections 376-D, 504, 506, 120-B I.P.C. and Section 3/4 of P.O.C.S.O. Act and Section 3(2)(5) of SC/ST Act, Police Station Bilariyaganj, District Azamgarh, are hereby set aside and reversed.The bail application of the revisionist stands allowed."

59. In view of the proposition of law laid down consistently by the Hon'ble Apex Court, this Court as well as other Courts an inescapable conclusion is drawn that while deciding a bail or release application of a juvenile, the gravity of offence/ charge are not to be seen, however what is to be noticed is that in case the juvenile is released, then he may not get associated with the hardened criminal or the juvenile is likely to be exposed to moral, physical or psychological danger or the very purpose of releasing him gets defeated.

60. This Court while exercising the powers under Section 102 of Juvenile Justice Act, 2015 cannot embark any inquiry upon the gravity of the allegations or the charges/ offences and even cannot not make any comment with regard to what transpired on 28.12.2019. Court is only concerned with the fact that whether both the courts below while passing the order under challenge have taken into account, the ingredients for grant of bail or rejecting the bail/ release as envisaged under Section 12 of the Juvenile Justice Act, 2015. This Court finds that the observation so made by the District Probation Officer is too far to be a ground to reject the bail/ release application. The report submitted by the District Probation Officer is to be considered in the light of the Statutory Provision under Section 12 of the Juvenile justice Act, 2015, so as to block the chances of the revisionist juvenile to be released on bail on the ground that there are sufficient material available on record to show that the release is likely to bring the juvenile in association with any known criminal or expose the said person to moral, physical or psychological danger and release would defeat the ends of justice.

61. Even otherwise, the basic object of engrafting of the provisions under Juvenile Justice Act, 2015 are reformative and in case, a punitive theory is sought to be adopted, that too in absence of any negative material available on record, then the very object of Section 12 of J.J. Act, 2015 would become redundant.

62. Broadly speaking, the orders under challenge are the orders, which are totally silent with regard to the fact that as to how and under what circumstances, the release/ bail of the juvenile will defeat the purpose of Section 12 of the Juvenile Justice Act, 2015.

63. Needless to point out that the juvenile is in the observation home since 22.7.2020. Additionally, there is nothing on record to show that there is any criminal antecedents either of the juvenile or his family and rather admittedly, from the perusal of the report of the District Probation Officer itself shows that there is nothing adverse, but presumptions have been drawn that in case, he is released, then the same would defeat the ends of justice.

64. At this juncture, it would be appropriate to refer to the judgment of the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Data Ram Singh vs. State of U.P. and another, 2018(3) SCC 22, wherein the Hon'ble Apex Court in paragraph-1 has held as under: -

"A fundamental postulate of criminal jurisprudence is the presumption of innocence, meaning thereby that a person is believed to be innocent until found guilty. However, there are instances in our criminal law where a reverse onus has been placed on an accused with regard to some specific offences but that is another matter and does not detract from the fundamental postulate in respect of other offences. Yet another important facet of our criminal jurisprudence is that the grant of bail is the general rule and putting a person in jail or in a prison or in a correction home (whichever expression one may wish to use) is an exception. Unfortunately, some of these basic principles appear to have been lost sight of with the result that more and more persons are being incarcerated and for longer periods. This does not do any good to our criminal jurisprudence or to our society."

65. Resultantly, this revision succeeds and is allowed. The impugned judgment and order dated 26.8.2020 passed by the Principal Judge, Juvenile Justice Board, Gorakhpur in Case Crime no. 09 of 2020 (State Vs. Vishal Kannaujiya), under Section 376 IPC read with Section 5/6 of the POCSO Act, as well as order dated 27.11.2020 passed by the Addl. Sessions Judge / Sepcial Judge (POCSO Act), Court No.1, Gorakhpur in Criminal Appeal No. 62 of 2020, Vishal Kannaujiya Vs. State of U.P. and others refusing the bail to the revisionist are hereby set aside and reversed. The bail application of the revisionist stands allowed.

66. Let the revisionist, Vishal Kannaujiya through his natural guardian/ father Rajesh Kannaujiya be released on bail in Case Crime No. 9 of 2020, under Sections 376 read with Section 5/6 of P.O.C.S.O. Act, Police Station Khajani, District Gorakhpur upon his father furnishing a personal bond with two solvent sureties of his relatives, each in the like amount to the satisfaction of the Juvenile Justice Board, Ballia subject to the following conditions:

(i) That the natural guardian/ father Rajesh Kannaujiya will furnish an undertaking that upon release on bail the juvenile will not be permitted to go into contact or association with any known criminal or allowed to be exposed to any moral, physical or psychological danger and further that the father will ensure that the juvenile will not repeat the offence.

(ii) That the father will further furnish an undertaking to the effect that the juvenile will pursue his study at the appropriate level, which he would be encouraged to do besides other constructive activities and not allowed to waste his time in unproductive and excessive recreational pursuits.

(iii) The revisionist and his father Rajesh Kannaujiya will report to the District Probation Officer on the first Monday of every calendar month commencing with the first Monday of January, 2021 and if during any calendar month the first Monday falls on a holiday, then on the following working day.

(iii) The District Probation Officer will keep strict vigil on the activities of the revisionist and regularly draw up his social investigation report that would be submitted to the Juvenile Justice Board, Gorakhpur on such periodical basis as the Juvenile Justice Board may determine.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Sangeeta Chandra, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the revisionist and learned A.G.A. for the State.

2. This Revision has been filed by the revisionist under Section 401 Cr.P.C. against the order dated 05.12.2020 passed by the learned Chief Judicial Magistrate Bahraich in Case Crime no.715 of 2020 under Sections 363 and 366 I.P.C., Police Station Nanpara, District Bahraich.

3. It has been submitted by learned counsel for the revisionist that the revisionist's daughter was kidnapped by the opposite party no.2 on 16.11.2020 when she was aged about 14 years. The revisionist lodged an F.I.R. on 16.11.2020. During investigation, the Investigating Officer produced the minor daughter of the revisionist before the Chief Judicial Magistrate Bahraich. The Revisionist gave an application before the Chief Judicial Magistrate Bahraich for custody of daughter because he was the lawful guardian of her daughter. The date of birth of the daughter was 08.03.2006 as per record of the School. Learned Chief Judicial Magistrate in determining the age of the daughter of the revisionist summoned the Head Master of Primary School who in his statement before the learned trial court corroborated that as per the school record, the date of birth of the daughter/ victim was 08.03.2006. Despite such statement made by the Head Master and availability of the certificate issued from the School, the Chief Judicial Magistrate Bahraich passed the order dated 05.12.2020. Such order is against the correct position on law as in the new Juvenile Justice Act, 2015, Section 94 clearly provides the parameters to determine the age of a child in need of care and protection.

4. It has been argued that learned trial court has cited judgements for coming to the conclusion that the daughter of the revisionist was major which are not applicable as such judgements were rendered before the Juvenile Justice Act, 2015. Under the new Act, the Date of Birth certificate from the School or the Matriculation or equivalent certificate from the concerned Examination Board and in absence thereof, the birth certificate issued by Municipal Authorities would be the determining factor and in absence of such certificate being available, the age has to be determined by ossification test or any other advanced medical test.

5. Learned counsel for the revisionist has also placed reliance upon a Division Bench judgement rendered by this Court in Habeas Corpus Writ Petition No.390 of 2021: Vandana @ Bandana Saini and Another Vs. State of U.P. and five others, decided on 30.06.2021, wherein the petitioner no.1 through her alleged husband petitioner no.2, had filed the Habeas Corpus petition saying that she had been wrongly sent to the custody of Superintendent of Government Women's Asylum Khuldabad, District Prayagraj by an order dated 25.12.2020 passed by the Judge, Child Welfare Committee, Fatehpur. The medical report had stated the age of the detenue to be as 19 years and thus it was claimed that she was major and that she had married the petitioner no.2 in a Temple in Gujarat and was living with him before she was sent to the Government Women's Asylum against her wishes. It was alleged that School Leaving Certificate had wrongly showed her Date of Birth as 02.04.2004. The court had come to the conclusion that the School Leaving Certificate of the detenue showed her Date of Birth as 02.04.2004 and under Section 94 (2) of the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2015 as amended, the first preference has to be given to an educational certificate in such matters. Juvenile has been defined as Section 2(5) of the Act as meaning a child below 18 years. Under Section 37 of the Act, the Child Welfare Committee on being satisfied through enquiry that child before the Committee is a child in need of care and protection, may, on consideration of Social Investigation Report submitted by Child Welfare Officer and taking into account the child's wishes in case the child is sufficiently mature, pass orders as provided in clauses (a) to (h) of Sub-Section (1) of Section 37 of the Juvenile Justice Act. The Court considered several judgements of the Supreme Court viz. Jarnail Singh Vs. State of Haryana; 2013 (7) SCC 263, Mahadeo Vs. State of Maharashtra; 2013 (14) SCC 637, and State of Madhya Pradesh Vs. Anoop Singh; 2015 (7) SCC 773, as also the judgment rendered by Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Independent Thought Vs. Union of India; 2017 (10) SCC 800, to observe that once the detenue has been found to be a child as definded under Section 2(12) of the Juvenile Justice Act, as per the Date of Birth in Educational Certificate which is 02.04.2004, she would fall in the category of child in need of care and protection, and hence the order passed by the Child Welfare Committee placing a minor child in the Government Women's Asylum, Khuldabad, Prayagraj, cannot said to be illegal. The prayer for issuance of Habeas Corpus was rejected.

6. This Court has considered the submissions made by learned counsel for the revisionist and gone through the order dated 03.12.2020 where learned Chief Judicial Magistrate after referring to the Educational Certificate showing her date of birth as 08.03.2006, referring to the opinion of the Chief Medical Officer Bahraich that she was around 19 years of age and to the victim's statement herself saying that she was of 20 years of age; had directed the Principal of the Primary School in which the victim had studied to appear and give his evidence. After such evidence was given, the matter was placed before the learned C.J.M. again on 05.12.2020 where he referred to the application moved by the father i.e. the Revisionist herein praying for release of the girl child to him as she was a minor. Learned Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate referred to the statements having been taken of the victim under Section 161 and 164 Cr.P.C. as well as medical examination having been done on an application being made by one Kailash has said in the order impugned that on her own statement as well as on the medical certificate and on the basis of Adhar Card of the victim, she was major and she should be left on her own to decide for herself as to where she wanted to live. Learned Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate referred to the F.I.R. and also the statement made by the victim that she was living with the accused out of her own sweet will. Referring to the judgments rendered by Supreme Court in Civil Appeal no. 4532 of 2018: Subhani and others Vs. State of U.P. and others, S.L. P. No.8881 of 2018: Jitendra Arora and others Vs. Sukriti Arora and others, 2 JIC 193 (SC) and orders passed by Supreme Court again in Criminal Appeal No.1395 of 2005: Rajjak Ahmad Vs. State of Himachal Pradesh; decided on 23.08.2018, without mentioning the facts of such judgements and how they were applicable, the learned Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate observed that the victim was present in Court and looking to her physical and mental health she prima facie appearred to be major as also from her statement under Section 161 and 164 Cr.P.C. She had given very mature views regarding her liking for the accused and looking to her medico legal certificates and Aadhar card showing her Date of Birth, the court was of the opinion that on the date of passing of the order, the victim was prima facie major. As such she was entitled to live with whoever she wishes and should be left alone.

7. The application filed by the father for custody of the victim was rejected by the learned Chief Judicial Magistrate Bahraich in the order impugned.

8. In Jarnail Singh versus State of Haryana 2013 (7) SCC 263 Supreme Court was considering the argument of the accused appellant that the prosecutrix had eloped with one of the accused voluntarily and had sexual intercourse consensually. The learned trial court and the High Court had found the prosecutrix to be a minor and therefore held the consent of a minor as inconsequential. In paragraph 22 of the judgement the Supreme Court observed -

"on the issue of determination of age of a minor, one only needs to make a reference to Rule 12 of the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of children) Rules 2007, (hereinafter referred to as the 2007 Rules). The aforesaid 2007 Rules have been framed under section 68 (1) of the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act 2000. Rule 12 referred to here in above provides-12 "procedure to be followed in determination of age (1) in every case concerning a child or a juvenile in conflict with law, the Court or the Board or as the case maybe, the Committee referred to in Rule 19 of these Rules ,shall determine the age of such juvenile or child or a juvenile in conflict with law ,within a period of 30 days from the date of making the application for that purpose.

(2) the Court or the Board or as the case maybe, the Committee, shall decide the juvenility or otherwise of the juvenile or the child or as the case maybe, the juvenile in conflict with law, prima facie on the basis of physical appearance or documents, if available, and send him to the observation home or in jail.

(3) in every case concerning a child or juvenile in conflict with law, the age determination enquiry shall be conducted by the Court or the Board or as the case may be, the Committee by seeking evidence by obtaining -

(a)(i)the matriculation or equivalent certificate, if available, and in the absence thereof,

(ii) the date of birth certificate from the School (other than a Playschool)first attended; and in the absence thereof ;

(iii)the birth certificate given by a corporation or a municipal authority or a Panchayat;

(b)and only in the absence of either (i),(ii),or (iii)of clause (a)above, the medical opinion will be sought from a duly constituted medical board, which will declare the age of the juvenile or the child, in case exact assessment of which cannot be done. The court or the Board or as the case maybe the Committee, for the reasons to be recorded by them, may, if considered necessary, give benefit to the child or juvenile by considering his/her age on the lower side within the margin of one year;

And, while passing orders in such cases shall, after taking into consideration such evidence as may be available,or the medical opinion, as the case maybe, record a finding in respect of his age and either of the evidence specified in any of the clauses (a)(i),(ii),or (iii) or in the absence where of, clause (b) shall be the conclusive proof of the age as regards the child or the juvenile in conflict with law.

(4) If the age of a juvenile or child or the juvenile in conflict with law is found to be below 18 years on the date of the offence, on the basis of any of the conclusive proofs specified in sub- rule (3); the Court or the Board as the case maybe, the Committee, shall in writing pass an order stating the age and declaring the status of juvenility or otherwise, for the purpose of the Act and the Rules and a copy of the order shall be given to such juvenile or the person concerned.

(5)save and except where, further enquiry or otherwise is required, inter-alia in terms of section 7 -A , section 64 of the Act and the Rules, no further enquiry shall be conducted by the Court or the Board after examining and obtaining the certificate Or any other documentary proof referred to in sub- rule (3)of this Rule.

(6)the provisions contained in this Rule shall also apply to those disposed of cases, where the status of juvenility has not been determined in accordance with the provisions contained in sub- rule (3) of the Act, requiring dispensation of the sentence under the Act for passing appropriate orders in the interest of juvenile in conflict with the law."

The Supreme Court further observed in paragraph 23- "Even though Rule 12 is strictly applicable only to determine the age of a child in conflict with law, we are of the view that the aforesaid statutory provision should be the basis for determining age, even of a child who is a victim of crime. For, in our view there is hardly any difference in so far as issue of minority is concerned, between a child in conflict with law, and a child who is victim of crime. Therefore in our considered opinion it would be just and appropriate to apply rule 12 of the 2007 rRules, to determine the age of the prosecutrix - - -. The manner of determining age conclusively has been expressed Sub rule (3) of Rule 12 extracted above. Under the aforesaid provision, the age of a child is ascertained by adopting the first available basis out of a number of options postulated in Rule 12 (3). If, in the scheme of options postulated in Rule 12 (3) and option is expressed in a preceeding clause, it has overriding effect over an option expressed in a subsequent clause. The highest rated option available would conclusively determine the age of a minor. In the scheme of this Section Rule 12 (3) matriculation or equivalent certificate of the child concerned is the highest rated option. In case, the said certificate is available, no other evidence can be relied upon. Only in the absence of the said certificate, Rule 12 (3) can be referred to and we suggest consideration of the date of birth entered in the school first attended by the child, in case such an entry of date of birth is available, the date of birth depicted parent is liable to be treated as final and conclusive, and no other material is to be relied upon only in the absence of such entry, Rule 12 (3)postulates reliance on birth certificate issued by the Corporation or a Municipal authority or a Panchayat. Yet again, if such a certificate is available then no other material whatsoever is to be taken into consideration for determining the age of the child concerned, as the said certificate would conclusively determine the age of the child. It is only in the absence of any of the aforesaid, that Rule 12 (3) postulates the determination of age of the child concerned, on the basis of medical opinion.

The Supreme Court thereafter referred to the fact that the prosecutrix Had studied only up to class 3 and thereafter had left school and had started to do household work. The prosecution in the facts and circumstances of the case had endeavoured to establish age of the prosecutrix on the next available basis in the sequence of options expressed in rule 12 (3) of the 2007 Rules. The prosecution produced headmaster of the Government High School where the prosecutrix had studied up to class III. The headmaster had proved the certificate as having been made on the basis of school records indicating that the prosecutrix was born on 15 May 1977.

The Supreme Court further observed in paragraph 24 thus:- "in the scheme contemplated under rule 12 (3)of the 2007 Rules, it is not permissible to determine age in any other manner, and certainly not on the basis of an option mentioned in a subsequent clause. We are therefore of the view that the High Court was fully justified in relying on the aforesaid basis for establishing the age of the prosecutrix - - -. It would also be relevant to mention that under the scheme of Rule 12 it would have been improper for the High Court to rely on any other material including the Ossification test, for determining the age of the prosecutrix - - - ". The deposition of the headmaster had not been contested therefore the date of the birth of the prosecutrix as given in the certificate issued from the School assumes finality. Accordingly it was clear that the prosecutrix was less than 15 years of age on the date of the occurrence in March 1993. The prosecutrix being a minor on the date of the occurrence, the conclusion as recorded by the High Court and by the trial court was unexceptional. The contention raised by the appellant accused that she had accompanied him of her own sweet will and had consensual sex with him would be clearly inconsequential as she was a minor.

9. In Mahadev versus State of Maharashtra and another 2013(14) SCC 637, the Supreme Court was considering the case of the appellant who was accused of kidnapping and rape of a minor girl. The Supreme Court referred to Rule 12 (3) of the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Rules 2007, and held it to be applicable to determine the age of the young prosecutrix/victim. The Appellant had been proceeded against for offences punishable under Sections 363, 376 and 506 IPC, and was punished having been found guilty by the Trial Court. The High Court by its judgement though confirmed the conviction of sentence for the offences under section 363 and 376 IPC, set aside the sentence for offence under Section 506 IPC. The prosecutrix was aged about 15 years at the time the offence was committed, she was studying in ninth standard, her father was a police head constable. The prosecutrix had a flair for music and used to participate in singing bhajans. The appellant who was a musician and a singer developed acquaintance with the prosecutrix due to her participation in Bhajan programmes along with him and he allured her by stating that if she goes along with him to Hyderabad to prepare audio cassettes of a bhajans and songs she can make a lot of money. On 18.09.2005 the prosecutrix eloped with the appellant and after going to Hyderabad and from there to a relative's house at Kurnool, the appellant is alleged to have committed forcible sexual intercourse by confining her in the said place for a month and twenty days. During the said period the appellant is stated to have committed it in the said offence repeatedly. In support of the case the prosecution produced the headmistress of the School where the prosecutrix was admitted in fifth standard to prove the School Leaving Certificate which disclosed her date of birth as 20.05.1990, the appellant attempted to find fault with the said conclusion by making reference to evidence of the doctor who had examined the prosecutrix and who in her evidence stated that on her examination she could state that the age of the prosecutrix could have been between 17 to 25 years. The Ossification test was not done, and the age was ascertained only on the basis of opinion of the doctor. The Supreme Court on hearing the appeal referred to the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Rules 2007, in paragraph 12 and subsection (3) thereof and it observed that under Rule 12 (3)b it is specifically provided that only in the absence of alternative methods described under Rules A (i)(ii)(iii), the medical opinion can be sought for. In the light of such a statutory rule prevailing for ascertainment of age of a juvenile, the same yardstick can be rightly followed by the Courts for the purpose of ascertaining the age of a victim as well. The Supreme Court observed that there were certificates issued by the school in which the prosecutrix studied upto fifth standard and in the School Leaving Certificate issued by such school the date of birth had been clearly mentioned as 20.05.1990, and this document was also approved by the headmistress. Apart from that, the Transfer Certificate and the admission form maintained by the Primary School Latur, where the prosecutrix had her initial education also confirmed the date of birth as 20.05.1990. The Supreme Court observed that the reliance placed upon the said evidence by the Courts below to arrive at the age of the prosecutrix to hold that the prosecutrix was below 18 years of age at the time of occurrence was perfectly justified and dismissed the Appeal.

10. In State of Madhya Pradesh versus Anoop Singh 2015 (7) SCC 773, the Supreme Court observed that ossification test is not the sole criteria for determining the date of birth, once birth certificate and middle school certificate are available. Difference of two days in the date of birth mentioned in both certificates was a minor discrepancy and was immaterial. Reliance placed by the High Court upon the ossification test, because of such difference, for presuming that the prosecutrix was more than 18 years of age at the time of the incident and was a consenting party and thus no offence against the accused is proved, was erroneous. The two certificates issued by the educational institutions proved the age of the prosecutrix to be below 16 years on the date of the incident, proving her to be underage for consent. The conviction of the accused by the trial court was restored. The Supreme Court observed in paragraph 12: "the case involves only one issue for the court to consider which was regarding the determination of the age of the prosecutrix." The court referred to Mahadev versus State of Maharashtra, and quoted several paragraphs there from. The Supreme Court observed that the High Court should have relied firstly on the documents as stipulated under Rule 12 (3)(b) and only in their absence, the medical opinion should have been sought. The trial court had also dealt with this aspect of the ossification test but had noted that the ossification test is not the sole criteria for determination of the date of birth of the prosecutrix as certificate of birth by municipal corporation had been enclosed which had not been disproved.

11. The learned trial court has placed reliance upon judgement rendered in Suhani versus state of U.P., Civil Appeal No.4532 of 2018 reported in 2018 SCC Online (Supreme Court) 781. In the said case the Supreme Court was considering the question of age of the petitioner. The father of the petitioner had lodged an F.I.R. under section 363 and 366 of the Indian Penal Code. It was contended before the High Court that the petitioner was about 19 years of age and that her statement was recorded under section 164 Cr.P.C. where she had stated that she had entered into wedlock with the petitioner number two. On behalf of the contesting respondent number three, a certificate issued by the Secondary School Examination showed the date of the birth of the petitioner as 25.09.2003. The High Court came to the conclusion that she was thirteen years and eight months old and on that basis treated her as a minor. However, she expressed an unequivocal desire not to accompany her parents. The High Court therefore directed that she should be allowed to reside in Nari Niketan, Allahabad. The Supreme Court on hearing the matter had directed that the petitioner number one should be examined by the concerned department of All India Institute of Medical Sciences, New Delhi. The radiological examination and final report /opinion Submitted showed x-rays of clavicle, sternum, pelvis, spine, wrist and elbow, shoulder and it was observed that all epiphysis at elbow, shoulder and wrist joints were fused, suggesting age of 16.5 years fusion of iliac crest epiphysis suggested her age to be 19+ -1 years, the medial end of the clavicle was not fused suggestive of age of 22 to 27 years. S1 vertebrae of sacrum was not fused with S2, suggestive of the age of 17 to 24 years. The final opinion of All India Institute of Medical Sciences as quoted by the Supreme Court in its order stated that the findings of physical, dental and radiological examination found the bone age of the petitioner number 1 to be between 19 to 24 years. The Court thereafter observed that on the basis of radiological examination the petitioner number one was a major and therefore the High Court had erred in directing her to stay in Nari Niketan, Allahabad. The petitioner number one admitted the factum of marriage with the petitioner number two who was the husband and therefore she was allowed to accompany him. The Supreme Court observed that she was an adult and she had gone voluntarily with the petitioner number two and had entered into wedlock therefore the proceedings initiated under Sections 363 and 366 of the Indian Penal Code against the petitioner number two stood quashed. It however clarified that the order Quashing the proceedings was passed to do complete justice.

12. The learned Trial court has also relied upon Jitendra Arora and others versus Sukriti Arora and others 2017 (3) SCC 726, which was a case relating to custody of a child/minor, under the Guardians and Wards Act. In the said case marriage between the appellant and the respondent was solemnised in India in 1999. The parties shifted to U.K. and lived there for some time. Two daughters are born to them. Later on relationship between them soured and a divorce petition was filed by the respondent in the Court in U.K. where she was granted a divorce decree. Thereafter the appellant shifted to India along with The elder daughter. The respondent had in the meantime obtained a British citizenship for the elder daughter and came to India and filed a Habeas Corpus petition in Punjab and Haryana High Court against the appellant and others which was allowed by the High Court directing the appellant to hand over the minor daughter to the custody of the respondent. Against the said judgement of the High Court, the father had filed the appeal before the Supreme Court. During the hearing of the case the Supreme Court had asked the respondent as to whether she could shift to India even temporarily for a year or so, so that the court could consider giving custody of the daughter to her for that period. However she expressed her inability to do so and had insisted that the daughter should come to U.K. and live with her. The Court had interacted with the daughter in the chambers earlier and on the date of hearing also she was present in Court and in front of parents had unequivocally expressed that she was happy with the father and wanted to continue in his company and did not want to go with her mother. The Supreme Court observed that the child was 15 years of age and quite mature and she could fully understand what was in her best interest and therefore competent to take a decision for herself. There had been interactions with her by different Benches of the Supreme Court from time to time from which it was clearly discernible that she was in a position to weigh the pros and cons of the two alternatives and to decide as to which course of action is most suited to her. She had a developed personality and formed her opinion after considering all the attendant circumstances. The Court observed that her intellectual capacities had been adequately developed and she was able to solve problems and think about her future and understand the long-term effects of the decision which she was taking. She had been brought up in a conducive atmosphere and had achieved sufficient level of maturity. Further, in spite of giving ample chances to the respondent by giving temporary custody of the girl child to her, the respondent had not been able to win over her confidence. She had wanted the girl child to live with her in U.K. whereas the daughter had very categorically stated that she did not want to go to U.K. and wanted to live with her father. The court therefore observed that it could not take the risk of sending the child to a foreign country against her wishes which may prove to be a turbulent and tormenting experience for her which would not be in her interest therefore it decided that her welfare lay in the continued company of her father.

It is clear from the facts of the case as narrated here in above that the learned trial court had misplaced reliance upon the judgement which had nothing at all to do with section 363 and 366IPC. Quoting a judgement out of context and placing reliance thereupon is a hazardous course of action which should be avoided by the learned Trial Court.

13. The learned Trial Court has placed reliance also upon Razak Mohd versus State of Himachal Pradesh, 2018 (9) SCC 248, the accused was convicted by the High Court under Sections 363, 366 and 376 of the I.P.C. He had been acquitted by the learned trial court. The High Court in appeal had reversed the order. The Supreme Court observed that the evidence of the prosecutrix with regard to the incident of abduction and commission of rape stood contradicted by her previous statement in writing recorded under Section 161 of the Code of Criminal Procedure with which she was confronted with during trial. Apart from the above, it was evident from the evidence of other prosecution witnesses that the prosecutrix had remained with the appellant accused in the village for about 12 days until she was recovered, and that she had freely moved around with the appellant accused in the course of which movement, she had come across many people at different points of time. Yet, she did not complain of any criminal act on the part of the appellant accused. The Supreme Court observed that the focal point for decision would be the age of the prosecutrix in order to determine as to whether she was a major so as to give her consent. The court thereafter considered the evidence and material on record. The age of the prosecutrix had been sought to be proved by the prosecution by bringing on record School Admission form, and certificate issued by one teacher of a Government School. The teacher P.W.5, in her deposition had stated that the details mentioned by her in the school admission form had been obtained from the School Leaving Certificate issued by the government primary school. The certificate issued by the Government Primary School on the basis of which details in the admission form had been filled up by P.W.5 has not been exhibited by the prosecution. The court observed that such a document which is only a consequential certificate issued on the basis of entries mentioned on the basis of an exhibit which was not proved could not be relied upon. Moreover in the opinion of the radiologist the prosecutrix was between 17 to 18 years. The Supreme Court observed that the age determined on the basis of a radiological examination may not be an accurate determination and sufficient margin either way had to be allowed, yet in the totality of facts stated by it, read with the report of the radiological examination of the prosecutrix left the Court in doubt. The benefit of the doubt would go naturally in favour of the accused. The possibility of the prosecutrix being a consenting party could not be altogether ruled out. Therefore the order of the High Court convicting the Appellant accused was set aside by the Supreme Court.

14. This Court has considered the new Act of 2015 passed by the Legislature to obviate the confusion that was prevailing in the Society at large with regard to the factors that needed to be looked into for determining the age of the child. The Act of 2000 did not have any Section to determine the age of a child in need of care and protection or a juvenile in conflict with law. The Rules of 2007 did have such a provision under Rule 12 but not in the parent act of 2000. Section 94 was added with a specific purpose to do away with such confusion and to clarify the statutory provisions. It has referred to factors that needed to be looked into in sub section (2) which is being quoted hereinbelow in its entirety:-

"94. Presumption and determination of age.-(1) Where, it is obvious to the Committee or the Board, based on the appearance of the person brought before it under any of the provisions of this Act (other than for the purpose of giving evidence) that the said person is a child, the Committee or the Board shall record such observation stating the age the child as nearly as may be and proceed with the inquiry under section 14 or section 36, as the case may be, without waiting for further confirmation of the age.

(2) In case, the Committee or the Board has reasonable grounds for doubt regarding whether the person brought before it is a child or not, the Committee or the Board, as the case may be, shall undertake the process of age determination, by seeking evidence by obtaining

(i) the date of birth certificate from the school, or the matriculation or equivalent certificate from the concerned examination Board, if available; and in the absence thereof;

(ii) the birth certificate given by a corporation or a municipal authority or a panchayat;

(iii) and only in the absence of (i) and (ii) above, age shall be determined by an ossification test or any other latest medical age determination test conducted on the orders of the Committee or the Board:

Provided such age determination test conducted on the order of the Committee or the Board shall be completed within fifteen days from the date of such order"

15. There is only one judgement considering Section 94 of the 2015 Act reported till date. In the case of Sanjeev Kumar Gupta Vs. State of U.P., 2019 (12) SCC 370; a Division bench of the Supreme Court was considering an appeal by the complainant against the High court's order declaring the Second respondent as juvenile at the time of the incident.

16. The claim of juvenility of the accused on the basis of matriculation certificate was allowed. The complainant had approached the Supreme Court mentioning that in the first school that was attended by the appellant his date of birth was mentioned as 17.12.1995. The second respondent had also filed an application for obtaining a Driving License and Aadhar Card in which he had declared his date of birth is 17.12.1995. However, in the Matriculation certificate issued by the CBSE his date of birth was mentioned as 17.12.1998. The Supreme court asked the CBSE to produce its records and to file an affidavit indicating the basis on which the date of birth was recorded in the Matriculation certificate. The affidavit filed by the CBSE indicated that the date of birth in the records maintained by the CBSE was recorded purely on the basis of the final list of students forwarded by the Senior Secondary School the Respondent had attended at Shikohabad. The headmistress of the school had admitted before the Juvenile Justice Board Firozabad that date of birth of the student at the time of admission is noted as per information given by the parents and at the same time an affidavit is obtained, but in the said case no affidavit was obtained from the father. The father of the second respondent did not produce any record at the time of admission in respect of date of birth of the student. The Second Respondent had attended Senior Secondary School from the fifth standard till Matriculation. He had earlier attended another school till fourth standard and the School Register and Transfer Certificate from that School specifically contained an entry in regard to the date of birth of the Second Respondent as 17.12.1995.

The Supreme Court observed that the High Court had clearly erred in setting aside the well considered order passed by the Juvenile Justice Board and that of the Sessions Judge in Appeal. The Sessions Judge had relied upon observations made by the Supreme Court in Parag Bhati versus State of U.P. 2016 (12) SCC 744 and Ramdev Chauhan versus State of Assam 2001 (5) SCC 714 where the Supreme Court had observed that where there are two conflicting school documents produced, the credibility and authenticity of such such documents depend upon the circumstances of the case and a further enquiry would be required. The court considered that Section 7 -A of the 2000 Act and Rule 12 of the rules of 2007 had been interpreted by the Supreme Court in Ashwini Kumar Saxena versus State of M.P. 2012 (9) SCC 750 and observed that Ashwini Kumar Saxena was decided by two judges bench whereas subsequently three judges bench of the Supreme Court had dealt with the matter in Abu Zar Hossain versus State of Bengal 2012 (10) SCC 489. Both the Judgements were considered by a subsequent bench in Parag Bhati (supra).

In Ashwini Kumar Saxena (supra), the Court held that where it was found on enquiry that educational certificates were fabricated or manipulated, the Court could discard the date of birth as reflected therein. It was observed in paragraph 34 thus :

"34 - - there may be situations where the entry made in the matriculation or equivalent certificates, date of birth certificate from the school first attended and even the birth certificate given by a corporation or a municipal authority or a Panchayat may not be correct. But the Court, the juvenile Justice Board or Committee functioning under the JJ Act is not expected to conduct such a roving enquiry and to go beyond behind the certificates to examine the correctness of those documents maintained during normal course of business. Only in cases where those documents or certificates are found to be fabricated or manipulated, the Court, the Juvenile Justice Board or the Committee need to go for medical report for age determination. - - "

Subsequently, a three-judge bench in Abu Zar Hussain (supra) observed that "the documents referred to in Rule 12(a) (i),(ii),(iii) of the 2007 Rules shall definitely be sufficient for the prima facie satisfaction of the Court about the age of the delinquent - - the statement recorded under section 313 of the Code is too tentative and will not by itself be sufficient ordinarily to justify or reject the claim of juvenility. The credibility and/or acceptability of the documents like the School Leaving Certificate or the voters list etc obtained after conviction would depend on the facts and circumstances of each case and no hard and fast rule can be prescribed and they must be prima facie accept or reject. In Akbar Sheikh Versus State of Bengal 2009 (7) SCC 415; and Pawan Versus State of Uttaranchal 2009(15) SCC 259, these documents were not found prima facie credible while producing the documents viz , School Leaving Certificate, marksheet and the medical report were treated sufficient for directing an enquiry and verification of the appellants age. If such documents prima facie inspire confidence of the Court, the Court may act upon such documents for the purpose of Section 7-A and order an enquiry for determination of the age of the delinquent. "Directing an enquiry is not the same thing as declaring the accused to be a juvenile. In the former the Court simply records the prima facie conclusion while in the latter a declaration is made on the basis of evidence." Hence the approach at the stage of directing an inquiry has to be more liberal. The Supreme Court observed in Sanjiv Gupta's case that the 2015 Act came into force on 15 January 2016. Section 111 repealed the earlier 2000 Act but stipulated that despite the repeal, anything done or any action taken under the said act shall be deemed to have been done or taken under the corresponding provisions of the new legislation. In the new Act Section 94 contains provisions in regard to the determination of age. It was observed by the Court that section 94(2)1 indicates a significant change over the provisions which were contained in Rule 12 (3)a of the 2007 Rules made under the 2000 Act. Under Rule 12 (3) even though matriculation or equivalent certificate was given precedence and it was only in the event of the certificate not being available that the date of birth certificate from the school first attended could be obtained. In section 94 (2)(i) both the date of birth certificate from the school as well as the matriculation or equivalent certificate were placed in the same category. It is evident that the Supreme Court in the case of Sanjeev Kumar Gupta after referring to judgements rendered earlier by it under the 2000 Act, 2007 Rules referred to the 2015 Act and Section 94 thereof to observe that under Section 7A, if the accused claims juvenility, the court shall consider the documents like educational certificates and certificate issued by a municipal authorities as prima facie sufficient to order an inquiry. In ordering such enquiry the court should be liberal. However once evidence is to be considered in such enquiry, to give a declaration of juvenility, the Court should be careful and look into the attendant circumstances of the case, including the date of application for obtaining such education certificates, the age of the siblings, and other relevant considerations for giving a declaration Of juvenility.

17. The aforesaid provision in the Act of 2015 would show that first preference or the first determining factor that should be looked into is the educational certificate of the child.

18. In this case, the educational certificate showed the date of birth of the victim as 08.03.2006 and therefore at the time of filing of the F.I.R. and at the time of moving of the application by the revisionist she was not 18 years of age, and not major. The Chief Judicial Magistrate exceeded his jurisdiction and misapplied the law settled by Hon'ble Supreme Court without correctly appreciating the new Act, and has passed the order impugned.

19. The order dated 05.12.2020 passed by the Chief Judicial Magistrate is set aside. The matter is remanded to the Chief Judicial Magistrate to pass a fresh order after due consideration of the law settled by Hon'ble Supreme Court and the statutory provisions as notified by the Act of 2015. Let a fresh order be passed on the application moved by the revisionist within four weeks from the date of production of certified copy of this order.

20. The Revision stands disposed of.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Sangeeta Chandra, J.)

(1) Heard the learned counsel for the parties and perused the record.

(2) This Criminal Revision has been filed challenging the judgment and order dated 25.06.2021 passed by the learned Additional Sessions Judge, (POCSO Act), No.12, Sultanpur, passed in Criminal Appeal (Juvenile) No.19 of 2021, relating to Case Crime No.360/2017, under Sections 376, 504, 506 IPC and Section 3/4 POCSO Act, Police Station Kotwali Dehat, District Sultanpur.

(3) It has been submitted by the learned counsel for the revisionist that on 17.12.2017 the First Information Report of Case Crime No.360/2017, under Sections 376, 504, 506 IPC and Section 3/4 POCSO Act, Police Station Kotwali Dehat, District Sultanpur, was lodged by the revisionist against the opposite party nos.2 and 3 and other co-accused that the daughter of the revisionist aged about 14 years was raped seven months ago as a result whereof she became pregnant. When the revisionist got information of her daughter's pregnancy they tried to marry her with the opposite party no.2 but the father of the opposite party no.2 denied such proposal. The revisionist and her associates told the father of the opposite party no.2 that if the child is not aborted they would have to face dire consequences. The Investigating Officer after recording the statement under Sections 161 and 164 Cr.P.C. filed Charge-sheet on 13.06.2014 in the Court of Chief Judicial Magistrate, Court No.17, Sultanpur, against the opposite party no.2 and two persons. With regard to the other accused in the F.I.R. investigation is pending till date and they have not been arrested as yet. Later on, the opposite party no.2 was declared juvenile and the Trial was transferred to the Juvenile Justice Board, Sultanpur. After examination-in-chief and cross-examination of prosecution witness as PW-1 i.e. the revisionist and PW-2 i.e. the victim her daughter, a date was fixed for examination of other prosecution witnesses.

(4) The opposite party no.2 filed an application for conducting DNA Test of the PW-2. Objections were filed by the counsel for the revisionist. On 25.03.2021 learned Juvenile Justice Board after considering the entire facts and circumstances and evidence available on record rejected the application for DNA Test. Against the order the dated 25.03.2021, the opposite party no.2 filed a Criminal Appeal in the court of Additional Sessions Judge, Court No.12, Sultanpur, which was registered as Criminal Appeal (Juvenile) No.19/2021 (Shameem @ Bugul Vs. State of U.P.). During the pendency of such Appeal, the opposite party no.2 filed an application for arrange/impleading the revisionist as opposite party no.2.The Appellate Court without deciding the application for impleadment of the revisionist decided the Appeal finally and passed impugned order on 25.06.2021. In the order dated 25.06.2021 the learned Appellate Court has ignored the provisions of Article 14--21 of the Constitution of India, the Juvenile Justice Board in its order dated 25.03.2021 had observed that the application for examination of child of the prosecution witness moved by the opposite party no.2 can only be moved at the stage when defence witnesses were being examined under Section 313 Cr.P.C. It held that sending the victim child for DNA Test would further delay the Trial which under the provisions of Statute should be concluded as expeditiously as possible.

(5) It has been submitted by the learned counsel for the revisionist that the revisionist and her daughter, the victim had never given any consent for DNA Test which is extremely necessary in such cases. Only because the learned Appellate Court observed that the DNA Test will determine the paternity of the child and would clarify the issue. Such DNA Test cannot be performed without consent of the prosecutrix. The issue involved in the prosecution of the opposite party no.2 was not whether her child was son of the accused. The issue was whether the prosecutrix was raped by the opposite party no.2 which cannot be decided only by determining the paternity of the child who was born much later. As a consequence, learned Appellate Court has erred in recording a finding that conducting of DNA Test will not be performed without the consent of the parties.

(6) Most certainly, the commission of offence under Sections 376, 504, 506 IPC cannot be determined even if DNA Test is verified with and without consent of the prosecutrix. The Supreme Court as well as several High Courts have observed that no Court can bind the prosecutrix to get the DNA Test conducted. It is probable that an adverse inference can be drawn against the prosecutrix. On refusal of the prosecutrix to undergo for DNA Test but no DNA Test can be conducted of the prosecutrix without her consent.

(7) Learned counsel for the opposite party no.2 has pointed out from his counter affidavit that the revisionist herself had given a statement before the Investigating Officer that she was willing to get DNA Test conducted of the child born to the prosecutrix.

(8) Learned counsel appearing for the revisionist in rejoinder affidavit has submitted that only because the prosecutrix's mother had made a statement to the Investigating Officer, such statement cannot bind the prosecutix who has now become major and can decide for her child whether she wants her child to face the risk of being declared a bastard. Learned counsel for the revisionist has placed reliance upon the judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Goutam Kundu Vs. State of West Bengal & Another reported in (1993) 3 SCC 418, where the question involved was with regard to the legitimacy of a born child during marriage of the appellant with the private respondents. The Supreme Court had observed that if the legitimacy is questioned by making out a strong case of non-access of the husband by the person questioning the legitimacy, on whom burden of rebuttal of presumption of legitimacy lies, the Court will also consider the effect of ordering the blood test on the status of the child and the character of the mother. No one can be compelled to give sample of blood for analysis.

(9) Learned counsel for the revisionist has relied upon Paragraph-26 of the judgment in Goutam Kundu (Supra) case which is being quoted hereinbelow:-

"26. From the above discussion it emerges :-

(1) that courts in India cannot order blood test as a matter of course;

(2) wherever applications are made for such prayers in order to have roving inquiry, the prayer for blood test cannot be entertained.

(3) There must be a strong prima facie case in that the husband must establish non-access in order to dispel the presumption arising under Section 112 of the Evidence Act.

(4) The court must carefully examine as to what would be the consequence of ordering the blood test; whether it will have the effect of branding a child as a bastard and the mother as an unchaste woman.

(5) No one can be compelled to give sample of blood for analysis."

(10) Learned counsel for the revisionist has placed reliance on another judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Ashok Kumar Vs. Raj Gupta & Others, Civil Appeal No.6153 of 2021 decided on 01.10.2021 and has referred to Paragraph-17 of the judgment which is being quoted hereinebelow:-

"The appellant (plaintiff) as noted earlier, has brought on record the evidence in his support which in his assessment adequately establishes his case. His suit will succeed or fall with those evidence, subject of course to the evidence adduced by the other side. When the plaintiff is unwilling to subject himself to the DNA test, forcing him to undergo one would impinge on his personal liberty and his right to privacy."

(11) Learned counsel for the revisionist has also placed reliance upon a judgment rendered by the Calcutta High Court Anandmay Bag Vs. State of West Bengal and Another decided on 07.05.2007 where the Court has observed in Paragraphs- 14 & 16 thereof is as follows:-

"14. This is a case under Section 376 of the Indian Penal Code and in a case of Section 376 of the Indian Penal Code, DNA test may be a valid test but not always relevant, more so, when during investigation or during pendency of trial there was no attempt by the prosecution to hold such test. Section 375 of the Indian Penal Code defines rape and Section 376 of the Indian Penal Code is the penal provision of rape. In several decisions the Supreme Court held that in a case of rape medical evidence is not always final but medical evidence plays the role of secondary evidence. If the Court finds that evidence of prosecutrix is sufficient to come to the conclusion that prosecution case was true then there can be conviction on the basis of sole evidence of prosecutrix. In State of Punjab v. Ramdev Singh reported in 2004 SCC (Cri) 307, the Supreme Court held that absence of injury in a case of rape is of no consequence. In State of M.P v. Dayal Sahu, it was held by the Supreme Court that non-examination of doctor in a case of rape is not always fatal to the prosecution when the testimony of the prosecutrix inspires confidence of the Court and non-production of doctor's report is not at all fatal. It was a case of rape on a girl of 13 years and if the learned Trial Court finds that evidence of the prosecutrix is sufficient, the DNA test is not at all necessary. The learned Judge must be aware of the age of the victim and in such a matter consent is of no consequence.

16. In view of the discussion made above it is clear that in this case the prosecution prayer under Section 311 of the Code of Criminal Procedure for holding DNA test cannot be allowed as during investigation or during the stage of charge or during the stage of trial there was no attempt for holding DNA test. After closer of prosecution evidence, examination of accused under Section 313 of Cr. PC and after discloser of entire defence case prosecution prayer to hold DNA test of the victim, her male child and accused cannot be allowed to establish the offence under Section 376 of IPC Whether determination of paternity of the child is relevant or not through DNA test that can be decided in a different forum and not in this case."

(12) Learned counsel for the revisionist has also placed reliance upon a decision of the the Madras High Court in the case of G. Vasanthi Vs. M. Muneeshwaran delivered on 02.01.2019 and reported Online on Website of the said High Court. A reference has been made to Paragraph-19 of the said judgment where it has been observed that the learned Trial Court would be justified in drawing an adverse inference against the litigant on refusal to undergo DNA Test. While character of the mother may be exposed the status of the child shall remain in law even if the result of the DNA test does not establish the paternity of the child. Just as identity of the rape victim and that of juvenile in conflict of the law is concealed. Similar protective measures shall be taken in such cases.

(13) It was a case where G. Vsanthi (Supra) the parties were fighting an application for dissolution of marriage.

(13) Learned counsel for the revisionist has also placed reliance upon a judgment rendered by Madurai Bench of the Madras High Court of 02.11.2011 in Muthukutti Vs. The Deputy Director and others decided on 02.11.2011, DNA Section Forensic Science Department, Mylapore, Chennai and other. The petitioner therein wanted the DNA Test to be conducted of her child within a stipulated time and prayed that a direction to be issued by the Court with regard to the same. The Madurai Bench referred the observations made by the Supreme Court in the case of Yedla Srinivasa Rao Vs. State of Andhra Pradesh reported in (2006) 11 SCC 615, and emphasize that merely because the petitioner had offered to conduct DNA Test it would not mean that the complainant and the minor child can also be subjected to such test without their consent. It was observed that the consent of the complainant and the consent of the minor child was relevant.

(14) This Court having heard the learned counsel for the revisionist and counsel appearing on behalf opposite party no.2 has carefully gone through the judgment rendered by the learned Additional District and Sessions Judge, challenged in this Revision. It is apparent that the learned Additional Sessions Judge has misdirected his energies. The question before the learned Trial Court was not whether the child that was born to the prosecutrix was the child of the opposite party no.2. There was no question for determining the paternity of the child, the question involved in the case was whether rape was committed on the prosecutrix by the opposite party no.2. There was no reason for the prosecutrix to let her child undergo DNA Test.

(15) The order dated 25.06.2021 is set aside and the learned Trial Court order dated 25.03.2021 is affirmed subject to the modification that the Trial Court's observation regarding such application being moved under Section 313 of the Cr.P.C. would be considered on its merits when it is taken up, shall also not be read against the revisionist that victim of rape can be compelled to undergo DNA test after such long time of the alleged incident.

(16) The Revision stands allowed.

(A) Criminal Law - The Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 - Section 397 - Revision - Indian Penal Code, 1860 - Accused person has got legal right to file discharge application - such legal right must be addressed and disposed of by speaking and reasoned order within the four corners of the law - While disposing of the discharge application, application of mind should be reflected in as much as as per trite law, trial court while considering the discharge application is not to act as a mere post office. (Para - 12 ,13)

Discharge application of the revisionist been rejected - hence revision .

HELD:-While disposing of the discharge application, court below has not considered each and every relevant contentions of the discharge application and rejected the same in a cursory manner, a fresh order should be passed by the court below on the discharge application.(Para - 14)

Criminal Revision allowed. (E-7)

List of Cases cited:-

1. M.E. Shivalingamurthy Vs Central Bureau of Investigation, AIR 2020 SC 331

2. Sanjay Kumar Rai Vs St. of U.P., AIR Online 2021 SC 239

(Delivered by Hon'ble Rajesh Singh Chauhan, J.)

1. Heard Sri Jai Pal Singh, learned counsel for the revisionist, Sri Aniruddh Kumar Singh, learned AGA-I for the State and Sri Vijay Kumar, learned counsel for opposite party no.2.

2. By means of this criminal revision, the revisionist has prayed for setting aside/ quashing the order dated 17.8.2021 passed by the Additional Sessions Judge, Room No.4, Sultanpur in S.T. No.145 of 2019 (State Vs. Atma Ram and Others) whereby the discharge application of the revisionist has been rejected.

3. Learned counsel for the revisionist has submitted that as per opposite party no.2, her husband was kidnapped by the petitioner on 25.9.2000. The opposite party no.2 has filed an application under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. on 9.10.2012 when her grievance was not redressed by the police concerned. Sri Jai Pal Singh has submitted that the opposite party no.2 has not explained the delay of more than 12 years in approaching the court filing application under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. However, on such application, an FIR was lodged on 19.1.2013 against the petitioner. The investigating agency carried out investigation and after recording the statements of various persons, some of them were family members and some of them were independent witnesses, submitted a final report on 4.4.2013 (Annexure No.12). Against such final report dated 4.4.2013, opposite party no.2 has filed protest petition on 9.12.2014 (Annexure No.13), therefore, Sri Jai Pal Singh has submitted that even the protest petition has been filed after more than 1 year and 8 months. Such protest petition was allowed by the learned court below on 17.9.2015 (Annexure No.14) and pursuant to the order dated 17.9.2015, further investigation was conducted and the final report was filed in favour of the revisionist.

4. Sri Jai Pal Singh has submitted that actually the issue in question is relating to property dispute within the family and opposite party no.2 has filed an application under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. having apprehension that the part of property, which belongs to her husband, might have been usurped by the revisionist and other family members as her husband is missing. Sri Jai Pal Singh has further submitted that the revisionist has already appeared before the court below and obtained bail. After obtaining bail order, he filed discharge application, which has been enclosed as Annexure No.16 to the revision. In the discharge application, the revisionist has categorically indicated that he has not kidnapped the husband of opposite party no.2. He has further submitted that there is no evidence against the revisionist to suggest that he had kidnapped the husband of opposite party no.2. He has categorically submitted that opposite party no.2 has not approached the court for more than 12 years. He has referred some cases being lodged by opposite party no.2 against her husband and he has also submitted that the revisionist is living separately, therefore, he may not be held liable for the kidnapping of the husband of opposite party no.2.

5. Therefore, Sri Singh has submitted that while disposing of the discharge application, learned court below vide impugned order dated 17.8.2021 did not consider any of the submissions and contentions of the discharge application and rejected said application observing that since the husband of opposite party no.2 is missing and specific allegation has been levelled against the revisionist, therefore, prima facie, the case in question is liable to be tried against him.

6. Per contra, Sri Vijay Kumar, learned counsel for opposite party no.2 has also drawn attention of this Court towards Annexure No.1 to the counter affidavit, which is an order dated 15.12.2017 passed by the learned court below summoning the revisionist to face trial under Sections 364/120-B IPC. He has submitted that in the aforesaid order dated 15.12.2017, the learned court below has considered each and every facts in detail. Therefore, Sri Vijay Kumar has submitted that when the learned court below has taken cognizance on 15.12.2017 against the revisionist, the defence so taken by the revisionist can be taken at the stage of trial and while disposing of the discharge application, such evidences may not be appreciated in view of the settled law. Sri Vijay Kumar has drawn attention of this Court towards the decision of the Apex Court in re; M.E. Shivalingamurthy vs. Central Bureau of Investigation, AIR 2020 SC 331, referring para-15 thereof, whereby the Apex Court has observed as under:-

"15.The defence of the accused is not to be looked into at the stage when the accused seeks to be discharged under Section 227 CrPC (see State of J&K v. Sudershan Chakkar and another, AIR 1995 SC 1954). The expression, "the record of the case", used in Section 227 CrPC, is to be understood as the documents and the articles, if any, produced by the prosecution. The Code does not give any right to the accused to produce any document at the stage of framing of the charge. At the stage of framing of the charge, the submission of the accused is to be confined to the material produced by the police (see State of Orissa v. Debendra Nath Padhi, AIR 2005 SC 359)."

7. Therefore, as per Sri Vijay Kumar, the instant revision may be dismissed.

8. Learned AGA has also submitted that while disposing of the discharge application, defence of the accused may not be looked into. However, looking to the facts and circumstances of the issue in question, any appropriate order may be passed.

9. Sri Jai Pal Singh in his rejoinder argument has cited the recent decision of the Apex Court in re; Sanjay Kumar Rai vs. State of Uttar Pradesh, AIR Online 2021 SC 239, referring paras 15, 16 & 18, which reads as under:-

"15. The correct position of law as laid down in Madhu Limaye v. State of Maharashtra, (1977) 4 SCC 551, thus, is that orders framing charges or refusing discharge are neither interlocutory nor final in nature and are therefore not affected by the bar of Section 397 (2) of CrPC. That apart, this Court in the above-cited cases has unequivocally acknowledged that the High Court is imbued with inherent jurisdiction to prevent abuse of process or to secure ends of justice having regard to the facts and circumstance of individual cases. As a caveat it may be stated that the High Court, while exercising its afore-stated jurisdiction ought to be circumspect. The discretion vested in the High Court is to be invoked carefully and judiciously for effective and timely administration of criminal justice system. This Court, nonetheless, does not recommend a complete hands off approach. Albeit, there should be interference, may be, in exceptional cases, failing which there is likelihood of serious prejudice to the rights of a citizen. For example, when the contents of a complaint or the other purported material on record is a brazen attempt to persecute an innocent person, it becomes imperative upon the Court to prevent the abuse of process of law.

16. Further, it is well settled that the trial court while considering the discharge application is not to act as a mere post office. The Court has to sift through the evidence in order to find out whether there are sufficient grounds to try the suspect. The court has to consider the broad probabilities, total effect of evidence and documents produced and the basic infirmities appearing in the case and so on. [Union of India v. Prafulla Kumar Samal]. Likewise, the Court has sufficient discretion to order further investigation in appropriate cases, if need be.

18. The High Court has committed jurisdictional error by not entertaining the revision petition on merits and overlooking the fact that 'discharge' is a valuable right provided to the accused. In line with the fact that the High Court and the court below have not examined the fairness of criminal investigation in this case and other related aspects concerning improvement of witness statements, it is necessary for the High Court to reconsider the entire matter and decide the revision petition afresh. Accordingly, we set aside the impugned order dated 28.11.2018 and remand the case back to the High Court for its reconsideration in accordance with law."

10. On the basis of aforesaid decision, Sri Jai Pal Singh has submitted that there is no dispute on such proposition that in the discharge application, the defence of the accused person may not be looked into by the learned court below but it is also true and settled that while disposing of the discharge application, the court has to consider the broad probabilities, total effect of evidence and documents produced and the basic infirmities appearing in the case in question.

11. Having heard learned counsel for the parties and having perused the material available on record as well as the case laws so cited by the learned counsel for the parties, I am of the firm view that while disposing of the discharge application, the court below may not appreciate the defence of the accused as the same should be appreciated at the stage of trial. At the same time, it is also incumbent upon the learned court below to consider and dispose of the contents and contentions of the discharge application and peruse the material available on record as produced by the Investigating Officer.

12. The material available on record e.g. statements of various persons recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C. etc. should have been considered by the court below carefully inasmuch as the accused person has got legal right to file discharge application and such legal right must be addressed and disposed of by speaking and reasoned order within the four corners of the law.

13. Further, if any specific plea has been taken in the discharge application, which is not directly affecting the trial or if it is at all affecting the trial, the learned court below must consider such contention and address the same by speaking and reasoned order. Learned court below may accept such contentions so raised in the discharge application or may reject the same but both the things should be clear and unambiguous. At least, it should be seen that the learned court below has applied its judicious mind. While disposing of the discharge application, application of mind should be reflected inasmuch as as per trite law, the learned trial court while considering the discharge application is not to act as a mere post office.

14. In view of the above, I find that while disposing of the discharge application vide order dated 17.8.2021, the learned court below has not considered each and every relevant contentions of the discharge application and rejected the same in a cursory manner, therefore, I feel that a fresh order should be passed by the learned court below on the discharge application.

15. Accordingly, the revision is allowed. The order dated 17.8.2021 is hereby quashed/ set aside.

16. The learned court below is directed to pass a fresh order on the discharge application of the revisionist by speaking and reasoned order, strictly in accordance with law, by affording an opportunity of hearing to the parties, if it is so required under the law, with expedition, preferably within a period of one month from the date of production of certified copy of this order.

17. No order as to costs.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Sangeeta Chandra, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the revisionist and learned A.G.A. for the State.

2. This Revision has been filed against the order dated 22.11.2021 passed by learned Additional Sessions Judge, Ist, Balrampur, in Special Sessions Trial No.17/2021: State of U.P. Vs. Pramod Arora and others, under Section 18(a) (i)/27(c) of Drugs and Cosmetic Act 1940 relating to P.S. Pachperwa, Disrict Balrampur.

3. It has been submitted by learned counsel for the revisionist that the revisionist had earlier approached this Court by filing a petition under Section 482 Cr.P.C., namely, Petition No.3227 of 2021: Suraj Arora Vs. State of U.P. and Another, challenging the summoning order dated 19.12.2019, relating to same Sessions Trial No.8 of 2019. The Court was satisfied that the cognizance order and the summoning order was issued without application of mind as no facts were mentioned therein. The language of the order did not disclose any facts of the case. The Court had set aside the order and remanded the matter to the Magistrate to pass a fresh order as per law. After this order was passed by this Court on 17.09.021, the matter was reconsidered by the Court and fresh order was passed on 22.11.2021, which is challenged in this Revision.

4. It has been further submitted by learned counsel for the revisionist that the revisionist had no role to play in the affairs of the company i.e. M/s Corona Pharmaceuticals Pvt. Ltd., Kashipur, Udham Singh Nagar, Uttarakhand, as he had resigned as Director of the Company in the year 2008 and had written a letter to the Director, Medical Health and Family Welfare, Dehradun, Uttarakhand on 02.06.2011 that he had resigned from the post of Director, yet the same was not taken into account by the learned trial court. Learned trial court has erred in law recording the finding that while passing the summoning order/ cognizance order it has only to see a prima facie case.

5. This Court has perused the order impugned.

6. It has been pointed out by learned A.G.A. that under Section 190 (A) of the Cr.P.C. for taking cognizance and for summoning the accused only the papers that are submitted by the prosecution has to be taken into account. A prima facie case alone has to be seen where the accused can be tried for the offences for which the prosecution proposes that the accused are guilt of.

7. Learned counsel for the revisionist has cited the judgement rendered by Hon'ble Supreme Court in Criminal Appeal No.1047/1048/2021: Ravindranatha Bajpe Vs. Mangalore Special Economic Zone Ltd. and others etc., decided on 27.11.2021, but no appreciation thereof is evident from the order impugned.

8. This Court has carefully gone through the judgement rendered by Hon'ble Supreme Court in Ravindranatha Bajpe (Supra), it appears that the Appellant before the Supreme Court was the original complainant. He had filed the complaint before the Judicial Magistrate Ist Class Mangalore on 24.09.2013 on which summons were issued to the original accused nos. 1 to 8. The original accused approached the Sessions Court in Revision. The Revision was partly allowed by the Sessions Court. Aggrieved against the same, the complainant approached the High Court. The High Court rejected the Revision filed by the appellant Ravindranath Bajpe. The complainant/ appellant thereafter approached the Supreme Court.

9. In the original complainant filed by the appellant there were 13 accused. It was the case of the complainant that he was not absolute owner and in possession of immovable property described in the scheduled attached to the complainant and the scheduled property was surrounded by a stone wall as boundary. The scheduled properties were abutting Mangalore-Bajpe Old Airport Road and valuable trees were situated in the said property. The accused no.1 was a company incorporated under the Companies Act and accused no.2 was the Chairman, the accused no.3 was the Managing Director, the accused no.4 was the Deputy General Manager (Civil & Env.), the accused no.5 was the Planner and Executor of the project work of accused no.1. The accused no.9 was the Site Supervisor, accused no.10 was the Sub Contractor, and accused no.11 to 13 were the employees of the Sub Contractor.

10. The accused no.1 intended to lay water pipeline by the side of Mangalore-Bajpe Old Airport Road abutting the scheduled properties. The accused no.1 engaged the accused no.6 company to do the work. The pipeline instead of being laid under the road or on the side of the road, was laid beneath the scheduled properties belonging to the complainant. The pipeline trespassed the scheduled property and demolished the compound wall which was having the height of 7 feet and foundation of 2 feet to a distance of 500 metres. The accused had cut and destroyed 100 valuable trees in the process. When the complaint was filed initially before the police in 2012, the accused no.5 had given the statement admitting the guilt and also undertaking to pay compensation to the complainant towards the damages caused to his property but the undertaking was not respected thus the accused committed the criminal breach of trust. The complainant had been examined on oath by the court of the Judicial Magistate, Ist Class, Mangalore, and he summoned accused nos.1 and 8 only. Feeling aggrieved by the summoning order, the original accused 1 to 5 preferred a Criminal Revision which was partly allowed with respect to the Directors of the company. The Judicial Magistrate's order having been set aside the appellant approached the High Court and the High Court affirmed the order passed by the Sessions Court.

11. It had been argued before the Supreme Court that at the stage of summoning the accused only thing that has not be considered is as to whether a prima facie case is made out on the basis of statement made by the complainant on oath and the material produced at that stage and detail examination on merit is not required. The specific allegation was that the accused no.1 to 8 has conspired with the Contractor and sub Contractor and caused damages to the property of the appellant.

12. The respondent on the other hand had submitted before the Supreme Court that there was only a bald statement that the company and its Directors has conspired with the Contractor and Sub Contractor and caused damages to the property of the appellant and that issuing summons by the court is a very serious matter. Reference was made to GHCL Employees Stock Option Trust Vs. India Infoline Limited, (2013) 4 SCC 505; and Sunil Bharti Mittal Vs. Central Bureau of Investigation, (2015) 4 SCC 609; and specific reference was made to paragraph-42 to 44 of the judgement rendered in Sunil Bharti Mittal (supra). The Supreme Court had observed that no doubt, a corporate entity is an artificial person which acts through its officers, Directors, Managing Director, Chairman etc.. If such a company commits an offence involving mens rea, it would normally be the intent and action of that individual who would act on behalf of the company. It would be more so, when the criminal act is that of conspiracy and no liability can be placed on the Directors unless there is a specific role assigned to such individual who had perpetrated the commission of offence on behalf of the company. When the company is the offender, vicarious liability of the Directors cannot be imputed automatically. Reference was made to the judgment rendered in Aneeta Hada Vs. Godfather Travels & Tours (P) Ltd., 2012 (5) SCC 661, that if a group of persons that guide the business of the company have the criminal intent, that would be imputed to the body corporate and it is in this backdrop, Section 141 of the Negotiable Instruments Act has to be understood. Such a position is because of statutory intendment making it a deeming fiction. However, where a group of persons that guide the business had intent, that is to be imputed to the body corporate and not the vice-versa. Otherwise, there has to be a specific act attributed to the Director or any other person allegedly in control and management of the company, to the effect that such a person was responsible for the acts committed by or on behalf of the company.

13. The Supreme Court referred to the judgment of Maksud Saiyed Vs. State of Gujarat, (2008) 5 SCC 668 and Pepsi Foods Ltd. Vs. Special Judicial Magistrate (1998) 5 SCC 749, to say that the Magistrate is required to apply its mind when a complaint is filed before him to see as to whether the complaint even if taken to its face value and taken to be correct in its entirety, would lead to the conclusion that the respondents were personally responsible for any offence. Summoning of an accused in a criminal case being a serious matter, Criminal Law cannot be set into motion as a matter of course. The Magistrate has to examine the nature of the allegation made in the complaint and the evidence both oral and documentary in support thereof, and that it would be sufficient for which the complainant to succeed in bringing charge home to the accused. The Magistrate has to record his prima facie satisfaction for initiating criminal proceeding. When there are no specific allegations or averments with respect to the role played by them in their capacity as Chairman, Managing Director, Deputy General Manager, Planner or Executor, they cannot be arrayed as accused. The Supreme Court observed that the High Court had rightly dismissed the Revision filed by the appellant and had rightly affirmed the order passed by the learned Sessions Judge.

14. Having perused the observations made by Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Ravindranatha Bajpe (supra), this court has carefully gone through the complaint that was filed by the revisionist before the learned Additional Sessions Judge, Gonda, under the Drugs and Cosmetic Act, 1940. It is evident that in February, 2019, the complainant had collected a drug sample of Rabeprazole and Domperidone from a medical store during routine inspection. It was manufactured by M/s Corona Pharmaceuticals Pvt. Ltd., Kashipur, Udham Singh Nagar, Uttarakhand. The test analysis report declared it as sub standard quantity and not conforming to declared formula in respect of its content. The complainant had sent notice to the medical store concerned and on production of invoice of having bought it from the drug distributor concerned, had also sent notice to Manokamna Drug Distributor. The drug distributor sent invoice regard purchase of the same from another distributor and the origin of the drug was traced thereafter to the company itself i.e. M/s Corona Pharmaceuticals Pvt. Ltd., Kashipur, Udham Singh Nagar, Uttarakhand. On notice being sent, the company admitted that it had manufactured the capsule. A notice was sent to it to provide the name and address of the person responsible for day to day activities and Memorandum of Association of the company. The same was provided by the company saying that Pramod Arora and Suraj Arora were Directors of the Company and Mr. Kush Agarwal was the person responsible for day to day activities. A copy of the Memorandum of Association had been filed with the complaint which showed that Pramod Arora and Suraj Arora were Directors. On the basis of such information, the complaint was rightly filed.

15. It is the case of the revisionist herein that they had resigned on 10.12.2008 and information regarding the same was sent to the Directorate Medical Health & Family Welfare, Uttarakhand on 02.06.2011.

16. If such be the case, it can only be considered by the learned trial court at the time of discharge application having been moved by the revisionist.

17. It has been submitted by learned A.G.A. that under Chapter 19 of the Cr.P.C., there are two parts. Part A deals with the case instituted on a police report and Part B deals with the cases instituted otherwise than on a police report. In this case, the complaint case was filed by the Inspector of Drugs, U.P. in the office of the District Magistrate Balrampur after due authorization of the competent authority. It was therefore a complaint case under Drugs and Cosmetic Act which is a special act and therefore was filed before the Special Judge. Under Section 244 and 245 of the Cr.P.C., cognizance can be taken and discharge can be considered by the Sessions Judge.

18. Learned A.G.A. has pointed out that the general provision for filing discharge under Section 227 would apply also in such cases even though filed under the special act therefore the appropriate remedy for the revisionist is to approach the learned trial court and file appropriate discharge application when his case regarding his specific role can also be considered by the learned trial court. The orders summoning the accused in this case can only be passed on the contents of the complaint and prima facie role having been assigned by the complainant to the Directors of the company.

19. Having heard the learned counsel for the parties, this Court is of the considered opinion that the Additional Sessions Judge, Gonda, had not erred in summoning the accused. It is now for the accused to file discharge application and show that they had resigned in 2011, and the manufacturing of drug which was found to be sub standard was much later in the year 2018-2019 and as such they cannot be held responsible for such act of the company.

20. The Revision is dismissed with the liberty to the revisionist to file appropriate discharge application through counsel within three weeks from today. The procedure prescribed in law shall be followed by the learned Additional District and Sessions Judge, Gonda, and reasoned and speaking order thereafter be passed on such application.

1. Heard learned counsel for the revisionist and learned AGA for the State.

2. This revision has been filed challenging the order dated 01.12.2021 passed by the Additional District & Session Judge/Special Court CBI No.06, Lucknow in Criminal Case No. 3444/2019 Crime No. 09 (A) of 2014 under Section 120-B, 409, 420, 468, 471 I.P.C. and 13 (2) readwith 13(1)D Prevention of Corruption Act.

3. It has been submitted by learned counsel for the revisionist that the revisionist's application under Section 173 (8) of the Cr.P.C. for further investigation has been rejected by means of the judgement impugned.

4. It has been further submitted by the learned counsel for the revisionist that charge-sheet was filed on 15.03.2017 on the basis of records and evidences collected by the Investigating Officer, but in para 16.30 of the charge-sheet the Investigating Officer has mentioned that the opinion/report of the Central Forensic Laboratory(CFSL) Chandigarh in respect of the questioned handwritings and signatures is awaited, which will be submitted in the Court as & when it is received. It has also been submitted that when he be came aware that the CFSL report was sent to the Investigating Officer only on 03.05.2017, and no definite opinion was expressed with regard to certain documents being in the handwriting of the accused/revisionist, the revisionist filed an application on 25.11.2021 for further investigation on the ground that the charge-sheet has been filed without waiting for the CFSL report. Also the CFSL expert has requested for other specimens to be provided to him to submit a definite opinion. Therefore, it can be deemed that no fair investigation was carried out by the Investigating Agency. Only the CFSL report can prove the alleged offences against the revisionist, therefore, a request was made that the learned trial court should direct further investigation by sending other specimen of the accused handwriting for a definite opinion by the CFSL expert.

5. Sri Shiv. P. Shukla, learned counsel for the CBI has pointed from the report of the CFSL Scientist, which has been filed as annexure-03 of the application of interim relief, that in the first page itself, there is a mention of the specimen that were provided of writing of the revisionist. They were mentioned in Sub-para 1 from S1 to S39, S65 to S104, S125 to S129, S136 to S147 and S160 to S171. There were other specimens provided of other accused, namely, Pateshwari Prasad Shukla, Ravindra Kumar Shukla, Arvind Kumar Shukla, Ravi Prakash Mishra, Rajesh Kumar Goel, Raj Kumar Goel, Vishal Kumar Mathur, Rakesh Singh, Ashok Kumar Awasthi, Krishna Tripathi and Mahendra Kumar Jain. It is not with respect to the revisionist alone that the scientist has made observations in paragraph 8, which has been relied upon by the learned counsel for the revisionist. It is with respect to other accused, whereas certain other documents have definitely been found to be written by the accused/revisionist. The opinion that has been expressed by the Scientist is definite with respect to the accused/revisionist only. Some specimens were found questionable, and therefor,e corroboratory evidence are asked for by the CFSL expert.

6. It has been submitted by the learned counsel for the opposite party that no application by the accused under Section 173 (8) of the Cr.P.C. is maintainable. He has read out the entire Section 173 of the Cr.P.C. to show that it is part of a scheme of 8 Sub-Sections. They all relate to the Investigating Agency/Officer making a request for further investigation or a Magistrate on its own Suo-Moto coming to a conclusion that further investigation is necessary, could order the same. There was in the Section itself that if any right of the accused/revisionist to make such an application he has referred to a judgement rendered by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Athul Rao vs. State of Karnataka decided on 18.08.2017 reported in 2018 (14) SCC 298, where the Hon'ble Supreme Court relied upon its earlier judgement in Amrutbhai Shambhubhai Patel vs. Sumanbhai

Kantibhai Patel and others 2017 (4) SCC 177 relevant paragraph 50 of the judgement is quoted herein below:-

"The unamended and amended Sub-Section 8 of Section 173 of the Code if read in juxtaposition, would overwhelmingly attest that by the latter, the Investigating Agency/Officer alone has been authorised to conduct further investigation without limiting the stage of the proceedings relatable thereto. The power qua the Investigating Agency/Officer is thus legislatively intended to be available at any stage of the proceedings. The recommendation of the Law Commission in its 41st Report which manifestly heralded the amendment, significantly had limited its proposal to the empowerment of the investigating agency alone."

7. Learned counsel for the revisionist, on the other hand, has placed reliance upon the judgement rendered by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Vinubhai Haribhai Malviya and Others Vs. State of Gujrat and Another 2019 (17) SCC 1.

8. This Court has considered paragraph 25 of the Judgement which has been relied upon by the learned counsel for the revisionist and finds that there is no specific direction issued by the Hon'ble Supreme Court that even the accused can file an application under Section 173 (8) for further investigation.

9. This Court has also considered the order of the learned trial court rejecting the application of the revisionist. Learned trial court has considered the fact that the discharge application of the revisionist is already pending before it and that charge-sheet had not been submitted only on the basis of the CFSL report, there were other attending circumstances and evidences that were relied upon to submit the said charge-sheet and also that even after investigation is closed, under Section 173 (8), the Investigating Agency can file an application or the learned trial court can itself direct further investigation. It is not as if only the CFSL report shall be relied upon by the learned trial court in convicting the accused. As and when evidences are led in the matter, the accused shall have opportunity to question the report and its validity. It has also been observed by the learned trial court that the accused's file had been separated from the original case file on 24.10.2019, it was received in the trial court on 03.03.2020 alongwith application, the case had been continuously listed since 22.09.2021 for arguments on discharge application of the accused. Therefore, at that stage, where the trial had to be still initiated, no application under Section 173 (8) (B) by the accused could have been entertained. A date has also been fixed for hearing arguments on the discharge application by the learned trial court.

10. This Court finds no good ground to show interference in this revision.

11. Accordingly, this revision stands rejected.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Vikas Budhwar, J.)

1. Heard Sri Dharmendra Singh, learned counsel for the revisionist and learned AGA, who appears for the opposite party no.1.

2. The revisionist has filed the present revision challenging the order dated 4.9.2021 passed by Additional Judicial Magistrate, Moradabad in Misc. Case No.1129 of 2021 Ashok Kumar Vs. Smt. Mohini Mishra, whereby whereunder the court below has rejected the application preferred by the revisionist under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. for lodging the first information report against opposite parties no. 2 to 9.

3. As per case set up by the revisionist, revisionist is a social worker, who is effectively involved in social work and he continuously prefers application under Right To Information Act, 2005 on account whereof the opposite party no.2 bore personal enmity with him.

4. The revisionist has further come up with the case that the villagers approach him regarding solving their of difficulties and problems. Revisionist was also in aspirant for contesting the elections of the office of Pradhan. However, the same was earmarked as a woman seat, the revisionist made her mother the contestant on account whereof the opposite party no.2 became annoyed as according to the opposite party no.2 the mother of the revisionist was bound to win the elections of the office of the Pradhan and she would expose opposite party no.2 with respect to misappropriation so committed by the opposite party no.2 with regard to public money.

5. The revisionist has also alleged that on 16.2.2021, the fair price shop agent Sri Mahendra's husband Gajraj, Raju along with a Tangewala arrived on a road in front of the house of the revisionist and he called the revisionist but the mother of the revisionist came out of the house and then the aforesaid persons asked about the whereabouts of the revisionist and when the mother of the revisionist informed them that the revisionist is not in the house then the fair price shop agent husband Gajraj and Tangewala requested the mother of the revisionist to store the food-grains referable to Public Distribution Scheme (PDS) in the house of the revisionist as Tanga is not in a position to move. When the mother of the revisionist resisted then opposite party no.2 and the earlier Pradhan Rajendra spread rumour that the food-grains related to public distribution scheme is in the house of the revisionist and then they informed the police. The mother of the revisionist resisted the said act and omission of the opposite party but Rajendra and Jai Hind had beaten up the mother of the revisionist and they also entered into house forcibly and also had beaten the sister and the younger brother of the revisionist.

6. According to the revisionist, the incident which occurred on 16.2.2021 was informed to the police for registration of the FIR, however, the first information report was not lodged then the revisionist preferred an application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. which has been came to be rejected by the order under challenge dated 4.9.2021 passed by Chief Judicial Magistrate, Moradabad in Complaint Case No.1129 of 2021, Ashok Vs. Mohini and others.

7. The revisionist being aggrieved against the order dated 6.9.2021 passed by the Chief Judicial Magistrate, Moradabad in Complaint Case No.1129 of 2001, Ashok Vs. Mohini and others is before this Court while filing the present revision.

8. Before proceeding further it is apt to discuss and analyse the statutory provisions purported to be under Section 397/401 Cr.P.C., 1973 as applicable in the State of U.P.

"397. Calling for records to exercise powers of revision.

(1) The High Court or any Sessions Judge may call for and examine the record of any proceeding before any inferior Criminal Court situate within its or his local jurisdiction for the purpose of satisfying itself or himself as to the correctness, legality or propriety of any finding, sentence or order,- recorded or passed, and as to the regularity of any proceedings of such inferior Court, and may, when calling for such record, direct that the execution of any sentence or order be suspended, and if the accused is in confinement, that he be released on bail or on his own bond pending the examination of the record.

Explanation.- All Magistrates whether Executive or Judicial, and whether exercising original or appellate jurisdiction, shall be deemed to be inferior to the Sessions Judge for the purposes of this sub- section and of section 398.

(2) The powers of revision conferred by sub- section (1) shall not be exercised in relation to any interlocutory order passed in any appeal, inquiry, trial or other proceeding.

(3) If an application under this section has been made by any person either to the High Court or to the Sessions Judge, no further application by the same person shall be entertained by the other of them.

401. High Court' s Powers of revisions.

(1) In the case of any proceeding the record of which has been called for by itself or Which otherwise comes to its knowledge, the High Court may, in its discretion, exercise any of the powers conferred on a Court of Appeal by sections 386, 389, 390 and 391 or on a Court of Session by section 307 and, when the Judges composing the Court of revision are equally divided in opinion, the case shall be disposed of in the manner provided by section 392.

(2) No order under this section shall be made to the prejudice of the accused or other person unless he has had an opportunity of being heard either personally or by pleader in his own defence.

(3) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to authorise a High Court to convert a finding of acquittal into one of conviction.

(4) Where under this Code an appeal lies and no appeal is brought, no proceeding by way of revision shall be entertained at the instance of the party who could have appealed.

(5) Where under this Code tan appeal lies but an application for revision has been made to the High Court by any person and the High Court Is satisfied that such application was made under the erroneous belief that no appeal lies thereto and that it is necessary in the interests of justice

so to do, the High Court may treat the application for revision as a petition of appeal and deal with the same accordingly."

9. A conjoint reading of the provisions contained under Section 397 as well as 401 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, it will clearly reveal that High Court of any Sessions Judge may call for and examine the record of any proceedings before any inferior criminal court situate within its or its local jurisdiction for the purposes of satisfying itself or himself as to the correctness, legality or probability of any finding, sentence or order recorded or passed and as to the regularity of any proceedings of such inferior court.

10. The issue with regard to the scope and the extent of revisional jurisdiction under Section 391 read with Section 401 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 is no more res integra as the Hon'ble Supreme Court and this Court in catena of decisions interpreted the same which is being recapitulated hereunder:-

11. The Apex Court in the case of K. Chinnaswamy Reddy Vs. State of Andhra Pradesh and another reported in AIR 1962, S.C. 1788 in para 7 observed as under :-

"7. It is true that it is open to a High Court in revision to set aside an order of acquittal even at the instance of private parties, though the State may not have though fit to appeal; but this jurisdiction should in our opinion be exercised by the High Court only in exceptional cases, when there is some glaring defect in the procedure or there is a manifest error on a point of law and consequently there has been a flagrant miscarriage of justice. Sub-section (4) of s. 439 forbids a High Court from converting a finding of acquittal into one of conviction and that makes it all the more incumbent on the High Court to see that it does not convert the finding of acquittal into one of conviction by the indirect method of ordering retrial, when it cannot itself directly convert a finding of acquittal into a finding of conviction. This places limitations on the power of the High Court to set aside a finding of acquittal in revision and it is only in exceptional cases that this power should be exercised. It is not possible to lay down the criteria for determining such exceptional cases which would cover all contingencies. We may however indicate some cases of this kind, which would in our opinion justify the High Court in interfering with a finding of acquittal in revision. These cases may be : where the trial court has no jurisdiction to try the case but has still acquitted the accused, or where the trial court has wrongly shut out evidence which the prosecution wished of produce, or where the appeal court has wrongly held evidence which was admitted by the trial court to be inadmissible, or where material evidence has been overlooked either by the trial court or by the appeal court, or where the acquittal is based on a compounding of the offence, which is invalid under the law.

These and other cases of similar nature can properly be held to be cases of exceptional nature, where the High Court can justifiably interfere with an order of acquittal; and in such a case it is obvious that it cannot be said that the High Court was doing indirectly what it could not do directly in view of the provisions of s. 439.

(4) We have therefore to see whether the order of the High Court setting aside the order of acquittal in this case can be upheld on these principles."

12. The Apex Court in the case of Mahendra Pratap Singh Vs. Sarju Singh and another reported in AIR (55) 1968, S.C. 707 in para 7 observed as under:-

"7. In revision, the learned Judge in the High Court went into the evidence very minutely. He questioned every single finding of the learned Sessions Judge and gave his own interpretation of the evidence and the inferences to be drawn from it. He discounted the theory that the weapon of attack was a revolver and suggested that it might have been a shot gun or country made pistol which the villagers in the position of Kuldip and Sarju could not distinguish from a revolver. He then took up each single circumstance on which the learned Sessions Judge had found some doubt and interpreting the evidence de novo held, contrary to the opinion of the Sessions Judge that they were acceptable. All the time he appeared to give the benefit of the doubt to the prosecution. The only error of law which the learned Judge found in the Sessions Judge's judgment was a remark by the Sessions Judge that the defence witnesses who were examined by the police before they were brought as defence witnesses ought to have been cross-examined with reference to their previous statements recorded by the police, which obviously is against the provisions of the Code. Except for this error, no defect of procedure or of law was discovered by the learned Judge of the High Court in his appraisal of the judgment of the Sessions Judge. As stated already by us, he seems to have gone into the matter as if an appeal against acquittal was before him making no distinction between the appellate and the revisional powers exercisable by the High Court in matters of acquittal except to the extent that instead of convicting the appellant he only ordered his retrial. In our opinion the learned Judge was clearly in error in proceeding as he did in a revision filed by a private party against the acquittal reached in the Court of Session."

13. The Apex Court in the case of Johar and Ors. vs. Mangal Prasad and Ors. reported in 2008 Cr. L.J. 1627 in paras 9, 10, 11, 12, 13 has observed as under:-

"9. Revisional jurisdiction of the High Court in terms of Section 397 read with Section 401 of the Code of Criminal Procedure is limited. The High Court did not point out any error of law on the part of the learned Trial Judge. It was not opined that any relevant evidence has been left out of its consideration by the court below or irrelevant material has been taken into consideration. The High Court entered into the merit of the matter. It commented upon the credentiality of the Autopsy Surgeon. It sought to re- appreciate the whole evidence. One possible view was sought to be substituted by another possible view.

10. Sub-section (3) of Section 401 reads as under:

401(3). Nothing in this section shall be deemed to authorize a High Court to convert a finding of acquittal into one of conviction.

Technically, although Ms. Makhija may be correct that the High Court has not converted the judgment of acquittal passed by the learned Trial Court to a judgment of conviction, but for arriving at a finding as to whether the High Court has exceeded its jurisdiction or not, the approach of the High Court must be borne in mind. For the said purpose, we may notice a few precedents.

11. In D. Stephens v. Nosibolla [1951] 1 SCR 284 this Court opined:

10. The revisional jurisdiction conferred on the High Court under Section 439 of the Code of Criminal Procedure is not to be lightly exercised when it is invoked by a private complainant against an order of acquittal, against which the Government has a right of appeal under Section 417. It could be exercised only in exceptional cases where the interests of public justice require interference for the correction of a manifest illegality, or the prevention of a gross miscarriage of justice. This jurisdiction is not ordinarily invoked or used merely because the lower court has taken a wrong view of the law or misappreciated the evidence on record.

12. The same principle was reiterated in Logendra Nath Jha and Ors. v. Polailal Biswas [1951 SCR676] stating:

...Though Sub-section (1) of Section 439 authorises the High Court to exercise, in its discretion, any of the powers conferred on a court of appeal by Section 423, Sub-section (4) specifically excludes the power to "convert a finding of acquittal into one of conviction". This does not mean that in dealing with a revision petition by a private party against an order of acquittal the High Court could in the absence of any error on a point of law re-appraise the evidence and reverse the findings of facts on which the acquittal was based, provided only it stopped short of finding the accused guilty and passing sentence on him. By merely characterizing the judgment of the trial court as "perverse" and "lacking in perspective", the High Court cannot reverse pure findings of fact based on the trial Court's appreciation of the evidence in the case. That is what the learned Judge in the court below has done, but could not, in our opinion, properly do on an application in revision filed by a private party against acquittal....

13. In the instant case the High Court not only entered into the merit of the matter but also analysed the depositions of all the witnesses examined on behalf of the prosecution. It, in particular, went to the extent of criticizing the testimony of Autopsy Surgeon. It relied upon the evidence of the so called eye witnesses to hold that although appellants herein had inflicted injuries on the head of the deceased, Dr. Y.K. Malaiya, PW-9, deliberately suppressed the same. He was, for all intent and purport, found guilty of the offence under Section 193 and 196 of the Indian Penal Code. The Autopsy Surgeon was not cross-examined by the State. He was not declared hostile. The State did not even prefer any appeal against the judgment."

14. In the case of State of Kerala Vs. Puttumana Illath Jathavedan Namboodiri reported in 1999(2) SCC 452, the Hon'ble Supreme Court interpreted the scope and the extent jurisdiction to be exercised by High Court under the provisions contained under Section 397/401 of the Code of Criminal Procedure.

"5..... In its revisional jurisdiction, the High Court can call for and examine the record of any proceedings for the purpose of satisfying itself as to the correctness, legality or propriety of any finding, sentence or order. In other words, the jurisdiction is one of supervisory jurisdiction exercised by the High Court for correcting miscarriage of justice. But the said revisional power cannot be equated with the power of an appellate court nor can it be treated even as a second appellate jurisdiction. Ordinarily, therefore, it would not be appropriate for the High Court to reappreciate the evidence and come to its own conclusion on the same when the evidence has already been appreciated by the Magistrate as well as the Sessions Judge in appeal, unless any glaring feature is brought to the notice of the High Court which would otherwise tantamount to gross miscarriage of justice. On scrutinizing the impugned judgment of the High Court from the aforesaid standpoint, we have no hesitation to come to the conclusion that the High Court exceeded its jurisdiction in interfering with the conviction of the Respondent by reappreciating the oral evidence....."

15. Yet in the case of Sanjaysinh Ramrao Chavan Vs. Dattatray Gulabrao Phalke, reported in (2015) 3 SCC 123, Hon'ble Supreme Court observed as under:-

"14..... Unless the order passed by the Magistrate is perverse or the view taken by the court is wholly unreasonable or there is non-consideration of any relevant material or there is palpable misreading of records, the Revisional Court is not justified in setting aside the order, merely because another view is possible. The Revisional Court is not meant to act as an appellate court. The whole purpose of the revisional jurisdiction is to preserve the power in the court to do justice in accordance with the principles of criminal jurisprudence. The revisional power of the court Under Sections 397 to 401 Code of Criminal Procedure is not to be equated with that of an appeal. Unless the finding of the court, whose decision is sought to be revised, is shown to be perverse or untenable in law or is grossly erroneous or glaringly unreasonable or where the decision is based on no material or where the material facts are wholly ignored or where the judicial discretion is exercised arbitrarily or capriciously, the courts may not interfere with decision in exercise of their revisional jurisdiction."

16. The aforesaid two judgments in the case of Kishan Rao vs. Shankargouda (2018) 8 SCC 165 in para 14 observed as under:-

"14. In the above case also conviction of the Accused was recorded, the High Court set aside the order of conviction by substituting its own view. This Court set aside the High Court's order holding that the High Court exceeded its jurisdiction in substituting its views and that too without any legal basis."

17. From the legal proposition so culled out by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the aforesaid decisions itself goes to show that the power so exercised under Section 397/401 of the Code of Criminal Procedure is limited and until and unless the order so challenged therein passed by the Magistrate is perverse or the view taken by the Court wholly unreasonable or there is non-consideration of any relevant material or there is palpable misreading of record, the revisional court is not justified in interfering with the order that too merely because also another view is possible.

18. In nutshell, the Hon'ble Apex Court has cautioned the High Court not to act as an appellate court as the whole purpose of revisional jurisdiction is to preserve the power in the court to do justice in accordance with the principles of criminal procedure.

19. Now, the present case in hand is to be decided in the light of the principles of the law laid down by the Hon'ble Apex Court while exercising the powers under Section 397/401 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973.

20. Learned counsel for the revisionist had argued that they were sufficient material before the court below for lodging of the first information report under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. and thus the application preferred by the revisionist for lodging of the FIR has been rejected in illegal manner without going through the documents available on record.

21. Learned AGA has refuted the contention of the revisionist and has supported the order under challenge while contenting that there was no material available on record so as to warrant issuance of a direction for lodging the FIR under Section 156(3) of the Cr.P.C.

22. Having gone through the pleading on record and after considering the arguments of the learned counsel for the revisionist, the undisputed position emerges that an application was preferred by the revisionist under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. for lodging of an FIR.

23. The court below has applied its mind while going through the contends of the allegations mentioned in the application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. and has recorded a clear cut finding of fact that the present case did not warrant any direction for lodging an FIR as according to the court below. It is clear that already proceedings under Section 3/7 of the Essential Commodities Act, 1955 has been lodged against the revisionist. Further, there is a report of the concerned police station that in the house of the revisionist itself the food-grains of mid day meal was found and thus proceedings were initiated under Section 3/7 of the E.C. Act.

24. For the amongst other grounds, this is also one of the grounds which has been taken note by the court below while rejecting the application preferred by the revisionist.

25. The issue with respect to exercise of powers under Section 156(3) of the Code of Criminal Procedure has also been taken note in the case of Priyanka Srivastava and Ors. vs. State of U.P. and Ors. reported in AIR 2015 SC 1758 wherein para 26 and 27 following has observed:-

"26. At this stage it is seemly to state that power Under Section 156(3) warrants application of judicial mind. A court of law is involved. It is not the police taking steps at the stage of Section 154 of the code. A litigant at his own whim cannot invoke the authority of the Magistrate. A principled and really grieved citizen with clean hands must have free access to invoke the said power. It protects the citizens but when pervert litigations takes this route to harass their fellows citizens, efforts are to be made to scuttle and curb the same.

27. In our considered opinion, a stage has come in this country where Section 156(3) Code of Criminal Procedure applications are to be supported by an affidavit duly sworn by the applicant who seeks the invocation of the jurisdiction of the Magistrate. That apart, in an appropriate case, the learned Magistrate would be well advised to verify the truth and also can verify the veracity of the allegations. This affidavit can make the applicant more responsible. We are compelled to say so as such kind of applications are being filed in a routine manner without taking any responsibility whatsoever only to harass certain persons. That apart, it becomes more disturbing and alarming when one tries to pick up people who are passing orders under a statutory provision which can be challenged under the framework of said Act or Under Article 226 of the Constitution of India. But it cannot be done to take undue advantage in a criminal court as if somebody is determined to settle the scores. We have already indicated that there has to be prior applications Under Section 154(1) and 154(3) while filing a petition Under Section 156(3). Both the aspects should be clearly spelt out in the application and necessary documents to that effect shall be filed. The warrant for giving a direction that an the application Under Section 156(3) be supported by an affidavit so that the person making the application should be conscious and also endeavour to see that no false affidavit is made. It is because once an affidavit is found to be false, he will be liable for prosecution in accordance with law. This will deter him to casually invoke the authority of the Magistrate Under Section 156(3). That apart, we have already stated that the veracity of the same can also be verified by the learned Magistrate, regard being had to the nature of allegations of the case. We are compelled to say so as a number of cases pertaining to fiscal sphere, matrimonial dispute/family disputes, commercial offences, medical negligence cases, corruption cases and the cases where there is abnormal delay/laches in initiating criminal prosecution, as are illustrated in Lalita Kumari are being filed. That apart, the learned Magistrate would also be aware of the delay in lodging of the FIR."

26. The Full Bench of this Hon'ble Court in Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No.3672 of 2000 decided on 27.4.2001, Rambabu Gupta Vs. State of U.P. in para 17 observed as under:-

"17. In view of the aforesaid discussion on the legal provisions and decisions of the Supreme Court as on date, it is hereby held that on receiving a complaint, the Magistrate has to apply his mind to the allegations in the complaint upon which he may not at once proceed to take cognizance and may order it to go to the police station for being registered and investigated. The Magistrate's order must indicate application of mind. If the Magistrate takes cognizance, he proceeds to follow the procedure provided in Chapter XV of Cr P.C. The first question stands answered thus."

27. Yet a Division Bench of this Court in Criminal Misc. Application No.9297 of 2007 decided on 18.9.2007. A Division Bench of this Court in the case of Sukhbali Vs. State of Uttar Pradesh reported in 2007 (59) ACC 739 in para 22 has observed as under:-

"22. Applications under Section 156(3) Cr. P.C. are now coming in torrents. Provisions under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. should be used sparingly. They should not be used unless there is something unusual and extra ordinary like miscarriage of justice, which warrants a direction to the Police to register a case. Such applications should not be allowed because the law provides them with an alternative remedy of filing a complaint, therefore, recourse should not normally be permitted for availing the provisions of Section 156(3) Cr.P.C."

28. A judicial notice has been taken by this Court in the case of Sukhbali (Supra) that applications under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. are now coming in torrent and thus exercise of the powers under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. should be used sparingly and not in routine manner.

29. The Court finds that pure findings of fact has been recorded which has not been disputed by the revisionist either by means of arguments or by pleading.

30. No other point has been raised by learned counsel for the applicant.

31. Accordingly, the application is dismissed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Vikas Budhwar, J.)

1. Heard Sri Manoj Kumar Tripathi, learned counsel for the revisionist and learned A.G.A. for the State.

2. The present criminal revision purported to be u/s 397/401 of Cr.P.C. has been instituted challenging the summoning order dated 21.11.2020 passed by learned Additional District and Sessions Judge/Special Judge, POCSO Act, Hapur in Application u/s 319 Cr.P.C. arising out of Special Sessions Trial No. 35 of 2016 as well as case crime no. 218 of 2016, u/s 363, 376 (2) (I) IPC and section 4 of POCSO Act and section 3(2)(5) SC/ST Act, P.S. Hapur Nagar, District Hapur (Sate Vs. Rahul and others) whereby the revisionist has been summoned by the court below in exercise of powers u/s 319 Cr.P.C. 1973.

3. Record reveals that the FIR was lodged by the opposite party no. 2 reporting that the incident took place on 17.01.2016 at 08:35 p.m. wherein the minor daughter being Ms. Chanchal aged about 15 years had gone out of her house to bring sugar and when she did not return after lapsing of sufficient time then the opposite party no. 2 being father of the victim along with other relatives who remain present started searching the victim and after a period of about two months i.e. on 17.03.2016 the victim being Ms. Chanchal herself came back and on making inquiry from her she informed that on 17.01.2016 when she had gone to buy sugar from the nearby shop then Rahul S/o Darshan,R/o Village Achchheja, Hapur Nagar, District Hapur was present there and exerted pressure and force upon the victim and he took her to Keshav Nagar in a house in the Footi Line where the victim was kept in confinement and Rahul S/o Darshan kept on committing rape with her and one day the wife of Rahul being Suman (the applicant) herein came and when the victim requested her that she may be allow to go to her house as she wanted to live with her parents but Suman W/o Rahul did not render any help and told the victim that she has to remain here and she cannot move from there. Thereafter, Suman left the place and Rahul thereafter, kept on committing rape against her wish. Accordingly, the opposite party no. 2, father of the victim had lodged the FIR on 17.03.2016 before the police station Hapur Nagar being case crime no. 218 of 2016 and on 17.03.2016 purported to be u/s 363, 376 (2) (I) , 120-B IPC and Section 3/4 POCSO Act.

4. The statement of the victim (Ms. Chanchal) purported to be under section 161 Cr.P.C. was recorded which was conformity and consonance with the allegation contained in the FIR dated 17.03.2016. Subsequently, on 18.03.2016 the statement of the victim was also recorded u/s 164 Cr. P.C. It has also come on record that the statement of opposite party no. 2 being father of the victim was also recorded. Further this Court finds that during investigation, the Investigating Officer also recorded statements of the witnesses being Satish, Smt. Pooja, Smt. Malti Devi and Shivbaran Singh u/s 161 Cr.P.C. and they have also supported the statement of the victim.

5. Thereafter, on 02.05.2016 a charge sheet was submitted by the Investigating Officer in case crime no. 218 of 2016 bearing no. 196 of 2016, u/s 363, 376 (2) (I) IPC and Section 3/4 POCSO Act and section 3(2)(5) SC/ST Act against the husband of the applicant, namely, Rahul only. However, subsequently, on 20.11.2020 an application was preferred by the opposite party no. 2 that the charge sheet has only been submitted against Rahul not against the applicant being Smt. Suman, Layak Ram and Raja Ram who were also named in the FIR dated 17.03.2016 and they have been exonerated despite the fact that they had also committed the offence as sought to be revealed in pursuance of lodging of the FIR.

6. The court of Additional District and Sessions Judge/ Special Judge, POCSO Act, Hapur has now exercised its power u/s 319 Cr.P.C. 1973 while summoning the applicants.

7. The applicant being aggrieved against the order dated 21.11.2020 passed by the court u/s 319 Cr.P.C. in the proceedings in Special Sessions Trial No. 35 of 2016, has instituted the present revision.

8. The moot question which falls for consideration before this Court in the proceedings u/s 397/401 of Cr.P.C. is as to whether the order passed by the court below along with the application u/s 319 Cr.P.C. is within the parameters as set out in the said provisions.

9. For the ready reference section 319 of the Cr.P.C. 1973 is quoted hereinunder.

"319. Power to proceed against other persons appearing to be guilty of offence.--

(1) Where, in the course of any inquiry into, or trial of, an offence, it appears from the evidence that any person not being the accused has committed any offence for which such person could be tried together with the accused, the Court may proceed against such person for the offence which he appears to have committed.

(2) Where such person is not attending the Court, he may be arrested or summoned, as the circumstances of the case may require, for the purpose aforesaid.

(3) Any person attending the Court, although not under arrest or upon a summons, may be detained by such Court for the purpose of the inquiry into, or trial of, the offence which he appears to have committed.

(4) Where the Court proceeds against any person under sub-section (1), then--

(a) the proceedings in respect of such person shall be commenced afresh, and the witnesses re-heard;

(b) subject to the provisions of clause (a), the case may proceed as if such person had been an accused person when the Court took cognizance of the offence upon which the inquiry or trial was commenced."

10. The issue with respect to the scope and ambit of the powers so conferred upon the Magistrate u/s 319 Cr.P.C. 1973 is no more res integra as the Constitutional Bench of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Hardeep Singh Vs. State of Punjab reported in 2014 (3) SCC 92 has observed as under:-

"8. The Constitutional mandate under Articles 20 and 21 of the Constitution of India, 1950 (hereinafter referred to as the "Constitution') provides a protective umbrella for the smooth administration of justice making adequate provisions to ensure a fair and efficacious trial so that the accused does not get prejudiced after the law has been put into motion to try him for the offence but at the same time also gives equal protection to victims and to the society at large to ensure that the guilty does not get away from the clutches of law. For the empowerment of the courts to ensure that the criminal administration of justice works properly, the law was appropriately codified and modified by the legislature under the Cr.P.C. indicating as to how the courts should proceed in order to ultimately find out the truth so that an innocent does not get punished but at the same time, the guilty are brought to book under the law. It is these ideals as enshrined under the Constitution and our laws that have led to several decisions, whereby innovating methods and progressive tools have been forged to find out the real truth and to ensure that the guilty does not go unpunished.

9. The presumption of innocence is the general law of the land as every man is presumed to be innocent unless proven to be guilty. Alternatively, certain statutory presumptions in relation to certain class of offences have been raised against the accused whereby the presumption of guilt prevails till the accused discharges his burden upon an onus being cast upon him under the law to prove himself to be innocent. These competing theories have been kept in mind by the legislature. The entire effort, therefore, is not to allow the real perpetrator of an offence to get away unpunished. This is also a part of fair trial and in our opinion, in order to achieve this very end that the legislature thought of incorporating provisions of Section 319 Cr.P.C. It is with the said object in mind that a constructive and purposive interpretation should be adopted that advances the cause of justice and does not dilute the intention of the statute conferring powers on the court to carry out the above mentioned avowed object and purpose to try the person to the satisfaction of the court as an accomplice in the commission of the offence that is subject matter of trial.

10. In order to answer the aforesaid questions posed, it will be appropriate to refer to Section 351 of the Criminal Procedure Code, 1898 (hereinafter referred to as `Old Code'), where an analogous provision existed, empowering the court to summon any person other than the accused if he is found to be connected with the commission of the offence. However, when the new Cr.P.C. was being drafted, regard was had to 41st Report of the Law Commission where in the paragraphs 24.80 and 24.81 recommendations were made to make this provision more comprehensive. The said recommendations read:

"24.80 It happens sometimes, though not very often, that a Magistrate hearing a case against certain accused finds from the evidence that some person, other than the accused before him, is also concerned in that very offence or in a connected offence. It is proper that Magistrate should have the power to call and join him in proceedings. Section 351 provides for such a situation, but only if that person happens to be attending the Court. He can then be detained and proceeded against. There is no express provision in Section 351 for summoning such a person if he is not present in court. Such a provision would make Section 351 fairly comprehensive, and we think it proper to expressly provide for that situation.

24.81 Section 351 assumes that the Magistrate proceeding under it has the power of taking cognizance of the new case. It does not, however, say in what manner cognizance is taken by the Magistrate. The modes of taking cognizance are mentioned in Section 190, and are apparently exhaustive. The question is, whether against the newly added accused, cognizance will be supposed to have been taken on the Magistrates own information under Section 190(1), or only in the manner in which cognizance was first taken of the offence against the accused. The question is important, because the methods of inquiry and trial in the two cases differ. About the true position under the existing law, there has been difference of opinion, and we think it should be made clear. It seems to us that the main purpose of this particular provision is that the whole case against all known suspects should be proceeded with expeditiously and convenience requires that cognizance against the newly added accused should be taken in the same manner against the other accused. We, therefore, propose to recast Section 351 making it comprehensive and providing that there will be no difference in the mode of taking cognizance if a new person is added as an accused during the proceedings. It is, of course, necessary (as is already provided) that in such a situation the evidence must he reheard in the presence of the newly added accused."

11. Section 319 Cr.P.C. as it exists today, is quoted hereunder:

"319 Cr.P.C. -Power to proceed against other persons appearing to be guilty of offence.-

(1) Where, in the course of any inquiry into, or trial of, an offence, it appears from the evidence that any person not being the accused has committed any offence for which such person could be tried together with the accused, the Court may proceed against such person for the offence which he appears to have committed.

(2) Where such person is not attending the Court, he may be arrested or summoned, as the circumstances of the case may require, for the purpose aforesaid.

(3) Any person attending the Court, although not under arrest or upon a summons, may be detained by such Court for the purpose of the inquiry into, or trial of, the offence which he appears to have committed.

(4) Where the Court proceeds against any person under sub- section (1), then-

(a) the proceedings in respect of such person shall be commenced afresh, and the witnesses re-heard;

(b) subject to the provisions of clause (a), the case may proceed as if such person had been an accused person when the Court took cognizance of the offence upon which the inquiry or trial was commenced."

12. Section 319 Cr.P.C. springs out of the doctrine judex damnatur cum nocens absolvitur (Judge is condemned when guilty is acquitted) and this doctrine must be used as a beacon light while explaining the ambit and the spirit underlying the enactment of Section 319 Cr.P.C.

13. It is the duty of the Court to do justice by punishing the real culprit. Where the investigating agency for any reason does not array one of the real culprits as an accused, the court is not powerless in calling the said accused to face trial. The question remains under what circumstances and at what stage should the court exercise its power as contemplated in Section 319 Cr.P.C.?

14. The submissions that were raised before us covered a very wide canvas and the learned counsel have taken us through various provisions of Cr.P.C. and the judgments that have been relied on for the said purpose. The controversy centers around the stage at which such powers can be invoked by the court and the material on the basis whereof such powers can be exercised.

15. It would be necessary to put on record that the power conferred under Section 319 Cr.P.C. is only on the court. This has to be understood in the context that Section 319 Cr.P.C. empowers only the court to proceed against such person. The word "court" in our hierarchy of criminal courts has been defined under Section 6 Cr.P.C., which includes the Courts of Sessions, Judicial Magistrates, Metropolitan Magistrates as well as Executive Magistrates. The Court of Sessions is defined in Section 9 Cr.P.C. and the Courts of Judicial Magistrates has been defined under Section 11 thereof. The Courts of Metropolitan Magistrates has been defined under Section 16 Cr.P.C. The courts which can try offences committed under the Indian Penal Code, 1860 or any offence under any other law, have been specified under Section 26 Cr.P.C. read with First Schedule. The explanatory note (2) under the heading of "Classification of Offences" under the First Schedule specifies the expression "magistrate of first class' and "any magistrate' to include Metropolitan Magistrates who are empowered to try the offences under the said Schedule but excludes Executive Magistrates.

16. It is at this stage the comparison of the words used under Section 319 Cr.P.C. has to be understood distinctively from the word used under Section 2(g) defining an inquiry other than the trial by a magistrate or a court. Here the legislature has used two words, namely the magistrate or court, whereas under Section 319 Cr.P.C., as indicated above, only the word "court" has been recited. This has been done by the legislature to emphasise that the power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. is exercisable only by the court and not by any officer not acting as a court. Thus, the magistrate not functioning or exercising powers as a court can make an inquiry in particular proceeding other than a trial but the material so collected would not be by a court during the course of an inquiry or a trial. The conclusion therefore, in short, is that in order to invoke the power under Section 319 Cr.P.C., it is only a Court of Sessions or a Court of Magistrate performing the duties as a court under the Cr.P.C. that can utilise the material before it for the purpose of the said Section.

17. Section 319 Cr.P.C. allows the court to proceed against any person who is not an accused in a case before it. Thus, the person against whom summons are issued in exercise of such powers, has to necessarily not be an accused already facing trial. He can either be a person named in Column 2 of the chargesheet filed under Section 173 Cr.P.C. or a person whose name has been disclosed in any material before the court that is to be considered for the purpose of trying the offence, but not investigated. He has to be a person whose complicity may be indicated and connected with the commission of the offence.

18. The legislature cannot be presumed to have imagined all the circumstances and, therefore, it is the duty of the court to give full effect to the words used by the legislature so as to encompass any situation which the court may have to tackle while proceeding to try an offence and not allow a person who deserves to be tried to go scot free by being not arraigned in the trial in spite of possibility of his complicity which can be gathered from the documents presented by the prosecution."

11. The judgment in the case of Hardeep Singh (Supra) has also been considered and taken note in the judgment in the case of S. Mohammad Ispahani Vs. Yogendra Chandak and Others reported in (2017) 16 SCC 226 wherein paragraph nos. 28 and 29 the Hon'ble Apex Court has observed as under.

"28) Insofar as power of the Court under Section 319 of the Cr.P.C. to summon even those persons who are not named in the charge sheet to appear and face trial is concerned, the same is unquestionable. Section 319 of the Cr.P.C. is meant to rope in even those persons who were not implicated when the charge sheet was filed but during the trial the Court finds that sufficient evidence has come on record to summon them and face the trial. In Hardeep Singh's case, the Constitution Bench of this Court has settled the law in this behalf with authoritative pronouncement, thereby removing the cobweb which had been created while interpreting this provision earlier. As far as object behind Section 319 of the Cr.P.C. is concerned, the Court had highlighted the same as under:

"The court is sole repository of justice and a duty is cast upon it to uphold the rule of law and, therefore, it will be inappropriate to deny the existence of such powers with the courts in our criminal justice system where it is not uncommon that the real accused, at times, get away by manipulating the investigating and/or the prosecuting agency. The desire to avoid trial is so strong that an accused makes efforts at times to get himself absolved even at the stage of investigation or inquiry even though he may be connected with the commission of the offence."

29) At the same time, the Constitution Bench has clarified that the power under Section 319 of the Cr.P.C. can only be exercised on "evidence' recorded in the Court and not material gathered at the investigation stage, which has already been tested at the stage under Section 190 of the Cr.P.C. and issue of process under Section 204 of the Cr.P.C. This principle laid down in Hardeep Singh's case has been explained in Brjendra Singh and Others v. State of Rajasthan in the following manner:

"10. It also goes without saying that Section 319 CrPC, which is an enabling provision empowering the Court to 6 (2017) 7 SCC 706 Criminal Appeal No. 1720 of 2017 & Ors. appropriate steps for proceeding against any person, not being an accused, can be exercised at any time after the charge-sheet is filed and before the pronouncement of the judgment, except during the stage of Sections 207/208 CrPC, the committal, etc. which is only a pre-trial stage intended to put the process into motion.

11. In Hardeep Singh case , the Constitution Bench has also settled the controversy on the issue as to whether the word "evidence" used in Section 319(1) CrPC has been used in a comprehensive sense and indicates the evidence collected during investigation or the word "evidence" is limited to the evidence recorded during trial. It is held that it is that material, after cognizance is taken by the court, that is available to it while making an inquiry into or trying an offence, which the court can utilise or take into consideration for supporting reasons to summon any person on the basis of evidence adduced before the court. The word "evidence" has to be understood in its wider sense, both at the stage of trial and even at the stage of inquiry. It means that the power to proceed against any person after summoning him can be exercised on the basis of any such material as brought forth before it. At the same time, this Court cautioned that the duty and obligation of the court becomes more onerous to invoke such powers consciously on such material after evidence has been led during trial. The Court also clarified that " evidence" under Section 319 CrPC could even be examination-in-chief and the Court is not required to wait till such evidence is tested on cross-examination, as it is the satisfaction of the court which can be gathered from the reasons recorded by the court in respect of complicity of some other person(s) not facing trial in the offence.

12. The moot question, however, is the degree of satisfaction that is required for invoking the powers under Section 319 CrPC and the related question is as to in what situations this power should be exercised in respect of a person named in the FIR but not charge-sheeted. These two aspects were also specifically dealt with by the Constitution Bench in Hardeep Singh case and answered in the following manner: (SCC pp. 135 & 138, paras 95 & 105-106)

"95. At the time of taking cognizance, the court has to see whether a prima facie case is made out to proceed against the accused. Under Section 319 CrPC, though the test of prima facie case is the same, the degree of satisfaction that is required is much stricter. A two-Judge Bench Criminal Appeal No. 1720 of 2017 & Ors. this Court in Vikas v. State of Rajasthan [Vikas v. State of Rajasthan, (2014) 3 SCC 321 : (2014) 2 SCC (Cri) 172] , held that on the [Ed.: The words between two asterisks have been emphasised in original.] objective satisfaction [Ed.: The words between two asterisks have been emphasised in original.] of the court a person may be "arrested" or "summoned", as the circumstances of the case may require, if it appears from the evidence that any such person not being the accused has committed an offence for which such person could be tried together with the already arraigned accused persons.

105. Power under Section 319 CrPC is a discretionary and an extraordinary power. It is to be exercised sparingly and only in those cases where the circumstances of the case so warrant. It is not to be exercised because the Magistrate or the Sessions Judge is of the opinion that some other person may also be guilty of committing that offence. Only where strong and cogent evidence occurs against a person from the evidence led before the court that such power should be exercised and not in a casual and cavalier manner.

106. Thus, we hold that though only a prima facie case is to be established from the evidence led before the court, not necessarily tested on the anvil of cross-examination, it requires much stronger evidence than mere probability of his complicity. The test that has to be applied is one which is more than prima facie case as exercised at the time of framing of charge , but short of satisfaction to an extent that the evidence, if goes unrebutted, would lead to conviction. In the absence of such satisfaction, the court should refrain from exercising power under Section 319 CrPC. In Section 319 CrPC the purpose of providing if "it appears from the evidence that any person not being the accused has committed any offence" is clear from the words " [Ed.: The words between two asterisks have been emphasised in original.] for which such person could be tried together with the accused [Ed.: The words between two asterisks have been emphasised in original.] ". The words used are not "for which such person could be Criminal Appeal No. 1720 of 2017 & Ors. ". There is, therefore, no scope for the court acting under Section 319 CrPC to form any opinion as to the guilt of the accused."

13. In order to answer the question, some of the principles enunciated in Hardeep Singh case may be recapitulated: power under Section 319 CrPC can be exercised by the trial court at any stage during the trial i.e. before the conclusion of trial, to summon any person as an accused and face the trial in the ongoing case, once the trial court finds that there is some "evidence" against such a person on the basis of which evidence it can be gathered that he appears to be guilty of the offence. The "evidence" herein means the material that is brought before the court during trial. Insofar as the material/evidence collected by the IO at the stage of inquiry is concerned, it can be utilised for corroboration and to support the evidence recorded by the court to invoke the power under Section 319 CrPC. No doubt, such evidence that has surfaced in examination-in-chief, without cross-examination of witnesses, can also be taken into consideration. However, since it is a discretionary power given to the court under Section 319 CrPC and is also an extraordinary one, same has to be exercised sparingly and only in those cases where the circumstances of the case so warrant. The degree of satisfaction is more than the degree which is warranted at the time of framing of the charges against others in respect of whom charge-sheet was filed. Only where strong and cogent evidence occurs against a person from the evidence led before the court that such power should be exercised. It is not to be exercised in a casual or a cavalier manner. The prima facie opinion which is to be formed requires stronger evidence than mere probability of his complicity." (emphasis supplied)

12. The legislature was quite conscious while engrafting section 319 Cr.P.C. while employing the words "in the course of any inquiry into, or trial of, an offence, it appears from the evidence". The aforesaid words so employed under section 319 Cr.P.C. itself shows that degree of satisfaction has to be accorded by the Magistrate while exercising powers u/s 319 Cr.P.C.

13. Obviously, degree of satisfaction defers from case to case and according to the degree of satisfaction the test to be applied as one should be more than prima facie case at the stage of framing of charges. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Hardeep Singh (Supra) has observed as under:-

"93. Section 319(1) Cr.P.C. empowers the court to proceed against other persons who appear to be guilty of offence, though not an accused before the court. The word "appear" means "clear to the comprehension", or a phrase near to, if not synonymous with "proved". It imparts a lesser degree of probability than proof.

94. In Pyare Lal Bhargava v. The State of Rajasthan, AIR 1963 SC 1094, a four-Judge Bench of this Court was concerned with the meaning of the word "appear'. The court held that the appropriate meaning of the word "appears' is "seems'. It imports a lesser degree of probability than proof. In Ram Singh & Ors. v. Ram Niwas & Anr., (2009) 14 SCC 25, a two-Judge Bench of this Court was again required to examine the importance of the word "appear' as appearing in the Section. The Court held that for the fulfillment of the condition that it appears to the court that a person had committed an offence, the court must satisfy itself about the existence of an exceptional circumstance enabling it to exercise an extraordinary jurisdiction. What is, therefore, necessary for the court is to arrive at a satisfaction that the evidence adduced on behalf of the prosecution, if unrebutted, may lead to conviction of the persons sought to be added as an accused in the case.

95. At the time of taking cognizance, the court has to see whether a prima facie case is made out to proceed against the accused. Under Section 319 Cr.P.C., though the test of prima facie case is the same, the degree of satisfaction that is required is much stricter. A two- Judge Bench of this Court in Vikas v. State of Rajasthan, 2013 (11) SCALE 23, held that on the objective satisfaction of the court a person may be 'arrested' or 'summoned', as the circumstances of the case may require, if it appears from the evidence that any such person not being the accused has committed an offence for which such person could be tried together with the already arraigned accused persons.

96. In Rajendra Singh (Supra), the Court observed:

"Be it noted, the court need not be satisfied that he has committed an offence. It need only appear to it that he has committed an offence. In other words, from the evidence it need only appear to it that someone else has committed an offence, to exercise jurisdiction under Section 319 of the Code. Even then, it has a discretion not to proceed, since the expression used is "may" and not "shall". The legislature apparently wanted to leave that discretion to the trial court so as to enable it to exercise its jurisdiction under this section. The expression "appears" indicates an application of mind by the court to the evidence that has come before it and then taking a decision to proceed under Section 319 of the Code or not."

97. In Mohd. Shafi (Supra), this Court held that it is evident that before a court exercises its discretionary jurisdiction in terms of Section 319 Cr.P.C., it must arrive at a satisfaction that there exists a possibility that the accused so summoned in all likelihood would be convicted.

98. In Sarabjit Singh & Anr. v. State of Punjab & Anr., AIR 2009 SC 2792, while explaining the scope of Section 319 Cr.P.C., a two-Judge Bench of this Court observed:

"....For the aforementioned purpose, the courts are required to apply stringent tests; one of the tests being whether evidence on record is such which would reasonably lead to conviction of the person sought to be summoned.....

Whereas the test of prima facie case may be sufficient for taking cognizance of an offence at the stage of framing of charge, the court must be satisfied that there exists a strong suspicion. While framing charge in terms of Section 227 of the Code, the court must consider the entire materials on record to form an opinion that the evidence if unrebutted would lead to a judgment of conviction.

Whether a higher standard be set up for the purpose of invoking the jurisdiction under Section 319 of the Code is the question. The answer to these questions should be rendered in the affirmative. Unless a higher standard for the purpose of forming an opinion to summon a person as an additional accused is laid down, the ingredients thereof viz. (i) an extraordinary case, and (ii) a case for sparingly

(sic sparing) exercise of jurisdiction, would not be satisfied." (Emphasis added)

99. In Brindaban Das & Ors. v. State of West Bengal, AIR 2009 SC 1248, a two-Judge Bench of this Court took a similar view observing that the court is required to consider whether such evidence would be sufficient to convict the person being summoned. Since issuance of summons under Section 319 Cr.P.C. entails a de novo trial and a large number of witnesses may have been examined and their re-examination could prejudice the prosecution and delay the trial, the trial court has to exercise such discretion with great care and perspicacity.

A similar view has been re-iterated by this Court in Michael Machado & Anr. v. Central Bureau of Investigation & Ors., AIR 2000 SC 1127.

100. However, there is a series of cases wherein this Court while dealing with the provisions of Section 227, 228, 239, 240, 241, 242 and 245 Cr.P.C., has consistently held that the court at the stage of framing of the charge has to apply its mind to the question whether or not there is any ground for presuming the commission of an offence by the accused. The court has to see as to whether the material brought on record reasonably connect the accused with the offence. Nothing more is required to be enquired into. While dealing with the aforesaid provisions, the test of prima facie case is to be applied. The Court has to find out whether the materials offered by the prosecution to be adduced as evidence are sufficient for the court to proceed against the accused further. (Vide: State of Karnataka v. L. Munishwamy & Ors., AIR 1977 SC 1489; All India Bank Officers' Confederation etc. v. Union of India & Ors., AIR 1989 SC 2045; Stree Atyachar Virodhi Parishad v. Dilip Nathumal Chordia, (1989) 1 SCC 715; State of M.P. v. Dr. Krishna Chandra Saksena, (1996) 11 SCC 439; and State of M.P. v. Mohan Lal Soni.

101.In Dilawar Babu Kurane v. State of Maharashtra AIR 2002 SC 564, this Court while dealing with the provisions of Section 227 and 228 Cr.P.C., placed a very heavy reliance on the earlier judgment of this Court in Union of India v. Prafulla Kumar Samal & Anr., AIR 1979 SC 366 and held that while considering the question of framing the charges, the court may weigh the evidence for the limited purpose of finding out whether or not a prima facie case against the accused has been made out and whether the materials placed before this Court disclose grave suspicion against the accused which has not been properly explained. In such an eventuality, the court is justified in framing the charges and proceeding with the trial. The court has to consider the broad probabilities of the case, the total effect of the evidence and the documents produced before the court but court should not make a roving enquiry into the pros and cons of the matter and weigh evidence as if it is conducting a trial.

102 In Suresh v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 2001 SC 1375, this Court after taking note of the earlier judgments in Niranjan Singh Karam Singh Punjabi v. Jitendra Bhimraj Bijjaya, AIR 1990 SC 1962 and State of Maharashtra v. Priya Sharan Maharaj, AIR 1997 SC 2041, held as under:

"9.....at the stage of Sections 227 and 228 the Court is required to evaluate the material and documents on record with a view to finding out if the facts emerging therefrom taken at their face value disclose the existence of all the ingredients constituting the alleged offence. The Court may, for this limited purpose, sift the evidence as it cannot be expected even at that initial stage to accept all that the prosecution states as gospel truth even if it is opposed to common sense or the broad probabilities of the case. Therefore, at the stage of framing of the charge the Court has to consider the material with a view to find out if there is ground for presuming that the accused has committed the offence or that there is not sufficient ground for proceeding against him and not for the purpose of arriving at the conclusion that it is not likely to lead to a conviction." (Emphasis supplied)

103. Similarly in State of Bihar v. Ramesh Singh, AIR 1977 SC 2018, while dealing with the issue, this Court held:

".....If the evidence which the Prosecutor proposes to adduce to prove the guilt of the accused even if fully accepted before it is challenged in cross-examination or rebutted by the defence evidence, if any, cannot show that the accused committed the offence, then there will be no sufficient ground for proceeding with the trial....."

104. In Palanisamy Gounder & Anr. v. State, represented by Inspector of Police, (2005) 12 SCC 327, this Court deprecated the practice of invoking the power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. just to conduct a fishing inquiry, as in that case, the trial court exercised that power just to find out the real truth, though there was no valid ground to proceed against the person summoned by the court.

105. Power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. is a discretionary and an extra- ordinary power. It is to be exercised sparingly and only in those cases where the circumstances of the case so warrant. It is not to be exercised because the Magistrate or the Sessions Judge is of the opinion that some other person may also be guilty of committing that offence. Only where strong and cogent evidence occurs against a person from the evidence led before the court that such power should be exercised and not in a casual and cavalier manner.

106. Thus, we hold that though only a prima facie case is to be established from the evidence led before the court not necessarily tested on the anvil of Cross-Examination, it requires much stronger evidence than mere probability of his complicity. The test that has to be applied is one which is more than prima facie case as exercised at the time of framing of charge, but short of satisfaction to an extent that the evidence, if goes unrebutted, would lead to conviction. In the absence of such satisfaction, the court should refrain from exercising power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. In Section 319 Cr.P.C. the purpose of providing if "it appears from the evidence that any person not being the accused has committed any offence' is clear from the words "for which such person could be tried together with the accused." The words used are not "for which such person could be convicted'. There is, therefore, no scope for the Court acting under Section 319 Cr.P.C. to form any opinion as to the guilt of the accused."

14. The Hon'ble Apex court in the case of Hardeep Singh (Supra) has also analysed the contingencies in what situation can the power u/s 319 Cr.P.C. be exercised in the cases when a persons is not named in the FIR though named in the FIR but not charge sheeted or has been discharged. The Hon'ble Apex Court has observed as under:-

"107. In Joginder Singh & Anr. v. State of Punjab & Anr., AIR 1979 SC 339, a three-Judge Bench of this Court held that as regards the contention that the phrase "any person not being the accused" occurring in Section 319 Cr.P.C. excludes from its operation an accused who has been released by the police under Section 169 Cr.P.C. and has been shown in Column 2 of the charge-sheet, the contention has merely to be rejected. The said expression clearly covers any person who is not being tried already by the Court and the very purpose of enacting such a provision like Section 319 (1) Cr.P.C. clearly shows that even persons who have been dropped by the police during investigation but against whom evidence showing their involvement in the offence comes before the criminal court, are included in the said expression.

108. In Anju Chaudhary v. Sate of U.P. & Anr., (2013) 6 SCC 384, a two-Judge Bench of this Court held that even in the cases where report under Section 173(2) Cr.P.C. is filed in the court and investigation records the name of a person in Column2, or even does not name the person as an accused at all, the court in exercise of its powers vested under Section 319 Cr.P.C. can summon the person as an accused and even at that stage of summoning, no hearing is contemplated under the law.

109. In Suman v. State of Rajasthan & Anr., AIR 2010 SC 518, a two- Judge Bench of this Court observed that there is nothing in the language of this sub-section from which it can be inferred that a person who is named in the FIR or complaint, but against whom charge-sheet is not filed by the police, cannot be proceeded against even though in the course of any inquiry into or trial of any offence, the court finds that such person has committed an offence for which he could be tried together with the other accused.

110.In Lal Suraj (supra), a two-Judge Bench held that there is no dispute with the legal proposition that even if a person had not been charge-sheeted, he may come within the purview of the description of such a person as contained in Section 319 Cr.P.C. A similar view had been taken in Lok Ram (Supra), wherein it was held that a person, though had initially been named in the FIR as an accused, but not charge-sheeted, can also be added to face the trial.

111. Even the Constitution Bench in Dharam Pal (CB) has held that the Sessions Court can also exercise its original jurisdiction and summon a person as an accused in case his name appears in Column 2 of the chargesheet, once the case had been committed to it. It means that a person whose name does not appear even in the FIR or in the chargesheet or whose name appears in the FIR and not in the main part of the chargesheet but in Column 2 and has not been summoned as an accused in exercise of the powers under Section 319 Cr.P.C. can still be summoned by the court, provided the court is satisfied that the conditions provided in the said statutory provisions stand fulfilled.

112. However, there is a great difference with regard to a person who has been discharged. A person who has been discharged stands on a different footing than a person who was never subjected to investigation or if subjected to, but not charge-sheeted. Such a person has stood the stage of inquiry before the court and upon judicial examination of the material collected during investigation; the court had come to the conclusion that there is not even a prima facie case to proceed against such person. Generally, the stage of evidence in trial is merely proving the material collected during investigation and therefore, there is not much change as regards the material existing against the person so discharged. Therefore, there must exist compelling circumstances to exercise such power. The Court should keep in mind that the witness when giving evidence against the person so discharged, is not doing so merely to seek revenge or is naming him at the behest of someone or for such other extraneous considerations. The court has to be circumspect in treating such evidence and try to separate the chaff from the grain. If after such careful examination of the evidence, the court is of the opinion that there does exist evidence to proceed against the person so discharged, it may take steps but only in accordance with section 398 Cr.P.C. without resorting to the provision of Section 319 Cr.P.C. directly.

113. In Sohan Lal & Ors. v. State of Rajasthan, (1990) 4 SCC 580, a two-Judge Bench of this Court held that once an accused has been discharged, the procedure for enquiry envisaged under Section 398 Cr.P.C. cannot be circumvented by prescribing to procedure under Section 319 Cr.P.C.

114. In Municipal Corporation of Dehli v. Ram Kishan Rohtagi & Ors., AIR 1983 SC 67, this Court held that if the prosecution can at any stage produce evidence which satisfies the court that those who have not been arraigned as accused or against whom proceedings have been quashed, have also committed the offence, the Court can take cognizance against them under Section 319 Cr.P.C. and try them along with the other accused.

115. Power under Section 398 Cr.P.C. is in the nature of revisional power which can be exercised only by the High Court or the Sessions Judge, as the case may be. According to Section 300 (5) Cr.P.C., a person discharged under Section 258 Cr.P.C. shall not be tried again for the same offence except with the consent of the Court by which he was discharged or of any other Court to which the first-mentioned Court is subordinate. Further, Section 398 Cr.P.C. provides that the High Court or the Sessions Judge may direct the Chief Judicial Magistrate by himself or by any of the Magistrate subordinate to him to make an inquiry into the case against any person who has already been discharged. Both these provisions contemplate an inquiry to be conducted before any person, who has already been discharged, is asked to again face trial if some evidence appears against him. As held earlier, Section 319 Cr.P.C. can also be invoked at the stage of inquiry. We do not see any reason why inquiry as contemplated by Section 300(5) Cr.P.C. and Section 398 Cr.P.C. cannot be an inquiry under Section 319 Cr.P.C. Accordingly, a person discharged can also be arraigned again as an accused but only after an inquiry as contemplated by Section 300(5) and 398 Cr.P.C. If during or after such inquiry, there appears to be an evidence against such person, power under Section 319Cr.P.C. can be exercised. We may clarify that the word "trial' under Section 319 Cr.P.C. would be eclipsed by virtue of above provisions and the same cannot be invoked so far as a person discharged is concerned, but no more.

116. Thus, it is evident that power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. can be exercised against a person not subjected to investigation, or a person placed in the Column 2 of the Charge-Sheet and against whom cognizance had not been taken, or a person who has been discharged. However, concerning a person who has been discharged, no proceedings can be commenced against him directly under Section 319 Cr.P.C. without taking recourse to provisions of Section 300(5) read with Section 398 Cr.P.C."

15. The Constitutional Bench in the matter of Hardeep Singh (Supra) has also considered the scope, ambit and the importance of the word evidence and had analysed the same and held as under:-

58. To answer the questions and to resolve the impediment that is being faced by the trial courts in exercising of powers under Section 319 Cr.P.C., the issue has to be investigated by examining the circumstances which give rise to a situation for the court to invoke such powers. The circumstances that lead to such inference being drawn up by the court for summoning a person arise out of the availability of the facts and material that comes up before the court and are made the basis for summoning such a person as an accomplice to the offence alleged to have been committed. The material should disclose the complicity of the person in the commission of the offence which has to be the material that appears from the evidence during the course of any inquiry into or trial of offence. The words as used in Section 319 Cr.P.C. indicate that the material has to be "where ....it appears from the evidence" before the court.

59. Before we answer this issue, let us examine the meaning of the word "evidence'. According to Section 3 of the Evidence Act, "evidence' means and includes:

(1) all statements which the Court permits or requires to be made before it by witnesses, in relation to matters of fact under inquiry; such statements are called oral evidence;

(2) all documents including electronic records produced for the inspection of the Court, such statements are called documentary evidence;

60. According to Tomlin's Law Dictionary, Evidence is "the means from which an inference may logically be drawn as to the existence of a fact. It consists of proof by testimony of witnesses, on oath; or by writing or records."

61. Bentham defines "evidence' as "any matter of fact, the effect, tendency or design of which presented to mind, is to produce in the mind a persuasion concerning the existence of some other matter of fact- a persuasion either affirmative or disaffirmative of its existence. Of the two facts so connected, the latter may be distinguished as the principal fact, and the former as the evidentiary fact."

62. According to Wigmore on Evidence, evidence represents "any knowable fact or group of facts, not a legal or a logical principle, considered with a view to its being offered before a legal tribunal for the purpose of producing a persuasion, positive or negative, on the part of the tribunal, as to the truth of a proposition, not of law, or of logic, on which the determination of the tribunal is to be asked."

63. The provision and the above-mentioned definitions clearly suggest that it is an exhaustive definition. Wherever the words "means and include" are used, it is an indication of the fact that the definition "is a hard and fast definition', and no other meaning can be assigned to the expression that is put down in the definition. It indicates an exhaustive explanation of the meaning which, for the purposes of the Act, must invariably be attached to these words or expression. (Vide: M/S. Mahalakshmi Oil Mills v. Stare of A.P. AIR 1989 SC 335; Punjab Land Development and Reclamation Corporation Ltd. Chandigarh v. Presiding Officer, Labour Court, Chandigarh & Ors., (1990) 3 SCC 682; P. Kasilingam & Ors. v. P.S.G. collage of Technology & Ors, AIR 1995 SC 1395; Hamdard (Wakf) Laboratories v. Dy. Labour Commissioner & Ors., AIR 2008 SC 968; and Ponds India Ltd. (merged with H.L. Limited) v. Commissioner of Trade Tax, Lucknow, (2008) 8 SCC 369).

64. In Feroze N. Dotivala v. P.M. Wadhwani & Ors, (2003) 1 SCC 433, dealing with a similar issue, this Court observed as under:

"Generally, ordinary meaning is to be assigned to any word or phrase used or defined in a statute. Therefore, unless there is any vagueness or ambiguity, no occasion will arise to interpret the term in a manner which may add something to the meaning of the word which ordinarily does not so mean by the definition itself, more particularly, where it is a restrictive definition. Unless there are compelling reasons to do so, meaning of a restrictive and exhaustive definition would not be expanded or made extensive to embrace things which are strictly not within the meaning of the word as defined.

65. We, therefore proceed to examine the matter further on the premise that the definition of word "evidence" under the Evidence Act is exhaustive.

66. In Kalyan Kumar Gogoi v. Ashutosh Agnihotri & Anr., AIR 2011 SC 760, while dealing with the issue this Court held :

"18. The word "evidence" is used in common parlance in three different senses: (a) as equivalent to relevant, (b) as equivalent to proof, and (c) as equivalent to the material, on the basis of which courts come to a conclusion about the existence or non-existence of disputed facts. Though, in the definition of the word "evidence" given in Section 3 of the Evidence Act one finds only oral and documentary evidence, this word is also used in phrases such as best evidence, circumstantial evidence, corroborative evidence, derivative evidence, direct evidence, documentary evidence, hearsay evidence, indirect evidence, oral evidence, original evidence, presumptive evidence, primary evidence, real evidence, secondary evidence, substantive evidence, testimonial evidence, etc."

67. In relation to a Civil Case, this court in Ameer Trading Corporation Ltd. v. Shapoorji Data Processing Ltd., AIR 2004 SC 355, held that the examination of a witness would include evidence-in- chief, cross-examination or re-examination. In Omkar

Namdeo Jadhao & Ors v. Second Additional Sessions Judge Buldana & Anr., AIR 1997 SC 331; and Ram Swaroop & Ors. v. State of Rajasthan, AIR 2004 SC 2943, this Court held that statements recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C. during the investigation are not evidence. Such statements can be used at the trial only for contradictions or omissions when the witness is examined in the court.

(See also: Podda Narayana & Ors. v. State of A.P., AIR 1975 SC 1252; Sat Paul v. Delhi Administration, AIR 1976 SC 294; and State (Delhi Administration) v. Laxman Kumar & Ors., AIR 1986 SC 250).

68. In Lok Ram v. Nihal Singh & Anr., AIR 2006 SC 1892, it was held that it is evident that a person, even though had initially been named in the FIR as an accused, but not charge-sheeted, can also be added as an accused to face the trial. The trial court can take such a step to add such persons as accused only on the basis of evidence adduced before it and not on the basis of materials available in the charge-sheet or the case diary, because such materials contained in the charge-sheet or the case diary do not constitute evidence.

69. The majority view of the Constitution Bench in Ramnarayan Mor & Anr. v. The State of Maharashtra, AIR 1964 SC 949 has been as under:

"9. It was urged in the alternative by counsel for the appellants that even if the expression "evidence" may include documents, such documents would only be those which are duly proved at the enquiry for commitment, because what may be used in a trial, civil or criminal, to support the judgment of a Court is evidence duly proved according to law. But by the Evidence Act which applies to the trial of all criminal cases, the expression "evidence" is defined in Section 3 as meaning and including all statements which the Court permits or requires to be made before it by witnesses, in relation to matters of fact under enquiry and documents produced for the inspection of the Court. There is no restriction in this definition to documents which are duly proved by evidence." (Emphasis added)

70. Similarly, this Court in Sunil Mehta & Anr. v. State of Gujarat & Anr., JT 2013 (3) SC 328, held that "It is trite that evidence within the meaning of the Evidence Act and so also within the meaning of Section244 of the Cr.P.C. is what is recorded in the manner stipulated under Section 138 in the case of oral evidence. Documentary evidence would similarly be evidence only if the documents are proved in the manner recognised and provided for under the Evidence Act unless of course a statutory provision makes the document admissible as evidence without any formal proof thereof."

71. In Guriya @ Tabassum Tauquir & Ors. v. State of Bihar & Anr., AIR 2008 SC 95, this Court held that in exercise of the powers under Section 319 Cr.P.C., the court can add a new accused only on the basis of evidence adduced before it and not on the basis of materials available in the charge sheet or the case diary.

72. In Kishun Singh (Supra), this Court held :

"11. On a plain reading of sub-section (1) of Section 319 there can be no doubt that it must appear from the evidence tendered in the course of any inquiry or trial that any person not being the accused has committed any offence for which he could be tried together with the accused. This power (under Section 319(1)), it seems clear to us, can be exercised only if it so appears from the evidence at the trial and not otherwise. Therefore, this sub-section contemplates existence of some evidence appearing in the course of trial wherefrom the court can prima facie conclude that the person not arraigned before it is also involved in the commission of the crime for which he can be tried with those already named by the police. Even a person who has earlier been discharged would fall within the sweep of the power conferred by S. 319 of the Code. Therefore, stricto sensu, Section 319 of the Code cannot be invoked in a case like the present one where no evidence has been led at a trial wherefrom it can be said that the appellants appear to have been involved in the commission of the crime along with those already sent up for trial by the prosecution.

12. But then it must be conceded that Section 319 covers the post-cognizance stage where in the course of an inquiry or trial the involvement or complicity of a person or persons not named by the investigating agency has surfaced which necessitates the exercise of the discretionary power conferred by the said provision....."

73. A similar view has been taken by this Court in Raj Kishore Prasad (Supra), wherein it was held that in order to apply Section 319 Cr.P.C., it is essential that the need to proceed against the person other than the accused appearing to be guilty of offence arises only on evidence recorded in the course of an inquiry or trial.

74. In Lal Suraj @ Suraj Singh & Anr. v. State of Jharkhand, (2009) 2 SCC 696, a two-Judge Bench of this Court held that "a court framing a charge would have before it all the materials on record which were required to be proved by the prosecution. In a case where, however, the court exercises its jurisdiction under Section 319 Cr.P.C., the power has to be exercised on the basis of the fresh evidence brought before the court. There lies a fine but clear distinction."

75. A similar view has been reiterated by this Court in Rajendra Singh v. State of U.P. & Anr., AIR 2007 SC 2786, observing that court should not exercise the power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. on the basis of materials available in the charge-sheet or the case diary, because such materials contained in the charge-sheet or the case diary do not constitute evidence. The word "evidence' in Section 319 Cr.P.C. contemplates the evidence of witnesses given in the court.

76. Ordinarily, it is only after the charges are framed that the stage of recording of evidence is reached. A bare perusal of Section 227 Cr.P.C. would show that the legislature has used the terms "record of the case" and the "documents submitted therewith". It is in this context that the word "evidence' as appearing in Section 319 Cr.P.C. has to be read and understood. The material collected at the stage of investigation can at best be used for a limited purpose as provided under Section 157 of the Evidence Act i.e. to corroborate or contradict the statements of the witnesses recorded before the court. Therefore, for the exercise of power under Section 319 Cr.P.C., the use of word `evidence' means material that has come before the court during an inquiry or trial by it and not otherwise. If from the evidence led in the trial the court is of the opinion that a person not accused before it has also committed the offence, it may summon such person under Section 319 Cr.P.C.

77. With respect to documentary evidence, it is sufficient, as can be seen from a bare perusal of Section 3 of the Evidence Act as well as the decision of the Constitution Bench, that a document is required to be produced and proved according to law to be called evidence. Whether such evidence is relevant, irrelevant, admissible or inadmissible, is a matter of trial.

78. It is, therefore, clear that the word "evidence" in Section 319 Cr.P.C. means only such evidence as is made before the court, in relation to statements, and as produced before the court, in relation to documents. It is only such evidence that can be taken into account by the Magistrate or the Court to decide whether power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. is to be exercised and not on the basis of material collected during investigation.

79. The inquiry by the court is neither attributable to the investigation nor the prosecution, but by the court itself for collecting information to draw back a curtain that hides something material. It is the duty of the court to do so and therefore the power to perform this duty is provided under the Cr.P.C.

80. The unveiling of facts other than the material collected during investigation before the magistrate or court before trial actually commences is part of the process of inquiry. Such facts when recorded during trial are evidence. It is evidence only on the basis whereof trial can be held, but can the same definition be extended for any other material collected during inquiry by the magistrate or court for the purpose of Section 319 Cr.P.C.?

81. An inquiry can be conducted by the magistrate or court at any stage during the proceedings before the court. This power is preserved with the court and has to be read and understood accordingly. The outcome of any such exercise should not be an impediment in the speedy trial of the case. Though the facts so received by the magistrate or the court may not be evidence, yet it is some material that makes things clear and unfolds concealed or deliberately suppressed material that may facilitate the trial. In the context of Section 319 Cr.P.C. it is an information of complicity. Such material therefore, can be used even though not an evidence in stricto sensuo, but an information on record collected by the court during inquiry itself, as a prima facie satisfaction for exercising the powers as presently involved.

82. This pre-trial stage is a stage where no adjudication on the evidence of the offences involved takes place and therefore, after the material alongwith the charge-sheet has been brought before the court, the same can be inquired into in order to effectively proceed with framing of charges. After the charges are framed, the prosecution is asked to lead evidence and till that is done, there is no evidence available in the strict legal sense of Section 3 of the Evidence Act. The actual trial of the offence by bringing the accused before the court has still not begun. What is available is the material that has been submitted before the court along with the charge-sheet. In such situation, the court only has the preparatory material that has been placed before the court for its consideration in order to proceed with the trial by framing of charges.

83. It is, therefore, not any material that can be utilised, rather it is that material after cognizance is taken by a court, that is available to it while making an inquiry into or trying an offence, that the court can utilize or take into consideration for supporting reasons to summon any person on the basis of evidence adduced before the Court, who may be on the basis of such material, treated to be an accomplice in the commission of the offence. The inference that can be drawn is that material which is not exactly evidence recorded before the court, but is a material collected by the court, can be utilised to corroborate evidence already recorded for the purpose of summoning any other person, other than the accused. This would harmonise such material with the word "evidence' as material that would be supportive in nature to facilitate the exposition of any other accomplice whose complicity in the offence may have either been suppressed or escaped the notice of the court.

84. The word "evidence" therefore has to be understood in its wider sense both at the stage of trial and, as discussed earlier, even at the stage of inquiry, as used under Section 319 Cr.P.C. The court, therefore, should be understood to have the power to proceed against any person after summoning him on the basis of any such material as brought forth before it. The duty and obligation of the court becomes more onerous to invoke such powers cautiously on such material after evidence has been led during trial.

85. In view of the discussion made and the conclusion drawn hereinabove, the answer to the aforesaid question posed is that apart from evidence recorded during trial, any material that has been received by the court after cognizance is taken and before the trial commences, can be utilised only for corroboration and to support the evidence recorded by the court to invoke the power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. The "evidence' is thus, limited to the evidence recorded during trial."

16. The proposition of law culled out by the Hon'ble Apex Court itself makes it clear that u/s 319 Cr.P.C. discretion has been bestowed upon the Magistrate to exercise the powers while looking into the facts and the circumstances of a particular case before it while according degree of satisfaction so imperative for invocation of the powers u/s 319 Cr.P.C. The Hon'ble Apex Court has repeatedly cautioned the Courts to exercise the powers under section 319 Cr.P.C. in such a manner that it does not permit an accused to walk away free on the strength of any lacuna attributed by the Investigating Officer. In nutshell, it can be very well said that once the Magistrate finds that there was sufficient material available on record before it to summon a person in the trial which is proposed to be undertaken then the powers u/s 319 Cr.P.C. are to be invoked.

17. Nonetheless, the powers under section 319 Cr.P.C. to summon those persons who are not named in the charge sheet to appear and face trial is unquestionable as the very object of engrafting section 319 Cr.P.C. is that to allow a person who deserves to be tried not to go scot-free.

18. The stage which is contemplated under section 319 Cr.P.C. 1973 is a stage before the conclusion of the trial and thus, only one conclusion can be drawn that the Magistrate must be prima facie of the opinion that there are sufficient material and cause for summoning the culprit who is either not named in the FIR or if named, he has not been charge sheeted or discharged.

19. The issue can also be seen from another point of angle that during the course of the inquiry into, or trial of, an offence, it appears from the evidence that any person not being accused has committed the offence or he has not been charge sheeted but there are sufficient material available on record which has not been taken into consideration by the Investigating Officer then the Magistrate in exercise of powers can always summon him in that regard. Sub section (1) of section 319 Cr.P.C. has consciously used the word "during the course of any inquiry into, or trial of" meaning thereby that the powers can be exercised under section 319 Cr.P.C. when there are certain material available on record during the course of inquiry or trial.

20. Coming to the fact of the present case admittedly, the FIR was lodged on 17.03.2016 by the father of the victim who is opposite party no. 2 before the police station Hapur Nagar, District Hapur being case crime no. 0218 of 2016, u/s 363, 376, 120-B IPC read with section ¾ POCSO Act with relation to the incident occurred on 17.01.2016 alleging that on 17.01.2016 the victim was forcibly taken away by the co-accused Rahul to Keshav Nagar in a house in the Footi Line where he used to commit rape and when the victim who is a minor, requested to be set free as she wanted to go back to her parent's house then Smt. Suman (the applicant) did not allow her to go as she was witness of the alleged offence. Statements of the victim were recorded u/s 161 and 164 Cr.P.C. which corroborates and narrates the version of the FIR. Even the father of the victim also got recorded his statement u/s 161 of the Cr.P.C. which supports the statements of the victim. Thereafter, the statements of the witnesses being Satish, Smt. Pooja, Smt. Malti Devi and Shivbaran Singh have also been recorded which also supports the statement of the victim. However, on 25.02.2016 charge sheet was submitted by the Investigating Officer against the co-accused Rahul only and not against the applicant despite the fact that there was sufficient material available on record to suggest that the applicant had also indulged in criminality. Accordingly, on 20.11.2020 an application was preferred by the opposite party no. 2 which came into light in exercise of power contained u/s 319 Cr.P.C. while summoning the applicant, Raja Ram and Layak Ram.

21. Learned counsel for the revisionist had argued that there is no material available on record so as to implicate the revisionist in the said criminality. Elaborating the said submission, the learned counsel for the revisionist has further argued that there was no material available before the court below for exercising powers u/s 319 Cr.P.C.

22. The learned A.G.A. has drawn the attention of this Court towards the statement of opposite party no. 2 recorded u/s 164 Cr.P.C. so as to contend that specifically the name of the revisionist has been taken during the course of recording of the statement regarding commissioning of the offence by the revisionist.

23. I have carefully gone through the records of the present case and I find that the name of the revisionist has been specifically taken by the opposite party no. 2 in the statement recorded u/s 164 Cr.P.C. The Magistrate has considered each and every aspect of the matter and also analysed the import and the impact of the statement recorded u/s 164 Cr.P.C. of the opposite party no. 2.

24. Needless to point out that this Court under revisional jurisdiction cannot substitute its own views particularly when there was ample evidence available on record before the court below in exercising the jurisdiction as conferred u/s 319 Cr.P.C.

25. Nonetheless, on a pointed query being raised before the learned counsel for the revisionist to point out any perversity committed by the court below or any jurisdictional error, the learned counsel for the revisionist only argued this much that he has not committed any offence and he has been falsely implicated in the present case.

26. The counsel for the revisionist has argued on the factual score that too without any basis. This Court is of the firm opinion that there exist sufficient material available with the court below for invoking the provisions contained u/s 319 Cr.P.C.

27. Learned counsel for the revisionist has not disputed the legal proposition of law so culled out by the Hon'ble Apex Court in relation to the scope and the ambit of the powers u/s 319 Cr.P.C. Further the learned counsel for the revisionist has also not been able to place on record any material to show the findings recorded by the court below while summoning the revisionist suffers, from perversity or manifest illegality.

28. Resultantly, the present revision is wholly misconceived and is liable to be dismissed.

29. No order as to costs.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Vikas Budhwar, J.)

1. Heard Srinath Dwivedi, learned counsel for the revisionist as well as learned AGA, who appears for the opposite party no.1 (State of U.P.). In view of the order proposed to be passed, there is no necessity to issue notices to opposite parties no. 2 and 3.

2. Challenge in the present revision purported to be under Section 397 read with Section 401 Cr.P.C., 1973 is to the order dated 12.8.2021 passed by the court of learned Additional Family Judge/Family Court, Court No.1, Kanpur Nagar in the proceedings under Section 125 Cr.P.C. having Case No.460/2019, (CNRI-UPKN0200164/2019, Smt. Shalini and others Vs. Navin Agarwal whereby maintenance awarded to the opposite party nos.2 and 3.

3. Brief facts of the case shorn off unnecessary details as pleaded and set forth before the court below as well as before this Court in the present revision are that the opposite party no.2 solemnized marriage with the revisionist herein on 10.5.2003 as per Hindu ritual and rites at Status Club Cantt., Kanpur city.

4. According to the allegations as set forth in the application under Section 125 of the Cr.P.C. so preferred by the opposite party nos. 2 and 3, it was alleged that consequent to the marriage which was solemnized on 10.5.2003, the opposite party no.2 brought various gifts in the honour of the revisionist and his family but neither the revisionist nor his parents were happy with the gifts so offered by the family of the opposite party no. 2 and they asked for dowry of 4 lakhs. On 28.10.2004 with the wedlock of the opposite party no.2 and the revisionist, the opposite party no.3 was born. Even after the birth of the opposite party no.3, there was no change in the attitude of either the revisionist or his parents.

5. On 25.10.2007, the revisionist and his parents had thrown away the opposite party nos. 2 and 3 from their house only with the clothes which they were wearing from that point of time whey the were residing with their parents (Matrimonial house). It is further alleged that the opposite party no.2 is/was mentally broken on account whereof she is not able to earn anything and she is completely dependent upon her parents.

6. Further it has been pleaded that the opposite party no.2 has no source of income and it has become virtually impossible for her to sustain herself & minor daughter as according to the opposite party no.2, the revisionist has his own accommodation and he is/was working in Chandra Agency and he is getting huge salary in this regard.

7. On being noticed the revisionist herein filed its objections.

8. Thereafter now an order has been passed by the court of Additional Family Judge, Family Court No.2, Kanpur Nagar on 12.8.2021 whereby the applications so preferred under Section 125 Cr.P.C. for maintenance has been allowed in part and the opposite party no.2 has been awarded maintenance of Rs.4000/- per month as well as the opposite party no.3 being a minor has been awarded maintenance of Rs.3000/- per month totaling to Rs.7000/- per month.

9. Assailing the order dated 12.8.2021 passed in the proceedings under Section 125 Cr.P.C. in the Case No. 460 of 2019, the revisionist is before this Court.

10. Before proceeding to decide the present case, it has to be kept in mind that the present proceedings which have been initiated before this Court is under the provisions contained under Section 397/401 Cr.P.C. being revisional jurisdiction.

11. The scope and the extent of exercise of revisional jurisdiction under Section 397 and 401 Cr.P.C. is no more res integra as this Court can only interfere in the order under challenge when the same is wholly unreasonable or there is non-consideration of any relevant material or there is palpable misreading of records as the revisional court is not justified in setting aside the order mainly because another view is possible.

12. In the light of the well settled principle of law as culled out by the Hon'ble Apex Court, the present case is to be decided.

Section 488 of the Cr.P.C. 1898:-

Section 488-Order of maintenance of wife & children

STATE AMENDMENTS

Uttar Pradesh:

"(6) where in a proceeding under this section it appears to the Magistrate that the person claiming maintenance is in need to immediate relief for his support and the necessary expenses of the proceeding, the Magistrate may, on his application, order the person against whom the maintenance is claimed, to pay to the person claiming the maintenance, during the pendency of the proceeding such monthly allowance not exceeding five thousand rupees and such expenses of the proceeding as the Magistrate consider reasonable and such order shall be enforceable as an order of maintenance."

14. The incorporation of the provisions pertaining to maintenance has been well recognized and the provisions so contained under Section 488 of the Cr.P.C. 1898 which is a pre-constitution enactment has been given recognition and endorsed while giving it up proper place and status in Section 125 of the Cr.P.C., 1973.

15. The laws relating to maintenance have been enacted as a measure for social justice to provide immediate relief to dependent being wives and children for their family support so as to prevent them from falling into destitution and vagrancy.

Article 15(3) of the Constitution of India provides that:

"Nothing in this article shall prevent the State from making any special provision for women and children."

16. Thus it can be safely said that the Constitution of India, 1950 has envisaged a devise setting up a positive role for the State in fostering change towards the empowerment of women leading to amendment in various legislation and introduction of new legislation.

17. As noticed earlier the pre-constitutional law being the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898 relating to Section 488 has been followed in Section 125 Cr.P.C. before its amendment in the year 2001 as in other words it can be said that Section 125 Cr.P.C. is an incarnation of Section 488 of the old Act except the fact that now parents also are brought into category of persons eligible for maintenance and further legislative cognizance has also been taken of the devaluation of the rupees and escalation of living cost by raising maximum allowance from 100 to 500. However, now after amendments made in the year 2001 the ceiling limit for maintenance has been done away.

18. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Captain Ramesh Chander Kaushal Vs. Mrs. Veena Kaushal and others reported in (1978) 4 SCC 70 in para 9 has observed as under:-

"9. This provision is a measure of social justice and specially enacted to protect women and children and falls within the constitutional sweep of Article 15(3) reinforced by Article 39. We have no doubt that sections of statutes calling for construction by Courts are not petrified print but vibrant words with social functions to fulfil. The brooding presence of the constitutional empathy for the weaker sections like women and children must inform interpretation if it has to have social relevance. So viewed, it is possible to be selective in picking out that interpretation out of two alternatives which advance the cause--the cause of the derelicts."

19. The basic idea behind insertion of the provisions relating to grant of maintenance is to prevent vagrancy and destitution of the dependents so as to create an atmosphere whereby a dependent is not allowed to starve or lead a life which cannot be termed to be a respectable living.

20. Section 125 of the Cr.P.C. is a self-contained code which finds presence under Chapter IX of 1973 Code for the aid of wife, children and parents in the matter of maintenance that to in summary proceedings. Maintenance under Section 125 of the Cr.P.C. can be claimed by a person irrespective of belonging to any religious community and the object of the said Section is to provide immediate relief to an applicant meaning thereby that it is a beneficial legislation in favour of the dependents.

21. It is not a matter of right that a dependent can claim maintenance under Section 125 Cr.P.C. as there are certain conditions. It is further not matter of mere asking that the maintenance can be claimed by a dependent as for the said purpose, there are certain pre-requisite conditions which have to be satisfied namely;

(i) the husband must have sufficient means;

(ii) the husband neglects to maintain his wife, who is unable to maintain herself

22. Yet the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Shri Bhagwan Dutt Vs. Smt. Kamla Devi and another reported in (1975) 2 SCC 386 while dealing with the provisions contained under Section 488 of the old Act held as under:-

"19. The object of these provisions being to prevent vagrancy and destitution, the Magistrate has to find out as to what is required by the wife to maintain a standard of living which is neither luxurious nor penurious, but is modestly consistent with the status of the family. The needs and requirements of the wife for such moderate living can be fairly determined, only if her separate income, also, is taken into account together with the earnings of the husband and his commitments."

23. The Hon'ble Apex Court had even put a caveat and has cautioned that the proceeding under Section 125 of the Cr.P.C., 1973 is not with an object to punish a person but prevent vagrancy by compelling who can provide support to those who are unable to support themselves.

24. Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Chaturbhuj Vs. Sita Bai (2008) 2 SCC 316 in para 6 has observed as under:-

"6. The object of the maintenance proceedings is not to punish a person for his past neglect, but to prevent vagrancy by compelling those who can provide support to those who are unable to support themselves and who have a moral claim to support. The phrase "unable to maintain herself" in the instant case would mean that means available to the deserted wife while she was living with her husband and would not take within itself the efforts made by the wife after desertion to survive somehow.

Section 125 Cr.P.C. is a measure of social justice and is specially enacted to protect women and children and as noted by this Court in Captain Ramesh Chander Kaushal v. Mrs. Veena Kaushal and Ors (1978) 4 SCC 70) falls within constitutional sweep of Article 15(3) reinforced by Article 39 of the Constitution of India, 1950. It is meant to achieve a social purpose. The object is to prevent vagrancy and destitution. It provides a speedy remedy for the supply of food, clothing and shelter to the deserted wife. It gives effect to fundamental rights and natural duties of a man to maintain his wife, children and parents when they are unable to maintain themselves. The aforesaid position was highlighted in Savitaben Somabhai Bhatiya v. State of Gujarat and Ors. (2005) 3 SCC 636."

25. Reiterating the principles of law as laid down in the aforesaid decisions the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Chanmuniya Vs. Virendra Kumar Singh Kushwaha and another (2011) 1 SCC 141 has even gone into the marital status with regard to long cohabitation and in para 42 observed as under :-

"42. We are of the opinion that a broad and expansive interpretation should be given to the term 'wife' to include even those cases where a man and woman have been living together as husband and wife for a reasonably long period of time, and strict proof of marriage should not be a pre-condition for maintenance under Section 125 of the Cr.P.C., so as to fulfil the true spirit and essence of the beneficial provision of maintenance under Section 125.We also believe that such an interpretation would be a just application of the principles enshrined in the preamble to our Constitution, namely, social justice and upholding the dignity of the individual."

26. In the case of Kamla and others Vs. M.R. Mohan Kumar reported in (2019) 11 SCC 491 the Hon'ble Apex Court has gone to the extent that long cohabitation between woman and man leads to presumption of marriage entitling maintenance for woman and children born to them.

27. In the touch stone of the principles of law propounded by the Hon'ble Apex Court the present controversy is to be addressed.

28. Learned counsel for the revisionist had manifold submissions:-

(a) The revisionist being the husband of the opposite party no.2 and the father of the opposite party no.3 is not financially sound and rather not in a position to pay maintenance to the dependents.

(b) The opposite party no.2 being the wife of the revisionist is financially sound, she is not entitle to any maintenance from the revisionist.

(c) The proceedings under Section 125 of the Cr.P.C. are not maintainable at the behest of the opposite party nos. 2 and 3 as they have themselves left the home of the revisionist.

(d) Order passed by the court below directing for grant of maintenance from the date of the application is illegal.

29. On the other hand, learned AGA, who appears for the opposite party no.1 has argued that the revisionist was employed as Third Engineer in the Merchant Navy and he voluntarily left the same in order to avoid payment of maintenance and the fact that he also resigned from a private employment in Kanpur shows that he is financially sound.

30. Having gone through the order under challenge, I find that the revisionist was a Third Engineer in Merchant Navy. However, he resigned when the proceedings under Section 125 Cr.P.C. was initiated by the opposite party nos. 2 and 3 thereafter as per the own showing of the revisionist, the revisionist got employment in M/s Chandra Associates, where from he also resigned. The said fact itself shows that the revisionist has adequate financial backing.

31. Further It is also come on record that the revisionist's father was employed with the government and thereafter consequent to his retirement, he was getting pension and after his death, mother of the revisionist getting family pension. Further it is also come on record that the revisionist has his own house and he is the only son living with his mother.

32. The aforesaid facts have not been disputed by the revisionist but only this much has been argued that he is not in a position to maintain his wife and his minor child

33. In absence of any evidence available on record either adduced or pleaded inescapable conclusion follows that the findings recorded by the court below cannot be said to be perverse, as onus to prove that the findings are perverse is upon the revisionist and once the revisionist has not assailed the said findings seriously the order cannot be said to be suffering from manifest illegality.

34. So far as the argument so raised by the revisionist with regard to the fact that the opposite party no.2 is financially sound and she does not need any maintenance is concerned, the revisionist has pleaded and argued this much that the opposite party no.2 has done M.A. B.Ed. and she is earning Rs.20,000/- from R.K. Education Institute and getting income of Rs.10,000/- from tuition. The said fact has been disputed by the opposite party no.2. However, counsel for the revisionist husband has completely failed to show any document to fortify the claim set up by him. The court below has recorded a finding of fact which the revisionist could not prove otherwise. Hence the argument so sought to be raised on the said factual issue deserves to be rejected.

35. The third submission of learned counsel for the revisionist is with regard to the fact that the opposite party no.2 being the wife had left the house voluntarily and on being called repeatedly she did not come to live with her husband. The court below has also analysied said issue and has recorded a finding of fact that the proceedings under Section 13 of the Hindu Marriage Act had been instituted by the revisionist against the opposite party no.2 being bearing No.1372/12, Navin Agarwal Vs. Smt. Shanti. The said institution of the proceedings under Section 13 of the Hindu Marriage itself shows that it is the revisionist who wanted the marriage to be dissolved and thus in the said factual background, it has been rightly held by the court below that the revisionist never wanted to live with his wife.

36. Learned counsel for the revisionist has lastly argued that the maintenance so awarded by the court below is highly excessive and further if assuming without admitting the revisionist is liable to pay maintenance then that should be from the date of order and not from the date of the application. The said argument so sought to be raised by the learned counsel for the revisionist has no basis as recently the Hon'ble Apex Court in Criminal Appeal No.730 of 2020, Rajneesh Vs. Neha decided on 4.11.2020 has observed as under :-

Discussion and Directions

The judgments hereinabove reveal the divergent views of different High Courts on the date from which maintenance must be awarded.

Even though a judicial discretion is conferred upon the Court to grant maintenance either from the date of application or from the date of the order in S. 125(2) Cr.P.C., it would be appropriate to grant maintenance from the date of application in all cases, including Section 125 Cr.P.C. In the practical working of the provisions relating to maintenance, we find that there is significant delay in disposal of the applications for interim maintenance for years on end. It would therefore be in the interests of justice and fair play that maintenance is awarded from the date of the application.

In Shail Kumari Devi and Ors. v Krishnan Bhagwan Pathak 2008 9 SCC 632, this Court held that the entitlement of maintenance should not be left to the uncertain date of disposal of the case. The enormous delay in disposal of proceedings justifies the award of maintenance from the date of application. In Bhuwan Mohan Singh v Meena61, this Court held that repetitive adjournments sought by the husband in that case resulted in delay of 9 years in the adjudication of the case. The delay in adjudication was not only against human rights, but also against the basic embodiment of dignity of an individual. The delay in the conduct of the proceedings would require grant of maintenance to date back to the date of application.

The rationale of granting maintenance from the date of application finds its roots in the object of enacting maintenance legislations, so as to enable the wife to overcome the financial crunch which occurs on separation from the husband. Financial constraints of a dependant spouse hampers their capacity to be effectively represented before the Court. In order to prevent a dependant from being reduced to destitution, it is necessary that maintenance is awarded from the date on which the application for maintenance is filed before the concerned Court.

In Badshah v Urmila Badshah Godse (2014) 1 SCC 188 , the Supreme Court was considering the interpretation of Section 125 Cr.P.C. The Court held :

"13.3. ...purposive interpretation needs to be given to the provisions of Section 125 CrPC. While dealing with the application of a destitute wife or hapless children or parents under this provision, the Court is dealing with the marginalised sections of the society. The purpose is to achieve "social justice" which is the constitutional vision, enshrined in the Preamble of the Constitution of India. The Preamble to the Constitution of India clearly signals that we have chosen the democratic path under the rule of law to achieve the goal of securing for all its citizens, justice, liberty, equality and fraternity. It specifically highlights achieving their social justice. Therefore, it becomes the bounden duty of the courts to advance the cause of the social justice. While giving interpretation to a particular provision, the court is supposed to bridge the gap between the law and society." (emphasis supplied)

It has therefore become necessary to issue directions to bring about uniformity and consistency in the Orders passed by all Courts, by directing that maintenance be awarded from the date on which the application was made before the concerned Court. The right to claim maintenance must date back to the date of filing the application, since the period during which the maintenance proceedings remained pending is not within the control of the applicant."

Final Directions

(d) Date from which maintenance is to be awarded

37. The Hon'ble Apex Court has clearly mandated that maintenance in all cases will be awarded from the date of the filing of the application for maintenance.

38. Perusal of the application under Section 125 of the Cr.P.C. shows that opposite party nos. 2 and 3 had claimed maintenance of Rs.30,000/- from the revisionist. However, the court below in the order under challenge has awarded maintenance to the opposite party no.2 to the tune of Rs.4000/- and Rs.3000/- to the minor son of the revisionist. This Court finds that there are sufficient material on record to show that the determination so done by the court below while awarding Rs.4000/-per month as maintenance to the wife and Rs.3000/- towards maintenance of the minor son per month is not excessive. The court below has taken note of the income of the revisionist as well as the financial condition of the opposite party no.2 as well as the prevailing circumstances including the inflation. Hence the arguments so raised by the learned counsel on that count deserves to be rejected.

39. No other point has been raised by learned counsel for the revisionist.

40. Resultantly, this Court does not find any manifest illegality by the court below in the order dated 12.8.2021 passed by the court of learned Additional Family Judge/Family Court, Court No.1, Kanpur Nagar in the proceedings under Section 125 Cr.P.C. having Case No.460/2019, (CNRI-UPKN) 0200164/2019, Smt. Shalini and others Vs. Navin Agarwal.

41. Accordingly, the criminal revision is dismissed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Vikas Budhwar, J.)

1. This is a revision purported to be under Section 397/401 of CrPC challenging the order dated 4.3.2021 passed by Addl. Sessions Judge/ Fast Track Court No.2, Etawah in Session Trial No. 279 of 2017 (State Vs. Manoj Kumar @ Chhange) arising out of Case Crime no.520 of 2016, under Sections 342, 323, 308 IPC, P.S.- Ekdil, District - Etawah.

2. Heard Sri Prem Prakash, learned counsel for the revisionist, as well as Sri K.K. Rajbhar, the learned A.G.A.

3. In view of the order so sought to be passed, there is no need to issue notice to O.P. no.2.

4. Brief facts of the case shorn off unnecessary details are that an FIR was lodged by O.P. no.2 on 24.11.2016 before the Police Station- Ekdil, District Etawah being Case Crime no.520 of 2016, purported to be under Section 354-A, 342, 323, 286 IPC, 1860 against the accused Rajeev son of Shiv Ram Singh, Chhote son of Kayam Singh, Chhange Singh son of Bhogi Ram and unknown persons with regard to the allegations referable to the incident, which occurred on 24.11.2016, whereby it was alleged at about 7:00 in the morning, the O.P. no.2 along with her husband being Kamlesh son of Giriwar Singh, resident of Ramnagar, P.S. Ekdil, Etawah was in their agricultural field with regard to farming activity relating to sowing. At the relevant point of time, Sri Rajeev son of Shiv Raj Singh, R/o Nagla Barra, Chhote son of Kayam Singh resident of Nagla Pancchi, Chhange son of Bhogiram resident of Buapur, P.S. Ekdil, District Etawah along with one unknown person came on a motorcycle armed with rifle and pistol and started manhandling the O.P. no.2, who started screaming and the same gathered attention of other persons, present in the field and the husband of O.P. no.2 tried to get her released from the clutches of the aforesaid accused, then they took him away and administered beating while taking him on their motorcycle to an unknown place and when the aforesaid accused were confronted with some people, including one Santosh Chaudhary and Shivam Chaudhary, who were standing nearby, then on account of their resistance, then accused left the husband of O.P. no.2 in deplorable condition and they also fired in air.

5. Thereafter the Investigating Officer submitted a charge sheet dated 14/15.8.2017 under Sections 342, 323, 308 IPC in Case Crime no. 520 of 2016, P.S. Ekdil, District Etawah before the court concerned against Manoj Kumar only, and not against the applicant herein.

6. It appears that PW-1 being the O.P. no.2 gave her statement on 8.3.2018, wherein she had specifically taken the name of Rajeev son of Shivraj Singh resident of Nagla Bari, Ekdil, Etawah, Chhote son of Kayam Singh resident of Nagla Panchhi, Ekdil, District Etawah and Chhange son of Bhogiram, resident of Buapur, Ekdil, District Etawah and an unknown person supporting the same incident, which was narrated in the FIR dated 24.11.2016.

7. Kamlesh, the husband of O.P. no.2 also got his statement recorded under Section 161 CrPC on 17.8.2019, wherein he specifically took the name of applicant herein with regard to commission of the offences resulting to lodging of the FIR dated 24.11.2016.

8. Being aggrieved against non-submission of charge sheet against the applicant, the O.P. no.2, thereafter preferred an application under Section 319 CrPC dated 30.9.2019 before the Court of Addl. Sessions Judge, Court No.8, Etawah in S.T. No. 279 of 2017. The aforesaid application so submitted by O.P. No.2 under Section 319 CrPC has been allowed by virtue of order dated 4.3.2021 passed by court below, while issuing summons to the revisionist under Sections 342, 323, 308 IPC.

9. The order dated 4.3.2021 passed by the Court of Addl. Sessions Judge/ Fast Track Court No.2, Etawah in Session Trial No. 279 of 2017 (State Vs. Manoj Kumar @ Chhange) arising out of Case Crime no.520 of 2016, under Sections 342, 323, 308 IPC, P.S.- Ekdil, District - Etawah.

10. The moot question, which falls for consideration before this Court in the proceedings u/s 397/401 of Cr.P.C. is as to whether the order passed by the court below along with the application under Section 319 CrPC is within the parameters as set out in the said provisions.

11. For the ready reference section 319 of the Cr.P.C. 1973 is quoted hereinunder.

"319. Power to proceed against other persons appearing to be guilty of offence.--

(1) Where, in the course of any inquiry into, or trial of, an offence, it appears from the evidence that any person not being the accused has committed any offence for which such person could be tried together with the accused, the Court may proceed against such person for the offence which he appears to have committed.

(2) Where such person is not attending the Court, he may be arrested or summoned, as the circumstances of the case may require, for the purpose aforesaid.

(3) Any person attending the Court, although not under arrest or upon a summons, may be detained by such Court for the purpose of the inquiry into, or trial of, the offence which he appears to have committed.

(4) Where the Court proceeds against any person under sub-section (1), then--

(a) the proceedings in respect of such person shall be commenced afresh, and the witnesses re-heard;

(b) subject to the provisions of clause (a), the case may proceed as if such person had been an accused person when the Court took cognizance of the offence upon which the inquiry or trial was commenced."

"8. The Constitutional mandate under Articles 20 and 21 of the Constitution of India, 1950 (hereinafter referred to as the "Constitution') provides a protective umbrella for the smooth administration of justice making adequate provisions to ensure a fair and efficacious trial so that the accused does not get prejudiced after the law has been put into motion to try him for the offence but at the same time also gives equal protection to victims and to the society at large to ensure that the guilty does not get away from the clutches of law. For the empowerment of the courts to ensure that the criminal administration of justice works properly, the law was appropriately codified and modified by the legislature under the Cr.P.C. indicating as to how the courts should proceed in order to ultimately find out the truth so that an innocent does not get punished but at the same time, the guilty are brought to book under the law. It is these ideals as enshrined under the Constitution and our laws that have led to several decisions, whereby innovating methods and progressive tools have been forged to find out the real truth and to ensure that the guilty does not go unpunished.

9. The presumption of innocence is the general law of the land as every man is presumed to be innocent unless proven to be guilty. Alternatively, certain statutory presumptions in relation to certain class of offences have been raised against the accused whereby the presumption of guilt prevails till the accused discharges his burden upon an onus being cast upon him under the law to prove himself to be innocent. These competing theories have been kept in mind by the legislature. The entire effort, therefore, is not to allow the real perpetrator of an offence to get away unpunished. This is also a part of fair trial and in our opinion, in order to achieve this very end that the legislature thought of incorporating provisions of Section 319 Cr.P.C. It is with the said object in mind that a constructive and purposive interpretation should be adopted that advances the cause of justice and does not dilute the intention of the statute conferring powers on the court to carry out the above mentioned avowed object and purpose to try the person to the satisfaction of the court as an accomplice in the commission of the offence that is subject matter of trial.

10. In order to answer the aforesaid questions posed, it will be appropriate to refer to Section 351 of the Criminal Procedure Code, 1898 (hereinafter referred to as `Old Code'), where an analogous provision existed, empowering the court to summon any person other than the accused if he is found to be connected with the commission of the offence. However, when the new Cr.P.C. was being drafted, regard was had to 41st Report of the Law Commission where in the paragraphs 24.80 and 24.81 recommendations were made to make this provision more comprehensive. The said recommendations read:

"24.80 It happens sometimes, though not very often, that a Magistrate hearing a case against certain accused finds from the evidence that some person, other than the accused before him, is also concerned in that very offence or in a connected offence. It is proper that Magistrate should have the power to call and join him in proceedings. Section 351 provides for such a situation, but only if that person happens to be attending the Court. He can then be detained and proceeded against. There is no express provision in Section 351 for summoning such a person if he is not present in court. Such a provision would make Section 351 fairly comprehensive, and we think it proper to expressly provide for that situation.

24.81 Section 351 assumes that the Magistrate proceeding under it has the power of taking cognizance of the new case. It does not, however, say in what manner cognizance is taken by the Magistrate. The modes of taking cognizance are mentioned in Section 190, and are apparently exhaustive. The question is, whether against the newly added accused, cognizance will be supposed to have been taken on the Magistrates own information under Section 190(1), or only in the manner in which cognizance was first taken of the offence against the accused. The question is important, because the methods of inquiry and trial in the two cases differ. About the true position under the existing law, there has been difference of opinion, and we think it should be made clear. It seems to us that the main purpose of this particular provision is that the whole case against all known suspects should be proceeded with expeditiously and convenience requires that cognizance against the newly added accused should be taken in the same manner against the other accused. We, therefore, propose to recast Section 351 making it comprehensive and providing that there will be no difference in the mode of taking cognizance if a new person is added as an accused during the proceedings. It is, of course, necessary (as is already provided) that in such a situation the evidence must he reheard in the presence of the newly added accused."

11. Section 319 Cr.P.C. as it exists today, is quoted hereunder:

"319 Cr.P.C. -Power to proceed against other persons appearing to be guilty of offence.-

(1) Where, in the course of any inquiry into, or trial of, an offence, it appears from the evidence that any person not being the accused has committed any offence for which such person could be tried together with the accused, the Court may proceed against such person for the offence which he appears to have committed.

(2) Where such person is not attending the Court, he may be arrested or summoned, as the circumstances of the case may require, for the purpose aforesaid.

(3) Any person attending the Court, although not under arrest or upon a summons, may be detained by such Court for the purpose of the inquiry into, or trial of, the offence which he appears to have committed.

(4) Where the Court proceeds against any person under sub- section (1), then-

(a) the proceedings in respect of such person shall be commenced afresh, and the witnesses re-heard;

(b) subject to the provisions of clause (a), the case may proceed as if such person had been an accused person when the Court took cognizance of the offence upon which the inquiry or trial was commenced."

12. Section 319 Cr.P.C. springs out of the doctrine judex damnatur cum nocens absolvitur (Judge is condemned when guilty is acquitted) and this doctrine must be used as a beacon light while explaining the ambit and the spirit underlying the enactment of Section 319 Cr.P.C.

13. It is the duty of the Court to do justice by punishing the real culprit. Where the investigating agency for any reason does not array one of the real culprits as an accused, the court is not powerless in calling the said accused to face trial. The question remains under what circumstances and at what stage should the court exercise its power as contemplated in Section 319 Cr.P.C.?

14. The submissions that were raised before us covered a very wide canvas and the learned counsel have taken us through various provisions of Cr.P.C. and the judgments that have been relied on for the said purpose. The controversy centers around the stage at which such powers can be invoked by the court and the material on the basis whereof such powers can be exercised.

15. It would be necessary to put on record that the power conferred under Section 319 Cr.P.C. is only on the court. This has to be understood in the context that Section 319 Cr.P.C. empowers only the court to proceed against such person. The word "court" in our hierarchy of criminal courts has been defined under Section 6 Cr.P.C., which includes the Courts of Sessions, Judicial Magistrates, Metropolitan Magistrates as well as Executive Magistrates. The Court of Sessions is defined in Section 9 Cr.P.C. and the Courts of Judicial Magistrates has been defined under Section 11 thereof. The Courts of Metropolitan Magistrates has been defined under Section 16 Cr.P.C. The courts which can try offences committed under the Indian Penal Code, 1860 or any offence under any other law, have been specified under Section 26 Cr.P.C. read with First Schedule. The explanatory note (2) under the heading of "Classification of Offences" under the First Schedule specifies the expression "magistrate of first class' and "any magistrate' to include Metropolitan Magistrates who are empowered to try the offences under the said Schedule but excludes Executive Magistrates.

16. It is at this stage the comparison of the words used under Section 319 Cr.P.C. has to be understood distinctively from the word used under Section 2(g) defining an inquiry other than the trial by a magistrate or a court. Here the legislature has used two words, namely the magistrate or court, whereas under Section 319 Cr.P.C., as indicated above, only the word "court" has been recited. This has been done by the legislature to emphasise that the power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. is exercisable only by the court and not by any officer not acting as a court. Thus, the magistrate not functioning or exercising powers as a court can make an inquiry in particular proceeding other than a trial but the material so collected would not be by a court during the course of an inquiry or a trial. The conclusion therefore, in short, is that in order to invoke the power under Section 319 Cr.P.C., it is only a Court of Sessions or a Court of Magistrate performing the duties as a court under the Cr.P.C. that can utilise the material before it for the purpose of the said Section.

17. Section 319 Cr.P.C. allows the court to proceed against any person who is not an accused in a case before it. Thus, the person against whom summons are issued in exercise of such powers, has to necessarily not be an accused already facing trial. He can either be a person named in Column 2 of the chargesheet filed under Section 173 Cr.P.C. or a person whose name has been disclosed in any material before the court that is to be considered for the purpose of trying the offence, but not investigated. He has to be a person whose complicity may be indicated and connected with the commission of the offence.

18. The legislature cannot be presumed to have imagined all the circumstances and, therefore, it is the duty of the court to give full effect to the words used by the legislature so as to encompass any situation which the court may have to tackle while proceeding to try an offence and not allow a person who deserves to be tried to go scot free by being not arraigned in the trial in spite of possibility of his complicity which can be gathered from the documents presented by the prosecution."

13. The judgment in the case of Hardeep Singh (Supra) has also been considered and taken note in the judgment in the case of S. Mohammad Ispahani Vs. Yogendra Chandak and Others reported in (2017) 16 SCC 226, wherein paragraph nos. 28 and 29 the Hon'ble Apex Court has observed as under:

"28) Insofar as power of the Court under Section 319 of the Cr.P.C. to summon even those persons who are not named in the charge sheet to appear and face trial is concerned, the same is unquestionable. Section 319 of the Cr.P.C. is meant to rope in even those persons who were not implicated when the charge sheet was filed but during the trial the Court finds that sufficient evidence has come on record to summon them and face the trial. In Hardeep Singh's case, the Constitution Bench of this Court has settled the law in this behalf with authoritative pronouncement, thereby removing the cobweb which had been created while interpreting this provision earlier. As far as object behind Section 319 of the Cr.P.C. is concerned, the Court had highlighted the same as under:

"The court is sole repository of justice and a duty is cast upon it to uphold the rule of law and, therefore, it will be inappropriate to deny the existence of such powers with the courts in our criminal justice system where it is not uncommon that the real accused, at times, get away by manipulating the investigating and/or the prosecuting agency. The desire to avoid trial is so strong that an accused makes efforts at times to get himself absolved even at the stage of investigation or inquiry even though he may be connected with the commission of the offence."

"10. It also goes without saying that Section 319 CrPC, which is an enabling provision empowering the Court to 6 (2017) 7 SCC 706 Criminal Appeal No. 1720 of 2017 & Ors. appropriate steps for proceeding against any person, not being an accused, can be exercised at any time after the charge-sheet is filed and before the pronouncement of the judgment, except during the stage of Sections 207/208 CrPC, the committal, etc. which is only a pre-trial stage intended to put the process into motion.

11. In Hardeep Singh case , the Constitution Bench has also settled the controversy on the issue as to whether the word "evidence" used in Section 319(1) CrPC has been used in a comprehensive sense and indicates the evidence collected during investigation or the word "evidence" is limited to the evidence recorded during trial. It is held that it is that material, after cognizance is taken by the court, that is available to it while making an inquiry into or trying an offence, which the court can utilise or take into consideration for supporting reasons to summon any person on the basis of evidence adduced before the court. The word "evidence" has to be understood in its wider sense, both at the stage of trial and even at the stage of inquiry. It means that the power to proceed against any person after summoning him can be exercised on the basis of any such material as brought forth before it. At the same time, this Court cautioned that the duty and obligation of the court becomes more onerous to invoke such powers consciously on such material after evidence has been led during trial. The Court also clarified that " evidence" under Section 319 CrPC could even be examination-in-chief and the Court is not required to wait till such evidence is tested on cross-examination, as it is the satisfaction of the court which can be gathered from the reasons recorded by the court in respect of complicity of some other person(s) not facing trial in the offence.

12. The moot question, however, is the degree of satisfaction that is required for invoking the powers under Section 319 CrPC and the related question is as to in what situations this power should be exercised in respect of a person named in the FIR but not charge-sheeted. These two aspects were also specifically dealt with by the Constitution Bench in Hardeep Singh case and answered in the following manner: (SCC pp. 135 & 138, paras 95 & 105-106)

"95. At the time of taking cognizance, the court has to see whether a prima facie case is made out to proceed against the accused. Under Section 319 CrPC, though the test of prima facie case is the same, the degree of satisfaction that is required is much stricter. A two-Judge Bench Criminal Appeal No. 1720 of 2017 & Ors. this Court in Vikas v. State of Rajasthan [Vikas v. State of Rajasthan, (2014) 3 SCC 321 : (2014) 2 SCC (Cri) 172] , held that on the [Ed.: The words between two asterisks have been emphasised in original.] objective satisfaction [Ed.: The words between two asterisks have been emphasised in original.] of the court a person may be "arrested" or "summoned", as the circumstances of the case may require, if it appears from the evidence that any such person not being the accused has committed an offence for which such person could be tried together with the already arraigned accused persons.

105. Power under Section 319 CrPC is a discretionary and an extraordinary power. It is to be exercised sparingly and only in those cases where the circumstances of the case so warrant. It is not to be exercised because the Magistrate or the Sessions Judge is of the opinion that some other person may also be guilty of committing that offence. Only where strong and cogent evidence occurs against a person from the evidence led before the court that such power should be exercised and not in a casual and cavalier manner.

106. Thus, we hold that though only a prima facie case is to be established from the evidence led before the court, not necessarily tested on the anvil of cross-examination, it requires much stronger evidence than mere probability of his complicity. The test that has to be applied is one which is more than prima facie case as exercised at the time of framing of charge , but short of satisfaction to an extent that the evidence, if goes unrebutted, would lead to conviction. In the absence of such satisfaction, the court should refrain from exercising power under Section 319 CrPC. In Section 319 CrPC the purpose of providing if "it appears from the evidence that any person not being the accused has committed any offence" is clear from the words " [Ed.: The words between two asterisks have been emphasised in original.] for which such person could be tried together with the accused [Ed.: The words between two asterisks have been emphasised in original.] ". The words used are not "for which such person could be Criminal Appeal No. 1720 of 2017 & Ors. ". There is, therefore, no scope for the court acting under Section 319 CrPC to form any opinion as to the guilt of the accused."

13. In order to answer the question, some of the principles enunciated in Hardeep Singh case may be recapitulated: power under Section 319 CrPC can be exercised by the trial court at any stage during the trial i.e. before the conclusion of trial, to summon any person as an accused and face the trial in the ongoing case, once the trial court finds that there is some "evidence" against such a person on the basis of which evidence it can be gathered that he appears to be guilty of the offence. The "evidence" herein means the material that is brought before the court during trial. Insofar as the material/evidence collected by the IO at the stage of inquiry is concerned, it can be utilised for corroboration and to support the evidence recorded by the court to invoke the power under Section 319 CrPC. No doubt, such evidence that has surfaced in examination-in-chief, without cross-examination of witnesses, can also be taken into consideration. However, since it is a discretionary power given to the court under Section 319 CrPC and is also an extraordinary one, same has to be exercised sparingly and only in those cases where the circumstances of the case so warrant. The degree of satisfaction is more than the degree which is warranted at the time of framing of the charges against others in respect of whom charge-sheet was filed. Only where strong and cogent evidence occurs against a person from the evidence led before the court that such power should be exercised. It is not to be exercised in a casual or a cavalier manner. The prima facie opinion which is to be formed requires stronger evidence than mere probability of his complicity." (emphasis supplied)

14. The legislature was quite conscious while engrafting section 319 Cr.P.C. while employing the words "in the course of any inquiry into, or trial of, an offence, it appears from the evidence". The aforesaid words so employed under section 319 Cr.P.C. itself shows that degree of satisfaction has to be accorded by the Magistrate while exercising powers u/s 319 Cr.P.C.

15. Obviously, degree of satisfaction defers from case to case and according to the degree of satisfaction the test to be applied as one should be more than prima facie case at the stage of framing of charges. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Hardeep Singh (Supra) has observed as under:-

"93. Section 319(1) Cr.P.C. empowers the court to proceed against other persons who appear to be guilty of offence, though not an accused before the court. The word "appear" means "clear to the comprehension", or a phrase near to, if not synonymous with "proved". It imparts a lesser degree of probability than proof.

94. In Pyare Lal Bhargava v. The State of Rajasthan, AIR 1963 SC 1094, a four-Judge Bench of this Court was concerned with the meaning of the word "appear'. The court held that the appropriate meaning of the word "appears' is "seems'. It imports a lesser degree of probability than proof. In Ram Singh & Ors. v. Ram Niwas & Anr., (2009) 14 SCC 25, a two-Judge Bench of this Court was again required to examine the importance of the word "appear' as appearing in the Section. The Court held that for the fulfillment of the condition that it appears to the court that a person had committed an offence, the court must satisfy itself about the existence of an exceptional circumstance enabling it to exercise an extraordinary jurisdiction. What is, therefore, necessary for the court is to arrive at a satisfaction that the evidence adduced on behalf of the prosecution, if unrebutted, may lead to conviction of the persons sought to be added as an accused in the case.

95. At the time of taking cognizance, the court has to see whether a prima facie case is made out to proceed against the accused. Under Section 319 Cr.P.C., though the test of prima facie case is the same, the degree of satisfaction that is required is much stricter. A two- Judge Bench of this Court in Vikas v. State of Rajasthan, 2013 (11) SCALE 23, held that on the objective satisfaction of the court a person may be 'arrested' or 'summoned', as the circumstances of the case may require, if it appears from the evidence that any such person not being the accused has committed an offence for which such person could be tried together with the already arraigned accused persons.

96. In Rajendra Singh (Supra), the Court observed:

"Be it noted, the court need not be satisfied that he has committed an offence. It need only appear to it that he has committed an offence. In other words, from the evidence it need only appear to it that someone else has committed an offence, to exercise jurisdiction under Section 319 of the Code. Even then, it has a discretion not to proceed, since the expression used is "may" and not "shall". The legislature apparently wanted to leave that discretion to the trial court so as to enable it to exercise its jurisdiction under this section. The expression "appears" indicates an application of mind by the court to the evidence that has come before it and then taking a decision to proceed under Section 319 of the Code or not."

97. In Mohd. Shafi (Supra), this Court held that it is evident that before a court exercises its discretionary jurisdiction in terms of Section 319 Cr.P.C., it must arrive at a satisfaction that there exists a possibility that the accused so summoned in all likelihood would be convicted.

98. In Sarabjit Singh & Anr. v. State of Punjab & Anr., AIR 2009 SC 2792, while explaining the scope of Section 319 Cr.P.C., a two-Judge Bench of this Court observed:

"....For the aforementioned purpose, the courts are required to apply stringent tests; one of the tests being whether evidence on record is such which would reasonably lead to conviction of the person sought to be summoned.....

Whereas the test of prima facie case may be sufficient for taking cognizance of an offence at the stage of framing of charge, the court must be satisfied that there exists a strong suspicion. While framing charge in terms of Section 227 of the Code, the court must consider the entire materials on record to form an opinion that the evidence if unrebutted would lead to a judgment of conviction.

Whether a higher standard be set up for the purpose of invoking the jurisdiction under Section 319 of the Code is the question. The answer to these questions should be rendered in the affirmative. Unless a higher standard for the purpose of forming an opinion to summon a person as an additional accused is laid down, the ingredients thereof viz. (i) an extraordinary case, and (ii) a case for sparingly (sic sparing) exercise of jurisdiction, would not be satisfied." (Emphasis added)

99. In Brindaban Das & Ors. v. State of West Bengal, AIR 2009 SC 1248, a two-Judge Bench of this Court took a similar view observing that the court is required to consider whether such evidence would be sufficient to convict the person being summoned. Since issuance of summons under Section 319 Cr.P.C. entails a de novo trial and a large number of witnesses may have been examined and their re-examination could prejudice the prosecution and delay the trial, the trial court has to exercise such discretion with great care and perspicacity.

A similar view has been re-iterated by this Court in Michael Machado & Anr. v. Central Bureau of Investigation & Ors., AIR 2000 SC 1127.

100. However, there is a series of cases wherein this Court while dealing with the provisions of Section 227, 228, 239, 240, 241, 242 and 245 Cr.P.C., has consistently held that the court at the stage of framing of the charge has to apply its mind to the question whether or not there is any ground for presuming the commission of an offence by the accused. The court has to see as to whether the material brought on record reasonably connect the accused with the offence. Nothing more is required to be enquired into. While dealing with the aforesaid provisions, the test of prima facie case is to be applied. The Court has to find out whether the materials offered by the prosecution to be adduced as evidence are sufficient for the court to proceed against the accused further. (Vide: State of Karnataka v. L. Munishwamy & Ors., AIR 1977 SC 1489; All India Bank Officers' Confederation etc. v. Union of India & Ors., AIR 1989 SC 2045; Stree Atyachar Virodhi Parishad v. Dilip Nathumal Chordia, (1989) 1 SCC 715; State of M.P. v. Dr. Krishna Chandra Saksena, (1996) 11 SCC 439; and State of M.P. v. Mohan Lal Soni.

101.In Dilawar Babu Kurane v. State of Maharashtra AIR 2002 SC 564, this Court while dealing with the provisions of Section 227 and 228 Cr.P.C., placed a very heavy reliance on the earlier judgment of this Court in Union of India v. Prafulla Kumar Samal & Anr., AIR 1979 SC 366 and held that while considering the question of framing the charges, the court may weigh the evidence for the limited purpose of finding out whether or not a prima facie case against the accused has been made out and whether the materials placed before this Court disclose grave suspicion against the accused which has not been properly explained. In such an eventuality, the court is justified in framing the charges and proceeding with the trial. The court has to consider the broad probabilities of the case, the total effect of the evidence and the documents produced before the court but court should not make a roving enquiry into the pros and cons of the matter and weigh evidence as if it is conducting a trial.

102 In Suresh v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 2001 SC 1375, this Court after taking note of the earlier judgments in Niranjan Singh Karam Singh Punjabi v. Jitendra Bhimraj Bijjaya, AIR 1990 SC 1962 and State of Maharashtra v. Priya Sharan Maharaj, AIR 1997 SC 2041, held as under:

"9.....at the stage of Sections 227 and 228 the Court is required to evaluate the material and documents on record with a view to finding out if the facts emerging therefrom taken at their face value disclose the existence of all the ingredients constituting the alleged offence. The Court may, for this limited purpose, sift the evidence as it cannot be expected even at that initial stage to accept all that the prosecution states as gospel truth even if it is opposed to common sense or the broad probabilities of the case. Therefore, at the stage of framing of the charge the Court has to consider the material with a view to find out if there is ground for presuming that the accused has committed the offence or that there is not sufficient ground for proceeding against him and not for the purpose of arriving at the conclusion that it is not likely to lead to a conviction." (Emphasis supplied)

103. Similarly in State of Bihar v. Ramesh Singh, AIR 1977 SC 2018, while dealing with the issue, this Court held:

".....If the evidence which the Prosecutor proposes to adduce to prove the guilt of the accused even if fully accepted before it is challenged in cross-examination or rebutted by the defence evidence, if any, cannot show that the accused committed the offence, then there will be no sufficient ground for proceeding with the trial....."

104. In Palanisamy Gounder & Anr. v. State, represented by Inspector of Police, (2005) 12 SCC 327, this Court deprecated the practice of invoking the power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. just to conduct a fishing inquiry, as in that case, the trial court exercised that power just to find out the real truth, though there was no valid ground to proceed against the person summoned by the court.

105. Power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. is a discretionary and an extra- ordinary power. It is to be exercised sparingly and only in those cases where the circumstances of the case so warrant. It is not to be exercised because the Magistrate or the Sessions Judge is of the opinion that some other person may also be guilty of committing that offence. Only where strong and cogent evidence occurs against a person from the evidence led before the court that such power should be exercised and not in a casual and cavalier manner.

106. Thus, we hold that though only a prima facie case is to be established from the evidence led before the court not necessarily tested on the anvil of Cross-Examination, it requires much stronger evidence than mere probability of his complicity. The test that has to be applied is one which is more than prima facie case as exercised at the time of framing of charge, but short of satisfaction to an extent that the evidence, if goes unrebutted, would lead to conviction. In the absence of such satisfaction, the court should refrain from exercising power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. In Section 319 Cr.P.C. the purpose of providing if "it appears from the evidence that any person not being the accused has committed any offence' is clear from the words "for which such person could be tried together with the accused." The words used are not "for which such person could be convicted'. There is, therefore, no scope for the Court acting under Section 319 Cr.P.C. to form any opinion as to the guilt of the accused."

16. The Hon'ble Apex court in the case of Hardeep Singh (Supra) has also analysed the contingencies in what situation can the power u/s 319 Cr.P.C. be exercised in the cases when a person is not named in the FIR though named in the FIR but not charge sheeted or has been discharged. The Hon'ble Apex Court has observed as under:-

"107. In Joginder Singh & Anr. v. State of Punjab & Anr., AIR 1979 SC 339, a three-Judge Bench of this Court held that as regards the contention that the phrase "any person not being the accused" occurring in Section 319 Cr.P.C. excludes from its operation an accused who has been released by the police under Section 169 Cr.P.C. and has been shown in Column 2 of the charge-sheet, the contention has merely to be rejected. The said expression clearly covers any person who is not being tried already by the Court and the very purpose of enacting such a provision like Section 319 (1) Cr.P.C. clearly shows that even persons who have been dropped by the police during investigation but against whom evidence showing their involvement in the offence comes before the criminal court, are included in the said expression.

108. In Anju Chaudhary v. Sate of U.P. & Anr., (2013) 6 SCC 384, a two-Judge Bench of this Court held that even in the cases where report under Section 173(2) Cr.P.C. is filed in the court and investigation records the name of a person in Column 2, or even does not name the person as an accused at all, the court in exercise of its powers vested under Section 319 Cr.P.C. can summon the person as an accused and even at that stage of summoning, no hearing is contemplated under the law.

109. In Suman v. State of Rajasthan & Anr., AIR 2010 SC 518, a two- Judge Bench of this Court observed that there is nothing in the language of this sub-section from which it can be inferred that a person who is named in the FIR or complaint, but against whom charge-sheet is not filed by the police, cannot be proceeded against even though in the course of any inquiry into or trial of any offence, the court finds that such person has committed an offence for which he could be tried together with the other accused.

110.In Lal Suraj (supra), a two-Judge Bench held that there is no dispute with the legal proposition that even if a person had not been charge-sheeted, he may come within the purview of the description of such a person as contained in Section 319 Cr.P.C. A similar view had been taken in Lok Ram (Supra), wherein it was held that a person, though had initially been named in the FIR as an accused, but not charge-sheeted, can also be added to face the trial.

111. Even the Constitution Bench in Dharam Pal (CB) has held that the Sessions Court can also exercise its original jurisdiction and summon a person as an accused in case his name appears in Column 2 of the chargesheet, once the case had been committed to it. It means that a person whose name does not appear even in the FIR or in the chargesheet or whose name appears in the FIR and not in the main part of the chargesheet but in Column 2 and has not been summoned as an accused in exercise of the powers under Section 319 Cr.P.C. can still be summoned by the court, provided the court is satisfied that the conditions provided in the said statutory provisions stand fulfilled.

112. However, there is a great difference with regard to a person who has been discharged. A person who has been discharged stands on a different footing than a person who was never subjected to investigation or if subjected to, but not charge-sheeted. Such a person has stood the stage of inquiry before the court and upon judicial examination of the material collected during investigation; the court had come to the conclusion that there is not even a prima facie case to proceed against such person. Generally, the stage of evidence in trial is merely proving the material collected during investigation and therefore, there is not much change as regards the material existing against the person so discharged. Therefore, there must exist compelling circumstances to exercise such power. The Court should keep in mind that the witness when giving evidence against the person so discharged, is not doing so merely to seek revenge or is naming him at the behest of someone or for such other extraneous considerations. The court has to be circumspect in treating such evidence and try to separate the chaff from the grain. If after such careful examination of the evidence, the court is of the opinion that there does exist evidence to proceed against the person so discharged, it may take steps but only in accordance with section 398 Cr.P.C. without resorting to the provision of Section 319 Cr.P.C. directly.

113. In Sohan Lal & Ors. v. State of Rajasthan, (1990) 4 SCC 580, a two-Judge Bench of this Court held that once an accused has been discharged, the procedure for enquiry envisaged under Section 398 Cr.P.C. cannot be circumvented by prescribing to procedure under Section 319 Cr.P.C.

114. In Municipal Corporation of Dehli v. Ram Kishan Rohtagi & Ors., AIR 1983 SC 67, this Court held that if the prosecution can at any stage produce evidence which satisfies the court that those who have not been arraigned as accused or against whom proceedings have been quashed, have also committed the offence, the Court can take cognizance against them under Section 319 Cr.P.C. and try them along with the other accused.

115. Power under Section 398 Cr.P.C. is in the nature of revisional power which can be exercised only by the High Court or the Sessions Judge, as the case may be. According to Section 300 (5) Cr.P.C., a person discharged under Section 258 Cr.P.C. shall not be tried again for the same offence except with the consent of the Court by which he was discharged or of any other Court to which the first-mentioned Court is subordinate. Further, Section 398 Cr.P.C. provides that the High Court or the Sessions Judge may direct the Chief Judicial Magistrate by himself or by any of the Magistrate subordinate to him to make an inquiry into the case against any person who has already been discharged. Both these provisions contemplate an inquiry to be conducted before any person, who has already been discharged, is asked to again face trial if some evidence appears against him. As held earlier, Section 319 Cr.P.C. can also be invoked at the stage of inquiry. We do not see any reason why inquiry as contemplated by Section 300(5) Cr.P.C. and Section 398 Cr.P.C. cannot be an inquiry under Section 319 Cr.P.C. Accordingly, a person discharged can also be arraigned again as an accused but only after an inquiry as contemplated by Section 300(5) and 398 Cr.P.C. If during or after such inquiry, there appears to be an evidence against such person, power under Section 319Cr.P.C. can be exercised. We may clarify that the word "trial' under Section 319 Cr.P.C. would be eclipsed by virtue of above provisions and the same cannot be invoked so far as a person discharged is concerned, but no more.

116. Thus, it is evident that power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. can be exercised against a person not subjected to investigation, or a person placed in the Column 2 of the Charge-Sheet and against whom cognizance had not been taken, or a person who has been discharged. However, concerning a person who has been discharged, no proceedings can be commenced against him directly under Section 319 Cr.P.C. without taking recourse to provisions of Section 300(5) read with Section 398 Cr.P.C."

17. The Constitutional Bench in the matter of Hardeep Singh (Supra) has also considered the scope, ambit and the importance of the word evidence and had analysed the same and held as under:-

58. To answer the questions and to resolve the impediment that is being faced by the trial courts in exercising of powers under Section 319 Cr.P.C., the issue has to be investigated by examining the circumstances which give rise to a situation for the court to invoke such powers. The circumstances that lead to such inference being drawn up by the court for summoning a person arise out of the availability of the facts and material that comes up before the court and are made the basis for summoning such a person as an accomplice to the offence alleged to have been committed. The material should disclose the complicity of the person in the commission of the offence which has to be the material that appears from the evidence during the course of any inquiry into or trial of offence. The words as used in Section 319 Cr.P.C. indicate that the material has to be "where ....it appears from the evidence" before the court.

59. Before we answer this issue, let us examine the meaning of the word "evidence'. According to Section 3 of the Evidence Act, "evidence' means and includes:

(1) all statements which the Court permits or requires to be made before it by witnesses, in relation to matters of fact under inquiry; such statements are called oral evidence;

(2) all documents including electronic records produced for the inspection of the Court, such statements are called documentary evidence;

60. According to Tomlin's Law Dictionary, Evidence is "the means from which an inference may logically be drawn as to the existence of a fact. It consists of proof by testimony of witnesses, on oath; or by writing or records."

61. Bentham defines "evidence' as "any matter of fact, the effect, tendency or design of which presented to mind, is to produce in the mind a persuasion concerning the existence of some other matter of fact- a persuasion either affirmative or disaffirmative of its existence. Of the two facts so connected, the latter may be distinguished as the principal fact, and the former as the evidentiary fact."

62. According to Wigmore on Evidence, evidence represents "any knowable fact or group of facts, not a legal or a logical principle, considered with a view to its being offered before a legal tribunal for the purpose of producing a persuasion, positive or negative, on the part of the tribunal, as to the truth of a proposition, not of law, or of logic, on which the determination of the tribunal is to be asked."

63. The provision and the above-mentioned definitions clearly suggest that it is an exhaustive definition. Wherever the words "means and include" are used, it is an indication of the fact that the definition "is a hard and fast definition', and no other meaning can be assigned to the expression that is put down in the definition. It indicates an exhaustive explanation of the meaning which, for the purposes of the Act, must invariably be attached to these words or expression. (Vide: M/S. Mahalakshmi Oil Mills v. Stare of A.P. AIR 1989 SC 335; Punjab Land Development and Reclamation Corporation Ltd. Chandigarh v. Presiding Officer, Labour Court, Chandigarh & Ors., (1990) 3 SCC 682; P. Kasilingam & Ors. v. P.S.G. collage of Technology & Ors, AIR 1995 SC 1395; Hamdard (Wakf) Laboratories v. Dy. Labour Commissioner & Ors., AIR 2008 SC 968; and Ponds India Ltd. (merged with H.L. Limited) v. Commissioner of Trade Tax, Lucknow, (2008) 8 SCC 369).

64. In Feroze N. Dotivala v. P.M. Wadhwani & Ors, (2003) 1 SCC 433, dealing with a similar issue, this Court observed as under:

"Generally, ordinary meaning is to be assigned to any word or phrase used or defined in a statute. Therefore, unless there is any vagueness or ambiguity, no occasion will arise to interpret the term in a manner which may add something to the meaning of the word which ordinarily does not so mean by the definition itself, more particularly, where it is a restrictive definition. Unless there are compelling reasons to do so, meaning of a restrictive and exhaustive definition would not be expanded or made extensive to embrace things which are strictly not within the meaning of the word as defined.

65. We, therefore proceed to examine the matter further on the premise that the definition of word "evidence" under the Evidence Act is exhaustive.

66. In Kalyan Kumar Gogoi v. Ashutosh Agnihotri & Anr., AIR 2011 SC 760, while dealing with the issue this Court held :

"18. The word "evidence" is used in common parlance in three different senses: (a) as equivalent to relevant, (b) as equivalent to proof, and (c) as equivalent to the material, on the basis of which courts come to a conclusion about the existence or non-existence of disputed facts. Though, in the definition of the word "evidence" given in Section 3 of the Evidence Act one finds only oral and documentary evidence, this word is also used in phrases such as best evidence, circumstantial evidence, corroborative evidence, derivative evidence, direct evidence, documentary evidence, hearsay evidence, indirect evidence, oral evidence, original evidence, presumptive evidence, primary evidence, real evidence, secondary evidence, substantive evidence, testimonial evidence, etc."

67. In relation to a Civil Case, this court in Ameer Trading Corporation Ltd. v. Shapoorji Data Processing Ltd., AIR 2004 SC 355, held that the examination of a witness would include evidence-in- chief, cross-examination or re-examination. In Omkar Namdeo Jadhao & Ors v. Second Additional Sessions Judge Buldana & Anr., AIR 1997 SC 331; and Ram Swaroop & Ors. v. State of Rajasthan, AIR 2004 SC 2943, this Court held that statements recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C. during the investigation are not evidence. Such statements can be used at the trial only for contradictions or omissions when the witness is examined in the court.

(See also: Podda Narayana & Ors. v. State of A.P., AIR 1975 SC 1252; Sat Paul v. Delhi Administration, AIR 1976 SC 294; and State (Delhi Administration) v. Laxman Kumar & Ors., AIR 1986 SC 250).

68. In Lok Ram v. Nihal Singh & Anr., AIR 2006 SC 1892, it was held that it is evident that a person, even though had initially been named in the FIR as an accused, but not charge-sheeted, can also be added as an accused to face the trial. The trial court can take such a step to add such persons as accused only on the basis of evidence adduced before it and not on the basis of materials available in the charge-sheet or the case diary, because such materials contained in the charge-sheet or the case diary do not constitute evidence.

69. The majority view of the Constitution Bench in Ramnarayan Mor & Anr. v. The State of Maharashtra, AIR 1964 SC 949 has been as under:

"9. It was urged in the alternative by counsel for the appellants that even if the expression "evidence" may include documents, such documents would only be those which are duly proved at the enquiry for commitment, because what may be used in a trial, civil or criminal, to support the judgment of a Court is evidence duly proved according to law. But by the Evidence Act which applies to the trial of all criminal cases, the expression "evidence" is defined in Section 3 as meaning and including all statements which the Court permits or requires to be made before it by witnesses, in relation to matters of fact under enquiry and documents produced for the inspection of the Court. There is no restriction in this definition to documents which are duly proved by evidence." (Emphasis added)

70. Similarly, this Court in Sunil Mehta & Anr. v. State of Gujarat & Anr., JT 2013 (3) SC 328, held that "It is trite that evidence within the meaning of the Evidence Act and so also within the meaning of Section 244 of the Cr.P.C. is what is recorded in the manner stipulated under Section 138 in the case of oral evidence. Documentary evidence would similarly be evidence only if the documents are proved in the manner recognised and provided for under the Evidence Act unless of course a statutory provision makes the document admissible as evidence without any formal proof thereof."

71. In Guriya @ Tabassum Tauquir & Ors. v. State of Bihar & Anr., AIR 2008 SC 95, this Court held that in exercise of the powers under Section 319 Cr.P.C., the court can add a new accused only on the basis of evidence adduced before it and not on the basis of materials available in the charge sheet or the case diary.

72. In Kishun Singh (Supra), this Court held :

"11. On a plain reading of sub-section (1) of Section 319 there can be no doubt that it must appear from the evidence tendered in the course of any inquiry or trial that any person not being the accused has committed any offence for which he could be tried together with the accused. This power (under Section 319(1)), it seems clear to us, can be exercised only if it so appears from the evidence at the trial and not otherwise. Therefore, this sub-section contemplates existence of some evidence appearing in the course of trial wherefrom the court can prima facie conclude that the person not arraigned before it is also involved in the commission of the crime for which he can be tried with those already named by the police. Even a person who has earlier been discharged would fall within the sweep of the power conferred by S. 319 of the Code. Therefore, stricto sensu, Section 319 of the Code cannot be invoked in a case like the present one where no evidence has been led at a trial wherefrom it can be said that the appellants appear to have been involved in the commission of the crime along with those already sent up for trial by the prosecution.

12. But then it must be conceded that Section 319 covers the post-cognizance stage where in the course of an inquiry or trial the involvement or complicity of a person or persons not named by the investigating agency has surfaced which necessitates the exercise of the discretionary power conferred by the said provision....."

73. A similar view has been taken by this Court in Raj Kishore Prasad (Supra), wherein it was held that in order to apply Section 319 Cr.P.C., it is essential that the need to proceed against the person other than the accused appearing to be guilty of offence arises only on evidence recorded in the course of an inquiry or trial.

74. In Lal Suraj @ Suraj Singh & Anr. v. State of Jharkhand, (2009) 2 SCC 696, a two-Judge Bench of this Court held that "a court framing a charge would have before it all the materials on record which were required to be proved by the prosecution. In a case where, however, the court exercises its jurisdiction under Section 319 Cr.P.C., the power has to be exercised on the basis of the fresh evidence brought before the court. There lies a fine but clear distinction."

75. A similar view has been reiterated by this Court in Rajendra Singh v. State of U.P. & Anr., AIR 2007 SC 2786, observing that court should not exercise the power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. on the basis of materials available in the charge-sheet or the case diary, because such materials contained in the charge-sheet or the case diary do not constitute evidence. The word "evidence' in Section 319 Cr.P.C. contemplates the evidence of witnesses given in the court.

76. Ordinarily, it is only after the charges are framed that the stage of recording of evidence is reached. A bare perusal of Section 227 Cr.P.C. would show that the legislature has used the terms "record of the case" and the "documents submitted therewith". It is in this context that the word "evidence' as appearing in Section 319 Cr.P.C. has to be read and understood. The material collected at the stage of investigation can at best be used for a limited purpose as provided under Section 157 of the Evidence Act i.e. to corroborate or contradict the statements of the witnesses recorded before the court. Therefore, for the exercise of power under Section 319 Cr.P.C., the use of word `evidence' means material that has come before the court during an inquiry or trial by it and not otherwise. If from the evidence led in the trial the court is of the opinion that a person not accused before it has also committed the offence, it may summon such person under Section 319 Cr.P.C.

77. With respect to documentary evidence, it is sufficient, as can be seen from a bare perusal of Section 3 of the Evidence Act as well as the decision of the Constitution Bench, that a document is required to be produced and proved according to law to be called evidence. Whether such evidence is relevant, irrelevant, admissible or inadmissible, is a matter of trial.

78. It is, therefore, clear that the word "evidence" in Section 319 Cr.P.C. means only such evidence as is made before the court, in relation to statements, and as produced before the court, in relation to documents. It is only such evidence that can be taken into account by the Magistrate or the Court to decide whether power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. is to be exercised and not on the basis of material collected during investigation.

79. The inquiry by the court is neither attributable to the investigation nor the prosecution, but by the court itself for collecting information to draw back a curtain that hides something material. It is the duty of the court to do so and therefore the power to perform this duty is provided under the Cr.P.C.

80. The unveiling of facts other than the material collected during investigation before the magistrate or court before trial actually commences is part of the process of inquiry. Such facts when recorded during trial are evidence. It is evidence only on the basis whereof trial can be held, but can the same definition be extended for any other material collected during inquiry by the magistrate or court for the purpose of Section 319 Cr.P.C.?

81. An inquiry can be conducted by the magistrate or court at any stage during the proceedings before the court. This power is preserved with the court and has to be read and understood accordingly. The outcome of any such exercise should not be an impediment in the speedy trial of the case. Though the facts so received by the magistrate or the court may not be evidence, yet it is some material that makes things clear and unfolds concealed or deliberately suppressed material that may facilitate the trial. In the context of Section 319 Cr.P.C. it is an information of complicity. Such material therefore, can be used even though not an evidence in stricto sensuo, but an information on record collected by the court during inquiry itself, as a prima facie satisfaction for exercising the powers as presently involved.

82. This pre-trial stage is a stage where no adjudication on the evidence of the offences involved takes place and therefore, after the material alongwith the charge-sheet has been brought before the court, the same can be inquired into in order to effectively proceed with framing of charges. After the charges are framed, the prosecution is asked to lead evidence and till that is done, there is no evidence available in the strict legal sense of Section 3 of the Evidence Act. The actual trial of the offence by bringing the accused before the court has still not begun. What is available is the material that has been submitted before the court along with the charge-sheet. In such situation, the court only has the preparatory material that has been placed before the court for its consideration in order to proceed with the trial by framing of charges.

83. It is, therefore, not any material that can be utilised, rather it is that material after cognizance is taken by a court, that is available to it while making an inquiry into or trying an offence, that the court can utilize or take into consideration for supporting reasons to summon any person on the basis of evidence adduced before the Court, who may be on the basis of such material, treated to be an accomplice in the commission of the offence. The inference that can be drawn is that material which is not exactly evidence recorded before the court, but is a material collected by the court, can be utilised to corroborate evidence already recorded for the purpose of summoning any other person, other than the accused. This would harmonise such material with the word "evidence' as material that would be supportive in nature to facilitate the exposition of any other accomplice whose complicity in the offence may have either been suppressed or escaped the notice of the court.

84. The word "evidence" therefore has to be understood in its wider sense both at the stage of trial and, as discussed earlier, even at the stage of inquiry, as used under Section 319 Cr.P.C. The court, therefore, should be understood to have the power to proceed against any person after summoning him on the basis of any such material as brought forth before it. The duty and obligation of the court becomes more onerous to invoke such powers cautiously on such material after evidence has been led during trial.

85. In view of the discussion made and the conclusion drawn hereinabove, the answer to the aforesaid question posed is that apart from evidence recorded during trial, any material that has been received by the court after cognizance is taken and before the trial commences, can be utilised only for corroboration and to support the evidence recorded by the court to invoke the power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. The "evidence' is thus, limited to the evidence recorded during trial."

18. The proposition of law culled out by the Hon'ble Apex Court itself makes it clear that u/s 319 Cr.P.C. discretion has been bestowed upon the Magistrate to exercise the powers while looking into the facts and the circumstances of a particular case before it while according degree of satisfaction so imperative for invocation of the powers u/s 319 Cr.P.C. The Hon'ble Apex Court has repeatedly cautioned the Courts to exercise the powers under section 319 Cr.P.C. in such a manner that it does not permit an accused to walk away free on the strength of any lacuna attributed by the Investigating Officer. In nutshell, it can verywell be said that once the Magistrate finds that there was sufficient material available on record before it to summon a person in the trial which is proposed to be undertaken then the powers u/s 319 Cr.P.C. are to be invoked.

19. Nonetheless, the powers under section 319 Cr.P.C. to summon those persons who are not named in the charge sheet to appear and face trial is unquestionable as the very object of engrafting section 319 Cr.P.C. is that to allow a person who deserves to be tried not to go scot-free.

20. The stage which is contemplated under section 319 Cr.P.C. 1973 is a stage before the conclusion of the trial and thus, only one conclusion can be drawn that the Magistrate must be prima facie of the opinion that there are sufficient material and cause for summoning the culprit who is either not named in the FIR or if named, he has not been charge sheeted or discharged.

21. The issue can also be seen from another point of angle that during the course of the inquiry into, or trial of, an offence it appears from the evidence that any person not being accused has committed the offence or he has not been charge sheeted but there are sufficient material available on record which has not been taken into consideration by the investigating officer then the Magistrate in exercise of powers can always summon him in that regard. Sub section (1) of section 319 Cr.P.C. has consciously used the word "course of any inquiry into, or trial of" meaning thereby that the powers can be exercised under section 319

Cr.P.C. when there are certain material available on record during the course of inquiry or trial.

22. Coming to the facts of the present case, this Court finds with relation to the incident, which occurred on 24.11.2016, an FIR was lodged on the same day by the O.P. no.2 narrating the said incident, pursuant whereto the matter was put on motion and the husband of O.P. no.2 being Sri Kamlesh / PW-2 got recorded his statement, wherein he specifically named the applicant to be one of the accused, who was instrumental in commissioning of the offence under Section 342, 323, 308 IPC , a copy of the statement of PW-2 Sri Kamlesh, husband of O.P. no.2 at page 52 of the paper-book. The Investigating Officer submitted charge sheet on 14.8.2017 against Manoj Kumar @ Chhange, but not against Raju @ Rajesh Kumar, whose name specifically found place in the statement of husband of O.P. no.2 by PW-2. Compelled with these circumstances, O.P. no.2 preferred an application, which on 30.9.2019 under Section 319 of CrPC, which came to be allowed by virtue of the order impugned.

23. Learned counsel for the applicant has argued that the order under challenge summoning the applicant is illegal and in excess of the exercise of the power under Section 319 of CrPC, as there is no material available with the court below to have summoned the applicant.

24. Countering the said submission, learned A.G.A, has argued that bare perusal of the statement of Sri Kamlesh husband of O.P. no.2 shows that the applicant had committed the said offence.

25. I have carefully gone through the pleadings on record as well as specially the statement of Sri Kamlesh husband of O.P. no.2. The statement of husband of O.P. no.2, which finds place at page-52 dated 17.8.2019 itself shows that husband of O.P. no.2 had taken the name of Raju @ Rajesh Kumar, who is applicant herein, as he along with others had committed offence. The relevant extract of the same is quoted herein:

"घटना दिनांक 24.11.2016 को खेत पर मैं और मेरी पत्नी समय 7 बजे सुबह काम कर रहे थे। मेरी पत्नी खेती पर शोर मचाने लगी मैंने घूमकर देखा कि मेरी पत्नी को राजीव, छोटे, छंगे व राजू चार लोग बुरी नियत से घसीटने लगे मैने देखा बचाने के लिये गया, मुझे मारते हुये दो मोटर साईकिल पर राजू और छंगे मुझे मार पीट करते हुये, रायफल छोटे के हाथ में थी, तमंचा राजीव और छंगे लिये थे। ये लोग मुझे रेलवे फाटक इकदिल पहुचे तो वहॉ पर कुछ लोगों ने जिसमें संतोष चौधरी, शिवम चौधरी ने शोर मचाया तो ये लोग मुझे वहीं छोड़कर भाग गये। मेरे सिर में चोट थी। जिससे मैं बेहोशी की हालत में हो गया। मेरा इलाज लीलाधर हास्पिटल आगरा में हुआ था। दरोगा जी ने मेरा बयान लिया था।"

26. When the learned counsel for the applicant was confronted with the statement of PW-2 being Sri Kamlesh husband of O.P. no.2 showing the name of the applicant, then the counsel for the applicant could not dispute the said fact, rather to the contrary, the learned counsel for the applicant has sought to argue this much that the applicant has not committed any criminality.

27. On the repeated query, being made to the learned counsel for the revisionist, as to whether there was any jurisdictional error committed by the court below in summoning the revisionist, learned counsel for the revisionist only argued on factual score.

28. This Court in exercise of the revisional jurisdiction cannot embark upon the inquiry with regard to facts of the case, particularly when the courts below had applied its mind and taken a view, which does not appear to be perverse or palpable while issuing summons.

29. The applicant in the present revision, is trying to insist this Court to go into the factual issues which cannot be gone into in the present facts of the case as this court is of firm opinion that there exist sufficient material which itself shows that the powers exercised by the court below while summoning the applicants, does not suffer from any illegality and infirmity.

30. The learned counsel for the revisionist has also not disputed the legal proposition so culled out by the Hon'ble Apex Court in relation to the scope and ambit of the powers u/s 319 Cr.P.C. and further he has not been able to bring on record any material to show that the findings recorded by the court below while summoning her suffers from any perversity or illegality. For the facts and the reasons noted above, there is no good ground to interfere into the order dated 4.3.2021 summoning the revisionist.

31. Accordingly, the present revision lacks of merit and the same is dismissed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Yogendra Kumar Srivastava, J.)

1. Heard Sri R. N. Tripathi, holding brief of Sri Kamlesh Kumar, learned counsel for the revisionist and Ms. Sushma Soni, learned Additional Government Advocate appearing for the State-opposite party.

2. The present revision has been filed against the judgment and order dated 26.10.2021 passed by the learned Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Room No.18, Allahabad in Criminal Case No. 762 of 2015 (State vs. Ajeet Singh), whereby the learned Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Room No.18, Allahabad rejected the application under Section 239 Cr.P.C. filed by the revisionist.

3. Pleadings in the case indicates that the proceedings in the criminal case were initiated pursuant to an FIR lodged on 20.06.2014 registered as Case Crime No. 149 of 2014, under Section 354 of the Indian Penal Code, 18601 and upon investigation a police report under Sections 354B, 506 of the Penal Code was placed before the Magistrate. The opposite party no.2 in her statement under Section 161 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 19732 reiterated the FIR version. An application for discharge under Section 239 of the Code was moved primarily seeking to contend that there was variance in the statements of the opposite party no.2 under Section 161 and Section 164 of the Code with the F.I.R. version, and accordingly the testimony of the opposite party no.1 was sought to be impeached and discharge was sought.

4. The learned Magistrate on considering the facts and circumstances of the case and material on record and the scope of powers to be exercised under Section 239 of the Code, has held that only in a case where the police report submitted under Section 173 of the Code along with the material evidence and documents appended therewith indicate that there is no material to initiate proceedings that the Magistrate can pass an order of discharge. In the facts of the case the learned Magistrate has held that the minor variation in the statements recorded under Sections 161 and 164 of the Code to contradict the FIR version would not be material inasmuch as the FIR is not supposed to be an encyclopedia of facts.

5. Counsel for the applicant has sought to assail the order passed by the court below by seeking to point out the discrepancy between the statements of the prosecutrix recorded under Sections 161 and 164 of the Code and by asserting that the same are in contradiction with the FIR version. Learned Counsel has also referred to the factual aspects of the case and the defence which is to be set up on behalf of the applicant.

6. Learned Additional Government Advocate submits that at the stage of consideration of discharge under Section 239 of the Code only a prima facie case is to be seen and the Magistrate having recorded a satisfaction with regard to the existence of a prima facie case there cannot be said to be any material error or illegality in the order which is sought to be assailed.

7. In order to appreciate the rival contentions the relevant statutory provisions may be adverted to. The procedure for trial of warrant cases by Magistrate is provided for under Chapter XIX of the Code and Sections 239 and 240 relate to discharge and framing of charge.

8. The primary consideration at the stage of framing of charge is the test of existence of a prima facie case, and at this stage, probative value of materials on record are not to be gone into.

9. The provisions which deal with the question of framing of charge or discharge, relatable to : (i) a sessions trial or, (ii) a trial of warrant case, or (iii) a summons case, are contained in three pairs of sections under the Code. These are Sections 227 and 228 in so far as, sessions trial is concerned; Sections 239 and 240 relatable to trial of warrant cases; and Sections 245 (1) and 245(2) in respect of summons case. The relevant provisions read as follows:-

"227. Discharge.--If, upon consideration of the record of the case and the documents submitted therewith, and after hearing the submissions of the accused and the prosecution in this behalf, the Judge considers that there is not sufficient ground for proceeding against the accused, he shall discharge the accused and record his reasons for so doing.

228. Framing of charge.--(1) If, after such consideration and hearing as aforesaid, the Judge is of opinion that there is ground for presuming that the accused has committed an offence which--

(a) is not exclusively triable by the Court of Session, he may, frame a charge against the accused and, by order, transfer the case for trial to the Chief Judicial Magistrate, or any other Judicial Magistrate of the first class and direct the accused to appear before the Chief Judicial Magistrate, or, as the case may be, the Judicial Magistrate of the first class, on such date as he deems fit, and thereupon such Magistrate shall try the offence in accordance with the procedure for the trial of warrant-cases instituted on a police report;

(b) is exclusively triable by the Court, he shall frame in writing a charge against the accused.

(2) Where the Judge frames any charge under clause (b) of sub- section (1), the charge shall be read and explained to the accused, and the accused shall be asked whether he pleads guilty of the offence charged or claims to be tried.

239. When accused shall be discharged.--If, upon considering the police report and the documents sent with it under Section 173 and making such examination, if any, of the accused as the Magistrate thinks necessary and after giving the prosecution and the accused an opportunity of being heard, the Magistrate considers the charge against the accused to be groundless, he shall discharge the accused, and record his reasons for so doing.

240. Framing of charge.--(1) If, upon such consideration, examination, if any, and hearing, the Magistrate is of opinion that there is ground for presuming that the accused has committed an offence triable under this Chapter, which such Magistrate is competent to try and which, in his opinion, could be adequately punished by him, he shall frame in writing a charge against the accused.

(2) The charge shall then be read and explained to the accused, and he shall be asked whether he pleads guilty of the offence charged or claims to be tried.

245. When accused shall be discharged.--(1) If, upon taking all the evidence referred to in Section 244, the Magistrate considers, for reasons to be recorded, that no case against the accused has been made out which, if unrebutted, would warrant his conviction, the Magistrate shall discharge him.

(2) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to prevent a Magistrate from discharging the accused at any previous stage of the case if, for reasons to be recorded by such Magistrate, he considers the charge to be groundless."

10. The aforestated sections indicate that the Code contemplates discharge of the accused by the court of sessions under Section 227 in a case triable by it, cases instituted upon a police report are covered by Section 239 and cases instituted otherwise than on a police report are dealt with in Section 245. The three sections contain somewhat different provisions in regard to discharge of the accused. As per Section 227, the trial judge is required to discharge the accused if "the Judge considers that there is not sufficient ground for proceeding against the accused". The obligation to discharge the accused under Section 239 arises when "the Magistrate considers the charge against the accused to be groundless". The power to discharge under Section 245(1) is exerciseable when "the Magistrate considers, for reasons to be recorded, that no case against the accused has been made out which, if unrebutted would warrant his conviction". Sections 227 and 239 provide for discharge being made before recording of evidence and the consideration as to whether the charge has to be framed or not is required to be made on the basis of the record of the case, including documents and oral hearing of the accused and the prosecution or the police report, the documents sent along with it and examination of the accused and after affording an opportunity to the parties to be heard. On the other hand, the stage for discharge under Section 245 is reached only after the evidence referred to in Section 244 has been taken.

11. Despite the slight variation in the provisions with regard to discharge under the three pairs of sections, the settled legal position is that the stage of framing of charge under either of these three situations, is a preliminary one and test of "prima facie" case has to be applied -- if the trial court is satisfied that a prima facie case is made out, charge has to be framed.

12. The nature of evaluation to be made by the court at the stage of framing of charge came up for consideration in Onkar Nath Mishra and others Vs. State (NCT of Delhi) and another3, and referring to the earlier decisions in State of Maharashtra Vs. Som Nath Thapa4, and State of M.P. Vs. Mohanlal Soni5, it was held that at that stage the Court has to form a presumptive opinion as to the existence of the factual ingredients constituting the offence alleged and it is not expected to go deep into the probative value of the material on record. The relevant observations made in the judgment are as follows :-

"11. It is trite that at the stage of framing of charge the court is required to evaluate the material and documents on record with a view to finding out if the facts emerging therefrom, taken at their face value, disclosed the existence of all the ingredients constituting the alleged offence. At that stage, the court is not expected to go deep into the probative value of the material on record. What needs to be considered is whether there is a ground for presuming that the offence has been committed and not a ground for convicting the accused has been made out. At that stage, even strong suspicion founded on material which leads the court to form a presumptive opinion as to the existence of the factual ingredients constituting the offence alleged would justify the framing of charge against the accused in respect of the commission of that offence.

13. Then again in State of Maharashtra Vs. Som Nath Thapa, a three-Judge Bench of this Court, after noting three pairs of sections viz. (i) Sections 227 and 228 insofar as sessions trial is concerned; (ii) Sections 239 and 240 relatable to trial of warrant cases; and (iii) Sections 245(1) and (2) qua trial of summons cases, which dealt with the question of framing of charge or discharge, stated thus: (SCC p. 671, para 32)

"32...if on the basis of materials on record, a court could come to the conclusion that commission of the offence is a probable consequence, a case for framing of charge exists. To put it differently, if the court were to think that the accused might have committed the offence it can frame the charge, though for conviction the conclusion is required to be that the accused has committed the offence. It is apparent that at the stage of framing of a charge, probative value of the materials on record cannot be gone into; the materials brought on record by the prosecution has to be accepted as true at that stage."

14. In a later decision in State of M.P. Vs. Mohanlal Soni, this Court, referring to several previous decisions held that: (SCC p. 342, para 7)

"7. The crystallised judicial view is that at the stage of framing charge, the court has to prima facie consider whether there is sufficient ground for proceeding against the accused. The court is not required to appreciate evidence to conclude whether the materials produced are sufficient or not for convicting the accused. "

13. Reiterating a similar view in Sheoraj Singh Ahlawat and others Vs. State of Uttar Pradesh and another6, it was observed that while framing charges court is required to evaluate materials and documents on record to decide whether facts emerging therefrom taken at their face value would disclose existence of ingredients constituting the alleged offence. At this stage, the court is not required to go deep into the probative value of the materials on record. It needs to evaluate whether there is a ground for presuming that the accused had committed the offence and it is not required to evaluate sufficiency of evidence to convict the accused. It was held that the court at this stage, cannot speculate into the truthfulness or falsity of the allegations and contradictions, inconsistencies in the statement of witnesses cannot be looked into at the stage of discharge.

14. In the context of trial of a warrant case, instituted on a police report, the provisions for discharge are to be governed as per terms of Section 239 which provides that a direction for discharge can be made only for reasons to be recorded by the court where it considers the charge against the accused to be groundless. It would, therefore, follow that as per the provisions under Section 239 what needs to be considered is whether there is a ground for presuming that the offence has been committed and not that a ground for convicting the accused has been made out. At that stage, even strong suspicion founded on material which leads the court to form a presumptive opinion as to the existence of the factual ingredients constituting the offences alleged would justify the framing of charge against the accused in respect of that offence, and it is only in a case where the Magistrate considers the charge to be groundless, he is to discharge the accused after recording his reasons for doing so.

15. The legal position with regard to the principles to be applied while considering a discharge, in the context of the provisions under Section 227 of the Code were considered in Union of India Vs. Prafulla Kumar Samal and Another7, wherein it was observed as follows:

"10. Thus, on a consideration of the authorities mentioned above, the following principles emerge:

(1) That the Judge while considering the question of framing the charges under Section 227 of the Code has the undoubted power to sift and weigh the evidence for the limited purpose of finding out whether or not a prima facie case against the accused has been made out.

(2) Where the materials placed before the Court disclose grave suspicion against the accused which has not been properly explained the Court will be fully justified in framing a charge and proceeding with the trial.

(3) The test to determine a prima facie case would naturally depend upon the facts of each case and it is difficult to lay down a rule of universal application. By and large however if two views are equally possible and the Judge is satisfied that the evidence produced before him while giving rise to some suspicion but not grave suspicion against the accused, he will be fully within his right to discharge the accused.

(4) That in exercising his jurisdiction under Section 227 of the Code the Judge which under the present Code is a senior and experienced court cannot act merely as a Post office or a mouth-piece of the prosecution, but has to consider the broad probabilities of the case, the total effect of the evidence and the documents produced before the Court, any basic infirmities appearing in the case and so on. This however does not mean that the Judge should make a roving enquiry into the pros and cons of the matter and weigh the evidence as if he was conducting a trial."

16. The considerations relevant at the stage of discharge in the context of Section 227 were discussed in a recent decision in the case of M.E. Shivalingamurthy Vs. Central Bureau of Investigation, Bengaluru8 and referring to an earlier decision in P. Vijayan Vs. State of Kerala9, and the legal principles governing the exercise of such power were stated as follows:

"Legal principles applicable in regard to an application seeking discharge

17. This is an area covered by a large body of case law. We refer to a recent judgment which has referred to the earlier decisions viz. P. Vijayan v. State of Kerala and discern the following principles:

17.1. If two views are possible and one of them gives rise to suspicion only as distinguished from grave suspicion, the trial Judge would be empowered to discharge the accused.

17.2. The trial Judge is not a mere post office to frame the charge at the instance of the prosecution.

17.3. The Judge has merely to sift the evidence in order to find out whether or not there is sufficient ground for proceeding. Evidence would consist of the statements recorded by the police or the documents produced before the Court.

17.4. If the evidence, which the Prosecutor proposes to adduce to prove the guilt of the accused, even if fully accepted before it is challenged in cross-examination or rebutted by the defence evidence, if any, "cannot show that the accused committed offence, then, there will be no sufficient ground for proceeding with the trial".

17.5. It is open to the accused to explain away the materials giving rise to the grave suspicion.

17.6. The court has to consider the broad probabilities, the total effect of the evidence and the documents produced before the court, any basic infirmities appearing in the case and so on. This, however, would not entitle the court to make a roving inquiry into the pros and cons.

17.7. At the time of framing of the charges, the probative value of the material on record cannot be gone into, and the material brought on record by the prosecution, has to be accepted as true.

17.8. There must exist some materials for entertaining the strong suspicion which can form the basis for drawing up a charge and refusing to discharge the accused.

18. The defence of the accused is not to be looked into at the stage when the accused seeks to be discharged under Section 227 CrPC (see State of J&K v. Sudershan Chakkar10). The expression, "the record of the case", used in Section 227 CrPC, is to be understood as the documents and the articles, if any, produced by the prosecution. The Code does not give any right to the accused to produce any document at the stage of framing of the charge. At the stage of framing of the charge, the submission of the accused is to be confined to the material produced by the police (see State of Orissa v. Debendra Nath Padhi11)."

17. The provisions of discharge under Section 239 of the Code fell for consideration in

K. Ramakrishna and others Vs. State of Bihar and Another12, and it was held that questions regarding the sufficiency or reliability of the evidence to proceed further are not required to be considered by the trial court under Section 239 and the High Court under Section 482. It was observed as follows:

"4. The trial court under Section 239 and the High Court under Section 482 of the Code of Criminal Procedure is not called upon to embark upon an inquiry as to whether evidence in question is reliable or not or evidence relied upon is sufficient to proceed further or not. However, if upon the admitted facts and the documents relied upon by the complainant or the prosecution and without weighing or sifting of evidence, no case is made out, the criminal proceedings instituted against the accused are required to be dropped or quashed. As observed by this Court in Rajesh Bajaj v. State NCT of Delhi13, the High Court or the Magistrate are also not supposed to adopt a strict hypertechnical approach to sieve the complaint through a colander of finest gauzes for testing the ingredients of offence with which the accused is charge. Such an endeavour may be justified during trial but not during the initial stage."

18. The ambit and scope of exercise of power under Sections 239 and 240 of the Code, are therefore fairly well settled. The obligation to discharge the accused under Section 239 arises when the Magistrate considers the charge against the accused to be "groundless". The section mandates that the Magistrate shall discharge the accused recording reasons, if after (i) considering the police report and the documents sent with it under Section 173, (ii) examining the accused, if necessary, and (iii) giving the prosecution and the accused an opportunity of being heard, he considers the charge against the accused to be groundless, i.e. either there is no legal evidence or that the facts are such that no offence is made out at all. No detailed evaluation of the materials or meticulous consideration of the possible defences need be undertaken at this stage nor any exercise of weighing materials in golden scales is to be undertaken at this stage - the only consideration at the stage of Section 239/240, is as to whether the allegation/charge is groundless.

19. This would not be the stage for weighing the pros and cons of all the implications of the materials, nor for sifting the materials placed by the prosecution- the exercise at this stage is to be confined to considering the police report and the documents to decide whether the allegations against the accused can be said to be "groundless'.

20. The word "ground" according to Black's Law Dictionary14 connotes foundation or basis, and in the context of prosecution in a criminal case, it would be held to mean basis for charging the accused or foundation for the admissibility of evidence. Seen in the context, the word "groundless" would connote no basis or foundation in evidence. The test which may therefore be applied for determining whether the charge should be considered groundless is that where the materials are such that even if unrebutted, would make out no case whatsoever.

21. Counsel for the revisionist has not been able to dispute the aforesaid legal position with regard to the scope of powers to be exercised at the stage of discharge.

22. No material error, illegality and perversity has been pointed out in the order passed by the court below so as to warrant interference in exercise of revisional jurisdiction of this Court.

23. The contention sought to be put forward with regard to minor discrepancies in the material evidence or the other factual aspects of the case including the defence which is sought to be set up on behalf of the accused, cannot be considered at this stage of the proceedings where only the test of a prima facie case has to be applied.

24. No other point was urged.

25. The revision stands dismissed accordingly.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Vikas Budhwar, J.)

1. Heard Shri Santosh Kumar Singh Paliwal and learned counsel for the revisionists and Sri L. D. Rajbhar learned A.G.A. for the state.

2. The present criminal revision purported to be under section 397/401 of Cr.P.C. has been preferred for challenging the order dated 8.10.2021 passed by the Additional Sessions Judge/Special Judge (POCSO Act), Court No. 1, Bareilly, in Special Case No. 09 of 2020 (State Vs. Vedram), Case Crime No. 168 of 2019 under sections 363 366, 370-A, 376 and 120-B IPC and section 16/17 POCSO Act, P.S. Cantt. District Bareilly, where by the applicants have been summoned in exercise of power as conferred under section 319 Cr.P.C.

3. Brief facts of the case shorn off unnecessary details are that the FIR was lodged by the opposite party no. 2 being mother of the victim on 21.05.2019 being FIR no. 168 u/s 363, 366 of IPC against one Vedram alleging that when the opposite party no. 2 who happens to be the mother of the victim while returning after purchasing vegetables on 11.12.2017 at 6:00 p.m. then she found that the victim being Ms. Khushboo who is aged about 14 years was missing from the house. Therefore, after constant search was being made to trace her whereabouts but she was not found however, three days before the lodging of the FIR i.e 21.05.2019 the victim made a phone call on the mobile number on her brother Pushpendra bearing number 9027989065 as well as in the mobile number of the opposite party bearing number 8057233073 and also in the mobile number 7453092181 and 7060193554 informing that that Vedram R/o Vandia, P.S. Fatehganj (East) had misguided the victim and he has taken her away to Kasba being Lalkua. It was also alleged in the FIR that Vedram used to treat her badly and harass her and when the victim got an opportunity while being alone, she has made the said call. A copy of the FIR has been annexed as annexure-1 of the paper book. It appears that the statements of the Khushbu, the victim was recorded on 12-6-2019 under section 161 of Cr.P.C. wherein the victim has stated that she is aged about 25 years and she developed friendship with Vedram thereafter, they used to meet each other. She further stated that for about one year back she had called Vedram to her house and she had gone with him according to her will and she got married about 1 year back in Arya Samaj Mandir and she has given birth to a female child about 3 months back and she had also come to know that her mother being opposite party no. 2 has lodged an FIR against Vedram, therefore, she has come to the police station and stated that Vedram is not guilty at all. Thereafter, it appears that the statement of the victim recorded under section 164 Cr.P.C. on 19-6-2019 wherein she has stated that her aunty being applicant no. 1 and the applicant no. 2 Suresh had sold her to Vedram for an amount of Rs. 1 Lakh and Vedram took her to Ghaziabad wherein she was confined in a room for more than one and half year and she was not allowed to go out and the bad act of rape was being committed with her by Vedram which resulted into the birth of female child and She further stated that threats were also administered to her that she should not disclose this to anybody about the truth otherwise she would be killed and further, she never wants to remain with Vedram and she has never got married with him. A copy of the statement recorded under section 164 CrPC is annexed as annexure-4 of the paper book. It has also come on record that the medical examination of the victim was also done wherein her age were determined to be 17 years and consequently, the Investigating Officer included the offence under section 376 of IPC and ¾ POCSO Act. Thereafter, it appears that charge sheet was submitted by the Investigating Officer on 08.07.2019 under section 363, 366, 376 IPC and POCSO Act against Vedram. However during the trial, the opposite party no. 2 being Smt. Nanhi Devi was examined as P.W. 1 on 24.10.2019 in Special Case No. 959 of 2019 wherein the opposite party no. 2 has stated that the applicant no. 1 being Smt. Munni Devi W/o Guddu Sharma is living for a period of more than 10 to 12 years with the applicant no. 2 being Suresh and both of them had misguided her daughter and taken her away. It has further been submitted that the applicant number 2 is an occultist and he also had sold 2-4 girls. On 28.01.2021 the victim being P.W. 2 had also given an statement which is at page 62 of a paper book wherein she has specifically stated that the applicant no. 1 who happens to be her aunty, called the victim on the roof where the applicant no. 2 was also present and the applicant no. 1 made the victim unconscious by putting something on the handkerchief and when she smelled it then she became semi-conscious and she was sold to Vedram for an amount of Rs. 1 Lakh, thereafter, Vedram took her in four wheeler and the applicants accompanied them and took her to Lalkuan where Vedram kept her lock in a house and despite of protest, she was raped. She has further recorded her statement that a girl was born and all sorts of harassment and beating was administered to her. She further submits that once she had found mobile of brother of Vedram and there was nobody present at that point of time so the victim had made a call to her mother in this regard. Even during her cross-examination on 04.02.2021 the victim specifically stated that at no point of time she got married with Vedram.

4. Thereafter, it appears that an application was preferred by the opposite party no. 2 under section 319 of Cr.P.C. with the request that the name of the applicants be also included in the criminal proceedings as there were sufficient materials available for prosecuting them with regard to conviction in respect of the aforesaid offence. The court below has now proceeded to pass an order dated 08.10.2021 summoning the applicants for the offence under section 363, 366, 370-A, 376 and 120-B IPC and section 16 and 17 POCSO Act.

5. Challenging this said order, now the revisionist are before this Court.

6. The moot question which falls for consideration before this Court in the proceedings u/s 397/401 of Cr.P.C. is as to whether the order passed by the court below along with the application u/s 319 Cr.P.C. is within the parameters as set out in the said provisions.

7. For the ready reference section 319 of the Cr.P.C. 1973 is quoted hereinunder.

"319. Power to proceed against other persons appearing to be guilty of offence.--

(1) Where, in the course of any inquiry into, or trial of, an offence, it appears from the evidence that any person not being the accused has committed any offence for which such person could be tried together with the accused, the Court may proceed against such person for the offence which he appears to have committed.

(2) Where such person is not attending the Court, he may be arrested or summoned, as the circumstances of the case may require, for the purpose aforesaid.

(3) Any person attending the Court, although not under arrest or upon a summons, may be detained by such Court for the purpose of the inquiry into, or trial of, the offence which he appears to have committed.

(4) Where the Court proceeds against any person under sub-section (1), then--

(a) the proceedings in respect of such person shall be commenced afresh, and the witnesses re-heard;

(b) subject to the provisions of clause (a), the case may proceed as if such person had been an accused person when the Court took cognizance of the offence upon which the inquiry or trial was commenced."

"8. The Constitutional mandate under Articles 20 and 21 of the Constitution of India, 1950 (hereinafter referred to as the "Constitution') provides a protective umbrella for the smooth administration of justice making adequate provisions to ensure a fair and efficacious trial so that the accused does not get prejudiced after the law has been put into motion to try him for the offence but at the same time also gives equal protection to victims and to the society at large to ensure that the guilty does not get away from the clutches of law. For the empowerment of the courts to ensure that the criminal administration of justice works properly, the law was appropriately codified and modified by the legislature under the Cr.P.C. indicating as to how the courts should proceed in order to ultimately find out the truth so that an innocent does not get punished but at the same time, the guilty are brought to book under the law. It is these ideals as enshrined under the Constitution and our laws that have led to several decisions, whereby innovating methods and progressive tools have been forged to find out the real truth and to ensure that the guilty does not go unpunished.

9. The presumption of innocence is the general law of the land as every man is presumed to be innocent unless proven to be guilty. Alternatively, certain statutory presumptions in relation to certain class of offences have been raised against the accused whereby the presumption of guilt prevails till the accused discharges his burden upon an onus being cast upon him under the law to prove himself to be innocent. These competing theories have been kept in mind by the legislature. The entire effort, therefore, is not to allow the real perpetrator of an offence to get away unpunished. This is also a part of fair trial and in our opinion, in order to achieve this very end that the legislature thought of incorporating provisions of Section 319 Cr.P.C. It is with the said object in mind that a constructive and purposive interpretation should be adopted that advances the cause of justice and does not dilute the intention of the statute conferring powers on the court to carry out the above mentioned avowed object and purpose to try the person to the satisfaction of the court as an accomplice in the commission of the offence that is subject matter of trial.

10. In order to answer the aforesaid questions posed, it will be appropriate to refer to Section 351 of the Criminal Procedure Code, 1898 (hereinafter referred to as `Old Code'), where an analogous provision existed, empowering the court to summon any person other than the accused if he is found to be connected with the commission of the offence. However, when the new Cr.P.C. was being drafted, regard was had to 41st Report of the Law Commission where in the paragraphs 24.80 and 24.81 recommendations were made to make this provision more comprehensive. The said recommendations read:

"24.80 It happens sometimes, though not very often, that a Magistrate hearing a case against certain accused finds from the evidence that some person, other than the accused before him, is also concerned in that very offence or in a connected offence. It is proper that Magistrate should have the power to call and join him in proceedings. Section 351 provides for such a situation, but only if that person happens to be attending the Court. He can then be detained and proceeded against. There is no express provision in Section 351 for summoning such a person if he is not present in court. Such a provision would make Section 351 fairly comprehensive, and we think it proper to expressly provide for that situation.

24.81 Section 351 assumes that the Magistrate proceeding under it has the power of taking cognizance of the new case. It does not, however, say in what manner cognizance is taken by the Magistrate. The modes of taking cognizance are mentioned in Section 190, and are apparently exhaustive. The question is, whether against the newly added accused, cognizance will be supposed to have been taken on the Magistrates own information under Section 190(1), or only in the manner in which cognizance was first taken of the offence against the accused. The question is important, because the methods of inquiry and trial in the two cases differ. About the true position under the existing law, there has been difference of opinion, and we think it should be made clear. It seems to us that the main purpose of this particular provision is that the whole case against all known suspects should be proceeded with expeditiously and convenience requires that cognizance against the newly added accused should be taken in the same manner against the other accused. We, therefore, propose to recast Section 351 making it comprehensive and providing that there will be no difference in the mode of taking cognizance if a new person is added as an accused during the proceedings. It is, of course, necessary (as is already provided) that in such a situation the evidence must he reheard in the presence of the newly added accused."

11. Section 319 Cr.P.C. as it exists today, is quoted hereunder:

"319 Cr.P.C. -Power to proceed against other persons appearing to be guilty of offence.-

(1) Where, in the course of any inquiry into, or trial of, an offence, it appears from the evidence that any person not being the accused has committed any offence for which such person could be tried together with the accused, the Court may proceed against such person for the offence which he appears to have committed.

(2) Where such person is not attending the Court, he may be arrested or summoned, as the circumstances of the case may require, for the purpose aforesaid.

(3) Any person attending the Court, although not under arrest or upon a summons, may be detained by such Court for the purpose of the inquiry into, or trial of, the offence which he appears to have committed.

(4) Where the Court proceeds against any person under sub- section (1), then-

(a) the proceedings in respect of such person shall be commenced afresh, and the witnesses re-heard;

(b) subject to the provisions of clause (a), the case may proceed as if such person had been an accused person when the Court took cognizance of the offence upon which the inquiry or trial was commenced."

12. Section 319 Cr.P.C. springs out of the doctrine judex damnatur cum nocens absolvitur (Judge is condemned when guilty is acquitted) and this doctrine must be used as a beacon light while explaining the ambit and the spirit underlying the enactment of Section 319 Cr.P.C.

13. It is the duty of the Court to do justice by punishing the real culprit. Where the investigating agency for any reason does not array one of the real culprits as an accused, the court is not powerless in calling the said accused to face trial. The question remains under what circumstances and at what stage should the court exercise its power as contemplated in Section 319 Cr.P.C.?

14. The submissions that were raised before us covered a very wide canvas and the learned counsel have taken us through various provisions of Cr.P.C. and the judgments that have been relied on for the said purpose. The controversy centers around the stage at which such powers can be invoked by the court and the material on the basis whereof such powers can be exercised.

15. It would be necessary to put on record that the power conferred under Section 319 Cr.P.C. is only on the court. This has to be understood in the context that Section 319 Cr.P.C. empowers only the court to proceed against such person. The word "court" in our hierarchy of criminal courts has been defined under Section 6 Cr.P.C., which includes the Courts of Sessions, Judicial Magistrates, Metropolitan Magistrates as well as Executive Magistrates. The Court of Sessions is defined in Section 9 Cr.P.C. and the Courts of Judicial Magistrates has been defined under Section 11 thereof. The Courts of Metropolitan Magistrates has been defined under Section 16 Cr.P.C. The courts which can try offences committed under the Indian Penal Code, 1860 or any offence under any other law, have been specified under Section 26 Cr.P.C. read with First Schedule. The explanatory note (2) under the heading of "Classification of Offences" under the First Schedule specifies the expression "magistrate of first class' and "any magistrate' to include Metropolitan Magistrates who are empowered to try the offences under the said Schedule but excludes Executive Magistrates.

16. It is at this stage the comparison of the words used under Section 319 Cr.P.C. has to be understood distinctively from the word used under Section 2(g) defining an inquiry other than the trial by a magistrate or a court. Here the legislature has used two words, namely the magistrate or court, whereas under Section 319 Cr.P.C., as indicated above, only the word "court" has been recited. This has been done by the legislature to emphasise that the power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. is exercisable only by the court and not by any officer not acting as a court. Thus, the magistrate not functioning or exercising powers as a court can make an inquiry in particular proceeding other than a trial but the material so collected would not be by a court during the course of an inquiry or a trial. The conclusion therefore, in short, is that in order to invoke the power under Section 319 Cr.P.C., it is only a Court of Sessions or a Court of Magistrate performing the duties as a court under the Cr.P.C. that can utilise the material before it for the purpose of the said Section.

17. Section 319 Cr.P.C. allows the court to proceed against any person who is not an accused in a case before it. Thus, the person against whom summons are issued in exercise of such powers, has to necessarily not be an accused already facing trial. He can either be a person named in Column 2 of the chargesheet filed under Section 173 Cr.P.C. or a person whose name has been disclosed in any material before the court that is to be considered for the purpose of trying the offence, but not investigated. He has to be a person whose complicity may be indicated and connected with the commission of the offence.

18. The legislature cannot be presumed to have imagined all the circumstances and, therefore, it is the duty of the court to give full effect to the words used by the legislature so as to encompass any situation which the court may have to tackle while proceeding to try an offence and not allow a person who deserves to be tried to go scot free by being not arraigned in the trial in spite of possibility of his complicity which can be gathered from the documents presented by the prosecution."

09. The judgment in the case of Hardeep Singh (Supra) has also been considered and taken note in the judgment in the case of S. Mohammad Ispahani Vs. Yogendra Chandak and Others reported in (2017) 16 SCC 226 wherein paragraph nos. 28 and 29 the Hon'ble Apex Court has observed as under.

"28) Insofar as power of the Court under Section 319 of the Cr.P.C. to summon even those persons who are not named in the charge sheet to appear and face trial is concerned, the same is unquestionable. Section 319 of the Cr.P.C. is meant to rope in even those persons who were not implicated when the charge sheet was filed but during the trial the Court finds that sufficient evidence has come on record to summon them and face the trial. In Hardeep Singh's case, the Constitution Bench of this Court has settled the law in this behalf with authoritative pronouncement, thereby removing the cobweb which had been created while interpreting this provision earlier. As far as object behind Section 319 of the Cr.P.C. is concerned, the Court had highlighted the same as under:

"The court is sole repository of justice and a duty is cast upon it to uphold the rule of law and, therefore, it will be inappropriate to deny the existence of such powers with the courts in our criminal justice system where it is not uncommon that the real accused, at times, get away by manipulating the investigating and/or the prosecuting agency. The desire to avoid trial is so strong that an accused makes efforts at times to get himself absolved even at the stage of investigation or inquiry even though he may be connected with the commission of the offence."

"10. It also goes without saying that Section 319 CrPC, which is an enabling provision empowering the Court to 6 (2017) 7 SCC 706 Criminal Appeal No. 1720 of 2017 & Ors. appropriate steps for proceeding against any person, not being an accused, can be exercised at any time after the charge-sheet is filed and before the pronouncement of the judgment, except during the stage of Sections 207/208 CrPC, the committal, etc. which is only a pre-trial stage intended to put the process into motion.

11. In Hardeep Singh case , the Constitution Bench has also settled the controversy on the issue as to whether the word "evidence" used in Section 319(1) CrPC has been used in a comprehensive sense and indicates the evidence collected during investigation or the word "evidence" is limited to the evidence recorded during trial. It is held that it is that material, after cognizance is taken by the court, that is available to it while making an inquiry into or trying an offence, which the court can utilise or take into consideration for supporting reasons to summon any person on the basis of evidence adduced before the court. The word "evidence" has to be understood in its wider sense, both at the stage of trial and even at the stage of inquiry. It means that the power to proceed against any person after summoning him can be exercised on the basis of any such material as brought forth before it. At the same time, this Court cautioned that the duty and obligation of the court becomes more onerous to invoke such powers consciously on such material after evidence has been led during trial. The Court also clarified that " evidence" under Section 319 CrPC could even be examination-in-chief and the Court is not required to wait till such evidence is tested on cross-examination, as it is the satisfaction of the court which can be gathered from the reasons recorded by the court in respect of complicity of some other person(s) not facing trial in the offence.

12. The moot question, however, is the degree of satisfaction that is required for invoking the powers under Section 319 CrPC and the related question is as to in what situations this power should be exercised in respect of a person named in the FIR but not charge-sheeted. These two aspects were also specifically dealt with by the Constitution Bench in Hardeep Singh case and answered in the following manner: (SCC pp. 135 & 138, paras 95 & 105-106)

"95. At the time of taking cognizance, the court has to see whether a prima facie case is made out to proceed against the accused. Under Section 319 CrPC, though the test of prima facie case is the same, the degree of satisfaction that is required is much stricter. A two-Judge Bench Criminal Appeal No. 1720 of 2017 & Ors. this Court in Vikas v. State of Rajasthan [Vikas v. State of Rajasthan, (2014) 3 SCC 321 : (2014) 2 SCC (Cri) 172] , held that on the [Ed.: The words between two asterisks have been emphasised in original.] objective satisfaction [Ed.: The words between two asterisks have been emphasised in original.] of the court a person may be "arrested" or "summoned", as the circumstances of the case may require, if it appears from the evidence that any such person not being the accused has committed an offence for which such person could be tried together with the already arraigned accused persons.

105. Power under Section 319 CrPC is a discretionary and an extraordinary power. It is to be exercised sparingly and only in those cases where the circumstances of the case so warrant. It is not to be exercised because the Magistrate or the Sessions Judge is of the opinion that some other person may also be guilty of committing that offence. Only where strong and cogent evidence occurs against a person from the evidence led before the court that such power should be exercised and not in a casual and cavalier manner.

106. Thus, we hold that though only a prima facie case is to be established from the evidence led before the court, not necessarily tested on the anvil of cross-examination, it requires much stronger evidence than mere probability of his complicity. The test that has to be applied is one which is more than prima facie case as exercised at the time of framing of charge , but short of satisfaction to an extent that the evidence, if goes unrebutted, would lead to conviction. In the absence of such satisfaction, the court should refrain from exercising power under Section 319 CrPC. In Section 319 CrPC the purpose of providing if "it appears from the evidence that any person not being the accused has committed any offence" is clear from the words " [Ed.: The words between two asterisks have been emphasised in original.] for which such person could be tried together with the accused [Ed.: The words between two asterisks have been emphasised in original.] ". The words used are not "for which such person could be Criminal Appeal No. 1720 of 2017 & Ors. ". There is, therefore, no scope for the court acting under Section 319 CrPC to form any opinion as to the guilt of the accused."

13. In order to answer the question, some of the principles enunciated in Hardeep Singh case may be recapitulated: power under Section 319 CrPC can be exercised by the trial court at any stage during the trial i.e. before the conclusion of trial, to summon any person as an accused and face the trial in the ongoing case, once the trial court finds that there is some "evidence" against such a person on the basis of which evidence it can be gathered that he appears to be guilty of the offence. The "evidence" herein means the material that is brought before the court during trial. Insofar as the material/evidence collected by the IO at the stage of inquiry is concerned, it can be utilised for corroboration and to support the evidence recorded by the court to invoke the power under Section 319 CrPC. No doubt, such evidence that has surfaced in examination-in-chief, without cross-examination of witnesses, can also be taken into consideration. However, since it is a discretionary power given to the court under Section 319 CrPC and is also an extraordinary one, same has to be exercised sparingly and only in those cases where the circumstances of the case so warrant. The degree of satisfaction is more than the degree which is warranted at the time of framing of the charges against others in respect of whom charge-sheet was filed. Only where strong and cogent evidence occurs against a person from the evidence led before the court that such power should be exercised. It is not to be exercised in a casual or a cavalier manner. The prima facie opinion which is to be formed requires stronger evidence than mere probability of his complicity." (emphasis supplied)

10. The legislature was quite conscious while engrafting section 319 Cr.P.C. while employing the words "in the course of any inquiry into, or trial of, an offence, it appears from the evidence". The aforesaid words so employed under section 319 Cr.P.C. itself shows that degree of satisfaction has to be accorded by the Magistrate while exercising powers u/s 319 Cr.P.C.

11. Obviously, degree of satisfaction defers from case to case and according to the degree of satisfaction the test to be applied as one should be more than prima facie case at the stage of framing of charges. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Hardeep Singh (Supra) has observed as under:-

"93. Section 319(1) Cr.P.C. empowers the court to proceed against other persons who appear to be guilty of offence, though not an accused before the court. The word "appear" means "clear to the comprehension", or a phrase near to, if not synonymous with "proved". It imparts a lesser degree of probability than proof.

94. In Pyare Lal Bhargava v. The State of Rajasthan, AIR 1963 SC 1094, a four-Judge Bench of this Court was concerned with the meaning of the word "appear'. The court held that the appropriate meaning of the word "appears' is "seems'. It imports a lesser degree of probability than proof. In Ram Singh & Ors. v. Ram Niwas & Anr., (2009) 14 SCC 25, a two-Judge Bench of this Court was again required to examine the importance of the word "appear' as appearing in the Section. The Court held that for the fulfillment of the condition that it appears to the court that a person had committed an offence, the court must satisfy itself about the existence of an exceptional circumstance enabling it to exercise an extraordinary jurisdiction. What is, therefore, necessary for the court is to arrive at a satisfaction that the evidence adduced on behalf of the prosecution, if unrebutted, may lead to conviction of the persons sought to be added as an accused in the case.

95. At the time of taking cognizance, the court has to see whether a prima facie case is made out to proceed against the accused. Under Section 319 Cr.P.C., though the test of prima facie case is the same, the degree of satisfaction that is required is much stricter. A two- Judge Bench of this Court in Vikas v. State of Rajasthan, 2013 (11) SCALE 23, held that on the objective satisfaction of the court a person may be 'arrested' or 'summoned', as the circumstances of the case may require, if it appears from the evidence that any such person not being the accused has committed an offence for which such person could be tried together with the already arraigned accused persons.

96. In Rajendra Singh (Supra), the Court observed:

"Be it noted, the court need not be satisfied that he has committed an offence. It need only appear to it that he has committed an offence. In other words, from the evidence it need only appear to it that someone else has committed an offence, to exercise jurisdiction under Section 319 of the Code. Even then, it has a discretion not to proceed, since the expression used is "may" and not "shall". The legislature apparently wanted to leave that discretion to the trial court so as to enable it to exercise its jurisdiction under this section. The expression "appears" indicates an application of mind by the court to the evidence that has come before it and then taking a decision to proceed under Section 319 of the Code or not."

97. In Mohd. Shafi (Supra), this Court held that it is evident that before a court exercises its discretionary jurisdiction in terms of Section 319 Cr.P.C., it must arrive at a satisfaction that there exists a possibility that the accused so summoned in all likelihood would be convicted.

98. In Sarabjit Singh & Anr. v. State of Punjab & Anr., AIR 2009 SC 2792, while explaining the scope of Section 319 Cr.P.C., a two-Judge Bench of this Court observed:

"....For the aforementioned purpose, the courts are required to apply stringent tests; one of the tests being whether evidence on record is such which would reasonably lead to conviction of the person sought to be summoned.....

Whereas the test of prima facie case may be sufficient for taking cognizance of an offence at the stage of framing of charge, the court must be satisfied that there exists a strong suspicion. While framing charge in terms of Section 227 of the Code, the court must consider the entire materials on record to form an opinion that the evidence if unrebutted would lead to a judgment of conviction.

Whether a higher standard be set up for the purpose of invoking the jurisdiction under Section 319 of the Code is the question. The answer to these questions should be rendered in the affirmative. Unless a higher standard for the purpose of forming an opinion to summon a person as an additional accused is laid down, the ingredients thereof viz. (i) an extraordinary case, and (ii) a case for sparingly (sic sparing) exercise of jurisdiction, would not be satisfied." (Emphasis added)

99. In Brindaban Das & Ors. v. State of West Bengal, AIR 2009 SC 1248, a two-Judge Bench of this Court took a similar view observing that the court is required to consider whether such evidence would be sufficient to convict the person being summoned. Since issuance of summons under Section 319 Cr.P.C. entails a de novo trial and a large number of witnesses may have been examined and their re-examination could prejudice the prosecution and delay the trial, the trial court has to exercise such discretion with great care and perspicacity.

A similar view has been re-iterated by this Court in Michael Machado & Anr. v. Central Bureau of Investigation & Ors., AIR 2000 SC 1127.

100. However, there is a series of cases wherein this Court while dealing with the provisions of Section 227, 228, 239, 240, 241, 242 and 245 Cr.P.C., has consistently held that the court at the stage of framing of the charge has to apply its mind to the question whether or not there is any ground for presuming the commission of an offence by the accused. The court has to see as to whether the material brought on record reasonably connect the accused with the offence. Nothing more is required to be enquired into. While dealing with the aforesaid provisions, the test of prima facie case is to be applied. The Court has to find out whether the materials offered by the prosecution to be adduced as evidence are sufficient for the court to proceed against the accused further. (Vide: State of Karnataka v. L. Munishwamy & Ors., AIR 1977 SC 1489; All India Bank Officers' Confederation etc. v. Union of India & Ors., AIR 1989 SC 2045; Stree Atyachar Virodhi Parishad v. Dilip Nathumal Chordia, (1989) 1 SCC 715; State of M.P. v. Dr. Krishna Chandra Saksena, (1996) 11 SCC 439; and State of M.P. v. Mohan Lal Soni.

101.In Dilawar Babu Kurane v. State of Maharashtra AIR 2002 SC 564, this Court while dealing with the provisions of Section 227 and 228 Cr.P.C., placed a very heavy reliance on the earlier judgment of this Court in Union of India v. Prafulla Kumar Samal & Anr., AIR 1979 SC 366 and held that while considering the question of framing the charges, the court may weigh the evidence for the limited purpose of finding out whether or not a prima facie case against the accused has been made out and whether the materials placed before this Court disclose grave suspicion against the accused which has not been properly explained. In such an eventuality, the court is justified in framing the charges and proceeding with the trial. The court has to consider the broad probabilities of the case, the total effect of the evidence and the documents produced before the court but court should not make a roving enquiry into the pros and cons of the matter and weigh evidence as if it is conducting a trial.

102 In Suresh v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 2001 SC 1375, this Court after taking note of the earlier judgments in Niranjan Singh Karam Singh Punjab v. Jitendra Bhimraj Bijjaya, AIR 1990 SC 1962 and State of Maharashtra v. Priya Sharan Maharaj, AIR 1997 SC 2041, held as under:

"9.....at the stage of Sections 227 and 228 the Court is required to evaluate the material and documents on record with a view to finding out if the facts emerging therefrom taken at their face value disclose the existence of all the ingredients constituting the alleged offence. The Court may, for this limited purpose, sift the evidence as it cannot be expected even at that initial stage to accept all that the prosecution states as gospel truth even if it is opposed to common sense or the broad probabilities of the case. Therefore, at the stage of framing of the charge the Court has to consider the material with a view to find out if there is ground for presuming that the accused has committed the offence or that there is not sufficient ground for proceeding against him and not for the purpose of arriving at the conclusion that it is not likely to lead to a conviction." (Emphasis supplied)

103. Similarly in State of Bihar v. Ramesh Singh, AIR 1977 SC 2018, while dealing with the issue, this Court held:

".....If the evidence which the Prosecutor proposes to adduce to prove the guilt of the accused even if fully accepted before it is challenged in cross-examination or rebutted by the defence evidence, if any, cannot show that the accused committed the offence, then there will be no sufficient ground for proceeding with the trial....."

104. In Palanisamy Gounder & Anr. v. State, represented by Inspector of Police, (2005) 12 SCC 327, this Court deprecated the practice of invoking the power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. just to conduct a fishing inquiry, as in that case, the trial court exercised that power just to find out the real truth, though there was no valid ground to proceed against the person summoned by the court.

105. Power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. is a discretionary and an extra- ordinary power.

It is to be exercised sparingly and only in those cases where the circumstances of the case so warrant. It is not to be exercised because the Magistrate or the Sessions Judge is of the opinion that some other person may also be guilty of committing that offence. Only where strong and cogent evidence occurs against a person from the evidence led before the court that such power should be exercised and not in a casual and cavalier manner.

106. Thus, we hold that though only a prima facie case is to be established from the evidence led before the court not necessarily tested on the anvil of Cross-Examination, it requires much stronger evidence than mere probability of his complicity. The test that has to be applied is one which is more than prima facie case as exercised at the time of framing of charge, but short of satisfaction to an extent that the evidence, if goes unrebutted, would lead to conviction. In the absence of such satisfaction, the court should refrain from exercising power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. In Section 319 Cr.P.C. the purpose of providing if "it appears from the evidence that any person not being the accused has committed any offence' is clear from the words "for which such person could be tried together with the accused." The words used are not "for which such person could be convicted'. There is, therefore, no scope for the Court acting under Section 319 Cr.P.C. to form any opinion as to the guilt of the accused."

12. The Hon'ble Apex court in the case of Hardeep Singh (Supra) has also analysed the contingencies in what situation can the power u/s 319 Cr.P.C. be exercised in the cases when a persons is not named in the FIR though named in the FIR but not charge sheeted or has been discharged. The Hon'ble Apex Court has observed as under:-

"107. In Joginder Singh & Anr. v. State of Punjab & Anr., AIR 1979 SC 339, a three-Judge Bench of this Court held that as regards the contention that the phrase "any person not being the accused" occurring in Section 319 Cr.P.C. excludes from its operation an accused who has been released by the police under Section 169 Cr.P.C. and has been shown in Column 2 of the charge-sheet, the contention has merely to be rejected. The said expression clearly covers any person who is not being tried already by the Court and the very purpose of enacting such a provision like Section 319 (1) Cr.P.C. clearly shows that even persons who have been dropped by the police during investigation but against whom evidence showing their involvement in the offence comes before the criminal court, are included in the said expression.

108. In Anju Chaudhary v. Sate of U.P. & Anr., (2013) 6 SCC 384, a two-Judge Bench of this Court held that even in the cases where report under Section 173(2) Cr.P.C. is filed in the court and investigation records the name of a person in Column 2, or even does not name the person as an accused at all, the court in exercise of its powers vested under Section 319 Cr.P.C. can summon the person as an accused and even at that stage of summoning, no hearing is contemplated under the law.

109. In Suman v. State of Rajasthan & Anr., AIR 2010 SC 518, a two- Judge Bench of this Court observed that there is nothing in the language of this sub-section from which it can be inferred that a person who is named in the FIR or complaint, but against whom charge-sheet is not filed by the police, cannot be proceeded against even though in the course of any inquiry into or trial of any offence, the court finds that such person has committed an offence for which he could be tried together with the other accused.

110.In Lal Suraj (supra), a two-Judge Bench held that there is no dispute with the legal proposition that even if a person had not been charge-sheeted, he may come within the purview of the description of such a person as contained in Section 319 Cr.P.C. A similar view had been taken in Lok Ram (Supra), wherein it was held that a person, though had initially been named in the FIR as an accused, but not charge-sheeted, can also be added to face the trial.

111. Even the Constitution Bench in Dharam Pal (CB) has held that the Sessions Court can also exercise its original jurisdiction and summon a person as an accused in case his name appears in Column 2 of the chargesheet, once the case had been committed to it. It means that a person whose name does not appear even in the FIR or in the chargesheet or whose name appears in the FIR and not in the main part of the chargesheet but in Column 2 and has not been summoned as an accused in exercise of the powers under Section 319 Cr.P.C. can still be summoned by the court, provided the court is satisfied that the conditions provided in the said statutory provisions stand fulfilled.

112. However, there is a great difference with regard to a person who has been discharged. A person who has been discharged stands on a different footing than a person who was never subjected to investigation or if subjected to, but not charge-sheeted. Such a person has stood the stage of inquiry before the court and upon judicial examination of the material collected during investigation; the court had come to the conclusion that there is not even a prima facie case to proceed against such person. Generally, the stage of evidence in trial is merely proving the material collected during investigation and therefore, there is not much change as regards the material existing against the person so discharged. Therefore, there must exist compelling circumstances to exercise such power. The Court should keep in mind that the witness when giving evidence against the person so discharged, is not doing so merely to seek revenge or is naming him at the behest of someone or for such other extraneous considerations. The court has to be circumspect in treating such evidence and try to separate the chaff from the grain. If after such careful examination of the evidence, the court is of the opinion that there does exist evidence to proceed against the person so discharged, it may take steps but only in accordance with section 398 Cr.P.C. without resorting to the provision of Section 319 Cr.P.C. directly.

113. In Sohan Lal & Ors. v. State of Rajasthan, (1990) 4 SCC 580, a two-Judge Bench of this Court held that once an accused has been discharged, the procedure for enquiry envisaged under Section 398 Cr.P.C. cannot be circumvented by prescribing to procedure under Section 319 Cr.P.C.

114. In Municipal Corporation of Dehli v. Ram Kishan Rohtagi & Ors., AIR 1983 SC 67, this Court held that if the prosecution can at any stage produce evidence which satisfies the court that those who have not been arraigned as accused or against whom proceedings have been quashed, have also committed the offence, the Court can take cognizance against them under Section 319 Cr.P.C. and try them along with the other accused.

115. Power under Section 398 Cr.P.C. is in the nature of revisional power which can be exercised only by the High Court or the Sessions Judge, as the case may be. According to Section 300 (5) Cr.P.C., a person discharged under Section 258 Cr.P.C. shall not be tried again for the same offence except with the consent of the Court by which he was discharged or of any other Court to which the first-mentioned Court is subordinate. Further, Section 398 Cr.P.C. provides that the High Court or the Sessions Judge may direct the Chief Judicial Magistrate by himself or by any of the Magistrate subordinate to him to make an inquiry into the case against any person who has already been discharged. Both these provisions contemplate an inquiry to be conducted before any person, who has already been discharged, is asked to again face trial if some evidence appears against him. As held earlier, Section 319 Cr.P.C. can also be invoked at the stage of inquiry. We do not see any reason why inquiry as contemplated by Section 300(5) Cr.P.C. and Section 398 Cr.P.C. cannot be an inquiry under Section 319 Cr.P.C. Accordingly, a person discharged can also be arraigned again as an accused but only after an inquiry as contemplated by Section 300(5) and 398 Cr.P.C. If during or after such inquiry, there appears to be an evidence against such person, power under Section 319Cr.P.C. can be exercised. We may clarify that the word "trial' under Section 319 Cr.P.C. would be eclipsed by virtue of above provisions and the same cannot be invoked so far as a person discharged is concerned, but no more.

116. Thus, it is evident that power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. can be exercised against a person not subjected to investigation, or a person placed in the Column 2 of the Charge-Sheet and against whom cognizance had not been taken, or a person who has been discharged. However, concerning a person who has been discharged, no proceedings can be commenced against him directly under Section 319 Cr.P.C. without taking recourse to provisions of Section 300(5) read with Section 398 Cr.P.C."

13. The Constitutional Bench in the matter of Hardeep Singh (Supra) has also considered the scope, ambit and the importance of the word evidence and had analysed the same and held as under:-

58. To answer the questions and to resolve the impediment that is being faced by the trial courts in exercising of powers under Section 319 Cr.P.C., the issue has to be investigated by examining the circumstances which give rise to a situation for the court to invoke such powers. The circumstances that lead to such inference being drawn up by the court for summoning a person arise out of the availability of the facts and material that comes up before the court and are made the basis for summoning such a person as an accomplice to the offence alleged to have been committed. The material should disclose the complicity of the person in the commission of the offence which has to be the material that appears from the evidence during the course of any inquiry into or trial of offence. The words as used in Section 319 Cr.P.C. indicate that the material has to be "where ....it appears from the evidence" before the court.

59. Before we answer this issue, let us examine the meaning of the word ''evidence'. According to Section 3 of the Evidence Act, ''evidence' means and includes:

(1) all statements which the Court permits or requires to be made before it by witnesses, in relation to matters of fact under inquiry; such statements are called oral evidence;

(2) all documents including electronic records produced for the inspection of the Court, such statements are called documentary evidence;

60. According to Tomlin's Law Dictionary, Evidence is "the means from which an inference may logically be drawn as to the existence of a fact. It consists of proof by testimony of witnesses, on oath; or by writing or records."

61. Bentham defines ''evidence' as "any matter of fact, the effect, tendency or design of which presented to mind, is to produce in the mind a persuasion concerning the existence of some other matter of fact- a persuasion either affirmative or disaffirmative of its existence. Of the two facts so connected, the latter may be distinguished as the principal fact, and the former as the evidentiary fact."

62. According to Wigmore on Evidence, evidence represents "any knowable fact or group of facts, not a legal or a logical principle, considered with a view to its being offered before a legal tribunal for the purpose of producing a persuasion, positive or negative, on the part of the tribunal, as to the truth of a proposition, not of law, or of logic, on which the determination of the tribunal is to be asked."

63. The provision and the above-mentioned definitions clearly suggest that it is an exhaustive definition. Wherever the words "means and include" are used, it is an indication of the fact that the definition "is a hard and fast definition', and no other meaning can be assigned to the expression that is put down in the definition. It indicates an exhaustive explanation of the meaning which, for the purposes of the Act, must invariably be attached to these words or expression. (Vide: M/S. Mahalakshmi Oil Mills v. Stare of A.P. AIR 1989 SC 335; Punjab Land Development and Reclamation Corporation Ltd. Chandigarh v. Presiding Officer, Labour Court, Chandigarh & Ors., (1990) 3 SCC 682; P. 64. In Feroze N. Dotivala v. P.M. Wadhwani & Ors, (2003) 1 SCC 433, dealing with a similar issue, this Court observed as under:

"Generally, ordinary meaning is to be assigned to any word or phrase used or defined in a statute. Therefore, unless there is any vagueness or ambiguity, no occasion will arise to interpret the term in a manner which may add something to the meaning of the word which ordinarily does not so mean by the definition itself, more particularly, where it is a restrictive definition. Unless there are compelling reasons to do so, meaning of a restrictive and exhaustive definition would not be expanded or made extensive to embrace things which are strictly not within the meaning of the word as defined.

65. We, therefore proceed to examine the matter further on the premise that the definition of word "evidence" under the Evidence Act is exhaustive.

66. In Kalyan Kumar Gogoi v. Ashutosh Agnihotri & Anr., AIR 2011 SC 760, while dealing with the issue this Court held :

"18. The word "evidence" is used in common parlance in three different senses: (a) as equivalent to relevant, (b) as equivalent to proof, and (c) as equivalent to the material, on the basis of which courts come to a conclusion about the existence or non-existence of disputed facts. Though, in the definition of the word "evidence" given in Section 3 of the Evidence Act one finds only oral and documentary evidence, this word is also used in phrases such as best evidence, circumstantial evidence, corroborative evidence, derivative evidence, direct evidence, documentary evidence, hearsay evidence, indirect evidence, oral evidence, original evidence, presumptive evidence, primary evidence, real evidence, secondary evidence, substantive evidence, testimonial evidence, etc."

67. In relation to a Civil Case, this court in Ameer Trading Corporation Ltd. v. Shapoorji Data Processing Ltd., AIR 2004 SC 355, held that the examination of a witness would include evidence-in- chief, cross-examination or re-examination. In Omkar Namdeo Jadhao & Ors v. Second Additional Sessions Judge Buldana & Anr., AIR 1997 SC 331; and Ram Swaroop & Ors. v. State of Rajasthan, AIR 2004 SC 2943, this Court held that statements recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C. during the investigation are not evidence. Such statements can be used at the trial only for contradictions or omissions when the witness is examined in the court.

(See also: Podda Narayana & Ors. v. State of A.P., AIR 1975 SC 1252; Sat Paul v. Delhi Administration, AIR 1976 SC 294; and State (Delhi Administration) v. Laxman Kumar & Ors., AIR 1986 SC 250).

68. In Lok Ram v. Nihal Singh & Anr., AIR 2006 SC 1892, it was held that it is evident that a person, even though had initially been named in the FIR as an accused, but not chargesheeted, can also be added as an accused to face the trial. The trial court can take such a step to add such persons as accused only on the basis of evidence adduced before it and not on the basis of materials available in the charge- sheet or the case diary, because such materials contained in the charge-sheet or the case diary do not constitute evidence.

69. The majority view of the Constitution Bench in Ramnarayan Mor & Anr. v. The State of Maharashtra, AIR 1964 SC 949 has been as under:

"9. It was urged in the alternative by counsel for the appellants that even if the expression "evidence" may include documents, such documents would only be those which are duly proved at the enquiry for commitment, because what may be used in a trial, civil or criminal, to support the judgment of a Court is evidence duly proved according to law. But by the Evidence Act which applies to the trial of all criminal cases, the expression "evidence" is defined in Section 3 as meaning and including all statements which the Court permits or requires to be made before it by witnesses, in relation to matters of fact under enquiry and documents produced for the inspection of the Court. There is no restriction in this definition to documents which are duly proved by evidence." (Emphasis added)

70. Similarly, this Court in Sunil Mehta & Anr. v. State of Gujarat & Anr., JT 2013 (3) SC 328, held that "It is trite that evidence within the meaning of the Evidence Act and so also within the meaning of Section 244 of the Cr.P.C. is what is recorded in the manner stipulated under Section 138 in the case of oral evidence. Documentary evidence would similarly be evidence only if the documents are proved in the manner recognised and provided for under the Evidence Act unless of course a statutory provision makes the document admissible as evidence without any formal proof thereof."

71. In Guriya @ Tabassum Tauquir & Ors. v. State of Bihar & Anr., AIR 2008 SC 95, this Court held that in exercise of the powers under Section 319 Cr.P.C., the court can add a new accused only on the basis of evidence adduced before it and not on the basis of materials available in the charge sheet or the case diary.

72. In Kishun Singh (Supra), this Court held :

"11. On a plain reading of sub-section (1) of Section 319 there can be no doubt that it must appear from the evidence tendered in the course of any inquiry or trial that any person not being the accused has committed any offence for which he could be tried together with the accused. This power (under Section 319(1)), it seems clear to us, can be exercised only if it so appears from the evidence at the trial and not otherwise. Therefore, this sub-section contemplates existence of some evidence appearing in the course of trial wherefrom the court can prima facie conclude that the person not arraigned before it is also involved in the commission of the crime for which he can be tried with those already named by the police. Even a person who has earlier been discharged would fall within the sweep of the power conferred by S. 319 of the Code. Therefore, stricto sensu, Section 319 of the Code cannot be invoked in a case like the present one where no evidence has been led at a trial wherefrom it can be said that the appellants appear to have been involved in the commission of the crime along with those already sent up for trial by the prosecution.

12. But then it must be conceded that Section 319 covers the post-cognizance stage where in the course of an inquiry or trial the involvement or complicity of a person or persons not named by the investigating agency has surfaced which necessitates the exercise of the discretionary power conferred by the said provision....."

73. A similar view has been taken by this Court in Raj Kishore Prasad (Supra), wherein it was held that in order to apply Section 319 Cr.P.C., it is essential that the need to proceed against the person other than the accused appearing to be guilty of offence arises only on evidence recorded in the course of an inquiry or trial.

74. In Lal Suraj @ Suraj Singh & Anr. v. State of Jharkhand, (2009) 2 SCC 696, a two-Judge Bench of this Court held that "a court framing a charge would have before it all the materials on record which were required to be proved by the prosecution. In a case where, however, the court exercises its jurisdiction under Section 319 Cr.P.C., the power has to be exercised on the basis of the fresh evidence brought before the court. There lies a fine but clear distinction."

75. A similar view has been reiterated by this Court in Rajendra Singh v. State of U.P. & Anr., AIR 2007 SC 2786, observing that court should not exercise the power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. on the basis of materials available in the charge-sheet or the case diary, because such materials contained in the charge-sheet or the case diary do not constitute evidence. The word "evidence' in Section 319 Cr.P.C. contemplates the evidence of witnesses given in the court.

76. Ordinarily, it is only after the charges are framed that the stage of recording of evidence is reached. A bare perusal of Section 227 Cr.P.C. would show that the legislature has used the terms "record of the case" and the "documents submitted therewith". It is in this context that the word "evidence' as appearing in Section 319 Cr.P.C. has to be read and understood. The material collected at the stage of investigation can at best be used for a limited purpose as provided under Section 157 of the Evidence Act i.e. to corroborate or contradict the statements of the witnesses recorded before the court. Therefore, for the exercise of power under Section 319 Cr.P.C., the use of word `evidence' means material that has come before the court during an inquiry or trial by it and not otherwise. If from the evidence led in the trial the court is of the opinion that a person not accused before it has also committed the offence, it may summon such person under Section 319 Cr.P.C.

77. With respect to documentary evidence, it is sufficient, as can be seen from a bare perusal of Section 3 of the Evidence Act as well as the decision of the Constitution Bench, that a document is required to be produced and proved according to law to be called evidence. Whether such evidence is relevant, irrelevant, admissible or inadmissible, is a matter of trial.

78. It is, therefore, clear that the word "evidence" in Section 319 Cr.P.C. means only such evidence as is made before the court, in relation to statements, and as produced before the court, in relation to documents. It is only such evidence that can be taken into account by the Magistrate or the Court to decide whether power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. is to be exercised and not on the basis of material collected during investigation.

79. The inquiry by the court is neither attributable to the investigation nor the prosecution, but by the court itself for collecting information to draw back a curtain that hides something material. It is the duty of the court to do so and therefore the power to perform this duty is provided under the Cr.P.C.

80. The unveiling of facts other than the material collected during investigation before the magistrate or court before trial actually commences is part of the process of inquiry. Such facts when recorded during trial are evidence. It is evidence only on the basis whereof trial can be held, but can the same definition be extended for any other material collected during inquiry by the magistrate or court for the purpose of Section 319 Cr.P.C.?

understood accordingly. The outcome of any such exercise should not be an impediment in the speedy trial of the case. Though the facts so received by the magistrate or the court may not be evidence, yet it is some material that makes things clear and unfolds concealed or deliberately suppressed material that may facilitate the trial. In the context of Section 319 Cr.P.C. it is an information of complicity. Such material therefore, can be used even though not an evidence in stricto sensuo, but an information on record collected by the court during inquiry itself, as a prima facie satisfaction for exercising the powers as presently involved.

82. This pre-trial stage is a stage where no adjudication on the evidence of the offences involved takes place and therefore, after the material alongwith the charge-sheet has been brought before the court, the same can be inquired into in order to effectively proceed with framing of charges. After the charges are framed, the prosecution is asked to lead evidence and till that is done, there is no evidence available in the strict legal sense of Section 3 of the Evidence Act. The actual trial of the offence by bringing the accused before the court has still not begun. What is available is the material that has been submitted before the court along with the charge-sheet. In such situation, the court only has the preparatory material that has been placed before the court for its consideration in order to proceed with the trial by framing of charges.

83. It is, therefore, not any material that can be utilised, rather it is that material after cognizance is taken by a court, that is available to it while making an inquiry into or trying an offence, that the court can utilize or take into consideration for supporting reasons to summon any person on the basis of evidence adduced before the Court, who may be on the basis of such material, treated to be an accomplice in the commission of the offence. The inference that can be drawn is that material which is not exactly evidence recorded before the court, but is a material collected by the court, can be utilised to corroborate evidence already recorded for the purpose of summoning any other person, other than the accused. This would harmonise such material with the word "evidence' as material that would be supportive in nature to facilitate the exposition of any other accomplice whose complicity in the offence may have either been suppressed or escaped the notice of the court.

84. The word "evidence" therefore has to be understood in its wider sense both at the stage of trial and, as discussed earlier, even at the stage of inquiry, as used under Section 319 Cr.P.C. The court, therefore, should be understood to have the power to proceed against any person after summoning him on the basis of any such material as brought forth before it. The duty and obligation of the court becomes more onerous to invoke such powers cautiously on such material after evidence has been led during trial.

85. In view of the discussion made and the conclusion drawn hereinabove, the answer to the aforesaid question posed is that apart from evidence recorded during trial, any material that has been received by the court after cognizance is taken and before the trial commences, can be utilised only for corroboration and to support the evidence recorded by the court to invoke the power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. The "evidence' is thus, limited to the evidence recorded during trial."

14. The proposition of law culled out by the Hon'ble Apex Court itself makes it clear that u/s 319 Cr.P.C. discretion has been bestowed upon the Magistrate to exercise the powers while looking into the facts and the circumstances of a particular case before it while according degree of satisfaction so imperative for invocation of the powers u/s 319 Cr.P.C. The Hon'ble Apex Court has repeatedly cautioned the Courts to exercise the powers under section 319 Cr.P.C. in such a manner that it does not permit an accused to walk away free on the strength of any lacuna attributed by the Investigating Officer. In nutshell, it can be very well said that once the Magistrate finds that there was sufficient material available on record before it to summon a person in the trial which is proposed to be undertaken then the powers u/s 319 Cr.P.C. are to be invoked.

15. Nonetheless, the powers under section 319 Cr.P.C. to summon those persons who are not named in the charge sheet to appear and face trial is unquestionable as the very object of engrafting section 319 Cr.P.C. is that to allow a person who deserves to be tried not to go scot-free.

16. The stage which is contemplated under section 319 Cr.P.C. 1973 is a stage before the conclusion of the trial and thus, only one conclusion can be drawn that the Magistrate must be prima facie of the opinion that there are sufficient material and cause for summoning the culprit who is either not named in the FIR or if named, he has not been charge sheeted or discharged.

The learned counsel for the revisionist has made the following submission:-

(1) The FIR has been lodged on 21-5-2019 for the offence which have been committed on 11.06.2017 and in the FIR the applicants names do not find place thus, there was no occasion for the court below to have exercise powers under section 319 Cr.P.C. for summoning the applicants

(2) There are contradictions in the statements of the victim recorded under section 161 and 164 Cr.P.C. as well as the other statement also, thus, it is not a fit case for the court below to exercise its power under section 319 Cr.P.C.

(3) It is a case of counter blast as the applicant no. 1 had already made a complaint against the opposite party no. 2 before the Senior Superintendent of Police District Bareilly with respect to harassment meted to her.

17. On the other hand the learning A.G.A. has supported the order under challenged and has argued that the order dated 08.10.2021 passed by the court below summoning the applicants is perfectly valid and needs no interference as the court below has applied its mind and the said order is in conformity and consonance with the judgment of constitutional Bench in the case of Hardeep Singh (Supra).

18. Elaborating the first statement so made by the learnt counsel for the applicants has argued that the FIR was lodged on 21-5-2019 as well as the incident alleged to have been occurred for commissioning of the offence and order dated 11.06.2017 thus, the exercise of powers under section 319 Cr.P.C. by the court below is illegal. The said submission so sought to be raised by the learned counsel for the revisionists deserves to be rejected in view of the fact that delay in lodging of the FIR cannot be construed to be a ground to hold the exercise of powers under section 319 Cr.P.C. is illegal particularly, in view of the fact that in the present case there are sufficient material available on record before the court concerned with respect to the fact that the applicants were involved in the commission of the offence that too prima-facie, a perusal of the statement recorded under section 164 Cr.P.C. of the victim dated 19.06.2019 wherein the victim herself had stated that the applicant had sold her to Vedram for an amount of Rs.1 lakh. However in the cross-examination the victim being P.W. 2 dated 28.01.2021 an specific reference has been made with respect to the fact that the applicant no. 1 had called the victim on the roof and thereafter, some substance was to be in the handkerchief and when the same was put on the mouth of the victim, she became semi-conscious and thereafter, the applicant no. 1 along with the applicant no. 2 sold her to Vedram and both of them accompanied Vedram while kidnapping her and taking her to a different place where Vedram committed the bad act of rape. The said evidences on record are more than prima-facie sufficient for invoking the powers under section 319 Cr.P.C. as mandated by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Hardeep Singh (Supra).

19. So far as, the second limb of the argument of the learned counsel for the applicants with regard to the fact that there are inconsistency in the statement recorded by the victim as well as the opposite party no. 2 are concerned the same is wholly misplaced and misconceived for the reason that in the statement recorded under section 164 Cr.P.C. as well as the statement recorded on 28.01.2021 itself shows that there is no contradiction rather to the contrary the statements are inconformity and consonance with the statement given by the victim herself.

20. So far as they argument so sought to be raised by the learned counsel for the applicants with regard to the fact that prior to the lodging of the FIR and inclusion of the name of the applicants in the said proceeding, the applicant no. 1 had also filed a complaint before the police authority regarding the harassment meted to her by opposite party no. 2 is concerned and the same is not liable to be considered at all at the stage when the question before this court is with regard to summoning all the applicants under section 319 Cr.P.C..

21. Lastly the learned counsel for the applicants has argued that there is no prima facie satisfaction accorded by the court below while summoning the applicants.

22. Needless to point out that degree of satisfaction differs from case to case and according to the degree of satisfaction that is to be applied as one which should be more then prima facie case at the stage of framing of charges. Herein in the present case the Court finds that the court below while passing the order dated 08.10.2021 summoning the applicants has considered the statements of the victim as well as opposite party no. 2 both under section 161 and 164 of Cr.P.C. and also the statement during proceeding also and has recorded the satisfaction which according to court is more than the prima facie.

23. The Hon'ble Apex Court as already observed hereinabove has cautioned the Magistrate to the said extent that the order should not be cyclostyled order but there should be some satisfaction which should be more than prima-facie. In view of said factual position, there is no manifest illegality committed by the court below while passing the impugned order herein.

24. The learned counsel for the applicant has relied upon the judgment in the case of Ramesh Chandra Srivastava Vs. State of U.P. and Another decided on 13.09.2021 in Criminal Appeal No. 990 of 2021 so as to contend that there has to be strong and cogent evidences available with the Magistrate while invoking the powers u/s 319 Cr.P.C. The relevant extract of the judgment is being quoted below:-

"The test as laid down by the Constitution Bench of this Court for invoking power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. inter alia includes the principle that only when strong and cogent evidence occurs against a person from the evidence the power under Section 319 Cr.P.C. should be exercised. The power cannot be exercised in a casual and cavalier manner. The test to be applied, as laid down by this Court, is one which is more than prima facie case which is applied at the time of framing of charges.

It will all depend upon the evidence which is tendered in a given case as to whether there is a strong ground within the meaning of paragraph 105."

25. A perusal of the judgment in the case of Ramesh Chandra Srivastava (Supra) itself reiterates the law laid down by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Hardeep Singh (Supra). In the present case, the court finds there were sufficient materials available with the court below while exercising the powers u/s 319 Cr.P.C. Thus, this Court further finds that the court below was satisfied while passing the order under challenge that it was a fit case wherein provisions contained u/s 319 Cr.P.C. are to be invoked.

26. Resultantly, the present revision is devoid of merit and it is accordingly, dismissed as this court finds that there has been no manifest error of law committed by the court below while passing the order which is under challenge.

(Para -8)

(B) Criminal Law - The Code of criminal procedure, 1973 - Section 125 - laws relating to maintenance - measure for social justice to provide immediate relief to dependent being wives and children for their family support so as to prevent them from falling into destitution and vagrancy - not a matter of right that a dependent can claim maintenance under Section 125 Cr.P.C. as there are certain conditions - strict proof of marriage should not be a pre-condition for maintenance under Section 125 of the Cr.P.C - long cohabitation between woman and man leads to presumption of marriage entitling maintenance for woman and children born to them. (Para - 20,26,30,31)

Wife (O.P. no.2) preferred an application under Section 125 CrPC - seeking maintenance to the tune of Rs.15,000/- per month - court below pass the order granting maintenance to the tune of Rs.5000/- to O.P. no.2 - from the date of the filing of application - Aggrieved against the order - hence revision by Husband (revisionist).

(Delivered by Hon'ble Vikas Budhwar, J.)

1. Heard Sri V.K. Solanki, learned counsel for the revisionist and Sri K.K. Rajbhar, the learned A.G.A, for O.P. no.1.

2. Challenge in the present revision purported to be under Section 397/401 of CrPC is to order dated 27.10.2021 passed by the Principal Judge, Family Court, Budaun, District Budaun, in Criminal Case No. 1307/2019, (Smt. Tabassum Vs. Mudassir), in the proceedings under Section 125 of CrPC, P.S. Wazirganj, District Budaun.

3. Brief facts of the case shorn off unnecessary details set forth in the application purported to be under Section 125 of CrPC is to the effect that the O.P. no.2 being Smt. Tabassum wife of Mudassir Khan and daughter of Wazir Khan, got married with the applicant herein on 11.5.2018 according to the rites and rituals as enshrined under the Muslim Law. Consequent to the solemnization of the marriage, the inlaws of O.P. no.2 as well as the revisionist, who happens to be the husband demanded dowry as according to them, the gifts, which the family of the O.P. no.2 had given to them was not commensurating to the status of the inlaws. Resultantly, threats were being sought to be administered upon O.P. no.2 and she was being harassed in all possible manner. When the O.P. no.2 narrated the entire story to her mother, then the mother of O.P. no.2 along with near relatives approached the revisionist and their parents requesting them that her daughter may not be harassed. It is also narrated in the application purported to be under Section 156(3) CrPC that on 20.9.2018, the inlaws of the O.P. no.2 as well as the husband of O.P. no.2 being the revisionist took O.P. no.2 to Bombay on 27.6.2018 and thereafter consequent to return from Bombay to Sahaswan on 20.9.2018, again O.P. no.2 administered beating and attempts were also made to kill her. Again the process of mediation for creating an environment, whereby the O.P. no.2 and the revisionist may live together peacefully, was undertaken. Again on 23.9.2018, at 8:00 O'clock in the morning beating was administered to O.P. no.2 and all the jewellery, which was available with the O.P. no.2 was taken away by the inlaws and she was ousted from the house with only the cloth, which she was wearing and she was sent from her inlaws' place in a hired taxi. Constraint with the same, the O.P. no.2, thereafter, preferred an application purported to be under Section 125 CrPC before the court below, which was numbered as Criminal Case No.1307 of 2019, CNR No. UPBN 02-001952-2019, seeking maintenance to the tune of Rs.15,000/- per month. The said application was presented before the court below on 28.9.2019. On being noticed, the revisionist filed its reply refuting the allegations and the averments contained in the application under Section 125 CrPC instituted by O.P. no.2. The O.P. no.2 also filed necessary documentary evidence in support of her case. Nonetheless, so far as revisionist is concerned, he did not submit any documentary evidence fortifying his stand.

4. Thereafter the court below has now proceeded to pass the order dated 24.10.2021, while granting maintenance to the tune of Rs.5000/- to O.P. no.2 from the date of the filing of application.

5. Aggrieved against the order dated 27.10.2021 passed by the Court of Principal Judge, Family Court, Budaun, District Budaun, in Criminal Case No. 1307/2019, (Smt. Tabassum Vs. Mudassir), in the proceedings under Section 125 of CrPC, P.S. Wazirganj, District Budaun, now the revisionist is before this Court.

6. Before proceeding further it is apt to reproduce the provisions contained under Section 397/401 CrPC, which reads as under: -

"397. Calling for records to exercise powers of revision.

(1) The High Court or any Sessions Judge may call for and examine the record of any proceeding before any inferior Criminal Court situate within its or his local jurisdiction for the purpose of satisfying itself or himself as to the correctness, legality or propriety of any finding, sentence or order,- recorded or passed, and as to the regularity of any proceedings of such inferior Court, and may, when calling for such record, direct that the execution of any sentence or order be suspended, and if the accused is in confinement, that he be released on bail or on his own bond pending the examination of the record.

Explanation.- All Magistrates whether Executive or Judicial, and whether exercising original or appellate jurisdiction, shall be deemed to be inferior to the Sessions Judge for the purposes of this sub- section and of section 398.

(2) The powers of revision conferred by sub- section (1) shall not be exercised in relation to any interlocutory order passed in any appeal, inquiry, trial or other proceeding.

(3) If an application under this section has been made by any person either to the High Court or to the Sessions Judge, no further application by the same person shall be entertained by the other of them.

401. High Court' s Powers of revisions.

(1) In the case of any proceeding the record of which has been called for by itself or Which otherwise comes to its knowledge, the High Court may, in its discretion, exercise any of the powers conferred on a Court of Appeal by sections 386, 389, 390 and 391 or on a Court of Session by section 307 and, when the Judges composing the Court of revision are equally divided in opinion, the case shall be disposed of in the manner provided by section 392.

(2) No order under this section shall be made to the prejudice of the accused or other person unless he has had an opportunity of being heard either personally or by pleader in his own defence.

(3) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to authorise a High Court to convert a finding of acquittal into one of conviction.

(4) Where under this Code an appeal lies and no appeal is brought, no proceeding by way of revision shall be entertained at the instance of the party who could have appealed.

(5) Where under this Code tan appeal lies but an application for revision has been made to the High Court by any person and the High Court Is satisfied that such application was made under the erroneous belief that no appeal lies thereto and that it is necessary in the interests of justice so to do, the High Court may treat the application for revision as a petition of appeal and deal with the same accordingly."

7. A conjoint reading of the provisions contained under Section 397 as well as 401 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, it will clearly reveal that High Court of any Sessions Judge may call for and examine the record of any proceedings before any inferior criminal court situate within its or its local jurisdiction for the purposes of satisfying itself or himself as to the correctness, legality or probability of any finding, sentence or order recorded or passed and as to the regularity of any proceedings of such inferior court.

8. It is well settled that the legal proposition so culled out by the Hon'ble Apex

Court that the power so exercised under Section 397/401 of the Code of Criminal Procedure is limited and until and unless the order so challenged therein passed by the Court is perverse or the view taken by the Court wholly unreasonable or there is non-consideration of any relevant material or there is palpable misreading of record, the revisional court is not justified in interfering with the order that too merely because also another view is possible.

9. In nutshell, the Hon'ble Apex Court has cautioned the High Court not to act as an appellate court as the whole purpose of revisional jurisdiction is to preserve the power in the court to do justice in accordance with the principles of criminal procedure.

10. In the light of the principles so enunciated by the Hon'ble Apex Court or by this Court, now the present case is to be dealt with.

11. Learned counsel for the revisionist has made manifold submissions, which are as under:-

(a) The court below has committed manifest error of law in awarding maintenance to the tune of Rs.5000/- per month as there was no determination of the actual income of the applicant/revisionist.

(b) The O.P. no.2 (wife) has sufficient means to sustain herself, thus she is not entitled to maintenance.

(c) Assuming without admitting that the O.P. no.2 is entitled to maintenance, then the same should be from the date of passing of the order and not from the date of filing of the application..

12. Learned A.G.A, who appears for O.P. no.1 has supported the order under challenge, while contending that there is no error apparent on the face of record committed by the court below in passing the order under challenge, particularly in the proceedings under revisional jurisdiction has pure finding of fact based on documentary evidence on record is there.

13. Learned counsel for the revisionist has firstly argued that the revisionist is a labour, whose monthly income varies from Rs.7000/- to 8000/- per month and thus the imposition of a condition for payment of maintenance to the O.P. no.2 (wife) to the tune of Rs.5000/- is quite excessive and not commensurate to the income of the revisionist.

14. In order to buttress the said submission, the learned counsel for the revisionist has referred to various paragraphs of the judgment under challenge so as to contend that the allegations so sought to be made by O.P. no.2 to the extent that the revisionist has a business of effecting POP on the ceiling as well as a Dharamkanta by the name of Anjum is factually incorrect. The court below after analyzing the evidence available on record in paragraph-35 of the order dated 27.10.2021, which is under challenge has taken note of the fact that the revisionist during the cross-examination admitted the fact that he has a Dharamkanta by the name of Anjum Dharamkanta. Further the court below has also recorded a finding that the revisionist is a hale and hearty person having sufficient means to sustain himself and also to provide maintenance to his wife being O.P. no.2.

15. The learned counsel for the revisionist on pointed query made to him could not dispute the said factual aspect. As from the perusal of the pleadings setforth before the court below as before this Court, there is no document to show that the finding is perverse or incorrect. As already noticed earlier, this Court cannot substitute its own finding while upsetting the finding of the court below, even if another view is possible. Obviously, exception is to the said effect that there should be material available on record to show perversity committed by the court below.

16. The learned counsel for the revisionist has next argued that O.P. no.2 (wife) has sufficient means to sustain herself, and she cannot be made dependent upon maintenance, which is to be granted to her by the revisionist. The court below has dealt with the said issue and in paragraph-22 of the order under challenge has recorded a categorical finding that the allegations so made by the revisionist with regard to the fact that the O.P. no.2 had taken jewellery and money for running the business of distribution of milk was found to be incorrect has the revisionist had completely failed to produce any document to the said effect. Rather to the contrary, it was the consistent case of O.P. no.2 that she is not doing any business and she is also not well-versed with the art of knitting also. Accordingly, the court below found it proper to award her maintenance.

17. Lastly, the learned counsel for the revisionist has argued that assuming without admitting that the O.P. no.2 is entitled to maintenance, then the maintenance can be granted from the date of passing of the order and not from the date of the application. The said argument so raised by the learned counsel for the revisionist appears to be attractive, but is liable to be rejected, particularly, in view of the fact that now the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Rajnesh Vs. Neha decided in Criminal Appeal No. 730 of 2020 on 4.11.2020, has clearly mandated that maintenance is to be granted from the date of application and not from the date of the order. The operative portion of the order dated 4.11.2020 is quoted hereinunder:-

" Discussion and Directions

The judgments hereinabove reveal the divergent views of different High Courts on the date from which maintenance must be awarded.

Even though a judicial discretion is conferred upon the Court to grant maintenance either from the date of application or from the date of the order in S. 125(2) Cr.P.C., it would be appropriate to grant maintenance from the date of application in all cases, including Section 125 Cr.P.C. In the practical working of the provisions relating to maintenance, we find that there is significant delay in disposal of the applications for interim maintenance for years on end. It would therefore be in the interests of justice and fair play that maintenance is awarded from the date of the application.

In Shail Kumari Devi and Ors. v Krishnan Bhagwan Pathak 2008 9 SCC 632, this Court held that the entitlement of maintenance should not be left to the uncertain date of disposal of the case. The enormous delay in disposal of proceedings justifies the award of maintenance from the date of application. In Bhuwan Mohan Singh v Meena61, this Court held that repetitive adjournments sought by the husband in that case resulted in delay of 9 years in the adjudication of the case. The delay in adjudication was not only against human rights, but also against the basic embodiment of dignity of an individual. The delay in the conduct of the proceedings would require grant of maintenance to date back to the date of application.

The rationale of granting maintenance from the date of application finds its roots in the object of enacting maintenance legislations, so as to enable the wife to overcome the financial crunch which occurs on separation from the husband. Financial constraints of a dependant spouse hampers their capacity to be effectively represented before the Court. In order to prevent a dependant from being reduced to destitution, it is necessary that maintenance is awarded from the date on which the application for maintenance is filed before the concerned Court.

In Badshah v Urmila Badshah Godse (2014) 1 SCC 188 , the Supreme Court was considering the interpretation of Section 125 Cr.P.C. The Court held :

"13.3. ...purposive interpretation needs to be given to the provisions of Section 125 CrPC. While dealing with the application of a destitute wife or hapless children or parents under this provision, the Court is dealing with the marginalised sections of the society. The purpose is to achieve "social justice" which is the constitutional vision, enshrined in the Preamble of the Constitution of India. The Preamble to the Constitution of India clearly signals that we have chosen the democratic path under the rule of law to achieve the goal of securing for all its citizens, justice, liberty, equality and fraternity. It specifically highlights achieving their social justice. Therefore, it becomes the bounden duty of the courts to advance the cause of the social justice. While giving interpretation to a particular provision, the court is supposed to bridge the gap between the law and society." (emphasis supplied)

It has therefore become necessary to issue directions to bring about uniformity and consistency in the Orders passed by all Courts, by directing that maintenance be awarded from the date on which the application was made before the concerned Court. The right to claim maintenance must date back to the date of filing the application, since the period during which the maintenance proceedings remained pending is not within the control of the applicant."

Final Directions

(a).....

(d) Date from which maintenance is to be awarded

Section 488 of the Cr.P.C. 1898:-

Section 488-Order of maintenance of wife & children

"(1) If any person having sufficient means neglects or refuses to maintain his wife or his legitimate or illegitimate child unable to maintain itself, the District Magistrate, a Presidency Magistrate, a Sub divisional Magistrate or a Magistrate of the first class may, upon proof of such neglect or refusal, order such person to make a monthly allowance for the maintenance of his wife or such child, at such monthly rate, not exceeding fifty rupees in the whole, as such Magistrate thinks fit, and to pay the same to such person as the Magistrate from time to time directs.

(2) Such allowance shall be payable from the date of the order, or if so ordered from the date of the application for maintenance.

(3) If any person so ordered wilfully neglects to comply with the order, any such Magistrate may, for every breach of the order, issue a warrant for levying the amount due in manner hereinbefore provided for levying fines, and may sentence such person, for the whole or any part of each month's allowance remaining unpaid after the execution of the warrant, to imprisonment for a term which may extend to one month or until payment if sooner made:

Provided that, if such person offers to maintain his wife on condition of her living with him, and she refuses to live with him, such Magistrate may consider any grounds of refusal stated by her, and may mate an order under this section notwithstanding such offer, if he is satisfied that there is just ground for so doing.

(4) No wife shall he entitled to receive an allowance from her husband under this section if she is living in adultery, or if, without any sufficient reason, she refuses to live with her husband, or if they are living separately by mutual consent.

(5) On proof that any wife in whose favour an order has been made under this section is living in adultery, or that without sufficient reason she refuses to live with her husband, or that they are living separately by mutual consent, the Magistrate shall cancel the order.

(6) All evidence under this Chapter shall be taken in the presence of the husband or father, as the case may be, or, when his personal attendance is dispensed with, in the presence of his pleader, and shall be recorded in the manner prescribed in the case of summons-cases:

Provided that if the Magistrate is satisfied that he is wilfully avoiding service, or wilfully neglects to attend the Court, the Magistrate may proceed to hear and determine the case ex parte. Any order so made may be set aside for good cause shown, on application made within three months from the date thereof.

(7) The accused may tender himself as a witness, and in such case shall be examined as such.

(8) The Court in dealing with applications under this section shall have power to make such order as to costs as may be just.

(9) The accused may be proceeded against in any district where he resides or is, or where he last resided with his wife, or, as the case may be, the mother of the illegitimate child."

Section 125(1) of the Cr.P.C. 1973

(1) If any person having sufficient means neglects or refuses to maintain.-

(a) his wife, unable to maintain herself, or

(b) his legitimate or illegitimate minor child, whether married or not, unable to maintain itself, or a Magistrate of the first class may, upon proof of such neglect or refusal, order such person to make a monthly allowance for the maintenance of his wife or such child, father or mother, at such monthly rate not exceeding five hundred rupees in the whole, as such Magistrate thinks fit, and to pay the same to such person as the Magistrate may from time to time direct:

Section 125 Cr.P.C. 1973 as amended w.e.f. 24.9.2001 -

Section 125 - Order for maintenance of wives, children and parents

(1) If any person having sufficient means neglects or refuses to maintain.-

(a) his wife, unable to maintain herself, or

(b) his legitimate or illegitimate minor child, whether married or not, unable to maintain itself, or

(c) his legitimate or illegitimate child (not being a married daughter) who has attained majority, where such child is, by reason of any physical or mental abnormality or injury unable to maintain itself, or

(d) his father or mother, unable to maintain himself or herself, a Magistrate of the first class may, upon proof of such neglect or refusal, order such person to make a monthly allowance for the maintenance of his wife or such child, father or mother, at such monthly rate 1[] as such magistrate thinks fit, and to pay the same to such person as the Magistrate may from time to time direct:

Provided that the Magistrate may order the father of a minor female child referred to in clause (b) to make such allowance, until she attains her majority, if the Magistrate is satisfied that the husband of such minor female child, if married, is not possessed of sufficient means.

[Provided further that the Magistrate may, during the pendency of the proceeding regarding monthly allowance for the maintenance under this sub-section, order such person to make a monthly allowance for the interim maintenance of his wife or such child, father or mother, and the expenses of such proceeding which the Magistrate considers reasonable, and to pay the same to such person as the Magistrate may from time to time direct:

Provided also that an application for the monthly allowance for the interim maintenance and expenses of proceeding under the second proviso shall, as far as possible, be disposed of within sixty days from the date of the service of notice of the application to such person.";]

Explanation.-For the purposes of this Chapter.-

(a) "minor" means a person who, under the provisions of the Indian Majority Act, 1875 (9 of 1875) is deemed not to have attained his majority;

(b) "wife" includes a woman who has been divorced by, or has obtained a divorce from, her husband and has not remarried.

"(2) Any such allowance for the maintenance or interim maintenance and expenses of proceeding shall be payable from the date of the order, or, if so ordered, from the date of the application for maintenance or interim maintenance and expenses of proceeding, as the case may be.";]

(3) If any person so ordered fails without sufficient cause to comply with the order, any such Magistrate may, for every breach of the order, issue a warrant for levying the amount due in the manner provided for levying fines, and may sentence such person, for the whole, or any port of each month's 4[allowance for the maintenance or the interim maintenance and expenses of proceeding , as the case may be] remaining unpaid after the execution of the warrant, to imprisonment for a term which may extend to one month or until payment if sooner made:

Provided that no warrant shall be issued for the recovery of any amount due under this section unless application be made to the Court to levy such amount within a period of one year from the date on which it became due:

Provided further that if such person offers to maintain his wife on condition of her living with him, and she refuses to live with him, such Magistrate may consider any grounds of refusal stated by her, and may make an order under this section notwithstanding such offer, if he is satisfied that there is just ground for so doing.

Explanation.-If a husband has contracted marriage with another woman or keeps a mistress, it shall be considered to be just ground for his wife's refusal to live with him.

(4) No wife shall be entitled to receive an 4[allowance for the maintenance or the interim maintenance and expenses of proceeding , as the case may be] from her husband under this section if she is living in adultery, or if, without any sufficient reason, she refuses to live with her, husband, or if they are living separately by mutual consent.

(5) On proof that any wife in whose favour an order has been made under this section is living in adultery, or that without sufficient reason she refuses to live with her husband, or that they are living separately by mutual consent, the Magistrate shall cancel the order.

STATE AMENDMENTS

Uttar Pradesh:

"(6) where in a proceeding under this section it appears to the Magistrate that the person claiming maintenance is in need to immediate relief for his support and the necessary expenses of the proceeding, the Magistrate may, on his application, order the person against whom the maintenance is claimed, to pay to the person claiming the maintenance, during the pendency of the proceeding such monthly allowance not exceeding five thousand rupees and such expenses of the proceeding as the Magistrate consider reasonable and such order shall be enforceable as an order of maintenance."

19. The incorporation of the provisions pertaining to maintenance has been well recognized and the provisions so contained under Section 488 of the Cr.P.C. 1898 which is a pre-constitution enactment has been given recognition and endorsed while giving it up proper place and status in Section 125 of the Cr.P.C., 1973.

20. The laws relating to maintenance have been enacted as a measure for social justice to provide immediate relief to dependent being wives and children for their family support so as to prevent them from falling into destitution and vagrancy.

Article 15(3) of the Constitution of India provides that:

"Nothing in this article shall prevent the State from making any special provision for women and children."

21. Thus it can be safely said that the Constitution of India, 1950 has envisaged a devise setting up a positive role for the State in fostering change towards the empowerment of women leading to amendment in various legislation and introduction of new legislation.

22. As noticed earlier the pre-constitutional law being the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898 relating to Section 488 has been followed in Section 125 Cr.P.C. before its amendment in the year 2001 as in other words it can be said that Section 125 Cr.P.C. is an incarnation of Section 488 of the old Act except the fact that now parents also are brought into category of persons eligible for maintenance and further legislative cognizance has also been taken of the devaluation of the rupees and escalation of living cost by raising maximum allowance from 100 to 500. However, now after amendments made in the year 2001 the ceiling limit for maintenance has been done away.

23. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Captain Ramesh Chander Kaushal Vs. Mrs. Veena Kaushal reported in 1978 (4) SCC 70 in para 9 has observed as under:-

"9. This provision is a measure of social justice and specially enacted to protect women and children and falls within the constitutional sweep of Article 15(3) reinforced by Article 39. We have no doubt that sections of statutes calling for construction by Courts are not petrified print but vibrant words with social functions to fulfil. The brooding presence of the constitutional empathy for the weaker sections like women and children must inform interpretation if it has to have social relevance. So viewed, it is possible to be selective in picking out that interpretation out of two alternatives which advance the cause--the cause of the derelicts."

24. The basic idea behind insertion of the provisions relating to grant of maintenance is to prevent vagrancy and destitution of the dependents so as to create an atmosphere whereby a dependent is not allowed to starve or lead a life which cannot be termed to be a respectable living.

25. Section 125 of the Cr.P.C. is a self-contained code which finds presence under Chapter IX of 1973 Code for the aid of wife, children and parents in the matter of maintenance that to in summary proceedings. Maintenance under Section 125 of the Cr.P.C. can be claimed by a person irrespective of belonging to any religious community and the object of the said Section is to provide immediate relief to an applicant meaning thereby that it is a beneficial legislation in favour of the dependents.

26. It is not a matter of right that a dependent can claim maintenance under Section 125 Cr.P.C. as there are certain conditions. It is further not matter of mere asking that the maintenance can be claimed by a dependent as for the said purpose, there are certain pre-requisite conditions which have to be satisfied namely;

(i) the husband must have sufficient means;

(ii) the husband neglects to maintain his wife, who is unable to maintain herself

27. Yet the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Shri Bhagwan Dutt Vs. Smt. Kamla Devi and another reported in (1975) 2 SCC 386 while dealing with the provisions contained under Section 488 of the old Act held as under:-

"20. The object of these provisions being to prevent vagrancy and destitution, the Magistrate has to find out as to what is required by the wife to maintain a standard of living which is neither luxurious nor penurious, but is modestly consistent with the status of the family. The needs and requirements of the wife for such moderate living can be fairly determined, only if her separate income, also, is taken into account together with the earnings of the husband and his commitments."

28. The Hon'ble Apex Court had even put a caveat and has cautioned that the proceeding under Section 125 of the Cr.P.C., 1973 is not with an object to punish a person but prevent vagrancy by compelling who can provide support to those who are unable to support themselves.

29. Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Chaturbhuj Vs. Sita Bai (2008) 2 SCC 316 in para 6 has observed as under:-

6. The object of the maintenance proceedings is not to punish a person for his past neglect, but to prevent vagrancy by compelling those who can provide support to those who are unable to support themselves and who have a moral claim to support. The phrase "unable to maintain herself" in the instant case would mean that means available to the deserted wife while she was living with her husband and would not take within itself the efforts made by the wife after desertion to survive somehow.

Section 125 Cr.P.C. is a measure of social justice and is specially enacted to protect women and children and as noted by this Court in Captain Ramesh Chander Kaushal v. Mrs. Veena Kaushal and Ors (1978) 4 SCC 70) falls within constitutional sweep of Article 15(3) reinforced by Article 39 of the Constitution of India, 1950. It is meant to achieve a social purpose. The object is to prevent vagrancy and destitution. It provides a speedy remedy for the supply of food, clothing and shelter to the deserted wife. It gives effect to fundamental rights and natural duties of a man to maintain his wife, children and parents when they are unable to maintain themselves. The aforesaid position was highlighted in Savitaben Somabhai Bhatiya v. State of Gujarat and Ors. (2005) 3 SCC 636.

30. Reiterating the principles of law as laid down in the aforesaid decisions the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Chanmuniya Vs. Virendra Kumar Singh Kushwaha and another 2011 (1) SCC 141 has even gone into the marital status with regard to long cohabitation and in para 42 observed as under :-

cases where a man and woman have been living together as husband and wife for a reasonably long period of time, and strict proof of marriage should not be a pre-condition for maintenance under Section 125 of the Cr.P.C., so as to fulfil the true spirit and essence of the beneficial provision of maintenance under Section 125.We also believe that such an interpretation would be a just application of the principles enshrined in the preamble to our Constitution, namely, social justice and upholding the dignity of the individual."

31. In the case of Kamla and others Vs. M.R. Mehar reported in 2019 (2) SCC 491 the Hon'ble Apex Court has gone to the extent that long cohabitation between woman and man leads to presumption of marriage entitling maintenance for woman and children born to them.

32. Hence it can be safely said that the grant of a maintenance is beneficial legislation for the purposes of granting benefit tot he dependent, who are on the verge of the starvation and who have been meted with a treatment, which she was never intended to be given.

33. Further no other point has been raised by the learned counsel for the revisionist.

34. Looking in the totality of the matter, this Court finds that the present case is not a fit case, wherein this Court may exercise its jurisdiction under Section 397/401 CrPC while setting aside the order dated 27.10.2021, hence the present criminal revision is liable to be dismissed.

35. The revision is accordingly dismissed.

36. No order as to cost.

6. Upendra @ Mohit Vs St. of U.P. & anr., Criminal Revision no. 1981 of 2021

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Yogendra Kumar Srivastava, J.)

1. Heard Sri Kamal Dev Rai, learned counsel for the applicant and Sri Arvind Kumar, learned Additional Government Advocate appearing for the State-opposite party.

2. The present criminal revision has been filed seeking to set aside the judgement and order dated 17.11.2021 passed by Additional Sessions Judge, Court No. 1, Mainpuri in Session Trial No. 316 of 2014 (State vs. Anoj Kumar), under Sections 307, 504 I.P.C., Police Station-Kishni, District-Mainpuri, arising out of Case Crime No. 266 of 2014, on the application of the opposite party no.2 filed under Section 319 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 19731.

3. Learned counsel for the revisionist has sought to assail the order passed by the court below by referring to the factual aspects of the case to contend that the revisionist has been falsely implicated in the criminal case. He has submitted that the jurisdiction under Section 319 of the Code is to be exercised in an extra-ordinary situation where there is a strong possibility of the conviction of the accused, who is proposed to be summoned, and the powers are not to be exercised in a routine manner. It is further pointed out that the Investigating Officer did not find any material against the revisionist and no charge-sheet having been submitted against him, there was no further material on the basis of which the trial court could have summoned the revisionist.

4. Learned Additional Government Advocate-I has controverted the assertions made by the counsel for the revisionist by drawing attention to the fact that the revisionist herein was named in the FIR and as per the FIR version he was assigned a specific role. Attention has been drawn to the fact that the testimony of PW-1 and PW-2 during the course of trial have pointed to the complicity of the revisionist and his clear role in the incident. It is also contended that the testimony before the trial judge would have to be given more weight than the report submitted by the Investigating Officer pursuant to the investigation.

5. The ambit and scope of the powers of the Magistrate under Section 319 of the Code were considered in the Constitution Bench judgment of the Supreme Court in Hardeep Singh and Others vs. State of Punjab2. Referring to the object of the provision it was held that the object of the provision is that the real culprit should not get away unpunished and in a situation where the investigating agency for any reason does not array one of the real culprits as an accused, the court is not powerless in calling the said accused to face trial. It was stated thus :-

"8.The constitutional mandate under Articles 20 and 21 of the Constitution of India, 1950 provides a protective umbrella for the smooth administration of justice making adequate provisions to ensure a fair and efficacious trial so that the accused does not get prejudiced after the law has been put into motion to try him for the offence but at the same time also gives equal protection to victims and to society at large to ensure that the guilty does not get away from the clutches of law. For the empowerment of the courts to ensure that the criminal administration of justice works properly, the law was appropriately codified and modified by the legislature under CrPC indicating as to how the courts should proceed in order to ultimately find out the truth so that an innocent does not get punished but at the same time, the guilty are brought to book under the law. It is these ideals as enshrined under the Constitution and our laws that have led to several decisions, whereby innovating methods and progressive tools have been forged to find out the real truth and to ensure that the guilty does not go unpunished.

9. The presumption of innocence is the general law of the land as every man is presumed to be innocent unless proven to be guilty. Alternatively, certain statutory presumptions in relation to certain class of offences have been raised against the accused whereby the presumption of guilt prevails till the accused discharges his burden upon an onus being cast upon him under the law to prove himself to be innocent. These competing theories have been kept in mind by the legislature. The entire effort, therefore, is not to allow the real perpetrator of an offence to get away unpunished. This is also a part of fair trial and in our opinion, in order to achieve this very end that the legislature thought of incorporating provisions of Section 319 Code of Criminal Procedure. It is with the said object in mind that a constructive and purposive interpretation should be adopted that advances the cause of justice and does not dilute the intention of the statute conferring powers on the court to carry out the abovementioned avowed object and purpose to try the person to the satisfaction of the court as an accomplice in the commission of the offence that is the subject matter of trial.

12. Section 319 Code of Criminal Procedure springs out of the doctrine judex damnatur cum nocens absolvitur (Judge is condemned when guilty is acquitted) and this doctrine must be used as a beacon light while explaining the ambit and the spirit underlying the enactment of Section 319 CrPC.

It is the duty of the court to do justice by punishing the real culprit. Where the investigating agency for any reason does not array one of the real culprits as an accused, the court is not powerless in calling the said accused to face trial. The question remains under what circumstances and at what stage should the court exercise its power as contemplated in Section 319 CrPC.

xxx

17. Section 319 CrPC allows the court to proceed against any person who is not an accused in a case before it. Thus, the person against whom summons are issued in exercise of such powers, has to necessarily not be an accused already facing trial. He can either be a person named in Column 2 of the chargesheet filed under Section 173 Code of Criminal Procedure or a person whose name has been disclosed in any material before the court that is to be considered for the purpose of trying the offence, but not investigated. He has to be a person whose complicity may be indicated and connected with the commission of the offence.

18. The legislature cannot be presumed to have imagined all the circumstances and, therefore, it is the duty of the court to give full effect to the words used by the legislature so as to encompass any situation which the court may have to tackle while proceeding to try an offence and not allow a person who deserves to be tried to go scot free by being not arraigned in the trial in spite of possibility of his complicity which can be gathered from the documents presented by the prosecution.

19. The court is the sole repository of justice and a duty is cast upon it to uphold the rule of law and, therefore, it will be inappropriate to deny the existence of such powers with the courts in our criminal justice system where it is not uncommon that the real accused, at times, get away by manipulating the investigating and/or the prosecuting agency. The desire to avoid trial is so strong that an accused makes efforts at times to get himself absolved even at the stage of investigation or inquiry even though he may be connected with the commission of the offence."

6. As regards the degree of satisfaction required for invoking the powers under Section 319 of the Code, it was held that the test that has to be applied is one which is more than prima facie case as exercised at the time of framing of charge, but short of satisfaction to an extent that the evidence, if goes unrebutted, would lead to conviction. It was observed as follows :-

"105. Power under Section 319 Code of Criminal Procedure is a discretionary and an extra-ordinary power. It is to be exercised sparingly and only in those cases where the circumstances of the case so warrant. It is not to be exercised because the Magistrate or the Sessions Judge is of the opinion that some other person may also be guilty of committing that offence. Only where strong and cogent evidence occurs against a person from the evidence led before the court that such power should be exercised and not in a casual and cavalier manner.

106. Thus, we hold that though only a prima facie case is to be established from the evidence led before the court not necessarily tested on the anvil of Cross-Examination, it requires much stronger evidence than mere probability of his complicity. The test that has to be applied is one which is more than prima facie case as exercised at the time of framing of charge, but short of satisfaction to an extent that the evidence, if goes unrebutted, would lead to conviction. In the absence of such satisfaction, the court should refrain from exercising power under Section 319 Code of Criminal Procedure. In Section 319 Code of Criminal Procedure the purpose of providing if "it appears from the evidence that any person not being the accused has committed any offence" is clear from the words "for which such person could be tried together with the accused." The words used are not "for which such person could be convicted". There is, therefore, no scope for the Court acting under Section 319 Code of Criminal Procedure to form any opinion as to the guilt of the accused.

7. The question as to in what situations the power under the section can be exercised in respect of persons not named in the FIR or named in the FIR, but not charge-sheeted or discharged was also considered, and it was held that a person whose name does not appear even in the FIR or in the charge-sheet or whose name appears in the FIR and not in the charge-sheet, can still be summoned by the court provided the conditions under the section stand fulfilled. It was observed as follows :-

"111. Even the Constitution Bench in Dharam Pal (CB) has held that the Sessions Court can also exercise its original jurisdiction and summon a person as an accused in case his name appears in Column 2 of the chargesheet, once the case had been committed to it. It means that a person whose name does not appear even in the FIR or in the chargesheet or whose name appears in the FIR and not in the main part of the chargesheet but in Column 2 and has not been summoned as an accused in exercise of the powers under Section 193 Code of Criminal Procedure can still be summoned by the court, provided the court is satisfied that the conditions provided in the said statutory provisions stand fulfilled.

117.6 A person not named in the FIR or a person though named in the FIR but has not been chargesheeted or a person who has been discharged can be summoned under Section 319 Code of Criminal Procedure provided from the evidence it appears that such person can be tried along with the accused already facing trial. However, in so far as an accused who has been discharged is concerned the requirement of Sections 300 and 398 Code of Criminal Procedure has to be complied with before he can be summoned afresh. "

8. The word 'evidence' as used under Section 319(1) of the Code was also considered and it was held as follows :-

"84. The word "evidence" therefore has to be understood in its wider sense both at the stage of trial and, as discussed earlier, even at the stage of inquiry, as used under Section 319 Code of Criminal Procedure.The court, therefore, should be understood to have the power to proceed against any person after summoning him on the basis of any such material as brought forth before it. The duty and obligation of the court becomes more onerous to invoke such powers cautiously on such material after evidence has been led during trial.

85. In view of the discussion made and the conclusion drawn hereinabove, the answer to the aforesaid question posed is that apart from evidence recorded during trial, any material that has been received by the court after cognizance is taken and before the trial commences, can be utilised only for corroboration and to support the evidence recorded by the court to invoke the power under Section 319 Code of Criminal Procedure. The "evidence" is thus, limited to the evidence recorded during trial. "

9. The principles with regard to exercise of power by the court to summon an accused under Section 319 of the Code were reiterated in S. Mohammed Ispahani Vs. Yogendra Chandak and others3, and it was held that the power under Section 319 to summon even those persons who are not named in the charge-sheet to appear and face trial, is unquestionable. It was observed thus :-

"28.Insofar as power of the Court Under Section 319 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, to summon even those persons who are not named in the charge sheet to appear and face trial is concerned, the same is unquestionable. Section 319 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, is meant to rope in even those persons who were not implicated when the charge sheet was filed but during the trial the Court finds that sufficient evidence has come on record to summon them and face the trial. In Hardeep Singh's case, the Constitution Bench of this Court has settled the law in this behalf with authoritative pronouncement, thereby removing the cobweb which had been created while interpreting this provision earlier. As far as object behind Section 319 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, is concerned, the Court had highlighted the same as under:

19 .The court is sole repository of justice and a duty is cast upon it to uphold the Rule of law and, therefore, it will be inappropriate to deny the existence of such powers with the courts in our criminal justice system where it is not uncommon that the real accused, at times, get away by manipulating the investigating and/or the prosecuting agency. The desire to avoid trial is so strong that an Accused makes efforts at times to get himself absolved even at the stage of investigation or inquiry even though he may be connected with the commission of the offence. '

10. The power to proceed against persons named in FIR with specific allegations against them, but not charge-sheeted, was reiterated in Rajesh and others Vs. State of Haryana,4 and it was held that persons named in the FIR but not implicated in charge-sheet can be summoned to face trial, provided during the trial some evidence surfaces against the proposed accused.

11. The exercise of powers under Section 319 of the Code for summoning an additional accused again came up for consideration in Saeeda Khatoon Arshi Vs. State of Uttar Pradesh and another5 and it was held that it is the duty of the court to give full effect to the words used by the legislature so as to encompass any situation which the court may have to tackle while proceeding to try an offence and not allow a person who deserves to be tried to go scot-free by being not arraigned in the trial inspite of the possibility of his complicity which can be gathered from the documents presented by the prosecution.

12. In the facts of the present case the court below has taken note of the fact that the revisionist was not only named in the F.I.R. but he was also assigned a role in the incident. The testimony of P.W.-1 and P.W.-2 being indicative of the complicity of the revisionist have also been referred and in particular their statements that at the time of the incident, the revisionist was present at the spot and it was the licensed weapon of the revisionist which was used by the principal accused for causing the firearm injuries. Upon considering the settled legal position with regard to exercise of powers under Section 319, the court below has passed the order summoning the revisionist.

13. The FIR version as also the evidence before the trial judge being indicative of the complicity of the revisionist, though not arraigned as an accused in the charge-sheet, it was open to the trial court to form a view that the revisionist be tried together with the other accused, and for the said purpose summon the revisionist in exercise of powers under Section 319 of the Code.

14. The broad principles which have been laid down for exercise of powers under Section 319 of the Code underline the object of the enactment that the real perpetrator of the offence should not get away unpunished and in a situation where the investigating agency for any reason does not array any culprit as an accused the court would not be powerless in calling the accused to face trial; rather it would be duty of the court to do justice by punishing the real culprit.

15. The test which has been laid down with regard to the degree of satisfaction required for invoking the powers under Section 319 is one which is more than prima facie case as exercised at the time of framing of charge, but short of satisfaction to an extent that the evidence, if goes unrebutted, would lead to conviction.

16. The power to proceed under Section 319 has also been held to be exerciseable in respect of persons though named in the FIR but not charge-sheeted provided the court is satisfied that the conditions provided under the section stand fulfilled.

17. Section 319 (1) of the Code envisages that where, in the course of any inquiry into, or trial of, an offence, it appears from the evidence that any person not being the accused has committed any offence for which such person could be tried together with the accused, the Court may proceed against such person for the offence which he appears to have committed.

18. The word evidence used under Section 319 (1) of the Code has been held to be understood to refer to the evidence recorded during trial, and also any material that has been received by the court after cognizance is taken and before the trial commences, to be utilized for corroboration and to support the evidence recorded by the court.

19. The evidence recorded by the court during trial is thus to be accorded primacy and for the purpose of exercise of power under Section 319 of the Code would have to be given weight over the material which was collected during the course of investigation. The contention which has been sought to be raised placing reliance upon the material collected by the investigating officer during the course of investigation, for the purpose of exercise of powers under Section 319 of the Code, thus cannot be accepted.

20. The power under Section 319 of the Code to summon even those persons who are not named in the charge-sheet to appear and face trial, being unquestionable and the object of the provision being not to allow a person who deserves to be tried to go scot-free by being not arraigned in the trial inspite of possibility of his complicity which can be gathered from the evidence during the course of trial, the order passed under Section 319 of the Code summoning the revisionist does not contain any material error so as to warrant inference.

21. The aforementioned legal position has been considered in detail in recent decisions of this Court in Adesh Tyagi vs. State of U.P. and Another6 and Upendra @ Mohit vs. State of U.P. and Another7.

22. Counsel for the applicant at this stage submits that he does not dispute the aforementioned legal position with regard to the exercise of powers under Section 319 of the Code and states that the applicant would submit to the jurisdiction of the court below and seek bail.

23. It goes without saying that in case any such application is moved, the court below would be expected to dispose it of in accordance with the settled principles of law.

24. Subject to the aforesaid observation, the revision stands dismissed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Vikas Budhwar, J.)

1. Heard Sri Ajay Kumar Mishra, learned counsel for the revisionist as well as Sri L.D. Rajbhar, who appears for the opposite party no.1.

2. This is a revision under Section 397/401 of the Cr.P.C. challenging the order dated 13.10.2021 passed by Special Judge (P.C.Act) Court No.2/Additional Sessions Judge, Bareilly in Special Case No. 3 of 2018 arising out of Case Crime No.154 of 2016 under Section 8/9 Prevention of Corruption Act (State Vs Chand Patrakar and another), P.S. Hasanpur, District Amroha by which the court below has rejected the application preferred by the revisionist under Section 311 of the Cr.P.C.

3. Briefly stated facts are that an FIR was lodged by the opposite party no.2 against the revisionists, who are two in numbers, on 10.4.2016 before the P.S. Hasanpur, District Amroha being Case Crime No.154 of 2016 with an allegation that against the opposite party no.2 and their relatives, a case relating to dowry was lodged and which was under investigation by C.O. Hasanpur and about 7 to 8 days prior to the lodging of the present FIR one Latif (Milkman) had recommended the name of the revisionist and a meeting also arranged with them wherein the issue with regard to the expunging the name of the opposite party no.2 and her daughters was discussed in lieu of payment of certain amounts. A demand of Rs.1,00,000/- was raised by the revisionist and the opposite party no.2 thereafter pledged her jewellery and paid an amount of Rs.30,000/- to the revisionist and an amount of Rs.70,000/- was balance which was to be paid subsequently. However, the proceedings went against the opposite party no.2 and her family despite the fact according to the opposite party no.2, she had made the payment for expunging away her name from the criminal proceedings as nothing was done by the revisionist, so above noted FIR was lodged.

4. The investigation was conducted by the Investigating Officer and charge sheet was submitted against the revisionist on 5.5.2016 in Case Crime No.154 of 2016, 8/9 of the Prevention of Corruption Act reference whereof has been given in para-4 of the application.

5. It appears that the statement of the PW1 Atarkali (opposite party no.2) was recorded on 19.4.2018 itself and thereafter the statements of PW2 to PW7 have also been recorded. The revisionists as per own showing have annexed annexure-3 at page 40 of the paper book an application purported to be under Section 311 of the Cr.P.C. for recalling and re-examine of PW1 (O.P. No.2) The said application has now been rejected while passing the order dated 13.10.2021 which is under challenge. \

6. Before the proceeding further it is apt to quote the provisions contained in Section 311 of the Cr.P.C:

"311. Power to summon material witness, or examine person present. Any Court may, at any stage of any inquiry, trial or other proceeding under this Code, summon any person as a witness, or examine any person in attendance, though not summoned as a witness, or. recall and re- examine any person already examined; and the Court shall summon and examine or recall and re-examine any such person if his evidence appears to it to be essential to the just decision of the case."

7. A plain reading of Section 311 of the Cr.P.C. itself shows that any court may, at any stage of any inquiry, trial or other proceedings under said Code, summon any person as a witness or examine any person in attendance, though not summoned as a witness, recall and reexamine any person already examined and the court shall summon, examine or recall and re-examine any such person if his evidence appears to be essential to the just decision of the case.

8. The legislature was quiet conscious about the employment of the word "at any stage of any inquiry", "trial or other proceedings under this Code" as well as "if his evidence appears to it to be essential to the just decision of the case."

9. Section 311 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 is the incarnation of the provisions contained under Section 540 under Chapter XLVI of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898 (hereinafter referred to as the Old Code).

10. Section 540 of the Old Code is being quoted hereinunder:

"540 Power to summon material witness, or examine person present. - Any Court may, at any stage of any inquiry, trial or other proceeding under this Code, summon any person as a witness, or examine any person in attendance, though not summoned as a witness, or recall and re-examine any person already examined; and the Court shall summon and examine or recall and re-examine any such person if his evidence appears to it essential to the just decision of the case."

11. The provisions contained under Section 540 of the Old Code was subject matter of consideration in the case of Jamatraj Kewalji Govani Vs. State of Maharashtra, reported in AIR 1968 SC 178.

The Hon'ble Apex Court in paragraph-10 of the said case has held as under:-

"10. Section 540 is intended to be wide as the repeated use of the word 'any' throughout its length clearly indicates. The section is in two parts. The first part gives a discretionary power but the latter part is mandatory. The use of the word 'may' in the first part and of the word 'shall' in the second firmly establishes this difference. Under the first part, which is permissive, the court may act in one of three ways : (a) summon any person as a witness,

(b) examine any person present in court although not sum- moned, and (c) recall or re-examine a witness already examined. The second part is obligatory and compels the Court to act in these three ways or any one of them, if the just decision of the case demands it. As the section stands there is no limitation on the power of the Court arising from the stage to which the trial may have reached, provided the Court is bona fide of the opinion that for the just decision of the case, the step must be taken. It is clear that the requirement of just decision of the case does not limit the action to something in the interest of the accused only. The action may equally benefit the prosecution."

12. In the case of Mohanlal Shamji Soni Vs. Union of India and another, reported in 1991 Supp (1) SCC 271, the Hon'ble Apex Court in paragraphs 7, 9, 10 and 27 has observed as under:

"7. Section 540 was found in Chapter XLVI of the old Code of 1898 under the heading 'Miscellaneous'. But the present corresponding Section 311 of the new Code is found among other Sections in Chapter XXIV under the heading 'General Provisions as to Enquiries and Trials'. Section 311 is an almost verbatim reproduction of Section 540 of the old Code except for the insertion of the words 'to be' before the word "essential" occurring in the old Section. This section is manifestly in two parts. Whereas the word 'used' in the first part is 'may' the word used in the second part is 'shall'. In consequence, the first part which is permissive gives purely discretionary authority to the Criminal Code and enables it at any stage of enquiry, trial or other proceedings' under the Code to act in one of the three ways, namely, (1) to summon any person as a witness or (2) to examine any person in attendance, though not summoned as a witness, or (3) to recall and re-examine any person already examined.

9. The very usage of the words such as 'any court', 'at any stage', or 'of any enquiry, trial or other proceedings', 'any person' and 'any such person' clearly spells out that this section is expressed in the widest possible terms and do not limit the discretion of the Court in any way. However, the very width requires a corresponding caution that the discretionary power should be invoked as the exigencies of justice require and exercised judicially with circumspection and consistently with the provisions of the Code. The second part of the Section does not allow for any discretion but it binds and compels the Court to take any of the aforementioned two steps if the fresh evidence to be obtained is essential to the just decision of the case.

10. It is a cardinal rule in the law of evidence that the best available evidence should be brought before the Court to prove a fact or the points in issue. But it is left either for the prosecution or for the defence to establish its respective case by adducing the best available evidence and the Court is not empowered under the provisions of the Code to compel either the prosecution or the defence to examine any particular witness or witnesses on their sides. Nonetheless if either of the parties with-holds any evidence which could be produced and which, if produced, be unfavourable to the party withholding such evidence, the court can draw a presumption under illustration (g) to Section 114 of the Evidence Act. In such a situation a question that arises for consideration is whether the presiding officer of a Court should simply sit as a mere umpire at a contest between two parties and declare at the end of the combat who has won and who has lost or is there not any legal duty of his own, independent of the parties, to take an active role in the proceedings in finding the truth and administering justice? It is a well accepted and settled principle that a Court must discharge its statutory functions-whether discretionary or obligatory-according to law in dispensing justice because it is the duty of a Court not only to do justice but also to ensure that justice is being done. In order to enable the Court to find out the truth and render a just decision, the salutary provisions of Section 540 *of the Code (*Section 311 of the New Code) are enacted whereunder any Court by exercising its discretionary authority at any stage of enquiry, trial or other proceeding can summon any person as a witness or examine any person in attendance though not summoned as a witness or recall or re-examine any person in attendance though not summoned as a witness or recall and re-examine any person already examined who are expected to be able to throw light upon the matter in dispute; because if judgments happen to be rendered on inchoate,, inconclusive and speculative presentation of facts, the ends of justice would be defeated.

27. The principle of law that emerges from the views expressed by this Court in the above decisions is that the Criminal Court has ample power to summon any person as a witness or recall and re-examine any such person even if the evidence on both sides is closed and the jurisdiction of the court must obviously be dictated by exigency of the situation, and fair-play and good sense appear to be the only safe guides and that only the requirements of justice command and examination of any person which would depend on the facts and circumstances of each case.

13. In the case of Zahira Habibulla H. Sheikh and another Vs. State of Gujarat and others, reported in (2004)4 SCC 158, the Hon'ble Apex Court in paragraphs- 43 and 46 has observed as under: -

"43. The Courts have to take a participatory role in a trial. They are not expected to be tape recorders to record whatever is being stated by the witnesses. Section 311 of the Code and Section 165 of the Evidence Act confer vast and wide powers on Presiding Officers of Court to elicit all necessary materials by playing an active role in the evidence collecting process. They have to monitor the proceedings in aid of justice in a manner that something, which is not relevant, is not unnecessarily brought into record. Even if the prosecutor is remiss in some ways, it can control the proceedings effectively so that ultimate objective i.e. truth is arrived at. This becomes more necessary where the Court has reasons to believe that the prosecuting agency or the prosecutor is not acting in the requisite manner. The Court cannot afford to be wishfully or pretend to be blissfully ignorant or oblivious to such serious pitfalls or dereliction of duty on the part of the prosecuting agency. The prosecutor who does not act fairly and acts more like a counsel for the defence is a liability to the fair judicial system, and Courts could not also play into the hands of such prosecuting agency showing indifference or adopting an attitude of total aloofness."

"46. Ultimately, as noted above, ad nauseam the duty of the Court is to arrive at the truth and subserve the ends of justice. Section 311 of the Code does not confer any party any right to examine, cross-examine and re-examine any witness. This is a power given to the Court not to be merely exercised at the bidding of any one party/person but the powers conferred and discretion vested are to prevent any irretrievable or immeasurable damage to the cause of society, public interest and miscarriage of justice. Recourse may be had by Courts to power under this section only for the purpose of discovering relevant facts or obtaining proper proof of such facts as are necessary to arrive at a just decision in the case."

14. In the case of U.T. of Dadra & Haveli & another Vs. Fatehsinh Mohansinh Chauhan, in Appeal (Crl.) No. 834 of 2006, decided on 14.8.2006, the Hon'ble Supreme Court had in paragraph observed as under:

"12. A conspectus of authorities referred to above would show that the principle is well settled that the exercise of power under Section 311 Cr.P.C. should be resorted to only with the object of finding out the truth or obtaining proper proof of such facts which lead to a just and correct decision of the case, this being the primary duty of a criminal court. Calling a witness or re-examining a witness already examined for the purpose of finding out the truth in order to enable the Court to arrive at a just decision of the case cannot be dubbed as "filling in a lacuna in prosecution case" unless the facts and circumstances of the case make it apparent that the exercise of power by the Court would result in causing serious prejudice to the accused resulting in miscarriage of justice."

15. In the case of Vijay Kumar vs. State of U.P. and another, reported in 2011 (8) SCC 136, the provisions contained under Section 311 of the Code of Criminal Procedure was considered and the Hon'ble Court in paragraphs-14 and 17 has held as under: -

"14. There is no manner of doubt that the power under Section 311 of Code of Criminal Procedure is a vast one. This power can be exercised at any stage of the trial. Such a power should be exercised provided the evidence which may be tendered by a witness is germane to the issue involved, or if proper evidence is not adduced or relevant material is not brought on record due to any inadvertence. It hardly needs to be emphasized that power under Section 311 should be exercised for the just decision of the case. The wide discretion conferred on the court to summon a witness must be exercised judicially, as wider the power, the greater is the necessity for application of the judicial mind. Whether to exercise the power or not would largely depend upon the facts and circumstances of each case. As is provided in the Section, power to summon any person as a witness can be exercised if the court forms an opinion that the examination of such a witness is essential for just decision of the case.

17. Though Section 311 confers vast discretion upon the court and is expressed in the widest possible terms, the discretionary power under the said Section can be invoked only for the ends of justice. Discretionary power should be exercised consistently with the provisions of the Code and the principles of criminal law. The discretionary power conferred under Section 311 has to be exercised judicially for reasons stated by the Court and not arbitrarily or capriciously. Before directing the learned Special Judge to examine Smt. Ruchi Saxena as a court witness, the High Court did not examine the reasons assigned by the learned Special Judge as to why it was not necessary to examine her as a court witness and has given the impugned direction without assigning any reason."

16. In the case of P. Sanjeeva Rao Vs. State of Andhra Pradesh, reported in 2012(7) SCC 56, the Hon'ble Apex Court has observed as under:

"19. The nature and extent of the power vested in the Courts under Section 311 Cr.P.C. to recall witnesses was examined by this Court in Hanuman Ram v. The State of Rajasthan & Ors. (2008) 15 SCC 652. This Court held that the object underlying Section 311 was to prevent failure of justice on account of a mistake of either party to bring on record valuable evidence or leaving an ambiguity in the statements of the witnesses. This Court observed:

"7. ... "26. ... This is a supplementary provision enabling, and in certain circumstances imposing on the Court, the duty of examining a material witness who would not be otherwise brought before it. It is couched in the widest possible terms and calls for no limitation, either with regard to the stage at which the powers of the Court should be exercised, or with regard to the manner in which it should be exercised. It is not only the prerogative but also the plain duty of a Court to examine such of those witnesses as it considers absolutely necessary for doing justice between the State and the subject. There is a duty cast upon the Court to arrive at the truth by all lawful means and one of such means is the examination of witnesses of its own accord when for certain obvious reasons either party is not prepared to call witnesses who are known to be in a position to speak important relevant facts.

27. The object underlying Section 311 of the Code is that there may not be failure of justice on account of mistake of either party in bringing the valuable evidence on record or leaving ambiguity in the statements of the witnesses examined from either side. The determinative factor is whether it is essential to the just decision of the case. The section is not limited only for the benefit of the accused, and it will not be an improper exercise of the powers of the Court to summon a witness under the Section merely because the evidence supports the case of the prosecution and not that of the accused. The section is a general section which applies to all proceedings, enquires and trials under the Code and empowers the Magistrate to issue summons to any witness at any stage of such proceedings, trial or enquiry. In Section 311 the significant expression that occurs is "at any stage of inquiry or trial or other proceeding under this Code". It is, however, to be borne in mind that whereas the section confers a very wide power on the Court on summoning witnesses, the discretion conferred is to be exercised judiciously, as the wider the power the greater is the necessity for application of judicial mind." (emphasis supplied)

20. Grant of fairest opportunity to the accused to prove his innocence was the object of every fair trial, observed this Court in Hoffman Andreas v. Inspector of Customs, Amritsar (2000) 10 SCC 430. The following passage is in this regard apposite:

"In such circumstances, if the new Counsel thought to have the material witnesses further examined, the Court could adopt latitude and a liberal view in the interest of justice, particularly when the Court has unbridled powers in the matter as enshrined in Section 311 of the Code. After all the trial is basically for the prisoners and courts should afford the opportunity to them in the fairest manner possible." (emphasis supplied)

21. The extent and the scope of the power of the Court to recall witnesses was examined by this Court in Mohanlal Shamji Soni v. Union of India & Anr. 1991 Supp (1) 271, where this Court observed:

"27. The principle of law that emerges from the views expressed by this Court in the above decisions is that the criminal court has ample power to summon any person as a witness or recall and re-examine any such person even if the evidence on both sides is closed and the jurisdiction of the court must obviously be dictated by exigency of the situation, and fair-play and good sense appear to be the only safe guides and that only the requirements of justice command and examination of any person which would depend on the facts and circumstances of each case." (emphasis supplied)

22. Discovery of the truth is the essential purpose of any trial or enquiry, observed a three-Judge Bench of this Court in Maria Margarida Sequeria Fernandes v. Erasmo Jack de Sequeria through LRs. 2012 (3) SCALE 550. A timely reminder of that solemn duty was given, in the following words:

"What people expect is that the Court should discharge its obligation to find out where in fact the truth lies. Right from inception of the judicial system it has been accepted that discovery, vindication and establishment of truth are the main purposes underlying the existence of the courts of justice."

23. We are conscious of the fact that recall of the witnesses is being directed nearly four years after they were examined in chief about an incident that is nearly seven years old. Delay takes a heavy toll on the human memory apart from breeding cynicism about the efficacy of the judicial system to decide cases within a reasonably foreseeable time period. To that extent the apprehension expressed by Mr. Rawal, that the prosecution may suffer prejudice on account of a belated recall, may not be wholly without any basis. Having said that, we are of the opinion that on a parity of reasoning and looking to the consequences of denial of opportunity to cross-examine the witnesses, we would prefer to err in favour of the appellant getting an opportunity rather than protecting the prosecution against a possible prejudice at his cost. Fairness of the trial is a virtue that is sacrosanct in our judicial system and no price is too heavy to protect that virtue. A possible prejudice to prosecution is not even a price, leave alone one that would justify denial of a fair opportunity to the accused to defend himself."

17. In the matter of Natasha Singh Vs. CBI, reported in 2013(5) SCC 741, the Hon'ble Apex Court after analyzing the law relating to Section 311 of the CrPC in paragraphs- 20, 21 and 22 has observed as under: -

"20. Undoubtedly, an application filed under Section 311 Cr.P.C. must be allowed if fresh evidence is being produced to facilitate a just decision, however, in the instant case, the learned Trial Court prejudged the evidence of the witness sought to be examined by the appellant, and thereby cause grave and material prejudice to the appellant as regards her defence, which tantamounts to a flagrant violation of the principles of law governing the production of such evidence in keeping with the provisions of Section 311 Cr.P.C. By doing so, the Trial Court reached the conclusion that the production of such evidence by the defence was not essential to facilitate a just decision of the case. Such an assumption is wholly misconceived, and is not tenable in law as the accused has every right to adduce evidence in rebuttal of the evidence brought on record by the prosecution. The court must examine whether such additional evidence is necessary to facilitate a just and proper decision of the case. The examination of the hand-writing expert may therefore be necessary to rebut the evidence of Rabi Lal Thapa (PW.40), and a request made for his examination ought not to have been rejected on the sole ground that the opinion of the hand-writing expert would not be conclusive. In such a situation, the only issue that ought to have been considered by the courts below, is whether the evidence proposed to be adduced was relevant or not. Identical is the position regarding the panchnama witness, and the court is justified in weighing evidence, only and only once the same has been laid before it and brought on record. Mr. B.B. Sharma, thus, may be in a position to depose with respect to whether the documents alleged to have been found, or to have been seized, were actually recovered or not, and therefore, from the point of view of the appellant, his examination might prove to be essential and imperative for facilitating a just decision of the case.

21. The High Court has simply quoted relevant paragraphs from the judgment of the Trial Court and has approved the same without giving proper reasons, merely observing that the additional evidence sought to be brought on record was not essential for the purpose of arriving at a just decision. Furthermore, the same is not a case where if the application filed by the appellant had been allowed, the process would have taken much time. In fact, disallowing the said application, has caused delay. No prejudice would have been caused to the prosecution, if the defence had been permitted to examine said three witnesses.

22. In view of above, the appeal succeeds and is allowed. The judgment and order of the Trial Court, as well as of the High Court impugned before us, are set aside. The application under Section 311 Cr.P.C. filed by the appellant is allowed. The parties are directed to appear before the learned Trial Court on the 17th of May, 2013, and the learned Trial Court is requested to fix a date on which the appellant shall produce the three witnesses, and the same may thereafter be examined expeditiously in accordance with law, and without causing any further delay. Needless to say that the prosecution will be entitled to cross examine them."

18. Further in the matter of Rajaram Prasad Yadav vs. State of Bihar and another, reported in 2013(14) SCC 461, the Hon'ble Supreme Court had considered the provisions contained under Section 311 and has held in paragraph-14 as under:

A conspicuous reading of Section 311 Cr.P.C. would show that widest of the powers have been invested with the Courts when it comes to the question of summoning a witness or to recall or re-examine any witness already examined. A reading of the provision shows that the expression "any" has been used as a pre-fix to "court", "inquiry", "trial", "other proceeding", "person as a witness", "person in attendance though not summoned as a witness", and "person already examined". By using the said expression "any" as a pre-fix to the various expressions mentioned above, it is ultimately stated that all that was required to be satisfied by the Court was only in relation to such evidence that appears to the Court to be essential for the just decision of the case. Section 138 of the Evidence Act, prescribed the order of examination of a witness in the Court. Order of re-examination is also prescribed calling for such a witness so desired for such re-examination. Therefore, a reading of Section 311 Cr.P.C. and Section 138 Evidence Act, insofar as it comes to the question of a criminal trial, the order of re-examination at the desire of any person under Section 138, will have to necessarily be in consonance with the prescription contained in Section 311 Cr.P.C. It is, therefore, imperative that the invocation of Section 311 Cr.P.C. and its application in a particular case can be ordered by the Court, only by bearing in mind the object and purport of the said provision, namely, for achieving a just decision of the case as noted by us earlier. The power vested under the said provision is made available to any Court at any stage in any inquiry or trial or other proceeding initiated under the Code for the purpose of summoning any person as a witness or for examining any person in attendance, even though not summoned as witness or to recall or re-examine any person already examined. Insofar as recalling and re-examination of any person already examined, the Court must necessarily consider and ensure that such recall and re-examination of any person, appears in the view of the Court to be essential for the just decision of the case. Therefore, the paramount requirement is just decision and for that purpose the essentiality of a person to be recalled and re-examined has to be ascertained. To put it differently, while such a widest power is invested with the Court, it is needless to state that exercise of such power should be made judicially and also with extreme care and caution."

19. In the matter of Mannan Shaikh and others vs. State of West Bengal and another, reported in (2014) 13 SCC 59, the Hon'ble Apex Court had the occasion to further consider the provision contained under Section 311 of CrPC and in paragraphs-12, 16 and 17, has observed as under: -

"12. The aim of every court is to discover truth. Section 311 of the Code is one of many such provisions of the Code which strengthen the arms of a court in its effort to ferret out the truth by procedure sanctioned by law. It is couched in very wide terms. It empowers the court at any stage of any inquiry, trial or other proceedings under the Code to summon any person as a witness or examine any person in attendance, though not summoned as witness or recall and re-examine already examined witness. The second part of the Section uses the word "shall'. It says that the court shall summon and examine or recall or re-examine any such person if his evidence appears to it to be essential to the just decision of the case. The words "essential to the just decision of the case' are the key words. The court must form an opinion that for the just decision of the case recall or re- examination of the witness is necessary. Since the power is wide it's exercise has to be done with circumspection. It is trite that wider the power greater is the responsibility on the courts which exercise it. The exercise of this power cannot be untrammeled and arbitrary but must be only guided by the object of arriving at a just decision of the case. It should not cause prejudice to the accused. It should not permit the prosecution to fill-up the lacuna. Whether recall of a witness is for filling-up of a lacuna or it is for just decision of a case depends on facts and circumstances of each case. In all cases it is likely to be argued that the prosecution is trying to fill-up a lacuna because the line of demarcation is thin. It is for the court to consider all the circumstances and decide whether the prayer for recall is genuine.

16. If we view the present case in light of the above judgments, we will have to sustain the High Court's order. PW15-SI Dayal Mukherjee stated in the court that he had recorded the statement of deceased Rupchand Sk. Thus, this fact was known to the defence. He was cross-examined by the defence. Inadvertently, the said statement was not brought on record through PW15-SI Dayal Mukherjee. Rupchand Sk died after the said statement was recorded. The said statement, therefore, became very vital to the prosecution. It is obvious that the prosecution wants to treat it as a dying declaration. Undoubtedly, therefore, it is an essential material to the just decision of the case. Though, the fact of the recording of this statement is deposed to by PW15-SI Dayal Mukherjee, since due to oversight it was not brought on record, application was made under Section 311 of the Code praying for recall of PW15-SI Dayal Mukherjee. This cannot be termed as an inherent weakness or a latent wedge in the matrix of the prosecution case. No material is tried to be brought on record surreptitiously to fill-up the lacuna. Since the accused knew that such a statement was recorded by PW15-SI Dayal Mukherjee, no prejudice can be said to have been caused to the accused, who will undoubtedly get a chance to cross-examine PW15-SI Dayal Mukherjee.

17. It is true that PW15-SI Dayal Mukherjee was once recalled but that does not matter. It does not prevent his further recall. Section 311 of the Code does not put any such limitation on the court. He can still be recalled if his evidence appears to the court to be essential to the just decision of the case. In this connection we must revisit Rajendra Prasad where this Court has clarified that the court can exercise power of re- summoning any witness even if it has exercised the said power earlier. Relevant observations of this Court run as under:

"We cannot therefore accept the contention of the appellant as a legal proposition that the court cannot exercise power of resummoning any witness if once that power was exercised, nor can the power be whittled down merely on the ground that the prosecution discovered laches only when the defence highlighted them during final arguments. The power of the court is plenary to summon or even recall any witness at any stage of the case if the court considers it necessary for a just decision. The steps which the trial court permitted in this case for resummoning certain witnesses cannot therefore be spurned down or frowned at."

20. In the case of State (NCT of Delhi) Vs. Shiv Kumar Yadav, reported in 2016(2) SCC 402, the Hon'ble Apex Court in paragraph-27 has held as under:-

"It is difficult to approve the view taken by the High Court. Undoubtedly, fair trial is the objective and it is the duty of the court to ensure such fairness. Width of power under Section 311 Cr.P.C. is beyond any doubt. Not a single specific reason has been assigned by the High Court as to how in the present case recall of as many as 13 witnesses was necessary as directed in the impugned order. No fault has been found with the reasoning of the order of the trial court. The High Court rejected on merits the only two reasons pressed before it that the trial was hurried and the counsel was not competent. In the face of rejecting these grounds, without considering the hardship to the witnesses, undue delay in the trial, and without any other cogent reason, allowing recall merely on the observation that it is only the accused who will suffer by the delay as he was in custody could, in the circumstances, be hardly accepted as valid or serving the ends of justice. It is not only matter of delay but also of harassment for the witnesses to be recalled which could not be justified on the ground that the accused was in custody and that he would only suffer by prolonging of the proceedings. Certainly recall could be permitted if essential for the just decision but not on such consideration as has been adopted in the present case. Mere observation that recall was necessary "for ensuring fair trial" is not enough unless there are tangible reasons to show how the fair trial suffered without recall. Recall is not a matter of course and the discretion given to the court has to be exercised judiciously to prevent failure of justice and not arbitrarily. While the party is even permitted to correct its bona fide error and may be entitled to further opportunity even when such opportunity may be sought without any fault on the part of the opposite party, plea for recall for advancing justice has to be bona fide and has to be balanced carefully with the other relevant considerations including uncalled for hardship to the witnesses and uncalled for delay in the trial. Having regard to these considerations, we do not find any ground to justify the recall of witnesses already examined."

21. In the matter of Ratan Lal Vs. Prahlad Jat and others reported in (2017) 9 SCC 340, the Hon'ble Apex Court in paragraph-17 has observed as under: -

"In order to enable the court to find out the truth and render a just decision, the salutary provisions of Section 311 are enacted whereunder any court by exercising its discretionary authority at any stage of inquiry, trial or other proceeding can summon any person as witness or examine any person in attendance though not summoned as a witness or recall or re-examine any person already examined who are expected to be able to throw light upon the matter in dispute. The object of the provision as a whole is to do justice not only from the point of view of the accused and the prosecution but also from the point of view of an orderly society. This power is to be exercised only for strong and valid reasons and it should be exercised with caution and circumspection. Recall is not a matter of course and the discretion given to the court has to be exercised judicially to prevent failure of justice. Therefore, the reasons for exercising this power should be spelt out in the order."

22. Yet in the case of Swapan Kumar Chatterjee vs. Central Bureau of Investigation, reported in 2019 (14) SCC 328, the Hon'ble Apex Court in paragraphs-11 and 12 has observed as under: -

"11. It is well settled that the power conferred under Section 311 should be invoked by the court only to meet the ends of justice. The power is to be exercised only for strong and valid reasons and it should be exercised with great caution and circumspection. The court has vide power under this Section to even recall witnesses for reexamination or further examination, necessary in the interest of justice, but the same has to be exercised after taking into consideration the facts and circumstances of each case. The power under this provision shall not be exercised if the court is of the view that the application has been filed as an abuse of the process of law.

12. Where the prosecution evidence has been closed long back and the reasons for non-examination of the witness earlier is not satisfactory, the summoning of the witness at belated stage would cause great prejudice to the accused and should not be allowed. Similarly, the court should not encourage the filing of successive applications for recall of a witness under this provision."

23. From the proposition of law culled out in the aforesaid judgments an inescapable conclusion comes in light that the powers under Section 311 of the CrPC can only be invoked by the Court just in order meet the ends of justice for strong and valid reason and the same must be exercised with care, caution and circumspection. The Court should bear in mind that fair trial entails the interest of the accused, the victim and the society and therefore, the ground of fair and proper opportunity to the persons concerned may be ensured being a constitutional goal as well as the human rights.

24. Now, in the light of the aforesaid principles of law culled down by the Hon'ble Apex Court, the present case is to be decided.

25. Learned counsel for the revisionist has argued that it was a fit case wherein the application so preferred by the revisionist under Section 311 of the Cr.P.C. ought to have been allowed as the facts of the case necessitated for the same.

26. Countering the said submission, learned AGA, who appears for the State, has argued that from the perusal of the application under Section 311 of the Cr.P.C. preferred by the revisionist dated 30.10.2021 itself shows that the same was only with the purpose to linger on the proceedings as it is very vague and does not even disclose any solid reasons for filing of the same.

27. I have perused the order dated 30.10.2021 passed by the court below under challenge and I find that in the application so preferred by the revisionist under Section 311 of the Cr.P.C. for re-examination of the PW1 (O.P.2) has been filed with on following grounds:-

(a) Certain important facts could not be asked from the PW1.

(b) The facts were necessary for adjudication of the criminal case in question.

28. This Court finds that the aforesaid grounds so taken in the application under Section 311 of the Cr.P.C. or not only vague but they do not disclose any of the conditions which are necessary for recalling the witness. Merely on asking the application under Section 311 of the Cr.P.C. cannot be allowed as there has to be sufficient reasons behind it.

29. Needless to point out that though the application under Section 311 of the Cr.P.C. can be allowed at any stage namely at the stage of inquiry, trial or other proceedings as contemplated under the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973, however, the same is always subject to the valid grounds and reasons necessitating for allowing the same.

30. The application so preferred by the revisionist also does not give any specific details as to what are the questions which are to be raised in the cross-examination of PW-1 as only bald and vague assertion has been made that certain questions relating to the occurrence of the incident were left to be asked. In the absence of any pleadings set-forth by the revisionist before the court below seeking re-examination / recall of the witness as well as canvasing of any argument to show that the order under challenge is illegal, perverse and palpably unjust, this Court cannot interfere.

31. Accordingly, this Court is of the firm opinion that the order passed by the court below does not suffer from any manifest illegality in exercise of revisional jurisdiction. This court cannot also substitute its own view, once another view is possible, that too when there is nothing on record to show that the view taken by the court below suffers from manifest error or is palpably illegal.

32. Resultantly, the present revision is wholly misconceived and is liable to be dismissed.

33. Accordingly, the revision is dismissed.

34. Cost made easy.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Kaushal Jayendra Thaker, J.
&
Hon'ble Ajai Tyagi, J.)

1. Heard learned AGA for the State and perused the record.

2. This appeal, at the behest of the State, has been preferred against the judgment and order dated 13.09.2019, passed by the Additional Sessions Judge/ F.T.C., Jaunpur, acquitting accused-respondent, who has been tried for commission of offence under Sections 363, 368, 376 and 120-B I.P.C.

3. The brief facts of the case of the prosecution, as set out before the trial Court, are that a complaint being Police Case No.352 of 2011 for commission of offence under Sections 363, 368, 376 and 120-B I.P.C. was sent for investigation under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C., wherein allegations were that the prosecutrix was married in June 2011 in Jaunpur, she was aged about 16 years and when she had gone to the school, the accused along with his friends took her in the Bolero Caar and when the girl did not come back to her home, father of the prosecutrix after searched out her daughter in all places, he complaint the report at the police station and conveyed that she had gone with Rajesh Bindu. On the basis of F.I.R. dated 2.11.2011, the prosecutrix recorded the statement under Section 161 and then coming to the conclusion that prima facie offences under Sections 363, 368 were made out. Later on, the charge sheet was submitted by the Magistrate under Sections 363, 368, 376 and 120-B of the I.P.C. The police did not carried out any investigation and, therefore, complaint to the court was made, which culminated into fresh investigation and the police submitted the charge-sheet.

4. Learned Magistrate committed the case to the court of session as it was a sessions trial. The learned Sessions Judge summoned the accused and questioned him. The accused pleaded not guilty and wanted to be tried. The Sessions Judge framed the charges of the accused as the accused pleaded not guilty and wanted to be tried. The State examined several witnesses and also produced documents. The genesis of the complaint also shows that all of them did unnatural act with her. The medical evidence showed that no rape was committed on her. This was what the doctor opined as there was no male sperm found.

5. After recording the evidence of the witnesses and perusing the material on record, the trial Court passed the impugned order. Hence, the present appeal.

6. Learned AGA for the appellant-State, vehemently submitted that the trial Court committed a grave error in passing the impugned judgment and order, inasmuch as it failed to appreciate the material on record in its proper perspective. It is submitted that taking into consideration the oral evidence of the witnesses examined by the prosecution as well as the documentary evidences produced by it, the trial Court ought to have held the accused guilty of the charges leveled against them. It is, therefore, prayed that the appeal be allowed.

7. On the basis of the aforesaid evidence, we are unable to accept the submission of counsel for the State. This is a case where we need to call the accused to this Court and retry him and then decide the matter. At the first blush, when the judgment in the case of Rai Sandeep @ Deeput vs. State of NCT Delhi, decided on 7.8.2012 in Crl. Appeal No.2486 of 2009 goes to show that the judgment of the court-below is not perverse. We are unable to persuade ourselves to allow the appeal.

8. The principles which would govern and regulate the hearing of an appeal by this Court, against an order of acquittal passed by the trial Court, have been very succinctly explained by the Apex Court in catena of decisions. In the case of "M.S. NARAYANA MENON @ MANI VS. STATE OF KERALA & ANR", (2006) 6 S.C.C. 39, the Apex Court has narrated the powers of the High Court in appeal against the order of acquittal. In para 54 of the decision, the Apex Court has observed as under:

"54. In any event the High Court entertained an appeal treating to be an appeal against acquittal, it was in fact exercising the revisional jurisdiction. Even while exercising an appellate power against a judgment of acquittal, the High Court should have borne in mind the well settled principles of law that where two view are possible, the appellate Court should not interfere with the finding of acquittal recorded by the Court below."

9. Further, in the case of "CHANDRAPPA Vs. STATE OF KARNATAKA", reported in (2007) 4 S.C.C. 415, the Apex Court laid down the following principles;

"42. From the above decisions, in our considered view, the following general principles regarding powers of the appellate Court while dealing with an appeal against an order of acquittal emerge:

[1] An appellate Court has full power to review, re-appreciate and reconsider the evidence upon which the order of acquittal is founded.

[2] The Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 puts no limitation, restriction or condition on exercise of such power and an appellate Court on the evidence before it may reach its own conclusion, both on questions of fact and of law.

[3] Various expressions, such as,"substantial and compelling reasons", "good and sufficient grounds", "very strong circumstances", "distorted conclusions", "glaring mistakes", etc. are not intended to curtain extensive powers of an appellate Court in an appeal against acquittal. Such phraseologies are more in the nature of "flourishes of language" to emphasis the reluctance of an appellate Court to interfere with acquittal than to curtail the power of the Court to review the evidence and to come to its own conclusion.

[4] An appellate Court, however, must bear in mind that in case of acquittal there is double presumption in favour of the accused. Firstly, the presumption of innocence is available to him under the fundamental principle of criminal jurisprudence that every person shall be presumed to be innocent unless he is proved guilty by a competent Court of law. Secondly, the accused having secured his acquittal, the presumption of his innocence is further reinforced, reaffirmed and strengthened by the trial Court.

[5] If two reasonable conclusions are possible on the basis of the evidence on record, the appellate Court should not disturb the finding of acquittal recorded by the trial Court."

10. Thus, it is a settled principle that while exercising appellate powers, even if two reasonable views/conclusions are possible on the basis of the evidence on record, the appellate Court should not disturb the finding of acquittal recorded by the trial Court.

11. Even in the case of "STATE OF GOA Vs. SANJAY THAKRAN & ANR.", reported in (2007) 3 S.C.C. 75, the Apex Court has reiterated the powers of the High Court in such cases. In para 16 of the said decision, the Court has observed as under:

"16. From the aforesaid decisions, it is apparent that while exercising the powers in appeal against the order of acquittal the Court of appeal would not ordinarily interfere with the order of acquittal unless the approach of the lower Court is vitiated by some manifest illegality and the conclusion arrived at would not be arrived at by any reasonable person and, therefore, the decision is to be characterized as perverse. Merely because two views are possible, the Court of appeal would not take the view which would upset the judgment delivered by the Court below. However, the appellate Court has a power to review the evidence if it is of the view that the conclusion arrived at by the Court below is perverse and the Court has committed a manifest error of law and ignored the material evidence on record. A duty is cast upon the appellate Court, in such circumstances, to re-appreciate the evidence to arrive to a just decision on the basis of material placed on record to find out whether any of the accused is connected with the commission of the crime he is charged with."

12. Similar principle has been laid down by the Apex Court in cases of "STATE OF UTTAR PRADESH VS. RAM VEER SINGH & ORS.", 2007 A.I.R. S.C.W. 5553 and in "GIRJA PRASAD (DEAD) BY L.R.s VS. STATE OF MP", 2007 A.I.R. S.C.W. 5589. Thus, the powers, which this Court may exercise against an order of acquittal, are well settled.

13. In the case of "LUNA RAM VS. BHUPAT SINGH AND ORS.", reported in (2009) SCC 749, the Apex Court in para 10 and 11 has held as under:

"10. The High Court has noted that the prosecution version was not clearly believable. Some of the so called eye witnesses stated that the deceased died because his ankle was twisted by an accused. Others said that he was strangulated. It was the case of the prosecution that the injured witnesses were thrown out of the bus. The doctor who conducted the postmortem and examined the witnesses had categorically stated that it was not possible that somebody would throw a person out of the bus when it was in running condition.

11. Considering the parameters of appeal against the judgment of acquittal, we are not inclined to interfere in this appeal. The view of the High Court cannot be termed to be perverse and is a possible view on the evidence."

14. Even in a recent decision of the Apex Court in the case of "MOOKKIAH AND ANR. VS. STATE, REP. BY THE INSPECTOR OF POLICE, TAMIL NADU", reported in AIR 2013 SC 321, the Apex Court in para 4 has held as under:

"4. It is not in dispute that the trial Court, on appreciation of oral and documentary evidence led in by the prosecution and defence, acquitted the accused in respect of the charges leveled against them. On appeal by the State, the High Court, by impugned order, reversed the said decision and convicted the accused under Section 302 read with Section 34 of IPC and awarded RI for life. Since counsel for the appellants very much emphasized that the High Court has exceeded its jurisdiction in upsetting the order of acquittal into conviction, let us analyze the scope and power of the High Court in an appeal filed against the order of acquittal. This Court in a series of decisions has repeatedly laid down that as the first appellate court the High Court, even while dealing with an appeal against acquittal, was also entitled, and obliged as well, to scan through and if need be reappreciate the entire evidence, though while hoosing to interfere only the court should find an absolute assurance of the guilt on the basis of the evidence on record and not merely because the High Court could take one more possible or a different view only. Except the above, where the matter of the extent and depth of consideration of the appeal is concerned, no distinctions or differences in approach are envisaged in dealing with an appeal as such merely because one was against conviction or the other against an acquittal. [Vide State of Rajasthan vs. Sohan Lal and Others, (2004) 5 SCC 573]"

15. It is also a settled legal position that in acquittal appeals, the appellate Court is not required to rewrite the judgment or to give fresh reasonings, when the reasons assigned by the Court below are found to be just and proper. Such principle is laid down by the Apex Court in the case of "STATE OF KARNATAKA VS. HEMAREDDY", AIR 1981, SC 1417, wherein it is held as under:

"...This Court has observed in Girija Nandini Devi V. Bigendra Nandini Choudhary (1967) 1 SCR 93:(AIR 1967 SC 1124) that it is not the duty of the Appellate Court on the evidence to repeat the narration of the evidence or to reiterate the reasons given by the trial Court expression of general agreement with the reasons given by the Court the decision of which is under appeal, will ordinarily suffice."

16. In a recent decision, the Hon'ble Apex Court in "SHIVASHARANAPPA & ORS. VS. STATE OF KARNATAKA", JT 2013 (7) SC 66 has held as under:

"That appellate Court is empowered to reappreciate the entire evidence, though, certain other principles are also to be adhered to and it has to be kept in mind that acquittal results into double presumption of innocence."

17. Further, in the case of "STATE OF PUNJAB VS. MADAN MOHAN LAL VERMA", (2013) 14 SCC 153, the Apex Court has held as under:

"The law on the issue is well settled that demand of illegal gratification is sine qua non for constituting an offence under the 1988 Act. Mere recovery of tainted money is not sufficient to convict the accused when substantive evidence in the case is not reliable, unless there is evidence to prove payment of bribe or to show that the money was taken voluntarily as a bribe. Mere receipt of the amount by the accused is not sufficient to fasten guilt, in the absence of any evidence with regard to demand and acceptance of the amount as illegal gratification. Hence, the burden rests on the accused to displace the statutory presumption raised under Section 20 of the 1988 Act, by bringing on record evidence, either direct or circumstantial, to establish with reasonable probability, that the money was accepted by him, other than as a motive or reward as referred to in Section 7 of the 1988 Act. While invoking the provisions of Section 20 of the Act, the court is required to consider the explanation offered by the accused, if any, only on the touchstone of preponderance of probability and not on the touchstone of proof beyond all reasonable doubt. However, before the accused is called upon to explain how the amount in question was found in his possession, the foundational facts must be established by the prosecution. The complainant is an interested and partisan witness concerned with the success of the trap and his evidence must be tested in the same way as that of any other interested witness. In a proper case, the court may look for independent corroboration before convincing the accused person."

18. The Apex Court recently in Jayaswamy vs. State of Karnataka, (2018) 7 SCC 219, has laid down the principles for laying down the powers of appellate court in re-appreciating the evidence in a case where the State has preferred an appeal against acquittal, which read as follows:

"10.It is by now well settled that the Appellate Court hearing the appeal filed against the judgment and order of acquittal will not overrule or otherwise disturb the Trial Court's acquittal if the Appellate Court does not find substantial and compelling reasons for doing so. If the Trial Court's conclusion with regard to the facts is palpably wrong; if the Trial Court's decision was based on erroneous view of law; if the Trial Court's judgment is likely to result in grave miscarriage of justice; if the entire approach of the Trial Court in dealing with the evidence was patently illegal; if the Trial Court judgment was manifestly unjust and unreasonable; and if the Trial Court has ignored the evidence or misread the material evidence or has ignored material documents like dying declaration/report of the ballistic expert etc. the same may be construed as substantial and compelling reasons and the first appellate court may interfere in the order of acquittl. However, if the view taken by the Trial Court while acquitting the accused is one of the possible views under the facts and circumstances of the case, the Appellate Court generally will not interfere with the order of acquittal particularly in the absence of the aforementioned factors.

.....It is relevant to note the observations of this Court in the case of Ramanand Yadav vs. Prabhu Nath Jha & Ors., (2003) 12 SCC 606, which reads thus:

"21.There is no embargo on the appellate court reviewing the evidence upon which an order of acquittal is based. Generally, the order of acquittal shall not be interfered with because the presumption of innocence of the accused is further strengthened by acquittal. The golden thread which runs through the web of administration of justice in criminal cases is that if two views are possible on the evidence adduced in the case, one pointing to the guilt of the accused and the other to his innocence, the view which is favourable to the accused should be adopted. The paramount consideration of the court is to ensure that miscarriage of justice is prevented. A miscarriage of justice which may arise from acquittal of the guilty is no less than from the conviction of an innocent. In a case where admissible evidence is ignored, a duty is cast upon the appellate court to re-appreciate the evidence in a case where the accused has been acquitted, for the purpose of ascertaining as to whether any of the accused committed any offence or not."

19. The Apex Court recently in Shailendra Rajdev Pasvan v. State of Gujarat, (2020) 14 SC 750, has held that the appellate court is reversing the trial court's order of acquittal, it should give proper weight and consideration to the presumption of innocence in favour of accused, and to the principle that such a presumption sands reinforced, reaffirmed and strengthened by the trial court and in Samsul Haque v. State of Assam, (2019) 18 SCC 161 held that judgment of acquittal, where two views are possible, should not be set aside, even if view formed by appellate court may be a more probable one, interference with acquittal can only be justified when it is based on a perverse view.

20. The learned Judge while considering the factual data has considered that the medical evidence of the prosecutrix need not prove that she was subjected to recent sexual intercourse, the vaginal smear did not show any spermatozoa. Dr. Ravindra Kumar Gupta has categorically mentioned that it cannot be opined that there was sexual intercourse with the prosecutrix and that there was raped committed. The FIR was belated and there was internal injury on the part of the prosecutrix, there were contradictions which were not minor in the evidence of all the witnesses. The learned judge has given judgment which cannot be said to be in any way perverse. The learned Judge while deciding the matter has relied on the decision of the Apex Court in the case of Mahadeo S/o

Kerka Maske v. State of Maharashtra and another, (2013) 14 SCC 637. She had moved from one place to another with the accused at least 17 days but she has not raised any alarm during that period. With all these observations, it cannot be said that the findings of facts are perverse.

21. In view of the above judgments and facts as discussed above, it would not permit us to take a different view that taken by the learned Judge who has acquitted the accused, the parameters are considered by us. The evidence on record also will not permit us to take a different view. Thus, the above-mentioned decisions will not permit this Court to take a different view. In this case it is not proved beyond doubt that the original accused Respondents, herein, indulged into adulteration. Hence, the present appeal deserves to be dismissed.

22. While going through the record and the impugned judgment, the principle enunciated by the Apex Court for entertaining appeal against the acquittal, which are reproduced herein above, will not permit this Court to grant leave to appeal.

23. Leave Refused.

24. In the result, this appeal fails and is DISMISSED. The judgment and order of the trial Court, Dated : 13.09.2019, stands CONFIRMED. Bail bonds of the accused, if any, on bail, stands discharged. Lower Court Record be sent back to the concerned trial Court, forthwith.

1. Heard Sri Rohan Gupta, learned counsel for the revisionist and Sri Saurabh Srivastava, learned counsel for plaintiff-respondent.

2. This revision under Section 25 of Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, 1887 arises out of order dated 19.10.2021 passed by Additional District and Sessions Judge, Court No. 7, Kanpur Nagar dismissing the amendment application of the defendant-revisionist in S.C.C. Suit No. 132 of 2009 under Order VI, Rule 17 C.P.C.

3. Facts in nutshell, are that plaintiff-respondent filed a suit for arrears of rent and ejectment in the court of District Judge, Kanpur Nagar being Suit No. 132 of 2009. It was averred that plaintiff was the owner and landlord of premises No. 32/17, Express Road, Kanpur Nagar, and basement and ground floor of the said premises was let out to defendant-revisionist at monthly rent of Rs.10,000/-, which included Rs.5,000/- as rent and Rs.5,000/- towards maintenance charges, since 01.08.2005.

4. As default was committed by defendant in payment of rent, the said suit was filed. Defendant-revisionist contested the aforesaid suit by filing written statement on 31.07.2010, wherein in para 3 of written statement the averment made in para 2 of plaint was not denied and was stated that it was upon plaintiff to prove the execution of the agreement. An application under Order VII, Rule 11 C.P.C. was filed by defendant-revisionist which was rejected on 19.12.2013, thereafter, again an application under Order VII, Rule 11 was filed which was again rejected. The third application filed under Order VII, Rule 11 by defendant-revisionist on 24.08.2021 was not pressed by revisionist on 24.09.2021. However, an amendment application was filed on 30.09.2021 for amending the written statement by inserting Para 12-A and 12-B wherein the plea was sought to be introduced that the rent claimed at Rs.5,000/- per month by landlord included Rs.1,500/- as rent and rest of amount as security charges. An objection was filed by plaintiff-respondent on 04.10.2021 specifically stating that after affirming of issues the oral testimony of PW-1 was recorded and was cross-examined by defendant-revisionist. The application filed under Order VI, Rule 17 after 11 years has been filed to delay the matter, and the same is barred by proviso to Order VI, Rule 17 as the trial had already commenced. The court below after hearing the parties on 19.10.2021 rejected the amendment application. Hence, the present revision.

5. Sri Rohan Gupta, learned counsel for defendant-revisionist submitted that document relied upon by plaintiff-respondent as rent agreement is an unregistered document and the amendment has been sought to clarify the position that rent of Rs.5,000/- included the rent and other charges including the taxes. He next submitted that amendment was necessary for determining the real question in controversy and the court may allow amendment subject to imposition of cost. Reliance has been placed upon decision of co-ordinate Bench of this Court in case of Ishaq @ Gama Ahmad vs. Smt. Champa Devi, 2016 (117) ALR 742, Para Nos. 11 and 12, which are extracted hereasunder:-

"11. In the light of the aforesaid principles of law laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court and this Court and also looking to the nature of the amendment of the pleadings sought to be made in the written statement, I find that the proposed amendment is legal in nature which does not cause any prejudice to the opposite party land lady. The amendment application cannot be refused only on the ground that the matter is old and there is a direction of this Court to decide the case expeditiously because the courts are expected to do justice between the parties and not to go into the technicalities.

12. In view of the above, the S.C.C. Revision No.117 of 2015 deserved to be allowed and the order dated 19.09.2015 rejecting the amendment application of the revisionist tenant is set aside. Consequently amendment application Kha 61 seeking amendment of additional written statement is allowed. The revisionist tenant is permitted to carry out the correction in the additional written statement within a period of two weeks from the date of this judgment.

6. He has relied upon a decision of this Court in case of State of U.P. and others vs. Ashok Kumar and others, 2015 (2) AWC 1549, Para Nos. 39, 40, 41 and 42 which are extracted hereasunder:-

"39. Thus, it is now well settled that an amendment of a plaint and amendment of a written statement are not necessarily governed by exactly the same principle. It is true that some general principles are certainly common to both, but the rules that the plaintiff cannot be allowed to amend his pleadings so as to alter materially or substitute his cause of action or the nature of his claim has necessarily no counterpart in the law relating to amendment of the written statement. Adding a new ground of defence or substituting or altering a defence does not raise the same problem as adding, altering or substituting a new cause of action.

40. Accordingly, in the case of amendment of written statement, the courts are inclined to be more liberal in allowing amendment of the written statement than of plaint and question of prejudice is less likely to operate with same rigour in the former than in the latter case. Thus, by way of amendment alternate/inconsistent plea can be taken in the written statement.

41. So far as argument advanced from the side of the plaintiff-respondent that no necessity has been shown rather there is no pleading that why the amendment has been sought in the written statement is concerned, a plain and literal meaning to provisions of Order VI Rule 17 of CPC, shows that it enables the parties to amend a plaint or written statement and there is no necessity to plead that application for amendment could not be moved in spite of due diligence. Meaning thereby, provisions of Order VI Rule 17 of CPC does not prohibit to amend a plaint or written statement while considering the application for amendment, Courts have to see whether amendment is necessary to decide the real controversy and no prejudice and injustice is caused to other parties. Hence, the same has got no force, rejected.

42. One of the argument advanced in the matter is that by way of amendment, the admission made by the appellant/defendant will completely change the nature of defence taken by the defendant in the written statement. Even assuming that there was admission made by the appellant in his written statement then such admission can be explained by amendment of his written statement even by taking inconsistent pleas or substituting or altering his defence. As it is well settled law that an amendment of a plaint and amendment of a written statement are not necessarily governed by exactly the same principle. Additing a new ground of defence or substituting or altering a defence does not raise the same problem as adding altering, substituting a new cause of action. It is equally well settled that in the case of an amendment of a written statement, the Courts would be more liberal in allowing than that of a plaint as the question of prejudice would be far less in the former than in the later and addition of a new ground of defence or substituting or altering a defence or taking on consistent pleas in the written statement can also be allowed. (See Baldeo Singh and others v. Manohar Singh and another (2006) 6 SCC 498).

7. Sri Saurabh Srivastava, learned counsel appearing for plaintiff-respondent submitted that the sole purpose of filing the amendment application after lapse of 11 years was only to delay the proceedings before the court below, as the defendant-revisionist had already on three occasions had filed application under Order VII, Rule 11 C.P.C. which has been rejected. He next submitted that in para 3 of written statement there has been no denial to the averment made in para 2 of plaint wherein it has been specifically stated that after the execution of agreement between the parties the premises in question was let out at monthly rent of Rs.10,000/- which included Rs.5,000/- as rent and remaining Rs.5,000/- as maintenance charges. By the present amendment the revisionist was trying to introduce a totally new case which was never before the court for last 12 years. He relied upon decision of the Apex Court in case of S. Malla Reddy vs. Future Builders Cooperative Housing Society and others, (2013) 9 SCC 349 Para 27, which is extracted hereasunder:-

"27. Although the appellant-defendants filed the petition for striking out their own pleading i.e. written statement, labelling the petition as under Order 6 Rule 16 CPC, but in substance the application was dealt with as if under Order 6 Rule 17 CPC inasmuch as the trial court discussed the facts of the case and did not permit the defendants to substitute the written statement whereunder there was an admission of the suit claim of the plaintiff Society. The relevant portion of the order quoted hereinabove reveals that the trial court while rejecting the aforementioned petition held that the appellant-defendants cannot be allowed to substitute their earlier written statement filed in the suit whereunder there was an admission of the claim of the plaintiff Society (the respondent herein). Similarly in the revision filed by the defendants, the High Court considered all the decisions referred by the defendants on the issue as to whether the defendants can withdraw the admission made in the written statement and finally came to the conclusion that the appellant-defendants cannot be allowed to resile from the admission made in the written statement by taking recourse to Order 8 Rule 9 or Order 6 Rule 16 CPC by seeking to file a fresh written statement. In the aforesaid premises, filing of a fresh petition by the defendants under Order 6 Rule 17 CPC after about 13 years when the hearing of the suit had already commenced and some of the witnesses were examined, is wholly misconceived. The High Court in the impugned order has rightly held that filing of subsequent application for the same relief is an abuse of the process of the court. As noticed above, the relief sought for by the defendants in a subsequent petition under Order 6 Rule 17 CPC was elaborately dealt with on the two earlier petitions filed by the appellant-defendants under Order 6 Rule 16 and Order 8 Rule 9 CPC and, therefore, the subsequent petition filed by the defendants labelling the petition under Order 6 Rule 17 CPC is wholly misconceived and was not entertainable.

8. I have heard the rival submissions and perused the material on record.

9. The present proceedings arises out of the order passed by court below rejecting the amendment application. The legislature by amendment w.e.f. 01.07.2002 had inserted proviso to Order VI, Rule 17 which provides that no application for amendment shall be allowed after the trial has commenced, unless the court comes to conclusion that inspite of due diligence, the parties could not have raised the matter before commencement of trial. The said amendment was challenged before the Apex Court in the case of Salem Advocate Bar Association, T.N. vs. Union of India, (2005) 6 SCC 344, wherein the Apex Court while upholding the amending Act No. 22 of 2002 held as under:-

"26. Order 6 Rule 17 of the Code deals with amendment of pleadings. By Amendment Act 46 of 1999, this provision was deleted. It has again been restored by Amendment Act 22 of 2002 but with an added proviso to prevent application for amendment being allowed after the trial has commenced, unless the court comes to the conclusion that in spite of due diligence, the party could not have raised the matter before the commencement of trial. The proviso, to some extent, curtails absolute discretion to allow amendment at any stage. Now, if application is filed after commencement of trial, it has to be shown that in spite of due diligence, such amendment could not have been sought earlier. The object is to prevent frivolous applications which are filed to delay the trial. There is no illegality in the provision."

10. Thus, in the suit filed after 01.07.2002, once the trial commences the application for amendment cannot be allowed unless and until the court comes to conclusion that inspite of due diligence the parties could not have raised the matter before commencement of trial.

11. It is not in dispute that suit for arrears of rent and ejectment was filed in the year 2009 and written statement was filed in the year 2010. It is admitted to defendant-revisionist that oral statement of PW-1 was recorded on 17.09.2012. In the cross-examination no such question was put by defendant-revisionist as regards the rent at Rs.1,500/- and remaining amount as maintenance charges or taxes. Similarly, PW-2 was cross-examined on 17.12.2012 and in the cross-examination no such question was put to PW-2 by defendant-revisionist and it is only after 9 years that by way of an amendment that an application on 30.09.2021 has been moved by defendant-revisionist. Once the defendant-revisionist had cross-examined both PW-1 and PW-2, no question arises to introduce new fact after 9 years when the said plea was available with the defendant-revisionist who is the tenant of the occupation in question. The Apex Court while dealing with the issue of amendment of pleading, especially the amendment of written statement had held that such amendment can be allowed in a written statement but once the trial commences the same is not permitted.

12. In Baldev Singh and others vs. Manohar Singh and another, (2006) 6 SCC 498, the Apex Court held as under:-

"9. Keeping this principle in mind, let us now consider the provisions relating to amendment of pleadings. Order 6 Rule 17 of the Code of Civil Procedure deals with amendment of pleadings which provides that the court may at any stage of the proceedings allow either party to alter or amend his pleadings in such manner and on such terms as may be just, and all such amendments shall be made as may be necessary for the purpose of determining the real questions in controversy between the parties. From a bare perusal of this provision, it is pellucid that Order 6 Rule 17 of the Code of Civil Procedure consists of two parts. The first part is that the court may at any stage of the proceedings allow either party to amend his pleadings and the second part is that such amendment shall be made for the purpose of determining the real controversies raised between the parties. Therefore, in view of the provisions made under Order 6 Rule 17 CPC it cannot be doubted that wide power and unfettered discretion has been conferred on the court to allow amendment of the pleadings to a party in such manner and on such terms as it appears to the court just and proper. While dealing with the prayer for amendment, it would also be necessary to keep in mind that the court shall allow amendment of pleadings if it finds that delay in disposal of suit can be avoided and that the suit can be disposed of expeditiously. By the Code of Civil Procedure (Amendment) Act, 2002 a proviso has been added to Order 6 Rule 17 which restricts the courts from permitting an amendment to be allowed in the pleadings of either of the parties, if at the time of filing an application for amendment, the trial has already commenced. However, the court may allow amendment if it is satisfied that in spite of due diligence, the party could not have raised the matter before the commencement of trial. So far as proviso to Order 6 Rule 17 of the Code of Civil Procedure is concerned, we shall deal with it later.

13. In view of this decision, it can be said that the plea of limitation can be allowed to be raised as an additional defence by the appellants. Accordingly, we do not find any reason as to why amendment of the written statement introducing an additional plea of limitation could not be allowed. The next question is that if such amendment is allowed, certain admissions made would be allowed to be taken away which is not permissible in law. We have already examined the statements made in the written statement as well as the amendment sought for in the application for amendment of the written statement. After going through the written statement and the application for amendment of the written statement in depth, we do not find any such admission of the appellants which was sought to be withdrawn by way of amending the written statement.

14. As noted hereinearlier, the case set up by the plaintiff-Respondent 1 was that his parents had no money to purchase the suit property and it was the plaintiff-Respondent 1 who paid the consideration money. In the written statement, this fact was denied and further it was asserted in the written statement that the suit property was in fact purchased by their parents and they had sufficient income of their own. In the application for amendment of written statement it was stated that the plaintiff-Respondent 1 did not have any income to pay the consideration money of the suit property and in fact the parents of the plaintiff-Respondent 1 had sufficient income to pay the sale price. It was only pointed out in the application for amendment that after the death of their parents, the suit property was mutated in the joint names of the plaintiff-Respondent 1 and the defendants in equal shares. Therefore, the question whether certain admissions made in the written statement were sought to be withdrawn is concerned, we find, as noted hereinearlier, there was no admission in the written statement from which it could be said that by filing an application for amendment of the written statement, the appellants had sought to withdraw such admission. It is true that in the original written statement, a statement has been made that it is Defendant-Appellant 1 who is the owner and is in continuous possession of the suit property, but in our view, the powers of the court are wide enough to permit amendment of the written statement by incorporating an alternative plea of ownership in the application for amendment of the written statement. That apart, in our view, the facts stated in the application for amendment were in fact an elaboration of the defence case. Accordingly, we are of the view that the High Court as well as the trial court had erred in rejecting the application for amendment of the written statement on the ground that in the event such amendment was allowed, it would take away some admissions made by the defendant-appellants in their written statement. That apart, in Estralla Rubber v. Dass Estate (P) Ltd. [(2001) 8 SCC 97] this Court held that even if there were some admissions in the evidence as well as in the written statement, it was still open to the parties to explain the same by way of filing an application for amendment of the written statement. That apart, mere delay of three years in filing the application for amendment of the written statement could not be a ground for rejection of the same when no serious prejudice is shown to have been caused to the plaintiff-Respondent 1 so as to take away any accrued right.

17. Before we part with this order, we may also notice that proviso to Order 6 Rule 17 CPC provides that amendment of pleadings shall not be allowed when the trial of the suit has already commenced. For this reason, we have examined the records and find that, in fact, the trial has not yet commenced. It appears from the records that the parties have yet to file their documentary evidence in the suit. From the record, it also appears that the suit was not on the verge of conclusion as found by the High Court and the trial court. That apart, commencement of trial as used in proviso to Order 6 Rule 17 in the Code of Civil Procedure must be understood in the limited sense as meaning the final hearing of the suit, examination of witnesses, filing of documents and addressing of arguments. As noted hereinbefore, parties are yet to file their documents, we do not find any reason to reject the application for amendment of the written statement in view of proviso to Order 6 Rule 17 CPC which confers wide power and unfettered discretion to the court to allow an amendment of the written statement at any stage of the proceedings."

13. In Ajendraprasadji N. Pandey and another vs. Swami Keshavprkeshdasji N. and others, (2006) 12 SCC 1, the Apex Court held as under:-

"59. In the instant case, the appeal was filed in the second round on 9-10-2002 as could be seen from the dates and events mentioned in the counter-affidavit. Special leave petition in this Court was filed on 7-7-2004. Additional written statement has been filed on 24-11-2005. Delay in filing the additional written statement from 9-10-2002 to 24-11-2005. From 9-10-2002, the matters sought to be introduced by the defendant by way of additional written statement was known to the defendant-appellant. The application in respect of additional written statement does not make an unequivocal averment as to due diligence. The averment only reads as follows:

"Under the circumstances, the facts which were submitted in the said appeal from order before the High Court and the facts which are now being submitted in the present application could not be submitted before this Court in spite of utmost care taken by the defendants."

60. The above averment, in our opinion, does not satisfy the requirement of Order 6 Rule 17 without giving the particulars which would satisfy the requirement of law that the matters now sought to be introduced by the amendment could not have been raised earlier in spite of due diligence. As held by this Court in Kailash v. Nanhku [(2005) 4 SCC 480] the trial is deemed to commence when the issues are settled and the case is set down for recording of evidence.

61. We can also usefully refer to the judgment of this Court in Baldev Singh v. Manohar Singh [(2006) 6 SCC 498] for the same proposition. A perusal of the proposed amendment would show that it contains numerous averments. So far as the averments in the proposed amendments are concerned, at p. 12 of the order in para 22, the appellants admit that all the issues raised by way of proposed amendment in the written statement were taken before this Court in the appeal from order filed by the present defendants in the civil appeal filed before this Court and again in the special leave petition filed subsequently. As rightly pointed out by learned Senior Counsel, any section should not be so interpreted that part of it becomes otiose and meaningless and very often a proviso itself is read as a substantive provision it has to be given full effect."

14. In Vidyabai and others vs. Padmalatha and another, (2009) 2 SCC 409, the Apex Court categorically held that proviso to Order VI, Rule 17 is couched in a mandatory form, and court's jurisdiction to allow such an application is taken away unless the conditions precedent therefor are satisfied. Relevant Paras 10, 11 and 19 are extracted hereasunder:-

"10. By reason of the Civil Procedure Code (Amendment) Act, 2002 (Act 22 of 2002), Parliament inter alia inserted a proviso to Order 6 Rule 17 of the Code, which reads as under:

"Provided that no application for amendment shall be allowed after the trial has commenced, unless the court comes to the conclusion that in spite of due diligence, the party could not have raised the matter before the commencement of trial."

It is couched in a mandatory form. The court's jurisdiction to allow such an application is taken away unless the conditions precedent therefor are satisfied viz. it must come to a conclusion that in spite of due diligence the parties could not have raised the matter before the commencement of the trial.

11. From the order passed by the learned trial Judge, it is evident that the respondents had not been able to fulfil the said precondition. The question, therefore, which arises for consideration is as to whether the trial had commenced or not. In our opinion, it did. The date on which the issues are framed is the date of first hearing. Provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure envisage taking of various steps at different stages of the proceeding. Filing of an affidavit in lieu of examination-in-chief of the witness, in our opinion, would amount to "commencement of proceeding".

19. It is the primal duty of the court to decide as to whether such an amendment is necessary to decide the real dispute between the parties. Only if such a condition is fulfilled, the amendment is to be allowed. However, proviso appended to Order 6 Rule 17 of the Code restricts the power of the court. It puts an embargo on exercise of its jurisdiction. The court's jurisdiction, in a case of this nature is limited. Thus, unless the jurisdictional fact, as envisaged therein, is found to be existing, the court will have no jurisdiction at all to allow the amendment of the plaint."

15. Similarly, dealing with amendment of written statement in Sushil Kumar Jain vs Manoj Kumar and another, (2009) 14 SCC 38, the Apex Court held that the principle of amendment of a plaint and a written statement are not necessarily governed by exactly the same principle. In a case of amendment of written statement the courts would be liberal in allowing than that of a plaint as the question of prejudice would be far less but the court held that once the trial has commenced the proviso to Order VI, Rule 17 would be applicable.

16. The Court relied upon the earlier decision of Apex Court in case of Panchdeo Narain Srivastava vs. K. Jyoti Sahay, 1984 Supplementary SCC 594 wherein it was held that admission made by a party may be withdrawn or may be explained, but the court was clear of the view that the benefit could not be extended in case of commencement of trial.

17. In Ram Niranjan Kajaria vs. Sheo Prakash Kajaria and others, (2015) 10 SCC 203, the Apex Court relying upon its earlier judgment held as under:-

"20. On amendments generally, in the decision reported in Revajeetu Builders and Developers v. Narayanaswamy and Sons (2009) 10 SCC 84, after referring to Gautam Sarup [Gautam Sarup v. Leela Jetly, (2008) 7 SCC 85], the principles on amendment have been summarised at para 63. It has been held as follows: (Revajeetu Builders case (2009) 10 SCC 84, SCC p. 102)

"63. On critically analysing both the English and Indian cases, some basic principles emerge which ought to be taken into consideration while allowing or rejecting the application for amendment:

(1) whether the amendment sought is imperative for proper and effective adjudication of the case;

(2) whether the application for amendment is bona fide or mala fide;

(3) the amendment should not cause such prejudice to the other side which cannot be compensated adequately in terms of money;

(4) refusing amendment would in fact lead to injustice or lead to multiple litigation;

(5) whether the proposed amendment constitutionally or fundamentally changes the nature and character of the case; and

(6) as a general rule, the court should decline amendments if a fresh suit on the amended claims would be barred by limitation on the date of application.

These are some of the important factors which may be kept in mind while dealing with application filed under Order 6 Rule 17. These are only illustrative and not exhaustive."

*22. Delay in itself may not be crucial on an application for amendment in a written statement, be it for introduction of a new fact or for explanation or clarification of an admission or for taking an alternate position. It is seen that the issues have been framed in the case before us, only in 2009. The nature and character of the amendment and the other circumstances as in the instant case which we have referred to above, are relevant while considering the delay and its consequence on the application for amendment. But a party cannot be permitted to wholly withdraw the admission in the pleadings, as held by this Court in Nagindas Ramdas v.

Dalpatram Ichharam [(1974) 1 SCC 242] . To quote para 27: (SCC pp. 251-52)

"27. From a conspectus of the cases cited at the Bar, the principle that emerges is, that if at the time of the passing of the decree, there was some material before the Court, on the basis of which, the Court could [Ed.: The word "could" has been emphasised in original.] be prima facie satisfied, about the existence of a statutory ground for eviction, it will be presumed that the Court was so satisfied and the decree for eviction though apparently passed on the basis of a compromise, would be valid. Such material may take the shape either of evidence recorded or produced in the case, or, it may partly or wholly be in the shape of an express or implied admission made in the compromise agreement, itself. Admissions, if true and clear, are by far the best proof of the facts admitted. Admissions in pleadings or judicial admissions, admissible under Section 58 of the Evidence Act, made by the parties or their agents at or before the hearing of the case, stand on a higher footing than evidentiary admissions. The former class of admissions are fully binding on the party that makes them and constitute a waiver of proof. They by themselves can be made the foundation of the rights of the parties. On the other hand, evidentiary admissions which are receivable at the trial as evidence, are by themselves, not conclusive. They can be shown to be wrong." (emphasis supplied)

23. We agree with the position in Nagindas Ramdas [(1974) 1 SCC 242] and as endorsed in Gautam Sarup [Gautam Sarup v. Leela Jetly, (2008) 7 SCC 85] that a categorical admission made in the pleadings cannot be permitted to be withdrawn by way of an amendment. To that extent, the proposition of law that even an admission can be withdrawn, as held in Panchdeo Narain Srivastava[Panchdeo Narain Srivastava v. Jyoti Sahay, 1984 Supp SCC 594] , does not reflect the correct legal position and it is overruled.

24. However, the admission can be clarified or explained by way of amendment and the basis of admission can be attacked in substantive proceedings. In this context, we are also mindful of the averment in the application for amendment that:

"11. ... Mahabir Prasad Kajaria died at the age of 24 years on 7-5-1949 when Defendant 5 was only 2 years and Defendant 12 was only 21 years. Till the death of Mahabir and even thereafter, the petitioners had been getting benefits from income of the joint properties. Defendant 5 and his two sisters, namely, Kusum and Bina were brought up and were maintained from the income of the joint family properties. The petitioners after the death of Mahabir, they continued to live in the joint family as members and till now as members of the joint family. In the marriage of the two sisters of Defendant 5 Kusum and Bina (now after marriage Smt Kusum Tulsian and Smt Bina Tulsian) the expenses were wholly borne out from the incomes of the joint family properties. The said facts are well known to all the family members and their relations."

18. Thus, position which comes out from the above decisions of Apex Court are that after validity of Act No. 22 of 2002 was upheld in case of Salem Advocate Bar Association (supra), the court has to take note of the fact that once the trial is commenced which includes the framing of charges, statement of witnesses, filing of documentary evidences and hearing of the suit that amendment in the pleadings cannot be ordinarily allowed and only when the courts come to conclusion that despite due diligence the parties could not have raised the matter before commencement of trial that such applications can be allowed. In the present case, it is admitted to both the parties that PW-1 was cross-examined on 17.09.2012 while PW-2 was cross-examined on 17.12.2012 and amendment being sought through the application was available to defendant-revisionist at that time but no such question was put to plaintiff witnesses 1 and 2. The application filed at the behest of defendant-revisionist after a lapse of 9 years from recording of statement itself is an ample proof that it has been filed to delay the matter.

19. The S.C.C. Suit has been filed in the year 2009 and after 12 years the application for amendment of written statement is being sought.

20. Moreover, Order VIII, Rule 5 mandates that denial should be specific, and every allegation of fact in the plaint if not denied specifically or by necessary implication, or stated to be not admitted in the pleading of defendant shall be taken to be admitted. There is a specific averment in Para 2 of plaint as to quantum of rent and maintenance charges. In Para 3 of written statement there is no denial to the said fact nor the defendant-revisionist has stated that he is not admitting the averment of the plaint. The only statement made is that it is for the plaintiff to prove the allegations made in the said paragraphs, meaning thereby that the averment has been admitted by defendant-revisionist.

21. If the rent was not admitted to defendant and by mistake in the pleading it was not denied, he had the opportunity to cross-examine the plaintiff witnesses in regard to quantum of rent and maintenance charges, which he failed to do so.

22. Considering the facts and circumstances of the case, this Court finds that no interference is made out in the order impugned dated 19.10.2021 rejecting the amendment application of defendant-revisionist filed under Order VI, Rule 17 C.P.C.

23. Revision lacks merit and is hereby dismissed.

B. At this stage, probative value of the materials has to be gone into and the court is not to expected to go deep into the matter and hold that the materials would not warrant a conviction. if the court thinks that the accused might have committed the offence the basis of the materials on record on its probative value, it can frame the charge, though for conviction, the court has to come to the conclusion that the accused has committed the offence. The law does not permit a mini trial at this stage.(Para 29)

"WHEREFORE, it is most respectfully prayed that this Hon'ble Court may graciously be pleased to pass an order thereby quashing the impugned charge-sheet as well as cognizance/ summoning order including order dated 11.02.2020, passed by learned 2nd Additional Civil Judge (JD) Judicial Magistrate Bahraich in Criminal Case No. 23/2015 arising out of Case Crime No. 666/2013 U/s 419/420/467/468/471. I.P.C P.S. Huzoorpur, District Bahraich, pending in the court of 2nd Additional Civil Judge (JD)/Judicial Magistrate Bahraich and also to quash the order dated 20.02.2021 passed by Learned Revisional Court / 6th Additional Session Judge, Bahraich, (contained as Annexure no 1, 2, 10 &12 of petition) in order to meet the ends of justice."

2. It has been submitted by learned counsel for the petitioners Sri Salil Kumar Srivastava Assisted by Sri S. S. Chubey that the petitioners have been falsely implicated and the offence has not been made out in the evidence that has been collected by the Investigating Officer regarding the Sections under which charge sheet has been submitted to the VIIth Additional Civil Judge(Junior Division) Judicial Magistrate, Behraich in Criminal Case No. 23 of 2015, when the case was initially inquired into by the Investigating Officer, he submitted a final report in the Court but before the Court could pass any order thereon, the Superintendent of Police directed further investigation in the matter without jurisdiction and entrusted the inquiry/investigation to another police officer who took the statement of only the Branch Manager of the Bank concerned and filed a charge sheet in Court of which cognizance was taken by the learned trial court without application of mind.

3. The petitioners approached this Court initially by filing a petition challenging the FIR regarding to Case Crime No. 666 of 2013 under Sections 419, 420, 467, 468, 470, 471, 409, 323, 504, 506 I.P.C. Police Station Huzoorpur Distric Bahraich. This Court passed an order staying the arrest of the petitioners in Writ Petitioner No. 10783(MB) of 2013, till the report is submitted under Section 173 to the Court concerned.

4. Learned counsel for the petitioners submitted that the earlier Investigating Officer had recorded the statement of various witnesses including the complainant Rafique Ahmad as also Fakaroo, Mohd. Sabir, Rajjab and others under Section 161 of the Cr.P.C. and on the basis of evidence collected, he had recorded a categorical finding that no case for which the FIR was lodged can be said to have been made out. The Investigating Officer had also recorded a finding that since all the documents pertaining to the alleged forgery in original are in possession of Economic Offence Wing where the investigation is in progress, as such filing of charge sheet in the absence of documentary evidence is unwarranted. Resultantly, final report was filed by the earlier Investigating Officer.

5. Without taking permission of the Court under Section 173 (3) of the Cr.P.C. further investigation was directed by the Superintendent of Police and then an other Investigation Officer was entrusted with the job.

6. Learned counsel for the petitioner has pointed out paragraph 33 of the petition to say that superior officers of the police by invocation power under Section 173 (3) of the Cr.P.C. could not have directed further investigation and that power is reserved only with the Court and can be exercised pending the order of the Magistrate if an application for further investigation is made to the Magistrate, during consideration of such application, the superior officer of the police is empowered under Section 173 (3) Cr.P.C. to make further investigation, keeping in view the exigency of the situation.

7. Learned counsel for the petitioners submits that such orders could not have been passed by the superior officers of the police and it is being challenged by means of this petition.

8. Learned counsel for the petitioner further submitted that a charge sheet filed by the subsequent Investigating Officer upon which cognizance has been taken is also been challenged on the ground that the Investigating Officer has recorded the statement of only one witness namely, Ghanshyam Tripathi in the capacity of Branch Manager, who had not said anything in respect of forgery and cheating.

9. Learned counsel for the petitioners repeatedly stated that all the documentary evidence with regard to forgery is with the Economic Offences Wing and therefore charge sheet could not have been filed with out documentary evidence. However, learned counsel for the petitioner admits that on subsequent investigation the second Investigation Officer had recorded that no such case in respect of Section 409, 323, 504, 506 IPC were made out. He recorded a finding that offences only under Section 419, 420, 467, 468, 471 IPC are made out.

10. It has been submitted by the learned counsel for the petitioners that they again approached this Court by filing Criminal Misc. Case No. 2564 of 2016 under Section 482 of the Cr.P.C. which was disposed of by this Court by its order dated 30.07.2019 directing the petitioners to move appropriate discharge application through counsel before the court concerned and directed that such discharge application shall be considered within the time prescribed by the Court. The petitioner, thereafter, moved an application under Section 239 for discharge before the Magistrate concerned, which has been rejected by the order dated 11.02.2020 without application of judicial mind and without considering the material available in the case diary.

11. It has been further submitted by the learned counsel for the petitioners that the petitioners preferred a Criminal Revision No. 43 of 2020, namely, Rahimunnisha & another Vs. State of U.P. & another assailing the order passed by the learned Magistrate whereby he had rquired the application for discharge. The revisional court/Sixth Additional Sessions Judge, Behraich also rejected the revision.

12. It has been further submitted that the petitioner no.1 is a Safai Karmi and petitioner no.2 is a retired teacher he is blind and suffering from eyes trouble since 2010 and they have been erroneously and falsely implicated by the opposite party no.2.

13. Learned counsel for the petitioner has placed reliance upon the judgement rendered by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in, "Dilawar Balu Kurane vs. State of Maharashtra 2002 (2) SCC 135" to say that application of judicial mind is necessary while considering an order which is challenged. Learned counsel for the petitioner has placed reliance upon paragraph 4 of the judgement which in fact has been borrowed by the Hon'ble Supreme Court from its earlier judgement, "Union of India vs. Prafulla Kumar Samal 1979 (3) SCC 5".

14. It has been also argued by the learned counsel for the petitioners that a specific query was made by this Court when the case was taken up as fresh on 02.09.2021 to the learned AGA to seek instructions as to how initially final report was filed, then without intimating the learned Magistrate, further investigation was conducted by the police itself which was violation of Section 173 (3) Cr.P.C.

15. In the end after arguing for more than one hour, it has been submitted by the learned counsel for the petitioners that he has been served a copy of the counter affidavit filed by the opposite party no. 2 and he may be given time to file a rejoinder affidavit to the same. This submission was made at a time when a detailed hearing had already taken place and this Court was convinced that it was not a case under Section 173 (3) of the Cr.P.C. as it had come out from the record itself i.e. from the charge sheet submitted by the second Investigating Officer that a report regarding no case being made out was initially submitted by the first Investigating Officer to the Circle Officer concerned of the Police Station Huzoorpur. The Circle Officer had directed further investigation and entrusted the investigation to another Sub-Inspector. This fact has come out from the charge sheet itself that no final report/ finding was ever submitted to the learned trial court.

16. This Court has perused Section 173 of the Cr.P.C. on which the reliance has been placed by the learned counsel for the petitioners. Section 73 in its entirety is being quoted herein below:-

"173. Report of police officer on completion of investigation.

(1) Every investigation under this Chapter shall be completed without unnecessary delay.

(2) (i) As soon as it is completed, the officer in charge of the police station shall forward to a Magistrate empowered to take cognizance of the offence on a police report, a report in the form prescribed by the State Government, stating-

(a) the names of the parties;

(b) the nature of the information;

(c) the names of the persons who appear to be acquainted with the circumstances of the case;

(d) whether any offence appears to have been committed and, if so, by whom;

(e) whether the accused has been arrested;

(f) whether he has been released on his bond and, if so, weather with or without sureties;

(g) whether he has been forwarded in custody under section 170.

(ii) The officer shall also communicate, In such manner as may be prescribed by the State Government, the action taken by him, to the person, if any, by whom the information relating to the commission of the offence was first given.

(3) Where a superior officer of police has been appointed under section 158, the report shall, in any case in which the State Government by general or special order so directs, be submitted through that officer, and he may, pending the orders of the Magistrate, direct the officer in charge of the police station to make further investigation,

(4) Whenever it appears from a report forwarded under this section that the accused has been released on his bond, the Magistrate shall make such order- for the discharge of such bond or otherwise as he thinks fit.

(5) When such report is in respect of a case to which section 170 applies, the police officer shall forward to the Magistrate alongwith the report-

(a) all documents or relevant extracts thereof on which the prosecution proposes to rely other than those already sent to the Magistrate during investigation;

(b) the statements- recorded under section 161 of all the persons whom the prosecution proposes to examine as its witnesses.

(6) If the police officer is of opinion that any part of any such statement is not relevant to the subject- matter of the proceedings or that its disclosure to the accused is not essential in the interests of justice and is inexpedient in the public interest, he shall indicate that part of the statement and append a note requesting the Magistrate to exclude that part from the copies to be granted to the accused and stating his reasons for making such request.

(7) Where the police officer investigating the case finds it convenient so to do, he may furnish to the accused copies of all or any of the documents referred to in sub-section (5).

(8) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to preclude further investigation in respect of an offence after a report under sub-section (2) has been forwarded to the Magistrate and, where upon such investigation, the officer in charge of the police station obtains further evidence, oral or documentary, he shall forward to the Magistrate a further report or reports regarding such evidence in the form prescribed; and the provisions of sub- sections (2) to (6) shall, as far as may be, apply in relation to such report or reports as they apply in relation to a report forwarded under sub- section (2)."

17. It is evident from a perusal of Section 173 of the Cr.P.C. that is only when a report is submitted to the Magistrate concerned, and superior officer of the police finds that some further investigation is necessary, pending the orders of the Magistrate on the final report submitted, such superior officer can direct the Officer Incharge of the police station to make further investigation.

18. It is not the case of the petitioners that the police report was ever submitted before the Magistrate concerned, only the finding was recorded by the Investigating Officer in the case diary that since documentary evidence that was proposed to be relied upon was with the Economic Offences Wing, without original documents being there on record, he could not come to any conclusion regarding forgery being committed by the petitioners. The Circle Officer on submission of such report had decided that the matter required further investigation and a second Investigating Officer was appointed. The second Investigating Officer thereafter submitted a charge sheet in court.

19. It is relevant to note, in this case that after charge sheet was submitted to the learned trial court, the petitioners approached this Court challenging the charge sheet as well as cognizance taken thereon, and the entire criminal proceedings initiated on the basis of FIR. The Court rejected the contention raised by the learned counsel for the petitioners in its judgement and order dated 30.07.2019, which has been filed as annexure-09 to the petition.

20. Once this Court has rejected the challenge to the charge sheet, such a challenge could not be entertained afresh, even though learned counsel for the petitioners has argued upon the merit on the charge sheet before this Court again while arguing this petition. This Court is only concerned with the merits of the order passed on discharge application under Section 227 of the Cr.P.C. and also the order passed by the Sixth Additional Sessions Judge, Behraich rejecting the revision of the petitioners.

21. This Court has perused the order dated 11.02.2020 passed by the learned Magistrate on the discharge application moved by the petitioners. Learned Magistrate in the first two paragraphs of his order dated 11.02.2020 had noted that the petitioners in their discharge application have stated that the age of the petitioner no.1, namely, Rahimunnisha had been shown to be more than 60 years, on the basis of entry in the parivar register, on the basis of which she was being given old age pension and that the earlier Investigating Officer could not find evidence, and therefore submitted a final report, but further investigation was directed and the second Investigating Officer, thereafter, filed charge sheet without any evidence being available against the petitioner.

22. Learned trial court, thereafter, recorded the submission of the Public Prosecutor that the application for discharge was misconceived and should be rejected. Learned trial court has recorded its finding thereafter, saying that from a perusal of the paper book, it was evident that an application under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. was filed by one Rafique Ahmad, on which the trial court had directed Police Station Huzoorpur to register FIR and to investigate. After investigation charge sheet was submitted under Section 419, 420, 467, 468, 471 IPC. The applicants had argued that none of these sections were made out for the alleged offence, if any committed by them. The trial court, thereafter, observed that petition under Section 482 Cr.P.C., namely, Petition No. 2564 of 2016 had been filed by Rahimunnisha and Another where the High Court had rejected the contention in its order dated 30.07.2019 directing the petitioner to approach the learned trial court by moving discharge application which was to be decided within time as prescribed by the Court in its order. The learned trial court thereafter, observed that it is a settled law that for considering the discharge application only the facts as mentioned in the papers submitted by the prosecution had to be looked into. The sufficiency of the evidence could not be taken into account but only the prima facie case has to be shown to be made out by the prosecution.

23. Learned trial court, thereafter, observed that evidence cannot be analyzed at the stage of considering the discharge application. The case diary and the materials submitted alongwith the charge sheet had already been considered and cognizance taken by the court. Prima facie a case under Section 419, 420, 467, 468, 471 IPC was made out from the charge sheet. Learned trial Court, thereafter, rejecting the discharge application by its order dated 11.02.2020. The petitioners, thereafter, filed the Revision No. 43 of 2020.

24. This Court has considered the order passed by the learned Additional District and Sessions Judge dated 20.02.2021. The Revisional Court has first noted the arguments made by the counsel for the revisionist and also analyzed the papers on record, wherein the complaint/application under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. had stated that the petitioners were husband and wife, and petitioner no.1 was shown in the parivar register of the year 1995-1996, as having been born in 1940, and therefore, more than 60 years of age, and on the basis of such overwriting a medical certificate of a Doctor was filed, on the basis of which the petitioner no.1 was getting Old Age Pension for several years. The Shrawasti Gramin Bank Branch at Huzoorpur had shown in its Ledger on page dated 23.12.2005, at serial no. 138, the name of Rahimunnisha and Account No. 2446 wherein Rahimunnisha continued to draw Old Age Pension w.e.f. 2005, onward. Thereafter, the accused Rahimunnisha managed to get a different entry of Date of Birth mentioned in the Parivar Register as 1974 and showed herself to be 40 years of age on 01.07.2007, and took up service as Safai Karmi. The accused Rahimunnisha in fact had been drawing pension showing her age to be more than 60 years for several years before she showed herself to be 40 years of age and started working as Safai Karmi.

25. Certain allegations had been made in the application under Section 156 Cr.P.C. relating to the applicant being beaten up by the duo, husband and wife, and some money being taken out of his purse at one point of time, and being annoyed of which he had filed the application under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. before the learned trial Court. Learned revisional court, thereafter, noted the arguments raised by the learned counsel for the petitioners regarding the earlier Investigating Officer, namely, Mr. Ram Chand Singh not finding any evidence against the accused and the superior police officers rejecting the final report on their own and directing further investigation giving it to a second Investigating Officer, namely, Mr. Ram Murat Yadav. Mr. Ram Murat Yadav contacted the Gramin Bank Branch at Huzurpur and the Manager Ghanshyam Tripathi gave evidence regarding pension being deposited in the account of petitioner no.1 and after such deposit the same being withdrawn by Rahimunnisha.

26. The Revisional Court referred to the writ petition filed for quashing of FIR and the order passed thereon and also the petition filed under Section 482 of the Cr.P.C. and the observations made by the Court regarding the right of the accused to file appropriate discharge application. The Revisional Court considered the fact that there was evidence on record of the petitioner no.1 drawing Old Age Pension from the Bank account concerned, and thereafter working as Safai Karmi. The Revisional Court, thereafter, observed that under Section 239 Cr.P.C., the duty of the trial court is that of considering the discharge application, if any, moved by the accused and passing appropriate orders thereon, under Section 240 Cr.P.C. The trial court after hearing the accused and coming to the conclusion that prima facie case had been made out for framing of charge had thereafter framed charges against such accused. Learned trial court had considered the discharge application on its merit and also the charge sheet and had come to the conclusion that prima facie case had been made out against the petitioner.

27. The revisional court also referred to the settled law with regard to the duty of the trial court and the scope of exercise of its power while considering a discharge application. The revisional court also considered the arguments raised by the learned counsel for the petitioners that the original documents relating to irregularity in distribution of Old Age Pension were with the Economic Offences Wing, and therefore, the charge sheet could not have been filed on the basis of photo copies of such documents, and observed that it is only at the time of considering of evidence on detailed trial that original documents would be necessary and they can then be called for by the learned trial court concerned.

28. This Court has considered the submissions made by the learned counsel for the petitioners with regard to the judgement rendered by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Dilawar Balu Kurane (Supra), no doubt, the Hon'ble Supreme Court has observed in paragraph 12 as follows:-

"Now the next question is whether a prima facie case has been made out against the appellant. In exercising powers under Section 227 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, the settled position of law is that the Judge while considering the question of framing the charges under the said section has the undoubted power to sift and weigh the evidence for the limited purpose of finding out whether or not a prima facie case against the accused has been made out; where the materials placed before the court disclose grave suspicion against the accused which has not been properly explained the court will be fully justified in framing a charge and proceeding with the trial; by and large if two views are equally possible and the Judge is satisfied that the evidence produced before him while giving rise to some suspicion but not grave suspicion against the accused, he will be fully justified to discharge the accused, and in exercising jurisdiction under Section 227 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, the Judge cannot act merely as a post office or a mouthpiece of the prosecution, but has to consider the broad probabilities of the case, the total effect of the evidence and the documents produced before the court but should not make a roving enquiry into the pros and cons of the matter and weigh the evidence as if he was conducting a trial [See Union of India versus Prafulla Kumar Samal & Another (1979 3 SCC 5)]"

29. However the entire law on the subject has been considered and retreated, thereafter, in the judgement render by the Hon'ble Supreme Court State of Rajasthan Vs. Ashok Kumar Kashyap, 2021 SCC Online SC 314 Where the Supreme Court has observed as follows:-

"24. In the recent decision of this Court in the case of M.R. Hiremath (supra), one of us (Justice D.Y. Chandrachud) speaking for the Bench has observed and held in paragraph 25 as under:

25. The High Court ought to have been cognizant of the fact that the trial court was dealing with an application for discharge under the provisions of Section 239 CrPC. The parameters which govern the exercise of this jurisdiction have found expression in several decisions of this Court. It is a settled principle of law that at the stage of considering an application for discharge the court must proceed on the assumption that the material which has been brought on the record by the prosecution is true and evaluate the material in order to determine whether the facts emerging from the material, taken on its face value, disclose the existence of the ingredients necessary to constitute the offence. In State of T.N. v. N. Suresh Rajan [State of T.N. v. N. Suresh Rajan, (2014) 11 SCC 709, adverting to the earlier decisions on the subject, this Court held: (SCC pp. 721-22, para 29)

"29.....At this stage, probative value of the materials has to be gone into and the court is not expected to go deep into the matter and hold that the materials would not warrant a conviction. In our opinion, what needs to be considered is whether there is a ground for presuming that the offence has been committed and not whether a ground for convicting the accused has been made out. To put it differently, if the court thinks that the accused might have committed the offence the basis of the materials on record on its probative value, it can frame the charge; though for conviction, the court has to come to the conclusion that the accused has committed the offence. The law does not permit a mini trial at this stage.

25. We shall now apply the principles enunciated above to the present case in order to find out whether in the facts and circumstances of the case, the High Court was justified in discharging the accused for the offence under Section 7 of the PC Act.

26. Having considered the reasoning given by the High Court and the grounds which are weighed with the High Court while discharging the accused, we are of the opinion that the High Court has exceeded in its jurisdiction in exercise of the revisional Jurisdiction and has acted beyond the scope of Section 227/239 Cr.P.C. While discharging the accused, the High Court has gone into the merits of the case and has considered whether on the basis of the material on record, the accused is likely to be convicted or not.-----As rightly observed and held by the learned Special Judge at the stage of framing of the charge, it has to be seen whether or not a prima facie case is made out and the defence of the accused is not to be considered.------ As observed hereinabove, the High Court was required to consider whether a prima facie case has been made out or not and whether the accused is required to be further tried or not. At the stage of framing of the charge and/or considering the discharge application, the mini trial is not permissible."

30. Accordingly, this Court does not find any infirmity in the orders impugned. This petition stands rejected.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Rajesh Singh Chauhan, J.)

1. Heard Sri Indresh Kumar Mishra, learned counsel for the petitioners and Sri Ran Vijay Singh, learned Additional Government Advocate for the State.

2. By means of this petition filed under Section 482 Cr.P.C., the petitioners have prayed for quashing the Charge-sheet No.128 of 2020 dated 17.03.2020 arising out of Case Crime No.647 of 2018, under Sections 147, 304 & 506 I.P.C. relating to Police Station-Kotwali City Hardoi, as well as the summoning order and also the entire proceeding of Criminal Case No.18362 of 2020 (State vs. Ashish Shukla @ Kallu & others) pending in the Court of the learned Chief Judicial Magistrate, District-Hardoi.

3. On the first date of admission, a pure legal question was argued to the effect that when the appropriate alleged overt act has been committed at Delhi, as to how the investigation can be carried out at Hardoi and pursuant to such investigation as to how the charge-sheet can be filed at Hardoi. Since the charge-sheet was filed at Hardoi, therefore, the cognizance was taken by the learned court below at Hardoi.

4. So learned counsel for the petitioners has submitted that the entire proceedings, investigation and the cognizance order in the present case is nullity in the eyes of law, therefore, the same may be quashed. For this reason, no notice was issued to the private opposite party i.e. opposite party No.2.

5. Since the aforesaid legal question is being dealt with, therefore, notice to opposite party No.2 is hereby dispensed with as no prejudice is being caused him by this order.

6. The brief facts of the present case are that one First Information Report (in short F.I.R.) was lodged bearing Case Crime No./0647 of 2018, under Sections 147, 304 & 506 I.P.C., at Police Station-Kotwali City, District-Hardoi for the incidence dated 15.09.2018 which admittedly took place at Delhi.

7. On account of prosecution story narrated in the F.I.R., the present petitioners and three other persons have assaulted/ beaten the brother of the informant mercilessly at Delhi, resultant thereof, his brother sustained serious injuries at Delhi. Thereafter, the victim got admitted in the Hospital at Delhi on the same day i.e. 15.09.2018 and after being recovered at Delhi, he came to his home at District-Hardoi and informed the informant about the date of incidence which took place on 15.09.2018 at Delhi and in the meantime he (victim) again felt ill and he was got admitted in the Hospital at Hardoi where he expired on 26.09.2018.

8. Learned counsel for the petitioners has drawn attention of this Court towards the postmortem report, which is contained as Annexure No.3 to this petition, such postmortem was conducted at Hardoi and the opinion of Doctor does not suggest as to what is the cause of death of victim inasmuch as the incidence of assault had taken place at Delhi on 15.09.2018. Thereafter, the victim came to Hardoi on 25.09.2018 and died on 26.09.2018. Therefore, Sri Mishra has submitted with vehemence that the place where cause of action has accrued is Delhi, therefore, if the family members of the victim were aggrieved, they should be lodged the F.I.R. at Delhi immediately after 15.09.2018. Further, there is no allegation regarding assault or beating up at Hardoi on or after 15.09.2018, therefore, the impugned F.I.R. should have not been lodged at Hardoi and investigation should have not been conducted at Hardoi. Not only the above, the charge-sheet should have not been filed before the concerning court at Hardoi and the learned court of Magistrate should have not taken cognizance of such charge-sheet where cause of action has accrued at Delhi.

9. In support of his aforesaid submissions, Sri Mishra has placed reliance upon the dictum of Apex Court in re: Y. Abraham Ajith and others vs. Inspector of Police, Chennai and another rendered in Criminal Appeal No.904 of 2004 arising out of SLP (Crl.) No.4573 of 2003) referring paragraphs-7 to 16, which are being reproduced here-in-below:-

"7. In response, learned counsel for respondent no.2-complainant submitted that the offences were continuing in terms of Section 178 (c) of the Code, and therefore The Court had the jurisdiction to deal with the matter.

8. Section 177 of the Code deals with the ordinary place of inquiry and trial, and reads as follows:

"Section 177 : ORDINARY PLACE OF INQUIRY AND TRIAL:

Every offence shall ordinarily be inquired into and tried by a Court within whose local jurisdiction it was committed."

9. Section 177 to 186 deal with venue and place of trial. Section 177 reiterates the well-established common law rule referred to in Halsbury's Laws of England (Vol. IX para 83) that the proper and ordinary venue for the trial of a crime is the area of jurisdiction in which, on the evidence, the facts occur and which alleged to constitute the crime. There are several exceptions to this general rule and some of them are, so far as the present case is concerned, indicated in Section 178 of the Code which read as follows:

"Section 178 PLACE OF INQUIRY OR TRIAL

(a) When it is uncertain in which of several local areas an offence was committed, or

(b) where an offence is committed partly in one local area and partly in another, or

(c) where an offence is continuing one, and continues to be committed in more local areas than one, or

(d) where it consists of several acts done in different local areas, it may be inquired into or tried by a Court having jurisdiction over any of such local areas."

10."All crime is local, the jurisdiction over the crime belongs to the country where the crime is committed", as observed by Blackstone. A significant word used in Section 177 of the Code is "ordinarily". Use of the word indicates that the provision is a general one and must be read subject to the special provisions contained in the Code. As observed by the Court in Purshottamdas Dalmia v. State of West Bengal (AIR 1961 SC 1589), L.N. Mukherjee V. State of Madras (AIR 1961 SC 1601),Banwarilal Jhunjhunwalla and Ors. v. Union of India and Anr. (AIR 1963 SC 1620) and Mohan Baitha and Ors. v. State of Bihar and Anr. (2001 (4) SCC 350), exception implied by the word "ordinarily" need not be limited to those specially provided for by the law and exceptions may be provided by law on consideration or may be implied from the provisions of law permitting joint trial of offences by the same Court. No such exception is applicable to the case at hand.

11. As observed by this Court in State of Bihar v. Deokaran Nenshi and Anr. (AIR 1973 SC 908), continuing offence is one which is susceptible of continuance and is distinguishable from the one which is committed once and for all, that it is one of those offences which arises out of the failure to obey or comply with a rule or its requirement and which involves a penalty, liability continues till compliance, that on every occasion such disobedience or non-compliance occurs or recurs, there is the offence committed.

12. A similar plea relating to continuance of the offence was examined by this Court in Sujata Mukherjee (Smt.) v. Prashant Kumar Mukherjee (1997 (5) SCC 30). There the allegations related to commission of alleged offences punishable under Section 498-A and 323 IPC. On the factual background, it was noted that though the dowry demands were made earlier the husband of the complainant went to the place where complainant was residing and had assaulted her. This Court held in that factual background that clause (c) of Section 178 was attracted. But in the present case the factual position is different and the complainant herself left the house of the husband on 15.4.1997 on account of alleged dowry demands by the husband and his relations. There is thereafter not even a whisper of allegations about any demand of dowry or commission of any act constituting an offence much less at Chennai. That being so, the logic of Section 178 (c) of the Code relating to continuance of the offences cannot be applied.

13.The crucial question is whether any part of the cause of action arose within the jurisdiction of the concerned Court. In terms of Section 177 of the Code it is the place where the offence was committed. In essence it is the cause of action for initiation of the proceedings against the accused.

14.While in civil cases, normally the expression "cause of action" is used, in criminal cases as stated in Section 177 of the Code, reference is to the local jurisdiction where the offence is committed. These variations in etymological expression do not really make the position different. The expression "cause of action" is therefore not a stranger to criminal cases.

15.It is settled law that cause of action consists of bundle of facts, which give cause to enforce the legal inquiry for redress in a court of law. In other words, it is a bundle of facts, which taken with the law applicable to them, gives the allegedly affected party a right to claim relief against the opponent. It must include some act done by the latter since in the absence of such an act no cause of action would possibly accrue or would arise.

16.The expression "cause of action" has acquired a judicially settled meaning. In the restricted sense cause of action means the circumstances forming the infraction of the right or the immediate occasion for the action. In the wider sense, it means the necessary conditions for the maintenance of the proceeding including not only the alleged infraction, but also the infraction coupled with the right itself. Compendiously the expression means every fact, which it would be necessary for the complainant to prove, if traversed, in order to support his right or grievance to the judgment of the Court. Every fact, which is necessary to be proved, as distinguished from every piece of evidence, which is necessary to prove such fact, comprises in "cause of action"."

10. Per contra, Sri Ran Vijay Singh, learned Additional Government Advocate has submitted that no doubt the occurrence in question has been committed at Delhi on 15.09.2018 but so as to one allegation regarding threatening of dire consequences is concerned, it is after 15.09.2018 at Hardoi. Therefore, for the section i.e. Section 506 I.P.C. the F.I.R. can be lodged at Hardoi. He has also submitted that since some allegations have been made at Delhi and some allegations are at Hardoi, then as per Section 178 Cr.P.C. the F.I.R. can be lodged at Hardoi and therefore, the charge-sheet can be filed at Hardoi and cognizance can be taken by the competent court of law at Hardoi.

11. Having heard learned counsel for the parties and having perused the material available on record what I find is that the place of occurrence is at Delhi and the date of incidence is also relevant to say is 15.09.2018 and admittedly no F.I.R. was lodged immediately after 15.09.2018 at Delhi. The victim came to Hardoi on 25.09.2018 and thereafter except the allegation that the accused persons have threatened for dire consequences, no other allegations have been levelled against the present petitioners and other persons.

12. At this stage, Section 460 Cr.P.C. is being considered which provides that if any Magistrate not empowered by law to do any of the following things, amongst others clause (c) provides to take cognizance of an offence under clause (a) or clause (b) of sub-Section 1 of Section 190 Cr.P.C. erroneously in good faith, his proceedings shall not be set aside merely on the ground of not being so empowered.

13. In the present case, learned counsel for the petitioners has submitted that the Magistrate was not empowered to take cognizance of offence, which was committed at Delhi but investigated at Hardoi and the charge-sheet has been filed at Hardoi.

14. As per the aforesaid Section 460 Cr.PC, the proceedings shall not be set aside if such erroneous cognizance has been taken in good faith. Section 52 of I.P.C. defines the term "good faith". It says that nothing is said to be done or believed in "good faith" which is done or believed without care and attention.

15. In the present case, such error of the Magistrate may not be considered to be done in good faith inasmuch as the allegations of F.I.R. are of Delhi and there was substantial delay, which is unexplained, of about ten days for not reporting at Delhi immediately after committing an offence in question at Delhi and these facts have not been verified by the Magistrate before taking cognizance of the Charge-sheet so the factum of due care and precaution on the part of the Magistrate was missing in this case. Hence, the aforesaid error done by the Magistrate has not been done in good faith then such proceedings may liable to be quashed on this ground alone.

16. Now, Section 462 Cr.P.C. is being considered which categorically provides that if the proceedings of the criminal court or any finding, or order thereof took place in a wrong Session Division, District, Sub-Division or other local area, shall not be set aside for such reason alone unless it appears that such error has in fact occasioned the failure of justice.

17. In the present case, the incidence in question took place at a particular place of Delhi on 15.09.2018, thereafter, the victim was admitted at Pt. Madan Mohan Malviya Hospital, Malviya Nagar, New Delhi for getting treatment on the same day i.e. 15.09.2018 and after being discharged from the hospital he reached at his native village situated at district-Hardoi on 25.09.2018.

18. As per version of the F.I.R., the victim was discharged from hospital after being recovered and there is no allegation of any assault or attack at Hardoi against the petitioners. No F.I.R. under Sections 147 and 304 I.P.C. could have been lodged against the petitioners at Hardoi. Even the postmortem, which was done at Hardoi, is not very clear about the period of injury so sustained by the victim. Had the F.I.R. been lodged at Delhi immediately after 15.09.2018, the police concerned at Delhi must have investigated such serious allegations by examining the relevant persons and material by approaching the hospital where the victim had taken for his treatment after 15.09.2018. Therefore, it appears that on account of lapse on the part of the informant the proper investigation of the issue in question, which could have been conducted at Delhi, could not be made.

19. Notably, on account of failure on the part of the complainant/ informant the actual truth could not comeforth and for the unexplained reason as to why the F.I.R. was not lodged at Delhi and also as to why the substantial delay has been done in lodging the F.I.R., it would be a failure of justice. Therefore, in view of the peculiar facts of the instant case, for the aforesaid reasons, this Court is considering it as a failure of justice, therefore, the proceedings pending before the court at Hardoi are liable to be set aside.

20. It would not be out of place to mention here that if the opposite party No.2 is issued notice, he cannot change his allegations of F.I.R., e.g. date of incidence, place of incidence, no explanation for not lodging the F.I.R. at Delhi immediately after 15.09.2018, the admission that the victim was discharged from Pt. Madan Mohan Malviya Hospital, Malviya Nagar, New Delhi after being recovered, unexplained delay of more than ten days in lodging F.I.R. and no overt act has been committed by the petitioners against the victim at Hardoi between 25.09.2018 to 26.09.2018. In other words, after putting appearance before this Court, he would not be able to improve his case. However, he may take appropriate remedy before appropriate authority as per law inasmuch as in view of the trite law no one can be left remedy less.

21. As per the scheme of Cr.P.C., Section 177 clearly mandates that every offence shall ordinarily be incurred into and tried by the court, within whose local jurisdiction it was committed. In the present case, the offence in question, if any, has been committed at Delhi.

22. Section 178 Cr.P.C. provides further that if it is uncertain about place of offence which could have been committed in several local areas the inquiry or trial may be conducted by the court having jurisdiction in such local areas. In the present case, on the basis of allegations of F.I.R., it appears that offence in question, if any, has been committed only at Delhi.

23. The law is trite that the Magistrate can take cognizance of offence not the offender and while taking cognizance his prima-facie satisfaction is sufficient as he should not to explained reasons elaborately at that point of time but he will have to peruse the material available with the charge-sheet. If he is not satisfied considering the material available on record to take cognizance, he may pass such appropriate order.

24. In the case in hand, before taking cognizance of the charge-sheet the Magistrate concerned should have applied its mind by asking the Investigating Officer as to what offence has been committed at Hardoi and also as to why the F.I.R. was not lodged at Delhi and as to what is explanation of delay of more than ten days in lodging the F.I.R. Had this exercise been carried out by the Magistrate at Hardoi while taking cognizance, any appropriate order would have been passed in stead of taking cognizance. This cognizance may not be said to be taken in good faith, therefore, the protection of Section 460 Cr.P.C. may not be extended to such cognizance order. Besides, the mere allegations of F.I.R. itself creates some confusion as discussed above, therefore, if the proceedings are permitted to be continued at Hardoi, it would cause failure of justice, hence, such proceedings may not be saved by virtue of Section 462 Cr.P.C.

25. The Apex Court in re: Y. Abraham Ajith and others (supra) has categorically held that cause of action consists of bundle of facts and expression "cause of action" has acquired a judicially settled meaning, which means the circumstances forming the infraction of the right or the immediate occasion for the action.

26. In the aforesaid judgment, the Apex Court has considered the term "cause of action" from Halsbury Laws of England (Fourth Edition), which says that "cause of action" is simply a factual situation the existence of which entitles one person to obtain from the Court a remedy against another aspect.

27. Therefore, in the present case, the cause of action has accrued at Delhi where no F.I.R. was lodged and for the cause of action which accrued at Delhi the investigation has been done at Hardoi, charge-sheet has been filed at Hardoi and the cognizance has been taken by the learned court below concerned at Hardoi, which is not permissible in the eyes of law.

28. In view of the above, I hereby allow the present petition.

29. Since no cause of action has accrued at Hardoi, therefore, the concerned Magistrate at Hardoi had no jurisdiction to deal with the matter. Accordingly, the proceedings of the aforesaid criminal case are quashed. The informant/ complainant would be at liberty to take appropriate steps against the accused persons, strictly in accordance with law, if he so chooses to do so.

30. No order as to costs.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Rajesh Singh Chauhan, J.)

1. Heard Sri Akash Dikshit, learned counsel for the petitioner, Sri Aniruddh Kumar Singh, learned AGA-I for the State and Sri Ajmal Khan, learned counsel for opposite party no.2.

2. By means of this petition filed under Section 482 Cr.P.C., the petitioner has prayed for quashing the impugned order dated 24.12.2019 (Annexure No.1) passed by the learned Civil Judge (S.D.)/ A.C.J.M., Ambedkar Nagar rejecting the discharge application moved in Complaint Case No.5661 of 2018, under Section 420 IPC, Police Station Ahirauli, District Ambedkar Nagar and the order dated 25.10.2021 passed by the revisional court i.e. Sessions Judge, Ambedkar Nagar dismissing the revision of the petitioner.

3. On the request of learned counsel for the parties, the present matter is being decided finally at the admission stage.

4. While assailing the impugned order dated 24.12.2019 passed by the Civil Judge (S.D.)/ A.C.J.M., Ambedkar Nagar, learned counsel for the petitioner has submitted that the learned court below has rejected the application for discharge of the petitioner on the point that since the evidence under Section 244 Cr.P.C. is yet to come and the accused/ petitioner has not appeared and obtained bail, therefore, such application for discharge is rejected. Learned counsel for the petitioner has further submitted that in the aforesaid judgment, reference of the judgment of the Apex Court in re; Adalat Prasad vs. Rooplal Jindal & Others, (2004) 7 SCC 338, has been given by the learned Magistrate Court observing that once the Magistrate takes cognizance in any matter/ issue, he cannot recall or review such order. The impugned order further says that the learned Magistrate Court has already taken cognizance on 23.3.2019 summoning the petitioner to try the issue under Section 420 IPC and the revisional court while rejecting the revision of the petitioner has upheld the order of the Magistrate dated 24.12.2019.

5. Learned counsel for the petitioner has submitted that when the aforesaid rejection of discharge was assailed before the revisional court, learned revisional court vide order dated 25.10.2021 has rejected the revision of the petitioner upholding the order dated 24.12.2019 passed by the court of Magistrate.

6. Sri Akash Dikshit, learned counsel for the petitioner has submitted with vehemence that by means of discharge application, the petitioner had not prayed that the summoning order be recalled or reviewed, therefore, the dictum of the Hon'ble Apex Court in re; Adalat Prasad (supra) would not be attracted in the present case.

7. At this stage, learned counsel for the petitioner has drawn attention of this Court towards Section 245 Cr.P.C., which is being reproduced herein below:-

"245. When accused shall be discharged.-- (1) If, upon taking all the evidence referred to in section 244, the Magistrate considers, for reasons to be recorded, that no case against the accused has been made out which, if unrebutted, would warrant his conviction, the Magistrate shall discharge him.

(2) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to prevent a Magistrate from discharging the accused at any previous stage of the case if, for reasons to be recorded by such Magistrate, he considers the charge to be groundless."

8. Learned counsel for the petitioner has drawn attention of this Court towards Sub Section (2) of Section 245 Cr.P.C., which categorically provides that nothing in this section shall be deemed to prevent a Magistrate from discharging the accused at any previous stage of the case if, for reasons to be recorded by such Magistrate. So as to strengthen the aforesaid submission, Sri Dikshit has drawn attention of this Court towards the decision of the Apex Court in re; Ajoy Kumar Ghose vs. State of Jharkhand and another, (2009) 14 SCC 115, referring paras 25, 36 & 37 thereof. For the convenience those paragraphs are being reproduced herein below:-

"25. The situation under Section 245(2) CrPC is, however, different. There, under sub-section (2), the Magistrate has the power of discharging the accused at any previous stage of the case i.e. even before such evidence is led. However, for discharging an accused under Section 245(2) CrPC, the Magistrate has to come to a finding that the charge is groundless. There is no question of any consideration of evidence at that stage, because there is none. The Magistrate can take this decision before the accused appears or is brought before the court or the evidence is led under Section 244 CrPC. The words appearing in Section 245(2) CrPC "at any previous stage of the case", clearly bring out this position.

36. The Magistrate has the power to discharge the accused under Section 245(2) CrPC at any previous stage i.e. before the evidence is recorded under Section 244(1) CrPC, which seems to be the established law, particularly in view of the decision in Cricket Assn. of Bengal v. State of W.B. [(1971) 3 SCC 239 : 1971 SCC (Cri) 446] , as also the subsequent decision of the Bombay High Court in Luis de Piedade Lobo v. Mahadev Vishwanath Parulekar [1984 Cri LJ 513 (Bom)] . The same decision was followed by Kerala High Court in Manmohan Malhotra v. P.M. Abdul Salam [1994 Cri LJ 1555 (Ker)] and Hon'ble Justice K.T. Thomas, as the learned Judge then was, accepted the proposition that the Magistrate has the power under Section 245(2) CrPC to discharge the accused at any previous stage. The Hon'ble Judge relied on a decision of the Madras High Court in Mohd. Sheriff Sahib v. Abdul Karim Sahib [AIR 1928 Mad 129 (1)] , as also the judgment of the Himachal Pradesh High Court in Gopal Chauhan v. Satya [1979 Cri LJ 446 (HP)].

37. We are convinced that under Section 245(2) CrPC the Magistrate can discharge the accused at any previous stage i.e. even before any evidence is recorded under Section 244(1) CrPC. In that view, the accused could have made the application. It is obvious that the application has been rejected by the Magistrate. So far, there is no difficulty."

9. The Apex Court has clearly held in the aforesaid judgment that under Section 245 (2) Cr.P.C. the Magistrate can discharge the accused at any previous stage i.e. even before any evidence is recorded under Section 244 (1) Cr.P.C.

10. Therefore, Sri Dikshit has submitted that the observation of learned Magistrate Court vide impugned order dated 24.12.2019 is unwarranted and uncalled for. Further the order dated 25.10.2021 passed by the revisional court upholding the order dated 24.12.2019 is also perverse and uncalled for.

11. Sri Dikshit has further drawn attention of this Court towards Annexure No.12 to the petition, which is an application dated 6.11.2019 filed by the petitioner before the court of Magistrate when his discharge application was pending wherein he had categorically requested from the learned court below to direct for proper enquiry/ investigation in respect of handicapped certificate, which is subject matter of the issue, to verify as to whether such handicapped certificate is forged or genuine. Sri Dikshit has submitted that since this application was filed on 6.11.2019, therefore, before rejecting the discharge application of the petitioner vide order dated 24.12.2019, any appropriate order on such application dated 6.11.2019 could have been passed by the Magistrate so as to set the controversy at rest but no such order has been passed before rejecting the discharge application of the petitioner.

12. He has also drawn attention of this Court towards a recent judgment of the Apex Court dated 7.5.2021 in re; Sanjay Kumar Rai vs. State of Uttar Pradesh & Anr., Criminal Appeal No.472 of 2021, referring para-16 thereof, which is being reproduced herein below:-

"16. Further, it is well settled that the trial court while considering the discharge application is not to act as a mere post office. The Court has to sift through the evidence in order to find out whether there are sufficient grounds to try the suspect. The court has to consider the broad probabilities, total effect of evidence and documents produced and the basic infirmities appearing in the case and so on. [Union of India v. Prafulla Kumar Samal, (1979) 3 SCC 4]. Likewise, the Court has sufficient discretion to order further investigation in appropriate cases, if need be."

13. Sri Dikshit has categorically submitted that it has been the view of the constitutional court that the trial court while considering the discharge application is not to act as a mere post office. The court has to sift through the evidence in order to find out whether there are sufficient grounds to try the suspect. The court has to consider the broad probabilities, total effect of evidence and documents produced and the basic infirmities appearing in the case and so on.

14. Per contra, Sri Ajmal Khan, learned counsel for opposite party no.2 has submitted that there is no infirmity or illegality in the order dated 24.12.2019 passed by the learned Magistrate Court inasmuch as in the complaint case, there is difference between the stage upto Sections 200 to 204 and 244 Cr.P.C. Further, as per him, unless the evidence under Section 244 Cr.P.C. is recorded, the discharge application in the complaint case should have not been considered otherwise it would frustrate the entire purpose of taking cognizance and summoning the prospective accused. He has also submitted that if without recording the statement under Section 244 Cr.P.C., the discharge application is allowed, the accusation on accused person would not come before the learned trial court and in that case, not only the complainant but the prosecution shall suffer, therefore, this petition may be dismissed.

15. Learned AGA has also submitted that so far as the judgment of the Apex Court in re; Adalat Prasad (supra) is concerned, there may not be any dispute on the observation and proposition of law of the Apex Court but it would be upto the court to see as to whether the judgment in re; Adalat Prasad (supra) may be applicable at the stage which has been discussed by the Magistrate while rejecting the discharge application vide order dated 24.12.2019 inasmuch as this Court while invoking its power under Section 482 Cr.P.C. has got vast power, rather inherent power, to cure abuse of the process of the law, if any.

16. Having heard learned counsel for the parties and having perused the material available on record, I am of the considered opinion and also in agreement with the judgment of the Apex Court in re; Ajoy Kumar Ghose (supra) and Sanjay Kumar Rai (supra) to the effect that the trial court has to sift through the evidence in order to find out whether there are sufficient grounds to try the suspect. The court has to consider the broad probabilities, total effect of evidence and documents produced and the basic infirmities appearing in the case. In the present case, since the present petitioner had himself filed an application on 6.11.2019 before the learned Magistrate with the request that appropriate direction to investigate/ enquire the handicapped certificate in question, which is subject matter, be issued so as to verify as to whether such certificate was forged or genuine, therefore, it was incumbent upon the Magistrate before passing any final order on discharge application to direct for investigation to verify the genuineness of the handicapped certificate so that the issue in question may likely be set at rest. Learned court of Magistrate should not show undue haste in deciding the discharge application without verifying the genuineness of the handicapped certificate. I am also of the view that the discharge application should not be disposed of in a cursory manner inasmuch as if such application is decided in a cursory manner, then it may likely to cause prejudice, not only to the side of the applicant or complainant but also to the prosecution. Therefore, before disposing of the discharge application, all possible efforts, due care and precaution should have been taken by the learned court below to ensure that the prospective accused or suspect is not scot free. At the same time, if the prima facie material available with the learned court below is sufficient to pass order of discharge, there should not be any hesitation for the learned court below to pass such order. In any case, the subjective satisfaction of the learned court below on the basis of material available on record should be paramount.

17. So far as the observation of the learned court below regarding Section 244 Cr.P.C. is concerned, I find that such observation is perverse inasmuch as the law is trite that the term 'at any previous stage of the case' includes any stage meaning thereby even before any evidence is recorded under Section 244 Cr.P.C., the discharge application under Section 245 (2) Cr.P.C. may be considered and disposed of.

18. Therefore, in the light of the facts and circumstances and the case laws so discussed above, I hereby set aside/ quash the order dated 24.12.2019 (Annexure No.1) passed by the learned Civil Judge (S.D.)/ A.C.J.M., Ambedkar Nagar and the order dated 25.10.2021 passed by the Sessions Judge, Ambedkar Nagar (Annexure No.14).

19. However, the matter is relegated back to the learned court of Magistrate to pass a fresh order on discharge application strictly in accordance with law and considering all relevant materials available and ensure that proper justice is made in favour of the parties, be it the petitioner, the private opposite party or the prosecution. Such order shall be passed within a period of two months from the date of receipt of certified copy of this order, by affording an opportunity of hearing to the parties concerned, if it is so required under the law.

20. Liberty is given to the petitioner to produce certified copy of this order before the court of Magistrate through counsel and the discharge application through counsel shall be decided in terms of earlier order dated 1.11.2019.

21. Accordingly, the petition is allowed.

22. No order as to costs.

3. Fazalullah Khan Vs M. Akbar Contranctor (d) by LRs & ors. (2019) 8 ADJ 615 SC

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Sangeeta Chandra, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the petitioner and learned AGA for the State.

"Wherefore, it is most respectfully prayed that this hon'ble Court may kindly be pleased to set-aside the impugned order dated 16.09.2021 and 28.10.2021 passed by IIIrd Additional District and Sessions Judge, Ambedkar Nagar in S.T. No. 186/2011 (State Versus Sarvesh Kumar Tiware), with all consequential benefits contained as Annexure No.1 and 2 respectively to the present petition."

3. It has been submitted by learned counsel for the petitioner that earlier a Criminal Misc. Case No. 15 of 2016 under Section 482 Cr.P.C. (Sarvesh Kumar Tiware vs. State of U.P. and Others) was filed by the petitioner challenging the charge sheet in which this Court had been pleased to stay the proceedings in the Sessions Trial no. 186 of 2011 (State Vs. Sarvesh Kumar Tiware) by its order dated 17.08.2021, which is still operative and inforce. During the pendency of the petition and the interim order therein, the trial court had issued non-bailable warrants against the petitioner on 16.09.2021 giving rise to afresh cause of action to file the present petition under Section 482 Cr.P.C.

4. Learned AGA for the State has raised the preliminary objection regarding the maintainability of the petition as according to him the petitioner's case no. 5131 of 2016 is still pending before this Court and a second petition by the same petitioner with regard to the same Sessions Trial only challenging the non-bailable warrant issued by the learned trial court is not maintainable.

5. Learned counsel for the petitioner has pointed out the order sheet annexed as annexure-09 to the petition and he says that he has never been issued any summon, warrant earlier and a wrong observation has been made by the learned trial court in its order dated 16.09.2021 that he has been granted several opportunities to place a current status of the petition under Section 482 of the Cr.P.C., bearing Petition No. 5131 of 2016.

6. The counsel for the petitioner has stated that the non-bailable warrant has been issued against the petitioner without application of mind to the observations made by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the "Inder Mohan Goswami and Another vs. State of Uttranchal and Others (2007) 12 SCC 1", where the Court had observed in paragraph nos. 50 to 53 that non-bailable warrants would be issued to bring a person to Court only when summons and bailable warrants would be unlikely to have the desired result. If the Court is of the opinion that the summons will suffice in getting the appearance of the accused in the Court, the summons or bailable warrants should be preferred.

7. This Court has carefully perused the order sheet a typed copy of which has been filed at annexure-09 to the petition. It appears that on 24.01.2020 when the case was called out, the accused were directed to place the current status regarding the stay order granted by the High Court by the next fixed. The matter was fixed to be taken on 25.02.2020.

8. On 25.02.2020, again, the accused were directed to place a current status regarding the stay order granted by the High Court and the matter was fixed for 25.03.2020. The case was again taken up on 25.03.2020 where noting the absence of the accused, the court had ordered the accused to present the status of stay in the proceedings before the High Court by the next date of listing as a last opportunity. The case was fixed on 03.08.2021, when again the accused remain absent and the learned trial court observed that because of the petition remaining pending in the High Court, the proceedings had remained stayed and the accused was directed to place the current status of the stay order granted earlier by the next date. The matter was fixed again for hearing on 20.08.2021. On 20.08.2021, there was a public holiday declared due to Moharam. The case was taken up on 21.08.2021, when accused remained absent. Again the Court directed the accused to place the current status to of the proceedings by the next date. The matter was fixed for 08.09.2021. On 08.09.2021, again, the accused remained absent. The Court had again given time to the accused to place the current status with regard to the pendency of proceedings before the High Court and the stay order and fixed the matter for 16.09.2021. It was on 16.09.2021 that the learned trial court has passed the order impugned, observing that repeated opportunities were being given to the accused which were not availed by him.

9. In the case of "Inder Mohan Goswami and Another vs. State of Uttranchal and Others (2007) 12 SCC 1", the Hon'ble Supreme Court had observed in paragraph nos. 53 and 54 that non-bailable warrants would be issued to bring a person to Court only when summons and bailable warrants would be unlikely to have the desired result. This could be even when the court thought it reasonable that the accused will not voluntarily appear in court or the police authorities are unable to find the person to serve him with a summon or it is considered that the person could harm someone if not placed into custody immediately.

10. This Court having perused the pleadings on record, is of the considered opinion that the petitioner had approached this Court earlier in the petition No. 5131 of 2016 under Section 482 of the Cr.P.C. challenging the charge sheet, where this Court had passed the following order on 17.08.2016, which is quoted herein below:-

"Heard.

Issue notice to the opposite parties, returnable on 4.10.2016. Notice to indicate that the petition may be decided finally at the admission stage itself.

The learned Additional Government Advocate waives service of notice on behalf of the opposite party no.1.

Stand over to 4.10.2016.

In the meantime, further proceedings against the petitioner shall be stayed. "

11. It appears that the petitioner failed to appear before the learned trial court despite observations made by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the Case of "Asian Resurfacing of Road Agency Private Limited and Another vs. Central Bureau of Investigation, 2018 (16) SCC 299" where the Hon'ble Supreme Court had observed in paragraph 34, which is quoted herein below:-

"If stay is granted, matter should be taken on day-to-day basis and concluded within two-three months. Where the matter remains pending for longer period, the order of stay will stand vacated on expiry of six months, unless extension is granted by a speaking order showing extraordinary situation where continuing stay was to be preferred to the final disposal of trial by the trial court."

12. The Court had further observed as under:-

"In view of above, situation of proceedings remaining pending for long on account of stay needs to be remedied. Remedy is required not only for corruption cases but for all civil and criminal cases where on account If stay, civil and criminal proceedings are held up. At times, proceedings are adjourned sine die on account of stay. Even after stay is vacated, intimation is not received and proceedings are not taken up. In an attempt to remedy this,situation, we consider it appropriate to direct that in all pending cases where stay against proceedings of a civil or criminal trial is operating, the same will come to an end on expiry of six months from today unless in an exceptional case by a speaking order such stay is extended. In cases where stay is granted in future, the same will end on expiry of six months from the date of such order unless similar extension is granted by a speaking order. The speaking order must show that the case was of such exceptional nature that continuing the stay was more important than having the trial finalized. The trial Court where order of stay of civil or criminal proceedings is produced, may fix a date not beyond six months of the order of stay so that on expiry of period of stay, proceedings can commence unless order of extension of stay is produced."

13. Learned trial court on the basis of the observations made by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in case of Asian Resurfacing of Road Agency Private Limited (Supra) had initially passed an order on 30.03.2017 noting that the accused was not appearing in the case, and there was no application by his counsel for exempting his personal appearance, the trial court has thereafter given several chances for the petitioner to indicate to the Court the current status of his petition No. 5131 of 2016 under Section 482 Cr.P.C. regarding which the dates have been mentioned by the learned trial court in its order dated 16.09.2021. Having observed the fact that the accused was not appearing despite the several chances being given and even the last opportunity to communicate the current status of his petition being given to him. The Court has referred to the observations made by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Asian Resurfacing of Road Agency Private Limited (Supra) and issued non-bailable warrant against him directing the matter to be placed before it thereafter.

14. It has been argued by the learned counsel for the petitioner that on 28.10.2021, the petitioner had filed an application paper no. 11(b) through his counsel saying that in the case of Fazalullah Khan vs. M. Akbar Contractor (d) By LRs and Others 2019 (8) ADJ 615 (SC), the Hon'ble Supreme Court had observed that where the case remained pending in the High Court the Stay would not stand automatically vacated. However, the learned trial court rejected the application by misreading the observations made by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Fazalullah Khan (Supra).

15. This Court has gone through the order dated 28.10.2021 and also the judgement rendered by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Fazalullah Khan (Supra). In the case of Fazalullah Khan (Supra), the Court had observed that where an appeal remains pending before the higher Court and there was a stay granted by the higher Court of the impugned order, such stay would not stand automatically vacated in terms of the law laid down in the case of Asian Resurfacing of Road Agency Private Limited (Supra).

16. Admittedly, the petitioner has not appealed against any order of the lower court, and the lower court order has not been stayed during pendency of the appeal. The petitioner had challenged the charge sheet before this Court in petition no. 5131 of 2016 and the Court had granted a stay order as quoted herein above. Such an order would certainly come within the purview of the observations made by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Asian Resurfacing of Road Agency Private Limited (Supra).

17. As far as possible, if the Court is of the opinion that the summon will suffice in securing the appearance of the accused in the Court, the summons or the bailable warrants should be preferred.

18. But, it is apparent from the order sheet of learned trial court that repeated opportunities were given to the accused but the accused remained absent. A last opportunity was also given to the accused which was not availed. Learned trial court had no means to ensure presence of the accused before it. Hence the order was passed which has been challenged in this petition.

19. This Court, therefore, finds no factual and legal infirmity and no good ground to show interference either in the other dated 16.09.2021 or in the order dated 28.10.2021.

20. Accordingly, the petition is rejected as misconceived.

A. Criminal Law - Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973-Section 482, 319 - Indian Penal Code, 1860-Sections 302, 323, 504, 506-quashing of –summoning order-prosecution witnesses, while recording their statements before the court, named the present petitioners-petitioners took plea of alibi that they were hospitalised-In Bijendra Singh case, Apex court was of the view that the plea of alibi should have been considered but in the present case prima facie satisfaction of the court concerned while issuing summon is so strong derived from the material available on record including the incriminating material and statement of witnesses-the summon issued u/s 319 Cr.P.C. may not be treated at par with the summons issued while taking cognizance on the chargesheet-even at that stage, the discharge cannot be moved-However, after appearing before the court at the time of framing of charge, the person summoned may take all pleas regarding his non-involvement in the issue in question.(Para 1 to 15)

B. The evidence of an injured witness has greater evidential value and unless compelling reasons exists, their statements are not be discarded lightly. While exercising the power u/s 319 Cr.P.C. the court has not to wait till the cross-examination and on the basis of the examination-in-chief of a witness if a case is made out, a person can be summoned to face the trial u/s 319 Cr.P.C.(Para 11)

2. Manjeet Singh Vs St. of Har. & ors. CRLA No.875 of 2021

(Delivered by Hon'ble Rajesh Singh Chauhan, J.)

1. Heard Sri Vinod Kumar Pandey, learned counsel for the petitioners, Sri Ran Vijay Singh, learned AGA for the State and Sri Santosh Kumar Yadav "Warsi", learned counsel for opposite party no.2.

2. Sri Warsi has filed counter affidavit, the same is taken on record.

3. By means of this petition, the petitioners have assailed the order dated 22.10.2021 passed by the Additional Sessions Judge, Court No.4, Sultanpur on the application under Section 319 Cr.P.C. in Sessions Trial No.116 of 2015, State Vs. Sachin and others, arising out of Case Crime No.307 of 2014, under Sections 302, 323, 504 & 506 IPC, Police Station Motigarpur, District Sultanpur by means of which the petitioners have been summoned in the aforesaid case.

4. Learned counsel for the petitioners has contended that the present petitioners were not charge sheeted but the learned trial court concerned while appreciating the statements of PW-1, Sudhakar Tiwari and PW-2-Durgesh Tiwari, the injured, who have indicated the involvement of the present petitioners in the incident in question, summoned the petitioners under Section 319 Cr.P.C. Learned counsel for the petitioners has drawn attention of this Court towards Annexures No.7 & 8 to the petition, which are medical prescription/ report of Atul Medical Care Centre situated at Saidkhanpur Road, Kotwa Sarak, Barabanki wherein it has been indicated that both the petitioners were admitted in the Hospital w.e.f. 21.10.2014; 09.40 PM to 25.10.2014; 01.40 PM. Therefore, he has submitted that when the present petitioners were admitted in one private hospital, how can they be remain present at the place of incident on 23.10.2014. Not only the above, Doctor concerned i.e. Dr. Y. R. Singh has recorded his statement (Annexure No.10) and verified and reiterated the same thing, which has been indicated in the medical certificate.

5. Therefore, on the basis of aforesaid facts and circumstances, learned counsel for the petitioners has submitted that this is a case where the present petitioners have been wrongly summoned under Section 319 Cr.P.C. He has also submitted that even in the statement recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C. of both the aforesaid prosecution witnesses, they have not suggested that the present petitioners were present. However, while recording their statements before the court, they have named the present petitioners. So, the learned court below has committed manifest error of law and fact both in summoning the petitioners under Section 319 Cr.P.C. inasmuch as before issuing summon under the aforesaid section, plea of alibi of the present petitioners should have been considered. So as to strengthen the aforesaid argument, learned counsel for the petitioners has drawn attention of this Court towards a decision of the Apex Court in re; Brijendra Singh and others vs. State of Rajasthan, [2017 (100) ACC 601], referring paras 14 & 15 thereof. For the convenience, paras 14 & 15 are being reproduced herein below:-

"14. When we translate the aforesaid principles with their application to the facts of this case, we gather an impression that the trial court acted in a casual and cavalier manner in passing the summoning order against the appellants. The appellants were named in the FIR. Investigation was carried out by the police. On the basis of material collected during investigation, which has been referred to by us above, the IO found that these appellants were in Jaipur city when the incident took place in Kanaur, at a distance of 175 km. The complainant and others who supported the version in the FIR regarding alleged presence of the appellants at the place of incident had also made statements under Section 161 CrPC to the same effect. Notwithstanding the same, the police investigation revealed that the statements of these persons regarding the presence of the appellants at the place of occurrence was doubtful and did not inspire confidence, in view of the documentary and other evidence collected during the investigation, which depicted another story and clinchingly showed that the appellants plea of alibi was correct.

15. This record was before the Trial Court. Notwithstanding the same, the trial court went by the depositions of the complainant and some other persons in their examination-in-chief, with no other material to support their so-called verbal/ocular version. Thus, the "evidence" recorded during trial was nothing more than the statements which were already there under Section 161 CrPC recorded at the time of investigation of the case. No doubt, the trial court would be competent to exercise its power even on the basis of such statements recorded before it in examination-in-chief. However, in a case like the present where a plethora of evidence was collected by the IO during investigation which suggested otherwise, the trial court was at least duty-bound to look into the same while forming prima facie opinion and to see as to whether much stronger evidence than mere possibility of their (i.e. appellants) complicity has come on record. There is no satisfaction of this nature. Even if we presume that the trial court was not apprised of the same at the time when it passed the order (as the appellants were not on the scene at that time), what is more troubling is that even when this material on record was specifically brought to the notice of the High Court in the revision petition filed by the appellants, the High Court too blissfully ignored the said material. Except reproducing the discussion contained in the order of the trial court and expressing the agreement therewith, nothing more has been done. Such orders cannot stand judicial scrutiny."

6. He has also submitted that following the aforesaid proposition of law, this Court has granted interim order in some of identical cases.

7. Learned AGA has opposed the prayer of this petition by submitting that the summon issued under Section 319 Cr.P.C. may not be treated at par with the summons issued while taking cognizance on the charge sheet. While issuing summons under Section 319 Cr.P.C., learned court below has got strong prima facie satisfaction to summon the person concerned. Even at that stage, the discharge cannot be moved. However, after appearing before the learned court below pursuant to the aforesaid summon and at the time of framing of charges, the person summoned may take all pleas regarding his non-involvement in the issue in question.

8. Sri Warsi has also adopted the aforesaid submission of Sri Ran Vijay Singh, learned AGA.

9. Having heard learned counsel for the parties and having perused the material available on record, I am also of the considered opinion that prima facie satisfaction of the court concerned while issuing summons under Section 319 Cr.P.C. is so strong. Under Section 319 Cr.P.C., this is the power of the court to proceed against other persons appearing to be guilty of the offences and satisfaction to this effect is derived from the material available on record including the incriminating material and statement of the witnesses.

10. Even there is no statutory prescription to provide any prior opportunity of hearing to the persons under Section 319 Cr.P.C. before passing summoning order under Section 319 Cr.P.C.

11. In the case so cited by the learned counsel for the petitioners i.e. Brijendra Singh (supra), the Hon'ble Apex Court has noticed the statements so recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C. of various persons and on the basis of such statements recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C., the Apex Court was of the view that the plea of alibi should have been considered before issuing summons under Section 319 Cr.P.C. But, in the present case, the learned court below has issued summon under Section 319 Cr.P.C. on the basis of statements of prosecution witnesses and one of such witnesses is injured witness, therefore, the facts and circumstances considered by the Apex Court in re; Brijendra Singh (supra) would not be applicable in the present case. The law is trite on the point that the facts and circumstances of individual case may not be cited in another case, if the facts and circumstances of both the cases are not identical and similar. The Apex Court vide judgment and order dated 24.8.2021 in re; Manjeet Singh vs. State of Haryana & Ors., Criminal Appeal No.875 of 2021, in para-14.1 has observed as under:-

"14.1 Now thereafter when in the examination-in-chief the appellant herein - victim - injured eye witness has specifically named the private respondents herein with specific role attributed to them, the Learned trial Court as well as the High Court ought to have summoned the private respondents herein to face the trial. At this stage it is required to be noted that so far as the appellant herein is concerned he is an injured eye-witness. As observed by this Court in the cases of State of MP v. Mansingh (2003) 10 SCC 414 (para 9); Abdul Sayeed v. State of MP (2010) 10 SCC 259; State of Uttar Pradesh v. Naresh (2011) 4 SCC 324, the evidence of an injured eye witness has greater evidential value and unless compelling reasons exist, their statements are not to be discarded lightly. As observed hereinabove while exercising the powers under Section 319 CrPC the Court has not to wait till the cross-examination and on the basis of the examination-in-chief of a witness if a case is made out, a person can be summoned to face the trial under Section 319 CrPC."

12. Having considered the aforesaid facts and circumstances and case laws so referred above, I do not find any infirmity or illegality in the order dated 22.10.2021 passed by the Additional Sessions Judge, Court No.4, Sultanpur in Sessions Trial No.116 of 2015.

13. Therefore, liberty is given to the present petitioners to appear before the court concerned pursuant to the summoning order dated 22.10.2021 within three weeks and file appropriate application of bail and if such application is filed, the same may be considered and disposed of with expedition, preferably on the same day.

14. It is needless to say that the present petitioners would submit their defence and bonafide before the learned court below at the appropriate stage and such bonafide shall be dealt with and considered by the learned court below properly.

15. The petition is consigned to record.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Sangeeta Chandra, J.)

(1) Heard the learned counsel for the parties and perused the record.

(2) This petition has been filed by the petitioner for the following main prayer:-

"For the facts and reasons stated in the accompanying petition supported by Affidavit, it is most respectfully prayed that this Hon'ble Court may kindly be pleased to quash the entire proceedings arising out of FIR No: RC No.0062005A0018/05, dated 30.06.2005U/S 120B,420, IPC & 13(2) r/w 13(1)(d) PC Act 1988 P.S. CBI/ACB Lucknow including the charge-sheet dated 12.12.2007 filed U/S 120B/420/468 and 471 IPC & 13(2) r/w 13(1)(d) PC Act 1988 P.S. CBI/ACB Lucknow including the cognizance/ summoning order dated 17.09.2020 and Non-Bailable Warrant dated 26.11.2021 passed in Criminal Misc, Case No. 530 of 2020, CBI, ACB, Lucknow Vs. S.N. Lal & Others pending before the Court of Additional District & Sessions Judge PC Act / Special Judge C.B.I. Lucknow, so far as it relates to the petitioner."

(3) It has been submitted by the learned counsel for the petitioner that the petitioner had taken a Housing loan on 30.01.2004 which was repaid by him in various installments and a certificate dated 21.06.2018 was issued to him by the Bank that the Housing loan account has been closed on 21.06.2018. A No Dues Certificate had been issued by the Bank to the petitioner, a copy of which has been filed as Annexure-5 to the petition. It has been submitted that on 27.06.2005 the opposite party no.2 wrote a letter to the Superintendent of Police, CBI Anti Corruption Branch, Lucknow for lodging the FIR against Shri S.N. Lal the then Branch Manager, SBI, Mumfordganj, Allahabad, alleging various irregularities committed by him in sanctioning the Housing loan to various borrowers. The petitioner was issued notice on 22.01.2007 directing him to appear in the office and explain his case. The petitioner appeared on 08.02.2007 and thereafter nothing was heard by him of the matter. The petitioner assured that no case against the petitioner being made out, he had been exonerated by the Investigating Agency. The Charge-sheet was however submitted by the CBI on 12.12.2007 implicating the petitioner also alongwith other accused. CBI Court cancelled the Charge-sheet on 05.06.2008. Against the order passed by the learned Special Judge/Anti Corruption Wing, Lucknow, The CBI filed a Criminal Revision No.498/2008 (D) and got the matter remanded back to the learned Trial court to proceed afresh after taking cognizance.

(4) In pursuance of the order passed by this Court on 14.11.2019 the learned Trial Court by its order dated 17.09.2020 took cognizance and summoned the petitioner alongwith other co-accused. The petitioner was never served any summons with regard to the pendency of Criminal Miscellaneous Case No.530/2020 pending in the Court of Additional District & Sessions Judge, PC Act/Special Judge, C.B.I., Lucknow. For the first time, on 16.11.2021 the police personnel visited his house and apprised his wife regarding the pendency of the aforesaid case. After inquiry the petitioner came to know that the learned Trial court had issued non-bailable warrant against him on 26.11.2021.

(5) Hence this petition has been filed challenging the summoning order dated 17.09.2020 and the order issuing non-bailable warrant dated 26.11.2021.

(6) I have heard the learned counsel for the petitioner and counsel for the CBI who says that the summoning order has been issued by the learned Trial Court after this Court had remanded the matter to it on 14.11.2019 and therefore, no interference should be shown in the summoning order by this Court at this stage.

(7) With regard to non-bailable warrant, it has been submitted fairly by the learned counsel for the CBI that it appears that it has been issued to the petitioner only because he did not appear after summoning order for which he says that he had no knowledge earlier.

(8) Learned counsel for the petitioner has placed reliance upon the judgment rendered by the Hon'ble the Supreme Court in Amanpreet Singh Vs. CBI through Director passed in Criminal Appeal No.929/2021 decided on 02.09.2021 reported in 2021 SCC Online 941, where in similar circumstances the Supreme Court has shown interference relying upon the observations made by its in Siddharth Vs. State of U.P. passed in Criminal Appeal No.838/2021, reported in 2021 SCC Online 615. The Supreme Court has referred to observation made by the Delhi High Court in "Court on its own Motion Vs. CBI" reported in (2004) 72 DRJ 629, in Paragraph-26 which has been affirmed by the Court in its order in Paragraph-9. Directions were issued for the Criminal Court in Paragraph-26 of the Delhi High Court judgment which was quoted with approval by the Supreme Court in Paragraph-9 of the report. Such directions are quoted hereinbelow:-

"26. Arrest of a person for less serious or such kinds of offence or offences those can be investigated without arrest by the police cannot be brooked by any civilized society.

Directions for Criminal Courts:

(1) Whenever officer-in-charge of police station or Investigating Agency like CBI files a charge-sheet without arresting the accused during investigation and does not produce the accused in custody as referred in Section 170, Cr.P.C. the Magistrate or the Court empowered to take cognizance or try the accused shall accept the charge-sheet forthwith and proceed according to the procedure laid down in Section 173, Cr.P.C. and exercise the options available to it as discussed in this judgment. In such a case the Magistrate or Court shall invariably issue a process of summons and not warrant of arrest.

(ii) In case the Court or Magistrate exercises the discretion of issuing warrant of arrest at any stage including the stage while taking cognizance of the charge sheet, he or it shall have to record the reasons in writing as contemplated under Section 87, Cr.P.C. that the accused has either been absconding or shall. not obey the summons or has refused to appear despite proof of due service of summons upon him.

(iii) Rejection of an application for exemption from personal appearance on any date of hearing or even at first instance does not amount to non-appearance despite service of summons or absconding or failure to obey summons and the Court in such a case shall not issue warrant of arrest and may either give direction to the accused to appear or issue process of summons.

(iv) That the Court shall on appearance of an accused in a bailable offence release him forthwith on his furnishing a personal bond with or without sureties as per the mandatory provisions of Section 436, Cr.P.C.

(v) The Court shall on appearance of an accused in non-bailable offence who has neither been arrested by the police/Investigating Agency during investigation nor produced in custody as envisaged in Section 170, Cr.P.C. call upon the accused to move a bail application if the accused does not move it on his own and release him on bail as the circumstance of his having not been arrested during investigation or not being produced in custody is itself sufficient to entitle him to be released on bail, Reason is simple. If a person has been at large and free for several years and has not been even arrested during investigation, to send him to jail by refusing bail suddenly, merely because charge-sheet has been filed is against the basic principles governing grant or refusal of bail."

(9) This Court has carefully gone through the judgment rendered by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Amanpreet Singh Vs. CBI (Supra), the Supreme Court has made observation in Paragraphs-10 and 11 affirming the order of the Delhi High Court and directing that the appellant therein be not arrested. The Paragraphs-10 and 11 of the judgment are being quoted hereinbelow:-

"10. A reading of the aforesaid shows that it is the guiding principle for a Magistrate while exercising powers under Section 170, Cr.P.C. which had been set out. The Magistrate of the Court empowered to take cognizance or try the accused has to accept the charge sheet forthwith and proceed in accordance with the procedure laid down under Section 173, Cr.P.C. It has been rightly observed that in such a case the Magistrate or the Court is required to invariably issue a process of summons and not warrant of arrest. In case he seeks to exercise the discretion of issuing warrants of arrest, he is required to record the reasons as contemplated under Section 87, Cr.P.C. that the accused has either been absconding or shall not obey the summons or has refused to appear despite proof of due service of summons upon him. In fact the observations in Sub-para (ii) above by the High Court are in the nature of caution.

11. In so far as the present case is concerned and the general principles under Section 170 Cr.P.C., the most apposite observations are in sub-para (v) of the High Court judgment in the context of an accused in a non-bailable offence whose custody was not required during the period of investigation. In such a scenario, it is appropriate that the accused is released on bail as the circumstances of his having not been arrested during investigation or not being produced in custody is itself sufficient to entitle him to be released on bail. The rationale has been succinctly set out that if a person has been enlarged and free for many years and has not even been arrested during Investigation, to suddenly direct his arrest and to be incarcerated merely because charge sheet has been filed would be contrary to the governing principles for grant of bail. We could not agree more with this."

The Supreme Court had thereafter directed the learned Trial Court to grant bail to the appellant on the next date on terms and conditions to its satisfaction.

(10) It has been submitted on the basis of such judgment rendered by Hon'ble Supreme Court in Amanpreet Singh that the petitioner has remained completely unaware of the proceedings before the High Court till 16.11.2021, and he was not arrested by the Investigating Agency earlier and only because non-bailable warrant has been issued by the learned Trial Court, he should not now be arrested and sent to jail.

(11) Having considered the arguments raised by the learned counsel for the petitioner and the learned counsel appearing for the CBI, this Court finds that the observation in Amanpreet Singh related to a case where Amanpreet Singh had been given the liberty to continue to appear before the learned Trial Court through virtual mode in the prevailing circumstances of Covid-19 Pandemic, and he had continued to appear thereafter. In the case of the petitioner non-bailable warrant has only been issued by the learned Trial Court because the petitioner has not appeared before the learned Trial Court on the date fixed.

(12) This petition is finally disposed of with a direction to the petitioner to appear before the learned Trial Court through counsel and apply for interim bail which shall be considered by the learned Trial Court and appropriate orders be passed thereon. His regular bail application shall also be considered expeditiously thereafter.

A. Criminal Law -Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973-Section 482 - Indian Penal Code, 1860-Sections 420, 467, 468, 471-quashing of entire proceedings-applicant mutated the land of the first informants in his favour on the basis of forged sale deed-when the first informants came to know about fake registration of the sale deed, the first information report was lodged-dispute raised was a purely civil dispute-applicant filed a suit against first informants with regard to the property in question for permanent injunction-the same was granted-the Investigating officer filed chargesheet despite the fact that the matter with regard to the same property, is pending for consideration before the civil court-Magistrate did not apply his judicial mind at the time of taking cognizance in an arbitrary manner on printed proforma-therefore, the impugned order liable to be set aside-the matter is remitted to the Chief Judicial Magistrate to pass fresh cognizance order in accordance with law after applying judicial mind.(Para 1 to 25)

B. It is a position of law that before a Magistrate can be said to have taken cognizance of an offence, it is imperative that he must take notice of the accusations and apply his mind to the allegations made in the police report. However, a Magistrate is not required to pass a detailed reasoned order at the time of taking cognizance on the chargesheet. But it does not mean that an order of taking cognizance can be passed just by filling up the blanks on a printed proforma. A judicial order cannot be allowed to be passed in such a manner. (Delivered by Hon'ble Sanjay Kumar Pachori, J.)

1. Heard Syed Mohammad Abbas Abdy, learned counsel for the applicant, Shri Manoj Kumar Dwivedi, learned A.G.A. for the State and perused the material on record.

2. The instant application under Section 482 of the Code of Criminal Procedure (hereinafter referred to as "Cr.P.C.") has been filed for quashing the entire proceedings of impugned charge-sheet dated 16.1.2019 as well as cognizance order dated 18.3.2019 in Criminal Case No. 2527 of 2019 (State v. Pawan Kumar) arising out of Case Crime No. 0339 of 2018, under Sections 420, 467, 468, 471 of Indian Penal Code (in short "IPC"), registered at Police Station Kotwali Shahar, District Bulandshahr, pending before the Court of Chief Judicial Magistrate, Bulandshahr.

BRIEF FACTS OF THE CASE:

Brief facts, as unfolded from the record as under:

3. The First Information Report dated 29.3.2018 under Sections 420, 467, 468, 471, I.P.C. at Police Station Kotwali Shahr, Bulandshahr, has been lodged by the opposite parties no. 2 and 3 against the applicant and unknown employees of Tehsil, Dadri, stating that the father of the first informants/opposite party nos. 2 & 3 was the owner and recorded tenure holder of agriculture land of Khata No. 986, Gata No. 1578/4 area 0.4680 hectare. After the death of their father they became owner of the aforesaid land on the basis of registered will and are in possession of the said agriculture land, their names have been mutated in the record of rights. The applicant prepared a forged fabricated sale deed dated 30.5.1974/19.6.1974 in the name of his father Ram Chandra from the first informants' father Raghuver Dayal relating to the land of area 1818 sq. yards of Gata No. 1578/4. The applicant replaced the aforesaid sale deed by another sale deed which had been executed by Teekam Singh in favour of Smt. Satyawati Devi wife of Shive Kumar on 30.5.1974 and registered on 19.6.1974 as document no. 1813 Bahi no. 1 Zild no. 994-997 page no. 279/87-88 with the help of the employees of concerned department. The applicant tried to mutate the land of the first informants in his favour on the basis of a forged sale deed. When the first informants came to know about the fake registration of the sale deed, the first information report was lodged.

SUBMISSIONS BEFORE THE COURT:

4. Learned counsel for the applicant assailed that the impugned order is being passed without applying judicial mind in taking cognizance on printed proforma wherein, dates have been filled up by the court employee and initial signature has been made by the Magistrate concerned. The learned counsel has submitted that the dispute raised by the first informant is purely a civil dispute. The applicant filed a suit against the first informants on 30.9.2014 with regard to the property in question for permanent injunction. The court of Civil Judge (Junior Division) Court No. 2, Bulandshahar granted interim injunction vide order dated 30.9.2014. Thereafter, the first informants appeared in the court below in Suit No. 217 of 2014 and prayed to restrain the applicant from alienating the property in question. The Investigating Officer without proper investigation filed charge sheet in the present case despite the fact that the matter with regard to the same property, on the basis of sale deed dated 19.6.1974 is pending consideration before the Civil Court in suit No. 217 of 2014 in which issues have been framed on 12.1.2019.

5. It has been further submitted that the charge sheet has been filed by the investigating officer in a mechanical manner without considering the evidence on record and the Magistrate did not apply his judicial mind at the time of taking cognizance and passed the impugned order dated 18.3.2019 in an arbitrary manner without applying judicial mind on printed proforma by filling up the dates. Therefore, the impugned charge-sheet, the cognizance order and further proceedings pursuant thereto is an abuse of the process of the court and is liable to be quashed. He relied upon the decision of this Court in Ankit Vs. State of U.P. and another, JIC 2010 (1) 432.

6. Learned A.G.A. has vehemently opposed the arguments made by the learned counsel for the applicant and submitted that as per allegations made in the FIR and the evidence collected during the investigation, it makes out a prima facie cognizable offence against the applicant, but it is admitted that the order impugned has been passed by the concerned Magistrate on the printed proforma.

7. Certified copy of the impugned order dated 18.9.2019 filed as Annexure SA -3 of the Supplementary affidavit. By the order dated 18.9.2019, learned Magistrate took cognizance in the matter against the applicant. At this stage it is relevant to extract the aforesaid order as under:

"आज दिनांक ..... को उक्त अपराध संख्या में विवेचक ने आरोप पत्र मय केस डायरी प्रेषित किया है। सम्पूर्ण केस डायरी का विधिनुसार परिसीलन किया गया अपराध का प्रसंज्ञान लिया गया आधार पर्याप्त है। दर्ज रजिस्टर हो। नकले दी जाये, एवं अभियुक्त गणों को समन द्वारा दिनांक ..... के लिए तलब किया जाये।"

Hence, foremost question arises for consideration is whether the impugned cognizance order dated 18.9.2019 has been passed by the concerned Magistrate after applying judicial mind?

The next incidental question is as to what is meant by the expression "taking cognizance of an offence" by a Magistrate within the contemplation of Section 190 of the Code?

8. To examine the validity of the impugned order, it would be convenient to refer the relevant statutory provisions as well as the case laws relating to the subject.

9. The power of the court to take cognizance of the offence is laid in Section 190 of the Code, which reads as under:

"190. Cognizance of offences by Magistrate.-(1) Subject to the provisions of this Chapter any Magistrate of the first class, and any Magistrate of second class specially empowered in this behalf under sub-section (2), may take cognizance of any offence-

(a) upon receiving a complaint of facts which constitute such offence;

(b) upon a police report of such facts;

(c) upon informations received from any person other than a police officer, or upon his own knowledge, that such offence has been committed.

10. Thus, it is trite that the Magistrate is not bound by the opinion of the investigating officer and he is competent to exercise his discretion in this behalf, irrespective of the view expressed by the investigating officer in police report and decide whether an offence has been made out or not. This is because the purpose of police report under Section 173(2) of the Code, which will contain the facts discovered or unearthed by the police as well as the conclusion drawn by the police therefrom is primarily to enable the Magistrate to satisfy himself whether on the basis of police report and material referred therein, a case for cognizance is made out or not. (Vide: Fakhurddin Ahmad v. State of Uttaranchal1)

11. In Darshan Singh Ram Kishan v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1971 SC 2372, while considering Section 190 of the Code of 1908, the Apex Court observed that "taking cognizance does not involve any formal action or indeed action of any kind but occurs as soon as a Magistrate as such applies his mind to the suspected commission of an offence. Cognizance, therefore, takes place at a point when a Magistrate first takes judicial notice of an offence. This is the position whether the Magistrate takes cognizance of an offence on a complaint, or on a police report, or upon information of a person other than a police officer."

12. While considering the expression "taking cognizance" of an offence by a Magistrate within the contemplation of Section 190 of the Code, in Devarapally Lakshminarayana Reddy & Ors. v. V. Narayana Reddy & Ors. AIR 1976 SC 1672, (3 Judge) the Supreme Court has observed as under: (AIR p. 1677 para 14)

"14. This raises the incidental question: What is meant by "taking cognizance of an offence" by the Magistrate within the contemplation of Section 190? This expression has not been defined in the Code. But from the scheme of the Code, the content and marginal heading of Section 190 and the caption of Chapter XIV under which Sections 190 to 199 occur, it is clear that a case can be said to be instituted in a court only when the court takes cognizance of the offence alleged therein. The ways in which such cognizance can be taken are set out in clauses (a), (b) and (c) of Section 190 (1). Whether the Magistrate has or has not taken cognizance of the offence will depend on the circumstances of the particular case including the mode in which the case is sought to be instituted, and the nature of the preliminary action, if any, taken by the Magistrate. Broadly speaking, when on receiving a complaint, the Magistrate applies his mind for the purpose of proceeding under Section 200 and the succeeding sections in Chapter XV of the Code of 1973, he is said to have taken cognizance of the offence within the meaning to Section 190 (1) (a). If, instead of proceeding under Chapter XV, he, has in the judicial exercise of his discretion, taken action of some other kind, such as issuing a search warrant for the purpose of investigation, or ordering investigation by the police under Section 156 (3), he cannot be said to have taken cognizance of any offence."

13. In State of W. B. & Anr. v. Mohd. Khalid & Ors., (1995) 1 SCC 684, the Supreme Court after taking note of the fact that the expression had not been defined in the Code, observed as under: (SCC p. 696 para 43-44)

"43.....Section 190 of the Code talks of cognizance of offences by Magistrates. This expression has not been defined in the Code. In its broad and literal sense, it means taking notice of an offence. This would include the intention of initiating judicial proceedings against the offender in respect of that offence or taking steps to see whether there is any basis for initiating judicial proceedings or for other purposes. The word 'cognizance' indicates the point when a Magistrate or a Judge first takes judicial notice of an offence. It is entirely a different thing from initiation of proceedings; rather it is the condition precedent to the initiation of proceedings by the Magistrate or the Judge. Cognizance is taken of cases and not of persons.

44. Cognizance is defined in Wharton's Law Lexicon 14th Edn., at page 209. It reads:

"Cognizance (Judicial), knowledge upon which a judge is bound to act without having it proved in evidence: as the public statutes of the realm, the ancient history of the realm, the order and course of proceedings in Parliament, the privileges of the House of Commons, the existence of war with a foreign State, the several seals of the King, the Supreme Court and its jurisdiction, and many other things. A Judge is not bound to take cognizance of current events, however notorious, nor of the law of other countries."....

14. In Fakharuddin Ahmad v. State of Uttaranchal (2008) 17 SCC 157, the Supreme Court, considering the scope of expression

"cognizance" it was observed after referring the judgments of cases Ajit Kumar Palit v. State of W.B.2, Emperor v. Sourindra Mohan Chuckerbutty3, Chief Enforcement Officer v. Videocon International Ltd.4 as under: (SCC p. 162- 63 para 16-17)

"16. From the aforenoted judicial pronouncements, it is clear that being an expression of indefinite import, it is neither practicable nor desirable to precisely define as to what is meant by "taking cognizance". Whether the Magistrate has or has not taken cognizance of the offence will depend upon the circumstances of the particular case, including the mode in which the case is sought to be instituted and the nature of the preliminary action.

17. Nevertheless, it is well settled that before the Magistrate can be said to have taken cognizance of an offence, it is imperative that he must have taken notice of the accusations and applied his mind to the allegations made in the complaint or in the police report or the information received from a source other than a police report, as the case may be, and the material filed therewith. It needs little emphasis that it is only when the Magistrate applies his mind and is satisfied that the allegations, if proved, would constitute an offence and decides to initiate proceedings against the alleged offender, that it can be positively stated that he has taken cognizance of the offence. Cognizance is in regard to the offence and not the offender."

15. In Prasad Shrikant Purohit v. State of Maharashtra & Anr. (2015) 7 SCC 440, the Supreme Court has observed as under: (SCC p. 480-81 para 68)

"68. Mr. Lalit, learned counsel in the course of his submissions relied upon Ajit Kumar Palit v. State of W.B.5. In the said decision with reference to the expression "cognizance" a three-Judge Bench of this Court has explained what is really meant by the said expression in the following words in para 19 (AIR p. 770)

"19. ...The word 'cognizance' has no esoteric or mystic significance in criminal law or procedure. It merely means become aware of and when used with reference to a court or Judge, to take notice of judicially. It was stated in Gopal Marwari v. Emperor6, by the learned Judges of the Patna High Court in a passage quoted with approval by this Court in R. R. Chari v. State of U. P.7 (SCR at P. 320: AIR at p. 210) that the word 'cognizance' was used in the Code to indicate the point when the Magistrate or Judge takes judicial notice of an offence and that it was a word of indefinite import, and is not perhaps always used in exactly the same sense. As observed in Sourindra Mohan Chuckerbutty v. Emperor8 (ILR at p. 416 SCC online Cal)

"...taking cognizance does not involve any formal action, or indeed action of any kind; but occurs as soon as a Magistrate, as such, applies his mind to the suspected commission of an offence.'

Where the statute prescribes the materials on which alone the judicial mind shall operate before any steps is taken, obviously the statutory requirement must be fulfilled."

In the above-extracted portion the reference made to the earlier judgment in R. R. Chari's case reported in R.R.Chari9 (AIR at p. 210, para 8) that the word 'cognizance' was used in the Code to indicate the point when the Magistrate or Judge takes judicial notice of an offence throws sufficient light to state that at that very moment when a Magistrate takes judicial notice of an offence, the requirement of cognizance of such offence will get fulfilled. Therefore, the said decision also fully supports our conclusion on the question of taking cognizance by the competent court."

16. Upon keeping in mind the position of law, it is settled that taking cognizance is a well-known but undefined concept in criminal jurisprudence. The Code of Criminal Procedure does not define the word "cognizance". The dictionary meaning of the word "cognizance" is 'judicial hearing of a matter'. Taking cognizance of offence by Magistrate under the Criminal Procedure Code is laid down under Section 190 (1) of the Code. Under that provision a Magistrate may take cognizance of any offence in three different ways, namely, (i) upon receiving a complaint of facts which constitute such offence; (ii) upon a report in writing of such facts made by any police officer; and (iii) upon information received from any person other than a police officer or upon his own knowledge or suspicion, that such offence has been committed. The only restriction contained in Section 190 is that the power to take cognizance is subject to the provisions of this Chapter.

17. This Court in the case of Megh Nath Gupta & Anr. v. State of U.P. & Anr., 2008 (62) ACC 826, after referring the cases of Deputy Chief Controller Import and Export v. Roshan Lal Agarwal10, UP Pollution Control Board v. Mohan Meakins11, Kanti Bhadra v. State of West Bengal12, it has been observed that no speaking order is needed when a court merely takes cognizance or issue summons, although reasons may be required when a complaint is being dismissed and therefore, the attack to the order taking cognizance on the charge sheet passed by the CJM on 28.2.2005 on this ground must be summarily repulsed as devoid of any substance.

18. In the case of Ankit Vs. State of U.P. and another, 13, this Court has observed in para no. 9 that paper No. 31 is the certified copy of the impugned order, which has been initiated by Sri Talevar Singh, the then judicial magistrate-III, Saharanpur. This order has been prepared by filling up the blank on the printed proforma. The blanks in the printed proforma appear to have been filled up by some employee of the Court and the learned magistrate has only put his short signature (initial) above the seal of the Court containing his name. All the details of the case including the name, section, P.S., district, case number and address of the applicant have been filled up by some employee of the Court on the printed proforma. Therefore, this type of the order shows non-application of judicial mind on the part of the learned magistrate passing the same.

19. Similar view has been taken in Jagdish Ram v. State of Rajasthan & Anr.14, The State of Gujarat v. Afroz Mohammed Hasanfatta, AIR 2019 SC 2499. In Afroz Mohd. (supra) the Supreme Court further observed that in a case based upon the police report, the Magistrate is not required to record any reason at the stage of issuing the summons to the accused. In case, if the charge-sheet is barred by law or where there is lack of jurisdiction or when the charge-sheet is rejected or not taken on file, then the Magistrate is required to record his reason for rejection of the charge-sheet and for not taking on the file.

20. In the case of Saurabh Dewana v. State of U.P., 2010 (2) JIC 3 (All), this Court has held that the cognizance on the printed proforma is not a legal cognizance.

21. In the case of Abdul Rasheed & others v. State of U.P. & another, MANU/UP/3138/2010: 2010 (3) JIC 761 (All), this Court observed that judicial orders cannot be allowed to be passed in a mechanical manner either by filling in blank on a printed proforma or by affixing a ready made seal etc. of the order on a plain paper. This reflects not only lack of application of mind to the facts of the case but is also against the settled judicial norms. Therefore, this practice must be stopped forthwith.

22. This Court repeatedly directed that the conduct of the judicial officers concerned in passing cognizance/summoning orders on printed proforma by filling up the blanks without an application of judicial mind is objectionable and deserves to be deprecated and set aside the said orders and matters are remanded back to the concerned court to take fresh cognizance. (Vide: Andul Rasheed & Ors. v. State of U.P.15, Qavi Ahmad v. State of U.P. & Ors.16, Naval Dey Bharti v. State of U.P. & Ors.17, Dushyant Kumar v. State of U.P. & Ors.18, Ashu Rawat v. State of U.P. & Ors.19, Ram Kumar Singh & Ors. v. State of U.P. & Ors.20, Vishnu Kumar Gupta & Ors. v. State of U.P. & Ors.21, Ali Ashraf Quardri & Ors. v. State of U.P. & Ors.22, Anuj Gupta v. State of U.P. & Ors.23, Babu & Ors. v. State of U.P. & Ors.24, Rinki Rastogi & Ors. v. State of U.P. & Ors.25, Surendra Kumar and Ors. v. State of U.P. & Ors.26, Sunil Tyagi v. State of U.P. & Ors.27, Dharmraj & Ors. v. State of U.P. & Ors.28, Pankaj Jaiswal v. State of U.P. & Ors.29, Rubina Khan v. State of U.P. & Ors.30, Sanjay v. State of U.P. & Ors.31, Suresh Babu v. State of U.P. & Ors.32, Abhay Pratap Singh v. State of U.P. & Ors.33, Israil and Ors. v. State of U.P. & Ors.34, Saleem v. State of U.P. & Ors.35, Phoolwanti Devi & Ors. v. State of U.P. & Ors.36, Sunil Kumar Singh v. State of U.P. and Ors.37, Pramod Kumar & Ors. v. State of U.P. & Ors.38)

23. It is a position of law that before a Magistrate can be said to have taken cognizance of an offence, it is imperative that he must take notice of the accusations and apply his mind to the allegations made in the police report. However, a Magistrate is not required to pass a detailed reasoned order at the time of taking cognizance on the charge sheet. But it does not mean that an order of taking cognizance can be passed just by filling up the blanks on a printed proforma. A judicial order cannot be allowed to be passed in a such manner.

24. After considering the facts and keeping in mind the position of law, which have been discussed above, I am satisfied that there is no indication on the application of mind by the learned Magistrate in taking cognizance. The Magistrate passed the impugned order dated 18.9.2019 in a mechanical manner on a printed proforma without applying the judicial mind. Therefore, the impugned order is liable to be set aside. The matter is remitted to the Chief Judicial Magistrate to pass fresh cognizance order in accordance with law after applying judicial mind within two weeks after the production of the certified copy of the judgment.

25. Before parting with the judgment, I am of the view that considering the nature of the issue which arose in the instant case, it would be just and appropriate to direct all the District Judges, and Chief Judicial Magistrates/Chief Metropolitan Magistrates to ensure that the Judicial Magistrates/Judge shall not pass the cognizance order on printed proforma while taking cognizance under Section 190 of the Code.

26. A copy of the instant judgment shall be transmitted by the Registry of this Court to all the District Judges within one week for circulation to all the judicial officers. The office is further directed to enter the judgment in compliance Register maintained for the purpose of the Court.

27. With the aforesaid observations, the present application U/S 482, Cr.P.C. stands disposed off.

(Para 14, 16 and 17)

Writ petition allowed. (E-1)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ajay Bhanot, J.)

1. Heard Shri Sunil Tripathi, learned counsel for the petitioner and Shri Udit Chandra, learned counsel for the respondents.

2. The petitioner is aggrieved by the order dated 11.01.2021 passed by the appellate authority/Employees Provident Fund Appellate Tribunal/CGIT, Shram Bhawan, ATI Campus, Udyog Nagar, Kanpur under Section 7-I of the Employees' Provident Funds and Miscellaneous Provisions Act, 1952, admitting the appeal of the petitioner subject to deposit of 50% of the dues.

3. Shri Sunil Tripathi, learned counsel for the petitioner assailing the order dated 11.01.2021 contends that the petitioner is not liable to deposit any amount on filing of the appeal for two reasons. Firstly only conditional liability was fixed by the assessing authority /Assistant Provident Fund Commissioner, Employees Provident Fund Organization, Varanasi. Secondly, the petitioner is not the principal employer. Thirdly, the order dated 11.01.2021 passed by the appellate authority is devoid of reasons.

4. Shri Udit Chandra, learned counsel for the respondents could not dispute the fact that the order 11.01.2021 passed by the appellate authority/Employees Provident Fund Appellate Tribunal, Kanpur is not supported by any reasons. He submits that the petitioner is liable to make the pre-deposit amount in terms of Section 7-I of the Employees' Provident Funds and Miscellaneous Provisions Act, 1952.

5. Heard learned counsel for the parties.

6. The assessing authority /Assistant Provident Fund Commissioner, Employees Provident Fund Organization, Varanasi, by the order dated 15.01.2020 rendered in proceedings taken out under Section 7A of the Employees' Provident Funds and Miscellaneous Provisions Act, 1952 has found non payment of provident fund dues to the eligible employees. The assessing authority /Assistant Provident Fund Commissioner, Employees Provident Fund Organization, Varanasi in the order dated 15.01.2020 found as follows:

"25. Now, therefore, I, Shahid Iqbal, Assistant Provident Fund Commissioner in exercise of powers conferred on me under Section 7A of the Employees' Provident Funds and Miscellaneous Provisions Act, 1952, having regard to the facts of the case and considering the submissions made before me/evidence on record produced before me, hereby decide that the Establishment, M/s Nishtha Enterprises (together with M/s Nishtha Agency), Varanasi has failed to deposit Provident Fund dues in respect of its eligible employees amounting to Rs.7,84,194/- (Rs. Seven Lakhs Eighty Four Thousand One Hundred and Ninety Four only) for the period October, 2011 to December, 2015. The details of dues is delineated as under:

Period 10/2011 to 12/2015	Total Wages	A/c I	A/c II	A/c X	A/c XXI	A/c XXIII	Total
Total Dues	3094782	4849452	484952	257795	14525	309	784194
Total Paid	NIL	NIL	NIL	NIL	NIL	NIL	NIL
Outstanding Dues	3094782	4849452	26612	257795	14525	309	784194

26. I further order that the above amount of Rs.7,84,194/- (Rs. Seven Lakhs Eighty Four thousand one hundred and ninety four only) assessed u/s 7A of the Act shall be paid by the Establishment within 15 days of the receipt of this order, failing which steps shall be taken to recover the same in the manner as provided u/s 8B to 8G of the said Act. As Establishment has fulfilled the criterion for coverage under the Act and has already been issued a Code Number for compliance, the Establishment shall be liable to pay the aforesaid assessed dues. In case the Establishment fails to do so, the Principal Employer shall be liable to pay the aforesaid assessed dues."

7. Relevant provisions of the Employees' Provident Funds and Miscellaneous Provisions Act, 1952 (hereinafter referred to as the 'Act') read with the Tribunal (Procedure) Rules, 1997 (hereinafter referred to as the 'Rules'), which govern and regulate the filing and processing of appeals, are extracted hereunder:

"Section 2(e) of the Act of 1952 "employer" means-

(I) in relation to an establishment which is a factory, the owner or occupier of the factory, including the agent of such owner or occupier, the legal representative of a deceased owner or occupier and, where a person has been named as a manager of the factory under clause (f) of sub-section (1) of section 7 of the Factories Act, 1948 (63 of 1948), the person so named; and

(ii) in relation to any other establishment, the person who, or the authority which, has the ultimate control over the affairs of the establishment, and where the said affairs are entrusted to a manager, managing director or managing agent, such manager, managing director or managing agent."

"Section 7-I of the Act of 1952. Appeals to Tribunal.- (1) Any person aggrieved by a notification issued by the Central Government, or an order passed by the Central Government or any authority, under the proviso to sub-section (3), or sub-section (4) of section 1, or section 3, or sub-section (1) of section 7A, or section 7B [except an order rejecting an application for review referred to in sub-section (5) thereof], or section 7C, or section 14B, may prefer an appeal to a Tribunal against such notification or order.

(2) Every appeal under sub-section (1) shall be filed in such form and manner, within such time and be accompanied by such fees, as may be prescribed."

"Section 7-O of the Act of 1952. Deposit of amount due, on filing appeal.- No appeal by the employer shall be entertained by a Tribunal unless he has deposited with it seventy-five per cent of the amount due from him as determined by an officer referred to in section 7A:

Provided that the Tribunal may, for reasons to be recorded in writing, waive or reduce the amount to be deposited under this section."

"Rule 7 of the Rules of 1997. Fee, time for filing appeal, deposit of amount due on filing appeal.- (1) Every appeal filed with the Registrar shall be accompanied by a fee of two thousand rupees to be remitted in the form of crossed demand draft on a nationalised bank in favour of the Registrar of the Tribunal and payable at the main branch of that Bank at the station where the seat of the said Tribunal is situated."

(2) Any person aggrieved by a notification issued by the Central Government or an order passed by the Central Government or any other authority under the Act, may within 60 days from the date of issue of the notification/order, prefer an appeal to the Tribunal:

Provided that the Tribunal may, if it is satisfied that the appellant was prevented by sufficient cause from preferring the appeal within the prescribed period, extend the said period by a further period of 60 days :

Provided further that no appeal by the employer shall be entertained by a Tribunal unless he has [deposited with the Tribunal a Demand Draft payable in the Fund and bearing] 75 per cent of the amount due from him as determined under Section 7-A :

Provided also that the Tribunal may for reasons to be recorded in writing, waive or reduce the amount to be deposited under Section 7-O."

8. The Employees' Provident Funds Scheme, 1952 also has a bearing on the controversy, inasmuch as, it contemplates responsibility of the principal employer to pay the employer's contribution and also on behalf of the employees employed by or through a contractor. The provision is extracted hereunder:

"Para 30 of the Scheme of 1952. Payment of contribution.-(1) The employer shall, in the first instance, pay both the contribution payable by himself (in this Scheme referred to as the employer's contribution) and also, on behalf of the member employed by him directly or by or through a contractor, the contribution payable by such member (in this Scheme referred to as the member's contribution).

(2) In respect of employees employed by or through a contractor, the contractor shall recover the contribution payable by such employee (in this Scheme referred to as the member's contribution) and shall pay to the principal employer the amount of member's contribution so deducted together with an equal amount of contribution (in this Scheme referred to as the employer's contribution) and also administrative charges.

(3) It shall be the responsibility of the principal employer to pay both the contribution payable by himself in respect of the employees directly employed by him and also in respect of the employees employed by or through a contractor and also administrative charges.

[Explanation-For the purposes of this paragraph the expression administrative charges" means such percentage of the pay (basic wages, dearness allowance, retaining allowance, if any, and cash value of food concession admissible thereon) for the time being payable to the employees other than an excluded employee, and in respect of which provident fund contributions are payable, as the Central Government may, in consultation with the Central Board and having regard to the resources, of the fund for meeting its normal administrative expenses, fix.]"

9. The provision for pre-deposit amount is a mandatory pre-requisite for entertaining the appeal. However, the appellate authority/Employees Provident Fund Appellate Tribunal/CGIT, Nagar, Kanpur has been vested with powers under Section 7-O of the Act of 1952 read with Rule 7 of the Rules of 1997 to waive or reduce the amount.

10. In the impugned order dated 11.01.2021, the appellate authority/Employees Provident Fund Appellate Tribunal/CGIT, Nagar, Kanpur admitted the appeal subject to deposit of 50% of the dues.

11. The provisions of Section 7-O of the Act of 1952 read with Rule 7 of the Rules of 1997 shall apply whenever an appeal is preferred by the employer. In fact as seen earlier the pre-deposit amount is a necessary pre-condition for entertaining the appeal.

12. The nature of directions issued upon an appellant by the assessing authority/Assistant Provident Fund Commissioner, Employees Provident Fund Organization, Varanasi in the first instance does not exclude the employer / appellant from the embrace of Section 7-O of the Act of 1952 requiring pre-deposit while filing the appeal.

The assessing authority has found that the petitioner is a principal employer. The said finding is in issue before the appellate authority/Employees Provident Fund Appellate Tribunal, Kanpur and the petitioner has raised a ground to that effect in the appeal. The defence of an employer/appellant in appeal does not cease the applicability of the statutory requirement of making the pre-deposit while filing the appeal.

13. Needless to add, the appellant may raise such grounds while making an application for reduction or waiver of the pre-deposit amount. Such application shall be considered on merits. There is one clarification. A full waiver granted by the appellate authority in the facts of a case merely reduces the pre-deposit amount to zero but the appellant remains within the ambit of Section 7-O of the Act of 1952. The first two submissions of behalf of the petitioner are decided in above terms.

14. There is merit in the third submission of Shri Sunil Tripathi, learned counsel for the petitioner that the order passed by the appellate authority is a cryptic one and is non speaking. The petitioner had submitted an application containing grounds for waiving the pre-deposit amount.

15. Under the proviso to Section 7-O of the Act of 1952, the Tribunal may waive or reduce the pre-deposit amount for reasons to be recorded in writing.

16. The appellate authority/Employees Provident Fund Appellate Tribunal/CGIT, Nagar, Kanpur was under an obligation of law to apply its mind to the grounds raised by the petitioner and pass a reasoned order while determining the waiver / reduction of the pre-deposit amount as contemplated under Section 7-O of the Act of 1952.

17. A perusal of the order dated 11.01.2021 passed by the appellate authority/Employees Provident Fund Appellate Tribunal/CGIT, Nagar, Kanpur shows that the appellate authority neglected to consider the grounds raised for waiver of the pre-deposit amount and failed to return any finding thereon. The order of the appellate authority is bereft of reasons. The order dated 11.01.2021 passed by the appellate authority is vitiated by non application of mind.

18. In the wake of preceding discussion, this Court finds that while passing the order dated 11.01.2021, the appellate authority has failed to discharge its obligations under Section 7-O of the Act of 1952. The order dated 11.01.2021 passed by the appellate authority/Employees Provident Fund Appellate Tribunal/CGIT, Nagar, Kanpur is liable to be set aside and is set aside.

19. The matter is remitted to the appellate authority/Employees Provident Fund Appellate Tribunal/CGIT, Nagar, Kanpur with the following directions:

I. The appellate authority/Employees Provident Fund Appellate Tribunal/CGIT, Nagar, Kanpur, shall decide the application for waiver of pre-deposit amount made by the petitioner upon independent application of mind and consistent with the observations made in this judgement and as per law.

II. The exercise shall be completed within a period of two months from the date of receipt of copy of this order downloaded from the official website of the High Court of Judicature at Allahabad along with fresh copy of representation. The concerned Court/ Authority/ Official shall verify the authenticity of such computerized copy of the order from the official website of High Court Allahabad and shall make a declaration of such verification in writing.

III. The petitioner shall be given an opportunity of hearing before any order is passed on the application for waiver made by the petitioner.

20. The writ petition is allowed to the extent indicated above.

4. Meghmala Vs G. Narasimha Reddy; (2010) 8 SCC 383

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ajit Kumar, J.)

1. Heard learned counsels for the parties.

2. By means of present writ petition, the petitioner has challenged the order dated 11.08.2014, whereby, the allotment of fair price shop of the petitioner has been cancelled as well as the order dated 27.11.2015 passed by the appellate rejecting the appeal.

3. Briefly stated facts of the case are that the petitioner is a resident of village Gaura, Block Meh Nagar, District Azamgarh applied for grant of fair price shop pursuant to the advertisement issued on 10.08.2013. The condition as contained in the advertisement regarding the eligibility issued by the Sub-Divisional Magistrate in the advertisement dated 10.08.2013 were five in nature; (i) a candidate must have the available money of Rs. 40,000/- so that pursuant to the allotment he could lift the commodities; (ii) must be of general good reputation; (iii) must be educated enough to maintain the daily business transactions; (iv) must be of 21 years of age and there must not be any other shop allotted to any other member of his family; and (v) must be permanent resident of the village.

4. Pursuant to the above advertisement, the petitioner applied and was one amongst the 18 applicants; the petitioner was selected and was allotted fair price shop with an agreement entered between the State authorities and the petitioner under the order dated 27.10.2013 passed by the Sub-Divisional Magistrate. It appears that one Vinay Kumar Singh along with 4th respondent filed a writ petition before this Court bearing Writ - C No. 62185 of 2013 questioning the allotment of the fair price shop to the petitioner inter alia on the ground that there was a criminal case registered against the petitioner as Case Crime No. 748 of 2007, under Sections 147, 148, 149, 341, 353, 204, 504, 506, 188 IPC and section 7 of the Criminal Law Amendment Act at P.S. Meh Nagar, Azamgarh and which fact according to those petitioners present petitioner who was 8th respondent in the said case had conveniently concealed. According to those complainants as per the Government Order dated 17.08.2002 which provided for eligibility criterian had provided that a candidate should not have a criminal case registered against him and / or should not be a convicted person in any criminal case. The Division Bench took notice of the argument of the counsels for the parties, particularly the argument advanced by the counsel of the present petitioner who was 8th respondent in the said case, that there were many men in the name of Ram Nath in the village and therefore, it could not be said that the case had been registered against him or that he was involved in the said criminal case. The writ petition was finally disposed of vide order dated 06.05.2014 directing the Sub-Divisional Magistrate, Meh Nagar, Azamgarh to decide the disputed question of facts regarding registration of FIR and as to whether the documents were duly filed by 8th respondent in the said case, for the purposes of allotment and were available on record on the date of selection or not and it was further provided that the Sub-Divisional Magistrate shall afford proper opportunity of hearing to the parties. The relevant portion of the judgment/ order of this Court dated 06.05.2018 is reproduced hereunder:

"The submission of Sri Anil Bhushan against the impugned order is mainly on two grounds. He states that the last date for filing the relevant documents under the advertisement issued in Rashtriya Sahara newspaper was 16.08.2013, however, while referring to the list prepared by the Committee appointed for such consideration filed as Annexure-4 to the writ petition dated 16.08.2013 clearly indicates that the Respondent No.8, Ram Nath Yadav had not filed his income certificate, caste certificate, domicile certificate, character certificate and earnest money. He states that in the absence of the necessary requirement as contemplated under the advertisement the shop could not have been allotted to the Respondent No.8, Ram Nath Yadav.

The second submission is that Ram Nath Yadav is facing a criminal charges and therefore in light of the Government Order dated 17.08.2002 filed as Annexure No.8 to the writ petition, the Respondent No.8 against whom criminal proceedings are pending was not eligible. He submits that neither of these two conditions were considered by the Committee appointed for second fair price shop in the village and hence the impugned order is not in accordance with law.

Sri Ashish Agrawal, learned counsel for the Respondent No.8 has disputed the submission and submits that the time of submitting the relevant certificates was extended inasmuch as the same facility was extended to the petitioner himself and therefore the petitioner cannot now assail the impugned order on that ground. Insofar as the criminal proceedings against the Respondent No.8 are concerned Sri Ashish Agrawal denies the same on the ground that in the F.I.R. the name of Ram Nath is there and there are several persons by the name of Ram Nath in the village and therefore it is not the Respondent No.8, Ram Nath Yadav son of Udai Yadav who is the person mentioned in the F.I.R.

We have considered the submission of learned counsel for the parties and perused the record. Highly disputed question of fact has been raised in the writ petition by the petitioner as also the contesting-Respondent No.8. Whether the time for filing the documents before the Committee were extended after 16.08.2013 is a fact which can be determined only from a perusal of the record of the proceedings which are not available before us in this writ petition.

Secondly, whether the Respondent No.8, Ram Nath Yadav is the person mentioned in the said F.I.R. so as to be disqualified under the Government Order is also a question of consideration after sufficient evidence has been brought before the Authority and considered by it. Such evidence being not available on the record we cannot adjudicate such highly disputed question of fact. Therefore, this writ petition is finally disposed of by providing that the petitioner as also the Respondent No.8, Ram Nath Yadav may approach the Sub Divisional Magistrate, Mehnagar raising their respective grievance against the impugned order dated 22.10.2013 within a period of four weeks from today alongwith a certified copy of this order and in case the same is done the Respondent No.5, Sub Divisional Magistrate, Mehnagar, District Azamgarh should afford opportunity of hearing to the petitioner as also the Respondents No.8 & 9 and having done so decide the said objections in accordance with law within one month thereafter.The impugned order will be subject to such decision taken by the Sub Divisional Magistrate, Mehnagar, District Azamgarh.

It is made clear that we have not expressed our opinion on the merits of the submission made by learned counsel for the parties against the impugned order dated 22.10.2013 and that has to be considered by the Sub Divisional Magistrate, Mehnagar, District Azamgarh in accordance with law.

The writ petition is accordingly disposed of.

No order is passed as to costs."

(Emphasis added)

5. The Sub-Divisional Magistrate, in compliance of the order of this Court, directed the petitioner to file his objection to the complaint made along with order of the High Court dated 15.05.2014 (annexure No. 7 to the writ petition), the petitioner submitted reply on 11.06.2014. The Sub Divisional Magistrate ultimately after perusal of the record and the objections, found that the petitioner had in fact concealed the material fact regarding registration of criminal case and, therefore, he violated condition no. 10-Gha of the Government Order dated 17.08.2002 and so the fair price shop license was cancelled vide order dated 11.08.2014. The petitioner preferred appeal, which met the same facts.

6. The argument of learned counsel for the petitioner is two fold: (a) the petitioner did not conceal any material fact because the information that he was required to furnish pursuant to the advertisement dated 10.08.2013, had been duly furnished by him and nothing had come in the impugned order that he did not furnish opinion as per the advertisement; and (b) that the fair price shop license of the petitioner could not be cancelled merely because of registration of criminal case in the light of the judgment of the Division Bench of this Court in the case of Smt. Raj Kumari Singh v. State of U.P. and others 2011 (3) ALJ 140; has placed heavy reliance to paras 5 and 8 of the said judgment and also the Full Bench judgment of this Court in Misc. Single No. 8033 of 2013, Bajrangi Tiwari v. State of U.P. and others (decided on 05.03.2018), wherein it has been held that fair price shop of a licensee could not be cancelled resorting to the procedure prescribed under the Government Order of the year 2002 as the subsequent Government Order has come on 29.07.2014 and any action should be taken under the said Government Order only.

7. The Full Bench decision according to learned counsel for the petitioner reiterates on both the questions referred before the said Full Bench whether lodging of criminal case would result in cancellation of fair price shop license and also whether the fair price shop license could have been cancelled in the light of para 10 of the Government Order dated 07.08.2002 and the Full Bench have negatived both the questions referred. Thus, the argument is that the fair price shop license of the petitioner has been wholly illegally cancelled for utter disregard of the rules and the authorities have acted in clear error of law in the light of Division Bench and Full Bench judgments of this Court (supra).

8. Per contra, learned counsel for the respondents is that the factually the position in the present case is different because it is a case where license has been obtained by concealing material facts and therefore, the judgments cited would not be applicable in the present case. He has further argued that the fraud vitiates every solemn proceedings and no right can flow from fraud. While advancing the argument on the said premise, learned counsel for the respondents reiterates that for the purposes of allotment of fair price shop license, it is the rule that will govern the procedure and not the advertisement. He submits that advertisement lays down only five conditions but ultimately the authority while evaluating an application has to examine as to whether the application is in line with the rules or not. He argues that no one can be permitted to take the plea of ignorance of law. He further argues that before the Division Bench the argument was advanced that there were many men in the name of Ram Nath and petitioner would not be the one named in the first information report, whereas, on the date of argument being advanced on behalf of the petitioner before the Division Bench i.e. 06.05.2014, the charge sheet had already been submitted in the said criminal case and the petitioner was very much aware of the said fact. Therefore, according to him it was a case of deliberate attempt to mislead the court as well. According to him, over all conduct of the petitioner in the present case has been of hide and seek and the plea of innocence deserves to be rejected.

9. Having heard learned counsels for the parties and having perused the records, I find that the basic question that arises for consideration is whether a fair price shop license could have been granted to the petitioner while he submitted the application concealing the fact that there was a criminal case registered against him. The Government Order of the year 2002 lays down the selection procedure and in the said Government Order, one of the conditions vide Clause 10-D(Gha) is that there should not be any criminal case registered and/ or one should not be convicted. The relevant condition 10 of the Government Order is reproduced hereunder:

"10. ग्राणीण क्षेत्र में राशन की दुकानों का चयन निम्नलिखित अनिवार्य अर्हताओं एवं शर्तो को दृष्टिगत रखते हुए किया जायेगाः-

(क) अभ्यर्थी के खाते में कम से कम 40 हजार रूपया उपलब्ध हो ताकि वह अपनी दुकान को आवंटित एक माह की सामग्री का एक बार में उठान करने के लिए आर्थिक रूप से सक्षम हो।

(ख) सामान्य ख्याति अच्छी हो।

(ग) शिक्षित हो ताकि वह दुकान का हिसाब किताब सही रूप से रख सकें।

(घ) अभ्यर्थी के विरूद्ध कोई आपराधिक मामले पंजीकृत न हो और न ही वह किसी आपराधिक मामले में दण्डित किया गया हो।

(ड़) अभ्यर्थी की आयु 21 वर्ष से अधिक हो और परिवार में किसी अन्य सदस्य के नाम कोई दुकान आवंटित न हो।

(च) दुकानदार स्थानीय निवासी हो।

(छ) अभ्यर्थी द्वारा 1000/- रूपये की अर्नेसट मनी का बैक ड्राफ्ट जिलापूर्ति अधिकारी के पक्ष में जमा किया जायेगा। उपरोक्त अर्नेस्ट मनी दुकानों के आवंटन की स्थिति में प्रतिभूति राशि में समायोजित कर ली जायेगी।

(झ) यदि दुकानदार अच्छी ख्याती का हो तो उसकी मृत्यु के उपरान्त दुकान का आवंटन उसके आश्रित को करने पर विचार किया जा सकता है। आश्रित का तात्पर्य पत्नी, पुत्र तथा अविवाहित पुत्र से है।"

10. The petitioner in the writ petition does not dispute that the charge sheet in the said criminal case in which he was named, was submitted as far after back as on 11.02.2008 i.e. almost more than 5 years before the advertisement and the fact also that the summoning order was issued against him on 02.04.2008. Petitioner has brought on record the order dated 30.03.2017 by means of supplementary affidavit passed by the Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Court No. 12, Azamgarh by which in the said criminal case against all the accused persons including the petitioner, have been acquitted.

11. Thus, the registration of the criminal case was well within the knowledge of the petitioner on the date of advertisement and now he cannot take the plea that he was not aware of the said criminal case. Even in the reply to the complaint made in pursuance to the order of this Court in Writ - C No. 62185 of 2013, the petitioner has nowhere stated that he was not aware about the criminal case at the time he had made an application for allotment of fair price shop. So the plea, therefore, taken even before the Division Bench on 06.05.2014 on his behalf was nothing but an attempt to mislead the Court on facts.

12. The question now is whether the Division Bench in the case of Smt. Raj Kumari Singh (supra) is attracted in the present case or not. In the said case, the factual position was different; the fair price shop dealer was already enjoying the license when the first information report came to be lodged under Section 3/7 of Essential Commodities Act on 01.09.2009 and it is on the basis of said FIR, the fair price shop license in the said case was cancelled. It is in that above factual background that the Court held that mere lodging of FIR would not result in an automatic conviction of the fair price shop dealer and therefore, it would not be justified in law to cancel the fair price shop license on that ground. Para 5 and 8 of the said judgment are quoted herein under:

"5. Nothing has been brought to our attention that the said judgment has been overruled. Even otherwise, we are of the opinion that the said conclusion cannot be faulted for the reason that mere filing of a F.I.R. cannot result in holding a fair price shop owner guilty of the offences charged. If there be a conviction, then it is possible to proceed, based on the conviction and not otherwise. In case if the F.I.R. is lodged, it is still open to the respondents to proceed by leading independent evidence and statements of the persons recorded.

8. Even otherwise we may point out that a reading of the order dated 10.8.2010 discloses total non application of mind. The said order purports to cancel the license merely on the ground of lodging of an F.I.R. and that suspension is going on for a long time thereby causing inconvenience in distribution of essential commodities to the card holders. The said reasons cannot be justified in law to cancel the dealership."

13. From the bare perusal of the law discussed by their Lordships in the said case, it is nowhere held dealing with the aspect of the matter that whether a fair price shop license if obtained concealing the material fact of a pending criminal case would also not be liable to cancellation, and therefore, in the considered opinion of the Court, the legal position as has emerged in the said judgment is not attracted in the present case and the judgment is of no help to the petitioner.

14. Coming to the Full Bench judgment of this Court in the case of Bajrangi Tiwari (supra), facts of the case are noticing that even in the said case while the Full Bench was seized with the two questions framed therein a fair price shop dealer was already enjoying the fair price shop license since long when on 03.05.2011 some villagers made a complaint with regard to irregularities in distribution of essential commodities from his fair price shop and on the said basis some inquiry was conducted and report was submitted on14.06.2011 and license was suspended. Ultimately, it was cancelled on the ground tht the petitioner was involved in some case in Case Crime No. 267 of 2011 under various sections of IPC including section 3(2)5 SC/ST Act and therefore, the question arose before the Full Bench whether in such circumstances where a person enjoying fair price shop license since long and FIR came to be registered subsequently in the year 2011, the Prescribed Authority was justified in cancelling the fair price shop license taking recourse to the provsiions of Section 10-D of the Government Order. The two questions framed by the Full Bench are reproduced hereunder:

"1. Whether the fair price shop licence can be cancelled merely on lodging of a criminal case against the licencee?; and

2. Whether, while passing any such order the Government Order dated 17.8.2002, particularly para - 10 of said Government Order would be applicable/ considered or not?"

15. The Full Bench discussed the law at length and considered the two Government Orders dated 17.08.2002 and 29.07.2014 and came to record that the procedure for cancellation of fair price shop license has to be followed only in the light of Government Order dated 29.07.2014 and not 17.08.2002.

16. Having gone through the judgment of Full Bench, I find that the proposition laid down by the Full Bench is absolutely correct and in tune with the provisions of two Government Orders. The first deals with the eligibility criterian and grant of license whereas, the second one deals with the procedure to be followed for cancellation of such license. The Full Bench answered both the questions in negative: once the fair price shop license has been given, the same cannot be cancelled taking recourse to the provisions of section 10-D that a criminal case is registered against the licensee; and that mere lodging of the criminal case would not result in automatic cancellation. The wide proposition of law as has been discussed and laid down by the Full Bench of this Court only leads to one conclusion that in case if the fair price shop license is already being enjoyed by a licensee, such a license should be cancelled only by resorting the procedure prescribed under the Government Order of 2014, but here the question is different. The Full Bench has not held that the Government Order dated 17.08.2002 was bad or was absolutely inapplicable. The two Government Orders deal with different situation: one is for the purposes of eligibility criterian and allotment; and the other is for cancellation. Here I am dealing with the case where allotment has been obtained by concealing the material fact as one of the conditions under the Government Order for the purposes of allotment was that one should not have criminal case registered against him. The word 'and' should be read as 'or' appearing under Section 10-D of the Government Order and therefore, the condition is that if a crimianl case is registered against a person, he would be disqualified and/ or a person if convicted in a criminal case, the said person would also be equally disqualified.

17. Here is a case where concealment or non disclosure for that matter of the criminal case against the petitioner has been made in his application. The advertisement would abide by the ultimate rules that are framed and the Full Bench having not held that for the puproses of allotment the procedure under the Government Order of 2002 would not be followed, I am of the considered opinion that the Government Order in the present case is fully attracted. The petitioner having not disclosed the pendency of the criminal case in which he was already facing charge sheet, the petitioner conveniently and deliberately concealed this fact and this conduct of his amounts to a fraud and therefore, in view of the Apex Court judgment in the case of Shrishti Dhawan v. Shaw Bros. (1992) 1 SCC 534 : AIR 1992 SC 1555, wherein it has been held that fraud and collusion vitiate even the most solemn proceedings in any civilised system of jurisprudence. It has been defined as an act of trickery or deceit, every order obtained by fraud or benefit taken under fraud cannot confer any right or create any decision. However, in the case of Meghmala v. G. Narasimha Reddy (2010) 8 SCC 383 the Apex Court, in paragraph nos. 32 to 36 has observed thus:

"32. The ratio laid down by this Court in various cases is that dishonesty should not be permitted to bear the fruit and benefit to the persons who played fraud or made misrepresentation and in such circumstances the Court should not perpetuate the fraud. (See District Collector & Chairman, Vizianagaram Social Welfare Residential School Society, Vizianagaram & Anr. Vs. M. Tripura Sundari Devi (1990) 3 SCC 655; Union of India & Ors. Vs. M. Bhaskaran (1995) Suppl. 4 SCC 100; Vice Chairman, Kendriya Vidyalaya Sangathan & Anr. Vs. Girdharilal Yadav (2004) 6 SCC 325; State of Maharashtra v. Ravi Prakash Babulalsing Parmar (2007) 1 SCC 80; Himadri Chemicals Industries Ltd. Vs. Coal Tar Refining Company AIR 2007 SC 2798; and Mohammed Ibrahim & Ors. Vs. State of Bihar & Anr. (2009) 8 SCC 751).

33. Fraud is an intrinsic, collateral act, and fraud of an egregious nature would vitiate the most solemn proceedings of courts of justice. Fraud is an act of deliberate deception with a design to secure something, which is otherwise not due. The expression "fraud" involves two elements, deceit and injury to the person deceived. It is a cheating intended to get an advantage. (Vide Dr. Vimla Vs. Delhi Administration AIR 1963 SC 1572; Indian Bank Vs. Satyam Fibres (India) Pvt. Ltd. (1996) 5 SCC 550; State of Andhra Pradesh Vs. T. Suryachandra Rao AIR 2005 SC 3110; K.D. Sharma Vs. Steel Authority of India Ltd. & Ors. (2008) 12 SCC 481; and Regional Manager, Central Bank of India Vs. Madhulika Guruprasad Dahir & Ors. (2008) 13 SCC 170).

34. An act of fraud on court is always viewed seriously. A collusion or conspiracy with a view to deprive the rights of the others in relation to a property would render the transaction void ab initio. Fraud and deception are synonymous. Although in a given case a deception may not amount to fraud, fraud is anathema to all equitable principles and any affair tainted with fraud cannot be perpetuated or saved by the application of any equitable doctrine including res judicata. Fraud is proved when it is shown that a false representation has been made (i) knowingly, or (ii) without belief in its truth, or (iii) recklessly, careless whether it be true or false. Suppression of a material document would also amount to a fraud on the court. (Vide S.P. Changalvaraya Naidu (supra); Gowrishankar & Anr. Vs. Joshi Amba Shankar Family Trust & Ors. AIR 1996 SC 2202; Ram Chandra Singh Vs. Savitri Devi & Ors. (2003) 8 SCC 319; Roshan Deen Vs. Preeti Lal AIR 2002 SC 33; Ram Preeti Yadav Vs. U.P. Board of High School & Intermediate Education AIR 2003 SC 4628; and Ashok Leyland Ltd. Vs. State of Tamil Nadu & Anr. AIR 2004 SC 2836).

35. In kinch Vs. Walcott (1929) AC 482:1929 AII ER Rep 720 (PC) it has been held that

"....mere constructive fraud is not, at all events after long delay, sufficient but such a judgment will not be set aside upon mere proof that the judgment was obtained y perjury."

Thus, detection/discovery of constructive fraud at a much belated stage may not be sufficient to set aside the judgment procured by perjury.

36. From the above, it is evident that even in judicial proceedings, once a fraud is proved, all advantages gained by playing fraud can be taken away. In such an eventuality the questions of non-executing of the statutory remedies or statutory bars like doctrine of res judicata are not attracted. Suppression of any material fact/document amounts to a fraud on the court. Every court has an inherent power to recall its own order obtained by fraud as the order so obtained is non est."

18. Thus, in view of the above legal position and the factual position emerging in the present case, the petitioner having obtained the fair price shop license by concealing material fact, has virtually played fraud and would not be entitled to any benefit coming out of the same. The petitioner's fair price shop license has rightly been cancelled. The plea of the petitioner that he was ignorant of rules would not be acceptable as the legal position, as has rightly been argued by learned counsel for the resopndent, is that nobody can take the plea of ignorance of law or the rules.

19. The further plea of the petitioner that a case was registered by the State and the State found it to be not appropriate and had proceeded to lift the same, would not change the situation either. The fact remains that the petitioner had obtained the license of the fair price shop and on the said date the charge sheet was pending against him and it would be sufficient enough to hold that the fair price shop license had been obtained by such means which would not have the approval of law.

20. However, this Court at the same time holds that since the crimianl case against the petitioner has been lifted by the State prosecution and the Chief Judicial Magistrate has discharged him under its order dated 12.03.2017 in criminal case arising out of case crime no. 748 of 2007, it is hereby provided that in future the said crimianl case will not come in the way of petitioner in applying for fair price shop license, if any advertisement is issued and the applications are invited.

21. Subject to the aforesaid observations, the writ petition fails and is accordingly dismissed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Jayant Banerji, J.)

1. Heard Ms. Aarushi Khare, learned counsel for the applicants and perused the record.

2. This application has been filed praying for appointment of an independent Arbitrator under Section 11 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 19961. The opposite parties are as follows:- (I) Chief Engineer, Bhopal Zone, Sultania Infantry Lines, Bhopal-462001, (II) Engineer-in-Chief, Branch Army Head Quarter, New Delhi, (III) Commander Works Engineer, Military Engineer Services, Jhansi, and, (IV) Garrison Engineer, Military Engineer Services, Jhansi-284001, U.P.

3. The applicants and the opposite parties entered into a contract under a Contract Agreement No.CEJZ/JHA-05. Since a dispute arose between the parties, under clause 70 of the general conditions of the aforesaid agreement which provides for arbitration, the competent authority-opposite party no.2 appointed one Mr. Baljit Singh as the sole Arbitrator under the terms of the arbitration agreement, who made the final award on 25.02.2010.

4. The aforesaid award was challenged before the District Judge, Jhansi by means of an application under Section 34 of the Act (Arbitration Misc. Case No.20/2010) for setting aside the award. By an order dated 16.09.2019, the Court allowed the application, set aside the award dated 25.02.2010, and remitted the matter back to the Arbitrator to reconsider all the issues raised before the Court in light of the terms of the contract as well as the issue regarding extension of period for completion of work of IIIrd Phase and to pass the award afresh.

5. However, thereafter, the Arbitrator Mr. Baljit Singh resigned and withdrew from the aforesaid arbitration proceedings citing his ineligibility to continue as Arbitrator as he had retired, and only a serving officer could be an Arbitrator as per the agreement.

6. It is contended by the learned counsel for the applicants that despite repeated reminders to the opposite parties, no substitute Arbitrator is being appointed by them and, therefore, this application has been filed.

7. When the matter was listed on 23.09.2021, the learned counsel for the applicants sought adjournment to address the Court on the issue of maintainability of the application. Learned counsel has thus made her submissions on the issue of maintainability.

8. A query was made by the Court to the learned counsel for the applicants that whether the Court exercising jurisdiction under Section 34 of the Act, had power to remand the matter to the Arbitrator after setting aside the arbitral award dated 25.02.2010, and if not, whether the present application would be maintainable. The learned counsel for the applicants referred to Sections 14 and 15 of the Act, and contended that since the matter has been remanded, and since the Arbitrator withdrew from his office, his mandate stood terminated, and, therefore, under Section 15(2) of the Act, a substitute Arbitrator is required to be appointed. It is, therefore, contended that under the facts of the case, since the award has been set aside, an Arbitrator would anyway be required to be appointed and therefore, the present application would be maintainable. Learned counsel has referred to the judgement of the Supreme Court in McDermott International Inc. v. Burn Standard Company Ltd. and others2.

9. On perusal of the order passed by the court below on 16.09.2019 on the application filed by the applicants under Section 34 of the Act, it is evident that the award passed by the Arbitrator on 25.02.2010 was set aside and the matter was remitted back to the Arbitrator to reconsider all the issues raised before the court in light of the terms of the contract as well as the issue regarding extension of period for completion of work of Phase-III and to pass the award afresh. The relevant extract of the order of the Court below is quoted :-

"12. A perusal of Impugned award reveals that the Arbitrator has rejected the claim of applicant/firm for want of extension of period for completion of work for III phase, while the applicant/firm has vehemently submitted that extension of time was recommended by Chief Engineer, Jabalpur, who was the competent authority under the contract to extend the period for completion of any work, which itself amounts to extension of period. Admittedly, the applicant/firm has completed the work of III phase as per the agreement. The dispute is only with regard to extension of period for completion of work of III phase. When the applicant/firm has completed the work of III phase without any interruption from the side of opposite parties, though without extension of period as alleged by the opposite parties, but it would draw adverse presumption against the opposite parties that they were conceded to the request of applicant/firm for extension of period, otherwise they would have stopped the work of III phase.

The Arbitrator, while passing the impugned award, has not given a detailed finding on this fact; rather rejected the claim of the applicant/firm for want of extension of period for completion of work. Further, the Arbitrator has also not taken into consideration the terms of contract for deduction of sales tax @ 4% instead of 1% from the final bill. He also failed in consider the applicability of VAT, which was allegedly enforced after completion of work on 27.09.1993. The Arbitrator has committed gross error of law in rejecting the claim of the applicant without considering these legal issues in the light of terms of contract. Hence, there appears some substance in the argument of learned counsel for the applicant/firm that matter requires reconsideration in the light of terms of contract.

Thus, in view of the above discussion, it is proved that award suffers from illegality and infirmity, as it has been passed without considering the points being raised by applicant/firm at the time of hearing before Arbitrator. Hence, the impugned award requires reconsideration in terms of the contract.

ORDER

Application 3B for setting aside the award dated 25.02.2010 is allowed with no order as to cost. The award dated 25.02.2010 is hereby set aside. The matter is remitted back to the Arbitrator to reconsider all the issues being raised before this Court in the light of terms of contract as well as the issue regarding extension of period for completion of work of III phase and to pass the award afresh, as early as possible. Let the record of Arbitrator, if any, be sent back along with a copy of this judgment forthwith."

10. Thus the Court below, while affirming that an award by the arbitrator cannot be modified, set aside the award, and proceeded to hold that the matter requires reconsideration in light of the terms of the contract, and remitted the case to the arbitrator.

11. A three Judge Bench of the Supreme Court in the case of Kinnari Mullick and Another vs. Ghanshyam Das Damani3 has held that no power has been invested by Parliament in the Court to remand the matter to the Arbitral Tribunal except to adjourn the proceedings for the limited purpose mentioned in sub-section (4) of Section 34 of the Act. It was further held that the limited discretion available to the Court under Section 34(4) of the Act can be exercised only upon a written application made in that behalf by a party to the arbitration proceedings. The relevant paragraphs of the judgment of Kinnari Mullick and Another (supra) are quoted below:-

"6. Being dissatisfied with the interim award dated 27-8-2010 and final award dated 18-6-2013 passed by the Arbitral Tribunal, the appellants filed an application under Section 34 of the Act, for setting aside of the said awards. The learned Single Judge was pleased to allow the said application on the finding that the impugned award did not disclose any reason in support thereof. The impugned award was accordingly set aside and the parties were left to pursue their remedies in accordance with law. The relevant portion of the decision of the learned Single Judge reads thus: (Kinnari case, SCC OnLine Cal para 9)

"9. Since the present award is completely lacking in reasons and is littered with the unacceptable expressions like "I feel that the claim is justified", "I find no basis" and the like which cannot be supplement for reasons that the statute demands, AP No. 1074 of 2013 is allowed by setting aside the award dated 18-6-2013. The parties are left free to pursue their remedies in accordance with law."

7. Against the aforementioned decision, the respondent preferred an appeal before the Division Bench of the High Court of Calcutta. The appellants also filed a cross-objection in respect of the adverse findings recorded by the learned Single Judge against them. The cross-objection bearing APO No. 223 of 2014 and APOT No. 318 of 2014 were heard and decided together by the Division Bench vide the impugned judgment dated 13-8-2014. The Division Bench affirmed the findings and conclusion recorded by the learned Single Judge that the award did not contain any reason whatsoever and thus rejected the appeal preferred by the respondent, in the following words: (Ghanshyam Das case, SCC OnLine Cal)

"We have considered the rival contentions. Section 31 is clear that it would require the Tribunal to assign reason. The award would suffer from such lacunae. We would not be in a position to agree with Mr Sharma when he would contend, it was reasoned, but reasons might have been insufficient.

The learned Judge observed:

"The award does not indicate a line or sentence of reasons and notwithstanding the petitioners herein, having pulled out of the reference and not urging their counter-statement or any defence to the claim, it was still incumbent on the arbitrator to indicate the grounds on which the respondents were entitled to succeed.'

We fully endorse what his Lordship would say as quoted (supra). Hence, the appeal fails on such count."

8. While considering the cross-objection filed by the appellants, the Division Bench negatived the ground urged before it about the inappropriate and illegal constitution of the Arbitral Tribunal. As a result, the cross-objection filed by the appellants was also rejected. Having decided as above, the Division Bench suo motu decided to relegate the parties before the Arbitral Tribunal by sending the award back with a direction to assign reasons in support of its award. It will be useful to reproduce the observations of the Division Bench in this regard. The same reads thus: (Ghanshyam Das case, SCC OnLine Cal)

"On the cross-objection we would, however, agree with Mr Sharma when he would draw our attention to Section 13. The learned Judge, in our view, rightly rejected the contention of the respondents. The challenge procedure as spelt out in Section 13 would refer to constitution of the Tribunal as well. Section 4 would clearly provide, if a party knowing his right does not take any step that would debar him to object at a later stage as if he shall be deemed to have waived his right to object.

... Section 34 would empower the Court to remit the award to the arbitrator, at a stage when the award was under challenge, to eliminate the ground for setting aside of the arbitral award. Applying such provision we send the award back to the arbitrator with a direction, he must assign reason to support his award. However, we wish to give the arbitrator a free hand. If he feels, further hearing to be given to the parties, he may do so and upon hearing, he may publish his award in accordance with law adhering to the norms and procedures laid down under the said 1996 Act without being influenced by the award that the learned Judge already set aside.

The appeal is dismissed without any order as to costs."

13. We have heard the learned counsel for the parties. At the outset, we may note that if the plea taken by the appellants in relation to the concluding part of the impugned judgment--of sending the award back to the Arbitral Tribunal for recording reasons--was to be accepted, we may not be required to dilate on any other argument. Inasmuch as the learned Single Judge allowed the application under Section 34 of the Act for setting aside of the award preferred by the appellants; and the Division Bench has already affirmed the conclusion recorded by the learned Single Judge while dismissing the appeal preferred by the respondent. Thus, the award has been set aside on that count. The respondent has not challenged that part of the impugned judgment and has allowed it to become final.

14. In this backdrop, the question which arises is: whether the highlighted portion in the operative part of the impugned judgment of the Division Bench can be sustained in law? For that, we may advert to Section 34(4) of the Act which is the repository of power invested in the Court. The same reads thus:

"34. (4) On receipt of an application under sub-section (1), the court may, where it is appropriate and it is so requested by a party, adjourn the proceedings for a period of time determined by it in order to give the Arbitral Tribunal an opportunity to resume the arbitral proceedings or to take such other action as in the opinion of Arbitral Tribunal will eliminate the grounds for setting aside the arbitral award."

15. On a bare reading of this provision, it is amply clear that the Court can defer the hearing of the application filed under Section 34 for setting aside the award on a written request made by a party to the arbitration proceedings to facilitate the Arbitral Tribunal by resuming the arbitral proceedings or to take such other action as in the opinion of the Arbitral Tribunal will eliminate the grounds for setting aside the arbitral award. The quintessence for exercising power under this provision is that the arbitral award has not been set aside. Further, the challenge to the said award has been set up under Section 34 about the deficiencies in the arbitral award which may be curable by allowing the Arbitral Tribunal to take such measures which can eliminate the grounds for setting aside the arbitral award. No power has been invested by Parliament in the Court to remand the matter to the Arbitral Tribunal except to adjourn the proceedings for the limited purpose mentioned in sub-section (4) of Section 34. This legal position has been expounded inMcDermott International Inc. In para 8 of the said decision, the Court observed thus: (Bhaskar Industrial case, SCC OnLine Kar)

"8. ... Parliament has not conferred any power of remand to the Court to remit the matter to the Arbitral Tribunal except to adjourn the proceedings as provided under sub-section (4) of Section 34 of the Act. The object of sub-section (4) of Section 34 of the Act is to give an opportunity to the Arbitral Tribunal to resume the arbitral proceedings or to enable it to take such other action which will eliminate the grounds for setting aside the arbitral award."

16. In any case, the limited discretion available to the Court under Section 34(4) can be exercised only upon a written application made in that behalf by a party to the arbitration proceedings. It is crystal clear that the Court cannot exercise this limited power of deferring the proceedings before it suo motu. Moreover, before formally setting aside the award, if the party to the arbitration proceedings fails to request the Court to defer the proceedings pending before it, then it is not open to the party to move an application under Section 34(4) of the Act. For, consequent to disposal of the main proceedings under Section 34 of the Act by the Court, it would become functus officio. In other words, the limited remedy available under Section 34(4) is required to be invoked by the party to the arbitral proceedings before the award is set aside by the Court.

17. In the present case, the learned Single Judge had set aside the award vide judgment dated 7-3-2014. Indeed, the respondent carried the matter in appeal before the Division Bench. Even if we were to assume for the sake of argument, without expressing any opinion either way on the correctness of this assumption, that the appeal was in continuum of the application under Section 34 for setting aside of the award and therefore, the Division Bench could be requested by the party to the arbitral proceedings to exercise its discretion under Section 34(4) of the Act, the fact remains that no formal written application was filed by the respondent before the Division Bench for that purpose. In other words, the respondent did not make such a request before the learned Single Judge in the first instance and also failed to do so before the Division Bench rejected the appeal of the respondent."

12. In the aforesaid judgement of the Supreme Court in Kinnari Mullick (supra) it has been held that the Court can defer the hearing of the application filed under Section 34 of the Act for setting aside the award on a written request made by a party to the arbitration proceedings to facilitate the Arbitral Tribunal by resuming the arbitral proceedings or to take such other action as in the opinion of the Arbitral Tribunal will eliminate the grounds for setting aside the arbitral award. The power under Section 34 (4) of the Act can be exercised so long the arbitral award is not set aside. No power has been invested in the Court to remand the matter to the arbitral tribunal except to adjourn the proceedings for the limited purpose mentioned in sub-section (4) of Section 34 of the Act. It was further held that consequent to disposal of the main proceedings under Section 34 of the Act by the Court, it would become functus officio. The judgement in the matter of McDermott International Inc.(supra), which has been relied upon by the Supreme Court in the case of Kinnari Mullick (supra), is of no assistance to the applicants.

13. It is pertinent to mention here that the Supreme Court, in the case of Project Director, National Highways v. M. Hakeem & another4 (para. 28), has relied upon a judgement of the Delhi High Court in Puri Construction P. Ltd. v. Larsen and Tubro Ltd.5 in which it was held that the power to modify, vary or remit the award does not exist under Section 34 of the Act.

14. Therefore, the order passed by the Court on 16.09.2019 under Section 34 of the Act remitting the matter back to the Arbitrator to reconsider all the issues would be beyond the statutory mandate conferred on the Court and is thus without jurisdiction.

15. In view of the facts of the present case, after making the final arbitral award, given the provisions of sub-Section (1) of Section 32 and subject to sub-Section (3) of Section 32 of the Act, the mandate of the arbitral tribunal stood terminated with the termination of the arbitral proceedings. Thereafter, the Arbitrator became functus officio, and, therefore, remitting the matter back to him by the Court to reconsider all the issues is not permissible.

16. The last letter written by the applicant to the opposite parties on 22.03.2021, which is enclosed as Annexure-7 to the present application, demands the appointment of a substitute sole Arbitrator. In the present case, just because after remission of the case to the arbitral tribunal the Arbitrator has resigned and withdrawn from that case, does not result in termination of his mandate as envisaged in Sections 14 and 15 of the Act. It is pertinent to mention here that under the facts and circumstances of the present case, since the arbitrator has been rendered functus officio, there exists no occasion to invoke the provisions of Sections 14 and 15 of the Act for appointing a substitute arbitrator. Sections 14 and 15 of the Act provide for appointment of a substitute arbitrator where the specified conditions cause the mandate of an arbitrator to terminate. The provisions are as follows:-

"14. Failure or impossibility to act.--(1) The mandate of an arbitrator shall terminate and he shall be substituted by another arbitrator, if -

(a) he becomes de jure or de facto unable to perform his functions or for other reasons fails to act without undue delay; and

(b) he withdraws from his office or the parties agree to the termination of his mandate.

(2) If a controversy remains concerning any of the grounds referred to in clause (a) of sub-section (1), a party may, unless otherwise agreed by the parties, apply to the Court to decide on the termination of the mandate.

(3) If, under this section or sub-section (3) of section 13, an arbitrator withdraws from his office or a party agrees to the termination of the mandate of an arbitrator, it shall not imply acceptance of the validity of any ground referred to in this section or sub-section (3) of section 12.

15. Termination of mandate and substitution of arbitrator.--(1) In addition to the circumstances referred to in section 13 or section 14, the mandate of an arbitrator shall terminate--

(a) where he withdraws from office for any reason; or

(b) by or pursuant to agreement of the parties.

(2) Where the mandate of an arbitrator terminates, a substitute arbitrator shall be appointed according to the rules that were applicable to the appointment of the arbitrator being replaced.

(3) Unless otherwise agreed by the parties, where an arbitrator is replaced under sub-section (2), any hearings previously held may be repeated at the discretion of the arbitral tribunal.

(4) Unless otherwise agreed by the parties, an order or ruling of the arbitral tribunal made prior to the replacement of an arbitrator under this section shall not be invalid solely because there has been a change in the composition of the arbitral tribunal."

17. Thus, the conditions prescribed in these Sections 14 and 15 are distinguishable and very different from the sole condition prescribed in sub-section (1) of Section 32 of the Act which mandates termination of the arbitral proceedings by the final arbitral award of the arbitral tribunal. Sections 14 and 15 of the Act provide for termination of the mandate of the arbitrator and for substitution of the arbitrator. Clearly, the mandate of an arbitrator stems forth from an arbitration agreement under Section 7 of the Act and his appointment under Section 11 of the Act. Sections 14 and 15 of the Act would only be applicable where the arbitral proceedings are pending. In the present case, under sub-section (1) of Section 32 of the Act, the arbitral proceedings stood terminated by the final arbitral award, and, in view of sub-section (3) of Section 32 of the Act, the mandate of the arbitral tribunal stood terminated with with the termination of the arbitral proceedings. Under the circumstances, seeking appointment of a substitute Arbitrator in respect of the dispute between the parties pursuant to the aforesaid order of the Court below dated 16.09.2019, is misconceived.

18. With regard to the maintainability of an application before the High Court under the relevant provisions of Section 11 of the Act, a coordinate bench of this Court, in the case of S.K. and Associates v. IFFCO & others6, (paragraph 25), has held that the sine qua non for invocation of the powers conferred by Section 11 of the Act is a failure of a party to the agreement to act or discharge a function, and that, in the absence of these primordial conditions being satisfied, the Chief Justice or his nominee Judge would not be entitled to exercise jurisdiction.

19. Clause 70 of the agreement, which provides for arbitration, reads as follows:-

"70. Arbitration. - All disputes, between the parties to the Contract (other than those for which the decision of the C.W.E. or any other person is by the Contract expressed to be final and binding) shall, after written notice by either party to the Contract to the other of them, be referred to the sole arbitration of an Engineering Officer to be appointed by the authority mentioned in the tender documents.

Unless both parties agree in writing such reference shall not take place until after the completion or alleged completion of the Works or termination or determination of the Contract under Condition Nos. 55, 56 and 57 hereof.

Provided that in the event of abandonment of the Works or cancellation of the Contract under Condition Nos. 52, 53 or 54 hereof, such reference shall not take place until alternative arrangements have been finalized by the Government to get the Works completed by or through any other Contractor or Contractors or Agency or Agencies.

Provided always that commencement or continuance of any arbitration proceeding hereunder or otherwise shall not in any manner militate against the Government's right of recovery from the contractor as provided in Condition 67 hereof."

20. From the record of this application, it appears that :

(a) A letter dated 11.09.2020 was sent by Mr. Baljit Singh, the arbitrator, to both the parties stating that as per the directions of the Court dated 16.09.2019 for reconsideration of all the issues and to pass the award afresh, he had called upon both the parties by his letter dated 09.11.2019 to submit the matter for his reconsideration, and both the parties had been making various submissions till March 2020. It was stated that due to the Covid-19 pandemic it may not be possible to hold oral hearing, as requested by the parties, in the near future till the pandemic situation becomes normal. That he would superannuate from Government service on 30.09.2020 and therefore, he would not be eligible to continue as sole arbitrator. Therefore the arbitrator resigned and withdrew from the matter.

(b) Thereafter, by a letter dated 12.10.2020, the Garrison Engineer sent the case files of the matter received from the Arbitrator, to the Government counsel for filing them in the Court, with a copy of the letter being endorsed to the applicants for information.

(c) By a letter dated 15.10.2020, the applicants, with reference to the letter dated 11.09.2020 of Mr. Baljit Singh (former arbitrator), requested the Chief Engineer to communicate the name appointing another officer as sole arbitrator to enable them to represent their case before him to adjudicate on the disputes afresh arising out of the agreement. It was further requested to hand over the relevant files/ document returned by the former arbitrator to the officer who would be appointed as an arbitrator to enable him to process the case further.

(d) By means of a letter of 26.10.2020, the Chief Engineer wrote to the applicant that the former arbitrator had forwarded all the files and documents to file in the Court for further direction in the matter, and, since the matter is sub-judice, as such further action would be taken as per the directions of the Court.

(e) Thereafter, by means of a letter of 22.03.2021 (Annexure no.7 to the affidavit) addressed to the Chief Engineer, the applicant referred to a letter dated 23.11.2020 sent by him for substituting the arbitrator under Section 14 (b) of the Act as the mandate of the earlier arbitrator was terminated due to his superannuation. It was stated that in the event of the failure of the opposite parties to appoint a substitute sole arbitrator within 30 days, an application would be moved before the High Court under Section 11 (6) of the Act to appoint an independent and impartial arbitrator.

21. There is no averment in the present application that, after setting aside of the award passed by the arbitral tribunal, under the aforesaid provision of clause 70 of the agreement, any written notice has been given to the opposite parties regarding any dispute, to initiate arbitration proceedings de novo. As stated above, the last notice given to the opposite parties by the applicants is the one dated 22.03.2021, which is enclosed as Annexure-7 to the present application, demanding the appointment of a substitute sole Arbitrator. Thus, in view of the facts and circumstance of the present case, there is no failure on part of the opposite parties to act or discharge a function which would entitle the applicants to invoke the powers conferred by sub-sections (4), (5) and (6) of Section 11 of the Act, and which would render the present application maintainable.

22. Accordingly, this application is dismissed. However, the applicants are free to pursue any remedy they may be entitled to in accordance with law.

According to the opinion of the doctor death was due to shock and haemorrhage as a result of ante-mortem injury. The estimated time of death was half a day before.

It be noted that one metallic bullet was recovered from the body which was sealed and handed over for forensic examination.

(ix) At 12.30 hours on 19.06.2018, written report (Exb. Ka-1), scribed by Tejveer Singh (PW-1), is lodged by Jitendra Singh son of Raghuveer Singh (PW-2), stating therein that in the intervening night of 18/19.06.2018 his real uncle Satya Prakash Singh (D-2), aged about 70 years, former Gram Pradhan, who was sleeping in his field to protect the standing crop from animals, was killed by some unknown assailant by use of firearm. It was also alleged that he, later, came to know that a retired army man, namely, Bhawar Singh son of Ramji Lal (D-3), aged about 55 years, a resident of his village, who was sleeping at his 'Neohara' (a place where cattle is tied and kept) was also killed by unknown assailant by use of firearm; and, that, he came to know, one Sundar Singh son of Chittar Singh (D-1), aged about 45 years, who was sleeping on the Chabutra in front of his house was also killed by unknown assailant by using firearm. This written report was registered as first information report (FIR) (Exb. Ka-3) bearing Case Crime No. 456 of 2018 against unknown persons.

(x) On registration of the FIR, investigation of the case was taken over by G.P. Singh (PW-13), who visited three different spots where the three bodies were found. He lifted plain earth and blood-stained earth from the spot where body of Satya Prakash (D-2) was found and prepared Fard memo (Exb. Ka-26) on 19.06.2018, which was witnessed by Jitendra Singh (PW-2) and Dinesh Prakash Singh (PW-8). Similarly, he lifted blood-stained and plain earth from the spot where body of Bhawar Singh (D-3) was found and prepared Fard memo (Exb. ka-28) on 19.06.2018 whose witnesses are Sunil Kumar and Jagdish Prasad. He also lifted one bundle Bidi and a piece of blood soaked blanket from the spot where the body of Bhawar Singh was found and prepared Fard memo (Exb. Ka-27), which was also witnessed by Sunil Kumar and Jagdish Prasad.

(xi) Noticeably, no blood was found at the spot from where the body of deceased Sundar Singh (D-1) was lifted.

(xii) On 19.06.2018 itself, PW-13 prepared three site plans of three separate places from where the bodies of D-1, D-2 and D-3 were found and lifted. Exb. Ka-29 is the site plan of the place where the body of the deceased Satya Prakash (D-2) was found. Noticeably, the place where D-2's body was found is surrounded by fields. Exb. Ka-30 is the site plan of the place where the body of Bhawar Singh (D-3) was found. This place is shown to be surrounded with open fields though, towards North-west, under construction house of Smt. Sunahari Devi is shown. Exb Ka-31 is the site plan of the place where the body of deceased Sundar Singh was found. The site plan indicates that body was lying on the Chabutara, adjoining a pakka (metalled) road which lies towards the west, and in front of the shop of Sundar Singh (D-1) lying on east. Across the metalled road towards west were houses of Satyaveer and Sanju and adjacent to the house of Satyaveer and Sanju, across the metalled road towards South, is the house of Rajendra Singh. Importantly, just behind the Chabutra, towards south east there is house and courtyard of deceased Sundar Singh (D-1) with a door opening towards west i.e. metalled road. Towards North there is open field with standing crop of Sundar Singh, Chandan Singh (accused) and Kalicharan (another accused). Likewise, at the back of the house, towards east, there is vacant field of Sundar Singh, Chandan Singh and Kali Charan. Towards south of the Chabutra there is house and courtyard of Sundar Singh.

(xiii) During the course of investigation, the police received an application on 25.06.2018 (Exb. Ka-2) from Surya Sain (PW-5) in which it is stated by Surya Sain, son of deceased Satya Prakash Singh (D-2), that in the night of the incident his uncle Budh Singh (PW-6) was also sleeping outside to protect his crop and he had witnessed the incident but due to fear he did not disclose anything but, now, he has disclosed it to him that the crime has been committed by Chandan Singh son of Chittar Singh; Anil son of Kali Charan; and Gajraj son of Gulab Singh with the help of persons called from outside and in the entire crime, Kali Charan and Bhago Devi were also involved. It was disclosed in this application that Chandan Singh and Anil were eyeing the share of deceased Sundar Singh (D-1) in the house and were not willing to give Sundar Singh his share therefore, the deceased (Sundar Singh) had made a complaint about this to PW-5's father (Satya Prakash - D-2) and Fauji Bhawar Singh (D-3). It is because of this enmity that Chandan Singh, Gajraj Singh and Anil, with the help of people called from outside, got them killed. After receipt of the aforesaid application, PW-13 proceeded to record statement of Surya Sain (PW-5); Budh Singh (PW-6); Dinesh Singh (PW-8); and Raj Kumar (PW-7). On 27.06.2018, PW-13 arrested accused Chandan Singh, Anil Kumar and Gajraj. On their arrest, they allegedly confessed their guilt and on the pointing out of Chandan Singh, a country made pistol .315 bore, with a stuck empty cartridge, was recovered from a field located towards North of the wall of the house of Chandan Singh which had standing crop. The site plan (Exb. Ka-32) prepared by PW-13 indicated that the distance of the spot from where the pistol was recovered was 35 paces North of the wall of the house of Chandan Singh. The site plan also indicated that the place from where the recovery was made had access to common Kharanja road of village Nagla Bharau.

(xiv) The seizure memo (Exb. Ka-33) of the country made pistol with cartridge was prepared by PW-13 and was not witnessed by any member of the public. The seizure memo indicates that the accused Chandan Singh was taken to the spot and he searched out the weapon from the middle of the crop standing in the field and handed it over to the police. The seizure memo does not indicate that the weapon was buried in the ground. Prior to that, on 24.06.2018, the police had also prepared a memorandum of taking over a photocopy of a complaint letter dated 05.09.2017 purportedly given by deceased Sundar Singh son of Chittar Singh stating therein that on 05.09.2017, at about 7 am, Sundar Singh's brother Kali Charan, Chandan Singh and Smt. Bhago Devi and his nephews had assaulted him and Smt. Bhago Devi had beaten him with slippers. Seizure memo (Exb. Ka -38) was signed by PW-13 and witnesses Sunil Kumar and Jagdish.

(xv) On the basis of seizure memo (Exb. Ka-33), PW-13 - G.P. Singh lodged an FIR (Exb. Ka-5) at PS Raya, District Mathura on 27.06.2018 at 12.28 hours under Section 3/25 Arms Act against Chandan Singh, which gave rise to Case Crime No. 460 of 2018. The police, thereafter, continued to search for the accused Kali Charan and Bhago Devi. Ultimately, Kali Charan and Bhago Devi surrendered in Court on 21.07.2018. The police, thereafter, submitted charge-sheet (Exb. Ka-36), dated 30.08.2018, in Case Crime No. 456 of 2018, on which cognizance was taken on 18.09.2018. Likewise, after investigation of Case Crime No. 460 of 2018, the police submitted charge-sheet (Exb. Ka-41), dated 06.08.2018, on which cognizance was taken on 25.08.2018. In the charge-sheet of Case Crime No. 456 of 2018, 47 prosecution witnesses were enlisted. The name of Malti (PW-12) was conspicuous by its absence. In charge-sheet of Case Crime No. 460 of 2018 there were 14 police witnesses only. On 27.03.2019, the case arising out of Case Crime No.456 of 2018 was committed to the Court of Session. The Sessions Court framed charge of offence punishable under Section 302/149 I.P.C. against Chandan Singh, Kali Charan @ Karuwa, Anil and Gajraj and under Section 302 read with Section 120 B I.P.C. against Smt. Bhago Devi @ Bhagwati Devi. In the connected Sessions Trial No. 220 of 2018,

He stated that on the pointing out of Chandan Singh, from that field, about 35 paces away from wall of the house of Chandan Singh, the country made pistol was searched out by Chandan Singh and handed over to the police of which seizure memo was prepared.

In his cross-examination, he stated that initially no witness disclosed the name of any accused to him; and that, while preparing CD -

Parcha No.4, he got hearsay information from persons regarding involvement of Chandan Singh and his family members in the murder. He stated that the country made pistol recovered at the instance of Chandan Singh was lying open in the field, which had a standing crop of Chari (cattle fodder), and was not buried; and that there was an empty cartridge stuck in that pistol. He admitted that there was no public witness of the recovery; and that the case under the Arms Act against Chandan Singh was investigated by S.I. Rajendra Singh. He denied the suggestion that the recovery was bogus and fictitious; and that S.I. Rajendra Singh has wrongly submitted charge-sheet against Chandan Singh.

In his cross-examination, he specifically stated that during the course of investigation, he did not come to know about any wife by the name Malti Devi of deceased Sundar Singh (D-1). He denied the suggestion that he has falsely implicated the accused and had shown a false recovery and false conviction of the accused.

(n) PW-14 - Sub-Inspector - Ram Kishore Gautam. He proved the inquest reports of Bhawar Singh (D-3) and Sundar Singh (D-1). He stated that on 19.06.2018 while he was posted as a Sub-Inspector at P.S. Baldev, he received information from Delta regarding the three murders.

In his cross-examination he stated that he is not aware as to who brought the bodies of the three deceased to the mortuary, and how. He stated that all the inquest witnesses were already present there at the mortuary.

(o) PW-15 - Sub-Inspector - Kamlesh Kumar. He proved the recovery of the country made pistol on the pointing out of the accused Chandan Singh and that after the recovery of country made pistol, the same was sealed and the recovery memo was prepared; he proved the material exhibits with regard to the recovery of country made pistol, empty cartridge, the two bullets recovered from the body including the test cartridges. He also proved material exhibits relating to blood-stained earth, pieces of blanket, etc.

In his cross-examination, in relation to recovery of country made pistol from the appellant Chandan Singh, he stated that he does not remember the time when Chandan Singh was taken from the lock up to effect recovery though, he remembers that recovery was made at 11.30 hrs. He stated that the place from where recovery was made is bounded by houses of Chandan Singh and Sundar Singh (D-1) on the east; Chari field towards west; field towards north; and public Rasta (way) towards south. He stated that Chari was about two feet high. He stated that the public witness was not arranged for though, public had arrived at the time of recovery but he does not remember the name of those persons who gathered there. He stated that the pistol was searched out and given by Chandan Singh to PW-13 and was sealed in a cloth which has been marked as Material Exhibit No.17. He admitted that in the material exhibit - 17 there are no signatures of the accused Chandan Singh. He, however, denied the suggestion that the recovery is false and fabricated.

4. At this stage, we may notice the forensic reports obtained from U.P. Forensic Laboratory, Agra in respect bloodstained earth and plain earth lifted from where the bodies of D-2 and D-3 were found as also in respect of packet of Beedi, blood soaked blanket, piece of cot, etc recovered from the spot where body of D-3 was found. These reports confirmed presence of human blood and the spot of the incident. Ballistic report was also obtained and produced to confirm that the empty cartridge found in the pistol recovered, bore the mark of the strike pin of that pistol. The striations on the bullets recovered from the body of Sundar Singh (D-1) and Satya Prakash (D-2) could not be matched with striations on test bullets due to insufficient characteristics.

5. After the prosecution had led its evidence, the incriminating material appearing in the prosecution evidence was put to the accused. The accused denied the incriminating material and claimed that they were innocent. The accused Chandan Singh specifically denied the recovery of country made pistol etc. at his instance.

TRIAL COURT FINDINGS

6. The trial court by placing reliance on the testimony of PW-5 and PW-12 found that the accused held motive for the crime as they were not interested in providing share to the deceased who was demanding a share in the property; that the deceased Sundar Singh (D-1) had complained to the police in respect of his apprehension; that the other two deceased were helping deceased Sundar Singh (D-1) to enforce his right therefore, the accused held motive against those two deceased i.e. D-2 and D-3 as well; that PW-12 is the wife of deceased Sundar Singh (D-1); that in the night of the incident, she saw the four accused running away soon after the gun shot and amongst them Chandan Singh was noticed with a gun; that her testimony is corroborated by the recovery of country made pistol from the appellant Chandan Singh and as all the other appellants were seen running from the spot with Chandan Singh in the night of the incident, they shared common intention with Chandan Singh and, therefore, were liable to be convicted for offences punishable under Section 302 read with Section 34 I.P.C. However, upon finding that there was no worthwhile evidence in respect of Bhago Devi hatching a conspiracy of the murder, Bhago Devi was acquitted. The trial court further concluded that all the three murders were committed in the night and there was similar type of injury found on the body of the three deceased, therefore, they appear to have been committed by the same person and could be connected with the weapon alleged to have been recovered from Chandan Singh and, accordingly, awarded death penalty to Chandan Singh, whereas rest of the accused persons were awarded life imprisonment.

7. We have heard Sri Vinay Saran, learned senior counsel, assisted by Sri Pradeep Kumar Mishra, for the appellants in both the appeals including the reference; Sri J.K. Upadhyay, learned A.G.A. for the State, and have perused the record.

SUBMISSION ON BEHALF OF APPELLANTS

8. Sri Vinay Saran, learned counsel for the appellants submitted that admittedly the incident is of midnight; the three bodies were recovered from separate places at a distance from each other and that there is no evidence, either direct or circumstantial, in respect of the murder of Satya Prakash (D-2) and Bhawar Singh (D-3). Further, there is no evidence that all the three murders were part of the same transaction. Thus, in absence of any legally admissible evidence to connect the three murders with the accused put on trial the finding of the trial court that the accused-appellants are guilty of all the three murders is nothing short of being perverse. Further, the eye-witness account of the murder of Sundar Singh (D-1) rendered by PW-12 is not at all reliable and trustworthy. The country made pistol allegedly recovered at the instance of the appellant Chandan Singh could not be connected with the bullet recovered from the body of Sundar Singh through the ballistic report. Hence, he cannot be convicted for the charge of murder. Further, the conviction of Chandan Singh for the offence punishable under the Arms Act is also not proper because, firstly, the recovery of the firearm is false which has no public witness in its support and, secondly, it is alleged to have been recovered from an open field having direct access to the road and was about 35 paces away from the boundary wall of the house of Chandan Singh therefore, the weapon cannot be said to be in possession of the appellant Chandan Singh.

9. Sri Saran submitted that the prosecution story was to rely on the ocular account rendered by Budh Singh (PW-6) and confessional statements made before Raj Kumar (PW-7) and Dinesh Prakash Singh (PW-8). Budh Singh turned hostile and stated that he did not witness any incident; and PW-7 and PW-8 also turned hostile and stated that no one confessed before them. Under the circumstances, when nothing remained in the prosecution evidence, PW-12, turned up, after over two years of the murder of Sundar Singh (D-1), claiming herself to be wife of D-1 and an eye-witness of the incident. Admittedly, PW-12 never moved an application before the police nor her statement was recorded during the course of investigation. She turns up with an obvious purpose, that is to set up a claim over the property of D-1. Though, she claims herself to be the wife of D-1 but, her conduct is such which casts serious doubt, firstly, as to whether she is the wife of D-1 and, secondly, whether she witnessed the incident. This doubt is amplified when she admits in her cross-examination that she does not remember the year and the date of her marriage with D-1. The identity documents which she submits to disclose herself as the wife of D-1 are prepared post the date of the incident. Sri Saran submits that though, in her cross-examination, she tried to demonstrate that she knew the family members as well as topography of the house but all this could be learnt with effort to set up a false claim. He also submits that though, in the application 34 Kha, moved before the trial court, she stated that her status as the wife of D-1 is admitted to the Pairokar of the bail application moved on behalf of one of the accused persons but the deponent of that affidavit was not examined as a witness and therefore, that circumstance is not at all admissible in evidence. Further, her conduct of leaving her husband and not making any complaint for two years renders her testimony completely untrustworthy.

10. Sri Saran also submitted that on the sole testimony of such an eye-witness, who cannot be termed wholly reliable, or of an unimpeachable character, no conviction can be based. More so, when it is clear that the incident was of night; a single gun shot was fired; witness PW-12, according to her own statement, was upstairs when she heard gun shot and that she had to rush downstairs, open the door of her house to witness the scene of crime, it is but natural that the assailants by that time would have effected their escape. Thus, even if it is accepted that she was inside the house at the time when D-1 was shot, since D-1 was shot outside the house, and PW-12 was inside the house, that too, upstairs and had to rush downstairs, open the gate and come out, by then, the accused in all probability would have effected their escape and would not have stayed there to be noticed. Further, she, during later part of her statement, takes a summersault by stating that the statement, made by her, that all the accused had weapons in their hand, is false and that it was only Chandan Singh who had weapon in his hand whereas, the other accused persons were just running with him. All of this goes to show that she is not wholly reliable.

11. Sri Saran also urged that documents were produced by the defence to demonstrate that she was married to one Randheer Singh of another village; and a document was also produced that in her Adhaar card some amendment had taken place which indicated that she might have got her Adhaar card altered recently to show her relationship with D-1 for the purpose of setting up a false claim over his property. Under these circumstances, there is no occasion to rely on the statement of PW-12.

12. Sri Saran also urged that no source of light has been disclosed by the prosecution at the place of occurrence when D-1 is stated to have been shot at. Admittedly, the incident is of post midnight and the moon chart suggests that at 1.15 am on June 14, 2018 it was new moon therefore, in the night of the incident i.e. June 18, 2018, the moon was less than a quarter as it would have been quarter moon only on June 20, 2018 at 4.22 pm. Thus, in absence of proof of light, there was no natural light in which PW-12 could have spotted the accused persons running away, particularly, when she has not stated that she heard them talking/ shouting/ speaking.

13. In addition to above, it was submitted by Sri Saran that the ballistic report (Paper No. 39 Kha -2) indicated that though, empty cartridge (EC-1) found in the pistol at the time of the recovery was fired from the said pistol but the bullets that were recovered from the body of Sundar Singh (D-1) and Satya Prakash (D-2), which were marked EB-1 and EB-2 could not be connected with the recovered pistol, hence, the recovery of the country made pistol was of no consequence to prove the charge of murder of D-1 or D-2. Further, the trial court failed to notice the dimensions of the entry wound on the body of D-1, D-2 and D-3 which, apparently, were from different firearms. In this context suggestion was also put to PW-10, the Doctor, who conducted the post-mortem. He also agreed that the nature of the injuries found on the three bodies could be from different firearms.

14. Lastly, Sri Saran submitted that Ex. Ka-25 i.e. application dated 05.09.2017, alleged to have been written by Sundar Singh to the Superintendent of Police, Mathura expressing threat to his life from his brother Chandan Singh, Kali Charan and Bhabhi Bhago Devi and nephews Seetu and Sibu, on account of property dispute, appears bogus, as its contents are self-contradictory, inasmuch as, though, it allegedly carries signature of Sundar Singh, but states that Sundar Singh is an innocent, illiterate villager. When, in fact, in the cross-examination, PW-12 admits that Sundar Singh was Intermediate (Inter) pass. Meaning thereby that this application was prepared as Peshbandi.

15. In the alternative, Sri Saran submitted that this case, in any view of the matter, does not call for death penalty.

SUBMISSIONS ON BEHALF OF THE STATE

16. Learned A.G.A. submitted that this is a case where the motive for the crime is established by PW-5 and PW-12; PW-12 is a lady, who was threatened and made to leave her Sasural therefore, the delay in her disclosure about the incident will not render her statement, which is otherwise plain and simple, as false; that although there is no source of light disclosed in the testimony of PW-12 but no suggestion has been put to her with regard to non-existence of light at the time of the incident; that, despite cross-examination at length, nothing could come out from her testimony to demonstrate that she is not aware about the relationship of Sundar Singh with his other family members and the very fact that she discloses the topography of D-1's house, she cannot be termed as an impostor. Once, it has been established that she is the wife of Sundar Singh (D-1) or had been living with him, her presence at the scene of the crime would be natural and, therefore, if she arrived at the spot on hearing gun shot, her testimony cannot be disbelieved merely because she was not interrogated during the course of investigation or that she has turned up late, during the stage of trial. He further submitted that the mere fact that other witnesses turned hostile, would suggest that there was terror. Thus, keeping in mind that three persons were killed in one night by use of deadly weapon, PW-12's courage in coming forward to depose discloses her burning desire to put forth the truth. Hence, the conviction of the appellants by relying upon the testimony of PW-12 is justified. On the question of sentence, the learned A.G.A. submitted that the same is at the discretion of the Court.

17. Having considered the rival submissions and having perused the record carefully, at the outset, we may observe that although the prosecution may have led some evidence with regard to the motive for the murders of the three deceased, namely, Sundar Singh, Satya Prakash (D-2) and Bhawar Singh (D-3) but, with regard to the incident relating to the murder, the evidence led by the prosecution during trial is confined to the murder of Sundar Singh (D-1). Other than the evidence of motive, there is no evidence at all, either circumstantial, or direct, to hold the appellants guilty for the murder of deceased Satya Prakash (D-2) and Bhawar Singh (D-3). No doubt, three persons (D-1, D-2 and D-3) had died in the intervening night of 18/19.06.2018 and their death appear to be a consequence of single gun shot injury but their bodies were found at different places; and, from the evidence brought on record, it appears that these places were at quite a distance from each other. In one of the statements, it has come that they were at a distance of 1 km from each other. Whatever the distance might be, what is important is that there is no substantive evidence brought on record during trial to demonstrate that any of the appellants were seen killing D-2 and D-3 or, on or about the time of the incident, were seen near the spot from where the body of D-2 and D-3 has been recovered. The only circumstance on the basis of which they (appellants) could have been linked with three murders that took place in that night was the extra judicial confession made before witnesses PW-7 and PW-8, but those witnesses turned hostile from the inception therefore, there remains no evidence to connect the appellants with the murder of Satya Prakash (D-2) and Bhawar Singh (D-3). In addition to the failed attempt to prove extra judicial confession before PW-7 and PW-8, the prosecution produced Budh Singh (PW-6) as an eye-witness of the murder of Satya Prakash (D-2). But he too, turned hostile from the beginning, and denied having witnessed the crime. No doubt, a bullet was found from the body of Satya Prakash (D-2) and Sundar Singh (D-1) but the ballistic report does not indicate that the two bullets were fired from one weapon (firearm). Further, the ballistic report could not connect the two recovered bullets from the country made pistol alleged to have been recovered at the instance of Chandan Singh. Thus, the conclusion of the trial court that because there was similarity in the manner of killing and commonality of motive therefore, the three murders must have been committed by same set of accused, in our view, is purely conjectural and in absence of legal evidence, either circumstantial or direct, has no sustainable basis. We, therefore, have no hesitation in holding that in so far as the murder of Satya Prakash (D-2) and Bhawar Singh (D-3) is concerned, there is complete lack of evidence against the appellants. The appellants are therefore held not guilty for the murder of Satya Prakash (D-2) and Bhawar Singh (D-3).

18. In so far as the murder of Sundar Singh is concerned, the evidence against the appellants, that remains, is circumstantial in nature. The prosecution sought to prove its case against the appellants in respect of the murder of Sundar Singh (D-1) by proving motive, which is sought to be proved by PW-5 and PW-12; the circumstance that they were seen running away, with one of them carrying firearm, from the scene of crime, immediately after gun shot was heard, which is sought to be proved from the testimony of PW-12; and, lastly, by recovery of country made pistol on the pointing out of appellant Chandan Singh alleged to have been used in the crime.

19. Before we proceed further, considering that we are dealing with a case which is to be decided on the basis of circumstantial evidence, it would be useful to notice the legal principles to be borne in mind when the court has to decide a criminal trial on the basis of circumstantial evidence. In Vijay Shankar V. State of Haryana, (2015) 12 SCC 644, the Supreme Court following its earlier decisions in Sharad Birdhichand Sarda V. State of Maharashtra, (1984) 4 SCC 116 and Bablu V. State of Rajasthan, (2006) 13 SCC 116, in respect of a case based on circumstantial evidence, held that "the normal principle is that in a case based on circumstantial evidence the circumstances from which an inference of guilt is sought to be drawn must be cogently and firmly established; that these circumstances should be of a definite tendency unerringly pointing towards the guilt of the accused; that the circumstances taken cumulatively should form a chain so complete that there is no escape from the conclusion that within all human probability the crime was committed by the accused and they should be incapable of explanation of hypothesis other than that of the guilt of the accused and inconsistent with their innocence". Further (vide paragraph 153 of the celebrated judgment in Sharad Birdhichand Sarda's case), the circumstances from which the conclusion of guilt is to be drawn should be fully established meaning thereby they 'must or should' and not 'may be' established.

20. In addition to above, we must bear in mind that the most fundamental principle of criminal jurisprudence is that the accused must be and not merely may be guilty before a court can convict and the mental distance between 'may be' and 'must be' is long and divides vague conjectures from sure conclusions (vide Shivaji Sahabrao Bobade & Another v. State of Maharashtra, (1973) 2 SCC 793). These settled legal principles have again been reiterated in a three-judge Bench decision of the Supreme Court in Devi Lal v. State of Rajasthan, (2019) 19 SCC 447 wherein, in paragraphs 18 and 19 of the judgment, it was held as follows:-

"18.On an analysis of the overall fact situation in the instant case, and considering the chain of circumstantial evidence relied upon by the prosecution and noticed by the High Court in the impugned judgment, to prove the charge is visibly incomplete and incoherent to permit conviction of the appellants on the basis thereof without any trace of doubt. Though the materials on record hold some suspicion towards them, but the prosecution has failed to elevate its case from the realm of "may be true" to the plane of "must be true" as is indispensably required in law for conviction on a criminal charge. It is trite to state that in a criminal trial, suspicion, howsoever grave, cannot substitute proof.

19. That apart, in the case of circumstantial evidence, two views are possible on the case of record, one pointing to the guilt of the accused and the other his innocence. The accused is indeed entitled to have the benefit of one which is favourable to him. All the judicially laid parameters, defining the quality and content of the circumstantial evidence, bring home the guilt of the accused on a criminal charge, we find no difficulty to hold that the prosecution, in the case in hand, has failed to meet the same."

(Emphasis Supplied)

21. Having noticed the legal principles as to when an accused can be convicted on evidence of circumstantial nature, we now proceed to weigh the prosecution evidence in respect of each of the three circumstances noticed in paragraph 18 herein above.

22. In so far as motive for the crime is concerned, PW-5 and PW-12 have sought to prove by their deposition that the deceased Sundar Singh (D-1), whose brothers were Chandan Singh and Kalicharan @ Kalua, was demanding his share in the property but the accused were denying that share. In connection therewith, the deceased Sundar Singh was being helped by the other two deceased, namely, Satya Prakash and Bhawar Singh. It has also come in the testimony of PW-12, that in connection with that there used to be regular fights and bickering. Once, Sundar Singh had also given an application to the police expressing threat to his life from the accused. No doubt, there is a serious dispute with regard to the identity of PW-12, that is whether she is wife of deceased Sundar Singh, but there is hardly any dispute with regard to the relationship between the deceased Sundar Singh and the appellants Chandan Singh, Kalicharan and Anil. Notably, Sundar Singh (D-1), Kalicharan and Chandan Singh are real brothers, all of them sons of Chittar Singh. The accused Bhago, who has been acquitted, is the wife of Chandan Singh. Anil is son of Kalicharan though, Gajraj is not part of the family. According to PW-5, who is the son of Satya Prakash (D-2), the accused Chandan Singh and others were inimical to his father D-2 because he had influenced Chittar Singh to execute a Will in favour of Sundar Singh. Whereas, according to PW-5, Gajraj was inimical to his father (D-2) because D-2 was in possession of Gram Samaj land from which Gajraj wanted to evict D-2. Thus, in view of the evidence led, in absence of any cogent explanation from the accused in their statement recorded under section 313 CrPC, the motive, though might not be too strong, was nevertheless there and has been proved. But, motive alone, though may provide a link to the other circumstances, is not by itself sufficient to record conviction.

23. We, therefore, now proceed to examine the most important circumstance, that is, whether the accused were seen running away from the scene of the crime, with one of them, namely, Chandan Singh, holding firearm in his hand, soon after the gun shot was heard and the deceased Chandan Singh was noticed to have suffered gun shot by PW-12. The proof of this circumstance depends solely on the testimony of PW-12. Therefore, the testimony of PW-12 now comes for analysis.

24. Before we analyse the testimony of PW-12, it would be appropriate to examine the law as to when conviction can be based on the testimony of a sole eye-witness. Although, it is well settled that it is the quality and not quantity of the evidence on which depends the proof of fact but the courts over a period of time have laid down guidelines as to when conviction on the uncorroborated testimony of a solitary witness can be based. In Anil Phukan vs State Of Assam, (1993) 3 SCC 282, the Supreme Court held as follows:-

"..... Conviction can be based on the testimony of a single eye-witness and there is no rule of law or evidence which says to the contrary provided the sole eye witness passes the test of reliability. So long as the single eye-witness is a wholly reliable witness the courts have no difficulty in basing conviction on his testimony alone. However, where the single eye-witness is not found to be a wholly reliable witness, in the sense that there are some circumstances which may show that he could have an interest in the prosecution, then the courts generally insist upon some independent corroboration of his testimony, in material particulars, before recording conviction "

25. In State of Rajasthan v. Bhola Singh, AIR 1994 SC 542, the aforesaid statement of law was reiterated in the following words:

" It is well settled that if the case rest only on the sole evidence of the eye-witness, such testimony should be wholly reliable."

26. In Bhimapa Chandapa Hosamani and others v. State of Karnataka, (2006) 11 SCC

323, the apex court reiterated the law in the following words:-

"This Court has repeatedly observed that on the basis of the testimony of a single eye witness a conviction may be recorded, but it has also cautioned that while doing so the Court must be satisfied that the testimony of the solitary eye witness is of such sterling quality that the Court finds it safe to base a conviction solely on the testimony of that witness. In doing so the Court must test the credibility of the witness by reference to the quality of his evidence. The evidence must be free of any blemish or suspicion, must impress the Court as wholly truthful, must appear to be natural and so convincing that the Court has no hesitation in recording a conviction solely on the basis of the testimony of a single witness."

27. In a recent decision in the case of Jagdish and others v. State of Haryana, (2019) 7 SCC 711, again, the Supreme Court reiterated the law by observing "conviction on basis of a solitary eyewitness is undoubtedly sustainable if there is reliable evidence cogent and convincing in nature along with surrounding circumstances."

28. A conspectus of the law in respect of when conviction on basis of testimony of a sole eye witness can be recorded, would reveal that though, there is no bar in basing conviction on the testimony of a single eye-witness but, before doing so the court must carefully scrutinise the evidence to be satisfied whether it is free of any blemish or suspicion, is wholly truthful and appears natural and convincing, that is, in short, it is intrinsically reliable, inherently probable and wholly trustworthy.

29. Having noticed the legal position, we now proceed to analyse the testimony of PW-12 as to find out whether the testimony of PW-12 satisfies the criteria of being intrinsically reliable, inherently probable and wholly trustworthy. Before we do so we must notice that PW-12 is coming up with her version for the first time after over two years of the death of Sundar Singh (D-1). Admittedly, she has not given her statement to the police during the course of investigation; she has also not moved any application before the police that she is conversant with the facts of the case which are relevant to the fact in issue; and she gave her testimony only when all the witnesses of fact have been examined and were not supporting the prosecution case. In Kali Ram v. State of Himachal Pradesh, (1973) 2 SCC 808, the apex court had observed that :

"If a witness professed to know about a gravely incriminating circumstance against a person accused of the offence of murder and the witness kept silent for over two months regarding the said incriminating circumstance against the accused, his statement relating to the incriminating circumstances, in the absence of any cogent reason, was bound to lose most of its value."

These observations of the Supreme Court might have been made at a time when witnesses were ready and willing to depose and come forward as compared to the present days when due to fear the witnesses tend to avoid coming forward. But the substratum of the law remains the same, which is, that there ought to be cogent reason for the witness to have remained silent for that long.

30. In the instant case, we find that though PW-12 states that after the murder of Sundar Singh (D-1), her family members had arrived and she had left with them to her parental house but she has not disclosed in what manner, and when, she was threatened by the accused. She has also not disclosed that her conscience had been pricking her as a consequence whereof, she made an attempt to contact the police in the past for making her disclosure about the incident but, due to intervening circumstances, she could not do so. Interestingly, in the initial part of her statement, she states that in the morning, following the night of the incident, she had informed the I.O. but the I.O. (PW-13), during cross-examination, on 27.11.2020, states that he was not made aware that there was any wife of the deceased by the name of Malti Devi. In that background, her silence of over two years casts a serious doubt on her trustworthiness. This doubt gets amplified when we notice from the record that the documents, which she filed as identity documents, relating to her being wife of Sundar Singh, along with her application 34 Kha, except the Adhaar Card, which carries no date, are documents obtained after the date of occurrence. The defence did make an effort to demonstrate that she was wife of one Randheer Singh and was shown as wife of Randheer Singh in some documents. However, these documents have not been proved in accordance with law to enable us to arrive at a definite conclusion that she is wife of Randheer Singh. But, noticeably, the voter ID card filed by her along with her application 34 Kha is issued on February 20, 2020; and the domicile certificate in which she is reflected as wife of Sundar Singh is dated 14.09.2020. Under these circumstances, there arises a serious doubt with regard to her being the wife of Sundar Singh (D-1) more so, when, to the question whether PW-12 had any photograph of her marriage, she replies by saying that all her photographs are left in her Sasural. Further, when she is cross-examined with regard to the date and year of her marriage, she is unable to answer. The affidavit of Dinesh Kumar, which PW-12 relies upon as an admission by a Pairokar of the accused Gajraj Singh with regard to her being the wife of Sundar Singh, cannot be taken as a piece of admission to bind the accused facing criminal trial and, otherwise also, it is not a substantive evidence, more so, when that person i.e. Dinesh Kumar, who made such deposition in the affidavit, has not been examined as a witness and confronted with the statement made in his affidavit. Keeping in mind all the above circumstances, as also PW-12's statement that Sundar Singh (D-1) was earlier married to one Kallo but, after having a divorce with Kallo, papers of which PW-12 did not produce, Sundar Singh married PW-12, casts a doubt about PW-12's marital status as a legally wedded wife of Sundar Singh. We may clarify that this examination of her marital status as wife of Sundar Singh, is not with a view to make a declaration, which may affect her civil rights, but for the limited purpose of assessing the probability of her presence at the scene of crime. We may further clarify that even if we doubt her marital status as the legally wedded wife of deceased Sundar Singh, her testimony in respect of the incident may still be accepted, if her presence at the scene of crime is proved beyond doubt and her testimony satisfies the criteria of being intrinsically reliable, inherently probable and wholly trustworthy.

31. In this regard, we notice from her deposition that, despite lengthy cross-examination, she has unflinchingly disclosed the topography of the house of Sundar Singh and its surroundings; the names of relatives and family members of Sundar Singh; and what is located where inside the house. All of this, reflects that she is no stranger to the family and has knowledge about Sundar Singh, his house and his relations. Interestingly, during cross-examination, she stated that she came to Nagla Bharau 15 - 20 days before the incident. It is thus clear that she has knowledge about the family of the deceased and could be considered as one having inside information. In this context, a bare denial by the accused about her real status leads us to infer that the defence is hiding something. However, this, by itself, is not decisive for us to conclude whether the accused appellant are guilty though, it may give rise to suspicion, but, it is well settled, howsoever strong a suspicion might be, it is no substitute for legal proof.

32. Therefore, now, we shall examine whether her testimony in respect of the incident is intrinsically reliable, inherently probable and wholly trustworthy. In this regard, we may notice that in the first half of her testimony, she makes a statement that when she heard gun shot and came out of her room, which is upstairs, and out of the door of the house, she saw all the five accused running away with weapon in their hands. On the same day, thereafter, during the course of her deposition, she alters her statement and clarifies that she only saw Chandan Singh having weapon in his hand and running away, whereas, others were just seen running away. This alteration in her stand is an indication that she is not wholly reliable as she seems to be wavering in her deposition.

33. Now, we shall examine whether her testimony is inherently probable or appears natural. To arrive at a definite conclusion on the aforesaid aspect, it would be apposite to recapitulate her statement. She states that she was sleeping in a room on the upper storey of her house whereas the deceased Sundar Singh was sleeping outside the house in front of the shop on the Chabutra when, at well past midnight, she heard a gun shot. Hearing the gun shot, she woke up, came downstairs, opened the door of her house and came out to see the accused running away. There are few important features in her testimony noticed above. First, that she was sleeping inside the room and woke up when she heard gun shot; second, that the room where she was sleeping is upstairs, that is on the upper floor; third, she climbed down the stairs to open the main door of the house to come out; and, fourth, then, she found Sundar Singh (D-1) lying and the accused running away. Noticeably there is a single gun shot injury on the body of deceased Sundar Singh and it is not PW-12's case that the incident was preceded by an altercation or exhortation. Therefore, the question that now arises is whether in that kind of a scenario there was sufficient opportunity for PW-12 to wake up, come down from her room on the upper floor, open the gate, come out and notice the accused running away. At this stage, we may observe that in her deposition she has also stated two important things: (i) that as soon as she heard gun shot she was sure that murder has been committed; and (ii) that had she not been inside the room she would have also been killed. In that kind of a scenario, it is but obvious that she must have been maintaining a safe distance from the spot to avoid the wrath of her husband's assailants. Whether from that so-called safe distance she could identify the assailants, particularly, when it is not her case that she recognised them by their voices, is also a question which needs to be examined, particularly, when the incident is of night and the source of light is not disclosed at the spot by the prosecution evidence. In this regard, though, it has not come that the assailants were spotted in moon light, but it would be apposite to notice the moon chart to test the possibility of the assailants being spotted in moonlight. From the moon chart of June 18, 2018, it appears that on that night the moon would be less than a quarter as it would have been a quarter moon on June 20, 2018 at 4.22 pm. In Dr. Hans Gross's Criminal Investigation, which has been relied upon by the Supreme Court in State of Uttar Pradesh V. Ashok Kumar and Another, (1979) 3 SCC 1, it has been observed:

"By moonlight one can recognise, when the moon is at the quarter, persons at a distance of from 21 feet in bright moonlight at from 23 to 33 feet; and at the very brightest period of the full moon, at a distance of from 33 to 36 feet. In tropical countries the distance for moonlight may be increased."

In the instant case, on the date of the incident, the moon was even less than a quarter. Therefore, taking into account that this is an incident of single gunshot, no other injury, not preceded, or followed, by altercation, or exhortation, or threat, occurring at an open Chabutra adjoining the road, the assailant would have ample time to flee and disappear into the darkness of the night by the time PW-12, sleeping in the room upstairs, could wake up, come downstairs, open the main gate and come out of the confines of her house to witness the assailants running away. Her testimony, therefore, in our view, fails to qualify the test of being inherently probable.

34. Whether PW-12's testimony could be considered trustworthy is what, now, falls for our consideration. Admittedly, PW-12 has an interest in the property of the deceased Sundar Singh (D-1). The accused persons, as per prosecution case, were not interested in providing D-1 his share therefore, by their conviction, PW-12 stands to gain. In that scenario, when we notice that though, she claims herself to be deceased's wife but has remained silent for nearly two years to disclose such an incriminating circumstance, by no stretch of imagination her testimony could be considered trustworthy or of such sterling quality that it could alone form the basis of conviction. Noticeably, there is no cogent explanation for this inordinate delay. The only explanation is that she was threatened and thrown out of her Sasural and next day, her family had come to take her and since, thereafter, she had been staying at her parents' house. This explanation might have been acceptable for a few days or a few months delay but not for the delay as long as two years. Interestingly, PW-12 turns up in the trial when all the key witnesses of the prosecution turn hostile. This suggests that she was keeping a close watch at the proceeding and when she saw that the accused may get acquitted she jumps into the fray to ensure that her interest in the property is secured. When we take a conspectus of all these circumstances discussed above, we come to a definite conclusion that PW-12 is not trustworthy and her testimony is not of that sterling quality which alone can form the basis of conviction or to hold that, on that fateful night, the appellants including Chandan Singh were noticed fleeing from the spot, with appellant Chandan Singh having a gun in his hand.

35. Once we discard the testimony of PW-12 as not reliable, nothing much remains to prove the involvement of the appellants in the murder. Because, as we have already noticed above, the weapon alleged to have been recovered at the pointing out of the appellant could not be connected by forensic evidence with the bullet recovered from the body of the two deceased, namely, Sundar Singh and Satya Prakash. The recovery of the country made pistol therefore, cannot be taken as a circumstance to link the accused Chandan Singh with the murder of the deceased Sundar Singh (D-1) or of Satya Prakash (D-2).

36. For the foregoing reasons, we are of the considered view that the prosecution evidence has failed to bring home the guilt against either Chandan Singh or any of the other accused-appellants put to trial in respect of the three murders. Hence, the charge of murder against the accused-appellants including Chandan Singh is held not proved and, therefore, the conviction of the appellants including Chandan Singh for the murder of Sundar Singh, Satya Prakash and Bhawar Singh is liable to be set aside.

37. Now, we shall examine the validity of the conviction of the accused Chandan Singh for offence punishable under Section 3/25 of the Arms Act. In that regard, the recovery of country made pistol at the pointing out of the appellant Chandan Singh has been denied by Chandan Singh and has been termed as bogus/fabricated. The memorandum of recovery is not witnessed by any public witness and the place from where the recovery is made, from the statement of PW-15 as well as from the site plan, is an open field having direct access from the road. The spot from where the recovery is stated to have been made is 35 paces outside the boundary wall of the house of Chandan Singh. Further, the recovery is not stated to have been made by digging out the weapon from beneath the surface of the earth rather, it is alleged to have been searched out from the field, where it was stated to be lying. Interestingly, this weapon could not get connected with the bullet recovered from the body of the two deceased therefore, in such circumstances, the disclosure statement that allegedly led to its recovery becomes doubtful. Otherwise also, the weapon lying in open field, not buried, cannot be said to be in the possession of the appellant. We are therefore, of the firm view that the appellant is also entitled to be acquitted of the charge of an offence punishable under Section 3/25 of the Arms Act.

38. For all the reasons recorded above, the judgment and order of the trial court in both the trials cannot be sustained. Both the appeals are allowed. The reference to confirm the death penalty is answered in the negative and the prayer to confirm the death penalty awarded to the accused-appellant Chandan Singh is rejected. The judgment and order of the trial court in both the sessions trial is set aside. All the appellants are acquitted of all the charges for which they have been tried. They shall be released forthwith, unless wanted in any other case, subject to compliance of the provisions of Section 437A Cr.P.C. to the satisfaction of the court below.

39. Before parting, we would like to express our anguish with the shoddy manner in which the investigation of the case was done. This was a case where there were three murders in a village. Noticeably, three persons died on or about the same time in the intervening night of 18/19.06.2018. Their bodies were found at three different places. In the age of mobile telephony, ordinarily, most of the citizens including villagers are having mobile phones. With the help of CDR details, the tower location of the mobile phones, an insight can be had to the turn of events that led to the murders. The investigation is completely absent in that regard. A very simplistic approach has been adopted by the investigating agency in presuming as if the same set of accused committed all the three murders without even noticing that the entry wounds apparently were of different dimensions and the ballistic expert report indicated that the two bullets recovered, one from deceased Sundar Singh and the other from deceased Satya Prakash, could neither be connected with the weapon recovered from Chandan Singh nor could be found as to have been fired from a single weapon. Hence, the investigating agency was required to probe further to find out as to who else could have been involved. No effort of that kind appears visible on the record. It is unfortunate that a triple murder has resulted in no conviction. The Courts cannot convict unless the prosecution leads evidence that establishes the guilt beyond the pale of doubt. The burden is on the prosecution and the investigating agency plays an important role in that regard, which, in the present case they have miserably failed to discharge.

40. Let a copy of this order be sent to the trial court for information and compliance.

A. Interpretation of Statute - U.P. Sugarcane (Regulation of Supply and Purchase) Act, 1953 - Sections 2(k), (l), (o), (I) & 17 - U.P. Sugarcane (Regulation of Supply and Purchase) Rules, 1954 - The U.P. Sugarcane (Supply and Purchase) Order, 1954 - The Essential Commodities Act, 1955 - The Sugarcane (Control) Order, 1966: Clause 3(3), 3-A - When the St. Act is in conflict with the Central Order and the former will have to give way to the latter. The Central Order has its backing and statutory force of a Central enactment and would prevail over any contrary provision contained in the St. enactment. (Para 57)

The Court observes that Section 17(3) of the St. Act, 1953 prescribes a period of fifteen days but the Central Order, 1966 made under the Central Enactment, 1955 prescribes a period of fourteen days for payment of sugarcane dues. Thus, for the reasons already given hereinabove, the company/occupier is required to pay the cane dues to the cane farmers directly or to the Cane grower's Co-operative Society within fourteen days from the date of delivery. Similarly, the rate of interest payable in case of delay in payment to the farmers within stipulated period of time would be 15 per cent per annum as is prescribed in the Central Order, 1966 and not 12 per cent per annum as is prescribed in the proviso to Section 17(3) of the Act, 1953. 1. Heard Sri G.C. Verma, learned counsel for the petitioners, Sri H.P. Srivastava, learned Addl. Chief Standing Counsel for the State, Sri Satish Chandra Mishra, learned Senior Counsel along with Sri Paavan Awasthi, Sri Sanjeev Singh, Sri Sunil Kumar Chaudhary and Sri Kapil Mishra, learned counsel for opposite party no. 6, Sri Gaurav Mehrotra & Sri Parmanand Asthana, learned counsels appearing for respective Cane Growers' Co-operative Societies.

2. This is a bunch of writ petitions filed by cane growers seeking their sugarcane dues which have not been paid by the opposite party no.06 i.e. Bajaj Hindustan Sugar Limited (hereinafter referred to as "the Company'). The Company runs 14 sugar mills in the State of U.P. and the petitioners are sugarcane growers who sold their sugar cane to five of these mills situated at Gola Gokaran Nath, Khambhar Khera, Palia Kalan, Barkhera, and Maqsoodapur. This matter relates to these five mills only.

3. Writ Petition No.11355 (M/B) of 2021 has been treated as the leading writ petition. Relief prayed in the writ petition is as under:-

"(i) Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus commanding thereby the opposite parties to ensure that the payment of entire cane price is made immediately to the petitioners along with 15 % compound interest from the date on which it becomes. due and till it actually paid, in the light of the Departmental Laws i.e. Sections 17 & 22 of the Uttar Pradesh Sugar Cane (Regulation of Supply and Purchase) Act, 1953, Rule 45 of the Uttar Pradesh Sugar Cane (Regulation of Supply and Purchase) Rules, 1954 & Order 3 (3, 3A, 8, & 9) of the Sugarcane (Control) Order, 1966 as mentioned in para 3 of the W.P. and also in the light of the an AFR judgment passed in the writ petition no. 13313 of 2020 (MB), as contained in

Annexure ho. 4 to the W.P., in the interest of justice.

(ii) Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus commanding thereby the opposite party no.2 to take action against the opposite party no.6 for ensuring that the payment of entire cane price is made immediately to the petitioners along with 15 %. compound interest from the date on which it becomes due and till it actually paid, in the light of the Departmental Rules i.e. Sections 17 & 22 of the Uttar Pradesh Sugar Cane (Regulation of Supply and Purchase) Act, 1953, Rule 45 of the Uttar Pradesh Sugar Cane (Regulation of Supply and Purchase) Rules, 1954 & Order 3 (3, 3A, 8, & 9) of the Sugarcane (Control) Order 1966 as mentioned in para 3 of the W.P. and also in the light of the an AFR judgment passed in the writ petition no. 13313 of 2020 (MB), as contained in Annexure no. 4 to the W.P., in the interest of justice.

(iii) Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus commanding thereby the opposite party no. 6 to make payment of entire cane price to the petitioner along with 15 %. compound interest from the date on which it becomes due and till it actually paid as the mill is bound to pay in the light of the Departmental Sections 17 & 22 of the Uttar Pradesh Sugar Cane (Regulation of Supply and Purchase) Act, 1953, Rule 45 of the Uttar Pradesh Sugar Cane (Regulation of Supply and Purchase) Rules, 1954 & Order 3 (3, 3A, 8, & 9) of the Sugarcane (Control) Order, 1966 as mentioned in para 3 of the W.P. and also in the light of the an AFR judgment passed in the writ petition no. 13313 of 2020 (MB), as contained in Annexure no. 4 to the W.P., in the interest of justice.

(iv) Pass any other order or direction which this Hon'ble Court may deem fit, just and proper in the circumstances of the case, in favour of the petitioners.

(v) Allow the writ petition with cost."

4. This Court on 05.07.2021 passed a detailed interim order directing payment of sugarcane dues to the petitioners and other sugarcane growers on the principle of "first supply, first payment' so that there is uniformity and fairness in payment of dues.

5. The provisions of law relevant in the case are the U.P. Sugarcane (Regulation of Supply and Purchase) Act, 1953 (hereinafter referred to as "the Act, 1953'); U.P. Sugarcane (Regulation of Supply and Purchase) Rules, 1954 (hereinafter referred to as "the Rules, 1954'); the U.P. Sugarcane (Supply and Purchase) Order, 1954 (hereinafter referred to as "the Order, 1954') made under Section 16 of the Act, 1953; the Essential Commodities Act, 1955 and the Sugarcane (Control) Order, 1966 (hereinafter referred to as "the Order, 1966') issued by the Central Government under Section (3) of the said Act, 1955.

6. The contention of Sri G.C. Verma and other learned counsel appearing for the sugarcane growers-petitioners was that Section 17 (1), (2) and (3) of the Act, 1953 obligate upon the Company to pay sugarcane dues within fifteen days from the date of the sugarcane having been delivered in its factory / purchase centre, which has not been paid. It is also contended that on failure to pay the dues as aforesaid, interest @12 per cent per annum is payable by the company to the cane growers in view of the proviso to sub-Section (3) of Section 17 of the Act, 1953, whereas, as per the Order 1966, it is @ 15 per cent per annum, which has also not been paid. It is contended that for the past five years, no interest has been paid on the delayed payment of dues of sugarcane growers by the Company and in fact, in all the years, the dues have been paid belatedly. It has further been submitted that sugarcane growers have taken loan for growing their crop and on account of delayed payment, great prejudice has been caused to them in the matter of repayment of loan and even otherwise as their livelihood is at stake the said right is being violated by the Company. Reliance has been placed in this regard upon various decisions of this Court some of which are Writ-C No.29214 of 2019 'Jaypal Singh and Another vs. State of U.P. and others.' decided on 16.09.2019; P.I.L. No.67617 of 2014 'Rashtriya Kisan Mazdoor Sangathan (Regd) Thru. Convenor vs. State of U.P. & Anr.' and other connected writ petitions decided on 09.03.2017; Writ-C No.13313 of 2020 'Kanikram & 3 others. vs. State of U.P. and 4 Others' and other connected writ petitions decided on 21.09.2020; (2013) 11 ADJ 7 'State Bank of Patiala vs. Zila Adhikari and others'; AIR (SC) 3002 'Ahmedabad Municipal Corporation vs. Virendra Kumar Jayantibhai Patel'; JT 1994 (2) S.C. 94 'Narendra Kumar Chandla vs. State of Haryana & Ors.' and Writ-C No.28968 of 2018 'M/s Shakuntla Educational And Welfare Society vs. State of U.P. and 2 Others' and connected petitions decided on 28.05.2020.

7. Sri H.P. Srivastava, learned Addl. Chief Standing Counsel for the State has submitted that it is a fact that in the last five years the Company has failed to pay dues of sugarcane growers within time and that no interest has been paid on such delayed payment. He, however, submits that the financial condition of the Company is such that it is not possible to recover the dues even on taking of coercive measures rather a balancing approach has been adopted by the Sugarcane Commissioner so that on the one hand the interest of the sugarcane growers is protected and they are paid their dues and on the other hand, the factory run by the Company is also not shut-down as if this happens then ultimately it is the sugarcane growers of the area who will suffer and they will have to take their sugarcane to a far-off factory incurring additional expenditure and consequent losses in sale consideration. Therefore, the Sugar Commissioner has opened an Escrow account and 85% of the sale proceeds from sale of sugar made by the Company from the sugarcane supplied by the farmers as also certain percentage of sale proceeds from the sale of by-products, namely, Molasses, Ethanol, Bagasse, Electricity, Pressmud and Distillery is deposited in the said Escrow account, remaining 15% having been left for meeting expenditures of the sugar factory being run by the Company, and this amount deposited in the Escrow account is used for payment of sugarcane dues, apart from other sources of payment by the Company. The account is operated jointly by officers of the Company and the Government officials. He says that this arrangement takes care of the interest of the sugarcane growers as also the Company. Almost every day payment is being made to the sugarcane growers. He has relied upon various decisions in support of his contention rendered in Writ-C No.13313 of 2020 'Kanikram & 3 others. vs. State of U.P. and 4 Others'; P.I.L. No.67617 of 2014 'Rashtriya Kisan Mazdoor Sangathan (Regd) Thru. Convenor vs. State of U.P. & Anr.'; 2010 (3) ADJ 628 (LB) 'Simbholi Sugar Ltd. vs. State of U.P. and Others'; AIR 1956 SC 676 'CH. Tika Ramji and others etc vs. State of U.P. and others'; (2020) 9 SCC 548 ' West U.P. Sugar Mills Association and others vs. State of U.P. and others'; (2006) 12 SCC 583 'Ispat Industries Ltd. vs. Commissioner of Customs, Mumbai' and (2019) 18 SCC 126 'Delhi Transport Corporation vs. Balwan Singh and others'.

8. Sri S.C. Mishra, learned counsel appearing for the Company submitted that only 2.87% farmers have approached this Court in this bunch of petitions, meaning thereby, 97.13% of sugarcane growers are satisfied with the situation as they are assured of a higher return on sale of sugarcane to the Company even if they receive the proceeds belatedly. He submitted that the financial operations of the Company were being managed by a consortium of seventeen Banks. The financial condition of the Company was such that no financial institution was willing to extend any credit or loan or advance for payment of dues of sugarcane farmers inspite of its best efforts. This situation, according to him, has arisen on account of the Government having renegaded on its promise made in the sugarcane policy, 2004 for providing certain subsidies and incentives to the companies which establish fresh sugar units in the State based on which the units were set-up by the Company, that too, inspite of various decisions by the High Court and Hon'ble the Supreme Court in favour of the Company. He submitted that inspite of the the decisions, the State Government arbitrarily rejected the claim of the Company which has again been put to challenge and the matter is now pending before the High Court. He also submitted that electricity had been generated by the Company in its factory which was sold to U.P. Power Corporation Ltd. and there are dues of few crores in this regard which have not yet been paid by UPPCL to the petitioners. All this has made the financial condition of the Company fragile which in turn has resulted in delayed payment of dues to the sugarcane farmers. If the Government abides by the promise made by it to the Company under the sugarcane policy and the Power Corporation pays the proceeds from sale of electricity to it then this entire matter could be resolved at once. In fact, he submitted that the Government and the Power Corporation need not pay the dues of the Company to it, instead, they may directly pay it to the sugarcane growers which will clear all the dues and the dispute will end.

9. We have already made it clear in our earlier orders that we will not tag the payment of sugarcane dues of farmers with the claim of the Company of dues against the State and UPPCL and the Company can agitate it separately.

10. He, however, could not deny the fact that in the past five years, interest on the delayed payment has not been paid by the Company to the sugarcane growers. In this regard, he submitted firstly that nobody asked for it and secondly, he submitted that there is a provision in sub-Section (3) of Section 17 of the Act, 1953 for waiver of interest. However, on being asked as to whether any such application has been filed for the year 2020-21 or the earlier years, he could not give any satisfactory reply in this regard. The Court was, however, apprised of an order of the High Court directing the Sugarcane Commissioner to take a decision on the application for waiver of interest, if any, filed by the Company within three months but none of the counsels could inform the Court as to whether any such application had been moved and/ or any such decision had been taken thereon or not.

11. Sri Mishra, learned Senior Counsel further submitted that the dues upto the year 2019-20 have been cleared by March, 2021 as Hon'ble the Supreme Court had permitted the Company to clear the dues by the said date in S.L.P. (C) No.11948-11951 of 2020. Therefore, he says that the Company has best of intentions to pay the dues of the farmers but it is only on account of the compelling financial circumstances that it has not been able to pay the same, timely. He did not deny the liability of the Company in this regard, rather asserted its commitment to pay the dues.

12. However, in this regard, he submitted that the provisions of the Act, 1953 had themselves become outdated and were also self-contradictory. He submitted that in the year 1953, the production and sale of sugarcane was not much, certainly not what it is today, therefore, payment of sale proceeds for small quantities of sugarcane could be made by the companies to the sugarcane growers but as of now, the production has increased many fold and it was not possible for anyone including the State Government to make payment of dues within the short period of fifteen days prescribed in the statute as stated by learned counsel for the petitioners. The provisions of Section 17 of the Act, 1953 are impractical and in fact, they are impossible to be complied with, although, he also submitted that the company is committed to making the payments and also made a statement before this Court that the dues for the years 2020-21 would be cleared by February-March, 2022, a fact which has also been stated on affidavit. On being specifically asked as to whether interest would also be paid, he submitted that subject to any waiver by the Sugarcane Commissioner in this regard if anyone claims interest, the same would also be paid.

13. He, however, invited attention of the Court to Section 17 (1) of the Act, 1953 wherein the words "speedy payment of price of cane' has been mentioned and in the succeeding sub-Section (2) of the aforesaid Section, the words "to pay immediately the price of the cane so supplied' has been used, which, according to him, were incongruous, especially as, in sub-Section (3) of the Section 17 of the Act, 1953, it has been said that if the company defaults in making payment of the price for a period exceeding fifteen days from the date of delivery then interest would be payable. He says that sub-Section (1) of Section 17 of the Act, 1953 uses words "speedy payment' then sub-Section (2) uses the words "liable to pay immediately payment' and then sub-Section (3) says that it should be paid within fifteen days lest interest becomes payable, all this, according to him was contradictory. Moreover, he submitted that sub-Section (1) of Section 17 of the Act, 1953, while referring to speedy payment of price of sugarcane purchased by the occupier, refers to making of such provision in this regard as may be prescribed. He says that there is no such prescription anywhere in the Rules as to how this is to be done.

14. He also submitted that sub-Section (3) of Section 17 of the Act, 1953, in fact, is mainly concerned with payment of interest and does not define the time limit during which the sugarcane dues are to be paid. Based on this, he submitted that unbridled power had been vested in Section 17(4) to the Sugarcane Commissioner for issuance of Recovery Certificate.

15. In this regard, he also referred to the agreement referred in Form B and C mentioned in the Order, 1954 and the provisions contained in the said Order to submit that the company and the cane growers can arrive at an agreement fixing the time limit for payment of dues. Therefore, the time prescribed in sub-Section (3) of Section 17 of the Act, 1953 is not mandatory. However, on being pointed out that Form B and C do not deal with payment of sugarcane price, no satisfactory reply could be given.

16. He further submitted that sugar is a controlled commodity. The company can sell only so much as is permitted by the Central Government. Therefore, this is also a handicap as the company cannot sell as much as it wants. Sugar can't be sold in open market freely. Moreover, the sale price of sugar is also controlled. Minimum price is fixed by the Central Government and the state advisory price is fixed by the State Government which has to be adhered by the company. He went on to say that, in fact, the cost price of sugar is more than the selling price. All this makes the entire exercise unviable ultimately resulting in delayed payment.

17. He also submitted that the land on which sugarcane is being grown in the districts involved in these bunch of petitions has grown. In this regard, he referred to Gola Gokaran Nath where according to him, 80% of the agricultural land is being used for cultivation of sugarcane and as only 2.87% farmers have approached this Court, therefore, obviously, huge majority of the sugarcane growers from whom sugarcane is purchased by the Company accept the fact situation, as they will be getting higher sale proceeds from the sale of sugarcane even if belatedly, vis-a-vis the proceeds from sale of other agricultural produce. It is only a handful of farmers who are agitated.

18. He also submitted that the principle of "first supply, first payment' is absolutely correct as it leaves no room for arbitrariness otherwise the writ courts are flooded with writ petitions and only those sugarcane growers are paid the dues who get an order from the High Court.

19. He submitted that paying capacity is not a parameter for reserving/ assigning an area under Rule-22 of the Rules, 1954. Various factors have been given and it is not permissible in law to base such decision on any sole factor. He also submitted that considering the financial condition of the company, the area reserved for the company has been reduced by the Sugarcane Commissioner in the recent years by about 30%. Therefore, the Sugarcane Commissioner, who is an expert in the field, is adopting correct approach in the matter by balancing the rights of the company, vis-a-vis the sugarcane growers.

20. He submitted that any drastic measures adopted by the opposite parties or any coercive action directed by the High Court would result in a situation where the factory may itself have to be shut down which would benefit neither the company nor the sugarcane growers and if the factory does not function then the dues will be put in jeopardy. No purpose would be served by putting the Directors in prison if sufficient money is not available as of now to straightaway pay the dues in one go. Gradual payment is being made from the Escrow account which is in the hands of authorities. He referred to various affidavits filed on behalf of the company in this regard in response to various orders of this Court.

21. He also submitted that the Company undertakes various measures under Rule 22 for development of the area and even advances loans etc to the sugarcane growers and no complaint has been received in this regard as regards the Company. Therefore, it is not only about payment of sale proceeds but the development of the entire area where the sugarcane is produced and the welfare measures taken by the company in this regard as such if the factory is closed, it enures to nobody's benefit.

22. He very fairly submitted that the Company does not deny its liability to pay dues to cane growers but considering the situation, the same will be paid in a phased manner but certainly by February-March, 2022.

23. He also referred to prevalence of Covid-19 pandemic which had also resulted in financial losses to the Company/ Occupier as one of the additional reasons for non-payment of dues within time. He submitted that these were circumstances beyond the control of the Company / Occupier. Therefore, they have to be taken into consideration not only with regard to the delayed payment but also with regard to levying of interest in the context of waiver of such interest.

24. Sri Mishra, learned Senior Counsel relied upon the decisions reported in (1956) SCR 393 'Ch. Tikaramji vs. State of U.P.'; 2001 ALL LJ 741 'Govind Nagar Sugar Ltd. vs. State of U.P.'; 2005 All LJ 2159 'DCM Shriram Industries Ltd. vs. State of U.P.'; W.P. C. No.1680 of 2017 'L.H. Sugar Factories Ltd. v. State of U.P.' decided on 14.02.2017 and (2020) 132 ALR 182 'Akram Khan and Anr. vs. State of U.P' in support of his submissions.

25. Sri Gaurav Mehrotra, learned counsel appearing for the Cane-growers' Co-operative Society supported the stand of the petitioners although in the same vein he also stated that the Sugarcane Commissioner had, in fact, adopted the correct approach by opening an Escrow account wherein substantial amount of the sale proceeds from the sale of sugarcane by the Company and some percentage of sale from the by-products are deposited and the same are being used for payment of cane dues of cane growers.

26. He submitted that, in fact, though sub-Section (3) of Section 17 of the Act, 1953 referred to a period of fifteen days for payment of sugarcane dues failing which interest @ 12 per cent per annum was payable, the Control Order, 1966 issued by the Central Government, specifically Clause 3(3) and 3(3-A), referred to payment to be made within fourteen days of the date of delivery failing which interest on the amount due @ 15 per cent per annum for the period of such delay beyond fourteen days becomes payable. He stated that thus there is contradiction in this regard as the Order, 1966 refers to 14 days as the period for paying the dues to the cane growers whereas sub-Section (3) of Section 17 of the Act, 1953 refers to a period of fifteen days. The difference is also in the percentage of interest payable.

27. Furthermore, he submitted that as regards Form-B and C of the Order, 1954 are concerned they do not deal with the question of payment of price of sugarcane to the sugarcane growers, therefore, the Company cannot rely on the same. He submitted that it is the Control Order, 1966 which will prevail over the Act, 1953 and/or the Control Order, 1954 made thereunder or for that matter, the Rules of 1954 made thereunder.

28. He submitted that prior to the area being reserved for a company it is required to submit an estimate of requirements of sugarcane under Section 12 of the Act, 1953. Therefore, it is very well aware as to how much cane it is going to purchase and what price it will have to pay. Therefore, the Company should have made provision for such payment in advance so as to protect the interest of the sugarcane growers. He submitted that every sugarcane factory/ company enjoys a monopoly in the area reserved for it subject to certain exceptions which on the one hand protects the interest of the company and makes the enterprise viable and on the other hand also protects the interest of the sugarcane growers. However, in view of this, the sugarcane growers cannot sell their sugarcane to any other factory/ company other than the one for whom the area has been reserved, unless the Cane Commissioner orders otherwise.

29. He laid great emphasis on clause (f) of the Rule 22 of the Rules, 1954 to submit that this clause permitted the assessment of financial condition of the company prior to reserving area for it as this would go a long way in protecting the interest of the sugarcane growers, meaning thereby, if the company already has financial capacity to pay the estimated dues before the area is reserved for it then there will be no question of delayed payment and the intent and scheme of the Act, 1953 and/ or the Control Order, 1966 would be achieved.

30. He submitted that Sugarcane Commissioner was well within his powers to open an Escrow account. The provisions of the Act and the Orders referred hereinabove are not to be interpreted to institutionalise delayed payment of dues by occupiers but to protect interest of cane growers. The dues of the sugarcane growers for the crushing season 2020-21 which started in October, 2020 and ending in July, 2021, have not been cleared as of now nor have the dues been deposited with the Cane growers' Co-operative Society.

31. He relied upon various decisions in support of his contention reported in (2011) 3 SCC 139 'Offshore Holdings Private Limited vs. Banglore Development Authorities and Ors.'; AIR 1956 SC 676 'CH. Tika Ramji and others etc vs. State of U.P. and others'; (2004) 5 SCC 430 'U.P. Cooperative Cane Union Federation vs. West U.P. Sugar Mills Association and others'; 1997 (9) SCC 207 'State of M.P. vs. Jaora Sugar Mills and Ors.'; (2015) 6 SCC 363 'Kalyani Maithivanan vs. K.V. Jeyaraj and others'; (2008) 4 SCC 720 'Government of Andhra Pradesh and others vs. P. Laxmi Devi'; AIR 1967 SC 1910 'Sant Ram Sharma vs. State of Rajasthan'; (2008) 4 SCC 171'Dhananjay Malik and ors. vs. State of Uttranchal and Ors; PIL No.67617 of 2014 'Rastriya Kisan Mazdoor Sangathan (Regd) Thru Convenor vs. State of U.P. & Another'; (1955) 1 SCR 799 'Saverbhai Amaidas vs. State of Bombay'; Writ Petition (s) (Civil) No.805 of 2021 'Raju Anna Shetti & Ors. vs. Union of India & Ors.'; (1989) 3 SCC 537 'Ratan Lal Adukia vs. Union of India' and (2020) SCC Online All 1039 'Kanikram and Ors vs. State of U.P. and Ors.' in support of his contention.

32. Sri Parmanand Asthana, learned advocate also appearing for the Cane-growers' Co-operative Societies in some of the petitions has submitted in his written submissions that it is the co-operative society which enters into agreement with the sugar factory in Form-'C' mentioned in the Control Order of 1954 for supply of sugarcane to its members and the sugar factory makes payment of the cane price of sugarcane supplied by the society directly to the cane growers in their account through RTGS/ NEFT. The petitioners, therefore, cannot independently file instant writ petition for payment of cane price of sugarcane supplied by them through Cane-growers' Co-operative Society. The petitions by cane growers are thus not maintainable. He has supported the payment of cane dues to the farmers on the principle of "first supply, first payment' and submitted that out of turn payment should not be allowed nor should the que be broken as ultimate sufferers would be the small farmers. He has relied upon two Division Bench judgments rendered by this Court in the Writ Petition No.866(M/B) of 2019 'Ram Keval vs. State of U.P. and others' and Writ Petition No.30937 (M/B) of 2018 'Ram Singh vs. State of U.P. and others' in support of his contention that these writ petitions by cane growers are not maintainable.

33. In response, learned counsel for the petitioner submitted that the Company is flourishing and is insensitive to the financial needs of the sugarcane growers. He submitted that some of the farmers have committed suicide. However, he could not place before this Court any material in this regard. He submitted that the legal position has already been settled by this Court in the case of Kanikram (supra), Rastriya Kisan Mazdoor Sangathan (supra), Jaypal Singh (supra), therefore, nothing was required to be adjudicated so far as the legal position is concerned. The Cane-growers' Cooperative Society having failed to seek legal redress, the petitioners-cane growers are entitled to file this petition seeking their rightful dues. The provisions of Section 17 being mandatory, the Company had no option but to pay the entire amount of dues of the petitioners within the fifteen days mentioned in sub-Section (3) of Section 17 of the Act, 1953 and not having done so, the Sugarcane Commissioner is under an obligation to issue recovery certificate to the concerned Collectors who in turn are under an obligation to recover the entire amount from the Company as arrears of land revenue and pay the same to the cane growers, but this is not being done and interest of the sugarcane growers is not being protected and served by the official opposite parties nor by the Company. He further alleged violation of Article 14 and 21 of the Constitution of India. According to him, the Escrow account mechanism evolved by the Sugarcane Commissioner is in the teeth of the mandatory provisions contained in the Act, 1953. The Company earns hundreds of crores merely by delaying payment as it does not pay interest on the said delayed payment.

34. It needs to be mentioned that as per the records, crushing of sugar cane started in October/ November, 2020 and ended sometime in March, 2021 in respect of the five mills which are involved in these petitions.

35. We have heard learned counsel for the parties and perused the material available on record.

36. First and foremost, as regards contention of Sri Parmanand Ashthana, learned counsel appearing for Cane-growers' Co-operative Society in some of the writ petitions that the writ petitions by the sugarcane growers/ farmers for payment of dues directly before this Court was not maintainable, it is surprising that such an objection is coming from learned counsel for Cane-growers' Co-operative Society as in view of the admitted factual position that the cane dues have not been paid as also the Company's admission of its liability to pay such dues, it is a question to be pondered by the Cane-growers Co-operative Society as to why it has not itself come forward before the Court raising such a grievance and even if, for some reason, it has not done so, why should it oppose the petitions filed by the sugarcane growers who are claiming their rightful dues to which they are entitled for sale of sugarcane to the company? especially when, these sale proceeds are the source of their livelihood. This plea at the behest of Sri Asthana is not acceptable at least in the facts of the present case where the Company admits to its liability, and as the Co-operative Societies are also party in these proceedings.

37. Sri Gaurav Mehrotra, learned counsel appearing for Cane-growers' Co-operative Society in other petitions, has very fairly stated that he was not raising any such objection considering the interest of the farmers. Furthermore, we find that the decision of this Court in Ram Keval (supra) case relied by Sri Asthana, learned counsel, does not contain any reason for holding the petition to be not maintainable it only refers to a decision rendered in P.I.L. No.1081 of 2013 (Dharam Veer Singh and other vs. State of U.P. and others) which was not a matter pertaining to sugarcane dues of farmers but some farmers had challenged an order for reservation of cane area, therefore, the said decision does not apply in this case. The decision in 'Tejwal Gangwar vs. State of U.P.' Writ-C No.60912 of 2016 also did not deal with sugarcane dues but with establishing cane centres. In fact, this issue has been specifically considered by a Co-ordinate Bench of this Court in the case of Kanikram (supra) and it has been held that writ petition under Article 226 of the Constitution of India by sugarcane growers for payment of sugarcane dues is maintainable, cogent reasons have been given in support of this conclusion.

38. As regards the objection of Sri H.P. Srivastava, learned counsel for the State, even if half-hearted, that there was a remedy under Rule 108 of the Rules, 1954 of Arbitration, considering the scope of provision which covers any dispute touching the business of a cane grower's society etc which is not the case here, it is not attracted. Even otherwise, in view of the legal issues involved herein it is not at all an efficacious remedy in the facts of the case. The contention is rejected.

39. Now, we proceed to consider the relevant statutory provisions.

40. In the case of Ch. Tikaramji (supra), the Supreme Court of India has held that when Entry 33 of List III of the Seventh Schedule of the Constitution of India was amended by the Constitution Third Amendment Act, 1954 foodstuffs including edible oilseeds and oils were included therein and both Parliament and State legislatures acquired concurrent jurisdiction to legislate over sugar and sugarcane. Trade and commerce in, and production, supply and distribution of, sugar and sugarcane, could thus be dealt with by Parliament as well as by the State legislatures.

41. The Act, 1953 promulgated by the State Legislature is referable to Entry-33 of the Concurrent List (List III) contained in the Seventh Schedule of the Constitution of India. The Rules, 1954 have been made under the State Act, 1953 likewise the Order, 1954 has been made under Section 16 of the State Act, 1953.

42. The Essential Commodities Act, 1955 which is a Central Legislation and has been promulgated by the Parliament is also referable to the same Entry 33 of List III as has been held by Hon'ble the Supreme Court in the case of Ch. Tikaramji (supra) which has been considered in the subsequent decisions reported in (2004) 5 SCC 430 'U.P. Co-operative Cane Union Federations vs. West U.P. Sugar Mills Association'; (2009) 9 SCC 548 'West U.P. Sugar Mills Association and others vs. State of U.P. and others'. The Order, 1966 has been issued by the Central Government under Section 3 of the Central Act, 1955.

43. The Order, 1966 did not exist when the decision in Ch. Tikaramji (supra) was rendered by the Supreme Court of India in 1956 though another Order of 1955 did exist and was considered in the said case. The question of conflict of the Act, 1953 with the Central Order, 1955 also came up for consideration but in the facts of the said case, no conflict as alleged was found.

44. The State Act, 1953 has received the accent of the President on 05.10.1953 and has been published on 09.10.1953 i.e. prior to coming into force of the Central Act, 1955, as informed by Sri Mehrotra, therefore, Article 254 (2) does not come into picture as the presidential accent granted to it is of a date prior to the coming into force of the Central Act, 1955 and the Order of 1966 has also been issued under Section 3 of the said Central Act, 1955 subsequently. The law regarding application of Article 254 of the Constitution of India and its proviso has been considered and declared by Hon'ble the Supreme Court in the cases reported in (2002) 8 SCC 182 'Kaiser-i-Hind Pvt. Ltd. and Anr. vs. National Textile Corpn. (Maharastra North) and Ors.'; (2011) 8 SCC 708 'Rajiv Sarin and Anr. vs. State of Uttarakhand and Ors.' and (2021) 8 SCC 599 'Forum For People's Collective Efforts (FPCE) and Anr. vs. State of West Bengal and Anr.'.

45. The Act, 1953 as is evident from its long title is an Act to regulate the supply and purchase of sugarcane required for use in sugar factories and Gur, Rab or Khandsari Sugar Manufacturing Units. The competence of the Parliament to enact the Essential Commodities Act, 1955 and that it would cover sugarcane within its ambit as has already been considered by Hon'ble the Supreme Court in the case of Ch. Tikaramji (supra) as also the subsequent decision in U.P. Co-operative Cane Union Federations (supra) and this aspect of the matter is no longer res-integra.

46. It is no longer in doubt that both the Acts relate to the same Entry of the Concurrent List and, therefore, all that is required to be seen is whether there is any conflict between the two enactments or the Rules and Order made thereunder or not, if it is, then which will prevail.

47. As we are only concerned with the payment of sugarcane dues to the sugarcane farmers, we need not delve at length on other provisions but only those relating to this issue.

In this context, Section 17 of the Act, 1953 is relevant and it reads as under:-

"17. Payment of cane price.--(1) The occupier of a factory shall make such provision for speedy payment of the price of cane purchased by him as may be prescribed.

(2) Upon the delivery of cane, the occupier of a factory shall be liable to pay immediately the price of the cane so supplied, together with all other sums connected therewith,

(3) Where the person liable under sub-section (2) is in default in making the payment of the price for a period exceeding fifteen days from the date of delivering, he shall also pay interest at a rate of 7- 1/2 per cent per annum from the said date of delivering, but the Cane Commissioner may, in any case, direct, with the approval of the State Government, that no interest shall be paid such reduced rate as he may fix:

[Provided that in relation to default in payment of price of cane purchased after the commencement of this proviso, for the figure "7-1/2' the 'figure 12' shall be deemed substituted.]

(4) The Cane Commissioner shall forward to the Collector a certificate under his signature specifying the amount of arrears on account of the price of cane plus interest, if any, due from the occupier and the Collector, in receipt of such certificate, shall proceed to recover from such occupier the amount specified therein. as if it were an arrear of land revenue.

(5)(a) Without prejudice to the provisions of the foregoing sub sections, where the owner or any other person having control over the affairs of the factory or any other person competent in that behalf enters into an agreement with a bank under which the bank agrees to give advance to him [on the security of sugar or ethanol (directly produced from the sugarcane juice or B-Heavy molasses)] produced or to be produced in the factory, the said owner or other person shall provide in such agreement that [a percentage determined by such authority and in such manner as may be prescribed] of the total amount of advance shall be set apart and be available only for re-payment to cane growers or their co-operative societies on account of the price of sugarcane purchased or to be purchased for the factory during the current crushing season from those cane growers or from or through those societies, and interest thereon and, such societies commission in respect thereof.

(b) Every such owner or other person as aforesaid shall send a copy of every such agreement to the Collector within a week from the date on which it is entered into."

48. On a reading of Section 17 (1) of the Act, 1953, the Court finds that the occupier of a factory is required to make such provision for speedy payment of price of cane purchased by him as may be prescribed. The term 'occupier' has been defined in Section 2(k) of the said Act and it includes the opposite party no.6-,the Company which is owner of the factory or mill. The term "prescribed' has been defined under Section (2)(l) of the aforesaid Act to mean "prescribed by rules'. The term "rules' has been defined in Section (2)(o) to mean "a rule made under this Act' i.e. the Act, 1953. The Court has perused the Rules, 1954 but it could not find any provision therein prescribing a provision for speedy payment of price of cane purchased by the occupier which could be followed by the latter nor could the counsel for the rival parties show any such provision. The Order, 1954 also does not contain any such provision referable to sub-Section (1) of Section 17 of the Act, 1953. Proviso to Rule 45 says that all arrears of cane price shell be remitted to the cane growers co-operative society concerned within fifteen days of the close of the factory. The factory closes on completion of crushing season which is defined in Section 2(i) to mean the period beginning on the 1st October in any year and ending on the 15th July next following.

49. Now, as already stated earlier, no such prescription as regards speedy payment of price of cane purchased by the occupier has been made in the rules of 1954 or the Order, 1954 made under the Act, 1953 as is envisaged under sub-Section (1) of Section 17 of the Act, 1953. Sub-Section (3) of Section 17 of the Act, 1953, however, says that where the person liable under sub-section (2) is in default in making the payment of the price for a period exceeding fifteen days from the date of delivering, he shall also pay interest at a rate of 12 per cent per annum from the said date of delivering.

50. We have no hesitation in holding that even though as per the word 'prescribed' used in Section 17(1) of the Act, 1953 which has been defined in Section 2(k) of the Act, 1953, according to which, such prescription has to be made in the rules made under the Act, 1954, in the absence of any such prescription under the Rules, from the scheme of Section 17 of the Act, 1953 itself it is clear that the time limit to pay the cane dues to the farmers is fifteen days from the date of delivering the sugarcane, failing which, not only interest becomes payable but the dues become arrears and the same are recoverable under sub-Section (4) of Section 17 plus interest thereon leviable under sub-Section (3) of the Act, 1953. There can be no other reasonable understanding of the scheme of the Act. This, however, may not be very relevant in view of the discussion made hereinafter.

51. However, in this context, when we peruse the Control Order, 1966 which has been made under Section 3 of the Central Act, 1955, we find a specific provision therein as is contained in Clause 3(3) and 3-A thereof. The entire Clause (3) reads as under:-

"3. Fair and remunerative price of sugarcane payable by producer of sugar.--(1) The Central Government may, after consultation with such authorities, bodies or associations as it may deem fit, by notification in the Official Gazette, from time to time, fix the minimum price of sugarcane to be paid by producers of sugar or their agents for the sugarcane purchased by them having regard to--

(a) the cost of production of sugarcane;

(b) the return to the grower from alternative crops and the general trend of prices of agricultural commodities;

(c) the availability of sugar to the consumer at a fair price;

(d) the price at which sugar produced from sugarcane is sold by producers of sugar; and

(e) the recovery of sugar from sugarcane:

(f) the realization made by sale of by-products viz molasses, bagasse, and press mud or their imputed value.

(g) reasonable margins for the growers of sugarcane on account of risk and profits.

[Provided that the Central Government or with the approval of the Central Government, the State Government, may, in such circumstances and subject to such conditions as specified in Clause 3-A, allow a suitable rebate in the price so fixed.]

Explanation.--(1) Different prices may be fixed for different areas or different qualities or varieties of sugarcane.

Explanation-(2) When a sugar factory produces ethanol directly from sugar juice or B-Heavy molasses, the recovery rate in case of such sugar factory shall be determined by considering every 600 litres of ethanol so produced as equivalent to 1 tonne of production of sugar;

Explanation (3).-Production of ethanol directly from sugarcane juice shall be allowed in case of sugar factories only.

Explanation (4).-Imputed value of the by-products would include unsold value or the notional or transfer value of such by-products for further value addition in the sugar factory like, alcohol and ethanol production from molasses, use of press mud for making bio-fertilizer and/or distillery effluent treatment, generation of power from bagasse or any other product produced through value addition to the by-products mentioned above but should not include the bagasse used for running the boiler of the main sugar factory for the production of sugar alone.

Explanation (5). The realization made from the sale of by-products namely, molasses, bagasse and press mud or their imputed value means only transfer prices and not the value of or profit from co-generated power, alcohol or ethanol, bio-fertilizers or distillery effluent treatment or any other product produced through value addition to the by-products mentioned above.]

(2) No person shall sell or agree to sell sugarcane to a producer of sugar or his agent, and no such producer or agent shall purchase or agree to purchase garcane, at a price lower than that fixed under sub-clause (1).

(3) Where a producer of sugar purchases any sugarcane from a grower of sugarcane or from a sugarcane growers' co-operative society, the producer shall, unless there is an agreement in writing to the contrary between the parties, pay within fourteen days from the date of delivery of the sugarcane to the seller or tender to him the price of the cane sold at the rate agreed to between the producer and the sugarcane grower or the sugarcane growers' co-operative society or that fixed under sub-clause (1), as the case may be, either at the gate of the factory or at the cane collection centre or transfer or deposit the necessary amount in the Bank account of the seller or the co-operative society, as the case may be.

(3-A) Where a producer of sugar or his agent fails to make payment for the sugarcane purchased within 14 days of the date of delivery, he shall pay interest on the amount due at the rate of 15 per cent per annum for the period of such delay beyond 14 days. Where payment of interest on delayed payment is made to a cane growers' society, the society shall pass on the interest to the cane growers concerned after deducting administrative charges, if any, permitted by the rules of the said society.

(4) Where sugarcane is purchased through an agent, the producer or the agent shall pay or tender payment of such price within the period and in the manner aforesaid and if neither of them has so paid or tendered payment, each of them shall be deemed to have contravened the provisions of this clause.

(5) At the time of payment at the gate of the factory or at the cane collection centre, receipts, if any, given by the purchaser, shall be surrendered by the cane grower or Co-operative society.

(6) Where payment has been made by transfer or deposit of the amount to the Bank account of the seller or the co-operative society, as the case may be, the receipt given by the purchaser, if any, to the grower or the co-operative society if not returned to the purchaser, shall become invalid.

(7) In case, the price of the sugarcane remains unpaid on the last day of the sugar year in which cane supply was made to the factory on account of the suppliers of cane not coming forward with their claims therefor , it shall be deposited by the producer of sugar with the Collector of the district in which the factory is situated, within three months of the close of the sugar year. The Collector shall pay, out of the amount so deposited, all claims considered payable by him and preferred before him within three years of the close of the sugar year in which the cane was supplied to the factory. The amount still remaining undisbursed with the Collector, after meeting the claims from the suppliers, shall be credited by him to the Consolidated Fund of the State, immediately after the expiry of the time limit of 3 years within which claims therefor could be preferred by the suppliers. The State Government shall, as far as possible utilise such amounts for development of sugarcane in the State.]

(8) Where any producer of sugar or his agent has defaulted in furnishing information under Clause 9 of this Order or has defaulted in paying the whole or any part of the price of sugarcane to a grower of sugarcane or a sugarcane growers co-operative society within fourteen days from the date of delivery of sugarcane, or where there is an agreement in writing between the parties for payment of price within a specified time and any producer or his agent has defaulted in making payment within the agreed time specified therein, the Central Government or an officer authorised by the Central Government in this behalf or the State Government or an officer authorised by the State Government in this behalf may either on the basis of information made available by the producer of sugar or his agent or on the basis of claims, if any, made to it or him regarding non-payment of prices or arrears thereof by the concerned grower of sugarcane or the sugarcane growers co-operative society as the case may be, or on the basis of such enquiry that it or he deems fit, shall forward to the Collector of the district in which the factory is located, a certificate specifying the amount of price of sugarcane and interest due thereon from the producer of sugar or his agent for its recovery as arrears of the land revenue.

(9) The Collector on receipt of such certificate, shall proceed to recover from such producer of sugar or his agent the amount specified therein as if it were arrears of land revenue.

(10) After effecting the recovery, the Collector shall intimate to the concerned growers of the sugarcane or the concerned sugarcane growers co-operative societies through a public notice to submit their claims in such a manner as he considers appropriate within thirty days:

Provided that the Collector may, for the reasons to be recorded in writing allow the submission of claims after the period so specified if he is satisfied that there was sufficient cause for not submitting such claim earlier.

(11) If the amount recovered is less than the amount specified in the certificate under sub-clause (8), the Collector shall distribute the amount so recovered among the concerned growers of the sugarcane or the concerned sugarcane growers co-operatives in proportion to the ratio determined by the Collector on the basis of the sugarcane supplied by the concerned growers of sugarcane or the sugarcane growers' co-operative society as the case may be.

(12) If the amount recovered and distributed under sub-clause (11) is less than the amount specified in the certificate under sub-clause (8), the Collector shall proceed to recover the remaining amount, as if it were arrears of land revenue till the full amount is recovered and distributed to satisfy the remaining claims.

(13) If the amount is given to the concerned sugarcane growers co-operative societies, it shall distribute the amount through cheque/draft/or any other recognised banking instrument on any Scheduled Bank to the concerned sugarcane growers within ten days of the receipt of the amount from the Collector.

(14) If the concerned sugarcane grower or the concerned sugarcane growers co-operative society do not come forward to claim or collect the amount so recovered by the Collector within three years from the date of the public notice referred to in sub-clause (10), the unclaimed amount shall be deposited by the Collector in the Consolidated Fund of the State."

52. As per Clause 3(3) of the Order, 1966 where a producer of sugar purchases any sugarcane from a grower of sugarcane or from a sugarcane growers' co-operative society, the producer shall, unless there is an agreement in writing to the contrary between the parties, pay within fourteen days from the date of delivery of the sugarcane to the seller or tender to him the price of the cane sold at the rate agreed to between the producer and the sugarcane grower or the sugarcane growers' co-operative society or that fixed under sub-clause (1), as the case may be, either at the gate of the factory or at the cane collection centre or transfer or deposit the necessary amount in the Bank account of the seller or the co-operative society, as the case may be.

53. This provision categorically requires the purchaser of sugarcane to pay the price of such sugarcane within fourteen days from the date of delivery of the sugarcane to the seller etc. as referred therein etc unless there is an agreement in writing to the contrary between the parties.

54. None of the learned counsel for the rival parties could show any agreement between the parties laying down any time period for payment of such dues other than what is envisaged in the aforesaid provision.

55. Clause 3(3-A) of the Order, 1966 provides that where a producer of sugar or his agent fails to make payment for the sugarcane purchased within 14 days of the date of delivery, he shall pay interest on the amount due at the rate of 15 per cent per annum for the period of such delay beyond 14 days. Where payment of interest on delayed payment is made to a cane growers' society, the society shall pass on the interest to the cane growers concerned after deducting administrative charges, if any, permitted by the rules of the said society.

56. Thus, sub-Section (3) of Section 17 of the State Act, 1953 prescribes a period of fifteen days but the Central Order, 1966 made under the Central Enactment, 1955 prescribes the period of fourteen days for payment of sugarcane dues. Therefore, the State Act is in conflict with the Central Order and the former will have to give way to the latter. This is, as, the Order 1966, is a Central Order made under a central enactment of 1955, therefore, as it has backing and statutory force of a Central enactment, as such, it would prevail over any contrary provision contained in the State enactment, especially as, the State enactment of 1953 and the Central enactment of 1955 both are referable to Entry-33 of the Concurrent List as already discussed with reference to the decision of Supreme Court in Ch. Tikaramji (supra) and other decisions. In support of this one may refer to a decision reported in (2015) 6 SCC 363 'Kalyani Maithivanan vs. K.V. Jeyaraj and others' wherein, in the context of the U.G.C. Act and the State University Act, after considering the relevant constitutional provisions contained in Article 254 etc and the respective entries in the lists in the Seventh Schedule, it has been held that "to the extent the State legislation is in conflict with the Central legislation including the subordinate legislation made by the Central Legislation under Entry-25 of the Concurrent List, it shall be repugnant to the Central Legislation and would be in operative". The ratio of the decision applies in this case also.

57. In this view of the matter, considering the Central Order, 1966, as it contains a clear stipulation of the time period within which cane dues have to be paid i.e. fourteen days of the date of delivery, it will prevail over the Act, 1953. Therefore, we are of the considered opinion that the time period within which the company/ occupier as defined under the Act, 1953 is required to pay the cane dues to the cane farmers directly or to the Cane growers' Co-operative Society, is fourteen days from the date of delivery.

58. Now, under the proviso to sub-Section (3) of Section 17 of the Act, 1953 interest @ 12 per cent per annum becomes payable if the payment of the price is not made within the stipulated period but under Clause 3 and 3(3-A) of the Central Order, 1966, interest @ 15 per cent per annum becomes payable. In view of this conflict and for the reasons already given hereinabove, as, the Central Order, 1966 will prevail on this score also, therefore, not only the time period has to be fourteen days but the rate of interest also has to be 15 per cent per annum as is prescribed in the Central Order, 1966 and not 12 per cent per annum as is mentioned in the proviso to sub-Section (3) of Section 17 of the Act, 1953. This however is subject to the provisions contained in sub-Section (3) of Section 17 of the Act, 1953 which provides "but the Cane Commissioner may, in any case, direct, with the approval of the State Government, that no interest shall be paid or be paid at such reduced rate as he may fix". The Order, 1966 does not prohibit such waiver of interest or its reduction as has also been considered in the case of Rashtriya Kisan Mazdoor Sangathan (supra).

59. This discussion was necessary to clear the cloud on this issue.

60. In this very context, we may also refer to another Division Bench judgment of this Court in the case of 'Rashtriya Kisan Mazdoor Sangathan (supra) decided on 09.03.2017 wherein though there is not a detailed discussion as to whether the interest would be @ 15 per cent per annum or @ 12 per cent per annum, nevertheless, it has been provided that the same would be @15 per cent per annum and the said Division Bench has also provided that speedy payment is to be made within fourteen days of delivery. Therefore, obviously, it had the Central Order, 1966 in mind while so ordering.

61. Now, as per sub-Section (4) of Section 17 of the Act, 1953 the Cane Commissioner shall forward to the Collector a certificate under his signature specifying the amount of arrears on account of the price of cane plus interest, if any, due from the occupier and the Collector, in receipt of such certificate, shall proceed to recover from such occupier the amounts specified therein as if it were arrears of land revenue.

62. Correspondingly when we read the provisions of Central Order, 1966, we find that Clause 3(8) of the Central Order, 1966 provides that where any producer of sugar or his agent has defaulted in furnishing information under Clause 9 of this Order or has defaulted in paying the whole or any part of the price of sugarcane to a grower of sugarcane or a sugarcane growers co-operative society within fourteen days from the date of delivery of sugarcane, or where there is an agreement in writing between the parties for payment of price within a specified time and any producer or his agent has defaulted in making payment within the agreed time specified therein, the Central Government or an officer authorized by the Central Government in this behalf or the State Government or an officer authorized by the State Government in this behalf may either on the basis of information made available by the producer of sugar or his agent or on the basis of claims, if any, made to it or him regarding non-payment of prices or arrears thereof by the concerned grower of sugarcane or the sugarcane growers co-operative society, as the case may be, or on the basis of such enquiry that it or he deems fit, shall forward to the Collector of the district in which the factory is located, a certificate specifying the amount of price of sugarcane and interest due thereon from the producer of sugar or his agent for its recovery as arrears of the land revenue. This provision does not prevent the Sugarcane Commissioner from issuing a recovery certificate as is envisaged in Section 17(4) of the Act, 1953, rather it permits it, therefore, there is no conflict between the Act, 1953 and the Order, 1966 on this count. We may in this context refer to the opinion expressed by a Coordinate Bench of this Court in Rashtriya Kisan Mazdoor Sangathan (supra) as under:-

"It is true that under Sugarcane Control Order 1966, there is a higher rate of interest provided as compared to the interest provided for under Sugarcane Act, 1953 and State Government, in its turn as obedience to both the provisions is possible, has accepted in principle to award higher rate of interest as it is more beneficial to the farmers, therefore the submission made that once the field regarding interest stands occupied by Control Order, the power to waive interest in terms of Section 17(3) Sugarcane Act 1953 stands divested is also being adverted to by us.

The Apex Court in the case of State of M.P. vs. Jaora Sugar Mills and others 1997 (9) SCC 207 has clearly proceeded to mention that the respondents are liable to pay interest on the late payment under the Act read with order.

Apex Court in the case of Belsund Sugar Company Ltd. Vs. State of Bihar 1999 (9) SCC 620, while considering akin provisions vis.a.vis. Sugarcane (Control) Order, 1966 as well as Bihar Sugarcane (Regulation of Supply and Purchase) Act, 1981 took the view that both are harmoniously operating in same field and compliment each other. View to the similar effect has once again been taken in the case of Krishi Upaj Mandi Samiti Vs. Shiv Shankar Khandsari Udyog 2012 (9) SCC 368 wherein the provisions of M.P. Sugarcane (Regulation of Supply and Purchase) Act, 1958 alongwith the provisions of Sugarcane (Control) Order, 1966 was being dealt with and Apex Court has found and ruled that entire field of sale and purchase of sugarcane is covered by Sugarcane Act and Control Order, which are special provisions. In the case of U.P. Cooperative Cane Union Federation Vs. West U.P. Sugar Mill Association 2004 (5) SCC 430, Apex Court though in the matter of fixation of price took the view that there will be no inconsistency or repugnancy as it is possible for both the orders that is Sugarcane (Control) Order, 1966 and the provisions of U.P. Sugarcane (Regulation of Supply and Purchase) Act, 1953 to operate simultaneously and to comply with both of them.

In the present case, what we find that there is no repugnancy arising for the simple reason that under the provision of Sugarcane (Control) Order, 1966, there is no provision that empowers the authorities to waive the interest, whereas under sub-section (3) of Section 17 the State Authorities are empowered to waive the interest on the recommendation of the Cane Commissioner.

Legislative Competence of U.P. State Legislature to enact law in regard to supply and purchase of sugarcane required or to be used in sugar factories has not at all been disputed before us, and once legislative competence is there to enact law with regard to sugarcane wherein authority has also been inhered to waive interest on delayed payment, hence there is no question of trenching upon the authority covered under Sugarcane Control Order 1966.

Apex Court in the case of Yogendra Kumar Jaiswal and others Vs. State of Bihar 2016(3) SCC 183 has clearly mentioned that repugnancy would arise when there is clear and direct inconsistency between Central Law and State Law and such inconsistency irreconcilable. Question of repugnancy can arise only with reference to legislation made by Parliament falling under the Concurrent list or an existing law with reference to one of the matter enumerated in Concurrent list. If a law made by the State Legislature covered by an entry in the State List incidentally touches any of the entries in the Concurrent List. Article 254 is not attracted but where a law covered by an entry in the State List (or an amendment to a law covered by an entry in the State List) made by the State Legislature contains a provision, which directly and substantially relates to a matter enumerated in the Concurrent List and is repugnant to any provision of an existing law with respect to that matter in the Concurrent List then such repugnant provision of the State law will be void. Such a provision of law made by the State Legislature touching upon a matter covered by the Concurrent List, will not be void if it can co-exist and operate without repugnancy with the provisions of the existing law. It needs no special emphasis to state that the issue of repugnancy would also arise where the law made by Parliament and the law made by the State Legislature occupy the same field.

On such parameters, the question of repugnancy would not at all arise and to the contrary both the provisions would co-exist for the simple reason that under the scheme of things provided for interest has been made admissible on delayed payment under both the statutory provisions and in addition to it under State Act, State has inhered in itself authority to waive the interest on the recommendation of Cane Commissioner. Accordingly to suggest that once the field regarding the interest has been completely occupied by the Control Order, the power to waive the interest in terms of Section 17(3) Sugarcane Act, 1953 no longer exists with the Commissioner cannot be accepted by us.

In view of this, the objection that has been raised by the petitioners association/sangathan that State Authorities has got no authority to waive the interest, cannot be accepted by us..."

63. Clause 3(9) of the Order, 1966 further provides that the Collector, on receipt of such certificate, shall proceed to recover from such producer of sugar or his agent, the amount specified therein as if it were arrears of land revenue.

64. As per Clause 3(10) of the Order, 1966 after effecting the recovery, the Collector shall intimate to the concerned growers of the sugarcane or the concerned sugarcane growers co-operative societies through a public notice to submit their claims in such a manner as he considers appropriate within thirty days provided that the Collector may, for the reasons to be recorded in writing allow the submission of claims after the period so specified if he is satisfied that there was sufficient cause for not submitting such claim earlier.

65. Clause 3(11) of the Order, 1966 provides that if the amount recovered is less than the amount specified in the certificate under sub-clause (8), the Collector shall distribute the amount so recovered among the concerned growers of the sugarcane or the concerned sugarcane growers co-operatives in proportion to the ratio determined by the Collector on the basis of the sugarcane supplied by the concerned growers of sugarcane or the sugarcane growers' co-operative society as the case may be.

66. Clause 3(12) provides that if the amount recovered and distributed under sub-clause (11) is less than the amount specified in the certificate under sub-clause (8), the Collector shall proceed to recover the remaining amount, as if it were arrears of land revenue till the full amount is recovered and distributed to satisfy the remaining claims. The procedure for recovery of arrears of land revenue is prescribed in the U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 and the U.P. Revenue Code Rules, 2016 which will be followed in such circumstances.

67. Clause 3(13) provides that if the amount is given to the concerned sugarcane growers co-operative societies, it shall distribute the amount through cheque/draft/or any other recognized banking instrument on any Scheduled Bank to the concerned sugarcane growers within ten days of the receipt of the amount from the Collector.

68. Clause 3(14) provides that if the concerned sugarcane grower or the concerned sugarcane growers co-operative society do not come forward to claim or collect the amount so recovered by the Collector within three years from the date of the public notice referred to in sub-clause (10), the unclaimed amount shall be deposited by the Collector in the Consolidated Fund of the State.

69. Thus, entire mechanism for speedy payment of cane price to sugarcane growers or the Cane-grower's Co-operative Society is provided in Order 3 of the Central Order, 1966 including the recovery of arrears/ dues thereof as arrears of land revenue. Whereas, though, there is a provision for the same in Section 17 of the Act, 1953, in view of the fact that the Central Order, 1966 has been made under a Central enactment, for the reasons already given hereinabove, the latter will have to prevail to the extent the former is in conflict with the latter subject of course to the condition that the recovery proceedings including issuance of Recovery Certificate would have to be undertaken by the state officials which is also permissible under Clause 3 of the Central Order, 1966.

70. Clause 9 of the Order, 1966 which is referred in Clause 3(8), inter alia, empowers the concerned authority to maintain and furnish within seven days of close of each fortnight details of cane purchased, cane price due, cane price paid, cane price arrears for each fortnight as specified in the Third Schedule to the said Order. This facilitates the mechanism mentioned in Clause (3) of the Order referred earlier. Similar provisions are there under the State Rules, 1954.

71. Now, from the provisions of Clause 3 of the Central Order, 1966, it is evident that if the payment has not been made within fourteen days from the date of delivery then the procedure for recovery of the same as arrears of land revenue will be set in motion as per Clause 3(8) of the Order, 1966.

72. Clause 3(7) of the Order, 1966 deals with a situation where the the price of the sugarcane remains unpaid on the last day of the sugar year in which cane supply was made to the factory on account of the suppliers of cane not coming forward with their claims therefor or for any other reason, therefore, this will also come into play when the aforesaid eventuality is satisfied.

73. The contention of Sri S.C. Mishra that provisions of sub-Sections (3) and (4) of Section 17 of the Act, 1953 nowhere provides as to when the Cane Commissioner will issue recovery certificate to the Collector for recovery of the arrears of cane dues, therefore, the provisions of the Act, 1953 are arbitrary and give uncannalized power to the Sugarcane Commissioner, are not acceptable and have to be repelled as in such a scenario, the provisions of the Clause 3 of the Order, 1966 will come into play and on expiry of fourteen days period, the State Officials can issue the recovery certificate to the Collector for recovery of arrears of sugarcane.

74. As regards the contention of Sri Mishra, learned Senior Counsel that fourteen days' period is impractical as it is impossible to pay the price of sugarcane within such a short period considering the huge production and purchase of sugarcane, it is a separate matter which the concerned Government or the legislature can look into as to whether there is a requirement of amending the Act, 1953 or the rules and orders made thereunder or for that matter the Central Order, 1966, but in the absence of any challenge to the vires of relevant provisions of the Act, 1953 or the Order, 1966, the provisions of law stand as they are as of now and as have been discussed hereinabove.

75. This also takes care of the ambiguity alleged in the provisions contained in Section 17 as regards the time limit for payment of dues of the sugarcane in view of the words "speedy payment' used in sub-Section (1) of Section 17 of the Act, 1953 and the word "immediately' used in sub-Section (2) of Section 17 of the aforesaid Act, as also the words "fifteen days' used in sub-Section (3) of Section 17 of the aforesaid Act, as, now, this aspect has to be governed by Clause 3(3) and 3(3-A) of the Central Order, 1966.

76. In this very context, we may consider the plea raised by Sri Mishra that interest payment under sub-Section (3) of Section 17 of the Act, 1953 is not mandatory and it is subject to any waiver by the Sugarcane Commissioner with the approval of the State Government. Firstly, the interest from the very language used in Section 17 and for that matter the provisions of Clause 3 of the Central Order, 1966 is mandatory. In both the provisions, not only the words "shall' has been used but the very purpose of levying interest is to prevent financial loss to sugarcane growers and also to prevent the occupier/ company from gaining undue financial advantage by making delayed payment as, considering the huge amount of money which is required to be paid by the occupier, if levying of interest is held as not mandatory then this would result in undue enrichment of the company/ occupier and that too at the cost of poor farmers and sugarcane growers which is not the intent of the provisions of law discussed hereinabove.

77. As regards the other aspect of waiver or reduction of interest under Section 17(3) of the Act, 1953, we find that, firstly, there is nothing on record to show that in any of the earlier years, the Company/ Occupier had applied for waiver but as it is not the subject matter of these petition we leave it at that, nevertheless, as regards the year 2020-21, with which we are concerned, assuming that any such application has been made or could be made, this aspect of the matter relating to waiver of interest has already been dealt with by a Division Bench judgment in Rashtriya Kisan Mazdoor Sangathan (supra) and it is fruitful to refer to its observations / opinion in this regard which are as under:

"..and we also make it clear that the co-ordinate Bench of this Court of which one of us was member, has already taken view to the similar effect and therein a clear cut caution has been made that at the point of time when authority of waiver of interest is to be exercised by the authority, the said exercise is not to be undertaken in routine manner and the exercise of authority has to be fair and equitable and only in exceptional cases such an authority could be exercised. "

78. Waiver of interest by the Sugarcane Commissioner which has to be with the approval of the State Government can neither be mechanical nor in a routine manner but can only be for exceptional circumstances, in a fair and equitable manner. The parameters and factors referred by the Division Bench in Rashtriya Kisan Mazdoor Sangathan (supra) as quoted hereinabove have to be kept in mind and the Sugarcane Commissioner as also the State Government are bound by the same.

79. In fact, the Court pointedly asked Sri Mishra, learned Senior Counsel as to whether interest on the delayed payment has been given to the sugarcane growers in the last five years but he could not give any satisfactory reply. However, as far as the years prior to 2020-21 are concerned as the same are not the subject matter of these proceedings, therefore, we leave it open for the petitioners to claim interest thereon, unless there is some legal impediment in this regard, separately, or for that matter it is for the Sugarcane Commissioner and the concerned Cane growers co-operative society to take up this matter to protect the interest of farmers.

80. As regards opening of an Escrow account, in the facts of this case provision of Section 17(5) are not attracted as admittedly the Company has not entered into agreement with any Bank to get an Advance on the Security or ethanol produced in the factory as is evident from its counter affidavit. No cash credit facility has been utilized by the Company for this purpose as it has not been made available for the reason given in the affidavit filed on behalf of the Company-opposite party no.6, therefore, we are not in agreement with the contention of Sri Gaurav Mehrotra, learned counsel that the same is referable to sub-Section (5) of Section 17 read with Rule 48A of the Rules, 1954 nor that the Sugarcane Commissioner has incidental powers under Section 16 of the Act, 1953 to do so, as the language used therein does not lend itself to such interpretation.

81. On being asked as to why financial capacity of the Company to pay the estimated sugarcane dues was not assessed before reserving or assigning an area for it, the Sugarcane Commissioner submitted that it was not one of the parameters to be taken into consideration under Rule 22 of Rules, 1954, moreover, considering the factors mentioned in Rule 22 and law on the subject, it was inevitable to reserve or assign sugarcane area to the Company which had a factory in the area. He submitted that in the coming years there was going to be a shift to 'ethanol' and this would prevent such a situation, such as the one which has arisen in this case, from arising in future. We have perused Rule 22 of the Rules, 1954 which lays down the factors to be taken into consideration by the Cane Commissioner in reserving / assigning an area to a factory or determining the quantity of cane to be purchased from an area by a factory. We have also considered clause (f) thereof, according to which, the arrangements made by the factory in previous years for payment of cess, cane price and commission is one of the factors to be taken into consideration. We find substance in the submission of Sri Mehrotra, learned counsel that an assessment of paying capacity of the factory or company for payment of the estimated dues of the sugarcane growers, which can always be estimated in view of the provisions and mechanism especially contained under Section 15 of the Act, 1953 and the rules made thereunder and similar provision contained in the Order, 1954 and 1966, can be taken into consideration as one of the factors implicit in clause (f) of the Rule 22 of the Rules, 1954. If required, the Rules can be suitably amended to leave no room for ambiguity in this regard as it is necessary to protect the interests of the sugarcane growers that the Company should have adequate financial capacity to pay the dues of the farmers.

82. It is not in dispute that the Company/ Occupier is in default in payment of cane dues of farmers. The Company/ Occupier admits its liability to pay the dues. It has undertaken to pay it completely by March, 2022. Needless to say that dues along with interest @ 15 per cent per annum has to be paid for the year 2020-21 subject to any waiver in this regard by the Sugarcane Commissioner with the approval of the State Government. There is no provision for payment of compound interest as has been prayed.

83. During the course of hearing, the Court was informed that in respect to the five mills at Gola Gokaran Nath, Khambhar Khera, Palia Kalan, Barkhera and Maqsoodapur, total dues were Rs.510.1288 (crores), Rs.387.0157 (crores), Rs. 212.8306 (crores), Rs.295.9202 (crores), Rs.328.4919 (crores), against which an amount of Rs.183.1706 (crores), Rs.111.7938 (crores), Rs.125.9812 (crores), Rs.162.3050 (crores), Rs.130.4158 (crores) respectively had been paid by the first week of October. This was possible as the factory continued to run. It was submitted that the remaining dues will be cleared positively by 31st March, 2022.

84. Sri Mishra, learned counsel submitted in this context that all the assets of the Company were already encumbered, therefore, the best way out was to permit the Company to pay the dues by February-March, 2022 as had been done by Hon'ble the Supreme Court vide order dated 16.10.2020 in S.L.P. No.11948-11951 of 2020 arising out of judgment dated 21.09.2020 rendered in Kanikram's case (supra) with respect to the earlier year 2019-20.

85. Sri S.C. Mishra, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Sri Pawan Awasthi, learned counsel for opposite party no.6 informed the Court during the course of argument that out of total 6455 petitioners in all these writ petitions pertaining to five mills, more than 50% of the petitioners had been paid 50-70 % of the dues and the remaining amount would also be paid to all the petitioners by March, 2022.

86. The only question is should we direct recovery of arrears of dues as arrears of land revenue at this stage or we should allow the Company/ Occupier time in the light of its undertaking before this Court as also before the authorities, which is on record, purely in the facts and circumstances of the case.

87. The Sugarcane Commissioner had earlier informed the Court on a query being put to him as to why proceedings for recovery of dues were not initiated effectively especially against the Company, instead of merely against the factory, for which he submitted that the past experience is that nobody comes forward to purchase the factory and if it is shutdown it does not in any manner help the cause of farmers. However, he had no answer to the query of the Court as to why no proceedings are initiated against the parent Company - opposite party no.6 which is included in the definition of 'occupier' under Section 2(k) of the Act, 1953. In this regard, Sri Mishra submitted that its assets were already mortgaged with lenders.

88. We have perused the counter affidavit of opposite party no.3-Sugar Cane Commissioner and Opposite party no.6-Company. In paragraph nos.3 to 18 of the short counter affidavit filed along with an application dated 01.09.2021, the opposite party no.6-Company has given details of its immovable properties in response to the earlier order/ direction of this Court. It has stated that the total book value of the said immovable properties is Rs.3711.53 crores. However, in the earlier affidavit filed by it along with an application dated 09.08.2021, it has been stated that all the immovable properties and assets of the Company are mortgaged with the consortium of banks against the outstanding debt of the Company and the lenders have the first charge over the said immovable properties and assets of the Company. A chart has been annexed in this regard as SCA-2.

89. In the affidavit filed by the Company-opposite party no.6 along with an application dated 05.07.2021, it has been mentioned that the total value of the property, plant and equipment of the Bajaj Hindustan Sugar Mills Limited is at Rs.6985.26 crores as per the balance sheet of 2020-21. The Company has been in considerable financial stress for the past few years due to certain factors. The entire financial mechanism and operation of the Company is under direct monitoring and scrutiny of consortium of Banks headed by State Bank of India and the audit firm namely, M/s Deloitte Haskins & Sells, LLP. The Company's funds are directly controlled and monitored in real time by the consortium of Banks through Trust and Retention Account System (T.R.A.) since last five years and the direct control is always supervised by M/s Deloitte Haskins & Sells, LLP All the payments are rooted through the T.R.A. system and scrutinized and reviewed by the consortium of Banks. The Company has a sanctioned cash credit limit of Rs.926 crores from 11 Banks out of the consortium of Banks. The cash credit limit is sanctioned for the company as a whole and not sanctioned for a specific sugar plant. However, the Bank permits utilization of cash credit limit only against the available drawing power of the company. On account of huge outstanding dues of the Company, the drawing power of the Company has been negative in the previous three years and therefore, no amount was permitted/ available for utilization from the cash credit limit as such the only available option for payment of cane dues is from the proceeds of sale of sugar and other by-products which are being religiously followed and complied with under the tagging orders of the respective District Magistrates and office of Cane Commissioner by which the proceeds are to be deposited in the Escrow account and payment has to be made to the farmers therefrom. The Company could not taken advantage of soft loans under the schemes of the State and the Central Government meant for sugar mills due to the restructured loan accounts and stressed financial conditions. The cane area of the factories of the Company has been reduced substantially in the last few years.

90. These facts themselves highlight the importance of the need to assess the financial capacity/ paying capacity of the Company before reserving/ assigning a cane area for it as has been emphasized by us earlier.

91. In the affidavit filed along with application dated 19.09.2021 on behalf of the opposite party no.6, it has been stated that from 05.07.2021 to 31.08.2021, the Company has made a total payment of Rs.253.01 crores to the cane growers in respect to the five units in question namely, Gola Gokaran Nath, Khambhar Khera, Palia Kalan, Barkhera and Maqsoodapur. The details of payment made has also been given.

92. Reference has also been made in the said affidavit to the recommendations of the C. Rangarajan Committee constituted to look into all the issues related to regulation of sugar sector which according to Sri Mishra, learned counsel have not been implemented and the report itself shows that there is a wide gap between the ground reality and the statutory framework in place which is impractical.

93. Details of immovable properties of opposite party no.6-Company have been given in the short counter affidavit of opposite party no.6 dated 31.08.2021 but it is stated that the lenders have first charge over all these assets.

94. The details of balance sheet including its assets and liability including loans etc for the past five years including the year ending March, 2020 have been disclosed as part of Annexure no.6 to the short counter affidavit of opposite party no.6 dated 04.07.2021.

95. The Sugarcane Commissioner has also filed another short counter affidavit along with an application dated 03.07.2021 stating that resorting to opening of Escrow account mechanism has improved the situation of cane price payment in Uttar Pradesh tremendously. He has stated that allotment of sugarcane area to each sugar mill is according to its crushing capacity keeping in view the availability of the sugar cane in the area and the relevant factors as prescribed in Rule 22 of the Rules, 1954. This is done in such a way that the sugar cane supply tickets can be available proportionately to the sugarcane farmers and the sugar mills can do daily crushing work according to its crushing capacity. In paragraph no.32 of his affidavit, he has also delved into the issue of assigning/ reserving a cane area which is at present available with the Company to any other mill and the adverse effect it will have upon the viability and profitability of the mills as also the availability of supply tickets to farmers considering the crushing capacity of the mills which will be severely stressed.

96. It has also been stated in the affidavit of opposite party no.6 that on 02.07.2021, an undertaking has been given by the Company to the Cane Commissioner vide letter dated 02.07.2021 contained in SCA-7 to the said affidavit that the balance cane price payment for the season 2020-21 will be completed for some units in February, 2022 and the remaining units cane price payment will be finished by March, 2022.

97. The petitioners have not able to rebut the aforesaid facts regarding the financial condition of the Company as also the facts mentioned in the affidavit of the Sugarcane Commissioner, satisfactorily. The Company on its part admits the liability to clear the dues of the farmers and undertakes to do so by February-March, 2022. It has admitted that it has not paid interest on the delayed payment to the farmers in the counter affidavits filed by it. We have already said that it is bound to pay interest @ 15 per cent per annum as already discussed.

98. The Sugarcane Commissioner who had addressed the Court on the earlier occasions had also mentioned about the financial condition of the Company and hence the via-media adopted by him by opening an Escrow account and issuance of tagging orders by which substantial amount of the proceeds from sale of sugar and by-products are to be deposited in the said account which is jointly operated by the officials of the State and the Company and is used for payment of sugarcane dues.

99. It appears that the Sugarcane Commissioner has tried to resolve the dispute by ensuring due payment of cane dues of farmers by resorting to an Escrow Account to which the sale proceeds as already referred by the Company are deposited and are used for paying to the cane growers. This arrangement, according to him, on the one hand protects the interest of the farmers and also prevents the factory of the Company from shutting down. If the factory is shut down then this would not be in the interest of the sugarcane growers of the area.

100. Although we are of the opinion that the Escrow Account opened by the Sugarcane Commissioner in this case is not referable to Section 17(5) of the Act, 1953 read with Rule 48A of the Rules, 1954, we do not wish to interfere with this mechanism as doing so would be counter-productive to the interests of the farmers/ petitioners.

101. We are also of the considered view that while exercising powers under Article 226 of the Constitution of India, we have to take a practical and reasonable view of the matter as regards the relief prayed keeping in mind the facts of the case, especially in the circumstances of the present case where, from the facts averred in the counter affidavits filed by the Sugarcane Commissioner and the Company/ Occupier, it is evident that the financial condition of the Company is not such that it could have paid the sugarcane dues within the stipulated period of fourteen days, and the same in fact are being paid on daily basis, in phases, from the Escrow Account opened by the order of the Sugarcane Commissioner in which 85% of the proceeds from sale of Sugarcane by the Company and certain percentage of proceeds from sale of it by products are deposited thereby leaving 15 % of the sale proceeds for the Company to meet its expenses and the remaining 85% are being utilized to pay the dues of sugarcane growers and as per records almost everyday such payments are being made. Such payments, as is evident from the affidavit of opposite party no.3, are being made partially from other sources of opposite party no.6 also. All the assets/ immovable properties of the Company are already encumbered and lenders have first charge on them. If the factory is attached and shut down, it does not help the payment of dues.

102. Considering the totality of facts and circumstances discussed hereinabove, especially the interest of farmers, so that on the one hand, the sugar mills may continue to run and on the other hand, the farmers of the area may be able to sell their crop to it and reap benefits thereof, we are of the opinion that any direction for coercive measures for recovery of the dues in the present scenario at this stage will not serve the interest of the petitioners. We, accordingly, provide and direct that the Company/ Occupier should clear all the dues of the farmers / petitioners herein along with interest @ 15 per cent per annum on delayed payment, subject to any waiver or reduction in this regard under Section 17(3) of the Act, 1953 as discussed, on the principle of 'first supply, first payment', positively, by 31.03.2022, failing which the Sugarcane Commissioner shall proceed to issue recovery certificate to the Collector for recovery of such dues whereupon the Collectors shall be under an obligation to recover the said dues by exercising all means permissible in law including coercive action against the concerned including the opposite party no.6-Company and its Directors.

103. The Sugarcane Commissioner would be under an obligation to seriously consider the continued default by the Company in this regard as also to assess its financial capacity to pay cane dues etc, and shall give due weightage to this aspect before reserving/ assigning cane area for the Company for the next crushing season along with other factors mentioned in Rule 22 of the Rules, 1954.

104. All the writ petitions are disposed of in the aforesaid terms.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Rajesh Bindal, C.J.)

01. The present writ petition has been filed alleging that the respondent no.7 has raised illegal construction by encroaching the Government land and the same be directed to be removed.

02. Learned counsel for the official respondents submitted that the present writ petition deserves to be dismissed on the ground of concealment of material facts.

03. The petitioner had earlier filed a Writ Petition bearing Misc. Bench No. 21352 of 2019 through its Secretary raising the issue that respondents no. 7 therein has been wrongly granted recognition for running the school by producing documents showing it to be the owner of the land, though it was not the owner, however, the aforesaid writ petition was withdrawn with liberty to the petitioner to pursue other remedy available for the aforesaid purpose in law.

04. The learned counsel for the petitioner further argued that the present writ petition has been filed through Vice President concealing the factum of filing the earlier petition, though, the property in question and the school are same.

05. The learned counsel for the petitioner sought to explain the position stating that issues sought to be raised in both the petitions are different, hence, the fact of filing of the earlier petition was not mentioned.

06. After hearing learned counsel for the parties, in our opinion, the petition deserves to be dismissed only on the ground of concealment of material facts. It is not in dispute that the earlier writ petition was filed by the petitioner through its Secretary raising certain issues with reference to the same land and the allegations that the respondent no.7 had been given recognition of the school by producing forged documents. The aforesaid petition was dismissed as withdrawn on 05.08.2019 with liberty to the petitioner to pursue any other remedy available in law.

07. The present petition has been filed through Vice President concealing the factum of filing of earlier petition by the petitioner which pertains to the same property and allegations against the respondent no.7.

08. As there is material concealment of facts in the present petition, the same deserves to be dismissed.

09. As to how a litigant who conceals material facts from the Court, has to be dealt with, has been gone through by Hon'ble the Supreme Court time and again and the consistent opinion is that he is not entitled even to be heard on merits.

10. In K.D. Sharma v. Steel Authority of India Limited and others, (2008) 12 SCC 481 it was observed:

"39. If the primary object as highlighted in Kensington Income Tax Commrs., (1917) 1 KB 486 : 86 LJKB 257 : 116 LT 136 (CA) is kept in mind, an applicant who does not come with candid facts and "clean breast" cannot hold a writ of the court with "soiled hands". Suppression or concealment of material facts is not an advocacy. It is a jugglery, manipulation, manoeuvring or misrepresentation, which has no place in equitable and prerogative jurisdiction. If the applicant does not disclose all the material facts fairly and truly but states them in a distorted manner and misleads the court, the court has inherent power in order to protect itself and to prevent an abuse of its process to discharge the rule nisi and refuse to proceed further with the examination of the case on merits. If the court does not reject the petition on that ground, the court would be failing in its duty. In fact, such an applicant requires to be dealt with for contempt of court for abusing the process of the court."

In Dhananjay Sharma v. State of Haryana and others, (1995) 3 SCC 757 filing of a false affidavit was the basis for initiation of action in contempt jurisdiction and the concerned persons were punished."

11. In Abhyudya Sanstha v. Union of India, (2011) 6 SCC 145, Hon'ble the Supreme Court, while declining relief to the petitioners therein, who did not approach the court with clean hands, opined as under:

"16. In our view, the appellants deserve to be non suited because they have not approached the Court with clean hands. The plea of inadvertent mistake put forward by the learned senior counsel for the appellants and their submission that the Court may take lenient view and order regularisation of the admissions already made sounds attractive but does not merit acceptance. Each of the appellants consciously made a statement that it had been granted recognition by the NCTE, which necessarily implies that recognition was granted in terms of Section 14 of the Act read with Regulations 7 and 8 of the 2007 Regulations. Those managing the affairs of the appellants do not belong to the category of innocent, illiterate/uneducated persons, who are not conversant with the relevant statutory provisions and the court process. The very fact that each of the appellants had submitted LPASW No. 82/2019 Page 7 application in terms of Regulation 7 and made itself available for inspection by the team constituted by WRC, Bhopal shows that they were fully aware of the fact that they can get recognition only after fulfilling the conditions specified in the Act and the Regulations and that WRC, Bhopal had not granted recognition to them. Notwithstanding this, they made bold statement that they had been granted recognition by the competent authority and thereby succeeded in persuading this Court to entertain the special leave petitions and pass interim orders. The minimum, which can be said about the appellants is that they have not approached the Court with clean hands and succeeded in polluting the stream of justice by making patently false statement. Therefore, they are not entitled to relief under Article 136 of the Constitution. This view finds support from plethora of precedents. In Hari Narain v. Badri Das AIR 1963 SC 1558, G. Narayanaswamy Reddy v. Govt. of Karnataka (1991) 3 SCC 261 and large number of other cases, this Court denied relief to the petitioner/appellant on the ground that he had not approached the Court with clean hands. In Hari Narain v. Badri Das (supra), the Court revoked the leave granted to the appellant and observed:

"It is of utmost importance that in making material statements and setting forth grounds in applications for special leave made under Article 136 of the Constitution, care must be taken not to make any statements which are inaccurate, untrue or misleading. In dealing with applications for special leave, the Court naturally takes statements of fact and grounds of fact contained in the petitions at their face value and it LPASW No. 82/2019 Page 8 would be unfair to betray the confidence of the Court by making statements which are untrue and misleading. Thus, if at the hearing of the appeal the Supreme Court is satisfied that the material statements made by the appellant in his application for special leave are inaccurate and misleading, and the respondent is entitled to contend that the appellant may have obtained special leave from the Supreme Court on the strength of what he characterises as misrepresentations of facts contained in the petition for special leave, the Supreme Court may come to the conclusion that in such a case special leave granted to the appellant ought to be revoked."

In G. Narayanaswamy Reddy v. Govt. of Karnataka's case (supra), the Court while noticing the fact regarding the stay order passed by the High Court which prevented passing of the award by the Land Acquisition Officer within the prescribed time period was concealed and in the aforesaid context, it observed that :

" .....Curiously enough, there is no reference in the special leave petitions to any of the stay orders and we came to know about these orders only when the respondents appeared in response to the notice and filed their counter-affidavit. In our view, the said interim orders have a direct bearing on the question raised and the non-disclosure of the same certainly amounts to suppression of material facts. On this ground alone, the special leave petitions are liable to be rejected. It is well settled in law that the relief under Article 136 of the Constitution is discretionary and a petitioner who approaches this Court for such relief must come with frank and full disclosure of facts. If he fails to do so and suppresses material facts, his application is liable to be dismissed. We accordingly dismiss the special leave petitions."

In Dalip Singh v. State of U.P. (2010) 2 SCC 114, Hon'ble the Supreme Court noticed the progressive decline in the values of life and observed:

"For many centuries Indian society cherished two basic values of life i.e. "satya" (truth) and "ahinsa" (non- violence). Mahavir, Gautam Buddha and Mahatma Gandhi guided the people to ingrain these values in their daily life. Truth constituted an integral part of the justice- delivery system which was in vogue in the pre-Independence era and the people used to feel proud to tell truth in the courts irrespective of the consequences. However, post-Independence period has seen drastic changes in our value system. The materialism has overshadowed the old ethos and the quest for personal gain has become so intense that those involved in litigation do not hesitate to take shelter of falsehood, misrepresentation and suppression of facts in the court proceedings. In the last 40 years, a new creed of litigants has cropped up. Those who belong to this creed do not have any respect for truth. They shamelessly resort to falsehood and unethical means for achieving their goals. In order to meet the challenge posed by this new creed of litigants, the courts have, from time to time, evolved new rules and it is now well established that a litigant, who attempts to pollute the stream of justice or who touches the pure fountain of justice with tainted hands, is not entitled to any relief, interim or final."

(emphasis supplied)

In Moti Lal Songara v. Prem Prakash @ Pappu and another, (2013) 9 SCC 199, Hon'ble the Supreme Court, considering the issue regarding concealment of facts before the court, while observing that "court is not a laboratory where children come to play, opined as under:

"18. The second limb of the submission is whether in the obtaining factual matrix, the order passed by the High Court discharging the accused-respondent is justified in law. We have clearly stated that though the respondent was fully aware about the fact that charges had been framed against him by the learned trial Judge, yet he did not bring the same to the notice of the revisional court hearing the revision against the order taking cognizance. It is a clear case of suppression. It was within the special knowledge of the accused. Any one who takes recourse to method of suppression in a court of law, is, in actuality, playing fraud with the court, and the maxim supressio veri, expression faisi , i.e., suppression of the truth is equivalent to the expression of falsehood, gets attracted. We are compelled to say so as there has been a calculated concealment of the fact before the revisional court. It can be stated with certitude that the accused- respondent tried to gain advantage by such factual suppression. The fraudulent intention is writ large. In fact, he has shown his courage of ignorance and tried to play possum. The High Court, as we have seen, applied the principle "when infrastructure collapses, the superstructure is bound to collapse". However, as the order has been obtained by practising fraud and suppressing material fact before a court of law to gain advantage, the said order cannot be allowed to stand." (emphasis supplied)

12. In a recent judgment in ABCD v. Union of India & Ors., (2020) 2 SCC 52, Hon'ble the Supreme Court in matter where material facts had been concealed, while issuing notice to the petitioner therein, exercising its suo-motu contempt power observed as under :

"15. Making a false statement on oath is an offence punishable under Section 181 of the IPC while furnishing false information with intent to cause public servant to use his lawful power to the injury of another person is punishable under Section 182 of the IPC. These offences by virtue of Section 195(1)(a)(i) of the Code can be taken cognizance of by any court only upon a proper complaint in writing as stated in said Section. In respect of matters coming under Section 195(1)(b)(i) of the Code, in Pushpadevi M. Jatia v. M.L. Wadhawan etc., (1987) 3 SCC 367 prosecution was directed to be launched after prima facie satisfaction was recorded by this Court.

16. It has also been laid down by this Court in Chandra Shashi v. Anil Kumar Verma, (1995) 1 SCC 421 that a person who makes an attempt to deceive the court, interferes with the administration of justice and can be held guilty of contempt of court. In that case a husband who had filed a fabricated document to oppose the prayer of his wife seeking transfer of matrimonial proceedings was found guilty of contempt of court and sentenced to two weeks imprisonment. It was observed as under:

"1. The stream of administration of justice has to remain unpolluted so that purity of court's atmosphere may give vitality to all the organs of the State. Polluters of judicial firmament are, therefore, required to be well taken care of to maintain the sublimity of court's environment; so also to enable it to administer justice fairly and to the satisfaction of all concerned.

2. Anyone who takes recourse to fraud, deflects the course of judicial proceedings; or if anything is done with oblique motive, the same interferes with the administration of justice. Such persons are required to be properly dealt with, not only to punish them for the wrong done, but also to deter others from indulging in similar acts which shake the faith of people in the system of administration of justice.

The legal position thus is that if the publication be with intent to deceive the court or one made with an intention to defraud, the same would be contempt, as it would interfere with administration of justice. It would, in any case, tend to interfere with the same. This would definitely be so if a fabricated document is filed with the aforesaid mens rea. In the case at hand the fabricated document was apparently to deceive the court; the intention to defraud is writ large. Anil Kumar is, therefore, guilty of contempt."

13. Thus, for the aforesaid reasons, the petition deserves to be dismissed.

14. Accordingly, the petition is dismissed, however, in the facts and circumstances, there shall be no order as to costs.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Naheed Ara Moonis, J. & Hon'ble Saumitra Dayal Singh, J.)

1. H eard Shri Santosh Kumar Bagaria, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Shri Sujeet Kumar and Ms. Chhaya Gupta, learned counsel for the petitioner and Shri C.B. Tripathi, learned Special Counsel for the revenue.

2. Present petition has been filed to quash the communications dated 07.07.2020 and 11.08.2020 issued by the Deputy Commissioner, Commercial Tax, Sector 3, Prayagraj and for a further direction in the nature of Mandamus to refund Rs. 17,45,68,741/- along with interest at the rate of 15% from 04.07.2020.

3. In short, undisputedly, the aforesaid amount of refund was found due to the petitioner under the provisions of the U.P. Trade Tax Act, 1948 (hereinafter referred to as the "Erstwhile Act") for the A.Y. 2004-05 to 2007-08. Owing to legislative changes, that claim was made and considered under UP VAT Act, 2008 (hereinafter referred to as the "VAT Act"). The refund payment has been denied on a solitary ground of the entire amount Rs. 17,45,68,741/- adjusted against the dues of interest on Entry Tax claimed against the petitioner, being Rs. 18,10,01,347/- arising under the U.P. Tax on Entry of Goods into Local Areas Act, 2007 (hereinafter referred to as the "Entry Tax Act").

4. The core issue to be addressed is, whether by virtue of section 13(xv) of the Entry Tax Act read with section 40 of the VAT Act, the amount of refund under the VAT Act could be adjusted against the dues arising under the Entry Tax Act.

5. In brief, the petitioner set up a unit to manufacture cement using fly ash as a raw material. At the relevant time, on 18.06.1997, the Government of U.P. (in exercise of its power under section 5 of the Erstwhile Act), had issued a rebate notification granting rebate on payment of tax under the Erstwhile Act, to eligible units, for a period of ten years. Admittedly, the petitioner was granted that benefit for the period 14.12.1998 to 13.12.2008. Mid-way into that scheme, the said rebate notification came to be rescinded on 14.10.2004, by the State Government. Consequently, for the period 14.10.2004 to 13.12.2008, no rebate was allowed to the petitioner under the Erstwhile Act. Consequently, tax payments were made.

6. The notification dated 14.10.2004 rescinding the rebate notification dated 18.06.1997 was challenged by the petitioner and others before this Court. First, writ petition M/s Jai Prakash Associates Ltd. vs. State of U.P. and Another 2010 UPTC 757, came to be decided by the judgment dated 29.03.2010.

Paragraph 125 of the said decision reads as under:-

"125. The writ petition is allowed in part to the extent petitioner's entitlement for tax exemption for the period available under the original notification dated 27th February, 1998. Accordingly, a writ in the nature of mandamus is issued directing the opposite parties to provide tax exemption to the petitioner industry from the date of production for the period of entitlement under original notification dated 27th February, 1998."

7. On 16.04.2010, the petition filed by the present petitioner being Writ Petition (Misc. Bench) No. 6176 of 2004, M/s Birla Corporation Ltd. vs. State of U.P and others came to be decided by the order dated 16.04.2020 on the following terms:-

"Keeping in view the fact that the controversy has been set at rest, present writ petitions too are decided finally in terms of the judgment and order dated 29.3.2010, passed in writ petition No. 5861(M/B) of 2010.

No order as to costs."

8. The above judgments, were carried in appeal by the revenue, to the Supreme Court. Vide judgment dated 12.11.2019, in State of Uttar Pradesh and Another vs. Birla Corporation Ltd. (2019) SCC OnLine SC 1569, the Supreme Court dismissed the revenue's appeal with certain observations. Relevant to our issue, paragraph nos. 34 and 36 of the said decisions read as below:-

"34. A priori, the respondents and similarly placed persons would be entitled to rebate for the relevant period prescribed in the notification dated 27th February, 1998 which would continue to remain in vogue until the expiry of the specified period, namely, ten years. In the case of BCL up to 13 th December, 2008 and in the case of JPAL up to 17th September, 2014 respectively. The amount of rebate, however, would depend on the verification of their refund claim pending before the concerned authorities and would be subject to just exceptions including the principle of unjust enrichment. The respondents should be able to substantiate that the amount claimed by them has not been passed on to their consumers. Only then, they would be entitled for refund. The competent authority may verify the claim for refund of each of the respondent(s) in accordance with law and pass appropriate orders, including about the interest for the relevant period.

35. .....

36. In view of the above, these appeals must fail. Hence, the same are dismissed with observations. There shall be no order as to costs. All pending applications are also disposed of."

9. As was noted in the order of the Supreme Court, upon the petitioner's writ petition being allowed by this Court, the petitioner had filed applications dated 20.11.2010 claiming refund Rs. 17,90,61,418/- being the total amount of rebate denied to the petitioner during pendency of its writ petition before this Court, for different Assessment Years, during the period 14.10.2004 to 31.12.2007. It may be noted, no refund was claimed for the period beyond 01.01.2008 when the VAT Act was enforced.

10. Separate orders were passed by the respondent no. 4 on the petitioner's applications claiming refund, all on 29.06.2020. Thus, instead of granting the refund of the amount claimed, the respondent-assessing authority of the petitioner only quantified the total amount of trade tax refundable at Rs. 17,45,68,741/- for A.Y.s 1998 (from 14.12.2008)-1999 to 2007-2008 (upto 31.12.2007). It is also undisputed, at that stage, the assessing authority of the petitioner found the petitioner had not passed on that liability (of disputed trade tax). Thus, neither the principle of unjust enrichment was found applicable nor any other ground was found existing to deprive the petitioner of the refund claimed. At the same time, the assessing authority found, no interest was payable to the petitioner on the delayed refund. Thereafter, on 07.07.2020, instead of paying out the refund, the assessment authority of the petitioner issued a further ex-parte communication to the petitioner informing adjustment of the entire amount of refund Rs. 17,45,68,741/- against the outstanding demand of dues of interest on Entry Tax Rs. 18,10,01,347/-, for the A.Ys. 2003-04 to 2009-10.

11. A similar communication giving full details of such adjustments made was issued to the petitioner on 11.08.2020. In such circumstances, the petitioner again wrote to its assessing authority on 31.08.2020 stating, no amount of tax was due against him either under the erstwhile Act or the VAT Act or the Central Sales Tax Act, 1956 (hereinafter referred to as the "Central Act"). It reiterated its demand for payment of refund due. In the present writ petition in paragraph 3, it has been specifically stated, there is no amount of tax outstanding or due against the petitioner under the provisions of the Erstwhile Act or the VAT Act or the Central Act. In reply thereto in paragraph 29 of the counter affidavit, only this much has been stated, on the date of the refund order dated 29.06.2020 being passed, interest on Entry Tax Rs. 18,10,01,347/- was outstanding against the petitioner for the A.Ys. 2003-04 to 2009-10.

12. Referring to the provisions of Section 29 of the Erstwhile Act and Section 40 of the VAT Act read with Section 2(k) thereof, it has been submitted, the VAT Act only authorizes adjustment of an amount of refund due against any outstanding amount of tax either under (i) the Erstwhile Act or (ii) the VAT Act or (iii) the Central Sales Tax Act. By virtue of Section 13(xv) of the Entry Tax Act, the provisions of Section 40 of the VAT Act have been incorporated in the Entry Tax Act on the principle, mutatis mutandis. Referring to the decision of the Supreme Court in Ashok Service Centre vs. State of Orissa (1983) 2 SCC 82 as followed by the Supreme Court in Mariyappa and others vs. State of Karnataka and others (1998) 3 SCC 276 and in Indian Oil Corporation Ltd. Vs. State of Uttar Pradesh and others (2019) 16 SCC 482, it has been urged - that principle applies with limitations inherently attached to it. Thus, a statutory law borrowed on the principle mutatis mutandis may be applied to the enactment to which it has been borrowed, with necessary changes only. That principle may not allow for a new provision or legal effect to be created, de hors the language of the borrowed provision of law-here section 40 of the VAT Act.

13. Thus, it has been submitted, read into the Entry Tax Act, section 40 of the VAT Act only provides, in case any amount is found refundable under the Entry Tax Act, the same may first be applied to any tax dues under (i) the Entry Tax Act (ii) U.P. Trade Tax Act (iii) Central Sales Tax Act. However, the amount refundable under the Entry Tax Act may not be applied or be adjusted against any tax due under the VAT Act. Since, in the present case, the amount is refundable not under the Entry Tax Act but under the VAT Act read with erstwhile Act, section 13(xv) of the Entry Tax Act read with section 40 of the VAT Act, would have no application. The authorities have wholly misconstrued the law and have illegally adjusted the refund due to the petitioner.

14. As to the decision of the Constitution-bench of the Supreme Court in Paresh Chand Chatterjee vs. The State of Assam and Ors. AIR 1962 SC 167, it has been submitted, rather than helping the case of the revenue, that decision only makes clear the proposition - the principle mutatis mutandis cannot introduce a completely new legislative provision, to the borrower-enactment as may not be found specifically existing in the parent enactment of which the borrowed provision is a part. Neither the Erstwhile Act nor the VAT Act provided for a scheme whereby an amount due by way of refund could be adjusted against dues of Entry Tax Act, such a provision of law cannot be imagined and thus created or introduced in the Entry Tax Act. In Paresh Chand (Supra), a question arose whether under Section 8(1) of the Assam Land (Requisition and Acquisition) Act, 1948, by use of words mutatis mutandis, any right existed or duty arose to value the land requisitioned under that enactment. Explaining the principle mutatis mutandis, it was held, once the provision of Land Acquisition Act, 1894 had been made applicable on a mutatis mutandis principle, to the provisions of the Assam Land (Requisition and Acquisition) Act, 1948 with respect to determination of compensation under that Act, clearly the word 'acquisition' used under the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 would have to be read to include within its ambit and sphere the word 'requisition' used under the Assam Land (Requisition and Acquisition) Act, 1948. That due alteration of detail or that appropriate modification was necessary to give life to the borrowed provision of law, in the context of the borrower-enactment.

15. Opposing the petition, learned Special Counsel for the revenue has first fairly brought on record a decision of the division bench of this Court in M/s Eastern Spinning and Textiles Mills vs. State of U.P. 2010 TLD 41. Though that decision records a conclusion in favour of the petitioner, at the same time, the decision in that case did not adjudicate the issue arising herein. The said direction was issued without reference to the provision of Section 13(xv) of the Entry Tax Act.

16. Next, heavy reliance has been placed on the language of the proviso to Section 40 of the VAT Act applied mutatis mutandis to the provisions of Entry Tax Act, by virtue of Section 13(xv) of the Entry Tax Act. Relying on the five-Judge Constitution Bench decision of the Supreme Court in the case of Paresh Chand Chatterjee vs. The State of Assam and Ors. (supra), it has been submitted, appropriate modifications to the provisions of section 40 of the VAT Act are necessary and due alternation of details must be made to that provision of law in the context of the Entry Tax Act. It would necessarily mean, the proviso to section 40(1) of the VAT Act refers to any amount that may be refundable be first applied to satisfy an outstanding demand of tax under the Entry Tax Act or under the Central Act or the VAT Act. Unless that full effect is given to the proviso in the manner suggested by the learned counsel for the revenue, that plain effect of the borrowed provision would remain from being enforced.

17. Thus, according to learned counsel for the revenue, the proviso as to Section 40 of the VAT Act, as applied to the provisions of Entry Tax Act has to be given free play to carry out the object of that (latter) Act. To that end, he would also rely on a three-judge bench decision of the Supreme Court in Siddhartha Viyas and another vs. Ravi Nath Misra and others (2015) 2 SCC 701. Heavy reliance has been placed to the ratio contained in that decision to the effect-proviso cannot be read to nullify or not to set at naught the real object of the main enactment. Insofar as, it is an object of the Entry Tax Act to seek recovery of the admitted/assessed amount of Entry Tax, the same cannot be defeated by giving a restricted meaning to the proviso to include therein, the outstanding demands under the VAT Act or the Central Sales Tax Act but to exclude the demand under the Entry Tax Act. Thus, Shri Tripathi has also invoked the principle of purposive interpretation.

18. Having heard learned counsel for the parties and having perused the record, the controversy involved in the present case is neither to the entitlement of refund or its quantification. Insofar as the Erstwhile Act is concerned, the petitioner claims it became entitled to refund of Rs. 17,45,68,741/- by virtue of the decision of this Court in Writ Petition (Misc. Bench) No. 6176 of 2004 decided on 16.04.2010 as affirmed by the Supreme Court (on certain conditions) in State of U.P. vs. Birla Corporation Ltd. (Supra). That entitlement to refund was preserved and protected under UP VAT Act. To that effect, orders of refund have also been passed on 29.06.2020. Those have attained finality. As to the demand of Entry Tax Act, again there is no dispute that Entry Tax demands were raised for the A.Ys. 2003-04 to 2009-10. Though, those demands were later discharged, owing to the delay on part of the petitioner in discharging that liability, interest liability Rs. 18,10,01,347/- had arisen thereon.

19. Examined in that light, what survives for our consideration is whether the amount of refund due under the Erstwhile Act could be adjusted against the demand of interest on Entry Tax. Since no issue of competance of the proceedings for refund has been raised by either party, the provisions to which reference is necessary are-section 13(xv) of the Entry Tax Act and section 40 of the VAT Act. Section 13(xv) of the Entry Tax Act reads as below:-

Section 13*. Applicability of certain provisions of the Uttar Pradesh Value Added Tax Act, 2008.*

The following provisions of the Uttar Pradesh Value Added Tax Act, 2008 shall mutatis mutandis apply to all dealers and proceedings under this Act:-

(xv)	Section 40	Refund and adjustment

20. Then, section 40(1) of the VAT Act reads as below:-

Section 40*. Refund and adjustment-*

(1) Subject to other provisions of this Act, the assessing authority shall in the manner prescribed, refund to the dealer an amount of tax, fee, or other dues paid in excess of the amount due from him under this Act.

PROVIDED that amount found to be refundable shall first be adjusted towards tax or any other amount outstanding against the dealer under this Act or under The Central Sales Tax Act, 1956 or under the erstwhile Act and only the balance if any shall be refunded.

21. Thus, the Entry Tax Act itself does not contain a separate provision for refund and adjustment. It borrows that provision from the VAT Act. Legislation by incorporation is a fairly common and well established legislative practice. Clearly, it is a rule of brevity in legislative action. Thereby the legislative directly borrows and applies a time-tested fully mature provision of law to a new/later enactment. In Ashok Service Centre (Supra) dealing with the expression mutatis mutandis it was held as under:-

"17. Section 3 (2) of the Act which makes the provisions of the principal Act mutatis mutandis applicable to the levy of additional tax is a part of the charging provision of the Act and it does not say that only those provisions of the Principal Act which relate to assessment and collection of tax will be applicable to the proceedings under the Act. Before considering what provisions of the Principal Act should be read as part of the Act, we have to understand the meaning of the expression 'mutatis mutandis'. Earl Jowitt's 'The Dictionary of English Law (1959)' defines 'mutatis mutandis' as 'with the necessary changes in points of detail'. Black's Law Dictionary (Revised 4th Edn. 1968) defines 'mutatis mutandis' as 'with the necessary changes in point of detail, meaning that matters or things are generally the same, but to be altered when necessary as to names, offices, and the like. Houseman v. Waterhouse. In Bouvier's Law Dictionary (3rd Revision, Vol. II), the expression 'mutatis mutandis' in defined as "[T]he necessary changes. This is a phrase of frequent practical occurrence, meaning that matters or things are generally the same, but to be altered when necessary, as to names, offices, and the like. Extension of an 'earlier Act mutatis mutandis to a later Act brings in the idea of adaptation, but so far only as it is necessary for the purpose, making a change without altering the essential nature of the thing changed, subject of course to express provisions made in the later Act. Section 3 (2) of the Act shows that the State Legislature intended not to depart substantially from the Principal Act except with regard in matters in respect of which express provision had been made in the Act. The assumption made by the High Court that the Act was an independent Act having nothing to do with the Principal Act is not correct. The Act only levied some extra sales tax in addition to what had been levied by the Principal Act. The nature of the taxes levied under the Act and under the Principal Act was the same and the Legislature expressly made the provisions of the Principal Act mutatis mutandis applicable to the levy under the Act. The additional sales tax was in the nature of a surcharge over and above what was due and payable by assessee under the Principal Act. The Act, though it had a long title, a short title and other usual features of every statute, could not be, considered as an independent statute. It had to be read together with the Principal Act to be effective. In the circumstances the conclusion reached by the High Court that the two Acts were independent of each other was wrong. We are of the view that it is necessary to read and to construe the two Acts together as if the two Acts are one, and while doing so to give effect to the provision, of the Act which is a later one in preference to the provisions of the Principal Act wherever the Act has manifested an intention to modify the Principal Act. The following Observations of Lord Simonds in Fendoch Investment Trust Co. v. Inland Revenue Commissioners(1) made in connection with the construction of certain fiscal statutes are relevant here."

"My Lords, I do not doubt that in construing the latest of a series of Acts dealing with a specific subject matter, particularly where all such Acts are to be read as one, great weight should be attached to any scheme which can be seen in clear outline and amendments in later Acts should if possible be construed consistently with that scheme".

22. That principle was then applied in Mariyappa and others vs. State of Karnataka and others (supra). It was again followed by later decision of the Supreme Court in IOCL vs State of U.P. And others (supra), wherein, in paragraphs 54 and 57 of the decision, reached in the context of Entry Tax Act.

54. What is the nature of the provision of Section 33 of the VAT Act, 2008 which has been made applicable by virtue of Section 13 of the 2007 Act is the question to be answered. Section 13 "mutatis mutandis" applies certain provisions of the VAT Act, 2008 as mentioned in Section 13. The words "mutatis mutandis" came to be considered in Ashok Service Centre v. State of Orissa. In the aforesaid case, this Court had occasion to consider the provisions of the Orissa Additional Sales Tax Act, 1975. Section 2(2) of which provision mutatis mutandis applies the provisions of the Orissa Sales Tax Act, 1947.

57. Thus, application of the provisions of the VAT Act, 2008 is provided by Section 13 of the 2007 Act with certain changes in points of details. Section 33 of the VAT Act, 2008 which has been mentioned to apply under Section 13 has to be applied with respect to payment and recovery of tax. Thus, the payment of interest which is contemplated under Section 33 on the amount of tax has to be applied with regard to the payment of entry tax and the interest thereon. Even if provision of Section 33 of the VAT Act, 2008 to be treated as machinery provision which is to be applied by virtue of Section 13 of the 2007 Act, the machinery provision has to be interpreted in a manner so as to make the liability effective and treated to be substantive law."

23. In borrowing a provision, some change of language or meaning to terms and phrases used in the statutory provision being borrowed may become necessary to give effect to the same in the different context of the statute to which it is borrowed. Since, section 13 of the Entry Tax Act borrows, amongst others the provisions of Section 40 of the VAT Act on the principle "mutatis mutandis", we may first try and read that provision as it is, into the provisions of the Entry Tax Act. Any incongruity or conflict that may arise upon that language of the borrowed provision as read into the Entry Tax Act, may be identified and resolved, thereafter. If however, there exists no incongruity or conflict, that provision may be applied without offering any intervention or alteration or modification to the original language of the borrowed provision. No rule of interpretation would be attracted to give full effect to the meaning of the provision, except the rule of literal interpretation.

24. Thus, we may first read Section 40 of the VAT Act as a part of the Entry Tax Act by reading the words "this Act" used in Section 40 of the VAT Act to be a reference made to the Entry Tax Act as that presumption is self-apparent from section 13(xv) of the Entry Tax Act. Applying this first principle, Section 40 of the VAT Act as borrowed by the Entry Tax Act would read as under:-

Refund and adjustment-

(1) Subject to other provisions of this Act (i.e. Entry Tax Act), the assessing authority shall in the manner prescribed, refund to the dealer an amount of tax, fee, or other dues paid in excess of the amount due from him under this Act (i.e. Entry Tax Act).

PROVIDED that amount found to be refundable shall first be adjusted towards tax or any other amount outstanding against the dealer under this Act (i.e. Entry Tax Act) or under The Central Sales Tax Act, 1956 or under the erstwhile Act and only the balance if any shall be refunded.

25. Clearly, no incongruity or ambiguity or doubt emerges from the above exercise. Under the VAT Act, the main part of section 40(1) provided for adjustment of any amount found refundable under that Act against specified dues under other enactments namely under that Act, i.e. the U.P. VAT Act, 2008, the Central Sales Tax Act, 1956 and, the U.P. Trade Tax Act, 1948 (i.e. The "Erstwhile Act" defined under Section 2(k) of the VAT Act). It did not contemplate adjustment of a refund against any dues under the Entry Tax Act. Read into the Entry Tax Act, that provision only allows for adjustment of any amount of tax due, either under that Act, i.e. the Entry Tax Act or the Central Tax Act or the "erstwhile Act". Only ambiguity may exist as to the true meaning of the term "erstwhile Act". In absence of any contrary intention shown, it may be given the same meaning as assigned under the VAT Act. Therefore, it may be read to mean the UP Trade Act, 1948 only. To read the words "this Act" (appearing in the later part of section 40 of the VAT Act), as "VAT Act" in the Entry Tax Act, would be without any basis, logic or reasoning. It would be a passionate interpretation made in favour of the revenue i.e. a construction made devoid of reasoning and therefore unacceptable in law.

26. Then, as explained in the decision relied upon by the learned counsel for the revenue in Siddhartha Viyas and another Vs. Ravi Nath Misra and others (Supra), a proviso may principally serve any of the three purposes namely, to provide an extension to the main provision or an exception to the main provision or it may contain substantively, a new provision. In any case, the proviso may not be read to defeat the object of the main enactment.

27. Accepting and applying that test invoked by learned counsel for the revenue, we find it difficult to sustain the submission based thereon. In the present case, we have examined Section 40 of the VAT Act as it existed in that enactment. Here, we find, the first proviso to sub-section 1 of Section 40 is merely an exception to the main provision. Thus, the main provision mandated the authorities under the VAT Act to refund to an assessee any amount of tax, fee or other dues paid in excess of the amount due from him under that Act for any assessment year. At the same time, the proviso restricted that refund payment to only such amount as may remain in excess after adjustment of any outstanding dues (for any Assessment Year or tax period) either under the VAT Act or the Central Act or the Erstwhile Act i.e. the Trade Tax Act.

28. Besides the fact that it is the plain grammatical meaning of the language used, it can never be said that the proviso thus interpreted would defeat the object of the VAT Act. We find that the object of the VAT Act could only be to impose, determine and recover VAT in accordance with that Act. There is no legislative intent shown to exist, under that Act, to recover dues of Entry Tax Act. In the context of a fiscal legislation, an exception to that principle has been offered by the first proviso to Section 40(1) by allowing for recoveries of other dues of tax, specified therein, namely, Central Sales Tax and the U.P. Trade Tax from any amount of VAT that may be found refundable.

29. Section 40 of the VAT Act does not provide for recovery of any amount of tax that may have been due under the Entry Tax Act. That interpretation and plain grammatical sense cannot be read to defeat the object of the VAT Act, to any extent. The VAT Act does not provide and it does not contemplate imposition of Entry Tax on any goods or transactions. Then, it provides for assessment and recovery of amounts of VAT assessed or due, from individual assessees. Therefore, by way of reasoning even if any amount of Entry Tax imposed under another enactment may remain unpaid while a refund under the VAT Act may be allowed or be granted, would be a factor extraneous to the scheme, object and purpose of the VAT Act.

30. In absence of express words used to that effect, it is neither permissible nor required to read into the language of section 40 of the VAT Act, any word or introduce any meaning as may allow for recovery of dues of Entry Tax. That provision, read as it is, is wholly complete, meaningful and functional. It does not lead to any ambiguity, doubt, conflict, absurdity or unworkability. Therefore, there is no room to apply the rule of purposive construction invoked by the revenue. The objection raised by the revenue to that effect is misconceived.

31. Applied Section 40 of the VAT Act, mutatis mutandis to the Entry Tax Act, it would provide for refund of excess amount of Entry tax, fees or other dues deposited by a dealer under the Entry Tax Act, after adjustment of any other amount due either under the Entry Tax Act or the Central Tax Act or the Trade Tax Act, 1948. Correspondingly, the fact that any amount of VAT may remain unpaid upon such refund of Entry Tax being paid would remain an extraneous consideration to a refund claim made under the Entry Tax Act. The provision of section 40 having been applied mutatis mutandis to the provision of the Entry Tax Act it would require, no amount of Entry Tax be refunded to an assessee unless other specified tax amounts due against that assessee were first adjusted.

32. However, in the present case, the petitioner was not seeking any refund under the Entry Tax Act. Therefore, the provisions of that Act could not be invoked while rejecting a claim for refund made under the VAT Act. It is for that reason, we have chosen to first consider the interpretation to be given to Section 40(1) of the VAT Act in the context of a refund claimed arising under the VAT Act as that is the only factual and legal context that exists in the present case. The petitioner has neither claimed nor appears to be entitled (at this stage) to any refund under the Entry Tax Act. Therefore, the submission advanced by learned counsel for the revenue appears to be totally misconceived and it cannot therefore be accepted.

33. It is only to deal with the merits of the submissions advanced by the revenue, we have chosen to consider the effect of Section 40(1) of the VAT Act as applied in the statutory context of the Entry Tax Act. At the same time we reiterate, the fact situation to apply that provision to in the context of Entry Tax Act is plainly non-existent.

34. Thus in the above conspectus the communications dated 7.07.2020 and 11.08.2020 are hereby quashed to the extent they seek to adjust the amount of refund claimed under the VAT Act, against dues of interest claimed under the Entry Tax Act. The respondent is directed to pay out the refund Rs. 17,45,68,741/-, in accordance with law together with statutory interest due from the date of the impugned order dated 07.07.2020 till the date of actual payment.

35. Thus, the writ petition succeeds and is accordingly allowed. No order as to costs.

A. Interpretation of Statute - U.P. Goods and Services Tax Act, 2017: Section 2(24), 2(91), 5(3) - Section 5(3) of the Act provides the source of power to be exercised by the Commissioner for the purpose of Section 4 read with section 2(91) of the Act. The power under section 5(3) of the Act is a general power of sub-delegation vested in the Commissioner, by the legislature. It is not the requirement of law that the source of power must necessarily be recited in the order passed in exercise of that power to validate the power exercised. It is enough that the source of power exercised and it is exercised in the manner prescribed by law. (Para 25 -27)

There are two different methods to create function assignment/delegation in favour of officers of "State tax" and officers of "Central tax" (i.e., officers appointed under the Central Act). Function assignment/jurisdiction in favour of officers of the "State tax" may be created by the "Commissioner" by issuing an order/communication in exercise of his powers of sub-delegation vested under Section 5(3) of the Act. However, function assignment/ jurisdiction in favour of the officers of the Central Act, may be notified by the State Government which alone has power to cause the sub-delegation in favour of those officers. (Para 38)

Writ Petition Rejected. (E-10)

List of Cases cited:

1. Commissioner of Customs Vs Sayed Ali & anr. 2011 (3) SCC 537 (distinguished)

2. M/s Canon India Private Ltd. Vs Commissioner of Customs AIR 2021 SC 1699 (distinguished)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Naheed Ara Moonis, J. & Hon'ble Saumitra Dayal Singh, J.)

1. Heard Ms. Pooja Talwar, learned counsel for the petitioner, Mr. Manu Ghildyal, learned Standing Counsel for the revenue.

2. By means of the present petition, challenge has been raised to the ex-parte adjudication order dated 07.08.2021 passed by Deputy Commissioner, Commercial Tax, Sector-I, Shajahanpur (hereinafter referred to as the 'Deputy Commissioner), purportedly in exercise of powers vested under section 74 (9) of the U.P. Goods and Services Tax Act, 2017 (hereinafter referred to as the "Act"), for the tax period/Financial Year 2018-2019.

3. Solitary ground pressed in the present petition is - lack of inherent jurisdiction with the Deputy Commissioner to issue a notice, conduct proceedings and pass the impugned adjudication order under section 74 of the Act. In the first place, learned counsel for the petitioner submits, the Commissioner, State Tax (hereinafter referred to as the "Commissioner") as defined under section 2 (24) of the Act, is vested with the jurisdiction over the entire State of Uttar Pradesh to exercise all powers and perform all or any function under the Act. The other officers, who may be subordinate to the "Commissioner" may derive their particular function-jurisdiction to initiate, continue and conclude any proceedings in the nature of adjudication proceedings only under a valid delegation of power made under section 5 (3) of the Act. Since no delegation of power existed in favour of the Deputy Commissioner, the adjudication proceedings initiated and concluded by that authority lacked inherent jurisdiction. Thus, relying upon the provisions of section 2 (91) read with sections 3, 4 and 6 of the Act, it has been submitted, in the absence of any notification issued, authorising the Deputy Commissioner to act as a "proper officer" under the Act, he could never claim any inherent jurisdiction to pass the impugned order. In that regard, heavy reliance has been placed on two decisions of the Supreme Court in Commissioner of Customs Vs Sayed Ali and another, reported in 2011 (3) SCC 537 and M/s Canon India Private Limited vs Commissioner of Customs, reported in AIR 2021 SC 1699.

4. Responding to the above, learned Standing Counsel for the revenue submitted, section 5(3) of the Act has no application to the present facts inasmuch as the Deputy Commissioner is an officer included in the list of officers described under section 3 of the Act. Also, relying on the clear language of the proviso thereto and referring to the Office Orders dated 01.07.2017 and 19.11.2018, both issued by the Commissioner, in exercise of powers vested in that Authority under section 2(91) of the Act read with section 4(2) of the Act, it has been submitted, the necessary function assignment contemplated under section 4 of the Act was complete and valid in law, in favour of the Deputy Commissioner. No other officer could act as the "proper officer" to initiate, conduct and/or conclude the adjudication proceedings in the case of the petitioner, for the tax period/Financial Year 2018-19. The decisions cited by learned counsel for the petitioner are wholly distinguishable. In those cases, the issue had arisen in a different statutory and fact context.

5. Having heard learned counsel for the parties and having perused the record, by the impugned order, the inward supply received by the petitioner against ten (10) invoices has been disbelieved. The ITC claim of Rs. 2,92,500/- each, made under the Act and the Central Goods and Service Tax Act, 2017 (hereinafter referred to as the 'Central Act') has been rejected. Accordingly, penalty has been imposed.

6. Before proceeding further, it may be relevant to notice certain provisions of the Act. Section 2 of the Act defines various words, terms and, phrases used in the Act. Thus, the term "Commissioner" has been defined in section 2 (24) of the Act. It reads:

"(24) "Commissioner" means the Commissioner of State tax appointed under section 3 and includes the Chief Commissioner, Principal Commissioner, Special Commissioner or Additional Commissioner of State tax appointed under section 3;"

7. Similarly, section 2(91) of the Act defines the term "proper officer". It reads:

"(91) "proper officer" in relation to any function to be performed under this Act, means the Commissioner or the officer of the State tax who is assigned that function by the Commissioner;"

8. Section 2(104) of the Act defines the term "State tax". It reads:-

"104. "State tax" means the tax levied under this Act;"

9. Then sections, 3, 4, 5 and 6 of the Act, read as below:

"Section 3. Officer under this Act.-

The Government shall, by notification, appoint the following classes of officers for the purposes of this Act, namely:-

(a) Principal Commissioner, Chief Commissioner or Commissioner of State tax

(b) Special Commissioners of State tax,

(c) Additional Commissioners of State tax,

(d) Joint Commissioners of State tax,

(e) Deputy Commissioners of State tax,

(f) Assistant Commissioners of State tax,

(g) State tax officers, and

(h) any other class of officers as it may deem fit:

PROVIDED that, the officers appointed under the Uttar Pradesh Value Added Tax Act, 2008 (U.P. Act No. 5 of 2008) shall be deemed to be the officers appointed under the provisions of this Act."

"Section 4. Appointment of officers.-

(1) The Government may, in addition to the officers as may be notified under section 3, appoint such persons as it may think fit to be the officers under this Act.

(2) The Commissioner shall have jurisdiction over the whole of the State, the Special Commissioner and an Additional Commissioner in respect of all or any of the functions assigned to them, shall have jurisdiction over the whole of the State or where the State Government so directs, over any local area thereof, and all other officers shall, subject to such conditions as may be specified, have jurisdiction over the whole of the State or over such local areas as the Commissioner may, by order, specify."

Section 5. Powers of officer.-

(1) Subject to such conditions and limitations as the Commissioner may impose, an officer of State tax may exercise the powers and discharge the duties conferred or imposed on him under this Act.

(2) An officer of State tax may exercise the powers and discharge the duties conferred or imposed under this Act on any other officer of State tax who is subordinate to him.

(3) The Commissioner may, subject to such conditions and limitations as may be specified in this behalf by him, delegate his powers to any other officer who is subordinate to him.

(4) Notwithstanding anything contained in this section, an Appellate Authority shall not exercise the powers and discharge the duties conferred or imposed on any other officer of State tax.

Section 6. Authorisation of officers of central tax as proper officer in certain circumstances.-

(1) Without prejudice to the provisions of this Act, the officers appointed under the Central Goods and Services Tax Act, 2017 (Act No. 12 of 2017) are authorised to be the proper officers for the purposes of this Act, subject to such conditions as the Government shall, on the recommendations of the Council, by notification, specify.

(2) Subject to the conditions specified in the notification issued under sub- section (1),-

(a) where any proper officer issues an order under this Act, he shall also issue an order under the Central Goods and Services Tax Act 2017 (Act No. 12 of 2017), as authorised by the said Act under intimation to the jurisdictional officer of central tax;

(b) where a proper officer under the Central Goods and Services Tax Act, 2017 (Act No. 12 of 2017) has initiated any proceedings on a subject matter, no proceedings shall be initiated by the proper officer under this Act on the same subject matter.

(3) Any proceedings for rectification, appeal and revision, wherever applicable, of any order passed by an officer appointed under this Act, shall not lie before an officer appointed under the Central Goods and Services Tax Act, 2017 (Act No. 12 of 2017).

10. Also, Section 74 of the Act, under which impugned proceedings were drawn and concluded, reads as under:

"Section 74.-Determination of tax not paid or short paid or erroneously refunded or input tax credit wrongly availed or utilised by reason of fraud or any wilful misstatement or suppression of facts

(1) Where it appears to the proper officer that any tax has not been paid or short paid or erroneously refunded or where input tax credit has been wrongly availed or utilised by reason of fraud, or any wilful misstatement or suppression of facts to evade tax, he shall serve notice on the person chargeable with tax which has not been so paid or which has been so short paid or to whom the refund has erroneously been made, or who has wrongly availed or utilised input tax credit, requiring him to show cause as to why he should not pay the amount specified in the notice along with interest payable thereon under section 50 and a penalty equivalent to the tax specified in the notice.

(2) The proper officer shall issue the notice under sub-section (1) at least six months prior to the time limit specified in sub-section (10) for issuance of order.

(3) Where a notice has been issued for any period under sub-section (1), the proper officer may serve a statement, containing the details of tax not paid or short paid or erroneously refunded or input tax credit wrongly availed or utilised for such periods other than those covered under sub-section (1), on the person chargeable with tax.

(4) The service of statement under sub-section (3) shall be deemed to be service of notice under sub-section (1) of section 73, subject to the condition that the grounds relied upon in the said statement, except the ground of fraud, or any wilful misstatement or suppression of facts to evade tax, for periods other than those covered under sub-section (1) are the same as are mentioned in the earlier notice.

(5) The person chargeable with tax may, before service of notice under sub- section (1), pay the amount of tax along with interest payable under section 50 and a penalty equivalent to fifteen per cent. of such tax on the basis of his own ascertainment of such tax or the tax as ascertained by the proper officer and inform the proper officer in writing of such payment.

(6) The proper officer, on receipt of such information, shall not serve any notice under sub-section (1), in respect of the tax so paid or any penalty payable under the provisions of this Act or the rules made there under.

(7) Where the proper officer is of the opinion that the amount paid under sub- section (5) falls short of the amount actually payable, he shall proceed to issue the notice as provided for in sub-section (1) in respect of such amount which falls short of the amount actually payable.

(8) Where any person chargeable with tax under subsection (1)pays the said tax along with interest payable under section 50 and a penalty equivalent to twenty five per cent. of such tax within thirty days of issue of the notice, all proceedings in respect of the said notice shall be deemed to be concluded.

(9) The proper officer shall, after considering the representation, if any, made by the person chargeable with tax, determine the amount of tax, interest and penalty due from such person and issue an order.

(10) The proper officer shall issue the order under sub-section (9) within a period of five years from the due date for furnishing of annual return for the financial year to which the tax not paid or short paid or input tax credit wrongly availed or utilised relates to or within five years from the date of erroneous refund.

(11) Where any person served with an order issued under sub-section (9) pays the tax along with interest payable thereon under section 50 and a penalty equivalent to fifty per cent. of such tax within thirty days of communication of the order, all proceedings in respect of the said notice shall be deemed to be concluded.

Explanation 1.- For the purposes of section 73 and this section,-

(i) the expression "all proceedings in respect of the said notice" shall not include proceedings under section 132;

(ii) where the notice under the same proceedings is issued to the main person liable to pay tax and some other persons, and such proceedings against the main person have been concluded under section 73 or section 74, the proceedings against all the persons liable to pay penalty under sections 122, 125, 129 and 130 are deemed to be concluded.

Explanation 2.- For the purposes of this Act, the expression suppression shall mean non-declaration of facts or information which a taxable person is required to declare in the return, statement, report or any other document furnished under this Act or the rules made thereunder, or failure to furnish any information on being asked for, in writing, by the proper officer."

11. By virtue of section 74 (1) of the Act, a "proper officer" alone, may issue a notice requiring any "person chargeable with tax", to show cause as to the subject matter of that proceeding. Again, by virtue of section 74 (9) of the Act, it is the "proper officer" alone, who may consider the reply that may be submitted by the concerned "person chargeable with tax" and, determine the amount of tax, interest or penalty due upon such person. Therefore, it necessarily flows from section 74 of the Act, other than a "proper officer" no other authority under the Act may pass such an order.

12. As to the description of a "proper officer", by virtue of section 2(91) of the Act it has to be either the "Commissioner" himself and/or the officer of the "State tax", who may have been assigned that function by the Commissioner. Here, there is no dispute between the parties that the Office Orders dated 01.07.2017 and 19.11.2018 were issued by the "Commissioner" as defined under section 2(91) of the Act. Its effect will be examined a little later.

13. Thus, there would be no dispute between the parties, if the "Commissioner" had himself issued the notice or passed the order giving rise to the present petition. The issues that arise are whether there is any function assignment/sub-delegation made in favour of the Deputy Commissioner, with reference to section 74 of the Act and, whether the assignment made, if any, validly confers jurisdiction on the Deputy Commissioner.

14. Then, different provisions of the Act exist for different purposes. section 3 of the Act defines the "classes of officers", who may be appointed under the Act. That provision does not create any function assignment or sub-delegation in favour of any class of officers and it does not define the function jurisdiction of any class of officers. However, it does create a fiction of law. Thus, under the proviso thereto it includes, on deemed basis, all officers appointed under the U.P. Value Added Tax Act, 2008, to be officers appointed under the Act. At the same time, no jurisdiction or function assignment has been created or sub-delegated in favour of such officers or class of officers.

15. Then, section 4(1) of the Act, empowers the State Government to appoint a person as an officer under the Act, in addition to the class of officers specified under section 3 of the Act. Since, the Deputy Commissioner is an officer falling under the proviso to section 3 of the Act, section 4(1) of the Act has no relevance to the present controversy. Insofar as section 4(2) of the Act is concerned, it first specifies the territorial limits of the jurisdiction of the "Commissioner", the "Additional Commissioner" and the "Special Commissioner". The Commissioner has been vested with territorial jurisdiction over the entire State. Second, the Special Commissioner and the Additional Commissioner, would also have jurisdiction over the whole of the State of Uttar Pradesh so however, they may exercise that jurisdiction with respect to all or any of the functions that may be "assigned"/sub-delegated to them and where State Government so directs such jurisdiction may be exercised over any local area of the State. Crucially, by way of the third part of section 4 (2) of the Act, all other officers i.e. officers subordinate to the rank of Special Commissioner and Additional Commissioner shall have jurisdiction over the whole of the State or over such local area as the Commissioner may by order specify. Thus, so far as the respondent-Deputy Commissioner is concerned, his territorial jurisdiction would arise under the third part of section 4(2) of the Act, by an order of the Commissioner and subject to conditions as may be specified by the Commissioner.

16. In view of the Office Orders dated 01.07.2017 and 19.11.2018, there is no dispute raised in this petition to territorial jurisdiction of the respondent-Deputy Commissioner. The dispute is confined to the function assignment/sub-delegation if any, made in his favour. Prima-facie, section 4(2) of the Act does not appear to directly deal with function assignment/sub-delegation or creation of subject matter jurisdiction of the Deputy Commissioner or any other authority. That provision speaks of but does not itself provide for or specify/sub-delegate function jurisdiction in favour of any officer under the Act.

17. Clause 1 of the Office Order dated 01.07.2017 first refers to and provides that jurisdiction specification on the following terms:

"1– उ0प्र0 माल एवं सेवा कर अधिनियम 2017 (उ0प्र0 अधिनियम संख्या 1 सन् 2017) की विभिन्न धाराओं में उल्लिखित कृत्य के संबंध में उचित अधिकारी (त्तवचमत वपिबमत) नामित करने के उद्देश्य से अधिनियम की धारा 2 (91) तथा धारा 4(2) में प्रदत्त शक्तियों का प्रयोग करते हुए मैं, आयुक्त, राज्य कर, उत्तर प्रदेश राज्य के अन्तर्गत राज्य कर खण्डों के अधिक्षेत्र की भौगोलिक सीमाओं को इस परिपत्र के अनुलग्नक ''क'' के अनुसार, राज्य कर के मण्डलों की भौगोलिक सीमा इस परिपत्र के अनुलग्नक ''ख'' के अनुसार, राज्य कर के सम्भाग एवं जोंन की भौगोलिक सीमा इस परिपत्र के अनुलग्नक ''ग'' के अनुसार अवधारित करता हूँ।"

18. Insofar as section 5(3) of the Act is concerned, learned counsel for the petitioner has vehemently urged, unless the Commissioner first sub-delegates his specified powers, no function jurisdiction may arise in favour of the respondent-Deputy Commissioner. Thus, it is her submission, originally, all function jurisdiction vest in the Commissioner. He may sub-delegate the same to other officers by specific orders. In absence of any order issued under section 5(3) of the Act, the Deputy Commissioner never acquired function jurisdiction under Section 74 of the Act.

19. On a plain reading of section 5(3) of the Act, we find, the Commissioner has been granted a general power to sub-delegate all or any of his powers/functions to any other officer who may be subordinate to him. It would include within its plain ambit, the sub-delegation of function jurisdiction or the power to act as the "proper officer", to adjudicate a dispute under section 74 of the Act.

20. In absence of any other procedure or manner being prescribed under the Act to effectuate or create that sub-delegation or to create that function assignment, and in face of the powers vested in the "Commissioner" under section 4(2) and 5(3) of the Act, we may test the true purport and scope of the Office Orders dated 01.01.2017 and 19.11.2018 to determine if such sub-delegation of power or necessary function assignment had been made, in accordance with law.

21. Clearly, the respondent-Deputy Commissioner is an officer of the "State tax" in view of the language of the proviso to section 3 of the Act. Even otherwise, there is no dispute to that, in the present petition. From a plain reading of section 2(91) of the Act the sub-delegation of function assignment is to be made by the Commissioner. Here, clearly, the "Commissioner" had himself issued the Office Orders dated 01.07.2017 and 19.11.2018. Paragraph 2 of the office order dated 01.07.2017 reads as below:-

"2– उ0प्र0 माल एवं सेवा कर अधिनियम 2017 (उ0प्र0 अधिनियम संख्या 1 सन् 2017) की धारा 2 (91) में प्रदत्त शक्तियों का प्रयोग करते हुए मैं, आयुक्त, राज्य कर, उत्तर प्रदेश, उक्त अधिनियम की विभिन्न धाराओं के स्तम्भ में नीचे अंकित तालिका के स्तम्भ 2 में अंकित अधिकारियों को उनके सम्मुख स्तम्भ 3 में अंकित अधिनियम की धाराओं के प्रयोजन हेतु उचित अधिकारी ;च्तवचमत वदिबमतद्ध नामित करता हूँ:–

22. Doubts, if any, to any as to overlapping jurisdictions (amongst the sub-delegates) came to an end upon issuance of the subsequent Office Order dated 19.11.2018. Therein, the pecuniary jurisdiction was dissected and distributed, exclusively, amongst the officers of the rank of Commissioner Tax Officer, Assistant Commissioner and Deputy Commissioner. The relevant part of that Office Order reads as below:-

"1. डिप्टी कमिश्नर (उपायुक्त)– 50 लाख से अधिक करयोग्य विक्रयधन वाले निर्माता इकाई तथा 1 करोड. से अधिक करयोग्य बिक्री करने वाली ट्रेडिंग ईकाइयाँ।

2. असिस्टेंट कमिश्नर (सहायक आयुक्त)– 15 लाख से 50 लाख तक करयोग्य विक्रयधन वाली निर्माता ईकाइयाँ तथा 25 लाख से 1 करोड. तक करयोग्य बिक्री करने वाली ट्रेडिंग ईकाइयाँ।

3. वाणिज्य कर अधिकारी (राज्य कर अधिकारी)– 15 लाख तक करयोग्य वियधन निर्माता ईकाइयाँ तथा 25 लाख तक करयोग्य बिक्री करने वाली ट्रेडिंग ईकाइयाँ।"

23. The function-jurisdiction that have been sub-delegated and thus assigned to the officers falling in the class of officers-Deputy Commissioner, Assistant Commissioner and the Commerical Tax Officer are clearly mentioned in Column-3 of the chart below paragraph 2 of the Office Order dated 01.07.2017 (quoted above). Thereby, the function-jurisdiction of adjudication under Section 74 has been assigned to the officers of the above mentioned three classes (specified under Section 3). The pecuniary jurisdiction of each of the three class of officers namely, Commercial Tax Officer, Assistant Commissioner and Deputy Commissioner has been delineated by the subsequent Office Order dated 19.11.2018. Thus, there is no overlapping jurisdiction. Both, pecuniary and territorial jurisdiction are clearly demarcated and visible.

24. Then section 5(3) is the source of the power to sub-delegate the function-jurisdiction vested in the Commissioner, to be exercised in favour of any officer subordinate to him. Neither there exists any procedure or stipulation prescribed by law with respect to the mode or the manner in which that power to sub-delegate may be exercised nor the Commissioner was required to obtain any approval of the State Government in that regard nor there exists any requirement in law prescribing issuance of a notification etc. to evidence a valid sub-delegation made under section 5(3) of the Act.

25. Therefore, the fact, composite Office Orders 01.07.2017 and 19.11.2018 were issued by the Commissioner, makes no difference to the validity of the power exercised. Non-recital of section 5(3) of the Act in either of those orders is inconsequential and even extraneous to the valid exercise of power made by the Commissioner. The power was admittedly existing and it is seen to have been exercised. It is not shown to have been exercised in contravention of any statutory provision or principle of law. Hence, the validity of the power exercised would remain by established firm and undoubted.

26. Section 5(3) of the Act provides the source of power to be exercised by the Commissioner for the purpose of section 4 read with section 2(91) of the Act. As noted above, the power under section 5(3) of the Act is a general power of sub-delegation vested in the Commissioner, by the legislature. Once that power is shown to exist and the same is seen to have been exercised, no fetters may be searched and attached to the exercise of that power and no challenge may arise thereto, de hors the statutory scheme, to defeat that exercise of power.

27. It is not the requirement of law that the source of power must necessarily be recited in the order passed in exercise of that power to validate the power exercised. It is enough that the source of power existed and it was exercised in the manner prescribed by law. Its recital in the order passed in exercise of that power would not lend or add to the legitimacy of the power exercised. It is not a spell that may cause a magical effect only upon its incantation in a ritualisticaly correct manner.

28. As to the further submission advanced by learned counsel for the petitioner on the strength of section 6 of the Act, we find, the same is misconceived. It has no applicability to the present facts. That provision would apply only to officers appointed under the Central Act. Those officers may act as "proper officer" under the Act subject to conditions as the State Government may notify in that regard, and not otherwise.

29. Thus, the statutory scheme appears to be - the legislature has first recognised the Commissioner as the "proper officer" for all fuctions under the Act. It also recognises the classes of officers who may be appointed officers under the Act. Further, officers of the UP VAT Act have been recognised as officers under the Act, on deemed basis. As to the officers of the Central Government, the State Government has been delegated the power (under section 4(1) of the Act) to appoint them officers under the Act. Second as to the functions to be performed by various officers under the Act, the Commissioner may sub-delegate absolutely, any functions to an officer of "State tax" [as defined under section 2(104) of the Act]. On the contrary, an officer of the Central Government may not be sub-delegated such powers generally. He may be sub-delegated that power and he may act as a "proper officer" subject to the conditions as the State Government may by notification (under section 6 of the Act), specify, in that regard.

30. Insofar as the present respondent-Deputy Commissioner is an officer under section 3 of the Act, section 6 of the Act has no application. Only with respect to officers appointed under the Central Act, the exercise of jurisdiction would be circumscribed by a notification that would have to be first issued by the State Government, before such jurisdiction may be created in their favour. Upon clear language of the provisions of the Act, the officers appointed under the Act would continue to be governed by the provisions of sections 3 and 4 read with section 2(91) of the Act and the general orders issued by the "Commissioner" in that regard, issued with reference to the power exercised under section 5 of the Act.

31. Hence, the decision relied upon by learned counsel for the petitioner are found to be wholly distinguishable. In Commissioner of Customs Vs. Syed Ali and Others (Supra), two conflicting orders of the Tribunal existed. In the first set, the Customs, Excise and Gold (Control) Appellate Tribunal had reasoned, the Commissioner of Customs (Preventive), Mumbai was not a "proper officer" under Section 2(34) of the Customs Act, 1962. In the second set, a contrary view had been expressed by the Central Excise and Service Tax Appellate Tribunal. Both sets of orders of the Tribunal came to be examined by the Supreme Court in that decision. Dealing with the same and after taking notice of the provision of section 28 of the Customs Act, 1962 (hereinafter referred to as the Customs Act); the definition of "proper officer" given under section 2(34) of the Customs Act and, after taking note of the fact that the Collector of Customs, (Preventive) had not been assigned any function under section 28 of the Act it was held, the adjudication order passed by the Collector Customs (Preventive) lacked inherent jurisdiction.

32. Relevant to our discussion, in paragraph nos. 20, 21 and 24 of the report, it was held as under:-

"20. From a conjoint reading of Sections 2(34) and 28 of the Act, it is manifest that only such a Customs Officer who has been assigned the specific functions of assessment and reassessment of duty in the jurisdictional area where the import concerned has been affected, by either the Board or the Commissioner of Customs, in terms of Section 2(34) of the Act is competent to issue notice under Section 28 of the Act. Any other reading of Section 28 would render the provisions of Section 2(34) of the Act otiose inasmuch as the test contemplated under Section 2(34) of the Act is that of specific conferment of such functions.

21. Moreover, if the Revenue's contention that once territorial jurisdiction is conferred, the Collector of Customs (Preventive) becomes a "proper officer" in terms of Section 28 of the Act is accepted, it would lead to a situation of utter chaos and confusion, as much as all officers of Customs in a particular area be it under the Collectorate of Customs (Imports) or the Preventive Collectorate, would be "proper officer". In our view, therefore, it is only the officers of Customs, who are assigned the function of assessment, which of course, would include reassessment, working under jurisdictional Collectorate within whose jurisdiction the bills of entry or baggage declarations had been filed and the consignments had been cleared for home consumption, will have the jurisdiction to issue notice under Section 28 of the Act.*

24. Nothing has been brought on record to show that the Collector of Customs (Preventive), who had issued the show cause notices was assigned the functions under Section 28 of the Act as "proper officer" either by the Board or the Collector/Commissioner of Customs. We are convinced that Notifications Nos. 250-Cus. and 251 Cus., both dated 27.8.1983, issued by the Central Government in exercise of the powers conferred by sub-section (1) of the Section 4 of the Act, appointing Collector of Customs (Preventive), etc. to be the Collector of Customs for Bombay, Thane and Kolaba Districts in the State of Maharashtra did not ipso facto confer jurisdiction on him to exercise power entrusted to the "proper officers' for the purpose of Section 28 of the Act."

33. Then in Canon India (Supra), a question arose whether the Additional Director General, Revenue Intelligence had the authority to issue a Show Cause Notice under section

28(4) of the Customs Act, 1962. After taking note of the provisions of section 28(4) read with section 2(34) and section 6 of the Customs Act, 1962, the Supreme Court reasoned, the Additional Director General, Revenue Intelligence was not a "proper officer". In reaching that conclusion, the Supreme Court observed in paragraph nos. 13, 15, 16, 18, 19, 20 and 21 of the report as under:-

"13. Where the statute confers the same power to perform an act on different officers, as in this case, the two officers, especially when they belong to different departments, cannot exercise their powers in the same case. Where one officer has exercised his powers of assessment, the power to order re-assessment must also be exercised by the same officer or his successor and not by another officer of another department though he is designated to be an officer of the same rank. In our view, this would result into an anarchical and unruly operation of a statute which is not contemplated by any canon of construction of statute.

15. It is obvious that the re-assessment and recovery of duties i.e. contemplated by Section 28(4) is by the same authority and not by any superior authority such as Appellate or Revisional Authority. It is, therefore, clear to us that the Additional Director General of DRI was not "the" proper officer to exercise the power under Section 28(4) and the initiation of the recovery proceedings in the present case is without any jurisdiction and liable to be set aside.

16. At this stage, we must also examine whether the Additional Director General of the DRI who issued the recovery notice under Section 28(4) was even a proper officer. The Additional Director General can be considered to be a proper officer only if it is shown that he was a Customs officer under the Customs Act. In addition, that he was entrusted with the functions of the proper officer under Section 6 of the Customs Act. The Additional Director General of the DRI can be considered to be a Customs officer only if he is shown to have been appointed as Customs officer under the Customs Act.

18. The next step is to see whether an Additional Director General of the DRI who has been appointed as an officer of Customs, under the notification dated 7.3.2002, has been entrusted with the functions under Section 28 as a proper officer under the Customs Act. In support of the contention that he has been so entrusted with the functions of a proper officer under Section 28 of the Customs Act, Shri Sanjay Jain, learned Additional Solicitor General relied on a Notification No.40/2012 dated 2.5.2012 issued by the Central Board of Excise and Customs. The notification confers various functions referred to in Column (3) of the notification under the Customs Act on officers referred to in Column (2). The relevant part of the notification reads as follows:-

"[To be published in the Gazette of India, Extraordinary, Part II, Section 3 Sub-section (ii)] Government of India Ministry of Finance (Department of Revenue) Notification No.40/2012-Customs (N.T.) New Delhi, dated the 2nd May, 2012 S.O. (E). - In exercise of the powers conferred by sub-section (34) of Section 2 of the Customs Act, 1962 (52 of 1962), the Central Board of Excise and Customs, hereby assigns the officers and above the rank of officers mentioned in Column (2) of the Table below, the functions as the proper officers in relation to the various sections of the Customs Act, 1962, given in the corresponding entry in Column (3) of the said Table: -

1	2	3
1	Commissioner of Customs	(i) Section 33
2	Additional	(i) Sub-section (5) of

	Commissioner or Joint Commissioner of Customs	Section 46; and (ii) Section 149
3	Deputy Commissioner or Assistant Commissioner of Customs and Central Excise	(i) (ii).. (iii).. (iv).. (v).. (vi) Section28;

19. It appears that a Deputy Commissioner or Assistant Commissioner of Customs has been entrusted with the functions under Section 28, vide Sl. No.3 above. By reason of the fact that the functions are assigned to officers referred to in Column (3) and those officers above the rank of officers mentioned in Column (2), the Commissioner of Customs would be included as an officer entitled to perform the function under Section 28 of the Act conferred on a Deputy Commissioner or Assistant Commissioner but the notification appears to be ill-founded. The notification is purported to have been issued in exercise of powers under sub-Section (34) of Section 2 of the Customs Act. This section does not confer any powers on any authority to entrust any functions to officers. The sub-Section is part of the definitions clause of the Act, it merely defines a proper officer, it reads as follows:-

"2. Definitions - In this Act, unless the context otherwise requires, -

... (34) "proper officer', in relation to any functions to be performed under this Act, means the officer of customs who is assigned those functions by the Board or the [Principal Commissioner of Customs or Commissioner of Customs]. "

20. Section 6 is the only Section which provides for entrustment of functions of Customs officer on other officers of the Central or the State Government or local authority, it reads as follows:-

"6. Entrustment of functions of Board and customs officers on certain other officers - The Central Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, entrust either conditionally or unconditionally to any officer of the Central or the State Government or a local authority any functions of the Board or any officer of customs under this Act.

21. If it was intended that officers of the Directorate of Revenue Intelligence who are officers of Central Government should be entrusted with functions of the Customs officers, it was imperative that the Central Government should have done so in exercise of its power under Section 6 of the Act. The reason why such a power is conferred on the Central Government is obvious and that is because the Central Government is the authority which appoints both the officers of the Directorate of Revenue Intelligence which is set up under the Notification dated 04.12.1957 issued by the Ministry of Finance and Customs officers who, till 11.5.2002, were appointed by the Central Government. The notification which purports to entrust functions as proper officer under the Customs Act has been issued by the Central Board of Excise and Customs in exercise of non-existing power under Section 2 (34) of the Customs Act. The notification is obviously invalid having been issued by an authority which had no power to do so in purported exercise of powers under a section which does not confer any such power.

34. Thus, at the surface it appears, the Supreme Court had principally reasoned, unless there existed a specific exercise of power made by the competent authority to assign the function of adjudication, no function jurisdiction could have been assigned/sub-delegated in favour of the Commissioner of Customs (Preventive) or the Additional Director General, Directorate of Revenue Intelligence. At the same time, it cannot be accepted as the true reasoning of the aforesaid decisions. In fact, in those decisions issue had arisen whether the Commissioner of Customs (Preventive)/Additional Director General, Directorate of Revenue Intelligence were officers falling within the class of Officers of Customs defined under section 3 of the Customs Act and whether there was any notification issued under section 6 of the Customs Act assigning any function to those officers.

35. Section 3 of the Customs Act reads as under:

"3. Classes of officers of customs.- There shall be the following classes of officers of customs, namely:-

(a) Principal Chief Commissioners of Customs;

(b) Chief Commissioners of Customs;

(c) Principal Commissioners of Customs;

(d) Commissioner of Customs;

(e) Commissioners of Customs (Appeals);

(f) Joint Commissioners of Customs;

(g) Deputy Commissioners of Customs;

(h) Assistant Commissioners of Customs;

(i) such other class of officers of customs as may be appointed for the purposes of this Act."

36. Though any officer other than the person of the Customs could be appointed as a Custom Officer by virtue of section 4 of the Customs Act, such an officer could not hold any function jurisdiction in his favour unless a specific entrustment/sub-delegation were first made in his favour by issuance of a notification under section 6 of that Act. Therefore, the Commissioner of Customs (Preventive) and the Additional Director General, Directorate of Revenue Intelligence though became Customs Officers by virtue of Notification dated 02.05.2012 read with earlier Notification dated 07.03.2002 yet, in the absence of any further notification issued under section 6, (it was reasoned), they could not act as a "proper officer" to adjudicate a dispute under section 28 of the Customs Act, 1962.

37. Similarly, in the context of the Act, any officer of the Central Government who may become an officer under Act by virtue of his appointment thus made, under section 4(1) of the Act, would remain dependent on a further notification that may be issued under section 6 of the Act, regarding function assignment/sub-delegation made in his favour, by the State Government, before he may act as a "proper officer", under Act. However, that requirement and condition of law would not attach to an officer of the "State tax". As noted above, undisputedly, the respondent-Deputy Commissioner is an officer of the State Tax whose function assignment has been made in terms of section 2(91) read with sections 4(2) and 5(3) of the Act, by virtue of Office Order dated 01.07.2017 read with further Office Order dated 19.11.2018.

38. Thus, similar to the two methods of function assignment/delegation prescribed under the Customs Act, under the Act as well, there exist two different methods to create function assignment/delegation in favour of officers of "State tax" and officers of "Central tax" (i.e. officers appointed under Central Act). As noted above, function assignment/jurisdiction in favour of officers of the "State tax" may be created by the "Commissioner" by issuing an order/communication in exercise of his powers of sub-delegation vested under section 5(3) of the Act. However, function assignment/jurisdiction in favour of the officers of the Central Act, may be created and such officers may act as "proper officer" subject to conditions as may be notified by the State Government which alone has the power to cause the sub-delegation in favour of those officers. Under section 5 of the Customs Act, the Board may authorise any officer of Customs to exercise the powers under that Act. Yet, any other officer of the State or the Central Government or a local authority may be entrusted any power, (under that enactment), either of the Board or any officer of the Customs, as may be notified by the Central Government and, not otherwise.

39. The Commissioner of Customs (Preventive), Mumbai [in the case of Commissioner of Customs Vs. Syed Ali & others (Supra)] and the Additional Director, Directorate of Revenue Intelligence [in the case of Canon India (Supra)] were not officers of Customs (under section 5 of the Customs Act), in the first place. Hence, though appointed (clearly with reference to section 4 of the Act, no function came to be entrusted to them under the Customs Act, in absence of any sub-delegation made in their favour by a further notification under section 6 of that Act. That analogy and reasoning would arise and apply (in the context of the Act), to officers of the "Central tax", only. It would not apply to functioning of officers of the "State tax" who may draw their function-jurisdiction from simple sub-delegation under an administrative order issued by the "Commissioner" with reference to his powers to sub-delegate granted under section 5 of the Act, without any gazette notification of such order.

40. Thus no defect exists in the exercise of power made by the Deputy Commissioner. The challenge raised in the present petition thus fails. Accordingly, the writ petition is dismissed. No order as to costs.

41. It is left open to the petitioner to test the merits of the impugned order dated 07.08.2021 before the statutory forum of appeal, if that cause exists. Such appeal, if any, may be filed within a period of four weeks from today. If filed within time granted, the same may be heard and decided on its own merits without any objection to its limitation.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Anjani Kumar Mishra, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the parties on the recall application.

2. The order dated 29.01.2020 is recalled and I have heard counsel for the parties on the merits of the writ petition and perused the record.

3. The writ petition arises out of proceedings for allotment of chaks and seeks a writ of certiorari for quashing the order dated 20.09.1997 passed by the Deputy Director of Consolidation whereby the chak of the petitioner has been disturbed.

4. The contention of Shri Rahul Mishra, counsel for the petitioners is that the Deputy Director of Consolidation has himself modified the chak of the petitioners at the revisional stage. He submits that in case there was an illegality in the order passed by the Settlement Officer Consolidation, the Deputy Director of Consolidation could only have remanded the matter back to the appellate authority for reconsideration. The Deputy Director of Consolidation was not competent to substitute his findings as the revisional court is a court of limited jurisdiction and does not have power akin to a court of appeal.

5. In support of his contention he has placed reliance upon the following two decisions.

Karan Singh and Others vs. Deputy Director of Consolidation, Aligarh and Others 2003 (1) AWC 630 wherein, in paragraph 7, it has been observed as follows:-

"7. ..... In case the Deputy Director of consolidation was of the opinion that the findings recorded were bad in law, he could set aside the same after reappraisal of the evidence and could remand the case for decision afresh. ....."

6. The Court further went on to hold that the order impugned before it suffered from a misreading of the evidence on record.

7. The other judgement relied upon is the judgment dated 25.11.2016 passed in Writ B No. 54395 of 2009 Ram Nivas and Others vs. Deputy Director of Consolidation and Others. Paragraph 23 of this judgment reads as follows:-

"23. In view of above exposition of law and considering the facts and circumstances of the case, in my view the order impugned in this writ petition passed by DDC cannot sustain being beyond the scope of Section 48 of Act, 1953. In the present case, revisional authority has neither examined regularity of the proceedings conducted by subordinate authority nor has examined correctness and propriety of such order and has passed its order, which has the effect of upsetting the order passed by lower authority without pointing out any illegality or inaccuracy or incorrectness therein."

8. In the case at hand, the order impugned, is dated 20.09.1997. Section 48 of the UP Consolidation of Holdings Act has undergone various amendments. The last amendment was by means of UP Act No. 3 of 2002, with effect from 10.11.1980. By this amendment Explanation [3] has been added to the said section. The said Explanation [3] reads as follows:-

"Explanation [3].-The power under this section to examine the correctness, legality or propriety of any order includes the power to examine any findings, whether of fact or law, recorded by any subordinate authority, and also includes the power to reappreciate any oral or documentary evidence."

9. From a bare reading of Explanation [3], incorporated in the year 2002 with effect from 10.11.1980, it is clear that it makes the revisional court the last court of fact.

10. The judgment in Karan Singh (supra) relied upon by counsel for the petitioners has not noticed or considered Explanation [3] to Section 48.

11. The judgment of the case of Ram Nivas has noticed the amendment in Section 48 of the UP Consolidation of Holdings Act but has gone on to hold that the power of the revisional court is limited. This view has been taken relying upon the decision of the Apex Court in Jagdamba Prasad vs. Kripa Shanker 2014 (5) SCC 707 wherein it appears that the revisional authority had admitted new facts either in the form of document or otherwise to come to a conclusion i.e. it had permitted and relied upon additional evidence to arrive at its conclusion. Such is not the position in the case at hand. This judgement has also placed reliance upon the decision of the Karan Singh, the first judgement cited by the counsel for the petitioners. In this connection it has been observed as follows. "In Karan Singh vs. Deputy Director of Consolidation and Others 2003 (94)RD 382, this Court, however, said even after addition of Explanation-[3], DDC cannot substitute its own finding in place of subordinate authorities."

12. In view of the above observation, I have carefully scrutinized the judgement in the case of Karan Singh and, I do not find any reference therein to Explanation [3] added to Section 48 of the UP Consolidation of Holdings Act by UP Act No. 3 of 2002. It would be relevant to reiterate that this amendment has not been taken note of, by the Court, in the judgement in Karan Singh (supra), even in passing. The observation made in Ram Nivas is, therefore, unfounded.

13. The revisional power under Section 48 of the UP Consolidation of Holdings Act as it existed prior to the amendment made therein vide UP Act No. 3 of 2002 with effect from 10.11.1980 was considered by the Apex Court in the case of Ram Dular vs. Deputy Director of Consolidation, Jaunpur 1994 supplementary (2) SCC 198 and it was observed as follows:-

".....in considering the correctness, legality or propriety of the order or correctness of the proceedings or regularity under Section 48 of the Consolidation Act, the Deputy Director of Consolidation could not assume the jurisdiction of the original authority as a fact-finding authority by appreciating for himself those facts de novo; he had to consider whether the legally admissible evidence had been considered by the authorities in recording a finding of fact or law or the conclusion reached by hem was based on evidence or any patent illegality or impropriety had been committed or there was any procedural irregularity, which would go to the root of the matter....."

14. Relying upon the aforesaid judgement as also other judgements, the Apex Court in Gayadin vs. Hanuman Prasad and Others 2001 Vol (1) SCC 501 has held in paragraph 14 as follows:-

"14. Thus, it is clear that notwithstanding of the fact that Section 48 has been couched in wide terms, it only permits interference where the findings of the subordinate authority are perverse in the sense that they are not supported by the evidence brought on record or they are against the law or where they suffer from the vice of procedural irregularity."

15. From a perusal of the objects and reasons for enactment and consequential amendment of Section 48 of the Consolidation of Holdings Act by UP Act No 3 of 2002, it emerges that Explanation [3] has been added thereto, to clarify the position of law, in view of the law laid down in Gayadin (supra).

16. Thus Explanation [3] which has been added by UP Act No. 3 of 2002 with effect from 10.11.1980 is absolutely clear and does not call for any interpretation. It is settled rule of statutory interpretation that the words used in an enactment are to be given their literal meaning. It is not open for the courts to read in something which does not emerge from a bare reading of a provision after giving the words used therein, there literal meaning.

17. In my considered opinion, Explanation [3] gives the Deputy Director of Consolidation power to reappreciate the evidence, both oral and documentary and to record its own findings of fact and of law, contrary to those recorded by any subordinate authority. Any interpretation to the contrary would necessarily entail reading something into the provision which is not contained therein. Moreover, it would be travesty of justice if the Deputy Director of consolidation is held competent to appreciate the oral and documentary evidence and upset the findings recorded by the subordinate authority and yet, is required to remand the matter back for fresh consideration. Such interpretation in my considered opinion, could not have been the object behind including the amendment in the Act and thereby prolonging the litigation between the parties. It needs to be borne in mind that the litigation generated by the U.P. Consolidation of Holdings Act is largely, forced litigation. If a court is competent to reappreciate the oral and documentary evidence and interfere with the findings recorded by the subordinate courts, it necessarily implies that such court also has the power to substitute its own finding after such reappreciation of the oral and documentary evidence. There exists nothing in the Act or the amendment itself to support any view to the contrary.

18. For the reasons given above, the petitioners are not entitled to any benefit under the judgements cited by them.

19. From the submissions made on the merits as also perusal of the grounds taken in the writ petition, it transpires that the petitioners seek to convey that by the order passed by the Deputy Director of Consolidation, they were deprived of their original holdings completely. This averment and import of the grounds in the writ petition is contrary to the finding returned by the Deputy Director of Consolidation himself. In the impugned order the Deputy Director of Consolidation has categorically stated that on account of the modifications being made by him in the chaks of the parties by the impugned orders, the parties will be shifted to their original holdings. This finding, returned by the Deputy Director of Consolidation, could have been challenged only by documentary evidence, especially the CH Form 23 of the petitioners. This has not been done. It is not open for the petitioners to claim that a finding returned in the impugned order is either illegal or perverse without bringing adequate documentary material on record, in support of such a contention

20. Under the circumstances, therefore the order impugned even on its merits, is not liable to be interfered with.

21. In view of the foregoing discussion, this writ petition fails and is dismissed.

A. Labour law – Working Journalists & ors. Newspaper Employees (Conditions of Service) and Miscellaneous Provisions Act, 1955 – Petitioner claimed himself to be appointed as 'Working journalist' and entitled to get the wages & ors. benefits recommended by the Majithia Wage Board Award – Appointment letter disclosed that his principal avocation is teaching and not journalism – Signature to the appointment letter of the petitioner was admitted – Effect – Held, the finding of the labour court that that petitioner does not fall within the ambit of 'working journalist' as defined in the Act of 1955 cannot be faulted. (Para 13, 17 and 20)

Writ petition dismissed. (E-1)

Cases relied on :-

1. Ballubhai Javerbhai Panchal Vs Sandesh Ltd. & ors.; 1997 SCC OnLine Bom 598

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ajay Bhanot, J.)

1. By the impugned award dated 24.01.2020, reference made to the labour court has been decided against the petitioner. In substance, the labour court has found that the petitioner is not a "working journalist" and does not come within the ambit of the Working Journalists and other Newspaper Employees (Conditions of Service) and Miscellaneous Provisions Act, 1955 (hereinafter referred to as the 'Act of 1955').

2. Shri Man Mohan Singh, learned counsel for the petitioner submits that the petitioner is a journalist within the meaning of the Act of 1955. The labour court had earlier decided the issue in favour of the petitioner by order dated 02.01.2019 and hence could not reverse the aforesaid findings in favour of the petitioner. The findings of the labour court are perverse.

3. Per contra, Shri Mukund Tripathi, learned Standing Counsel submits that the order dated 02.01.2019 passed by the labour court was without receiving full evidence on behalf of the parties. The final order was passed upon due consideration of the evidence introduced by both the parties and the judgement cannot be faulted. This Court in exercise of writ jurisdiction cannot adjudicate any disputed findings of fact, particularly, when no perversity in the award has been established.

4. Heard learned counsel for the parties.

5. The following reference was made to the labour court:

A. Whether the workman is entitled to the benefits of Majithia Wage Board Award? if yes, the nature of relief which can be granted to the workman Sandeep Nagar?

6. The said reference was made under Section 17(2) of the Act of 1955 read with Section 4K of the U.P. Industrial Disputes Act, 1947. Benefits of the Majithia Wage Board Award could be granted to the petitioner only if he was a working journalist as contemplated in the Act of 1955.

7. Upon consideration of the pleadings, oral and documentary evidences in the record as well as the submissions on behalf of the parties, the labour court made these findings. The principal avocation of the petitioner is teaching and not journalism. The petitioner was a part time journalist. The petitioner does not come within the embrass of definition "working journalist" as contemplated in the Act of 1955.

8. Some of the pleadings and evidences which led the labour court to make the aforesaid findings shall now be discussed.

9. The petitioner claimed in his application before the labour court that he was engaged as a reporter w.e.f. 07.04.2011 with the respondent establishment. He claimed entitlement to wages and other benefits recommended by the Majithia Wage Board Award. The respondent employer in the written pleadings submitted before the labour court strenuously contested entitlements claimed by the petitioner and asserted that the principal avocation of the petitioner was teaching". He used to send stories and news from time to time as a hobby. Only a person whose principal avocation is a journalism is covered under the definition of "working journalist" defined under Section 2f of the Act of 1955.

10. The petitioner deposed before the labour court that he was appointed on 07.04.2011. Prior to his appointment the petitioner had submitted an application for appointment along with his educational testimonials. Upon an interview conducted by the employers, the petitioner was engaged as a full time reporter. An appointment letter was issued to him two and a half months after his appointment. He submitted a number of stories and reports and was paid lump sum of Rs. 5,000/- per month.

11. On behalf of the employers, one Pankaj Kumar Srivastava who was working as Regional H.R. Head deposed as E.W.-1. E.W.-1 in his testimony before the labour court stated that Sandeep Nagar (workman) had made an application to the respondent employer/establishment stating that he wanted to engage in journalism as a hobby and that his principal avocation was teaching. On the foot of the aforesaid application the petitioner was appointed in the respondent establishment.

12. The petitioner received appointment letter on 16.06.2011. The appointment letter dated 16.06.2011 was introduced by the employer as a documentary evidence and was marked as Exh.1. The said document and its contents were proved by EW-1. The recitals in the letter dated 16.06.2021 were reiterated by EW-1 before the labour court. The petitioner admitted his signatures to the aforesaid documents.

13. Exh. E-1 is a critical piece of evidence and would require slightly detailed consideration. The letter of appointment dated 16.06.2011 references the application filed by the petitioner for appointment wherein he had disclosed that his principal avocation is teaching and not journalism and that he was contributing news, stories and report for publication in our Hindi daily, Hindustan, Meerut. On the foot of the said credentials given by the petitioner in the letter dated 07.04.2011, the terms and conditions of his appointment are stated.

14. It would be apposite to extract the relevant part of the appointment letter dated 16.06.2021:

"Apropos to your application dated April 7, 2011, that you intend to contribute news, reports and stories for publication in our Hindi daily, Hindustan, Meerut, from xxxx and that your principal avocation is Teaching and not journalism, we wish to inform you that your application has been accepted on the following terms and conditions:

I. You will be sending news reports/stories about sports, political, culture, social matters, education, crime etc. which you consider of public interest and fit to be published in our paper.

II. You will be paid a fixed amount of Rs. 5,000/- (Rupees Five thousand only) per month for sending news reports/stories.

III. You will not be getting any other expenses spent on collecting news reports/stories nor will you be reimbursed secretarial expenses on this account except to the extent, which may be specified agreed to by the Company. You will also not be supplied any stationary.

IV. You will inform the Company at least one month in advance in case you change your principal avocation."

15. The labour court which had the benefit of observing the demeanor of the witnesses disbelieved the defence of the petitioner that he had repudiated the appointment letter.

16. To the contrary, the labour court which also observed E.W. -1 Pankaj Kumar Srivastava during his deposition and found his testimony to be credible. A perusal of the testimony of Pankaj Kumar Srivstava as appended to the writ petition discloses that the credibility of the said witness could not be shaken after cross examination.

17. The petitioner had also admitted his signatures to the aforesaid appointment letter. Heavy burden lay upon the petitioner to dispute the correctness of the contents of the appointment letter dated 16.06.2011 which, as seen earlier, he failed to discharge. Denial of the letter dated 16.06.2011 of the petitioner was weak and self serving and was rightly distrusted by the labour court. Similarly there is no error in the labour court award upholding the credit of EW-1 as a witness and believing his testimony.

18. The arrative shall now be fortified by statutory provisions and good authority in point.

Section 2f of the Act, 1955 is reproduced below:

"working journalist" means a person whose principal avocation is that of a journalist and 2[who is employed as such, either whole-time or part-time, in, or in relation to, one or more newspaper establishments], and includes an editor, a leader-writer, news editor, sub-editor, feature-writer, copy-tester, reporter, correspondent, cartoonist, news-photographer and proof-reader, but does not include any such person who--

(i) is employed mainly in a managerial or administrative capacity, or

(ii) being employed in a supervisory capacity, performs, either by the nature of the duties attached to his office or by reason of the powers vested in him, functions mainly of a managerial nature."

19. The Bombay High Court in Ballubhai Javerbhai Panchal Vs. Sandesh Limited and others, reported at 1997 SCC OnLine Bom 598, while considering the provisions of the Act of 1955 as well as the Industrial Disputes Act, 1947, held that to come within the ambit of "working journalist" as defined in the Act of 1955, the employee has to establish that his principal avocation is journalism.

20. It was thus duly proved by legal evidence before the labour court that the petitioner was not a full time journalist and that his principal avocation was teaching. Further the respondent no.2 was not his sole employer. With these facts conclusively established in the above said manner, the finding of the labour court that that petitioner does not fall within the ambit of "working journalist" as defined in the Act of 1955 cannot be faulted.

21. I also see merit in the submission of the learned Standing Counsel that the order dated 02.01.2019 only refused to non suit the petitioner in absence of evidence and allowing the parties to lead evidence and subsequent to 02.01.2019.

22. The issue whether the petitioner was a working journalist within the meaning of Section 2f of the Act of 1955, could be decided only after receiving complete evidence of parties. The order dated 02.01.2019 does not adjudicate the said issue in accordance with law as full evidence of parties had not been adduced till then. To treat the order dated 02.01.2019 as final, would preempt an adjudication on merits as per law and occasion a miscarriage of justice.

23. In wake of the preceding narrative, this Court finds no infirmity in the award passed by the learned labour court. 24. The writ petition is liable to be dismissed and is dismissed.

3. Pleadings in the petition indicate that proceedings under Section 4 of the UP PP Act were initiated against the petitioner and an order dated 30.6.1995 was passed by the prescribed authority for eviction and damages. Aggrieved against the aforesaid order, an appeal under Section 9 of the Act was filed before the District Judge, Firozabad which also came to be decided in terms of an order dated 21.12.2000 confirming the order of eviction whereas the order with regard to damages was set aside. It was at this stage, that the present writ petition was filed.

4. The issue which arises for determination is, therefore, as to whether an order passed in an appeal under the UP PP Act can be held to be a judicial order passed by a civil court and as to whether the same would be amenable to writ jurisdiction under Article 226.

5. Learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel has raised an objection with regard to the maintainability of the petition under Article 226 by pointing out that the order passed in appeal by the appellate officer under the UP PP Act is a judicial order passed by civil court and in view of the authoritative pronouncement made in the case of Radhey Shyam vs. Chhabi Nath2, the same would not be amenable to the writ jurisdiction under Article 226.

6. In order to appreciate the aforesaid contention, the relevant provisions of the UP PP Act would be required to be adverted to.

7. The UP Public Premises (Eviction of Unauthorised Occupants) Act, 1972 [Act no. 22 of 1972 dated 28 April, 1972] is an Act to provide for the eviction of unauthorised occupants from public premises and for certain incidental matters. The provisions of the aforesaid Act which would be relevant for the purposes of the controversy involved in the present case are extracted below:

"2.(b) "premises" means any land (including any forest land or trees standing thereon or covered by water or a road maintained by the State Government or land appurtenant to such road) or any building or part of a building and includes--

(ii) any premises acquired under the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 with the consent of the State Government for a company (as defined in that Act) and held by that company under an agreement executed under Section 41 of that Act providing for re-entry by the State Government in certain conditions.

4. Issue of notice to show-cause against order of eviction-- (1) If the prescribed authority, either of its own motion or on an application or report received on behalf of the State Government or the corporate authority, is of opinion that any persons are in unauthorised occupation of any public premises and that they should be evicted, the prescribed authority shall issue in the manner hereinafter provided a notice in writing calling upon all persons concerned to show cause why an order of eviction should not be made.

(2) The notice shall--

(a) specify the grounds on which the order of eviction is proposed to be made; and

(b) require all persons concerned that is to say, all persons who are, or may be, in occupation of, or claim interest in the public premises to show cause, if any, against the proposed order on or before such date as is specified in the notice being a date not earlier than ten days from the date of issue thereof.

(3) The prescribed authority shall cause the notice to be served either personally on all those persons concerned or by having it affixed on the outer door or some other conspicuous part of the public premises and in any other manner, provided in the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908.

(4) Where the prescribed authority knows or has reasons to believe that any persons are in occupation of the public premises, then, without prejudice to the provisions of sub-section (3), he shall cause a copy of the notice to be served on every such person by registered post or by delivering or tendering it to that person or in such other manner as may be prescribed.

5. Eviction of unauthorized occupants--(1) If, after considering the cause, if any, shown by any person in pursuance of a notice under Section 4 and any evidence he may produce in support of the same and after giving him a reasonable opportunity of being heard, the prescribed authority is satisfied that the public premises are in unauthorised occupation, the prescribed authority may make an order of eviction, for reason to be recorded therein, directing that the public premises shall be vacated, on such date as may be specified in the order, by all person who may be in occupation thereof, or any part thereof, and cause a copy of the order to be affixed to the outer door or some other conspicuous part of the public premises.

(2) If any person refuses or fails to comply with the order of eviction within thirty days of the date for its publication under sub-section (1), the prescribed authority or any other officer duly authorised by the prescribed authority in this behalf may evict that person from, and take possession of, the public premises and may, for that purpose, use such force, as may be necessary.

6. Disposal of property left on public premises by unauthorised occupants--(1) Where any person have been evicted from any public premises under Section 5, the prescribed authority may, after giving not less than fourteen days' notice to the persons from whom possession of the public premises has been taken and after publishing the notice in at least one newspaper having circulation in the locality, remove or cause to be removed or dispose of by public auction any property remaining on such premises, including any material of a demolished building or ungathered crop or fruits of trees.

(2) Where any property is sold under sub-section (1), the sale proceeds thereof shall, after deducting the expenses of the sale and the amount, if any, due to the State Government or the corporate authority, on account of arrears of rent or damages or costs, be paid to person or persons as may appear to the prescribed authority to be entitled to the same:

Provided that where the prescribed authority is unable to decide as to the person or persons to whom the balance of the amount is payable or as to the apportionment of the same, it may refer such dispute to the Civil Court of competent jurisdiction and the decision of the Court thereon shall be final.

7. Power to require payment of rent or damages in respect of public premises--(1)Where any person is in arrears of rent for four months payable in respect of any public premises, the prescribed authority may, by order, require that person to pay the same within such time and in such instalments as may be specified in the order, and on the failure of such person to pay the same or any instalment thereof, he shall be deemed to be in unauthorised occupation of the public premises.

(2) Where any person is, or at any time being, in unauthorised occupation of any public premises, the prescribed authority may, having regard to such principles of assessment of damages as may be prescribed, assess the amount of damages on account of the use and occupation of such premises and may by order, require that person to pay the amount within such time and in such instalments as may be specified in the order.

(3) No order under sub-section (1) or sub-section (2) shall be made against any person until after the issue of a notice in writing to the person calling upon him to show-cause within such time as may be specified in the notice, why such order should not be made, and until his objections, if any, and any evidence he may produce in support of the same have been considered by the prescribed authority.

8. Powers of prescribed authority--The prescribed authority and the appellate officer shall, for the purpose of holding any inquiry or hearing any appeal under this Act, have the same powers as are vested in a Civil Court under the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, when trying suit in respect of the following matters, namely--

(a) summoning and enforcing the attendance of any person and examining him on oath;

(b) requiring the discovery and production of documents;

(c) any other matter which may be prescribed.

9. Appeals--(1) An appeal shall lie from every order of the prescribed authority made in respect of any public premises under Section 5 or Section 7 to an appellate officer who shall be the District Judge of the District in which the public premises are situate or such other Judicial Officer not below the rank of Civil Judge as the District Judge may designate in this behalf.

(2) An appeal under sub-section (1) shall be preferred--

(a) in the case of an appeal from an order under Section 2, within fifteen days from the date of the publication of the order under sub-section (1) of that section; and

(b) in the case of an appeal from an order under Section 7, within fifteen days from the date on which the order is communicated to the appellant:

Provided that that the appellate officer may entertain the appeal after the expiry of the said period of fifteen days, if he is satisfied that appellant was prevented by sufficient cause from filing the appeal in time.

(3) Where an appeal is preferred from an order of the prescribed authority, the appellate officer may stay the enforcement of that order for such period and on such conditions as he deems fit.

(4) Every appeal under this section shall be disposed of by the appellate officer as expeditiously as possible.

(5) The cost of any appeal under this section shall be in the discretion of the appellate officer.

(6) The District Judge may withdraw any appeal pending with any judicial officer referred to in sub-section (1) and either dispose of the same or transfer it to any other judicial officer referred to in that sub-section.

10. Finality of orders--Save as otherwise expressly provided in this Act, every order made by a prescribed authority or appellate officer under this Act shall be final and shall not be called in question in any original suit, application or execution proceeding and no injunction shall be granted by any Court or other authority in respect of any action taken or to be taken in pursuance of any power conferred by or under this Act.

15. Bar of jurisdiction--No court shall have jurisdiction to entertain any suit or proceeding in respect of the eviction of any person who is in unauthorised occupation of any public premises or the recovery of the arrears of rent payable under sub-section (1) of Section 7 or the damages payable under sub-section (2) of that Section or the costs awarded to the State Government or the corporate authority under sub-section (5) of Section 9 or any portion of such rent, damages or costs."

8. It would also be relevant to take note of certain provisions under the Uttar Pradesh Public Premises (Eviction of Unauthorised Occupants) Rules, 19733. Rules 9, 10, 11, and 12 of the aforesaid Rules, 1973 are being reproduced below:

"9. Procedure of appeals: Sections 9 and 18 (2) (f)--(1) An appeal under Section 9 may be preferred by any person aggrieved by an order under Section 5 or Section 7.

(2) The appeal shall be preferred in the form of a memorandum signed by the appellant or his representative and be presented either in person or through such representative to the District Judge or to the munsarim of his court.

(3) Every such memorandum shall be accompanied by a copy of the order appealed against and shall set forth concisely and under district heads the grounds of objection and such grounds shall be numbered consecutively.

(4) On receipt of the appeal and after calling for and perusing the record of the proceedings before the prescribed authority, the appellate officer shall fix a date for the hearing of the appeal and shall give notice thereof to the prescribed authority against whose orders the appeal is preferred, as well as to the appellant.

10. Power under the Code of Civil Procedure 1908: Section 8 (c)--The prescribed authority or the appellate officer shall, for the purpose of holding an inquiry or hearing any appeal under the Act, shall have the same powers as are vested in the civil court under the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, when trying a suit, in respect of the following matters, namely--

(a) the power to dismiss an application or appeal for default and to restore it for sufficient cause:

(b) the power to proceed ex parte and set aside, for sufficient cause an order passed ex parte;

(c) the power to order attachment before judgement;

(d) the power referrred to in Section 151 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, to make any order for the ends of justice or to prevent the abuse of process of the authority concerned; and

(e) the power to accept affidavits in proceedings pending before him and to issue commissions in suitable cases.

11. Application for setting aside ex-parte orders and for restoration Section 18--The prescribed authority or the appellate officer, as the case may be, may for sufficient cause--

(a) set said an ex parte order made in proceedings under Section 5 or Section 7;

(b) restore an appeal arising out of the proceeding referred to in clause (a) where such appeal has been dismissed for default of appearance of the appellant or his counsel.

12. Limitation for application under Rule 10: Section 18--(1) An application under Rule 10 to set aside an order deciding an appeal or order or ex parte shall be made within thirty days from the date of such proceeding where the notice of such appeal or proceedings was not duly served, when the applicant or appellant, as the case may be, had knowledge of that order.

(2) An application under Rule 10 to restore and appeal or proceeding dismissed for default shall be made within thirty days from the date of such dismissal."

9. Section 8 of the UP PP Act which relates to powers of the prescribed authority provides that for the purpose of holding any enquiry or hearing in appeal under the Act, the prescribed authority and the appellate officer shall have the same powers as are vested in a civil court under the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 while trying a suit in respect of certain specified matters.

10. Section 9 of the Act which relates to appeals mandates that an appeal shall lie from every order of the prescribed authority made in respect of any public premises under Section 5 and 7 to an appellate officer who shall be the district judge of a district in which the public premises are situate or such other judicial officer not below the rank of a civil judge as the district judge may designate in this behalf. Sub-section (2) of Section 9 prescribes a time period of 15 days for filing the appeal and the proviso to the sub-section empowers the appellate officer to entertain the appeal after the expiry of the aforesaid period. In terms of sub-section (3), the appellate officer is empowered to grant stay of the enforcement of the order, subject to conditions as he may deem fit.

11. Section 10 provides for finality of orders and in terms thereof, every order made by a prescribed authority or appellate officer under the UP PP Act save as otherwise expressly provided for, shall be final and shall not be called in question in any original suit, application or execution proceeding and no injunction shall be granted by any court or other authority in respect of any action taken or to be taken in pursuance of any power provided under the Act.

12. Section 15 creates a bar on jurisdiction and it provides that no court shall have jurisdiction to entertain any suit or proceedings in respect of eviction of any person who is in unauthorised occupation of any public premises or the recovery of arrears of rent or damages or costs awarded payable under the relevant provisions of the Act.

13. In terms of Rule 10 of the Rules 1973, the prescribed authority or the appellate officer shall for the purpose of holding an enquiry or hearing any appeal, are to have same powers as are vested in the civil court under the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, while trying a suit in respect of matters specified therein.

14. Having regard to the scheme of the Act, it would be necessary to determine as to whether the District Judge/Appellate Officer exercising powers under Section 9 acts as a persona designata or as a civil court. In this regard, it would be relevant to bear in mind that where the authority has been created by a statute and is identified by an official designation, the provisions of the statute would have to be looked into to determine whether the legislative intent was to identify him as a persona designata with his official designation being a mere description.

15. The question as to whether the judicial authority constituted by the State Government under Section 6-C of the Essential Commodities Act, 1955, to hear appeals against orders of confiscation that may be passed by the licensing authority under Section 6-A, is not an inferior criminal court subordinate to the High Court and amenable to revisional jurisdiction under Section 435 read with Section 439 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, came up for consideration in the decision in Thakur Das Vs. State of M.P.4 While examining the question the court was required to consider whether the judicial authority appointed under Section 6-C of the said Act would be a persona designata, despite the fact that the said authority happens to be the Sessions Judge. It was noticed that while conferring power on the State government to appoint the appellate forum, the Parliament clearly manifested its intention as to who should be such Appellate Authority and by using expression "judicial authority" it was clearly indicated that the appellate authority must be one such pre-existing authority who was exercising judicial authority of the State and accordingly it was held that since the Sessions Judge is a Judge presiding over the Sessions Court and that is the appointed appellate authority, the conclusion is inescapable that he was not persona designata. It was observed as follows :-

"7. If the Sessions Judge presiding over the Sessions Court is the judicial authority, the question is: would it be an inferior criminal court subordinate to the High Court for the purposes of Sections 435 and 439 of the Criminal Procedure Code? At the one end of the spectrum the submission is that the judicial authority appointed under Section 6-C would be persona designata and that if by a fortuitous circumstance the appointed judicial authority happens to be the Sessions Judge, while entertaining and hearing an appeal under Section 6-C it would not be an inferior criminal court subordinate to the High Court and, therefore, no revision application can be entertained against his order by the High Court. While conferring power on the State Government to appoint appellate forum, the Parliament clearly manifested its intention as to who should be such Appellate Authority. The expression "judicial" qualifying the "authority" clearly indicates that that authority alone can be appointed to entertain and hear appeals under Section 6-C on which was conferred the judicial power of the State. The expression "judicial power of the State" has to be understood in contradistinction to executive power. The framers of the Constitution clearly envisaged courts to be the repository of the judicial power of the State. The Appellate Authority under Section 6-C must be a judicial authority. By using the expression "judicial authority" it was cleanly indicated that the Appellate Authority must be one such pre-existing authority which was exercising judicial power of the State. If any other authority as persona designata was to be constituted there was no purpose in qualifying the word "authority" by the specific adjective "judicial". A judicial authority exercising judicial power of the State is an authority having its own hierarchy of superior and inferior court, the law of procedure according to which it would dispose of matters coming before it depending upon the nature of jurisdiction exercised by it acting in judicial manner. In using the compact expression "judicial authority" the legislative intention is clearly manifested that from amongst several pre-existing authorities exercising judicial powers of the State and discharging judicial functions, one such may be appointed as would be competent to discharge the appellate functions as envisaged by Section 6-C. There is one in-built suggestion indicating who could be appointed. In the concept of appeal inheres hierarchy and the Appellate Authority broadly speaking would be higher than the authority against whose order the appeal can be entertained. Here the Appellate Authority would entertain appeal against the order of Collector, the highest revenue officer in a district. Sessions Judge is the highest judicial officer in the district and this situation would provide material for determining Appellate Authority. In this connection the legislative history may throw some light on what the legislature intended by using the expression "judicial authority". The Defence of India Rules, 1962, conferred power on certain authorities to seize essential commodities under certain circumstances. Against the seizure an appeal was provided to the State Government whose order was made final. By the Amending Act 25 of 1966 Sections 6-A to 6-D were introduced in the Act. This introduced a basic change in one respect, namely, that an order of confiscation being penal in character, the person on whom penalty is imposed is given an opportunity of approaching a judicial authority. Earlier appeal from executive officer would lie to another executive forum. The change is appeal to judicial authority. Therefore, the expression clearly envisages a pre-existing judicial authority has to be appointed Appellate Authority under Section 6-C. When the provision contained in Section 6-C is examined in the background of another provision made in the order itself it would become further distinctly clear that pre-existing judicial authority was to be designated as Appellate Authority under Section 6-C. A seizure of essential commodity on the allegation that the relevant licensing order is violated, would incur three penalties: (1) cancellation of licence; (2) forfeiture of security deposit; and (3) confiscation of seized essential commodity, apart from any prosecution that may be launched under Section 7. In respect of the first two penalties an appeal lies to the State Government but in respect of the third though prior to the introduction of Section 6-C an appeal would lie to the State Government, a distinct departure is made in providing an appellate forum which must qualify for the description and satisfy the test of judicial authority. Therefore, when the Sessions Judge was appointed a judicial authority it could not be said that he was persona designata and was not functioning as a court.

8. Sections 7 and 9 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, envisage division of the State into various Sessions Divisions and setting up of Sessions Court for each such division, and further provides for appointment of a Judge to preside over that court. The Sessions Judge gets his designation as Sessions Judge as he presides over the Sessions Court and thereby enjoys the powers and discharges the functions conferred by the Code. Therefore, even if the judicial authority appointed under Section 6-C is the Sessions Judge it would only mean the Judge presiding over the Sessions Court and discharging the functions of that court. If by the Sessions Judge is meant the Judge presiding over the Sessions Court and that is the appointed Appellate Authority, the conclusion is inescapable that he was not persona designata which expression is understood to mean a person pointed out or described as an individual as opposed to a person ascertained as a member of a class or as filling a particular character (vide Central Talkies Ltd. v. Dwarka Prasad [AIR 1961 SC 606 : (1961) 3 SCR 495 : (1961) 1 Cri LJ 740] and Ram Chandra v. State of U.P. [AIR 1966 SC 1888 : 1966 Supp SCR 393 : 1966 Cri LJ 1514])."

16. Taking a similar view in the context of District Judges functioning as appellate authorities under the Kerala Rent Control Act, in Mukri Gopalan Vs. Cheppilat Puthanpurayil Aboobacker5, a view was taken that where District Judges are appointed as appellate authorities under the provisions of a statute they constitute a class and cannot be regarded as persona designata. The decisions in the case of Central Talkies Ltd. Vs. Dwarka Prasad6 and Parthasaradhi Naidu v. Koteswara Rao7 were referred, and it was observed as follows :-

"7. As noted earlier the appellate authority, namely the District Judge, Thallassery has taken the view that since he is a persona designata he cannot resort to Section 5 of the Limitation Act for condoning the delay in filing appeal before him. So far as this reasoning of the appellate authority is concerned Mr Nariman, learned counsel for respondent fairly stated that he does not support this reasoning and it is not his say that the appellate authority exercising powers under Section 18 of the Rent Act is a persona designata. In our view the said fair stand taken by learned counsel for respondent is fully justified. It is now well settled that an authority can be styled to be persona designata if powers are conferred on a named person or authority and such powers cannot be exercised by anyone else. The scheme of the Act to which we have referred earlier contraindicates such appellate authority to be a persona designata. It is clear that the appellate authority constituted under Section 18(1) has to decide lis between parties in a judicial manner and subject to the revision of its order, the decision would remain final between the parties. Such an authority is constituted by designation as the District Judge of the district having jurisdiction over the area over which the said Act has been extended. It becomes obvious that even though the District Judge concerned might retire or get transferred or may otherwise cease to hold the office of the District Judge his successor-in-office can pick up the thread of the proceedings from the stage where it was left by his predecessor and can function as an appellate authority under Section 18. If the District Judge was constituted as an appellate authority being a persona designata or as a named person being the appellate authority as assumed in the present case, such a consequence, on the scheme of the Act would not follow. In this connection, it is useful to refer to a decision of this Court in the case of Central Talkies Ltd. v. Dwarka Prasad [AIR 1961 SC 606 : (1961) 1 Cri LJ 740]. In that case Hidayatullah, J. speaking for the Court had to consider whether Additional District Magistrate empowered under Section 10(2) of Criminal Procedure Code to exercise powers of District Magistrate was a persona designata. Repelling the contention that he was a persona designata the learned Judge made the following pertinent observations:

"9. A persona designata is "a person who is pointed out or described as an individual, as opposed to a person ascertained as a member of a class, or as filling a particular character'. (See Osborn's Concise Law Dictionary, 4th Edn., p. 253). In the words of Schwabe, C.J. in Parthasaradhi Naidu v. Koteswara Rao [ILR (1924) 47 Mad 369 : AIR 1924 Mad 561 (FB)] , personae designatae are "persons selected to act in their private capacity and not in their capacity as Judges'. The same consideration applies also to a well-known officer like the District Magistrate named by virtue of his office, and whose powers the Additional District Magistrate can also exercise and who can create other officers equal to himself for the purposes of the Eviction Act. The decision of Sapru, J. in the Allahabad case, with respect, was erroneous."

Applying the said test to the facts of the present case it becomes obvious that appellate authorities as constituted under Section 18 of the Rent Act being the District Judges they constituted a class and cannot be considered to be persona designata." (emphasis supplied)

17. The exposition of law, made as a consequence, in Mukri Gopalan case, was that once it is held that the appellate authority is not a persona designata, it becomes obvious that it functions as a court. Referring to an earlier decision in Brajnandan Sinha Vs. Jyoti Narain8, it was observed that the tests for determining whether an authority is functioning as a court, in the strict sense of the term, an essential condition is that the court should have, apart from trappings of a judicial tribunal, power to give a decision or a definitive judgment which has finality and authoritativeness. Further, placing reliance upon the decision in Virindar Kumar Satyawadi Vs. State of Punjab9, it was stated that what distinguishes a court from a quasi-judicial tribunal is that it is charged with a duty to decide disputes in a judicial manner and declare the rights of parties in a definitive judgment. It was observed as follows : (Mukri Gopalan case, SCC pp. 14-15, para 8).

"8. Once it is held that the appellate authority functioning under Section 18 of the Rent Act is not a persona designata, it becomes obvious that it functions as a court. In the present case all the District Judges having jurisdiction over the areas within which the provisions of the Rent Act have been extended are constituted as appellate authorities under Section 18 by the Government notification noted earlier. These District Judges have been conferred the powers of the appellate authorities. It becomes therefore, obvious that while adjudicating upon the dispute between the landlord and tenant and while deciding the question whether the Rent Control Court's order is justified or not such appellate authorities would be functioning as courts. The test for determining whether the authority is functioning as a court or not has been laid down by a series of decisions of this Court. We may refer to one of them, in the case of Thakur Jugal Kishore Sinha v. Sitamarhi Central Coop. Bank Ltd. [(1967) 3 SCR 163 : AIR 1967 SC 1494] In that case this Court was concerned with the question whether the Assistant Registrar of Cooperative Societies functioning under Section 48 of the Bihar and Orissa Cooperative Societies Act, 1935 was a court subordinate to the High Court for the purpose of Contempt of Courts Act, 1952. While answering the question in the affirmative, a Division Bench of this Court speaking through Mitter, J. placed reliance amongst others on the observations found in the case of Brajnandan Sinha v. Jyoti Narain [(1955) 2 SCR 955 : AIR 1956 SC 66] wherein it was observed as under:

"It is clear, therefore, that in order to constitute a court in the strict sense of the term, an essential condition is that the court should have, apart from having some of the trappings of a judicial tribunal, power to give a decision or a definitive judgment which has finality and authoritativeness which are the essential tests of a judicial pronouncement."

Reliance was also placed on another decision of this court in the case of Virindar Kumar Satyawadi v. State of Punjab [(1955) 2 SCR 1013 : AIR 1956 SC 153]. Following observations found (at SCR p. 1018) therein were pressed in service:

"It may be stated broadly that what distinguishes a court from a quasi-judicial tribunal is that it is charged with a duty to decide disputes in a judicial manner and declares the rights of parties in a definitive judgment. To decide in a judicial manner involves that the parties are entitled as a matter of right to be heard in support of their claim and to adduce evidence in proof of it. And it also imports an obligation on the part of the authority to decide the matter on a consideration of the evidence adduced and in accordance with law. When a question therefore arises as to whether an authority created by an Act is a court as distinguished from a quasi-judicial tribunal, what has to be decided is whether having regard to the provisions of the Act it possesses all the attributes of a court."

When the aforesaid well settled tests for deciding whether an authority is a court or not are applied to the powers and functions of the appellate authority constituted under Section 18 of the Rent Act, it becomes obvious that all the aforesaid essential trappings to constitute such an authority as a court are found to be present..."

18. A similar question with regard to the position of District Judge exercising powers under Section 32 of the State Financial Corporation, 1951 and as to whether the Act confers jurisdiction on the District Judge as persona designata was subject matter of consideration in Asnew Drums Pvt. Ltd. Vs. Maharashtra State Finance Corporation10, and it was opined that the legislative intent was clear that the District Judge was not a persona designata. It was stated thus :-

"9. The question which really arises is whether by using the words "in the manner provided in the Code of Civil Procedure" in Section 32(8) the legislature intended to include the provisions in the Code dealing with appeals. There is no doubt that under the Code of Civil Procedure an order setting aside or refusing to set aside a sale in execution of a decree is appealable under Order LXIII, Rule 1(j). It is difficult to understand why the scope of the language should be cut down by not including appeals provided under the Code of Civil Procedure within the ambit of the words "in the manner provided in the Code of Civil Procedure". "Manner" means method of procedure and to provide for an appeal is to provide for a mode of procedure. The State Financial Corporation lends huge amounts and we cannot for a moment imagine that it was the intention of the legislature to make the order of sale of property, passed by the District Judge, final and only subject to an appeal to the Supreme Court under Article 136 of the Constitution.

10. The learned counsel for the respondents contended that, wherever the legislature wanted to provide for an appeal to the High Court, it did so specifically. In this connection he pointed out that sub-section (9) of Section 32 provided that "any party aggrieved by an order under sub-section (5) or sub-section (7) may, within thirty days from the date of the order, appeal to the High Court, and upon such appeal the High Court may, after hearing the parties, pass such orders thereon as it thinks proper". It is true that an appeal has been expressly provided in this case but the reason for this is that if there had been no specific provision in sub-section (9), no appeal would lie otherwise because it is not provided in sub-section (5) or sub-section (7) that the District Judge should proceed in the manner provided in the Code of Civil Procedure.

11. We are not impressed by the argument that the Act confers jurisdiction on the District Judge as persona designata because sub-section (11) of Section 32 provides that "the functions of a district judge under this section shall be exercisable (a) in a presidency town, where there is a city civil court having jurisdiction, by a judge of that Court and in the absence of such Court, by the High Court; and (b) elsewhere, also by an additional district judge". These provisions clearly show that the District Judge is not a persona designata."

19. The question as to whether the District Judge would be a persona designata in the context of the powers conferred under the State Financial Corporation Act, 1951, again came up for consideration in Maharashtra State Financial Corporation Vs. Jaycee Drugs & Pharmaceuticals (P) Ltd.11, and it was reiterated that where special statute confers jurisdiction on District Judge, the District Judge was not a persona designata but was a court of ordinary civil jurisdiction to which rules of procedure under the Code would apply. Referring to earlier decisions in Central Talkies Ltd. Kanpur Vs. Dwarka Prasad6, National Sewing Thread Co. Ltd. Vs. James Chadwick & Bros. Ltd.12 and the observations made by Viscount Haldane L.C. in National Telephone Co. Ltd. Vs. Postmaster-General13 and also the decisions in Adaikappa Chettiar Vs. R. Chandrasekhara Thevar14 and Secretary of State for India Vs. Chellikani Rama Rao15, it was observed as follows :-

"26. We may now state our reasons for holding that even if Section 46-B of the Act was not there the provisions of the Code for the execution of a decree against a surety who had given only personal guarantee would, in the absence of any provision to the contrary in the Act, be applicable. In view of the decision of this Court in Central Talkies Ltd., Kanpur v. Dwarka Prasad [(1961) 3 SCR 495 : AIR 1961 SC 606] , where it was held that a persona designata is a person selected as an individual in his private capacity, and not in his capacity as filling a particular character or office, since the term used in Section 31(1) of the Act is "District Judge" it cannot be doubted that the District Judge is not a persona designata but a court of ordinary civil jurisdiction while exercising jurisdiction under Sections 31 and 32 of the Act. In National Sewing Thread Co. Ltd. v. James Chadwick & Bros. Ltd. [1953 SCR 1028 : AIR 1953 SC 357] while repelling the objection that an appeal under the Letters Patent against the judgment of a Single Judge passed in an appeal against the decision of the Registrar under Section 76(1) of the Trade Marks Act, 1940 was not maintainable it was held at pages 1033-34 of the Report: (SCR pp. 1033-34)

"Obviously after the appeal had reached the High Court it has to be determined according to the rules of practice and procedure of that court and in accordance with the provisions of the charter under which that court is constituted and which confers on it power in respect to the method and manner of exercising that jurisdiction. The rule is well settled that when a statute directs that an appeal shall lie to a court already established, then that appeal must be regulated by the practice and procedure of that court. This rule was very succinctly stated by Viscount Haldane L.C. in National Telephone

Co. Ltd. v. Postmaster-General [1913 AC 546 : 82 LJKB 1197] , in these terms:--

"When a question is stated to be referred to an established court without more, it, in my opinion, imports that the ordinary incidents of the procedure of that court are to attach, and also that any general right of appeal from its decision likewise attaches.'

The same view was expressed by their Lordships of the Privy Council in Adaikappa Chettiar v. R. Chandrasekhara Thevar [(1947) 74 IA 264 : AIR 1948 PC 12] , wherein it was said:

"Were a legal right is in dispute and the ordinary courts of the country are seized of such dispute the courts are governed by the ordinary rules of procedure applicable thereto and an appeal lies if authorised by such rules, notwithstanding that the legal right claimed arises under a special statute which does not, in terms confer a right of appeal.'

Again in Secretary of State for India v. Chellikani Rama Rao [AIR 1916 PC 21 : ILR (1916) 39 Mad 617] , when dealing with the case under the Madras Forest Act their Lordships observed as follows:

"It was contended on behalf of the appellant that all further proceedings in courts in India or by way of appeal were incompetent, these being excluded by the terms of the statute just quoted. In their Lordships' opinion this objection is not well founded. Their view is that when proceedings of this character reach the District Court, that court is appealed to as one of the ordinary courts of the country, with regard to whose procedure, orders, and decrees the ordinary rules of the Civil Procedure Code apply..." (emphasis supplied)

20. The distinction between a persona designata and a legal tribunal was considered in earlier decision in Ram Chandra Aggarwal and another Vs. State of Uttar Pradesh and another16, and referring to the observations made by Lord Atkinson and also the decision in Central Talkies Ltd. Vs. Dwarika Prasad6 and Chatur Mohan Vs. Ram Behari Dixit17, it was observed that where a special or local statute refers to a constituted court as a court and does not refer to the presiding officer of that court the reference cannot be said to be to a persona designata. The meaning given to the expression "persona designata" in Osborn's Concise Law Dictionary18 as "a person who is pointed out or described as an individual, as opposed to a person ascertained as a member of a class, or as filling a particular character" was also referred to. The relevant observations made in the judgment in this regard are as follows :-

"3. In Balakrishna Udayar v. Vasudeva Aiyar [44 IA 261] Lord Atkinson has, pointed out the difference between a persona designata and a legal tribunal. The difference is this that the "determination of a persona designata are not to be treated as judgments of a legal tribunal". In the Central Talkies Ltd. v. Dwarka Prasad [(1961) 3 SCR 495, at pp 500-501] this Court has accepted the meaning given to the expression persona designata in Osborn's Concise Law Dictionary, 4th Edn. p. 263 as "a person who is pointed out or described as an individual, as opposed to a person ascertained as a member of a class, or as filling a particular character". Section 146(1) CrPC empowers a Magistrate to refer the question as to whether any, and if so, which of the parties was in possession of the subject-matter of dispute as the relevant point of time to a civil court of competent jurisdiction. The power is not to refer the matter to the presiding Judge of a particular civil court but to a court. When a special or local law provides for an adjudication to be made by a constituted court -- that is, by a court not created by a special or local law but to an existing court -- it in fact enlarges the ordinary jurisdiction of such a court. Thus where a special or local statute refers to a constituted court as a court and does not refer to the presiding officer of that court the reference cannot be said to be to a persona designata. This question is well settled. It is, therefore, unnecessary to say anything more on this part of the case except that cases dealing with the point have been well summarised in the recent decision in Chatur Mohan v. Ram Behari Dixit [1964 All LJ 256]." (emphasis supplied)

21. A question as to whether the order passed by the City Civil Court exercising powers under Section 9 of the Public Premises (Eviction of Unauthorised Occupants) Act, 1971, as an Appellate Officer, is in the capacity of a civil court or persona designata was subject matter of consideration in Life Insurance Corporation of India Vs. Nandini J.Shah and others19, and upon an extensive consideration of a legal position, it was concluded that the Appellate Officer referred to in Section 9 of that Act, is not a persona designata but acts as a civil court, and against an order passed by the Appellate Officer the remedy under Article 227 of the Constitution of India can be availed. It was stated thus :-

"58. In other words, the Appellate Officer while exercising power under Section 9 of the 1971 Act, does not act as a persona designata but in his capacity as a pre-existing judicial authority in the district (being a District Judge or judicial officer possessing essential qualification designated by the District Judge). Being part of the district judiciary, the judge acts as a court and the order passed by him will be an order of the subordinate court against which remedy under Article 227 of the Constitution of India can be availed on the matters delineated for exercise of such jurisdiction."

22. Reverting to the facts of the present case, under the scheme of the UP PP Act the powers to be exercised by the Appellate Officer, for the purpose of holding an enquiry or hearing any appeal under the Act, as per Section 8, has been stated to be the same powers as are vested in a civil court under the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 when trying a suit in respect of certain specified matters.

23. Section 9 of the UP PP Act provides that an appeal shall lie from every order of the prescribed authority made in respect of any public premises under Section 5 and 7, to an Appellate Officer, who shall be the District Judge of a district in which the public premises are situate or such other judicial officer not below the rank of a civil judge as the District Judge may designate in this behalf. Thus, as the Act predicates the Appellate Officer is to be a District Judge or such other judicial officer not below the rank of a civil judge as the District Judge may designate in this behalf, it is clearly indicative of the fact that only a pre-existing authority exercising judicial power of the State can be designated as an Appellate Officer.

24. The constitution of Civil Courts, in the State of Uttar Pradesh, is provided for under Chapter II of the Bengal, Agra and Assam Civil Courts Act, 1887, and Section 3 thereof, as applicable in the State of U.P., which provides for the classes of civil courts, reads as follows :-

"3. Classes of Courts.- There shall be the following classes of Civil Courts under this Act, namely:

(1) The Court of the District Judge;
(2) The Court of the Additional Judge;
(3) The Court of the Civil Judge; and
(4) The Court of the Munsif"

25. For the purposes of the Civil Procedure Code, the subordination of Courts is provided under Section 3 of the Code and the same is as follows :-

"3. Subordination of Courts.--For the purposes of this Code, the District Court is subordinate to the High Court, and every Civil Court of a grade inferior to that of a District Court and every Court of Small Causes is subordinate to the High Court and District Court."

26. It would be worthwhile to take note that the judicial power of the State is exercised by establishment of hierarchy of courts, to decide disputes between its subjects and the subjects and state. The powers, which these courts exercise, are judicial powers; the functions, which they discharge, are the judicial functions; and the decisions, which they reach and pronounce, are judicial decisions.

27. The District Judge having been constituted as a civil court, exercises judicial powers of the State and is an authority having its own hierarchy of superior and inferior courts, and the law of procedure according to which it is empowered to dispose of matters coming before it depending upon the nature of jurisdiction exercised by it, acting in judicial manner. The District Judge is the officer presiding over the court of the District Judge and derives his designation from the nomenclature of the Court. The District Judge or such other judicial officer not below the rank of a civil judge as the District Judge may designate in this behalf constitute a class and cannot be considered as persona designata.

28. The Appellate Officer is required to function as a court, and every order passed by the Appellate Officer has been accorded finality in terms of Section 10 of the UP PP Act. The legislative scheme of the Act and the intent behind providing a forum of appeal under Section 9 before the Appellate Officer, who is to be the District Judge of the District in which the public premises are situate or such other judicial officer not below the rank of civil judge, to be designated by the District Judge for that purpose, is clearly indicative of the legislative intent that the power to be exercised by the Appellate Officer is not as a persona designata but as a judicial officer of a pre-existing court. This leads to inference that the Appellate Officer, while deciding an appeal under Section 9, would exercise powers of a civil court.

29. The Appellate Officer, while exercising powers under Section 9 of the UP PP Act does not act as a persona designata but in his capacity as a pre-existing judicial authority in the district -- a District Judge or a judicial officer not below the rank of civil judge, as may be designated by the District Judge or the designated Civil Judge. Being part of the district judiciary, the judge acts as a court and the order which is to be passed, would be an order of the civil court.

30. The interplay of Section 9 of the UP PP Act in juxtaposition with the other provisions of the Act also makes it clear that the jurisdiction exercised by the Appellate Officer, namely the District Judge, or the judicial officer designated, as the case may be, is in his capacity as a civil court and not persona designata. The Appellate Officer is a creation of the statute and has been identified by an official designation as one of a class -- a pre-existing authority exercising judicial power of the State. It is an authority having its own hierarchy of superior and inferior court, the law of procedure according to which it would dispose of matters coming before it depending upon the nature of jurisdiction exercised by it acting in a judicial manner.

31. The Appellate Officer having been specified to be a District Judge of the district in which the public premises are situate or such other designated judicial officer, the conclusion is inescapable that he is not persona designata, which expression is understood to mean a person pointed out or described as an individual as opposed to a person ascertained as a member of a class or as filling a particular character. An authority can be styled to be persona designata if powers are conferred on a named person or authority and such powers cannot be exercised by anyone else. Personae designatae are persons selected to act in their private capacity and not in their capacity as Judges.

32. In a situation where even though the authority constituted, retires or gets transferred or otherwise ceases to hold the office, his successor-in-office can pick up the thread of the proceedings from the stage where it was left by his predecessor and can function, the designated authority cannot be held to be a persona designata. A persona designata would therefore be a person who is pointed out or described as an individual, as opposed to a person ascertained as a member of a class, or as filling a particular character.

33. The test for determining whether the authority is functioning as a court or not, as per the settled legal position, would be that in order to constitute a court in the strict sense of the term, an essential condition is that the court should have, apart from trappings of a judicial tribunal, power to give a decision or a definitive judgment which has finality and authoritativeness, which are essentials of a judicial pronouncement. Broadly stated what distinguishes a court from a quasi-judicial tribunal is that it is charged with a duty to decide disputes in a judicial manner and to declare the rights of parties in a definitive judgment.

34. Applying the aforestated tests, in the context of the provisions of the UP PP Act, it follows that the Appellate Officers described under Section 9, being District Judges or such other designated judicial officers, constitute a class and cannot be considered to be personae designatae.

35. Section 9 provides for a forum of appeal against every order of the prescribed authority, before the District Judge or such other designated judicial officer, who is a pre-existing authority within the hierarchy of courts, discharging judicial power of the State, and have been expressly conferred power to condone the delay in filing of the appeal and also to grant interim relief during the pendency of the appeal. The designation though having been made as an Appellate Officer, the District Judge, for the purposes of deciding of an appeal under Section 9, therefore is to be held to exercise powers of the civil court.

36. The question as to whether judicial orders of a civil court would be amenable to writ jurisdiction under Article 226 came up for consideration in the case of Radhey Shyam vs. Chhabi Nath2, upon a reference made by a two-Judge Bench of the Supreme Court in terms of an order dated April 15, 2009 in Radhey Shyam and Another vs. Chhabi Nath and Others20.

37. The two-Judge Bench in the case of Radhey Shyam (supra) took notice of an earlier Constitution Bench decision in the case of Sohan Lal vs. Union of India21, wherein it was held that a writ of mandamus or an order in the nature of mandamus is not to be made against a private individual and also a subsequent three-Judge Bench decision in Mohd. Hanif vs. State of Assam22, expressing the general principle that the jurisdiction of the High Court under Article 226 is extraordinary in nature and is not to be exercised for the purpose of declaring private rights of the parties. Reference was also made to the decision in Hindustan Steel Ltd. vs. Kalyani Banerjee23, wherein it was held that proceedings by way of writ were not appropriate in a case where the decision of the court would amount to a decree declaring a party's title and ordering restoration of possession.

38. The law laid down in the nine-Judge Constitution Bench in the case of Naresh Shridhar Mirajkar vs. State of Maharashtra24, was also referred, wherein after considering the history of writ of certiorari and various English and Indian decisions, a conclusion was drawn that "certiorari does not lie to quash the judgements of inferior courts of civil jurisdiction". The decision in the case of Naresh Shridhar Mirajkar was also seen to have drawn a distinction between judicial orders of inferior courts of civil jurisdiction and orders of inferior tribunals or courts which are not civil courts and which cannot pass judicial orders.

39. Expressing inability to agree with the legal proposition laid down by a two-Judge Bench in the earlier decision in the case of Surya Dev Rai vs. Ram Chander Rai25, to the effect that judicial orders passed by civil courts can be examined and then corrected/reversed by the writ court under Article 226 in exercise of its power under a writ of certiorari, the two-Judge Bench in the case of Radhey Shyam (supra) made a reference by observing as follows:

"26. The two-Judge Bench in Surya Dev Rai did not, as obviously it could not overrule the ratio in Mirajkar, a Constitution Bench decision of a nine-Judge Bench. But the learned Judges justified their different view in Surya Dev Rai, inter alia on the ground that the law relating to certiorari changed both in England and in India. In support of that opinion, the learned Judges held that the statement of law in Halsbury, on which the ratio in Mirajkar is based, has been changed and in support of that quoted paras 103 and 109 from Halsbury's Laws of England, 4th Edn. (Reissue), Vol. 1(1). Those paras are set out below:

"103. The prerogative remedies of certiorari, prohibition and mandamus: historical development.--Historically, prohibition was a writ whereby the royal courts of common law prohibited other courts from entertaining matters falling within the exclusive jurisdiction of the common law courts; certiorari was issued to bring the record of an inferior court into the King's Bench for review or to remove indictments for trial in that court; mandamus was directed to inferior courts and tribunals, and to public officers and bodies, to order the performance of a public duty. All three were called prerogative writs;

109. The nature of certiorari and prohibition.--Certiorari lies to bring decisions of an inferior court, tribunal, public authority or any other body of persons before the High Court for review so that the court may determine whether they should be quashed, or to quash such decisions. The order of prohibition is an order issuing out of the High Court and directed to an inferior court or tribunal or public authority which forbids that court or tribunal or authority to act in excess of its jurisdiction or contrary to law. Both certiorari and prohibition are employed for the control of inferior courts, tribunals and public authorities."

The aforesaid paragraphs are based on general principles which are older than the time when Mirajkar was decided are still good. Those principles nowhere indicate that judgments of an inferior civil court of plenary jurisdiction are amenable to correction by a writ of certiorari. In any event, change of law in England cannot dilute the binding nature of the ratio in Mirajkar and which has not been overruled and is holding the field for decades.

27. It is clear from the law laid down in Mirajkar in para 63 that a distinction has been made between judicial orders of inferior courts of civil jurisdiction and orders of inferior tribunals or court which are not civil courts and which cannot pass judicial orders. Therefore, judicial orders passed by civil courts of plenary jurisdiction stand on a different footing in view of the law pronounced in para 63 in Mirajkar. The passage in the subsequent edition of Halsbury (4th Edn.) which has been quoted in Surya Dev Rai does not show at all that there has been any change in law on the points in issue pointed out above.

30. ... this Court unfortunately is in disagreement with the view which has been expressed in Surya Dev Rai insofar as correction of or any interference with judicial orders of civil court by a writ of certiorari is concerned.

31. Under Article 227 of the Constitution, the High Court does not issue a writ of certiorari. Article 227 of the Constitution vests the High Courts with a power of superintendence which is to be very sparingly exercised to keep tribunals and courts within the bounds of their authority. Under Article 227, orders of both civil and criminal courts can be examined only in very exceptional cases when manifest miscarriage of justice has been occasioned. Such power, however, is not to be exercised to correct a mistake of fact and of law.

32. The essential distinctions in the exercise of power between Articles 226 and 227 are well known and pointed out in Surya Dev Rai and with that we have no disagreement. But we are unable to agree with the legal proposition laid down in Surya Dev Rai that judicial orders passed by a civil court can be examined and then corrected/reversed by the writ court under Article 226 in exercise of its power under a writ of certiorari. We are of the view that the aforesaid proposition laid down in Surya Dev Rai, is contrary to the ratio in Mirajkar and the ratio in Mirajkar has not been overruled in *Rupa Ashok Hurra v. Ashok Hurra*26.

33. In view of our difference of opinion with the views expressed in Surya Dev Rai, matter may be placed before His Lordship the Hon'ble the Chief Justice of India for constituting a larger Bench, to consider the correctness or otherwise of the law laid down in Surya Dev Rai on the question discussed above."

40. Upon the reference having been made the question which was considered by the three-Judge Bench in the case of Radhey Shyam vs. Chhabi Nath2, was stated as follows :-

"5. Thus, the question to be decided is: whether the view taken in Surya Dev Rai, that a writ lies under Article 226 of the Constitution against the order of the civil court, which has been doubted in the reference order, is the correct view?"

41. The decision of the three-Judge Bench in the case of Radhey Shyam (supra) took notice of the nine-Judge Constitution Bench judgement in the case of Naresh Shridhar Mirajkar, wherein a judicial order of the High Court was challenged as being violative of fundamental rights and the court by majority held that a judicial order of a competent court could not violate a fundamental right, and even if, there was incidental violation it could not be held to be violative of the fundamental right. The following observations were made (Mirajkar24 case, AIR p. 11, para 38):

"38. The argument that the impugned order affects the fundamental rights of the petitioners under Article 19(1), is based on a complete misconception about the true nature and character of judicial process and of judicial decisions. When a Judge deals with matters brought before him for his adjudication, he first decides questions of fact on which the parties are at issue, and then applies the relevant law to the said facts. Whether the findings of fact recorded by the Judge are right or wrong, and whether the conclusion of law drawn by him suffers from any infirmity, can be considered and decided if the party aggrieved by the decision of the Judge takes the matter up before the appellate court. But it is singularly inappropriate to assume that a judicial decision pronounced by a Judge of competent jurisdiction in or in relation to a matter brought before him for adjudication can affect the fundamental rights of the citizens under Article 19(1). What the judicial decision purports to do is to decide the controversy between the parties brought before the court and nothing more. If this basic and essential aspect of the judicial process is borne in mind, it would be plain that the judicial verdict pronounced by court in or in relation to a matter brought before it for its decision cannot be said to affect the fundamental rights of citizens under Article 19(1)."

42. Referring to Halsbury's Laws of England, 3rd Edition, Vol. 1127 and also the observations made in Kemp vs. Balne28 and by Wrottesley, L.J. in Rex vs. Chancellor of St. Edmundsbury and Ipswich Diocese, Ex Parte White29, it was observed as follows (Mirajkar case24, AIR p.18-19, paras 63-64):

"63. Whilst we are dealing with this aspect of the matter, we may incidentally refer to the relevant observations made by Halsbury on this point. "In the case of judgments of inferior courts of civil jurisdiction", says Halsbury in the footnote,

"it has been suggested that certiorari might be granted to quash them for want of jurisdiction (Kemp v. Balne, Dow & L at p. 887), inasmuch as an error did not lie upon that ground. But there appears to be no reported case in which the judgment of an inferior Court of civil jurisdiction has been quashed on certiorari, either for want of jurisdiction or on any other ground".

The ultimate proposition is set out in the terms: "Certiorari does not lie to quash the judgments of inferior courts of civil jurisdiction". These observations would indicate that in England the judicial orders passed by civil courts of plenary jurisdiction in or in relation to matters brought before them are not held to be amenable to the jurisdiction to issue writs of certiorari.

64. In Rex v. Chancellor of St. Edmundsbury and Ipswich Diocese, Ex parte White, the question which arose was whether certiorari would lie from the Court of King's Bench to an ecclesiastical court; and the answer rendered by the court was that certiorari would not lie against the decision of an ecclesiastical court. In dealing with this question, Wrottesley, L.J. has elaborately considered the history of the writ jurisdiction and has dealt with the question about the meaning of the word "inferior' as applied to courts of law in England in discussing the problem as to the issue of the writ in regard to decisions of certain courts. "The more this matter was investigated", says Wrottesley, L.J.,

"the clearer it became that the word "inferior" as applied to courts of law in England had been used with at least two very different meanings. If, as some assert, the question of inferiority is determined by ascertaining whether the court in question can be stopped from exceeding its jurisdiction by a writ of prohibition issuing from the King's Bench, then not only the ecclesiastical courts, but also palatine courts and admiralty courts are inferior courts. But there is another test, well recognised by lawyers, by which to distinguish a superior from an inferior court, namely, whether in its proceedings, and in particular in its judgments, it must appear that the court was acting within its jurisdiction. This is the characteristic of an inferior court, whereas in the proceedings of a superior court it will be presumed that it acted within its jurisdiction unless the contrary should appear either on the face of the proceedings or aliunde".

Mr Sen relied upon this decision to show that even the High Court of Bombay can be said to be an inferior court for the purpose of exercising jurisdiction by this Court under Article 32(2) to issue a writ of certiorari in respect of the impugned order passed by it. We are unable to see how this decision can support Mr Sen's contentions."

43. The three-Judge Bench in the case of Radhey Shyam (supra), extensively referring to the legal position on the scope of writ of certiorari concluded that orders of civil court stand on different footing from the orders of authorities or tribunals or courts other than judicial/civil courts. It held that the expression "inferior court" is not referable to judicial courts and accordingly judicial orders of civil courts are not amenable to a writ of certiorari under Article 226 and a writ of mandamus does not lie against a private person not discharging any public duty. It was also held that the scope of Article 227 is different from Article 226. It was observed as follows:

"25. ... Courts are set up under the Constitution or the laws. All the courts in the jurisdiction of a High Court are subordinate to it and subject to its control and supervision under Article 227. Writ jurisdiction is constitutionally conferred on all the High Courts. Broad principles of writ jurisdiction followed in England are applicable to India and a writ of certiorari lies against patently erroneous or without jurisdiction orders of tribunals or authorities or courts other than judicial courts. There are no precedents in India for the High Courts to issue writs to the subordinate courts. Control of working of the subordinate courts in dealing with their judicial orders is exercised by way of appellate or revisional powers or power of superintendence under Article 227. Orders of the civil court stand on different footing from the orders of authorities or tribunals or courts other than judicial/civil courts. While appellate or revisional jurisdiction is regulated by the statutes, power of superintendence under Article 227 is constitutional. The expression "inferior court" is not referable to the judicial courts, ...

27. Thus, we are of the view that judicial orders of civil courts are not amenable to a writ of certiorari under Article 226. We are also in agreement with the view of the referring Bench that a writ of mandamus does not lie against a private person not discharging any public duty. Scope of Article 227 is different from Article 226.

29. Accordingly, we answer the question referred as follows:

29.1. Judicial orders of the civil court are not amenable to writ jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution.

29.2. Jurisdiction under Article 227 is distinct from jurisdiction under Article 226.

29.3. Contrary view in Surya Dev Rai, is overruled."

44. Having regard to the foregoing discussion the legal position which thus emerges is that judicial orders of civil court would not be amenable to writ jurisdiction under Article 226 and that challenge thereagainst can be raised under Article 227.

45. The aforestated legal position has been discussed in the context of the provisions under the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 with regard to enforcement of an arbitral award, in a recent decision of this Court in M/S. Magma Leasing Ltd. Vs. Badri Vishal and others.30

46. Having regard to the aforestated legal principles, it can be held that the Appellate Officer, exercising powers under Section 9 of the UP PP Act, does not act as a persona designata but in his capacity as a pre-existing judicial authority in the district -- being the District Judge of the district, or such other designated judicial officer. The judge, being part of the district judiciary, acts as a court and the order passed by him would be a judicial order passed by a civil court of plenary jurisdiction and therefore the same would not be amenable to a writ of certiorari under Article 226 of the Constitution of India. The remedy against such orders may be availed under Article 227 on the matters delineated for exercise of such jurisdiction.

47. Learned counsel appearing for the petitioner has not disputed the aforesaid legal position and seeks time to file an appropriate amendment application.

48. The matter shall stand over for a fortnight in order to enable the counsel for the petitioner to move an application seeking appropriate amendments.

5. Such huge lacthes have been explained in paragraph nos. 3 to 10 of the petition which reads as under:

"3. That since the impugned order under challenge has been passed by the respondent no. 1 dated 5.7.2017 and it has not been challenged by the petitioner well within time as the Commissioner Stamps at U.P. Allahabad after considering the impugned order dated 5.7.2017 forwarded a letter dated 17.7.2017 to A.I.G. Stamps, Etawah regarding filing the writ petition before this Hon'ble Court and in the aforesaid letter it has been stated that prima facie the learned Chief Controlling Revenue Authority has ignored and overlooked the confidential report, spot inspection, evidence and submission advanced by the State counsel thereafter A.I.G. Stamps at once take congnizance of the aforesaid matter and directed to the Sub Registrar, Etawah dated 22.7.2017 to proceed for filing writ petition before Hon'ble High Court at Allahabad. In this regard the copy of the letter dated 17.7.2017 forwarded by Commissioner to A.I.G. Stamps, Etawah is being filed herewith and marked as Annexure No. 1 to this writ petition.

4. That thereafter the Sub Registrar, Etawah send a requesting letter dated 4.9.2017 to A.D.G.C. District Etawah asking for his opinion and the learned A.D.G.C. District Etawah has given his opinion on 11.9.2017 to Sub Registrar Etawah to file writ petition before Hon'ble High Court Allahabad. In this regard the copy of the letter dated 11.9.2017 is being filed herewith and marked as Annexure No. 2 to this writ petition.

5. That after getting the opinion from A.D.G.C. District Etawah for filing the writ petition before Hon'ble High Court at Allahabad the District Magistrate, Etawah send a letter dated 26.9.2017 to the Commissioner Stamps, Board of Revenue at Allahabad for seeking permission from the Government/ Administration. In this regard the copy of the letter issued by the District Magistrate, Etawah seeking permission from State Authorities dated 26.9.2017 is being filed herewith and marked as Annexure No. 3 to this writ petition.

6. That the District Magistrate, Etawah again dispatched a letter dated 16.7.2020 to A.I.G. Stamps District Etawah as well as a reminder dated 20.7.2020 for filing the writ petition before Hon'ble High Court at Allahabad. In this regard the copy of the letter dated 16.7.2020 as well as reminder dated 20.7.2020 are being filed herewith and marked as Annexure No. 4 to this writ petition.

7. That the Special Secretary and Additional Law Advisor U.P. Government forwarded a letter to the Chief Standing counsel High Court Allahabad for filing writ petition before Hon'ble High Court Allahabad. In this regard the copy of the letter dated 26.10.2020 is being filed herewith and marked as Annexure No. 5 to this writ petition.

8. That thereafter a letter dated 2.11.2020 has been sent to Commissioner Stamps U.P. Prayagraj by Special Secretary U.P. Admin in regard with sanction of U.P. Administration for filing writ petition before Hon'ble High Court Allahabad vide letter dated 1.12.2020 directing A.I.G. Stamps District Etawah to proceed for filing writ petition before Hon'ble High Court Allahabad. In this regard the copy of the letter dated 2.11.2020 and 1.12.2020 are being filed herewith and marked as Annexure No. 6 to this writ petition.

9. That thereafter A.I.G. Stamps District Etawah send a letter dated 17.2.2021 to Chief Standing Counsel High Court Allahabad for filing writ petition in the aforesaid matter. In this regard the copy of the letter dated 17.2.2021 forwarded by A.I.G. Stamps District Etawah to Chief Standing Counsel of this Hon'ble Court for filing writ petition is being filed herewith and marked as Annexure No. 7 to this writ petition.

10. That in view of the aforesaid facts, the delay in filing the writ petition is not deliberate and intentional but is procedural and as such is deserves to be condoned by this Hon'ble Court and the writ petition is also deserves to be heard on merits so that justice may be done otherwise the petitioner shall suffer irreparable loss and injury."

6. It is, thus, submitted that there was no deliberate delay on part of the authority concerned and that the delay was purely procedural in nature.

7. This practice of challenging order in higher court with delay has been deprecated by Apex Court in the case of State of Madhya Pradesh and other vs. Bherulal, 2020 (10) SCC 654 wherein the Apex Court refused to condone the delay of 663 days and held that such action on part of the State authority is merely to obtain order of dismissal to save their skin. The Apex Court has further held as under :

3. No doubt, some leeway is given for the Government inefficiencies but the sad part is that the authorities keep on relying on judicial pronouncements for a period of time when technology had not advanced and a greater leeway was given to the Government (Collector, Land Acquisition, Anantnag & Anr vs. Mst. Katiji & Ors. (1987) 2 SCC 107). This position is more than elucidated by the judgment of this Court in Office of the Chief Post Master General & Ors. v. Living Media India Ltd. & Anr. (2012) 3 SCC 563 where the Court observed as under:

"12) It is not in dispute that the person(s) concerned were well aware or conversant with the issues involved including the prescribed period of limitation for taking up the matter by way of filing a special leave petition in this Court. They cannot claim that they have a separate period of limitation when the Department was possessed with competent persons familiar with court proceedings. In the absence of plausible and acceptable explanation, we are posing a question why the delay is to be condoned mechanically merely because the Government or a wing of the Government is a party before us.

Though we are conscious of the fact that in a matter of condonation of delay when there was no gross negligence or deliberate inaction or lack of bonafide, a liberal concession has to be adopted to advance substantial justice, we are of the view that in the facts and circumstances, the Department cannot take advantage of various earlier decisions. The claim on account of impersonal machinery and inherited bureaucratic methodology of making several notes cannot be accepted in view of the modern technologies being used and available. The law of limitation undoubtedly binds everybody including the Government.

13) In our view, it is the right time to inform all the government bodies, their agencies and instrumentalities that unless they have reasonable and acceptable explanation for the delay and there was bonafide effort, there is no need to accept the usual explanation that the file was kept pending for several months/years due to considerable degree of procedural red- tape in the process. The government departments are under a special obligation to ensure that they perform their duties with diligence and commitment. Condonation of delay is an exception and should not be used as an anticipated benefit for government departments. The law shelters everyone under the same light and should not be swirled for the benefit of a few. Considering the fact that there was no proper explanation offered by the Department for the delay except mentioning of various dates, according to us, the Department has miserably failed to give any acceptable and cogent reasons sufficient to condone such a huge delay." Eight years hence the judgment is still unheeded!

6. We are also of the view that the aforesaid approach is being adopted in what we have categorized earlier as "certificate cases". The object appears to be to obtain a certificate of dismissal from the Supreme Court to put a quietus to the issue and thus, say that nothing could be done because the highest Court has dismissed the appeal. It is to complete this formality and save the skin of officers who may be at default that such a process is followed. We have on earlier occasions also strongly deprecated such a practice and process. There seems to be no improvement. The purpose of coming to this Court is not to obtain such certificates and if the Government suffers losses, it is time when the concerned officer responsible for the same bears the consequences. The irony is that in none of the cases any action is taken against the officers, who sit on the files and do nothing. It is presumed that this Court will condone the delay and even in making submissions, straight away counsels appear to address on merits without referring even to the aspect of limitation as happened in this case till we pointed out to the counsel that he must first address us on the question of limitation.

7. We are thus, constrained to send a signal and we propose to do in all matters today, where there are such inordinate delays that the Government or State authorities coming before us must pay for wastage of judicial time which has its own value. Such costs can be recovered from the officers responsible.

8. Looking to the period of delay and the casual manner in which the application has been worded, we consider appropriate to impose costs on the petitioner- State of Rs.25,000/- (Rupees twenty five thousand) to be deposited with the Mediation and Conciliation Project Committee. The amount be deposited in four weeks. The amount be recovered from the officers responsible for the delay in filing the special leave petition and a certificate of recovery of the said amount be also filed in this Court within the said period of time.

8. The same view has been taken in a very recent judgment of Apex Court in the case of Government of Maharasthra (Water Resource Department vs. Borse Brothers Engineers & Contractors Pvt. Ltd., 2021 SCC online SC 233, where in paragraph nos. 57, 58, 59, 60 and 61, the Apex Court has held as under:

57. Given the object sought to be achieved under both the Arbitration Act and the Commercial Courts Act, that is, the speedy resolution of disputes, the expression "sufficient cause" is not elastic enough to cover long delays beyond the period provided by the appeal provision itself. Besides, the expression "sufficient cause" is not itself a loose panacea for the ill of pressing negligent and stale claims. This Court, in Basawaraj v. Land Acquisition Officer, (2013) 14 SCC 81, has held:

"9. Sufficient cause is the cause for which the defendant could not be blamed for his absence. The meaning of the word "sufficient" is "adequate" or "enough", inasmuch as may be necessary to answer the purpose intended. Therefore, the word "sufficient" embraces no more than that which provides a platitude, which when the act done suffices to accomplish the purpose intended in the facts and circumstances existing in a case, duly examined from the viewpoint of a reasonable standard of a cautious man. In this context, "sufficient cause" means that the party should not have acted in a negligent manner or there was a want of bona fide on its part in view of the facts and circumstances of a case or it cannot be alleged that the party has "not acted diligently" or "remained inactive". However, the facts and circumstances of each case must afford sufficient ground to enable the court concerned to exercise discretion for the reason that whenever the court exercises discretion, it has to be exercised judiciously. The applicant must satisfy the court that he was prevented by any "sufficient cause" from prosecuting his case, and unless a satisfactory explanation is furnished, the court should not allow the application for condonation of delay. The court has to examine whether the mistake is bona fide or was merely a device to cover an ulterior purpose. (See Manindra Land and Building Corpn. Ltd. v. Bhutnath Banerjee [AIR 1964 SC 1336] , Mata Din v. A. Narayanan [(1969) 2 SCC 770 : AIR 1970 SC 1953] , Parimal v. Veena [(2011) 3 SCC 545 : (2011) 2 SCC (Civ) 1 : AIR 2011 SC 1150] and Maniben Devraj Shah v. Municipal Corpn. of Brihan Mumbai [(2012) 5 SCC 157 : (2012) 3 SCC (Civ) 24 : AIR 2012 SC 1629] .)

10. In Arjun Singh v. Mohindra Kumar [AIR 1964 SC 993] this Court explained the difference between a "good cause" and a "sufficient cause" and observed that every "sufficient cause" is a good cause and vice versa. However, if any difference exists it can only be that the requirement of good cause is complied with on a lesser degree of proof than that of "sufficient cause".

11. The expression "sufficient cause" should be given a liberal interpretation to ensure that substantial justice is done, but only so long as negligence, inaction or lack of bona fides cannot be imputed to the party concerned, whether or not sufficient cause has been furnished, can be decided on the facts of a particular case and no straitjacket formula is possible. (Vide Madanlal v. Shyamlal [(2002) 1 SCC 535 : AIR 2002 SC 100] and Ram Nath Sao v. Gobardhan Sao [(2002) 3 SCC 195 : AIR 2002 SC 1201] .)

12. It is a settled legal proposition that law of limitation may harshly affect a particular party but it has to be applied with all its rigour when the statute so prescribes. The court has no power to extend the period of limitation on equitable grounds. "A result flowing from a statutory provision is never an evil. A court has no power to ignore that provision to relieve what it considers a distress resulting from its operation." The statutory provision may cause hardship or inconvenience to a particular party but the court has no choice but to enforce it giving full effect to the same. The legal maxim dura lex sed lex which means "the law is hard but it is the law", stands attracted in such a situation. It has consistently been held that, "inconvenience is not" a decisive factor to be considered while interpreting a statute.

13. The statute of limitation is founded on public policy, its aim being to secure peace in the community, to suppress fraud and perjury, to quicken diligence and to prevent oppression. It seeks to bury all acts of the past which have not been agitated unexplainably and have from lapse of time become stale. According to Halsbury's Laws of England, Vol. 28, p. 266:

"605. Policy of the Limitation Acts.--The courts have expressed at least three differing reasons supporting the existence of statutes of limitations namely, (1) that long dormant claims have more of cruelty than justice in them, (2) that a defendant might have lost the evidence to disprove a stale claim, and (3) that persons with good causes of actions should pursue them with reasonable diligence." An unlimited limitation would lead to a sense of insecurity and uncertainty, and therefore, limitation prevents disturbance or deprivation of what may have been acquired in equity and justice by long enjoyment or what may have been lost by a party's own inaction, negligence or laches.

(See Popat and Kotecha Property v. SBI Staff Assn. [(2005) 7 SCC 510] , Rajender Singh v. Santa Singh [(1973) 2 SCC 705 : AIR 1973 SC 2537] and Pundlik Jalam Patil v. Jalgaon Medium Project [(2008) 17 SCC 448 : (2009) 5 SCC (Civ) 907] .)

14. In P. Ramachandra Rao v. State of Karnataka [(2002) 4 SCC 578 : 2002 SCC (Cri) 830 : AIR 2002 SC 1856] this Court held that judicially engrafting principles of limitation amounts to legislating and would fly in the face of law laid down by the Constitution Bench in Abdul Rehman Antulay v. R.S. Nayak [(1992) 1 SCC 225 : 1992 SCC (Cri) 93 : AIR 1992 SC 1701] .

15. The law on the issue can be summarised to the effect that where a case has been presented in the court beyond limitation, the applicant has to explain the court as to what was the "sufficient cause" which means an adequate and enough reason which prevented him to approach the court within limitation. In case a party is found to be negligent, or for want of bona fide on his part in the facts and circumstances of the case, or found to have not acted diligently or remained inactive, there cannot be a justified ground to condone the delay. No court could be justified in condoning such an inordinate delay by imposing any condition whatsoever. The application is to be decided only within the parameters laid down by this Court in regard to the condonation of delay. In case there was no sufficient cause to prevent a litigant to approach the court on time condoning the delay without any justification, putting any condition whatsoever, amounts to passing an order in violation of the statutory provisions and it tantamounts to showing utter disregard to the legislature."

58. Likewise, merely because the government is involved, a different yardstick for condonation of delay cannot be laid down. This was felicitously stated in Postmaster General v. Living Media India Ltd., (2012) 3 SCC 563 ["Postmaster General"], as follows:

"27. It is not in dispute that the person(s) concerned were well aware or conversant with the issues involved including the prescribed period of limitation for taking up the matter by way of filing a special leave petition in this Court. They cannot claim that they have a separate period of limitation when the Department was possessed with competent persons familiar with court proceedings. In the absence of plausible and acceptable explanation, we are posing a question why the delay is to be condoned mechanically merely because the Government or a wing of the Government is a party before us.

28. Though we are conscious of the fact that in a matter of condonation of delay when there was no gross negligence or deliberate inaction or lack of bona fides, a liberal concession has to be adopted to advance substantial justice, we are of the view that in the facts and circumstances, the Department cannot take advantage of various earlier decisions. The claim on account of impersonal machinery and inherited bureaucratic methodology of making several notes cannot be accepted in view of the modern technologies being used and available. The law of limitation undoubtedly binds everybody, including the Government.

29. In our view, it is the right time to inform all the government bodies, their agencies and instrumentalities that unless they have reasonable and acceptable explanation for the delay and there was bona fide effort, there is no need to accept the usual explanation that the file was kept pending for several months/years due to considerable degree of procedural red tape in the process. The government departments are under a special obligation to ensure that they perform their duties with diligence and commitment. Condonation of delay is an exception and should not be used as an anticipated benefit for the government departments. The law shelters everyone under the same light and should not be swirled for the benefit of a few."

59. The decision in Postmaster General (supra) has been followed in the following subsequent judgments of this Court:

i) State of Rajasthan v. Bal Kishan Mathur, (2014) 1 SCC 592 at paragraphs 8-8.2;

ii) State of U.P. v. Amar Nath Yadav, (2014) 2 SCC 422 at paragraphs 2-3;

iii) State of T.N. v. N. Suresh Rajan, (2014) 11 SCC 709 at paragraphs 11-13; and

iv) State of M.P. v. Bherulal, (2020) 10 SCC 654 at paragraphs 3-4.

60. In a recent judgment, namely, State of M.P. v. Chaitram Maywade, (2020) 10 SCC 667, this Court referred to Postmaster General (supra), and held as follows:

"1. The State of Madhya Pradesh continues to do the same thing again and again and the conduct seems to be incorrigible. The special leave petition has been filed after a delay of 588 days. We had an occasion to deal with such inordinately delayed filing of the appeal by the State of Madhya Pradesh in State of M.P. v. Bherulal [State of M.P. v. Bherulal, (2020) 10 SCC 654] in terms of our order dated 15-10-2020.

2. We have penned down a detailed order in that case and we see no purpose in repeating the same reasoning again except to record what are stated to be the facts on which the delay is sought to be condoned. On 5-1-2019, it is stated that the Government Advocate was approached in respect of the judgment delivered on 13-11-2018 [Chaitram Maywade v. State of M.P., 2018 SCC OnLine HP 1632] and the Law Department permitted filing of the SLP against the impugned order on 26-5-2020. Thus, the Law Department took almost about 17 months' time to decide whether the SLP had to be filed or not. What greater certificate of incompetence would there be for the Legal Department!

3. We consider it appropriate to direct the Chief Secretary of the State of Madhya Pradesh to look into the aspect of revamping the Legal Department as it appears that the Department is unable to file appeals within any reasonable period of time much less within limitation. These kinds of excuses, as already recorded in the aforesaid order, are no more admissible in view of the judgment in Postmaster General v. Living Medi a (India) Ltd. [Postmaster General v.

4. We have also expressed our concern that these kinds of the cases are only "certificate cases" to obtain a certificate of dismissal from the Supreme Court to put a quietus to the issue. The object is to save the skin of officers who may be in default. We have also recorded the irony of the situation where no action is taken against the officers who sit on these files and do nothing.

5. Looking to the period of delay and the casual manner in which the application has been worded, the wastage of judicial time involved, we impose costs on the petitioner State of Rs 35,000 to be deposited with the Mediation and Conciliation Project Committee. The amount be deposited within four weeks. The amount be recovered from the officer(s) responsible for the delay in filing and sitting on the files and certificate of recovery of the said amount be also filed in this Court within the said period of time. We have put to Deputy Advocate General to caution that for any successive matters of this kind the costs will keep on going up."

61. Also, it must be remembered that merely because sufficient cause has been made out in the facts of a given case, there is no right in the appellant to have delay condoned. This was felicitously put in Ramlal v. Rewa Coalfields Ltd., (1962) 2 SCR 762 as follows:

"It is, however, necessary to emphasise that even after sufficient cause has been shown a party is not entitled to the condonation of delay in question as a matter of right. The proof of a sufficient cause is a condition precedent for the exercise of the discretionary jurisdiction vested in the court by s. 5. If sufficient cause is not proved nothing further has to be done; the application for condoning delay has to be dismissed on that ground alone. If sufficient cause is shown then the Court has to enquire whether in its discretion it should condone the delay. This aspect of the matter naturally introduces the consideration of all relevant facts and it is at this stage that diligence of the party or its bona fides may fall for consideration; but the scope of the enquiry while exercising the discretionary power after sufficient cause is shown would naturally be limited only to such facts as the Court may regard as relevant. It cannot justify an enquiry as to why the party was sitting idle during all the time available to it. In this connection we may point out that considerations of bona fides or due diligence are always material and relevant when the Court is dealing with applications made under s. 14 of the Limitation Act. In dealing with such applications the Court is called upon to consider the effect of the combined provisions of ss. 5 and 14. Therefore, in our opinion, considerations which have been expressly made material and relevant by the provisions of s. 14 cannot to the same extent and in the same manner be invoked in dealing with applications which fall to be decided only under s. 5 without reference to s. 14."

(emphasis supplied)

9. A reference may also be made to judgment of the Apex Court rendered in the case of State of Odisha vs. Sunanda Mahakud,

2021 SCC online SC 384, wherein the Apex Court has held has under:

3. "There is no doubt that these are cases including the present one where the Government machinery has acted in a inefficient manner or it is a deliberate endeavour. In either of the two situations, this court ought not to come to the rescue of the petitioner. No doubt, some leeway is given for Government inefficiency but with the technological advancement now the judicial view prevalent earlier when such facilities were not available has been over taken by the elucidation of the legal principles in the judgment of this Court in the Office of the Chief Post Master General & Ors. v. Living Media India Ltd. & Anr. - (2012) 3 SCC 563. We have discussed these aspects in SLP [C] Diary No.9217/2020, State of Madhya Pradesh v. Bheru Lal decided on 15.10.2020 and thus, see no reason to repeat the same again.

4. In the present case, the State Government has not even taken the trouble of citing any reason or excuse nor any dates given in respect of the period for which condonation is sought. The objective of such an exercise has also been elucidated by us in the aforesaid judgment where we have categorized such cases as "certificate cases".

5. The object of such cases appears to be to obtain a certificate of dismissal from the Supreme Court to put a quietus to the issue and thus, say nothing could done because the highest Court has dismissed the appeal. It is mere completion of formality to give a quietus to the litigation and save the skin of the officers who may be at fault by not taking action in prescribed time. If the state government feels that they have suffered losses, then it must fix responsibility on concerned officers for their inaction but that ironically never happens. These matters are preferred on a presumption as if this Court will condone the delay in every case, if the State Government is able to say something on merits. Looking to the period of delay and the casual manner in which the application has been worded, we consider appropriate impose costs of Rs.25,000/- to be deposited with the Supreme Court Advocates On Record Welfare Fund. The amount be deposited in four weeks. The amount be recovered from the officers responsible for the delay in filing both the Writ Appeal and the Special Leave Petition and a certificate of recovery be also filed in this Court within the same period of time.

6. The Special Leave Petition(s) is/are dismissed as time barred in terms aforesaid"

10. Regard may also be made to a recent judgment of the Apex Court dated 04.02.2021, whereby the Apex Court has dismissed the Special Leave Petition (Civil) Diary No(s). 19846/2020, Union of India v. Central Tibetan Schools Admin, which was preferred with the delay of 532 days from the date of rejection of restoration application and 6616 days from the date of original order.

11. Reference may be made to a division bench judgment of this Court rendered in the case of State of U.P. v. Khushnoor Khan, 2021 SCC Online All 164, wherein this Court in paragraph nos. 12, 13, 14, 17 and 20 held has under :

12. Hon'ble Supreme Court time and again has not only expressed words of caution in respect of casual manner in which the State Authorities approach the Courts without any plausible ground for condonation of delay but has even counselled the State Authorities in this regard. Regard may be had at this juncture to the latest pronouncement made by Hon'ble Supreme Court on 04.02.2021 while dismissing the Special Leave Petition (Civil) Diary No(s). 19846/2020, Union of India v. Central Tibetan Schools Admin. The Hon'ble Supreme Court dismissed the Special Leave Petition, which was preferred with the delay of 532 days from the date of rejection of restoration application and 6616 days from the date of original order and made certain observations are quoted below:

"We have heard learned Additional Solicitor General for some time and must note that the only error which seems to have occurred in the impugned order is of noticing that it is not an illiterate litigant because the manner in which the Government is prosecuting its appeal reflects nothing better! The mighty Government of India is manned with large legal department having numerous officers and Advocates. The excuse given for the delay is, to say the least, preposterous. We have repeatedly being counselling through our orders various Government departments, State Governments and other public authorities that they must learn to file appeals in time and set their house in order so far as the legal department is concerned, more so as technology assists them. This appears to be falling on deaf ears despite costs having been imposed in number of matters with the direction to recover it from the officers responsible for the delay as we are of the view that these officers must be made accountable. It has not had any salutary effect and that the present matter should have been brought up, really takes the cake!"

13. In the case of Central Tibetan Schools Admin (supra) while observing that the appellant therein had approached the Court in casual manner without any cogent ground for condonation of delay, Hon'ble Supreme Court has referred to the cases of Office of the Chief Post Master General v. Living Media India Ltd., reported in [(2012) 3 SCC 563] and also the case of Balwant Singh (Dead) v. Jagdish Singh, reported in [(2010) 8 SCC 685 : AIR 2010 SC 3043]. Relevant extract of the said judgment in the case of Central Tibetan Schools Admin (supra) runs as under:

"In this behalf, suffice to refer to our judgment in the State of Madhya Pradesh v. Bheru Lal [SLP [C] Diary No. 9217/2020 decided on 15.10.2020] and The State of Odisha v. Sunanda Mahakuda [SLP [C] Diary No. 22605/2020 decided on 11.01.2021]. The leeway which was given to the Government/public authorities on account of innate inefficiencies was the result of certain orders of this Court which came at a time when technology had not advanced and thus, greater indulgence was shown. This position is no more prevalent and the current legal position has been elucidated by the judgment of this Court in Office of the Chief Post Master General v. Living Media India Ltd. - (2012) 3 SCC 563. Despite this, there seems to be a little change in the approach of the Government and public authorities.

14. In the case of Living Media India Ltd. (supra) Hon'ble Supreme Court noticed the advancement in modern technology and observed that the claim of seeking condonation of delay on account of impersonal machinery and inherited bureaucratic methodology of making several notes cannot be accepted in view of the modern technologies being used and available. In the said case, it was further observed by Hon'ble Apex Court that all the government bodies, their agencies and instrumentalities need to be informed that unless they have reasonable and acceptable explanation for delay, there is no need to accept usual explanation that the file was kept pending for several months/years due to considerable degree of procedural red tape in the process.

17. When we examine the explanation of delay of 1730 days in filing the review petition from the date of judgment dated 19.04.2016 which has been sought to be reviewed and delay of 1335 days from the date of dismissal of Special Leave Petition on 05.07.2017, what we find is that the State has once again sought shelter in usual slow pace of State machinery in preparation of office notes, movement of files, non-availability of certain necessary information, non-availability of concerned officials/officers etc. The said explanation cannot be said to be sufficient in view of the law laid down by Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Living Media India Ltd. (supra). The State while seeking condonation of delay in this case has gone even to the extent of taking ground of certain "unavoidable" and "unspoken" circumstances. In our considered opinion such "unavoidable" and "unspoken" circumstances cannot be taken shelter of to claim condonation of delay in approaching the Courts. In fact the course adopted by the State in preferring the review petition reflects gross negligence and inaction which in our considered opinion cannot be said to be bona fide. We are aware that a liberal view needs to be adopted by the Courts to advance substantial justice. However, in the facts and circumstances of this case, what we find is that the approach of the State all along has been casual and that of manifest negligence. As observed by Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Living Media India Ltd. (supra), law of limitation binds every one including the Government.

20. In the light of the discussions made above, the review petition fails and is hereby dismissed on the ground of delay."

12. It may further be mentioned that High Court of Madhya Pradesh in the case of State of M.P. v. Ramprakash Tyagi, MANU/MP/0566/2021 while relying upon the judgment of the Apex Court in Bheru Lal (supra) refused to condone the delay of 967 days. Same view was taken by High Court of Jammu & Kashmir in the case of JK Economic Reconstruction Agency v. Kamal Builders, MANU/JK/0252/2021.

13. Coming back to the explanation submitted for such huge latches, a perusal of the quoted paragraphs of the petition clearly indicate that apart from whatever has been stated, annexure no. 3 to the petition is a letter dated 26.9.2017 written by the District Magistrate Etawah to the State authority. Next letters are dated 16.7.2020 reminder written by District Magistrate, Etawah to Assistant Commissioner, Stamps, Etawah and letter dated 20.7.2020 written by Assistant Commissioner, Stamp to Commissioner, Stamp, U.P. (annexure no. 4 to the petition). It is, therefore, clear that for almost two years and ten months the matter was not at all pursued, even if, for the sake of arguments, the other explanation regarding so called 'procedural delay' is accepted, the explanation so submitted before this Court to explain such huge lathces, is not acceptable.

14. In view of the discussion made herein above, I find that the latches have not been sufficiently explained. The writ petition accordingly stands dismissed on the ground of latches.

15. Registrar General of this Court as well as learned Standing Counsel are directed to send a copy of the order to the Chief Secretary, Government of Uttar Pradesh for necessary action against the persons responsible for such delay and for issuing a word of caution to the authority concerned to remain cautious in future.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Yogendra Kumar Srivastava, J.)

1. Heard Sri C.K. Parekh, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Sri Kumar Ankit Srivastava, learned counsel for the petitioner, and Sri Amit Manohar, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel.

2. The present petition filed under Article 226 of the Constitution of India principally seeks a writ of certiorari for quashing of the order dated 01.02.2010 passed by the Special Judge, SC/ST Act, Mirzapur in Misc. Case No. 103 of 2008 arising out of Execution Case No. 02 of 2006 (M/s Magma Leasing Limited Vs. Badri Vishal and others.

3. Pleadings of the case indicate that an award dated 30.12.2005 was passed in favour of the petitioner and for enforcement of the said award, an application under Section 36 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 was moved. The aforesaid application came to be dismissed by the Special Judge, SC/ST Act, Mirzapur on 23.02.2008 due to non-appearance on behalf of the applicant. An application for restoration was moved which was also rejected on 01.02.2010 on the ground of being barred by limitation. It is at this stage that the present writ petition was filed.

4. A point at issue, raised at the threshold, is as to whether an order passed by the executing court during the course of enforcement of an arbitral award would be amenable to a writ of certiorari under Article 226 of the Constitution of India.

5. In order to appreciate the controversy, the relevant provisions under the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 19961, would be required to be adverted to.

6. The Act, 1996 (Act 26 of 1996) was enacted to consolidate and amend the law relating to domestic arbitration, international commercial arbitration and enforcement of foreign arbitral awards as also to define the law relating to conciliation. The Act which is based on the UNCITRAL Model Law on International Commercial Arbitration, as adopted in 1985 by the United Nations Commission on International Trade Law (UNCITRAL) applies to both international as well as to domestic arbitration.

7. The procedure for enforcement of arbitral awards under the Act, 1996 is provided for under Chapter VIII of the said Act. The relevant provisions for the purpose, as contained under Section 36 of the Act, 1996 are as follows:

"36. Enforcement.--(1) Where the time for making an application to set aside the arbitral award under section 34 has expired, then, subject to the provisions of sub-section (2), such award shall be enforced in accordance with the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 (5 of 1908), in the same manner as if it were a decree of the court.

(2) Where an application to set aside the arbitral award has been filed in the court under section 34, the filing of such an application shall not by itself render that award unenforceable, unless the court grants an order of stay of the operation of the said arbitral award in accordance with the provisions of sub-section (3), on a separate application made for that purpose.

(3) Upon filing of an application under sub-section (2) for stay of the operation of the arbitral award, the court may, subject to such conditions as it may deem fit, grant stay of the operation of such award for reasons to be recorded in writing:

Provided that the court shall, while considering the application for grant of stay in the case of an arbitral award for payment of money, have due regard to the provisions for grant of stay of a money decree under the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 (5 of 1908)."

8. In terms of sub-section (1) of Section 36 where the time for making an application to set aside the arbitral award under Section 34 has expired, then, subject to the provisions of sub-section (2), such award shall be enforced in accordance with the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, in the same manner as if it were a decree of the court.

9. It may be worthwhile to notice that under the preceding Act of 1940 (Arbitration Act, 1940), an award had to be filed in the court for making it rule of the court. Objections from the parties were invited, and only when no objection was filed or was sustainable could the court pass a judgement in terms of the award and it was then converted into a decree for enforcement.

10. Under the Act 1996, the aforesaid procedure has been substituted by a simpler procedure of giving affect to the award as a decree. In terms of Section 36 of the Act, 1996, when the time for making an application to set aside the arbitral award under Section 34 has expired, then, subject to the provisions of sub-section (2), the award shall be enforced in accordance with the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure, 19082, in the same manner as if it were a decree of the court.

11. It would, therefore, be seen that the enforcement of an arbitral award under the 1996

Act, is to be made as per the terms of Section 36 and, unlike the 1940 Act, there is no requirement of filing an application to make the award a rule of the court. Under the scheme of the 1996 Act, it would not be possible to resist the enforcement of an award by contending that the award has not been converted into a decree for the reason that the award has now to be enforced as per the procedure under the CPC in the same manner as if it were a court decree.

12. The question as to whether the award of the arbitrator under the 1996 Act tantamounts to a decree or not was considered in Leela Hotels Limited vs. Housing and Urban Development Corporation Limited3, and it was held that the language used in Section 36 makes it clear that such an award has to be enforced under the CPC, in the same manner as if it were a decree of the court. It was observed that the language of the section leaves no room for doubt as to the manner in which the award of the arbitrator was to be accepted.

13. Section 36 of the 1996 Act makes the arbitral award capable of being enforced in a like manner as a decree without any further judicial intervention. The words "as if" occurring in sub-section (1) has been held to create legal fiction for the purpose of enforcement of the award treating the same to be a decree of the court. The aforesaid view was taken in Paramjeet Singh Patheja Vs. ICDS Ltd.4.

14. The provision for enforcement of an award, as per terms of Section 36, having been provided for in the same manner as if it were a decree of the court, it would follow that the court enforcing the award would exercise powers under the CPC which are available to a court executing a decree. This power would not be limited or trammelled by any other provision of the Act, 1996.

15. It would be relevant to notice that the CPC contains elaborate and exhaustive provisions for dealing with the execution of a decree in all its aspects. The numerous rules under Order 21 of the CPC take care of different situations providing effective remedies not only to judgement-debtors and decree-holders but also to claimant-objectors, as the case may be. As per the settled legal position, all questions relating to execution of a decree are to be determined only by the executing court. Section 47 of the CPC mandates that it is the executing court alone which is to determine all questions relating to execution, discharge or satisfaction of the decree - exclusive jurisdiction having been conferred on the executing court in respect of all such matters.

16. Execution is the enforcement of a decree by a judicial process which enables the decree-holder to realise the fruits of the decree in his favour. The enforcement of an award having been provided for as per terms of Section 36 to be in the same manner, as if, it were a decree of the court, the provisions of the CPC would be applicable to execution proceedings. The court enforcing the award would be a civil court exercising judicial powers and the orders to be passed in these proceedings would be judicial orders.

17. The question as to whether judicial orders of a civil court would be amenable to writ jurisdiction under Article 226 came up for consideration in the case of Radhey Shyam vs. Chhabi Nath5, upon a reference made by a two-Judge Bench of the Supreme Court in terms of an order dated April 15, 2009 in Radhey Shyam and Another vs. Chhabi Nath and Others6.

18. The two-Judge Bench in the case of Radhey Shyam (supra) took notice of an earlier Constitution Bench decision in the case of Sohan Lal vs. Union of India7, wherein it was held that a writ of mandamus or an order in the nature of mandamus is not to be made against a private individual and also a subsequent three-Judge Bench decision in Mohd. Hanif vs. State of Assam8, expressing the general principle that the jurisdiction of the High Court under Article 226 is extraordinary in nature and is not to be exercised for the purpose of declaring private rights of the parties. Reference was also made to the decision in Hindustan Steel Ltd. vs. Kalyani Banerjee9, wherein it was held that proceedings by way of writ were not appropriate in a case where the decision of the court would amount to a decree declaring a party's title and ordering restoration of possession.

19. The law laid down in the nine-Judge Constitution Bench in the case of Naresh Shridhar Mirajkar vs. State of Maharashtra10, was also referred, wherein after considering the history of writ of certiorari and various English and Indian decisions, a conclusion was drawn that "certiorari does not lie to quash the judgements of inferior courts of civil jurisdiction". The decision in the case of Naresh Shridhar Mirajkar was also seen to have drawn a distinction between judicial orders of inferior courts of civil jurisdiction and orders of inferior tribunals or courts which are not civil courts and which cannot pass judicial orders.

20. Expressing inability to agree with the legal proposition laid down by a two-Judge Bench in the earlier decision in the case of Surya Dev Rai vs. Ram Chander Rai11, to the effect that judicial orders passed by civil courts can be examined and then corrected/reversed by the writ court under Article 226 in exercise of its power under a writ of certiorari, the two-Judge Bench in the case of Radhey Shyam (supra) made a reference by observing as follows:

"26. The two-Judge Bench in Surya Dev Rai did not, as obviously it could not overrule the ratio in Mirajkar, a Constitution Bench decision of a nine-Judge Bench. But the learned Judges justified their different view in Surya Dev Rai, inter alia on the ground that the law relating to certiorari changed both in England and in India. In support of that opinion, the learned Judges held that the statement of law in Halsbury, on which the ratio in Mirajkar is based, has been changed and in support of that quoted paras 103 and 109 from Halsbury's Laws of England, 4th Edn. (Reissue), Vol. 1(1). Those paras are set out below:

"103. The prerogative remedies of certiorari, prohibition and mandamus: historical development.--Historically, prohibition was a writ whereby the royal courts of common law prohibited other courts from entertaining matters falling within the exclusive jurisdiction of the common law courts; certiorari was issued to bring the record of an inferior court into the King's Bench for review or to remove indictments for trial in that court; mandamus was directed to inferior courts and tribunals, and to public officers and bodies, to order the performance of a public duty. All three were called prerogative writs; ...

109. The nature of certiorari and prohibition.--Certiorari lies to bring decisions of an inferior court, tribunal, public authority or any other body of persons before the High Court for review so that the court may determine whether they should be quashed, or to quash such decisions. The order of prohibition is an order issuing out of the High Court and directed to an inferior court or tribunal or public authority which forbids that court or tribunal or authority to act in excess of its jurisdiction or contrary to law. Both certiorari and prohibition are employed for the control of inferior courts, tribunals and public authorities."

The aforesaid paragraphs are based on general principles which are older than the time when Mirajkar was decided are still good. Those principles nowhere indicate that judgments of an inferior civil court of plenary jurisdiction are amenable to correction by a writ of certiorari. In any event, change of law in England cannot dilute the binding nature of the ratio in Mirajkar and which has not been overruled and is holding the field for decades.

27. It is clear from the law laid down in Mirajkar in para 63 that a distinction has been made between judicial orders of inferior courts of civil jurisdiction and orders of inferior tribunals or court which are not civil courts and which cannot pass judicial orders. Therefore, judicial orders passed by civil courts of plenary jurisdiction stand on a different footing in view of the law pronounced in para 63 in Mirajkar. The passage in the subsequent edition of Halsbury (4th Edn.) which has been quoted in Surya Dev Rai does not show at all that there has been any change in law on the points in issue pointed out above.

30. ... this Court unfortunately is in disagreement with the view which has been expressed in Surya Dev Rai insofar as correction of or any interference with judicial orders of civil court by a writ of certiorari is concerned.

31. Under Article 227 of the Constitution, the High Court does not issue a writ of certiorari. Article 227 of the Constitution vests the High Courts with a power of superintendence which is to be very sparingly exercised to keep tribunals and courts within the bounds of their authority. Under Article 227, orders of both civil and criminal courts can be examined only in very exceptional cases when manifest miscarriage of justice has been occasioned. Such power, however, is not to be exercised to correct a mistake of fact and of law.

32. The essential distinctions in the exercise of power between Articles 226 and 227 are well known and pointed out in Surya Dev Rai and with that we have no disagreement. But we are unable to agree with the legal proposition laid down in Surya Dev Rai that judicial orders passed by a civil court can be examined and then corrected/reversed by the writ court under Article 226 in exercise of its power under a writ of certiorari. We are of the view that the aforesaid proposition laid down in Surya Dev Rai, is contrary to the ratio in Mirajkar and the ratio in Mirajkar has not been overruled in Rupa Ashok Hurra v. Ashok Hurra12.

33. In view of our difference of opinion with the views expressed in Surya Dev Rai, matter may be placed before His Lordship the Hon'ble the Chief Justice of India for constituting a larger Bench, to consider the correctness or otherwise of the law laid down in Surya Dev Rai on the question discussed above."

21. Upon the reference having been made the question which was considered by the three-Judge Bench in the case of Radhey Shyam vs. Chhabi Nath5, was stated as follows :-

"5. Thus, the question to be decided is: whether the view taken in Surya Dev Rai, that a writ lies under Article 226 of the Constitution against the order of the civil court, which has been doubted in the reference order, is the correct view?"

22. The decision of the three-Judge Bench in the case of Radhey Shyam (supra) took notice of the nine-Judge Constitution Bench judgement in the case of Naresh Shridhar Mirajkar, wherein a judicial order of the High Court was challenged as being violative of fundamental rights and the court by majority held that a judicial order of a competent court could not violate a fundamental right, and even if, there was incidental violation it could not be held to be violative of the fundamental right. The following observations were made (Mirajkar case10, AIR p. 11, para 38):

"38. The argument that the impugned order affects the fundamental rights of the petitioners under Article 19(1), is based on a complete misconception about the true nature and character of judicial process and of judicial decisions. When a Judge deals with matters brought before him for his adjudication, he first decides questions of fact on which the parties are at issue, and then applies the relevant law to the said facts. Whether the findings of fact recorded by the Judge are right or wrong, and whether the conclusion of law drawn by him suffers from any infirmity, can be considered and decided if the party aggrieved by the decision of the Judge takes the matter up before the appellate court. But it is singularly inappropriate to assume that a judicial decision pronounced by a Judge of competent jurisdiction in or in relation to a matter brought before him for adjudication can affect the fundamental rights of the citizens under Article 19(1). What the judicial decision purports to do is to decide the controversy between the parties brought before the court and nothing more. If this basic and essential aspect of the judicial process is borne in mind, it would be plain that the judicial verdict pronounced by court in or in relation to a matter brought before it for its decision cannot be said to affect the fundamental rights of citizens under Article 19(1)."

23. Referring to Halsbury's Laws of England, 3rd Edition, Vol. 11 and also the observations made in Kemp vs. Balne13 and by Wrottesley, L.J. in Rex vs. Chancellor of St. Edmundsbury and Ipswich Diocese, Ex Parte White14, it was observed as follows (Mirajkar case10, AIR p.18-19, paras 63-64):

"63. Whilst we are dealing with this aspect of the matter, we may incidentally refer to the relevant observations made by Halsbury on this point. "In the case of judgments of inferior courts of civil jurisdiction", says Halsbury in the footnote,

"it has been suggested that certiorari might be granted to quash them for want of jurisdiction (Kemp v. Balne, Dow & L at p. 887), inasmuch as an error did not lie upon that ground. But there appears to be no reported case in which the judgment of an inferior Court of civil jurisdiction has been quashed on certiorari, either for want of jurisdiction or on any other ground"15.

The ultimate proposition is set out in the terms: "Certiorari does not lie to quash the judgments of inferior courts of civil jurisdiction". These observations would indicate that in England the judicial orders passed by civil courts of plenary jurisdiction in or in relation to matters brought before them are not held to be amenable to the jurisdiction to issue writs of certiorari.

64. In Rex v. Chancellor of St. Edmundsbury and Ipswich Diocese, Ex parte White, the question which arose was whether certiorari would lie from the Court of King's Bench to an ecclesiastical court; and the answer rendered by the court was that certiorari would not lie against the decision of an ecclesiastical court. In dealing with this question, Wrottesley, L.J. has elaborately considered the history of the writ jurisdiction and has dealt with the question about the meaning of the word "inferior' as applied to courts of law in England in discussing the problem as to the issue of the writ in regard to decisions of certain courts. "The more this matter was investigated", says Wrottesley, L.J.,

"the clearer it became that the word "inferior" as applied to courts of law in England had been used with at least two very different meanings. If, as some assert, the question of inferiority is determined by ascertaining whether the court in question can be stopped from exceeding its jurisdiction by a writ of prohibition issuing from the King's Bench, then not only the ecclesiastical courts, but also palatine courts and admiralty courts are inferior courts. But there is another test, well recognised by lawyers, by which to distinguish a superior from an inferior court, namely, whether in its proceedings, and in particular in its judgments, it must appear that the court was acting within its jurisdiction. This is the characteristic of an inferior court, whereas in the proceedings of a superior court it will be presumed that it acted within its jurisdiction unless the contrary should appear either on the face of the proceedings or aliunde".

Mr Sen relied upon this decision to show that even the High Court of Bombay can be said to be an inferior court for the purpose of exercising jurisdiction by this Court under Article 32(2) to issue a writ of certiorari in respect of the impugned order passed by it. We are unable to see how this decision can support Mr Sen's contentions."

24. The three-Judge Bench in the case of Radhey Shyam (supra), extensively referring to the legal position on the scope of writ of certiorari concluded that orders of civil court stand on different footing from the orders of authorities or tribunals or courts other than judicial/civil courts. It held that the expression "inferior court" is not referable to judicial courts and accordingly judicial orders of civil courts are not amenable to a writ of certiorari under Article 226 and a writ of mandamus does not lie against a private person not discharging any public duty. It was also held that the scope of Article 227 is different from Article 226. It was observed as follows:

"25. ... Courts are set up under the Constitution or the laws. All the courts in the jurisdiction of a High Court are subordinate to it and subject to its control and supervision under Article 227. Writ jurisdiction is constitutionally conferred on all the High Courts. Broad principles of writ jurisdiction followed in England are applicable to India and a writ of certiorari lies against patently erroneous or without jurisdiction orders of tribunals or authorities or courts other than judicial courts. There are no precedents in India for the High Courts to issue writs to the subordinate courts. Control of working of the subordinate courts in dealing with their judicial orders is exercised by way of appellate or revisional powers or power of superintendence under Article 227. Orders of the civil court stand on different footing from the orders of authorities or tribunals or courts other than judicial/civil courts. While appellate or revisional jurisdiction is regulated by the statutes, power of superintendence under Article 227 is constitutional. The expression "inferior court" is not referable to the judicial courts, ...

27. Thus, we are of the view that judicial orders of civil courts are not amenable to a writ of certiorari under Article 226. We are also in agreement with the view of the referring Bench that a writ of mandamus does not lie against a private person not discharging any public duty. Scope of Article 227 is different from Article 226.

29. Accordingly, we answer the question referred as follows:

29.1. Judicial orders of the civil court are not amenable to writ jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution.

29.2. Jurisdiction under Article 227 is distinct from jurisdiction under Article 226.

29.3. Contrary view in Surya Dev Rai, is overruled."

25. Having regard to the foregoing discussion the legal position which thus emerges is that judicial orders of civil court would not be amenable to writ jurisdiction under Article 226 and that challenge thereagainst can be raised under Article 227.

26. Applying the aforestated legal principles to the facts of the present case, an order passed by the executing court in proceedings for enforcement of an arbitral award under Section 36 of the Act 1996, being a judicial order passed by a civil court of plenary jurisdiction, the same would not be amenable to a writ of certiorari under Article 226 of the Constitution of India.

26. Learned Senior Counsel appearing for the petitioner has not disputed the aforesaid legal position.

27. The petition thus fails the test of being amenable to the writ jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution of India. It stands dismissed accordingly.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Neeraj Tiwari, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the petitioner, Sri D.K. Tiwari, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel for the State-respondents.

2. By way of present petition, petitioner is challenging the order dated 17.06.2021 passed by respondent no. 3 contained as Annexure no. 1 to the writ petition, rejecting the application of the petitioner for allotment of fair price shop and also Government Order dated 05.08.2019 issued by the Special Secretary, Government of U.P., Lucknow contained as Annexure no. 8 to the writ petition.

3. Learned counsel for the petitioner submitted that petitioner is widowed daughter-in-law of late Mahadei Devi, who was earlier allotted fair price shop. He further submitted that husband of the petitioner namely Bablu died in a road accident leaving behind the petitioner as well as two daughters aged about 11 years and 6 years. Petitioner and her daughters are fully dependent upon late Mahadei Devi, earlier fair price shop holder, who died on 11.04.2021. Succession certificate was also issued by Gram Pradhan on 30.06.2021 mentioning therein that petitioner is legal heir of late Mahadei Devi wife of late Killu Yadav. She is Intermediate passed and is eligible for allotment of fair price shop. He next submitted that after death of mother-in-law, there is no other male or female member for compassionate allotment under succession. Therefore, being legal heir (daughter-in-law, widowed), petitioner submitted an application dated 06.05.2021 for allotment of fair price shop in place of late Mahadei Devi. The said application of the petitioner was rejected by respondent no. 3 vide order dated 17.06.2021 only on the ground that widowed daughter-in-law does not come within the purview of 'family' as defined in Paragraph IV(10) of the Government Order dated 05.08.2019. He next submitted that Paragraph IV(10) of the said

Government Order includes unmarried, legally separated and widowed daughter, but excludes daughter-in-law, widowed or not, without any reason.

4. In support of his contention, learned counsel for the petitioner has placed reliance upon a Full Bench judgment of this Court in the case of U.P. Power Corporation Ltd. Vs. Smt. Urmila Devi passed in Special Appeal No. 1026 of 2003 decided on 27.01.2011 reported as 2011(3) ADJ 432 (FB). In case of appointment under the Dying in harness, matter with regard to consideration of widowed daughter-in-law has been referred before the Full Bench in which, it has been held that widowed daughter-in-law is having better right than daughter. Ratio of law given in this case shall also be applicable in the present case, where widowed daughter-in-law has been excluded for consideration as it was not defined within 'family' in the Government Order dated 05.08.2019. He next submitted that under such facts of the case and law laid down by this Court in the aforesaid judgment, paragraph IV (10) of Government Order dated 05.08.2019 may be modified by including daughter-in-law, widowed or not, within the definition of 'family'.

5. He further submitted that following the Full Bench judgment in the case of U.P. Power Corporation Ltd. (supra), this Court in the matters of Smt. Sudha Jain Vs. State of U.P. and others, 2011(5) ADJ 730 and Smt. Geeta Srivastava Vs. State of U.P. and others, 2012(9) ADJ 1 has taken same view and direction has been issued to include daughter-in-law within the definition of 'family' for the purpose of appointment.

6. Dr. D. K. Tiwari, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel opposed the submissions made by learned counsel for the petitioner and submitted that in light of the Government Order dated 05.08.2019, application of the petitioner has rightly been rejected, but could not dispute the factual and legal submissions made by learned counsel for the petitioner and law laid down by Full Bench of this Court in the matter of appointment of widowed daughter-in-law on compassionate ground.

7. I have considered the rival submissions made by learned counsel for the parties, perused the record and judgments relied upon by the counsel for petitioner. The facts of the case are undisputed. The licence of fair price shop of the petitioner was rejected only on the ground that widowed daughter-in-law does not come within the purview of 'family' as defined in paragraph IV(10) of the Government Order dated 05.08.2019. Except this, no other ground has been taken. Paragraph IV(10) of the said Government Order is quoted below:-

"(IV) ग्रामीण क्षेत्र में राशन की दुकानों के चयन हेतु अनिवार्य अर्हताएं एवं शर्तेः-

(1) अभ्यर्थी के खाते में कम से कम रू० 40000/- उपलब्ध हों, ताकि वह अपनी दुकान हेतु आवंटित एक माह की सामग्री का एक बार में उठान करने के लिए आर्थिक रूप से सक्षम हो।

(2) अभ्यर्थी द्वारा अपने आवेदन के साथ जिलाधिकारी द्वारा निर्गत चरित्र प्रमाण पत्र भी प्रस्तुत किया जायेगा।

(3) उसकी शैक्षिक योग्यता कम से कम हाई स्कूल अथवा उसके समकक्ष परीक्षा उत्तीर्ण हो।

(4) अभ्यर्थी की आयु 21 वर्ष से अधिक हो और परिवार में किसी अन्य सदस्य के नाम कोई उचित दर दुकान आवंटित न हो।

(5) अभ्यर्थी स्थानीय निवासी हो।

(6) अभ्यर्थी द्वारा रूपये 1000/- की अर्नेस्ट मनी का बैंक ड्राफ्ट जिला पूर्ति अधिकारी के पक्ष में जमा किया जायेगा। उक्त अर्नेस्ट मनी उचित दर दुकान के आवंटन की स्थिति में प्रतिभूति राशि में समायोजित कर ली जायेगी।

(7) उचित दर दुकान की नियुक्ति की स्थिति में अभ्यर्थी को रूपये 10,000/- की प्रतिभूति जमा करनी होगी तथा रूपये 100/- का नान-जूडिशियल स्टाम्प पेपर लगाना होगा। यह प्रतिभूति नये नियुक्त होने वाले दुकान के अभ्यर्थियों से ली जायेगी, जिनकी दुकान पूर्व से ही नियुक्त

है और संचालित है, उनसे नये दर पर प्रतिभूति जमा करवायी जायेगी।

(8) अभ्यर्थी के विरुध्द कोई भी आपराधिक मामले पंजीकृत न हो औ न ही वह किसी आपराधिक मामले में दण्डित किया गया हो।

(9) अभ्यर्थी अथवा उसके परिवार के किसी सदस्य के नाम पूर्व में आवंटित उचित दर दुकान अनियमितता के कारण निरस्त न हुई हो और उसके विरुध्द आवश्यक वस्तु अधिनियम-1955 की धारा 3/7 के अन्तर्गत अथवा आपराधिक दण्ड संहिता के अन्तर्गत कारित किसी जघन्य अपराध में विधिक कार्यवाही न हुई हो।

(10) ग्राम प्रधान के परिवार के सदस्यों के पक्ष में उचित दर की दुकान के आवंटन का प्रस्ताव नहीं किया जायेगा । परिवार की परिभाषा, जैसा कि उ०प्र० आवश्यक वस्तु (वितरण के विनियमन का नियंत्रण) आदेश 2016 में दी गई है, निम्नानुसार होगीः-

परिवार का मुखिया

पति/पत्नी विधिक रूप से अपनाये गये दत्तक सन्तान सहित।

सन्तान जो परिवार के मुखिया पर पूर्ण रूप से आश्रित हो।

अविवाहित, विधिक रूप से पृथक और विधवा बेटी, और

परिवार के मुखिया पर पूर्ण रूप से आश्रित माता/पिता"

8. The issue of consideration for appointment of widowed dauther-in-law was before Full Bench of this Court in the case of U.P. Power Corporation Ltd. (supra), which clearly states that widowed daughter-in-law is having better right than the daughters as included in Government Order dated 05.08.2019. Relevant paragraph of the said judgment is quoted below:-

"We must, however, note one feature of the definition of the word 'family' as generally contained in most Rules. The definition of 'family' includes wife or husband; sons; unmarried and widowed daughters; and if the deceased was an unmarried government servant, the brother, unmarried sister and widowed mother dependant on the deceased government servant. It is, therefore, clear that a widowed daughter in the house of her parents is entitled for consideration on compassionate appointment. However, a widowed daughter-in-law in the house where she is married, is not entitled for compassionate appointment as she is not included in the definition of 'family'. It is not possible to understand how a widowed daughter in her father's house has a better right to claim appointment on compassionate basis than a widowed daughter-in-law in her father-in-law's house. The very nature of compassionate appointment is the financial need or necessity of the family. The daughter-in-law on the death of her husband does not cease to be a part of the family. The concept that such daughter-in-law must go back and stay with her parents is abhorrent to our civilized society. Such daughter-in-law must, therefore, have also right to be considered for compassionate appointment as she is part of the family where she is married and if staying with her husband's family. In this context, in our opinion, arbitrariness, as presently existing, can be avoided by including the daughter-in-law in the definition of 'family'. Otherwise, the definition to that extent, prima facie, would be irrational and arbitrary. The State, therefore, to consider this aspect and take appropriate steps so that a widowed daughter-in-law like a widowed daughter, is also entitled for consideration by way of compassionate appointment, if other criteria is satisfied.

Learned Chief Standing Counsel to forward a copy of this order to the Secretary of the concerned Department in the State Government for appropriate consideration."

9. This ratio of law has been followed by this Court in the cases of Smt. Sudha Jain and Smt. Geeta Srivastava (supra).

10. In the present case, after death of late Mahadei Devi, out of three family members, who are dependants (widowed daughter-in-law and two minor daughters), only petitioner is major in the age to submit application for allotment of fair price shop under succession after death of her mother-in-law. She had applied for the same, but rejected only on the ground that widowed daughter-in-law is not covered within the 'family'. Ratio of law given in Full Bench in the case of appointment is fully applicable in the present case also and daughter-in-law, widowed or not, is having better right than daughter, who is included in the definition of 'family' in Paragraph IV(10) of the Government Order dated 05.08.2019.

11. Therefore, under such facts of the case and legal proposition, I find no good reason to sustain the impugned order dated 17.06.2021 as well as Paragraph IV(10) of Government Order dated 05.08.2019 so far as it excludes daughter-in-law, widowed or not, within the definition of 'family'.

12. Accordingly, the writ petition is allowed. Let a writ of certiorari be issued quashing the impugned order dated 17.06.2021 passed by respondent no. 3 and modifying the Paragraph IV(10) of the Govrnment Order dated 05.08.2019 to the extent to include daughter-in-law, widowed or not, within the definition of 'family'. A writ of mandamus be issued directing the respondent no. 1 Secretary, Food and Civil Supplies, Government of U.P., Lucknow to issue fresh Government Order or modification in Government Order dated 05.08.2019 including daughter-in-law, widowed or not, within the definition of 'family' .

13. Learned Chief Standing Counsel is directed to send a copy of this order to respondent no. 1 Secretary, Food and Civil Supplies, Government of U.P., Lucknow for issuance of fresh/modified Government Order at the earliest, maximum within a period of four weeks from the date of receiving of copy of this order. In case Department of Food and Civil Supplies is having posting of Additional Chief Secretary or Principal Secretary, they are responsible to ensure the compliance of this order for issuance of fresh Government Order or modification in the Government Order dated 05.08.2019.

14. Petitioner is also given liberty to serve the certified copy of this order before the respondent no. 1, Secretary, Food and Civil Supplies, Government of U.P., Lucknow for compliance.

15. Thereafrter, the respondent no. 3 is directed to reconsider the application of the petitioner afresh and pass appropriate order in accordance with fresh/modified Government Order within two weeks thereafter.

A. UP Zamindari Abolition & Land Reform Act, 1950 – Section 161 – UPZA & LR Rules, 1952 – Rules 144 &146 – Exchange of private land with land of Gaon Sabha – Permissibility – No notice of any resolution of Gaon Sabha in the impugned order – Effect – Held, experience shows that Section 161 of the U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Act are often prone to abuse, lands are often exchanged under political considerations much to the detriment of the Gaon Sabha and public interests at large – An exchange without noticing the resolution of the Gaon Sabha regarding full consent and the rational of such exchange cannot be countenanced in law – High Court issued direction to make St. of UP through District Magistrate necessary party in all disputes pertaining to the Gaon Sabha's lands. 1. By means of this writ petition, a direction has been sought upon the respondent no.2-District Magistrate, Prayagraj, respondent No. 3-Sub-Divisional Magistrate, Tehsil Handia, District Prayagraj and respondent No. 4 Tehsildar, Tehsil Handia District Prayagraj to implement the order dated 26.06.2008 as well as order dated 16.06.2021 under Section 161 of the U.P.Z.A.&LR.Act1.

2. The writ petition out of proceedings for exchange of private land with land of Gaon Sabha taken out under Section 161 of the U.P.Z.A.&L.R. Act. The provision is extracted hereinunder:

"161. Exchange. - [(1) A bhumidhar [* * *] may exchange with-

(a) any other bhumidhar [* * *] land held by him; or

(b) any [Gaon Sabha] or local authority, lands for the time being vested in it under Section 117 [* * *] :

Provided that no exchange shall be made except with the permission of an Assistant Collector who shall refuse permission if the difference between the rental value of land given in exchange and of land received in exchange calculated at hereditary rates is more than 10 per cent of the lower rental value.

(1-A) Where the Assistant Collector permits exchange he shall also order the relevant annual registers to be corrected accordingly.

(2) On exchange made in accordance with sub-section (1) they shall have the same rights in the land so received in exchange as they had in the land given exchange."

3. The provision has to be read with Rules 144 to 146 of the U.P.Z.A.&LR. Rules, 19522 to understand its working. The Rules are extracted hereinbelow:

"144. An application [for permission to make an]exchange shall contain the following particulars and be accompanied by the following documents:-

(1) The khasra number of the plots-

(a) [* * *] which the applicant wishes to receive and of the plots which he offers in exchange of,

(b) [* * *]

(2) certified copies of the khataunis relating'to the khatas in which all such plots are included;

(3) [* * *]

(4) a statement showing the details of any valid deeds mortgage or other encumbrances with which the lands to be exchanged may be burdened, together with the names and addresses of lessees, mortgagees or holders of other encumbrances.

145. On receipt of an application for [permission to make an]exchange of land the Assistant Collector [shall cause to be calculated the rental value of the land proposed to be given in exchange and of the land proposed to be received in exchange at hereditary rates and] if he is satisfied that the exchange is not invalid according to the proviso to sub-section (1) of Section 161, call upon the parties, the lessees, mortgagees or holders of other encumbrances, if any, to show cause why the exchange should not be made. Every such notice shall be accompanied by a copy of the application which shall be supplied by the applicant.

146. The Assistant Collector shall thereupon decide the objections, if any, and pass suitable orders. If he decides that the exchange should be allowed, he shall also make an order for the delivery of possession, if necessary, and for the correction of papers."

4. Section 161 of the U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Act, 1950 read with Rules 144, 145 and 146 of the U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Rules, 1952 together comprise the legislative scheme for exchange of private lands with Gaon Sabha.

5. While interpreting the aforesaid provision, a learned Single Judge of this Court in Shiv Murat Vs. Board of Revenue, U.P. at Allahabad3, held as under:

"8. Section 161 of the Act provides for exchange. A bhumidhar may exchange with (a) any other bhumidhar land held by him or (b) land vesting in any Gaon Sabha or local authority under Section 117. The proviso to Section 161 requires prior permission of the Assistant Collector upon being satisfied that conditions of rental value of the respective land calculated at hereditary rates is not more than 10 percent of the lower rental value. On exchange being made in accordance with sub-section (1) shall confer same rights in the land received in exchange as the bhumidhar had in the land given in exchange.

9. Rule 144 requires that an application for permission to make an exchange shall contain the detail of khasra number of the plots which the applicant wishes to receive and of the plots which he offers in exchange.

Upon receiving such an application, Rule 145 requires that the Assistant Collector shall cause calculation of the rental value of the land proposed to be given in exchange and the land proposed to be received in exchange at hereditary rates and if he is satisfied that the exchange is not invalid according to the proviso to sub-section (1) of Section 161 the Assistant Collector shall call upon the parties, if any, to show-cause why the exchange should not be made. Every such notice shall be accompanied by a copy of the application. If the Assistant Collector decides that the exchange should be allowed, he shall also make an order for delivery of possession, if necessary, and for the correction of papers.

11. On plain reading of Sub-clause (i) of Section 161 and Rule 145, it is apparent that the Assistant Collector upon being satisfied with the conditions of exchange, as a consequence of the Rule he is required to call upon the parties to show-cause why the exchange should not be made and thereafter under Rule 146 the Assistant Collector is to decide the objections, if any, and pass suitable orders. It is, therefore, clear that without notice to the Gaon Sabha and in absence of a resolution recording consent of the Land Management Committee the permission to make an exchange suo moto by the Assistant Collector on a report of the Halka Lekhpal would be void not being mandated under Section 161 of the Act.

14. Section 28B enumerates the functions of the Land Management Committee which, amongest other, is charged with the general management, preservation and control of all property referred to in Section 28-A which includes settling and management of land but does not include transfer of any property for the time being, vested in the Gram Panchayat under Section 117 of the U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Act or under any other provisions of the Act.

15. On a plain reading of the provisions of the U.P. Panchayat Raj Act, it is clear that the report or consent of the Secretary of Land Management Committee (Lekhpal) is certainly not the consent of the Gram Panchayat which is conferred the right and duty to the protection and supervision of management and up-keep of the property belonging to or vesting or held by the Gram Panchayat. Lekhpal in the capacity of a revenue officer submitting a report sought by the Assistant Collector would not reflect the consent of the Land Management Committee for the reason that the Lekhpal performs his duty in two different capacity: (i) Secretary of Land Management Committee and (ii) Officer of the revenue, therefore, the plea of the learned counsel for the petitioner that the consent of the Lekhpal would be the consent of the Gram Panchayat cannot be accepted.

16. From the conjoint reading of Section 161, as well as, the Rules relating thereto, it transpires that the legislature has extended facility upon a bhumidhar to exchange his bhumidhari land from land of another bhumidhar for their convenience upon satisfying the conditions for exchange. Such exchange cannot be valid unless permission of the Assistant Collector has been obtained. An exchange involves the transfer of property by one person to another and reciprocally the transfer of property by that other to the first person. There must be a mutual transfer of ownership of one thing for the ownership of another.

17. On the bare reading of the meaning of the word "exchange" it would transpire that it is not unilateral transaction and is mutual one and it depends on the readiness and willingness of both the parties, i.e., the party which wants to exchange and the party which accepts the exchange proposed by the other party. Therefore, I am of the considered opinion that unless both the parties agree for exchange, the Assistant Collector cannot accord permission merely at the instance of an individual seeking exchange of his land with another individual unless he is willing to exchange. The willingness of the parties to exchange their respective land is condition precedent under Section 161 of the Act. The exchange of the land is not unilateral transaction of a willing party to exchange, there must be consent of the person with whom exchange has been sought and unless there is agreement of exchange between the parties, there is no such power vested with the Assistant Collector under the statute to compel the bhumidhar to exchange land with another bhumidhar/Gaon Sabha against its will."

6. Experience shows that Section 161 of the U.P.Z.A.&L.R. Act are often prone to abuse, lands are often exchanged under political considerations much to the detriment of the Gaon Sabha and public interests at large.

7. In Rambali and others v. State of U.P. and others4, this Court declined to mandamus the Assistant Collector to decide the application under Section 161 without finding due compliance of all relevant provisions comprising the scheme of exchange by holding as under:

"12....As I have noticed that the exchange of land belonging to a bhumidhar to another bhumidhar is not unilateral transaction by a willing party to exchange, there must be consent of the person with whom exchange has been sought and unless there is an agreement of exchange between the parties, there is no such power, vested with the Assistant Collector, under the statute, to compel a bhumidhar for exchange of his land with another bhumidhar against his will. I am of the view that conferment of right of exchange of the land under Section 161 of the Act read with relevant rules as detailed is subject to convenience of both the parties to the exchange and in the eventuality the willingness of both the sides to exchange, the Section 161 imposes duty upon the Assistant Collector either to grant permission or to refuse the same if the same is not inconformity with the Section 161 of the Act and the rules 144 to 147 of the Rules."

8. Adherence to the procedure under Rules 144 to 146 of the U.P.Z.A.&L.R.Rules,1952, were held to be mandatory in Smt. Badi Dulaiya v. Gaon Sabha5.

9. It is noteworthy that the importance of adherence to Rule 144 to 146 was also emphasized in Shiv Murat (supra) by setting forth as under:

"23. Before disposing of the application for exchange, a duty is cast upon the Assistant Collector to ensure that the provisions of Rule 144 to 146 are literally followed. (Refer-Ashok Kumar v. Mahavir Singh, 1994 RD 136; State of U.P. v. M/s Techno Tower Ltd., 1986 RD 397). The proceedings for exchange are judicial proceeding and therefore, the Assistant Collector should pass complete and self contained order. Where the Assistant Collector finds that parties involved in the exchange have not consented, therefor, or if any of them has withdrawn such consent, he has no option but to reject the application. (Fakir Chand v. Naib Johra Zaidi, 1995 RD 405)." (Emphasis supplied)

10. An exchange without noticing the resolution of the Gaon Sabha regarding full consent and the rational of such exchange cannot be countenanced in law. Reference may be had in this regard to the law laid down in Narain Singh v. Gaon Sabha6, and Gulshan Rai v. Mitra Sen7.

11. The importance of a proper resolution of the Gaon Sabha and not a personal consent of the Lekhpal or Pradhan for purposes of such exchange was stated in Harihar Prasad v. Jagdish8.

12. The manner of application of mind by the Assistant Collector in proceedings under Section 161 U.P.Z.A.&L.R. Act was discussed by this Court in Shiv Murat (supra) :

"26. The disputed land of the Gaon Sabha is recorded as manure pit being a public utility land and covered under Section 132 of the Act, no right or interest of a bhumidhar can be acquired in respect thereof, in view of sub-section C (vi) of Section 132. On fulfilling the conditions of exchange the Assistant Collector is not required to mechanically recommend exchange on mere asking of the parties, in particular, Gram Panchayat Land. The Assistant Collector is duty bound to consider whether the land sought for in exchange is a public utility land; or whether the land is being exchanged for a Gram Panchayat land which is situated on the proposed four lane road, thus, having commercial value, etc."

13. In summation an order under Section 161 of the U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Act, 1950 has to be self contained and should duly reflect compliance with all relevant provisions of law as stated in judicial authorities in point discussed above.

14. In the case at hand the order dated 26.06.2008 has been passed by Sub Divisional Officer, Handia, Allahabad approving the exchange of land in purported exercise of powers under Section 161 of the U.P.Z.A.&L.R. Act, 1950. The said order dated 26.06.2008 does not record compliance of Rules 144 to 146 of the U.P.Z.A.&L.R. Rules, 1952. Further rental value of the lands which are sought to be exchanged and the basis of calculation of such rental value has not been disclosed in the order approving the exchange. This is an imperative requirement of law. Resolution of Gaon Sabha and contents thereof have also not been noticed. The order dated 26.06.2008 is also silent on the nature and utility of lands to be exchanged. These infirmities vitiate the order dated 26.06.2008.

15. The order dated 26.06.2008 fails to carry out the mandate of Section 161 of the U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Act read with Rules 141 to 146 of the U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Rules, 1952 and contrary to the law laid down by this Court in the body of judicial precedents discussed earlier.

16. Mandamus is a discretionary remedy under Article 226 of the Constitution of India (Ref:Mansukhlal Vithaldas Chauhan Vs State of Gujrat, 1997 (7) SCC 622). Before exercising the discretion in favour of any petitioner the court may examine whether an illegal order is sought to be implemented by mandamus, or advantage is being taken of callous attitude of the land management committees or apathy of officials or collection of parties to the detriment of the State and larger public interests in a manner contrary to law. A mandamus cannot be issued to enforce an illegal order or for an unlawful purpose. (Ref: Chandrika Prasad and others Vs Settlement Officer Consolidation and others, 2009 (8) ADJ 1619). The court in such matters can mould the relief and pass appropriate orders to ensure faithful implementation of the law and to serve the interests of justice.

17. In fact this Court does not have any hesitation to hold that the aforesaid order dated 26.06.2008 is contrary to law and cannot be executed. Though the order dated 26.06.2008 is not under challenge, the rights conferred by such order are subject matter of this writ petition. In this wake no rights flow to the petitioner from the order dated 26.06.2008. A mandamus cannot be issued to compel the implementation of the order dated 26.06.2008.

18. The preceding findings have been made on the footing of the recitals contained in the order dated 26.06.2008. No affidavit can improve the content of the order dated 26.06.2008. The order has to stand the test of legality on the basis of the recitals contained therein. The recitals in the order could not be disputed by the learned counsel for the petitioner nor by the learned Standing Counsel.

19. It is, however, open to the petitioner to seek fresh proceedings for exchange of land as per law.

20. While sitting in this jurisdiction I have noticed the callous attitude of the land management committees towards litigation in regard to the Gaon Sabha lands. In a sense Gaon Sabha lands are ultimately State lands. The State Government entrusts such lands to the Gaon Sabha. The State Government by adopting the procedure prescribed by law can also resume such lands. Higher public interest demands that the State Government should exercise vigilance over exchange of such lands by the Gaon Sabha with private lands.

21. These observations do not dilute the rights of the Gaon Sabha accruing from entrustment made by the State Government to the Gaon Sabha.

22. Considering the fact that in a large number of cases under Section 161 of the U.P.Z.A.&L.R. Act, the interests of the Gaon Sabha and the State lands are compromised, it is directed that the State of U.P. through the District Magistrate shall be made necessary parties in all disputes pertaining to the Gaon Sabha's lands and in particular in proceedings under Section 161. It shall be mandatory for the State through the District Magistrate to file their affidavits in all such disputes.

23. In light of the of preceding discussions the writ petition is devoid of merit and is liable to be dismissed and is dismissed.

Copy of this order shall be communicated by the Chief Standing Counsel to:

(1) Principal Secretary Panchayat Raj, Government of U.P., Lucknow.
(2) Commissioner Prayagraj Division, Prayagraj.
(3) District Magistrate, Prayagraj.
(4) Sub Divisional Magistrate, Handia, Prayagraj.

Junior High School (Payment of Salaries of the Teachers and Other Employees) Act, 1978 including the arrears of salary since 2006 as well as current salary as and when it comes due.

5. The factual matrix of the case is as follows:

The petitioner-institution is a recognized Junior High School and pursuant to government policy embodied in the Government Order dated 07.09.2006, it applied for the benefit of grant-in-aid from the State Exchequer. The cases of all the applicants were to be considered as per the prescriptions available in the said Government Order dated 07.09.2006 and final list of the institutions brought under grant-in-aid list was published on 02.12.2006. The petitioner-institution was, however, denied the said benefit and its name did not figure in the said list finalized by the State Government on 02.12.2006, which led the petitioner-institution to institute a writ petition, which was dismissed by the Hon'ble Single Judge on 02.02.2009. Challenging the said order dated 02.02.2009, the petitioner filed a Special Appeal which was disposed of by the Division Bench of this Court, vide its judgment and order dated 17.03.2009 permitting the petitioner-institution to file an appropriate application before the State Level Committee and it was further directed that in case such an application is filed, the appropriate authority shall pass appropriate order after examining the facts of the case and after giving opportunity of hearing to the parties concerned. It is in compliance of this order dated 17.03.2009, passed by the Division Bench of this Court that the impugned order dated 05.07.2009 has been passed by the Director of Basic Education, U.P., Lucknow.

For the purposes of bringing 1000 unaided Junior High Schools having permanent recognition on the grant-in-aid list of the State Government, a Government Order was issued on 07.09.2006, a copy of which has been annexed as Annexure No.2 to the writ petition. In the said Government Order dated 07.09.2006, a detailed procedure was prescribed for the purpose of consideration of the cases of the Junior High Schools for giving them the benefit of grant-in-aid. The conditions mentioned in the said Government Order for Junior High Schools seeking the benefit of grant-in-aid were that the institution concerned should have permanent recognition, the Society running the institution should be registered, whose registration should be renewed and the institution should have student strength in Classes 6, 7 and 8 in last three years, as on 30.09.2006, not less than 105. Certain other conditions were also prescribed in the said Government Order and the conditions were that the finances of the institution should be managed as per rules, that institution should have the building of its own, that management of the institution should pass a resolution that in case the institution is taken on grant-in-aid list, it shall abide by the terms and conditions of the grant, that there should not be any dispute in the management and that in case the institution is brought in grant-in-aid list such institution shall be required to fulfill the aforesaid eligibility conditions even in future.

Three committees were also constituted for the purposes of processing the applications for grant of benefit of grant-in-aid. The first such Committee was constituted at the directorate level comprising of various members and the Director of Basic Education/Chairman, Basic Shiksha Parishad was to be its chairperson. The second Committee constituted was a Committee at the Regional Level to be chaired by the Assistant Regional Director of Basic Education. The said Regional Level Committee also comprised of various officers and was headed by the Assistant Regional Director of Basic Education. The third Committee was headed by the District Basic Education Officer which was known as District Level Committee.

The Government Order dated 07.09.2006 further provided a schedule/time table for the purpose of making selection of the institutions for being extended the benefit of grant-in-aid, according to which, Directorate of Basic Education was required to publish a Notification and advertisement till 10.09.2006. The last date for making applications before the District Basic Education Officer was 03.10.2006. By 20.10.2006, an inspection team consisting of District Basic Education Officer, Deputy Basic Education Officer and two senior-most Assistant Basic Education Officers was required to conduct the spot inspection and accordingly thereafter the proposals were to be submitted for scrutiny before the Regional Level Committee. The Regional Level Committee was required to scrutinize the proposals till 01.11.2006. The Regional Level Committee was also required to intimate the deficiencies found while examining the proposals received from the institutions. The institutions in whose cases deficiencies were intimated, were required to make their representation by 10.11.2006 removing the deficiencies and thereafter Regional Level Committee was required to finalize the list and send the same to the Directorate Level Committee by 15.11.2006. The Directorate Level Committee was to consider all the proposals received by it in the meeting to be convened on 20.11.2006 and thereafter the matter was to be referred for final decision to the State Government.

The petitioner-institution submitted its application in terms of the Government Order dated 07.09.2006 for consideration of its case for being brought on grant-in-aid list. However, it appears that a letter dated 01.11.2006, on consideration of the proposal by the Regional Level Committee, was written by the Assistant Regional Director of Basic Education, Allahabad pointing out certain deficiencies in the proposal of the petitioner-institution including the deficiency that there is some dispute in the management of the institution. In response to the said letter dated 01.11.2006, a reply dated 10.11.2006 is said to have been submitted by the petitioner-institution on 13.11.2006, though the last date for receipt of the representation from the applicants-institutions for removal of the deficiencies was 10.11.2006 as prescribed in the Government Order dated 07.09.2006. However, when final list of the institution brought on grant-in-aid list was published on 07.12.2006 and the petitioner-institution did not figure in the said list, the petitioner-institution filed a writ petition before this Court which was dismissed on 02.09.2009 by Hon'ble Single Judge and thereafter in the Special Appeal preferred by the petitioner-institution, namely, Special Appeal No. 352 of 2009, certain directions were issued permitting the petitioner-institution to file appropriate application before the State Level Committee which was to be examined and decided by the competent authority.

Pursuant to the aforesaid order, on 2nd April, 2009, the petitioners have made representation before the competent authority i.e. Director of Education (Basic), U.P. at Lucknow. However, the Director of Education (Basic) has rejected the claim of the petitioners vide order dated 5th July, 2009, nearly on the same grounds.

Perusal of the order dated 5th July, 2009 reveals that the first ground, which had been mentioned by the Director of Education (Basic) for rejecting the claim of the petitioner, was that the last date for submission of the application form provided under Government order dated 7th September, 2006 before the District Basic Education Officer, Kaushambi was 3rd October, 2006 and on which date, there was a dispute between two groups of management of the petitioners' institution and both these rival groups had submitted two different management returns. Second ground mentioned in the order dated 5th July, 2009 was that the petitioners' institution was required to remove the deficiencies by 10th November, 2006. However, by the last date, the petitioners' institution failed to submit their representation intimating the removal of deficiencies, which were pointed out by the Regional Level Committee in its communication letter dated 1st November, 2006, when as a matter of fact the representation in that regard was made on 13th November, 2006. The other ground mentioned in the order dated 5th July, 2009 for rejecting the claim of the petitioner was that on the last date of submission of the application form to be precise on 3rd October, 2006, the registration of the society of the petitioners' institution was not renewed.

6. Feeling aggrieved, the petitioners have approached this Court by means of Writ-C No. 44345 of 2009 (C/M Sri Satya Narain Junior High School & Another Vs. State of U.P. & Others) and a Coordinate Bench of this Court vide judgment and order dated 11th October, 20017, while allowing the said writ petitioner, quashed the order dated 5th July, 2009 and remitted the matter back before the Director of Education (Basic) to consider and decide claim of the petitioners' institution afresh in light of the observations made in the judgment and order dated 11th October, 2017 itself. However, the Coordinate Bench while passing the judgment and order dated 11th October, 2017, has given liberty to the Director of Education (Basic) to call for reports, material and other documents as may be necessary from the District Level Education Authorities, while considering the claim of the petitioner.

7. Thereafter the petitioners' institution have made a representation dated 24th October, 2017 before respondent no.2 i.e. Director of Education (Basic) along with a copy of the judgment and order dated 11th October, 2017 for taking appropriate decision.

8. Respondent no.2-Director of Education (Basic), has again rejected the claim of the petitioner vide order dated 23/24th May, 2018 on the ground that under the Government Order 30th July, 2017, the State Government has taken a new policy decision and in view of the said policy decision, the petitioners' institution cannot be recommended to the State Government for taking the same into grant-in-aid list. It is against this order dated 23/24th May, 2018 that the present writ petition has been filed.

9. In the order impugned dated 23/24th May, 2018, the other grounds mentioned for rejecting the claim of the petitioners' institution, are the same, as were mentioned in the judgment and order of the Coordinate Bench dated 11th October, 2017 passed in Writ-C No. 44345 of 2009.

10. Challenging the impugned order dated 23/24th May, 2018, following arguments have been advanced by Mr. Radha Kant Ojha, learned Senior Advocate appearing on behalf of the petitioners:

i). The order dated 23/24th May, 2018 is patently erroneous, illegal and arbitrary; ii). The Policy Decision taken by the State Government under the Government Order dated 13th July, 2017 is not applicable to the case of the petitioners' institution, as the petitioners' institution had applied for taking the institution into grant-in-aid list from the very beginning i.e. in the year 2006 itself and aforesaid policy decision was taken in the year 2017, therefore, any policy decision taken by the State Government or any Government Order issued by the State Government is given effect prospectively and not retrospectively;

iii). Two different Coordinate Benches of this Court vide judgment and orders dated 27th September, 2019 and 23rd May, 2019 passed in Writ-C No. 4735 of 2017 (Committee of Management of Ram Daun Ram Raj Pre-Secondary School & Another VS. State of U.P. & 2 Others) and Writ-C No. 38992 of 2017 (Writ-A No. 38992 of 2017 (Jai Ram Singh & 11 Others Vs. State of U.P. & 3 Others) along with connected petitions respectively, have set aside the Government Order dated 13th July, 2017, therefore, the same has no relevance at present;

iv) The petitioners' institution initially granted temporary recognition and thereafter after completing the requisite formalities, the institution has been granted permanent recognition in the year 1986, furthermore, in pursuance of the Government Order dated 7th September, 2006, the petitioners' institution has fulfilled all requirements and also they are pursuing their claim since 2006 for taking the petitioners' institution into grant-in-aid list. Initially, the petitioners have approached this Court earlier by means of a writ petition, which was dismissed and against the order of dismissal, the petitioners have preferred Special Appeal before the appellate court. In the said Special Appeal, the appellate court has directed that claim of the petitioners be considered by a State Level Committee. In pursuance of the aforesaid, the petitioners have represented their claim and on the same ground, the Director of Education (Basic) U.P. Lucknow has rejected their claim vide order dated 5.7.2009 against which the petitioners have approached the Writ Court again by filing Writ-C No. 44345 of 2009, wherein the order of the Director of Education (Basic) U.P. Lucknow was set aside and matter was remitted back before him to decide the same afresh. However, the Director of Education (Basic) U.P. Lucknow has passed impugned order dated 23/24.5.2018 by recording that now the State Government has taken a policy decision vide Government Order dated 13.7.2017 and against the said policy decision institution in question cannot be recommended to the State Government for putting the same into grant-in aid list, therefore, order impugned passed by the Respondent no. 2 is without the application of mind and also not sustainable in the eyes of law;

v). On the similar facts and circumstances, a writ petition bearing Writ-C No. 17883 of 2008 (Committee of Management Mohan Lal Adarsh Purva M.V. Salempur Vs. State of U.P. and others), was also filed before a Writ Court, in which the Writ Court was pleased to pass judgment and order dated 3.11.2017 and in pursuance of the aforesaid order, now as per information of the petitioners, the Authority concerned has passed order dated 6.6.2018 taking the aforesaid petitioners' institution into grant-in-aid list. Therefore, when the case of the petitioners' institution is similar to that of the said institution, the order impugned rejecting claim of the Petitioners is not sustainable in the eyes of law and also discriminatory in nature; vi). From perusal of the impugned order, it is apparently clear that the petitioners have submitted requisite forms on a prescribed format by means of the letter dated 3.10.2006, whereas, another person, namely, Shashi Bhushan Dwivedi has also submitted the form before the District Basic Education Officer, Kaushambi, therefore, there is no question that form has not been submitted within time, though, it was submitted by two persons claiming to be rival Committee of Management;

vii) The dispute of the Committee of Management of the petitioners' institution has already been decided by the Assistant Registrar,

Firms, Societies and Chits, Allahabad vide order dated 4.11.2006 and it was decided in favour of the Petitioners' side. The Writ Court in its judgment and order dated 11th October, 2017 referred to above, while setting aside the earlier order of the Director of Education (Basic) dated 5th July, 2009, has opined that on passing of the order of the Assistant Registrar, Firms, Societies and Chits, Allahabad dated 4th November, 2006, there is no difficulty for conclusively holding that as on 10th November, 2006, there was no dispute in respect of the Committee of Management. Along with aforesaid order as well as certificate of renewal of the Committee of Management, the Petitioners have submitted a detailed reply to the District Basic Education Officer, Kaushambi on 10.11.2006, who inturn has assured that he will give receiving on the same date but by 4 o'clock, he has refused to receive the documents and also said that he will not provide receiving of the same. Therefore, there is no fault on the part of the petitioners to submit necessary reply in the office of District Basic Education Officer, Kaushambi, as required in the objections;

viii). Just after 4 o'clock, on 10th November, 2006, Mr. Ambika Prasad Tripathi, being Manager of the Committee of Management, reached the office of Assistant Director of Education (Basic), IVth Regional, Allahabad at 5.30 p.m. from the office of the District Basic Education Officer, Kaushambi but the said office was closed and on the next day i.e. 11th November, 2006, there was holiday due to Second Saturday and again on the next day i.e. 12.11.2006, there was holiday due to Sunday, thereafter the petitioners have served all documents, as per the objection, in the office of the Assistant Director of Education (Basic) 4th Region, Allahabad on 13.11.2006; ix). From perusal of the Government Order dated 7.9.2006, it is clear that the objection has to be decided by a Committee headed by the Assistant Director of Education (Basic) 4th Region, Allahabad at the Regional Level on 15th November, 2006, therefore, in all probability, the objection has strictly been placed in the office of Assistant Director of Education (Basic) 4th Region, Allahabad on 13.11.2006, which has been admitted by the Director of Education (Basic) himself, therefore, all formalities, as required in the objection, have been completed by the petitioners and objections have already been removed on or before 15th November, 2006; x). Since the then District Basic Education Officer, Kaushambi, namely, Ashok Nath Tiwari, was under pressure of Mr. Shashi Bhushan Dwivedi, who has highly political relations, as one of his brothers is a Member and Vice President of All India Congress Committee, U.P., therefore, he has not received the application forms of the petitioners' institution along with other documents removing the deficiencies pointed out in the objection, on 10.11.2006 by 4 o'clock. Therefore, the petitioner had no fault in submitting the aforesaid document by 10th November, 2006; xi). The Director of Education (Basic) U.P. Lucknow has passed the impugned order dated 23/24th May, 2018 almost on the same lines and grounds, as on the basis of which earlier order dated 5th July, 2009 was passed and the Writ Court, while setting aside the order dated 5th July, 2009, has directed the Director of Education (Basic) to reconsider the claim of the petitioners' institution afresh in light of the observations made in the said judgment, as several institutions, which have been recognized later on, have been taken into grant-in-aid list, therefore, not taking the petitioners' institution into grant-in-aid list, is absolutely arbitrary and in violation of the Article 14 of the Constitution of India.

On the cumulative strength of the aforesaid submissions, learned counsel for the petitioners submits that the order impugned dated 23/24th May, 2018 be set aside and the Director of Education (Basic) be directed to consider the claim of the petitioners afresh for taking the petitioners' institution in the grant-in-aid list within stipulated period fixed by this Court.

11. On the other hand, the learned Standing Counsel makes following submissions:

(a) The order impugned is legal and valid, therefore, no interference is warranted by this Court while exercising its powers under Article 226 of the Constitution of India;

(b) It is not in dispute that the petitioners' society, namely, Sri Satya Narain Junior High School Marhi, Post Office-Dhuksha, Allahabad is a registered society under the Societies Registration Act, 1860. The said society was renewed on 3rd November, 2005 for a period of five years and thereafter it could not be renewed. On 4th March, 2006, the renewal fees had been deposited in the office of the Assistant Registrar, Firms Societies and Chits, Allahapur, Allahabad. In the meantime, by showing the resignation of Ambika Prasad Tripathi, Shashibhushan Dwivedi had deposited the fees for renewal of the said society in the office of Assistant Registrar, Firms, Societies and Chits due to which a dispute was arisen after which Ambika Prasad Tripathi, for his renewal of the society, filed Writ Petition No. 54919 of 20016 before the Writ Court and the Writ Court vide order dated 1st October, 2006 directed to Assistant Registrar, Firms Societies and Chits to decide the matter. The Assistant Registrar passed an order dated 4th November, 2006 in favour of Ambika Prasad Tripathi. Against the order dated 4th November, 2006, Shashibhushan Dwivedi filed Writ Petition No. 64232 of 2006, which was dismissed in default vide order dated 26th February, 2013;

(c) The State Government issued a Government Order dated 7th September, 2006 for taking the non-Government permanent aided institutions into grant-in-aid list. In the said Government Order, procedure as well as terms and conditions have also been determined;

(d) The Committee of Management of the said society made available two Manager Returns (M.R.) applications on 3rd October, 2006, on one application, Ambika Prasad Tripathi has put his signature under the capacity of Manager, whereas on the second application, Shahshibhuhsan Dwivedi has put in signatures under the capacity of Manager of the "Committee of Management of the said society. Since the entries on both the manager returns were different, the Committee of Management of the said society was disputed;

(e) Apart from the above, on the application submitted by the Committee of Management of the said society for taking the petitioners' institution in grant-in-aid list, the Divisional Director of Education (Basic), Allahabad vide his letter dated 1st November, 2006 informed the Manager and Principal of the petitioners' institution that for taking the institution in grant-in-aid list, following conditions have not been fulfilled:

(I) There is management dispute in the institution;

(II) The teaching rooms of the said institution were less than that prescribed under the norms;

(III) The necessary information/records about of the students and the account of the institution were not enclosed.

In the said letter dated 1st November, 2006, it has also been directed that the Manager and the Principal of the institution shall also ensure that a representation along with the copies of relevant records of removing the aforesaid deficiencies is made available in the office of the Divisional Director of Education (Basic), Allahabad by 10th November, 2006 through the office of the District Basic Education Officer. By the said letter it has also been informed that upto 10th November, 2006, if the representation is not received, then it may be presumed that they did not want to say anything in that regard and further proceedings may be ensured in the concerned matter. As per the said letter, the petitioner upto said fixed date, had not made available the representation along with the necessary documents qua removal the deficiencies in the office of the District Basic Education Officer, Kaushambi nor he could submit any document on the basis of which it could be said that he had removed the deficiencies as pointed in the letter of the Divisional Director;

(f) As per the Government Order dated 7th September, 2006, the papers/documents must be received in the office of District Basic Education Officer upto 10th November, 2006 but the petitioner did not submit his representation after removing deficiencies to the District Basic Education Officer, Kaushambi upto 10th November, 2006. It was not required to sent the papers directly to the office of Director of Education (Basic);

(g) Against the order dated 4th November, 2006 passed by the Assistant Registrar, Firms Societies and Chits directing renewal of the Committee of Management headed by Ambika Prasad Tripathi, Shashi Bhushan Dwivedi filed Writ Petition No. 64232 of 2006 and the same was dismissed in default on 26th February, 2013 from which it is clear that the dispute of the Committee of Management of the petitioners' society was pending upto 26th February, 2013;

(h) Along with the application for taking the petitioners' institution in the grant-in-aid list, they have not disclosed about the roofs of the teaching rooms of the institution as to which have been constructed by Tinshed or cemented linter and because of the same, the Division Assistant Director of Education (Basic) has raised objection in his letter dated 1st November, 2006 addressed to the Manager and Principal of the petitioners' institution;

(i) Since the institution had not fulfilled the terms and conditions of Government Order dated 7th September, 2006 as well as there was managerial dispute in the committee of management, the institution was not taken in the grant-in-aid list and information in that regard has already been issued to the petitioners by the Divisional Assistant Director of Education (Basic) vide letter dated 8th January, 2007;

(j) In compliance of the judgment and order of the Writ Court dated 11th October, 2017 the Director of Education (Basic), U.P. at Lucknow by his order dated 24th May, 2018 had afforded opportunity of hearing to the parties concerned and decided the matter in accordance with law while passing the order impugned.

On the cumulative strength of the aforesaid, learned Standing Counsel submits that all the submissions made by the learned counsel for the petitioners are incorrect and not tenable in the eyes of law, petitioner is not entitled to get any relief from this Court under Article 226 of the Constitution of India. Hence the present writ petition is liable to be rejected.

12. I have considered the submissions made by the learned counsel for the parties and have examined the entire records available before this Court.

13. This Court finds substance in the submission made by the learned counsel for the petitioner that the policy decision taken by the State Government under the Government Order dated 13th July, 2017 is not applicable to the case of the petitioners' institution, as the petitioners' institution had applied for taking the institution into grant-in-aid list from the very beginning i.e. in the year 2006 itself and the aforesaid policy decision was taken in the year 2017, therefore, any policy decision taken by the State Government or any Government Order issued by the State Government is given effect prospectively and not retrospectively. Any government decision or order will have prospective effect and not retrospective effect. The same will have effect with effect from its date of enforcement/issuance not before the said date.

14. The Apex Court in its latest judgment in the case of Union of India & Others Vs.

G.S. Chatha Rice Mills & Another reported in (2021) 2 SCC 209, has opined that a rule framed by the delegate of the legislature does not have retrospective effect unless the statutory provision, under which it is framed, allows it so, either by the use of specific words to that effect or by necessary implication. The Apex Court has further opined that the Central Government or the State Government (for any other authority) cannot make a subordinate legislation having retrospective effect unless the parent statute, expressly or by necessary implications, authorities it do so. For ready reference, paragraph nos. 104 & 106 of the aforesaid judmgent read as follows:

"104. A rule framed by the delegate of the legislature does not have retrospective effect unless the statutory provision under which it is framed allows retrospectivity either by the use of specific words to that effect or by necessary implication. In Hukum Chand vs. Union of India32, a three judge Bench of this Court held that:

"8...The extent and amplitude of the rule-making power would depend upon and be governed by the language of the section. If a particular rule were not to fall within the ambit and purview of the section, the Central Government in such an event would have no power to make that rule. Likewise, if there was nothing in the language of Section 40 to empower the Central Government either expressly or by necessary implication, to make a rule retroactively, the Central Government would be acting in excess of its power if it gave retrospective effect to any rule. The underlying principle is that unlike Sovereign Legislature which has power to enact laws with retrospective operation, authority vested with the power of making subordinate legislation has to act within the limits of its power and cannot transgress the same. The initial difference between subordinate legislation and the statute laws lies in the fact that a subordinate law-making body is bound by the terms of its delegated or derived authority and that Court of law, as a general rule, will not give effect to the rules, thus made, unless satisfied that all the conditions precedent to the validity of the rules have been fulfilled."

(emphasis supplied)

106. In Federation of Indian Minerals Industries vs. Union of India34, a three judge Bench of this Court formulated the principles on the subject. Justice Madan B. Lokur observed that the power to frame subordinate legislation is not retrospective unless it is authorized expressly or by necessary implication by the parent statute. The Court observed:

"26...The relevant principles are:

(i) The Central Government or the State Government (or any other authority) cannot make a subordinate legislation having retrospective effect unless the parent statute, expressly or by necessary implication, authorises it to do so. [Hukam Chand v. Union of India [Hukam Chand v. Union of India, (1972) 2 SCC 601] and Mahabir Vegetable Oils (P) Ltd. v. State of Haryana [Mahabir Vegetable Oils (P) Ltd. v. State of Haryana, (2006) 3 SCC 620]].

(ii) Delegated legislation is ordinarily prospective in nature and a right or a liability created for the first time cannot be given retrospective effect. (Panchi Devi v. State of Rajasthan [Panchi Devi v. State of Rajasthan, (2009) 2 SCC 589 : (2009) 1 SCC (L&S) 408])

(iii) As regards a subordinate legislation concerning a fiscal statute, it would not be proper to hold that in the absence of an express provision a delegated authority can impose a tax or a fee. There is no scope or any room for intendment in respect of a compulsory exaction from a citizen. [Ahmedabad Urban Dev. Authority v. Sharadkumar Jayantikumar Pasawalla [Ahmedabad Urban Dev. Authority v. Sharadkumar Jayantikumar Pasawalla, (1992) 3 SCC 285] and State of Rajasthan v. Basant Agrotech (India) Ltd. [State of Rajasthan v. Basant Agrotech (India) Ltd., (2013) 15 SCC 1]"

The judgment of Justice Dipak Misra (as he then was) speaking for a two judge Bench decision in State of Rajasthan vs. Basant Agrotech (India) Ltd35 adopts the same position."

15. This Court also finds substance in the submission made by the learned counsel for the petitioner that on the date, when the petitioners' institution have made application for taking the institution in the grant-in-aid list as per the Government Order dated 7th September, 2006 between September, 2006 to November, 2006 and thereafter, there is no managerial dispute in the Committee of Management of the petitioners' institution as is evident from the observations made by the Writ Court in its judgment and order dated 11th October, 2017 passed in Writ-C No. 44345 of 2009. For ready reference, the said observations made by the Writ Court read as follows:

"So far as the facts of this case are concerned, there is no dispute that the shadow of doubt in relation to there being any dispute in management was cleared only on 04.11.2006 when the Assistant Registrar, Firms, Societies and Chits, Allahabad passed an order for renewal of the registration of the Society on the basis of the papers presented by late Ambika Prasad Tripathi. However, on passing of the aforesaid order on 04.11.2006, there is no difficulty for conclusively holding that as on 10.11.2006, there was no dispute in respect of the management."

16. The submission made by the learned Standing Counsel for the State-respondents that against the order dated 4th November, 2006 passed by the Assistant Registrar, Firms Socialites and Chits directing renewal of the Committee of Management headed by Ambika Prasad Tripathi, Shashi Bhushan Dwivedi filed Writ Petition No. 64232 of 2006 and the same was dismissed in default on 26th February, 2013 from which it is clear that the dispute of the Committee of Management of the petitioners' society is pending upto 26th February, 2013 cannot be accepted by this Court on the ground that an interim order staying the effect and operation of the order dated 4th November, 2006 was passed in Writ Petition No. 64323 of 2006 and the same was in operation till 26th February, 2013 i.e. dismissal of the said writ petition in default, has not been brought on record nor the same has been shown to this Court.

17. This Court is disgruntled with the submission of the learned Standing Counsel for the State-respondents that since the petitioners' institution had made their representation along with the documents removing the deficiencies as pointed out by the Divisional Assistant Director of Education (Basic), Allahabad in his letter dated 1st November, 2006, before the Divisional Assistant Director of Education (Basic), Allahabad/Director of Education (Basic), U.P. at Lucknow directly and not through the office of District Basic Education Officer, Kaushambi, as is required under the Government Order dated 7th September, 2006, the claim of the petitioners' institution for taking the institution in grant-in-aid list could not be granted, is too technical in nature. For furtherance of interest of substantial justice, the representation along with the documents removing the deficiencies, made by the petitioners' institution for taking the institution in grant-in-aid list should have been considered.

18. It is settled law that all Courts of law are established for furtherance of interest of substantial justice and not to obstruct the same on technicalities. In the case of Jai Jai Ram Manohar Lal vs. National Building Material Supply reported in AIR 1969 SC 1267, wherein it has been held that if substantial justice and technicalities are pitted against each other, the cause of substantial justice should not be defeated on technicalities.

No procedure in a Court of law should be allowed to defeat the cause of substantial justice on some technicalities (Reference-Ghanshyam Dass & Ors. vs. Dominion of India & Ors; reported in (1984) 3 SCC 46).

19. This Court may also record that if the submission of the learned counsel for the petitioners that on the similar facts and circumstances, in compliance of the order of a Writ Court dated 3rd November, 2017 passed in Writ-C No. 17883 of 2008 (Committee of Management Mohan Lal Adarsh Purva M.V. Salempur Vs. State of U.P. and others), the authority concerned has passed order dated 6.6.2018 taking the aforesaid petitioners' institution into grant-in-aid list, is correct, why the petitioners' institution could not be taken in the grant in-aid list by the respondents herein.

20. However, with respect to other deficiencies like teaching rooms and records of students, the same has been pointed out for the first time by means of the counter affidavit and find no mention in the order impugned, hence the same cannot be pressed for justifying the impugned order.

21. However, it is made clear that the petitioners' institution cannot claim the right on the basis of other institutions, which have been included in the grant-in-aid list, if by 13th November, 2006 (as directed by Writ Court vide order dated 11th October, 2017), institution does not have infrastructure and students, as required by Government Order dated 3rd September, 2006. The Writ Court had relaxed the last date of submission of application form and also recorded that no managerial dispute existed, as on date of consideration, hence the order impugned is not justified on said grounds.

22. In view of the aforesaid facts and circumstances of the case, the observations made by this Court herein above as well as the observations made by the Writ Court vide order dated 11th October, 2017 referred to above, this Court finds that there is clear infirmity in the order impugned passed by the Director of Basic Education dated 23/24th May, 2018 rejecting the claim of the petitioners' institution for taking the institution grant-in-aid list.

23. Consequently, the present writ petition is allowed. The order impugned passed by the Director of Education (Basic), U.P. at Lucknow is, hereby quashed. The Director of Basic Education, U.P., Lucknow is directed to consider and decide the claim of the petitioner-institution afresh taking into consideration the observations made by this Court herein above, the observations made by the Writ Court vide order dated 11th October, 2017 in Writ Petition No. 44345 of 2009 and Government Order dated 7th September, 2006. While considering the claim of the petitioners' institution afresh, Director of Basic Education (Basic), U.P. at Lucknow, if he so desires and finds necessary, shall call for reports, records, material and any other documents from the district level education authorities as well as from management of the institution. It shall be open to the Director of Education (Basic), U.P. at Lucknow to see as to whether all conditions, as required under the Government Order dated 3rd September, 2006, have been fulfilled in the documents submitted on 13th November, 2006 (the date which have been relaxed by the Writ Court vide judgment and order dated 11th October, 2017). He shall pass a reasoned and speaking order expeditiously, preferably within a period of three months from the date of production of a certified copy of this order.

24. There shall be no order as to costs.

Writ petition dismissed. (E-1)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ajay Bhanot, J.)

1. By the impugned award dated 06.05.2011 the labour court has directed the petitioner employer to reinstate the respondent workman in service. The respondent workman has also been allowed 50% of the backwages since 24.10.1993 and "All benefits which were available to him when he was in service".

2. The only submission of Sri Vimlesh Kumar Rai, learned counsel for the petitioner is that the respondents do not have the right to continue on the post since he was a temporary workman.

3. Learned counsel for the respondent workman Sri Phool Singh Yadav has taken the Court through various finding returned by the labour court to contend that the petitioner had been in continuous service from eight years and his services were arbitrarily terminated. The award of the labour court was lawful and just.

4. Heard learned counsel for the parties.

5. The reference made before the labour court as recited in the impugned award is reproduced below:

"2. Whether the action of the management of Nothern Railway Allahabad in not allowing duties to Sri Jagrup with effect from 24.10.93 is justified? If not what relief the workman is entitled for?"

6. The following facts were established by pleadings and evidence before the labour court. The petitioner had worked continuously for more than eight 24821years as a gang man from 1984-1993. He was working in the scale of Rs. 775-1025 with effect from 1988. The petitioner was directed to join his new place of posting at Ludhiana in pursuance of the order dated 16.10.1993. The respondent workman presented himself before the authorities at Ludhiana and made over the transfer order to them. Ludhiana authorities directed him to Jammu Tawi. However both the railway authorities at Ludhiana and Jammu Tawi declined to permit him to join duties as his name was not in the transfer list. Thereafter the petitioner ran from pillar to post but was not allowed to join duties and effectively stood terminated.

7. The petitioner employer could not dispute the duty pass issued to the petitioner for the month of December, 1993. The petitioner/ employer defended its action on the foot that the petitioner "had surrendered his services in the year 1992" which was disbelieved by the labour court.

8. Petitioner employer before the labour court asserted that the respondent workman ought to have raised objections before the superior rail authorities when he was not permitted to join duties at his place of posting.

9. The labour court found that aforesaid contradictory stands made by the petitioner-employer, discredited its defence.

10. The respondent workman appeared before the labour court and deposed that he had taken the transfer letter and presented himself before the railways authorities at Ludhiana. The railway authorities at Ludhiana declined to admit him to duties on the pretext that his name was not in the transfer list and forwarded the letter to the railways authority at Jammu. The petitioner went to report to the railways authorities at Jammu but to no avail.

11. The labour court which had the opportunity to observe the demeanour of the respondent workman found him to be a credible witness. The credibility of the respondent workman could not be impeached by the employer. The deposition of the respondent workman was consistent with the duly proved documents in the records.

12. On the foot of the aforesaid narrative, the labour court found that the action of the petitioner employer in not providing work to the respondent workman with effect from 24.10.1993 was unlawful. The termination of his services was in the likeness of "removal of service by oral order". The action of the employer was found to be vitiated. The petitioner was liable to be reinstated in service. A direction was issued directing the petitioner to reinstate the respondent workman in service.

13. The submission of the learned counsel for Railways that the workman is a casual labour and not entitled to any relief is misconceived to say the least. The solemn purpose of the Industrial Disputes Act is to prevent exploitation of workmen. Nomenclature of the post is not conclusive of the nature of the work being done by workman. It was established by applicable standards of evidence before the labour court that the respondent workmen had worked continuously for a period of eight years prior to arbitrary and illegal termination of his services. The defence of the petitioner was rightly found to be contradictory and evidences were not found to be worthy of credit.

14. This Court is always reluctant to substitute findings of fact made upon appraisal of evidence made the trial court with its own findings while exercising writ jurisdiction. In this case the findings of the labour court are impeccable. The defence of the petitioner/ employer was found to be contradictory and rightly disbelieved.

15. The actions of the petitioner employer which stood established before the court below were not only arbitrary but exploitative. The railways are model employers and the Court cannot countenance such unfair trade practices or exploitative actions against a helpless workman.

16. The actions of the employer were most arbitrary and it showed utmost apathy to the plight of the workman of the lowest class.

16. In the writ petition the petitioners have asserted that the respondent No. 1 has pleaded that he was not gainfully employed during the intervening period. The pleading has been denied by the workman in the counter affidavit. It could not be stated on behalf of the petitioner that this plea was taken before the court below. The petitioner has failed to bring relevant pleadings and documents in the record of the court below in regard to the respondent being gainfully employed. The pleadings of the employer are disbelieved.

17. There is no infirmity in the award passed by the labour court. However in view of findings made in the preceding part of the narrative that the action of the employer was exploitative, this Court holds that the respondent workman is entitled to 70% of the backwages in the interest of justice. Subject to this modification the labour court award is upheld.

19. The writ petition is dismissed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Manju Rani Chauhan, J.)

1. This writ petition has been filed by the petitioner for quashing the impugned order dated 31.07.2021 passed by respondent no.3, which has been communicated to the petitioners' institution under the letter of the Finance and Accounts Officer of the Office of District Basic Education Officer, Mirzapur dated 31st July, 2021, whereby he has directed the single operation of bank accounts of the petitioners' institution. He has also prayed for a mandamus directing the respondents to consider the application dated 18.08.2021 made by the petitioner and not to interfere in the peaceful functioning of the petitioners' institution in accordance with law.

2. On 11th December, 2021, on the submission made by the learned counsel for the petitioner that the order impugned 31st July, 2021 has been without jurisdiction as the Finance and Accounts Officer of the Office of District Basic Education Officer, Mirzapur has no power to pass such order, this Bench passed following order:

"Heard Sri P.K. Upadhyay, learned counsel for the petitioners and learned Standing Counsel for the State.

Learned counsel for the petitioners submits that the impugned order dated 31.07.2021 has been passed by respondent no.4-Finance and Account Officer (Basic), Mirzapur, which is without jurisdiction. He further submits that on communication letter dated 31.07.2021 sent by the District Basic Education Officer, Mirzapur, the order impugned has been passed by the Finance and Account Officer, Basic Education, Mirzapur on the same day, i.e. 31.07.2021.

With respect to the aforesaid facts, twice time was granted to the learned Standing Counsel to obtain instructions in the matter. However, inspite of letters being sent by the Office of the Chief Standing Counsel, no one has turned up.

In such circumstances, this Court has no other option but to direct the respondent no.3-District Basic Shiksha Adhikari, Mirzapur to remain present before this Court on the next date fixed, i.e. 18.11.2021.

Put up this case on 18.11.2021 as fresh, on which date the respondent no.3 shall remain present before this Court alongwith all the relevant records. "

3. In compliance of the aforesaid order, today, Mr. Gautam Prasad, District Basic Education Officer, Mirzapur (respondent no.3 herein) is present in the Court today along with exemption application. The exemption application is taken on record.

4. On the pointed query being made by the Court as to under which authority of law, the Finance and Accounts Officer of the Office of District Basic Education Officer, Mirzapur has passed the order dated 31st July, 2021 directing single operation of accounts of the petitioners' institution, Mr. Shailendra Singh, learned Standing Counsel submits that the document dated 31st July, 2021, which has been signed by the Finance and Accounts Officer of the Office of District Basic Education Officer, Mirzapur is only a communication letter, which has been issued to the petitioners' institution under the order of the District Basic Education Officer, Mirzapur dated 31st July, 2021, wherein he has directed single operation of accounts of the petitioners' institution, a copy of which has been brought on record at page-22 of the exemption application filed today.

5. In view of the averments made in the affidavit accompanied the exemption application, the future presence of Mr. Gautam Prasad is exempted unless directed otherwise.

6. Mr. P.K. Upadhyay, learned counsel for the petitioner and Mr. Shailendra Singh, the learned Standing Counsel for the State-respondents agree that the present writ petition may be decided at this stage, without calling for any further affidavits specifically in view of the order proposed to be passed.

7. Learned counsel for the petitioner submits that the order passed by the District Basic Education Officer, Mirzapur dated 31st July, 2021 directing single operation of bank accounts of the petitioners' institution is in violation of principal of natural justice, as there is no whisper as on which date the petitioner has been afforded opportunity of hearing to the petitioner. In support of the aforesaid submission, the learned counsel for the petitioner has placed reliance upon a judgment of this Court in the case of Committee of Management, Raja Tej Singh Vidyalaya Aurandh, Mainpuri-Appellant Vs. District Inspector of Schools, Mainpuri-Respondents reported in 2000 0 Supreme (All) 32, wherein it has been held as follows:

"29.....no order for single operation of accounts can be passed without reasonable opportunity to the Committee of Management....."

8. Apart from the above, learned counsel for the petitioner further submits that the order impugned directing single operation of the bank accounts of the petitioners' institution contains no reason. He, therefore, submits that the order impugned is illegal, hence the same is liable to be quashed.

9. Learned Standing Counsel has not satisfactorily controverted or rebutted the aforesaid submissions made by the learned counsel for the petitioner.

10. Having heard the learned counsel for the parties, considered their submissions and gone through the order impugned, this Court finds substance in the submissions made by the learned counsel for the petitioner.

11. From bare reading of the order passed by the District Basic Education Officer, Mirzapur dated 31st July, 2021 and the communication letter issued by the Finance and Accounts Officer of the Office of District Basic Education Officer, Mirzapur dated 31st July, 2021, it has apparently clear that the petitioner has not been afforded any opportunity of hearing before the passing of the impugned order, as there is no whisper in both order and letter as to on which date the petitioner has been called upon to set up his case with regard to any complaint made against him. Perusal of the both the order and letter also indicate that the same does not contain any reason.

12. So far as the second submission made by the learned counsel for the petitioner is concerned, this Court may record that it is settled proposition of law that even in administrative matters, the reasons should be recorded as it is incumbent upon the authorities to pass a speaking and reasoned order. In Kumari Shrilekha Vidyarthi & Ors. Vs. State of U.P. & Ors., reported in AIR 1991 SC 537, the Apex Court has observed as under:-

"Every such action may be informed by reason and if follows that an act un-informed by reason is arbitrary, the rule of law contemplates governance by law and not by humour, whim or caprice of the men to whom the governance is entrusted for the time being. It is the trite law that "be you ever so high, the laws are above you." This is what a man in power must remember always."

13. In Life Insurance Corporation of India Vs. Consumer Education and Research Centre, reported in (1995) 2 SCC 480, the Apex Court observed that the State or its instrumentality must not take any irrelevant or irrational factor into consideration or appear arbitrary in its decision. "Duty to act fairly" is part of fair procedure envisaged under Articles 14 and 21. Every activity of the public authority or those under public duty must be received and guided by the public interest. Same view has been reiterated by the Apex Court in Mahesh Chandra Vs. Regional Manager, U.P. Financial Corporation & Ors., reported in AIR 1993 SC 935; and Union of India Versus M.L. Capoor, reported in AIR 1974 SC 87.

14. In State of West Bengal Vs. Atul Krishna Shaw & Anr., 1991 reported in (Suppl.) 1 SCC 414, the Apex Court observed that "giving of reasons is an essential element of administration of justice. A right to reason is, therefore, an indispensable part of sound system of judicial review."

15. In S.N. Mukherjee Vs. Union of India, reported in AIR 1990 SC 1984, it has been held that the object underlying the rules of natural justice is to prevent mis-carriage of justice and secure fair play in action. The expanding horizon of the principles of natural justice provides for requirement to record reasons as it is now regarded as one of the principles of natural justice, and it was held in the above case that except in cases where the requirement to record reasons is expressly or by necessary implication dispensed with, the authority must record reasons for its decision.

16. In Krishna Swami Vs. Union of India & Ors., reported in AIR 1993 SC 1407, the Apex Court observed that the rule of law requires that any action or decision of a statutory or public authority must be founded on the reason stated in the order or borne-out from the record. The Court further observed that "reasons are the links between the material, the foundation for these erection and the actual conclusions. They would also administer how the mind of the maker was activated and actuated and there rational nexus and syntheses with the facts considered and the conclusion reached. Lest it may not be arbitrary, unfair and unjust, violate Article 14 or unfair procedure offending Article 21."

17. Similar view has been taken by the Apex Court in Institute of Chartered Accountants of India Vs. L.K. Ratna & Ors., (1986) 4 SCC 537; Board of Trustees of the Port of Bombay Vs. Dilipkumar Raghavendranath Nadkarni & Ors., AIR 1983 SC 109. In Rameshwari Devi Vs. State of Rajasthan & Ors., AIR 1999 Raj. 47. In Vasant D. Bhavsar Vs. Bar Council of India & Ors., (1999) 1 SCC 45, the Apex Court held that an authority must pass a speaking and reasoned order indicating the material on which its conclusions are based. Similar view has been reiterated in M/s. Indian Charge Chrome Ltd. & Anr. Vs. Union of India & Ors, 2003 AIR SCW 440; Secretary, Ministry of Chemicals & Fertilizers, Government of India Vs. CIPLA Ltd. & Ors., (2003) 7 SCC 1; and Union of India & Anr. Vs. International Trading Co. & Anr., (2003) 5 SCC 437.

17. The Apex Court in the case of in Raj Kishore Jha vs. State of Bihar and Ors. Reported in (2003) 11 SCC 519 and in the case of State of Uttranchal Vs. Sunil Kumar Negi reported in 2008 (4) ALJ. 226, has held that reason is the heartbeat of every conclusion and without the same, it becomes lifeless.

18. So far as the first submission made by the learned counsel for the petitioner is concerned, this Court may record that any order which has been passed without affording any opportunity of hearing to the aggrieved person, is clearly in violation of principle of natural justice, which is the requirement of Articles 14 and 21 of the Constitution of India.

19. in such circumstances, the order dated 31st July, 2021 passed by the District Basic Education Officer, Mirzapur directing single operation of bank accounts of the petitioners' institution is set aside and the matter is remitted back to the District Basic Education Officer, Mirzapur for decision afresh. While considering the matter afresh, the District Basic Education Officer, Mirzapur shall call for the reply and other document from the petitioner regarding any complaint made against him, within two weeks from date of production of certified copy of this order. On such letter being received, the petitioner shall file his reply supported by such documents, as he may be advised within two weeks thereafter. In case such reply is filed within the aforesaid time, the District Basic Education Officer, Mirzapur shall consider and decide the same, strictly in accordance with law, by means of a reasoned and speaking order preferably within two weeks thereafter.

22. The present writ petition is allowed subject to the observations made above.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Manju Rani Chauhan, J.)

1. Heard Mr. Vinod Kumar Singh, learned counsel for the petitioners, Mr. Ran Vijay Singh, learned counsel for the respondent-University, Ms. Pooja Agarwal, learned counsel for respondent no.4 and Mr. Shailendra Singh, learned Standing Counsel for the State-respondents.

2. This writ petition has been filed by the petitioners for the following relief:

"I. a writ, order or direction, in the nature of certiorari, quashing the impugned order dated 27.08.2021 passed by the Registrar, Veer Bahadur Singh Purvanchal University, Jaunpur (Annexure No. 3 to this Writ Petition).

II. a writ, order or direction, in the nature of certiorari, calling for the records and quash the impugned order dated 26.08.2021 passed by the Vice-Chancellor, Veer Bahadur Singh Purvanchal University, Jaunpur (if any).

III. a writ, order or direction, in the nature of mandamus, restraining the respondent no.4 from working as Manager of Sri Mahanth Ramashray Das Sankottar Mahavidyalaya, Bhudkuda, Ghazipur.

IV. any other suitable, writ, order or direction, as this Hon'ble Court may deem fit and proper under the facts and circumstances of the present case.

..... "

3. On 7th October, 2021, the Court passed following order:

"The respondent nos. 2 and 3 are represented by Sri Ran Vijay Singh, Advocate. He may take instructions as to whether when there was no resolution for the extension of the term how the term had been extended.

Place this petition as fresh on 8.11.2021."

4. Learned counsel for the petitioner submits that without any resolution having been passed by the members of the committee of management as provided under para 11.1 of the registered bye-laws of the society, the Vice-Chancellor I.e. respondent no.3, only on a letter of the manager of the Committee of Management, has extended the term of the committee of management for a further period of one year, while passing the impugned order dated 28th August, 2021, which is per se illegal. He, therefore, submits that order impugned is liable to be quashed.

5. In reply, learned counsel for the respondent-University submits that pursuant to the order of the Court dated 7th October, 2021, he has received instruction and as per the said instruction, the impugned order has been passed on the resolution of the Committee of Management, which has been passed by the eight members (out of 11 members) of the committee of management for extending the term of the committee of management for a further period of one year. He also placed a photo copy of the said resolution before the Court today, which is taken on record. Apart from the above, the learned counsel for the respondents submits that against the order impugned, the petitioner has an efficacious statutory alternative remedy by way of reference before the Chancellor of the respondent-University under Section 68 of the U.P. State Universities Act. He, therefore, submits that this petition be dismissed on the ground of the aforesaid statutory alternative remedy.

6. I have considered the submissions made by the learned counsel for the parties and have examined the records of the present writ petition.

7. The issue of exhausting statutory remedy has been considered time and again by the Apex Court.

8. A Constitution Bench of the Apex Court, in K.S. Rashid & Son Vs. Income Tax Investigation Commission & Ors., reported in AIR 1954 SC 207, held that Article 226 of the Constitution confers on all the High Courts a very wide power in the matter of issuing writs. The said power is limited. However, the remedy of writ is an absolutely discretionary remedy and the High Court has always the discretion to refuse to grant any writ if it is satisfied that the aggrieved party can have an adequate or suitable relief elsewhere. Similar view has been reiterated by the Apex Court in Sangram Singh Vs. Election Tribunal, Kotah & anr., reported in AIR 1955 SC 425, holding that the power of issuing writs are purely discretionary and no limit can be placed upon that discretion. However, the power can be exercised alone with recognised line and not arbitrarily and the Court must keep in mind that the power shall not be exercised unless substantial injustice has ensued or is likely to ensue and in other cases the parties must be relegated to the courts of appeal or revision to set right mere errors of law which do not occasion injustice in a broad and general sense.

9. Again a Constitution Bench of the Apex Court, in Union of India Vs. T.R. Varma, reported in AIR 1957 SC 882, held that it is well settled that when an alternative and equally efficacious remedy is open to a litigant, he should be required to pursue that remedy and not invoke the special jurisdiction of the High Court to issue a prerogative writ. The Apex Court held that the existence of another remedy does not affect the jurisdiction of the Court to issue a writ; but the existence of an adequate legal remedy is a thing to be taken into consideration in the matter of granting writs and where such remedy exist, it will be a sound exercise of discretion to refuse to interfere in a petition under Article 226 of the Constitution, unless there are good grounds therefor.

10. Yet another Constitution Bench of the Apex Court, in State of U.P. Vs. Mohammed Nooh, reported in AIR 1958 SC 86, considered the scope of exercise of writ jurisdiction when remedy of appeal was there and held that writ would lie provided there is no other equally efficacious remedy. The Court, in extraordinary circumstances, may exercise the power if it comes to the conclusion that there has been a breach of fundamental principles of justice. Therefore, in a proper case, powers of writ can be exercised, but should not be exercised generally where other adequate legal remedy is available though it may not be, per se, a bar to issue a writ of prerogative. The Apex Court held that the remedy, being discretionary, cannot be asked as a matter of right, even if the order is a nullity, on the ground that it was passed by disregarding the rules of natural justice. The Court held as under:-

"..... save in exceptional cases, the courts will not interfere under Article 226 until all normal remedies available to a petitioner have been exhausted. The normal remedies in a case of this kind are appeal or revision. It is true that on a matter of jurisdiction or on a question that goes to the root of the case, the High Courts can entertain a petition at an early stage but they are not bound to do so and a petition would not be thrown out because the petitioner had done that which the Courts usually ask him to do, namely, to exhaust his normal remedies before invoking an extraordinary jurisdiction..... The petitioner would have been expected to persue the remedies of appeal or revision and could not have come to the High Court in the ordinary way until he had exhausted them."

11. In N.T. Veluswami Thevar Vs. G. Raja Nainar & ors., reported in AIR 1959 SC 422, the Apex Court held that the jurisdiction of the High Court to issue writs against the orders of the Tribunal is undoubted; but then, it is well settled that where there is another remedy provided, the Court must properly exercise its discretion in declining to interfere under Article 226 of the Constitution.

12. Another Constitution Bench of the Apex Court, in State of Madhya Pradesh & anr. Vs. Bhailal Bhai etc. etc., reported in AIR 1964 SC 1006, held that the remedy provided in a writ jurisdiction is not intended to supersede completely the modes of obtaining relief by an action in a civil court or to deny defence legitimately open in such actions. The power to give relief under Article 226 of the Constitution is a discretionary power. Similar view has been reiterated in Municipal Council, Khurai & anr. Vs. Kamal Kumar & anr., reported in AIR 1965 SC 1321.

13. In Siliguri Municipality & ors. Vs. Amalendu Das & ors., reported in AIR 1984 SC 653, the Apex Court held that the High court must exercise its power under Article 226 with circumspection and while considering the matter of recovery of tax etc., it should not interfere save under very exceptional circumstances.

14. In S.T. Muthusami Vs. K. Natarajan & ors., reported in AIR 1988 SC 616, the Apex Court held that the High Court cannot be justified to exercise the power in writ jurisdiction if an effective alternative remedy is available to the party.

15. In Kerala State Electricity Board & Anr. Vs. Kurien E. Kalathil & ors., reported in (2000) 6 SCC 293, while dealing with a similar issue, the Apx Court held that the writ petition should not be entertained unless the party exhausted the alternative/statutory efficacious remedy.

16. In A. Venkatasubbiah Naidu Vs. S. Chellappan & ors., reported in (2000) 7 SCC 695, the Apex Court deprecated the practice of exercising the writ jurisdiction when efficacious alternative remedy is available. The Court observed as under:-

"Though no hurdle can be put against the exercise of Constitutional powers of the High Court, it is a well recognised principle which gives judicial recognition that the High Court should direct the party to avail himself of such remedy, one or other, before he resorts to a Constitutional remedy."

17. Similar view has been reiterated in Rajasthan State Road Transport Corporation & Anr. Vs. Krishna Kant & Ors., reported in (1995) 5 SCC 75; L.L. Sudhakar Reddy & Ors. Vs. State of A.P. & Ors., reported in (2001) 6 SCC 634; Shri Sant Sadguru Janardan Swami (Moingiri Maharaj) Sahakari Dugdha Utpadak Sanstha & Anr. Vs. State of Maharashtra & Ors., reported in (2001) 8 SCC 509; G K N Driveshafts (India) Ltd. Vs. Income Tax Officer & Ors., reproted in (2003) 1 SCC 72; and Pratap Singh & Anr. Vs. State of Haryana, reported in (2002) 7 SCC 484.

18. In Harbanslal Sahnia & anr. Vs. Indian Oil Corporation Ltd. & ors., reported in (2003) 2 SCC 107, the Apex Court held that the rule of exclusion of writ jurisdiction by availability of alternative remedy is a rule of discretion and not one of compulsion and the Court must consider the pros and cons of the case and then may interfere if it comes to the conclusion that the writ seeks enforcement of any of the fundamental rights; where there is failure of principle of natural justice or where the orders or proceedings are wholly without jurisdiction or the vires of an Act is challenged. While deciding the said case, the Apex Court placed reliance upon its earlier judgment in Whirlpool Corporation Vs. Registrar of Trade Marks, Mumbai & ors., reported in (1998) 8 SCC 1.

19. A Constitution Bench of the Apex Court, in G. Veerappa Pillai Vs. Raman & Raman Ltd. & ors., reported in AIR 1952 SC 192, held that as the Motor Vehicles Act is a self contained code and itself provides for appealable/ revisable forum, the writ jurisdiction should not be invoked generally in matters relating to its provision.

20. Similar view has been reiterated in Assistant Collector of Central Exicse, Chandan Nagar, West Bengal Vs. Dunlop India Ltd. & ors., reported in AIR 1985 SC 330; Ramendra Kishore Biswas Vs. State of Tripura & ors., reported in (1999) 1 SCC 472; and Shivgonda Anna Patil & Ors. Vs. State of Maharashtra & ors., (1999) 3 SCC 5.

21. In C.A. Ibraham Vs. Income-tax Officer, Kottayam & Anr., reported in AIR 1961 SC 609 and H.B. Gandhi, Excise & Taxation Officer-cum-Assessing Authority, Karnal & ors. Vs. M/s Gopinath & Sons & ors., reported in 1992 (Suppl.) 2 SCC 312, the Apex court held that where hierarchy of appeals is provided by the statute, party must exhaust the statutory remedies before resorting to writ jurisdiction.

22. The Constitution Bench of the Apex Court, in M/s. K.S. Venkataraman & Co.(P) Ltd. Vs. State of Madras, reported in AIR 1966 SC 1089, considered the Privy Council judgment in Raleigh Investment Co. Ltd. Vs. The Governor-General in Council, reported in AIR 1947 PC 78 and held that the writ court can entertain the petition provided the order is alleged to be without jurisdiction or has been passed in flagrant violation of the principles of natural justice, or the provisions of the Act/ Rules is under challenge.

23. In Titaghur Paper Mills Co. Ltd. & anr. Vs. State of Orissa & Anr., reported in AIR 1983 SC 603, the Apex Court refused to extend the ratio of its earlier judgment in State of U.P. Vs. Mohammad Noor, reported in AIR 1958 SC 86, wherein the Court had held that prerogative writ can be issued to correct the error of the Court or Tribunal below even if an appeal is provided under the statute under certain circumstances, i.e. the order is without jurisdiction, or principles of natural justice have not been followed, and held that in case of assessment under the Taxing Statute, the principle laid down by the Privy Council in Raleigh Investment Co. Ltd. (supra) would be applicable for the reason that "the use of the machinery provided by the Act, not the result of that use, is the test."

24. In Whirlpool Corporation (Supra) and Tin Plate Co. of India Ltd. Vs. State of Bihar & ors., reported in AIR 1999 SC 74 the Apex Court came to the conclusion that writ should not generally be entertained if statute provide for remedy of appeal and even if it has been admitted, parties should be relegated to the appellate forum.

25. In Sheela Devi Vs. Jaspal Singh, reported in (1999) 1 SCC 209, the Apex Court has held that if the statute itself provides for a remedy of revision, writ jurisdiction cannot be invoked.

26. In Punjab National Bank Vs. O. C. Krishnan and others, reported in AIR 2001 SCW 2993, the Apex Court, while considering the issue of alternative remedy observed as under:-

"The Act has been enacted with a view to provide a special procedure for recovery of debts due to the banks and the financial institutions. There is hierarchy of appeal provided in the Act, namely, filing of an appeal under S.20 and this fast track procedure cannot be allowed to be derailed either by taking recourse to proceedings under Arts. 226 and 227 of the Constitution or by filing a civil suit, which is expressly barred. Even though a provision under an Act cannot expressly oust the jurisdiction of the Court under Arts. 226 and 227 of the Constitution, nevertheless when there is an alternative remedy available judicial prudence demands that the Court refrains from exercising its jurisdiction under the said constitutional provisions. This was a case where the High Court should not have entertained the petition under Art. 227 of the Constitution and should have directed the respondent to take recourse to the appeal mechanism provided by the Act."

27. In State of Himachal Pradesh Vs. Raja Mahendra Pal & ors., reported in AIR 1999 SC 1786 while dealing with a similar issue the Apex Court has held as under:-

"It is true that the powers conferred upon the High Court under Article 226 of the Constitution are discretionary in nature and can be invoked for the enforcement of any fundamental right or legal right-------. The constitutional Court should insist upon the party (to avail of the efficacious alternative remedy) instead of invoking the extraordinary writ jurisdiction of the Court. This does not however debar the court from granting the appropriate relief to a citizen in peculiar and special facts notwithstanding the existence of alternative efficacious remedy. The existence of special circumstances are required to be noticed before issuance of the direction by the High Court while invoking the jurisdiction under the said Article."

28. In Govt. of A.P. & ors. Vs. J. Sridevi & ors., reported in AIR 2002 SC 1801, the Apex Court held that where a authority is competent to determine the issue, "the High Court in a writ jurisdiction should have directed the authority only to take an appropriate decision". When the statutory authority is vested with the power to determine the question as to the applicability of the provisions of the Act, it is ordinarily desirable to leave the question to be decided by such authority. The aggrieved party can file appeal against the decision within the framework provided under the statute and the ultimate decision also could be challenged under judicial review, if permitted in law

29. In the State of Bihar & ors Vs. Jain Plastics & Chemicals Ltd., reported in AIR 2002 SC 206, the Apex Court held that existence of alternative remedy does not affect the jurisdiction of the writ court but it could be a good ground for not entertaining the petition.

30. In Champalal Binani Vs. The Commissioner of Income-tax, West Bengal & ors., reported in AIR 1970 SC 645, the Court observed as under:-

"Before parting with the case we deem it necessary once more to emphasize that the Income-tax Act provides a complete and self-contained machinery for obtaining relief against improper action taken by the departmental authorities, and normally the party feeling himself aggrieved by such action cannot be permitted to refuse to have recourse to that machinery and to approach the High Court directly against the action. The assessee had an adequate remedy under the Income-tax Act which he could have availed of. He however, did not move the Income-tax Appellate Tribunal which was competent to decide all questions of fact and law which the assessee could have raised in the appeal including the grievance that he had not adequate opportunity of making his representation and invoked the extraordinary jurisdiction of the High Court. In our judgment, no adequate ground was made out for entertaining the petition. A writ of certiorari is discretionary; it is not used merely because it is lawful to do so. Where the party feeling aggrieved by an order of an Authority under the Income-tax Act has an adequate alternative remedy which he may resort to against the improper action of the authority and he does not avail himself of that remedy the High Court will require a strong case to be made out for entertaining a petition for a writ. Where the aggrieved party has an alternative remedy, the High Court would be slow to entertain a petition challenging an order of a taxing authority which is ex facie with jurisdiction. A petition for a writ of certiorari may lie to the High Court, where the order is on the face of it erroneous or raises question of jurisdiction or of infringement of fundamental rights of the petitioner. The present case was one in which the jurisdiction of the High Court could not be invoked."

31. Similar view has been reiterated in U.P. State Bridge Corporation Ltd. & Ors. Vs. U.P. Rajya Setu Nigam S. Karmchari Sangh, reported in (2004) 4 SCC 268; Bharat Petroleum Corpn. Ltd. & Anr. Vs. N.R. Vairamani & Anr., reported in (2004) 8 SCC 579; Tirupati Balaji Developers (P) Ltd. & Ors. Vs. State of Bihar & Ors., reported in (2004) 5 SCC 1.

32. In U.P. State Spinning Co. Ltd. Vs. R.S. Pandey & Anr., reported in (2005) 8 SCC 264, the Apex Court re-considered almost all of its earlier judgments on the issue.

33. In a catena of decisions it has been held that writ petition under Article 226 of the Constitution should not be entertained when the statutory remedy is available under the Act, unless exceptional circumstances are made out. By deciding the said case, the Apex Court placed reliance upon the judgment in R Vs. London Borough of Hillington, Council, reported in (1974) 2 All ER 643, wherein it had been held as under.

"It has always been a principle that certiorari will go only where there is no other equally effective and convenient remedy.

The statutory system of appeals is more effective and more convenient than application for certiorari and the principal reason why it may prove itself more convenient and more effective is that an appeal to (say) the secretary of State can be disposed of at one hearing whether the issue between them is a matter of law or fact or policy or opinion or a combination of some or all of these....whereas of course an appeal for certiorari is limited to cases where the issue is a matter of law and then only it is a matter of law appearing on the face of the order.

An application for certiorari has however this advantage that it is speedier and cheaper than the other methods and in a proper case therefore it may well be right to allow it to be used.....I would, however, define a proper case as being one where the decision in question is liable to be upset as a matter of law because on its face it is clearly made without jurisdiction or in consequence of an error of law."

34. Similar view has been reiterated in Seth Chand Ratan Vs. Pandit Durga Prasad & Ors, reported in 2003 AIR SCW 3078.

35. In view of the aforesaid law laid down by the Apex Court and considering the facts and circumstances of the case, this writ petition is disposed of by providing that the petitioner, may make reference petition against the order impugned before the Chancellor of the University, under Section 68 of the U.P. State within three weeks from today, along with a certified copy of this order. On such reference petition being filed, the Chancellor of the respondent-University is requested to consider and decide the same, in accordance with law by means of a reasoned speaking order, preferably within one month thereafter after affording opportunity of hearing to the parties concerned.

(Para 9, 12 and 13)

Appeal allowed. (E-1)

Cases relied on :-

1. Committee of Management, Anjuman Hidayatul Islam High School & anr. Vs St. of U.P. & ors.; 2013(5) ESC 2748 (All).

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Manju Rani Chauhan, J.)

1. Heard Mr. Prabhakar Awasthi, learned counsel for the petitioner and Mr. Shailendra Singh, learned Standing Counsel for State-respondents.

2. This writ petition has been filed by the petitioner for quashing the impugned order dated 20.11.2021 passed by respondent no.4, District Inspector of Schools, Agra, whereby he has directed single operation of bank accounts of the petitioners' institution. He has also prayed for a direction upon the respondents not to interfere in the peaceful functioning of the petitioners' Committee of Management continuously in managing day to day affairs of the institution, which has been validly elected on 22.08.2021 and approved on 13.10.2021.

3. Learned counsel for the parties are agree that the present writ petition may be decided at this stage, without calling for any further affidavits specially in view of the order proposed to be passed, as no purpose would be served by keeping the present writ petition pending.

4. The brief facts of the case are that the petitioners' institution is a recognized intermediate college in the name and style of "Janta Inter College, Jaitpur, Kalan" District Agra which is managed by a Committee of Management, duly elected, strictly in consonance with the provisions of scheme of administration framed and drawn under exercise of powers under Section 16-A of U.P. Intermediate Education Act, 1921 (hereinafter referred to as the "Act, 1921").

5. The aforesaid institution is under grant-in-aid of the State Government, as such, provisions of U.P. High School and Intermediate (Payment of salary to Teaching and other Staff) 1971 (hereinafter referred to as the "Act, 1971") is fully applicable. The last valid election of Committee of Management was held on 31.08.2017 from 13 members, wherein Shri Dayaram was elected as Manager and Mahesh Babu was elected as President. The aforesaid elections were approved by the District Inspector of Schools on 26.09.2017.

6. The aforesaid elections were challenged, by means of Writ Petition No. 59533 of 2017, and the said writ petition stood rejected by the order dated 13.12.2017. During the sustenance of term of the aforesaid Committee of Management, 16 new members were enrolled, out of which, petitioner no.2 also stood enrolled as a member. The Manager of the aforesaid Committee of Management, namely, Shri Dayaram expired on 19.04.2021, as a result whereof, a casual vacancy came into existence. The petitioner no.2 being a valid member was elected as Manager for residue period under the resolution dated 27.06.2021, strictly in consonance with Clause 9(4) of the scheme of administration and the same was approved by the District Inspector of Schools vide order dated 23.07.2021.

7. The term of the Committee of Management, as provided in the approved scheme of administration, is 4 years and since the last elections were held on 31.08.2017, therefore, the term of the aforesaid Committee of Management was come to an end on 30.08.2021, hence, valid elections of the Committee of Management were held on 22.08.2021, wherein again Committee of Management headed by petitioner no.2 as Manager came to be elected and the same was also approved by the District Inspector of Schools vide order dated 13.10.2021. In between, an order dated 12.10.2021 was passed by District Inspector of Schools, wherein the election of Shri Sridhar Srivastava as Manager for the residue period was discarded, as the aforesaid claim was made after the expiry of the term of Committee of Management, which was elected on 31.08.2017.

8. Surprisingly, on a complaint made by the Principal of the said institution, who happens to be ex-officio office-bearer, the District Inspector of Schools has passed the impugned order dated 20.11.2021, whereby he has directed single operation of bank accounts of the petitioners' institution.

9. Learned counsel for the petitioners submits that the impugned order dated 20.11.2021 passed by District Inspector of Schools, Agra, directing single operation of bank accounts of the petitioners' institution, is in violation of principle of natural justice and Articles 14 and 21 of the Constitution of India, as there is no whisper as on which date, opportunity of hearing has been afforded to the petitioners or to any office-bearers of the Committee of Management of the petitioners' institution before passing the same, hence, the same is an ex-parte order and liable to be quashed on that ground alone.

10. Learned counsel for the petitioner next submits that order impugned dated 20.11.2021 passed by D.I.O.S. is wholly without jurisdiction as after approving the petitioners' Committee of Management, the District Inspector of Schools becomes functus officio and, therefore, he cannot uproot the petitioners' Committee of Management, which has already been approved by him vide his order dated 13.10.2021. In support of the aforesaid submission, learned counsel for the petitioner has placed reliance upon a judgement of this Court in the case of Committee of Management, Committee of Management, Anjuman Hidayatul Islam High School And Another Vs. State of U.P. And Others decided on 3rd October, 2013 in Civil Misc. Writ Petition No. 46324 of 2013, reported in 2013(5) ESC 2748 (All).

11. Learned Standing Counsel has not satisfactorily controverted or rebutted the aforesaid submissions made by the learned counsel for the petitioners.

12. Having heard the learned counsel for the parties, considered their submissions and gone through the order impugned, this Court finds substance in the submissions made by the learned counsel for the petitioners.

13. In such circumstances, the order dated 20.11.2021 passed by the District Inspector of Schools, Agra directing single operation of bank accounts of the petitioners' institution is set aside and the matter is remitted back to the District Inspector of Schools, Agra for decision afresh. While considering the same afresh, the District Inspector of Schools, Agra shall call for the objections/reply and other documents from the petitioners regarding the complaint made against him, within two weeks from date of production of a certified copy of this order. On calling for objections/reply or documents, the petitioners shall file their reply/objections, supported by such documents, as they may be advised, within two weeks thereafter. In case, such objections/reply is filed within the aforesaid time, the District Inspector of Schools, Agra shall consider and decide the same, strictly in accordance with law, by means of a reasoned and speaking order preferably within two weeks thereafter after affording opportunity of hearing to the parties concerned.

14. The present writ petition is allowed subject to the observations made above.

Pursuant to order dated 25.10.2016, Block Development Officer constituted enquiry committee of two members vide order dated 27.10.2016. Enquiry committee investigated the matter and vide its letter dated 04.11.2016 submitted enquiry report categorically stating that allotment of fair price shop in favour of petitioner was done in accordance with law. Respondent no. 4 on the basis of enquiry report, passed the order dated 22.02.2017 directing the Regional Supply Officer, Supply Center, Budhana for allotment of essential commodities in favour of petitioner.

5. Learned counsel for the petitioner submitted that against the very said order, complainant-respondent no. 5 filed an Appeal No. 21 of 2016-17 under Section 13(1) of U.P. Scheduled Commodities Distribution Order, 2016 before Commissioner, Saharanpur Region, Saharanpur, which was transferred before Joint Commissioner (Food), Saharanpur Region, Saharanpur- respondent no. 2 and respondent no. 2 vide its order dated 22.08.2017 contrary to settled provision of law and most mechanical manner, partly allowed the appeal filed by the complainant.

6. Learned counsel for petitioner is assailing the impugned order on two grounds, first of all, respondent no. 5 was not an applicant for allotment of fair price shop, therefore, he is not a person aggrieved. He is having no locus standi to file appeal and in support of that, he has placed reliance upon the judgments of this Court in the matter of Babu Ram Singh Vs. State of U.P. and others; [2009 (10) ADJ 24], Neeraj Kumar Mishra Vs. Dy. Commissioner (Food) Region Allahabad and others, 2017 (3) AdJ 834 and Kailash Singh Vs. State of U.P. and others; (Writ-C No. 49975 of 2015) decided on 03.09.2015. Secondly, he submitted that in the impugned order, no finding is recorded either against the petitioner or violation of any procedure in allotment of fair price shop by the authorities, but partly allowed the appeal rejecting the order dated 21.10.2016 and remanded the matter back to Sub Divisional Magistrate-Respondent no. 4 to pass fresh order. He next submitted that under such legal and factual position, respondent no. 5 is not the person aggrieved and further there is no adverse finding against the petitioner in the impugned order, therefore, impugned order dated 22.08.2017 passed by respondent no. 2 is bad and liable to be set aside.

7. Learned Standing Counsel has vehemently opposed, but could not dispute the factual as well as legal submissions made by learned counsel for the petitioner.

8. I have considered the rival submissions made by learned counsel for the parties and perused the record as well as impugned order dated 22.08.2017 passed by respondent no. 2. At no point of time, it is stated that respondent no. 5 was also an applicant and it is admitted factual position that respondent no. 5 has never participated in the process of allotment of fair price shop.

9. Further, this Court has considered the very same issue in the judgement of Babu Ram Singh (supra) and held that only aggrieved person can file appeal. Relevant paragraphs of aforesaid judgements are being quoted herein below;

"Having heard learned counsel for the parties, the position in law is more than clear, inasmuch as, sub-clause 3 of Clause 28 clearly prescribes that an appeal shall be maintainable on behalf of an aggrieved agent. The word "agent" has also been defined under Clause 2 (c). In such a situation the Gaon Sabha cannot be said to have been conferred with a right to prefer an appeal under Clause 28.

It is by now well settled that an appeal is a creation of a statute and the right therein can neither be enhanced or reduced on the strength of any interpretation as suggested on behalf of the Gaon Sabha. Had the rule making authority intended to provide for an appeal on behalf of the Gaon Sabha then the words prescribing the right of appeal in sub-clause 3 of Clause 28 would have been any person instead of any aggrieved agent.

An appeal is provided under a statute for the correction of an error which might have crept in on account of incorrect application of law and such right of appeal has been explained by the Apex Court in the case of Sita Ram and others Vs. State of Uttar Pradesh reported in (1979) 2 SCC 656 (see paragraphs 25, 41 and 45).

Accordingly this Court is of the opinion that where the statute is explicit and clear, and does not suffer from any ambiguity there is no scope for the Courts to read a provision which does not exist. The Gaon Sabha ought to have either filed a writ petition before this Court or could have approached a forum which may be otherwise available in law.

In the facts and circumstances of this case, the Gaon Sabha filed an appeal under the said provision which obviously was not maintainable before the Commissioner at the instance of the Gaon Sabha. In view of this, the interim order passed by the Commissioner on an incompetent appeal cannot be sustained. "

10. Again in the matter of Neeraj Kumar Mishra (supra), Court has taken the same view and after considering the judgement of Division Bench, has held that only aggrieved person can file appeal. Relevant paragraphs of the said judgement are being quoted herein below;

"11. In the case of Dharmraj (supra) Division Bench of this Court considered in the matter of fair price shop agency the question as to whether a complainant is an aggrieved person to challenge the order of restoration of licence by the Sub Divisional Magistrate and held as under:

12. According to our opinion a "person aggrieved", means a person who is wrongly deprived of his entitlement which he is legally entitled to receive and it does not include any kind of disappointment or personal inconvenience. "Person aggrieved" means a person who is injured or he is adversely affected in a legal sense."

11. This matter was also before this Court in the matter of Kailash Singh (supra) where writ petition was filed by the complainant and Court has in detailed dealt, who is person aggrieved and finally held that only aggrieved person can file petition in the matter of allotment of fair price shop. Relevant paragraphs of the said judgement are being quoted herein below;

"A preliminary objection has been raised by the learned Standing Counsel regarding the maintainability of the writ petition at the behest of the complainant against the final order passed in appeal. Reliance has been placed on Dharam Raj Versus State of U.P. and others, 2010 (2) AWC 1878 (LB), Ram Baran Versus State of U.P. and others, 2010(2) AWC 1947 (LB) and Amin Khan Versus State of U.P. and others, [2008(4) ADJ 559 (DB)].

The petitioner admittedly is a complainant in the present case, hence would not be an aggrieved person.

The meaning of the expression 'person aggrieved' will have to be ascertained with reference to the purpose and the provisions of the statute. One of the meanings is that person will be held to be aggrieved by a decision if that decision is materially adverse to him. The restricted meaning of the expression requires denial or deprivation of legal rights. A more legal approach is required in the background of statutes which do not deal with the property rights but deal with professional misconduct and morality. (Refer-Bar Council of Maharashtra v. M.V.Dabholkar, (1975) 2 SCC 702, 710-11, paras 27 & 28).

Broadly, speaking a party or a person is aggrieved by a decision when, it only operates directly and injuriously upon his personal, pecuniary and proprietary rights (Corpus Juris Seundem. Edn. 1, Vol.IV, p.356, as referred in Kalva Sudhakar Reddy v.Mandala Sudhakar Reddy, AIR 2005 AP 45,49 para 10)

The expression 'person aggrieved' means a person who has suffered a legal grievance i.e a person against whom a decision has been pronounced which has lawfully deprived him of something or wrongfully refused him something. The petitioner is not an aggrieved person by merely filing a complaint. The order of revocation of cancellation of fair price shop license do not affect him in any manner.

The Division Bench in Dharam Raj Versus State of U.P. and others, 2010 (2) AWC 1878 (LB), held that the petition on behalf of the complainant against the licensee of fair price shop is not maintainable against the final order passed by the competent authority as the complainant cannot be said to have any grievance in the matter being not an aggrieved person rather is a 'person annoyed'.

Recently Supreme Court in Ravi Yashwant Bhoir versus District Collector, Raigad and others (2012) 4 SCC 407 was dealing with the removal of the President of Uran Municipal Council under the Maharashtra Municipal Councils, Nagar Panchayats and Industrial Townships Act, 1965. The ex-President was the complainant, the Court was of the opinion that the complainant cannot be party to the lis as he could not claim the status of an adversarial litigant. The relevant extract is as follows:

"58. Shri Chintaman Raghunath Gharat, Ex-President was the complainant, thus, at the most, he could lead the evidence as a witness. He could not claim the status of an adversial litigant. The complainant cannot be the party to the lis. A legal right is an averment of entitlement arising out of law. In fact, it is a benefit conferred upon a person by the rule of law. Thus, a person whosuffers from legal injury can only challenge the act or omission. There may be some harm or loss that may not be wrongful in the eyes of law because it may not result in injury to a legal right or legally protected interest of the complainant but juridically harm of this description is called damnum sine injuria.

59.The complainant has to establish that he has been deprived of or denied of a legal right and he has sustained injury to any legally protected interest. In case he has no legal peg for a justiciable claim to hang on, he cannot be heard as a party in a lis. A fanciful or sentimental grievance may not be sufficient to confer a locus standi to sue upon the individual. There must be injuria or a legal grievance which can be appreciated and not a stat pro ratione valuntas reasons i.e. a claim devoid of reasons.

60. Under the garb of being necessary party, a person cannot be permitted to make a case as that of general public interest. A person having a remote interest cannot be permitted to become a party in the lis, as the person wants to become a party in a case, has to establish that he has a proprietary right which has been or is threatened to be violated, for the reason that a legal injury creates a remedial right in the injured person. A person cannot be heard as a party unless he answers the description of aggrieved party. (Vide: Adi Pherozshah Gandhi v. H.M. Seervai, Advocate General ofMaharashtra, AIR 1971 SC 385; Jasbhai Motibhai Desai v. Roshan Kumar, Haji Bashir Ahmed & Ors., AIR 1976 SC 578; Maharaj Singh v. State of Uttar Pradesh & Ors., AIR 1976 SC 2602; Ghulam Qadir v. Special Tribunal & Ors., (2002) 1 SCC 33; and Kabushiki Kaisha Toshiba v. Tosiba Appliances Company & Ors., (2008) 10 SCC 766). The High Court failed to appreciate that it was a case of political rivalry. The case of the appellant has not been considered in correct perspective at all."

Similarly, the Supreme Court in Ayaaubkhan Noorkhan Pathan versus State of Maharashtra and others (2013) 4 SCC 465, 466 was dealing with the issue of caste certificate being challenged by a person who did not belong to the reserved category. The Apex Court imposed exemplary cost of one lakh upon the stranger to the lis as he abused the process of the Court to harass the appellant.

The Court held as follows:-

" 9. It is a settled legal proposition that a stranger cannot be permitted to meddle in any proceeding, unless he satisfies the Authority/Court, that he falls within the category of aggrieved persons. Only a person who has suffered, or suffers from legal injury can challenge the act/action/order etc. in a court of law. A writ petition under Article 226 of the Constitution is maintainable either for the purpose of enforcing a statutory or legal right, or when there is a complaint by the appellant that there has been a breach of statutory duty on the part of the Authorities. Therefore, there must be a judicially enforceable right available for enforcement, on the basis of which writ jurisdiction is resorted to. The Court can of course, enforce the performance of a statutory duty by a public body, using its writ jurisdiction at the behest of a person, provided that such person satisfies the Court that he has a legal right to insist on such performance. The existence of such right is a condition precedent for invoking the writ jurisdiction of the courts. It is implicit in the exercise of such extraordinary jurisdiction that, the relief prayed for must be one to enforce a legal right. Infact, the existence of such right, is the foundation of the exercise of the said jurisdiction by the Court. The legal right that can be enforced must ordinarily be the right of the appellant himself, who complains of infraction of such right and approaches the Court for relief as regards the same. (Vide : State of Orissa v. Madan Gopal Rungta, AIR 1952 SC 12; Saghir Ahmad & Anr. v. State of U.P., AIR 1954 SC 728; Calcutta Gas Company (Proprietary) Ltd. v. State of West Bengal & Ors., AIR 1962 SC 1044; Rajendra Singh v. State of Madhya Pradesh, AIR 1996 SC 2736; and Tamilnad Mercantile Bank Shareholders Welfare Association (2) v. S.C. Sekar & Ors., (2009) 2 SCC 784).

10.A "legal right", means an entitlement arising out of legal rules. Thus, it may be defined as an advantage, or a benefit conferred upon a person by the rule of law. The expression, "person aggrieved" does not include a person who suffers from a psychological or an imaginary injury; a person aggrieved must therefore, necessarily be one, whose right or interest has been adversely affected or jeopardised. (Vide: Shanti Kumar R. Chanji v. Home Insurance Co. of New York, AIR 1974 SC 1719; and State of Rajasthan & Ors. v. Union of India & Ors., AIR 1977 SC 1361)."

A Division Bench in Amin Khan versus State of U.P and others 2008(2) AWC 2002: (2008) 2 UPLBEC 1256 was of the opinion that a complainant had no locus to challenge the order of the District Magistrate withdrawing the administrative and financial powers of the Pradhan. The Court placed reliance upon Suresh Singh's case (Supra) as well as Smt. Kesari Devi versus State of U.P & others 2005(4) AWC 3563.

This Court in Ram Baran Versus State of U.P. and others, 2010(2) AWC 1947 (LB), again reiterated the principle that a complainant would have no locus to maintain the petition against the final order passed by the District Magistrate pursuant to direction in a petition under Article 226 of the Constitution against the Pradhan.

In the case of R.V. London Country Keepers of the peace of Justice, (1890) 25 Qbd 357, the Court held:

"A person who cannot succeed in getting a conviction against another may be annoyed by the said findings. He may also feel that what he thought to be a breach of law was wrongly held to be not a breach of law by the Magistrate.

He thus may be said to be a person annoyed but not a person aggrieved, entitle to prefer an appeal against such order."

The petitioner complainant shall have an opportunity during the course of regular enquiry to lead oral and documentary evidence if provided under the rules, but would have no locus to assail the final order passed by the authority on the complaint.

Having due regard to the facts and circumstances of the case, I am not inclined to interfere. The petition filed at the behest of a complainant being not maintainable is, accordingly, dismissed."

12. In all the three cases referred herein above, Court has taken constant view that only aggrieved person, who has participated in the process of allotment of fair price shop can file appeal. Any appeal filed by stranger/ outsider is not maintainable. In present case too, undisputedly respondent no. 5 was never participant in the process of allotment of fair price shop, therefore, this Court is also of the same view that he is not the person aggrieved and cannot file appeal against the order of Sub Divisional Magistrate. It is required on the part of respondent no. 2 to first consider about the maintainability of appeal and return findings upon the ground taken by the petitioner in reply of appeal. In case, it was found that appellant is not the aggrieved person, appeal has to be rejected on the this ground alone, but here while partly allowing the appeal, respondent no. 2 has committed error of law as undisputedly appellant was not the "person aggrieved". Therefore, impugned order dated 22.08.2017 passed by respondent no. 2 is bad and liable to be set aside.

13. Further, so far as second argument of the petitioner is concerned, about the absence of adverse finding, is also having substance. Respondent no. 2 has not recorded any adverse finding or about violation of any procedure. Even in case, appeal was maintainable, it is required on the part of respondent no. 2 to return finding about the procedural lapses and illegality in the order, if any, but nothing has been recorded in the impugned order. Therefore, on this ground too, the impugned order is bad and liable to be set aside.

14. Accordingly, under such facts of the case as well as law laid down by this Court referred as above, impugned order dated 22.08.2017 passed by Joint Commissioner (Food), Saharanpur Region, Saharanpur-respondent no. 2 is hereby quashed and writ petition is allowed.

15. This Court vide order dated 3.10.2017 has stayed the effect and operation of the order dated 22.8.2017 passed by respondent no. 2 and petitioner is running the fair price shop as on date, therefore, no further order is required.

on the basis of the minimum rates prescribed by the Collector could not have been done in view of the express provisions of Section 47-A(3) of the Act – Smt. Pushpa Sareen's case relied upon. (Para 9 and 11)

Writ petition allowed. (E-1)

Cases relied on :-

1. Ram Khelawan @ Bachcha Vs St. of U.P. & anr.; 2005 (2) AWC 1087

2. Smt. Pushpa Sareen Vs St. of U.P.; 2015 (3) ADJ 136

(Delivered by Hon'ble Jayant Banerji, J.)

1. Heard Shri Rajesh Kumar Mishra, learned counsel for the petitioner and Shri Awadhesh Chandra Srivastava, learned Standing Counsel appearing for the respondents.

2. By means of this petition, the petitioner seeks to challenge the order dated 31.12.2009 passed by the Additional District Magistrate (Finance & Revenue), Moradabad in Case No.407/09 under Section 33/40/47 of the Indian Stamp Act, 18991 whereby, by means of an ex-parte order, deficiency of stamp has been imposed upon the petitioner while relying upon the report dated 16.10.2009 of the Assistant Inspector General of Registration. Further under challenge is the order dated 26.05.2010 passed by the Additional Commissioner (Administration), Moradabad Mandal, Moradabad, whereby the appeal filed by the petitioner under Section 56 of the Act, being Appeal No.74/2009-10, has been partly allowed by reducing the amount of penalty imposed upon the petitioner.

3. The facts as mentioned in the petition are that the petitioner purchased an area of 0.002 hectares from Khasra No.869-Ka, an area of 0.130 hectares from Khasra No.948 and an area of 0.255 hectares from Khasra No.950, totalling 0.387 hectares in Village-Bhogpur, Mithauni, Tehsil & District-Moradabad by means of a sale-deed executed on 27.09.2007, which was registered thereafter. It is stated that the aforesaid land was purchased for agricultural purposes and the stamp duty was paid in accordance with the minimum rates specified by the Collector. The name of the petitioner was also mutated in the revenue records. It is alleged that the respondent no.2 passed the impugned order dated 31.12.2009 without issuance of summons or notice to the petitioner, in which it was held that the plots in question are for residential usage and, therefore, deficiency of stamp duty of Rs.1,38,400/- and penalty of Rs.1,38,400/- alongwith interest at the rate of 1.5% per mensem were imposed. It is stated that on coming to know of the ex-parte order passed by the respondent no.2, an appeal was filed by the petitioner before the Additional Commissioner (Administration) which was partly allowed by reducing the amount of penalty imposed, though no error was found in the order of the respondent no.2 in assessing the land in question as residential.

4. The contention of the learned counsel for the petitioner is that an ex-parte report of the Assistant Inspector General of Registration has been relied upon by the respondent no.2 to record a finding regarding evasion of duty which could not have been relied upon by the authority in view of the judgment of this Court in the matter of Ram Khelawan alias Bachcha v. State of U.P. and another2. It is further contended that the vendors of the sale-deed in question had sold their entire share of the land on the khasra numbers to the petitioner, and the admitted terms of the habendum clause appearing in the sale-deed reflect that the land in question was bhumidhari over which agricultural activities were being carried on. The learned counsel states that the order of the respondent no.2 was passed ex-parte without affording any opportunity of hearing to the petitioner. It is further contended that the Additional Commissioner (Administration), in the appellate order, has committed an error of law in affirming the order of the respondent no.2 and that neither the penalty nor the deficiency in stamp duty could have been imposed upon the petitioner under the facts and circumstances of the present case.

5. Learned Standing Counsel has opposed the writ petition stating that the report of the Assistant Inspector General of Registration dated 16.10.2009 has referred to three exemplar sale-deeds pertaining to parts of land of those very Khasra numbers that were sold to other persons in which the purpose for purchase was stated to be residential. The contention is that, accordingly, no fault exists in the order of the respondent no.2 on this ground and, also on the ground that the service of notice on the petitioner was deemed sufficient.

6. It is noticed, as is admitted, that the impugned order dated 31.12.2009 was ex-parte. It is not the contention of the learned counsel for the petitioner that any restoration application was filed on behalf of the petitioner in respect of the aforesaid order dated 31.12.2009. The petitioner straightaway proceeded to file the appeal under Section 56 of the Act. The grounds of appeal, that has been enclosed as Annexure-6 to the writ petition, do not contain any ground with regard to the non-receipt of notice. Among the grounds raised is of lack of opportunity of hearing to the petitioner. In view of the aforesaid, the affirmation on behalf of the petitioner that no notice was received by him, is belied. The order of the respondent no.2, Additional District Magistrate, has been passed relying upon the report of the Assistant Inspector General of Registration dated 16.10.2009 in which it was mentioned that portions of lands of those very Khasra numbers, were subject of instrument Nos.4894/05, 601/06 and 2463/07 on which stamp duty on the basis of the residential rates was paid. The respondent no.2 has observed that since neither the petitioner nor his counsel had appeared nor any objection was filed, it would be deemed that he accepts the report and notice. Accordingly, the deficiency in stamp duty and penalty were imposed.

7. Annexure-5 is the report made by the Assistant Inspector General of Registration dated 16.10.2009. The relevant part of the report dated 16.10.2009 is extracted below:-

"..... अधोहस्ताक्षरित द्वारा अर्द्धनगरीय एवं उपान्त क्षेत्र के कृषि आधारित मूल्यांकन वाले विक्रय विलेखों के मूल्यांकन जांच के क्रम में उक्त विक्रय विलेख मेरे संज्ञान में आया। अभिलेखों के अवलोकन से खसरा न० 869, 948 व 950 स्थित ग्राम भोगपुर मिठौनी से सम्पत्ति क्रय की गयी तथा आवासीय दर के मूल्यांकन पर स्टाम्प शुल्क अदा किया गया है। उक्त प्रकार के कतिपय विलेखों का विवरण निम्न सारिणी में दिया जा रहा है:-

8. As is evident from the report, as extracted above, that three specific exemplar deeds have been relied upon by the Assistant Inspector General of Registration to reflect the residential usage over the land in question.

9. In the decision of Ram Khelawan (supra), a coordinate Bench of this Court had made an observation that no reliance can be placed on an ex-parte report for deciding the case. It was observed that the ex-parte inspection report may be relevant for initiating the proceedings under Section 47-A of the Act and after initiation of the case, inspection is to be made by the Collector or the authority hearing the case after due notice to the parties to the instrument as provided under Rule 7(3)(c) of the U.P. Stamp (Valuation of Property) Rules, 1997.

10. Though this Court is in respectful agreement with the aforesaid observations made by this Court in the case of Ram Khelawan (supra), however, in the present case at hand, the ex-parte report specifically refers to three exemplar instruments that were considered by the Assistant Inspector General of Registration while making his report. It was, therefore, open for the District Magistrate, in the facts and circumstances of the present case, where despite notice, neither any objection was filed on behalf of the petitioner nor had any advocate appeared on his behalf, to rely upon the ex-parte report which was based upon the exemplar deeds. It is always open to the Collector or the authority undertaking an examination of an instrument under Section 47-A(3) of the Act, to refer to exemplar deeds for the purpose of ascertaining the market value even though they may form part of an ex-parte report that has led to the initiation of the proceedings under Section 47-A(3) of the Act. Therefore, no fault can be attributable to the respondent no.2 in relying upon the three exemplar deeds that find mention in the ex-parte report dated 16.10.2009. In view of the above, the order of the Additional Commissioner, upholding the order of the respondent no.2, cannot faulted as far as this aspect is concerned.

11. However, the matter of concern in the present petition is that despite relying upon the aforesaid exemplar deeds, the respondent no.2 has proceeded to assess the value of the land in question on the basis of the minimum rates prescribed by the Collector. This could not have been done in view of the express provisions of Section 47-A(3) of the Act that is also relied in the judgment of this Court in Ram Khelawan (supra) and several other decisions. In the decision of a three Judge Bench of this Court in the case of Smt. Pushpa Sareen vs. State of U.P.3, it has been held as follows:-

"26. The true test for determination by the Collector is the market value of the property on the date of the instrument because, under the provisions of the Act, every instrument is required to be stamped before or at the time of execution. In making that determination, the Collector has to be mindful of the fact that the market value of the property may vary from location to location and is dependent upon a large number of circumstances having a bearing on the comparative advantages or disadvantages of the land as well as the use to which the land can be put on the date of the execution of the instrument.

27. Undoubtedly, the Collector is not permitted to launch upon a speculative inquiry about the prospective use to which a land may be put to use at an uncertain future date. The market value of the property has to be determined with reference to the use to which the land is capable reasonably of being put to immediately or in the proximate future. The possibility of the land becoming available in the immediate or near future for better use and enjoyment reflects upon the potentiality of the land. This potential has to be assessed with reference to the date of the execution of the instrument. In other words, the power of the Collector cannot be unduly circumscribed by ruling out the potential to which the land can be advantageously deployed at the time of the execution of the instrument or a period reasonably proximate thereto. Again the use to which land in the area had been put is a material consideration. If the land surrounding the property in question has been put to commercial use, it would be improper to hold that this is a circumstance which should not weigh with the Collector as a factor which influences the market value of the land.

28. The fact that the land was put to a particular use, say for instance a commercial purpose at a later point in time, may not be a relevant criterion for deciding the value for the purpose of stamp duty, as held by the Supreme Court in State of U.P. and others v. Ambrish Tandon and another, (2012) 5 SCC 566. This is because the nature of the user is relateable to the date of purchase which is relevant for the purpose of computing the stamp duty. Where, however, the potential of the land can be assessed on the date of the execution of the instrument itself, that is clearly a circumstance which is relevant and germane to the determination of the true market value. At the same time, the exercise before the Collector has to be based on adequate material and cannot be a matter of hypothesis or surmise. The Collector must have material on the record to the effect that there has been a change of use or other contemporaneous sale-deeds in respect of the adjacent areas that would have a bearing on the market value of the property which is under consideration. The Collector, therefore, would be within jurisdiction in referring to exemplars or comparable sale instances which have a bearing on the true market value of the property which is required to be assessed. If the sale instances are comparable, they would also reflect the potentiality of the land which would be taken into consideration in a price agreed upon between a vendor and a purchaser."

12. Accordingly, the impugned order of the respondent no.2 dated 31.12.2009, insofar as it assesses the valuation of the land in question on the basis of the minimum rates, is set aside. The order of the Additional Commissioner (Administration) dated 26.05.2010 is also set aside insofar as it affirms the order of the respondent no.2 assessing the market value on the basis of the minimum rates. The matter is remitted to the respondent no.2 or the competent authority who may be seized of the matter, to assess the market value taking into account the monetary consideration reflected in the exemplar deeds aforesaid or any other exemplar deeds, and not on the basis of the minimum rates. This exercise shall be done by the authority concerned within a period of three months from today. Since the petitioner is represented, no separate notice is required to be sent to him. It is, however, provided that the petitioner shall appear before the respondent no.2 on 22.12.2021 alongwith a certified copy of the order passed today, whereafter dates may be fixed. In case of failure of the petitioner in appearing on that day, it will be open to the authority concerned to proceed in accordance with law.

13. In view of the aforesaid observations and to the extent mentioned above, this writ petition is allowed.

A. UP Parks, Playgrounds and Open Spaces (Preservation and Regulation) Act, 1975 – Parks, claimed to be encroached – Burden of proof – Layout plan nowhere describes any piece of land to be a park exclusively – Writ petition does not specify any location or area as 'park' which park is, as per petitioner, allegedly being encroached upon but nothing assertive brought on record to establish existence of park - apart from a bald averment in the writ petition – Effect – Held, the burden to prove fact of green area earmarked in the layout plan dated 06.01.2005 to be a park is on the petitioner. (Para 101, 102 and 138)

B. Constitution of India – Article 226 – Writ – Maintainability – Concealment of material fact – Suppression of an order passed by the Competent authority on the same issue – Held, the behaviour of the petitioner is not fair and the petitioner has not approached with clean hands, instead, it has suppressed material facts / order passed by the G.D.A. in the year 2015 and indirectly sought to get over the inconvenient parts of it through the present writ petition while seeking enforcement of the portions favourable to it through another writ petition – High Court found the petitioner guilty of 'suppressio veri and sugestio falsi' and refused to entertain the writ petition. 4. Both the sides have exchanged their respective pleadings.

Facts of the case:-

5. Matrix of the case appears to be that a memorandum of understanding was reached on 08.01.2001 between Ghaziabad Development Authority, respondent no.1 and respondent no.2 Shipra Estate Ltd. to develop a group housing project over Plot No.10 Vaibhav Khand Indirapuram, Ghaziabad at 1.5 F.A.R., as the respondent No.1 found it inconvenient to complete the project itself.

6. Perusal of the memorandum of understanding C.A.-2 to the counter affidavit filed by respondent no.2 is explanatory of certain aspects of this case to the ambit that initially the scheme was framed and launched in the year 1991 and the work commenced in the year 1991 and 1993, partially by passage of time in the year 1995 because of certain problematic offshoots, project was halted and it was decided that sale of flats should be managed on "as is where is basis" and the lessor shall be Ghaziabad Development Authority - respondent no.1- and it shall be the sole owner. Further it indicates that bulk residential flats were included in the module of F.A.R basis, the tenders were invited on 29.03.2000, the said developer was selected on the bulk sale basis.

7. The map was first approved on 26.05.2001 which was amended on 07.10.2002 then lastly it was amended / revised on 06.01.2005 which is admitted to the petitioner with F.A.R. 1.5 applicable as per building bye-laws 2000 Clause 3.3.6 applicable for Ghaziabad Development Authority.

8. In this case, allotment to the respondent no.2 was made on the bulk sale basis. Based on the building plan dated 06.01.2005, the construction commenced.

9. Noticeable that Type A and Type B buildings in Plot No.10 were constructed as per plan dated 08.10.2002 and Type D was completed in the year 2007 and lease deed was executed by Ghaziabad Development Authority in favour of the allottees of the petitioner-apartment Type D. This building in which allottees had interest consisted of G+12 Floors. It means that one ground floor with 12 storeys. The number of buildings comprised of 4 towers and each tower consisted of 84 apartments, thus totalling to 336 apartments. The total area of apartment Type D is 16995.84 square meters as per the deed of declaration dated 24.03.2015. The deed of declaration was filed by the respondent no.2 on 24.03.2015. Type A and Type B are two bedroom apartments and were constructed and handed over and lease deed executed from 2004 onwards. The present petitioner's apartments (three bedrooms) were handed over and lease deed executed from the year 2007 onwards and partial completion certificate was obtained for Type D apartments on 29.01.2010.

10. So far as the respondents are concerned, respondent no.1 is Ghaziabad Development Authority which is competent authority in this case. Respondent no.2 - Shipra Estate Ltd. is builder and promoter, whereas, respondent no.3 Saya Homes Pvt. Ltd. stepped into shoes of respondent no.2 in the year 2008 by way of execution of the lease dated 30.04.2008 executed by Ghaziabad Development Authority between respondent no.2 and respondent no.3 and it is constructing and developing towers in Type-C apartments, as such.

11. Noticeable that the petitioner society was formed in the year 2008. It is gathered from perusal of lease deed pertaining to Type D apartments (available as annexure no.II to the petition) that each flat was ad-measuring approximately 116 square meters and the proportionate share of each apartment owner in the piece of land mentioned in the lease deed is fixed at 47.13.

12. Since the development work could not take place on the site earmarked for development of Type E (which later on was rechristened as Type C) apartment, the Ghaziabad Development Authority, respondent no.1 leased out the land in favour of M/s Rose Berry Development Developers Pvt. Ltd. on 30.04.2008, on which Type E apartments were to be raised and as per the lease, developmental rights have been given to it (respondent no.3 as assignee of M/s Rose Berry Developers). Apart from that, in continuation of earlier agreement, the duty to have plan sanctioned or modified rests with the respondent no.2 - Shipra Estate Pvt. Ltd.

13. In the year, 2009, the Housing and Urban Planning Department of the Government of U.P. vide order dated 04.08.2009 increased the basic F.A.R. from 1.5 to 2.5. Consequently, model bye-laws were issued by the State Government by virtue of Section 57 of U.P. Urban Planning and Development Act, 1973 which were adopted by all development authorities in the State of U.P. including the Ghaziabad Development Authority. This increase in F.A.R. thus enabled the concerned developers to increase the number of floors in their respective projects.

14. Pursuant to the aforesaid model bye-laws, the Ghaziabad Development Authority brought certain amendment and revised Clause 3.3.6 (xi) of its bye-laws, thus raising F.A.R. from 1.5. to 2.5 qua three localities Kaushambi, Indirapuram and Vaibhaiv Khand of the district Ghaziabad and increased F.A.R. from 1.5 to 2.5 for group housing society on bulk sale basis.

15. Amended bye-laws notified on 17.08.2009 vide notification no.3084/8-3-09-73/Vividh/07 Lucknow, this F.A.R. (2.5) was treated to be basic F.A.R. in the aforesaid three localities of district Ghaziabad. In view of the aforesaid increase in the nature of the F.A.R. from 1.5 to 2.5, respondent no.2 proposed to further revise the lay out plan (06.01.2005) and sought for revision / amendment of the layout plan (06.01.2005) for Type E apartment. By seeking the amendment in the lay out plan, respondent no.2 proposed to raise construction in the area meant for development on Plot No.10 i.e. Vaibhaiv Khand Ghaziabad (as stipulated in layout plan dated 06.01.2005) and to increase height of apartments from G+12 to G+34. The respondent no.2 submitted the lay out plan under Section 15 of the U.P. Urban Planning and Development Act, 1973 which was approved by respondent no.1 on 31.07.2013 which is the bone of contention between the two sides and claim has been raised by the petitioner that this change / amendment in the layout plan (06.01.2005) as has been sought by respondent no.2 from Ghaziabad Development Authority - respondent no.1 - in fact requires consent of the petitioner society, as a pre-requisite to the sought for amendment / change in the layout plan. Relevant to mention that by way of amendment, the respondent nos.2 and 3 have admittedly used the increased F.A.R. 2.5 as per model bye-laws notified by the State of U.P. and consequent amendment brought in by the Ghaziabad Development Authority (in its bye-laws).

16. Noticeable that on approval of the aforesaid lay out plan, Type E apartments were rechristened to Type C apartments.

17. For proper understanding of various circumstances of this case, it would be pertinent to have brief reference of certain writ petitions / applications. These petitions create impact on certain aspects of this case in hand.

18. On 22.03.2010, the petitioner association filed the petition - Writ-C No.15782 of 2010 before this High Court challenging the revision proposed to the lay out plan (06.01.2005) (as subsequently allowed by the GDA by sanctioning Map on 31.07.2013), whereby the petitioner claimed that new blocks were allowed to be added including the encroached 'park' area and designated open area, whereby height of Tower-C was increased from G+12 to G+34 floors by utilizing F.A.R. 2.5 without obtaining N.O.C. from petitioner society and it was claimed to be contrary to the map dated 06.01.2005 (this is also the centre point of the dispute in the instant writ petition no.59863 of 2015) in hand. The aforesaid writ petition along with connected petitions; the leading one being Writ-C No.33826 of 2012 M/s Designarch Infrastructure Pvt Vs. Vice Chairman, Ghaziabad Development Authority and another, was disposed of by a co-ordinate Bench of this Court on 14.11.2013 clarifying the law on various aspects and directing the petitioner to file representation before the competent statutory authority ventilating the grievance which was to be decided in accordance with law on the basis of fact. Thereafter, aggrieved parties were permitted to approach the Courts for redressal of their grievance, if any.

19. Pursuant to the aforesaid directions, the petitioner's association filed the representation before Ghaziabad Development Authority on 07.09.2014, which was pending disposal and in the meanwhile the petitioner's association filed yet another petition Writ-C No.53524 of 2014 wherein prayer was made to expedite consideration and disposal of the representation dated 07.09.2014 moved by the petitioner association on earlier occasion. This Court vide order dated 07.10.2014 directed Ghaziabad Development Authority to take decision within a period of three months from the date of receipt of the certified copy of the order. Pursuant thereto, Ghaziabad Development Authority considered the aforesaid representation dated 07.09.2014 and passed order on 17.02.2015, copy whereof has been brought on record vide C.A.-7 by the respondent no.2. It specifies that as per description contained in the representation dated 07.09.2014, request was made, inter-alia, to the ambit that the deed of declaration should be made available to R.W.A. (residents welfare association) by the builder apart from raising issue of consent of petitioner association being obtained and objection to use of additional F.A.R.

20. Bare perusal of the aforesaid order (17.02.2015) made by the competent authority - i.e. O.S.D., Ghaziabad Development Authority upon the representation (aforesaid dated 07.09.2014), it is explicitly discernible that the builder was directed to file the deed of declaration at the earliest. Pursuant to this specific direction, respondent no.2 filed the two separate deed of declaration on 24.03.2015, one for Type-D and one for Type-A and B apartment. Insofar as other points in respect of utilization of F.A.R. and consent of the petitioner's society being obtained in relation to the construction (to be raised for Type-C apartments) are concerned, it was opined by the G.D.A. authority that U.P. Apartment Act, 2010 was made applicable since 18.03.2010 and prior to that, there was no provision for obtaining consent from apartment owners as such. It further observed that common area, facility and services etc. of Plot No.10 are not affected by the revision of the map. Moreover, the map was sanctioned on the basis of basic F.A.R. as determined by the State Government, consent of apartment owners was not required. Therefore, in regard to the above two points, representation (07.09.2014) was rejected.

21. Further in the order of O.S.D., G.D.A. dated 17.02.2015, it was noted that the land concerned (Type E and Type C) was found to have been demarcated as 10/1, 10/2 and 10/3 and lease was executed in relation thereto on 30.04.2008 for constructing multi-storey building and the map was sanctioned in relation thereto. This lease deed was executed separately and the developers M/s Rose Berry Developers Pvt. Ltd and M/s Saya Homes Pvt. Ltd were nominees of respondent no.2. It was further observed in paragraph no.2 that the sanctioned map dated 31.07.2013 was in relation to a part of Plot No.10 and the land was shown as 10/1, 10/2 and 10/3, which part of the land was sanctioned earlier (vide map dated 06.01.2005) also for construction of multi-storey building.

22. For the enforcement of certain aspects of the order dated 17.02.2015 passed on the aforesaid representation (07.09.2014), petition Writ-C No.11072 of 2017 was moved before this High Court on 7th of the March, 2017 which is connected writ petition in this case. It was preferred by the petitioner's association. The instant petition in hand, Writ-C No.59863 of 2015 was presented before this Court on 14.10.2015, much after the order dated 17.02.2015 had been passed by O.S.D., Ghaziabad Development Authority.

23. Relevant to mention that objection to the present deed of declaration dated 24.03.2015 was filed by the petitioner's association before the competent authority i.e. Ghaziabad Development Authority, - respondent no.1 - vide letter dated 19.05.2015, copy whereof is annexure no.5 to the writ petition.

24. Relevant to note that respondent no.2 had filed a separate deed of declaration on 24.03.2015 for Type A and Type B Blocks. Essentially, respondent no.2 had filed two separate deeds of declaration on 24.03.2015 one for Tower D Block (petitioner's society) and another for Tower A & B Block (Windsor and Nova society).

25. Pertinent to mention that Windsor and Nova Apartment Owner Association (for Type A and Type B apartments)- had moved petition Writ-C No.39147 of 2015 Windsor and Nova Apartment Owner Association Vs. Ghaziabad Development Authority and 2 others, seeking direction against respondent no.1 that the deed of declaration should tally with the original plan dated 03.10.2002 and a proper deed of declaration was required to be filed as per U.P. Apartment Rules 2011 and the deed of declaration filed on 24.03.2015 by respondent no.2 for Tower A & B Blocks be set aside as per Rule No.3 of the U.P. Apartment Rules, 2011. Unless the deed of declaration is accepted, the amended building plan 2013 be set aside. The aforesaid writ petition was disposed of by this Court on 24.07.2015 with the direction to the Vice Chairman, Ghaziabad Development Authority that the deed of declaration filed by the builder Shipra Estate Ltd. shall be examined in accordance with the provisions of the Act and Rules framed thereunder after hearing the parties, including respondent no.3, (here in this petition it is respondent no.2) expeditiously, preferably within a period of six weeks from the date of filing of the objection with the certified copy of the order.

26. However, in the concluding part of the order, this Court observed that it has not expressed any opinion on merits of the case, it will be for the Vice Chairman, Ghaziabad Development Authority to examine the same and take decision in accordance with law. The matter was finally decided by the Vice Chairman, Ghaziabad Development Authority, vide order dated 24.09.2015.

27. By the aforesaid order dated 24.09.2015, the Vice Chairman, Ghaziabad Development Authority, after considering rival claims and the objection filed by Windsor and Nova apartment, held that the original map / lay out plan relates back to 2001 - 2002 and 2005 which was accorded sanction for Windsor and Nova and map revised and completion certificate was issued / obtained in 2006 and 2010, respectively.

28. It was further observed that there are two apartment owners' association though on one land (Plot No.10), the deed of declaration is in consonance with the map of year 2005 and this is in relation to the built up area belonging to Windsor and Nova apartments. Therefore, deed of declaration in respect of Windsor and Nova apartments as should be made, is based upon map / lay out plan dated 06.01.2005 and is in compliance with the lease deed executed in favour of the allottees by the Ghaziabad Development Authority. Direction was issued by the Vice Chairman, G.D.A. to respondent no.2 Shipra Estate by directing that the columns which have been left blank in the deed of declaration should be properly filled up as per lease executed in respect thereof within 30 days.

29. Relevant to state, albeit, at the cost of repetition that insofar as the deed of declaration dated 24.03.2015 filed earlier by the respondent no.2 (Shipra Estate) in respect of Windsor & Nova Apartments is concerned, a revised deed of declaration dated 09.10.2015 was filed in compliance of the direction issued by the Vice Chairman, Ghaziabad Development Authority vide its order dated 24.09.2015 and the deed of declaration dated 09.10.2015 was challenged by preferring petition Writ-C No.26598 of 2016, Windsor & Nova Apartment Vs. Ghaziabad Development Authority and 2 others.

30. After due consideration, the aforesaid writ petition was dismissed by this Court vide order dated 30.05.2016 by observing that;

"the deed of declaration so submitted by the promoters / builders has not been brought on record and the petitioner has hopelessly failed to establish as to how the deed of declaration dated 09.10.2015 does not satisfy the direction which had been issued by the Vice Chairman, Ghaziabad Development Authority in its order dated 24.09.2015. We see no reason to entertain the writ petition, therefore, it is, accordingly, dismissed."

31. By the aforesaid order (30.05.2016), it was also observed that this order will not prejudice the rights of Windsor & Nova apartments society to re-approach the competent authority.

32. Consequent thereupon, a representation dated 06.06.2016 was moved by Windsor & Nova apartment society which was considered by the Vice Chairman, Ghaziabad Development Authority and the order dated 24.09.2016 was passed by it whereby the representation was rejected. Against this order dated 24.09.2016, the petition Writ-C No.61615 of 2016 was filed by Windsor and Nova apartment society before this Court which was disposed of by this Court on 03.01.2017 directing that alternative remedy open to the petitioner under Section 27(3) of the U.P. Apartment (Promotion of Construction, Ownership and Maintenance) Act, 2010, may be availed by filing appropriate representation / revision before the State of U.P.

33. The petitioner herein claims by way of supplementary rejoinder affidavit in reply to the supplementary counter affidavit filed by respondent no.2 that the revision was filed by Windsor & Nova Association against the aforesaid order dated 24.09.2016 (annexure SRA-3) in the year 2017.

34. Now the respondents claim that insofar as filing of the aforesaid revision before the State Government is concerned, they have no knowledge on account of fact that no notice, whatsoever, has been received by them till date. There is also no proof of service / receipt of the said revision / document on the State Government. This revision, if any, claimed to have been been filed by the Windsor & Nova Society for Type A & Type B apartments thus becomes doubtful.

35. Insofar as the filing of this petition (in hand) Writ-C No.59863 of 2015 is concerned, we come across fact that it was filed on 14.10.2015 which was entertained by this Court and after due consideration, the same was dismissed on 25.02.2016 and it was observed, inter-alia, in paragraph no.4 and 5 of the order as is extracted herein below:-

"4. In our view, the present dispute involves disputed question of fact such as the amenities available in the original plan, changes made in this subsequent plan etc. These disputed question of fact could not be adjudicated in a writ jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution of India. However, the petitioner for the redressal of his grievances may approach the court concerned by filing a suit for injunction.

5. The writ petition is devoid merits and is, accordingly, dismissed."

The aforesaid order is pasted on the back of page no.7 of the writ petition itself.

36. Against this order of dismissal dated 25.02.2016, the petitioner moved before the Hon'ble Apex Court in Civil Appeal No.3602 of 2017 arising out of SLP (C) 26475-2016 Sun Tower Residents Welfare Association Vs. Ghaziabad Development Authority and others. The extract of the order dated 03.03.2017 passed by the Hon'ble Apex Court is extracted as hereinbelow:-

"Heard learned counsel for the parties.

Leave granted.

The Writ Petition had not been entertained by the High Court. In the writ petition, claim was raised that construction was being made in the area reserved for park. The High Court, in our opinion, prima facie ought to have examined the matter and clalled for the reply and thereafter should have decided the matter in accordance with law.

We set aside the impugned order and Matter is remitted to the High Court. Liberty is granted to the respondents to file their response to the writ petition in the High Court. Thereafter the High Court to hear the matter and to decide the same afresh in accordance with law.

All the issues are kept open. In case the High Court finds it is not possible to determine that it was a park, obviously the question of maintainability of the writ application can be considered.

The High Court to hear the matter as expeditiously as possible.

The appeal is accordingly allowed."

37. By the aforesaid order, the matter was remanded for afresh consideration with specific direction that all issues are open and in case High Court finds it is not possible to determine that it is a park, obviously question of maintainability of writ petition application can be considered.

38. We also come across the fact from perusal of the order sheet dated 15.11.2017 passed in this writ petition that a Court commission consisting of three members - two Advocates and one architect - was issued to make spot inspection and they were required to see whether there is violation of the agreement as alleged against the respondent no.1 and 2 and the report was directed to be submitted after joint inspection is made. Pursuant thereto the joint Court commission inspected the spot on 02.12.2017 and the desired report was submitted separately on 20.12.2020 one by the two Advocates and the other (one) by the architect. Both the sides preferred their respective objections to the aforesaid Court commissioner reports.

39. Further perusal of the order sheet dated 14.05.2019 passed by this Court reflects that the respondent no.1 Ghaziabad Development Authority, Ghaziabad was directed that till the next date of listing, it shall not issue 'completion certificate' in favour of the respondent no.2.

40. As the matter proceeded further, Special Leave Petition (Civil) Diary No(s).11807 of 2020 filed by respondent no.3, Saya Homes (P) Ltd. Vs. Sun Tower Residents Welfare Association, which was considered and disposed of, inter-alia, vide order of the Hon'ble Apex Court dated 08.06.2020 whereby direction was given to this "High Court to decide the matter after rehearing within a period of two months or as early as possible."

41. However, while the writ petition (59863 of 2015) was still pending, yet another Miscellaneous Application No.1246 of 2021 was moved by the respondent no.3, Saya Homes (P) Ltd against Sun Tower Residents Welfare Association before the Hon'ble Apex Court which after considering the matter issued direction on 23.08.2021 which is extracted as here under:

"Having regard to the special circumstances of this case, we request the Chief Justice of the High Court of Judicature at Allahabad to issue appropriate directions so that the Bench can be reconstituted and the matter can be heard on day-to-day basis and disposed of at the earliest, preferably within one month from date.

The Miscellaneous Application is, accordingly, disposed of."

Submission by the petitioner:-

42. Specific claim has been raised that so far as the revised sanctioned plan dated 31.07.2013 is concerned, it is contrary to the layout plan dated 06.01.2005, for the reason that basic facilities, amenities, undivided interest of the petitioner's association in respect of the amenities / facilities shall be greatly interfered with and reduced if the revised layout plan dated 31.07.2013 is allowed to stand without obtaining the requisite consent of the petitioner's association. Admittedly, the provisions of U.P. Apartment Act, 2010 and Rules framed in 2011 are applicable in this case. That way, the procedure prescribed in this Act would always be followed by the respondents - say - competent authority - respondent no.1 and the promoter / developer - respondent nos.2 and 3.

43. It is to be seen that construction regarding the petitioner's block Type D was completed and the lease was executed on 17.03.2007 in terms of U.P. Flat Act, 1975 which gives undivided right to the allottees in the entire Plot No.GH-10-, Vaibhaiv Khand, Indirapuram, Ghaziabad. That way, the undivided interest of the petitioner had fructified and any alternation or any change in the layout plan subsequently to that would directly interfere with the undivided interest and enjoyment of facility by the petitioner's association and it would be against mandate of various provisions of the U.P. Apartment Act, 2010 as such violative of the vested right of the petitioner.

44. Learned counsel for the petitioner engaged attention of this Court to the order / direction / observation of the coordinate Bench of this Court in the matter of Writ-C No.33826 of 2012 whereby the aforesaid petition along with other several writ petitions was decided by a common judgment / order dated 14.11.2013 wherein certain aspects of this case were considered and in the light of illegal construction in the shape of extra floors and structures being added to the original sanctioned plan dated 06.01.2005 for the declared group housing scheme which was not permitted under law unless consent was obtained before the amended plans were sanctioned. Under these circumstances, the coordinate Bench of this Court had observed in its order inter-alia:-

"The FAR or any additional FAR is a property, appended to rights in the property on which the building is constructed and is thus a property in which the apartment owners have interest by virtue of the provisions of the U.P. Apartment Act, 2010. The purchase of additional FAR is not permissible to be appropriate by the promoter without any common benefits to the apartment owners. The consent of the apartment owners obtained by resolution in the meeting of the apartment owners by majority will be necessary for purchasing additional FAR. Its utilization will also be subject to the consent of the apartment owners."

45. Learned counsel for the petitioner read out the aforesaid extract as has been described in the body of the petition and urged that in view of the above specific observation regarding use of FAR or additional FAR, the respondents are changing the proportionate share of undivided ownership of the plot and by virtue of adding more flats within the same plot are raising the height of floors upto G+34 which was originally fixed to G+12. That way, there is no denying fact, the pressure of men, women and children for using the various undivided interest of members of the petitioner's society will be put to great peril.

46. The various coordinate Benches of this Court while considering the matter pertaining to the subject matter of the dispute have considered and disposed a number of writ petitions by clarifying the provisions of U.P. Apartment Act, 2010 and have opined that the same is applicable under U.P. Apartment Act, 2010 for Plot No. GH-10, Vaibhav Khand, Indirapuram, Ghaziabad. Consequently, the allottees of the said plot have all the rights and privileges as provided under U.P. Apartment, Act 2010.

47. The respondent no.1 released a revised plan on 31.07.2013 without seeking N.O.C. from the members of the petitioner's association. The respondents carried out the said alternation on the building plan without demanding a written majority resolution in favour of N.O.C. from the petitioner's society as per the provisions of U.P. Apartment Act, 2010. Now the respondents are making public offer to book apartments in Type-C as G+34 storeyed tower. Initially, Type-C block was having a plan to raise tower to the height of G+13 building of 20316 square meters with 152 dwelling units, having two rectangular towers but by the amended plan by raising height of the building up to G+34 would block air flow and sun light to the inhabitants of the petitioner's association which is in violation of Section 4(4) of U.P. Apartment Act and Rules 4 of Apartment Rules framed thereunder. The excavation work was uninterruptedly going on in the area shown as park (green area) in the plan dated 06.01.2005.

48. The petitioner, in fact, wrote letter to the Ghaziabad Development Authority and respondent nos.2 and 3 on 01.11.2014 to ensure that only sanctioned plan dated 06.01.2005 is implemented as no prior written consent of the petitioner / association was obtained which is a necessary pre-requisite to modify the plan as per U.P. Apartment Act, 2010 but no reply ever sent.

49. Pursuant to the order dated 24.07.2015 passed by the coordinate Bench of this Court in Writ Petition No.39147 of 2015 whereby respondent no.1 was directed to hear objection on the deed of declaration filed for the other category / type of building in GH Plot No.10, Vaibhav Khand, Indirapuram, Ghaziabad. The Vice Chairman after hearing the matter directed respondent no.2 to make composite deed of declaration for all buildings as per layout plan dated 06.01.2005 which includes towers of the petitioner society. Obviously, any height of floors above the G+12 cannot be allowed without obtaining consent of the petitioner's society but after the apartments have been sold out and sub-lease executed in favour of the petitioner on 17.03.2007, partial completion certificate was issued on 29.01.2010. The original plan (06.01.2005) cannot be amended by way of map dated 31.07.2013. The act of the respondents is in violation of the Article 21 of the Constitution of India.

50. As per Section 10 of the old 1975 Act and Section 4(c) of 2010 U.P. Apartment Act, the developer is under statutory obligation to disclose all the plans and specifications approved by or submitted for approval of the entire building to the local authority. The allotment of the purchasable F.A.R. and amendment of the sanctioned map behind back of intending purchasers / allottees is illegal and violative of the Act.

51. Section 3.3.5 of Ghaziabad Development Authority building bye-laws 2000 clearly specifies that all plots having area above 3000 square meters must have open area for park as such the respondents cannot say that the area shown in the map dated 06.01.2005 was not a park. The sales brochure distributed to sell the apartments to the petitioner depicts two parks adjacent to the petitioner's Sun tower Type-D. Two parks were Joggers park and Central park (near G+13, Type-C) which is now being separated from petitioner's building. A false statement has been made by respondent no.1 in the counter affidavit that the revised map allows G+34 constructions to suppress basement building after completely excavating the soil beneath green area making it suitable for planting trees and plants and thus trying to convert the space for car parking.

52. The definition of green space includes parks, community gardens and cemeteries, thus green area in map of 2005 is park area for all practical purposes. The placement of the cars over green area near Type-C on the uncontroverted fire map of 06.01.2005 after fire N.O.C. was obtained showing the area as landscape green area is illegal. It is settled law that the fire map cannot be changed. The word 'park' is used conceptually and contextually in U.P. Development Act, 1973 and U.P. Park Act 1975.

53. The sanctioned map 31.07.2013 / 25.04.2015 gives picture that Type-C and Type-E towers have been expanded horizontally from 2133.29 square meters in 2005 to 5459 square meters in 2013/2015, similarly green area of Type-E was Nil in 2005 which has been extended to 2168.589 square meters in 2013, thus green area was reduced.

54. So far as maintainability of the present writ petition is concerned, the very construction being raised is in violation of the sanctioned map in the year 2005 as per revised plan dated 31.07.2013, then meaning of aggrieved person is to be ascertained with reference to the purpose of the provisions of the statute U.P. Flat Act 1975 and U.P. Apartment Act, 2010, suffering a legal grievance. In this case, obviously, the consent as was required to be taken under Sub-section 4 read with Section 1, 2, 3 and 4 U.P. Apartment Rules was not taken by the respondent developers or Ghaziabad Development Authority from the petitioner. Therefore, the petitioner has right to maintain the instant writ petition against the Ghaziabad Development Authority which has violated Rule 4 of U.P. Apartment Rules, 2011. Since the point of maintainability involves violation of the provision of U.P. Apartment Act 2010 and bye-laws, therefore, alternative remedy against against the order dated 17.02.2015 issued by Ghaziabad Development Authority or admittedly with respect to map dated 31.07.2013 as such was valid till the said map of 2013 was again amended on 25.04.2015 giving rise to fresh cause of action as per civil jurisprudence. This writ petition was filed after noticing that the construction work at the site started before receiving copy of the order dated 17.02.2015 and the map dated 25.04.2015.

55. Ghaziabad Development Authority being interested party did not knowingly refer to the order dated 17.02.2015 while filing counter affidavit on behalf of the respondent no.1. Moreover, unregistered and incomplete deed of declaration dated 24.03.2015 is unsustainable as per the law and the judgment dated 14.11.2013 passed by the coordinate Bench of this Court in writ petition no.33826 of 2012 (as above) as such this Court had power to decide the land regarding filing of the deed of declaration in U.P. The Ghaziabad Development Authority had colluded with the respondents-company in secretly sanctioning the plan dated 31.07.2013 and 24.03.2015, at a time when there was no cause of action for the petitioner to raise any objection before filing of the present writ petition.

56. The developers and Ghaziabad Development Authority have no legal base to decide the land share of the allottees in violation of law which gives undivided proportionate land share on the entire plot / scheme to apartment owners as envisaged in Section 5 of U.P. Flat Act 1975. When the sale deeds have been executed by the act of the respondents, the percentage of undivided interest of the petitioner in the common areas and facility have been separated. Admittedly, the apartment of 116 square meters area could not have been built with the land share of 47.13 square meters unless 47.13 square meters at the ratio of 1.5 F.A.R. which comes to 70.69 square meters of built up area which is lesser than 116 square meters of apartment. The builders cannot take advantage of their own wrong. The interest in the common area and facility cannot be separated from flat to which it was appurtenant even if such interest is expressly not mentioned. As per Section 5 (3) of U.P. Flat Act, 1975 and U.P. Apartment Act, 2010, it connotes that the respondents cannot use land share of 47.13 square meters which is not being derived from the map dated 06.01.2005 sanctioned by Ghaziabad Development Authority as no consent was obtained from the petitioner's society.

57. The point is that Ghaziabad Development Authority made 2.5 F.A.R. in violation of Ghaziabad Development Authority building bye-laws 2000 and 2008 and the government orders dated 04.08.2011 and 17.08.2009 and purchase of F.A.R. was allowed for Rs.167/- crores, thus enhanced the F.A.R. from 1.5 to 2.5 in 2013. The builders had opportunity to purchase maximum 33 % (0.5 F.A.R.) under 3.3.6 as per Ghaziabad Development Authority building bye-laws 2000 and cover 35 % green area but it was not explored knowingly and the map dated 06.01.2005 was declared to the buyers as such Ghaziabad Development Authority cannot allow use of additional F.A.R. without the consent of the petitioner society and its members.

58. Ghaziabad Development Authority itself admitted in its note dated 15.10.2020 (SAR-1) to the Ghaziabad Development Authority board in 2013 that 182990 square meters of flat has been partially completed, only 252 square meters of plot is undeveloped as per earlier map dated 06.01.2005 as such the plot falls in the category of developed project and cannot be treated undeveloped which is requirement of allowing 2.5 F.A.R. Thus, action of the Ghaziabad Development Authority is in clear violation of the Ghaziabad Development Authority building bye-laws 2008 in Section 3.3.6 (iii). The deed of declaration is required to be filed within 90 days from the date of notification but the respondent no.2 has admittedly filed two separate deeds of declaration, one for Type-A and B and the other for Type-D in which the respondent authority did not provide a complete and registered deed of declaration dated 24.03.2015 and also did not pass any order to the objection dated 19.05.2019 filed by the petitioner, therefore, there is no valid deed of declaration in existence for the plot GH-10, Vabhaikhand Indirapuram Ghaziabad. It being so, the admitted position, the maps dated 31.07.2013 and 25.04.2015 become illegal documents and are liable to be quashed as they are in the teeth of Section (4) of U.P. Apartment Act, 2010.

Submission / Reply by Respondent No.1

59. Learned counsel for the respondent no.1- Ghaziabad Development Authority has brought to the notice of this Court various aspects of this case and has also detailed various reasons as to how F.A.R. was enhanced from 1.5 to 2.5 in the year 2008 and 2009 and the concerned bye-laws of the Ghaziabad Development Authority were amended. Thereafter, it is obvious that the respondent no.2 Shipra Pvt. Ltd. proposed revision in the map dated 06.01.2005 as per new F.A.R. applicable to new areas and undeveloped areas namely Kaushambi, Vaishali and Vaibhavkhand of district Ghaziabad. That being so, Plot GH 10 is located at Vaibhavkhand Indirapuram Ghaziabad. Admittedly, Type A and Type B (blocks) were represented by Windsor and Nova Welfare Association and it was having two bedroom flats with other amenities regarding which no interference was warranted from the other block / society / association. The petitioner's block is Type-D for which the petitioner's association Sun Tower Residents Welfare Association has been formed and duly acknowledged as such, it looks after welfare of the residents of that block. Admittedly, block A and block B were completed way back in the 2004 year, there was no controversy regarding the map which was applicable in relation to the construction of block A and B. In that block, the construction was completed and the possession was given to the allottees way back in 2004.

60. Now it so happened that all the flats for Type-D block were three bedroom apartments which were also completed as per revised plan dated 06.01.2005 and the flats were completed and lease deed was executed in respect of the individual flat to its allottees on 17.03.2007 and partial completion of Type D block was made in 2010, to be specific on 29.01.2010. That way, to claim ipso-facto and assume user right over a piece of land which was not meant to be used as common facility is nothing but misconceived idea. To claim that the area shown as green area / open area in the Type-C block on the land earmarked as Type C block and to contend that excavation work has been done upon this area which was, to all intents and purposes, a park and park only, the definition of park is exclusive and the entire map up to 06.01.2005 does not specify or earmark any piece of land exclusively as park. But various pieces of land on plot GH-10, Vaibhavkhand Indirapuram Ghaziabad that exist in 61 acres (approximately) do not denote any particular area to be exclusively a park and common amenities and facilities to be utilized by all was said to be commercial, hospital, school and there is one big park say Joggers park near Type-D block.

61. Now point is that in the writ petition like the present one, contention is that brochure which was shown and given to the allottees of the petitioner's association contained specific mention of park adjacent to Type D block is misconceived, reason being that this offer was initially made by the promoter construction company and this brochure also contained various terms and conditions. Assuming it to be that it shall be acted upon even then it is of contentious nature. It is up to the petitioner to prove and establish before the competent authority that this brochure was base and should be treated to be base of right of the petitioner. Apart from that, it is applicable to Type C block the parcel of land adjacent to the plot (block Type C Vaibhav Khand Indirapuram Ghaziabad as plot no. GH 10), which was earmarked for construction of different type of building.

62. 4Admittedly, in the present writ petition, one of the grounds (Ground L) taken by the petitioner's association asserts in relation to Type C parcel of land in question to be piece of land not developed then it is admitted to the petitioner's association that Type-C block is fit one where F.A.R. 2.5 is applicable as per bye-laws 2008 made by the Ghaziabad Development Authority and that cannot be treated to be purchasable F.A.R., for the reason that once F.A.R. was enhanced from 1.5 to 2.5 and that was to be applicable to a particular locality where development is to take place on bulk sale basis for the group housing society. Now the increased basic F.A.R. 2.5 shall be applicable in respect of undeveloped area i.e. Type E block and using that F.A.R. (2.5) height of apartment was raised from G+13 to G+34. There is no violation of any bye-laws. However, the Ghaziabad Development Authority treated this enhanced F.A.R. from 1.5 to 2.5 to be adjusted as additional F.A.R. and for which formula was made and based on the formula, some fee / payment was required to be made by the builders concerned. Consequently, certain amount was deposited in order to facilitate use of enhanced F.A.R. and that has been misconstrued by the petitioner as additional F.A.R. which aspect cannot be accepted.

63. Learned counsel for the respondent no.1 has also claimed that contentious matter has been raised and based upon the statute and there is no violation of any F.A.R. There is no mention of any park. Merely on the strength of argument, one can establish one fact to be another thing but that would not be reality but the reality is what exists on the papers / documents brought on record. The revised map is in consonance with the bye-laws and if any flaw is pointed out then that requires proper consideration only after both the sides are invited to give their testimony documentary as well as oral and issues are framed and finding to that effect is recorded by a competent authority. When the matter was taken up to the Hon'ble Apex Court, the Apex Court in its order has categorically directed that this High Court should consider about the fact of existence or non-existence of park and should record finding if it finds that it is not possible that it was a park then maintainability of the writ petition shall arise.

64. In this case, assertion of park has been made by the petitioner who is required to prove it tooth and nail but the same has been tried to be explained away by hook or by cook on imaginative thinking, whereas the definition of park as envisaged in U.P. Park Act, 1975 overthrow claim of the petitioner that in fact open green area marked on Type C block was exclusively a park and park only. The order dated 17.02.2015 was passed by answering respondent (No.1) has been deliberately and maliciously concealed because it was related to preparation of the deed of declaration and on point of the requirement of consent and use of F.A.R. which though decided by the Ghaziabad Development Authority was tried to be re-agitated by way of the present writ petition, which is not permissible and the material facts have been concealed. What an irony that things were divulged at a stage when counter affidavits were filed by the respondents - in particular respondent no.2 - the builder and various annexures have been brought on record by way of counter affidavit and the order dated 17.02.2015 was made clear and brought on record even though no amendment was sought by the petitioner to be incorporated in its writ petition and particularly when the petitioner got its pleading amended vide order of this Court dated 07.09.2021 in paragraph no.16 of its petition regarding construction of building on the land i.e. block Type C which means that the petitioner refrained itself from raising issues of requirement of requisite consent and use of F.A.R. as permissible under bye-laws of 2008 and the deed of declaration prepared by respondent no.2 and considered by the competent authority - that is the answering respondent. For the aforesaid reasons, the present writ petition is not maintainable and the petitioner has not approached the Court with clean hands. The more we delve deep in the pleading made out by the petitioner, the more confusion arises and the matter becomes puzzled and contentious. Controversy raised by the petitioner can be decided only by preferring appropriate action before the competent authority concerned, such contentious matter cannot be decided in the writ petition.

65. Surprisingly, the entire writ petition no.11072 of 2015 is nothing but meant for compliance of those parts of the order dated 17.02.2015 which are favourable to the petitioner and prayer to that effect and the pleading in respect thereto has been made in that connected writ petition. Obviously, there is no need to file any such petition. The order dated 17.02.2015. as it stands is required to be complied with by the concerned respondents-promoters. Apart from that, learned counsel for the respondent no.1 has engaged attention of the Court to the revised plan that is within admissible F.A.R. and is permissible under bye-laws 2008 of the G.D.A. which is applicable to the parcel of land earmarked as Type-C block, and to claim that construction should be raised within F.A.R. 1.5 is vague, misleading and unreasonable contention. Learned counsel for the respondent no.1 has brought to the notice of this Court various aspects of the map (31.07.2013) and has claimed that insofar as Type-D and Type A and B blocks are concerned, nothing has been constructed on it and these blocks have not been touched even in the least by the revised plan 2013.

Submission / Reply by the Respondent No.2

66. Sri Rahul Agarwal, learned counsel for the respondent no.2 has opened argument claiming that initially on the point of park that this writ petition was dismissed on 25.02.2016 by the coordinate Bench of this Court and the matter was remanded vide order dated 03.03.2017 passed by Hon'ble Apex Court in Special Leave Appeal with the direction that the fact of existence of park was required for consideration of this Court and will be decided whether the construction impugned is on piece of land earmarked as a park. The construction was basically in respect of Type-C block and Type-E block where building in the shape of G+13 and G+17 respectively were to be raised initially as per plan dated 06.01.2005 which was revised on 31.07.2013. Later on, this parcel of land and blocks were renamed as Type-C and construction was revised to G+34 floors.

67. Primarily, the question of park is essential one and central point of controversy and the petitioner is required to prove the existence of the park and specific direction of the Hon'ble Apex Court would prevail upon this Court to consider the same. The burden of proof is on the petitioner to establish that a particular piece of land in block Type-C was earmarked as park in the undisputed sanctioned layout plan/dated 06.01.2005. The petitioner has deliberately tried to bring the point of fire layout plan dated 06.01.2005, wherein certain areas were earmarked for block Type-C (G+13) and Type-E (G+17) marked as landscape green and green area and by way of revised/sanctioned map on 31.07.2013, the same is claimed by the petitioner to have been taken away and the construction was being raised thereon as block Type-C (G+34). To rely on the fire layout plan dated 06.01.2005 is a pretentious and tends to confuse things. It may be appreciated that layout plan dated 06.01.2005 is not conclusive as to any area earmarked there, except to indicate fire path of the plot intended to earmark path for fire tender movement. It is only indicative of fire path and does not deal with green areas. It does not mention any measurement or marking of ground coverage of the plot. The town and country planner of respondent no.1 personally appeared before this Court and produced its record and explained facts that upon written recommendation of the fire department, respondent no.1 sanctioned fire plan with the aforesaid objective. Further, fire layout plan has not been made part of the pleading in the writ petition, whereas, this point has been raised by the petitioner through supplementary rejoinder affidavit to the counter affidavit filed by the respondent no.1. Reliance of the petitioner on fire layout plan dated 06.01.2005 is in contravention of its own stand taken in this writ petition, where he relied on layout plan dated 06.01.2005.

68. The petitioner without any rhyme or reason is relying on the advocate commissioner report dated 20.12.2017 and is claiming construction being carried out over the park, whereas the petitioner has filed objection to the advocate commissioners' report and contrary to that architect commissioner has categorically denied encroachment of green area. The advocate commissioners found that presently after 2015 sanctioned plan the total green area required for Type-C Block is 8100 square meters and green area ad-measuring 8130.91 square meters have been proved to be existing in Block Type-C.

69. Further, report of the architect commissioner clearly shows that the allegations in respect of park is one totally unfounded as there was no such park in 2005 plan, the open area shown in 2005 plan belonged to only Type-

C apartment (Saya Gold towers) and was not common to the adjoining society. Moreso, the architect commissioner being an expert person and has got expertise in these matters would give better report as his examination of the land in question is more precise than that of the advocate commissioner. Some bald averment that park is being encroached upon would not save face of the petitioner and on that basis alone, the matter was got remanded to this Court for fresh consideration by order of Hon'ble The Supreme Court but the writ petition is silent about its (park) specific location particularly existence of the park in the layout plan sanctioned on 06.01.2005 which is claimed to have been encroached upon by revision of the layout plan on 31.07.2013.

70. Neither the measurement of the park nor its boundaries as per plan dated 06.01.2005 can be found and disclosed in the plan 2005 itself. Moreover, plan dated 06.01.2005 nowhere shows that park would in all probabilities come up in the Type-C and Type-E areas. It only mentions open area, green area or landscape green.

The park is supposed to have predominant spread of grass, shrubs, trees while landscape may comprise with intermittent greenery as defined under U.P. Parks Play Ground and Open Spaces (Preservation and Regulation) Act, 1975. Thus, the petitioner fails to come out specifically about existence of park with any encroachment over park area of Type-C building. In fact, green area / open space was gradually increased with several revision of map. Analytical study of plan dated 06.01.2005 and 31.07.2013 would itself give correct picture and statistics uncontrovertable on this aspect. It can be consistently argued that for the aforesaid specific facts and circumstances of the case it is impossible to adjudicate upon point of existence and location of the park in Type-E block and once the petitioner has failed to establish fact of park, the present writ petition becomes not maintainable, because contentious issue in regard to existence of park has been tried to be raised which cannot be adjudicated upon precisely and conspicuously by way of the present writ petition for which statutory remedy available to the petitioner is to approach to the competent civil court or the authority concerned as the case may be. Not only, on the point of maintainability, but also on concealment of the material facts by the petitioner, the petition should go.

71. The order dated 17.02.2015 decided specific question of requisite consent being obtained or not through the petitioner society pertaining to the revised plan dated 31.07.2013 as also point of use of additional F.A.R. by the respondents and deed of declaration. Apart from that, several points were raised in the representation of the petitioner dated 07.09.2014, prime being regarding preparation of the deed of declaration, point of consent being obtained from the petitioner society for the revised plan dated 31.07.2013, use of excessive F.A.R. Apart from that, certain ancillary points were also raised regarding completion of construction work tending to injure common interest in the plot of the petitioner. The representation was admittedly decided on 17.02.2015 wherein the deponent (Laxmi Chand) of this petition was also heard. The point of consent being obtained and use of additional F.A.R. was decided against the petitioner and the Shipra Estate was directed to prepare and complete deed of declaration.

72. Now it is surprising that determination on point of consent was an order passed in quashi-judicial capacity and not simplicitor administrative order, for specific reason that the petitioner moved to filing of the writ petition seeking direction to the respondent no.1 Ghaziabad Development Authority to consider the - very representation. Pursuant to this order passed by High Court and a representation dated 07.09.2014 was moved by the petitioner before the G.D.A. The Ghaziabad Development Authority after due consideration rejected (on 17.02.2015) the representation giving specific reasons. The competent authority passed that order under U.P. Apartment Act, 2010. Thus the matter was virtually adjudicated to the point that the consent by the petitioner was not needed prior to approval of plan dated 31.07.2013, but the petitioner association instead of taking proper course of action, surprisingly filed this writ petition agitating again point of consent and the entire writ petition is silent about this specific finding recorded by the Ghaziabad Development Authority vide its order dated 17.02.2015 and copy of the order was directed to be served on the Secretary, Sun Tower Residents Welfare Association.

73. It is noticeable that after lapse of eight months of passing of the aforesaid order, the writ petition was filed on 14.10.2015. Now to claim that from 17.02.2015 up to 14.10.2015, the petitioner's association was not knowing the order dated 17.02.2015 is absolutely unbelievable and unacceptable plea and has been deliberately made to conceal material facts relevant for decision of this writ petition. The proper remedy against the order dated 17.02.2015 would be by preferring the revision before the State Government. Inaction by the petitioner itself shows a waiver of the right of proper remedy on the point of consent and use of excessive F.A.R. and the petitioner was exposed when the writ petition no.11072 of 2017 was filed (as Annexure-6) by him based on the aforesaid order dated 17.02.2015 which is connected writ petition.

74. Further claim is that no cause of action accrues to the petitioner and no locus standi to maintain the present writ petition, for the reason that the interest of the petitioner's association remained unaffected through revision of the layout plan dated 31.07.2013.

75. In this case, certain sections of U.P. Apartment Act, 2010 bear relevance for deciding the present writ petition, these are Sections 3(B), 3(d) 3(i), 5(1) and 5(2). Bare perusal of the above Sections is connotative to the point about the rights of an apartment owner are defined in respect of building that is apartments situated therein and right of apartment owner is confined to Section 5(1) and Section 5(2) of U.P. Apartment Act, 2010. The rights of the apartment owner are restricted to exclusively possession and control over the apartment sold or transferred to him together with common areas and facilities appended to the building wherein apartment concerned is located. This right does not overreach the other building or apartment located therein and common area and facility appended to such other building. This right is restricted to percentage of common areas and facilities vis-à-vis the area of apartment owned by the allottees. Further for a specific block, there is specific association. The undivided interest that an apartment owner is entitled to enjoy in the common areas and facilities is statutorily defined and is limited to the building / building complex containing apartment of the allottee is located.

76. Section 14 of U.P. Apartment Act, 2010 postulates setting up of an association of apartment owner "for the administration of the affairs in relation to the apartments and the property appurtenant thereto and for the management of common areas and facilities". The proviso to Section 14 of the Act mandates that where certain area is demarcated for construction of building, there shall be a single association in such demarcated area and this aspect is virtually admitted to the petitioner because he contest the case for Type-D (Block) as Sun Tower and got registered as such association, whereas, for another apartment say - Type A and Type B - is governed by another society Windsor and Nova Resident Welfare Association and it is functional over the set of building constructed on the same plot no.10 Vaibhavkhand, Indirapuram Ghaziabad and these associations are administering common areas and facilities in their respective buildings and not of the entire plot and it cannot be claimed that the petitioner society has the right to administer affairs of Type-C apartment or manage common areas facilities of Type-C apartment. Type-C apartment owners shall form their own independent association. It is not pleaded by the petitioner that it has right to administer affairs in relation to Type-C apartment or manage common areas and facilities of Type-C apartment.

77. The deed of apartment which is sample lease deed and that has been brought on record by the petitioner's association identifies the building and the land to which the apartment owner has right as defined in U.P. Apartment Act, 2010 as this lease deed fixes the extent of the right of apartment owner and no right beyond that can be claimed by the petitioner. The layout sanctioned plan dated 06.01.2005 shows Type-D apartments (Sun Tower) and Type-C apartments (Saya Gold) are separated by 18 meters wide internal road. Sun tower and Saya Gold blocks have their separate boundaries and Schedule A of the lease deed executed by the Ghaziabad Development Authority also specifies that undivided share in land, common areas and facilities of the members of the petitioner's association is restricted to building having 84 apartments in one tower and not to the entire plot of 61 acres.

78. Since F.A.R. was increased by way of notification of amended bye-laws of the U.P. Government and Ghaziabad Development Authority, only basic F.A.R. has been utilized for revision of the map. The relief has been sought in the writ petition seeking quashment of the allotment of the additional F.A.R. given to respondent nos.2 and 3 by the respondent no.1. There is no averment in the writ petition that the revised map is with respect to purchasable F.A.R. Only ground 1 mentions 33% purchasable F.A.R. and that too, vaguely.

79. Substituting bye-laws of 2002 and powers conferred under Act No.11 of 1973, the State of U.P. issued model bye-laws which is known as Development Authority building Construction and Development of bye-laws 2008 providing for maximum F.A.R. of 2.5 for new and undeveloped area applicable to bulk sale residential group housing plots. Accordingly, the Ghaziabad Development Authority revised clause 3.3.6 (XI) of its bye-laws to provide for a base F.A.R. of 2.5 for real estate projects allocated as bulk sale. In Clause 3.3.6 (XI) of 2008 bye-laws, subject plot no.10 being bulk sale plot in terms of M.O.U. dated 08.01.2002 became fully entitled for basic F.A.R. 2.5, the element of purchasable F.A.R. as mooted by the petitioner is altogether misleading. By way of revision (of plan 2005) the basic F.A.R. is admissible to the project which is the right and entitlement of the developer. Admittedly, the basic F.A.R. or base F.A.R. is different from additional F.A.R. Unlike additional F.A.R., basic F.A.R. is not purchasable. Basic F.A.R. is meant to permit a basic permissible extent of construction in a building. There is no discretion with the Ghaziabad Development Authority in allowing a layout plan within basic F.A.R. and it does not require any allotment from a development authority. To construct a building, using basic F.A.R. as per bye-laws is right of the developer. The additional F.A.R. is purchasable by the developers and is allotted by the Development Authority.

80. The petitioner has relied on the decision of this Court in the case of M/s Designarch Infrastructure Pvt. Ltd. and another Vs. Vice Chairmain Ghaziabad Development Authority and others, 2013 (9) ADJ 594 (DB), particularly in paragraph nos. 66 (14), which deals with F.A.R. as property in which the apartment owners have interest by virtue of the provisions of U.P. Apartment Act, 2010 and the restriction has been placed by this Court on real estate developers on the purchase and utilization of the additional F.A.R as distinguished from basic F.A.R.

81. The basic F.A.R. was increased to 2.5 in the year 2009 that is before U.P. Apartment Act, 2010 came into force and the revision in the layout plan is in pursuance of the entitlement to 2.5 F.A.R. The revision does not pertain to purchasable F.A.R. and this finding of fact has been recorded by the Ghaziabad Development Authority. The order dated 17.02.2015 remained unchallenged by the petitioner. Similarly, the petitioner has not challenged the deed of declaration dated 24.03.2015 which is annexure C.A.8 to the counter affidavit of the answering respondent. Neither there is any relief against the deed of declaration nor any pleading nor ground in the writ petition alleging any illegality in this document and it is not a private document but it is a public document and the petitioner cannot be permitted to take that excuse. In its supplementary rejoinder affidavit filed on 15.10.2020, the petitioner has conveniently mentioned that this deed of declaration is a private document but the same cannot be accepted in view of fact that the deed of declaration was filed only after direction for the same was issued by this Court dealing with the matter in the case of Designarch (supra), when vide order dated 14.11.2013 passed by this Court, (a coordinate division Bench), the petitioner was also given option to move its representation before the respondent no.1 which he did by moving representation dated 07.09.2014 which was considered and disposed of on 17.02.2015 by the G.D.A. then how can it be said to be private document. To term this document as private document is always shocking, for the reason that identical deeds of declaration filed by respondent no.2 in respect of Type-A and Type-B apartment were challenged by filing writ petition no.39147 of 2015 Windsor and Nova Apartment Owners Association Vs. Ghaziabad Development Authority and two others, wherein this Court decided it on 24.07.2015 and asked the petitioner to file representation before respondent no.1 and the decision taken thereon by the Chairman, Ghaziabad Development Authority on 24.09.2016 was again subject to challenge by filing writ petition no. 26598 of 2016 Windsor and Nova Aparment vs. Ghaziabad Development Authority and 2 others, then how can deed of declaration (filed by respondent no.2) be treated to be a private document in respect of one set of apartment owners namely Sun Tower residence welfare association and a document accessible to it and subject to challenge by another set of apartment owners Windsor and Nova Owners Association before this Court. The deed of declaration had already been brought on record by respondent no.2 as Annexure No.CA-8 to the counter affidavit. The coordinate bench of this Court has already upheld identical deed of declaration filed for Type-A and B apartments. The total land area and undivided interest in land in the deeds of declaration of Type-A and B apartments and Type-D apartments have been worked out on identical line and taking another view in the present proceeding would be judicially improper. In the annexure appended to the deed of declaration, total covered area of the apartments of the respective blocks, common areas and facilities are mentioned. The land area of the petitioner association as mentioned in the deed of declaration aggregates to 16995.84 square meters. The undivided share of land to which a member of the petitioner association is entitled to has been mentioned as 47.13 square meters. The same 47.13 square meters has also been mentioned as the members of the petitioner association's undivided share in land in the deed of apartment executed in their favour by the Ghaziabad Development Authority in the year

2008, the area 47.13 square meters mentioned therein remained unchallenged. The total land area for the Windsor and Nova Apartment Owner Association has been mentioned in the deed of declaration to be 48326.39 square meters and this length of area was challenged by Windsor and Nova Association which was restricted to 48326.39 square meters for Type-A and B building in Schedule D to the deed of declaration.

82. Once the Ghaziabad Development Authority vide order dated 24.09.2016 rejected the submission of the Windsor and Nova Apartment Association and that order was again put to challenge in writ petition no.61615 of 2016 whereby the coordinate Bench of this Court dismissed the writ petitioner on 03.01.2017 and in absence of any interference with the order dated 24.09.2016 passed by the competent authority, that order has become final.

83. The petitioner's association was not a party to the proceeding arising out of the deed of declaration filed in respect of Type A and B apartments, the demarcation of the land area of apartment block in both the deeds of declaration filed by respondent no.2 has been done on similar basis. Only measurement area varies while in the case of the petitioner, it is 16,995 square meters for Type-D apartment. The deed of declaration remained unchallenged by the petitioner is not mystery but a reality, and F.A.R is admissible on the whole plot of the plan and it is open to the developers to load F.A.R. as much as it desires on the separate pocket / blocks depending on its business plan and no apartment owner can claim ownership right over space meant for community use. While clarifying the various aspects of the case, learned counsel for the respondent no.2 has placed reliance to the principles laid down by Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of DLF Ltd. Vs. Manmohan Lawe and others (2014) 12 SCC 231 wherein Hon'ble Apex Court held that the independent apartment owner has absolutely no ownership right in the area meant for community use and only has right of user.

Submission / Reply by the Respondent No.3

84. Learned counsel for the respondent no.3 has contended that petitioner had preferred a similar writ petition before this Court and the same has been decided along with bunch of petitions by a common order passed by the coordinate Bench of this Court in writ petition no.33826 of 2012 Designarch Vs. State of U.P. and others, whereby mechanism for redressal of the grievance of the apartment owners or their respective associations were clarified and various provisions of U.P. Apartment Act, 2010, U.P. Apartment Rules 2011 and Model bye-laws and its applicability, was interpreted.

85. Now pursuance thereto, the petitioner's association preferred the representation before Ghaziabad Development Authority on 07.09.2014. Thereafter, the petitioner filed writ petition no.53524 of 2014 Sun Tower Residents Welfare Association Vs. State of U.P. and three others on 25.09.2014. This Court vide order dated 07.10.2014 directed to decided the aforesaid representation. Subsequently, the representation was decided on 17.02.205 and all the disputes raised by the petitioner in the present writ petition were decided by speaking order. Point of consent being obtained, use of additional F.A.R. was specifically decided and the plea on this issue raised by the petitioner was after due consideration rejected, therefore, this writ petition is barred by principle of res-judicata.

86. On October 14, in the year 2015, the petitioner preferred this writ petition suppressing and concealing aforesaid aspects and the writ petition sans description of similar writ petition no.53524 of 2014 previously filed by the petitioner. The entire petitioner is silent on point of consent to be obtained from the petitioner by the developers-respondents no.2. The petition does not refer to this aspect that point of consent and use of excess F.A.R. by respondent no.2 was rejected by the G.D.A. Can the petitioner answer to it as to how and why he kept silent over it and he had alternative and efficient remedy available by preferring revision or availing other remedy before the State Government against the aforesaid order dated 17.02.2015 passed by the Ghaziabad Development Authority but the writ petition has been cleverly drafted suppressing material facts.

87. Now the petitioner shrewdly invented another idea and preferred writ petition no.11072 of 2017 before this Court seeking compliance of the order dated 17.02.2015 passed by the respondent no.1- Ghaziabad Development Authority and by way of prayer made in the aforesaid petition, implementation of the order dated 17.02.2015 was sought, one can see that vague and misleading prayer has been made in that writ petition. The writ petition is thus barred by doctrine of acquiescence and estoppel and the same is liable to be dismissed with heavy cost. Besides, learned counsel for the respondent no.3 more or less adopted arguments extended by the learned counsel for the respondent no.2.

88. Besides, he urged on certain different points and claimed that by way of this writ petition, disputed question of facts have been tried to be raised in this writ petition which is not possible. None of the rights of the allottees of the petitioner's association have been infringed by the development made by the respondent no.3. The U.P. Apartment Act, 2010 sets out law to provide for ownership of an individual apartment in a building as well as undivided interest in common areas and facilities appurtenant to such apartment and envisages that interest is inheritable and transferable. Section 41 of U.P. Apartment Act defines the term apartment and Section 3 (d) of the U.P. Apartment Act defines the term apartment owner whereas Section 5(1) U.P. Apartment Act, 2010 provides for the rights of a purchaser in relation to the flat sold out. Similarly ownership rights are entailed under Section 5 (2) U.P. Apartment Act, 2010. These rights are restricted only to those apartment that forms association for particular building.

89. The two building complexes are completely independent of each other having its own boundaries entry / exit and common areas facilities. The undivided interest is to be gathered in the deed of declaration filed by respondent no.2 with respondent no.1. The petition though refers to aforesaid declaration but the same has not been filed.

90. We have also considered the respective submissions of both the sides.

91. At the outset, we may take note of the fact that vide order of the Hon'ble Apex Court dated 03.03.2017 passed in Civil Appeal No.3602 of 2017 arising out of SLP (C) 26475-2016 Sun Tower Residents Welfare Association Vs. Ghaziabad Development Authority and others, direction was specific to this Court for expeditious disposal of the case and further that all issues were kept open and it was observed that in case the High Court finds it is not possible to determine that it was a park obviously the question of writ application can be considered. Keeping in mind the above direction, we asked both the sides to first argue on the point of existence of park and then to address other issues involved in this writ petition between the parties. Both the sides dealt exhaustively on the issue of park. However, upon consideration only a few vital issues arise in this case, for adjudication as hereinunder.

92. Issue no.1 whether landscape 'green' and 'open area' as shown in the map / layout plan dated 06.01.2005 pertaining to plot no.10 Vaibhavkhand Indirapuram Ghaziabad be considered as park and the construction raised in block Type-C was encroachment upon open park area (as shown in layout plan 06.01.2005)?

Further, in the alternative whether the petitioner have established fact that the 'green area' and 'open area' as shown in the map layout plan dated 06.01.2005 is earmarked as park exclusive?

93. Issue no.2 whether additional F.A.R. was utilized towards construction in respect of building on block Type C as per plan dated 31.07.2013 without obtaining consent of the petitioner's association under proviso to Sub-section 4 read with Section 12 and Rule 3 and Rule 4 of the U.P. Apartment Rules, 2011 and the allotted 2.5 F.A.R is in violation of the G.D.A. Building bye-laws 2000 and 2008 and the G.O. Dated 17.08.2009 and 04.08.2011?

94. Issue no.3 whether consent of the petitioner's association was essential / pre-requisite and must have been obtained by the developers and the G.D.A. prior to the approval of the revised layout plan dated 31.0.7.2013?

95. Issue no.4 whether undivided interest of the members of the petitioner's association has been violated as envisaged in Section 5 of U.P. Flat Act, 1975 and the F.A.R. (1.5) initially allotted and block Type-C being treated as an independent area is justified when this aspect was alien to U.P. Flat Act, 1975?

96. Issue no.5 whether there is material concealment of fact in writ petition no.59863 of 2015 and vital facts suppressed on account of which the petition deserves to be dismissed?

97. This issue pertains to claim of the petitioner on the point of existence of park and its encroachment by the developers - respondent nos.2 and 3 by raising construction on it as pleaded by the petitioner. Here we may observe that the question of existence of park has been taken to be base of the petition asserting that by way of construction, being raised by respondent nos.2 and 3 the developers, the area earmarked as park in the layout plan dated 06.01.2005 has been encroached upon which interferes with the undivided interest of the members of the petitioner's association. Claim is that any construction raised on the area earmarked as park in block Type-C would be violative of the provisions of the U.P. Apartment Act, 2010. Both the sides have raised their rival claim, however, we may take into account the submissions on the point raised by the learned counsel for the petitioner and in order to properly address the issue, we have also perused the particular pleading on the point (claiming encroachment of the area earmarked as park) made in the writ petition (59863 of 2015).

98. We may observe that this writ petition was previously dismissed by coordinate Bench of this Court vide order dated 25.02.2016 by observing that contentious matter has been tried to be pressed into service by the petitioner for consideration which cannot be decided in the writ petition. Against this order, when the matter was entertained by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the concerned special leave to appeal (as above) and the observation made by the Hon'ble Apex Court was, to all intent and purposes, for recording specific finding about existence / non-existence of park in block - Type-C, which was marked as green area, open space and landscape etc. in the layout plan dated 06.01.2005, therefore, first and foremost point before us is to consider that particular aspect pertaining to 'existence of park'.

99. In that regard the claim of the petitioner is rested on the anvil that the brochure distributed to sell the apartment to the petitioner has shown two parks adjacent to petitioner's sun tower Type-D, the two parks shown were - Joggers Park and Central Park (near G+13, Type-C, which is now being separated from the petitioner's building) and that way incorrect statement has been made in paragraph no.8 of the counter affidavit by respondent no.1 as G+34 to suppress the construction made in the basement area by completely excavating the soil beneath the as green area making it unsuitable for planting trees and plants. Learned counsel for the petitioner claims that green area would mean that the area which is completely or partly covered with grass, trees. shrubs or other vegetation. Thus, the area shown green area in the layout map dated 06.01.2005 is 'park' area for all practical purposes.

100. Before we proceed further in pursuance of the aforesaid specific submission on point of treating 'green area' as 'park' in the layout map dated 06.01.2005, it would be convenient to take into account the definition of park as given in the Uttar Pradesh Parks, Playgrounds and Open Spaces (Preservation and Regulation) Act, 1975, [U.P. Act No.55 of 1975], as defined under Section 2 (b):-

"(b) "park" means a piece of land on which there are no buildings or of which not more than one-twentieth part is covered with buildings, and the whole or the remainder of which is laid out as a garden with trees plants or flower-beds or as a lawn or as a meadow and maintained as a place for the resort of the public for recreation, air or light;".

101. Obviously, the burden to prove fact of green area earmarked in the layout plan dated 06.01.2005 to be a park is on the petitioner. It is obvious that the writ petition itself does not specify by specific measurement the location or the area of park by any metes and bounds. But there is mere bald averment in the writ petition that the green area as marked in the layout plan (06.01.2005) for all purposes is a park. This is based upon conjectural analogy emanating from brochure, issued by the promoter / developer to the petitioner when they were offered to purchase apartments in Type D block.

102. It is admitted position that the layout plan dated 06.01.2005 nowhere describes any piece of land to be a park exclusively. Similarly, there is no indication or marking in the layout plan 06.01.2005 that a park would come up in the Type-C and Type-E areas as such. The layout plan (06.01.2005) depicts open area / green area or areas described as landscape green etc. but it nowhere depicts word park as such. We can construe meaning of park as entailed herein above by seeking guidance from Section 2(b) Uttar Pradesh Parks, Playgrounds and Open Spaces (Preservation and Regulation) Act, 1975, [U.P. Act No.55 of 1975]. The layout plan dated 06.01.2005 shows that on the area claimed to be park by the petitioner association, car parking at various places is shown. These cars are shown to be parked all over the open / green area depicted as part of block Type-C and the cars are not shown to be parked in a corner of this open / green area. We do not think that an area which depicts cars parked all over the place can be treated to be a park as defined in the U.P. Parks, Playgrounds and Open Spaces (Preservation and Regulation) Act, 1975 or even as commonly understood. May be that area could have some trees, plants and hedges planted in the open / green area to provide shade or improve aesthetics, but that would not, by itself, make the open / green area as a park especially when cars are shown all over that area in the plan (06.01.2005) and not only in a corner thereof.

103. Commonly, park is a piece of land which is supposed to have a predominant spread of grass, shrubs, trees, while open area and the landscape green may be an area which may comprise covered flooring with intermittent greenery as defined under the Uttar Pradesh Parks, Playgrounds and Open Spaces (Preservation and Regulation) Act, 1975. A statistical analysis of the data / measurement given in the layout plan would further clarify the fact that total green area / open space on the entire plot i.e. (243242.63 square meters), Plot No.10, Vaibhav Khand Indirapuram, Ghaziabad was 64599.84 square meters amounting to 26.56 % of the plot area. Type-C plot area was earmarked as an area spreading 20036.00 square meters which includes the green area / open areas scattered in four patches in pocket 'C' i.e. 2950.333.00 square meters amounting to 14.73 % of 'C' pocket area.

104. Now on comparative analysis of the layout plan dated 31.07.2013 it shows total area of the plot (No.10) was 243242.63 square meters, whereas, the area of Type-C pocket is 20036.00 square meters, and the total green area / open area on the entire plot was shown to be admeasuring 67493.81 square meters that amounts to 27.75% of the plot area which includes green area scattered in three patches in Type-C pocket which comes to 3279.56 square meters, thus totaling 16.37% area in pocket 'C'. We find that revision of the layout plan (06.01.2005) was made on 31.07.2013 in respect of pocket C and subsequently on 25.04.2015.

105. Perusal of map indicates that it was again revised reversing the position of open land / green area etc. Total green area / open area in pocket C increased to 8130.91 square meters, which amounts to 40.58% of the total area of pocket 'C'. Above calculation and statistics based upon figures as shown in the layout plan dated 06.01.2005, 31.07.2013 and 25.04.2015, the total area of park and open area in the layout plan of 2013 went up by about 4500 square meters. To be precise, revision plan dated 25.04.2015 in respect of Type-C building indicates that the total green area / green landscape area has been mentioned as 8130.91 square meters, thus availability of open area / park area experiences an enhancement with the revised plan in 2013 and 2015.

106. Now we would like to discuss the report dated 20.12.2017 submitted by the two Advocates and the Architect Commissioner, who were directed by this Court previously vide order dated 15.11.2017 with direction to make on the spot inspection on the site (Type-C) and to submit a report. The Court commission visited the spot on 02.12.2017 and submitted the report (as above). Mr. Satyam Singh and Ms. Saumya Mandhyan, learned counsels and an Architect Mr. Manish Gujral were named in the order to make inspection and submit report. The detailed report was prepared by both the two advocates and the architect and both submitted their factual report (20.12.2017).

107. We scanned carefully both the reports filed by the advocate and the architect and we on perusing the report submitted by the advocate commissioner come across that topography of the area in particular of block Type-C and the area adjacent to it has been taken note of by the advocate commissioner whereby various descriptions have been made, relevant description relating to the fact of existence / non-existence of park in block Type-C has been made. There was found 18 meters wide road that separates the two towers -say Sun tower Type D and Windsor and Nova Tower (Type A and B) blocks respectively on one side on the road, whereas, Saya Gold block Type C lies on the other side of this road. Observation in paragraph no.7 of the report on point that on one side of the road is the Sun tower with no boundary wall but only a fence like iron railing surrounding its periphery and entry-exit, whereas on the other side is Saya Gold with distinct boundary wall and entry-exit - is under construction. The relevant photographs have been marked as annexure no.1 to the report. The advocate commissioners have observed in paragraph no.9

of the report that there were three parks operational which were accessible to all the residents of plot no.10 (60 acres). One such park namely, the Joggers park is situated just beside the Sun tower, and in paragraph no.10, it proceeds on to say about independent car parking for Type-A, B, C, D and E. As we proceed further we come across description as entailed in the report that no park is situated inside the Sun tower only open area has been provided at the centre of four buildings. Further, it describes about open landscape area facing Sun tower as per layout plan dated 06.01.2005, sanctioned to be built for Saya Gold (Types -C and E) and according to the revised layout plan dated 31.07.2013, that same area is indicated to be park area (dotted box), now lies towards the rear side.

108. As we proceed further with the report, we come across fact as described in paragraph no.12 itself that the advocate commissioners were shown another revised sanctioned plan dated 25.04.2015 by the G.D.A. This plan shows structure of only Saya Gold wherein the park area which was situated at the rear side of the construction of the Saya Gold, as according to the revised plan dated 31.07.2013, has now vide 2015 plan been shifted to front side of block - Type-C facing Sun tower and marked as green landscape area and the details of green area have been specifically described in the map.

109. Further perusal of paragraph no.13 of the report submits that the advocate commissioners found this green landscape area of Saya Gold to be under construction due to the three level basement parking being constructed. When asked about the green landscape area, they were informed that after the structure is complete there shall be open landscape area on that land and no park area. Further reference pertains to club house, swimming pool, parking of each block etc. In paragraph no.4, it has been observed that according to 2013 plan, park area was supposed to be built at the rear end of the premises of Saya Gold but that has been shifted now in front of block Type-C according to the 2015 plan but admittedly, no green park was being constructed on it even though open area has been left for the residents.

110. Insofar as this factual report by the advocate commissioners regarding existence of the park is concerned, the very description of indication of park as per the revised layout plan 31.07.2013 is on the face based on misconception and fallacy that the layout plan dated 31.07.2013 indicated 'park' in the dotted box (in green colour) in Type-C block, on perusal of the layout plan dated 31.07.2013, we do not see any area in Type C block marked as park.

111. It appears that the advocate commissionerd took the green dotted lines as shown in Type-C block to be a park, which is not the correct position. Not a single word has been spelt denoting these green dotted spots to be a park in the revised plan dated 31.07.2013. Therefore, any reference to park as such in reference to the green dotted spots is not acceptable.

112. Now we switch over to the report of Architect Commissioner in the same reference. Bare perusal of the report dated 20.12.2017 on the point of existence of park, proceeds to describe in paragraph no.6 " Nevertheless the most important issue of the park as discussed by the petitioner in his petition is totally unfounded as there was no park demarcated in the sanctioned (plan) of the year 2005 on the plot where the construction is going on. Open area shown towards road in 2005 plan was mostly shown as car parking and moreover this open area clearly belongs to Saya tower society and is not common to all adjoining society". Further in paragraph no.8, the report describes that there were three parks operational which were accessible to all residents of the plot no.10 (60 acres). One Joggers park stated to be situated just beside the Sun tower.

113. Thus, it is not possible to determine that the area in question in block Type-C is a park (as being claimed by the petitioner). Both the sides have filed their objection to the commissioner reports.

114. The petitioner has objected to the architect as well as the advocate commissioners report dated 20.12.2017 by contending that both the advocate as well as the architect commissioner have acted in non-compliance of the order of this Court dated 15.11.2017 whereby only one commission was appointed and specifically directed to conduct on the spot joint inspection and it was required to submit one single report, whereas, in this case, the two advocate commissioners have on the one hand filed their separate report dated 20.12.2017 whereas on the other hand architect commissioner has filed his separate report and in the light of above. Castigation is that report submitted by the architect commissioner suffers from minority view, therefore, it should be rejected out-rightly and advocate commissioners' report being majority report be treated as report of the commission. However, the petitioner has objected to both the reports, on those points which are adverse to him.

115. We first take up the objection to the architect's report by the petitioner. Upon perusal of the objection, we come across discontent shown to the report in the sense that the factual finding of both the advocate and the architect commissioner is almost same but paragraph no.5 of the architect commissioner report is stated to be wrong when the commissioner observed that the parking, entry and exit level of Sun tower building as the sole independent entry forgetting the fact that inspection would apparently show that all the four towers in Type-D building have multiple separate, free entries at ground level from the common roads due to absence of any boundary wall, the landscape area defined by the commissioner has been seriously objected to be beyond the purview of the commission. The architect's report is self-contradictory. He failed to describe the actual landscape area in the plan 2005 as it stands today. It did not take note of landscape area as per 2013 plan that has been completely taken over for construction, similarly while, considering about the 18 meters wide road, he wrongly observed that the road divides Sun tower with Saya Gold, whereas, 18 meter wide road is part of the single scheme to allow the inhabitants of the whole plot to move in and out of the plot.

116. The report regarding three operational park accessible to all has been accepted as correct by the objector. The report was stated to be partially correct when the Chief Town Planner told that plan 2013 was passed as per notification dated 17.08.2009 but it failed to mention that U.P. Apartment Act notified in 2010 prohibits any change in plan based on additional F.A.R. as per government notification dated 17.08.2009 without obtaining the consent of other existing allottees. The commissioner also did not take note of fact that Town Planner had told him that there is no boundary wall permitted around Saya (Type-C) or any tower in the plot.

117. The paragraph no.11 of the architect's report has been accepted to be correct regarding mention of use of increased F.A.R. by the developer.

118. It is also incorrect when the architect commissioner observed that in plan 2005, the front open area was shown as parking and not green area because the map supplied to the three commissioners clearly marked the entire area as "landscape area" , the commissioner incorrectly stated that the open area has been increased in 2013 plan as compared to 2005 plan.

119. The commissioner has stated that after questioning about green land area, he was informed that after the construction is complete there shall be an open area and not park area. The construction is now being headed on the basis of new sanctioned plan dated 25.04.2015 but such plan is not acceptable to the petitioner. The architect commissioner stated just opposite to what Chief Town Planner has stated before the three men commission. The architect commissioner was partly correct when he stated that there are other parks in the scheme.

120. Besides, the petitioner also scathed the advocate commissioners report on similar lines like the one he castigated architect commissioner report, the same averments and the same objection to this report have been made on the same line that the three commissioners ought to have filed one single report. Although the report of the advocate commissioners is rated to be partly correct. In paragraph no.5 of the objection, a request has been made that advocate commissioner report being majority report be considered as the report of the commission appointed by this Court.

121. Objection is that the advocate commissioner also failed to take note of fact that there are four parks out of which one is adjacent to Type C building and it is being destroyed. The contents of the paragraph no.7 and 8 of the report was assailed in regard to the description that 18 meter wide road separates the two properties in question - on one side of the road, there is Sun tower building with no boundary wall but only an iron like fencing surrounding its periphery and entry and exit, whereas, on the other side, is Saya Gold. It is claimed that there are multiple entries into four towers of Type-D building because of absence of any boundary wall and set back line. The statement of Chief Town Planner that no boundary wall was sanctioned around any type of buildings as such the boundary wall found around Saya Gold (Type-C) building is illegal and has to be removed.

122. There are four parks and reference of fourth park has not been mentioned. Paragraph no.10 of the report of the advocate commissioners makes contradictory statement, when it submits that residents of Windsor and Nova were parking their vehicles on sides of the road, meaning thereby there is no parking for any type of building and it was never required. The advocate commissioners failed to record fact that the revised map of 2015 was never part of this case when the advocate commissioners were told by the Chief Town Planner that G.D.A. has revised the map subsequently. From perusal of the photograph appended to the report, it can be seen that open landscape area has been converted into building on ground floor level, whereas, there was no landscape area as per 2005 plan. It was never reported that the open landscape area as per 2013 plan has been completely taken over for construction.

123. Paragraph no.16 of the report is stated to be partly correct that the sun light due to construction of G+34 instead of G+12 has been partially restricted for the residents of Sun tower (Type-D) and sun light and air flow of the petitioner building which is G+12 building is completely restricted and lastly contents of paragraph no.16 of the report was stated to be incorrect when it observed that the allegations of the petitioner in the present writ petition are partly in affirmation and partly in negation.

124. Respondent no.2 has also objected to the report of the advocate commissioner dated 20.12.2017 to the ambit that commission was required to ascertain about the allegations of the petitioner with regard to the agreement (sale deed) executed between the petitioner and the G.D.A. respondent no.1. Therefore, as per direction of this Court, the commission was to look into violation of the agreement (sale deed) between the petitioner and respondent no.1. The commission instead of confining itself within the four corners of directions given by the Court travelled beyond directions of this Court and made observations which were uncalled for and the commission was not required to ascertain about change in landscape of an independent area where development was being carried out (by respondent no.3). It being an independent area enclosed by distinct boundaries having its own entry and exit. While clarifying about construction (being made out), it was claimed that vide order dated 04.08.2009, the Housing and Urban Planning Department, Government of the U.P. increased F.A.R. from 1.5 to 2.5, thus developers proposed plan (31.07.2013) was within limits. The objection also narrates the past story as to how lease was granted and how the F.A.R was increased from 1.5 to 2.5 and that being so, the height of the floors was also increased. It also described fact that construction of Type-E apartment was undeveloped, therefore, respondent no.2 was entitled to further seek revision to the layout plan dated 06.01.2005 and to increase the height of the floors up to G+34 storey. After narrating various aspects and gradual development of law pertaining to U.P. Apartment Act, 2010 and the bye-laws of 2008 which facilitated revision of the layout map dated 06.01.2005. However, it was claimed, inter-alia, that Windsor and Nova has its independent and separate common areas, facilities and services as well as separate and independent entry and exit. The vehicles of Windsor and Nova apartment association were parked within premises of the society. Plot no.10 being huge land spread into 60 acres and development of the entire plot cannot be made at one stroke, therefore, respondent no.2 at all times proposed to develop different group housing scheme over plot no.10 having its independent common areas and facilities and construction being carried out by respondent no.3 over plot no.10/1 having its own common areas and facilities as well as entry and exit.

125. It is claimed that averments made in paragraph no.11 are in contrast to contents of paragraph no.9. Apart from that, chronological background of the incidental development of the project in respect of society Windsor and Nova for Type-A and B building has also been elaborated and claimed that due to change in the F.A.R., the parcel of land demarcated as Type-C building in the revision of map sought and the consequent construction raised thereon is in consonance with the bye-laws of G.D.A. and Rules and provisions of the U.P. Apartment Act, 2010.

126. The respondent no.3 has raised objection to the advocate commissioner report and has asserted that while the commissioner took account of construction of G+34 and thereby opined that sun light has been partially restricted for the residents of Sun tower and has compared this finding with architect commissioner report which tells another story that this construction falls towards south of the sun tower, therefore, sun light is not much affected and on the basis of this report, learned advocate commissioner report has been criticized severely to the tune that the relevant aspect about the building being constructed on the southern side has not been considered properly. Further observations regarding existence of common facilities as stated by the advocate commissioner report has been put to question on the ground that architect commissioner has opined differently. In fact, the factual aspects have been properly explained by the architect, he being an skilled and technical man to understand the technicalities of the building vis-a-vis use of the land, his dealing with the land and building is more authentic and accurate than that the advocate commissioner. He has dealt with the relevant aspects of facts. However, the members of commission were unanimous on the point in their individual reports that both the societies are separated by 18 meter wide road and construction raised by respondent no.3 is not affecting any common area of the petitioner society as the project has sufficient distance between the two blocks (Type-D and Type-C). By saying so, the respondent no.3 has concluded that the advocate commissioner travelled beyond its power and opined in the matter which was not called for.

127. Now insofar as the aforesaid reports of the advocate and the architect commissioners and its objection by both the sides, are concerned, it is apparent, that vide order of this Court dated 15.11.2017, it was directed that commission shall visit the spot comprising of two advocates and one architect and they were specifically named in the order itself and were directed to make the spot inspection on 02.12.2017 which they did on 02.12.2017.

128. Now the claim raised by the petitioner that one single report ought to have been filed by all the three - the two advocate and one architect - is altogether misconceived idea, for the reason that there is no such direction that the report must be one and jointly filed, as such, by all the three commissioners. So far as factual aspect of filing of the commissioners report in this case is concerned, obviously we disapprove idea of majority and minority reports mooted by the petitioner.

129. All the three commissioners were found competent only then they were appointed by this Court to make on the spot inspection of the site. Both the reports are fact finding reports and the objection raised to it by the petitioner insofar as it relates to factual aspects of this case need not be elaborated at this stage as that would tend to touch directly on the merits of this case which aspects we will discuss and deal in this judgment later on. However, both the commissioner reports concur on the point that the Sun tower i.e Type-D - is surrounded by iron like fencing on its periphery. Apparently, the petitioner has not stated in its objection that this particular fact to be against real fact or incorrect. Now it can be considered in the light of the commissioner report(s) that Sun tower building / area is surrounded by an iron like fencing then obviously, it does not make difference because iron like fencing itself separates the area from the rest of the other areas of Plot no.10. If such is the conduct of the petitioner society itself, the impression given by the construction of iron like fencing surrounding the Sun tower building would always mean that notwithstanding the denial by the petitioner, that there is no separate parcel of land on plot no.10, however, by conduct it admits of separate parcel of land on plot no.10, which is looked after by Sun Tower Association. Here the conduct of the petitioner in not telling about iron like fencing surrounding Sun Tower speaks louder than the claim raised by the petitioner to the contrary. In this regard, area of Type-D building of the petitioner society is posed to be separated from other areas, though it is not the legal position and the law as it holds in relation to the building in question.

130. If fact of an iron like fencing is existing surrounding periphery of Sun Tower and that being the case, then entry to all the four blocks of Type-D cannot be made directly from the main road, whereas, the fact is that only one entry and exit gate is found to be operational for Type-D Sun tower as there is existing an iron like fencing around the Sun tower, as described in both the reports one by the Advocate and another by the architect commissioners, therefore, objection to that extent raised by the petitioner is not sustained.

131. So far as reference of revised map of 2015, use of F.A.R. / additional F.A.R. by the
